Art. 1502. [923] [991] Office to be declared vacant, when.—Should the person elected treasurer fail to give the bonds required by this title and take the oath of office within twenty days after receiving his certificate of election, it shall be the duty of the county judge to declare the said office vacant; and, should a treasurer fail to give another or an additional bond or bonds when required to do so, as provided in the preceding article, within twenty days after notice of such requirement, he shall be removed from said office in the manner provided by law.

Art. 1503. [924] [992] Vacancy, how filled.—Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of the county treasurer, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of the county in which such vacancy occurs to fill such vacancy by appointment, such appointment to be made by a majority vote of the commissioners present, at a regular or special term of such court, and such appointment shall continue in force until the next general election and until a successor is qualified. [Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 217.]

Art. 1504. [925] [993] Appointee shall take oath and give bonds.—The person appointed to fill the vacancy, as provided in the preceding article, shall, before entering upon the discharge of the duties of such office, and within twenty days after he has been notified of such appointment, take the oath and give the bonds required, as in the case of an election to such office. [Id.]

Art. 1505. [926] [994] Shall receive moneys belonging to county, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county treasurer to receive all moneys belonging to the county from whatever source they may be derived, and to pay and apply the same as required by law, in such manner as the commissioners' court of his county may require and direct. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 1097.]

See Carothers v. Presidio County, 23 S. W. 491, 4 C. A. 529.

Proper custodian of funds.—The county treasurer is the only person entitled to the custody of the money of the county. Wall v. McConnell, 65 T. 397. See Looscan v. Harris County, 58 T. 519.

Breach of bond.—Payment of permanent school funds without the order of the commissioners' court is a breach of the treasurer's bond. Boydstun v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 541.

As to deposit of funds, see Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 937.

Duties as treasurer of navigation district.—See Title 96, Art. 5987.

Fees of treasurer.—See Title 58, Arts. 3873-3875, and notes.

Art. 1506. [927] [995] Shall keep true accounts and superintend collection of money, etc.—The county treasurer shall keep a just and true account of the receipts and expenditures of all moneys which shall come into his hands by virtue of his office, and of the debts due to and from his county; and direct prosecutions according to law for the recovery of all debts that may be due his county, and superintend the collection thereof. [Id. P. D. 1098.]

Suits for debts due county.—The county treasurer cannot, by an action against a county judge, recover from him personally an amount due from the county, but not paid to him by reason of an erroneous instruction of the commissioners' court. McConnell v. Wall, 67 T. 323, 3 S. W. 287. Actions by a county treasurer to recover debts due his county should be brought in the name of the county. McConnell v. Wall, 67 T. 323, 3 S. W. 287.

The county treasurer alone is authorized to sue for a debt due his county by another county on account of school funds. Trustees of Lytle School District v. Haas (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 831.

An action by the county treasurer for the use and benefit of the county cannot be maintained to recover a portion of the school fund. Connor v. Zachry, 54 C. A. 188, 115 S. W. 867, 117 S. W. 177.

Accounts of improvement district.—See Title 83, Art. 5564.

Art. 1507. [928] [996] Shall report to commissioners' court.—The county treasurer shall render a detailed report at every regular term of the commissioners' court of his county of all the moneys received and disbursed by him, of all debts due to and from his county, and of all other proceedings in his office, and shall exhibit to said court at every such term all his books and accounts for their inspection and all vouchers relating to the same, to be audited and allowed. [Id. P. D. 1099.]

Estoppel.—Approval of county treasurer's account does not estop the county to dispute its correctness as against his sureties. Coe v. Nash (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 235.

False report.—A false statement by the treasurer as to the amount of money on hand is not such a breach of the bond as to render the sureties liable. Coe v. Nash, 91 T. 119, 41 S. W. 473.

School fund.—See, also, Art. 2768.

It is not necessary that the statement of a county treasurer's account should be passed on by the commissioners' court before the institution of suit against him for failing to pay over public money to his successor in office. If entitled to credits against the debt with which he is charged, he may plead and show them. A refusal of a former county treasurer to deliver to his successor in office the money in his possession belonging to the school fund, when requested so to do by the proper authorities, is a breach of that portion of his official bond which binds him to safely keep and faithfully disburse the school fund according to law. Wilson v. Wichita County, 67 T. 647, 4 S. W. 67.

This article and 921 Rev. St. 1895, are sufficient to show that it was contemplated that the county treasurer should be the custodian of the securities belonging to the school fund of the county. Poole v. Burnett County, 97 T. 77, 76 S. W. 426.

Art. 1508. [929] [997] Shall deliver money, etc., to successor in office.—He shall deliver the moneys, securities, and all other property of the county in his hands, together with all documents, instruments of writing, papers and books belonging to, or for the use of, the county to his successor in office, and perform all such other acts as may be required of him by said commissioners' court. [Id. P. D. 1100.]

Art. 1509. [930] [998] Shall not pay out money except, etc.—The county treasurer shall not pay any money out of the county treasury except in pursuance of a certificate or warrant from some officer authorized by law to issue the same; and, if such treasurer shall have any doubt of the legality or propriety of any order, decree, certificate or warrant presented to him for payment, he shall not pay the same, but shall make report thereof to the commissioners' court for their consideration and direction. [Id. P. D. 1101.]

Issuance and nature of warrants.—See notes under Art. 1459.

Does not apply to school funds.—The provisions of this article apply to such matters as come under the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court. They do not apply to public school funds, because a voucher against such funds cannot be issued by the commissioners' court, nor had that court any power over it. Collier v. Peacock, 93 T. 255, 54 S. W. 1025.

This article does not apply in case of payment of school warrants or vouchers drawn on the treasurer and approved by the school superintendent of the county. He has no discretion in regard to the payment of these. Oge v. Froebese (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 690.

Invalid warrant.—A county treasurer who, exercising good faith and proper care, pays an invalid county warrant, is not liable to the county therefor. McDonald v. Farmer, 23 C. A. 39, 56 S. W. 555.

Mandamus.—See notes under Art. 5732.

Warrant necessary.—The county treasurer is not authorized to pay a claim simply upon presentation to him of a certified copy of the orders of the commissioners' court, as such copies could not take the place of the warrants required to be issued by article 1149 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Denman v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 803.

As custodian of funds of improvement district.—See Art. 5564.

Art. 1510. [931] [999] Shall examine dockets, accounts, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county treasurer to examine the accounts, dockets and records of the clerks, sheriff, justices of the peace, constables and tax collector of his county, for the purpose of ascertaining whether any moneys of right belonging to his county are in their hands which have not been accounted for and paid over according to law, and shall report the same to the commissioners' court at their next term, to the end that suit may be instituted for the recovery thereof. [Id. P. D. 1102.]

Art. 1511. [932] [1000] Shall perform such other duties as may be required by law.—The county treasurer shall perform all such other duties as may be required of him by law.

CHAPTER ONE

JUDGES OF THE SUPREME COURT

Art.
1512. Chief and associate justices.
1513. Election and tenure of office.
1514. Qualifications of judges.
1515. Vacancies, how filled.
1516. Disqualification of judges.
1517. Equal division of judges.

Article 1512. [933] [1001] One chief and two associate justices.—The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of two judges shall be necessary to the decision of a case. [Const. art. 5, sec. 2.]

Art. 1513. [934] [1002] Election and tenure of office.—The chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state at a general election. The judges of said court now in office shall hold their office until the expiration of the term for which they were elected, and until their successors are elected and qualified. As soon as practicable after the election of the successors to the present incumbents, the newly elected judges shall cast lots for the term of office. That one who shall draw number one shall hold his office for two years; the one drawing number two shall hold his office for four years, and the one drawing number three shall hold his office for six years; each to hold his office until his successor is elected and qualified; and each justice of the supreme court elected thereafter shall hold his office for six years and until his successor is elected and qualified, and shall each receive an annual salary of four thousand dollars. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Salaries.—See Art. 7057.

Art. 1514. [935] [1003] Qualifications of judges.—No person shall be eligible to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the supreme court, unless he be, at the time of his election, a citizen of the United States and of this state, and unless he shall have attained the age of thirty years, and shall have been a practicing lawyer or a judge of a court in this state, or such lawyer and judge together, at least seven years. [Id.]

Art. 1515. [936] [1004] Vacancies, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice or associate justice of the supreme court, the governor shall fill the vacancy until the next general election for state officers, and at such general election the vacancy for the unexpired term shall be filled by election by the qualified voters of the state. [Id.]

Art. 1516. [969] [1040] Disqualification of judges.—No judge of the supreme court shall sit in any cause wherein he may be interested in the question to be determined, or where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity, within the third degree, or where he shall have been of counsel in the cause; and, when the court or any two of its members shall be thus disqualified to hear and determine any cause or causes in said court, the same shall be certified to the governor, who shall immediately commission the requisite number of persons, learned in the law, for the trial and determination of said cause or causes. [Const. art. 5, sec. 11; Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1575.]

Counsel in cause.—Justice of the supreme court held not disqualified to sit in certain case by reason of having been counsel in a certain previous case. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 89 S. W. 552.

Art. 1517. [970] [1041] Equal division of judges.—Whenever the supreme court shall be equally divided in opinion on hearing any appeal or other matter, it shall be the duty of the chief justice or presiding judge of the court to certify the same to the governor; also, all other causes of disability of said court, as prescribed in the preceding article; whereupon, the governor shall immediately commission the required number of persons learned in the law for the determination of said case or cases; provided, that the person or persons so commissioned shall possess all the qualifications hereinbefore and hereinafter prescribed for judges of the supreme court. [P. D. 1576.]

CHAPTER TWO

TERMS OF THE SUPREME COURT

Art.
1518. Terms of supreme court.
1519. Adjournments.
1520. Bailiff; appointment and compensation

Article 1518. [937] [1005] Terms of supreme court.—The supreme court shall hold one term each year at the city of Austin, commencing on the first Monday in October of each year, and may continue until the last Saturday in the next June. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Art. 1519. [938] [1010] Adjournment from day to day; want of quorum.—The said court may adjourn from day to day, or for such period as they may think necessary to the ends of justice and the determination of the business before them; and there shall be no discontinuance of any suit, process or matter returned to, or depending in, the supreme court, although a quorum of the court may not be in attendance at the commencement or any other day, of the term; but if a sufficient number of the judges shall not attend on the first day of the term to hold said court, or shall not attend at any day of the term, any judge of the court, or the sheriff attending the same, may adjourn the said court from time to time, for thirty days, at which time, if a majority or quorum shall not attend, it shall be the duty of the judge or sheriff in attendance to adjourn the court to the next regular term time. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1574.]

Art. 1520. [939] Bailiff, appointment and compensation.—The supreme court may appoint a bailiff to attend the sitting of the court, who shall receive an annual salary of three hundred dollars.

CHAPTER THREE

JURISDICTION OF THE SUPREME COURT

Art.
1521. Appellate jurisdiction.
1522. Writs of error, in what cases.
1523. Court to make rules, etc.
1524. To prescribe rules of practice.
1525. May ascertain jurisdictional facts.
1526. May issue writs.
1527. May punish contempt.
1528. May mandamus district judge to proceed to trial.
1529. May issue writs of habeas corpus when, and admit to bail.

Article 1521. Appellate jurisdiction of supreme court.—The supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of the state, which shall extend to questions of law arising in civil causes in the courts of civil appeals in the following cases when same have been brought to the courts of civil appeals by writ of error, or appeal, from final judgments of the trial courts:

(1) Those in which the judges of the courts of civil appeals may disagree upon any question of law material to the decision.

(2) Those in which one of the courts of civil appeals holds differently from a prior decision of its own, or of another court of civil appeals, or of the supreme court upon any such question of law.

(3) Those involving the validity of statutes.

(4) Those involving the revenue laws of the state.

(5) Those in which the railroad commission is a party.

(6) Those in which, by proper application for writ of error, it is made to appear that the court of civil appeals has, in the opinion of the supreme court, erroneously declared the substantive law of the case, in which case the supreme court shall take jurisdiction for the purpose of correcting such error. [Acts 1913, p. 107, sec. 1.]

DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Cited, Edwards v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 151 S. W. 289.

Jurisdiction.—The old article did not confer jurisdiction in cases of which the court of civil appeals, under section 5 of the act to organize those courts, have final jurisdiction. Railway Co. v. Langsdale, 88 T. 513, 32 S. W. 523. See Schintz v. Morris, 89 T. 648, 35 S. W. 1041.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction to grant a writ of error in a case brought in the district court of which the county court also had jurisdiction. Long v. Green & Co., 100 T. 510, 101 S. W. 786.

Supreme court held to have jurisdiction of action against guardian of beneficiaries of insurance policy to recover payments made to keep up the policy under a contract for reimbursement. Kelly v. Searcy, 100 T. 566, 102 S. W. 100.

Appellate jurisdiction defined. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 326.

Where a judgment of the court of civil appeals, vacating an order of the district court dissolving a temporary injunction against the execution of a county court judgment, would be final if the action for the injunction had been originally brought in the county court, the supreme court has no jurisdiction to review the judgment of the court of appeals, though the action was originally brought in the district court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 102 T. 322, 116 S. W. 360.

—— Amount in controversy.—A writ of error does not lie to the court of civil appeals in a case for debt, where the amount in controversy was within the constitutional jurisdiction of the county court, although suit was brought in the district court having jurisdiction in the county in such cases. Railway Co. v. Lumber Co., 85 T. 405, 21 S. W. 539. See G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Buford, 85 T. 430, 21 S. W. 678.

Suit by a railroad company for $283.03 against a lumber company for freight, brought in the district court of Trinity county by virtue of a statute which gives to that court in that county the jurisdiction which is conferred by the constitution upon the county courts. In such case the judgment of the court of civil appeals in reversing the judgment of the trial court and rendering final judgment for the full amount claimed was final and conclusive, and over such judgment the supreme court has no control. Railway Co. v. Lumber Co., 85 T. 405, 21 S. W. 539.

The county court not having jurisdiction of a proceeding for the trial of the right of property, when the value of the property levied on amounted to or exceeded $500, the supreme court has jurisdiction to review by writ of error the judgment of the court of civil appeals in such a proceeding. Wetzel v. Simon, 87 T. 403, 28 S. W. 942.

A claim for damages to the amount of $1,000 and compensation for delay in the payment of the same is within the jurisdiction of the supreme court. Schulz v. Tessman, 92 T. 488, 49 S. W. 1031.

Where two suits, each for $1,000, brought in the district court, were consolidated, and tried as one case, the supreme court held to acquire jurisdiction on appeal from a judgment of the court of civil appeals. Security Co. v. Panhandle Nat. Bank, 93 T. 575, 57 S. W. 22.

The supreme court held to have jurisdiction of writ of error in garnishment proceedings ancillary to judgment of the district court though the amount involved was within the jurisdiction of the county court. Simmang v. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co., 102 T. 39, 112 S. W. 1044, 132 Am. St. Rep. 846.

—— Existence of controversy.—A writ of error will not be granted in order to pass on a question of law already settled. Holt v. Maverick, 25 S. W. 607, 86 T. 457.

Where the subject-matter of a suit has ceased to exist, a writ of error to the court of civil appeals will not be granted for the purpose of reversing its judgment and that of the trial court merely to determine the question of costs. Robinson v. State, 29 S. W. 649, 87 T. 562.

The determination of the same question in a case between other parties settles the conflict, and the supreme court has no jurisdiction. Sturges Nat. Bank v. Smith, 87 T. 639, 30 S. W. 898.

Where the term of service of a school teacher under an agreement, the approval of which is compelled by mandamus, has expired pending appeal, the supreme court cannot consider an application for writ of error to review the judgment awarding the writ. Watkins v. Huff, 94 T. 631, 64 S. W. 682.

—— Election contest.—A writ of error will not lie in a case contesting an election. State v. Thompson, 30 S. W. 1046, 88 T. 228.

Issues of fact.—See note under Arts. 1526, 1546.

Final judgment.—However the attention of the court be called to the fact, if the record discloses that no final judgment has been rendered in a cause, the appeal must be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Mills v. Paul, 1 C. A. 419, 23 S. W. 189.

Several causes are shown to have been consolidated in the trial court. A judgment in such consolidated case, to be final, must dispose of the litigation as to all parties in such suit. Id.

An appellate court is without jurisdiction when the record fails to show a final judgment. Railway Co. v. Wills (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 431.

An application to the supreme court for a writ of error dismissed on the ground that the judgment was not final and appealable. Mendoza v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 94 T. 650, 62 S. W. 418.

Writ of error from supreme court to court of civil appeals dismissed for want of jurisdiction of latter court. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Whatley, 99 T. 128, 87 S. W. 819.

An order of the court of civil appeals refusing to take jurisdiction of a cause and to permit the transcript (from the trial court) to be filed, is not a final judgment from which a writ of error will lie to the supreme court. The proper remedy is mandamus by the supreme court to court of civil appeals to compel the filing of the transcript. Wandelohr v. Rainy et al., 100 T. 471, 100 S. W. 1156.

Our statutes give right of appeal only from judgments of the district and county courts, and not from a judgment of a judge sitting in chambers. Pittman v. Byars, 100 T. 518, 101 S. W. 789.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals refusing to permit the filing of a transcript out of time on the ground that failure to file the same was inexcusable, is not a final judgment within this article, and hence such judgment is not reviewable in the supreme court on writ of error. Casey v. Bell, 104 T. 338, 137 S. W. 918.

Since a writ of error to the supreme court is not the proper remedy to review an order of the court of civil appeals, refusing to permit the filing of a transcript out of time, such order not being a final judgment within this article, mandamus will lie to compel the filing of such transcript. Id.

Construction of constitution.—Where a case presents the question whether two judges, the others being disqualified, constitute a legal court under section 11, article 5, of the constitution, the supreme court has jurisdiction. City of Austin v. Nalle, 85 T. 520, 22 S. W. 668, 960.

Where a writ of error to review the decision of the court of appeals in an action to enjoin the collection of taxes on timber standing on county school lands was based wholly on the contention that plaintiff merely possessed a right to cut it, and thereby to acquire title, plaintiff, not being the owner, could not be liable for taxes thereon, so that the case does not involve the question of whether the timber was exempt from taxation under Const. art. 11, § 9, exempting property of counties owned and held for public purposes only, so as to give the supreme court jurisdiction under this article. Peach River Lumber Co. v. Montgomery (Sup.) 124 S. W. 904.

Validity of statute.—The supreme court held to have no jurisdiction of a writ of error from an order of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment of the district court on a motion to recover money collected from an attorney. Blair v. Blanton, 93 T. 348, 55 S. W. 321.

Where the construction placed by the court of civil appeals upon a law puts that law in conflict with the constitution of the United States, the validity of the law is involved, and an appeal will lie to the supreme court. Albertype Co. v. Gust Feist Co., 102 T. 219, 114 S. W. 791.

The supreme court has jurisdiction in cases appealed from county court to court of civil appeals involving the validity of statute, because article 1591 declares that the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals in such cases is not final. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Webb, 102 T. 210, 114 S. W. 1173.

Conflict of decisions.—A conflict of decisions gives jurisdiction to the supreme court only in cases in which the judgment of the court of civil appeals is not final, and that court has reversed the judgment of the trial court and remanded the cause. Gallagher v. Rahm, 88 T. 514, 32 S. W. 523; T. & P. R. Co. v. Langsdale, 88 T. 513, 32 S. W. 523.

A conflict of a decision of a court of civil appeals with a decision of the supreme court must be well defined in order to give the supreme court jurisdiction. Bassett v. Sherrod, 90 T. 32, 36 S. W. 400.

It is not sufficient to give jurisdiction that a court of civil appeals may have misapplied a principle of law announced by another court. The facts must be substantially the same. Sun Mutual Ins. Co. v. Roberts, Willis & Taylor Co., 90 T. 78, 37 S. W. 311.

In case of a conflict of decision the precise question must have been decided in both cases. Mann v. Durst, 90 T. 76, 37 S. W. 311.

Decision of supreme court held not overruled by appellate court, so as to give the former jurisdiction on writ of error. Durst v. McCampbell, 91 T. 147, 40 S. W. 955; Molino v. Benavides, 94 T. 413, 60 S. W. 875.

Decisions of court of civil appeals and supreme court held not in conflict. Bailey v. Deware, 91 T. 91, 40 S. W. 966.

Where an assignment of error is waived, and judgment reversed, the court of civil appeals, by deciding the point in favor of the same appellant on a subsequent appeal, does not overrule decision of the supreme court so as to give it jurisdiction on error. Durst v. McCampbell, 91 T. 147, 41 S. W. 470.

Decision of the court of civil appeals held not to overrule prior decision of supreme court, so as to give it jurisdiction to review such decision. Assman v. Dittman, 93 T. 37, 53 S. W. 342.

Where it was claimed that the court of civil appeals had overruled decisions of the supreme court, a writ of error would be denied, where it appeared that the petition on which the judgment of the court of civil appeals was based set up a cause of action unlike the one on which the decisions of the supreme court were based. Adoue v. Wettermark, 94 T. 81, 58 S. W. 722.

A decision of the court of civil appeals contrary to a principle announced in a decision by the supreme court did not give the supreme court jurisdiction on a writ of error as overruling its decision. Molino v. Benavides, 94 T. 413, 60 S. W. 875.

The supreme court has jurisdiction to grant writ of error, though cause is remanded, where decisions of courts of civil appeals conflict. Harn v. American Mut. Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n, 95 T. 79, 65 S. W. 176.

An application for writ of error, alleging a conflict of a decision of a court of civil appeals with a decision of the supreme court, held insufficient to confer jurisdiction. Watson v. First Nat. Bank, 95 T. 351, 67 S. W. 314.

The decision of a court of civil appeals as to the correctness of an instruction in an action against a city and street railroad company for a death held not to be in such conflict with decisions of the supreme court and courts of civil appeals as to give the supreme court jurisdiction to review the case. Gossett v. Citizens' Ry. Co., 96 T. 1, 69 S. W. 976.

The overruling of a decision of the old court of appeals does not give the Supreme Court jurisdiction under this article. Id.

In order to give the supreme court jurisdiction it is not required that the later decision expressly overrule a former, but there must be an irreconcilable conflict between the two decisions. Red River T. & S. Ry. Co. v. McKerley, 99 T. 18, 86 S. W. 922.

See note to Arts. 1620, 1622.

Decision of courts of civil appeals held not conflicting, so as to give supreme court jurisdiction where court of civil appeals reversed and remanded cause. Rogers v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 100 T. 48, 94 S. W. 321; St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Rainey, Id.

In an action against a railroad for damages resulting from delay and rough handling in transporting plaintiff's cattle, a decision of the court of civil appeals for the second supreme judicial district held not in conflict with a decision of the court of civil appeals for the third supreme judicial district. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Conner, 101 T. 34, 104 S. W. 1048.

A decision of the court of civil appeals, that a railroad company must keep cattle guards in good condition, held not in conflict with certain other decisions respecting the railroad's liability for killing stock which escaped through openings in the ralroad's right of way fence at private crossings. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Willson, 101 T. 269, 106 S. W. 325.

A conflict between a decision of the court of civil appeals reversing and remanding and other appellate decisions, which have been overruled, does not give the supreme court jurisdiction of the cause in which such decision is made. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Herring, 102 T. 100, 113 S. W. 521.

In determining whether a decision of the court of civil appeals overrules other appellate decisions, so as to give the supreme court jurisdiction, the decision must be considered as a whole. Id.

Dissent.—After a case has been before the supreme court on certificate of dissent from a court of civil appeals, another writ of error bringing up the entire case will not be granted. Campbell v. Wiggins, 85 T. 451, 22 S. W. 5.

Where the court of civil appeals are unanimous that a charge was properly refused, but one judge dissents as to the reason assigned, there is no such dissent as will authorize the supreme court to take jurisdiction. Mexia v. Lewis, 22 S. W. 397, 87 T. 208.

Courts holding differently.—In order to give supreme court jurisdiction the two courts of civil appeals must hold differently, on the same question or same or similar state of facts. Hanway v. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 94 T. 76, 58 S. W. 724.

The decision of a court of civil appeals as to the correctness of an instruction in trespass to try title held to be in such conflict with the decision of another court of civil appeals on the same question as to require such question to be certified to the supreme court. McCurdy v. Conner, 95 T. 246, 66 S. W. 664.

Judgment of reversal.—The supreme court held to have no jurisdiction to grant a writ of error to a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing and remanding a cause for the insufficiency of the evidence. Dawson v. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co., 94 T. 424, 61 S. W. 118.

Reversal which settles case.—This rule does not authorize the writ where the action of the court of civil appeals was upon the giving and the refusing of instructions, or on the exclusion of testimony, where it appears that the facts upon which the charges were based were controverted, or when the evidence rejected was corroborative, and not likely to control the disposition of the case upon another trial. Smith v. Wilson, 85 T. 402, 20 S. W. 587.

So, also, where the reversal is on ground of an improper charge by the trial judge, the propriety of such charge depending on the state of the evidence, the supreme court, on application for writ of error, cannot assume that there will or will not be evidence on another trial to make such charge improper. Sanger v. Henderson, 85 T. 404, 20 S. W. 915.

Where the court of civil appeals reverses a judgment and remands a cause for the purpose of allowing the parties to introduce new evidence throwing light on the transaction involved, this does not settle the case, and writ of error will not lie from the supreme court. Gallagher v. McHugh, 85 T. 446, 21 S. W. 1033.

A writ of error will lie from the judgment of a court of civil appeals reversing a judgment of recovery for personal injuries on the ground that the evidence shows contributory negligence. Crawford v. Railway Co., 89 T. 89, 33 S. W. 534.

The question upon which the writ of error is sought must be one of law, and when sought under clause 8 it must appear from the record and petition that the decision is decisive of the case without better evidence. Lee v. Railway Co., 89 T. 640, 36 S. W. 66; Powell v. Railway Co., 89 T. 663, 36 S. W. 72; Warren v. City of Denison, 89 T. 557, 36 S. W. 404; Smith v. Railway Co., 90 T. 123, 38 S. W. 985.

Where a court of civil appeals reverses on the ground that the recovery below was for too much, the judgment does not "practically settle the case." Ide v. College Park Electric Belt Line, 90 T. 509, 39 S. W. 915.

Where a case has been remanded by the court of civil appeals, the supreme court has no jurisdiction, unless the application for a writ of error shows that the judgment of such court settled the case. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Masterson, 91 T. 383, 43 S. W. 875.

When the court of civil appeals reverses a judgment because the verdict is against the evidence, its decision does not settle the case, and hence a writ of error will not lie thereto from the supreme court. Choate v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 91 T. 406, 44 S. W. 69.

A writ of error, to enable one to procure a review of a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment in his favor, will be granted, where the former judgment practically settles the case. Hartel v. Jefferies, 94 T. 649, 54 S. W. 242.

Where a writ of error to the court of civil appeals is based upon the allegation that the decision of that court settles the case, and such decision is sustained, the Supreme Court will render a final judgment. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 93 T. 482, 56 S. W. 328.

To give supreme court jurisdiction on the ground that the decision of the court of civil appeals practically settles the case, the fact must not only be averred but it must also appear from the record that upon the evidence adduced upon the trial, the decision of the court of civil appeals is decisive of all the questions raised by the pleadings. Harvey v. Sutton, 94 T. 79, 58 S. W. 833.

Where the court of civil appeals remanded a case because the evidence did not show what part of the land plaintiff was entitled to recover, the supreme court did not have jurisdiction on writ of error on the ground that the decision "practically settled the case." Molino v. Benavides, 94 T. 413, 60 S. W. 875.

Applicant for a writ of error, on the ground that the decision "practically settled the case," could not affect the question of jurisdiction by asserting that plaintiff could not produce further evidence. Id.

A party who has procured the reversal of a judgment by a court of civil appeals, has no right to go to the supreme court and ask that the judgment be entered in his favor against the losing party without a further trial in the district court. The supreme court has no jurisdiction in such a case. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Coolidge, 95 T. 92, 65 S. W. 182.

In order to render final judgment in a case where the decision of the court of civil appeals practically settles the case it is necessary for the supreme court to grant the writ of error so that it can have the whole case before it. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Martin, 95 T. 437, 67 S. W. 883.

The judgment of the court of civil appeals, reversing and remanding a case, held reviewable by the supreme court; it having practically settled the case. Brown v. Cates, 99 T. 133, 87 S. W. 1149.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment and remanding the action held to substantially settle the case within the statute relating to the jurisdiction of the supreme court to review judgments. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

A writ of error to the court of civil appeals on the ground that the decision of the court of civil appeals practically settled the case held properly granted. Jockusch, Davison & Co. v. O. T. Lyon & Son, 100 T. 594, 102 S. W. 396.

An application for a writ of error may be granted to review a decision of the court of civil appeals, though it reversed the judgment and remanded the cause, where the decision practically settled the controversy. Owens v. Cage & Crow, 101 T. 286, 106 S. W. 880.

Under subd. 8, a petition for writ of error, which alleges that the judgment of the court of civil appeals practically settles the case, because plaintiffs in error have no defense to the intervention of the defendants in error other than that set forth in their answer, which, in obedience to the decision of the court of appeals, must go out on demurrer, and plaintiffs in error concede the fact that defendants in error are interested in the litigation, and that the decision of the court of civil appeals is final, gives the supreme court jurisdiction, and it will enter such judgment as the court of civil appeals should have entered. McCord v. Sprinkel, 105 T. 150, 141 S. W. 945.

An application for writ of error to the supreme court, upon the grounds, that the decision of the court of civil appeals practically settled the case, admits the correctness of the facts found as the only facts provable, and merely challenges the law as applied by the court of civil appeals. Edwards v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 151 S. W. 289.

A statement of grounds of jurisdiction in the supreme court on writ of error from the court of civil appeals, to the effect that, the verdict and judgment of the trial court having been reversed and remanded, plaintiff in error asked the supreme court to take jurisdiction under subdivisions 5, 7, and 8 of the old article, did not comply with the supreme court rules, not pointing out the statutory grounds of its jurisdiction, as that the decision of the court of civil appeals overruled the decision of another such court, etc. Id.

Under this article the supreme court cannot render final judgment where a case was disposed of in the district court on demurrer, though the decision of the court of civil appeals practically settles the case. Barre v. Daggett (Sup.) 153 S. W. 120.

Art. 1522. Writs of error or certificate in certain cases.—All causes mentioned in article 1521 may be carried to the supreme court either by writ of error or by certificate from the court of civil appeals as elsewhere provided, except those mentioned in subdivision 6, which must be presented by application for writ of error. [Id.]

Art. 1523. [944] [1011d] Court to make rules, etc.—The supreme court shall, from time to time, make and promulgate suitable forms, rules and regulations for carrying into effect the articles of this title relating to the jurisdiction and practice of the supreme court. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Conflict with statute.—The supreme court cannot, by court rule, interfere with the operation of a statute. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beasley (Sup.) 155 S. W. 183.

The court of civil appeals will enforce the supreme court rules if they are not in conflict with the statutes. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

Requisites.—A statement by the court in a decision as to what its decision in the future would be with reference to the filing of a statement of facts held not to have the force of a regularly promulgated rule of practice. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts, 98 T. 42, 81 S. W. 25.

Art. 1524. [947] [1014] To prescribe rules of practice.—The supreme court shall have power to make, establish and enforce all necessary rules of practice and procedure, not inconsistent with the laws of this state, for the government of said court and all other courts of the state, so as to expedite the dispatch of business in said courts. [Id.]

Construed.—A failure to observe the rules prescribed by the court regulating the manner of bringing cases before it is a sufficient ground in the discretion of the court for a dismissal of an appeal or writ of error, unless good cause is shown why the rules were not observed. Shanks v. Carroll, 50 T. 17.

All litigants must take notice of the rules of the courts in which they are litigating. See illustration. Southern Pacific Co. v. Haas, 85 T. 401, 20 S. W. 586; Shanks v. Carroll, 50 T. 17.

When the rules were adopted it was not thought necessary or advisable to embrace in them the statutes on the same subject; consequently the rule in regard to applications to the supreme court for writs of error (rule 1) must be considered in connection with this article. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Wilson. 85 T. 507, 22 S. W. 385.

Agreements of counsel infringing upon the rules of court will be disregarded. Railway Co. v. Crawford, 9 C. A. 245, 27 S. W. 822.

An appeal can be dismissed when there has been unexplained delay in filing assignments of error, appeal bond and transcript. Malone v. Medford (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 683.

Rules as to presenting assignments of error, being for the convenience of appellate courts to aid in the orderly dispatch of business, held directory only, and waivable by the courts. Mitchell v. Rushing, 55 C. A. 281, 118 S. W. 582.

Under this article and Art. 1910, providing that dilatory pleas shall be determined during the term at which they are filed if the business of the court permits, and under district and county court rule 24 (67 S. W. xxii), providing that all dilatory pleas shall be tried at the first term to which the attention of the court shall be called to the same, unless passed by agreement, and all such pleas shall be disposed of before the main issue on the merits is tried, the court may in its discretion dispose of dilatory motions at the trial of the merits, and, where evidence on the motions and the main case are heard together, it must require the jury to first dispose of the motions, and, where that it done, the defeated party may not complain unless he shows that he suffered injury by the failure of the court to dispose of the motions before hearing evidence on the merits. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1148.

Rule 62a for courts of civil appeals (149 S. W. x), providing that judgment shall not be reversed and new trials ordered for errors in the course of the trial unless the appellate court shall be of the opinion that the error amounted to such a denial of appellant's rights as was reasonably calculated to cause, and probably did cause, the rendition of an improper judgment, does not require the affirmance of a judgment notwithstanding the erroneous submission of a ground of negligence not alleged in the petition in view of this article, Art. 3192, requiring the petition to set forth a full and clear statement of the cause of action and other necessary and pertinent allegations, and Art. 3361, requiring the judgment to conform to the pleadings. Ft. Worth & D. Ry. Co. v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 203.

The court of civil appeals will enforce the rules of court whenever insisted on, and will, on its own motion, enforce them when satisfied that the changes made by the supreme court in January, 1912, have become generally known. Tinsley v. Bottom (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1053.

Art. 1525. [945] [1011e] May ascertain jurisdictional facts.—The supreme court shall have the power, upon affidavit or otherwise, as the court may determine, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the proper exercise of its jurisdiction. [Id.]

What may be shown by affidavit.—Affidavits were received to show that an appeal bond was not filed within the time prescribed by law (Harris v. Hopson, 5 T. 529); that at the time of the execution of the appeal bond the obligee was dead. Dial v. Rector, 12 T. 99; Johnson v. Robeson, 27 T. 526.

A question of fact as to the death of one of the parties to the suit previous to the judgment of the trial court cannot be presented for the first time in the appellate court by affidavits. Brown v. Torrey, 22 T. 54; Thouvenin v. Rodrigues, 24 T. 468; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336; Hart v. Mills, 31 T. 304.

A record of the proceedings of the court below cannot be impeached by affidavit. Johnson v. Robeson, 27 T. 526.

An appeal was taken from a judgment of the district court against A., as community survivor. Pending the appeal she was appointed administratrix of her deceased husband, but the change in her capacity was not suggested in the appellate court, and the judgment was affirmed. A. and the sureties on her appeal bond obtained an injunction to restrain an execution against them individually, and on hearing the judgment was reformed and rendered against A. in her representative capacity, with directions that it be certified to the county court for payment in due course of administration. Judgment was also rendered against the surety of A. on the appeal bond, and the sureties on the injunction bond, with an award of execution against them. Moke v. Brackett, 28 T. 443.

Affidavits were received to show that the amount of the penalty and the condition in the appeal bond had been changed after it was filed in the court below, the bond at the date of its filing being, in point of fact, blank, and the case was dismissed for want of a bond. Hart v. Mills, 31 T. 304.

A statement of facts or bill of exceptions cannot be supplied by affidavits in the supreme court. Live Oak County v. Heaton, 39 T. 499. Affidavits are inadmissible to supply defects in the record of an inferior court, or to ascertain the jurisdiction of such court. Chrisman v. Graham, 51 T. 454.

Affidavits will not be heard to show that a paper indorsed, approved and signed by the judge was intended thereby to be certified as a statement of facts. Renn v. Samos, 42 T. 104.

The supreme court cannot ascertain the jurisdiction of the district court by evidence aliunde the record; as, that the judge was related to a party to the suit within the prohibited degree. Chrisman v. Graham, 51 T. 454. See Art. 1593.

Where a writ of error is sued out after the expiration of the time allowed by law from the final judgment by minors or married women, and there are others not so protected, it is a jurisdictional fact which of the plaintiffs in error have been protected by coverture or minority. Affidavits will therefore be heard in the supreme court as basis for its action in determining as to the parties so protected. Fine v. Freeman, 83 T. 529, 17 S. W. 783, 18 S. W. 963.

In a suit in which it is necessary neither to allege nor prove the value of the thing in controversy, it is proper for an appellate court to hear affidavits as to its value, in order to determine its jurisdiction. Austin Real Estate & Abstract Co. v. Bahn, 29 S. W. 646, 30 S. W. 430, 87 T. 582, citing Williamson v. Kincaid, 4 Dall. 20, 1 L. Ed. 723; Town of Elgin v. Marshall, 106 U. S. 578, 1 Sup. Ct. 484, 27 L. Ed. 249.

On appeal the supreme court cannot try on affidavits the question whether the bill of exceptions was in fact signed and filed after the term. Von Boeckmann v. Loepp (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 849.

The supreme court held authorized to consider affidavits to show that it has jurisdiction on a writ of error to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals on the ground that the judgment practically settles the case. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

Art. 1526. May issue certain writs.—The supreme court, or any justice thereof, shall have power to issue writ of habeas corpus as may be prescribed by law; and the said court, or the justice thereof, may issue writs of mandamus, procedendo, certiorari and all writs necessary to enforce the jurisdiction of said court; and said court may issue writs of quo warranto or mandamus agreeable to the principles of law regulating such writs against any district judge, or court of civil appeals or judge of a court of civil appeals, or officer of the state government, except the governor of the state. [Acts 1913, p. 107, sec. 1.]

See title "Mandamus."

Habeas corpus.—On application for writ of habeas corpus, the supreme court cannot review evidence on which the court of civil appeals adjudged relator guilty of contempt. Ex parte Reid, 99 T. 405, 89 S. W. 956; Ex parte Lytle, Id.

Mandamus.—The supreme court will by mandamus compel the clerk of the district court to deliver a transcript. — v. Costley, 7 T. 460; Rodgers v. Alexander, 35 T. 116.

A mandamus will not issue to require a judge to sign or certify a statement of the facts proved on the trial. Frost v. Frost, 45 T. 324.

When the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court attaches, either by appeal or by writ of error, it continues until the case, as made on appeal or error, is fully determined, and until the judgment of the supreme court is completely executed by the court below, and until then it may enforce that judgment by mandamus. Wells v. Littlefield, 62 T. 28.

The supreme court will not try a case on mandamus in which the act sought to be compelled may involve the determination of a doubtful question of fact. It was not intended that the jurisdiction should be exercised in any case unless the officer was under a legal obligation to do the act, and the right to have it performed was not dependent upon the determination of such doubtful questions of fact. Teat v. McGaughey, 85 T. 478, 22 S. W. 302.

As to the procedure on application to the supreme court for a mandamus, see Herf v. James, 86 T. 230, 24 S. W. 396; Burnett v. Powell, 86 T. 382, 24 S. W. 788, 25 S. W. 17; Steele v. Goodrich, 87 T. 401, 28 S. W. 939; Crumley v. McKinney (Sup.) 9 S. W. 157.

Mandamus may be issued to compel a district judge to permit an officer to exercise the functions of his office. Terrell v. Greene, 31 S. W. 631, 88 T. 539.

The supreme court will examine a petition for a mandamus, and, unless probable cause appear from the petition, will not order a citation to issue and will dismiss the case. Hume v. Schintz, 90 T. 72, 36 S. W. 429. See Thompson v. Baker, 90 T. 163, 38 S. W. 21; Jernigan v. Finley, 90 T. 205, 38 S. W. 24.

Under art. 5, § 3, state constitution, judges of the supreme court can issue writs of mandamus in vacation. Hines v. Morse, 92 T. 194, 47 S. W. 516.

A party's remedy, where a court of civil appeals makes erroneous findings of fact, held to be by writ of error, and not mandamus. Moore v. Waco Bldg. Ass'n, 92 T. 265, 47 S. W. 716.

The supreme court will examine petition for mandamus before ordering citation, and dismiss it without process when of the opinion that it should not be granted. Id.

Application for mandamus to compel a court of civil appeals to find additional conclusions of fact comes too late after refusal of writ of error. Id.

On the refusal of the supreme court to permit the filing of a petition for mandamus to compel the court of civil appeals to certify a case to the supreme court, the relator held entitled to file a new petition alleging new facts. Shirley & Holland v. Conner, 98 T. 63, 81 S. W. 284.

The supreme court may by mandamus compel the clerk of the court of civil appeals to file a petition for writ of error presented to him, which he should have filed under the law. Roth v. Murray, 105 T. 6, 141 S. W. 515.

—— Issues of fact.—A mandamus will not be granted where the facts on which it is based are disputed. Depoyster v. Baker, 89 T. 155, 34 S. W. 106.

Pleadings in mandamus to compel commissioner of general land office to award certain lands to petitioner held to raise an issue of fact as to relator's right to the land, which the supreme court could not try. Sheppard v. Terrell, 97 T. 458, 79 S. W. 23.

In mandamus to compel commissioner of general land office to accept application for purchase of school land, answer alleging abandonment of residence presents question of fact which supreme court cannot determine. Angle v. Terrell, 97 T. 509, 80 S. W. 231.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction to pass upon a question of fact as to whether petitioner for writ of mandamus was an actual settler upon school land. Gordon v. Terrell, 99 T. 403, 89 S. W. 1052; Whitmyer v. Same, Id.; Childress v. Same. Id.; Nelson v. Same, Id.; Odom v. Same, Id.; Little v. Same, Id.; Yeakel v. Same, Id.; Milligan v. Same, Id.; Pence v. Same, Id.

On a petition for a writ of mandamus, the supreme court has no jurisdiction to determine an issue of fact. Edwards v. Terrell, 100 T. 26, 93 S. W. 426.

Supreme court held to have no jurisdiction of mandamus proceeding, where the right to relief depends upon determination of question of fact. Davis v. Terrell, 100 T. 291, 99 S. W. 404; Parker v. Same, 101 T. 169, 105 S. W. 491.

Pleadings in mandamus held to raise an issue of fact which the supreme court could not determine, necessitating the dismissal of the cause for want of jurisdiction. Schell v. Terrell, 100 T. 585, 102 S. W. 109.

An original petition for a writ of mandamus will be dismissed by the supreme court, where the pleadings disclose questions of fact which that court cannot determine. Oldham v. Terrell, 101 T. 44, 104 S. W. 1040.

On petition for mandamus to commissioner to cancel sales of school land and to award the land to relators, affidavits held to raise a question of fact, requiring dismissal of their petition. Hanna v. Robison (Sup.) 128 S. W. 108.

A suggestion of a question of fact held not to deprive the supreme court of jurisdiction in mandamus. Jones v. Robison, 104 T. 70, 133 S. W. 879.

The supreme court cannot try disputed issues of fact raised by the petition and answer in mandamus, and the case must be dismissed. Furnish v. Robison (Sup.) 157 S. W. 744.

—— Compelling certification.—If the court of civil appeals decline to certify a question in case of a conflict of decisions, the supreme court can issue mandamus to compel it to do so. McCurdy v. Conner, 95 T. 246, 66 S. W. 667.

A writ of mandamus to compel the court of civil appeals to certify a case to the supreme court, by reason of alleged conflicting decisions of the court of civil appeals, will be denied, where it appears to the supreme court that such decisions are distinguishable. Shirley & Holland v. Connor, 98 T. 63, 80 S. W. 984.

—— Compelling findings.—An application to the supreme court for mandamus to compel the finding of additional facts by the courts of civil appeals is too late after refusal of writ of error. Moore v. Waco Bldg. Ass'n, 92 T. 265, 47 S. W. 716.

State officers.—The supreme court has no jurisdiction to issue mandamus against the board of Eclectic medical examiners, they not being state officers within the meaning of this law. Betts v. Johnson, 96 T. 360, 73 S. W. 4.

—— County officers not included.—A county officer is not included within the meaning of the term, "officers of the state government." Travis County v. Jourdan, 91 T. 217, 42 S. W. 543.

—— Governor.—The supreme court cannot issue writ of mandamus against the board of education, because the governor is a member of the board, and the writ must issue against all the members or none. The law forbids the court to issue the writ against the governor. McFall v. State Board of Education, 101 T. 572, 110 S. W. 739.

Art. 1527. [948] [1015] May punish contempt.—The supreme court shall have power to punish any person for a contempt of said court, according to the principles and usages of law in like cases, not to exceed one thousand dollars fine, and imprisonment not exceeding twenty days. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1577.]

Contempt in general.—See notes under Art. 1708.

Art. 1528. [949] [1016] May issue mandamus to compel district judge to proceed to trial.—The said court, or any judge thereof, in vacation, may issue the writ of mandamus to compel a judge of the district court to proceed to trial and judgment in a cause, agreeably to the principles and usages of law, returnable to the supreme court on or before the first day of the term, or during the session of the same, or before any judge of the said court, as the nature of the case may require. [P. D. 1579.]

Cannot issue writs until jurisdiction attaches.—The extraordinary writs can be used in the supreme court only in cases of which it has acquired jurisdiction. They cannot be used to set aside orders made, or to correct the results which transpired before the appeal bond was given. Churchill v. Martin, 65 T. 367; Wells v. Littlefield, 62 T. 28.

Mandamus.—The writ of mandamus is not an appropriate remedy to obtain a revision of an action of the district court in a matter involving the exercise of judgment. Little v. Morris, 10 T. 263.

The entering of judgment upon a valid verdict involves no judicial or discretionary powers, but is simply a mandatory act; and to enforce its performance by the district court the writ of mandamus will issue in the proper case. Lloyd v. Brinck, 35 T. 1.

A writ of mandamus will not be granted by the supreme court to compel a judge to try a cause when the petitioner has a remedy by appeal. Steele v. Goodrich, 28 S. W. 939, 87 T. 401.

Art. 1529. May issue writs of habeas corpus when, and admit to bail.—The supreme court of Texas, or any one of the justices thereof, shall have power, either in term time or vacation, to issue writs of habeas corpus in all cases where any person is restrained in his liberty by virtue of any order, process or commitment, issued by any court or judge, on account of the violation of any order, judgment or decree, theretofore made, rendered or entered by such court or judge in any civil cause; and said supreme court, or any one of the justices thereof, shall have power, either in term time or vacation, pending the hearing of the application for such writ, to admit to bail any person to whom the writ of habeas corpus may be so granted. [Acts 1905, p. 20.]

CHAPTER FOUR

THE CLERK OF THE SUPREME COURT

Art.		Art.
1530.	Appointment, qualification and bond.	1535.	Shall record proceedings.
1531.	Vacancy in vacation, how filled.	1536.	Deputies, appointment, etc, bond, compensation, duties.
1532.	Term of office and salary.	1537.	Clerk to be librarian.
1533.	Seal of court, clerk to procure.	1538.	His duties as such.
1534.	Shall file and preserve transcripts, docket causes.

Article 1530. [950] [1017] Appointment, qualification and bond.—There shall be appointed for the supreme court one clerk, who shall reside at the place of holding court, which appointment shall be made by the court, or the judges thereof, and shall be entered of record in the proceedings of the court; and each person so appointed shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath prescribed by the constitution, before some officer authorized to administer oaths generally, and shall enter into a bond with two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court or judges thereof, payable to the governor and his successors in office, in the penalty of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and that he correctly record the judgments, decrees, decisions and orders of the said court, and deliver over to his successor in office all records, minutes, books and papers, and whatever belongs to his said office of clerk; which bond and oath shall, without delay, be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and shall not be void on first recovery, but may be put in suit and prosecuted by any party injured until the amount thereof be recovered. [Acts of 1892, p. 19.]

Art. 1531. [951] [1018] Vacancy in vacation, how filled.—If, in vacation, the office of clerk may become vacant, the appointment shall be made by the chief justice and the associates of said court, or any one of said associates and chief justice; and the person so appointed shall give bond and take the oath as prescribed in the preceding article, the bond to be approved by any judge of the court; which bond and oath shall be deposited in the same manner as though the appointment had been made in term time, and may be prosecuted and put in suit in like manner; copies of said bond, certified under the hand of the secretary of state and the seal of state, shall be received in evidence in any court in this state, in the same manner as the original would be were it presented in court; and the said appointment shall continue until the next regular term of the said court, or until a regular appointment shall be made. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1564.]

Art. 1532. [952] [1019] Term of office and salary.—The clerk of the supreme court shall hold his office for the term of four years from his appointment, but may be removed therefrom for neglect of duty or misconduct in office, by the supreme court, on motion, of which the clerk against whom complaint is made shall have ten days previous notice, specifying the particular charges of negligence or misconduct in office preferred; and in every such case the court shall determine the law and the facts; and whenever the necessity occurs, the supreme court may appoint a clerk pro tempore. The clerk of the supreme court shall receive as compensation for his services a salary of twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, and he shall collect and pay into the treasury of the state all fees and costs to be collected by him over and above the salaries allowed him and his deputies, under such further rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by the comptroller, not in conflict with this chapter; such rules and regulations to be subject to the approval of the judges of the supreme court, to be entered of record in the minutes of said court. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Fees.—See Title 58, Chapter 2, Art. 3846.
Removal.—See Title 98, Chapter 3, Art. 6061.

Art. 1533. [953] [1020] Seal of court, clerk to procure.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the supreme court to procure a seal for the use of the court, which shall have a star of five points, with the words "Supreme Court of the State of Texas" engraved thereon. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1569.]

Art. 1534. [954] [1021] Shall file and preserve transcripts and docket causes.—The clerk of the supreme court shall file and carefully preserve the transcripts of all records certified to said court, and all papers relative thereto, and shall docket all causes in the order in which the court shall direct. [P. D. 1583.]

Entry of attorney's name on rolls.—See Art. 321.

Art. 1535. [955] [1022] Shall record proceedings.—The said clerk shall faithfully record the proceedings and decisions of said court, and certify their judgments to the courts from which the causes were brought. [P. D. 1584.]

Art. 1536. [956] [1023] Deputies, appointment, etc.; bond, compensation, duties.—The clerk of the supreme court may appoint one deputy when authorized to do so by a majority of the judges of the supreme court, which authority shall appear of record in the minutes of said court. Said deputy may discharge all the duties required by law of said clerk, and shall be required to give bond in the same manner and amount as the clerk of said court, and to be approved by the judges of said court. Said deputy shall receive as compensation for his services such sum as shall be unanimously agreed on by the judges of the supreme court, this action to appear of record in the minutes of the court, not to exceed the sum of two thousand dollars per annum, to be paid out of the fees collected by the clerk of said court. If the business of the court shall require it, the judges may, by order entered upon the minutes, authorize the clerk of said court to appoint another deputy who shall have like powers as the first, and shall give bond in such sum as may be specified by the court. The court shall, in its order, fix the compensation of the additional deputy at a sum per month, not to exceed one thousand dollars per annum, to be paid out of the fees of the office collected by the clerk; and the court in said order shall specify the time for which the appointment may be made. The judges of the supreme court may dispense with the services of either or both of said deputies, or for any length of time as in their discretion they may deem to the public interest. [Acts 1903, p. 115.]

Art. 1537. [957] [1024] Clerk to be librarian.—The clerk of the supreme court shall be librarian in charge of the library of said court. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Art. 1538. [958] [1025] His duties as such.—It shall be the duty of such librarian to take charge of and keep together and in good order and make catalogues of the books of said libraries, which shall be open to the public use under such rules as may be prescribed by the court for the safe keeping thereof; provided, the books shall not be removed from the library room, except by the judges of the court and by members of the legislature during the session of the legislature, upon their receipt for the same to the clerk. [Id.]

STENOGRAPHER

Article 1539. [952] [1019] Court stenographer and salary.—The supreme court shall appoint a stenographer for said court, at an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars. [Acts 1892, p. 22.]

CHAPTER SIX

THE WRIT OF ERROR—PROCEEDINGS TO OBTAIN, ETC.

Art.
1540. Petition for writ of error; requisites of and bond.
1541. Filing; time of, etc.
1542. Petition with record, etc., to be forwarded; provided deposit, etc.
1542a. Notice to defendant in error; copy of application to be delivered, etc.
1542b. Defendant in error may file reply, etc.
1542c. Disposition of cause in supreme court when reply filed.
1543. Conclusions of fact, may suspend action on petition to obtain.
1544. Writ granted, when, etc.
1545. Bond required, when.

Article 1540. [942] [1011b] Petition for writ of error; requisites of and bond.—Any party desiring to sue out a writ of error before the supreme court shall present his petition addressed to said court, stating the nature of his case and the grounds upon which the writ of error is prayed for, and showing that the supreme court has jurisdiction thereof; and the petition shall contain such other requisites as may be prescribed by the supreme court. [Id. Amend. 1895, p. 144.]

Petition—requisites.—The application for writ of error must show that the applicant has made a motion for rehearing in the court of civil appeals, presenting distinctly all the points on which a writ of error is asked. In absence of such showing the application will be dismissed. Southern Pacific Co. v. Haas, 85 T. 401, 20 S. W. 586.

Opinion on rehearing should be made a part of the record on application for the writ. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kizziah (Sup.) 22 S. W. 300. Petition for writ of error criticised. Hilliard v. White, 88 T. 591, 32 S. W. 525. Where some or all of the conclusions of fact or law made by a trial court are adopted by the court of civil appeals without being incorporated in the opinion, or without being made up as the conclusions of the court, such conclusions, properly certified, should accompany an application for writ of error to the supreme court. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 85 T. 507, 22 S. W. 385.

The law requires that the petition of the applicant shall follow an allegation of the names and residences of the opposite party, "with a brief statement of the nature of his case and the ground upon which the writ of error is prayed." No statement of the pleadings or their substance is required, or proper, unless it is made so by reason of some issue upon them being presented to the supreme court for its decision. Otherwise, a mere designation of the nature of the pleading, or the character of the action, is all that is proper in "the statement of the nature of the case." T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 85 T. 507, 22 S. W. 385.

Where it does not otherwise appear in the record, the petition should show by appropriate allegations of fact relating to the subject-matter of the controversy, or the amount involved, that the case is one over which the supreme court can exercise jurisdiction. Id.

The transcript that accompanies the petition will be treated by the court as a part of it, and may be referred to in the petition; what appears in the transcript should not be copied into the petition. Id.

The error or errors complained of as ground for writ of error should be distinctly pointed out in the petition. This is essential, and is not remedied by a recital of the motion for rehearing and the action of the court upon it. Id.

Parties adversely interested and no others are required to be stated in a petition for a writ of error. Blackman v. Harry (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 290.

In an application for a writ of error the assignment should distinctly specify the ruling of which complaint is made. Childress v. Smith, 90 T. 610, 38 S. W. 518; Clark v. Gregory (Sup.) 26 S. W. 939.

The petition for a writ of error need not name all the parties to the proceeding. It is recommended, however, that all the names be stated, to guide the clerk in issuing citation. Coe v. Nash, 91 T. 119, 41 S. W. 473.

A petition for a writ of error must allege that the decisions of the court of civil appeals were erroneous. Homes v. City of Henrietta, 91 T. 318, 42 S. W. 1052.

To give supreme court jurisdiction the petition for writ of error must show enough of the proceedings in the original suit to make plain that the suit could not have been brought in the county court. McLane v. Evans, 94 T. 78, 58 S. W. 723.

Specification of error in supreme court, on application for writ of error to court of civil appeals, held too general. J. E. Dunn & Co. v. Smith, 96 T. 478, 73 S. W. 945.

The supreme court can only grant a writ of error for errors specified in the application. It is too late to make the assignment in a motion for a rehearing. Scalfi & Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 754. See note to Art. 1544.

A petition for a writ of error held not to present the question whether the trial court erred in its dismissal of a cause on certain grounds. Aspley v. Hawkins, 99 T. 380, 89 S. W. 972.

Assignments of error in the court of civil appeals, not brought to the supreme court on petition for a writ of error, cannot be considered on the hearing of such writ. Texas Co. v. Stephens, 100 T. 628, 103 S. W. 481.

An assignment that the court of civil appeals erred in its opinion, on defendant's motion for rehearing, in holding that the judgment of the trial court establishing the title of certain plaintiffs against defendant in trespass to try title should not be reversed, and that the verdict against defendant on her plea of limitations should not be disturbed, followed by six reasons why the opinion was erroneous, only two of which applied to the same point, requiring the court to discuss the charge that the court has given, its refusal to give special charges, the evidence of defendant's adverse possession, the effect of defenses upon the parties originally filing the suit and upon others coming in subsequently, the effect of a verdict in favor of codefendants, and generally that the verdict was contrary to the evidence, is insufficient. Judgment (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 618, affirmed. Hess v. Webb, 103 T. 46, 123 S. W. 111.

Right of review.—Where a judgment for plaintiff was reversed in the court of civil appeals because the evidence showed that the deceased had assumed the risk, the application of the plaintiff for a writ of error was an admission that she could not change the evidence on another trial. Quill v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 93 T. 616, 57 S. W. 948.

Where, on the reversal of a judgment in favor of two of the plaintiffs by the court of civil appeals, such plaintiffs asked that judgment be rendered against them in order that they might review the same, they were not entitled to a writ of error from the supreme court therefor. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Lee, 98 T. 236, 82 S. W. 1025.

As ousting jurisdiction.—An application to the supreme court for a writ of error to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing and remanding a cause, does not oust the trial court of jurisdiction to proceed with the case, unless it appears that the supreme court has jurisdiction, under article 1589, to grant the writ. Stone v. Stone, 18 C. A. 80, 43 S. W. 567.

Recalling mandate.—The supreme court, on the presentation of an application for a writ of error, held authorized to direct the clerk of the court of civil appeals to recall a mandate issued by him. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 326.

Amendment.—Application for writ of error may be amended so as to show jurisdiction. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Smith, 28 S. W. 931, 30 S. W. 549, 88 T. 9.

A petition for writ of error that fails to allege that the decision complained of is erroneous does not assign errors as required, but the Supreme Court will allow an applicant to amend and assign errors. Homes v. City of Henrietta, 91 T. 318, 42 S. W. 1052.

Art. 1541. [942] [1011b] Filing, time of, etc.—The petition shall be filed with the clerk of the court of civil appeals within thirty days from the overruling of the motion for rehearing, and thereupon the said clerk of the court of civil appeals shall note upon his record the filing of said application. [Id.]

Time of filing petition.—Sunday, although the thirtieth day from that on which the motion for a rehearing was overruled by the court of civil appeals, is included in the computation. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Shrader, 89 T. 35, 33 S. W. 112, 30 L. R. A. 498, 59 Am. St. Rep. 25.

Rehearing.—Where motion for rehearing was not filed in the court of civil appeals within the time required, and no sufficient excuse is offered, the writ will be refused. Sams v. Creager, 85 T. 497, 22 S. W. 399.

The court of civil appeals overruled a motion to dismiss, based upon alleged delay of service of writ of error for over two years after the petition for writ of error was filed. The judgment below was reversed. A motion for rehearing was overruled. Application to supreme court for writ of error dismissed, on the ground that the court has not jurisdiction to grant a writ of error for the purpose of revising an interlocutory judgment. National Bank v. Robertson, 85 T. 578, 22 S. W. 956.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction where the application for a rehearing was filed one day too late. Schleicher v. Runge, 90 T. 456, 39 S. W. 279.

Motion for rehearing must be made and overruled in the court of civil appeals before writ of error can be applied for to the supreme court. McGhee v. Romatka, 92 T. 241, 47 S. W. 520.

Art. 1542. [942] [1011b] Petition with record, etc., to be forwarded; provided deposit, etc.—The clerk of the court of civil appeals shall forward to the clerk of the supreme court the said petition, together with the original record in the case, and the opinions of the court of civil appeals, and the motion filed therein, and certified copies of the judgments and orders of the court of civil appeals; provided, that the party applying for the writ of error shall deposit with the clerk of the court of civil appeals a sum sufficient to pay the expressage or carriage of the said record to and from the clerk of the supreme court, which sum shall be charged as costs in the suit. [Id.]

Construction and application.—When the statement of the case and the conclusion of facts filed by the court of civil appeals do not fully present the case, in the opinion of counsel, the application for a writ of error should be accompanied with such portions of the record as may be deemed appropriate for that purpose. Burnett v. Powell, 24 S. W. 788, 25 S. W. 17, 86 T. 382.

Art. 1542a. Notice to defendant in error; copy of application to be delivered, etc.—That when an application for writ of error from a court of civil appeals to the supreme court shall be filed in a court of civil appeals, the applicant shall, at the same time, deposit with the clerk of the said court of civil appeals a true copy of the application and shall notify the attorney of record of the defendant in error of the deposit of said copy, and, upon application by such attorney or by the defendant in error, the said clerk shall deliver the copy of the application to the defendant in error or attorney of record; and the clerk of said court shall forward the record of the cause with the application for writ of error to the clerk of the supreme court at such time as is now or may be prescribed by law. [Acts 1911, S. S., p. 108, sec. 1.]

1542b. Defendant in error may file reply, etc.—Within ten days after the filing of the record of the cause in the supreme court the defendant in error may file a reply to the application for writ of error controverting the grounds alleged for granting the said writ, and in such reply may state reasons why the writ of error should not be granted. The supreme court may prescribe and enforce rules governing the proceedings by both parties under this Act. [Id. sec. 2.]

1542c. Disposition of cause in supreme court when reply filed.—If the defendant in error shall file a reply to the application the supreme court may finally dispose of the cause upon such application in the same manner and to the same extent as if the application had been granted and the cause had been set down for hearing; provided, that the judgment of the court shall be announced in open court as in other cases, and the supreme court shall prepare and file such opinion as may be necessary, the same as if the decision had been made in the regular proceedings of the court. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1543. Where court of civil appeals fails to file conclusions of fact, etc.—If upon inspection of the petition for writ of error and the record of the cause, it shall appear that a court of civil appeals has failed to file conclusions of fact, or has not complied with the requirements of the law in filing such conclusions, and that such conclusions are necessary to enable the supreme court properly to determine the rights of the parties, the courts may suspend action on the petition for writ of error and return the record to the court of civil appeals, with instructions to make and return conclusions of fact upon the points indicated by the supreme court. [Acts 1913, p. 107, sec. 1.]

Construed.—If court of civil appeals in any case over which the supreme court has jurisdiction fail to file conclusions of facts sufficiently full to enable the supreme court to determine correctly whether an application for writ of error should be granted, this article furnishes a plain remedy for the omission. That is the supreme court can refer the case back of its own motion to the appellate court for specific finding upon point or points upon which they have omitted to state their conclusions. The applicant for writ of error can point out the omission and move to send back in the petition itself or in a separate motion. Nowlin v. Hall, 97 T. 441, 79 S. W. 807.

Art. 1544. Writ of error, when to be granted.—If, upon examination of the petition for writ of error, the supreme court shall find the case to be one of which it may take jurisdiction, and that there is such a difference of opinion among the judges of the court from which the cause shall come, or such a difference between the decision brought in question and a decision of another court, as is specified in article 1521, or that the question involving the validity of a statute was erroneously decided, or that, in a case involving the revenue laws of a state, or to which the railroad commission is a party, any question of law material to its correct decision was erroneously decided, or that such an error is shown as is contemplated by subdivision 6 of article 1521, the court shall grant the writ for the purpose of deciding the question as to which the difference exists, or of correcting the erroneous decision and rendering the judgment in which a correct decision thereof shall result. [Acts 1913, p. 107, sec. 1.]

Erroneous reason for correct judgment.—A writ of error will not be granted to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals which is correct, even if the reason therefor was erroneous. Davis v. Lanier (Tex. Sup.) 61 S. W. 385.

Separate applications.—Where one of two applications for writs of error in the same case is granted in the supreme court, the other will be granted as a matter of course. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McFadden, 91 T. 194, 42 S. W. 593; Ft. Worth & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.

Where two separate parties apply for writ of error to the supreme court to review a judgment, and one application apparently discloses error, both applications will be granted. Rilling v. Schultze, 95 T. 352, 67 S. W. 401.

Separable causes.—The supreme court held warranted in refusing a writ of error from a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment below for the plaintiff, and granting a writ from a judgment affirming a judgment below in favor of a party impleaded by the defendant for contribution, and holding the determination of the latter portion of the judgment for the outcome of the suit against the principal defendant. Cleburne Electric & Gas Co. v. McCoy (Sup.) 150 S. W. 588.

Effect of denial.—Where the application of defendants in error to the supreme court for a writ of error to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals, was refused, the correctness of that judgment cannot be subsequently reviewed. Burrell v. Adams, 104 T. 183, 135 S. W. 1156.

Art. 1545. [942] [1011b] Bond required, when.—If the writ of error be granted and the plaintiff in error has given no bond, then the supreme court in granting the writ shall specify what bond shall be given; and the plaintiff in error shall file said bond in the trial court, to be approved by the clerk of said court, and a certified copy thereof shall at once be transmitted to the supreme court; and, upon the filing of said certified copy, the clerk of the supreme court shall issue the citation in error as may be prescribed by the rules of the supreme court. [Acts 1895, p. 144.]

Bond.—When writ of error is dismissed for want of prosecution, an action may be brought against the sureties on the bond. Clancey v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 315.

When writ of error is granted on condition that the applicant will give cost bond the application will be dismissed if the bond is not given within the time prescribed. Mauldin v. Southern Pac. Co., 92 T. 267, 47 S. W. 964.

CHAPTER SEVEN

PROCEEDINGS IN CASES IN THE SUPREME COURT

Art.
1546. Trial on questions of law only.
1547. Briefs filed.

Article 1546. [967] [1033] Trial to be on questions of law only.—In all cases of writs of error or questions certified to the supreme court, the trial shall be only upon the question of law upon which the writ of error was allowed, or which was certified to the supreme court from a court of civil appeals; but the supreme court may require at any time the original transcript to be sent up. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Questions that can be considered.—The court of civil appeals, on motion of the appellee, struck out the statement of facts, and, finding no assignment of error which could be considered in the absence of such a statement, affirmed the judgment. On error it was held that the court erred in striking out the statement of facts, and the supreme court proceeded to consider the whole case as presented by the record, reversed the judgment of the trial court and remanded the cause for a new trial. Bomar v. West, 28 S. W. 519, 87 T. 299.

A judgment will not be reversed because a bad reason is assigned therefor. Avery v. Popper, 92 T. 337, 49 S. W. 219, 71 Am. St. Rep. 849.

An order granting writs of sequestration to plaintiffs will not be treated as correct because unreversed by the court of civil appeals, and uncomplained of by defendants in error (plaintiffs below). Id.

Question presented by certificate to supreme court determined. Padgitt v. Dallas Brick & Const. Co., 92 T. 626, 50 S. W. 1010.

The supreme court cannot consider a matter which involves an error apparent of record, but is confined to the grounds set up in the application for writ of error. Link v. City of Houston, 94 T. 378, 60 S. W. 665.

A question held not open for consideration on error, not having been presented by the application for the writ. Ellis v. Le Bow, 96 T. 532, 74 S. W. 528.

The supreme court may, in considering questions certified from the court of civil appeals, determine every minor question upon which a correct decision of the general question certified may depend. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 88 S. W. 542.

That the court of civil appeals gave an erroneous reason for correctly affirming a judgment held immaterial on an application to the supreme court for a writ of error. Aspley v. Hawkins, 99 T. 380, 89 S. W. 972.

The supreme court held not required to consider whether an entire charge in a civil action was correct. Ross v. Moskowitz, 100 T. 434, 100 S. W. 768.

Questions not presented by the application for a writ of error will not be considered. Galveston & S. A. R. Co. v. Riggs, 101 T. 522, 109 S. W. 864.

Objections to the instructions not made in the application for a writ of error to review the judgment of the court of civil appeals affirming the judgment will not be considered. Clevenger v. Blount, 103 T. 27, 122 S. W. 529.

On error to the court of civil appeals, the supreme court cannot review a matter not made a ground in applying for the writ. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robertson, 103 T. 504, 121 S. W. 202, 131 S. W. 400.

The supreme court, on certified questions from the court of civil appeals, is limited to the precise matters involved in the questions. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654, 138 S. W. 385.

The opinion of the supreme court on certified questions will relate solely to the very question presented. Clary v. Hurst, 104 T. 423, 138 S. W. 566.

—— Assignment of errors, and points presented or decided in lower court.—Error of trial court in favor of appellant, not complained of in court of civil appeals, held no ground for reversal on appeal to the supreme court by appellee. Clemons v. Clemons, 92 T. 66, 45 S. W. 996.

Where the error is not fundamental, it will not be considered by the supreme court unless assigned in the court of civil appeals. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gurley, 92 T. 229, 47 S. W. 513.

Where the pleadings and evidence show a party not entitled to recover in the lower court, error in entering judgment for such party may be first urged in the supreme court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Chenault, 92 T. 501, 49 S. W. 1035.

The supreme court will reverse a judgment based on an illegal contract which is contrary to public policy, though its illegality was not questioned in the trial court. Pasteur Vaccine Co. v. Burkey, 22 C. A. 232, 54 S. W. 804.

Judgment will not be rendered on the facts, on reversal of judgment for defendant, where the court of civil appeals declined to pass on the amount of damages. Long v. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co., 94 T. 53, 57 S. W. 802.

Writ of error to court of appeals, on affirmance of a judgment without considering the merits, gives supreme court jurisdiction over whole case, and it may be affirmed on its merits, whether assignment of error was necessary or not. Wilson v. Johnson, 94 T. 272, 60 S. W. 242.

The supreme court can only review action of the court of civil appeals on points properly presented to it. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford, 94 T. 518, 62 S. W. 1056.

An assignment of error presented to the supreme court on a writ of error held to differ from that presented to the court of civil appeals, and that the action of the latter court could not be reviewed. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shelton, 96 T. 301, 72 S. W. 165.

The question of insufficiency of evidence not being raised in the court of civil appeals, it cannot be considered by the supreme court. City of El Paso v. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank, 96 T. 496, 74 S. W. 21.

On appeal from court of civil appeals, plaintiff in error is confined to the questions raised in that court. Collum v. Sanger Bros., 98 T. 162, 83 S. W. 184.

Where a finding of damages was not complained of at the trial or in the court of civil appeals, the supreme court, on rendering judgment for plaintiff, could not increase such damages, or award damages accruing since the trial. Peden v. Crenshaw, 98 T. 365, 84 S. W. 362.

Where a judgment was reversed by the court of civil appeals on a jurisdictional question, other assignments of error would not be reviewed on a writ of error issued by the supreme court until they had been determined by the court of civil appeals. Eastin & Knox v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 99 T. 654, 92 S. W. 838.

Assignments of error objecting to improper remarks of counsel and to the denial of a new trial can only be reviewed by the supreme court after they have been considered by the court of civil appeals. Parks v. San Antonio Traction Co., 100 T. 222, 94 S. W. 331.

The supreme court held not authorized to pass on an assignment of error raising the sufficiency of the evidence where the court of civil appeals did not pass on the assignment. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

The action of the court of civil appeals in rendering judgment on motion for rehearing in favor of certain parties to the suit cannot be reviewed on appeal, in the absence of an assignment of error in the court of civil appeals. Smith v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 101 T. 405, 108 S. W. 819.

In an action for injuries sustained by being struck by a car in defendant's railroad yards, a proposition following an assignment of error in the court of civil appeals held different from the proposition supporting the assignment in the supreme court, so that the assignment cannot be considered in that court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Briscoe, 102 T. 505, 119 S. W. 844.

An assignment of error which the court of civil appeals declined to consider held under the facts to be considered as overruled on writ of error in the supreme court. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Kennedy, 103 T. 297, 126 S. W. 1110.

The supreme court, on writ of error to the court of civil appeals, will not consider assignments of error not raised in the motion for rehearing in the court of civil appeals. Knox v. McElroy, 103 T. 357, 127 S. W. 798.

Assignments of error to rulings of court of civil appeals not affecting the judgment appealed from will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328.

An assignment of error, not made in the court of civil appeals, or presenting a different ground from that made there, will not be considered in the supreme court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell, 104 T. 632, 143 S. W. 1147.

—— Issues of fact.—In habeas corpus and mandamus proceedings, see notes under Art. 1526.

The admission of illegal evidence, when the case is tried by the court, does not require a reversal if there is competent evidence to support the judgment. Melton v. Cobb, 21 T. 539; Smith v. Hughes, 23 T. 248; Beaty v. Whitaker, 23 T. 526; Dignan v. Shields, 51 T. 322; Clayton v. McKinnon, 54 T. 206; Lindsay v. Jaffray, 55 T. 626; Hensley v. B. S. F. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 718; Fowler v. Chapman, 1 App. C. C. § 963; Grace v. Koch, 1 App. C. C. § 1062; McGaughey v. Meek, 1 App. C. C. § 1195; Franklin v. Hardie, 1 App. C. C. § 1219; Wade v. Buford, 1 App. C. C. § 1336.

The admission of illegal testimony which could not have influenced the verdict to the prejudice of the party complaining is not a material error. Dailey v. Starr, 26 T. 562. And so, where cumulative evidence has been improperly admitted when the matter has been otherwise proven. Stansell v. Cleveland, 64 T. 660. And the exclusion of legal evidence of like character is an immaterial error. Nicholson v. Horton, 23 T. 47.

When each party has established his case by evidence, and the verdict thereon for either party would not be set aside, the admission of the slightest illegal testimony which might have possibly influenced the result, over objections properly made and reserved, will be fatal. Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 390; Patton v. Gregory, 21 T. 513; Smith v. Hughes, 23 T. 249; Dignowitty v. Alexander, 25 T. 162; Hunter v. Hubbard, 26 T. 537; Dailey v. Starr, 26 T. 562; Sacra v. Stewart, 32 T. 185; Evans v. Pigg, 28 T. 586; Burnham v. Walker, 1 App. C. C. § 903.

If, on the trial of a cause before the judge without the intervention of a jury, illegal evidence is admitted over objections thereto which, if considered, may have improperly influenced the judge, in the absence of something in the record showing that such evidence was not considered, its admission is error for which the judgment may be reversed. Wagoner v. Ruply, 69 T. 700, 7 S. W. 80.

Where a fact is not disputed, or is well established by competent testimony, the admission of incompetent testimony, which is immaterial and which could not have had any influence upon the jury, is no cause for reversal. Railway Co. v. Moody, 71 T. 614, 9 S. W. 465; Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 3 S. W. 671.

When the evidence, though conflicting, is sufficient to sustain the judgment, it will not be reversed on appeal. De Cordova v. Bahn, 74 T. 643, 12 S. W. 845.

Where a case is reversed and remanded on the ground that the facts proved did not entitle plaintiff to a judgment, writ of error will not lie. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Riordan, 85 T. 511, 22 S. W. 514; Sanger v. Henderson, 85 T. 404, 20 S. W. 915.

Findings by the court of civil appeals as to the locality of lines of surveys and whether surveys are adjoining or are detached, are findings of fact. Such decision cannot be revised in the supreme court. Schley v. Blum, 85 T. 551, 22 S. W. 667.

On error the presumption is that the evidence sustains the findings of fact, and an applicant seeking to rebut this must show what the evidence was. Bauman v. Jaffray, 26 S. W. 394, 86 T. 617.

The supreme court cannot revise the finding of the court below and the court of civil appeals on a question of fact. Beer v. Landman, 31 S. W. 805, 88 T. 450.

The judgment of the court of civil appeals upon a question of fact is not reversible by the supreme court. Warren v. City of Denison, 89 T. 557, 36 S. W. 404.

Where the court of civil appeals reverses and remands because of insufficiency of the evidence, the supreme court on error cannot reverse, but must remand the case for new trial. Wallace v. Southern Cotton-Oil Co., 91 T. 18, 40 S. W. 399.

A finding of fact by the court of civil appeals, in reviewing a jury case, has no bearing on assignments of error in the supreme court, based on refusals to charge by the trial court. Dublin Cotton-Oil Co. v. Jarrard, 91 T. 289, 42 S. W. 959.

Whether there is any evidence to support an issue is a question of law and the decision of the court of civil appeals upon such a question is subject to review by the supreme court. Choate v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co., 91 T. 406, 44 S. W. 69.

A finding of the trial court on a question of fact is final, if not disturbed by the court of civil appeals. Watkins v. Smith, 91 T. 589, 45 S. W. 560; Swayne v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 92 T. 575, 50 S. W. 566.

Where the court of civil appeals has found a fact from conflicting testimony, the supreme court has no jurisdiction thereof. Thomas v. Morrison, 92 T. 329, 48 S. W. 500.

Question certified by court of appeals to supreme court, which depends on question of fact as to which there is conflicting evidence, cannot be passed upon, when question of fact has not been determined by court of appeals. Mann v. Dublin Cotton-Oil Co., 92 T. 377, 48 S. W. 567.

When the court of civil appeals rules that the judgment of the trial court is not sustained by the evidence, the supreme court cannot review its action, because it is on a question of fact, but where it goes further and holds that there is not any evidence for the jury, the supreme court can review its ruling, but only to the extent of determining the question of law whether there is any evidence. Fifth Nat. Bank of San Antonio v. Iron City Nat. Bank of Llano, 92 T. 436, 49 S. W. 368.

The supreme court cannot enter judgment upon a disputed issue of fact. Leary v. People's Building, Loan & Saving Association, 93 T. 1, 51 S. W. 502, 836.

Evidence as to value of building and loan association stock held to raise issue of fact, preventing entry of judgment in supreme court. Leary v. People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n, 93 T. 1, 51 S. W. 836.

Where an issue on which a party requests an affirmance was not submitted to the jury, and the facts do not justify a finding that such defense was sustained, the supreme court will not grant the request. Blethen v. Bonner, 93 T. 141, 53 S. W. 1016.

If there is any evidence to sustain a finding of fact affirmed by the appellate court, it cannot be disturbed. Hanrick v. Gurley, 93 T. 458, 54 S. W. 347.

Where there was evidence that a landowner consented to allow assured to place a building on his land during assured's occupancy, a finding by the court of civil appeals that assured was the owner of the building will not be reversed as a matter of law by the supreme court. Lion Fire Ins. Co. v. Wicker, 93 T. 397, 55 S. W. 741.

A verdict which has any evidence to support it is conclusive on the appellate court. Brush Electric Light & Power Co. v. Lefevre, 93 T. 604, 57 S. W. 640, 49 L. R. A. 771, 77 Am. St. Rep. 898; Wells-Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle, 100 T. 577, 102 S. W. 107.

Where an application is made to the supreme court for writ of error to court of civil appeals, the transcript should show that suit could not have been commenced in the county court, since in such a case the finding of the court of appeals is final. McLane v. Evans, 94 T. 78, 58 S. W. 723.

That the verdict does not present a reasonable solution of disputed questions of fact does not authorize interference with findings supported by evidence. Kelley v. Ward, 94 T. 289, 60 S. W. 311.

Where the lower court has refused to find on a certain issue, a judgment otherwise unsupported cannot be affirmed on evidence sufficient to support it, if there had been an affirmative finding on such issue; the evidence being conflicting. Travis v. Hall, 95 T. 116, 65 S. W. 1078.

The excessiveness of a verdict, in an action for injuries to a passenger, is a question of fact within the exclusive jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Goswick, 98 T. 477, 85 S. W. 785.

The supreme court has no power to decide questions of fact where there is any evidence for the jury. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

Where there is any evidence to support the finding of the court below, the finding is conclusive upon appeal. McDonald v. Cabiness, 100 T. 615, 102 S. W. 721.

Where the facts are such that reasonable minds may differ, the question is one of fact, and is not within the jurisdiction of the supreme court. United States Gypsum Co. v. Shields, 101 T. 473, 108 S. W. 1165.

The supreme court will not reverse the judgment of the court of civil appeals affirming a judgment rendered on a verdict where there is any evidence to justify the verdict. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Finn, 101 T. 511, 109 S. W. 918.

Where there is any evidence tending to prove a fact essential to a recovery, the issue is for the jury; but whether there is such evidence in the record is a question of law for the supreme court. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vallejo, 102 T. 70, 113 S. W. 4, 115 S. W. 25.

Where evidence was such that the trial court was not bound to give it credence, its finding of fact thereon held conclusive on appeal. Autry v. Reasor, 102 T. 123, 108 S. W. 1162, 113 S. W. 748.

A finding of fact by a trial judge held conclusive on the supreme court. Waggoner v. Tinney, 102 T. 254, 115 S. W. 1155.

Where a case was submitted on a single issue of fact, and the charge was favorable to the losing party, on error the judgment must stand affirmed, unless the evidence establishes the fact in his favor beyond a reasonable doubt. Grand Fraternity v. Melton, 102 T. 399, 117 S. W. 788.

In the absence of error in the charge, or in any ruling of the trial court, as to an issue submitted to the jury, its finding cannot be disturbed by the supreme court on an appeal from an affirmance of the judgment. Bowman v. Saigling, 102 T. 485, 119 S. W. 295.

The supreme court, in deciding on appeal an issue, must take the view of the evidence most favorable to the verdict. Davidson v. Ryle, 103 T. 209, 124 S. W. 616, 125 S. W. 881.

A verdict on conflicting evidence is conclusive on the supreme court on writ of error to review a judgment of the court of appeal affirming a judgment rendered on the verdict. Honaker v. Jones, 103 T. 239, 122 S. W. 529, 126 S. W. 4.

While the supreme court will not review the evidence to determine the truth of the facts found by the trial judge, where such facts depend upon the preponderance of the evidence, it will review the legal sufficiency of the evidence to sustain a judgment, and for that purpose will look to all the evidence. Gainsville Water Co. v. City of Gainsville, 103 T. 394, 128 S. W. 370.

In reviewing a personal injury case wherein judgment for plaintiff was affirmed, held that the supreme court must assume the account of plaintiff's witnesses as to how the accident occurred is true. Stamford Oil Mill Co. v. Barnes, 103 T. 409, 128 S. W. 375, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1218, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 111.

The decision of the court of civil appeals that a sale by an agent had not been ratified is a decision on a question of fact binding on the supreme court, but a decision that there was no evidence of such ratification is a question of law, which the supreme court may review. Horst v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 643, 132 S. W. 761.

So far as certified questions involve conclusions on facts stated, it is not the supreme court's province to answer. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Day (Sup.) 136 S. W. 435, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 111.

A verdict supported by testimony and rendered under correct instructions and affirmed by the court of civil appeals, is conclusive on the supreme court on writ of error. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 104 T. 258, 136 S. W. 1049.

A verdict sustained by court of civil appeals will not be reversed. Clegg v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 104 T. 280, 137 S. W. 109.

The supreme court on a writ of error cannot reverse a finding of fact sustained by the court of civil appeals, as contrary to the evidence, where, disregarding all adverse testimony, there is evidence on which minds honestly desiring to determine the question might disagree. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. City of Sweetwater, 104 T. 329, 137 S. W. 1117.

The supreme court is not bound to search the record for evidence to sustain a finding. Hopkins v. Cain, 105 T. 591, 143 S. W. 1145.

A verdict sustained by sufficient evidence will not be disturbed by the supreme court on review. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Horne (Sup.) 145 S. W. 1186.

The supreme court, on writ of error to review a judgment of court of civil appeals, has no jurisdiction of fact questions. Ericson v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle (Sup.) 146 S. W. 160.

In an action for the death of a switchman, there being evidence from which defendant's negligence might have been inferred, the supreme court was without authority to review a verdict for plaintiff. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Boone (Sup.) 146 S. W. 533.

On writ of error to review a judgment of a court of civil appeals on error from a judgment of a district court, the supreme court may look to the transcript as to any facts not passed upon by the court of civil appeals. Beck v. Texas Co. (Sup.) 148 S. W. 295.

On error to review a judgment of the court of appeals in a personal injury action, the supreme court has jurisdiction to consider a question whether there is any evidence in the record to warrant a finding upon a particular issue. Id.

Where the supreme court cannot say that orders of the state railroad commission prescribing a system of bookkeeping are unreasonable as a matter of law, it cannot determine the matter as one of fact. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Sup.) 150 S. W. 878.

The supreme court on writ of error to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals has no power to determine facts, but may determine, as a question of law, whether there is sufficient evidence, or any evidence, to establish the cause of action. Guisti v. Galveston Tribune (Sup.) 152 S. W. 167.

—— Questions of law.—Where the existence of a homestead is found as a conclusion of law only by the lower court, the legal effect of the facts from which the conclusion was drawn will be determined on appeal. West End Town Co. v. Grigg, 93 T. 451, 56 S. W. 49.

As far as statutes affect a contest of a local option election, held, the supreme court will put its own construction thereon, instead of following that of the court of criminal appeals. Griffin v. Tucker, 102 T. 420, 118 S. W. 635.

—— Discretion of court.—A reversal for alleged impropriety of argument of counsel is largely in discretion of court on appeal and such discretion will not be reviewed by the supreme court. Smith v. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. of Texas, 104 T. 171, 133 S. W. 1041, 135 S. W. 1147.

Art. 1547. [968] [1039] Briefs filed.—When any cause or suit may be taken to the supreme court by writ of error, the briefs and arguments filed in the courts of civil appeals shall be submitted to the supreme court; and, in addition thereto, the attorney for either party may file additional briefs, under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the supreme court. [Id.]

Briefs.—Where questions in a cause pending in the supreme court are not discussed in the briefs, the court may set aside the submission and refer the case back for argument. T. & P. Coal Co. v. Lawson, 89 T. 394, 32 S. W. 871.

Arguments.—Where the right of recovery depended on the construction of a contract, which was not discussed in argument on appeal, the case would be referred to counsel for written arguments. Raymond v. Yarrington, 96 T. 287, 72 S. W. 580, 62 L. R. A. 962, 97 Am. St. Rep. 914.

CHAPTER EIGHT

HEARING CAUSES

Art.
1548. Order of trial of causes.
1549. Death of parties no abatement, when.

Article 1548. [971] [1042] Order of trial of causes.—Causes on the docket of said court may be tried by districts, or in such order as to the judges of said court may seem best calculated to promote the interest and convenience of the parties or their attorneys. [Act Feb. 11, 1850. P. D. 1585.]

Art. 1549. [973] [1044] Death of parties no abatement, when.—If any party to the record, in any cause now pending in, or hereafter taken to, the supreme court or court of civil appeals, by appeal or writ of error, shall have died heretofore, or shall hereafter die, after the appeal bond has been filed and approved, or after the writ of error has been served, and before such cause has been decided by the supreme court or courts of civil appeals, such cause shall not abate by such death; but the court shall proceed to adjudicate such cause and render judgment therein as if all the parties thereto were living, and such judgment shall have the same force and effect as if rendered in the lifetime of all the parties thereto. [Id.]

Construed.—A writ of error may be taken from the decision of a court of civil appeals after the death of a party to an appeal pending in that court. Coe v. Nash, 91 T. 119, 41 S. W. 473.

This article makes provision for cases which were to be transferred from the supreme court to the courts of civil appeals upon their organization, in which the party appealing or suing out the writ of error had died previous to the transfer, or might subsequently die after the transfer to the court of civil appeals, and for cases that might thereafter be carried to the court of civil appeals by appeal or writ of error, and wherein the parties might die after the appeal had been perfected by giving the bond, or the writ of error to the court of civil appeals had been served. In either case if the party should die before the case was disposed of in either court the case would proceed in the supreme court as though he was still alive. Conn v. Hogan, 93 T. 334, 55 S. W. 325.

The death of plaintiff, in an action on a liquor dealer's bond for sales of liquor to plaintiff's minor son, pending an appeal from a judgment in her favor, held to abate the cause of action on the bond on the reversal of the judgment. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

Where a defendant in error dies after petition in error is filed and bond for the writ approved, but before citation in error has been served service of the citation may be had upon the surviving wife and children when deceased left no debts and there has been no administration nor necessity therefor. Binyon v. Smith, 50 C. A. 398, 112 S. W. 139.

CHAPTER NINE

JUDGMENT OF THE COURT

Art.
1550. Judgments in open court; opinions in writing.
1551. Judgment on affirmance or rendition, etc.
1552. If judgment reversed, may remand to court of civil appeals or district court.
1553. No reversal or dismissal for want of form.
1554. When judgment shall become final.
1555. Mandate to issue, when.
1556. Same subject.
1557. Affidavit of inability to pay or secure costs.
1558. Mandate to issue to what court.
1559. No mandate to be taken out after twelve months, in case of reversal and remand; certificate and dismissal.
1560. Mandate recalled where judgment set aside.

Article 1550. [974] [1047] Judgments in open court; opinions in writing.—In all cases decided by the supreme court, the judgment or decree of the court shall be pronounced in open court; and the opinion of the court shall be reduced to writing in those cases which the court, in its discretion, may deem of sufficient importance to be reported, and such opinions shall be recorded by the clerk of the court in a book kept by him for that purpose. [Act Nov. 10, 1866, p. 134. P. D. 6417.]

Effect of Denial.—Denial of writ, where application shows jurisdiction of supreme court, is in effect a decision that decision of court of civil appeals is correct; and ordinarily no opinion in writing is filed. Brackenridge v. Cobb, 85 T. 448, 21 S. W. 1034.

Reply.—Where defendant in error files an answer or reply to a petition for a writ of error from the supreme court, that court may finally pass upon the matter. Cooksey v. Jordan, 104 T. 618, 143 S. W. 141.

Stare decisis.—As to the doctrine of stare decisis, see Storrie v. Cortes, 90 T. 283, 38 S. W. 154, 35 L. R. A. 668.

Principle of stare decisis held to apply to decision as to effect of defective record of deed as notice. Dean v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 57.

Decision of supreme court construing boundaries of land grant, while not conclusive in another action between different parties involving boundaries of same grant, will be followed. Birdseye v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 985.

Where the supreme court has decided certain questions relating to certain property, such decision becomes res adjudicata as to such questions, when raised in a subsequent action between different parties on the same facts and respecting the same land. O'Rourke v. Clopper, 22 C. A. 377, 54 S. W. 930.

Where a law has been declared constitutional, the question becomes stare decisis, and governs in subsequent actions. Bogard v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 494.

A construction by the supreme court of the terms of a statute should not be changed after the law has been re-enacted in the same words and such construction has become a rule of property. Hall v. White, 94 T. 455, 61 S. W. 385.

The granting of a writ of error by the supreme court because in its opinion the evidence was not sufficient, held not a decision, so as to be binding on the court of civil appeals. Riggins v. City of Waco, 40 C. A. 569, 90 S. W. 657.

The opinion of a court on a point not in issue is not an authority. American Surety Co. of New York v. San Antonio Loan & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 387.

A former decision in the supreme court constitutes the law of the case on retrial as to the questions considered and those necessarily involved therein. Colorado Salt Co. v. San Jacinto Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 822.

The value of former adjudications held usually confined to the issue directly involved, and the enunciation of the legal principles by which it is determined. Young v. State Bank of Marshall, 54 C. A. 206, 117 S. W. 476.

Relying on a supreme court opinion as holding void an entire penal statute held no defense, where the court subsequently holds that it did not so rule in the case relied on. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. State, 56 C. A. 121, 120 S. W. 1078.

A judicial opinion should be construed in the light of the particular facts upon which it is based. Hamill v. Samuels, 104 T. 46, 133 S. W. 419.

A point raised on motion in the nature of a bill of review to set aside judgments will not be considered as open, where it has been repeatedly passed upon before by appellate courts. Hanrick v. Hanrick (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1092.

In determining the law of the place of contract, the decisions of the courts of a state where a contract was made, construing its statutes are binding when the same questions are raised in other states where it is attempted to enforce the contract. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1020.

Where an appellate court has held for a number of years to a given construction of a statute, it will follow such construction, and any change must be made by the Legislature. Morris v. State, 64 Cr. R. 498, 142 S. W. 876.

A decision of the supreme court construing a new statute before it has been construed by the court of criminal appeals will be followed where the question may as well come before the supreme court as the court of criminal appeals. Redman v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 670.

Where a statement of facts was made in violation of all the rules applicable thereto, the fact that the court considered it is not a precedent for the consideration of similar statements in other cases. Tucker v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 190.

The supreme court will not examine the wisdom or policy of a rule of decision which has been adhered to for more than half a century. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Sup.) 150 S. W. 1156.

The rulings in a decided case against one insurance company are decisive of the same questions upon the same facts in a companion case by the same plaintiff against another insurance company. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 398.

—— Following decisions of supreme court.—The latest decision of the supreme court on a question must be followed by the court of appeals. New York Life Ins. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 616; Williams v. Keith (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 948; Bean v. Bird (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 177; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams, 56 C. A. 246, 120 S. W. 553; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Holt, 57 C. A. 19, 121 S. W. 581; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graves, 57 C. A. 395, 122 S. W. 458; Ennis Waterworks v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 513; Smyer v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 683; Purdie v. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 364; Deweese v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co., Id. 732; National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1095.

—— Decisions of federal court.—A decision of the United States court, reversing the decision of a state court holding a land grant void, does not prevent a state court, on a retrial, from holding the grant void on grounds which the United States supreme court refused to consider. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State, 24 C. A. 117, 56 S. W. 228.

Decision of the United States supreme court as to discrimination against the negro race binding on state courts. Kipper v. State, 42 Cr. R. 613, 62 S. W. 420.

In case of conflict between decisions of the federal courts and a decision of the supreme court of Texas as to whether the statutes of New York or of Texas govern a contract between a resident of Texas and a New York corporation, the decision of the supreme court of Texas must be followed by Texas courts. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Bradley (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 367.

The court of civil appeals will follow federal decisions when a federal question is involved. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Swartz, 53 C. A. 389, 115 S. W. 275.

The decisions of the federal supreme court as to what constitutes intrastate commerce and interstate and foreign commerce are conclusive on the state courts. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 256.

Where there is a conflict between decisions of the supreme court of the United States and that of the state supreme court upon a question of domestic policy, the latter governs the courts of the state. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 635.

When no federal questions are involved, the supreme court of Texas will prefer to follow the state court decisions to those of the federal courts. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Kiser (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 852.

The court of criminal appeals is bound by the decisions of the United States supreme court in determining whether a negro was denied any right on account of race, color, etc., by the manner of selecting the grand jury. Jackson v. State, 63 Cr. R. 351, 139 S. W. 1156.

A decision of the supreme court of the United States upon a question as to which this court has concurrent jurisdiction is superior and will be followed by this court. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Sup.) 157 S. W. 745.

—— Dictum.—A statement as to a question of law not before the court for decision is obiter dictum and not binding. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Wade (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1186; Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 398; Grigsby v. Reib (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1124; J. F. Siensheimer & Co. v. Maryland Motor Car Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 228; El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Lee, Id. 748.

A decision on a question, not necessarily presented by the case, will not be treated as a binding authority, but merely as persuasive. Wiener v. Zwieb, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771.

—— Subsequent appeals.—A judgment of the supreme court held to have established the law of the case on a subsequent appeal. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 24 C. A. 140, 57 S. W. 876; Taylor, B. & H. R. Co. v. Warner (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 442; White v. Simonton, 34 C. A. 464, 79 S. W. 621; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Landry (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 848; Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1048; Dunn v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 311.

The decision of a question of law on a former appeal, on which judgment declaring the rights of the parties was not rendered, is not binding on second appeal. Magnolia Park Co. v. Tinsley, 96 T. 364, 73 S. W. 5.

Art. 1551. [975] [1049] Judgment on affirmance or rendition, etc.—Whenever the supreme court, on the trial of a cause brought from any court of civil appeals, shall affirm the judgment or decree of such court, or when said court shall proceed to render such judgment or decree as should have been rendered by the court of civil appeals, and such judgment shall be for the same or a greater amount, or of the same nature as rendered in the court below, said supreme court shall render judgment against plaintiff in error and his sureties on his bond, a copy of which shall always accompany the transcript of the record. [Acts 1892, p. 19. Acts 1907, S. S., p. 467.]

Remittitur.—Supreme court cannot accept remittitur during pendency of application for writ of error. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York v. Allibone, 90 T. 660, 40 S. W. 399.

—— In court of civil appeals.—See notes under Arts. 1630, 1631.

Art. 1552. [975] [1049] If judgment reversed, may remand to court of civil appeals or district court.—If the judgment of a court of civil appeals shall be reversed, the supreme court may remand the case to the court of civil appeals from which it came for another trial, or the district court, as to the supreme court may seem proper. [Id.]

Remand to court of civil appeals.—Where the court of civil appeals failed to determine whether certain objections justified a new trial, and such objections were insisted on on a writ of error to the supreme court, the case will be remanded to the court of civil appeals, with directions to pass on such questions. Parks v. San Antonio Traction Co., 100 T. 222, 94 S. W. 331.

The opinion of the court of civil appeals indicating a reversal, while the judgment entered being one of affirmance, held, that application for writ of error would be returned to such court for correction of any error in entry of judgment. Moore v. Rogers (Sup.) 95 S. W. 500.

Where the court of civil appeals erroneously reversed a judgment upon the sufficiency of supporting evidence, the supreme court will upon a writ of error under this article as amended by Acts 30th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 15, reverse and remand the cause to the court of civil appeals. Wininger v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 105 T. 56, 143 S. W. 1150.

Remand for new trial.—Where the court of civil appeals has reversed a judgment and erroneously entered judgment for appellant, the supreme court will remand the case for a new trial. Burgess v. Western Union Tel. Co., 92 T. 125, 46 S. W. 794.

On reversing a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment, the reversal by the supreme court being on a conclusion of law, held not necessary to remand the case for a new trial. Poindexter v. Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co., 101 T. 322, 107 S. W. 42.

Where there is no evidence to sustain judgment for plaintiff, it will be reversed and rendered without remand for new trial. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vallejo, 102 T. 70, 113 S. W. 4, 115 S. W. 25.

Where it is obvious that other testimony of a material character is available, the court on reversing a judgment held required to remand the case. Finberg v. Gilbert, 104 T. 539, 141 S. W. 82.

Where the court of civil appeals reverses a judgment and renders judgment for insufficiency of the evidence in law to justify a recovery, the supreme court reversing the ruling because in its opinion the evidence supports the recovery will remand the cause for a new trial. Guisti v. Galveston Tribune (Sup.) 152 S. W. 167.

Art. 1553. [972] [1043] No reversal or dismissal for want of form.—There shall be no reversal or dismissal for want of form; provided, that the requirements of the law and the rules of the court be sufficiently complied with in presenting the case to enable the court to determine the same upon its merits. In each case, the supreme court shall affirm the judgment, reverse and render the judgment which the courts of civil appeals ought to have rendered, or reverse the judgment and remand the case to the lower court, if it shall appear that the justice of the case demands another trial. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Correction of form of judgment.—Judgment on reversal reformed, on rehearing, by setting aside so much thereof as reversed a judgment for a party against whom no personal judgment was sought, and who recovered judgment below. Cotton v. Rand, 93 T. 7, 53 S. W. 343.

The supreme court in the exercise of its supervising jurisdiction has authority to correct the form of the judgment of the trial court on a writ of error. Port Arthur Rice Milling Co. v. Beaumont Rice Mills (Sup.) 152 S. W. 629.

Correction of verdict.—The error in a verdict, under article 6670, subd. 2, held subject to correction in the appellate court. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Stribling, 99 T. 319, 89 S. W. 963.

Rendering final judgment.—It is the duty of the supreme court to enter such judgment as a party is entitled to upon the finding of the court of civil appeals on the question of the liability of the defendant in the trial court. Crawford v. Railway Co., 89 T. 89, 33 S. W. 534.

Where the action is on a note and an open account, and the only reversible error consists in the recovery on the account, it is proper, where the appellee abandons his right to remand and requests judgment on the pleadings, to render judgment for the amount of the note after deducting payments made. Coverdill v. Seymour (Sup.) 57 S. W. 635.

Where a building and loan association pleaded a second contract as purging the original of usury, the court, on reversing a judgment for plaintiff in an action to cancel the loan, will not render judgment for defendant, but will reverse the case. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Jones, 94 T. 497, 62 S. W. 741.

Where a writ of error is granted after a reversal and remanding by the court of civil appeals, the supreme court, on agreeing with the judgment of the court of civil appeals, renders final judgment in accordance with the opinion of such court. Olschewske v. Summerville, 43 C. A. 361, 95 S. W. 1.

The facts furnishing no ground for a difference of opinion as to the rights of the parties held that, on reversal of judgment, judgment will be rendered. Haynes v. State, 100 T. 426, 433, 100 S. W. 912, 915; Pena v. Same, 100 T. 433, 100 S. W. 915; Benavides v. Same, Id.; Garza v. Same, Id.; Cuellar v. Same, Id.; Flores v. Same, 100 T. 433, 100 S. W. 916.

Where it appears that the cause has been fully developed in the lower court, there being no fact necessary to the determination of the rights of the parties which needs to be ascertained, it is the duty of the supreme court on appeal, if it reverse the judgment of the trial court, to enter such judgment as should have been entered by that court. Krause v. City of El Paso, 101 T. 211, 106 S. W. 121, 130 Am. St. Rep. 831, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 582.

In sequestration proceedings to secure possession of property, a disposition made by the judgment of this court held proper under the circumstances. Cobb v. Johnson, 101 T. 440, 108 S. W. 811.

The supreme court will not render judgment for insufficiency of the evidence if it is probable that the case has not been fully developed at trial. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Robinson, 104 T. 482, 140 S. W. 434.

The supreme court, on writ of error, held authorized to reverse the judgment of the court of civil appeals, and affirm the judgment of the trial court. Port Arthur Rice Milling Co. v. Beaumont Rice Mills (Sup.) 143 S. W. 926.

Where the court of civil appeals finds the evidence of plaintiff to be true but insufficient in law to sustain judgment for him, and reverses and renders judgment, the supreme court, of the opinion that the evidence sustains the judgment of the trial court, must reverse the court of civil appeals and render judgment. Guisti v. Galveston Tribune (Sup.) 152 S. W. 167.

Reversal as to co-parties.—When the justice of a case will be reached by reversing as to one defendant and affirming as to another, it may be done. Blum v. Strong, 71 T. 321, 6 S. W. 167.

Where the rights of a defendant not appealing, but joined as appellee, are affected by a decision on appeal, a new trial will be ordered as between him and plaintiff. Ramirez v. Smith, 94 T. 184, 59 S. W. 258.

The fact that in trespass to try title a severance has been granted after impleading of defendant's warrantor held no ground for remanding the cause as between other parties. Cobb v. Robertson, 99 T. 138, 87 S. W. 1148.

Reversal of judgment against plaintiff on appeal taken by him alone held not to carry with it a reversal of a distinct judgment against intervener. M. H. Lauchheimer & Sons v. Coop, 99 T. 386, 89 S. W. 1061.

Harmless error.—Instructions. Mims v. Mitchell, 1 T. 443; Chandler v. Fulton, 10 T. 2, 60 Am. Dec. 188; Vaughan v. State, 21 T. 752; King v. Bremond, 25 T. 637; Bailey v. Mills, 27 T. 438; Belt v. Raguet, 27 T. 472; Franklin v. Smith, 1 U. C. 229; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Warren, 90 T. 566, 40 S. W. 6; Hoefling v. Dobbin, 91 T. 210, 42 S. W. 541; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gormley, 91 T. 393, 43 S. W. 877, 66 Am. St. Rep. 894; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Magee, 92 T. 616, 50 S. W. 1013; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bell, 97 T. 71, 75 S. W. 484; First Nat. Bank v. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co., 97 T. 201, 77 S. W. 410; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Kelly, 98 T. 123, 80 S. W. 79; Cranfill v. Hayden (Sup.) 80 S. W. 609; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 99 T. 337, 90 S. W. 164; Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer, 100 T. 103, 94 S. W. 324; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Same, 101 T. 422, 108 S. W. 964; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wise, 101 T. 459, 109 S. W. 112; Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co., 102 T. 148, 114 S. W. 98; Clevenger v. Blount, 103 T. 27, 122 S. W. 529; Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Sup.) 122 S. W. 533; Hancock v. Stacy, 103 T. 219, 125 S. W. 884; Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Chase, 103 T. 317, 126 S. W. 1109; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Johnson, 103 T. 320, 127 S. W. 539; Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes, 103 T. 515, 131 S. W. 531; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328; San Antonio Traction Co. v. Settle, 104 T. 142, 135 S. W. 116; Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 104 T. 258, 136 S. W. 1049; Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 816.

Evidence. Staley v. Hankla (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 20; Griffis v. Payne, 92 T. 293, 47 S. W. 973; Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Porterfield, 92 T. 442, 49 S. W. 361; Kalteyer v. Wipff, 92 T. 673, 52 S. W. 63; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dilworth, 95 T. 327, 67 S. W. 88; Boaz v. Powell, 96 T. 3, 69 S. W. 976; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Startz, 97 T. 167, 77 S. W. 1; Jamison v. Dooley, 98 T. 206, 82 S. W. 780; Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Halsell, 98 T. 244, 83 S. W. 15; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 100 T. 63, 93 S. W. 1068; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 100 T. 267, 98 S. W. 240; Parrish v. Mills, 101 T. 276, 106 S. W. 882; St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Boshear, 102 T. 76, 113 S. W. 6; Clevenger v. Blount, 103 T. 27, 122 S. W. 529; Talley v. Lamar County, 104 T. 295, 137 S. W. 1125; Lanham v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 336; Ansley Realty Co. v. Pope (Sup.) 151 S. W. 525; Schwingle v. Keifer (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1132.

An error will not be held harmless, unless it affirmatively appears so from the record. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 91 T. 569, 44 S. W. 1067.

Remarks of counsel. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Langston, 92 T. 709, 50 S. W. 574.

Continuance. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Long, 97 T. 69, 75 S. W. 483.

Refusal to dismiss a writ of error. Summerville v. King, 98 T. 332, 83 S. W. 680.

Challenges to jurors. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lester, 99 T. 214, 89 S. W. 752.

Demurrer to petition. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co., 100 T. 192, 97 S. W. 686, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 656.

Findings of fact and conclusions of law. Haines v. West, 101 T. 226, 105 S. W. 1118, 130 Am. St. Rep. 839; Emery v. Barfield (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 311.

Striking out pleading. Lindly v. Lindly, 102 T. 135, 113 S. W. 750; Kalteyer v. Mitchell, 102 T. 390, 132 Am. St. Rep. 889, 117 S. W. 792.

Refusing jury trial. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Smith, 102 T. 490, 119 S. W. 843.

Refusal to submit plea to jurisdiction prior to trial on the merits. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico v. Littlefield (Sup.) 154 S. W. 543.

Submitting issue of partnership. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Sup.) 157 S. W. 745.

Costs.—When a judgment appealed from can properly be reformed and rendered, and the appellant could, upon proper notice, have had the judgment corrected in the court below, and thus have rendered an appeal unnecessary, he will be taxed with the costs of appeal in addition to the costs adjudged against him below. Helm v. Weaver, 69 T. 143, 6 S. W. 420.

Art. 1554. [976] [1050] When judgment shall become final.—The judgment of the supreme court shall be final at the expiration of fifteen days from the rendition thereof when no motion for rehearing has been filed. [Acts 1897, p. 200. Acts 1892, p. 19. Acts 1901, p. 122.]

Art. 1555. [976] [1050] Mandate to issue, when.—Upon the rendition of final judgment, the clerk of the supreme court, or court of civil appeals, upon payment of costs, shall issue the mandate in the case. [Id.]

Art. 1556. [984] [1058] Same subject.—The clerk of the supreme court shall not deliver the mandate of said court until all costs of said court and of the court of civil appeals shall have been paid; subject, however, to the provisions of the next succeeding article. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Execution for costs.—Under a judgment of the supreme court that appellants recover of appellee all costs expended in its behalf, execution can issue from the supreme court for costs of appeal incurred in that court; while the costs of the transcript and all other costs of appeal are collected under execution issued from the district court. Bonner v. Wiggins, 54 T. 149. But see arts. 1556, 1568, 1634, 1635, 1647.

An execution for costs is properly issued in name of the party recovering costs. It should not be issued in name of the officers entitled to the costs. Smith v. Perkins, 81 T. 152, 16 S. W. 805, 26 Am. St. Rep. 794.

Art. 1557. [976] [1050] Affidavit of inability to pay or secure costs.—If the party against whom the costs are adjudged by the supreme court or the court of civil appeals, shall make affidavit of his inability to pay the costs, or give security therefor, he may apply to the supreme court, or the court of civil appeals, as the case may be, for an order to require the clerk of the court to issue the mandate in the cause; which motion shall be sustained, unless the clerk of the court, or a party to the record, shall controvert the truth of such affidavit and satisfy the court that such motion should not be granted. [Acts 1897, p. 200. Acts 1901, p. 122.]

Seal.—The jurat of the clerk to the affidavit of inability to pay cost or secure same cannot be considered unless attested by the seal. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Sup.) 53 S. W. 1019.

Art. 1558. [976] [1050] Mandate to issue to what court.—All mandates from the said court shall issue to the court in which the original judgment was rendered. [Acts 1897, p. 200. Id. p. 123.]

Mandate.—On writ of error to the supreme court to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals, held that the mandate on final disposition of the cause as to certain of the parties should issue directly to the trial court. Cobb v. Robertson, 99 T. 138, 87 S. W. 1148.

The issuance of a mandate by the supreme court in a certain case held binding upon the trial court and the courts of civil appeals. Third Nat. Bank of Springfield, Mass., v. National Bank of Commerce (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 665.

Art. 1559. No mandate to be taken out after twelve months, in case of reversal and remand; certificate and dismissal.—In cases which are, by the supreme court, or courts of civil appeals, reversed and remanded, no mandate shall be taken out of either of said courts and filed in the court wherein said cause originated, unless such mandate shall be so taken out within the period of twelve months after the rendition of final judgment of the supreme court, or court of civil appeals, or the overruling of a motion for rehearing. And if any cause is reversed and remanded by the supreme court, or court of civil appeals, and if the mandate is not taken out within twelve months as hereinbefore provided, then, upon the filing in the court below of a certificate of the clerk of the supreme court, or court of civil appeals, that no mandate has been taken out, the case shall be dismissed from the docket of said lower court. [Id. p. 123.]

Cited, Jameson v. O'Neall (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 680.

Construed.—Act 1903, requiring the mandate in reversed and remanded cases to be filed within 12 months, held to apply to a judgment rendered in 1894, on which no mandate had been filed up to 1903. Aspley v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 289.

Mandatory.—Where a final judgment was rendered by the court of appeals, and a clerical error in the entry afterwards corrected, the date of the original judgment was the time from which to compute the right to have mandate issued. Lee v. British & American Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 775.

The broad declaration that "no mandate shall be taken out, etc.," with the proviso that the act shall apply only to cases which are reversed and remanded, is equivalent to saying that no mandate shall be issued in any cause in which the judgment has been reversed and the cause remanded, after the expiration of the prescribed time. As under other provisions, either party is allowed to take out the mandate no impossible condition is imposed. Scales v. Marshall, 96 T. 140, 70 S. W. 946.

The law is mandatory that the mandate shall not issue after twelve months in which the judgment is reversed and the cause remanded and it is made the duty of the trial court to dismiss the cause from the docket upon a certificate showing that the mandate was not issued in twelve months. Watson v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 985; Watson v. Mirike (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 986.

Time of taking effect.—This law did not take effect until ninety days after the adjournment of the legislature (of 1901), and the limitation began to run from the time when the law took effect. Id.

Art. 1560. [976] [1050] Mandate recalled where judgment set aside.—If, for any cause, the supreme court or court of civil appeals should set aside its judgment, after the mandate has been issued, the clerk of the court shall at once notify the party to whom the mandate was directed to return it at once. [Acts 1897, p. 200. Id. p. 123.]

1565. When motion heard.

Article 1561. [977] [1051] Motion for, when and how made.—Any party desiring a rehearing of any matter determined by said court may, within fifteen days after the date of entry of the judgment or decision of the court, file with the clerk of said court his motion in writing for a rehearing thereof, in which motion the grounds relied upon for the rehearing shall be distinctly specified, and the name and residence of the counsel of the opposing party if known, and if not known, then the name and residence of the opposing party as shown in the record; provided, that should the court adjourn within less time than fifteen days after the rendition of the judgment, it may make such rules and regulations in reference to the filing of the motion as to it may seem best for the promotion of the interest of all the parties concerned. [Act May 2, 1874, p. 216, sec. 2. P. D. 6463q.]

Application.—An immaterial difference between the facts as found by the court of appeals and as stated by the supreme court held not ground for rehearing. City of San Antonio v. Grandjean, 91 T. 430, 44 S. W. 476.

The above article does not apply to a refusal of the supreme court to grant a writ of error. Hines v. Morse, 92 T. 194, 47 S. W. 516.

The supreme court will grant a rehearing asked on the ground that defendants were led to believe that discussion of a point on which the case was decided was unnecessary. West End Town Co. v. Grigg (Sup.) 56 S. W. 747.

Statement of facts.—Fact of introduction of deed, omitted from statement of facts, held not presentable to supreme court on motion for rehearing, notwithstanding agreement of counsel and certificate of trial judge. Williamson v. Work, 33 C. A. 369, 77 S. W. 266.

Art. 1562. [978] [1052] Notice to opposing party or attorney.—Upon the filing of such motion with the clerk of said court, he shall make a certified copy of such motion and transmit the same by mail to the sheriff or any constable of the county in which the attorney, or opposing party, as the case may be, is alleged in said motion to reside, together with a precept commanding him to deliver the copy of the motion to the person named in such precept. [Act May 2, 1874, p. 216, sec. 4. P. D. 6463r.]

Art. 1563. [979] [1053] Service and return of officer.—Upon the receipt of such precept and copy of motion by the officer, it shall be his duty to deliver the copy of the motion to the person named in said precept, if found in his county, and to return said precept to the court, by mail, stating thereon at what time, and to whom, he delivered the copy of the motion, or that the party named in the precept is not to be found in his county, as the case may be. [Id. P. D. 6463p.]

Art. 1564. [980] [1054] Service on one of several parties.—Service of said motion on any one of several parties or their attorneys to a cause shall be sufficient service on all.

Art. 1565. [981] [1055] When motion heard.—At any time, after five days from the return of such precept served, it shall be lawful for said supreme court to hear and determine such motion for rehearing, and not sooner. [Id. P. D. 6463p.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT

Art.
1566. Process, how tested, directed and executed.
1567. Judgment enforced, how.
1568. Execution issued, when.
1569. Execution returnable, when.
1570. Officer failing to make return; remedy.
1571. Money due clerk of court of civil appeals to be paid by clerk of supreme court; remedy.

Article 1566. [982] [1056] Process, how tested, directed and executed.—All writs and process issuing from the supreme court shall bear the test of the chief justice or presiding judge of said court, and be under the seal of said court and signed by the clerk thereof, and may be directed to the sheriff or any constable of any county in the state, and shall be by such officer executed according to the demand thereof, and returned to the court from which they emanated; and whenever such writs or process shall not be executed, the clerk of the said court is hereby authorized and required to issue another like process or writ, upon the application of the party suing out the former writ or process to the same or any other county. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Art. 1567. [983] [1057] Judgment enforced, how.—Upon the rendition by the supreme court of any such judgment or decree as is contemplated by article 1551, it shall not be necessary for the lower court from which the cause was removed to make any further order or decree therein, but the clerk of said lower court, on receipt of the mandate of the supreme court or court of civil appeals, shall proceed to issue execution thereon as in other cases. [Id.]

Mandate to lower court.—When a case has been finally determined in the appellate court, the only jurisdiction which the inferior court can properly exercise over it is to enforce and give effect to the mandate of the appellate court. Burck v. Burroughs, 64 T. 445.

And in like manner execution can be issued against the sureties on the appeal bond on the judgment rendered against them in the appellate court. Blair v. Sanborn, 82 T. 686, 18 S. W. 159.

Upon the return of a mandate affirming a money judgment, the execution should recite the fact of the rendition of the former judgment, the appeal therefrom, and the rendition of the judgment of affirmance, upon which the execution should be based. Irvin v. Ferguson, 83 T. 491, 18 S. W. 820.

Art. 1568. [984] [1058] Execution issued, when.—If the costs have not been paid at the end of fifteen days from the date of judgment or from the overruling of a motion for rehearing, the said clerk may issue an execution for the costs of the supreme court and the court of civil appeals, specifying the amount of each, and attaching to said execution a correct list of all costs accruing in each of said courts. Said execution shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county from which the cause was removed, or to any county in which the person or persons, liable under such execution, or either of them, may have property. It shall be the duty of every sheriff or constable receiving such execution to execute and return the same under the same rules, regulations and liabilities as provided for executions from the district court. [Acts 1892, p. 23.]

See Railway Co. v. Hume (Sup.) 30 S. W. 863; Baker v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 141.

Art. 1569. [985] [1059] Execution returnable, when.—All executions for costs of the supreme court, as authorized by law, shall be returned by the sheriff or constable to whom they are directed, within four months from the date thereof. [Act March 9, 1875, p. 70, sec. 2.]

Art. 1570. [986] [1060] Officer failing to make return; remedy by motion.—In case any officer shall fail or refuse to make such return with the amount of such costs, if he has collected the same within the time prescribed herein, or shall make a false or fraudulent return of any such execution, the clerk of said supreme court may issue citation returnable forthwith to such officer to appear before the said supreme court, and show cause, if any he can, why he has not collected and returned such costs and execution; and failing to show cause, said court may enter judgment against such officer and the sureties on his official bond for twice the amount of said costs, together with the cost of such proceeding. [Id.]

Art. 1571. [986] [1060] Money due clerk of court of civil appeals to be paid by clerk of supreme court; remedy by motion.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the supreme court, when he shall receive any money due the clerk of any court of civil appeals, to pay the same over to such clerk of the courts of civil appeals; and, if he refuses to do so upon demand, the clerk of the said courts of civil appeals may file in the supreme court a motion against the said clerk so failing; and, upon ten days' notice given to him, the said supreme court may enter judgment against said clerk of the supreme court and the sureties on his official bond for double the amount of the costs so collected by him and due to said clerk of the courts of civil appeals. [Id.]

CHAPTER TWELVE

REPORTER TO THE SUPREME COURT

Art.		Art.
1572.	Appointment and removal of.	1576.	Duties of printing board.
1573.	Stationery, how furnished.	1577.	Requisites of volume.
1574.	Records and manuscripts; duties of reporters.	1578.	Sale of reports.
1575.	Court to designate the cases to be reported.	1579.	Reports, how printed.

Article 1572. [959] Appointment and removal of reporters.—The judges of the supreme court, after their election to each term of office, shall appoint some person or persons learned in the law, being a licensed attorney, to report the decisions of the supreme court, and of the courts of civil appeals, who shall be removable at the pleasure of the court, and who shall be paid for the services required three thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly on the certificate of the chief justice; provided, however, that he may be allowed such additional compensation for reporting the decisions of the courts of civil appeals as the supreme court may deem just. [Acts 1882, p. 71.]

Art. 1573. [960] Stationery, how furnished.—The reporter shall be furnished by the state printing board with the necessary stationery for the performance of the duties imposed by the provisions hereof. [Id.]

Art. 1574. [961] Records and manuscript; duties of reporter.—The reporter shall obtain from the clerks of the courts the records of cases to be reported, with the briefs and opinions in such cases as soon as such cases are finally disposed of and the opinions are recorded, which shall be returned after the report thereof is completed. He shall, without delay, under the direction of the court, prepare such decisions, with appropriate syllabus, and statements when necessary, for publication in book form, and shall, from time to time, deliver the same to the secretary of state for the board of public printing as hereinafter provided. The secretary of state shall receipt for the same and deliver to the expert printer appointed by the board of public printing for publication. [Id.]

Art. 1575. [962] Court to designate the cases to be reported.—The supreme court shall designate, by orders or otherwise, the cases to be reported; and only such cases as are designated shall be reported and published; and only the main propositions made in the briefs and considered by the court in the opinion, with the authorities cited in support of such propositions, shall be incorporated in the report. [Id.]

Art. 1576. [963] Duties of printing board.—As fast as the board of public printing shall receive through the secretary of state the manuscript copy of reported cases for the reporter, said board shall cause the same to be printed, with proper index, tables of cases cited, and of cases reported, at the printing office at the deaf and dumb asylum of Texas, and have one thousand copies bound of each volume of reports. The index, tables of cases cited, and of cases reported shall be prepared by the reporter. The expert printer appointed by the printing board shall, after revising the printing, deliver a revise as the work progresses to the reporter, who shall correct and return to said expert. [Id.]

Art. 1577. [964] Requisites of volume.—The decisions of said courts shall be printed and bound. Each volume shall not contain less than seven hundred pages nor more than eight hundred pages. Each page shall be twenty-six ems pica wide and forty-six ems pica long. The type used shall be long primer and minion of the same size used in volume twenty-three, Wallace's United States supreme court reports. The lines shall be leaded with not thicker than eight to pica leads. The paper, presswork and binding shall be of the same style and at least equal quality in every respect with the volumes of Moore & Walker's reports heretofore published. The volumes containing the supreme court decisions shall be styled "The Texas Reports," and shall be so styled on the title page and back, and the volumes shall be numbered. The name of the reporter may be printed on the back of each volume. Each volume shall be copyrighted in the name of the reporter, who shall immediately on delivery of the edition transfer and assign the same to the state. It shall be electrotyped, and the plates shall be owned by the state and preserved by the secretary of state. [Id.]

Art. 1578. [965] Sale of reports by secretary of state.—When printed and bound, the reports shall be delivered to the secretary of state, who shall sell single copies for two dollars, exclusive of postage or express charges; and he shall also, for the same price, sell single copies of any former volume of reports for either of said courts heretofore published under the state's copyright and now owned by the state. The secretary of state shall deliver to the state treasurer the proceeds of all sales so made by him, of which and of his operations hereunder and of the transactions of the said board hereunder he shall make a full statement and showing in his biennial report. [Id.]

Art. 1579. [966] Reports, how printed.—Should the expert printer, whose duty it is to supervise and have promptly executed the printing, binding and delivering of the reports to the secretary of state, fail to have the work executed with promptness and in accordance with the provisions hereof, he shall be removed from his trust and another appointed; and whenever the board of public printing shall ascertain that the work of printing and binding the reports can be done more speedily, better and more economically by contract, or that ample material and means to carry out the provisions hereof are not at their control, they shall at once let the printing and binding of the reports out by contract, requiring security for the performance of the work, and the delivery to the state of the electrotype plates. No copies of reports shall be furnished to any county except upon payment made by such county to the secretary of state, as in sale to private parties. The secretary of state may transmit advance sheets of the reports as the publishing progresses on receiving two dollars for the volume, the purchaser to have the right on returning all the forms of the volume to the secretary of state to have the same bound without further expense, on his paying the expense of transmitting the same to and from the state department. [Id.]

1. Judges of the Courts of Civil Appeals.
2. Terms of the Courts of Civil Appeals.
3. Jurisdiction of the Courts of Civil Appeals.
4. Clerks of the Courts of Civil Appeals.
5. Stenographers.
6. Proceedings in Cases in the Courts of Civil Appeals.
7. Hearing Causes.
8. Certification of Questions to Supreme Court, etc.
9. Judgment of the Court.
10. Conclusions of Fact and Law.
11. Rehearing.
12. Execution of Judgment.
13. Reporter to the Courts of Civil Appeals.

CHAPTER ONE

JUDGES OF THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Art.
1580. Chief and associate justices.
1581. Election and term of office.
1582. Qualifications of judges.
1583. Vacancies, how filled.
1584. Disqualification of judges.

Article 1580. [987] One chief and two associate justices.—Each of the courts of civil appeals now or hereafter organized in this state shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, and the concurrence of two justices shall be necessary to the decision of a case. [Acts of 1892, S. S., p. 25.]

Art. 1581. [988] Elected alternately, how; term of office.—The chief justice and associate justices of each of the courts of civil appeals shall be elected by the qualified voters of their respective districts, composed of the counties returnable to the several courts, at a general election. Upon their qualification, after the first election after the creation of any court of civil appeals in this state, the justices thereof shall draw lots for the terms of office; and those drawing number one shall hold their offices for the term of two years; those drawing number two shall hold their offices for a term of four years, and those drawing number three shall hold their offices for the term of six years from the date of their election and until their successors are elected and qualified. Each of said offices shall be filled by election at the next general election at which terms as aforesaid would expire; and the person elected shall thereafter hold his office for six years and until his successor is elected and qualified, and shall receive each an annual salary of thirty-five hundred dollars, and no more. [Id.]

Art. 1582. [989] Qualifications of judges.—No person shall be eligible to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the courts of civil appeals, unless he be at the time of his election a citizen of the United States and of this state and a resident of the district for which he is elected, and unless he shall have attained the age of thirty years and shall have been a practicing lawyer or a judge of a court in this state, or such lawyer and judge together, at least seven years. [Id.]

Art. 1583. [990] Vacancies, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice or associate justice of any court of civil appeals the governor shall fill the vacancy until the next general election for state officers; and, at such general election, the vacancy for the unexpired term shall be filled by election by the qualified voters of the district composed of counties returnable to said court. [Id.]

Art. 1584. [1021] Disqualification of judges.—No judge of the courts of civil appeals shall sit in any cause wherein he may be interested in the question to be determined, or where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity within the third degree, or where he shall have been of counsel in the cause; and where the court, or any two of its members, shall thus be disqualified to hear and determine any cause or causes in said courts, that fact shall be certified to the governor, who shall immediately commission the requisite number of persons, learned in the law, for the trial and determination of said cause or causes. [Id.]

Disqualification.—In a suit to cancel the bonded indebtedness of a city for which a special tax has been levied, a judge owning taxable property in such city has a direct pecuniary interest in the result, and is not competent to sit as a judge. City of Austin v. Nalle, 85 T. 534, 22 S. W. 669, 960.

A taxpayer in a city who is not an inhabitant of the city is not disqualified to sit in a case against the city which does not directly involve a tax. City of Dallas v. Peacock, 89 T. 58, 33 S. W. 220; Clack v. Taylor County, 3 App. C. C. § 201.

TERMS OF THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Art.
1585. Terms of court.
1586. Places where courts of civil appeals shall be held.
1587. Transfer of causes.
1588. Quorum, what, and court adjourned, when.

Article 1585. Terms of court.—The terms of the courts of civil appeals, in and for the several supreme judicial districts in the state of Texas, shall commence on the first Monday in October of each year and shall continue in session until the first Monday in July of each succeeding year. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 25. Acts 1897, p. 132.]

Explanatory.—For division of the state into supreme judicial districts, see Title "Apportionment," art. 29.

See Art. 1586, subds. 6, 7, and 8, for provisions as to terms in sixth, seventh, and eighth districts.

Art. 1586. [993] Places where courts of civil appeals shall be held.—The courts of civil appeals shall be held at the following places, respectively:

1. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the first supreme judicial district, in the city of Galveston, in the county of Galveston.

2. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the second supreme judicial district, in the city of Fort Worth, in the county of Tarrant.

3. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the third supreme judicial district, in the city of Austin, in the county of Travis.

4. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the fourth supreme judicial district, in the city of San Antonio, in the county of Bexar.

5. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the fifth supreme judicial district, in the city of Dallas, in the county of Dallas. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 25.]

6. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the sixth supreme judicial district, in the city of Texarkana, in the county of Bowie; provided, that if said court is located at Texarkana, the citizens thereof will furnish, provide, and equip a suitable room or rooms for said court and the members thereof, and the necessary law library therefor, without cost or expense to the state. [Acts 1907, p. 324, sec. 3.]

The court of civil appeals of the sixth supreme judicial district shall hold its sessions at the city of Texarkana, in the county of Bowie, and its terms shall commence on the first Monday in October of each year, and shall continue in session until the first Monday in July of each succeeding year. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to repeal or otherwise affect the provisions of chapter 174, page 324, Acts of the Thirtieth Legislature creating the sixth supreme judicial district of Texas, except in so far as this Act may change the counties composing said district. [Acts 1911, p. 269, sec. 1, part of subd. 6, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1895, art. 21.]

7. The court of civil appeals for the seventh supreme judicial district shall hold its sessions in the city of Amarillo, in the county of Potter, and its terms shall commence on the first Monday in October of each year, and shall continue in session until the first Monday in July of each succeeding year; provided, however, said court may commence its first session immediately upon the appointment and qualification of the judges thereof, and the organization of the court, and provided further that if said court is located at Amarillo, the citizens thereof will furnish, provide and equip suitable room or rooms for said court and the members thereof, and the necessary law libraries therefor, without cost or expense to the state. [Id. sec. 3.]

8. The court of civil appeals for the eighth supreme judicial district shall hold its sessions in the city of El Paso, in the county of El Paso, and its terms shall commence on the first Monday in October of each year, and shall continue in session until the first Monday in July of each succeeding year; provided, however, said court may commence its first session immediately upon the appointment and qualification of the judges thereof, and the organization of the court, and provided further that if said court is located at El Paso the citizens thereof will furnish, provide and equip suitable room or rooms for said court and the members thereof and the necessary law libraries therefor, without cost or expense to the state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1587. [994a] Transfer of causes.—It shall be the duty of the supreme court to equalize, as nearly as practicable, the amount of business upon the dockets of the different courts of civil appeals, by directing the transfer of cases from such of said courts as may have the greater amount of business upon their dockets to those having a less amount of business upon their dockets; such transfers to be made as soon as practicable after the passage of this article, and thereafter at least once each year, in such manner and under such rules and regulations as the supreme court shall provide. And said courts of civil appeals, to which such cases shall be transferred, shall have jurisdiction of all such cases transferred without regard to the districts in which cases were originally tried and returnable on appeal; provided, that cases transferred from any court of civil appeals shall be taken from cases appealed from the counties nearest to the place where the court to which the cases are transferred is held. [Acts 1895, p. 79. Acts 1893, p. 171. Acts 1909, p. 88.]

Transfer of causes in general.—Where the supreme court transfers a case from one court of civil appeals to another under this article the court to which the case has been transferred has only jurisdiction of that appellate proceeding, and, when the case is finished, any further appellate proceeding must go to the district to which it belongs. Smith v. City National Bank of Wichita Falls (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 527.

This law does not apply to a pending motion to affirm a judgment on certificate. Taber v. Chapman, 92 T. 263, 47 S. W. 710.

Under this article cases from a county in which a court of civil appeals is actually sitting may have to be transferred to a court of civil appeals sitting in another county where the county from which they are appealed is the nearest county to the place where the court to which they are transferred is held. In re Transfer of Causes between Courts of Civil Appeals, 103 T. 127, 124 S. W. 622.

Art. 1588. [995] Quorum, what, and court adjourned, when.—A majority of the judges of the several courts of civil appeals shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. The said courts may adjourn from day to day or for such time as may be deemed proper by the judges thereof. But, if a sufficient number of the judges shall not be present at the first or any day of the term, any judge of the court, or the sheriff attending the same, may adjourn the court from time to time until a quorum shall be in attendance, but the court shall not be finally adjourned for the term. [Acts 1895, p. 79.]

JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Art.
1589. Jurisdiction defined.
1590. Judgment conclusive, when.
1591. Same subject.
1592. Issue writs of mandamus, etc.
1593. Inquire into facts of jurisdiction.
1594. May punish for contempt.
1595. May mandamus district courts.

Article 1589. [996] Jurisdiction defined.—The appellate jurisdiction of the courts of civil appeals shall extend to civil cases within the limits of their respective districts:

1. Of which the district courts have original or appellate jurisdiction.

2. Of which the county court has original jurisdiction.

3. Of which the county court has appellate jurisdiction, when the judgment, or amount in controversy, or the judgment rendered, shall exceed one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest and costs. [Id.]

Jurisdiction in general.—See, also, notes under Art. 2078.

The court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal perfected before the act creating it went into effect. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rowley (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 182; Railway Co. v. Farmer, 22 S. W. 515, 3 C. A. 458.

A proceeding by habeas corpus to determine a parent's right to the custody of a minor child is a civil action of which the court of civil appeals has jurisdiction. Legate v. Legate, 87 T. 248, 28 S. W. 281.

The court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction solely upon motion to review the approval of a statement of facts by the lower court. P. J. Willis & Bro. v. Smith, 17 C. A. 543, 43 S. W. 325.

A court of civil appeals has no original jurisdiction to issue a writ of habeas corpus. In a suit brought to determine the custody of a minor the writ of habeas corpus may be invoked and the court of civil appeals has appellate jurisdiction of such a suit. Wetz v. Thompson, 26 C. A. 396, 63 S. W. 1050.

This article as contemplated by amendment of 1891 of article 5 of the constitution made the courts of civil appeals successors to the jurisdiction of the supreme court and of the old court of appeals as defined by the original article (of the constitution) and the statutes passed in pursuance thereof. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cooper, 96 T. 482, 73 S. W. 948.

The court of civil appeals is without jurisdiction to set aside a judgment rendered at a former term, though it may be erroneous. Ferguson v. Beaumont Land & Bldg. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 303.

—— Determination of jurisdiction.—See notes under Art. 1593.

Civil cases.—See notes under Art. 2078.

Appeals from district courts.—The court has jurisdiction of an appeal from the district court of a civil action of which it had jurisdiction, in which a judgment for $80 was rendered. Cadwallader v. Lovece, 10 C. A. 1, 29 S. W. 666.

The court of civil appeals has jurisdiction of an appeal from a district court illegally constituted to determine the constitutionality of its organization. Whitener v. Belknap, 89 T. 273, 34 S. W. 594.

The court of civil appeals has jurisdiction in a case which originates in the justice court and appealed to the district court (jurisdiction of county court having been abolished) where the amount involved is less than $100. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cooper, 96 T. 482, 73 S. W. 947, overruling judgment of court of civil appeals (72 S. W. 409).

Appeals from county courts.—When an appeal from the county court has been perfected, it will not be divested by an act which takes away civil jurisdiction from the county court and transfers the civil case to the district court. Pfeuffer v. Wilderman, 1 App. C. C. § 188.

—— Amount in controversy.—See, also, notes under Art. 2078.

The court does not have jurisdiction unless the amount in controversy, or the amount of the judgment appealed from, exceeds $100, exclusive of interest and costs. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Pressley, 2 App. C. C. § 504; I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Mathews, 1 App. C. C. § 510; Miman v. Eidman, 1 App. C. C. § 629; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Haney, 2 App. C. C. § 709; Davidson v. Horidam, 3 App. C. C. § 233. The cases cited are based on the provisions of former statutes of similar character.

In cases of foreclosure of mortgages and liens upon specific property, it has been held that not only the debt, but the security given for its payment, determines the jurisdiction. It is held that this principle does not apply to the landlord's lien. Lawson v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 1128; Yeisir v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 84; Bohannon v. Roensch, 13 C. A. 218, 35 S. W. 873.

The appellate court has no jurisdiction of a case appealed from the county court if the matter in controversy, exclusive of interest and costs, does not exceed $100. Ray v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co., 18 C. A. 665, 45 S. W. 479; Green v. Warren, 18 C. A. 548, 45 S. W. 608.

The court of civil appeals cannot entertain jurisdiction of an appeal where the amount in controversy is not stated. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Board of Equalization of City of Austin (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 757.

The "amount in controversy" as used in the statute means the sum of money or the value of the thing originally sued for in the justice court (when the action was commenced in the justice court), and not the amount of the judgment recovered in the county court on appeal from the justice court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cunnigan, 95 T. 439, 67 S. W. 890.

The court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal in a case which originated in a justice court, where the amount in controversy and the judgment is less than $100. Tucker v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 1069.

Whether the action was within the jurisdiction of a justice is to be determined, not by the statement in the petition that plaintiff's aggregate damages are $200, but by the sum of the items of damages set out in the body thereof, aggregating more than that amount. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hood (Sup.) 125 S. W. 982.

Under this article it is not permissible to add to the amount claimed the amount claimed in reconvention, so as to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction. Walker v. De Villeneuve (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 281.

Under this article an appeal will not lie to the court of civil appeals from a judgment of the county court for plaintiff for $15.50 in an action to recover $22.50. Record Co. v. Greer (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1183.

Where, in an action in justice's court and appealed to the county court, plaintiff demanded judgment for less than $100, and defendant filed a counter demand for $200, and the county court rendered judgment against plaintiff on his cause of action and in defendant's favor on the counterclaim for $175, the "amount in controversy," must be determined from the counterclaim, and that defendant remitted the judgment in his favor will not defeat the jurisdiction. Barnes v. Bryce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 240.

Under this article an appeal cannot be taken from a judgment of such court, in an action appealed from a justice of the peace, where the amount claimed is but $95. Le Baume v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 301.

Under this article the court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal from a judgment of the county court, dismissing an appeal from a justice's judgment for defendant in an action involving $30. Mask v. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 299.

Dismissal for lack of jurisdiction.—An appeal will be dismissed, where the record fails to show an appeal from a justice court, and the amount in controversy is insufficient to confer original jurisdiction on the court below. Gregory v. Gulf & I. Ry. Co., 20 C. A. 272, 48 S. W. 888.

Where the record does not show how the county court acquired jurisdiction of an action involving an amount less than its original jurisdiction, an appeal will be dismissed. Albritton v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1008.

When judgment was obtained in justice court for less than $100, and on appeal to the county court judgment for same amount was rendered and appeal taken to court of civil appeals, the appeal was dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Lacy v. O'Reilly (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 641.

Where the appellate court is without jurisdiction, an appeal should be dismissed. Maund v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 228.

The dismissal of an appeal for want of jurisdiction does not involve a consideration of the merits. Sanders v. Eastland Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 941.

The record on appeal must affirmatively show the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals, and hence where plaintiff obtained judgment in two suits in a justice's court against the same defendant, who appealed to the county court, where the two cases were consolidated and judgment rendered for the defendant, and the record on appeal of the consolidated case showed the proceedings in one of the cases before the justice, which involved only $30, and did not show the amount in issue in the other case, the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals was not shown, since, as to the $30 case, it was not appealable beyond the county court, and the other case, for aught shown, may have been beyond the justice's jurisdiction, in which case the county court had no jurisdiction and the court of civil appeals could have none, and hence the appeal must be dismissed. Wilder v. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 607.

Where the amount in controversy is insufficient to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction, the appeal will be dismissed. Pope v. Prewitt (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 895.

An appeal dismissed for lack of showing of appellate jurisdiction. Smith v. Eachman (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1154.

It is improper to dismiss an appeal from a county court after appeal from a justice court because the transcript fails to show an appeal bond or affidavit perfecting the appeal to the county court, without first calling appellant's attention to the fact that the record fails to disclose jurisdiction. John E. Morrison Co. v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1122.

Art. 1590. [996] Judgment conclusive, when.—The judgments of the courts of civil appeals shall be conclusive in all cases on the facts of the case. [Id.]

Review of facts.—See, also, notes under Art. 1639.

The court of civil appeals has no right to conclusively determine the facts of any case that was tried in the court below by a jury on conflicting evidence. The judgment of the appellate court cannot be substituted in place of that of the jury upon the facts. Choate v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co., 91 T. 406, 44 S. W. 69.

On writ of error to review a judgment of a court of civil appeals on error from a judgment of a district court, the supreme court may look to the transcript as to any facts not passed upon by the court of civil appeals. Beck v. Texas Co. (Sup.) 148 S. W. 295.

Judgment conclusive on facts.—When there is a conflict of evidence, the findings of fact by the court of civil appeals is conclusive. Bauman v. Jaffray, 26 S. W. 394, 86 T. 617.

The court of civil appeals reversing a judgment as contrary to the evidence is conclusive on the facts of the case on error to the supreme court. Insurance Co. v. Hayward, 88 T. 315, 30 S. W. 1049, 31 S. W. 507.

Where evidence is conflicting, finding by court of civil appeals that it is sufficient to sustain the verdict is conclusive. Needham Piano & Organ Co. v. Hollingsworth, 91 T. 49, 40 S. W. 787.

A finding of fact by the court of civil appeals which is supported by the evidence is conclusive on the supreme court on appeal, but not on the trial court on a retrial. Hunter v. Eastham, 95 T. 648, 69 S. W. 66.

In an action for wrongful death, findings of the trial court and the court of civil appeals, sustained by the evidence, held conclusive on appeal. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Mertink, 101 T. 165, 105 S. W. 485.

A finding of fact by the court of civil appeals, sustained by evidence, if believed, is conclusive on the supreme court on writ of error. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

A finding of fact by the court of civil appeals is conclusive on the supreme court. Sabine Tram Co. v. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 143 S. W. 143.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message, where the court of civil appeals found as a fact that there was negligence on the part of the company, the supreme court cannot review such finding, if from the record it cannot determine as a matter of law that there was no evidence of negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cates (Sup.) 148 S. W. 281.

The supreme court must accept the facts as found by the court of civil appeals, and its construction of the evidence, if it be fairly susceptible of two constructions. Schwingle v. Keifer (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1132.

Art. 1591. [996] Same subject.—The judgments of the courts of civil appeals shall be conclusive on the law and fact, nor shall a writ of error be allowed thereto from the supreme court in the following cases, to-wit:

1. Any civil case appealed from a county court or from a district court, when, under the constitution, a county court would have had original or appellate jurisdiction to try it, except in probate matters and in cases involving the revenue laws of the state or the validity of a statute.
2. All cases of boundary.
3. All cases of slander.
4. All cases of divorce.
5. All cases of contested elections of every character, other than for state officers, except where the validity of the statute is attacked by the decision.
6. The judgments of said courts of civil appeals shall be final in all appeals from interlocutory orders appointing receivers or trustees or such other interlocutory appeals as may be allowed by law.
7. The judgment of said court shall be final in all other cases as to law and facts, except where appellate jurisdiction is given to the supreme court and not made final in said courts of civil appeals.

Cited, Johnson v. Hanscom, 90 T. 321, 38 S. W. 761; State v. Johnson, 90 T. 321, 37 S. W. 601; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 14 C. A. 566, 37 S. W. 973; Keator v. Whittaker (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 120.

Finality of judgment in general.—The joining in one action of two distinct controversies held not to give the supreme court appellate jurisdiction over one because of its jurisdiction over the other. Brown v. Cates, 99 T. 133, 87 S. W. 1149.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment below is conclusive upon the supreme court, unless the complaint against the ruling is based on some exception giving the supreme court jurisdiction. Cleburne Electric & Gas Co. v. McCoy (Sup.) 150 S. W. 588.

Cases within county court's jurisdiction.—An action held within the jurisdiction of the county court, and that the decision of the court of civil appeals was final thereon. Smith v. Wilson, 91 T. 503, 44 S. W. 672.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction to grant writ of error in case of judgment in district court for $1,000 exclusive of interest and costs where suit was brought for this amount, because suit could have been brought in county court. Wilson Hardware Co. v. Duff, 98 T. 467, 85 S. W. 786.

Where the original petition claims an amount of more than $1,000, but in an amended petition the amount was reduced below this sum, the court of civil appeals having affirmed the judgment of trial court, a writ of error will lie to the supreme court. The word "case," as used in this article, means that made by the original petition and not the case as actually tried. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, 100 T. 17, 93 S. W. 431, 432.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction to grant a writ of error in a case brought in the district court of which the county court also had jurisdiction. Long v. Green & Co., 100 T. 510, 101 S. W. 786.

—— Validity of statute.—A writ of error will not lie from a final judgment of the court of civil appeals involving the construction and application of a statute, but not its validity. Mathews Lumber Co. v. Hardin, 30 S. W. 898, 87 T. 639.

The validity of a statute being involved, the supreme court has jurisdiction although the suit might have been brought in the county court. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Mahaffey, 98 T. 392, 84 S. W. 647.

The validity of a statute cannot be considered as involved in a case after the question has been decided in the supreme court and its validity sustained. City of San Antonio v. Tobin, 100 T. 589, 102 S. W. 404.

Jurisdiction is given to the supreme court over all questions of law in cases appealed from the county court to the court of civil appeals involving the validity of a statute. The supreme court having acquired jurisdiction and passed on the validity of the statute will proceed to decide the case. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Webb, 102 T. 201, 114 S. W. 1174.

Cases of boundary.—The supreme court has no jurisdiction in a boundary case, though one of the parties attempts to prove his line by a judgment or other estoppel. New York & T. Land Co. v. Votaw, 91 T. 282, 42 S. W. 969.

The judgment of the court of civil appeals is not conclusive of the case, if there is any other question involved except that of boundary. Cox v. Finks, 91 T. 318, 43 S. W. 1.

Case held to be one of boundary, and not within the jurisdiction of the supreme court on writ of error. Id.

It is a boundary case where had there been no question of boundary there would have been no case. Davis v. McCabe (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 837.

The decision of the court of civil appeals in a boundary case is final, and a writ of error from the supreme court to review such decision will be dismissed. Wright v. Bell, 94 T. 577, 63 S. W. 623.

The statute denying jurisdiction to the supreme court over boundary cases held not to exclude its jurisdiction of an action on notes given for land and to foreclose a vendor's lien, in which a question of boundary is the sole issue of fact. Steward v. Coleman County, 95 T. 445, 67 S. W. 1016.

Under the pleadings, a suit held merely a boundary case, so as to make the judgment of the court of civil appeals final. Smithers v. Smith, 98 T. 83, 81 S. W. 283.

A case held not a mere "case of boundary," of which the supreme court has no jurisdiction. Mansfield v. Gilbert, 99 T. 18, 86 S. W. 922.

Libel.—The supreme court has jurisdiction on appeal in an action for libel. A. H. Belo & Co. v. Smith, 91 T. 221, 42 S. W. 850.

Divorce cases.—The supreme court has no jurisdiction over divorce cases, although in such cases rights of property may have been adjudicated. Kellett v. Keilett, 94 T. 206, 59 S. W. 809.

Contested elections.—The judgment of the court of civil appeals is final in cases of contested elections of every character other than for state officers, except when the validity of a statute is attacked by the decision. Kidd v. Rainey, 95 T. 556, 68 S. W. 507.

Interlocutory orders.—The judgment of the court of civil appeals on an appeal from an interlocutory order made by the district court appointing a receiver to take charge of property involved in a divorce suit, is final. Stone v. Stone, 18 C. A. 80, 43 S. W. 567.

Art. 1592. [997] May issue writs of mandamus, etc.—The said courts and the judges thereof shall have power to issue writs of mandamus and all other writs necessary to enforce the jurisdiction of said courts. [Id.]

Writs in aid of jurisdiction, in general.—The court of appeals had no authority to issue extraordinary writs except where it had acquired jurisdiction of the case by appeal or otherwise, and where such writs were necessary to enforce its own jurisdiction. Lopez v. Rodrigues, 3 App. C. C. § 112.

A court of civil appeals has no original jurisdiction to issue a writ of habeas corpus to determine a parent's right to minor children, the writ not being in aid of the court's jurisdiction. Wetz v. Thompson, 26 C. A. 396, 63 S. W. 1050.

Under this article only writs in aid of the jurisdiction of the courts of civil appeals can be issued by said courts. Dunn v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 242, 88 S. W. 533.

Mandamus.—For subject in general, see Title 89.

Where on mandamus to review an adverse order, in a contest under Art. 2098, relator's application and statement on the oral submission of his cause showed that a statement of facts made out by the stenographer was essential, and a statement in the answer that the notes of the trial had been lost and that the stenographer was now unable to make proper statement was uncontroverted, an order to compel the stenographer to prepare a record for appeal would not be granted, since it would be unavailing, and the courts never command the performance of impossible things. Young v. Pearman (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 360.

Mandamus, and not certiorari, is the proper remedy to compel the clerk to perform his ministerial duty of preparing the transcript on appeal. Martin v. Irvin (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1164.

Injunction.—For subject of injunction in general, see Title 69.

An appellate court, having jurisdiction over an appeal perfected during the term of court at which it was rendered, can enforce its jurisdiction by injunction. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 56 S. W. 592.

Where, after an appeal without supersedeas from an order dissolving a temporary injunction restraining an execution sale, the sheriff seized the property and advertised it for sale, the court of civil appeals could issue a temporary injunction restraining the sale pending the appeal. Hubbart v. Willis State Bank, 55 C. A. 504, 119 S. W. 711.

Under this article, courts of civil appeals, having no original jurisdiction, may not issue an injunction unless necessary to enforce the appellate jurisdiction of the court. Houston, B. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hornberger (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 311.

Where the county court denied the right of a railroad to condemn a right of way rendering judgment for defendant and awarding him possession, and an appeal was properly taken, the court of civil appeals properly issued an injunction under this article restraining defendant from enforcing the judgment pending the appeal. Id.

Certiorari to bring up record.—Application without affidavit showing defects in record, and asking for writ to clerk to send up more perfect record, held insufficient. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 631.

Amendment of record should be by certiorari, and not by motion before appellate court. Gulf, B. & K. C. Ry. Co. v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 648.

Appellee held entitled to certiorari in order to bring up record as corrected below after the appeal. Johnston v. Arrendale (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 44.

Certiorari held not to lie to bring up a further record on appeal from the dismissal of garnishment proceedings. Sullivan v. King, 31 C. A. 432, 72 S. W. 207.

A party held not entitled to certiorari to bring up a paper which should have been, but was not, made part of the statement of facts. Cox v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 672.

A motion for a writ of certiorari to bring up certain papers on appeal denied on appellant's failure to show that the omission to include such papers in the transcript was not due to negligence. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pettigrew (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 338.

If a transcript on writ of error is incomplete, the proper remedy is by certiorari to perfect the transcript. Palmer v. Spandenberg, 49 C. A. 331, 108 S. W. 477.

Where the original statement of facts is in the hands of appellant or within his control, certiorari will not lie on his motion for the purpose of having the same sent to the appellate court; and, where appellee or the clerk of the trial court wrongfully withholds the statement of facts from appellant, certiorari does not furnish the proper remedy. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 123.

Certiorari will not be granted to amplify the record in support of an issue raised for the first time on an application for rehearing. Saxton v. Corbett (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 75.

The court of civil appeals will not grant a rehearing or award the writ of certiorari to perfect insufficient record after the final disposition of the case when caused by negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Parker (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 942.

Where a transcript has been filed within the time allowed, and it is afterwards desired to make a substitution in it, a writ of certiorari may be obtained to perfect the record. Casey v. Bell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 478.

Under district court rules 13, 14, 84 (67 S. W. xxi, xxvi), held, that plaintiff's motion to perfect the record on appeal by requiring the transmission of the original answer must be denied. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Juricek (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 474.

Where an appeal has been dismissed for want of jurisdiction because of omissions in the record, certiorari held not to lie to supply the omissions. Collins & Jordan v. Kittrell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 814.

On rehearing where an issue in both courts as to whether a final judgment included a default judgment as to one of several defendants had been argued in both courts, a writ of certiorari will not be awarded to perfect the record to show that a default judgment has been entered nunc pro tunc. Danner v. Walker-Smith Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 295.

Art. 1593. [998] May inquire into facts touching jurisdiction.—The said courts shall have power, upon affidavit or otherwise as by the courts may be thought proper, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the proper exercise of their jurisdiction. [Id.]

Cited, Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Parker, 104 T. 162, 135 S. W. 369.

Determination of jurisdiction—In general.—A question affecting the jurisdiction of the appellate court may be raised at any stage of the proceedings. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall, 98 T. 480, 85 S. W. 786.

The court of civil appeals will of its own motion notice the fact of its want of jurisdiction. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Elliston (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 675.

Facts touching jurisdiction—In general.—The value of the property in controversy not appearing from the record in the case, affidavits were received and considered to ascertain the amount in controversy; and upon the facts stated in the affidavit the court retained the case. Fisher v. Bogarth, 2 App. C. C. § 121.

The court has power to inquire if conclusions of fact and bills of exception were filed in the trial court as shown by the record. Bradford v. Knowles, 11 C. A. 572, 33 S. W. 149.

Where a judgment paid in part pending appeal has been affirmed for the whole amount, the proceeding to enforce the credit must be instituted in the trial court; this article not authorizing proof of the credit by affidavit in the court of civil appeals. Laning v. Iron City Nat. Bank of Llano (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 26.

Where the affidavit in lieu of an appeal bond made before a county judge does not show that it was made in the county of affiant's residence and the fact does not otherwise appear, the party making the affidavit can file in the court of civil appeals his affidavit stating that the first affidavit was made before the judge of the county of his residence and this will give the court jurisdiction. Claiborne v. Railroad Co., 21 C. A. 648, 53 S. W. 837.

This article restricts the power of the courts of civil appeals to inquire into matters of fact not appearing in the record, to such as affect their jurisdiction. Ennis Mercantile Co. v. Wathen, 93 T. 622, 57 S. W. 947.

The appellate court can consider affidavits showing facts affecting its jurisdiction. Smith v. Buffalo Oil Co., 99 T. 77, 87 S. W. 660.

Where the record does not show that attorneys who have an interest in the recovery in an action are parties, the appellate court is precluded under this article from going outside of the record to ascertain the fact. Marschall v. Smith (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 812.

Under this article where a motion to strike a transcript on appeal from the files, on the ground of a typographical error in the copy of the judgment, has attached to it a correct copy of the judgment, duly certified, the court will consider the record as amended to conform to the true copy, and not strike out the transcript. Tucker Produce Co. v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1001.

Where defendant's attorneys opposed defendant's motion to dismiss his appeal, made on the ground that the parties had settled the controversy, with a sworn answer alleging that the attorneys had acquired a two-thirds interest in the cause of action asserted in defendant's counter claim, and that the assignment was filed with the papers in the case, the court of civil appeals, under its inherent power, as well as under this article, should have ascertained the facts on the issue raised by the attorney's answer before dismissing the appeal. Seiter v. Marschall (Sup.) 147 S. W. 226.

Where the facts supporting a motion to dismiss an appeal affected the jurisidction of the appellate court and could not have been put in issue in the trial court, they were properly presented by affidavits. Dixon v. Lynn (Sup.) 154 S. W. 656.

On motion to vacate a judgment of a court of civil appeals on the ground that it is void by reason of facts not apparent of record, the court may under this article determine such matters upon affidavit or otherwise. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 317.

—— Jurisdiction of lower court.—The court of civil appeals will not hear evidence outside the record to show want of jurisdiction in the lower court. Poole v. Mueller (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 951, citing Harris v. Hopson, 5 Tex. 529, and Dial v. Rector, 12 Tex. 99. Vide Brown v. Torrey, 22 Tex. 54; Johnson v. Robeson, 27 Tex. 526; Chrisman v. Graham, 51 Tex. 454.

This article does not authorize a resort to affidavits to determine the jurisdiction of the lower court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hood (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 982.

—— Matters relating to statement of facts.—Where a statement of facts is not filed in proper time, it will be stricken, though there are affidavits containing sufficient reasons for the failure to file. Keller v. Kettner (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 907.

The appellate court cannot consider affidavits in aid of the statement of facts, the question not being one relating to the jurisdiction of the court. Bath v. H. & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 994.

The appellate court will not accept an affidavit attempting to cure defect in record in regard to statement of facts. Defect should be cured in court below. The appellate court is confined to record as made by trial court, except as to matters of fact necessary to the proper exercise of its jurisdiction. Walker & Sons v. Allen, 42 C. A. 630, 95 S. W. 586.

The failure of the judge to make up and file a statement of facts in time required by law is not a jurisdictional question, where this article would apply and give the court of civil appeals power to review the matter as presented in the record. Applebaum v. Bass (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 175.

This article cannot be made applicable to a motion and affidavit setting up that the trial judge failed to make up and file statement of facts, and the court intimates that an assignment based on the facts set up cannot be considered. Rush v. Thompson & Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 546.

This article does not authorize the court to hear and determine the sufficiency of an excuse for failure to file a statement of facts in the trial court within the prescribed time, since its jurisdiction is not dependent on the filing of a statement of facts. National Bank of Commerce v. Lone Star Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 663.

Facts apparent of record.—A recital in the order overruling a motion for a new trial, copied in the record, of the giving of notice of appeal cannot be contradicted by affidavits of the trial judge, deputy county clerk, and appellee's counsel; this article only referring to matters of fact not appearing in the record. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 633.

Art. 1594. [999] May punish for contempt.—The said courts shall have power to punish any person for a contempt of said court, according to the principles and usages of law in like cases, not to exceed one thousand dollars fine or imprisonment not exceeding twenty days. [Id.]

Contempt in general.—See notes under Art. 1708.

Art. 1595. [1000] May mandamus district courts.—The said courts, or any judge thereof, in vacation, may issue the writ of mandamus to compel a judge of the district court to proceed to trial and judgment in a cause, agreeably to the principles and usages of law, returnable on or before the first day of the next term or during the session of the same, or before any judge of the said court, as the nature of the case may require. [Id.]

For further provisions as to jurisdiction of courts of civil appeals, see Chapter 20, Title 37.

Extent of power conferred.—Mandamus will not lie to compel a county judge to proceed to trial and judgment. Fannin County v. Hightower, 9 C. A. 293, 29 S. W. 187.

The court of civil appeals can issue writ of mandamus compelling the judge of the district court to retry a cause in which a new trial has been granted. Levy v. Gill (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 84.

A court of civil appeals has power only to issue writs of mandamus and such other writs as may be necessary to enforce the jurisdiction of the court except that the court or any judge thereof in vacation may issue the writ of mandamus to compel a judge of the district court to proceed to trial and judgment in a cause. Wetz v. Thompson, 26 C. A. 389, 63 S. W. 1051.

The power of the court of civil appeals to issue mandamus depends on the question whether or not the judge of the district court has refused to proceed with the trial of the cause. It can not control the discretion of the court. Halliburton v. Marlin, 28 C. A. 127, 66 S. W. 677.

The only power conferred by this article is the power to compel a district judge to proceed to trial and judgment in a cause when he improperly refuses. And when it appears that the case is still pending in the district court on a motion for new trial, and it is not shown that a ruling has ever been requested on it; and from aught that appears the district court is ready and willing to act upon it at any time, mandamus to compel the judge to proceed will be refused. The court of civil appeals cannot by mandamus in any way control the discretion of a district court in rendering judgment. Dunn v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 242, 88 S. W. 533.

This article confers original jurisdiction to issue such writ, not affected by the cause, in which the writ is applied, not being appealable to the court of civil appeals. Anderson v. Ashe (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1044.

CHAPTER FOUR

CLERKS OF THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Art.
1596. Clerk; appointment, qualification and bond.
1597. Temporary appointment to fill vacancy.
1598. Term of office and how removed.
1599. Seal of court.
1600. Duties as to records, transcripts, dockets, etc.
1601. To record judgments, etc.; certify decisions to lower court.
1602. Deputy clerks.
1603. Shall be librarian, except, etc.
1604. Library regulations.
1605. Semi-annual report of costs collected.

Article 1596. [1001] The clerk, his appointment, qualification and bond.—There shall be appointed for each of the courts of civil appeals one clerk, who shall reside at the place of holding court, which appointment shall be made by the court, or the judges thereof, and shall be entered of record in the proceedings of the court; and each person so appointed shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath prescribed by the constitution before some officer authorized to administer oaths generally, and shall enter into a bond, with two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court, or any judge thereof, payable to the governor and his successors in office, in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and that he will correctly record the judgments, decrees, decisions and orders of said courts, and deliver over to his successor in office all records, minutes, books and papers and whatever belongs to his said office of clerk; which bond and oath shall, without delay, be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and shall not be void on the first recovery, but may be put in suit and prosecuted by any party injured, until the amount thereof is recovered. [Id.]

Art. 1597. [1002] Temporary appointment to fill vacancy, how and when made.—If, in vacation, the office of clerk may become vacant, the appointment shall be made by the chief justice and the associates of said courts, or by any one of said associates and chief justice; and the person so appointed shall give bond and take the oath as prescribed in the preceding article, the bond to be approved by any judge of the court; which bond and oath shall be deposited in the same manner as though the appointment had been made in term time, and may be prosecuted and put in suit in like manner; copies of said bond, certified under the hand of the secretary of state and the seal of state, shall be received in evidence in any court in the state, in the same manner as the original would be were it presented in court; and the said appointment shall continue until the next regular term of the said court, and until a regular appointment shall be made. [Id.]

Art. 1598. [1003] Term of office, and how removed.—The clerk of each of said courts shall hold his office for a term of two years from his appointment, but may be removed therefrom for neglect of duty or misconduct in office, by the courts of civil appeals, on motion of which the clerk against whom complaint is made shall have ten days' previous notice, specifying the particular charges of negligence or misconduct in office preferred; and in every such case the court shall determine both the law and the facts; and, whenever the necessity occurs, the court may appoint a clerk pro tempore. [Id.]

Art. 1599. [1004] Seal of court.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of each court of civil appeals to procure a seal for the use of the court, which shall have a star of five points, with the words: "Court of Civil Appeals of the State of Texas," engraved thereon. [Id.]

Art. 1600. [1005] Duties as to records, transcripts, dockets, etc.—The clerks of said courts shall file and carefully preserve the transcripts of all records certified to said court, and all papers relative thereto, and shall docket all causes in the order in which they are filed. [Id.]

Art. 1601. [1006] To record judgments, etc., and to certify decisions to lower court.—The said clerk shall faithfully record the proceedings and decisions of said courts, and certify their judgments to the court from which the causes were brought. [Id.]

Art. 1602. [1007] Deputy clerks, appointment of, and fees.—The clerk of each court may appoint deputies, who, in the name of said clerk, may discharge all the duties required by law of said clerk, and said deputies may be required to give bonds, with sureties, to said clerk, for the faithful discharge of their duties; which deputies shall be paid out of the fees collected by the clerk, not to exceed twelve hundred dollars per annum to each deputy. [Id.]

Art. 1603. [1008] Shall be librarian, except, etc.—The clerk of each of said courts shall be librarian in charge of the libraries of said court, except the library at Austin, which shall be under the control of the supreme court. [Id.]

Art. 1604. [1009] Library regulations.—It shall be the duty of such librarian to take charge of, and keep together in good order and make catalogues of, the books of such library, which shall be open to the public use, under such rules as may be prescribed by the courts for the safe keeping thereof; provided, the books shall not be removed from the library room, except by the judges of the courts. [Id.]

Art. 1605. [1010] Semi-annual report of costs collected.—The clerks of each of the courts of civil appeals shall, within ten days after the first day of January and July, make a report under oath to said courts showing the amount of costs collected by him during the preceding six months, and also the cases in which the same was collected, and the disposition made of such cause. Such report shall be filed and recorded in the minutes of the court. [Id.]

CHAPTER FIVE

Article 1606. [1012] Court stenographer and salary.—Each court of civil appeals shall be authorized to appoint one stenographer, who shall be a typewriter, who shall discharge such duties as may be required by the court, shall be sworn to keep secret all matters which may come to his knowledge as such stenographer and typewriter, and who shall receive a salary of nine hundred dollars per annum, and shall give bond with two or more sureties in the sum of two thousand dollars, to be approved by the presiding judge of said court, payable to the state of Texas, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as such stenographer and typewriter. [Acts 1899, p. 115. Acts 1895, p. 79. Acts 1893, p. 165. Acts 1905, p. 19.]

Salary.—The comptroller is not authorized to draw his warrant to pay the salary of a court stenographer, when the legislature had made no appropriation to pay it. Pickle v. Finley, 91 T. 484, 44 S. W. 480.

CHAPTER SIX

PROCEEDINGS IN CASES IN THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Art.
1607. Cases, how brought before the courts for trial.
1608. Transcript filed, when.
1609. New appeal bond allowed, when.
1610. Certificate of affirmance, proceedings.
1611. Transcript filed, and cause heard after affirmance on certificate, when.
1612. Assignment of error, requisite of.
1613. Docket of causes and disposition of same.
1614. Appearance by brief, etc.
1615. Notices to attorneys, how given.

Article 1607. [1014] Case, how brought before the court for trial.—In all cases of appeal or writ of error to the courts of civil appeals, the trial shall be on a statement of facts or agreed statement of the pleadings and proof as agreed upon by the parties or their attorneys, or the conclusions of law and fact, as the case may be, certified to by the judge of the court below; or should the parties fail to agree, then the judge of the court below shall certify the facts; or on a bill of exceptions to the opinion of the judge; or on a special verdict; or on an error in law, either assigned or apparent on the face of the record; and, in the absence of all these, the case shall be dismissed with costs alone, or with costs and damages, at the discretion of the court. And the court shall admit, as part of the record to be examined by them in the trial of a cause, every bill of exceptions not signed by the judge trying the cause below, upon its appearing to the satisfaction of the court that the facts are fairly stated therein; that said bill was prepared in accordance with the law governing the preparation of such bills, and that the judge trying the cause refused to sign the same; and the truth of any such bill of exceptions shall be determined by the court on the copies of the affidavits required by law to be made in such case, such copies to be contained in, and to form a part of the record transmitted to the court of civil appeals. [Id.]

Cited, Kearse v. State (Cr. App.) 151 S. W. 827.

Necessity of statement of facts or bill of exceptions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 19.

Errors that can be reviewed—In general.—It is the duty of the appellate tribunal in proper cases to pass on the jurisdiction of the trial court, whether or not the question is raised by the parties. Hamm v. Hutchins (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 873.

An issue not raised by the pleadings nor submitted to the jury below in an action to recover land held not reviewable on appeal. Schneider v. Sellers, 25 C. A. 226, 61 S. W. 541.

It is the purpose of this article to restrict the exercise of appellate jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals in reviewing cases on appeal or writ of error to the matters and subjects named in the article. Applebaum v. Bass (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 174.

The failure of the trial judge to make up and file a statement of facts in time required by law cannot be assigned as error so as to be considered by appellate court because it is not one of the subjects named in this article. Id.

The action of a court of civil appeals on appeal or writ of error is confined to such matters as are made to appear of record by one of the methods stated in this article, and the court cannot consider a motion with accompanying affidavit setting up the failure of the trial judge to make up and file statement of facts in time. Rush v. Thompson & Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 546.

—— Errors apparent on face of record.—See, also, notes under Art. 1612.

A judgment rendered on improper pleadings is "error in law apparent on the face of the record," which the court on appeal should consider without an assignment of error, under this article. Holloway Seed Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 92 T. 187, 47 S. W. 95.

The court of civil appeals can consider a matter which involves an error of record, whether it is presented by assignment of error or not. The supreme court can not do this, but is confined to the grounds set up in the application for writ of error. Link v. City of Houston, 94 T. 378, 60 S. W. 665.

The courts of civil appeals may reverse a judgment for "error in law" either assigned or apparent upon the face of the record. Scalfi & Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 754.

The error in allowing a broker commissions on the sale of land held apparent on the face of the record and reviewable, though raised for the first time on appeal. Hahl v. Kellogg (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 389.

There is some doubt as to what is meant by the words "apparent on the face of the record." The supreme court has said: "We incline to think it is intended to signify a prominent error, either fundamental in character, or one determining a question upon which the very right of the case depends." Adams v. Faircloth (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 507.

This article means, by "apparent on the face of the record," fundamental error which can be readily seen to go to the foundation of the action without looking into the record and considering the evidence, etc., to determine whether there is error; "apparent" meaning clear or manifest to the understanding, plain, evident, obvious. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533, 124 S. W. 85.

In an action against a city to recover a balance due on a street paving contract an alleged error, in that, on the undisputed evidence, plaintiff could not recover on a ground, the determination of which would require an examination of almost the entire record, including the pleadings and evidence contained in a lengthy statement of facts, was not an "error apparent on the face of the record," within this article. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 984.

Under this article the error in rendering judgment upon an oral contract of insurance, where the evidence showed that it was contemplated by both the insurer and the insured that the contract should be evidenced by a written policy to be thereafter issued, and which was in fact issued, can be considered, regardless of assignments, it being fundamental and apparent on the face of the record. Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 680.

Error in sustaining a general demurrer to a petition can be reviewed on appeal without any bill of exceptions or assignment of error, where the judgment recites the ruling, the exception thereto, and the notice of appeal. Harbinson v. Cottle County (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 719.

Under this article and Art. 1612, requiring that errors at law not "apparent on the face of the record" be presented by timely assignments of error, the phrase quoted refers to such manifest error as when removed destroys the foundation of the judgment. Oar v. Davis (Sup.) 151 S. W. 794.

Art. 1608. [1015] Transcript filed, when.—In any appeal or writ of error as provided for in this chapter, the appellant or plaintiff in error shall file the transcript with the clerk of the courts of civil appeals within ninety days from the performance of the appeal or service of the writ of error; provided, that, for good cause, the court may permit the transcript to be thereafter filed upon such terms as it may prescribe.

Cited, Pitts v. Kane (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 336.

Filing transcript in general.—See, also, Art. 2108 et seq.

The evidence showing no sufficient excuse for not filing the transcript for appeal in time, it will not be allowed to be filed as an appeal. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 32 C. A. 427, 72 S. W. 620.

Filing of transcript on appeal held not jurisdictional, and a matter which the appellee might waive. City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 709; Same v. Lakeside Rice Mill Co. (Civ. App.) Id. 712.

Under this article and Art. 2108, and district and county court rule 100 (142 S. W. xxiv), it is simply the duty of the county clerk to prepare and deliver the transcript to the appellant, whose duty it is to file the same in the court of civil appeals, and mandamus will not lie to compel the clerk to transmit the transcript. In re Lawrence's Estate (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 701.

As against motion on appeal to affirm on certificate, on the ground that no transcript was filed on the appeal, one of the defendants having appealed, and another having petitioned for writ of error, the appeal bond, which under district and county court rule No. 96 (142 S. W. xxiv), is an application for transcript, having been filed before the writ of error, the certificate of the clerk showing the transcript contains all the proceedings on the trial, and it being indorsed as applied for and delivered to S. & W., who are attorneys for appellant, the transcript will be considered as on the appeal, though the certificate shows it contains the proceedings on writ of error, and it has an indorsement of having been applied for by M., who is the attorney in the writ of error proceedings. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

Where, after the creation of the court of civil appeals for the seventh district, the transcript in a cause which originated within its jurisdiction was filed in the court of the second district, the matter must be considered as if no transcript had been filed. Heflin v. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico (Sup.) 155 S. W. 188.

Time for filing—Transcript.—Rule 7, providing that the transcript in appeals from judgments in quo warranto shall be filed in the court of civil appeals within twenty days after appeal is perfected, is not in conflict with this article. White v. Rowlett, 12 C. A. 378, 34 S. W. 151.

Where citation was defective, held that plaintiff in error was not in default in filing transcript so as to authorize affirmance on certificate. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 679.

The time for filing a transcript is fixed by law and the court cannot abridge this time. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 842.

If the clerk receives the transcript too late (after 90 days) it is his duty without filing it, to keep it in his office subject to the order of the person sending it or the disposition of the court. Dew v. Weekes (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 706.

Transcript on appeal from an order appointing a receiver held filed in due time. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

The transcript on writ of error need not be filed in the court of civil appeals until after service of the writ. Garney v. Menefee, 53 C. A. 490, 118 S. W. 1083.

Appellant need not file a transcript in the appellate court until the appeal is perfected by service of citation in error, or by waiver thereof, after which time he has 90 days to file such transcript. Morris v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 367.

Proceedings by the supreme court on transcript filed by defendant in error under the rules, and on motion by him to affirm the judgment, cannot be had till lapse of the 90 days after the perfecting of the writ of error; that is, 90 days after the filing of the petition and bond in the district court, given plaintiff in error by this article, in which to file the transcript. Simmang v. Smith (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 494.

A transcript upon writ of error cannot be filed after the filing of a motion to affirm on certificate; the appeal having been perfected upon the filing of an appeal bond. Pitts v. Kane (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 336.

—— Statement of facts.—See, also, Art. 2073 et seq.

Under this article and Art. 2074 authority is conferred upon court of civil appeals for good cause to extend the prescribed time of filing either the record or statement of facts. Applebaum v. Bass (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 173.

If under Acts 29th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39 (Art. 2073), and this article, the court of civil appeals has any power to extend the time within which a statement of facts may be filed in that court, it has no such power to extend the time within which it may be filed in the trial court nor to permit its filing in the appellate court where it has not been filed in the trial court. State v. Lincoln (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1195.

Where a transcript of the record was originally filed in another court of civil appeals June 12, 1911, and after transfer was filed here August 3, 1911, and the statement of facts and duplicate received by the clerk of this court April 22, 1912, and was not filed until after submission of the case and opinion rendered, it was tendered too late, notwithstanding a stipulation that it might be filed in the appellate court at any time before final submission of the case. Herbert & Wight v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 346.

This article does not authorize the court of civil appeals to consider whether appellant's failure to file a statement of facts in the trial court within the prescribed time was excusable, unless the question was ruled on by the court below. National Bank of Commerce v. Lone Star Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 663.

Under this article and article 2073, and in view of article 2070, requiring the statement of facts to accompany the transcript as a part of the record, the statement of facts, being a part of the record whether in the transcript or not, may be filed with the transcript after the expiration of the 90-day period when the failure to file is excusable. Heflin v. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico (Sup.) 155 S. W. 188.

Excuse for failure to file in time.—Failure to file the transcript within the time prescribed by law will not be excused unless it is clearly shown that such failure did not result from the negligence of the appellant. Williams v. Walker (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 556.

A delay of more than seven months in filing the transcript on account of engrossing business, is not sufficient excuse for not filing transcript sooner, though the opposing counsel does not object to such filing. Christensen v. Anderson, 24 C. A. 345, 58 S. W. 963.

This article does not authorize the filing of the transcript a month and a half after appellant got it, on a showing merely that would have been sufficient had he filed it when he got it, which was after the expiration of the 90 days. Faux v. Lamaire (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 439.

On a motion to file a transcript, it appeared that the appellant had until October 17, 1910, to file it, and, although it could have been filed before that date, it was held until October 13th, when the appellant sought to have inserted in it a purported bill of exceptions in lieu of the original, which had been lost, and, on the refusal of the clerk to file it, had filed a motion to substitute, and delayed action on the motion until after the time for filing had expired. Held, that the appellant failed to show good cause for his delay in filing his transcript, and hence the motion would be denied. Casey v. Bell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 478.

Agreement of parties, extending time for filing transcript, held to be good cause shown why a transcript was not filed within the statutory period, and to have the effect intended by the parties. Herbert & Wight v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 346.

Under court of civil appeals rules 55, 56, and 60 (142 S. W. xv, xvi), authorizing the withdrawal of the transcript for briefing, a retention of a transcript for that purpose was not sufficient excuse for failure to file the same within the time required. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stanford (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1064.

Where it appeared that the transcript was in the hands of one of appellant's attorneys for more than two months before it reached the clerk of the court of civil appeals, and, though he filed an affidavit to the effect that the delay subsequent to February 9, 1912, resulted from the serious illness of his wife, there was nothing to excuse the delay of a month and a half preceding that date, during which the transcript might have been filed, held, that the facts did not justify an order permitting the filing of the transcript after time. Id.

—— Agreement of parties.—A delay of seven months in filing transcript, under agreement between counsel that it should be filed after service of appellant's brief on appellee, held not sufficient excuse for not filing transcript within 90 days, as required by this article. Christensen v. Anderson, 24 C. A. 345, 58 S. W. 962.

By agreement of the appellee the transcript may be filed after the 90 days have expired, provided that the time is not so long as to interfere with the orderly business of the court. Smalley v. Paine, 102 T. 304, 116 S. W. 39.

An appellant held to have unreasonably delayed filing the transcript under an agreement entitling him to a reasonable time after expiration of the 90 days prescribed by statute. Stokes v. Wilmeth, 56 C. A. 497, 120 S. W. 948.

An agreement between the parties, extending the time of filing the transcript beyond the 90 days allowed by statute, is, in effect, good cause shown why the transcript was not filed within the statutory period, and will be given the effect intended by the parties. Herbert & Wight v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 346.

Waiver of objection.—Laws 1907, c. 107, § 2, as amended by Gen. Laws 1909, c. 34, § 2, provides that any party in a suit wherein a temporary injunction may be granted, refused, or dissolved may appeal from the order, provided that the transcript in such case shall be filed with the clerk of the court of civil appeals not later than 15 days after entry of such order. Held that, though ordinarily the time of filing transcripts was not jurisdictional as shown by this article, in view of the fact that no appeal was theretofore allowed from such orders and from the nature of the order itself the time of filing transcripts was jurisdictional, and the failure to file could not be waived by the parties so as to give the appellate court jurisdiction. C. B. Livestock Co. v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 854.

A motion to dismiss on the ground of lateness in filing transcript held waived. City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co., 144 S. W. 709; Same v. Lakeside Rice Mill Co. (Civ. App.) Id. 712.

Withdrawal of transcript.—After a case has been finally determined in the supreme court or court of civil appeals the transcript cannot be withdrawn from the clerk's office even with the consent of all parties connected with the proceeding. Hart v. West, 92 T. 416, 49 S. W. 361.

Art. 1609. [1025] New appeal bond allowed, when.—When there is a defect of substance or form in any appeal or writ of error bond, on motion to dismiss the same for such defect, the court may allow the same to be amended by filing in the said courts of civil appeals a new bond, on such terms as the court may prescribe. [Id.]

See Art. 2104, amendment of appeal bonds and recognizances generally.

Cited, Keel & Son v. Gribble-Carter Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 235.

Defects in bond in general.—See, also, Art. 2097 et seq.

Affidavits were received to prove that an appeal bond was not filed within the time prescribed by law, but was fraudulently antedated (Harris v. Hopson, 5 T. 529); that at the time of the execution of the bond the obligee was dead (Dial v. Rector, 12 T. 99; Johnson v. Robeson, 27 T. 526); to show that the amount of the penalty and the condition in the appeal bond had been changed after it was filed in the court below, the bond at the date of its filing being, in point of fact, blank, and the case was dismissed for want of a bond. Hart v. Mills, 31 T. 304.

Where judgment was against "M., sheriff," and his liability, if any, was that of trespasser, held, that a writ of error would not be dismissed because the bond on error was made by M. individually. Morris v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 667.

Since the passage of this law a defective bond is sufficient to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction over the appeal, and where it has affirmed the judgment on certificate for failure to file the transcript, it should not set aside the judgment and dismiss the appeal on appellant's motion because of a defective bond. Hugo v. Seffel, 92 T. 414, 49 S. W. 369.

An appeal will be reinstated, which had been dismissed for an inadequate appeal bond, where the appellant shows that the bond is in double the amount of the judgment, interest, and costs, by showing that a large part of the costs certified have been paid. Lange v. Fritze (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 583.

The jurisdiction of the appellate court can be made to attach by an appeal or writ of error bond defective in substantial particulars. Williams v. Wiley, 96 T. 148, 71 S. W. 13.

An appeal held dismissable for failure of appellant to file a proper bond. Wilkes v. W. O. Brown & Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 844.

Failure of a plaintiff in error to sign the writ of error bond will not warrant dismissal of the writ. Palmer v. Spandenberg, 49 C. A. 331, 108 S. W. 477.

The court of civil appeals cannot determine the solvency of a surety upon an appeal bond on motion to dismiss. Oliver v. Lone Star Cotton Jammers' & Longshoremen's Ass'n (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 508.

Under this article and article 2104, the court of civil appeals alone has jurisdiction to determine whether appellant procured the filing and approval of his appeal bond on his agreement to procure an additional surety, which he failed to do, and the clerk of the trial court may not refuse to make out a transcript of the case on the ground that appellant failed to procure such surety. Dillard v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 152.

Filing new bond—In general.—See, also, Art. 2104.

New appeal bond may be filed in the appellate court to cure defect in the amount or to permit the addition of a surety. Shelton v. Wade, 4 T. 148, 51 Am. Dec. 722; Hollis v. Border, 10 T. 277; Scranton v. Bell, 35 T. 413; Long v. Smith, 39 T. 160; King v. Hopkins, 42 T. 48.

This article applies to cases required to be transferred from the supreme court to the courts of civil appeals, equally as to cases in which appeals or writs of error might be directly brought before those courts after their organization. National Bank v. National Bank, 85 T. 560, 22 S. W. 579.

Where by the amended bond the rights of parties to whom the original bond was not made payable may be adversely affected, such parties should have notice of such amendment. Id.

When no bond has been filed the jurisdiction of the court of appeals has not attached, and an amendment cannot be made. Converse v. Trapp (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 415.

After the judgment reversing a case in which the appeal bond was defective, on motion for a rehearing the appellant was allowed to file a bond and the former judgment was re-entered. Giddings v. Odom Lucket Land & Live-Stock Co. (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 383.

A new bond must be filed in the court of civil appeals. A copy of the original appeal bond certified to by the district clerk is not sufficient. Evans v. Ashburn (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 998, 999.

This statute seems to allow the curing of defects of every character in appeal or writ of error bonds, and a new bond may be filed to supply the omission of the penalty in the first as well as any other defect. Williams v. Wiley, 96 T. 148, 71 S. W. 13, 14.

When the clerk has fixed the probable amount of the costs, and a bond in double this sum has been given, which is insufficient, the court of civil appeals cannot allow a new bond to be given. A new bond can only be given when the first one is found to contain a defect, which cannot be said of one which is in full compliance with the law. Horstman v. Little, 98 T. 332, 83 S. W. 680.

A defective appeal bond in the court of civil appeals may be amended by filing a new bond on such terms as the court may prescribe. Wandelohr v. Grayson Co. Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 183.

Where, in trespass to try title, an appeal bond is void because not running to warrantors cited in the case, held that the appellate court would permit a new bond to be filed, instead of dismissing the appeal. Appel v. Childress, 53 C. A. 607, 116 S. W. 129.

Where parties fail to execute a bond within the time required by Art. 2084, they are not entitled to the benefits of the statute authorizing the court of civil appeals to permit a party to file a new bond in lieu of a defective one. Estes v. Estes, 54 C. A. 561, 118 S. W. 174.

Under this article a court of civil appeals has power to permit the filing of a new appeal bond whether the defects in the bond first filed were defects of form or substance; and, when the court has exercised this power, a motion to dismiss on account of such defects will be overruled. Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1015.

—— Time for filing.—See, also, Art. 2097.

Amendment will not be allowed after the time of appeal has expired. First Nat. Bank v. Preston Nat. Bank, 22 S. W. 1048, 24 S. W. 668, 3 C. A. 545.

The right to amend the bond should be promptly availed of, so as not to produce unreasonable delay. Cowperthwaite v. Fulton (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 588.

—— Affidavit in lieu of bond.—The statute allowing new appeal bonds to be filed is not applicable to affidavits in lieu of bond. Washington v. Haverty Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 832.

Waiver of defects.—See, also, notes under Art. 2097.

A judgment on appeal should not be set aside to entertain motion to dismiss an appeal, where, if it had been made before judgment, it could have been defeated by perfecting the record. Gilbough v. Stahl Bldg. Co., 91 T. 621, 45 S. W. 385.

The defect in an appeal bond payable in the alternative is waived by the obligee's failure to move to dismiss the appeal for six months and his agreement to continue the case until another term. Engle v. Rowan (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 757.

Failure to urge a waiver of a defect in an appeal bond to the county court, in such court, in opposition to the motion to dismiss, is not fatal on appeal to a higher court, where the facts constituting the waiver are of record. Id.

Art. 1610. [1016] Certificate of affirmance, and proceedings thereon.—In case the appellant or plaintiff in error shall fail to file a transcript of the record, as directed in this chapter, then it shall be lawful for the appellee or defendant in error to file with the clerk of said court a certificate of the clerk of the district or county court in which any such appeal or writ of error may have been taken, attested by the seal of his court, stating the time when such appeal was perfected or such citation was served; whereupon, it shall be the duty of the courts of civil appeals to affirm the judgment of the court below, unless good cause can be shown why such transcript was not filed by the appellant or plaintiff in error. If a copy of the bond accompanies such certificate of the clerk of the district or county court, the judgment shall, in like manner, be affirmed against the sureties on such bond. [Id.]

Cited, Chambers v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 959.

Jurisdiction to affirm on certificate.—This and article 1611 seem to limit the power of the courts of civil appeals to affirm on certificate only to cases when the record on appeal has not been filed in the court of civil appeals within the time required by statute. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 590.

In order to confer jurisdiction on the court of civil appeals to affirm on certificate, it is necessary that the motion to affirm be accompanied by a transcript containing a copy of the judgment and appeal bond. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Anderson, 36 C. A. 615, 83 S. W. 207.

Writ of error held not served on defendant in error, necessary, under this article, to authorize affirmance of the judgment on certificate. McCloskey v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 450.

Record on motion to affirm on certificate held to affirmatively show that court of civil appeals had no jurisdiction. McCord-Collins Co. v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 524.

Where a motion to affirm on certificate is not accompanied by a copy of the judgment, held, it cannot be granted. Sloan v. McMillin (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 587.

The transcript not showing jurisdiction of the trial court, whose judgment was for a sum below its original jurisdiction, held, the judgment could not be affirmed, even on certificate. Id.

A court of civil appeals not having jurisdiction of an appeal, because the law, placing in its district the county in which the judgment was rendered, was not in force when the appeal was perfected, it has not jurisdiction to entertain a proceeding to affirm on certificate as provided by this article. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 145.

Appeal held not perfected until appellee, who was not served with citation on appeal, had appeared and filed a waiver in the cause; and hence that the court, on motion to affirm on certificate previously made, had no jurisdiction. Morris v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 367.

Where an appeal from a judgment against the sureties on a bail bond was perfected by giving of notice of appeal and a bond, as provided by this article, but the transcript was not filed in the appellate court within 90 days after perfecting of the appeal as required by article 1608, the court could on a certificate of affirmance filed by the state affirm the judgment. Savage v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 584.

The court not having jurisdiction of an appeal or writ of error has none to affirm on certificate. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

Under this article the court of civil appeals has jurisdiction to affirm a judgment on appellee's certificate of entry by the trial court of a final judgment for a given sum, an appeal from the judgment, and a failure to file the transcript in the court of civil appeals. Dandridge v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 166.

Affirmance on certificate in general.—Motion will not be sustained when the certificate fails to show service of the citation on defendant in error. Scarborough v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 687.

A judgment will not be affirmed on certificate on account of error in issuing a citation in error before the filing of the bond. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 679.

Request to affirm on certificate for failure to record in time denied. Anderson v. Waco State Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 552.

Motion to affirm on certificate is not a case upon the dockets such as the supreme court is authorized to transfer from one court of civil appeals to another. Taber v. Chapman, 92 T. 263, 47 S. W. 710.

An appellant cannot abandon his appeal and defeat appellee's right to an affirmance on certificate. Erwin v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 102.

A judgment of affirmance on certificate held erroneous in including two unnecessary parties to the appeal bond. Wandelohr v. Rainey, 100 T. 471, 100 S. W. 1155; Same v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, Id.

A properly certified copy of the judgment must accompany a motion to affirm on certificate. Thorn v. Lanier, 57 C. A. 67, 121 S. W. 715.

To entitle appellee to an affirmance for failure of appellant to prepare the cause for submission, he must prepare the case for submission in accordance with court rule 42 (67 S. W. xvii). Suderman-Dolson Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 401.

Under this article, where the transcript was filed in time, appellee was not entitled to an affirmance on certificate, though he secured the dismissal of the appeal for want of prosecution, because appellant's briefs were filed later than they should have been under an agreement, and too late to give appellee a fair opportunity to brief the case. Santleben v. Richter (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 926.

Where an appeal from a judgment against the sureties on a bail bond was perfected by giving of notice of appeal and a bond, as provided by Art. 2084, but the transcript was not filed in the appellate court within 90 days after perfecting of the appeal as required by Art. 1608, the court could on a certificate of affirmance filed by the state affirm the judgment. Savage v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 584.

Where motion to affirm on certificate for absence of a transcript is overruled, but the court of its own motion strikes out the transcript for violations thereby of its rules, it will give leave to file a corrected transcript. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

Time for filing certificate.—The appellee or defendant in error must file his certificate at the term of the court to which the appeal or writ of error is returnable. Laughlin v. Dabney, 24 S. W. 259, 86 T. 120; Pickett v. Mead (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 654.

Certificate for affirmance of judgment dismissed, being filed within the time allowed plaintiff in error to file transcript. Moore v. Hitchler, 16 C. A. 44, 40 S. W. 197.

Case held not to authorize affirmance on certificate filed after the term at which the transcript should have been filed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 32 C. A. 427, 72 S. W. 620.

Under this article the certificate must be filed at the term of the appellate court to which the appeal or writ of error is returnable. Thorn v. Lanier, 57 C. A. 67, 121 S. W. 715.

A motion to affirm on certificate under this article must be made at the term to which the appeal is made returnable. Holland v. Brown & McFarland (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1195.

Appellee's right to affirm upon certificate an appeal afterward abandoned by appellant upon suing out a writ of error is only available if the motion to affirm is filed before the termination of the term of the court of civil appeals to which the appeal is returnable. Chambers v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 959.

In order to have a judgment affirmed on certificate, appellee must file his certificate at the term of court to which the appeal is returnable, and a motion to affirm will be denied, where the certificate was filed at a subsequent term. First Nat. Bank v. Hix (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 535.

Amendment of certificate.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1608 and 1611.

Where a certificate of the clerk of the trial court accompanying a motion to affirm was defective, it was proper for the court to permit the same to be amended. Wandelohr v. Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 180.

An appellee, whose motion to affirm on certificate was refused for deficiencies in the certificate, held not entitled, on motion for rehearing, to file amendments remedying the defect. Sloan v. McMillin (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 624.

Effect of subsequent writ of error.—The appellant cannot defeat the right to an affirmance by suing out a writ of error after he has failed to prosecute his appeal. Davidson v. Ikard, 23 S. W. 379, 86 T. 67. Citing Perez v. Garza, 52 T. 571; Thompson v. Anderson, 82 T. 238, 18 S. W. 153; Filhol v. Leon & H. Blum Land Co., 19 C. A. 688, 49 S. W. 669.

Effect of pendency of a second proceeding in error, where an appeal perfected on supersedeas bond has been abandoned, determined on application of defendant in error for affirmance on certificate. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Clancey, 91 T. 467, 44 S. W. 482.

A perfected appeal cannot be abandoned, and writ of error sued out after lapse of time for filing transcript, so as to prevent affirmance on certificate. Blackman v. Harry (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 610.

Where appellant fails to file transcript in time, appellee is entitled, under this article, to affirmance on certificate, notwithstanding appellant has brought error. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Ray, 19 C. A. 416, 47 S. W. 477.

The above article does not apply where appellant abandons his appeal and files his transcript under a writ of error within ninety days. In such a case the appellee is not entitled to have his judgment affirmed on certificate. Harrington v. Blankenship (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 585.

A party can abandon his appeal with intention to sue out writ of error but he does so subject to the right of appellee to have the judgment affirmed on certificate. City of San Antonio v. Smith, 27 C. A. 327, 65 S. W. 41.

Where the court of civil appeals continues motion to affirm on certificate to enable appellant to perfect that record, but he instead prosecutes a writ of error, the motion to affirm will prevail. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 250.

Where there is a failure to file the transcript in the appellate court within the time (90 days) allowed by law, the appellee is entitled to an affirmance of the judgment on certificate, even though the case had been taken to the appellate court on writ of error. Welch v. Weiss, 99 T. 356, 90 S. W. 162; Wandelohr v. Grayson Co. Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 181.

The right to sue out a writ of error, after abandoning an appeal, is subject to appellee's right to an affirmance upon certificate of the original appeal upon motion, though the transcript of the writ of error proceedings be filed before the filing of the motion to affirm the appeal. Chambers v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 959.

Excuse for failure to file transcript in time.—Affirmance on certificate should be denied where appellant has used due diligence to perfect his appeal, and failing used reasonable dispatch in getting the record to the court on a writ of error. Anderson v. Waco State Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 552.

The right to an affirmance on certificate held not to depend on a good excuse for failing to file the transcript on an appeal that has been abandoned by resort to writ of error. Filhol v. Leon & H. Blum Land Co., 19 C. A. 688, 49 S. W. 669; Erwin v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 102.

Where appellant filed his appeal in the wrong district court of civil appeals, owing to the general impression that the governor had vetoed the act relating to the redistricting of the court of civil appeals, known as the "Single Bill," and the supreme court shared the impression, and the cause was transferred to the proper district motion to dismiss or affirm on certificate will be denied. Lester v. Riley (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 458.

Art. 1611. [1017] Transcript filed and cause heard after affirmance on certificate, when.—In all cases where the courts of civil appeals shall have affirmed the judgment of the court below, under the provisions of the preceding article, said court may, at any time within fifteen days after such affirmance, permit the transcript to be filed by the appellant or plaintiff in error, and the case to be tried on its merits; provided, that appellant or plaintiff in error shall show to the court good cause why the transcript was not filed by him in accordance with the provisions of article 1608, and shall also show to said court that he has given the appellee or defendant in error notice of his intentions to apply for such permission to file said transcript; and, in cases where the court shall adjourn within fifteen days after any judgment shall have been affirmed under the provisions of the next preceding article, the court may permit the appellant or plaintiff in error to file said transcript at such time as may be deemed proper, and have said cause tried on its merits; provided, said appellant or plaintiff in error shall show good cause why said transcript was not filed as herein directed, and shall show to the court that he has given the appellee or defendant in error notice of his intention to apply for permission to file said transcript. [Id.]

Setting aside affirmance on certificate.—The affirmance on certificate of a judgment against the principal and sureties on a writ of error bond will not be set aside on the tender of a transcript under a second writ. Hurley v. Lester (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 555.

An affirmance on certificate for failure to file the transcript should not be set aside and the appeal be dismissed on appellant's motion because of a defective bond. Hugo v. Seffel, 92 T. 414, 49 S. W. 369.

Excuse for failure to file transcript in time.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1608 and 1610.

Sureties on a bail bond perfected their appeal from a judgment of forfeiture, but did not file the transcript within 90 days thereafter. They lived 50 miles by rail from the county seat, and they sent to the clerk the appeal bond, and asked him to make up the transcript. The attorneys of the sureties were notified by the clerk that they must return to him all the papers in the case before he could make up a transcript. The attorneys forwarded the papers a week later, but they did nothing else until after the expiration of the time for filing the transcript, at which time they notified the clerk that they must insist upon getting the transcript. The transcript was short, and could easily have been prepared at any time. No effort to file it was made until the judgment was affirmed on certificate. Held not to show a good cause for failing to file transcript in time. Savage v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 584.

Art. 1612. Assignments of error; requisites of.—The appellant or plaintiff in error shall in all cases file with the clerk of the court below all assignments of error, distinctly specifying the grounds on which he relies, before he takes the transcript of record from the clerk's office; provided, that where a motion for new trial has been filed that the assignments therein shall constitute the assignments of error and need not be repeated by the filing of the assignments of error, and provided further, that all errors not distinctly specified are waived, but an assignment shall be sufficient which directs the attention of the court to the error complained of. [Id. Acts 1913, p. 276, sec. 1, amending Art. 1612, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

1. Construction of statute.—Questions not presented by assignment of errors should not be considered on appeal by the courts of civil appeals, and will not be considered by the supreme court on application for writ of error. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cooper, 85 T. 431, 21 S. W. 678.

The statute requiring assignments of error to be filed before the record is taken from the clerk's office is mandatory. Phillips v. Webb (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1011.

Where error in charge is not fundamental it must be assigned, or it will not be considered. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hays (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1073.

The requirement that appellant file assignments of error in the clerk's office held mandatory. Newman v. Satterwhite (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1145.

Statutes and rules regarding the form and sufficiency of assignments of error should be liberally construed, and not so as to cut off the approach of parties seeking relief in good faith for errors prejudicial to them in the trial court. Orange Lumber Co. v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1180.

2. Necessity for assignment of errors—In general.—The failure of the district judge to sign a statement of facts will not be considered on appeal, unless complaint against the omission be brought up in the assignment of errors. Reagan v. Copeland, 78 T. 551, 14 S. W. 1031.

In a suit to foreclose tax lien, the question of sufficiency of description of property will not be considered when first raised on appeal, without assignment of error. Turner v. City of Houston, 21 C. A. 214, 51 S. W. 642.

A judgment affirmed where there were no assignments of error and no error of law apparent of record. Cano v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 692.

The failure of a trial judge to sign a statement of facts can not be considered upon appeal to court of civil appeals unless complaint against the omission is brought up in the assignment of errors. Ennis Mercantile Co. v. Wathen, 93 T. 622, 57 S. W. 946.

An omission of the trial judge to approve and file a statement of facts cannot be considered on appeal, when it is not assigned as erorr. Ennis Mercantile Co. v. Wathen (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 971.

Rulings of a trial court which were not assigned as error in the appellate court will not be considered by the supreme court. City of Dallas v. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co., 95 T. 268, 66 S. W. 835.

Failure to plead release of indorser held not available in absence of assignment of error. Long v. Patton, 43 C. A. 11, 93 S. W. 519.

The appellate court may exercise discretion in considering assignment of error not in accordance with rules, but may not do so where error is not fundamental, and there is no assignment at all. Carrera v. Dibrell, 42 C. A. 99, 95 S. W. 628.

Where there is no assignment of error to a ruling of the trial court, the ruling cannot be considered on appeal. McDonald v. McCrabb, 47 C. A. 259, 105 S. W. 238.

Action by a trial court cannot be reviewed in the absence of an assignment complaining thereof. Nelson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1106.

Appellate courts confine their attention to the particular errors assigned, and to the reasons urged in the accompanying propositions and argument; and, where these are untenable, and no fundamental error is apparent, the assignment will be overruled. Young v. State Bank of Marshall, 54 C. A. 206, 117 S. W. 476.

Errors not apparent on the face of the record, and not assigned in the trial court for presentation to the court of civil appeals, as required, cannot be considered by the supreme court. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533.

Ordinarily an appellate court confines its decision to the exact questions presented by the assignments of error. Hazzard v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 244.

All questions not involving fundamental error of law apparent on the record must be presented by assignments or cross-assignments of error, and unless they are so presented the supreme court will not review them. Tarrant County v. Rogers, 104 T. 224, 136 S. W. 255.

Objections not embraced in the assignments of error will not be considered. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Cuffie (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1024.

The court of civil appeals has no authority to revise a judgment of the district court, except on a matter distinctly specified by an assignment of error. Deutschmann v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1140.

In the absence of an assignment of error, complaining of the refusal to permit counsel for appellant to present and read authorities, the matter cannot be reviewed. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

Alleged errors which are not fundamental cannot be reviewed on appeal, unless presented by an assignment of error. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Myers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 762.

3. —— Rulings on pleadings.—In order to have a question raised by the pleadings reviewed on appeal, it must be preserved by an assignment of error, unless it is fundamental. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 873.

The court of civil appeals will not reverse the action of the district court in sustaining an exception to a complaint, where no assignment of error is predicated thereon. Wettermark v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 904.

The overruling of demurrers will not be considered on appeal, in absence of assignments of error predicated thereon. John M. Bonner Memorial Home v. Collin County Nat. Bank, 57 C. A. 313, 122 S. W. 430.

In the absence of an assignment of error to the allowance of a trial amendment to a pleading, the court on appeal will not review the ruling. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Shaklee (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 188.

4. —— Rulings as to evidence.—Objections to evidence, not included in assignment of errors, will not be considered on appeal. Smith v. Clay (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 74.

The ruling of the trial court on the admission of testimony cannot be reviewed on appeal, in the absence of assignments of error. Hale v. Bickett, 34 C. A. 369, 78 S. W. 531.

In the absence of an assignment of error or propositions, the objection in argument to certain evidence will not be considered. Finberg v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 979.

5. —— Instructions.—Instructions can be reviewed only as to particulars in respect to which error is assigned. Mixon v. Miles, 92 T. 318, 47 S. W. 966.

An instruction not constituting fundamental error cannot be reviewed when there was no assignment of error. Washington v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 78.

Where an instruction is not made the subject of an assignment of error, objections thereto will not be considered on appeal. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Foster, 26 C. A. 497, 63 S. W. 952.

The contention that an instruction eliminated the issue of contributory negligence cannot be raised on appeal, where not assigned as error. International Light & Power Co. v. Maxwell, 27 C. A. 294, 65 S. W. 78.

In the absence of any assignment complaining of conflict in instructions, the court on appeal will not consider the question of conflict. Houston Electric Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 209.

The failure to submit an issue is not ground for reversal, where its submission was only requested by an instruction in itself erroneous, and no assignment of error is made that, though erroneous, the charge was sufficient as a request for a proper submission. First Nat. Bank v. Moor, 34 C. A. 476, 79 S. W. 53.

Complaint that the court did not submit an issue suggested by an improper requested charge held required to be specifically made by assignment of error. Metcalfe v. Lowenstein, 35 C. A. 619, 81 S. W. 362.

Without an assignment that the court erred in not giving a proper charge on the defense of fellow servants suggested by certain requests to charge on such subject, the court's failure so to do was not presented for review on appeal. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Eichhorn, 44 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

A charge to which error is not assigned will not be reviewed. Bollinger v. McMinn, 47 C. A. 89, 104 S. W. 1079.

Where error is not assigned on the omission of an issue, which doubtless should have been submitted, and the special charge on the subject being incorrect, appellant has no legal ground to complain. Buchanan v. Burnett, 52 C. A. 68, 114 S. W. 407.

Error in failing to instruct upon a certain issue on the ground that the court's attention was called thereto by an improper instruction requested cannot be considered on appeal, in the absence of an assignment of error complaining thereof. Lynch v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 461.

An instruction to the giving of which no error is assigned cannot be considered on appeal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hurdle (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 992.

6. —— Verdict, findings, or judgment.—Where a cause is tried by the judge alone, and no conclusions of fact or law are demanded, the appellant, to secure a reversal, must negative, by proper assignments of error, every theory on which the judgment might have been based. Hathaway v. Texas Building & Loan Ass'n, 19 C. A. 240, 45 S. W. 1023.

Excessive verdict cannot be reviewed in the absence of assignment of error questioning the amount. Classen v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1023.

An objection that there is no evidence to sustain a finding cannot be considered when not assigned as error. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 21 C. A. 167, 51 S. W. 276.

In the absence of assignment of errors as to correctness of conclusion on which judgment of lower court is based, judgment will be affirmed. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ennis-Calvert Compress Co., 23 C. A. 441, 56 S. W. 367.

A party not assigning as error the court's refusal to set aside a special verdict cannot complain of the judgment because certain findings are unsupported by the evidence. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

Where, in an action by a grantor of a street railway for failure of the grantee to operate the railway as required by the deed, there is no assignment calling in question the amount of the damages awarded, the court, on appeal, will not disturb the damages assessed by the jury. Id.

The question whether answers of the jury to special issues entitled a party to a judgment cannot be considered on appeal, where the trial court set aside such findings and there was no assignment requiring a review of such rulings. Casey-Swasey Co. v. Manchester Fire Assur. Co., 32 C. A. 158, 73 S. W. 864.

Findings of fact, not complained of by assignments of error as unsupported by evidence, will be considered on appeal as correct. Supreme Council, American Legion of Honor v. Storey (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 901.

Defendant held not required to assign error to excessiveness of verdict, to avail itself of error in charge as to measure of damages. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Nelson, 38 C. A. 605, 86 S. W. 616.

Where appellant did not assign error on the amount of the judgment rendered against him, the question would not be considered. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Wheeler, 41 C. A. 539, 91 S. W. 234.

On appeal by defendant from a judgment for plaintiff for part of the land claimed in trespass to try title, plaintiff held not entitled to have judgment reformed, where he made no assignment of error, even though more land was adjudged to defendant than he was entitled to. Haynes v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 49, 111 S. W. 427.

Where there is no assignment attacking a provision of a judgment complained of as error, it cannot be reviewed. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 96.

A contention that a judgment is erroneous will not be considered on appeal, where there is no assignment of error directly challenging the findings supporting the judgment. Dalhart Real Estate Agency v. Le Master (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 860.

Findings of the trial court, not challenged, held conclusive on appeal. London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. City of Beaumont (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 894.

In the absence of any assignment of error that findings are not sustained by the evidence, the findings are conclusive on appeal. Old River Lumber Co. v. Skeeters (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 511.

The extent of the injuries of a servant suing for personal injuries will not be considered on appeal, where no complaint is directed to the amount of the verdict. Kampmann v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 161.

In the absence of an assignment of error that the findings are not supported by the evidence, the findings are conclusive on appeal. Prairie Cattle Co. v. Balfour (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 674.

The court of civil appeals has no authority to revise a judgment of the district court, except on a matter distinctly specified by an assignment of error. Deutschmann v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1140.

7. —— Motions for new trial.—Where motion for new trial is overruled, but no error is assigned to its being overruled, the error, if any, is waived. Armstrong v. Elliott, 20 C. A. 41, 49 S. W. 635.

8. Errors reviewable without proper assignment—In general.—See, also, notes under Art. 1607.

A judgment sustaining a general demurrer to a petition is reviewable without an assignment of error. Hall v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 46.

Where defendants in error advanced a case on suggestion of delay, the record will be searched for material errors, though no assignments or briefs have been filed by plaintiffs in error. Tidwell v. Starr (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 778.

An error of law apparent on the record is fundamental, requiring consideration on appeal without assignment. Willard v. Guttman (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 901.

Assignment of error is not necessary on appeal, where parties have agreed on the question on which determination of the case depends. Wilson v. Johnson, 94 T. 272, 60 S. W. 242.

Where, on appeal, a case is advanced and set down for hearing in accordance with appellee's motion, suggesting an appeal for delay, errors will be revised, though not assigned. Continental Fire Ass'n of Ft. Worth v. Bearden, 29 C. A. 569, 69 S. W. 982.

The court of civil appeals will in rare instances only exercise its discretion to consider assignments of error not presented in accordance with the rules of the supreme court. Cammack v. Rogers, 32 C. A. 125, 74 S. W. 945.

The cause of action being breach of contract, and the pleadings and trial being in form for negligence, such error, though unassigned, requiries reversal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hennegan, 33 C. A. 314, 76 S. W. 452.

A verdict charged to be excessive will be reviewed on appeal, notwithstanding the assignment of error objecting thereto is general and multifarious. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Appel, 33 C. A. 575, 77 S. W. 635.

A suggestion by appellees that the appeal was taken for delay opens the record as to them though there was no error assigned affecting them. Watzlavzick v. D. & A. Oppenheimer, 38 C. A. 306, 85 S. W. 855.

The suggestion that an appeal was taken for purposes of delay only opens up the entire record, and requires the appellate court to reverse for errors, though not assigned. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Hadley & Alvord, 38 C. A. 599, 86 S. W. 932.

Issues presented being all of fact, errors suggested held not fundamental or apparent of record, entitling them to review, even though the assignments of error may have been faulty. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 847.

Verdict held such as to seem to call for the exercise of the discretion of the appellate court to consider an assignment of error, notwithstanding that technically it was too general to be considered. Id.

The court on appeal held required to correct an error in a judgment, notwithstanding the insufficiency of the assignments of error. Houston Oil Co. v. Gallup, 50 C. A. 369, 109 S. W. 957.

The instruction being set out in the assignment of error, held, that errors therein not assigned will be considered. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 196.

It would be the duty of the court of civil appeals to determine the sufficiency of the petition as against a general demurrer, even though there were no assignments of error as to its sufficiency. Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. v. MacMaster, 51 C. A. 527, 113 S. W. 337.

The court on appeal must, in the absence of any assignment of error, examine the record, and will reverse for fundamental error apparent on the record. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Saxon (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1091.

On motion to dismiss an appeal for delay, if any error appears, the motion will be denied, and the judgment reversed. Stricklin v. Arrington & Carter (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 189.

In the absence from the record of assignments of error required by this article and article 2113 and courts of civil appeals rules 22, 23 (67 S. W. xv), the court of civil appeals can only determine from the record whether the pleadings support the judgment and whether that court has acquired jurisdiction; affirmance following a determination of those questions in the affirmative. Walker v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 640.

The error in sustaining a general demurrer to the petition will be considered on appeal, though not assigned. Deweese v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 732.

A court on appeal will review fundamental error in a judgment apparent on the face of the record, though not assigned or presented in any way. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

The court, on appeal from a decree settling water rights, may consider the indefiniteness of the judgment, even though the assignments of error addressed thereto could not be considered because incorrectly copied in the brief, where the cause would be reversed for other reasons. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

A judgment sustaining a general demurrer, where the petition states a good cause of action, constitutes fundamental error apparent on the face of the record, and will be reviewed without assignments of error in the lower court. Hankamer v. County Com'rs Court (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 623.

9. —— Jurisdictional questions.—Error of a district court in assuming jurisdiction is ground for reversal, without an assignment of error. Robinson v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 269.

A county court's jurisdiction of an appeal from the commissioner's court, being jurisdictional, will be considered on appeal, though not raised by an assignment of error. Northington v. Taylor County (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 936.

Error in acting without jurisdiction over the subject-matter may be raised on appeal, though not in the assignments of error. Land Mortgage Bank v. Voss, 29 C. A. 11, 68 S. W. 732.

Where judgment by default was entered against nonresidents, and the record failed to show jurisdiction, the appellate court will take notice of the error, although not specially assigned. Glasscock v. Barnard (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 615.

The jurisdiction of a trial court must affirmatively appear from the transcript on appeal, and, where it does not, the defect being jurisdictional, is fundamental in its nature, and must be noticed without an assignment of error. Ware v. Clark (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 618.

A ruling assigned as error can be reviewed though appellant had no right to assert error, where jurisdiction is involved. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Neil P. Anderson & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 182.

The court on appeal must notice the want of jurisdiction of the trial court, whether the objection is raised by the parties or not. Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 258.

The question of the jurisdiction of the trial court may be raised on appeal, without any assignment of error. O'Bannon v. Pleasants (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 719.

10. —— Errors apparent on face of record.—See, also, Art. 1607 and notes thereunder.

On appellee's suggestion of delay the court will revise the judgment for any error apparent on the face of the record, though there are no proper assignments. Hanson v. Yturria (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 795.

The failure in a suit to recover school land by an applicant for the purchase thereof to allege and prove that plaintiff was an actual settler, or was an owner of and settler on other land, held errors apparent on the face of the record. Sterling v. Self, 30 C. A. 284, 70 S. W. 238.

Error in instructing the jury peremptorily for defendant is an error of law apparent on the record, which may be taken advantage of without an assignment of error. Olivarri v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 392.

An error which is not apparent of record will not be considered on appeal, where the only assignments of error are those which are apparent in the record. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

Question of sufficiency of tender held not raised on appeal by complaint that judgment awarding defendant amount paid into court was error apparent of record. Id.

Error in peremptorily instructing the jury to return a verdict for defendant is an error of law apparent on the record, which may be taken advantage of without an assignment. Hough v. Fink (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 147.

An alleged error held not an error apparent on the face of the record, reviewable, without assignment, under article 1607. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 984.

An assignment of error held to present no error of law apparent on the record, so as to allow its consideration under court of civil appeals rule 24 (20 S. W. viii), though failing to distinctly specify the grounds relied on. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell, 104 T. 632, 143 S. W. 1147.

Error in sustaining a general demurrer to a petition can be reviewed on appeal without any bill of exceptions or assignment of error, where the judgment recites the ruling, the exception thereto, and the notice of appeal. Harbinson v. Cottle County (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 719.

Refusal of court of civil appeals to reverse or reform judgment in partition so as to allow life estate to a defendant who had made no claim for same held not an error of law apparent on the face of the record to which no timely assignment of error would be essential. Oar v. Davis (Sup.) 151 S. W. 794.

In article 1607 and this article, requiring that errors at law not "apparent on the face of the record" be presented by timely assignments of error, the phrase quoted refers to such manifest error as when removed destroys the foundation of the judgment. Id.

Where, in an action to cancel deeds conveying certain land, one defendant's one-third life estate in such land was not put in issue either by the pleadings or evidence, and such defendant joined with her husband in his claim for the entire interest of plaintiffs in the land under the deeds or the homestead laws, the refusal of the court of appeals to reverse or reform the judgment of the district court partitioning the land and divesting such defendant of her life estate did not present error apparent upon the face of the record, such as could be considered on writ of error in the absence of a timely assignment of error. Id.

The error in allowing an amendment to a pleading is not error apparent of record which must be considered without assignment of error, where the amendment is only made to appear by motion to correct the record. Gordon v. State (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 867.

Where the transcript does not contain a copy of an assignment of errors required by statute and court rules to be filed below, the court of civil appeals will only consider errors of law apparent upon the record, if the judgment could under any circumstances have been legally rendered, and will affirm if there be no such errors. Biggs v. Blount (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1114.

The error in rendering judgment in trespass to try title that plaintiff, not appearing in person or by attorney, take nothing, where defendant pleaded not guilty and filed pleas of limitations, is error apparent of record, of which the court on appeal must take notice, though not assigned. Drummond v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 266.

11. —— Fundamental errors.—The court will notice a fundamental error although not assigned. Texas Brewing Co. v. Templeman, 90 T. 277, 38 S. W. 27.

Where plaintiff's interest is stated in the verdict at a greater percentage of the whole property than shown by the pleadings, the error is fundamental, though not assigned below. McCord v. Holloman (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 114.

Under amended special verdict statute (Laws 1897), where a special verdict fails to find every fact necessary to support the judgment the defect may be noticed by the court as fundamental error, except where every fact essential to support the judgment may be found in the record, though not included in the special verdict. Armstrong v. Elliott, 20 C. A. 41, 49 S. W. 635.

The use of a wrong initial in the court's charge to the jury is not a fundamental error, and cannot be raised on appeal, where no assignment of error is found in the record assailing that part of the charge. Neyland v. Texas Yellow Pine Lumber Co., 26 C. A. 417, 64 S. W. 696.

Error of a trial court in refusing to submit to the jury a controverted issue of fact, held not fundamental, and will not be reviewed, in the absence of an assignment of error. Clapp v. Royer, 28 C. A. 29, 67 S. W. 345.

An instruction affirmatively misdirecting the jury as to the law on the undisputed facts, when a peremptory instruction for a verdict for one of the parties should have been given, is a fundamental error, though not assigned. Harper v. Dodd, 30 C. A. 287, 70 S. W. 223.

Rulings of trial courts sustaining or overruling general demurrers to a petition are fundamental, and may be reviewed on appeal without assignments of error. City of San Antonio v. Talerico, 98 T. 151, 81 S. W. 518.

A fundamental error apparent on the face of the record will be reviewed, though the sole assignment of error was fatally defective. First State Bank v. McGaughey, 38 C. A. 495, 86 S. W. 55.

Where an instruction authorizes a finding for plaintiff on an issue not made by the pleading, the error, though not assigned, is so fundamental as to require the court to act on it. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Yost, 39 C. A. 551, 88 S. W. 428.

Exclusion of certain evidence as to homestead held not to constitute fundamental error, reviewable, though not complained of by assignment of error embraced in the record. Linn v. Waller (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 430.

On appeal from a judgment dissolving an injunction restraining the enforcement of the judgment, held, that the error was so fundamental that it might be presented notwithstanding the absence of error in the trial court. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Skeeter Bros., 44 C. A. 105, 98 S. W. 1064.

That a garnishment bond lacks a few dollars of being for double the amount claimed, as required by statute, does not show such error as goes to the foundation of the action, and it should not be considered on appeal unless properly assigned. Burge v. Beaumont Carriage Co., 47 C. A. 223, 105 S. W. 232.

In an action for injuries received, the action of the court in assuming in one charge a fact which in another charge was left to be determined by the jury as a matter of fact held not a fundamental error. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Polk, 49 C. A. 269, 108 S. W. 761.

The insufficiency of the petition on its face held fundamental error, and requires a reversal, though there is no assignment of error on that ground. Montgomery v. Peach River Lumber Co., 54 C. A. 143, 117 S. W. 1061.

Matters held not to constitute fundamental error, which can be considered in the absence of assignments of error. Hamilton v. Kegley, 57 C. A. 159, 122 S. W. 304.

Defect in the petition in an action for the price of coal held fundamental error, so as to be reviewable, though not raised below by defendant. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Western Coal & Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 245.

That the verdict and judgment following it did not settle the matter in controversy was fundamental error which the court will consider in absence of assignment of error. Provident Nat. Bank v. Webb (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 426.

Error in giving judgment not authorized by the petition held fundamental, so as to require consideration, though not included in assignments filed. Payne v. Godfrey (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 163.

The error in dismissing a suit without any ground appearing therefor is fundamental and necessitates a reversal, though the error is not assigned. Wolf v. Sahm (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 733.

Error in peremptorily directing a verdict is fundamental, requiring review on appeal without any specific assignment of error. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917.

Where no assignments of error are filed below in a cause, but it is briefed, the court on appeal will examine the entire cause with a view of discovering fundamental errors. Swearingen v. Myers (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 664.

A judgment giving one defendant costs as against the other held not fundamental error, and not reviewable, in the absence of assignment of error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Demere & Coggin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 623.

A judgment in favor of a third person not entitled thereto is fundamentally wrong, so as to be set aside on appeal without any assignment of error. Freeman v. Bank of Garvin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 685.

Admission of secondary evidence of the execution and contents of deeds without preliminary proof of the loss of the originals is not fundamental error reviewable without an assignment of error. William M. Rice Institute v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 688.

Whether an assignment predicates error on the precise reason given below for dismissing the action or not, the court on appeal will overrule the assignment where the petition failed to state a cause of action, since that is a fundamental error that the appellate court must consider. Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

Where the judgment in a proceeding to determine water rights was so indefinite as to be incapable of intelligent enforcement, the error was fundamental and may be corrected on appeal, though the assignments of error addressed thereto could not be considered because not correctly copied in the brief. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

An objection that the compromise agreement relied on was without consideration, being fundamental and apparent of record, was reviewed though not assigned. Simmons Hardware Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1196.

Want of capacity in the plaintiff corporation to do business in the state was not fundamental error which the appellate court will review without an assignment of error;

it going merely to the plaintiff's right to sue and not to the merits of the suit. Arbuckle Bros. v. Everybody's Gin & Mill Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1136.

Under rule 24 for the courts of civil appeals (142 S. W. xii), requiring assignments of error to distinctly specify the grounds of error, an objection to an instruction as to the degree of care due from the defendant carrier toward plaintiff cannot be reviewed in the absence of an assignment thereon; such error not being fundamental. Walker v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1142.

If the reasons assigned in special exceptions for the insufficiency of an answer, if well founded, would have justified the sustaining of a general demurrer, rulings of the court thereon were fundamental and could be considered by the court of civil appeals without assignment under rule 24 (142 S. W. xii). Astin v. Mosteller (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 495.

A judgment sustaining a general demurrer where the petition states a good cause of action constitutes fundamental error apparent on the face of the record, and will be reviewed without assignments of error in the lower court. Hankamer v. County Com'rs' Court (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 623.

The court's error in canceling a note and mortgage pursuant to an agreement, although it had been merged in a new note and mortgage, and no matters in avoidance of the new instruments were pleaded or submitted, was fundamental and reviewable without an assignment. Shriver v. McCann (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 317.

Assignments of error held not to raise fundamental errors apparent on the face of the record which could be reviewed, although the assignments were not filed in the trial court, as required by this article, rule 101 (142 S. W. xxiv) for district courts, and rules 23 and 24 (142 S. W. xii) for courts of civil appeals. Sewall v. Christie (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 994.

Fundamental errors will be considered, notwithstanding the assignments are not in proper form. Whitten v. Whitten (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 277.

12. Necessity of motion for new trial.—See, also, notes under Art. 2014.

The importance of rules 24 and 25 for courts of civil appeals (142 S. W. xii), and rule 71a for district and county courts (145 S. W. vii), requiring a motion for a new trial on appeal from a trial court, held not affected by Act 33d Leg., approved April 4, 1913, amending this article by dispensing with the necessity of filing assignments when a motion for new trial has been filed. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 748.

13. Right to assign errors.—Error cannot be predicated on a settled judgment. Tutt's Heirs v. Morgan, 18 C. A. 627, 46 S. W. 122.

Assignments of error in a proceeding collateral to that in which appeal is taken cannot be considered on such appeal. Chouquette v. McCarthy (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 956.

On appeal by one defendant only, cross-assignment by another as to the judgment of plaintiff against him cannot be considered. Smith v. Bunch (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 559.

Defendants cannot assign error to the judgment in favor of codefendants, where they have asserted in their pleadings no right or equity against either of such codefendants. McCabe & Steen v. Farrell, 34 C. A. 36, 77 S. W. 1049.

Assignments of error, which were passed upon by another court of civil appeals, will not be considered, where their consideration is not essential to the disposition of the case. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 453.

Plaintiffs in error held not precluded from bringing error to the part of a judgment discharging the garnishee by reason of a former appeal by another party. McFaddin v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 634.

Defendants, not having been represented at the trial, held entitled on appeal to complain of the judgment for fundamental error only. Dishman v. Frost (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 358.

14. Joint assignments.—A joint assignment that the verdict was contrary to the weight of the evidence as to all the defendants was unsustainable, if the evidence supported a verdict as to any of them. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 979.

15. Form and requisites in general.—An assignment which is neither signed by the party nor by his counsel cannot be considered; only such fundamental errors as are apparent on the face of the record can be considered. Fordyce v. Dixon, 70 T. 694, 8 S. W. 504.

An assignment of error should not contain a statement of facts. Wilson v. Alexander (Sup.) 18 S. W. 1057.

An unsigned assignment of error adopted in appellant's brief, so as to identify it as his act, will be considered. Building Association v. Newman, 25 S. W. 11, 86 T. 380.

An assignment of error must conform strictly to the rule. Tuggle v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 61.

Assignments of error not presented in accordance with court rule 29 relating to briefs (20 S. W. vii) will not be considered. Davis v. Converse (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 910.

Assignments of error not conforming to the rules will be disregarded. Texas Midland R. R. v. Tidwell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 641.

Bill of exceptions and assignment of errors, appearing on sheets of paper not fastened and sealed as required by rule 90 of district and county court rules, are no part of record. Alexander v. Lovitt (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 685.

The effect of a motion filed in court of civil appeals, showing the absence of a statement of facts in the record to have been the fault of the judge, and asking a reversal on that ground, is not equivalent to assigning such omission as error and causing the same to be incorporated in the record. Ennis Mercantile Co. v. Wathen, 93 T. 622, 57 S. W. 947.

Assignments of error, copied in a brief together, and followed by separate propositions not relating to all the assignments, are not in compliance with supreme court rule 30, and will not be considered. International & G. N. R. Co. v. True, 23 C. A. 523, 57 S. W. 977.

An assignment of error stating other grounds of objection than those stated in the bill of exceptions, and in connection with which there is no proposition advanced, will not be considered on appeal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 930, judgment reversed 63 S. W. 305, 95 Tex. 2.

Assignment of error considered abandoned, because a violation of civil appeals court rules Nos. 29, 30 (47 S. W. v). Yeager v. Neil, 26 C. A. 414, 64 S. W. 701.

An assignment of error in an action involving the priority of a mortgage and unrecorded deed held sufficient in form to raise the question of error in holding that certain leases constituted constructive notice of the deed. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Norris, 29 C. A. 361, 68 S. W. 548.

An assignment of error held insufficient, under rules 25, 26, 30, 31, for court of civil appeals. Holton v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 128, 71 S. W. 408.

Assignment of error held not in accordance with the rules. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hagler, 38 C. A. 52, 84 S. W. 692.

Assignments of error with reference to separate conclusions of law and the introduction of certain evidence held not in compliance with supreme court rule 30. King v. Battaglia, 38 C. A. 28, 84 S. W. 839.

Under rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi) of the rules for the courts of civil appeals, assignment of error held insufficient. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Boykin (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1163.

Assignments of error in violation of rule 29 for the courts of civil appeals (84 Tex. 701) held not reviewable. Dean v. Cate, 39 C. A. 187, 87 S. W. 234.

Under court of civil appeals rules 30, 31 (67 S. W. xvi), assignments of error held insufficient. Kilday v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 215.

Under court of civil appeals rules 30, 34 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error held insufficient. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 42 C. A. 462, 92 S. W. 1036.

Under supreme court rule 31, held, that certain assignments of error were not open to consideration on appeal. Feagan v. Barton-Parker Mfg. Co., 42 C. A. 373, 93 S. W. 1076.

Assignments of error held not briefed as prescribed by court of civil appeals rules 29–31 (67 S. W. xvi) and are not reviewable on appeal. McAllen v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 760.

Certain assignments of error held in such form that the appellate court was not required to consider them. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Foth, 101 T. 133, 100 S. W. 171.

Assignments of error, not complying with rules 30 and 31 for the courts of civil appeals, held not before the court for consideration. Gilmore v. Houston Electric Co., 46 C. A. 315, 102 S. W. 168.

Assignments of error which do not comply with the rules of the court need not be considered on appeal. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jowers (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 946.

Where assignments of error are not presented in accordance with the rules, they will not be considered. Reina v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 56.

An assignment of error, obnoxious to rules 24, 25, 26 for the court of civil appeals, will not be considered. Settle v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 15.

Unsigned assignments of error, complaining of the refusal of special charges, will be overruled. Big Valley Irr. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 715.

Assignments of error not complying with amended rule 25 for courts of civil appeals (142 S. W. xii), held to be considered, where they were filed before that amendment was generally known. Lilly v. Yeary (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

Under court of civil appeals rule 29 (142 S. W. xii), providing that "assignments shall be numbered from the first to the last in their consecutive order," where the brief begins with No. 4 and ends with No. 8, the assignments cannot be considered. Barron & Clark v. White (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 590.

16. Specification of errors—In general.—In the following cases assignments of error were held to be insufficient: O'Neil v. Bank, 67 T. 36, 2 S. W. 754; Smith v. Whitfield, 67 T. 124, 2 S. W. 822; Blake v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 160, 2 S. W. 368; 60 Am. Rep. 15; Railway Co. v. Redeker, 67 T. 181, 2 S. W. 513; Richardson v. Levi, 67 T. 359, 3 S. W. 444; Hughes v. Railway Co., 67 T. 595, 4 S. W. 219; Jackson v. Cassidy, 68 T. 282, 4 S. W. 541; Yoe v. Montgomery, 68 T. 340, 4 S. W. 622; McClure v. Sheek's Heirs, 68 T. 426, 4 S. W. 552; Mynders v. Ralston, 68 T. 498, 4 S. W. 854; Blassingame v. Davis, 68 T. 595, 5 S. W. 402; Blackwell v. Hunnicutt, 69 T. 273, 9 S. W. 317; Bumpass v. Morrison, 70 T. 756, 8 S. W. 596; State Bank v. National Bank (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 366.

Ordinarily an assignment ought to be complete in itself; and if it is not, and there is something else in the record essential to an intelligent ruling upon it, the latter at least should be embraced in the statement in the brief under the assignment. Robertson v. Coates, 1 C. A. 664, 20 S. W. 875.

The assignment of error must be express and direct. It should not be argumentative. Hodo v. Mexican Nat. R. Co., 88 T. 523, 32 S. W. 511.

An assignment of error must show that appellant is affected by the error. Cole v. Grigsby (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 680.

Assignments of error held insufficient. Gresham v. Harcourt (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1058; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 32 C. A. 23, 74 S. W. 345; Cammack v. Rogers, 32 C. A. 125, 74 S. W. 945; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Huber, 33 C. A. 75, 75 S. W. 547; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 811; Holmes v. Adams (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 816; Parrish v. Mills (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 184; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Janert, 49 C. A. 17, 107 S. W. 963; Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Ball & Elam, 51 C. A. 636, 114 S. W. 403; Freeman v. Puckett, 56 C. A. 126, 120 S. W. 514; Weil v. Martinez, 57 C. A. 440, 124 S. W. 116; Peden Iron & Steel Co. v. McKnight (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 156.

An assignment of error suggesting a diversity of questions, and failing to present any definite proposition, is fatally defective for multifariousness. Stevens v. Germania Life Ins. Co., 62 S. W. 824, 26 C. A. 156.

Assignment of error on the ground of variance held not sustained. J. S. Mayfield Lumber Co. v. Carver, 27 C. A. 467, 66 S. W. 216.

Assignments not pointing out the specific errors complained of, and not followed by a sufficient statement, cannot be considered. Butler v. Holmes, 68 S. W. 52, 29 C. A. 48.

An assignment of error cannot be extended by the brief to include a bill of exceptions not referred to therein. Word v. Kennon (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 334.

Assignments of error were in the following form: (1) "The court erred in overrul-ing and refusing to sustain the plea of privilege of the [defendant] railway company as shown by its bill of exception No. 1." (2) "The court erred in holding that under the law [defendant] railway company could be sued in this case, and compelled to defend the same in the district court of M. county; that it was not entitled under the law to be sued in D. county. Proposition: A foreign corporation, no part of whose railway line is within the state of Texas, but which has an agent in the state, cannot be sued in a county where it has no agent, and whose courts would ordinarily have no jurisdiction over it, for the reason that it is sued for alleged damages to freight transported over its line and that of a connecting line of railway, which connecting line of railway extends into the county in which the suit is brought." Under these assignments and proposition the undisputed evidence introduced on the trial, duly preserved by bill of exceptions, was set out. Held, that the assignments were sufficient to show the court of civil appeals that the particular ruling complained of was in holding defendant to answer to the suit in M. county when it had no agent in that county and was not operating any railway in Texas, and such assignments should have been considered by that court. Judgment (Civ. App. 1903) 76 S. W. 947, reversed. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. J. H. White & Co., 80 S. W. 77, 97 T. 493.

An assignment of error held not to be considered, as not being a clear and distinct specification of error. Bourland v. Schulz, 39 C. A. 572, 87 S. W. 1167.

An assignment of error held sufficient. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Parish (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 682.

Assignments of error would not be considered on appeal, in view of the manner in which appellant presented them. Hayward Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 403.

In a suit for specific performance of an oral contract to convey land, an assignment of error held sufficient on appeal. Cobb v. Johnson, 101 T. 440, 108 S. W. 811.

An assignment which does not complain of any error of the trial court presents nothing for consideration on appeal. McCormick v. Kampmann (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 492.

Assignments of error which referred to another assignment and the statements following it, to which it had no relation, held to present nothing for consideration. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Spencer, 55 C. A. 456, 119 S. W. 716.

An assignment of error to merit consideration on appeal must present a contention which, if sustained, entitles the party complaining to relief as against the judgment attacked. Mortimore v. Affleck (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 51.

Assignments of error not complaining of any ruling of the court, but merely stating abstract propositions of law, cannot be considered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383.

Nature and construction of rules relating to assignments of error stated. Wigglesworth v. Uvalde Live Stock Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1180.

On appeal from a judgment entered upon special findings, held, that an assignment complaining of alleged erroneous special findings would not be considered. Ripley v. Wenzel (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 897.

An assignment of error by defendant, in an action by a former partner of a firm, which sold its business to defendant corporation, to recover a part of the corporate shares or their reasonable value, in which defendant claimed that plaintiff had received the whole consideration agreed to be paid him for his interest, and that there was no evidence showing that the overcharge amounted to more than the necessary cost of purchasing goods, and not referring to the evidence, but referring "to preceding statements," was insufficient, and would not be considered. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

A purported assignment of error, which did not complain of any ruling, but was merely in the form of a proposition, was not an assignment of error. Moore v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 195.

Assignments of error which are very general, involve several propositions, and are not followed by propositions or statements, will not be considered. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510.

Where assignments of error are multifarious, argumentative, and confusing, and the propositions are not germane to the assignments, and some of the assignments are not copies of those filed in the trial court, and the statements make little reference to the record, the assignments will not be considered. Hardy v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 650.

17. —— Certainty and definiteness—In general.—The assignments of error in the following cases were held to be too general: G., W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Montier, 61 T. 122; I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Irvin, 64 T. 529; I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Leak, 64 T. 654; Green v. Dallahan, 54 T. 281; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Shafer, 54 T. 641; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. McNamara, 59 T. 255; Barnard v. Tarleton, 57 T. 402; Johnson v. Crawl, 55 T. 571; Flanagan v. Womack, 54 T. 45; Byrnes v. Morris, 53 T. 213; Carter v. Roland, 53 T. 540; Pearson v. Flanagan, 52 T. 266; McConnell v. Bruggerhoff, 1 App. C. C. § 1004.

An assignment of error inviting a review of the action of the court below with reference to several matters, without specifying the ground of error relied on, is too general to require consideration, and the propositions under it cannot be invoked to assist it. Robinson v. Moore, 1 C. A. 93, 20 S. W. 994; Galbraith v. Townsend, 1 C. A. 447, 20 S. W. 943.

That the court erred in refusing a certain special charge is too general. Sanburn v. Deal, 22 S. W. 192, 3 C. A. 385. Also, that it erred in the admission and exclusion of evidence, as shown by the bill of exceptions, whereby the jury were misled, etc. Miller v. Vernoy, 22 S. W. 64, 2 C. A. 675. Also, that it erred in refusing four special instructions asked. Lambert v. Williams, 21 S. W. 108, 2 C. A. 413; Gregory v. Coleman, 22 S. W. 181, 3 C. A. 166. Or that it erred in holding that the notes sued on were secured by a vendor's lien upon the land in controversy. Gunter v. Lillard & Co., 1 C. A. 325, 21 S. W. 118. Or that the verdict is not supported by the evidence, and that the judgment does not dispose of the questions involved. Cooper v. Lee, 1 C. A. 9, 21 S. W. 998.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to grant defendant's application for a continuance—there being four distinct grounds therefor, for different witnesses—is too general. Railway Co. v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 879. Citing City of Ft. Worth v. Johnson, 84 T. 137, 19 S. W. 361; Mitchell v. Mitchell, 84 T. 303, 19 S. W. 477; Railway Co. v. Downie, 82 T. 383, 17 S. W. 620; Paschal v. Owen, 77 T. 583, 14 S. W. 203; Cooper v. Langway, 76 T. 121, 13 S. W. 179; Harris v. Daugherty, 74 T. 1, 11 S. W. 921, 15 Am. St. Rep. 812; Bumpass v. Morrison, 70 T. 759, 8 S. W. 596.

An assignment asking the action of the court on several matters, and not specifying in what particular there was error, is too general. W. U. T. Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 996.

The assignment of errors must specifically state the points relied on for a reversal of the judgment. Brown v. Elmendorf, 26 S. W. 1043, 87 T. 56.

An assignment "that the court erred in overruling defendant's application for a continuance" is not too general. Railway Co. v. Howell, 87 T. 429, 30 S. W. 102.

Assignments of error held not sufficiently specific. Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Padgitt (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 800.

Assignments of error held too general. Blain v. Blain (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 66; Bryant v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 833; Masterson v. Glaze (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1048; Hansen v. Yturria (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 797; Laux v. Laux, 19 C. A. 693, 50 S. W. 213; Brown v. Vizcaya (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 191; Cassidy v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 27 C. A. 211, 64 S. W. 1023; City of Stephenville v. Bower, 29 C. A. 384, 68 S. W. 833; Henry v. McNew, 29 C. A. 288, 69 S. W. 213; McCarthy v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 32 C. A. 548, 74 S. W. 921; City of Palestine v. Addington (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 322; J. B. Watkins Land Mortg. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 560; Harris v. Matthews, 36 C. A. 424, 81 S. W. 1198; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Carter, 42 C. A. 224, 94 S. W. 205; Fisher v. Dippel, 46 C. A. 266, 102 S. W. 448; Musick v. O'Brien (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 458; Texas Land & Irrigation Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 558; Stacy v. Delery, 57 C. A. 242, 122 S. W. 300; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383; Miller v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 302; Sherman v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1075; Austin Electric Ry. Co. v. Faust (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 449; First State Bank of Hamlin v. Jones & Nixon (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 671; Harrington & Overton v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 662.

Assignments of error reserved by exceptions "No. 1 to No. 9, inclusive," held too general, where the exceptions involved different phases of the testimony. Frost v. Mason, 17 C. A. 465, 44 S. W. 53.

An assignment of error sufficiently specific to point out the ruling complained of is sufficient though it fails to state the grounds of the ruling. Moline Plow Co. v. Mathews (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 699.

Assignments of error held insufficient, as not complaining of any proceeding of the trial court, and as being mere arguments. Spencer v. Jones (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 29.

Assignments of error which do not convey to the mind any point for determination will not be considered on appeal. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Branch (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 542.

An assignment of error which does not point out the error complained of cannot be considered. Brady v. Georgia Home Ins. Co., 24 C. A. 464, 59 S. W. 914; McLeod v. State, 33 C. A. 170, 76 S. W. 216; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 657; Garrison v. Ochiltree County, 50 C. A. 397, 111 S. W. 445; Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983; Witherspoon v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 633.

Assignments of error in trespass to try title held too general to be considered, under this article and rules 22–28 (20 S. W. vii) for the courts of civil appeals. Cartmell v. Gammage (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 315.

Assignments of error which are too general will not be considered. Wetz v. Wetz, 27 C. A. 597, 66 S. W. 869.

Certain assignments of error held too indefinite to be considered. Cline v. Hackbarth, 30 C. A. 591, 71 S. W. 48.

Assignment of error held to point out to court of civil appeals error relied on, and to call for consideration by that court. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. J. H. White & Co., 97 T. 493, 80 S. W. 77.

Certain general assignments of error held insufficient under court of civil appeals rule 25 (67 S. W. xv). Watzlavzick v. D. & A. Oppenheimer, 38 C. A. 306, 85 S. W. 855.

Where an assignment of error is unintelligible, and is not supported by the statement following it, it will not be reviewed. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bath, 40 C. A. 270, 90 S. W. 55.

Assignments of error, though general, held sufficient. Frontroy v. Atkinson, 45 C. A. 324, 100 S. W. 1023.

Assignments of error in trespass to try title held too general to be considered. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 847.

An assignment of error not complying with statute and rules held too general to require consideration. Cain v. State, 47 C. A. 382, 106 S. W. 770.

Certain assignments of error held insufficient as too general and indefinite. Estes v. Estes (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 304.

Assignments of error held not too general. Wigglesworth v. Uvalde Live Stock Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1180.

Assignments of error held too general to be considered on appeal. First State Bank of Hamlin v. Jones & Nixon (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 145.

Under this article and rules 25 and 26 for the court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv), requiring assignments to point out the exact portion of the record wherein the error occurred, an assignment of error complaining that the court erred in overruling the application of the relator to remove a guardian is too general to require consideration. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 23.

An assignment of error held too general to require consideration on appeal, except as to one ground relating to the jurisdiction. Hemphill v. National Iron & Steel Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 845.

An assignment which points out no specific error, and which does not refer to the page of the transcript where the bill of exceptions referred to therein may be found, is not entitled to consideration. Modern Brotherhood of America v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 626.

Under rules 24 and 25 for courts of civil appeals, as amended January 24, 1912 (142 S. W. xii), so as to require a motion for a new trial in all cases as a prerequisite to a review of the assignment of errors, assignments of error are not required to be any more specific or definite than was required prior to the amendment. Nunn v. Veale (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 758.

Assignments of error not in compliance with courts of civil appeals rules 24 and 25 (142 S. W. xii), providing that assignments of error must specify the grounds of error, and defining a distinct specification of error, are waived. Elmo Rock Co. v. Sowders (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 270.

18. —— Reasons and grounds of objection.—An assignment of error to the admission of evidence must rest upon the objection made in the trial court. Railway Co. v. Hogsett, 67 T. 685, 4 S. W. 365; Wells v. Burts, 22 S. W. 419, 3 C. A. 430.

An assignment of error which enables the court to see that a particular ruling is complained of is sufficient, although it fails to state the reason why the ruling is claimed to be erroneous. Clarendon L., I. & A. Co. v. McClelland, 23 S. W. 576, 1100, 86 T. 179, 22 L. R. A. 105; Railway Co. v. Ramey (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 654.

Assignments of error complaining of the admission of evidence must be based on the ground of objection in the trial court. House v. Security Mortg. & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 227.

An appellant assigning an instruction as error held not restricted in argument to the reason assigned. Davis v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 17 C. A. 199, 43 S. W. 44.

Assignment of error held sufficient, though it does not state the ground on which the particular ruling complained of is erroneous. Moline Plow Co. v. Mathews (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 699.

An assignment of error is not bad because reasons urged in its support are untenable. Brackenridge v. Claridge, 91 T. 505, 44 S. W. 819, 43 L. R. A. 593.

The appellate court may show a reason not relied on by appellant in the assignment of errors in his brief, against the giving of a certain instruction. Abilene Live-Stock Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 885.

An assignment of error held to present the question of the correctness of an instruction, though the reason given for the objection was not sustained. Wright v. United States Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 368.

Where an assignment expressly alleges a charge to be erroneous on a certain ground, the question as to whether it is erroneous on another ground will not be considered. Faubion v. Western Union Tel. Co., 36 C. A. 98, 81 S. W. 56.

An assignment of error to the exclusion of evidence, failing to state the objections interposed, will not be considered on appeal. Bryson & Hartgrove v. Boyce, 41 C. A. 415, 92 S. W. 820.

Assignments of error should not be incumbered with reasons and arguments tending to obscure the point intended to be presented. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Timon, 45 C. A. 47, 99 S. W. 418.

The rule that the reason given in an assignment of error is not necessarily a part thereof, and that a new reason may be given in the brief, is only applicable where error is assigned to some particular ruling, and not to the final judgment as a whole. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 847.

An assignment of error held required to state the objection on which a contract was refused admission to evidence. Crawford v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 553.

An assignment of error should distinctly specify the ground relied upon for a reversal of the judgment and ordinarily ought to be complete in itself; and if it is not, and there is something else in the record essential to an intelligent ruling upon it, the latter at least should be embraced in the statement in the brief under the assignment. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 50 C. A. 10, 108 S. W. 995; Norton v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1047.

The appellate court may refuse to consider assignments of error which merely state that the court erred in giving charges, and then copy the charges, omitting any information as to the objections thereto. Whitney v. Texas Cent. R. Co., 50 C. A. 1, 110 S. W. 70.

An assignment of error to exclusion of evidence cannot be considered; the ground of the objection to the evidence not being shown. Uecker v. Zuercher, 54 C. A. 289, 118 S. W. 149.

Under this article it is not enough that the assignment complains of an act or omission of the court, but, the reason of the complaint not appearing in the assignment, as in one complaining of the giving of an instruction to return a verdict for nominal damages, and for substantial damages in case the jury find plaintiff entitled thereto, the reason must be given. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell, 104 T. 632, 143 S. W. 1147.

An assignment of error contained an extract of a letter admitted in evidence, and recited, "to which we objected, because it was incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and for the other reasons recited in exceptions Nos. 1 and 2, which objections were overruled and said extract admitted, to which ruling exception was taken by bill No. 6," stating the place in the record where it was found. The propositions under the assignment relate to other matters than the general objections of incompetency, etc. Held, that the assignment could not be considered on appeal, as it does not state what were the other objections to the evidence. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

Assignments of error are not required to specify the appellant's reasons for believing the rulings complained of erroneous. Nunn v. Veale (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 758.

An assignment of error which of itself or by its supporting statement does not disclose in what way the testimony complained of was incompetent, misleading, or prejudicial presents no question for review. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1182.

An assignment of error which does not advise the court upon what theory appellant contends that photographs were inadmissible, or in what respect their admission was harmful, presents no question for review. Id.

An assignment of error based on a bill of exceptions to the admission of evidence not disclosing the ground of objection thereto will not be considered by an appellate court. Stratton v. Riley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 606.

19. —— Rulings on pleadings.—An assignment complaining of the action of the court in overruling certain exceptions to the petition containing two separate and distinct objections, but not specifying the error complained of, will not be considered. An assignment is not aided by the proposition under it. Cannon v. Cannon, 66 T. 682, 3 S. W. 36.

An assignment which fails to point out the error in sustaining an exception to the petition will not be considered. Rusher v. City of Dallas, 83 T. 151, 18 S. W. 333; A., T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Reiner (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 1013; Railway Co. v. Cooper, 85 T. 431, 21 S. W. 678; Peyton v. Cook (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 781.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling the various demurrers is too general. Fontaine v. Bohn (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 637.

Assignments of error attacking rulings on special exceptions to petition must specify the supposed error. Flewellen v. Ft. Bend County, 17 C. A. 155, 42 S. W. 775.

Assignments based upon the action of the court on exceptions to the pleadings will not be considered where the record fails to show that the court acted on them. Johnson v. Gurlach (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1048.

Where an answer contains eight special demurrers, an assignment that the court erred in overruling a special demurrer is too general. Traylor v. State, 19 C. A. 86, 46 S. W. 81.

Assignment of error in "sustaining defendants' general demurrer and four special exceptions" cannot be considered in reference to special exceptions. Marshall v. Atascosa County (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 680.

Under Ct. Civ. App. Rule 26 (20 S. W. viii), an assignment of error that the court erred in sustaining the general and special exceptions to the answer is too general. Hansen v. Yturria (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 795.

Assignment of error that court erred in overruling general demurrer to petition held too indefinite. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Calnon, 20 C. A. 697, 50 S. W. 422.

An assignment that error was committed in overruling the exceptions of defendant, set forth in enumerated paragraphs of pleadings, held insufficient. American Well Works v. De Aguayo (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 350.

Under rule 26 of the court of civil appeals (20 S. W. viii), an assignment that the court erred in overruling defendant's first, second, third, fourth, and fifth special exceptions to the petition, and in overruling defendant's exception to the supplemental petition, is too general to be considered on appeal. Smith v. Russell, 23 C. A. 554, 56 S. W. 687.

An assignment of error that complains of the court's ruling as to one exception only, but does not point out which, is not good. Barnett v. Independent Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1128.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling demurrer to the petition, because it failed to set out a cause of action, is too general to raise the question of error in overruling special exceptions against the petition. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 776.

An assignment of error, complaining of the overruling of special exceptions, which does not indicate the error, will not be considered. Chimene v. Baker, 32 C. A. 520, 75 S. W. 330.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to sustain all of appellant's special demurrers is too general. Baum v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, 32 C. A. 531, 75 S. W. 863.

An assignment of error that the court erred in sustaining the special exceptions to the plea of non est factum, "which plea is hereby referred to and made a part hereof," is insufficient; it pointing out no specific error, and not being followed by a suitable statement. McLeod v. State, 76 S. W. 216, 33 C. A. 170.

Assignment that court erred in sustaining general demurrer and special exceptions of a party held too general. City of San Antonio v. Talerico (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 28.

Where the answer is not in the record, an assignment of error to the sustaining of a special exception thereto cannot be considered. Crawford v. Abbey (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 346.

Assignments of error to the overruling of exceptions to a pleading cannot be considered, the record not showing the exceptions acted on by the court. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1077.

Assignment of error held not too general to prevent consideration on appeal of the action of the trial court on general demurrer. Stark v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1080.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling a motion to strike out parts of answers to direct and cross interrogatories held too general. Bell v. Bates, 36 C. A. 233, 81 S. W. 551.

An assignment of error and an accompanying proposition attacking a judgment in an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message, announcing the death of the brother of the wife of plaintiff, and requesting her to come at once, on the ground that the judgment for plaintiff was contrary to law, in that the petition did not allege that the wife could and would have reached her destination and been present at her brother's funeral had the message been promptly delivered, sufficiently presented the question of the sufficiency of the petition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 42 C. A. 462, 92 S. W. 1036.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling each and all of plaintiff's special exceptions to defendant's special answer and cross-bill held too general. Delaney v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 519.

An assignment of error complaining of a ruling in an action on a note sustaining plaintiff's motion to strike a plea of payment held not reviewable. Bolden v. Hughes, 48 C. A. 496, 107 S. W. 91; Id. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 93.

An assignment that "the court erred in overruling defendant's special demurrers to plaintiff's second amended original petition" not considered, it being too general, and not helped by the exceptions presented. Ryan v. Teague, 50 C. A. 153, 110 S. W. 117.

An assignment of error to an overruling of an exception to the answer held insufficient. Adams v. Gary Lumber Co., 54 C. A. 477, 117 S. W. 1017.

An assignment of error that the court erred in sustaining plaintiff's exceptions, followed by the proposition that defendant had a right to plead the facts, will no be considered where the contents of the pleading complained of are not set out, and it is not shown how or in what way defendant suffered an injury. Herman v. Smith (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1087.

An assignment of error attempting to attack the pleadings cannot be sustained where no basis was made therefor in the trial court. Ash v. A. B. Frank Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 42.

An assignment of error to the overruling of exceptions to the petition cannot be supported by evidence introduced, as shown by the statement of facts. Trotti v. Kinnear (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 326.

Where an assignment of error stated that the court erred in overruling a special exception to the defendant's answer, and the special exception referred to and set out in the statement in support of the assignment was that the special answer to the plea of assumed risk was insufficient to constitute any defense in the action under the law, the assignment was insufficient, in that it failed to point out any specific error. Riley v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 581.

An assignment of error in overruling special exceptions 1–29, inclusive, is too general to be considered. West Lumber Co. v. Chessher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 976.

An assignment of error to the part of a pleading referred to as seeking "to give a dissertation on the doctrine of equitable estoppel applicable to rescission" is itself as indefinite and general as the pleading excepted to, and cannot be reviewed. Adams v. Hill (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 349.

An assignment of error in refusing to sustain plaintiff's several special exceptions to defendant's answer was too general to require consideration. Cooper v. Robischung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1050.

20. —— Conduct of trial.—An assignment of error complaining of counsel's reference in argument to the average yield of rice as shown by commercial reports not in evidence held insufficient. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435.

An assignment that the court erred in not administering to the sheriff the oath required by law before he summoned the jury, and that the jury was not selected by jury commissioners, without any showing that the appellant took exception to such failure other than pointed out by the statement in the assignment itself, is not sufficient. Willis v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 929.

21. —— Rulings as to evidence.—An assignment of error on admission of testimony must refer to the particular testimony. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 16 C. A. 93, 40 S. W. 608.

An assignment of error in refusing to suppress a deposition held insufficient. Fant v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 909.

An assignment of error to the refusal to allow a witness to testify, not showing what answer he would have made, nor the exceptions taken, will be overruled. Blain v. Popper (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 129.

An assignment of error to the admission of expert testimony by a nonexpert witness held insufficient. Texas Midland R. R. v. Tidwell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 641.

An assignment of error to permitting defendant to read in evidence 13 direct interrogatories and the answers thereto of a specified person is too general. Berg v. San Antonio St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 921.

An assignment that the court erred in excluding certain title deeds held not too general. Stier v. Latreyte (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 589.

No reversible error is shown by assignments complaining of the admission of evidence, when the bill of exceptions does not show what the evidence was. West End Dock Co. v. Galveston City Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 752.

An assignment of error, failing to specify any ground of objection to the evidence therein set forth, cannot be considered. Altgelt v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 41.

An assignment that the court erred in permitting counsel to ask certain questions, failing to show that any objection was urged to the answers, was insufficient. Id.

An assignment of error held not to impose upon the court of civil appeals the duty of passing upon the testimony. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 400.

An assignment of error complaining of the erroneous admission of testimony held not reviewable because of the insufficiency of the assignment. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 607.

An assignment of error on the exclusion of evidence held insufficiently presented. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Telles (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 444.

An assignment that the court erred in permitting a witness to testify, which does not show whether the testimony objected to was favorable or unfavorable to the party complaining, will not be considered. Schneider v. Rabb (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 163.

Appellant held not precluded from a review of an assignment of error by a mistake in giving the name of a witness to whom the objectionable questions were put. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Still, 45 C. A. 169, 100 S. W. 176.

It is not permissible to base an assignment of error upon a question which was not asked formed by consolidating several which were asked, since there could be no ruling of the court upon such fabricated question which could be regarded as a bill of exceptions. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Powers (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 252.

An assignment of error complaining of the admission of certain evidence, which does not show what the evidence was, or that it was excepted to, will be overruled. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Bivens, 47 C. A. 396, 105 S. W. 831.

Assignment of error to admission of evidence, which does not set out the testimony complained of, nor make any reference to the pages of the record where it can be found, held insufficient. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Buchanan, 48 C. A. 129, 107 S. W. 595.

Held, that an assignment of error in improperly admitting evidence was too indefinite to be considered. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 453.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal to permit a witness to answer a question which does not show what answer would have been made is not sufficient to present the matter for review. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435.

Where assignments of error complaining of the sustaining of objections to answers in a deposition do not set out the answers objected to, and they are not shown in the subjoined statement, and no reference is made to bills of exception taken to the court's ruling, the assignments cannot be considered. Starkey v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 53 C. A. 333, 115 S. W. 853.

Assignments of error complaining of the exclusion of evidence held not presented as required by the rules. Frazier v. Lambert, 53 C. A. 506, 115 S. W. 1174.

An assignment of error in admitting testimony, "as set out in defendant's bill of exceptions," the testimony not being set out in the brief, was not a proper assignment of error under the rules relating thereto. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Spencer, 55 C. A. 456, 119 S. W. 716.

An assignment of error will not be considered by the appellate court where the evidence relating to the assignment is not pointed out. Maricle v. McAlister Fuel Co., 55 C. A. 178, 121 S. W. 221.

An assignment of error in rendering judgment for appellees against appellants, under which various propositions were submitted complaining of the admission of evidence, etc., is too general to require consideration on appeal. Stephenville Oil Mill v. McNeill, 57 C. A. 252, 122 S. W. 911.

Where neither assignments of error to the admission of testimony, nor the proposition or statement made under them, set out the objectionable testimony except in a very general way, and no bills of exception were taken to the rulings, the assignments will not be considered. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's permitting a witness to testify as to the contents of "a certain promissory note" was insufficient; no means of identification being given. Mounce v. Crowson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 915.

An assignment that the court erred in holding that the sale of piling by defendant to a third person was void, and that the garnishee was liable to plaintiff for the value thereof, and that the third person was not a necessary party to the suit, accompanied by a proposition that when the controverting affidavit states that defendant fraudulently conveyed property to a third party after the service of the writ, and that the garnishee participated in the fraudulent scheme, and the third party who is not a party to the suit, afterwards sold the property to the garnishee, the garnishee is entitled to his discharge, does not raise the issue of the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the finding that the pretended sale to the third party was a sham. Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

Where an assignment of errors in the bill of exceptions concerning evidence does not clearly show whether it was admitted or excluded, the assignment is not sufficient to cause a reversal, even though such evidence would have been improper if admitted. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 974.

An assignment that the court erred in the admission and rejection of testimony held too general. Edwards v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 510.

An assignment of error complaining of the exclusion of certain evidence, which does not show wherein the court erred or why the evidence was admissible, will not be considered. Rader v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 718.

Where an assignment was based on a bill of exceptions to the exclusion of evidence which showed some admissible evidence and some that was not, without separation, the entire assignment would be overruled. Peugh v. Moody (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 296.

In an action by a former partner of a firm, which sold its business to defendant corporation, to recover a part of the corporate shares, or their reasonable value, which plaintiff claimed it was agreed he should receive, in which defendant claimed that plaintiff had received the whole consideration agreed to be paid him for his interest, an assignment of error by defendant was that there was no evidence showing that the overcharge amounted to more than the necessary cost of purchasing goods; but the assignment did not refer to the evidence, but referred "to preceding statements." Held, that the assignment was insufficient, and would not be considered. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

An assignment of error complained that plaintiff was allowed to ask what were the terms of contract between the defendants, over objection that the contract was the best evidence "as appears by bill of exceptions No. 3," and the proposition under it was that it was the court's duty to construe the contract. The bill of exceptions showed evidence by the witness as to who paid for some of the materials required by the contract, and that some of the work was not done in accordance with the plans and specifications, admitted over objection that it was irrelevant and that it tended to contradict the written contract. Held, that the assignment should be overruled for lack of support in the record; the objection in the assignment and proposition not being that taken at the trial, and the evidence objected to having no tendency to show the terms of the contract by parol. Ripley v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corp. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 974.

An assignment of error, complaining of the sustaining of objections to a letter offered in evidence, will be overruled, where it does not show what objections were made or that the court ever ruled on any objections. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Perry (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 280.

An assignment of error to the exclusion of evidence, some of which was properly excluded, will be overruled, where appellant fails to point out the particular portion of the evidence which should have been admitted. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 306.

Error in overruling objections to questions cannot be held prejudicial, where appellant's brief and assignments of error do not show what answers were made. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 904.

An assignment of error which does not advise the court upon what theory appellant contends that photographs were inadmissible or how their admission was harmful presents no question for review. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1182.

Where assignments of error complaining of the admission of evidence made no mention of the witnesses permitted to testify to the matters complained of, and the statement following made no reference to bills of exceptions reserved to the testimony, and the record contained no reference, there was no basis for the assignments, and they would be overruled. Texas Irr. Co. v. Moore, Bryan & Perry (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 166.

An assignment of error to the admission of long answers to long interrogatories as not responsive and stating a mere conclusion will not be considered, where it does not point out what part of the answer was not responsive, and what part was the opinion or conclusion of the witness. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 305.

Assignments of error to the admission of evidence, not showing the evidence admitted, will not be reviewed. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 657.

An assignment of error in the exclusion of evidence which, together with the bill of exceptions, does not show the answer excluded, presents no error. Cooper v. Robischung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1050.

An assignment of error complaining that evidence was not authorized under the pleading will not be considered, where the statement failed to disclose the pleading on that subject. El Paso & S. W. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 356.

An assignment of error complaining of the admission of evidence will be overruled, where the bill of exceptions does not show that the evidence was admitted. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 364.

22. —— Submission of issues to jury.—An assignment of error, stating that "the court erred in peremptorily directing the jury to find for plaintiff, because the evidence supports the several defenses pleaded by defendant," is too general to require consideration. Liner v. J. B. Watkins Land Mortg. Co., 29 C. A. 187, 68 S. W. 311.

Assignments of error, alleging that the court erred in directing a verdict for defendant, are sufficient without including the evidence therein. Long v. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1048.

Assignments of error that the court erred in refusing to allow plaintiff to take a nonsuit, and that the court erred in giving plaintiff a nonsuit and then entering judgment against plaintiff, are too general to be considered. Logan v. Lennix, 40 C. A. 62, 88 S. W. 364.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of special charges requested by plaintiff, and the giving in lieu thereof of a peremptory charge for defendant, does not require the court on appeal to review the peremptory charge in the absence of a pointing out of testimony in the record supporting plaintiff's claim. Crowley v. Finch (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 648.

Under this article, and court of civil appeals rules 23 and 25 (142 S. W. xii), providing that, if the record does not contain an assignment of error as required, the court will not consider any error but one of law apparent on the record, and that a distinct specification of error must point out the part of the proceedings complained of in a particular manner, the giving of a peremptory charge for defendant will not be reviewed where there is no assignment of error which points out the testimony in the record in support of plaintiff's claim. Id.

23. —— Instructions.—An assignment complaining of the refusal of the court to give a certain charge containing several instructions will not be considered. Cannon v. Cannon, 66 T. 682, 3 S. W. 36; Northern Assur. Co. v. Samuels, 11 C. A. 417, 33 S. W. 239.

Assignment of error as to instructions held too vague to be considered. Rork v. Shields, 16 C. A. 640, 42 S. W. 1032.

An assignment of error that "the court erred in its charge to the jury on the law of the case" is too general to be considered on appeal. Deware v. Wichita Val. Mill & Elevator Co., 17 C. A. 394, 43 S. W. 1047.

An assignment that the court erred in its charge, which fails to specifically point out the error, will not be considered. Therriault v. Compere (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 750.

Where a requested instruction on which an assignment of error is based is not set out, the assignment will not be considered. Mansfield v. Neese, 21 C. A. 584, 54 S. W. 370.

The refusal of special charges will not be considered on appeal, when the contents of such special charges are not set out in the assignment of error or briefs. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Laws (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 498.

An assignment of error that the court refused to give requested charges "Nos. 1 to 8" is too general, and will not be considered. Johnson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 485.

Where an assignment of error in refusing an instruction states its substance, it is sufficient, though portions of the instruction which make no substantial addition thereto are not quoted. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Lynes (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1119.

An assignment of error to an instruction held insufficient. Yecker v. San Antonio Traction Co., 33 C. A. 239, 76 S. W. 780.

An assignment of error that a charge "was reversible error" was too general. Central Texas & N. W. R. Co. v. Gibson, 35 C. A. 66, 79 S. W. 351.

An assignment of error complaining of refusal of one charge and failure to give another held bad. Metcalfe v. Lowenstein, 35 C. A. 619, 81 S. W. 362.

An instruction is not reviewable on appeal where neither the assignment of error, nor the proposition thereunder, points out the issue submitted, which it is claimed was not raised by the evidence, and the statement following the proposition gives no information on the subject. Gray v. Moore, 37 C. A. 407, 84 S. W. 293.

Where an assignment of error complains of a clause in the charge, but neither the assignment nor the proposition thereunder points out the error, the assignment presents nothing for review. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Sanchez (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 849.

Reference to evidence warranting a requested instruction held insufficient to require the court to review the same. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Beattie (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 367.

An assignment of error to the giving of a particular instruction held insufficient. Stone v. Stitt, 56 C. A. 465, 121 S. W. 187.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's failure to submit an issue in a certain manner, although charges were requested, held insufficient. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Word (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 478.

An assignment of error to a refusal of an instruction which does not state that there was evidence to warrant the giving of the instruction, or what evidence was relied upon as supporting the assignment, will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Johnson & Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 725.

Failure to point out wherein a charge was erroneous held to waive the error. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Averill (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 98.

Assignment complaining of error in the refusal of a requested charge would not be considered, where neither the charge nor the substance was disclosed in the assignment or statement, and no evidence requiring the same was set out. Mitchell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 501.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal to give a special instruction which merely states that the charge "was intended to instruct the jury that the defendant was not responsible if the damage, if any, was due to inevitable accident," is insufficient; the court being unable therefrom to determine whether the charge was such a one as should have been given, even if the evidence had presented the issue. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 545.

In an assignment directed to the giving or refusal of charges, either the assignment or the statement must give at least so much of the substance of the charge as will enable the court on appeal to determine whether it is in form and substance proper, and generally it is better to set out the charge in full. Knight v. Durham (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 591.

An assignment of error to refusing to instruct held insufficient as a proposition of law in itself. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

An assignment of error to the refusal of instructions is insufficient where the refused instructions are not set out, and the statement does not refer to any part of the record containing them. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1167.

An assignment of error to the refusal of an instruction cannot be considered where the substance of the instruction is not set out in the assignment. Funk v. Miller (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 24.

Assignments of error to the refusal of special instructions, having no file marks and not shown to have been submitted to or acted upon by the trial court, will be overruled. Big Valley Irr. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 715.

An assignment of error to the refusal of instructions by merely copying the assignment complaining of the refusal of the particular charge, stating it, is insufficient, and cannot be considered. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

An assignment of error to the giving of instructions will be considered, where defendant sets out enough of the substance of the charge complained of to identify the objectionable construction, though it is not copied into the brief, or the page of the record given where it is found. Id.

An assignment of error to the giving of instructions will be considered, where defendant sets out enough of the substance of the charge complained of to identify the objectionable instruction, though it is not copied into the brief, or the page of the record given where it is found. Id.

An assignment of error complaining of the charge as a whole is too general. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Worsham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 755.

An assignment of error, that the court erred in refusing to give "special instruction No. 1, requested by the defendant, as follows," followed by a quotation of the instruction, is sufficient. Nunn v. Veale (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 758.

Assignments of error to the refusal of special charges must point out the error, show that they were not covered by the general charge, and were justified by the evidence. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trout (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1137.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of an instruction could not be considered, where neither the proposition nor statement pointed out any evidence showing the relevancy of the instruction to the facts. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

Assignments of error to the refusal of instructions are not reviewable, where they are not set out in the assignments, nor in the statement thereunder. Lupton v. Willmann (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 261.

24. —— Verdict, findings, or decision.—An assignment of errors that "the verdict of the jury under the law and the facts is grossly excessive" is too general. City of Galveston v. Devlin, 84 T. 319, 19 S. W. 395; Cannon v. Cannon, 66 T. 685, 3 S. W. 36; Railway Co. v. Hinzie, 82 T. 623, 18 S. W. 681.

Assignment of error that the finding is contrary to the preponderance of the evidence, and is without evidence to support it, held too general. Cullen v. Emgard (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 538.

Assignment of error that verdict is not supported by the evidence held too general. Fant v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 909.

An assignment of error that there is no evidence to support the verdict held not sustainable. Payton v. Love, 20 C. A. 613, 49 S. W. 1109.

An assignment of error "that the verdict of the jury is excessive" held too general. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Scharbauer (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 589.

Assignment of error, that judgment was contrary to law and evidence held too general. Wetz v. Wetz, 27 C. A. 597, 66 S. W. 869; Modern Brotherhood of America v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 626; Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

Assignment of error as to insufficiency of evidence held insufficient on appeal. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Shults (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 45.

Where an answer set up three special defenses, and the trial court directed a verdict generally for defendant, without specifying the ground on which the instruction was based, it was necessary for plaintiff, in order to secure a reversal, to attack the verdict on appeal on all the issues raised. Webb's Heirs v. Kirby Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 543, 107 S. W. 581.

An assignment of error held insufficient as an attack on the finding of fact that plaintiff claimed under a deed from K. and wife. Best v. Kirkendall (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 932.

An assignment of error that "the verdict of the jury was not supported by any evidence and a new trial should be granted" held, too general and indefinite. Norton v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1044.

In an action against an insurance company on a policy, an assignment of error held to sufficiently raise the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain certain findings of fact. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Green (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 1131.

An assignment of error complaining of the verdict on the ground that it is contrary to the evidence is too general to require consideration on appeal. Goodwin & McFarland v. Burton, 54 C. A. 586, 118 S. W. 587.

An assignment of error that "the verdict of the jury is greatly excessive" is obnoxious to the rules of the courts of civil appeals, and will not be considered. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 109.

An assignment of error that the judgment is without pleading and evidence to support it held too general to be considered on appeal. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 512.

An assignment of error in receiving a verdict not responsive to the pleadings, but not pointing out in what particular it was not responsive, is improper. Willis v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 929.

Assignments of error complaining of the entire conclusions of law or fact are too general to be considered. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hamlin Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 605.

An assignment of error that the verdict is excessive and finds an amount greater than the testimony warrants is too general. Pritchard Rice Milling Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 817.

An assignment of error in a personal injury case that the verdict of the jury is greatly excessive is too indefinite for consideration. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Matlock (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1067.

An assignment of error, that a verdict is not supported by competent evidence, and is excessive, is too general for review. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 728.

An assignment that the court erred in instructing the jury to bring in a verdict for a certain sum as the undisputed evidence showed that defendant did not owe that much to plaintiff is an assignment as to the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the verdict, and, as such, is insufficient. Rockowitz v. Rockowitz (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1070.

An assignment that the verdict is contrary to the law and the evidence, is not supported by the evidence, and is excessive in amount, is too general. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Worsham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 755.

An assignment of error complaining that the "verdict of the jury is excessive in amount," being too general, could not be considered, especially where the motion for a new trial wholly failed to specify wherein the verdict was excessive. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Goodrich (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1176.

An assignment of error which attacks the verdict for insufficiency of the evidence is too general, where no specific evidence relied on is pointed out. Dromgoole Bros. v. Lissauer & Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1154.

Assignments of error that the verdict is contrary to the law, that it is not supported by the evidence, and that it is contrary to the great preponderance of the evidence are too general to be reviewed. Alexander v. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 235.

An assignment of error that the verdict and judgment were not supported by the evidence, which was insufficient and incompetent, followed by a statement, "Statement of facts, pp. 2 to 74," is merely an assignment that the verdict and judgment are not supported by the evidence, and too general to be considered. Hutto v. Hall (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1022.

An assignment of error complaining of apparent contradictions and discrepancies in the testimony will not be considered; that being exclusively for the jury. Rodgers-Wade Furniture Co. v. Wynn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 340.

An assignment of error that the judgment was contrary to the law and the evidence, and that judgment should have been rendered for appellant, was too general to require consideration. Groesbeck v. Wiest (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 258.

An assignment of error that a finding of fact is not supported by the evidence but is contrary to the preponderance of the evidence, and an assignment that the court erred in rendering the judgment for the successful party, are too general to require consideration on appeal. Straight v. Goodwin (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 425.

25. —— Motions for new trial.—An assignment of error as to the motion for new trial held too general. City of Comanche v. Zettlemoyer (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 641.

An assignment of error in overruling a motion for new trial, based on points in previous assignments, is too general. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gaither (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 266.

An assignment of error that the court erred in not sustaining defendant's motion for a new trial, because the verdict was not supported by the evidence or the charge of the court, held not sufficiently specific. Williams v. Yoe, 22 C. A. 446, 54 S. W. 614.

Where neither the assignment of error nor the proposition thereunder points out in what respect the evidence is deficient, an assignment that the court erred in refusing a new trial, because the verdict and judgment are not supported by the evidence, is not sufficient to authorize an appellate court to revise the verdict. King v. Henderson, 69 S. W. 487, 29 C. A. 601.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, in that the motion set out good cause for a new trial, is too general. Hughey v. Mosby, 31 C. A. 76, 71 S. W. 395.

An assignment of error, that "the trial court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial," held too general. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Dobie & Billingsley (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 340; Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Young, 50 C. A. 610, 111 S. W. 764; Paterson v. Rector (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 561; Holland v. Closs (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 671; Montrose Lumber Co. v. Jefferson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1187; Cain v. Delaney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 751.

Where the assignment of error in refusing a new trial on ground of newly discovered testimony did not comply with the rules of court, in that it failed to point out the specific error complained of, and there was no proposition submitted under it, and no statement, it need not be considered. Taylor v. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co., 83 S. W. 738, 36 C. A. 658.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to grant defendant a new trial because the verdict was contrary to the law and the evidence held too general. Brewster v. State, 40 C. A. 1, 88 S. W. 858.

Assignments of error to the refusal to set aside the verdict and judgment and grant a new trial, because the verdict and judgment were not authorized by the instruction, the pleadings, and evidence, and because the verdict and judgment were not responsive to nor decisive of the issues made by the pleading, evidence, and instructions, are too general to be considered on appeal. First State Bank of Hamlin v. Jones & Nixon (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 145.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling a motion for new trial for each reason therein stated, as stated in each paragraph therein, held improper. Sumner v. Kinney (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1192.

A motion for a new trial on the ground of the insufficiency of the evidence to support the verdict, which did not point out wherein the evidence was insufficient, was too general to support an assignment of error on appeal. Combest v. Glenn (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 112.

An assignment of error that a court erred in overruling a motion for new trial, "said motion setting out good and sufficient reasons why the verdict and judgment rendered herein should be set aside" and a new trial granted, since the court had improperly overruled defendant's general demurrer and four special exceptions, and since the verdict and judgment were not supported by the pleadings and testimony, is too general to require consideration, as it does not point out wherein the court erred in overruling the demurrer and exceptions, nor in what respect the judgment was not supported by the pleadings and testimony. Harrington & Overton v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 662.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling an amended motion for new trial because the verdict is contrary to law, and is not supported by the evidence, in that the great preponderance of the evidence is in favor of defendant, is too general to be considered. Bennett v. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1189.

An assignment, complaining that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, upon the ground that the "verdict of the jury is grossly excessive in amount as to all and each of the plaintiffs," being too general, and not in compliance with the rules for briefing, could not be considered. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Geer (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1178.

An assignment of error that the court erred in denying a new trial for the reasons in the bill of exceptions, based on errors in the charge, and in granting special charges, cannot be considered, because it fails to specify the grounds of error relied on, as required by this article and court rules 24–26 (142 S. W. xii). Sullivan v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 838.

An assignment of error which seeks to raise every question presented in the motion for new trial is too general to be considered. Dromgoole Bros. v. Lissauer & Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1154.

An assignment that "the court erred in overruling the defendant's motion for a new trial for the reasons assigned in said motion" is too general to be considered. Smith v. Adoue & Lobit (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 258.

An assignment of error complaining, in a general manner, that a new trial was improperly refused because the verdict was grossly excessive and unsupported by the evidence is insufficient to warrant consideration on appeal. Artesian Belt Ry. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 672.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling a motion for new trial because the verdict was clearly excessive is too general to be considered. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 678.

Under rule 24 for courts of civil appeals (142 S. W. xii), where defendant filed a number of general and special demurrers and moved for a new trial on the ground that the court erred in overruling them, assignments that the court erred in overruling particular special exceptions and in overruling a motion for a new trial will not be considered; no ground of error being distinctly set forth in the motion for a new trial. Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing a new trial because the verdict was excessive under the undisputed evidence is too general to justify consideration on appeal. Peacock v. Coltrane (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1087.

26. —— Judgment.—An assignment that "the court erred because the judgment is not supported by the evidence" is not a compliance with the statute or rules of the supreme court, it being too general. Ackerman v. Huff, 71 T. 317, 9 S. W. 236; Noell v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 553; Baxter v. Baker's Ex'r (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 258.

An assignment of error stating that "the judgment is excessive under the evidence" is too general. Consolidated Kansas City S. & R. Co. v. Couring (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 547.

Where plaintiff's claim consisted of several items, and the judgment was for less than the total amount, an assignment that the damage sustained did not equal the judgment is too general. Southern Pac. Co. v. Redding, 17 C. A. 440, 43 S. W. 1061.

Assignments of error that (1) "The court erred in rendering judgment for plaintiff under the facts in this case, and (2) the court erred in not rendering judgment for the defendant because the facts showed that the defendant had title to the land in controversy and that plaintiff was a mere trespasser," are too general to be considered. Cartmell v. Gammage (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 316.

An assignment of error held not to authorize a consideration of the sufficiency of the evidence of defendant's negligence to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Harby, 28 C. A. 24, 67 S. W. 541.

An objection to a judgment as erroneous held not open to consideration under the assignment of error. Hipp v. City of Houston, 30 C. A. 573, 71 S. W. 39.

An assignment of error that the judgment is contrary to the law and the evidence is too general. Thompson v. Chaffee, 39 C. A. 567, 89 S. W. 285; Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

An assignment that the court erred in not rendering judgment in favor of defendant and against plaintiff is too general, and may properly be disregarded. City of Houston v. Potter, 41 C. A. 381, 91 S. W. 389.

An assignment that "the court erred in not rendering judgment for defendant and in rendering judgment for plaintiff" is too general to be considered. Yeakley v. Gaston, 50 C. A. 405, 111 S. W. 768.

Under this article and rules 24–26 (67 S. W. xv) of the courts of civil appeals, an assignment of error that the evidence and verdict do not support the judgment, which fails to specifically point out the error complained of, and which is followed by a proposition merely reiterating the objection, will not be considered on appeal. Jefferson Fire Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Greenwood (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 319.

Assignments of error that the judgment of the court below is contrary to law and against the preponderance of the evidence, which in itself is conflicting, incompetent, and insufficient, are too general to require consideration. Warren v. Warren (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 272.

An assignment of error, merely reciting that the court entered a judgment and found against the defendant for the amount sued for, with interest, to which action the defendant excepted, on the ground that the said finding was contrary to the law and the evidence, is too general to be considered. Modern Brotherhood of America v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 626.

Where the only issue was as to the amount of credits to which defendants were entitled, an assignment that "the court erred in not giving defendants credit for all sums shown to have been paid by them" was not sufficient. Abernathy v. McCrummen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 665.

27. Several assignments on same ruling.—Where several assignments of error are the same, except that under each a different reason is given, the assignments are but one assignment supported by different propositions. Judgment (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 289, affirmed. Aspley v. Hawkins, 99 T. 380, 89 S. W. 972.

Where an assignment of error is in effect that the court erred in denying the motion for new trial, and gives the several grounds relied on in motion, and this is followed by several other assignments, which are really propositions under the first, and in the brief are stated to be propositions, and are all grouped and followed by one statement, such succeeding assignments should be treated as propositions under the first to be passed upon by the court. Rice v. Dewberry (Sup.) 93 S. W. 721.

28. Including errors in one assignment.—An assignment of errors embracing nine separate and distinct questions will not be considered. Foy v. East Dallas Bank (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 137.

Assignment of error in overruling exceptions presenting several questions held insufficient. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Downing, 16 C. A. 643, 41 S. W. 190.

An assignment of error will not be considered where there are various propositions in the assignment itself, as well as in the purported single proposition under it, and the ruling complained of is not disclosed. Grinnan v. Rousseaux, 20 C. A. 19, 48 S. W. 58.

An assignment of error dealing with two or more distinct propositions cannot be considered. Fouke v. Brengle (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 519; House v. Brown, 21 C. A. 576, 54 S. W. 396; McCreary v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 682; Cochran v. Siegfried (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 542; Baum v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, Id. 863; Wren v. Howland, Id. 894; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fales, 33 C. A. 457, 77 S. W. 234; Masterson v. F. W. Heitmann & Co., 38 C. A. 476, 87 S. W. 227; Wilkins v. Clawson, 50 C. A. 82, 110 S. W. 103; O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899; Hess v. Webb, 103 T. 46, 123 S. W. 111; Riggins v. Sass (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1064; Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

An assignment of error containing objections to different issues which are grouped is insufficient to authorize a review thereof. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bryson, 25 C. A. 74, 61 S. W. 548.

An assignment of error, suggesting a diversity of questions and failing to present any definite proposition, is fatally defective for multifariousness. Stevens v. Germania Life Ins. Co., 26 C. A. 156, 62 S. W. 824.

An assignment of error embracing more than one subject is void, and the appellate court cannot consider it. Aycock v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n, 26 C. A. 341, 63 S. W. 953.

An assignment of error consisting of several paragraphs, submitting diverse issues, and presenting different propositions of law, held objectionable. Cetti v. Dunman, 26 C. A. 433, 64 S. W. 787.

An assignment of error which is insufficient because it complains of two distinct rulings is not aided by propositions and statements in the brief explaining each of the rulings complained of. Cammack v. Rogers, 73 S. W. 795, 96 T. 457.

An assignment of error embracing separate and distinct propositions, but not submitted as propositions, nor followed by any proper statement, will not be considered on appeal. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Huber, 75 S. W. 547, 33 C. A. 75.

Where assignments of error relating to entirely different questions of law are grouped, and not briefed in compliance with the rules, they will not be reviewed. Lewis v. Hoeldtke (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 309.

The court of review will not subdivide and reconstruct assignments of error, in order to reverse a judgment for a technical error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Purdy (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 37.

In an action for injuries defendant grouped on appeal five assignments of error: First, that the evidence did not support the verdict; second, third, and fourth, that the court erred in refusing special charges; and, fifth, that the court erred in refusing a new trial because the facts showed contributory negligence. Held, that such assignments were not germane, and, as the propositions supporting the same related to all the assignments, they would not be reviewed. (Civ. App.) Peck v. Peck, 37 C. A. 167, 83 S. W. 257, judgment affirmed, 99 T. 10, 87 S. W. 248.

An assignment of error complaining of two distinct rulings of the court is insufficient, and is not aided by propositions and statements in the brief explaining the several rulings. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Boykin (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1163.

Under court of civil appeals rules Nos. 24, 25, 26 (67 S. W. xv), certain assignments of error held multifarious and too general. Evans v. Jackson, 41 C. A. 277, 92 S. W. 47.

Under the rule requiring that each point under each assignment of error shall be stated as a proposition, a number of assignments of error not followed by propositions, but each stated as a proposition in itself, presenting separate and distinct grounds for reversal cannot be presented together as one assignment. Rice v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 715.

An assignment of error attempting to collect every point on which the appeal was based into one point held multifarious and fatally defective. Russell v. Deutschman (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1164.

An assignment of error based upon two separate and distinct rulings of the court, where the points involved in each are likewise separate and distinct, is bad. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Powers (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 250.

An assignment of error involving two separate and distinct propositions, one raising a question of pleading and the other of evidence, is not entitled under the rules of the court of civil appeals to consideration. Baldwin v. Polti, 45 C. A. 638, 101 S. W. 543.

Assignments of error held improperly grouped under court of civil appeals rule 30, and will not be considered. Jones v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 808.

An assignment of error presenting many different propositions held not to be considered. Morrow v. Camp (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 819; Allen v. Same, Id.

Several assignments of error relating respectively to several distinct rulings cannot be grouped in appellant's brief. Hayward Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 403.

A multifarious assignment of error will not be considered. Kerr v. Blair, 47 C. A. 406, 105 S. W. 548; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McDuffey, 50 C. A. 202, 109 S. W. 1104; De Hoyos v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 52 C. A. 543, 115 S. W. 75; Mitchell v. Boyce (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1016; Riggins v. Sass (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1064; Williamson v. Powell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 359; Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968; Bowers v. Goats (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1013.

Where an assignment of error is grouped and presented with other assignments to which it is not germane, none of such assignments are required to be considered. Wilkins v. Clawson, 50 C. A. 82, 110 S. W. 103.

Assignments of error held improperly grouped in appellant's brief, so that they could not be considered. Combest v. Wall (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 354.

A part of an assignment of error grouped with other assignments of error which is wholly disconnected from that contained in the other portions of the assignment and from the other assignments is improperly placed in the group. Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 173, 115 S. W. 674.

Assignments of error, presenting disconnected questions which are grouped as one assignment, will not be considered. Munroe v. Munroe, 54 C. A. 320, 116 S. W. 878.

Certain assignments of error held improperly grouped. Johnson v. Hulett, 56 C. A. 11, 120 S. W. 257.

An assignment of error which embraces two or more questions which are not related will not be considered where appellant objects thereto. Land v. Roby, 56 C. A. 333, 120 S. W. 1057.

An assignment of error held not entitled to consideration because embracing two or more distinct and inconsistent propositions of law. J. T. Stark Grain Co. v. Harry Bros. Co., 57 C. A. 529, 122 S. W. 947.

An assignment of error involving the decision of two separate questions held contrary to the rules of the court of civil appeals relating to the briefing of cases, and need not be considered. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

An assignment of error complaining of separate and distinct rulings of the court is improper. Adams v. Garner (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 896.

The matter in assignments of error held required to be separately presented. Carrico v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 260.

An assignment of error held not reviewable when containing several separate issues. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

An assignment of error held not objectionable as submitting two distinct propositions of law. Dunn v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 311.

An assignment of error which presents three distinct propositions, contrary to court of civil appeals rule 29 (141 S. W. xiii), need not be considered on appeal. Hayes v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 327.

Assignments of error complaining that a specific finding is not supported by the evidence, and also of the court's charge, are improper, being multifarious. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

On appeal by plaintiff from a judgment in an action on a note, assignments of error complaining of refusal to sustain plaintiff's special exceptions to defendant's plea of suretyship, and to the admission of evidence thereof and to the submission thereof, held properly grouped as presenting substantially the same question of law. Wright v. Hulme (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 340.

Assignments presenting separate and distinct questions for decision are improperly grouped, under the rules, and are not entitled to consideration by the court. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

Grouping assignments of error presenting separate, distinct, and unrelated questions is violative of the rules, so that they will not be considered. Cleburne Electric & Gas Co. v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 534.

A reviewing court, under rule No. 32 (142 S. W. xiii) need not consider an assignment of error containing three separate and distinct propositions of law. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wininger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 586.

29. —— Rulings on pleadings.—An assignment to the overruling of exceptions cannot be considered, where there were several exceptions on different grounds. Earle v. City of Henrietta (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 727; Homes v. Same, Id., 728.

Where assignment of error in sustaining general and special demurrers is good only as to general demurrer, it will not be considered. Marshall v. Atascosa County (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 680.

Under rule 20, a single assignment of error in overruling several special demurrers presenting different questions cannot be considered. Devine v. United States Mortg. Co. of Scotland (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 585.

An assignment of error which complains of the court's action upon two motions seeking different relief and involving several questions will not be considered. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

An assignment of error complaining of court's ruling on six distinct special exceptions will not be considered. Scott v. De Witt, 42 C. A. 69, 93 S. W. 215.

An assignment that the court erred in sustaining plaintiff's first and second special exceptions is too general where the exceptions present different questions of law. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cox, 43 C. A. 79, 95 S. W. 1124.

Where a motion to quash garnishment proceedings set out eight grounds, on appeal, the court of civil appeals will not consider all the grounds under a general assignment that the trial court erred in refusing to quash. Burge v. Beaumont Carriage Co., 47 C. A. 223, 105 S. W. 232.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's ruling on several distinct special exceptions will not be considered. Caffall v. Bandera Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 105.

An assignment of error in overruling special exceptions 1–29, inclusive, is too general to be considered. West Lumber Co. v. Chessher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 976.

An assignment of error that the court erred in sustaining the special exception to the answer "subdivided into (a), (b), (c), and (d)," is multifarious. Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

30. —— Rulings as to evidence.—An assignment of error specifying, as such, admission of evidence, part of which is competent, will not be considered. Ft. Worth Compress Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co., 18 C. A. 622, 45 S. W. 967.

An assignment of error complaining of the exclusion of evidence will not be considered, where there are various propositions in the assignment itself, as well as in the purported single proposition under it, and the ruling complained of is not disclosed. Grinnan v. Rousseaux, 48 S. W. 58, 781, 20 C. A. 19.

Assignments presenting two questions, the admissibility of testimony for the purpose of proof and for the purpose of contradiction, are not in such form as to require consideration on appeal. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. De Berry, 34 C. A. 180, 78 S. W. 736.

An assignment in the brief complaining of the introduction of a land office copy of the classification and appraisement of lands in controversy, because of a specific indorsement, cannot be considered where the bill of exceptions extends as well to the classification and appraisement, which were admissible in evidence. Bynum v. Hobbs, 56 C. A. 557, 121 S. W. 900.

Where part of the testimony of a witness testifying by deposition is admissible and part inadmissible, an assignment complaining of the exclusion of all of the testimony will be overruled. O'Brien v. Von Lienen (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 723.

An assignment of error to the exclusion of evidence consisting of different written instruments, as well as much oral testimony, the exclusion of which raises various questions of law, will not be considered. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 306.

An assignment of error complaining of the admission of the testimony of a certain witness as a whole could not be sustained where part of such testimony was admissible. Mott v. Spring Garden Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 658.

31. —— Instructions.—An assignment based on refusal of four distinct and separate charges, embodying different propositions, is too general. Railway Co. v. Donovan, 25 S. W. 10, 86 T. 378.

Where a paragraph of a charge presented plaintiff's whole case, including several issues of negligence, a general assignment of error held bad. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Echols, 17 C. A. 677, 41 S. W. 488.

Where one excepts to a charge to justify which there must be evidence on two propositions, and in his assignment of error he questions the existence of evidence as to only one proposition, the court will not consider whether there was evidence upon the other proposition. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Eberheart, 91 T. 321, 43 S. W. 510.

Assignments of error to the refusal of the court to give different special charges presenting different phases of the case should not be grouped. Halff v. Goldfrank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1095.

An assignment of error to the court's refusal to give five separate special instructions on different subjects held too general. Yecker v. San Antonio Traction Co., 33 C. A. 239, 76 S. W. 780.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, refusal of two requests to charge on different matters cannot be grouped in a single assignment of error. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Cain, 37 C. A. 531, 84 S. W. 682.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's refusal to give several special charges involving separate rulings relating to different questions will not be considered. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 577.

Grouped assignments of error which complain of the court's refusal to give special instructions presenting separate and distinct issues to the jury, and in no way connected with each other, will not be considered. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Texas Tram & Lumber Co., 50 C. A. 182, 110 S. W. 140.

A grouping of assignments of error on an appeal held to be a violation of the rules as to briefing. Scott v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 54 C. A. 54, 117 S. W. 890.

A single assignment of error complaining of the refusal to give special charges not germane to each other, but presenting distinct propositions of law, will not be considered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Neiser, 54 C. A. 460, 118 S. W. 166.

An assignment of error in giving a charge which was joined with an assignment of error in refusing a requested charge, designed to supplement the charge given, was not a valid assignment, and the propositions thereunder could not take the place of a valid assignment. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal to give requested instructions embracing a number of distinct rules, and evidently intended to present, as shown by the only proposition advanced under it, the various principles deemed applicable to the issues, was not a compliance with the rules of the court of civil appeals. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Younger (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 530.

Assignments complaining of several separate charges, embracing several propositions of law as one proposition, are insufficient. Estes v. Estes (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 304.

An assignment of error in an action involving breach of warranty of title stated that the court erred in limiting the recovery on the warranty against B. to two-sevenths of 757 acres, and refusing interest on the amount allowed except from date of judgment, and the next assignment predicated error in refusing a special charge asked by a defendant as to the measure of B.'s liability on his warranty. The two assignments of error were grouped and were followed by three propositions, the first being that B. and S. named were each liable for one-half of any loss of title; the second that the warranty created a contractual liability on each for one-half of the loss; and the third being that interest should have been allowed against them from the date of their deed. Held, that the assignments contained two distinct propositions, so that they should not have been grouped. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1167.

An assignment of error, that the court erred in a paragraph of the charge because it assumed the defendant's negligence and charged on the weight of evidence, is objectionable, because it presents two separate propositions and does not under either of them separately present any ground of error. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Goff & Thompson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 573.

Under rule 32 (142 S. W. xii), it was improper to complain in one assignment that the court erred in refusing to peremptorily instruct for the appellant and in instructing for the appellee. Dunlap v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 578.

32. —— Verdict, findings, or judgment.—Where an assignment of error sets forth several grounds in which the judgment is claimed to be contrary to the evidence, it will not be rejected as containing more than one subject. Ostrom v. Arnold, 24 C. A. 192, 58 S. W. 630.

An assignment of error that the verdict is excessive, outrageous, unconscionable, and manifestly in disregard of both law and evidence is objectionable, because raising more than one question. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 991.

An assignment of error, that a verdict is not supported by competent evidence and is excessive, is too general, since it combines two distinct alleged errors. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 728.

An assignment of error, submitted as a proposition, which complains both that a specific finding is not supported by the evidence, and also that it was reached because a portion of the court's charge was upon the weight of the evidence, will not be considered, because it complains of more than one action of the court. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

An assignment of error, which submitted as a proposition the impropriety of the findings on five different special issues, embracing four distinct issues of the cause, is insufficient both as an assignment and as a proposition. Id.

Assignments of error complaining of the judgment against a terminal carrier for delay in a shipment of live stock, averring that the court erred in rendering the judgment because the same was contrary to the law, the evidence and pleadings, that the court erred in rendering judgment for the full amount demanded because the same was contrary to the law, evidence and pleadings in that the evidence showed that the greater part of the delay occurred before delivery to the terminal carrier, that the court erred in rendering the judgment because the same was contrary to the weight of the evidence, relate to the same subject, and are properly grouped, and when followed by propositions distinctly pointing out the errors complained of and appropriate statements under each proposition, the assignments are reviewable on appeal. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Landa & Storey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 292.

An assignment of error that the verdict is contrary to law and the evidence, is not supported by the evidence and is excessive, held objectionable for multifariousness. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Worsham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 755.

33. —— Motions for new trial.—An assignment embracing the whole motion for a new trial and eight pages of the record, and including all the points previously raised, will not be considered. Cooper v. Lee, 1 C. A. 9, 21 S. W. 998.

It is improper for appellant to group assignments of error complaining of the overruling of its motion for a new trial because the verdict was contrary to the charge and the facts proved for various reasons. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 37 C. A. 465, 84 S. W. 410.

Where there were several grounds for a motion for a new trial, an assignment that the court erred in overruling the motion was too general to be considered on appeal Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 112 S. W. 430.

Even if it is permissible in an assignment of error to refer to the motion for new trial for the points raised, if the motion presents several distinct grounds or points, the assignment must be disregarded as being multifarious. Hemphill v. National Iron & Steel Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 845.

An assignment of error to the refusal of a motion for a new trial based on several grounds is not properly reviewable where it is submitted as a proposition itself. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

34. Propositions and statements accompanying assignments of error.—Where assignments of error are not presented in accordance with rule 29 (20 S. W. viii), they will not be considered. Davis v. Converse (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 910.

The appellate court will insist that rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), prescribing the form of statements, be observed. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 305.

Where defendant's brief violated rule 71a (145 S. W. vii) for district and county courts, rules 24 and 25 (142 S. W. xiii) for courts of civil appeals, and also disregarded rules 31, 32, and 58 (142 S. W. xiii, xvi) for the court of civil appeals, the assignments, propositions, and statements could not be considered over appellee's objections. De Lay v. Wolffarth (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1030.

35. —— Necessity of propositions with accompanying statements.—Assignments of error which are not propositions in themselves, and are not followed by propositions as required by rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi), will not be considered. Brannin v. Wear-Boogher Dry-Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 572; Bomar v. Powers (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 142; Guerguin v. McCown (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 585; Mansfield v. Neese, 54 S. W. 370, 21 C. A. 584; Mayfield v. Robinson, 55 S. W. 399, 22 C. A. 385; McCardell v. Henry, 57 S. W. 908, 23 C. A. 383; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wells, 58 S. W. 842, 24 C. A. 304; Ackermann v. Ackermann Schuetzen Verein (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 366; Abernathy v. Southern Rock Island Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 786; Trinity Val. R. Co. v. Stewart, Id. 1085; Manly v. Conn (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 160; Aycock v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n, 63 S. W. 953, 26 C. A. 341; Ash v. Beck (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 53; Gwaltney v. Searcy, Id. 304; Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 322, 71 S. W. 292; Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Langford Bros., 74 S. W. 926, 32 C. A. 401; Chimine v. Baker, 75 S. W. 330, 32 C. A. 520; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Anchonda, 75 S. W. 557, 33 C. A. 24; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 811; Duckworth v. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co., 75 S. W. 913, 33 C. A. 66; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 1080; Houston Transfer Co. v. Renard (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 838; Taylor v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 260; El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Alderete, 81 S. W. 1246, 36 C. A. 142; El Paso Electric R. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 718; City of San Antonio v. L. A. Marshall & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 315; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. St. John (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 297; Ragley v. Gedley (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 66; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wood, 41 C. A. 226, 92 S. W. 259; Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 607; Poland v. Porter, 44 C. A. 334, 98 S. W. 214; Storms v. Mundy, 46 C. A. 88, 101 S. W. 258; Cantelou v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co., 101 S. W. 1017; Sterling v. De Laune, 47 C. A. 470, 105 S. W. 1169; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hendricks, 49 C. A. 314, 108 S. W. 745; Pullman Co. v. Hoyle, 52 C. A. 534, 115 S. W. 315; Birge-Forbes Co. v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 115 S. W. 333; Hermann v. Allen (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 794; City of Ft. Worth v. Williams, 55 C. A. 289, 119 S. W. 137; Louisiana & T. Lumber Co v. Kennedy, 119 S. W. 884; Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Hampton (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 637; Easterwood v. Burnitt, Id. 934; Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73; Awalt v. Schooler, Id. 302; Austin Electric Ry. Co. v. Faust (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 449; McShan v. Watlington, Id. 722; Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392; Mitchell v. Robinson, 136 S. W. 501; Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Curvier, Id. 1132; Porter v. Norman, Id. 1173; Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458; Mutual Life Ins. Ass'n of Texas, No. 1, v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 797; Butler v. Gulf Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 340; Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428; Green v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 255; Dromgoole Bros. v. Lissauer & Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1154; Peevehouse v. Smith, Id. 1196; Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180; Cotton v. Garza, Id. 412; Albrecht v. Lignoski (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 354; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Villafuerte (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1155.

An assignment of error, which is practically concealed in the brief, and is not followed by a proposition, with statement from the record, showing the contents of a letter the exclusion of which is assigned as error, will be ignored. Bryant v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 833.

An assignment of error to the overruling of the defendant's demurrer and special exceptions to the petition, under which no proposition of law is advanced, is too general. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Calnon, 50 S. W. 422, 20 C. A. 697; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Giffin, 65 S. W. 661, 27 C. A. 306.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's action in overruling plaintiff's general demurrer to the defendant's answer, not submitted as a proposition, or followed by a proposition or statement, will not be considered by the appellate court. Adcock v. Creighton, 65 S. W. 42, 27 C. A. 243.

Where an assignment of error complains of rulings on more than one ground, and is submitted with another assignment complaining of another ruling, and no proposition is submitted under such assignments, they should not be considered. Barrett v. Independent Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1128.

An assignment of error alleging inconsistency between the main charge and a special charge will not be considered where there is no proposition therein or elsewhere presented under the same. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butchek, 78 S. W. 740, 34 C. A. 194.

Under rules 30 and 34 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error that the court erred in overruling a demurrer to the petition, not followed by a proposition pointing out the defect, is insufficient. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 42 C. A. 462, 92 S. W. 1036.

Where neither proposition under an assignment of error presents the question of variance between the pleading and the proof, a consideration of the question of variance is unauthorized. International Harvester Co. of America v. Campbell, 43 C. A. 421, 96 S. W. 93.

Where exceptions to a pleading are raised by special demurrers, the question is whether the matters attacked are properly pleaded, and an assignment that the court erred in its rulings must be followed by a proposition dealing with that question. McAllen v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 760.

Where the assignment of error is not followed by any proposition, statement, or reference to the record, it is too general to be entitled to any consideration. Cockrell v. Egger (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 568.

An assignment of error that the charge should have excluded from the measure of damages for conversion of cattle the cost of transportation to a certain place will not be considered, where, if such an issue was raised by the evidence or even by the pleadings, it is not suggested either in the assignment, the proposition, the statement, or the argument submitted under the assignment. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Cassidy Southwestern Commission Co., 48 C. A. 484, 107 S. W. 628.

Assignments of error, which are are not propositions in themselves, and which present nothing in the brief but a statement from the evidence, do not meet the requirement that they state a definite proposition, notwithstanding there is what purports to be a proposition in each; and where there are ten assignments, none of them informing the court that appellant relies on some one point in the so-called propositions, the assignments will not be considered by the court on appeal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Janert, 49 C. A. 17, 107 S. W. 963.

Assignments of error which are not stated as in themselves propositions, and which do not "disclose the point relied on," are not sufficient under rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi). Grand Lodge United Brothers of Friendship of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 195.

Assignments of error, not followed by propositions and statements, as required by rule of court, need not be considered on appeal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Blachley, 50 C. A. 141, 109 S. W. 995; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jowers (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 946; Laird v. Murray (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 780; Cox v. Combs, 51 C. A. 346, 111 S. W. 1069; Capps v. Longview (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 427; Willis v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 929; Couturie v. Crespi (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 257; Seguin Milling & Power Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 456; Stuart v. Calahan (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 60; Lam & Rogers v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 977; Blunt v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 248; Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428; Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180; Konz v. Henson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 593.

Appellants are confined to the objections raised by their propositions. Ariola v. Newman, 51 C. A. 617, 113 S. W. 157; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hanks (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 136; Beaty v. Yell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 911; Williamson v. Powell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 359; St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Drahn (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 357; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Kurtz (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 658; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) Id. 1177; Abney v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Hillsboro (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 734.

An assignment attacking the sufficiency of evidence to support the verdict is not reviewable by the court of civil appeals, when not accompanied by a proposition or statement as required by the rules. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lasater, 53 C. A. 51, 115 S. W. 103.

The court of civil appeals will not refuse to consider an assignment of error complaining of an instruction merely because the point is not presented in the brief by such proposition as is contemplated by the rules. Keystone Mills Co. v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 178.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of a charge, which is long and embraces a number of distinct propositions of law, must be followed by propositions in the brief pointing out the particulars in which it is claimed there was error. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

Assignments must be overruled when not briefed according to rules, in that they are unaccompanied by appropriate propositions within the assignments. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Biles & Ruby, 56 C. A. 193, 120 S. W. 952.

Assignments of error that the court erred in refusing to allow the defeated party to give a man's name and erred in not granting a new trial because the verdict was contrary to law, and because the verdict was contrary to the evidence, not followed up in the brief by any proposition nor by a statement showing what the record contains pertinent to the assignments, are too general, and will not be considered. Smith v. Jones (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 821.

Assignments of error to instructions held insufficient. Goodley v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 359.

An assignment of error complaining of the overruling of an exception to a part of the pleading held insufficient. Brown v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 687.

The court of civil appeals would be justified in declining to consider an assignment of error under which no proposition is submitted. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 306.

The office of a proposition is to specifically present the question of law intended to be covered by the assignment, and the appellate court cannot consider any question not suggested by a proposition if the assignment is not relied on as such, nor need appellee answer such questions. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 904.

Assignments of error which do not definitely point out the part of the proceedings complained of, and are not followed by a proposition and statement subjoined thereto, as required by rules 25 and 31, will not be considered. Morrison v. Hammack (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 494.

Assignments of error not supported by propositions and statements as required by the rules sufficient to advise the court of the reasons why appellant contends that they were well taken, and which leave the court to conjecture, present nothing for review. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1182.

Where an assignment of error is not supported by a proposition, and cannot be considered as such because multifarious, and is not supported by a statement, it will not be considered. Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 911.

An assignment of error, in that a charge authorized a double recovery, cannot be considered, where the question of double recovery is not presented in a separate proposition under the assignment. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 305.

An assignment of error having no proposition or statement submitted thereunder, and not referring to other propositions or statements, will not be considered. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 328.

The contention that appellant should have been allowed to deduct from appellee's share of proceeds on a sale of land certain expenses, not presented as an independent proposition, but under an assignment alleging that the court erred in rendering any judgment, will not be considered. Thomason v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1040.

Where an insurer desires to complain of the judgment which denied it relief on its cross-action, by which it claimed compensation for money expended in salvage, it must raise the point either by an assignment of error, or by a proposition under an assignment in which the point is sufficiently made. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.

36. —— Sufficiency of propositions in general.—Where assignments of error in rulings on general and special exceptions to pleadings, admission and exclusion of testimony, in the court's general charge and failure to charge, are all copied together in the brief, and followed by separate and distinct propositions, which do not relate to all such assignments, no compliance is shown with rule 30. International & G. N. R. Co. v. True, 57 S. W. 977, 23 C. A. 523.

An assignment of error complaining of a charge on the ground that it imposes on defendant a greater burden than the law requires, which is followed by a proposition attacking the charge as being an abstract proposition of law, and incomplete because not applied to the facts of the case, should not be considered on appeal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hubbard, 76 S. W. 764, 33 C. A. 343.

Under an assignment of error complaining of the error of the court in not granting a change of venue, the proposition that the motion for a change of venue should have been granted is not an appropriate proposition, and the assignment will not be reviewed on appeal. McAllen v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 760.

An assignment of error that the court, in an action by an employé against a railway company for its failure to furnish the employé with medical treatment and hospital privileges, erred in admitting the company's "secret rule blank form of express contract in evidence over objections," followed by a proposition that the company's "secret rule and bastard form of memorandum agreement or express contract," printed subsequent to the date of plaintiff's employment, not shown to have been communicated to the employé, was incompetent to bind plaintiff, presents nothing for review, under rules 24, 30, and 31 (67 S. W. xv, xvi). Scanlon v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 345, 100 S. W. 982.

The fourth and fifth assignments alleged in general terms that the court erred in giving the charges therein quoted. No formal proposition was submitted under either of the assignments, but, under the head of "Argument" under the fourth, reference was made to a proposition under another assignment that the evidence showed that the alleged agent had not actual authority to make the contract sued on, and, under the fifth under the head of "Argument," reference was made to a proposition under another assignment that the evidence showed that plaintiffs were not bound, through estoppel, by the contract sued on. Held that, though it was doubtful whether the assignments had been briefed in such manner as to require review, yet, treating what was termed "Argument" as both a proposition and a statement, the court might determine whether the evidence raised the issues submitted in the charges quoted in the assignments. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 847, reversed 101 T. 440, 108 S. W. 811.

Where, on appeal, appellant assigned as error the act of the court in rendering judgment for plaintiff as contrary to the law and evidence, but neither the assignment nor the propositions thereunder specified the fact or facts in issue which the evidence was insufficient to prove, as required by the statute and rules, they could not be considered. Cain v. State, 47 C. A. 382, 106 S. W. 770.

A proposition complaining that an instruction stated that testator's declarations were competent to establish the influence and effect of the supposed undue influence does not raise the question that the charge is on the weight of evidence. Stubbs v. Marshall, 54 C. A. 526, 117 S. W. 1030.

A portion of appellant's brief covering two typewritten pages, and headed "First Proposition under First Assignment of Error," but containing nothing except argument directed against the action of the trial court in overruling a motion for continuance, is in no sense a proposition under an assignment of error. Hemphill v. National Iron & Steel Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 845.

Under rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), held, that an assignment of error and proposition complaining of the giving of a special charge could not be reviewed. Rudolph v. Price (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1037.

Because of the insufficiency of the statement and proposition subjoined to an assignment of error complaining of a charge, held, that the error of the charge could not be reviewed. Ratliff v. Haak (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 828.

Propositions advanced by appellant held not to raise the question of the omission from an instruction as modified and given of a phrase contained in the instruction as requested. Staten v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 222.

Where the propositions under assignments of error purport to be under assignments of numbers different to those under which they appeared to be submitted in the brief, the assignments may be disregarded. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Matador Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 461.

Where assignments of error are multifarious, argumentative, and confusing, and the propositions are not germane to the assignments, and some of the assignments are not copies of those filed in the trial court, and the statements make little reference to the record, the assignments will not be considered. Hardy v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 650.

An assignment of error, followed merely by an alleged proposition stating that the court erred because there was nothing in the record to show certain facts, and not followed by any statement except an invitation to search the record, will not be reviewed. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180.

A proposition under an assignment which does not disclose the point is insufficient, and hence will not be considered. City of Houston v. Merkel (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 385.

An insufficient proposition will not be considered. City of Houston v. Williams (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 387.

Where the court filed a statement of facts and conclusions of law, an assignment of error by defendant that the court erred in rendering judgment for plaintiff because the undisputed evidence showed a specified fact, followed by a proposition stating facts on which estoppel was predicated, raised the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to support the judgment. Nicholson v. Lieber (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 641.

Propositions, in a suit for specific performance, that it was error to instruct that if vendor had sold the land to one free from all equities specific performance could not be decreed, and that it was error to instruct that, unless the purchaser from the vendor had such actual notice as would put him on inquiry the jury should find for him, held insufficient. Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 911.

An assignment, that "the court erred in sustaining the demurrer to suggestions of improvements," subjoined by the proposition that "defendant's amended suggestion of improvements was pleaded in accordance with the statutes, and defendant was entitled to their value," followed by the statement that "defendant's first amended suggestion of improvements was in accordance with the statutes of Texas, Art. 4813, which as the present law," cannot be considered, under court rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii). Smith v. Adoue & Lobit (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 258.

Where a proposition under an assignment of error was not a correct proposition of law, and the statement contradicted the proposition, and there was no reference to the pages of the record supporting the proposition, in violation of civil appeals rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), the assignment will not be reviewed. Hearn v. Harless (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 613.

An assignment of error was sufficient where, when considered with the proposition and statement, it informed the court of the points sought to be made. Young v. Sorenson & Hooper (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 676.

In an action on a marine insurance policy, assignments of error on the part of the insurer held not to present the question whether it was improperly denied compensation for money expended in salvage. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.

37. —— Necessity of specific proposition.—Where appellant's brief submitted additional propositions under an assignment of error emphasizing certain points, all of which were fairly raised by the assignment of error, it is not a waiver of points covered by the general proposition, but not in such additional propositions. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 255.

An assignment of error alleging that "the special findings of the jury were not sufficient to authorize the judgment" will not be considered on appeal, because too general, and not in itself a proposition, or followed by a proposition, as required by rules 29 and 30 (47 S. W. v). Yeager v. Neil, 64 S. W. 701, 26 C. A. 414.

Under rules 25, 26, 30, and 31 (67 S. W. xv, xvi), an assignment is insufficient which merely specifies a number of things in regard to which the court erred in its instructions, stating, as to several of them, that there was no evidence to warrant them, but making no reference to the record, which is then followed by a proposition that the court must, in its charge, apply the law to all the features which are pleaded and proved, and must not give too much prominence to any one feature, following which is no statement. Holton v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co., 71 S. W. 408, 31 C. A. 128.

Under an assignment of error, a proposition that, where it appears from the evidence the verdict of the jury is clearly excessive, it is error to refuse to set the verdict aside and grant a new trial, presents nothing tangible for review. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Middleton (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1097.

It was improper for plaintiff in error to subjoin to an assignment of error a statement of two abstract propositions of law. McDonald v. Downs, 45 C. A. 215, 99 S. W. 892.

Propositions under assignments of error that a charge that does not correctly state the law applicable to the case is erroneous, and that a charge that is indefinite and so much so as to be confusing is erroneous, are too general to be available. Gilmore v. Houston Electric Co., 46 C. A. 315, 102 S. W. 168.

An assignment of error, which embraces several entirely distinct propositions, and which is followed by a single general proposition, will not be considered. Luling Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Gohmert, 50 C. A. 606, 110 S. W. 772.

Where a proposition under an assignment of error to the overruling of a demurrer to the petition was general and abstract and was not followed by a statement, the assignment was not properly presented. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Spencer, 55 C. A. 456, 119 S. W. 716.

An assignment of error, followed by an abstract proposition of law and no statement, will not be considered. Broussard v. South Texas Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 587.

Where a proposition following an assignment of error, multifarious in its statement of error, is general and abstract, the proposition cannot be considered. Id.

An assignment of error assailed the findings of fact on the ground that there was no evidence to sustain them, and the proposition under the assignment was: "A finding of fact by the court should reflect the spirit and substance of the matters from which he finds, otherwise the finding is insufficient and should not be sustained." The statement did not pretend to show from the evidence that the facts so found were not supported by evidence. Held, that the assignment would not be considered. Weil v. Martinez, 57 C. A. 440, 124 S. W. 116.

An assignment of error, and the subjoined proposition, held insufficient to warrant consideration for failure to point out specific error. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 989.

Under rule 31 (102 Tex. xxx, 142 S. W. xiii), propositions submitted under assignments of error in which mere abstract rules of law are submitted as formal propositions, without appropriate statements of the evidence, and containing a statement referring to more than 100 pages of the statement of facts, would not be considered. Gibson v. Oberfelder (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 829.

38. —— Assignment treated as proposition.—An assignment that the court erred in overruling specified exceptions to plaintiff's petition is not itself a proposition, within the meaning of rule 30. Chapman v. Brite, 4 C. A. 506, 23 S. W. 514.

An assignment of error for reconsidering a motion previously overruled, and sustaining the motion, not being a proposition within itself, if not followed up by an appropriate proposition, is not entitled to revision. Adkins v. Galbraith, 10 C. A. 175, 30 S. W. 291.

Appellant's brief stated that "we submit the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh assignments of error as a proposition within themselves, which are as follows." Each of the assignments referred to a different clause of the charge. No statement was appended to the assignments, and no propositions, apart from the assignments themselves, were appended. Held, that the errors could not be considered, because not specifically assigned, and accompanied with their appropriate propositions and statements. Rules Ct. Civ. App. 29–32 (20 S. W. viii). D'Arrigo v. Texas Produce Co., 44 S. W. 531, 18 C. A. 41.

An assignment of error that "the court erred in not giving to the jury special charge No. 5 asked by the plaintiff, which was refused," followed by a copy of the charge, not being a proposition in itself, and not being followed by any proposition pointing out the error of which complaint is made, will be considered on appeal as waived. Boone v. Herald News Co., 66 S. W. 313, 27 C. A. 546.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling the motions for a new trial and for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, for the reasons set forth in the motions, not followed by any proposition, but submitted as a proposition in itself, will not be considered, it being too general. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485, reversed 75 S. W. 7, 97 Tex. 31, 104 Am. St. Rep. 835.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling certain defendants' motion to reform the judgment by striking out the part against them, etc., to which no proposition was appended, as required by the rules of the appellate court, could not be considered on appeal, the assignment being too general to be regarded as a proposition of itself. Robinson v. Chamberlain, 68 S. W. 209, 29 C. A. 170.

Where immediately following a part of an assignment of error to an instruction was printed the word "Proposition," which was followed by the remaining part of the assignment, containing the reasons given for the charge being erroneous, such assignment did not comply with the rules, and could not be reviewed. Yecker v. San Antonio Traction Co., 76 S. W. 780, 33 C. A. 239.

Assignments of error which are propositions in themselves are not objectionable for failure to be followed by propositions. Castellano v. Marks, 37 C. A. 273, 83 S. W. 729; Steiner v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 261.

An assignment of error that the court erred in allowing to be read in evidence, over objection on the ground of immateriality and irrelevancy, a certain cross-interrogatory and answer thereto, discloses the legal proposition relied on, within rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi). Judgment, International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Boykin (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1163, reversed. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Boykin, 99 T. 259, 89 S. W. 639.

Assignments of error are not such as to obviate the necessity of making propositions or statements from the record of such matters as would be necessary to explain them, as required by rules 30 and 31 (67 S. W. xvi), the first assignment being followed by a mere reference to a statement heading the brief, containing a slightly condensed statement of the whole case, pleadings, evidence, orders, and judgment, and the other assignments not having even this by way of statement will not be considered. Kilday v. Perkins, 90 S. W. 215.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to give a special charge on the law of agency and of the liability of principals for acts of agents, because the pleadings and the evidence present "this question," is not a proposition within the rules of the court of appeals, for it fails to indicate the question sought to be presented. Hayward Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 403.

An assignment that the court erred in refusing an instruction that there was no assumption of negligence on defendant's part from the mere happening of the accident and the resulting injury to plaintiff, a servant, though the jury should believe that it was caused by the negligent act of plaintiff's fellow servant, but that, in order for plaintiff to recover, it was necessary that he should show that the accident was proximately caused by the fellow servant's incompetency, and that defendant was negligent in employing and retaining such fellow servant, was not a proposition in itself, and was therefore not reviewable on appeal when submitted as a proposition. Kansas City Consol. Smelting & Refining Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 889.

An assignment of error in refusing to allow plaintiff to read cross-interrogatories and answers, to the effect that a witness admitted that he had been convicted and imprisoned, was merely a statement that the court erred in refusing to allow the answers to be read, and not a proposition stating the point relied on, so that it will not be considered. De Hoyos v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 52 C. A. 543, 115 S. W. 75.

A portion of an assignment of error which complains of refusal to grant a new trial because of the insufficiency of the evidence to establish a fact is not in itself a proposition, and when not supported by any proposition or statement as required by the rules, will not be considered. Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 173, 115 S. W. 674.

An assignment that the court erred in instructing to return a verdict for defendant, in receiving a verdict for defendant, and in entering judgment thereon that plaintiff pay the costs, did not constitute a "proposition" within the rules governing appeals. Olivarri v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 392.

The court rules require assignments of error to be followed by distinct propositions, and simply designating an assignment a proposition does not make it one. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Garcia, 54 C. A. 59, 117 S. W. 206.

Where an assignment of error is erroneously stated as a proposition, and is not followed by any further proposition, but contained several distinct propositions embraced in a charge requested by appellant, and refused, it will not be reviewed. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 884.

An assignment of error which contains more than one proposition cannot be submitted as a proposition, and in such case the assignment must be followed by one or more pertinent propositions. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. W. Quebedeaux & Son (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1158; International & G. N. R. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 958; Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1093; Hemphill v. National Iron & Steel Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 845; Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709; Mt. Franklin Lime & Stone Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 756; Chambers v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 864; Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510; Parks v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 704; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dean (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1127; Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 911; El Paso & S. W. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 356.

An assignment of error that an argument of plaintiff's attorney was unwarranted by the pleadings and evidence and calculated to prejudicially mislead the jury is too general as a distinct proposition, and will not be considered where not followed by a separate proposition. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

An assignment of error complaining of a charge as assuming, as matter of law, that the peaceable and adverse possession of a portion of the land described in plaintiff's amended petition, and the cultivation of it for 10 years would authorize a finding for plaintiff for the land described in plaintiff's amended petition, is in itself a definite proposition and where counsel in the statement of the case in its brief made a full statement of the facts which would have been necessary to place under the assignment, the assignment should be considered by the appellate court. Judgment (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 884, reversed. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Kennedy, 103 T. 297, 126 S. W. 1110.

An assignment of error to sustain a motion as contained in his first supplemental answer and in striking plaintiff's first supplemental petition is insufficient to be reviewed as a proposition within itself. Steiner v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 261.

An assignment presented as a proposition which is not a proposition of law will not be considered. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 634.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to charge that if the work in which a servant suing for a personal injury was engaged when injured could have been done safely with the number of men engaged with the servant, though the work could have been done less laboriously with more men, the master was not guilty of negligence, is not a proposition in itself, but must be followed by a proposition under court of civil appeals rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wafer (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 712.

An assignment of error in refusing to charge that if a servant suing for a personal injury was injured because he stepped on a rock and fell, and it was not negligence for the servant to permit the rock to be where it was, the verdict should be for the master, and an assignment of error in refusing to charge that, if the injury to the servant was the result of accident and not the result of the negligence of the master, the latter was not liable, were not propositions, and by rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi) must be followed by propositions. Id.

An assignment that the court, in an action for the price of machinery, erred in directing the jury to allow the buyer a specified sum as damages for loss during the time the machinery was being repaired, cannot be submitted as a proposition. Caples v. Port Huron Engine & Thresher Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 303.

In an action for commissions on the sale of goods, an assignment that the court erred in permitting plaintiff to be recalled after the jury had received the charge and retired to consider their verdict, and to testify, over objection, that the amount of accounts due by parties to defendant who had failed and not paid was about $1,100, the evidence showing that plaintiff did not know whether all the goods included in such accounts were shipped by defendant to customers or not, and his statement of the amount being hearsay, the statement of an opinion and conclusion, and the testimony showing that he kept and had a duplicate of the order which would show the amount of their account, and which would therefore be the best evidence, will not be considered, being insufficient to disclose the point relied on, and not being followed by any proposition or statement. Missouria Glass Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 433.

An assignment of error containing within itself a correct proposition of law is insufficient where it is necessary to refer to the motion for new trial to ascertain the points raised by the assignment. Hemphill v. National Iron & Steel Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 845.

An assignment of error in overruling a motion for a new trial, which was not followed by a proposition elucidating the matter complained of, the assignment being treated in appellant's brief as a proposition, would not be considered. Rudolph v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 209.

Under rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error can be submitted as a proposition only when it discloses the exact point sought to be raised. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

An assignment of error held bad as an attempt to raise all material issues in the appeal without separate propositions. Id.

Under court rule 32 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error containing a proposition that it was error to allow a witness to testify to what he saw third persons doing, and error not to permit the witness to state what instructions he gave them, will not be considered, because containing two separate propositions. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 271.

An assignment of errors submitted as a proposition was insufficient in failing to show how a special finding was not sustained by the evidence. Gibsen v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

Assignments of error submitted as propositions, without disclosing the point, as required by rule 30 (142 S. W. xiii), will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Crippen (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 361; Anderson v. Crow (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1080.

The propositions under assignments of error are a necessary part of the point for consideration, unless the assignment itself presents but one point of law, and is in form of a proposition. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Emerson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 468.

An assignment of error submitted as a proposition, which recited error in permitting plaintiff to testify over objection to the market value of property before and after it was injured when plaintiff had testified that he did not know the market value in that vicinity, held sufficient as a proposition and to sufficiently point out the part of the proceeding on which error was complained pursuant to rules 24 and 25 (142 S. W. xii). Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Vogel (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 261.

39. —— Statement treated as proposition.—Objection to consideration of an assignment of error that the court erred in refusing a charge, set out, that it is not, as required by rules 29 and 30, followed by a proposition pointing out the supposed error insisted on, will be sustained, though statements of evidence follow from which it can be inferred what was considered as the error. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Higgins, 55 S. W. 744, 22 C. A. 430.

A statement that the court erred in refusing to permit defendants to offer in evidence the authorized printed abstracts of land titles of the state, and the official map of Hardin county lands, to show the location and date of the league in controversy, more fully shown by defendant's bill of exceptions, No. 12, was not available as a proposition. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 662.

40. —— Relevancy of proposition to assignment.—Where an assignment of error questions the existence of evidence as to only one of two propositions on which an instruction is based, the court will not, under rule 29 (20 S. W. viii), consider whether there was evidence upon the other point. Judgment (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1060, affirmed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Eberheart, 43 S. W. 510, 91 T. 321.

Where propositions submitted to the appellate tribunal on an assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to give certain instructions relate more to what was given in the main charge than to the refusal to give instructions, the propositions are not germane, and will not be considered. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 166, reversed on rehearing Id. 844.

Where an assignment of error complains of part of an instruction as assuming certain facts, the complaint of that part of the instruction as to the preponderance of the evidence is not raised by the assignment of error, and cannot be presented in a proposition not based on an assignment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 889.

A proposition which is not based upon, or justified by, the assignment of error under which it is placed, will not be considered on appeal. Weeks v. Texas Midland Railroad, 67 S. W. 1071, 29 C. A. 148; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hubbard, 76 S. W. 764, 33 C. A. 343; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 208; El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Harry, 37 C. A. 90, 83 S. W. 735; (1905) Sweet v. Lyon, 39 C. A. 450, 88 S. W. 384; (1905) Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 499; (1905) International & G. N. R. Co. v. Glover (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 515; (1906) Ellis v. Littlefield, 41 C. A. 318, 93 S. W. 171; Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Conway, 44 C. A. 68, 98 S. W. 1070; Industrial Lumber Co. v. Bivens, 47 C. A. 396, 105 S. W. 831; Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 173, 115 S. W. 674; Munroe v. Munroe, 54 C. A. 320, 116 S. W. 878; Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893; Varn v. Varn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 639; Cotulla v. Urbahn (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 13, writ of error denied (Sup.) 126 S. W. 1108; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 629; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Buchanan (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 850; Caffall v. Bandera Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 105; Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Talerico (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 575; El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Shaklee (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 188; Surghenor v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 28; Webster v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 609; Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 720; West Lumber Co. v. Chessher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 976; Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. McCollum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 775; Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Matadon Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 461; Knox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1134; Luder's Adm'r v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 220; City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 620; Lane v. Hewgley (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 911.

An assignment of error in not sustaining defendant's general demurrer to the petition because "plaintiffs do not allege that there was no administration of the estate of their ancestress, or that there was no necessity therefor, nor is there any evidence in the record to show such facts," will not support a proposition that it was necessary to prove such facts, nor does it raise the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the judgment on that issue. Hughey v. Mosby, 71 S. W. 395, 31 C. A. 76.

On appeal, defendant assigned as error that the court erred in overruling its motion for a new trial because the verdict was contrary to the evidence, the preponderance of the evidence showing that the defendant did not know of any infirmity on the part of the other servant, that he was able-bodied so far as appearances disclosed, and the proposition was that the uncontroverted evidence showed that the other servant was to all outward appearances able-bodied, and that there was no evidence that he was not, or that defendant knew of any infirmity. Held that, if the proposition raised the issue as to whether there was any evidence to support the verdict, the proposition was not germane to the assignment. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 74 S. W. 345, 32 C. A. 23.

A proposition under an assignment of error stating that, even if a charge was not correct, it was sufficient to call the court's attention to the issue involved, and to require it to give a proper charge on the subject, cannot be considered in the absence of an assignment alleging that the court should, in view of the request, have given another and proper charge on the subject. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 500; El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Harry, 37 C. A. 90, 83 S. W. 735.

Where appellant's objection to certain charges is explicitly stated in the assignments, they cannot be enlarged by the propositions submitted under them. Faubion v. Western Union Tel. Co., 81 S. W. 56, 36 C. A. 98.

A subsidiary proposition that, if the evidence showed any negligence, it further showed that a joint tort feasor negligently did the act which occasioned the collision, and that, except for a settlement by plaintiff with the joint tort feasor, defendant would have been entitled to an action over against it, was not authorized by an assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to direct a verdict on account of the insufficiency of the evidence to show negligence, and because of the evidence of accord and satisfaction, and such proposition was, therefore, not entitled to consideration. Robertson v. Trammell, 37 C. A. 53, 83 S. W. 258, writ of error denied 83 S. W. 1098, 98 T. 364.

On appeal from a judgment restraining a sale of real estate under an execution, a proposition that it did not appear that such a cloud would be cast on the debtor's land by the sale enjoined as authorized the court to issue an injunction is not germane to the assignments of error that the court erred in rendering judgment because the evidence showed that the property levied on was not the debtor's homestead, and because the evidence showed that the debtor had abandoned the premises as a homestead, and hence will not be considered. Mansur & Tibbett Implement Co. v. Graham (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 308.

A verdict, having some evidence to support it, will not be disturbed under an assignment of error that the verdict is contrary to the evidence, the only proposition under it being that "a verdict without evidence to support it is void." Stewart v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 310.

A proposition stating that when defendant files an affidavit that a deed under which plaintiff claims is a forgery the burden of proving the execution of the deed is cast upon plaintiff, is not germane to assignments of error complaining of the admission of evidence of the execution of an alleged forged deed because not shown to have been executed or acknowledged in the form prescribed by law, and such assignments need not be considered. Garrett v. Spradling, 39 C. A. 60, 88 S. W. 293.

A proposition stating that the burden is on plaintiff to prove the execution of a deed which was lost and not recorded, is not germane to assignments of error complaining of the admission of testimony of the acknowledgment and execution of the deed and the certificate of acknowledgment on grounds of immateriality and irrelevancy. Id.

The proposition under an assignment of error, required by rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi), unless the assignment itself sufficiently discloses the point: "In construing garnishment papers, the court looks to all papers filed in the garnishment case, and also to all papers in the original case; and all affidavits filed in the garnishment case for the purpose of obtaining the writ of garnishment must be construed together in ascertaining if all papers necessary to authorize issuance of garnishment have been filed"—is insufficient, because not showing the specific ground of error, complained of in the assignment, that the court erred in sustaining the motion to quash the writ of garnishment and in dismissing the garnishment proceeding, because the application therefor was in full compliance with the law. Lowenthal-Harrison Co. v. Edmiston Bros., 40 C. A. 265, 89 S. W. 308.

The propositions that the evidence was insufficient to sustain the allegations of the answer, and that defendant's promise to pay a debt due T. by plaintiff was within the statute of frauds, cannot arise under an assignment of error aimed at the action of the court in overruling exceptions to the answer alleging that defendant paid certain sums to T. at the instance and request of plaintiff and on plaintiff's promise to repay it. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 714.

An additional proposition not embraced within the assignment of error cannot be considered on appeal. London v. Crow, 46 C. A. 190, 102 S. W. 177.

A proposition as to what the measure of damages for breach of contract to sell and deliver petroleum oil should be, formulated under an assignment complaining of the insufficiency of the testimony to establish market value, will not be entertained. San Jacinto Oil Co. v. Texas Co., 47 C. A. 477, 105 S. W. 1163.

A proposition that the recitals in an administrator's deed are conclusive on collateral attack was not germane to an assignment of error to a finding that L. made the sale as temporary administrator under an order of sale issued to him in that capacity. Cruse v. O'Gwin, 48 C. A. 48, 106 S. W. 757.

Where an assignment of error objected to the admission of certain evidence, but did not involve the court's failure to strike it out, the appellate court could only review the admissibility of the evidence; the court being confined to the proposition asserted under the assignment, and being unauthorized to consider anything embraced in the proposition not fairly evolved from the assignment. Pullman Co. v. Vanderhoeven, 48 C. A. 414, 107 S. W. 147.

Where an assignment of error does not involve an objection to the designated paragraph of a charge, the proposition complaining of error in the paragraph will not be considered. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. De Hernandez, 49 C. A. 360, 108 S. W. 765.

A proposition that a party is restricted in his recovery to the allegations of the petition and the relief prayed for is not germane to the assignment of error that plaintiff in trespass to try title had judgment for more land than he claimed, and cannot be considered on appeal. Hildebrandt v. Hoffman (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 785.

A proposition that a survey without a concession or order of survey is not a legal appropriation of land nor notice that the land was appropriated is not pertinent to an assignment of error complaining of the admission in evidence of copies of record from a surveyor's office. Sullivan v. Solis, 52 C. A. 464, 114 S. W. 456.

A proposition that it is not competent to establish heirship by hearsay evidence is not germane to the assignment of error attacking the finding of heirship because not supported by evidence. Id.

A proposition that, so long as title to public land is imperfect, the land belongs to the state, and that public lands are not a lawful subject-matter of private contract, and any attempt to convey the same passes no interest therein, has no relation to an assignment of error complaining of the admission in evidence of an instrument executed by one claiming land by virtue of a location and survey for him and in construing the instrument as a deed conveying the land, and need not be considered on appeal. Sims v. Sealy, 53 C. A. 518, 116 S. W. 630.

In an action for divorce and to set aside a deed to property taken in defendant's name, claimed to have been purchased with plaintiff's separate property, held, that the proposition following the assignment of error to the refusal of defendant's request for instructions could not be fairly deduced from the assignment. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

An assignment need not set forth the reasons the action of the court is claimed to be erroneous, and it is sufficient if the ruling complained of is pointed out, and, where a reason is stated, other reasons may be urged in the proposition germane to the assignment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James, 55 C. A. 588, 120 S. W. 269.

A proposition that the charge was erroneous, for the reason that it authorized recovery on a certain state of facts and omitted one essential fact set up in the petition, is not germane to an assignment as to failure to submit issues of contributory negligence, and the question sought to be raised by it will not be decided. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lentz, 56 C. A. 498, 120 S. W. 943.

Where propositions under assignments of error are not germane to the assignments, or are general and indefinite, failing to specify with certainty the particular error complained of, they are insufficient under court of civil appeals rules 30-32 (67 S. W. xvi). Estes v. Estes (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 304.

The proposition that, when an item is lost by a carrier or damaged so as to render it worthless, a correct measure of damages must be established by competent evidence, is entirely outside an assignment that the court erred in rendering judgment for plaintiff in an amount named because there is not sufficient evidence to support a judgment in that sum. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Giles (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 282.

Where an assignment of error complained of the refusal of a requested instruction to find for defendant on his plea in reconvention, a proposition advanced thereunder, that, as there was evidence to sustain his plea in reconvention, a peremptory charge to find against the plea should not have been given, does not support the assignment. Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 882, rehearing denied First State Bank v. Jones & Nixon (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 145.

Under rules 30 and 31 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error will not be considered where the proposition under it is not germane to the assignment, and where the statement following the proposition fails to point out any evidence in the record presenting the question. Duren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 376.

An assignment that the court erred in giving a charge in an action against a telegraph company for erroneously transmitting a message authorizing a recovery on specified conditions does not involve a question of absence of allegations in the petition, and a proposition that, in the absence of allegations in the pleadings, it was error to submit an issue, was not germane, and would not be considered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Buchanan (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 850.

In an action against connecting carriers of live stock to recover damages caused by delay in transportation, defendants requested a charge that the jury, if they found for plaintiffs, should state in their verdict which defendant or defendants they found against, the amount found against each defendant, and should state in separate items whether the damage found was for loss of weight, decline in market value, or injury to the cattle other than loss of weight. On refusal of this charge, the proposition under this assignment was that defendants carried the cattle as independent carriers, and were neither partners nor joint tort-feasors, and were entitled upon request to have the damages apportioned. Held, that the requested charge has no reference to the recovery or apportionment of damages between the defendants; hence that the proposition was not germane to the assignment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Johnson & Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 725.

In an action for injury to an employé, an assignment of error to refusal to direct a verdict for defendant is insufficient to present propositions concerning the employer's duty to provide a reasonably safe place of work and to warn employés representing themselves to be experienced, where the evidence was conflicting on material issues, and where the statement referred to under the assignment showed a conflict of evidence. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 363.

In an action for burning of a cotton compress, alleged to have been caused by the burning of coal, instead of oil, in the engines of the defendant, an assignment of error, in admitting testimony, on behalf of defendant, that other roads of the same system were decreasing the number of their oil-burning engines, did not support a proposition in the assignment that the court should not have permitted a witness to testify that changes were made on defendant's road because of a belief that oil could not be secured for the operation of its engines, not being germane to the assignment. Nacogdoches Compress Co. v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 302.

In an action for damage caused by delay in transporting cattle, the railroad company assigned error in an instruction because it was not warranted by the pleadings and proof, and, second, gave an incorrect measure of damages resulting from the negligence therein submitted, in that a decline in the market at destination could not be considered in estimating damages for improper care of the cattle in the pens at an intermediate point, as could be done in estimating damages for negligent delay in reaching destination, and the proposition was that, "where the court gives the jury * * * the wrong measure of damages a new trial should have been granted." Held, that the proposition was not germane to the assignment of error, and hence could not be considered. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Drahn (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 357.

A proposition that a requested charge, even if incorrect, was sufficient to call for a correct charge on the subject was not subject to consideration under an assignment of error to the refusal to give the charge as requested. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Browder (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1042.

The question of the insufficiency of the evidence was not raised by a proposition in support of an assignment of error that there is no competent testimony to support verdict. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 728.

A proposition that the measure of damages was different from that charged by the court is not germane to the assignment that the court erred in a paragraph of the charge because it assumed negligence of defendant and charged on the weight of evidence. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Goff & Thompson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 573.

Proposition that verdict was against the weight of evidence was not reviewable, under assignment that the evidence did not show defendant negligent. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wells (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 645.

An assignment of error attacking the submission of a special issue as to the soundness of deceased's mind when he conveyed property as inapplicable to the facts was not supported by propositions that, unless the proof showed that the wife of deceased was incurably insane when the deed was executed, deceased would have no right to convey the homestead, and that a husband may not deprive his wife of her rights in a homestead while she is legally incapacitated. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

A risk ordinarily incident to the servant's employment, to refusal of instruction on which assignment of error is made, is different from risk from obvious defect or obvious failure to properly inspect known to the servant, to which the proposition under the assignment, confining appellant thereto, is addressed. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Kurtz (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 658.

Where an assignment of error complained of a variance between the pleadings and proof, it was not supported by propositions relating to contradictory allegations in the pleadings. Garza v. Alamo Live Stock Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 687.

Where an assignment of error only raised the question that there was no evidence to support the verdict, a proposition, if intended to attack the verdict as against the preponderance of the evidence, was not germane to the assignment. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Longini (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 888.

So far as the propositions under an assignment of error to the giving of an instruction state objections not embraced in the assignment of error, they will not be considered. Knox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1134.

Under an assignment complaining of the refusal of special charges upon the issues of limitation, a proposition relating to the measure of damages is not germane, and hence will not be considered. City of Houston v. Merkel (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 385.

Where an action was for damages for conversion of parts of a traction engine, assignments of error, followed by a proposition on a subject different from that attempted to be raised in the assignments and presenting the question of measure of damages for injury to an engine, would not be considered. Ward v. Odem (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 634.

On appeal, in trespass to try title, a proposition relating to the question of limitations cannot be considered under an assignment of error based on the refusal of the court to strike out certain deeds. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 328.

A proposition relating to defects in an instrument held not to be considered on appeal under an assignment of error to the refusal of the court to strike out subsequent deeds. Id.

Where the charge refused, according to the assignment of error thereto, was based on a wholly different legal proposition from the charge indicated in the proposition under the assignment, the assignment cannot be reviewed. Hutto v. Hall (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1022.

41. —— Relevancy of proposition to case.—Where an action is based on an order drawn by a contractor for the construction of a building on the owner in favor of a materialman, a proposition that, in a suit upon a contract which is not proved, there being no declaration for the value of the work done, the case of plaintiff fails, and no recovery can be had on a quantum meruit or valebat on an implied contract not declared on, cannot be considered on writ of error, the record containing no evidence of any implied contract. Foley v. Houston Co-op. & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 160.

In a suit to set aside a former judgment in a trial of the right of property and retry the case, judgment in a certain amount was finally rendered for defendant. Defendant on appeal assigned that the court erred in overruling his motion for a new trial. The assignment was followed by the proposition that before a judgment can be reopened the party seeking such relief must offer to pay and make a tender of the amount justly due. Held, that the assignment cannot be considered; it being too general, and not aided by the proposition, which has no application to the case. Ryan v. Teague, 50 C. A. 153, 110 S. W. 117.

A proposition having no basis in the bill of exceptions complaining of the admission of evidence must fail. Sullivan v. Solis, 52 C. A. 464, 114 S. W. 456.

The proposition, under an assignment of error, that, the issue of contributory negligence having been raised by the pleadings and evidence, it was error not to submit such issue to the jury cannot be sustained; the statement under the proposition showing no evidence tending to raise such issue, and none appearing in the record. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 145.

An assignment of error will not be reviewed where the proposition under such assignment is not supported by the statement of facts. Martin v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1050.

Propositions advanced under an assignment of error improperly taken cannot themselves be considered. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

42. —— Multifarious propositions.—Under rules 24–26, 29–32 (2 S. W. viii), assignments of error, when grouped, should be followed by distinct propositions, followed by a quotation of the charge, bill of exceptions, evidence, or fact relied on, or at least the substance thereof, pointing out the particular place where the same is found in the record. Cage v. Tucker's Heirs, 60 S. W. 579, 25 C. A. 48.

Where an assignment of error complained of the introduction in evidence of a letter by which defendant acknowledged the correctness of a statement of the account sued on, and another assignment complained of the introduction of the account attached to plaintiff's petition, such assignments each required a separate and distinct proposition; and hence where they were blended, and one proposition appended to both, they could not be considered. Robinson v. Chamberlain, 68 S. W. 209, 29 C. A 170.

Where a brief on appeal contained three assignments of error, submitted as one proposition, and the assignments related to different subjects, and the relevancy of each could only be ascertained by an inspection of the entire record, and there was no proposition submitted under such assignments, the judgment will be affirmed. Maldonado v. Arthur (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 562.

A proposition in the briefs that a special instruction was argumentative, contradictory, misleading, and on the weight of evidence is not proper, as it states more than a single proposition. Reeves v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 44 C. A. 352, 98 S. W. 929.

Under rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi), where there are several points raised by an assignment, each point must be separately stated in the form of a proposition. Hemphill v. National Iron & Steel Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 845; Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968; Mt. Franklin Lime & Stone Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 756.

An assignment of error will not be considered where the proposition contains two separate propositions of law, one that the charge is on the weight of the evidence and the other that it gives undue prominence to plaintiff's contention. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 271.

Nor will an assignment be considered, where the proposition alleges that the instruction failed to apply the law, and that it was misleading. Id.

Nor an assignment in which the proposition is to the effect that the charge was misleading, and that it was so framed as to intimate to the jury the opinion of the court. Id.

Nor an assignment in which the proposition is that the charge was misleading, and that it was on an issue not made by the testimony. Id.

Where an assignment of error stated that the court erred in a certain paragraph of his general charge, and the paragraph objected to submitted more than one proposition of law, and the proposition under the assignment stated that the paragraph objected to was on the weight of the evidence and did not announce correct principles of law, such assignment and proposition failed to conform with rules 29 and 32 (142 S. W. xii, xiii). Riley v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 581.

An assignment of error, in an action by a former partner of a firm, which sold its business to defendant corporation, to recover a number of corporate shares or their reasonable value, upon the admission of evidence, because "not competent or relevant, nor based on pleadings, shows that the claims are barred by limitations, laches, etc., and does not show that the contract declared on was made, and shows that plaintiff has had full settlements, and also establishes waiver and estoppel," was multifarious and contrary to the court of civil appeals rule, providing that the propositions under one ground of the assignment shall refer to it, and be stated separately. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

A proposition, complaining both that a specified finding is not supported by the evidence and that it was reached on erroneous instructions, will not be considered because it complains of more than one act of the court. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

Such proposition is insufficient as a proposition for multifariousness. Id.

A proposition as to the impropriety of the findings on five different issues embracing four distinct issues of the case is insufficient. Id.

A proposition on appeal in an action for a minor's custody, that a minor above 14 years of age may select its own guardian and a decree of court awarding custody to one parent must yield to such selection, especially if the parent is an improper person to have custody, held multifarious and confusing. Grego v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 361.

43. —— Showing basis of claim of error.—An assignment that the court erred in admitting in evidence a written lease, followed by a proposition raising the question of the admissibility of the lease as a recorded instrument, without alleging that the lease was not proved by other evidence, or that the written lease was all the evidence on the subject, is insufficient. Yarbrough v. De Martin, 67 S. W. 177, 28 C. A. 276.

Assignments that the court erred in rejecting certain testimony, followed by propositions that the testimony was proper, and should have been admitted, without relying on any particular principle to show that the court erred, will not be considered. Id.

A proposition that it is error for the court to give an instruction against the interest of a party on an issue in a suit, and such party need not request a proper instruction, points out no error, and does not call for a consideration of the assignment under which it is placed. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Powell, 38 C. A. 157, 86 S. W. 21.

Where the proposition following the assignment of error complaining of the refusal of a requested charge was not supported by the statement of any fact showing that the rejection of the charge was erroneous, the refusal to give the charge was not reviewable. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Clay, 55 C. A. 526, 119 S. W. 730.

Where the propositions following an assignment of error complaining of the giving of a special requested charge do not point out the alleged errors, and the subjoined statements do not disclose error, the assignment will not be considered. Sullivan v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 838.

An assignment of error will be overruled where the proposition thereunder is not predicated on a state of facts by which it can be supported. Luder's Adm'r v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 220.

44. —— Reference in propositions to other propositions or to record or assignment. —Where an assignment of errors is followed by what is denominated a proposition, which merely refers to the assignment as the proposition, and the assignment contains several propositions of law, it will not be considered. Driver v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 290.

Where assignments of error with reference to separate conclusions of law and to the introduction of evidence were all copied together in the brief, each immediately succeeding the other, followed by a statement that such assignments "will be treated as propositions," together with two other propositions asserted under them, the assignments failed to comply with rule 30. King v. Battaglia, 38 C. A. 28, 84 S. W. 839.

An assignment of error asking that the court consider as propositions thereunder the propositions under the preceding assignments and under a succeeding one will not be reviewed. San Antonio Foundry Co. v. Drish, 38 C. A. 214, 85 S. W. 440.

An assignment which is not followed by any proposition or statement, but refers to propositions, statements, and authorities under other assignments which are not germane to the assignment in question, is in disregard of the rules, and cannot be considered. Kane v. Sholars, 41 C. A. 154, 90 S. W. 937.

The bill of exceptions cannot be referred to to ascertain the reason supporting a proposition in appellants' brief, since such reason should be stated in the proposition itself. Mt. Franklin Lime & Stone Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 756.

An assignment of error followed by a proposition which merely refers to propositions found under other assignments of error, in violation of court rules 30 and 33 (142 S. W. xii), will not be considered. Sullivan v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 838.

An assignment of error, not supported by a proper proposition, but which merely refers to propositions under another assignment, will not be considered. Anderson v. Crow (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1080.

45. —— Proposition assuming facts.—A proposition which assumes a fact found against appellant cannot be considered. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1093.

46. —— Grouping assignments.—Assignments of error relating to different rulings which are grouped, and not followed separately by appropriate propositions and statements, will not be considered. Houston v. Stewart, 50 S. W. 333, 92 T. 540, reversing Same v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 799; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 63 S. W. 305, 95 T. 2, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 930; Sanger v. Harris (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 645; Abernathy v. Southern Rock Island Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 786; Mundine v. Pauls, 66 S. W. 254, 28 C. A. 46; Wells v. Houston, 69 S. W. 183, 29 C. A. 619; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 843; Lewis v. Hoeldtke (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 309; Neal v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 37 C. A. 235, 83 S. W. 402; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Waller, 37 C. A. 515, 84 S. W. 695.

Where an assignment of error attempted to collect every point on which the appeal was based into a single assignment, and after placing it before the court as a proposition referred the court to the statements made under five other assignments of error, it was multifarious, and would not be considered. Russell v. Deutschman (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1164.

There being no cognation between assignments of error, and they being grouped, and but one proposition asserted under them, which has no relation to them, they are not entitled under the rules to consideration. Young v. Pecos County, 46 C. A. 319, 101 S. W. 1055.

Where assignments of error complain of the court's rulings on general and special exceptions to the plaintiff's petition, and to various rulings on the admissibility of testimony of an entirely different character, and are not accompanied with appropriate propositions separately pointing out the specific questions involved for decision, but with one proposition only, by which the several questions are sought to be raised and presented, the assignments will not be considered; the manner of briefing the case being not in compliance with rules 29, 30, and 31 (67 S. W. xv, xvi). Lane v. Delta County (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 866.

An assignment of error, which presents several distinct propositions of law, and which does not in itself present a proposition, cannot be considered. Hess v. Webb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 618.

A part of an assignment of error grouped with other assignments of error, which is wholly disconnected from that contained in the other portions of the assignment and from the other assignments, is improperly placed in the group. Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 173, 115 S. W. 674.

Assignments of error cannot be considered, where they are grouped in appellants' brief, and propositions are made under two or more of them raising distinct questions of law. Lowrance v. Woods, 54 C. A. 233, 118 S. W. 551.

The grouping of a number of assignments of error presenting different propositions of law, in no wise dependent on or connected with each other, and presenting them as propositions, violates the rules of court, and will not be considered. Varn v. Varn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 639.

Assignments of error, grouped and directed to wholly unrelated matters, and which are not followed by a statement, cannot be considered. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

Four assignments of error, two of which refer to findings about an attachment, and two to findings about an injunction, and which are not followed by proper statements, will not be considered on appeal. Huber v. Hill (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 219.

Where assignments referring to different subjects and propositions are grouped so as to present more than one question of law, they will not be reviewed. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 634.

It is permissible to group assignments of error relating to the same subject, but each assignment must be supported by its own proposition. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769, writs of error denied 103 T. 522, 131 S. W. 406.

Where assignments of error are grouped and presented by a single proposition, which differs from any of the assignments, they are not properly presented, and cannot be considered, since each assignment must be sustained or overruled as a whole. City of Haskell v. Hartrick (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1057.

Assignments of error which relate to different phases of the evidence introduced on the trial cannot be grouped and presented over one proposition. Guilmartin v. Padgett (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1143.

An assignment of error in an action involving breach of warranty of title stated that the court erred in limiting the recovery on the warranty against B. to two-sevenths of 757 acres, and refusing interest on the amount allowed except from date of judgment, and the next assignment predicated error in refusing a special charge asked by a defendant as to the measure of B.'s liability on his warranty. The two assignments of error were grouped and were followed by three propositions, the first being that B. and S. named were each liable for one-half of any loss of title; the second that the warranty created a contractual liability on each for one-half of the loss; and the third being that interest should have been allowed against them from the date of their deed. Held, that the assignments contained two distinct propositions, so that they should not have been grouped. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1167, denying rehearing Id., 917.

Where appellant grouped in his brief seven assignments of error, and presented but one proposition thereunder, such assignments and proposition could not be considered on account of failure to comply with rules 29 and 32 (142 S. W. xii, xiii). Riley v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 581.

Assignments of error complaining of the judgment as contrary to the law and the evidence are properly grouped, and when followed by propositions pointing out the errors complained of, and appropriate statements under each proposition, are reviewable on appeal. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Landa & Storey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 292.

Assignments of error, each of which complains of a distinct ruling of the trial court, and involves different subjects not germane to each other, cannot be grouped. Masterson v. Ross (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1156.

Under rule 30 (142 S. W. xiii), a group of assignments of error complaining of the refusal of distinct charges not germane to each other, followed by propositions under the last assignment, not referring to any of the assignments and followed by a statement failing to set out the refused charges or their substance, will not be considered. Id.

Where an assignment of error complaining of the change of venue, for which there is a bill of exceptions is grouped with another complaining of a refusal of the other court to remand the case, which has no bill, is followed by four propositions and only one statement, they will not be considered, under court of civil appeals rules 25 (142 S. W. xii) and 31 (142 S. W. xiii). Barron & Clark v. White (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 590.

Although it is permissible to group assignments of error which relate to the same subject, each should be supported by its own proposition. Id.

47. —— Statement accompanying proposition—Necessity.—An assignment of error not followed by a statement from the record, as required by rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), will not be considered. Pearson v. Flanagan, 52 T. 266; Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 75 T. 562, 12 S. W. 964; Parker County v. Jackson, 5 C. A. 36, 23 S. W. 924; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bowman (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 140; Johnson v. White (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 174; Kempner v. Ivory (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 538; St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maloney (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 767; Bailey v. Chapman, 38 S. W. 544, 15 C. A. 240; Sabine Tram Co. v. Bancroft (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 177; Hanrick v. Gurley, 55 S. W. 119, 56 S. W. 330, 93 T. 458, modifying judgment 54 S. W. 347, 93 T. 458, and (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 994; Brown v. Vizcaya (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 191; Supreme Tent of Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Cox, 60 S. W. 971, 25 C. A. 366; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Buch, 65 S. W. 681, 27 C. A. 283; Same v. Puente, 70 S. W. 362, 30 C. A. 246; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Thompson, 77 S. W. 439, 34 C. A. 67; Houston Transfer Co. v. Renard (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 838; Galloway v. Floyd, 81 S. W. 805, 36 C. A. 379; McCord v. Hames, 38 C. A. 239, 85 S. W. 504; (Civ. App.) International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Boykin, 85 S. W. 1163, reversed, 99 T. 259, 89 S. W. 639; Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Vawter, 39 C. A. 520, 88 S. W. 407; Johnston v. Fraser (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 49; El Paso & S. R. Co. v. Darr (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 166; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pearce, 43 C. A. 387, 95 S. W. 1133; (Civ. App.) Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble, 97 S. W 332, questions from court of civil appeals certified 99 S. W. 1024, and judgment reversed on rehearing 101 S. W. 276; Bluestein v. Collins (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 687; Starkey v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 53 C. A. 333, 115 S. W. 853; Bartlett Oil Mill. v. Cappes, 54 C. A. 354, 117 S. W. 485; McCollum v. Buckner's Orphans' Home, 54 C. A. 348, 117 S. W. 886; Walker v. International & G. N. Ry. Co., 54 C. A. 406, 117 S. W. 1020; McKallip v. Collins Bros. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 546; Boardman v. Woodward, Id. 550; Brunner Fire Co. v. Payne, 54 C. A. 501, 118 S. W. 602; St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lane, 118 S. W. 847; Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smythe, 55 C. A. 557, 119 S. W. 892; Irvin v. Johnson, 56 C. A. 492, 120 S. W. 1085; Gilmer v. Veatch, 56 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545; Beaumont Traction Co. v. Happ, 57 C. A. 427, 122 S. W. 610; Covington v. Sloan (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 690; Sievert v. Underwood, Id. 721; Kruegel v. Cobb, Id. 723; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Timmons, 125 S. W. 376; Openshaw v. Dean, Id. 989; Settle v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 15; Riggins v. Sass (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1064; Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73; Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 524; Tyer v. Timpson Handle Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 250; Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458; Ripley v. Wenzel (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 897; Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold, Id. 917, rehearing denied Id. 1167; Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1048; Stevens v. Porter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 264; Cartwright v. La Brie (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 725; Stephenson v. Wiess (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 287; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wells (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 645; Holland v. Closs, Id. 671; McCormick v. Cleveland, Id. 698; Childress v. Tate (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 843; Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 306; International Order of Twelve Knights & Daughters of Tabor v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 320; Messer v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 928; Lupton v. Willmann, 154 S. W. 261; Stratton v. Riley, Id. 606; Young v. Sorenson & Hooper, Id. 676; Gibson v. Oppenheimer, Id. 694; Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561; City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank, Id. 620; Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917; Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Sayles (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 272.

Where error was assigned for the admission of immaterial testimony, and appellant's brief contained no statement in connection with such assignment from which the issues could be determined, the error cannot be considered on appeal, since it was impossible to say that there was no issue to which the testimony was relevant. Ackermann v. Ackermann Schuetzen Verein (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 366.

Under rule 29 an assignment complaining that the court permitted plaintiff, suing for divorce, to prove specific acts of ill treatment without sufficient allegations to admit such proof, not accompanied by a statement, will not be considered. Wetz v. Wetz, 66 S. W. 869, 27 C. A. 597.

Where appellant's brief does not comply with rules 29, 30, and 31 of the court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv), requiring that each of the propositions shall be followed by a brief statement, in substance, of such proceedings contained in the record as will be necessary to explain and support the proposition with reference to the pages of the record, etc., the appeal will be dismissed. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 47.

Assignments of error, not accompanied by any statement from the record of the facts bearing on the propositions advanced, nor by any reference to the preliminary statement in the brief for such facts, as required by rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), will not be reviewed. Peach River Lumber Co. v. Ayers, 41 C. A. 334, 91 S. W. 387.

Where an assignment of error is directed against a part of the court's charge, and it does not appear in the preliminary statement in the brief what the issues were, the proposition under the assignment must be followed by a statement from the record of so much of the pleadings and the evidence as will show what issues were involved, or the assignment will not be reviewed. Scanlon v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 345, 100 S. W. 982.

An assignment of error will not be considered which does not conform to the rules requiring the statement following a proposition to embrace in substance such proceedings, or part thereof in the record as will be sufficient to explain and support the proposition with reference to the pages of the record. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Clippenger, 47 C. A. 510, 106 S. W. 155.

Court rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), governing the preparation of briefs, is to facilitate the work of appellate courts, and must not be disregarded. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Olds (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 787.

Assignments of error and propositions thereunder, relating to the validity of a bond in a garnishment proceeding, will not be considered where they are not followed by any statement from the record explaining and supporting the proposition as required by supreme court rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

Where an assignment of error did not contain statements or exceptions in compliance with the statutes and rules, the Supreme Court will only look to the record for the purpose of determining whether the court had jurisdiction and was authorized to render the judgment under the pleadings. Willis v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 929.

An assignment of error to finding of insufficient damages is not reviewable, in the absence of a statement of facts. Williamson v. Ward (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1166.

An assignment of error complaining of the introduction of evidence, not followed by a statement from the record sufficient to support and explain the assignment, will not be considered on appeal. Guilmartin v. Padgett (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1143.

An assignment of error complaining of an instruction will not be considered where there is not subjoined to the propositions urged under the assignment such a statement as is necessary to explain and support the propositions. Adams v. Consumers' Lignite Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1178.

An assignment of error submitted as a proposition but not followed by any statement of the proceedings or part thereof in the record, as required by court rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), necessary to explain and support the assignment, will not be considered. Williamson v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 998.

48. —— Sufficiency of statement in general.—Statement in connection with assignment of error held insufficient under rule 31 for the courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvi). Logan v. Lennix (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 364.

A statement, subjoined to a proposition under an assignment of error, that plaintiff filed two papers, not named or described further than that, taken together, they contain all the requirements of certain sections of the Revised Statutes, is but a statement of a legal proposition, and not a statement of facts taken from the record, as required by rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Lowenthal-Harrison Co. v. Edmiston Bros., 40 C. A. 265, 89 S. W. 308.

Where a statement in support of an assignment that the court erred in refusing to give a requested special charge neither set out the charge requested, nor showed that there was any evidence in the case which called for or authorized the giving of the requested instruction, which was refused because not presented before the jury had retired, and which failed to show that defendant could not have prepared and requested the instruction before the jury retired, was insufficient to sustain the assignment. Spikes v. Howard, 51 C. A. 389, 111 S. W. 792.

A statement, in support of an assignment that the court erred in directing a verdict for defendant, reciting that, the testimony being conflicting as to every material point, and strongly in support of plaintiff's cause of action on each question presented by the pleadings, it was error for the court to so invade the province of the jury, while correct as a proposition, was insufficient as a statement, required by rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 112 S. W. 430.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error based on a bill of exceptions not referred to in the statement need not be considered. Sullivan v. Solis, 52 C. A. 464, 114 S. W. 456.

An assignment of error, not supported by such statement as is required by the rules of the appellate court, will not be considered. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pool & Smith (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 685; Kostoryz v. Leary (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 456; Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510; Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 911.

Where the statement under an assignment of error is only an argument and insufficient to enable the court to determine the question raised, and the proposition under the assignment fails to reach the real point of objection, the assignment cannot be considered. Openshaw v. Dean (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 989.

The statement, "said assignment is correctly set out," following assignments of error, is not a compliance with rules of court providing that the assignment of error shall be followed by one or more propositions, and to each proposition there shall be subjoined a brief statement of the proceedings in the record necessary to explain and support the proposition. Southern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 286.

An assignment of error, followed by a statement so imperfect as to be unintelligible, will not be considered. Stevens v. Porter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 264.

A statement accompanying an assignment of error in the admission of testimony held insufficient. Olcott v. Squires (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 314.

Consideration of alleged error denied because of insufficient statement subjoined to assignment of error; it stating only that the court charged erroneously. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 728.

Under rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), held, that assignments of error not purporting to copy anything from the record, but only to give the appellant's version of what it contains, cannot be considered. Hill v. Hanan & Son (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 648.

An assignment of error held not to comply with rule 31 (142 S. W. 13), requiring assignments of error to be followed by a brief statement in substance of such proceedings in the record as are necessary to explain and support the proposition. Mt. Franklin Lime & Stone Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 756.

Assignments of error complaining of a charge as assuming that 133 head of plaintiffs' cattle were damaged, and that expenses were incurred in holding them at defendant's station, held not to require consideration because of an insufficient statement. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 305.

An assignment of error will be overruled, where the statement under it is so imperfect that no information can be obtained from it. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

Where the statement under an assignment of error does not clearly show the matter referred to, the assignment cannot be considered. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

49. —— Bill of exceptions as sufficient statement.—An assignment of error, supported only by a bill of exceptions, inconsistent as to a material fact, is not reviewable. Steiner v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 261.

Grounds of objection to testimony set out in a bill of exceptions cannot be treated as a statement of facts under an assignment of error to the admission of such testimony. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

An assignment of error in admitting the testimony of certain witnesses, not followed by any proposition or statement, except the bill of exception reserved to the admission of the testimony, which is insufficient to show that the testimony was harmful, or even that it was not admissible, will not be considered on appeal. Texas Co. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 812.

A copy of the bill of exceptions taken to the admission of certain evidence held sufficient as a statement under the court rule. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Vogel (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 261.

50. —— References to record, assignment, or brief.—Where assignments complain of the charge without designating the paragraphs, and the statement refers to the whole charge without pointing out the portions excepted to, the assignments will not be considered. Rosenfield v. Rosenthal (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 193.

An assignment of error, followed by no statement except a reference to different parts of the record, is not followed by such a statement as is contemplated by the rules of the court, and the court will not review it. Bayne v. Denny, 52 S. W. 983, 21 C. A. 435; Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 607; Carlisle v. Gibbs, 44 C. A. 189, 98 S. W. 192; Robertson v. Warren, 45 C. A. 584, 100 S. W. 805; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Powell, 51 C. A. 409, 112 S. W. 697; Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Olds, 112 S. W. 787; St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lane (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 847; Downs v. Stevenson, 56 C. A. 211, 119 S. W. 315; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Spencer, 119 S. W. 716; Johnson v. Hulett, 56 C. A. 11, 120 S. W. 257; Taylor v. Davidson, 120 S. W. 1018; Mumme v. Gates, Id. 1046; Stone v. Stitt, 56 C. A. 465, 121 S. W. 187; Johnson v. W. H. Goolsby Lumber Co., 121 S. W. 883; Kostoryz v. Leary (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 456; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1153; Edwards v. Smith (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1161; Stevens v. Porter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 264; Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781; Liquid Carbonic Co. v. Dilley (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 468; Groesbeck v. Wiest (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 258.

A statement in appellant's brief, under an assignment of error raising the objection that a charge submitting an issue of the good faith of certain community debts should not have been given, which informs the court that the language of the charge excepted to is given in the assignment; that the existence of community debts was proved and admitted, referring to the pages of the record; and that there was no testimony as to whether these community debts were or were not fairly and honestly incurred,—is sufficient. Cage v. Tucker's Heirs, 69 S. W. 425, 29 C. A. 586.

Where the correctness of a requested instruction depends on the evidence, the appellant must, in connection with his assignment of error complaining of the refusal to give it, refer to the evidence making it applicable, and reference to all the testimony is insufficient to require the court to review the assignment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Beattie (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 367.

Where 23 pages of appellant's brief were devoted to the statement under its first assignment of error, which embraced practically all of the evidence in the record, subsequent assignments of error, followed by no other statement than a reference to the statement under the first assignment will not be considered, in view of rule 31. (Civ. App.) Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harbison, 88 S. W. 452, affirmed, 99 T. 536, 90 S. W. 1097; (Civ. App.) Same v. Wetherly, 88 S. W. 456, affirmed, 99 T. 538, 90 S. W. 1098; (Civ. App.) Same v. Oates, 88 S. W. 457.

A statement under an assignment of error to the giving of a certain charge reciting that "the charge of the court contained the objectionable feature as shown in the assignment (see Tr. p. 92, at the top)" was insufficient; the charge objected to not being contained in the assignment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 395.

Where an assignment of error stated that the court committed error in refusing to give certain requested charges, and for statements under such assignments reference was made to many pages of the evidence copied in the brief under other assignments of error, and to certain pages of the transcript, and neither the charges nor their substance were copied into the brief, the appellate court was not called upon to consider such assignments. (Civ. App.) El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Foth, 100 S. W. 171, judgment reversed 101 T. 133, 105 S. W. 322.

Statements upon propositions advanced under plaintiff's assignments of error, which set out in full the special exceptions referred to, but for the particular portions of the answer to which they are addressed and the rulings of the court refer simply to the pleading as a whole, without setting out the particular allegations complained of, are not sufficient under rule 31, which provides that to each proposition "there shall be subjoined a brief statement in substance of such proceedings, or part thereof, contained in the record, as will be necessary and sufficient to explain and support the proposition," etc., which statement under rule 41 must be a correct reflection of whatever may appear in the record necessary to be shown to enable the court to pass upon the question presented. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment that the verdict is not supported by the evidence will not be considered where the only statement consisted of references to the pages of the stenographer's transcript containing the testimony of several of the witnesses. Walker v. International & G. N. Ry. Co., 54 C. A. 406, 117 S. W. 1020.

An assignment to the refusal of a lengthy request to charge, embracing all the issues in the case, was followed by the statement: "See appellant's special charge as requested Tr. p. 11. Also the evidence of A. M. raising the issue. Statement of facts, p. 67." Held, that such statement was not a sufficient compliance with court rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 884.

A statement under a proposition of law following an assignment of error, consisting of "See plaintiff's first amended petition," is insufficient. Broussard v. South Texas Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 587.

A statement under a proposition, which statement asserts that plaintiffs had no legal or equitable title to land on which a vendor's lien was claimed to secure notes sued on, and which does not point out any particular portion of the statement of facts to uphold the assertion except to refer to the entire statement of facts, is insufficient, as the appellate court will not search the record. Bynum v. Hobbs, 56 C. A. 557, 121 S. W. 900.

A statement under an assignment of error, referring to the whole of the findings of fact, and necessitating a scanning of them to find the special finding referred to, is not proper. Huber v. Hill (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 219.

A general reference in the statement accompanying a proposition under an assignment complaining of the refusal to give a charge to the entire testimony is not a compliance with rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wafer (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 712.

An assignment that, "the court erred in sustaining appellee's general demurrers and exceptions to appellant's special answers, exceptions, and demurrers to plaintiff's petition and strike out the same. Rec. 3"—but without any statement following the assignment, the only reference to the record being to the page of the transcript setting forth appellee's petition, which contained the demurrers and exceptions, was insufficient. Willis v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 929.

Where the only statement of facts attached to assignments of error to the court's refusal of certain charges in question was "the special instruction No. '7' (Tr. pp. 13–14) and special instruction No. '8' (Tr. pp. 11–13), are correctly copied in the assignment," the assignments will not be reviewed. Caruthers v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 757.

Where a statement of facts, following an assignment of error in failing to instruct, did not set out that a charge was requested and refused, and did not refer to the page of the record where the evidence on which the request was based could be found it did not comply with rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Fitzgibbons v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1186.

An assignment of error should be overruled where the only statement thereunder is that the court sustained exceptions 1, 2, 3, and 4 as shown by the assignment, to which action defendant excepted. McKenzie v. Beason (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 246.

"Statement. See testimony of H., original statement of facts, pp. 38–44," etc., is insufficient as a statement under an assignment of error. Id.

Where several assignments presenting distinct propositions were grouped together in the brief, the bills of exception being referred to in support of the assignment copied in the brief, without either statement of the substance of the bills or the pages of the record where they might be found, the assignment could not be considered under the rules. Carlock v. Willard (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 363.

A statement, under an assignment of error complaining of the refusal of a special charge that "the charge set out in the assignment was requested by the defendant and refused by the court," and referring to the record where the charge was to be found, was insufficient, under rule 31. Houston Packing Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 693.

51. —— Reference from one statement to another.—A statement under assignments of error referring to a statement under another assignment, which embraced 44 pages of printed matter and practically covered all the testimony given at the trial, cannot be considered by the appellate court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Caldwell (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 461.

The court of civil appeals will not refer to a general statement of the testimony under another assignment of error, to determine the facts relative to an assignment in question. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tack (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 596.

An assignment of error is insufficiently presented where the statement appended thereto refers to the statement under other assignments, and that statement does not support the particular assignment. Dickinson Creamery Co. v. Lyle (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 904.

Assignments of error which are submitted as propositions, followed by statements consisting of general references to statements under other assignments which themselves refer to other statements, will not be considered on appeal. Caples v. Port Huron Engine & Thresher Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 303.

Following assignments of error in the refusal of charges, statements referring to statements under other assignments, which do not refer to any charge or requested charge, are insufficient. Southern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 286.

The statement under an assignment of error to the refusal of instructions, etc., in an action for contribution against several defendants, was that it was the same as under another assignment, except that the charge referred to one defendant instead of another named, and the facts were as stated in the charge "see statement of facts, page ———, brief, page ———." Another statement recited that the special charge requested and refused was "as follows," setting it out. The statement under another assignment recited that the special charge requested and refused was at certain pages of the transcript and was the same as that copied under another assignment of error contained in the brief, except that it referred to one defendant named instead of another. Held, that the statements under the assignments of error were not in accordance with the court rules. Matson v. Jarvis (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 941.

An assignment of error is not entitled to consideration under court of civil appeals rules, where reference is made to all the testimony copied in a statement under another assignment of error, and such testimony includes much matter not bearing on the particular assignment of error. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Birge-Forbes Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 3.

An assignment of error complaining of ruling on the testimony of a witness will not be considered, when it is not followed by any concrete proposition or statement, but merely refers to another assignment referring to the testimony of another witness. Day v. Becker (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1197.

A statement under an assignment of error was insufficient where it did not include all the evidence upon the particular issue involved, but merely referred to a statement under a different proposition wherein the evidence upon all the issues was attempted to be set out. Blunt v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 248.

An assignment to the admission of a letter in evidence would not be disregarded, because the letter was not copied in the statement, where it was copied in a short statement of facts, to which the statement referred. Newman v. Norris Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 725.

Where the only statement supporting an assignment of error merely referred to the statements under numerous other assignments of error, which included evidence which was not pertinent, the assignment cannot be reviewed. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Keeran (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 355.

An assignment of error giving an instruction which is not copied into the brief, but is merely referred to in the statement as "the same as under appellant's first assignment of error," the statement under which did not refer to any charge will not be considered. Reasonover v. Riley Bros. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 220.

Assignments of error cannot be considered when the only statement under them is, "See statement under 15th assignment of error," if that statement refers to a question in no way relating to the questions presented by the particular assignments. Knox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1134.

Where an assignment is not submitted as a proposition, nor any proposition submitted thereunder, and reference is made to another assignment for the statement, authorities, and remarks, it will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 343.

An assignment which has no statement after the proposition, except a reference to a statement under some other assignment, will not be reviewed. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

An assignment of error not followed by statements will not be considered; mere references to other assignments or to the record for statements being insufficient. Daugherty v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1089.

52. —— Relevancy to assignment or proposition.—A motion to exclude testimony with reference to prices cotton sold for, because witness has no independent recollection and no books of original entry showing the transactions, and has not produced the books of original entry, does not support the proposition under an assignment of error that, after a witness has testified to the amount and prices of cotton bought and sold, it was error not to exclude the testimony on a motion, based on the grounds that witness' information as to the matters testified to was obtained from a copy of books of original entry kept by another, which were not produced in evidence. Hubbard City Cotton Oil & Gin Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 795.

Where a defendant, in an action for injuries to a passenger, assigns as error the refusal to instruct that there was "no testimony tending to show" that the wreck of the train on which plaintiffs were passengers was caused by any of the things alleged in the petition, and the statement following this assignment is that there was "no affirmative proof" showing how the wreck was caused, the court will not consider the assignment, since the statement does not purport to show that there was no testimony tending to show that the wreck was caused by any of the things alleged in plaintiffs' petition. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Clippenger, 47 C. A. 510, 106 S. W. 155.

Where an assignment of error assailed a conclusion of fact of the trial court that the rental value of land from a certain date was not less than a certain amount, and the statement was to the effect that the finding was objected to because it fixed the date of rent from a certain date, the assignment would be overruled. Weil v. Martinez, 57 C. A. 440, 124 S. W. 116.

A statement showing that a conversation was between the agent and the witness does not support an assignment of error in allowing the testimony of the witness as to a conversation between the agent and plaintiff. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 305.

53. —— Multifarious statement.—Assignments of error not followed by statements will not be considered, and an omnibus statement under assignments referring to diverse subjects of evidence does not meet the rules. Moor v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

54. —— Setting out proceedings, rulings, exceptions, and facts showing error and injury therefrom.—An assignment of error as to the court's charge will be overruled where the statement of facts in appellant's brief following the assignment is not sufficiently full to enable the court to determine whether the error, if any, resulted in appellant's injury. Herring v. Herring (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 865.

Where error is assigned to the giving of a requested instruction on the ground that the court had in the general charge given its purport, and there is no statement under the assignment verifying the fact stated, such assignment should not be sustained. First Nat. Bank v. Watson (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 232, writ of error denied Watson v. First Nat. Bank, 67 S. W. 314, 95 T. 351.

Where, in trespass to try title, a peremptory instruction for the plaintiff was assigned as error on the ground that the question whether the land was patented to plaintiff's grantors or to the grantors of the defendant should have been submitted to a jury, but the statement in support of the proposition did not show that there was any issue raised by the evidence on such question, the assignment could not be sustained. Swift v. Bruce, 71 S. W. 321, 31 C. A. 92.

On appeal, appellant contended that the court erred in permitting plaintiff to read a certain deposition, and in not requiring plaintiff to put the one who made the deposition on the stand, he being in court, and having twice testified by deposition to contradictory statements. Held, in view of rule 31, that the assignment of error could not be considered, the proposition submitted thereunder not being followed by a statement from the record, and the statement following it containing only questions from the deposition, and it not showing that the witness was in attendance, or that the ruling complained of was made, or that any exception was taken to the ruling. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 74 S. W. 345, 32 C. A. 23.

Where, in an action for injuries from being thrown from a wagon by the running away of a team, alleged to have been frightened by a locomotive whistle, the assignment of error asserts that the uncontradicted evidence showed that plaintiff was in plain view of the engineer as he passed along, where the plaintiff was on the public road and could have been seen by him, had he looked, and the statement thereunder contains no facts showing that the whistle was negligently sounded, or that the team was frightened by it, the verdict for the defendant will not be disturbed. Bull v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 78 S. W. 525, 33 C. A. 547.

An instruction is not reviewable under an assignment of error where the statement following the proposition does not show that the charge complained of was given to the jury, and does not contain any reference to the page of the record from which such information could be obtained, as required by the direct provisions of rule 31 (94 Tex. 660, 67 S. W. xvi). Gray v. Moore, 37 C. A. 407, 84 S. W. 293.

Where the statements under assignments of error relating to the admissibility of testimony do not show what objections to the testimony were urged, the assignments will not be considered. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 499.

Where the reason for an assignment of error to a paragraph of the court's charge submitted as a proposition, recited that the undisputed evidence showed certain facts, but the assignment was not followed by any statement showing that the evidence on such issue was undisputed, the assignment was insufficient. Ferguson v. Morrison, 43 C. A. 396, 95 S. W. 1091.

A statement following a proposition under an assignment of error complaining of the refusal of the court to give instructions, which does not show that any instructions were requested by the party complaining and refused by the court, is insufficient under rule 31. American Surety Co. of New York v. Lyons, 44 C. A. 150, 97 S. W. 1080.

Plaintiff in error assigned that the court, in an action by an employé against a railway company for its refusal to furnish medical treatment and hospital privileges, erred in admitting in evidence over objections "the rules contained in a circular form letter of hospital rules of" another railroad named. This was followed by a proposition that the secret rules issued by the railroad named, which was a distinct corporation, and had never been communicated to the employé, were inadmissible, and the statement subjoined did not show what the rules were, or that they were introduced in evidence, or what objections were made to their introduction, or what the rulings of the court were. Held, that the assignment would not be reviewed. Scanlon v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 345, 100 S. W. 982.

An assignment of error to a refusal to suppress a deposition because memoranda referred to by witness were not attached to and returned with the answers, as required by article 3660, is not entitled to consideration; the statement subjoined to the proposition under the assignment not showing that they were not so attached and returned. Young v. Pecos County, 46 C. A. 319, 101 S. W. 1055.

Under rules 30 and 31 (67 S. W. xvi), assignments of error complaining of the refusal of special charges will not be considered when not followed by statements showing that the charges were requested or that they were refused. Gilmore v. Houston Electric Co., 46 C. A. 315, 102 S. W. 168.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling a demurrer to the petition is insufficiently presented, where the statement does not refer to such demurrer. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120, judgment modified 101 T. 535, 109 S. W. 1089, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 758.

An assignment of error not supported by a sufficient statement will not be considered by an appellate court, and where the statement fails to show what objection was made to the introduction of certain oral testimony as to the contents of a letter, and does not refer to any bill of exceptions or any page of the record from which any objection or ruling can be ascertained, it is insufficient. Jackson v. Tonahill, 49 C. A. 169, 108 S. W. 178.

A statement in appellants' brief, in support of a proposition under an assignment that the court erred in admitting a deed in evidence, which only copied the objection and referred to the bill of exceptions, but did not show wherein any injury had resulted from the ruling, was insufficient. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 662.

The court will not review a proposition as to whether a witness is legally qualified to testify as to the market value of a given article at a particular time and place, and that it was error to permit him to testify thereto, where the statement supporting the proposition does not show that the witness named in it did testify to the market value. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Powers, 54 C. A. 168, 117 S. W. 459.

The statement accompanying the assignment was that "the grounds for abating the suit were laid down in defendants' answer as the improper procedure employed by the county court in making the appointment and the incapacity of the receiver to maintain the suit." Held, that the statement was insufficient, as not showing that any request for leave to amend was made by plaintiff and refused by the court, and, if this request could be inferred, the statement would still be insufficient because it fails to show when or under what circumstances such request was made, or to state any facts which indicate that any error was committed in refusing to permit the amendment. Gray v. Fuller, 54 C. A. 345, 117 S. W. 919.

In the absence of a statement under an assignment of error, complaining of the refusal to give a charge, showing the pertinency of the charge, the assignment will be overruled. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James, 55 C. A. 588, 120 S. W. 269.

In the absence of a showing, in the statement accompanying the proposition under the assignment of error complaining of the judgment on a bond on the ground that it included defalcations prior to execution of the bond, that the judgment included such defalcations, the assignment must be overruled. Haupt v. James Cravens & Co., 56 C. A. 253, 120 S. W. 541.

An assignment and the statement thereunder, failing to point out wherein the charge objected to was inconsistent with the main charge or not applicable to the facts, was insufficient. Stone v. Stitt, 56 C. A. 465, 121 S. W. 187.

Where admission of bills of lading in evidence is objected to, but the record contains only their substance, and no statement in verification of the objection, it is insufficient. Maricle v. McAlister Fuel Co., 55 C. A. 178, 121 S. W. 221.

If plaintiff, alleged to have been defrauded by defendant into conveying land to defendant in exchange for other land, subsequently mortgaged the land given to him in exchange, and had no knowledge of the fraud when he executed the mortgage, the act could not be a ratification of the alleged fraudulent transaction, and hence an assignment of error complaining of an erroneous charge on such ratification, which did not show in the statement thereunder that plaintiff knew of the fraud, if any, when he executed the mortgage, did not raise the issue of ratification, and upon the state of the record any error in the charge on that issue would be harmless. Koppe v. Koppe, 57 C. A. 204, 122 S. W. 68.

An assignment of error, in overruling appellants' motion on the findings of fact by the jury and court for a judgment pursuant to such findings, cannot be considered, where it was not followed by a statement from the record showing the ruling complained of, or what the findings were on which judgment was asked. Stephenville Oil Mill v. McNeill, 57 C. A. 252, 122 S. W. 911.

The statement under an assignment of error to rejection of a requested charge should point out facts rendering the rejection prejudicial. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 144.

Even if an instruction in an action for delay in transportation of cattle, whereby they were not sold till Friday, was on the weight of evidence, in assuming that they should have been in time to sell on Tuesday, the statement under the assignment of error fails to show the assumption was prejudicial; it not showing that Tuesday was not the proper day of sale, or, if it was not, what was the proper day, or that the market prices materially differed on the days between Tuesday and Friday. Id.

An assignment of error to the overruling of a special exception to the petition will not be considered; the statement subjoined to the propositions thereunder not showing what the exception was, and where it is to be found in the transcript not being indicated by appellant's brief. Oster v. Oster (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 265.

An assignment that the court erred in not administering to the sheriff the oath required by law before he summoned the jury, and that the jury was not selected by jury commissioners, without any showing that the appellant took exception to such failure other than pointed out by the statement in the assignment itself, is not sufficient. Willis v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 929.

An assignment of error to the admission of evidence is insufficient where the statement thereunder does not show that appellant excepted, nor the ground of his objection, and where there is no reference to the page of the record where the testimony appears. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

An assignment of error to an instruction will not be considered where the statement does not show facts making the instruction erroneous, and where no error appears on the instruction's face. Id.

An assignment that the court erred in holding that plaintiff was not entitled to recover lands and in refusing to submit the question of rents to the jury, etc., was supported only by a statement that defendant S. testified that the reasonable rental value of the south half of the property in controversy from the date of a sheriff's sale when he took possession up to the time of the trial was $6 a month, that defendant M. testified that he took possession April 11, 1906, and had been in possession ever since of the south half of the land, that the reasonable value of the property from the date of sale to the present time was $6 a month. Held that, since it nowhere appeared from the statement that the court held that appellee was not entitled to recover rents or refused a request to submit the issue and did not refer to any part of the record showing such action, the statement at most showed that the issue was ignored and did not support the assignment. Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1070.

An assignment complaining of the exclusion of evidence will not be considered on appeal, where the ground of objection to the evidence excluded is not shown by the statement subjoined to the proposition under the assignment. Lefkovitz v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 850.

In an action to restrain the foreclosure of a mortgage, an assignment that the trial court erred in vacating the injunction because appellant since the execution of the mortgage had established a rural homestead on the mortgaged premises, and that they had the equitable right to have the excess acreage over the homestead sold first, cannot be considered where there is nothing in the statement accompanying the assignment showing that there was any such excess acreage which could reasonably be expected to sell for enough to satisfy appellee's indebtedness. Carney v. McCelvey (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1172.

In such case, an assignment of error that the court should have continued the injunction until a trial of the facts at the next term of court, when the amount due by appellant on such mortgage had been determined and the rights of all parties to the suit adjusted, and the injurious consequences of the sale prevented, cannot be considered where the statement accompanying the assignment fails to show that appellees are attempting to sell the land for more than is justly due by appellant. Id.

Where the statement accompanying an assignment of error complaining of the exclusion of testimony fails to show that an exception was reserved, the assignment will not be reviewed. Fitzgibbons v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1186.

Error in sustaining objections to interrogatories in depositions put in evidence by appellee cannot be considered on appeal, where the objections are not shown in appellant's brief by the statement accompanying the propositions under the assignments of error. Waterhouse Rice & Sugar Co. v. Willard (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 382.

A statement under an assignment of error complaining of rulings on evidence must show that a bill of exceptions was taken to the evidence objected to, or the assignment will not be considered. Autrey v. Linn (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 197.

Where there was no statement from the record to show the relevancy or irrelevancy of evidence objected to, the assignment of error will not be reviewed. Cahoon v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 790.

Where the statement following a proposition under an assignment of error complaining of the admission of evidence of the general reputation of the person for truth and veracity did not show that the person had testified in the case, or that any bill of exceptions was reserved to the admission of the testimony, the statement was not sufficient to support the assignment, and the ruling was not reviewable on appeal. Guilmartin v. Padgett (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1143.

Where the statements accompanying assignments objecting to charges given by the court point out no state of facts showing error, the assignments will be overruled. Whisenant v. Schawe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 146.

An assignment of error in refusing to award judgment for defendants' breaches of the contract sued upon cannot be considered if there is no statement under it showing what the contract was, how, if at all, it was breached, and what, if any, damages were sustained. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1048.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal to properly instruct on an issue raised in a special charge will not be considered where appellant does not in the statement or argument inform the appellate court whether or not the issue thus raised has been presented in the general or in a special charge. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Addis (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 955.

Defendant telegraph company assigned error in admitting evidence of plaintiff's grief resulting from failure to promptly deliver a telegram announcing the death of his stepson, and in refusing to direct that plaintiff could not recover, and the proposition under the assignment was that plaintiff "was not entitled to recover for mental anguish on his own account," and the statement thereunder was that decedent was plaintiff's stepson, and there was no notice to defendant of any facts establishing any unusual or peculiar relationship between plaintiff and his stepson to permit plaintiff to recover for mental anguish in his own right. Held, that the statement was sufficient to authorize a consideration of the assignments of error. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Kanause (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 189.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), assignments of error not supported by a sufficient statement will not be considered on appeal, and where statements under assignments of error in rulings on evidence refer to no objection to the evidence, except to state in a few instances that the evidence was admitted over the objection of the plaintiff, and it does not appear even by inference therein that any exception was taken, the statements are insufficient. Addington v. Howard (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 268.

Error assigned as to the uncertainty of a verdict will not be considered, where supporting facts are not shown the court by a statement under the assignment. Masterson v. Harrington (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 626.

An assignment of error, in a refusal to allow a witness to testify to a fact, will not be considered, where the statement does not show what the witness would have sworn to if allowed to testify. Day v. Becker (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1197.

Assignments of error not conforming to the requirements of rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), by stating evidence objected to, the objection made, and not referring to page of record, will not be considered. Holland v. Closs (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 671.

An assignment of error to the sufficiency of petition in quo warranto will not be considered, where neither the statement nor the proposition thereunder specifically states the grounds of attack on the petition. Griffin v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 328.

Under rule 31 (31 S. W. vii), assignments of error in overruling defendant's demurrers and exceptions to the petition held not reviewable where the statements thereunder did not disclose that the exceptions were called to the trial court's attention and overruled by any order entered of record. Huggins v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 390.

Where error is assigned in overruling a special exception to the petition, the exception should be copied into the brief, and reference made to the record where it may be found, in view of rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii). Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Rulings on evidence will not be reviewed where appellant's brief fails to disclose the grounds of objection made at the trial. Lee v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 868.

Error in admitting evidence cannot be reviewed, where there is no showing in the assignments of error that witness gave the objectionable testimony, except certain statements from the motion for a new trial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 904.

Where the statement fails to disclose any finding or to point out any defect in the evidence, an assignment of error complaining of a finding will be overruled. Unknown Heirs of Criswell v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 210.

An assignment of error which of itself or by its supporting statement does not disclose how the testimony complained of was incompetent, misleading, or prejudicial presents no question for review. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1182.

Where a statement supporting assignments of error refers to no bill of exceptions to the admission of evidence, assignments of error in admitting the evidence will not be considered. Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 911.

Assignment of error to part of a charge will not be considered, where the statement under the assignment does not show that the instruction, if erroneous, was harmful. Texas Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Prince (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 231.

Where the statement, under an assignment of error, does not show the admission of testimony complained of, the assignment will be overruled. Lind v. Reeves & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 262.

An assignment complaining of the admission of evidence held to be overruled, where the bill and the statement under the assignment failed to show that any such evidence was admitted. Snyder Ice, Light & Power Co. v. Bowron (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 550.

An assignment of error complaining of testimony objected to will not be considered, where it is not followed by an intelligible statement, and one which indicates what effect the testimony had on any issue in the case. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

Where the proposition under an assignment of error to the remarks of the judge does not contain the remarks, the assignment cannot be considered. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

An assignment of error, not followed by a statement tending to sustain or throw any light on the contentions of appellant, will be overruled. Daugherty v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1089.

55. —— Negativing correctness of rulings on particular grounds.—In view of article 7744 a statement in support of an assignment of error in the bill of exceptions to a ruling permitting plaintiff to introduce a copy of a patent and deed to prove his title, on the ground that he had failed to file an abstract within 20 days after notice, but failing to show that the abstract was not filed by permission of the court, as authorized, was insufficient to sustain the assignment. Spikes v. Howard, 51 C. A. 389, 111 S. W. 792.

Where, in an action for the death of plaintiff's husband, defendant pleaded negligence of a fellow servant, contributory negligence, assumed risk, and that deceased at the time of the accident was in the employ of an independent contractor, a statement, in support of assignments that the court erred in directing a verdict for defendant, merely alleging that the alleged independent contractor was not such in fact, and making no reference to the other defenses, was insufficient to justify a review of the ruling on appeal. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 112 S. W. 430.

An assignment of error to the admission of evidence will not be considered where the statement of facts does not exclude circumstances under which the evidence would be admissible. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

56. —— Setting out pleadings or averments therein.—The statement, subjoined to a proposition following an assignment that the court erred in overruling a special exception to the supplemental petition, should not only show the allegations in the supplemental petition to which the exception was directed, but also that part of the answer to which the part of the supplemental petition excepted to was pleaded in replication, or the same will not be full enough to require the court on appeal to consider the assignment. City of San Antonio v. Routledge, 46 C. A. 196, 102 S. W. 756.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), in a suit to cancel a deed, a statement under an assignment of error to the sustaining of a demurrer to petition that the petition shows that plaintiffs disposed of their interest for an inadequate consideration, through fraudulent representations by defendant's agent, etc., is insufficient, where neither the alleged misrepresentations, nor when nor in what circumstances they were made, are set out, and there is no reference to the page of the record on which they can be found. Parish v. Nelson, 49 C. A. 559, 108 S. W. 1189.

An assignment of error complaining of rulings on special exceptions to the petition, followed by a statement which does not point out the portions of the petition excepted to, and does not set out the substance of the exceptions as required by the rules, will not be considered. Munroe v. Munroe, 54 C. A. 320, 116 S. W. 878.

In an action by the receiver of the estate of an insane person, it was assigned as error on appeal from an order dismissing the action that "the action of the county court in appointing the receiver was neither void nor subject to attack in a collateral proceeding." Following this was the statement: "Defendants' plea in abatement seeks to invalidate this receiver's appointment on account of the manner in which that appointment was made." Held, that the statement was insufficient, as it did not inform the court what facts were pleaded by defendants in abatement of plaintiff's suit, nor what evidence was adduced under said plea. Gray v. Fuller, 54 C. A. 345, 117 S. W. 919.

On appeal from an order sustaining a plea in abatement and dismissing the suit of such receiver, plaintiff assigned as error that "the court erred in sustaining defendants' plea in abatement and dismissing plaintiff's suit on the evidence," and one proposition under this assignment was that "the receiver had authority to bring and maintain this suit as shown by his letters of appointment and application therefor." The statement under this proposition only showed that the order of the county court appointing the receiver authorized him to enter into a contract with attorneys to recover any real property to which the lunatic for whom he was acting might be entitled. Held, that the plea in abatement not being copied in the statement, and no statement being made of the substance of said plea or of the grounds therein urged for abatement, the court on appeal cannot say that the fact that the order appointing the receiver authorized him to contract with attorneys for the recovery of land was an answer to the plea, or that because this fact was shown the court erred in sustaining said plea. Id.

The statement under an assignment of error complaining of the sustaining of an exception to the petition should not only embrace the exception, but should also state the part of the petition to which the exception is addressed. Carrico v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 260.

The criticised part of a pleading must be copied into the statement following the assignment of error complaining of the insufficiency of the pleading, and a reference to the record is not sufficient. Autrey v. Linn (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 197.

An assignment of error that the court erred in sustaining plaintiff's exceptions, followed by the proposition that defendant had a right to plead the facts, will not be considered where the contents of the pleading complained of are not set out, and it is not shown how or in what way defendant suffered an injury. Herman v. Smith (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1087.

An assignment of error complaining of the striking out of a supplemental petition not followed by a statement showing the contents of the petition held not reviewable. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

A statement complaining of the overruling of special exceptions to plaintiff's pleadings, which does not indicate what the pleadings or exceptions were nor that the court made any ruling, but which states facts foreign to the assignment, is improper. Watts v. Snodgrass (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1149.

An assignment of error complaining that evidence was not authorized under the pleading will not be considered, where the statement failed to disclose the pleading on that subject. El Paso & Southwestern Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 356.

57. —— Setting out instructions complained of.—A statement under a proposition on appeal should contain the charge of which complaint is made, or the substance of it, and the reference to the record for verification, a reference to the transcript not being sufficient. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vanlandingham, 38 C. A. 206, 85 S. W. 847.

Under rule 31, assignments on appeal complaining of charges cannot be considered where the charges referred to in the assignments are not incorporated or referred to in the statement subjoined to the propositions under them. Feagan v. Barton-Parker Mfg. Co., 42 C. A. 373, 93 S. W. 1076.

Where a portion of the charge complained of in an assignment of error is not contained in the statement subjoined to the proposition, the assignment will not be considered. Holmes v. Adams (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 816.

Error assigned to an instruction will not be considered where the instruction is not pointed out in the assignment, proposition, or statement. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 49 C. A. 349, 108 S. W. 480.

Assignments of error objecting to certain instructions will not be considered where neither of the charges referred to were embraced in the statement subjoined to the propositions under the respective assignments. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 265.

Where, in trespass to try title, an assignment of error complaining of the failure of a paragraph of a charge to state that to recover under 10 years' limitations there should be proof of adverse possession, and the statements connected with the assignment and propositions thereunder failed to disclose what the court charged on the subject, the court of civil appeals could decline to consider the assignment. Washam v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 52.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's refusal to give requested charges, not followed by any statement, and an assignment urging that the court erred in certain paragraphs of its charge, followed by a statement not setting out the charges complained of, need not be considered. Estes v. Estes (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 304.

An assignment of error in overruling a motion for new trial, on the ground of error in an instruction, need not be considered on appeal, where the statement under the assignment does not refer to the charge, and its substance is not given in the assignment or elsewhere. Erp v. Meachem (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 230.

An assignment of error complaining of a charge should be followed by a statement showing what was in the charge of which complaint is made, and pointing out the paragraph of the charge complained of. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Tracy (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 639.

58. —— Setting out instructions refused.—Assignments complaining of the refusal of requested charges cannot be considered when the statements following them do not show what the charges were, and no reference is made to any page in the record containing them. Butler v. Holmes, 68 S. W. 52, 29 C. A. 48.

Assignments of error complaining of a refusal to give special instructions merely referred to and not set out in full, and which are not followed by a statement under the assignments giving the instructions in full, will not be considered on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cornell, 69 S. W. 980, 29 C. A. 596.

Where neither the assignment of error nor the proposition thereunder contains a special charge asked by appellant, which was given with the modification complained of in the assignment, the charge is not reviewable. Gray v. Moore, 37 C. A. 407, 84 S. W. 293.

Assignments of error complaining of the refusal of the court to give instructions did not set forth the instructions. The statements following the propositions did not contain the instructions nor refer to the pages of the record where they could be found. Held, that the assignments would not be considered on appeal. American Surety Co. of New York v. Lyons, 44 C. A. 150, 97 S. W. 1080.

Assignments of error referring to the refusal of instructions should be followed by a statement showing at least the pages of the transcript on which such instructions may be found, so that they may be verified. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120, judgment modified 101 T. 535, 109 S. W. 1089, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 758.

An assignment that the court erred in refusing to give a special charge, and in overruling a specified paragraph of defendant's motion for a new trial, is too general to be considered, where the charge is not copied in the statement following the assignment, and there is no reference on the record to the charge. Briggs v. New South Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 885.

Alleged error in the refusal of an instruction will not be considered, where it is not copied or referred to in the statement following the assignment, and the contents are not shown. Montgomery v. Amsler, 57 C. A. 216, 122 S. W. 307.

Assignments of error complaining of the refusal of special charges will not be considered, where the statements do not refer to the special charges. Stevens v. Porter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 264.

An assignment that the refusal of a special charge was erroneous is not entitled to consideration where the charge is not quoted in the statement thereunder, nor the page of the transcript where it may be found given. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 478.

An assignment of error complaining of the denial of a special charge should not be considered where the charge is not copied in the statement thereunder. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510.

Assignments of error to the refusal of instructions are not reviewable, where they are not set out in the assignments nor in the statement thereunder. Lupton v. Willmann (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 261.

59. —— Setting out matters of evidence.—Where the testimony referred to in an assignment of error based on the erroneous admission of testimony was not set out in the statement subjoined to the assignment, and there was no reference to the page in the record where the same could be found, the assignment was not reviewable. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 607.

Where the giving or refusal of an instruction, which undertakes to apply the law to the facts, is complained of, it is not sufficient, within rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), to set out in appellant's brief the charge or its substance, but enough of the evidence on the proposition to explain and support it should also be given. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Olds (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 787.

Where complaint is made of the admission or rejection of evidence, enough of the evidence on the proposition to explain and support it must, under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), be given in appellant's brief. Id.

Where the statement in the brief, under an assignment of error that the verdict is unsupported by the evidence, contains no recital of the evidence, but merely conclusions of fact, and refers to the entire statement of facts to support those conclusions, the brief is not in compliance with court of civil appeals rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Adams v. Hamilton, 53 C. A. 405, 116 S. W. 1169.

An assignment that the court erred in giving a charge because of the absence of evidence on which to base it, not followed by any statement of the evidence, may be disregarded on appeal. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Hunt, 54 C. 415, 118 S. W. 827.

An assignment of error will not be considered, where it is not followed by a statement of all the evidence tending to sustain the verdict. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 884.

A statement following an assignment to the admission of evidence, which was merely a conclusion as to effect of testimony, is insufficient. Stone v. Stitt, 56 C. A. 465, 121 S. W. 187.

An assignment of error was directed to conclusions of fact by the trial court, and in the statement was set out certain evidence contrary to the findings; but it was not stated directly or by inference that it was all the evidence on the question. Held, that it could not be held that the conclusions were not supported by evidence. Weil v. Martinez, 57 C. A. 440, 124 S. W. 116.

Where no evidence is collated in the statement under the proposition that a paragraph of the charge was not applicable to the facts of the case, the appellate court is under no duty to search the record to see whether it failed to sustain the charge. Miller v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 302.

Where an assignment of error complains of the verdict as excessive, and it is not followed by any statement of the testimony bearing upon the subject, and no such statement is made elsewhere in appellant's brief, on appeal, the court is not required to pass upon the assignment. Freeman v. Mireles (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1162.

Where assignments of error are not followed by any statement of the facts on which requested charges are based, the appellate court will not search the record for such facts. Kostoryz v. Leary (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 456.

An assignment of error not accompanied by a statement of testimony showing its application will not be reviewed. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tack (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 596.

Under court rules 30 and 31 (94 Tex. 660, 67 S. W. xvi), an appellant challenging the correctness of an instruction must follow the assignment or proposition with a sufficient statement of the evidence with reference to the pages of the record as may be necessary to show not only that the charge was unwarranted by the facts proved, but that it probably operated to his prejudice, and, unless he does so, the assignment will not be considered. Wirtz v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 510.

Where, in an action for broker's commissions, appellant claimed by assignment of error that the evidence established that he was the procuring cause of the sale, the assignment required a statement of all the evidence pro and con relating to the question as required by rule 31 (94 Tex. 660, 31 S. W. vii). Evertson v. Warrach (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 514.

Where error was assigned to the refusal of a request to charge, but the statement under the assignment did not set out the testimony bearing on the question, and did not point out the page of the record where such testimony could be found, such assignment will not be reviewed. Caruthers v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 757.

An assignment of error which was not accompanied by a sufficient statement of the evidence bearing upon the question to enable the court to decide it without a search of the record, or the reading of a statement made under another assignment which is quite lengthy, and contains a large amount of evidence and other matters not relating to the question, and which does not comply with the rules as to briefing a case, will not be considered on appeal. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pool (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 641.

Where an assignment complaining of the admission of a deposition was not followed by a statement showing what the deposition contained or the testimony objected to, the error would not be reviewed. Mitchell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 501.

Where an assignment to the admission of evidence was not followed by a statement showing the witness' answer to the question objected to or whether there was any answer, it would be reviewed. Id.

Assignments of error involving weight of the evidence will not be reviewed, where they are not followed by any statement of evidence contained in the record to support them, as required by rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). First Nat. Bank v. Whiteside (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 420.

A statement in a brief to support an assignment of error which is not made up from all the evidence in the record, and which sets out counsel's conclusions from the testimony, instead of the evidence, is fatally defective. Noland v. Weems (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1031.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error in refusing to award judgment for breaches of a contract sued upon cannot be considered, though followed by a statement showing what plaintiffs alleged respecting the contract, what they testified to, but does not purport to state the substance of all that is in the record bearing on the matter. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1048.

Assignment held insufficient to present error in refusal of new trial, where only a part of the evidence on the controverted issue was contained in the statement under it. Blunt v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 248.

Where no question is raised on appeal with reference to an affidavit, it need not be set out in the statement. Hayes v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 327.

An assignment of error, complaining of the admission of evidence over objection, that it was inadmissible and did not tend to prove any issue involved, will be overruled where the statement under the proposition does not attempt to set out the testimony or to comply with rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi) for preparing briefs, and where the bill of exceptions to which it refers shows that the evidence was admitted without objection, and the court overruled a motion to strike on the ground that it came too late. Ripley v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 974.

An assignment of error in an employé's action for injuries in refusing to direct a verdict for defendant because the evidence failed to show negligence will be overruled, if appellant's statement under the assignment does not set out the evidence bearing on the question. Gamer Co. v. Gamage (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 721.

Where the proposition subjoined to an assignment of error complaining of a paragraph of the charge for failing to instruct on matters raised by the evidence does not disclose the evidence, the assignment cannot be considered, in view of court rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii). Sullivan v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 838.

Where assignments of error in the admission of evidence did not mention witnesses, and the statement following made no reference to bills of exceptions, and the record contained no reference, there was no basis for the assignments, and they would be overruled. Texas Irr. Co. v. Moore, Bryan & Perry (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 166.

Under rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), requiring the statement to a proposition to be made "faithfully" with reference to the whole of the record having a bearing on the proposition, without intermixing arguments, etc., all of the evidence which would throw light on the question of the sufficiency of the evidence should be given in a statement following that proposition. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Whittington & Sweeney (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 689.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of an instruction could not be considered, where neither the proposition nor statement pointed out any evidence showing the relevancy of the instruction to the facts. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

Where the statement under an assignment of error to the refusal of a requested charge contains none of the evidence on the question presented, the alleged error cannot be reviewed, and it must be presumed that the charge given on that issue was sufficient under the evidence. Hutto v. Hall (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1022.

Under rules 29, 30, 31 (142 S. W. xii, xiii), an assignment or proposition not followed by a statement of the evidence will not be regarded. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.

60. —— Setting out verdict and findings.—Where there is no effort made under an assignment of error to entering judgment for plaintiff because the verdict of the jury was so inconsistent in its several findings that it was impossible to enter an accurate judgment thereon, to show wherein the verdict was inconsistent, and the verdict is nowhere set out in the appellant's brief, no reversible error can be predicated on the assignment. Ripley v. Wenzel (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 897.

61. —— Rulings on motion for new trial.—Where defendant, in an action for injuries to a passenger, assigned as error the overruling of its ground for new trial, that the evidence wholly failed to show that the derailment and wrecking of defendant's train on which plaintiffs were riding was caused by any of the negligent acts or omissions alleged in plaintiffs' petition, and the statement following the assignment only refers to the ground of the motion as stated, and to the statement under the third assignment, which is that there was no affirmative proof showing how the wreck was caused, the court will not consider the assignment. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Clippenger, 47 C. A. 510, 106 S. W. 155.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling an amended motion for a new trial for each and every ground set up in the motion was followed by the proposition that it was the duty of the court to grant a new trial when errors were called to its attention. For statement from the record to sustain the assignment and proposition, there were copied the grounds set up in the motion for a new trial. Held, that under court rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), the assignment would not be considered, since a proper consideration thereof would require an examination of the entire statement of facts. Luling Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Gohmert, 50 C. A. 606, 110 S. W. 772.

Where appellants' brief made no reference to the statement of errors in the motion for new trial, the assignments of error are insufficient under rules Nos. 24 and 25, providing that the statements thereunder must refer to that portion of the motion for new trial exhibiting the specifications of error complained of. Tiefel Bros. & Winn v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 319.

62. —— Conclusiveness and effect.—Under rule 41 (67 S. W. xvii), providing that, when any statement subjoined to a proposition under an assignment by plaintiff in error or appellant is not contested, it will be construed as acquiesced in, a statement by the appellants that the undisputed evidence establishes certain facts must be accepted as true. Gladys City Oil, Gas & Mfg. Co. v. Right of Way Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 171.

Courts of appeals rule 40 (142 S. W. xiv), authorizing a determination on the uncontraverted statement under the assignment of errors in appellant's brief, held not mandatory, and that the court might look to the record in determining the question of waiver of jurisdictional privilege by cross-action. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Evens & Lee (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1053.

A statement following an assignment of error, not supported by anything in the record, is insufficient to require the court on appeal to review the assignment. Velasco Fish & Oyster Co. v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1184.

63. —— Assignments in brief not contained in record.—Where an assignment of error in the brief on appeal was not a copy of any assignment in the record, and the propositions presented thereunder were not appropriate to, and did not arise under, the assignment, neither the assignment nor the propositions can be considered. Kruegel v. Bolanz (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 435; Hardy v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 650.

64. —— Counter-propositions in appellee's brief.—Appellee's brief, in submitting four "counter-propositions to all of appellant's assignments" of error, violated the court of civil appeals rule. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 850.

65. References to record.—An assignment that the court erred in not sustaining appellant's "first and second special exceptions as per bill of exceptions No. 1" will not be considered where his brief does not contain, as required by the rules, a statement of appellee's pleading to which the exceptions were addressed. D'Arrigo v. Texas Produce Co., 44 S. W. 531, 18 C. A. 41.

Assignments of error which do not identify the particular proceedings complained of in the record, as required by rule 25 (67 S. W. xv), cannot be reviewed. Swift v. Bruce, 31 C. A. 92, 71 S. W. 321.

An assignment was addressed to the court's refusal to sustain designated exceptions which were not set out even substantially in the statement under the assignment, and were not referred to in the transcript. Two propositions were submitted under the assignment, one of which was that it was incumbent on plaintiff to allege and prove upon what line of railroad his damages occurred, and the other was that it was incumbent on plaintiff to allege and prove the amount of damages chargeable to each defendant, and to set up the particular acts or omissions of each defendant. A reference to the transcript showed that the exceptions in fact involved more than one question. Held, that the assignment was not in accordance with the rules, and would be disregarded. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hagler, 38 C. A. 52, 84 S. W. 692.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error on the refusal of an instruction which merely referred to the pages of the record containing the charge and the testimony of several of plaintiff's witnesses would not be considered. Walker v. International & G. N. Ry. Co., 54 C. A. 406, 117 S. W. 1020.

It is not sufficient to refer to the bill of exceptions for the facts necessary to consider an assignment of error. Taylor v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1018.

Defects in an assignment of error for not stating in substance the facts necessary for its consideration cannot be supplied by reference to the record. Vann v. Denson, 56 C. A. 220, 120 S. W. 1020.

An assignment of error, referring to bills of exception for language of counsel, but failing to indicate the language complained of, will not be considered. Freeman v. Vetter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 190.

An assignment of error to the refusal of a motion for a new trial based on several grounds is not properly reviewable where it is submitted as a proposition itself. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

Under rules 24, 25 (142 S. W. xii), an assignment of error will not be considered where, in the brief of appellant, there is no reference either to any motion for new trial or to that portion of the motion in which the error is complained of. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ledbetter (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 646.

Where certain assignments of error do not point out the proceedings contained in the record so as to identify the matters objected to as required by rule 25 (152 S. W. xii), they cannot be reviewed. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 229.

An assignment of error complaining of a refusal of an instruction may not be considered, where the instruction was not copied in the brief and the page of the record containing it was not pointed out. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

Upon an assignment of error in denying a continuance for absence of two named witnesses and of other witnesses named in the application, the appellate court will not search the record to ascertain all the witnesses mentioned in the application, but will consider the motion only with reference to the two named witnesses. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

Assignments of error which make no reference to the pages of the record will not be considered. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 294.

Where the assignments of error, complaining of the denial of a continuance, does not point out the paragraph of the motion for new trial wherein the error was complained of, the assignments do not comply with rules 24, 25, 31 (142 S. W. xii, xiii), and the assignments will not be considered. Texas Midland R. R. v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 542.

Where an assignment of error complained of the refusal to sustain a designated paragraph of the motion for new trial on the ground that the verdict is contrary to the law and the evidence, and the brief of appellant showed the pages of the transcript where the motion could be found, the assignment and brief substantially complied with rules 24, 25, 31 (142 S. W. xii, xiii). Id.

Assignments of error which do not refer to that portion of the motion for a new trial in which the error is complained of, as required by rule 25 (142 S. W. xii), will not be reviewed. Konz v. Henson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 593; Peck v. Morgan, Id. 917; J. F. Siensheimer & Co. v. Maryland Motor Car Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 228; El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Lee, Id. 748; Imperial Irr. Co. v. McKenzie, Id. 751; Cain v. Delaney, Id.; Southern Pac. Co. v. Walters, Id. 753.

An assignment of error which does not refer to the portion of the motion for new trial in which the error is complained of cannot be considered. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

Since objections to charges given and refused need not be set up in the motion for new trial, assignments of error alleging error in the charges need not refer to the motion for new trial as required by rule 25 (142 S. W. xii). San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 175.

Under rules 24 and 25, as amended in 1912 (142 S. W. xii), no question can be raised that has not been presented in a motion for new trial, and each assignment of error must refer to the paragraph of the motion in which the question covered by the assignment has been raised. Morrow v. Harvey (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 206.

Assignments of error not referring to that part of the motion for a new trial in which the error is complained of, as required by rules 24 and 25, as amended January 24, 1912 (142 S. W. xii), cannot be considered. Whitten v. Whitten (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 277; Irving v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., Id. 752.

Rule 25 (142 S. W. xii), requiring assignments of error to refer to that portion of the motion for new trial in which the error is complained of, is sometimes ignored, but will be enforced where no sufficient excuse appears or is implied. Riter v. Neatherly (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 439.

Assignments of error not referring to that part of the motion for new trial in which the error was complained of will be considered as waived. Slaughter v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 754.

66. Time for filing.—The indorsements on the transcript showed that it was delivered to the plaintiff in error one day before the date of the copy of assignments of errors attached to, and by agreement of parties made a part of, the transcript. Held, that the assignment of errors should be considered as filed in due time. Booth v. Strippleman, 61 T. 378.

It is sufficient if the assignment of error is filed at any time before the transcript is taken out, and notice of such filing given to appellee in ample time to enable him to prepare his brief with reference thereto. Buchanan v. Wagnon, 62 T. 375; Mo. P. Ry. Co. v. Rabb, 3 App. C. C. § 37; Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 625, 8 S. W. 98; Patrick v. Laprille (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 872.

The court will not refuse to consider assignments filed after the filing of the writ of error bond, unless it appears that such assignments have operated to the prejudice of the opposing party. Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 625, 8 S. W. 98.

An assignment filed after the transcript has been taken out will be disregarded. Legion of Honor v. Rowell, 78 T. 677, 15 S. W. 217.

An assignment of error must be filed in the trial court before the transcript is taken out. Bopp v. Ganzer (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 444. See Corley v. Renz (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1130.

67. Filing and annexing to record.—The statute requiring assignments of error to be filed before the record is taken from the clerk's office is mandatory. Phillips v. Webb (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1011.

The appellate court cannot consider assignments of error in appellant's brief which are not in the record. Morrow v. Terrell, 21 C. A. 28, 50 S. W. 734.

The appellate court cannot consider assignments of error set forth in appellant's brief and taken apparently from the motion for a new trial. Hoover v. Kearbey, 25 C. A. 71, 60 S. W. 782.

Assignments of error in a case appealed on a statement of facts will not be considered, where not filed below. Gidcumb v. Gidcumb (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 827.

Assignment of errors in briefs will not be considered where there are no assignment of errors in the record. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 888.

Where no assignments of error were copied into the transcript, error alleged in the brief cannot be considered on appeal unless it is shown by the record. Engleman v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1089.

An assignment of error not shown to have been filed below nor to have been filed by consent on appeal will not be considered. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

Where an assignment of error was not filed in the court below, the appellate tribunal need not consider it. Gray v. Altman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 760.

Where an assignment of error was not filed in the court below, nor its filing waived by opposing counsel, and where the brief of the party taking the assignment contained no certificate by the clerk of the trial court that the brief was filed therein, the assignment could not be considered. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Pope (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1185.

Under this article and rule 23 (142 S. W. xii) providing that that court will only consider errors of law apparent on the record, if it does not contain an assignment of errors, the court of civil appeals cannot consider assignments of error copied in appellant's brief, where no assignments were filed in the trial court. Witherspoon v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 633.

Assignments of error will not be considered, where the record does not show that they were filed in the lower court. Thompson v. Howard (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1065.

68. —— Including in transcript.—See, also, Art. 2113.

Under this article and Art. 2113, providing that the transcript on appeal shall contain the assignments of error, where there is no assignment of errors in the transcript on appeal, assignments presented in appellant's brief cannot be considered, and in the absence of error apparent on the face of the record requiring a reversal, the judgment must be affirmed. Peacock v. Moore (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 943.

Assignments of error contained in an amended brief, but not in a transcript, will not be considered. Stephens v. Turley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 848.

Where assignments of error were not in the transcript when delivered to the court of civil appeals because of the fault of the clerk, the assignments will be considered on appeal. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

69. Cross-assignments.—As to cross-assignment of errors, see Brown v. Hudson, 14 C. A. 605, 38 S. W. 653, and cases cited.

Motion by appellant to strike cross-assignments of error is too late, when made after submission of the cause on appeal. Watt v. Hunter, 20 C. A. 76, 48 S. W. 593.

A request that a cross-assignment of error should be considered in case the court for any reason remanded the case, held a waiver of such assignment, the judgment having been modified and affirmed. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Nicolini (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 84.

The court of civil appeals, after deciding a case on appeal, will not consider cross-assignments of error not before it for consideration before its decision was rendered. O'Neil v. Sun Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 172.

70. —— Right to assign.—Where appellee defendant fails to perfect a cross-appeal, he cannot have affirmative relief against co-plaintiffs with appellants, who do not appeal. Hoover v. Kearbey, 25 C. A. 71, 60 S. W. 782.

A cross-assignment of errors by a party not appealing, as to another party also not appealing, will not be considered. Blackwell v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 454.

In an action involving title to land sold defendants, even though defendants did not appeal, a cross-assignment of error, which affects appellant, that the court erred in finding that defendants were not bona fide purchasers, will be considered. Veatch v. Gilmer (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 746.

On appeal by one of several co-plaintiffs, neither defendant nor any of appellant's co-plaintiffs having perfected an appeal, cross-assignments of error which have no reference to appellant, or to that portion of the judgment appealed from, will not be considered. Id.

Where one of several plaintiffs appealed, but neither defendant nor any of the co-plaintiffs appealed, cross-assignments of error having no reference to appellant, nor to that part of the judgment appealed from, will not be considered. Gilmer's Estate v. Veatch, 102 T. 384, 117 S. W. 430.

Neither the statute nor rule 101 (67 S. W. xxvii), permitting appellant to file cross-assignments of error with the clerk of the trial court when he files his brief, which assignments may be incorporated in the brief and need not be copied in the transcript, contemplates the incorporation of cross-assignments of error in the transcript so that appellee will be taxed with the cost of incorporating them. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

Where a defendant appeals from a judgment for plaintiff, plaintiff must file a cross-appeal from a judgment for a co-defendant before he can assign cross-errors complaining of the judgment for the co-defendant. Western Nat. Bank v. White (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 828.

A cross-assignment of error will not be reviewed on appeal, where the appellees did not appeal from the judgment. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

71. —— Necessity.—An appellee who has not filed cross-assignments or brief cannot object to a dismissal by appellant for the purpose of having the cause remanded. I. B. & L. Ass'n v. Snodgrass (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 309.

Alleged error prejudicial to defendant in error will not be considered, in the absence of a cross-assignment. Wilkerson v. Jones (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1046.

Objection to the rulings of the court below cannot be urged by appellees unless they have a cross-assignment of errors. Blum v. Moore, 91 T. 273, 42 S. W. 856.

Questions raised on appeal by the appellee will not be considered, where there is no cross-assignment of error in the record. Burns v. Falls, 23 C. A. 386, 56 S. W. 576.

Plaintiff, in trespass to try title, who failed to appeal or file cross-assignments against his co-appellees, held not entitled, on a reversal of judgment, to a judgment against his co-appellees, though warranted by the evidence. Clawson v. Williams, 27 C. A. 130, 66 S. W. 702.

A finding that premises were homestead and not subject to a mechanic's lien, unassailed by cross-assignment of error, must be treated as true on appeal. Muller v. McLaughlin, 37 C. A. 449, 84 S. W. 687.

A ruling unfavorable to appellee held not reviewable in the absence of a cross-assignment of error. Norvell-Shapleigh Hardware Co. v. Hall Novelty & Machine Works (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1092.

Whether a petition states a cause of action may be questioned on plaintiff's appeal, though cross-assignments to the overruling of a demurrer may not have been filed as required by rule 101, for district and county courts. Farenthold v. Tell, 52 C. A. 110, 113 S. W. 635.

In the absence of cross-assignments of error calling in question the correctness of the trial court's ruling in striking out appellee's plea in reconvention on exception, the ruling cannot be reviewed. Mitchell v. Rushing, 55 C. A. 281, 118 S. W. 582.

If an appellee is denied an instructed verdict to which he is entitled, he may have the ruling reviewed without a cross-assignment of error. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

Where, in a suit for injunction, the court overruled certain grounds for granting the injunction, and such rulings were not presented by cross-assignments of error by appellee, they could not be considered on the other party's appeal. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 685.

The court held not bound to review the ruling on appellee's special exceptions to a plea in reconvention in the absence of cross-assignments of error. Hanson v. First Nat. Bank of Center (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1147.

Where the trial judge filed conclusions of fact and a statement of facts was brought up on appeal, and the undisputed testimony showed that the proper judgment was rendered, the successful party was entitled to an affirmance of the judgment without assigning error on the findings of fact not supported by undisputed testimony. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

The supreme court held not entitled to question the amount of the judgment against defendant in error presenting no cross-assignment thereon. Tarrant County v. Rogers, 104 T. 224, 136 S. W. 255.

Where defendant in error made no complaint by cross-assignment as to the amount of the judgment rendered against him, the supreme court on writ of error cannot consider the question. Id.

All questions not involving fundamental error of law must be presented by assignments or cross-assignments of error. Id.

A court on appeal held not bound to consider matters arising in a cross-action, in the absence of cross-assignments. Gulf Refining Co. v. Pagach Bros. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 719.

72. —— Filing and annexing to record.—An appellee or defendant in error may file a cross-assignment of errors separate from his brief, and in such case a failure to file his brief in time, where it is not stricken out, will not deprive him of his cross-appeal. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 431.

District and county court rule 101 (20 S. W. xviii) requires an assignment of cross-error to be filed in the trial court. Patterson v. Seeton, 19 C. A. 430, 47 S. W. 732.

A cross-assignment of error incorporated in appellee's brief, on an appeal from a justice court, shown to have been filed in the district court by the clerk's certificate thereon, may be considered in the court of civil appeals. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Geyer (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 251.

Cross-assignments of error not filed in the trial court cannot be considered on appeal. Lincoln v. Hollenbach (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 686; Storms v. Mundy, 46 C. A. 88, 101 S. W. 258; Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1070.

Cross-assignments cannot be considered, where the record does not show they were filed in the district court. Morrow v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 734.

A certificate by the clerk of the trial court, indorsed on appellee's brief, that a cross-assignment of error, therein set forth, was filed in the court below, required the consideration by the appellate court of the alleged error. Burns v. Falls, 23 C. A. 386, 56 S. W. 576.

Counter assignment of error, not embraced in the transcript, will not be considered. Scott v. Marlin, 25 C. A. 353, 60 S. W. 969.

Cross-assignment of error, not filed in the district court as required by district and county court rule 101 (67 S. W. xxvii), cannot be considered on appeal. Altgelt v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 41.

Where neither cross-assignments of error nor a copy of appellee's brief containing them are filed in the court below, as required by district and county court rule 101, such cross-assignments will not be considered on appeal. City of Austin v. Cahill (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 536.

A cross-assignment of error will not be considered where the record does not show that it was filed in the trial court, and where there is no indorsement on appellee's brief that a copy thereof was filed in the trial court. G. C. Williams & Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 916.

Appellee's brief containing cross-assignments, not filed in the trial court, where no consent was obtained to file them in the court of civil appeals, held not to be considered by that court. O'Neil v. Sun Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 172.

Where appellee's brief contained cross-assignments of error, but there was nothing in the transcript nor in the papers filed to indicate that the cross-assignments were filed in the district court, or such filing waived, or any consent of the appellant to their being filed in the court of civil appeals, they will not be considered by that court. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 198.

In the absence of the filing of cross-assignments of error in the trial court or by consent in the appellate court, the appellate court cannot reform a judgment by making it more favorable to appellee. Caples v. Port Huron Engine & Thresher Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 303.

A cross-assignment of error in appellee's brief cannot be considered; the record not showing the assignment was filed in the trial court, and neither brief appearing to have been filed there. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 639.

Where an assignment of error was not filed in the court below, the appellate tribunal need not consider it. Gray v. Altman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 760.

Under court rules 28 and 101 (142 S. W. xii, xxiv), relating to assignments of error, the court on appeal cannot consider cross-assignments not filed in the court below, and where a copy of appellee's brief in which they were presented was not so filed. League v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1129.

73. —— Sufficiency.—A cross-assignment of error held too general. Yarborough v. Whitman, 50 C. A. 391, 110 S. W. 471.

74. Defects, objections, and amendments.—The court of civil appeals is not deprived of authority to decide a point defectively raised by an assignment which is not in strict compliance with the statute and the rules of the court. Cammack v. Rogers, 96 T. 457, 73 S. W. 795.

Assignments of error, filed in the lower court and accompanied by the proper certificate, will be considered on appeal, in the absence of objections. Newman v. Satterwhite (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1145.

Where the court of civil appeals based its opinion on a partial statement of facts, subjoined to an assignment of error, it would not grant a motion to file additional conclusions of fact based on additional facts, called to its attention on rehearing. Noland v. Weems (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1031.

Where appellee's counsel waived objections to defects in appellant's assignments of error, the assignments will be considered. Hill v. Hanan & Son (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 648.

On an appeal perfected February 23, 1912, from a judgment rendered January 25, 1912, assignments of error will be reviewed notwithstanding appellant's failure to comply with the amendments of January 24, 1912, to the rules for courts of civil appeals. Davidson v. Patton (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 757.

New and important questions raised by appellant's brief, and assignments concerning which there might reasonably be a doubt as to the correctness of the action of the trial judge, held reviewable, although the brief did not comply with the rules of court. Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Rule 25 for the court of civil appeals (142 S. W. xii), as amended in January, 1912, requiring assignments of error to refer to the motion for new trial is for the benefit of the appellate court, and may be waived by it, and such rule may be disregarded in case of a motion for new trial filed before the rule was promulgated. Jones v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 727.

Assignments of error are not open to amendment in the appellate court, and hence cannot be cured by a supplemental brief. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

75. Scope and effect of assignment.—The question of defendant's wanton and reckless negligence held not raised under an assignment as to its liability in case deceased was a trespasser. Southerland v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 193.

Where an erroneous charge led to the verdict, error should be assigned to the charge, and not to the verdict. Davis v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 91 T. 505, 44 S. W. 822.

A contention, on appeal from a judgment against a carrier for injuries to a shipment of live stock, held foreign to the assignment of error. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 286.

An assignment of error that the court erred in holding that the pleadings set up an executed contract in writing, and that the same was prima facie evidence against defendant, is insufficient to raise the question of the admissibility of the contract in evidence. Altgelt v. Oliver Bros. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 28.

Certain assignments of error held not to present for review a ruling on the question of costs. Hunter v. Adoue & Lobit, 38 C. A. 542, 86 S. W. 622.

Under a certain assignment of error held that certain propositions could not arise. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 714.

An assignment that the court in an action for negligent death erred in refusing a continuance to defendant held not to raise the question whether it was entitled to have the judgment set aside and a new trial granted. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 560.

An assignment of error that the court erred in not sustaining a plea in abatement held not reviewable in the absence of an assignment attacking a finding of fact. City Loan & Trust Co. v. Sterner, 57 C. A. 517, 124 S. W. 207.

An assignment of error in an action for negligence held to bring in review the sufficiency of the evidence on the subject of negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 496.

An assignment of error held sufficient to warrant review of all errors committed by the court in giving a peremptory instruction. Hough v. Fink (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 147.

If appellant predicates its assignment of error upon a certain inference as to plaintiff's ground for recovery, appellant cannot complain on appeal of any injury from indulging in such inference. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Lunn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 538.

76. —— Rulings on pleadings.—Certain assignments of error held to be in the nature of demurrers to the petition, so that the proper practice would have been to first demur to the petition and assign an adverse ruling thereon as error, and hence called for review only far enough to determine whether the petition was good on general demurrer. Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. v. MacMaster, 51 C. A. 527, 113 S. W. 337.

Under this article, the defendant's elevator company's special exception to the plaintiff corporation's want of capacity to do business in the state was not presented for review by an assignment that the court erred in defining the care owed by the defendant in respect to the corn whose damage was the subject of the suit. Arbuckle Bros. v. Everybody's Gin & Mill Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1136.

77. —— Rulings as to evidence.—Assignment of error held to properly present on appeal objection to questions to an expert witness. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Powers, 101 T. 161, 105 S. W. 491.

Where assignment of errors go to the admission of an entire deposition of a county clerk and an abstract of title attached thereto, they do not raise the question of the admissibility of any particular portion of the abstract. Frugia v. Truehart, 48 C. A. 513, 106 S. W. 736.

Where an assignment of error related to the admissibility of evidence only, and did not involve the court's failure to strike out the witnesses' answers, the admissibility of the evidence only could be reviewed. Pullman Co. v. Vanderhoeven, 48 C. A. 414, 107 S. W. 147.

The question of qualification of witness held not raised by assignment of error to sufficiency of evidence. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Cassidy Southwestern Commission Co., 48 C. A. 484, 107 S. W. 628.

Where a ruling on evidence is brought to an appellate court on a single proposition, appellant is confined thereto. Kansas City Consol. Smelting & Refining Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 889.

In an action for personal injuries, an error held to arise in the court's instruction, and not reviewable, under an assignment of error complaining of the admission of evidence. Southern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Evans, 54 C. A. 63, 116 S. W. 418.

A certain objection to the admission of evidence, if raised for review by the objection taken at trial, held waived by the assignment of error, the proposition following it having asserted a different ground for its incompetency. Rudolph v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 209.

An assignment assailing competency of evidence cannot raise the question of its sufficiency to prove the issue. Powell v. Hill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1125.

78. —— Submission of issues to jury.—An assignment of error held to mean that plaintiff had made a case by the evidence, and that the court erred in charging peremptorily against him. Olivarri v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 392.

An assignment of error that the court erred in taking the case from the jury after the evidence was all in, and instructing for defendant, is sufficient to warrant review of all errors committed by the court in giving the peremptory instruction. Hough v. Fink (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 147.

Under court rule 24 (142 S. W. xii), providing that assignments of error must distinctly specify the grounds of error relied on, and set forth in the motion for new trial, an assignment of error predicated on the refusal to give a peremptory charge for defendant will not raise the question of the insufficiency of the evidence in a respect not called to the attention of the trial court. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Emerson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 468.

79. —— Instructions.—An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing a charge held not to raise the question whether, the instruction being erroneous, the court erred in not submitting it in some other form. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Miller, 25 C. A. 190, 60 S. W. 881.

An assignment that, if the statement of plaintiff's cause of action shows his cause to be for a less amount than the jurisdiction of the court, then the court has no jurisdiction, is without merit, where the petitions showed $600 then due under the terms of the contract sued on. Supreme Tent of Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Cox, 25 C. A. 366, 60 S. W. 971.

An assignment of error in an action by a wife for the conversion of her separate property deposited by her husband held not to raise the question of error in failing to instruct that the burden of showing a proper payment was on the bank. Coleman v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 93.

Assignments of error complaining of a refusal to give special instructions, merely referred to, but not set out, and not followed by a statement giving the instructions in full, will not be considered on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cornell, 29 C. A. 596, 69 S. W. 980.

Error in a charge in ignoring a certain issue held subject to be complained of under a general assignment alleging error in the charge given. Metcalfe v. Lowenstein, 35 C. A. 619, 81 S. W. 362.

Assignments of error held not an assignment complaining of refusal to submit special charges referred to. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fanning, 40 C. A. 422, 91 S. W. 344.

The appellate court is bound to consider instructions with reference to the specific objections made thereto, and not with reference to objections not urged. Laughlin v. Schnitzer (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 908.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of the court to give a charge held not to raise the question of the error of the court in failing to give a correct charge, on its attention being called to a point by the requested charge which was erroneous. Hess v. Webb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 618.

Where an assignment of error presents the sole question of the refusal to give a defective charge, and does not allege that the court should in view of the request have given a proper charge on the subject, it may be overruled, though the court entirely omitted to charge on the issue to which the refused charge related. Laughman v. Sun Pipe Line Co., 52 C. A. 485, 114 S. W. 451.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing a requested charge does not present the question whether, the instruction being erroneous, the court erred in not submitting the issue in some form. Clevenger v. Blount (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 868.

Under an assignment alleging error in the giving of the peremptory charge, error in excluding testimony cannot be considered. Sarro v. Bell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 24.

An assignment of error held not to present the question whether the court erred in failing to give a correct charge on an omitted issue, after its attention was called to the omission by an incorrect requested charge thereon. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. McBrayer (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 388.

Refusal of an instruction held not reviewable under an assignment of error in omission to instruct on that point. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 829.

Under the statute requiring assignments of error to be distinctly specified, defendant's special exception to plaintiff corporation's want of capacity to transact business in the state was not presented for review by an assignment that the court erred in defining the care required and what constituted negligence. Arbuckle Bros. v. Everybody's Gin & Mill Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1136.

An assignment of error in refusing a requested charge does not present for review the contention that the request was sufficient to direct the court's attention to the issue desired to be submitted and to require it to submit a correct charge. Walker v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1142.

A contention that an erroneous charge was sufficient to require the court to give a correct one on the subject-matter could not be considered under an assignment that the court erred in refusing the charge requested. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

The objection that an answer in the verdict is obscure may not be reached by assignment complaining of the instructions. Daugherty v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1089.

80. —— Verdict, findings, or judgment.—An assignment of error that the evidence does not support the findings of fact does not attack the sufficiency of the findings to sustain the judgment. Tarrant County v. Reid, 28 C. A. 425, 67 S. W. 785.

Where it is assigned as error that the verdict is excessive and unconscionable, but there is no assignment complaining of the court's refusal to set it aside, the appellate court is not required to revise the verdict. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Branch, 29 C. A. 144, 68 S. W. 338.

An assignment of error, in an action by a shipper against a railroad company for injuries to animals, which complains of the judgment because not authorized by the pleadings, is sufficient to raise the question of the propriety of the court entering a judgment for interest on the amount found by the jury as damages. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Addison, 96 T. 61, 70 S. W. 200.

An assignment of error on appeal held not to raise the question whether a finding was against the preponderance of the evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 32 C. A. 23, 74 S. W. 345.

An assignment of error held not to raise the question whether the court erred in not restricting the extent of recovery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Ridenour, 35 C. A. 574, 80 S. W. 1030.

An assignment of error held insufficient to raise the question of excessive damages. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 38 C. A. 129, 85 S. W. 37.

An assignment of error that the judgment is against the weight of the evidence held to present for review the action of the court in refusing a new trial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Walters, 49 C. A. 71, 107 S. W. 369.

To have a judgment reversed on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, error must be assigned to the overruling of the motion for a new trial. Id.

An assignment that there is no evidence to support a verdict does not require this court to consider whether there is sufficient evidence to support it. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Corn (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 485.

Where the findings do not support the judgment, the court of civil appeals will consider assignments of error attacking the judgment as unsupported by the evidence. Belt v. Cetti, 53 C. A. 102, 118 S. W. 241.

An assignment of error to the action of the court in rendering judgment on a special verdict merely raises the question whether the court entered in conformity with the verdict. Smith v. Hessey (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 256.

Under this article and rules 24 and 26 (67 S. W. xv), providing that assignments of error must distinctly specify the grounds, assignments of error that the court erred in failing to find a verdict for appellant on the evidence, and that the court erred in dismissing the case because against the preponderance of the evidence, and that the court erred in refusing to find a judgment for plaintiff against defendants failing to appear and answer, and because defendant appearing failed to answer, except by plea in abatement, which he failed to urge until after plaintiff had made its prima facie case, etc., are insufficient to question the sufficiency of the evidence, and the refusal of judgment by default. Citizens' State Bank v. O'Neal (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1183.

Where appellant did not assign error upon the specific findings of fact made, only the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the judgment can be considered on appeal; the proper judgment having been rendered if the facts were as found by the court. Rushing v. Spreen (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 49.

A proposition in support of an assignment of error, that there is no competent testimony to support a verdict, does not raise the question of the insufficiency of the evidence, but merely whether there is any evidence to support the verdict. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 728.

An assignment of error that the verdict was against the preponderance of the evidence did not present the question whether it was excessive. Freeman v. Morales (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 644.

An assignment of error that the petition does not authorize the judgment does not raise the question of the sufficiency of service of process. First Bank of Springtown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 652.

Assignment of error that cause of action was barred by limitations, and there being no evidence to the contrary, the verdict and judgment was against the preponderance of the evidence, held to raise only the question whether the undisputed evidence showed that the cause was barred. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Longini (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 888.

Where the court filed a statement of facts and conclusions of fact, an assignment of error by defendant that the court erred in rendering judgment for plaintiff because the undisputed evidence showed a specified fact, followed by a proposition stating facts on which estoppel was predicated, raised the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to support the judgment, though defendant did not except to the conclusions of fact. Nicholson v. Lieber (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 641.

The contention that appellant should have been allowed to deduct from appellee's share of proceeds on a sale of land certain expenses not presented as an independent proposition, but under an assignment alleging that the court erred in rendering any judgment, will not be considered. Thomason v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1040.

The objection that an answer in the verdict is obscure may not be reached by assignment complaining of the instructions. Daugherty v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1089.

Assignments of error which do not attack the findings of facts by the court below, but only the conclusions of law, raise only the question of the sufficiency of the findings to support the judgment. Whitman v. Aldrich (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 464.

81. —— Motions for new trial.—An assignment that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, asked on the ground that the verdict was contrary to the evidence and the law and excessive in amount, was insufficient to present for review in the court of civil appeals the question whether defendant was negligent, and precluded consideration of such question on final review in the Supreme Court. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Horne (Sup.) 145 S. W. 1186.

82. Relation to record.—An assignment of error based on a bill of exceptions taken to the admission of testimony, when the bill was taken and filed after the adjournment of court, cannot be considered. Hess v. Dean, 66 T. 663, 2 S. W. 727.

Where an assignment is not based upon a ruling shown by the record, and no error is found in the record, the judgment will be affirmed. Moss v. Kittman (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 315.

An assignment of error will not be considered when not based upon a matter presented by the pleadings or evidence. Dublin Cotton Oil Co. v. Jarrard, 91 T. 289, 42 S. W. 959.

Where a bill of exceptions shows that an assignment of error is not true, the question will not be considered in the court of civil appeals. Karnes County v. Ray (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 76.

An assignment of error complaining of a ruling which does not appear in the record cannot be sustained. Wylde v. Capps, 27 C. A. 112, 65 S. W. 648.

Assignment of error on exclusion of evidence overruled because bill of exceptions did not show its materiality. Luhn v. Luhn (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 525.

Assignments of error held insufficiently presented. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 638.

An assignment of error in not sustaining objection to a question to a witness must be overruled where an explanation to the bill of exceptions shows that the question was not in fact asked or answered. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Biles & Ruby, 56 C. A. 193, 120 S. W. 952.

An assignment of error held not to have support in the record, in view of the trial court's explanation to the bill. Miller v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 302.

An assignment of error to the admission of testimony cannot be considered; the testimony, referred to in the bill of exception, not appearing in the agreed statement of facts. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Grenig (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 135.

An assignment of error will not be reviewed where the proposition under such assignment is not supported by the statement of facts. Martin v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1051.

Where an assignment of error complained that plaintiff was allowed to ask what were the terms of a contract between the defendants, over objection that the contract was the best evidence "as appears by bill of exceptions No. 3," and the proposition under it was that it was the court's duty to construe the contract, and the bill of exceptions showed evidence as to who paid for some of the materials required and that some of the work was not done in accordance with the plans admitted over objection that it was irrelevant and that it tended to contradict the written contract, the assignments should be overruled for lack of support in the record. Ripley v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 974.

An assignment complaining of the admission of evidence will not be reviewed where the record did not show that objections were made at the time, or contain any bill of exceptions covering the points. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180.

Where the statement of facts did not show that a witness testified to the facts set out in the bill of exceptions and complained of in the assignment of error, the court of review could not decide that error existed; the statement and bill being of equal dignity. Lind v. Reeves & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 262.

An assignment of error to the overruling of defendants' first application for a continuance cannot be considered if it is not sustained by bill of exceptions. Albrecht v. Lignoski (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 354.

83. Incorporating assignments in briefs.—See notes under Art. 1614.

84. Effect of failure to properly assign or file.—In the absence of assignment of errors, only an error in law apparent upon the face of the record will be considered. Hardin v. Abbey, 57 T. 582; R. S. 1546; R. G. R. R. Co. v. Scanlan, 44 T. 649; Hardesty v. Fleming, 57 T. 395; Davis v. Davis, 34 T. 15; Browne v. Johnson, 29 T. 40; McLemore v. McClellan, 17 T. 122; Rankert v. Clow, 16 T. 9; Siese v. Malsch, 54 T. 355; City of Laredo v. Russell, 56 T. 398; Gibson v. Schoolcraft, 1 App. C. C. § 49; Blanton v. Ray, 66 T. 61, 17 S. W. 264; Shumard v. Johnson, 66 T. 70, 17 S. W. 398; Douglass v. Duncan, 66 T. 122, 18 S. W. 343; Stroud v. Palmer, 66 T. 129, 18 S. W. 344; Martin v. Wainscott, 66 T. 131, 1 S. W. 264; Harvey v. Ogilvie, 66 T. 185, 18 S. W. 448; Blum v. Whitworth, 66 T. 350, 1 S. W. 108.

Errors not assigned will be considered as waived. Lewis v. Steiner, 84 T. 364, 19 S. W. 516; Brown v. Elmendorf, 26 S. W. 1043, 87 T. 56.

Where a proposition relied on in the brief of appellant is not raised by the assignment of errors, it cannot be considered on appeal. Kahler v. Carruthers, 18 C. A. 216, 45 S. W. 160.

Failure to set up assignments of error on a previous appeal, to which plaintiffs in error were parties, is ground for dismissing a subsequent writ of error from the same judgment. Cameron v. Cates, 22 C. A. 577, 55 S. W. 980.

The failure to file assignments of error constitutes an abandonment of the appeal, though proper notice of appeal has been given. Clawson v. Williams, 27 C. A. 130, 66 S. W. 702.

Where there are no assignments of errors in the record, a judgment will be affirmed. Renshaw v. Brennand (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 1099.

Where there was no assignment of error on a finding by a trial court, the appellee had a right to have the appeal disposed of upon the assumption that the finding was supported by the testimony. Bandy v. Cates, 44 C. A. 38, 97 S. W. 710.

Where, in an action of trespass, an assignment of error to the amount of damages is subject to the objection of generality, the evidence will be considered as warranting the verdict rendered. Bollinger v. McMinn, 47 C. A. 89, 104 S. W. 1079.

There being no assignment of error in the transcript of the record, only such errors as are fundamental or apparent from the record may be considered on appeal. McCollum v. Adams (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 526.

In the absence of a proper assignment of error to the direction of a verdict, court will presume that the evidence warranted such action. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 112 S. W. 430.

All errors not distinctly specified are waived. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Natl. Bank, 52 C. A. 561, 114 S. W. 910.

Under this article and supreme court rule 29 (67 S. W. xv), providing that the transcript must contain a copy of the assignment of errors filed in accordance with the rules of the district court, where the record fails to show any assignment of error filed with the lower court, and no error is apparent of record, the judgment below will be affirmed. Durham v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 1141.

Statement of what will be assumed on appeal, in the absence of an assignment attacking the verdict, on which plaintiff had judgment for negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 672.

Where no briefs or assignments of error were filed and no excuse offered for failure to file the same, and the cause was regularly set down and called for submission, motion to dismiss for such failure will be granted. Denson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 924.

In the absence of any assignment of error that findings are not sustained by the evidence, the findings are conclusive on appeal. Old River Lumber Co. v. Skeeters (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 511.

Where appellant did not assign error upon the specific findings of fact made, only the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the judgment can be considered on appeal. Rushing v. Spreen (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 49.

Proper scope of review on absence from the record of assignments of error required by articles 1612 and 2113, and rules 22 and 23 (67 S. W. xv), stated. Walker v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 640.

Where no assignments of error are filed below, but the case is briefed, the court on appeal will examine the record for fundamental errors. Swearingen v. Myers (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 664.

An objection to the judgment, not presented by an assignment of error, is waived. Medford v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 876.

Where there is no assignment of error complaining that the evidence was insufficient to authorize a judgment on a cross-action, every presumption in favor of the correctness of the judgment in that respect must be indulged. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

Where the transcript does not contain a copy of an assignment of errors required by the statute and court rules, the court will only consider fundamental errors apparent upon the record. Biggs v. Blount (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1114.

In the absence of an assignment of error complaining that proof was not made, it will be assumed on appeal that there was evidence proving all facts necessary to support the judgment. Peevehouse v. Smith (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1196.

The judgment will be affirmed where the record does not show that assignments of error were filed in the lower court. Thompson v. Howard (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1065.

Where the assignments of error cannot be considered, and no fundamental error appears, the judgment will be affirmed. Cain v. Delaney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 751.

Where assignments of error are not sufficient to present the case on appeal, and an examination of the record discloses no fundamental error, the judgment must be affirmed. Irving v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 752.

85. Waiver or abandonment of assignment.—An assignment of error held waived. Duckworth v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 33 C. A. 66, 75 S. W. 913.

The proposition and statement, following an assignment of error, that the evidence did not show that plaintiff's injuries were caused by defendant's actionable negligence, by attempting to show that plaintiff was not injured at all, indicated an abandonment of the assignments of error. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Spencer, 55 C. A. 456, 119 S. W. 716.

In the absence of any affirmative evidence showing an admission abandoning an assignment of error in the argument on appeal, such assignment will not be held to have been waived. Roos v. Thigpen (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1180.

A court on appeal will not consider an assignment of error waived by counsel in open court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hilgartner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1091.

Art. 1613. [1022] Docket of causes and disposition of same.—When a cause is carried to the courts of civil appeals by writ of error, it shall be docketed in the order of the date received; and the clerk shall transfer the said cause to the trial docket thirty days after the same has been received and docketed; provided, that the court may, upon motion of either party, of which notice shall be given to the adverse party, extend the time for placing said cause on the trial docket for good cause shown. [Acts 1899, p. 115. Acts 1895, p. 79. Acts 1893, p. 165. Acts 1905, p. 19.]

Rights of appellee.—Under this and article 2115 appellee has two substantial rights: (1) To have the cause submitted in its regular order; and (2) to be allowed 20 days after notice of the filing of appellants' brief with the district clerk within which to prepare and file his own brief. The rule as to filing briefs may be relaxed if it will not delay submission and there is plenty of time after filing for appellee to prepare and file briefs before submission. Niday v. Cochran, 48 C. A. 259, 106 S. W. 463.

Art. 1614. [1019] Appearance by brief, etc.—When any cause or suit may be taken up from any inferior court to the court of civil appeals, whether by appeal, writ of error, or otherwise, it shall be lawful for the attorney for both the plaintiff and defendant to file, in the papers of said suit or cause, written or printed briefs or argument, if written not to exceed fifteen pages; and the said court shall be required to notice the same as if it were the personal appearance of said attorney, and shall not dismiss any suit or cause where such brief or argument of counsel is filed with the papers for want of other or further prosecution. [Acts 1909, S. S., p. 270.]

1. Necessity of briefs.
2. Form and requisites in general.
3. Statement of case or of facts—In general.
4. —— Statement of evidence.
5. —— Setting out instructions.
6. —— Propositions and statements accompanying assignments of errors.
7. Specification of errors.
8. Incorporation of assignment of errors.
9. Citation of authorities.
10. References to record.
11. Additional or supplemental briefs.
12. Printing and typewriting.
13. Filing and time for filing—In appellate court.
14. —— In court below.
15. Defects, objections, and amendments.
16. Striking out brief.
17. Scope and effect.
18. Failure to file, or to file in time—Effect in general.
19. —— Excuses.
20. —— Relief.
21. —— Dismissal.
22. —— Grounds for not dismissing.
23. —— Affirmance.

1. Necessity of briefs.—Though justice was not done below, the court of civil appeals cannot review errors, in absence of a proper brief presenting them; they not being fundamental. Stephenville Oil Mill v. McNeill, 57 C. A. 252, 122 S. W. 911.

2. Form and requisites in general.—Failure of brief to comply with rules 29, 30, and 31 of court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv) held cause for dismissal. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 47.

Question of sufficiency of evidence held reviewable on the briefs, though appellant disregarded rules of court in their preparation. Masterson v. Heitman & Co., 33 C. A. 464, 77 S. W. 983.

Rule 31 of courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvi), relating to the brief on appeal, held not sufficiently complied with. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 607.

On appeal appellant's brief held so insufficient that the judgment would be affirmed. Pipkin v. Hayward Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 635.

Under the circumstances, held that the appellate court would review the questions sought to be presented, although appellant's brief did not conform to the prescribed rules. Pinkston v. Boyd, 43 C. A. 568, 97 S. W. 103.

A brief purporting to be the brief of a party, but not signed by him, or by his attorney for him, will not be considered on appeal. Rogers v. Powell (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 670.

Objection to the overruling of appellant's special exceptions to the petition is not reviewable where his brief does not set out the testimony relied upon to support his objection, and does not refer to the witness or page of the statement of facts where such testimony can be found. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Honeycutt (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 479.

It was not improper for counsel to affix to their brief a map made by them as illustrative of their contentions, where they made no claim that the map was in evidence. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

3. Statement of case or of facts—In general.—Appellant's brief will be stricken out where it does not follow up the statement of the nature and result of the suit with a statement of the material facts proven. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jahn, 18 C. A. 74, 43 S. W. 575.

Where appellant's brief does not show the ground of objections to evidence, the court will not search a voluminous record to find the particular objections urged. Godair v. Tillar, 19 C. A. 541, 47 S. W. 553.

A refusal to submit special issues will not be considered, where appellant does not state in his briefs what the issues were and that they were presented. Armstrong v. Elliott, 20 C. A. 41, 48 S. W. 605, 49 S. W. 635.

Where it does not appear from the statement in appellant's brief that a bill of exceptions to the admission of evidence complained of was reserved, the assignment will not be considered. Saenz v. O. F. Mumme & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 59.

An assignment of error will not be considered where there is a total lack of any statement from the record, as required by the rules for briefing. Jones v. Creech (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 975.

Where it does not appear from the statements in the brief that a certain defense was raised by the evidence, there is no error in refusing to charge such defense. Hirsch v. Patton, 49 C. A. 499, 108 S. W. 1015.

Appellant's brief should contain all such facts from the record as are pertinent to the proposition made under an assignment of error. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Bayne (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 544.

4. —— Statement of evidence.—A brief not containing a statement of all the material facts proved upon the trial will be disregarded. Arnold v. Chamberlin (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 767.

Where a brief contains no statement of the evidence to be reviewed, and appellant fails to comply with an order to amend it, the assignment as to the evidence is abandoned. City of Comanche v. Zettlemoyer (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 178.

Refusal of a charge held not reviewable, when the brief fails to state or refer to evidence presenting the issue referred to in the charge. Davidson v. Jefferson (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 765.

To show error, in that a charge ignored defense of assumed risk, appellant's brief must show that evidence raised such issue. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1099.

Alleged error in the admission of evidence with reference to a copy of an execution held not reviewable where appellant made no effort to show the alleged difference between the copy and the original. Peeples v. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 61.

Where defendant in a suit for architect's services fails to point out on appeal any evidence relating to a schedule of architect's charges, an objection that the jury should have been charged not to consider such evidence will not be reviewed. Buckler v. Kneezell (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 367.

An objection that a sufficient predicate had not been laid for a hypothetical question could not be reviewed, where appellant's brief did not show what testimony, if any, had been introduced with reference to the matters embraced in the interrogatory. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Eichhorn, 44 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

Under an assignment of error on the admission of evidence the brief should disclose the evidence. Sterling v. De Laune, 47 C. A. 470, 105 S. W. 1169.

5. —— Setting out instructions.—The refusal to give special requests will not be reviewed unless they are set out in the brief. First Nat. Bank v. Stephens, 19 C. A. 560, 47 S. W. 832.

A refusal of instructions not set out in appellant's brief will not be considered. Armstrong v. Elliott, 20 C. A. 41, 48 S. W. 605, 49 S. W. 635.

An assignment of error in an instruction will not be considered, where appellant's brief does not contain the instruction. Bourn v. Gray (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 356.

Assignments of error complaining of the refusal of special charges will not be considered where the charges are not copied in appellant's brief, nor reference made to the page of the record where they can be found. Armstrong Packing Co. v. Clem (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 576.

An assignment of error complaining that one part of the charge was in conflict with another part is insufficient, where the brief fails to specify and set out the particular parts of the charge with which the one complained of was in conflict. Swearingen v. Bray (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 953.

6. —— Propositions and statements accompanying assignments of errors.—See notes under Art. 1612.

7. Specification of errors.—Propositions in appellant's brief not based on assignments of error will not be considered. Lynn v. First Nat. Bank of McGregor (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 228.

Where appellant's brief presents various assignments of error together, each complaining of the admission of different testimony, in violation of the rules prescribed by the supreme court for briefing causes, such assignments will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 24 C. A. 127, 57 S. W. 999.

The question, not briefed or suggested, whether the state may recover more than one penalty where there have been several breaches of a liquor dealer's bond, will not be considered on appeal from a judgment for two penalties. McLeod v. State, 33 C. A. 170, 76 S. W. 216.

Criticism of charge in brief held not pertinent to the assignment of error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Henserlang, 38 C. A. 524, 86 S. W. 948.

No reversal will be had where brief did not sufficiently point out error complained of. Central Texas & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Gibson, 99 T. 98, 87 S. W. 814.

Assignment of error held not so briefed as to be entitled to consideration. Ragley v. Godley (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 66; Morgan v. Barber (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 730; Stark v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 939.

A party desiring to question a judgment in a suit involving title to property must present in his briefs the particulars complained of. Herman v. Dunman (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 80.

Assignments of error in the giving of inconsistent instructions will not be considered where the points of inconsistency are not pointed out in the brief. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Horne & Warren, 43 C. A. 490, 95 S. W. 97.

Where an assignment of error copied in a brief does not distinctly specify any error, nor does the proposition under it, the assignment of error will not be considered. The statutes and the rules of court relating to making briefs should be observed. Poland v. Porter, 44 C. A. 334, 98 S. W. 216.

A brief, in the preparation of which no attention was paid to the rules of court, and which did not present the errors relied on for reversal of the judgment in such a way as to enable the court to intelligently pass upon them, would not be considered on appeal. Lowrey v. Haynes, 44 C. A. 431, 98 S. W. 1068.

On appeal plaintiff held not entitled to complain of the admission in evidence against him of his application for a continuance. Sterling v. De Laune, 47 C. A. 470, 105 S. W. 1169.

Fundamental errors in a cause will be considered by the appellate court, though not urged in the brief. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Roberts, 48 C. A. 325, 107 S. W. 626.

Objections to a petition will be considered waived on appeal unless brought forward in appellant's brief. McLean v. Stith, 50 C. A. 323, 112 S. W. 355.

A particular objection to the admission of testimony made by an assignment of error will be considered as abandoned where that particular objection was not relied on or mentioned in the brief. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Spencer, 55 C. A. 456, 119 S. W. 716.

The court on appeal will not examine the statement of facts to ascertain the relevancy of rejected evidence, but its materiality must appear from some statement contained in the brief of appellant. Land v. Roby, 56 C. A. 333, 120 S. W. 1057.

The court will not reverse a judgment on a point not raised in appellant's brief. Freeman v. Cain (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 894.

An objection shown by the bill of exceptions, but not brought forward in brief on appeal by appropriate proposition, held waived. Halle v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1088.

Under the court rules, assignments of error not urged in appellant's brief will not be considered. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Rosenbloom (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 175.

Where an appellant's brief does not indicate the nature of a requested special charge, the refusal of which he complains, no question is presented for review. Guaranty State Bank & Trust Co. v. Lively (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 211.

A fundamental error will be reviewed on appeal, notwithstanding appellant's failure to brief it. Evants v. Erdman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 929.

8. Incorporation of assignment of errors.—Assignments of error not copied in the brief will not be considered. Hughes v. Railway Co., 67 T. 595, 4 S. W. 219; Gambold v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 834; Hill v. Grant (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1016; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Martinez (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 689; Gebhart v.

Gebhart (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 964; Luedde v. Hooper (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 802; Scanlon v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 345, 100 S. W. 982; Greenlaw v. Dillon (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 705; City of Comanche v. Goodson, 49 C. A. 406, 109 S. W. 418; Dignowity v. Sullivan, 49 C. A. 582, 109 S. W. 428; Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 494; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1066; Evants v. Erdman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 929; Smyer v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 336.

Assignments of error not copied in brief are waived. Railway Co. v. Wilson, 69 T. 744, 7 S. W. 653; Chappell v. Railway Co., 75 T. 82, 12 S. W. 780; Cooper v. Lee, 1 C. A. 9, 21 S. W. 998; Haney v. Franco Land Co. (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 414; Webb v. Brewer (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 95.

Assignments of error should be set out in appellant's brief. Railway Co. v. Adams, 6 C. A. 102, 24 S. W. 839; Railway Co. v. Norris (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 950; Railway Co. v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 955; Cassetty Oil Co. v. Disborough (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1004.

The failure to copy assignments of error in the brief as a waiver. When delay is suggested and damages asked they will be considered to determine whether the appellee is entitled to damages. Langholz v. Western Tanning Co. (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 831.

Where assignment of error as stated in appellant's brief is not a copy of one shown in the record, it will not be considered. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Norris (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 950; Cassetty Oil Co. v. Disborough (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1004; Johnson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 485; St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 53 C. A. 42, 115 S. W. 882; Stephenville Oil Mill v. McNeill, 57 C. A. 252, 122 S. W. 911; Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632; Fessinger v. El Paso Times Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1171; Cain v. Delaney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 751.

Assignments of error raising different questions should occupy separate places in the brief. Sanger v. Harris (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 645.

Assignments of error in the brief on appeal, which are not copies of the assignments in the record, will not be considered over objection. Horseman v. Coleman County (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 304.

Where there are no assignments of error in the record, a motion to strike out the briefs of appellant because there are no assignments of error therein must prevail. Hollywood v. Wellhausen, 28 C. A. 541, 68 S. W. 329.

Appeal dismissed for appellant's failure to copy assignments of error in his brief, as required by appellate rule 29 (67 S. W. xv). Bowman v. Hoffman (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 340.

Statement of substance of assignments of error in brief held not compliance with rule requiring them to be copied. Alexander v. Bowers (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 342.

Where the assignments of error in appellant's brief are not even substantial copies of the corresponding assignments of error in the record, they will not be considered. Kingston v. Austin Oil Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 813.

Propositions in a brief, not based on assignments of error carried into the brief, will not be considered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 208.

The record can only be looked to for assignments of error made by plaintiff in error, and when they appear there they cannot be considered, if they are not copied in the brief. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Harry, 37 C. A. 90, 83 S. W. 735.

Propositions of law contained in appellant's brief will be disregarded, when not accompanied by the assignments of error upon which they are based. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dawson Bros. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 298.

Where no assignments of error are copied in appellant's brief or contained in the transcript, questions of law raised by the brief will not be decided. Crawford v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1073.

Omission to consecutively number assignments of error discussed in appellant's brief held a mere technical violation of rule 29 for the courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv), and insufficient to require court to refuse to consider the assignments. Lewis v. Houston Electric Co., 39 C. A. 625, 88 S. W. 489.

Appellee held to have waived cross-assignments of error by failing to present them in his brief, as required by district court rule 101. M. H. Lauchheimer & Sons v. Coop, 99 T. 386, 89 S. W. 1061.

Under court of civil appeals rule 29 (67 S. W. xv) a brief by appellant held insufficient for failing to copy the assignments of error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barnes, 42 C. A. 626, 95 S. W. 714.

Assignments of error not copied in the brief, as required by rule 29 of the court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv), will not be considered on appeal. Poland v. Porter, 44 C. A. 334, 98 S. W. 214.

Assignments of error not presented in the brief need not be considered by the court on appeal. Faison v. Meyenberg, 44 C. A. 555, 98 S. W. 1066.

Under the express provisions of courts of civil appeals rule 29 (67 S. W. xv), as well as independent thereof, all assignments of error not copied into the brief of appellant are waived, though it may be stated in the brief that they are not waived. Martin v. German American Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 131.

By the word "copied," used in courts of civil appeals rule 29 (67 S. W. xv), held not meant that reconstructed or amended assignments shall be placed in the briefs of appellants, but that the assignments of error in the record shall be printed therein. Id.

A brief wherein assignments of error contained in the transcript were not copied as required by rule 29 (67 S. W. xv) held not before the court for consideration. Koch v. Missouri Valley Bridge & Iron Co., 46 C. A. 84, 102 S. W. 136.

Where, in an action to try title to land, plaintiffs' brief contained no assignment of error in instructing the jury to find for defendants upon their pleas of limitations, the sufficiency of the evidence to authorize such instruction will not be considered on appeal. Webb's Heirs v. Kirby Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 543, 107 S. W. 581.

Assignment of error not presented in appellant's brief held waived. Loyal Americans of the Republic v. McClanahan, 50 C. A. 256, 109 S. W. 973.

Assignments of error not in the original brief of appellant on which the case was submitted will not be considered, except by consent. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

Propositions under grouped assignments of error not copied in the brief will not be considered. Kruegel v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 774.

Breaking up an assignment of error in the brief by copying its several subdivisions separately and presenting propositions under each of them held not a compliance with the rules of the court of civil appeals. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 55 C. A. 245, 118 S. W. 1155.

A brief which under the heading, "2nd and 3rd assignments of error submitted together as a proposition," copies but one assignment of error, is insufficient. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. W. Quebedeaux & Son (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1158.

The assignment of error filed below stated in its first paragraph that the judgment was erroneous, and the rest of the assignments contained more propositions of law, but the first paragraph of the assignment attacking the rulings was not copied into appellant's briefs, which only contained some of the propositions of law in the assignment filed below. Held, that the assignment was in violation of rules 29 and 30, and could not be considered. Wisdom v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1128.

Where assignments of error are attempted to be consolidated in appellant's brief without setting them out, they will not be considered under rule 29 (67 S. W. xv). Mitchell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 501.

Under courts of civil appeals rule 29 (67 S. W. xv) assignments of error, not copied in a brief, are waived. Bray v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 290.

Assignments of error not briefed in accordance with the rules will not be considered. Brewer v. Doose (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 323; Kennedy v. Garrard (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 570.

Under court of civil appeals rule 29 (141 S. W. xiii), an assignment of error need not be considered, where only a part of it was copied into the brief. Hayes v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 327.

Under rule 29 for courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv), numbers of assignments of error in the brief should run from 1 on, in consecutive order, without regard to the numbers as found in the transcript. Tucker Produce Co. v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1001.

Assignments of error in the brief held to be disregarded, where they were not copies of assignments in the record, and the subjoined statement was merely counsel's version of what the record showed. Id.

Where assignments of error in a brief present altogether different propositions of law from those presented by the corresponding assignments in the record, they will be disregarded. Id.

Under supreme court rule 29 (142 S. W. xii), it is essential that assignments of error relied on by the appellant shall be copied literally in his brief. Bowers v. Goats (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1013.

Where one defendant's brief had no assignment of error as to the giving of a charge not supported by the evidence, the judgment must stand as to it, despite that error. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lucas (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1149.

Assignments of error not copied in a brief, or if copied presenting different questions from those sought to be raised by the assignments in the transcript, will not be reviewed. Pipkin v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 745.

The court rules contemplate that assignments of error shall be correctly copied in appellants' brief, and, while the court will not decline to consider an assignment because of a typographical error in copying it into the brief, an assignment incorrectly copied in any other case will not be considered. Mt. Franklin Lime & Stone Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 756.

It is a valid objection to the consideration of an assignment of error that only part of it is copied in the brief. Knox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1134.

Assignments of error filed in the lower court, but not brought forward in appellant's brief, were waived. Smyer v. Ft. Worth & Denver City Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 336.

9. Citation of authorities.—No authorities being cited in support of an assignment of error, and no error appearing upon examination of the record, petition, and judgment, the judgment will be affirmed. Turner v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 69.

Where no authorities were cited to an assignment of error that a charge was contrary to law, and no aid was given the court in considering the assignment, it need not be considered. Vann v. Denson, 56 C. A. 220, 120 S. W. 1020.

10. References to record.—Failure of statement following assignment of error in appellant's brief to refer to page of record held a mere technical violation of rule 31 for the courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvi), and insufficient to require the court to refuse to consider the assignments. Lewis v. Houston Electric Co., 39 C. A. 625, 88 S. W. 489.

Briefs discussing evidence and not referring to pages of record held not to be considered on appeal. Waggoner v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1028.

An assignment of error complaining of the admission of evidence will not be considered where there is no reference in the brief to a bill of exceptions taken thereto. Ferguson v. Morrison, 43 C. A. 396, 95 S. W. 1091.

Certain assignments of error, depending on the evidence, held not reviewable, where the brief did not refer to the place in the stenographer's transcript where the evidence could be found. Storms v. Mundy, 46 C. A. 88, 101 S. W. 258.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi) appellant's brief held deficient for failing to refer to the pages of the record where testimony mentioned in the statement under a proposition may be found. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Edge, 46 C. A. 448, 102 S. W. 746.

Where assignments of error are entered in a brief complaining of rulings upon exceptions not set out nor their substance stated nor any reference made to the pages of the transcript where they may be found, they will not be considered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Moore, 47 C. A. 531, 105 S. W. 532.

Where the correctness of an assignment depends on the evidence, and the brief does not refer to where the evidence relating to the matter can be found, nor state any such evidence, the assignment will be overruled. Stark v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 939.

Appellant's brief should refer to the page of the transcript containing the matter supporting the assignments of error. Johnson v. W. H. Goolsby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 883.

The court on appeal need not search the record for evidence, where the brief does not point out where in the record the evidence may be found. Keller v. Lindow (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 304.

Refusal of a request to charge will not be reviewed on appeal, where the brief fails to refer to any testimony on which to base the charge. Sumner v. Kinney (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1192.

Assignments of error involving weight of the evidence held insufficiently presented, under court of civil appeals rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), where the brief does not refer to the pages of the record to show any fact proven. First Nat. Bank of Boswell, Okl., v. Whiteside (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 420.

Assignment of error to the denial of an instruction held open to consideration, although appellant failed to refer in his brief to the portion of the transcript where the instruction could be found. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 281.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of an instruction could not be considered, where the instruction was not copied in the brief or the page of the record pointed out. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

Where the brief does not point out the paragraph of the motion for new trial, wherein the error was complained of, it does not comply with court of civil appeals rules 24, 25, and 31 (142 S. W. xii, xiii). Texas Midland R. R. v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 542.

11. Additional or supplemental briefs.—After the submission of a cause pending in a court of civil appeals, one of the counsel of appellants filed an additional brief without leave of the court. The court refused to consider the brief. The rules provide that briefs may be amended, by leave of the court, by the citation of additional authorities; but the presentation of an entirely new brief, with additional assignment of errors, and without leave of the court, is unauthorized. Texas State Fair, etc., v. Caruthers, 29 S. W. 48, 8 C. A. 474.

Upon failure of a party to comply with an order of the court requiring a new brief, the court may dismiss the cause if the appellant be at fault, and, if the fault be on part of the appellee, may disregard his brief. Arnold v. Chamberlin (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 767.

Under the facts held on appeal that a supplemental brief would be stricken. Groesbeck Cotton Oil Gin & Compress Co. v. Oliver, 44 C. A. 303, 97 S. W. 1092.

Where, in an action to try title to land, plaintiffs were granted leave to file a written argument in answer to an argument by defendants, a supplemental brief, filed under such leave, after the submission of the case, raising for the first time an assignment of error, will be stricken out. Webb's Heirs v. Kirby Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 543, 107 S. W. 581.

An amended brief should not be filed without permission of the appellate court. Stephens v. Turley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 848.

There is no authority for filing a supplemental brief after the original brief has been assailed for failure to comply with the rules, so as to correct the errors in the original. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

12. Printing and typewriting.—Typewritten briefs which are very dim and illegible will hereafter be disregarded. Bermea Land & Lumber Co. v. Adoue, 20 C. A. 655, 50 S. W. 131.

Illegible typewritten brief held to violate rule 37 of the courts of civil apeals (67 S. W. xvi). Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Taylor, 39 C. A. 302, 87 S. W. 358.

A brief single-spaced and typewritten so dimly that it can scarcely be read will be stricken on the court's own motion. Simmons Hardware Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 285.

Under this article and rule 37, as amended October 30, 1912 (see Amendment to Rules, 149 S. W. x), providing that briefs may consist of 15 pages of foolscap, a typewritten brief containing 22½ pages of double-spaced typewritten matter, on paper of the size of ordinary letter heads, gotten up in book form, and which, if single-spaced, would not have contained over 12 pages of letter size, does not violate the rules of the statute, and will not be stricken out on motion. Powell v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 333.

Where the copies of appellant's brief were in typewriting, single spaced, and with the exception of one copy, so blurred as to make it very difficult to read portions thereof, but appellee did not complain of the noncompliance with the rules, the court on its own motion would direct the clerk to prepare copies of the brief for its use. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 935.

13. Filing and time for filing—In appellate court.—If an appellee desires to present his side of the case after the opposite party has filed his brief, he must do so by brief filed at least by the time the cause is submitted, and not by a motion for a rehearing. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Boer (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 199.

Defendants in error are properly refused permission to file briefs tendered after submission of the cause. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 156.

A stipulation between counsel extending the time of filing appellant's brief held not to authorize delay to the time at which it was filed. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 125.

14. —— In court below.—See Art. 2115 and notes.

15. Defects, objections, and amendments.—When a fundamental error appears in the record, the action of the lower court may be reviewed on appeal, though the case is not briefed according to rules. Mara v. State, 39 Cr. R. 183, 45 S. W. 594.

Under court of civil appeals rules 30 and 38 (67 S. W. xvi), a brief cannot be amended as of right, except for the citation of additional authorities. Peck v. Peck (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 257.

A brief cannot be amended on the hearing, so as to allow a proper arrangement of the assignments of error with the propositions under them. Neal v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 37 C. A. 235, 83 S. W. 402.

By treating what was termed "argument," under assignments of error, as both a proposition and a statement, held, that the court might determine whether the evidence raised the issues submitted in the charges quoted, though it was doubtful whether they had been briefed in such manner as to require review. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 847.

Where appellee filed a brief, the court will consider the brief of appellant, though it was not filed in time. Martin Co. v. Cottrell (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 48.

While it is within the discretion of the court of civil appeals not to consider assignments of error defectively briefed, its discretion should not be extended too far; the court's rules being designed to facilitate the work of the appellate court. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

16. Striking out brief.—The court will not strike out a brief on account of an imperfect or erroneous statement of facts on motion of the appellee. Such objection should be made in his brief, and the statement will be examined by the court. Denecamp v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 254.

Appellant's brief will not be stricken out for failure to file in accordance with rules where appellee was not injured. Bull v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 33 C. A. 547, 78 S. W. 525.

17. Scope and effect.—A statement in appellant's brief will be accepted as correct where it is not controverted by appellee. Miller v. Itasca Cotton-Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 366.

Where parties appeared on a writ of error and filed briefs in the appellate court, a motion on their part to dismiss for want of interest will be denied. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

18. Failure to file, or to file in time—Effect in general.—When the case is briefed alone by the appellant his statement will be treated as correct. Wolf City Oil Co. v. George (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 672.

Where no briefs are filed, only fundamental errors, as shown by the record, will be considered. Unsworth v. Straughan (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 290; Avant v. Cowley (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1036; Toyah Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 344; Anderson, Evans & Evans v. Churchill & Alden Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 478.

Where a party fails to file a brief and does not complain of a judgment against him such judgment will not be disturbed, though erroneous. Peck v. Cain, 27 C. A. 38, 63 S. W. 177.

In the absence of a brief filed by appellee, the court of civil appeals will treat appellant's brief as a proper presentation of the case, under court of appeals rule 40 (67 S. W. xvii). Maffi v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 158.

There being no briefs on file for appellee, the court is required on appeal to take as true the statement from the record in appellant's brief as to the evidence, and that it constitutes all the evidence in support of the verdict. Wetzel v. Satterwhite (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 93.

Though appellant's briefs were not in the appellate court until March 1st, while the record was filed therein on January 12th, the briefs will not be stricken if appellee had ample time to file briefs before the case was submitted for hearing. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

Evidence held not to show a waiver of the requirement as to the filing of briefs. Wiseman v. Maddox (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 756.

Where appellee filed a brief replying to that of appellant, his objection that appellant's brief was not filed within the time required is waived, and the court will consider the brief of appellant, though it refused appellant's request to file his brief. Martin Co. v. Cottrell (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 48.

A motion by defendant in error for submission on his brief cannot be considered, where it was not entered on the motion docket of the court on appeal, and notice given. Amarillo Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Brokaw (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 273.

Appellant, not being required to file any brief, should not be prejudiced by his failure to do so. Alf Bennett Lumber Co. of Texas v. Fall (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 209.

19. —— Excuses.—It is no excuse for not filing briefs in the court of civil appeals that the errors assigned are fundamental. Bowman v. Hoffman, 28 C. A. 311, 67 S. W. 152.

An appeal dismissed for failure to file brief in time. Lasker Real Estate Ass'n v. Word (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 709.

The failure of appellant to file his brief within a reasonable time before the day of submission held not excused, necessitating a dismissal of the appeal on appellee's motion. Krisch v. Richter (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 935.

An appeal will not be dismissed for appellant's failure to file briefs in time, when such failure is reasonably excused, and appellee will have more than 30 days after notice of filing in which to prepare and file his brief before the case can be submitted. Gibbs v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1166.

The failure of the attorney for plaintiff in error to file briefs in a case set for submission on March 13th, while the transcript was filed September 20th preceding, is not excused by his averring that during the first days of January he was unexpectedly called to Mexico and there detained until early in February; that shortly after his return he was constantly occupied in the preparation of cases in the district court, and had in charge the partition of a large estate, the details of which were intricate and required his constant attention. American Warehouse Co. v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1006.

20. —— Relief.—The application of appellant for leave to file briefs denied on the showing made. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Crenshaw, 51 C. A. 198, 112 S. W. 117.

Leave to file appellant's brief will be granted, though good cause for delay is not shown, where appellee will have ample time to answer before submission. Rule 39 (67 S. W. xvi). John E. Morrison Co. v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1166.

21. —— Dismissal.—An appeal will not be dismissed for want of brief of appellant. State v. Scholl (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 205.

Failure of plaintiff in error to file his brief within the time required held not ground for dismissing the appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 21 C. A. 463, 51 S. W. 662.

Court of appeals rule 39 (20 S. W. ix), requiring filing of briefs five days before filing of the transcript, held not mandatory; and hence dismissal of appeal for failure to file briefs within the time, which was without prejudice, was error. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Holden, 93 T. 211, 54 S. W. 751.

Where appellant filed his transcript, June 27th, his appeal having been perfected May 24th, and he did not file copy of his brief until October 12th, in absence of good cause for delay the cause was dismissed. Hunt v. Glasscock, 27 C. A. 322, 65 S. W. 209.

Appeal dismissed for failure of appellant to use proper diligence in the prosecution thereof and noncompliance with the terms of an agreement as to the filing of briefs. Emerson v. A. F. Shapleigh Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 570.

Where appellant's brief was not filed until ninety-two days from the time the transcript was filed in the court of civil appeals which was only two days before the case was set for submission, the appeal will be dismissed. Elkins v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 577.

If no briefs are filed by the appellant the court of civil appeals may dismiss for the want of prosecution. Bowman v. Hoffman, 28 C. A. 311, 67 S. W. 152.

Appeal dismissed for failure to file briefs. Lopez v. Vogis (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 239; Booher v. Anderson, 35 C. A. 436, 80 S. W. 385.

Failure of appellant to file his brief in time held to have deprived appellee of a substantial right, justifying dismissal of the appeal. Dodd v. Presley (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 811.

An appeal, where no briefs are filed, will be dismissed. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hagler, 38 C. A. 52, 84 S. W. 692.

Appeal in scire facias proceeding dismissed for delay in filing transcript and failure to file briefs. Wolf v. State (Cr. App.) 85 S. W. 17.

Where appellant fails to file briefs within the statutory time, so as to deprive appellee of the time allowed within which to reply, the appeal will be dismissed. N. Nigro & Co. v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1169.

An appeal dismissed for failure of appellant to comply with the rule of the court requiring the filing of briefs. Longbotham v. Abercrombie. 52 C. A. 426, 114 S. W. 428.

An appeal dismissed for the failure to file briefs in time. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Windham (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 248.

Where neither appellant nor any of the appellees filed a brief, the appeal will be dismissed. Suderman-Dolson Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 401.

Where the failure of appellant to file briefs in a reasonable time before the day of submission is not excused, the appeal will be dismissed on motion of appellee. Krisch v. Richter (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 935.

Where no briefs or assignments of error were filed and no excuse offered for failure to file the same, and the cause was regularly set down and called for submission, motion to dismiss for such failure will be granted. Denson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 924.

An appeal held not subject to dismissal for appellant's failure to file briefs in time. Gibbs v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1166.

Where an appellant failed to file briefs before the time fixed for the submission of the cause, the appeal will be dismissed. Offield v. Cates (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1006.

An appeal will be dismissed for appellant's unexplained failure to file briefs until six days before the submission of the case on appeal. Manowitz v. Gaenslen (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 963.

Where a motion to dismiss an appeal for appellant's failure to file briefs within time was denied upon the sworn answer of his counsel, held that the answer might be controverted by appellee upon motion for a rehearing. Id.

A defendant in error who does not file briefs in compliance with court rule 42 (14 S. W. xiv) is not entitled to an affirmance of the judgment; but the court will dismiss the writ of error. American Warehouse Co. v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1006.

The court may dismiss an appeal for want of prosecution without looking into the record where appellant's brief is not filed in time, and there is no agreement waiving the statutory requirement. Gordon v. State (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 867.

Where neither party files a brief, the case will be dismissed by the court on appeal for want of prosecution. Wilkins v. Tomlin (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 931.

Fundamental error not appearing from the record, the cause should, under court of civil appeals rule 39 (142 S. W. xiii) be dismissed for want of prosecution; plaintiff in error not having complied with the statutes and rules as to filing briefs, or shown excuse therefor. Rojas v. Rojas (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1071.

22. —— Grounds for not dismissing.—Where an appellee has filed briefs asking an affirmance, the appeal will not be dismissed for appellant's failure to file briefs, though it constitutes an abandonment of the appeal. Davison v. Keeton, 32 C. A. 65, 73 S. W. 1083.

The failure of appellant to file his brief within the time prescribed by court rule 39 (142 S. W. xiii) held not to justify a dismissal of the appeal where appellee received the brief in ample time for him to answer it. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Wood Bros. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 283.

An appeal will not be dismissed for failure to file a brief in time, where the other party is not injured thereby. Danner v. Walker-Smith Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 295.

23. —— Affirmance.—Under rule 42 of the court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvii), the judgment in a cause in which appellant has failed to file briefs may be affirmed, on the filing of a brief by appellee showing the correctness of the judgment. Ball v. Dignowity (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 800.

Circumstances stated under which judgment will be affirmed at appellee's request, appellant having failed to file briefs. Davison v. Keeton, 32 C. A. 65, 73 S. W. 1083.

Under court of civil appeals rule 42 (67 S. W. xvii), judgment will be affirmed on appellant's failure to file briefs, on the filing by appellee of a brief showing the correctness of the judgment. Schulz v. Ruedrich (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 324.

Where appellant fails to file a brief, and the court discovers no fundamental error, the judgment will be affirmed. Cox v. Hickman-Cumbie Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 549; Beck v. Hancock (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 419; Toyah Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 344; Moon v. Dozier (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 656.

Where appellant filed no brief and his motion for a new trial is stricken, appellee's motion for affirmance will be granted. Llano Cotton Oil Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 505.

Where defendant in error filed his brief and prayed for the submission of the cause on his brief, as authorized by court rule 42 (67 S. W. xvii), because of the failure of plaintiff in error to prepare the case for submission, except to file the transcript, and the brief and the record showed no reversible error, the judgment must be affirmed. Amarillo Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Brokaw (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 273.

Where appellant filed no brief below or on appeal, and appellee filed a brief, his request for affirmance will be granted, in the absence of fundamental error. Ray v. Olcott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1123.

Where appellants fail to file briefs, and appellees filed briefs and asked for an affirmance, it would be granted, nothing appearing in the record why a contrary course should be pursued. Walker v. Land (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1132.

Art. 1615. [1020] Notices to attorneys, how given.—All notices required herein to be given by the court of civil appeals to the parties or their attorneys of record in any case shall be served by the clerk of said court, transmitting said notice to said attorneys by registered letter through the mail properly directed. Registration receipts shall be filed and kept by the clerk with the record of the cause. [Id.]

Presumption arising upon deposit of matter in mail.—See notes under Art. 3687, Presumptions.

CHAPTER SEVEN

HEARING CAUSES

Art.
1616. Hearing of cases, order of.
1617. Order of decision, etc.
1618. Death does not abate, when.

Article 1616. [1022] Hearing of cases, order of.—Causes on the trial docket of said court shall be heard in the order of the date of filing, except as hereinafter provided, unless continued to some future time for good cause shown; and it shall be the duty of the clerk, under the directions of the court, to notify the parties or the attorneys of record of the date when the cause is set for hearing. [Id.]

Continuances.—Appellees are entitled to postponement of the submission of a cause on appeal until the verity of the record as presented is established in a suit which is being prosecuted by them for that purpose. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker, 39 C. A. 53, 87 S. W. 194.

Where appellee waived filing and service of appellants' brief, he was not entitled to a postponement of a submission to afford his counsel time to prepare and file his brief. Connor v. Zachry, 54 C. A. 188, 115 S. W. 867, 117 S. W. 177.

Advancement of causes.—When the error is admitted by defendant in error the cause will be advanced on consent of parties. Phœnix Fire Ins. Co. v. Cain (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 709.

Causes involving private interests will not be advanced over other causes on appeal. Berger v. Kirby (Sup.) 140 S. W. 334.

Dismissal for want of prosecution.—A writ of error held properly dismissed for want of diligence in prosecuting it. Cotton v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 568.

Plaintiff in error held guilty of laches, requiring dismissal of his writ of error. Swilley v. Blount, 36 C. A. 583, 82 S. W. 790.

A writ of error held dismissible for lack of diligence in the prosecution thereof. Aspley v. Alcott, 45 C. A. 10, 99 S. W. 1133; Same v. Wheat, 45 C. A. 13, 99 S. W. 1135.

A motion by appellee to dismiss an appeal for want of prosecution will be dismissed where an inspection of the record discloses fundamental error in the want of jurisdiction of the lower court over the amount in controversy. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Crenshaw, 51 C. A. 198, 112 S. W. 117.

Writ of error dismissed for want of prosecution held properly reinstated to afford defendant in error remedy against a supersedeas bond. Walker v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 640.

A party against whom a money judgment was had duly appealed, and before perfection of the appeal by waiver of citation the adverse party filed a motion to dismiss, claiming collusion on the part of the other parties to bring about the disposition of the case, and also a want of diligence in prosecuting the appeal. Appellant claimed that the delay was not its fault, but that of its attorney and the clerk of the court below, and did not know that the appeal had not been perfected till served with notice of the motion to dismiss, when other attorneys were employed. Held that, on the state of the record, the court would not dismiss the writ of error. Morris v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 367.

Where a suit was dismissed because the court did not know of stipulation to continue from term to term until both parties were ready for trial, the court in its discretion could reinstate the case. Southern Pac. Co. v. Higgins Oil & Fuel Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1161.

Art. 1617. [1023] Cases decided in their order, except, etc., and disposed of, how.—The cases filed in the courts of civil appeals shall be decided in the order in which they are filed at each term of the court, but the following cases shall have precedence of all others in the order named:

1. All cases in which the railway commission is a party.
2. Cases in which the state is a party.
3. Cases which shall be submitted on oral argument for all parties to the cause.
4. Such other cases as the court, by order or rule, may direct.

On the call of cases, the court shall set down the causes for argument for such time as the same can be heard, and notice of which shall be given to counsel as heretofore provided; and said cause shall be determined upon argument or as soon thereafter as practicable, or it shall be set down for further argument, but may be postponed by order of the court to a later day in the term. [Id.]

Submission of causes.—A party cannot try his case on one theory in the lower court and on another in the appellate court. Downs v. Stevenson, 56 C. A. 211, 119 S. W. 315.

Under the statute, the supreme court may grant an application for writ of error and determine the questions involved without oral argument, or it may permit oral argument where the ends of justice demand it. Port Arthur Rice Milling Co. v. Beaumont Rice Mills (Sup.) 148 S. W. 283, granting rehearing 143 S. W. 926.

Consolidation.—Appeals prosecuted by both parties to the suit may be consolidated. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Waco E. Ry. & L. Co., 89 T. 331, 34 S. W. 737.

Motion to consolidate error proceeding and appeal involving the same judgment, made after affirmance on appeal, held too late. Scheffel v. Scheffel, 38 C. A. 76, 84 S. W. 862.

Setting aside submission.—Motion to set aside submission of cause and permit filing of additional affidavits denied. Guyer v. Snow, 40 C. A. 407, 90 S. W. 71.

Under court of civil appeals rule 22 (142 S. W. xii), a submission of a case on appeal will not be set aside so as to enable appellant to have the record amended to show that a special charge request was in fact refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hurdle (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 992.

Art. 1618. [1026] Death does not abate, when.—If any party to the record in any cause hereafter taken to the courts of civil appeals, by appeal or writ of error, or transferred from the supreme court or courts of appeals, shall have died heretofore, or shall hereafter die, after the appeal bond has been filed and approved, or after the writ of error has been served, and before such cause has been decided, such cause shall not abate by such death; but the court shall proceed to adjudicate such cause and render judgment therein as if all parties thereto were still living; and such judgment shall have the same force and effect as if rendered in the lifetime of all the parties thereto. [Id.]

Construed.—A judgment for damages is not abated by the death of the appellee after appeal. Heirs of decedent are not proper parties. Pullman P. C. Co. v. Fowler, 27 S. W. 268, 6 C. A. 755.

This article provides for a case where the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals has attached by the giving of bond or service of the writ of error, and the party appealing or suing out the writ of error dies subsequently thereto, before the court of civil appeals has disposed of the case, in which event the court will proceed with the trial as if the party were still living. Conn v. Hagan, 93 T. 334, 55 S. W. 323.

Under this statute the suit does not abate by death of the party after appeal perfected to the court of civil appeals, notwithstanding the original cause of action may be one which does not survive. White v. Manning, 46 C. A. 298, 102 S. W. 1163.

Effect of death in general.—Plaintiff having died, defendants in defendant's writ of error should be designated in the petition and bond by name, and not as "heirs of" deceased, and should be served. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 32 C. A. 427, 72 S. W. 620, 74 S. W. 943.

Where, pending an appeal from a judgment in favor of plaintiff, plaintiff dies, the proper practice held to require the appellate court to dismiss the action. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

A petition for writ of error cannot be considered the suing out of a writ of error as to the executrix of one of the persons named as defendants in error in the petition, who had previously died. Simmang v. Cheney (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1198.

CHAPTER EIGHT

CERTIFICATION OF QUESTIONS TO SUPREME COURT, ETC.

Art.
1619. Questions of law certified to supreme court.
1620. Dissenting opinion; point of dissent certified to supreme court.
1621. Proceedings on certificate of dissent.
1622. Decision of supreme court certified back, judgment on.
1623. Conflict with decision of another court of civil appeals; question and record transmitted and certified to supreme court, etc.
1624. Proceedings on same in supreme court.
1625. Action of supreme court on; effect and finality of.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 1619. [1043] Questions of law certified to supreme court.—Whenever, in any case pending before the court of civil appeals, there should arise an issue of law which said court should deem it advisable to present to the supreme court for adjudication, it shall be the duty of the presiding judge of said court to certify the very question to be decided by the supreme court; and, during the pendency of the decision by the supreme court, the cause in which the issue is raised shall be retained for final adjudication in accordance with the decision of the supreme court upon the issue submitted. [Acts 1893, p. 100.]

Cited, State Bank of Chicago v. Holland, 103 T. 266, 126 S. W. 564.

Certification of questions in general.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The supreme court will entertain jurisdiction of questions certified to it as novel by the court of civil appeals in cases in which it has final jurisdiction. Darnell v. Lyon, 85 T. 455, 22 S. W. 304, 960.

The court of civil appeals can certify to the supreme court a question in a case of which the court of civil appeals has final jurisdiction. Wallis v. Stuart, 92 T. 568, 50 S. W. 567.

Where the court of appeals is satisfied with the correctness of its decision, it will not certify questions to the supreme court. Cleaver v. Duke (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 145.

Questions which should be certified.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

By "the very question" is meant, not an abstract question which may determine the issue as presented in the court of civil appeals, but the issue itself as there presented. If the question be the correctness of the ruling of the court in sustaining or overruling an exception to a pleading, the substance at least of the pleading and of the exception ought to be set out in the statement. It is the precise question ruled upon in the trial court as shown by the record in the court of civil appeals, which that court is authorized to certify and which the supreme court has jurisdiction to determine. Railroad Co. v. Zantzinger, 92 T. 365, 48 S. W. 563, 44 L. R. A. 553, 71 Am. St. Rep. 859.

The very question and not the entire case is authorized to be certified to the supreme court. Mann v. Dublin Cotton Oil Co., 92 T. 377, 48 S. W. 567.

The court of civil appeals will not certify a question to the supreme court unless some one of its members is in doubt about the question certified, or the question itself is of great public interest. Habermann v. Heidrich (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 795.

What certificate should state.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The purpose of this provision is to permit a court of civil appeals to certify the very question about which there is doubt; and the very question must be stated by the court. Waco W. & L. Co. v. City of Waco, 26 S. W. 943, 86 T. 661, 31 L. R. A. 392.

The supreme court cannot answer an abstract question and the certificate must show that the question arose in the course of the trial of a cause. Berlin Iron Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio, 92 T. 388, 49 S. W. 211.

The court's certificate must present the "very question passed upon by the trial court," and must show "in what manner such question arose upon the trial of the case" in order to give the supreme court jurisdiction to answer the question. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burgess (Sup.) 54 S. W. 1021.

A certificate which states the evidence but does not state the conclusion of fact drawn by the court of civil appeals, does not present "the very question" and is insufficient. Evans v. Daniel, 94 T. 281, 60 S. W. 310.

Scope of review in supreme court.—See, also, Art. 1546 and notes at end of this chapter.

Where the action of the supreme court upon one of the certified questions practically settles the litigation, other questions certified will not be considered. Darnell v. Lyon, 85 T. 455, 22 S. W. 304, 960.

When questions of law are referred by the court of civil appeals to the supreme court for determination in the first instance, the court has no power to pass upon any questions except those submitted. Nor can it inquire into their bearing upon the ultimate decision of the case. Id.

Art. 1620. [1040] Dissenting opinion; point of dissent certified to supreme court.—When any one of said courts of civil appeals shall, in any cause or proceeding, render a decision in which any one of the judges therein sitting shall dissent as to any conclusions of law material to the decision of the case, said judge shall enter the grounds of his dissent of record; and the said court of civil appeals shall, upon motion of the party to the cause, or on its own motion, certify the point or points of dissent to the supreme court. [Acts 1893, p. 89.]

Certification of questions in general.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The law furnishes simply a means whereby parties may bring questions of law before the supreme court otherwise than by writ of error; but no litigant is compelled thus to bring before that court any question. A party not only may but ought to refrain from bringing to the court through this means questions of law on which is dissent, if there be other questions vital to his rights which he cannot have thus submitted to the supreme court. Campbell v. Wiggins, 85 T. 451, 22 S. W. 5.

If a court of civil appeals, on its own motion, should certify a question, a litigant has the right to prosecute a writ of error in the case. Id.

Where a judge of the court of civil appeals has dissented in a case affirmed by the court of which he is a member in which the amount in controversy is more than $10,000, a mandamus will not lie to compel the court of civil appeals to certify the dissent because a writ of error can be sued out, and if the judgment is erroneous the supreme court can correct it. So there is a plain remedy without recourse to mandamus. State v. Fisher, 94 T. 491, 62 S. W. 540.

A motion to certify points of dissent in the court of civil appeals to the supreme court, under this and article 1622, must be made during the term at which the case is heard and determined. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hudson, 103 T. 88, 124 S. W. 85.

Questions which should be certified.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The very question upon which the members of the court are not in accord must be distinctly stated. Eustis v. City of Henrietta, 90 T. 254, 38 S. W. 165.

This article does not apply in a case in which the courts of civil appeals under article 1589 were given final jurisdiction. Kidd v. Rainey, 95 T. 556, 68 S. W. 507.

The court of civil appeals is not required on a dissent to certify the question of dissent to the supreme court in those cases in which the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals is final. Miller v. Mosely (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 648.

A purported certificate of dissent from a court of civil appeals was not properly a certificate of dissent where the court had made no decision, though the certificate showed a difference of opinion between the judges. Pohle v. Robertson, 102 T. 274, 115 S. W. 1166.

What certificate should state.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The certificate in itself should present all that is essential to a decision of the point of dissent, so that the supreme court can from the certificates see what the exact question is and how it has arisen, without having to refer to the record which accompanies the certificate in order to ascertain the facts omitted, for which there is no provision in the statute regulating certifying of questions ordinarily. Pohle v. Robertson, 102 T. 274, 115 S. W. 1167.

Scope of review in supreme court.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The certificate of dissent brings the question before the supreme court for a full hearing from both sides upon the question of non-concurrence, without the intervention of a writ of error. Campbell v. Wiggins, 85 T. 424, 21 S. W. 599.

The supreme court has no power to revise any question on which the judges of the court of civil appeals concur when the case is in the supreme court upon certificate of dissent as to other questions. Its jurisdiction only extends to the question or questions upon which there is dissent. Id.

The jurisdiction of the supreme court is restricted to a determination of the very point upon which the judges of the court of civil appeals have disagreed. Classen v. Elmendorf, 90 T. 204, 37 S. W. 1062, 38 S. W. 160.

Though a certificate of dissent from a court of civil appeals did not sufficiently show the point in controversy, and no decision had been rendered, the supreme court may consider it under the circumstances, in order to avoid delay and expense. Pohle v. Robertson, 102 T. 274, 115 S. W. 1166.

Art. 1621. [1041] Proceedings on certificate of dissent.—When a certificate of dissent is sent up by any court of civil appeals, it shall be the duty of the clerk to send up a certified copy of the conclusions of fact and law as found by the court, and the questions of law upon which there is a division, and the original transcript, if so ordered by the supreme court; and, thereupon, if the supreme court so direct, the clerk shall set down the same for argument, and notify the attorneys of record. [Id.]

Art. 1622. [1042] Decision of supreme court certified back; judgment on.—After the question is decided, the supreme court shall immediately notify the court of civil appeals of their decision, and the same shall be entered as the judgment of said court of civil appeals. [Id.]

Scope of review in supreme court.—See notes under Art. 1620 and at end of this chapter.

Decision of court of civil appeals suspended pending certification.—The court of civil appeals must retain jurisdiction of the case until they are officially notified of the answer of the supreme court to the question certified and until it has acted in accordance with that answer. Until the supreme court has decided a question of dissent which has been certified and the court of civil appeals has acted upon its decision the decision of the court of civil appeals is suspended, and the judgment it has previously rendered has not that quality of finality that is necessary to give the supreme court jurisdiction to grant a writ of error. McCord v. Nabours, 97 T. 271, 78 S. W. 223.

Judgment after certification.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The court of civil appeals should enter its judgment in accordance with the answers of the supreme court in response to its certificate of dissent. Eustis v. Henrietta, 91 T. 325, 43 S. W. 259.

Art. 1623. Conflict with decision of another court of civil appeals; question and record transmitted and certified to supreme court.—Wherever, in any cause at any time pending in any of the courts of civil appeals of the several supreme judicial districts of the state of Texas, any one of said courts may arrive at an opinion in the decision of any such cause that may be in conflict with the opinion heretofore rendered, or hereafter rendered, by some other court of civil appeals in this state on any question of law, and such court of civil appeals refuses to concur with the opinion so rendered by such other court of civil appeals, it shall be the duty of such court failing to concur with the opinion in conflict with the opinion so arrived at by such court, through its clerk, to transmit the question of law, duly certified to, involved in the cause wherein said conflict of opinion has arisen, together with the record or transcript in such cause, to the supreme court of the state of Texas for adjudication by the supreme court. [Acts 1899, p. 170.]

Cited, Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mahaffey (Sup.) 150 S. W. 881; Elder, Dempster & Co. v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 154 S. W. 975.

Questions which should be certified.—To give supreme court jurisdiction there must be a well-defined conflict. McCurdy v. Conner, 95 T. 246, 66 S. W. 666.

Holding of court of civil appeals with respect to validity of local option election held not in conflict with decision of another court of civil appeals on the same general question, so as to require certification to supreme court, under Laws 1899, p. 170. Kidd v. Rainey, 95 T. 556, 68 S. W. 507.

The court of civil appeals is not required to certify a case where the conclusion arrived at is supported by decisions of the supreme court, though decisions of another district of the court of civil appeals are to the contrary. Stark v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1080.

The court of civil appeals is not authorized to certify a case to supreme court when its decision conflicts with one of the supreme court, but only when it conflicts with a decision of another court of civil appeals. Smith v. Conner, 98 T. 434, 84 S. W. 815.

It is only where a decision has been arrived at and adhered to, conflicting with an opinion of another court (of civil appeals), that the duty of certifying is imposed; then it is the opinion of the supreme court that is to be rendered and is to be considered the law upon the question involved. Id.

If the supreme court after examination finds that the cases do not conflict, it will deny the motion to file petition. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Conner, 100 T. 407, 100 S. W. 367.

That a decision of the court of civil appeals is in conflict with decisions of other courts of civil appeals will not warrant the certifying of a question to the supreme court where there is no real conflict on the points actually decided. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Arnett (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 834.

It is only when the ruling of the court of civil appeals conflicts with the decision of some other court of civil appeals, that the statute makes it their duty to certify the question. Newnom v. Neill et al., 101 T. 42, 104 S. W. 1040.

The conflict meant is with the decision of some other court of civil appeals and not with the decision of the supreme court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Willson, 101 T. 269, 106 S. W. 325.

The conflict between a decision of any court of civil appeals and some other court of civil appeals under which it is the duty of the court of civil appeals to transmit the question to the supreme court held a conflict on the very question decided, and not in the reasoning by which the conclusion is reached. McKay v. Conner, 101 T. 313, 107 S. W. 45.

The statute providing for transmission of a question of law to the supreme court by a court of civil appeals, where its opinion is in conflict with that of some other court of civil appeals, held not to require the transmission of a question for the reason that the decision of the court of civil appeals conflicts with a supreme court decision. Id.

Where there is a conflict in the decisions of the courts of civil appeals of different districts, it is the duty of the court of civil appeals to certify the question in conflict to the supreme court for its decision, but, if there is no conflict, this should not be done, particularly because of the congested docket of the supreme court. Booker-Jones Oil Co. v. National Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 815.

Art. 1624. Proceedings on same in supreme court.—When said record shall have been received by the clerk of the supreme court, he shall docket the same; and the supreme court shall set such cause down for hearing at some future day; and the clerk of the supreme court shall at once notify the parties or their attorneys of record of such setting, and such case shall be set for a time sufficiently far in the future to give such attorneys reasonable time to prepare briefs and arguments if they so desire. [Id.]

Art. 1625. Action of supreme court on; effect and finality of.—It shall be the duty of the supreme court, on receiving such record, together with such certified question of law, from the court of civil appeals transmitting the same, to examine such record and such certified question of law, and render an opinion in such cause, as in other cases; which opinion, when so rendered by said supreme court, on the record and question of law presented therein, shall be final, and shall be the law on the question involved, until said opinion shall have been overruled by the said supreme court, or abrogated by legislative enactment, and the courts of civil appeals shall be governed thereby. [Id. sec. 2.]

Scope of review in Supreme Court.—See, also, Art. 1546.

The supreme court will determine a certified question, though other questions must be determined before a decision on the question certified becomes necessary. State v. Callaghan, 91 T. 313, 43 S. W. 12.

The supreme court will only determine whether the charge is correct in particulars indicated by inquiry. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Zantzinger, 92 T. 365, 48 S. W. 563, 44 L. R. A. 553, 71 Am. St. Rep. 859.

The supreme court will not consider certified question not involved in the case. Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio, 92 T. 388, 49 S. W. 211:

The supreme court, on certified questions, is strictly confined to the facts as certified. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 800.

Where a case is certified by a court of civil appeals to the supreme court, the latter court will not decide questions not presented by the certificate. Snyder v. Baird Independent School Dist., 102 T. 4, 111 S. W. 723, 113 S. W. 521.

The supreme court will not answer certified questions so far as they involve conclusions on facts stated. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Day, 104 T. 237, 136 S. W. 435, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 111.

The supreme court is limited to the precise matters involved in the questions certified. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654, 138 S. W. 385.

The opinion of the supreme court on a certified question from the court of civil appeals will relate solely to the question presented, and neither by implication nor otherwise will the court express any opinion on any other question arising from the facts stated. Clary v. Hurst, 104 T. 423, 138 S. W. 566.

A question which is not based upon any fact or proceeding stated in the certificate of the court of civil appeals will not be decided by the supreme court as a certified question. Orange Lumber Co. v. Ellis (Sup.) 150 S. W. 582.

Judgment after certification.—Where the only question presented on appeal was answered by the supreme court in favor of defendant on certified questions, the court of civil appeals will render judgment for defendant. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McCarty (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 106.

An answer by the supreme court to a question certified by the court of civil appeals held not to authorize the latter court to reverse and render, instead of reversing and remanding the cause for retrial. Nabours v. McCord (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 153, 193.

The court of civil appeals held not authorized to render a judgment in view of the decision of the supreme court on certified questions. Hayworth v. Williams, 51 C. A. 146, 117 S. W 1197, 120 S. W. 1138.

A judgment by the court of civil appeals on a question certified to it by the supreme court held binding on the latter. Smith v. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas, 104 T. 171, 133 S. W. 1041, 135 S. W. 1147.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

Certification of questions in general.—The points certified must be questions of law only, and not questions of fact or of mixed law and fact. Kelley-Goodfellow Shoe Co. v. Liberty Ins. Co., 26 S. W. 1063, 87 T. 112.

Certified question must be construed as referring to statement of facts found by court of civil appeals. Allen v. Tyson-Jones Buggy Co., 91 T. 22, 40 S. W. 393, 714.

Where the court of civil appeals, in certifying a question to the supreme court, did not state its conclusion as to the effect of the testimony submitted, and based the question on an hypothesis, the supreme court has no jurisdiction to answer the question. Evans v. Daniel, 94 T. 281, 60 S. W. 309.

Certificate certifying questions to supreme court from the court of civil appeals dismissed. McColpin v. McColpin's Estate, 96 T. 560, 74 S. W. 756.

Question propounded by court of civil appeals held not "question in case," requiring answer. Poole v. Burnet County, 97 T. 77, 76 S. W. 425.

The supreme court has no authority to answer an abstract question certified by the court of civil appeals. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 97 T. 260, 78 S. W. 224.

The supreme court will not answer a certified question as to whether the facts of a case bring it within the provisions of a statute, where the court of civil appeals made no conclusions of fact, but merely certified the evidence. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Lennox, 103 T. 133, 124 S. W. 623.

A party whose motion for rehearing had been overruled held not entitled to a certification of the question to the supreme court. First Nat. Bank v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1115.

Questions which should be certified.—A certification to the supreme court is limited to a question in a case pending in the court of civil appeals. When it appears from the certificate that two questions are presented, one of which does not arise in the case, but it cannot be determined which does so arise, the supreme court will not answer either. Railway Co. v. Belcher, 88 T. 549, 32 S. W. 518.

The whole case cannot be certified on statement and questions to the supreme court for its decision. Mann v. Dublin Cotton-Oil Co., 91 T. 617, 45 S. W. 373.

Questions certified to the supreme court by the court of civil appeals must not be based on hypothetical questions of fact. Id.

The supreme court will not answer certified questions, which present abstract questions of law, to which answers cannot be made that would apply in any given state of facts alleged in the petition. Roy v. Whitaker, 92 T. 346, 48 S. W. 892, 49 S. W. 367.

The court of civil appeals will not certify questions to the Supreme Court when a writ of error will lie. Magill v. Brown, 20 C. A. 662, 50 S. W. 143, 642.

A decision of the court of civil appeals that openings in a fence of a railroad right of way of mere convenience is a violation by company of its duty of fencing its tracks held not in conflict with a prior supreme court decision and the former holding will not be certified to the supreme court for review. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Richmond, 28 C. A. 513, 67 S. W. 1029.

A question not raised by the pleadings nor presented to the trial court cannot be certified to the supreme court by the court of civil appeals. Nabours v. McCord (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 153, 193.

A question submitted by the court of civil appeals to the supreme court held not a question of law and not within the jurisdiction of the court to determine. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Briscoe (Sup.) 110 S. W. 430.

The statute regulating the certifying of questions does not authorize the transfer of an entire case to the supreme court so as to substitute its jurisdiction for that of the court of civil appeals. Falfurrias Immigration Co. v. Spielhagen, 103 T. 144, 124 S. W. 616.

Where the jurisdiction of the supreme court may be invoked by writ of error upon affirmance of a judgment by the court of civil appeals as completely as it could be by a certification, the case will not be certified. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 96.

What certificate should state.—The court of appeals must formulate and state the question of law which arises upon the very facts of the case, and must make findings of fact upon each issue that is to be affected by the questions presented by the certificate. Cleveland v. Carr, 90 T. 393, 38 S. W. 1123.

The certificate should show how the question arose, and also all the facts in relation to it which bear upon the decision. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Templeton, 90 T. 503, 39 S. W. 914.

Question as to correctness of charge in action by mother for herself and son for injury to son, held sufficiently certified to supreme court. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Zantzinger, 92 T. 365, 48 S. W. 563, 44 L. R. A. 553, 71 Am. St. Rep. 859.

Question certified on appeal held sufficient to require an answer. Roy v. Whitaker, 92 T. 346, 48 S. W. 892, 49 S. W. 367.

A certificate of the court of civil appeals certifying a question to the supreme court, which does not contain a statement of the facts on which the question is based, will be dismissed. Buie v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 94 T. 566, 63 S. W. 627.

A certified question should contain a statement of all necessary facts. Stephens v. Herron (Sup.) 87 S. W. 1144.

Where the certificate of a question certified by the court of civil appeals to the supreme court does not sufficiently disclose the record to enable the supreme court to intelligently answer the question, the certificate will be dismissed. Rich v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 101 T. 466, 108 S. W. 1152.

CHAPTER NINE

JUDGMENT OF THE COURT

Art.		Art.
1626.	If judgment reversed, when reformed and when remanded.	1630.	Remittitur.
1627.	Judgment on affirmance or rendition, etc.; damages adjudged, when; finality.	1631.	Suggestion of remittitur.
1628.	No reversal for want of form.	1632.	Refusal to remit not subject to comment on subsequent trial.
1629.	Affirmance with damages in case of delay.	1633.	Mandate issued, when.
		1634.	No mandate to issue until costs paid.
		1635.	Affidavit of inability to secure or pay costs.

Article 1626. [1027] If judgment reversed, when reformed, when remanded.—When the judgment or decree of the court below shall be reversed, the court shall proceed to render such judgment or decree as the court below should have rendered, except when it is necessary that some matter of fact be ascertained or the damage to be assessed or the matter to be decreed is uncertain, in either of which cases the cause shall be remanded for a new trial in the court below. [Id.]

Disposition of cause in general.—When there is a conflict in the evidence the appellate court will resolve any doubt that may arise, or any conflict that may exist in the evidence, in favor of the finding of the trial court. Fielding v. White (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 773.

Appellate court must dispose of a case under the law in force when its decision is rendered. Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Shearman, 17 C. A. 456, 43 S. W. 930.

Where the court of civil appeals reversed a judgment dismissing the cause, and the supreme court reversed the court of civil appeals, held, that the latter court would not dismiss the cause. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1075.

Where the court takes cognizance of a case on its merits, though authorized to render judgment by default, the appellate court will do likewise, and consider whether the judgment was warranted by the evidence. Murray v. Dallas Homestead & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 604.

Where the appellate court refuses to entertain an appeal by reason of the destruction of the subject-matter, the proper practice is to dismiss the case, not the appeal. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Galveston County (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 539.

Where the facts were undisputed, the court, on appeal, would render judgment for the party in whose favor the questions of law were decided on appeal. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Ransom (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 144.

Where, in an action against a principal and agent, on a contract made by the agent, who signed the same as surety, a judgment against the principal was reversed, judgment could not be rendered against the agent until the issue of the agent's authority was determined as against the principal. Tabet v. Powell (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 997.

Where, in an action for wrongful attachment, judgment was rendered against all the defendants, and plaintiff was not entitled to recover against the sureties on an indemnity bond, the judgment would be affirmed as to the other defendants, and the cause dismissed as to such sureties. Unsell v. Sisk, 37 C. A. 34, 83 S. W. 34.

The court of civil appeals cannot affirm or reverse a judgment in trespass to try title, as between parties who do not appeal as against each other. Sullivan v. Michael, 39 C. A. 564, 87 S. W. 1061.

On reversal of a judgment overruling defendant's motion to dismiss a petition for certiorari, held, that the court of civil appeals cannot remand, but will dispose of the case by instructing the dismissal of the petition. McBurnett v. Lampkin, 45 C. A. 567, 101 S. W. 864.

A defendant is not entitled on appeal to a judgment over against a codefendant, where he did not appeal from the judgment rendered below. Rex v. James (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 248.

Where defendant appealed from an erroneous judgment for plaintiff without complaining of an adverse judgment on a plea in reconvention, the court reversing the erroneous judgment will not disturb the judgment on the plea. Adams v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1163.

The court, reversing a judgment against connecting carriers in favor of the initial carrier, held not authorized to disturb the judgment against the initial carrier for the shipper, where it did not appeal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jarmon (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 155.

Dismissal of appeal.—Where the court dismisses an appeal for a defect in the record, the appellee, who has not appealed or assigned errors cannot have a reinstatement, on perfecting the record, against the consent of the appellant. Frank v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 716.

A motion to dismiss a writ of error filed more than a year after the appearance of the defendant and after the cause had been submitted without objection comes too late. Curlin v. Canadian & American Mortgage & Trust Co., 90 T. 376, 38 S. W. 766.

An appeal held dismissed; the case being wholly moot. Bell v. Judson (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 306.

Question whether petitioner for mandamus waived his right to review the judgment denying his petition held to go to the merits of the appeal, and not to the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals, and hence not to be a question proper for determination on a motion to dismiss. Glover v. Albrecht (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1192.

Affirmance.—The court will not reverse upon the facts where the testimony is reasonably sufficient to support the verdict and judgment. Moore v. Rogers, 84 T. 1, 19 S. W. 283. Nor when an error relates to an immaterial issue. Hart v. Davidson, 84 T. 112, 19 S. W. 454.

When the cause is tried before the judge and there are no conclusions of fact and no law filed, if the statement of facts supports the judgment upon any combination of facts therein, on appeal errors upon other branches of the case are no grounds for reversal. The judgment will be sustained if it can be. Harris v. Cattle Co., 84 T. 674, 19 S. W. 869.

Heirs held entitled to have judgment of trial court on partition affirmed, however much it might wrong them by giving too large an interest to the widow. Clemons v. Clemons, 92 T. 66, 45 S. W. 996.

Where there are no statements of facts, bill of exceptions, findings of law or fact or assignments of error, judgment will be affirmed. Brooks v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 842.

The appellate court cannot affirm a judgment simply to get case off the docket. P. J. Willis & Bro. v. Sims' Heirs (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 325.

A judgment sustained by the evidence will be affirmed on appeal, though the reasons on which it was based by the trial court are erroneous. Warren v. Kohr, 26 C. A. 331, 64 S. W. 62.

Plaintiff not being entitled under his contract for purchase of land to recover the liquidated damages for breach and also to have specific performance, his insistence on affirmance of that part of the judgment which grants the damages is sufficient reason for affirming the part which refuses specific performance. Hoskins v. Dougherty, 29 C. A. 318, 69 S. W. 103.

Where, in trespass to try title, judgment is rendered in favor of interveners, and defendants alone appeal, the judgment may be affirmed as against the plaintiffs. Eddy v. Bosley, 34 C. A. 116, 78 S. W. 565.

The appellate court will not interfere with a verdict as excessive, and as being for vindictive damages, unless it is in an amount grossly disproportionate to the injuries. Southern Pac. Co. v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 820.

Where on suggestion of delay in prosecution of an appeal the only questions raised are as to sufficiency of the evidence, which was conflicting, the judgment will be affirmed. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Ake (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 207.

Where the lower court did not file any findings or reasons for its judgment, this court can only infer the reasons, and the judgment must be affirmed if supported by any theory founded upon the evidence. Naylor & Jones v. Foster, 44 C. A. 599, 99 S. W. 114.

If the trial court's judgment can be sustained by any view of the evidence, it should be affirmed, whether the court based its conclusions upon the view taken by the appellate court as the law or upon some other and possibly erroneous view. Vasser v. City of Liberty, 50 C. A. 111, 110 S. W. 119.

Where a decision is correct, it will not be reversed, though the court may have erred as to the ground therefor. Miller v. Moore (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 750.

In a suit to quiet title, held, that a decree for defendant would not be reversed for error in striking out a supplemental petition pleading a countervailing equity, if the defendant would stipulate to hold complainant harmless from his reaping advantage of the equity. McCullough v. Rucker, 53 C. A. 89, 115 S. W. 323.

To affirm a judgment, the court of civil appeals is not bound by the reasons given by the trial court. Bell County v. Felts (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 269.

Where the court correctly found in favor of the successful party on either one of two grounds, the judgment will be sustained. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Fowler, 57 C. A. 556, 122 S. W. 593.

Where the trial court overruled appellee's general demurrer to a plea in reconvention and appellant went to trial, and judgment was rendered against him on appellee's plea of estoppel, the court of appeals, having found that the plea of estoppel was not sustained, could not affirm the judgment on the ground that the general demurrer should have been sustained to the plea in reconvention. Hanson v. First Nat. Bank of Center (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1147.

Where an exception to a petition to reinstate a cause was improperly overruled, a judgment against plaintiff would not be affirmed because the motion to reinstate was insufficient as against a general demurrer. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

Where the only assignments of error upon which an error could be sustained are waived, an affirmance must follow. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bitting (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 382.

Modification or reformation of judgment.—An appellee who has not taken a cross-appeal cannot ask that the judgment be reformed and then affirmed. Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Ward, 26 S. W. 763, 7 C. A. 13.

Where it was evident that the intention was to exclude from a decree certain property to which defendant was entitled, held, that the decree would be reformed in appellate court. Holland v. Preston (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 374.

When the county court fails to tax the costs properly in a case appealed from the justice court, the error will be corrected in the court of civil appeals, and the costs taxed properly. Bimel Carriage Co. v. Rosette, 20 C. A. 273, 48 S. W. 888.

Citation being served on the real defendant, though his wrong middle initial of his name was given, the judgment will be reformed on appeal. Masterson v. Young (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1109.

Motion to the appellate court to reform judgment in trespass to try title, so as to permit appellant to recover the rents, denied. Watt v. Hunter, 20 C. A. 76, 48 S. W. 593, 49 S. W. 412.

Abney v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Hillsboro (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 734.

Where, in trespass to try title, the court erroneously permits the jury to find for the defendant for all the land in controversy, when defendant admitted title to one-third in plaintiff, the error will be corrected in the appellate court and the judgment affirmed. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 328.

Reversal—In general.—A reversal on the appeal of one defendant of a judgment against two or more will operate as a reversal to all, if the judgment be entire, operating to the prejudice of all the defendants; otherwise if the judgment is upon distinct and independent matters in which the several defendants are separately interested. Burleson v. Henderson, 4 T. 59; Wood v. Smith, 11 T. 367; Willie v. Thomas, 22 T. 176; Dickson v. Burke, 28 T. 118; McIlhenny v. Lee, 43 T. 210; Bradford v. Taylor, 64 T. 169.

When under the evidence it is manifest that a judgment has been rendered for a less amount than the appellee is entitled to, it will not be reversed for errors in the proceedings on the trial. Bowles v. Brice, 66 T. 724, 2 S. W. 729; Wilber v. Kray, 73 T. 533, 11 S. W. 540.

Where there is error in the proceedings of the lower court as to one party to the judgment and not as to another, and a proper decision of the case as to one is not dependent upon the judgment as to the other, the court may reverse in part and affirm in part. But where the rights of one party are dependent in any manner upon those of another, the court will treat the judgment as an entirety, and when a reversal is required as to one it will extend to the whole judgment and to all the parties. Hamilton v. Prescott, 73 T. 565, 11 S. W. 548.

On appeal the judgment below was reversed as to some of the appellees and affirmed as to others. The case was afterwards dismissed in the district court for want of prosecution, and a judgment for costs was rendered against the plaintiffs and the sureties on the cost bond executed on the appeal without citation to the sureties. The judgment against the sureties was void. Blair v. Sanborn, 82 T. 686, 18 S. W. 159.

Where case is submitted on several issues as to one of which there is no evidence, the verdict will be reversed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 77.

Where a judgment is rendered against two parties, and is found erroneous as to one, it should also be held erroneous as to the other. Cameron v. Hinton (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 616.

Where complaint alleges two of four notes to be due, and asks foreclosure of vendor's lien and personal judgment, and a default judgment is rendered for the amount of all the notes, it will be reversed, and not modified and affirmed on appeal. Johnson v. Blount (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 102.

Where a general verdict is returned under instructions which authorized the inclusion of improper items in assessing the damages, judgment must be reversed, since it cannot be told how much was allowed for such items. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Durrett, 24 C. A. 103, 58 S. W. 187.

Where the record on appeal from a judgment for recovery of land shows that plaintiffs' judgment includes land they are not entitled to recover, but it is uncertain how much, the judgment must be reversed. Wingo v. Jones (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 916.

Where a charge on the measure of damages for personal injuries erroneously permits a greater recovery than is authorized by the pleadings, and the evidence on the subject is too indefinite for the error to be cured by remittitur, a judgment for plaintiff must be reversed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Frank, 40 C. A. 86, 88 S. W. 383.

Where, in an action against a carrier for damages to a shipment, the evidence showed plaintiff to be the owner of a part of the goods, but the evidence was not sufficient to enable the court, on appeal, to separate the damages, a judgment for plaintiff would be reversed. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 65.

That a judgment for double usurious payments of interest was excessive by the amount of interest awarded would not necessitate a reversal. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 754.

In an action for personal injuries to a servant, an error in charging the jury held not to require the case to be remanded. Freeman v. Mireles (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1162.

Where an insurance association has no property and no legal entity, and a judgment against it alone would be illegal, where it was sued on a policy with its directors against whom a valid judgment was entered, the court, on appeal by both the association and directors will not reverse as to such association, where that would have the effect of taxing the appellee with the costs, as the other appellants should be taxed therewith. Home Benefit Ass'n v. Wester (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1022.

—— Rendering final judgment.—When a judgment of the court below shall be reversed in a case in which the court below had no jurisdiction, or in a case where the cause of action is not such as the law will permit a recovery upon, and it appears that no amendment can be made which would maintain the action, the case will not be remanded for further proceeding in the court below, and will be dismissed. Burck v. Burroughs, 64 T. 445; Roeser v. Bellmer, 7 T. 1; Arrington v. Sneed, 18 T. 135; Crawford v. Wingfield, 25 T. 414; Harris v. Ellis, 30 T. 4, 94 Am. Dec. 296; Marx v. Carlisle, 1 App. C. C. § 95.

In a suit in the county court the plaintiff recovered judgment against a railroad company for $15 overcharges for freight and $960 for damages to cattle on the route. On appeal it was held that he was not entitled to recover for damages to his cattle; and the court of appeals reversed and rendered judgment in favor of appellee for $15, the amount which he was entitled to recover. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 3 App. C. C. § 42.

The court will not reverse and render unless the matter upon which the judgment is based clearly appears. Bettes v. Weir Plow Co., 84 T. 543, 19 S. W. 705.

Where a case is tried without a jury and there is no evidence to support the judgment the court of civil appeals will reverse and render a judgment. Meyer v. Orynske (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 655; Williams v. Jones (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1092.

The court will not render judgment upon a reversal unless the facts be such that the court below could not properly have rendered any other judgment; nor will it render judgment if it appear that other facts are necessary to be passed on by the judge or jury. Durrell v. Farewell, 88 T. 98, 30 S. W. 539, 31 S. W. 185.

Where a cause was fully developed in the trial court, and there is no conflict in the evidence, the court on appeal will render the proper judgment. Williams v. Jones (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1092; Halbert v. Paddleford (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1092; Moore v. Price, 46 C. A. 304, 103 S. W. 234; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Thomas, 47 C. A. 150, 103 S. W. 423; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1184.

A court of civil appeals is not authorized to render judgment unless as a matter of law, upon the evidence contained in the record, one party or the other is entitled to judgment. Stevens v. Masterson, 90 T. 417, 39 S. W. 292, 921; Railroad Co. v. Strycharski, 92 T. 1, 37 S. W. 415.

Where judgment is reversed for admission of incompetent evidence, unless competent evidence cannot be produced, it is improper to render judgment for appellant. Coffin v. Loomis (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 511.

Where there was no evidence to sustain a verdict for appellee, the court, on reversing, rendered judgment for appellant. Burkitt v. Key (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 231.

Where defendant had suffered default, but the lower court erroneously dismissed the suit on suggestion of defect of venue, there being no issue of fact, held, that on plaintiff's appeal judgment would be reversed, and rendered in favor of plaintiff, final by default, against defendant. State v. Patterson, 17 C. A. 231, 42 S. W. 369.

Where a judgment is reversed for the erroneous exclusion of evidence for plaintiff, held, that the reviewing court would remand the case, rather than render judgment for plaintiff. McDonald v. Dorbrandt, 17 C. A. 277, 42 S. W. 1047.

Where the facts are undisputed, the appellate court can declare the law as applied thereto, and render judgment thereon. Parrish v. Frey, 18 C. A. 271, 44 S. W. 322.

Where there is reversible error, and nothing to require the cause to be remanded, the court of appeals will render the proper decree. Watt v. Hunter, 20 C. A. 76, 48 S. W. 593, 49 S. W. 412.

When the plaintiffs utterly fail to show title in themselves, the court should have directed a verdict and rendered judgment for the defendants and having failed to do so it is the duty of the appellate court to reverse and render judgment for defendants. Arnold v. Ellis, 20 C. A. 262, 48 S. W. 883.

On reversing a judgment on an award because it was premature, the appellate court will not enter the judgment which should have been rendered. Brulay v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 647.

Where the only conclusion that can be reached from the evidence is opposed to the judgment, the appellate court will render final judgment for appellant. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Flanary (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 726.

The valuation placed upon property by the sheriff in proceedings by a third person to gain possession by means of a claimant's bond is not sufficient to authorize an appellate court to enter judgment thereon. Taylor v. St. Louis Type Foundry, 21 C. A. 69, 51 S. W. 304.

The appellate court cannot, on a reversal of a judgment entered on a general verdict for defendant in an action on a claimant's bond, enter a judgment for plaintiff, in the absence of a finding of the value of the property described in the bond. Id.

Where the appellate court determines that the trial court should have entered a judgment that plaintiff take nothing, the appellate court may enter such a judgment. Willoughby v. Townsend, 93 T. 80, 53 S. W. 581.

Judgment absolute in favor of defendant might properly be rendered on appeal, though he filed a reconvention, which he abandoned by motion for judgment. Loudon v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 783.

Judgment reversed and rendered, and defendant held not entitled to remand in order that he might plead a defense not set up in the first instance. Gregory v. Montgomery, 23 C. A. 68, 56 S. W. 231.

Where it is not contended that admitted facts can be varied on retrial, the court of civil appeals will render the judgment which should have been rendered below. Park v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 46, 56 S. W. 759.

Testimony excluded by the trial court cannot be made the basis of a judgment of the appellate court. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor v. Landers, 23 C. A. 625, 57 S. W. 307.

When there is nothing in the record to indicate that plaintiff's case was not fully developed, and it is not probable that evidence of defendant's negligence can be produced on another trial, court of civil appeals will reverse judgment for plaintiff and render for defendant. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 24 C. A. 231, 58 S. W. 1035.

Where the trial court has rendered an erroneous judgment on special findings, the appellate court will render the proper judgment. Aldridge v. Pardee, 24 C. A. 254, 60 S. W. 789.

Where a subsequent vendee brought trespass to try title against a prior vendee, and it appears on appeal that a judgment for the plaintiff should be reversed, a final judgment will not be rendered for defendant, who has not paid the purchase money; the common grantor of the parties not being made a party. Stewart v. Polk, 26 C. A. 565, 64 S. W. 818.

Where the only controversy in a suit in which attachment was had was as to the time when defendant's debt to plaintiff accrued, error in entering judgment for plaintiff before the debt was due will not require that the cause be remanded, where the debt has since fallen due; judgment being properly rendered by the appellate court. Hart v. Jopling (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1075.

Where a judgment was reversed and the cause remanded to afford appellees an opportunity to produce additional proof of adverse possession, which they failed to do, on reversal of a subsequent judgment, judgment would be rendered in favor of appellants without remand. Dunn v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 287.

Where the trial court should have directed a verdict for plaintiff and the evidence was fully developed, the court on appeal from a judgment for defendant will not remand, but will reverse and render final judgment. Fetzer v. Haralson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 290.

Where, on an appeal, the plaintiff moves to dismiss the suit as to a defendant who was not properly served, the motion will be granted, instead of reversing and remanding as to him only. O'Donnell v. Kirkes (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1167.

Where there is no matter of fact or amount uncertain or issuable, the court on appeal may render the judgment which should have been rendered below. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

Error of the county court in awarding costs in plaintiffs' favor, where the principal amount recovered was less than that awarded by a judgment of the justice court from which defendant appealed, does not require a reversal in the court of civil appeals; and judgment is properly rendered, awarding costs of the justice court against appellant, and the costs of the county court and of the court of civil appeals against appellees. Goodwin v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 739.

A court of civil appeals, on reversing a judgment for plaintiff as against the preponderance of the evidence cannot enter final judgment against plaintiff, unless, after discarding all adverse evidence and inferences, the evidence favorable to plaintiff would not support a verdict in his favor. Irving v. Freeman (Sup.) 155 S. W. 931.

Where the court without a plea in abatement setting up such facts by official cognizance of the facts shown by its own records in another case between the same parties knows that the undisputed facts in reference to the note sued upon herein showed that appellee is not entitled to judgment thereon, it may reverse and render judgment for the appellant. Allen v. Thomson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 304.

—— Remand for new trial or further proceedings.—An appellate court cannot reverse a correct judgment in order to give a losing party an opportunity to produce evidence not theretofore offered. Harris v. Shafer, 86 T. 314, 23 S. W. 979, 24 S. W. 263.

When there is no evidence to sustain a judgment on a material issue, the court may in its discretion reverse and render a judgment. If the evidence is conflicting and the judgment is reversed because the preponderance of evidence is against the verdict, the case should be remanded for a new trial. Patrick v. Smith, 90 T. 267, 38 S. W. 17.

On reversing because of the sustaining of an exception to a plea, the court will not give final judgment for defendant, but will remand the cause, and give him an opportunity to establish the defense. New York & T. Land Co. v. Votaw, 16 C. A. 585, 42 S. W. 138; Votaw v. New York & T. Land Co., Id.

Equity of redemption is not sufficient title to support an action of trepsass to try title; but, where there are equities in favor of plaintiff outstanding and unadjudicated, a judgment for defendant will be reversed and remanded. Levy v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 446.

Where a judgment for the payee of a note is reversed because of an alteration which does not affect the right of the payee to recover on the original indebtedness, but the evidence is conflicting as to whether, independent of the terms of the note, the maker was to pay interest for the year he was allowed in which to pay the debt, and there is no finding upon that question, the judgment will not be reformed, but will be reversed and remanded for further proceedings. Baldwin v. Haskell Nat. Bank, 104 T. 122, 133 S. W. 864, 134 S. W. 1178.

Though an execution sale under which defendants in trespass to try title claim be adjudged void on review, the cause will be remanded, where an adjustment of equities may be proper. Bailey v. Block, 104 T. 101, 134 S. W. 323.

Where the trial court erroneously denied a nonsuit and directed a verdict, the court on appeal will reverse the judgment and direct the allowance of a nonsuit. Adams v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 437.

Under the facts, held, on reversal, that judgment should not be rendered, but the cause should be remanded. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

In an action for humiliation of a passenger, the court of civil appeals, on determining that the damages were too high, would remand for a new trial in case a remittitur was not complied with, and would not render judgment under Art. 1631. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 508.

In trespass to try title, held, that judgment between defendant and his warrantor, brought in by cross-bill, would be reversed and remanded. Smith v. Cook (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 26.

Where a verdict was general, so that the appellate court could not determine how much was given as damages for items for which plaintiff was entitled to recover, held, that judgment for him must be reversed and remanded. Combest v. Glenn (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 112.

Where the facts were not as fully disclosed as they might be on another trial, the court on reversal will order a new trial, and not direct judgment for the appellant. Starkey v. H. O. Wooten Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 692.

The court of civil appeals held not authorized to render judgment for appellant on reversal of the judgment below as being against the preponderance of the evidence. Wininger v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 105 T. 56, 143 S. W. 1150.

The court on appeal reversing a case will not render judgment, unless the case has been fully developed in the trial court. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Beall (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 363.

The court on appeal held, on reversal, not authorized, under the evidence, to render proper judgment. Southern Irr. Co. v. Wharton Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 701.

The erroneous rendition of judgment on a debt before its maturity does not require remand of the cause; the debt having since fallen due. Hart v. Jopling (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1075.

On evidence in an action on a benefit certificate, held, after judgment for plaintiff, that the cause would be reversed and remanded for new trial, with instructions, instead of reversed and rendered for defendant. Woodmen of the World v. Hipp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 316.

Where the facts in regard to issues raised by assignments of error were fully developed at the trial, the appellate court must consider such assignments to determine whether final judgment should be rendered, but where the facts were not fully developed, the cause should be reversed and remanded, that all the facts may be shown. Conoway v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 344.

Where, in an action for breach of a contract to supply water for irrigation, plaintiff could not recover because not privy to the contract, a reversal and remand held warranted on suggestion in the pleading and evidence that plaintiff might recover on an oral contract independent of the written contract. Biggs v. Maulding (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 681.

A motion by defendant for a directed verdict is not equivalent to a demurrer to the evidence; and hence, on an appeal by plaintiff from a judgment on such a verdict, the court of civil appeals will not render judgment for plaintiff, but will remand the case. Threadgill v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 825.

Where in an action for breach of an alleged contract to drill a well, the existence of the contract depended on an alleged telephone conversation, which, as contained in the statement of facts, was insufficient to show a meeting of minds, but it appeared from the abbreviations in the statement of facts that the 'phone conversation might not have been as reported, a judgment for plaintiffs would be reversed, and the cause remanded for a new trial. Simpson v. Alexander & Wofford (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 748.

In an action to subject land to plaintiff's lien, where the trial court erroneously gave plaintiff's lien precedence over those of others and refused to allow the holder of vendor's lien notes to recover his attorney's fees, the cause will be reversed and remanded, instead of reversed and rendered. Doyle v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 473.

Upon reversal of judgment for plaintiff for insufficiency of evidence, where it does not appear that the evidence to support the cause of action has been fully developed, judgment will not be rendered for defendant, but the cause will be remanded for a new trial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Stracner (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 845.

Where, in an action by a junior lienor to cancel a trust sale deed, and foreclose his lien, the evidence was conflicting whether he made a timely offer to pay off the debt which the trust deed secured, he was entitled, on reversal of a judgment on a verdict directed in his favor, to have the case remanded, so that this issue could be passed on by a jury. Tolleson v. Nobles (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 850.

Where a cause in the county court was tried without a question as to the jurisdiction, the court on appeal will not dismiss for want of jurisdiction, but will remand for new trial to enable plaintiff to amend the petition so as to show jurisdiction. O'Bannon v. Pleasants (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 719.

On a case being reversed, it will not also be rendered merely because the cause of action will be barred on another trial if the statute of limitations be taken advantage of as a defense. Bagley v. Brack (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 247.

On reversal of a judgment in trespass to try title the cause will be remanded for new trial, where it appears that the facts regarding the title have not been fully developed, on account of an erroneous holding of the trial court. Pence v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 608.

A court of civil appeals can reverse and remand a judgment of the district court when against the preponderance of the evidence, but it cannot enter final judgment against plaintiff unless, discarding all adverse evidence and inferences, the evidence favorable to the plaintiff, with all fair inferences which a jury might draw therefrom, is not sufficient to authorize and support a verdict in his favor. Irving v. Freeman (Sup.) 155 S. W. 931.

Where the court erroneously dismissed a cross-action without prejudice, for insufficiency of the evidence, instead of rendering judgment on the merits, and gave as its reason therefor that the facts were not fully developed, upon a reversal the cause would be remanded for a new trial instead of rendering judgment. Reeves v. Bomar (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 275.

—— Proceedings after remand.—The appellate court may so reverse and remand a cause as to restrict the power of the trial court to a new trial on such specified issues in the case as are not determined by the opinion. To ascertain what issues are involved in a new trial the district judge should look to the opinion which is with the mandate as well as to the mandate. Wells v. Littlefield, 62 T. 28.

When a case has been determined finally in an appellate court, the only jurisdiction which the inferior court can properly exercise over it is to enforce and give effect to a mandate of the appellate court. Burck v. Burroughs, 64 T. 445.

When a case is reversed and remanded with instructions to the court below to hear evidence only as to a designated fact, and then to render jdugment in accordance with the directions contained in the opinion, it is error to reopen the entire case on another trial. If the complaining party thought that on another trial of the entire cause he could make a stronger case, he should have asked the appellate court so to reform its judgment as to give him an opportunity to do so. McConnell v. Wall, 67 T. 352, 5 S. W. 681.

When a case is reversed and remanded by the appellate court because the district court had no jurisdiction thereof, the court has no power to make any order in the case other than to strike it from its docket. Leeman v. Wheeler, 66 T. 154, 18 S. W. 446.

A judgment being rendered on one ground, and reserved by the federal supreme court, and remanded for proceedings "not inconsistent with the opinion," plaintiff on remand could assert his second ground of recovery. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 114.

Judgment on a former appeal held not to entitle plaintiffs to judgment on return of the cause to the trial court. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1048.

The trial court must obey the directions of the court of civil appeals on remand. Moore v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 195.

Construction and effect of judgment.—When the appellate court has reversed a judgment and remanded the cause with directions as to entering a proper judgment, it will not reconsider its former judgment on an appeal prosecuted from the last judgment.

The first decision is conclusive and final as to all matters embraced therein. Lowell v. Ball, 58 T. 562; Holmes v. Coryell, 58 T. 680.

Where the district court approves the account of an executor, a judgment of affirmance is final, and is not subject to collateral attack in an action on the executor's bond after close of administration; nor can the same matter be litigated by other creditors in the probate court. Wiren v. Nesbitt, 20 S. W. 129, 85 T. 286.

The reversal of a judgment without restriction operates as to all the issues. Watkins v. Junker, 23 S. W. 802, 4 C. A. 629.

A judgment rendered by the court of civil appeals against a surety on an appeal bond, who had been released by appellant's alteration of the bond, was not absolutely void, since the court had jurisdiction. Rowlett v. Williamson, 18 C. A. 28, 44 S. W. 624.

Judgment of a court of civil appeals cannot be collaterally attacked by evidence outside the record that no appeal bond was filed. Gilbough v. Stahl Bldg. Co., 91 T. 621, 45 S. W. 385.

The fact that, in reviewing a judgment for defendant in trespass to try title, the appellate court stated that plaintiff was a mortgagee, did not enlarge the legal effect of the judgment, where it did not establish that fact otherwise. Morris v. Housley (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 846.

Affirmance of a judgment on a record setting out items of costs concludes the question of proper taxation, but not the question as to the legality of the items. Watkins v. Atwell, 21 C. A. 193, 50 S. W. 1047.

After a remand of a case for a new trial on an issue of improvements, defendant held entitled to claim improvements on lands sequestered by plaintiff after the judgment, and not included in the judgment. Wood v. Cahill, 21 C. A. 38, 50 S. W. 1071.

A court of civil appeals, in construing a judgment of another court of civil appeals, will presume, in the absence of clear expression to the contrary, that such other court holds the same view of the law on which the judgment is based as that held by the construing court. Adoue v. Wettermark, 28 C. A. 593, 68 S. W. 553.

Writ of error held not subject to dismissal because the issues were res judicata by a former appeal. Williams v. Wiley, 96 T. 148, 71 S. W. 12.

An order of the court of civil appeals commanding respondents to refrain from further disobedience of a temporary injunction, etc., held not to continue in force until the determination of a writ of error from a judgment affirming a judgment dissolving the temporary injunction. Riggins v. Thompson, 96 T. 154, 71 S. W. 14.

The force of a decision of an intermediate appellate court is destroyed by a holding of the supreme court that the questions passed upon were not involved in the case. Ex parte Conley (Cr. App.) 75 S. W. 301.

Where judgments are distinct, and only one of them is appealed from, a reversal of that judgment does not affect the judgment not appealed from. M. H. Lauchheimer & Sons v. Coop, 99 T. 386, 90 S. W. 1098.

The refusal of the supreme court to grant a writ of error to review a decision of the court of civil appeals raises the decision to the dignity of final authority. Gray v. Eleazer, 43 C. A. 417, 94 S. W. 911.

The district court held entitled to enter of record as its judgment the judgment of the court of civil appeals without notice to the party against whom the judgment was rendered by the court of civil appeals. Henry v. Red Water Lumber Co., 46 C. A. 179, 102 S. W. 749.

The decision of the court of civil appeals for a district, rendered on appeal, is binding on the court of civil appeals for another district on a subsequent appeal. Carlisle v. Gibbs, 57 C. A. 592, 123 S. W. 216.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals held a final judgment, disposing of the issues pending in the cause. Hermann v. Allen, 103 T. 382, 128 S. W. 115.

A court of civil appeals decision is overruled by a later conflicting supreme court decision. Rabb v. La Feria Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals, affirmed by the supreme court, held not determinative of rights subsequently accruing under different conditions. Hutchinson v. Patching, 103 T. 497, 129 S. W. 603, 131 S. W. 400.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals on an appeal is no more effective as against persons not parties to the suit than is a judgment of the district court. Harper v. Martindale (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 754.

It is not improper for the court of civil appeals to cite a decision of that court as a precedent, though a writ of error on such decision is pending and undetermined in the supreme court. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Riser (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1188.

Former judgment of the court of civil appeals with reference to the location of a tract of land held conclusive of the same question decided in that case as against those claiming under one of the parties thereto in a subsequent proceeding. Noland v. Weems (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1031.

A decision of the court of civil appeals, not in accord with the decision of the supreme court, is not authoritative. Beckham v. Scott (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 80.

A decision of the court of civil appeals of one judicial district, rendered on appeal, will be accepted by the court of civil appeals of another district on a subsequent appeal. Tinsley v. Bottom (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1053.

—— Finality of judgment.—See Arts. 1590 and 1591.

Collateral attack.—Judgment by the court of civil appeals held not subject to collateral attack. Sanger Bros. v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, 99 T. 565, 91 S. W. 1083.

Art. 1627. [1028] Judgment on affirmance or rendition, etc.; damages adjudged, when; finality.—Whenever the courts of civil appeals, on the trial of cases brought from an inferior court, shall affirm the judgment or decree of such inferior court, or when said courts shall proceed to render such judgment or decree as should have been rendered by the court below and such judgment shall be for the same or a greater amount, or of the same nature, as rendered in the court below, said courts shall render judgment against the appellant or plaintiff in error and his sureties on the appeal bond, a copy of which shall always accompany the transcript of the record; and said courts of civil appeals shall in their discretion include in their said judgment or decree such damages, not exceeding ten per cent on the amount of the original judgment, as the court may deem proper; and the judgment or decree of said courts rendered as contemplated in this article shall be final. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 25, sec. 37, Id.]

Disposition of cause in general.—See notes under Art. 1626.

Judgment against sureties.—Where, upon the face of the record, a judgment may be rendered against the sureties upon an appeal or writ of error bond, such judgment must be rendered by the appellate court, and not by the court a quo. Burck v. Burroughs, 64 T. 445.

On affirmance of a judgment the court has power to enter a judgment against the sureties on the appeal bond; and under such judgment execution would properly issue from the trial court against all persons made liable by the judgment. Blair v. Sanborn, 82 T. 686, 18 S. W. 159.

When a judgment is not rendered against the sureties in the appeal bond in the appellate court in case of an affirmance, an action may be brought against the sureties on the bond. Trent v. Rhomberg, 66 T. 249, 18 S. W. 510. But such judgment cannot be rendered by the court a quo, except in a direct action on the bond. Burck v. Burroughs, 64 T. 445; Blair v. Sanborn, 82 T. 686, 18 S. W. 159.

Where the judgment appealed from was a personal judgment against defendants, and also for foreclosure of a lien, and the court of civil appeals affirmed the former but reversed as to the latter, it was correct to render judgment against the sureties in the appeal bond. Russell v. Deutschman (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1169.

On writ of error from a judgment against husband and wife held not proper to affirm the judgment as against him and the sureties on the error bond. Wandelohr v. Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 413.

An appeal by plaintiff should not be dismissed because a necessary party defendant was not cited to appear and did not voluntarily appear, but the judgment for defendant should only be reversed and the cause remanded. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Hereford v. Southwestern Engineering & Construction Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 680.

Execution for costs.—There is no authority under the above article, or under articles 1633, 1646, or 1647, for the clerk of the court of civil appeals, where the judgment of the trial court is affirmed by the court of civil appeals, to issue an execution for costs due as transcript fees. Henson v. Byrne, 91 T. 625, 45 S. W. 382.

Art. 1628. [1024] No reversal for want of form.—There shall be no reversal on appeal or writ of error, nor shall the same be dismissed for want of form, provided sufficient matter or substance be contained in the record to enable the court to decide the cause upon its merits. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 25, sec. 29.]

Where the judgment appealed from is without evidence to support it, plaintiff is in no position to move for affirmance, with damages for delay. Sabine Land & Improvement Co. v. Perry (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 327.

Defendant's motion to set aside a default judgment for newly discovered evidence held not so wholly without merit as to justify an affirmance on appeal, with damages for delay. Fitzgerald v. Compton, 28 C. A. 202, 67 S. W. 131.

An appeal held not taken for delay. Blackwell v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 97 T. 445, 79 S. W. 518; Nichols v. Paine, 52 C. A. 87, 113 S. W. 972; Sowers v. Yeoman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1153.

Where a judgment for plaintiffs on a note was superseded without necessity pending an appeal to settle questions between defendant and intervener, plaintiff on affirmance was entitled to 10 per cent. damages on their judgment for delay. Watzlavzick v. D. & A. Oppenheimer, 38 C. A. 306, 85 S. W. 855.

Where there is no just cause for an appeal, and it is taken for delay only, appellee's motion to affirm the judgment, together with 10 per cent. damages thereon, will be sustained. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Hadley & Alvoid, 38 C. A. 599, 86 S. W. 932.

Where plaintiff in error filed no assignments and did not apply for the transcript, submitted by defendant in error on a suggestion of delay under rule 43 (67 S. W. xvii) of the courts of civil appeals, which record showed no fundamental error, held, that the judgment would be affirmed with 10 per cent. damages. Westmoreland v. Westmoreland (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 442.

Where appellee had not appeared in any manner when appellant had the appeal dismissed so that none of appellee's rights were prejudiced thereby, that appellee intended at some time to ask the statutory damages for delay in prosecution was not ground for reinstatement of the case to assess such damages. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Kinder, 46 C. A. 522, 121 S. W. 569.

Damages for suing out a writ of error for delay only may awarded on motion to affirm a judgment on certificate, provided the record is brought up. Granberry v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 508.

Where a judgment by default conformed to the pleadings and the evidence, and there was no irregularity in the proceedings, the suing out of a writ of error to review the judgment, and the filing of a supersedeas bond suspending its execution, no assignments of error being filed and no steps taken to prepare a transcript for the court on appeal, were solely for delay, so that defendant in error was entitled to an affirmance of the judgment, with 10 per cent. damages, as authorized by this article. Id.

Where the suing out of a writ of error without probable ground, and the filing of a supersedeas bond suspending the execution of the judgment sought to be reviewed, were for delay only, the filing by defendant in error of a transcript, as authorized by rule 95 of the district and county courts (102 Tex. xlix, 67 S. W. xxvii), instead of taking a different proceeding to secure a more prompt enforcement of the judgment, did not defeat his right to recover the damages provided by this article. Id.

Where a judgment on notes was entered by default and there was no irregularity in the proceedings, the suing out of a writ of error to review the judgment, and the filing of a supersedeas bond suspending its execution, without assignments of error being filed or any steps taken to prepare a transcript on appeal until after motion therefor, solely for delay, entitle defendant in error to an affirmance with 10 per cent. damages under this article. Granberry v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 490.

In an action on vendor's lien notes, defendant, nearly a year after the service of citation, filed an answer asking that others be made parties on the ground that they claimed some interest in the property. Exceptions being sustained to this plea, no exceptions were taken thereto, and, after judgment for plaintiff and appeal taken, no statement of facts was sent up with the record, nor was there anything in the record to indicate that defendants had any defense, and they filed no briefs. Held, that the appeal was taken for delay requiring an affirmance with damages under this article. Adams v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 499.

Statement of what is necessary to hold an appeal to have been for delay, subjecting appellant to damages. Texas Furniture & Trading Co. v. Melott (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 541.

Where plaintiff recovered judgment for excess charges for freight, and defendant appealed, held, that the appeal was taken for delay, and 10 per cent. damages will be added to the judgment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. J. H. Nations Meat & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 833.

Where the plaintiff, who prevailed below, suggested that a writ of error was prosecuted only for delay, and asked an affirmance, with damages, the appellate court must look into the record to determine whether any grounds for appeal are presented, though no statement of facts or bill of exceptions appears in the record. Bates v. Hill (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 288.

Where an appellant presented no errors for review, and the record showed that the judgment was properly rendered against him, 10 per cent. damages for delay will be given upon affirmance on appeal. J. Calisher Dry Goods Co. v. Bloch (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 683.

Where the defeated party gave notice of appeal on the date of the rendition of the judgment, but never filed an appeal bond, and a little over two months later filed his petition in error, together with a supersedeas bond, but did not procure the issuance of a citation until nearly three months thereafter, and the record contained no assignments of error or fundamental errors, and the transcript was not accompanied by a statement of facts, the appeal was prosecuted for delay; and defendant, submitting the record on a suggestion of delay, under court rule 43 (142 S. W. xiv), was entitled to an affirmance of the judgment, with damages for the delay. Dodson v. Bolard, 150 S. W. 317.

The circumstances indicating the writ of error was sued out for delay alone, plaintiff in error not having filed a transcript, though the time therefor has elapsed, and not having filed a brief or made any effort to show error, the judgment will, on motion of defendant in error and transcript filed by him, be affirmed, with 10 per cent. damages for delay. Simmang v. Smith (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 494.

Where there was no merit in appellant's defense, and the assignments of error were trivial, the appellee was entitled to an affirmance, with 10 per cent. damages. G. M. & J. W. Magill v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 184.

Art. 1630. [1024] Remittitur.—If, in any judgment rendered in the district or county court, there shall be an excess of damages rendered, and before the plaintiff has entered a release of the same in such court in the manner provided by law, such judgment shall be removed to the courts of civil appeals; it shall be lawful for the party in whose favor such excess of damages has been rendered to make such release in the courts of civil appeals in the same manner as such release is required to be made in the district or county court; and, upon such release being filed in the said court, after revising said judgment, said courts of civil appeals shall proceed to give such judgment as the court below ought to have given if the release had been filed therein. [Id.]

Remission of part of recovery—In general.—See, also, notes under Art. 1631.

Where a judgment was reversed on the ground that the judgment was erroneous as to a part of the claim, on a remittitur of that sum the judgment of reversal was set aside and a judgment was rendered in favor of the appellee for the remainder. Railway Co. v. Trawick, 80 T. 270, 15 S. W. 568, 18 S. W. 948.

See the opinion for case in which a remittitur of part of the damages allowed was entered in the appellate court and the judgment reformed and affirmed accordingly. Railway Co. v. Turner, 1 C. A. 625, 20 S. W. 1008.

Verdict for $7,500 for personal injuries. On appeal the judgment below was reversed on the ground of the improper admission of the opinion of plaintiff as to his expenses being $750 or $800. On motion for rehearing in court of civil appeals the appellee offered to remit $800, and asked judgment for the balance. Held, that as the testimony to the amount of expenses occasioned by the injuries may have impressed the jury as to the extent of the injuries, and thus have increased the general verdict, such remittitur could not be allowed to cure the error of admitting the illegal testimony. Railway Co. v. Wesch, 85 T. 594, 22 S. W. 957.

The appellate court will reform and affirm a judgment erroneous in amount on the filing of a remittitur of the excess. Halbert v. Paddleford (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1092.

Judgment erroneous only in awarding exemplary damages will be affirmed if they are remitted. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Blucher (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1022.

Where improper damages are allowed, the error may be cured by remitting the amount claimed therefor. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Pereira (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 767.

Held, that error in a charge respecting the elements of damage could not be cured by a remittitur. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bird (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 756.

The fact that a verdict in an action for personal injuries is originally excessive is no ground for reversal, where by a remittitur it is reduced to a reasonable amount. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 672.

A judgment will not be set aside on the ground that the verdict was slightly excessive, when a remittitur has been filed in the lower court. Bomar v. Powers (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 142.

In fixing amount of remittitur, the appellate court will name the damage that would have been assessed if no prejudice had existed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 693.

Error in denying a change of venue on the ground of prejudice can be cured by remittitur of the excess in the verdict, where prejudice on part of jury only enters into the amount awarded. Id.

Error in allowing reasonable expenses incurred for physician's services in an action against a railroad for injuries, there being no evidence as to value of such services, cannot be cured by remittitur, so as to prevent a reversal and new trial. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 844.

Where the judgment appealed from is for too large a sum, the error may be cured by a remittitur of the excess. Huff v. Riley, 26 C. A. 101, 64 S. W. 387.

In an action for injuries, error in allowing the jury to find the reasonable value of the plaintiff's services for the time lost, without limiting it to the amount claimed in the petition, held curable by remittitur. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pawkett, 28 C. A. 583, 68 S. W. 323.

Error in permitting a recovery for medical expenses, in the absence of evidence as to their reasonableness, in an action for personal injuries, may be obviated by a remittitur. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. McCarty, 40 C. A. 364, 89 S. W. 805.

Error in permitting a recovery for certain item, in action for injury to land, could be cured by remittitur. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Seale (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 997.

An error in submitting certain expenditures made by plaintiff to the jury held one that could be cured by remittitur. Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims, 42 C. A. 442, 94 S. W. 365.

Where, in an action for damages, plaintiff is given judgment for damages for which defendant is liable and also for those for which it is not liable, the error may be cured by a remittitur. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Barr, 44 C. A. 571, 99 S. W. 437.

Held, that a remittitur applying in general terms to the whole verdict may be considered on appeal to apply to only the amount recovered on the second count of the complaint, where no complaint was made to the recovery on the first count, and that, in reversing the judgment for an erroneous charge affecting only the second count, the judgment as to the first count may be affirmed. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Jeff Chaison Townsite Co., 48 C. A. 555, 107 S. W. 609.

Where an error committed on the trial of a case can affect only the amount of recovery, the judgment will be affirmed on a proper remittitur. Seal v. Holcomb, 48 C. A. 330, 107 S. W. 916.

Error in including a certain item in the judgment held curable by remittitur. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Long, 52 C. A. 42, 113 S. W. 316.

The error in a judgment because excessive may be cured by a remittitur of the excess. City of Ft. Worth v. Williams, 55 C. A. 289, 119 S. W. 137.

A charge erroneously allowing a recovery for expenditures for medicines held cured by remittitur of the amount claimed in the petition for such expenditures. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Brigance (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 919.

Notwithstanding reversible error in admitting evidence as to the mother's expectation of support in a death action by her, the widow and the minor children of decedent held, that the judgment for the other plaintiffs will be affirmed upon remission of the amount recovered by the mother. International & G. N. R. Co. v. White, 103 T. 567, 131 S. W. 811.

A judgment reversed because of error in an instruction applicable to special damages will be affirmed on plaintiff's remitting such damages. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Keel Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 837.

The error in a charge in an action for personal injuries held not cured by a remittitur. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Waldrop (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 315.

The error in the amount of a judgment does not require a reversal, where it can be cured by a remittitur. Johnson v. Oswald (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1164.

Where, in a personal injury action, recovery for medicines is erroneously allowed, a remittitur of the amount recovered cures the error. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett, 155 S. W. 678.

—— Power to direct remission.—See, also, Art. 1631.

The court, on appeal from a judgment against a carrier for damages to live stock, held authorized to reform the judgment and render judgment for a specified sum on the shipper remitting the excess. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 738.

The court on appeal from an excessive judgment will reduce it to the lowest estimate of damages shown by the evidence, and, on the failure of the successful party to accept it, the court will reverse the judgment and remand the cause. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cobb & McCrory (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 63.

—— Voluntary remission.—Where, on appeal, plaintiffs indicated a willingness to remit, judgment was affirmed on remittitur. Barnes v. Darby, 18 C. A. 468, 44 S. W. 1029.

Where a remitter is made reducing an excessive verdict, so that the judgment is not excessive, the judgment will not be set aside solely because of the excessiveness of the verdict. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 413, 67 S. W. 446.

A remittitur of part of the judgment can be allowed in the court of civil appeals. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Herbert, 48 C. A. 95, 106 S. W. 422.

A cause held not to be reversed for the allowance of a recovery in excess of that pleaded, where plaintiff offers to remit the excess. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Graffeo, 53 C. A. 569, 118 S. W. 873.

Where recovery against appellant is reduced on appeal, if appellant so requests, the judgment should be affirmed for the proper amount. Tatum v. Kincannon, 54 C. A. 633, 119 S. W. 113.

Plaintiff in a personal injury case held entitled to an affirmance on appeal on condition of a remission of $9 of his recovery to which he was admittedly not entitled. Freeman v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1194.

Where defendant in his brief offers to remit excess damages awarded, there is no necessity for a reversal. Old River Rice Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 154.

—— Amount ascertainable.—An error in instructing that the jury may consider the expenses of nursing, medical attendance, etc., where there was no evidence of their reasonable value, cannot be cured by a remittitur, where the allegation of such expenses is general, and does not state the amount, and the verdict rendered was also general Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bellew, 22 C. A. 264, 54 S. W. 1079.

A mistake in a verdict, the amount of which was exactly ascertainable, held proper to be cured by a remittitur. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Partlow, 30 C. A. 599, 71 S. W. 584.

Where a verdict in a personal injury case was not itemized, and it was impossible to tell what sum had been given for medical attention, a remittitur held not to cure an erroneous instruction not limiting the recovery for medical attention to the sum asked in the petition. Houston Electric Co. v. Green, 48 C. A. 242, 106 S. W. 463.

Where the exact amount improperly allowed by the jury in assessing damages is shown by the verdict, the error may be cured by a remittitur. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Allen (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 923.

Where the court erroneously allowed a party an item of damages, which item is separate, the item may be remitted, and the error cured. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 922.

Error in an instruction in an action for breach of marriage promise in authorizing double recovery on account of plaintiff's seduction held not to require a reversal, where the damages awarded for the seduction were segregated from the other damages; remittitur curing the error. Huggins v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 390.

In an action by a servant for personal injuries, where the jury were instructed that they might allow damages for a prospective injury for which plaintiff was not entitled to recover the damages being inseparable, a general verdict for plaintiff must be reversed, and cannot be cured by remittitur. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

Where the damages awarded under a proper instruction are excessive, but the evidence does not indicate the amount of the excessiveness, the court, on appeal, cannot affirm the judgment on condition that appellee will remit a specified amount of the damages. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Doke (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1174.

—— Interest, costs or attorney's fees.—The allowance of excessive attorney's fees held not ground for reversal, but only for deduction from judgment. Trabue v. Wade & Miller (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 616.

That the judgment in an action on notes adjudged too high a rate of interest is not reversible error, where the excess is remitted. McCaghren v. Balch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 680.

—— Recovery in excess of amount claimed.—Where the judgment is in excess of plaintiff's demand, it will be reversed, unless remitted to the amount claimed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 336.

The court, on appeal from a judgment awarding a sum in excess of the amount which the successful party was entitled to, held authorized to render judgment for the proper sum on the party remitting the excess. Brown Grain Co. v. Tuggle (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 821.

Art. 1631. [1029a] Suggestion of remittitur.—In all civil cases, now pending, or that may hereafter be appealed to any court of civil appeals of this state, and such court shall be of the opinion that the verdict and judgment of the trial court is excessive, and for that reason only, said cause should be reversed, then it shall be the duty of such court of civil appeals to indicate to the party in whose favor such judgment was rendered, or his attorneys of record, the amount of the excess of such verdict and judgment; and said court shall, at the same time, indicate to such party, or his attorney, within what time he may file a remittitur of such excess; and, if such remittitur shall be so filed, then the court shall reform and affirm such judgment in accordance therewith; if not filed as indicated, then to be reversed. [Acts 1893, p. 89.]

Constitutionality.—The above article is not repugnant to article 1, section 15 of the constitution. T. & N. O. R. Co. v. Syfan, 91 T. 562, 44 S. W. 1064.

Construed.—This article does not abrogate the rule which holds that a verdict will not be disturbed as excessive unless it appears that it was the result of passion or prejudice. Prior to the adoption of this article it was the rule in Texas to reverse a case when a verdict was found to be excessive in amount, and this article was enacted to give the court of appeals authority to suggest a remittitur and in case it was made to affirm the judgment. Railroad Co. v. Hynes, 21 C. A. 34, 50 S. W. 624.

The court of civil appeals can, when a verdict is declared excessive, and for that reason only should be reversed, indicate what sum should be remitted, and if the remittitur is made, affirm the judgment. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 694.

The power of the appellate court in cutting down verdicts is confined to those cases where there is some indication of prejudice or passion, on the part of the jury. ($20,000 for personal injuries was allowed in this case.) Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 397.

Where error is based solely on ground of excessive amount of judgment, and a remittitur is filed in the appellate court it is the exercise of a wise judicial discretion to reform and affirm the judgment, instead of remanding. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Herbert, 48 C. A. 95, 106 S. W. 422.

Court of civil appeals can require a remittitur of part of judgment considered by it as excessive as a condition for affirming. Rice v. Reese (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 504.

Where the judgment in a personal injury action should not be reversed except on the ground that it is excessive, the appellate court must, as required by this article, indicate the amount of the excess and direct a reversal of the judgment, unless plaintiff, within a specified time, will remit the excess. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Swann (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1164.

Under this article authorizing the court of civil appeals to require the remission of so much of a recovery as it deems excessive as a condition of refusing to reverse, a similar action of the trial court as a condition of denying a new trial is not error. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gehring (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 754.

Since, in an action for damages for humiliation of a passenger by the alleged misconduct of a conductor, the law furnishes no standard by which the amount of damages can be exactly measured, the court of civil appeals, on determining that a verdict was excessive, would not render final judgment for a reduced amount, as authorized by this article, but would remand the case for a new trial, in case a suggested remittitur was not made. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 508.

Remittitur in general.—See, also, Art. 1630 and notes under that article.

The court will order a remittitur, where amount of item erroneously included in the verdict is ascertainable. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burrough (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 403.

The court can require a remittitur of excessive damages as a condition to his overruling a motion for a new trial. Ft. W. & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Linthicum, 33 C. A. 375, 77 S. W. 40.

On appeal, held that the judgment would be affirmed on condition that plaintiff remit certain damages erroneously awarded. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Foster (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 450.

Instruction not to find for greater sum than asked for in petition held not ground for reversal in view of statute authorizing court to require remittitur of excessive verdicts. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bates (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 738.

It is only where, upon the most favorable view of the testimony on behalf of the party recovering, the verdict seems unreasonably large, that the court on appeal will require a reduction. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Still, 45 C. A. 169, 100 S. W. 176.

A verdict for $12,000 for a brakeman's death held not so excessive as to authorize the appellate court to require a further remittitur. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Wallis, 47 C. A. 120, 104 S. W. 418.

Where on a writ of error from a default judgment against a foreign insurance company for the amount of a policy together with damages and an attorney's fee the only error claimed was that the judgment was excessive because of such damages and fee which plaintiff remitted in the Court of Civil Appeals, the judgment will be reformed and affirmed under this article. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Herbert, 48 C. A. 95, 106 S. W. 421.

An excessive verdict rendered after trial without error will be corrected by the court ordering a proper remittitur. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Marshall, 57 C. A. 538, 122 S. W. 946.

On holding judgment for full amount claimed erroneous, judgment modified on condition that appellee remit part of claim, otherwise reversed and remanded. Harroll v. McDuffie (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1149.

Where the damages awarded are excessive, but the evidence does not indicate the amount, the court cannot affirm the judgment on condition that appellee will remit a specified amount. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Doke (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1174.

Art. 1632. [1029b] Refusal to remit not subject to comment on subsequent trial.—Whenever any court of civil appeals shall indicate that a verdict is excessive, as provided in the preceding article, and no remittitur shall be filed, as provided in said article, no evidence shall be allowed nor allusion made, in any subsequent trial, of the action of such court of civil appeals in reference to the amount of excess of such verdict. [Id.]

Art. 1633. [1029] Mandate issued when.—If no writ of error be sued out, or motion for rehearing be filed, within thirty days after the conclusion or decision of the court has been entered in any court of civil appeals, the clerk of the court shall, upon application of either party and the payment of all costs, issue a mandate upon said judgment. [Id.]

When mandate will issue.—The clerk of a court of civil appeals is not required to deliver a mandate until the costs of appeal are paid. Storrie v. Marshall, 11 C. A. 156, 32 S. W. 334. See art. 1634.

Where a case was reversed on appeal, a mandate for a new trial, applied for six years later, was properly granted; there being no statute limiting the time within which a mandate must be applied for. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Norris, 25 C. A. 43, 60 S. W. 982.

The clerk of a court of civil appeals is required to wait 30 days before issuing a mandate, and then upon payment of all costs he is required to issue same. There is no difference between a judgment by agreement in the court of appeals, and any other judgment. Ex parte Gill, 48 Cr. R. 517, 89 S. W. 273.

See Art. 1635.

Art. 1634. [1036] No mandate to issue until costs paid.—On the rendition of any final judgment or decree in the court of civil appeals, the clerk of said court shall not issue and deliver the mandate of the court, nor certify the proceedings to the lower court, until all the costs accruing in the case in the court of civil appeals shall have been paid, subject, however, to the provisions of the next succeeding article. [Acts 1897, p. 18.]

Art. 1635. [1036] Affidavit of inability to pay or secure costs.—If the party against whom the costs are adjudged shall make affidavit of his inability to pay the same or give security therefor, he may apply to the court of civil appeals in which the case is pending for an order to require the clerk to issue the mandate or to certify the proceedings, as the case may be; which motion shall be granted by said court, unless the clerk or a party to the record shall controvert the truth of such affidavit and satisfy the court that such motion should not be granted. [Acts 1897, p. 18.]

For limitation upon time for taking out mandates in cases of reversal and remanding, in supreme court and courts of civil appeals, see Art. 1559.

Inability to pay costs.—Defeated appellee's showing of inability to pay costs held not sufficient to entitle her to an order requiring the clerk to issue a mandate without costs. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 28 C. A. 92, 66 S. W. 588, 67 S. W. 788.

A pauper's oath in support of a motion for a mandate without costs held to have been shown to be false by a subsequent affidavit. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Pledger (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 470.

Art.
1636. Conclusions of law and fact to be filed, when.
1637. Reason for judgment to be stated, when.
1638. Supplemental findings, motion for refusal assignable as error.
1639. Court shall decide all issues of fact or law, and announce conclusions.
1640. Supreme court shall return record for supplemental conclusions, when.

Article 1636. [1039] Conclusions of fact and law to be filed, when.—In all cases hereafter decided by the courts of civil appeals, in which the supreme court has jurisdiction of an application for writ of error, it shall be the duty of the court of civil appeals, within thirty days after the decision of the case, to make and file a conclusion of fact and law upon each material point assigned as error in that court. The evidence need not be stated, except when necessary to determine upon the correctness of some ruling of the court. [Acts 1901, p. 121.]

Construction and application.—The supreme court is bound by the facts found by the court of civil appeals, at least when the evidence is conflicting, and have no authority to go behind the action of that court. Railway Co. v. Echols, 87 T. 339, 27 S. W. 60, 28 S. W. 517.

When there are no findings of the court in the record, nor any request therefor by appellant, the presumption will be in favor of the judgment. City of Denison v. Foster (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 1052.

It is not necessary to file conclusions of facts in cases which are reversed and remanded for another trial. Sturgis Nat. Bank v. Smith, 30 S. W. 678, 9 C. A. 540.

The statute requiring the court to file conclusions of the facts and law of the case does not require a recital or summary of the evidence, or of every fact proved, but only to state the conclusions on the issues of fact. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 163.

The court is not required to give a detailed statement of the evidence. Manchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Simmons, 12 C. A. 607, 35 S. W. 722.

When no conclusions of law and fact have been filed, an application for a writ of error will not be considered. Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co. v. Bank, 90 T. 76, 37 S. W. 311; Burnett v. Powell, 86 T. 382, 24 S. W. 788, 25 S. W. 17.

The court of civil appeals will not reverse and remand a cause merely on agreement of counsel for both parties that this may be done. If the court were to do this it could give no reason for its action except the agreement, which is not such a reason as the statute contemplates. Higgins v. Matlock, Miller & Dycus (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 571.

This article as amended by the act of 1905 only requires the court of civil appeals to decide all issues presented to them by proper assignments of error, whether of law or of fact, and announce their conclusions in writing. Walker v. Dickey, 44 C. A. 110, 98 S. W. 664.

The authority of the supreme court to send a case back to the court of civil appeals is confined to issues which have been properly assigned, and when no assignment in the court of civil appeals raises the issue about which the judges of the court of civil appeals disagreed. Hence the case cannot be referred back, but the writ of error must be dismissed. Schneider v. Wetz, 100 T. 417, 100 S. W. 135.

This article is intended to apply only to cases in which a writ of error will lie to the supreme court. It does not repeal article 1637 expressly, and the two statutes are not inconsistent. Tucker & Co. v. Freiberg & Kahn, 46 C. A. 160, 101 S. W. 838.

A finding that a deed conveyed to the grantee all the grantor's right, title, and interest in a league of land, including the land in controversy, did not offend against the statute requiring conclusions of fact and of law to be separate. Merriman v. Blalack, 57 C. A. 270, 122 S. W. 403.

The court may pass upon the questions presented by the assignments of error without filing the order of the assignments or discussing the several propositions in detail. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Peveto (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 279.

Conclusions of fact and law—In general.—See, also, notes under Art. 1639.

A statement in the opinion of the court of civil appeals that there is testimony sustaining its finding upon a controlling issue is treated as a conclusion of fact. Meade v. Land Co., 85 T. 513, 22 S. W. 514.

The court of civil appeals, in sustaining a verdict, need not find facts other than those necessary to support the same. Rice v. Ward (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 348.

Where the appellate court has final jurisdiction, it is not required to find conclusions of fact. Lutcher v. Stoddard (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 608.

Where the court of civil appeals is the court of last resort in a certain case, it would write no opinion on affirmance, in the absence of a good reason assigned. Needham v. Hickey (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 433.

The evidence on which the court of civil appeals bases its finding that there is no evidence on an issue need not be set out as a part of the finding. Masterson v. Mansfield, 25 C. A. 262, 61 S. W. 505.

The findings of fact, which it is the duty of the court of civil appeals to make, cover only conclusions from the evidence, and not the evidence itself. Maney v. Eyres, 33 C. A. 497, 77 S. W. 428, 969.

The court of civil appeals is not required to file the testimony on any given point, but only its conclusions as to what facts have been established. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cloyd (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 43.

Refusal of court of civil appeals to file conclusions of fact held proper under the evidence. Nowlin v. Hall. 97 T. 441, 79 S. W. 806.

The conclusions of fact, which it is the duty of the court of appeals to file in a proper case, mean conclusions on the issuable facts, made by the pleading and evidence. Id.

Written opinion held not to be filed in a fact case of which the court of civil appeals has final jurisdiction, and judgment in which is affirmed. Delaune v. Beaumont Irr. Co., 38 C. A. 225, 85 S. W. 438.

Under the facts the court of civil appeals held not required to file conclusion of fact and of law. Markus v. Thompson, 51 C. A. 239, 111 S. W. 1074.

The court of civil appeals is not required by the statute to render written opinions in affirmed cases which cannot be taken to the supreme court by writ of error. Wright v. Hooker, 55 C. A. 47, 118 S. W. 765.

Where the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals is final, and it affirms the judgment of the court below, a written opinion need not be filed. Roberts v. Arlington Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 159.

The court of civil appeals need not set out the testimony tending to support its findings. Wisegarver v. Yinger (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1190.

Art. 1637. [1039] Reason for judgment to be stated, when.—In cases where the judgment of the trial court shall be reversed and the cause remanded, the court of civil appeals shall state its reason for the judgment. [Id.]

Art. 1638. Supplemental findings, motion for; refusal assignable as error.—If either party to a case, hereafter decided by a court of civil appeals, shall be of the opinion that the findings of fact are insufficient upon any material issue assigned in that court as error, such party may, in his motion for rehearing, specify the point upon which there is no finding of fact, or upon which the finding made by the court is insufficient, and ask the court of civil appeals to make and file conclusions of fact upon the points indicated in the motion. If that court shall refuse to make such finding, or if the finding made be insufficient, such action may be assigned as error in the application to the supreme court for a writ of error. [Id.]

Findings.—Where suit was brought to establish a note as a claim against a decedent's estate, and on appeal to the court of civil appeals judgment of the district court in favor of plaintiffs, for the amount of the note, interest, and attorney's fees, was affirmed, on motion for rehearing, the appellee's request that the court file conclusions of fact and law would be granted. George v. Ryon (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 138.

Where a motion for additional conclusions of fact consists of a statement of the evidence, and of evidence offered and rejected, the motion should be overruled. Texas Tram & Lumber Co. v. Gwin, 29 C. A. 1, 67 S. W. 892, 68 S. W. 721.

The court on appeal is not required as requested by a motion for specific findings of fact to detail the evidence supporting such findings. McGill v. Castleberry (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 662.

Where the jury, in a brakeman's action for personal injuries, made no specific finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence, but returned a general verdict in favor of plaintiff, comprehending a finding on contributory negligence, which was an issue in the case, the court of civil appeals, on request, is authorized to make a finding that he was not guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 604.

Art. 1639. Court shall decide all issues of fact or law, and announce conclusions.—It shall be the duty of the courts of civil appeals to decide all issues presented to them by proper assignments of error by either party in all causes now pending, or which may hereafter be pending before them, whether such issues be of fact or of law, and announce in writing their conclusions so found. [Acts 1905, p. 71.]

1. Scope of review in general.—The appellate court is not required to consider an issue nowhere raised in the pleadings, although both the verdict and judgment below declared affirmatively upon such issue. Robinson v. Moore, 1 C. A. 93, 20 S. W. 994.

The court of civil appeals can set aside a finding of fact of the trial court. Burgess v. Western Union Tel. Co., 92 T. 125, 46 S. W. 794, 71 Am. St. Rep. 833.

Where the answers of the jury to special issues are conflicting, and the court of appeals decides against appellant on the issues involved therein, it will not attempt to reconcile such answers. Kirkpatrick v. Tarlton, 29 C. A. 276, 69 S. W. 179.

The court of civil appeals is not required to make a finding of fact based on testimony consisting of written instruments. Rountree v. Thompson, 30 C. A. 595, 71 S. W. 574, 72 S. W. 69.

Where the chain of title, in trespass to try title, is set out in the statement of facts, the court will not make a finding of fact as to the sufficiency of the deeds to pass title. Id.

In trespass to try title, the court of civil appeals will not make a finding of fact that a deed in the chain of title embraces the land sued for. Id.

Under the statute the appellate court on remanding a cause held required to pass on the questions which may become useful to a future disposition of the case. Worcester v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 339.

On appeal from the appointment of a joint receiver for one of two corporations in a consolidated suit held that the consolidation would not be reviewed. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

On appeal from a judgment sustaining a demurrer to an application for probate, the status of the application respecting another suit cannot be determined where the application contained nothing respecting the other matter. Lindemann v. Dobossy (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 111.

On appeal from a judgment sustaining a demurrer to an application for probate, questions involving the proper construction of the instrument may not be considered, they properly arising after probate. Id.

Where the evidence is not such as to show a fact as a matter of law, the court on appeal will not make a finding thereon in the absence of any finding by the trial court. Edwards v. Gates (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 585.

On an appeal from an order sustaining defendant's plea of privilege to be sued in another county after vacating a judgment against him taken on service by publication, a ruling as to the insufficiency of the service by publication which was not relied upon in that part of plaintiff's brief relating to the order sustaining the plea of privilege will not be considered on appeal. Wolf v. Sahm, 55 C. A. 564, 120 S. W. 1114, 121 S. W. 561.

The court of civil appeals held authorized, on request, to make a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 604.

In an action on an insurance policy, where the court failed to make a finding of fault on the issue as to whether insured's wife was entitled to the proceeds of the policy, though making other particular findings, the appellate court can neither imply such finding nor make it itself. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

The court on appeal from a judgment entered on a directed verdict for defendant will only consider the question as to whether under any view of the evidence plaintiff is entitled to recover. Hogan v. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1166.

A plaintiff, who did not appeal from an order sustaining defendant's plea of privilege to be sued in another county, and transferring the cause, may not, on appeal from a final judgment on the merits, question the action of the court in sustaining the plea of privilege. Water & Light Co. of El Campo v. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 259.

The mere fact of rendition of a judgment on a petition does not establish the truth of every fact stated in the petition, and the court on appeal will not find as a finding of fact the truth of the allegations of the petition. Fant v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 515.

2. —— Matters considered in determining question.—The testimony in the statement of facts disclosing the date of the filing of the original petition in an action cannot be looked to in aid of the overruling of special exceptions to the amended petition relying on the defense of limitations. Moss v. Slack (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1063.

Incompetent testimony received without objection cannot form the basis of findings of facts in an appellate court. Henry v. Phillips, 105 T. 459, 151 S. W. 533.

The court on appeal, in determining whether instructions were probably confusing, must consider the evidence. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 707.

The court on appeal, to determine whether a charge complained of was erroneous, must determine what issues involved were necessary to be passed on to enable the trial court to render a proper judgment. Rosenthal v. Sun Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 513.

3. —— Questions considered.—The court on appeal is not required to consider assignments of error to the admission of testimony on reaching a controlling decision on another branch of the case. El Campo Ice, Light & Water Co. v. Texas Machinery & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 338.

The court on appeal held warranted in refusing to consider an assignment of error in an action for breach of a contract to supply water for irrigation, upon a decision on another ground. Biggs v. Maulding (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 681.

Sufficiency of the evidence to sustain a judgment appealed from will not be reviewed where a new trial is granted for errors at the trial. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1068.

The trial court's construction of a deed is not binding on appeal, since it is a conclusion of law rather than a finding of fact. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

A finding that a conveyance was a bona fide sale of property and not a mere security held a finding of fact, or on a mixed question of law and fact, and not a conclusion of law, so as to be reviewable. Rider v. Radford (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1181.

Where a judgment is wholly void for want of jurisdiction, the trial judge being disqualified, the appellate court cannot pass on any proposition save the nullity of the judgment. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 182.

Where the judgment must be reversed and remanded for new trial on other grounds, the question whether the recovery was excessive will not be considered. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

4. —— Theory and grounds of decision of lower court.—A ruling dismissing a petition will not be reversed because the reason given therefor is unsustainable, where the ruling is proper on other grounds. Kruegel v. Cobb (Tex. Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 723.

Where the question on appeal involved the correctness of the action of the trial court in giving a peremptory instruction, questions involving the correctness of the filed conclusions of law and fact held not reviewable. Crosby v. Di Palma (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 321.

Where the trial court properly denied a motion for continuance, its action will be upheld, even though based on an improper reason. Rudolph v. Price (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1037.

An assignment of error upon the dismissal of an action will be overruled where the petition failed to state a cause of action, since that is a fundamental error that the appellate court must consider. Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

The action of the trial court, when correct, will not be reversed because based on improper reason. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fife (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1181.

If a general demurrer was improperly sustained, the judgment should be reversed regardless of whether the court erred in sustaining certain special exceptions. Texas Builders' Supply Co. v. Beaumont Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 770.

In an action for damages to property of an abutting owner, where the jury found that there was not ample room in the street for vehicles and sidewalks affording all necessary ingress and egress, a contention assuming the contrary would not be considered. City of Houston v. Merkel (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 385.

Where a verdict for defendant was properly directed, the judgment will not be reversed, although the reason assigned by the trial court for such direction was unsound. Steddum v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 273.

Where the conclusion of law on which the trial judge rendered judgment for defendant was that plaintiff had not made out her case from the evidence, when plaintiff had in fact made out a prima facie case, the judgment cannot be sustained on appeal on the theory that the trial judge determined that defendant's evidence rebutted plaintiff's prima facie case. Joy v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 357.

A judgment clearly right should be sustained on appeal, regardless of the grounds assigned by the trial judge. Newton v. Easterwood (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 646.

5. Facts undisputed.—Where forms of receipts, orders, decrees, and testimony are fully set forth in the record, about which no question of conflict arose, the court of appeals is not required to set forth findings on such matters. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 65 S. W. 899.

The court of civil appeals will not make findings of facts concerning written instruments contained in the statement of facts, for such instruments speak for themselves. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 343.

Additional findings of fact by court of civil appeals held not to be made where there is no dispute in the record as to the facts. State v. Galveston, H. & H. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 469; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. State, Id.; St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Same, Id.; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Same, Id; Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Same, Id.; Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Same, Id.; Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Chicago, R. I. & G. Co. v. Same, Id.; State v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., Id.; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State, Id.; Texas Midland R. Co. v. Same, Id.

Where there is no conflict in the evidence, the appellate court may supplement the findings of fact made at the trial. State v. Downman (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 787.

Where the facts are undisputed, the supreme court on writ of error to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals will not send the case back on the ground that the court of civil appeals failed to announce conclusions of fact, as required by this article. Foard County v. Sandifer, 105 T. 420, 151 S. W. 523.

6. Issues determined on prior appeal.—Questions decided on a former appeal in the same case will not be reconsidered. Mexican Cent. Ry. Co. v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 372.

The decisions of the court of appeals are not conclusive on the rights of the parties on a subsequent appeal of the same case. Mitchell v. Western Union Tel. Co., 23 C. A. 445, 56 S. W. 439.

Questions presented on appeal, which have been considered and determined on a former appeal in the same cause, will not be considered. Sisk v. Joyce (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 50.

Where, in a suit for partition, the decree was reversed on appeal, and the cause remanded for further accounting, such opinion precluded a re-examination of questions decided on such appeal. Hanrick v. Hanrick (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 795.

Where on a former appeal appellant obtained a reversal because a certain charge was not given, he cannot on the second appeal object because the charge was given at the second trial. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fitzpatrick (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 355.

The decision of a case on a former appeal is decisive of the questions then in controversy between the parties on a subsequent appeal. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1106.

A case held not subject to be reopened for purpose of hearing any testimony changing its state on a former appeal. Olschewske v. Summerville, 43 C. A. 361, 95 S. W. 1.

A ruling on a former appeal held law of the case. Whittaker v. Thayer, 48 C. A. 508, 110 S. W. 787.

The decision of the court of civil appeals is the law of the case on a subsequent appeal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Redus, 55 C. A. 205, 118 S. W. 208.

The opinion of the court of civil appeals, approved by the supreme court, held to be the law of the case on a subsequent appeal. Walker v. Thornton (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 166.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment holding a certain party entitled to the fund held conclusive on that question on a subsequent appeal by another party. McFaddin v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 634.

The question as to whether the court will reconsider on a second appeal a former decision of the same case must always be determined according to the particular circumstances of the case. Speer v. Allen (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 231.

A decision of the court of civil appeals followed by action of supreme court denying a writ of error held conclusive on the question decided in a subsequent appeal involving such question. Wolf v. Sahm (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 733.

On a subsequent trial after reversal, the decision of the appellate court is the law of the case. Baldwin v. G. M. Davidson & Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 716.

The decision of the court on appeal conclusively settles the questions determined thereby, and they will not be considered on a subsequent appeal. Campbell v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1180.

The law of the case on a former appeal must be followed on a subsequent appeal to the court of civil appeals unless reversed or modified by the supreme court. Moore v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 195.

The determination of questions raised on a former appeal is the law of the case on a subsequent appeal. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 657.

A determination on a prior appeal that the porter of a carrier had authority to receive an incompetent person as a passenger was the law of the case on retrial. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Sears (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1003.

A decision of the court of appeals on a prior appeal is the law of the case in the trial court and on a subsequent appeal to the same court. Freeman v. Huffman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 367.

7. Issues not passed on by court or jury.—The court of civil appeals cannot determine a question of fact not passed on by the lower court, when there is a conflict in the testimony. Magill v. Brown, 20 C. A. 662, 50 S. W. 642.

Where a question raised by the evidence was not submitted to the jury, the appellate court cannot consider such evidence on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 255.

Issues not passed upon by the jury should not be considered on appeal. Pierce v. Texas Rice Development Co., 52 C. A. 205, 114 S. W. 857.

8. Review of facts—Power and duty to review.—Thomas v. Morrison, 92 T. 329, 48 S. W. 500; M. A. Cooper & Co. v. Sawyer, 31 C. A. 620, 73 S. W. 992; Parker v. Cook, 57 C. A. 234, 122 S. W. 419; Beaumont Traction Co. v. Happ, 57 C. A. 427, 122 S. W. 610; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Poloma (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1149; Amarillo Nat. Bank v. Harrington (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 231; Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1148.

9. —— Extent of review in general.—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 989; House v. Easley, 147 S. W. 303.

10. —— Number of witnesses.—Harrell v. Broome (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1077.

11. —— Credibility of witnesses.—Stitzle v. Evans, 74 T. 596, 12 S. W. 326; El Paso St. R. Co. v. Talamantes (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 228; Wright v. Solomon, 46 S. W. 58; Belknap v. Groover, 56 S. W. 249; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 60 S. W. 438; Mora v. Thomas, 86 S. W. 632; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Skates, 87 S. W. 1166; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Scarborough, 104 S. W. 408; Morris v. Morris, 47 C. A. 244, 105 S. W. 242; Warren, C. & P. Ry. Co. v. Shine (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 518; West v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas, 56 C. A. 341, 120 S. W. 228; Williams v. Hennefield, 57 C. A. 54, 120 S. W. 567; Brady v.

Maddox (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 739; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Washington, 127 S. W. 1126; Huber v. Hill, 130 S. W. 219; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ellis, 134 S. W. 246; Boyles v. Byers, 138 S. Art. 1640. Supreme court shall return record for supplemental conclusions, when.—If the court of civil appeals has failed to file a conclusion of fact upon any material issue in the case properly assigned in that court, and in the supreme court, and, by reason of such failure, the supreme court is not able to pass upon such assignment, it shall be the duty of said supreme court to return the record to the court of civil appeals, from which it came, with directions to make and file a conclusion of fact upon each of such issues, and to return the same with the record to the supreme court. [Id.]

REHEARING

Art.
1641. Motion for rehearing, requisites and notice of.
1642. Notice, how given.
1643. Service of notice and return.
1644. When motion determined.

Article 1641. [1030] Motion for rehearing; requisites and notice of.—Any party desiring a rehearing of any matter determined by said courts may, within fifteen days after the date of entry of the judgment or decision of the courts, or the filing of the findings of fact and conclusions of law, file with the clerk of said courts his motion in writing for a rehearing thereof, in which motion the ground relied upon for the rehearing shall be distinctly specified, and the name and residence of the counsel of the opposing party if known, and if not known then the name and residence of the opposing party as shown in the record; provided, that, should the court adjourn within less than fifteen days after the rendition of the judgment, the motion may be made at such time and in such manner as may be prescribed by rules to be made by the supreme court. [Id.]

Rehearing in general.—The court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction to entertain a second motion for rehearing where the first motion has been denied and a writ of error granted by the supreme court. Homes v. City of Henrietta (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 871.

The court of civil appeals has power during the term to grant a second rehearing. Id.

The overruling of a motion to reverse and render judgment in favor of plaintiffs in error, filed in court of civil appeals, is a matter determined by said court, and a motion for a rehearing thereof can be properly made. Nabours v. McCord (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 661.

A decision of the court of civil appeals on a motion for judgment is the subject of a motion for a rehearing, under this article. Id.

The court of civil appeals, after having denied an application for a rehearing, has power to reopen the case and grant an amended application for rehearing during the term. Gregory v. Webb, 40 C. A. 360, 89 S. W. 1109.

The filing of a motion for rehearing in a court of civil appeals is not required by statute to give the supreme court jurisdiction on writ of error. The object of the rule of the supreme court requiring such motion to be filed, is to give the court of civil appeals an opportunity to correct any error it may have made in disposing of the case. Nixon v. Malone, 100 T. 250, 98 S. W. 384, 385, 99 S. W. 403.

Where, on a motion for rehearing on appeal, no excuse was given or shown why the entire record was not brought up on the original hearing so as to show that the appellate court had jurisdiction, the motion would be denied. Bonner v. Legg & Tyndall, 46 C. A. 176, 101 S. W. 839.

A motion for rehearing presenting an appeal bond and showing the origin of the suit will be denied where reasons for their prior omission are not given. Maley v. Mundy, 47 C. A. 630, 107 S. W. 905.

Motion to retax costs after disposition of an appeal denied. Raley v. Magendie (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 1198.

Under supreme court rule 1 (67 S. W. xi), a second motion for rehearing held proper, and even necessary, to enable appellant to apply for a writ of error. Roth v. Murray, 105 T. 6, 141 S. W. 515.

Under court of civil appeals rule 22 (142 S. W. xii), requiring the parties before submission to see that the record is properly prepared, one may not for purpose of rehearing have considered a certified copy of a judgment not shown by the transcript of the record on the original hearing. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094.

Under court rule 22 (142 S. W. xii), relating to transcripts on appeal, a defendant in error on rehearing may not maintain a motion to amend or strike out the transcript. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corporation v. Lacy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1170.

Grounds for rehearing and requisites of motion.—On a motion for a rehearing it is ordinarily sufficient to point out briefly some mistake, or misconception of law or fact, as exhibited in the opinion, with such reference to the record or to authorities as will call it to the attention of the court, without a full re-argument upon all of the points. Hurt v. Evans, 49 T. 311.

A rehearing will not be granted on the ground of newly-discovered evidence. To grant it for such cause would be to exercise an original jurisdiction not contemplated by the constitution. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County, 59 T. 654.

Rehearing granted to supply omissions in the record. Railway Co. v. Cannon, 88 T. 312, 31 S. W. 498. See Telegraph Co. v. O'Keefe, 87 T. 423, 28 S. W. 945; Railway Co. v. Peery, 87 T. 597, 30 S. W. 435.

That a rule relied on and stated in the opinion as "finally settled" was not so settled is no ground for a rehearing. Dilley v. Freedman, 25 C. A. 39, 60 S. W. 448.

Though motion for rehearing is not couched in respectful terms, it will not be stricken out except where necessary to protect dignity of court. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McGown, 42 C. A. 565, 93 S. W. 710.

Failure of the clerk to send up a statement of facts which has not been discovered by counsel until after decision is no reason for rehearing. Shaw v. Schuch (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 688.

Under amended rule 22 (135 S. W. 369), held, that a rehearing would not be granted to correct the record by showing the entry of judgment as to another party. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. McMurray (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 60.

Where it appears that a judgment is against the merits, all doubts will be resolved in favor of a rehearing. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 317.

Objections not previously urged.—Appellant, acquiescing on hearing on appeal in the construction of a will on its face, cannot assign as error on rehearing that court below struck out allegations from his pleadings showing extraneous facts which would vary construction. McCreary v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 682.

Where there was no assignment complaining that charges to the jury were contradictory, the question cannot be raised on motion for rehearing. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cuniffe (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 692.

An heir, claiming certain sums under decree in a decedent's estate, cannot charge the executors with items not referred to in the briefs and first urged on motion for rehearing. Kearney v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 361.

It is too late, on motion for rehearing on appeal, for a debtor to claim that the amount due is less than he admitted in his pleading. Trabue v. Wade & Miller (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 616.

Where the record on appeal to the court of civil appeals showed jurisdiction, appellee could not object for the first time on rehearing that the notice of appeal was not given in open court, and that the order denying a new trial was not made as recited. Owens v. Cage & Crow, 101 T. 286, 106 S. W. 880.

A new issue cannot be introduced on a motion for rehearing. Saxton v. Corbett (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 75.

Appellant cannot claim on motion for rehearing that he was entitled to more land than was awarded him in an action to recover land, where his brief on the original hearing did not present the question, though error was assigned on the point. Hicks v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1195.

An objection to maintaining the appeal because plaintiff's appeal bond was not made payable to one of defendants who was an "adverse party" plaintiff was jurisdictional, so that the question could be first raised on rehearing. Walter Box Co. v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 220.

Time for filing and excuse for delay.—An application for leave to file motion for rehearing after expiration of 15 days must show an excuse for not filing the motion within the time prescribed by law. Sams v. Creager, 85 T. 497, 22 S. W. 399.

If the application should show that a failure to file the motion was caused from accident, or cause other than neglect of the party affected by the judgment, the supreme court might consider the application, notwithstanding the court of civil appeals had not acted upon it. Id.

In absence of a satisfactory reason for the failure to file motion for rehearing, the rule denying the writ upon nonobservance of the law requiring such motion will be enforced. Id.

That counsel are busy is no ground for extending the time. Kneeland v. Miles (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 486.

A motion for rehearing delivered to the clerk for filing is a pending motion, although not filed or docketed. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 163.

In the absence of a valid excuse, leave will not be granted to file a motion after the expiration of 15 days. Railway Co. v. Grigsby, 13 C. A. 639, 35 S. W. 815, 36 S. W. 496.

It is too late for a motion for rehearing to be filed more than 15 days after the decision of the court of civil appeals. McGhee v. Romatka, 92 T. 241, 47 S. W. 520.

Unless the motion for rehearing is filed within 15 days after the rendition of the opinion, it cannot be considered, but will be stricken from the docket. Carusales v. State, 47 Cr. R. 1, 82 S. W. 1038.

An application for a writ of error to the court of civil appeals will not be considered by the supreme court where no motion for rehearing was made in the court of civil appeals within the prescribed time, and no sufficient excuse was shown for failure to file such motion. Myers v. Frey, 102 T. 527, 119 S. W. 1142.

Affidavits.—Matter set up in an affidavit attached to a motion for rehearing will not be considered by the appellate court, when such matter is not part of the record of the case tried in the court below. Hall v. Reese's Heirs, 24 C. A. 221, 58 S. W. 974.

Appellant held not entitled to complain, for the first time after affirmance of judgment, that it was defective in not showing the case was tried on the agreed statement of facts. Scott v. Cox, 30 C. A. 190, 70 S. W. 802.

A special objection to the admission of evidence, raised for the first time on a motion for a rehearing, will not be considered. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 582.

On an application for rehearing, affidavits contradicting the truth of the record cannot be considered. Gregory v. Webb, 40 C. A. 360, 89 S. W. 1109.

Affidavits not filed in resistance of a motion for a new trial, nor until the making of a motion for a rehearing on appeal, could not be considered in the determination of the motion for rehearing. Holliday v. Sampson, 42 C. A. 364, 95 S. W. 643.

A motion for rehearing unsupported by affidavit will not be considered. Sanders v. Eastland Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 941.

An objection insisted on in the motion for rehearing, but not urged in the trial court, cannot be considered. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1191.

Art. 1642. [1031] Notice, how given.—Upon the filing of such motion with the clerk of said courts, he shall make a certified copy thereof and transmit the same by mail to the sheriff or any constable of the county in which the attorney or opposing party, as the case may be, is alleged in said motion to reside, together with a precept commanding him to deliver the copy of the motion to the person named in such precept. [Id.]

Art. 1643. [1032] Service of notice and return.—Upon the receipt of such precept and copy of motion by the officer, it shall be his duty to deliver the copy of the motion to the person named in said precept, if found in his county, and to return said precept to the court from which it issued, by mail, stating thereon in what manner he executed the same or that the party named in the precept is not to be found in his county, as the case may be. [Id.]

Art. 1644. [1033] When motion determined.—At any time, after five days from the return of such precept served, it shall be lawful for said courts to hear and determine motion for rehearing, and not sooner. [Id.]

CHAPTER TWELVE

EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT

Art.
1645. Writ, how tested, directed, executed and returned, and alias issued, when.
1646. Judgment enforced, how.
1647. Execution to issue, when; mandate.
1648. Appellant on reversal to recover costs of appeal.
1649. Return of execution, when.
1650. Officer failing to make return, remedy by motion.

Article 1645. [1034] Writ, how tested, directed, executed and returned; and alias issues, when.—All writs and process issuing from the courts of civil appeals shall bear the test of the chief justice or presiding judge of said court, under the seal of said court and signed by the clerk thereof, and shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of any county in the state, and shall be, by such officer, executed according to the command thereof and returned to the court from which they emanated; and, whenever such writ or process shall not be executed, the clerk of said court is hereby authorized and required to issue another like process or writ upon the application of the party suing out the former writ or process to the same or any other county. [Id.]

Art. 1646. [1035] Judgment enforced, how, when.—Upon the rendition by the courts of civil appeals of any such judgment or decree as is contemplated by article 1627, it shall not be necessary for the lower court from which the cause was removed to make any further order or decree therein; but the clerk of said lower court, on receipt of the mandate of the supreme court or courts of civil appeals, shall proceed to issue execution thereon as in other cases. [Id.]

Judgment.—When a judgment of the trial court is reversed by the court of civil appeals and judgment rendered by that court, such judgment becomes also the judgment of the trial court, and should be entered by that court upon its minutes as its judgment. Henry v. Red Water Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 750.

Execution.—See, also, notes under Art. 1647.

Where a judgment is appealed from and reformed, and the cause remanded, it is the duty of the district court clerk to issue execution for its enforcement. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

Art. 1647. [1036] Execution to issue, when; mandate.—If neither party shall pay the costs and take out the mandate within thirty days after the time when the same can be issued by law, then it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue execution for the costs accruing in his court against the party or parties against whom such costs have been adjudged, and to send such execution by mail to the proper officer for collection; but he shall retain the mandate until the costs have been paid or collected, subject, however, to the provisions of article 1635. [Acts 1897, p. 18.]

Execution.—See, also, note under Art. 1646.

Execution for costs may issue against sureties on bond, where a mandate directs them to pay costs, though proceeds of an execution sale, insufficient to pay the judgment, had been applied on such costs. Akes v. Sanford, 19 C. A. 601, 47 S. W. 671.

After a reversal, the clerk of the appellate court may, of his own motion, issue execution for costs, and issue a mandate on their payment. Ames Iron Works v. Chinn, 20 C. A. 382, 49 S. W. 665.

Art. 1648. [1029] Appellant on reversal to recover costs of appeal.—In any cause reversed by a court of civil appeals, the appellant shall be entitled to an execution against the appellee for costs occasioned by such appeal, including costs for the transcript, said costs to be taxed by the clerk of the said court. [Id.]

Art. 1649. [1037] Return of execution, when.—All executions for costs of the courts of civil appeals, as authorized by law, shall be returned by the sheriff or constable to whom they are directed within four months from the date thereof. [Id.]

Art. 1650. [1038] Officer failing to make return; remedy by motion.—In case any officer shall fail or refuse to make such return with the amount of such costs, if he has collected the same, within the time prescribed herein, or shall make a false or fraudulent return of any such execution, the clerk of said court may issue citation returnable forthwith to such officer to appear before said court and show cause, if any he can, why he has not collected and returned said costs and execution; and, failing to show cause, said court may enter judgment against such officer and the sureties on his official bond for twice the amount of said costs, together with the costs of such proceedings. [Id.]

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

Article 1651. [1013] The reporter of the supreme court shall be.—The reporter to the supreme court shall also be reporter to the courts of civil appeals; and the decisions of said courts of civil appeals shall be published and sold by the state in the same manner as is now provided by law for the publication and sale of the supreme court decisions. [Id.]

TITLE 33

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Chap.
1. Judges of the Court of Criminal Appeals.
2. Terms of the Court of Criminal Appeals.
3. Jurisdiction of the Court of Criminal Appeals.
4. Clerks of the Court of Criminal Appeals.
5. Reporter to the Court of Criminal Appeals.
6. Special Provisions Relating to the Court of Criminal Appeals.

CHAPTER ONE

JUDGES OF THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Art.
1652. Judges, qualifications, compensation, and quorum.
1653. Election and term of office.
1654. Presiding judge chosen and writs, etc., how tested.
1655. Proceedings on disqualification of.
1656. Vacancies, how filled.
1657. Terms of office — long and short terms at first election.

Article 1652. [1044] Number of judges, qualifications, compensation, and what constitutes a quorum.—The court of criminal appeals shall consist of three judges, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of two judges shall be necessary to a decision of said court; said judges shall have the same qualifications and receive the same salaries as judges of the supreme court. [Acts of 1892, S. S., p. 34.]

In general.—The question of the number of judges necessary to authorize the transaction of business by a court is, as a general rule, to be determined from the constitution or statutory provisions creating and regulating courts, and as a general rule a majority of the members of a court is a quorum. Long v. State, 59 Cr. R. 103, 127 S. W. 551, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1244.

As a rule, the death or disqualification or absence of a judge does not deprive the remaining judges of authority to hold court and transact its business, provided the remaining number is not reduced below that legally required for the transaction of legal business. Id.

In the absence of a quorum or the number required by law to hold court, a judgment rendered by the remaining judges is a nullity. Id.

Removal of judges.—See Art. 6018.

Art. 1653. [1045] Election and term of office.—The judges of said court shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state at a general election, and shall hold their offices for a term of six years. [Id.]

Art. 1654. [1046] Presiding judge chosen and writs, etc., how tested.—The judges of said court shall choose a presiding judge for said court from their number at such times as they shall think proper; and all writs and process issuing from said court shall bear test in the name of said presiding judge and the seal of the court. [Id.]

Art. 1655. [1047] Proceedings on disqualification of judge.—When said court, or any member thereof, shall be disqualified under the constitution and laws of this state to hear and determine any case or cases in said court, the same shall be certified to the governor of the state, who shall immediately commission the requisite number of persons learned in the law for the trial and determination of such cause or causes. [Id.]

Art. 1656. [1048] Vacancies, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of a judge of said court, the governor shall fill the vacancy by appointment for the unexpired term. The judges of the court of appeals who may be in office at the time when this law takes effect shall continue in office as judges of the said court of criminal appeals until the expiration of their term of office. [Id.]

Art. 1657. [1049] Terms of office, long and short terms at first election.—At the first session of said court, after the first election of judges thereof under this law, the terms of office of the said judges shall be divided into three classes, and the judges thereof shall draw for the different classes. The judge who shall draw class number one shall hold his office two years from the date of his election and until the election and qualification of his successor; the judge drawing class number two shall hold his office for four years from the date of his election and until the election and qualification of his successor; and the judge who may draw class number three shall hold his office for six years from the date of his election and until the election and qualification of his successor; and thereafter each of the judges of said court shall hold his office for six years, as provided in the constitution of this state. [Id.]

Article 1658. [1050] Terms of court, when and where held.—Said court shall hold one term each year at the city of Austin, commencing on the first Monday in October of each year, and shall continue until the last Saturday in June next succeeding; and appeals in criminal cases shall be filed with the clerk of said court at Austin upon the same conditions and same rules as now obtain. [Acts 1909, p. 51.]

CHAPTER THREE

JURISDICTION OF THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Art.
1659. Jurisdiction of the court.
1660. Writs of habeas corpus, etc., power to issue.
1661. Jurisdictional facts may be ascertained.

Article 1659. [1052] Jurisdiction of the court.—Said court shall have appellate jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of the state in all criminal cases of whatever grade, with such exceptions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. [Id.]

In general.—The court of criminal appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal from denial of mandamus to compel a county attorney to institute a prosecution. Murphy v. Summers, 54 Cr. R. 369, 112 S. W. 1070.

An appeal in a scire facias case allowed to the court of civil appeals is insufficient to confer jurisdiction on the court of criminal appeals. Thomas v. State, 56 Cr. R. 246, 119 S. W. 846.

The court of criminal appeals has only such powers as are conferred on it by the constitution and statutes. Ex parte Firmin, 60 Cr. R. 222, 131 S. W. 1116.

Conclusiveness of judgments on civil courts.—The decision of the court of criminal appeals that a city cannot enact a valid ordinance punishing offenses punishable under a general law of the state will be followed by the court of civil appeals. Robinson v. City of Galveston, 51 C. A. 292, 111 S. W. 1076.

Where the court of criminal appeals declared the local option election in certain districts void, and the state and county accepted the decision, and licenses were issued for the sale of liquor for many years, the decision is conclusive upon the civil courts. State v. Schwarz, 103 T. 119, 124 S. W. 420.

The supreme court will generally follow the decisions of the court of criminal appeals upon questions involving penal laws. State v. Savage, 105 T. 467, 151 S. W. 530.

Art. 1660. [1053] Writs of habeas corpus, etc., power to issue.—Said court and the judges thereof shall have the power to issue the writ of habeas corpus, and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, issue such writs as may be necessary to enforce its own jurisdiction. [Id.]

In general.—The court of criminal appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal in a habeas corpus proceeding for the possession of a child. Ex parte Calvin, 40 Cr. R. 84, 48 S. W. 518.

Evidence on appeal.—The evidence will not be discussed on appeal, where one under indictment for murder applied for habeas corpus and after hearing was remanded without bail. Ex parte Lawrence (Cr. App.) 137 S. W. 697.

Art. 1661. [1054] Jurisdictional facts may be ascertained.—Said court shall have power, upon affidavit or otherwise, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the exercise of its jurisdiction. [Id.]

CHAPTER FOUR

CLERKS OF THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Art.
1662. Terms of office.
1663. Shall qualify and give bond.
1664. Duties and liabilities.
1665. Deputies, how appointed and to whom responsible.
1666. Seal of court.

Article 1662. [1055] Terms of office.—Said court shall appoint a clerk for said court, who shall hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the court for good cause, entered of record in the minutes of said court. [Id.]

Removal of clerk.—See Art. 6062.

Art. 1663. [1056] Shall qualify and give bond.—Said clerk shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall give the same bond, to be approved by the court of criminal appeals, as is now, or may hereafter be, required of the clerk of the supreme court. [Id.]

Art. 1664. [1057] Duties and liabilities.—Said clerk shall perform as clerk of the court of criminal appeals the like duties as are now, or may hereafter be, required by law of the clerk of the supreme court, and shall be subject to the same liabilities as are now, or may hereafter be, prescribed for the clerk of the supreme court. [Id.]

Art. 1665. [1058] Deputies, how appointed, and to whom responsible.—Said clerk may appoint deputies, who shall perform all the duties of said clerk and who shall be responsible to said clerk for the faithful discharge of the duties of their office. [Id.]

Art. 1666. [1059] Seal of court.—It shall be the duty of the court of criminal appeals to procure a seal for said court, said seal to have a star with five points with the words, "Court of Criminal Appeals of Texas," engraved thereon. [Id.]

CHAPTER FIVE

Art.
1667. Reporter, removal of, compensation and duties; reports, etc., how published.
1668. Clerk to furnish reporter with opinions, records, etc.

Article 1667. [1060] Reporter, removal of, compensation and duties, and reports, how published, etc.—Said court is hereby authorized and required to appoint a reporter of such of its decisions as may be required by law to be published. Said reporter may be removed by the court for inefficiency or neglect of duty. Said reporter shall receive an annual salary of three thousand dollars, payable monthly upon the certificate of the presiding judge of said court. The volume of the decisions of said court shall be styled, Texas Criminal Reports, and shall be numbered in continuation of the present number of the court of appeals reports. Said volumes shall be printed and disposed of as is now, or may hereafter be, provided by law for the printing and distribution of the reports of the supreme court. [Id.]

Art. 1668. [1061] Clerk to furnish reporter with opinions, records, etc.—As soon as the opinions are recorded, the originals, together with the records and papers in each case to be reported, shall be delivered to the reporter by the clerks of said court, who shall take the reporter's receipt for the same, but the reporter shall return to said clerks the said opinions, records and papers when he shall have finished using them. [Id.]

CHAPTER SIX

Art.
1669. Proceedings when jurisdiction of lower court has been changed pending appeal.
Art.
1670. Cost to be taxed, how, on disposition of case, in the court of criminal appeals.

Article 1669. [1062] Proceedings when jurisdiction of lower court has been changed, pending appeal.—When the court from which an appeal has been, or may hereafter be, taken has been or shall be deprived of jurisdiction over any case pending such an appeal, and when such case shall have been, or may hereafter be, determined by the court of criminal appeals, the mandate of said court of criminal appeals shall be directed to the court to which jurisdiction has been, or may hereafter be, given over such case. [Id.]

Art. 1670. [1063] Costs to be taxed, how, on disposition of case in the court of criminal appeals.—In every state case of a less grade than felony in which an appeal is taken to the court of criminal appeals, and the judgment of the court below is affirmed against the defendant, all fees due the clerk of said court in said case shall be adjudged against the defendant and his sureties on his recognizance, for which execution shall issue as in other cases of appeal to the court of criminal appeals. Should such case be reversed by the court of criminal appeals and a new trial be had in the court below and the defendant convicted, then the costs aforesaid in favor of the clerk of the court of criminal appeals shall be taxed by the court below against the defendant; and a certified copy of said bill of costs by the clerk of the court of criminal appeals, filed in the court below, shall be sufficient to require said costs to be taxed and collected as other costs against the defendant in the court below. [Id.]

COURTS—DISTRICT

Chap.
1. The Judge of the District Court.
2. The Clerk of the District Court.
3. The Powers and Jurisdiction of the District Court and of the Judge Thereof.
4. The Terms of the District Court.
5. Miscellaneous Provisions Relating to the District Court.

CHAPTER ONE

THE JUDGE OF THE DISTRICT COURT

Art.
1671. Election, qualifications and residence.
1672. Term of office.
1673. Oath of office.
1674. Vacancy in office, how filled.
1675. Disqualification, causes of.
1676. Disqualification; exchange of district judges; or special judge agreed upon, when.
1677. Record of election or appointment of.
1678. Special judge elected.
1679. Electoral body, how constituted.
1680. Mode of conducting election.
1681. Failure of clerk or sheriff to act.
1682. Record of election.
1683. Effect of such record.
1684. Other similar elections.

Article 1671. [1064] [1086] District judge, election of; qualification; residence.—There shall be elected for each judicial district by the qualified voters thereof at a general election for members of the legislature, a judge, who shall be at least twenty-five years of age, shall be a citizen of the United States, shall have been a practicing attorney or a judge of a court in this state for the period of four years, and shall have resided in the district in which he is elected for two years next before his election, and shall reside in his district during his term of office. [Const. art. 5, sec. 7.]

Cited, Jowell v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 886.

Removal of judges.—See Art. 6018.

Salaries of judges.—See Art. 7059.

Validity of acts.—A party cannot object that a de facto judge tried the cause in the lower court. Hamilton v. State, 40 Cr. R. 464, 51 S. W. 217.

A statute creating a new judicial district, and appointing the judge of another district the judge thereof, held to have made him the lawful judge of the new district. Maroney v. State, 45 Cr. R. 524, 78 S. W. 696.

Liability for acts.—Judge is not liable for malicious and erroneous commitment for contempt, when he has general jurisdiction of contempts. Taylor v. Goodrich, 25 C. A. 109, 40 S. W. 515.

A judicial officer is not civilly liable for his judicial acts, whether negligently, willfully, or maliciously committed. Kruegel v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 723.

The acts of judges in deciding questions arising in civil cases before them, and in rendering judgment for or against the parties, being within their judicial functions, they are not liable in damages therefor. Kruegel v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 343.

A judicial officer is not civilly liable for his judicial acts whether such acts are right or wrong. Kruegel v. Jones (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 835.

Art. 1672. [1065] [1087] Term of office.—The judge of the district court shall hold his office for the term of four years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Id. and art. 16, sec. 17.]

Art. 1673. [1066] [1088] Oath of office.—The judge of the district court, and each special judge hereinafter provided for, shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution.

See Const. art. 16, sec. 1.

Art. 1674. [1067] [1089] Vacancy in office, how filled.—Any vacancy in the office of a judge of the district court shall be filled by the governor until the next succeeding general election. [Id. art. 5, sec. 28. R. S. 1879, 1089.]

Art. 1675. [1068] [1090] Disqualification, causes of.—No judge of the district court shall sit in any cause wherein he may be interested, or where he shall have been of counsel, or where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity within the third degree. [Id. art. 5, sec. 11.]

Interest in subject-matter—In general.—A mere interest in the question involved in a pending suit, there being no actual interest in the subject-matter of litigation, does not disqualify a judge. McFaddin v. Preston, 54 T. 403; Taylor v. Williams, 26 T. 583; Dicks v. Austin College, 1 App. C. C. § 1068.

A judge in possession of the land in controversy cannot try a case between other parties claiming title thereto. Casey v. Kinsey, 23 S. W. 818, 5 C. A. 3.

This article disqualifies a district judge interested in the "cause," not one "interested in the question to be determined," as would disqualify the judges of the supreme court and courts of civil appeals (under articles 1516 and 1584). New Odorless Sewerage Co. v. Wisdom, 30 C. A. 224, 70 S. W. 355.

Special judge presiding over administration of decedent's estate held disqualified by reason of claim against the estate, so as to avoid a sale of realty. City of El Paso v. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 799.

Where a judicial officer has not so direct an interest in the case or matter as that the result must necessarily affect him to his personal or pecuniary loss or gain—then he is not disqualified to sit. City of Oak Cliff v. State, 97 T. 391, 79 S. W. 1068.

The answer and cross-bill in a suit to restrain the enforcement of a judgment held not to state any cause of action against the judge who issued the temporary injunction, but obviously set up merely for the purpose of disqualifying him, and therefore not to interest him in the suit so as to disqualify him. Kruegel v. Bolanz, 100 T. 572, 102 S. W. 110.

—— Legality of his former acts.—On criminal prosecution, a remark of the trial judge held not to have disqualified him from trying the case. Bismarck v. State, 45 Cr. R. 54, 73 S. W. 965.

A district judge was not disqualified to pass upon a motion to quash the panel of jurors because it involved the legality of his own act in selecting a jury. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

—— Interest as taxpayer.—A judge owning taxable property in a city against which suit is brought to annul the corporation and remove its officers is disqualified to try the cause. State v. City of Cisco (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 244. Citing Wetzel v. State, 5 C. A. 17, 23 S. W. 825; Austin v. Nalle, 22 S. W. 668, 960, 85 T. 520; Casey v. Kinsey, 23 S. W. 815, 5 C. A. 3.

A judge, a taxpayer of a city, held not disqualified in an action against the city to recover on its bonds. Thornburgh v. City of Tyler, 16 C. A. 439, 43 S. W. 1054.

A district judge is not disqualified to try a suit for taxes against a citizen of the town or city in which he resides. His interest was only in the "question" and not in the "cause." Nalle v. City of Austin, 41 C. A. 423, 93 S. W. 143.

—— Interest as policyholder.—A judge holding a policy in a mutual life insurance company held disqualified to preside at the trial of an action to recover on a policy of insurance issued by that company. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Sides, 46 C. A. 246, 101 S. W. 1163.

A judge holding a benefit certificate in a mutual benefit society held disqualified to preside in an action against the society. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Hale, 56 C. A. 447, 120 S. W. 539.

Interest as former counsel.—That the presiding judge had heretofore, as counsel, given an opinion in regard to the validity of the title to the land in controversy is not a ground of disqualification. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Ryan, 44 T. 426; Lee v. Heuman, 10 C. A. 666, 32 S. W. 93. Nor is it a ground of disqualification that he has acted as an attorney for a part owner of the land in litigation, but who was not interested in the pending suit. Glasscock v. Hughes, 55 T. 461. But if he has at any time been consulted by and given advice to one of the litigants as to the matters in dispute, although without fee, he is disqualified. Slaven v. Wheeler, 58 T. 23; Newcome v. Light, 58 T. 141, 44 Am. Rep. 604.

A judge is not disqualified by reason of his name having been inadvertently signed to a pleading. Railway Co. v. Mackney, 83 T. 410, 18 S. W. 949.

Where judge who tried defendant for murder had acted as counsel for defendant, he was disqualified to act. Graham v. State, 43 Cr. R. 110, 63 S. W. 558.

A judge is not disqualified because he had proposed to assist the prosecution as counsel for a certain fee, which was never arranged or agreed to be paid. Baines v. State, 43 Cr. R. 490, 66 S. W. 847.

Judge held not disqualified to try murder case by having acted as assistant district attorney in presenting case against accomplice to grand jury. Locklin v. State (Cr. App.) 75 S. W. 305.

A judge held not disqualified to hear a cause. Blackwell v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 97 T. 445, 79 S. W. 518, affirming (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 454.

The acting county attorney of a county is not disqualified from acting as special judge in the trial of a case, pursuant to an appointment by the governor. McCammant v. Webb (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 693.

Judge held not disqualified to appoint a receiver of a railroad company, because at some time prior thereto he had been consulted by persons, who had subscribed money to aid in its construction, concerning their liability on their subscriptions. Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 741.

Relationship to party—In general.—A surety on a claimant's bond is such a party to the suit for the trial of the right of property that his relationship to the judge will disqualify him from trying the suit. Hodde v. Susan, 58 T. 389.

This provision applies although the person so related is administrator only. Dennard v. Jordan, 14 C. A. 398, 37 S. W. 876.

The judge's relationship to the garnishee does not disqualify him in the main action. Patterson v. Seeton, 19 C. A. 430, 47 S. W. 732.

A judge who is the father-in-law of a daughter of an intestate is disqualified from hearing an action by the widow suing in her capacity as survivor and representative of the community estate on a note executed to the intestate in his lifetime, under Const. art. 5, § 11, prohibiting a judge from sitting in any case where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity, etc., though the daughter is not named as a party. Duncan v. Herder, 57 C. A. 542, 122 S. W. 904.

—— To attorney on contingent fee.—An attorney, having a contingent fee, is not a party to the suit whose relationship disqualifies the judge. Winston v. Masterson, 27 S. W. 768, 87 T. 200, affirming (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 691.

A judgment rendered by a state judge does not deprive the defeated party of his property without due process of law, in violation of fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution, merely because the judge was the father-in-law of the attorney of the successful party, who was entitled to receive a part of the judgment for his fees. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mitcham, 57 C. A. 134, 121 S. W. 871.

—— To wife of party.—A judge who is cousin to the wife of a party to a suit is disqualified. T. T. R. R. Co. v. Overton, 1 App. C. C. § 533.

In a suit against the husband of a sister to the wife of a district judge, if the defendant represents a right claimed by himself and wife in community, and if the judgment to be rendered against the husband would affect the community estate of himself and wife even to the extent of costs, then the wife must be considered, within the meaning of article 5, section 11, of the constitution, a party to the suit, and the district judge is disqualified from trying the cause. Schultze v. McLeary, 73 T. 92, 11 S. W. 924.

A district judge who was a second cousin of plaintiff's wife was disqualified to try the case, so that orders made therein were coram non judice. Ex parte West, 60 Cr. R. 485, 132 S. W. 339.

—— To stockholders of corporation.—Appointment of a receiver for corporation by a judge related to some of the stockholders who were not parties, held valid. Ex parte Tinsley, 37 Cr. R. 517, 40 S. W. 306, 66 Am. St. Rep. 818.

Objections and waiver.—The incompetency of the judge cannot be waived by consent of parties. Chambers v. Hodges, 23 T. 104.

An objection to the district judge because disqualified to try the case, made for the first time in the supreme court and sought to be supported by affidavit, will not be sustained, the record showing no objection, or disqualification of the trial judge. Austin v. Nalle, 85 T. 522, 22 S. W. 668, 960.

The disqualification of a judge is a matter affecting the jurisdiction and power of the court to act, and cannot be waived. Lee v. British-American Mortgage Co., 51 C. A. 272, 115 S. W. 320.

Where a judge is disqualified by law, he cannot sit in the case, even with the consent of the parties. Summerlin v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 890.

Parties who consent to the appointment of a special judge are not thereby estopped from denying his jurisdiction. Id.

Acts of disqualified judge.—The acts of judges subject to any constitutional disqualification are void. Chambers v. Hodges, 23 T. 104; Newcome v. Light, 58 T. 141, 44 Am. Rep. 604; Templeton v. Giddings (Sup.) 12 S. W. 851; Andrews v. Beck, 23 T. 455; Burks v. Bennett, 62 T. 277; Gains v. Barr, 60 T. 676; Jouett v. Gunn, 13 C. A. 84, 35 S. W. 194; Nona Mills Co. v. Wingate, 51 C. A. 609, 113 S. W. 182; Lee v. British-American Mortgage Co., 51 C. A. 272, 115 S. W. 320.

Where disqualified judge tries a criminal case, proceedings are a nullity, and the judgment is void. Graham v. State, 43 Cr. R. 110, 63 S. W. 558.

That the regular district judge appeared to some extent as one of the counsel for the successful party held no ground for the reversal of a correct judgment. McAllen v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 760.

Though the judge who granted the order for issuance of a writ of certiorari and approved the bond was disqualified by interest, and therefore the order and bond were void, yet another and qualified judge having presided when motion to dismiss the proceeding was made, and he having made an order allowing the filing of a new bond, which he approved, and made an order adopting and continuing in force the writ theretofore issued, this was in effect an approval of the application for the writ and an authorization of the writ, and relieved the proceeding of objection on account of the disqualification of the first judge. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 185.

Determination of qualification.—An issue as to the disqualification of a judge to sit as such in a cause pending in his court should be tried and determined by him, and the facts in evidence on the issue should be incorporated in the record on appeal. The statement of the judge should be under oath. His statement appended to a bill of exceptions will not be regarded. Slaven v. Wheeler, 58 T. 23.

The disqualification, if contested, must be shown by testimony upon a proper issue arising on the suggestion. Slaven v. Wheeler, 58 T. 26; Henderson v. Lindley, 75 T. 188, 12 S. W. 979; Wright v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 468.

The judge cannot make an order dismissing the suit as to a party whose relationship disqualifies him, and then adjudicate upon the rights of the remaining parties. Gains v. Barr, 60 T. 676; Garrett v. Gaines, 6 T. 435.

Art. 1676. [1069] Disqualification; exchange of district judges; or special judge agreed upon, when.—Whenever any case or cases, civil or criminal, are pending, in which the district judge is disqualified from trying the same, no change of venue shall be made necessary thereby; but the judge presiding shall immediately certify that fact to the governor, whereupon, the governor shall designate some district judge in an adjoining district to exchange and try such case or cases, and the governor shall also notify both of said judges of such order; and it shall be the duty of said judges to exchange districts for the purpose of disposing of such case or cases, and, in case of sickness or other reasons rendering it impossible to exchange, then the parties or their counsel shall have the right to select or agree upon an attorney of the court for the trial thereof. [Acts 1879, p. 1. Acts 1897, S. S. p. 39.]

Cited, Savage v. Umphres (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 291.

Validity and construction.—This and article 1677 as amended by the twenty-fifth legislature in no wise conflict with article 1678. Greer v. State (Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 1077.

This article does not conflict with article 5, section 11, of the constitution and must be complied with when the district judge is disqualified by reason of being a party to a suit pending in his court. Kruegel v. Nash (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 601, 602; Oates v. State, 56 Cr. R. 571, 121 S. W. 370; Alley v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 295.

That a suit filed in the district court of the one district was tried there by the judge of another district held of no consequence. Rabb v. Texas Loan & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 77.

If the provision of this article that "in case of sickness or other reasons rendering it impossible to exchange, then the parties or their counsel shall have the right to select or agree on an attorney of the court for the trial thereof," should be held invalid as violating Const. art. 5, § 11, guaranteeing to litigants the right to appoint a proper person to try a cause on the disqualification of the resident judge, its invalidity would not invalidate the balance of the section in so far as it provided for an exchange of judges under such circumstances. Oates v. State, 56 Cr. R. 571, 121 S. W. 370.

Under this article, articles 3050 and 5728, and Const. art. 5, § 11, which declares that district judges may hold courts for each other when expedient, a district judge of a district not embracing the county in which the contested election was held, sitting in exchange with the judge of that district, could try the case; jurisdiction being conferred on the district court and not its judge. Savage v. Umphres (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 291.

Under the mandatory provisions of the constitution and the statutes, the selection of a special judge by agreement was authorized only when the regular judge was disqualified, and where there was no such disqualification his selection and his judgment was a nullity. Summerlin v. State (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 890.

Transfer of cause.—The statute does not make the disqualification of a judge the ground for transferring a cause pending in his court to another. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1102.

Certification of disqualification.—There being no law authorizing an appeal from a refusal of a district judge to certify to the governor his disqualification, the appellate court had no jurisdiction to revise his ruling, and had no power to enforce, by writ of mandamus or otherwise, the performance of such duty. Grigsby v. Bowles, 79 T. 138, 15 S. W. 30.

Party trying the case before special judge without objection held estopped to assert that he was not agreed on. Davis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 840.

—— On second trial.—Where a judge is disqualified a special judge can be selected to try the case. When a case has been tried before a special judge, and is reversed on appeal and the special judge has moved out of the county and refuses to return and try the case, the regular judge can certify his disqualification to the governor, and he can order the regular judge and the judge of an adjoining district to exchange districts, and the latter can try the case. Sovereign Camp W. of W. v. Boehme, 44 C. A. 159, 97 S. W. 848.

Selection by parties.—In a suit by publication, the judge being disqualified, the plaintiff selected a special judge, who proceeded to render judgment by default. The selection by the plaintiff not being an appointment by the parties, there was no jurisdiction, and the judgment rendered in the cause was void. Mitchell v. Adams, 1 U. C. 117.

A judge cannot be selected by one party in the absence of the other, and his acts are void. Latimer v. Logwood (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 960.

Where under this statute a special judge was agreed upon by all of the parties except two, and it was not shown that they were parties to the agreement, and they did not appear, the special judge was without lawful authority to determine the issues affecting their rights. Bomar v. Morris (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 663.

Acts of improperly selected judge.—A member of the bar selected by the governor to try a cause without authority held not a judge de facto. Oates v. State, 56 Cr. R. 571, 121 S. W. 370.

Plea of disqualification.—Plea alleging that a special judge is disqualified to try a case held required to be proved by evidence. Hart v. State, 61 Cr. R. 509, 134 S. W. 1178.

Art. 1677. [1070] Record to be made where special judge is agreed on or appointed.—Whenever a special judge is agreed upon by the parties for the trial of any particular cause, as above provided, the clerk shall enter in the minutes of the court, as a part of the proceedings in such cause, a record showing:

1. That the judge of the court was disqualified to try the cause; and

2. That such special judge (naming him) was, by consent, agreed upon by the parties to try the cause; and

3. That the oath prescribed by law has been duly administered to such special judge. [Acts 1876, p. 141. Id.]

Sufficiency of record.—The record should show how a special judge trying a cause became such; but if the record is silent, a party who, without objection, has participated in the trial of his cause before such judge, cannot, for the first time on appeal raise the objection that his authority did not appear. Shultz v. Lempert, 55 T. 273; Brinkley v. Harkins, 48 T. 225; Hess v. Dean, 66 T. 663, 2 S. W. 727.

It is sufficient if a record of the appointment as special judge be made before the proceedings in the case are ended in the district court. Harris v. Musgrave, 72 T. 18, 9 S. W. 90.

A recital in a judgment of an appointment of special judge held sufficient. Temple Compress Co. v. De More (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 778.

Oath of office.—The administration of the oath is waived by the parties engaging in the trial of a case to a judgment. Ford v. First Nat. Bank of Cameron (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 684. And see Schultze v. McLeary, 11 S. W. 924, 73 T. 92; Railway Co. v. Rowland, 22 S. W. 134, 3 C. A. 158; Coles v. Thompson, 27 S. W. 46, 7 C. A. 666; Hall v. Jankofsky, 29 S. W. 515, 9 C. A. 504; Campbell v. McFaden, 31 S. W. 436, 9 C. A. 379.

Under this article and Code Cr. Proc. 1911, art. 620, a special judge must take the oath of office in order to justify his sitting in a case and trying it. Summerlin v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 890.

Competency and authority of special judge.—That a special district judge appointed to try a cause is a member of the legislature is no objection to his competency as a judge. Roundtree v. Gilroy, 57 T. 176.

A decree of divorce is not invalidated because rendered by a special district judge who, at the time the trial began, was the county judge of the county. Even if he be such an officer as is forbidden under the constitution to hold another office, the acceptance and discharge of the duties of another office would operate an abandonment of the office to which he had formerly qualified. Alsup v. Jordan, 69 T. 300, 6 S. W. 831, 5 Am. St. Rep. 53.

A special district judge, qualified under appointment, has authority to hear and determine not only the suit pending in which the appointment was made, but also any litigation between the same parties growing out of that suit; e. g. he can hear an injunction suit and application after the term for a new trial in the case. Harris v. Musgrave, 72 T. 18, 9 S. W. 90.

It is too late, after the trial of the case before a special judge, to raise the question of his disqualification. Such trial is in itself an agreement to submit the case to him. T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rowland, 22 S. W. 134, 3 C. A. 158.

The regularity of the appointment of a special judge cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding. Hall v. Jankofsky, 29 S. W. 515, 9 C. A. 504.

Art. 1678. [1071] [1094] Special judge, when and how elected.—Whenever, on the day appointed for a term of the district court, or at any time before the expiration of the term, or the completion of all the business of the court, the judge thereof shall be absent, or shall be unable or unwilling to hold the court, there shall thereby be no failure of the term, and no failure to proceed with the business of the court, but the practicing lawyers of such court present thereat may proceed to elect from among their number a special judge of said court, who shall proceed to hold said court and conduct the business thereof, and shall have all the power and authority of the judge of said court, during such continued absence or inability, and until the completion of any business begun before such special judge. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 140, sec. 1.]

In general.—This article is not repealed by amendment of articles 1676 and 1677 and in no wise conflicts with them because they relate to different matters. Greer v. State (Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 1077.

The legislative provision for the election of special judges is applicable to both regular and special terms. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Huff (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 249; Same v. O'Connor (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 374.

When a special term is called, and the regular judge is not present, but is holding a regular term in some other county of his district, the election of a special judge to preside at the special term is valid. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Swinney, 34 C. A. 219, 78 S. W. 547.

Where a district judge had ordered a special term, but was holding a regular term in another county at the time appointed, a special judge was properly selected for such special term. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stinson, 34 C. A. 285, 78 S. W. 986.

It is not contemplated that both the regular and special judges should hold court at the same time in the same county. Bedford v. Stone, 43 C. A. 200, 95 S. W. 1086.

Where the mode of selecting a special judge is prescribed by law, no other may be adopted. Summerlin v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 890.

Time for election.—Where a criminal case is transferred from a district to a county court by a special judge appointed for the term, under articles 483 to 487, Code of Criminal Procedure, the statute does not require that the election and qualification of the special judge should accompany the transfer as a part of the record. Schwartz v. State, 38 Cr. R. 26, 40 S. W. 976.

The judge has the whole of the first day in which to make his appearance and open court, and the attorneys in attendance can not elect a special judge on the first day of the term. They can meet on the second day and elect a special judge if the regular judge is still absent, but if he appears before they meet and opens court there is no lapse of the term. Scott v. State, 43 Cr. R. 591, 68 S. W. 178.

When the regular judge does not appear on the first day of the term, the lawyers in attendance can elect a special judge. They need not wait until the second day. If the special judge resigns during the term and the regular judge has not appeared, another special judge can be chosen to hold balance of term. Cox v. Oliver, 43 C. A. 110, 95 S. W. 598.

Where a special judge was elected by the practicing attorneys under this article which is authorized solely by Const. art. 5, § 7, empowering the legislature to provide for the holding of district court when the judge thereof is absent, disabled, or disqualified from presiding, he had no authority to issue a writ of injunction returnable to another county of the same judicial district; the effect of such statute and constitutional provision being merely to provide a substitute for the regular judge to prevent a failure of the term in a particular county, and not to clothe such substitute judge with authority beyond the court which he is selected to hold. Wynn v. R. E. Edmonson Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 310.

Under this article, and articles 1684 and 1725, held that, where a special judge was duly elected, his absence for more than three days did not adjourn the term where he directed the sheriff to open court and adjourn each day until the next day. Creed v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 240.

Art. 1679. [1072] [1095] Electoral body, how constituted.—Such election shall be by ballot, and each practicing lawyer in attendance at such court shall be entitled to participate in such election and shall be entitled to one vote; and a majority of the votes of all the practicing lawyers present and participating shall be necessary to the election of such special judge. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 140, sec. 2.]

In general.—Election of special judge by majority of attorneys voting held valid. Merrell v. State (Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 979.

Art. 1680. [1073] [1096] Mode of conducting the election.—The mode of conducting such election shall be as follows: The sheriff or constable shall make proclamation at the court house door that the election of a special judge of the court is about to be made by the practicing lawyers present thereat; the clerk shall then make a roll or list of all the practicing lawyers present; and such lawyers shall then proceed to organize and hold the election as hereinbefore provided. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 140, sec. 1.]

Art. 1681. [1074] [1097] Failure or refusal of officers to act.—Should the sheriff or constable and clerk, or either of them, fail or refuse to act, the said practicing lawyers may nevertheless proceed to organize themselves into such electoral body, and appoint a sheriff and clerk pro tempore to do the duties of such officers respectively. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 141, sec. 2.]

Art. 1682. [1075] [1098] Record of the election, etc.—It shall be the duty of the clerk to enter upon the minutes of the court a record of the election of such special judge, showing—

1. The names of all the practicing lawyers present and participating in such election.
2. The fact that the public proclamation was made at the court house door that such election was about to take place.
3. The number of ballots polled at such election and the number polled for each person, and the result of the election.
4. That the oath prescribed by law has been duly administered to the special judge. [Id.]

Art. 1683. [1076] [1099] Effect of such record.—The record of such proceedings, showing a substantial compliance with the requirements of the law in that behalf, shall be conclusive evidence of the election and qualification of such special judge. [Id.]

In general.—It will be presumed, where the transfer shows it was from the district to the county court by a special judge, that the requirements necessary to his selection were complied with. Schwartz v. State, 38 Cr. R. 26, 40 S. W. 976.

Art. 1684. [1077] [1100] Other similar elections from time to time.—Like elections may be held from time to time during the term of the court to supply the absence, failure or inability of the judge, or of any special judge, to perform the duties of the office. [Id.]

In general.—Special judge, selected to succeed another special judge, held authorized to grant a new trial in a cause tried before the latter. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Voliva, 41 C. A. 17, 91 S. W. 354.

THE CLERK OF THE DISTRICT COURT

Art.
1685. Election and term of office.
1686. Vacancy, how filled.
1687. District clerk pro tem. appointed, when.
1688. District clerk pro tem. to qualify and give bond.
1689. District clerk bond and oath.
1690. May appoint deputies.
1691. Oath and powers of deputies.
1692. Shall keep office at county seat.
1693. May administer oaths, take depositions, etc.
1694. Shall keep a record of proceedings of court, judgments, etc.
1695. Other dockets, books, etc.
1696. Shall report fines and jury fees.
1697. Shall pay over jury fees and fines.
1698. Records of suits, etc., in former district courts.
1699. Records of suits in former county courts.
1700. Books, papers, etc., custody and arrangements of.
1701. Indexes to all judgments.
1702. Shall transfer records to his successor.
1703. Single clerk for district and county courts in certain counties.
1704. When acting as district clerk to use seal of said court.

Article 1685. [1078] [1100a] Clerk, how elected; term of office.—There shall be a clerk for the district court of each county, who shall be elected at a general election for members of the legislature by the qualified voters of such county, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Const., art. 5, sec. 9; art. 16, sec. 17.]

Removal of clerk.—See Art. 6063.

Collateral attack on title.—Where a court is regularly constituted, its jurisdiction does not depend on the title of the clerk to his office, at least when attacked in a collateral proceeding. Kruegel v. Daniels, 50 C. A. 215, 109 S. W. 1108.

Art. 1686. [1079] [1101] Vacancy in office of clerk, how filled.—Whenever a vacancy may, from any cause, occur in the office of the clerk of the district court, the same shall be filled by the judge of the district court of such county; and the clerk so appointed shall give bond and qualify in the same manner as if he had been elected, and shall hold his office until the next general election, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. Where such vacancy occurs in a county having two district courts, the same shall be filled by the judges of such courts; and in such case the governor, upon the certificate of such district judges, shall order a special election to fill such vacancy. [Id. Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 233, sec. 1. Acts of 1891, p. 5.]

Art. 1687. [1080] District clerk pro tem., appointed, when.—In all cases wherein any district clerk in this state is, or shall hereafter be, a party to any pending or proposed suit, motion or proceeding in his court, the district judge in whose court the same may be pending or proposed, shall, either in term time or in vacation, on application of any person interested, or of his own motion, appoint a clerk pro tempore for the purposes of such suit, motion or proceeding. [Acts of 1887, p. 102.]

Acts of disqualified clerk.—A citation issued by a clerk who is a party to the suit is void. Lewis v. Hutchinson, 4 App. C. C. § 79, 16 S. W. 654.

A deputy clerk may take an affidavit in an attachment suit, brought by a national bank, of which the clerk was a director and vice-president. Laning v. National Bank (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 481.

Under this article, the regular clerk was disqualified to act as clerk in a proceeding to punish him for contempt; and hence his certificate to the transcript on appeal was insufficient. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 903.

Art. 1688. [1081] District clerk pro tem., to qualify and give bond.—Any person so appointed clerk shall take the oath to faithfully and impartially perform the duties of such appointment, and shall also enter into bond, payable to the state of Texas, with one or more good and sufficient sureties, in such amount as may be required by the judge, to be approved by him, and conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties under such appointment. The person so appointed shall perform all the duties required by law of the clerk in the particular suit, motion or proceeding in which he may be appointed. [Id.]

Art. 1689. [1082] [1102] Bond and oath.—Each clerk of the district court shall, before entering on the duties of his office, give bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court of the county, payable to the governor and his successor in office, in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the safe-keeping of the records and the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and shall also take and subscribe the oath of office required by the constitution, which shall be indorsed upon the bond; and the bond and oath so taken and approved shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court. A certified copy of such bond may be put in suit, in the name of the governor, for the use of the party injured, and shall not become void on the recovery of part of the penalty thereof, but may be sued on from time to time by the parties injured, until the whole amount of the penalty is recovered. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 203, sec. 20. P. D. 500.]

Cited, United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Crittenden (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 232.

Liability for acts.—Clerk of court held not civilly liable for contesting a party's affidavit in lieu of a bond for costs. Kruegel v. Jones (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 835.

A clerk was not liable on his official bond for refusal to issue an execution on a judgment where he had been enjoined from so doing. Kruegel v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 989.

Art. 1690. [1083] [1103] May appoint deputies.—The clerk of the district court, whether elected or appointed, shall have power to appoint one or more deputies by a written appointment under his hand and the seal of his court, which appointment shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court, and shall be by him recorded. [Id. p. 202, sec. 21. P. D. 501.]

Art. 1691. [1084] [1104] Oath and powers of deputies.—Such deputies shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution; they shall act in the name of their principal, and may do and perform all such official acts as may be lawfully done and performed by such clerk in person.

Power of deputy.—The powers of a deputy clerk cannot be restricted to the performance of a particular act. Thompson v. Johnson, 84 T. 548, 19 S. W. 784.

Art. 1692. [1085] [1105] Shall keep office at county seat.—The several clerks of the district courts shall keep their offices at the county seats of their respective counties, and when the clerk does not reside at such county seat he shall have a deputy, or deputies, residing there.

Art. 1693. [1086] [1106] May administer oaths and take depositions.—The several clerks of the district court shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations required in the discharge of their official duties, to take the depositions of witnesses, and generally to perform all such duties as are, or may be, imposed upon them by law. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 202, sec. 24.]

Cannot act as conveyancer.—See Art. 3909.

Judicial powers.—A judgment conferring judicial powers on a clerk of court held erroneous. Southern Oil Co. v. Wilson, 22 C. A. 534, 56 S. W. 429.

Art. 1694. [1087] [1107] Shall keep a record of proceedings, judgments and executions.—Such clerks shall also keep a fair record of all the acts done, and proceedings had, in their respective courts; they shall enter all judgments of the court, under the direction of the judge, and shall keep a record of all executions issued and the returns thereon, in record books to be kept for the purpose. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 203, sec. 24. P. D. 504.]

Clerk's record—In general.—The entries on the clerk's file docket required to be kept are judicial proceedings and their publication by a newspaper are not libelous under the libel law of 1901. Belo & Co. v. Lacy (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 217.

A clerk of a court must indorse the correct file mark on all papers filed with him. Howard v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 707.

Where the judgment record does not show certain proceedings, it will be presumed, especially after a long lapse of time, that that was done which should have been done. Maes v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 846.

—— Time for entry.—The clerk has no authority to enter a judgment upon the minutes after adjournment of the term of court. He must enter all judgments under the direction of the court. Hubbart v. Willis State Bank, 55 C. A. 504, 119 S. W. 713.

Under this article and article 1727, and district court rules 53 and 65 (67 S. W. xxiv, xxv), defining the "record proper," and providing that judgments entered on pleadings must be entered at the date when pronounced, the sustaining of special exceptions to a part of a pleading cannot be revised on appeal, where the transcript contains no judgment or record entry showing the ruling, though the bill of exceptions discloses the ruling and exceptions thereto. Daniel v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 469.

—— Entry nunc pro tunc.—Where defendant's exceptions to plaintiff's petition were sustained, with no entry dismissing the petition, the court has power later to enter final judgment in favor of plaintiff. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Winter, 93 T. 560, 57 S. W. 39.

Where there was a failure to enter a judgment during the term of its rendition, the court at a subsequent term could enter a judgment nunc pro tunc. Smith v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 143.

Where the court inadvertently failed to enter judgment in favor of a defendant in whose behalf a verdict was directed, it was authorized after appeal to enter a judgment in conformity with the verdict nunc pro tunc. El Paso & N. E. Ry. Co. v. Campbell, 45 C. A. 231, 100 S. W. 170.

The court held to possess inherent power to enter a judgment nunc pro tunc. Trotti v. Kinnear (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 326.

An entry in the judge's docket held to authorize the entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc. Id.

A delay in moving for a nunc pro tunc judgment held not to bar the granting of relief. Id.

—— Effect of failure to enter.—A judgment is not void because not entered upon the minutes in term time. Hubbart v. Willis State Bank, 55 C. A. 504, 119 S. W. 711.

The failure to correctly or fully enter a judgment upon the minutes does not annul it, but merely makes its record imperfect. Coleman v. Zapp, 105 T. 491, 151 S. W. 1040.

Art. 1695. [1088] [1108] Other dockets, etc.—They shall also keep such other dockets and books as are, or may be, required by law.

Art. 1696. [1089] [1109] Shall report fines and jury fees.—In addition to the reports required of the clerk of the district court under the several provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, it shall be his duty on the last day of each term of the court to make out a statement in writing, which shall set forth all moneys received by him for jury fees and fines, with the names of the parties from whom received, up to the date of such statement, and since his previous statement, if any such has been made; and also the name of each juror who has served at such term, the number of days he served, and the amount due him for such services; which statement shall be examined by the judge holding such court, and, if found to be correct, shall be approved and signed by him. Should the judge consider such statement erroneous, he may make such corrections therein as he may deem necessary, and shall then approve and sign the same. Such statement, when so approved and signed, shall be recorded in the minutes of the court. [Act Nov. 15, 1864, p. 7, sec. 9. P. D. 4014.]

Art. 1697. [1090] [1109a] Shall pay over jury fees and fines.—It shall be the duty of the clerk to pay over to the county treasurer all jury fees and fines received by him, to the use of the county.

Art. 1698. [1091] [1110] Records of suits, etc., in former district courts.—All records of judgments, executions, and all other papers and proceedings in suits heretofore had in the district courts of the several counties of the republic or state of Texas shall be kept in the office of the clerks of the district courts of such counties, and the same proceedings may be had thereon as if such suits had been commenced and such proceedings had in the district courts of this state as now organized. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 204, sec. 26. P. D. 506.]

Art. 1699. [1092] [1111] Records of suits, etc., in former county courts.—All records of judgments, executions, and all other papers and proceedings in suits heretofore had in the county courts of the republic of Texas prior to the first day of February, 1839, and of the county courts of the state as organized under the act entitled, "An act to organize the county courts and to define the powers and jurisdiction thereof," approved October 25, 1866, shall be kept in the office of the clerks of the district courts of such counties, and the same proceedings may be had thereon as if such suits had been commenced and such proceedings had in the district courts as now organized. [Acts May 11, 1846, p. 20, sec. 27; Aug. 8, 1870, p. 48, secs. 1 to 4.]

Art. 1700. [1093] [1112] Custody and arrangement of books, papers, etc.—The clerks of the district courts shall have the custody of all the minutes, records, books, papers and seals which now are, or may have been heretofore, or may be hereafter, deposited in their respective offices in accordance with law, and it shall be their duty carefully to attend to the arrangement and preservation of the same. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 203, sec. 22. P. D. 502.]

Art. 1701. [1094] [1113] Indexes to all judgments.—They shall also provide and keep in their respective offices, as part of the records thereof, full and complete alphabetical indexes of the names of the parties to all suits filed in their said courts; which indexes shall be kept in well-bound books, and shall state in full the names of all the parties to such suits, which shall be indexed and cross-indexed, so as to show the name of each party under the proper letter; and a reference shall be made opposite each name to the page of the minute book upon which is entered the judgment in each case. [Act June 21, 1876, p. 25, sec. 1.]

Art. 1702. [1095] [1114] Shall transfer records to his successor.—Whenever a clerk of the district court shall vacate his office, he shall transfer to his successor all the records, books and papers of the office.

Art. 1703. [1096] Single clerk for district and county courts in certain counties.—In counties having a population of less than eight thousand persons only one clerk shall be elected, who shall perform the duties of district and county clerks. He shall take the oath and give the bond required of clerks of both the district and county courts, and shall have all the powers and perform the duties of such clerks respectively. In determining the number of persons in the county under this article, the estimate shall be made on the basis of five inhabitants for every vote cast for governor in such county at the last preceding general election. [Acts of 1879, p. 47. Const. art. 5, sec. 20.]

Constitutionality.—The provision of this article for the ascertainment of population on the basis of votes cast is void. Brooke v. Dulaney, 100 T. 86, 93 S. W. 998.

Art. 1704. [1097] [1116] When acting as district clerk to use seal of said court.—When, in any county, a single clerk shall have been elected, as provided in the preceding article, he shall, in performing the duties of clerk of the district court, use the seal of said court, and authenticate his official acts as clerk of such district court.

CHAPTER THREE

THE POWERS AND JURISDICTION OF THE DISTRICT COURT AND OF THE JUDGE THEREOF

Art.
1705. Original jurisdiction.
1706. Jurisdiction in probate matters.
1707. Motions against officers.
1708. To punish contempts.
1709. May transfer probate proceedings to county court.
1710. Clerk to transmit papers, records, etc.
1711. Judgments transferred and enforced.
1712. To hear and determine all cases of legal and equitable cognizance.
1713. To grant all remedial writs.
1714. Judge may exercise all powers, etc., in vacation by consent of parties, except, etc.
1715. Judges may alternate, etc.
1716. May appoint attorney for pauper.
1717. Other powers and authority.

Article 1705. [1098] [1117] Original jurisdiction of the district court.—The district court shall have original jurisdiction in civil cases—

1. Of all suits in behalf of the state to recover penalties, forfeitures and escheats.

2. Of all cases of divorce.

3. Of all suits to recover damages for slander or defamation of character.

4. Of all suits for the trial of title to land and for the enforcement of liens thereon.

5. Of all suits for trial of right to property levied on by virtue of any writ of execution, sequestration or attachment, when the property levied on shall be equal to or exceed in value five hundred dollars; and,

6. Of all suits, complaints or pleas whatever, without regard to any distinction between law and equity, when the matter in controversy shall be valued at or amount to five hundred dollars exclusive of interest.

7. Of contested elections. [Const., art. 5, sec. 8.]

1. Jurisdiction in general.
2. Penalties, etc.
3. Title to land.
4. Liens on land—In general.
5. —— Jurisdiction after failure of lien.
6. Levy on property.
6½. Trial of right to property levied on.
7. Value in controversy—In general.
8. —— Particular actions.
9. —— Actions involving chattels.
10. —— Collection of taxes.
11. —— Void judgments and executions of justice's court.
12. —— Allegation of amount.
13. —— Pleadings reducing amount.
14. —— Recovery of less than jurisdictional amount.
15. —— Exaggerated claim.
16. —— Joining claims.
17. —— Inclusion of interest.
18. —— Inclusion of attorney's fees.
19. —— Exemplary damages.
20. —— Incidental relief.
21. —— Question for jury.

1. Jurisdiction in general.—In doubtful cases all intendments are in favor of the jurisdiction. Graham v. Roder, 5 T. 146; Tarbox v. Kennon, 3 T. 7; Sherwood v. Douthit, 6 T. 224; Marshall v. Taylor, 7 T. 235; Ellett v. Powers, 8 T. 113; Bridge v. Ballew, 11 T. 270; Gouhenant v. Anderson, 20 T. 459; Dwyer v. Bassett, 63 T. 274; Sanger v. Ker, 1 App. C. C. § 1081; Fitzpatrick v. Small, 1 App. C. C. § 1141.

The question of fraudulent allegation to confer jurisdiction must be presented by a plea. Dwyer v. Bassett, 63 T. 274; Beville v. Rush (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1022.

When a case is reversed and remanded by the appellate court because the district court had no jurisdiction thereof, the court has no power to make any order in the case other than to strike it from its docket. Leeman v. Wheeler, 66 T. 154, 18 S. W. 446.

Jurisdiction means lawful power to hear and determine the matter in controversy, and this includes the power to determine the legal results to follow from the facts pleaded and proven. Menard v. MacDonald, 52 C. A. 627, 115 S. W. 63.

The test of jurisdiction is whether the court has power to enter upon the inquiry, and not whether its determination is correct. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Lunn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 538.

Jurisdiction of the subject-matter is the power to hear and determine cases of the general class to which the particular proceedings belong. Id.

A decree incidental to the cause of action which originally gave the court jurisdiction or so closely connected with it as to render its determination necessary to a final decision of the controversy between the parties is within the jurisdiction of the court to avoid a multiplicity of suits. Beauchamp v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 333.

Where the petition is defective in not showing that the district court to which it was addressed had jurisdiction of the action, an amendment to show that fact should, even after a judgment for plaintiff has been reversed on appeal, be allowed to prevent multiplicity of suits. Smith v. Eureka Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 747.

2. Penalties, etc.—Under the act of 1891 relating to suits in behalf of the state to recover penalties, etc., the district court can enter a judgment on a peace bond for $200. State v. San Miguel, 23 S. W. 389, 4 C. A. 182.

This article conforms to the language used in the constitution, article 5, section 8, in regard to the recovery of penalties, etc. Hill County v. Atchison, 19 C. A. 664, 49 S. W. 141.

Suit on a bond given for fine and costs adjudged against a county convict, when hired, is for a penalty, and hence jurisdiction is in the district court. Id.

Where penalty claimed is not recoverable, and damages are not within jurisdiction, it is proper for district court to sustain demurrer and dismiss cause. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hill & Morris, 97 T. 506, 80 S. W. 368.

A suit brought under Acts 1907, p. 156, is one in behalf of the state for penalty and forfeiture within the meaning of article 8, § 5, of the constitution, and must be brought in the district court. The justice and county courts have no jurisdiction to try such suit. The act is only void wherein it attempts to give the last-named courts jurisdiction when the value of the property in controversy is within their jurisdiction. Myers v. State, 47 C. A. 336, 105 S. W. 52.

An action to recover by the state under the local option law (Acts 1907, p. 156) is, in effect, a suit to declare a forfeiture or to recover penalties, and the county court has no jurisdiction. The district court has exclusive jurisdiction. Dupree v. State, 48 C. A. 272, 107 S. W. 926; Malone v. State (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 927.

3. Title to land.—When jurisdiction is acquired under clause 4, the court may render a personal judgment on a claim relating to the subject-matter of the suit for less than $500. Handel v. Elliott, 60 T. 145.

Where questions of title are involved, or the decision of the case brings in question the construction of a will, it was proper to resort to the district court as the more appropriate tribunal to adjudicate such question. Little v. Birdwell, 21 T. 597, 73 Am. Dec. 242.

The district court has jurisdiction of a trial of the right of property where the value of such property is fixed by the sheriff at $500. Erwin v. Blanks, 60 T. 583, followed. Betterton v. Echols, 85 T. 212, 20 S. W. 63.

Where the district court has jurisdiction of a suit by a vendee to recover land, it has power to hear, in the alternative, a branch of the action against the vendor on the warranty, regardless of the amount sued for. Chesnutt v. Chism, 20 C. A. 23, 48 S. W. 549.

Under the constitutional provision conferring exclusive jurisdiction of actions to try title on the district court, such court has jurisdiction of an action brought by a vendor, who retained a lien on property sold, to recover the property after default by the estate of the vendee. Curran v. Texas Land & Mortgage Co., 24 C. A. 499, 60 S. W. 466.

Where the suit is to recover damages for trespass upon land and the title incidentally comes in issue, the county court is not thereby deprived of jurisdiction, but where the suit is for damages for being deprived of an easement over another's land, the issue involves title to land such as deprives the county court of jurisdiction. Henslee v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 129.

Allegations of the petition held not to make a suit one to remove a cloud from title so as to give the district court jurisdiction on that ground, being a suit to enjoin collection of illegal taxes. Aquilla State Bank v. Knight (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 893.

Const. art. 5, § 8, and this article, do not deprive the county court of jurisdiction of a suit for breach of a warranty in a deed. Penney v. Woody (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 872.

A suit to set aside a judgment of a justice of the peace in trespass to try title was properly brought in the district court. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

The district court has jurisdiction to partition incumbered real estate, in the absence of any administration pending, especially where it will result in no material injury to any of the owners. Williamson v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 998.

4. Liens on land—In general.—A suit against a judgment debtor for the discovery of assets wherein the petition alleges the existence of property unknown by description to the judgment creditor, and wherein execution unsatisfied has been returned, and an abstract of the judgment was recorded to fix lien, lies within the jurisdiction of the district court. Cargill v. Kountze, 22 S. W. 1015, 86 T. 386, 24 L. R. A. 183, 40 Am. St. Rep. 853.

The district court has jurisdiction to foreclose a lien for wages due by a railroad on the right of way, regardless of the amount involved, as the right of way is land within the meaning of the constitution. T. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. Allen, 1 App. C. C. § 568; Railway Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 986.

The district court has jurisdiction of a suit to foreclose a vendor's lien. Taylor v. Fryar, 18 C. A. 266, 44 S. W. 183; Brandenburg v. Norwood (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 587. See, also, Const. art. 5, § 8.

District court has jurisdiction in an action on a note for less than $500 where the petition asks for a lien on real estate. Green v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 18 C. A. 286, 44 S. W. 319; Burton v. Archinard (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 684.

District court held to have jurisdiction of action on note and collateral vendor's lien notes. Sanderson v. Railey (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 667.

A mortgagee, suing in the district court to foreclose a mortgage on real and personal property, may join as parties defendant third persons alleged to have converted the personal property, though the value thereof is less than $500. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Moore, 28 C. A. 243, 66 S. W. 798.

A mortgagee of real and personal property, suing to foreclose his mortgage, may join junior mortgagees of the personal property as defendants, and have their rights adjudicated, regardless of the amount involved. Id.

The district court of a county in which real estate is situated has jurisdiction to foreclose a materialman's lien thereon. Smith v. Noyes (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 649.

In suit to foreclose mechanic's lien, defendant's vendor being made a party and setting up by cross-bill a claim for moneys expended in the transaction out of which the lien arose, held, that the district court had power to decide such claim, although beneath the jurisdictional sum. Haberzettle v. Dearing (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 539.

Where the petition in an action to foreclose a lien showed the amount of the debt to be less than the jurisdictional amount for the district court, and failed to allege the value of the building on which the lien was claimed, disclaiming any lien on the land, the district court was without jurisdiction. Smith v. Eureka Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 747.

Under articles 579 and 590, a suit on a negotiable vendor's lien note against the payee and indorser, which also sought to foreclose the vendor's lien, was properly brought in the district court, which had exclusive jurisdiction to render judgment, both for the debt and foreclosing the lien, under this article. Robinson v. Belt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 598.

A petition which alleges an express contract between plaintiff and defendant for decorating work by plaintiff in a building of defendant, the performance of the work by plaintiff, and the failure of defendant to pay therefor, and which prays for a judgment against defendant and for a foreclosure of a mechanic's lien, states a cause of action for the foreclosure of a mechanic's lien given by Const. art. 16, § 37, giving laborers liens on the buildings made or repaired by them, and gives jurisdiction to the district court, irrespective of the amount in controversy. Tenison v. Hagendorn (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 690.

In suits to foreclose liens, the value of the property covered by the lien determines the amount in controversy for the purpose of determining whether the court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter; but such rule does not apply when the lien is given by statute, and the only right conferred and asserted is to seize and sell so much of the property as may be necessary to satisfy the debt. Red Deer Oil Development Co. v. Huggins (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 949.

Action on vendor's lien notes and to foreclose lien held properly brought in the district court, instead of in the probate court, where it involved the rights of plaintiff as against defendants other than administrators and the rights of defendants among themselves.—Stewart v. Webb (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 537.

5. —— Jurisdiction after failure of lien.—When suit is brought in the district court to foreclose a lien alleged to exist on land for an amount which of itself would not be sufficient to give that court jurisdiction, and on the trial it is ascertained that no lien exists, the proper practice is to dismiss the cause for want of jurisdiction. Snyder v. Wiley, 59 T. 448. Also see Cameron v. Marshall, 65 T. 7.

District court has no jurisdiction to render judgment for debt less than $500, in suit on mechanic's lien, where it was determined that plaintiff was not entitled to lien. Tian v. Lloyd, 21 C. A. 433, 52 S. W. 982.

Where a suit was brought in a district court, in good faith, to enforce a lien for less than $500, the fact that it developed on trial that there was no lien did not deprive the court of jurisdiction to determine the case. Ablowich v. Greenville Nat. Bank, 95 T. 429, 67 S. W. 881.

Where a mechanic's lien was not enforceable, the district court had power to retain jurisdiction to render judgment on the debt, although the claim was less than $500. Sudduth v. Du Bose, 42 C. A. 226, 93 S. W. 235.

Where a plaintiff in the district court, suing to foreclose a mechanic's lien, alleged an express contract, but failed to prove it, and the amount demanded was less than $500, the district court was not ousted of jurisdiction, unless plaintiff fraudulently made the allegations in the petition to confer jurisdiction. Tenison v. Hagendorn (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 690.

6. Levy on property.—The jurisdiction under clause 5 is exclusive. Erwin v. Blanks, 60 T. 583; Heidenheimer v. Marx & Kempner, 1 App. C. C. § 171.

Where one sues in the district court on a debt less than $500 (the minimum amount to confer jurisdiction), and to enforce a lien on land, the suit will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction when it is found that no lien exists.—Storrie v. Woessner (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 837.

6½. Trial of right to property levied on.—See Art. 7778.

7. Value in controversy—In general.—Where the only cause of action is one for a sum below the jurisdiction of the district court, the action should be dismissed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Arnold, 97 T. 365, 79 S. W. 8.

A judgment rendered by the district court in a case of which, because of the amount involved, it has no jurisdiction, is a nullity. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Campbell, 36 C. A. 276, 81 S. W. 580.

Judgment of the district court for plaintiff held to be reversed, the amount involved being between $200 and $500, so that jurisdiction was in the county court. Bigby v. Brantley, 38 C. A. 44, 85 S. W. 311.

8. —— Particular actions.—The jurisdiction of the district court in suits by injunction does not depend upon the value of the property. Railway Co. v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 260; Morrison v. Carnahan, 31 S. W. 430; Stein v. Frieberg, 64 T. 271.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage, not only the debt but the value of the property mortgaged controls the question of jurisdiction. Bohl v. Brown, 2 App. C. C. § 542; citing Marshall v. Taylor, 7 T. 235; Lane v. Howard, 22 T. 7.

Action against city to recover fines imposed under a void ordinance, the amount of plaintiff's expense in securing release, and damages to reputation, is properly dismissed where, outside of damages to the reputation, the amount is insufficient to give jurisdiction. McFadin v. City of San Antonio, 22 C. A. 140, 54 S. W. 48.

The district court has jurisdiction of a suit by a taxpayer to enjoin the purchase of a water and light plant by a city, where the petition shows that the illegal diversion of corporate funds will exceed $500. City of Austin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 192.

District court held to have jurisdiction of a counterclaim for $490 earnest money paid by a vendee, in an action by the vendor to recover $1,460, balance of the price, and to foreclose a vendor's lien therefor. Cammack v. Prather (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 354.

The district court held without jurisdiction of a garnishment proceeding in which $7.75 was attached. Meek v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co., 43 C. A. 563, 96 S. W. 937.

The district court has no jurisdiction of an action where the petition alleges no cause of action save a claim to recover of defendant $150 for money alleged to have been collected by him for plaintiff, since the amount in controversy is not sufficient to give it jurisdiction. Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

A petition for mandamus in the district court to compel an officer to accept a replevy bond and deliver property to the principal therein which did not show that the property was within the jurisdictional value of such court was insufficient. Keasler Lumber Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 345.

A petition for the dissolution of a firm and the appointment of a receiver, which contains no allegation of the value of the business or of plaintiff's interest therein, fails to show value sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the district court. Childs v. Brown (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1154.

9. —— Actions involving chattels.—In foreclosure of a chattel mortgage, the existence of the lien, the value of the property, and the amount of the original debt, are the essentials to give the court jurisdiction, and not the present locality of the mortgaged property. McDaniel v. Staples (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 596.

The amount involved, as regards the jurisdiction of the court, in an action to foreclose a lien on a chattel, held to be the value of the chattel, and not the amount of the debt. Beaty v. Thos. Goggan & Bro. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 631.

In a suit to prevent the sale of specific property, the value of the property determines the amount in controversy in determining the jurisdiction of the court. Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 258.

In determining whether a court has jurisdiction on foreclosure of a chattel mortgage, the value of the chattels covered by the mortgage, and not the amount due, determines the amount in controversy. Poulter v. Southwest Nat. Bank of Kansas City, Mo., 146 S. W. 561.

Under this article subd. 6, the district court has jurisdiction of a suit to establish a joint interest of the parties in alleged firm property worth $1,550, and to appoint a receiver and for an injunction and an accounting, for the value of the property in litigation determines the jurisdiction of the court and not the amount plaintiff may be entitled to recover as his interest therein. Ramsey v. Bird (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 671.

The court has jurisdiction of an action to foreclose a chattel mortgage, where the value of the mortgaged property is within the limits of its jurisdiction, though the debt be below the minimum limit. Walker Mercantile Co. v. J. R. Raney Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 317.

10. —— Collection of taxes.—The district court has jurisdiction to afford relief by injunction to one whose property is assessed unreasonably and fraudulently by the board of equalization. Johnson v. Holland, 17 C. A. 210, 43 S. W. 71.

Suit to collect delinquent taxes, where no foreclosure is involved, should be brought in the court having jurisdiction of the amount. State v. Trilling (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 788.

In an action to foreclose a tax lien, a plea to the jurisdiction on the ground that the amount involved was below the limit of the district court held properly overruled. Grace v. City of Bonham, 26 C. A. 161, 63 S. W. 158.

Under the amended judiciary article of the constitution, the district court had no jurisdiction of an action to enjoin the collection of a tax of $300. Delling v. Waddell (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 945.

The district court has jurisdiction of a suit for injunction to restrain an assessor from making a certain tax levy, where the amount of the tax to be levied is not stated and is not in controversy. Lowrance v. Schwab, 46 C. A. 67, 101 S. W. 840.

Under the amended judiciary article of the constitution (article 5, § 16), giving the county court exclusive jurisdiction where the amount in controversy is over $200 and less than $500, the district court has not jurisdiction to restrain the collection of taxes in the sum of $374, notwithstanding the general power of the district courts to issue writs of injunction and mandamus. Aquilla State Bank v. Knight (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 893.

11. —— Void judgments and executions of justice's court.—Since no appeal or certiorari is allowed from a judgment in justice court for less than $20, the district court has jurisdiction to enjoin the execution of a void justice's judgment for less than that amount. Jennings v. Shiner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 276.

The district court has exclusive jurisdiction of a suit for damages for wrongful levy of an execution from a justice where the amount claimed exceeds $200. Ostrom v. McCloskey (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 307.

Where a judgment is illegally rendered by a justice of the peace by default for personal property of the value of $15.00 the district court has jurisdiction to enjoin such judgment. Rumfield v. Neal (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 262.

The district court may enjoin the execution of a void judgment of a justice of the peace for less than $20. Coca Cola Co. v. Allison, 52 C. A. 54, 113 S. W. 308.

The district court was without jurisdiction to restrain the enforcement of a justice's judgment where the amount in controversy was less than $20. Pye v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1086.

12. —— Allegation of amount.—The jurisdiction of the district court is fixed by the amount declared in the petition, unless it is alleged and proved that the amount sued for was alleged with the fraudulent intent and purpose to give the court jurisdiction. Dwyer v. Bassett, 63 T. 275; Tidball v. Eichoff, 66 T. 58, 17 S. W. 263; Roper v. Brady, 80 T. 588, 16 S. W. 434; Baker v. Guinn, 23 S. W. 604, 4 C. A. 539; Johnson v. Borden (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1131; Bates v. Van Pelt, 1 C. A. 185, 20 S. W. 949; Euless v. Russell (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 176; Ratigan v. Holloway, 69 T. 468, 6 S. W. 785; Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446; Id., 1 C. A. 43, 20 S. W. 184, 726.

The district court held to be without jurisdiction. Braggins v. Holekamp (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 57; Moore v. Snell (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 270; Lindale Brick Co. v. Smith, 54 C. A. 297, 118 S. W. 568; Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

Where the only damage recoverable under the allegations of a petition is a sum insufficient to give the court jurisdiction, demurrer held properly sustained thereto. Gaddis v. Western Union Tel. Co., 33 C. A. 391, 77 S. W. 37.

In an action for unlawful entry, a general ad damnum clause claiming $1,000 damages held sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the district court. Foster v. Roseberry, 98 T. 138, 81 S. W. 521.

Where the facts alleged show no cause of action as to such part of the sum sued for as to leave the balance below the jurisdictional amount, the suit should be dismissed. C. B. Carswell & Co. v. Habberzettle, 99 T. 1, 86 S. W. 738.

The jurisdiction of the court held, in the absence of any claim of fraud, to be determinable by the sum claimed in the petition. O'Neil v. Murray (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1090.

An amended petition in an action for fraud in a sale of land held to demand judgment for more than $500, and to state a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the district court. Waller v. Gray, 43 C. A. 405, 94 S. W. 1098.

Where the district court in an action on a fire policy sustained an exception to the petition alleging that defendant became indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $1,250, that defendant had refused to pay the same to plaintiff's damage $500, and praying for the recovery of $1,250, and plaintiff filed a trial amendment alleging that the refusal to pay $1,250 resulted in damages to the sum of $1,750, for which he asked judgment, the court had jurisdiction of the case. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Blohopolo (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 358.

In determining jurisdiction of a particular action, the petition only can be considered, and jurisdiction cannot be conferred by a plea in reconvention. Le Master v. Lee (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 315.

While the allegations of the petition determine the amount in controversy, they must be allegations of fact, and not mere conclusions of the pleader, consequently, where a petition on its face showed that for breach of the owner's contract, a broker was entitled only to recover commissions to the extent of $500, the sum fixed by the percentage provided for in the contract, an allegation that a greater amount was a reasonable compensation cannot confer jurisdiction on the district court. Martin v. Jeffries (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 658.

Where the jurisdiction of a court is dependent on the amount in controversy, neither the amount of the verdict nor the prayer of the petition determine the question of jurisdiction, which must be determined by the amount claimed by plaintiff in his original petition, unless it appears therefrom that he has improperly sought to give jurisdiction where it did not properly belong. Red Deer Oil Development Co. v. Huggins (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 949.

13. —— Pleadings reducing amount.—Where the sustaining of an exception to an item reduces the claim below the amount within the jurisdiction of the court, a dismissal is proper. Hammond v. Lamar County, 18 C. A. 188, 44 S. W. 179; Hill v. Strauss (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 540.

The demand in a complaint being reduced by demurrer to less than the amount necessary to give the court jurisdiction, the action should be dismissed. Doherty v. City of Galveston, 19 C. A. 708, 48 S. W. 804; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Arnold, 33 C. A. 306, 77 S. W. 249.

Where exceptions to allegations in the petition as to damages are properly sustained, and plaintiff declines to amend, the action will be dismissed, where the court is without jurisdiction of an item of damages sufficiently pleaded. Jones v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 23 C. A. 65, 55 S. W. 371; Goodhue v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 57 C. A. 297, 122 S. W. 41.

14. —— Recovery of less than jurisdictional amount.—When jurisdiction has rightfully attached, judgment may be rendered for an amount less than is necessary to give the court jurisdiction. Tarbox v. Kennon, 3 T. 7; Austin & Clapp v. Jordan, 5 T. 130; Ellett v. Powers, 8 T. 113; Bridge v. Ballew, 11 T. 269; Sanger v. Ker, 1 App. C. C. § 1082; Braun & Ferguson Co. v. Paulson (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 617.

When the original debt has been reduced by payments, suit may be maintained in the court having jurisdiction of the amount unpaid. Davis v. Pinckney, 20 T. 341; Wilkins v. Weller, 1 App. C. C. § 878.

In actions sounding in damages, the amount of damages claimed, and not the amount of the verdict, determines jurisdiction. In actions ex contractu the amount claimed determines the jurisdiction, if it is not made to appear that a fraud upon jurisdiction has been attempted by improper averments in the petition. The question of fraud on jurisdiction can be raised by proper averments presenting that issue, which must be determined under appropriate instructions. Dwyer v. Bassett, 63 T. 274; Farrar v. Beeman, 63 T. 175; I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson, 61 T. 550; Williams v. Truitt, 1 App. C. C. § 519; Sanger Bros. v. Ker, 1 App. C. C. § 1081. Also see Tidball v. Eichoff, 66 T. 58, 17 S. W. 263; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rambolt, 67 T. 654, 4 S. W. 356.

Where the amount sued for is within the jurisdiction of the court, that the amount recovered is reduced by limitation to a less amount does not defeat the jurisdiction. Kelly v. Western Union Tel. Co., 17 C. A. 344, 43 S. W. 532; Harrell v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 838.

Jurisdiction is not defeated by the mere fact that the evidence shows plaintiff entitled to recover a sum less than the jurisdictional amount. Strickland v. Sloan (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 622; Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, 100 T. 17, 93 S. W. 431; Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1002.

Plaintiff having sued for $2,000 for mental suffering to his wife, and also for the price paid for a telegram, for defendant's delay in delivery, he was entitled to recover the price so paid, less than the district court's jurisdiction, though he failed to establish his other cause of action. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Siddall (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 343.

In the absence of a plea to the jurisdiction, plaintiff having sued defendant in the district court on two claims, one for $550 and the other for $200, the fact that defendant was not liable on the larger claim did not deprive the court of jurisdiction to render judgment on the other. Groesbeck v. T. H. Thompson Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 346.

In an action to establish a lien for rent on goods sold by a tenant, the jurisdiction of the district court cannot be defeated as to purchasers of such goods by showing that the goods so purchased by them respectively amounted to less than $500, the jurisdictional amount, where the amount of the sales to each was alleged to be $600. Freeman v. Collier Racket Co., 44 C. A. 177, 105 S. W. 1129.

Where the amount sued for confers jurisdiction, the acknowledgment by plaintiff of the justness of the set-off, which would reduce the recovery below the jurisdictional amount, does not oust the court of jurisdiction. C. M. Conover & Co. v. Maverick-Clarke Litho. Co. (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 313.

Where a settlement was arrived at in a suit on a policy as to a part of the loss and an amendment filed as to the balance, the value stated in the original petition controlled the jurisdiction. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. (Mut.) of Waco v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1083.

The amount or value alleged in the plaintiff's petition is the amount in controversy which fixes the jurisdiction of the court, and not the amount revealed by the evidence as being actually due. Levy v. Lupton (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 362.

15. —— Exaggerated claim.—When the law fixes the amount of recovery, jurisdiction cannot be conferred by an arbitrary claim beyond that amount. Swigley v. Dickson, 2 T. 192; Tarbox v. Kennon, 3 T. 7; Austin v. Jordan, 5 T. 130; Graham v. Roder, 5 T. 141; Sherwood v. Douthit, 6 T. 224; Ellett v. Powers, 8 T. 113.

Facts under which held not error to refuse to dismiss for an exaggeration of the amount in controversy to give jurisdiction. Eaton v. Tod (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 546.

Where plaintiff sought to recover punitive damages, which were necessary in order to sustain the jurisdiction of the district court, the fact that she had no reasonable ground to believe that she was entitled to recover punitive damages was not alone ground for a judgment against her. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson, 45 C. A. 513, 101 S. W. 1061.

In an action on a contract, the amount claimed by plaintiff in good faith determines the court's jurisdiction. C. M. Conover & Co. v. Maverick-Clarke Litho. Co. (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 313.

In an action upon an account, evidence held not to show that the creditor failed to give a proper credit, so as to fraudulently confer jurisdiction upon the court. Oliver v. Edward Weil Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1109.

In the absence of a plea to the jurisdiction, the amount well pleaded held to fix the jurisdiction of the court. Barnes v. Bryce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 240.

Where plaintiff's petition fraudulently exaggerated the amount due for the purpose of conferring jurisdiction on the district court, the cause will be dismissed when the fact is properly brought to the court's knowledge, but the cause cannot be dismissed on the court's own motion. Levy v. Lupton (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 362.

16. —— Joining claims.—Several demands may be united so as to confer jurisdiction by their aggregate amount. Mays v. Lewis, 4 T. 38; Ferguson v. Culton, 8 T. 283.

The amount of several sureties' liabilities for contribution may be added to determine the jurisdiction of the court. Jalufka v. Matejek, 22 C. A. 384, 55 S. W. 395.

Where two actions were properly consolidated, in one of which the court would not otherwise have had jurisdiction of defendant, a plea to the jurisdiction was properly overruled. Corbett v. Provident Nat. Bank, 23 C. A. 602, 57 S. W. 61.

Where a claim against a principal is within the jurisdiction of the court, the fact that the extent of the liability of two sets of sureties was not within the jurisdiction is immaterial. Robinson v. Chamberlain, 29 C. A. 170, 68 S. W. 209.

Petition in an action to enforce a several liability against a number of defendants held not objectionable for failure to show that the court had jurisdiction of one defendant. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Smith & White, 34 C. A. 571, 79 S. W. 614.

In suit for contribution, jurisdiction of court held to be determined by amount due from all the defendants. Jarvis v. Matson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1079.

A complaint alleging jurisdictional damages in the sum of $1,000 in the ad damnum clause conferred jurisdiction, though the complaint had alleged that each of several defendants was liable in the sum of $1,000. Home Benefit Ass'n No. 3 of Coleman County v. Wester (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1022.

17. —— Inclusion of interest.—Where interest is claimed in a suit for damages, it is a part of the cause of action. Dwyer v. Bassett (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 815.

In an action for damages, held, that interest can only be recovered as part of the damages laid which is amount in controversy. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 45 C. A. 376, 101 S. W. 266.

18. —— Inclusion of attorney's fees.—Stipulated attorney's fees in a note are included in determining jurisdiction as to amount in controversy. Rainey v. Lauderdale (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1084.

An action on a note for $200 and attorney's fees held within jurisdiction of the district court. Groesbeck v. T. H. Thompson Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 346.

An action on an accident policy for $500 and attorney's fees and 12 per cent. damages held within the jurisdiction of the district court. Lane v. General Accident Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 324.

19. —— Exemplary damages.—In a suit for $500 actual damages and the same amount for exemplary damages, upon a second trial the claim for exemplary damages abated by reason of the death of the original plaintiffs. The court having jurisdiction at the institution of the suit, it was not abated by the subsequent failure of part of the cause of action. Dahoney v. Allison, 1 U. C. 112.

20. —— Incidental relief.—One whose claim is less than $500 can intervene in a suit pending in the district court to assert a right in property involved in the suit. Peticolas v. Carpenter, 53 T. 23.

A court having jurisdiction to issue an injunction has jurisdiction of a plea in reconvention in the same suit, notwithstanding it would not have jurisdiction of the amount otherwise. Smith v. Wilson, 18 C. A. 24, 44 S. W. 556.

Jurisdiction of district court over a cause of action held to include incidental power to determine a set-off pleaded as a defense. Garrett v. Robinson, 93 T. 406, 55 S. W. 564, reversing Robinson v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 269.

The district court has jurisdiction of an action to restrain the use of a trade-name, though damages of $500 are claimed, where the damages are only stated incidentally to show the effect of defendant's acts. Cleaver v. Duke (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 145.

A motion to require the clerk of the district court to pay over to a judgment creditor $50 paid on the judgment cannot be treated as a suit, as the amount in controversy is not within the court's jurisdiction. City of Whitesboro v. Diamond (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 540.

Court held to have jurisdiction of claim arising out of suit pending, though involving less than the amount necessary to give it jurisdiction originally. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bacon (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 572.

A suit in the district court being on a demand within its jurisdiction, it has jurisdiction of a cross-bill to recover an overpayment of less than $500 made by defendants in settlement. Kelsey v. Collins, 49 C. A. 230, 108 S. W. 793.

21. —— Question for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Art. 1706. [1099] [1118] Jurisdiction in matters of probate.—The district court shall also have appellate jurisdiction and general control in probate matters over the county court established in each county for appointing guardians, granting letters testamentary and of administration, probating wills, for settling the accounts of executors, administrators and guardians, and for the transaction of business appertaining to estates. The district court shall also have such original jurisdiction and general control over executors, administrators, guardians and minors as is, or may be, provided by law. Such court shall also have appellate jurisdiction and general supervisory control over the county commissioners' court, with such exceptions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; and shall have general original jurisdiction over all causes of action whatever, for which a remedy or jurisdiction is not provided by law or the constitution, and such other jurisdiction, original and appellate, as may be provided by law. [Const. art. 5, sec. 8. Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 3. P. D. 1406; amendment, 1891.]

Settlement of estates.—See, also, notes under Art. 1705.

The district court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter of a suit against the sureties on the bond of an administrator to recover money, belonging to an estate, alleged to have been received and converted by him. Such a suit can be brought by the administrator de bonis non; but in case no administrator de bonis non has been appointed, and there be no debts, the suit can be instituted by the heirs or other distributees of the estate. Fort v. Fitts, 66 T. 593, 1 S. W. 563.

Where an executor has made a mistake in the sale of a land certificate and the estate was transferred by the act of 1870 from the county to the district court, the mistake can be corrected by an independent suit in the latter court. Wood v. Mistretta, 20 C. A. 236, 49 S. W. 236.

District court has no original jurisdiction of proceedings to revoke letters of administration and appoint new administrator. Ballard v. Wheeler, 23 C. A. 422, 56 S. W. 946.

District court held to have jurisdiction of a creditors' suit to subject land of a decedent to the payment of debts, though the administration of the estate was pending in the county court. Phillips v. Phillips, 23 C. A. 532, 57 S. W. 59.

The district court in which a suit to foreclose a tax lien on property was brought had jurisdiction, on the death of the husband during the pendency thereof, to adjudicate the question of the superiority of the widow's claim for an allowance in lieu of homestead over the tax lien. State v. Jordan, 25 C. A. 17, 60 S. W. 1008.

District court held to have jurisdiction of widow's suit to declare partnership assets community estate, etc., notwithstanding surviving partner's right to wind up partnership. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

The jurisdiction of a district court in the administration of estates of deceased persons is appellate only. Levy v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 205.

When a vendor's lien against an estate of a deceased person has been established in the district court it must be collected through the probate court. Wall v. Club Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 536.

A vendor's claim for rents in possession of an administratrix of the deceased purchaser under her replevy bond not being a claim against the estate of the purchaser, district court held to have jurisdiction of action for rents. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Texas Land & Mortgage Co., 40 C. A. 489, 90 S. W. 197.

An action on a bond conditioned on the payment of a legacy to the obligee held within the jurisdiction of the district court. Hummel v. Del Greco, 40 C. A. 510, 90 S. W. 339.

District court held to have jurisdiction of an action by a widow to recover the homestead and personal property of her deceased husband and damages for mental distress and humiliation resulting from her being unlawfully dispossessed by defendants. Cox v. Oliver, 43 C. A. 110, 95 S. W. 596.

In an action on a guardian's bonds it was not essential to the district court's jurisdiction that the amount of the defalcation had been fixed by the county court. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

A district court decree, on accounting by a trustee partitioning among the heirs of an estate a fund in which the estate was interested with others, held not objectionable as infringing the jurisdiction of the county court, where it followed the decree of the county court distributing the estate. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 54 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 156.

Where the probate court exercised jurisdiction over the estate of a testator, the district court was without jurisdiction. Haldeman v. Openheimer (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1158.

In an action by devisees to cancel a deed by the executor of estate land to another, the district court held not to have jurisdiction pending the administration to render a personal judgment against the executor for the amount received for timber on the ground that it was applied to pay his personal debt. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

Under Const. art. 5, § 8, and this article and article 3207, a suit by heirs against an independent executrix to recover property, both real and personal, alleged to be of the estate of the testator and withheld from the assets of the estate under the claim that it belonged to her and her codefendants, was not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the county court, but was within the jurisdiction of the district court, to determine in whom the equitable title to the property was, and to decree a partition thereof, as well as the other property of the estate, among the owners. Japhet v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 441.

The equitable jurisdiction of the district court held not to be invoked to require an accounting by a certain trustee. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

Any deficiency judgment against administrators should be enforced by the county court under the probate statutes, and not by an execution issued by the district court. Stewart v. Webb (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 537.

Wills.—When a county judge is disqualified by reason of his interest in the probate of a will from sitting as a judge, the district court will exercise original jurisdiction under article 5, section 16, of the constitution. Prendergass v. Beale, 59 T. 446; Franks v. Chapman, 61 T. 576.

The district court, under the constitution of 1845, had jurisdiction of an action by an executor, against the heirs, devisees, and legatees of the testator, to procure a construction of the will and instructions as to the proper execution of the same. Purvis v. Sherrod, 12 T. 140. See, also, Little v. Birdwell, 21 T. 597, 73 Am. Dec. 242.

The district court has no jurisdiction to annul, by a direct proceeding, the action of a county court in probating a will, and in such proceeding to probate it. Franks v. Chapman, 60 T. 46; Id. 61 T. 576; Dew v. Dew, 23 C. A. 676, 57 S. W. 927.

The district court has jurisdiction to execute the provisions of a will providing that no action be taken in any court. Cleveland v. Cleveland (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 825.

Where a will conveyed property to trustees to be equally divided among certain persons on the death of testator's widow, any division by the trustee contrary to the will would be subject to control of a court of equity, but its control could not be invoked until the trust was abused. Davis v. Davis, 51 C. A. 491, 112 S. W. 948.

While the district court has jurisdiction to partition estates, require accountings, and adjust equities between the several owners, its jurisdiction cannot be exercised to defeat that of the county court to probate a will, which under Const. art. 5, § 16, has the general jurisdiction of a probate court, with power to probate wills, appoint guardians, settle accounts of executors, and transact business, including the settlement, partition, and distribution of the estates of deceased persons. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

An order admitting a will to probate, but continuing for further hearing objections to the appointment of relator as independent executrix, was not a final order from which an appeal could be taken. Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

The district court, on appeal from the county court in proceedings for the probate of a will, tries the case de novo, and may probate the will or declare it void. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

Appellate jurisdiction.—The county court having no jurisdiction over a contest for property by the administrator and one claiming adversely, the district court acquires no jurisdiction by appeal. Wadsworth v. Chick, 55 T. 241.

On an appeal to the district court from an order of the county court removing an administrator, the district court acquired no jurisdiction to order a sale of the property of the estate. Levy v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 205.

The district court has no supervision of the county court, where acting within the limits of the constitution, except as to probate matters. Rains v. Reasonover, 46 C. A. 290, 102 S. W. 176.

Appeal from the district court in probate matters will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction; the record not affirmatively showing the district court obtained jurisdiction by proper appeal from the probate court. Goodwin v. Walker (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 462.

Despite the provision of the Constitution giving the district court appellate jurisdiction only over matters of guardianship, an order of the county court, appointing a father guardian of his minor child after the mother's death will not preclude the district court from determining to whom the custody of the child should be awarded, for under the statute the surviving parent is the natural guardian. Walker v. Finney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 948.

General control.—The district court, in the exercise of its equity jurisdiction, may charge real estate, fraudulently sold under a decree of the probate court, with a trust, and may cancel the fraudulent conveyance and vest the title to the property in the person entitled thereto. Fisher v. Wood, 65 T. 199.

Const. art. 5, § 8, provides that the district court shall have appellate jurisdiction and control in probate matters over the county court, and this article and aricle 3207 provide that it shall have appellate jurisdiction and "general control" of probate matters over the county court. Held, that the words "control" and "general control," as so used, did not enlarge the district court's jurisdiction, which was limited to appellate jurisdiction over courts sitting in probate, to be exercised only by appeal or certiorari, and hence the district court cannot issue mandamus requiring the county court to perform a duty not merely ministerial but involving judicial discretion. Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

Art. 1707. [1100] [1119] Motions against sheriffs, attorneys, etc.—The district court shall also have power to hear and determine all motions against sheriffs and other officers of the court for failure to pay over moneys collected under the process of said court, or other defalcation of duty in connection with such process, and of motions against attorneys for moneys collected by them and not paid over. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 201, sec. 5. P. D. 1408.]

Art. 1708. [1101] [1120] To punish contempts.—The district court shall also have power to punish by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, and by imprisonment not exceeding three days, any person guilty of contempt of such court. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 201, sec. 6. P. D. 1409.]

See Ex parte Kearby, 35 Cr. R. 634, 34 S. W. 962.

Jurisdiction in general.—District court has general jurisdiction of contempts. Taylor v. Goodrich, 25 C. A. 109, 40 S. W. 515.

The jurisdiction conferred by this statute is general, and in exercising it the court acts judicially, and the judge is not personally liable for an error in construing and applying the law. Id.

The record in a contempt proceeding held sufficient to show jurisdiction of the court. Ex parte Testard, 101 T. 250, 106 S. W. 319; Ex parte Howard, 101 T. 254, 106 S. W. 321.

To punish for constructive contempt, the court must, first, have jurisdiction of the matter; and, second, power to render the particular judgment which was rendered. Goodfellow v. State, 53 Cr. R. 471, 110 S. W. 755.

The power to punish for contempt of court for conduct calculated to bring the judge into disrepute and interfere with the administration of justice is conferred to preserve a proper respect for the court, and not for the judge's personal advantage, and it should be exercised only for that purpose. Ex parte West, 60 Cr. R. 485, 132 S. W. 339.

Acts constituting contempt.—An officer held not guilty of contempt in arresting a prisoner, and taking him out of the state pending an application by him for habeas corpus. Ex parte Lake, 37 Cr. R. 656, 40 S. W. 727.

Mere attempt of one to secure services of another to ascertain how juror stood with relation to case then on trial held not to render him guilty of a contempt. Ex parte McRae, 45 Cr. R. 285, 77 S. W. 211.

No matter how defamatory of a court a publication may be, it is not a contempt unless it be written and published with reference to a case then pending. Ex parte Green, 46 Cr. R. 576, 81 S. W. 723, 66 L. R. A. 727, 108 Am. St. Rep. 1035.

One could not be adjudged guilty of contempt of court for making defamatory publications relating to the conduct of a case of which the judge had no jurisdiction. Ex parte West, 60 Cr. R. 485, 132 S. W. 339.

A finding held sustained that publications by relator were calculated to impede the administration of justice, and embarrass the judge in trying a criminal prosecution of relator so as to constitute contempt of court. Id.

The fact that a relator said to a juryman, "You are on the jury next week," to which the juror answered, "Yes, I know I am," did not authorize the relator's punishment for contempt for interference with a juror. Ex parte Wright, 64 Cr. R. 171, 141 S. W. 971.

"Civil contempt" defined. Ex parte Wolters, 64 Cr. R. 238, 144 S. W. 531.

"Criminal contempt" defined. Id.

In a prosecution for contempt of court in approaching with improper proposals a juror then actually serving as such, it was not a defense that the juror was legally disqualified, especially where the accused did not then know of such disqualification. Ex parte Shepherd (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 628.

Proceedings to punish.—A proceeding in vacation adjudging one guilty of contempt is void. Ex parte Ellis, 37 Cr. R. 539, 40 S. W. 275.

Where a newspaper published evidence in violation of an order of court, it was error to render judgment for contempt against the publisher, and then issue an attachment to show cause why the judgment should not be final. Ex parte Foster, 44 Cr. R. 423, 71 S. W. 593, 60 L. R. A. 631, 100 Am. St. Rep. 866.

Where a notice of a motion to punish for contempt of court brings the person accused into court, where a hearing is had on the charge contained in the motion, an error in the notice as to the time the act of contempt was alleged to have been done does not affect the validity of a conviction. Ex parte Testard, 101 T. 250, 106 S. W. 319; Ex parte Howard, 101 T. 254, 106 S. W. 321.

Failure to serve relator with a writ requiring him to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt held waived. Ex parte Haubelt, 57 Cr. R. 512, 123 S. W. 607; Ex parte Imhoff (Cr. App.) 123 S. W. 609; Ex parte Wise (Cr. App.) 123 S. W. 610.

A judgment of contempt for publishing defamatory matters of a judge relating to a criminal case pending before him will not be held void for error in finding that a part of the publications related to the criminal case and not to a civil case of which he had no jurisdiction, if there was some evidence consistent with his finding that the publication related to the criminal case. Ex parte West, 60 Cr. R. 485, 132 S. W. 339.

In proceedings for constructive contempt by publishing defamatory matters relating to a judge's conduct of a criminal prosecution, the judge's findings need not repeat matters set out in the moving papers. Id.

The facts constituting contempt, and not the evidence thereof, must be found in order to sustain a judgment of contempt; a judgment not being invalid for failure to cite the evidentiary facts. Id.

On an information for contempt of court for publishing defamatory matter relating to a judge before whom a prosecution of relator was pending, findings held to sustain a judgment of contempt, though there was no specific finding that the defamatory matters were false. Id.

Persons could not be imprisoned for contempt by the district court upon an oral order and without the issuance of a writ of commitment. Ex parte Ogden, 63 Cr. R. 380, 140 S. W. 345.

Where the alleged acts of contempt did not occur in the court's presence or hearing, held, that a written statement charging contempt is the better practice, unless presented by the district attorney in his official capacity. Ex parte Landry (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 962.

Punishment.—A judgment in a contempt proceeding fining defendant $100, and committing him to the sheriff until the fine was paid, and the order of court which he had refused to obey was complied with, was not an excessive punishment. Ex parte Tinsley, 37 Cr. R. 517, 40 S. W. 306, 66 Am. St. Rep. 818.

An order assessing a fine for contempt and imprisonment in default of payment held not void because a prior portion punishing respondent with imprisonment did not commit him to jail. Ex parte Smith, 40 Cr. R. 179, 49 S. W. 396.

A judgment for contempt held to remand respondent to jail only until payment of the fine or until his enlargement before then. Id.

An order punishing a contempt held to commit respondent to jail. Id.

An order punishing a party's contempt by forbidding him to appear or file any paper unless he shall first purge himself does not forbid the filing of a motion indorsed, "Plaintiff's motion to purge himself of contempt of court." Kruegel v. Nash, 31 C. A. 15, 70 S. W. 983.

A party cannot be punished for contempt in filing a scurrilous motion, by forbidding him to further appear or file any other pleading or paper. Id.

Under this article the jurisdiction of the district court to punish for contempt is fixed. The fine cannot exceed $100, nor the imprisonment three days. Ex parte Morgan (Cr. App.) 86 S. W. 756.

Article 4670 in no wise conflicts with this article in the punishment of contempts already committed, but goes further and authorizes imprisonment until the contempt has been purged. Ex parte Testard, 102 T. 287, 115 S. W. 1155, 20 Ann. Cas. 117.

Persons cannot be legally imprisoned for contempt on an oral order to an officer to confine them in jail and without the issuance of a writ of commitment. Ex parte Dena, 63 Cr. R. 379, 140 S. W. 346.

Art. 1709. [1103] May transfer probate proceedings to county court.—The judges of the district courts of this state may, by an order made and entered in open court upon the minutes of said court, upon the application in open court of any person interested as administrator, executor, heir, legatee, devisee, distributee, creditor or guardian in the administration of the estate of a deceased person, or in the guardianship of a minor, person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard, pending in such court, transfer such administration or guardianship to the county court of the county in which such district court is there being held for further administration, upon satisfactory evidence that the county judge of said county is legally qualified to act as such in such administration. [Acts 1881, p. 72.]

In general.—Irregularity in transferring case to court of concurrent jurisdiction held waived. Armstrong v. Emmet, 16 C. A. 242, 41 S. W. 87.

A district court not having jurisdiction cannot transfer case to county court, thus giving it jurisdiction. Barnett v. Brown (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 206.

Art. 1710. [1104] Duty of clerk to transmit papers, records, etc.—Immediately after the termination of the court at which the order of transfer authorized by the foregoing article is made, it shall be the duty of the clerk thereof to transmit all the papers relating to such administration or guardianship, together with a transcript, certified by him under the seal of said district court, or the record of all orders, judgments and decrees of such district court in relation to such estate, to the county clerk of his county, for which services he shall be allowed such fees as are now allowed him by law for similar services, to be paid as expenses of administration. [Id.]

Art. 1711. [1105] Judgments transferred and enforced.—When the clerk of the district court of any county in the state, where the civil and criminal jurisdiction, or either, of the county court has been transferred to the district court, shall receive from the clerk of the county court a certified copy of a judgment rendered in any civil or criminal case in the county court, he shall immediately record such judgments in the minutes of the district court; and, thereupon, the said district court shall have the power to enforce said judgments by execution or otherwise, as other judgments rendered in said district court are or may be enforced. [Acts 1879, p. 11.]

Art. 1712. [1106] [1122] To hear and determine all cases of legal or equitable cognizance.—Subject to the limitations stated in this chapter, the district court is authorized to hear and determine any cause which is, or may be, cognizable by courts, either of law or equity, and to grant any relief which could be granted by said courts, or either of them. [Act May 10, 1846, p. 201, sec. 7. P. D. 1410.]

In general.—If the court a quo had no jurisdiction the appellate court can acquire none. Baker v. Chisholm, 3 T. 157; Davis v. Stewart, 4 T. 223; Able v. Bloomfield, 6 T. 263; Horan v. Wahrenberger, 9 T. 313, 58 Am. Dec. 145; Neil v. State, 43 T. 91; Wadsworth v. Chick, 55 T. 241; Timmins v. Bonner, 58 T. 554; Griffin v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 1099; Miller v. City Bank of Sherman, 1 App. C. C. § 1287.

A suit by the state of Texas by information in the nature of a quo warranto, or by a citizen by mandamus, can be prosecuted in the district court for an office over the value of $500. State v. De Gress, 53 T. 387; Milliken v. City Council, 54 T. 388, 38 Am. Rep. 629.

The eligibility to office and the determination of the result of an election may be referred by law to other tribunals than constitutional courts. Seay v. Hunt, 55 T. 545.

One county cannot maintain suit against another to establish the true boundary line between them. Guadalupe County v. Wilson County, 58 T. 228. But see Art. 808a.

The district court can grant any measure of relief, whether in law or equity, that could at common law be granted either by a court of law or equity. Voigtlander v. Brotze, 59 T. 286. Citing Teas v. Robinson, 11 T. 776; Shulte v. Hoffman, 18 T. 678; Tucker v. Anderson, 25 T. Sup. 158.

The court does not have jurisdiction of a suit to enforce the rights of members of voluntary associations where there is no question of property involved. Manning v. San Antonio Club, 63 T. 166, 51 Am. Rep. 639.

Where jurisdiction has been obtained to cancel a trust deed given by a stockholder in a loan association to the association, equity has jurisdiction to adjudicate all the issues. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 20 C. A. 111, 49 S. W. 160.

The district court cannot in the absence of a statute, revise the action of the commissioners' court in fixing the boundaries of a school district, and there is no such statute in this state. Stephens v. Buie, 23 C. A. 491, 57 S. W. 312.

The district court has jurisdiction of an action to enjoin a commissioners' court from taking land for the purpose of opening a second class road under proceedings alleged in the petition to be void. Allen v. Parker County, 23 C. A. 536, 57 S. W. 704.

Under the constitution the district court held to have jurisdiction of a taxpayer's suit against a city, where a lack of jurisdiction did not appear in the petition. City of Austin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 192.

Widow's suit to declare certain assets community estate, etc., held maintainable in district court against independent executor. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

The fact that the state asserts its authority up to a river is conclusive on the courts as to the authority of the state, and they should administer the law there, regardless of whether the territory is rightfully subject to state's jurisdiction. Rodriguez v. Hernandez, 35 C. A. 78, 79 S. W. 343.

Where jurisdiction is given by the constitution over cases involving designated kinds of subject-matter, the grant is exclusive, unless a contrary intent is shown by the context. Myers v. State, 47 C. A. 336, 105 S. W. 48.

Equitable cognizance.—The district court has jurisdiction of a suit to prevent the establishment of a road without compensation for the land appropriated to that use. Bounds v. Kirven, 63 T. 159.

An action to restrain the commissioner of the general land office from re-establishing the boundary of a county is within the jurisdiction of the district court. Kaufman County v. McGaughey, 21 S. W. 261, 3 C. A. 655.

A court of equity has jurisdiction to order the cancellation of a deed, though it is void on its face. Morton v. Morris, 27 C. A. 262, 66 S. W. 94.

Equity will set aside a deed for fraud, as well of an estate purely in expectancy as of an estate in præsenti. Wells v. Houston, 29 C. A. 619, 69 S. W. 183.

Where the district court acquires jurisdiction of an entire equitable suit, praying various relief, the defendant's acquiescence in a portion of the relief sought does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to grant the remainder of the relief. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

A proceeding asking that a lien be decreed in favor of a contractor for construction work for a railroad against the property of the railroad is an appeal to the equitable powers of the court. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Delaware Western Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 447.

Courts of equity will not interpose to rescind a contract for fraud except where it becomes necessary to relieve the complaining party against some injury. Hoeldtke v. Horstman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 642.

The equitable jurisdiction of the district court cannot be invoked to require an accounting of a trustee appointed under an agreement between the prospective heirs of a decedent, where the trustee has already rendered an account to the plaintiff, the correctness of which is not questioned, and under the agreement he was required only to account to the executrices of the decedent, who had not yet been appointed. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

Courts of concurrent jurisdiction.—A state court has jurisdiction of a suit to forfeit a corporate franchise, when brought before the appointment of a receiver by federal court. Palestine Water & Power Co. v. City of Palestine, 91 T. 540, 44 S. W. 814, 40 L. R. A. 203.

The court which first acquires jurisdiction over a controversy should maintain it, undisturbed by the interference of any other court of co-ordinate jurisdiction. Stone v. Byars, 32 C. A. 154, 73 S. W. 1086.

Consideration of a petition for the appointment of a receiver for a corporation by judge held an assumption of jurisdiction over the corporation's property, precluding a subsequent attachment from operating as a lien thereon. Worden v. Pruter, 40 C. A. 118, 88 S. W. 434.

When the power of a court of jurisdiction is first invoked to seize and administer property, its jurisdiction is exclusive, and no other court of concurrent jurisdiction may interfere to materially disturb or hinder it in the exercise of its authority and jurisdiction over the res. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 47 C. A. 162, 103 S. W. 836.

The jurisdiction of a district court appointing a receiver of a debtor's property held exclusive, and the district court of another county cannot interfere therewith. Kittrell v. First Nat. Bank, 56 C. A. 395, 120 S. W. 1104.

District court held without jurisdiction to enjoin prosecution of a similar suit between the same parties previously begun in another district court. Harrison v. Littlefield, 57 C. A. 617, 124 S. W. 212.

Where petitions for the appointment of a receiver of the same property of a railroad company were presented to two district judges, the one to whom it was first presented acquired jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the parties. Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 741.

Control over county courts.—A district court cannot enjoin sale under execution of county court. Lincoln v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 278.

The district court has no jurisdiction to enjoin the enforcement of an invalid execution of the county court. Wingfield v. Hackney, 30 C. A. 39, 69 S. W. 446.

By reason of a demand for damages for the detention of property held, that the district court had jurisdiction of a cause praying for interference with a judgment of the county court. Chriswell v. Lussier (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 552.

The district court held without power to restrain a judgment of the county court within its constitutional jurisdiction. New York Chemical Co. v. Spell Bros., 56 C. A. 315, 120 S. W. 579.

Non-resident parties—In general.—As to jurisdiction of suits against non-residents of this state, see McMullen v. Guest, 6 T. 275; Campbell v. Wilson, 6 T. 379; Tulane v. McKee, 10 T. 335; Ward v. Lathrop, 11 T. 287; Butterworth v. Kinsey, 14 T. 495; Haggerty v. Ward, 25 T. 144; Hays v. Barrera, 26 T. 78; Mickie v. McGehee, 27 T. 134; Ward v.

McKenzie, 33 T. 297, 7 Am. Rep. 261; Graham v. Boynton, 35 T. 712; M. M. Ins. Co. v. Brown, 38 T. 230; Armendiaz v. Serna, 40 T. 291; Battle v. Carter, 44 T. 485; Wilson v. Zeigler, 44 T. 657; Johnson v. Herbert, 45 T. 304; Hewitt v. Thomas, 46 T. 232; Trevino v. Trevino, 54 T. 261; Stephens v. Stephens, 62 T. 337; Schmidt & Zeigler v. Stern & Martin, 2 App. C. C. § 92; P. & A. L. Ins. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 1 App. C. C. § 1346.

It would seem that where the plaintiff resides in this state it is not necessary that the defendant should reside or have property in this state, or that the cause of action should have arisen therein. Butterworth v. Kinsey, 14 T. 495.

A non-resident can sue a non-resident to foreclose a mortgage lien on land. Battle v. Carter, 44 T. 485.

A non-resident can be sued in the courts of this state without bringing before the courts such of his effects as are within the state. Rice v. Peteet, 66 T. 568. Jurisdiction is acquired over a plaintiff by his voluntary submission of a cause of action to the court, and one instituting proceedings for the revision of the action of an inferior court thereby gives to the court exercising appellate or revisory power jurisdiction over his person. Jurisdiction over a defendant is acquired by his voluntary appearance, or the service upon him of such process as the law provides. Glass v. Smith, 66 T. 548, 2 S. W. 195.

A resident creditor can proceed directly against the property of a non-resident debtor. He may also proceed against a third party who has converted the debtor's property to his own use. Williams v. Beasley, 25 S. W. 321, 5 C. A. 408; Boydston v. Morris, 71 T. 698, 10 S. W. 331; Veck v. Holt, 71 T. 715, 9 S. W. 743; Ward v. Green (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 574.

Texas courts have jurisdiction over action, brought by citizen of the republic of Mexico, for breach of contract that was to be executed in that republic by an Illinois corporation. American Well Works v. De Aguayo (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 350.

The courts of a county held to have jurisdiction to try a transitory action between non-residents of the state, defendant having voluntarily come into such county and been duly served. Bowman v. Flint, 37 C. A. 28, 82 S. W. 1049.

Kansas railroad may be sued in Texas by residents of Kansas on a cause of action arising in Kansas. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kellerman, 39 C. A. 274, 87 S. W. 401.

The court held not authorized, at the suit of a non-resident, to restrain another non-resident from proceeding in the courts of another state. Lightfoot v. Murphy, 47 C. A. 112, 104 S. W. 511.

As a general rule, neither citizenship nor residence is requisite to entitle a person to sue in the courts of Texas. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.

A Texas court of equity cannot render a decree restraining non-resident officers of a foreign insurance company from canceling the certificate of a resident of Texas. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy, 51 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.

The district court of G. county had jurisdiction of a non-resident's suit against a foreign railroad corporation, where a domestic corporation owning the part of the line in the county was a mere subcorporation of the foreign corporation. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Hale (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 411.

—— Personal judgment against.—In the partition of land a personal judgment for costs cannot be rendered against a non-resident owner. Pool v. Lamm (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 363.

In foreclosing a lien on land a personal judgment cannot be rendered against a non-resident. Spence v. Morris (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 405. Citing Kimmarle v. Railway Co., 76 T. 695, 6 S. W. 698; Scott v. Streepy, 73 T. 547; 11 S. W. 532; Foote v. Sewall, 81 T. 659, 17 S. W. 373.

No sovereignty can extend its process beyond its own territorial limit to subject either person or property to its judicial decisions. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

Foreign consuls.—The courts of Texas have jurisdiction of actions by or against consuls of foreign countries temporarily residing in this state. Redmond v. Smith, 22 C. A. 323, 54 S. W. 636.

Causes of action arising outside of state—In general.—A citizen of another state can come into the courts of Texas to enforce against a Texas railway a liability of a transitory nature arising wholly in such other state. Sorkin v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 608.

Liability in a transitory action may be enforced in the courts of any state obtaining jurisdiction of defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Godair Commission Co., 39 C. A. 298, 87 S. W. 871.

The right of a court of one state to take jurisdiction of a transitory action founded on an occurrence in another, if not contrary to the public policy of the forum, arises from comity. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.

Non-residence of the parties does not, in the absence of a statute of the forum to that effect, deprive the court of jurisdiction of a tort occurring outside of its state. Id.

A suit cannot be maintained in this state to compel specific performance of a contract to convey land located in the republic of Mexico. Combest v. Glenn (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 112.

—— Personal injuries.—Courts of Texas will not take jurisdiction of an action for negligence governed by the laws of Mexico, some of which are unenforceable in Texas, where there was no obstacle to the plaintiff bringing his action in the Mexican courts. Jones v. Mexican Cent. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 186.

Action for injuries by plaintiff's being struck by a railroad engine held transitory, and properly brought in a county in Texas in which defendant operated its road, though the cause of action arose in New Mexico. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Keller, 33 C. A. 358, 76 S. W. 801.

A citizen of Arizona injured in New Mexico held not barred from maintaining an action therefor in Texas by the New Mexico statute, requiring actions for such injuries to be brought in its own courts. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sowers (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 190.

The courts of Texas held to possess jurisdiction of an action by an employé for injuries received in Arizona. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.

A citizen of Arizona injured there through negligence of a corporation foreign to Texas was entitled to maintain an action in Texas for the injuries. Southern Pac. Co. v. Godfrey, 48 C. A. 616, 107 S. W. 1135.

An employé residing in California and injured in New Mexico could not be compelled by a law of the territory to bring suit there or forego his right to recover. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 53 C. A. 359, 116 S. W. 852.

At common law an employé may sue for personal injury wherever he may find the wrongdoer. Id.

An action for tort to the person held transitory, so that the courts of one state may acquire jurisdiction of actions for torts based on acts or omissions done or occurring in sister states. Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Street, 57 C. A. 194, 122 S. W. 270.

A court in a state other than that in which an injury to plaintiff's wife occurred as the result of a railroad wreck held to have jurisdiction of the subject-matter. Southern Pac. Co. v. Blake (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 668.

Circumstances stated held to give the district court jurisdiction of a suit by a nonresident against a foreign railroad corporation for injury occurring in another state. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Arms (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1164.

The courts of Texas had no jurisdiction of an action for the wrongful death of plaintiffs' intestate in the republic of Mexico, due to an accident which occurred there, though the petition alleged that the death would not have occurred but for the negligence of defendants in not performing their contract obligation to provide proper hospital services and competent surgical attention. De Herrera v. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 594.

—— Actions concerning chattels.—The courts have jurisdiction of a suit against a railroad company organized in the state, for damages to chattels in another state, inflicted while plaintiff was a citizen therein. Goldman v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 708.

Equity held to acquire jurisdiction where it has jurisdiction over defendant, though the subject-matter of the controversy is not within the jurisdiction. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

An action for conversion held transitory. Id.

—— Effect of foreign laws.—A right of action given by the laws of another state cannot be enforced by suit in a Texas court, when the right claimed is denied at common law, and is not secured by the constitution or statutes of this state. Railway Co. v. Richards, 68 T. 375, 4 S. W. 627; Railway Co. v. McCormick, 71 T. 660, 9 S. W. 540; Railway Co. v. Jackson, 33 S. W. 857, 31 L. R. A. 276, 59 Am. St. Rep. 28; Id., 32 S. W. 230.

Where the wrongful act occurred in Mexico and the laws of that country gave no right of action, an action did not lie in this state, though the death occurred here. De Ham v. Mexican Nat. Ry. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 249; De Harn v. Same, 23 S. W. 381, 86 T. 68; Willis v. Mo. Pac. R. Co., 61 T. 432, 48 Am. Rep. 301.

A contract for the sale of chattels, made and to be performed in Arkansas, where it was unenforceable, could not be enforced in Texas. Jones v. National Cotton Oil Co., 31 C. A. 420, 72 S. W. 248.

A certain fact held to show conclusively that it is not against the public policy of a state to entertain jurisdiction of an action based on an act occurring elsewhere. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.

Where the law of the state in which an action is brought and the law of the state in which the cause of action arose both give a right of action, and the redress given the injured party in the state where the cause of action arose may be enforced in the former state, the courts thereof have jurisdiction. Id.

The laws of Tennessee relating to actions for causing death, being similar to the laws of Texas, are enforceable by the courts of the latter state. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Sizemore, 53 C. A. 491, 116 S. W. 403.

A court of one state taking jurisdiction of an action for tort to persons based on acts or omissions done or occurring in a sister state must apply the law of the state where the action arose. Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Street, 57 C. A. 194, 122 S. W. 270.

The right of the courts of one state to take jurisdiction of causes of action for torts to persons based on acts or omissions done or occurring in sister states held not affected by the fact that there is a dissimilarity between the laws of the two states as applicable to the action. Id.

Jurisdiction of a cause of action for death arising under a statute in another jurisdiction held not defeated by the fact that the right of action under that statute is given to other persons than have the right of action in the courts of the forum. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1165.

Jurisdiction of a cause of action for death arising under a statute of another state held not defeated by the fact that distress of the wife of deceased is an element of damages in the state where the action arose, and not under the law of the forum. Id.

Jurisdiction of a cause of action for death, arising under a statute of another state, held not defeated by the right to recover in the state where the cause of action arose for pain and suffering of deceased, which are not elements of damages in the state where the action is brought. Id.

Jurisdiction to maintain an action for the death of a locomotive engineer, which arises under a statute of another state, held not defeated by the existence in the other state of the common-law doctrine as to liability for acts of fellow servants, and its modification in the state where suit is brought, so as to exclude injuries to railroad employés. Id.

Jurisdiction of a cause of action for death of a locomotive engineer, which arises under a statute of another state, held not defeated by a provision in the act incorporating defendant in the other state, exempting it from liability for the death of an employé. Id.

Where a cause of action for death accrues under the laws of another state, and such laws allow damages for loss of decedent's society and the expenses of his death and burial, and the mental suffering of the survivors, the courts of the forum can allow recovery therefor, although not recognized by the laws of the forum; a right of action for death existing under the laws of the forum. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gross (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1173.

The right of action for the wrongful death of an employé, though given under the statute of a foreign state, is transitory and goes with the person having the right of action, and it may be enforced in the courts of the local forum unless contrary to their public policy. Rivera v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 223.

Interstate commerce—Determination of jurisdiction.—A complaint in an action against a carrier, in a state court, held not objectionable as raising a question of interstate commerce, over which federal courts alone have jurisdiction. Porter v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 479, 121 S. W. 897.

In a state court a shipper in cases of interstate carriage can, by the principles of the common law, be accorded relief from unjust and unreasonable freight rates exacted from him, even though such unreasonable rates have been filed and promulgated by the carrier under the interstate commerce act. This case is one where the common carrier, in violation of the common law has charged and collected from the shipper a freight rate inherently exorbitant and unreasonable, and the court below had the power to try the case. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 28 C. A. 366, 85 S. W. 1053.

Where a state statute provides a remedy for the enforcement of an employer's liability for the death of an employé, and an act of congress provides a similar remedy where the parties were engaged in interstate commerce, the state courts are not necessarily ousted of jurisdiction unless the act of congress expressly provides for exclusive jurisdiction, or the terms of the act necessarily imply exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts; and there being nothing in said act of congress excluding the jurisdiction of state courts, and no proof in an action that the parties were engaged in interstate commerce, the petition alleging intrastate commerce, and the line being operated under a state charter, and the evidence failing to show any interstate commerce, the state court has jurisdiction. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Blalack (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 706.

The question of jurisdiction between the state and federal courts is to be determined by the averments of the petition, and not by the federal questions presented by the answer. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Roff Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1194.

The federal courts are entitled to jurisdiction only when the facts necessary to confer such jurisdiction appear with reasonable clearness and certainty. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Rosenbloom (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 175.

—— Interstate passengers.—The district court of El Paso county held to have jurisdiction of an action against an interstate carrier for breach of contract to transport safely. El Paso & N. E. Ry. Co. v. Sawyer, 56 C. A. 195, 119 S. W. 107.

—— Interstate shipments.—The state courts are not without jurisdiction to interpret a tariff adopted by a railroad, though it is interstate and established and required by an act of congress. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Roff Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1194.

An action by a shipper against a railroad to recover an alleged agreed rebate on an interstate shipment held not to present a federal question conferring jurisdiction exclusively on the federal courts. Id.

Where the failure of a railroad company to furnish cars requested for an interstate shipment of cattle caused the shipper injury, the right of action, while one which might be removed to the federal courts, falls within the jurisdiction of the state court. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Matador Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 461.

The state courts have jurisdiction of an action against a carrier for the conversion of an interstate shipment, though the shipper has filed a complaint with the interstate commerce commission and the carrier has appeared and answered. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

—— Employés of interstate carrier.—A state court held to have jurisdiction of actions enforcing an employer's liability for death of an employé. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Blalack (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 706.

The federal courts held not to have jurisdiction of an action for a railroad employé's death under the federal employer's liability act where the employés whose negligence caused his death were not engaged in interstate commerce. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Rosenbloom (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 175.

Causes arising under the Carmack amendment, relating to interstate commerce, are cognizable by state courts. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 309.

Actions affecting land outside of state.—An action for injuries done to land situated beyond the limits of this state, when no part of the injury was permitted or performed within this state, is purely local, and cannot be maintained in any court in this state. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Cullers, 81 T. 382, 17 S. W. 19.

The court of one state has not the power to compel the cancellation of a deed of land in another state. Paul v. Chenault (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 682.

A Texas court has jurisdiction of a suit to set aside a sale of land therein because of fraud, though the consideration was land in another state to which defendant had no title. Paul v. Chenault (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 579.

Habeas corpus.—The amendment of the constitution confers upon the district court power to issue writs of habeas corpus, at the instance of parents, to determine the custody of their minor child, which they had previously relinquished to another. Legate v. Legate, 28 S. W. 281, 87 T. 248.

Courts of Texas held to have jurisdiction in habeas corpus proceedings to determine the custody of an infant. Campbell v. Storer, 101 T. 82, 104 S. W. 1047.

Rules.—A district court has power to adopt any rule of procedure in a case of which it has acquired jurisdiction by which the facts may be brought before it to enable it to decide the case. Ashford v. Goodwin, 103 T. 491, 131 S. W. 535, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 699.

Waiver or consent.—The want of jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the suit may be set up at any time. Waiver or consent as to the jurisdiction of subject-matter, where the court does not possess it, will not give it. Fitzhugh v. Custer, 4 T. 391, 51 Am. Dec. 728; Horan v. Wahrenberger, 9 T. 313, 58 Am. Dec. 145; Evans v. Pigg, 28 T. 586;

Neil v. State, 43 T. 91; Griffin v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 1099. Consent will give jurisdiction of the person. P. & A. L. Ins. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 1 App. C. C. § 1346.

Consent will not give jurisdiction of subject-matter. Horan v. Wahrenberger, 9 T. 313, 58 Am. Dec. 145; Neill v. State, 43 T. 91; Fitshugh v. Custer, 4 T. 391, 51 Am. Dec. 728; Griffin v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 1099; McMahan v. Dennis, 1 App. C. C. § 1209.

Jurisdiction over subject-matter cannot be obtained by consent. Mercer v. Wood, 33 C. A. 642, 78 S. W. 15; Trinity Life & Annuity Society v. Love, 102 T. 277, 116 S. W. 1139.

Failure of defendant to question the authority of the lower court to try and proceed with the cause precludes it from raising that question on appeal. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Matador Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 461.

Parties cannot, independently of constitutional or statutory provision, confer judicial authority; and, where this is attempted, a judgment by the appointee is a nullity. Summerlin v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 890.

Parties may not by agreement confer jurisdiction on courts or create courts. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 696.

Art. 1713. [1107] [1123] To grant all remedial writs.—The judge of the district court shall have authority, either in term time or in vacation, to grant writs of mandamus, injunction, sequestration, attachment, garnishment, certiorari and supersedeas, and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of the court. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 4. P. D. 1407.]

Remedial process in general.—Section 8, article 5, of the constitution, and the legislation thereon, do not confer upon district courts a supervisory control over justice courts, as was given by the constitutions of 1845 and 1869. Seele v. State ex rel., 1 C. A. 495, 20 S. W. 946.

As to the power of the judge in granting remedial process, see Lyons Hardware Co. v. Perry Stove Mfg. Co., 27 S. W. 100, 88 T. 468; Harrison v. Waterberry (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 430.

A court of equity, by virtue of its ancillary powers, may grant orders for the inspection of property, where it is shown to be necessary for the proper exercise of judicial functions or the attainment of justice. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1064.

Injunction.—See, also, notes under Art. 1705 and under Title 69.

District courts, as courts of general jurisdiction, are empowered by law to issue and try injunctions. Kruegel v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 216; Burns v. Burns, 126 S. W. 333.

All that is necessary to the exercise of jurisdiction, once obtained by the issuance of an injunction, is that the subject to be embraced in the decree is something incidental to the cause of action which originally gave the court jurisdiction, or so closely connected with it as to render its determination necessary to the final decision of the whole controversy between the parties. Edrington v. Allsbrooks, 21 T. 186; Willis v. Gordon, 22 T. 243; Bourke v. Vanderlip, 22 T. 221; Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. 384; Anderson County v. Kennedy, 58 T. 616; Chambers v. Cannon, 62 T. 293; Smith v. Woods, 1 App. C. C. § 681.

An injunction can be issued in cases in which a court of chancery would have power to issue it, and without reference to the amount in controversy. Anderson County v. Kennedy, 58 T. 616; Stein v. Frieberg, 64 T. 271.

The power of the district court to issue writs of injunction extends to cases involving title to land, or where the enforcement of a lien on land is sought. Day v. Chambers, 62 T. 190.

When the district court has obtained jurisdiction of a cause by reason of an injunction to restrain the sale of property levied on under execution, it rightfully retains the cause for the purpose of decreeing damages for detention of property by the officer and plaintiff in execution. Chambers v. Cannon, 62 T. 293.

Under the constitution the district court has no power to enjoin the prosecution of actions in the county court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cleburne Ice & Cold Storage Co., 37 C. A. 334, 83 S. W. 1100.

In a suit by a grantor in a deed of trust to restrain a sale of his homestead, the payee of the note thereby secured held entitled to present a cross-action on the note, though amounting to less than $500, the jurisdictional amount in equity. Walker v. Woody, 40 C. A. 346, 89 S. W. 789.

The district court has the power to enjoin a party from using certain premises as a gaming house. Ex parte Allison, 48 Cr. R. 643, 90 S. W. 493, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 622, 13 Ann. Cas. 684.

The district court has no jurisdiction to enjoin the execution of a county court judgment irregular, but not void. Jennings v. Munden, 46 C. A. 520, 102 S. W. 945.

The district court has jurisdiction to issue an injunction to restrain a druggist from selling liquor, in violation of law. Ex parte Roper, 61 Cr. R. 68, 134 S. W. 334.

Mandamus.—The remedy in general, see Title 89.

The amount in controversy does not control the jurisdiction of the district court, and in a proper case it would have jurisdiction by the writ of mandamus to compel the county commissioners' court to approve or disapprove an official bond. Luckey v. Short, 1 C. A. 5, 20 S. W. 723.

The district court held to have jurisdiction of a mandamus proceeding to compel a county auditor to sign a warrant, regardless of the amount involved. Anderson v. Ashe, 99 T. 447, 90 S. W. 872.

District court held to have jurisdiction of petition for mandamus to commissioners' court of county to compel entry of order that drafts be drawn on treasurer. Denman v. Coffee, 42 C. A. 78, 91 S. W. 800.

Certiorari.—The remedy in general, see Title 21.

Certiorari in the district court to review orders of the county court in the administration of a decedent's estate held a direct and not a collateral attack; and the orders may be set aside for irregularities rendering them voidable only. Wade v. Scott (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 675.

Prohibition.—Under the present constitution the district court is powerless to grant and perpetuate a writ of prohibition against proceedings about to be had in the justice court. Seele v. State, 1 C. A. 495, 20 S. W. 946.

Art. 1714. Judge may exercise all powers, etc., in vacation, by consent of parties, except, etc.—The judges of the district courts may in vacation, by consent of the parties, exercise all powers, make all orders, and perform all acts, as fully as in term time, and may, by consent of the parties, try any case without a jury and enter final judgment, except in divorce cases. All such proceedings shall be conducted under the same rules as if done in term time; and the right of appeals and writ of error shall apply as if the acts had been done in term time. [Acts 1909, S. S., p. 352.]

Exercise of power in vacation.—The judge's sustaining a motion in vacation to strike from the record a bill of exceptions is a nullity, and cannot be considered on appeal. Ford v. Liner, 24 C. A. 353, 59 S. W. 943.

Judges of the district court may grant a writ of mandamus in vacation. Dunnagan v. Wingfield (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 288.

Under this article a judge of the district court may by consent of the parties make an order in vacation extending the time within which to file a statement of facts and bill of exceptions. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox, 105 T. 40, 143 S. W. 606.

The consent required by this article need not be in writing, and, where a judge has made an order that he may make only by consent, an appellate court must presume that consent was given. Id.

Under this article, an order changing the venue of habeas corpus proceedings on application of the respondent, opposed by the relator only on the ground that the residence of the relator drew to it the residence of his son, for whose custody the proceedings were prosecuted, and that the venue was properly laid, is appealable, though the entire proceedings took place in vacation. Finney v. Walker (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 679.

Where the trial judge enters an order in vacation extending the time in which to file statements of facts and bills of exceptions, it should be presumed that he had the consent of the parties, although the record is silent in regard to any such consent. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 265.

An order of the judge, made in vacation, after trial and adjournment of court, incorporating certain depositions in the record, was without authority and ineffectual for that purpose. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Wilroy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 840.

Art. 1715. [1108] [1124] May alternate, etc.—Any judge of the district court may hold courts for or with any other district judge; and the judges of the several district courts may exchange districts whenever they may deem it expedient to do so. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 202, sec. 15. P. D. 1418.]

Presiding in other districts.—A judge of one district court may preside over another district court at the request of the judge of that court, as provided by Const. art. 5, § 11, and this article. Marx v. Weir (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 621.

Under this article, the regular presiding judge of a district may vacate the bench, and the judge of another district may hold court for him. Hart v. State, 61 Cr. R. 509, 134 S. W. 1178.

Art. 1716. [1109] [1125] May appoint attorney to represent pauper.—The judge of the district court shall also have power to appoint counsel to attend to the cause of any party who may make affidavit that he is too poor to employ counsel to attend to the same. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 202, sec. 11. P. D. 1414.]

Art. 1717. [1110] [1126] Other powers and authority.—In addition to the foregoing powers and jurisdiction, the district courts and the judges thereof shall have such authority as is, or may be, vested in them by law.

Jurisdiction over oil and gas wells.—See Art. 7853.

Charge to grand jury as to local option.—See Art. 5730.

Constitutional Powers.—Under article 5, section 22, of the constitution, the legislature has power to divest the civil and criminal jurisdiction of county courts and transfer the same to the district court. Mora v. State, 9 App. 406.

CHAPTER FOUR

THE TERMS OF THE DISTRICT COURT

Art.
1718. Terms of court.
1719. Terms of court in unorganized counties.
1720. Special terms may be held, when; time; jury commissioners; grand and petit juries, etc.
1721. Grand jury, selection, etc., duties.
1722. Indictment at special term, arraignment on.
1723. No new civil cases to be brought to special term.
1724. Juries, how summoned, business transacted, etc.
1725. Adjournment of term, when and how made.
1726. Extension of term of court, when, etc., effect as to term in another county.

Article 1718. [1111] [1127] Terms of court.—The several judges of the district courts shall hold the regular terms of their said courts at the county seat of each county in the district twice in each year, unless additional terms should be prescribed by law, and shall hold such special terms as may be required by law. [Const., art. 5, sec. 7.]

Cited, Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 366.

Statutes.—Statute passed while court is in session, adding a week to its term, held not to terminate the term. Keaton v. State, 41 Cr. R. 621, 57 S. W. 1125.

Authority of judges as to terms.—The time of holding court in the various districts is prescribed by article 30. When the statute allows a term of the court to remain open until the business of the term is disposed of, it is for the judge to determine when the term shall be closed; but having adjourned for the term, he cannot by an order made in vacation reopen the court. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 62 T. 185.

This article does not preclude a special judge from presiding at a special term of the court. Texas Central R. Co. v. Bender, 32 C. A. 568, 75 S. W. 561.

Art. 1719. [1112] Terms of court in unorganized counties.—Whenever any unorganized county within this state has become organized, or may hereafter become organized, there being no time fixed by law for holding district court in such counties, the district judge in whose judicial district such county is situated shall fix times to hold at least two terms of court each year in each of such counties, by a written declaration, to be forwarded by the district judge to the district clerk of the county, and by him spread on the minutes of the district court. When the times are so fixed they shall not be changed, except by an act of the legislature. [Acts of 1882, p. 4.]

Constitutionality.—This statute is constitutional. Ex parte Mato, 19 App. 112.

Art. 1720. Special terms may be held when; time; jury commissioners; grand and petit juries, etc.—Whenever it may become advisable, in the opinion of a district judge, to hold a special term or terms of the district court in any county in his district, such special term or terms may be held; and such district judge may convene such special term at any time which may be fixed by him. Such district judge may appoint jury commissioners, who may select and draw grand and petit jurors in accordance with the law. Such jurors may be summoned to appear before such district court at such time as may be designated by the judge thereof; provided, that in the discretion of the district judge, a grand jury need not be drawn or impaneled. [Acts 1879, p. 42. Acts 1905, p. 116.]

Cited, Ex parte Martinez (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

Constitutional and statutory provisions.—This act was evidently intended to amend the general act of Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, and especially article 1113 of said act. Formerly the judge of the district court could only call a special term for the disposition of business undisposed of, while under the new act he may call a special term whenever he may deem it advisable. He can call a special term merely for the purpose of sentencing one whose conviction was affirmed by the appellate court, when the mandate was not received by the trial court before it adjourned for the term. Ex parte Young, 49 Cr. R. 536, 95 S. W. 100.

That part of articles 1113 and 1114, Rev. St. 1895, which requires an order for a special term of the district court to be made at a preceding term, is eliminated by the act of 1905, which authorizes the making of the order in vacation. Ex parte Boyd, 50 Cr. R. 309, 96 S. W. 1080.

Articles 1114, 1115, and 1116, Rev. St. 1895, were not inconsistent with this article as amended in 1905, and hence were not repealed thereby. Jowell v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 886.

This article is a valid exercise of legislative power under Const. art. 5, § 7, which declares that the legislature shall have power to authorize the holding of special terms of court, or the holding of more than two terms in any county for the dispatch of business. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

Power to call.—The judges cannot order a session at a time and in a manner not provided for by law. Chambers v. Hodges, 3 T. 517. Judgment cannot be pronounced except at a lawful term. Crosby v. Huston, 1 T. 244.

The regular district judge alone has power to create a special term. McAllen v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 760.

This act authorizes a district judge to make an order in vacation for the holding of a special term of the district court. The spreading of the order on the minutes on the convening of the special term in connection with the proceedings is sufficient. Ex parte Boyd, 50 Cr. R. 309, 96 S. W. 1080.

The right and discretion to select jury commissioners is confided in the judge and not subject to review. Columbo v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 910.

Time for holding.—Term of court convened by the district judge after adjournment of the regular term, but within the time during which the regular term might have continued, held to be a special term, and hence its orders were not invalid on the ground that the regular term could not be reopened in that manner. Mayhew v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 191.

Proceedings for call.—A homicide was committed on July 22d, and relator was accused, and on July 24th the district judge convened a special term in the district court in accordance with all the necessary requirements of this article. Relator was indicted for murder by a duly organized grand jury, served with a copy of the indictment, and his trial set for July 28th, at which time neither the counsel employed for him nor counsel appointed for him by the court questioned the legality of any of the proceedings or reserved any exceptions to the denial of a continuance nor to the impaneling of the jury. He was found guilty of murder in the first degree, sentenced to death, and his motion for new trial was overruled, and his counsel stated in open court that no appeal would be taken. Held that, as the proceedings were in all respects regular, no relief could be granted to accused under his writ of habeas corpus, and that he would be remanded to custody. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

Whatever doubt there may have been on this point previous thereto, under this article and section 4 of the final title, which provides that all civil statutes of a general nature in force when that revision takes effect and which are not included therein, or thereby expressly continued in force, are thereby repealed, and which nowhere requires previous notice of the time of such special terms or publication thereof, nor continues in force statutes relative to such notice or publication, such notice and publication are not required. Mayhew v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 191.

Matters which may be considered.—Under this act a district judge can call a special term of court merely for the purpose of sentencing one whose conviction has been affirmed by the appellate court, where the mandate was not delivered to the district court until after the regular term had expired. Ex parte Young, 49 Cr. R. 536, 95 S. W. 100.

Under this article the district judge may call a special term for the trial of new cases. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

The district judge could make orders changing the venue in criminal cases at a term called specially for that purpose and at which no other business was transacted. Mayhew v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 191.

An order changing the venue after reversal was not invalid because made at a special term, the order convening which was made before the mandate reached the district court, where it appeared that the mandate had reached that court before the order changing the venue was made. Id.

Art. 1721. Grand jury, selection, etc., duties.—The grand jury selected, as provided for in the last preceding article, shall be duly impaneled, and shall proceed to the discharge of its duties as at a regular term of the district court. [Id.]

Art. 1722. Indictment at special term, arraignment on.—Any person indicted by the grand jury impaneled at a special term of the district court may be placed upon trial at such special term. [Id.]

Art. 1723. [1117] No new civil cases to be brought to special term.—No new civil cases can be brought to a special term of the district court. [Id.]

Art. 1724. [1118] Juries, how summoned, business transacted, etc.—The juries for any special term shall be summoned in accordance with the law regulating juries at regular terms of court; and at any special term all proceedings may be had in any case which could be had at any regular term of such court; and all process issued to a previous regular term or to such special term, and all orders, judgments and decrees, and all proceedings had in any case, criminal or civil, which would be lawful if had at a regular term, shall have the same force and effect; and any proceeding had may be appealed from under the same rules, regulations and limitations as provided for in appeals from regular terms of court. [Acts 1879, p. 42.]

Art. 1725. [1119] [1128] Adjournment of term, when and how made.—Should the judge of any district court not appear at the time appointed for holding the same, and should no election of a special judge be had, the sheriff of the county, or in his default any constable of the county, shall adjourn the court from day to day for three days; and if the judge should not appear on the morning of the fourth day, and should no special judge have been elected, the sheriff or constable, as the case may be, shall adjourn the court until the next regular term thereof. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 203, sec. 9. P. D. 1412.]

Failure of judge to appear.—The word "morning," as used in this article, includes the period of time between sunrise and 12 o'clock m., and if the sheriff of a county fails to adjourn the court on the morning of the fourth day of the term when the district judge had not appeared during the term until that time, and the judge should appear at any time before 12 o'clock m. of the fourth day and proceed to hold the term, a previous election of a special judge on the morning of that day would not invest him with authority to preside as judge for the term. Railway Co. v. Douglass, 69 T. 694, 7 S. W. 77.

Under this article, together with articles 1678 and 1684, held that, where a special judge was duly elected, his absence for more than three days did not adjourn the term where he directed the sheriff to open court and adjourn each day until the next day. Creed v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 240.

Reopening after adjournment.—After the adjournment of a term the district judge has no power to reopen his court for any purpose. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 62 T. 185.

Art. 1726. Extension of term of court when, etc., effect as to term in another county.—Whenever any district court shall be in the midst of the trial of any cause when the time for the expiration of the term of said court, as fixed by law, shall arrive, the judge presiding shall have the power and may, if he deems it expedient, extend the term of said court until the conclusion of such pending trial. In such case, the extension of such term shall be shown in the minutes of the court before they are signed. In case of the extension of the term of court, as herein provided, no term of court shall fail because thereof in any other county, but the term of court therein may be opened and held as now provided by law, when the district judge fails to appear at the opening of a term of court. [Acts 1909, p. 114.]

CHAPTER FIVE

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE DISTRICT COURT

Art.		Art.
1727.	Minutes to be read and signed.	1729.	Seal of the court.
1728.	Of proceedings before special judge.	1730.	When clerk has no seal.

Article 1727. [1120] [1129] Minutes to be read and signed.—The minutes of the proceedings of each preceding day of the session shall be read in open court on the morning of the succeeding day, except on the last day of the session, on which day they shall be read, and if necessary corrected and signed in open court by the judge. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 202, sec. 12. P. D. 1415.]

Cited, Reasonover v. Riley Bros. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 220.

Making and signing.—The judge's notes upon his docket not carried into the minutes of the court are not on appeal evidence of the action of the court. Massie v. State Nat. Bank, 11 C. A. 280, 23 S. W. 797.

Judgments not invalidated by failure of judge to sign minutes of term. Cannon v. Hemphill, 7 T. 184; Jordan v. State, 37 Cr. R. 222, 38 S. W. 780, 39 S. W. 110.

It is the duty of counsel to either be present at the reading of the minutes or to look over the minutes and see that all proper orders in reference to his case are made. It is no excuse that the clerk told him that such orders were made. Dement v. State, 39 Cr. R. 271, 45 S. W. 917.

No judge is authorized to sign the minutes after the adjournment of the term, nor has the clerk a right to enter the minutes after such time, nor can the judge sign and leave space for the clerk to write the minutes therein after such adjournment. Moore v. State, 46 Cr. R. 517, 81 S. W. 49.

The clerk has no authority after the court has adjourned, to change the minutes. If the minutes are incorrect, the matter should be called to the attention of the judge, by motion, and he can enter an order correcting them so as to show the truth. Farris v. Gilder, 48 C. A. 492, 106 S. W. 896.

Effect.—Under this article and article 1694, and district court rules 53 and 65 (67 S. W. xxiv, xxv), defining the "record proper," and providing that judgments entered on pleadings must be entered at the date when pronounced, the sustaining of special exceptions to a part of a pleading cannot be revised on appeal, where the transcript contains no judgment or record entry showing the ruling, though the bill of exceptions discloses the ruling and exceptions thereto. Daniel v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 469.

The minutes of the court, regularly entered and approved, will control over the judge's minutes on his docket or memorandum, when conflicting. Spain v. State, 59 Cr. R. 538, 128 S. W. 904.

Under this article and article 2058, held, that a statement of the judge in an explanation to a bill of exceptions to the ruling on a demurrer that the demurrer was sustained will not take the place of such showing in the record. Sowers v. Yeoman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1153.

Art. 1728. [1121] [1130] Minutes of proceedings before a special judge.—When a special judge has presided during the term, or a portion thereof, or in the trial of a particular case, he shall sign the minutes of such proceedings as were had before him.

Art. 1729. [1122] [1131] Seal of the court.—Each of the several district courts shall be provided with a seal, having engraved thereon a star of five points in the center and the words, "District Court of ———— County, Texas," the impress of which shall be attached to all process, except subpœnas issued out of such court, and shall be used to authenticate the official acts of the clerk. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 201, sec. 8. P. D. 1411.]

Cited, Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Becton, 103 T. 236, 125 S. W. 883.

Necessity of seal.—All certificates of the clerk to be used elsewhere than in the court of which he is clerk should be authenticated by his official seal. Railroad Co. v. Brown (Sup.) 53 S. W. 1019.

While a seal is not necessary to a court of record, the term "court of record" implies that it has a seal. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533.

Art. 1730. [1123] [1132] When clerk has no seal.—When no such seal has been provided for the court, the clerk may use a scroll until a seal can be procured. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 201, sec. 8. P. D. 1411.]

Special District Courts

The following special courts have been created:

"Special district court of the ninth judicial district," which shall cease to exist December 31, 1914 (Acts 1913, p. 439).

"Special district court of Grayson county," which shall cease to exist December 1, 1914 (Acts 1913, p. 441).

"Special district court of El Paso county," which shall cease to exist December 31, 1914 (Acts 1913, S. S., p. 35).

"Special district court of the fifth judicial district of Texas," which shall cease to exist January 1, 1915 (Acts 1913, S. S., p. 83).

Owing to the short duration of the above courts, the acts relating thereto have been omitted from this compilation.

TITLE 35

COURTS—COUNTY

Chap.
1. The County Judge.
2. The Clerk of the County Court.
3. The Powers and Jurisdiction of the County Court and of the Judge Thereof.
4. The Terms of the County Court for Civil and Probate Business.
5. Miscellaneous Provisions Relating to the County Court.

CHAPTER ONE

THE COUNTY JUDGE

Art.
1731. County judge, election, qualifications and term of office.
1732. Oath of office.
1733. Shall keep office at county seat.
1734. May practice law in certain counties.
1735. Vacancy, how filled.
1736. Disqualification, causes of.
1737. Special county judge appointed by parties.
1738. Governor to appoint special county judge.
1739. Governor to appoint by telegram.
1740. Minutes of court to show proceedings.
1741. Special judges, when and how elected; powers.
1742. Record of election of special judge.

Article 1731. [1124] [1133] County judge, election, qualifications, term of office.—There shall be elected in each county by the qualified voters thereof, at each general election, a county judge, who shall be well informed in the law of the state, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Const., art. 5, sec. 15; art. 16, sec. 17. Act June 10, 1876, p. 17, sec. 1.]

Need not be lawyer.—It is not necessary that a county judge should be a lawyer. Little v. State, 75 T. 616, 12 S. W. 965.

De facto judge.—There cannot be an officer de facto where there is no lawful office. Daniel v. Hutcheson, 22 S. W. 278, 4 C. A. 239.

Conduct of elections.—See Art. 2910 et seq.

Fees.—See Art. 3849 et seq.

Ex officio school superintendent.—See Art. 2763 et seq.

—— Compensation.—See Art. 3886.

Removal.—See Art. 6030 et seq.

Condemnation proceedings.—See Art. 6507.

Appointment of county auditor.—See Art. 1461.

May take acknowledgments.—See Art. 6797.

Art. 1732. [1125] [1134] Oath of office.—The county judge shall, before entering on the duties of his office, execute a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court of his county, in a sum of not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, the amount of said bond to be determined and fixed by the county commissioners' court, payable to the treasurer of his county, conditioned that he will pay over to the person or officer entitled to receive it, all moneys that may come into his hands as county judge, within thirty days after he shall have received the same, and take the oath of office prescribed in the constitution, and the further oath required of the several members of the commissioners' court. [Acts 1883, p. 50.]

Cited, Womble v. Womble (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 473.

Effect of failure to execute satisfactory bond.—Where the official bond of the county judge is considered and disapproved by the commissioners' court, and the judge tenders no other bond, there is a vacancy in the office, which the commissioners are authorized to fill. Gouhenour v. Anderson, 35 C. A. 569, 81 S. W. 104.

Liability of sureties—Contest of election.—Where a county judge's election has been successfully contested the sureties on his bond are not liable to contestant for the salary and fees of office received by such county judge. Rowlett v. White, 18 C. A. 688, 46 S. W. 372.

Sureties on the bond of a county judge held not liable for fees received by him to which he was not entitled. Rice v. Vasmer, 51 C. A. 167, 110 S. W. 1005.

—— Fees wrongfully collected.—An official bond of a county judge to the county treasurer held not a common-law obligation so as to authorize an action thereon to recover fees wrongfully collected by the judge, his conduct in collecting such fees not being official. Rice v. Vasmer, 51 C. A. 167, 110 S. W. 1005.

Art. 1733. [1126] [1135] Shall keep office at the county seat.—The county judge shall keep his office at the county seat of the county and shall attend at said office from day to day. He shall not absent himself from the county or the state without the permission of the commissioners' court, to be entered on the minutes of the court, nor shall he so absent himself with such permission for a longer period than ninety days. [Acts 1883, p. 8.]

Art. 1734. [1127] [1136] May practice law in certain counties.—County judges in those counties wherein the civil or criminal jurisdiction of the county courts has been, or may hereafter be, diminished, shall have the right to practice as attorneys in all justices' and county courts, in cases wherein the courts over which they preside have neither original nor appellate jurisdiction, provided they are licensed lawyers. [Acts 1879, Extra Session, ch. 16.]

Art. 1735. [1128] [1137] Vacancy, how filled.—Any vacancy in the office of the county judge may be filled by the commissioners' court of the county in which such vacancy may occur until the next general election. [Const., art. 5, sec. 28. Act June 10, 1876, p. 17, sec. 1.]

Art. 1736. [1129] [1138] Disqualification; causes of.—No judge of the county court shall sit in any case wherein he may be interested, or where he shall have been of counsel, or where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity within the third degree. [Const., art. 5, sec. 11. Act June 10, 1876, p. 19, sec. 6.]

Grounds of disqualification in general.—See notes under Art. 1675.

Interest.—In a suit upon a bond executed to the county judge under the provisions of article 6251, for the hire of a county convict, the county judge is not disqualified from trying the case. Peters v. Duke, 1 App. C. C. § 304; Grady v. Rogan, 2 App. C. C. § 260.

A judge who with others had signed a subscription contract for the payment of money on certain conditions, the subscribers being severally bound, is competent to try a suit against another subscriber on the same instrument. Dicks v. Austin College, 1 App. C. C. § 1068.

A judge who holds an approved claim against an estate is disqualified from any action therein. His orders affecting the administration of the estate are coram non judice and void. Burks v. Bennett, 62 T. 277.

A sale of land confirmed by the judge who purchased it is void. Frieburg v. Isbell (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 988, citing Templeton v. Giddings (Sup.) 12 S. W. 851; Burks v. Bennett, 62 T. 279.

On a prosecution for violating the local option law, a judge is not disqualified by reason of previous public statements and actions concerning such law. Bateman v. State (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 290.

County judge held not disqualified by interest to try a suit brought by him, as nominal plaintiff, for the use of the county. McInnes v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 537.

Under Act Dec. 29, 1849 (Hart. Dig. art. 336), where the chief justice of the county court was a creditor of the estate, he was disqualified to act in a proceeding to sell land thereof. Moody v. Looscan (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 621.

A judge is not disqualified at a trial for keeping a disorderly house by reason of having attended a meeting of the judges of the state called to devise ways for suppressing disorderly houses. Dailey v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 821.

The fact that the judge who presided at defendant's trial for violation of the local option law was a formal party to an application to contest the validity of the election under which the prosecution was maintained held not to disqualify him from sitting in the case. Truesdell v. State, 42 Cr. R. 544, 61 S. W. 935.

A county judge held disqualified from presiding at a certain trial. Woody v. State (Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 155.

Acting as counsel.—A county judge is not disqualified to try a suit to rescind a sale induced by false representations, because he is the attorney for a party prosecuting a suit in the district court to recover goods sold to the same buyer on the ground that he had made false statements as to his financial condition. Meyers v. Bloon, 20 C. A. 554, 50 S. W. 217.

On a prosecution for a violation of the local option law, the judge held not disqualified from presiding at the trial. Burrell v. State (Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 914.

A county judge who prepared a motion for new trial in behalf of a sheriff in an action against him in justice court, was thereby disqualified to try the case on appeal to county court, even though he knew nothing about the facts and did not consider himself the sheriff's attorney. Gaines v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 583.

When county judge is attorney for a party in the district court he cannot take his client's affidavit to his inability to give security for costs in lieu of writ of error bond. Kalklosh v. Bunting, 40 C. A. 233, 88 S. W. 389.

A county judge is not disqualified from acting in a criminal case, because he is attorney for plaintiff in a civil action against accused in the district court. McIndoo v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 235.

Participation in cause.—A judge is not disqualified to try a suit brought by him in his official capacity, for the use of the county, on a retail liquor dealer's bond. Grady v. Rogan, 2 App. C. C. § 260; Peters v. Duke, 1 App. C. C. § 304; Clack v. Taylor County, 3 App. C. C. § 201.

A county judge who in his official character has conducted proceedings for the opening of a road, and has instructed and advised that suit be brought for the recovery of money wrongfully paid for the right of way, and has employed counsel to represent the interests of the county in a suit brought in his court for the recovery of such money, is not thereby disqualified from trying the case. Clack v. Taylor County, 3 App. C. C. § 201.

The fact that a county judge has presided at the trial of a cause in a justice's court does not disqualify him from hearing such cause on appeal. Beckham v. Rice, 1 C. A. 281, 21 S. W. 389.

The fact that a judicial officer takes the affidavit of a party, charging another with the commission of an offense, does not make him counsel in the case, so as to disqualify him for trying it. Stepp v. State, 53 Cr. R. 158, 109 S. W. 1093.

An attorney, who had advised accused to plead guilty upon a prior indictment for the same offense, held disqualified to sit as special judge in his trial under a second indictment. Durham v. State, 58 Cr. R. 143, 124 S. W. 932.

That the trial judge had theretofore been of counsel in other prosecutions against accused for violating the local option law would not disqualify him as special judge to sit in a prosecution for violating the local option law. Trinkle v. State, 59 Cr. R. 257, 127 S. W. 1060.

Relationship to party—Application.—A judge who is cousin to the wife of a party to a suit is disqualified. T. T. R. R. Co. v. Overton, 1 App. C. C. § 533.

Collateral consanguinity is the relation subsisting among persons who descend from the same common ancestor, but not from each other. Lineal consanguinity is that relationship which exists among persons where one is descended from the other. In computing the degree of lineal consanguinity existing between two persons, every generation in the direct course of relationship between the two parties makes a degree. Thus, brothers are related in the first degree. The mode of computing degrees of collateral consanguinity is to begin with the common ancestor and reckon downwards, and the degree the two persons, or the more remote of them, is distant from the ancestor, is the degree of kindred between them. Thus, an uncle and nephew are related in the second degree. First cousins are related by affinity in the second degree. Id.

When the great-grandfather is the common ancestor of the county judge and of a party to a suit being tried before him, the former is disqualified to try the case under Art. 5492, since the common law method of computing degrees of relationship is the rule in Texas. Baker v. McRimmon (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 742.

Where the great-grandmother of plaintiff's wife, who was interested in an action, and of the judge who tried the same, were the same person, the judge was disqualified by relationship within the third degree. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Looney, 42 C. A. 234, 95 S. W. 691.

That county judge's grandfather and plaintiff's grandmother were brother and sister shows that the judge and plaintiff were related by consanguinity within the third degree, disqualifying the former to try the case. Barnes v. Riley (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 292.

—— "Party," who is.—A judge is not disqualified because he is related to the president of and stockholder in a company which is a party to the suit. Wise County Coal Co. v. Carter Bros., 3 App. C. C. § 306.

An attorney is not a party to a suit within the meaning of the statute. Winston v. Masterson, 87 T. 200, 27 S. W. 768; Patton v. Collier, 13 C. A. 544, 38 S. W. 53.

The wife of a person injured held a party to the suit, within the statute disqualifying a judge because of relationship to either of the parties within the third degree. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Looney, 42 C. A. 234, 95 S. W. 691.

The word "party" herein, and in Const. art. 5, § 11, was not limited to those named as parties in the pleadings, but included all persons directly intersted in the subject-matter and result of the suit, including a purchaser of property sold at a guardian's sale pursuant to an order of the court. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

—— Incapacity cannot be waived.—Where a judge is disqualified to sit in a criminal case because of consanguinity to defendant, the consent of the parties cannot remove his incapacity. Gresham v. State, 43 Cr. R. 466, 66 S. W. 845.

Evidence—Sufficiency.—Evidence held insufficient to show disqualification of county judge. Benson v. State, 39 Cr. R. 56, 44 S. W. 167.

Objections to judge, etc.—Time of making.—Where a judge was absolutely disqualified by relationship, it was immaterial that defendant did not raise the objection until its motion for a new trial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Looney, 42 C. A. 234, 95 S. W. 691.

—— Determination of objections.—Where suggestion of disqualification in a criminal case involves issue of fact, defendant should have opportunity to sustain his allegation, though the judge knows he is not disqualified. Benson v. State, 39 Cr. R. 56, 44 S. W. 167.

Effect on validity of judgment, etc.—A judgment of conviction in a criminal case before a disqualified judge is void. Woody v. State (Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 155.

Art. 1737. [1130] Special county judge may be appointed by parties.—When a judge of the county court is disqualified by any of the causes above stated, the parties may, by consent, appoint a proper person to try such case. [Acts 1893, p. 75.]

Art. 1738. [1131] Governor to appoint special county judge, etc.—Whenever a judge of the county court is disqualified to try a civil case pending in the county court, and the parties shall fail at the first term of the court to agree upon a special judge, it shall be the duty of the judge to certify to the governor that he is disqualified to try such case, and the failure of the parties to agree upon a proper person to try the same, whereupon the governor shall proceed to appoint some person, learned in the law, to try such case. But when a county judge is disqualified to act in probate matters in any cause, he shall forthwith certify his disqualification in such case to the governor, whereupon the governor shall appoint some person to act as special judge in said case, who shall act from term to term until such disqualification ceases to exist. [Id.]

Art. 1739. [1132] Governor to appoint by telegram.—Whenever any case or cases are called, or pending, in which the county judge, or the special judge chosen, as hereinbefore provided, shall be a party, or have an interest, or have been attorney, or of counsel, or otherwise disqualified from sitting in and trying the same, no transfer of, or removal of, shall be made necessary thereby; but the parties, or their counsel, shall have the right to select and agree upon an attorney of the court for the trial thereof; and, if the parties, or their attorneys, shall fail to select or agree upon an attorney for the trial of such case at or before the time it is called for trial, or if the trial of the case is pending and the county judge should become unable to act, or is absent, and a special judge is selected who is disqualified to proceed with the trial, and the parties fail to select or agree upon a special judge who is qualified at once, it shall be the duty of the county judge, or special judge presiding, to certify the fact to the governor immediately, by telegram, mail, or otherwise, whereupon the governor shall appoint a special judge, not so disqualified, to try the same. The evidence of such appointment by the governor may be transmitted by telegram, or otherwise. The special judge, after taking the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, shall proceed to the trial or disposition of such case immediately, if the trial is pending, otherwise when called or reached, as in other cases. Any special judge agreed upon or appointed to try causes shall receive the same pay for his services as is now provided by law for county judges. [Id.]

Art. 1740. [1132a] Minutes of court to show proceedings.—Whenever a special judge is agreed upon by the parties, or is appointed by the governor, for the trial of any particular cause, as above provided, the clerk shall enter in the minutes of the court as a part of the proceedings in such cause a record showing:

1. That the judge of the court was disqualified to try the cause; and
2. That such special judge [naming him] was by consent, agreed upon by the parties to try the cause; or
3. That the parties having failed to agree upon a proper person to try the cause, and the judge of the court having certified that fact to the governor, he had appointed such special judge [naming him] to try the cause; and
4. That the oath prescribed by law has been duly administered to such special judge; provided, that all cases heretofore transferred by the county court to the district court on account of the disqualification of the county judge shall be considered lawful, and the district courts to which such causes have been transferred shall retain jurisdiction thereof. [Id.]

Record of selection.—On appeal from a judgment rendered in a case tried by a special judge the record must show that he was selected and qualified as herein provided. Merrick v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 370.

Art. 1741. Special judges when and how elected; powers.—Should any county judge fail to appear at the time appointed for holding the court, or should he, during the term, be absent, or unable or unwilling to hold the court, a special county judge may be elected in the same manner as is provided for the election of a special judge of the district court, in articles 1678 to 1681, inclusive, so far as applicable, and the special county judge so elected shall have all the power and authority of the county judge while in the trial and disposition of all the cases pending in said court during the absence, inability, or such refusal of the county judge elected. And similar elections may be held, from time to time, during the term, to supply the absence, failure or inability of the county judge, or any special judge, to perform the duties of the office. [Acts 1897, p. 7.]

Constitutionality.—This act providing for the election of a special judge of the county court is constitutional. Porter v. State, 48 Cr. R. 125, 86 S. W. 768.

Eligibility and authority.—The election of a special judge to hold a term of the county court being expressly authorized by this article, a trial before such special judge is before a competent tribunal. Hooper v. State, 62 Cr. R. 105, 136 S. W. 790.

The acting county attorney of a county is not disqualified from acting as special judge in the trial of a case, pursuant to an appointment by the governor. McCammant v. Webb (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 693.

Bond.—Failure to prescribe a bond does not invalidate the election of a special county judge, under this article. Porter v. State, 48 Cr. R. 125, 86 S. W. 767.

Art. 1742. Record of election of special judge.—When a special county judge shall have been so elected, it shall be the duty of the clerk to enter upon the minutes of the court, a record such as is provided for the district court in article 1682, and such record shall have the same force and effect provided for the record of the district court in similar cases in article 1683. [Id.]

For appointment of special county judge in railroad condemnation cases, see Art. 6507.

CHAPTER TWO

THE CLERK OF THE COUNTY COURT

Art.		Art.
1743.	Election and term of office.	1753.	Ex officio clerk of commissioners' court.
1744.	Vacancy, how filled.	1754.	Custody of records of deeds, etc.
1745.	Clerk pro tem, appointed when.	1755.	Custody of records, etc., of said court.
1746.	County clerk pro tem. to qualify and give bond.	1756.	Record of proceedings, judgments.
1747.	Bond and oath.	1757.	Indexes to all judgments.
1748.	May appoint deputies.	1758.	Other dockets, indexes, etc.
1749.	Oath and powers of deputies.	1759.	Report fines and jury fees.
1750.	Clerk shall keep office at county seat.	1760.	Shall pay over jury fees and fines.
1751.	Take acknowledgments and proofs of deeds for record.	1761.	Shall transfer records to his successor.
1752.	Issue marriage licenses and take oaths, depositions, etc.	1762.	To use seal of county court.

Article 1743. [1133] [1142] County clerk, election and term of office.—There shall be a clerk of the county court for each county, who shall be elected at a general election for members of the legislature, by the qualified voters of such county, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Const., art. 5, sec. 20; art. 16, sec. 17.]

Powers.—The clerk of a county court has authority in his official capacity to receive payment of a judgment entered in his court. Roberts v. Powell, 22 C. A. 211, 54 S. W. 643.

Fees.—See Art. 3860.

Removal of clerk.—See Art. 6028 et seq.

Conduct of elections.—See Art. 2910 et seq.

Art. 1744. [1134] [1143] Vacancy in office, how filled.—Whenever a vacancy may, from any cause, occur in the office of clerk of the county court, the same shall be filled by the commissioners' court of the county, and the clerk so appointed shall give bond and qualify in the same manner as if he had been elected, and shall hold his office until the next general election, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Const., art. 5, sec. 20.]

Art. 1745. [1135] County clerk pro tem. appointed, when.—In all cases wherein any county clerk in this state is, or shall hereafter be, a party to any pending or proposed suit, motion or proceeding in his court, the county judge in whose court the same may be pending or proposed shall, either in term time or in vacation, on application of any person interested, or of his own motion, appoint a clerk pro tempore for the purposes of such suit, motion or proceeding. [Acts of 1887, p. 102.]

Art. 1746. [1136] County clerk pro tem. to qualify and give bond.—Any person so appointed clerk shall take the oath to faithfully and impartially perform the duties of such appointment, and shall also enter into bond, payable to the state of Texas, with one or more good and sufficient sureties, in such amount as may be required by the judge, to be approved by him, and conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties under such appointment. The person so appointed shall perform all the duties required by law of the clerk in the particular suit, motion or proceeding in which he may be appointed. [Id.]

Art. 1747. [1137] [1144] Bond and oath.—Each clerk of the county court shall, before entering on the duties of his office, give bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court of the county, payable to the governor and his successors in office, in a sum to be fixed by the commissioners' court, not less than two thousand nor more than ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the safe keeping of the records, and the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and shall also take and subscribe the oath of office required by the constitution, which shall be indorsed upon the bond, and the bond and oath so taken and approved shall be recorded in the county clerk's office, and shall be deposited in the office of the clerk of the district court. A certified copy of such bond may be put in suit in the name of the governor for the use of the party injured, and shall not become void on the recovery of part of the penalty thereof, but may be sued on from time to time by the parties injured, until the whole amount of the penalty is recovered. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 2. P. D. 500.]

Art. 1748. [1138] [1145] May appoint deputies.—The clerk of the county court, whether elected or appointed, shall have power to appoint one or more deputies, by a written appointment under his hand and the seal of his court, which appointment shall be recorded in the office of such clerk of the county court, and shall be deposited in the office of the clerk of the district court. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 3.]

Evidence of appointment.—Under this article and articles 9–14, 2287, and 3687–3713, where a county clerk testified that he had appointed another as deputy, but that the deputation had been mislaid, a record of such deputation, which was acknowledged before a justice of the peace, is admissible in evidence. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 645.

Qualifications.—A deputy clerk of a county need not be a qualified voter. Delaney v. State, 48 Cr. R. 594, 90 S. W. 642.

A woman is not prohibited from acting as deputy clerk of a county. Id.

Art. 1749. [1139] [1146] Oath and power of deputies.—Such deputies shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution. They shall act in the name of their principal, and may do and perform all such official acts as may be lawfully done and performed by such clerk in person. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 4.]

Art. 1750. [1140] [1147] Clerk shall keep office at county seat.—The several clerks of the county court shall keep their offices at the county seat of their respective counties; and, when the clerk does not reside at such county seat, he shall have a deputy or deputies residing there. [Id.]

"County seat."—Under this article and articles 1389, 1397, the "county seat" does not consist merely of the courthouse, jail, and other public buildings, but consists of the town plot of the town designated as the county seat at the time it is so designated. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 810.

Art. 1751. [1141] [1148] Take acknowledgments and proofs of deeds for record, etc.—The clerks of the county court shall have power and it shall be their duty, when applied to for that purpose, to take separate acknowledgment of married women in all cases where such acknowledgment is required or permitted by law to be taken, to the execution of any deed or other instrument in writing, or conveyance executed by them, and to take the acknowledgment of all other persons to deeds or other written instruments or conveyances and to take proof by witnesses of all such deeds, written instruments or conveyances which are required or permitted by law to be so acknowledged or proven for record; and it shall also be their duty to record, in accordance with the registration laws now or hereafter in force, all such deeds, mortgages, deeds of trust or any other instrument in writing, or judgments, which may be permitted or required by law to be recorded. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 5.]

Art. 1752. [1142] [1149] Issue marriage licenses, and take oaths, depositions, etc.—Such clerks shall also be authorized to issue all marriage licenses, to administer all oaths and affirmations, and to take affidavits and depositions to be used as provided by law in any of the courts. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1753. [1143] [1150] Ex officio clerk of commissioners' courts.—Such clerks shall be ex officio clerks of the commissioners' courts of their respective counties; and it shall be their duty to attend upon each term of said court, to issue all notices, writs, and other process required by said courts, to keep the records, books, papers and proceedings of said courts, and see that the same are properly indexed, arranged and preserved, and generally to do and perform such other duties as are, or may be, imposed on them by law as clerks of such courts. [Acts July 22, 1876, p. 52, sec. 8; May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 1.]

Compensation for new indexes part of "fees of office."—See Title 58.

Art. 1754. [1144] [1151] Have custody of records of deeds, etc.—They shall be ex officio recorders for their several counties, and as such shall record in suitable books to be procured for that purpose all deeds, mortgages and other instruments required or permitted by law to be recorded; they shall be the keepers of such record books, and shall keep the same properly indexed, arranged and preserved, and shall do and perform such other duties as are or may be by law required of them as recorders. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 1.]

Art. 1755. [1145] [1152] Custody of records, etc., of said court.—They shall be the keepers of the records, books, papers and proceedings of their respective county courts in civil and criminal cases and in matters of probate, and see that the same are properly indexed, arranged and preserved, and shall do and perform such other duties in that behalf as are, or may be by law, imposed on them. [Id.]

Art. 1756. [1146] [1153] Keep a record of proceedings, judgments, etc.—The several clerks of the county courts shall keep a fair record of all the acts done and proceedings had in their respective courts; they shall enter all judgments of the court, under the direction of the judge, and shall keep a record of all executions issued, and of the returns thereon in record books to be kept for that purpose. [Id. P. D. 504.]

To keep judgment records.—See Art. 5610.

Art. 1757. [1147] [1154] Index to all judgments.—It shall be the duty of the several clerks of the county courts to provide and keep in their respective offices, as part of the records thereof, full and complete alphabetical indexes of the names of the parties to all suits filed in their said courts, which indexes shall be kept in well bound books, and shall state in full the names of all the parties to such suits, which shall be indexed and cross-indexed, so as to show the name of each party under the proper letter; and a reference shall be made opposite each name to the page of the minute book upon which is entered the judgment in each case. [Act June 21, 1876, p. 25, sec. 1.]

Art. 1758. [1148] [1155] Other dockets, indexes, etc.—They shall also keep such other dockets, books and indexes as are, or may be, required by law; and all books and records and file papers, belonging to the office of county clerks in this state, shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection and examination of any citizen, who shall have the right to make copies of the same. [Acts 1905, p. 114.]

Art. 1759. [1149] [1156] Report fines and jury fees.—In addition to the reports required of the clerk of the county court under the several provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, it shall be his duty on the last day of each term of the county court to make out a statement in writing, which shall set forth all moneys received by him for jury fees and fines, with the names of the parties from whom received up to the date of such statement, and since his previous statement, if any such has been made; and also the name of each juror who has served at such term, the number of days he served, and the amount due him for such service; which statement shall be examined by the judge holding such court, and, if found to be correct, shall be approved and signed by him. Should said judge consider said statement erroneous, he may make such corrections therein as he may deem necessary, and shall then approve and sign the same; which statement, when so approved and signed, shall be recorded in the minutes of the court. [Act June 16, 1876, p. 23, sec. 24.]

Art. 1760. [1150] [1157] Shall pay over jury fees and fines.—It shall be the duty of the clerk to pay over to the county treasurer all jury fees and fines received by him to the use of the county.

Art. 1761. [1151] [1158] Shall transfer records to his successor.—Whenever a clerk of the county court shall vacate his office, he shall transfer to his successor all the records, books and papers of the office.

Art. 1762. [1153] [1160] When acting as county clerk to use seal of county court.—Where in any county a single clerk shall have been elected, as provided in article 1703, he shall, in performing the duties of clerk of the county court, use the seal of said court and authenticate his official acts as clerk of such county court.

CHAPTER THREE

THE POWERS AND JURISDICTION OF THE COUNTY COURT AND OF THE JUDGE THEREOF

Art.
1763. Exclusive original jurisdiction.
1764. Concurrent original jurisdiction.
1765. Forfeited bonds in criminal cases.
1766. Jurisdiction denied in certain cases.
1767. Appellate jurisdiction.
1768. Certiorari to justices' courts.
1769. Motions against certain officers.
1770. To punish contempts.
1771. Both law and equity powers.
1772. To grant remedial writs.
1773. To appoint attorney for pauper.
1774. Additional authority, where expressly granted.
1775. Changed jurisdiction recognized, eminent domain retained.

Article 1763. [1154] [1161] Exclusive original jurisdiction.—The county court shall have exclusive original jurisdiction in civil cases when the matter in controversy shall exceed in value two hundred dollars, and shall not exceed five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. [Const., art. 5, sec. 16. Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 172, sec. 3.]

Nature and Incidents of Jurisdiction in general.—See notes under Title 34, Chapter 3.

The constitutional amendment of 1891 relating to the judiciary did not restore to the county courts the jurisdiction that had been previously taken from them and vested in the district courts by acts diminishing the jurisdiction of the county courts of the counties as it then existed. Muench v. Oppenheimer, 86 T. 568, 26 S. W. 496.

A county judge is not a judicial officer only. In addition to his duties as a judge, executive and ministerial functions are conferred upon him. Clark v. Finley, 93 T. 171, 54 S. W. 343.

Court of general jurisdiction.—County courts are courts of general jurisdiction within the limits prescribed by the constitution. Their judgments are entitled to the presumptions supporting those of courts of general jurisdiction. Martin v. Burns, 80 T. 676, 16 S. W. 1072; Richards v. Belcher, 25 S. W. 740, 6 C. A. 284.

The county court sitting in probate is a court of general jurisdiction and has the same judicial discretion within such jurisdiction as the district court has within its jurisdiction. Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

Requisite amount or value in controversy.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1764, 1767.

The amount in controversy, as affecting the jurisdiction, is not a matter of mere personal privilege. Land Mortgage Bank v. Voss, 29 C. A. 11, 68 S. W. 732.

Whether the amount in controversy is within the jurisdiction of the county court is to be determined by the amount put in controversy by the plaintiff. Standefer v. Aultman & Taylor Machinery Co., 34 C. A. 160, 78 S. W. 552.

A deduction by the purchaser of cattle of $100 from the price for injuries in transit, with interest, held the measure of the seller's damages, and that the suit was therefore not within the jurisdiction of the county court. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Waddell Bros., 40 C. A. 110, 88 S. W. 390.

The county courts have exclusive jurisdiction of a money demand for $500. Waller v. Gray, 43 C. A. 405, 94 S. W. 1098.

The county court does not have original jurisdiction of a suit for the sum of $150. Ware v. Clark (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 618.

A court having jurisdiction only of actions involving more than $200 held to have jurisdiction of an action on an insurance policy for $200 and the interest thereon. Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Fordtran (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 692.

An action held within the jurisdiction of the county court. Jordan v. Massey (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 804.

In an action to foreclose a landlord's lien, where the amount of the demand was less than $200, the county court held not to have jurisdiction. Manire v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1152.

Where on appeal from the county court it appears that the amount involved is less than $200, and the transcript contains no record of a justice trial, or any record showing that the county court had jurisdiction, the appeal must be dismissed. Gosden v. Hammock (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 931.

If a tender of $225 was made in full for all indebtedness, and a creditor did not accept it, but sued for $250, the matter in controversy, for jurisdictional purposes, was the entire $250, and not the $25 difference. Bourn v. Gray (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 356.

The county court has jurisdiction of a garnishment against the maker of a note retaining a vendor's lien instituted by a judgment creditor of the payee of the note. Thomson v. Findlater Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 301.

—— Injunction in general.—The county court has no authority to restrain the execution of a judgment of a justice for less than $200 in a suit involving less than $200. Philips v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 567; Arnold v. McNinch & Raney, 56 C. A. 555, 121 S. W. 904; Lyons Bros. Co. v. Corley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 603; Hillsman v. Cline, 145 S. W. 726.

The county court has jurisdiction of an action for an injunction, though the amount involved is less than that required to give jurisdiction of an action for money alone. Jackson v. Finlay (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 427.

In suit in county court to enjoin execution on justice's judgment and to recover damages, amount of damages cannot be considered in determining jurisdiction as to injunction. Philips v. Sandes (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 567.

A county court held to have jurisdiction to grant restitution, where it had erroneously issued a mandatory injunction without jurisdiction. Texas Land & Irrigation Co. v. Sanders, 101 T. 616, 111 S. W. 648.

County court has jurisdiction to enjoin the enforcement of a void judgment recovered therein, regardless of the amount of damages sought to be recovered. Womble v. Harsey (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 764.

The county court, having neither original nor appellate jurisdiction of the amount in controversy, cannot enjoin a judgment of a justice for less than $100, which is manifestly the amount in controversy; there having been no actual levy, and the object of the suit being to wholly stay the operation of the judgment. Arnold v. McNinch & Rainey, 56 C. A. 555, 121 S. W. 904.

The constitutional provision, limiting the jurisdiction of the county court to suits where the amount in controversy exceeds $200 and does not exceed $1,000, applies to writs of injunction. Staley & Barnsdall v. Derden, 57 C. A. 142, 121 S. W. 1136.

The county court has no jurisdiction of a suit for injunction, where the judgment sought to be restrained was less than $200 in amount. Lyons Bros. Co. v. Corley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 603.

The county court has no power to issue an injunction beyond the limits of its jurisdiction as defined by the subject-matter or amount in controversy, and cannot restrain the trustees of an independent school district from proceeding with the trial of charges against the superintendent of the district, which power could only be exercised by the district court under its general equity powers. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 116.

—— Pleading.—See, also, notes under Art. 1764.

A petition held to state a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the county court. Scoggins v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 216; Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dawson, 90 S. W. 65; Tippett v. Corder, 117 S. W. 186; Arkansas Fertilizer Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 104 T. 187, 135 S. W. 529; Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Dysart (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1117; Cooper Grocery Co. v. Gaddy, 141 S. W. 825.

A petition in the county court held not to state a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the court. Lillard v. Freestone County, 23 C. A. 363, 57 S. W. 339; Kopperl v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1018; Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle, 135 S. W. 258; Thompson v. Perryman, 141 S. W. 184; Stricklin v. Arrington, 141 S. W. 189; Walker Mercantile Co. v. J. R. Raney Co., 154 S. W. 317.

Where the plaintiff has amended his petition so as to claim a larger amount than that originally demanded, the amended petition fixes the amount in controversy for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of the court. Watson v. Mirike, 25 C. A. 527, 61 S. W. 538.

Where a landlord sues to foreclose his lien on goods, and, pending the litigation, those who have purchased the goods convey them, that the claim for conversion joined in the foreclosure suit was below the sum required to give the county court jurisdiction when first set up would not affect the court's jurisdiction. Jackson v. Corley, 30 C. A. 417, 70 S. W. 570.

On a favorable ruling on a demurrer to the petition held that the cause should have been dismissed for want of jurisdiction. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Voss (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 189.

That the proof showed that the value of the mortgaged chattels was less than $200 would not deprive the county court of jurisdiction to foreclose a mortgage, where defendant did not allege and prove that the allegations of value were fraudulent and for the purpose of giving jurisdiction. McDaniel v. Staples (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 596.

In view of the allegations of the original petition, the county court held to possess jurisdiction of action, notwithstanding the allegations of amended petition. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Dysart (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1117.

An amended petition in the county court held to render ineffective allegations of the original petition showing a lien within the jurisdiction of the court. Thompson v. Perryman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 184.

In determining whether the county court has jurisdiction of a particular action, the petition only can be considered, and jurisdiction cannot be conferred by a plea in reconvention. Le Master v. Lee (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 315.

Where the petition, in an action in the county court for the value of a horse negligently killed, alleged that the suit was based on a bona fide claim for the value of the horse killed by defendant more than 30 days before the commencement of the action, and that plaintiff presented to defendant his claim for $200 as the value of the horse, and the cause was tried without a question as to jurisdiction, the court, on appeal from a judgment for $200, would not dismiss the cause for want of jurisdiction of the county court, but would remand the cause to enable plaintiff to amend the petition and avoid the question of want of jurisdiction. O'Bannon v. Pleasants (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 719.

—— Amount claimed or value of property.—See, also, notes under Art. 1764.

County court cannot, by injunction, restrain the sale of property of the value of $400 under an execution issued by a justice of the peace for $125. W. & W. Mfg. Co. v. Whitener, 2 App. C. C. § 15.

In an action on a note and to foreclose a lien on county bonds as collateral, the market value determined the amount in controversy with relation to the jurisdiction. Wisley v. Houston Nat. Bank, 28 C. A. 268, 67 S. W. 195.

Where petition by carrier seeks the recovery of property on which freight charges are due, the value of the property determines the jurisdiction of the court. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Rucker, 99 T. 125, 87 S. W. 818; Id., 38 C. A. 591, 88 S. W. 815.

A suit seeking to prevent the wrongful taking of a piano worth $350, under color of an execution on a judgment for $15, held within the jurisdiction of the county court, within Const. art. 5, § 16. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Clay, 40 C. A. 638, 90 S. W. 682.

In an action by a judgment debtor to restrain the sheriff from selling or withholding goods seized under writ of execution, the amount in controversy held to be the value of the property, and the county court, which has cognizance only of cases involving more than $200, is without jurisdiction; for to vest it with jurisdiction to protect a loss of that sum only, the injunction must be sought as ancillary to some proceeding within the jurisdiction of the court. Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 258.

In a suit to prevent the sale of specific property, the value of the property determines the amount in controversy in determining the jurisdiction of the court. Id.

The rule that in a suit to recover a debt and to foreclose a mortgage securing the same the matter in controversy is not only the debt, but also the security, and the value of the property mortgaged determines the jurisdiction, does not apply to the foreclosure of a lien created by statute; and hence in the foreclosure of a landlord's lien, irrespective of whether a distress warrant was applied for and sued out, that the property on which the lien was asserted was worth $500 did not give the county court jurisdiction, the amount of the demand being less than $200. Manire v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1152.

The county court is without jurisdiction of an action for a money judgment for less than $100, unless the amount is secured on property worth more than $200. Thompson v. Perryman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 184.

—— Uniting separate demands.—Where connecting carriers were charged as partners for damages to cattle shipped, which were within the jurisdiction of the county court, it was immaterial that the amount charged to one of the carriers was less than the jurisdictional amount. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lucas & King, 37 C. A. 404, 84 S. W. 1082.

—— Principal, interest, and attorney's fee.—See, also, notes under Art. 1764.

The provision for attorney's fees in the note is as much a part of the note as the promise to pay the principal sum, and if the attorney's fees added to the amount named in the notes makes over $200, the county court has jurisdiction. McRimmon & Co. v. Hart, 39 C. A. 474, 87 S. W. 882.

The act under which plaintiff sought to recover an attorney's fee, being unconstitutional, though not then so adjudicated, furnished no legal basis for such a recovery, so that the amount claimed as an attorney's fee could not be considered on the question whether the amount in controversy was sufficient to give the court jurisdiction. Lemmons v. Duran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 795.

In an action on a promissory note for $200, held that, interest being no part of the note, the county court was without jurisdiction under Const. art. 5, § 16. Le Master v. Lee (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 315.

—— Original amount affected by payments or reduction from other cause.—When the amount payable on a contract is reduced by payments to a sum less than $200, the petition admitting the credit, the county court does not have jurisdiction, and the judgment may be arrested and suit dismissed. Bonner v. Moores, 3 App. C. C. § 12. Also see 67 T. 654; Jackson v. Corley, 30 C. A. 417, 70 S. W. 570.

Where, in a suit on an account, items barred by limitations reduce the amount due to a sum less than $200, suit will be dismissed. Keller v. Huffman (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 863; Browning v. El Paso Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 386.

Where a petition in county court is demurrable, except as to a claim for $71.10, the cause should be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Malin & Browder v. McCutcheon, 33 C. A. 387, 76 S. W. 586.

On sustaining exceptions to items of damage for conversion reducing the account in controversy below its jurisdiction, the county court should dismiss the suit. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 800; Barrett v. Wentz, 138 S. W. 428.

—— Fraudulent demand.—In the absence of a finding that plaintiff fraudulently alleged the indebtedness sued for to be $210 to confer jurisdiction on the county court, that court had jurisdiction, and it was its duty to render judgment for the amount authorized by the evidence. Garth v. Childs (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 284.

—— Demand of damages.—County court has jurisdiction of that portion of action to enjoin justice's judgment beneath its jurisdiction which prays for damages of $1,000 for issuance of execution. Philips v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 567.

Where plaintiff alleged $71 actual damages for ejection from the room of a hotel, he was entitled to show jurisdiction in the county court by alleging exemplary damages sufficient for that purpose. McCutcheon v. Malin & Browder, 37 C. A. 240, 83 S. W. 849.

Jurisdiction—Probate.—See Art. 3206.

—— As to delinquent children.—See Art. 2192.

—— In guardianship proceedings.—See Art. 4043.

—— Extension of limits of towns and villages.—See Art. 1036 et seq.

Juries.—See Art. 5132 et seq.

Judgment on appeal.—See Art. 2002.

Art. 1764. [1155] [1162] Concurrent original jurisdiction.—The county court shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the district court when the matter in controversy shall exceed five hundred and not exceed one thousand dollars, exclusive of interest. [Id.]

Has special limited jurisdiction.—The county court has a special limited jurisdiction, and its jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the suit will not be presumed, but must be affirmatively shown by the record. Bohl v. Brown, 2 App. C. C. § 540.

Amount or value in controversy.—A county court has no jurisdiction to cancel a mortgage or administer a trust where the property conveyed and the debt secured are in excess of $1,000. Cleveland v. People's Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 523.

An action for $999 as damages for negligence, with interest, held not within the jurisdiction of the county court. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Everett (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1085.

The county court has jurisdiction of an action for damages, although the amount prayed for exceeds $1,000, where the amount of the items is less than $1,000. Ainsa v. Moses (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 791.

The amount in controversy in an action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of cattle held to be within the jurisdiction of the county court. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pool & Smith, 52 C. A. 307, 114 S. W. 685.

The county court held to possess jurisdiction of an account where the balance due, after the allowance for credits, is less than $1,000. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Womble (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 111; Swift v. Kelly, 133 S. W. 901; Edwards v. Mayes, 136 S. W. 510.

The county court held without power to issue injunctions beyond the limits of its jurisdiction, as defined by the subject-matter or amount in controversy. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 116.

The county court is without jurisdiction if, at the time the original petition was filed, the total amount sued for, including interest, exceeds $1,000, and an amendment thereafter filed, seeking to recover less than $1,000, would not confer jurisdiction; but where the entire amount, including a percentage designated as interest, was less than $1,000 at the time the original suit was filed, the fact that thereafter the damage was increased by the lapse of time to a sum in excess of $1,000, as shown by amended petitions, did not deprive the county court of the power to render judgment for any sum within the limit of its jurisdiction. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 623.

Where three carriers were jointly sued in the county court for damages to live stock during transportation, and the action against one carrier was in excess of $1,000, the amount in controversy was in excess of the jurisdiction of the county court, and the entire case must be dismissed, especially in the absence of any request by plaintiff to dismiss the action as against such carrier. Herrington v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 983.

That a cause of action for a personal judgment only, against one defendant for conversion of a part of mortgaged chattels of a stated value, which was within the limits of the county court's jurisdiction, was joined with another cause of action against another defendant on the note and for foreclosure of the mortgage, of which latter cause the county court did not have jurisdiction, because the petition failed to allege the total value of the mortgaged property, did not deprive such court of jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against the first-mentioned defendant on the former cause. Walker Mercantile Co. v. J. R. Raney Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 317.

Whether the amount in controversy is within the jurisdiction of the court depends on the amount as claimed by plaintiff in his original petition, unless it appears therefrom that he has improperly sought to give jurisdiction where it did not belong. Red Deer Oil Development Co. v. Huggins (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 949.

—— Amount claimed or value of property.—See notes under Art. 1763.

Where plaintiff alleges value of goods seized at $1,000, and claims less damages, county court is not deprived of jurisdiction by proof that goods were worth more. Coleman v. Bell (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 155.

A suit for a sum within the court's jurisdiction should not be dismissed because plaintiff seeks to enforce a lien therefor on property valued at a sum in excess of the jurisdiction, but the cause should be retained to try the issue as to the debt. Jecker v. Phytides, 27 C. A. 410, 65 S. W. 1129.

In an action to recover specific personalty alleged to be worth $1,000, the county court, having required its delivery to plaintiff, could subsequently give judgment against plaintiff for the value of the property on determining that such value exceeded its jurisdiction. Texas Land & Irrigation Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 558.

Since Arts. 5644–5649, conferring a lien for labor performed in the drilling of oil wells, do not limit the lien to so much of the property of the owner as may be necessary to satisfy the debt, but include the entire property connected with the well, a lien claimant under such act could not confer jurisdiction on the county court by only seeking to impose a lien on a part of the property sufficient to satisfy the debt, when the entire property connected with the well and subject to the lien exceeded $1,000 in value, and hence the amount in controversy in such action was the value of all the property, so that the county court had no jurisdiction of the subject-matter, and the pendency of a suit to foreclose the lien in such court could not be pleaded in abatement of a suit on the same facts for the same relief in the district court, though no order of dismissal had been entered in the county court proceeding. Red Deer Oil Development Co. v. Huggins (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 949.

—— Principal, interest, and attorney's fees.—See notes under Art. 1763.

When the ten per cent. attorney's fees, added to the principal of a note upon which suit is brought, amount in excess of the jurisdiction of the county court, the court has no jurisdiction of the suit. Moore v. Fay, 4 App. C. C. § 199, 15 S. W. 199.

In action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of cattle, the trial court held not ousted of jurisdiction because delay of trial caused the damages and interest at time of trial to exceed the jurisdictional amount. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dolan (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 393.

County court held to have jurisdiction where amount claimed, including interest to commencement of suit, did not exceed $1,000, though at time of filing of amended petition amount claimed, including interest, exceeded $1,000. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Underwood, 100 T. 284, 99 S. W. 92, 123 Am. St. Rep. 806.

In an action for damages, the interest forms a part of the damages, and if the amount of the damages and interest exceed the jurisdictional amount the court has no jurisdiction of the action. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Flory (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1116.

The county court has no jurisdiction of an action for damages for delay in furnishing cars to the amount of $987.43, since the damages with legal interest would exceed $1,000. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Womble (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 111.

County court held to have jurisdiction where the total amount originally sued for, including interest, did not exceed $1,000 although afterwards increased by interest to a sum in excess thereof. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 623.

The interest recoverable on the amount of the damages for injuries to live stock during transportation from the date of the injuries to the date of the commencement of the action is recoverable as damages, and cannot be excluded in determining the jurisdiction of the county court. Herrington v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 983.

—— Set-off or counterclaim.—A defendant in the county court may not prove a set-off in an amount in excess of the jurisdiction of the court. Newman v. McCallum, 1 App. C. C. § 273; Tucker v. Napier, 1 App. C. C. § 671; D. Sullivan & Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 373; Dixon v. Watson, 52 C. A. 412, 115 S. W. 100; Johnson v. W. H. Goolsby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 883; Bishop v. Mount, 152 S. W. 442.

A suit for $949, in which a counterclaim was pleaded for $1,000, held not to exceed the jurisdiction of the county court, of $1,000. Walcott v. McNew (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 815.

A counterclaim held not beyond the jurisdiction of the county court, where the amount sought to be recovered after deducting plaintiff's claim was within such jurisdiction. Eule v. Dorn, 41 C. A. 520, 92 S. W. 828.

In an action on certain notes in a county court, that defendant pleaded payment by delivery of rice of a value exceeding $1,000 did not defeat the jurisdiction of the court to determine whether an agreement for the delivery had been made and the rice delivered. Id.

The county court was without jurisdiction of a cross-action for $750 in a suit by plaintiff to recover $550. Johnson v. W. H. Goolsby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 883.

In an action in county court it was error to instruct the jury to find against defendants on their plea in reconvention claiming an amount beyond the jurisdiction given the county court under Const. art. 5, § 16. Smith v. Colquitt (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 690.

—— Exemplary or special damages.—Where plaintiff claimed that defendants had converted to their use two horses of value of $300, and that he had suffered in his credit $950, and had been put to $45 expense, and prayed for exemplary and actual damages, the cause of action embraced the value of the horses as well as damages for deprivation of their use and injury to his credit, etc., and was beyond the jurisdiction of the county court. Parlin & Orendorf Imp. Co. v. Clements, 54 C. A. 356, 117 S. W. 495.

—— Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1763.

The amount in controversy claimed in the petition determines the jurisdiction, unless there is evidence of a fraudulent or improper attempt to give jurisdiction. Ross v. McGuffin, 2 App. C. C. § 458.

Items added to complaint by way of amendment held not to have deprived the court of jurisdiction. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kolbe, 95 T. 76, 65 S. W. 34.

Where the court had jurisdiction over the amount of damages claimed in an original petition, which amount, as claimed in an amended petition, was raised by accrued interest above the court's jurisdiction, the defect could be cured by amendment. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett, 27 C. A. 498, 66 S. W. 474.

Petition considered, and held to ask damages exceeding $1,000, and the county court had no jurisdiction. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 847.

In an action to recover earnest money paid on a contract for the purchase of land, a plea that the amount in controversy and subject-matter of the suit were beyond the jurisdiction of the county court held without merit. Davis v. Fant (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 193.

A county court may retain jurisdiction to render judgment, although an amended pleading by reason of including interest since beginning the action as damages asked judgment for more than $1,000. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 453.

The county court having jurisdiction only up to $1,000, a proper pleading in an action to foreclose a chattel mortgage should allege the value of the property in controversy so as to show that the court has jurisdiction. Mangum v. Buffalo Pitts Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1196.

While ordinarily the conversion of notes creates a liability, in the absence of pleading and proof showing a lesser value, for the face value thereof, an allegation of a lesser value than the aggregate sum of the notes sued for will control as to jurisdiction and recovery, and where the petition in an action for the conversion of notes alleged that plaintiff did not know the amount of each of the notes, or the names of all the makers thereof, that they aggregated "about $1,200," that defendant became liable thereby to plaintiff "to the value" of said notes to the plaintiff's damage in the sum of $1,000, and the answer averred that defendant collected of said notes the aggregate sum of $898.50, and that it was unable to collect the notes remaining unpaid, aggregating the sum of $475.33, and which it tendered to plaintiff, it was an allegation that the value of the notes was the amount collected, which was within the jurisdiction of the county court. Arkansas Fertilizer Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 104 T. 187, 135 S. W. 529.

Though a complaint alleged that each of several defendants was liable in the sum of $1,000, it is not insufficient as showing that the amount involved is in excess of the jurisdiction of the county court where the ad damnum clause alleged damages of $1,000 only. Home Ben. Ass'n No. 3 v. Wester (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1022.

It is essential to the validity of a judgment that the pleadings affirmatively show that the trial court had jurisdiction of the subject-matter. Walker Mercantile Co. v. J. R. Raney Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 317.

Where a petition alleged taking of timber worth $384.99 and mingling with defendant's timber, and sought a recovery of the title and possession of the whole, but did not allege the value of defendant's timber with which it was mingled, a plea to the county court's jurisdiction, on the ground that the petition showed the value to exceed $1,000, should not have been sustained. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 337.

—— Injunctions.—See notes under Art. 1763.

Cannot be conferred by consent.—Jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the suit cannot be conferred by consent. Haney v. Millikin, 2 App. C. C. § 223.

Art. 1765. [1156] [1163] Forfeited bonds in criminal cases.—The county court shall also have jurisdiction to enter final judgment on all forfeited bonds taken in criminal cases pending in said court. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 172, sec. 3.]

Art. 1766. [1157] [1164] Jurisdiction denied in certain cases.—The county court shall not have jurisdiction of any suit to recover damages for slander or defamation of character, nor of suits for the recovery of lands, nor of suits for the enforcement of liens upon land, nor of suits in behalf of the state for escheats, nor of suits for divorce, nor of suits for the forfeiture of the charters of incorporations and incorporated companies, nor of suits for the trial of the right to property levied on by virtue of any writ of execution, sequestration or attachment, when the property levied on shall be equal to or exceed in value five hundred dollars. [Const. art. 5, sec. 16; art. 5, sec. 8. Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 172.]

Involving title to land.—When a suit involves the question of title to real estate the county court has no jurisdiction. When the issues are not dependent on the question of title, but on other rights, such as the character of possession of real estate, the county court has jurisdiction. When the contest is over other matters incidentally dependent upon the question of title, the county court has jurisdiction. Porter v. Porter, 2 App. C. C. § 433.

The county court does not have jurisdiction of a suit to remove a cloud or incumbrance upon title to land (Bohl v. Brown, 2 App. C. C. § 541; Haney v. Millikin, 2 App. C. C. § 223); or to impose an easement on land (Gascamp v. Drews, 2 App. C. C. § 95; Scripture v. Kent, 1 App. C. C. § 1057); but it has of suits to recover damages for injury done to land, as by the construction of a railway along a street (G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 2 App. C. C. § 568; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Graves, 1 App. C. C. § 579); or breaking into a close and cutting timber, etc. (Brown v. Brown, 3 App. C. C.

§ 82); or removing lumber from a lot on which the owner was about to build. Hatch v. Allen, 3 App. C. C. § 299.

Where part of a land certificate was located after the commencement of a suit in the county court to establish title thereto, the court lost jurisdiction as to the located land. Myers v. Jones, 23 S. W. 562, 4 C. A. 330.

In an action of trespass the court may pass upon the title to land when necessary to a decision of the case. Melvin v. Chancey, 28 S. W. 241, 8 C. A. 252.

A suit to recover the value of gravel taken from the land of plaintiff and for the damages done to the land is within the jurisdiction of the county court, when the amount of damages claimed does not exceed its jurisdiction. City of Victoria v. Schott, 29 S. W. 680, 9 C. A. 332.

The county court has jurisdiction of actions to recover damages for injuries to crops such as for turning stock in upon the hay-fields, growing crops, etc. Beckham v. Burney (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 718.

In a suit to recover rent, within the county court's jurisdiction, that proof of plaintiff's title is requisite does not affect the court's jurisdiction. Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 207.

Action to recover purchase money paid for land and to cancel indebtedness held not to directly involve title to land, and within jurisdiction of county court. Hollis v. Finks, 34 C. A. 12, 78 S. W. 555.

The county court has jurisdiction in a suit in which the title to land is only incidentally involved in determining the question before it. Henslee v. Boyd, 48 C. A. 494, 107 S. W. 128.

An action to recover $250 and to enjoin defendants from cutting and removing timber does not involve the title to land, and is within the jurisdiction of the county court. Springer v. Collins (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 758.

A contract granting certain rights in oil land held a conveyance of an interest in land, so that the county court had no jurisdiction to enforce by injunction that part of the contract requiring the grantee to deliver to the grantor a portion of all the oil to be produced. Staley & Barnsdall v. Derden, 57 C. A. 142, 121 S. W. 1136.

Action to recover title and possession of logs cut and removed from plaintiff's land held to be within the jurisdiction of the county court, not involving title to land or a trespass thereon. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 337.

—— Breach of warranty of title.—County court has jurisdiction of a suit for breach of warranty of title to land. Williams v. Truitt, 1 App. C. C. § 519; Patrick v. Laprelle (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 552.

—— Land fraudulently conveyed by trustee.—County court held to have jurisdiction of action to recover value of land fraudulently conveyed by trustee to innocent purchaser. Espey v. Boone, 33 C. A. 83, 75 S. W. 570.

—— Enforcement of liens upon land.—Machinery attached to real estate is a movable fixture, and a lien therein can be enforced in the county court. Ames Iron Works v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 369.

The county court has no jurisdiction to determine whether a judgment of the United States district court created a lien upon the land of the judgment debtor located within such judicial district. Frichott v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 164.

The county court has no jurisdiction to determine the validity of a lien upon land created by the levy of an execution. Id.

The county court has jurisdiction to cancel an indebtedness, evidenced by a note secured by a vendor's lien, the amount of which is within its jurisdiction. Hollis v. Finks, 34 C. A. 12, 78 S. W. 555.

A decree foreclosing a real estate mortgage in the county court held void. Womble v. Harsey (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 764.

If the value of the property covered by a lien exceeds the court's jurisdiction, the court has no power to foreclose the lien. W. R. Kelley & Co. v. J. E. Stevens & Sons (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 94.

The county court held to possess jurisdiction to render judgment for a debt and foreclosure of a chattel mortgage. Edwards v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 510.

Under Art. 5640, giving a lien upon a railroad and its equipment for labor, etc., in the construction, operation, and repair of "any railroad, locomotive, car or other equipment of a railroad," where plaintiff sought a lien only upon the equipment, a county court was not deprived of jurisdiction on the ground that the statutory lien is given on real estate. Concho, S. S. & L. V. Ry. Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 345.

Trial of right of property.—This statute, and not article 7778, controls the jurisdiction of the county court in actions for the trial of the right of property. Erwin v. Blanks, 60 T. 583. See notes under Title 7778.

Determination of jurisdictional questions.—Where an answer sets up a want of jurisdiction in the county court to foreclose a mortgage, alleging that the mortgaged property is a part of the homestead, the court has power to hear evidence and determine its authority to try the matter; it is not material in such a case whether the facts showing want of jurisdiction appear in the answer or in the petition. Gentry v. Bowser, 21 S. W. 569, 2 C. A. 388.

Art. 1767. [1158] [1165] Appellate jurisdiction.—The county court shall have appellate jurisdiction in civil cases over which the justices' courts have original jurisdiction, when the judgment of the court appealed from or the amount in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, exclusive of costs. [Const. art. 5, sec. 16. Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 172, sec. 3.]

Appellate jurisdiction—Limited by jurisdiction of justice.—Where a case is appealed from a justice to the county court, the latter is without jurisdiction unless the justice had jurisdiction. Baker v. Chisholm, 3 T. 158; Davis v. Stewart, 4 T. 223; Able v. Bloomfield, 6 T. 263; Horan v. Wahrenberger, 9 T. 317, 58 Am. Dec. 145; Neil v. State, 43 T. 91; Salmon v. Downs. 55 T. 243; Timmins v. Bonner, 58 T. 555; Wise v. O'Malley, 60 T. 588; Boudon v. Gilbert, 67 T. 689, 4 S. W. 578; Seitz v. McKenzie, 4 C. A. 81, 22 S. W. 104; Pickett v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 32; Lawson v. Lynch, 9 C. A. 582, 29 S. W. 1128; Hall v. McGill (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 828; Times Pub. Co. v. Hill, 36 C. A. 389, 81 S. W. 806; Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Canyon Coal Co., 102 T. 478, 119 S. W. 294; Wilder v. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 607; Maples v. MacNelly, 133 S. W. 893; W. R. Kelley & Co. v. J. E. Stevens & Sons, 136 S. W. 94; Crowdus v. Kahn Tailoring Co., Id. 1136.

Where complainants were not legally served and made parties to a suit against them in the justice's court, the county court acquired no jurisdiction by reason of their appeal to that court, or by the issuance and service of citation on them by that court. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 424.

—— Amount in controversy.—When the suit is for less than $20, and the defendant by plea in reconvention claims damages for a greater amount, the county court has appellate jurisdiction. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tacquard, 3 App. C. C. § 250.

When the suit is to foreclose a lien on property of greater value than $20, an appeal may be taken from a judgment for less than $20. Smith v. Giles, 65 T. 341.

The county court has no jurisdiction, on appeal from justice, of proceeding against a party, when brought into a pending action, to recover a judgment against him for less than the sum of which the court has original jurisdiction. Land Mortgage Bank v. Voss, 29 C. A. 11, 68 S. W. 732.

Where plaintiff sued for $20 and defendant pleaded in reconvention a claim for $110, but offered no evidence in support thereof, and judgment was rendered for $20; Held that defendant abandoned his claim and on appeal to county court the latter had no jurisdiction because the matter in controversy was beneath its jurisdiction. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schlather (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 953.

Where the original cross-action filed by defendant in the justice court did not involve more than $200, the county court had, on appeal, jurisdiction to entertain an amended pleading asserting the cross-action. Miller v. Burrow (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 958.

—— Pleading.—Where the petition in a justice court case was amended on appeal so as to claim an amount in excess of the appellate jurisdiction of the county court, such defects were cured by a subsequent amendment reducing the amount. Miller v. Newbauer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 974.

The allegation in an amended petition in an action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of cattle, filed in the county court on appeal from a justice's court held to oust the jurisdiction of the county court. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Crenshaw, 51 C. A. 198, 112 S. W. 117.

—— Enjoining judgment.—The county court rendering a judgment on appeal from a justice's court has alone authority to issue an injunction enjoining the judgment which is not void. Moore v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 234.

—— Foreclose laborer's lien.—County court held to have no jurisdiction to foreclose a laborer's lien on a railroad and its property on an appeal from a justice court. Lewis v. Warren & C. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 104.

—— Proceedings on appeal.—See notes under Title 41, Chapter 17.

Art. 1768. [1159] [1166] Certiorari to justices' courts.—The county court shall also have power to hear and determine cases brought up from the justices' courts by certiorari under the provisions of the title relating thereto.

Art. 1769. [1160] [1167] Motions against sheriffs and other officers.—The county court shall also have power to hear and determine all motions against sheriffs and other officers of the court for failure to pay over moneys collected under the process of said court, or other defalcation of duty in connection with such process. [Act June 16, 1876, p. 33, sec. 26.]

Art. 1770. [1161] [1168] To punish contempts.—The county court shall also have power to punish, by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, and by imprisonment not exceeding three days, any person guilty of contempt of such court. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 6. P. D. 1409.]

Contempt in general.—See notes under Art. 1708.

Art. 1771. [1162] [1169] Both law and equity powers.—Subject to the limitation stated in this chapter, the county court is authorized to hear and determine any cause which is, or may be, cognizable by courts, either of law or equity, and to grant any relief which could be granted by said courts, or either of them. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 7.]

Setting aside execution sale.—The county court has jurisdiction of a motion to set aside an incomplete sale of lands under an execution on a judgment of such court. State Nat. Bank v. Hathaway (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 525.

Art. 1772. [1163] [1170] To grant remedial writs.—The county judge shall have authority, either in term time or in vacation, to grant writs of mandamus, injunction, sequestration, attachment, garnishment, certiorari and supersedeas, and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of the court. [Const. art. 5, sec. 16. Act June 16, 1876, p. 19, sec. 5.]

Mandamus.—Mandamus will not be granted where an officer may exercise judgment and discretion. Orr v. Davis, 30 S. W. 249, 9 C. A. 628.

The county court may issue writs of mandamus and injunction although not necessary to enforce its jurisdiction. Dean v. State, 31 S. W. 185; 30 id. 1047, 88 T. 290; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blankenbeckler, 13 C. A. 249, 35 S. W. 331.

A county court has jurisdiction to compel a justice of the peace by mandamus to send up a transcript in order that an appellant may perfect his appeal; such jurisdiction being necessary to the enforcement of that court's jurisdiction. Hart v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 520.

Injunction.—Amount in controversy, see notes under Arts. 1763, 1764.

On appeal from justice court, see Art. 1767.

The county court may issue the writ whenever its appellate jurisdiction has attached, and the writ is necessary for its enforcement. Fitzpatrick v. Small, 1 App. C. C. § 1140.

County court cannot, by injunction, restrain the obstruction of a road, the land upon which it is located being claimed by the defendant, the purpose of the suit being to establish a servitude on the land. Gascamp v. Drews, 2 App. C. C. § 95.

The jurisdiction of the county court to issue the writ of injunction is a general jurisdiction. The power is not confined to cases in which the writ is necessary to enforce the jurisdiction of the court. Const. art. 5, § 16; Art. 1772; Dean v. State, 88 T. 290, 30 S. W. 1047, 31 S. W. 185; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blankenbeckler, 13 C. A. 249, 35 S. W. 331. For contrary rulings see Carlisle v. Coffee, 59 T. 391; Moody v. Cox, 54 T. 492; McMahan v. Dennis, 1 App. C. C. § 1209; Grant v. Quinsell, 1 App. C. C. § 733; Lackie v. Bramlett, 1 App. C. C. § 1129; Fitzpatrick v. Small, 1 App. C. C. § 1140; Wheeler & Wilson v. Collins, 1 App. C. C. § 132; Graves v. Fry, 1 App. C. C. § 134; Bowser v. Willett, 1 App. C. C. § 401; Hockersmith v. Long, 1 App. C. C. § 554; Umdenstock v. McKellar, 1 App. C. C. § 567; Brown v. Young, 1 App. C. C. § 1240; Wheeler & Wilson Mfg. Co. v. Whitener, 2 App. C. C. § 15; Anderson v. Larremore, 1 App. C. C. § 947.

A county court, having no jurisdiction to try the issues of homestead or whether the property sought to be sold on execution against one is the separate estate of his wife, cannot issue injunction against the sale on the ground of the property being a homestead or the separate estate of the wife. S. K. McCall Co. v. Page (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 655.

Art. 1773. [1164] [1171] To appoint attorney for pauper.—The county judge shall also have power to appoint counsel to attend to the cause of any party who may make affidavit that he is too poor to employ counsel to attend to the same. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 11. P. D. 1414.]

Art. 1774. [1165] [1172] Additional authority where expressly granted.—In addition to the foregoing powers and jurisdiction, the county court and the county judge shall have such authority as is or may be vested in them by law.

Art. 1775. [1166] Changed jurisdiction recognized; eminent domain retained.—Where the jurisdiction of the county court of the several counties of this state has been taken away, altered or changed by existing laws, the same shall remain as established, until otherwise provided by law; provided, however, that jurisdiction shall obtain in all matters of eminent domain over which the county courts have jurisdiction by the general laws of this state. [Acts of 1885, p. 77.]

For jurisdiction of county court to adjudicate heirship, see Chapter 25, Title 52.

Constitutional and statutory provisions.—Const. art. 5, § 22, declares that the legislature shall have power by local or general law to increase, diminish, or change the civil or criminal jurisdiction of county courts, and that in case of such change the legislature shall also conform the jurisdiction of other courts to such change. Held, that the legislature did not exceed its authority in conferring on county courts jurisdiction in eminent domain proceedings, and that such jurisdiction was not taken away nor affected by Act 26th Leg. c. 151, diminishing the jurisdiction of county courts. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance, 104 T. 90, 133 S. W. 1043.

Jurisdiction in matters of eminent domain.—Under Rev. St. 6506–6534, 1232, the judge of the county court, and the court, are vested with certain authority in respect to the right of way for railroads, etc. See above cited articles, and Ft. W. & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Lamphear, 1 App. C. C. § 308; G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Mud Creek, I. A. & M. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 393; T. T. Co. v. Forke, 2 App. C. C. §§ 365–368.

The county court of a county in which is situated a part of the right of way of the railroad sought to be condemned for the use of a telegraph company has jurisdiction to condemn other parts of such right of way in other counties for the use of the telegraph company. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Postal Telegraph Cable Co., 18 C. A. 502, 45 S. W. 179.

The county court of either of several counties through which a railroad runs has jurisdiction to condemn a right of way for a telegraph company on said railroad's entire right of way. Postal Tel. & Cable Co. v. T. & N. O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 912.

An objection to the jurisdiction of the court on appeal from a commissioner's decision in condemnation proceedings will not be considered when made for the first time on motion for rehearing. Karnes County v. Ray (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 76.

The jurisdiction of the county court in proceedings by a county to condemn property for the construction of a sea wall held appellate only, and the proceedings must be begun by a sufficient petition to the county judge. Johnston v. Galveston County (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 511.

CHAPTER FOUR

THE TERMS OF THE COUNTY COURT FOR CIVIL AND PROBATE BUSINESS

Art.
1776. Terms of the county court.
1777. Commissioners' court may fix.
1778. Adjournment of term, when the county judge fails to appear.

Article 1776. [1167] Terms of the county court.—The county court shall hold at least four terms for both civil and criminal business annually as may be provided by the legislature, or by the commissioners' court of the county under authority of law, and such other terms each year as may be fixed by the commissioners' court; provided, the commissioners' court of any county having fixed the times and number of terms of the county court, shall not change the same again until the expiration of one year. Said court shall dispose of probate business either in term time or vacation under such regulation as may be prescribed by law. Prosecutions may be commenced in said courts in such manner as is, or may be, provided by law, and a jury therein shall consist of six men. Until, or unless otherwise provided, the terms of the county court shall be held on the first Monday in February, May, August and November, and may remain in session three weeks. [Const. amendment, 1883, art. 5, sec. 29.]

Art. 1777. [1168] Commissioners' court may fix.—The county commissioners' courts of the several counties in this state may, at a regular term thereof, by an order entered upon the records of said courts, provide for more terms of the county court for the transaction of civil, criminal and probate business, and fix the times at which each of the four terms required by the constitution, and the terms exceeding four, if any, shall be held, not to exceed six annually, and may fix the length of said terms; provided, that, when the commissioners' court shall have fixed the number of terms of the county court by an order entered of record, said court shall not change the number of terms of the county court for one year from the date of entry of the original order fixing the terms of the county court. [Acts of 1885, p. 53.]

See Schwartz v. Liberman, 2 App. C. C. § 289; Carothers v. Wilkerson, 2 App. C. C. § 356; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Graves, 2 App. C. C. § 677.

Commissioners' courts may fix terms.—The commissioners' courts have the authority to regulate the times of holding the terms of the county courts in their respective counties within the limitation prescribed by article 5, section 29, of the constitution. Hughes v. Doyle, 91 T. 421, 44 S. W. 64.

Art. 1778. [1169] Adjournment of term when county judge fails to appear.—Should the county judge fail to appear at the time appointed for holding the county court, and should no election of a special judge be had, the sheriff of the county, or, in his default, any constable of the county shall adjourn the court from day to day for three days; and, if the judge should not appear on the fourth day, and should no special judge have been appointed, the sheriff or constable, as the case may be, shall adjourn the court until the next regular term thereof. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 9. P. D. 1412.]

CHAPTER FIVE

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE COUNTY COURT

Art.
1779. Minutes of the court to be read and signed.
1780. Minutes of proceedings before special judge.
1781. Seal of the court.
1782. When clerk has no seal may use scroll.
1783. Probate day to be designated.
1784. Proceedings when case is transferred to district court.
1785. Jurisdiction taken away, judgments to be transferred.

Article 1779. [1170] [1175] Minutes of the court to be read and signed.—The minutes of the proceedings of each preceding day of the session shall be read in open court on the morning of the succeeding day, except on the last day of the session, on which day they shall be read, and, if necessary, corrected, and signed in open court by the county judge. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 12.]

Art. 1780. [1171] [1176] Minutes of proceedings before special judge.—When a special county judge has presided during the term, or a portion thereof, he shall sign the minutes of such of the proceedings as were had before him.

Art. 1781. [1172] [1177] Seal of the court.—Each of the several county courts shall be provided with a seal, having engraved thereon a star of five points in the center, and the words, "County Court of ——— County, Texas," the impress of which shall be attached to all process, except subpœnas, issued out of such court, and shall be used to authenticate the official acts of the clerk and of the county judge, where he is authorized or required to use a seal of office. [Act June 16, 1876, p. 23, sec. 22. P. D. 1411.]

Cited, Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Becton, 103 T. 236, 125 S. W. 883.

Necessity of attaching seal.—Affidavit of witness to will held not invalidated by failure of clerk administering oath to attach his seal. Russell v. Oliver, 78 T. 11, 14 S. W. 264; Hymer v. Holyfield (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 722.

Failure to attach seal cured.—Neglect of county clerk to affix his seal to the jurat of an application for a writ of certiorari held cured. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Edgewood Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1075.

Art. 1782. [1173] [1178] When clerk has no seal, may use scroll.—When no such seal has been provided for the court, the clerk may use a scroll until a seal can be procured. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 12. P. D. 1411.]

Art. 1783. [1174] [1179] Probate day to be designated.—On the first day of the term for civil business, the county court shall, by an order entered on the minutes, designate a day for taking up the probate business; and the probate docket shall thereupon be called in its regular order, unless otherwise ordered by the court. [Act June 16, 1876, p. 22, sec. 20.]

Art. 1784. [1175] [1180] Proceedings when case is transferred to the district court.—Whenever a cause shall be transferred from the county court to the district court, the clerk shall immediately make out a transcript of all the proceedings had in said cause in the county court, and shall transmit the same, duly certified as such, together with a bill of the costs which have accrued in said court, and all the original papers in the cause, to the clerk of the district court. [Act June 10, 1876, p. 19, sec. 6.]

Art. 1785. [1176] Jurisdiction taken away; judgments to be transferred.—It shall be the duty of the clerks of the county courts of the several counties in this state, where the civil and criminal jurisdiction, or either, of the county court has been transferred to the district court, to make out a certified copy of all judgments remaining unsatisfied, which have been rendered in civil or criminal cases in the county court, and transmit the same to the clerk of the district court of their respective counties. [Acts 1879, p. 10.]

1796. Vacancies in office of judge how filled.
1797. Fees and salary of judge.
1798. Salary of county judge of Dallas county.

Article 1786. Creation of county court of Dallas county, at law.—There is hereby created a court to be held in Dallas county, to be called the "County Court of Dallas County, at Law." [Acts 1907, p. 115, sec. 1.]

Art. 1787. Jurisdiction of said court.—The county court of Dallas county, at law, shall have jurisdiction in all matters and causes, civil and criminal, original and appellate, over which, by the general laws of the state, the county court of said county would have jurisdiction, except as provided in article 1788; and all cases pending in the county court of said county, other than probate matters, and such as are provided in said article 1788, shall be, and the same are hereby, transferred to the county court of Dallas county, at law; and all writs and process, civil and criminal, heretofore issued by or out of said county court, other than those pertaining to matters over which by said article jurisdiction remains in the said county court of Dallas county, shall be, and the same are hereby, made returnable to the county court of Dallas county, at law. The jurisdiction of the county court of Dallas county, at law, and of the judge thereof, shall extend to all matters of eminent domain, of which jurisdiction has been heretofore vested in the county court, or in the county judge; but this provision shall not affect the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court, or of the county judge of Dallas county, as the presiding officer of such commissioners' court, as to roads, bridges and public highways, and matters of eminent domain which are now within the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court, or the judge thereof. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1788. Jurisdiction retained by county court of Dallas county.—The county court of Dallas county shall retain, as heretofore, the general jurisdiction of a probate court; it shall probate wills, appoint guardians of minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, grant letters testamentary and of administration, settle accounts of executors, administrators and guardians; transact all business appertaining to deceased persons, minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, including the settlement, partition and distribution of estates of deceased persons; and shall apprentice minors as provided by law; and the said court, or the judge thereof, shall have the power to issue writs of injunction, mandamus, and all writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said court, and also to punish contempts under such provisions as are, or may be, provided by general law governing county courts throughout the state; but said county court of Dallas county shall have no other jurisdiction, civil or criminal. The county judge of Dallas county shall be the judge of the county court of Dallas county. All ex officio duties of the county judge shall be exercised by the said judge of the county court of Dallas county, except in so far as the same shall, by this chapter, be committed to the judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1789. Terms of county court of Dallas county, at law; practice, etc.—The terms of the county court of Dallas county, at law, and the practice therein, and appeals and writs of error therefrom, shall be as prescribed by laws relating to county courts. The terms of the county court of Dallas county, at law, shall be held as now established for the terms of the county court of Dallas county, until the same may be changed in accordance with the law. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1790. Judge to be elected when, etc.; qualifications; term.—There shall be elected in said county, by the qualified voters thereof, at each general election, a judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, who shall be well informed in the laws of the state, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1791. Bond and oath of judge.—The judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, shall execute a bond and take the oath of office, as required by the law relating to county judges. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1792. Special judge elected or appointed, how.—A special judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, may be appointed or elected as provided by laws relating to county courts and to the judges thereof. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1793. May issue writs.—The county court of Dallas county, at law, or the judges thereof, shall have power to issue writs of injunction, mandamus, sequestration, attachment, garnishment, certiorari and supersedeas, and all writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said court, and to issue writs of habeas corpus, in cases where the offense charged is within the jurisdiction of said court, or of any other court or tribunal inferior to said court. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1794. Clerk of; seal; sheriff to attend when, etc.—The county clerk of Dallas county shall be the clerk of the county court of Dallas county, at law. The seal of the said court shall be the same as that provided by law for county courts, except that the seal shall contain the words, "County Court of Dallas County, at Law;" the sheriff of Dallas county shall, in person or by deputy, attend the said court when required by the judge thereof. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1795. Appointment of jury commissioners; selection, etc., of juries.—The jurisdiction and authority now vested by law in the county court for the appointment of jury commissioners and the selection and service of jurors shall be exercised by the county court of Dallas county, at law. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1796. Vacancy in office of judge, how filled.—Any vacancy in the office of the judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, may be filled by the commissioners' court of Dallas county until the next general election. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1797. Fees and salary of judge.—The judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, shall collect the same fees as are now established by law relating to county judges, all of which shall be by him paid monthly into the county treasury; and he shall receive an annual salary of three thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, to be paid out of the county treasury by the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1798. Salary of county judge of Dallas county.—The county judge of Dallas county shall hereafter receive from the county treasury, in addition to the fees allowed him by law, such a salary, for the ex officio duties of his office, as may be allowed him by the commissioners' court, not less than twelve hundred dollars per year. [Id. sec. 13.]

CHAPTER TWO

COUNTY COURT OF TARRANT COUNTY FOR CIVIL CASES

Art.
1799. Creation of county court of Tarrant county for civil cases.
1800. Jurisdiction of said court.
1801. Jurisdiction retained by county court of Tarrant county.
1802. Both courts may issue writs.
1803. Terms, practice, etc., of county court of Tarrant county for civil cases.
1804. Judge to be elected when, etc., qualifications; term; vacancies how filled.
1805. Bond and oath of judge.
1806. Special judge elected or appointed, how.
1807. Clerk of; seal; sheriff to attend when, etc.
1808. Selection, etc., of juries by two courts jointly.
1809. Fees; salary of judge of county court of Tarrant county for civil cases.
1810. Removal of judge.
1811. Salary of county judge of Tarrant county.

Article 1799. Creation of county court of Tarrant county for civil cases.—There is hereby created a court to be held in Tarrant county, Texas, to be known and designated as the "County Court of Tarrant County for Civil Cases." [Acts 1909, p. 48, sec. 1.]

Art. 1800. Jurisdiction of said court.—The county court of Tarrant county for civil cases shall have jurisdiction of all civil matters and causes, original and appellate, over which by the general laws of the state of Texas, the county court of said county would have jurisdiction, except as provided in article 1801; and all civil cases pending in the county court of said county, other than probate matters, and such as are provided in said article, shall be, and the same are hereby, transferred to the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases; and all civil writs and process heretofore issued by, or out of, said county court, other than those pertaining to matters over which by said article jurisdiction remains in the county court of Tarrant county, [shall be] and the same are, returnable to the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases. The jurisdiction of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, and of the judge thereof, shall extend to all matters of eminent domain of which jurisdiction has heretofore vested in the county court of Tarrant county, or the judge thereof; but this provision shall not affect the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court or of the county judge of Tarrant county as the presiding officer of said court as to roads, bridges and public highways, and matters of eminent domain which are now within the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court or of the judge of the county court of Tarrant county. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1801. Jurisdiction retained by county court of Tarrant county.—The county court of Tarrant county shall retain, as heretofore, the jurisdiction of all criminal cases, its jurisdiction as a juvenile court, its jurisdiction in matters pertaining to liquor licenses, forfeitures and bonds, the general jurisdiction of a probate court; it shall probate wills, appoint guardians of minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, grant letters testamentary and of administration, settle accounts of administrators, executors and guardians, transact all business pertaining to deceased persons, minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, including the settlement, partition and distribution of estates of deceased persons, and shall apprentice minors as provided by law. The county judge of Tarrant county shall be the judge of the county court of Tarrant county; and all ex officio duties of the county judge shall be exercised by the said judge of the county court of Tarrant county, except in so far as the same shall, by this chapter, be committed to the judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1802. Both courts may issue writs.—Both the said county court of Tarrant county and the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, or either of the judges thereof, shall have the power to issue writs of injunction, sequestration, attachment, garnishment, certiorari, supersedeas and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said courts, and also power to punish for contempts under such provisions as are, or may be, provided by the general laws governing county courts throughout the state, and to issue writs of habeas corpus in cases where the offense charged is within the jurisdiction of said courts, or of any court or tribunal inferior to said courts. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1803. Terms, practice, etc., of county court of Tarrant county for civil cases.—The terms of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, and the practice therein, and appeals and writs of error therefrom, shall be as prescribed by law relating to the county courts. The terms of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases shall be held not less than four times each year; and the commissioners' court of Tarrant county shall fix the time at which said court shall hold its terms, until the same may be changed according to law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1804. Judge to be elected when, etc.; qualifications; term; vacancies how filled.—At each general election there shall be elected by the qualified voters of Tarrant county a judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, who shall be well informed in the laws of this state, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have been duly elected and qualified; provided, that no person shall be eligible for judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, unless he shall be a citizen of the United States and of this state, who shall have been a practicing lawyer of this state, or a judge of a court in this state, for four years next preceding his election, and who shall have resided in the county of Tarrant for two years next preceding his election. All vacancies in said office shall be filled by appointment by the governor until the next general election thereafter. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1805. Bond and oath of judge.—The judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases shall execute a bond and take the oath of office as required by the law relating to county judges. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1806. Special judge elected or appointed how.—A special judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases may be appointed or elected as provided by law relating to county courts and to the judges thereof. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1807. Clerk of; seal; sheriff to attend when, etc.—The county clerk of Tarrant county shall be the clerk for the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases. The seal of said court shall be the same as that provided for county courts, except that the seal shall contain the words, "County Court of Tarrant County for Civil Cases." The sheriff of Tarrant county shall, in person or by deputy, attend the court when required by the judge thereof. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1808. Selection, etc., of juries by the two courts jointly.—The jurisdiction and authority now vested by law in the county court of Tarrant county for the selection and service of jurors shall be exercised by the two courts jointly and not separately. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1809. Fees; salary of judge of county court of Tarrant county for civil cases.—The judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases shall collect the same fees provided by law for county judges in similar cases, all of which shall be paid by him monthly into the county treasury; and he shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars annually, to be paid monthly out of the county treasury by the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1810. Removal of judge.—The judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases may be removed from office in the same manner and for the same causes as any other county judge may be removed under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1811. Salary of county judge of Tarrant county.—The county judge of Tarrant county shall hereafter receive from the county treasury in addition to the fees allowed him by law, such a salary, for the ex officio duties of his office, as may be allowed him by the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 13.]

CHAPTER THREE

COUNTY COURT OF ARMSTRONG COUNTY

1811-1. Concurrent jurisdiction with justice court.
1811-2. Jurisdiction as county court.
1811-3. Appeal; amount in controversy.
1811-4. Jurisdiction of justices' courts not affected; appeal.
1811-5. Laws repealed.

Article 1811—1. Concurrent jurisdiction with justice court.—That the county court of Armstrong county shall have and exercise original concurrent jurisdiction with the justices courts in all civil matters which by the general laws of this state is conferred upon justices courts. [Acts 1913, p. 60, sec. 1.]

Art. 1811—2. Jurisdiction as county court.—Said county court shall also have and exercise such jurisdiction over and pertaining to all matters and things and proceedings as by the general laws of this state is conferred upon county courts. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1811—3. Appeal; amount in controversy.—No appeal or writ of error shall be taken to the court of civil appeals from any final judgment of said county court in civil cases of which said court has appellate or original concurrent jurisdiction with the justices courts where the judgment or amount in controversy does not exceed one hundred dollars exclusive of interests and costs. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1811—4. Jurisdiction of justices' courts not affected; appeal.—This Act shall not be construed to deprive the justices' courts of the jurisdiction now conferred upon them by law, but only to give concurrent original jurisdiction to the said court over such matters as are specified in section 1 of this Act [Art. 1811—1], nor shall this Act be construed to deny the right of appeal from the justices' courts to the said county court in any case originally brought in the justices' courts where the right of appeal now exists by law. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1811—5. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act, be, and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1811—42. Terms, practice, etc.—The [terms of the county court of Harris county for civil cases] and the practice therein and appeals and writs of error therefrom shall be as prescribed by laws relating to county courts. [The terms of the county court of Harris county for civil cases shall be held as now established for the terms of the county court of Harris county until the same be changed in accordance with the law.] [Id. sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed parts of this article are superseded by Arts. 1811—36 and 1811—43.

Art. 1811—43. Terms of court.—Said court shall hold six terms a year, beginning respectively on the first Monday in January, in March, in May, in July, in September, and in November of each year, and each term shall continue until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1913, p. 10, sec. 7.]

Art. 1811—44. Judge to be elected, when; qualifications; term.—There shall be elected in said county by the qualified voters thereof, at each general election, a judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases,] who shall be well informed in the laws of the state, who shall hold his office for two years and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Acts 1911, p. 4, sec. 6.]

Explanatory.—See Arts. 1811—36 and 1811—37, changing name of court.

Art. 1811—45. Bond and oath of judge.—The judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases,] shall execute a bond and take the oath of office as required by the law relating to county judges. [Id. sec. 7.]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1811—36 changing name of court to "County Court at Law of Harris County, Texas."

Art. 1811—46. Special judge.—A special judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases] may be appointed or elected as provided by law relating to county courts and to the judges thereof. [Id. sec. 8.]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1811—36 changing name of court to "County Court at Law of Harris County, Texas."

Art. 1811—47. Clerk; seal; sheriff to attend when, etc.—The county clerk of Harris county shall be the clerk of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases. The seal of the said court shall be the same as that provided by law for county courts, except that the seal shall contain the words "County Court of Harris County for Civil Cases."] The sheriff of Harris county shall, in person or by deputy, attend the said court when required by the judge thereof. [Id. sec. 10.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed part of this article is superseded by Art. 1811—36. See Art. 1811—51, conferring on the clerk of the criminal district court the powers of clerk as to criminal matters.

Art. 1811—48. Vacancy in office of judge, how filled, etc.—Any vacancy in the office of the judge of the court created by this Act may be filled by the commissioners court of Harris county until the next general election. The commissioners court shall, as soon as may be after this Act shall take effect, appoint a judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases] who shall serve until the next general election and until his successor shall be duly elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 11.]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1811—36, changing name of court to "County Court at Law of Harris County, Texas."

Art. 1811—49. Fees; salary of judge.—The judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases] shall collect the same fees as are now established by law relating to county judges, all of which shall be by him paid monthly into the county treasury, and he shall receive an annual salary of three thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, to be paid out of the county treasury by the commissioners court. [Acts 1913, p. 103, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Superseding a part of Art. 1811—54. This article also supersedes Acts 1911, p. 95, § 2, transferring to the district court of Harrison county jurisdiction of all civil matters and causes over which the county court of that county theretofore had jurisdiction. Acts 1911, p. 95, § 3, providing for transfer of pending causes from the county to the district court, to carry out the provisions of section 2, is rendered obsolete by this article.

Art. 1811—56. Judgments heretofore rendered in county court; executions, etc.—That this Act shall not be construed to in any wise or manner affect judgments heretofore rendered by said county court of Harrison county pertaining to matters and causes which by section 2 of this Act [Acts 1911, p. 95, superseded by Art. 1811—55] are transferred to the district court of said county, but the county clerk of said county shall issue all executions and orders of sale, and proceedings thereunder, and his act in so doing shall be valid and binding to all intents and purposes, the same as if no change had been made as by section 2 therein contemplated. [Acts 1911, p. 95, sec. 4.]

Art. 1811—57. Laws repealed.—That all laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1811—58. Appellate jurisdiction in civil cases, etc.—Said county court shall have appellate jurisdiction in civil cases over which justices courts have original jurisdiction, when the judgment of the court appealed from, or the amount in controversy, shall exceed twenty dollars, exclusive of interest and costs, and said county court shall have power to hear and determine cases brought up from the justices courts by certiorari, under the provisions of the title of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895 relating thereto. [Acts 1913, p. 103, sec. 2.]

Art. 1811—59. May grant writs.—The county judge of said county shall have authority, either in term time or in vacation, to grant writs of injunction, sequestration, mandamus, garnishment, attachment, certiorari, supersedeas, and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said court, and shall also have the power to issue writs of habeas corpus in all cases in which the constitution has not exclusively conferred the power on the district court or judge thereof. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1811—60. District court not to have jurisdiction when.—The district court of said county shall no longer have jurisdiction of cases in which the county court of said county by provisions of this Act has original or appellate jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 4.]

Explanatory.—Superseding contradictory provision in Art. 1811—54.

Art. 1811—61. Clerk of district court to make transcripts in cases in which jurisdiction is given to county court, etc.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the district court of said county within thirty days after this Act shall take effect to make full and complete transcripts of orders on the civil docket then pending before the district court of said county, of which cases by the provisions of this Act exclusive original or appellate jurisdiction is given to the said county court, and to deliver said transcripts, together with the original papers in each case, to the county clerk of said county, and the said county clerk shall file the same and enter said cases on the docket for trial by said court, and a certified bill of costs in each case, and all such cases shall be immediately docketed by the county court, as appearance cases for the next succeeding term, and all civil cases shall be docketed and disposed of in the same manner as if the same had been originally filed in and triable in said county court, and all process in civil cases now issued and returnable to said district court shall be returnable to said county court. [Id. sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1811—55.

Art. 1811—62. Motions against sheriffs and other officers, etc.; contempts; other powers.—The said court shall also have the power to hear and determine all motions against sheriffs and other officers of the court, for failure to pay over moneys collected under process of said court, or other defalcation of duty in connection with such process, and shall have power to punish by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, and by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding three days any person guilty of contempt of said court, and shall also have all the other powers and jurisdiction conferred on county courts by the constitution and general laws of this state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1811—63. May fix terms of court.—The county commissioners' court of said county may hereafter fix the terms of said court whenever it may be deemed necessary. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1811—64. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act be and the same are hereby expressly repealed in so far as they relate to Harrison county. [Id. sec. 8.]

[Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1811—115. District clerk to deliver transcripts, etc., to county clerk.—It shall be the duty of the district clerk of said county, within thirty days after this Act shall take effect, to make full and complete transcript of orders on the criminal and civil dockets then pending before the district court of said county, of which cases, by the provisions of this Act, original and appellate jurisdiction is given to said county court, and to file said transcript together with the original papers in each case, in the county court of said county, and the county clerk shall enter said cases on the respective dockets of said county court as appearance cases for trial by said court. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1811—116. Motions against sheriffs and other officers; contempts; other powers.—The said court shall also have the power to hear and determine all motions against sheriffs and other officers of the court for failure to pay over moneys collected under the process of said court, or other defalcations of official duty in connection with said process, and shall have power to punish by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, and by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding three days, any person guilty of contempt of said court, and all other powers and jurisdictions conferred on county courts by the constitution and general laws of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1811—117. Terms of court.—The terms of said court shall commence on the third Monday in February, and on the third Monday in May, and on the third Monday in September, and on the third Monday in November of each year, and shall continue in session for three weeks at each term, or until the business may be disposed of; provided, that the county commissioner's court of said county may hereafter change the terms of said court whenever it may be deemed necessary. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1811—118. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby expressly repealed in so far as they relate to Zapata county, Texas. [Id. sec. 11.]
