PUBLISHERS' PREFACE

THE task of annotating a set of State Statutes under the most favorable circumstances is fraught with many difficulties.

Lawyers differ among themselves as to what should constitute an annotation paragraph, or note, and the most careful of them would have great difficulty in preparing either, in a manner even to suit himself.

Experience teaches that work of this character can best be done, in a manner to suit the largest number of users, by editors who are trained and who have specialized in this class of editorial work.

Our task has been rendered much easier by reason of our having access to the "Historical Notes" and annotations in Sayles' Texas Civil Statutes, published in 1898, the copyright of which we own.

We have followed the classification of the Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas, adopted at the Regular Session of the Thirty-Second Legislature, 1911, retaining the article numbers of this revision and of the revision of 1895.

The annotations and notes follow the text of the article or chapter to which they relate and are as full and exhaustive as the subject-matter of each article or chapter requires. The thorough and exhaustive manner with which important topics are annotated may be seen by reference to Title 53, Article 3687, Evidence, divided into 37 rules of evidence, preceded by an introductory; Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8, Pleading, to which we have devoted about 128 pages; Title 37, Chapter 13, Instructions and Province of Court and Jury, covering about 260 pages.

The thorough annotation of these important subjects amounts to a treatise on the Law of Texas relating thereto. Other important subjects, such as Estates of Decedents, Private Corporations, Insurance, The Judiciary, Justice Courts, Liens, Limitations, Public Lands, Railroads, Registration, Taxation, Trespass to Try Title, etc., have also been given exhaustive treatment.

The laws passed at the Regular Session of the Thirty-Second Legislature, 1911, and the Thirty-Third Regular Session, 1913, and the several Special Sessions held during 1911–1913, inclusive, are inserted in the most appropriate place in the title to which they relate. Parallel references are given to the Texas Reports, Southwestern Reporter, L. R. A., and the Trinity Series; thus placing the cases cited within easy and convenient access to the user.

One of the crowning achievements in connection with the great task of preparing these annotations and Statutes for publication is the very complete, accurate, and exhaustive Index, which we believe to be the best ever appended to a State Statute.

The work has not been in any way a one-man task. We were most fortunate in securing, although at great expense, the services of a well-trained and experienced corps of editors who are experts in annotation and digest work, having access to a thoroughly equipped and up-to-date annotation plant. Had we been less fortunate, and if we had been forced to rely on the work of one or two men, however efficient, our work would have been old and incomplete when published.

The citations of authorities are brought down to and including volume 157 Southwestern Reporter.

We believe no apology is necessary for the publication of this great commentary on the Statute Law of the State of Texas. The foundation for this great work was laid in 1897 by the late General John Sayles, who was ably assisted by his son, Henry Sayles, of Abilene, Texas, in the historical notes and annotations found in Sayles' Texas Civil Statutes, published in 1898, which in turn have their foundation in Sayles' Early Laws of Texas, compiled by John and Henry Sayles, and published in 1891.

CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I

§ 1. All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a senate and house of representatives.

§ 2. The house of representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several states, and the electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature.

No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen.

[Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within this Union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons.] The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each state shall have at least one representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the state of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose 3, Massachusetts 8, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations 1, Connecticut 5, New York 6, New Jersey 4, Pennsylvania 8, Delaware 1, Maryland 6, Virginia 10, North Carolina 5, South Carolina 5, and Georgia 3.

The clause of this paragraph enclosed in brackets was amended, as to the mode of apportionment of representatives among the several states, by the fourteenth amendment, § 2, post, and, as to taxes on incomes without apportionment, by the sixteenth amendment, post.

When vacancies happen in the representation from any state, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

The house of representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers; and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

§ 3. [The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, chosen by the legislature thereof, for six years; and each senator shall have one vote.]

This paragraph and the clause of paragraph 2 of this section next following, enclosed in brackets, were superseded by the seventeenth amendment, post.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; [and if vacancies happen by resignation, or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies].

See note to preceding paragraph of this section.

No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen.

The vice-president of the United States shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided.

The senate shall choose their other officers, and also a president pro tempore, in the absence of the vice-president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States.

The senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States: but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

§ 4. The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives, shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators.

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meetings shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

§ 5. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties as each house may provide.

Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

Neither house, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

§ 6. The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall, in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office.

§ 7. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives; but the senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other bills.

Every bill which shall have passed the house of representatives and the senate, shall, before it become a law, be presented to the president of the United States; if he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and, if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the senate and house of representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the president of the United States; and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

§ 8. The Congress shall have power: To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

To borrow money on the credit of the United States;

To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes;

To establish an uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States;

To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures;

To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States;

To establish postoffices and post roads;

To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries;

To constitute tribunals inferior to the supreme court;

To define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offences against the law of nations;

To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water;

To raise and support armies, but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years;

To provide and maintain a navy;

To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces;

To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions;

To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining, the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the states, respectively, the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress;

To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever, over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular states, and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock-yards, and other needful buildings; and

To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

§ 9. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the states now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

No capitation, or other direct, tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state.

No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one state over those of another: nor shall vessels bound to, or from, one state, be obliged to enter, clear, or pay duties in another.

No money shall be drawn from the treasury, but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no person holding any office of profit or trust under them, shall, without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title, of any kind whatever, from any king, prince, or foreign state.

§ 10. No state shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money; emit bills of credit; make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts; pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility.

No state shall, without the consent of the Congress, lay any imposts or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws: and the net produce of all duties and imposts, laid by any state on imports or exports, shall be for the use of the treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the Congress.

No state shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops, or ships of war in time of peace, enter into any agreement or compact with another state, or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II

§ 1. The executive power shall be vested in a president of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the vice-president, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the Congress: but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.

[The electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and of the number of votes for each; which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed, to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate. The president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the house of representatives shall immediately choose by ballot, one of them for president; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list the said house shall in like manner choose the president. But in choosing the president, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the president, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the vice-president. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the senate shall choose from them by ballot the vice-president.]

This paragraph, enclosed in brackets, was superseded by the twelfth amendment, post.

The Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this constitution, shall be eligible to the office of president; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice-president; and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice-president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a president shall be elected.

The president shall, at stated times, receive for his services, a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

Before he enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation:—"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

§ 2. The president shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states, when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offences against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.

He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the supreme court, and all other officers of the United States, whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law; but the Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers, as they think proper, in the president alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

The president shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session.

§ 3. He shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers; he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

§ 4. The president, vice-president and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III

§ 1. The judicial power of the United States, shall be vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services, a compensation, which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

§ 2. The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority;—to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls;—to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction;—to controversies to which the United States shall be a party;—to controversies between two or more states;—between a state and citizens of another state;—between citizens of different states;—between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens or subjects.

In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a state shall be party, the supreme court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned, the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury; and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places as the Congress may by law have directed.

§ 3. Treason against the United States, shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture except during the life of the person attainted.

ARTICLE IV

§ 1. Full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other state. And the Congress may by general laws prescribe the manner in which such acts, records and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

§ 2. The citizens of each state shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several states.

A person charged in any state with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice, and be found in another state, shall on demand of the executive authority of the state from which he fled, be delivered up to be removed to the state having jurisdiction of the crime.

No person held to service or labor in one state, under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due.

§ 3. New states may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state; nor any state be formed by the junction of two or more states, or parts of states, without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned as well as of the Congress.

The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular state.

§ 4. The United States shall guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion; and on application of the legislature, or of the executive (when the legislature cannot be convened) against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V

The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress: Provided, that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no state, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the senate.

ARTICLE VI

All debts contracted and engagements entered into, before the adoption of this constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this constitution, as under the confederation.

This constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the judges in every state shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding.

The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several state legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation, to support this constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII

The ratification of the conventions of nine states, shall be sufficient for the establishment of this constitution between the states so ratifying the same.

ARTICLES

In addition to, and amendment of, the constitution of the United States of America, proposed by Congress, and ratified by the legislatures of the several states pursuant to the fifth article of the original constitution.

The first ten amendments to the Constitution of the United States were proposed to the legislatures of the several states by the First Congress, on the 25th of September, 1789. They were ratified by the following states, and the notifications of ratification by the governors thereof were successively communicated by the President to Congress: New Jersey, November 20, 1789; Maryland, December 19, 1789; North Carolina, December 22, 1789; South Carolina, January 19, 1790; New Hampshire, January 25, 1790; Delaware, January 28, 1790; Pennsylvania, March 10, 1790; New York, March 27, 1790; Rhode Island, June 15, 1790; Vermont, November 3, 1791, and Virginia, December 15, 1791. There is no evidence on the journals of Congress that the legislatures of Connecticut, Georgia, and Massachusetts ratified them.

ARTICLE I

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II

A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III

No soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defence.

ARTICLE VII

In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

ARTICLE IX

The enumeration in the constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X

The powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states, respectively, or to the people.

ARTICLE XI

The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by citizens of another state, or by citizens or subjects of any foreign state.

The eleventh amendment to the Constitution of the United States was proposed to the legislatures of the several states by the Third Congress, on the 5th of September, 1794; and was declared in a message from the President to Congress, dated the 8th of January, 1798, to have been ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states.

ARTICLE XII

The electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for president and vice-president, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as president, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as vice-president, and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as president, and of all persons voted for as vice-president, and of the number of votes for each, which lists they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate;—the president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted;—the person having the greatest number of votes for president, shall be the president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers, not exceeding three, on the list of those voted for as president, the house of representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the president. But in choosing the president, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the house of representatives shall not choose a president whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the vice-president shall act as president, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the president. The person having the greatest number of votes as vice-president, shall be the vice-president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the senate shall choose the vice-president; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of president shall be eligible to that of vice-president of the United States.

The twelfth amendment to the Constitution of the United States was proposed to the legislatures of the several states by the Eighth Congress, on the 12th of December, 1803, in lieu of the original third paragraph of the first section of the second article; and was declared in a proclamation of the Secretary of State, dated the 25th of September, 1804, to have been ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states.

ARTICLE XIII

§ 1. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

The thirteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States was proposed to the legislatures of the several states by the Thirty-Eighth Congress, on the 1st of February, 1865, and was declared, in a proclamation of the Secretary of State, dated the 18th of December, 1865, to have been ratified by the legislatures of twenty-seven of the thirty-six states, viz.: Illinois, Rhode Island, Michigan, Maryland, New York, West Virginia, Maine, Kansas, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, Missouri, Nevada, Indiana, Louisiana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Vermont, Tennessee, Arkansas, Connecticut, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Alabama, North Carolina, and Georgia.

ARTICLE XIV

§ 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

§ 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several states according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each state, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for president and vice-president of the United States, representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a state, or the members of the legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such state, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such state.

§ 3. No person shall be a senator or representative in Congress, or elector of president and vice-president, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any state, who, having previously taken an oath, as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any state legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any state, to support the constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may by a vote of two-thirds of each house, remove such disability.

§ 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any state shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

§ 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

The fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States was proposed to the legislatures of the several states by the Thirty-Ninth Congress, on the 16th of June, 1866. On the 21st of July, 1868, Congress adopted and transmitted to the Department of State a concurrent resolution, declaring that "the legislatures of the states of Connecticut, Tennessee, New Jersey, Oregon, Vermont, New York, Ohio, Illinois, West Virginia, Kansas, Maine, Nevada, Missouri, Indiana, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Iowa, Arkansas, Florida, North Carolina, Alabama, South Carolina, and Louisiana, being three-fourths and more of the several states of the Union, have ratified the fourteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States, duly proposed by two-thirds of each House of the Thirty-Ninth Congress: Therefore, resolved, that said fourteenth article is hereby declared to be a part of the Constitution of the United States, and it shall be duly promulgated as such by the Secretary of State." The Secretary of State accordingly issued a proclamation, dated the 28th of July, 1868, declaring that the proposed fourteenth amendment had been ratified, in the manner hereafter mentioned, by the legislatures of thirty of the thirty-six states, viz.: Connecticut, June 30, 1866; New Hampshire, July 7, 1866; Tennessee, July 19, 1866; New Jersey, September 11, 1866, (and the legislature of the same state passed a resolution in April, 1868, to withdraw its consent to it;) Oregon, September 19, 1866; Vermont, November 9, 1866; Georgia rejected it November 13, 1866, and ratified it July 21, 1868; North Carolina rejected it December 4, 1866, and ratified it July 4, 1868; South Carolina rejected it December 20, 1866, and ratified it July 9, 1868; New York ratified it January 10, 1867; Ohio ratified it January 11, 1867, (and the legislature of the same state passed a resolution in January, 1868, to withdraw its consent to it;) Illinois ratified it January 15, 1867; West Virginia, January 16, 1867; Kansas, January 18, 1867; Maine, January 19, 1867; Nevada, January 22, 1867; Missouri, January 26, 1867; Indiana, January 29, 1867; Minnesota, February 1, 1867; Rhode Island, February 7, 1867; Wisconsin, February 13, 1867; Pennsylvania, February 13, 1867; Michigan, February 15, 1867; Massachusetts, March 20, 1867; Nebraska, June 15, 1867; Iowa, April 3, 1868; Arkansas, April 6, 1868; Florida, June 9, 1868; Louisiana, July 9, 1868; and Alabama, July 13, 1868. Georgia again ratified the amendment February 2, 1870. Texas rejected it November 1, 1866, and ratified it February 18, 1870. Virginia rejected it January 19, 1867, and ratified it October 8, 1869. The amendment was rejected by Kentucky January 10, 1867; by Delaware February 8, 1867; by Maryland March 23, 1867, and was not afterward ratified by either state.

ARTICLE XV

§ 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

The fifteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States was proposed to the legislatures of the several states by the Fortieth Congress, on the 27th of February, 1869, and was declared, in a proclamation of the Secretary of State, dated March 30, 1870, to have been ratified by the legislatures of twenty-nine of the thirty-seven states. The dates of these ratifications (arranged in the order of their reception at the Department of State) were: from North Carolina, March 5, 1869; West Virginia, March 3, 1869; Massachusetts, March 9–12, 1869; Wisconsin, March 9, 1869; Maine, March 12, 1869; Louisiana, March 5, 1869; Michigan, March 8, 1869; South Carolina, March 16, 1869; Pennsylvania, March 26, 1869; Arkansas, March 30, 1869; Connecticut, May 19, 1869; Florida, June 15, 1869; Illinois, March 5, 1869; Indiana, May 13–14, 1869; New York, March 17–April 14, 1869, (and the legislature of the same state passed a resolution January 5, 1870, to withdraw its consent to it;) New Hampshire, July 7, 1869; Nevada, March 1, 1869; Vermont, October 21, 1869; Virginia, October 8, 1869; Missouri, January 10, 1870; Mississippi, January 15–17, 1870; Ohio, January 27, 1870; Iowa, February 3, 1870; Kansas, January 18–19, 1870; Minnesota, February 19, 1870; Rhode Island, January 18, 1870; Nebraska, February 17, 1870; Texas, February 18, 1870. The state of Georgia also ratified the amendment February 2, 1870.

ARTICLE XVI

The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several states, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

The sixteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States was proposed to the legislatures of the several states by the Sixty-First Congress, on the 31st of July, 1909; and was declared, in a proclamation by the Secretary of State, dated the 25th of February, 1913, to have been ratified by the legislatures of the states of Alabama, Kentucky, South Carolina, Illinois, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Maryland, Georgia, Texas, Ohio, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, California, Montana, Indiana, Nevada, North Carolina, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, North Dakota, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, Maine, Tennessee, Arkansas, Wisconsin, New York, South Dakota, Arizona, Minnesota, Louisiana, Delaware, and Wyoming, in all thirty-six, said states constituting three-fourths of the whole number of states. The legislatures of New Jersey and New Mexico also passed resolutions ratifying the said proposed amendment.

ARTICLE XVII

The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislatures.

When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the Senate, the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointment until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.

The seventeenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States was proposed to the legislatures of the several states by the Sixty-Second Congress on the 15th of May 1912, in lieu of the original first paragraph of section 3 of article I, and in lieu of so much of paragraph 2 of the same section as related to the filling of vacancies, and was declared, in a proclamation by the Secretary of State, dated the 31st of May, 1913, to have been ratified by the legislatures of the states of Massachusetts, Arizona, Minnesota, New York, Kansas, Oregon, North Carolina, California, Michigan, Idaho, West Virginia, Nebraska, Iowa, Montana, Texas, Washington, Wyoming, Colorado, Illinois, North Dakato, Nevada, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Ohio, South Dakota, Indiana, Missouri, New Mexico, New Jersey, Tennessee, Arkansas, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin, said states constituting three-fourths of the whole number of states.

CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF TEXAS

PREAMBLE

Humbly invoking the blessings of Almighty God, the people of the state of Texas do ordain and establish this constitution.

ARTICLE I

BILL OF RIGHTS

That the general, great and essential principles of liberty and free government may be recognized and established, we declare:

Section 1. Texas is a free and independent state, subject only to the constitution of the United States; and the maintenance of our free institutions and the perpetuity of the Union depend upon the preservation of the right of local self-government, unimpaired to all the states.

Sec. 2. All political power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority, and instituted for their benefit. The faith of the people of Texas stands pledged to the preservation of a republican form of government, and, subject to this limitation only, they have at all times the inalienable right to alter, reform or abolish their government in such manner as they may think expedient.

Sec. 3. All free men, when they form a social compact, have equal rights, and no man, or set of men, is entitled to exclusive separate public emoluments, or privileges, but in consideration of public services.

Sec. 4. No religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office, or public trust, in this state; nor shall any one be excluded from holding office on account of his religious sentiments, provided he acknowledge the existence of a Supreme Being.

Sec. 5. No person shall be disqualified to give evidence in any of the courts of this state on account of his religious opinions, or for the want of any religious belief, but all oaths or affirmations shall be administered in the mode most binding upon the conscience, and shall be taken subject to the pains and penalties of perjury.

Sec. 6. All men have a natural and indefeasible right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own consciences. No man shall be compelled to attend, erect or support any place of worship, or to maintain any ministry against his consent. No human authority ought, in any case whatever, to control or interfere with the rights of conscience in matters of religion, and no preference shall ever be given by law to any religious society or mode of worship. But it shall be the duty of the legislature to pass such laws as may be necessary to protect equally every religious denomination in the peaceable enjoyment of its own mode of public worship.

Sec. 7. No money shall be appropriated or drawn from the treasury for the benefit of any sect, or religious society, theological or religious seminary; nor shall property belonging to the state be appropriated for any such purposes.

Sec. 8. Every person shall be at liberty to speak, write or publish his opinions on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that privilege; and no law shall ever be passed curtailing the liberty of speech or of the press. In prosecutions for the publication of papers investigating the conduct of officers, or men in public capacity, or when the matter published is proper for public information, the truth thereof may be given in evidence. And in all indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court, as in other cases.

Sec. 9. The people shall be secure in their persons, houses, papers and possessions, from all unreasonable seizures or searches; and no warrant to search any place, or to seize any person or thing, shall issue without describing them as near as may be, nor without probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation.

Sec. 10. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall have a speedy public trial by an impartial jury. He shall have the right to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him, and to have a copy thereof. He shall not be compelled to give evidence against himself. He shall have the right of being heard by himself or counsel or both, shall be confronted with the witnesses against him, and shall have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor. And no person shall be held to answer for a criminal offense, unless on indictment of a grand jury, except in cases in which the punishment is by fine, or imprisonment otherwise than in the penitentiary, in cases of impeachment, and in cases arising in the army or navy, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger.

Sec. 11. All prisoners shall be bailable by sufficient sureties, unless for capital offenses when the proof is evident; but this provision shall not be so construed as to prevent bail after indictment found, upon examination of the evidence, in such manner as may be prescribed by law.

Sec. 12. The writ of habeas corpus is a writ of right, and shall never be suspended. The legislature shall enact laws to render the remedy speedy and effectual.

Sec. 13. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel or unusual punishment inflicted. All courts shall be open; and every person for an injury done him, in his lands, goods, person or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of law.

Sec. 14. No person, for the same offense, shall be twice put in jeop ardy of life or liberty; nor shall a person be again put upon trial for the same offense, after a verdict of not guilty in a court of competent jurisdiction.

Sec. 15. The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate. The legislature shall pass such laws as may be needed to regulate the same, and to maintain its purity and efficiency.

Sec. 16. No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, retroactive law, or any law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall be made.

Sec. 17. No person's property shall be taken, damaged or destroyed for, or applied to, public use without adequate compensation being made, unless by the consent of such person; and when taken, except for the use of the state, such compensation shall be first made, or secured by a deposit of money; and no irrevocable or uncontrollable grant of special privileges or immunities shall be made; but all privileges and franchises granted by the legislature, or created under its authority, shall be subject to the control thereof.

Sec. 18. No person shall ever be imprisoned for debt.

Sec. 19. No citizen of this state shall be deprived of life, liberty, property, privileges or immunities, or in any manner disfranchised, except by the due course of the law of the land.

Sec. 20. No citizen shall be outlawed; nor shall any person be transported out of the state for any offense committed within the same.

Sec. 21. No conviction shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture of estate; and the estates of those who destroy their own lives shall descend or vest as in case of natural death.

Sec. 22. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against it, or adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort; and no person shall be convicted of treason except on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

Sec. 23. Every citizen shall have the right to keep and bear arms in the lawful defense of himself or the state; but the legislature shall have power, by law, to regulate the wearing of arms, with a view to prevent crime.

Sec. 24. The military shall at all times be subordinate to the civil authority.

Sec. 25. No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in the house of any citizen without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner prescribed by law.

Sec. 26. Perpetuities and monopolies are contrary to the genius of a free government, and shall never be allowed; nor shall the law of primogeniture or entailments ever be in force in this state.

Sec. 27. The citizens shall have the right, in a peaceable manner, to assemble together for their common good, and apply to those invested with the powers of government for redress of grievances or other purposes, by petition, address or remonstrance.

Sec. 28. No power of suspending laws in this state shall be exercised, except by the legislature.

Sec. 29. To guard against transgressions of the high powers herein delegated, we declare that everything in this "Bill of Rights" is excepted out of the general powers of government, and shall forever remain inviolate, and all laws contrary thereto, or to the following provisions, shall be void:

THE POWERS OF GOVERNMENT

Section 1. The powers of the government of the state of Texas shall be divided into three distinct departments, each of which shall be confided to a separate body of magistracy, to-wit: Those which are legislative to one, those which are executive to another, and those which are judicial to another; and no person or collection of persons, being of one of these departments, shall exercise any power properly attached to either of the others, except in the instances herein expressly permitted.

ARTICLE III

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT

Section 1. The legislative power of this state shall be vested in a senate and house of representatives, which together shall be styled, "The Legislature of the State of Texas."

Sec. 2. The senate shall consist of thirty-one members, and shall never be increased above this number. The house of representatives shall consist of ninety-three members until the first apportionment after the adoption of this constitution, when, or at any apportionment thereafter, the number of representatives may be increased by the legislature, upon the ratio of not more than one representative for every fifteen thousand inhabitants; provided, the number of representatives shall never exceed one hundred and fifty.

Sec. 3. The senators shall be chosen by the qualified electors for the term of four years; but a new senate shall be chosen after every apportionment, and the senators elected after each apportionment shall be divided by lot into two classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the first two years, and those of the second class at the expiration of four years, so that one-half of the senators shall be chosen biennially thereafter.

Sec. 4. The members of the house of representatives shall be chosen by the qualified electors, and their term of office shall be two years from the day of their election.

Sec. 5. The legislature shall meet every two years, at such time as may be provided by law, and at other times when convened by the governor.

Sec. 6. No person shall be a senator, unless he be a citizen of the United States, and, at the time of his election, a qualified elector of this state, and shall have been a resident of this state five years next preceding his election, and the last year thereof a resident of the district for which he shall be chosen, and shall have attained the age of twenty-six years.

Sec. 7. No person shall be a representative, unless he be a citizen of the United States, and, at the time of his election, a qualified elector of this state, and shall have been a resident of this state two years next preceding his election, the last year thereof a resident of the district for which he shall be chosen, and shall have attained the age of twenty-one years.

Sec. 8. Each house shall be the judge of the qualifications and election of its own members; but contested elections shall be determined in such manner as shall be provided by law.

Sec. 9. The senate shall, at the beginning and close of each session, and at such other times as may be necessary, elect one of its members president pro tempore, who shall perform the duties of the lieutenant-governor in any case of absence or disability of that officer, and whenever the said office of lieutenant-governor shall be vacant. The house of representatives shall, when it first assembles, organize temporarily, and thereupon proceed to the election of a speaker from its own members; and each house shall choose its other officers.

Sec. 10. Two-thirds of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

Sec. 11. Each house may determine the rules of its own proceedings, punish members for disorderly conduct, and, with the consent of two-thirds, expel a member, but not a second time for the same offense.

Sec. 12. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and publish the same; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of any three members present, be entered on the journals.

Sec. 13. When vacancies occur in either house, the governor, or the person exercising the power of the governor, shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies; and should the governor fail to issue a writ of election to fill any such vacancy within twenty days after it occurs, the returning officer of the district in which such vacancy may have happened, shall be authorized to order an election for that purpose.

Sec. 14. Senators and representatives shall, except in cases of treason, felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during the session of the legislature, and in going to or returning from the same, allowing one day for every twenty miles such member may reside from the place at which the legislature is convened.

Sec. 15. Each house may punish, by imprisonment, during its sessions, any person not a member, for disrespectful or disorderly conduct in its presence, or for obstructing any of its proceedings; provided, such imprisonment shall not, at any one time, exceed forty-eight hours.

Sec. 16. The sessions of each house shall be open, except the se..ate when in executive session.

Sec. 17. Neither house shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that where the legislature may be sitting.

Sec. 18. No senator or representative shall, during the term for which he may be elected, be eligible to any civil office of profit under this state, which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which may have been increased, during such term; no member of either house shall, during the term for which he is elected, be eligible to any office or place, the appointment to which may be made, in whole or in part, by either branch of the legislature; and no member of either house shall vote for any other member for any office whatever, which may be filled by a vote of the legislature, except in such cases as are in this constitution provided. Nor shall any member of the legislature be interested, either directly or indirectly, in any contract with the state, or any county thereof, authorized by any law passed during the term for which he shall have been elected.

Sec. 19. No judge of any court, secretary of state, attorney general, clerk of any court of record, or any person holding a lucrative office under the United States, or this state, or any foreign government, shall, during the term for which he is elected or appointed, be eligible to the legislature.

Sec. 20. No person who at any time may have been a collector of taxes, or who may have been otherwise intrusted with public money, shall be eligible to the legislature, or to any office of profit or trust under the state government, until he shall have obtained a discharge for the amount of such collections, or for all public moneys with which he may have been intrusted.

Sec. 21. No member shall be questioned in any other place for words spoken in debate in either house.

Sec. 22. A member who has a personal or private interest in any measure or bill, proposed or pending before the legislature, shall disclose the fact to the house of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon.

Sec. 23. If any senator or representative remove his residence from the district or county for which he was elected, his office shall thereby become vacant, and the vacancy shall be filled as provided in section 13 of this article.

Sec. 24. The members of the legislature shall receive from the public treasury such compensation for their services as may, from time to time, be provided by law, not exceeding five dollars per day for the first sixty days of each session, and after that not exceeding two dollars per day for the remainder of the session, except the first session held under this constitution, when they may receive not exceeding five dollars per day for the first ninety days, and after that not exceeding two dollars per day for the remainder of the session. In addition to the per diem, the members of each house shall be entitled to mileage in going to and returning from the seat of government, which mileage shall not exceed five dollars for every twenty-five miles, the distance to be computed by the nearest and most direct route of travel by land, regardless of railways or water routes; and the comptroller of the state shall prepare and preserve a table of distances to each county seat, now or hereafter to be established, and by such table the mileage of each member shall be paid; but no member shall be entitled to mileage for any extra session that may be called within one day after the adjournment of a regular or called session.

Sec. 25. The state shall be divided into senatorial districts of contiguous territory according to the number of qualified electors, as nearly as may be, and each district shall be entitled to elect one senator; and no single county shall be entitled to more than one senator.

Sec. 26. The members of the house of representatives shall be apportioned among the several counties, according to the number of population in each, as nearly as may be, on a ratio obtained by dividing the population of the state, as ascertained by the most recent United States census, by the number of members of which the house is composed; provided, that whenever a single county has sufficient population to be entitled to a representative, such county shall be formed into a separate representative district; and when two or more counties are required to make up the ratio of representation, such counties shall be contiguous to each other; and when any one county has more than sufficient population to be entitled to one or more representatives, such representative or representatives shall be apportioned to such county, and for any surplus of population it may be joined in a representative district with any other contiguous county or counties.

Sec. 27. Elections for senators and representatives shall be general throughout the state, and shall be regulated by law.

Sec. 28. The legislature shall, at its first session after the publication of each United States decennial census, apportion the state into senatorial and representative districts, agreeably to the provisions of sections 25 and 26 of this article; and until the next decennial census, when the first apportionment shall be made by the legislature, the state shall be and it is hereby divided into senatorial and representative districts as provided by an ordinance of the convention on that subject.

PROCEEDINGS

Sec. 29. The enacting clause of all laws shall be: "Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Texas."

Sec. 30. No law shall be passed, except by bill, and no bill shall be so amended in its passage through either house as to change its original purpose.

Sec. 31. Bills may originate in either house, and, when passed by such house, may be amended, altered or rejected by the other.

Sec. 32. No bill shall have the force of a law until it has been read on three several days in each house, and free discussion allowed thereon; but in case of imperative public necessity (which necessity shall be stated in a preamble, or in the body of the bill), four-fifths of the house, in which the bill may be pending, may suspend this rule, the yeas and nays being taken on the question of suspension, and entered upon the journals.

Sec. 33. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives, but the senate may amend or reject them as other bills.

Sec. 34. After a bill has been considered and defeated by either house of the legislature, no bill containing the same substance shall be passed into a law during the same session. After a resolution has been acted on and defeated, no resolution containing the same substance shall be considered at the same session.

Sec. 35. No bill (except general appropriation bills, which may embrace the various subjects and accounts, for and on account of which moneys are appropriated) shall contain more than one subject, which shall be expressed in its title. But if any subject shall be embraced in an act, which shall not be expressed in the title, such act shall be void only as to so much thereof as shall not be so expressed.

Sec. 36. No law shall be revived or amended by reference to its title; but in such case the act revived, or the section or sections amended, shall be re-enacted and published at length.

Sec. 37. No bill shall be considered, unless it has been first referred to a committee and reported thereon, and no bill shall be passed which has not been presented and referred to and reported from a committee at least three days before the final adjournment of the legislature.

Sec. 38. The presiding officer of each house shall, in the presence of the house over which he presides, sign all bills and joint resolutions passed by the legislature, after their titles have been publicly read before signing; and the fact of signing shall be entered on the journals.

Sec. 39. No law passed by the legislature, except the general appropriation act, shall take effect or go into force until ninety days after the adjournment of the session at which it was enacted, unless in case of an emergency, which emergency must be expressed in a preamble or in the body of the act, the legislature shall, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house, otherwise direct; said vote to be taken by yeas and nays, and entered upon the journals.

Sec. 40. When the legislature shall be convened in special session, there shall be no legislation upon subjects other than those designated in the proclamation of the governor calling such session, or presented to them by the governor; and no such session shall be of longer duration than thirty days.

Sec. 41. In all elections by the senate and house of representatives, jointly or separately, the vote shall be given viva voce, except in the election of their officers.

REQUIREMENTS AND LIMITATIONS

Sec. 42. The legislature shall pass such laws as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this constitution.

Sec. 43. The first session of the legislature under this constitution shall provide for revising, digesting and publishing the laws, civil and criminal; and a like revision, digest and publication may be made every ten years thereafter; provided, that in the adoption of and giving effect to any such digest or revision, the legislature shall not be limited by sections 35 and 36 of this article.

Sec. 44. The legislature shall provide by law for the compensation of all officers, servants, agents and public contractors, not provided for in this constitution, but shall not grant extra compensation to any officer, agent, servant or public contractors, after such public service shall have been performed or contract entered into for the performance of the same, nor grant by appropriation or otherwise, any amount of money out of the treasury of the state, to any individual, on a claim, real or pretended, when the same shall not have been provided for by pre-existing law, nor employ any one in the name of the state, unless authorized by pre-existing law.

Sec. 45. The power to change the venue in civil and criminal cases shall be vested in the courts, to be exercised in such manner as shall be provided by law; and the legislature shall pass laws for that purpose.

Sec. 46. The legislature shall, at its first session after the adoption of this constitution, enact effective vagrant laws.

Sec. 47. The legislature shall pass laws prohibiting the establishment of lotteries and gift enterprises in this state, as well as the sale of tickets in lotteries, gift enterprises or other evasions involving the lottery principle, established or existing in other states.

Sec. 48. The legislature shall not have the right to levy taxes or impose burdens upon the people, except to raise revenue sufficient for the economical administration of the government, in which may be included the following purposes:

The payment of all interest upon the bonded debt of the state;

The erection and repairs of public buildings;

The benefit of the sinking fund, which shall not be more than two per centum of the public debt; and for the payment of the present floating debt of the state, including matured bonds for the payment of which the sinking fund is inadequate;

The support of public schools, in which shall be included colleges and universities established by the state; and the maintenance and support of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas;

The payment of the cost of assessing and collecting the revenue; and the payment of all officers, agents and employés of the state government, and all incidental expenses connected therewith;

The support of the blind asylum, the deaf and dumb asylum and the insane asylum, the state cemetery and the public grounds of the state;

The enforcement of quarantine regulations on the coast of Texas;

The protection of the frontier.

Sec. 49. No debt shall be created by or on behalf of the state, except to supply casual deficiencies of revenue, repel invasion, suppress insurrection, defend the state in war, or pay existing debt; and the debt created to supply deficiencies in the revenue shall never exceed, in the aggregate at any one time, two hundred thousand dollars.

Sec. 50. The legislature shall have no power to give or to lend, or to authorize the giving or lending, of the credit of the state in aid of, or to, any person, association or corporation, whether municipal or other; or to pledge the credit of the state, in any manner whatsoever, for the payment of the liabilities, present or prospective, of any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporation whatsoever.

Sec. 51. The legislature shall have no power to make any grant, or authorize the making of any grant, of public money to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporation whatsoever; provided, that this shall not be so construed as to prevent the grant of aid in case of public calamity. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 51. The legislature shall have no power to make any grant, or authorize the making of any grant, of public money to any individual, association of individuals, municipal, or other corporation whatsoever; provided, however, the legislature may grant aid to the establishment and maintenance of a home for indigent and disabled Confederate soldiers or sailors who are or may be bona fide residents of the state of Texas, under such regulations and limitations as may be provided by law; provided, that such grant shall not exceed the sum of one hundred thousand dollars for any one year; and provided, further, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed so as to prevent the grant of aid in case of public calamity. [Sec. 51, Art. 3, adopted election November 6, 1894; proclamation December 21, 1894.]

Sec. 51. The legislature shall have no power to make any grant, or authorize the making of any grant, of public money to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporations whatsoever; provided, however, the legislature may grant aid to indigent and disabled Confederate soldiers and sailors who came to Texas prior to January 1, 1880, and who are either over sixty years of age, or whose disability is the proximate result of actual service in the Confederate army for a period of at least three months, their widows in indigent circumstances who have never remarried, and who have been bona fide residents of the state of Texas since March 1, 1880, and who were married to such soldiers or sailors anterior to March 1, 1866; provided, said aid shall not exceed eight dollars per month; and provided, further, that no appropriation shall ever be made for the purpose hereinbefore specified, in excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for any one year. And also grant aid to the establishment and maintenance of a home for said soldiers and sailors, under such regulations and limitations as may be provided by law; provided, the grant to aid said home shall not exceed one hundred thousand dollars for any one year; and no inmate of said home shall be entitled to any other aid from the state; and provided, further, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed to prevent the grant of aid in case of public calamity. [Sec. 51, Art. 3, adopted election November 1, 1898; proclamation December 22, 1898.]

Sec. 51. The legislature shall have no power to make any grant, or authorize the making of any grant, of public money to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporations whatsoever; provided, however, the legislature may grant aid to indigent and disabled Confederate soldiers and sailors, who came to Texas prior to January 1, 1880, and who are either over sixty years of age or whose disability is the proximate result of actual service in the Confederate army for a period of at least three months, their widows in indigent circumstances, who have never remarried and who have been bona fide residents of the state of Texas since March 1, 1880, and who were married to such soldiers or sailors anterior to March 1, 1880; provided, said aid shall not exceed eight dollars per month; and provided, further, that no appropriation shall ever be made for the purpose hereinbefore specified in excess of five hundred thousand dollars for any one year. And also grant aid to the establishment and maintenance of a home for said soldiers and sailors, under such regulations and limitations as may be provided by law; provided, the grant to aid said home shall not exceed one hundred thousand dollars for any one year; and no inmate of said home shall be entitled to any other aid from the state; and provided, further, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed to prevent the grant of aid in case of public calamity. [Sec. 51, Art. 3, adopted election November 8, 1904; proclamation December 29, 1904.]

Sec. 51. The legislature shall have no power to make any grant, or authorize the making of any grant. of public money to any individual, associations of individuals, municipal or other corporations whatsoever; provided, however, the legislature may grant aid to indigent and disabled Confederate soldiers and sailors who came to Texas prior to January 1, 1880, and who are either over sixty years of age or whose disability is the proximate result of actual service in the Confederate army for a period of at least three months, their widows in indigent circumstances who have never remarried and who have been bona fide residents of the state of Texas since March 1, 1880, and who were married to such soldiers or sailors anterior to March 1, 1880; provided, said aid shall not exceed eight dollars per month; and provided, further, that no appropriations shall ever be made for the purpose hereinbefore specified in excess of five hundred thousand dollars for any one year. And also grant aid to the establishment and maintenance of a home for said soldiers and sailors, their wives and widows and women who aided in the Confederacy, under such regulations and limitations as may be provided by law; provided, the grant to aid said home shall not exceed one hundred and fifty thousand dollars for any one year; and no inmate of said homes shall be entitled to any other aid from the state; the legislature may provide for husband and wife to remain together in the home; and provided, further, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed to prevent the grant of aid in case of public calamity. [Sec. 51, Art. 3, adopted election November 8, 1910.]

Sec. 51. The legislature shall have no power to make any grant or authorize the making of any grant of public money to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporation whatsoever; provided, however, the legislature may grant aid to indigent and disabled Confederate soldiers and sailors who came to Texas prior to January 1, 1900, and their widows in indigent circumstances, and who have been bona fide residents of the State of Texas since January 1, 1900, and who were married to such soldiers and sailors anterior to January 1, 1900; to indigent and disabled soldiers, who under special laws of the State of Texas, during the war between the States served for a period of at least six months in organizations for the protection of the frontier against Indian raids or Mexican marauders, and to indigent and disabled soldiers of the militia of the State of Texas, who were in active service for a period of at least six months during the war between the States, to the widows of such soldiers who are in indigent circumstances, and who were married to such soldiers prior to January 1, 1900, provided that the word "widow" in the preceding lines of this section shall not apply to women born since 1861, and also to grant aid for the establishment and maintenance of a home for said soldiers and sailors, their wives and widows, and women who aided in the Confederacy under such regulations and limitations as may be provided for by law; provided, the Legislature may provide for husband and wife to remain together in the home.

The legislature shall have the power to levy and collect, in addition to all other taxes heretofore permitted by the Constitution of Texas, a State ad valorem tax on property not exceeding five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation for the purpose of creating a special fund for the payment of pensions for services in the Confederate Army and Navy, frontier organizations and the militia of the State of Texas, and for the widows of such soldiers serving in said armies, navies, organizations, or militia. [Sec. 51, art. 3, adopted election Nov. 5, 1912; proclamation Dec. 30, 1912.]

Sec. 52. The legislature shall have no power to authorize any county, city, town, or other political corporation, or subdivision of the state, to lend its credit or to grant public money or thing of value in aid of, or to, any individual, association or corporation whatsoever, or to become a stockholder in such corporation, association or company. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 52. The legislature shall have no power to authorize any county, city, town or other political corporation or subdivision of the state, to lend its credit or to grant public money or thing of value in aid of, or to, any individual, association or corporation whatsoever, or to become a stockholder in such corporation, association or company; provided, however, that under legislative provision any county, any political subdivision of a county, any number of adjoining counties, or any political subdivision of the state, or any defined district now or hereafter to be described and defined within the state of Texas, and which may or may not include towns, villages or municipal corporations, upon a vote of a two-thirds majority of the resident property taxpayers voting thereon who are qualified electors of such district or territory to be affected thereby, in addition to all other debts, may issue bonds or otherwise lend its credit in any amount not to exceed one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property of such district or territory, except that the total bonded indebtedness of any city or town shall never exceed the limits imposed by other provisions of this constitution, and levy and collect such taxes to pay the interest thereon and provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof, as the legislature may authorize, and in such manner as it may authorize the same, for the following purposes, to-wit:

(a) The improvement of rivers, creeks and streams to prevent overflows, and to permit of navigation thereof, or irrigation thereof, or in aid of such purposes.

(b) The construction and maintenance of pools, lakes, reservoirs, dams, canals and waterways for the purposes of irrigation, drainage or navigation, or in aid thereof.

(c) The construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof.

Sec. 53. The legislature shall have no power to grant, or to authorize any county or municipal authority to grant, any extra compensation, fee or allowance to a public officer, agent, servant or contractor after service has been rendered or a contract has been entered into, and performed in whole or in part; nor pay, nor authorize the payment of, any claim created against any county or municipality of the state, under any agreement or contract, made without authority of law.

Sec. 54. The legislature shall have no power to release or alienate any lien held by the state upon any railroad, or in anywise change the tenor or meaning, or pass any act explanatory thereof; but the same shall be enforced in accordance with the original terms upon which it was acquired.

Sec. 55. The legislature shall have no power to release or extinguish, or to authorize the releasing or extinguishing, in whole or in part, the indebtedness, liability or obligation of any incorporation or individual, to this state, or to any county or other municipal corporation therein.

Sec. 56. The legislature shall not, except as otherwise provided in this constitution, pass any local or special law, authorizing:

The creation, extension or impairing of liens;

Regulating the affairs of counties, cities, towns, wards or school districts;

Changing the names of persons or places;

Changing the venue in civil or criminal cases;

Authorizing the laying out, opening, altering or maintaining of roads, highways, streets or alleys;

Relating to ferries or bridges, or incorporating ferry or bridge companies, except for the erection of bridges crossing streams which form boundaries between this and any other state;

Vacating roads, town plats, streets or alleys;

Relating to cemeteries, graveyards, or public grounds not of the state;

Authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children;

Locating or changing county seat;

Incorporating cities, towns or villages, or changing their charters;

For the opening and conducting of elections, or fixing or changing the places of voting;

Granting divorces;

Creating offices, or prescribing the power and duties of officers, in counties, cities, towns, election or school districts;

Changing the law of descent or succession;

Regulating the practice or jurisdiction of, or changing the rules of evidence in, any judicial proceeding or inquiry before courts, justices of the peace, sheriffs, commissioners, arbitrators or other tribunals, or providing or changing methods for the collection of debts, or the enforcing of judgments, or prescribing the effect of judicial sales of real estate;

Regulating the fees, or extending the powers and duties of aldermen, justices of the peace, magistrates or constables;

Regulating the management of public schools, the building or repairing of school houses, and the raising of money for such purposes;

Fixing the rate of interest;

Affecting the estates of minors, or persons under disability;

Remitting fines, penalties and forfeitures, and refunding money legally paid into the treasury;

Exempting property from taxation;

Regulating labor, trade, mining and manufacturing;

Declaring any named person of age;

Extending the time for the assessment or collection of taxes, or otherwise relieving any assessor or collector of taxes from the due performance of his official duties, or his securities from liability;

Giving effect to informal or invalid wills or deeds;

Summoning or impaneling grand or petit juries;

For limitation of civil or criminal actions;

For incorporating railroads or other works of internal improvements;

And in all other cases where a general law can be made applicable, no local or special law shall be enacted; provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prohibit the legislature from passing special laws for the preservation of the game and fish of this state in certain localities.

Sec. 57. No local or special law shall be passed, unless notice of the intention to apply therefor shall have been published in the locality where the matter or thing to be affected may be situated, which notice shall state the substance of the contemplated law, and shall be published at least thirty days prior to the introduction into the legislature of such bill and in the manner to be provided by law. The evidence of such notice having been published shall be exhibited in the legislature before such act shall be passed.

Sec. 58. The legislature shall hold its sessions at the city of Austin, which is hereby declared to be the seat of government.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

Section 1. The executive department of the state shall consist of a governor, who shall be the chief executive officer of the state, a lieutenant-governor, secretary of state, comptroller of public accounts, treasurer, commissioner of the general land office, and attorney general.

Sec. 2. All the above officers of the executive department, except secretary of state, shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state at the time and places of election for members of the legislature.

Sec. 3. The returns of every election for said executive officers, until otherwise provided by law, shall be made out, sealed up, and transmitted by the returning officers prescribed by law, to the seat of government, directed to the secretary of state, who shall deliver the same to the speaker of the house of representatives, as soon as the speaker shall be chosen; and the said speaker shall, during the first week of the session of the legislature, open and publish them in the presence of both houses of the legislature. The person voted for at said election, having the highest number of votes for each of said offices respectively, and being constitutionally eligible, shall be declared by the speaker, under sanction of the legislature, to be elected to said office. But if two or more persons shall have the highest and an equal number of votes for either of said offices, one of them shall be immediately chosen for such office by joint vote of both houses of the legislature. Contested elections for either of said offices shall be determined by both houses of the legislature in joint session.

Sec. 4. The governor shall be installed on the first Tuesday after the organization of the legislature, or as soon thereafter as practicable, and shall hold his office for the term of two years, or until his successor shall be duly installed. He shall be at least thirty years of age, a citizen of the United States, and shall have resided in this state at least five years immediately preceding his election.

Sec. 5. He shall, at stated times, receive as compensation for his services an annual salary of four thousand dollars, and no more, and shall have the use and occupation of the governor's mansion, fixtures and furniture.

Sec. 6. During the time he holds the office of governor, he shall not hold any other office, civil, military or corporate; nor shall he practice any profession, and receive compensation, reward, fee, or the promise thereof, for the same; nor receive any salary, reward or compensation, or the promise thereof, from any person or corporation, for any service rendered or performed during the time he is governor, or to be thereafter rendered or performed.

Sec. 7. He shall be commander-in-chief of the military forces of the state, except when they are called into actual service of the United States. He shall have power to call forth the militia to execute the laws of the state, to suppress insurrection, repel invasion, and protect the frontier from hostile incursions by Indians or other predatory bands.

Sec. 8. The governor may, on extraordinary occasions, convene the legislature at the seat of government, or at a different place, in case that should be in possession of the public enemy, or in case of the prevalence of disease thereat. His proclamation therefor shall state specifically the purpose for which the legislature is convened.

Sec. 9. The governor shall, at the commencement of each session of the legislature, and at the close of his term of office, give to the legislature information, by message, of the condition of the state; and he shall recommend to the legislature such measures as he may deem expedient. He shall account to the legislature for all public moneys received and paid out by him, from any funds subject to his order, with vouchers, and shall accompany his message with a statement of the same. And at the commencement of each regular session, he shall present estimates of the amount of money required to be raised by taxation for all purposes.

Sec. 10. He shall cause the laws to be faithfully executed, and shall conduct, in person, or in such manner as shall be prescribed by law, all intercourse and business of the state with other states and with the United States.

Sec. 11. In all criminal cases, except treason and impeachment, he shall have power, after conviction, to grant reprieves, commutations of punishment, and pardons; and, under such rules as the legislature may prescribe, he shall have power to remit fines and forfeitures. With the advice and consent of the senate, he may grant pardons in cases of treason; and to this end he may respite a sentence therefor, until the close of the succeeding session of the legislature; provided, that in all cases of remissions of fines and forfeitures, or grants of reprieve, commutation of punishment or pardon, he shall file in the office of the secretary of state his reasons therefor.

Sec. 12. All vacancies in state or district offices, except members of the legislature, shall be filled, unless otherwise provided by law, by appointment of the governor, which appointment, if made during its session, shall be with the advice and consent of two-thirds of the senate present. If made during the recess of the senate, the said appointee, or some other person to fill such vacancy, shall be nominated to the senate during the first ten days of its session. If rejected, said office shall immediately become vacant, and the governor shall, without delay, make further nominations, until a confirmation takes place. But should there be no confirmation during the session of the senate, the governor shall not thereafter appoint any person to fill such vacancy who has been rejected by the senate; but may appoint some other person to fill the vacancy until the next session of the senate, or until the regular election to said office, should it sooner occur. Appointments to vacancies in offices elective by the people shall only continue until the first general election thereafter.

Sec. 13. During the session of the legislature, the governor shall reside where its sessions are held, and at all other times, at the seat of government, except when, by act of the legislature, he may be required or authorized to reside elsewhere.

Sec. 14. Every bill which shall have passed both houses of the legislature shall be presented to the governor for his approval. If he approves, he shall sign it; but if he disapproves it, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it originated, which house shall enter the objections at large upon its journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of the members present agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, with the objections, to the other house, by which likewise it shall be reconsidered; and, if approved by two-thirds of the members of that house, it shall become a law; but in such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor with his objections within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature, by its adjournment, prevent its return; in which case it shall be a law, unless he shall file the same, with his objections, in the office of the secretary of state, and give notice thereof by public proclamation within twenty days after such adjournment. If any bill presented to the governor contains several items of appropriation, he may object to one or more of such items, and approve the other portion of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects; and no item so objected to shall take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to shall be separately considered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members present of each house, the same shall be a part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. If any such bill, containing several items of appropriation, not having been presented to the governor ten days (Sundays excepted) prior to adjournment, be in the hands of the governor at the time of adjournment, he shall have twenty days from such adjournment within which to file objections to any items thereof, and make proclamation of the same, and such item or items shall not take effect.

Sec. 15. Every order, resolution or vote, to which the concurrence of both houses of the legislature may be necessary, except on questions of adjournment, shall be presented to the governor, and, before it shall take effect, shall be approved by him; or, being disapproved, shall be repassed by both houses; and all the rules, provisions and limitations shall apply thereto as prescribed in the last preceding section in the case of a bill.

Sec. 16. There shall also be a lieutenant-governor, who shall be chosen at every election for governor, by the same electors, in the same manner, continue in office for the same time, and possess the same qualifications. The electors shall distinguish for whom they vote as governor and for whom as lieutenant-governor. The lieutenant-governor shall, by virtue of his office, be president of the senate, and shall have, when in committee of the whole, a right to debate and vote on all questions; and, when the senate is equally divided, to give the casting vote. In case of the death, resignation, removal from office, inability or refusal of the governor to serve, or of his impeachment or absence from the state, the lieutenant-governor shall exercise the powers and authority appertaining to the office of governor until another be chosen at the periodical election, and be duly qualified, or until the governor, impeached, absent or disabled, shall be acquitted, return, or his disability be removed.

Sec. 17. If, during the vacancy in the office of governor, the lieutenant-governor should die, resign, refuse to serve, or be removed from office, or be unable to serve, or if he shall be impeached or absent from the state, the president of the senate, for the time being, shall, in like manner, administer the government until he shall be superseded by a governor or lieutenant-governor. The lieutenant-governor shall, while he acts as president of the senate, receive for his services the same compensation and mileage which shall be allowed to the members of the senate, and no more; and during the time he administers the government, as governor, he shall receive in like manner the same compensation which the governor would have received had he been employed in the duties of his office, and no more. The president, for the time being, of the senate, shall, during the time he administers the government, receive in like manner the same compensation which the governor would have received had he been employed in the duties of his office.

Sec. 18. The lieutenant-governor or the president of the senate succeeding to the office of governor, shall, during the entire term to which he may succeed, be under all the restrictions and inhibitions imposed in this constitution on the governor.

Sec. 19. There shall be a seal of the state, which shall be kept by the secretary of state, and used by him officially under the direction of the governor. The seal of the state shall be a star of five points, encircled by olive and live oak branches, and the words, "The State of Texas."

Sec. 20. All commissions shall be in the name and by the authority of the state of Texas, sealed with the state seal, signed by the governor, and attested by the secretary of state.

Sec. 21. There shall be a secretary of state, who shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and who shall continue in office during the term of service of the governor. He shall authenticate the publication of the laws, and keep a fair register of all official acts and proceedings of the governor, and shall, when required, lay the same, and all papers, minutes and vouchers relative thereto, before the legislature, or either house thereof, and shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by law. He shall receive for his services an annual salary of two thousand dollars, and no more.

Sec. 22. The attorney general shall hold his office for two years and until his successor is duly qualified. He shall represent the state in all suits and pleas in the supreme court of the state in which the state may be a party, and shall especially inquire into the charter rights of all private corporations, and, from time to time, in the name of the state, take such action in the courts as may be proper and necessary to prevent any private corporation from exercising any power, or demanding or collecting any species of taxes, toll, freight or wharfage, not authorized by law. He shall, whenever sufficient cause exists, seek a judicial forfeiture of such charters, unless otherwise expressly directed by law, and give legal advice in writing to the governor and other executive officers, when requested by them, and perform such other duties as may be required by law. He shall reside at the seat of government during his continuance in office. He shall receive for his services an annual salary of two thousand dollars, and no more, besides such fees as may be prescribed by law; provided, that the fees which he may receive shall not amount to more than two thousand dollars annually.

Sec. 23. The comptroller of public accounts, the treasurer, and the commissioner of the general land office, shall each hold office for the term of two years, and until his successor is qualified; receive an annual salary of two thousand five hundred dollars, and no more; reside at the capital of the state during his continuance in office; and perform such duties as are or may be required of him by law. They and the secretary of state shall not receive to their own use any fees, costs or perquisites of office. All fees that may be payable by law for any service performed by any officer specified in this section, or in his office, shall be paid, when received, into the state treasury.

Sec. 24. An account shall be kept by the officers of the executive department, and by all officers and managers of state institutions, of all moneys and choses in action received and disbursed or otherwise disposed of by them, severally, from all sources, and for every service performed; and a semi-annual report thereof shall be made to the governor under oath. The governor may, at any time, require information in writing from any and all of said officers or managers, upon any subject relating to the duties, condition, management and expenses of their respective offices and institutions, which information shall be required by the governor under oath; and the governor may also inspect their books, accounts, vouchers and public funds; and any officer or manager who, at any time, shall wilfully make a false report or give false information, shall be guilty of perjury, and so adjudged, and punished accordingly, and removed from office.

Sec. 25. The legislature shall pass efficient laws facilitating the investigation of breaches of trust and duty by all custodians of public funds, and providing for their suspension from office on reasonable cause shown, and for the appointment of temporary incumbents of their offices during such suspension.

Sec. 26. The governor, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of the senate, shall appoint a convenient number of notaries public for each county, who shall perform such duties as now are or may be prescribed by law.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT

Section 1. The judicial power of this state shall be vested in one supreme court, in a court of appeals, in district courts, in county courts, in commissioners' courts, in courts of justices of the peace, and in such other courts as may be established by law. The legislature may establish criminal district courts with such jurisdiction as it may prescribe, but no such courts shall be established unless the district includes a city containing at least thirty thousand inhabitants, as ascertained by the census of the United States or other official census; provided, such town or city shall support said criminal district courts when established. The criminal district court of Galveston and Harris counties shall continue with the district, jurisdiction and organization now existing by law, until otherwise provided by law.

Sec. 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of two judges shall be necessary to the decision of a case. No person shall be eligible to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the supreme court unless he be at the time of his election a citizen of the United States and of this state, and unless he shall have attained the age of thirty years, and shall have been a practicing lawyer or a judge of a court in this state, or such lawyer and judge together, at least seven years. Said chief justice and associate justices shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state at a general election, shall hold their offices for six years, and shall each receive an annual salary of not more than three thousand five hundred and fifty dollars. In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice or associate justice of the supreme court, the governor shall fill the vacancy until the next general election for state officers, and at such general election the vacancy for the unexpired term shall be filled by election by the qualified voters of the state.

Sec. 3. The supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction only, which shall be co-extensive with the limits of the state; but shall only extend to civil cases of which the district courts have original or appellate jurisdiction. Appeals may be allowed from interlocutory judgments of the district courts, in such cases and under such regulations as may be provided by law. The supreme court and the judges thereof shall have power to issue, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, the writ of mandamus, and all other writs necessary to enforce the jurisdiction of said court. The supreme court shall have power, upon affidavit or otherwise, as by the court may be thought proper, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the proper exercise of its jurisdiction. The supreme court shall sit for the transaction of business from the first Monday in October until the last Saturday of June of every year, at the seat of government, and at not more than two other places in the state.

Sec. 4. The supreme court shall appoint a clerk for each place at which it may sit, and each of said clerks shall give bond in such manner as is now or may hereafter be required by law, shall hold his office for four years, and shall be subject to removal by the said court for good cause entered of record on the minutes of said court.

Sec. 5. The court of appeals shall consist of three judges, any two or whom shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of two judges shall be necessary to a decision of said court. They shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state at a general election. They shall be citizens of the United States and of this state; shall have arrived at the age of thirty years at the time of election; each shall have been a practicing lawyer, or a judge of a court in this state, or such lawyer and judge together, for at least seven years. Said judges shall hold their offices for a term of six years, and each of them shall receive an annual salary of three thousand five hundred and fifty dollars, which shall not be increased or diminished during their term of office.

Sec. 6. The court of appeals shall have appellate jurisdiction, co-extensive with the limits of the state, in all criminal cases, of whatever grade, and in all civil cases, unless hereafter otherwise provided by law, of which the county courts have original or appellate jurisdiction. In civil cases its opinions shall not be published unless the publication of such opinions be required by law. The court of appeals and the judges thereof shall have power to issue the writ of habeas corpus; and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, issue such writs as may be necessary to enforce its own jurisdiction. The court of appeals shall have power upon affidavits, or otherwise, as by the court may be thought proper to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the exercise of its jurisdiction. The court of appeals shall sit for the transaction of business from the first Monday of October until the last Saturday of June of every year, at the capital, and at not more than two other places in the state, at which the supreme court shall hold its sessions. The court shall appoint a clerk for each place at which it may sit, and each of said clerks shall give bond in such manner as is now or may hereafter be required by law; shall hold his office for four years, and shall be subject to removal by the said court for good cause, entered of record on the minutes of said court.

Sec. 7. The state shall be divided into twenty-six judicial districts, which may be increased or diminished by the legislature. For each district there shall be elected, by the qualified voters thereof, at a general election for members of the legislature, a judge, who shall be at least twenty-five years of age, shall be a citizen of the United States, shall have been a practicing attorney or a judge of a court in this state for the period of four years, and shall have resided in the district in which he is elected for two years next before his election; shall reside in his district during his term of office, shall hold his office for the term of four years; shall receive an annual salary of twenty-five hundred dollars, which shall not be increased or diminished during his term of service; and shall hold the regular terms of court at one place in each county in the district twice in each year, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. The legislature shall have power by general act to authorize the holding of special terms, when necessary, and to provide for holding more than two terms of the court in any county, for the dispatch of business; and shall provide for the holding of district courts when the judge thereof is absent, or is from any cause disabled or disqualified from presiding.

Sec. 8. The district court shall have original jurisdiction in criminal cases of the grade of felony: Of all suits in behalf of the state to recover penalties, forfeitures and escheats; of all cases of divorce; in cases of misdemeanors, involving official misconduct; of all suits to recover damages for slander or defamation of character; of all suits for the trial of title to land, and for the enforcement of liens thereon; of all suits for the trial of right to property levied on by virtue of any writ of execution, sequestration or attachment, when the property levied on shall be equal to or exceed in value five hundred dollars; and of all suits, complaints, or pleas whatever, without regard to any distinction between law and equity, when the matter in controversy shall be valued at, or amount to, five hundred dollars exclusive of interest; and the said courts and the judges thereof shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus in felony cases, mandamus, injunction, certiorari, and all writs necessary to enforce their jurisdiction. The district court shall have appellate jurisdiction and general control in probate matters over the county court, established in each county, for appointing guardians, granting letters testamentary and of administration, for settling the accounts of executors, administrators and guardians, and for the transaction of business appertaining to estates; and original jurisdiction and general control over executors, administrators, guardians and minors, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the legislature. All cases now pending in the supreme court, of which the court of appeals has appellate jurisdiction under the provisions of this article, shall, as soon as practicable after the establishment of said court of appeals, be certified, and the records transmitted to the court of appeals, and shall be decided by such court of appeals as if the same had been originally appealed to such court. [Const. 1876.]

Section 1. The judicial power of this state shall be vested in one supreme court, in courts of civil appeals, in a court of criminal appeals, in district courts, in county courts, in commissioners' courts, in courts of justices of the peace, and in such other courts as may be provided by law. The criminal district court of Galveston and Harris counties shall continue with the district, jurisdiction and organization now existing by law until otherwise provided by law. The legislature may establish such other courts as it may deem necessary, and prescribe the jurisdiction and organization thereof, and may conform the jurisdiction of the district and other inferior courts thereto.

Sec. 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of two judges shall be necessary to the decision of a case. No person shall be eligible to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the supreme court unless he be, at the time of his election, a citizen of the United States and of this state, and unless he shall have attained the age of thirty years, and shall have been a practicing lawyer or a judge of a court, or such lawyer and judge together, at least seven years. Said chief justice and associate justices shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state at a general election, shall hold their offices six years, or until their successors are elected and qualified, and shall each receive an annual salary of four thousand dollars until otherwise provided by law. In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice of the supreme court, the governor shall fill the vacancy until the next general election for state officers; and at such general election the vacancy for the unexpired term shall be filled by election by the qualified voters of the state. The judges of the supreme court who may be in office at the time this amendment takes effect shall continue in office until the expiration of their term of office under the present constitution, and until their successors are elected and qualified.

Sec. 3. The supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction only, except as herein specified, which shall be co-extensive with the limits of the state. Its appellate jurisdiction shall extent to questions of law arising in cases of which the courts of civil appeals have appellate jurisdiction, under such restrictions and regulations as the legislature may prescribe. Until otherwise provided by law, the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court shall extend to questions of law arising in the cases in the courts of civil appeals in which the judges of any court of civil appeals may disagree, or where the several courts of civil appeals may hold differently on the same question of law, or where a statute of the state is held void. The supreme court and the justices thereof shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus as may be prescribed by law; and, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, the said courts and the justices thereof may issue the writs of mandamus, procedendo, certiorari, and such other writs as may be necessary to enforce its jurisdiction. The legislature may confer original jurisdiction on the supreme court to issue writs of quo warranto and mandamus in such cases as may be specified, except as against the governor of the state. The supreme court shall also have power, upon affidavit or otherwise as by the court may be determined, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the proper exercise of its jurisdiction. The supreme court shall sit for the transaction of business from the first Monday in October of each year until the last Saturday of June in the next year, inclusive, at the capital of the state. The supreme court shall appoint a clerk, who shall give bond in such manner as is now, or may hereafter be, required by law, and he may hold his office for four years, and shall be subject to removal by said court for good cause, entered of record on the minutes of said court, who shall receive such compensation as the legislature may provide.

Sec. 4. The court of criminal appeals shall consist of three judges, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum; and the concurrence of two judges shall be necessary to a decision of said court. Said judges shall have the same qualifications and receive the same salaries as the judges of the supreme court. They shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state at a general election, and shall hold their offices for a term of six years. In case of a vacancy in the office of a judge of the court of criminal appeals, the governor shall fill such vacancy by appointment for the unexpired term. The judges of the court of appeals who may be in office at the time when this amendment takes effect shall continue in office until the expiration of their term of office under the present constitution and laws as judges of the court of criminal appeals.

Sec. 5. The court of criminal appeals shall have appellate jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of the state in all criminal cases of whatever grade, with such exceptions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. The court of criminal appeals and the judges thereof shall have the power to issue the writ of habeas corpus, and, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, issue such writs as may be necessary to enforce its own jurisdiction. The court of criminal appeals shall have power, upon affidavit or otherwise, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the exercise of its jurisdiction. The court of criminal appeals shall sit for the transaction of business from the first Monday in October to the last Saturday of June in each year, at the state capital and two other places (or the capital city) if the legislature shall hereafter so provide. The court of criminal appeals shall appoint a clerk for each place at which it may sit; and each clerk shall give bond in such manner as is now or may hereafter be required by law, and who shall hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the court for good cause, entered of record on the minutes of said court.

Sec. 6. The legislature shall, as soon as practicable after the adoption of this amendment, divide the state into not less than two nor more than three supreme judicial districts, and thereafter into such additional districts as the increase of population and business may require, and shall establish a court of civil appeals in each of said districts, which shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, who shall have the qualifications as herein prescribed for justices of the supreme court. Said courts of civil appeals shall have appellate jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of their respective districts, which shall extend to all civil cases of which the district courts or county courts have original or appellate jurisdiction, under such restrictions and regulations as may be prescribed by law. Provided, that the decision of said courts shall be conclusive on all questions of fact brought before them on appeal of error. Each of said courts of civil appeals shall hold its sessions at a place in its district to be designated by the legislature, and at such time as may be prescribed by law. Said justices shall be elected by the qualified voters of their respective districts, at a general election, for a term of six years, and shall receive for their services the sum of three thousand five hundred dollars per annum until otherwise provided by law. Said courts shall have such other jurisdiction, original and appellate, as may be prescribed by law. Each court of civil appeals shall appoint a clerk, in the same manner as the clerk of the supreme court, which clerk shall receive such compensation as may be fixed by law. Until the organization of the courts of civil appeals and criminal appeals, as herein provided for, the jurisdiction, power and organization and location of the supreme court, the court of appeals, and the commission of appeals shall continue as they were before the adoption of this amendment. All civil cases which may be pending in the court of appeals, shall, as soon as practicable after the organization of the courts of civil appeals, be certified to, and the records thereof transmitted to the proper courts of civil appeals, to be decided by said courts. At the first session of the supreme court, the court of criminal appeals, and such of the courts of civil appeals which may be hereafter created under this article, after the first election of the judges of such courts under this amendment, the terms of office of the judges of each court shall be divided into three classes, and the justices thereof shall draw for the different classes. Those who shall draw class No. 1 shall hold their offices two years, those drawing class No. 2 shall hold their offices four years, and those who may draw class No. 3 shall hold their offices for six years, from the date of their election, and until their successors are elected and qualified; and, thereafter, each of the said judges shall hold his office for six years, as provided in this constitution.

Sec. 7. The state shall be divided into as many judicial districts as may now or hereafter be provided by law, which may be increased or diminished by law. For each district there shall be elected by the qualified voters thereof, at a general election, a judge, who shall be a citizen of the United States and of this state, who shall have been a practicing lawyer of this state, or a judge of a court in this state, for four years next preceding his election; who shall have resided in the district in which he was elected for two years next preceding his election; who shall reside in his district during his term of office; who shall hold his office for the period of four years, and shall receive for his services an annual salary of two thousand five hundred dollars, until otherwise changed by law. He shall hold the regular terms of his court at the county seat of each county in his district at least twice in each year, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. The legislature shall have power by general or special laws to authorize the holding of special terms of the court, or the holding of more than two terms in any county for the dispatch of business. The legislature shall also provide for the holding of district court when the judge thereof is absent, or is from any cause disabled or disqualified from presiding. The district judges who may be in office when this amendment takes effect shall hold their offices until their respective terms shall expire under their present election or appointment.

Sec. 8. The district court shall have original jurisdiction in all criminal cases of the grade of felony; in all suits in behalf of the state to recover penalties, forfeitures and escheats; of all cases of divorce; of all misdemeanors involving official misconduct; of all suits to recover damages for slander or defamation of character; of all suits for trial of title to land and for the enforcement of liens thereon; of all suits for the trial of the right of property levied upon by virtue of any writ of execution, sequestration or attachment, when the property levied on shall be equal to or exceed in value five hundred dollars; of all suits, complaints or pleas whatever, without regard to any distinction between law and equity, when the matter in controversy shall be valued at or amount to five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest; of contested elections; and said court, and the judges thereof, shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus, mandamus, injunction, and certiorari, and all writs necessary to enforce their jurisdiction. The district court shall have appellate jurisdiction and general control in probate matters over the county court established in each county, for appointing guardians, granting letters testamentary and of administration, probating wills, for settling the accounts of executors, administrators, and guardians, and for the transaction of all business appertaining to estates; and original jurisdiction and general control over executors, administrators, guardians and minors, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. The district court shall have appellate jurisdiction and general supervisory control over the county commissioners' court, with such exceptions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; and shall have general original jurisdiction over all causes of action whatever for which a remedy or jurisdiction is not provided by law or this constitution, and such other jurisdiction, original and appellate, as may be provided by law. [Secs. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, Art. 5, adopted election August 11, 1891; proclamation September 22, 1891.]

Sec. 9. There shall be a clerk for the district court of each county, who shall be elected by the qualified voters for the state and county officers, and who shall hold his office for two years, subject to removal by information, or by indictment of a grand jury, and conviction by a petit jury. In case of vacancy, the judge of the district court shall have the power to appoint a clerk who shall hold until the office can be filled by election.

Sec. 10. In the trial of all causes in the district courts, the plaintiff or defendant shall, upon application made in open court, have the right of trial by jury; but no jury shall be impaneled in any civil case, unless demanded by a party to the case, and a jury fee be paid by the party demanding a jury, for such sum and with such exceptions as may be prescribed by the legislature.

Sec. 11. No judge shall sit in any case wherein he may be interested, or where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity, within such degree as may be prescribed by law, or where he shall have been counsel in the case. When the supreme court, or the appellate court, or any two of the members of either, shall be thus disqualified to hear and determine any case or cases in said court, the same shall be certified to the governor of the state, who shall immediately commission the requisite number of persons learned in the law, for the trial and determination of said cause or causes. When a judge of the district court is disqualified by any of the causes above stated, the parties may, by consent, appoint a proper person to try said case; or, upon their failing to do so, a competent person may be appointed to try the same in the county where it is pending, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. And the district judges may exchange districts, or hold courts for each other, when they may deem it expedient, and shall do so when directed by law. The disqualification of judges of inferior tribunals shall be remedied, and vacancies in their offices shall be filled, as prescribed by law.

Sec. 12. All judges of the supreme court, court of appeals and district courts, shall, by virtue of their offices, be conservators of the peace throughout the state. The style of all writs and process shall be, "The State of Texas." All prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of "The State of Texas," and conclude, "Against the peace and dignity of the state." [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 11. No judge shall sit in any case wherein he may be interested, or where either of the parties may be connected with him, either by affinity or consanguinity, within such a degree as may be prescribed by law, or when he shall have been counsel in the case. When the supreme court, the court of criminal appeals, the court of civil appeals, or any member of either, shall be thus disqualified to hear and determine any case or cases in said court, the same shall be certified to the governor of the state, who shall immediately commission the requisite number of persons learned in the law, for the trial and determination of such cause or causes. When a judge of the district court is disqualified by any of the causes above stated, the parties may, by consent, appoint a proper person to try said case; or, upon their failing to do so, a competent person may be appointed to try the same in the county where it is pending, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. And the district judges may exchange districts, or hold courts for each other when they may deem it expedient, and shall do so when required by law. This disqualification of judges of inferior tribunals shall be remedied, and vacancies in their offices filled, as may be prescribed by law.

Sec. 12. All judges of courts of this state, by virtue of their office, shall be conservators of the peace throughout the state. The style of all writs and process shall be, "The State of Texas." All prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by authority of the State of Texas, and shall conclude: "Against the peace and dignity of the state." [Secs. 11 and 12, Art. 5, adopted election August 11, 1891; proclamation September 22, 1891.]

Sec. 13. Grand and petit juries in the district courts shall be composed of twelve men; but nine members of a grand jury shall be a quorum to transact business and present bills. In trials of civil cases, and in trials of criminal cases below the grade of felony in the district courts, nine members of the jury concurring may render a verdict, but when the verdict shall be rendered by less than the whole number, it shall be signed by every member of the jury concurring in it. When, pending the trial of any case, one or more jurors, not exceeding three, may die, or be disabled from sitting, the remainder of the jury shall have the power to render the verdict; provided, that the legislature may change or modify the rule authorizing less than the whole number of the jury to render a verdict.

Sec. 14. The judicial districts in this state and the time of holding the courts therein are fixed by ordinance forming part of this constitution, until otherwise provided by law.

Sec. 15. There shall be established in each county in this state a county court, which shall be a court of record; and there shall be elected in each county, by the qualified voters, a county judge, who shall be well informed in the law of the state, shall be a conservator of the peace, and shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall be elected and qualified. He shall receive as a compensation for his services such fees and perquisites as may be prescribed by law.

Sec. 16. The county court shall have original jurisdiction of all misdemeanors, of which exclusive original jurisdiction is not given to the justices' court, as the same are now or may be hereafter prescribed by law, and when the fine to be imposed shall exceed two hundred dollars; and they shall have exclusive original jurisdiction in all civil cases when the matter in controversy shall exceed in value two hundred dollars, and not exceed five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest; and concurrent jurisdiction with the district courts, when the matter in controversy shall exceed five hundred and not exceed one thousand dollars, exclusive of interest, but shall not have jurisdiction of suits for the recovery of land. They shall have appellate jurisdiction in cases, civil and criminal, of which justices' courts have original jurisdiction, but of such civil cases only when the judgment of the court appealed from shall exceed twenty dollars, exclusive of costs, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. In all appeals from justices' courts, there shall be a trial de novo in the county court, and when the judgment rendered or fine imposed by the county court shall not exceed one hundred dollars such trial shall be final; but if the judgment rendered or fine imposed shall exceed one hundred dollars, as well as in all cases, civil and criminal, of which the county court has exclusive or concurrent original jurisdiction, an appeal shall lie to the court of appeals under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. The county courts shall have the general jurisdiction of a probate court. They shall probate wills, appoint guardians of minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, grant letters testamentary and of administration, settle accounts of executors, administrators and guardians, transact all business appertaining to the estates of deceased persons, minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, including the settlement, partition and distribution of estates of deceased persons, and to apprentice minors as provided by law. And the county courts, or judges thereof, shall have power to issue writs of mandamus, injunction, and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said courts; and to issue writs of habeas corpus in cases where the offense charged is within the jurisdiction of the county court, or any other court or tribunal inferior to said court. The county court shall not have criminal jurisdiction in any county, where there is a criminal district court, unless expressly conferred by law; and in such counties, appeals from justices' courts and other inferior courts and tribunals, in criminal cases, shall be to the criminal district courts, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, and in all such cases an appeal shall lie from such district courts to the court of appeals. Any case pending in the county court, which the county judge may be disqualified to try, shall be transferred to the district court of the same county for trial; and where there exists any cause disqualifying the county judge for the trial of a cause of which the county court has jurisdiction, the district court of such county shall have original jurisdiction of such cause. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 16. The county court shall have original jurisdiction of all misdemeanors of which exclusive original jurisdiction is not given to the justice's court as the same is now or may hereafter be prescribed by law, and when the fine to be imposed shall exceed two hundred dollars; and they shall have exclusive jurisdiction in all civil cases when the matter in controversy shall exceed in value two hundred dollars, and not exceed five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest; and concurrent jurisdiction with the district court when the matter in controversy shall exceed five hundred dollars, and not exceed one thousand dollars, exclusive of interest; but shall not have jurisdiction of suits for the recovery of land. They shall have appellate jurisdiction in cases, civil and criminal, of which justices' courts have original jurisdiction, but of such civil cases only when the judgment of the court appealed from shall exceed twenty dollars, exclusive of cost, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. In all appeals from justices' courts there shall be a trial de novo in the county court; and appeals may be prosecuted from the final judgment rendered in such cases by the county court, as well as all cases, civil and criminal, of which the county court has exclusive or concurrent or original jurisdiction of civil appeals in civil cases to the court of civil appeals, and in such criminal cases to the court of criminal appeals, with such exceptions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. The county court shall have the general jurisdiction of a probate court; they shall probate wills, appoint guardians of minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards; grant letters testamentary and of administration; settle accounts of executors; transact all business appertaining to deceased persons, minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, including the settlement, partition and distribution of estates of deceased persons; and to apprentice minors, as provided by law; and the county court, or judge thereof, shall have power to issue writs of injunction, mandamus, and all writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said court, and to issue writs of habeas corpus in cases where the offense charged is within the jurisdiction of the county court, or any other court or tribunal inferior to said court. The county court shall not have criminal jurisdiction in any county where there is a criminal district court, unless expressly conferred by law; and, in such counties, appeals from justices' courts and other inferior courts and tribunals in criminal cases shall be to the criminal district court, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; and in all such cases an appeal shall lie from such district court to the court of criminal appeals. When the judge of the county court is disqualified in any case pending in the county court, the parties interested may, by consent, appoint a proper person to try said case, or, upon their failing to do so, a competent person may be appointed to try the same in the county where it is pending, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. [Sec. 16, Art. 5, adopted election August 11, 1891; proclamation September 22, 1891.]

Sec. 17. The county court shall hold a term for civil business at least once in every two months, and shall dispose of probate business, either in term time or vacation, as may be provided by law; and said court shall hold a term for criminal business once in every month, as may be provided by law. Prosecutions may be commenced in said court by information filed by the county attorney, or by affidavit, as may be provided by law. Grand juries impaneled in the district courts shall inquire into misdemeanors; and all indictments therefor returned into the district court shall forthwith be certified to the county courts, or other inferior courts, having jurisdiction to try them, for trial; and, if such indictment be quashed in the county, or other inferior court, the person charged shall not be discharged if there is probable cause of guilt, but may be held by such court or magistrate to answer an information or affidavit. A jury in the county court shall consist of six men; but no jury shall be impaneled to try a civil case, unless demanded by one of the parties, who shall pay such jury fee therefor, in advance, as may be prescribed by law, unless he makes affidavit that he is unable to pay the same.

Sec. 18. Each organized county in the state, now or hereafter existing, shall be divided from time to time, for the convenience of the people, into precincts, not less than four and not more than eight. The present county courts shall make the first division. Subsequent divisions shall be made by the commissioners' court, provided for by this constitution. In each such precinct there shall be elected, at each biennial election, one justice of the peace and one constable, each of whom shall hold his office for two years and until his successor shall be elected and qualified; provided, that in any precinct in which there may be a city of eight thousand or more inhabitants, there shall be elected two justices of the peace. Each county shall in like manner be divided into four commissioners' precincts, in each of which there shall be elected by the qualified voters thereof one county commissioner, who shall hold his office for two years and until his successor shall be elected and qualified. The county commissioners so chosen, with the county judge as presiding officer, shall compose the county commissioners' court, which shall exercise such powers and jurisdiction over all county business, as is conferred by this constitution and the laws of the state, or as may be hereafter prescribed.

Sec. 19. Justices of the peace shall have jurisdiction in criminal matters of all cases where the penalty or fine to be imposed by law may not be more than for two hundred dollars, and in civil matters of all cases where the amount in controversy is two hundred dollars or less, exclusive of interest, of which exclusive original jurisdiction is not given to the district or county courts; and such other jurisdiction, criminal and civil, as may be provided by law, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; and appeals to the county courts shall be allowed in all cases decided in justices' courts where the judgment is for more than twenty dollars, exclusive of costs, and in all criminal cases, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. And the justices of the peace shall be ex officio notaries public; and they shall hold their courts at such times and places as may be provided by law.

Sec. 20. There shall be elected for each county, by the qualified voters, a county clerk, who shall hold his office for two years, who shall be clerk of the county and commissioners' courts and recorder of the county, whose duties, perquisites and fees of office shall be prescribed by the legislature, and a vacancy in whose office shall be filled by the commissioners' court, until the next general election for county and state officers; provided, that in counties having a population of less than eight thousand persons there may be an election of a single clerk, who shall perform the duties of district and county clerks.

Sec. 21. A county attorney, for counties in which there is not a resident criminal district attorney, shall be elected by the qualified voters of each county, who shall be commissioned by the governor, and hold his office for the term of two years. In case of vacancy the commissioners' court of the county shall have power to appoint a county attorney until the next general election. The county attorneys shall represent the state in all cases in the district and inferior courts in their respective counties; but, if any county shall be included in a district in which there shall be a district attorney, the respective duties of district attorneys and county attorneys shall, in such counties, be regulated by the legislature. The legislature may provide for the election of district attorneys in such districts, as may be deemed necessary, and make provision for the compensation of district attorneys, and county attorneys; provided, district attorneys shall receive an annual salary of five hundred dollars, to be paid by the state, and such fees, commissions and perquisites as may be provided by law. County attorneys shall receive as compensation only such fees, commissions and perquisites as may be prescribed by law.

Sec. 22. The legislature shall have power, by local or general law, to increase, diminish or change the civil and criminal jurisdiction of county courts; and, in cases of any such change of jurisdiction, the legislature shall also conform the jurisdiction of the other courts to such change.

Sec. 23. There shall be elected by the qualified voters of each county a sheriff, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, whose duties, and perquisites, and fees of office, shall be prescribed by the legislature, and vacancies in whose office shall be filled by the commissioners' court, until the next general election for county or state officers.

Sec. 24. County judges, county attorneys, clerks of the district and county courts, justices of the peace, constables and other county officers, may be removed by the judges of the district courts for incompetency, official misconduct, habitual drunkenness, or other causes defined by law, upon the cause therefor being set forth in writing, and the finding of its truth by a jury.

Sec. 25. The supreme court shall have power to make rules and regulations for the government of said court, and the other courts of the state, to regulate proceedings and expedite the dispatch of business therein. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 25. The supreme court shall have power to make and establish rules of procedure, not inconsistent with the laws of the state, for the government of said court and the other courts of this state, to expedite the dispatch of business therein. [Sec. 25, Art. 5, adopted election August 11, 1891; proclamation September 22, 1891.]

Sec. 26. The state shall have no right of appeal in criminal cases.

Sec. 27. The legislature shall, at its first session, provide for the transfer of all business, civil and criminal, pending in district courts, over which jurisdiction is given by this constitution to the county courts or other inferior courts, to such county or inferior courts, and for the trial or disposition of all such causes by such county or other inferior courts.

Sec. 28. Vacancies in the office of judges in the supreme court, of the court of appeals, and district court shall be filled by the governor until the next succeeding general election; and vacancies in the office of county judge and justices of the peace shall be filled by the commissioners' court, until the next general election for such offices. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 28. Vacancies in the office of judges of the supreme court, the court of criminal appeals, the court of civil appeals, and district courts, shall be filled by the governor, until the next succeeding general election, and vacancies in the office of county judge and justices of the peace shall be filled by the commissioners' court, until the next general election for such offices. [Sec. 28, Art. 5, adopted election August 11, 1891; proclamation September 22, 1891.]

Sec. 29. The county court shall hold at least four terms for both civil and criminal business annually, as may be provided by the legislature, or by the commissioners' court of the county under authority of law, and such other terms each year as may be fixed by the commissioners' court; provided, the commissioners' court of any county having fixed the times and number of terms of the county court, shall not change the same again until the expiration of one year. Said court shall dispose of probate business either in term time or vacation, under such regulation as may be prescribed by law. Prosecutions may be commenced in said courts in such manner as is or may be provided by law, and a jury therein shall consist of six men. Until otherwise provided, the terms of the county court shall be held on the first Mondays in February, May, August and November, and may remain in session three weeks. [Sec. 29, Art. 5, adopted election August 14, 1883; proclamation September 25, 1883.]

SUFFRAGE

Section 1. The following classes of persons shall not be allowed to vote in this state, to-wit:

First. Persons under twenty-one years of age.

Second. Idiots and lunatics.

Third. All paupers supported by any county.

Fourth. All persons convicted of any felony, subject to such exceptions as the legislature may make.

Fifth. All soldiers, marines and seamen, employed in the service of the army or navy of the United States.

Sec. 2. Every male person subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications, who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, and who shall be a citizen of the United States, and who shall have resided in this state one year next preceding an election, and the last six months within the district or county in which he offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified elector; and every male person of foreign birth, subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications, who at any time before an election, shall have declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States, in accordance with the federal naturalization laws, and shall have resided in this state one year next preceding such election, and the last six months in the county in which he offers to vote, shall also be deemed a qualified elector; and all electors shall vote in the election precinct of their residence; provided, that electors living in any unorganized county may vote at any election precinct in the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 2. Every male person subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications, who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, and who shall be a citizen of the United States, and who shall have resided in this state one year next preceding an election, and the last six months within the district or county in which he offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified elector; and every male person of foreign birth, subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications, who, not less than six months before any election at which he offers to vote, shall have declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States in accordance with the Federal naturalization laws, and shall have resided in this state one year next preceding such election, and the last six months in the county in which he offers to vote, shall also be deemed a qualified elector; and all electors shall vote in the election precinct of their residence; provided, that electors living in any unorganized county may vote at any election precinct in the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes. [Sec. 2, Art. 6, adopted election November 3, 1896; proclamation December 18, 1896.]

Sec. 2. Every male person subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications, who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, and who shall be a citizen of the United States, and who shall have resided in this state one year next preceding an election, and the last six months within the district or county in which he offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified elector; and every male person of foreign birth subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications, who, not less than six months before any election at which he offers to vote, shall have declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States in accordance with the Federal naturalization laws, and shall have resided in this state one year next preceding such election and the last six months in the county in which he offers to vote, shall also be deemed a qualified elector; and all electors shall vote in the election precinct of their residence; provided, that electors living in any unorganized county may vote at any election precinct in the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes; and provided, further, that any voter who is subject to pay a poll tax under the laws of the state of Texas shall have paid said tax before he offers to vote at any election in this state and hold a receipt showing his poll tax paid before the first day of February next preceding such election. Or, if said voter shall have lost or misplaced said tax receipt, he shall be entitled to vote upon making affidavit before any officer authorized to administer oaths that such tax receipt has been lost. Such affidavit shall be made in writing and left with the judge of the election. And this provision of the Constitution shall be self-enacting without the necessity of further legislation. [Sec. 2, Art. 6, adopted election November 4, 1902; proclamation December 26, 1902.]

Sec. 3. All qualified electors of the state, as herein described, who shall have resided for six months immediately preceding an election within the limits of any city or corporate town, shall have the right to vote for mayor and all other elective officers; but in all elections to determine expenditure of money or assumption of debt, only those shall be qualified to vote who pay taxes on property in said city or incorporated town; provided, that no poll tax for the payment of debts thus incurred shall be levied upon the persons debarred from voting in relation thereto.

Sec. 4. In all elections by the people the vote shall be by ballot, and the legislature shall provide for the numbering of tickets, and make such other regulations as may be necessary to detect and punish fraud and preserve the purity of the ballot-box; but no law shall ever be enacted requiring a registration of the voters of this State. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 4. In all elections by the people, the vote shall be by ballot, and the legislature shall provide for the numbering of tickets and make such other regulations as may be necessary to detect and punish fraud and preserve the purity of the ballot-box; and the legislature may provide by law for the registration of all voters in all cities containing a population of ten thousand inhabitants or more. [Sec. 4, Art. 6, adopted election August 11, 1891; proclamation September 22, 1891.]

Sec. 5. Voters shall, in all cases, except treason, felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at elections, and in going to and returning therefrom.

ARTICLE VII

EDUCATION

THE PUBLIC FREE SCHOOLS

Section 1. A general diffusion of knowledge being essential to the preservation of the liberties and rights of the people, it shall be the duty of the legislature of the state to establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools.

Sec. 2. All funds, lands and other property heretofore set apart and appropriated for the support of public schools, all the alternate sections of land reserved by the state out of grants heretofore made or that may hereafter be made to railroads, or other corporations, of any nature whatsoever, one-half of the public domain of the state, and all sums of money that may come to the state from the sale of any portion of the same, shall constitute a perpetual public school fund.

Sec. 3. There shall be set apart annually not more than one-fourth of the general revenue of the state, and a poll tax of one dollar on all male inhabitants in this state between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years, for the benefit of the public free schools. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 3. One-fourth of the revenue derived from the state occupation taxes, and a poll tax of one dollar on every male inhabitant of this state, between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years, shall be set apart annually for the benefit of the public free schools; and, in addition thereto, there shall be levied and collected an annual ad valorem state tax of such an amount, not to exceed twenty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation, as, with the available school fund arising from all other sources, will be sufficient to maintain and support the public free schools of this state for a period of not less than six months in each year; and the legislature may also provide for the formation of school districts within all or any of the counties of this state, by general or special law, without the local notice required in other cases of special legislation, and may authorize an additional annual ad valorem tax to be levied and collected within such school districts for the further maintenance of public free schools and the erection of school buildings therein; provided, that two-thirds of the qualified property taxpaying voters of the district, voting at an election to be held for that purpose, shall vote such tax, not to exceed in any one year twenty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of the property subject to taxation in such district, but the limitation upon the amount of district tax herein authorized shall not apply to incorporated cities or towns constituting separate and independent school districts. [Sec. 3, Art. 7, adopted election August 14, 1883; proclamation September 25, 1883.]

Sec. 3. One-fourth of the revenue derived from the state occupation taxes, and a poll tax of one dollar on every male inhabitant of this state, between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years, shall be set apart annually for the benefit of the public free schools; and, in addition thereto, there shall be levied and collected an annual ad valorem state tax of such an amount, not to exceed twenty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation, as, with the available school fund arising from all other sources, will be sufficient to maintain and support the public free schools of this State for a period of not less than six months in each year; and the legislature may also provide for the formation of school districts within all or any of the counties of this state, by general or special law, without the local notice required in other cases of special legislation, and may authorize an additional ad valorem tax to be levied and collected within such school districts for the further maintenance of public free schools, and the erection and equipment of school buildings therein; provided, that a majority of the qualified property taxpaying voters of the district, voting at an election to be held for that purpose, shall vote such tax, not to exceed in any one year fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of the property subject to taxation in such district, but the limitation upon the amount of district tax herein authorized shall not apply to incorporated cities or towns constituting separate and independent school districts. [Sec. 3, Art. 7, adopted election November 3, 1908; proclamation September 24, 1909.]

Sec. 3. One-fourth of the revenue derived from the state occupation taxes and a poll tax of one dollar on every male inhabitant of this state, between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years, shall be set apart annually for the benefit of the public free schools; and, in addition thereto, there shall be levied and collected an annual ad valorem state tax of such an amount, not to exceed twenty cents on the one hundred dollar valuation, as, with the available school fund arising from all other sources, will be sufficient to maintain and support the public free schools of this state for a period of not less than six months in each year; and the legislature may also provide for the formation of school districts by general or special law, without the local notice required in other cases of special legislation; and all such school districts, whether created by general or special law, may embrace parts of two or more counties. And the legislature shall be authorized to pass laws for the assessment and collection of taxes in all said districts, and for the management and control of the public school or schools of such district, whether such districts are composed of territory wholly within a county or in parts of two or more counties. And the legislature may authorize an additional ad valorem tax to be levied and collected within all school districts, heretofore formed or hereafter formed, for the further maintenance of public free schools, and the erection and equipment of school buildings therein; provided, that a majority of the qualified property taxpaying voters of the district, voting at an election to be held for that purpose, shall vote such tax, not to exceed in any one year fifty cents on the one hundred dollar valuation of the property subject to taxation in such district, but the limitation upon the amount of school district tax herein authorized shall not apply to incorporated cities or towns, constituting separate and independent school districts. [Sec. 3, Art. 7, adopted election August 3, 1909; proclamation September 24, 1909.]

Sec. 3a. Every school district heretofore formed, whether formed under the general law or by special act, and whether the territory embraced within its boundaries lies wholly within a single county or partly in two or more counties, is hereby declared to be, and from its formation to have been, a valid and lawful district. All bonds heretofore issued by any such districts which have been approved by the attorney general and registered by the comptroller, are hereby declared to be, and at the time of their issuance to have been, issued in conformity with the constitution and laws of this state; and any and all such bonds are hereby in all things validated and declared to be valid and binding obligations upon the district or districts issuing the same. Each such district is hereby authorized to, and shall, annually levy and collect an ad valorem tax sufficient to pay the interest on all such bonds and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to redeem the same at maturity, not to exceed such a rate as may be provided by law under other provisions of this constitution. And all trustees, heretofore elected in districts made up from more than one county, are hereby declared to have been duly elected, and shall be and are hereby named as trustees of their respective districts, with power to levy the taxes herein authorized, until their successor shall be duly elected and qualified, as is, or may be, provided by law. [Sec. 3a, Art. 7, adopted election August 3, 1909, proclamation September 24, 1909.]

Sec. 4. The lands herein set apart to the public free school fund shall be sold under such regulations, at such times and on such terms as may be prescribed by law; and the legislature shall not have power to grant any relief to the purchasers thereof. The comptroller shall invest the proceeds of such sales, and of those heretofore made, as may be directed by the board of education herein provided for, in the bonds of this state, if the same can be obtained, otherwise in United States bonds; and the United States bonds now belonging to said fund shall likewise be invested in state bonds, if the same can be obtained on terms advantageous to the school fund. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 4. The lands herein set apart to the public free school fund shall be sold under such regulations, at such times, and on such terms as may be prescribed by law; and the legislature shall not have power to grant any relief to purchasers thereof. The comptroller shall invest the proceeds of such sales, and of those heretofore made, as may be directed by the board of education herein provided for, in the bonds of the United States, the state of Texas, or counties in said state, or in such other securities, and under such restrictions as may be prescribed by law; and the state shall be responsible for all investments. [Sec. 4, Art. 7, adopted election August 14, 1883; proclamation September 25, 1883.]

Sec. 5. The principal of all bonds and other funds, and the principal arising from the sale of the lands hereinbefore set apart to said school fund, shall be the permanent school fund; and all the interest derivable therefrom and the taxes herein authorized and levied shall be the available school fund which shall be applied annually to the support of the public free schools. And no law shall ever be enacted appropriating any part of the permanent or available school fund to any other purpose whatever; nor shall the same, or any part thereof, ever be appropriated to or used for the support of any sectarian school; and the available school fund herein provided shall be distributed to the several counties according to their scholastic population and applied in manner as may be provided by law. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 5. The principal of all bonds and other funds, and the principal arising from the sale of the lands hereinbefore set apart to said school fund, shall be the permanent school fund; and all the interest derivable therefrom and the taxes herein authorized and levied shall be the available school fund, to which the legislature may add not exceeding one per cent annually of the total value of the permanent school fund; such value to be ascertained by the board of education until otherwise provided by law; and the available school fund shall be applied annually to the support of the public free schools. And no law shall ever be enacted appropriating any part of the permanent or available school fund to any other purpose whatever; nor shall the same, or any part thereof, ever be appropriated to or used for the support of any sectarian school; and the available school fund herein provided shall be distributed to the several counties according to their scholastic population and applied in such manner as may be provided by law. [Sec. 5, Art. 7, adopted election August 11, 1891; proclamation September 22, 1891.]

Sec. 6. All lands heretofore or hereafter granted to the several counties of this state for education, or schools, are of right the property of said counties respectively to which they were granted, and title thereto is vested in said counties, and no adverse possession or limitation shall ever be available against the title of any county. Each county may sell or dispose of its lands in whole or in part, in manner to be provided by the commissioners' court of the county. Actual settlers residing on said lands shall be protected in the prior right of purchasing the same to the extent of their settlement, not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres, at the price fixed by said court, which price shall not include the value of existing improvements made thereon by such settlers. Said lands and the proceeds thereof, when sold, shall be held by said counties alone as a trust for the benefit of public schools therein. Said proceeds to be invested in bonds of the state of Texas, or of the United States, and only the interest thereon to be used and expended annually. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 6. All lands heretofore or hereafter granted to the several counties of this state for educational purposes, are of right the property of said counties respectively, to which they were granted, and title thereto is vested in said counties; and no adverse possession or limitation shall ever be available against the title of any county. Each county may sell or dispose of its lands, in whole or in part, in manner to be provided by the commissioners' court of the county. Actual settlers, residing on said lands, shall be protected in the prior right of purchasing the same to the extent of their settlement, not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres, at the price fixed by said court, which price shall not include the value of existing improvements made thereon by such settlers. Said lands and the proceeds thereof, when sold, shall be held by said counties alone as a trust for the benefit of public schools therein; said proceeds to be invested in bonds of the United States, the state of Texas, or counties in said state, or in such other securities and under such restrictions as may be prescribed by law; and the counties shall be responsible for all investments; the interest thereon and other revenue, except the principal, shall be available fund. [Sec. 6, Art. 7, adopted election August 14, 1883; proclamation September 25, 1883.]

Sec. 7. Separate schools shall be provided for the white and colored children, and impartial provision shall be made for both.

Sec. 8. The governor, comptroller and secretary of state shall constitute a board of education, who shall distribute said funds to the several counties and perform such other duties concerning public schools as may be prescribed by law.

ASYLUMS

Sec. 9. All lands heretofore granted for the benefit of the lunatic, blind, deaf and dumb, and orphan asylums, together with such donations as may have been, or may hereafter be, made to either of them, respectively, as indicated in the several grants, are hereby set apart to provide a permanent fund for the support, maintenance and improvement of said asylums. And the legislature may provide for the sale of the lands and the investment of the proceeds in manner as provided for the sale and investment of school lands in section 4 of this article.

UNIVERSITY

Sec. 10. The legislature shall, as soon as practicable, establish, organize and provide for the maintenance, support and direction of a university of the first class, to be located by a vote of the people of this state, and styled, "The University of Texas," for the promotion of literature, and the arts and sciences, including an agricultural and mechanical department.

Sec. 11. In order to enable the legislature to perform the duties set forth in the foregoing section, it is hereby declared that all lands and other property heretofore set apart and appropriated for the establishment and maintenance of the University of Texas, together with all the proceeds of sales of the same, heretofore made or hereafter to be made, and all grants, donations and appropriations that may hereafter be made by the state of Texas, or from any other source, shall constitute and become a permanent university fund. And the same as realized and received into the treasury of the state (together with such sum belonging to the fund, as may now be in the treasury), shall be invested in bonds of the state of Texas, if the same can be obtained; if not, then in United States bonds; and the interest accruing thereon shall be subject to appropriation by the legislature to accomplish the purpose declared in the foregoing section; provided, that the one-tenth of the alternate sections of the lands granted to railroads, reserved by the state, which were set apart and appropriated to the establishment of the University of Texas, by an act of the legislature of February 11, 1858, entitled, "An act to establish 'The University of Texas,' " shall not be included in, or constitute a part of, the permanent university fund.

Sec. 12. The land herein set apart to the university fund shall be sold under such regulations, at such times, and on such terms as may be provided by law; and the legislature shall provide for the prompt collection, at maturity, of all debts due on account of university lands heretofore sold, or that may hereafter be sold, and shall in neither event have the power to grant relief to the purchasers.

Sec. 13. The Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, established by an act of the legislature, passed April 17, 1871, located in the county of Brazos, is hereby made and constituted a branch of the University of Texas, for instruction in agriculture, the mechanic arts, and the natural sciences connected therewith. And the legislature shall, at its next session, make an appropriation, not to exceed forty thousand dollars, for the construction and completion of the buildings and improvements, and for providing the furniture necessary to put said college in immediate and successful operation.

Sec. 14. The legislature shall, also, when deemed practicable, establish and provide for the maintenance of a college or branch university for the instruction of the colored youths of the state, to be located by a vote of the people; provided, that no tax shall be levied, and no money appropriated out of the general revenue, either for this purpose or for the establishment and erection of the buildings of the University of Texas.

Sec. 15. In addition to the lands heretofore granted to the University of Texas, there is hereby set apart, and appropriated, for the endowment, maintenance, and support of said university and its branches, one million acres of the unappropriated public domain of the state, to be designated and surveyed as may be provided by law; and said lands shall be sold under the same regulations, and the proceeds invested in the same manner, as is provided for the sale and investment of the permanent university fund, and the legislature shall not have power to grant any relief to the purchasers of said lands.

TAXATION AND REVENUE

Section 1. Taxation shall be equal and uniform. All property in this state, whether owned by natural persons or corporations, other than municipal, shall be taxed in proportion to its value, which shall be ascertained as may be provided by law. The legislature may impose a poll tax. It may also impose occupation taxes, both upon natural persons and upon corporations, other than municipal, doing any business in this state. It may also tax incomes of both natural persons and corporations, other than municipal, except that persons engaged in mechanical and agricultural pursuits shall never be required to pay an occupation tax; provided, that two hundred and fifty dollars worth of household and kitchen furniture, belonging to each family in this state, shall be exempt from taxation; and provided, further, that the occupation tax levied by any county, city or town, for any year on persons or corporations pursuing any profession or business, shall not exceed one-half of the tax levied by the state for the same period on such profession or business.

Sec. 2. All occupation taxes shall be equal and uniform upon the same class of subjects within the limits of the authority levying the tax; but the legislature may, by general laws, exempt from taxation public property used for public purposes; actual places of religious worship; places of burial not held for private or corporate profit; all buildings used exclusively and owned by persons or associations of persons for school purposes, (and the necessary furniture of all schools), and institutions of purely public charity; and all laws exempting property from taxation, other than the property above mentioned, shall be void. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 2. All occupation taxes shall be equal and uniform upon the same class of subjects within the limits of the authority levying the tax; but the legislature may, by general laws, exempt from taxation public property used for public purposes; actual places of religious worship; places of burial not held for private or corporate profit; all buildings used exclusively and owned by persons or associations of persons for school purposes and the necessary furniture of all schools; also the endowment funds of such institutions of learning and religion not used with a view to profit; and when the same are invested in bonds or mortgages, or in land or other property which has been and shall hereafter be bought in by such institutions under foreclosure sales made to satisfy or protect such bonds or mortgages, that such exemption of such land and property shall continue only for two years after the purchase of the same at such sale by such institutions and no longer, and institutions of purely public charity; and all laws exempting property from taxation other than the property above mentioned shall be null and void. [Sec. 2, Art. 8, adopted election November 6, 1906; proclamation January 7, 1907.]

Sec. 3. Taxes shall be levied and collected by general laws and for public purposes only.

Sec. 4. The power to tax corporations and corporate property shall not be surrendered or suspended by act of the legislature, by any contract or grant to which the state shall be a party.

Sec. 5. All property of railroad companies, of whatever description, lying or being within the limits of any city or incorporated town within this state, shall bear its proportionate share of municipal taxation; and, if any such property shall not have been heretofore rendered, the authorities of the city or town, within which it lies, shall have power to require its rendition, and collect the usual municipal tax thereon, as on other property lying within said municipality.

Sec. 6. No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in pursuance of specific appropriations made by law; nor shall any appropriation of money be made for a longer term than two years, except by the first legislature to assemble under this constitution, which may make the necessary appropriations to carry on the government until the assemblage of the sixteenth legislature.

Sec. 7. The legislature shall not have power to borrow, or in any manner divert from its purpose, any special fund that may or ought to come into the treasury; and shall make it penal for any person or persons to borrow, withhold or in any manner to divert from its purpose, any special fund, or any part thereof.

Sec. 8. All property of railroad companies shall be assessed, and the taxes collected in the several counties in which said property is situated, including so much of the roadbed and fixtures as shall be in each county. The rolling stock may be assessed in gross in the county where the principal office of the company is located; and the county tax paid upon it shall be apportioned by the comptroller, in proportion to the distance such road may run through any such county, among the several counties through which the road passes, as a part of their tax assets.

Sec. 9. The state tax on property, exclusive of the tax necessary to pay the public debt, shall never exceed fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation; and no county, city or town shall levy more than one-half of said state tax, except for the payment of debts already incurred, and for the erection of public buildings, not to exceed fifty cents on the one hundred dollars in any one year, and except as in this constitution is otherwise provided. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 9. The state tax on property, exclusive of the tax necessary to pay the public debt, and of the taxes provided for the benefit of public free schools, shall never exceed thirty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation; and no county, city or town shall levy more than twenty-five cents for city or county purposes, and not to exceed fifteen cents for roads and bridges on the one hundred dollars valuation, except for the payment of debts incurred prior to the adoption of this amendment, and for the erection of public buildings, street, sewer and other permanent improvements, not to exceed twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation in any one year, and except as is in this constitution otherwise provided. [Section 9, Art. 8, adopted election August 14, 1883; proclamation September 25, 1883.]

Sec. 9. The state tax on property, exclusive of the tax necessary to pay the public debt, and of the taxes provided for the benefit of public free schools, shall never exceed thirty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation; and no county, city or town shall levy more than twenty-five cents for city or county purposes, and not exceed fifteen cents for roads and bridges on the one hundred dollars valuation except for the payment of debts incurred prior to the adoption of the amendment, September 25, A. D. 1883; and for the erection of public buildings, streets, sewers, waterworks and other permanent improvements, not to exceed twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation in any one year, and except as is in this constitution otherwise provided; and the legislature may also authorize an additional annual ad valorem tax to be levied and collected for the further maintenance of the public roads; provided, that a majority of the qualified property taxpaying voters of the county, voting at an election to be held for that purpose, shall vote such tax, not to exceed fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of the property subject to taxation in such county. And the legislature may pass local laws for the maintenance of public roads and highways without the local notice required for special or local laws. [Sec. 9, Art. 8, adopted election November 4, 1890; proclamation December 19, 1890.]

Sec. 9. The state tax on property, exclusive of the tax necessary to pay the public debt, and of the taxes provided for the benefit of the public free schools, shall never exceed thirty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation; and no county, city or town shall levy more than twenty-five cents for city or county purposes, and not exceeding fifteen cents for roads and bridges, and not exceeding fifteen cents to pay jurors, on the one hundred dollars valuation, except for the payment of debts incurred prior to the adoption of the amendment September 25, 1883; and for the erection of public buildings, streets, sewers, water works and other permanent improvements, not to exceed twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation, in any one year, and except as is in this constitution otherwise provided; and the legislature may also authorize an additional annual ad valorem tax to be levied and collected for the further maintenance of the public roads; provided, that a majority of the qualified property taxpaying voters of the county, voting at an election to be held for that purpose, shall vote such tax, not to exceed fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of the property subject to taxation in such county. And the legislature may pass local laws for the maintenance of the public roads and highways, without the local notice required for special or local laws. [Sec. 9, Art. 8, adopted election November 6, 1906; proclamation January 7, 1907.]

Sec. 10. The legislature shall have no power to release the inhabitants of, or property in, any county, city or town, from the payment of taxes levied for state or county purposes, unless in case of great public calamity in any such county, city or town, when such release may be made by a vote of two-thirds of each house of the legislature.

Sec. 11. All property, whether owned by persons or corporations, shall be assessed for taxation, and the taxes paid in the county where situated, but the legislature may, by a two-thirds vote, authorize the payment of taxes of nonresidents of counties to be made at the office of the comptroller of public accounts. And all lands and other property not rendered for taxation by the owner thereof shall be assessed at its fair value by the proper officer.

Sec. 12. All property subject to taxation in, and owned by residents of, unorganized counties, shall be assessed and the taxes thereon paid in the counties to which such unorganized counties shall be attached for judicial purposes; and lands lying in and owned by non-residents of unorganized counties, and lands lying in the territory not laid off into counties, shall be assessed, and the taxes thereon collected, at the office of the comptroller of the state.

Sec. 13. Provision shall be made by the first legislature for the speedy sale of a sufficient portion of all lands and other property for the taxes due thereon, and every year thereafter for the sale of all lands and other property, upon which the taxes have not been paid; and the deed of conveyance to the purchaser for all lands and other property thus sold shall be held to vest a good and perfect title in the purchaser thereof, subject to be impeached only for actual fraud; provided, that the former owner shall, within two years from date of purchaser's deed, have the right to redeem the land upon the payment of double the amount of money paid for the land.

Sec. 14. There shall be elected by the qualified electors of each county, at the same time and under the same law regulating the election of state and county officers, an assessor of taxes, who shall hold his office for two years and until his successor is elected and qualified.

Sec. 15. The annual assessment made upon landed property shall be a special lien thereon, and all property, both real and personal, belonging to any delinquent taxpayer shall be liable to seizure and sale for the payment of all the taxes and penalties due by such delinquent; and such property may be sold for the payment of the taxes and penalties due by such delinquent, under such regulations as the legislature may provide.

Sec. 16. The sheriff of each county, in addition to his other duties, shall be the collector of taxes therefor. But in counties having ten thousand inhabitants, to be determined by the last preceding census of the United States, a collector of taxes shall be elected, to hold office for two years and until his successor shall be elected and qualified.

Sec. 17. The specification of the objects and subjects of taxation shall not deprive the legislature of the power to require other subjects or objects to be taxed, in such manner as may be consistent with the principles of taxation fixed in this constitution.

Sec. 18. The legislature shall provide for equalizing, as near as may be, the valuation of all property subject to or rendered for taxation, (the county commissioners' court to constitute a board of equalization); and may also provide for the classification of all lands with reference to their value in the several counties.

Sec. 19. Farm products in the hands of the producer, and family supplies for home and farm use, are exempt from all taxation until otherwise directed by a two-thirds vote of all the members elect to both houses of the legislature. [Sec. 19, Art. 8, adopted election first Tuesday in September, 1879; proclamation October 14, 1879.]

COUNTIES

Section 1. The legislature shall have power to create counties for the convenience of the people, subject to the following provisions:

First. In the territory of the state exterior to all counties now existing, no new counties shall be created with a less area than nine hundred square miles, in a square form, unless prevented by pre-existing boundary lines. Should the state lines render this impracticable in border counties, the area may be less. The territory referred to may, at any time, in whole or in part, be divided into counties in advance of population, and attached, for judicial and land surveying purposes, to the most convenient organized county or counties.

Second. Within the territory of any county or counties now existing, no new county shall be created with a less area than seven hundred square miles, nor shall any such county now existing be reduced to a less area than seven hundred square miles. No new counties shall be created so as to approach nearer than twelve miles of the county seat of any county from which it may, in whole or in part, be taken. Counties of a less area than nine hundred, but of seven hundred or more square miles, within counties now existing, may be created by a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature, taken by yeas and nays, and entered on the journals. Any county now existing may be reduced to an area of not less than seven hundred square miles by a like two-thirds vote. When any part of a county is stricken off and attached to, or created into, another county, the part stricken off shall be holden for and obliged to pay its proportion of all the liabilities then existing of the county from which it was taken, in such manner as may be prescribed by law.

Third. No part of any existing county shall be detached from it and attached to another existing county until the proposition for such change shall have been submitted, in such manner as may be provided by law, to a vote of the electors of both counties, and shall have received a majority of those voting on the question in each.

COUNTY SEATS

Sec. 2. The legislature shall pass laws regulating the manner of removing county seats; but no county seat situated within five miles of the geographical center of the county shall be removed, except by a vote of two-thirds of all the electors voting on the subject. A majority of such electors, however, voting at such election, may remove a county seat from a point more than five miles from the geographical center of the county to a point within five miles of such center, in either case the center to be determined by a certificate from the commissioner of the general land office.

RAILROADS

Section 1. Any railroad corporation or association, organized under the law for the purpose, shall have the right to construct and operate a railroad between any points within this state, and to connect at the state line with railroads of other states. Every railroad company shall have the right, with its road, to intersect, connect with or cross any other railroad; and shall receive and transport each the other's passengers, tonnage and cars, loaded or empty, without delay or discrimination, under such regulations as shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. 2. Railroads heretofore constructed, or that may hereafter be constructed in this state, are hereby declared public highways, and railroad companies common carriers. The legislature shall pass laws to correct abuses and prevent unjust discrimination and extortion in the rates of freight and passenger tariffs on the different railroads in this state; and shall, from time to time, pass laws establishing reasonable maximum rates of charges for the transportation of passengers and freight on said railroads, and enforce all such laws by adequate penalties. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 2. Railroads heretofore constructed, or which may hereafter be constructed, in this state are hereby declared public highways, and railroad companies common carriers. The legislature shall pass laws to regulate railroad freight and passenger tariffs, to correct abuses, and prevent unjust discrimination and extortion in the rates of freight and passenger tariffs on the different railroads in this state, and enforce the same by adequate penalties; and, to the further accomplishment of these objects and purposes, may provide and establish all requisite means and agencies invested with such powers as may be deemed adequate and advisable. [Sec. 2, Art. 10, adopted election November 4, 1890; proclamation December 19, 1890.]

Sec. 3. Every railroad or other corporation, organized or doing business in this state under the laws or authority thereof, shall have and maintain a public office or place in this state for the transaction of its business, where transfers of stock shall be made, and where shall be kept for inspection by the stockholders of such corporations, books, in which shall be recorded the amount of capital stock subscribed, the names of the owners of the stock, the amounts owned by them respectively, the amount of stock paid, and by whom, the transfer of said stock, with the date of the transfer, the amount of its assets and liabilities, and the names and places of residence of its officers. The directors of every railroad company shall hold one meeting annually in this state, public notice of which shall be given thirty days previously; and the president or superintendent shall report annually, under oath, to the comptroller or governor, their acts and doings, which report shall include such matters relating to railroads as may be prescribed by law. The legislature shall pass laws enforcing by suitable penalties the provisions of this section.

Sec. 4. The rolling stock and all other movable property belonging to any railroad company or corporation in this state shall be considered personal property; and its real and personal property, or any part thereof, shall be liable to execution and sale in the same manner as the property of individuals; and the legislature shall pass no laws exempting any such property from execution and sale.

Sec. 5. No railroad or other corporation, or the lessees, purchasers or managers of any railroad corporation, shall consolidate the stock, property or franchises of such corporation with, or lease or purchase the works or franchises of, or in any way control any railroad corporation owning or having under its control a parallel or competing line; nor shall any officer of such railroad corporation act as an officer of any other railroad corporation owning or having the control of a parallel or competing line.

Sec. 6. No railroad company organized under the laws of this state shall consolidate by private or judicial sale or otherwise with any railroad company organized under the laws of any other state or of the United States.

Sec. 7. No law shall be passed by the legislature granting the right to construct and operate a street railroad within any city, town or village, or upon any public highway, without first acquiring the consent of the local authorities having control of the street or highway proposed to be occupied by such street railroad.

Sec. 8. No railroad corporation, in existence at the time of the adoption of this constitution, shall have the benefit of any future legislation, except on condition of complete acceptance of all the provisions of this constitution applicable to railroads.

Sec. 9. No railroad hereafter constructed in this state shall pass within a distance of three miles of any county seat, without passing through the same, and establishing and maintaining a depot therein, unless prevented by natural obstacles, such as streams, hills or mountains; provided, such town or its citizens shall grant the right of way through its limits and sufficient ground for ordinary depot purposes.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS

Section 1. The several counties of this state are hereby recognized as legal subdivisions of the state.

Sec. 2. The construction of jails, courthouses and bridges, and the establishment of county poorhouses and farms, and the laying out, construction and repairing of county roads, shall be provided for by general laws.

Sec. 3. No county, city or other municipal corporation, shall hereafter become a subscriber to the capital of any private corporation or association, or make any appropriation or donation to the same, or in anywise loan its credit; but this shall not be construed to in any way affect any obligation heretofore undertaken pursuant to law.

Sec. 4. Cities and towns, having a population of ten thousand inhabitants or less, may be chartered alone by general law. They may levy, assess and collect an annual tax to defray the current expenses of their local government; but such tax shall never exceed, for any one year, one-fourth of one per cent, and shall be collectible only in current money; and all license and occupation tax levied, and all fines, forfeitures, penalties and other dues accruing to cities and towns, shall be collectible only in current money. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 4. Cities and towns, having a population of five thousand or less, may be chartered alone by general law. They may levy, assess and collect an annual tax to defray the current expenses of their local government; but such tax shall never exceed, for any one year, one-fourth of one per cent, and shall be collectible only in current money; and all licenses and occupation taxes levied, and all fines, forfeitures, penalties and other dues accruing to cities and towns, shall be collectible only in current money. [Sec. 4, Art. 11, adopted election August 3, 1909; proclamation September 24, 1909.]

Sec. 5. Cities having more than ten thousand inhabitants may have their charters granted or amended by special act of the legislature, and may levy, assess and collect such taxes as may be authorized by law; but no tax for any purpose shall ever be lawful, for any one year, which shall exceed two and one-half per cent of the taxable property of such city; and no debt shall ever be created by any city, unless at the same time provision be made to assess and collect annually a sufficient sum to pay the interest thereon and create a sinking fund of at least two per cent thereon. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 5. Cities having more than five thousand inhabitants may have their charters granted or amended by special act of the legislature, and may levy, assess and collect such taxes as may be authorized by law; but no tax for any purposes shall ever be lawful, for any one year, which shall exceed two and one-half per cent of the taxable property of such city; and no debt shall ever be created by any city or town, unless at the same time provision be made to assess and collect annually a sufficient sum to pay the interest thereon and create a sinking fund of at least two per cent thereon. [Sec. 5, Art. 11, adopted election August 3, 1909; proclamation September 24, 1909.]

Sec. 5. Cities having more than five thousand (5000) inhabitants may, by a majority vote of the qualified voters of said city, at an election held for that purpose, adopt or amend their charters, subject to such limitations as may be prescribed by the legislature, and providing that no charter or any ordinance passed under said charter shall contain any provision inconsistent with the constitution of the state, or of the general laws enacted by the legislature of this state; said cities may levy, assess and collect such taxes as may be authorized by law or by their charters; but no tax for any purpose shall ever be lawful for any one year, which shall exceed two and one-half per cent of the taxable property of such city, and no debt shall ever be created by any city, unless at the same time provision be made to assess and collect annually a sufficient sum to pay the interest thereon and creating a sinking fund of at least two per cent thereon; and provided further, that no city charter shall be altered, amended or repealed oftener than every two years. [Sec. 5, Art. 11, adopted election Nov. 5, 1912; proclamation Dec. 30, 1912.]

Sec. 6. Counties, cities and towns are authorized, in such mode as may now or may hereafter be provided by law, to levy, assess and collect the taxes necessary to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund to satisfy any indebtedness heretofore legally made and undertaken; but all such taxes shall be assessed and collected separately from that levied, assessed and collected for current expenses of municipal government, and shall, when levied, specify in the act of levying the purpose therefor; and such taxes may be paid in the coupons bonds or other indebtedness for the payment of which such tax may have been levied.

Sec. 7. All counties and cities bordering on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico are hereby authorized, upon a vote of two-thirds of the taxpayers therein (to be ascertained as may be provided by law), to levy and collect such tax for construction of seawalls, breakwaters or sanitary purposes, as may be authorized by law, and may create a debt for such works and issue bonds in evidence thereof. But no debt for any purpose shall ever be incurred in any manner by any city or county unless provision is made, at the time of creating the same, for levying and collecting a sufficient tax to pay the interest thereon and provide at least two per cent as a sinking fund; and the condemnation of the right of way for the erection of such works shall be fully provided for.

Sec. 8. The counties and cities on the gulf coast being subject to calamitous overflows, and a very large proportion of the general revenue being derived from those otherwise prosperous localities, the legislature is especially authorized to aid by donation of such portion of the public domain as may be deemed proper, and in such mode as may be provided by law, the construction of seawalls, or breakwaters, such aid to be proportioned to the extent and value of the works constructed, or to be constructed, in any locality.

Sec. 9. The property of counties, cities and towns, owned and held only for public purposes, such as public buildings and the sites therefor, fire engines and the furniture thereof, and all property used, or intended for extinguishing fires, public grounds and all other property devoted exclusively to the use and benefit of the public, shall be exempt from forced sale and from taxation; provided, nothing herein shall prevent the enforcement of the vendor's lien, the mechanic's or builder's lien, or other liens now existing.

Sec. 10. The legislature may constitute any city or town a separate and independent school district. And when the citizens of any city or town have a charter, authorizing the city authorities to levy and collect a tax for the support and maintenance of a public institution of learning, such tax may hereafter be levied and collected, if, at an election held for that purpose, two-thirds of the taxpayers of such city or town shall vote for such tax.

PRIVATE CORPORATIONS

Section 1. No private corporation shall be created except by general laws.

Sec. 2. General laws shall be enacted providing for the creation of private corporations, and shall therein provide fully for the adequate protection of the public and of the individual stockholders.

Sec. 3. The right to authorize and regulate freights, tolls, wharfage or fares, levied and collected, or proposed to be levied and collected by individuals, companies or corporations, for the use of highways, landings, wharves, bridges and ferries, devoted to public use, has never been and shall never be relinquished or abandoned by the state, but shall always be under legislative control and depend upon legislative authority.

Sec. 4. The first legislature assembled after the adoption of this constitution shall provide a mode of procedure by the attorney general and district or county attorneys, in the name and behalf of the state, to prevent and punish the demanding and receiving or collection of any and all charges, as freight, wharfage, fares or tolls, for the use of property devoted to the public, unless the same shall have been specially authorized by law.

Sec. 5. All laws granting the right to demand and collect freights, fares, tolls or wharfage, shall at all times be subject to amendment, modification or repeal by the legislature.

Sec. 6. No corporation shall issue stock or bonds except for money paid, labor done or property actually received, and all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void.

Sec. 7. Nothing in this article shall be construed to divest or affect rights guaranteed by any existing grant or statute of this state, or of the republic of Texas.

SPANISH AND MEXICAN LAND TITLES

Section 1. All fines, penalties, forfeitures and escheats, which have heretofore accrued to the republic and state of Texas, under their constitutions and laws, shall accrue to the state under this constitution; and the legislature shall provide a method for determining what lands have been forfeited, and for giving effect to escheats; and all such rights of forfeiture and escheat to the state shall, ipso facto, inure to the protection of the innocent holders of junior titles, as provided in sections 2, 3 and 4 of this article.

Sec. 2. Any claim of title or right to land in Texas, issued prior to the thirteenth day of November, 1835, not duly recorded in the county where the land was situated at the time of such record, or not duly archived in the general land office, or not in the actual possession of the grantee thereof, or some person claiming under him, prior to the accruing of junior title thereto from the sovereignty of the soil, under circumstances reasonably calculated to give notice to said junior grantee, has never had, and shall not have, standing or effect against such junior title, or color of title, acquired without such or actual notice of such prior claim of title or right; and no condition annexed to such grants, not archived or recorded, or occupied, as aforesaid, has been, or ever shall be, released or waived, but actual performances of all such conditions shall be proved by the person or persons claiming under such title or claim of right, in order to maintain action thereon, and the holder of such junior title, or color of title, shall have all the rights of the government which have heretofore existed, or now exist, arising from the nonperformance of all such conditions.

Sec. 3. Non-payment of taxes on any claim of title to land dated prior to the thirteenth day of November, 1835, not recorded, or archived, as provided in section 2, by the person or persons so claiming, or those under whom he or they so claim, from that date up to the date of the adoption of this constitution, shall be held to be a presumption that the right thereto has reverted to the state, and that said claim is a stale demand, which presumption shall only be rebutted by payment of all taxes on said lands, state, county, and city or town, to be assessed on the fair value of such lands by the comptroller, and paid to him, without commutation or deduction for any part of the above period.

Sec. 4. No claim of title or right to land, which issued prior to the thirteenth day of November, 1835, which has not been duly recorded in the county where the land was situated at the time of such record, or which has not been duly archived in the general land office, shall ever hereafter be deposited in the general land office, or recorded in this state, or delineated on the maps, or used as evidence in any of the courts of this state, and the same are stale claims; but this shall not affect such rights or presumptions as arise from actual possession. By the words, "duly recorded," as used in sections 2 and 4 of this article, it is meant that such claim of title or right to land shall have been recorded in the proper office, and that mere errors in the certificate of registration, or informality, not affecting the fairness and good faith of the holder thereof, with which the record was made, shall not be held to vitiate such record.

Sec. 5. All claims, locations, surveys, grants and titles of any kind, which are declared null and void by the constitution of the republic or state of Texas, are, and the same shall remain forever, null and void.

Sec. 6. The legislature shall pass stringent laws for the detection and conviction of all forgers of land titles, and may make such appropriations of money for that purpose as may be necessary.

Sec. 7. Sections 2, 3, 4 and 5 of this article shall not be so construed as to set aside or repeal any law or laws of the republic or state of Texas, releasing the claimants of headrights of colonists of a league of land, or less, from compliance with the conditions on which their grants were made.

PUBLIC LANDS AND LAND OFFICE

Section 1. There shall be one general land office in the state, which shall be at the seat of government, where all land titles which have emanated, or may hereafter emanate, from the state shall be registered, except those titles the registration of which may be prohibited by this constitution. It shall be the duty of the legislature at the earliest practicable time to make the land office self-sustaining, and from time to time the legislature may establish such subordinate offices as may be deemed necessary.

Sec. 2. All unsatisfied genuine land certificates barred by section 4, article 10, of the constitution of 1869, by reason of the holders or owners thereof failing to have them surveyed and returned to the land office by the first day of January, 1875, are hereby revived. All unsatisfied genuine land certificates now in existence shall be surveyed and returned to the general land office within five years after the adoption of this constitution, or be forever barred; and all genuine land certificates hereafter issued by the state shall be surveyed and returned to the general land office within five years after issuance, or be forever barred. Provided, that all genuine land certificates heretofore or hereafter issued shall be located, surveyed or patented, only upon vacant and unappropriated public domain, and not upon any land titled or equitably owned under color of title from the sovereignty of the state, evidence of the appropriation of which is on the county records or in the general land office; or when the appropriation is evidenced by the occupation of the owner, or of some person holding for him.

Sec. 3. The legislature shall have no power to grant any of the lands of this state to any railway company, except upon the following restrictions and conditions:

First. That there shall never be granted to any such corporation more than sixteen sections to the mile; and no reservation of any part of the public domain for the purpose of satisfying such grant shall ever be made.

Second. That no land certificate shall be issued to such company until they have equipped, constructed and in running order at least ten miles of road; and on the failure of such company to comply with the terms of its charter, or to alienate its land at a period to be fixed by law, in no event to exceed twelve years from the issuance of the patent, all said land shall be forfeited to the state and become a portion of the public domain, and liable to location and survey. The legislature shall pass general laws only to give effect to the provisions of this section.

Sec. 4. No certificate for land shall be sold at the land office except to actual settlers upon the same, and in lots not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres.

Sec. 5. All lands heretofore or hereafter granted to railway companies, where the charter or law of the state required or shall hereafter require their alienation within a certain period, on pain of forfeiture, or is silent on the subject of forfeiture, and which lands have not been or shall not hereafter be alienated, in conformity with the terms of their charters and the laws under which the grants were made, are hereby declared forfeited to the state, and subject to pre-emption, location and survey, as other vacant lands. All lands heretofore granted to said railroad companies to which no forfeiture was attached, on their failure to alienate, are not included in the foregoing clause; but in all such last named cases it shall be the duty of the attorney general, in every instance, where alienations have been or hereafter may be made, to inquire into the same, and if such alienation has been made in fraud of the rights of the state, and is colorable only, the real and beneficial interest being still in such corporation, to institute legal proceedings in the county where the seat of government is situated, to forfeit such lands to the state; and, if such alienation be judicially ascertained to be fraudulent and colorable as aforesaid, such lands shall be forfeited to the state and become a part of the vacant public domain, liable to pre-emption, location and survey.

Sec. 6. To every head of a family without a homestead there shall be donated one hundred and sixty acres of public land, upon condition that he will select and locate said land, and occupy the same three years and pay the office fees due thereon. To all single men of eighteen years of age and upwards shall be donated eighty acres of public land, upon the terms and conditions prescribed for heads of families.

Sec. 7. The state of Texas hereby releases to the owner or owners of the soil all mines and minerals that may be on the same, subject to taxation as other property.

Sec. 8. Persons residing between the Nueces river and the Rio Grande, and owning grants for lands which emanated from the government of Spain, or that of Mexico, which grants have been recognized and validated by the state, by acts of the legislature, approved February 10, 1852, August 15, 1870, and other acts, and who have been prevented from complying with the requirements of said acts by the unsettled conditions of the country, shall be allowed until the first day of January, 1880, to complete their surveys, and the plots thereof, and to return their field-notes to the general land office; and all claimants failing to do so shall be forever barred; provided, nothing in this section shall be so construed as to validate any titles not already valid, or to interfere with the rights of third persons.

IMPEACHMENT

Section 1. The power of impeachment shall be vested in the house of representatives.

Sec. 2. Impeachment of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, treasurer, commissioner of the general land office, comptroller and the judges of the supreme court, court of appeals and district courts, shall be tried by the senate.

Sec. 3. When the senate is sitting as a court of impeachment, the senator shall be on oath, or affirmation, impartially to try the party impeached; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the senators present.

Sec. 4. Judgment in cases of impeachment shall extend only to removal from office, and disqualification from holding any office of honor, trust or profit under this state. A party convicted on impeachment shall also be subject to indictment, trial and punishment, according to law.

Sec. 5. All officers against whom articles of impeachment may be preferred shall be suspended from the exercise of the duties of their office during the pendency of such impeachment. The governor may make a provisional appointment to fill the vacancy occasioned by the suspension of an officer until the decision on the impeachment.

Sec. 6. Any judge of the district courts of the state who is incompetent to discharge the duties of his office, or who shall be guilty of partiality, or oppression, or other official misconduct, or whose habits and conduct are such as to render him unfit to hold such office, or who shall negligently fail to perform his duties as judge, or who shall fail to execute in a reasonable measure the business in his courts, may be removed by the supreme court. The supreme court shall have original jurisdiction to hear and determine the causes aforesaid when presented in writing upon the oaths, taken before some judge of a court of record, of not less than ten lawyers, practicing in the courts held by such judge, and licensed to practice in the supreme court; said presentment to be founded either upon the knowledge of the persons making it or upon the written oaths as to the facts of credible witnesses. The supreme court may issue all needful process and prescribe all needful rules to give effect to this section. Causes of this kind shall have precedence and be tried as soon as practicable.

Sec. 7. The legislature shall provide by law for the trial and removal from office of all officers of this state, the modes for which have not been provided in this constitution.

ADDRESS

Sec. 8. The judges of the supreme court, court of appeals and district courts, shall be removed by the governor on the address of two-thirds of each house of the legislature, for wilful neglect of duty, incompetency, habitual drunkenness, oppression in office, or other reasonable cause which shall not be sufficient ground for impeachment; provided, however, that the cause or causes for which such removal shall be required, shall be stated at length in such address and entered on the journals of each house; and provided, further, that the cause or causes shall be notified to the judge so intended to be removed, and he shall be admitted to a hearing in his own defense before any vote for such address shall pass; and, in all such cases, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays and entered on the journals of each house respectively.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 1. Members of the legislature, and all officers, before they enter upon the duties of their offices, shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I, (———), do solemnly swear, (or affirm), that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent upon me as ———, according to the best of my skill and ability, agreeably to the constitution and laws of the United States and of this state; and I do further solemnly swear, (or affirm), that, since the adoption of the constitution of this state, I, being a citizen of this state, have not fought a duel with deadly weapons, within this state nor out of it, nor have I sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel with deadly weapons, nor have I acted as second in carrying a challenge, or aided, advised or assisted any person, thus offending; and I furthermore solemnly swear, (or affirm), that I have not, directly nor indirectly, paid, offered or promised to pay, contributed nor promised to contribute, any money or valuable thing, or promised any public office or employment, as a reward for the giving or withholding a vote at the election at which I was elected, (or, if the office is one of appointment, to secure my appointment). So help me God."

Sec. 2. Laws shall be made to exclude from office, serving on juries, and from the right of suffrage, those who may have been or shall hereafter be convicted of bribery, perjury, forgery or other high crimes. The privilege of free suffrage shall be protected by laws regulating elections, and prohibiting under adequate penalties all undue influence therein from power, bribery, tumult or other improper practice.

Sec. 3. The legislature shall make provision whereby persons convicted of misdemeanors and committed to the county jails in default of payment of fines and costs, shall be required to discharge such fines and costs by manual labor, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law.

Sec. 4. Any citizen of this state who shall, after the adoption of this constitution, fight a duel with deadly weapons, or send or accept a challenge to fight a duel with deadly weapons, either within this state or out of it, or who shall act as second, or knowingly assist in any manner those thus offending, shall be deprived of the right of suffrage, or of holding any office of trust or profit under this state.

Sec. 5. Every person shall be disqualified from holding any office of profit, or trust, in this state, who shall have been convicted of having given or offered a bribe to procure his election or appointment.

Sec. 6. No appropriation for private or individual purposes shall be made. A regular statement, under oath, and an account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money, shall be published annually, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. 7. The legislature shall, in no case, have power to issue "treasury warrants," "treasury notes," or paper of any description intended to circulate as money.

Sec. 8. Each county in the state may provide, in such manner as may be prescribed by law, a manual labor poorhouse and farm, for taking care of, managing, employing and supplying the wants of its indigent and poor inhabitants.

Sec. 9. Absence on business of the state, or of the United States, shall not forfeit a residence once obtained, so as to deprive any one of the right of suffrage, or of being elected or appointed to any office, under the exceptions contained in this constitution.

Sec. 10. The legislature shall provide for deductions from the salaries of public officers who may neglect the performance of any duty that may be assigned them by law.

Sec. 11. The legal rate of interest shall not exceed eight per cent per annum, in the absence of any contract as to the rate of interest; and by contract parties may agree upon any rate not to exceed twelve per cent per annum. All interest charged above this last named rate, shall be deemed usurious, and the legislature shall, at its first session, provide appropriate pains and penalties to prevent and punish usury. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 11. All contracts for a greater rate of interest than ten per centum per annum shall be deemed usurious, and the first legislature after this amendment is adopted shall provide appropriate pains and penalties to prevent the same; but when no rate of interest is agreed upon, the rate shall not exceed six per centum per annum. [Sec. 11, Art. 16, adopted election August 11, 1891; proclamation September 22, 1891.]

Sec. 12. No member of congress, nor person holding or exercising any office of profit or trust, under the United States, or either of them, or under any foreign power, shall be eligible as a member of the legislature, or hold or exercise any office of profit or trust under this state.

Sec. 13. It shall be the duty of the legislature to pass such laws as may be necessary and proper to decide differences by arbitration, when the parties shall elect that method of trial.

Sec. 14. All civil officers shall reside within the state, and all district or county officers within their districts or counties, and shall keep their offices at such places as may be required by law; and failure to comply with this condition shall vacate the office so held.

Sec. 15. All property, both real and personal, of the wife, owned or claimed by her before marriage, and that acquired afterward by gift, devise or descent, shall be her separate property; and laws shall be passed more clearly defining the rights of the wife, in relation as well to her separate property as that held in common with her husband. Laws shall also be passed providing for the registration of the wife's separate property.

Sec. 16. No corporate body shall hereafter be created, renewed or extended with banking or discounting privileges. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 16. The legislature shall, by general laws, authorize the incorporation of corporate bodies with banking and discounting privileges, and shall provide for a system of state supervision, regulation and control of such bodies which will adequately protect and secure the depositors and creditors thereof. Each shareholder of such corporate body incorporated in this state, so long as he owns shares therein, and for twelve months after the date of any bona fide transfer thereof, shall be personally liable for all debts of such corporate body existing at the date of such transfer, to an amount additional to the par value of such shares so owned or transferred, equal to the par value of such shares so owned or transferred. No such corporate body shall be chartered until all of the authorized capital stock has been subscribed and paid for in full in cash. Such body corporate shall not be authorized to engage in business at more than one place, which shall be designated in its charter. No foreign corporation, other than the national banks of the United States, shall be permitted to exercise banking or discounting privileges in this state. [Sec. 16, Art. 16, adopted election November 8, 1904; proclamation December 29, 1904.]

Sec. 17. All officers within this state shall continue to perform the duties of their offices until their successors shall be duly qualified.

Sec. 18. The rights of property and of action, which have been acquired under the constitution and the laws of the republic and state, shall not be divested; nor shall any rights or actions which have been divested, barred or declared null and void by the constitution of the republic and state, be re-invested, renewed or reinstated by this constitution; but the same shall remain precisely in the situation which they were before the adoption of this constitution, unless otherwise herein provided; and provided, further, that no cause of action heretofore barred shall be revived.

Sec. 19. The legislature shall prescribe by law the qualification of grand and petit jurors.

Sec. 20. The legislature shall, at its first session, enact a law whereby the qualified voters of any county, justice's precinct, town or city, by a majority vote, from time to time, may determine whether the sale of intoxicating liquors, shall be prohibited within the prescribed limits. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 20. The legislature shall, at its first session, enact a law whereby the qualified voters of any county, justice's precinct, town, city (or such subdivision of a county as may be designated by the commissioners' court of said county) may, by a majority vote, determine from time to time whether the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be prohibited within the prescribed limits. [Sec. 20, Art. 16, adopted election August 11, 1891; proclamation September 22, 1891.]

Sec. 21. All stationery and printing, except proclamations and such printing as may be done at the deaf and dumb asylum, paper and fuel used in the legislative and other departments of the government, except the judicial department, shall be furnished, and the printing and binding of the laws, journals and department reports, and all other printing and binding, and the repairing and furnishing the halls and rooms used for the meetings of the legislature and its committees, shall be performed under contract, to be given to the lowest responsible bidder, below such maximum price, and under such regulations, as shall be prescribed by law. No member or officer of any department of the government shall be in any way interested in such contracts; and all such contracts shall be subject to the approval of the governor, secretary of state and comptroller.

Sec. 22. The legislature shall have the power to pass such fence laws, applicable to any subdivision of the state or counties, as may be needed to meet the wants of the people.

Sec. 23. The legislature may pass laws for the regulation of live stock and the protection of stock-raisers in the stock-raising portion of the state, and exempt from the operation of such laws other portions, sections or counties; and shall have power to pass general and special laws for the inspection of cattle, stock and hides, and for the regulation of brands; provided, that any local law thus passed shall be submitted to the freeholders of the section to be affected thereby, and approved by them before it shall go into effect.

Sec. 24. The legislature shall make provision for laying out and working public roads, for the building of bridges, and for utilizing fines, forfeitures and convict labor to all these purposes.

Sec. 25. That all drawbacks and rebatements of insurance, freight, transportation, carriage, wharfage, storage, compressing, baling, repairing, or for any other kind of labor or service of, or to any cotton, grain, or any other produce or article of commerce in this state, paid or allowed or contracted for, to any common carrier, shipper, merchant, commission merchant, factor, agent, or middleman of any kind, not the true and absolute owner thereof, are forever prohibited; and it shall be the duty of the legislature to pass effective laws punishing all persons in this state who pay, receive or contract for, or respecting the same.

Sec. 26. Every person, corporation or company, that may commit a homicide, through wilful act or omission, or gross neglect, shall be responsible, in exemplary damages, to the surviving husband, widow, heirs of his or her body, or such of them as there may be, without regard to any criminal proceeding that may or may not be had in relation to the homicide.

Sec. 27. In all elections to fill vacancies of office in this state, it shall be to fill the unexpired term only.

Sec. 28. No current wages for personal service shall ever be subject to garnishment.

Sec. 29. The legislature shall provide by law for defining and punishing barratry.

Sec. 30. The duration of all officers not fixed by this constitution shall never exceed two years. [Const. 1876.]

Sec. 30. The duration of all offices not fixed by this constitution shall never exceed two years; provided, that when a railroad commission is created by law it shall be composed of three commissioners, who shall be elected by the people at a general election for state officers, and their terms of office shall be six years; provided, railroad commissioners first elected after this amendment goes into effect shall hold office as follows: One shall serve two years, and one four years, and one six years, their terms to be decided by lot, immediately after they shall have qualified. And one railroad commissioner shall be elected every two years thereafter. In case of vacancy in said office, the governor of the state shall fill said vacancy by appointment until the next general election. [Sec. 30, Art. 16, adopted election November 6, 1894; proclamation December 21, 1894.]

Sec. 30a. The Legislature may provide by law that the members of the Board of Regents of the State University and Boards of Trustees or Managers of the educational, eleemosynary, and penal institutions of the State, and such boards as have been, or may hereafter be established by law, may hold their respective offices for the term of six (6) years, one-third of the members of such boards to be elected or appointed every two (2) years in such manner as the Legislature may determine; vacancies in such offices to be filled as may be provided by law," and the Legislature shall enact suitable laws to give effect to this section. [Sec. 30a, Art. 16, adopted election Nov. 5, 1912, proclamation, Dec. 30, 1912.]

Sec. 31. The legislature may pass laws prescribing the qualifications of practitioners of medicine in this state, and to punish persons for malpractice, but no preference shall ever be given by law to any schools of medicine.

Sec. 32. The legislature may provide by law for the establishment of a board of health and vital statistics, under such rules and regulations as it may deem proper.

Sec. 33. The accounting officers of this state shall neither draw nor pay a warrant upon the treasury in favor of any person, for salary or compensation as agent, officer or appointee, who holds at the same time any other office or position of honor, trust or profit, under this state or the United States, except as prescribed in this constitution.

Sec. 34. The legislature shall pass laws authorizing the governor to lease or sell to the government of the United States a sufficient quantity of the public domain of the state necessary for the erection of forts, barracks, arsenals, and military stations, or camps, and for other needful military purposes; and the action of the governor therein shall be subject to the approval of the legislature.

Sec. 35. The legislature shall, at its first session, pass laws to protect laborers on public buildings, streets, roads, railroads, canals and other similar public works, against the failure of contractors or subcontractors to pay their current wages when due, and to make the corporation, company or individual, for whose benefit the work is done, responsible for their ultimate payment.

Sec. 36. The legislature shall, at its first session, provide for the payment or funding, as they may deem best, of the amounts found to be justly due to the teachers in the public schools, by the state, for service rendered prior to the first day of July, 1873, and for the payment, by the school districts in the state, of amounts justly due teachers of public schools by such district to January, 1876.

Sec. 37. Mechanics, artisans and material men, of every class, shall have a lien upon the buildings and articles made or repaired by them, for the value of their labor done thereon, or material furnished therefor; and the legislature shall provide by law for the speedy and efficient enforcement of said liens.

Sec. 38. The legislature may, at such time as the public interest may require, provide for the office of commissioner of insurance, statistics and history, whose term of office, duties and salary shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. 39. The legislature may, from time to time, make appropriations for preserving and perpetuating memorials of the history of Texas, by means of monuments, statues, paintings and documents of historical value.

Sec. 40. No person shall hold or exercise, at the same time, more than one civil office of emolument, except that of justice of the peace, county commissioner, notary public and postmaster, unless otherwise specially provided herein.

Sec. 41. Any person who shall, directly or indirectly, offer, give or promise, any money or thing of value, testimonial, privilege or personal advantage, to any executive or judicial officer or member of the legislature, to influence him in the performance of any of his public or official duties, shall be guilty of bribery, and be punished in such manner as shall be provided by law. And any member of the legislature, or executive or judicial officer, who shall solicit, demand or receive, or consent to receive, directly or indirectly, for himself or for another, from any company, corporation or person, any money, appointment, employment, testimonial, reward, thing of value or employment, or of personal advantage or promise thereof, for his vote or official influence, or for withholding the same, or with any understanding, expressed or implied, that his vote or official action shall be in any way influenced thereby, or who shall solicit, demand and receive any such money or other advantage, matter or thing aforesaid, for another, as the consideration of his vote or official influence, in consideration of the payment or promise of such money, advantage, matter or thing to another, shall be held guilty of bribery, within the meaning of the constitution, and shall incur the disabilities provided for such offenses, with a forfeiture of the office they may hold, and such other additional punishment as is or shall be provided by law.

Sec. 42. The legislature may establish an inebriate asylum for the cure of drunkenness and reform of inebriates.

Sec. 43. No man, or set of men, shall ever be exempted, relieved or discharged from the performance of any public duty or service imposed by general law, by any special law. Exemptions from the performance of such public duty or service shall only be made by general law.

Sec. 44. The legislature shall prescribe the duties, and provide for the election, by the qualified voters of each county in this state, of a county treasurer and a county surveyor, who shall have an office at the county seat, and hold their office for two years, and until their successors are qualified; and shall have such compensation as may be provided by law.

Sec. 45. It shall be the duty of the legislature to provide for collecting, arranging and safely keeping such records, rolls, correspondence, and other documents, civil and military, relating to the history of Texas, as may be now in the possession of parties willing to confide them to the care and preservation of the state.

Sec. 46. The legislature shall provide by law for organizing and disciplining the militia of the state, in such manner as they shall deem expedient, not incompatible with the constitution and the laws of the United States.

Sec. 47. Any person who conscientiously scruples to bear arms shall not be compelled to do so, but shall pay an equivalent for personal service.

Sec. 48. All laws and parts of laws now in force in the state of Texas, which are not repugnant to the constitution of the United States, or to this constitution, shall continue and remain in force as the laws of this state, until they expire by their own limitation or shall be amended or repealed by the legislature.

Sec. 49. The legislature shall have power, and it shall be its duty, to protect by law from forced sale a certain portion of the personal property of all heads of families, and also of unmarried adults, male and female.

Sec. 50. The homestead of a family shall be, and is hereby, protected from forced sale, for the payment of all debts except for the purchase money thereof, or a part of such purchase money, the taxes due thereon, or for work and material used in constructing improvements thereon, and in this last case only when the work and material are contracted for in writing, with the consent of the wife given in the same manner as is required in making a sale and conveyance of the homestead; nor shall the owner, if a married man, sell the homestead without the consent of the wife, given in such manner as may be prescribed by law. No mortgage, trust deed, or other lien on the homestead shall ever be valid, except for the purchase money therefor, or improvements made thereon, as hereinbefore provided, whether such mortgage, or trust deed, or other lien, shall have been created by the husband alone, or together with his wife; and all pretended sales of the homestead involving any condition of defeasance shall be void.

Sec. 51. The homestead, not in a town or city, shall consist of not more than two hundred acres of land, which may be in one or more parcels, with the improvements thereon; the homestead in a city, town or village, shall consist of lot or lots, not to exceed in value five thousand dollars, at the time of their designation as the homestead, without reference to the value of any improvements thereon; provided, that the same shall be used for the purposes of a home, or as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of a family; provided, also, that any temporary renting of the homestead shall not change the character of the same, when no other homestead has been acquired.

Sec. 52. On the death of the husband or wife, or both, the homestead shall descend and vest in like manner as other real property of the deceased, and shall be governed by the same laws of descent and distribution, but it shall not be partitioned among the heirs of the deceased during the lifetime of the surviving husband or wife, or so long as the survivor may elect to use or occupy the same as a homestead, or so long as the guardian of the minor children of the deceased may be permitted, under the order of the proper court having the jurisdiction, to use and occupy the same.

Sec. 53. That no inconvenience may arise from the adoption of this constitution, it is declared that all process and writs of all kinds which have been or may be issued and not returned or executed when this constitution is adopted, shall remain valid, and shall not be, in any way, affected by the adoption of this constitution.

Sec. 54. It shall be the duty of the legislature to provide for the custody and maintenance of indigent lunatics, at the expense of the state, under such regulations and restrictions as the legislature may prescribe.

Sec. 55. The legislature may provide annual pensions, not to exceed one hundred and fifty dollars per annum, to surviving soldiers or volunteers in the war between Texas and Mexico, from the commencement of the revolution in 1835, until the first of January, 1837; and also to the surviving signers of the declaration of independence of Texas; and to the surviving widows, continuing unmarried, of such soldiers and signers; provided, that no such pension be granted except to those in indigent circumstances, proof of which shall be made before the county court of the county where the applicant resides, in such manner as may be provided by law.

Sec. 56. The legislature shall have no power to appropriate any of the public money for the establishment and maintenance of a bureau of immigration, or for any purpose of bringing immigrants to this state.

Sec. 57. Three millions acres of the public domain are hereby appropriated and set apart for the purpose of erecting a new state capitol and other necessary public buildings at the seat of government, said lands to be sold under the direction of the legislature; and the legislature shall pass suitable laws to carry this section into effect.

Sec. 58. (Article XVI.) The Board of Prison Commissioners charged by law with the control and management of the State prisons, shall be composed of three members appointed by the Governor, by and with the consent of the Senate, and whose terms of office shall be six years, or until their successors are appointed and qualified; provided that the terms of office of the Board of Prison Commissioners first appointed after the adoption of this amendment shall begin on January 20th of the year following the adoption of this amendment, and shall hold office as follows: One shall serve two years, one four years, and one six years. Their terms to be decided by lot after they shall have qualified, and one Prison Commissioner shall be appointed every two years thereafter. In case of a vacancy in said office the Governor of this State shall fill said vacancy by appointment for the unexpired term thereof. [Sec. 58, Art. 16, adopted election Nov. 5, 1912; proclamation Dec. 30, 1912.]

MODE OF AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION OF THIS STATE

Section 1. The legislature, at any biennial session, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house, to be entered by yeas and nays on the journals, may propose amendments to the constitution, to be voted upon by the qualified electors for members of the legislature, which proposed amendments shall be duly published once a week for four weeks, commencing at least three months before an election, the time of which shall be specified by the legislature, in one weekly newspaper of each county in which such a newspaper may be published; and it shall be the duty of the several returning officers of said election to open a poll for, and make returns to the secretary of state of the number of legal votes cast at said election for and against said amendments; and, if more than one be proposed, then the number of votes cast for and against each of them; and, if it shall appear from said return that a majority of the votes cast have been cast in favor of any amendment, the said amendment so receiving a majority of the votes cast shall become a part of this constitution, and proclamation shall be made by the governor thereof.

ANNOTATED CIVIL STATUTES

OF THE

STATE OF TEXAS

ADOPTION

[See Descent and Distribution, Article 2463.]

Art.
1. How heir adopted.
2. Rights of adopted heir.
3. Parents may transfer authority, etc., how.
4. Parents thereafter barred, etc.
5. Right of adopted child to support, etc.
6. Adopter may not transfer authority, etc.
7. Authority of court.
8. No white child to be adopted by negro, and vice versa.

Article 1. [1] How heir adopted.—Any person wishing to adopt another as his legal heir may do so by filing in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which he may reside a statement in writing, by him signed and duly authenticated or acknowledged, as deeds are required to be, which statement shall recite, in substance, that he adopts the person named therein as his legal heir, and the same shall be admitted to record in said office. [Act Jan. 16, 1850, pp. 36, 81; P. D. 30.]

History of legislation.—The law of Mexico in force in 1832 did not permit any one who had a legitimate child living to adopt a stranger as co-heir with such child, and he could donate his property only to the extent of one-fifth of his whole estate; if a donation exceeded that amount it was void for the excess. Teal v. Sevier, 26 T. 516; Sevier v. Teal, 33 T. 77. When forced heirs other than children survived, he could in the same manner dispose of one-third of his estate. Parker v. Parker, 10 T. 83. By the act of December 18, 1837 (Early Laws, art. 435), legitimate descendants only were considered forced heirs. 2d Cong., p. 106. By the act of January 28, 1840, a parent could not disinherit a child, except for personal violence, or slander of such parent by such child, at or over the age of sixteen years, but could dispose of one-fourth of his or her property. 4 Cong., 167. By the act of July 24, 1856, these provisions of the statutes of 1840 were repealed, and all persons were authorized to dispose of their estates by will or otherwise. 6th Leg., S. S., p. 5. An act of adoption was by a public act or by will. Ortiz v. De Benavides, 61 T. 60. The law of forced heirships, so far as it relates to real estate situate in Texas, was repealed by the act of July 24, 1856. Early Laws, art. 2534; Hamilton v. Flinn, 21 T. 713. See Charli v. Saffold, 13 T. 94; Crain v. Crain, 17 T. 80; Id., 21 T. 790; Budd v. Fisher, 17 T. 423; Epperson v. Mills, 19 T. 65; Millican v. Millican, 24 T. 426; Ellison v. Keese, 25 T. 83; Teal v. Sevier, 26 T. 516; Beeton v. Alexander, 27 T. 659; Scoby v. Sweatt, 28 T. 713; Sevier v. Teal, 33 T. 77; Sayles' Real Estate, art. 773. See art. 2463, post.

Agreement for adoption.—An agreement in 1885 between the father, the mother being dead, and another, to the effect that such other person should have the custody of the child, does not constitute an adoption of the child. No rights grow out of such an agreement. Taylor v. Deseve, 81 T. 246, 16 S. W. 1008.

Instruction on effect of agreement to adopt child in consideration of services to be performed held erroneous. Clark v. West, 96 T. 437, 73 S. W. 797.

—— Rescission or revocation.—A mother can regain possession of her child, from persons to whom she has freely given it and to whom she has promised never to take it from them, even if they have legally adopted it, where both parties are equally able, and equally suitable to care for and raise the child. State ex rel. Wood v. Deaton, 93 T. 243, 54 S. W. 901.

Mere declarations insufficient.—Declarations by the person claimed to have adopted another as heir were not sufficient to establish heirship by adoption; a compliance by the adopting parents with the statute being essential. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

Recording.—The act of adoption is only required to be filed for record after its proper execution as required in article 1 of the statute, and the failure of the clerk to record it does not invalidate it. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Hooks, 47 C. A. 560, 106 S. W. 694.

On an issue as to the adoption of a child, where the adoption paper has been lost, and the probate records of the county burned, circumstantial evidence, including the acts and declarations of the parties, is admissible. Moore v. Bryant, 10 C. A. 131, 31 S. W. 223.

Foreign adoption.—The decree of a probate court of another state, properly certified, which assumes to change the name of a minor and decree her adoption by those not her parents as their child, will be presumed to be legal, and to have been rendered after jurisdiction had properly attached; but such presumption is not conclusive. Brown v. Mitchel, 75 T. 9, 12 S. W. 606.

Adoption of a child in one state, in accordance with the laws thereof, held to entitle such child to inherit property left by the adopter in another state. McColpin v. McColpin's Estate (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 238.

Art. 2. [2] Rights of adopted heir.—Such statement in writing, signed and authenticated or acknowledged, and recorded as aforesaid, shall entitle the party so adopted to all the rights and privileges, both in law and equity, of a legal heir of the party so adopting him; provided, however, that if the party adopting such heir have, at the time of such adoption, or shall thereafter have, a child begotten in lawful wedlock, such adopted heir shall in no case inherit more than one-fourth of the estate of the party adopting him. [P. D. 31.]

Mere declaration insufficient.—Description of grantee in a deed as grantor's adopted daughter held not sufficient to show an adoption by him of the grantee, under a special act authorizing such adoption. Conrad v. Herring, 36 C. A. 616, 83 S. W. 427.

Declarations by the person claimed to have adopted another as heir were not sufficient to establish heirship by adoption; a compliance by the adopting parents with the statute being essential. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

Inheritance by adopted child.—An adopted heir cannot be postponed in his inheritance to any class of persons who are not themselves heirs. If there be no children begotten in lawful wedlock he inherits as a child. Eckford v. Knox, 67 T. 200, 2 S. W. 372. Heirship is a necessary consequence of adoption. There is no other kind of adoption known to our statute. White v. Holman, 25 C. A. 152, 60 S. W. 437. The effect of adoption is to put the adopted person in the same attitude towards the adopting parents as if he had been their child. In the absence of an agreement to leave their property to the adopted child, the promise to adopt would not support a claim beyond the statutory provisions. Clark v. West, 96 T. 437, 73 S. W. 797. The recitation of love for the person adopted and the relinquishment by the parents of control and possession of him does not place him in any more advantageous position as to the property than that occupied by a legal heir. The statute places him so far as the property of his adopter is concerned in the same position as that occupied by a child of his body. Logan v. Lennix, 40 C. A. 62, 88 S. W. 366. Through the instrument of adoption filed, the party adopted is placed in the same position as that which a legal heir would occupy towards the adopter in connection with his property, and the one adopted can be disinherited under the terms of the statement, as any lawfully begotten heir can be disinherited. Id.

Under art. 2462, subd. 2, and this article, an adopted child of a person leaving no child or descendants, but leaving a surviving widow, is entitled to one-half of the community real estate of the husband and wife. White v. Holman, 25 C. A. 152, 60 S. W. 437.

The right of inheritance from adoption arises by operation of law, from the acts of the parties in compliance with the statute, and does not depend on or arise from contract. Jordan v. Abney, 97 T. 296, 78 S. W. 486.

In the absence of an agreement on the part of an adopting parent to leave property to his adopted child, the adoption does not support a claim beyond the statutory provisions. Logan v. Lennix, 40 C. A. 62, 88 S. W. 364.

—— Common-law rule.—Heirship by adoption was not known at common law. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

Inheritance from or through adopted child.—See art. 2463.

Rights other than as heir.—The statute confers on the adopted heir the rights of a child only with reference to the estate, and does not constitute him a member of the family of his adopter, and invest him with the privileges and duties peculiar to the relation of parent and child, as does the civil law. Eckford v. Knox, 67 T. 200, 2 S. W. 372.

Evidence of adoption.—In a probate proceeding, where petitioner claimed as heir by adoption, evidence held insufficient to show heirship. McColpin v. McColpin's Estate (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 824.

In trespass to try title in which defendant claimed as the adopted heir of a certain person, the burden was on defendant to prove that he owned an interest in the land as an adopted heir. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

Art. 3. Parents may transfer authority, etc., how.—The parent or parents of any child, who is to be adopted as provided in articles 1 and 2 of this title, may, by an instrument in writing, duly signed and authenticated or acknowledged as deeds are required to be, transfer their parental authority and custody over said child so adopted to the party so adopting such child. [Acts 1907, p. 103.]

Art. 4. Parents thereafter barred, etc.—After the execution of such an instrument of writing, duly acknowledged or authenticated as aforesaid, the parents shall thereafter be barred from exercising any authority, control or custody over such child as against the party so adopting him. [Id.]

Right to custody of child.—Formerly it was held that the adoption of a child did not give the person adopting him the right to his custody. Eckford v. Knox, 67 T. 200, 2 S. W. 372; Taylor v. Deseve, 81 T. 246, 16 S. W. 1008; Logan v. Lennix, 40 C. A. 62, 88 S. W. 365; White v. Richeson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 202.

Art. 5. Right of adopted child to support, etc.—The child or children so adopted shall have the same rights as against the person or persons adopting said child or children for support and maintenance, and for proper and humane treatment, as a child has, by law, against lawful parents. [Acts 1907, p. 103.]

Art. 6. Adopter may not transfer authority, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any person adopting any child under this title to transfer his authority and custody to any other person. [Id.]

Art. 7. Authority of court.—Nothing in this article shall prevent a court of competent jurisdiction from taking away from such adoptive parent the custody of the adopted child and awarding the same to its natural parents, or either of them, or to any other person, upon proof of the bad moral character of such adoptive parent, or upon proof of abuse, neglect, or ill treatment of such adopted child by the adoptive parent. [Id.]

Art. 8. No white child to be adopted by negro, and vice versa.—No white child can be adopted by a negro person, nor can a negro child be adopted by a white person. [Id.]

AFFIDAVITS, OATHS AND AFFIRMATIONS

Art.
9. Form of oath, etc.
10. Oaths, etc., generally, who to administer.
11. Affidavit may be by agent or attorney.
12. All affidavits must be in writing and signed.
13. Officers authorized to take affidavits.
14. Other oaths, etc.

Article 9. [3] [3] Form of oath, etc.—All oaths and affirmations shall be administered in the mode most binding upon the conscience of the individual taking the same, and shall be taken subject to the pains and penalties of perjury. [Const. Bill of Rights, art. 1.]

Nature of oath.—An affidavit is an oath or affirmation reduced to writing. Shelton v. Berry, 19 T. 154, 70 Am. Dec. 326.

Conflict with Penal Code.—This article was not intended to conflict with art. 312 of the Penal Code and has no reference to it. Campbell v. State, 43 Cr. R. 602, 68 S. W. 514.

Presence of officer.—The affidavit must be in the presence of the officer taking it. An affidavit for continuance sworn to by one 20 miles away, over the telephone, and his name subscribed by his authority is not sufficient. Sullivan v. First Nat. Bank, 37 C. A. 228, 83 S. W. 422.

Waiver of oath.—A party who permits without objection a witness to testify who has not been sworn, thereby waives all objection to his evidence based on the failure to swear him. Trammell v. Mount, 68 T. 210, 4 S. W. 377, 2 Am. St. Rep. 479.

Art. 10. [4] [4] Oaths, etc., generally by whom administered.—All oaths, affidavits or affirmations necessary or required by law may be administered, and a certificate of the fact given, by any judge or clerk of a court of record, justice of the peace, or by any notary public, within this state. [Act Feb. 5, 1887, p. 5.]

Deputy county clerk—Record of appointment.—In view of art. 1748, authorizing clerks of the county court to appoint deputies, and requiring such deputation to be recorded in the office of the clerk and deposited with the clerk of the district court, articles 3687–3713 authorizing such record, and copies thereof, to be introduced in evidence, and article 2287 declaring that each justice of the peace shall be ex officio notary public; where a county clerk testified that he had appointed another as deputy, but that the deputation had been mislaid, a record of such deputation, which was acknowledged before a justice of the peace, is admissible in evidence. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 645.

Nature of writing or instrument.—An affidavit of inability to pay costs in lieu of appeal bond may be made before a notary public. Thames v. Chitwood, 24 C. A. 389, 60 S. W. 346. This article seems to indicate that the oaths and affirmations referred to are those that are necessary and required by law. Campbell v. State, 43 Cr. R. 602, 68 S. W. 514. A county judge can administer oath to one swearing to complaint charging another with an offense. Stepp v. State, 53 Cr. R. 158, 109 S. W. 1095.

Necessity of seal.—Where the jurat to an affidavit, made the basis of a motion in the supreme court, was signed by the clerk of the district court, but not attested by his official seal, it cannot be considered. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Sup.) 53 S. W. 1019.

Art. 11. [5] [5] Affidavit may be made by agent or attorney.—Whenever, at the commencement or during the progress of any civil suit or judicial proceeding, it may be necessary or proper for any party thereto to make an affidavit, such affidavit may be made by either the party or his agent or attorney. [Act Jan. 11, 1856, p. 13; P. D. 35.]

Particular affidavits.—The attorney may make an affidavit for garnishment. Erwin v. City of Austin, 1 App. C. C., § 1040. An affidavit of inability to pay cost (in lieu of cost bond) can be made by the party's attorney. Harwell v. Southern Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 888. The controverting affidavit can be made by an attorney in a garnishment proceeding. Ferguson-McKinney D. G. Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 34 C. A. 272, 78 S. W. 265.

An agent transacting his principal's business held competent to make an affidavit to a plea of non est factum. Brown v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 687.

Matters within knowledge of client or principal.—An answer verified by the oath of an attorney need not show that the material allegations were known personally to the client, provided they are stated to be within the personal knowledge of the attorney. Bowles v. Glasgow, 36 T. 94. An affidavit made by an attorney, to authorize the introduction of secondary evidence, should exclude the supposition that the party himself could produce the original. Butler v. Dungan, 19 T. 566; Kauffman et al. v. Shelworth, 64 T. 179. The statute confers upon the attorney the same right to make an affidavit during the progress of a cause as is conferred upon his client. There may be cases where the subject-matter of the affidavit rests peculiarly within the conscience of the client, and in such case the attorney making the affidavit may be required to state his means of information or knowledge of the facts stated. Doll v. Mundine, 84 T. 315, 19 S. W. 394. Under the law requiring plaintiff, before a writ of sequestration issues, to make oath that he fears defendant or the person in possession will remove the property out of the limits of the county pending the suit, the affidavit of the agent of plaintiff corporation that it has such fear is sufficient. Tyson v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Santa Anna (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1055.

Form of oath.—An affidavit for writ of garnishment can be made by an attorney, and he need not state in the affidavit, that, affiant "has reason to believe and does believe," etc., but can state that plaintiff has reason to believe and does believe, etc. E. L. Wilson Hardware Co. v. Anderson Knife & Bar Co., 22 C. A. 229, 54 S. W. 928.

An affidavit in garnishment, made by an agent of the plaintiff, need not allege that "plaintiff has reason to believe" that the person summoned as garnishee has property of defendant in his possession, an allegation that affiant has reason to so believe being sufficient. Simon v. Greer (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 343.

Authority to appear by record.—When an affidavit is made in the course of a judicial proceeding by one person in behalf of another, his authority should be made to appear from the record. Cherryhomes v. Carter, 66 T. 166, 18 S. W. 443.

Art. 12. [6] [6] All affidavits must be in writing, and signed.—All affidavits provided for in this title shall be in writing and signed by the party making the same.

Sufficiency in general.—An affidavit to a petition to reopen a judgment held not to meet the strict requirements of the law. Sperry v. Sperry (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 419.

An affidavit held not objectionable for failure to state that the facts contained in the petition verified were true. Bilby v. Hancock (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 370.

A notary's jurat held not fatally defective for failure to show the county of her appointment. Id.

Necessity of signature.—An affidavit not signed is of no effect. Lanier v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 516. All affidavits made under provisions of this article must be signed by parties making them. An affidavit for an attachment not signed by affiant is void. Davis v. Sherrill, 52 C. A. 259, 113 S. W. 557. It was held not necessary that the affidavit to a petition for a certiorari should be subscribed by affiant, as the statute did not require it. Crist v. Parks, 19 T. 234.

Form of signature.—An affidavit to a plea in abatement signed, "M. Irrigation Co., by J. M. M., Its President and Agent," was sufficient; the jurat of the clerk in the usual form, "Sworn to and subscribed before me this the 19th day of August, 1912," meaning that the plea was sworn to by him. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

Location of signature.—The signature of the affiant was written immediately below the official designation of the notary. It being apparent that the signature was so placed for the purpose of subscribing to the instrument, it was held sufficient. Kohn v. Washer, 69 T. 67, 6 S. W. 551, 5 Am. St. Rep. 28.

Art. 13. [7] [7] Officers authorized to take affidavits.—Affidavits may be made before either of the following officers, who are authorized to take such affidavits and give a certificate thereof:

1. If taken within this state, before the officers named in article 10 of this title.

2. If taken without this state, and within the United States, before any clerk of a court of record having a seal, any notary public, or any commissioner of deeds duly appointed under the laws of this state, within some other state or territory.

3. If without the United States, before any notary public, or any minister, commissioner or charge d'affaires of the United States, resident in and accredited to the country where the affidavit may be taken; or any consul general, consul, vice-consul, commercial agent, vice-commercial agent, deputy consul or consular agent of the United States, resident in such country.

Oath by telephone.—Oaths and affirmations are to be sworn to while the affiant is in the presence of the officer taking same. One cannot make affidavit over a telephone. Sullivan v. First Nat. Bank, 37 C. A. 228, 83 S. W. 422.

Affidavit in lieu of bond.—An affidavit in lieu of writ of error bond can be made before a notary public of another state. Latimer v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 136, 88 S. W. 444. An affidavit for appeal in lieu of bond can be made before county clerk in another state when appellant resides in such state. Green v. Hewett, 54 C. A. 534, 118 S. W. 172.

Authority of attorney or interested party.—A garnishee's attorney who is a notary may swear the garnishee to the truth of statements contained in his answer. Kosminsky v. Raymond, 20 C. A. 702, 51 S. W. 51.

In a criminal proceeding, neither a private prosecuting counsel nor any counsel interested in the case can take the affidavits of jurors in order to contest defendant's motion for new trial. Maples v. State, 60 Cr. R. 169, 131 S. W. 567.

Affidavits taken on a motion for a new trial by an attorney of record in the case cannot be considered. McGinsey v. State (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 268; Stapp v. Same, Id. 941; Hogan v. Same (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 871; Horton v. Same (Cr. App.) 154 S. W. 227; Cuellar v. Same (Cr. App.) Id. 228; Peters v. Same (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 212.

Affidavits taken by the attorney for the accused are insufficient to present the disqualification of a juror on a criminal appeal. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 622.

Where the affidavits raising the issue as to whether the jury discussed defendant's failure to testify before arriving at their verdict were sworn to before one of the attorneys in the case, they were properly stricken from the record. Pullen v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 935.

Affidavits for change of venue, sworn to before accused's attorney, could not be considered. Luttrell v. State (Cr. App.) 157 S. W. 157.

Officer in other state.—Under the express provisions of subd. 2, an affidavit may be made before a notary public in another state. Latimer v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 136, 88 S. W. 444. An affidavit by appellant of inability to give bond and security for costs made before a county clerk of another state is insufficient, and an appeal based upon such affidavit will be dismissed. Wyatt v. Jeffries, 43 T. 154.

Art. 14. [8] [8] Other oaths, etc.—Oaths and affirmations may also be administered, and affidavits taken, and certificates thereof given in such other cases, and by such other officers, as are or may be prescribed by law.

Necessity and form of particular affidavits and oaths.—See provisions in particular titles and chapters.

14i. Purchaser who is not dealer, may take sample for analysis; certified, etc.; penalty for refusal to furnish certificate, etc.
14ii. Laws repealed.

Article 14a. Commercial fertilizers before sale to have brand or label; what must be shown, etc.—All corporations, firms or persons, before selling or offering for sale any commercial fertilizer for use within this state, shall brand or attach to each bag, barrel or package a plainly printed statement, showing the brand or name of said fertilizer, the net weight of the contents of the package, the name and address of the corporation, firm or person registering said fertilizer and the minimum percentages guaranteed to be present of available phosphoric acid, of nitrogen and of potash soluble in distilled water. Only such potash shall be claimed to be present as sulphate, which is in excess of the quantity required to combine with the chlorine present, less one-half per cent. In bone meal, tankage, or other similar products, the phosphoric acid shall be claimed as total phosphoric acid, unless it be desired to claim available phosphoric acid only, in which latter case the guarantee must take the form above set forth. In the case of bone meal and tankage, information showing the fineness of the product may be branded or attached to the package; provided it takes a form approved by the state chemist. All branding or labeling must be durable and legible, and so placed and arranged as to be easily read. [Acts 1911, p. 218, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—By section 20 this act took effect September 1, 1911.

Art. 14aa. Statement to be filed with state chemist; copy of brand or stamp to be filed, etc.; certificate of registration; what brand or name may be registered; priority in registration, etc.; chemist to publish annual list.—All firms, corporations or persons, before selling or offering for sale any commercial fertilizer for use within this state, shall annually file with the chemist of the Texas agricultural experiment station, herein termed the state chemist, a certified statement giving the information required by section 1 of this chapter [Art. 14a] and the true names and sources of all the ingredients used in the manufacture of the said fertilizer. If the same fertilizer is sold under a different name or names, said fact shall be stated, and the different brands which are identical shall be named. If the source of any ingredient of said fertilizer is changed, notification must be promptly furnished the state chemist. A copy of the brand or stamp on the bag or other package or on the label attached thereto shall be filed with the state chemist on or before delivery to the dealers, agents or consumers in this state, which brand or stamp shall be uniformly used during the fiscal year for which it is filed, but such brand or stamp shall truly set forth the data required in section 1 of this Act, and be otherwise in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. On receipt of the certified statement above described, and the copy of the brand or stamp and after compliance with other requirements of this chapter, the state chemist shall issue a certificate of registration for the commercial fertilizer, which shall be in force until the succeeding September first. A brand name previously registered shall not be allowed to be registered by another firm, corporation or individual, and no brand or name shall be allowed to be registered which is so nearly similar to another as to lead to uncertainty, confusion or fraud. The party whom the previous records of the state chemist's office show to have first registered the name shall be permitted to retain it, subject, however, to appeal and hearing before the state chemist to determine who is entitled to the brand; but the action of the state chemist shall be without prejudice to the legal rights of the parties to the brand or trade-mark. No brand or name once registered shall be changed to a lower grade at any subsequent registration. The state chemist shall publish annually a list of brands or trade-marks registered with him. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 14b. Words "high grade" and "standard" shall not appear upon what bags or packages; when words "low grade" must appear, etc.—The words "high grade" shall not appear upon any bag or other package of any complete fertilizer which complete fertilizer contains, by its guaranteed analysis, less than ten per cent available phosphoric acid, one and sixty-five one-hundredths per cent nitrogen and two per cent of potash, or a grade or analysis of equal total commercial value; the word "standard" shall not appear upon any bag or other package of any complete fertilizer which contains, by its guaranteed analysis, less then eight per cent available phosphoric acid, one and sixty-five one-hundredths per cent nitrogen and two per cent potash, or a grade or analysis of equal total commercial value; the words "high grade" shall not appear upon any bag or other package of any acid phosphate with potash, which shall contain, by its guaranteed analysis, less than thirteen per cent available phosphoric acid, and one per cent of potash, or a grade or analysis of equal total commercial value; the word "standard" shall not appear upon any bag or other package of any acid phosphate with potash which shall contain, by its guaranteed analysis, less than eleven per cent available phosphoric acid, and one per cent potash, or a grade or analysis of equal total commercial value; the words "high grade" shall not appear upon any bag or other package of any plain acid phosphate which shall contain by its guaranteed analysis, less than fourteen per cent available phosphoric acid; and the word "standard" shall not appear upon any bag or other package of any plain acid phosphate which shall contain by its guaranteed analysis less than twelve per cent available phosphoric acid. The word "standard" shall not appear upon any bag or other package of acid phosphate with nitrogen which shall contain, by its guaranteed analysis, less than nine per cent of available phosphoric acid and two per cent nitrogen, or a grade or analysis of equal total commercial value. It is hereby further provided that no commercial fertilizer shall be sold, offered or exposed for sale for use within this state, upon which the use of the words "high grade" or "standard" is prohibited by this section, unless the words "low grade" is printed in two-inch letters in a conspicuous place upon the package of said commercial fertilizer. Provided, further, that no claim or guarantee for less than one per cent of phosphoric acid or of potash, or for less than a 0.82 per cent of nitrogen, shall be allowed in any commercial fertilizer. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 14bb. Inspection tax; tags showing payment; not applicable to certain fertilizers; fees and penalties, how disposed of; tags, how issued; attaching tags when fertilizer not registered, etc., prohibited; fiscal year, etc.—For the purpose of defraying the expenses connected with the inspection of commercial fertilizer sold, or exposed, or offered for sale in this state, and experiments relative to the value thereof, all firms, corporations or persons engaged in the manufacture or sale of commercial fertilizers shall pay to the state chemist an inspection tax of twenty-five cents per ton (2000 pounds) for such commercial fertilizers sold or exposed, or offered for sale in this state in order to entitle the same to inspection and delivery, and shall attach a tag furnished by the state chemist as evidence that said tax is paid, and goods so tagged shall not be liable to any further tax. But nothing contained in this section shall interfere with fertilizers passing through the state in transit; nor shall apply to the delivery of fertilizing materials in bulk to fertilizing factories for manufacturing purposes. The fees received by the state chemist and all the penalties collected under this chapter shall be deposited with the treasurer of the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas, and shall be expended under the direction of the board of trustees of said college in defraying the expenses of inspecting and analyzing commercial fertilizers, the preparation of tags, and bulletins, experiments relative to the value of fertilizers, and for such other purposes as the board of trustees of said agricultural and mechanical college of Texas shall allow or direct. Firms, corporations or persons, or agents representing them, who have registered their brands in compliance with section 2 of this chapter [Art. 14aa], shall forward to the state chemist a request for tax tags, stating that the said tags are to be used upon the brands of commercial fertilizers registered and sold in accordance with this chapter, and said request shall be accompanied with the inspection tax, whereupon, it shall be the duty of the state chemist to issue tags to parties applying, who shall attach said tags to each bag, barrel or package thereof. All firms, corporations or persons are hereby forbidden to attach the tag prescribed by this section to any bag, barrel or package of any commercial fertilizer which has not been previously registered as required in section 2 of this chapter, and which is not in accordance with all other provisions of this chapter. No tags shall be used after the end of the fiscal year for which they are issued, and they shall not be redeemed by the state chemist. The fiscal year shall be comprised between the dates of September first and August thirty-first, inclusive. The state chemist is hereby empowered to adopt a form for said tags. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 14c. Duties and powers of state chemist; penalty for interference; analysis and samples; certificate of state chemist; evidence; bulletins, information, etc.—The state chemist shall cause one analysis or more to be made annually of such commercial fertilizer sold or offered for sale under the provisions of this Act as may be sampled under his direction. The state chemist, in person or by deputy, shall have power to enter into any car, warehouse, store, building, boat, vessel, steamboat, or place, supposed to contain fertilizers for the purpose of inspection or sampling, and shall have the power to take a sample for analysis, not exceeding two pounds, from any package or lot of fertilizer found within the state. Any person who opposes the entrance of said chemist or deputy, or in any way interferes with the discharge of his duty, shall be liable to a fine of not less than fifty dollars and not more than five hundred dollars. Said sample shall be drawn by means of a sampling tube of uniform diameter and at least eighteen inches long, placed in a jar or can, sealed and labeled by the inspector. Said sample shall be taken from not less than five bags, but in lots of 100 and over, from not less than 5 per cent of the entire number. All analyses shall be made by the official methods of the association of official agricultural chemists of North America. In the trial of any suit or action wherein is called in question the value or composition of any fertilizer, a certificate signed by the state chemist and attested with his seal, setting forth the analysis made by the state chemist, or under his direction, of the sample of said fertilizer analyzed by him under the provisions of this chapter, shall be prima facie proof that the fertilizer was of the value and consistency shown by his said analysis. And the said certificate of the state chemist shall be admissible to evidence to the same extent as if it were his deposition taken in said action in the manner prescribed by law for the taking of depositions. The state chemist shall issue at least one bulletin annually, setting forth the analyses of fertilizers made under the provisions of this chapter, the operations of the law, and such other information concerning violations or operations of this chapter, or otherwise pertaining to the sale of fertilizers as may be considered necessary. The state chemist shall also investigate the composition, properties and agricultural values of fertilizers or of fertilizer materials or ingredients of fertilizers sold or offered for sale within the state of Texas, and shall publish his results as he may find. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 14cc. Deficiency below guaranteed value; duties of state chemist; selling fertilizer which is below guaranteed value misdemeanor.— Whenever the state chemist shall be satisfied that any lot or shipment of fertilizer is four per cent or more below the guaranteed value in plant food, it shall be his duty to assess such deficiency against the manufacturer or guarantor of the fertilizer, and require that the value of the deficiency be made good to all persons who have purchased said fertilizer; and the state chemist may seize any fertilizer belonging to such manufacturer or guarantor if the deficiency shall not be paid within thirty days after notice to such manufacturer.

Any person, firm, or corporation who shall intentionally or knowingly sell or offer for sale any commercial fertilizer for use within this state which is materially below the guaranteed value in plant food, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars for the first offense, and not less than two hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each subsequent offense, and shall refund to all purchasers of said commercial fertilizer twice the value of the deficiency in plant food. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 14d. Selling fertilizer containing forbidden materials unlawful, etc.; duty of state chemist; to issue bulletins; evidence; etc.— It shall be unlawful to sell or offer for sale, in this state, any fertilizer or fertilizing materials which contain an undue quantity of hair, or which contains leather scraps, peat, or other substances of low availability as food for plants, but in which such forbidden materials aid in making up the required or guaranteed analysis. Whenever the analysis by the state chemist shall show the presence of any of these unlawful materials in goods registered for sale, publication shall be made in bulletins giving the name or brand of the goods and the unlawful substance contained in its composition. No manufacturer or seller of such goods shall be allowed to collect pay for the same, and if payment has been made it shall be returned by the seller to the purchaser.

A copy of the bulletin containing the statement of the presence of said unlawful materials in the named goods shall be evidence in any court in this state in bar of payment and for recovery of money paid for goods so named. The presence of any forbidden material shall vitiate the whole; provided that manufacturers who desire to use any such material may do so under such regulations as the state chemist may prescribe, if it be shown that it is available for a proper purpose. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 14dd. Monthly statements by carriers; examination of carriers' books.—It shall be lawful for the state chemist to require the officers, agents, or managers of any railroad, steamboat or other transportation company, transporting fertilizers or fertilizing material in the state, to furnish monthly statements of the quantity of such fertilizers, with the names of the consignor and consignee and the name of brand delivered on their respective lines at any and all points within this state. And the state chemist is hereby empowered to compel such officers, agents or managers to submit their books for examination, if found expedient so to do. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 14e. Statements to be mailed to state chemist after sales, etc.; annual statements of sales to be submitted.—Every firm, corporation or person who has registered fertilizers for sale within the state of Texas, shall mail to the state chemist, on forms provided by the state chemist, within three days of each sale, shipment or delivery, a statement showing the official name of fertilizer, the quantity and the name and address of the person to whom the fertilizer is sold, and if such fertilizer is to be used for manufacturing purposes, the fact must be so stated, and also the composition of said fertilizer. Every corporation, firm or person registered to sell fertilizers within the state of Texas according to this chapter, shall annually on the first day of May, submit to the state chemist a statement of their sales of said fertilizer since September 1, preceding, and the state chemist is hereby authorized to require other statements of sales, if necessary, in such form as he may prescribe. The sales or shipments of any individual, corporation, firm, or person shall not be disclosed. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 14ee. Fertilizer sold, etc., in violation of law liable to seizure; warrant for seizure on complaint of state chemist, etc.; hearing, condemnation and sale; sale, how advertised and made, etc.—Any commercial fertilizer sold, offered, or exposed for sale within this state in violation of any provision of this chapter, shall be liable to seizure at the instance of the state chemist. Upon complaint being filed by the state chemist, in person or by duly authorized deputy, with any county judge or justice of the peace, describing the commercial fertilizer and the place where it is believed that said commercial fertilizer is sold, offered or exposed for sale in violation of law, such county judge or justice of the peace shall issue his warrant directing and commanding the sheriff or any constable of his county to search such place, and if the law is being violated, to seize the commercial fertilizer, and it shall be the duty of the officer to whom such warrant is delivered to search the place described in the warrant and to seize all commercial fertilizer found therein which is in violation of law, and if admission into said place is refused, the officer executing said warrant is hereby authorized to force open the same. If it shall appear at the hearing before the county judge or justice of the peace who issued said writ, that the commercial fertilizer was being sold, exposed or offered for sale in violation of any provision of this chapter, said commercial fertilizer shall be condemned and delivered to an officer or agent of the state chemist, to be sold by or under the direction of the state chemist, and the net proceeds paid to the treasurer of the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas, for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this chapter. The sale shall be made at the court house door in the county in which the seizure is made, after thirty days' advertisement in some newspaper published in said county, or if no newspaper is published in such county, then by like advertisement in a newspaper published in the nearest county thereto having a newspaper. The advertisement shall state the name or brand of the goods, the quantity, and why seized and offered for sale. Said commercial fertilizer shall be sampled and subjected to analysis if necessary or tagged or branded and otherwise brought into compliance with the requirements of this chapter, before being sold. The state chemist, however, may, in his discretion, release the commercial fertilizer seized or condemned, upon the payment of the required tax or charge and all cost and expense incurred in any proceeding connected with such seizure and condemnation and upon compliance with all other requirements of this chapter. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 14f. Selling, etc., offering in certain cases misdemeanor; duties of attorney general and county attorneys; injunction.—Every firm, corporation or person who shall sell or offer for sale any commercial fertilizer without having attached thereto such labels, stamps and tags as are required by law, or who shall use the required tag a second time to avoid the payment of the tonnage charge, or who shall sell adulterated or misbranded fertilizer within the meaning of this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars for each offense. It shall be the duty of the attorney general and of the several county attorneys, when requested by the state chemist, to institute suit to enjoin any person, firm, or corporation, resident or non-resident, from manufacturing, or selling or soliciting orders for the sale of fertilizers in this state or selling fertilizers for use in this state without complying with all the provisions of this chapter, which injunction may issue without bond or advanced cost. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 14ff. Commercial fertilizer defined; certain substances exempt.—A commercial fertilizer is hereby defined as any material, substance or mixture, which contains or is claimed to contain more than one per cent of total phosphoric acid, or of potash, or of nitrogen, and which is used for application to the soil to promote the growth of crops, or any substance, material or mixture, which is claimed to exert a beneficial action upon the soil or to promote the growth of crops; provided, that following substances: lime, limestone, marl, unground bones, stock-pen manure, barn-yard manure, or the excrement of any domestic animal, shall be exempt from the provisions of this chapter, in case that said manure or excrement has not been dried or manipulated or otherwise treated or is not claimed to have a value of more than four dollars a ton. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 14g. Penalty for selling, etc., adulterated or misbranded fertilizer; when deemed misbranded or adulterated.—Any person, firm or corporation manufacturing, selling or offering for sale any adulterated or misbranded commercial fertilizer for use within this state shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars or not more than two hundred dollars. A fertilizer shall be deemed to be misbranded if it carries any false or misleading statement upon or attached to the package, or if false or misleading statements concerning its agricultural value are made on the package or in any printed advertising matter issued by the corporation, firm or individual that registered said fertilizer, or if the number of net pounds set forth upon the package is not substantially correct. A fertilizer is adulterated if it contains any substance or substances injurious to the crop or to the soil, or if the guaranteed valuation exceeds the valuation of the plant food found on analysis ten per cent or more, or if any of the plant food constituents falls twenty per cent or more below the guaranteed composition. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 14gg. Sale of fertilizer in bulk in certain cases authorized.—Manufacturers, jobbers, dealers or manipulators of commercial fertilizers may sell acid phosphate or other commercial fertilizer in bulk to persons, individuals or firms who desire to purchase the same for their own use on their own land but not for sale or distribution, under rules and regulations prescribed by the state chemist which will not be inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter; provided, that inspection tax shall be paid upon such fertilizer as provided in section 5 [Art. 14c]. But if such bulk fertilizer is offered for sale or distribution, it must be tagged and branded and otherwise accord with the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 14h. Penalty for deceiving, counterfeiting, etc.—Any person, party or manufacturer who uses the fertilizer tags, bags or labels of some other person, party or manufacturer, in such a way as to deceive or tend to deceive, or who counterfeits, or uses a counterfeit, of the tax tag prescribed in this chapter, shall be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, and not more than five hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 14hh. Weight of bags or packages; weight, how ascertained; penalty for failure to make good deficiency, etc.—All fertilizers or fertilizing materials sold or offered for sale for use within this state, shall be in bags or packages of one hundred pounds net weight, except as provided in section 14 [Art. 14gg]. The weight of fertilizers shall be ascertained by the inspectors of the state chemist before drawing a sample, or by the purchaser within ten days of delivery to him, in the presence of at least two disinterested witnesses, one chosen by the purchaser and the other by the manufacturer, and the purchaser shall within five days notify the manufacturer to make good the deficiency, and upon failure of the manufacturer to do so within twenty days thereafter, he shall be liable to a penalty of three dollars for each sack, barrel, or package, which immediately attaches and becomes recoverable by the state, one-half of the penalty so received to be paid to the purchaser in case of a sale; provided, if any such manufacturer shall refuse, decline, or neglect to be present or to choose a witness within six days as herein provided after having been notified or requested in writing by the purchaser so to do, then he or they shall have forfeited their right to do so and the purchaser may select two witnesses, who shall select a third, who shall proceed to ascertain said weight. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 14i. Purchaser for use who is not dealer, etc., may take sample for analysis; state chemist to make analysis; samples, how taken, certified, etc.; penalty for refusal to furnish certificate, etc.—Any person not a dealer in, or agent for the sale of any fertilizer, who may purchase any commercial fertilizer for his own use within this state and not for sale, may take a sample of same for analysis, which analysis shall be made free of charge by or under the direction of the state chemist. Said sample or samples of fertilizer shall be taken in the presence of both purchaser and seller. One cupful of the fertilizer shall be taken from the top and one cupful from the bottom of each sack, provided that there are not more than five sacks in the lot, but in lots of 10 to 100 sacks, from not less than five sacks; in lots of 100 and over, from not less than five per cent of the entire number. The samples so taken shall be intermixed upon some surface so as not to mix dirt or any other substance with the fertilizer. After thorough mixing, at least one pound of the material must be put into each of two cans or jars, one of which securely sealed and marked in such a way as to surely identify the sample and show by whom it was sent, but the name of the fertilizer or of the person from whom it was purchased need not be given, and must be forwarded by express, all charges prepaid, to the state chemist; the other sample, securely sealed, shall be turned over to the company or agent selling same. The purchaser shall also send with the sample a certificate signed by himself and two disinterested witnesses, stating that the sender has purchased the fertilizer for his own use and not for sale and that the sample was taken in the manner prescribed in this section, and that the sender has in his possession a certificate signed by himself and the two witnesses, giving the name of the fertilizer and manufacturer thereof as tagged or branded on the packages and will forward this certificate to the state chemist on receipt of the analysis. Provided, however, that if the person, company or agent shall refuse, decline or neglect to witness the taking of samples, after having been requested or notified by the purchaser in writing six days before so to do, then the sample may be taken in the manner already described in the presence of two disinterested witnesses. Any person having sent a sample for analysis under the provisions of this section, who shall, after having received the report of analysis of same, refuse to furnish the required certificate, shall thereafter forfeit the privilege of analysis of fertilizers under this section. [Id. sec. 17.]

Explanatory.—Section 18 makes it a misdemeanor to violate the provisions of the act where a penalty is not otherwise provided, and is omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

Art. 14ii. Laws repealed.—Chapter 46 of the General Laws of 1899 and all other laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 19.]

CHAPTER TWO

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT FARMS AND STATIONS

Art.		Art.
14j.	Commissioners' court may establish and maintain.	14*ll*.	Shall be under advisory direction of state director of experiment stations, etc.
14jj.	Number of acres; to be donated.	14m.	Duties of director; annual report, etc.
14k.	Where to be located.	14mm.	Expenses how paid.
14kk.	Director, how appointed; qualifications; examination; compensation, etc.	14n.	Question of adoption of act to be submitted to voters; petition; election, ballots, etc.
14*l*.	Commissioners' court to supply necessities.

Article 14j. Commissioners' court may establish and maintain.—The commissioners court of any county within this state by an election as hereinafter provided, shall, under the terms and provisions of this Act, establish and maintain an agricultural experiment farm and station within their county. [Acts 1911, p. 208, sec. 1.]

Art. 14jj. Number of acres; to be donated.—Said agricultural experiment farm and station shall consist of such number of acres of land as might be reasonably expected to produce a revenue sufficient to maintain the same, to be determined by the commissioners court, and shall, with sufficient houses, residences, barns and lots thereon, be donated to the county with good and legal title thereto, free of and without any cost whatsoever to the county. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 14k. Where to be located.—Said farm shall be located at the county seat or as near thereto as practicable, but if no such donation is offered at or within reasonable distance from the county seat, not to exceed two miles, then such farm may be located elsewhere in the county, having due regard for the benefits of all the people to be derived from such experimental farm and station. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 14kk. Director, how appointed; qualifications; examination; compensation, etc.—The said experimental farm and station shall be in charge of and under the direction of a director, who shall be appointed by the commissioners court, but who shall be a practical farmer, and who has, in addition, passed a satisfactory examination to be prescribed by the state director of experiment stations touching his general knowledge, information, education, and his knowledge of farming, stock raising and other affairs incident to successful farm life; the examination shall be conducted by the state director of experiment stations or by some one designated by him for such purpose. The said director of said farm shall be furnished a residence on said farm, free of cost for himself and family, as a part of his compensation, and in addition thereto shall receive such salary or additional compensation as may be fixed by the commissioners court, not less than $75.00 per month, which shall be paid by the county. The commissioners shall not rent or lease said farm to anyone, nor permit it to be done by anyone. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 14*l*. Commissioners' court to supply necessities.—The commissioners court shall supply said farm and station with sufficient houses, barns, lots, machinery, farm utensils, scientific instruments, materials, seeds and such other necessities as may be necessary, and from time to time shall make such improvements as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act. Said farm shall also be supplied with such stock, including work stock and cattle, both for service and breeding purposes, as may be necessary to efficiently carry out the terms and provisions of this Act, and to promote the betterment and improvement of the farm and stock raising industry of such county. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 14*ll*. Shall be under advisory direction of state director of experiment stations, etc.—Said experiment farm and station shall be affiliated with all other experiment stations heretofore created by law or hereunder in this state, and shall be under the advisory direction of the said director of experiment stations, and shall be directed along the same lines and with the same purpose as the other agricultural demonstration farms and experiment stations in this state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 14m. Duties of director; annual report, etc.—The director of said experiment farm and station shall conduct the same, employ the necessary labor with the approval and advice of the commissioners court to conduct said farm, and keep a complete and accurate record of rainfall, temperature, the winds, and general climatic conditions; the planting, cultivation and marketing of all crops of every character; of his management and observation, and of his management of the live stock on said farm; he shall also make an annual report to the commissioners court of the county, showing in detail his methods and results, which report shall be published by the county and a copy thereof mailed free to every person in the county actually engaged in farming, also to every experiment station within the state, and to the state and United States departments of agriculture, and to every other person within the county who desires a copy of same; said director shall, by and with the consent of the commissioners court, issue such bulletins for distribution in the county from time to time as it may be deemed proper or necessary; the said director shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by the commissioners court not inconsistent with law. He shall sell and market the products of said farm, under the rules made therefor by the commissioners court, and shall pay the proceeds thereof to the county treasurer of the county, who shall place the same to the credit of the general fund of the county. The said director shall also, at all reasonable times, keep said farm open to the inspection of the public, and it shall be his duty to disseminate information, and to explain to all persons his manner and methods of preparation, soil culture, planting, of cultivation, gathering, preservation and marketing of the products of said farm. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 14mm. Expenses, how paid.—The labor necessary for the cultivation and care of said experiment farm and station, including the salary of the director thereof, as well as all expenses and expenditures provided for herein, shall be paid by the county out of its general funds under the provisions of the law, upon warrants drawn by the director and approved by the county judge. Provided that county paupers shall not be maintained or permitted to work upon said farm. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 14n. Question of adoption of Act to be submitted to voters; petition; election; ballots, etc.—On petition of legal voters of such county in number not less than ten per cent of the last vote cast for governor in such county, the commissioners court shall submit the question of the adoption of the provisions of this Act to the qualified voters of said county. Such election shall be held at the usual voting places and by the usual election officers, and as near as may be shall be conducted in accordance with the general election laws of the state. Upon the filing of such petition with the commissioners court the said court shall order an election to be held not less than thirty nor more than sixty days from the date of the order ordering the same, which said order shall be signed by the county judge as presiding officer for the commissioners court; that notice of such order shall be given by the posting of copies of said order at all the postoffices within such county or district, if there be such, and at the court house door of such county, or by publication in some newspaper of general circulation within such county or district. At such election those favoring a county experiment farm and station, under the terms and provisions of this Act, shall vote a ticket on which shall be written or printed the words, "For a County Experiment Farm and Station," and those who are opposed shall vote a ticket on which shall be written or printed the words, "Against a County Experiment Farm and Station." But, both tickets may be written or printed on the same piece of paper, and the voter may vote by erasing or drawing a line through the one which he does not desire to vote. The officers of the election shall make their report to and certify to the commissioners court the number of votes cast both for and against the county experiment farm and station, and, if it appear that a majority of the votes cast at such election are in favor of such county experiment farm and station, the commissioners court shall so declare the result, and shall then proceed to execute the terms and provisions of this law by establishing such farm and station. [Id. sec. 9.]

CHAPTER THREE

DEMONSTRATION AND EXPERIMENT FARMS

Article 14nn. Right to maintain demonstration and experiment farms, etc.—Any railway corporation in the state of Texas, is hereby authorized to acquire, either by lease or purchase, and to own, maintain and operate, or cause to be operated, demonstration and experimental farms, orchards and gardens, no single farm, orchard or garden to exceed 1000 acres in size and not more than four farms for any railroad corporation, for the purpose of aiding in the development of the agricultural and horticultural resources of the state. [Acts 1913, p. 319, sec. 1.]

14x. Proceeds of crops raised, how used.

Article 14*o*. Establishment of stations; purposes.—There shall be established at such places in the state of Texas as the board hereinafter named may deemed proper, experiment stations in addition to those now in operation for the purpose of making experiments and conducting investigations in the planting and growing of agricultural and horticultural crops, and soils, and the breeding, feeding and fattening of livestock for slaughter. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 98, sec. 1.]

Historical.—Acts 1913, S. S., p. 98, § 1, amended Acts 1913, p. 339. Acts 1913, p. 339, § 1, amended Acts 1909, 1 S. S., p. 332, c. 24, which had been incorporated into Rev. Civ. St. 1911, arts. 4476–4483.

Art. 14*oo*. Principal station; supervision; federal government aid; sub-stations.—The experiment station located at the agricultural and mechanical college in Brazos county which is in part supported by the federal government shall remain at said point as a permanent institution. It shall be known as the main or principal state experiment station and it shall continue as heretofore, under the supervision of the board of directors of the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas, which board shall have the authority to accept from the federal government such aid, in its support, as is now or which may hereafter be provided by Congress. All other experiment stations of whatever character which may have heretofore been, or which may hereafter be, established, as provided in this Act, shall be considered as sub-stations. [Id.]

Art. 14p. Government of sub-stations; composition and appointment of board.—Said sub-experiment stations shall be governed by a board, consisting of four persons who shall be qualified voters, to be known as the governing board, one of whom shall be the lieutenant governor and the other three shall be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate. The members of the governing board heretofore appointed by the governor shall continue to exercise their duties until the appointment and qualification of their successors. [Id.]

Art. 14pp. Classification of board members; terms of office; vacancies.—With the exception of the lieutenant governor, the governing board shall be divided by lot into three classes, numbered one, two and three as determined by the board at its first meeting after this Act takes effect. The person drawing number one shall hold office until the regular session of the thirty-fourth legislature and until the appointment and qualification of his successor; the person drawing number two shall hold office until the regular session of the thirty-fifth legislature and until the appointment and qualification of his successor, and the person drawing number three shall hold office until the regular session of the thirty-sixth legislature and until the appointment and qualification of his successor. The governor shall fill all vacancies as they occur for any unexpired term subject to the approval of the senate. The terms of office of all appointees on said board thereafter shall be made for six years. [Id.]

Art. 14q. Powers of governing board.—With the approval of the governor, the governing board shall have power:

(a) To establish sub-experiment stations at such places in the state of Texas as it shall deem proper in addition to those now in operation.

(b) To abandon or discontinue any sub-station which is now or which may hereafter become undesirable for experiment purposes, and, if deemed necessary, may establish others in their stead at such place or places in the state of Texas as it shall deem advisable; provided, however, no station shall be abandoned and re-located beyond the bounds of the county in which such station was originally located.

(c) To sell any land or other property of the state of Texas owned or used by it in the operation of an experiment station, when such station is abandoned as herein provided the proceeds from the sale of which may be applied by said board in the purchase of other land and property for the establishment of an experiment station. In the event of any such sale being made the title to said property shall not pass from the state until a deed of conveyance therefor is made to the purchaser duly signed by the governor and attested by the secretary of state under his official seal, who are hereby authorized to execute the same. All funds received from the sale of said station land or other property shall be deposited in the state treasury in an account to be known as "The Experiment Station Fund," and to be paid out in accordance with the provisions of this Act, upon voucher, as prescribed in section 16 of this Act, for experiment station accounts. [Id.]

Art. 14qq. Power to accept donations.—The said governing board shall also have power to accept and receive all donations in money or other property when given to be used in connection with any experiment work authorized by this Act. [Id.]

Art. 14r. Location of stations; donations; lease of land.—In the location of any experiment station said board may take into consideration and receive any donation either in money, land or other property, to be used in the operation, equipment or management of any such station, and, for experiment work, may lease such land as may, in its judgment, be necessary for any of the purposes named in section 2 [Art. 14*o*] of this Act. [Id.]

Art. 14rr. Sub-experiment stations; government of; residence of director.—All sub-experiment stations, including those heretofore as well as those hereafter established shall be subject to the provisions of this Act and shall be under the supervision, control, management and direction of the director of the Texas agricultural experiment station at the agricultural and mechanical college, whose residence shall be at College Station, Brazos county, Texas. [Id.]

Art. 14s. Employment of assistants; purchase of supplies.—The director of the Texas agricultural experiment station may employ such assistants and labor and may purchase such livestock, farming implement, tools, seed, and such other materials and supplies as he shall deem necessary to the successful management of all, or any, of such experiment stations, subject to the approval of the governing board. [Id.]

Art. 14ss. Proceeds of sales of crops; report as to.—Proceeds from the sale, barter or exchange of crops raised on any of said experiment stations shall go to defray the expenses of operating the same. The directors shall make a complete report monthly to the governing board showing receipts and disbursements, the source of such receipts and for what the same were disbursed. [Id.]

Art. 14t. Bulletins to farmers; reports as to operations and expenditures.—It shall be the duty of the director of Texas agricultural experiment stations to issue and circulate among the farmers and livestock raisers of the state of Texas, from time to time, as may be deemed beneficial to such industries, printed bulletins showing the results of such experiments, such bulletins to be mailed to such persons as may desire them. Said bulletins shall also show the results accomplished and the progress made in the improvement of the agricultural and livestock interests of the state. He shall also invite their co-operation and shall give them advice when requested with reference to the management and cultivation of their farms, and also the care, management and feeding of their stock. It shall also be the duty of the director of said stations to make the governing board, annually on or before the first day of January, a full and detailed report of the operation of said stations, including a statement of receipts and expenditures, which report shall be transmitted to the governor with such additional report as the board shall deem proper. [Id.]

Art. 14tt. Duty of governing board to visit stations.—In addition to the duties hereinbefore prescribed it shall be the duty of the governing board to visit said experiment stations at least once each year; it shall make such criticisms to the director and his assistants as it shall deem expedient and needful. [Id.]

Art. 14u. Payment of director's salary.—The governing board is hereby authorized to pay a part of the director's salary from funds appropriated by the legislature for the maintenance and support of said experiment stations in such proportion, as in its judgment, may be just and proper; taking into consideration the division of his time between said sub-stations and the main station at the agricultural and mechanical college and the sum appropriated for such purposes from the federal appropriation. [Id.]

Art. 14uu. Traveling expenses of governing board; payment; compensation.—The necessary traveling expenses of the members of the said governing board and those of the director and of his assistants shall be paid out of the funds appropriated by the state of Texas for the maintenance and support of said experiment stations. In addition to their actual traveling expenses, the members of said board when traveling upon the official business of said stations shall each be paid five dollars per day while actually engaged in the discharge of their duties. [Id.]

Art. 14v. Issuance of warrants; audit.—Before warrants are issued by the state comptroller in payment of state experiment stations accounts, vouchers covering the same shall be audited and signed by the director or by an assistant designated by him in writing for that purpose, and also by the president of the board herein created, or by a member of said board designated by him in writing for that purpose. [Id.]

Art. 14vv. Inconsistent laws repealed.—That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id.]

Art. 14w. State director of state experimental stations to assist United States government in maintaining station.—That the state director of the state experimental stations of Texas is hereby authorized and directed to co-operate with the national government in maintaining an experimental station for the purpose of conducting experimental culture of tobacco and carrying on researches and experiments in tobacco growing and other farm products, said station to be under the direction of the national government in the 17th representative district. [Acts 1911, p. 168, sec. 1.]

Art. 14ww. Appropriation, how used; expert; salary; appointment, etc.—There is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated for the support of the state government, the sum of six thousand ($6,000.00) dollars, to be used in co-operating with the national government expert in demonstrating and experimenting the culture of tobacco. Said superintendent of experimental stations is hereby authorized to use three thousand ($3,000.00) dollars per annum for a period of two years in defraying the expense of the national government expert, in employment of help and securing one assistant who is experienced in the culture of tobacco, to visit the various farms in the various counties that raise tobacco, and assisting the actual producer in showing him the best methods of raising tobacco for the market, said expert to receive a salary of twelve hundred ($1,200.00) dollars per annum, and actual expenses while on the road, said expert to be appointed by the governor upon the recommendation of the federal government expert. Provided that the citizens of Nacogdoches county shall be required to pay one-half the purchase price of the buildings and lands upon which such experimental station is located and such grounds and buildings shall be purchased and donated to the state of Texas, before any part of the appropriation herein provided for shall be expended, and the state shall pay one-half of such purchase price, and the remainder of this appropriation shall be expended under the direction and upon the approval of the director of the state agricultural experimental stations of Texas. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 14x. Proceeds of crops raised, how used.—The proceeds from the sale, barter or exchange of all crops raised on said station, shall go to defray the expense and continuing the operation of said station. [Id. sec. 3.]

Note.—See Art. 4484.

CHAPTER FIVE

FARMERS' COUNTY LIBRARY

Art.
14xx. Submission to vote.
14y. Duties of commissioners' court.
Art.
14yy. Librarian.
14z. Powers of commissioners' court.

Article 14xx. Submission to vote.—That upon the petition of one hundred or more legal voters of a county being filed with the county judge thirty days prior to any county election, praying that the proposition of providing for a farmers' county library at the county seat be submitted to a vote of the people of such county, such proposition shall be submitted to a vote of the people of such county at the next ensuing county election. [Acts 1913, p. 249, sec. 1.]

Art. 14y. Duties of commissioners' court.—If a majority of all the votes cast upon such proposition are in favor thereof, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of such county, within six months after said election, to provide a room or rooms in the county court house sufficient for the accommodation of such library, and to make an appropriation out of the county funds sufficient for the support and maintenance thereof. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 14yy. Librarian.—The commissioners' court of such county shall employ a librarian whose duty it shall be to gather information pertaining to agriculture, horticulture and kindred subjects, to compile and catalogue same so as to be available for ready reference and use. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 14z. Powers of commissioners' court.—The commissioners' court of such county shall have entire control of such library and shall make such rules and regulations as may be necessary for its proper management. [Id. sec. 4.]

CHAPTER SIX

CO-OPERATIVE DEMONSTRATION WORK

Article 14zz. May appropriate money for farmers' co-operative demonstration work.—The commissioners courts of the respective counties of this state may and they are hereby authorized and empowered to appropriate and use under such rules and regulations as they may prescribe, any sum or sums of money not exceeding one thousand dollars per year for farmer's co-operative demonstration work in their respective counties, along the same lines as this work is and may be conducted by the United States department of agriculture, and may conduct such work jointly in the respective counties with the agents and representatives of the United States department of agriculture, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon between the agents of the department of agriculture and the commissioners court. [Acts 1911, p. 105, sec. 1.]

ALIENS

[For the mode of taking property by devise or descent, see title Descent and Distribution. For qualification of electors, see Elections.]

Art.
15. Alien ownership of land inhibited.
16. Under certain circumstances and conditions permitted.
17. Interest in liens and acquisitions of land under foreclosures and to collect debts permitted.
18. May hold for ten years, provided, etc.
19. May convey before escheat proceedings, good faith, etc.
20. Proceedings to escheat, by whom instituted and when; notice required.
21. Judgment and proceedings after judgment of escheat.

Article 15. [9] Alien ownership of lands inhibited.—No alien or person who is not a citizen of the United States shall acquire title to or own any lands in the state of Texas, except as hereinafter provided; but he shall have and enjoy in the state of Texas such rights as to personal property as are or shall be accorded to citizens of the United States by the laws of the nation to which such alien shall belong, or by the treaties of such nation with the United States, except as the same may be affected by the provisions of this title and the general laws of the state. [Acts of 1892, S. S. p. 6, and Acts 1854, p. 98.]

History of legislation.—Citizens of the United States on whom descent was cast by the constitution and laws of the republic by annexation became citizens of Texas. Cryer v. Andrews, 11 T. 170; Wardrup v. Jones, 23 T. 489.

The effect of these provisions was to vest the fee in the alien immediately on the death of the ancestor, subject to be defeated by non-performance of the conditions subsequent, and the forfeiture was enforced by a judicial proceeding. Wiederanders v. State, 64 T. 133; Cryer v. Andrews, 11 T. 170; Barclay v. Cameron, 25 T. 232; Hanrick v. Hanrick, 54 T. 101; Id., 61 T. 596; Id., 63 T. 618; Ortiz v. De Benavides, 61 T. 60. No mode of declaring such forfeiture was provided by law. Wiederanders v. State, 64 T. 133. But see art. 20, infra.

The provision affecting rights in personal property appears to have been added in the Revision of 1895; and is a modification of the act of 1854. P. D. 45; R. S. 1879, art. 9. The act of 1891 was held void because of a defective title. Gunter v. Tex. L. & M. Co., 82 T. 496, 17 S. W. 840. By the constitution of the republic of Texas (10 Gen. Prov.), an alien could not hold land in Texas except by title emanating directly from the government of the republic. Aliens were entitled to a reasonable time to take possession and dispose of property inherited from a citizen. Sayles' Constitutions, p. 169. Under the constitution of the republic an alien could acquire and hold land until it was escheated. If an alien when the deed was made and at the date of annexation was a citizen of the United States, his title became indefeasible. Baker v. Westcott, 73 T. 129, 11 S. W. 157. By the acts of January 28, 1840 (4th Cong., p. 132), and of March 18, 1848 (2d Leg., p. 131), an alien to whom land descended had nine years within which to become a citizen and take possession of such land or to sell the same. These provisions are incorporated in the statute of Descent and Distribution. Post, art. 2474.

The act of 1840 inhibiting aliens to inherit lands in Texas had no retroactive effect and no application to cases in which descent was cast prior to the independence of Texas and the adoption of the constitution of the republic. Webb's Heirs v. Kirby Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 543, 107 S. W. 583.

Art. 16. [10] Under certain circumstances and conditions permitted.—This title shall not apply to land now owned in this state by aliens so long as it is held by the present owners, nor to any alien who is or shall become a bona fide inhabitant of the state of Texas; and any alien who is or shall become a bona fide inhabitant of the state of Texas shall have the right to acquire and hold lands in this state upon the same terms as citizens of the state of Texas during the continuance of the bona fide residence of such alien in this state; provided, that if any such resident alien shall cease to be a bona fide inhabitant of this state, then such alien shall have ten years from the time he ceases to be such bona fide inhabitant in which to alienate such lands. The provisions of this title shall not be construed to prevent any persons not citizens of the United States from acquiring or holding lots or parcels of lands in any incorporated or platted city, town, or village in this state; provided, further, that any alien who shall become an actual resident of this state, and shall in conformity with the naturalization laws of the United States have declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States, shall have the right to acquire and hold real estate in this state in the same manner as if he was a citizen of the United States. [Acts 1892, p. 6.]

History of legislation.—The act of 1854 was an affirmative and enlarging statute, and intended to give aliens such rights and privileges, in addition to those granted by the act of 1848 (see note under article 15), as had been or should be given by their government to citizens of the United States. By the statutory law of England, in force in 1870, the citizens of the United States are entitled to all the rights of natural-born subjects of said kingdom as to acquiring, taking, holding and disposing of real and personal property. Under this article British subjects were entitled to the same rights in Texas as to real estate, and could maintain an action for its recovery after the expiration of nine years since descent was cast, unless such action was barred by the general law of limitations. Hanrick v. Hanrick, 54 T. 101. When less than nine years elapsed from the time descent was cast upon an alien heir, a citizen of the United States, until annexation was consummated, the estate was saved to the heir by his becoming a citizen. Cryer v. Andrews, 11 T. 170; Wardrup v. Jones, 23 T. 489.

Definition of term "resident."—See The Republic v. Skidmore, Dallam, 581; Id., 2 T. 261; Russel v. Randolph, 11 T. 460; Brown v. Boulden, 18 T. 433; Blumer, Ex parte, 27 T. 736; Tucker v. Anderson, 27 T. 276; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 733–751, 91 Am. Dec. 336; Settegast v. Schrimpf, 35 T. 323; Schrimpf v. Settegast, 38 T. 96; Andrews v. Spear, 48 T. 567; Ortiz v. De Benavides, 61 T. 60.

Art. 17. [11] Interest in liens and acquisitions of land under foreclosures, and to collect debts, permitted.—The provisions of this title shall not prevent aliens from acquiring lands, or any interest therein, in the ordinary course of justice in the collection of debts; nor from acquiring liens upon real estate, or any interest therein; nor from lending money and securing the same upon real estate, or any interest therein; nor from enforcing any such lien; nor from acquiring and holding title to such real estate, or any interest therein, upon which a lien may have heretofore or may hereafter be fixed, or upon which a loan of money may have been heretofore or hereafter may be made and secured. [Acts 1892, p. 6.]

Art. 18. [12] May hold for ten years, provided, etc.—All non-resident aliens who may hereafter acquire real estate in Texas by devise, descent, or by purchase under the provisions of this title may hold the same for ten years; provided, that if any such non-resident alien is a minor he may hold such real estate for ten years from the time of reaching his or her majority, or if of unsound mind for ten years after the appointment of a legal guardian. [Id.]

Art. 19. [13] May convey before escheat proceedings, good faith required.—Any alien who shall hereafter hold lands in Texas, in contravention of the provisions of this title, may, nevertheless, convey the fee simple title thereof at any time before the institution of escheat proceedings as hereinafter provided; provided, however, that if any such conveyance shall be made by such alien either to an alien or to a citizen of the United States, in trust, and for the purpose and with the intention of evading the provisions of this title, such conveyance shall be null and void; and any such land so conveyed shall be forfeited and escheated to the state absolutely. [Id.]

Land grant escheated.—Land granted to plaintiffs' ancestor by the republic of Mexico held escheated to the republic on his death, where his heirs were then aliens to that state, and plaintiffs, who claim through such heirs, have no title thereto. Webb's Heirs v. Kirby Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 543, 107 S. W. 581.

Art. 20. [14] Proceedings to escheat; by whom instituted and when; notice required.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general, or the district or county attorney, when he shall be informed, or have reason to believe, that lands in the state are being held contrary to the provisions of this title, to institute suit in behalf of the state of Texas in the district court of the county where such lands are situated, praying for the escheat of the same on behalf of the state, as in cases of estates of persons dying without the devise thereof and having no heirs; provided, before any such suit is instituted, the attorney general, district or county attorney, as the case may be, shall give ninety days notice by registered letter of his intention to sue, directed to the owner of said land, or the person who last rendered same for taxes, or his agents, and to all of the persons having an interest in such land, of which the plaintiff has actual or constructive notice. [Id.]

Art. 21. [15] Judgment and proceedings after judgment of escheat.—If it shall be determined upon the trial of any such escheat proceedings that lands are held contrary to the provisions of this title, the court trying said cause shall render judgment condemning such lands, and shall order the same to be sold under execution; and the proceeds of such sale, after deducting the cost of such suit, shall be paid to the clerk of such court so rendering judgment; and said funds shall remain in the hands of such clerk for one year from the date of such payment, subject to the order of the alien owner of such lands or his heirs or legal representatives, and if not claimed within the period of one year, such clerk shall pay the same into the treasury of the state for the benefit of the available school fund of the state of Texas; provided, that when any money shall have been paid to the treasurer, as hereinbefore provided, an alien, his heirs or assigns, may recover the same from the state in the same manner prescribed in articles 3583, 3584, 3585, 3586, 3587 and 3591 of chapter 28, title 52, of the Revised Civil Statutes of the state of Texas, relating to the recovery of funds of estates of decedents by the heirs, etc., where the same has been paid into the treasury by the administrator or executor; provided, that the defendant at any time before final judgment may suggest that he has conformed with the law, which being admitted or proved, said suit shall be dismissed on payment of costs and reasonable attorney's fee to be fixed by the court. [Id.]

AMUSEMENTS—PUBLIC

Art.
22. Defining places of public amusement.
23. Leases.

Article 22. Defining places of public amusement.—All buildings constructed, fitted and equipped for the purpose of theaters, commonly called theaters, opera houses, playhouses, or by whatever name designated, which are and shall hereafter be used for public performances, the production and exhibition of plays, dramas, operas and other shows of whatever nature, to which admission fees are charged, are hereby declared to be public houses of amusement, and the same shall be subject to regulation by the public will as expressed by ordinance, statute, or other law; provided, that owners and lessees shall have the right to assign seats to patrons thereof, and to refuse admission to objectionable characters. [Acts 1907, p. 21, sec. 1.]

Definition of "theater."—A theater is a playhouse, a building for the representation of a theatrical performance. Gould v. State (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 172, 179.

Negligence in conduct of place of public amusement.—In an action for the drowning of plaintiff's minor son in defendant's swimming pool, whether defendant provided sufficient competent attendants held for the jury. Levinski v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 959. One operating a swimming pool for the use of the public is only bound to exercise ordinary care to provide a reasonably sufficient number of competent attendants to look after the safety of his patrons. Id. An instruction that one maintaining a swimming pool was bound to provide sufficient skilled attendants to secure the safety of his patrons held objectionable, as requiring too high a degree of care. Id.

An instruction, in an action against a railroad for injuries to a patron on its amusement grounds caused by the falling of a tank, that if the injury occurred on property under the control of the company, onto which the general public had been invited, and if the tank was negligently left by its agents, so as to be dangerous to persons like plaintiff, the verdict must be for plaintiff, was not misleading. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 271.

Contributory negligence.—A boy who in a museum gave peanuts to a monkey running at large, and, on picking up one it had dropped, was bitten by it, was not voluntarily responsible for the attack, so as to relieve the keeper from liability within the rule as to keeping animals feræ naturæ. Copley v. Wills (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 830.

Art. 23. Leases.—All leases and renewals of leases taken and made for a term upon such houses of public amusement, as defined in the preceding article, shall contain a provision therein to the effect that the lessee or his assigns, shall, in good faith, comply with the provisions of the law governing such places of public amusement; and upon the failure or refusal of any such lessee, or his assigns, to comply with the law governing such places of public amusement, or upon conviction of the violation of any of the provisions of the Penal Code relating to discrimination in the booking of plays, opera shows, or other productions, by whatever name known, which are and shall hereafter be used for public performances, shall forfeit his lease and all rights and privileges thereunder. [Id. sec. 4.]

Sixteenth. The following counties shall compose the sixteenth district, to-wit: El Paso, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Brewster, Pecos, Crockett, Schleicher, Sutton, Edwards, Kimble, Menard, Concho, Tom Green, Irion, Upton, Crane, Ward, Reeves, Loving, Winkler, Ector, Midland, Glasscock, Sterling, Coke, Runnels, Eastland, Callahan, Taylor, Nolan, Mitchell, Howard, Martin, Andrews, Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Scurry, Fisher, Jones, Shackelford, Stephens, Palo Pinto, Haskell, Stonewall, King, Kent, Garza, Crosby, Lubbock, Lynn, Terry, Yoakum, Cochran, Hockley and Reagan. [Acts 1903, p. 44; Acts 1905, p. 96.]

Special acts fixing apportionment.—Acts 1911, p. 53, creating Culberson county, and Acts 1913, p. 264, creating Real county, place such counties in the 16th congressional district.

SUPREME JUDICIAL DISTRICTS

Art. 29. [21] [16] The state of Texas shall be and is hereby divided into eight supreme judicial districts for the purpose of constituting and organizing courts of civil appeals therein respectively:

1. The following counties shall compose the First Supreme Judicial District: Newton, Jasper, Orange, Jefferson, Hardin, Tyler, Polk, Trinity, Houston, Madison, Walker, San Jacinto, Liberty, Chambers, Harris, Montgomery, Grimes, Washington, Waller, Fort Bend, Brazoria, Matagorda, Wharton, Colorado, Austin, Fayette, Lavaca, Jackson, Sabine, San Augustine, Angelina, Anderson, Brazos, Leon, Burleson, DeWitt, Galveston and Nacogdoches.

Special act fixing apportionment.—Acts 1911, p. 83, creating Willacy county, places such county in the 1st supreme judicial district.

3. The following counties shall compose the third supreme judicial district: Runnels, Coleman, Brown, Mills, Hamilton, Coryell, Bell, Lampasas, San Saba, McCulloch, Concho, Llano, Burnet, Williamson, Milam, Lee, Bastrop, Travis, Blanco, Hays, Comal, Caldwell, Robertson, McLennan, Falls, Sterling, Coke, Tom Green, Irion, Schleicher, and Crockett.

4. The following counties shall compose the fourth supreme judicial district: Val Verde, Sutton, Edwards, Kinney, Maverick, Menard, Kimble, Kerr, Bandera, Uvalde, Zavala, Dimmitt, Webb, La Salle, Frio, Medina, Duval, McMullen, Atascosa, Bexar, Kendall, Gillespie, Mason, Guadalupe, Wilson, Live Oak, Zapata, Bee, Gonzales, Karnes, Calhoun, Victoria, Goliad, Refugio, San Patricio, Aransas, Nueces, Hidalgo, Cameron, and Starr.

Special acts fixing apportionment.—Acts 1911, p. 55, creating Brooks county; Acts S. S. 1913, p. 86, creating Dunn county; Acts 1913, p. 133, creating Jim Hogg county; Acts 1911, p. 58, creating Jim Wells county; Acts 1913, p. 14, creating Kleberg county; and Acts 1913, p. 264, creating Real county—place such counties in the 4th supreme judicial district.

Acts 1911, p. 53, creating Culberson county, and placing it in the 4th supreme judicial district, was superseded by Acts 1913, p. 7, transferring such county to the 8th district.

5. The following counties shall compose the fifth supreme judicial district: Grayson, Collin, Dallas, Rockwall, Ellis, Navarro, Kaufman, Henderson, Van Zandt, Rains, Hunt, Hill, Limestone, Freestone, Wood, and Delta.

6. The following counties shall compose the sixth supreme judicial district: Lamar, Red River, Bowie, Hopkins, Franklin, Titus, Morris, Cass, Marion, Camp, Fannin, Cherokee, Rusk, Gregg, Harrison, Panola, Smith, Upshur, and Shelby.

Explanatory.—See Art. 1586, subd. 6, par. 2, for provision as to terms of court and place of holding same.

7. The following counties shall compose the seventh supreme judicial district: Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Roberts, Hemphill, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Collingsworth, Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Brisco, Hall, Childress, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Motley, Cottle, Foard, Hardeman, Wilbarger, King, Dickens, Crosby, Lubbock, Hockley, Cochran, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Kent, and Fisher,* [Dawson,* Scurry.*]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1586, subd. 7, for provision as to terms of, and place for holding, court.

*See Appendix, IX, p. 4951.

Within thirty days after the passage of this Act, the governor shall by and with the consent of the senate, if in session, appoint one chief justice and two associate justices for the seventh judicial district, and one chief justice and two associate justices for the eighth supreme judicial district, who shall each reside in the territorial limits of their respective supreme judicial districts, and who shall possess the qualifications now required by law, who shall constitute the court of civil appeals within and for the seventh supreme judicial district, and the eighth supreme judicial district, respectively; and who shall hold their offices until the next general election in 1912; and shall thereafter be elected and qualify as provided and required by article 988 of the Revised Statutes of Texas. [Acts 1911, p. 269, sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—Article 988, cited above, is now article 1581 of this compilation. See Art. 1586, subd. 8, for provision as to terms of and place for holding court.

Cited, Beaumont v. Newsome (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 941; Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1015; Wortham v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 702.

Retroactive effect of statute.—The court of civil appeals of the sixth supreme judicial district does not acquire jurisdiction of a case in which the appeal was perfected before the act establishing the court took effect, even though the county in which the case was tried is in the sixth district as established, because the act does not provide for the transfer of pending appeals to the sixth district. Gordon v. Rhodes & Daniels (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 786.

Where, at the time an appeal was perfected, the case was appealable to the court of civil appeals for the fifth supreme judicial district the jurisdiction of that district attached, and was not devested by the subsequent establishment of a sixth district court of civil appeals, to which an appeal would properly have been taken had it existed earlier. Gordon v. Willson, 101 T. 43, 104 S. W. 1043.

In the absence of any special provision in Acts 32d Leg. c. 120, creating two additional courts of civil appeals, and redistricting the state, jurisdiction of an appeal perfected after the statute went into effect is determined by the redistricting, though the case was tried below before the statute went into effect. Feingold v. Lefkovitz (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 106.

Since, under art. 2084, appeals generally are perfected when the bond is filed, the court of civil appeals for the seventh district, creation of which became operative June 9, 1911, under Acts 32d Leg. c. 120, has no jurisdiction of an appeal, where the bond was filed May 25, 1911, and no order of the supreme court transferring the cause to the new court is shown. Keator v. Whittaker (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 120.

House Bill No. 25, enacted in 1911, creating the court of civil appeals for the seventh judicial district, held to give that court jurisdiction of all cases unsubmitted to the court of the second district from counties embraced within the seventh and of cases in which appeals have been perfected to the court for the second district. Keator v. Whittaker, 104 T. 628, 143 S. W. 607.

When statute takes effect.—The act of 1911 became effective on June 9, 1911, notwithstanding the emergency clause. Keator v. Whittaker, 104 T. 628, 143 S. W. 607.

The act of 1911 transferred jurisdiction of all cases unsubmitted to the court of civil appeals for the second district from counties in the seventh district to the court of civil appeals of that district at once upon going into effect without any action by the clerk of the court of civil appeals of the second district or by that court; the clerk's duties in transferring the papers only being ministerial. Id.

Repeal of statute.—Act March 10, 1911 (Laws 32d Leg. c. 120), reorganized the supreme judicial districts of the state, and created the seventh and eighth districts. Act March 11, 1911, also provided for the creation of the seventh district, including more counties therein than the first measure. Held that, as the conflict between these two bills was reconcilable, they should be construed together, having been enacted at the same session and on the same subject-matter, and the second did not repeal the provision for the creation of the eighth district. Southern Pac. Co. v. Sorey, 104 T. 476, 140 S. W. 334.

The provisions of the latter act governed in case of conflict; it being the last expression of the will of the legislature. Id.

Appeal to wrong court.—The appeal, not being to the proper court under Acts 32d Leg. c. 120, creating two additional courts of civil appeals, and redistricting the state, will be dismissed, and appellant left to ask leave to file his record in the proper court on a reasonable showing as to his failure to file the transcript in time; no power being given the court to which appeal is taken to transfer it to the proper court. Feingold v. Lefkovitz (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 106.

Transfer of causes.—House Bill No. 25, enacted in 1911, creating the court of civil appeals for the seventh judicial district, held to transfer all unsubmitted cases to that court without any action by the clerk of the court of civil appeals of the second district. Keator v. Whittaker, 104 T. 628, 143 S. W. 607.

The record of causes pending when such act took effect should be filed in the court for the seventh district. Id.

The clerk of the court of civil appeals for the second judicial district might, after such enactment, transfer the papers of cases then pending therein on appeal to the court for the seventh district within the time allowed for filing such papers. Id.

If an appeal was perfected to the court for the second district before such statute took effect, the appeal bond and other papers should be framed with reference to that court. Id.

In view of such statute the court of civil appeals for the seventh district held to have power to determine excuses for not filing a statement of facts in that court within the proper time in a case transferred from the second district. Id.

JUDICIAL DISTRICTS

Art. 30. [22] [17] The judicial districts of the state shall be constituted as follows:

1. The first judicial district shall be composed of the counties of San Augustine, Sabine, Jasper, Newton, Orange and Tyler. [Acts 1907, p. 100.]

That the terms of court shall be held in the first judicial district, composed of the counties of San Augustine, Sabine, Jasper, Newton, Orange and Tyler, as follows:—

In the county of San Augustine on the first Monday in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Tyler on the fourth Monday after the first Monday in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Newton on the eighth Monday after the first Monday in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Sabine on the twelfth Monday after the first Monday in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Orange on the sixteenth Monday after the first Monday in January and July, and may continue in session five weeks.

In the county of Jasper on the twenty-first Monday after the first Monday in January and July, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1913, p. 176, sec. 1.]

That all process issued out of the first judicial district prior to the taking effect of this Act is hereby made returnable to the terms of said court as fixed by this Act, and all bonds heretofore executed and recognizances entered of record in said court shall bind the parties for their appearance or to fulfill the obligation of such bond and recognizances at the terms of said court as fixed by this Act, and all process heretofore returned, as well as all bonds and recognizances heretofore taken in any of said counties in said district shall be as valid as if no change had been made in the time of the holding of the courts in said district. [Id. sec. 2.]

Should the district court in any of the counties affected by the change made in this Act be in session under the existing laws when this Act takes effect, the same shall continue and end its term under such existing laws, and process, writs, judgments and decrees shall be valid and shall not be affected by the change in the time of holding the court in the district by this Act. [Id. sec. 3.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act be, and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 4.]

2. That the second judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Angelina, Cherokee and Nacogdoches, [and] the terms of the district court shall be held therein in each year as follows: In the county of Nacogdoches on the first Monday in September and second Monday in February, and may continue in session for seven weeks. In the county of Angelina on the seventh Monday after the first Monday in September and the seventh Monday after the second Monday in February, and may remain in session seven weeks. In the county of Cherokee on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in September, and may remain in session until the second Monday in February, and the fourteenth Monday after the second Monday in February, and may remain in session until business is disposed of. [Acts 1911, p. 93, sec. 1.]

The district judges and the district attorneys, respectively, of the second and fourth judicial districts, elected and now acting for said districts respectively shall hold their respective offices, until the time for which they have been elected shall expire, and their successors are duly elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 4.]

That all process issued or served before this Act takes effect, including recognizances and bonds returnable to the district court of any of the counties of said judicial districts [second, fourth, and seventy-first], shall be considered as returnable to said courts in accordance with the terms as prescribed in this Act, and all such process hereby legalized, and all grand and petit juries drawn and selected under existing laws in any of the counties of said judicial districts, shall be considered lawfully drawn and selected for the next term of the district court of their respective counties, held after this Act takes effect, and all such processes are hereby legalized and validated, provided that if any court in any county of said district shall be in session at the time this Act takes effect, such court or courts affected hereby shall continue in session until the term thereof shall expire, under the provisions of existing laws, but thereafter the courts in such county or counties shall conform to the requirements of this Act. [Id. sec. 8.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act, be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 11.]

3. The third judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Houston, Henderson and Anderson, as now constituted, and the district courts shall be held therein as follows: In the county of Henderson, on the first Monday in February and September, and may continue in session five weeks. In the county of Houston, on the fifth Monday after the first Monday in February and September, and may continue in session seven weeks. In Anderson county, on the twelfth Monday after the first Monday in February, and may continue in session eight weeks; on the twentieth Monday after the first Monday in February and may continue in session until the business is disposed of; on the twelfth Monday after the first Monday in September, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1905, p. 141.]

4. That the fourth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Rusk, Shelby, Panola and Gregg, and the terms of the district court shall be held therein in each year as follows: In the county of Rusk on the first Monday in January and the last Monday in June, and may continue in session five weeks. In the county of Shelby on the fifth Monday after the first Monday in January, and on the fifth Monday after the last Monday in June, and may continue in session seven weeks. In the county of Panola on the twelfth Monday after the first Monday in January, and on the twelfth Monday after the last Monday in June, and may continue in session five weeks. In the county of Gregg on the seventeenth Monday after the first Monday in January, and on the twenty-first Monday after the last Monday in June, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1911, p. 93, sec. 2.]

The district clerk of Shelby county, duly elected and acting, shall be the clerk of the district court of said fourth judicial district, sitting in Shelby county, until the next general election and his successor is duly elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 6.]

Explanatory.—Sections 4, 8, and 11 of this act, appearing under subdivision 2 of this article, also relate to the fourth judicial district.

5. The fifth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Bowie, Cass, Marion, Morris, Titus, and Franklin. [Acts 1907, p. 198.]

The district courts in the fifth judicial district shall be held as follows:

In the county of Cass on the first Monday in February and fourth Monday in August of each year, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Morris on the fourth Monday after the first Monday in February and the fourth Monday in August, of each year, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Titus on the sixth Monday after the first Monday in February and the fourth Monday in August of each year, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Franklin on the ninth Monday after the first Monday in February and the fourth Monday in August of each year, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Marion on the eleventh Monday after the first Monday in February and the fourth Monday in August of each year, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Bowie on the fifteenth Monday after the first Monday in February and the fourth Monday in August of each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of; provided adjournment shall be had prior to the first Monday in February and the fourth Monday in August of each year. [Acts 1911, p. 167, sec. 1.]

That all process, writs and bonds issued or executed prior or subsequent to the taking effect of this Act and returnable to the terms of said courts as heretofore fixed by law in the several counties composing the said fifth judicial district, are hereby made returnable to the terms of said courts in the several counties as fixed in this Act, and all process heretofore returned as well as all bonds and recognizances heretofore entered into or hereafter entered into after this Act takes effect in any of said courts shall be as valid and binding as if no change had been made in the time of holding said courts. [Id. sec. 2.]

All laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 3.]

6. The sixth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Fannin, Lamar and Red River, and the district court shall be begun and held in said counties as follows: [Acts 1903, p. 89.] In the county of Fannin, on the first Monday in February of each year, and may continue in session nine weeks; also on the third Monday in August of each year, and may continue in session seven weeks. [Acts 1909, p. 55.] In the county of Lamar, on the ninth Monday after the first Monday in February and August, and may continue in session seven weeks. In the county of Red River, on the sixteenth Monday after the first Monday in February and August, and may continue in session six weeks. [Acts 1903, p. 89.] The clerk of the district court of Lamar county as heretofore constituted, and his successors in office, shall be the clerk of both the sixth and sixty-second judicial district courts in said Lamar county, and shall perform all the duties pertaining to the clerkship of both of said courts. The district court of the sixth judicial district, and the district court of the sixty-second judicial district, in the county of Lamar, shall have concurrent jurisdiction with each other throughout the limits of Lamar county, of all matters, civil and criminal, of which jurisdiction is given to the district courts by the constitution and laws of the state of Texas. [Acts 1905, p. 75.]

7. The seventh judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Upshur, Smith, Van Zandt, Wood and Camp, and the district courts therein shall be held as follows: In the county of Smith, on the first Mondays in February and September in each year, and may continue in session six weeks. In the county of Van Zandt, on the sixth Monday after the first Monday in February and September of each year, and may continue in session four weeks. In the county of Wood, on the tenth Monday after the first Monday in February and September of each year, and may continue in session for four weeks. In the county of Camp, on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in February, and may continue in session three weeks, and on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in September of each year, and may continue in session for two weeks. In the county of Upshur, on the first Monday in January and on the seventeenth Monday after the first Monday in February of each year, and may continue in session for four weeks. In the county of

Smith, on the twenty-first Monday after the first Monday in February of each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of; provided, the term is not to extend beyond August 31. [Acts 1909, p. 120.]

8. The eighth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Hunt, Hopkins, Delta and Rains, and the district court shall be held therein as follows: In the county of Delta, on the first Monday in January of each year, and may continue in session three weeks, and on the first Monday in June of each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. In the county of Hopkins, on the fourth Mondays in January and August of each year, and may continue in session six weeks. In the county of Hunt, on the sixth Monday after the fourth Monday in January of each year, and may continue in session nine weeks, and on the sixth Monday after the fourth Monday in August of each year, and may continue in session eight weeks. In the county of Rains, on the fifteenth Monday after the fourth Monday in January of each year, and may continue in session two weeks, and on the fourteenth Monday after the fourth Monday in August of each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1897, p. 111.]

The district court of the eighth judicial district, and the district court of the sixty-second judicial district, in the county of Hunt, shall have concurrent jurisdiction with each other in said county, throughout the limits of the county of Hunt, of all matters, civil and criminal, of which jurisdiction is given to the district courts by the constitution and laws of the state of Texas; and the district court of the eighth judicial district, and the district court of the sixty-second judicial district, in the county of Delta, shall have concurrent jurisdiction with each other in said county, throughout the limits of the county of Delta, of all matters, civil and criminal, of which jurisdiction is given to the district courts by the constitution and laws of the state of Texas; provided, that the judge of the sixty-second judicial district shall never impanel the grand jury in said court in the counties of Lamar, Hunt and Delta, unless in his judgment he thinks it necessary. Either of the judges of the district court of the county of Hunt may, in their discretion, either in term time or vacation, transfer any case or cases, civil or criminal, that may at any time be pending in his court, to the other district court in said county of Hunt, by order or orders entered upon the minutes of the court making such transfer; and, where such transfer or transfers are made, the clerk of said court shall enter such case or cases upon the dockets of the court to which such transfer or transfers are made, and, when so entered upon the docket, the judge of said court shall try and dispose of said cases in the same manner as if such cases were originally filed in said court. Either of the judges of the district courts of the county of Delta may, in their discretion, either in term time or vacation, transfer any case or cases of a civil or criminal nature, that may, at any time, be pending in his court, to the other district court in said Delta county, by order or orders entered upon the minutes of the court, making such transfer; and, when such transfer or transfers are made, and when so entered upon the docket, the judge of said court shall try and dispose of said case or cases in the same manner as if such cases were originally filed in said court. The clerks of the district courts of Delta and Hunt counties, respectively, as heretofore constituted, and their successors in office, shall be the clerks of both the eighth and sixty-second district courts in said counties, respectively, and shall perform all the duties pertaining to the clerkship of both of said counties. [Acts 1905, p. 75.]

9. The ninth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Montgomery, Liberty, Chambers, Hardin, San Jacinto and Polk, and the district courts therein shall be held as follows: In the county of Montgomery, on the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks. In the county of Liberty, on the fourth

Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session five weeks. In the county of Chambers, on the ninth Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Hardin, on the eleventh Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session five weeks. In the county of San Jacinto, on the sixteenth Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks. In the county of Polk, on the twentieth Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1909, p. 128.]

10. Galveston county shall constitute the tenth judicial district, as well as the fifty-sixth judicial district. The district courts of Galveston county shall not have nor exercise any criminal jurisdiction, such criminal jurisdiction having been by law exclusively vested in a criminal district court. Said district courts shall have and exercise concurrent jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of Galveston county, in all civil cases, proceedings and matters of which district courts are given jurisdiction by the constitution and laws of the state. The terms of the district courts of the tenth judicial district shall be held therein as follows: On the first Mondays in February, April, June, October and December, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. The judges of said tenth and fifty-sixth judicial districts shall be elected at the time and in the manner provided by law, by the qualified voters of Galveston county. In all suits, actions or proceedings, it shall be sufficient in every instance for the address or designation to be merely the "District Court of Galveston County;" and the clerk of said courts shall file and docket the even numbers thereof in the court of the tenth judicial district, and the odd numbers thereof in the court of fifty-sixth judicial district; but any case pending in either of said courts may, in the discretion of the judge thereof, be transferred from one of said district courts to the other, and so from time to time; and in case of the disqualification of the judge of either of said courts in any case, such case, on his suggestion of disqualification, shall stand transferred to the other of said courts, and be docketed by the clerk accordingly. The clerk of the court of the tenth judicial district shall perform the duties of clerk of the court of the fifty-sixth judicial district; in case of vacancy in said office of said clerk, the same shall be filled by appointment by the judge of the tenth judicial district. [Acts 1909, p. 116.]

For provisions as to criminal district court of Harris county, see chapter 1 of title 39.

11. Harris county shall constitute the eleventh judicial district, as well as the fifty-fifth and the sixty-first judicial districts. The said district courts of Harris county shall not have nor exercise any criminal jurisdiction, such criminal jurisdiction having been by law vested exclusively in a criminal district court. Said district courts shall have and exercise concurrent jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of Harris county, in all civil cases, proceedings and matters of which district courts are given jurisdiction by the constitution and laws of the state. The terms of the district court of said eleventh judicial district shall be begun and holden in said Harris county on the first Monday in February, April, June, October and December of each and every year, and may continue in session until the business of the court is disposed of. The judges of each and all of said courts shall be elected at the times and in the manner provided by law, by the qualified voters of Harris county; and the judges of the eleventh and fifty-fifth judicial districts shall continue as judges thereof, holding their offices as provided by law. In all suits, action or proceedings, it shall be sufficient in every instance for the address or designation to be merely "the District Court of Harris County;" and the clerk of said court shall docket alternately on the dockets of the eleventh judicial district, of the fifty-fifth judicial district, and the sixty-first judicial district, all cases filed, and all cases shall in this manner be docketed in and divided between said courts; but any cases pending in said courts may, in the discretion of the respective judges thereof, be transferred from one of said courts to the other, and so from time to time; in case of the disqualification of the judge of either of said courts in any case, such case, on his suggestion of disqualification, shall stand transferred to one or the other of said courts, and be docketed by the clerk accordingly. The clerk of the district court of Harris county shall perform the duties of the clerk of the district court of the sixty-first judicial district in like manner as he fills the duties of the clerk of the eleventh and fifty-fifth judicial districts; and, in case of vacancy in said office, the same shall be filled by such appointee as may be selected by all or a majority of the judges of the three courts herein named. [Acts 1903, p. 22.]

12. The twelfth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Trinity, Leon, Walker, Madison and Grimes, as now constituted, and the district courts shall be held therein as follows: In the county of Trinity, on the last Monday in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks, instead of three, as now provided by law. In the county of Leon, on the fourth Monday after the last Monday in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks. In the county of Walker, on the eighth Monday after the last Monday in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks. In the county of Madison, on the thirteenth Monday after the last Monday in January and July, and may continue in session three weeks. In the county of Grimes, on the seventeenth Monday after the last Monday in January and July, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1905, p. 55.]

13. The thirteenth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Limestone, Freestone and Navarro, and the district courts shall be begun and holden therein as follows: In the county of Limestone, on the first Monday in January and on the third Monday in June, and each term may continue in session six weeks. In the county of Freestone, on the sixth Monday after the first Monday in January, and on the first Monday in September, and each term may continue in session four weeks. In the county of Navarro, on the tenth Monday after the first Monday in January, and on the fourth Monday after the first Monday in September, and each term may continue in session twelve weeks. [Acts 1899, p. 38.]

14. Dallas county shall constitute the forty-fourth judicial district and the sixty-eighth judicial district, and Dallas county and Rockwall county shall constitute the fourteenth judicial district. The said district courts herein named shall not have nor exercise any criminal jurisdiction in Dallas county, such criminal jurisdiction having been by law exclusively vested in the criminal district courts for said county. But all of said three courts shall have and exercise concurrent jurisdiction coextensive with the limits of Dallas county in all civil cases, proceedings and matters of which district courts are given jurisdiction by the constitution and laws of the state. The said fourteenth judicial district court shall have jurisdiction in Rockwall county, Texas, in all civil and criminal cases which under the constitution and laws of this state are cognizable by district courts, and in which the jurisdiction is in Rockwall county, Texas; and all appeals in criminal cases shall be to the court of criminal appeals of the state of Texas under the same regulations as are now or may hereafter be provided by the laws for appeals in criminal cases in the district court; and all appeals in civil cases in said court shall be to the court of civil appeals and supreme court under the regulations as they are now or may hereafter be provided for by law for such appeals. The district court of the fourteenth judicial district shall hold four terms each year in the county of Dallas, and two terms each year in the county of Rockwall, said terms in the county of Rockwall beginning on the 2nd Monday in March and continuing in session for four weeks and beginning on the first Monday in September and continuing in session for four weeks; said terms in Dallas county shall be as follows:

Beginning on the first Monday in January and ending on Saturday before the 2nd Monday in March, and beginning the 5th Monday after the second Monday in March and ending on Saturday before the first Monday in July; beginning on the first Monday in July, and ending on the Saturday before the first Monday in September, beginning on the 5th Monday after the first Monday in September, and ending on the Saturday before the first Monday in January. A grand jury shall be impaneled in said court for each of said terms in Rockwall county unless otherwise directed by the judge of said court or by order entered on the minutes of said court, and commissioners shall be appointed for drawing jurors for said court, as is now or may hereafter be required by law in district courts, and under like rules and regulations. The judges of the fourteenth, forty-fourth and sixty-eighth judicial districts shall be elected as provided by the Constitution and laws of the state for election of district judges; and the judge of said fourteenth judicial district shall be a resident of said district, and shall possess the qualifications required of the district judge by the constitution of this state, and shall be elected by the qualified voters of said district for a term of four years, and shall hold his office until his successor shall have been elected and qualified, and shall receive the same salary that is now provided or that may hereafter be provided, to be paid to district judges and in like manner. The sheriff, county attorney, clerk of the district court of Dallas county, and also the sheriff, county attorney and the clerk of the district court of Rockwall county, as heretofore provided by law, shall be the officers respectively of said courts under the same rules and regulations as are now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for the government of such officers, and shall respectively receive such fees as are now or may hereafter be provided by law for such officers in this state; and all of said officers as heretofore existing shall be and remain the officials of their respective counties of the district courts having jurisdiction in said counties respectively, as herein prescribed, and shall hold office until their successor or successors are elected and qualified; provided, however, in case of vacancy by death, resignation, or removal in the district clerks office in Dallas county, his successor shall be appointed by a majority of the judges of said three district courts and the judges of the criminal district courts acting together, and, in case they fail to make an appointment within twenty days after such vacancy is created, then such appointment shall be made by the commissioners court of Dallas county. The clerk shall place upon the docket and the court papers, opposite the number of each case on the docket of the district court for the fourteenth judicial district the letter A; and shall place upon the docket and the court papers, opposite the number of each case on the docket of the forty-fourth judicial district court, the letter B; and shall place upon the docket and the court papers, opposite the number of each case on the docket of the sixty-eighth district court, the letter C, and this requirement shall be observed as to all cases filed in either of said courts, so that the letter A opposite the file number shall indicate that the case pends in the fourteenth judicial district court, the letter B opposite the file number shall indicate that the case pends in the forty-fourth judicial district court, and the letter C opposite the file number shall indicate that the case pends in the sixty-eighth judicial district court. All cases, prosecutions and proceedings filed with said clerk shall by him be entered upon the dockets of said courts alternately, beginning with the fourteenth district court, next the forty-fourth district court, and third the sixty-eighth district court, and so continuing in this order, that the business may be equally distributed among said courts, and numbering said cases consecutively, beginning with the last file number on said dockets. Either of said judges may, at his discretion, transfer any case or cases pending in his court to either of the other courts herein provided for, by order or orders entered upon the minutes of his court; and where such transfer is made the clerk shall enter such case or cases upon the docket of the court to which the transfer is made. And in such case, unless the parties are present in court and take notice of such transfer, reasonable notice of such order or orders shall be given to the parties or their attorneys of record; provided, that in cases wherein ancillary writs be granted by either of the judges, the transfer may be made to the court of the judge granting such writ, without such notice. The judges of said courts may exchange with any district judge as provided by law, and in case of disqualification or absence of any of said judges a special judge may be selected, elected or appointed as provided by law in the cases of district judges. Said courts shall have seals of like designs as other district courts of this state, which seal or seals shall be used for all purposes for which seals of district courts are required to be used, and certified copies of the orders, proceedings, judgments and other official acts of said courts under the hand and seal of the clerks respectively thereof, and by the seal of said court, shall be admissible, in evidence in all courts of this state in like manner as similar certified copies from other district courts of record are now or hereafter may be admissible. [Acts 1913, p. 171, sec. 1.]

The district judge in the fourteenth judicial district as now constituted shall continue in office until the expiration of the term for which he was elected, and the district judge of the fortieth judicial district shall continue in office for the term for which he was elected. All process issued in the fortieth judicial district and returnable to its term as heretofore established in Rockwall county, and all recognizances and bonds returnable to said court shall be valid and returnable to the fourteenth judicial district court sitting in Rockwall county, and all such processes are hereby legalized and all subpœnas made returnable to said court shall be treated and considered as returnable to the terms of said courts respectively as herein provided, and all grand and petit jurors drawn and selected under existing laws shall be considered lawfully drawn and selected in said counties and districts respectively for the next term of the court in said respective districts and counties after this Act takes effect and such process is legalized and validated, and all process, recognizances and bonds heretofore issued or which may hereafter be issued before this Act takes effect returnable to the district court in Ellis county and Kaufman county shall be valid and considered returnable to the next term of court sitting after this Act takes effect, and the succeeding term as provided by law, and this Act shall not affect the term of any court in session at the time it goes into effect, and said court or courts so in session shall continue until the expiration of the term under existing laws, and thereafter the terms of said court shall conform to the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 3.]

For provisions as to Dallas criminal district court, see chapter 2, title 39.

Several courts in one county.—Acts 31st Leg. c. 5, creating and constituting Dallas county the fourteenth, forty-fourth, and sixty-eighth judicial districts, are not unconstitutional, on the ground that more than one district court with concurrent jurisdiction for Dallas county cannot exist. Kruegel v. Cockrell & Gray (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 352.

—— Residence of clerk.—The act creating two judicial districts in Dallas county, and which provided for but one clerk, being constitutional, a clerk was qualified if he resided within the county, though not within the particular district wherein he was acting at the time in question. Kruegel v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 343.

15. The fifteenth judicial district of the state of Texas shall be composed of the county of Grayson, and the district court shall be held therein as follows: Beginning on the first Monday in October, and continuing until and including the last Saturday before the first Monday in January. Beginning on the first Monday in January, and continuing until and including the last Saturday before the first Monday in April. Beginning on the first Monday in April, and continuing until the first Monday in October, or until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1903, p. 2.] The district court of the fifteenth judicial district, and the district court of the fifty-ninth judicial district, in the county of Grayson, shall have concurrent jurisdiction with each other throughout the limits of Grayson county, of all matters, civil and criminal, of which jurisdiction is given to the district courts by the constitution and laws of the state; provided, that the judge of the fifteenth judicial district shall never impanel the grand jury in Grayson county, except that, when, in the discretion of said court, it is deemed by him proper so to do, he may draw and impanel such grand jury for any terms of his court as provided by law for other district courts for impaneling grand juries. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 393.] Either of the judges of the district court of Grayson county may, in their discretion, either in term time or in vacation, transfer any case or cases, civil or criminal, that may, at any time, be pending in his court to the other district court in Grayson county, by order or orders entered upon the minutes of the court making such transfer; and, where such transfer or transfers are made, the clerk of said court shall enter such case or cases upon the dockets of the courts to which such transfer or transfers are made, and when so entered upon the docket the judge of said court shall try and dispose of said cases in the same manner as if such cases were originally in said court. [Acts 1903, p. 3.] The clerk of the district court of Grayson county, as heretofore constituted, and his successor in office, shall be the clerk of both the fifteenth and fifty-ninth district courts in said Grayson county, and shall perform all the duties pertaining to the clerkship of both of said courts.

16. The sixteenth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Denton, Montague and Cooke, and the district courts shall be held therein as follows: In the county of Montague, on the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session six weeks. In the county of Denton, on the sixth Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session eight weeks. In the county of Cooke, on the sixteenth Monday after the first Monday in January and second Monday in July, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of.

17. Tarrant county shall constitute the seventeenth, forty-eighth and sixty-seventh judicial districts. [Acts 1907, p. 338.] The district courts of the seventeenth, forty-eighth and sixty-seventh judicial districts shall have concurrent jurisdiction throughout the limits of Tarrant county of all matters, civil and criminal, of which jurisdiction is given to the district court by the constitution and laws of the state; and grand and petit juries for said courts, respectively, shall be selected and drawn from the body of the county.

The judges for the seventeenth, forty-eighth and sixty-seventh judicial districts shall be elected by the qualified voters of Tarrant county. [Acts 1907, p. 339.] The district court of the seventeenth judicial district shall be held on the first Mondays in January, April, July and October of each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1907, S. S., p. 442.] The judges of said courts may, in their discretion, transfer any suit or case, civil or criminal, from one of said courts to any other of said courts. [Acts 1907, p. 339.] The clerk of the district court of Tarrant county shall make up a civil docket and a criminal docket for each of said courts. All cases, prosecutions and proceedings filed with the clerk shall by him be entered upon the dockets of said courts, alternately, so that the business may be equally distributed between said courts; provided, that the reference above to a civil docket in the singular number shall be taken to embrace the various civil dockets required by law to be used and kept by the clerk of the district court of Tarrant county, so as to make it incumbent upon said clerk, in dividing the civil business between said courts, as hereinbefore required, to open for each court the number and kind of dockets heretofore kept by him and to enter upon each the cases belonging to the same; provided, that all garnishment cases shall follow the cases in which they are sued out, and that such garnishment cases shall not be estimated by the clerk in dividing business. In all injunctions granted by either of said judges, the suits wherein granted shall be docketed in the court of the judge who granted such injunctions; and in all cases wherein receivers may be appointed by either of said judges, the suit wherein such receivers shall be appointed shall be docketed in the court of the judge who appointed such receivers. In causes filed in said county cognizable by the district court, it shall be sufficient for the petition to state the court in which suit is filed as "The district court of Tarrant county," and it shall be sufficient to address the petition to "The district court of Tarrant county." [Acts 1891, p. 2.] In case of a vacancy by death, resignation or removal of the clerk of the district court of Tarrant county, his successor shall be appointed by the said three district judges of said three districts. [Acts 1907, p. 339.]

In the county of Gonzales, on the first Monday in January and July, and may continue in session five weeks. [Acts 1907, p. 37.]

26. The twenty-sixth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Williamson and Travis, and the terms of the district court of said district shall be held hereafter therein as follows:

In the county of Williamson, on the first Monday in February and June, and may continue in session five weeks, and on the first Monday in November, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Travis, on the third Monday in March and may continue in session to and including the last Saturday in May; and on the third Monday in September and may continue in session to and including the last Saturday in October, and on the first Monday in December and may continue in session to and including the last Saturday in January, provided, that a grand jury for said court in Travis county shall not be drawn except for the December term of said court, unless the district judge should deem it necessary to call a grand jury at the other terms, and should so order.

The two district courts in Travis county shall have concurrent jurisdiction with each other throughout the limits of Travis county of all matters civil and criminal of which jurisdiction is given to district courts by the constitution and the laws of the state of Texas; provided, that the district judge of the fifty-third judicial district shall order drawn or selected a grand jury for the October and May terms of said court, and for the other terms if in his judgment he thinks it necessary, and should so order.

The clerk of the district court of Travis county, as heretofore constituted, and his successors in office, shall be the clerk of both the district courts of Travis county, and shall perform all the duties pertaining to both of said courts.

Either of the judges of said district courts in and for Travis county may in their discretion transfer any cause, or causes, civil or criminal, that may at any time be pending in his court to the other district court in Travis county by an order or orders entered upon the minutes of his court, and where such transfer or transfers are made the clerk of the district court of Travis county shall enter such cause or causes upon the docket of the court to which such transfer or transfers are made, and when so entered upon the docket, the judge of said court shall try and dispose of said causes in the same manner as if such causes were originally instituted in said court.

All writs, process, bonds and recognizances civil and criminal issued, executed or entered prior to the taking effect of this Act and returnable to terms of said courts heretofore fixed by law in the two counties composing said district, are hereby made returnable to the next ensuing term of said court as fixed by this Act, and shall be as valid and binding as if no change had been made in the time of holding said courts, and all grand and petit juries, drawn and selected under existing laws shall be as valid as if no change had been made in the time of holding said courts, and, provided that grand and petit jurors drawn and selected under existing laws shall be required to appear and serve at the next ensuing term of said courts as fixed by this Act and their acts shall be as valid at the next ensuing term of said courts in each of said districts as provided by this Act, as they would have been under existing law if no change had been made in the time of holding said courts.

Should either of said courts be in session under existing law when this Act takes effect the same shall come to an end under such existing law, and its process, writs, orders, judgments and decrees shall be valid and shall not be affected by the change in the terms of said courts made by this Act. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 15, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 26.

27. That the twenty-seventh judicial district of this state shall be composed of the counties of Bell, Lampasas and Mills, and the terms of the court shall be holden therein each year as follows:

In the county of Bell on the first Monday in January, June and November, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of.

In the county of Lampasas on the first Monday in April and September, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Mills on the first Monday in May and October, and may continue in session four weeks. [Acts 1913, p. 115, sec. 1.]

That all process issued or served before this Act goes into effect, returnable to the district court of said judicial districts, [twenty-seventh and thirty-fifth] shall be returnable to said courts as fixed by the terms of this Act and said process is hereby legalized and validated; and all grand and petit jurors selected and drawn under existing laws in any of the courts of said judicial districts, shall be considered lawfully drawn and selected for the next term of the district court of the respective counties held after this Act takes effect; and all appearance bonds and recognizances taken in and for said courts shall bind the parties therein obligated to appear at the next terms of said court held under this Act. [Id., sec. 3.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act shall be and the same are hereby repealed; provided, however, that in the event any term of the district court in any of the counties herein affected be in session when this Act takes effect, the same shall in no manner affect said term of court, but the same shall continue in session under the old law for said term, and this Act shall only affect subsequent terms of court in said county. [Id., sec. 4.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subds. 27, 35, and Acts 1911, p. 20, providing for the reorganization of the thirty-fifth judicial district.

28. The twenty-eighth judicial district of the state of Texas shall be composed of the counties of Starr, Hidalgo, Cameron, Willacy, Nueces, Jim Wells, Duval, Brooks, Kleberg and Jim Hogg, and the district court shall be begun and holden in the said counties as follows:

In the county of Starr on the second Monday in March and the second Monday in October of each year and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Hidalgo on the second Monday after the second Monday in March and October of each year, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Cameron on the fourth Monday after the second Monday in March and October of each year and may continue in session five weeks.

In the county of Willacy on the ninth Monday after the second Monday in March and October of each year and may continue in session one week.

In the county of Kleberg on the tenth Monday after the second Monday in March and October of each year and may continue in session one week.

In the county of Brooks on the eleventh Monday after the second Monday in March and October in each year and may continue in session one week.

In the county of Jim Hogg on the twelfth Monday after the second Monday in March and October in each year and may continue in session one week.

In the county of Duval on the thirteenth Monday after the second Monday in March and October of each year and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Jim Wells on the fifteenth Monday after the second Monday in March and October of each year and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Nueces on the seventeenth Monday after the second Monday in March and October of each year and may continue in session for five weeks. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 14, sec. 1.]

Special acts fixing apportionment.—Acts S. S. 1913, p. 86, creating Dunn county, places such county in the 28th judicial district.

This act supersedes Acts 1913, p. 14, placing Kleberg county in the 74th judicial district.

All process, writs and bonds issued prior to the taking effect of this Act, and returnable to the terms of said court, as heretofore fixed by law in the several counties composing the said district are hereby made returnable to the terms of said court in the several counties as fixed by this Act; and all process heretofore returnable, as well as all bonds and recognizances heretofore entered into, in any of said courts, shall be as valid and binding as if no change had been made by this Act in the time of holding said terms of court. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 15, sec. 2.]

All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 28, Acts 1911, p. 48, and Acts 1911, S. S., p. 97.

29. The twenty-ninth judicial district of Texas shall be composed of the counties of Palo Pinto, Hood, Somervell and Erath, and the district courts shall be held as follows: In the county of Palo Pinto, on the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session six weeks. In the county of Hood, on the sixth Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session five weeks. In the county of Somervell, on the eleventh Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Erath, on the thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session until all the business is disposed of. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 390.]

30. The thirtieth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Young, Archer, Clay and Wichita, and terms of the district court shall be held therein each year as follows: In the county of Young, on the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session four weeks. In the county of Archer, on the fourth Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session three weeks. In the county of Clay, on the seventh Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session six weeks. In the county of Wichita, on the thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session until the business of the term is disposed of. [Acts 1903, p. 96.]

31. The thirty-first judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Hemphill, Roberts, Carson, Hutchinson, Wheeler, Gray, Ochiltree, Hansford and Lipscomb, and the terms of the district court shall be holden each year therein as follows:

Beginning in Hemphill county on the second Monday in January and August in each year, and may remain and continue in session for four weeks.

Beginning in Roberts county on the fourth Monday after the second Monday in January and August in each year, and may continue in session two weeks.

Beginning in Carson county on the sixth Monday after the second Monday in January and August in each year, and may continue in session two weeks.

Beginning in Hutchinson county on the eighth Monday after the second Monday in January and August in each year, and may continue in session one week.

Beginning in Wheeler county on the ninth Monday after the second Monday in January and August in each year, and may remain in session two weeks.

Beginning in Gray county on the eleventh Monday after the second Monday in January and August in each year, and may continue in session two weeks.

Beginning in Ochiltree county on the thirteenth Monday after the second Monday in January and August in each year, and may continue in session one week.

Beginning in Hansford county on the fourteenth Monday after the second Monday in January and August in each year, and may continue in session for one week.

Beginning in Lipscomb county on the fifteenth Monday after the second Monday in January and August in each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1911, p. 99, sec. 1.]

That all process and writs issued out of the district courts of said counties prior to the taking effect of this Act are hereby made returnable to the terms of said courts as the said terms are fixed by this Act, and all bonds executed and recognizances entered of record in said courts shall bind the parties for their appearance or to fulfill the obligation of such bonds and recognizances at the terms of said courts as they are fixed by this Act, and all process heretofore returned to, as well as all bonds and recognizances heretofore taken in any of said courts shall be valid, or as valid as if no change had been made in the time of holding said courts. [Id. sec. 2.]

Should any district court in said thirty-first district be in session under existing laws when this act takes effect, the same shall come to an end under such existing laws, and its process, writs, judgments and decrees shall be valid and binding notwithstanding the change in the time made by this Act. [Id. sec. 3.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act, be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 4.]

This Act shall take effect and be in force from and after the first day of July, A. D. 1911, and it is so enacted. [Id. sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 31.

32. The thirty-second judicial district of the state of Texas, shall be composed of the counties of Borden, Howard, Nolan, Mitchell and Glasscock, and the terms of the district court shall be held therein, in each year, in each of the counties, as follows:

In the county of Howard on the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Borden on the fourth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Nolan on the sixth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session seven weeks.

In the county of Glasscock on the thirteenth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Mitchell on the fifteenth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session six weeks. [Acts 1913, p. 4, sec. 1.]

All processes issued or served before this Act goes into effect including recognizances and bonds, returnable to the district court of any of said counties in any of said judicial districts [thirty-second, seventieth, and seventy-second] shall be considered as returnable to said courts in accordance with the terms as prescribed by this Act, and all such process is hereby legalized and all grand and petit juries drawn and selected under existing laws, in any of the counties of any of said judicial districts shall be considered lawfully drawn and selected for the next terms of the district court for their respective counties, held in accordance with this Act, and after this Act takes effect, all such process is hereby legalized and validated; provided, that if any court in any county of any of said judicial districts shall be in session at the time this Act takes effect, such court or courts affected hereby, shall continue in session until the term thereof shall expire under the provision of existing laws, and thereafter the said courts of said county or counties shall conform to the requirements of this Act. [Id. sec. 6.]

All laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 7.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subds. 32, 70, Acts 1911, p. 212, §§ 5, 6, reorganizing the thirty-second judicial district. The seventy-second district was created by that act, and secs. 1–4 thereof are otherwise superseded by this act.

Retroactive effect of statute.—So far as Act Feb. 3, 1909 (Gen. Laws 1909, p. 10), reorganizing the thirty-second judicial district, failed to provide Borden and Mitchell counties with two terms of the district court for the year 1909, required by Const. art. 5, § 7, it is without effect, and leaves Act April 12, 1905 (Gen. Laws 1905, p. 109), in force for the first circuit of the courts, and the act of 1909 was inoperative for the spring and summer terms. Ex parte Thompson, 57 Cr. R. 437, 123 S. W. 612; Bowden v. Crawford, 103 T. 181, 125 S. W. 5; Pecos River R. Co. v. Reynolds Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 162; Felker v. Hyman (Civ. App.) Id. 1128; Smith v. State, 63 Cr. R. 183, 140 S. W. 1096.

33. That the thirty-third judicial district of this state shall be composed of the counties of Blanco, Gillespie, Mason, Kimble, Menard, San Saba, Llano and Burnet and the district courts shall be holden therein as follows:

In the county of Blanco, on the first Monday in February and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Gillespie, on the third Monday in February and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Mason on the Fourth Monday after the first Monday in February and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Kimble on the sixth Monday after the first monday in February and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Menard on the eighth Monday after the first Monday in February and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of San Saba on the tenth Monday after the first Monday in February and September, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Llano on the thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in February and September, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Burnet, on the first Monday in January, and may continue in session three weeks, and on the sixteenth Monday after the first Monday in February and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1913, p. 68, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 33.

34. The 34th judicial district of Texas, shall be composed of the counties of El Paso and Culberson, and the terms of the court shall be held in each of said counties in each year as follows, towit:

In El Paso county the first term shall begin on the first Monday in September of each year and said court may continue in session for four weeks thereafter.

In El Paso county the second term shall begin on the first Monday in November of each year, and said court may continue in session until the last Saturday before the 25th day of December of each year thereafter.

In El Paso county the third term shall begin on the first Monday in January of each year and may continue in session until the last Saturday in March thereafter.

In El Paso county the fourth term shall begin on the first Monday in May of each year and said court may continue in session until the last Saturday in June thereafter.

In Culberson county the first term of said court shall begin on the first Monday in October of each year and said court may continue in session for four weeks thereafter.

In Culberson county the second term of said court shall begin on the first Monday in April of each year and said court may continue in session for four weeks thereafter. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 17, sec. 1.]

All process and writs issued out of said district court of said counties prior to the taking effect of this Act are hereby made returnable to the terms of said court as said terms are fixed by this Act, and all bonds executed and recognizances entered of record in said courts shall bind the parties for their appearance or to the fulfillment of the obligations of such bonds and recognizances at the terms of said courts as they are fixed by this Act and all process and writs heretofore returned to, as well as all bonds and recognizances heretofore taken in said courts shall be valid, or as valid as if no change had been made in the time of holding said courts. [Id. sec. 2.]

Should the district court of said district be in session under the existing law at the time when this Act takes effect, such session of said court shall thereupon come to an end, under such existing law, and the process, writs, judgments and decrees of said court shall be valid and binding, notwithstanding the changes in the times of the sessions of said court made by this Act. [Id. sec. 3.]

All laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act shall be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 4.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 34.

35. The thirty-fifth judicial district of this state shall be composed of the following counties: Brown, Coleman, Runnels, Concho and McCulloch, and the district court shall be holden therein each year as follows:

In the county of Concho on the first Monday in February and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of McCulloch on the second Monday after the first Monday in February and September, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Runnels on the fifth Monday after the first Monday in February and September and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Coleman on the ninth Monday after the first Monday in February and September, and may continue in session five weeks.

In the county of Brown on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in February and September and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1913, p. 115, sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—Sections 3 and 4 of Acts 1913, p. 115, also relate to the thirty-fifth judicial district, and appear under subdivision 27 of this article.

36. That the thirty-sixth judicial district of Texas shall hereafter be composed of the counties of Aransas, Atascosa, Bee, Live Oak, McMullen, San Patricio, Wilson and Karnes and the district courts shall be held therein as follows:

In the county of Aransas on the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Bee on the third Monday in September and February, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of San Patricio on the sixth Monday, after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Live Oak on the eighth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session one week.

In the county of McMullen on the ninth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session one week.

In the county of Atascosa on the tenth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Wilson the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Karnes the eighteenth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session three weeks. [Acts 1913, p. 190, sec. 1.]

All writs and other process heretofore issued out of the district courts of the several counties heretofore constituting the thirty-sixth and twenty-fourth judicial districts of Texas shall be held valid to the first terms of said courts as provided for in this Act, provided, said writs are otherwise valid in law, and the clerks of said courts shall, on the taking effect of this Act, make all writs returnable to said courts as they meet under this Act. [Id. sec. 3.]

All jurors selected in any of said counties shall be legal jurors for the terms of said court fixed by this Act. [Id. sec. 4.]

The present judges and district attorneys of the said thirty-sixth and twenty-fourth judicial districts of Texas shall act as judges and district attorneys, respectively, of said districts as herein defined and composed for the terms of office for which they have been elected, and until their successors are duly qualified. [Id. sec. 5.]

It is expressly provided that this Act shall take effect and be in force on and from the first day of August, 1913. [Id. sec. 6.]

All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 7.]

37. That Bexar county shall constitute the thirty-seventh judicial district. [Acts 1911, p. 87, sec. 1.]

The judges of the thirty-seventh, forty-fifth and fifty-seventh judicial districts as heretofore existing shall be and remain judges of the respective courts as provided for in this Act, until the expiration of their respective terms of office to which they were elected, and until their successors are elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 5.]

That the jurisdiction of said district courts of Bexar county herein created by this Act shall be concurrent and shall extend with the limits of Bexar county over all cases, proceedings and matters of which district courts are given jurisdiction by the constitution and the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 7.]

The terms of the district court of the thirty-seventh judicial district shall be held as follows: One term beginning on the first Monday in October, and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in November. One term beginning on the first Monday in November, and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in January. One term beginning on the first Monday in January, and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in March. One term beginning on the first

Monday in March, and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in May. One term beginning on the first Monday in May, and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in July. The terms of the district courts of the forty-fifth, the fifty-seventh and seventy-third judicial districts, in said respective courts, shall be held as follows: One term beginning on the first Monday in October, and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in December. One term beginning on the first Monday in December, and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in February. One term beginning on the first Monday in February, and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in April. One term beginning on the first Monday in April, and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in June. One term beginning on the first Monday in June and may continue in session until the last Saturday before the first Monday in July. [Id. sec. 8.]

That all writs and process heretofore issued or that may hereafter be issued up to the time this Act shall take effect by and from said district courts and made returnable to said terms of court as now fixed by law, shall be returnable to the next ensuing terms of said courts as fixed by this Act; and all such writs and process shall be valid and legal. [Id. sec. 9.]

That the district attorney of the thirty-seventh judicial district shall be and remain the district attorney of the thirty-seventh judicial district, as herein defined, and shall also represent the state in all cases, criminal and civil, in the forty-fifth, fifty-seventh and seventy-third judicial districts, and shall be elected by the qualified voters of said thirty-seventh judicial district. [Id. sec. 10.]

The judges of said district courts may, in their discretion, or by agreement of the parties, transfer any civil suit or cause of action from one district court to another, by an order duly entered upon the minutes of the court, and when such transfer is made the clerk shall enter such case or cases upon the docket of the court to which the transfer is made. When the transfer is made by the court of its own motion, unless the parties are present in court and take notice of such transfer, reasonable notice of such order or orders shall be given to the parties or their attorney of record; provided that in cases where ancillary writs be granted by either of the judges, and transfer may be made to the court of the judge granting such writ without such notice. [Id. sec. 12.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 13.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subds. 37, 45, 57.

Transfer of causes.—By this act the three district judges of Bexar county were authorized in their discretion to transfer any case from any district court to another, and while the court that renders a judgment is the one in which to sue to set the judgment aside, yet after having been brought in that court it can be transferred to one of the other courts, and thus give the latter jurisdiction. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Brisenio (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 999.

38. That the following counties shall compose the thirty-eighth judicial district of Texas, to-wit: Kendall, Uvalde, Zavala, Medina, Bandera, Edwards, Real and Kerr, and the time of holding the district court therein shall be as follows:

In the county of Kendall, on the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Zavala, on the second Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Uvalde, on the fourth Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Medina, on the eighth Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Bandera, on the eleventh Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Edwards, on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in March and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Real, on the sixteenth Monday after the first Monday in March and on the first Monday in January, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Kerr, on the eighteenth Monday after the first Monday in March and on the third Monday in January and may continue in session three weeks. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 22, sec. 1.]

All writs, process, recognizances and bonds issued, entered into or executed prior to the taking effect of this Act and returnable to terms of court heretofore fixed by law in the several counties composing said district, are hereby made returnable to the terms of said court as fixed by this Act, and shall be as valid and binding as if no change had been made in holding said courts. [Id. sec. 2.]

All laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 38, and Acts 1911, p. 127.

39. The thirty-ninth judicial district of the state of Texas shall be composed of the counties of Jones, Fisher, Scurry, Kent, Stonewall, Haskell and Throckmorton, and the terms of the district courts therein shall be held as follows: In the county of Jones, on the first Monday in January and July of each year, and may continue in session six weeks. [Acts 1903, p. 26.] In the county of Fisher, on the third Monday after the first Monday in February and August, and may continue in session for three weeks. In the county of Scurry, on the sixth Monday after the first Monday in February and August, and may continue in session three weeks. In the county of Kent, on the ninth Monday after the first Monday in February and August, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Stonewall, on the eleventh Monday after the first Monday in February and August, and may continue in session three weeks. In the county of Throckmorton, on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in February and August, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Haskell, on the sixteenth Monday after the first Monday in February and August, and may continue in session four weeks. [Acts 1899, p. 171.]

40. The fortieth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Ellis and Kaufman and the terms of the district courts therein shall be held as follows:

One in Kaufman county beginning on the first Monday in September in each year and continuing until Saturday before the first Monday in November. One in said county beginning the first Monday in March and continuing until Saturday before the first Monday in May.

One in Ellis county beginning on the first Monday in November and continuing in session until Saturday before the first Monday in January; one in Ellis county beginning on the first Monday in January and running until Saturday before the first Monday in March; one beginning in Ellis county on the first Monday in May and continuing until Saturday before the first Monday in September unless the business can sooner be disposed of. [Acts 1913, p. 171, sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—Section 3 of this act, appearing under subdivision 14 of this article, also relates to the fortieth judicial district.

41. The forty-first judicial district of the state of Texas shall be composed of the county of El Paso, and the terms of the district court shall be held in said county as follows: Beginning on the first Monday in January in each year, and may continue in session until the first

Monday in March; on the first Monday in March of each year, and may continue in session until the first Monday in May; on the first Monday in May each year, and may continue in session until the first Monday in July; on the first Monday in September of each year, and may continue in session until the first Monday in November; on the first Monday in November of each year, and may continue in session until the first Monday in January. The district courts of the thirty-fourth and forty-first judicial districts aforesaid in El Paso county shall have concurrent jurisdiction with each other through the limits of said county of El Paso of all matters, civil and criminal, of which jurisdiction is given to the district courts by the constitution and laws of the state; provided, that the judge of the forty-first judicial district shall never impanel a grand jury in said courts, but may at any time reconvene the grand jury impaneled by the judge of the thirty-fourth judicial district when, in his judgment, a necessity therefor exists. The district attorney of the thirty-fourth judicial district shall also represent the state in all criminal cases in the forty-first judicial district. The clerk of the district court of El Paso county, as heretofore constituted, and his successors in office, shall be the clerk of both said district courts in said El Paso county, and shall perform all the duties pertaining to the office of both district courts. Either of the judges in said district courts in said El Paso county may, in their discretion, either in term time or vacation, transfer any cause or causes, civil or criminal, that may at any time be pending in his court to the other district court in said El Paso county, by order or orders entered upon the minutes of said court; and, when such transfers are made, the clerk of said courts shall enter such cause or causes upon the docket of the court to which such transfer or transfers are made, and, when so entered upon the docket, the judge of said court shall try and dispose of said cause in the same manner as if said cause was originally filed in said court. [Acts 1903, p. 78.]

42. The forty-second judicial district of Texas shall be composed of the counties of Taylor, Callahan, Shackelford, Stephens and Eastland, and the terms of district courts shall be held annually therein as follows: One term of said court in the forty-second judicial district shall begin in the county of Eastland on the first Monday in January and first Monday in July, and may continue in session eight weeks. One term shall begin in the county of Taylor on the eighth Monday after the first Monday in January and the eighth Monday after the first Monday in July, and may continue in session seven weeks. One term shall begin in the county of Shackelford on the fifteenth Monday after the first Monday in January and the fifteenth Monday after the first Monday in July, and may remain in session three weeks. One term shall begin in the county of Callahan on the eighteenth Monday after the first Monday in January and the eighteenth Monday after the first Monday in July, and may continue in session four weeks. One term shall be held in the county of Stephens on the twenty-second Monday after the first Monday in January, and on the twenty-second Monday after the first Monday in July, and may continue in session four weeks. [Acts 1903, p. 25.]

43. The forty-third judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Jack, Parker and Wise, and the terms of the district courts shall be held therein each year as follows: In the county of Jack, on the first Mondays in March and September, and may continue in session four weeks. In the county of Parker, on the fourth Mondays after the first Mondays in March and September, and may continue in session eight weeks. In the county of Wise, on the twelfth Mondays after the first Mondays in March and September, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1887, p. 68.]

44. Dallas county shall constitute the forty-fourth judicial district, as well as the fourteenth judicial district and the sixty-eighth judicial district; and the jurisdiction of the district courts, in and for said judicial districts, shall be concurrent and co-extensive with the limits of said county, but shall extend to civil cases only. The district court of the forty-fourth judicial district shall be held on the first Mondays in January, April, June and October, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1907, p. 131.]

For special provisions relating to the fourteenth, forty-fourth and sixty-eighth judicial district, see subdivision 14 of this article.

Several courts in one county.—Acts 31st Leg. c. 5, constituting Dallas county the fourteenth, forty-fourth, and sixty-eighth judicial districts, is not unconstitutional in that it creates several district courts in that county with concurrent jurisdiction. Kruegel v. Cockrell & Gray (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 352.

45. That Bexar county shall constitute the forty-fifth judicial district. [Acts 1911, p. 87, sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subds. 37, 45, 57. Sections 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 12, 13 of this act, appearing under subdivision 37 of this article, also relate to the forty-fifth judicial district.

46. The forty-sixth judicial district of the state of Texas shall be composed of the following counties, to-wit: Wilbarger, Hardeman, Foard, Collingsworth, Childress and Hall, and the terms of court shall be held therein each year as follows:

In the county of Wilbarger on the first Mondays in February and September, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Hardeman on the fourth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Foard on the eighth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Collingsworth on the tenth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Childress on the twelfth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Hall on the seventeenth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September, and may continue in session until all the business is disposed of. [Acts 1911, S. S., p. 100, sec. 1.]

That all process issued or served before this Act goes into effect, returnable to the district court in said judicial district, shall be returnable to said court as fixed by the terms of this Act; and said process is hereby legalized and validated, and all grand and petit jurors selected and drawn under existing laws in any of the counties of said judicial district shall be considered legally drawn and selected for the next term of the district court of the respective counties held after this Act takes effect, and all appearance bonds and recognizances taken in and for said court shall bind the parties therein obligated to appear at the next term of such court held under this Act. [Id. sec. 2.]

All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 46, and Acts 1911, p. 129.

47. That the forty-seventh judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Donley, Armstrong, Randall and Potter, and the terms of the district court shall be held therein from and after the first day of November, 1913, as follows:

In the county of Donley on the second Monday in January and third Monday in July, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Armstrong on the third Monday after the second Monday in January and the third Monday after the third Monday in July and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Randall on the sixth Monday after the second Monday in January and the sixth Monday after the third Monday in July, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Potter, on the tenth Monday after the second Monday in January, and on the tenth Monday after the third Monday in July, and may continue in session ten weeks; and in said county of Potter on the twentieth Monday after the second Monday in January, and the twentieth Monday after the third Monday in July, and may continue in session two weeks. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 19, sec. 1.]

That all process issued or served before this Act takes effect, including recognizances, bail bonds and appeal bonds returnable to the district court of any of the counties of said judicial district, shall be considered and held returnable to said courts in accordance with the terms as prescribed by this Act, and all process is hereby legalized; and all grand jurors and petit jurors selected and drawn under the existing laws in any of the counties of said judicial district shall be considered and held lawfully selected and drawn for the next term of the district court of the respective counties held after this Act takes effect, and all such process is hereby legalized and validated. [Id. sec. 2.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 47, and Acts 1913, p. 53.

48. Tarrant county shall constitute the forty-eighth judicial district, as well as the seventeenth judicial district and the sixty-seventh judicial district; and the jurisdiction of said district courts shall be concurrent and co-extensive with the limits of said county. [Acts 1907, p. 338.] The district court of the forty-eighth judicial district shall be held on the first Mondays in February, May, August and November of each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1907, S. S., p. 442.]

For special provisions relating to the seventeenth, forty-eighth and sixty-seventh judicial districts, see subdivision 17 of this article.

49. That the forty-ninth judicial district of Texas shall hereafter be composed of the counties of Dimmit, La Salle, Frio, Zapata and Webb, and the district courts shall be held therein as follows:

In the county of Dimmit, on the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Frio, on the fourth Monday in September and February, and may remain in session three weeks.

In the county of La Salle, on the sixth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may remain in session two weeks.

In the county of Zapata, on the ninth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may remain [in] session one week.

In the county of Webb, on the tenth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may remain in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 12, sec. 1.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 49.

50. That the fiftieth judicial district of the state of Texas shall be composed of the counties of Baylor, Knox, King, Cottle, Motley, and Dickens, and the terms of the court shall be held therein each year as follows:

In the county of Baylor on the first Mondays in January and July, and may continue in session six weeks.

In the county of Knox on the sixth Mondays after the first Mondays in January and July, and may continue in session six weeks.

In the county of King on the twelfth Mondays after the first Mondays in January and July, and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Cottle on the fourteenth Mondays after the first Mondays in January and July, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Motley on the eighteenth Mondays after the first Mondays in January and July, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Dickens on the twenty-first Mondays after the first Mondays in January and July, and may continue in session two weeks. [Acts 1911, p. 212, sec. 7.]

That all process issued or served before this Act goes into effect, including recognizances and bonds returnable to the district court in said judicial district as hereby reorganized, shall be considered as returnable to said court in accordance with the terms as prescribed by this Act, and all such process is hereby legalized and all grand and petit juries drawn and selected under the existing laws in any of the counties in said judicial district, shall be considered lawfully drawn and selected for the next term of the district court of the respective counties, held in accordance with this Act. And all such process is hereby legalized and validated; provided, that if any district court in any of the counties herein named shall be in session at the time this Act takes effect, such court or courts not defined shall continue in session until the term thereof shall expire under the provisions of existing laws, but thereafter the courts in such county or counties shall conform to the requirements of this Act. [Id. sec. 8.]

Time at which statute takes effect.—Const. art. 5, § 7, provides that at least two terms of the district court shall be held in every year in each organized county. Acts 29th Leg. c. 9, provides that a term of court shall be held in Baylor county on the first Monday in February, which may continue in session six weeks, and that a term shall begin in Knox county on the sixth Monday after the first Monday in February, which, in 1911, was March 20th. Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 107, § 7, effective March 25, 1911, which changed the time of holding terms of court in the counties of the district, a judgment was rendered at a term held in Knox county, beginning August 14, 1911, and ending September 23d. Appellant claimed that, in order to give each county, including Knox county, two terms of court during 1911, it would be necessary to proceed throughout that year under the former act of 1905, leaving the act of 1911 inoperative until the next year. Held, that to obviate such effect it would be presumed, in absence of a contrary showing, that on March 25, 1911, when the last act became effective, the February term of court had been held in Baylor county, and that the March term of Knox county convened on March 20th, and had concluded its business before March 25th and adjourned, so that the act of 1911 was operative at the judgment term. Butler v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 493.

Presumption in aid of statute.—A judgment was rendered at a term held in Knox county, beginning August 14, 1911, and ending September 23d. Appellant claimed that, in order to give each county, including Knox county, two terms of court during 1911, it would be necessary to proceed throughout that year under the former act of 1905, leaving the act of 1911 inoperative until the next year. Held, that to obviate such effect it would be presumed, in absence of a contrary showing, that on March 25, 1911, when the last act became effective, the February term of court had been held in Baylor county, and that the March term of Knox county convened on March 20th, and had concluded its business before March 25th and adjourned, so that the act of 1911 was operative at the judgment term. Butler v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 493.

51. The fifty-first judicial district of this state shall be composed of the following counties: Irion, Coke, Sterling, Crockett, Sutton, Schleicher, Reagan and Tom Green, and the terms of the district courts shall be holden therein each year as follows: In the county of Irion, on the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Coke, on the third Monday in September and February, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Sterling, on the fourth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Crockett, on the sixth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Sutton, on the eighth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Schleicher, on the tenth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Reagan, on the twelfth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Tom Green, on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in September and February, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1909, p. 56.]

52. The fifty-second judicial district of Texas shall be composed of the counties of Coryell, Hamilton and Comanche, and the terms of district courts shall be held therein as follows: In Coryell county, on the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session seven weeks. In Hamilton county, on the seventh Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session seven weeks. In Comanche county on the fourteenth Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue until business is disposed of. [Acts 1903, p. 24.]

53. The county of Travis shall constitute the fifty-third judicial district, and the district court shall be held therein as follows:

On the first Monday in October, January, March and May in each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of, provided the May term shall not continue longer than the third Saturday in July, and the October term longer than the last Saturday before the twenty-fifth of December, each year. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 17, sec. 2.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 3.]

For special provisions relating to this and the twenty-sixth district, see subdivision 26 of this article.

Explanatory.—This act is amendatory of Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 53.

54. That the fifty-fourth judicial district of Texas shall be composed of the following counties, to wit: Falls and McLennan, and the terms of the district court therein shall be held each year as follows:

In the county of Falls on the second Monday in January, and may continue in session seven weeks, and the first Monday in June, and may continue in session eight weeks.

In the county of McLennan on the first Monday in March and the third Monday in September, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1911, S. S., p. 79, sec. 1.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 54.

55. Harris county shall constitute the fifty-fifth judicial district, as well as the eleventh judicial district, and the sixty-first judicial district; and the jurisdiction of the district courts in and for said judicial districts shall be concurrent and co-extensive with the limits of said county, but in civil cases only. [Acts 1897, p. 254.] The terms of the district court of said fifty-fifth judicial district shall be begun and holden in said county of Harris on the first Monday in January, March, May, September and November of each and every year, and may continue in session until the business of the court is disposed of. [Acts 1903, p. 23.]

For special provisions relating to the eleventh, fifty-fifth and sixty-first districts, see subdivision 11 of this article.

56. Galveston county shall constitute the fifty-sixth judicial district, as well as the tenth judicial district; and the jurisdiction of the district courts, in and for said judicial districts, shall be concurrent and co-extensive with the limits of Galveston county, but shall extend to civil cases only. The terms of the district court of the fifty-sixth judicial district shall be held therein as follows: On the first Mondays in February, April, June, October and December, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1899, p. 116.]

For special provisions relating to the tenth and fifty-sixth judicial districts, see subdivision 10 of this article.

57. That Bexar county shall constitute the fifty-seventh judicial district. [Acts 1911, p. 87, sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subds. 37, 45, 57. Sections 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 12, 13 of this act, appearing under subdivision 37 of this article, also relate to the fifty-seventh judicial district.

58. Jefferson county shall constitute the fifty-eighth judicial district, and the sixtieth judicial district; and the jurisdiction of the district courts in and for said judicial districts shall be concurrent and coextensive with the limits of said county. The terms of the district court of the fifty-eighth judicial district shall be begun and holden as follows: On the third Monday in September, and may continue in session for eleven weeks; on the second Monday in December, and may continue in session for ten weeks; on the first Monday in March, and may continue in session for eight weeks; on the first Monday in May, and may continue in session until the first Saturday before the third Monday in September. [Acts 1905, p. 79, continuing in part Acts 1901, S. S., pp. 2–3; Acts 1903, p. 8.] The judges of said courts shall be elected at the time and manner provided for by law, by the qualified voters of Jefferson county. The clerk of the district court of Jefferson county shall perform the duties of the clerk of the courts of both the fifty-eighth and the sixtieth judicial districts, and, in case of vacancy in said office of said clerk, the same shall be filled by appointment by the judge of the fifty-eighth judicial district. In all suits, actions or proceedings, except criminal cases, it shall be sufficient in every instance, for the address and designation to be merely, the "district court of Jefferson county," and the clerk of the said court shall file and docket the even numbers thereof, in the court of the fifty-eighth judicial district, and the odd numbers thereof in the court of the sixtieth judicial district, but any cases pending in either of said courts may, in the discretion of the judge thereof, be transferred from one of said district courts to the other, and so on from time to time. And in case of the disqualification of the judge of either of said courts, in any case, such case on the suggestion of such judge of this disqualification entered on the docket, shall stand transferred to the other of said courts, and be docketed by the clerk accordingly. [Acts 1903, p. 9.]

59. The fifty-ninth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Collin and Grayson, and the district court shall be held therein as follows: Beginning in Grayson county, on the first Monday in December, and continuing until and including the Saturday before the first Monday in February. Beginning in Collin county, on the first Monday in February and continuing until and including the Saturday before the first Monday in April. Beginning in Grayson county, on the first Monday in April, and continuing until and including the Saturday before the third Monday in May. Beginning in Collin county, on the third Monday in May, and continuing until and including Saturday before the third Monday in July. Beginning in Grayson county, on the first Monday in August, and continuing until and including Saturday before the third Monday in September. Beginning in Collin county, on the third Monday in September, and continuing until and including the Saturday before the first Monday in December. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 393.]

60. Jefferson county shall constitute the sixtieth judicial district, as well as the fifty-eighth judicial district; and the jurisdiction of the district courts in and for said judicial districts shall be concurrent and co-extensive with the limits of said county. [Acts 1903, p. 8, sec. 1.] The terms of the district court of the sixtieth judicial district shall be begun and holden as follows: On the first Monday in October, and may continue until and including the last Saturday in November; on the first Monday in December, and may continue in session until and including the last Saturday in January; on the first Monday in February, and may continue in session until and including the last Saturday in March; on the first Monday in April, and may continue in session until and including the last Saturday in May; and on the first Monday in June, and may continue in session until and including the last Saturday in September. [Id. sec. 3.] The judge of the district court of the sixtieth judicial district, in his discretion, may have a grand jury drawn and organized for said court at any term thereof. [Id. sec. 7.]

61. Harris county shall constitute the sixty-first judicial district, as well as the eleventh judicial district, and the fifty-fifth judicial district; and the jurisdiction of the district courts, in and for said judicial districts, shall be concurrent and co-extensive with the limits of said county, but shall extend to civil cases only. The terms of the district court of said sixty-first judicial district shall be begun and holden on the third Monday in August, October, December, February, April and June of each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1903, p. 22.]

For special provisions relating to the eleventh, fifty-fifth and sixty-first judicial districts, see subdivision 11 of this article.

62. The sixty-second judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Hunt, Delta and Lamar, and the district courts shall be held therein each year as follows: In the county of Hunt, beginning on the fourth Monday after the first Monday in January, and may continue in session six weeks, and on the third Monday in May, and may continue in session ten weeks. In the county of Delta, beginning on the twelfth Monday after the first Monday in January, and may continue in session three weeks, and on the ninth Monday after the first Monday in August, and may continue in session three weeks. In the county of Lamar, beginning on the first Monday in August, and may continue in session eight weeks, and on the first Monday in December, and may continue in session until Saturday night next before the fourth Monday in January. [Acts 1905, p. 75.]

For special provisions relating to this district, and to the sixth and eighth districts, see subdivisions 6 and 8 of this article.

Constitutionality.—The act of the twenty-eighth legislature, organizing the sixty-second judicial district, held not rendered unconstitutional as a whole by the invalidity of that portion which attempts to deny to the court power to impanel juries. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall, 98 T. 480, 85 S. W. 786.

63. That the sixty-third judicial district of this state shall be composed of the counties of Jeff Davis, Presidio, Brewster, Pecos, Terrell, Val Verde, Kinney and Maverick as now constituted, and the district court shall be holden therein as follows: In Jeff Davis county, on the first Monday in January and August, and may continue in session two weeks.

In Presidio county, on the second Monday after the first Monday in January and August, and may continue in session three weeks.

In Brewster county, on the fifth Monday after the first Monday in January and August, and may continue in session three weeks.

In Pecos county, on the eighth Monday after the first Monday in January and August, and may continue in session three weeks.

In Terrell county, on the eleventh Monday after the first Monday in January and August, and may continue in session two weeks.

In Kinney county, on the thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in January and August, and may continue in session two weeks.

In Maverick county, on the fifteenth Monday after the first Monday in January and August, and may continue in session three weeks.

In Val Verde county, on the eighteenth Monday after the first Monday in January and August, and may continue until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 34, sec. 1.]

That all process issued or served before this Act takes effect, including recognizances, bail bonds and appeal bonds, returnable to the district court of any of the counties of said judicial district, shall be considered and held returnable to said courts in accordance with the terms as prescribed by this Act, and all process is hereby legalized; and all grand juries and petit juries selected and drawn under existing laws in any of the counties of said judicial district shall be considered and held lawfully selected and drawn for the next term of the district court of the respective counties held after this Act takes effect, and all such process is hereby legalized and validated. [Id. sec. 2.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 63.

64. The sixty-fourth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Hale, Floyd, Briscoe, Swisher, Castro, Lamb, and the unorganized county of Bailey, and the terms of the district court shall be held each year therein as follows:

In the county of Hale on the second Monday in January and first Monday in August, and may continue in session six weeks.

In the county of Floyd on the sixth Monday after the second Monday in January and first Monday in August, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Briscoe on the tenth Monday after the second Monday in January and first Monday in August, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Swisher on the thirteenth Monday after the second Monday in January and first Monday in August, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Castro on the seventeenth Monday after the second Monday in January and first Monday in August, and may continue in session three weeks.

In the county of Lamb on the twentieth Monday after the second Monday in January and first Monday in August, and may continue in session two weeks. [Acts 1911, S. S., p. 102, sec. 1.]

The unorganized county of Bailey is hereby attached to Castro county for judicial and all other purposes. [Id. sec. 2.]

That all process issued or served before this Act goes into effect, including recognizances and bonds returnable to the district court of any of said counties in said sixty-fourth judicial district, shall be considered as returnable to said court in accordance with the terms as prescribed by this Act, and all such process is hereby legalized, and all grand and petit juries drawn and selected under existing laws in any of the counties comprising such judicial district shall be considered as legally drawn and selected for the next term of the district court of the respective counties held after this Act takes effect, and all such process is hereby legalized and validated. [Id. sec. 3.]

That this Act shall not conflict with any of the fall terms of court now being held under the existing law. It is provided that this Act shall take effect from and after January 1, 1912. [Id. sec. 4.]

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act be, and the same are hereby, repealed, upon the taking effect of this Act. [Id. sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subd. 64, and Acts 1911, p. 212, secs. 9–11.

Repeal of statute.—Acts 1892, p. 59, remained in force by virtue of section 11 of the Final Title, notwithstanding its omission from the Revision of 1895. Phipps v. State, 36 Cr. R. 216, 36 S. W. 753; Crawford v. State (Cr. App.) 39 S. W. 373.

A term of court is properly held at the time provided in a repealed statute, where otherwise a county would be deprived of its two terms a year required by the constitution. Nobles v. State, 57 Cr. R. 307, 123 S. W. 126.

Several courts in one county.—The legislature has power to create two judicial districts in a single county. Kruegel v. Daniels, 50 C. A. 215, 109 S. W. 1108.

Acts 31st Leg. c. 5, is not unconstitutional in that it creates more than one district court with concurrent jurisdiction within a single county. Kruegel v. Cockrell & Gray (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 352.

Effect as to terms of court.—The act of 1905 also provided that terms of court should be held in Swisher county on the third Mondays after the first Mondays in January and July, and all such terms might continue in session three weeks. Acts 1909, c. 9, which repealed all conflicting laws, and provided that it should take effect August 1st, and should not conflict with any of the spring terms of court now being held under existing laws, provided that the terms of court in the county of Swisher should be held the fourth Monday after the first Monday in February and August. The indictment under which accused was convicted was returned July 27, 1909, at the regular term of the district court for Swisher county, and the court adjourned on July 30th. Held, that until August 1st, when the act of 1909 became effective, the Swisher county district court had the same authority as it did before the act was passed, so that the indictment was returned at a legally existing term of court. Lemons v. State, 59 Cr. R. 299, 128 S. W. 416.

Acts 1905, c. 9, provided that the district court should be held in Hale county on the thirteenth Mondays after the first Mondays in January and July, and might continue in session four weeks. Acts 1909, c. 9, effective August 1, 1909, provides that the terms of court for Hale county shall be held on the eighteenth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and August in each year, and may continue until the business is disposed of, and that the act should not conflict with any of the spring terms of court held under existing law. Under the act of 1905 the spring term of court for Hale county would commence in October, 1909, while, under the act of 1909, it would commence December 6th. Const. art. 5, § 7, requires the district judge to hold regular terms of his court at least twice a year in each county. Held, that section 7 did not require that each county have two complete terms of court beginning and ending within the calendar year, and the act of 1909, in connection with the act of 1905, would be construed so as to postpone the fall term of the Hale county district court for 1909, and continue it into the succeeding year in order to give the county two terms, as required by the constitution, and, when so construed, the act was valid. Id.

65. [There is no sixty-fifth judicial district.]

66. The county of Hill shall be and the same is hereby constituted the sixty-sixth judicial district. The district court in the said sixty-sixth judicial district shall be holden as follows: On the first Mondays in January, March, May, July, September and November of each year; and each term of said court shall continue in session until the Saturday before the beginning of the next succeeding term, or until all the business is disposed of. [Acts 1905, p. 37.]

67. Tarrant county shall constitute the sixty-seventh judicial district, as well as the seventeenth judicial district and the forty-eighth judicial district; and the jurisdiction of the district courts of said judicial districts shall be concurrent and co-extensive with the limits of said county. [Acts 1907, p. 338.] The district court of the sixty-seventh judicial district shall be held on the first Mondays in March, June, September and December of each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1907, S. S., p. 442.]

For special provisions relating to the seventeenth, forty-eighth and sixty-seventh judicial districts, see subdivision 17 of this article.

68. Dallas county shall constitute the sixty-eighth judicial district, as well as the fourteenth judicial district and the forty-fourth judicial district; and the jurisdiction of the district courts in and for said judicial districts shall be concurrent and co-extensive with the limits of said county, but shall extend to civil cases only. The terms of district court of the sixty-eighth judicial district shall be held as follows: Beginning on the first Mondays in February, May, September and December of each year, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1909, p. 4.]

For special provisions relating to the fourteenth, forty-fourth and sixty-eighth, see subdivision 14 of this article.

Several courts in one county.—Acts 31st Leg. c. 5, is not unconstitutional in that it constitutes Dallas county the 14th, 44th, and 68th judicial districts, thus creating in such county several courts with concurrent jurisdiction. Kruegel v. Cockrell & Gray (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 352.

69. The sixty-ninth judicial district shall be composed of the counties of Dallam, Sherman, Moore, Oldham, Hartley, Parmer and Deaf Smith, and the terms of the district courts shall be held therein each year, as follows: In the county of Sherman, on the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Moore, on the second Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Oldham, on the fourth Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Hartley, on the sixth Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Dallam, on the eighth Monday after the second Monday in January and

July, and may continue in session six weeks. In the county of Parmer on the fourteenth Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session two weeks. In the county of Deaf Smith, on the sixteenth Monday after the second Monday in January and July, and may continue in session until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1909, pp. 16, 69.]

70. The seventieth judicial district of the state of Texas shall be composed of the counties of Midland, Ector, Winkler, Andrews, Martin, Upton, Reeves and Ward, and the unorganized counties of Crane and Loving, and the terms of the district court shall be held therein, in each year, in each of the counties, as follows:

In the county of Midland on the first Mondays in February and September, and may continue in session four weeks.

In the county of Ector on the fourth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Winkler on the sixth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September, and may continue in session one week.

In the county of Andrews on the seventh Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session one week.

In the county of Martin on the eighth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Upton on the tenth Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session one week.

In the county of Reeves on the eleventh Mondays after the first Mondays in February and September and may continue in session six weeks.

In the county of Ward on the first Monday in January and on the seventeenth Monday after the first Monday in February and may continue in session three weeks. [Acts 1913, p. 4, sec. 2.]

The unorganized county of Loving is hereby attached to Reeves county for judicial and all other purposes, and the unorganized county of Crane is hereby attached to Ector county for judicial and all other purposes. [Id. sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—Sections 6 and 7 of Acts 1913, p. 4, appearing under subdivision 32 of this article, also relate to the seventieth judicial district.

71. The seventy-first judicial district is hereby created, and shall be composed of Harrison county, and the terms of the district court shall be held therein each year as follows: On the first Monday in January, March, May, July, September and November, and each term of said court shall continue in session until the Saturday before the beginning of the next succeeding term, or until all the business is disposed of. [Acts 1911, p. 93, sec. 3.]

The county attorney of Harrison county, duly elected and now acting as such, shall do and perform all the duties of county attorney and district attorney in the seventy-first judicial district herein created until the next general election, and his successor is duly elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 5.]

The governor of Texas, immediately upon the taking effect of this Act, shall appoint a suitable and legally qualified person as district judge for the seventy-first judicial district, who shall hold his office until the next general election, and until his successor is duly elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 7.]

The district court of the seventy-first judicial district shall have such jurisdiction and power as is conferred on district courts under the constitution and existing laws of Texas, and such as shall be hereafter given by law, and in addition thereto, shall have jurisdiction of all matters of a civil nature over which the county court of Harrison county, Texas, has jurisdiction, original or concurrent, and over all appeals of a civil nature from justice courts of Harrison county, Texas, appealable to the county court of said county under existing laws. [Id. sec. 9.]

The district clerk of Harrison county, duly elected and acting, shall be the clerk of the district court of said seventy-first judicial district, sitting in said county, until the next general election, and his successor is duly elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 10.]

For other provisions applicable to the seventy-first judicial district, see subdivision 2 of this article.

72. The seventy-second judicial district of the state of Texas shall be composed of the counties of Lynn, Dawson, Gaines, Yoakum, Terry, Crosby, Lubbock and Garza, and the unorganized counties of Hockley and Cochran, and the terms of the district court shall be held therein, in each year, in each of the counties, as follows:

In the county of Lynn on the first Mondays in March and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Dawson on the second Mondays after the first Mondays in March and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Gaines on the fourth Mondays after the first Mondays in March and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Yoakum on the sixth Mondays after the first Mondays in March and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Terry on the eighth Mondays after the first Mondays in March and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Crosby on the tenth Mondays after the first Mondays in March and September and may continue in session two weeks.

In the county of Lubbock on the twelfth Mondays after the first Mondays in March and September and may continue in session six weeks.

In the county of Garza on the eighteenth Mondays after the first Mondays in March and September and may continue in session three weeks. [Acts 1913, p. 4, sec. 4.]

The unorganized counties of Hockley and Cochran are hereby attached to Lubbock county for judicial and all other purposes. [Id. sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—Sections 6 and 7 of Acts 1913, p. 4, appearing under subdivision 32 of this article, also relate to the seventy-second judicial district.

Effect as to terms of court.—Where the second Monday in March came on the 13th and it was impossible to hold the first term of court under the act, the terms in the various other counties could not be held under Act 1911, each circuit of the court in a district being, in a sense, an entirety; and hence, the judge being a de jure officer, it was proper for the judge of the seventy-second district to hold court in Lubbock county according to Act 1909 (Acts 31st Leg. c. 9), which defined the sixty-fourth district, of which that county was then a part, and which provided for the holding of the terms of court on May 29th and November 27th. Quinn v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 993.

Although Act March 25, 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. c. 107), did not apply to the first term of court to be held in the counties therein, the judge appointed thereunder was a de jure officer having authority to hold court in that district at the times prescribed by the former law, applicable when the counties were parts of other districts. Id.

Operation of former statute.—As it was impossible to hold the first term of court under the act, the terms in the various other counties could not be held under Act 1911, each circuit of the court in a district being, in a sense, an entirety; and hence, the judge being a de jure officer, it was proper for the judge of the seventy-second district to hold court in Lubbock county according to Act 1909 (Acts 31st Leg. c. 9), which defined the sixty-fourth district, of which that county was then a part, and which provided for the holding of the terms of court on May 29th and November 27th. Quinn v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 993.

73. That Bexar county shall constitute the seventy-third judicial district. [Acts 1911, p. 87, sec. 4.]

The governor shall appoint a suitable person possessing the qualifications as prescribed by section 7, article 5, of the constitution, as judge of the seventy-third judicial district court as herein constituted, who shall hold such office until the next general election and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. The judges of said courts shall thereafter be elected as provided by the constitution and laws of the state for the election of district judges. [Id. sec. 6.]

When this act takes effect the clerk of the district court of Bexar county shall make up a docket for the district court of the seventy-third judicial district by placing thereon consecutively and alternately every fourth civil case from the dockets on the thirty-seventh, forty-fifth and fifty-seventh judicial districts then pending, beginning with the fourth civil case on the docket of the thirty-seventh district court, then taking the fourth civil case from the docket of the forty-fifth district court, and the fourth civil case from the docket of the fifty-seventh district court, and in the same order continuing through said dockets until all the cases thereon are exhausted; provided, that no case then on trial in either of said courts, nor any case pending on appeal, shall be transferred to the docket of the seventy-third judicial district court. The cases so transferred shall bear the same docket numbers as the new court from which they are transferred. The judges of the thirty-seventh, forty-fifth and fifty-seventh judicial district courts respectively shall make proper orders transferring from said courts to the court of the seventy-third judicial district the cases which shall have been placed upon the docket of the latter court in pursuance of this Act. [Id. sec. 11.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 30, subds. 37, 45, 57. Sections 7, 8, 9, 10, 12, and 13 of this act, appearing under subdivision 37 of this article, also relate to the seventy-third judicial district.

Art. 31. Where apportionment law amended—Rule as to return of writs and process, as to grand and petit jurors, appearance bonds and recognizances, and witnesses.—Wherever the law declaring what counties shall compose a judicial district, or the law prescribing the time or places for holding the terms of the district court of any judicial district, shall have been or may hereafter be amended, in every such case, all process and writs theretofore issued from any such district court and made returnable to a term of such court as fixed by law at the time of such issuance, shall be returnable to the next ensuing term of such court as prescribed by such amended law; and all such writs and process shall be as legal and valid as if the same had been made returnable to the term of such court as fixed by such amendment. Also all grand and petit jurors selected and drawn under theretofore existing laws in any county of any such judicial district shall be considered lawfully drawn and selected for the next term of the district court of such county as fixed by the amended law; and the obligees in all appearance bonds and recognizances taken in and for any such district court, as well as all witnesses summoned to appear before such district court under preexisting law, shall be required to appear at the next term of such court as fixed by the amended law.

Explanatory.—This article is a consolidation of the provisions on the subject, found in practically all of the Acts reorganizing judicial districts.

APPRENTICES

Art.
32. When minor may be apprenticed.
33. Minor shall not be apprenticed to what persons.
34. Duration of apprenticeship.
35. Shall not be apprenticed without notice.
36. In what county minor shall be apprenticed.
37. Obligations shall be entered into, and its conditions.
38. Minor 14 years of age may select, etc.
39. Obligation shall be approved, filed and recorded.
40. Order of court apprenticing minor.
41. Certified copy of order sufficient authority, etc.
42. Moderate chastisement may be inflicted on minor.
43. Rights of person to whom minor is apprenticed.
44. Not lawful for the apprentice to reside out of the county, etc.
45. Apprentice kept out of county over thirty days without leave, is discharged.
46. Proceedings when apprentice runs away, etc.
47. Apprentice discharged, when.
48. County judge may cause person to whom minor is apprenticed to be cited, etc.
49. Person to whom minor is apprenticed to be released, when.
50. County judge shall inquire into treatment, etc.
51. Minor may again be apprenticed, when.
52. Proceedings may be in term time or vacation, except, etc.
53. Suit upon obligation.
54. Costs shall be paid by whom.
55. No guardian of person when a minor is apprenticed.

Article 32. [23] [18] When minor may be apprenticed.—The county court may bind a minor as an apprentice—

1. When such minor is an orphan and without sufficient estate for his maintenance and education.

2. When the parents of such minor have suffered him to become a charge upon the county.

3. When the parents of such minor, not being a charge on the county, shall consent in writing to such apprenticeship, which consent shall be signed by them, and filed and entered of record in such court. [Const., art. 5, sec. 16.]

History of legislation.—The first statutory provision for the apprenticing a minor is found in the act of March 20, 1848, relating to guardians, Early Laws, art. 1913, § 44.

A general apprentice law, defining the obligations of master or mistress and apprentice, was passed October 27, 1866 (11th Leg. p. 61). See Timmins v. Lacy, 30 T. 115. This act was repealed by the act of May 13, 1871 (12th Leg. p. 90).

The constitution of 1876, article 5, section 16, conferred upon the county court jurisdiction to apprentice minors as provided by law. See Taylor v. Deseve, 81 T. 246, 16 S. W. 1008. This provision is incorporated in the amendment of 1891.

Bastard child.—The father of a bastard child living with its mother has no authority to bind such child as an apprentice without her consent. Timmins v. Lacy, 30 T. 115.

Mode and effect of apprenticeship.—A minor can only be apprenticed in court by a writing duly signed, filed and recorded. The master then becomes the guardian of the minor, and is entitled to his services. Taylor v. Deseve, 81 T. 246, 16 S. W. 1008.

Art. 33. [24] [19] Minor shall not be apprenticed to what persons.—A minor shall in no case be apprenticed to any one who is not legally competent to act as the guardian of such minor.

Art. 34. [25] [20] Duration of apprenticeship.—The duration of apprenticeship shall be until the minor, if a male, arrives at the age of twenty-one years; if a female, until she arrives at the age of eighteen years, or until she marries, if she marries before that age.

Art. 35. [26] [21] Shall not be apprenticed without notice.—A minor shall not be apprenticed without citation in the same manner as is provided in the case of an application for the guardianship of a minor.

Art. 36. [27] [22] In what county minor shall be apprenticed.—A minor shall be apprenticed in the county in which he resides, and shall not be apprenticed to any person who is not at the time a resident of such county.

Art. 37. [28] [23] Obligation shall be entered into and its conditions.—The person to whom such minor is apprenticed shall enter into an obligation in writing, payable to such minor, in the sum to be fixed by the county judge, not less than one thousand dollars, and to be approved by such county judge, conditioned—

1. That he will furnish said minor sufficient food and clothing.
2. That he will treat said minor humanely.
3. That he will teach, or cause to be taught, to said minor some trade or occupation, the same to be specified in such obligation.
4. That he will furnish said minor medicine and medical attention when necessary.
5. That he will, if practicable, send said minor to school at least three months in each year during the continuance of such apprenticeship, after said minor has arrived at the age of ten years, and while such minor is within the scholastic age.
6. That he will not remove said minor out of the county without the leave of the court.
7. That he will not remove said minor out of the state. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Art. 38. [29] [24] Minor 14 years of age may select, etc.—A minor who is fourteen years old, or over, may select the person to whom he desires to be apprenticed; and the court shall, if such person be competent, apprentice the minor to the person so selected.

Art. 39. [30] [25] Obligation shall be approved, filed and recorded.—The obligations provided for by article 37, when approved by the court, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court and recorded upon the minutes of the court.

Art. 40. [31] [26] Order of the court apprenticing minor.—When such obligation has been approved and filed, the court shall enter an order upon the minutes, reciting the fact that such obligation has been approved and filed, and directing that the same be recorded in the minutes, and authorizing the person to whom such minor is apprenticed to take charge and control of the person of such minor, and to retain the same until such minor arrives at the age of twenty-one years; or, if a female, until she arrives at the age of eighteen years, or until she marries, if she marries before that age; and the age of such minor at the time of entering such order shall be distinctly stated in such order.

Art. 41. [32] [27] Certified copy of order sufficient authority, etc.—A certified copy of such order, under the seal of the court, shall be sufficient evidence of the authority of the person named therein to control the person of such minor.

Art. 42. [33] [28] Moderate chastisement may be inflicted on minor.—The person to whom a minor has been apprenticed shall have the right, in the management and control of such minor, to inflict such moderate corporal chastisement as may be necessary and proper.

Art. 43. [34] [29] Rights of persons to whom minor is apprenticed.—The person to whom a minor has been apprenticed shall have the right to control the person of such minor, and shall be entitled to his services, and to all the profits arising from any such service during the continuance of such apprenticeship.

Art. 44. [35] [30] Not lawful for apprentice to reside out of the county, etc.—It shall not be lawful for any apprentice to reside out of the county in which he has been apprenticed without the order of the county judge of such county, entered upon the minutes of the court. When such leave is obtained, a certified copy of the order granting the same shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which the future residence of the minor is to be, together with a certified copy of the obligation and order apprenticing such minor; and the same shall be filed and recorded upon the minutes of the county court of such last named county; and thereafter such court shall have the same power and control over the case as if it had been originally commenced therein.

Art. 45. [36] [31] Apprentice kept out of county over thirty days without leave is discharged.—When an apprentice has been removed out of the county in which he was apprenticed, by the person to whom he was apprenticed, or with the knowledge or consent of such person, and without an order authorizing such removal, as provided in the preceding article, and shall be detained out of said county for more than thirty days, such apprentice shall not be held bound for a further compliance with his apprenticeship, and can only be retained at the pleasure of such apprentice.

Art. 46. [37] [32] Proceedings when apprentice runs away, etc.—If any apprentice shall run away from or leave the employment of the person to whom he is apprenticed without permission, such person may pursue and recapture such apprentice and bring him before the county judge having jurisdiction of the case, who shall investigate the case; and if satisfied that said apprentice ran away or left the employment of such person without good and sufficient cause, he shall order such apprentice to return to his service; and upon his failure or refusal to do so the court may punish him as for contempt of court.

Art. 47. [38] [33] Apprentice discharged when, etc.—Upon the investigation provided for in the preceding article, if the court be satisfied that such apprentice had good and sufficient cause for running away from or leaving the employment of the person to whom he was apprenticed, the court shall discharge said apprentice and revoke all authority granted to the person to whom such minor was apprenticed, and shall enter an order to that affect upon the minutes.

Art. 48. [39] [34] County judge may cause person to whom minor is apprenticed to be cited, etc.—The county judge may, upon the complaint of the minor or any other person, or without complaint, cause the person to whom a minor has been apprenticed to be cited to appear before him at any time and place mentioned in such citation, and show cause why his authority over such minor should not be revoked and the minor discharged from his apprenticeship. And upon the return of such citation served, the judge, if satisfied that such person is incompetent from any cause to properly control such minor, or that such person has in any material respect violated the obligation entered into by him, shall enter an order upon the minutes revoking such authority granted to such person over such minor, and discharging such minor from such apprenticeship.

Art. 49. [40] [35] Person to whom minor is apprenticed may be released, when.—A person to whom a minor has been apprenticed may at any time, upon good cause shown to the county judge, be released from future liability upon his obligation of apprenticeship; and in such case an order shall be entered upon the minutes revoking the authority of such person over such minor, and declaring such apprenticeship at an end.

Art. 50. [41] [36] County judge shall inquire into treatment, etc.—The county judge shall, from time to time, inquire into the treatment of the minors apprenticed by him, or by his predecessors in office, and shall defend them from all cruelty, neglect, breach of contract or misconduct on the part of the persons to whom they are apprenticed.

Art. 51. [42] [37] Minor may be again apprenticed, when.—When the person to whom a minor has been apprenticed dies, or when his authority has been revoked the minor may be again apprenticed as in the first instance.

Art. 52. [43] [38] Proceedings may be in term time or vacation, except, etc.—The proceedings provided for in the preceding articles of this title may be had either in term time or in vacation, except that a minor shall be apprenticed only at a regular term of the court for probate business, and after notice as in the case of the appointment of a guardian.

Art. 53. [44] [39] Suit upon obligation.—In case of a breach of the obligation on the part of the person to whom a minor has been apprenticed, the minor, or the county judge, or any person for the use of the minor, may sue upon such obligation in any court of the county where such obligation, or certified copy thereof, has been filed and recorded, having jurisdiction of the amount claimed, and shall be entitled to recover such damages as the minor may have sustained by reason of such breach; and all such damages shall be the property of such minor.

Damages for breach of obligation.—In a suit by a ward against his master, brought after his majority, he alleged that he had been compelled to labor at hard work during his minority, and had grown up illiterate, and barely able to read or sign his name, and also that he had been insufficiently clothed, and his life thereby endangered. A verdict and judgment for $2,220 was affirmed on appeal. Kuhlman v. Blow, 31 T. 628.

Art. 54. [45] [40] Costs shall be paid by whom.—In all proceedings apprenticing a minor, or discharging him from apprenticeship, and in all other proceedings connected with such apprenticeship, the person to whom such minor was apprenticed shall pay the costs of such proceedings, and the same shall be adjudged against him and collected as in other cases, except in a suit brought under the preceding article, in which case the costs shall be adjudged as in other civil suits.

Art. 55. [46] [41] No guardian of person when minor is apprenticed.—When a minor is apprenticed, the person to whom such minor is apprenticed supplies the place of the guardian of the person of such minor, and in such case there shall be no guardian of the person of such minor.

ARBITRATION

Chap.
1. Arbitration in General.

Chap.
2. Arbitration of Grievances Between Employer and Employed.

CHAPTER ONE

ARBITRATION IN GENERAL

Art.
56. Right to arbitrate.
57. Agreement to be in writing and name of arbitrators, etc.
58. Agreement to be filed in court having jurisdiction.
59. Day of trial to be designated by justice or clerk, etc.
60. Oath of arbitrators.
61. Continuances permissible.
62. Procedure on trial.
63. Award to be written out, filed and entered as judgment.
64. Umpire to be selected in case of disagreement.
65. Appeal from an award.
66. Procedure in case of an appeal.
67. Costs.
68. Penalty for refusing to proceed.
69. Corporations, executors, etc., may arbitrate.
70. Right to other mode of arbitration not affected.

Article 56. [47] [42] Right to arbitrate.—All persons desiring to submit any dispute, controversy, or right of action supposed to have accrued to either party, to arbitration, shall have the right so to do in accordance with the provisions of this title. [Const., art. 16, sec. 13.]

Necessity of consent of parties.—The power conferred under this and succeeding articles is purely statutory, and is dependent upon the consent of the parties to the proceeding. If there is no agreement binding upon all parties to the submission, and especially if there be necessary parties to a suit to determine the issues who do not join, or if the arbitrators attempt to decide matters not submitted, the award is void. Fortune v. Killebrew, 23 S. W. 976, 86 T. 172.

A principal held not bound by an award on submission by his agent without authority, though he knew of the pendency of the arbitration. Heard v. Clegg (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1145.

Where the interest of a deceased partner in a firm is community property of himself and his widow, and there is no necessity for administration on his estate, the widow, as survivor of the community, may enter into an agreement for arbitrating the matter, without joining her minor children. Chambers v. Ker, 6 C. A. 373, 24 S. W. 1118. And in an action on the award defendant cannot, under an answer denying the agreement to arbitrate, show that the arbitration was void, because some of the parties interested were minors. Chambers v. Ker, 6 C. A. 373, 24 S. W. 1118.

An agreement to arbitrate a dispute as to the interest of a deceased partner in a firm, entered into between his widow and the surviving partner, cannot be repudiated by the latter because it does not bind the deceased's minor children, since a minor's contract is voidable only at his option. Chambers v. Ker, 6 C. A. 373, 24 S. W. 1118.

Partial submission.—One of several matters in controversy may be submitted to arbitration. Dockery v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 270.

Matters proper for and validity of arbitration.—A contract which makes a certain person a final arbitrator of all disputes that may arise under it cannot oust the court of jurisdiction. Florida Athletic Club v. Hope Lumber Co., 18 C. A. 161, 44 S. W. 10.

Proof that a controversy about a deed had been submitted to arbitration held properly excluded. Royals v. Lacey (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1062.

It is not necessary that a person should have a legal cause of action against another to authorize a submission to arbitration. Houston Saengerbund v. Dunn, 41 C. A. 376, 92 S. W. 429.

It is competent for the parties to submit matters in dispute between them to arbitration without any special reference to questions of law. Id.

Differences arising under building contract.—Under the complaint in an action by contractors for breach of contract, a certain controversy between the contractors and the owner held to be a proper subject for arbitration. McClellan v. McLemore (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 224.

An award under a building contract, providing for the arbitration of all differences, is valid both at common law and under the statute; it appearing that the contract was not made with intent to oust the courts of jurisdiction and that the award was bona fide. Bell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 953.

Pending causes.—A pending cause may be referred to arbitration. Green v. Franklin, 1 T. 497; Hall v. Little, 11 T. 404. See Fortune v. Killebrew, 23 S. W. 976, 86 T. 172.

In the absence of clear and specific averment, it will not be assumed that an agreement that a verdict might be returned by a majority of the jurors, and that judgment might be entered thereon, was intended to oust the court of its jurisdiction to set aside the judgment at that term, and grant a new trial. Philadelphia Underwriters Agency of F. Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Brown (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 899.

Where parties to a pending suit agree in writing to have their rights to land determined by one man, named by them, by whose award they agree to abide, though the arbitration cannot be sustained as one made under the statute, yet the courts will give full effect to the award. Myers v. Easterwood, 60 T. 107.

—— Number of arbitrators concurring.—The parties to a suit for slander and to a suit for trespass made a written agreement, submitting the matter in controversy to six arbitrators, by whose decision they agreed to abide, under a penalty. Five of these arbitrators signed an award, which was filed in court. It was held that the agreement was not in compliance with the statute, and the award could not be made the judgment of the court; that the award, not having been made by all of the arbitrators, was void at common law and would not support an action. Owens v. Withee, 3 T. 161.

—— Objections for defects in pleadings.—In a pending suit, after service and before answer, it was agreed that all matters in controversy should be submitted to aribtration according to the statutes. Each party named an arbitrator, but there was no agreement as to choosing an umpire. The right of appeal was not reserved. It was objected to the award, first, that offsets and claims had been allowed in favor of defendant, no answer having been filed. Without ruling upon the question as to the necessity of pleadings, the court held that the objection, not having been made before the arbitrators, and it not appearing that the party was surprised or injured by the admission of evidence, was not well taken. The court say, if the appellant was surprised by the evidence, he should have applied for a postponement, and if denied, and it appeared that injustice had been done, the award would have been set aside. McHugh v. Peck, 29 T. 141.

—— Waiver of award.—Pending suit, the parties entered into an agreement to arbitrate, but not in conformity with the statute. The award having been filed, a motion was made to set aside, upon which there was no action of the court. The case was continued by consent, with an agreement to try at the next term, and the case was accordingly tried. The award not having been offered in evidence, it was held to have been waived by the proceedings subsequent thereto. Cox v. Giddings, 9 T. 44.

—— Proceedings after award.—A judgment was entered on an award of arbitrators in a pending suit. Entries show that subsequent to the judgment the case was continued by consent; that a rule for cost was made and complied with; that both parties amended their pleadings; that a demurrer was sustained to the petition, and that an amended petition was filed; that a trial was then had and a verdict and judgment for defendant. Held, that all the proceedings subsequent to the judgment on the award were coram non judice and void. Taylor v. Harris, 16 T. 574.

—— Failure of arbitrators to agree.—In a pending suit an agreement to arbitrate in accordance with the statute was filed. An entry was thereupon made dismissing the suit as per agreement filed and judgment was rendered in favor of defendant for cost. At the same term the arbitrators filed their award in favor of the plaintiff, which was afterwards set aside on the application of the defendant, and the case referred back to the same arbitrators. The arbitrators failed to agree and declined to re-investigate the cause, and so certified to the clerk. The plaintiff then moved to set aside the judgment of dismissal and reinstate the case. Held, that the motion should have been granted and the cause disposed of in the ordinary course. Johnson v. Cheney, 17 T. 336.

Arbitration favored.—Arbitrations are favored, and every reasonable intendment will be indulged in to support them. Hill v. Walker (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1159.

Art. 57. [48] [43] Agreement to be in writing and name arbitrators, etc.—Such persons shall sign an agreement in writing, as plaintiff and defendant, to arbitrate their differences or matters in dispute, and in such agreement each party shall name for himself one arbitrator, who shall be over the age of twenty-one years, not related to either party by consanguinity or affinity, possessing the qualifications of a juror, and who is not interested in the result of the cause to be submitted for his decision. [Act April 25, 1846, p. 127. P. D. 60–63.]

Necessity of writing.—If a person submits verbally to arbitration a promise to pay another's debt he is not bound by it, and not liable on the award. Bryant v. Ellis Adm'r., 20 C. A. 298, 49 S. W. 234.

Form of agreement.—Neither pleadings nor process is necessary. A substantial compliance with the statute is all that is required; and an agreement to arbitrate which describes the parties, the subject-matter, selects arbitrators and provides for the election of an umpire is sufficient. Alexander v. Mulhall, 1 U. C. 764; McHugh v. Peck, 29 T. 145.

Binding effect on all parties concerned.—An award is binding on the parties having legal capacity, though others of the parties were femes covert or infants. Fortune v. Killebrew (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 986.

An arbitration between a widow and the surviving partner cannot be repudiated on the ground that her minor children are not bound. Chambers v. Ker, 24 S. W. 1118, 6 C. A. 373.

Relationship of arbitrator to party.—An award made by an arbitrator whose nephew married a sister of one of the principals is not invalid either under the common law or the statute, because of the relationship, for the statute has reference to affinity in the third degree. Bell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 953.

Attorney as arbitrator.—The parties to a suit agreed to submit it to two arbitrators, and stipulated that they should proceed as prescribed by statute. Being unable to agree, the arbitrators appointed an umpire, the written appointment reciting that it was done pursuant to statute; and the umpire and one of the arbitrators, the other disagreeing, filed an award. Held, that the award was statutory, though one of the parties chose his attorney as arbitrator, and the other party a person who afterwards appeared as attorney for him. Brulay v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 647.

Art. 58. [49] [44] Agreement to be filed in court having jurisdiction.—If the amount in dispute is two hundred dollars or less, exclusive of interest, such agreement shall be filed with some justice of the peace of the county in which the defendant resides or in which the controversy arose. If the matter in dispute exceeds two hundred dollars, exclusive of interest, then such agreement shall be filed with the clerk of the district or county court of the county in which the controversy arose, according as the amount involved or matter in dispute may come within the jurisdiction of one court or the other. [Act April 25, 1846, p. 127. P. D. 60-63.]

Art. 59. [50] [45] Day of trial to be designated by justice or clerk, etc.—When such agreement is filed, the justice of the peace or the clerk of the county or district court, as the case may be, shall forthwith designate a day for the trial of the cause, not less than two days thereafter, and shall issue process for such witnesses as either party may desire, returnable on the day fixed for trial. [Id. sec. 5. P. D. 62.]

Filing agreement—Waiver.—Filing the agreement with the clerk before the arbitration and his presiding at the trial may be waived. Alexander v. Mulhall, 1 U. C. 764.

Designation of day of trial.—An award was made under an agreement not reserving the right of appeal. A party objected to entering the award as the judgment of the court, because it did not appear that the clerk had appointed a day for the hearing before the arbitrators. The award recited "that due notice had been given two full days." Held that, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the presumption is that notice had been properly given. Offeciers v. Dirks, 2 T. 468; Green v. Franklin, 1 T. 497.

—— Waiver of objection.—The requirement that the clerk should designate a day for the trial is directory only, and is waived by a failure to make the objection when the arbitrators are about to proceed with the trial, or, if the party was not then present, by failure to make the objection to the entry of judgment on the award. Hall v. Morris, 30 T. 280.

If the record does not show affirmatively that the parties had notice of the time and place of the meeting of the arbitrators, no exception being taken in the court below, the appellate court will presume notice was given. McHugh v. Peck, 29 T. 141; Hooper v. Brinson, 2 T. 185.

Art. 60. [51] [46] Oath of arbitrators.—On the assembling of the arbitrators on the day of trial, the justice or clerk shall administer an oath to each, substantially as follows: "You do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you will fairly and impartially decide the matter in dispute between A B, the plaintiff, and C D, the defendant, according to the evidence adduced and the law and equity applicable to the facts proved. So help you God." [Id. sec. 5. P. D. 64.]

Necessity of oath—Waiver.—The arbitrators and umpire must be sworn. A city attorney without special authority cannot waive this requirement of the statute. Anderson v. City of Ft. Worth, 83 T. 107, 18 S. W. 483.

Art. 61. [52] [47] Continuances permissible.—After being sworn, the arbitrators may, for good cause shown, continue the hearing to some other day, and during the progress of any trial, for like good cause, may adjourn the same over to some other time.

Allowance of time to prepare for trial.—Proper notice should be given to the parties, and sufficient time allowed to procure the necessary evidence. Green v. Franklin, 1 T. 497.

Surprise.—If the appellant were surprised by any matter of evidence introduced by the appellee before the arbitrators, and he was not prepared to meet the claim presented by the appellee, but believed he could do so by having time, he should have applied to have the decision of the arbitrators postponed till he could procure testimony to rebut the claim improperly set up by the defendant. McHugh v. Peck, 29 T. 141.

Art. 62. [53] [48] Procedure on trial.—The justice or clerk shall administer the necessary oath to the witnesses, and the trial of the cause shall proceed in like manner with trials in the courts of this state, the plaintiff holding the affirmative, and entitled to open and conclude the argument.

Refusal to receive evidence.—A charge that a referee refused to hear evidence offered by one of the parties, without stating the materiality of the evidence, and what it was, is bad on exception. A report made by a referee stands upon the same footing as the verdict of a jury. Elder v. McLane, 60 T. 383.

Admissibility of evidence.—On an arbitration as to the damages from delay in performance of a written contract, the mere hearing of verbal testimony, though inducing a wrong conclusion, was not a gross mistake unless such conclusion would not otherwise have been arrived at. Slaughter v. Crisman & Nesbit (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 205.

Defense of usury.—Arbitrators, being judges chosen by the parties themselves, may disregard the defense of usury, and decide according to the justice of the case, without affecting the validity of their award, unless it be expressly stipulated in the rule of reference that the parties shall be entitled to all legal defenses. Edrington v. League, 1 T. 63, 64.

Art. 63. [54] [49] Award to be written out, filed and entered as judgment.—After hearing the evidence and arguments, if any, the arbitrators shall agree upon their award and reduce the same to writing, specifying plainly their decision, which award they shall file with the justice or clerk, as the case may be, and at the succeeding term of the court such award shall be entered and recorded as the judgment of the court, with like effect as other judgments of said court, and upon which execution may issue as on ordinary judgments. [Acts 1846, p. 127, sec. 7. P. D. 66.]

Mode of determination.—Arbitrators may disregard the defense of usury and decide according to justice and good conscience, unless legal rights and defenses are expressly reserved in the agreement. Edrington v. League, 1 T. 64; McHugh v. Peck, 29 T. 142.

Entry of judgment.—The statutory requirements must be observed to authorize the entry of a judgment. Thompson v. Seay (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 895.

—— Time of rendition.—An award not made in a pending suit cannot be entered as a judgment of the district court until a regular term, commencing after the award has been filed. Alexander v. Witherspoon, 30 T. 291.

A judgment on an award cannot be entered at the same term at which the award was filed, but must be entered at the succeeding term. Brulay v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 647.

—— Consent of parties.—Where an award is amended by consent of parties, a judgment entered thereon is good. So a judgment entered at the term at which the award was filed, reciting that the parties consented to the jurisdiction of the court, is good against a collateral attack. Fortune v. Killebrew (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 986, judgment reversed Id., 86 T. 172, 23 S. W. 976.

The consent of parties, either before or after an award, is necessary to its being made the judgment of the court; but where there is no proof to the contrary, the presumptions which always exist in favor of the regularity and correctness of judgments will be admitted to show the consent of the parties to a judgment upon an award. Edrington v. League, 1 T. 63, 64.

Conclusiveness of award.—Proceedings of arbitrators will be presumed to have been regular unless the contrary affirmatively appears. Green v. Franklin, 1 T. 497; Hooper v. Brinson, 2 T. 185; Offeciers v. Dirks, 2 T. 468; McHugh v. Peck, 29 T. 142.

In the absence of fraud, mistake or misconduct, an award will be held final and conclusive as to all matters embraced in the agreement. Gilbert v. Knight, 3 App. C. C., § 315.

An award, on adjustment of claims existing between partners, is binding on the parties thereto, in the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake. Needham v. Bythewood (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 426.

Where an award is established in an action involving the same subject-matter, the burden is on the adverse party to show facts relieving him from its legal effect. Ridgill Bros. v. Dupree (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1166.

Where a contract of sale provides that the materials shall be inspected by a specified person at the buyer's cost, the inspector is the agent of both parties, and his inspection is conclusive. Gorham v. Dallas, C. & S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 930.

Awards of arbitrators chosen by parties to a controversy are final and conclusive as to all matters embraced in the agreement in the absence of fraud, mistake, or misconduct. Sanders v. Newton, 57 C. A. 319, 124 S. W. 482.

An award held conclusive upon a certain issue. Bell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 953.

Reservation of further action by arbitrators.—To an award of arbitrators was appended the following: "We agree to correct any error that may be discovered in this settlement." Held, that this was a reservation of judicial authority to be exercised thereafter by the arbitrators, which rendered the award a nullity, and that an action could not be maintained for the recovery of the amount awarded. Hooker v. Williamson, 60 T. 524.

Parties affected by award.—Parties interested in the subject-matter in litigation, but not made parties to the suit, joined with the parties to the suit in a written agreement under the statute to arbitrate, and the district court affirming, on motion, the award rendered, adjudicated their respective interests. Held, that having become, without objection, parties to the agreement to arbitrate, they were afterwards properly regarded as parties to the suit. Shultz v. Lempert, 55 T. 273.

Objections to award.—The trial court sustained objections to an award of arbitrators. Held, on appeal, that the objections were not well taken, and judgment was reversed and rendered by the supreme court on the award. Forshey v. Railroad Co., 16 T. 516; King v. Grey, 31 T. 22.

It is no valid objection to an award that it is bad in a point not affecting the parties, if the good portion is separable from the others, and is complete in itself. Shultz v. Lempert, 55 T. 273.

Where objection is made that the arbitrators failed to find some of the issues, and that they exceeded their authority, the objection must be specific. Fortune v. Killebrew (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 986, judgment reversed Id., 86 T. 172, 23 S. W. 976.

Provision of statute that judgment on award shall be entered at the term after it was filed held not waived. Crouch v. Crouch, 30 C. A. 288, 70 S. W. 595.

Action on award.—Where the parties have proceeded under an arbitration clause so worded as to oust the courts of jurisdiction, suit must be brought on the award, and not on the contract. Florida Athletic Club v. Hope Lumber Co., 18 C. A. 161, 44 S. W. 10.

In an action on an award, where the question of limitations was in issue, but not included in the charge, held error to refuse a charge in regard to such question, whether accurate or not, as such charge called the court's attention to the question of limitations. Needham v. Bythewood (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 426.

In an action on an award made pursuant to submission to arbitration of differences between landlord and tenant, certain evidence held admissible in support of landlord's plea in reconvention. Hurst v. Funston (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 319.

In an action on an award of arbitrators, the court held required to charge that defendant was bound if he or his agent agreed to the submission. Houston Saengerbund v. Dunn, 41 C. A. 376, 92 S. W. 429.

In an action on an award of arbitrators, the court should have instructed as to the legal effect of the contract, and that, if the arbitrators considered parol evidence varying the contract, the award should be set aside. Slaughter v. Crisman & Nesbit (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 205.

Setting aside award.—Married woman held entitled to have set aside a judgment on award under agreement with husband to arbitrate property rights. Crouch v. Crouch, 30 C. A. 288, 70 S. W. 595.

Where arbitrators adopted as a rule of procedure that neither party to the controversy should be present while any other witness was testifying, but the parties were informed of the rule at the outset and acquiesced therein, it constituted no ground for a vacation of the award. Sanders v. Newton, 57 C. A. 319, 124 S. W. 482.

Charges of fraud on the part of arbitrators are not sustained by evidence relating to the merits of the controversy decided. Id.

Where, in an action for a partnership accounting, the defense was that the matters in dispute had been determined by an award of arbitrators, the fact that the jury found a verdict at variance with the award, and that the arbitrators' decision was erroneous, furnished no reason for disturbing the award, if the mistake of the arbitrators was an honest one. Id.

Art. 64. [55] [50] Umpire to be selected in case of disagreement.—If the arbitrators chosen as aforesaid can not agree, they shall select an umpire with like qualifications as themselves, or in case they disagree in the choice of an umpire, the justice or clerk shall select such umpire, and he shall be sworn in like manner as the arbitrators; and the cause may be tried anew at such time as the board of arbitration thus constituted may designate, with like proceedings as are prescribed in the preceding article. [Acts 1846, p. 127, sec. 6. P. D. 65.]

Concurrence of umpire and one arbitrator.—It is sufficient if the award is signed by one of the arbitrators originally selected and the umpire. Alexander v. Mulhall, 1 U. C. 764.

Withdrawal of party after appointment of umpire.—The arbitrators at their first meeting disagreed, an umpire was appointed by the clerk and sworn, and the board adjourned. At a subsequent meeting the defendant, his counsel and one of the arbitrators were absent, and the remaining arbitrators and umpire proceeded to take testimony for the plaintiff. The next meeting was adjourned on the application of the defendant. At a subsequent meeting the defendant applied for a continuance, and on its refusal filed a protest against the umpire sitting, which was overruled. On his motion certain testimony of the plaintiff was struck out. At the final meeting the defendant, his counsel and one of the arbitrators withdrew, and, no evidence being offered in behalf of the defendant, an award in favor of the plaintiff was made and filed with the clerk. On appeal it was held that the award was not vitiated by the action of the arbitrators. King v. Grey, 31 T. 22.

Reinvestigation after selection of third arbitrator.—That an award shows that two of the three arbitrators proceeded to investigate the claims, but thereafter selected a third arbitrator, does not invalidate the award where it does not show that the three arbitrators failed to reinvestigate the matters already gone over. Slaughter v. Crisman & Nesbit (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 205.

Waiver of objections.—Where one of the parties to an arbitration appeared and offered testimony both before and after the appointment of the third arbitrator, he waived any irregularity in the procedure by two arbitrators before the appointment of the third. Slaughter v. Crisman & Nesbit (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 205.

Art. 65. [56] [51] Appeal from an award.—If a right of appeal is not expressly reserved in the original agreement to arbitrate, no such right shall exist, but the decision of the arbitrators shall be final. But if such right of appeal is reserved, and either party desire to appeal from such decision or award, he shall file his written application to that effect with the justice or clerk, as the case may be, on or before the return day of the term of the court next thereafter. [Id. sec. 7. P. D. 66.]

Fraud or misconduct.—Notwithstanding a stipulation that there shall be no appeal, either party may by petition, setting forth the facts, object to the entry of the award as the judgment of the court on the ground of fraud, partiality, misconduct or gross mistake on the part of the arbitrators, to the manifest injury of the party complaining. Payne v. Metz, 14 T. 56; Jones v. Frosh, 6 T. 202; Forshey v. Railroad Co., 16 T. 516; Shultz v. Lempert, 55 T. 273.

A plea to set aside an award is insufficient if it fails to specifically and distinctly set out the fraud, misconduct or mistake of the arbitrators complained of. Alexander v. Mulhall, 1 U. C. 764.

Action to set aside award.—A suit may be brought to set aside a statutory award where the right of appeal was not reserved, on the ground of gross mistake or fraud. Aycock v. Doty, 1 App. C. C., § 221; Payne v. Metz, 14 T. 56; Jones v. Frosh, 6 T. 202; Forshey v. Railroad Co., 16 T. 516; Shultz v. Lempert, 55 T. 273.

In a suit to set aside an award, where it is alleged that the party in whose favor the award was rendered was insolvent, set-offs which were not embraced in the agreement to arbitrate, and not considered and determined by the award, should be allowed against the judgment to be rendered on the award. But the award will be held conclusive and final on such pleadings as to all those matters which were embraced in the arbitration agreement. Aycock v. Doty, 1 App. C. C., § 223.

Art. 66. [57] [52] Procedure in case of appeal.—When an application for appeal is filed, as prescribed in the preceding article, the same shall be noted on the docket of the court, and the opposite party served with a citation, as in ordinary cases of suit by petition. Upon return of service upon the opposite party, the cause shall stand for trial de novo as in ordinary cases.

In general.—When the right of appeal is reserved, and there has been timely application for appeal and citation properly served, the cause stands for trial as if no agreement to arbitrate had been made. Shultz v. Lempert, 55 T. 273.

Bill of exceptions.—When an objection is filed to an award, questions of fact involved therein are to be tried by the court, and exceptions to its ruling must be reserved by a bill of exceptions, showing the facts on which the action of the court was based. Shulte v. Hoffman, 18 T. 678.

Art. 67. [58] [53] Costs.—The arbitrators may award the costs to either party; and, if their decision or award is silent as to costs, the same shall be taxed equally against both parties.

Art. 68. [59] [54] Penalty for refusing to proceed.—After an agreement to arbitrate is filed, as prescribed in article 58, the parties thereto shall be bound to that mode of trial under the following penalties, to-wit: Such agreement may be pleaded in bar to any suit thereafter brought by a plaintiff in such agreement for the same cause of action, when such plaintiff has refused to proceed under such agreement; and said agreement may be pleaded in bar to any right claimed or defense set up by defendant in such agreement who has refused to proceed thereunder, where such right or defense existed at the time of filing such agreement. [Act 1846, p. 127.]

Bar to subsequent suit.—In a suit for the value of property in which defendant pleaded an arbitration and award the objection that the clerk failed to designate a day for trial was waived by the appearance of the party before the arbitrators, and that it was competent for the court in this suit to enter judgment on the award. Hall v. Morris, 30 T. 280.

Art. 69. [60] [55] Corporations, executors, etc., may arbitrate.—The provisions of this title shall apply to corporations as well as natural persons; and executors, administrators and guardians may also consent to an arbitration of any controversy or matter of dispute relating to or affecting their respective trusts, with the consent of the court in which such administration or guardianship is pending.

By guardian.—If the result of a submission by a guardian is beneficial to his ward, he may avail himself of it as a defense. Wiley v. Heard, 1 App. C. C., § 1204.

Art. 70. [61] [56] Right to other mode of arbitration not affected.—Nothing herein shall be construed as affecting the existing right of parties to arbitrate their differences in such mode as they may select.

Common law arbitration.—When, during the progress of a pending suit, the parties agree in writing to have their rights to land determined by one man named by them, by whose award they agree to abide, and an award in accordance with the agreement was filed in the cause, it will be enforced by the judgment of the court, though not sustainable as one under the statute. Myers v. Easterwood, 60 T. 107; Dockery v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 271.

An oral submission to arbitration, when not in conflict with the statute of frauds, is binding. Myers v. Easterwood, 60 T. 107; Faggard v. Williamson, 23 S. W. 557, 4 C. A. 337.

Arbitration statute does not invalidate all arbitrations not made in accordance therewith, but awards based on such arbitrations may be enforced as common-law awards. Hurst v. Funston (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 319.

The facts that proceedings before arbitrators were not in writing and that neither the arbitrators nor witnesses were sworn do not necessarily vitiate a common-law arbitration. Id.

A common-law arbitration is valid. Hill v. Walker (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1159.

An award held valid both under the common law and the statute. Bell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 953.

—— Proceedings of arbitrators.—Where two parties agreed, without suit, to submit the matters in controversy between them to arbitrators, and handed the papers concerning the matters of dispute to the arbitrators, telling them to take the papers and do what was right, neither party proposing to introduce testimony, and the arbitrators, after informing themselves as best they could of the facts involved, made an award, it was held that the award was entitled to the faith which belongs to a common-law award. Rector v. Hunter, 15 T. 380.

—— Presence of parties.—Where an agreement to arbitrate, not made under the statute, does not specifically provide that the parties shall be present when the award is rendered, their absence does not invalidate the award. Wiley v. Heard, 1 App. C. C. § 1203.

—— Conclusiveness.—An arbitration and award not statutory cannot be pleaded in bar of action, when the terms of the agreement had been violated by the party claiming under it, to the prejudice of the adverse party. Wiley v. Heard, 1 App. C. C., § 1205.

A common-law award is conclusive, unless invalidated by fraud, gross mistake or irregularities. It may be pleaded in bar of an action upon the original cause of action, although not performed. In such a case it would seem that the plaintiff in an action on the original demand might recover upon the award, if the latter is properly pleaded. After an award is made, neither party can revoke it without the consent of the other, and a party cannot complain of any injury resulting from his own negligence in presenting evidence. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Newman, 2 App. C. C., § 349.

Award of arbitrators in a common-law arbitration held conclusive. Ridgill Bros. v. Dupree (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1166.

An agreement that a majority of the jurors impaneled at the trial should return a verdict, and that the court should render the usual judgment thereon to have the force of a regular verdict and judgment, does not conclude the court, and it has power to set aside the verdict rendered and grant a new trial. Philadelphia Underwriters Agency of F. Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Brown (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 899.

CHAPTER TWO

ARBITRATION OF GRIEVANCES BETWEEN EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYED

Art.
71. Board authorized.
72. District judge to establish board, etc.
73. If controversy involves different labor organizations, concurrent action necessary.
74. Submission must be in writing and show what.
75. Arbitrators to take oath, etc.
76. Powers and duties of chairman and board.
77. Adjudication terminates powers of board, unless, etc.
78. Status quo to be preserved pending arbitration.
79. Compensation of board, witnesses, etc.
80. Award to take effect, when.
81. Judgment to be entered, unless appeal, etc.

Article 71. [61a] Board of arbitration authorized.—Whenever any grievance or dispute of any nature, growing out of the relation of employer and employés, shall arise or exist between employer and employés, it shall be lawful, upon mutual consent of all parties, to submit all matters respecting such grievance or dispute in writing to a board of arbitrators to hear, adjudicate, and determine the same. Said board shall consist of five persons. When the employés concerned in such grievance or dispute, as the aforesaid, are members in good standing of any labor organization which is represented by one or more delegates in a central body, the said central body shall have power to designate two of said arbitrators, and the employer shall have the power to designate two others of said arbitrators; and the said four arbitrators shall designate a fifth person as arbitrator, who shall be chairman of the board. In case the employés concerned in any such grievance or dispute, as aforesaid, are members in good standing of a labor organization which is not represented in a central body, then the organization of which they are members shall designate two members of said board; and said board shall be organized as hereinbefore provided; and in case the employés concerned in any such grievance or dispute, as aforesaid, are not members of any labor organization, then a majority of said employés, at a meeting duly held for that purpose, shall designate two arbitrators for said board; and said board shall be organized as hereinbe-fore provided; provided, that when the two arbitrators shall have been selected by each of the respective parties to the controversy, the district judge of the district having jurisdiction of the subject matter shall, upon notice from either of said arbitrators that they have failed to agree upon the fifth arbitrator, appoint said fifth arbitrator. [Acts 1895, p. 85, sec. 1.]

Art. 72. [61b] District judge to establish board, etc.—Any board, as aforesaid selected, may present a petition in writing to the district judge of the county where such grievance or dispute to be arbitrated may arise, signed by a majority of said board, setting forth in brief terms the facts showing their due and regular appointment, and the nature of the grievance or dispute between the parties to said arbitration, and praying the license or order of such judge establishing and approving of said board of arbitration. Upon the presentation of said petition, it shall be the duty of said judge, if it appear that all requirements of this law have been complied with, to make an order establishing such board of arbitration and referring the matters in dispute to it for hearing, adjudication and determination. The said petition and order, or a copy thereof, shall be filed in the office of the district clerk of the county in which the arbitration is sought. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 73. [61c] If controversy involves different labor organizations, concurrent action is necessary.—When a controversy involves and affects the interests of two or more classes or grades of employés belonging to different labor organizations, or of individuals who are not members of a labor organization, then the two arbitrators selected by the employés shall be agreed upon and selected by the concurrent action of all such labor organizations, and a majority of such individuals who are not members of a labor organization. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 74. [61d] Submission must be in writing and must show what.—The submission shall be in writing, shall be signed by the employer or receiver and the labor organization representing the employés, or any laborer or laborers to be affected by such arbitration who may not belong to any labor organization, shall state the question to be decided, and shall contain appropriate provisions by which the respective parties shall stipulate as follows:

1. That pending the arbitration the existing status prior to any disagreement or strike shall not be changed.
2. That the award shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which said arbitration is held, and shall be final and conclusive upon both parties, unless set aside for error of law, apparent on the record.
3. That the respective parties to the award will each faithfully execute the same, and that the same may be specifically enforced in equity so far as the powers of a court of equity permit.
4. That the employés dissatisfied with the award shall not, by reason of such dissatisfaction, quit the service of said employer or receiver before the expiration of thirty days, nor without giving said employer or receiver thirty days written notice of their intention so to quit.
5. That said award shall continue in force as between the parties thereto for the period of one year after the same shall go into practical operation; and no new arbitration upon the same subject between the same parties shall be had until the expiration of said one year. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 75. [61e] Arbitrators to take oath, etc.—The arbitrators so selected shall sign a consent to act as such and shall take and subscribe an oath before some officer authorized to administer the same to faithfully and impartially discharge his duties as such arbitrator, which consent and oath shall be immediately filed in the office of the clerk of the district court wherein such arbitrators are to act. When said board is ready for the transaction of business, it shall select one of its members to act as secretary, and the parties to the dispute shall receive notice of a time and place of hearing, which shall be not more than ten days after such agreement to arbitrate has been filed. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 76. [61f] Powers and duties of chairman and board.—The chairman shall have power to administer oaths and to issue subpœnas for the production of books and papers and for the attendance of witnesses, to the same extent that such power is possessed by a court of record, or the judge thereof, in this state. The board may make and enforce the rules for its government and transaction of the business before it and fix its sessions and adjournment, and shall herein [hear and] examine such witnesses as may be brought before the board, and such other proof as may be given relative to the matter in dispute. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 77. [61g] Adjudication terminates the powers of the board, unless, etc.—When said board shall have rendered its adjudication and determination, its powers shall cease, unless there may be at the time in existence other similar grievances or disputes between the same class of persons mentioned in article 71, and in such case such persons may submit their differences to said board, which shall have power to act and adjudicate and determine the same as fully as if said board was originally created for the settlement of such difference or differences. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 78. [61h] Status quo to be preserved pending arbitration.—During the pendency of arbitration under this chapter it shall not be lawful for the employer or receiver party to such arbitration, nor his agent, to discharge the employés parties thereto, except for inefficiency, violation of law, or neglect of duty, or where reduction of force is necessary, nor for the organization representing such employés to order, nor for the employés to unite in, aid or abet strikes or boycotts against such employer or receiver. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 79. [61i] Compensation of board, witnesses, etc.—Each of the said board of arbitrators shall receive three dollars per day for every day in actual service, not to exceed ten days, and traveling expenses not to exceed five cents per mile actually traveled in getting to, or returning from, the place where the board is in session. The fees of witnesses of the aforesaid board shall be fifty cents for each day's attendance and five cents per mile traveled by the nearest route to, and returning from, the place where attendance is required by the board. All subpœnas shall be signed by the secretary of the board and may be served by any person of full age authorized by the board to serve the same. And the fees and mileage of witnesses and the per diem and traveling expenses of said arbitrators shall be taxed as costs against either or all of the parties to said arbitration, as the board of arbitrators may deem just, and shall constitute part of their award; and each of the parties to said arbitration shall, before the arbitrators proceed to consider the matters submitted to them, give a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in an amount to be fixed by the board of arbitration, conditioned for the payment of all expenses connected with the said arbitration. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 80. [61j] Award to take effect when.—The award shall be made in triplicate. One copy shall be filed in the district clerk's office, one copy shall be given to the employer or receiver, and one copy to the employés or their duly authorized representative. The award, being filed in the clerk's office of the district court, as hereinbefore provided, shall go into practical operation, and judgment shall be entered thereon accordingly at the expiration of ten days from such filing, unless within such ten days either party shall file exceptions thereto for matter of law apparent on the record; in which case said award shall go into practical operation, and judgment shall be rendered accordingly when such exceptions shall have been fully disposed of by either said district court or on appeal therefrom. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 81. [61k] Judgment to be entered, unless appeal, etc.—At the expiration of ten days from the decision of the district court, upon exceptions taken to said award as aforesaid, judgment shall be entered in accordance with said decision, unless during the said ten days either party shall appeal therefrom to the court of civil appeals holding jurisdiction thereof. In such case, only such portion of the record shall be transmitted to the appellate court as is necessary to the proper understanding and consideration of the questions of law presented by said exceptions and to be decided. The determination of said court of civil appeals upon said questions shall be final, and being certified by the clerk of said court of civil appeals, judgment pursuant thereto shall thereupon be entered by said district court. If exceptions to an award are finally sustained, judgment shall be entered setting aside the award; but in such case the parties may agree upon a judgment to be entered disposing of the subject matter of the controversy, which judgment, when entered, shall have the same force and effect as judgment entered upon an award. [Id. sec. 11.]

1. Archives of the General Land Office.
2. Other Public Archives.

CHAPTER ONE

ARCHIVES OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE

Art.
82. What shall be considered archives of the general land office.
83. Effect to be given to archives deposited in the general land office.
84. Deeds, etc., which are not archives.
85. How such deeds, etc., may be withdrawn.

Article 82. [62] [57] What shall be considered archives of the general land office.—The following shall be deemed the records, books and papers of the general land office and constitute a part of the archives of the same:

1. All the records, books, titles, surveys, maps, papers and documents which in any manner pertain to the lands of the late republic, now state of Texas, which have been, prior to the eighteenth day of April, A. D. 1876, delivered to the commissioner of the general land office in pursuance of, and in accordance with, the requirements of any law of the republic or state of Texas, by any of the empresarios, political chiefs, alcaldes, regidores, commissioners, special or general, for extending titles.

2. All books, papers, records, documents and archives pertaining to the lands of the republic or state of Texas that have heretofore been delivered by the commissioner of the court of claims to the comptroller and by him turned over to the commissioner of the general land office, in pursuance and by authority of law.

3. All other books, records, papers and archives of the colony of Martin de Leon heretofore delivered by the secretary of state, in accordance with law, to the commissioner of the general land office.

4. The duly certified copy of the book or register of land certificates, usually known as the "Lost Book of Harris County," transmitted to the commissioner of the general land office by the clerk of the county court of Harris county, in accordance with law.

5. All other books, transfers, powers of attorney, field-notes, maps, plats, legal proceedings, official reports, original documents and other papers appertaining to the lands of the republic or state of Texas that have been deposited or filed in the general land office in accordance with any law of the republic or state of Texas. [Act Dec. 22, 1836, p. 216, sec. 5; Hart Dig. 1786; Act June 12, 1837, p. 263, sec. 6; Hart Dig. 1819; P. D. 69; Act Dec. 14, 1837, p. 44, sec. 1; Hart Dig. 1835; P. D. 70–1; Act Dec. 2, 1850, p. 32; P. D. 73; Act Dec. 14, 1837, p. 62, sec. 6; P. D. 71.]

6. All owners of lands between the Nueces and Rio Grande rivers, under grants or titles from the former government, which grants or titles are such as are described in section 4 of article 13 of the present constitution, and have been, previous to the adoption of this constitution, recorded in the respective counties where the land is situated, but have not yet been deposited or archived in the general land office of this state, be and they are hereby authorized and required to deposit and archive said grants or titles in said general land office; and provided, further, that such titles when so archived shall be subject to all defenses and objections to which they would have been subject if not so archived; and said act of archiving shall invest said titles with no greater validity than they before had as titles recorded in the proper county; and the commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized and required to receive the same as archives of said office. [Acts 1881, p. 37.]

History of legislation.—The constitution of the republic (10th general provision) directed the establishment of a general land office, where all the land titles of the republic should be registered. Sayles' Constitutions of Texas, p. 143.

By the act of December 22, 1836, the commissioner of the general land office was required to take charge of all records, books and papers in any way appertaining to the lands of the republic, and that may now be in the care or possession of all empresarios, political chiefs, alcaldes, commissarios or commissioners for issuing land titles, or any other person; and the said records, books and papers shall become and be deemed the books and papers of said office. 1st Cong., p. 216. By the act of June 12, 1837, it was made the duty of all empresarios, commissioners, political chiefs, alcaldes and other persons to deliver over to the commissioner of the general land office all titles, surveys, books, papers, documents or other things in their possession or charge belonging to the republic, or made public property. 1st Cong., p. 263.

By the act of December 14, 1837, it was made the duty of every person who may have in their possession or control any titles or documents whatever which relate to lands, and which by former or existing laws were considered archives, to deliver the same to the commissioner of the general land office, on his order, within sixty days after the passage of this act. 2d Cong., p. 44.

By the act of December 14, 1837, entitled an act to reduce into one act and to amend the several acts relating to the establishment of a general land office, it is provided that the commissioner of the general land office should have the custody and control of all books, records, papers and original documents appertaining to titles of lands. 2d Cong., p. 62.

By the act of December 2, 1850, the clerk of the county court of Harris county was required to transmit to the commissioner of the general land office the books or register of land certificates issued by the board of land commissioners for the county of Harris, usually known as the "lost books." 3d Leg., § 3, p. 32.

Article 8 of the instructions to the commissioner for the distribution of lands to colonists, dated September 4, 1827, reads as follows: He shall form a book in calf, of paper, bearing the impression of the third seal, wherein he shall write the titles of the lands which he distributes to the colonists, specifying their names, the boundaries, and other requisites and legal circumstances; and he shall take from the said book attested copies of each possession on paper of the second seal, which he shall deliver to the person interested to serve him for a title. Laws of Coahuila and Texas, p. 71.

By the act of February 11, 1850, the owners of deeds issued on paper of the second seal that have been filed in the general land office were authorized to withdraw said deeds on leaving descriptive receipts of the same. 3d Leg., p. 200.

By the act of January 11, 1862, the owners of deeds issued on paper of the second or third seal, and other evidences of title to land in this state, which were granted, issued or made prior to the 2d day of March, 1836, and which have been filed or deposited in the general land office, and are not original documents in, or archives of, said office, under the provisions of existing laws, are permitted to withdraw the same on leaving descriptive receipts. 9th Leg., p. 35.

By the fourteenth article of the organic law of the provisional government of Texas, adopted November 13, 1835, it was provided: "That all commissioners, empresarios, surveyors, or persons in any way concerned in the location of land, be ordered forthwith to cease their operations during the agitated and unsettled state of the country, and continue to desist from further locations until the land offices can be properly systematized by the competent authorities which may be hereafter established; that fit and suitable persons be appointed to take charge of all the archives belonging to the different land offices, and deposit the same in safe places, secure from the ravages of fire or devastations of enemies; and they are enjoined to hold said papers and documents in safe custody, subject only to the orders of the provisional government, or such competent authority as may hereafter be created. The different archives of the different primary judges, alcaldes, and other municipal officers of the various jurisdictions, shall be handed over to their successors in office immediately after their election and appointment; and the archives of the several political chiefs of Nacogdoches, Brazos and Bexar shall be transmitted forthwith to the governor and council for their disposition." The political chiefs were also ordered to cease their functions. Sayles' Constitutions of Texas, p. 143; Jones v. Menard, 1 T. 771.

It was the duty of the officers who had the custody of archives to deposit them in the general land office. It cannot be supposed that such archives were ever in the custody or under the control of the grantees. King v. Elson, 30 T. 246.

Under the act of April 24, 1871 (12th Leg., § 1, p. 56), the governor procured from Mexico transcripts and translations of grants, etc., affecting lands on the east side of the Rio Grande, and deposited the same in the general land office. Held, that such documents were not archives of the general land office. State v. Cuellar, 47 T. 295.

What constitutes archives or public documents.—A public instrument is divided into three classes: the original draft, register (matrix) or protocol; the original; and the copy. The register is the original draft or writing, which is delivered and remains in the possession of the escribano, which is also called the protocol, by which doubts are determined that may be offered with respect to the instruments which are copied from it. The deed, which is immediately copied from the protocol, is the original, which causes faith, inasmuch as it is authorized by the public escribano, before whom it is passed, or by him to whom the protocols of the latter have passed; but if another escribano copies it, with the authority of the judge and citation of the party, it is valid. Smith v. Townsend, Dallam, 572.

The contract between the government of Coahuila and Texas and S. F. Austin, for himself and as attorney of S. M. Williams, the power of attorney from Williams to Austin, the commission from the government of Coahuila and Texas to Robert Peebles, as commissioner of the colony, the abstract of title issued by said commissioner, books containing the original titles issued by said commissioner, are archives of the general land office. Houston v. Perry, 3 T. 390.

The books of registration of the colonial office in which were registered the names of the colonists were archives. Houston v. Perry, 5 T. 462.

An archive under the former government of Texas is defined to be a document authenticated by the seal of the king, prince, archbishop, bishop, cabildo, duke, count, marquis or other person in authority. To this class belong writings made out by the notaries or secretaries of the cabildo or ayuntamiento, in matters pertaining to such body, and also copies which the keepers of public archives take from the writings or papers of the archives under the command of the king or judge having competent authority for that purpose, and such copies are entitled to faith in or out of court; or, in other words, constitute full proof. Paschal v. Perez, 7 T. 348.

Among public instruments are reckoned those which are made by escribanos of cabildo for things relating to them, and those which are contained in public archives, and not of private persons, copies of which must come accompanied with the certificate of the keeper of public archives, who declares or certifies to have copied them by order of the king, or of the magistrate who may have authority to order it. Id.

A second copy of a title, or the testimonio which is delivered to a party to serve him as a title, is not an archive of the land office, and a certified copy of it is therefore inadmissible. Paschal v. Perez, 7 T. 348; Titus v. Kimbro, 8 T. 210; Hatchett v. Conner, 30 T. 104; King v. Elson, 30 T. 246; Wood v. Welder, 42 T. 396; Hutchins v. Bacon, 46 T. 408; Hanrick v. Dodd, 62 T. 75; Hanrick v. Cavanaugh, 60 T. 1.

The proceedings of the ayuntamientos in relation to public lands are archives of the general land office, and not of the clerks of county courts. York v. Gregg, 9 T. 85; Holliman v. Peebles, 1 T. 673.

The assignment of land certificates upon which patents have issued are records of the land office. Mason v. McLaughlin, 16 T. 24; Short v. Wade, 25 T. 510. By article 5290, which embodies the provisions of the act of June 2, 1873, the commissioner of the general land office is authorized to give a certified copy of any transfer or deed that may be a link in any chain of title to any certificate on file in said office, and therefore he is authorized now to give such certified copies where the survey has been properly returned before the issuance of a patent. Holmes v. Anderson, 59 T. 481; Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495; Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155.

It is no objection to a copy of the title in the general land office that a part of it—the concession, for example—is a testimonio, for when the final title was issued that as well as all other papers evidencing the incipient stages of the title became an archive in the office from which the title emanated, and was properly transferred to the custody of the general land office. Edwards v. Roark, 19 T. 184.

The plaintiff, in support of a concession of land executed October 7, 1833, offered in evidence a ratification of the title by the governor of Coahuila and Texas. The document was dated April 25, 1835, and was signed by the governor and secretary. Held that, the original being an archive of a foreign government, extrinsic evidence of the execution or genuineness of the instrument was required to render it admissible in evidence. Word v. McKinney, 25 T. 258.

A grant from the authorities of Coahuila and Texas may have become an archive in the general land office, although it was not so executed as to constitute it an authentic act which would prove itself. Allen v. Hoxey's Adm'r, 37 T. 321.

Transfers of land certificates on file in the general land office are archives of that office, and certified copies thereof are admissible in evidence. Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155.

A deed of release to the state which was operative to divest the title of the grantee of a colonist grant and to vest it in the government, when filed in the general land office becomes an archive, a copy of which the commissioner may certify. Dikes v. Miller, 25 T. Sup. 281, 78 Am. Dec. 571.

In view of Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4124, requiring the land commissioner to issue an unlocated balance certificate when the location of the original certificate is found to be in conflict with previous claims on the application and affidavit of the rightful claimant of the certificate so located, a letter written by a claimant of land located on the certificate, protesting against the floating of the certificate on other land so far as it affected the land located and awarded to him, but not objecting to the floating of the balance of the certificate, constituted an "archive" of the land commissioner's office so that a certified copy of the same was admissible as provided by article 3696. Robertson v. Brothers (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 657.

See, also, notes under Arts. 3694, 3696.

Registers of notaries.—Notaries are required to have a book to serve as a register, in which they must write the minutes of every act required by the contracting parties, from which they draw up the public act itself, and deliver it to the person entitled thereto. By a decree dated in 1803, notaries were required to draw up on their register the original act in full, and not by notes or minutes; a copy was then furnished to the party, to serve him instead of the act itself, which was formally made out from such notes. Smith v. Townsend, Dallam, 572.

Evidence—Presumptions.—Where the matrix of a grant of land is formal and is deposited in the proper custody, the presumption will be indulged that a testimonio was issued. Hanrick v. Dodd, 62 T. 75. But the failure of the commissioner to sign the protocol in the book will not prejudice the colonist who received a testimonio properly executed. Titus v. Kimbro, 8 T. 212.

—— Admissibility.—Documents, authenticated in the manner required by law for the authorization of papers emanating from the executive department of Coahuila and Texas prior to the revolution, are admissible in evidence without further proof. Houston v. Perry, 5 T. 462.

Copies of colonial contracts were, under the Mexican law, regarded as originals. Titus v. Kimbro, 8 T. 212.

A copy from the land office of an original title for land properly issued in 1835 is primary evidence, and admitted without proof of the loss of the testimonio. Wheeler v. Moody, 9 T. 372.

The fourth section of article 13 of the constitution, which, among other things, excludes as evidence of title to land any claim originating prior to the 13th of November, 1835, which has not been recorded in the county or archived in the general land office, has no application to the transcript of the visita general of 1767 concerning the city of Laredo, deposited in the land office before the adoption of the constitution. Nor is the admissibility in evidence of copies from the land office of such transcripts affected by this article. Railway v. Jarvis, 69 T. 527, 7 S. W. 210.

Under the provision of the second subdivision of this article, and article 3694, providing for the admission of copies of records of all public officers, certified, etc., together with copies of all records in the land office, and article 3696, requiring a record of all surveys by the county surveyor with plats thereof, certified copies of which may be used as evidence, sketches and plats made in the general land office from maps of a county were admissible in a boundary line dispute concerning land located therein, though the maps were not made contemporaneously with the date of location of the different surveys. Myers v. Moody (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 920.

A certified copy of entry from the record of the "Lost Book of Harris County" is admissible, in evidence in trespass to try title, as relevant. Steele's Unknown Heirs v. Belding (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 592.

Art. 83. [63] [58] Effect to be given to archives deposited in general land office.—Nothing in the preceding article shall be construed to give any of the said books, records or other papers named in said article any greater force or validity by reason of their being so recognized as archives of the general land office than was accorded them by the laws in force at the date of their execution and deposit in the general land office.

Art. 84. [64] [59] Deeds, etc., which are not archives.—Deeds and other instruments of writing which were executed or issued prior to the second day of March, A. D. 1836, upon stamped paper of the second or third seal, and which deeds or instruments of writing are not original documents in the general land office, or expressly declared by law to be archives of the said office, are hereby declared to constitute no part of the archives of said office. [Act Feb. 11, 1850, p. 200; P. D. 76. Act Jan. 11, 1862, p. 35; P. D. 77.]

Art. 85. [65] [60] How such deeds, etc., may be withdrawn.—The owners of any land to which the deeds or other instruments of writing named in the preceding article relate may withdraw the same from the general land office, on making a written application therefor, under oath, to the commissioner of the general land office, setting forth the fact of such ownership; and, if the commissioner shall be satisfied that the person applying is in fact the owner of the land to which such deed or instrument of writing relates, he may deliver the same to such applicant, taking his receipt therefor, and describing in such receipt the deed or instrument of writing delivered, with a summary of its contents and the name of the original grantee of the land to which such deed or instrument of writing may relate or refer. [Id.]

CHAPTER TWO

OTHER PUBLIC ARCHIVES

Art.
86. Duty of secretary of state as to archives.
87. Archives of congress of republic of Texas, etc.
88. Historical archives.
89. Archives of the comptroller's office.
90. Certain books, records, etc., declared to be archives.

Article 86. [66] [61] Duty of secretary of state as to archives.—The secretary of state is authorized to take possession of one or more rooms in the basement of the capitol for the use of the state department and the better preservation and protection of the archives of the state department. [Act July 16, 1856, p. 3. P. D. 84.]

Explanatory.—The secretary of state is required to keep a register of the official acts of the governor; to keep a register of all officers elected or appointed; to keep all bills and enrolled and joint resolutions of the legislature of this state which have become laws, and printed volumes of the statutes and laws of any other nation, state or territory deposited in his office. See Arts. 4302–4319. He must also file a record of the charters of private corporations (Art. 1131), except insurance companies. See Art. 4705.

The secretary of state has charge of the official bonds of the superintendents of the deaf and dumb and the blind asylums (Art. 182); clerk of the supreme court (Art. 1530) and court of civil appeals (Art. 1596); of the comptroller (Art. 4322); state treasurer (Art. 4364); commissioner of the general land office (Art. 4394); chief clerk of the general land office (Art. 4398); receiving clerk of the general land office (Art. 4402); commissioner of insurance (Art. 4488); adjutant-general (Art. 5788); branch pilots (Art. 6306); superintendent of public building and grounds (Art. 6381).

Art. 87. [67] [62] Archives of congress of republic of Texas, etc.—The entire archives of the congress of the late republic of Texas, and of the several legislatures of the state of Texas, arranged and filed according to law, together with the records, books and journals of said congress and legislatures of the state, prepared in accordance with law, and heretofore, or that may be hereafter, deposited in the office of the secretary of state, are declared to be archives of said office. [Acts of 1887, p. 47.]

History of legislation.—Old article read as follows:

"The entire archives of the congress of the late republic of Texas and of the state legislature, arranged and filed in accordance with law, together with the records, books and journals of said congress and state legislature, prepared in accordance with law, and heretofore deposited in the office of the secretary of state, are declared to be archives of said office." [Act Feb. 16, 1872, p. 125; P. D. 78–80; Act Feb. 11, 1854, p. 113, P. D. 81, 82.]

By the act of February 16, 1852 (4th Leg., p. 125), certain officers were required to arrange and file the entire archives of the congress of the late republic of Texas and of the state legislature, and to record the journals of said congress and legislature; said books, together with the archives, were to be deposited in the general land office building, until other provision should be made by the legislature.

By the act of February 11, 1854 (5th Leg., p. 113), the secretary of state, the comptroller and attorney-general were required to superintend the arranging and filing of the above-mentioned archives, to compare the copies so recorded with the originals, and, if found correct, to approve and cause the same to be deposited in the general land office, and the "said records shall have the same force and validity as the originals."

Art. 88. [68] [63] Historical archives.—All books, pictures, papers, maps, documents, manuscripts, memoranda and data which relate to the history of Texas as a province, colony, republic, or state, which have been or may hereafter be delivered to the state librarian by the secretary of state, comptroller, commissioner of the general land office, or by any of the heads of the departments, or by any person or officer, in pursuance of law, shall be deemed books and papers of the state library and shall constitute a part of the archives of said state library; and copies therefrom shall be made and certified by the state librarian upon application of any person interested, which certificate shall have the same force and effect as if made by the officer originally in custody of them, and for which the same fees shall be charged, to be collected in advance and turned over to the state treasurer quarterly. [Acts 1876, 225; 1856, 50; 1853, 38. Acts 1909, p. 122, sec. 10. P. D. 85, 86.]

History of legislation.—By the joint resolution of February 7, 1853 (4th Leg., S. S., p. 38), the governor was authorized to employ some suitable person to translate and arrange all Spanish documents of historical value in the office of the county clerk of Bexar county of a date anterior to the evacuation of San Antonio by the Mexican troops in 1836, and file said translation in the department of state for future use.

By the act of August 25, 1856 (6th Leg., S. S., p. 50), the governor was authorized to procure the originals and translations of documents in the Spanish language then on file with the archives of Bexar county, embraced in the list prepared by Buquor and De Bray, such originals and translations to be transferred from the archives of Bexar county and deposited in the office of the secretary of state, subject to the disposition of the legislature.

Art. 89. [69] [64] Archives of the comptroller's office.—All the books, papers, records and archives, that were heretofore archives of the auditor's office, or of the office of the commissioner of the court of claims, and which have heretofore, in pursuance of law, been delivered to the comptroller, shall be deemed papers and records of the comptroller's office, and shall constitute a part of the archives of his office. [Act Jan. 16, 1858, p. 40. P. D. 87. Act Feb. 7, 1860, p. 48. P. D. 89.]

Historical.—By the act of August 1, 1856 (6th Leg., S. S., p. 14), entitled an act to ascertain the legal claims for money and lands against the state, and subsequent amendments by the act of January 16, 1858 (7th Leg., p. 40); act of February 13, 1858 (7th Leg., p. 208); act of December 15, 1859 (8th Leg., p. 10); and by the act of February 7, 1860 (8th Leg., p. 48), reorganizing the court of claims, it was required that all land certificates should be presented for approval to the commissioner of claims, except the following: 1. Head-right certificates of the first and second class, recommended by the traveling board. 2. Certificates issued under a special act of congress or the legislature. 3. Certificates issued to the colonists of Peters, Mercer, Castro, Fisher and Miller's colonies, or the colonies of the German Emigration Company, and certificates for premium lands in said colonies. 4. Certificates issued under the act of February 3, 1854, and February 5, 1844, to encourage internal improvements and the building of vessels, etc. 5. Certificates for unlocated balances of the certificates mentioned above. The commissioner was required to make a register of the certificates presented to him and indorse thereon his approval or disapproval. The commissioner of the general land office was required to deliver to the commissioner of claims all reports made by the clerks of the boards of land commissioners and of the district and county courts.

By the act of August 1, 1856, the list of the persons composing the regiment under the command of Edward Burleson at the battle of San Jacinto, with the affidavit of Capt. Billingsley attached, and the manuscript book, purporting to contain copies of certain muster rolls that were heretofore in the adjutant-general's office, said list and book being then in the hands of the governor, were directed to be deposited in the office of the commissioner of claims, to be used by him as evidence in approving bounty and donation certificates heretofore issued by the adjutant-general and secretary of war.

Under the act of August 1, 1856, all the books, papers and archives in and belonging to the auditor's office were turned over to the commissioner of claims, and became a part of the archives of his office.

By the act of February 9, 1850 (3d Leg., p. 153), the adjutant-general was required to deliver to the commissioner of the general land office, to be filed among the archives of the office, certified copies of the muster rolls of the several companies that were under the command of Fannin and Ward, and a list of the names of those who fell in the Alamo with Travis, and a list of those who fell with Grant, and under the command of Johnson, during the war with Mexico in 1836.

By the act of August 1, 1856, the commissioner of the general land office was required to furnish to the commissioner of claims certified copies of the copies above mentioned, which have the same force and effect in the office of said commissioner of claims as if they were original records in his office.

By the act of January 16, 1858 (7th Leg., p. 40), the commissioner of claims was required to deliver to the comptroller, on the 1st of September, 1859, all the books and papers and archives in and belonging to the office of commissioner of claims, which from that date became archives of the comptroller's office.

By the act of December 15, 1859 (8th Leg., p. 10), the comptroller was required to turn over to the commissioner of the general land office all papers and archives that were theretofore in the possession of the commissioner of claims and were necessary in patenting head-right certificates approved by said commissioners.

By the act of February 7, 1860 (8th Leg., S. S., p. 48), re-organizing the court of claims, etc., the commissioner of claims was required, on the 1st day of January, 1862, to deliver to the comptroller all the books, papers and archives in and belonging to the office of commissioner of claims that were theretofore archives of the auditor's office; and to the commissioner of the general land office all other papers, books and archives belonging to the office of commissioner of claims; and the same were declared to be archives of their respective offices.

Other statutory provisions.—The comptroller is required to keep and state all accounts between this state and the United States, and all other accounts in which the state is interested. All liens, mortgages, bonds and other securities for money given to this state or any officer, and being for the use of the state, unless otherwise specially directed, shall be deposited in the office of the comptroller. Arts. 4325, 4337. The comptroller has charge of the bonds of district attorneys (Art. 340); and county attorneys (Art. 351).

Custody of records given to other officers.—The state treasurer has the custody of the bonds of the superintendent of the lunatic asylum. Art. 121.

The clerk of the district court has custody of the records, papers, etc., appertaining to the district court (Arts. 1694, 1698), of the county courts of the republic of Texas prior to the 1st day of February, 1839, and of the county courts of this state as organized under the act entitled "An act to organize the county courts and to define the powers thereof," approved October 25, 1866. Art. 1699. A record of the acknowledgment or proof of written instruments before him. Arts. 6797, 6816-6819. He has the custody of the official bond of the clerk of the county court after the same has been recorded. Art. 1747.

The clerk of the county court has custody of the record books of deeds, mortgages and other instruments required or permitted to be recorded (Art. 1754); of the records, books, papers or proceedings of the county court of his county in civil and criminal cases, and in matters of probate (Art. 1755); of the books, papers, records and effects of the commissioners' court of his county (Art. 2279). He has custody of the official bonds of the county treasurer (Art. 1500); clerk of the district court (Art. 1689); clerk of the criminal district court (Art. 2211); notary public (Art. 6003); pilots (Art. 6306); county surveyors (Art. 5301); sheriff (Art. 7121); constable (Art. 7141); public weighers (Art. 7829); wreckmasters (Art. 7888).

Art. 90. [70] [65] Certain books, records, etc., declared to be archives.—All the books, papers, records, rolls, documents, returns, reports, lists and all other papers that have been, are now, or that may hereafter be, required by law to be kept, filed or deposited in any of the offices of the executive departments of this state, shall constitute a part of the archives of the offices in which the same are so kept, filed or deposited.

ASSIGNMENTS FOR CREDITORS

[Liens on goods exposed for sale void, see Frauds and Fraudulent Conveyances.]

Art.
91. General assignments, how made and construed; preferences void.
92. Assignment acknowledged, etc., and recorded; inventory attached, what shall contain and how verified.
93. Assignment for creditors accepting, etc., and discharging assignor.
94. Notice of assignee's appointment, when and how given.
95. How and when consenting creditors may accept.
96. Where assignee shall reside, and his preliminary duties and bond approved by county or district judge.
97. Fraud, etc., will not defeat assignment.
98. Proof of claim, when and how made.
99. Surplus in assignee's hands subject to garnishment.
100. Property fraudulently sold by assignor, passes by the assignment and may be recovered by assignee, etc.
101. Failure to attach inventory presumption of fraud, but does not vitiate assignment; assignor, etc., may be examined.
102. Verified claim shall be allowed by assignee, unless contested.
103. Unmatured claims discounted and collateral securities estimated and deduction for same.
104. Assignee may be removed and vacancy from any cause filled, how.
105. Dividend declared, when and how, and allowance to assignee.
106. Final report and discharge of assignee.

Article 91. [71] General assignment, how made and construed; preferences void.—Every assignment made by an insolvent debtor, or in contemplation of insolvency, for the benefit of his creditors, shall provide, except as herein otherwise provided, for a distribution of all his real and personal estate, other than that which is by law exempt from execution, among all his creditors in proportion to their respective claims, and, however made or expressed, shall have the effect aforesaid, and shall be construed to pass all such estate, whether specified therein or not; and in every assignment made under this title, whether for the benefit of all creditors, or accepting creditors, any attempted preference of one creditor, or creditors, of the assignor shall be deemed fraudulent and without effect. [Act of July 24, 1879, p. 54.]

1. Nature and requisites in general.
2. What law governs.
3. Execution by agent.
4. Insolvency as necessary incident.
5. Residence or domicile of debtor.
6. Instruments operating as assignments.
7. Informal instruments.
8. Estoppel to deny validity of assignment.
9. Acceptance by trustee.
10. Partnership.
11. Community property.
12. Property included and sufficiency of description.
13. —— Invalidity as to certain property.
14. —— Exempt property.
15. —— Land in foreign jurisdiction.
16. Preference of creditors, conditions, and directions as to management of trust.
17. Operation and effect as to creditors.
18. —— Attachments and liens.
19. When assignment takes effect.
20. Impairing obligation of contracts.
21. Effect of bankruptcy act.
22. Nature of office of assignee.
23. Personal liability of assignee.
24. Bona fide purchaser from assignee.
25. Sale of property by assignee.
26. Agreement to hold for creditors.
27. Effect of death of assignor.

1. Nature and requisites in general.—Every instrument purporting to be a general assignment for the benefit of creditors is governed as to its force and effect, the validity of its provisions, and the manner in which the trust created is to be administered, by the statute regulating assignments for the benefit of creditors. Fant v. Elsbury, 68 T. 1, 2 S. W. 866.

Assignment differs from a mortgage. Preston v. Carter, 80 T. 388, 16 S. W. 17; Watterman v. Silberberg, 67 T. 100, 2 S. W. 578; Hudson v. Elevator Co., 79 T. 401, 15 S. W. 385; Foreman v. Burnette, 83 T. 396, 18 S. W. 756; Collins v. Sanger, 8 C. A. 69, 27 S. W. 500.

An assignment for the benefit of all creditors, or for accepting creditors, is void for uncertainty. McWilliams v. Cornelius, 66 T. 301, 17 S. W. 767.

A general assignment defined. Padgett v. Wook (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1108; Schneider v. Bagley, 24 S. W. 1116, 6 C. A. 226; Byrd v. Perry, 7 C. A. 378, 26 S. W. 749. See City Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 7 C. A. 584, 27 S. W. 848; Id., 87 T. 295, 28 S. W. 277; Adams v. Bateman, 88 T. 130, 30 S. W. 855. Distinguished from a mortgage. Tittle v. Van Leer, 89 T. 174, 29 S. W. 1065, 34 S. W. 715, 37 L. R. A. 337.

Deed of assignment distinguished from a deed of trust. H. T. Simon-Gregory Dry Goods Co. v. Dean (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 305; Tittle v. Vanleer, 89 T. 174, 29 S. W. 1065; 34 S. W. 715, 37 L. R. A. 337.

2. What law governs.—Assignments are binding upon creditors, citizens of another state, as fully as upon citizens of this state. The rule is not different when the release of the debtor is a condition upon which creditors may take under the assignment. Keating v. Vaughn, 61 T. 519; Schoolher v. Hutchins, 66 T. 324, 1 S. W. 266.

When an assignment is made by a resident of another state, conveying property in this state, it would seem that the exemption laws of the domicile would have effect. Weider v. Maddox, 66 T. 372, 1 S. W. 168, 59 Am. Rep. 617.

A voluntary assignment covering property in more than one state is deemed valid if it would be sufficient under the law of the domicile of the assignor, and under the law of the state where the property is situated, to pass title. Id.

When a voluntary assignment, made in another state, conveys personal property situated in this state, it is valid, and will be enforced here, although the assignee has not qualified in accordance with the laws of this state. Id.

3. Execution by agent.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors may be made by an agent or attorney in fact specially authorized thereto (Gouldy v. Metcalf, 75 T. 455, 12 S. W. 830, 16 Am. St. Rep. 912), or whose act is subsequently ratified. McKee v. Coffin, 66 T. 304, 1 S. W. 276.

4. Insolvency as necessary incident.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors, not based on insolvency, is not within the statute. Johnson v. Robinson, 68 T. 399, 4 S. W. 325; Blum v. Welborne, 58 T. 161; Tennent v. Davis (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 251.

Inability to pay debts in the ordinary course of business is insolvency. Langham v. Lanier, 26 S. W. 255, 7 C. A. 4; Cunningham v. Holt, 12 C. A. 150, 33 S. W. 981; Burnham v. White (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 920.

An agreement between a solvent debtor and a trustee with authority to convert the property conveyed to him into cash and pay grantor's debts held contrary to public policy and void. Haswell v. Blake (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 1125.

5. Residence or domicile of debtor.—An assignment is not invalid because the debtor is not within the reach of the process of the court. McKee v. Coffin, 66 T. 304, 1 S. W. 276.

6. Instruments operating as assignments.—Instrument held to be a mortgage and not an assignment. Baldwin v. Peet, 22 T. 718, 75 Am. Dec. 806; Stiles v. Hill, 62 T. 429; Jackson v. Harby, 65 T. 710; Scott v. McDaniel, 67 T. 315, 3 S. W. 291; Jackson v. Harby, 70 T. 411, 8 S. W. 71; Hudson v. Milling & Elevator Co., 79 T. 401; 15 S. W. 385; Rindskopf v. Vanleer, 14 C. A. 95, 36 S. W. 918; Prouty v. Musquiz (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 568.

An instrument which operates to convey property, with the right of possession and power of sale for the payment of a debt, operates as an assignment. Hart v. Blum, 76 T. 113, 13 S. W. 181; Preston v. Carter, 80 T. 388, 16 S. W. 17.

A deed conveyed to a trustee all the property of the debtor not subject to forced sale, but purported on its face to be "intended as a mortgage, to secure to the full extent of my effects the payment of the aforesaid claims." The trustee was authorized to take possession and sell for cash, and, after paying certain preferred creditors, to pay certain other enumerated claims without distinction or preference. Held, a mortgage. A mortgage is a security, and, whether it so declares or not, the equity of redemption remains in the mortgagor. (Preston v. Carter Bros., 80 T. 388, 16 S. W. 17, and Johnson v. Robinson, 68 T. 400, 4 S. W. 625, discussed.) Laird v. Weirs, 85 T. 93, 23 S. W. 864. See Watterman v. Silberberg, 67 T. 100, 2 S. W. 578.

A conveyance to a trustee for the purpose of sale and applying proceeds to the payment of the debts of the grantor so far as sufficient, with no defeasance expressed or possible from circumstances, is an assignment and not a mortgage. Foreman v. Burnett, 83 T. 396, 18 S. W. 756. Where there was evidence that the firm by which a deed was executed and one member of the firm were insolvent, but as to the other member there was no evidence, the instrument was held to be a mortgage. Hudson v. Milling Co., 79 T. 401, 15 S. W. 385. See Stiles v. Hill, 62 T. 429; Schneider v. McCoulsky, 26 S. W. 170, 6 C. A. 501; City Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 7 C. A. 584, 27 S. W. 848; Id., 87 T. 295, 28 S. W. 277.

Conveyance by a debtor to certain named creditors, who also assumed the payment of other debts, of property sufficient for the payment of the debts named, and no more, is a sale authorized by law and not an assignment. Noyes v. Sanger, 8 C. A. 388, 27 S. W. 1022. Citing Stiles v. Hill, 62 T. 429; Lewy v. Fischl, 65 T. 318; Jackson v. Harby, Id., 714; Watterman v. Silberberg, 67 T. 103; 2 S. W. 578.

Evidence of the insolvency of the maker of a conveyance of property for the payment of debts is admissible to show that the instrument is an assignment for the benefit of creditors. Lochte v. Blum, 10 C. A. 385, 30 S. W. 925.

An instrument held not to be an assignment. Seward Confectionery Co. v. Ulman, 89 T. 504, 35 S. W. 469.

Instrument held to be an assignment. Thaxton v. Smith, 90 T. 589, 40 S. W. 14.

7. Informal instruments.—That the deed of assignment contains no stipulations requiring releases of the debtor by accepting creditors is immaterial. Schoolher v. Hutchins, 66 T. 324, 1 S. W. 266.

A deed of assignment which grants to the assignee the powers conferred by the statute is not invalidated thereby, and if the deed attempt to confer powers which, under the law, the assignee cannot legally exercise, this would not invalidate the assignment. Id.

The object of this act is not to invalidate all such assignments as failed to conform strictly to its requirements, but to subject all as far as practicable to its operation, in order that the assigned property may be administered and its proceeds distributed according to its requirements. McCart v. Maddox, 68 T. 456, 5 S. W. 150.

8. Estoppel to deny validity of assignment.—Accepting creditors who have received dividends in excess of one-third of their claims cannot assail the validity of an assignment. Hudson v. Willis, 65 T. 694; Roberson v. Tonn, 76 T. 535, 13 S. W. 385; Whitehill v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 886.

A partner in a firm whose property is conveyed to a trustee for creditors held estopped to question the authority of the trustee to convey the property to satisfy the debts. Allen v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 645.

9. Acceptance by trustee.—The acceptance of a trust deed by the trustee will inure to the benefit of creditors, in the absence of a repudiation of its terms by the beneficiaries. Wallis v. Beauchamp, 15 T. 306; Montgomery v. Culton, 18 T. 747; Bank of California v. Marshall, 1 C. A. 704, 23 S. W. 246; Alliance Milling Co. v. Eaton, 23 S. W. 455. See Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Mayo, 27 S. W. 781, 8 C. A. 164.

10. Partnership.—The individual debts of a debtor making an assignment have no preference over those owing by him as a member of a partnership. Higgins v. Rector, 47 T. 361.

H., the managing member of the firm of H. & S., merchants, executed a deed of assignment conveying the partnership property for the benefit of accepting creditors. It was held that the assignment was void, as it did not in terms convey the individual property of the partner executing, and could not convey the property of the partner not signing. Donoho v. Fish, 58 T. 164.

S. K., a resident of Kansas, and W. K., a resident of Texas, partners, executed a deed of assignment, conveying their wares, merchandise and stock in trade in their store, and other partnership property specially named, "including all properties of all kinds now owned by us." Held, a valid assignment. Coffin v. Douglass, 61 T. 406.

A deed executed by two debtors conveyed, for the benefit of their creditors, all their lands, tenements, property, choses in action, etc. Held, sufficient to pass the partnership as well as individual property. Windham v. Patty, 62 T. 490.

A partnership may make an assignment for the benefit of creditors, but in such case the property of the partnership, and the property of each individual member of it, which is subject to forced sale, must pass by the assignment. The deed of assignment must, upon its face, by fair construction, pass all the property of the assignor or assignors subject to forced sale, whether such property be individual or partnership. Still v. Focke, 66 T. 715, 2 S. W. 59. Citing Donoho v. Fish Bros., 58 T. 164; Coffin v. Douglass, 61 T. 406; Burnham v. White (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 920.

An assignment by partners for the purpose of defrauding partnership creditors is void as to them. Cleveland v. Battle, 68 T. 111, 3 S. W. 681; Carter Bros. v. Bush, 79 T. 29, 15 S. W. 167; Moody v. Carroll, 71 T. 144, 8 S. W. 510, 10 Am. St. Rep. 734.

A deed of assignment which in the body of the instrument uses the partnership name, but is signed with the names of the individual members who compose the firm, and purports to convey all the property of the assignors of every description, conveys the property of the partnership as well as that of the individual members of the firm. Shoe Co. v. Ferrell, 68 T. 638, 5 S. W. 490.

An assignment requiring releases from creditors, when made by a member of a firm, in the firm name and individually, in which he is not joined by his copartner, is void as to creditors. If the maker of an assignment for the benefit of creditors has represented another as being a member of his partnership firm, and he afterwards makes an assignment for such partnership, in which such other does not join, then, even though no partnership existed, the assignment is void as to creditors to whom such representations were made. Baylor County v. Craig, 69 T. 330, 6 S. W. 305.

If an assignment purports to convey all the property of the partnership firm making it, and that of each individual member thereof, wherever situate, it becomes a matter of evidence as to what particular property the partnership and each individual member thereof owned when the assignment was executed. Harvey v. Edens, 69 T. 420, 6 S. W. 306.

An assignment of partnership and individual property for the benefit of partnership creditors only is not void. The individual creditors can assert their rights under it. Moody v. Carroll, 71 T. 143, 8 S. W. 510, 10 Am. St. Rep. 734.

Property conveyed by a partner to his copartner, who afterwards made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, is not subject to garnishment by a creditor of the firm. Huffman Imp. Co. v. Templeton, 4 App. C. C., § 14, 14 S. W. 1015. See, also, Schooler v. Hutchins, 66 T. 324, 1 S. W. 266. An assignment by partners conveying partnership effects only is void. Focke v. Blum, 82 T. 436, 17 S. W. 770.

An assignment by a partnership not signed by one of its members is invalid. Kellogg v. Cayce, 84 T. 213, 19 S. W. 388.

An assignment executed by one member of a firm having parol authority from the other member, and purporting to convey both real and personal property, may be sustained by proving that no real estate was owned by the firm or any member of the firm. In absence of such proof the assignment would be held invalid. McGuffin v. Sowell, 1 C. A. 187, 20 S. W. 871.

Partnership property of an insolvent firm must be first applied to the partnership debts, to the exclusion of the creditors of the individual members of the firm. Wiggins v. Blackshear (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 918.

On the withdrawal of a partner the other members of the firm may make an assignment. Euless v. Tomlinson (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 534. Citing Bean v. Warden (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 831; Wiggins v. Blackshear, 86 T. 665, 26 S. W. 939; Sanchez v. Goldfrank (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 204.

A statutory deed of assignment executed by one partner will not pass realty owned by the other partner. Jackman v. Fortson (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 215.

Plaintiff held entitled to sue to free his land from a charge, though his firm had assigned. Cleveland v. Carr (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 406.

Transfer by assigning partner of firm property to his partner to pay firm debts is valid as to his individual creditors. Patty-Joiner Co. v. City Bank of Sherman, 15 C. A. 475, 41 S. W. 173.

One partner cannot alone make an assignment of partnership assets in trust to secure creditors. Bell v. Beazley, 18 C. A. 639, 45 S. W. 401.

One partner alone can execute deed of trust for benefit of partnership creditors where it is shown that he manages the business and no fraud is shown as to the other partner. Keller v. Smith, 20 C. A. 314, 49 S. W. 263.

A partner can, by a conveyance of all the firm property to a trustee for the benefit of the firm creditors, secure his own claim, if the other partner consents or ratifies the act. Williams v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 66.

A partner who ratifies a trust deed of the firm property executed by his copartner cannot afterwards object to its validity because such partner is scheduled as a creditor therein. Allen v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 645.

Partner held to have ratified the act of his copartner in executing a trust deed of the firm property for the benefit of its creditors. Id.

11. Community property.—An assignment by a married woman joined by her husband, of community property, is valid. Wetzel v. Simon, 87 T. 403, 28 S. W. 274, 942; Hayden Saddlery-Hardware Co. v. Ramsay, 14 C. A. 185, 36 S. W. 595.

12. Property included and sufficiency of description.—When an assignment shows by its terms an intention to assign under the statute, and there is no provision in it indicating a design to make a partial assignment, except that the instrument, after its specific designation of property conveyed, does not declare that it is all the property subject to the payment of debts, an intention to convey all will be presumed. (Distinguished from Donoho v. Fish Bros., 58 T. 167.) McIlhenny Co. v. Miller, 68 T. 356, 4 S. W. 614; McCart v. Maddox, 68 T. 456, 5 S. W. 150.

When a deed conveyed designated property, without specifying that it was all the property owned by the assignor, but an inventory was attached stating that the property therein named was all the estate of the assignor of every description, except such as was exempt from forced sale, the deed and inventory were construed together and the assignment sustained. Keating v. Vaughn, 61 T. 518.

A general voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, made by an insolvent debtor in accordance with the laws of the place of his domicile, will pass all his personal property wherever situated, unless limited or restrained by some law of the state where the property is situated. Weider v. Maddox, 66 T. 372, 1 S. W. 168, 59 Am. Rep. 617.

A deed of assignment, though not as full and specific as to the property conveyed as the statute requires, held wanting only in those things not essential to its validity. McIlhenny Co. v. Craddock, 68 T. 359, 4 S. W. 616.

Evidence held to show plaintiff entitled to assets of a corporation as its assignee for creditors. Miller v. Goodman, 15 C. A. 244, 40 S. W. 743.

One who receives goods in settlement of the claims of several creditors can recover, in conversion, an amount proportionate to the amount of the indebtedness of the creditors he was authorized to act for. Triplett v. Morris, 18 C. A. 50, 44 S. W. 684.

A general assignment for the benefit of his creditors by one holding trust property does not include the trust property or devest him of the power to convey it. Rutherford v. Loving (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 418.

13. —— Invalidity as to certain property.—The fact that an assignee might not be able to enforce an assignment against property in another jurisdiction does not affect its validity. McKee v. Coffin, 66 T. 304, 1 S. W. 276.

14. —— Exempt property.—An insolvent debtor who has assigned for the benefit of creditors, and at the time of such assignment had a homestead in which his family resided, cannot afterwards claim homestead rights in another piece of property which he had begun to improve with a view of making it a home, but did not occupy as such at the time of the assignment. Archibald v. Jacobs, 69 T. 248, 6 S. W. 177.

The statute recognizes the exemptions in the constitution and laws in favor of the debtor. Where an assignment purported to convey all the property of the debtor, "except such property as is exempt by law from levy and sale under execution," it was held that this exemption must prevail as against a repugnant statement in the heading of the inventory. Tackaberry v. City Nat. Bank, 85 T. 488, 22 S. W. 151, 299.

The failure to include in the deed all of the unexempt property does not invalidate an assignment. Wetzel v. Simon, 87 T. 403, 28 S. W. 274, 942.

15. —— Land in foreign jurisdiction.—Assignment of lands in a foreign jurisdiction. Harvey v. Edens, 69 T. 420, 6 S. W. 306.

16. Preference of creditors, conditions, and directions as to management of trust.—A reservation to the assignee to declare future preferences renders an assignment fraudulent and void. Moody v. Paschal, 60 T. 483.

Where the assignor provides for an unreasonable delay in winding up the estate, such direction will be disregarded. Id.; Keating v. Vaughn, 61 T. 518.

A provision that, after paying accepting creditors, the surplus should be paid to the assignor, did not invalidate the assignment. Keating v. Vaughn, 61 T. 518; McLendon v. King, 2 App. C. C. § 310.

A provision in a deed of assignment that the property conveyed should be sold partly on credit does not invalidate the deed. Keller v. Smalley, 63 T. 512.

A provision in a deed of assignment was that the assignee, as soon as he qualified, should commence selling the goods for cash at private sale, and so continue to sell for sixty days, and at the end of that time should, after giving notice, sell at auction. Held, that the time prescribed for the sale was not unreasonable; but, if it had been, the direction would be disregarded by the assignee, and the assignment is not thereby invalidated. Wert v. Schneider, 64 T. 327.

Where, for advantage of the estate, an assignee could be made to sell on credit, a provision so directing sales would not render an assignment void. Schoolher v. Hutchins, 66 T. 329, 1 S. W. 266.

A preference of a particular creditor is void, but the assignment is not thereby invalidated. Fant v. Elsbury, 68 T. 1, 2 S. W. 866; McCart v. Maddox, 68 T. 456, 5 S. W. 150; Bloch v. Spruance, 12 C. A. 309, 33 S. W. 1002.

An assignment is not vitiated by directions as to the execution of his trust by the assignee. Moody v. Carroll, 71 T. 143, 8 S. W. 510, 10 Am. St. Rep. 734.

This statute does not prevent a debtor from giving preferences to creditors by a mortgage. Preston v. Carter, 80 T. 388, 16 S. W. 17; Hudson v. Milling & Elevator Co., 79 T. 401, 15 S. W. 385. The fact that the trustee may sell in the usual course of trade does not operate as a fraud upon the creditors not preferred where it is apparent that a prompt disposition of all the goods would not satisfy the preferred creditors. Bank v. Marshall, 1 C. A. 704, 23 S. W. 246.

A provision in a deed exacting releases from creditors in order to participate in the benefits of an assignment is void, and it does not operate to annul the assignment. Boyd

v. Haynie, 83 T. 7, 18 S. W. 156. And see Shoe Co. v. Ferrell, 68 T. 638, 5 S. W. 490; Goldfrank v. Halff (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 778.

A debtor creating a trust for the benefit of creditors may provide for reasonable expenses in executing it, and, if lawfully created, the unsecured creditors cannot complain, if the value of the estate is sufficient to satisfy the preferred and accepting creditors. Bank v. Marshall, 1 C. A. 711, 23 S. W. 246; Alliance Milling Co. v. Eaton (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 588.

An insolvent corporation which has ceased to do business cannot prefer creditors. Fowler v. Bell, 90 T. 150, 37 S. W. 1058, 39 L. R. A. 254, 59 Am. St. Rep. 788; Lyons-Thomas Hardware Co. v. Perry Stove Manuf. Co., 86 T. 143, 24 S. W. 16, 22 L. R. A. 802; Lang v. Dougherty, 74 T. 226, 12 S. W. 29.

An assignment directing the assignee to pay certain creditors and apply the remainder to certain debts or hold the same "subject to our order, or the claim of any creditor not hereby preferred," construed, and held void, as an unreasonable delay of creditors entitled to surplus. Sanger v. Burke, 18 C. A. 106, 43 S. W. 1070.

The question as to whether an assignment for creditors by a firm is void because it provides that limited partners should participate in the assets cannot be first raised on appeal. Carter-Battle Grocer Co. v. Jackson, 18 C. A. 353, 45 S. W. 615.

When suit is brought to cancel chattel mortgage as a fraudulent preference of creditors all the accepting creditors must be made parties, as well as those creditors whose claims are charged by the petition to be fictitious. If there is one bona fide accepting creditor the conveyance to secure creditors by an insolvent debtor is not illegal, though the grantor, the trustee and the other preferred creditors intended to defraud the non-preferred creditors. Cleveland v. People's Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 523.

A transfer of a debtor's property to a trustee for the benefit of creditors, which was conditional, held not a statutory assignment for the benefit of creditors. Peeples v. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 61.

The court in settling the estate of debtors assigned for creditors held not required to consider a compromise between the assignee and some of the creditors, except to the amount of payment made by the assignee to such creditors not in excess of their pro rata share. McCord v. Sprinkel (Sup.) 141 S. W. 945, judgment modified (Sup.) 145 S. W. 903.

17. Operation and effect as to creditors.—An assignment under this article does not preclude the creditor from collecting any balance due on his claim after crediting it with the amount received from the assignee. Sanborn v. Norton, 59 T. 308.

Property was conveyed with the intent, and the grantee later declared, that he held in trust to secure creditors and obligated himself to sell and pay claimants their pro rata share of all moneys received. Held, that the trustee did not have title absolutely for the benefit of creditors, so that they obtained no right to any portion of the land, but could only foreclose the liens created on the land by the trust deed. Hirschfield v. Ater (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 202.

18. —— Attachments and liens.—The title of the property passes to the assignee by the execution and delivery of the deed of assignment, and before the assignee qualifies, and the right of creditors to fix liens, by attachment or otherwise, upon the property ceases. Schoolher v. Hutchins, 66 T. 324, 1 S. W. 266.

The assignee may sue for and recover the value of assigned property seized under attachment after the assignment. McKee v. Coffin, 66 T. 304, 1 S. W. 276; Barber v. Hutchins, 66 T. 319, 1 S. W. 275.

Personal property in the hands of an assignee is subject to seizure and sale for taxes due on the realty just as it was in the hands of the assignor. Wynne v. Hardware Co., 67 T. 40, 1 S. W. 568.

Attaching creditors are liable, at the suit of the assignee, for their seizure and appropriation of the assets. Fant v. Elsbury, 68 T. 1, 2 S. W. 866.

When a failing debtor placed on record a transfer of his stock of merchandise to designated creditors, who were never consulted and were in ignorance of the transfer, a subsequent consent and ratification of the transfer by some of the creditors did not defeat the lien previously acquired through an attachment by another creditor named in the instrument. Wallis v. Taylor, 67 T. 431, 3 S. W. 321.

An assignee is entitled to assets against a subsequent attaching creditor. Dupuy v. Ullman, 78 T. 341, 14 S. W. 790.

A seller held entitled to rescind for fraud of the buyer as against the buyer's assignees in insolvency. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Carr, 16 C. A. 430, 42 S. W. 614.

Where there was no delivery to a trustee for creditors, the preferred creditors had no interest in the goods, as against an unpreferred attaching creditor. Boltz v. Engelke (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 47.

A statutory assignment, if executed and delivered before the levy of an attachment, passes title to the assignee. Calisher v. Mathias (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 265.

A failure of a creditor to accept under a deed of trust to goods will not impair his lien on said goods for rent. Missouri Glass Co. v. Marsh (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 546.

Where insolvent obtains goods on credit by fraud, and conveys his stock to a trustee for certain creditors, the seller, on disaffirming the sale, cannot hold such creditors liable for conversion, on the theory that the trustee was their agent. Blalock v. Joseph Bowling Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 305.

19. When assignment takes effect.—See note under Art. 97.

20. Impairing obligation of contracts.—This act is not subject to the objection that it impairs the obligations of a contract, and an assignment is not void because some of the creditors are citizens of other states. Keating v. Vaughn, 61 T. 518.

21. Effect of bankruptcy act.—The assignment law, so far as it provides for a release by the creditors, is suspended by the bankrupt law of the United States, but if the assignment convey all the debtor's property, subject to the payment of his debts for the equal benefit of all creditors who may accept under it, it is otherwise valid except as against proceedings seasonably taken under the bankrupt act. Patty-Joiner & Eubank Co. v. Cummins, 93 T. 598, 57 S. W. 568.

22. Nature of office of assignee.—An assignee for creditors is a trustee. Birmingham Drug Co. v. Freeman, 15 C. A. 451, 39 S. W. 626.

An assignee under deed of assignment is not an officer of court. He is merely trustee appointed by the assignor. Gibson v. Gray, 17 C. A. 646, 43 S. W. 922.

Where there was a fraudulent combination between a debtor, his trustee, and preferred creditors to appropriate goods, the fraudulent conversion thereof by such trustee is the act of all. Blalock v. Joseph Bowling Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 305.

23. Personal liability of assignee.—An assignee contracting for the benefit of the estate held personally bound, unless he stipulates to the contrary. Gibson v. Gray, 17 C. A. 646, 43 S. W. 922.

When a debtor has made an assignment and he and the assignee execute a note to one of the creditors who did not accept the assignment, the assignee is liable on the note personally and not as assignee, because the assignee can not bind the trust estate by the note. Warren v. Harrold, 92 T. 417, 49 S. W. 364.

Certain damages caused by failure of assignee to close up estate assigned for benefit of creditors held too remote. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 494.

24. Bona fide purchaser from assignee.—A purchaser for value without notice from one who purchased from an assignee is protected. Cantrell v. Dyer, 6 C. A. 551, 25 S. W. 1098.

25. Sale of property by assignee.—It would seem that the assignee is authorized to sell property of the estate on such terms as will promote the interests of the creditors. Keller v. Smalley, 63 T. 512; Wert v. Schneider, 64 T. 327.

Where an assignee for creditors guaranties a purchaser of trust property to find a market for it for the purpose of becoming the purchaser of the property himself, and does so purchase it, such purchase is invalid as to the assignee, though the purchaser may have been innocent. Nabours v. McCord, 36 C. A. 504, 75 S. W. 827.

In an action against an assignee for creditors for breach of trust in indirectly purchasing trust property, evidence held to raise the issue as to whether the contract of sale to the original purchaser was executed or executory. Id.

Where a sale of trust property by a trustee remains executory, and title is not vested, disqualification of the trustee to purchase the property from the purchaser still exists. Id.

Sale of assets of estate assigned for benefit of creditors, under assignee's guaranty to a purchaser to secure a resale, held a purchase by assignee himself voidable at option of creditors. Nabours v. McCord, 97 T. 526, 80 S. W. 595.

A trustee in a deed, conveying to him property with authority to convert the same into cash and pay the grantor's creditors, held liable to the grantor for an amount received in a sale of property and not accounted for. Haswell v. Blake (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 1125.

Where an assignee for the benefit of creditors sold property, and then repurchased the same while still acting as assignee, the purchase was voidable at the election of the creditors, and the assignee was liable to them for the property or its value. Nabours v. McCord, 100 T. 456, 100 S. W. 1152.

Act of assignee for benefit of creditors in giving purchaser from him of property belonging to the assignor's estate guaranty to furnish buyer of the property from the purchaser at a certain price held to place assignee in antagonism to the estate. McCord v. Nabours, 101 T. 494, 109 S. W. 913, 111 S. W. 144.

A sale of property of the estate of assigning debtors made pending a suit held not to affect the right of the estate to the property. McCord v. Sprinkel (Sup.) 141 S. W. 945, judgment modified (Sup.) 145 S. W. 903.

26. Agreement to hold for creditors.—Where a deed of trust was given to secure money borrowed from plaintiffs and defendant, the appropriation of the money by the debtor to a different purpose from that for which it was borrowed was no excuse for defendant's violation of an agreement to buy the property for the benefit of all the creditors. Haywood v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 469.

27. Effect of death of assignor.—Title of assignee held not affected by death of assignor. Thaxton v. Smith, 90 T. 589, 40 S. W. 14.

Art. 92. [72] Assignment acknowledged, etc., and recorded; inventory attached, what shall contain and how verified.—Every assignment shall be proved or acknowledged and certified and recorded in the same manner as provided by law in conveyances of real estate or other property; and the debtor shall annex to such assignment an inventory containing the following statement:

1. A full and true account of all the creditors of such debtor or debtors.

2. The place of residence of each creditor, if known to such debtor or debtors, and if not known, that fact to be so stated.

3. The sum owing to each creditor, and the nature of each debt or demand, whether arising on written security, account, or otherwise executed.

4. The true cause and consideration of such indebtedness in each case, and the place where such indebtedness arose.

5. A statement of any existing judgment, mortgage, collateral or other security for the payment of any such debt.

6. A full and true inventory of all such debtor's estate at the date of such assignment, both real and personal, in law or in equity, and the incumbrances existing thereon, and of all vouchers and securities relating thereto, and the value of such estate according to the best knowledge of such debtor or debtors.

7. An affidavit shall be made by such debtor or debtors, and annexed to, and delivered with, such inventory or schedule, that the same is in all respects just and true according to the best of such debtor or debtors' knowledge and belief. Nothing contained in this chapter shall affect the assignor's right to retain all such of his property as is by the constitution and laws of this state exempt from execution, but such list and inventory shall not be conclusive, except as against the debtor making the same. [Act of July 24, 1879, p. 54.]

History of legislation.—This article was amended in the Revision of 1895 by transferring from article 71 the provision requiring the assignment to be acknowledged and recorded.

Schedules and inventory.—Though a deed of assignment is void which names none of the beneficiaries, yet such a compliance with the rule requiring them to be named as the circumstances surrounding the assignor at the time of executing the deed will permit is all that the law requires. Hence a deed which mentions by name the creditors who are embraced by it in class No. 1 and class No. 2, and which proceeds to recite that if there be other creditors who have been forgotten whose claims are just they shall be embraced in class No. 2, was held sufficient. This case distinguished from Caton v. Moseley, 25 T. 374. Swearingen v. Hendley, 1 U. C. 639.

An inventory is construed in connection with the assignment. Keating v. Vaughn, 61 T. 518.

It is not essential to the validity of an assignment that the inventory and schedule be verified by the oath of the debtor. McKee v. Coffin, 66 T. 304, 1 S. W. 276.

The failure to swear to the schedules and inventory does not change the legal character of the instrument. Fant v. Elsbury, 68 T. 1, 2 S. W. 866; McKee v. Coffin, 66 T. 304, 1 S. W. 276.

Registration.—As against existing creditors an assignment is not vitiated by a failure to record the instrument immediately after its execution. Piggott v. Schram, 64 T. 447.

Property included in assignment.—See note under Art. 91.

Art. 93. [73] Assignment for creditors accepting, etc., and discharging assignor.—Any debtor, desiring so to do, may make an assignment for the benefit of such of his creditors only as will consent to accept their proportional share of his estate, and discharge him from their respective claims; and in such case the benefits of the assignment shall be limited and restricted to the creditors consenting thereto; and such debtor shall thereupon be and stand discharged from all further liabilities to such consenting creditors on account of their respective claims, and when paid they shall execute and deliver to the assignee for the debtor a release therefrom; provided, that such debtor shall not be discharged from liabilities to a creditor who does not receive as much as one-third of the amount due and allowed in his favor as a valid claim against the estate of such debtor. [Acts 1883, p. 46.]

In general.—An assignment for the benefit of all creditors or of accepting creditors is void for uncertainty. McWilliams v. Cornelius, 66 T. 301, 17 S. W. 767.

Purchase of property by trustee, on sale under deed of trust preferring creditors, held not void as to creditors claiming adversely to the deed, though named therein, they having repudiated it. Wade v. Odle, 21 C. A. 656, 54 S. W. 786.

A creditor, who participated in a voluntary assignment for the benefit of such creditors as should accept the same and discharge the assignor from further liability, held to have discharged the assignor from liability for the balance. Hajek & Simicek v. Luck, 96 T. 517, 74 S. W. 305.

Fraud in procuring consent.—The consent of the creditor procured by a promise of the debtor to pay him what shall remain unpaid of his claim is void, as is also a promissory note for such balance, although made after the close of the assignment proceedings. Dansby v. Frieberg, 76 T. 463, 13 S. W. 331.

Form of acceptance.—See note under Art. 95.

Acceptance by part of creditors.—Each creditor may for himself accept the benefit of a trust deed made for the benefit of several creditors, and, the trustee having accepted, his title and right of possession is as complete as if every other creditor had accepted. Shoe Co. v. Mayo, 8 C. A. 164, 27 S. W. 781; Martin-Brown Co. v. Henderson, 9 C. A. 130, 28 S. W. 695; Tittle v. Vanleer, 89 T. 174, 29 S. W. 1065, 34 S. W. 715, 37 L. R. A. 337; Willis v. Thompson, 85 T. 301, 20 S W. 155.

If only a part of the creditors accept a deed of trust made in favor of all, ownership is thereby vested in the trustee for the purposes of the trust. Lynch v. Payne (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 406.

Amount received by creditors.—An accepting creditor who has received dividends amounting to more than one-third of his claim cannot assail the validity of the assignment. Hudson v. Willis, 65 T. 694; Roberson v. Tonn, 76 T. 535, 13 S. W. 385; Whitehill v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 886.

It is not necessary that a deed of assignment should in terms make the right to release dependent on the receipt by accepting creditors of one-third of the amount due them; that is regulated by law. If an accepting creditor should receive less than one-third of the amount due him he would not be bound to execute a release. McIlhenny Co. v. Craddock, 68 T. 359, 4 S. W. 616. See Art. 91.

Art. 94. [74] Notice of assignee's appointment, when and how given.—Every assignee shall, within thirty days after the execution of the assignment, give public notice of his appointment, in some newspaper printed in the county where the assignor resides, or where his principal business was conducted, or, if no newspapers be printed therein, then in the newspaper published nearest to such place of residence or business, and which notice shall be published for three successive weeks; and, so far as he can, the assignee shall also give personal notice, or notice by mail, to each of the creditors of the assigning debtor. [Act July 24, 1879, p. 37.]

Form of notice.—Actual notice is sufficient. Haynie v. Blum (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 365.

Art. 95. [75] How and when consenting creditors may accept.—The creditors of the assignor consenting to such assignment shall make known to the assignee their consent in writing, within four months after the publication of the notice provided in the preceding article, and no creditor not assenting shall receive or take any benefit under the assignment; provided, however, that any creditor, who had no actual notice of such assignment, may make known his assent at any time before any distribution of assets under the assignment has been made; and provided, further, that the receipt by a creditor of any portion of his claim from the assignee, shall be conclusive evidence of the assent of such creditor to the assignment. [Act July 24, 1879, p. 37.]

Necessity of acceptance.—Where the deed imposes no terms upon the creditors the law presumes the acceptance by the creditors of an assignment for their benefit. (Baldwin v. Peet, 22 T. 708, 75 Am. Dec. 806.) Kellogg v. Muller, 68 T. 182, 4 S. W. 361.

It is error to set aside a deed of assignment and still require the assignee to administer the debtor's estate for the benefit of the creditors attacking the assignment. Swearingen v. Hendley, 1 U. C. 639.

A trust deed declared as beneficiaries two creditors of the makers of the deed. One of the named beneficiaries accepted the deed and placed it on record, etc. The other creditor knew nothing of it until after the goods were attached by other creditors. The goods were not of value equal to the claim of the accepting creditor. Held, that the fact that one of the beneficiaries had not accepted would not invalidate the deed, or deprive the trustee of the right to possession of the goods, etc. Willis v. Thompson, 85 T. 301, 20 S. W. 155.

Creditors refusing to accept cannot assert any rights under a trust deed. Milling Co. v. Eaton, 86 T. 407, 25 S. W. 614, 24 L. R. A. 369; White v. Sterzing, 11 C. A. 553, 32 S. W. 909.

A deed of trust for the benefit of creditors is not binding until accepted. Schneider v. McCoulsky, 6 C. A. 501, 26 S. W. 170.

Form of acceptance.—This article does not make consent of any other character invalid, and the assignee may waive written notice, provided the claim itself was duly filed so that it could be taken into consideration in marshaling the debts due from the estate. Sanborn v. Norton, 59 T. 308.

A deed of assignment was drawn to be signed by the makers, the assignee, and the creditors "who have executed or may hereafter execute or accede to its terms." The signature of the creditors is unnecessary, and their acceptance can be expressed in the mode prescribed by the statute. Windham v. Patty, 62 T. 490.

Attachment of exempt property is not an election not to take by the assignment. Patty-Joiner Co. v. City Bank of Sherman, 15 C. A. 475, 41 S. W. 173.

Facts held to show that a creditor had not consented to the assignment, as required by this article in order to entitle him to participate in such assignment. Moody v. Templeman, 23 C. A. 374, 56 S. W. 588.

Acceptance as to part of claim.—A creditor who holds a secured and an unsecured claim may accept as to the unsecured claim and decline as to the other; and as to any unsatisfied balance of the secured claim after the security has been exhausted he may maintain an action against his debtor. Kauffman v. Hudson, 65 T. 716.

Art. 96. [76] Where assignee shall reside and his preliminary duties and bond approved by county or district judge.—Every such assignee shall be a resident of this state and of the county in which the assignor resides, or in which his principal business was conducted; and he shall forthwith, after the execution and delivery of the deed of assignment, cause the same to be recorded as herein provided, in the county of such assignee's residence, and also in every county in which there is any real property conveyed to him by such deed of assignment, and shall execute a bond, with sureties, to be approved by the judge of the county court of the county in which the assignee resides, or by the judge of the district court of the judicial district in which such county is situated, conditioned that he will faithfully discharge his duties as such assignee, and that he will make proportional distribution of the net proceeds of the assigned estate among the creditors entitled thereto; which bond shall be payable to the state of Texas, and shall be filed with the county clerk of the county in which such assignee resides, and shall inure to the benefit of the assignor, and the creditor or creditors, who may maintain an action thereon against such assignee and sureties, in his or their own name, jointly or severally, for any breach thereof, or violation of this law, by reason of which such assignor or creditor shall sustain damage; and upon the filing of said bond the assignee shall take possession of the assigned property, and proceed to execute the assignment; and, if such assignee shall not, within five days after the delivery of the deed of assignment, execute an approved bond and file the same with the county clerk, as herein provided, such assignment shall nevertheless take effect as against the assignor and his creditors; and it shall be the duty of the county judge, or judge of the district court, as aforesaid, upon the application of the assignor, or any creditor, and being satisfied that such bond has not been given, approved and filed, to appoint in writing another competent assignee, who shall, upon the execution of such bond, approved and filed as herein provided, take possession of the assigned property and proceed to execute the assignment. [Acts 1883, p. 46.]

In general.—See Tittle v. Vanleer (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 736; Bean v. Warden (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 831.

This article is directory only. Burnette v. Foreman (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 1032.

Residence of assignee.—The provision as to the residence of the assignee is directory only, and the assignment is not invalidated by the fact that the assignee and assignor do not reside in the same county. Foreman v. Burnett, 83 T. 396, 18 S. W. 756.

Approval of bond.—The action of the judge in approving the bond of an assignee cannot be called in question in a suit by the assignee against one who wrongfully takes the property assigned. Cunningham v. Holt, 12 C. A. 150, 33 S. W. 981.

Resignation, death, or failure to qualify, and appointment of new trustee.—The district court has power to appoint an assignee to execute the trust after the death of an assignee appointed by an insolvent debtor. Blum v. Welborne, 58 T. 157.

The judge may accept the resignation of an assignee named by the debtor, who announces his refusal to act, and appoint another in his stead. Keating v. Vaughn, 61 T. 518.

The failure of the assignee to give bond does not take the assignment out of the provisions of the statute or justify an attachment. Windham v. Patty, 62 T. 494; Fant v. Elsbury, 68 T. 1, 2 S. W. 866. The judge may make the appointment under this article in vacation, without notice to the assignor, or to the assignee who has failed to qualify; the order is appealable under articles 2078, 2079. Birmingham Drug Co. v. Freeman, 15 C. A. 451, 39 S. W. 626.

The surviving wife cannot administer the trust imposed by this statute after the death of her husband, and cannot be made a party to a suit brought by her deceased husband as assignee. Woessner v. Crank, 67 T. 388, 3 S. W. 318.

Liability on bond and enforcement thereof.—An action may be brought by a creditor against the assignee on his bond whenever, through negligence or fraud, he has imperiled or misapplied the assets belonging to the assignor. It is no defense to such action that the assignor had not placed on his schedule the particular assets thus endangered; if not in his possession, the assignee should obtain possession. Blum v. Wettermark, 56 T. 80.

In an action on an assignee's bond by a non-consenting creditor, he must show that there are or should be assets in the hands of the assignee and that they are withheld. Craddock v. Orand, 72 T. 36, 12 S. W. 208.

Where the property has been seized under judicial process and the assignee thereby prevented from realizing anything, such facts are a bar to an action by a non-consenting creditor upon the bond; and the sureties are not estopped from making such defense by a judgment against the assignee in garnishment proceedings under the statute. Id.

Creditors may maintain an action on the bond to recover money illegally paid to another creditor. A suit to establish the devastavit in the first instance is not necessary. Kaufman v. Wolf, 77 T. 250, 13 S. W. 987.

A suit and final judgment against the assignee alone will not suspend the statute of limitations as to the sureties on the bond. Id.

Where the assignee of a corporation for the benefit of creditors appears at the hearing upon a petition of a creditor of the corporation and does not object to or appeal from an order of court appointing a receiver for the corporation and ordering all the money in his hands as assignee to be turned over to the receiver, his failure to pay over the money upon demand is such a misappropriation of the money as to constitute a breach of his surety's bond and to make it liable thereon to the receiver. American Bonding Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 652.

Duties of assignee and proceedings to compel performance thereof.—It is the duty of an assignee to convert the assigned property into money at the earliest practicable period, and not to carry on the business in which his assignor may have been engaged. If he expends money in the conduct of a business, he must be prepared to show that he exercised ordinary prudence and care, otherwise he will be held responsible for the expenditures improperly made. Wynne v. Hardware Co., 67 T. 40, 1 S. W. 568.

An assignee cannot divest himself of his fiduciary character, nor relieve himself of responsibility as such, by abandoning the trust estate or by conveying it to another; and limitation does not run in his favor against any one or more of the creditors interested in the estate. At the instance of one or more of the creditors, an assignee may be removed by order of the district court under its equity jurisdiction, which is not dependent upon the amount of the claim of the creditors asking the protection of the trust estate in the hands of an assignee. The right of a creditor by suit to compel the assignee to account and to pay over, etc., is not dependent upon the amount. McIlhenny Co. v. Todd, 71 T. 400, 9 S. W. 445, 10 Am. St. Rep. 753; Becker v. Shayne, 77 T. 260, 13 S. W. 1027.

After an assignee has accepted and taken possession of the estate it is his duty to protect the property. This rule applies to an unlawful seizure of the goods by a creditor of the assignor under attachment. Roby v. Meyer, 84 T. 386, 19 S. W. 557.

Facts held sufficient to show collusion between the trustee in a deed of trust and certain attaching creditors by which the beneficiaries in the deed were deprived of the proceeds of the property conveyed. Sawyer v. First Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 486, 93 S. W. 151.

When assignment takes effect.—A deed of assignment does not take effect until its execution and delivery. Calisher v. Mathias (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 265.

An instruction that title of assignee vests from the execution of the assignment held erroneous, as the statute uses the words "execution and delivery." Id.

Operation and effect of assignment as to creditors.—See notes under Art. 91.

Art. 97. [77] Fraud of assignor will not defeat assignment.—No fraudulent act, intent or purpose of the assignor or assignee shall have the effect to defeat the assignment or to deprive the creditors consenting thereto from the benefits thereof, but any such fraudulent act, intent or purpose on the part of the assignee shall be sufficient cause for his removal, as being an unsuitable person to perform the trust; and any consenting creditor may be or become a party to prosecute or defend in any suit or proceeding necessary or proper for the enforcement of his rights under such assignments, or for the protection of his interests in the assigned property. [Acts 1883, p. 46.]

Fraud as affecting assignment.—The rights of creditors under an assignment are not prejudiced by the fraudulent acts or intentions of the assignor or assignee, preceding or at the time of the assignment. Blum v. Welborne, 58 T. 157; Windham v. Patty, 62 T. 490; Piggott v. Schram, 64 T. 447; Lewy v. Fischl, 65 T. 321; Schoolher v. Hutchins, 66 T. 329, 1 S. W. 266; Moody v. Carroll, 71 T. 143, 8 S. W. 510, 10 Am. St. Rep. 734; Boyd v. Haynie, 83 T. 7, 18 S. W. 156.

R. T., a merchant, made an assignment in which M. T. joined; the property conveyed was attached by a creditor of R. T., who alleged that the assignment was fraudulent and void, because the entire property conveyed belonged to R. T., etc. Held, that the assignment was not void, and the creditor could protect his interest in the distribution of the property by an appeal to the equity jurisdiction of the court. Windham v. Patty, 62 T. 490.

A fraudulent conveyance, etc., by debtor will not affect the assignment. The assignee or creditor may contest such sales. Moody v. Carroll, 71 T. 144, 8 S. W. 510, 10 Am. St. Rep. 734.

Preferences, conditions, and directions as to management of trust.—See note under Art. 91.

Suit by creditors.—When the assignee and others have converted assets of the estate to their own use, suit should not be brought in his name, but should be brought by some of the creditors for the benefit of all. Blum v. Wettermark, 56 T. 80.

In action by creditors against assignee for benefit of creditors for compensation for wrongful appropriation of property belonging to the estate, measure of damages held to be the value of the property at the time of the trial. McCord v. Nabours, 101 T. 494, 109 S. W. 913, 111 S. W. 144.

Assignee for benefit of creditors held entitled in such action to credit for money paid by him for such property to the estate. Id.

Plaintiffs in such case held not entitled to recover compensation retained by assignee for making the pretended sale of property in view of pleading and proof. Id.

Defendant in such action held entitled to compensation for enhanced value of property caused by improvements placed on property prior to commencement of suit. Id.

Petition in such suit held to state cause of action against assignee. Id.

In such action plaintiffs held entitled to recover all the property appropriated. Id.

A creditor of assigning debtors who became a party to a fraud by the assignee held not entitled to recover from the assignee property fraudulently conveyed to him. McCord v. Sprinkel (Sup.) 141 S. W. 945, judgment modified (Sup.) 145 S. W. 903.

Such creditors held not required to offer to contribute to expenses incurred by other creditors instituting a suit. Id.

Suit by creditors of assigning debtors held a suit for the benefit of all accepting creditors. Id.

The creditors of assigning debtors who sue to remove the assignees and to annul a sale held to act as plaintiffs for all accepting creditors. Id.

The participation by a creditor of assigning debtors in a fraud by the assignees is no defense for the assignees against recovery by other creditors. Id.

Creditors of assigning debtors held without authority to compromise the rights of the estate in a litigation instituted by them. Id.

A settlement of the fee of counsel employed by creditors of assigning debtors suing to remove the assignees and to annul a sale made by them and for a receiver held to give no right to the assignee as against intervening accepting creditors or the estate. Id.

That intervening creditors of assigning debtors had contracted for the payment of attorney's fees held not available as a defense in the suit. Id.

Such creditors held entitled to be reimbursed for fees and costs in a suit by them to such amount as may be shown to have contributed to the recovery of the funds of the estate. Id.

Liability of accepting creditors.—Creditors accepting payment of debt from a trustee held not liable by the fact that he converted certain goods obtained by his assignor by fraud. Blalock v. Joseph Bowling Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 305.

Art. 98. [78] Proof of claim, when and how made.—Every creditor consenting to an assignment shall, within six months from the time of the first publication of the notice of the appointment of the assignee, file with such assignee a distinct statement of the particular nature and amount of his claim against the debtor, which shall be supported by an affidavit of the creditor, his agent or attorney, that the statement is true, that the debt is just and that there are no credits or offsets that should be allowed against the claim, except as shown by the statement; and no creditor shall take any benefit under any assignment whatever who neglects to file such statement. [Acts of 1879, p. 57.]

Necessity of proof.—A payment cannot be made to an accepting creditor unless a statement is filed as required in this article. If a payment is made by the assignee in good faith and under the advice of counsel, he must, nevertheless, account to consenting creditors, who have properly established their claims, for the money so misapplied. Wynne v. Hardware Co., 67 T. 40; 1 S. W. 568.

Time for presentation.—The pendency of a suit by a creditor, which from its very nature must leave a large portion of a creditor's claim due from the assignee, will not excuse him for awaiting the action of the courts indefinitely before proving up any portion of his claim; and the fact that the precise sum due is difficult of ascertainment does not excuse the creditor from making proof within the time prescribed. Lovenberg v. Bank, 67 T. 440, 2 S. W. 874, 5 S. W. 816.

Affidavit.—On an assignment for the benefit of creditors, held, that a creditor could not, after the expiration of the six months for filing claims, amend his affidavit, so as to cause it to relate back to the time of filing. Hughes v. Potts, 39 C. A. 179, 87 S. W. 708.

An affidavit that merely states that the account is "correct" without stating that it is "true" and that it is just, is not sufficient. Hughes v. Potts, 39 C. A. 179, 87 S. W. 709.

Art. 99. [79] Surplus subject to garnishment.—Any creditor not consenting to the assignment may garnishee the assignee for any excess of such estate remaining in his hands, after the payment to the consenting creditors the amount of their debts and the costs and expenses of executing the assignment. [Acts of 1879, p. 57.]

In general.—In an assignment for the benefit of accepting creditors there was a provision that, after paying the accepting creditors, the surplus remaining was to be paid to the assignor. Held, that the assignment was valid, and the remedy of the deferred creditors was by garnishment. Keating v. Vaughn, 61 T. 518; McLendon v. King, 2 App. C. C., § 310.

A creditor cannot, by process of attachment or garnishment, take the assigned estate out of the hands of the assignee and compel its application to the payment of his debt. After the trust has been fully executed, if there should be any excess, non-accepting creditors may have it applied by garnishment. In a proceeding by garnishment, the answer of the garnishee is sufficient to entitle him to a discharge until the trust is fully executed; but the garnishment proceeding may stand until accepting creditors are satisfied or paid, and give the garnishors a precedent right. Lovenberg v. Bank, 67 T. 440, 2 S. W. 874, 5 S. W. 816; Moody v. Carroll, 71 T. 143, 8 S. W. 510, 10 Am. St. Rep. 734; Carter Bros. v. Bush, 79 T. 29, 15 S. W. 167.

An attaching creditor claiming the proceeds of the debtor's property, which had been conveyed by valid assignment for the benefit of named creditors, must show that the claims enumerated in the deed of assignment have been paid, in order to subject the fund in the hands of the assignee to the satisfaction of his debt. Kellogg v. Muller, 68 T. 182, 4 S. W. 361.

Amount available to nonconsenting creditors.—Creditors who do not establish their claims under the assignment can reach only that which is not found necessary to satisfy the claims of accepting creditors and costs and expenses of the assignment. Schoolher v. Hutchins, 66 T. 324, 1 S. W. 266.

Discovery.—A non-consenting creditor by garnishing the assignee is entitled to a discovery of the condition of the estate, and thereby establishes his right to any excess in the hands of the assignee after the payment of prior claims, costs and expenses of the assignment. Craddock v. Orand, 72 T. 36, 12 S. W. 208.

Art. 100. [80] Property fraudulently sold by assignor passes by the assignment and may be recovered by assignee, etc.—All property conveyed or transferred by the assignor previous to and in contemplation of the assignment, with the intent or design to defeat, delay or defraud creditors, or to give preference to one creditor over another, shall pass to the assignee by the assignment, notwithstanding such transfer; and the assignee, or in case of his neglect or refusal, any creditor or creditors may in his name, upon securing such assignee against cost or liability, sue for, recover and collect the same, and cause the same to be applied for the benefit of creditors as other property belonging to the debtor's estate in the hands of the assignee; but, if it shall appear in such action that the purchaser of any such property bought the same of the assignor in good faith and for a valuable consideration, and without any reason to believe that the debtor was conveying or transferring the same with the intent or design aforesaid, such purchaser shall be held to have acquired as against the assignee and creditors aforesaid a good and valid title to such property. [Acts of 1879, p. 57.]

Assignee as bona fide purchaser.—A vendor who has been induced by the fraudulent representations of his vendee to sell him goods may recover them from one holding them under an assignment made by such vendee for the benefit of creditors. Such an assignee is not protected as a bona fide purchaser. Rohrbough v. Leopold, 68 T. 254, 4 S. W. 460.

Intent in making transfer.—This article does not authorize a suit to set aside a fraudulent conveyance not made in contemplation of an assignment. Dittman v. Weiss, 30 S. W. 863, 87 T. 614.

Purchasers and transferees protected.—In order to avoid a transfer or preference under this article, the transfer must have been executed or the preference given with the intent then formed to make the assignment. Construing the words "bought the same," used in the last clause of this section, it is held that the word bought is used as the equivalent of purchase in its enlarged sense, and that mortgagees as well as the purchasers of the absolute title were intended to be protected. Simmons Hardware Co. v. Kaufman, 77 T. 131, 8 S. W. 283.

An insolvent debtor executed to a creditor a mortgage with power to sell personal property, giving possession, the excess over the debt to be paid to the debtor. The sale was sustained against the assignee under a subsequent assignment by the mortgagor. Dupuy v. Burkitt, 78 T. 338, 14 S. W. 789.

Conditional sales.—An agreement reserving title until paid for held good against an assignee taking property under a general assignment. Mansur & Tebbetts Implement Co. v. Beeman-St. Clair Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 729.

For the rules of law fixing the rights between seller, who reserved title until goods were paid for, and buyer's assignee, see Mansur & Tebbetts Implement Co. v. Beer et al., 19 C. A. 311, 45 S. W. 972.

Suit to recover property.—Assignee held authorized to sue for recovery of land and to cancel sheriff's deed as cloud on his title as assignee. Thaxton v. Smith, 90 T. 589, 40 S. W. 14.

When suit is brought to cancel chattel mortgage as a fraudulent preference, all the accepting creditors must be made parties, as well as those creditors whose claims are charged by the petition to be fictitious. Cleveland v. People's Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 523.

Evidence in an action by a trustee under an assignment for benefit of creditors to recover the proceeds of goods alleged to have been fraudulently obtained held sufficient to establish the fraudulent intent. Galveston Shoe & Hat Co. v. Rowe, 49 C. A. 336, 109 S. W. 1101.

Art. 101. [81] Failure to attach inventory presumption of fraud, but does not vitiate assignment; assignor, etc., may be examined.—No assignment shall be declared fraudulent or void for want of any inventory or list, as provided herein, but the absence of the same shall be deemed prima facie evidence that the assignor or debtor has concealed or secreted some of his estate from his assignee or creditors; and whether the said list and inventory be prepared and filed or not, the judge of the district or county court, in whose court the proceedings shall have been filed, and having jurisdiction of the estate assigned, may, on the application of the assignee, or of any creditor of the assignor or debtor, or without such application, if the judge see fit, at all times require, upon such reasonable notice as the judge may direct, the assignor or debtor, or any other person, to attend and submit to an examination, on oath, upon all matters relating to the disposition made, or status of, the property of the estate assigned, including all transactions in the past bearing upon the rights of the assignee or creditors with respect to the estate in assignment, as contemplated in law. The judge may enforce attendance and obedience to the orders made, by a writ or order directed to the sheriff, or any constable, commanding the arrest of the persons referred to in the writ or order, to be brought before the judge at a time named for the purpose of examination, as provided herein, and such examination shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the persons examined, and shall be attested or sworn to before the clerk of the court wherein the proceedings are pending and filed with such clerk, for the use of those interested in the estate; provided, nevertheless, that no assignor or debtor shall be prosecuted or punished for any matter or thing disclosed by him on such examination as had above. The costs of such proceedings to be paid out of the estate assigned, or by the applicant for the examination, as the judge in each case may deem right and proper to order. [Acts 1883, p. 46.]

No assignment shall be declared fraudulent or void for want of any inventory or list as provided herein, but if such list and inventory be not annexed and verified as provided in this act, it shall be prima facie evidence that the assignor has secreted and concealed some portion of the property belonging to his estate from his assignee, unless, upon the demand of the assignee or a creditor, such verified inventory and list be furnished to the assignee; and if any assignee or creditor shall have reason to believe that any debtor has concealed any of his property or estate, for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, it shall be the duty of the district or county judge, upon application of said assignee or creditor, to cause such debtor to appear before him, either in vacation or term time, and disclose, under oath, any knowledge or information he or she may have relative to any such concealment.

Remedy of creditors.—An assignment is valid although the inventory be omitted and the bond of the assignee has not been filed. The remedy of the creditors is to apply for the appointment of another assignee to discharge the trust. This decision is upon the 10th section of the act of March 24, 1879. Windham v. Patty, 62 T. 490; Marsalis v. Ogelsby, 1 App. C. C., § 257.

Art. 102. [82] Verified claims shall be allowed by assignee unless contested.—The statement of a creditor, verified and filed with the assignee as hereinbefore provided, shall be sufficient prima facie evidence to justify the assignee in allowing it as a valid claim against the estate, and shall be so allowed, and such creditor shall be entitled to his proportional share of the debtor's estate, unless the assignor, or another creditor disputing the same, shall, within sixty days after the expiration of the time within which the creditors are required by this title to file their statements, institute an action in the district or county court of the proper county to set aside the allowance and to restrain the payment thereon, for which purpose the assignor or any disputing creditor or creditors may have a remedy, jointly or severally, by injunction or other proper action to try the justness and validity of the disputed claim; and, if it appears that an action could not successfully be maintained at law by the creditor against the assignor upon such claim or any disputed part thereof, the same shall be disallowed, in whole or in part, as the case may be, and the assignee restrained from paying the same, or such portion thereof as may be disallowed; and, for the information of the assignor and creditors, it is further provided, that the assignee shall allow them, or any of them, to take a copy of any creditor's statement of his claim that has been filed with such assignee as herein provided. [Acts 1879, p. 57.]

In general.—The only provision for attacking the allowance of a claim is found in this article, and that must be done within sixty days after the expiration of the six months provided for in article 98. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 498. See article 106.

Effect of verification and knowledge by assignee of invalidity of claim.—An assignee is not compelled to allow a claim that he knows to be illegal although it is properly verified. But proof of a claim by a creditor will justify its allowance. Statute is to protect the assignee in allowing, and not to compel him to allow claims. Briam v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 572.

While the statute is intended for the protection of the assignee in the allowance of claims he would not be protected in the allowance of claims known by him to be fraudulent or in excess of the true amount. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 497.

Remedies of assignor.—Assignor, objecting to allowance of claims by assignee for benefit of creditors under statutory assignment, held to have no remedy under rules applicable to common-law assignments, but bound to pursue the remedy provided by statute. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 494.

Attorney's fees.—Where a claim against estate assigned for the benefit of creditors was not placed in hands of attorney for collection, attorney's fees for the collection should not be allowed by the assignee. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 494.

Objections by non-accepting creditors.—Creditors not accepting an assignment cannot complain of erroneous allowance to accepting creditors, where in no event would there be any surplus after paying accepting creditors. Patty-Joiner Co. v. City Bank of Sherman, 15 C. A. 475, 41 S. W. 173.

Art. 103. [83] Unmatured claims discounted and collateral securities estimated and deduction for same.—Claims that are not due may be allowed at their present value, by discounting them at the rate of interest mentioned in the contract, if any, otherwise at the legal rate, and if any creditor holds collateral security of less value than his debt, the value thereof may be estimated by the assignee, and only the difference between such sum and the debt shall be allowed. [Acts 1879, p. 57.]

Secured and unsecured claims.—A creditor holding a claim that is secured, and another unsecured, may on his unsecured claim accept an assignment made for the benefit of accepting creditors, and may decline to accept as to the secured claim; and after exhausting his security he may maintain an action against his creditor for the unsatisfied balance of the secured claim, as if no assignment had been made. Kauffman v. Hudson, 65 T. 716.

Surplus after sale of collateral.—A creditor holding a debt secured by lien on personal property afterwards assigned for the benefit of creditors may by suit against the debtor and assignee enforce the payment of such debt by foreclosure of his lien and sale of the property, the surplus of the proceeds of the sale, after satisfying his judgment, being payable to the assignee. In such suits the assignee cannot impeach the lien in behalf of unsecured creditors of the assignor, on the ground that the mortgage had not been recorded, as required by statute. Keller v. Smalley, 63 T. 512.

Art. 104. [84] Assignee may be removed, and vacancy from any cause filled, how.—If any assignee becomes unsuitable to perform the trust, refuses or neglects so to do, or mismanages the property, the county judge or judge of the district court may, upon the application of the assignor, or one or more of the creditors, upon reasonable notice to all parties interested, by publication or otherwise, as such judge may direct, remove such assignee, and, in case of a vacancy by death or otherwise, shall appoint another in his place, who shall have the same powers and be subject to the same liabilities as the original assignee. [Acts 1879, p. 57.]

Removal of assignee.—See McIlhenny v. Todd, 71 T. 400, 9 S. W. 445, 10 Am. St. Rep. 753; and Becker v. Shayne, 77 T. 260, 13 S. W. 1027. The district court, under its general equity powers, has, in a suit brought against an assignee who is charged with misappropriating the assets, authority to remove him and appoint another. Blum v. Wettermark, 56 T. 80.

After a corporation had made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, a creditor sued the corporation to recover a debt, the petition asserting a lien and the right to the delivery of specific property, and also praying for an injunction and a receiver. The assignee was made a defendant, and at the hearing on the petition he was present by attorney and took no objection to or appeal from an order appointing a receiver and ordering all the money of the corporation in his possession as assignee to be turned over to the receiver. Held, that the order was one which the court had the legal power to make. American Bonding Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 652.

Such appointment was tantamount to a removal of the assignee. Id.

Art. 105. [85] Dividend declared, when and how—Allowance to assignee.—Whenever any assignee shall have in his hands funds sufficient to pay ten per cent of the debts due by the assignor, he shall make a pro rata distribution of the same among said creditors, and the assignee shall be entitled to reasonable compensation for his services and his necessary costs and expenses, including also his attorneys' fees, all to be allowed, in case of difference between the parties, by the county judge or judge of the district court. [Acts 1879, p. 57.]

In general.—An agent employed by the assignee to sell property of the estate held entitled to an order that his judgment against the estate for commission be paid out of the estate. Gibson v. Gray, 17 C. A. 646, 43 S. W. 922.

There is nothing in this article which prevents an assignor or creditor from questioning the amount of commissions charged by the assignee at any time before the expiration of twelve months from the time the final report is filed. This article does not deprive parties of a trial by jury. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 498.

Appeal to equity.—Creditors may appeal to the equity jurisdiction of the district court to secure a proper distribution of the property. Windham v. Patty, 62 T. 490.

Priorities.—When a writ of garnishment was sued out against an assignee, judgment was rendered requiring the assignee to pay, first, the costs and expenses of the trust; second, the claims of consenting creditors who had proved up their claims; third, the claims of garnishing creditors who had appealed, and any remaining fund to be paid out under decree of the district court. Lovenberg v. Bank, 67 T. 440, 2 S. W. 874, 5 S. W. 816.

Assignment by borrower of trust fund; acceptance by cestui que trust; question of priority. Mills v. Swearingen, 67 T. 269, 3 S. W. 268.

Recovery of money paid to creditor.—A suit brought by an assignee to recover back money illegally paid to a creditor is barred by limitation of two years. Wynne v. Willis, 76 T. 589, 13 S. W. 548.

Trustee for the benefit of creditors, allowing claim and paying it out of his private funds, cannot afterwards recover the money from the creditor on the latter's obtaining a second satisfaction from sureties. Park v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 46, 56 S. W. 759.

Art. 106. [86] Final report and discharge of assignee.—Whenever any assignee shall have fully performed the duties of his trust and desires to be finally discharged therefrom, he may make a report of his proceedings under the assignment, showing the moneys and assets that have come into his hands, and how the same have been disbursed and disposed of, the truth of which shall be verified by his affidavit; and such report shall thereupon be filed and recorded in the office of the county clerk of the county in which the assignment is recorded; and no action shall be brought against such assignee by reason of anything done by him under the assignment as shown by his report unless the same be brought within twelve months from the time of the filing thereof, as aforesaid; and any moneys or funds on hand shall be deposited in the district court, subject to be paid out upon the decree of said court. [Acts 1879, p. 57.]

In general.—Mere fact that three or four months elapsed between appointment of assignee for benefit of creditors and final report held not ground for compelling a report. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 494.

In absence of statutory requirement as to time for filing report of assignee for benefit of creditors, failure of assignee to file report until required by court held not such delay as required interference of equity to compel restatement of account. Id.

In suit to compel assignee for benefit of creditors to restate his account, petition held sufficient to authorize court of equity to require accounting. Id.

This article is not in conflict with article 102 and does not authorize a suit against the assignee within twelve months after his final report is filed in regard to the allowance of claims against the estate of the assignor. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 498.

While the statute does not provide for compelling the assignee to account, yet the court under its equity powers can compel an accounting whenever the interests of the creditors or the assignor demands it. Id.

Liability on bond.—See note under Art. 96.

Suit for breach of bond of assignee for benefit of creditors held maintainable, if instituted within 12 months after filing of assignee's report. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 494.

Where misconduct of an assignee for the benefit of creditors has caused breach of his bond, the surety, defending an action thereon, can have no credit on account of commissions to which faithful performance would have entitled the assignee. American Bonding Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 652.

Failure of an assignee for the benefit of creditors to pay over money under an order of court held a breach of his bond. Id.

Where an assignee of a corporation for the benefit of creditors was entitled to a commission of 5 per cent. under the provisions of the deed, and his misconduct has caused a breach of his surety's bond, the surety, in an action on the bond, is not entitled to credit on account of such commissions. Id.

Where such assignee appears at the hearing upon a petition of a creditor of the corporation and does not object to or appeal from an order of court appointing a receiver for the corporation and ordering all the money in his hands as assignee to be turned over to the receiver, his failure to pay over the money upon demand is such a misappropriation of the money as to constitute a breach of his surety's bond and to make it liable thereon to the receiver. Id.

Article 107. [87] [66] Lunatic asylum recognized and continued.—The asylums heretofore established by law and any others that may hereafter be established for the care and treatment of insane persons shall be managed and controlled in accordance with the provisions of this title. [Act 1883, p. 103.]

1. THE BOARDS OF MANAGERS

Art. 108. [88] Board of managers provided for.—The general control, management and direction of the affairs of the Texas asylums for the insane shall be vested in boards of managers, to be styled, the boards of managers of the lunatic asylums, subject only to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the legislature. Three of the members of each board shall reside within five miles of their respective asylums. [Acts 1883, p. 103.]

Art. 109. [89] [67] Board of managers, how constituted and appointed.—[The governor shall appoint for each lunatic asylum a board of managers consisting of five members, who shall hold their office for two years,] or until their successors are appointed and qualified; [and whenever a vacancy occurs in said boards it shall be filled by the governor,] and the term of office of the person so appointed shall be for the unexpired term of the person whose place is made vacant. [The board of managers shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate.] [Acts 1883, p. 103.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed part of this article is superseded by Arts. 4042a–4042c.

Art. 110. [90] [68] Compensation of members of board.—Each of the members of the boards of managers shall be paid five dollars per day and five cents a mile for going and returning from the asylums for the purpose of holding their monthly meetings provided for by this act; and no member shall be paid, except in case of his actual attendance on said meetings; and the certificate of the president of the boards of managers, approved by the superintendent, shall be a sufficient voucher for the comptroller to draw his warrant upon the treasurer for the amount due each member of said board for his attendance on said meetings; provided, no meeting shall be for a longer time than one day. [Acts 1883, p. 103.]

Art. 111. [91] [69] Organization of the board.—The boards of managers shall choose one of their number president, and the superintendent of the asylum shall be ex officio secretary of the board. A majority of the members of the boards shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. [Acts Feb. 5, 1858, p. 114, sec. 3; p. 116, sec. 6. P. D. 114, 118.]

Art. 112. [92] [70] Meetings and records of the boards.—The boards of managers shall hold monthly meetings at the asylums, and a full account of all their acts and proceedings shall be recorded by the secretary in a book to be provided for that purpose. [Acts 1883, R. S., p. 103.]

Art. 113. [93] [71] Powers of the board.—The members of said boards of managers shall be persons distinguished for their philanthropy; and, when appointed in accordance with this act, they shall have the general direction and control of all the property and business of the asylums, in accordance with the requirements of law; and in all those cases not provided for by law they shall have such direction and control of the property and business of the asylums according to the by-laws, rules and regulations of the asylums. They may take and hold in trust any gift or devise of real or personal estate for the benefit of the said asylums, and apply the same as the donor or devisor may direct. [Id.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d for limitation on power to contract debts.

Title of act.—The powers and duties prescribed by this and subsequent articles relating to the subject, are sufficiently broad to fully include as a part of the official duties of the superintendent and board of managers of the asylum for insane at Austin, the arrangement for the hauling of material for a new building by a part of the inmates of the asylum, who in the judgment of the medical staff were fit for such work. Clough v. Worsham, 32 C. A. 187, 74 S. W. 353.

Art. 114. [94] [72] Same subject.—The board of managers shall have power—

1. To make all necessary by-laws and regulations not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state, for the government of their institutions, officers, employés and inmates, and for the admission of visitors.

2. To determine the salaries and wages of all officers and employés of the asylums.

3. To discharge, upon the recommendation of the superintendent, any officer, employé, or patient, in the asylums.

4. Upon the nomination of the superintendents, to appoint the assistant physician, steward, matron and apothecary to the asylums.

5. To examine the accounts and vouchers of the superintendents and to reject or approve the same as they may deem right and proper.

6. To exercise a careful supervision over the general operations and expenditures of the asylums, and to direct the manner in which their revenues shall be disbursed.

7. They shall also cause to be kept a clinical record of all cases admitted in the asylums. [Acts 1883, R. S., p. 103.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d for limitation on power to contract debts.

Validity of asylum rules.—If a rule of an asylum goes to the extent of authorizing the superintendent to take property of a patient and deliver it to any other person not acting for and on his behalf, but asserting adverse ownership, it is inconsistent with the general common-law rule as to diligence to preserve private property in official custody. Worsham v. Votgsberger (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 157.

A construction of a rule as to custody and disposition of property of a patient in an asylum held to render it violative of the constitutional guaranties prohibiting taking of property without due process of law. Id.

Construction of rules.—A sister of a patient claiming money taken from his person as having been stolen from her, and requesting delivery to her as the rightful owner, held not a relative interested in looking after his welfare within the meaning of a rule providing for its delivery to such a relative. Worsham v. Votgsberger (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 157.

Art. 115. [95] [73] Monthly inspections.—The managers shall maintain an effective inspection of their asylums, a committee for which purpose shall visit them once every month, a majority once every quarter, and the whole board once a year, at the time and in the manner prescribed by the by-laws. In a book kept by the managers for this purpose, the visiting manager or managers shall note the date of each visit, the condition of the house, patients, etc., with remarks of commendation or censure, and all the managers present shall sign the same. [Acts 1883, R. S., p. 103.]

Art. 116. [96] [74] Biennial reports by the board.—The general result of these inspections, with suitable hints and suggestions, shall be inserted in the biennial report detailing the past year's operations and actual state of the asylums, which the boards shall make to the legislature in the month of January of each alternate year, accompanied by the report of the medical superintendents and stewards. [Id.]

Art. 117. [96a] Board authorized to dispose of artesian water.—The members of the board of managers of the Southwest Texas lunatic asylum, situated at San Antonio, Texas, are hereby authorized and empowered to sell, lease, or dispose of the water belonging to the state, and flowing from any of the artesian wells on the grounds of said asylum, for such price and upon such terms and conditions as the said board may deem to the best interest of the state; provided, that the term of said lease shall not exceed ten years. [Act 1893, p. 20.]

Art. 118. [96b] Same.—The members of the board of managers of the state lunatic asylum, situated at Austin, Texas, are hereby authorized and empowered to sell, lease or dispose of the water belonging to the state, and flowing from any of the artesian wells on the grounds of said asylum, for such price and upon such terms and conditions as the said board may deem to the best interest of the state; provided, that the term of said lease shall not exceed ten years. [Act 1895, p. 107.]

2. THE SUPERINTENDENTS

Art. 119. [97] [75] Their appointment, term, qualifications, etc.—The boards of managers of the lunatic asylums shall elect a medical superintendent of their respective asylums, who shall hold his office for two years. He shall be a married man, a skillful physician, and also be experienced in the treatment of insanity. He shall reside at the asylum with his family, and he shall devote his whole time exclusively to the duties of his office. [Act 1885, p. 9.]

Art. 120. [98] [77] Oath and bond.—The superintendent shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take the oath prescribed by the constitution for all officers of the state, and shall enter into bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the treasurer of the state, payable to the state, and conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as superintendent. [Act Aug. 28, 1856, p. 60, sec. 64; act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 116; P. D. 111, 118.]

Art. 121. [99] [78] Bond, where filed, etc.—The bond provided for in the preceding article shall be filed in the office of the treasurer of the state, and shall not become void upon a first recovery thereon, but may be sued upon until the full penalty is recovered. And certified copies of such bond, under the hand and official seal of the state treasurer, may be used in evidence in all courts and proceedings in this state with like effect as the original.

Art. 122. [100] [79] Removal of superintendent.—The boards of managers shall have power to remove the superintendent for good and sufficient cause only. [Acts 1883, p. 103.]

Art. 123. [101] [80] Powers and duties of superintendent.—The superintendent shall be the chief executive medical and disbursing officer of the institution, and, subject to the by-laws, shall have general care and control over everything connected therewith. He shall attend to the enforcement of the laws of this state relating to the asylums and the by-laws of the institution, and shall take care that all employés connected therewith diligently and faithfully perform the duties assigned to them; and it shall be his duty to admit any of the board of managers into every part of the asylum, and to exhibit to them, or either of them, on demand, all the books, papers and accounts belonging to the institution or pertaining to its business, management, discipline or government, also to furnish copies, abstracts and reports whenever required by the board. [Id.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d for limitation on power to contract debts.

Custody of property of inmates.—Unless authorized by law or a valid rule of the board of managers, the superintendent of an insane asylum has no authority to deliver to a person claiming it adversely money taken from the person of an inmate. Worsham v. Votgsberger (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 157.

Liability for negligence.—Superintendent of insane asylum held not guilty of negligence in allowing one of the inmates to be used for out-door work. Clough v. Worsham, 32 C. A. 187, 74 S. W. 350.

The acts of the superintendent of an insane asylum as to custody and disposition of money found on a patient are ministerial acts, as to which he may be made to respond. Worsham v. Votgsberger (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 157.

An officer cannot be held liable for any mistake made when acting in a judicial or quasi judicial capacity, but this rule does not apply to ministerial acts in excess of authority. Id.

While a ministerial officer in possession of property lawfully received is not an insurer of its safety, he must exercise reasonable care to preserve it for restoration to the person entitled, or for disposition as directed by law. Id.

Art. 124. [102] [81] Same subject.—The superintendent shall also, with the consent of the board of managers, employ such officers, attendants and other persons as may be required for the service of the institution, and with like consent may discharge them at pleasure. He shall also receive and discharge patients, superintend repairs and improvements, and take care that all moneys intrusted to him are judiciously and economically expended. [Acts 1883, p. 116, P. D. 118.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d for limitation on power to contract debts.

Liability for acts of appointees.—The general superintendent of a lunatic asylum held not liable for injuries caused by the negligence of a ward physician in improperly allowing an incompetent patient to be taken outside the grounds of the asylum. Clough v. Worsham, 32 C. A. 187, 74 S. W. 350.

Art. 125. [103] [82] Accounts and reports of superintendents.—The superintendent shall keep also an accurate and detailed account of all moneys received and expended by him, specifying the sources from which such moneys were received, and to whom and on what account paid out; and, on the first days of January and July of each year, he shall report the same under oath to the governor. [Acts 1883, p. 116, P. D. 118; Const., art. 4, sec. 24.]

Art. 126. [104] [83] Same subject.—The superintendent shall also keep a register of all patients received into the asylum and discharged therefrom, together with a full record of all the operations of the institution; and, on the first day of November of each year, he shall report such operations in full to the governor, accompanied with such suggestions and recommendations concerning the management and operations of the asylum as he may deem important. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 116, sec. 7; P. D. 119.]

Art. 127. [105] [84] Annual inventory.—On the first day of November of each year, the superintendent shall cause an inventory of all the personal property belonging to the asylum to be prepared, in which inventory the estimated value shall be set opposite each article, and shall submit the same to the board of managers. [Id. p. 116, sec. 6; P. D. 118.]

3. FISCAL MANAGEMENT

Art. 128. [106] [85] Officer not to deal with asylum.—No manager or other person connected with the asylums shall sell or be in any way concerned in the sale of any merchandise, supplies or other articles to the asylums, or have any interest in any contract therewith. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 120, sec. 23.]

Art. 129. [107] [86] Asylum money to remain in the treasury.—The appropriations made from time to time by the legislature for the support and maintenance of the asylums shall remain on deposit in the state treasury and be paid out, as are other public funds, upon the warrant of the comptroller of public accounts.

Art. 130. [108] [87] Board may regulate expenditures.—The boards of managers may adopt such regulations as they deem proper and necessary for the payment of expenses other than salaries, the supplies provided for in chapter three of this title, and such other expenditures as may be regulated by law; but under such regulations no money appropriated by law shall be drawn from the treasury, except upon vouchers specifying in detail the exact purpose for which the same is needed, certified as true and correct by the superintendents and approved by the presidents of the boards of managers.

Art. 131. [109] [88] Funds from outside sources, how disposed of.—All funds of every character received into or belonging to the asylums, other than the sums of money appropriated for their support from time to time by the legislature, shall, as soon as received, be paid over to the state treasurer by the superintendents or other persons receiving it; and the treasurer shall keep the same separate and apart from all other funds in his hands, and shall pay the same out only on the order of the superintendents, approved by the presidents of the boards of managers.

Art. 132. [110] [89] Requisites of the order.—The order mentioned in the preceding article shall specify on its face the purpose for which it is drawn and shall be deemed a sufficient voucher for the payment of the amount of money therein specified. [R. S. 1879, p. 89.]

Art. 133. [111] [90] Duties of the treasurer.—The treasurer of the state shall keep an exact account of the moneys received by him belonging to the asylums, from what source received, and to whom paid out and on what account; and to each annual report that he may be required to make by law to the governor or the legislature, he shall append a full report of his account with the asylum, showing the receipts and expenditures thereof for the year for which such report is made. [R. S. 1879, p. 90.]

4. ADMISSION AND DISCHARGE OF PATIENTS

Art. 134. [112] [91] Who may be admitted.—The following persons may be admitted into the asylums as patients:

1. All persons who have been adjudged insane by a court of competent jurisdiction in this state and ordered to be conveyed to the asylum. This class shall be known as public patients.

2. All persons who may be certified to be insane by some respectable physician, under the regulations hereinafter prescribed. This class shall be known as private patients. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 117, sec. 13; P. D. 125.]

Art. 135. [113] [92] Procedure for admission of private patients.—Before any person can be received as a patient under paragraph 2 of the preceding article, the parent or legal guardian of such person, or, in case he has no parent or legal guardian, then some near relative or other person interested in him must present a written request to the superintendent for his admission, setting forth the name, age and residence of the lunatic, together with such other particulars as may be required by the superintendent or the by-laws of the institution; which written request must be under oath of the party presenting it, and be accompanied with the affidavit of the physician certifying to the insanity that he has made careful examination of the person for whom admission is applied for and verily believes him to be insane. [Id.]

Art. 136. [114] [93] County judge must certify.—The application referred to in the preceding article must also be accompanied by a certificate from the county judge of the county where the lunatic resides that the physician certifying to the insanity of the person is a respectable physician in regular practice, which certificate of the county judge must be attested by the seal of the county court of his county. [Id.]

Art. 137. [115] [94] Indigent patients at state expense.—All indigent public patients shall be kept and maintained at the expense of the state. [Acts Aug. 15, 1876, p. 139, sec. 4.]

Art. 138. [116] [95] Public patients also, but state may be reimbursed.—All public patients not indigent shall be kept and maintained at the expense of the state in the first instance, but in such cases the state shall be entitled to reimbursement in the mode pointed out in articles 158 and 159 of this chapter.

Not exclusive remedy.—The remedy prescribed by this article is not exclusive, and does not affect the common-law right of the state to recover for money expended in the care of a demented person against his guardian or other person liable for his support, based on implied duty to pay for the benefits received without reference to the lunacy proceedings, and the common-law remedy is unaffected by the fact that the lunatic is dead, and an action may be maintained against his administrator. Luder's Adm'r v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 220.

Art. 139. [117] [96] Private patients at their own expense.—All private patients shall be kept and maintained at the asylum at their own expense or the expense of their relatives or friends; and for the board of such patients, the superintendent may make a special contract at a rate of not less than five dollars per week; and, at the time of the admission of any such patient into the asylum, his board must be paid in advance for six months, and bond and security given for the prompt payment of all future expenses of such patient as may from time to time be required by the by-laws of the institution. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, pp. 117–18, sec. 13; P. D. 125; act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 140, sec. 9.]

Art. 140. [118] [97] Preferences in admission.—If application be made for the admission of more patients than can be accommodated in the asylum, preference shall be given, in all instances, to public over private patients, and, of the former class, to cases of less than one year's duration over chronic cases, and to indigent patients over others possessed of property; and no private patients shall be admitted during pendency of an application by a public patient, nor shall any public non-indigent patient be admitted during the pendency of an application by an indigent public patient. [Acts of 1883, p. 105.]

Art. 141. [119] [98] Idiots, etc., not to be admitted.—No idiot who can be safely kept in the county to which he belonged, nor any person laboring under a contagious or infectious disease, shall be received into the asylum as a patient. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 117, sec. 12; P. D. 124.]

Art. 142. [120] [99] Discharge of patients.—Any patient, except such as are charged with, or convicted of, some offense, and have been adjudged insane in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, may be discharged from the asylum at any time upon the recommendation of the superintendent, approved by the board of managers. Any patient coming within the above exception can only be discharged by order of the court by which he was committed. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 118, secs. 11, 15; 127; P. D. 128.]

Discharge of person under Indictment.—Under Pen. Code 1911, art. 39, providing that no person becoming insane after committing an offense shall be tried while insane, and Code Cr. Proc. 1911, arts. 1023–1025, providing that, when accused is found to be insane, the proceedings against him shall be suspended until he become sane, but that he shall be committed to the custody of the sheriff, subject to the order of the county judge, who shall take the necessary steps to have accused confined in an asylum until he becomes sane, one found to have become insane after indictment and before trial may be restrained in an insane asylum, as authorized by this article, until he becomes sane, and he must be returned for trial to the custody of the court having jurisdiction, and he may not be released on bail in the meantime, though the offense charged is bailable. Wilson v. State (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 117.

Art. 143. [121] [100] Same subject.—No patient shall be discharged without suitable clothing and sufficient money to pay his necessary expenses home; and, when a patient is discharged uncured, he shall be provided with a suitable guard and conveyed to his friends or to the county from which he was sent. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 118, sec. 16; P. D. 128.]

Art. 144. [122] [101a] Insane discharged convict, proceedings as to.—When a convict shall be discharged from one of the state penitentiaries, and is insane at the time of his discharge, and it shall be adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction within thirty days after his discharge that said convict is insane and that he should be placed under restraint, he shall be delivered to the superintendent of the penitentiaries, or to one of the assistant superintendents of the penitentiary, to be conveyed to one of the lunatic asylums of this state by said superintendent, or under his direction; and the expenses incurred in said adjudication and in keeping and conveying such patient to the asylum, including such clothing as shall be necessary for his comfort, shall be paid by the state upon the certificate of the superintendent of the penitentiary. [Acts of 1895, p. 164.]

Art. 145. [123] [101] County to pay expenses of conveying public patients.—The expenses of conveying all public patients to the asylum shall be borne by the counties, respectively, from which they are sent; and said counties shall pay the same upon the sworn account of the officer or person performing such service, showing in detail the actual expenses incurred in the transportation. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 140, sec. 6.]

Art. 146. [124] [102] County to be reimbursed, when.—In case any public patient is possessed of property sufficient for the purpose, or any person legally liable for his support is so possessed of property, the county paying the expenses of such transportation shall be entitled to reimbursement out of the estate of the lunatic or the property of the person legally liable for his support, which may be recovered by the county in an ordinary action in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Art. 147. [125] [103] Transportation home by the state.—The expense of conveying to their homes public patients discharged from the asylums, and the necessary clothing furnished to them at the time of their discharge, shall be paid by the state. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 140, sec. 6.]

Art. 148. [126] [104] Escape from asylum.—If any person confined in the asylum shall escape therefrom, it shall be the duty of any sheriff or peace officer to apprehend and detain him and to report the same to the county judge of the county, and also to the superintendent of the asylum, and upon the order of either to convey such patient back to the asylum. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 119, sec. 22; P. D. 133.]

Art. 149. [127] [105] Fees for conveying patient back.—Any officer who may convey a patient to the asylum in accordance with the provisions of the preceding article shall be paid for such service out of the funds of the asylum, at the rate of ten cents per mile for himself and each necessary guard he may employ, going and returning, and the same for the patient going, the distance to be determined by the superintendent, according to the most direct traveled route. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, pp. 119–20, sec. 22; P. D. 134.]

5. JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS IN CASES OF LUNACY

Art. 150. [128] [106] Apprehension.—Whenever an affidavit is filed with any county judge that any person in his county is a lunatic, or is non compos mentis and that the welfare of such person or of others, requires that such person be placed under restraint or under treatment for such mental condition, or that such person is a convict confined in the state penitentiary, and such county judge shall believe the statement in such affidavit to be true, he shall forthwith issue his writ for the apprehension of such person; or upon the filing of such affidavit before any justice of the peace, said justice may issue a writ for the apprehension of such person, making such writ returnable to the county judge of his county, and shall file with, or transmit to such county judge said affidavit; and thereupon said county judge shall, in either event, cause said affidavit to be docketed on the probate docket of his court as an ex-parte proceedings, the name of the person whose sanity is questioned in said affidavit to be made and named the respondent in such ex-parte proceeding. [Acts 1913, p. 341, sec. 1.]

Art. 151. [129] [107] The writ.—The writ provided for in the preceding article shall run in the name of "The State of Texas," and shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county; and the officer receiving it shall forthwith execute the same by reading the same to the person named therein and by delivering a copy thereof of [to] such person; and shall take into custody the person named therein, and have such person at such times and places as may be directed by the commission hereinafter provided for; provided, however, such officer shall not execute said writ, or having executed same in any of its particulars, shall surrender such person, if some person undertakes before the county judge or justice of the peace, as the case may be, the care and restraint of such person and the appearance of such person before said commission and county judge throughout the proceedings in said cause, by executing a bond in a sum to be fixed by the county judge, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, payable to the state of Texas, with two or more good and sufficient sureties to be approved by the county judge or justice of the peace, as the case may be, conditioned that the party giving such bond will care for and restrain the person named in said writ and have him present before the commission to be appointed in the proceeding based on said affidavit at such times and places as said commission may require, until the person named in said writ shall have been discharged or placed in custody under the judgment that may be rendered in such proceeding. [Id.]

Art. 152. Commission appointed.—Upon the filing of said affidavit the county judge shall appoint a commission, to be composed of six persons as hereinafter provided, which commission shall investigate and determine the allegations in said affidavit in the manner hereinafter provided in this Act. If the affidavit be filed in a county having a population of 50,000, each member of said commission shall be a physician; in counties having a population of less than 50,000 but more than 25,000, four of the members of said commission shall be physicians; in counties having a population of less than 25,000 but more than 10,000, three of said commission shall be physicians; in counties having a population of less than 10,000, but more than 5,000, two of the members of said commission shall be physicians; in counties having less than 5,000 population, one of the members of said commission shall be a physician; and in any county as many of said six commissioners shall be physicians as may be possible for the county judge to obtain thereon, regardless of population. The population of a county under this article to be determined by the last preceding United States decennial census. If any of the commissioners appointed shall decline to serve, the county judge shall appoint others instead until six have signified their willingness to serve. [Id.]

Art. 153. Oath to be administered.—Whenever six persons appointed commissioners have signified to the county judge their willingness to serve as commissioners in such proceedings, the county judge shall administer to each, either separately or in a body, as may be convenient, the following oath: "You (or each of you, as the case may be) do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you will due investigation make into the allegations contained in the affidavit filed in the cause of ex-parte ——— penting [pending] on the probate docket of the county court of this county, and you will a true report make, of the result of your investigation, so help me God." [Id.]

Art. 154. Organization of commission.—After said oath shall have been administered to each of said six commissioners, said commissioners shall organize by electing one of its members as chairman thereof, and shall thereupon proceed to enter upon an investigation of the allegations of said affidavit; and a majority of said commissioners shall fix, from time to time, the places and times of hearing any evidence they, or either of them, or either counsel, may desire thereon; and upon the request of the chairman, or upon the request of a majority of said commissioners, or upon the request of either counsel, the clerk of the county court shall issue process for such witness, or witnesses, as may be desired, to appear at such time and place in said county as theretofore determined by said majority. [Id.]

Art. 155. Counsel.—The county attorney shall appear and represent the affiant of said affidavit, and shall be notified by the commission of all times and places fixed by the commission for hearing of testimony. The respondent shall also be entitled to counsel, and if the respondent has no counsel, the county judge shall appoint counsel for him and the commission shall notify such counsel of all times and places fixed by the commission for hearing of testimony. [Id.]

Art. 156. Proceedings and report of commission.—Said commission need not remain together at any time, but a majority of same must be present at the hearing of any testimony, and a majority thereof may fix the times and places of its sittings; but each member of said commission shall personally examine the respondent.

Each of said commissioners during the progress of said investigation shall have power to administer oaths, to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of evidence, and to punish for contempt as fully as is provided by law for the county court; and should any person be guilty of false swearing or perjury before said commissioners, or either of them, in the matter of such investigation, he shall be punished as prescribed for punishment of false swearing or perjury, as the case may be, in the Penal Code of this state. Said commission shall conclude its investigation within ten days from its organization, and upon finishing its investigation as determined by a majority thereof, shall file with the county clerk a report of its findings, which report shall be read by the county judge to the respondent in the presence of a majority of said commission, and which report shall state (a) whether or not the respondent is of unsound mind, and (b) if the respondent is of unsound mind, whether or not he should be placed under treatment for such mental condition, and (c) if he is of unsound mind, whether or not he should be placed under restraint; and if the findings of the commission, or a majority thereof, are as to the preceding matters in the negative, nothing further in the report shall be made; but if the first and either one of the second and third matters are in the affirmative, by said commissioners or a majority thereof, then the report shall further show (d) the age and nativity of the respondent, and (e) a general summary of the nature, extent and duration of such person's mental unsoundness and (f) whether or not insanity is hereditary in his family, and (g) whether or not the respondent is possessed of any estate exempt from forced sale, and if so, of what it consists, and its estimated value, and if the report shows that the respondent is possessed of no estate exempt from forced sale, it shall further show what persons there are, if any, who are liable for his support; and such report shall contain (h) such further observations as a majority of the commission may deem pertinent. [Id.]

Arts. 157, 158.—Repealed by omission from the amendatory act of April 8, 1913 (Acts 1913, p. 341).

Art. 159. Judgment.—If subdivisions a, b and c of such report be concurred in by a majority of said commission, judgment shall thereupon be pronounced by the county judge in the presence of the respondent, as follows: If the majority report shows that the respondent is not of unsound mind, or that he is of unsound mind, but that it is not necessary that he be placed under treatment or restraint, the county judge shall pronounce judgment that the respondent be discharged. If subdivisions, a, b and c of said report be concurred in by a majority of said commission and such report shows that the respondent is of unsound mind and that he should be placed under treatment or restraint, judgment shall be pronounced, in the presence of respondent, adjudging the respondent to be a lunatic and ordering him to be conveyed to one of the lunatic asylums of the state for restraint and treatment. If three of said commissioners report one way on subdivisions a, b and c, and three report the other way, the county judge shall pronounce judgment in the presence of respondent, that the respondent be discharged. Whatever judgment that is pronounced shall be entered by the county judge on the docket in such proceeding. [Acts 1913, p. 341, sec. 1.]

Art. 160. Recovery for support.—If the report of a majority of said commissioners shows that the respondent is possessed of an estate exempt from forced sale, or that some person is legally liable for his support the county attorney shall at any time thereafter, upon the request of the superintendent of any lunatic asylum of the state, cite the guardian of the estate of such lunatic, or other person liable for his support, to appear at some regular term of a court of the county of such adjudication, having jurisdiction of the amount involved, then and there to show cause why the state should not have judgment for the amount due it for the support and maintenance of such lunatic; and if sufficient cause be not shown, judgment may be entered against such guardian or person so cited for the amount found to be due the state, which judgment may be enforced as in other cases. The state in such cases shall in no instance recover more than five dollars per week for the support and maintenance of any lunatic, and the certificate of the superintendent of the lunatic asylum as to the amount due the state shall be sufficient evidence to authorize the court to render judgment. [Id.]

Art. 161. Conveyance to asylum and discharge therefrom.—Immediately after any person is adjudged a lunatic by the judgment of the county judge on the report of a majority of the commissioners as hereinbefore provided, the county judge shall issue a writ to the sheriff or some other suitable person directing him to take such lunatic into his custody and to whenever so directed by the county judge, convey said lunatic to some specified lunatic asylum of the state without delay; and said writ shall prescribe the number of guards to be allowed therefor, if any, but in no case shall the number of guards exceed two. The person to whom such writ is directed shall not execute the same, however, as to conveying the lunatic to an asylum, no [nor] shall the county judge so direct such further execution of same until the county judge shall have first communicated with the superintendent of each of the lunatic asylums of the state and ascertained whether or not there is a vacancy in either and that the lunatic can be accommodated in one, whereupon said county judge shall instruct and direct the person to whom such writ is addressed to what asylum said lunatic shall be conveyed and delivered; provided further, however, that the person to whom such writ is directed shall not execute same in any of its particulars if some persons executes and files with the county judge a bond in a sum to be fixed by the county judge, payable to the state of Texas, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the county judge, conditioned that the party giving such bond will restrain and take care of such lunatic and have such lunatic placed under treatment for his mental condition so long, in all three instances, as his mental unsoundness continues, or until he is delivered back to the sheriff of the county of such adjudication for conveyance to a state lunatic asylum, or is delivered to the superintendent of one of the lunatic asylums of the state and receipt obtained therefor, which bond shall be filed with and constitute a part of the records of the proceedings, and may be sued and recovered upon by any person injured, in his own name. No female patient shall be conveyed to the asylum by any person not her husband, father, brother, son, uncle or nephew, without the attendance of some female of reputable character and mature age appointed therefor by the county judge; and the superintendent of the asylum upon the delivery of each and every lunatic to the asylum shall forthwith execute an acknowledgment of his or her arrival and reception, and in case of female lunatics received shall state whether there was a female attendant accompanying her, and shall mail such acknowledgment of the arrival and reception of a lunatic to the county judge of the county from which such lunatic was sent, which acknowledgment shall be filed by the county clerk in the papers of the proceeding. Whenever any lunatic shall have been discharged from any asylum as cured, the superintendent of such asylum shall forthwith certify such fact to the county judge of the county where such person was adjudged a lunatic, and upon the receipt of such certificate, the county judge shall file same with the county clerk in such proceeding, and shall thereupon enter an order in said cause setting aside the judgment which adjudged the person named in said certificate a lunatic; and shall enter judgment adjudging such person sane and discharging such person. [Id.]

Art. 162. Custody of papers; certified copy; delivery to superintendent of asylum.—The papers in any proceeding under this Act shall remain on file in the office of the county clerk, and when any person is adjudged insane and is sent to a lunatic asylum, the county judge shall cause a certified copy of the affidavit and of the majority of the commissioners and of the minority report of any commissioners, if such there be, to be made by the county clerk and delivered to the person to whom the writ to convey the lunatic to the asylum is directed; such certified copies to be by such person in turn delivered to the superintendent of the asylum at the time the lunatic is delivered to such superintendent. The sheriff or other person executing such writ shall make return thereon and file same with the county clerk. [Id.]

Art. 163. Fees.—In judicial proceedings in cases of lunacy under this Act, in each case there shall be allowed by the commissioners' court of the county such fees as the commissioners' court may deem just; the fee of the justice of the peace to be not exceeding $1.00; the fee of the county clerk not to be less than $1.00 nor more than $5.00; the fee of the sheriff or constable, exclusive of the fee for conveying a lunatic to an asylum, to be not less than $1.00 and not more than $5.00; the fee of the county attorney to be not less than $5.00 nor more than $10.00; the fee of counsel appointed for respondent to be not less than $5.00 nor more than $10.00; the fee of each of the commissioners to be not less than $2.50 and not more than $5.00; the fee of the person conveying the lunatic to the asylum and the guards and the female attendant, if any, to be for each said person his actual travelling expenses and the sum of $2.00 per day necessarily occupied in such duty; provided that such fees shall not be allowed, except to the commissioners, unless the respondent has been adjudged insane. [Id.]

Art. 164. Recovery of fees.—The amount of all of said fees as allowed by the commissioners' court shall be reimbursed paid to the county out of the estate of the respondent when the report of the commission shows that he is possessed of an estate exempt from forced sale, or shall be reimbursed to the county by the person liable for his support as shown by said report, and if same be not so reimbursed to the county, then the county attorney shall cite the guardian of the estate of such lunatic, or other person liable for his support, to appear at some regular term of a court of the county of such jurisdiction, having jurisdiction of the amount involved, then and there to show cause why the county should not have judgment for the amount of fees paid by the county in such lunacy proceeding; and if sufficient cause be not shown, judgment may be entered against such estate or other person so cited, for the amount of such fees so paid out by the county, which judgment may be enforced as in other cases. [Id.]

Art. 165. Proceedings with reference to convicts.—In cases where the affidavit shows the person named therein is a convict confined in the state penitentiary all proceedings and hearings thereunder shall be held at the state penitentiary. [Id.]

Art. 165a. Repeal of conflicting laws.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 2.]

DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Cited, Luder's Adm'r v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 220.

Remedy not exclusive.—The remedy given the state by article 158 and the succeeding article is not exclusive of the right of the state to bring an action at common law to recover money expended in the care of a demented person. Luder's Adm'r v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 220.

Effect of provision of Penal Code.—Pen. Code 1911, art. 35, providing that a person, for an offense committed before attaining the age of 17 years, shall not be punished with death, but may, according to the nature of the offense, be punished by imprisonment for life, or any other punishment prescribed by the Code, does not apply to an application, when accused was committed to an insane asylum after the offense and before conviction, for leave to take him out of the asylum on bond, as authorized by Rev. St. 1911, art. 162, in the absence of anything to suggest that accused was under 17 years of age at the time of the offense. Wilson v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 117.

Mode of restraint.—There is no provision of law which requires that an insane person must be confined within the walls or upon the grounds of the asylum. The insane must be kept under restraint; but they may be allowed to leave the asylum grounds in charge of keepers. The legislature only intended that the insane must be kept under restraint, but the extent and character of the restraint, and whether they should at all times be confined to the grounds of the asylum was left to the discretion of the asylum officials. Clough v. Worsham, 32 C. A. 187, 74 S. W. 353.

Judgment.—Judgment of a court in an insanity inquisition is conclusive as to the mental condition of the subject at the time judgment was rendered, but only presumptive or prima facie evidence of insanity as to the time prior and subsequent to the adjudication. Witty v. State (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1146.

Appeal.—There is no appeal from a judgment of the county court declaring one a lunatic and ordering him placed under restraint. Glenn v. State, 48 C. A. 229, 107 S. W. 621.

1. GENERAL PROVISIONS

a. BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Article 171. [143] [121] Board of trustees.—The general control, management and direction of the affairs, property and business of the blind asylum, the deaf and dumb asylum, the orphan asylum, the Confederate home, the deaf, dumb and blind asylum for colored youths, and the epileptic colony, shall be vested in a board of trustees for each, to be styled, the board of trustees of said several asylums. The provisions of this chapter shall apply to each of said asylums, except where they conflict with special provisions relating to particular asylums.

Art. 172. [144] [122] Boards, how constituted.—[The governor shall appoint a board of trustees for each, consisting of five members each, who shall hold their office for two years,] or until their successors are appointed and qualified; [and, whenever a vacancy occurs in said board, it shall be filled by the governor,] and the term of office of the person so appointed shall be for the unexpired term of the person whose place is made vacant. [The appointment of said board shall be by and with the advice and consent of the senate.] [Acts of 1883, p. 109.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed part of this article is superseded by articles 4042a–4042c.

Art. 173. [145] [123] Organization of the boards.—Each board of trustees shall choose one of its members as president; and the superintendent of the asylum to which it pertains shall be ex officio the secretary of the board, and shall keep a true record of all its acts and proceedings. A majority of each board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business.

Art. 174. [146] [124] Meetings of the boards.—The boards of trustees shall hold monthly meetings at their respective asylums, and at such other times as they may be called together by their president, or the by-laws of the institution may prescribe. [Acts 1905, p. 47.]

Art. 175. [147] [125] Powers of the boards.—The boards of trustees shall have power—

1. To examine and pass upon all accounts and expenditures of the superintendent, and to approve or disapprove the same.
2. To make all contracts and necessary arrangements for the erection of any buildings, or the making of any improvements, upon the grounds of the asylum. [Act March 6, 1875, p. 66, sec. 2.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d for limitation on power to contract debts.

Art. 176. [148] [126] May make requisition for improvements, etc.—All moneys appropriated by the legislature for the erection of buildings, or the making of improvements upon the grounds of an asylum, shall be subject to requisition by the board of trustees of such asylum, for the amount actually necessary to pay for such building or improvements; but no money shall be paid except it be upon estimate of completed work, furnished by the contractor, and approved by the architect and board of trustees; provided, that in no case shall more than three-fourths of the actual cost of building or improvements be paid until the work is completed and accepted. [Acts 1875, p. 66; acts 1899, p. 318.]

Art. 177. [149] [127] Statement and itemized account to be filed with comptroller.—In cases provided for in the preceding article, the board of trustees shall file with the comptroller a statement of the work done, together with an itemized account of the cost of the same, and thereafter the comptroller shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer, in favor of such board of trustees, for the amount specified. [Act March 6, 1875, p. 66.]

Art. 178. [150] [128] Duplicate receipts to be taken.—The board of trustees shall take receipts in duplicate for all moneys paid out under the two preceding articles, one of which shall be filed with the comptroller of public accounts. [Id.]

Art. 179. [151] [129] Reports of the trustees.—On the first of January of each year, the board of trustees shall report in writing to the legislature the general operations of their respective asylums for the past two years, and accompany the same with such suggestions as they may deem important to the welfare of the institution. [Acts of 1883, p. 103.]

Art. 180. [152] [130a] Compensation of trustees.—The members of the respective boards of trustees shall be paid five dollars each per day and mileage at the rate of three cents per mile, in going to and returning from their respective asylums, for their services in attending the monthly meetings provided for in article 174; provided, that no member shall draw pay for said monthly meetings, unless he shall have actually attended said meeting; and provided, further, that no member can draw pay under this article for more than one day's attendance upon said monthly meeting; and the certificate of the president of the board, approved by the superintendent, shall be sufficient evidence upon which the comptroller can draw a warrant upon the treasurer of the state to pay the amount provided for in this article. [Acts 1905, p. 47; acts 1883, p. 103.]

Art. 181. [153] [130] Superintendent, appointment and term of office.—The board of trustees of each of said asylums, respectively, shall elect a superintendent of each of said asylums, who shall hold his office for the period of two years. Each of said superintendents shall have had special advantages and practical experience in the management of the persons committed to his charge by virtue of his appointment. [Acts of 1883, p. 103.]

Art. 182. [154] [131] Oath and bond.—The superintendent of each of said asylums shall, within twenty days after notification of his appointment, enter into bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, payable to the state, with two or more good and sufficient sureties to be approved by the governor, conditioned for the faithful performance of all the duties of said office; and he shall also take the oath prescribed by the constitution, which oath and bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Id.]

Art. 183. [155] [132] Removal of superintendent.—The board of trustees of each of said asylums shall have power to remove the superintendent for good cause only. [Id.]

Art. 184. [156] [133] Powers of superintendent.—The superintendent shall be the administrative head of the asylum for which he is appointed, and shall have the power—

1. To establish such rules and regulations for the government of the institution as, in his judgment, will best promote the interest and welfare of all who may be placed in his charge.
2. Where not otherwise provided by law, to appoint the subordinate officers, the necessary number of teachers and all other employés, and, subject to the approval of the board of trustees, to fix their salaries.
3. To remove at his discretion any officer, teacher or employé who does not discharge his duty, or whose conduct may be such as to endanger the morals of the pupils or the best interests of the asylum. [Act March 6, 1875, p. 67, secs. 4, 5.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d.

Art. 185. [157] [134] Same subject.—The superintendent shall also have the care and custody of the buildings, grounds, furniture and other property pertaining to the asylum, and shall act as the general financier and purchasing agent of the asylum for all supplies not furnished by contract in accordance with the provisions of chapter one of title 125. [Id.]

See Acts 2402a–2402d.

Art. 186. [158] [135] Report of receipts and expenditures.—At each regular meeting of the board of trustees, the superintendent shall present an itemized account of all receipts and expenditures by him on account of the asylum, which account shall be verified by his own affidavit; and for any expenses other than the supplies provided for in chapter one of title 125, the comptroller shall not draw his warrant upon the treasurer, unless the account upon which such warrant is drawn is certified as correct and just by the superintendent and is approved by the president of the board of trustees. [Id.]

Art. 187. [159] [136] Reports of superintendent.—On the first days of January and July of each year, the superintendent of each asylum shall report to the governor, under oath, a full statement of all moneys and choses in action received by him and disbursed or otherwise disposed of; and, on the first day of November of each year, he shall make his annual report to the governor, showing in detail the operations of the institution for the year, accompanied with such suggestions and recommendations as he may deem important to the well being of the institution over which he presides. [Const., Art. 4, sec. 24.]

2. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS

a. Blind Asylum

Art. 188. [160] [137] Appointment of oculist and qualifications.—The board of trustees and the superintendent shall appoint an oculist for the blind asylum, who shall be skilled in his profession and a married man, and who shall attend regularly at the asylum and administer treatment to all cases of blindness among its pupils deemed curable. [Acts of 1883, p. 109; amend. 1895, Sen. Jour., p. 478.]

Art. 189. [161] [138] Removal of oculist.—The oculist shall hold his office for the period of two years, and the board of managers and the superintendent may remove him for good cause only. [Id.]

b. Deaf and Dumb Asylum

Art. 190. [162] [139] Pupils to learn printing.—A certain number of the pupils at the deaf and dumb asylum, to be designated by the superintendent and trustees of that institution, shall each year receive instruction in the art of printing in all its branches; and the studies of such pupils shall be so arranged as not to interfere with such instruction and the execution of any public printing by them for the state. [Act March 13, 1875, pp. 91–2, secs. 1, 2.]

Art. 191. [163] [140] Instructor, how appointed.—The board of public printing shall employ some competent practical printer as instructor at said asylum in the art of printing; and the person so employed shall, in addition, discharge such other duties as may be required of him by such board. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 192. [164] [141] His salary and removal.—The instructor provided for in the preceding article may be paid a compensation not to exceed one thousand dollars annually, and may be discharged at any time by the board of public printing. [Id.]

Art. 193. [165] [142] Public printing at asylum.—Any public printing for the state may be executed at the deaf and dumb asylum without regard to any contract with an individual to do the public printing thereof. [Id.; Act June 27, 1876, p. 35, sec. 7.]

Art. 194. Provision for all deaf, dumb, and blind children.—The superintendent of the deaf and dumb asylum is hereby authorized and directed to make such provision as he may deem necessary for the maintenance, care and education of all children in the state who are deaf, dumb and blind. [Acts 1901, S. S., p. 20.]

Art. 195. Who to apply to.—Application for the maintenance, care and education of all such children shall be made by the parent or guardian of such child, or children, to the superintendent of the deaf and dumb asylum, under such rules as may be prescribed by him; provided, said children shall be placed in a reputable school established for the purposes herein mentioned. [Id.]

c. Orphan Asylum

Art. 196. [166] Designation of institution.—This institution shall be known as the state orphan home or asylum. [Acts 1887, p. 129. Acts 1899, p. 303.]

Art. 197. [166] Superintendent appointed how; duties.—The board of trustees of the orphan asylum shall appoint a superintendent for said home or asylum, upon the nomination of the governor, whose duties of office shall be the supervision of the affairs of said home or asylum, under the direction of the board of trustees. [Id.]

Art. 198. [166] Industrial manager, appointed how; duties, salary.—The said board shall also elect an industrial manager for said home or asylum, whose duties and salary shall be prescribed by the board of trustees, subject to legislative appropriation, not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars. [Id.]

Art. 199. [167] Children admitted, when.—Said board shall admit all children under the age of fourteen years, subject only to such restrictions as they may deem requisite to the welfare and good government of said asylum. [Acts 1887, p. 129.]

Art. 200. [168] List of children to be made, etc.—In addition to the other duties of said superintendent, he shall keep a carefully prepared list containing the names and ages of each and every child, as well as such other data concerning the history of said children as the board of trustees may prescribe, said lists to be recorded in a well bound book for said purpose, and subject to the inspection of all persons who may desire to examine its contents. He shall annually deliver over to the proper authorities a list of all children within the scholastic age, and see that their pro rata of the public free school fund is set aside to their credit, and that they are provided with proper educational facilities. He shall promptly answer all inquiries, by correspondence or otherwise, concerning the orphans under his charge, and promptly inform the board of trustees when an opportunity is presented to secure a good and permanent home for any child under his charge. [Id.]

Art. 201. [169] Child removed from, how.—No person shall be permitted to remove a child from said asylum except under such lawful rules and regulations as the board of managers may adopt; and in no case shall a child be removed therefrom by any person other than the natural guardian of said child, or the duly qualified guardian of the person of such child, or the parent of said child by adoption. [Id.]

Art. 202. [170] Salary of superintendent.—The superintendent of said home or asylum shall receive such salary each year as may be provided by the board of trustees, subject to legislative appropriation, not to exceed one thousand dollars. [Acts 1899, p. 304. Acts 1887, p. 129.]

See appropriation bill, Acts 1909, p. 495.

Art. 203. [171] Matron's salary, etc.—There shall be a matron of said asylum to be chosen by the superintendent, with the consent of the board of trustees, whose salary shall not exceed forty-five dollars per month. [Acts 1887, p. 129.]

Art. 204. [171a] Board to dispose of artesian water.—The board of trustees of the state orphans home, situated at Corsicana, Texas, are hereby authorized and empowered to sell, lease or dispose of the surplus water belonging to the state, and flowing from the artesian well on the grounds of said orphans home, for such price and upon such terms and conditions as the said board may deem best; provided, that the term of said lease shall not exceed ten years. [Acts 1895, p. 15.]

d. Confederate Home

Art. 205. [172] Board of trustees, term of office, duties, etc.—[The governor shall appoint a board of trustees of five] ex-confederate soldiers for the management of said home, [said trustees to remain in office two years,] or until their successors are appointed and qualified; and they shall be governed in their regulations of the affairs of said home by the laws now in existence relative to the deaf, dumb and blind institutions of this state, so far as the same may be applicable, and shall make and prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the internal government, discipline and management of the home, and shall have power to enforce obedience to and compliance with said rules and regulations by discharging from the home, if in its judgment it be necessary, any inmate who may violate said rules and regulations; and said board shall be required to make such examinations from time to time as it may deem necessary, as to the qualifications and record as a soldier in the confederate army or navy of any inmate, and to discharge at once any said inmates who procured admission to the home by fraud or misrepresentation; and said board shall, every three months, cause to be examined by a board of physicians, consisting of the home physician and two others not connected with the home, any inmate who may be designated by the superintendent and the home physician, or by any member of the board of trustees, as to the physical condition of such inmate, and, if it be shown from said examination and report of said examining board that any inmate so examined has sufficiently recovered from his disabilities to be able to earn a living, such inmate shall be given an honorable discharge from the home, with transportation to the place from which he entered the home; provided, however, that such inmate be given twenty days notice of his dismissal, and that he be subject to all the rules and regulations governing the home during said twenty days, or such part of that time as he may remain in the home after said notice of dismissal be given. The two physicians assisting the home physician in such examinations shall be selected by the board of trustees; and they shall be paid for such service two dollars and fifty cents each for each examination made by them; and that said board of managers shall also have charge of all the property received from the John B. Hood camp confederate veterans, or from any other source, for the maintenance of said home. Said board of trustees shall make annual reports to the governor on the first day of each December, embracing a full statement of all expenditures and transactions of the institution for the fiscal year next preceding. They shall visit the home at least once each month. [Acts 1891, p. 14; and 1895, p. 42.]

Explanatory.—The bracketted part of this article is superseded by articles 4042a-4042c. See Arts. 2402a–2402d for limitation on power to contract debts.

Art. 206. [173] Superintendent's term of office, duties, etc.—The said board of trustees shall appoint a superintendent, who shall be an ex-confederate soldier, whose duties of office shall be the supervision of the affairs of said home, keeping the accounts of the same, and its general management, under the direction of the board of trustees. He shall be under the control of and subject to removal (for cause, duly spread upon the records of said home) by said board, and unless sooner removed by said board, for cause, shall hold his office for the term of two years, or until his successor shall be appointed and qualified.

In addition to his other duties he shall keep in a book prepared for that purpose the name and age of each inmate, date of admission to the home, the company and regiment or other command or capacity, in which the military service was performed, and the state from which he entered the service, and such other data concerning the history of the inmates as the board of trustees may prescribe. The superintendent of said home shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars per annum. [Acts 1891, p. 14. Acts 1895, p. 42.]

Art. 207. Secretary to superintendent; appointment, duties, compensation, etc.—The superintendent of said home shall be authorized to employ one clerk or secretary, who shall keep the books of the institution and discharge such other duties as may be required of him by the superintendent. He shall be furnished board and lodging similar to other employés of the home, and receive as compensation for his services the sum of seven hundred and twenty dollars per annum, to be paid from any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [Acts 1903, p. 54.]

Art. 208. [174] Applications for admission, etc.—All applications for admission to said home must show on the oath of applicant—

1. Name of applicant.
2. His age.
3. His residence (county and postoffice address).
4. The company, regiment, brigade and army in which he served.
5. That he is disabled and indigent, and is not receiving a pension from any source, and is now a bona fide citizen of Texas. And further (if he did not serve in a Texas command) that he was a bona fide resident of Texas on January 1, 1895. Proof of the honorable service of applicant, as stated by himself, must be made by affidavit of two reputable persons, or by his written discharge, duly authenticated with sufficient proof of identity, or such other proof in manner and form as may be entirely satisfactory to the board of trustees. The application must also be accompanied by a certificate of a regular practicing physician that the applicant is unable to provide a support for himself, giving the character of the disability, and that the applicant is not a lunatic, and is not afflicted with any contagious or infectious disease. All applications for admission to said home shall be referred to and passed upon by the board of trustees. [Id.; amend., 1895, p. 42.]

dd. Confederate Woman's Home

Art. 208a. Home established, and name.—There shall be established in or near the city of Austin, in the state of Texas, a home for the indigent wives and widows and who are over sixty years of age, of disabled ex-confederate soldiers and sailors who entered the confederate service from Texas, or who came to the state prior to January 1, 1880, and whose disability is the proximate result of actual service in the confederate army for at least three months, and also for women who aided the confederacy. This institution shall be known as the Confederate Woman's Home. [Acts 1911, p. 50, sec. 1.]

Art. 208b. Managers appointed by governor, powers and duties.—[Upon the taking effect of this Act it shall be the duty of the governor to appoint a board of managers, the same to be composed of five persons, two of whom shall be women,] who shall have the management and control of said Confederate Woman's Home, [and may hold their office for a term of two years,] or until their successors are appointed and qualified. It shall be the duty of said board of managers to make suitable rules and regulations for the admission of women to the benefits of said home. They shall also have the power to make proper rules and regulations for the internal government and management of said home. [Id. sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—The bracketted part of this article is superseded by articles 4042a-4042c.

See Arts. 2402a-2402d for limitation on power to contract debts.

Art. 208c. Annual report, and duties.—The board of managers of the Confederate Woman's Home shall make annual reports to the governor on or before December 1st of each year; said reports shall embrace a full statement of all expenditures in the management and conduct of said home for the fiscal year next preceding the date of said report. It shall be the duty of the members of said board of managers, or the majority thereof, to make monthly visits and inspections of the home. [Acts 1911, p. 50, sec. 3.]

Art. 208d. Superintendent; duties, salary.—The board of managers shall appoint a superintendent for the Confederate Woman's Home, with the approval of the governor. Said superintendent must be the widow or daughter of a confederate soldier. The superintendent shall have supervision of the affairs of said Confederate Woman's Home, and shall cause the accounts and disbursements of same to be properly kept, and have general management and direction of said home, subject to the control of the board of managers. Said superintendent may hold office for a term of two years, or until her successor is duly appointed and qualified. Said superintendent shall receive a salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum, and free lodging and board, and shall reside in the home. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 208e. Site, buildings and attendants.—The board of managers of the Confederate Woman's Home shall select a site for the location of said home, and is hereby authorized to construct or purchase suitable buildings and improvements for the comfortable accommodation of the inmates, and shall submit to the attorney general of Texas an abstract of title to said site and it shall be his duty to pass upon such title and report his opinion to said board. The board shall also provide such attendants and nurses as may be deemed necessary in the management of the home, and fix their compensation. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 208f. Maintenance; purchase from United Daughters of Confederacy; Warrants.—The legislature shall make suitable provision in the general appropriation bill, or otherwise, for the proper maintenance and support of said Confederate Woman's Home. The sum of twenty thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated for the purpose of purchasing a site and erecting suitable buildings thereon. If it becomes necessary to do so, subject to the approval of the governor, it is further provided that said board of managers shall have authority to receive or purchase from the United Daughters of the Confederacy any buildings or grounds which may now be used by that organization as a home for confederate women. It shall be the duty of the comptroller to issue warrant for the expenditures authorized by this Act on accounts therefor when approved by the Governor and board of managers. [Id. sec. 6.]

e. Deaf, Dumb and Blind Asylum for Colored Youths

Art. 209. [175] Qualification and term of office of the superintendent for the asylum for colored youths.—The board of trustees of this asylum shall appoint a superintendent of said asylum, whose salary shall be fifteen hundred dollars per year. Said superintendent shall be a man of mature years and experience and familiar with the duties of the position to which he may be elected. He shall be under the control of, and subject to removal, by said board, and, unless sooner removed by said board for cause, shall hold his office for a term of two years. [Acts of 1887, p. 150.]

Art. 210. [176] Powers and duties of board of trustees, and regulations for asylum.—The board of trustees shall make all necessary rules and regulations for the government of said asylum, said rules and regulations to comport as nearly as may be practicable with the rules and regulations of the asylums for like purposes in this state. Said board of trustees shall prescribe the duties of all subordinate officers or assistants in said asylum; shall appoint and may remove all such officers or assistants, determine their duties and their compensation; but said rules, appointments, and compensation shall not be in force until approved by the governor. The admission of all applicants to said asylum, their treatment, instruction, and continuance therein, all questions relating to their dismissal or removal, or voluntary departure from said asylum, or employment therein or thereabout, shall be governed by the rules and regulations of the state asylums for white youths for the deaf and dumb and blind. [Id.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d.

f. Epileptic Colony

Art. 211. Asylum established, and name.—There shall be built, established and maintained a branch asylum for the care, treatment and support of the epileptic insane of the state, and such other insane persons as it may become necessary from time to time to confine and treat in said asylum. Said branch asylum shall be known as the epileptic colony. [Acts 1899, p. 4, sec. 1.]

Art. 212. Managers appointed by governor, powers.—The governor shall appoint a board of trustees for said branch asylum, with such powers and duties as are provided in this title. [Id. sec. 5.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d.

Art. 212a. Support and management.—The support and general management of said asylum shall be the same as is now provided for other branch asylums of the state. [Id. sec. 6.]

See Arts. 4042a–4042c.

Art. 213. Who admitted to colony.—All persons afflicted with epilepsy, who shall have been bona fide residents of this state for one year next preceding the filing of his application with the county judge, as herein provided, shall be admitted into the epileptic colony under the provisions of this subdivision with the following exceptions:

1. Idiots and imbeciles who are afflicted with epilepsy.
2. Those who are infirm and bedridden, or suffering from contagious or infectious disease.

By the terms idiot and imbecile are meant children or persons who, by arrest of development before or soon after birth, have but little or no mind. [Acts 1903, p. 163.]

Art. 214. Transfer of epileptics from insane asylums.—All epileptics, with the above exceptions, confined in the three insane asylums when the epileptic colony is ready for occupancy shall at once be transferred to the colony. When any person is admitted to any of the insane asylums, and it shall be found that such person is an epileptic, he shall at once be transferred to the epileptic colony. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 215. Transfer of transcripts and histories.—It shall be the duty of the superintendents of the insane asylums to transmit to the superintendent of the epileptic colony all transcripts of legal proceedings and histories of all epileptics transferred, which they may have in their possession. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 216. Transportation, etc., expenses, how paid.—The expense of the transportation of all patients and necessary attendants transferred from the insane asylums to colony shall be paid out of the appropriation for the support and maintenance of the colony. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 217. Classification of transferred patients.—All patients so transferred shall be received in the epileptic colony as of the class in which they were admitted into the insane asylums; that is, as indigent public patients, public patients not indigent, or private patients. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 218. Classification of patients admitted.—Patients admitted to the epileptic colony shall be of three classes, viz.:

1. Indigent public patients.
2. Non-indigent public patients.
3. Private patients. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 219. Indigent public patients defined; supported by state.—Indigent public patients are those who possess no property of any kind, nor have any one legally liable for their support and able to reimburse the state. This class shall be supported entirely at the expense of the state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 220. Non-indigent public patients defined; maintained by state, but reimbursement; suit; duties of county attorney and superintendent.—Non-indigent public patients are those who possess some property, out of which the state may be reimbursed, or who have some one legally liable for their support and able to reimburse the state. This class shall be kept and maintained at the expense of the state in the first instance; but in such cases the state shall have the right to be reimbursed for the support of such patients, and the claim of the state for such support shall constitute a valid indebtedness against any such patient, or in case he has a guardian, against his estate, or against the person or persons who may be legally liable for his support and financially able to contribute thereto, as herein aforesaid, and such claim may be collected by suit or other proceedings in the name of the state by the county attorney of the county from which said patient is sent, against such patient, his guardian, or the person or persons liable for his support, as the case may be; such suit or proceeding to be instituted upon the request in writing of the superintendent of the colony, accompanied by his certificate as to the amount due the state, which shall in no case exceed five dollars per week. In all such suits or proceedings the certificate of the superintendent shall be sufficient evidence of the amount due the state for the support of such patient. It shall be the duty of the county attorney, upon such request being made, to institute and conduct such suit or proceedings, and for which he shall be entitled to a commission of ten per cent of the amount collected. All moneys so collected, less the commission above provided, shall be by the county attorney paid into the state treasury, and placed in the general funds. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 221. Private patients admitted how; maintained at own expense or that of relatives, etc., contract and terms.—Private patients may be admitted into said colony upon application of parent, guardian, or friend, under such regulations as the board of managers and superintendent may prescribe, not in conflict with the provisions of this subdivision. Such patients shall be kept and maintained at the colony at their own expense, or at the expense of their guardian, relatives, or friends, and, for the board and care of such patients, the superintendent may make a special contract at a rate not less than five dollars per week; and at the time of the admission of any such patient into the colony his board must be paid in advance for six months and bond and security given for the prompt payment of all future expenses of such patient, as may from time to time be required by the rules and regulations of the colony. All moneys so collected shall be paid directly into the state treasury and placed in the general fund. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 222. Application for admission of public patient; requisites.—The parent, guardian, or friend of any epileptic, not seeking admission as a private patient, may make application in writing and under oath to the county judge of the county wherein such epileptic resides, for the admission of the epileptic into the epileptic colony, which application shall show, (1) the name of the epileptic, (2) sex, (3) age and nativity, (4) whether possessed of any property, and if so, what, and the estimated value thereof, (5) whether the epileptic has any one legally liable for his support, if so, whom, what property possessed by such person, and the estimated value thereof, (6) residence of the epileptic for the year next preceding the date of application, (7) occupation, trade or employment, (8) parent or parents, if living, or guardian, if any, (9) name of husband or wife, if any, (10) children, if any, number, age and sex, (11) relatives similarly affected, insane, inebriate, consumptive or criminal. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 223. Certificates to accompany application; requisites.—Said application shall be accompanied with a certificate of a reputable practicing physician, stating that he has carefully examined the person for whose admission application is made and that such person is afflicted with epilepsy, and which certificate shall also show, (1) the age of the epileptic at first attack, (2) the date of the last attack, (3) physical condition, (4) accompanying bodily disorders; and it shall be the duty of the county judge to certify that the physician making this certificate is a reputable physician actively engaged in the practice of his profession, and has complied with the laws of this state granting license to physicians to practice medicine. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 224. County judge's duty if not satisfied.—If the county judge is not satisfied as to the showing made in said application and certificate, or either, he may subpœna witnesses and examine them under oath touching such matters. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 225. County judge's duty if applicant appears entitled.—If it be made to appear to the county judge that such epileptic is entitled to admission into the colony under the provisions of this subdivision, he shall forward an application for admission to the superintendent of the colony, which application shall be accompanied with full copy of the proceedings had in such case, and the original shall be filed in the office of the county clerk. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 226. Where applicant appears not indigent.—If the county judge should find that the person for whom application is made is in fact not indigent, then he shall make application for his admission as a non-indigent patient, and so show in his application to the superintendent. The object of this provision is to make it the duty of the county judge upon careful investigation to determine whether such person shall be admitted into the colony as an indigent public patient, or a non-indigent public patient. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 227. Compensation of county judge.—For all services needed in connection with such matter in each case, the county judge shall be paid by the county the sum of three dollars. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 228. Patients to be received when there is room; preference to indigents and to public patients.—When there is room in the colony, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to receive such patient, and, when application is made for more patients than can be admitted, he shall give preference to indigent public patients over non-indigent public patients, and shall at all times give preference to both of the classes mentioned over private patients. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 229. Clothing to be supplied patients.—It shall be the duty of the county judge to see that each patient admitted to the colony is supplied with three full suits of substantial clothing. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 230. Clothing and transportation of indigent patients paid by county; that of non-indigents by them, etc.—The expense of such clothing and the transportation of indigent public patients and necessary escort, and compensation to such escort, shall be paid by the county from which the patient shall be sent. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 231. Clothing, etc., non-indigent to pay for; escort, pay of.—Non-indigent public patients shall pay for such clothing and transportation and escort, or the same may be paid by his parent, guardian or friend. In no case shall such escort be entitled to charge or receive more than two dollars per day and expenses actually necessary in going to and returning from the colony. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 232. Object of colony.—The object of the colony being to secure the humane, scientific and economical treatment of epileptics, to fulfill this design it shall be the duty of the superintendent and board of managers of the colony to prepare and adopt by-laws, rules and regulations for the government of the colony, prescribing the duty of all officers and employés, and for enforcing the necessary discipline and restraint of all patients. [Id. sec. 9. Acts 1901, p. 11; 1900, p. 16; 1899, p. 4.]

STATE TUBERCULOSIS SANITORIUM

Art.
239a. Sanitorium established, and name.
239b. Anti-tuberculosis commission, how constituted, expenses and compensation.
239c. Meetings of commission; land to be selected; vice-chairman and superintendent; duties.
239d. Duties and powers of commissioners.
239e. Support and maintenance.
239f. Separate colonies; right of applicant.
239g. Board of control, and powers and duties; construction and equipment of colonies.
239h. Appropriation.
239i. Commission, when appointed; appropriation.
239j. Board not to acquire property used for treatment of tuberculosis.
239k. Who may be admitted.
239l. Citizen defined.
239m. Patients, how classified; indigent public patients supported by state; non-indigent public patients maintained by state, but reimbursement; suit; duties of county attorney and superintendent; private patients, how admitted and maintained.
239n. Application for admission; requisites.
239o. Certificates to accompany application; requisites.
239p. Duty of county judge if not satisfied; duty if applicant appears entitled; where applicant appears not indigent; duties and powers of state health officer.
239q. No discrimination between patients; rewards prohibited.
239r. Index of applications; patients admitted in order; accommodations for classes of patients.
239s. Clothing to be supplied patients; how paid for.
239t. By-laws, rules, and regulations; physicians and salaries; superintendents and employees.
239u. Purpose of act; offices on good behavior; civil service.

Article 239a. Sanitorium established, and name.—That there shall be maintained at Carlsbad, Texas, a sanitorium for the treatment of persons suffering with tuberculosis; said institution shall be known as the state tuberculosis sanitorium. The land on which said sanitorium is located, including that which is now owned by the state, shall not exceed one thousand acres. [Acts 1911, p. 136, sec. 1, amended Acts 1913, p. 120, sec. 1.]

Art. 239b. Anti-tuberculosis commission, how constituted; expenses and compensation.—The governor of the state of Texas shall appoint four citizens commissioners, who with the governor, and the state health officer as chairman, shall constitute the anti-tuberculosis commission of Texas. The four citizens of said commission shall receive for their services their actual expenses incurred and the sum of $5.00 per day while attending to their duties under the law as said commissioners. [Id. sec. 2, amended Acts 1913, p. 120, sec. 1.]

Art. 239c. Meetings of commission; land to be selected; vice-chairman and superintendent; duties.—The said commissioners, together with the governor and chairman, shall meet once every three months, unless called more often by the chairman. They shall accept title to any land selected by them in the name of the state for the use and benefit of the state, but not until the attorney general shall first have approved the title of the land so selected. Said commissioners shall elect one of their number vice-chairman, who shall approve all accounts of the said state tuberculosis sanitorium, and the said superintendent of said sanitorium may under the direction of the state health officer, determine whether any person is entitled to admission into said sanitorium, as provided under the laws regulating the same. [Id. sec. 3, amended Acts 1913, p. 120, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Section 2 of Acts 1913, p. 120, repeals section 6 of Acts 1911, p. 136.

Art. 239d. Duties and powers of commissioners.—The duties and powers of said commissioners shall be such as is now provided in title 9 of the Revised Statutes of Texas, where it does not conflict with this Act. The said commissioners shall also hand in quarterly and annual reports of their work and of the status of said institutions under their control to the state health officer. [Id. sec. 4.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d.

Art. 239e. Support and maintenance.—The support and maintenance of said institutions shall be made by appropriation for that purpose. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 239f. Separate colonies; right of applicant.—There shall be constructed one colony on each separate piece of ground so selected, including the necessary buildings therefor; provided, that if any of said sanitariums to which an applicant who has complied with the provisions of this Act applies for admission are full of patients, then such applicant shall have the right to furnish his own tent, bedding and enter said sanitarium by paying the regular charges for board and treatment and complying, in every respect, with the law, rules and regulations governing said sanitarium. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 239g. Board of control, and powers and duties; construction and equipment of colonies.—The commissioners so selected, together with the governor and the state health officer as before mentioned, shall constitute the board of control for the tuberculosis colonies of Texas, and shall have full power to act in their capacity as hereinbefore provided; and they shall advertise for plans and specifications for said colonies. When plans have been accepted, the board shall contract for the construction and equipment of said colonies, according to plans and specifications as adopted, to the lowest responsible bidder, who shall give good and sufficient bond for the completion and equipment of said plant according to the contract; provided, that the total cost of land and buildings, with all necessary equipment and improvements, shall not exceed one hundred thousand ($100,000.00) dollars, and that said plants when so completed and equipped, shall each have a capacity of sixty patients. [Id. sec. 8.]

See Arts. 2402a–2402d.

Art. 239h. Appropriation.—That there shall be appropriated out of the general revenue of the state, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one hundred thousand ($100,000.00) dollars for the purchase of the land for said two colony plants, and toward the buildings and such other improvements and fixtures as may be necessary to complete them, equip and establish said colony plants. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 239i. Commission, when appointed; appropriation.—Said commission shall be appointed immediately upon the passage of this Act, and for the purpose of defraying the operating expenses of said institutions for the years 1911 and 1912 there is hereby appropriated out of the general revenue of this state, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of forty thousand ($40,000.00) dollars. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 239j. Board not to acquire property used for treatment of tuberculosis.—It is especially provided by this Act that the board hereby created shall not buy nor acquire any lands, tents, tenements or houses or any other property now being used or heretofore used for the treatment of tuberculosis by any firm, individual or corporation. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 239k. Who may be admitted.—Persons afflicted with tuberculosis who shall have been citizens of this state and of the county from which he or she comes, at the time of filing of their application with the county judge, as hereinafter provided, shall be admitted to said institutions under this Act. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 239*l*. Citizen defined.—A citizen of this state under the provisions of this Act is defined to be any person who has actually resided therein with the bona fide intention of being a citizen thereof for a period of twelve months next preceding the date of the application for admission to said sanitarium. [Id. sec. 12½.]

Art. 239m. Patients, how classified; indigent public patients supported by state; non-indigent public patients maintained by state, but reimbursement; suit; duties of county attorney and superintendent; private patients, how admitted and maintained.—Patients admitted to said institutions shall be of three classes, to wit:

1. Indigent public patients.
2. Non-indigent public patients.
3. Private patients.

Indigent public patients are those who possess no property of any kind nor have any one legally responsible for their support, and who are unable to reimburse the state. This class shall be supported entirely at the expense of the state.

Non-indigent public patients are those who possess some property out of which the state may be reimbursed, or who have some one legally liable for their support. This class shall be kept and maintained at the expense of the state, as in the first instance, but in such case the state shall have the right to be reimbursed for the support of such patients, and the claim of the state shall constitute a valid lien against any property of any such patient, or, in case he has a guardian, against any property of his which is in the possession of said guardian, or against the person or persons who may be legally liable for his support, and financially able to contribute as herein provided; and such claim may be collected by suit or other proceedings in the name of the state of Texas by the county attorney of the county from which said patient is sent, against such patient, his guardian or the person or persons liable for his support; and the venue of any such suit is hereby fixed to be in the county from which such patient was sent. Such suit or proceedings shall be instituted upon the request, in writing, of the superintendent of said colony, accompanied by a certificate as to the amount due the state, which in no case shall exceed five dollars per week for the board of such patient, and together with the necessary cost incident to his transportation to said colony. In all suits or proceedings, the certificate of the superintendent shall be sufficient evidence of the amount due the state for the support of such patient. It shall be the duty of the county attorney, upon such request being made, to institute and conduct such proceedings, and for which he shall be entitled to a commission of ten (10) per cent of the amount collected. All moneys so collected, less the commission above provided for, shall be by the county attorney paid to the superintendent of said colony, who shall receive and receipt for the same, and shall use the same for the maintenance and improvement of said property.

Private patients may be admitted into said colonies upon application of parent or guardian or friend, under such regulations as the board of managers may prescribe, not in conflict with this Act. Such patients shall be kept and maintained at the colony at their own expense for the board and care of such patients. The board may make special contracts for private patients at a rate not to exceed ten dollars per week, payable in advance. All moneys collected shall be paid to the superintendent of such institution, who shall account for the same and for its use in the maintenance and improvement of said colony at which the same is received. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 239n. Application for admission; requisites.—The parent, guardian or friend of any patient seeking admission may make application in writing and under oath to the county judge of the county wherein such patient resides, for admission of said patient into said state colony, which application shall show:

1. The name of the patient.
2. The sex.
3. Age and nativity.
4. Whether possessing any property; if so, what, and the estimated value thereof, and where located.
5. Whether the patient has any one legally liable for his support; if so, whom; what property possessed by such person; the estimated value thereof, and where located.
6. Residence of patient for two years next preceding the date of application.
7. Occupation, trade or employment.
8. Parent or parents, if living, or guardian, if any.
9. Name of husband or wife, if any.
10. Children, if any; number, age and sex.
11. Relatives similarly affected, insane, invalid, consumptive, and such other information as may be required by the board of said institution. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 239o. Certificates to accompany application; requisites.—Said application shall be accompanied by the certificate of a reputable practicing physician, or, in the case of indigent patients, by a certificate from the county physician, stating that he has thoroughly examined the person for whose admission application has been made, and that such person is suffering from tuberculosis, and the duration of said disease, if known, and the accompanying bodily disorders; provided, that no person afflicted with any contagious, infectious or transmissible disease, other than tuberculosis, shall be admitted. It shall be the duty of the county judge to certify that the physician making the certificate is a reputable physician, actively engaged in the practice of his profession, and has complied with the laws of this state governing licenses to physicians, to practice medicine. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 239p. Duty of county judge if not satisfied; duty if applicant appears entitled; where applicant appears not indigent; duties and powers of state health officer.—If the county judge is not satisfied as to the showing made in said application and certificate, or either, he may subpœna witnesses and examine them under oath touching such matters, and if it be made to appear to the county judge that such person is entitled to admission into the colonies under the provisions of this Act he shall forward an application for admission, together with the application hereinbefore described, to the state health officer, and the state health officer shall receive the same, alphabetically index it and file in his office, where it shall become a permanent record. If the county judge shall find that the person for whom application is made is in fact not indigent, then he shall make application, as before provided, for him as a non-indigent patient, and in either or both cases, if the county judge shall determine not to make such application for any person, then such person may make an application direct to the state health officer, and if in the judgment and opinion of the state health officer such patient is entitled to admission into the state colony for tuberculosis, then he shall order him to be admitted upon his own motion, which order must be by him written, signed and filed with the superintendent of the institution into which such patient is admitted. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 239q. No discrimination between patients; rewards prohibited.—No patient in any state colony shall be discriminated against by virtue of the fact that he is an indigent, non-indigent or private patient, but they shall all be treated alike, given equal facilities, equal attention and equal treatment, and no patient in any such institution shall be permitted to give to any officer, servant, agent or employé in any such institution any tip, pay or reward of any character or kind whatever, and if such patient does so, and it is discovered, it shall be a cause for his expulsion from said colony, and the discharge of any servant accepting the same; and the board shall see that this provision is rigidly and drastically enforced. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 239r. Index of applications; patients admitted in order; accommodations for classes of patients.—The state health officer shall keep on file an alphabetical index of all applications of all patients, and patients shall be admitted according to their file number; reserving at all times not less than one-half the accommodations afforded at each colony for indigent consumptives, one-fourth of the accommodations for the non-indigent patients, and one-fourth for private or pay patients; subject, however, to the control and discretion of the board. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 239s. Clothing to be supplied patients; how paid for.—It shall be the duty of the county judge to see that each patient admitted to the colony is supplied with three full suits of underwear and one neat top suit, all being such as may be prescribed by the state health officer; and the expenses of the clothing and transportation of indigent public patients shall be paid by the county from which the patient is sent. And if any patient is admitted directly upon the certificate of the state health officer as an indigent patient as provided hereinbefore, then the state health officer shall supply such patient with such clothing, and his certificate thereof shall be full evidence that the same was so supplied and of the value thereof, and the county from which the said patient came shall be chargeable with said clothes, and shall pay the same upon presentation of said certificate. Non-indigent public patients shall pay for their clothing and transportation themselves. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 239t. By-laws, rules and regulations; physicians and salaries; superintendents and employés.—It shall be the duty of the board of said colonies to prepare and adopt by-laws, rules and regulations for the government of the entire colonies, prescribing the duties of all officers and employés, and for enforcing the necessary discipline and restraint of all patients. The governor shall appoint for each of said colonies a regularly licensed physician, who shall receive a salary of two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars per year; and in addition to such physician, the board shall supply each colony with the necessary cooks, waiters, yard men, nurses, etc., for the operation and maintenance of such colonies. Each physician so appointed shall be superintendent of the institution under his control, and shall have the power to remove at will, and without assigning any cause whatever, any person employed in any colony over which he has such authority. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 239u. Purpose of act; offices on good behavior; civil service.—The purpose of this bill being to bring about the best results for those unfortunate people who are afflicted with this disease, and for the general welfare of the state, it is hereby expressed that it is the desire of this legislature that the physicians and the members of the board whose appointments are herein provided for, they, and each of them, shall be permitted to hold their respective offices during the term of their good behavior, and that they be removed only for cause, which cause shall be determined by the board; and that this board, the physicians and superintendents herein provided for, shall be under, as near as possible, the rule of civil service, to the end that they may be taken entirely out of politics. [Id. sec. 21.]

ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT

Chap.
1. Attachment.
2. Garnishment.

ATTACHMENT

[For record of attachment liens, see title "Registration." For venue of damage suits, in, see "Courts—District and County, Practice in."]

Art.
240. Attachment issued, when and by whom.
241. What further facts must appear.
242. Not to issue until suit begun.
243. May issue on debt not due, but, etc.
244. Plaintiff must give bond and security.
245. Bond to be approved and filed.
246. Form of bond.
247. Attachment abated for want of bond or affidavit.
247a. Attachments in actions based on unliquidated demands—Fixing amount of bond.
248. When affidavit and bond filed, writ to issue instanter.
249. Several writs may issue.
250. Form of writ of attachment.
251. Writ to be dated and tested and delivered to the sheriff, etc.
252. Writ to be levied immediately.
253. Officer executing may demand indemnity.
254. Property subject to attachment.
255. Levy, how made.
256. Personal property to remain in hands of officer, unless.
257. Claimant's bond and affidavit.
258. Replevy by the defendant.
259. Sale of perishable property, etc.
260. Procedure for sale of perishable property.
261. Sale of perishable property, how made.
262. Return of sale of perishable property.
263. Preservation of property not replevied or sold, etc.
264. Return of writ of attachment.
265. Requisites of the return.
266. Report of disposition of property made after return of original writ.
267. Attachment creates a lien.
268. Judgment of foreclosure.
269. Judgment when the property has been replevied.
270. Order of court when attachment quashed; pending appeal property may be replevied.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject generally, at end of chapter.]

Article 240. [186] [152] Attachments may be issued by whom. —The judges and clerks of the district and county courts and justices of the peace may issue writs of original attachment, returnable to their respective courts, upon the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, making an affidavit in writing, stating—

1. That the defendant is justly indebted to the plaintiff and the amount of the demand; and

2. That the defendant is not a resident of the state, or is a foreign corporation, or is acting as such; or

3. That he is about to remove permanently out of the state, and has refused to pay or secure the debt due the plaintiff; or

4. That he secretes himself so that the ordinary process of law can not be served on him; or

5. That he has secreted his property for the purpose of defrauding his creditors; or

6. That he is about to secrete his property for the purpose of defrauding his creditors; or

7. That he is about to remove his property out of the state, without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts; or

8. That he is about to remove his property, or a part thereof, out of the county where the suit is brought, with intent to defraud his creditors; or

9. That he has disposed of his property, in whole or in part, with intent to defraud his creditors; or

10. That he is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors; or

11. That he is about to convert his property, or a part thereof, into money, for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors; or

12. That the debt is due for property obtained under false pretenses. [Acts Dec. 16, 1863, p. 37.]

In general.—An attachment may be issued by the county judge when a complaint in writing, under oath, is made to him by a person interested in an estate that the executor or administrator is about to remove said estate, or any part thereof, beyond the limits of this state, and the property seized will be held subject to the further order of the judge. Art. 3240.

The failure of a debtor to pay a debt does not authorize the suing out of an attachment. Blum v. Stein, 68 T. 608, 5 S. W. 454.

An insolvent corporation ceasing to do business cannot make an assignment with preferences. Orr & Lindsley Shoe Co. v. Thompson, 89 T. 501, 35 S. W. 473. But if it has not ceased business, its creditors can acquire a preference lien by attachment. Moon Bros. Carriage Co. v. Waxahachee Grain & Imp. Co., 89 T. 511, 35 S. W. 1047.

A claim for the price of goods sold held to support an attachment as a claim for a liquidated amount. Loeb v. Crow, 15 C. A. 537, 40 S. W. 506.

Where a loan association is solvent, in the possession of its assets, and conducting its business as a going concern, a stockholder, who is also a creditor, may obtain a preference by attachment. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 20 C. A. 111, 49 S. W. 160.

The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the purchase money and interest from the ouster, which is sufficiently certain to support attachment and garnishment. Fleming v. Pringle, 21 C. A. 225, 51 S. W. 553.

An objection to an attachment on the ground that plaintiff's cause of action for conversion sounded in tort was not sustainable where plaintiff relied on an implied promise to pay the value of the property converted, the amount of which was specifically ascertained and alleged. Felker v. Douglass (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 323.

A debt resulting from a breach of a contract to deliver cattle is one for which attachment lies. McKay v. Elder (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 268.

One can sue a non-resident for conversion of property on an implied promise to pay and get jurisdiction by attachment when he alleges a specified number and value of the property converted. Hitson v. Hurt, 45 C. A. 360, 101 S. W. 293.

Affidavits.—The facts which authorize the issuance of the writ must be stated positively, and not as a matter of belief. Sydnor v. Totman, 6 T. 189; Dunnenbaum v. Scram, 59 T. 281; Lewis v. Stewart, 62 T. 352.

In proceedings by attachment, the making and filing of petition, affidavit and bond should be as nearly contemporaneous as convenient, so that no suspicion be thrown on the fairness of the plaintiff's case. An affidavit was made on the 6th, the bond was dated on the 7th and filed on the 9th, and the attachment was issued on the 11th. Held, the attachment could not be quashed on that ground. Campbell v. Wilson, 6 T. 379. See Claflin Co. v. Kamsler (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 1018.

That an affidavit made in New York on the 9th of June was not filed until the 3d of July is not ground for quashing an attachment. Wright v. Ragland, 18 T. 289. And see Lewis v. Stewart, 62 T. 352; Sydnor v. Chambers, Dallam, 601.

An affidavit and bond for attachment not filed with the petition are identified by the file number of the suit, the names of the parties, etc. Eilers v. Forbes (Civ. App). 32 S. W. 709.

Affidavit for attachment held insufficient. Sarrazin v. Hotman, 16 C. A. 351, 40 S. W. 629.

An affidavit and bond for attachment held not defective in not giving the number of the case in which the attachment was issued. B. F. Bridges & Son v. First Nat. Bank, 47 C. A. 454, 105 S. W. 1018.

An affidavit for attachment not signed by affiant is void. Davis v. Sherrill, 52 C. A. 259, 113 S. W. 557.

An affidavit for attachment held sufficient to identify the suit. White Day Furniture Co. v. First State Bank of Dallas (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 1159.

In attachment, where there was no plea charging that the officer before whom the affidavit for the writ was made had made a false certificate or jurat, evidence that plaintiff who made the affidavit did not do so as certified to by the officer was properly excluded. Awalt v. Schooler (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 453.

It is not a ground for quashing attachment proceedings that the affidavit was made three days before the writ was issued and the bond filed. Coleman v. Zapp (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 730.

In a stated case, held, that the clerk of the district court was not disqualified from taking the affidavit and approving the bond for attachment. Lester v. Ricks (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 395.

—— Construction with pleadings.—The affidavit may refer to the petition for the amount of the indebtedness. Morgan v. Johnson, 15 T. 568.

In a suit brought against a non-resident the petition alleged that the defendant had effects and credits in this state; an affidavit stating these facts was not necessary. Wright v. Ragland, 18 T. 289.

Where the petition averred a debt of $2,000, but the exhibits attached showed a less sum due, and the affidavit averred the truth of the facts stated in the petition, the attachment was properly dissolved. Marshall v. Alley, 25 T. 342.

An attachment is not void because the affidavit is for an amount less than that claimed in the petition. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 932; Smith v. Mather (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 257.

Variance as to amount of debt and time of maturity stated in petition, affidavit, and application for writ held ground for quashing the attachment. Joiner v. Perkins, 59 T. 300.

An affidavit with a petition duly sworn to must be construed in connection therewith. Gray v. Steedman, 63 T. 95; Cleveland v. Boden, 63 T. 103.

It is sufficient if the petition and affidavit together show the facts. Willis v. Mooring, 63 T. 340; Johnson v. Dowling, 1 App. C. C. § 1092.

Where the petition alleged that the debt was a certain sum, which defendant refused to pay, to plaintiff's damage in a larger sum stated, and the affidavit averred that the facts stated in the petition were true and that the debt was the sum first stated, there was no uncertainty or contradiction. Piggott v. Schram, 64 T. 447.

The petition stated the names of plaintiffs as J. F., Henry W., and H. L., partners under the firm name of F., W. & L. The affidavit alleged an indebtedness to J. F., John W., and H. L., composing the firm of F., W. & L. Held, that variance was fatal. Focke v. Hardeman, 67 T. 173, 2 S. W. 363.

That the affidavit is for a less sum than that claimed in the petition does not invalidate the writ. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 932.

Petition and affidavit for attachment held not contradictory or uncertain. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

A motion to quash an attachment on the ground of insufficiency of the petition to support the attachment, held properly overruled, the affidavit for attachment being separate from the pleading, and containing all the proper allegations for the issuance of the writ, and the petition being amendable. Thomas v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 934.

A variance between the petition in attachment proceedings and the affidavit held to be immaterial. White Day Furniture Co. v. First State Bank of Dallas (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 1159.

An affidavit for attachment should not be quashed for uncertainty in the amount sued for, where the original petition alleges reasonable value and certain plans, and the affidavit to the petition states a specific sum. Hall v. Parry, 55 C. A. 40, 118 S. W. 561.

Where attachment was sued out in an action on notes, it was not necessary for plaintiff to allege in his pleading that the attachment had been issued and levied upon the property. Awalt v. Schooler (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 453.

Though the petition in the action fails to allege specifically that the debt is past due, refusal to quash the attachment process is not error; the affidavit for attachment, made and filed the same day as the petition, expressly stating it was past due. Western Warehouse Co. v. Flynt (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 789.

—— Alternative or disjunctive averments.—The grounds for an attachment must not be stated in the alternative; as, that the defendant is about to transfer or secrete, or has transferred or secreted, his property for the purpose of defrauding his creditors (Hopkins v. Nichols, 22 T. 206); that the defendant is "about to transfer or secrete his property for the purpose of defrauding his creditors" (Garner v. Burleson, 26 T. 348; Culbertson v. Cabeen, 29 T. 247); that the "defendants are about to transfer their property or dispose of the same" (Carpenter v. Pridgen, 40 T. 32); that "defendants have secreted their property for the purpose of defrauding their creditors, and that defendants have disposed of their property with intent to defraud their creditors" (Pearre v. Hawkins, 62 T. 434); that the defendants have disposed of their property, in whole or in part, for the purpose and with the intent to defraud their creditors, and that the defendants are about to dispose of their property with intent to defraud their creditors (Dunnenbaum v. Scram, 59 T. 281); that the defendants are about to transfer their property or dispose of the same (Carpenter v. Pridgen, 40 T. 32).

An affidavit that the defendants "were about to convert their property or a part thereof into money for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of their creditors" is not open to the objection that it states two separate grounds for an attachment in the alternative. Blum v. Davis, 56 T. 423.

An affidavit in attachment held not to state different grounds disjunctively. McKay v. Elder (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 268.

—— Amendment.—Failure to state what of the claims are due at the filing of the suit was a defect not cured by amendment. Avery v. Zander, 77 T. 207, 13 S. W. 971; Munzenheimer v. Cloak Co., 79 T. 318, 15 S. W. 389.

Where a purported affidavit for attachment is not signed by the affiant, it is not an affidavit, and cannot be amended. Davis v. Sherrill, 52 C. A. 259, 113 S. W. 556.

—— Affidavit by agent or attorney.—When an affidavit is made by an agent he should be so described in the affidavit. Willis v. Lyman, 22 T. 268. But it is not necessary that the fact should be sworn to. Evans v. Lawson, 64 T. 199. The affidavit may be made by the treasurer of a private corporation under the general incorporation law of this state. Carter Lumber Co. v. Grazier, 3 App. C. C. § 176.

Affidavits stating different and distinct facts can be made by different attorneys, and will be considered together. Lewis v. Stewart, 62 T. 352. But see Scram v. Duggan, 1 App. C. C. § 1271.

An agent's acts in making a false affidavit are the acts of the principal. Blum v. Stein, 68 T. 608, 5 S. W. 454.

—— Indebtedness and amount.—An allegation in the affidavit that the defendant was indebted to plaintiff in the several sums of money mentioned in the petition is sufficient. Morgan v. Johnson, 15 T. 568.

It is sufficient if the affidavit state the facts from which the amount due can be ascertained. Wright v. Ragland, 18 T. 289; Barbee v. Holder, 24 T. 225; Morgan v. Johnson, 15 T. 569; Primrose v. Roden, 14 T. 1; Briggs v. Lane, 1 App. C. C. § 961; Rowan v. Shapard, 2 App. C. C. § 296.

The petition alleged that the defendant was indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $2,000; it then sets out the cause of action founded upon the execution of a note filed as an exhibit, and admits certain credits on the note, and on calculation it appears that a less amount is due than stated. The affidavit attached to the petition states that the facts stated in the petition are true. Held, that the attachment was properly dissolved. Marshall v. Alley, 25 T. 342.

An indebtedness exists where the amount can be ascertained from the contract. Devoe v. Stewart, 32 T. 712; Grabenheimer v. Blum, 63 T. 369.

When in a suit on a promissory note the defendant's right to a credit, resulting from partial payment, is admitted, but the date of the payment is not averred either in the petition or affidavit, the attachment is defective. Espey v. Heidenheimer, 58 T. 662.

When plaintiff stated the amount of his demand at different sums in the petition, in his affidavit, and another amount in his application for the writ, the attachment was properly quashed. Joiner v. Perkins, 59 T. 300.

If the petition is not sworn to, and the affidavit relates only to the principal sum and does not include the interest and attorney's fee claimed in the petition, the attachment can be properly issued for the amount sworn to. Evans v. Lawson, 64 T. 199.

An attachment sued out for a certain sum is not defeated by proof of an offset reducing the amount claimed to be due. Id.

The petition alleged plaintiff's debt to be a certain sum, which "defendants refused to pay, to their damage," stating a larger sum. The affidavit stated that the facts mentioned in the petition were true, and that the debt was the amount first stated. Held, there was no uncertainty or contradiction as to the amount of the debt. Piggott v. Schram, 64 T. 447.

An attachment can issue for less than plaintiff's entire demand when it is distinctly and separately stated. Dwyer v. Testard, 65 T. 432.

The amount of the interest need not be stated in the affidavit, where the data by which it may be calculated are given. Briggs v. Lane, 1 App. C. C. § 961; Wright v. Ragland, 18 T. 289.

The affidavit must state that the defendant is justly indebted to the plaintiff and the amount of the demand. Where this requirement has not been complied with in terms or in substance, the proceedings are fatally defective, and the attachment will be dissolved. Scram v. Duggan, 1 App. C. C. § 1270. The omission of the word "justly" is a fatal defect. Evans v. Tucker, 59 T. 249; Scram v. Duggan, 1 App. C. C. § 1270. But see Kennedy v. Morrison, 31 T. 207.

The omission of the word "is" before the words "justly indebted," reading: "the defendant justly indebted to the plaintiff," etc., rendered the affidavit fatally defective. City Nat. Bank of Dallas v. Flippen, 66 T. 610, 1 S. W. 897.

The petition stated the names of plaintiffs as J. F., Henry W., and H. L., partners under the firm name of F., W. & L. The affidavit alleged an indebtedness to J. F., John W., and H. L., composing the firm of F., W. & L. Held, that the variance was fatal. Focke v. Hardeman, 67 T. 173, 2 S. W. 363.

An attachment will be quashed when neither the petition nor affidavit shows what of the claims are due and what not due at the filing of the suit. This defect is not cured by an amendment after the affidavit was made. Avery v. Zander, 77 T. 207, 13 S. W. 971; Munzenheimer v. Cloak Co., 79 T. 318, 15 S. W. 389.

It is not necessary that the affidavit or the petition should state what part of the debt is due, or that it is not due. Gimbel v. Gomprecht, 89 T. 497, 35 S. W. 470; Tootle v. Alexander, 13 C. A. 615, 35 S. W. 821.

An attachment is not void because the affidavit is for an amount less than that claimed in the petition. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 932.

An affidavit for attachment in a suit on a note held not insufficient for not more particularly describing the debt. Teague v. Lindsey, 31 C. A. 161, 71 S. W. 573.

An affidavit that defendant is justly indebted to plaintiff on a customer's draft for $564, dated October 14, 1910, due and payable at sight and now long since due, that such draft is fully set out in plaintiff's petition, and reference made thereto for a full description, was sufficient. Simon v. Temple Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 592.

An unliquidated demand for breach of contract to exchange properties sustains an attachment on plaintiff filing a proper affidavit. Patterson v. McMinn (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 223.

—— Residence.—In affidavit for an attachment on the ground that the defendant is not a resident of this state, the superadded words, "so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served on him," were treated as surplusage. McMahan v. Boardman, 29 T. 170.

Where the ground stated in the affidavit for attachment is that the defendant is a non-resident of the state the fact that the petition states that he is temporarily in the state affords no reason for quashing the attachment. Hall v. Parry, 55 C. A. 40, 118 S. W. 564.

That defendant was justly indebted to plaintiffs for several hundred dollars, and was a nonresident of the state, show probable cause for suing out the writ, as against a counterclaim for damages for wrongful attachment. Knowles v. Cary & Burns Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 189.

—— Secreting himself.—An affidavit that the "defendant secretes himself so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served on him" necessarily implies that he was amenable to ordinary process or had just been so, and consequently the existence of such fact need not be stated in the affidavit. Griffith v. Robinson, 19 T. 219.

—— Secreting property.—To transfer property is to place it in the hands of another; to secrete property is to hide it, to put it where the officer of the law will probably not be able to find it. These two acts can in no sense be considered as phases of the same general facts. Culbertson v. Cabeen, 29 T. 247.

—— Removing and disposal of property.—The clause authorizing an attachment when the debtor is about to remove his property out of the state evidently implies that the property in question has a fixed locus in the state, and is about to be removed, most probably to the prejudice of domestic creditors. In no legitimate, at least in no obvious sense, can it be construed to embrace property on its passage through the state to its destination in another state. Wiley v. Traiwick, 14 T. 662.

A fraudulent diversion of a debtor's property may be as effectively accomplished by a collusive suit as by a direct transfer, and to prevent the illegal result of such a suit between an attaching creditor and the debtor, a junior attaching creditor may intervene in the case and protect his interest in the attached property by showing that the plaintiff's demand is fictitious or fraudulent. Johnson v. Heidenheimer, 65 T. 263; Nenney v. Schluter, 62 T. 327.

An affidavit that the defendant "has disposed of his property with intent to defraud his creditors," etc., is sufficient. Prince v. Turner, 2 App. C. C. § 657.

The word "dispose" has a broader signification than the word "transfer," and the former includes the latter. Howard v. Caperon, 3 App. C. C. § 313. Citing Pearre v. Hawkins, 62 T. 434.

The use of the word his instead of has in the affidavit is a clerical error, which does not vitiate the attachment. Corrigan v. Nichols, 6 C. A. 26, 24 S. W. 952.

The omission of the words "in whole or in part" is immaterial. Steinam v. Gahwiler (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 472.

An affidavit for attachment setting out that defendants B. & Son, composed of B. and W., a private partnership, are justly indebted to the plaintiff, and that "said defendants named in the affidavit are about to dispose of their property," etc., is not defective, as it was not necessary to charge that each of such defendants composing the firm was about to dispose of his property. B. F. Bridges & Son v. First Nat. Bank, 47 C. A. 454, 105 S. W. 1018.

—— Converting property to money.—An affidavit "that defendant is about to convert the crops raised by him upon plaintiff's place into money, or a part thereof into money, for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of affiant," he being a creditor, is in substantial compliance with the statute. Smith v. Dye (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 858.

Amount recoverable for wrongful attachment.—See note under Art. 244.

Art. 241. [187] [153] What facts must further appear.—The affidavit shall further state—

1. That the attachment is not sued out for the purpose of injuring or harassing the defendant; and

2. That the plaintiff will probably lose his debt unless such attachment is issued. [Act Dec. 16, 1863, p. 37. P. D. 142.]

Motive in suing out writ.—Where an affidavit used the words "injuring and harassing," the attachment was properly quashed. The word or should be used. Moody v. Levy, 58 T. 532.

In a suit against two defendants an affidavit stating that the attachment is not sued out for the purpose of injuring and harassing the defendant is fatally defective. Perrell v. Kaufman, 72 T. 214, 12 S. W. 125; Gunst v. Pelham, 74 T. 586, 12 S. W. 233.

An attachment is not void by failure of the affidavit to comply with the first subdivision, and the court having jurisdiction, a judgment and sale were not subject to collateral attack. Barelli v. Wagner, 5 C. A. 445, 27 S. W. 17.

Where there are several defendants the affidavit is sufficient if it says that the attachment is not sued out for the purpose of injuring or harassing the defendants without also saying "or either of them" or using other words of like meaning. Doty v. Moore, 102 T. 48, 112 S. W. 1038; Id. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 957.

Art. 242. [188] [154] Not to issue until suit begun.—No such attachment shall issue until the suit has been duly instituted; but it may be issued in a proper case either at the commencement of the suit or at any time during its progress. [Act March 11, 1848. P. D. 165.]

Institution of suit.—It may be issued on Sunday or on a legal holiday. Art. 1816.

An attachment issued before the commencement of the suit will be quashed. Wooster v. McGee, 1 T. 17; Cordova v. Priestly, 4 T. 250; Bowers v. Chaney, 21 T. 363.

The institution of a civil action by one in his own right for the purpose of enforcing a claim, whether that claim be real or unfounded, affords no cause of action against the party suing, unless by abuse of the process the person or property of the defendant may be seized or in some manner injuriously affected. Halderman v. Chambers, 19 T. 53; Smith v. Adams, 27 T. 30; Johnson v. King, 64 T. 226; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hewson, 3 App. C. C. § 248.

After the issuance of the writ a petition cannot be filed nunc pro tunc. Osborn v. Schiffer, 37 T. 434.

In a suit by publication an attachment may be issued and levied on land after the publication of the citation is complete and before its return, no reference being made in the citation to an intended attachment. Milburn v. Smith, 11 C. A. 678, 33 S. W. 910.

Though an attachment cannot properly be issued after a final judgment has been rendered, the right to the remedy continues from the beginning of the suit till the right to an execution accrued, and hence judgment creditors when they commenced sci. fa. proceedings to enter their judgment nunc pro tunc and revive the same had the right to sue out an attachment against the judgment debtor's property. Coleman v. Zapp (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 730.

An attachment was properly issued in scire facias to have a judgment entry corrected by adding an omitted part, and to revive the judgment; the proceeding to revive being merely a suit for the debt. Coleman v. Zapp (Sup.) 151 S. W. 1040.

—— Pleadings.—A petition need not be sworn to when the affidavit contains all material allegations to authorize the issuance of the writ. Schrimpf v. McArdle, 13 T. 368; Primrose v. Roden, 14 T. 1; Morgan v. Johnson, 15 T. 568; Fechheimer v. Ball, 1 App. C. C. § 766.

It is not necessary that the petition should contain a prayer for the writ which is issued on filing of the affidavit and bond. Holden v. Meyer, 1 App. C. C. § 829.

A prayer for attorney's fees, which petition shows will not be included in the suit, held not to destroy the right to attach for so much of the debt as was properly included. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 932.

An attachment held not rendered invalid by a slight mistake in computing and stating the amount due. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

Where attachment was sued out in an action on notes, it was not necessary for plaintiff to allege that an attachment had been levied upon the property. Awalt v Schooler (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 453.

—— Effect of amendment.—If an amended petition sets up a different cause of action than that stated in the original petition, the attachment lien is thereby discharged. Boyd v. Beville, 91 T. 439, 44 S. W. 287.

An amendment of pleadings reducing the amount of the demand as originally stated without any change in its character will not abate an attachment regular when sued out. Gibbs v. Petree, 7 C. A. 526, 27 S. W. 685.

The filing of an amended petition setting up a new cause of action held to discharge a writ of attachment sued out under the original petition. Boyd v. Beville, 91 T. 439, 44 S. W. 287.

Where, after an attachment was issued, money was collected and credited on the claim in suit, and plaintiff by an amended petition admits such credit, such proceedings do not invalidate the attachment. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

There having been no other cause of action than deceit when the attachment was issued, any cause for debt having subsequently arisen, as shown by amendment of the petition, held the attachment should have been dissolved. Thomas v. Ellison, 102 T. 354, 116 S. W. 1141.

—— Proceedings before justice.—A petition is not required in a justice court. Henry v. Blasco, 1 App. C. C. § 765. And the suit is commenced by the issuance of citation. King v. Robinson, 2 App. C. C. § 555.

A writ of attachment was issued from a justice's court on the 5th of June, and the citation was not issued until the 16th of the same month. Held, that the writ of attachment was issued without authority of law. King v. Robinson, 2 App. C. C. § 554; Moody v. McRimmen, 7 C. A. 582, 27 S. W. 780.

Art. 243. [189] [155] Attachment may issue on debt not yet due, but no judgment until debt becomes due.—The writ of attachment above provided for may issue, although the plaintiff's debt or demand be not due, and the same proceedings shall be had thereon as in other cases, except that no final judgment shall be rendered against the defendant until such debt or demand shall become due. [Act March 11, 1848. P. D. 154.]

In general.—When an attachment is issued on a claim, part of which is not due at the time suit is brought, and the attachment is afterwards quashed, the suit abates as to the amount not due, and may proceed for the balance, if the court has jurisdiction of the amount. Sydnor v. Totman, 6 T. 189; Culbertson v. Cabeen, 29 T. 247; Cox v. Reinhardt, 41 T. 591; Seligson v. Hobby, 51 T. 147.

A judgment rendered in a suit by attachment before the debt becomes due is erroneous. King v. Frazer, 2 App. C. C. § 789.

When in a suit upon an indebtedness not due at the time of filing suit the attachment proceedings are quashed, the suit must be dismissed because it was prematurely brought. Moore Bros. v. Corley, 4 App. C. C. § 139, 16 S. W. 787.

The drawer of an accepted bill cannot be sued by attachment before the maturity of the bill; his liability is contingent. Kildare Lumber Co. v. Atlanta Bank, 91 T. 95, 41 S. W. 64.

Attachment cannot issue on a contingent demand. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 932.

An attachment can be sued out on a claim for debt before it is due, but no judgment can be taken until the maturity of the debt. Taylor v. Fryar, 18 C. A. 266, 44 S. W. 183.

An attachment proceeding may be brought on a note before maturity and judgment taken after its maturity. Rabb v. White (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 850.

Pleadings and affidavits.—Where part of the plaintiff's claim is not due at the commencement of the suit, the amount due should be stated. Sydnor v. Totman, 6 T. 189.

When the petition shows that the debt is not due, but the affidavit states that it is past due, the attachment will be quashed. Cox v. Reinhardt, 41 T. 591.

A variance between affidavit and petition as to time when debt is due, fatal. Evans v. Tucker, 59 T. 249; Joiner v. Perkins, 59 T. 300. But not where variance is immaterial. Stewart v. Heidenheimer, 55 T. 644.

It is not necessary that the affidavit should show in terms how much of the debt was due and how much not due, when the petition and affidavit, which refer to each other, contain the requisite data for making certain that fact by calculation. Willis v. Mooring, 63 T. 340.

The affidavit need not state when the debt will become due. Bennett v. Rosenthal, 3 App. C. C. § 156. Citing Willis v. Mooring, 63 T. 340; Tarkinton v. Broussard, 51 T. 551; Pearce v. Bell, 21 T. 688; Primrose v. Roden, 14 T. 1.

Where a petition shows that the debt sued on is a judgment, it sufficiently appears that the debt is due. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

Though the petition in the action fails to allege specifically that the debt is past due, refusal to quash the attachment process is not error; the affidavit for attachment, made and filed the same day as the petition, expressly stating it was past due. Western Warehouse Co. v. Flynt (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 789.

Maturity pending suit.—If the note sued on matures pending the suit, the plaintiff may amend and pray for judgment. Culbertson v. Cabeen, 29 T. 247; Stephenson v. Bassett, 51 T. 544.

If suit by attachment is brought before the debt is due, but judgment is not rendered until after the debt has become due, defendant cannot complain that the suit was premature. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck & Fly, 20 C. A. 111, 49 S. W. 160.

Art. 244. [190] [156] Plaintiff must give bond with security.—Before the issuance of any writ of attachment, the plaintiff must execute a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the defendant, in a sum not less than double the debt sworn to be due, conditioned that the plaintiff will prosecute his suit to effect, and will pay all such damages and costs as shall be adjudged against him for wrongfully suing out such attachment. [Act March 11, 1848. P. D. 143.]

Form and execution of bond.—Bond may be executed by an agent, and his authority will be presumed unless put in issue by plea. Messner v. Hutchins, 17 T. 597; Wright v. Smith, 19 T. 297; Peiser v. Cushman, 13 T. 390; Hart v. Kanady, 33 T. 720; Holden v. Meyer, 1 App. C. C. § 829.

It may be payable to the individual members of the firm which is sued. Gray v. Steedman, 63 T. 95. Should be made payable to the person against whose property the writ is issued. Arkenhold v. B. C. Evans Co., 11 C. A. 138, 32 S. W. 795.

A bond may be signed by the firm name of plaintiff (Gray v. Steedman, 63 T. 95); by an agent (Munzenheimer v. Heinze, 74 T. 254, 11 S. W. 1094). Must be in double the amount due. Lumber Co. v. Warren, 78 T. 318, 14 S. W. 783.

Suit was brought by John A. Sloan & Co.; the condition of the bond was that John A. Sloan & Co. and their sureties "shall pay all such damages and costs as shall be adjudged against him," etc. Held, that the sureties were for John A. Sloan only, and the bond was fatally defective. Winn v. Sloan, 1 App. C. C. § 1105.

The condition in the bond "that the above-bound Young and Wrightly, plaintiffs in attachment, the said Solinskey, defendant, will prosecute their said suit to effect, and that he will pay all such damages and costs as shall be adjudged against him for wrongfully suing out such attachment," is insufficient. Solinskey v. Young, 4 App. C. C. § 269, 17 S. W. 1083; Winn v. Sloan, 1 App. C. C. § 1105.

When the name of the plaintiff is correctly stated in the title of the suit a variance in the bond is immaterial. Beckham v. H. & M. Dry Goods Store (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 578.

A bond for attachment need not state in the caption the county where executed. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 932.

Where the names of all the sureties do not appear in the body of an attachment bond, but the bond binds "the undersigned," all the signers are included in the obligation assumed. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

Attachment bond considered, and held not uncertain, either as to the action, relation of the parties thereto, or obligation assumed. Id.

Where persons not named in the body of an attachment bond sign the instrument, describing themselves as "securities," their intent to bind themselves as sureties to the bond cannot be doubted. Id.

An affidavit and bond for attachment held not defective in not giving the number of the case in which the attachment was issued. B. F. Bridges & Son v. First Nat. Bank, 47 C. A. 454, 105 S. W. 1018.

A signature to an attachment bond signed by a typewriter, if adopted by the party whose name is signed, is sufficient. Id.

Where an attachment was issued on a bond signed in the name of the plaintiff bank without showing the officer who executed the bond, the signature is sufficient. Id.

In a suit on a note against the maker and indorsers, an attachment was issued and levied on property of one of the makers. The indorsers did not answer the suit. Held, that the attachment bond was not defective in reciting that the makers were defendants in the suit without naming the indorsers. Id.

A bond conditioned that plaintiff will pay all damages that shall be adjudged "against ——— for wrongfully suing out such attachment" is insufficient. Rino v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 611.

In a stated case, held, that the clerk of the district court was not disqualified from taking the affidavit and approving the bond for attachment. Lester v. Ricks (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 395.

Amount of bond.—Where an attachment is issued by the county judge on complaint in writing, under oath, made to him by a person interested in an estate, that the executor or administrator is about to remove said estate, or any part thereof, beyond the limits of this state, complainant must give bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in such sum as the judge may require, payable to the executor or administrator. Art. 3240.

An attachment bond which is not conditioned for the payment of costs is not in compliance with the law. Winn v. Sloan & Co., 1 App. C. C. § 1104.

The writ of attachment is not void because the bond is not double the amount of the claim sued for where the petition discloses the fact that that part of the claim which makes the bond apparently insufficient cannot be recovered in the suit. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 932.

A bond executed by plaintiff and sureties conditioned that plaintiff will prosecute its suit to effect and that they will pay all such damages and costs as shall be adjudged against them for wrongful suing out such attachment is good. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 393.

Where an attachment bond was not in double the amount sued for, the court erred in denying a motion to quash the writ of attachment and in foreclosing the attachment lien on the property involved. Zachariae v. Swanson, 34 C. A. 1, 77 S. W. 627.

Amendment of bond.—A bond defective in matter of substance cannot be amended, nor can it be supplied by a new bond after the issuance of the writ. Winn v. Sloan, 1 App. C. C. § 1104.

When an attachment is abated on the ground that the sureties are not residents of this state, the bond cannot be substituted by another bond. Caldwell v. Lamkin, 12 C. A. 29, 33 S. W. 316.

In the absence of statutory authority, a defective bond for attachment cannot be amended or substituted by a new one. Id.

Verbal errors in an attachment bond may be corrected by the context. Beckham v. Hargadine-McKitrick Dry-Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 578.

Sureties.—On a motion to quash an attachment bond, on the ground that one of the sureties on the attachment bond was a partnership, held, that it cannot be assumed from the fact that one of the sureties signed as "Arnold & Shelton" that this name or style represents a partnership. It would seem that in any case in which the authority of one to sign a firm name as a surety to such a bond is questioned, this should be done by some plea raising an issue of fact. Messner v. Hutchins, 17 T. 602; Wright v. Smith, 19 T. 299.

An individual member of an incorporated company may be surety on the bond. City National Bank v. Cupp, 59 T. 268.

A bond signed "Arnold & Shelton," as one of the sureties, ought to be rejected by the officer whose duty it is to approve the bond; he ought not to imperil the rights of parties by undertaking to pass upon the power of one partner to bind his firm as surety. Donnelly v. Elser, 69 T. 282, 6 S. W. 563.

Two signatures appearing below that of the plaintiff in an attachment bond are presumed to be those of the sureties. Weis v. Chipman, 3 C. A. 106, 22 S. W. 225.

Wrongful attachment in general.—The action for damages on the bond for the mere wrongful suing out of the writ is ex contractu and survives; the action for maliciously suing out the writ is ex delicto and dies with the person. The causes of each action when joined must be separately and distinctly stated. Harrison v. Harwood, 31 T. 650; Wallace v. Finberg, 46 T. 35; Railroad v. Le Gierse, 51 T. 189.

It may be shown that an attachment was wrongful by negativing the grounds on which it was issued. Harris v. Finberg, 46 T. 79.

An attachment is wrongful when the ground alleged for its issuance does not exist. Bear Bros. v. Marx & Kempner, 63 T. 298; Woods v. Huffman, 64 T. 98.

The rule that an action to recover actual damages for the wrongful suing out and levy of an attachment must be based on the attachment bond has not been recognized in Texas; the bond is the foundation of the liability of the sureties, but not of the principal. Half, Weiss & Co. v. Curtiss, 68 T. 640, 5 S. W. 451.

A petition which alleges that the defendant had, "without probable cause, wrongfully, maliciously and unlawfully, and with intent to injure, harass and oppress plaintiff, sued out a writ of attachment and had the same levied on plaintiff's property (stating its value), and caused the same to be sold thereunder, and that plaintiff had been damaged by the unlawful seizure of his property, and by the suing out by defendant of the wrongful, wilful and malicious attachment, in the sum of $10,000," states substantially a cause of action. Brooks v. Sanger Brothers, 69 T. 24, 7 S. W. 355.

A defendant in attachment which is wrongfully and maliciously sued out may recover the actual damages resulting from being dispossessed of his property, though it may not have been taken by the officer into actual possession. Rice v. Miller, 70 T. 613, 8 S. W. 317, 8 Am. St. Rep. 630.

Suit for damages for wrongful attachment may be brought against the plaintiff in an attachment and the sheriff and his sureties. Evans Co. v. Reeves, 6 C. A. 254, 26 S. W. 219, citing Willis v. Whitsett, 67 T. 673, 4 S. W. 253; Milliken v. Callahan, 69 T. 206, 6 S. W. 681; Cabell v. Shoe Co., 81 T. 108, 16 S. W. 811. See Longcope v. Bruce, 44 T. 438.

The beneficiaries under a mortgage executed by a debtor to a trustee for the benefit of certain creditors acquire no rights thereunder until acceptance; and in the absence of such acceptance the trustee cannot maintain an action in behalf of such creditors. Leeper Hardware Co. v. Spencer (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 45, citing Milling Co. v. Eaton, 86 T. 403, 25 S. W. 614, 24 L. R. A. 369; Bauman v. Jaffray, 6 C. A. 489, 26 S. W. 260.

Wrongful and malicious attachment defined. Mathews v. Boydston (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 814.

Attachment was wrongfully issued if it was not probable that plaintiff would have lost his debt had it not issued. Beville v. Boyd, 16 C. A. 491, 41 S. W. 670, 42 S. W. 318.

Where one's goods, mixed with others, are wrongfully attached, the owner may maintain conversion, though after the levy he refused to designate his goods or demand the proceeds of the sale. Barnes v. Darby, 18 C. A. 468, 44 S. W. 1029.

Where defendants pleaded in reconvention wrongful seizure and conversion of the property, held no error to sustain defendant's exception to plaintiff's supplemental petition that the property was mortgaged to third persons at the time of its seizure. Smith v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 950.

For a wrongful attachment of goods the owner is not compelled to elect to sue the plaintiffs in attachment independent of the bond, or sue on the bond, but may sue both in one action. Harkleroad v. Leonard, 28 C. A. 133, 67 S. W. 127.

In an action for the wrongful suing out of an attachment, a charge that, if defendant was not about to convert his property into money to place it beyond the reach of his creditors, the attachment was illegally sued out, held improperly refused. Bell v. Fox, 37 C. A. 522, 84 S. W. 384.

Plaintiffs, who ratified the issuance and execution of a writ under which personal property of defendant was wrongfully seized, held liable for the conversion, though the writ was not actually signed by the justice. Sanger Bros. v. Brandon (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 431.

One who sues out an attachment maliciously and without probable cause may be subjected to exemplary damages. Faroux v. Cornwell, 40 C. A. 529, 90 S. W. 537; Carroll v. First State Bank of Denison (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 818.

Where a writ of attachment is levied on exempt property, plaintiff in the attachment and the officer are liable in damages. Faroux v. Cornwell, 40 C. A. 529, 90 S. W. 537.

In an action for suing out an attachment wrongfully and without probable cause, the fact that exempt property was levied on did not tend to establish a cause of action. Id.

A wrongful seizure of chattels on attachment constitutes a conversion. Davidson v. Oberthier, 42 C. A. 337, 93 S. W. 478.

No injury held to be inferred as a matter of law from a certain levy by leaving notice with a partner. Seal v. Holcomb, 48 C. A. 330, 107 S. W. 916.

In an action for wrongful attachment, a charge held erroneous as prohibiting recovery for wrongful attachment, unless plaintiff was not entitled to recover in the original suit. Richburg v. McIlwaine, Knight & Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1166.

One reconvening for wrongful attachment was bound to show that the writ of attachment was wrongfully sued out. Id.

One reconvening for wrongful attachment must deny the existence of the ground upon which the writ issued, but a plea alleging generally that the writ was wrongfully sued out is sufficient to admit evidence of that fact, in absence of special exception. Id.

A debtor voluntarily moving to quash an attachment, and obtaining an order quashing it, held not entitled to deny the legal effect of his action, amounting to a waiver of the conversion by the attachment. Jones & Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 116.

A firm, whose personalty had been attached for the debt of a partner, held to have waived its right to sue for trespass or conversion, except for the part of the property which the officer had sold. Id.

That plaintiff's attorney accepted a check for surplus on the wrongful sale of plaintiff's mule under a writ, did not estop plaintiff at least from recovering the balance of the value of the mule. J. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 827.

Where the issuance of garnishment writs is not wrongful or unauthorized under the statute, the mere fact that they were issued maliciously will not afford an action for damages. Pegues Mercantile Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 280.

The truth of the allegations of an affidavit cannot be controverted to abate the writ; defendant's remedy being on the bond. Hart v. Jopling (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1075.

In order to entitle one to recover for wrongfully suing out an attachment, it must appear that no probable cause existed and that defendant was actuated by malice. Hale v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 358.

While, in absence of contrary evidence, the jury may find malice as a fact upon proof of want of probable cause for wrongfully suing out an attachment, the facts and circumstances may show that no malice in fact existed, even in the absence of probable cause. Id.

—— Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

—— Limitation of action.—See notes under Title 87, Chapter 2.

—— Defenses.—It is no defense to an action on the bond that the writ of attachment was quashed (Castro v. Whitlock, 15 T. 437; Peiser v. Cushman, 13 T. 390); or that the attaching creditor heard that others were about to attach. Carothers v. McIlhenny, 63 T. 138.

That goods were seized under a prior attachment is no defense to an action for wrongful attachment. Martin-Brown Co. v. Henderson, 9 C. A. 130, 28 S. W. 695.

In an action by an administrator to recover the value of goods which were levied on as the property of another, an answer that the goods were returned uninjured to the estate states a good defense. Pinkard v. Willis, 28 C. A. 198, 67 S. W. 135.

Defendant in a wrongful attachment held not to have waived his right to damages by replevying and appropriating the property. Davidson v. Oberthier, 42 C. A. 337, 93 S. W. 478.

Where defendants wrongfully levied on plaintiff's mule, which was thereafter also attached under other writs, it was no defense to an action for conversion that defendants agreed but were unable to surrender the mule. J. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 827.

—— Set-off.—See notes under Title 27.

—— Amount recoverable for wrongful attachment.—When the writ is wrongfully sued out, defendant may recover actual damages by suit or by plea in reconvention. Walcott v. Hendrick, 6 T. 406; Hammonds v. Belcher, 10 T. 271; Schrimpf v. McArdle, 13 T. 368; Castro v. Whitlock, 15 T. 437; Punchard v. Taylor, 23 T. 424; Clark v. Wilcox, 31 T. 322; Portier v. Fernandez, 35 T. 535; Wallace v. Finberg, 46 T. 35; Davis v. Rawlins, 1 App. C. C. § 17; Handel v. Kramer, 1 App. C. C. § 826; Green v. Carlton, 1 App. C. C. § 833; Dreiss v. Faust, 1 App. C. C. § 35; Schwartz v. Burton, 1 App. C. C. § 1216. Such as the value of the goods seized and interest. Wallace v. Finberg, 46 T. 35; Friedlander v. Ehrenworth, 58 T. 350; Miller v. Jannet, 63 T. 82; Block v. Sweeney, 63 T. 419; Mulhaul v. Feller, 1 App. C. C. § 1164; Wallis Landes v. Eichelberger, 2 App. C. C. § 134.

The plaintiff is responsible for actual damages resulting from the wrongful acts of his agent. Peiser v. Cushman, 13 T. 390. He is also responsible for the malicious acts of his agent, when, with knowledge of or participation in the malice, he has adopted or ratified his acts. Willis v. McNeill, 57 T. 465; Wallace v. Finberg, 46 T. 35; Harris v. Finberg, 46 T. 79; Anderson v. Larremore, 1 App. C. C. § 950; Hays v. Railway Co., 46 T. 272; Thompson v. Bell, 11 C. A. 1, 32 S. W. 142.

When a merchant ceases to do business his credit as such cannot thereafter be the subject of injury. Hunt v. Kellum, 59 T. 535.

The owner of goods wrongfully seized is entitled to eight per cent. interest on the value of the goods during the time they are in the hands of the sheriff, as actual damages. Kauffman v. Babcock, 67 T. 241, 2 S. W. 878.

In a suit for damages for wrongfully seizing a stock of goods, neither the inventory, the appraisement made by the sheriff, nor the report of sales, is conclusive of their value. Blum v. Stein, 68 T. 608, 5 S. W. 454.

An ordinary levy upon real estate will not authorize a recovery of either actual or exemplary damages. Trawick v. Martin-Brown Co., 79 T. 460, 14 S. W. 564. See Rentfrow v. Lancaster, 10 C. A. 321, 31 S. W. 229.

While the seizure of goods under a void writ of attachment renders the plaintiff in attachment a naked trespasser, still, when sued by parties from whom they were taken, the plaintiff in the attachment has the right, in mitigation of damages, to prove the fraudulent character of the possession invaded. Mississippi Mills v. Meyer, 83 T. 433, 18 S. W. 748.

A party causing the seizure of personal property under a void writ is a naked trespasser; the person in possession can recover its value, and the defendant cannot show the application of the property to the owner's benefit by way of mitigation in damages. Mississippi Mills v. Meyer & Co., 83 T. 433, 18 S. W. 748; Hudson v. Willis, 73 T. 256, 11 S. W. 273.

The measure of damages for goods seized and claimed adversely to the defendant in the writ under which seizure is made is the value of the seizure and six per cent. interest from the date of seizure. Gilmour v. Heinze, 85 T. 76, 19 S. W. 1075.

Where property is seized under writs of sequestration and attachment, if either writ is unlawful, the damages caused by the seizure under such writ may be recovered. If the damages are not distinguishable, the defendant is entitled to such damages as he has sustained. National Bank v. Houts, 85 T. 69, 19 S. W. 1080.

Rule of damages for the wrongful levy of an attachment on partnership property through collusion between one partner and the plaintiff in the attachment. When consent of a partner to a levy of the attachment will justify the creditor. See Barker v. Abbott, 2 C. A. 147, 21 S. W. 72.

Actual damages are recoverable when the alleged ground for attachment does not exist. Yarborough v. Weaver, 6 C. A. 215, 25 S. W. 468.

The measure of damages for the conversion of personal property is its market value at the date of conversion and interest. Hull v. Davidson, 6 C. A. 588, 25 S. W. 1047; Hudson v. Wilkinson, 45 T. 444. See Barker v. Abbott, 2 C. A. 147, 21 S. W. 72.

When an attachment is levied upon property subject to a lien, the lien-holder is entitled to recover from the plaintiff in attachment, who has converted the property, the market value of the goods less any prior liens, and not exceeding his debt. Grabfelder v. Lockett (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 168.

In case of a wrongful attachment the plaintiff is liable for the consequences of his act which would naturally or reasonably be expected to follow. Wilson v. Manning (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 1079.

Measure of damages for wrongful attachment of property in use. Id.

Loss of time from business in attending to the suit is not recoverable as actual damages. Lang v. Fritz (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 233.

The owner of goods seized under an attachment against another, after recovering possession can recover actual damages only. Gardner v. Bell, 14 C. A. 356, 38 S. W. 239; Id., 38 S. W. 240.

On an issue of wrongful attachment, held, that the debt due a third person, who was also plaintiff in an attachment, should not be deducted from the actual damages. Needham Piano & Organ Co. v. Hollingsworth (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 750.

Where all the evidence as to the value of goods wrongfully attached had reference to their value where the levy was made, it is immaterial that the jury were not restricted to the value at such place. Ellis v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 550.

When goods illegally attached are removed to another place, the damages are their market value at the time and place of levy. Barnes v. Darby, 18 C. A. 468, 44 S. W. 1029.

The measure of damages for a wrongful attachment of a stock of goods is their market value with interest thereon at six per cent from the date of the levy. Weaver v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 860.

Where plaintiff in attachment levies on personal property, and the owner of the property thereafter recovers the same for less than its value, such fact may be shown in mitigation of damages for unlawful attachment. Scott v. Childers, 24 C. A. 349, 60 S. W. 775.

Defendants held not entitled to an award of damages caused by the wrongful attachment of their plant. Hume v. S. Netter, A. Geismar & Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 865.

Owner of property levied on under void process, instructed not to use same, held entitled to recover value of its use during detention. Low v. NeSmith (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 32.

Owner, remaining in actual possession of property levied on under void process, held only entitled to nominal damages under allegation of value of property. Id.

Where plaintiffs were prevented from carrying on business by reason of a wrongful levy, the reasonable value of clerk hire they were compelled to pay held a proper element of damages. Hooks & Hines v. Pafford, 34 C. A. 516, 78 S. W. 991.

Where plaintiffs by reason of a wrongful levy were prevented from carrying on business under a saloon license, which was worthless to any one else, they were entitled to recover the value of such license as a part of their damages. Id.

The value of property cannot be recovered as damages for its wrongful seizure under an attachment, where the owner replevied the property. Lawson v. Goodwin, 37 C. A. 484, 84 S. W. 279.

Neither actual nor exemplary damages can be recovered for wrongful attachment, where no actual damages are shown by the levy. Id.

The sureties on an attachment bond, having taken no part except the execution of the bond, could not be liable for anything beyond actual damages for the wrongful suing out of the writ or its levy on exempt property in a malicious and oppressive manner. Faroux v. Cornwell, 40 C. A. 529, 90 S. W. 537.

The measure of damages for conversion of animals taken on attachment against a third person, who had no attachable interest, held to be their market value at time of seizure. National Cotton Oil Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 322.

In an action for conversion of chattels seized under a wrongful attachment, the measure of damages stated. Davidson v. Oberthier, 42 C. A. 337, 93 S. W. 478.

In an action for wrongful attachment, depreciation in value of the goods is an element of actual, but not of exemplary, damages. Rainey v. Kemp, 54 C. A. 486, 118 S. W. 630.

Where an attachment is levied on lands and thereafter quashed, and the lands released, if the attachment defendant could recover loss of a sale because of the issuance of the attachment, the measure of damages would be the difference between the price he would have sold the lots for but for such levy, and their market value immediately after the levy was released, and not at the time of trial. Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 882.

In an action for the price of goods sold, which were purchased for a store conducted by the wife of one defendant, in her own name, in aid of which an attachment was sued out, a charge that defendant in reconvention claimed damages for wrongfully suing out the attachment, and if the jury found for defendants, they might also find any damages sustained by the wrongful attachment, if they also found that the attachment was wrongfully sued out and injured defendants, was erroneous as subject to the construction that defendants could not recover for wrongful attachment unless plaintiffs were not entitled to recover in the original suit, since such damages could be recovered, though the business was so conducted as to make defendant husband liable for the goods. Richburg v. McIlwaine, Knight & Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1166.

Measure of damages for wrongful attachment stated. Jones & Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 116.

That plaintiff's attorney accepted a check for surplus on the wrongful sale of plaintiff's mule under a writ, did not estop plaintiff at least from recovering the balance of the value of the mule. J. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 827.

The owner of cotton wrongfully seized by attachment held entitled to recover its value, less the amount received by him from the proceeds of its sale. Pate v. Vardeman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 317.

If the grounds alleged for attachment were not true, the party could recover at least nominal damages, even if he suffered no actual injury. Id.

The levy of a writ of attachment on exempt property authorizes a recovery by the owner of the actual damages sustained. Carroll v. First State Bank of Denison (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 818.

—— Exemplary damages, probable cause, and malice.—When an attachment has been wrongfully, without probable cause, and maliciously sued out, the defendant may recover against the plaintiff actual and exemplary damages. Walcott v. Hendrick, 6 T. 406; Wiley v. Traiwick, 14 T. 662; Reed v. Samuels, 22 T. 114, 73 Am. Dec. 253; Withee v. Fearing, 23 T. 503; Culbertson v. Cabeen, 29 T. 247; Kaufman & Runge v. Wicks, 62 T. 234; Carothers v. McIlhenny, 63 T. 138; Bear Bros. v. Marx, 63 T. 298; Dreiss v. Faust, 1 App. C. C. § 37; Dwyer v. Testard, 1 App. C. C. § 1228; Elser v. Pierce, 2 App. C. C. § 737.

Though the grounds alleged for suing out the attachment did not in fact exist, if the plaintiff had probable cause to believe that they did exist, that fact negatives the evil animus and wrongful purpose which might be imputed to the plaintiff, and the defendant can then only recover actual damages. Walcott v. Hendrick, 6 T. 406; Culbertson v. Cabeen, 29 T. 247; Harris v. Finberg, 46 T. 79; Monroe v. Watson, 17 T. 625; Reed v. Samuels, 22 T. 114, 73 Am. Dec. 253; Christain v. Seeligson, 63 T. 405; Bear Bros. v. Marx, 63 T. 298.

The elements of exemplary damages are: 1st. Attorney's fees. Hughes v. Brooks, 36 T. 379; Brown v. Tyler, 34 T. 168; Landa v. Obert, 45 T. 539; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Oram, 49 T. 341; Findley v. Mitchell, 50 T. 143; Anderson v. Larremore, 1 App. C. C. § 947. 2d. Injury to credit. Clardy v. Callicoate, 24 T. 170; Osborn v. Schiffer, 37 T. 434; Mayo v. Savoni, 1 App. C. C. § 217; Schwartz v. Burton, 1 App. C. C. § 1216; Landes v. Eichelberger, 2 App. C. C. § 134.

In a suit for actual damages for wrongfully suing out a writ of attachment, and exemplary damages for maliciously suing it out without probable cause, the plaintiff must prove: (1) That the grounds upon which the writ issued are untrue. (2) The damages resulting to him from the issuance of the writ. To entitle party to recover exemplary damages for wrongful seizure of his property by an officer, he must show that the seizure was prompted by ill feeling or improper motive. Weaver v. Ashcroft, 50 T. 427; Fitzpatrick v. Small, 1 App. C. C. § 1142.

Any unlawful act done wilfully and purposely to the injury of another is malicious. Carothers v. McIlhenny, 63 T. 138. Malice is implied from want of probable cause. Culbertson v. Cabeen, 29 T. 247; Willis v. McNeill, 57 T. 465; Dreiss v. Faust, 1 App. C. C. § 37; Tilman v. Adams, 2 App. C. C. § 309; Dwyer v. Testard, 1 App. C. C. § 1228.

To recover exemplary damages he must prove in addition: 3d. That there was no probable cause for plaintiff's believing that the grounds upon which the attachment issued were true. 4th. That the plaintiff sued out the writ maliciously. Dwyer v. Testard, 1 App. C. C. § 1230.

A plaintiff, not having authorized his agent to seize goods of another than the defendant, and being ignorant of any wrongful seizure, is not liable for exemplary damages. Heidenheimer v. Sides, 67 T. 32, 2 S. W. 87.

The owner of goods seized under a writ of attachment against another cannot recover from the officer levying the writ more than actual damages, if the writ was upon its face valid, if the goods of the defendant were stored with goods of the plaintiff, and if the officer acted without malice, but in good faith, believing that the goods seized belonged to the defendant in attachment. Id.

When in an action to recover exemplary damages for wrongfully suing out a writ of attachment, it appeared that the affidavit for the writ was made by an agent of a non-resident plaintiff, who was made a party defendant with his principals, it was error to charge the jury that if the defendants, or either of them, had no probable cause for suing out the writ, and were actuated by malice or evil motive in the issuance and levy of the writ, the plaintiff would be entitled to a verdict against all the defendants for exemplary damages. Tynburg & Co. v. Cohen, 67 T. 220, 2 S. W. 734.

No exemplary damages can be recovered for injury to a plaintiff's business or reputation as keeper of a gambling house; and where he carries on other business in connection with his gambling house, the jury should be so charged as to prevent them from considering the damages to the latter. Kauffman v. Babcock, 67 T. 241, 2 S. W. 878.

In order to defend against actual damages, the very ground stated in the affidavit must be true; while it is a sufficient defense to a claim for exemplary damages that there was reasonable and probable grounds to believe the facts stated in the affidavit were true. In an action for actual damages it is proper to exclude evidence of any ground for the attachment other than that stated in the affidavit upon which it was issued. Blum v. Strong, 71 T. 321, 6 S. W. 167.

Want of probable cause and malice must be apparent to authorize a recovery of exemplary damages. Want of probable cause cannot be inferred from proof of malice. If want of probable cause is clearly shown, the jury may infer the existence of malice, but a court should not so instruct the jury. The mere suing out of an attachment, though with malice and without probable cause, will not authorize a recovery of damages, when no seizure of property is made under the writ. Biering v. Bank, 69 T. 599, 7 S. W. 90.

To show want of probable cause the defendant in attachment may show that he offered to compromise or arbitrate the matter in controversy. Lewis v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 92.

Exemplary damages cannot be recovered where actual damages are not shown. Cox v. Trent (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 764.

Probable cause for suing out an attachment may exist, although there may have been in fact no ground therefor. Gimbel v. Gomprecht (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 781.

Where plaintiff alleged that household goods of the value of $394 were wrongfully seized and held for 34 days, a judgment for $500 exemplary damages would not be set aside, as out of proportion to the judgment for $90 actual damages. Harkleroad v. Leonard, 28 C. A. 133, 67 S. W. 127.

Where a landlord was entitled to a distress warrant and by mistake sued out an attachment, the tenant held not entitled to exemplary damages. Lawson v. Goodwin, 37 C. A. 484, 84 S. W. 279.

Probable cause for issuing attachment held foreign to the question of liability for seizure thereunder of a third person's property. Epps & Mattox v. Hazlewood, 40 C. A. 325, 89 S. W. 809.

Evidence held to authorize a finding of malice, so as to make attachment plaintiffs and the officer liable for exemplary damages for seizure and conversion, under an attachment of property of another than the attachment defendant. Id.

Malice and want of probable cause must concur in order to authorize a recovery for exemplary damages for wrongful issuance of a writ of attachment. Faroux v. Cornwell, 40 C. A. 529, 90 S. W. 537.

Where no actual damage results from the wrongful suing out and levying of an attachment, exemplary damages cannot be recovered. Stewart v. Smallwood, 46 C. A. 467, 102 S. W. 159.

Nominal damages for wrongful attachment will not warrant a recovery of exemplary damages. Seal v. Holcomb, 48 C. A. 330, 107 S. W. 916.

In an action for wrongful attachment, depreciation in value of the goods is an element of actual but not of exemplary damages. Rainey v. Kemp, 54 C. A. 486, 118 S. W. 630.

One sued for wrongful attachment held not relieved from liability for exemplary damages because he acted on advice of counsel. Id.

Exemplary damages for a wrongful attachment held not recoverable. Jones & Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 116.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant a finding that defendants, in causing an attachment to be levied on plaintiff's property as the property of another, acted maliciously and without probable cause. J. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 827.

A party can recover exemplary damages for the wrongful levy of an attachment only on proof that the person suing out the writ acted maliciously and without probable cause. Id.

One is not liable for maliciously suing out a lawful attachment. Knowles v. Gary & Burns Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 189.

—— Costs.—Attorneys' fees to prosecute defendant's claim for damages are not elements of damage against the plaintiff in attachment. Yarborough v. Weaver, 6 C. A. 215, 25 S. W. 468.

Art. 245. [191] [157] Bond to be approved and filed.—Such bond shall be delivered to and approved by the officer issuing the writ, and shall, together with the affidavit, be filed with the papers of the cause.

Art. 246. [192] [158] Form of bond.—The following form of bond may be used:

"The State of Texas,

"County of——

"We, the undersigned, A B, ——— as principal, and ——— and ——— as sureties, acknowledge ourselves bound to pay to C D the sum of ——— dollars, conditioned that the above bound A B, plaintiff in attachment against the said C D, defendant, will prosecute his said suit to effect, and that he will pay all such damages and costs as shall be adjudged against him for wrongfully suing out such attachment. Witness our hands this —— day of ——— 19—

A B,
"E F,
"G H."

[Act March 11, 1848. P. D. 163.]

Form.—See notes under Art. 244.

Art. 247. [193] [159] Attachment abated for want of affidavit or bond.—Every original attachment issued without affidavit and bond, as herein provided, shall be abated on motion of the defendant; but such affidavit and bond shall not be void for want of form, provided they contain all essential matters. [Act March 11, 1848. P. D. 147–8.]

Abatement in general.—An attachment issued before the filing of the bond is fatally defective, and it is error to permit the affidavit, bond and petition to be filed nunc pro tunc. Osborn v. Schiffer, 37 T. 434.

Where suit was commenced May 8, 1896, and defendants filed a general denial March 1, 1897, a plea in abatement filed March 17, 1900, comes too late. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

—— Party entitled.—The right to abate an attachment on account of defects in the affidavit or bond has been restricted to defendants and has not been allowed to subsequent attaching creditors. Goodbar v. National Bank, 78 T. 461, 14 S. W. 851.

—— Defective bond.—Intrinsic defects can be reached by motion to quash; all others must be set up by plea. Wright v. Smith, 19 T. 297; Messner v. Hutchins, 17 T. 597; Messner v. Lewis, 20 T. 221; Hill v. Cunningham, 25 T. 25; City National Bank v. Cupp, 59 T. 268. As to time when motion should be made, see Drake v. Brander, 8 T. 351; Hart v. Kanady, 33 T. 720.

An attachment without a bond in double the amount shown to be due should be quashed. Lumber Co. v. Warren, 78 T. 318, 14 S. W. 783.

Where a defendant in attachment filed after three years a plea in abatement on the ground that the sureties on the bond were not solvent, such lapse of time constituted a waiver of the alleged defect. Wallace v. First Nat. Bank, 95 T. 103, 65 S. W. 180.

The objections that sureties to an attachment bond are nonresidents, and that the resident sureties are not worth the amount required, may be presented by plea in abatement. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

On a plea in abatement, to an attachment for insufficiency of the sureties to the bond, the burden is on defendant to show such insufficiency. Id.

—— Affidavits.—The truth of the matter stated in the affidavit cannot be put in issue for the purpose of abating the writ of attachment. Cloud v. Smith, 1 T. 611; Wright v. Ragland, 18 T. 289; Osborn v. Schiffer, 37 T. 434; Dunnebaum v. Schram, 59 T. 281; Hillebrand v. McMahan, 59 T. 450; Lewy v. Fischl, 65 T. 311; Dwyer v. Testard, 65 T. 432; Hart v. Jopling (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1075.

A variance between the petition and affidavit may be reached by plea in abatement as well as by motion to quash. Evans v. Tucker, 59 T. 249.

A defendant in attachment cannot put in issue the truth of the grounds on which the plaintiff sued out the writ, his remedy being by a suit on the bond. Nenney v. Schluter, 62 T. 328; Bateman v. Ramsey, 74 T. 589, 12 S. W. 235; Goodbar v. National Bank, 78 T. 461, 14 S. W. 851.

On a motion to quash, the essential statements in an affidavit for an attachment are not traversable, but must, for the purpose of the motion, be taken as absolutely true. Norvell-Shapleigh Hardware Co. v. Hall Novelty & Machine Works (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1092.

Variance between affidavit for attachment and amended petitions in amount claimed to be due held not ground for quashing the attachment. Id.

Variance between petition in an action and affidavit for attachment as to amount of indebtedness held not ground for quashing attachment. Elrod Bros. & Phillips v. Rice (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 733.

It is not a ground for quashing attachment proceedings that the affidavit was made three days before the writ was issued and the bond filed. Coleman v. Zapp (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 730.

The sureties on a bond in replevin of attached property cannot procure abatement of the attachment writ for any falsity in the affidavit for attachment. Hart v. Jopling (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1075.

—— Effect of dissolution.—Dissolution of an attachment will cause the dismissal of suit upon a debt not due. Sydnor v. Totman, 6 T. 189; Culbertson v. Cabeen, 29 T. 247. The dissolution of the attachment does not necessarily dismiss the suit when the right to sue is not dependent on the right to obtain the attachment. Focke v. Hardman, 67 T. 173, 2 S. W. 363.

Art. 247a. Attachments in actions based on unliquidated demands—Fixing amount of bond.—Provided that nothing in this chapter shall prevent the issuance of attachments in suits against persons, co-partnerships, associations or corporations upon whom personal service cannot be obtained within this state, founded in tort or upon demands which are unliquidated; but where the demand is unliquidated the amount of the bond to be made by the plaintiff shall be fixed by the judge or clerk of the court or by the justice of the peace issuing the attachment and the bond shall be made in the sum so fixed and upon the approval and filing of same the attachment shall issue as in other cases. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 31, sec. 1.]

Art. 248. [194] [160] Upon execution of affidavit and bond, writ to issue instanter.—Upon the execution of such affidavit and bond, it shall be the duty of the judge or clerk, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, immediately to issue a writ of attachment, directed to the sheriff or any constable of any county where property of the defendant may be supposed to be, commanding him to attach so much of the property of the defendant as shall be sufficient to satisfy the demand of the plaintiff and the probable costs of the suit. [Act March 11, 1848. P. D. 145.]

Issuance of writ.—An attachment issued by a justice of the peace without the issuance of citation is void, and its levy before the issuance of such citation is a nullity and fixes no lien. Moody v. McRimmon, 7 C. A. 582, 27 S. W. 780; Keeble v. Bailey, 3 T. 492; Price v. Luter, 14 T. 6.

Art. 249. [195] [161] Several writs.—Several writs of attachment may, at the option of the plaintiff, be issued at the same time, or in succession, and sent to different counties, until sufficient property shall be attached to satisfy the writ.

Second or subsequent writs.—Where the ground of attachment is continuing, a second writ issued pending a motion to quash the first writ cannot be held as without grounds or wrongful. Baines v. Ullmann, 71 T. 529, 9 S. W. 543.

A second attachment may be issued on the original petition. A writ issued on the 16th of September, the first having been issued on the preceding 13th of July, was held not to be too remote. Branshaw v. Tinsley, 4 C. A. 131, 23 S. W. 184.

Art. 250. [196] [162] Form of the writ.—The following form of writ may be issued:

"The State of Texas,

"To the sheriff or any constable of ——— county, greeting:

"We command you that you attach forthwith so much of the property of C D, if to be found in your county, repleviable on security, as shall be of value sufficient to make the sum of ——— dollars, and the probable costs of suit, to satisfy the demand of A B, and that you keep and secure in your hands the property so attached, unless replevied, that the same may be liable to further proceedings thereon, to be had before our court in ———, in the county of ———, on the —— day of ——— 19—, when and where you shall make known how you have executed this writ." [Id. P. D. 163.]

Form in general.—When the process is issued in the name of the state, with the name of the county added, the latter may be rejected as surplusage. Portis v. Parker, 8 T. 23, 58 Am. Dec. 95; McMahon v. Boardman, 29 T. 170; Biessenbach v. Key, 63 T. 79.

A writ of attachment which fails to state the amount of plaintiff's demand may be quashed. Munzenheimer v. Cloak & Suit Co., 79 T. 318, 15 S. W. 389.

The writ must run in the name of the state of Texas. King v. Robinson, 2 App. C. C. § 554.

That an attachment is issued for not only the amount of indebtedness stated in the affidavit, but also for interest, held not to invalidate it. Elrod Bros. & Phillips v. Rice (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 733.

—— Amendment of writ.—An amendment of a writ of attachment was made by attaching thereto the proper seal of the court, and at the same time the clerk was directed to indorse the proper filing, nunc pro tunc, on an amended petition filed before the attachment was issued. Whittenberg v. Lloyd, 49 T. 633.

A blank date left in the attestation of the clerk to a writ of attachment issued by him may be filled on motion when the writ itself shows the date of its issuance. Brack v. McMahan, 61 T. 1.

A writ of attachment may be amended where the defect is merely clerical and no third party is interested or could likely be affected by the amendment. Thus, plaintiff was described in the petition as Martin-Brown Company, and in the writ as Martin, Brown & Co. Held, that the writ could be amended so as to conform to the petition. Martin-Brown Co. v. Milburn, 2 App. C. C. § 215.

The court permitted the writ of attachment to be amended after its return by filling the blank with the amount of plaintiff's demand. It is said on appeal that the writ was valid at least from the time it was amended, and, as the property was rightfully in the possession of the sheriff without reference to the writ sued out by appellee, there was no reason why that possession, recognized by the sheriff as under the writ in question, should not be recognized as a valid levy from the time the writ was amended as against all persons. Orr et al. v. Harris, 82 T. 273, 18 S. W. 308.

A writ of attachment altered after its issuance by authority of the clerk, by inserting the name of one county in place of another, is void. Mississippi Mills v. Meyer, 83 T. 433, 18 S. W. 748.

Where the petition demands a less sum than that stated in the writ and affidavit, it may be amended after the issue of the writ. Greer v. Richardson Drug Co., 1 C. A. 634, 20 S. W. 1127.

Art. 251. [197] [163] Writ to be dated, tested and lodged with sheriff, etc.—The writ of attachment shall be dated and tested as other writs, and may be delivered to the sheriff or constable by the officer issuing it, or he may deliver it to the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, for that purpose.

Art. 252. [198] [164] Duty of sheriff, etc.—The sheriff or constable receiving the writ shall immediately proceed to execute the same by levying upon so much of the property of the defendant subject to the writ, and found within his county, as may be sufficient to satisfy the command of the writ. [P. D. 145.]

Liability of officer.—An officer in whose hands a writ of attachment is placed must execute it, although he may have knowledge of the insufficiency of the cause of action, and that it was sued out maliciously; and he is not liable on his official bond. Rice v. Miller, 70 T. 613, 8 S. W. 317, 8 Am. St. Rep. 630; Blum v. Strong, 71 T. 321, 6 S. W. 167.

A writ of attachment regular and valid on its face will protect the officer who executes it. Randall v. Rosenthal (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 822; Tierney v. Frazier, 57 T. 437.

A sheriff held liable for the rent of a building used by him until he disposed of certain goods levied on, without regard to the validity of a sale of the goods by the attachment defendant to plaintiff. Hooks & Hines v. Pafford, 34 C. A. 516, 78 S. W. 991.

—— Damages.—In a suit against an officer for levying an attachment on goods in his possession under a distress warrant, the amount for which the distress warrant was levied should be deducted from the amount of damages recovered. Block v. Sweeney, 63 T. 419.

Art. 253. [199] [165] May demand indemnity.—Whenever an officer shall levy an attachment, it shall be at his own risk; and such officer may, for his own indemnification, require the plaintiff in attachment to execute and deliver to him a bond of indemnity to secure him, if it should afterward appear that the property levied upon by him does not belong to the defendant. [P. D. 151.]

Execution of bond.—Where an agent of a creditor is authorized to collect the debt by suit, if necessary, he is by implication empowered to bind his principal to execute an indemnity bond in favor of the attaching sheriff. Maxwell-Clark Drug Co. v. Singley (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 827.

Remedy against indemnitors.—The officer may require the principal and sureties on the bond to be made parties to a suit against him, and the cause may be continued for the purpose of obtaining service on such parties. Act March 31, 1885; 19th Leg., p. 90. See art. 1844, post.

A sheriff levied three writs of attachment on goods for as many different creditors, who acted each without any concert of action or agreement with the others. Each executed to the sheriff an indemnifying bond. The person having the goods in possession, when seized under the three writs, sued the sheriff and his sureties. The sheriff caused the creditors who executed the indemnifying bonds to be made parties defendant to the suit, and prayed a recovery over against them for any damages that might be recovered against him and his sureties. Held, that the sheriff had as many distinct causes of action as there were indemnifying bonds, and the parties to the several bonds could not properly be made parties in the one action. Thomas v. Chapman, 62 T. 193.

A claimant of attached property held not entitled to recover on an indemnity bond given to the attaching officer, in the absence of an allegation that the levy was induced by the giving of such bond. Unsell v. Sisk, 37 C. A. 34, 83 S. W. 34.

One claiming title to property attached as the property of a debtor held entitled to recover from the sheriff and the sureties on his indemnity bond the full value of the property. Griffin v. Terry (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 115.

In an action for wrongful attachment levy, a judgment over against the sureties on the sheriff's indemnifying bond held erroneous. Kindell-Clark Drug Co. v. Myers (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 463.

While official bonds are to be strictly construed in favor of the sureties thereon, that rule is otherwise as to an indemnity bond to a sheriff, and, though the bond named other persons than the sheriff as obligees, the sheriff may, where the condition of the bond was to save him harmless, sue in his own name, regardless of the nominal obligee. Maxwell-Clark Drug Co. v. Singley (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 827.

A sheriff's only duty upon the commencement of an action by assignees of the attached property was to notify his indemnitors to save him harmless; he being not bound to defend in order to hold the indemnitors. Id.

—— Extent of liability.—An officer having a bond of indemnity can only recover upon it for damages recovered for the wrongful seizure under attachment, and his recovery is limited to the amount of the bond. Stevens v. Wolf, 77 T. 215, 14 S. W. 29.

As to measure of damages for the wrongful seizure of goods under attachment, see Hunter v. Penland (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 421.

The sureties on an indemnity bond given a sheriff for the seizure of goods under process are not relieved from liability by the loss of the goods by fire, where the sheriff was not negligent. Vickery v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 326.

Indemnitors of a sheriff held not liable on an indemnifying bond for a levy made after the return day of the writ, which they neither advised nor ratified. Jordan v. Henderson, 39 C. A. 89, 86 S. W. 961.

On a claim against the sureties on an indemnity bond for damages for wrongful attachment and malicious levy of an execution, it was error to admit evidence as to the amount of fees paid by claimant to his attorney for conducting the case. Chisenhall v. Hines (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 362.

Sale of property wrongfully levied on by constable to deputy held not to release sureties on indemnity bond from liability. Railey v. Hopkins, 50 C. A. 600, 110 S. W. 779.

Where several attaching creditors gave a joint indemnity bond to a sheriff, a joint judgment may be recovered against them; it not being necessary that the amount should be prorated according to the amount received by each. Maxwell-Clark Drug Co. v. Singley (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 827.

Where a bond was conditioned to indemnify the sheriff against all costs he might incur in consequence of the levy, the sheriff, though mulcted in damages, cannot recover against the obligor the costs incurred in attempting to sustain a void judgment against the obligor which he secured without notice. Id.

A bond conditioned to indemnify an attaching sheriff against all damages by reason of the levy, includes all damages resulting from any improper levy, irrespective of the fact that the attached goods were sold by virtue of another writ of attachment. Id.

Conclusiveness of judgment against officer.—In general, in an action on an indemnity bond given an attaching sheriff, the validity of the judgment rendered against him and the legality of his acts cannot be inquired into, yet, where the indemnitors had no notice of the pendency of the action against the sheriff, they may urge any defense against him that might have been urged against the possessors of the attached property. Maxwell-Clark Drug Co. v. Singley (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 827.

Art. 254. [200] [166] Property subject to attachment.—The writ of attachment may be levied on such property, and none other, as is, or may be, by law subject to levy under the writ of execution.

Possession.—The levy of an attachment on horses as they run on the range is valid. Rice v. Miller, 70 T. 613, 8 S. W. 317, 8 Am. St. Rep. 630.

Ownership in general.—A pledge in the hands of a trustee is not subject to an attachment. Osborn v. Koenigham, 57 T. 91; Scott v. McDaniel, 67 T. 315, 3 S. W. 291; Cabell v. Johnston, 13 C. A. 472, 35 S. W. 946.

Property once seized and afterwards delivered to a claimant is subject to seizure under other attachments against the real owner. Frieberg v. Elliott, 64 T. 367.

A separate creditor of a partner may, by an attachment, acquire an interest in the debtor partner's interest in the partnership property. Lee v. Wilkins, 65 T. 295; Warren v. Wallis, 42 T. 472; Bradford v. Johnson, 44 T. 381; Longscope v. Bruce, 44 T. 434; Weaver v. Ashcroft, 50 T. 427; Meyberg v. Steagall, 51 T. 351.

The levy of an attachment cannot attach to an interest contracted for but not yet acquired. Smith & Co. v. Whitfield, 67 T. 124, 2 S. W. 822.

While goods seized under attachment by one officer cannot be attached by another officer, the fact that a deputy sheriff is also a constable will not affect the levy of an attachment made by him as deputy sheriff upon goods already in the sheriff's hands under former attachment. One who has seized under attachment two different stocks of goods may be compelled by a subsequent attaching creditor, whose writ was levied upon but one of the stocks, to exhaust first his remedy upon the goods on which he has secured an exclusive lien; nor is this affected by any subsequent levy made by a third party. Heye & Co. v. Moody & Co., 67 T. 615, 4 S. W. 242.

Where an agent took a conveyance of land to satisfy a debt a ratification by the principal did not defeat an intervening attachment. Kempner v. Rosenthal, 81 T. 12, 16 S. W. 639.

The interest of the landlord in crops grown upon his land is subject to attachment. Rentfrow v. Lancaster, 10 C. A. 321, 31 S. W. 229.

An equitable interest in land held by one not a party to the suit is not subject to attachment. Chase v. York County Sav. Bank, 89 T. 316, 36 S. W. 406, 32 L. R. A. 785, 59 Am. St. Rep. 48.

An attachment issued against the property of an alleged firm, consisting of husband and wife, is properly dismissed upon proof that no such firm exists, since it does not authorize the attachment of either their separate or community property. Cleveland v. Spencer (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 405.

A landlord's written waiver of the conditions of a lease and of the benefit of the statute against subletting without his consent, delivered to the tenant's creditor, held to have rendered the leasehold subject to attachment for the tenant's debts. Copeland v. Cooper Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 886.

A writ of attachment held to have justified a levy either on the individual property of partners or on the partnership assets. Kleinsmith v. Kempner, 37 C. A. 246, 83 S. W. 409.

Where claimant had a lien on the entire crop of his debtor, an attaching creditor of such debtor could not subject any portion of the crop to his debt by mere proof that the remainder of the property on which the lien existed was of sufficient value to satisfy claimant's debt. Evans v. Groesbeck, 42 C. A. 43, 93 S. W. 1005.

Trusts and assignments.—Property conveyed by an assignment for the benefit of creditors is not subject to attachment. Piggott v. Schram, 64 T. 447; Blum v. Welborne, 58 T. 157; Windham v. Patty, 62 T. 490.

Land conveyed in trust can be seized and sold by creditors of the grantor subject to the lien created by the deed of trust. An attachment levied on land before a trust sale creates a lien in favor of the plaintiff in the attachment, which, when established by judgment, appropriates any excess in the proceeds of the trust sale. Wynne v. National Bank, 82 T. 378, 17 S. W. 918. So also as to mortgaged property. Dahoney v. Allison, 1 U. C. 112.

Acceptance of a deed of trust by a creditor is necessary to make it valid against attaching creditors. Scurry v. Fromer (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 461.

An attaching creditor's lien is not superior to a lien created by a deed of trust, and he cannot take the place of a beneficiary named in the instrument, who has not accepted, so as to make his lien superior to that of other accepting beneficiaries. Alliance Milling Co. v. Eaton (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 588.

Property in the hands of a trustee for the benefit of creditors is not subject to attachment. Southern Soda Works v. Vines (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 942. Property rightfully in the possession of a mortgagee cannot be seized on attachment against the mortgagor. Linz v. Atchison, 14 C. A. 647, 38 S. W. 640, 47 S. W. 542.

Levy of attachment by a sheriff on property in his possession as trustee is not void. Deware v. Wichita Val. Mill & Elevator Co., 17 C. A. 394, 43 S. W. 1047.

Transfers and preferences.—Property conveyed by an insolvent debtor in payment of a debt due, if the transfer was openly made, and no more property was taken than may be reasonably required to discharge the debt, was not subject to attachment, although the creditor may have known at the time of the transfer that he would prevent other creditors from enforcing their claims, and that the debtor was prompted in making such preference payment by motives of friendship. Greenleve v. Blum, 59 T. 124; La Belle W. W. v. Tidball, 59 T. 291; Stiles v. Hill, 62 T. 429; Lewy v. Fischl, 65 T. 311.

An attachment can be levied upon property conveyed by an insolvent debtor in fraud of creditors. McKinnon v. Reliance L. Co., 63 T. 30; Pierson v. Tom, 1 T. 577; Mosely v. Gainer, 10 T. 393; Walcott v. Brander, 10 T. 419; Edrington v. Rogers, 15 T. 188; Wright v. Linn, 16 T. 34; Mills v. Howeth, 19 T. 257, 70 Am. Dec. 331; Baldwin v. Peet, 22 T. 708, 75 Am. Dec. 806; Weisiger v. Chisholm, 22 T. 670; Castro v. Illies, 22 T. 479, 73 Am. Dec. 277; Garahy v. Bayley, 25 T. Sup. 294; Lewis v. Castleman, 27 T. 407; Belt v. Raguet, 27 T. 471; Smith v. Boquet, 27 T. 507; Van Hook v. Walton, 28 T. 59; Hughes v. Roper, 42 T. 116; Eastham v. Roundtree, 56 T. 110; National Bank of Texas v. Lovenberg, 63 T. 506.

A creditor who receives and retains notes given for property sold by his debtor cannot attach such property in the possession of another. Larkin v. Wilsford (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 548.

A levy on property claimed by a transferee in fraud of creditors can only be made by taking possession thereof. Kessler v. Halff, 21 C. A. 91, 51 S. W. 48.

Evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

In an action for damages by one not a party to a suit in which a writ of attachment was issued and levied on his property, the burden of proof rests upon the defendant to show that plaintiff's possession was fraudulent. Greathouse v. Moore (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 226.

Amount recoverable for wrongful attachment.—See note under Art. 244.

Trial of right of property.—See Title 129.

Art. 255. [201] [167] Levy, how made.—The writ of attachment shall be levied in the same manner as is, or may be, the writ of execution upon similar property.

Manner of levy.—For the purpose of executing a writ of attachment the officer may enter the store of a third person where the goods of a defendant are, and may remain there long enough to seize, secure and inventory the goods. Messner v. Lewis, 20 T. 221.

When an attachment is levied on mortgaged property in the possession of a mortgagee his possession remains, and the purchaser under a judgment foreclosing the attachment lien must redeem the property. If the property is in the possession of the mortgagor, the mortgagee must assert his rights thereto by a proceeding in equity. Erwin v. Blanks, 60 T. 583; Wright v. Henderson, 12 T. 43; Allen v. Russell, 19 T. 87; Wootton v. Wheeler, 22 T. 338.

To constitute a valid levy on real estate, etc., the levy must be indorsed on the writ. Where the officer, after indorsing his levy on a stock of goods, added "also storehouse and lots," and afterwards the lots were described in an amendment, held, that the levy held the lots as against all claiming under a junior levy with notice. Riordan v. Britton, 69 T. 198, 7 S. W. 50, 5 Am. St. Rep. 37.

The levy of an attachment upon personal property by actual seizure is a trespass for which an action will lie. Focke v. Blum, 82 T. 436, 17 S. W. 770.

A cotton-gin with stationary engine and press was shown to be a fixture. Attachment and sale of the gin, etc., as personal property was void, and conferred no title on purchaser. Jones v. Bull, 85 T. 136, 19 S. W. 1031.

Under this article and Art. 3740, an officer in attaching wood stacked on land must perform such possessory acts or take such undoubted control as to constitute a trespass; a "trespasser" being one who unlawfully enters on or intrudes on another's land, or who unlawfully and forcibly takes another's personalty. Jones & Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 116.

Authority of officer.—Where the sheriff, at the time of levying an attachment on the entire mass of goods with which those of the debtor had been fraudulently intermingled so as to be indistinguishable, did not know their value or amount, and could not learn it, it was proper to instruct that the levy was authorized. Eldridge v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 955.

Presumption of legal levy.—A levy was presumed to be legal, under the facts. Deware v. Wichita Val. Mill & Elevator Co., 17 C. A. 394, 43 S. W. 1047.

Collateral attack on levy.—An attachment levy cannot be collaterally attacked unless it is void. Deware v. Wichita Val. Mill & Elevator Co., 17 C. A. 394, 43 S. W. 1047.

Liability for officer's negligence.—Where an attachment was levied on a horse, and it died while in possession of the sheriff, owing to his negligence, plaintiff was not liable unless the attachment was wrongfully sued out. McFaddin v. Sims, 43 C. A. 598, 97 S. W. 335.

Art. 256. [202] [168] Personal property to remain in the hands of officer, unless.—When personal property is attached, the same shall remain in the hands of the officer attaching until final judgment, unless a claim be made thereto and bond be given to try the right to the same, or unless the same be replevied or be sold as provided by law. [P. D. 145.]

Actual possession by officer.—Actual and constructive custody of goods seized by sheriff defined. Wolf v. Taylor, 68 T. 660, 5 S. W. 855.

Horses seized under attachment "as they run on the range," in the county where the levy is made, are constructively in custodia legis. Rice v. Miller, 70 T. 613, 8 S. W. 317, 8 Am. St. Rep. 630.

A constable must keep attached property in his possession until final judgment, unless bond for trial of right of property is given or the property is replevied. He has no authority to deliver it to a third party asserting rights to it. Ranken v. Jones (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 583.

Art. 257. [203] [169] Claimant's bond and affidavit.—Any person other than the defendant may claim the personal property so levied on, or any part thereof, upon making the affidavit and giving bond required by the provisions of the title relating to the trial of the right of property. [P. D. 5310.]

See Art. 7769.

Bond.—A claimant's bond may be made payable jointly to all the plaintiffs in several attachments levied on the same property. Jacobs, Bernheim & Co. v. Shannon, 1 C. A. 395, 21 S. W. 386.

Where a sheriff in possession of property as trustee for creditors levied an attachment for other creditors, and executed an affidavit and claimant's bond as trustee, his failure to file claimant's bond in the proper court, held an abandonment of the suit. Deware v. Wichita Val. Mill & Elevator Co., 17 C. A. 394, 43 S. W. 1047.

—— Death of surety.—A claimant's right to the possession of property by virtue of a bond is not affected by the death of a surety. Larsen v. Murray, 29 C. A. 520, 68 S. W. 295.

Persons entitled to claim.—A wife may maintain an action to set aside the levy of an attachment against her husband on her separate estate. Sinsheimer v. Kahn, 6 C. A. 143, 24 S. W. 533.

Right of chattel mortgagee obtaining possession of property to maintain statutory claim therefor determined. Adams v. Powell (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 547.

Remedies of claimant.—Pending a suit by attachment, a third person intervened in the suit, claiming the personal property attached, and prayed for judgment against the plaintiff for its value, as damages. The intervener's remedy was held to be by suit against the plaintiff and the sheriff for damages on account of the conversion of the goods. Williams v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 834. Citing Rodrigues v. Trevino, 54 T. 198; Carter v. Carter, 36 T. 693; Willis v. Thompson, 85 T. 301, 20 S. W. 155; Ryan v. Goldfrank, 58 T. 356. See Meyer v. Sligh, 81 T. 336, 16 S. W. 1022.

In an action on notes wherein an attachment was issued and levied on certain property, a third party, claiming to be the owner of some of the property under a sale and to have a chattel mortgage on part of the balance, was not entitled to intervene. Dorroh v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 620.

Where, in an action for a debt, plaintiff also sought to establish a laborer's lien against property attached by him, if a claimant to such property, by filing the statutory oath and bond, was remitted to the proceeding under the statute to determine issues arising on the attachment lien, he was not thereby precluded from intervening in the case and contesting the enforcement of the laborer's lien. Jackson v. Downs (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 288.

Delivery to claimant.—When property has been delivered to the claimant it is no longer custodia legis, and is subject to seizure and sale under other attachments against the real owner. Frieberg v. Elliott, 64 T. 367. See art. 7770.

Art. 258. [204] [170] Replevy by the defendant.—At any time before judgment, should the property not have been previously claimed or sold, as provided in this chapter, the defendant may replevy the same, or any part thereof, by giving bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the officer who levied the writ, payable to the plaintiff, in double the amount of the plaintiff's debt, or, at the defendant's option, for the value of the property replevied, to be estimated by the officer, conditioned that, should the defendant be condemned in the action, he shall satisfy the judgment which may be rendered therein, or shall pay the estimated value of the property with lawful interest thereon, from the date of the bond. [P. D. 150.]

Replevin bond.—When the property has been delivered to the defendant on an insufficient or void bond, and the plaintiff has thereby lost his debt, the sheriff is responsible to the plaintiff for the loss, not exceeding the value of the property and amount of the judgment. Barclay v. Scott, 1 App. C. C. § 110.

A defendant who has regained possession of property by a replevy bond more onerous than required by law, but valid as a common-law obligation, is, together with his sureties, liable thereon to the extent of the value of the property replevied, in a separate action against the obligors. Bank v. Sester, 73 T. 542, 11 S. W. 626. See Jacobs v. Daugherty, 78 T. 682, 15 S. W. 160.

Where, on attachment, the property is replevied, and the attachment subsequently quashed, the replevin bond is discharged. Kildare Lumber Co. v. Atlanta Bank, 91 T. 95, 41 S. W. 64.

Where a replevy bond is given in an attachment, conditioned as required by this article to satisfy the judgment, etc., the appellate court in reversing the judgment of the lower court quashing the attachment and vacating the attachment lien, can render judgment on the bond. Norvell-Shapleigh Hardware Co. v. Hall N. & M. Works (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1093, 1094.

Where a replevy bond in an attachment case does not substantially comply with this article, but is merely a common law obligation, on which a suit may be maintained for breach thereof, art. 269 does not apply. Elrod Bros. & Phillips v. Rice (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 733.

A judgment on a bond in replevin of attached property reciting that, after replevy, defendant in attachment appropriated the property to his own use, shows there was no abandonment of the attachment proceedings. Hart v. Jopling (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1075.

Art. 259. [205] [171] Sale of perishable property, etc.—Whenever personal property which has been attached shall not have been claimed or replevied as above provided, the judge, or justice of the peace, out of whose court the writ was issued, may, either in term time or in vacation, order the same to be sold, when it shall be made to appear that such property is in danger of serious and immediate waste or decay, or that the keeping of the same until the trial will necessarily be attended with such expense or deterioration in value as greatly to lessen the amount likely to be realized therefrom. [P. D. 155.]

Order of sale.—An order of the court is all that is necessary to effect a sale of the property, and the sale can not be attacked collaterally because of an irregularity of the clerk in issuing a formal order or direction to the sheriff. Texarkana Clothing Co. v. Bisco (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 559.

Title of purchaser.—A sale of property by order of the court conveys the title, and a third party must either sue the sheriff or follow the proceeds into the registry. He must pursue the latter remedy after the proceeds have been paid to the plaintiff in the attachment. Meyer v. Sligh, 81 T. 336, 16 S. W. 1022; Betterton v. Eppstein, 78 T. 443, 14 S. W. 861.

The purchaser of perishable goods sold under an attachment by order of court gets a title superior to the lien for taxes thereon. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 631.

Collateral attack on sale.—Sale after attachment held valid against collateral attack. Texarkana Clothing Co. v. Bisco (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 559.

Art. 260. [206] [172] Procedure for sale of perishable property, etc.—In ascertaining the facts which authorize the making of such order of sale under the preceding article, the judge, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, may require or dispense with notice to the parties, and may act upon such information, by affidavit, certificate of the attaching officer, or other proof as may seem to him necessary to protect the interest of the parties.

Art. 261. [207] [173] Sale of perishable property, how made.—Such sale shall be conducted in the same manner as sales of personal property under execution, except as to the time of advertisement, which may be fixed by the judge, or the justice, for a shorter period, according to the exigency of the case. [P. D. 155.]

Notice of sale.—The sheriff was ordered to sell goods after giving four days' notice. The notice was given for January 13. On that day, by consent of parties, the sale was postponed to the 16th of January. No other notice of the day of sale was given. See post, arts. 3760–3772; Hilliard v. Wilson, 76 T. 180, 13 S. W. 25.

Art. 262. [208] [174] Return of sale of perishable property, etc.—The proceeds of such sale shall, within five days thereafter, be paid over by the officer making the sale to the clerk of the court, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, accompanied by a statement in writing, signed by such officer officially, to be filed with the papers, stating the time and place of the sale, the name of the purchaser, and the amount received, with an itemized account of the expenses attending the sale. [P. D. 155.]

Right to proceeds.—Where the attachment is quashed, the proceeds of the sale of personal property in the hands of the clerk are not subject to garnishment. Pace v. Smith, 57 T. 555.

The proceeds of sale in the hands of the clerk cannot be replevied. Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 63 T. 473.

A sale under an attachment passes the interest of the defendant at the date of the levy and that afterwards acquired. Willis v. Pounds, 6 C. A. 512; 25 S. W. 715.

Where part of cattle attached did not belong to defendant, and a third person sued plaintiff for such levy, it is error to order all the proceeds of the sale of the cattle to be turned over to the plaintiff in attachment. Lester v. Riley (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 458.

It is the duty of the officer receiving such money to seal it up in a secure package and deposit it in a safe or vault, keeping it always accessible and subject to the control of the court. He must also keep a statement in a book kept in his office. Art. 2164; Penal Code, arts. 367, 368.

Art. 263. [209] [175] Judge may make necessary orders for the preservation, etc., of property not replevied.—If the personal property be not replevied or claimed or sold under the several provisions of this chapter, the judge, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, may either in term time or in vacation make such order for the preservation or use of the same as shall appear to be to the interest of the parties.

Art. 264. [210] [176] Return of the writ.—The officer executing the writ of attachment shall return the writ, with his action indorsed thereon or attached thereto, signed by him officially, to the court from which it issued, on or before the first day of the next term thereof.

Failure to return.—Failure to return is not a ground for quashing the writ. Willis v. Mooring, 63 T. 340.

Art. 265. [211] [177] Requisites of the return.—Such return shall describe the property attached with sufficient certainty to identify it, and shall state when the same was attached, and whether any personal property attached remains still in his hands, and, if not, the disposition made of the same; and when personal property has been replevied he shall deliver the replevy to the clerk to be filed with the papers of the cause.

Sufficiency of return.—It is not sufficient in making a return of a levy of an attachment to describe the property as "a stock of goods, wares and merchandise," appraised at a certain sum and claimed by a third person who has given bond to try title. Messner v. Lewis, 20 T. 221.

The return was as follows: Levied on lot No. 5, in block No. 12, with improvements. Held, that the return was defective in not identifying the property. Meuley v. Zeigler, 23 T. 88.

As to the return where jurisdiction is acquired by attachment of the defendant's property, see Stoddart v. McMahan, 35 T. 267; Willis v. Mooring, 63 T. 340.

In this case the return did not show that the lot was the property of the defendant, and it was held that it was defective as against a purchaser from the defendant without notice. Where the return recited that the lot was pointed out as the property of the defendant in attachment, it was held as equivalent to a statement that it was levied on as the property of the defendant. City National Bank v. Cupp, 59 T. 268; Stoddart v. McMahan, 35 T. 267.

The levy described the property as a stock of goods, wares and merchandise; the defendant waived an inventory of the goods, consented that they were of the value of $1,200, and immediately replevied the goods. Held, that he was estopped from objecting to the return for the want of an inventory, etc. Brack v. McMahan, 61 T. 1.

It is no ground for quashing an attachment that the sheriff's return does not state that the property levied on was the property of the defendant in attachment. Willis v. Mooring, 63 T. 340.

A return of levy on a stock of dry goods, stating the kind of goods, their location and value, and the person in possession, held sufficient. Sweetser v. Sparks, 3 C. A. 33, 21 S. W. 724.

The return to a writ of attachment was not materially defective for not stating that the property attached was levied upon as that of the attachment defendant; the return showing a levy upon the property described, since it will be presumed that it was the property of defendant. McLane v. Kirby & Smith, 54 C. A. 113, 116 S. W. 118.

—— Amendment.—Return may be amended by leave of the court. Hill v. Cunningham, 25 T. 25.

The return of a levy of attachment may be amended on order of the court, though the term of office of the sheriff who executed it has expired. Lawrence v. Aguirre (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 289.

Interveners in attachment proceedings could only question the validity and justness of plaintiff's debt, and where that was established by the verdict, and the property was levied upon as shown by the return, they could not complain of the court's action in permitting an amendment to the return showing the day on which it was levied. McLane v. Kirby & Smith, 54 C. A. 113, 116 S. W. 118.

The return of an attachment signed by a deputy constable, which was in fact served by a deputy sheriff, may be amended by the sheriff. Kramer v. Lilley, 55 C. A. 339, 118 S. W. 735.

Impeachment of return.—Officer cannot impeach his return on writ of attachment, after lien has been foreclosed, to show that he is not responsible for property not being in his hands when final judgment is rendered. Ranken v. Jones (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 583.

Art. 266. [212] [178] Report of disposition of property, made after return of original writ.—When the property levied on is claimed, replevied, or sold, or otherwise disposed of, after the writ has been returned, the officer having the custody of the same shall immediately make a report in writing, signed by him officially, to the clerk, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, showing such disposition of the property; and such report shall be filed among the papers of the cause.

Art. 267. [213] [179] Attachment creates a lien.—The execution of the writ of attachment upon any property of the defendant subject thereto, unless the writ should be quashed or otherwise vacated, shall create a lien from the date of such levy on the real estate levied on and on such personal property as remains in the hands of the attaching officer, and on the proceeds of such personal property as may have been sold.

Cited, Thomson v. Shackelford, 6 C. A. 121, 24 S. W. 980.

Lien in general.—In a suit against a mercantile firm doing business in another state, where all the partners resided, jurisdiction was acquired by the levy of an attachment on the land of D., one of the partners. Afterwards the death of D. was suggested and suit was dismissed as to him; judgment was rendered in favor of plaintiff, and the land of D. was sold under an execution issued on the judgment. Held, that the purchaser under the execution sale acquired no title. Graham v. Boynton, 35 T. 712.

In a suit by attachment to recover a debt due from a mercantile partnership, and brought in a county in which neither of the defendants resided, one of the defendants pleaded in abatement, claiming the privilege of being sued in the county of his residence. Afterwards, and after the dissolution of the partnership, the other defendant filed a plea of general denial. Held, the entry of an appearance and the filing of a general denial by the defendant last answering (it being shown that the firm debts were still unpaid) brought both parties defendant into court for the purpose of the attachment already levied on partnership property alone, and the court had jurisdiction to foreclose the attachment and render any other judgment affecting only the firm estate. Sanger Bros. v. Overmier, 64 T. 57.

An attaching creditor may lawfully purchase an outstanding mortgage on the property in order to protect his attachment lien. Lacy v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 949.

The levy of an attachment on the interest that defendant owned in land does not attach to title subsequently acquired by him and conveyed to another. Sullivan v. Graham, 54 C. A. 103, 117 S. W. 171.

Where the existence of an attachment lien was not an issue of fact for the jury, on the establishment of plaintiffs' debt by the verdict, it was the court's duty to recite in its judgment the issuance and levy of the attachment as the method prescribed by law for the preservation of the lien fixed by the levy until enforced by execution. Johnson v. W. H. Goolsby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 883.

A judgment, after reciting the issuance and levy of an attachment, adjudged that the lien existing by virtue thereof be "recognized," and directed the clerk to issue an execution commanding a sale of the attached land and an application of the proceeds of the sale to the payment of the judgment and costs, and the return of any overplus to the landowner. Held, that the judgment, though containing more than was necessary to preserve the attachment lien, was not objectionable as purporting to foreclose the attachment lien on the land levied on. Id.

Priority.—After an attachment lien is fixed on land it will not be defeated by subsequently acquired homestead rights. Baird v. Trice, 51 T. 555; Brooks v. Chatham, 57 T. 31; Wright v. Straub, 64 T. 64.

The parties to a contract of sale in the cotton field agreed upon the sale of all the crop, which was turned over to the vendee. Vendor agreed to pick and haul the cotton to a designated gin; the vendee agreeing to haul the ginned cotton, at his own expense, to a designated market. The market price of the cotton was then to be credited upon the notes of the vendor to the vendee for the purchase-money of the land upon which the cotton was raised. Held, that a subsequent attachment could not hold the cotton against the vendee, there being no evidence or charge of fraud. Hopkins v. Partridge, 71 T. 606, 10 S. W. 214. See Baker v. Guinn, 4 C. A. 539, 23 S. W. 604, as to constructive delivery.

When there is not a present purpose to enforce a writ of attachment, subsequent attaching creditors will acquire a preference lien. Sullivan v. Cleveland, 62 T. 677.

The levy and return of an attachment on land creates a lien superior to an unrecorded deed. Thomson v. Shackelford, 6 C. A. 121, 24 S. W. 980.

An attachment lien secured by false or fraudulent statements will be postponed to a subsequent lien obtained in good faith. Kollette v. Seibel, 7 C. A. 260, 26 S. W. 863.

An attaching creditor's lien is not superior to the lien created by a deed of trust, and he cannot, by reason of his levy, take the place of a beneficiary named in the instrument, but who has not accepted, so as to make his lien superior to that of other named beneficiaries who did accept. Shoe Co. v. Mayo, 8 C. A. 164, 27 S. W. 782; Alliance Milling Co. v. Eaton (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 588.

A subsequent attaching creditor, making his levy subject to the previous levy, cannot complain that the lien of the first levy was foreclosed before return day by consent of the debtor, there being no fraud or undue advantage. Meier v. Bank (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 881.

An attachment lien upon land is not superior to an outstanding equity of which notice is given before sale under the attachment. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Lewis, 7 C. A. 509; 28 S. W. 101.

On trial of right of property, held, that there was such change of possession as vested title in the holder of an unrecorded chattel mortgage.—Adams v. Powell (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 547.

Where a landlord claims property levied on as that of his tenant under a transfer in satisfaction of his landlord's lien, if he fails to show a valid transfer, he may yet claim the property under his lien. Groesbeck v. Evans (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 430.

Where a deed by a husband and wife was made in good faith, and not fraudulent, it was superior to a subsequent attachment by a creditor of the grantors, irrespective of whether the property conveyed was a homestead at the time of the conveyance. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Vawter, 39 C. A. 520, 88 S. W. 407; Same v. Leggett (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 408.

Possession of a crop held that of a pledgee, entitling him to maintain such possession against the attaching creditors of the tenant. Evans v. Groesbeck, 42 C. A. 43, 93 S. W. 1005.

A grantee's oral promise held not to give the grantor a vendor's lien taking priority over the grantee's creditor's attachment lien. Paris Grocer Co. v. Burks, 101 T. 106, 105 S. W. 174.

An attachment lien prevails over a prior unrecorded deed unless the creditor prior to the levy had notice of the deed, and it is immaterial whether the creditor had examined the records as to the debtor's title. Id.

Possession under an unrecorded deed held insufficient to charge the grantor's attaching creditor with notice of the grantee's rights. Id.

Scope of the statute giving priority to creditors' liens over unrecorded deeds, etc., defined. Id.

The filing for record of a corrected deed after the attachment of the property conveyed confers no right on the grantee superior to the attachment creditor, where the original deed executed by the debtor was fatally defective. White v. Cowles (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 982.

Abatement or dissolution.—After the dissolution of an attachment the suit remains as if the writ had never issued. All proceedings under the attachment are dissolved, and liens acquired by it fall with it, and impart no validity to a lien acquired by a subsequent attachment. Smith v. Whitfield, 67 T. 124, 2 S. W. 822.

An attachment lien is not abated by the death of the defendant. Rogers v. Burbridge, 5 C. A. 67, 24 S. W. 300.

Art. 268. [214] [180] Judgment of foreclosure.—Should the plaintiff recover in the suit, such attachment lien shall be foreclosed as in case of other liens, and the court shall direct the proceeds of the personal property sold to be applied to the satisfaction of the judgment, and the sale of personal property remaining in the hands of the officer and of the real estate levied on, to satisfy the judgment; provided, however, that when an attachment issued from a county or justice court has been levied upon land, no order or decree foreclosing the lien thereby acquired shall be necessary, but the judgment shall briefly recite the issuance and levy of such attachment, and such recital shall be sufficient to preserve such lien. The land so attached may be sold under execution after judgment, and the sale thereof shall vest in the purchaser all the estate of the defendant in attachment in such land, at the time of the levy of such writ of attachment. [Acts of 1885, p. 73.]

History of legislation.—Under the former statutes it was held by the supreme court that the county court and courts of justices of the peace had jurisdiction to foreclose an attachment lien on land and direct the sale of the land in satisfaction of the judgment. Hillebrand v. McMahan, 59 T. 450. A contrary view was held by the court of appeals, and the jurisdiction of these courts was denied. Shandy v. Conrales, 1 App. C. C. § 238; Newton v. Heidenheimer, 2 App. C. C. § 126; Rowan v. Shapard, 2 App. C. C. §§ 295–97; Miller v. Schneider, 2 App. C. C. § 372; Wright v. Cullers & Henry, 2 App. C. C. § 750. This article owes its enactment to this difference of opinion.

Jurisdiction.—The act of 1885, incorporated in this article as above stated, has been held to be constitutional. A judgment under it is not subject to collateral attack on the ground that the citation made no mention of the attachment. Reid v. Mickles (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 563. See Le Doux v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 902.

A finding of the county court that an attachment issued and was levied is not a decree that the property is subject to sale, and, where the property is a homestead and it is attempted to be sold under execution, the owner has his remedy. Hamill v. Samuels (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 746.

The county court may not render judgment foreclosing an attachment lien. Id.

When an attachment issued from a county court has been levied on land, the county court in attachment may not foreclose the lien, but in its judgment it must recite the issuance and levy of the attachment and thereby preserve the lien, the benefit of which may be obtained by levy and sale under execution. Patterson v. McMinn (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 223.

This article does not deprive the county court of its power to foreclose such lien, but at most substitutes for the foreclosure a mode of proceeding equivalent thereto. S. K. McCall Co. v. Page (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 655.

Judgment in general.—When personal property is delivered to a claimant under art. 257, or is replevied by the defendant under art. 258, the lien is discharged, and the replevy bond is substituted for the property. Carothers v. Wilkerson, 2 App. C. C. § 355; Frieberg v. Elliott, 64 T. 367. In all other cases the attachment lien must be foreclosed. Cook v. Love, 33 T. 487; Toland v. Swearingen, 39 T. 447; Gentry v. Lockett, 37 T. 503; Wise v. Old, 57 T. 514. The judgment of foreclosure will include interest, costs and attorneys' fees stipulated in the note. Piggott v. Schram, 64 T. 447.

Prior to the adoption of the Revised Statutes a foreclosure of the lien was not necessary. Wallace v. Bogel, 66 T. 572, 2 S. W. 96.

A purchaser of property covered by an attachment lien created by a suit to which he was not a party, who bought before the levy of the attachment, is not affected by a sale under a judgment foreclosing that lien. But a purchaser after the levy is a purchaser pendente lite; and in case the attachment lien be foreclosed, a sale under an order of a court, based upon that judgment, and granted upon an application to which he was not a party, will conclude his right. Paxton v. Meyer, 67 T. 96, 2 S. W. 817.

As to judgment where defendant recovers damages on a plea in reconvention for the wrongful issuance of the writ of attachment, see Blum v. Stein, 68 T. 608, 5 S. W. 454; Mayer v. Duke, 72 T. 445, 10 S. W. 565. See Frank v. J. S. Brown Hardware Co., 10 C. A. 430, 31 S. W. 64.

A prayer for the foreclosure of the attachment lien on personal property is unnecessary; the statute directs the foreclosure when judgment is for the plaintiff in attachment. Moss v. Katz & Meyer, 69 T. 411, 6 S. W. 764.

As to the effect of a levy on the homestead subsequently abandoned, see Meyer v. Paxton, 4 C. A. 29, 23 S. W. 284.

A stranger to an attachment proceeding, when possession is disturbed by the seizure, after judgment of foreclosure cannot defeat the writ by showing that the affidavit is defective. Roos v. Lewyn, 5 C. A. 593, 23 S. W. 450, 24 S. W. 538; Slade v. Le Page, 8 C. A. 403, 27 S. W. 952.

The grantee in an alleged fraudulent conveyance can be made a party to a suit in which the land has been attached. Archenhold v. B. C. Evans Co., 11 C. A. 138, 32 S. W. 795.

Where attachment is issued and levied, and property replevied and cross action filed for damages for wrongfully suing out attachment, and on issues submitted jury find for plaintiff, it is not error to foreclose attachment lien as well as render judgment against the sureties on the replevy bond. Atkinson v. Witte (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 611.

A judgment recognizing an attachment held not fatally defective as foreclosing an attachment lien on the land levied on. Johnson v. W. H. Goolsby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 883.

Where the existence of an execution was not an issue for the jury, it was the court's duty on plaintiffs recovering a verdict to recite the issuance and levy of the attachment in the judgment. Id.

In attachment the lien should be foreclosed for the amount for which the writ of attachment was sued out, and not for the full amount of the judgment for the debt, interest, and attorney's fees. Awalt v. Schooler (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 453.

That others than defendants are the owners of property attached held not available as a defense against foreclosure of the attachment. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

—— Non-residents.—While a personal judgment against a non-resident is void where process has not been legally served, a judgment for the debt and sale of the attached property is valid. Barelli v. Wagner, 5 C. A. 445, 27 S. W. 17. Goodbar v. Bank, 78 T. 461, 14 S. W. 851.

Sale.—A sale, as of personalty, of a cotton gin with stationary engine shown to be a fixture, conferred no title on the purchaser. Jones v. Bull, 85 T. 136, 19 S. W. 1031.

A landlord, whose claim for rent against a debtor who executed a deed to a trustee for the benefit of creditors was fraudulent, held not in a position to complain of the requirements of a judgment directing the disposition of the proceeds of the sale of the property under attachment. Baum v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, 32 C. A. 531, 75 S. W. 863.

A sale of land under attachment against plaintiff's husband held not to affect her right to recover it. Parks v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 921.

Art. 269. [215] [181] Judgment when property is replevied.—When personal property has been levied on, as hereinbefore provided, the judgment shall also be against the defendant and his sureties on his replevy bond for the amount of the judgment, interest and costs, or for the value of the property replevied and interest, according to the terms of such replevy bond.

Ground for arrest.—The failure to fix the value of each article in replevin and the failure of the jury to find its values separately are not such errors as would have authorized the court below to arrest the judgment. Byrn v. Lynn, 18 C. A. 252, 44 S. S. 311, 544.

Art. 270. [216] [182] Order of court when attachment quashed; pending appeal, property may be replevied.—Should the attachment be quashed or otherwise vacated by interlocutory judgment or order of the court, the court shall make the proper order making disposition of the property, or the proceeds of the sale thereof, if the same has been sold under order of the court directing that it be turned over to the defendant. But the property, or the proceeds of the sale thereof, if the same has not been replevied, shall remain in the hands of the officers pending the final disposition of the main case and until it shall be finally disposed of, or until the time for perfecting an appeal has elapsed and no appeal has been perfected, when said order disposing of the property shall be carried into effect; provided, that, pending the final disposition of the main case, the defendant shall have the right at any time to replevy the property in the same manner as is provided for in article 258 of this chapter; or if the property has been sold he may replevy the proceeds of such sale by giving a bond in double the amount of the money arising from such sale, with like conditions as are contained in article 258.

And any replevy bond given in such case, whether before or after the quashing or vacating such attachment, shall be as valid and binding as if such attachment had never been quashed or vacated. [Acts of 1891, p. 29.]

Judgment quashing the writ.—When on proper pleading there is a verdict that the attachment was wrongfully issued, and the damages are less than the debt, and the property has been replevied, the judgment should be against the defendant and his sureties for the debt less the damages. Dugey v. Hughs, 2 App. C. C. § 6; Ammon v. Thompson, 34 T. 237; Cloud v. Smith, 1 T. 611; Walcott v. Hendrick, 6 T. 406; Wallace v. Finberg, 46 T. 35; Dwyer v. Testard, 65 T. 432.

A judgment quashing an attachment on specified grounds held conclusive as against plaintiff therein when sued for wrongful attachment. Rainey v. Kemp, 54 C. A. 486, 118 S. W. 630.

—— Restoration of possession.—Where, after the attachment of partnership property, one of the members of the firm by proceedings in a suit procured the quashing of the attachment and the dismissal of the suit, and had acknowledged that the levy had abated, there being no evidence that the officer or attaching creditor asserted any right or control over the property thereafter, it would be held, as a matter of law, that the possession was restored to the partnership without the actual entry of an order therefor authorized by this article. First State Bank of Hamlin v. Jones & Nixon (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 671.

Where an attachment is quashed and the suit dismissed the debtor cannot refuse a return of the property from the sheriff, and when a return is tendered the debtor may only recover on account of wrongful attachment, such special damages, in the way of loss of deterioration in the value of the property, as has been actually or proximately caused by the levy and detention. Id.

Under this article, the court, on quashing an attachment on the motion of the debtor, must order the return of the property to the debtor, to receive which the law implies an obligation on his part, and a debtor who knew the effect of the quashing of an attachment must resume control of the property, in the absence of any preventing cause. Jones & Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 116.

Amount recoverable for wrongful attachment.—See note under Art. 244.

Decisions Relating to Attachment in General

Intervention.—A junior attaching creditor may intervene in the suit of the first attaching creditor for the purpose of testing the validity of the debt upon which it is founded, and thus defeat a fraudulent disposition of the debtor's property. Bateman v. Ramsey, 74 T. 589, 12 S. W. 235; Goodbar v. National Bank, 78 T. 461, 14 S. W. 851; Orr & Lindsey Shoe Co. v. Harris, 82 T. 273, 18 S. W. 308.

Intervener in attachment may have validity of debt tried on plea, and need not move to quash. Barkley v. Wood (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 717.

Intervener in attachment held entitled to raise no issue but the validity of the debt sued on. Id.

Purchaser after attachment may intervene in attachment suit to controvert attachment. Id.

Article 271. [217] [183] Writ of garnishment, who may issue and when.—The clerks of the district and county courts and justices of the peace may issue writs of garnishment, returnable to their respective courts, in the following cases:

1. Where an original attachment has been issued as provided in the foregoing chapter.

2. Where the plaintiff sues for a debt and makes affidavit that such debt is just, due and unpaid, and that the defendant has not within his knowledge property in his possession within this state, subject to execution, sufficient to satisfy such debt; and that the garnishment applied for is not sued out to injure either the defendant or the garnishee.

3. Where the plaintiff has a judgment and makes affidavit that the defendant has not, within his knowledge, property in his possession within this state, subject to execution, sufficient to satisfy such judgment. [P. D. 157. P. D. 3785. Act April 20, 1874, p. 113, sec. 1.]

Cited, Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 233.

In general.—A judgment in the district court is not subject to garnishment in the county court. Haflin v. Nix, 3 App. C. C. § 203.

The following property is not subject to garnishment: Notes and accounts held for collection. Price v. Brady, 21 T. 614; Taylor v. Gillean, 23 T. 508; Ellison v. Tuttle, 26 T. 283. A negotiable note, unless it is shown to be in the hands of the payee after maturity. Bassett v. Garthwaite, 22 T. 230, 73 Am. Dec. 257; Inglehart v. Moore, 21 T. 501; Inglehart v. Mills, 21 T. 545; Price v. Brady, 21 T. 614; Kapp v. Teel, 33 T. 811. Debts for which suits are pending in another court. Miller v. Taylor, 14 T. 538; Arthur v. Batte, 42 T. 159; McRee v. Brown, 45 T. 503; Peel v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank, 1 App. C. C. § 180. Property in the hands of a receiver (Kreisle v. Campbell, 89 T. 104, 33 S. W. 852), assignee in bankruptcy, disbursing officers, sheriffs, clerks, executors, administrators and guardians. Edwards v. Norton, 55 T. 405; Winslett v. Randle, 1 App. C. C. § 1189.

The statute affords an adequate remedy in ordinary cases; when there are questions arising out of trusts, fraudulent combinations, etc., an equitable proceeding affords a more appropriate remedy. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hume, 59 T. 47; Same v. McDonald, 53 T. 510; Same v. Butler, 56 T. 506; Price v. Brady, 21 T. 614; Taylor v. Gillean, 23 T. 508. The process of garnishment is an inquisitorial proceeding, and is not entitled to a liberal construction in favor of the party resorting to the remedy. Jemison v. Scarborough, 56 T. 358.

A garnishment can derive no aid from the volunteer acts of the garnishee, and defects cannot be waived to the prejudice of one having a prior right. Insurance Co. v. Friedman Bros., 74 T. 56, 11 S. W. 1046.

During the pendency of a suit against a debtor by his creditor in one court, the debtor cannot be compelled to defend, as garnishee, a suit in a different court by one seeking a judgment against him for the same debt. Burke v. Hance, 76 T. 76, 13 S. W. 163, 18 Am. St. Rep. 28.

Debtors of a non-resident defendant are subject to garnishment. Berry v. Davis, 77 T. 191, 13 S. W. 978, 19 Am. St. Rep. 748; Goodman v. Henley, 80 T. 499, 16 S. W. 432. Service on the non-resident may be made by publication. Berry v. Davis, 77 T. 191, 13 S. W. 978, 19 Am. St. Rep. 748.

Garnishment proceedings in another state cannot affect a transaction within this state. Continental Ins. Co. v. Chase (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 602. See Caledonia Ins. Co. v. Wenar (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 385.

Question of equitable lien of one furnishing material for public building held not to arise in garnishment suit. Herring-Hall-Marvin Co. v. Bexar County, 16 C. A. 673, 40 S. W. 145.

When debtor of local citizen can be garnished in foreign court. T. & H. Smith & Co. v. Taber, 16 C. A. 154, 40 S. W. 156.

The statute defining the liability of garnishees is to be strictly construed in their favor. Planters' & Mechanics' Bank v. Floeck, 17 C. A. 418, 43 S. W. 589.

The court to the extent of the property garnished can enter judgment against a non-resident. Austin Natl. Bank v. Bergen (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1037.

Where a garnishee had deposited the funds sought for in his wife's name, there was no need to garnish her. Fleming v. Pringle, 21 C. A. 225, 51 S. W. 553.

In garnishment there must be strict compliance with statutory requirements. Ball v. Bennett, 21 C. A. 399, 52 S. W. 618.

Garnishment against a nonresident confers jurisdiction to render judgment against him to the extent of his debt. E. L. Wilson Hardware Co. v. Anderson Knife & Bar Co., 22 C. A. 229, 54 S. W. 928.

Common creditor's garnishment of the profit made on resale by a purchaser at a sale by trustees in insolvency, for the benefit of preferred creditors, held not maintainable. Park v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 46, 56 S. W. 759.

A writ of garnishment, whereby it is sought to satisfy a judgment, can issue from no other court than that in which the judgment was rendered. Townsend v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1006.

A partnership claim cannot be garnished for an individual member's debt. Raley v. Smith (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 54.

An action for the value of horses driven to death held one of tort, so that garnishment is not authorized. Welch v. Renfro, 42 C. A. 460, 94 S. W. 107.

A judgment creditor was justified in bringing a garnishment suit, although he may have had a judgment lien on an uncertain interest owned by his debtor in public land which the latter had not occupied for the statutory time. Baze v. Island City Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 460.

Garnishment is a proceeding in rem, and the garnishee is the receiver of the court to hold the res until it is determined who is entitled to it. Buchanan v. A. B. Spencer Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 292.

Plaintiff must follow the garnishment statute strictly, as the garnishee cannot safely waive compliance with any of its substantial requirements, or submit to an unauthorized garnishment. Id.

Garnishment being a statutory remedy, liability under it must be determined by the statute. McIntosh & Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

Justices of the peace.—See, also, notes under Art. 2294.

In an action to set aside a justice's judgment in garnishment proceedings for fraud, the question of the validity of the affidavit for garnishment could not be raised after judgment finding the judgment based on the affidavit to be valid. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Waples-Platter Grocer Co., 54 C. A. 225, 118 S. W. 232.

Issuance of garnishment, on a judgment of a justice before dismissal for want of jurisdiction of the appeal from the judgment, held a mere irregularity, not rendering void the garnishment proceedings and a judgment on a bond given therein. Cariker v. Dill (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 843.

Attachment basis of proceeding.—Except in a case in which an original attachment has issued, the garnishment can issue only when the debt sued for is due. Brown v. Chancellor, 61 T. 437.

When the attachment is quashed or dismissed, the garnishment based on it falls with it. Holek v. Phœnix Ins. Co., 63 T. 66; Cleveland v. Spencer (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 405.

Garnishment can be sued out in case where an attachment has issued on a debt not due. Taylor v. Fryar, 18 C. A. 266, 44 S. W. 183.

Property in possession of defendant.—This article and Art. 5502, declaring that the singular and plural number in statutes shall each include the other, must be strictly construed, and a garnishment writ in an action against several defendants jointly and severally liable may not issue on an affidavit that a defendant named does not have property in the state subject to execution sufficient to satisfy the debt sued on, and where the bond is made payable to such defendant alone, but the affidavit must show that neither of defendants has property subject to execution, and the bond must be made payable to defendants. Smith v. City Nat. Bank of Wichita Falls (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1145.

Property or fund in possession of garnishee.—Garnishment is an appropriate remedy to reach money received or effects held under a fraudulent transfer. Morris v. House, 32 T. 492; Railway Co. v. McDonald, 53 T. 516; Railway Co. v. Butler, 56 T. 509; Railway Co. v. Hume, 59 T. 47; Schwartzberg v. Friedman, 12 C. A. 339, 34 S. W. 335.

Funds equitably assigned not subject to garnishment. Stillson v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 322; Milmo Nat. Bank v. Convery, 8 C. A. 181, 27 S. W. 828.

Bonds of a corporation held for delivery to a debtor subject to garnishment. Marble Fall Ferry Co. v. Spitler, 7 C. A. 82, 25 S. W. 985; Insurance Co. v. Willis, 70 T. 12, 6 S. W. 825, 8 Am. St. Rep. 566.

Proceeds of a voluntary sale of the homestead deposited in bank are subject to garnishment. Kirby v. Giddings, 75 T. 679, 13 S. W. 27. See Blum v. Light, 81 T. 414, 16 S. W. 1090. See Art. 3787.

Money due on insurance of exempt property is not subject to garnishment. Ward v. Goggan, 23 S. W. 479; 4 C. A. 274.

Where bank purchases draft with bill of lading for wheat attached, and also a draft on the same consignee with bill of lading for corn attached, and the wheat is damaged, the money paid to its agent for the corn is subject to garnishment at suit of the consignee. Landa v. Lattin, 19 C. A. 246, 46 S. W. 48.

Property in possession of one who is merely a collecting agent is subject to garnishment in a suit against his principal. Austin Nat. Bank v. Bergen (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1037.

Subcontractors held entitled to subject fund in the hands of the lender to payment of their claims in garnishment proceedings, notwithstanding the fact that the contractor had received an equitable assignment thereof from the owner. Texas Builders' Supply Co. v. National Loan & Investment Co., 22 C. A. 349, 54 S. W. 1059.

Money in the hands of garnishees to indemnify them against liability in a prosecution against an agent of the depositing corporation held not subject to garnishment on behalf of the state for a fine levied against such agent. Miller & Sayers v. State, 37 C. A. 569, 84 S. W. 844.

In the absence of a finding that the garnishee had money or property belonging to the debtor, a judgment in the creditor's favor against such garnishee was erroneous. Groesbeck v. T. H. Thompson Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 33.

A creditor held entitled to reach the interest of a tenant in a gathered crop, placed in the hands of the landlord as security for debts, by garnishment. Groesbeck v. Evans, 40 C. A. 216, 83 S. W. 430, 88 S. W. 889.

Money placed in a deputy sheriff's hands as security having been released by a bond, and then assigned, the sheriff being notified thereof, held not subject to garnishment as money of the person putting it in the deputy's hands. Welch v. Renfro, 42 C. A. 460, 94 S. W. 107.

Where a contractor acquires a right to recover certain pledged property in the hands of an oil company through the termination, without lawful cause, of a contract between the two by the oil company, the property is subject to garnishment. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Nearn, 45 C. A. 192, 100 S. W. 967.

A garnishing creditor of a depositor depositing money in a bank to his credit, followed by the word "agent," held entitled only to reach the fund in case the depositor is the true owner. Silsbee State Bank v. French Market Grocery Co., 103 T. 629, 132 S. W. 465, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1207.

One to whom a fund exempt from garnishment is due can waive the exemption; but, unless he does so his debtor cannot. Buchanan v. A. B. Spencer Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 292.

In view of the statute directing the surplus of the proceeds of a sale under execution to be paid to the execution defendant, such surplus is subject to garnishment by a creditor of the execution defendant. Turner v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 839.

Property in custodia legis.—Funds deposited by the sheriff with the district clerk to await the further action of the court are not subject to garnishment in his hands. Sweetzer v. Claflin, 74 T. 667, 12 S. W. 395.

Money arising from the sale of sequestered property in the hands of an officer intrusted with its keeping is not subject to garnishment. Curtis v. Ford, 78 T. 262, 14 S. W. 614, 10 L. R. A. 529; Pace v. Smith, 57 T. 555.

The general rule that property in the custody of the law is not subject to garnishment is well settled. This, besides other officers, includes receivers, assignees in bankruptcy, disbursing officers, sheriffs, clerks, executors, administrators and guardians. The general principal underlying this doctrine is that no person deriving his authority from the law, and obliged to execute it according to the rules of law, can be holden by process of this kind. Texas Trunk Ry. Co. v. Lewis, 81 T. 1, 16 S. W. 647, 26 Am. St. Rep. 776; Richardson v. Anderson, 4 App. C. C. § 286, 18 S. W. 195; Taylor v. Gillean, 23 T. 508; Edwards v. Norton, 55 T. 405; Pace v. Smith, 57 T. 555; Sweetzer v. Claflin, 74 T. 667, 12 S. W. 395; Curtis v. Ford, 78 T. 262, 14 S. W. 614, 10 L. R. A. 529; Kreisle v. Campbell, 89 T. 104, 33 S. W. 852.

Money in the hands of a sheriff taken by him from a prisoner is not subject to garnishment. Richardson v. Anderson, 4 App. C. C. § 286, 18 S. W. 195.

Property of an intestate is not subject to garnishment, though the writ was served before appointment of administrator. Weekes v. Galveston Gas Co., 22 C. A. 245, 54 S. W. 620.

Garnishment will not lie against a clerk of the court to reach money in his hands belonging to the principal defendant. Loftus v. Williams, 24 C. A. 393, 59 S. W. 291.

Where funds in possession of a clerk are not held by him in his official capacity, they are not exempt from garnishment as in custodia legis. Reid v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 940.

All of the parties in garnishment proceedings held to have elected to consider a deposit in court as the fund in controversy, so as to discharge an original garnishee, preventing plaintiffs from asserting their claim on appeal against such garnishee. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. McFaddin (Sup.) 142 S. W. 1162.

The principle underlying the rule that property in custodia legis is not subject to garnishment, etc., is to protect the jurisdiction of the court from invasion of another tribunal or officer, and not to protect the debtor's property. Turner v. Gibson (Sup.) 151 S. W. 793, 43 L. R. A. (N. S.) 571.

Claims by third persons.—Parties asserting conflicting claims to property in the hands of the garnishee may intervene. Kelley Grain Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 651.

When plaintiff has no right to a fund in the hands of a garnishee, he cannot complain of the judgment disposing of the fund between others. Ragsdale v. Groos (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 256.

Whether or not the funds of a mutual fire insurance company deposited with the state treasurer under Acts 1903, p. 168, c. 109, § 5, were in the custody of the law upon forfeiture of its charter and the appointment of a receiver, under section 9, providing that the securities in the hands of the State Treasurer over the amount necessary to pay losses incurred shall be divided among the policy holders at the date of forfeiture, such funds were held for the benefit of policy holders after forfeiture; and hence were not subject to garnishment. Graham v. Sparks, 121 S. W. 597.

A bank, knowing that a depositor had assigned a part of the deposit before it was garnished by a third person, held not relieved from liability to the assignee, who could assert his rights against the bank in a separate proceeding. First State Bank of Montgomery v. Austin & Riley (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1006.

In an action on a note wherein plaintiff garnished insurance proceeds, a plea in abatement filed by defendant's brother who claimed as assignee of the insurance on account of a subsequent action brought by him held properly overruled. Dickerson v. Central Texas Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 695.

A debtor's equity of redemption in mortgaged cattle, pledged to a bank for a loan and of less value than the loan, held not subject to garnishment as against the bank. Presnall v. Stockyards Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 873.

See, also, Arts. 7769–7795.

Indebtedness of garnishee.—A claim in tort sounding solely in unliquidated damages is not subject to garnishment. Railway Co. v. Roemer, 1 C. A. 192, 20 S. W. 843; Kreisle v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 581.

Earned compensation of public officer is not subject to garnishment. Sanger v. City of Waco, 15 C. A. 424, 40 S. W. 549.

A real-estate broker's commission, though the amount thereof be not specifically agreed on, is susceptible of definite ascertainment, and hence may be the basis of garnishment. Austin Nat. Bank v. Bergen (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1037.

Defendant cannot complain of a judgment against a garnishee on the ground that the garnishee owes only the firm of which defendant is a member, and which is not a party. Dancy v. Skidmore, 21 C. A. 338, 51 S. W. 279.

The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the purchase money and interest from the ouster, which is sufficiently certain to support attachment and garnishment. Fleming v. Pringle, 21 C. A. 225, 51 S. W. 553.

A debt due a city for a special purpose, and payable to a special fund, held not subject to garnishment by a creditor of the city. City of Sherman v. Shobe, 94 T. 126, 58 S. W. 949, 86 Am. St. Rep. 825.

A balance to become due on an uncompleted building contract, indivisible in its nature, is not subject to garnishment. Medley v. American Radiator Co., 27 C. A. 384, 66 S. W. 86.

A claim against a railway company for damages for injury to cattle from delay in transportation is not subject to garnishment. Waples-Platter Grocer Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 95 T. 486, 68 S. W. 265, 59 L. R. A. 353.

Plaintiff held not entitled to recover under a garnishment, where the defendant was not indebted to the garnishee in any ascertainable amount at the time the writ was served and the garnishee's answer filed. Darlington Miller Lumber Co. v. National Surety Co., 35 C. A. 346, 80 S. W. 238.

Notes in hands of maker held to have lost their negotiability, rendering them subject to garnishment by creditor of payee. Hutcheson v. King, 37 C. A. 151, 83 S. W. 215.

Plaintiff in garnishment to recover the sum due from an owner of a building to an architect employed to prepare plans and supervise the construction held required to prove performance of the contract by the architect. Eastham Bros. v. Blanchette, 42 C. A. 205, 94 S. W. 441.

Jurisdiction of the debt garnished does not depend on the original situs of the debt. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Swartz, 53 C. A. 389, 115 S. W. 275.

Garnishees held not indebted in any amount to defendants under a contract for the sale of an interest in timber land. Maury v. McDonald, 55 C. A. 50, 118 S. W. 812.

Evidence in a garnishment suit held insufficient to show any indebtedness of the garnishee to the principal debtor. Coleman v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 441.

A claim for unliquidated and uncertain damages is not subject to garnishment. Armengol v. Richter (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1028.

A purchaser of goods from an insolvent debtor though he pays full value, if chargeable with notice of the seller's fraudulent intent, acquires no title as against creditors, and such creditors may proceed by execution, attachment, or garnishment. McIntosh & Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

The existence of judgments against vendors of land will not excuse the vendee from liability in garnishment proceedings for the purchase price, where there is no showing that such judgments have been properly recorded and indexed, and are therefore clouds on the title. Looney v. Pope (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1170.

Clouds on the title held not to excuse a vendee from liability as a garnishee of the purchase price, in the absence of a stipulation in the contract for their removal by the vendors. Id.

Plaintiff's judgment.—No valid judgment can be taken against the garnishee until a judgment has been also rendered against the defendant. Edrington v. Allsbrooks, 21 T. 186; Rowlett v. Lane, 43 T. 274; Horst v. City of London Fire Ins. Co., 73 T. 67, 11 S. W. 148; Sun Mutual Ins. Co. v. Seeligson, 59 T. 3; Douglass v. Neil, 37 T. 528.

Judgment against the garnishee is dependent on the judgment against the defendant, and that being void or reversed the other falls with it. Edrington v. Allsbrooks, 21 T. 186; Rowlett v. Lane, 43 T. 274.

Judgment against a garnishee, without judgment against the original defendant, is void. Shoemaker v. Pace (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 498.

The garnishee cannot attack a judgment in the principal suit for irregularities not rendering it void. Patterson v. Seeton, 19 C. A. 430, 47 S. W. 732.

A dormant judgment will not support the writ. Friedman v. Early Grocery Co., 22 C. A. 285, 54 S. W. 278.

A judgment against a railway company for damages for injury to cattle from delay in transportation is not subject to garnishment pending an appeal. Waples-Platter Grocer Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 95 T. 486, 68 S. W. 265, 59 L. R. A. 359.

A judgment, as affirmed by the court of civil appeals, held sufficient to form the basis for a writ of garnishment, though the time within which a petition for rehearing in the court of civil appeals might have been filed had not expired when the writ was issued. Raley v. Hancock (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 658.

The issuance of a writ of garnishment held not premature, on theory that the judgment on which it was based was not final. Id.

Where a writ of garnishment was unauthorized and invalid when issued because the judgment on which it was issued was satisfied of record, a subsequent setting aside of the entry of satisfaction did not validate the writ. Masterson v. Keller, 40 C. A. 333, 89 S. W. 803.

Where a judgment is properly marked "satisfied" no writ of garnishment or other process can be issued thereon, until by a proceeding duly had for the purpose, the satisfaction is set aside upon a showing of the facts authorizing it. Id.

It was not necessary for an application for a writ of garnishment by a judgment creditor to show that the judgment was not dormant. Thatcher v. Jeffries (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1091.

It was error to render judgment in garnishment for either party after judgment for defendant in the principal suit pending an appeal. Bergman Produce Co. v. First State Bank of Paducah (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 154.

That the judgment offered in evidence in the garnishment proceeding is different from that described in the application is not ground for reversing the judgment against the garnishee. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. W. C. Powell & Son (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 363.

Affidavits.—See, also, notes under Art. 273.

The affidavit may be made by an attorney. Willis v. Lyman, 22 T. 268; Carter v. Wise County Coal Co., 2 App. C. C. § 213. He must be so described. Id.

When judgment is against several the affidavit must state that no one of the defendants has property, etc. Willis v. Lyman, 22 T. 268.

An affidavit that the garnishee is indebted to said defendant, or has in his hands effects of said defendant, is not subject to exception as being in the alternative. White v. Lynch, 26 T. 195; Carter v. Wise County Coal Co., 2 App. C. C. § 213.

A judgment by default cannot be rendered against a garnishee when the affidavit for the writ fails to state that the garnishee resides in the county in which the original suit is brought. Johnson v. McCutchings, 43 T. 553.

In a garnishment proceeding against an insurance company, an affidavit that the agent of the company is indebted to defendant will not support a judgment against the company. Bowers v. Continental Ins. Co., 65 T. 51.

It is not necessary that the affidavit should state that the writ was "not sued out to injure either the defendant or the garnishee," except when the writ is sued out before judgment. Carter v. Wise County Coal Co., 2 App. C. C. § 213.

The affidavit in the attachment proceedings may be looked to in aid of a garnishment. Simon v. Greer (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 343; Kelly v. Gibbs, 84 T. 143, 19 S. W. 380, 563. The affidavit of the agent is based on his own belief. Simon v. Greer (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 343.

A verbal error in the affidavit which is corrected by the context is immaterial. Broyles v. Jerrels, 14 C. A. 374, 37 S. W. 377.

It is not required that the affidavit should state in terms that a writ of garnishment is applied for, and a separate application is not required. An affidavit which stated the grounds for the writ and concluded, "and he further says that the garnishment applied for is not sued out to injure either the garnishee or the defendant," was held sufficient. Godfrey v. Newby (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 594.

An affidavit which states the amount claimed in a suit against a named defendant, and that it is "just, due and unpaid," sufficiently shows from whom and to whom the debt is due. Id.

A garnishee, who submitted the matter to the court without objection, could not urge on appeal defects in the affidavit for garnishment. Seinsheimer v. Flanagan, 17 C. A. 427, 44 S. W. 30.

Where the amount of the debt stated in the affidavit of the writ of garnishment was in excess of the amount for which the garnishee was subsequently sued, the garnishment was properly quashed. Hamblen v. Tuck (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 175.

An affidavit setting out the names of a firm, without giving the names of the persons composing it, is insufficient, under art. 273. Smith v. Wallis, 18 C. A. 402, 45 S. W. 820.

Affidavit for garnishment cannot be amended. Id.

In the garnishment of a debt due to one of two codefendants, the affidavit must show against whom judgment was obtained, and to whom the garnishee is indebted. Ball v. Bennett, 21 C. A. 399, 52 S. W. 618.

Affidavit in garnishment, alleging garnishee to be a corporation having a legal agent in a certain county, held sufficient, as, in the absence of plea or exception, the residence of the agent will be accepted as that of the corporation. Lash v. Morris County Bank (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 806.

An affidavit for garnishment against a corporation that does not state the garnishee is a corporation is fatally defective. Underwood v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 943.

An affidavit under article 273 made by plaintiff's attorney has been upheld. Ferguson-McKinney D. G. Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 34 C. A. 272, 78 S. W. 266.

An affidavit for a writ of garnishment held sufficient. Le Tulle Mercantile Co. v. Markham Rice Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 416.

An affidavit in a garnishment proceeding held not objectionable as being an affidavit that the agent of the garnishees instead of the garnishees was indebted to the defendant. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Warnell (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 690.

In a garnishment proceeding involving more than one defendant, an affidavit averring that "defendant" has not property in "their" possession, etc., held sufficient as extended to all the defendants. Id.

Where the judgment in a garnishment proceeding recites that one of the two defendants in the main case was dismissed, the fact that the affidavit in the garnishment proceeding averred that the two companies "is indebted to the defendant" was not sufficient ground for quashing the writ. Id.

An affidavit in a garnishment proceeding held fatally defective because not in compliance with the statute requiring it to state that the garnishment "is not sued out to injure either the defendant or the garnishee." Id.

That the amount claimed by plaintiff is stated in a garnishment affidavit to be less than that named in the petition does not make the garnishment proceedings void. Burge v. Beaumont Carriage Co., 47 C. A. 223, 105 S. W. 232.

An affidavit held not invalid for failing to allege that the writ was not sued out to injure either defendant. Id.

The petition in an action may be looked to to aid the statements as to the amount due made in a garnishment affidavit. Id.

A garnishment affidavit is sufficient, though it does not state specifically that a writ of garnishment is applied for. Id.

Under Art. 273, an affidavit for garnishment, which states that a certain amount is due with interest, no rate of interest being given, held sufficient. Modern Dairy & Creamery Co. v. Blanke & Hauk Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 154.

An affidavit for garnishment, required by the garnishment statute to state the amount of the debt, if uncertain as to the amount, may be aided by the allegations of the petition in the main case. Id.

When the garnishee is a corporation, partnership or joint stock company, and the defendant is the owner of shares in such company or has an interest therein, the affidavit must contain a statement to this effect. Id.

An affidavit for garnishment stating that affiant believed that the garnishee, a corporation, had as its local agents at a specified place within the state a firm composed of specified persons, etc., sufficiently stated the residence of the agents. Dickerson v. Central Texas Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 695.

In a suit on a note against a maker and indorser, an affidavit for garnishment against the separate property of the maker alleging that he had no other property subject to execution to plaintiff's knowledge was not objectionable for failure to make a similar allegation as against the indorser. Wells v. Globe Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 289.

Garnishment of funds of city.—See note under Art. 1835.

Art. 272. [218] [184] Bond when no attachment has issued and no judgment has been rendered.—In the case mentioned in subdivision two of the preceding article, the plaintiff shall execute a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the officer issuing the writ, payable to the defendant in the suit, in double the amount of the debt claimed therein, conditioned that he will prosecute his suit to effect and pay all damages and costs that may be adjudged against him for wrongfully suing out such garnishment. [Act April 20, 1874, p. 113, sec. 1.]

Cited, Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 233.

Bond.—Garnishment bond, in an action to prosecute it to judgment, held sufficient, though it does not state that plaintiff is a firm, nor give the names of the partners; the petition setting forth such facts. Lash v. Morris County Bank (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 806.

A writ of garnishment issued to two garnishees is sufficiently supported by one bond. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Warnell (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 690.

In an action against two defendants, they may not complain that a garnishment bond was made to both; whereas, the garnished fund belonged to only one of them. Burge v. Beaumont Carriage Co., 47 C. A. 223, 105 S. W. 232.

That a garnishment bond is 30 or 40 cents less than double the amount claimed is immaterial, the principle de minimis applying. Modern Dairy & Creamery Co. v. Blanke & Hauk Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 154.

Where a garnishment bond recited that plaintiffs in a pending suit caused writs of garnishment to issue, the use of the word "caused" is not conclusive that the issuance of the writs had preceded the execution and filing of the bond, but merely served to identify the suit out of which the garnishment proceedings arose. Geiser Mfg. Co. v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 611.

Objections to the bond in garnishment cannot be urged for the first time on appeal. Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

—— Liability.—Where bond is given under this article, liability upon it is avoided by a dismissal of the proceedings. Dallas v. Western Electric Co., 83 T. 243, 18 S. W. 552.

A surety on a garnishment bond held not liable for the depreciation in value of the property because of the garnishee's failure to prepare it for market and dispose of it under his contract with defendant, believing he could not do so after the garnishment. Moore & Bridgeman v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 52 C. A. 286, 113 S. W. 947.

Where, pending a garnishment proceeding, trustees of the debtor assignor for benefit of creditors and the garnishee procured the money to be placed in a specified bank to the credit of the trustees, where it remained until the garnishment was dismissed, during which time the money was at the disposal of the trustees, but they neglected to use it, they could not recover on the garnishment bond damages for being deprived of the use of the money during the garnishment proceeding. Gage v. Lowe (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1178.

—— Damages.—One against whom a garnishment is wrongfully issued may recover from the creditor as his actual damages the interest on the sum detained, and if sued out with knowledge that the subject of the garnishment was exempt therefrom, and with the purpose of harassing and oppressing the debtor, exemplary damages may be recovered. Reed v. Samuels, 22 T. 114, 73 Am. Dec. 253; Biering v. Bank, 69 T. 599, 7 S. W. 90; Waugh v. Dabney, 12 C. A. 290, 33 S. W. 753.

As to damages resulting from a wrongful garnishment, see Girard v. Moore, 24 S. W. 652. A debtor may recover from his creditor damages for a wrongful garnishment when exempt property is sought to be subjected to the writ. Waugh v. Dabney, 12 C. A. 290, 33 S. W. 753.

Attorneys' fees for defense of suit not reckoned as damages resulting from garnishment proceedings. Heimsoth v. Le Suer (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 522.

In an action for damages, based on the wrongful suing out of garnishment process, the plaintiff cannot recover exemplary damages where nominal damages only are shown. Girard v. Moore, 86 T. 675, 26 S. W. 945.

A debtor can recover from his creditor actual and exemplary damages for a wrongful garnishment. Waugh v. Dabney, 12 C. A. 290, 33 S. W. 753.

The surety on a garnishment bond is liable for the actual damages proximately resulting from the wrongful suing out of the writ. Moore & Bridgeman v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 52 C. A. 286, 113 S. W. 947.

Art. 273. [219] [185] Application for the writ, etc.—Before the issuance of the writ of garnishment, the plaintiff shall make application therefor in writing, under oath, signed by him, stating the facts authorizing the issuance of the writ, and that the plaintiff has reason to believe, and does believe, that the garnishee, stating his name and residence, is indebted to the defendant, or that he has in his hands effects belonging to the defendant, or that the garnishee is an incorporated or joint stock company, and that the defendant is the owner of shares in such company or has an interest therein.

Application in general.—When the plaintiff has had an attachment writ issued in a suit, he does not have to wait until it is returned before he can sue out a writ of garnishment. Wilson Hardware Co. v. Anderson Knife & Bar Co., 22 C. A. 229, 54 S. W. 928.

The application must show that the fact authorized the writ exists, and that the law has been fully complied with. The statute evidently contemplates an affidavit separate and apart from the application for the writ of garnishment, but making the application and affidavit in one paper would not vitiate them provided the essentials of this article and that of 271 are included therein. Sullivan & Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1049.

Where an application for a garnishment is attached to the petition, the petition should be considered as a part of the application and affidavit for the garnishment. Trabue v. Whitney, 42 C. A. 520, 94 S. W. 186.

An application for a writ of garnishment need not be separate from the affidavits therefor. Burge v. Beaumont Carriage Co., 47 C. A. 223, 105 S. W. 232.

—— Sufficiency.—An application for the writ must show that the facts authorizing it exist, and that the law has been fully complied with. If it is issued in a suit by attachment that fact must appear. Scurlock v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 77 T. 478, 14 S. W. 148.

Application for a writ of garnishment held sufficient. Jeffries v. Smith, 31 C. A. 582, 73 S. W. 48.

Affidavit and application for garnishment, together with the original petition, held not to contain allegations sufficient to make certain the affidavit and application. D. Sullivan & Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1048.

Petition alleging certain amount due, though stating facts showing a greater amount to be due, held sufficiently definite to support an application for garnishment. Trabue v. Whitney, 42 C. A. 520, 94 S. W. 186.

—— Name and residence of garnishee.—An allegation of the residence of the garnishee cannot be dispensed with. Harrington v. Edrington (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 246.

An application for garnishment setting out the name of a mercantile firm without giving the individual names of the partners is insufficient. Smith v. Wallis, 18 C. A. 402, 45 S. W. 820.

Affidavits.—See notes under Art. 271.

Corporations and stock companies.—The applicant is only required to state in his affidavit that the "garnishee is an incorporated company" when the purpose is to attach shares held by the judgment debtor in a corporation, whereas art. 1822 requires that a petition in a suit against a corporation shall allege that the defendant is "duly" incorporated. First Nat. Bank v. Brown, 42 C. A. 584, 92 S. W. 1053.

Art. 274. [220] [186] Case shall be docketed, etc.—When the foregoing requisites have been complied with, the judge, or clerk, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, shall docket the case in the name of the plaintiff as plaintiff, and of the garnishee as defendant; and shall immediately issue a writ of garnishment, directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county where the garnishee is alleged to reside or be, commanding him forthwith to summon the garnishee to appear before the court out of which the same is issued, on the first day of the ensuing term thereof, to answer upon oath what, if anything, he is indebted to the defendant, and was when such writ was served, and what effects, if any, of the defendant he has in his possession, and had when such writ was served, and what other persons, if any, within his knowledge, are indebted to the defendant or have effects belonging to him in their possession. [P. D. 157.]

Failure to docket correctly.—The proceedings being otherwise regular, a failure to docket garnishment proceedings against each of the garnishees is not such an irregularity as would affect the validity of a judgment against them. Cohn v. Tillman, 66 T. 98, 18 S. W. 111; Bell v. First State Bank of Paducah (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 111.

Requirement of summons as to answer.—Garnishee is required to answer not only as to his indebtedness and effect in his possession, but as to knowledge of indebtedness due defendant by others. Holloway Seed Co. v. City Nat. Bank of Dallas, 92 T. 187, 47 S. W. 95, 516.

A garnishee should be required to file his answer upon the first day of the term of the court at which he is required to appear. Gallagher v. Pugh (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 120.

Indebtedness authorizing summons.—Where, in a policy of insurance, there is a stipulation that proof of loss must be made before the company can be held bound to pay, no suit can be maintained on the policy until such proof of loss is made; yet in such a case a writ of garnishment may issue at the instance of the creditor of the insured—the same not being, strictly speaking, a suit, but process authorized to discover, among other things, whether some debt or obligation exists, not yet matured. Insurance Co. v. Willis, 70 T. 12, 6 S. W. 825, 8 Am. St. Rep. 566.

At the time of the service of garnishment and the filing of the answer of the garnishee, they had nothing in their hands belonging to the debtor except two notes held for collection. Held, money collected by the garnishees on the notes after they filed their answer, was not subject to the operation of the writ. Planters' & Mechanics' Bank v. Floeck, 17 C. A. 418, 43 S. W. 589.

Art. 275. [221] [187] Requisites when writ is against incorporated or joint stock company to subject shares, etc.—Where it appears from the plaintiff's affidavit that the garnishee is an incorporated or joint stock company, in which the defendant is the owner of shares, or is interested therein, the writ of garnishment shall further require the garnishee to answer upon oath what number of shares, if any, the defendant owns in such company, or owned when such writ was served, and what interest, if any, he has in such company, or had when such writ was served. [Act March 13, 1875, p. 102, secs. 1, 2.]

Corporations and stock companies.—Where the garnishee is a corporation or joint stock company, it must appear from the affidavit that the defendant is the owner of shares, or is interested therein, to require the answer to state what shares, if any, or what interest, if any, defendant had or has therein. Le Tulle Mercantile Co. v. Markham Rice Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 417.

Art. 276. [222] [188] Form of writ.—The following form of writ may be used:

"The State of Texas,

"To the sheriff or any constable of ——— county, greeting:

"Whereas, in the ——— court of ——— county [if a justice's court, state also the number of the precinct], in a certain cause wherein A B is plaintiff and C D is defendant, the plaintiff, claiming an indebtedness against the said C D of ——— dollars, besides interest and costs of suit, has applied for a writ of garnishment against E F, who is alleged to be a resident of your county [or to be within your county, as the case may be]; therefore you are hereby commanded forthwith to summon the said E F, if to be found within your county, to be and appear before the said court at the next term thereof, to be held at ———, in said county, on the ——— day of ———, 19—, then and there to answer upon oath what, if anything, he is indebted to the said C D, and was when this writ was served upon him, and what effects, if any, of the said C D he has in his possession, and had when this writ was served, and what other persons, if any, within his knowledge, are indebted to the said C D, or have effects belonging to him in their possession; [and if the garnishee be an incorporated or joint stock company, in which the defendant is alleged to be the owner of shares or interested therein, then the writ shall proceed: And further to answer what number of shares, if any, the said C D owns in such company, and owned when such writ was served.] Herein fail not, but of this writ make due return as the law directs."

Defects in form.—A judgment by default cannot be rendered against a garnishee when the writ fails to designate the cause in which he is required to answer. Johnson v. McCutchings, 43 T. 553.

No jurisdiction is acquired over an insurance company as a garnishee by the service of a citation directing the agent of the company to be summoned to answer, etc. Sun Mutual Ins. Co. v. Seeligson, 59 T. 3; Bowers v. Continental Ins. Co., 65 T. 51. See ante, art. 273; Insurance Co. v. Friedman Bros., 74 T. 56, 11 S. W. 1046; Railway Co. v. Gage, 63 T. 568.

A writ of garnishment which requires the garnishee to answer on a date that had elapsed prior to the issuance of the writ will not support a judgment by default. Caspary v. Greely-Burnham Grocer Co., 3 App. C. C. § 175.

The statement of the amount of the debt sought to be secured is not essential to validity of the writ. Its essential elements are prescribed in article 274. Curtis v. Henrietta Nat. Bank, 78 T. 260, 14 S. W. 614; Curtis v. Ford, 78 T. 262, 14 S. W. 614, 10 L. R. A. 529.

Variance between petition and writ held not to exist. Fleming v. Pringle, 21 C. A. 225, 51 S. W. 553.

A writ of garnishment commanding the garnishee to appear before said court "at the next regular term thereof, to be held in Beaumont, in said county, on the day of ———, A. D. 1905," is fatally defective, because it fails to require the garnishee to appear at the first day of the ensuing term of the court. Gilbert Book Co. v. Pye, 43 C. A. 183, 95 S. W. 10.

Waiver of defects by garnishee.—Garnishee cannot accept service or voluntarily answer or waive any defect in writ of garnishment as against original defendant. Gilbert Book Co. v. Pye, 43 C. A. 183, 95 S. W. 8.

Art. 277. [223] [189] Writ to be dated, tested and delivered to the sheriff, etc.—The writ of garnishment shall be dated and tested as other writs, and may be delivered to the sheriff or constable by the officer who issued it, or he may deliver it to the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, for that purpose.

Art. 278. [224] [190] Sheriff, etc., to execute and return writ forthwith.—The sheriff or constable receiving the writ of garnishment shall immediately proceed to execute the same by delivering a copy thereof to the garnishee, and shall make return thereof as of other citations.

Service.—Service on a cashier is sufficient to bind the bank. Rosenberg v. Bank (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 897. See Sun Mutual Ins. Co. v. Seeligson, 59 T. 3.

Acts of a de facto deputy sheriff in serving a writ of garnishment and a citation held binding on the person served. Trammel v. Shelton, 18 C. A. 366, 45 S. W. 319.

Where all members of a firm are parties to the main action, personal service of the notice of garnishment on one of them is sufficient. Patterson v. Seeton, 19 C. A. 430, 47 S. W. 732.

Garnishee cannot accept service or voluntarily answer or waive any defect in writ of garnishment as against original defendant. Gilbert Book Co. v. Pye, 43 C. A. 183, 95 S. W. 8.

Return.—The return on a writ against two corporate companies, which recites its execution "by delivering to the within-named garnishee in person a true copy of this writ," is fatally defective, and will not authorize a judgment against either company. Insurance Co. v. Friedman Bros., 74 T. 56, 11 S. W. 1046.

A garnishee, who submitted the matter to court without objection, could not urge on appeal defects in the return. Seinsheimer v. Flanagan, 17 C. A. 427, 44 S. W. 30.

A writ of garnishment is properly returned to the court rendering the judgment on which the writ is issued. Thomson v. Findlater Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 301.

Art. 279. [225] [191] Effect of service of writ; defendant may replevy.—From and after the service of such writ of garnishment, it shall not be lawful for the garnishee to pay to the defendant any debt or to deliver to him any effects; nor shall the garnishee, if an incorporated or joint stock company in which the defendant is alleged to be the owner of shares or to have an interest, permit or recognize any sale or transfer of such shares or interest; and any such payment or delivery, sale or transfer, shall be void and of no effect as to so much of said debt, effects, shares, or interest as may be necessary to satisfy the plaintiff's demand; provided, however, that the defendant may, at any time before judgment, replevy any effects, debts, shares, or claims of any kind seized or garnished, by giving bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties to be approved by the officer who issued the writ of garnishment, payable to the plaintiff, in double the amount of the plaintiff's debt, and conditioned for the payment of any judgment that may be rendered against the said garnishee in such suit, which bond when properly approved shall be filed among the papers in the cause in the court in which the suit is pending; and in all proceedings in garnishment where the defendant gives bond as herein provided for, such defendant may make any defense which the defendant in garnishment could make in such suit. [Acts of 1889, p. 1.]

Effect of service in general.—The writ cannot be extended beyond the mere point of reaching the defendant's effects in the garnishee's hands; neither will it be aided by a court of equity by injunction, etc. Arthur v. Batte, 42 T. 159; Noyes v. Brown, 75 T. 458, 13 S. W. 36.

Choses in action cannot be reached by garnishment of the person holding them. Carter v. Bush, 79 T. 29, 15 S. W. 167.

As to right of stoppage in transitu. Harris v. Tenney, 20 S. W. 82, 85 T. 254, 34 Am. St. Rep. 796.

An amount due upon an insurance policy garnished in this state is not thereafter subject to garnishment in a court of another state. Continental Ins. Co. v. Chase (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 602; Id., 89 T. 212, 34 S. W. 93.

When a defendant in an action on a promissory note is garnished by the creditors of another on the ground that he is the real owner, defendant may have all garnishing creditors joined as parties. Capera v. Mignon (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 882.

Where garnishment plaintiffs were brought into another action between defendant and the garnishee, held, the issue could be determined, though the garnishments remained undisposed of. Fleming v. Pringle, 21 C. A. 225, 51 S. W. 553.

Where a garnishee was under contract with defendant to prepare rice for market and dispose of it, the garnishment of the rice did not suspend the garnishee's obligations under the contract, but it could proceed to perform the contract. Moore & Bridgeman v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 52 C. A. 286, 113 S. W. 947.

A draft, while retained by a garnishee pending delivery and indorsement to defendants pursuant to a contract to lend them the money called for, held not "effects" of the defendants subject to a garnishment previously served. Maury v. McDonald, 55 C. A. 50, 118 S. W. 812.

Where defendant conveys property to a third party after the service of a writ of garnishment, and the garnishee participates in the fraudulent scheme, and the third party afterwards conveys the property to garnishee, the third party is not a necessary party to the garnishment proceedings, but, at most, a proper party. Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

—— Debts not matured.—The defendant in the garnishment proceedings cannot transfer an accruing debt between the service of the writ and the answer of the garnishee; e. g., if defendant assigned rent accruing from a tenant after the tenant was served with the writ and before his answer. Gause v. Cone, 73 T. 239, 11 S. W. 162.

It is a general rule that the maker of a negotiable promissory note cannot be subjected to the payment of the same under the writ of garnishment before maturity. Nor is the rule different when he executes the note with the knowledge that it was the purpose of the payee to place the funds beyond the reach of creditors. Willis v. Heath, 75 T. 124, 12 S. W. 971, 16 Am. St. Rep. 876.

A writ of garnishment will not reach and hold amounts which may become due from the garnishee after the date of his answer. B. & B. Co. v. Moore Bros., 4 App. C. C. § 146, 16 S. W. 780; Terrell v. Canada, 25 T. 455; Gause v. Cone, 73 T. 239, 11 S. W. 162.

If the note is due and owned by the payee at the time judgment in garnishment is rendered, the maker is liable to such judgment, though at the time he was served the note had not matured. Thompson v. Gainesville Nat. Bank, 66 T. 156, 18 S. W. 350.

A garnishee is not liable on a negotiable note before maturity, but he is liable thereon after maturity where his answer is filed after maturity and the debtor is the owner of the note though the writ was issued before maturity. Thomson v. Findlater Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 301.

—— Lien or rights acquired.—A writ of garnishment appropriates whatever the garnishee owes at the time of the service of the writ, and also what he owes thereafter to the time of his answer. Gause v. Cone, 73 T. 239, 11 S. W. 162.

The service of a writ of garnishment upon a corporation fixes a lien upon the shares of stock of the corporation owned by the defendant. This lien is good as against a prior judgment obtained on a like writ subsequently issued. Harrell v. Mexico Cattle Co., 73 T. 612, 11 S. W. 863.

Garnishment of a stock of goods held under a void assignment, held to give a lien or right superior to a subsequent attachment. Focke v. Blum, 82 T. 436, 17 S. W. 770. See Simon v. Ash, 1 C. A. 202, 20 S. W. 719.

As to liability of a trustee on garnishment by non-preferred creditors, see Simon v. Ash, 1 C. A. 202, 20 S. W. 719.

A garnishee may retain funds of the debtor sufficient to secure himself, and is responsible for the surplus only. Rosenberg v. Bank (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 897. See Simmons v. Carmichael (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 690.

Garnishment of assignee for benefit of creditors is subject to claims of creditors thereafter accepting the assignment. Patty-Joiner Co. v. City Bank of Sherman, 15 C. A. 475, 41 S. W. 173.

A plaintiff held entitled to proceed against one taking by attachment defendant's property in the garnishee's possession, without bringing a separate action. Bell v. Stewart, 18 C. A. 64, 44 S. W. 925.

Plaintiff in garnishment held to have no lien on property assigned for creditors, though he had no notice of the assignment. Carter-Battle Grocer Co. v. Jackson, 18 C. A. 353, 45 S. W. 615.

Where a garnishee willfully mingled attached goods with others purchased by him with funds obtained by selling part of the attached property, the garnishment lien attached to the entire stock. Holloway Seed Co. v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 77.

A creditor obtaining an attachment and writ of garnishment against a debtor, which were irregularly issued, is not entitled to preference over creditors named in a trust deed; such trust being accepted by the trustee before the issuance of a valid writ of garnishment. Wilson v. National Bank of Cleburne, 27 C. A. 54, 63 S. W. 1067.

The lien of a garnishment attaches only to such liability as has accrued at the date of service, or which accrues between the service and the date for the answer. Medley v. American Radiator Co., 27 C. A. 384, 66 S. W. 86.

Where a verdict was rendered against a garnishee in a consolidated action by the garnishee's creditor and the garnishor, a lien arose in favor of the garnishee, whether mentioned in the verdict or not. Kothman v. Faseler (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 390.

A garnishment of property merely substituted plaintiff pro tanto to the rights of defendant in the property. Moore & Bridgeman v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 52 C. A. 286, 113 S. W. 947.

As between two garnishments, both of which were served before the claim of the debtor against the garnishee was finally liquidated, plaintiff's garnishment, being prior in time, was prior in right. Armengol v. Richter (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1028.

A writ of garnishment, when served, attaches not only to what the garnishee may owe the principal defendant at the time of the service of the writ, but also to what he may owe when he files his answer, and, where an unliquidated demand was garnished and became liquidated before answer, the garnishee was bound to answer that he owed the amount of the judgment by which the demand was liquidated. Id.

Where a judgment creditor of a payee of a note assigned to a third person as collateral for a sum less than the note, garnisheed the maker, he obtained a lien on the debt evidenced by the note for the amount in excess of the sum secured by the assignment. Thomson v. Findlater Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 301.

Care of property by garnishee.—Garnishee receiving property under trust deed in favor of certain creditors held bound to use such care as a man of ordinary care would use in his own affairs. Galveston Dry-Goods Co. v. Blum, 23 C. A. 703, 57 S. W. 1121.

Payments or transfers by garnishee.—A creditor of the payee of a note cannot prevent its payment by a garnishment of the maker served after a transfer of the note by the payee and before its maturity. Levy v. Du Bose, 3 C. A. 68, 21 S. W. 932.

Assignment of a fund; validity of garnishment proceedings. See Scheuber v. Simmons, 2 C. A. 672, 22 S. W. 72.

Before garnishment, the garnishee can pay over money due the principal debtor; and this, though he had been garnished for the same money in a suit against the wrong debtor. Austin Nat. Bank v. Bergen (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 743.

After service of garnishment on a bank, it properly paid a check, drawn by defendant's wife and delivered to his creditor prior to such service, out of community funds of husband and wife in its hands. Neely v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, 25 C. A. 513, 61 S. W. 559.

A transaction held to have amounted to an assignment of a fund in bank, good as against a subsequent garnishment of the bank, in an action against the debtor. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Patterson & Wallace, 35 C. A. 447, 80 S. W. 1058.

A garnishee, after service upon him holds property of the defendant in his possession as a receiver or officer of the court, and cannot thereafter sell it or change its form so as to place an additional burden upon it, though authorized to do so by defendant. Moore & Bridgeman v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 52 C. A. 286, 113 S. W. 947.

Holders of orders for sums in hands of third persons executed, delivered, and presented for payment prior to service of garnishment on the third persons, held absolute assignments of defendants' interest in the assigned portion of the funds, and to entitle the holders to payment thereof. E. L. Wilson Hardware Co. v. F. J. & R. C. Duff, 54 C. A. 285, 117 S. W. 440.

A defendant held entitled to money paid by garnishee after service of writ in ignorance of the service. Id.

Evidence held to show that a note and draft made in the name of a member of defendant firm were firm paper and were paid by the garnishee in the regular course of business from partnership funds, instead of from the funds of the individual member, so that the garnishee was not liable to plaintiff. Progressive Lumber Co. v. Rogers & Croley (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 260.

Where a garnishee pays the debt to the debtor after service of the garnishment writ, in violation of this article, he cannot recover the money from the debtor. Baughn v. J. B. McKee Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 732.

A garnishee having paid the debt before service held not entitled to recover the same from the debtor because the garnishee appeared and answered, admitting the indebtedness. Id.

Where a railroad company was indebted to another in a certain sum when it was garnished, its payment of such sum thereafter without knowledge of the service of the writ to the attorneys of its creditor held not to affect its liability to the garnishment plaintiff. McFaddin v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 634.

Replevin by defendant.—Judgment cannot be entered against the sureties on the replevy bond unless they are made parties to the proceeding. The garnishee, after a replevy of the fund, is a nominal party, and a nominal judgment only should be rendered against him, ascertaining the amount due, and showing that the fund had been replevied, and that no execution could be awarded against him. Plowman v. Easton, 15 C. A. 304, 39 S. W. 171.

Where a replevy bond has been given, the court may render a judgment against principal and surety without further pleading and notice in a case where judgment has been rendered against garnishee. Seinsheimer v. Flanagan, 17 C. A. 427, 44 S. W. 30.

Where a debtor replevied the claim garnished, and the money was paid to him, he was estopped to claim that the indebtedness was not owing to him. Id.

The debtors and the sureties on their replevin bond cannot complain that a personal judgment was rendered against the garnishee, and execution awarded thereon, though the debt had been replevied by them. Id.

And they cannot complain that the judgment failed to provide that payment thereof by the garnishee should operate as a satisfaction of the claim against him. Id.

Nor that the original creditor of the garnishee, who assigned his claim to the debtors, was not made a party, and the respective rights of such creditor and the debtors adjudicated so as to protect the garnishee. Id.

Where a debtor replevies the claim garnished, and judgment goes against the garnishee, the amount for which the obligors on the replevin bond are liable is the full amount held subject to the writ. Id.

In suit on replevin bond in garnishment, the principal and sureties cannot raise issues determined by the judgment against the garnishee. McCoslin v. David, 22 C. A. 53, 54 S. W. 404.

The defendant in the original suit, when he replevies the debt or effects, has the right to make any defense to the garnishment suit, which the garnishee could make in such suit. But he may make defense in garnishment suit and not wait until he and his sureties are sued on their replevy bond. Id.

Upon approval and filing the replevin bond it takes the place of the debt garnished and it is the duty of the plaintiff to call the court's attention to the bond and see that judgment is rendered in accordance with the statute. If the debt is subject to garnishment the judgment must be against the bondsmen and execution issues against them. Tinsley v. Ardrey, 26 C. A. 561, 64 S. W. 805.

When defendants in a garnishment proceeding give a replevy bond and thus secure possession of a fund which had been garnished, they can make any defense, when judgment is sought against them on the replevy bond which the garnishee could make. This right extends to any valid ground for quashing the writ of garnishment. It matters not what disposition they made of the fund after replevying it, they are not estopped by any action of theirs in regard to the fund from making any defense which the statute gave them a right to make. Fleming & Fleming v. Pye, 43 C. A. 176, 95 S. W. 594.

In garnishment, where a replevy bond is given, held error to render a judgment against the garnishee. Modern Dairy & Creamery Co. v. Blanke & Hauk Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 154.

Wrongful garnishment.—See, also, notes under Art. 272.

Plaintiff in garnishment and officer serving writ held liable in conversion for levying on exempt fund. Coursey v. Cornwell (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 73.

Plaintiff held liable for suing out a writ of garnishment in a suit against him, the alleged ground therefor not existing. Barr v. Cardiff, 32 C. A. 495, 75 S. W. 341.

An action by a nonresident for damages in consequence of a nonresident garnishing in the courts of a sister state wages due plaintiff held not to be dismissed in the absence of proof of certain facts. Lightfoot v. Murphy, 47 C. A. 112, 104 S. W. 511.

The measure of damages for the detention of money in consequence of a wrongful garnishment thereof is normally the legal interest for the time detained. Id.

"Where, by the wrongful suing out of a writ of garnishment, money of defendant is wrongfully detained in the possession of the garnishee, defendant may recover from plaintiff as actual damages 6 per cent. interest on the money during the period it is unlawfully held by such garnishment proceedings." Moore & Bridgeman v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 52 C. A. 286, 113 S. W. 947.

Under this article, where plaintiff, in an action before a justice of the peace, garnished $1,250 belonging to defendant, on a showing that the affidavit made to obtain garnishment was false, defendant was entitled to recover interest upon the $1,250 garnisheed from the time the writ was served until it was quashed, and is not limited to a recovery of interest on an amount which would have satisfied plaintiff's claim and costs of suit. Battle & McKinney v. White (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 216.

In an action for wrongful garnishment, a certain contention held without merit as a defense. Id.

Exemplary damages may not be recovered for a wrongful garnishment unless issued without probable cause and maliciously. Pegues Mercantile Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 280.

Where defendant claimed damages for the wrongful suing out of garnishment writs, an agreement by plaintiff to extend the time for payment of the debt sued on held immaterial. Id.

Where defendant claimed damages for the wrongful issuance of certain garnishments, the affidavits, bonds, writs, and answers were properly admitted. Id.

Garnishment being a statutory remedy, where the grounds on which the writ is issued in fact exist, defendant cannot recover either actual or exemplary damages as for wrongful issuance thereof. Id.

Allegations, in an action for wrongful garnishment, of false representations inducing plaintiff to become a surety on the note on which the garnishment was based, held proper as showing that he was not indebted to defendants. Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 233.

Where the petition shows a cause of action for actual damages, the allegation and prayer for exemplary damages should not be stricken. Id.

Recovery for wrongful garnishment of interest on notes, payment of which was suspended, held not to be denied as involving a double recovery of interest. Id.

Garnishee deprived by wrongful garnishment of opportunity to exchange nonproductive stock for interest-bearing notes held entitled to recover the difference between the par and market value of the stock, including the stipulated interest on the notes. Id.

Allegations that plaintiff's earnings in a business way had been impaired and damaged, held proper in view of other allegations showing actual damages and malice. Id.

Allegations showing an offer to settle the cause of action on which the garnishment was based, were proper on the issue of probable cause for the garnishment. Id.

Art. 280. [226] [192] Answer to the writ must be in writing, under oath and signed.—The answer of the garnishee shall be under oath, in writing, and signed by him, and shall make true answers to the several matters inquired of in the writ of garnishment.

Voluntary answer.—Garnishee cannot accept service or voluntarily answer or waive any defect in writ of garnishment as against original defendant. Gilbert Book Co. v. Pye, 43 C. A. 183, 95 S. W. 8.

Sufficiency of answer.—Answer held sufficient to prevent a personal judgment against the garnishee. First Nat. Bank v. Robertson, 3 C. A. 150, 22 S. W. 100, 24 S. W. 659.

A garnishee holding notes and accounts should state the name of the debtor, the amount and date of each claim, when due, and rate of interest. Cullers v. City Bank (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 900.

What garnishee must disclose by answer, when he knows that his account has been assigned by principal defendant. Miller v. Goodman, 15 C. A. 244, 40 S. W. 743.

Answer of one garnished as creditor of S., that it had funds belonging to one Mrs. S., held not demurrable. Ragsdale v. Groos (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 256.

In a garnishment proceeding held error to overrule exceptions to defendant's answer. Galveston Dry-Goods Co. v. Blum, 23 C. A. 703, 57 S. W. 1121.

Where an owner of a building, on being garnished in a suit against the contractor, alleged that a final settlement had been had, and that she owed the contractor $250, but that the contractor's surety claimed an indebtedness against him of $312.15 for lumber and materials furnished, and that, when the original contract was made, the contractor verbally assigned to the surety such amount remaining unpaid as was necessary to liquidate any debt from the contractor to the surety, such answer sufficiently showed that the assignment was supported by a sufficient consideration, and that the fund sought to be assigned had been definitely ascertained. Campbell v. J. E. Grant Co., 36 C. A. 641, 82 S. W. 794.

A garnishee being bound to disclose, not only the amount due at the time the garnishment was served, but also at the time of the answer, where the debt was liquidated before answer, he was bound to disclose the liquidated amount. Armengol v. Richter (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1028.

—— Defenses.—Garnishee is not required to set up a defense or exemption in behalf of the debtor. Lalonde v. Sun Mutual Ins. Co., 2 App. C. C. § 55. Garnishee may show that property in his hands is exempt. Davis v. McCormack, 2 App. C. C. § 629.

Garnishee may set up every defense he has against the defendant (Ellison v. Tuttle, 26 T. 283); but the dormancy of the judgment against the defendant cannot be set up by the garnishee. White v. Casey, 25 T. 552; Douglass v. Neil, 37 T. 528.

The rights of the garnishee in property held by him are not prejudiced. Randolph v. Randolph, 34 T. 181.

Payment by a garnishee in pursuance of a void judgment is not a defense. Shoemaker v. Pace (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 498.

—— Interpleader.—A garnishee can require claimants of a fund to interplead to settle the right to the funds in his hands. Foy v. East Dallas Bank (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 137; Railway Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 139; Kelley Grain Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 651.

—— Amendments.—When exceptions to the answer of the garnishee are sustained it does not follow that the pleading should be treated as no answer, and there was no error in granting leave to amend at a later day of the term and after the sale of the goods. Simon v. Ash, 1 C. A. 202, 20 S. W. 719.

Original answer of garnishee should be looked to, though he filed an amended one. Moore v. Blum (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 511.

Where a fatal omission from a garnishee's answer was due to oversight only, the trial court properly permitted the garnishee to file a new answer. Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

—— Evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

Construction, operation, and effect.—Answer of garnishee held to put effect of trust deed from creditors to him in issue. Moore v. Blum (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 511.

Evidence cannot be heard to show invalidity of trust deed pleaded by garnishee. Id.

It is not proper to pass on the validity of an instrument mentioned in a garnishee's answer where no affidavit controverting it is filed. Blum v. Moore, 91 T. 273, 42 S. W. 856.

Answer of garnishee held not to authorize judgment against him. McDowell v. Bell (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 400.

Procedure on answer.—Where a garnishee answers that he holds funds as the assignee of an insolvent debtor, the proceedings should be postponed until the garnishee has executed the trust. Carter v. Bush, 79 T. 29, 15 S. W. 167.

Defendant in a suit garnished in another action may have the cases consolidated. Foy v. East Dallas Bank (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 137.

Defendant may attack the validity of the proceedings after the garnishee has admitted indebtedness. Ball v. Bennett, 21 C. A. 399, 52 S. W. 618.

Oath.—An answer of a corporation may be made by its vice-president, and when contested will give jurisdiction, although the corporation has its business domicile in another county. Gerhard Hardware Co. v. Texas C. P. Co. (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 168.

The clerk of the court, who is included with others in a writ of garnishment, may take the answers of the other garnishees. Womack v. Stokes, 12 C. A. 648, 35 S. W. 82.

Garnishee's attorney may, as a notary swear the garnishee to his answer. Kosminsky v. Raymond, 20 C. A. 702, 51 S. W. 51.

Art. 281. [227] [198] Garnishee to be discharged on his answer, when.—Should it appear from the answer of the garnishee that he is not indebted to the defendant, and was not so indebted when the writ of garnishment was served on him, and that he has not in his possession any effects of the defendant and had not when the writ was served, and when the garnishee is an incorporated or joint stock company in which the defendant is alleged to be the owner of any shares of stock or interested therein, if it shall further appear from such answer that the defendant is not and was not, when the writ was served, the owner of any of such shares, or interested in such company, and should the answer of the garnishee not be controverted as hereinafter provided, the court shall enter judgment discharging the garnishee.

Right to judgment.—Garnishee held entitled to judgment on failure to controvert his answer. Moore v. Blum (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 511.

Failure to enter discharge.—Where the uncontroverted answer of a garnishee required his discharge under this article, he was not guilty of culpable negligence in failing to appear and see that a judgment of discharge was entered and the enforcement of a judgment against him, rendered on an erroneous construction of the answer, will be enjoined, and the judgment set aside, on the garnishee promptly seeking relief on obtaining information of the judgment. Bevil v. Trotti (Civ App.) 141 S. W. 287.

Art. 282. [228] [194] Judgment by default, when.—Should the garnishee, being a resident of the county where the proceeding is pending, fail to make answer to the writ, it shall be lawful for the court, at any time after judgment shall have been rendered against the defendant, and on or after default day, to render judgment by default against such garnishee for the full amount of such judgment against the defendant, with all accruing interest and costs. [P. D. 159.]

Failure to answer in full.—A failure to answer all of the statutory questions renders garnishee liable. Freeman v. Miller, 51 T. 443. But see Jemison v. Scarborough, 56 T. 358.

A garnishee, who, in his answer, does not deny, as required by statute, that he has in his possession effects of defendant, may not complain of an adverse judgment. Youngberg v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1139.

Art. 283. [229] [195] When garnishee residing in another county fails to answer, commission to issue.—If the garnishee resides in some other county than that in which the proceeding is pending, and fails to make answer to the writ, the court shall, on motion of the plaintiff, issue a commission addressed to the clerk of the district court, the county judge, the clerk of the county court, or any notary public of the county in which the garnishee is alleged to reside or be, requiring him to cite such garnishee to answer the writ of garnishment. [P. D. 167.]

Waiver of privilege.—A garnishee who does not reside in the county in which the proceedings are pending, but voluntarily submits to the jurisdiction of the court by filing an answer, is subject to the action of the court. W. A. Wood, etc., Co. v. Edwards, 9 C. A. 537, 29 S. W. 418.

Change of residence.—If after process served the non-resident garnishee has changed his domicile to the county wherein the proceeding is pending, the court should be notified of that fact, and process sued out notifying him that his answer to the writ would be demanded, or it should at least have appeared in the record that the garnishee had changed his domicile within such a period before the rendition of the judgment as afforded him a reasonable time for making his defense. Cohn v. Tillman, 66 T. 98, 18 S. W. 111.

Art. 284. [230] [196] Form of commission.—The following form of commission may be used:

"The State of Texas,

"To the clerk of the district court, the county judge, clerk of the county court, or any notary public of ———— county, greeting:

"Whereas, on the —— day of ———, ——, in a certain cause pending in this court wherein A B is plaintiff and C D is defendant, the plaintiff claiming an indebtedness against the said C D of ——— dollars, besides interest and costs of suit, a writ of garnishment was issued by this court against E F, of your county, which was afterward returned duly served on the ——— day of ———, 19——; and whereas the said E F has failed to make answer to the said writ; now, therefore, you are hereby commanded forthwith to summon the said E F before you, to answer upon oath what, if anything, he is indebted to the said C D and was when the said writ of garnishment was served upon him, and what effects, if any, of the said C D he has in his possession and had when the said writ was served, and what other persons, if any, within his knowledge, are indebted to the said C D, or have effects belonging to him in their possession; [and if the garnishee be an incorporated or joint stock company, in which the defendant is alleged to be the owner of shares, or interested therein, the commission shall proceed: And further to answer what number of shares, if any, the said C D owns in such company and owned when the said writ was served, and what interest, if any, he has in said company, and had when the said writ was served.] Herein fail not, but of this commission make return forthwith."

Art. 285. [231] [197] Tested, how.—The commission shall be dated and tested as writs usually are.

Art. 286. [232] [198] Duty of officer receiving commission.—Upon the receipt of such commission, by any of the officers named in the preceding article, he shall immediately issue a citation, directed to the sheriff or any constable of his county, commanding him forthwith to summon the garnishee to appear before him at a time and place to be named in the citation, to answer upon oath as directed in article 230. [284.] [P. D. 167.]

Art. 287. [233] [199] Form of writ to be issued by commissioner for garnishee residing in another county.—The following form of writ may be used in such cases:

"The State of Texas,

"To the sheriff or any constable of ——— county, greeting:

"Whereas, in a certain cause pending in the ——— court of ——— county [if a justice's court state the number of the precinct], wherein A B is plaintiff and C D is defendant, wherein the plaintiff claims of the said defendant the sum of ——— dollars, besides interest and costs of suit, a writ of garnishment was issued against E F of your county, which was duly served upon him on the —— day of ———, 19——, requiring him to answer thereto before the said court at its late term, and whereas the said garnishee has failed to answer as required by said writ, and whereas a commission his been issued by the said court and lodged in my hands, whereby I am commanded to summon the said E F before me to make such answer; therefore, you are hereby commanded forthwith to summon the said E F, if to be found within your county, to be and appear before me, at my office in ———, on the —— day of ———, 19——, then and there to answer upon oath what, if anything, he is indebted to the aforesaid C D, and was when the aforesaid writ of garnishment was so served upon him, and what effects, if any, of the said C D he has in his possession and had when the said writ was so served, and what other persons, if any, within his knowledge, are indebted to the said C D or have effects belonging to him in their possession; and if the garnishee is an incorporated or joint stock company, in which the defendant is alleged to be the owner of shares, or interested therein, the writ shall proceed: And further, to answer what number of shares, if any, the said C D owns in such company and owned when the said writ was served, and what interest, if any, he has in such company, and had when the said writ was served.] Herein fail not, but of this writ make return forthwith."

Art. 288. [234] [200] Writ to be dated and tested, how.—The writ shall be dated and tested by the officer issuing it, with his official signature and seal of office.

Art. 289. [235] [201] Sheriff, etc., to execute and return writ forthwith.—The sheriff or constable receiving such writ shall immediately proceed to execute the same by delivering a copy thereof to the garnishee, and shall make return thereof without delay to the officer who issued it.

Art. 290. [236] [202] Duty of commissioner when garnishee in another county appears and answers.—Should the garnishee appear and answer, in obedience to the writ, the officer executing the commission shall return the same, together with the answer of the garnishee, duly certified under his hand and seal of office, to the clerk of the court or justice of the peace who issued it; whereupon, like proceedings shall be had as provided in cases of answers of a garnishee residing in the county. [P. D. 167.]

Art. 291. [237] [203] Duty of commissioner when he fails to appear and answer.—Should the garnishee fail to appear in obedience to the writ, or having appeared, should he fail or refuse to answer, or to answer fully, the officer holding such commission shall return the same, together with the citation for the garnishee issued by him, and the service indorsed thereon, and a statement duly certified by him under his hand and seal of office of such failure or refusal, to the clerk of the court or justice of the peace who issued the commission. [P. D. 167.]

Art. 292. [238] [204] Proceedings on return of certificate of such refusal to answer.—Upon the return of such commission with the citation for the garnishee, and the return thereon, and the certificate of such failure or refusal of the garnishee to answer, as mentioned in the preceding article, it shall be lawful for the court at any time after judgment shall have been rendered against the defendant, and on or after default day, to render judgment against such garnishee for the full amount of such judgment against the defendant, with all accruing interest and costs, unless the defendant shall have previously filed a full and complete answer to the writ, and shall have also shown some good and sufficient excuse for his failure to appear and answer before the officer holding such commission. [P. D. 167.]

Failure to answer in full.—When the garnishee fails to answer fully, judgment is properly rendered against him as provided in this article. Freeman v. Miller, 51 T. 443. See Selman v. Orr, 75 T. 528, 12 S. W. 697. Nor will he be relieved on the ground that he has a good defense. Melton v. Lewis, 74 T. 411, 12 S. W. 93.

Where the interrogatory, though using the terms of the statute, is misleading, and the court is satisfied that the answer, though defective, is not wilfully evasive, the answer, if excepted to, should be set aside and a new commission issued. Jemison v. Scarborough, 56 T. 358.

Judgment by default for failure to file a full answer can be taken on default day coming next after incomplete answer is filed. McDowell v. Bell (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 400.

A judgment against a garnishee held not sustainable for failure of the garnishee to answer as to its indebtedness to the judgment debtor between the date of service of the writ and the return day. Davis v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 393.

Art. 293. [239] [205] Judgment against the garnishee when he is indebted.—Should it appear from the answer of the garnishee, made in either of the modes provided for in this chapter, or should it be otherwise made to appear, as hereinafter provided, that the garnishee is indebted to the defendant in any amount, or was so indebted when the writ of garnishment was served, the court shall render judgment for the plaintiff against the garnishee, for the amount so admitted or found to be due to the defendant from the garnishee, unless such amount shall exceed the amount of the plaintiff's judgment against the defendant, with interest and costs, in which case it shall be for the amount of such judgment, interest and costs. [P. D. 157.]

Right to judgment.—Plaintiff in garnishment proceedings held not entitled to judgment on the garnishee's answer. Trammell v. Ullman, Lewis & Co., 43 C. A. 470, 96 S. W. 648.

Judgment by default.—When a garnishee, whether resident in the county where the suit is pending or not, answers the writ and files it in the court he must then be considered in court—at least for the purpose of defending any attack upon his answer made upon the ground that he has failed or refused to comply with the law in making it, and a judgment striking out the answers and rendering judgment against garnishee by default is proper. Gay Branch Co. v. Pemberton, 23 C. A. 418, 57 S. W. 71–73.

Failure of a garnishee to anticipate that plaintiff would take judgment by default at the term preceding the one at which the statute would permit him to proceed, and to answer before such judgment, held not inexcusable neglect. Heath v. Jordt, 31 C. A. 535, 72 S. W. 1022.

Judgment in consolidated action.—A recital, in a judgment against a garnishee in a consolidated action by the garnishor and the garnishee's creditor to recover the debt, that the judgment was subject to the garnishment lien, held proper. Kothman v. Faseler (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 390.

Amount of judgment.—A judgment should not be rendered against the garnishee for more than the amount of the judgment against the defendant. In an ancillary garnishment the court must take judicial notice of the judgment in the main case. Plowman v. Easton, 15 C. A. 304, 39 S. W. 171.

Effect of judgment.—Judgment in garnishment held not a bar to an action by an assignee of the debt. Miller v. Goodman, 15 C. A. 244, 40 S. W. 743.

A judgment of a state court in garnishment is binding on a nonresident cited by publication. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Swartz, 53 C. A. 389, 115 S. W. 275.

Setting aside judgment.—A bill in a suit to set aside a judgment against a garnishee, erroneously rendered on his answer, held demurrable. Trammell v. Ullman, Lewis & Co., 43 C. A. 470, 96 S. W. 648.

A court of chancery will not intervene and set aside a judgment against a garnishee, except on facts showing the clearest and strongest reasons for its action. Id.

Controverting the answer.—Judgment cannot be rendered against the garnishee over his answer, unless it is controverted. McRee v. Brown, 45 T. 503.

Controverting affidavits by plaintiff not necessary where he claims simply that the answer shows the garnishee to be indebted to the defendant, and not to a third person as claimed by him. Swearingen v. Wilson, 2 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 75.

Where garnishee answers that he is indebted either to defendant or to a third person and sets forth the facts and asks the court to decide as to whom he is indebted, there is no need for a controverting affidavit and it is not error to strike out such affidavit when filed. White v. San Miguel (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 311.

The facts being uncontroverted, and it not being claimed the answer of garnishee is false in any particular, plaintiff need not traverse it; but this article is effective, regardless of a traverse of the answer. City of San Antonio v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 666.

Art. 294. [240] [206] Judgment against the garnishee for effects.—Should it appear from the garnishee's answer, or otherwise, that the garnishee has in his possession, or had when the writ was served, any effects of the defendant liable to execution, the court shall render a decree requiring the garnishee to deliver up to the sheriff or any constable presenting an execution in favor of the plaintiff against the defendant, such effects or so much of them as may be necessary to satisfy such execution. [P. D. 157.]

Delivery of goods mixed by purchases and sales.—A finding that garnishee should deliver the stock of goods in his hands at the time of trial, where he had mixed them by purchases and sales after the service of the writ, is proper, though no such facts are pleaded. Holloway Seed Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 92 T. 187, 47 S. W. 95, 516.

Effect of judgment.—Under this article and article 295 the failure to deliver goods renders garnishee liable for contempt. Holloway Seed Co. v. City Nat. Bank of Dallas, 92 T. 187, 47 S. W. 95, 516.

Where the court of civil appeals has rendered a judgment for plaintiff in garnishment, such judgment is conclusive as to defendant's indebtedness, in an action against the defendant in the garnishment proceedings to recover the value of the goods adjudged to be plaintiff's. Hyde v. Baker, 26 C. A. 287, 62 S. W. 962.

The statute plainly provides that the court shall render judgment requiring the garnishee to deliver the effects to the officer if he has such effects in his possession or had when the writ was served. Garnishment is a proceeding in rem and the service of the writ fixes a lien upon the property in the hands of the garnishee, and it is doubtful whether the garnishee can legally transfer the property after service on him of the writ. Houston Drug Co. v. Kirchhain (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 609.

Art. 295. [241] [207] Remedy when garnishee refuses to deliver effects found to be in his possession.—Should the garnishee be adjudged to have effects of the defendant in his possession, as provided in the preceding article, fail or refuse to deliver them to the sheriff or constable on such demand, the officer shall immediately make return of such failure or refusal, whereupon, on motion of the plaintiff, the garnishee shall be cited to show cause at the next term of the court why he should not be attached for contempt of court for such failure or refusal; and should the garnishee fail to show some good and sufficient excuse for such failure or refusal, he shall be fined for such contempt and imprisoned until he shall deliver such effects.

Art. 296. [242] [208] Judgment against incorporated companies, etc., for shares of stock or interest.—Where the garnishee is an incorporated or joint stock company, and it appears from the answer, or otherwise, that the defendant is, or was when the writ of garnishment was served, the owner of any shares of stock in such company, or any interest therein, the court shall render a decree, ordering the sale under execution, in favor of the plaintiff against the defendant, of such shares, or interest, of the defendant in such company, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy such execution. [Act March 13, 1875, p. 103, sec. 3.]

Extent of garnishee's interest.—Art. 3745 provides that the shares of stock in a corporation are subject to levy and sale under execution, and Art. 3742 provides that the levy is made by leaving a notice with any officer of the company. Held, in connection with this article, that the interest of the stockholder subject to garnishment was his rights in the corporation as distinguished from his share certificate, and hence, where a stockholder assigned his certificate to a bank as security for a loan, his corporate interest could not be subjected to garnishment by serving garnishment notice on an officer of the bank. Presnall v. Stockyards Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 873.

Assignment of certificates for benefit of other creditors.—A creditor, suing out garnishment against a corporation after the debtor had assigned his certificates for the benefit of other creditors, held not entitled to judgment without showing that the beneficiaries had not assented to the assignment. South Texas Nat. Bank v. Texas & L. Lumber Co., 30 C. A. 412, 70 S. W. 768.

Sale of pledged stock.—Plaintiff in garnishment cannot complain that stock was not ordered sold and the surplus applied to his debt, where it was not sufficient to pay debt to a pledgee thereof. Hamilton v. San Antonio Foundry Co. (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1104.

Art. 297. [243] [209] Sales of shares of stock, etc., how made.—The sale so ordered shall be conducted in all respects as other sales of personal property under execution; and the sheriff or constable making such sale shall execute a transfer of such shares or interest to the purchaser, with a brief recital of the judgment of the court under which the same was sold. [Act March 13, 1875, p. 103, sec. 5.]

Description of shares.—Under this article the garnishee is required to give a sufficient description of the shares of stock to identify them. Keating v. Stone, 83 T. 467, 18 S. W. 797, 29 Am. St. Rep. 670. See Smith v. Traders' Bank, 74 T. 457, 12 S. W. 113.

Art. 298. [244] [210] Effect of such sale.—Such sale shall be valid and effectual to pass to the purchaser all right, title and interest which the defendant had in such shares of stock, or in such company; and the proper officers of such company shall enter such sale and transfer on the books of the company in the same manner as if the same had been made by the defendant himself. [Act March 13, 1875, p. 104, sec. 3.]

Art. 299. [245] [211] Plaintiff may traverse answer to garnishee.—If the plaintiff should not be satisfied with the answer of any garnishee, he may controvert the same by an affidavit in writing, signed by him, stating that he has good reason to believe, and does believe, that the answer of the garnishee is incorrect, stating in what particular he believes the same is incorrect. [P. D. 161.]

Controverting the answer.—Controverting answer showing garnishee's indebtedness, see ante, Art. 293.

The good faith of title and possession of garnishee may be controverted. Farrar v. Bates, 55 T. 193.

When the plaintiff controverts the answer of a garnishee and specifies in what particular he regards it untrue, under oath, it is not necessary that the allegation on which the issue is made up should be sworn to. Insurance Co. v. Willis, 70 T. 12, 6 S. W. 825, 8 Am. St. Rep. 566.

Where there is no contest filed after the answer of the garnishee is made and the case is continued over one term, the garnishee is properly discharged. Dunham v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 132.

Even if plaintiff should have traversed garnishee's answer, held this did not affect the right of a third person, made a party at garnishee's request, to a hearing under garnishee's own allegations. City of San Antonio v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 666.

In garnishment proceedings, it may be shown that a sale is fraudulent as to a creditor. McIntosh & Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

Controversion by attorney.—An attorney can make the affidavit controverting the garnishee's answer. Ferguson-McKinney D. G. Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 34 C. A. 272, 78 S. W. 265.

Burden of proof.—See notes under Title 53, chapter 4.

Art. 300. [246] [212] Defendant may traverse the answer.—The defendant may also, in like manner, controvert the answer of the garnishee. [P. D. 160.]

Defendant not cited.—A defendant who has not been cited, or has not voluntarily appeared is not concluded by the answer of the garnishee who has failed to disclose the facts showing the exemption of the fund or property sought to be reached. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. v. Whipsker, 77 T. 14, 13 S. W. 639, 8 L. R. A. 321, 19 Am. St. Rep. 734.

Art. 301. [247] [213] Trial of issue on controverted answer.—If the garnishee whose answer is controverted, as provided in the two preceding articles, is a resident of the county in which the proceeding is pending, an issue shall be formed under the direction of the court and tried as other cases. [P. D. 161.]

In general.—Formal pleadings are not required; the answer and controversion sufficiently present the issues; if not sufficiently specific, the party complaining should request court to frame issues. Davis v. McCormack, 2 App. C. C. § 628.

It is not necessary that the allegations setting out the issue should be under oath. By consent the issue may be submitted orally. Kelly v. Gibbs, 84 T. 143, 19 S. W. 380, 563.

On trial of an issue between plaintiff and garnishee, production of the writ of garnishment is not essential to plaintiff's recovery, the garnishee having answered. Jones v. Cummins, 17 C. A. 661, 43 S. W. 854.

Submission to jury.—In garnishment proceedings, plaintiff, under the pleadings and admission of the garnishee, held entitled to a peremptory instruction for a verdict in his favor. Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 31 C. A. 238, 71 S. W. 604.

The submission of garnishment proceedings to a jury on special issues at garnishee's request lies within the trial court's sound discretion, which is revisable only for abuse. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Frosch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 600.

Art. 302. [248] [214] Trial of issue on controverted answer when garnishee resides in another county.—If the garnishee whose answer is so controverted be a resident of some county other than that in which the proceeding is pending, the plaintiff may file in any court of the county where the garnishee may reside, having jurisdiction of the amount of the judgment in the original suit, a duly certified copy of such original judgment and of the proceedings in garnishment, including the plaintiff's application for the writ and the answer of the garnishee and the affidavit controverting the same. [P. D. 161.]

Residence of corporation.—Where a private corporation is garnished the proceedings may be had in a county in which it has an agent for the transaction of business. Alamo Fire Ins. Co. v. Hetherington (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 958.

Waiver of right.—Where garnishee who resides in another county files an answer which entitles him to a discharge, he does not thereby waive his right to have the issue tried in the county of his residence if his answer is controverted. American Surety Co. v. Bernstein, 101 T. 189, 105 S. W. 991.

Art. 303. [249] [215] Case to be docketed and notice to issue.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of such court or the justice of the peace, as the case may be, on receiving such certified copies, to docket the case in the name of the plaintiff as plaintiff, and of the garnishee as defendant, and to issue a notice to the garnishee, stating that his answer has been so controverted, and that the issue between him and the plaintiff will stand for trial at the next term of court. [P. D. 164.]

Art. 304. [250] [216] Notice, to whom directed and how executed.—Such notice shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county, and shall be dated and tested as other process from such court, and shall be served by delivering a copy thereof to the defendant.

Art. 305. [251] [217] Issue tried as other cases.—Upon the return of such notice served, an issue shall be formed under the direction of the court and tried as other cases. [P. D. 161.]

Review of proceedings.—An objection that the trial was held in the wrong county must be made in the lower court. So where there is no written issue in the record, and the judgment recites that all matters of fact as well as of law were submitted to the court, the appellate court will presume that the provision of law requiring an issue to be joined was complied with. Swearingen v. Wilson, 2 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 75.

Art. 306. [252] [218] Current wages not subject to garnishment.—No current wages for personal service shall be subject to garnishment; and where it appears upon the trial that the garnishee is indebted to the defendant for such current wages, the garnishee shall nevertheless be discharged as to such indebtedness. [Const., art. 16, sec. 28.]

See Art. 3785.

What are wages.—Amounts due a physician for professional services for a specific sum per day are not subject to garnishment. Sydnor v. City of Galveston, 4 App. C. C. § 59, 15 S. W. 202.

Wages due in another state.—Where plaintiff and defendant are subject to the jurisdiction of the court, the plaintiff may, by injunction, restrain the defendant from prosecuting a garnishment suit in another state to subject to the payment of debt the plaintiff's wages, when no law exists in the state where the suit was begun which affords the protection given by the laws of Texas. Moton v. Hull, 77 T. 80, 13 S. W. 849, 8 L. R. A. 722.

Art. 307. [253] [219] Costs.—Where the garnishee is discharged upon his answer, the costs of the proceeding, including a reasonable compensation to the garnishee, shall be taxed against the plaintiff; where the answer of the garnishee has not been controverted and the garnishee is held thereon, such costs shall be taxed against the defendant and included in the execution provided for in this chapter; where the answer is contested, the costs shall abide the issue of such contest.

Allowance of costs.—Garnishee entitled to attorneys' fees for preparing answer. Jacobs v. Womack, citing Johnson v. Blanks, 68 T. 495, 4 S. W. 557; Willis v. Heath, 75 T. 125, 12 S. W. 971, 16 Am. St. Rep. 876.

Fee not allowed where indebtedness is not contested. Llano Imp. Co. v. Castanola (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 1016.

Where the garnishee litigates his liability, he is not entitled to an attorney's fee. Patterson v. Seeton, 19 C. A. 430, 47 S. W. 732.

Garnishee is entitled to attorney's fees, on his plea in abatement being sustained. Friedman v. Early Grocery Co., 22 C. A. 285, 54 S. W. 278.

A garnishee held entitled under the evidence to an allowance of attorney's fees on the rendition of judgment in his favor. Fife v. Netherlands Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 160.

When the garnishee makes defense on his own answer and responsibility, and does not ask to have defendant cited and defend, he is not entitled to have an attorney's fee charged as costs. Reid v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 940.

Garnishee held not guilty of inexcusable negligence in failing to file answer before dismissal of suit, and was entitled to attorney's fees for preparing its answer. Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co. v. Bailey, 33 C. A. 562, 77 S. W. 294.

The allowance to a garnishee of attorney's fees cannot exceed the amount prayed for in the garnishee's pleading. Fields v. Rust, 36 C. A. 350, 82 S. W. 331.

The garnishee, having denied indebtedness both as against the garnishor and the garnishee's alleged creditor, in consolidated actions by them, held liable for the costs of both suits. Kothman v. Faseler (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 390.

Where contention of garnishee is sustained and judgment rendered in his favor, he is entitled upon his discharge to reasonable attorney's fee. Eastham Bros. v. Blanchette, 42 C. A. 205, 94 S. W. 443.

Seven hundred fifty dollars held a reasonable fee to be awarded garnishees on the dismissal of a garnishment for the services of their attorney in filing and defending their answer. Maury v. McDonald, 55 C. A. 50, 118 S. W. 812.

Not only under this article should garnishee pay the costs, but it places itself outside the statute, and is responsible for the whole contest, and should pay the costs, where under the facts set up in the answer it draws the erroneous conclusion that it is entitled to the money, and contests the claim, under such facts, of the third person, who is given judgment. City of San Antonio v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 666.

Where defendants in garnishment are held not liable, they are entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee. McIntosh & Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

Where a garnishee answered claiming the property of the debtor and was unsuccessful, it became itself a litigant and could not recover attorney's fees or costs. Presnall v. Stockyards Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 873.

Reasonable compensation.—The provision for an allowance of "reasonable compensation" to the garnishee who is discharged entitles him to reimbursement for such sum of money as he was required to expend in protecting his interest in the garnishment proceedings; this must be held to include reasonable attorneys' fees. Johnson & Co. v. Blanks, 68 T. 495, 4 S. W. 557; Moody v. Carroll, 71 T. 148, 8 S. W. 510, 10 Am. St. Rep. 734; Willis v. Heath, 75 T. 124, 12 S. W. 971, 16 Am. St. Rep. 876; Berry v. Davis, 77 T. 191, 13 S. W. 978, 19 Am. St. Rep. 748; Curtis v. Ford, 78 T. 262, 14 S. W. 614, 10 L. R. A. 529; Carter v. Bush, 79 T. 29, 15 S. W. 167. See Heimsoth v. Le Suer (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 527.

It is within the discretion of the court to determine what is a reasonable fee to allow the garnishee for answering. Webb v. Texas Christian University, 48 C. A. 264, 107 S. W. 89.

"Reasonable compensation" to garnishee includes attorney's fees. See this case where the court allowed garnishees $750 as an attorney's fee, which is held to be reasonable for the services rendered. Maury v. McDonald, 55 C. A. 50, 118 S. W. 816, 817.

Art. 308. [254] [220] Garnishee discharged from liability to defendant.—It shall be a sufficient answer to any claim of the defendant against the garnishee founded on any indebtedness of such garnishee, or on the possession by him of any effects, or where the garnishee is an incorporated or joint stock company in which the defendant was the owner of shares of stock or other interest therein, for the garnishee to show that such indebtedness was paid, or such effects were delivered, or such shares of stock or other interest in such company were sold under the judgment of the court in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

DECISIONS RELATING TO GARNISHMENT IN GENERAL.

Judgment against garnishee.—A garnishee who pays a judgment against him as such, when his judgment creditor is insolvent, may bring suit to have his payment credited on the judgment against himself. Slaughter v. Buck, 1 App. C. C. § 105; Schmidt & Zeigler v. Stern, 2 App. C. C. § 93.

A garnishee who has not paid the judgment against himself may set it up for the purpose of obtaining protection in a suit against him by his creditors. Dobbin v. Wybrants, 3 T. 457; Farmer v. Simpson, 6 T. 303.

And in such suit he may make the plaintiff in garnishment a party. Westmoreland v. Miller, 8 T. 168; Arthur v. Batte, 42 T. 159.

Corporation successor of firm held entitled to plead a judgment in garnishment against the firm, in an action by a creditor of the firm. T. & H. Smith & Co. v. Taber, 16 C. A. 154, 40 S. W. 156.

Exemption of municipal corporation.—A municipal corporation is subject to garnishment. City of Austin v. Erwin, 2 App. C. C. § 290.

The provisions in the charter of a city that it and its officers, or agents, shall not be "required to answer any writ of garnishment against the city" exempts absolutely the city from garnishment. Morgan v. City of Beaumont (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 207.

Exemption of school district.—As school districts are not subject to a garnishment, the assignee of the contract with the school board given as security for a note cannot be deprived of such security, by subsequent garnishment by creditors of the assignor, whether the garnishee knew of such assignment when the writ of garnishment was served or not. Buchanan v. A. B. Spencer Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 292.

Exemption of county.—Garnishment of county is not inhibited by public policy or prohibition of execution against county. Herring-Hall-Marvin Co. v. Bexar County, 16 C. A. 673, 40 S. W. 145.

Waiver of proceedings.—A plaintiff in garnishment does not waive such proceeding by petitioning in the federal court that defendant be declared a bankrupt. Sullivan v. King, 31 C. A. 432, 72 S. W. 207.

Supplemental petition of petitioner in bankruptcy held not to have amounted to a waiver of garnishment proceedings previously instituted by him against the alleged bankrupt. Id.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of this title.]

Article 309. [256] [222] Boards of legal examiners; appointment; qualifications; oath, terms, etc.—Each of the courts of civil appeals shall, every two years, appoint a board of legal examiners for their respective districts, which said board shall consist of three members, possessing the same qualifications required for eligibility to the office of district judge, and who shall reside in the district for which they are appointed during their term of office. Said members shall each, before entering upon their duties, take and subscribe the following oath: "I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of legal examiner, as required by law and the rules and regulations of the supreme court of the state of Texas, to the best of my skill and ability. So help me God." And said legal examiners shall hold their office for the term of two years and until their successors are appointed and qualified, and the majority of said members shall constitute a quorum. [Acts 1897, p. 17. Acts 1846, p. 245. Acts 1903, p. 59.]

Admission to practice.—The appointment of the committee and the day appointed for examination must appear of record, as any other judicial order; until this has been done and the committee notified the court has no power to compel a member of the committee to act and can not fine for refusing to act. Ex parte Duncan, 42 Cr. R. 661, 62 S. W. 760.

An attorney, after being admitted to practice, becomes an officer of court, exercising a privilege or franchise. Harkins v. Murphy & Bolanz, 51 C. A. 568, 112 S. W. 136.

Art. 310. [256] [222] Duties of boards; sessions.—It shall be the duty of said board of legal examiners to examine, in writing, applicants for license in practice of law in the manner hereinafter required. They shall hold not less than four sessions in each year, which sessions shall be held at the place where their respective courts are located, and may hold other sessions in other parts of their respective districts, if they should see proper to do so. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 311. Course of study prescribed by supreme court for examination.—It shall be the duty of the supreme court to prescribe a course of study to be pursued and the subjects in which applicants shall be examined and such general rules governing such examinations as said court may find necessary, and the same shall be uniform throughout the state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 312. [256] [222] Application for license; certificate of residence, character, etc.—Any person desiring to obtain any license to practice as attorney and counsellor at law, in the courts of this state, shall make application to one of the boards of legal examiners, accompanied with a certificate from the county commissioners' court of the county of his residence, that he has been a resident of the state at least six months, that he is twenty-one years of age, and that he has a good reputation for moral character and honorable deportment. Such applicant shall also furnish such other evidence of moral character and honorable deportment as may be required by the rules of the supreme court. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 313. [256] [222] Examination.—The applicant shall appear at some meeting of said board within six months next thereafter, and be examined as prescribed by the rules of the supreme court and this article. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 314. [256] [222] Applicant refused must apply again to same board.—When any applicant, upon examination, is refused license, all subsequent applications by such applicant must be made to the same board of legal examiners that refused the license. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 315. [256] [222] Examinations, how conducted.—All applicants shall be examined in writing on all of the subjects prescribed by the supreme court, and their answers shall be graded; and no applicant shall be granted a license, unless he makes a grade of not less than fifty in all branches and a general average of not less than seventy-five. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 316. [256] [222] License granted to whom.—All applicants who make the required grade shall be granted by said board a permanent license to practice as attorney and counselor at law in all courts of this state, the same to be signed by all or a majority of said board, and sealed with the seal of their respective courts. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 317. [257] [222a] License to holder of diploma from university of Texas; conditions; clerk to issue; oath.—Any person holding a diploma from the law department of the university of Texas shall be entitled to a license to practice as an attorney and counselor at law in all the courts of this state, without any further examination, upon presentation to the clerk of the supreme court of the state such diploma within twelve months from the issuance of the same together with a certificate from the commissioners' court of the county in which such person resides, showing that such person bears a good reputation for moral character and honorable deportment, that he has resided in such county for at least six months, is at least twenty-one years of age, and such other and further facts as may be required by the supreme court of this state; and the clerk of the supreme court of Texas is hereby authorized and empowered to issue said license upon payment of the fee of ten dollars, as required by law; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to exempt the applicant for license from taking the oath required by law; and provided, further, that any diploma issued by said university on a grade less than that prescribed by the supreme court for examinations of applicants shall not entitle the holder thereof to such license. [Acts 1903, p. 60. Acts 1897, p. 17. Acts 1846, p. 245. Acts 1905, p. 150.]

License to issue on university diploma.—See Art. 2648.

Art. 318. [258] [223] Immigrant attorney granted license, how.—Any person who immigrates to this state from any other state of the United States, with a view of permanently residing herein, and who has been granted a license to practice in the courts of record in said state, may file his said license, together with a certificate of a good reputation for moral character and honorable deportment given under the hand and seal of a judge of a court of record of the county or district of his residence in the state from which he removes, said certificate to be of date not exceeding three months prior to his removal to this state, with the board of legal examiners, in lieu of his certificate from the commissioners' court, and be examined in the same manner as resident applicants. [Acts 1897, p. 17. Acts 1846, p. 245. Acts 1903, p. 60.]

Art. 319. Board to keep records.—Said board of legal examiners shall keep a record of all applicants and the grades made by them, and abstract of all licenses issued, which said records shall be kept in the office of the clerk of their respective courts of civil appeals, and shall be a part of the record of said court. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 320. Fees of examiners.—The board of legal examiners shall be entitled to a fee of ten dollars for each applicant examined by them, or to whom a license is granted, said fee to be paid in advance by the applicant. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 321. Supreme court, entry of attorney's name on rolls of, how effected.—All attorneys desiring their names entered on the rolls of the supreme court shall forward their license or diploma to the clerk of the supreme court who shall enter the name of said attorney on the roll of said court, and return said license and diploma without charge. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 322. [260] [225] Oath of attorney.—Every person admitted to practice law shall, before receiving license, take an oath that he will support the constitution of the United States and of this state; that he will honestly demean himself in the practice of the law, and will discharge his duty to his client to the best of his ability; which oath shall be indorsed upon his license, subscribed by him and attested by the officer administering the same. [Act Jan. 18, 1860, p. 25. P. D. 172.]

Art. 323. [261] [226] Persons convicted of felony shall not be licensed.—No person convicted of a felony shall receive license as an attorney at law; or, if licensed, any court of record in which such person may practice shall, on proof of a conviction of any felony, supersede his license and strike his name from the roll of attorneys. [Act May 12, 1846, p. 245. P. D. 173.]

Jurisdiction.—An attorney cannot be stricken from the roll under this article except upon proof of conviction by a court of competent jurisdiction. State v. Robinson, 26 T. 367.

Effect of pardon.—After an unconditional pardon the record of the felony conviction cannot be used as a basis for the proceeding. Scott v. State, 6 C. A. 343, 25 S. W. 337.

Art. 324. [262] [227] Misbehavior or contempt, how punished.—Each attorney at law shall be subject to fine or imprisonment by any court in which he may practice for misbehavior or for contempt offered to such court; but no attorney shall be suspended or stricken from the rolls for contempt, unless it involve fraudulent or dishonorable conduct or malpractice. [Act Jan. 18, 1860, p. 25. P. D. 177.]

Contempt.—The bringing of a fictitious suit for the purpose of obtaining the opinion of the court on the matters presented by it is a contempt on the part of the parties and attorneys. Smith v. Brown, 3 T. 360, 49 Am. Dec. 748.

Statements made by an attorney under arrest for a contempt in violating an invalid order held not to constitute a contempt. Ex parte Duncan, 42 Cr. R. 661, 62 S. W. 758.

An order of court appointing a bar examination committee held invalid, and hence a member thereof was not guilty of contempt in failing to appear at the examination. Id.

Argument of an attorney in commenting on evidence held proper, and that the court was without jurisdiction to confine him for contempt. Ex parte Snodgrass, 43 Cr. R. 359, 65 S. W. 1061.

Conduct of an attorney, insisting on arguing the law as applicable to the facts of the case after being told not to argue the law, does not constitute contempt of court. Ex parte Bullington (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 1190.

—— Order fining and committing attorney.—An order fining and committing an attorney for contempt "for refusing to obey orders of the court in open court" held insufficient. Ex parte Bullington (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 1190.

—— Appeal.—No appeal lies from a judgment of the court under this article. Casey v. State, 25 T. 380.

Art. 325. [263] [228] May be suspended or license revoked, when.—Any attorney at law who shall be guilty of any fraudulent or dishonorable conduct, or of any malpractice, or of contempt, involving fraudulent or dishonorable conduct or malpractice, may be suspended, or his license may be revoked by the district court of the county in which such attorney resides, or of the county where such conduct or malpractice occurred in manner and form as hereinafter provided. [Id. P. D. 177.]

Malpractice or misconduct.—The bringing of a suit in behalf of a married woman for a divorce without her authority is malpractice. Dillon v. State, 6 T. 55.

The term "malpractice" in this article relates to such fraudulent or dishonorable conduct as does not constitute any of the offenses named in article 323. State v. Robinson, 26 T. 367.

The proceeding under this article is not a criminal action. The power to disbar attorneys is inherent in all courts possessing the general jurisdiction of the district court. Scott v. State, 86 T. 321, 24 S. W. 788.

Inducing a clerk of a court to antedate filing on a paper to secure a lost right held to warrant disbarment. Howard v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 707.

—— Appeal.—The eighth section of the act of May 12, 1846, provided that an attorney stricken from the roll shall not afterwards be allowed to practice in any court of the state, unless reinstated on appeal to the supreme court. P. D. 175. In a conviction under this statute of 1846 the judgment of the district court was reversed on appeal. Dillon v. State, 6 T. 55; Jackson v. State, 21 T. 668. And see Casey v. State, 25 T. 380.

No appeal lies from a judgment in the district court for the defendant in a proceeding charging an attorney with fraudulent or dishonorable conduct. State v. Tunstall, 51 T. 81.

Art. 326. [264] [229] Shall be cited to show cause, etc., when.—If any district court observes any fraudulent or dishonorable conduct or malpractice by any attorney at law, or if complaint be made to the district court of such conduct or malpractice by a judge of any court, a practicing attorney, a county commissioner or justice of the peace, such court shall order the attorney to be cited to show cause why his license shall not be suspended or revoked.

Art. 327. [265] [230] Complaint, how made, etc.—Such complaint shall be made in writing, shall be subscribed and sworn to by the prosecutor and filed with the clerk of the court. If the citation be ordered upon the observation of the court, the charge and the grounds thereof shall be set out distinctly in the order of the court.

Art. 328. [266] [231] Citation, how issued and when served.—The citation shall be issued in the name of the state of Texas and in manner and form as in other cases; and the same shall be served upon the defendant at least five days before the trial day.

Art. 329. [267] [232] Trial, how conducted.—Upon the return of said citation executed, if the defendant appear and deny the charge, the cause shall be docketed for trial and conducted in the name of the state of Texas against the defendant, and the state shall be represented by the county or district attorney. A jury of twelve men shall be impaneled unless waived by the defendant, and the cause shall be tried in like manner as other cases.

Art. 330. [268] [233] Judgment of the court.—If the attorney be found guilty, or if he fail to appear and deny the charge after being cited as aforesaid, the said court, by proper order entered on the minutes, may suspend his license for a time, or revoke it entirely, and may also give proper judgment for costs.

Art. 331. Barratry, forfeiture of license by, etc.—Any attorney or counselor at law who shall violate any of the provisions of the Penal Code, relating to barratry, shall, in addition to the penalty therein provided, forfeit his right to practice law in this state, and shall be subject to have his license revoked, and be disbarred in the manner provided by law for dishonorable conduct or malpractice, whether he has been convicted for violating said penal provision or not. [Acts 1901, p. 126.]

Barratry.—A contract with an attorney of one not an attorney to procure, in consideration of part of the fees to be collected, employment of the former by a relative of the latter to bring a suit, held void as against public policy. Ford v. Munroe (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 349.

A power of attorney, authorizing an attorney to sue for and recover land at his own expense, receiving for his services an undivided one-half of the land, was not a violation of this article. Thompson & Tucker Lumber Co. v. Platt (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 268.

A contract by certain attorneys, on surrendering notes in their hands to their client for collection, that, in case the notes should be collected, they could receive certain additional fees, and, if not collected within 90 days, the notes should be returned to them for collection, held not invalid as a purchase of a lawsuit, nor against public policy or professional ethics. Fish v. Sadler (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1185.

Art. 332. [269] [234] Penalty for refusing to pay over money.—Each attorney who receives or collects money for his client, and refuses to pay over the same when demanded, may be proceeded against by motion of the party injured or his attorney before the district court of the county in which such attorney usually resides, or in which he resided when he collected or received the money; notice of which motion with a copy thereof shall be served on such party at least five days before the trial thereof; and, in case the motion be sustained, judgment shall be rendered against the defendant for the amount by him collected or received, with legal interest, and also not less than ten nor more than twenty per cent damages on the principal sum. [Act May 12, 1846, p. 245, sec. 11. P. D. 178.]

Jurisdiction of district court.—Under section 22, art. 5, of the constitution, the legislature can confer upon the district court jurisdiction of all cases such as those contemplated by the provisions of this article irrespective of the amount involved. Blair v. Blanton (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 321.

Parties who may proceed by motion.—An administrator for whom or for whose intestate an attorney has collected money may proceed by motion under this article. Trammell v. Shropshire, 22 T. 327.

One of several co-plaintiffs cannot litigate his rights as against the other plaintiffs to money recovered in a suit, by motion, against their attorney for not paying over the same. Id.

Person entitled to money collected.—On July 21, 1847, Y. receipted to S., a resident of Louisiana, for certain claims placed in his hands for collection. January 17, 1849, S., by written order, directed Y. to hold the claims subject to the control of M., which order was accepted by Y. On the 3d of April, 1849, the attorney's receipt was seized and sold to B. under attachment proceedings in Louisiana. Held, that the subsequent sale of the receipt, if effectual to vest in the assignee the right to recover the money collected, would not give a right superior to that acquired under the previous assignment. Brander v. Young, 12 T. 332.

Effect of attorney's bankruptcy.—The relation of attorney and client is of a fiduciary character, and a debt growing out of the conversion by an attorney of his client's money or property, in his hands as such, is not discharged by a discharge in bankruptcy. Flanagan v. Pearson, 42 T. 1, 19 Am. Rep. 40; Id., 50 T. 383.

Amount of liability.—On a motion under this article the attorney can be charged only with amounts actually collected; he cannot, in this proceeding, be made liable for failing, through negligence or other cause, to recover judgment for the full amount due his client. Croft v. Hicks, 26 T. 383.

Application of money to claim against client.—Without an agreement that he may do so, an attorney has not the right to apply a collection to a claim which he holds against his client that is barred by the statute of limitations. Blair v. Blanton (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 321.

An attorney having a claim against a client on notes may apply money received by him on the client's account to the payment of such notes. Henry v. Boedker (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 811.

Art. 333. [270] [235] Allowed to inspect papers.—Each attorney at law, practicing in any court, shall be allowed at all reasonable times to inspect the papers and records relating to any suit or other matter in which he may be interested without being required to take copies thereof; but no person whatever shall be allowed to take any papers out of the office to which they belong without the permission of the clerk or keeper of the records; and the party withdrawing said papers shall leave a descriptive receipt for the same. [Id. sec. 12.]

Taking papers from courthouse.—When an attorney has been offered an opportunity to inspect papers, refusal to allow him to take such papers from the courthouse is not error. Swann v. State, 39 Cr. R. 310, 46 S. W. 36.

Art. 334. [271] [236] Officers not allowed to appear as attorney.—No judge of the supreme court, or court of criminal or civil appeals, or district court, sheriff, or deputy sheriff, clerk, or deputy clerk of any court, or constable, shall be allowed to appear and plead as an attorney in any court of record in this state; nor shall any county judge be allowed to appear and practice as an attorney at law in any of the county courts or courts of the justices of the peace in this state. [Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 216. Id. sec. 8. P. D. 174.]

County judge may practice law.—See Art. 1734.

Pleading signed by judge as one of two attorneys.—Pleadings were signed by two attorneys, one of whom was the regular district judge. If they had been signed by the latter alone they should have been treated by the trial judge as a nullity, but as they were also signed by one who was allowed to sign them, they were properly allowed to stand. McAllen v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 766.

Art. 335. [272] [237] Attorney for plaintiff may be required to show his authority as such.—Any defendant in any suit or proceeding pending in any court of this state may, by motion in writing under oath, stating that such defendant believes that such suit or proceeding was instituted against him or is being prosecuted against him without authority on the part of the plaintiff's attorney, cause such attorney to be cited to appear before such court and show by what authority he instituted, or by what authority he prosecutes, such suit or proceeding, notice of which motion shall be served upon such attorney at least five days before the trial of such motion.

Mode of objection and of proof.—Quære as to the mode of proceeding in the supreme court when it is alleged that a writ of error has been sued out without authority. Thompson v. House, 23 T. 178.

No written answer is necessary to a motion that an attorney be required to show his authority. He may in answer to the motion exhibit to the court the evidence of his authority. Bridges v. Samuelson, 73 T. 522, 11 S. W. 539.

The authority of an attorney to bring a suit cannot be attacked except in the manner prescribed by this and article 336. It cannot be shown on the trial that he had not authority. Hess v. Webb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 623.

Unless properly contested, an attorney need not show his authority, and this article and Arts. 336 and 337, which authorize a defendant by motion to require a plaintiff's attorney to show his authority, prescribe the only way in which this authority may be attacked, and hence a defendant in an action brought by the state cannot, in a motion for a change of venue, raise the question that certain attorneys other than the Attorney General have no authority to represent the state. State v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 708.

Presumption of authority.—An attorney is presumed to have authority to represent any client for whom he professes to act, and, unless properly contested, he need not show his authority. State v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 708.

In the absence of motion, an attorney who has possession of a note and files a suit thereon in the name of the holder, and prosecutes the same in a regular and lawful manner, will be presumed to have authority to do so. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180.

Recitals as to appearance.—As to effect on appeal of recitals in judgments of appearance of parties, see Miller v. Alexander, 8 T. 36; Fowler v. Morrill, 8 T. 153; Dunman v. Hartwell, 9 T. 495, 60 Am. Dec. 176; Bright v. Sampson, 20 T. 21; Thompson v. Griffes, 19 T. 115; Chester v. Walters, 30 T. 53.

A recital that a party appeared by attorney in a decree which the party affected is seeking to revise on a bill of review, on the ground that he had no notice of the original proceeding, does not preclude such party from showing the want of authority of the attorney. Chapman v. Austin, 44 T. 133.

Amicus curiæ.—An attorney of a court may be heard, or not, as amicus curiæ, in the discretion of the court, concerning a proceeding in which he is not counsel; but the court can take only such action as it could have done in the absence of advice from such attorney. State v. Jefferson Iron Co., 60 T. 312.

Setting aside or enjoining unauthorized judgment.—A judgment obtained by collusion between the plaintiff and the attorney of the defendant will be enjoined on the petition of the defendant. Heilbroner v. Douglass, 32 T. 215.

When an attorney without authority represents a defendant in a suit who has not been made a party to the suit by any of the modes known to the law, such defendant is not bound by the judgment. He may have it vacated by direct proceeding, or else treat it as void in any collateral proceeding when rights might be asserted against him by reason of the same. Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155, 161. See Merritt v. Clow, 2 T. 582; Fowler v. Morrill, 8 T. 153.

Art. 336. [273] [238] Proceeding upon his failure to show authority.—Upon the hearing of the motion provided for in the preceding article, the burden of proof shall devolve upon the defendant therein to show sufficient authority from the plaintiff in such suit or proceeding to institute or prosecute the same; and, upon his failure to show such authority, the court shall refuse to permit such attorney to appear in said cause, and, if no person who is authorized to prosecute said cause shall appear, the same shall be dismissed.

See notes under Art. 335.

Art. 337. [274] [239] Cause shall not be continued or delayed by motion.—The trial of the cause in which the motion provided for in the two preceding articles has been filed shall not be continued or delayed for the hearing of such motion; but such motion may be heard and determined at any time before the parties to the cause have announced ready for trial.

See notes under Art. 335.

1. Privileged communications.—A communication to an attorney to be privileged, so that it cannot be used in evidence, must be made for the purpose of obtaining professional advice or aid in respect to the particular matter to which it refers. Hence, a communication made to an attorney by one party for the purpose of having it made known to the adverse party is not a privileged communication. Henderson v. Terry, 62 T. 281.

A statement of a fact by a client to his attorney, to be incorporated in a pleading to be filed in court, is not a privileged communication. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Brooking (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 537.

2. Parties may appear by attorney.—See Art. 1849.

3. Retainer and authority.—As to apportionment of contracts, see Meade v. Rutledge, 11 T. 44; Hassell v. Nutt, 14 T. 260; Robinson v. Varnell, 16 T. 382; Townsend v. Hill, 18 T. 422; Gonzales College v. McHugh, 21 T. 256; Nations v. Cudd, 22 T. 550; Diamond v. Harris, 33 T. 634; Hollis v. Chapman, 36 T. 1; Waco Tap R. R. Co. v. Shirley, 45 T. 355; Hearn v. Garrett, 49 T. 619; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Eustis, 8 C. A. 350, 28 S. W. 227.

An attorney having control of several executions in favor of different plaintiffs against the same defendant, three of which were levied on personal property, received the property as a payment at a stipulated price. Held, that he was justified in applying the amount for which the property was sold, pro rata, on all of the executions. Webb v. White, 18 T. 572.

A contract to defend a party against a criminal prosecution for which he is indicted does not require the attorney to defend a suit upon a scire facias on the forfeiture of a bond for his appearance to answer to the indictment. Headley v. Good, 24 T. 232.

An attorney has no right, without express authority from his client, to receive anything but money in payment of a debt intrusted to him for collection. Wright v. Daily, 26 T. 730; Portis v. Ennis, 27 T. 574.

Where judgment is entered in a case by agreement of the attorney, but without the express authority of the parties, it will not be set aside by a subsequent suit, unless a substantial injury is shown by the party complaining. Roller v. Wooldridge, 46 T. 485; Williams v. Nolan, 58 T. 708. See Underwood v. Coolgrove, 59 T. 164.

When an attorney accepted claims upon others in discharge of a debt, and informed his client that they were taken as collaterals, the only obligation in behalf of his debtor imposed on the client was to use due diligence in their collection and application to the discharge of the judgment. Anderson v. Boyd, 64 T. 108.

An attorney having a contract with his client as to one matter may make a valid contract regarding another subject-matter and provide for additional compensation. Waterbury v. City of Laredo, 68 T. 565, 5 S. W. 81.

An attorney is not authorized to receive a less sum than was due in satisfaction of a judgment. Peters v. Lawson, 66 T. 336, 17 S. W. 734.

An attorney by virtue of his relationship to his client has no authority to apply the property of his client to the payment of his client's debt. Gordon v. Sanborn (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 290.

For facts upon which the court holds that an attorney can bind his client to pay a vendor's lien note for lands sold to the defendant by plaintiff's grantees, see Ward v. Wilson, 17 C. A. 28, 43 S. W. 833.

Evidence held not to show a contract of employment of an attorney, as a matter of law. Swayne v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 92 T. 575, 50 S. W. 566.

A party to an action in a court of record held not entitled to prosecute or defend a suit or a writ of error in the court of civil appeals, by an agent or attorney in fact who is not an attorney at law. Harkins v. Murphy & Bolanz, 51 C. A. 568, 112 S. W. 136.

A defendant in partition, relying on title by adverse possession, cannot defeat a recovery by plaintiffs by showing that the suit was brought by an attorney without authority. Hess v. Webb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 618.

Attorneys may interpose any defense or supposed defense for their clients, and for doing so cannot be held liable in damages. Kruegel v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 343.

Evidence held to require that an attorney in procuring B.'s indorsement of certain notes did not act for B. so as to preclude B. from relying on a representation that the indorsement would not bind him as indorser.—Beisert v. Wisig, 103 T. 591, 131 S. W. 810.

It cannot be presumed that the attorney general has no authority to employ counsel to assist in the trial of cases, or that such counsel did not appear for the state. State v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 708.

In trespass to try title against an attorney, evidence held to justify submission of a question as to whether he was employed as an attorney. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510.

An attorney has no authority to abandon and release the right and interest which he has secured by judgment by agreeing that his client will indemnify the judgment debtor on condition that he satisfy the judgment. Youngberg v. El Paso Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 715.

4. —— Employment of attorneys for improvement districts.—See Art. 5579.

5. —— Change and substitution.—An attorney who is elected judge cannot complete the performance of his subsisting professional contracts by means of another attorney, although his client assents to the substitution. But if, with the assent of the client, another attorney is employed by him for a certain fee, the difference between the fees is the proper measure of the value of his services. Ratcliff v. Baird, 14 T. 43.

An attorney held to have no power to delegate authority to receive payment of the judgment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wright, 47 C. A. 458, 107 S. W. 77.

A judgment plaintiff held not to ratify an unauthorized payment of the judgment to a third person. Id.

6. —— Termination of employment.—The relation of attorney and client is confidential, and implies trust, confidence and good will; and when these are destroyed by the act of the attorney the client may, by notice to the attorney, terminate his employment. Arrington v. Sneed, 18 T. 135.

The employment of a law firm is terminated by the death of a member of the firm. Wright v. McCampbell, 75 T. 644, 13 S. W. 293.

An attorney, after discovering collusion on the part of his client to defraud him of his fees, held justified in severing connections. Thomas v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 46.

Service on attorneys who had ceased to represent their clients, in a suit which had been off the docket and laid dormant for several years, held insufficient. Beck v. Avondino, 20 C. A. 330, 50 S. W. 207.

In an action involving attorney's fees, evidence considered and held sufficient to show a wrongful discharge of the attorney by the client, and that a finding for certain fees was justified. Crye v. O'Neal & Allday (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 253.

7. —— Attorney appointed by court.—An attorney appointed by the court to represent unknown heirs has authority to prosecute a writ of error. Russell v. Randolph, 11 T. 460.

8. —— Appointment of attorney for paupers.—See Arts. 1716, 1773.

9. —— Notice to attorney.—The knowledge of a fact acquired by an attorney in the course of his employment as such is notice to his client. Givens v. Taylor, 6 T. 315; Kauffman v. Robey, 60 T. 308, 48 Am. Rep. 264; Rippetoe v. Dwyer, 65 T. 702.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, and notice to the opposite party, an attorney of record is authorized to receive payment in money of a judgment which he obtained for his client. Cartwright v. Jones, 13 T. 1.

When the relation of attorney and client does not exist under the rule that notice to the former is notice to the latter. Evidence of such relation; confidential communications. Smith v. Wilson, 20 S. W. 1119, 1 C. A. 115.

Notice to either member of a firm of attorneys is binding on their client where it relates to a matter contemplated in the scope of their employment, and knowledge of the attorney as to such matter is imputed to the client. Id.

A principal is chargeable with notice of all facts which come to his agent's knowledge while acting within the scope of his agency. Rand v. Davis (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 939; Kauffman v. Robey, 60 T. 310, 48 Am. Rep. 264.

He is not chargeable with notice of facts if they come to the knowledge of the agent in a transaction with which the principal has no concern. Rand v. Davis (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 939; Smith v. Sublett, 28 T. 163; Harrington v. McFarland, 1 C. A. 289, 21 S. W. 116; Irvine v. Grady, 85 T. 120, 19 S. W. 1028.

Knowledge or notice on part of an attorney, acquired before his employment, held not chargeable to his client. Taylor v. Evans, 16 C. A. 409, 41 S. W. 877.

Notice to attorneys for defendant of the assignment of an interest in the cause of action is notice to defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bacon (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 572.

That a grantee of land from a fraudulent grantor directed the grantor's attorney to examine the title and execute the required conveyances did not charge him with the attorney's knowledge of the grantor's fraudulent intent. Rogers v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 599.

Notice to an attorney is imputed to his client. Bradford v. Malone, 49 C. A. 440, 130 S. W. 1013.

Notice of a lien to an attorney examining an abstract of title for the purchaser held notice to the purchaser. Fordtran v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 562.

The knowledge of defendant's attorney as to an assignment by plaintiff to his attorneys of an interest in the cause of action and judgment was the knowledge of the defendant. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 487.

Knowledge of an attorney will be imputed to his client, if it was acquired in a transaction in which the former was acting as the latter's attorney at the time. Newton v. Easterwood (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 646.

10. —— Compromise and settlement.—An attorney has no authority to compromise the demand of his client without his knowledge or consent. Cook v. Greenberg (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 687; Adams v. Roller, 35 T. 711. As to ratification of his act, see Carter v. Roland, 53 T. 545; Peters v. Lawson, 66 T. 337, 17 S. W. 734; Anderson v. Boyd, 64 T. 109; Portis v. Ennis, 27 T. 578; Wright v. Dailey, 26 T. 730; Roller v. Wooldridge, 46 T. 495.

On trial of right to property, after adverse judgment, judgment creditor's attorney can, without express authority, release claimant from payment of damages in consideration of return of property. Willis v. Chowning, 90 T. 617, 40 S. W. 395, 59 Am. St. Rep. 842.

Agreement of attorneys as to terms of settlement held binding on the parties. Ward v. Wilson, 17 C. A. 28, 43 S. W. 833.

Fraudulent settlement by an attorney held void as to his client. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Miller, 24 C. A. 395, 60 S. W. 259.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that an attorney's compromise of a pending suit was with intent to defraud his client. Id.

A release of a claim for personal injuries executed by plaintiff's attorneys held binding, though executed by the attorneys with the intent to defraud plaintiff. Miller v. Dallas Consol. Electric St. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 453.

Attorneys, though having a power to settle an action for injuries, coupled with an interest therein, held not authorized as a matter of law to bind their client by a settlement after notice of his repudiation thereof. Miller v. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co., 104 T. 57, 133 S. W. 866.

An attorney has no authority to abandon and release the very right and interest which he has secured to his client by judgment by agreeing that his client will indemnify the judgment debtor on conditions that he satisfy the judgment. Youngberg v. El Paso Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 715.

11. —— Fraudulent representations.—A client held not bound by fraudulent representations of his attorney, where he had no knowledge thereof. Atkinson v. Reed (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 260.

12. —— Injunction as restraining acts of attorneys.—See Art. 4661.

13. —— Agreements of counsel.—An agreement of counsel, made without the knowledge of and to the detriment of his client, may be disregarded by the court. McClure v. Sheek's Heirs, 68 T. 426, 4 S. W. 552.

Agreements of counsel in the conduct of a suit are favored by the court. An agreement will not be set aside at the instance of either party, when the one invoking action has obtained an advantage under it, or when its withdrawal would place the opposite party in a worse position. Porter v. Holt, 73 T. 447, 11 S. W. 494.

A general attorney of a carrier held authorized to agree that hearsay testimony might be introduced in consideration of the abandonment of an attempt to take an injured person's deposition in a proceeding to perpetuate testimony. Thompson v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 583, 73 S. W. 29.

Rescission in equity of lease for purpose which was prohibited by a city ordinance held not to be denied on the ground that relief would not be given against an illegal contract, where lessee relied on lessor's superior knowledge of the law, the lessor being attorney for the lessee. Altgelt v. Gerbic (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 233.

Where one of the parties to a contract was an attorney on whose legal knowledge the other party relied, a relation of trust and confidence was shown justifying relief against a mistake of law, although no close relation between the parties, matured by many transactions, was shown. Id.

14. —— Confession of judgment.—See Art. 2007.

An attorney who appeared for a party defendant who had not been served with process to force a nonsuit has no authority to consent to set aside the nonsuit and confess judgment, and such a judgment was reversed on appeal. Hoffman v. Cage, 31 T. 595.

15. Liability to client.—Where an attorney of the plaintiff in an execution, without the consent of the parties, purchased property at the sheriff's sale under the execution, and the circumstances warranted an inference of unfairness in the sale, he was held as a trustee for the party whose interest was prejudiced by his action. Jones v. Martin, 26 T. 57, 80 Am. Dec. 641; McLaura v. Miller, 64 T. 381.

An attorney is liable to his client for all damages to him resulting from gross neglect or from the want of proper knowledge of matters of law in common use, or of such plain and obvious principles as every lawyer is presumed to understand, but not for an error in judgment upon a controverted question of law. Morrill v. Graham, 27 T. 646; Oldham v. Sparks, 28 T. 425. See Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Eustis, 8 C. A. 350, 28 S. W. 227.

An attorney is responsible to his client only for want of ordinary skill, ordinary care and reasonable diligence, and the skill required has reference to the character of the business he has undertaken to do. If an attorney disobeys express lawful instructions of his client, if he negligently fails to bring suit, he will be responsible for any loss resulting therefrom. Fox v. Jones, 4 App. C. C. § 29.

Lawyer employed to examine title, as shown by an abstract, would not be liable for slander if he declared it bad, though the records might show a perfect title. Hines v. Lumpkin, 19 C. A. 556, 47 S. W. 818.

Lawyer employed to examine title to realty held guilty of slandering title if he falsely and maliciously declares it bad, when he knows it good, or could have known the fact by ordinary prudence. Id.

Where a judgment debtor executed a draft to the clerk of the court, and delivered it to one of the attorneys for plaintiff, who delivered the draft to the clerk, such attorney was not responsible for the clerk's misappropriation of a portion thereof. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ferris (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 896.

To sustain a transaction resulting advantageously to himself, an attorney has the burden of showing that he fully advised his client and that the transaction was as beneficial to the client as if the client had dealt with a stranger. Barnes v. McCarthy (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 85.

An attorney cannot divest himself of a trust for his client's benefit in land acquired as attorney, by purchasing the land at a tax sale. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

Attorneys who represented their client's wife in a divorce proceeding held not to be acting for one adversely interested to the client in a suit to recover community property. Ellerd v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1171.

The law will strictly enforce an attorney's duties to his client, and not permit him to obtain personal advantages antagonistic to the client's interest. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510.

An attorney who, in violation of his duty to his client, acquired title to real estate, and subsequently sold it, was liable to the client for its value. Id.

16. —— Fraud, negligence, and breach of contract.—An attorney's liability to client for negligence stated. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1077.

An attorney held liable for loss through his negligence to exemplary damages to his client. Id.

In an action against an attorney for negligence whereby plaintiff lost her right of action, an instruction on contributory negligence held not erroneous. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 146.

In an action against an attorney for negligence whereby plaintiff lost a right of action for slander, the damages were not too remote to support the action, even though a part of the judgment which might reasonably have been expected to be recovered might have been for exemplary damages. Id.

An attorney in dealing with his clients must act with the utmost fairness, and in perfect good faith. Hames v. Stroud, 51 C. A. 562, 112 S. W. 775.

Evidence held to show that an attorney dealt fairly with his clients. Id.

Facts held not to show fraud of attorney against client in the matter of a judgment. Hart v. Hunter, 52 C. A. 75, 114 S. W. 882.

An attorney who has fraudulently attempted to overreach his clients is not entitled to reimbursement for taxes paid under the scheme to defraud. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

Petition, in client's action against attorney for breach of agreement to prosecute certain suits, held to state a cause of action. Porter v. Kruegel (Sup.) 155 S. W. 174.

17. —— Liability for costs.—Contract with attorney construed, and held, that he was not chargeable with any part of the costs of the litigation. Thomas v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 46.

Defendants held absolved by plaintiff's conduct from further obligation to pay certain costs of a suit brought by them as plaintiff's attorneys to clear title to the latter's land. Cahill v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 281.

An attorney for appellant who was the cause of an incorrect transcript being certified to the court of civil appeals, and negligently permitted the papers in the case to be lost, will be taxed with all the costs of the proceeding in an attempt to procure the correct transcript except that part taxed against a clerk of the trial court. Parrish v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 453.

18. Liability for aiding client to commit a fraud.—An attorney who assumes the apparent ownership of goods, for the purpose and with the intention of aiding his client to commit a fraud upon his creditor, cannot deny his personal liability for any damages caused by his act. Poole v. H. & T. C. Ry. Co., 58 T. 134; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Poole, 63 T. 246.

19. Compensation.—Attorney recovering land for a client on agreement to convey a certain portion thereof for services held a tenant in common, and entitled to be reimbursed when compelled to purchase outstanding claim. Thomas v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 46.

Where an attorney recovers judgment, the damages allowed on appeal for delay become part of the claim which the attorney is not entitled to retain. Sanborn v. Plowman, 20 C. A. 484, 49 S. W. 639.

An attorney is not bound to defend persons charged with a crime, and may fix the terms on which he will serve. Hames v. Stroud, 51 C. A. 562, 112 S. W. 775.

An attorney who, without just cause, abandons his client during the proceeding he was employed to conduct, forfeits his right to any part of the agreed compensation. Crye v. O'Neal & Allday (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 253.

In an action involving attorney's fees, evidence held sufficient to show a wrongful discharge by the client justifying a finding for the agreed fees. Id.

A client's discharge of his attorney relieves the latter of the duty of further performance, and he may recover the amount agreed upon for his services. Id.

An attorney who has fraudulently attempted to overreach his client is not entitled to reimbursement for taxes paid under the fraudulent scheme. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

Where an attorney, retained to recover land at an agreed compensation, brought the action to a successful termination, the fact that pending the appeal therein he circulated scandalous stories about his client in connection with another case did not justify refusal to pay the agreed compensation. Ellerd v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1171.

An attorney, having a claim against a client on notes, may apply moneys received by him on the client's account to the payment of the notes. Henry v. Boedker (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 811.

Under an attorney's contract for the collection of notes, held, that he was entitled to compensation if at the end of 90 days the notes were not returned, whether they had been paid or transferred or payment extended. Fish v. Sadler (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1185.

20. —— Fees in certain causes.—See Art. 3926.

21. —— Services contrary to public policy.—See notes under Art. 331.

An attorney cannot recover for legal services or advice contrary to public policy. Arrington v. Sneed, 18 T. 135.

A contract for the services of an attorney to use his personal influence to secure a contract from the county for the erection of bridges is void as against public policy. Flynn v. Bank of Mineral Wells, 53 C. A. 481, 118 S. W. 848.

22. —— Recovery for necessary legal services.—An attorney can maintain an action against an administrator in his representative capacity upon a reasonable contract for professional services in a case where such services were necessary. Portis v. Cole, 11 T. 157; Jones v. Lewis, 11 T. 359; Caldwell v. Young, 21 T. 800; Price v. McIver, 25 T. 769, 78 Am. Dec. 558; Andrus v. Pettus, 36 T. 108; post, Arts. 3623, 4283.

A minor is responsible for fees due an attorney for necessary legal services. Cooper v. Pierce, 74 T. 526, 12 S. W. 211.

23. —— Recovery for services in suit by one not an attorney.—Plaintiff, who was not an attorney, is entitled to recover for services in connection with a suit by defendant, where they were not such as could then be performed by an attorney. Lang v. Fritze (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 36.

24. —— Implied promise to pay.—If a party by his acts induces an attorney reasonably to suppose that his services are desired and avails himself of them without objection, the law implies a promise on his part to pay the attorney the reasonable value of his services. Fore v. Chandler, 24 T. 146; Ector v. Wiggins, 30 T. 55; Henderson v. Terry, 62 T. 281.

An attorney having an interest in land of his client, purchased same at execution sale for their joint benefit. The client refused to pay his pro rata part, and the court rendered judgment against him therefor. Held, that the court could not compel him to pay. Morrison v. Thomas, 92 T. 329, 48 S. W. 500.

In an action by an attorney for services, evidence held to show that plaintiff assisted in suit without the knowledge or consent of his client, so that he was not entitled to recover for services. Morris & Crow v. Kesterson (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 277.

25. —— Reasonable value of services.—On account of the power which the attorney's employment as to one matter gives him to influence the actions and intents of his client, contracts as to other matters should be closely scrutinized, and when the compensation contracted for by the attorney is unreasonably large when compared with his services, it should not be allowed. Waterbury v. City of Laredo, 68 T. 565, 5 S. W. 81.

The reasonable value of an attorney's services is determined by the nature of the litigation, the amount involved, the capacity of the attorney, the character of his services, the length of time occupied, etc. Railway v. Clark, 81 T. 48, 16 S. W. 631. See, also, Carter v. Bush, 79 T. 29, 15 S. W. 167; James v. Turner, 78 T. 241, 14 S. W. 574.

Evidence examined, and held, that defendant was liable for the reasonable value of services of plaintiff's attorney. Tindol v. Beasley (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 155.

An attorney held entitled to a reasonable compensation for making a collection, though he failed to establish a special contract for fees on which he relied. Britt v. Burghart, 16 C. A. 78, 41 S. W. 389.

That an attorney did not inform his client of a collection he had made, and received a payment from the client on account of the case, held not to defeat attorney's right to a reasonable fee. Herndon v. Lammers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 414.

An attorney held entitled to a reasonable fee, and not limited by a percentage contract previously made. Id.

Under a contract that if attorney's fees are not fixed in advance, they shall be fixed by client, reasonable fees must be fixed. Tennant v. Fawcett (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 611.

In an action by an attorney for services, evidence held to show that a fee paid plaintiff included services only in the district court, so that he was entitled to a reasonable fee for services in appellate courts. Morris & Crow v. Kesterson (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 277.

In an action by an attorney to recover compensation, instructions that if the fee had been agreed upon the attorney could recover such fee as would be reasonable for the services rendered held proper. Railey v. Davis (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 434.

26. Recovery of attorney fees.—See Arts. 2178, 2179.

27. —— Recovery by surviving member of firm.—The survivor of a firm whose employment has been terminated by death of a member may recover for the work done on the contract at the time of such death. Wright v. McCampbell, 75 T. 644, 13 S. W. 293.

The surviving partner of a law firm, whose services are offered and refused, may recover on the quantum meruit. Landa v. Shook (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 57.

28. Contracts for compensation.—The right to recover a specific fee, stipulated by contract, is not affected by a compromise of the suit. Allcorn v. Butler, 9 T. 56; Hill v. Cunningham, 25 T. 25.

A contract between an attorney and client for a specific fee is not affected by the fact that such attorney procured another to represent him in a case, of which the client had notice and made no objection. Allcorn v. Butler, 9 T. 56; Smith v. Lipscomb, 13 T. 532.

When an attorney, employed for a stipulated fee, is dismissed by his client without cause, he may recover for the services already rendered; and quære whether he might not recover the entire fee. Myers v. Crockett, 14 T. 257.

A note contained a stipulation for attorney's fees, if legal proceedings be instituted to collect the amount due. The presentation of the note to an administrator of the estate of the maker, or the guardian of the maker, who had become a lunatic, entitles the attorney to the fees. Simmons v. Terrell, 75 T. 275, 12 S. W. 854; Morrell v. Hoyt, 83 T. 59, 18 S. W. 424, 29 Am. St. Rep. 630.

Stipulated attorney's fees become part of the debt and are subject to only like defenses. Martin-Brown Co. v. Perrill, 77 T. 199, 13 S. W. 975.

Where parties, as part consideration of a deed, have agreed to pay attorney's fees for a certain amount, it is error, after performance, for the court to inquire as to the value. Thomas v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 46.

An attorney held not entitled to recover for services rendered under an express contract, which was made on a condition that had not been fulfilled. Boyd v. Boyce (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 720.

Associate counsel engaged by an attorney held bound by an agreement made between the attorney and client in regard to fee. Herndon v. Lammers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 414.

Under a contract stipulating that, if no attorney's fees were agreed on in advance, they were to be fixed by the client, the latter was entitled to fix the compensation in good faith, and the attorney could recover no more. Tennant v. Fawcett, 94 T. 111, 58 S. W. 824.

A bank held liable to an attorney employed with its consent to assist in recovering a claim assigned to it under an agreement fixing the amount of his compensation. First Nat. Bank v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 827.

Attorneys, reducing claim to judgment under contract for its collection, held entitled to agreed commission, even though judgment was collected by another. Raley v. Smith (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 54.

Agreement to pay attorney additional sum above amount first agreed upon held invalid. Kahle v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 786.

An objection that a contract for attorney's services, in the settlement of a claim for injuries, was without consideration, held unsustainable. Tabet v. Powell (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 997.

A contract between an attorney and client construed, and held to give the attorney a right to receive certain land as compensation, though he did not fully succeed in the case. Carlisle v. Gibbs, 44 C. A. 189, 98 S. W. 192.

Under a certain agreement with plaintiff in trespass to try title, an attorney held entitled to one-half the land in controversy, notwithstanding plaintiff's settlement with and deed to a defendant. Wade v. Flanary (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 506.

Where an attorney is wrongfully discharged by his client, he may recover the sum agreed upon to be paid for the entire services. Crye v. O'Neal & Allday (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 253.

Certain facts held not to entitle a client to refuse agreed compensation to his attorneys. Ellerd v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1171.

Under an attorney's contract for the collection of certain notes, held, that they were entitled to recover compensation if, at the end of 90 days, the notes were not returned, whether they had been paid, the time of payment extended, or had been transferred. Fish v. Sadler (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1185.

29. Compensation dependent on rendition of services.—An attorney's contract to procure certain school land for defendant for $200, contingent on his success, held not performed. Shaw v. Threadgill, 53 C. A. 254, 115 S. W. 671.

If an attorney without just cause abandons his client before the proceeding he was employed to conduct terminated, he forfeits his right to any part of the compensation agreed upon. Crye v. O'Neal & Allday (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 253.

30. Contingent fees.—An attorney may, in good faith, contract for a contingent interest in the subject-matter of litigation by way of compensation for professional services. Bentick v. Franklin, 38 T. 458; Stewart v. H. & T. C. Ry. Co., 62 T. 246.

Contract between attorney and client for a contingent fee is not invalid, the English statutes of champerty never having been of force in Texas. Wheeler v. Riviere (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 697.

Where an attorney sued his client to recover a conditional fee, after the latter had compromised and dismissed the action, it was incumbent on the attorney to show that a recovery would have followed from a prosecution of the suit, and that the judgment so obtained could have been collected. Lynch v. Munson (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 603.

To render a client liable to an attorney for a contingent fee, in a suit for the loss of which the client was responsible, it must be shown that the suit would otherwise not have been lost. Wilbur v. Lane, 53 C. A. 249, 115 S. W. 298.

In an action by an attorney to recover a contingent fee, the evidence held to establish that the client was to pay the attorney on such basis. Railey v. Davis (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 434.

In an action by an attorney upon his client's assignment of an interest in his cause of action, client's right to compromise held not to preclude the attorney from recovering from a defendant settling the claim with notice thereof, nor to authorize other assignees for the benefit of plaintiff to make a binding settlement with defendant. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 487.

31. —— Creation of interest in litigation.—One who contracts with an attorney for the collection of a claim, and in consideration of his services transfers to him an interest in the claim, cannot, without his consent, in the absence of fraud, revoke the powers conferred; they being coupled with an interest. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Miller, 21 C. A. 609, 53 S. W. 709.

A conveyance by client to attorney held valid. Tippett v. Brooks, 28 C. A. 107, 67 S. W. 512.

Evidence held to show a sufficient consideration to support an agreement whereby plaintiff's attorneys were to conduct on his behalf a suit to recover title to certain land, and to advance costs, etc., therein, in consideration of plaintiff's conveying to them a portion of the land recovered in accordance with a prior agreement. Cahill v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 281.

Where a defendant in a suit for injuries settled with the claimant, after notice of an assignment of a portion of the claim to the claimant's attorney, for services, the latter was entitled to prosecute the suit to judgment and to recover to the extent of his interest. Powell v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 975.

Where a railroad company privately settled a claim, with notice that a portion thereof had been assigned to claimant's attorney, and then, by concealing the claimant, prevented the attorney from continuing the action, the railroad was liable for the attorney's proportion of the amount of the settlement. Id.

A court in which an action for injuries was brought held to have jurisdiction to determine a claim by plaintiff's attorneys against defendant to recover an aliquot part of the settlement assigned to them as compensation for their services. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Eldredge, 35 C. A. 467, 80 S. W. 556.

An agreement to pay plaintiff's attorneys one-half of the amount recovered held not to render them parties in interest. American Cotton Co. v. Simmons, 39 C. A. 189, 87 S. W. 842.

Evidence in an action by an attorney holding an assignment of part of a cause of action against a railroad for personal injuries, to recover part of the sum for which it was settled with claimant, held to show the company's notice thereof when it made settlement. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Sehorn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 246.

A contract between a claimant against a railroad company for personal injuries and attorneys, whereby the latter were to receive half the amount recovered, held binding on the company, it having knowledge thereof before settlement with claimant. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dysart (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1047.

The provision in a client's assignment to his attorneys of an interest in the cause of action that neither party should compromise without the other's consent does not alone render the assignment invalid, but its binding force depends upon the question of bad faith or fraud as between the assignor and his attorneys, and is not available to defendant when sued on the claim, after settlement with the client with notice of the attorney's rights. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 487.

Evidence in an attorney's action on an assignment of an interest in a client's cause of action brought against defendant after compromise with the client held to sustain a finding that a former assignment to other attorneys was for the equal benefit of plaintiff. Id.

Evidence in such case held sufficient to sustain a finding that defendant by ordinary care might have informed itself of such interest. Id.

32. —— Client's right to compromise.—An action by an attorney against a client, for having compromised a claim without notice to the plaintiff wherein the client had assigned an interest to the attorney in consideration of conducting the suit, is an action for damages, and the plaintiff must prove his damages. Lynch v. Munson (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 140.

A contingent fee contract with attorneys in a personal injury case, purporting to assign a portion of the claim to the attorneys, held to preclude the client from making a binding settlement of an action commenced by the attorneys, with the adverse party, as to the interest assigned to the attorneys. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Andrews, 28 C. A. 477, 67 S. W. 923.

Provision in contract between attorney and client prohibiting settlement without attorney's consent held not against public policy. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Carlock & Gillespie, 33 C. A. 202, 75 S. W. 931.

Where a claimant for personal injuries against a railroad company assigned one-half of his claim to his attorney, in consideration of legal services to be rendered, a private settlement thereafter made between the claimant and the railroad company affected only the claimant's interest. Powell v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 975.

In the absence of a provision against compromise without consent obtained in the client's assignment to his attorneys of an interest in his cause of action, the client may compromise his claim; and whether he may do so after an assignment containing such clause depends upon the facts in the particular case. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 487.

Client's right to compromise after assigning an interest in his claim to his attorneys held not to preclude such attorneys from recovering from a defendant who settled the claim with notice thereof, nor to authorize other assignees for the equal benefit of plaintiffs to make a settlement with defendant binding upon the plaintiffs. Id.

33. Attorney in fact.—"Attorney in fact" defined, and held not authorized to represent his principal in proceedings in court. Harkins v. Murphy & Bolanz, 51 C. A. 568, 112 S. W. 136.

See notes under Art. 1103.

34. Actions for compensation, pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 3.

35. —— Evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

36. —— Instructions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 13.

37. Lien.—See notes under Title 86, Chapter 8.

339. What districts shall elect district attorneys.
340. Bond and oath of.
341. Failure to attend court, shall forfeit, etc.
342. Assistant district attorney appointed when; qualifications; bond, etc., authority; term.
343. Compensation of assistant district attorney.
344. Removal of assistant district attorney.
345. Vacancy in office of, how filled, etc.

Article 338. [275] [240] Legislature may provide for election of, etc.—The legislature may provide for the election of district attorneys in such districts as may be deemed necessary; and they shall hold office for the term of two years and until their successors are qualified, and shall be commissioned by the governor. [Const., art. 5, sec. 21.]

Election contests.—See Art. 3046.

Art. 339. [276] [241] What districts shall elect district attorneys.—The following judicial districts in the state shall each respectively elect a district attorney, viz.: first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, twelfth, thirteenth, twentieth, twenty-first, twenty-second, twenty-third, twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, twenty-seventh, twenty-eighth, twenty-ninth, thirtieth, thirty-first, thirty-second, thirty-third, thirty-fourth, thirty-fifth, thirty-sixth, thirty-seventh, thirty-eighth, forty-sixth, forty-seventh, fiftieth, and fifty-first, also the twenty-sixth and fifty-third districts combined, and the criminal district composed of Galveston and Harris counties. [Acts 1901, p. 127.]

Art. 340. [277] [242] Bond and oath of.—Each district attorney, before entering on the duties of his office, shall give a bond, payable to the governor and his successors in office, in the sum of five thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the district judge of their respective districts, conditioned that such district attorney will faithfully pay over, in the manner prescribed by law, all money which he may collect or which may come to his hands for the state or for any county; and he shall take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the constitution of the state; which bond and oath shall be deposited in the office of the comptroller of public accounts. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 181.]

Art. 341. [278] [243] Failure to attend courts shall forfeit, etc.—When any district attorney shall fail to attend any term of the district court of any county in his district, the clerk of the district court of such county shall certify the fact of such failure under his official seal to the comptroller of public accounts, and, unless some satisfactory reason for such failure is shown to the comptroller, such district attorney shall receive no salary for the time that he has so failed to attend. [Id. P. D. 183.]

Art. 342. Assistant district attorneys appointed when; qualifications, bond, etc.; authority; term.—The governor shall appoint one assistant district attorney in districts in which there is situated a city of fifty thousand population or over, according to the United States census of 1900, and in which there is no criminal district court established by law; provided, the district attorney or district judge in said district shall furnish data to the governor showing that the district attorney is in need of an assistant, and is himself unable to attend to all of the duties required of him by law, and that it is necessary to the best interests of the state that an assistant district attorney be appointed. Every person so appointed shall be a qualified resident attorney of the district in which said appointment is made, and shall give bond and take the oath of office required of district attorneys by this state, and shall have the power and authority to perform all the acts and duties of district attorneys under the law of this state; and such appointment shall be for such time as the governor shall deem best in the enforcement of the law, not to be less than one month. [Acts 1909, p. 94.]

Art. 343. Compensation of assistant district attorney.—Such assistant district attorney shall be paid for the time of actual service rendered at the rate of the sum of two thousand dollars per annum, by the comptroller of the state of Texas, and said amounts to be paid in monthly payments, upon certificate of the district clerk and district judge of said district, that said assistant district attorney has performed his duties, and is entitled to pay. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 344. Removal of assistant district attorney.—The governor of the state of Texas, at any time he deems said assistant unnecessary in any district, or that the person appointed is not attending to his duty as required by law, remove said person from office, by merely writing the district attorney and district judge of said district to that effect. [Id. sec. 3.]

Removal of district attorneys.—See Title 98, Chapter 2.

Art. 345. [279] [244] Vacancy in office of, how filled, etc.—When a vacancy occurs in the office of district attorney, the governor shall appoint a qualified person, resident of the district, to fill the same; and the person so appointed shall take the oath and give the bond required of district attorneys, and shall hold the office until the next general election and until his successor is qualified.

CHAPTER ONE A

CRIMINAL DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF HARRIS COUNTY

Art.
345a. Criminal district attorney of Harris county; how elected; term; qualifications; bond; duties and powers.
345b. District attorney; how commissioned; salary and fees.
345c. What fees to be retained, etc.; what fees included; report and accounting.
345d. Assistant attorneys; stenographer; additional assistants; salaries; fees.

Article 345a. Criminal district attorney of Harris county; how elected; term; qualifications; bond; duties and powers.—There shall be elected by the qualified electors of the criminal district of Harris county, Texas, an attorney for said court who shall be styled "the Criminal District Attorney of Harris County," and who shall hold his office for a period of two years and until his successor is elected and qualified. The said criminal district attorney shall possess all of the qualifications and take the oath and give the bond required by the constitution and laws of this state, of other district attorneys. It shall be the duty of said criminal district attorney, or of his assistants, as hereinafter provided, to be in attendance upon each term of said criminal district court of Harris county and to represent the state in all matters pending before said court. And he shall have exclusive control of all criminal cases wherever pending, or in whatever court in Harris county that now has jurisdiction of criminal cases, as well as any or all courts that may be hereafter created and given jurisdiction of any criminal cases, and he shall collect the fees therefor provided by law. He shall also have control of any and all cases heard on habeas corpus before any civil district court of Harris county, as well as before the criminal court of said county. The criminal district attorney of Harris county shall have and exercise, in addition to the specific powers given and duties imposed upon him by this Act, all such powers, duties and privileges within said criminal district of Harris county as are by law now conferred or which may hereafter be conferred upon district and county attorneys in the various counties and judicial districts of this state. It is further provided that he and his assistants shall have the exclusive right, and it shall be their sole duty to perform the duties provided for in this Act, except in cases of the absence from the county of the criminal district attorney and his assistants, or their inability or refusal to act; and no other person shall have the power to perform the duties provided in this Act, or to represent the state in any case in Harris county, except in case of the absence from Harris county, or the disability or refusal to act, of the criminal district attorney and his assistants. [Acts 1911, p. 111, sec. 19.]

Art. 345b. District attorney; how commissioned; salary and fees.—The said criminal district attorney of Harris county shall be commissioned by the governor and shall receive a salary of five hundred dollars per annum, to be paid by the state, and in addition thereto shall receive the following fees in felony cases, to be paid by the state: For each conviction of felonious homicide, where the defendant does not appeal or dies, or escapes after appeal and before final judgment of the court of criminal appeals, or where, upon appeal, the judgment is affirmed, the sum of forty dollars. For all other convictions in felony cases, where the defendant does not appeal, or dies, or escapes, after appeal, and before final judgment of the court of criminal appeals, or where, upon appeal, the judgment is affirmed, the sum of thirty dollars; provided, that in all convictions of felony, in which punishment is fixed by the verdict and judgment by confinement in the house of correction and reformatory, his fee shall be fifteen dollars. For representing the state in each case of habeas corpus where the defendant is charged with a felony, the sum of twenty dollars. For representing the state in examining trials, in felony cases, where indictment is returned, in each case, the sum of five dollars. The criminal district attorney shall also receive such fees in misdemeanor cases, to be paid by the defendant and by the county, as is now provided by law for district and county attorneys, and he shall also receive such compensation for other services rendered by him as is now, or may hereafter be, authorized by law to be paid to other district and county attorneys in this state. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 345c. What fees to be retained, etc.; what fees included; report and accounting.—The criminal district attorney of Harris county shall retain out of the fees earned by him in the criminal district court of Harris county the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, and in addition thereto, one-fourth of the gross excess of all fees in excess of twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, the three-fourths of the excess over and above twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, remaining, to be paid by him into the treasury of Harris county. It is provided that in arriving at the amount collected by him, he shall include the fees arising from all classes of criminal cases of which the criminal district court of Harris county has original and exclusive jurisdiction, whether felony, misdemeanor, habeas corpus hearings, or commission on fines and forfeitures collected in said court, it being the intention of this Act that the criminal district attorney of Harris county shall include all fees of every kind and class earned by him in said criminal district court in arriving at the amount collected by him; it being further provided that at the end of each year he shall make a full and complete report and accounting to the county judge of Harris county of the amount of such fees collected by him. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 345d. Assistant attorneys; stenographer; additional assistants; salaries; fees.—The criminal district attorney of Harris county shall appoint two assistant criminal district attorneys, who shall each receive a salary of eighteen hundred dollars per annum, payable monthly. He shall also appoint a stenographer, who shall receive a salary of not more than twelve hundred dollars per annum, payable monthly. In addition to the assistant criminal district attorneys and stenographer, above provided for, the county judge of Harris county may, with the approval of the commissioners court, appoint as many additional assistants as may be necessary to properly administer the affairs of the office of criminal district attorney and enforce the law, upon the criminal district attorney making application under oath, addressed to the county judge of Harris county, setting out the need therefor, provided the county judge, with the approval of the commissioners court, may discontinue the services of any one or more of the assistant criminal district attorneys provided for in this Act, when in his judgment and the judgment of the commissioners court, they are not necessary. The salaries of all assistants appointed by said criminal district attorney shall be paid by Harris county. The assistant criminal district attorneys above provided for, when so appointed, shall take the oath of office and be authorized to present [represent] the state before said criminal district court, and in all other courts in Harris county in which the criminal district attorney of Harris county is authorized by this Act to represent the state, such authority to be exercised under the direction of the said criminal district attorney, and which assistants shall be subject to removal at the will of the said criminal district attorney. Each of said assistant criminal district attorneys shall be authorized to file informations, examine witnesses before the grand jury and generally to perform any duty devolving upon the criminal district attorney of Harris county and to exercise any power conferred by law upon the said criminal district attorney, when by him so authorized. The criminal district attorney of Harris county shall be paid the same fees for services rendered by his assistants as he would be entitled to receive if the services should have been rendered by himself. [Id. sec. 22.]

Explanatory.—Section 24 of this act continues in office the criminal district attorney of the criminal district court of Galveston and Harris counties until the election of his successor under this act. See Art. 2228a. See Art. 2201a, creating the criminal district court of Harris county.

CHAPTER TWO

COUNTY ATTORNEYS

Art.
346. Election and term of office.
347. May appoint assistants.
348. Vacancy in office of, how filled.
349. Shall be no county attorney when there is a resident criminal district attorney.
350. Joint duties of county and district attorneys.
351. Bond and oath of.

Article 346. [280] [245] Election and term of office.—A county attorney for counties in which there is not a resident criminal district attorney shall be elected by the qualified voters of each county, who shall be commissioned by the governor and hold his office for the term of two years. [Acts of 1883, p. 2.]

Art. 347. [281] [245a] May appoint assistants.—County attorneys shall have power, by consent of the commissioners' court, to appoint in writing one or more assistants, not to exceed three, for their respective counties, to continue in office during the pleasure of their principals, and who shall have the power and authority to perform all the acts and duties of their principals, and who shall have the qualifications prescribed by law for county attorneys; and every person so appointed shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, which shall be indorsed upon his appointment, together with the certificate of the officer administering the same; and such appointments and oaths shall be recorded in the office of the county clerk, and deposited in said office. [Acts of 1891, p. 91.]

De facto officer.—One who did not perform any of the duties of an assistant county attorney, except to sign a certain information, could not be regarded as a de facto officer. Murrey v. State, 48 Cr. R. 219, 87 S. W. 349.

Art. 348. [282] [246] Vacancy in office of, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in such office, the county commissioners' court of the county shall have power to appoint a county attorney until the next general election.

Art. 349. [283] [247] No county attorney when there is resident criminal district attorney.—When a resident criminal district attorney is elected and has qualified, and there is in the county of his residence a county attorney, such county attorney shall cease to perform the functions of such office, and there shall be no county attorney in such county during the time there may be a resident criminal district attorney therein. By the term, criminal district attorney, is meant an attorney for a criminal district court. [Acts of 1883, p. 2.]

Art. 350. [284] Joint duties of county and district attorneys.—In counties where there is a county attorney, it shall be his duty to attend the terms of the county and other inferior courts of his county, and to represent the state in all criminal cases under examination or prosecution in said county, and also to attend the terms of the district court, and to represent the state in all cases in said court during the absence of the district attorney, and to aid the district attorney, when so requested; and, when representing the state alone, he shall be entitled to and receive the fees allowed by law to the district attorney; and when, at the request of the district attorney, he shall aid him in the prosecution of any case in behalf of the state, he shall receive one-half of the fee allowed by law, and the district attorney the remainder. [Acts of 1879, p. 94.]

Prosecution in city court.—It is the duty of a county attorney to prosecute all offenses against the State commenced in a city court of his county, notwithstanding the fact that the offenses charged violate city ordinances also. Jackson v. Swayne (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 619.

Art. 351. [285] [248] Bond and oath of.—Each county attorney, before he enters upon the discharge of the duties of such office, shall take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the constitution of the state, and shall execute a bond with at least two good and sufficient sureties, payable to the governor and his successors in office, in the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars, to be approved by the county commissioners' court of his county, conditioned that he will faithfully pay over, in the manner prescribed by law, all moneys which he may collect, or which may come to his hands for the state or any county; which bond and oath shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of his county, and deposited in the comptroller's office. [Act Aug. 7, 1876, p. 86, sec. 11.]

CHAPTER THREE

353. Duties and powers of.
354. Residence of.
355. Shall notify attorney general and comptroller of residence, etc.
356. Shall give opinion, etc., to officers.
356a. Shall give opinion, etc., to county and precinct officers.
357. With consent of attorney general, to buy property for state.
358. With consent of attorney general may sell property of state so purchased.
359. With consent of commissioners' court, may sell property of county so purchased.
360. Shall give receipt for money collected.
361. Shall report collections for state, etc.
362. Shall report collections for county.
363. Shall pay over money collected in thirty days, less commissions.
364. Shall keep register of official acts.
365. Shall not receive fee, etc., to prosecute case.
366. Shall institute proceedings against officers, when, etc.
367. To sue for penalty against railroads.
368. To institute quo warranto proceedings.
369. Admissions made by shall not prejudice the state.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 352. [286] [249] Shall be licensed attorneys.—District and county attorneys shall be attorneys at law, duly licensed to practice in the district courts of this state, and no person who is not so licensed shall be eligible to either of said offices. [Act Aug. 7, 1876, p. 85, sec. 2.]

Art. 353. [287] [250] Duties and powers of.—The duties and powers of district and county attorneys shall be such as are prescribed in this title and in the Code of Criminal Procedure of this state.

Authority and duties in general.—A county attorney has no authority to perform an act in respect to which no duty has been made to devolve upon him. Duncan v. State, 28 C. A. 447, 67 S. W. 905.

A county attorney has no authority, on his own motion, to make either the county or the state a party to a suit. Goar v. City of Rosenberg, 53 C. A. 218, 115 S. W. 653.

Suit for penalties under separate coach law.—Const. art. 5, § 21, provides that the county attorney shall represent the state in all cases in the district and inferior courts in their respective counties; but, if a county shall be included in a district in which there shall be a district attorney, the respective duties of district attorneys and county attorneys shall in such counties be regulated by the legislature. Held that, there being no statute conferring on county attorneys authority to sue in behalf of the state for penalties for violation of the separate coach law (Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, arts. 4509–4511), a county attorney for a county in a district in which there was a district attorney could not sue. State v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 663.

Escheat proceedings.—See Art. 3187.

Intervention in suit to forfeit school land.—County attorney has no authority to intervene in a suit for school land and seek forfeiture of the land to the state. This right belongs to the attorney-general. Duncan v. State, 28 C. A. 447, 67 S. W. 905.

Collection of taxes.—See Art. 7661.

Art. 354. [288] [251] Residence of.—District attorneys shall severally reside in the districts for which they were elected, and county attorneys shall severally reside in the county for which they were elected. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 355. [289] [252] Shall notify attorney general and comptroller of residence, etc.—District and county attorneys shall notify the attorney general and comptroller of public accounts of the county of their residence and of their postoffice address respectively, as soon after their election and qualification as practicable. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 356. [290] [253] Shall give opinion, etc., to officers.—The district and county attorney shall give to the assessor of taxes, the collector of taxes, or the treasurer of a county within his district or county, upon request, an opinion in writing touching their duties concerning the revenue of the state or county, and shall also give such advice in writing to the clerk, sheriff or other officer of his district or county as he may deem necessary to insure the prompt collection of all money for which judgments may have been rendered in favor of the state or of a county. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 356a. Shall give opinion, etc., to county and precinct officers.—The district and county attorneys of this state shall give to all county and precinct officers within his district or county respectively, upon request, an opinion and advice in writing touching their official duties. [Acts 1913, p. 48, sec. 2.]

Art. 357. [291] With the consent of attorney general to buy property.—In any case wherein any property shall be sold by virtue of any execution or order of sale issued upon any judgment in favor of the state except execution issued upon judgments in cases of scire facias, the agent or attorney representing the state, by and with the advice and consent of the attorney general of the state, is authorized and required to attend such sales, and bid on and buy in for the state said property, when it shall be deemed proper to protect the interest of the state in the collection of such judgment; provided, that in no case shall the amount bid by him exceed the amount necessary to satisfy said judgment and all costs due thereon. [Acts 1879, p. 9.]

Art. 358. [292] May sell property bought for state, with consent of attorney general.—The agent or attorney of the state, buying for the state any such property at such sale, shall be authorized, by and with the advice and consent of the attorney general, at any time to sell or otherwise dispose of said property so purchased, in the manner and upon such terms and conditions as he may deem most advantageous to the state; and, if sold or disposed of for a greater amount than is necessary to pay off the amount due upon the judgment and all costs, the remainder shall be paid into the state treasury and placed to the credit of the general revenue; and, when such sale is made, the attorney general shall, in the name of the state, execute and deliver to the purchaser a deed of conveyance to said property; which deed, when so signed by him, shall vest all the right and title to the same in the purchaser thereof. [Id.]

Art. 359. [293] May sell property of county.—When any such property is sold under execution or order of sale issued upon any judgment in favor of the county, including executions issued upon judgments in cases of scire facias in the name of the state, the attorney or agent so representing the county, by and with the advice and consent of the commissioners' court, shall have the same authority to buy in and dispose of such property for the county as the agent or attorney for the state is given in article 357 in similar cases; and, when any property is so purchased by the agent or attorney of the county, the officer so selling the same shall execute and deliver to the county a deed of conveyance to the same; and, whenever the property so bought in for the county is sold, the county commissioners' court shall execute and deliver to the purchaser thereof a deed of conveyance in the name of the county to such property. [Id.]

Art. 360. [294] [254] Shall give receipt for money collected.—It shall be the duty of a district or county attorney, upon the collection of any money for the use of the state, or of any county, to deliver to the person paying the same a receipt therefor. [Acts 1876, p. 85, sec. 4. Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 188.]

Art. 361. [295] [255] Shall report collections for state, etc.—Each district or county attorney shall, on or before the last day of August of each year, file in the office of the comptroller of public accounts an account in writing, verified by the affidavit of such attorney, of all money received by him, by virtue of his office, during the preceding year, payable into the state treasury. [Act Aug. 7, 1876, p. 86, sec. 5.]

Report of fines, etc., to counties.—See Arts. 1424, 1425.

Art. 362. [296] [256] Shall report collections for county.—Such attorney shall also, on or before the last day of August of each year, file with the county treasurer of each county for which money has been collected by him, an account in writing, verified by his affidavit, of all moneys received by him, by virtue of his office, during the preceding year, payable into the treasury of such county. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 363. [297] [257] Shall pay over money collected in thirty days.—Whenever a district or county attorney has collected money for the state, or for any county, he shall, within thirty days after receiving the same, pay it into the treasury of the state, or of the county to which it belongs, after deducting therefrom and retaining the commissions allowed him thereon by law. Such district or county attorney shall be entitled to ten per cent commissions on the first thousand dollars collected by him in any one case for the state or county from any individual or company, and five per cent on all sums over one thousand dollars, to be retained out of the money when collected, and he shall also be entitled to retain the same commissions on all collections made for the state or for any county; provided, that ten per cent shall be allowed on all such sums heretofore collected since the adoption of the Revised Statutes. This article shall also apply to money realized for the state under the escheat law. [Id. secs. 5, 6.]

Compensation for services.—Under article 366 and this article, held, that the county attorney is not entitled to compensation in excess of the amount provided, and the county commissioners have no authority to contract for further compensation. Lattimore v. Tarrant County, 57 C. A. 610, 124 S. W. 205.

Compensation in certain counties.—See Art. 3883.

Incumbent when collected entitled to fees.—The county attorney who is in office when the collection is actually made is entitled to the commissions named in this article as fees of his office and not the one who prosecuted the suit to judgment, but whose term of office expired before the collection was made. Flint v. Jones County, 20 C. A. 641, 50 S. W. 203.

Accounting for fees under former law.—Art. 3881 provides that the county attorney shall receive in addition to his stated salary one-fourth of the excess of the fees collected by him. Art. 3895 requires a sworn statement showing the amount of fees collected and the amount of fees charged and not collected. Art. 3892 declares that all fees due and not collected shall be collected by the officer to whose office the fees accrued, and out of such part of delinquent fees as may be due the county the officer making such collection shall be entitled to 10 per cent. and the remainder shall be paid into the county treasury. Held that, before the county is entitled to any fees collected by the county attorney, it must appear that when he received such fees, he had collected in fees the maximum compensation allowed him by law, for, until then, he is entitled to all fees collected, and the county has no interest therein. Lattimore v. Tarrant County, 57 C. A. 610, 124 S. W. 205.

Art. 364. [298] [258] Shall keep register of official acts, etc.—Each district and county attorney shall keep in proper books, to be procured by them for that purpose at their own expense, a register of all their official acts and reports, and all actions or demands prosecuted or defended by them as such attorneys, and of all proceedings had in relation thereto, and shall deliver such books to their successors in office; and the same shall at all times be open to the inspection of any person appointed by the governor, or by the county commissioners' court of a county, to examine the same. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 365. [299] [259] Shall not receive fee, etc., to prosecute case.—A district or county attorney shall not take any fee, article of value, compensation, reward or gift, or any promise thereof, from any person whomsoever, to prosecute any case which he is required by law to prosecute; nor shall he take any fee, article of value, compensation, reward or gift, or any promise thereof, from any person whomsoever, in consideration of, or as a testimonial for, his services in any case which he is required by law to prosecute, either before or after such case has been tried and finally determined. [Id. sec. 21.]

Services outside of official duties.—This article applies only to cases which he is required by law to prosecute, and does not prevent his employment by the county for services outside of his official duties and receiving compensation therefor. Lattimore v. Tarrant County, 57 C. A. 610, 124 S. W. 205.

Attorney's fees in suits affecting public lands.—See Art. 5478.

Fees in prosecution for blacklisting employés.—See Art. 598.

Art. 366. [300] [260] Shall institute proceedings against officers, when, etc.—When it shall come to the knowledge of any district or county attorney that any officer in his district or county, intrusted with the collection or safe keeping of any public funds, is in any manner whatsoever neglecting or abusing the trust confided in him, or is in any way failing to discharge his duties under the law, he shall institute such proceedings as are necessary to compel the performance of such duties by such officer, and to preserve and protect the public interests. [Act Aug. 7, 1876, p. 86, sec. 9.]

Proceeding by motion on sheriff's failure to account.—Where a sheriff collects money on execution under a judgment on a forfeited recognizance, and fails to account, the district attorney may file a motion in the name of the state (under Art. 3775) for the use of the county. Russell v. State (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 69.

Compensation for services.—Under this article and Art. 363 the county attorney is not entitled to compensation for such services in excess of the amount so provided, and the county commissioners have no authority to contract for further compensation. Lattimore v. Tarrant County, 57 C. A. 610, 124 S. W. 205.

Art. 367. [301] To sue for penalty against railroads.—It shall be the duty of the county attorney to sue for and recover the penalties against railroad companies for failing to keep in repair public crossings, as prescribed in article 6494 of these statutes; and it shall be the duty of the county attorney, upon the making of an affidavit of the facts by any person, to at once institute against the company violating the provisions of said article 6494 suit in the proper court to recover such penalty or penalties; and his wilful failure or refusal to do so shall be sufficient cause for his removal from office, unless it is evident that such suit could not have been maintained. The proceedings under said article shall be conducted in the same manner as civil suits; and the county attorney attending to such suits shall be entitled to a fee in each case of ten dollars, to be taxed as a part of the costs of the case; provided, that when two or more penalties are sought to be recovered in one and the same suit, but one such fee shall be allowed; and provided, further, if the county be cast in the suit, no costs shall be charged against the county. [Acts 1885, p. 45; amend., 1895, Sen. Jour., p. 478, sec. 13.]

Art. 368. [302] To institute quo warranto proceedings.—It shall be the duty of district and county attorneys to institute and prosecute quo warranto proceedings against persons and corporations in such cases and under such circumstances as are prescribed in article 6403 herein, and in such other cases as may be prescribed by law. [Acts of 1879, S. S., p. 43.]

Art. 369. [303] [261] Admission made by, shall not prejudice the state.—No admission made by the district or county attorney, in any suit or action in which the state is a party, shall operate to prejudice the rights of the state. [Act May 1, 1846, p. 295, sec. 13. P. D. 193.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Advice as defense to suit for malicious prosecution.—Where one makes a full, fair statement of the facts within his knowledge to a prosecuting attorney, and the latter basing his advice on these facts advises a criminal prosecution, such advice is a defense in a suit for malicious prosecution against the complaining witness. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Groseclose, 50 C. A. 525, 110 S. W. 477.

BANKS AND BANKING

Chap.
1. Banks.
2. Bank and Trust Companies.
3. Savings Banks.
4. Savings Departments.
5. Bank Deposit Guaranty Law.
6. General Provisions.

CHAPTER ONE

BANKS

Art.
370. Banks, incorporated how.
371. Articles of association, requisites.
372. To be signed, acknowledged, recorded, etc.
373. No certificate of incorporation valid unless, etc.
374. Board of directors.
375. Capital stock prescribed; to be fully paid up.
376. Powers of corporation.
377. Cash reserve.
378. Duties of directors.
378a. Limitation upon borrowing, etc., by directors and officers.
379. No branch bank to be maintained, etc., except, etc.

Article 370. Banks, incorporated how.—Five or more persons, a majority of whom shall be residents of this state, who shall have associated themselves by articles of agreement, in writing, as provided by the general corporation law, for the purpose of establishing a bank of deposit or discount, or both of deposit and discount, may be incorporated under any name or title designating such business. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 489, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Certain requirements in addition to those contained in this chapter are contained in articles 517a-517c, post, prescribing the method of procuring charters for banks.

Restrictions as to the name or title are imposed by article 525b, post.

Transfer of stock.—Article 1168, providing that stock shall be transferable only on the books of the corporation in the manner prescribed by the by-laws, if applicable to a bank organized hereunder only affects the right to dividends, the privilege of voting, and other rights of a stockholder; and a pledgee of bank stock acquires a lien thereon, though there is no transfer on the books of the bank. First State Bank of Montgomery v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 691.

Art. 371. Articles of association, requisites.—The articles of association shall set out:

1. The corporate name of the proposed corporation, which shall not be the name of any corporation heretofore incorporated in this state for similar purposes, or any imitation of such name, and which shall include as a part thereof, either the word "bank," or "banking."

2. The name of the city or town and county in which the corporation is to be located.

3. The amount of the capital stock of the corporation, which shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each; that the same has been bona fide subscribed, and actually paid up in lawful money of the United States, and is in the custody of the persons named as the first board of directors or managers.

4. The names and places of residence of the several shareholders, and the number of shares subscribed by each.

5. The number of directors or managers, and the names of those agreed upon for the first year.

6. The number of years the corporation is to continue, which in no case shall exceed fifty years. [Id. sec. 2.]

See note under preceding article.

Art. 372. To be signed, acknowledged, recorded, etc.—Such articles shall be signed by and acknowledged by the parties thereto and filed in the office of the secretary of state; and a certified copy thereof shall be returned by the secretary of state to the incorporators, which said certified copy shall be recorded in the office of the county clerk of the county in which the corporation is to be located. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 373. No certificate of incorporation valid, unless, etc.—No certificate of incorporation under this title shall be valid, unless, at the time the articles of agreement were acknowledged, the capital stock therein mentioned shall have been bona fide subscribed and paid up in lawful money. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 374. Board of directors.—The affairs and business of every banking corporation shall be managed by a board of directors or managers, consisting of not less than five nor more than twenty-five shareholders, who shall be elected annually, a majority of whom shall be bona fide resident citizens of the state, and each of whom shall be a bona fide owner of at least ten shares of the capital stock thereof; provided, that, where the capital stock of such corporation does not exceed ten thousand dollars, each director shall be a bona fide owner of at least five shares of the capital stock thereof; nor shall any person be a director in any bank against whom such bank shall hold a judgment. Every person who shall be elected a director of a bank shall, within thirty days after said election, qualify himself as such director by filing with the officers of such bank a written acceptance of the position, a copy of which said acceptance shall be spread upon the records of the acts of the directors. Failure to comply with this provision, within the time specified, shall work a forfeiture of the position; and, when any vacancy occurs by such failure, the board of directors shall, at the next regular meeting thereafter, enter the fact of such vacancy upon their records, and immediately proceed to elect some competent person to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term. In the event of vacancy happening from any cause in the board, previous to the annual election, remaining members thereof may fill such vacancy. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 375. Capital stock prescribed; to be fully paid up.—The capital stock, which shall be fully paid up, shall not be less than ten thousand dollars for banks located in towns and cities having less than twenty-five hundred inhabitants, nor less than twenty-five thousand dollars for banks located in towns and cities having twenty-five hundred or more and less than ten thousand inhabitants, nor less than fifty thousand dollars for banks located in towns and cities having ten thousand or more and less than twenty thousand inhabitants, nor less than one hundred thousand dollars in towns and cities having twenty thousand inhabitants or more. The population of all towns and cities for the purpose of fixing the minimum capital stock of banks, under this title, shall be ascertained by reference to the last United States census taken prior to their incorporation. [Id. sec. 5.]

Rights of persons induced to purchase stock by fraud.—One induced to purchase bank stock by fraudulent representations may recover the purchase price and enforce an equitable lien in case he can trace the money or property paid, and identify the same after it passed into the hands of the bank. Burleson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 559.

Art. 376. Powers of Corporation.—Every such corporation shall be authorized and empowered to conduct the business of receiving money on deposit, and allowing interest thereon, and of buying and selling exchange, gold and silver coins of all kinds; of loaning money upon real estate and personal property and upon collateral and personal securities at a rate of interest not exceeding that allowed by law; provided, that no bank organized under this title shall loan more than fifty per centum of its securities upon real estate; and no such bank shall make a loan on real estate of an amount greater than fifty per centum of the reasonable cash value thereof; also of buying, selling and discounting negotiable and non-negotiable paper of all kinds, as well as all kinds of commercial paper. [Id. sec. 3.]

Estoppel to deny powers.—Bank held estopped to deny its power to enter into partnership. Gill v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 751.

Art. 377. Cash reserve.—Every banking corporation shall, at all times, have an amount of cash on hand and cash due from other banks equal to at least twenty-five per cent of the aggregate amount of its demand deposits, ten per cent of which is to be actual cash in the bank. Whenever the reserve of a bank, as hereinbefore required, shall fall below twenty-five per cent of the demand deposits, then such bank shall not make any new loans or discounts until it shall, by collections, restore its lawful reserve. The reserve fund, or any part thereof, together with the current receipts, may be kept on hand or on deposit, payable on demand, in any bank or banking association of the state of Texas, or any bank, banking association, or trust company, regularly chartered and operating under the laws of any other state, or under the laws of the United States, approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, and having a paid up capital stock of fifty thousand dollars or more; but the deposits in any one bank or trust company shall not exceed twenty per cent of the total deposits, capital and surplus of said bank. [Acts 1907, p. 60, sec. 7. Acts 1905, S. S., p. 491.]

Art. 378. Duties of directors.—The board of directors of each and every bank organized under this title, shall meet at least once per month, and pass upon the business of the bank back to the previous meeting of the board, and shall keep a written record of its approval or disapproval of each and every loan; and, at each monthly meeting, the records shall show the aggregate of the then existing indebtedness and liability of each of the directors and officers of the bank; and no bills payable shall be made, and no bills shall be rediscounted by the bank, except with the consent of the board of directors. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 491, sec. 6.]

Art. 378a. Limitation upon borrowing, etc., by directors and officers.—No director of a bank in this state shall be permitted to borrow any of the money of the bank of which he is a director, in excess of ten per cent of the capital and surplus, without the consent of a majority of the directors of the bank (other than the borrower) first having been obtained at a regular meeting of the board; said consent to be made a matter of record before loan is made; and no officer, whether a director or not, shall be indebted to such bank in any sum whatever without the consent of the board, obtained and recorded in like manner. [Id.]

Art. 379. No branch bank to be maintained, etc., except, etc.—No such corporation shall maintain any branch bank, receive deposits, or pay checks, except over the counter of and in its own banking house, except where such corporation is a county or state depository, in any county other than that of its home, or is a county depository and is not located at the county seat; and provided, that nothing in this article shall prohibit ordinary clearing house transactions between banks. Corporations created under the terms of this title shall not be authorized to engage in business at more than one place, which shall be designated in their charters. [Id. sec. 4.]

Depositories.—See Title 44, Chapter 1.

CHAPTER TWO

BANK AND TRUST COMPANIES

Art.
380. Bank and trust company, incorporated how; definition.
381. Articles of agreement; requisites.
382. To be signed, acknowledged, recorded, etc.
383. Board of directors.
384. Capital stock prescribed.
385. Powers of corporation.

Article 380. Bank and trust company incorporated how; definition.—Any five or more persons, a majority of whom are residents of this state, who shall have associated themselves by articles of agreement, in writing, as provided by law, for the purpose of establishing a banking and trust company, may be incorporated under any name or title designating such business. "Trust company," wherever appearing in the following articles of this title, is intended to mean "banking and trust company," and to refer to corporations created under this and the succeeding articles of this title, relating to banking and trust companies. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 492, sec. 8.]

Explanatory.—Certain requirements in addition to those contained in this chapter are contained in articles 517a-517c, post, prescribing the method of procuring charters for trust companies and banks and trust companies.

Restrictions as to the name or title are imposed by article 525b, post.

Art. 381. Articles of agreement; requisites.—The articles of agreement shall set out:

1. The corporate name of the proposed corporation, which shall not be the name of any other corporation heretofore incorporated in this state for similar purposes, or an imitation of such name.

2. The name of the city or town and county in which the corporation is to be located.

3. The amount of the capital stock of the corporation authorized by the articles of agreement, which shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each; that said capital is subscribed and actually paid up in lawful money of the United States, and is in the custody of the persons named as the first board of directors and managers.

4. The names and places of residence of the several shareholders and the number of shares subscribed by each.

5. The number of the board of directors or managers, and the names of those agreed upon for the first year.

6. The number of years the corporation is to continue, which in no case shall exceed fifty years.

7. The purposes for which the association or company is formed, which shall be the establishment of a bank of deposit or discount, or both of deposit and discount, with the power set out in article 376, and may include any one or more of the purposes set out in article 385. [Id. sec. 9.]

See note under preceding article.

Art. 382. To be signed, acknowledged, recorded, etc.—The articles of agreement shall be signed and acknowledged by the parties thereto, and recorded in the office of the secretary of state, and a certified copy thereof returned by the secretary of state to the incorporators, which shall be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county in which such corporation is to do business. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 383. Board of directors.—The property or business of the corporation shall be controlled and managed by directors, not less than five nor more than twenty-five in number, who shall respectively be stockholders of such corporation, and a majority of whom shall be bona fide citizens of this state, to be elected by ballot by the shareholders of such corporation for one year, if the number of directors of such corporation does not exceed five, at such time and place as shall be directed by the by-laws of such corporation, of which time and place at least two weeks notice shall be published in some newspaper, published at least once a week, in the city or county in which the corporation is located, which circulates in the locality where such corporation is located. Such election shall be made by such shareholders as shall attend in person, or by proxy in writing; and, in case the election shall not be made on the day named, the corporation shall not thereby be dissolved, but the election may be had at any other time, agreeably to the by-laws of said corporation; and the persons so elected shall hold their office until others are elected and qualified. If the board of directors of such corporation named in the articles of the association shall exceed five in number, they shall, as soon as may be after their organization, divide themselves by ballot into three classes of equal number, as near as may be, designated the first, second and third class, of which the first class shall remain in office one year, the second class two years, and the third class three years; and at each annual election, conducted in the manner heretofore designated, directors shall be elected for the term of three years to fill the vacancies created by the retiring class. In case of death or resignation of one or more of said directors, the survivors shall fill the vacancy until the next election. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 384. Capital stock prescribed.—The amount of capital stock of any trust company, or bank and trust company, shall not be less than fifty thousand dollars nor more than ten million dollars; provided, however, that no trust company, or bank and trust company, shall be incorporated in towns and cities having twenty thousand inhabitants or more with less than one hundred thousand dollars of capital stock. [Acts 1913, p. 207, sec. 1, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 384.]

Art. 385. Powers of corporation.—Corporations may be created under articles 380 and 381 for the purpose of establishing a bank of deposit or discount, or both of deposit and discount, with the powers set out in article 376, and any one or more of the following purposes:

1. To act as the fiscal or transfer agent of any state, municipality, body politic, or corporation, and, in such capacity, to receive and disburse money; to transfer, register and countersign certificates of stock, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, and to act as agent of any corporation, foreign or domestic, for any lawful purpose.

2. To receive deposits or trust moneys, securities and other personal property from any person or corporation, and to loan money on real or personal securities.

3. To lease, hold, purchase and convey any and all real property necessary in the transaction of its business, or which it shall acquire in satisfaction, or partial satisfaction, of debts due the corporation, under sales, judgments or mortgages, or in settlement, or partial settlement, of debts due the corporation by any of its debtors; which shall be alienated in good faith to some person other than some one interested in the company, within five years from the date of its acquisition.

4. To act as trustee under any mortgage or bond issue, by any municipality, body politic or corporation, and accept and execute any other municipal or corporate trust not inconsistent with the laws of this state.

5. To accept trusts from, and execute trusts for, married women, in respect to their separate property, and to be their agent in the management of such property, or to transact any business in relation thereto.

6. To act under the order or appointment of any court of record as guardian, receiver or trustee of the estate of any minor, the annual income of which shall not be less than one hundred dollars, and as depository of any moneys paid into court, whether for the benefit of any such minor or other persons, corporation or party.

7. To take, accept and execute any and all such legal trusts, duties and powers, in regard to the holding, management and disposition of any estate, real or personal, and the rents and profits thereof, or the sale thereof, as may be granted or confided to it by any court of record, or by any person, corporation, municipality or other authority; and it shall be accountable to all parties in interest for the faithful discharge of every such trust, duty or power, which it may so accept.

8. To take, accept and execute any and all such trusts and powers of whatever nature or description, as may be conferred upon or intrusted or committed to it by any person or persons, or any body politic, corporation or other authority, by grant, assignment, transfer, devise, bequest or otherwise, or which may be intrusted or committed or transferred to it or vested in it by order of any court of record, and to receive and take and hold any property or estate, real or personal, which may be the subject of any such trust.

9. To purchase, invest in, guarantee and sell stocks, bills of exchange, bonds and mortgages and other securities; and when moneys, or securities for moneys, are borrowed or received on deposit, or for investment, the bonds or obligation of the company may be given therefor, but it shall have no right to issue bills to circulate as money.

10. To act as executor under the last will or as administrator of the estate of any deceased person, or as guardian of any infant, insane person, idiot or habitual drunkard, or trustee for any convict in the penitentiary under appointment of any court of record having jurisdiction of the estate of such deceased person, infant, insane person, idiot, habitual drunkard or convict.

Explanatory.—Subdivision 11 of this article, appearing in Rev. Civ. St. 1911, was repealed by Acts 1913, p. 207, § 2.

430. Commissioner to report to legislature, requisites.

Article 386. Savings banks, incorporated how.—Any five or more persons who shall have associated themselves by articles of agreement in writing, may be incorporated as a savings bank, under any name or title designating such business, such agreement in writing to constitute the articles of association of such corporation. [Acts 1905, S. S., pp. 489, 491, sec. 13.]

Explanatory.—Certain requirements in addition to those contained in this chapter are contained in articles 517a-517c, post, prescribing the method of procuring charters for banks.

Restrictions as to the name or title are imposed by article 525b, post.

Art. 387. Articles of association, requisites.—Such agreement shall set out:

1. The corporate name of the proposed corporation, which shall not be the name of any other corporation heretofore incorporated in this state for similar purposes, nor an imitation of such name.
2. The name of the city, town or county in which such corporation is to be located.
3. The amount of capital stock of the corporation, which shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each; and that the entire amount thereof has been subscribed and actually paid up, in lawful money of the United States, and is in possession of the persons named as the first board of directors.
4. The names and places of residence of the several shareholders, and the number of shares subscribed by each.
5. The number of the board of directors, and the names of those agreed upon for the first year.
6. The number of years the corporation is to continue, which in no case is to exceed fifty years.
7. The purpose for which the corporation is formed. [Id. sec. 13.]

See note under preceding article.

Art. 388. Further requisites.—The articles of association shall state that the entire amount of the capital stock of such proposed corporation has been paid in. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 389. To be signed, acknowledged and recorded.—Said articles of association shall be sworn to and shall be signed and acknowledged by the parties thereto, and filed in the office of the secretary of state, and by him recorded, and a certified copy returned to the incorporators, who shall record the same in the county clerk's office of the county of the domicile of such corporation. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 390. Board of directors and other officers.—The property and business of savings banks shall be controlled and managed by a board of directors, not less than five nor more than thirteen in number, who shall be stockholders of the corporation, and a majority of whom shall be bona fide citizens of the state, to be elected by ballot of the shareholders of the corporation, for one year, at such time and place as shall be directed by the by-laws of the corporation, of which time and place at least two weeks' notice shall be published in some newspaper, published at least once a week, in the city or county where such corporation is located. Such election shall be made by such of the shareholders as shall attend in person or by proxy in writing. In case the election shall not be made on the date named, the corporation shall not thereby be dissolved, but an election may be held any other time, agreeably to the by-laws of the corporation; and the persons so elected shall hold office until their successors are elected and qualified. If the board of directors shall exceed five, they shall, as soon as may be after organization, divide themselves by ballot into three classes of equal number, as near as may be, designated the first, second and third class, of which the first class shall remain in office for one year, the second class two years and the third class three years; and, at each annual election, conducted in the manner hereinbefore designated, directors shall be elected for the term of three years, to fill vacancies created by the retiring classes. In case of death or resignation of one or more of such directors, the survivors shall fill the vacancies until the next election. The directors shall elect from their number a president, one or more vice presidents, a secretary and treasurer, and may appoint such other officers and agents as they may deem necessary for the proper conducting of the business of the corporation, and may allow them reasonable compensation for services rendered; and the vote of a majority of the full board shall be requisite for the appointment of any officer receiving a salary therefrom, or to fix or increase the salary of any officer. No person shall be disqualified from being a director by reason of his being a director or officer of a bank or savings institution organized under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 391. Meetings of board of directors, quorum.—Regular meetings of the board of directors of savings banks shall be held at least once in each month, for the purpose of receiving reports of the officers and committees, and for the transaction of other business. A quorum at any regular, special or adjourned meeting shall consist of not less than a majority of directors, but less than a quorum may adjourn from time to time, until the next regular meeting. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 392. Capital stock prescribed, to be subscribed and paid up.—The capital stock of any savings bank shall not be less than ten thousand dollars, in cities having a population of fifty thousand inhabitants or under, and not less than fifty thousand dollars in cities having a population of more than fifty thousand; the entire amount of capital stock to be subscribed in good faith, and actually paid up in lawful money of the United States at the time of filing of article of association. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 393. Capital stock limited, requirements as to increase of.—No savings bank formed under the provisions of this chapter shall have a capital stock of more than five million dollars, and any such corporation may increase its capital stock in any amount within the limit of this article; but all increase of stock shall be subscribed for in good faith and shall be paid up in full in lawful money of the United States, at the time of filing the certificate of increase; provided, that stockholders shall have the first right to subscribe to such increase in capital stock in proportion to the amount of stock held by each. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 394. Stock a guarantee fund, and invested, etc.—Said capital stock, however, shall be regarded as a guarantee fund, for the security of depositors, and shall be invested as provided in article 403. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 395. Powers of corporation.—Savings banks shall have authority:

1. To receive, accumulate and safely keep any deposits of money from any persons, corporations or societies, and to invest, hold and repay the same, crediting and paying interest thereon, as in this act authorized and provided, and not otherwise.

2. At its option, in connection therewith, to take and receive as bailee, for safe keeping and storage, jewelry, plate, money, specie, bullion, stocks, bonds, securities and valuable papers of any kind, and other valuables, guaranteeing their safety upon such terms and for such compensation as may be agreed upon, and to let out vaults, safes, and other receptacles for the use, benefit and purposes of such corporations. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 495. Acts 1907, p. 305, sec. 16.]

Art. 396. May limit deposits, etc.—Every such corporation shall have the right to limit the aggregate amount which they will receive from any one person or society to such sum as they may deem expedient, and may, in their discretion, refuse to receive the sum offered, and may also at any time return all or any part of any sum received; provided, that the aggregate amount that may be received from any one individual or corporation shall not exceed four thousand dollars, inclusive of dividends. But this limitation shall not apply to moneys arising from judicial sales or trust funds, or if received pursuant to order of a court of record, or to moneys or property received as bailee for safe keeping and storage only. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 489, sec. 26.]

Art. 397. Payment of deposits; regulations; notice, interest.—Deposits made with savings banks shall be paid to depositors, or their representatives, when requested, under regulations as the board of directors may prescribe, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, which regulations shall be printed and conspicuously posted in all places where deposits are received, accessible and visible to all depositors; but no alteration in such regulations shall in any manner affect depositors in respect to any deposits or interest thereon, made prior to such alterations, and it shall be lawful to require sixty days written notice of the withdrawal of any deposit. Any account may be closed at any time upon notice to the depositor, and, after such notice, the deposit shall cease to draw interest; provided, nothing in this section [article] shall be so construed as to prevent the issuing of certificates of deposit, payable on demand, or such other time as may be agreed upon by the depositor and this bank or corporation. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 398. Pass book, requirements as to.—A pass book shall be issued by savings banks to each depositor, containing the rules and regulations adopted by the board of directors, governing deposits, in which book shall be entered each deposit made by, and each payment made to, such depositor; and no payment or check against any such savings account shall be made, unless accompanied by, and entered in, the pass book issued therefor, except for good cause and on assurance satisfactory to the officers of the bank. At least once in every three years the pass book of all depositors shall be called in and verified in such manner as the board of directors shall elect. The directors may provide for making payments in case of loss of pass book or other exceptional case, when its production may produce loss or serious inconvenience to the parties. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 399. Deposit in name of minor or female thereafter married.—Whenever any deposit shall be made with any savings bank by or in the name of any person being a minor or a female, being or thereafter becoming a married woman, the same shall be held for the exclusive right and benefit of such depositor, and free from the control or lien of all persons whatsoever, except creditors, and shall be paid, together with the interest thereon, upon production of, and proper entry in, the pass book at the time of such payment, and in accordance with the by-laws of the corporation, to the person in whose name the deposit shall have been made, and the receipt or acquittance of such minor or female shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge for such deposit, or any part thereof, to the corporation. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 400. Deposit in trust.—Whenever any deposit shall be made by any persons in trust for another, and no other or further notice of the existence and terms of a legal and valid trust shall have been given in writing to the bank, in the event of the death of the trustee, the same, or any part thereof, together with the dividends or interest thereon, may be paid to the person for whom the said deposit was made. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 401. No interest paid or declared until when, nor unless, etc.—No interest shall be paid or declared by savings banks until the board of directors of such corporation cause an examination to be made of the assets and securities, and find the amount of such interest and dividend has been actually earned and accrued, and no interest or dividend shall be paid or declared, unless authorized by a vote of the board of directors, at a regular meeting duly entered on the minutes. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 402. Interest rate paid, to be regulated by directors.—It shall be the duty of the board of directors of savings banks to regulate, from time to time, the rate of interest to be allowed to depositors out of the net profits, and to pay or credit the same semi-annually on semi-annual interest dates, to be fixed by the by-laws; provided, however, that the directors of any such corporation may classify its depositors according to character, amount and duration of their dealings with the corporation, and regulate the interest allowed in such manner that each depositor shall receive the ratable portion of interest as all others of the same class. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 403. Deposits invested, how.—All sums so received, except those held as bailee, for safe keeping and storage only, and the income derived therefrom, and all moneys intrusted to any such corporation by order of court, shall be invested as follows:

1. In bonds or interest bearing notes or obligations of the United States, or of those for which the faith of the United States is pledged for the payment of principal and interest.

2. In bonds of the state of Texas, or of any state in the union that has not, within the last five years previous to making such investments, defaulted in the payment of any part of either principal or interest thereof.

3. In bonds of any city, county, town or school district of this state, which has not defaulted in the payment of any part of either principal or interest thereof, within five years previous to making such investments.

4. In the first mortgage bonds of any steam railroad, the income of which is sufficient to pay all operating expenses and fixed charges, which has its domicile in the state.

5. In bonds or notes secured by first mortgages or deed of trust on unincumbered real estate worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon. But the mortgage investment of such corporation shall not exceed sixty per cent of its total assets.

6. In real estate sufficient to reasonably furnish a domicile for such corporation, and no more. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 404. Same subject.—It shall be the duty of the directors of any such savings bank, as soon as practicable, to invest such fund of money, by purchase or otherwise, in the securities mentioned in article 403, and, from time to time, sell and invest the proceeds of such investments, but, for the purpose of meeting current demands and expenses in excess of the receipts, any of the securities may be sold or pledged. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 405. Application for loans, how made; record of; presented to board.—All applications for loans shall be made in writing through the treasurer of the corporation, who shall keep a record thereof, showing the date, name of applicant, amount asked for and security offered, and shall cause the same to be presented to the board of directors. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 406. Cash reserve.—There shall be kept an available cash fund of not less than fifteen per cent of the whole amount of its assets, and the same, or any part thereof, may be kept, on hand or on deposit, payable on demand, in any bank or banking association of the state of Texas, or under the laws of the United States, approved by the superintendent of banking, and having a paid up capital stock of fifty thousand dollars or more, but the deposits in any one bank or trust company shall not exceed twenty per cent of the total deposits, capital and surplus of such savings banks. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 407. Indemnity fund and guaranty fund.—When the guaranty fund of any savings bank amounts to a sum equal to the capital stock of the corporation, and after interest on the deposits and dividends on the capital stock have been paid, as herein provided, the board of directors shall, at the time of making the regular semi-annual dividends, set aside and reserve from the remaining net profits which have accumulated during the preceding six months, a sum not exceeding one-fourth of one per cent of the total deposits on such interest day, to be known as indemnity fund, until such fund amounts to ten per cent of the whole deposits; and such fund shall thereafter be maintained and held to meet any contingency or loss from depreciation of securities or otherwise. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 408. Guaranty and indemnity funds, rule in determining per cent of.—In determining the per cent of the guaranty and indemnity funds so held by savings banks, the interest-bearing notes and bonds shall not be estimated above their par value, or above their market value, if below par; its bonds and mortgages and deeds of trust, not in arrears of interest for a period longer than one year, at their face; its real estate at not above cost. All debts due any savings bank or institution on which the interest is past due for a period of twelve months, unless well secured and in process of collection, shall be considered as bad debts, and shall be charged to profit and loss account at the expiration of that time. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 409. No dividend over ten per cent, etc.; nor except as provided.—No dividend exceeding ten per cent per annum shall be paid on its capital stock in any event, and no dividend shall be paid except as herein provided. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 410. Dividend not over ten per cent. may be declared when, etc.—Whenever interest at rate of not less than three per cent per annum shall have been paid or credited by savings banks out of the net profits of the current six months on all savings or trust funds which may be entitled thereto, the board of directors may, out of the remaining net earnings of such six month, if any there be, declare and pay a dividend on the capital stock of the corporation, not exceeding the rate of ten per centum per annum on the par value thereof; provided, however, that no such dividends shall be declared or paid until at least one-tenth of the profits of the corporation for such period of six months shall be carried to the credit of the guaranty fund, until such fund equals the amount of the capital stock, which sum shall be invested as provided herein for the investment of the capital fund. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 411. Dividends, further provisions as to, and as to net profit.—If, for any period of six months, the net profits shall not be sufficient to pay a dividend on the capital stock of any savings bank, amounting to three per cent for such six months, then, if there are any net profits in any succeeding six months period or periods, over the interest required to be paid depositors for such period or periods, and the amount required to be carried to the guaranty fund, such excess or net profits shall be applied to the arrears of the dividend on the capital stock, until such arrears of dividend are paid in full; and no part of the net profit shall be credited on the indemnity fund, as provided in article 407, or to the payment of the extra interest to the depositors, as provided in article 412. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 412. Division of net profit, guaranty and indemnity funds.—Once in every term of three years, if the net profits of savings banks which have accumulated over and above the guaranty and indemnity funds, as provided in articles 407 and 410, amount to one per cent of the deposits which have remained with such corporation, for at least one year next preceding, such net profits shall be divided among the depositors whose deposits shall have remained therein at least one year next preceding, in proportion to the amount of interest which has been paid on their deposits during the three years then next preceding. But nothing in this section [article] shall be so construed as to require the payment of any interest on money or property received as bailee for safe keeping and storage only. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 413. Safety deposit box rent, default in payment of; proceedings on.—Any corporation which has been authorized, or may hereafter be authorized, to own or control a safety vault and rent the boxes therein, may, if the amount due for the use of any safe or box in the vault of such corporation shall not have been paid for two years, at the expiration thereof, cause to be sent to the person in whose name such safe or box stands on its books, a notice in writing, in a securely closed, postpaid, registered letter, directed to such person at his post-office address, as recorded upon the books of the corporation, notifying such person that, if the amount then due for the use of such safe or box is not paid within sixty days from the date of such notice, the corporation will then cause such safe or box to be opened in the presence of its president, or vice president, or secretary, or treasurer, and of a notary public, not an officer or in the employ of the corporation, and the contents thereof, if any, to be sealed up by such notary public in a package, upon which such notary public shall distinctly mark the name and address of the person in whose name such safe or box stands upon the books of the corporation, and the estimated value thereof. And the package so sealed and addressed, when marked for identification by such notary public, will be placed by such notary public in one of the general safes or boxes of the corporation, and retained by the corporation, subject to the payment of all rent that may be unpaid, and of all expenses incurred in opening the safe or box, and also of a reasonable compensation for the safe-keeping of the contents, after their removal from the safe or box. [Id. sec. 57.]

Art. 414. Powers of savings bank as to real estate.—It shall be lawful for any savings bank to purchase, hold, sell and convey real estate as follows:

1. The house and lot on which is the domicile of such corporation, and from portions of which, not required for its own use, any revenue may be derived, not to exceed in value twenty per cent of the capital of such association.
2. Such as shall be purchased by it at sales upon foreclosure of mortgages or deeds of trusts owned by such corporations, or upon judgments or decrees rendered for debts due to it, or purchased or taken in settlement to secure such debts, and all such interest shall be sold by such corporation within five years after same shall be vested in it, unless the superintendent shall extend the time within which such sale shall be made. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 415. Corporation, etc., shall not repurchase lands sold.—At the sale of lands or real estate acquired by said corporation the said corporation shall not repurchase said real estate, directly or indirectly, nor shall any officer, director or person holding stock in said coporation be a purchaser of said real estate for the use of the corporation. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 416. Powers of directors.—The board of directors of any such corporation shall have power, from time to time, to make such laws, rules and regulations as they may think proper for the election of officers, for prescribing their respective powers and duties, and the manner of discharging same; for the appointment of committees, and generally for transacting, managing and directing the affairs of the corporation; provided, such by-laws, rules and regulations be not repugnant thereto, nor inconsistent with the provisions of this title, nor the constitution of this state, nor of the United States. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 417. Notices and rules posted, effect of.—Notices and rules, posted conspicuously by savings banks in the room where such business is transacted, shall be equivalent to a personal notice, to each person or party interested. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 418. Compensation of directors, when and how allowed.—It shall be lawful for directors, acting as officers of savings banks, whose duties may require their regular and faithful attendance at the institution, to receive such compensation as the majority of the board of directors shall deem just and reasonable; but such majority shall be exclusive of any director to whom such compensation shall be voted. But it shall not be lawful to pay the directors as such for attendance at the meetings of the board. [Id. sec. 36.]

Art. 419. No director to receive pay for services, except, etc.—No director shall, directly or indirectly, receive any payment or emolument for his services as such of any savings bank, except as provided in article 418. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 420. Restriction as to fees, brokerage, etc.—No such corporation, or any person acting in its behalf, shall negotiate, take or receive a fee, brokerage, commission or gift, or other consideration, for or on account of the loan made by and in behalf of such corporation, other than appears on the face of the note or contract by which such loan purports to be made. But nothing contained herein shall apply to any reasonable charge for services in the examination of title, and the preparation of conveyance to such corporation as security for its loan. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 421. No director or officer to borrow funds, nor use, except, etc., nor be surety, etc., for loans to bank.—No director or officer of such corporation shall, directly or indirectly, for himself, or as agent or partner of others, borrow any of the funds of the corporation, or funds in its custody, or in any manner use the same, except to make necessary current payments for the corporation, or to make investments, or to deposit for safety, under the direction and authority of the board of directors; nor shall any director or officer of such corporation be an indorser or surety or in any way be an obligor for moneys loaned by or borrowed of the corporation. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 422. Fees, etc., to member of board, to be reported.—All sums paid for services, fees, or otherwise, to a member of the board of directors shall be reported in detail at each regular meeting of the directors. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 423. Penalty for directors borrowing, being surety, failure to attend meetings, etc.—Whenever a director of such corporation shall borrow, directly or indirectly, any of the funds of the institution of which he is a director, or become surety or guarantor for any money borrowed of, or loan made by, such corporation; or, upon his failure to attend regular meetings of the board, or to perform any duties devolved upon him as such director, for three successive months, without having been excused by the board for such failure, the office of such director shall become vacant; but the director vacating his office, for failure to attend meetings, or to discharge his duties, may, in the discretion of the board, be eligible to re-election. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 424. Security from officers, agents, etc., for fidelity.—The board of directors of savings banks may, from time to time, require from the officers, employés and agents such security for their fidelity and good conduct as may be necessary. [Id. sec. 37.]

Art. 425. Annual report of savings banks, etc., to commissioner; form; requisites.—Every savings bank organized under this title shall, on or before the first day of November in each year, make a report in writing to the commissioner of insurance and banking, in such form as he may prescribe, of its condition on the first day of September preceding. Such report shall state the amount loaned on bonds and mortgages, together with a list thereof; the par value and the estimated market value of all bond investments, designating each particular kind, and the amount invested in each; the amount loaned upon pledge of deposits, with a statement of the amount held as collateral for such loans; the amount of cash on hand and on deposit in banks or trust companies, with their names and amount deposited in each; the amount of all assets, including interest accrued and not enumerated above, and such other information as the commissioner may require. [Id. sec. 69.]

Art. 426. Report continued and requisites.—Such reports shall also state all liabilities of such savings bank, on the morning of the first day of September, the amount due depositors, which shall include any dividend to be created to them for six months on that day, and any other claims against the corporation which are or may be charged against its assets. Such reports shall also state the amount of all deposits made during the fiscal year ending that day, and the amount drawn out during the same period; the whole amount of interest received and earned, and the amount of interest paid and credited to depositors, together with the amount of each semi-annual credit of interest; the number of accounts opened and re-opened, the number closed during the year, and the number of open accounts at the end of such year, and such other information as the commissioner may require. [Id. sec. 70.]

Art. 427. Report continued, and requisites, examination of books as basis, etc., forfeiture for failure to report.—Such report shall be verified by the oath of the two principal officers of such savings bank; and the statement of the assets shall be verified by the oath of at least three of the board of directors, who shall examine the same pursuant to the requirements of this section [article.] It shall be the duty of not less than three of the directors, on or about the first day of September of each year, to thoroughly examine the books, vouchers and assets of such institution, and its affairs generally; and the statement of assets and liabilities reported to the commissioner on the first day of November of each year shall be based upon such examination; but nothing herein contained shall be construed as prohibiting the directors from requiring such examination at such other times as they shall prescribe. Any such corporation failing to furnish to the commissioner any report or statement required by this act shall forfeit the sum of one hundred dollars per day for every day such report or statement shall be so withheld; and the commissioner may maintain an action in his name of office to recover such penalty, and, when collected, the same shall be paid into the treasury of the state, and be applied to the school fund; but the commissioner may, for sufficient cause, extend the time for making such report, not exceeding thirty days. [Id. sec. 71.]

Art. 428. Commissioner may give directions to savings bank, etc., when; communication to attorney general; his duties; order of court.—Whenever it shall appear to the said commissioner, from any such examination or report, that any such savings bank is conducting its business in an unsafe or unauthorized manner, he shall, by an order under his hand and seal, direct the discontinuance of such illegal and unsafe, or unauthorized practices, and strict conformity with the requirements of the law, and with safety and security in its transactions; and whenever any such corporation shall refuse or neglect to make any such report, as is hereinbefore required, or comply with any such orders, as aforesaid, or whenever it shall appear to the commissioner that it is unsafe or inexpedient for any such corporation to continue to transact business, or that extraordinary withdrawals of money are jeopardizing the interests of remaining depositors, or that any director or officer has abused his trust, or been guilty of misconduct or of malversation in his official position, injurious to the institution, or that it has suffered a serious loss by fire, burglary, repudiation or otherwise, he shall communicate the facts to the attorney general, who shall thereupon institute such proceedings as the nature of the case may require. Such proceedings may be for an order restraining the institution from paying more than ten per cent of its funds in any six months, or until a further order of court, or for the removal of one or more of the board of directors, or for the appointment of a receiver or receivers, to wind up the affairs of such corporation. And the court before which such proceedings shall be instituted shall have the power to grant such orders, and, in its discretion, from time to time, modify or revoke the same, and to grant such relief as the evidence, situation of the parties and the interests involved shall seem to require; and, whenever in such proceedings, an order shall be granted, restraining such corporation from paying out or disposing of any money or property of or held by such corporation, the commissioner may, and, if directed by the court, shall, take temporary possession of all the assets, property and rights of or held by such corporation, and hold such possession until restored to the directors, or until further order of the court. [Id. sec. 74.]

Art. 429. Visitation of savings banks, etc., by commissioner, etc.; powers, expenses; certificate; report.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner, once in two years, either personally or by one or more competent persons to be appointed by him, to visit and examine every such savings bank in this state. The commissioner shall also have the power in like manner to examine any such corporation whenever, in his judgment, it may be deemed necessary or expedient. The commissioner and every other such examiner shall have the power to administer an oath to any person whose testimony may be required on any such examination, and to compel the appearance and attendance of any such person for the purpose of such examination by summons, subpœna, or attachment, in the manner now authorized in respect to the attendance of persons as witnesses in the courts of record of the state; and all books and papers, which it may be deemed necessary to examine by the superintendent or examiner so appointed, shall be produced, and their production may be compelled in like manner. The expense of every such special examination, if any, shall be paid by the corporation examined, in such manner as the commissioner shall certify to be just and reasonable; but, whenever such special examination shall be made by the commissioner in person, or by one or more of the regular clerks in his department, no charge shall be made except for necessary traveling and other actual expenses. The result of any such examination shall be certified by the examiners, or one of them, upon the records of the corporation examined; and the result of all the regular examinations during the previous year shall be embodied in the annual report of the commissioner required by this chapter to be submitted to the legislature. [Id. sec. 73.]

Art. 430. Commissioner to report to legislature, requisites.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner on or before the first day of February, during the session of the legislature, to communicate to the legislature a statement of the condition of every such savings bank from which a report has been received for the past preceding years; also the name and location of the savings banks and institutions for savings authorized by him during the previous two years, with the date of their incorporation. [Id. sec. 72.]

444. Assets not to be reduced below deposits, and fifteen per cent to be cash.

Article 431. Bank, etc., desiring to establish savings department, etc., shall do what.—Any state bank or banking and trust company, incorporated under the laws of this state, desiring to maintain a savings department or to use or continue to use the word "savings" as part of its corporate name, or in or as part of any sign or advertisement, or in or upon any stationery used or to be used by it, shall establish and maintain a savings department in compliance with the provisions of this chapter. Such savings department may be established by the board of directors adopting a resolution providing therefor, at a regular meeting, which shall contain a copy of this chapter; and a certified copy of which shall be filed in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking, and also recorded in the office of the county clerk of the county in which such bank or banking and trust company is located; such copies to be filed in the bank or banking and trust companies maintaining such savings departments and using the word "savings" as above provided, which desire to continue to do so, and be filed by banks desiring to establish such savings departments prior to the establishment of such department. All banks or banking and trust companies establishing or maintaining a savings department or using the word "savings," as above provided, or which, having such departments or using the word "savings," shall continue to maintain such departments or to so use the word "savings," shall keep the business of such department entirely separate and distinct from the general business of such bank or banking and trust company, and shall keep all moneys received as such savings deposits and the funds and securities in which the same may be invested at all times segregated from and unmingled with the other moneys and funds of the bank or banking and trust company. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 406, sec. 13.]

Art. 432. Shall invest not over eighty-five per cent of savings deposits, how; power to sell and reinvest.—Such banks or banking and trust companies may invest not more than eighty-five per cent of the total amount of such savings deposits in any of the following classes of securities, and not otherwise, to wit:

1. In bonds or interest bearing notes or obligations of the United States or of those for which the faith of the United States is pledged for the payment of principal and interest.

2. In bonds of any city, county, town or school district or other subdivision of this state, now organized or which may hereafter be organized, and which is now or may hereafter be authorized to issue bonds under the constitution and laws of this state, which has not defaulted in the payment of any part of either principal or interest thereof, within five years previous to making such investments.

3. In bonds of the state of Texas, or of any state of the union that has not within the last five years previous to making such investment defaulted in the payment of any part of either principal or interest thereof.

4. In the first mortgage bonds of any steam or electric railroad, the income of which is sufficient to pay all operating expenses and fixed charges, which has its domicile in the state.

5. In bonds or notes secured by first mortgage, deed of trust or other valid lien on unincumbered, improved real estate to run for a term of not longer than ten years, situated in the state, worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon, such bonds or notes to be always accompanied by a complete abstract of title to the property mortgaged and an attorney's certificate or title insurance policy in some company incorporated under the laws of this state, certifying said bonds or notes to be the first lien on the land mortgaged.

It shall be the duty of the directors of such bank or banking and trust company, as soon as practicable, to invest the moneys and funds of such savings department, by purchase or otherwise, in the securities above described. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 433. May sell securities and reinvest proceeds.—The directors shall, from time to time, sell and reinvest the proceeds of such investments. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 434. To meet current demands, securities may be sold, or taken up by bank, etc., out of guaranty fund.—For the purpose of meeting current demands in excess of the receipts, any of the securities may be sold, or taken up and replaced in cash, by the bank or banking and trust company, out of its general fund. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 435. Not less than fifteen per cent of deposits to be kept on hand in cash in savings department.—There shall be kept on hand, at all times, not less than fifteen per cent of the whole amount of such deposits in actual cash, in such savings department. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 436. Notice of withdrawal of deposits.—It shall be lawful to require sixty days written notice of the withdrawal of any savings deposits, as provided for in this chapter, at the option of the bank or banking and trust company. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 437. Exclusive prior lien of savings depositors on cash of savings department, etc.—In case of the insolvency or liquidation of any state bank or banking and trust company which shall establish or maintain a savings department, under the terms of this chapter, its savings depositors shall have an exclusive prior lien upon all the assets, including cash, of such savings department, and which shall be first paid; and the remainder, after they have been paid in full, shall be applied to the payment of claims of general creditors. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 438. Statement of assets and liabilities of savings department; no savings deposits to be received unless, etc.—It shall be the duty of the president of each state bank or banking and trust company, maintaining a savings department under the provisions of this chapter, to file with the commissioner of insurance and banking, not less than ten days after the first day of each calendar month, a statement of the assets and liabilities of such savings department, upon a form to be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance and banking; and it shall be unlawful for any officer of any state bank or banking and trust company to receive or assent to the receiving of any savings deposits, when the last preceding monthly statement, as herein provided for, is not conspicuously posted in the office from wherein its business is transacted. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 439. Directors may provide for interest on savings deposits, etc., provided, etc.—The directors of any state bank or banking and trust company establishing or maintaining, or continuing to maintain, a savings department, may provide that such rate of interest shall be paid on the saving deposits, as it may see fit, payable at such periods and upon such terms and conditions as may be reasonable; provided, that in any case the earnings of such savings department are insufficient to pay any interest due upon any savings deposits, such interest, or the deficiency therein, shall be paid by the bank or banking and trust company out of its general funds. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 440. Accumulated earnings of savings department may be transferred to general fund of bank, etc., when.—At the end of any period for which such bank or banking and trust company may lawfully declare a dividend upon its stock, it shall be proper to transfer to the general fund of such bank or banking and trust company all accumulated earnings of the said savings department, after the payment or credit of all interest due on the accrued savings deposits and the legitimate expenses of such department have been provided for. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 441. Savings department governed by provisions of this title, etc.—All such savings departments shall be governed by the terms and provisions of this title, so far as the same are applicable and are not in conflict with the special provisions of this chapter, and shall also be governed by such provisions of laws of the state applicable to savings banks as are not in conflict with any of the provisions of this title or of this chapter. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 442. Directors may adopt regulations; to be submitted to commissioner, etc.—Such reasonable rules and regulations for the control of such savings departments may be adopted and put in force by the board of directors at any regular meeting of the stockholders at any annual meeting; provided, that such rules and regulations shall not become effective until they have been submitted to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and by him approved. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 443. Certain acts forbidden.—It shall be unlawful for any director or officer of any bank or banking and trust company, which shall establish or maintain, or continue to maintain, a savings department, or which shall use the word "savings," as provided in this chapter, to knowingly misappropriate any moneys or funds belonging to such savings department, or to use or consent to the use of any such moneys or funds, otherwise than for the payment of lawful demands of savings depositors, and in the making of such investments as are prescribed in this chapter, and in the payment of such dividends to the shareholders as are allowed by the law to be paid therefrom, or to borrow any of the funds belonging to such savings department, or to in any way be an obligor for moneys loaned by or borrowed of such savings department, or to receive or accept, directly or indirectly, any commission, brokerage or other valuable thing or favor of any kind by reason or on account of any loan or investment made out of the funds of such savings department, or to sell such savings department any security or other investment. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 444. Assets not to be reduced below deposits, and fifteen per cent to be cash.—It shall be unlawful for any director or officer of any bank or banking and trust company, which shall establish or maintain, or continue to maintain, a savings department, or which shall use the word "savings," as provided in this chapter, to wilfully and knowingly do or perform any act or transaction by or as a result of which, at any time, the assets of such savings department, including cash, shall not at least equal in amount the deposits in such savings department, at least fifteen per cent of which shall be actual cash in such savings department. [Id. sec. 13.]

Article 445. What banking, etc., corporations may protect depositors under provisions of this chapter.—Each and every corporation which may hereafter be incorporated under the laws of this state, with banking and discounting privileges, and each banking and trust company in this state heretofore incorporated under the provisions of chapter 10 of the Acts of the first called session of the twenty-ninth legislature, and known as the state banking law, or hereafter incorporated under the provisions of this title, shall, at its option, protect its depositors in the manner hereinafter prescribed, either by availing itself of the depositors' guaranty fund herein provided for, or by the depositors bond security system hereinafter set forth. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 406, sec. 1.]

Art. 446. State banking board created, powers, etc.—A state banking board is hereby created, which board shall be composed of the attorney general, commissioner of insurance and banking and the treasurer of this state. Said board shall have the control and management of the depositors guaranty fund hereinafter provided for, and shall have the power to adopt all necessary rules and regulations in harmony with this chapter, for the management of said fund. Said board shall have the general supervision and control of the depositors bond security system provided for in this chapter, and shall have the power of the regulation, control and supervision of all state banking corporations and trust companies as hereinafter provided in this title. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 447. Such bank, etc., to have option of methods of securing deposits, must adopt one, when, etc.—Each and every bank and trust company, mentioned in article 445, shall have the right and privilege, at its option, to secure its depositors by the manner, method, and under the terms, provisions and regulations, as set forth in this title for the depositors guaranty fund or the bond security system; provided, that all such banks and trust companies shall secure their deposits by one of said plans on January 1, 1910; provided, further, that such option shall be exercised on or before October 1, 1909; and provided, that such option shall be exercised by the holders of the majority of the stock; and the president or cashier of such bank shall notify the commissioner of insurance and banking by registered mail of such action. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 448. Bank, etc., electing guaranty fund method, to pay what and when for creation of fund.—Any such bank or trust company which shall elect to secure its deposits under the depositors guaranty fund, provided for by this chapter, shall pay to said banking board, provided its application is approved by said board as prescribed in article 451, on January 1, 1910, one per cent of its daily average deposits, for the preceding year ending November 1, 1909, not including United States, state or other public funds, if otherwise secured, for the purpose of creating a depositors guaranty fund. Annually after the first payment to said fund, each bank and trust company subject to the provisions of the guaranty fund plan of this chapter, shall pay to said board one-fourth of one per cent of its daily average deposits for the year ending November 1 of the preceding year, as above defined, which amount shall be added to said guaranty fund; provided, that when the amount available in said guaranty fund shall reach the sum of two million dollars, the bank commissioner shall notify all banks and trust companies subject to this chapter, at least thirty days before the next annual payment; and thereafter the banks and trust companies participating shall not pay any further amount into said fund until said fund be depleted. In the event of the depletion of said fund from any cause so that it falls below two million dollars, or below the amount of the guaranty fund on January 1, preceding, or in the event of necessity to meet an emergency at any time, said board shall have authority to require the payment for the current year of two per cent of such average deposits, or such part thereof as may be necessary to restore said fund to the maximum above named, or to its amount as of January 1, preceding, or to meet the emergency; but no bank or trust company coming under the provisions of this chapter shall ever be required to pay more than two per cent of said average daily deposits for any one year; provided, further, that first payment herein provided for shall be made to said board without reference to said maximum sum. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 449. Fund paid to whom, and how; how paid out; no diversion; not state fund; duty of board.—The fund provided for in this chapter shall be paid to the state banking board as follows: Twenty-five per cent of each payment required of each such bank or banking and trust company shall be paid to said board in cash, and shall be by it deposited for safe keeping only with the state treasurer, as bailee for the state banking board, and shall be paid out by the state treasurer on warrants drawn by the order of said board; and said fund shall never be diverted from the purpose specified in this chapter, nor shall it ever be considered state funds. The remaining seventy-five per cent of each payment required shall be paid by each such bank or banking and trust company crediting the state banking board with such amount as a demand deposit subject to check upon the order of said board. It shall be the duty of said board to keep, at all times, twenty-five per cent of the amount of said fund deposited with the state treasurer in cash as provided herein. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 450. Certain bank and trust companies to pay what; credit fund.—State bank and trust companies, organized less than one year prior to the taking effect of this law, or hereafter organized, on approval of their applications, as provided for in article 451, shall pay into said guaranty fund three per cent of the amount of their capital stock and surplus, which amount shall constitute a credit fund, subject to adjustment on the basis of their deposits as provided for other banks now existing, at the end of one year; provided, however, that said payment shall not be required of banks and trust companies formed by the reorganization or consolidation of banks that have previously complied with the terms of this chapter. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 451. Board to admit, etc., only such banks, etc., as they deem solvent, etc.; applications; grounds of refusal to be stated.—The state banking board shall admit to the benefits and protection of this chapter only such banks and trust companies as, in their opinion, are solvent and properly officered and conducted, and shall prescribe the form of application and statement which shall be made by each and every bank and trust company, and which shall be sworn to by two of the chief officers of the bank, blank copies of which application and statement shall be mailed to each state bank and trust company in this state at least ten days before this chapter requires the initial payment, and which shall be filled out, signed and sworn to and returned promptly to said board; and such copies shall be mailed to any other bank within this state on request. Should said board decline the application of any bank and trust company, it shall state the ground of such declination to such institution, and whether the objection can be removed, and the condition thereof. [Id., sec. 7.]

Art. 452. National banks may avail of protection of guaranty fund; may withdraw when.—Any national bank in this state may voluntarily avail its depositors of the protection of the depositors guaranty fund, upon the same terms, payments, conditions and in the same manner as herein provided for state banks; provided, that in the event national banks should be required by federal enactment to pay assessments to any bank guaranty fund of the federal government, and thereby the deposits in national banks in this state should be guaranteed by virtue of federal laws, that the national banks having availed themselves of the benefits of this chapter, may withdraw therefrom and have returned to them the unused portion of all assessments levied upon and paid by said banks. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 453. Commissioner may wind up affairs of bank, by receiver, or, etc.; bond; notice.—Whenever any state bank or trust company shall become insolvent and shall voluntarily, or by law, or in any manner as provided in this title, come into the hands of the commissioner of insurance and banking, he may proceed to wind up its affairs, either through a receiver or through some competent person, who shall give bond as may be required by the board, payable to the board, for the faithful performance of all duties imposed upon him. Said bond may be recovered upon for the benefit of said guaranty fund, or any party at interest. On taking possession of the property and business of any such state bank, the commissioner shall forthwith give notice of such fact to any and all banks, trust companies, associations and individuals holding or in possession of any assets of any such state bank. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 454. No bank, etc., notified shall have a lien or charge against assets for payment, etc., thereafter.—No bank, trust company, association, or individual, knowing of such taking possession by the commissioner, or notified as aforesaid, shall have a lien or charge for any payment, advance of clearance thereafter made, or liability thereafter incurred against any of the assets of the state bank of whose property and business the commissioner shall have taken possession as aforesaid. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 455. Bank, etc., may resume business with the consent of board, when, etc.—Such state bank may, with the consent of the state banking board, resume business upon such condition as may be approved by such board, which permission shall be evidenced by a written statement to that effect from the commissioner. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 456. General powers and duties of commissioner.—Upon taking possession of the property and business of such state bank, the commissioner is authorized to collect moneys due to such corporation, and do such other acts as are necessary to conserve its assets and business, and shall proceed to liquidate the affairs thereof as provided in this chapter. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 457. Shall collect debts, etc.—The commissioner shall collect all debts due and claims belonging to such state bank. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 458. On order of court, etc., may sell, etc., bad debts, or real or personal property.—Upon the order of the district court, if in session, or the judge thereof, if in vacation, of the county in which such state bank was located and transacting business, the commissioner may sell or compound all bad or doubtful debts, and, on like order, may sell the real or personal property of such state bank, on such terms as the court shall direct. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 459. May enforce liability of stockholders; if, etc.—The commissioner may, if necessary to pay the debts of such state bank, enforce the individual liability of the stockholders. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 460. May appoint agents, etc., and give what authority.—The commissioner may, under his hand and official seal, appoint one or more special agents to assist him in the duty of liquidation and distribution, the certificate of appointment to be filed in the office of the commissioner, and a certified copy in the office of the clerk of the county court in which such state bank was located and transacted business. The commissioner may, from time to time, authorize a special agent to perform such duties connected with such liquidation and distribution as the said commissioner may deem proper. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 461. May employ counsel and expert assistance, etc.—The commissioner may employ such counsel and procure such expert assistance as may be necessary in the liquidation and distribution of the assets of such state bank, and may retain such of the officers or employés of such state bank as he may deem necessary. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 462. May require security from agents, etc.—The commissioner shall require from a special agent, and from such assistants, such security for the faithful discharge of their duties as he may deem proper. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 463. Notices to claimants and creditors; statement therein.—The commissioner shall cause notice to be given, by advertisement in such newspapers as he may direct, weekly, for three consecutive months, calling on all persons who may have claims against such state bank to present the same to the commissioner, and make legal proof thereof, at a place and within a time not earlier than the last day of publication, to be therein specified, which notice shall contain a statement, in larger type than that in which the body of such notice is printed, specifically stating that all such claims of guaranteed depositors must be presented and legal proof thereof made at the place designated within forty-five days after the date when the property and business of such state bank was taken possession of by the commissioner, and that all claims of guaranteed depositors presented after expiration of forty-five days shall not be entitled to payment of any portion thereof out of the depositors guaranty fund. The commissioner shall mail a similar notice to all persons whose names appear as creditors upon the books of the state bank. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 464. May reject claim if, etc., notice, etc., action on.—If the commissioner doubts the justice and validity of any claim, he may reject the same, and serve notice of such rejection upon the claimants, either by mail or by written notice personally served. An affidavit of the service of such notice, which shall be prima facie evidence thereof, shall be filed with the commissioner. The action upon the claim so rejected must be brought within six months after such service. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 465. Claims presented after expiration of time; rights of.—Claims presented after the expiration of the time fixed in the notice to the creditors shall be entitled to share in the distribution only to the extent of the assets in the hands of the commissioner equitably applicable thereto. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 466. Inventory of assets of bank; and list of claims; requisites; filing; open to inspection.—Upon taking possession of the property and assets of such state bank, the commissioner shall make an inventory of the assets of such bank in duplicate, one to be filed in the office of the commissioner, and one in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which such state bank was located and transacting business; upon the expiration of the time fixed for the presentation of claims, the commissioner shall make a full and complete list of the claims presented, including and specifying such claims as have been rejected by him, and showing fully all claims and amounts paid to guaranteed depositors out of the depositors guaranty fund, and the amount to which said fund is entitled by reason of its subrogation to the rights of such guaranteed depositors so paid, and all amounts held by him on account of claims of guaranteed depositors, which have been rejected or are in dispute, one to be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which such state bank was located and transacted business. Such inventory and list of claims shall be open at all reasonable times to inspection. [Id. sec. 9.]

Commissioner of banking.—See Title 65, Chapter 7.

Art. 467. Compensation of agents, etc.; expenses.—All compensation of special agents, counsel and other employés and assistants, and all expenses of supervision and liquidation, shall be fixed by the commissioner, subject to the approval of the district court, if in session, or the judge thereof, if in vacation, of the district in which such state bank was located and transacting business, on notice to such state bank; provided, that the compensation of such special agents shall always be the same as is provided by law for state bank examiners, and shall, upon the certificate of the commissioner, be paid out of the fund of such state banks in the hands of the commissioner. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 468. Disposition of moneys collected by commissioner.—The moneys collected by the commissioner shall be, from time to time, deposited in one or more state banks, and, in case of the suspension or insolvency of the depository, such deposits shall be preferred before all other deposits. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 469. Dividends may be declared when, and how.—At any time after the expiration of the date fixed for the presentation of claims, the commissioner may, out of the funds remaining in his hands after the payment of expenses, declare one or more dividends, and, after the expiration of one year from the first publication of a notice to creditors, he may declare a final dividend, such dividends to be paid to such person and in such manner and upon such notice as may be directed by the district court, if in session, or the judge thereof, if in vacation, of the district in which such state bank was located and transacted business. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 470. Guaranty fund to receive its portion of dividends with interest; how paid.—In the declaration and payment of all such dividends, the depositors guaranty fund shall be entitled to receive, as its dividend, such portions of the amounts due and payable to guaranteed depositors as shall have been paid to them out of the depositors guaranty fund, together with six per cent interest thereon from the date or dates upon which checks were drawn upon all state banks, as hereinafter provided for the payment of the guaranteed deposits of such state banks; and the commissioner shall forthwith distribute such dividends to state banks, upon which checks were drawn for such payment of guaranteed deposits, in proportion to the amounts of such checks, respectively. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 471. Objections to allowed claims.—Objections to any claim not rejected by the commissioner may be made by any party interested, by filing a copy of such objections with the commissioner, who shall present the same to the district court, if in session, or the judge thereof, if in vacation, at the time of the next application to declare a dividend. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 472. Provision by court for unproved or unclaimed deposit.—The court may make proper provision for unproved or unclaimed deposits. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 473. Bank aggrieved may enjoin proceedings by commissioner.—Whenever any such state bank, of whose property and business the commissioner has taken possession, as aforesaid, deems itself aggrieved thereby, it may, at any time, apply to the district court, if in session, or to the judge thereof, if in vacation, of the district in which such bank is located and transacting business, to enjoin further proceedings; and said court, if in session, or the judge thereof, if in vacation, after citing the commissioner to show cause why further proceedings should not be enjoined, and hearing the allegations and proofs of the parties and determining the facts, may, upon the merits, dismiss such application, or enjoin the commissioner from further proceedings and direct him to surrender such business and property to such state bank. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 474. Continued liquidation by commissioner decided by stockholders.—Whenever the commissioner shall have paid to each and every depositor and creditor of such state bank (not including stockholders, except for the amount of their deposits over and above their liability under the law as stockholders), whose claim or claims as such creditor or depositor shall have been duly proven and allowed, the full amount of such claims, and shall have repaid to the depositors guaranty fund all amounts paid out of it to guaranteed depositors of such state bank, together with six per cent interest thereon, from the date when the checks to provide for such payment were drawn, and shall have made proper provision for unclaimed and unpaid deposits or dividends, and shall have paid all the expenses of the liquidation, the commissioner shall call a meeting of the stockholders of such state bank, by giving notice thereof for thirty days in one or more newspapers in the county where such state bank was located and transacted business. At such meeting, the stockholders shall determine whether the commissioner shall be continued as liquidator, and shall wind up the affairs of such state bank, or whether an agent or agents shall be elected for that purpose, and, in so determining, the said stockholders shall vote by ballot, in person or by proxy, each share of stock entitling the holder to one vote; and a majority of the stock shall be necessary to a determination. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 475. Continued liquidation by commissioner.—In case it is determined to continue the liquidation under the commissioner, he shall complete the liquidation of such corporation, and, after paying the expenses thereof, shall distribute the proceeds among the stockholders in proportion to the several holdings of stock, in such manner and upon such notice as may be directed by the district court. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 476. Continued liquidation by agent of stockholders; selection; bond.—In case it is determined to appoint an agent or agents to liquidate, the stockholders shall, thereupon, select such agent or agents by ballot, a majority of the stock present and voting, in person or by proxy, being necessary for a choice. Such agent or agents shall execute and file with the commissioner a bond, in such amount, with such sureties, and in such form, as shall be approved by the commissioner, conditioned for the faithful performance of all the duties of his or their trust. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 477. Transfer, etc., by commissioner; and his discharge from liability.—Upon the filing and approval of such bond, the commissioner shall transfer and deliver to such agent or agents all the undivided and unclaimed or other assets of such state bank then remaining in his hands; and, upon such transfer and delivery, the said commissioner shall be discharged from any further liability to such state bank and its creditors and stockholders. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 478. Duties of agent continuing liquidation.—Such agent or agents shall convert the assets coming into his or their possession into cash, and shall account for, and make distribution of, the property of said state bank, as herein provided in the case of distribution by the commissioner, except that the expenses thereof shall be subject to the direction and control of the district court, if in session, or the judge thereof, if in vacation, of the district in which such state bank was located and transacted business. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 479. On death, etc., of agent, successor selected; powers, etc.—In case of the death, removal, or refusal to act, of such agent or agents, the stockholders, on the same notice to be given by the commissioner, upon proof of such death, removal, or refusal to act, being filed with him, and by the same vote herein provided, may select a successor who shall have the same power and be subject to the same liabilities and duties as the agent originally elected. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 480. Dividends and unclaimed deposits unpaid, disposition of.—Dividends and unclaimed deposits remaining unpaid in the hands of the commissioner for six months after the order for final distribution shall be by him deposited in some state bank to be designated by the state banking board, to the credit of the commissioner in his name of office, in trust for the several depositors with, and creditors of, the liquidated state bank from which they were received, who are entitled thereto. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 481. Commissioner's report to show what.—The commissioner shall show in his official report the names of the state banks so taken possession of and liquidated, and the amounts of unclaimed and unpaid deposits or dividends, with respect to each of them, respectively. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 482. Commissioner to pay over moneys on order of board, etc., order of court, if, etc.—The commissioner shall pay over the moneys so held by him to the persons respectively entitled thereto, upon the order of the state banking board, who shall direct such payment to such persons, upon being furnished satisfactory evidence of their right to the same. In case of doubt or conflicting claims, the state banking board may require an order of the district court, if in session, or the judge thereof, if in vacation, authorizing and directing the payment thereof. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 483. Interest on such moneys how applied; report to include amount.—The state banking board may apply the interest earned by the moneys held by the commissioner, or may authorize him to apply the same, toward defraying the expenses incurred in payment and distribution of such unclaimed deposits or dividends to the depositors and creditors entitled to receive the same, and the commissioner shall include in his official report a statement of the amount of interest earned by such unclaimed dividends. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 484. Bank may place affairs under commissioner, how, etc.—Any state bank may, at any time, place its affairs and assets under the control of the commissioner, by posting a notice on its front door, as follows: "This institution is in the hands of the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas." [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 485. Effect of posting notices by commissioner; bars attachment, etc.—The posting of this notice, or of the same notice by the commissioner or any state bank examiner, at any time when he shall have taken possession of the property and business of a state bank, shall be sufficient to place all its assets and property, of whatever nature, in the possession of the commissioner, and shall operate as a bar to any attachment proceedings whatever. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 486. Depositors paid in full out of guaranty fund, etc., excepting interest bearing and secured deposits, paid pro rata from assets.—In the event the commissioner of insurance and banking shall take possession of any bank or trust company, subject to the depositors guaranty fund plan of this chapter, as herein provided, the depositors of said bank or trust company, as specified in article 448, shall be paid in full out of the cash in said bank or trust company that can be made immediately available from such bank; and the remainder shall be paid out of the depositors guaranty fund through the said board, in the event the cash available in said institution shall be insufficient; provided, that deposits upon which interest is being paid, or contracted to be paid, directly or indirectly by said bank, its officers or stockholders, to the depositor and deposits otherwise secured, shall not be insured under this chapter, but shall only receive the pro rata amount which may be realized from the assets, resources and collections of and from such banks and trust companies, its stockholders or directors. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 487. State to have first lien on assets, for benefit of guaranty fund; deposits not insured, etc., share in dividends of assets, etc.—The state shall have, for the benefit of the depositors guaranty fund, a first lien upon all assets of such bank or trust company and all liabilities owing or accruing to such bank or trust company in the event of the closing, as provided by law, of any such state bank or trust company, operating under the depositors guaranty fund plan; which lien shall attach and be in force from the time such bank or trust company is legally closed, upon all the property and assets then in possession of such bank or trust company; provided, however, that any deposits on which said bank was paying interest and any other deposits or debts not insured under this chapter, and which are entitled to share in the assets, shall share in the dividends and proceeds of such assets and collections pro rata or as may be provided by law. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 488. National bank receiver to refund amounts paid depositors out of guaranty fund.—In the event the depositors guaranty fund, or any part thereof, shall be used by said banking board to pay off the depositors of a national bank which has accepted the provisions of this law, then said banking board shall receive from the receiver, or other officer in charge of said bank, the pro rata share of the proceeds of the assets and collections which would be due to said depositors to the amount so paid by the banking board. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 489. Savings department deposits not included in estimate of payment into guaranty fund.—In computing the aggregate amount of average annual deposits of any bank or banking and trust company, for the purpose of determining the amount required to be paid into the depositors guaranty fund, as provided in this chapter, the deposits of its savings department as provided in chapter 4 of this title shall not be included. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 490. When depositors paid in full, pro rata of guaranty fund returned.—In the event of the voluntary liquidation of any bank or trust company, operating under the provisions of the depositors guaranty fund, when it shall be made to appear to the state banking board that all depositors have been paid in full, said board shall return to such bank or trust company the pro rata part paid by it into such fund when unused. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 491. Banks, etc., electing bond security to file bond, when and where; requirements; approval.—Each and every state bank or trust company now or hereafter incorporated under the laws of this state, which shall elect to come under the provisions of the bond security system of this chapter shall, on January 1, 1910, and annually thereafter, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and his successors in office, for and on behalf of the lawful depositors of such bank, a bond, policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity in an amount equal to the amount of its capital stock, which said bond, policy of insurance or other guaranty of indemnity, shall be for and inure to the benefit of all depositors. Such instrument and the security thereby provided shall be approved by the county judge of the county in which such business is domiciled, and shall take effect and be in force from and after it is approved and filed in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking. Every such corporation shall comply with the provisions of this chapter, as herein provided; and every such corporation that may hereafter be incorporated shall comply with the provisions of this chapter as to the depositors guaranty fund plan, or the bond security system, on filing its charter, before it shall be permitted to receive deposits. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 492. Bond to secure depositors at time of filing and for twelve months thereafter.—Every such bond or policy of insurance or other guaranty of indemnity, filed as provided for in this chapter, shall secure depositors at the time said bond is filed and approved, and all deposits made during the period of twelve months thereafter. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 493. Requirements in case of personal security.—In case the bond herein provided for shall be executed by personal obligation or security, then in no event shall such bond be deemed adequate and sufficient, unless and until it shall have been executed by at least three different persons or individuals of financial responsibility and solvency, satisfactory to the authorities herein authorized by this chapter, to approve such bond. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 494. Who may make bonds, etc., and who not.—The bond or other form of guaranty provided for in this chapter may be made by any person, firm, or corporation, authorized to execute the same, and any and all corporations incorporated under the provisions of articles 380 and 381, shall be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to execute such bonds or guaranties, either singly or collectively, subject to approval as herein provided for; provided, that any such corporation which is at the time operating under the guaranty fund system provided for by this chapter shall not be accepted as a surety on any such bond. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 495. Who may take advantage of bond security system; shall file bond; requirements; approval; certificate.—Any person, firm or corporation, other than as described in article 445, transacting lawfully a banking business in this state, or lawfully receiving funds on deposit, shall be authorized to take advantage of the provisions of the bond security system of this chapter and to file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a bond, or policy, or other guaranty of indemnity. Any such corporation shall, in such event, file a bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, in like manner as it would be required to file if incorporated under the laws of Texas.

Any such person or firm transacting the business of a private bank shall, in such event, file a bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, in any amount to be fixed by the commissioner of insurance, which amount shall in no case be less than one-half the amount of the average of the daily deposits with such person or firm for the preceding period of twelve months; provided, that no person or firm shall be permitted to take the benefit of this article, unless such person or firm shall have been engaged in such business in the state of Texas for the period of at least twelve months; provided, that any such person, firm or corporation shall submit to the commissioner of insurance and banking such reports and statements concerning its deposits and concerning the solvency of such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, as he may require, in order to enable him to determine the sufficiency of such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, and shall pay all such reasonable expenses as may be incurred by him in the making of an examination thereof; provided, further, that such bond, policy of insurance, or other guaranty, shall be approved by the county judge and filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking as provided for in article 491.

Upon the filing of such bond or other form of guaranty, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to furnish a certificate of such fact. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 496. On default by bond, etc., secured bank, duty of commissioner, etc.—In the event of default by any person, firm or corporation transacting such business or receiving deposits, which shall make, execute or file the bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, provided for herein, in the payment of a deposit lawfully demanded, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking, when such default shall be made known to him, to at once make an examination of such bank, and, if in his judgment the bank is insolvent, he shall take charge of such bank, as provided by law for the liquidation of state banks. Upon taking charge of a bank, as above provided, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall at once give notice thereof to each and all persons who may be obligated by reason of such default, and of the conditions of such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, and upon such notice the full amount of the same shall thereby become due and payable within sixty days. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 497. Sureties, etc., to pay commissioner full amount of bond, or, etc., in trust for depositors; to be paid pro rata to depositors, etc.—When any bond or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, provided for herein, shall become due and payable in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the makers and signers thereof to pay over the full amount of the same to the commissioner of insurance and banking, or such part thereof as he may demand, to be held by him in trust for the depositors, with the person, firm or corporation furnishing such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity. All proceeds thus arising, either from voluntary payment or otherwise, shall be payable to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and shall be by him promptly paid over pro rata to unpaid depositors upon presentation to him of satisfactory proofs of their claims, which proofs shall be received and filed before payment thereof shall be approved by him. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 498. Texas corporation surety, etc., refusing, etc., to pay, etc.; charter subject to forfeiture, etc.; attorney general's duty.—In the event any maker or signer as surety of such bond, or policy of indemnity, shall be a corporation incorporated under the laws of Texas, and it shall refuse or fail to pay over, within sixty days, as herein provided, the full amount due by it upon such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, its charter shall thereby become subject to forfeiture; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general, upon receiving notice thereof from the commissioner of insurance and banking, to bring suit in the district court of Travis county, Texas, within thirty days, to forfeit such charter, and, upon hearing thereof, decree and judgment may be rendered, annulling and forfeiting the charter of such corporation. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 499. Foreign corporation surety, etc., refusing, etc., to pay, permit subject to forfeiture; duty of secretary of state.—In the event any maker or signer as surety of such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, shall be a corporation incorporated elsewhere than in the state of Texas, and transacting business in this state under a permit from the state, and it shall refuse or fail to pay over, within sixty days after demand shall have been made therefor by the commissioner of insurance and banking, as herein provided, the full amount of its liabilities upon such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, it shall thereupon be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to notify the secretary of state of said facts; and it shall be the duty of the secretary of state and the commissioner of insurance and banking thereafter to refuse any permit to said corporation to transact business in the state, until it shall show to the satisfaction of such officers that it has fully discharged its liabilities upon such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, upon which default was thus made. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 500. Suit by attorney general, etc., in case of default on bond, etc.—In the event such person, firm or corporation shall default in the payment of a lawful demand, and shall so continue for the period of ninety days from the beginning thereof, and the obligation of such bond of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, is not discharged, it shall be the duty of the attorney general, or any district or county attorney, acting at his instance, to bring suit upon such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, in the name of the governor, and for the benefit of all persons who may be beneficiaries thereof by reason of its terms and conditions. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 501. Venue of suit on bond, etc.; limitation.—Such suit shall be instituted in the district court of the county where the person, firm or corporation furnishing such bond, policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, transacted such business at the time of the filing thereof, or in any county immediately adjacent thereto, at the option of the attorney general. Any action upon such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, shall be brought within twelve months of the date therein fixed for the termination thereof. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 502. Surety, etc., paying, subrogated to rights of depositors.—Whenever any maker or signer of any bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, other than the principal therein, shall be required under the provisions of this chapter to pay over for the benefit of the depositors, with any person or corporation, any sum or sums of money, such maker or signer making or participating in such payment, shall thereby become subrogated to the rights of a depositor to the extent of the payments so made, and entitled to assert such right in accordance with the laws of the state, secondary and subject to the rights of all depositors secured by such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 503. Fees for examination of bank with view to bond.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, when in his judgment it is necessary to make an examination of a bank in order to determine whether or not it is authorized to make bond under this chapter, or to determine the amount of such bond, shall charge a fee of not to exceed twenty dollars against each corporation incorporated under the laws of the state to do a banking business, or to receive funds on deposit, for the examination of the bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, provided for in article 491, and the examination of the solvency thereof, and for the filing of the same, and shall be authorized to charge an examination fee sufficient to cover the actual expenses thereof, against any other person, firm or corporation permitted to file such bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, under the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 504. Form of guaranty bond.—The bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, herein provided for, shall contain substantially the following provisions:

"State of Texas,
County of .....

Know all men by these presents: That we,..... as principal, and .....and..... as sureties, are held and firmly bound unto the governor of the state of Texas, and his successors in office, in trust for the benefit of depositors having funds deposited with..... in the sum of.....dollars, payable as provided by the laws of Texas, at the time of the execution hereof, conditioned that the above bound.....will pay, upon demand, or in accordance with the certificate of deposit, to the persons entitled thereto, all deposits in said bank at the date of said bond, and all other deposits made therein during the period of one year from the date hereof. Upon payment of any sum or sums made obligatory by reason of the terms hereof, any surety herein making or participating in such payment, shall thereby be subrogated to the rights of a depositor and entitled to assert such rights in accordance with the laws of the state, secondary and subject to the rights of all depositors secured by the terms hereof." [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 505. Security may be divided into two or more bonds, etc.—The security for the benefit of depositors provided for by this chapter may be divided into two or more bonds, policies of insurance, or other guaranties of indemnity, or any part thereof may be given in either of such forms of guaranty of indemnity; provided, that the aggregate thereof shall be equal to the total amount of the security required in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 506. Additional security where deposits excessive; penalty.—Whenever the deposits of any corporation incorporated under the laws of Texas, which shall have filed a bond, or policy of insurance or other guaranty of indemnity, with the commissioner of insurance and banking, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, shall exceed six times the amount of its capital and surplus, it shall be its duty to furnish, in addition to the security theretofore so given, additional security for the protection of its depositors, which additional security shall consist of one or more bonds, or policies of insurance, or other guaranties of indemnity, as herein provided, in a sum or sums, which shall, in the aggregate, be equal to the total amount of such excess of deposits above six times the amount of the capital and surplus of such corporation. In the event any such corporation shall refuse or fail to comply with the provisions of this article, after demand by the commissioner of insurance and banking, it shall be his duty to report the facts to the attorney general, who shall thereupon institute suit in the district court of Travis county to forfeit the charter of such corporation; and such court shall, upon hearing and proof thereof, enter a decree and judgment therein, forfeiting and annulling the charter of such corporation. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 507. Upon failure to give bond, etc., or avail of guaranty fund, suit to forfeit charter.—If any corporation organized under the general laws of this state to do a banking business or to receive funds on deposit shall fail or refuse to file the bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, provided for in articles 491, 492, 493, 494 hereof, in accordance herewith, or avail itself of the depositors guaranty fund plan as provided in this chapter, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to promptly report such failure to the attorney general, who shall thereupon institute suit in the district court of Travis county to forfeit the charter of such corporation; and such court shall, upon hearing and proof thereof, enter decree and judgment therein, forfeiting and annulling the charter of such corporation. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 508. New or additional security may be required, when; penalty for failure to give; powers of commissioner and attorney general.—If at any time it shall appear to the state banking board that any bond, or policy of insurance, or other guaranty of indemnity, filed as provided for herein, by any corporation organized under the laws of Texas, is insufficient, they shall have the authority, and it shall be their duty, to require such corporation to file new or additional security in an amount sufficient to protect its depositors, in accordance with this chapter. In the event such corporation shall refuse or fail to comply with such requirements, they shall communicate the facts to the attorney general, who shall thereupon institute such proceedings and take such steps as the nature of the case may require. The commissioner of insurance and banking and the attorney general shall, in such event, have and exercise, for the protection of depositors, all the authority conferred upon them by article 523, and all authority conferred by the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 509. National bank may avail depositors of protection of bond security system.—Any national bank in this state may voluntarily avail its depositors of the protection of the bond security system herein provided for state banks. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 510. Certain banks and trust companies created by special acts, may avail of provisions of this chapter.—Any bank or trust company created by virtue of a special act of the legislature of the state of Texas, now or hereafter engaged in the general banking business in Texas, and which at the time has only one place of business, and which has heretofore accepted or may hereafter accept one or more of the provisions of this title, thereby submitting itself to the jurisdiction of the state banking department, may, with the approval of the state banking board, avail itself of the provisions of this chapter, either as a bond security bank, or as a guaranty fund bank, by vote, as prescribed for state banks. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 511. Bank, etc., to have certificate of authority posted.—All state banks transacting business in this state shall be required, on or after the first day of January, 1910, to hold a certificate of authority to transact a banking business issued by the commissioner, in compliance with the provisions of this chapter, and to keep same conspicuously posted at all times in the banking house where such business is transacted. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 512. Certificate issued by commissioner to bank, etc., approved by board; form.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to issue to each state bank which the state banking board shall have approved and certified to him, as provided in this chapter, as being entitled to transact a banking business, a certificate of authority in such form as the state banking board shall approve, to be signed by him under his official seal, certifying that such state bank is authorized, under the laws of this state, to engage in the banking business. Such certificate of authority, when issued to guaranty fund banks, shall contain the following statement on the face thereof in bold type: "The non-interest bearing and unsecured deposits of this bank are protected by the state bank guaranty fund." And, when issued to bond security banks, shall contain the following statement on the face thereof, in bold type: "All deposits of this bank are protected by security bond under the laws of the state of Texas." And, when issued to the state banks other than guaranty fund banks and bond security banks, it shall contain neither of these, nor any similar statement. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 513. Commissioner shall close banks when disapproved by board; procedure.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall close all state banks which the state banking board shall disapprove and determine not entitled, under the laws of this state, to transact a banking business, and shall proceed in such cases in the manner provided by law, with respect to insolvent banks, unless such banks shall go into voluntary liquidation. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 514. Secretary of state, issuing charter to deliver to commissioner, duty of latter.—The secretary of state shall, on issuance of any charter to any bank or banking and trust company, deliver the same to the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall deliver such charter to such corporation, together with the certificate herein provided for, upon such corporation showing to the satisfaction of the state banking board that it has complied with the state banking laws. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 515. Advertisements and designations of banks, etc., regulated.—All guaranty fund banks provided for in this chapter are hereby authorized and empowered, if they desire so to do, to publish, by any form of advertising which they may adopt, or upon their stationery, the following words: "The non-interest bearing and unsecured deposits of this bank are protected by the depositors guaranty fund of the state of Texas." All bond guaranty banks, provided for in this chapter, are hereby authorized and empowered, if they desire so to do, to publish, by any form of advertising which they may adopt, or upon their stationery, the following words: "The deposits of this bank are protected by guaranty bond under the laws of this state." Said banks are authorized to use the terms "guaranty fund bank," or, "guaranty bond bank," as the case may be, but they are hereby prohibited from describing said forms of guaranty by any other terms or words than herein named. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 516. If certain articles of this title held unconstitutional, etc., remainder unaffected.—Should the courts declare any section of chapter 15 of the Acts of 1909, second called session, as embodied in this title (being chapters 4 and 5, and articles 521, 522, 530, 548 and 564 to 574, inclusive) unconstitutional or unauthorized by law, or in conflict with any other section or provision of said chapter 15, then such decision shall affect only the section or provision so declared to be unconstitutional, and shall not affect any other section or part of said chapter, as embodied in this title. [Id. sec. 40.]

Art. 517. Provisions of certain chapters and articles cumulative.—The provisions of the articles and chapters mentioned in the preceding article shall be held to be cumulative of all laws now in force applicable to state banks or banking and trust companies, incorporated under the laws of Texas, not in conflict therewith. [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 517a. Banks, trust companies, and banks and trust companies; application to state banking board for charter.—The incorporations [incorporators] of any proposed state bank or trust company or bank and trust company, shall, in addition to the other things required by law, make application to the state banking board for a charter in such form as said board may prescribe, and submit and present to said board articles of incorporation, or association, as prescribed by law. [Acts 1913, p. 211, sec. 1.]

Art. 517b. Board to investigate, and refuse or grant charter; articles of incorporation.—Upon presentation of the articles of incorporation mentioned in section 1 hereof [Art. 517a], to the state banking board, said board shall carefully examine the same and investigate and inform themselves as to the financial standing and charter of the incorporations [incorporators], each such incorporation [incorporator] to show, to the satisfaction of said board, through affidavit or otherwise as may be required by said board, that he is worth over and above exemptions and liabilities, at least double the amount of the par value of the stock subscribed for by him. The said board shall also inform itself as to the public necessity of the business in the community in which it is sought to establish the same, and determine whether the capital for which the business is sought to be capitalized is commensurate with the requirements of law, and the location of the business, and that the applicants are acting in good faith. Should said board determine any of the foregoing requirements or questions unfavorably to the applicants the charter shall be refused; but if favorably, then the charter shall be granted and the articles of incorporation shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall deliver a certified copy thereof to the incorporators. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 517c. Deposit of fee with commissioner of insurance and banking; franchise tax.—At the time of the articles of incorporation aforesaid are submitted to the state banking board, the applicants for charter shall deposit with the commissioner of insurance and banking the fee required by law for the charter they seek to have granted. If the charter is refused by said board, then the charter fee shall be returned to the applicants.

Before issuing and delivering to the incorporations [incorporators] a certified copy of the articles of incorporation, the incorporators shall present to the commissioner of insurance and banking a receipt from the secretary of state, showing that they have paid to the latter officer the required franchise tax, and annually thereafter the franchise tax shall be paid to the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 517d. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 518. Commissioner of insurance and banking; bond; seal; not to be interested, etc.; salary.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall, in addition to his duties as now prescribed by law, be superintendent and inspector of all corporations incorporated under the provisions of this title, availing themselves of its provisions, under the title and designation of commissioner of insurance and banking. He shall give, in addition to the bond now required of him by law, a bond in the penal sum of ten thousand dollars, payable to the state of Texas, with two or more securities, to be approved by the governor and filed in the office of the secretary of state, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as commissioner. The secretary of state shall provide the commissioner of insurance and banking with an official seal with which he shall authenticate all instruments of writing executed by him under this title. The commissioner of insurance and banking shall not be, either directly or indirectly, interested in any such corporation, and shall receive as compensation or salary, for his services under this act, the sum of five hundred dollars per annum, in addition to his compensation as now fixed by law. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 501, sec. 38.]

Fees of office.—See Title 58.

Art. 519. Commissioner may employ examiners.—Such commissioner shall employ, from time to time, such clerks and examiners as he may need to discharge, in a proper manner, the duties imposed upon him by law, who shall perform such duties as he shall assign to them. [Id. sec. 38.]

Art. 520. Examiners; qualifications; oath; bond; right of action on bond for false report.—Every examiner appointed by the commissioner shall be an expert bookkeeper and bank accountant, and before entering upon the duties of his appointment, take and file in the office of the secretary of state an oath to support the constitution of the state, to faithfully demean himself in office, to make fair and impartial examinations, and that he will not accept, as presents or emoluments, any pay, directly or indirectly, for the discharge of any act in the line of his duty other than the remuneration fixed and accorded him by law, and that he will not reveal the condition of any bank or trust company examined by him, or any information secured in the course of any examination of any bank or trust company, to any one, except the commissioner. No such examiner shall be appointed who has not had practical experience in the banking business for at least five years. No such examiner shall be appointed who is an officer or stockholder in any bank organized under this act. No such examiner shall be appointed receiver of any bank whose books, papers and affairs he shall have examined pursuant to his appointment; and every such examiner shall enter into a bond, payable to the state, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, to be approved by the commissioner and deposited in the office of the state comptroller, conditioned that he will faithfully perform his duties as such examiner; and, in case any such examiner shall knowingly report any such financial company, bank or trust company, in an insolvent condition, or in case he shall report any such financial company, bank or trust company, to be solvent, knowing the same to be otherwise, and any person be injured thereby, such person shall have a right of action on such bond for his injuries. Such action shall be brought in the name of the state on the relation of the injured party. [Id. sec. 43.]

Art. 520a. Indictment disqualifies, until, etc.—Upon indictment of any such examiner for any violation of the provisions of chapters 5 and 6 of this title, he shall be disqualified from further discharging the duties of such office, until such indictment is fully disposed of. [Id. sec. 68.]

Art. 521. Appointment and compensation, etc., of examiners; accounts.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, from time to time, shall appoint such number of state bank examiners as may be necessary to make the examination of banking corporations required by law, which number shall at no time exceed one for each forty banking corporations then subject to examination under the laws of this state. As full compensation for the performance of the duties of examiners, each person so appointed shall be entitled to receive a salary of two thousand dollars per annum, besides necessary traveling expenses. An itemized account of such expenses shall be rendered monthly, under oath, by each examiner and shall be approved by the commissioner. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 505. Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 424, sec. 33.]

Art. 522. Commissioner to examine banks quarterly, etc.; power of commissioner and examiners to administer oaths; examination fees how paid, proportioned, etc.; when collected, to be paid into treasury to credit general revenue fund; payments for salaries and expenses of examinations, etc., in enforcing certain provisions of law, made how.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking, at least once in each quarter of each calendar year, to cause each banking corporation, heretofore or hereafter incorporated under the general laws of the state of Texas, subject by law to examination, to be thoroughly and fully examined, and any such corporations may be examined whenever such commissioner may deem it necessary or expedient. Such commissioner and all state bank examiners shall have the power to administer oaths to any person whose testimony may be desired for the purpose of any such examinations. The expense of every general and special examination shall be paid by the corporation examined in such amount as the commissioner of insurance and banking shall certify to be just and reasonable. Provided, such expenses shall be paid in proportion to the amount of capital stock of the various corporations as follows: Those with a capital stock of ten thousand dollars shall not pay more than twelve and one-half dollars; those with a capital stock of more than ten thousand dollars and not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars shall not pay more than fifteen dollars; those with a capital stock of more than twenty-five thousand dollars and not exceeding fifty thousand dollars shall not pay more than twenty dollars; those with a capital stock of more than fifty thousand dollars and not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars shall not pay more than thirty dollars; those with a capital stock of more than one hundred thousand dollars and not exceeding two hundred and fifty thousand dollars shall not pay more than thirty-seven and one-half dollars; those with a capital stock of more than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars and not exceeding five hundred thousand dollars shall not pay more than seventy-five dollars; those with a capital stock of more than five hundred thousand dollars and not exceeding one million dollars shall not pay more than one hundred and twenty-five dollars; those with a capital stock of more than one million dollars and not exceeding two million dollars shall not pay more than one hundred and fifty dollars; those with a capital stock of more than two million dollars and not exceeding four million dollars shall not pay more than two hundred dollars; and those with a capital stock exceeding four million dollars shall not pay more than three hundred dollars. The permanent surplus of any such corporation shall be reckoned in ascertaining the fees for examination as a part of its capital stock. All sums collected as examination fees shall be paid by the commissioner of insurance and banking directly into the state treasury, to the credit of the general revenue fund. Payments for salaries and expenses of examinations and for expenses of the commissioner of insurance and banking in enforcing this title shall be made upon the certificate of the commissioner of insurance and banking by warrant of the comptroller upon the state treasurer. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 501; 1909, 2 S. S., p. 422, sec. 26.]

Art. 523. Duties of commissioner in cases of certain derelictions, etc., of banks, etc.; duties of attorney general.—Whenever the commissioner shall have reason to believe that the capital stock of any corporation, subject to the provisions of this title, is reduced, by impairment or otherwise, below the amount required by law, or by its certificates or articles of association, he shall require such corporation to make good the deficiency. Whenever it shall appear to the commissioner, from any examination made by him or his examiners, that any such bank or trust company is conducting its business in an unsafe, unauthorized manner, he shall, by an order under his hand and seal, direct the discontinuance of such illegal and unsafe and unauthorized practices, and strict conformity with the requirements of the law, and with safety and security in its transactions; and, if wrong entries or unlawful uses of the funds of such corporation have been made, he or they shall require that such entries shall be corrected and such sums unlawfully paid out shall be restored by the person or persons responsible for the wrongful or illegal payment thereof; and, whenever any corporation shall refuse or neglect to make any such report, as is hereinbefore required, or to comply with any such orders as aforesaid, or whenever it shall appear to the commissioner that it is unsafe or inexpedient for any such corporation to continue to transact business, or that extraordinary withdrawals of money are jeopardizing the interest of remaining depositors, or that any director or officer has abused his trust, or been guilty of misconduct or malversation in his official position, injurious to the institution, or that it has suffered a serious loss by fire, burglary, repudiation or otherwise, he shall communicate the facts to the attorney general, who shall thereupon institute such proceedings as the nature of the case may require. Such proceedings may be for an order of officers or members of the board of directors [or] for any other remedy suggested by the conditions disclosed to the court; and the court, or judge thereof, in vacation, before whom such proceedings shall be instituted, shall have power forthwith to grant such orders, and, in its or his discretion, from time to time, to modify or revoke the same, and to grant such relief as the evidence, situation of the parties and the interests involved, shall seem to require. If, from an examination made by the commissioner, or by one of his examiners, it shall be discovered that any bank or trust company organized under this act is insolvent, or that its continuance in business will seriously jeopardize the safety of its depositors or other creditors, and, if the action is taken from an examination by an examiner, such examiner shall recommend the closing of the bank, then it shall be the duty of the commissioner, if he approves such recommendation, by himself or one of his examiners, immediately to close said bank or trust company, and take charge of all the property and effects thereof. Upon taking charge of any bank or trust company, the commissioner shall, as soon as practicable, ascertain, by a thorough examination into the affairs, its actual financial condition; and, whenever he shall become satisfied that such corporation cannot resume business or liquidate its indebtedness to the satisfaction of all its creditors, he shall report the fact of its insolvency to the attorney general, who shall, immediately upon the receipt of such notice, institute proper proceedings in the proper court for the purpose of having a receiver appointed to take charge of such bank or trust company and to wind up the affairs and business thereof, for the benefit of its depositors, creditors and stockholders; and it is made the duty of the court, or the judge thereof, in vacation, summarily to appoint said receiver to take possession of the property and assets of said bank, for the purpose of winding up the business thereof, any complaint or opposition of the bank or trust company, or its officers, subsequently to be heard in open court. The commissioner may appoint a special agent to take charge of the affairs of insolvent banks or trust companies temporarily, until a receiver is appointed, such agent to qualify, give bond and receive compensation the same as a regularly appointed bank examiner, such compensation to be paid by the bank, or allowed by the court, as costs in case of the appointment of a receiver; provided, that in no case shall any bank continue in charge of such special agent for a longer period than sixty days. Any incorporated bank or trust company doing business in this state, under the laws cited in this title, may place its affairs and assets under the control of the commissioner, by posting a notice on its front door as follows: "This institution is in the hands of the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas." The post of this notice, or of a notice by the commissioner, that he has taken possession of any bank, shall be sufficient to place all its assets and property, of whatever nature, in the possession of the commissioner, and shall operate as a bar to any attachment proceedings whatever. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 502, sec. 40.]

Assessments.—Arts. 1169, 1170, authorizing the directors to require subscribers to pay the amount subscribed as required by the by-laws, and providing that, where any stockholder neglects to pay any installment, the directors may declare his stock and previous payments forfeited to the corporation, refer only to unpaid subscriptions to stock, and do not apply to assessments on bank stock, as authorized by the banking act (Acts 29th Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 10) §§ 40, 50 (this article and Art. 548); and a failure of a holder of bank stock to pay an assessment does not justify the forfeiture of the stock, and does not affect the rights of a pledgee of the stock under no personal liability to pay the assessment. First State Bank of Montgomery v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 691.

Superintendent's judicial functions.—This article requires the superintendent of banking, to close a bank when, in his opinion, from a personal examination, the bank is insolvent, or its continuance unsafe to depositors and creditors; and where an examiner makes a report to the superintendent which reveals such conditions, and recommends a closing, the superintendent, if approving the report, must close the bank, and in that respect is clothed with judicial functions. Sanders State Bank v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 84.

Allegations in action against superintendent.—Where an examiner reported that the only resources of a bank were its stock, a large part of which had been loaned to private parties, and the remainder invested in other property, the bank, to hold the superintendent and the examiner civilly liable in damages for closing the bank, must allege facts showing that they exceeded their authority. Sanders State Bank v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 84.

Art. 524. Refusal to submit to inspection, etc., to be reported to attorney general, his duty.—If any corporation, subject to the provisions of this title, shall refuse to submit its books, papers and concerns to the inspection of the commissioner, or any of his examiners, or if any officer or director thereof shall refuse to submit to be examined on oath touching the concerns of said corporation, or if it shall be found to have violated its charter, or any law of the state binding upon it, the commissioner shall report the fact to the attorney general, who shall institute such action or proceedings against such corporation as is authorized in article 523 against insolvent banks. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 525. Directors to furnish statement under oath, etc., when required by commissioner, etc.; penalty for failure, etc.—The board of directors of any state bank, trust company, savings bank, or bank and trust company, whenever required thereto by the commissioner of insurance and banking, shall furnish a statement to be filed in his office within ten days from the date of such call under oath before a notary public, by the president, cashier or secretary and attested by three of the directors of the actual condition of the affairs of such state bank, trust company, savings bank, or bank and trust company, at the close of business on the day designated and which day shall be prior to such call; such statement to be upon the form prescribed by the commissioner of insurance and banking.

Each state bank, trust company, savings bank, and bank and trust company which fails to make and transmit any report required in this section within ten days from the date of such notice, shall be subject to a penalty of not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each day after the expiration of said ten days that it delays to make and transmit its report to the said commissioner of insurance and banking. Whenever any state bank, trust company, savings bank or bank and trust company, fails neglects or refuses to pay the penalty herein imposed after it has been assessed against such corporation by the commissioner of insurance and banking such penalty may be recovered by the commissioner of insurance and banking in the name of the state in a suit in Travis county, against such state bank, trust company, savings bank and bank and trust company so refusing to pay; such penalty, when collected to be paid into the state treasury for the benefit of the general school fund. [Acts 1913, p. 207, sec. 3, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 525.]

Art. 525a. One vote on each share; proxy.—In all elections of directors, and in deciding all questions at meetings of shareholders of state banks, trust companies, savings banks and bank and trust companies, each shareholder shall be entitled to one vote on each share of stock held by him.

Shareholders may vote by proxy duly authorized in writing. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 525b. Certain titles may not be granted to banks, etc; approval by commissioner.—The title "First State Bank of ——" will not be granted in case a state bank, trust company, savings bank or bank and trust company was ever before chartered in the place, nor the title of any state bank, trust company, savings bank, or bank and trust company before existing, nor a title liable to be confounded with that of another state bank, trust company, savings bank or bank and trust company; nor the title "Second State Bank" where such title would be a misnomer on account of the existence of two or more state banks, trust companies, savings banks, or bank and trust companies, savings bank or bank and trust companies in the place, and, when the promoters have fixed upon the name for the bank, the commissioner shall be notified, his approval of the title selected being necessary. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 525c. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 526. Form of statement.—The statement required by article 525 shall be in the following form, to wit:

[Acts S. S. 1905, p. 502, sec. 46.]

Art. 527. Commissioner to demand statement at least twice a year or oftener, etc.; penalty.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner, not less than twice during any one year, to call upon each bank organized under this title, and each trust company or savings bank, doing business under the provisions of this title, for a statement as hereinbefore provided; and he may call upon any one or more of such corporations to make such statements at any time, though it be more than a second statement within the year; and the commissioner shall give no notice to any person whatsoever of the day on which he will call for such statement. For a violation of this requirement, or of any other duty imposed upon him by this title, he shall be deemed to have committed a misdemeanor in office, and, upon conviction of the same, upon indictment or information, before a competent tribunal, he shall be punished by removal from office and by a fine as provided by the Penal Code. [Id. sec. 49.]

Art. 528. Publication of statement, etc., and posting.—Publication of the statement shall be made by banking corporations in one or more newspapers published in the town, city or county where it is located, if there is one so published; provided, if said banking corporation is located in a town or city having a population exceeding ten thousand inhabitants, then such publication must be in a daily newspaper, if such is published in such city; but, if such corporation is located in a town or city having a population of ten thousand inhabitants or less, then said publication may be in either a daily or weekly newspaper published in said city or town as aforesaid; and in all cases, a copy of the said statement shall be posted in the banking house, accessible to all. [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 529. Books and records to be open for inspection of persons interested.—The books and all records of the proceedings of such corporation shall be kept open for inspection of all persons interested. [Id. sec. 62.]

Books, etc., transferred from department of Insurance and banking.—See Title 85.

Art. 530. Directors may appoint and remove officers, etc.; authority of officers, etc.; acts without authority void.—The directors of any bank or trust company organized under this title may appoint and remove any officer or other employé at pleasure. The officer or employé shall have no power to endorse, sell, pledge, or hypothecate any note, bond or other obligation received by such corporation for money loaned, until such power and authority shall have been given such officer or employé by the board of directors in a regular meeting of the board, a written record of which proceedings shall have first been made upon the minutes of the corporation; and all acts of endorsing, selling, pledging or hypothecating, done by said cashier, or other officer or employé of any such bank or trust company, without the authority of the board of directors given as here provided, shall be null and void. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 510. Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 425, sec. 34.]

Art. 531. Reduction of capital stock permitted and regulated.—Every corporation doing a banking business in this state may, at any time, reduce its capital stock to any sum not less than ten thousand dollars, and every trust company may reduce its capital to not less than one hundred thousand dollars, in accordance with the provisions of this act; the capital stock of any corporation doing banking business in this state shall not be reduced below the amount provided for in article 375, said amount regulated by the population of towns and cities in this state. The capital stock of every trust company so reduced must conform to the provisions of article 384. The capital stock of savings banks shall not be reduced contrary to the provisions of article 392; provided, that no reduction of such stock shall be made except upon the written consent of the owners of not less than two-thirds of the stock of such corporation. Notice of the intention to so reduce the capital stock shall be published for thirty days, in some daily newspaper in the city or county where such bank is located, or in a weekly paper, for four insertions before the time when such reduction shall be effected, and the last insertion of such notice shall be at least ten days before the date of the reduction; provided, that a statement of such reduction of capital stock, acknowledged by the officers of the corporation, shall be recorded and filed in the same manner as provided in articles 372 and 382 for the original articles of agreement. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 508, sec. 51.]

Art. 532. Increase of capital stock permitted and regulated.—Any bank or trust company doing business in this state may, at any time, increase its capital stock to any amount not exceeding ten million dollars, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, with the consent of the persons holding a majority of the stock of such corporation, which shall be obtained at a meeting of the shareholders, called for that purpose. Upon the presentation of a petition signed by the owner or owners of a majority of the stock, asking for such increase, the board of directors shall call a meeting for the purpose of voting on such proposition, sixty days notice of which said meeting shall be published in some daily or weekly newspaper printed and published in the city or town in which the corporation is located, the last insertion to be not more than five days before the day fixed for such meeting, giving the time, place and the amount of the proposed increase. If, upon a canvass of the votes at such meeting, it is ascertained that the proposition has carried, it shall be so declared by the president of the meeting, and the proceedings entered of record. When the full amount of said proposed increase has been bona fide subscribed and paid in cash to the board of directors of said corporation, then a statement of the proceedings, showing a compliance with the provisions of this chapter, the increase of capital, actually subscribed and paid up, shall be made out, signed and verified by the affidavit of the president and countersigned by the secretary, and such statement shall be acknowledged by the president and received in the office of the recorder of deeds for the county or city in which such corporation is located; and a certified copy of such recorded instrument shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. Upon the filing of such certified copy, the secretary of state shall issue a certificate that such corporation has complied with the law made and provided for the increase of capital stock, and the amount to which said capital stock has been increased. Thereupon the capital stock of such corporation shall be increased to the amount specified, and such certificate or certified copies thereof shall be taken in all the courts of the state as evidence of such increase. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 533. Power to increase or diminish stock, and extend business.—Any corporation which may hereafter be formed for any of the purposes contemplated by this title may increase or diminish its capital stock by complying with the provisions of this chapter, in any amount within the limits of this chapter, and may also extend its business to any other purposes authorized by this title, subject to the provisions and liabilities thereof. [Id. sec. 63.]

Art. 534. Notice of meeting to avail of privileges of this title; increase or diminish stock, etc.—Whenever any corporation shall desire to call a meeting of its stockholders for the purpose of availing itself of the privileges and provisions of this title, or for increasing or diminishing the amount of its capital stock, or for extending or changing its business, it shall be the duty of the directors to publish a notice, signed by at least a majority of them, in a newspaper of the county, if any shall be published therein, at least sixty days, and to deposit a written or printed copy thereof in the postoffice, postage prepaid, addressed to each stockholder at his usual place of residence, at least sixty days previous to the day fixed upon for holding such meeting, specifying the object of the meeting, the time and place when and where such meeting shall be held, and the amount to which it shall be extended or changed. The notice provided for in this article shall be published at least once a week, and the first publication must be at least sixty days before the day of such meeting. [Id. sec. 64.]

Art. 535. Vote of majority of stock necessary to increase stock, etc.—An affirmative vote of the persons holding the larger amount in value of all the shares of stock shall be necessary to increase or diminish the amount of its capital stock, or to extend or change its business as aforesaid, or to enable a corporation to avail itself of the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 64.]

Art. 536. How to proceed at each meeting; statement to be made, etc., and recorded with secretary of state; certificate; effect.—If, at any time and place specified in the notice provided for in article 534, stockholders shall appear in person or by proxy, in number representing not less than a majority of all the shares of stock of the corporation, they shall organize, by choosing one of the directors chairman of the meeting, and a suitable person for the secretary, and proceed to a vote of those present, in person or by proxy; and if, on canvassing the vote, it shall appear that a sufficient number of votes has been given in favor of increasing or diminishing the amount of capital, or of extending or changing its business as aforesaid, or availing itself of the privileges and provisions of this title, a statement of the proceedings, showing a compliance with the provisions of this title, the amount of capital actually paid in, the business to which it is extended or changed, the amount of assets and liabilities of the corporation and the amount to which the capital stock shall be increased or diminished, shall be made out, signed and verified by the affidavit of the chairman, and be countersigned by the secretary; and such statement shall be acknowledged by the chairman and recorded, as provided in articles 372, 382 and 389; and a certified copy of such recorded instrument shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who shall thereupon issue a certificate that such corporation has complied with the law made and provided for the increase or decrease of capital stock, as the case may be, and the amount to which said capital stock is increased or decreased; and such a certificate shall be taken in all courts of this state as evidence of such increase or decrease of stock; and thereupon the capital stock of such corporation shall be increased or diminished to the amount specified in such certificate, and the business extended or changed as aforesaid, and the corporation shall be entitled to the privileges and provisions and be subject to the liabilities of this title. [Id. sec. 65.]

Art. 537. Executor, etc., and pledgor to represent and vote stock.—Every such executor, administrator, guardian or trustee shall represent the shares of stock in his hands at all meetings of the corporation, and may vote accordingly as a shareholder; and every person who shall pledge his stock as aforesaid, may, nevertheless, represent the same at all such meetings, and may vote accordingly as a shareholder. [Id. sec. 61.]

Art. 538. Directors may invest money on what securities.—The directors of banks and trust companies created under this title shall have power of investing the moneys placed in their charge, in loans secured by real estate or other sufficient collateral security, in public bonds of the United States or of this state, in the bonds of any incorporated city, or county, or independent school district in this state. [Id. sec. 58.]

Art. 539. Loans limited.—No incorporated bank nor trust company in this state, organized under this title, shall loan its money to any individual, corporation or company, directly or indirectly, or permit any individual, corporation or company, to become, at any time, indebted or liable to it in a sum exceeding twenty-five per cent of its capital stock actually paid in, or permit a line of loans or credits to any greater amount to any individual or corporation; a permanent surplus, the setting apart of which shall have been certified to the secretary of state, and which cannot be diverted without due notice to said officer, may be taken and considered as a part of the capital stock for the purposes of this article; provided, such surplus is equal to, or in excess of, fifty per cent of the capital stock of said bank; provided, that the provisions in this section [article] shall not be construed as in anywise to interfere with the rules and regulations of any clearing association in this state in reference to the daily balances between banks; provided, that this section [article] shall not apply to balances due from correspondents subject to draft; and provided, further, that the discount of the following classes of paper shall not be considered as money borrowed within the meaning of this article, viz.:

1. The discount of bills of exchange, drawn in good faith, against actually existing values.

2. The discount of paper upon the collateral security of warehouse receipts covering agricultural and manufactured products in store in elevators and warehouses, under the following conditions: First, that the actual market value of the property held in store and covered by such receipts shall, at all times, exceed by at least twenty-five per cent the amount loaned upon the same. Second, that the full amount of the loans shall at all times be covered by policies of fire insurance issued by companies admitted to do business in this state, to the extent of their ability to cover such loans, and then by companies having sufficient paid up capital to be so admitted, and all such policies shall be made payable in case of loss to the bank or holder of the warehouse receipts. [Id. sec. 53.]

Art. 540. Company may qualify as guardian, executor, etc., or be sole guarantor or surety on bonds, upon what conditions; evidence of compliance.—Any company, which may hereafter be organized under the provisions of this title to do business in this state, which shall make the state treasurer a deposit of fifty thousand dollars, consisting of cash, treasury notes of the United States, or government, state, county, municipal or other bond, or bonds, notes or debentures, secured by first mortgages or deeds of trust, or mortgages or deeds of trust on unincumbered real estate in this state, worth at least double the amount loaned thereon, or such other first class securities as the said commissioner may approve, said bonds or securities not to be received or held at a rate above par, but if their market value is less than par, they shall not be held above their actual market value, and which shall satisfy said commissioner of its solvency, and shall have received the certificate of said commissioner that such company has made said deposit and has satisfied him of its solvency, it being hereby made the duty of said commissioner to issue such certificate in accordance with the facts, shall be permitted to qualify as guardian, curator, executor, administrator, assignee, receiver, trustee by appointment of any court or under will, or depositary of money in court, without giving bond as such, and become sole guarantor or surety in or upon any bond required to be given under the laws of this state, any other statute to the contrary notwithstanding; and, whenever any such company shall exhibit to the court, judge, clerk or other officer making such appointment, or whose duty it is to approve such bond, the certificate of the commissioner of banking of the state that such company has complied with the provisions of this chapter with respect to said deposit, and proof of solvency, the court or officer making such appointment, or whose duty it is to approve such bond, may appoint such company to such office or trust, and permit it to qualify as such without giving bond, and permit such company to become sole guarantor or surety upon any bond required to be given under the laws of this state, without requiring any other surety therefor. Provided, said company maintain a premium reserve of the amount required to reinsure all outstanding risks, to be determined by taking fifty per cent of the premiums on all unexpired risks that have less than one year to run, and a pro rata of all gross premiums on risks that have more than one year to run, and further that they be required to file with the insurance department, within sixty days after the first of January of each year, a report sworn to by president and secretary, or by two of its principal officers, as to the surety and bond business done by the same, and that they shall pay taxes thereon as required of other surety companies. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 541. Deposit primarily liable for said obligation, and solely until, etc.—The funds so deposited with the state treasurer shall be primarily liable for the obligation of such company as guardian, curator, executor, administrator, assignee, executor trustee by appointment of the court, or under will, depositary of money in court, guarantor or surety in or upon any bond required to be given under the laws of this state, or other fiduciary capacity, under appointment of any court, and shall not be liable for any other debt or obligation of the company until all trust liabilities aforesaid of such company have been discharged. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 542. Statutes applicable.—All articles of the statutes, so far as the same are applicable and not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, shall apply to all companies doing business under article 540. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 543. Substitution of securities when.—And, in case the interest on any security deposited with the state treasurer under articles 540 and 541, shall not be paid at maturity, and shall remain unpaid for six months thereafter, it shall be his duty to require the company which deposited the same to remove them and deposit there in their place other securities, equal in amount to those removed, upon which the interest has not been defaulted. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 544. Who else may enjoy privileges conferred by article 540, and how.—Any person or association of persons, or any other corporation, organized under the laws of this state, doing the business specified in article 540, shall enjoy the privileges conferred by said article by complying with the provisions thereof. And any corporation, organized under the laws of any other state, may do the business specified in said article by complying with the laws of this state relating to insurance other than life. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 545. Company complying with provisions of article 540, not to exercise certain powers; unless.—Any company that complies with the provisions of article 540 shall not exercise any other of the powers enumerated in article 385, except such as are mentioned in said article 540, unless such company shall have, at the time of making such deposit, a paid up capital or surplus of at least one hundred thousand dollars in addition to said deposit of fifty thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 546. Bank, etc., not to employ its moneys in trade, commerce or industrial plants, provided, etc.—No corporation organized under this title shall employ its moneys, directly or indirectly, in trade or commerce, by buying and selling ordinary goods, chattels, wares and merchandise, or by owning or operating industrial plants; provided, that it may sell all kinds of property which may come into its possession as security for loans, or in the ordinary collection of debts. [Id. sec. 54.]

Art. 547. Power to own real estate limited.—Banks and trust companies, created under this title, shall own only such real estate as may be required for the transaction of their business, and such as they may acquire in the enforcement and collection of debts or liabilities due to them, which lands so acquired by any such corporation shall be alienated by it, within five years after its acquisition, to some one not interested, directly or indirectly, in said company. [Id. sec. 58.]

Art. 548. Restrictions as to withdrawal of capital and dividends; liability of officers, etc.—No bank and no bank or trust company, or any member of either, shall, during the time it shall continue in banking or banking and trust operations, withdraw, or permit to be withdrawn, either in the form of dividends or otherwise, any portion of its capital. If losses have at any time been sustained by any such association equal to or exceeding its undivided profits then on hand, no dividend shall be made; and no dividend shall ever be made by a bank or bank and trust company while it continues its banking and trust operations to an amount greater than its net profits then on hand, deducting therefrom its losses and bad debts. All debts due to any state bank, on which interest is past due and unpaid for a period of six months, unless the same are well secured or in process of collection, shall be considered bad debts within the meaning of this article. The board of directors of any bank or trust company, organized under this title, may declare a semi-annual or quarterly dividend, if such dividend has been earned, provided the corporation be fully solvent, without such earnings proposed to be divided. But they shall not declare a dividend at any time when the capital of such corporation shall have become impaired to such an extent that it is not worth in good resources the full amount paid in after the payment of all liabilities; and any officer or director of such corporation, who shall assent to declaring and paying dividends where the capital stock is so impaired, shall be personally liable to the creditors of the corporation to the amount of his proportion of the proposed dividend, if any loss occur by reason of the payment of such dividend. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 507. Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 426, sec. 38.]

Art. 549. Dividends, regulation of; liability of directors for violations provided, etc.—Dividends of the profits of the corporation may be declared by the trustees or directors thereof, every six months or oftener, as the directors may elect; but no such dividend shall be made and paid to the stockholders while such corporation is in an insolvent condition, nor shall any dividend be declared which would render such corporation insolvent; and, if the directors of any such corporation shall knowingly declare and pay any dividends, when the corporation is insolvent, or of any dividend the payment of which would render it insolvent, they shall be jointly and severally liable for all debts of the corporation then existing, and for all that shall thereafter be contracted while they shall respectively continue in office; provided, that if any of the directors shall object to the declaring of such dividend, or to the payment of the same, and shall, at any time before the time fixed for the payment thereof, file a certificate of their objections in writing with the clerk of the corporation, and with the county clerk of the county, they shall be exempt from the said liability. [Acts 1905, S. S. p. 511, sec. 58.]

Art. 550. Dividends regulated; surplus fund.—The board of directors of any bank or trust company in this state organized under this title, when it shall declare a dividend, shall first set apart to the surplus fund ten per cent of the net profits of the bank for the period covered by the dividend until the same shall amount to fifty per cent of its capital stock; and said surplus shall not be diminished, except for the payment of any losses which may occur; provided, if there are undivided profits, these shall first be used in payment of such losses. [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 551. Bank, etc., shall not make voluntary general assignment, etc.; duty in failing condition; duty of commissioner, no attachment, etc.—It shall be unlawful in this state for a bank, savings bank or trust company, organized under this title, to make a voluntary general assignment of its business and affairs. In case it shall find itself to be in a failing condition, it shall immediately place itself in the hands of the commissioner. Any deed of voluntary general assignment, executed by any such bank or trust company, shall be null and void; and, in case the officers or directors of any such institution shall endeavor to make any voluntary general assignment of its assets, the commissioner shall immediately take possession thereof and proceed as heretofore provided in the case of insolvent banks in this state, for the appointment of a receiver by court. All transfers of the notes, bonds, bills of exchange or other evidence of debt, owing to any bank or trust company organized under this title, or of deposits to its credit, all assignments of mortgages, securities on real estate, or of judgment or decrees in its favor, all deposits of money, bullion or other valuable thing for its use, or for the use of any of its shareholders or creditors, and all payments of money to it made after the commission of an act of insolvency, or in contemplation thereof, made with a view to prevent the application of its assets in the manner prescribed by this title, or with a view to the preference of one creditor to another, shall be utterly null and void. No attachment, injunction or execution shall be issued against such bank or trust company, or its property, before final judgment in any suit, action or proceeding in any court. [Id. sec. 41.]

Art. 552. Stockholder's liability for debts of bank, etc., defined.—If default shall be made in the payment of any debt or liability contracted by any bank, trust company, surety and guaranty company, [or] savings bank, each stockholder of such corporation, as long as he owns shares therein, and for twelve months after the date of a transfer thereof, shall be personally liable for all debts of such corporation existing at the date of such transfer, or at the date of such default, to an amount additional to the par value of such shares so owned or transferred, equal to the par value of such shares so owned or transferred. [Id. sec. 59.]

Capital stock a trust fund for creditors.—The capital stock of a bank is a trust fund for the benefit of its creditors. Burleson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 559.

Art. 553. Responsibility of directors for certain losses.—For any losses of money which the capital stock shall not be sufficient to satisfy, the directors of corporations shall be responsible in the same manner and to the same extent that directors are now responsible in law or equity. [Id. sec. 59.]

Art. 554. Receipt of deposits or creation of debts after knowledge of insolvency, etc., liability of officers, etc., for.—No president, director, manager, cashier, or other officer or agent, of any bank or banking institution organized and doing business under the provisions of this title, shall receive [or] assent to the reception of deposits, or create and assent to the creation of any debts by such bank or banking institution, after he shall have knowledge of the fact that it is insolvent or in failing circumstances. Every person violating the provisions of this article shall be individually responsible for such deposits so received, and all debts so contracted; provided, any director who may have paid more than his share of the liabilities mentioned in this article may have the proper remedy at law against such other persons as shall not have paid their full share of such liabilities; and provided, further, that in case of the insolvency of one or more of such officers, agents or managers, the same shall be paid, for the time being, by those who are solvent, in equal proportion. [Id. sec. 67.]

Art. 555. Suit for recovery of deposits or debts received or created after insolvency; prima facie evidence.—In all suits brought for the recovery of the amount of any deposits received or debts created, all officers, agents or managers of any bank, savings bank, or trust company, charged with having so assented to the reception of such deposits, or the creation of such debt, may be joined as defendants, or proceeded against severally; and the fact that such banking institution was so insolvent or in failing circumstances at the time of the reception of the deposit charged to have been received, or the creation of the debt charged to have been created, shall be prima facie evidence of such knowledge and assent to such deposit, or creation of such debt on the part of such officer, agent or manager so charged therewith. [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 556. Who liable where stock held by executor, etc., or as security.—No person holding stock in the corporation as executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, and no person holding such stock as collateral security, shall be personally subject to any liability as stockholder in such corporation; but the person pledging such stock shall be considered as holding the same, and shall be liable as stockholder accordingly. And the estate and funds in the hands of such executors, administrators, guardians or trustees, shall be liable in like manner, and to the same extent as the testator or intestate, or the ward or person interested in such trust fund would have been if he had been living and competent to act and hold the same stock in his own name. [Id. sec. 60.]

Art. 557. No incorporated bank, etc., to do business, etc., otherwise in state, except, etc.; forfeitures for violation.—It shall not be lawful after ninety days from the time this bill takes effect for any incorporated bank other than corporations chartered by the United States, or trust company, savings bank, or any corporations save and except such as are organized under the provisions of this act [title], or which take advantage of this title, as provided in article 563, or corporations created by virtue of the acts of the legislature passed prior to the adoption of the constitution of 1876, and now authorized to do business in this state, to advertise or put forth any sign as a bank, trust company or savings bank, or in any way solicit or receive business as such or as any such, or to use as their name, or part of their name, or any sign, advertising or letterhead or envelope, the word "bank," "banker," "banking," "trust," "trust company," "savings bank," "savings," or any other term which may be confused with the name of corporations organized under this title; provided, that corporations heretofore organized under the general laws of the state, and foreign corporations heretofore or hereafter authorized to do business in this state, authorized by their charters to use such name or parts of names, as are hereby prohibited, may continue to use the same by using thereafter the words "without banking privileges." Any such corporation violating the provisions of this article shall forfeit its charter, or, if a foreign corporation, its permit to do business within this state, and the attorney general shall, upon information lodged with him to that effect, bring an action against such corporation to wind up its affairs, as now provided by law for insolvent corporations, and, in addition thereto, any corporation or officer or agent thereof, who shall offend against those provisions, shall forfeit and pay for every such offense the sum of one hundred dollars per day for every day such offense shall be continued, to be sued for and recovered in the name of the state, by prosecuting attorneys of the several counties, in any court of cognizance thereof, for the use of the school fund in the county in which such offense shall be committed.

This title shall not apply to corporations chartered by the acts of the legislature before the adoption of the present constitution, and now authorized to do business in this state; but such corporations may accept any one or more of the provisions of this title, by complying as to such provisions with article 563, and shall, as to the provisions so accepted, be subject to the terms of this law as to reports and examinations. [Id. sec. 76.]

Art. 558. Private individuals or firms in banking business, requirements as to.—It shall be the duty of private individuals or firms, engaging in the banking business, to use after the name under which the business is conducted the word in parenthesis "unincorporated," and failure to comply with this article shall subject the offender to a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be collected in the manner provided in article 557. [Id. sec. 76.]

Art. 559. No foreign corporation, except national banks, shall do banking and discount business in this state.—No foreign corporation other than the national banks of the United States shall be permitted to do a business of banking and discount in this state. [Id. sec. 79.]

Art. 560. Corporations created, etc., charged with public use; banks, etc., created, etc., subject to state control and regulation by legislature.—Corporations created for the purposes mentioned in this title are hereby declared to be charged with the public use, and all banks or trust companies or corporations created under this title shall be under state control and be subject to such legislation as the legislature may enact for the government and regulation of such banks and trust companies or corporations in this state. The right, privileges and powers conferred by the terms of this title to corporations taking advantage thereof or incorporating hereunder are to be held subject to the right of the legislature to amend, alter or reform the same. [Id. sec. 80.]

Cited, Sanders State Bank v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 84.

Art. 561. Business of solvent corporation may be closed, how.—Whenever the board of directors of any solvent corporation, organized under, or subject to, the provisions of this title, shall deem it necessary, expedient or desirable, to close the business of the corporation, they shall call a meeting of the stockholders to vote upon the proposition to close the business of the corporation, first having given sixty days notice thereof, by publication once every week, in a newspaper published in the county or city in which such corporation is located, also by mailing notices, at least sixty days prior to the day fixed for such meeting, addressed to the stockholders at their usual place of business or residence. The vote upon such proposition shall be taken by ballot, and the resolution and vote thereon shall be recorded in the minutes of the board of directors. If, at such meeting, at least two-thirds of the shares of the corporation are voted in favor of such proposition, the board of directors shall proceed to wind up the business of such corporation, as in this article provided; a copy of such proceedings, to be certified by the president and secretary of such corporation, shall be filed with the secretary of state. The board of directors shall thereupon give notice to all depositors, creditors and stockholders of the adoption of such resolution, by publication once a week thereof, in a daily or weekly newspaper, for three months thereafter, and by a written or printed notice, personally served upon, or mailed to, every depositor, creditor or stockholder of such corporation, at last known residence, postage fully paid. Within six months after the filing of such certificate in the office of the secretary of state, the corporation shall pay all sums due depositors and creditors, whom they can discover, and who claim the moneys due them, and, upon the expiration of six months after the filing of such certificate, it shall be the duty of the corporation to make a statement from the books of said corporation, certified by the president and secretary, of the names of all depositors and creditors who have not claimed, or have not received the balances to their credit, or due them respectively, and to file the same with the state treasurer, and to pay the said state treasurer all such unclaimed deposits, moneys and credits, for the use and benefit of such depositors and creditors. Whenever all the depositors and creditors have been paid in full, or the amounts due those who can not be found, or who have not claimed same, have been deposited with the treasurer of the state, for their use and benefit, the board of directors shall divide the capital stock, guaranty and indemnity fund, and all other assets, or the proceeds thereof, securities or real estate in which same may have been invested, among the stockholders ratably. The board of directors shall thereupon, after having divided the remaining property among the shareholders, as herein provided, file in the office of the secretary of state a certificate surrendering the corporate franchise. [Id. sec. 77.]

Art. 562. Who may accept provisions of this title, and how.—Any bank, trust company, or savings bank organized under the general or any special laws of this state, whose capital is fully paid up and unimpaired, may, with the consent of a majority of the stockholders, accept the provisions of this title, by filing with the secretary of state a certificate of such acceptance, signed by its president and secretary. The consent of the stockholders of such acceptance may be in writing, or by a vote of the stockholders, at any meeting at which all of the stockholders have due notice, and vote in favor of such acceptance. Upon the filing of such certificate of acceptance, such corporation shall thereupon become subject in all respects to the provisions of this title, and to the general laws of this state relating to corporations with like effect, as if it had been originally incorporated under the provisions of this title; and it shall take such action as may be necessary to make its corporate organization conform in all respects to the provisions of this title. And when any existing corporation shall determine to avail itself of the provisions of this title, and shall do so by amending its charter or filing a certificate as hereinbefore provided, and it shall not thereafter transact any corporate business until it has fully complied with the provisions of this title; provided, that when an existing corporation accepts the benefit of this title, such corporation shall be deemed and held to have abandoned, waived and surrendered all of its charter powers granted under charters heretofore issued, and shall derive their sole powers under the terms of this title. [Id. sec. 75.]

Art. 563. Who may accept privileges of this chapter, and how.—Any private corporation now incorporated under the laws of Texas, possessing banking powers or privileges, or any of the powers or privileges by this title conferred upon savings banks or upon trust companies, may, by a vote of the majority of its capital stock, accept the provisions of this title, and amend its charter, and shall have thereafter such powers as are hereby conferred upon other "banks," "savings banks," or "trust companies." The vote authorizing such amendment shall be certified to the superintendent of banking [commissioner of insurance and banking] together with an application as provided herein; and, upon compliance with all the other requirements of this title, for the organization of corporations hereunder, the superintendent of banking [commissioner of insurance and banking] shall issue his certificate as provided herein, authorizing such amendments, and thereafter such corporation shall be authorized to do business under and subject to the terms of this title, with succession from the date of said amendment of its charter for the term herein specified for corporations organized under this title. Corporations amending their charter as herein provided shall have the right to continue business under their corporate names, as designated by the charter amended, or by any name to which it may have been changed by amendments made under and by virtue of the existing general laws of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 78.]

Art. 564. Increase of stock for excessive ratio of deposits to stock and surplus, required; penalty.—If, from the sworn statement of the average daily deposits of any bank, for the year ending on the first day of November, 1909, or of any subsequent year, filed with the commissioner as provided in this title, it shall appear that such average daily deposits for such year amounted to more than five times the capital stock and surplus of such bank on November 1 of each year, if the capital stock of such bank is not more than ten thousand dollars, or more than six times such capital stock and surplus, if the capital stock is more than ten thousand dollars and less than twenty thousand dollars, or seven times such capital stock and surplus, if the capital stock is twenty thousand dollars or more and less than forty thousand dollars, or eight times such capital stock and surplus, if the capital stock is forty thousand dollars or more and less than seventy-five thousand dollars, or nine times such capital stock and surplus, if the capital stock is seventy-five thousand dollars or more and less than one hundred thousand dollars, or ten times such capital stock and surplus, if such capital stock is one hundred thousand dollars or more, then, in any such case, it shall be the duty of the state banking board to require that such state bank shall, within sixty days thereafter, increase its capital by twenty-five per cent thereof; and it shall be the duty of the commissioner to immediately furnish such state bank with a certified copy of the order making such requirement; and, upon receipt of such requisition, the directors of such state bank shall, within the time required, cause such increase to be made in its capital stock; and, if the same is not done within such time, it shall be unlawful for such bank to thereafter receive any deposits at any time when its total demand and time deposits shall in the aggregate amount to more than the limitation herein placed upon deposits. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 423, sec. 27.]

Art. 565. Bank purchasing assets of another bank must first increase stock as above.—Any state bank which purchases the assets of any other bank shall, before the purchase of the assets of such other bank, increase its capital to such an amount that the same will have the ratio to the total deposits of the bank the assets of which it has purchased, as defined and required in the last preceding article. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 566. Savings department deposits not included in estimate for increase of stock.—In computing the aggregate amount of average annual deposits of any bank or banking and trust company, for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not it shall be required to increase its capital stock, as provided in this chapter, or for the purpose of determining the amount required to be paid into the depositors guaranty fund, as provided in chapter five of this title, the deposits of its savings department as provided in chapter four of this title shall not be included. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 567. No bank, etc., to own over ten per cent of stock of another, or loan on its stock, if, etc., unless, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any state bank or trust company to own more than ten per cent of the capital stock of any other banking corporation, or to make a loan secured by the stock of any other banking corporation, if, by the making of such loan, the total stock of such other banking corporation held by it as collateral will exceed in the aggregate ten per cent of the capital stock of such other banking corporation, unless the ownership or the taking of a greater percentage of such capital stock as collateral shall be necessary to prevent loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith; and any such excess so taken as collateral or owned by such state bank shall not be held as collateral nor owned by it for a longer period than six months. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 568. Bank, etc., may loan or discount on security of cotton and cotton seed products, as national banks.—All state banks and trust companies shall be permitted to loan upon or discount commercial or business paper secured by lien upon cotton and cotton seed products, to the same extent and upon the same conditions as is now or may be provided for national banks under the laws of the United States. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 569. Bank may not loan on security of its own stock, unless, etc.; penalty.—No state bank shall make any loan or discount on the security of the shares of its own capital stock, nor be the purchaser or holder of any such shares, unless such security or purchase shall be necessary to prevent a loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith; and stock so purchased or acquired shall, within six months from the time of its purchase, be sold or disposed of at public or private sale; or, in default thereof, such state bank shall be considered to have its capital stock impaired to the extent of the par value of such shares. [Id. sec. 36.]

Art. 570. Restrictions, etc., upon pledge of securities of bank, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any such bank to hypothecate or pledge as collateral security, for money borrowed upon bills payable or certificates of deposit, or otherwise, its securities to an amount more than fifty per cent greater than the amount borrowed thereon, or for any state bank to issue or execute any bills or other evidences of indebtedness secured, or to be secured, by the pledge or hypothecation of any of its securities, which shall not contain a provision that in the event such state bank shall, for any cause, have its property and business taken possession of by the commissioner, at any time before such pledge or hypothecation shall have been actually foreclosed, a grace of thirty days after the date of such taking possession shall be allowed in which such bank or commissioner shall be permitted to redeem such securities so hypothecated or pledged, by the payment of the amount due as principal and interest on such indebtedness. [Id. sec. 37.]

Art. 571. No bank, etc., to loan to commissioner, etc.; penalty.—It shall be unlawful for any state bank or banking and trust company in this state to, directly or indirectly, loan to the commissioner of insurance and banking, or any other person interested in or employed by the department of insurance and banking, and it is hereby expressly provided that a violation of this article shall render such corporation liable to a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered for the benefit of the state. [Id. sec. 48.

Art. 572. Neither commissioner, clerks, employés, nor examiners, shall be interested in bank, etc., or indebted to same; penalty.—Neither the commissioner of insurance and banking, nor any regularly appointed clerks or employés of the department of insurance and banking, nor any state bank examiner, shall, at any time during his incumbency, be financially interested, directly or indirectly, in any state bank or banking and trust company subject to the supervision of the department of insurance and banking, or knowingly be or become indebted, either directly or indirectly, to any such state bank or banking and trust company. The violation of the provisions of this article by any officer or employé named therein shall work a forfeiture of the office or position held by him. [Id. sec. 44.]

Removal of commissioner.—See Title 98, Chapter 1.

Art. 573. Board may change form of statements required of banks.—The state banking board shall have the power, from time to time, to make such changes in the form of the statements required of each banking corporation as it may deem advisable, and to require any additional statements which it may deem necessary as to average daily deposits, capital stock, surplus, character of deposits and such other matters as it may deem necessary to the enforcement of this title. [Id. sec. 39.]

Art. 574. Bonds of cashier and treasurer.—Every officer of every state bank, upon whom the powers of a cashier or treasurer may be imposed by the board of directors, shall, before entering or being permitted to enter upon the exercise of such powers, or the duties of his office, give a good and sufficient bond in such sum and with such surety or sureties as the board of directors may approve, and in such form as may be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance and banking, conditioned to pay the bank such pecuniary loss as the bank may sustain of money or other valuable securities embezzled, wrongly abstracted or wilfully misapplied by said officer, in the course of his employment as such, and in the course of his employment in any other position in the bank to which he may be appointed, reappointed, elected, re-elected, or temporarily assigned. Such bond shall be approved by the board of directors in writing on the minutes of the corporation; and no member of the board of directors or officers of such state bank shall become surety thereon; and the same shall be deposited in some safe place, inaccessible to the maker thereof or the sureties thereupon, to be prescribed by the board of directors and shown upon the minutes of the corporation. [Id. sec. 35.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Deposits in general.—A depositor induced by misrepresentations of an officer of an insolvent bank to deposit money with it, upon failure of the bank can recover of such officer the amount of his loss. Baker v. Ashe, 80 T. 356, 16 S. W. 36.

Where deposit stood in the names of two persons jointly, it would be presumed that their interests were equal. Tompkins v. McGinn (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 452.

The recognition by a bank of the right of two persons to draw a deposit held immaterial on the issue of the right to the fund. Id.

Possession of a passbook by one of two persons in whose joint names the account stands is not evidence of dominion over the fund. Id.

An instrument, certified by a national bank, by which the drawers agreed to indemnify their surety for liability on a bond, held not to constitute a certified check drawn in the ordinary course of business. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. National Bank of Commerce of Dallas, 48 C. A. 301, 106 S. W. 782.

Certification by the president of a bank of an indemnity instrument issued by the drawers to their surety on a building contractor's bond held not a representation that the drawers had the amount specified in the instrument on deposit in the bank. Id.

A bank held to have no right to pay over money to a vendor of land, and to be liable for so doing to the purchaser, the depositor. Hunter v. Wallace, 57 C. A. 1, 121 S. W. 180.

The mere failure of defendant to deposit as agreed money in a bank in which plaintiff is a stockholder, held not such a breach of contract as to entitle plaintiff to equitable relief. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. of Oklahoma v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 662.

Such failure held not sufficient, in itself, to permit plaintiff to recover damages. Id.

A bank receiving a deposit credited to the depositor, followed by the word "agent," held not authorized to apply the fund to its own benefit under his authority when it belongs to others. Silsbee State Bank v. French Market Grocery Co., 103 T. 629, 132 S. W. 405, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1207.

A bank receiving a deposit credited to the depositor, followed by the word "agent," held required to treat the depositor as owner and to pay checks properly drawn. Id.

For a bank, with which a draft is deposited for collection, to immediately, on notice of the receipt of the draft by the bank to which it is forwarded, enter the amount of the draft to the depositors' account, is an advancement or loan, for which they are liable; the draft, through no negligence, however, not being collected. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Center v. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1120.

A bank taking a draft drawn by a seller of merchandise on the buyer for the price for collection, and giving the seller credit therefor, may when payment of the draft is refused charge the seller's account with the amount and return the draft to him. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 617.

Relation between bank and depositor.—When a draft is sent to a bank and collected, the relation of debtor and creditor is created between the sender of the draft and the bank, and such creditor has no lien on the money in the bank. Peters Shoe Co. v. Murray, 31 C. A. 259, 71 S. W. 977.

Deposits of principal's money made by factor in bank held to create relation of banker and depositor, though at time of making them factor was insolvent and had committed an act of bankruptcy. Interstate Nat. Bank v. Claxton, 97 T. 569, 80 S. W. 604, 65 L. R. A. 820, 104 Am. St. Rep. 885.

On deposit of certain checks given for a loan with an insolvent banker, on whom the checks were drawn, the relation of debtor and creditor arose between the banker and the payees of the check, so that, on the banker's failure, the payees were not entitled to recover the fund from the lender or a cancellation of the securities. Hubbard & Gray v. Pettey, 37 C. A. 453, 85 S. W. 509.

Interest on deposits.—Contract by a bank for the payment of interest on deposit made by another bank held not invalid because one of the officers of the depositary was also an officer in the depositing bank. City Nat. Bank of Texarkana v. Merchants' & Planters' Nat. Bank of Mt. Vernon (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 338.

A bank cannot refuse to pay agreed interest on deposits, after retaining them for several months. Id.

Trust funds.—Money deposited in bank held to constitute a trust fund for the payment of certain debts. Ellis v. National Exch. Bank, 38 C. A. 619, 86 S. W. 776.

Agreement between bank and banking firm, by which the firm was to assume the obligations of the bank, held not to create a fiduciary relation as to depositors of the bank. Hoskins v. Velasco Nat. Bank, 48 C. A. 246, 107 S. W. 598.

Where a bank, with knowledge of the trust character of funds deposited with it, permits a diversion thereof, and aids in the appropriation of the fund to the trustee's personal debt it is liable to the beneficiary. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Adoue & Lobit, 104 T. 379, 138 S. W. 383, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 409.

A bank incurs no liability to a beneficiary in honoring checks of the trustee. First State Bank of Bonham v. Hill (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 300.

A bank with notice of the character of trust funds deposited can acquire no interest therein. Id.

A charge against the account of a depositor of an overdraft will not render a bank liable as a participant in a conversion of trust funds, where it has no knowledge of the character of such deposit. Id.

Where a broker deposited funds of his various clients in his general account, and drew checks thereon, a client cannot complain that the bank honored checks drawn against funds which were obtained from the sale of his property, and so deprived him of the proceeds. Carlton v. Texas Banking & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 698.

—— Assets of branch bank not trust fund for depositors.—Assets of a branch bank held not a trust fund for the payment of claims of depositors of that branch; they being entitled only to their pro rata share of the assets of the bank as a whole. Burleson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 559.

Application of deposits to debts due bank.—Bank held liable to a depositor's principal for funds of the principal which the bank applied to payment of depositor's debt to it. Interstate Nat. Bank v. Claxton, 97 T. 569, 80 S. W. 604, 65 L. R. A. 820, 104 Am. St. Rep. 885.

A bank, which has a claim against a depositor, has the right, on his insolvency, to apply the amount of the deposit to the indebtedness, whether due or not and where the question of insolvency is in issue in a state court, it is proper to follow the definition of insolvency contained in the national bankruptcy act. Owen v. American Nat. Bank, 36 C. A. 490, 81 S. W. 988.

A garnishee bank holding a balance to the credit of a debtor's general account held not entitled to credit the same against the debtor's unmatured notes to the bank as against plaintiff in garnishment. Presnall v. Stockyards Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 873.

Bank charging unpaid check drawn on another bank to the account of its indorser held to have thereby received partial satisfaction to the amount of the indorser's deposit, and entitled to recover from the maker only the balance of the debt. First Nat. Bank v. Abernathy (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 349.

Payment of check or draft.—Under an agreement by a bank that a county treasurer should have a certain credit on his giving his note and a check, and his agreeing that, if he did not pay the money in by a certain date, the bank could charge up the check, the county cannot claim that the bank is indebted to the amount of the credit, and repudiate the bank's right to charge up the check. Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 937.

A bank is bound to honor the checks of its depositor, and incurs no liability in so doing, although it knows of circumstances from which it could discover that he is violating his trust. Interstate Nat. Bank v. Claxton, 97 T. 569, 80 S. W. 604, 65 L. R. A. 820, 104 Am. St. Rep. 885.

A bank is not liable for damages arising from its nonpayment and protest of a depositor's checks, if the depositor was insolvent and was indebted to the bank in a greater sum than the amount of the deposit. Owen v. American Nat. Bank, 36 C. A. 490, 81 S. W. 988.

Facts considered, and held to show that a bank on which a draft was drawn in favor of a seller of cattle by the buyer thereof paid the draft under a mistake of fact induced by the representations of the seller. First State Bank v. McGaughey, 48 C. A. 635, 108 S. W. 475.

In the absence of fraud or collusion, a bank paying guardianship funds held not liable for the misappropriation of the funds by the guardian. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Adoue & Lobit (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 636.

A seller for cash held entitled to prosecute a suit against the buyer on the check given for the price and against the bank on which the check was drawn, on the check or for the value of the goods received by the bank. Continental Bank & Trust Co. v. Hartman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 179.

Where a bank officer has stated to the payee or holder of checks drawn by a depositor that they are all right, the bank is not estopped to resist liability where the checks were not taken on the faith of such statement. Home Nat. Bank of Baird v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Abilene (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 935.

A bank paying a check held to have no cause of action against a person receiving a benefit from such payment. Penick v. Castles (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 297.

The legal and equitable title to funds arising from a check held to pass to the payee thereof when the check was paid, subject to the right of the bank paying it to recover from him as a result of mistake. Id.

Liability to drawer of check for refusal to pay.—One suing a bank for damages for the humiliation caused by his arrest on a charge of swindling caused by the bank's improperly dishonoring a check held not entitled to recover damages for loss of time or credit founded on negligent breach of contract by the bank in dishonoring the check. Western Nat. Bank v. White (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 828.

One not a merchant or trader who sues a bank in which he is a depositor for erroneously dishonoring a check must, to recover for loss of credit, allege and prove the loss. Id.

In a suit against a bank for the wrongful dishonor of his check, a depositor makes out a prima facie case when he shows funds on deposit sufficient to pay the check but for a particular charge to his account; the burden being on the bank to establish the rightfulness of the charge in question. Dycus v. Commonwealth Nat. Bank of Dallas (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1127.

Though a bank agreed to honor the checks of a commission house in favor of its patrons, yet, where all of the funds deposited were appropriated by the commission house, neither the house nor its sureties can recover for refusal to honor checks in favor of its patrons. Carlton v. Texas Banking & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 698.

Payment of forged or altered instruments.—It is not the duty of a depositor to foresee a fraudulent alteration of a check by the holder thereof, and notify the bank as against it. Morris v. Beaumont Nat. Bank, 37 C. A. 97, 83 S. W. 36.

A bank honors a forged check at its peril. Id.

In an action against a bank for paying drafts on forged indorsements, no recovery held authorized by the evidence. Texas Seating Co. v. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 807.

A payment of a draft properly indorsed by an employé held valid as against the employer. Id.

A bank is not negligent in cashing a draft on an indorsement of one introduced as the owner by a person well known to the bank, though the bank guarantees the indorsement. Kelley v. Planters' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1142.

A bank remitting money on a forged draft sent to it by a correspondent, although negligent in not ascertaining the forgery before remitting, held entitled to recover of the correspondent's bank. First Nat. Bank v. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank of Ballinger (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1034.

A depositor who, on making a loan on the security of a vendor's lien note, drew his check for the amount of the loan payable to the borrower, and the bank paid the check on the forged indorsement of the borrower's agent, the depositor, having acquired the property in excess of the amount of the check on foreclosing the security, could not recover against the bank for its wrongful payment of the check. Dycus v. Commonwealth Nat. Bank of Dallas (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1127.

A bank which indorsed a check containing a forged indorsement of a fictitious payee's name held liable to the drawee bank which paid the check. Guaranty State Bank & Trust Co. v. Lively (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 211.

Where a bank paid a check, the payee's indorsement being forged, and deducted the amount from the account of the drawer, it is liable to the drawer for the full amount. Id.

When checks are returned to a depositor by a bank, he is not charged with notice of forged indorsements. Id.

Special deposits.—A deposit made in a trust company, to be drawn on by a bank for certain purposes only, held a special deposit. McBride v. American Ry. & Lighting Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 229.

Rule stated as to when a deposit in a bank is a general or special deposit, and as to the liability of the bank. Id.

Where a bank had no knowledge concerning the agreement under which a special deposit was made, its act in thereafter transferring the amount to the depositor's general account, which was later overdrawn, held not a conversion of the special deposit. Prosser v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 781.

A purchaser depositing a part of the price in a bank for payment to the vendor on specified conditions held entitled to sue the bank for damages for wrongfully paying the money to the vendor. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

In an action against a bank for the conversion of money deposited with it by a purchaser for the payment to the vendor on specified conditions, evidence of fraudulent representations inducing the execution of the contract of purchase held inadmissible. Id.

Collections.—A bank purchasing a draft with bill of lading for wheat attached held to become the owner of the wheat, and responsible to the consignee where it did not conform to the standard contracted for. Landa v. Lattin, 19 C. A. 246, 46 S. W. 48.

Where bills of lading for wheat were attached to drafts and forwarded to a bank for collection, no liability attached to the bank on defect in the quality of the wheat. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Morris, 27 C. A. 553, 65 S. W. 1118.

Bankers, surrendering bill of lading attached to draft sent for collection before payment thereof, held liable to consignor for loss occasioned thereby. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. North Texas Grain Co., 32 C. A. 93, 74 S. W. 567.

A bank, purchasing drafts from a consignor with bills of lading attached, is not, after collecting them, liable to the consignee for frauds perpetrated by his consignor in making out the bills of lading. S. Blaisdell, Jr., Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 96 T. 626, 75 S. W. 292, 62 L. R. A. 968, 97 Am. St. Rep. 944.

A bank receiving a draft for collection is not the owner of its proceeds, but they belong to the drawer, and they are subject to garnishment. Hobart Nat. Bank v. Fordtran (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 413.

Where depositor of a draft for collection made statements which caused the bank to select a different collecting agent at the place of payment than it otherwise would by whose failure a loss was sustained, the customer held estopped to deny that such subagent was his agent. First Nat. Bank v. Quinby (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 429.

A bank receiving a draft for collection will be liable for the negligence of subsequent agents employed in the collection. Id.

Where a bank claimed that the loss of certain drafts by the failure of the collecting agent was caused by the defendant inducing plaintiff to send the drafts to such agent, instruction that the burden was on the plaintiff to show an express agreement to select such collecting agent held erroneous. Id.

A collecting bank to which a check is sent for collection from another bank under the custom of banks may accept the drawee bank's check or draft, and is not negligent in failing to demand payment in money. First Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 831.

The relation of principal and agent was created by the deposit of a check with a bank for collection, requiring it to exercise diligence. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 551.

A bank receiving a check for collection held not negligent in presenting it for payment through the clearing house pursuant to custom. Id.

One depositing a check in a bank for collection was bound by any reasonable usage which he knew existed among the banks of the city. Id.

A bank, in which a draft was deposited for collection, though never collecting it, having notified the depositors that it was collected, and not having notified them to the contrary till too late for presentation of their claim against the insolvent estate of their debtor, held liable for the amount they could have collected from such estate. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Center v. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1120.

A bank, with which a draft was deposited for collection, held not injured by statements of the bank to which it forwarded it for collection, showing the amount thereof to its credit, when it was never collected. Id.

Where O. deposited notes with defendant bank for collection only, and as the property of plaintiff, held plaintiff was entitled to demand and receive them and the proceeds, whether under a prior contract between plaintiff and O. they belonged to plaintiff, or O. was thereunder merely indebted to plaintiff, and this though the contract was illegal. Arkansas Fertilizer Co. v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1179.

Where a check drawn on another bank was sent to the C. Bank for collection, the fact that the latter, believing the check had been paid, so informed the sender, and later credited the sender's account with the amount, when, in fact, the check had not been forwarded to the drawee bank or paid, the C. Bank held the check for collection only, and was not a purchaser thereof for value. Central Bank & Trust Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 290.

Where a collection item was sent to a trust company having many branches, and a receiver was appointed on its insolvency after the item had been collected, but before the proceeds had been remitted, and an amount of cash more than sufficient to pay it passed into the hands of the receiver, the claimant was entitled to a preferred claim, though the money in the branch collecting the claim, which passed to the receiver, was insufficient for that purpose. First Nat. Bank v. Union Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 989.

Representation by officers and agents.—Where a party deals with the cashier of bank in good faith, without notice of any want of authority on his part, and the act done is within the apparent scope of his authority, the bank is bound by the contract. First Nat. Bank v. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co., 24 C. A. 645, 60 S. W. 828.

One who, as president of a bank, procures a signature to a note for another bank, which his bank had no authority to do, held not personally liable, though the signature was forged. First Nat. Bank v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 99 T. 118, 87 S. W. 1032.

That one who as cashier and for a bank issued its draft had an interest therein did not differentiate him from any other payee thereof having an interest. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 151.

A bank which accepts a note obtained in negotiations conducted by its president may not deny that he had authority to represent the bank in the transaction. First State Bank of Teague v. Hare (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 501.

Where the president of a bank receives paper under an agreement that it will not be collected, it cannot be said that he was not acting for the bank, and that notice to him of such an agreement was not notice to the bank, simply because he was personally the one at interest in having the bills receivable of the bank to properly balance. Central Bank & Trust Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 700.

In order to bind a bank by an agreement to indemnify, made by an attorney of the bank and the cashier, it must be alleged and proved that they had authority. Youngberg v. El Paso Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 715.

—— Individual interest.—A bank purchasing a note subject to certain defenses in the hands of the payee is not bound by the knowledge or information of such defenses that may have come to its officers at a time when they were not engaged in its business, but when they were acting for themselves individually. Grayson County Nat. Bank v. Hall (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 807.

—— Estoppel.—Failure to repudiate act of cashier held not to amount to estoppel. Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 533.

Where defendant bank claimed that plaintiff was estopped from recovering money misapplied by his cashier, the failure of the court to condition such estoppel on defendant's ignorance of the cashier's authority held not error. Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank, 31 C. A. 308, 71 S. W. 612.

Where plaintiff bank neglected to examine defendant's monthly statement, which showed a defalcation of plaintiff's cashier, plaintiff was estopped from thereafter recovering the funds. Id.

Loss of bonds floated.—Where a bank, employed to assist in floating school bonds, negligently lost one, judgment for its value was properly rendered in favor of the school city, but it was proper, as indemnity to the bank, to enter a like judgment in favor of the bank against the school city, with a provision that execution thereon be stayed until maturity of the principal of the bond, and on the coupons attached thereto until four years after the maturity of each one of them. Kirkpatrick v. San Angelo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 362.

Bills and notes.—See Title 16.

Articles 575–578.—[Amended. See Arts. 578a–578r.]

Art. 578a. State entomologist; duties and powers; assistants and inspectors; annual report.—That for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act, the entomologist of the agricultural experiment station of the Agricultural & Mechanical College of Texas shall be the state entomologist of this state, and as such it shall be his duty to enforce the provisions of this Act and to issue such rules, regulations, etc., as are hereinafter required. As state entomologist he shall receive no fees or remuneration other than his regular salary as entomologist of the experiment station and state entomologist; provided, that he may be reimbursed for necessary expenses incurred in discharge of his duties as state entomologist. He shall employ such assistants and inspectors as may be necessary, subject to the approval and confirmation of the director and governing board of the Texas agricultural experiment station. He shall make an annual report to the director and governing board of the experiment station, such report giving a detailed account of all funds received and disbursed, and for what purpose, as well as a full report upon all prosecutions, etc., made under the provisions of this act. [Acts 1903, p. 196, amended Acts 1913, p. 96, sec. 1.]

Art. 578b. Power to deal with diseases; prohibiting shipments into state.—The said state entomologist shall have full and plenary power to deal with all contagious or infectious diseases of honey bees which, in his opinion, may be prevented, controlled or eradicated; and shall have full power and authority to make, promulgate and enforce such rules, ordinances, orders and regulations, and to do and perform such acts as, in his judgment, may be necessary to control, eradicate or prevent the introduction, spread or dissemination of any all contagious diseases of honey bees as far as may be possible, and all the rules, ordinances, orders and regulations of said state entomologist shall have the force and effect of law in so far as they conform to the general laws of this state and the United States. The state entomologist, in the exercise of the power and authority herein delegated, shall have authority to prohibit the shipment or bringing into this state of any honey bees, honey, honey-comb, or articles or things capable of transmitting contagious or infectious diseases of bees, from any state, territory or foreign country, except under such rules and regulations as may be adopted and promulgated by said state entomologist. [Id.]

Art. 578c. Bees shipped into state to be accompanied by certificate of official entomologist of state of shipment; shipper to file certified copy; evidence in lieu of certificate; confiscation, etc.—All honey bees shipped or moved into this state shall be accompanied by a certificate of inspection signed by the state entomologist or state foul brood inspector of the state or country from which shipped. Such certificate shall certify to the apparent freedom of the bees, and their combs and hives, from contagious and infectious diseases and must be based upon an actual inspection of the bees themselves within a period of sixty days preceding date of shipment. The shipper of such bees is hereby required to file with the state entomologist at College Station, Texas, at least ten days in advance of such shipment, a certified copy of said certificate, together with the names and addresses of both consignor and consignee; provided, that when honey bees are to be shipped into this state from other states or countries wherein no official apiary inspector or state entomologist is available, the state entomologist of Texas may issue permit for such shipment upon presentation of suitable evidence showing such bees to be free from diseases. Shipments of bees arriving at points within this state, not accompanied by the certificate herein described, shall be subject to confiscation and destruction by the state entomologist or his assistants. This requirement shall not apply to shipments of live bees in wire cages, when without combs or honey. [Id.]

Art. 578d. Carriers not to accept shipments except under regulations.—It shall be unlawful for railroad companies, express companies and other common carriers to accept for shipment, between points within this state, any honey bees, used honey combs, used bee hives or fixtures, except under such regulations and provisions as the state entomologist shall prescribe. [Id.]

Art. 578e. Authority to seize and confiscate shipments, etc.—The state entomologist, through himself, assistants or inspectors, shall have authority to seize and confiscate any shipment of diseased bees found in transmit in this state, or found in any depot, express office, store room, car, warehouse or premises awaiting transportation or delivery, and the state entomologist, through himself or assistants, shall have authority to enter, during ordinary business hours, any depot, express office, store room, car, warehouse, or premises for the purpose of inspecting any shipment of honey bees therein which he may have reason to believe are or may be infected with a contagious or infectious disease or which he may have reason to believe are being transported or have been or are about to be transported in violation of any of the provisions of this Act. [Id.]

Art. 578f. Authority to enter premises, etc.—In the discharge of the duties herein delegated the state entomologist, and his assistants and inspectors, shall have authority to enter, during ordinary business hours, any premises, public or private, wherein may be located any honey bees, or wherein he or they may have reason to believe any honey bees are kept or located, for the purpose of examining said bees and determining whether or not they are infected with any contagious or infectious disease. [Id.]

Art. 578g. Authority to declare protective quarantine, etc.—The state entomologist shall have authority to declare a protective quarantine in any district, county, precinct or other defined area wherein foul brood or other contagious disease of bees is not known to exist, or wherein any disease of bees is being eradicated in accordance with the provisions of this Act, said quarantine to prohibit the movement or shipment, into said district, county, precinct or other area, of any bees, honey, appliances or other things capable of transmitting the disease or infection, except under such rules and regulations as he shall prescribe. [Id.]

Art. 578h. Authority to place restrictive quarantine, etc.—The state entomologist shall have authority when, in his opinion, public welfare and necessity require it, to place a restrictive quarantine upon any district, county, precinct or other defined area wherein are located any honey bees infected with contagious or infectious disease, said quarantine to prohibit the movement or shipment therefrom of any bees, honey, appliances or other things capable of transmitting the infection, except under such rules and regulations as he shall prescribe. [Id.]

Art. 578i. Queen bees not to be sold without copy of certificate, etc.—Queen bees and their attendant bees shall not be sold or offered for sale in this state unless accompanied by a copy of a certificate from a state or government entomologist or apiary inspector to the effect that the apiary from which said queen bees are shipped has been inspected within the preceding twelve months and found apparently free from contagious and infectious diseases, or by a copy of a statement by the beekeeper made before a notary public or other officer having a seal that the bees are not diseased to the best belief of affiant and that the honey used in making the candy contained in the queen cage has been diluted and boiled for at least thirty minutes in a closed vessel. [Id.]

Art. 578j. Violation of provisions, etc., a misdemeanor; prosecutions; injunctions; duties of attorney general and district attorneys; production of documents; witnesses; duties of sheriffs and constables, etc.—Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this Act, or violating any of the rules, quarantines, orders or regulations of the state entomologist issued in accordance with the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five nor more than two hundred dollars. All prosecutions under this Act shall be commenced and carried on in any county of the state affected by the violation of said orders, quarantines, rules or regulations, and the said state entomologist may enjoin any threatened or attempted violation of his orders, quarantines, rules or regulations in any court of competent jurisdiction, or take any other civil proceedings necessary to carry out and enforce the provisions of this Act. It shall be the duty of the attorney general and the various county and district attorneys to represent said state entomologist whenever called on to do so; and said state entomologist, in the discharge and enforcement of the duties and powers herein delegated, shall have the authority to compel the production for examination by said state entomologist, or any one designated by him, of all books, papers and documents in the possession of any person; to take testimony, and compel the attendance and examination under oath of witnesses; and it is hereby made the duty of the various sheriffs and constables throughout the state to serve all papers, orders, summons and writs, that may be delivered to them by said state entomologist and to protect the state entomologist or his assistants or inspectors in the discharge of their duties, as herein defined whenever called upon to do so. The said state entomologist is authorized when necessary to apply to any court of competent jurisdiction for the necessary writs and orders to enforce the provisions of this article, and in such cases he shall not be required to give bond. [Id.]

Art. 578k. Entomologist to publish directions, rules and information, etc.—For the purpose of disseminating knowledge regarding honey bees and their diseases, the state entomologist shall publish methods and directions for treating, eradicating or suppressing contagious or infectious diseases of honey bees, including the rules and regulations provided for in sections 2, 3, 5, 8 and 9 [arts. 578a, b, d, g, h] and such other information as he shall deem of value or necessity to the beekeeping interests of the state. [Id.]

Art. 578*l*. Bees affected with foul brood, etc., to be reported by owner, etc.—If any owner of, or any person having control or possession of any honey bees in this state, knows that any bees so owned or controlled are affected with American foul brood, or any other contagious or infectious disease, or knows of any other bees so diseased, it shall be and is hereby made his duty to at once report such fact to the state entomologist at College Station, Texas, setting out in his said report all the facts known with reference to said infection. [Id.]

Art. 578m. Power to transfer bees to movable frame hives, etc.—The state entomologist shall have full power in his discretion to order any owner or possessor of bees dwelling in hives without movable frames, or not permitting of ready examination, to transfer such bees to a movable frame hive within a specified time. In default of such transfer the state entomologist may destroy, or order destroyed, such hives, together with the honey, frames, combs and bees contained therein, without recompense to the owner, lessee or agent thereof. [Id.]

Art. 578n. Power to inspect, burn diseased colonies, etc.—If at any time the state entomologist finds, or has reason to believe, that the owner or keeper of any bees or the owner of any apiary has refused or is refusing to comply with any or all of the rules and regulations hereinbefore provided for, then and in that event the state entomologist is hereby authorized to inspect or cause to be inspected said bees, and, if necessary, burn diseased colonies, appliances and honey, and do any and all things necessary in the premises to eradicate foul brood or any other contagious or infectious disease of bees. [Id.]

Art. 578*o*. Failure of owner, etc., to carry out instructions; duty of entomologist and county attorney.—When any owner or possessor of bees shall fail to carry out the instructions of the state entomologist as hereinbefore set forth, the state entomologist or his assistants or inspectors shall carry out such destruction or treatment and shall present to the owner or possessor of said bees a bill for the actual cost of such destruction or treatment, including the cost of such hives, foundation, etc., as may be necessary for proper treatment of the disease. In the failure of the owner or possessor of such fees to pay said bill within thirty days after the delivery of same to himself, tenant or agent, or within thirty days after mailing same to his usual post office address the state entomologist shall certify to the county attorney of the county wherein such bees were located, the amount and items of such bill; and the county attorney shall file suit for the recovery of said account. All moneys recovered by the county attorney for such destruction or treatment shall be paid into the hands of the state treasurer, to become a part of the fund for carrying out the provisions of this Act. [Id.]

Explanatory.—Sections 17, 18, and 19 define criminal offenses for violation of the provisions of the act, and are omitted.

Art. 578p. Disposition of fines.—All fines collected for prosecutions under the provisions of this Act shall be paid to the state treasurer, to become a part of the fund for carrying out the provisions of this Act. [Id.]

Art. 578q. Bond or security not to be required.—The state entomologist, his assistants and inspectors, shall not be required to give any bond or security in any legal proceedings which he or they may institute or defend in any court of justice in this state. [Id.]

Art. 578r. Laws repealed.—All laws or parts of laws in conflict with or inconsistent with this Act be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id.]

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of title.]

Article 579. [304] [262] Liability of drawer, etc., how fixed by suit in district or county court.—The holder of any bill of exchange or promissory note, assignable or negotiable by law, may secure and fix the liability of any drawer or indorser of such bill of exchange, and every indorser of such promissory note, without protest or notice, by instituting suit against the acceptor of such bill of exchange, or against the maker of such promissory note, before the first term of the district or county court to which suit can be brought, after the right of action shall accrue; or by instituting suit before the second term of said court, after the right of action shall accrue, and showing good cause why suit was not instituted before the first term next after the right of action accrued. [Act May 20, 1848, p. 187, sec. 1. P. D. 229.]

Execution presumed.—See Art. 3710.

Suits against counties.—See Art. 1366.

Necessity to fix liability.—The drawer or indorser of a bill is discharged when his liability has not been fixed by suit or protest. Yale v. Ward, 30 T. 17; Cole v. Wintercost, 12 T. 118; Campbell v. Wilson, 6 T. 379; Pridgen v. Cox, 9 T. 367; Wood v. McMeans, 23 T. 481. Unless the drawee had no funds. Fromme v. Kaylor, 30 T. 754; Armendiaz v. Serna, 40 T. 291. And had no reasonable grounds for expecting that the bill would be accepted and paid. Durrum v. Hendrick, 4 T. 495; Cole v. Wintercost, 12 T. 118; Wood v. McMeans, 23 T. 481.

An indorser held released by failure of plaintiff to sue for payment at first term of court. Smith v. Ojerholm, 18 C. A. 111, 44 S. W. 41.

If the indorsee fail to sue the maker at the first term of court after the note's maturity, the indorser will be discharged unless there is proof of the maker's insolvency, or other facts excusing such failure as provided by Art. 1843. Smith v. T. M. Richardson Lumber Co., 92 T. 448, 49 S. W 574.

Petition against indorser disclosing a failure to fix his liability by suit or protest, held bad on general demurrer. Beauchamp v. Chester, 39 C. A. 234, 86 S. W. 1055.

Where the owner consented to the subletting of the hotel and released the original lessee from liability for future rents, but did not release his liability as indorser on certain notes which the latter was to turn over to him for rent due the owner, the owner's failure to fix the lessee's liability as indorser released him to that extent. Kennedy v. Groves, 50 C. A. 266, 110 S. W. 136.

Insolvency of maker.—Suit is not necessary when the maker of the note is notoriously insolvent. Insall v. Robson, 16 T. 128; Fisher v. Phelps, 21 T. 551; Stratton v. Johnston, 36 T. 90.

Where the maker of notes has been insolvent ever since their execution, suit against an indorser need not be brought at the next term of court after the right of action accrues. Norton v. Wochler, 31 C. A. 522, 72 S. W. 1025.

Proof of the insolvency of the maker, or that his residence is unknown, is an excuse for not suing the maker, and justifies an action against the indorser. Costin v. Burton-Lingo Co., 57 C. A. 634, 123 S. W. 177.

"Insolvency" of the maker of a note, so as to excuse the holder from suing thereon at the request of the indorser, is an absence of property of the debtor out of which the debt can be made by execution. First Nat. Bank v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 177.

In an action by the holder against the indorser of a note, in which the indorser claimed a release because of the failure to sue the maker, evidence held sufficient to show that the maker was insolvent, excusing suit by the holder. Id.

If the maker of a note is insolvent, the indorser becomes liable at once, suit to fix his liability being unnecessary. Daniel v. Brewton (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 815.

To what instruments and persons applicable.—The liability of the drawer is fixed without suit or protest. Thatcher v. Mills, 14 T. 13, 65 Am. Dec. 95; Durrum v. Hendrick, 4 T. 495; Rockmore v. Davenport, 14 T. 602, 65 Am. Dec. 132; Griffin v. Chubb, 16 T. 219; Wood v. McMeans, 23 T. 481; Carson v. Schott, 26 T. 452.

One who indorsed a note at the time of its execution and delivery by the payor is an original obligor and is not entitled to protest or suit to the next term after maturity. Carr's Ex'rs v. Rowland, 14 T. 275; Kennon v. Bailey, 15 C. A. 28, 38 S. W. 377.

This article applies to negotiable instruments indorsed after maturity as well as before. Caldwell v. Byrne (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 836.

An indorser of a vendor's lien note is relieved from liability, it being shown that the note was not protested or sued on at the first term and that if the plaintiff had sued at the first term the proceeds of the land would have paid the note. Smith v. Ojerholm, 18 C. A. 111, 44 S. W. 41.

On the evidence, held, that an indorser was absolutely bound on the notes, and that he could not make the technical defense of a simple indorser that he was not sued at the first term of court after the cause of action accrued. Blakey v. Allen, 22 C. A. 39, 54 S. W. 386.

One who indorsed a matured note in consideration of its extension held not relieved from liability by failure of the holder to sue at the first term after it became due. Hollimon v. Karger, 30 C. A. 558, 71 S. W. 299.

Failure of holder of notes and mortgage to bring suit to fix liability of indorsers, held not to defeat right to foreclosure. Griffin v. Stone River Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 254.

The indorsement of acceptances to plaintiff put the legal title thereto in him so as to sustain an action thereon against the maker, though plaintiff was not the equitable owner of the acceptances. Haggard v. Bothwell (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 965.

A depositor in a bank drew a check in favor of a principal, and gave the check to one who represented himself to be agent of the payee, who was in fact a fictitious person, and the check was paid by a second bank, upon the agent's forged indorsement of the name of the fictitious payee, and the second bank indorsed the check, and the bank on which it was drawn paid it. Held, that this article does not apply. Guaranty State Bank & Trust Co. v. Lively (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 211.

A forged note is void, even in the hands of an innocent purchaser, and is not governed by the statutes applicable to paper "negotiable or assignable by law." Gardner v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 273.

Demand or presentation before suit.—It is not necessary prior to suit to present the bill or note for payment, or to give notice of non-payment, except when it is payable at sight, or at a given time after sight. Cartwright v. Roff, 1 T. 78; Hutchins v. Flintge, 2 T. 473, 47 Am. Dec. 659; Frosh v. Holmes, 8 T. 29; Raymond v. Holmes, 11 T. 54.

Time of bringing suit.—Due diligence requires suit to be brought at the first term, or, for cause shown, at the second term, after the accrual of the cause of action. Burke v. Ward (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 1047.

This article requires suit to be brought when the principal debt has matured, and not at the time one or more installments of interest become due, so that where notes provided that failure to pay interest when due should, at the holder's option, mature all the notes, the holder, by first exercising the option to consider the notes due for nonpayment of an installment of interest by suing on the notes the second term after the installment became due, did not release indorsers; the exercise of the option not relating back to the time when the interest fell due. Patterson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 612.

An action on an accepted draft brought against a drawer after more than two terms of court had passed in the county in which the acceptor was a former resident, and after one term of court in the county in which the drawer resided, was not brought in time. Seguin Milling & Power Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 456.

Under this article where a payee did not begin suit until after the expiration of the second term of court after maturity, the indorser cannot be charged. Derrick v. Smith (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1173.

—— Excuse for delay.—The prevalence of an epidemic excuses suit at first term. Harrison v. Sheirburn, 36 T. 73.

Exceptions properly lie to a petition brought to the third term after a cause of action accrues on a non-negotiable instrument in favor of the assignor, drawer or indorser when sued by the holder, when no legal excuse for the delay is set forth in the petition. Kampmann v. Williams, 70 T. 568, 8 S. W. 310.

In order to bind an indorser where suit has not been brought within the time prescribed by law, matter of excuse must be alleged and proven. Mullaly v. Ivory (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 259.

Where after maturity of the note there was not sufficient time to obtain service for the February term of court and suit was brought to the April term, the suit was sufficient to change the indorser, as the April term under such circumstances would be held to be the first term. The fact that there was not sufficient time to get service for February term was sufficient excuse for bringing suit at April term, though such term should be held to be second term after maturity of note. Vitkovitch v. Kleinecke, 33 C. A. 20, 75 S. W. 544.

In order that the holder of an accepted draft may recover thereon against the drawer without protest of the draft, he must show that the acceptor was a non-resident, or resided in such part of the state as not to be reached by ordinary process, and that his residence was not known, and could not be ascertained by reasonable diligence, and that such conditions existed at the time the suit should have been brought. Seguin Milling & Power Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 456.

Where the testimony was not such as would constitute proof of the necessary conditions in regard to the acceptor's residence at the proper time, it need not be submitted to the jury. Id.

The holder of a note in an action against the maker and indorsers, not begun at the first term of court after accrual of the cause of action, alleged that he did not sue upon it at the first term of court because one of the indorsers informed him that another party would bring suit on a note given in the same transaction, and that he could be brought in as a party and could make himself a party to the suit. Held, that such allegations were insufficient to excuse failure to bring action at the first term or to entitle the holder to a recovery as against the indorsers. Buster v. Woody (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 689.

Under this article it is in the first instance for the court whether the pleading sets up a sufficient excuse for not instituting suit before the beginning of the first term. Derrick v. Smith (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1173.

Negotiations with the maker for settlement held an insufficient excuse for the delay. Id.

Jurisdiction of court.—Under this article a suit on a negotiable vendor's lien note against the payee and indorser, which also sought to foreclose the vendor's lien, was properly brought in the district court, which had exclusive jurisdiction to render judgment, both for the debt and foreclosing the lien, under Const. 1876, art. 5, § 8 (art. 1705), giving the district court original jurisdiction of all suits for the enforcement of liens on land. Robinson v. Belt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 598.

Waiver of requirement.—On a waiver in a note of diligence, delay in suing thereon short of the period of limitations does not relieve indorsee from liability. Williams Bros. v. Rosenbaum (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 594.

The failure of payee to fix liability of indorser by bringing suit may be waived by the indorser. Ketterson v. Inscho, 55 C. A. 150, 118 S. W. 628.

Art. 580. [305] [263] How fixed by suit in justice's court.—Whenever the amount of such bill of exchange or promissory note shall be within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, the holder thereof may secure and fix the liability of any drawer or indorser by instituting suit against the acceptor or maker within sixty days next after the right of action shall accrue. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 230.]

In general.—Pledgees of a note held not required to sue the maker within 60 days in order to maintain a suit against him to recover the amount of the note after the maker had paid the same to the payee with notice of plaintiffs' rights. Landa v. Mechler (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 752.

Art. 581. [306] [264] Drawer of bill liable on non-acceptance.—The drawer of any bill of exchange which shall not be accepted when presented for acceptance shall be immediately liable for the payment thereof; and the holder of such bill may secure and fix the liability of any indorser thereof by instituting suit against such drawer, within the time and in the manner prescribed by this title. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 231.]

In general.—The right of action accrues when the acceptance of the bill in accordance with its terms is refused. Wood v. McMeans, 23 T. 481; Yale v. Ward, 30 T. 17.

Upon non-acceptance of a bill of exchange, drawer immediately liable. Vaughn v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank of Alvord (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 690.

Collateral agreement.—Maker of draft cannot avoid liability by proof of an understanding that drawee alone was to be liable. Todd v. Roberts, 20 S. W. 722, 1 C. A. 8.

Liability of drawee.—An unaccepted draft, when not indicating by its terms an assignment of the debt, nor accompanied by a verbal assignment, is no evidence of debt against the drawee. Gamer v. Thomson, 35 C. A. 283, 79 S. W. 1083.

The holder of an unaccepted bank check cannot maintain an action thereon against the bank. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Patterson & Wallace, 35 C. A. 447, 80 S. W. 1058.

Art. 582. [307] [265] Assignee may sue in his own name.—Any person to whom any of the said negotiable instruments may have been assigned may maintain any action in his own name which the original obligee or payee might have brought; but he shall not only allow all just discounts against himself, but, if he obtained the same after it became due, he shall also allow all just discounts against the assignor before notice of the assignment was given to the defendant; but, should he obtain such instrument before its maturity, by giving for it a valuable consideration, and without notice of any discount or defense against it, then he shall be compelled to allow only the just discounts against himself. [Act June 25, 1840, p. 144, sec. 2. P. D. 221.]

2. Indorsement in blank.—See notes at end of title.

3. Liability on indorsement.—See notes at end of title.

4. Application of article.—It is only negotiable notes to which this article applies. National Bank of Commerce v. Kenney, 98 T. 293, 83 S. W. 371.

5. Right of action by assignee.—One who paid a note after maturity to the collecting bank under an agreement with the maker held to have become the equitable owner, and entitled to sue in his own name. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Moore, 19 C. A. 283, 46 S. W. 665.

Where a foreign executor assigned by indorsement a note belonging to the estate, the indorsee might maintain suit thereon in Texas in his own name on the note. Keller v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 637.

An agent who buys a note with his principal's money, and has it indorsed to himself, may sue thereon in his own name. Cochran v. Siegfried (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 542.

One held the legal owner of a note entitled to sue the maker and the independent executrix of the deceased payee on his indorsement of the note. Goodwin & McFarland v. Burton, 54 C. A. 586, 118 S. W. 587.

Plaintiff commenced action on a promissory note payable to another and indorsed to plaintiff, and by him indorsed to a bank. Defendant made default, and plaintiff paid to the bank, and then sued defendant. Prior to its delivery to plaintiff, the note was stamped across the face "City National Bank, Paid, Oct. 14," etc. Held, that the prior indorsers not being necessary parties, and plaintiff not being the payee, he had the right to sue in his own name, though some interest in the note might have been held by the prior indorsers. McShan v. Watlington (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 722.

The payee of a note, though designated therein as trustee, may maintain a suit thereon, on his legal title, without joining any one beneficially interested. O'Brien v. Mayer (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 240.

Persons to whom the vendor's note was transferred as collateral security held to have a right to sue thereon in their own name and to foreclose the vendor's lien. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180.

6. Nature and form of action.—An action held properly brought as on a note and its indorsement, instead of on a balance of account. Le Tulle Mercantile Co. v. Rugeley (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 438.

7. Action on pledged note.—See notes under Title 86, Chapter 8.

8. Parties to action.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 5.

9. Negotiability.—An instrument which is merely a contract by which one can acquire an interest in land (or which is known as an option) falls within the rule of "written instruments not negotiable by law."

The essential quality of the negotiability of a bill or note is an absolute promise by the person designated in the instrument to pay a specified sum of money, at a time therein limited, to a person named, or to his order, or to the bearer. Wexel v. Cameron, 31 T. 614; Griffeth v. Hanks, 46 T. 217; Texas Land & Cattle Co. v. Carroll, 63 T. 48; Pridgen v. Cox, 9 T. 367; Salinas v. Wright, 11 T. 572; Rowlett v. Lane, 43 T. 274; Jones v. Holliday, 11 T. 412, 62 Am. Dec. 487; Henderson v. Glass, 16 T. 559; Hutchins v. Wade, 20 T. 7; Martin v. Shumatte, 62 T. 188; Kinney v. Lee, 10 T. 155; Hopkins v. Seymour, 10 T. 202; Lindsay v. Price, 33 T. 280; Andrews v. Harvey, 39 T. 123; Eborn v. Chote, 22 T. 32; Ellett v. Britton, 6 T. 229; Taylor v. Tompkins, 1 App. C. C. § 1050; Platzer v. Norris, 38 T. 1.

Negotiable paper must show on its face the liability of every person who is bound for its payment. Texas L. & C. Co. v. Carroll, 63 T. 48.

Improvement certificates issued by a city are not negotiable, and subject to defenses in hands of assignee. Berwind v. Galveston & H. Inv. Co., 20 C. A. 426, 50 S. W. 413.

*Though the form of an indorsement of a note did not conform to the law merchant, its negotiability held preserved by the terms of this article. Rowe v. Gohlman, 44 C. A. 315, 98 S. W. 1077.

An obligation held a negotiable instrument. Cedar Rapids Nat. Bank v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 632.

A receipt issued by a cotton compress company, which acknowledges the receipt of cotton, to be at the owner's risk, and which stipulates that the company will not be responsible for damage by water or loss or damage by fire, and that the receipt must be returned on delivery of the cotton, and that it is nonnegotiable, is not a negotiable instrument under the law merchant. Stamford Compress Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1142.

10. —— Payee.—The negotiability of a certificate of deposit is determined by its form—whether payable to the depositor, to bearer or order. National Bank v. National Bank, 84 T. 40, 19 S. W. 334.

Notes, to be negotiable, must be payable to order, or to bearer, or some other language of like import must be incorporated in them. Ellis v. Hahn, 29 C. A. 395, 68 S. W. 336.

11. —— Time of Payment.—A note payable "on or before" a day named is a negotiable instrument within this article. Buchanan v. Wren, 10 C. A. 560, 30 S. W. 1077.

A note payable "on or before" a certain date is negotiable. Gill v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 751.

A note containing a provision relating to extensions of time and notice of nonpayment to indorsers held not non-negotiable, on the ground that the time of payment was rendered uncertain. National Bank of Commerce v. Kenney, 98 T. 293, 83 S. W. 368, affirming 35 C. A. 434, 80 S. W. 555.

A note payable "on or before" a certain date is valid as a negotiable instrument. Lovenberg v. Henry, 104 T. 550, 140 S. W. 1079.

12. —— Medium of payment.—A note payable in property is not negotiable by the law merchant, and is subject to all defenses in the hands of an assignee. Griffeth v. Hanks, 46 T. 217.

The term "current funds" destroys the negotiability of an instrument. Texas L. & C. Co. v. Carroll, 63 T. 48.

A receipt for a specified bale of cotton, making the cotton deliverable to bearer on return of the receipt, is not negotiable, and is not good in the hands of one who derives title from a finder or a thief; the owner of the cotton may recover possession without the execution of a bond of indemnity. Clay v. Gage, 1 C. A. 661, 20 S. W. 948.

A promissory note may be payable in any currency. A promise to pay in Mexican silver dollars is negotiable; the exchange into current coin is upon proof of their relative values. Hogue v. Williamson, 85 T. 553, 22 S. W. 580, 20 L. R. A. 481, 34 Am. St. Rep. 823.

The character of commercial paper is not impaired by calling for exchange; the same being susceptible of definite ascertainment. Whittle v. Fond du Lac Bank (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1106.

That a note is payable in gold coin or its equivalent in currency of the United States, at the option of the holder, does not affect its negotiable character. Whittle v. Bank (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1106; Wright v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 627.

The words "in current funds" do not deprive a note of its negotiability. McCormick v. Kampmann (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 492.

Checks issued to employés payable only in merchandise at the employer's store are not negotiable instruments payable to bearer. Attoyac River Lumber Co. v. Payne, 57 C. A. 327, 122 S. W. 278.

13. —— Provision for attorney's fee.—A provision for attorney's fees does not destroy the negotiable character of a note. Hamilton Gin & Mill Co. v. Sinker, Davis Co., 74 T. 51, 11 S. W. 1056; Hamilton v. Clark (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 515; Smith v. Pickham, 8 C. A. 326, 28 S. W. 565; Wright v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 627.

A note is not rendered non-negotiable because of a collateral stipulation for the payment of attorney's fees in case of suit. O'Connell v. Rugely, 48 C. A. 456, 107 S. W. 151.

The courts of Texas in passing on the liability of an indorser of a note executed, payable, and indorsed in Oklahoma are not governed by the decisions of the courts of Oklahoma, declaring the common-law rule that a note stipulating for attorney's fees in case of suit is non-negotiable, but will apply the law of Texas making it negotiable. Hardy v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 650.

14. —— Security.—A guaranty of a note does not destroy its negotiability. Hutches v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 60.

A reservation, in a deed of trust securing a note, of the right to the payor to make payments thereon at certain times, does not destroy the negotiability of the instruments. Cunningham v. McDonald, 98 T. 316, 83 S. W. 372.

15. —— Special provisions.—The negotiability of a note is destroyed by a partial indorsement. Goldman v. Blum, 58 T. 630.

An indorsement on a note of the words "not transferable," or a stipulation that "the privilege is reserved of making payment on account until maturity," destroys its negotiability. Friedman v. Wagner, 1 App. C. C. § 734; Ezell v. Edwards, 2 App. C. C. § 767.

Negotiability destroyed by reference to conditions of a contract. Parker v. Bank (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1071.

A note given for rent, and subject to any offset that may arise for repairs on the place, was non-negotiable. Jones v. Laturnus (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1010.

Notes are rendered non-negotiable by a provision that no property owned by the maker, except that included in a trust deed given to secure their payment, shall ever be subjected to their judgment, and the maker may plead failure of consideration in an action on the notes by an innocent purchaser. Street v. Robertson, 28 C. A. 222, 66 S. W. 1120.

16. —— Effect of negotiability.—When paper is deemed by the law merchant non-negotiable it is competent to show that, although signed in the name of the agent only, it was executed in the business of the principal, and that he alone should be bound. Texas L. & C. Co. v. Carroll, 63 T. 48.

The parties to a negotiable promissory note cannot in defense allege matters which are at variance with the written contract. Lanius v. Shuber, 77 T. 24, 13 S. W. 614.

A negotiable note before maturity is not within the rule of lis pendens. Gannon v. Bank, 83 T. 274, 18 S. W. 573.

17. Bona fide purchasers in general.—The presumption is in favor of the holder (McDonough v. Vansickle, 32 T. 134), but may be overcome by evidence. Watson v. Flanagan, 14 T. 354; McAlpin v. Finch, 18 T. 831; Pope v. Hays, 19 T. 375; Barnett v. Logue, 29 T. 282; Preston v. Breedlove, 36 T. 96; Eason v. Locherer, 42 T. 173; Blum v. Loggins, 53 T. 121; Mulberger v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 379.

One acquiring a note in good faith, for value, before maturity, held a bona fide holder. Wheeler v. First National Bank, 3 App. C. C. § 153; Hynes v. Winston (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1025; Stephens v. Summerfield, 22 C. A. 182, 54 S. W. 1088; First Nat. Bank v. N. Nigro & Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 536.

Indorsement by cashier of a note held to be in the usual course of business, and to transfer the legal title. Arnold v. Swenson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 870.

18. —— Form of indorsement.—If the instrument is in form negotiable at law, the form of the indorsement whereby the transfer is accomplished will not affect an innocent holder for value. Rowe v. Gohlman, 44 C. A. 315, 98 S. W. 1079.

Where the indorsers on two promissory notes surrendered them to one of the makers, who then sold them, such purchaser cannot hold the indorsers liable, as the faces of the notes showed that the maker had no redress against them. Downing v. Neeley & Stephens (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1192.

Where the drawer of a check knowingly makes it payable to a fictitious payee, it is considered payable to bearer; but, if a real person is intended by the name of the payee, the check must be indorsed by that person, and payment by a bank upon indorsement of some unauthorized person is not binding upon the drawer. Guaranty State Bank & Trust Co. v. Lively (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 211.

19. —— Taking as collateral security in general.—Creditor taking note as security for debt, in consideration of which he extends time of payment, held a holder for value. Mansur & Tebbetts Implement Co. v. Beer, 19 C. A. 311, 45 S. W. 972.

Pledgees of notes, without notice of any fraud in their execution, or failure of consideration, are bona fide purchasers. Watzlavzick v. D. & A. Oppenheimer, 38 C. A. 306, 85 S. W. 855.

An indorsee of a note as collateral security, in due course and without notice, is a bona fide purchaser, and may collect it and apply its proceeds to the payment of the debt secured, and hold the balance in trust for the indorser. Martin v. German American Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 131.

Where the payee of a note before its maturity placed it with plaintiff as additional security for a debt due plaintiff from the payee, and other indebtedness which might accrue against him, plaintiff was a bona fide holder for value, not having knowledge of any facts making the note illegal or unenforceable. State Bank of Chicago v. Holland (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 435.

A maker of a note held not entitled to assert fraud against a transferee as security for an open account. Cherry v. First Texas Chemical Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 306.

A transfer of negotiable paper as collateral for a debt less in amount than the paper is in due course and for a valuable consideration. Masterson v. Ross (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1156.

20. —— Taking as security for or in payment of pre-existing debt.—A note received in payment of or as security for a precedent debt is taken in the usual course of trade. Greneaux v. Wheeler, 6 T. 515; Rawles v. Perkey, 50 T. 311; Liddell v. Crain, 53 T. 549; Kauffman v. Robey, 60 T. 308, 48 Am. Rep. 264; Herman v. Gunter, 83 T. 66, 18 S. W. 428, 29 Am. St. Rep. 632.

B. received a draft indorsed to him as follows: "Pay B. or order for collection for account of the City Bank of Houston. W., cashier." The prior indorsement on the draft showed that it had been remitted to the bank for collection for account of S. The bank, which was indebted to both B. and S., having failed, and B. having collected the draft, held, that he could not appropriate the money collected to the payment of his debt, but that the same belonged to S. Bank v. Weiss, 67 T. 331, 3 S. W. 299.

The taking of a negotiable promissory note is not a payment of a pre-existing debt, and this presumption can be rebutted only by proof that it was otherwise intended by the parties. Lutterloh v. McIlhenny Co., 74 T. 73, 11 S. W. 1063.

The transfer of a negotiable promissory note as collateral security for a pre-existing debt is not subject to equities of which the holder had no notice. Marx v. Dreyfus (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 232, 853.

Where a payee transfers a note in New York in part payment of a dept, the transferee takes it subject to any defense available against the payee. Holt v. McCann (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 310.

A person holding notes as collateral for a pre-existing debt has no better title thereto than the person who transferred them. Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co. v. First National Bank of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 573.

The acceptance and retention of a note of a third person in settlement of a debt, although obtained through the fraud of the debtor's agent, will not charge the creditor, if unknown. American Nat. Bank v. Cruger (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1057.

One taking a note as security for a pre-existing indebtedness held a bona fide holder for value. Alexander v. Bank of Lebanon, 19 C. A. 620, 47 S. W. 840; State Bank of Chicago v. Holland (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 435; Trezevant & Cochran v. R. H. Powell & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 234; Masterson v. Ross (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1156.

The discharge of a pre-existing debt is sufficient consideration for the indorsement of a note alleged to have been obtained through fraud to sustain the indorsee's rights as a bona fide purchaser. Rowe v. Gohlman, 44 C. A. 315, 98 S. W. 1077.

Where the payee of a note, purporting to be signed by a firm and indorsed by a third person, had taken it in satisfaction of a pre-existing debt due from the firm, and the payee had no notice that the indorser had indorsed the note, believing that a former partner was still a member of the firm, the payee was a bona fide holder for value, and could recover against the indorser, though he knew that the partner was not a member of the firm, so that he could not recover from him as maker. Trezevant & Cochran v. R. H. Powell & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 234.

A transferee who takes a note by indorsement, before maturity and without notice of defects, as collateral security for a pre-existing debt, will be protected as any other bona fide purchaser. Third Nat. Bank v. National Bank of Commerce (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 665.

That a part of the consideration paid for the transfer of a negotiable note was the extinguishment of a pre-existing debt due to the transferees did not prevent them from being bona fide purchasers. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co., 104 T. 576, 140 S. W. 770, 141 S. W. 515.

The transfer of a negotiable note as collateral security for a pre-existing debt is in due course of trade and for a valuable consideration. Lane v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 307.

21. —— Taking after maturity.—All defenses available against the payee of a note are available against his assignee claiming the note by an indorsement made after its maturity; and admissions of the payee, made before his indorsement of the note, are competent evidence to establish such defense. Goodson v. Johnson, 35 T. 622.

A note transferred after maturity is subject to existing credits. Branch v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 592.

Where a party acquired several notes for the same consideration, one of which was past due, he is charged with notice as against all the notes of any defect which could be plead against the original payee. Harrington v. Claflin, 91 T. 294, 42 S. W. 1055.

Default in payment of one of a series of notes held not notice to an assignee of failure of consideration of those not due, where they did not appear to have been given for the same consideration. Alexander v. Bank of Lebanon, 19 C. A. 620, 47 S. W. 840.

Facts held to show that a bank did not become holder of notes sued on before maturity. Ricker Nat. Bank v. Brown (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 810.

Where it is contracted that failure to pay one of a series of notes shall mature all, a purchaser after one has matured in effect purchases all after maturity. Lybrand v. Fuller, 30 C. A. 116, 69 S. W. 1005.

Where notes secured by a lien on a homestead show upon their face that they were given as parts of the same transaction, the first being overdue when transferred to plaintiff, it was sufficient to charge him with notice of defenses as to all the other notes. Id.

Where plaintiff acquired notes sued on after maturity, they were subject to the defense in his hands on behalf of the payee and first indorser, that she indorsed the notes for collection only, and not for transfer. Mayfield Grocer Co. v. Andrew Price & Co., 43 C. A. 391, 95 S. W. 31.

Where plaintiff's husband purchased notes after maturity, they were open to the defense of failure of consideration in plaintiff's hands as his executrix. Kampmann v. McCormick (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1147.

A purchaser of note after maturity holds it subject to equities which might have been urged against it in the hands of his assignor. Norwood v. Leeves (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 56.

Purchaser after maturity takes notes subject to any defenses that can be urged against them in hands of payee. Edwards v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 917.

The purchase of one of a series of notes after maturity operates as a purchase of all of them after maturity. National State Bank of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 646.

22. —— Purchaser from bona fide holder.—A holder from a bona fide indorsee takes a negotiable note discharged of inquiry into its consideration, and it is immaterial whether such remote holder had notice or paid value. Herman v. Gunter, 83 T. 66, 18 S. W. 428, 29 Am. St. Rep. 632.

Knowledge of defenses to a note against the payee will not defeat recovery by indorsee of a bona fide purchaser. Hollimon v. Karger, 30 C. A. 558, 71 S. W. 299.

Where one acquires in good faith and for value negotiable paper, it is immaterial whether a subsequent holder thereof pays value or has notice at the time he acquires it. Masterson v. Ross (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1156.

23. Payment of less than face value.—A purchaser of a negotiable security before maturity, in cases where he is not personally charged with fraud, may recover its full amount against the maker, though he may have paid less than its par value, whatever may have been its original infirmity. Petri v. Bank, 83 T. 424, 18 S. W. 752, 29 Am. St. Rep. 657; First Nat. Bank v. Abernathy (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 349.

Where plaintiffs are innocent holders of a note fraudulently put in circulation, they can recover only the amount paid for it, with interest from the date of payment. People's Nat. Bank v. Mulkey (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 528.

Purchaser of note, paying but for one-half interest therein, held not purchaser for value as to remaining half. Kersey v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 56.

An innocent holder of drafts fraudulently put in circulation may only recover from the drawee the amount paid for them. Sperlin v. Peninsular Loan & Discount Co. (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 232.

The indorsee of a negotiable instrument is entitled to recover from the maker or drawer the full amount thereof, regardless of the amount paid by it therefor. First Nat. Bank v. Abernathy (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 349.

24. Notice—Actual.—As to constructive notice, see Board v. Ry. Co., 46 T. 316; Gannon v. Bank, 83 T. 274, 18 S. W. 573.

An assignee of an accommodation note who receives the same with notice of its true character, and that it was made under an agreement which had been violated, cannot enforce payment against its maker. Smith v. Traders' Nat. Bank, 74 T. 457, 12 S. W. 113.

A party having notice of the fraud in making a note is not entitled to protection as a bona fide holder. Edmonds v. Iron City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 1067.

The purchaser of a note given by the purchaser of a machine who knows of any breach of warranty in the contract of sale takes it subject to any defense that could have been made to a suit on it by the seller of the machine. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Hall, 32 C. A. 214, 73 S. W. 835.

Purchaser of note, knowing that one-half of it was owned by some third person, held not purchaser without notice of actual ownership. Kersey v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 56.

That a purchaser of notes before maturity had notice of defenses against them held a material element of defense. Cochran v. Priddy, 49 C. A. 39, 107 S. W. 616.

Knowledge of the holder of a draft as to there being no funds of the drawer with the drawee to meet it could not relieve the drawee of the effect of its acceptance, except perhaps in the case of a conspiracy to defraud the drawee. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

If plaintiff, when he purchased notes which recited that they were given for the purchase price of land, had notice that the maker's representatives claimed that the land had in fact been paid for before the notes were executed, plaintiff could not complain if the recitals in the notes were untrue. Edwards v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 914.

Where the drawee when he paid drafts was not fully aware of the fraud inducing the sale of goods for which given, or, if so, was then trying to adjust his differences with the drawer, the payment did not preclude him from urging the fraud as a defense against one holding the drafts at maturity, with knowledge of the fraud, acquired after transfer, who then had sufficient of the drawer's funds to pay them. Johnson County Sav. Bank v. Renfro, 57 C. A. 160, 122 S. W. 37.

The phrase "without notice," used in relation to the taking of a note, usually refers to some defense of the maker or to some claim of title to it other than that of the seller, with or without notice of which a purchaser has taken it. Judgment, Watson v. Vansickle (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 1160, modified. Vansickle v. Watson, 103 T. 37, 123 S. W. 112.

In an action by a husband and wife on notes and to enforce a lien on land which had been separate property of the wife, where the husband had indorsed the notes to his sons for a specific purpose, and defendant, in possession thereof, knew when he received them from the son that they had only the right to use them for that purpose, held, that defendant was not a bona fide owner. Givens v. Carter (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 623.

25. —— Constructive notice and facts putting on inquiry.—Recital in a note that it was given for rent of land does not charge an indorsee before maturity with notice of any infirmary in or defense to it. Adoue v. Tankersley (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 346; Gannon v. Bank, 83 T. 275, 18 S. W. 573; Board v. Railway Co., 46 T. 328.

That one bought a note from the payee, under blank indorsement, and that it was held by her husband, who was one of the makers of the note, as her agent, does not affect a purchaser of the note from her with notice of its failure of consideration. Brainerd v. Bute (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 575.

Purchaser of note held not bound to take notice of facts, which he might have learned by reasonable diligence, impeaching the title of the seller. Turner v. Grobe (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 898.

Purchaser of note held affected, up to the time he became the owner thereof, with knowledge of facts showing fraud in obtaining the note. Id.

One taking assignment of a series of notes held chargeable with notice of defense to all of them, part of them being overdue. Ferguson v. Wiede (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 392.

Evidence held admissible to show that, if the purchaser of a forged draft had made inquiries, it would have increased his confidence in the person who sold it to him. Moody v. First Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 278, 46 S. W. 660.

A purchaser before maturity of a negotiable instrument, though having notice of facts sufficient to put a man of ordinary prudence on inquiry, held an innocent holder. Mulberger v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 379.

One receiving draft from indorser thereof need not inquire concerning genuineness of preceding indorsements. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Simpson Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 636, 47 S. W. 1024.

Maker held charged with notice of assignee's claim, on payment to payee not in possession. Prim v. Glass (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 57.

That the vendor of a homestead continued to occupy the same did not constitute notice to a broker, who procured a transfer of a lien note executed by the vendee on such homestead, that such vendor still claimed to own the property. Stephens v. Summerfield, 22 C. A. 182, 54 S. W. 1088.

The genuine attestation of a note executed by the treasurer of a corporation on its behalf by the corporation's secretary held to relieve a bona fide purchaser of the note before maturity of the necessity of further inquiry as to the authenticity of the paper. Merchants' & Farmers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Lufkin Nat. Bank, 34 C. A. 551, 79 S. W. 651.

Though a corporation of Texas, which conducted business in another state under the name of C., had no power to conduct its corporate business in such other state, it might have power to accept drafts drawn by C., so that banks which bought drafts drawn by C. and accepted by the corporation, knowing that they were given for logs purchased by C., were not charged with notice of the corporation's want of power to make the acceptances. Lake Charles Nat. Bank v. J. I. Campbell Co., 57 C. A. 362, 122 S. W. 601.

Knowledge of circumstances tending to disclose the falsity of representations inducing the giving of a note will not prevent one from relying upon the representations if his confidence in the one making the representations causes him to rely upon the statement that the fact is otherwise than as indicated by the particular circumstances. Wisegarver v. Yinger (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1190, denying rehearing (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 925.

Where a corporation cannot guarantee commercial paper for another's accommodation, its guaranty of a note was ultra vires, and purchasers of the note were affected by notice of the circumstances relating to the guaranty. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 222.

A certificate of deposit to "C., guardian," held notice that it is trust funds, putting one receiving it on notice. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Adoue & Lobit, 104 T. 379, 137 S. W. 648, 138 S. W. 383, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 409.

Purchasers of negotiable notes in good faith before maturity, for a valuable consideration, held entitled to protection as innocent purchasers against a stipulation in the deed, of which stipulation they had no notice or knowledge, though the deed was referred to in the note merely for the purpose of description. Hassard v. May (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 665.

26. —— Notice to corporate officer or stockholder.—The general agent of a life insurance company under whom a subagent acted was chargeable with notice of his fraudulent representations made in procuring a premium note. Webb v. Moseley, 30 C. A. 311, 70 S. W. 349.

That a transferee of a note from a corporation before maturity, without notice of defenses, was a stockholder in the corporation, did not charge him with notice that the note had been paid to the corporation. Landa v. Mechler (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 752.

The drawer of a check on a bank notified the bank through its president to refuse payment. The check was later bought for a valuable consideration by a firm of which the president of the bank was one of the partners. Held, that notice to the president was not notice to the firm. Flynn v. Bank of Mineral Wells, 53 C. A. 481, 118 S. W. 848.

A corporation which takes a note of another corporation as collateral security is not charged with notice of fraud of the latter in obtaining the note merely because of the same person being an officer of both; he having no notice thereof. Judgment (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 81, reversed. Cherry v. First Texas Chemical Mfg. Co., 103 T. 82, 123 S. W. 689.

27. Evidence.—Evidence which could merely raise a suspicion that plaintiff, a purchaser of notes before maturity, had notice of defenses thereto, held insufficient to sustain a verdict for defendant, in view of the burden of proof resulting from an admission made to secure opening and closing. Cochran v. Priddy, 49 C. A. 39, 107 S. W. 616.

In an action on notes claimed to have been given for the purchase price of land, which had in fact been paid for when the notes were executed, testimony held to show that plaintiff had notice, when he purchased the notes, that defendants claimed the land had been paid for before the notes were executed. Edwards v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 914.

In an action by an indorsee of a note, illegal because given for professional services rendered by one practicing medicine in violation of the statute, evidence held not to show that he acquired the note without notice of illegality. Barnes v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 610.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that defendant received notice of forgery of a note, an interest in which he had transferred to plaintiff, within a reasonable time after plaintiff discovered the forgery. Gardner v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 273.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that plaintiff purchased the note before maturity, in due course of trade, for value, and without notice of fraud. Harlan v. Guitar (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 628.

In an indorsee's action on notes, evidence aside from hearsay testimony erroneously admitted held to clearly show that the indorsee purchased the notes before maturity in due course of business for a valuable consideration and without notice of defenses. Carrollton Press Brick Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1046.

28. Defenses as against bona fide purchaser.—A note acquired when it was overdue is subject to all the equities between antecedent parties and to objections affecting it in the hands of the party who first became wrongfully possessed of it, or by whom it was tortiously transferred. Weathered v. Smith, 9 T. 622, 60 Am. Dec. 186; Texas Banking & Ins. Co. v. Turnley, 61 T. 365.

A negotiable note transferred in the ordinary course of business for a valuable consideration cannot be affected by an agreement between the original parties thereto, of which the indorsee had no notice. Davis v. Gray, 61 T. 506; Maxwell v. McCune, 37 T. 515; Blair v. Rutherford, 31 T. 465.

A negotiable note given for land in the hands of an innocent assignee is not subject to defenses against the payee. Tinsley v. Houston Land & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 815.

An indorsee holding notes as collateral must show the amount paid on the debt they were given to secure, and what other security he had as against the maker having a defense against the payee. Harrington v. Claflin, 91 T. 294, 42 S. W. 1055.

In an action by the assignee of a note, an instruction excluding the allowance of a set-off as against the payee, through whom plaintiff claimed, unless the jury believed that there was an undertaking between the defendant and the payee as to the set-off against the note, held erroneous. Prouty v. Musquiz (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 568.

One who acquires a note before maturity in due course of trade is protected against the claims of others, unless he had actual information of their rights. Rotan v. Maedgen, 24 C. A. 558, 59 S. W. 585.

Where a vendor, holding notes which were a lien on the land, sold one under an agreement that it should have priority, but the agreement was not recorded, a bona fide purchaser without notice of the other note was not prejudiced thereby. Lewis v. Ross (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 504.

Payment of a note by the maker to the payee, with knowledge that the note had been transferred to plaintiffs as collateral security, held no defense to plaintiffs' right to enforce payment from the maker. Landa v. Mechler (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 752.

As between the holder and the acceptor, the latter is estopped to deny that he has funds of the drawer with which to pay. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

Where certain negotiable notes sued on were transferred to plaintiff bank before maturity, they were not subject to defenses of which plaintiff had no notice. Hall & Tyson v. First Nat. Bank, 102 T. 308, 116 S. W. 47.

The purchaser of a negotiable note in due course before maturity and for value, without notice of any infirmities, is entitled to recover thereon, irrespective of defenses existing against it as to the maker. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co., 104 T. 576, 140 S. W. 770, 141 S. W. 515.

29. —— Want of title.—(16) The possession of commercial paper acquired in good faith in the usual course of trade gives property, whether the person from whom received have title or not. Wilson v. Denton, 82 T. 531, 18 S. W. 620, 27 Am. St. Rep. 908; Blum v. Loggins, 53 T. 121.

While a bona fide purchaser of a negotiable instrument may assume that the rights of the respective parties to such paper are precisely what they purport to be, yet he cannot assume that the title of the transferror is better than it purports to be. Downing v. Neeley & Stephens (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1192.

A bank which received from a guardian a note belonging to the estate, in a transaction with him as an individual, held to have acquired no title. First State Bank of Hale Center v. McIntire (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 613.

30. —— Want or failure of consideration.—(5) The want or failure of consideration is not available as a defense in an action by the assignee of a note before maturity, there being no evidence that he had notice of any vice in the consideration. Herndon v. Bremond, 17 T. 432.

Before the defense of failure of consideration can be set up against an indorsee who has sued on the note, it must be shown that he received it with notice of circumstances impeaching its validity. Graham v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 558.

A failure of consideration is no defense to a note as against one acquiring it, without notice thereof, in payment of a pre-existing debt. Raatz v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 651.

Where a husband and wife execute notes for realty to grantors who are husband and wife, and such notes are transferred before maturity to a purchaser in good faith, without notice that they were given in a pretended sale of the homestead, the husbands are liable on the notes to the purchaser, though the wives are not. Noel v. Clark, 25 C. A. 136, 60 S. W. 356.

An innocent purchaser of a note, having after maturity learned it was without consideration, and having enough money of the indorser which it could have applied to paying it, held not entitled to sue the maker in another state. State Bank v. J. Blakey & Co., 35 C. A. 87, 79 S. W. 331.

In an action on a note given for the price of land, defendant, having alleged that plaintiff was not a bona fide holder for value, held entitled to prove want of consideration as against him. Morris v. Brown, 38 C. A. 266, 85 S. W. 1015.

A person sui juris may give his note for a debt that he does not personally owe, and in the hands of an innocent purchaser the consideration cannot be questioned. Adams v. Bartell, 46 C. A. 349, 102 S. W. 779.

That the balance due on a void contract is the consideration for a draft is no defense to its payment in the hands of innocent purchasers for a valuable consideration. Flynn v. Bank of Mineral Wells, 53 C. A. 481, 118 S. W. 848.

A failure of the consideration for drafts as between the drawer and drawee would not affect the right of a bona fide purchaser of the drafts for value before maturity, without notice thereof, to recover thereon against the drawee. Smith Bros. v. Flanders (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 80.

A negotiable instrument in the hands of a bona fide holder held not subject to defense that the goods for which the note was given were worthless. Cedar Rapids Nat. Bank v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 632.

A maker of a note held not entitled to assert lack of consideration against a transferee as security for an open account. Cherry v. First Texas Chemical Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 306.

A purchaser of land, who executed vendor's lien notes for the price, conveyed the property, and his grantee assumed the notes. Before payment was due, part of the property, the title to which the original grantor had warranted, was taken under title paramount. Held, that a bona fide purchaser of the vendor's lien notes before maturity and for value, without notice, could only recover from the second grantee a sum in proportion to the remaining land, since the second grantee of the land was not a party to the note, and only assumed payment as consideration for the transfer of the land. Brannin v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 348.

In an action by a bona fide holder of vendor's lien notes against a second grantee of the land, part of whose land had been taken under title paramount, held, that the defense of partial failure of consideration might be set up, despite this article. Id.

31. —— Want of delivery.—A promissory note payable to a named person or bearer and delivered to one not named as payee is not taken in due course of business, and in his hands is void as to the surety. Battle v. Cushman (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1037.

A maker of a note held estopped as against an innocent purchaser thereof from urging that the note had never been delivered to the payee. Goodwin & McFarland v. Burton, 54 C. A. 586, 118 S. W. 587.

Delivery of a negotiable instrument is not essential to its validity in the hands of an innocent holder for value, though the maker lost possession by theft. Worsham v. State, 56 Cr. R. 253, 120 S. W. 439, 18 Ann. Cas. 134.

32. —— Fraud, mistake, and undue influence.—The assignee before maturity of a negotiable instrument which originated in fraud or illegality must show that he is a holder in good faith for value, and without notice of the fraud or illegality. Fowler v. Chapman, 1 App. C. C. § 966.

A negotiable promissory note obtained by fraud is valid in the hands of a bona fide holder for value. Williams v. Rand, 9 C. A. 631, 30 S. W. 510; Riley v. Reifert (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 185.

The rights of one becoming an owner of a note before maturity for value and without notice cannot be defeated because of the fraud of the payee. Hames v. Stroud, 51 C. A. 562, 112 S. W. 775.

Persons executing notes because of fraudulent representations, which passed to a bona fide purchaser for value without notice, and voluntarily buying them by executing new notes, held not entitled to avoid liability because of the misrepresentations. Harfst v. State Bank of El Campo, 56 C. A. 31, 119 S. W. 694.

Where plaintiff was an innocent purchaser for value of acceptances given by defendant in payment for goods sold through fraud, but obtained knowledge of the fraud and of defendant's refusal to pay for them before maturity, defendant could set up the fraud as a defense in an action thereon by plaintiff only as to such drafts as matured when plaintiff had in its possession funds of the drawer sufficient to pay the acceptances, but not as to such drafts as were not matured when plaintiff held the drawer's funds, as the rule should not be applied when it would work injury to a bona fide purchaser. Johnson County Savings Bank v. Renfro, 57 C. A. 160, 122 S. W. 37.

An innocent purchaser of a note, can preclude a defense of fraudulent representations, by showing that the maker knew facts which, if followed with ordinary diligence, would have disclosed the fraud. Wisegarver v. Yinger (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1190, denying rehearing (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 925.

In an action by a bona fide holder of a note against an indorser thereon, an answer alleging that the indorser gave his indorsement through mistake is no defense. Trezevant & Cochran v. R. H. Powell & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 234.

Where a maker of a note was influenced to execute it for an excessive amount through undue influence, an innocent purchaser may recover the full amount of the note. Barnes v. McCarthy (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 85.

The purchaser of a note before maturity, in due course of trade, for a valuable consideration, and without notice of fraud on the maker, could recover thereon. Harlan v. Guitar (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 628.

If the maker of a $600 note could defend against a bona fide purchaser on the ground that he was fraudulently led to believe he was signing a note for only $100, he must show freedom from negligence. Garlitz v. Runnels County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1151.

Though one who signed a $600 note, believing, because of fraudulent representations, that it was for $100, could not read English, he was guilty of negligence precluding him from asserting fraud against a bona fide purchaser, where he had been in the country for many years, could read German, had transacted much business, and failed to take advice before signing. Id.

Ordinarily the maker of a negotiable instrument procured through fraud going to its inception is liable to a bona fide purchaser for value without notice. Id.

33. —— Forgery and alteration.—A bank held not guilty of negligence in purchasing a forged draft. Moody v. First Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 278, 46 S. W. 660.

One personating an employé of a railroad obtained a draft from it in favor of the employé on the cashier of the railroad for wages due, and then indorsed the employé's name and sold the draft to a third person. The railroad was not guilty of negligence in delivering the draft. Held, that the third person obtained no title to the draft, and he could not collect it from the railroad. Rolling v. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 302.

Any material alteration in an instrument evidencing a pecuniary liability is a "forgery," which the maker is not bound to anticipate and guard against by making such alteration difficult or impossible. Lanier v. Clarke (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1093.

If a condition of a negotiable promissory note made in lead pencil on the margin thereof below the maker's signature, to the effect that it was given in consideration of four lots, was erased from the note after it left the maker's hands, and before it was transferred to plaintiffs in due course and for value, the maker was not liable thereon in an action by plaintiffs; the maker of a note not being liable upon a contract different from that made by him. Id.

A forged note is void even in the hands of an innocent purchaser, and is not governed by the statutes applicable to paper "negotiable or assignable by law." Gardner v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 273.

34. —— Illegality.—When bona fide indorsee may recover on note given in payment for liquors sold in violation of law. Campbell v. Jones, 21 S. W. 723, 2 C. A. 263.

A negotiable note, given for the services of a physician not qualified to practice, held enforceable by bona fide holder. Roach v. Davis (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1070.

Illegality is not, as a rule, a defense to commercial paper in an action thereon by a bona fide holder for value before maturity without notice, unless the instrument is void ab initio. State Bank of Chicago v. Holland, 103 T. 266, 126 S. W. 564.

A note, the consideration of which is the doing of business in the state by a foreign corporation without any permit from the secretary of state to do business is enforceable by an innocent purchaser for value before maturity. Carrollton Press Brick Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1046.

35. —— Insanity.—One executing a note while insane is not liable thereon, even in the hands of an innocent person. Barnes v. McCarthy (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 85.

36. —— Usury.—A usurious note in the hands of a bona fide purchaser held void as to the interest. Miles v. Kelley, 16 C. A. 147, 40 S. W. 599.

37. —— Burden of proof.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

Art. 583. [308] [266] Non-negotiable instruments may be assigned.—The obligee, or assignee, of any written instrument not negotiable by the law merchant may transfer to another, by assignment, all the interest he may have in the same. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 222.]

1. Instruments not negotiable.—See notes under Art. 582.

2. Existence of subject-matter.—A debt which has a potential existence may be assigned. Alfalfa Lumber Co. v. Brady (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 204.

3. Expectancies.—A son's expectancy in the estate of his mother, who is a lunatic, is subject to a valid conveyance. Searcy v. Gwaltney Bros., 81 S. W. 576, 36 C. A. 158.

4. Future earnings or profits—Under contracts.—Where a building contract provided that the stipulated price should be payable in different installments as the work progressed—$450 when the foundation and frame were finished, $450 when the storm sheeting roof and rough floor were finished, $450 when the outside of the house was completed and all sash and outside doors were in, and the balance on the completion of the contract—the debt accruing thereunder from the owner to the contractor had a sufficient potential existence after the contract was made to sustain a parol equitable assignment of a portion thereof to the contractor's surety. Campbell v. J. E. Grant Co., 82 S. W. 794, 36 C. A. 641.

A complaint alleged an agreement by defendant to pay B. a certain commission for the sale of property; an agreement between B. and C. by which C. was to receive a certain amount of such commission for work in negotiating the sale; that defendant was notified of C.'s claim to a portion of the commission, and agreed in writing to hold same for him; that defendant failed to so hold C.'s portion, but paid the entire commission to B.; and that C. assigned his claim against defendant to plaintiff. Held to state a cause of action. House v. Wells (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 196.

5. —— Salaries and fees of officers.—Where the fees of a public officer are collected by another under a void assignment thereof, such collection is ineffectual as to such officer, and they are still due, so far as he is concerned. Willis v. Weatherford Compress Co. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 472.

The transfer by a county assessor to his deputies of his fees in payment of what he owed them for services held not contrary to public policy. American Nat. Bank v. Petry (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1040.

6. Executed contracts.—A contract of a street railway company to build and operate a street railroad is assignable and the purchaser acquires all the rights of the original obligee in the bond or contract. Lakeview Land Co. v. San Antonio Traction Co., 95 T. 252, 66 S. W. 768.

A contract releasing a railroad from damages for injury to property for the injury or destruction of which it is not liable as common carrier, is assignable. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Carter, 95 T. 461, 68 S. W. 166.

Except in matters of personal trust or skill, this article has in effect changed the rule of the common law upon the subject of assignment of contracts, and many contracts and rights can be transferred which were not assignable at common law. A railway company can assign its interest in a contract wherein it is given the right to lay pipes to a spring on the land of the other party to the contract and pump water therefrom to a tank on the company's right of way. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Cluck, 31 C. A. 211, 72 S. W. 86.

7. Executory contracts.—A time check issued by an employer to an employé, reciting that on the first pay day after the month named therein the employer will pay cash, and stipulating on the back thereof "not transferable" and "storekeeper will supply goods to the amount of this order to the party named on the other side," etc., is primarily a contract to pay money on the day named, and is transferable. Aldridge Lumber Co. v. Graves (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 846.

8. —— Personal nature.—Where personal trust is reposed in a party to a contract, it is nonassignable. Judgment, Morrow v. Camp (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 819, reversed. Allen v. Camp, 106 S. W. 315, 101 T. 260.

A purchaser contracted in consideration of $2,000 cash to sell to a third person an option on certain land of the vendor. The contract with the third person recited that it was contingent on the consummation of the contract of sale, and, in case the sale was not consummated, the $2,000 should be returned to the third person, and provided that it was understood that the third person was appointed agent of the purchaser to sell the land described, and that the purchaser would make a warranty deed to the land sold by the third person, etc. Held, that the contract with the third person was a personal contract whereby the purchaser bound himself to make warranty deeds, and he could not shift his undertaking to others without the consent of the third person. Smith v. Pitts, 57 C. A. 97, 122 S. W. 46.

Rights growing out of contracts which involve relations of personal confidence cannot be transferred by one party without the consent of the other. Id.

9. Written instruments.—A policy of life insurance or benefit certificate in a fraternal association, is even before the death of the insured a chose in action. And while it cannot be gratuitously assigned to one having no insurable interest in the life of the insured, it may as a chose in action by virtue of this article, by one having an interest in it, be assigned as collateral security for his debt or obligation; and the one to whom it is assigned has a lien on it to secure payment of the debt, especially if it is for premiums or dues paid to keep the policy or certificate alive. He cannot be deprived of the possession thereof until the lien is discharged. Coleman v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1058.

A policy of insurance is an assignable instrument within the meaning of this article. Such assignment after loss gives the assignee an exclusive right to sue, he being bound to allow such discounts and defenses which it would have been subject to before notice of the assignment. E. T. F. Ins. Co. v. Coffee, 61 T. 287.

Benefit certificate issued by a fraternal order held assignable as collateral security by one having an interest therein, under this article. Coleman v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1057. See, also, notes under Title 71.

Assignment for valuable consideration of non-negotiable receipt for cotton by a compress company vested title to cotton in assignee. Stamford Compress Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1142.

Under this article a negotiable note may be assigned either verbally or in writing; indorsement not being necessary. National State Bank of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 646.

Under this article insurance policies are assignable in the same manner as other choses in action. Prentice v. Security Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 925.

10. Rights of action.—A chose in action can be assigned in equity, and an assignment of an interest in a chose in action may be by direct transfer, or by order drawn upon the particular fund. (Goldman v. Blum, 58 T. 630, followed.) County of Harris v. Campbell, 68 T. 22, 3 S. W. 243, 2 Am. St. Rep. 467; Clark v. Gillespie, 70 T. 513, 8 S. W. 121.

Choses in action may be assigned. Insurance Co. v. Coffee, 61 T. 287; Allison v. Insurance Co., 87 T. 593, 30 S. W. 547; Railway Co. v. Freeman, 57 T. 156; Winn v. Ry. Co., 12 C. A. 198, 33 S. W. 593.

In view of Art. 6833, requiring that the sale of a judgment or cause of action sued on, or part thereof, shall be acknowledged, filed, and noted by the clerk on the judgment or trial docket; and providing that these provisions shall apply to all "judgments, suits, claims and causes of action, whether assignable in law and equity or not," and that such recording shall operate as constructive notice to all persons dealing with reference to the judgment or cause of action, held, that an assignment of a part of a cause of action to plaintiff's attorney, before suit thereon, was valid, and it was not necessary that the assignment should be filed and noted as required by the statute, the defendant having actual notice of the attorney's claim. Judgment, 70 S. W. 96, 30 C. A. 161, affirmed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Ginther, 72 S. W. 166, 96 T. 295.

11. —— On contracts.—A cause of action for a breach by the lessor of the stipulations of the lease requiring him to furnish water to irrigate the land, sufficient to raise a crop of rice thereon, is assignable. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Langford Bros., 74 S. W. 926, 32 C. A. 401.

A seller sold goods for a specified price to a buyer, who refused to accept them. The seller resold the goods for a less price. Held, that the seller's claim of the difference between the purchase price and the price obtained on the resale, was assignable. Provident Nat. Bank v. C. D. Hartnett Co., 100 T. 214, 97 S. W. 689.

12. —— For torts.—An unliquidated claim for personal injury cannot be assigned. Railway Co. v. Freeman, 57 T. 156; Stewart v. H. & T. C. Ry. Co., 62 T. 246; Jones v. Matthews, 75 T. 1, 12 S. W. 823.

A claim for injuries to property may be assigned. G., H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Freeman, 57 T. 156.

Under Art. 5686, a cause of action for personal injuries may be sold and transferred just as one for injury to personalty. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Miller, 53 S. W. 709, 21 C. A. 609.

Under Art. 5686, a portion of a cause of action against a railroad company for injuries to the person is assignable before suit to the attorneys prosecuting the claim; the cause of action being one which would survive. Judgment, 70 S. W. 96, 30 C. A. 161, affirmed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Ginther, 72 S. W. 166, 96 T. 295.

Art. 5686 permits and governs an assignment of a part of a claim for injuries, before suit brought, to attorneys as compensation for their services in such suit. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Eldredge, 80 S. W. 556, 35 C. A. 467.

A claim for money due from one person to another for the value of property stolen from the former and pledged to the latter is assignable, and is sufficient to support an action by the assignee. Chapa v. Compton (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1175.

13. —— Founded on statute.—The right to a statutory penalty may be assigned. Winn v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 12 C. A. 198, 33 S. W. 593.

The right of action created by Art. 4982, which provided that, where one has paid usurious interest, he or his legal representative may recover double the amount thereof from the person receiving it, being a right of action which, by the express provision of the statute, would survive in case of death, is assignable. Taylor v. Sturgis, 68 S. W. 538, 29 C. A. 270.

Under the statute giving one who pays usurious interest a cause of action for the recovery of a penalty from the one to whom payment is made, or of "his legal representative," such a claim is subject to assignment. Lasater v. First Nat. Bank, 96 T. 345, 72 S. W. 1057.

14. —— Judgment or cause of action after suit brought.—See notes under Art. 6833.

15. Partial assignments.—A partial assignment of a chose in action is good in equity, though the legal title remains with the assignor, and such holder of the legal title may sue thereon in his own name. The equitable owner is a proper but not necessary party, unless the debtor have some legal defense as against him alone. Railway v. Gentry, 69 T. 625, 8 S. W. 98.

16. Agreements to assign.—Where plaintiff and C. both testified to an assignment of C.'s claim against defendants in controversy to plaintiff, and that, though nothing had been paid for it, its value was to be considered in a settlement between plaintiff and C., plaintiff acquired C.'s interest in the claim and could recover therefor. Doty v. Moore (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 955.

17. Oral assignments and assignments by delivery.—It seems that stock in a national bank cannot be transferred by delivery. James v. James, 81 T. 373, 16 S. W. 1087.

An assignment of a cause of action on an open account by a former plaintiff in a suit may be proved by parol evidence, as well as by a written instrument; but, if in writing, proof of the execution of the instrument of transfer is essential to render it admissible in evidence. Standifer v. Bond Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 144.

An assignment of a debt need not be in writing. Singletary v. Goeman (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 436.

Equity will enforce verbal assignments. Alfalfa Lumber Co. v. Brady (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 204.

An oral transfer is as effective an equitable assignment as a written transfer. A. A. Fielder Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 605.

18. Indorsement of written instrument.—A non-negotiable instrument cannot be transferred by a blank indorsement, so as to authorize suit by holder without other proof of transfer. Gregg v. Johnson, 37 T. 558. But the holder of such an instrument, payable to bearer, may bring suit. Hopkins v. Seymour, 10 T. 202.

A time check issued by an employer to an employé which recites that on the first pay day after the month named therein the employer will pay the amount thereof in cash, is not transferred by the mere writing by the employé of his name on the back thereof, but an assignee may recover thereon on proving an assignment to him for value by the employé, though the check was not assigned by a written instrument signed by the employé. Aldridge Lumber Co. v. Graves (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 846.

19. Equitable assignments.—Plaintiff paved a street for a city, and was paid by certificates against abutting property owners, among whom was included a street railroad company, which was liable, under its contract with the city, for paving between its rails, and for six inches outside thereof, but not as an abutting owner. Held, that the claim against the railroad company was equitably assigned. Houston City St. Ry. Co. v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 693, reversed Storrie v. Houston City St. Ry. Co., 92 Tex. 129, 46 S. W. 796, 44 L. R. A. 716.

An agreement by grantees of a municipal franchise that a fund deposited as security under the franchise should belong to the person furnishing it amounted to an equitable assignment of the fund to him on condition that the fund should be returned by the city and his right to recover it against the city is not precluded for want of privity of contract, on disclaimer of the grantees' interest in the fund. Whitcomb v. Houston (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 215.

20. —— Check or order.—In equity no interest is acquired in a chose in action by a mere order for a designated sum of money drawn against the debtor; to acquire such interest the order must be drawn against the specific fund. When a part of a debt is assigned the assignee acquires a right of action against the debtor, and not only a lien upon the fund but a property in the fund itself. Though he owns but an interest in the chose in action, he may enforce its collection and an equitable distribution by suit against the debtor and the other parties in interest. The several claimants under assignments of specific interests in the debt have priority of right to payment in accordance with the dates at which their interests were acquired. (Lindsay v. Price, 33 T. 280, and Frank v. Kaigler, 36 T. 306, disapproved.) County of Harris v. Campbell, 68 T. 22, 3 S. W. 243, 2 Am. St. Rep. 467; Clark v. Gillespie, 70 T. 513, 8 S. W. 121.

A check on a bank is an assignment or transfer of the funds of the drawer to the amount necessary for its payment. Doty v. Caldwell (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 1025; Vaughn v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank of Alvord (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 690.

A firm engaged in furnishing logs to a lumber company filed with it an order reciting that they would continue to furnish certain logs, and "this is to notify you that we have agreed with C. & Co. that they shall have the proceeds of said logs, and this is your authority to hereafter account to said C. & Co. for such logs, and pay over to them the proceeds and all amounts due us on account of same." The firm was then indebted to C. & Co., who, from time to time, at and after the giving of the order, sold goods to the firm on the faith of the order. Held that, so long as the debt existed with reference to which the order was given, the order was an equitable assignment to C. & Co. of the log fund as it existed then and arose thereafter, and hence not revocable. Beaumont Lumber Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 180.

A check drawn by a wife and delivered to a creditor, in payment of her husband's debt, before the bank on which it was drawn was served with garnishment in a suit against the husband, operated as an equitable assignment of community money of husband and wife in the bank, to the amount of the check, and such bank was authorized to pay the check out of funds in its hands after service of such garnishment. Neely v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, 61 S. W. 559, 25 C. A. 513.

A debtor who had a sum on deposit in a bank informed his creditor of that fact, and that he desired to pay the debt from the money on deposit, and it was agreed that the debtor should issue a check payable to a certain bank, so that that bank could collect the amount and pay it over to the creditor. A check was so issued, whereupon the payee bank telegraphed the bank of deposit to ascertain whether the debtor had funds in that bank, and, on the receipt of a reply in the affirmative, the debtor issued a second check for the balance of the debt, which was delivered to the creditor, who gave a receipt for the account. Held, that the transaction amounted to an assignment of the fund in the bank to the creditor, which was good against a subsequent garnishment of the bank in an action against the debtor. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Patterson & Wallace, 80 S. W. 1058, 35 C. A. 447.

An order to defendant to pay plaintiff the amount due the drawer to the date of the order, and that the order should be defendant's receipt for the same, constituted an assignment of the drawer's account to plaintiff. Comer v. Floore (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 246.

A creditor drew a draft on the debtor, and attached the account thereto. The creditor procured a bank to cash the draft. Held, that the claim was assigned to the bank, and, on the protest of the draft, it could hold the creditor and the debtor for the sum advanced. Provident Nat. Bank v. C. D. Hartnett Co., 100 T. 214, 97 S. W. 689.

The drawing of a draft on a debtor and the attaching of the account thereto, which draft was discounted by a bank, held an assignment of the claim to the bank. Provident Nat. Bank v. C. D. Hartnett Co., 45 C. A. 273, 100 S. W. 1024.

Such transaction operated as an assignment of the claim to the bank independent of any unexpressed intention of the assignor. Id.

An order drawn by a contractor on the owner of a building in favor of a materialman is an equitable assignment of so much of the fund on hand due the contractor on the contract as it was given for. Foley v. Houston Co-Op. & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 160.

The drawing of a check does not in general operate as an equitable assignment pro tanto of the drawer's deposit account, so as to entitle the holder to sue the bank in his own name. Central Bank & Trust Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 290.

21. —— Order or draft on particular fund.—Where a fund was deposited with a trust company to be used only in paying drafts drawn by a construction company on a bank in payment of claims for certain construction work, drafts so drawn were in equity assignments pro tanto of the fund, since, while the mere giving of a check or draft drawn generally on a bank or person having funds of the drawer will not operate as an assignment of the fund, yet, where there is an agreement that a check drawn generally shall be paid out of a particular fund, such check as between the parties will be treated as an order for payment out of a specific designated amount. McBride v. American Ry. & Lighting Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 229.

Where a fund was deposited with a trust company to be used only in paying drafts drawn by a construction company in payment of claims for certain construction work, drafts so drawn held in equity assignments pro tanto of the fund. Id.

A deposit in a bank in the name of a purchaser of land of a sum to be checked in payment therefor was a special deposit, so that the drawing of a check thereon was an equitable assignment of the fund to the seller; and hence he had no lien on the land for the amount of the deposit, though it was garnished before the check was paid. Elliott v. First State Bank of Ft. Stockton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 159.

The drawing of a check on a special deposit amounts to an assignment pro tanto thereof. Central Bank & Trust Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 290.

An order by a contractor to the supervising architect of a school building, on whose certificate estimates under the contract were to be paid to pay a materialman and charge to the contractor's account, was good as an equitable assignment of part of the fund in the hands of the school trustees. A. A. Fielder Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 605.

A writing by a contractor: "This will authorize you to pay to E. the amount of their account to be deducted from any moneys due me on that job"—was a sufficient equitable assignment of a fund partly then existing and to arise in the future as the work on the job progressed, and no acceptance was necessary. Youngberg v. El Paso Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 715.

22. —— Agreement to appropriate or pay.—An acceptance by defendant of an order to pay plaintiff the amount due the drawer to the date of the order was an agreement to pay what was due, after deducting credits arising in the same transaction, or independent items mutually agreed on between defendant and the drawer. Comer v. Floore (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 246.

A mere promise to give an order on a third person for funds due the promisor, based upon a past consideration, does not amount to an assignment of the fund. Henke & Pillot v. Keller, 50 C. A. 533, 110 S. W. 783.

Agreement between landlord and mortgagee of a tenant's crops, by which the landlord was to look to the mortgagee for payment of its claim for rent, held an equitable assignment of the claim for rent. Sweeney v. Farmers' Rice Milling & Storage Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1147.

An agreement by a contractor that a note given by him should be paid out of the next week's estimate on a job he had was not an assignment of his claim. Youngberg v. El Paso Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 715.

A mere agreement, whether by parol or in writing, to pay a debt out of a designated fund, is not in itself sufficient to constitute an equitable assignment; but there must be an appropriation pro tanto. Davis & Goggin v. State Nat. Bank of El Paso (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 321.

The particular form of an agreement, whereby defendant was to pay interveners out of a fund in litigation, is not material as to the validity of the equitable assignments, for equity looks rather at the intent and purpose than the form. Id.

23. Consideration.—A bill of sale executed by defendant to avoid a levy of execution about to be made by plaintiff to satisfy a debt owed by defendant is to be deemed voluntary and is binding upon defendant. Lewter v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 784.

The assignee of a cause of action acquires title by a bona fide assignment, and may maintain an action thereon though he paid no consideration therefor. Pearce v. Wallis, Landes & Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 496.

An assignee under an assignment held to acquire title, though he paid no consideration. Kenedy Town & Improvement Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 558.

24. Notice to debtor.—It is the duty of the assignee of a non-negotiable instrument to promptly notify the maker of such transfer, and the maker will be protected if he pays the payee without notice of assignment, the absence of the note being reasonably accounted for. Swearingen v. Buckley, 1 U. C. 421.

The use of the expression "notice of the assignment was given to the defendant" implies that the defendant must be given notice of the assignment in order to preclude him from asserting a settlement made with the original creditor. The rule may possibly be otherwise with reference to negotiable instruments. A debtor who settles with the original creditor, a non-negotiable claim without notice that it has been transferred ought to be protected and the burden is on assignee to show notice. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Eldredge, 35 C. A. 467, 80 S. W. 556.

Where a part of a cause of action for injuries was assigned to attorneys before suit brought, it was not essential that the assignment should be filed and recorded as required by Art. 6833, in order to charge the person liable for such injuries with notice of the rights of the assignees. Id.

It was not essential to the validity of an equitable assignment of a part of a fund due a building contractor to his surety that notice of such assignment be given to the debtor, or that she consent thereto. Campbell v. J. E. Grant Co., 82 S. W. 794, 36 C. A. 641.

In an action by an attorney, to whom was assigned part of a cause of action against a railroad company for personal injuries, against such company to recover half of a sum for which it settled with the injured person, evidence held to sustain a finding charging the company with notice of the attorney's interest in the cause of action when it made the settlement. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Sehorn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 246.

Under this article and article 584 it was the duty of a bank, on taking a non-negotiable warehouse receipt from the original holder for a valuable consideration, to notify the company of the transfer in order to hold the company liable; and by notice to the company it could compel delivery to itself, or, if the company after such notice had delivered the cotton to the original holder, it could compel the company to pay over its value; but until such notice the company had the right to deal with the original holder as the owner of the cotton, and, if it then delivers the cotton to the original holder upon a reasonable explanation for not presenting the receipt, it is not liable to the assignee for its value. Stamford Compress Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1142.

25. Consent or acceptance by debtor.—It is not essential to constitute an equitable assignment of money due that an order therefor shall be accepted by the debtor. Beaumont Lumber Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 180.

An unaccepted draft or check drawn on no particular fund is not an equitable assignment of any fund the drawer may have in the hands of the drawee. House v. Kountze, 17 C. A. 402, 43 S. W. 561; McBride v. American Ry. & Lighting Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 229.

26. Revocation.—Held that, so long as the debt existed with reference to which an order was given, the order was an equitable assignment of a fund as it then existed or arose thereafter, and hence not revocable. Beaumont Lumber Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 180.

27. Validity.—A fictitious transfer of a claim to a mere nominal or colorable party, to confer jurisdiction on a court of a county other than that in which the defendant resides, the original claimants being the real parties in interest, is insufficient for the purpose designed. Douglas v. Walker, 42 C. A. 213, 92 S. W. 1026.

28. —— Right to contest.—Redemption of non-negotiable time checks from third persons in the past does not estop the signer to require proof of holder's right to such a check. Robinson v. Texas Pine Land Ass'n (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 620.

In an action for breach of contract by an assignee of the contract, defendant cannot complain that the assignment was without consideration. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562, 93 T. 378.

Defendant, in an action on an assigned claim, may not object that the assignment was without consideration; none being necessary to protect him against any claim by the assignor. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1106.

An answer, in an action by the assignee of a claim, alleging that the assignment was made for the fraudulent purpose of conferring jurisdiction on the court in a county other than that of defendant's residence, states no defense on the merits. Pearce v. Wallis, Landes & Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 496.

29. Priorities between assignments.—The assignments of a contractor rank in the order they were given, and hence an assignee furnishing material has no lien on the fund in the owner's hands giving him advantage over a prior assignee, whose assignment was based on an outside debt; and this though the owner reserved the right to see that all liens were discharged before payment. Harris County v. Donaldson, 48 S. W. 791, 20 C. A. 9.

Evidence held to show that a fund in controversy had been assigned to intervener before plaintiff received his assignment. Henke & Pillot v. Keller, 50 C. A. 533, 110 S. W. 783.

The priority of an assignment, and not that of its notice to the fund holder, controls as to the priority of the rights of several assignees of a fund. Id.

Transfers of portions of a fund will be satisfied in the order of their dates. A. A. Fielder Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 605.

Where a contractor assigns parts of funds due or to become due him, the assignees are entitled to be paid in the order of the dates of such assignments. Youngberg v. El Paso Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 715.

In case of successive equitable assignments, the priority of the parties depends upon their priority in time. Davis & Goggin v. State Nat. Bank of El Paso (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 321.

In an action involving the validity of an equitable assignment, evidence held sufficient to establish that an oral agreement, whereby the assignor agreed to pay his attorneys, the assignees, out of the fund in litigation, amounted to an appropriation pro tanto of the fund which gave the attorneys priority over a subsequent assignee. Id.

Where a debtor made several assignments of one fund, the second assignment being given merely to secure loans already made, and no further loans being made in reliance thereon, the second assignment is not one for a valuable consideration, and the second assignee cannot claim priority though taking without notice of the first assignment. Id.

30. Assignment as security.—Client's assignment to attorneys of an interest in the cause of action and judgment held not a mortgage so as to limit the attorney's remedy to the fund to be realized by the action but to be an absolute transfer. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 487.

31. Rights acquired.—Evidence in an attorney's action on an assignment of an interest in a client's cause of action brought against the defendant in the action after a compromise with the client held to sustain a finding that a former assignment to other attorneys was for the equal benefit of the plaintiffs. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 487.

An assignment of part of a cause of action for personal injuries held to constitute the assignees joint owners with the plaintiff. Hughes-Buie Co. v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 328.

32. Rights of assignee as against debtor.—When an attorney gives notice to the attorneys of a railroad company that an interest in the claim sued on has been assigned to him, and the company thereafter settles with the assignor by compromise, the company is liable to the assignee for amount of his interest in the claim. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bacon (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 573.

By an assignment of a policy of insurance with the consent of the insurer the company is not regarded as yielding any of its rights as to the performance by the assured of all the conditions of the policy, and any violation by the assured of any of those conditions is fatal to a recovery by the assignee. The application of this principle is not affected by articles 583, 584. Swenson v. Sun Fire Office, 68 T. 461, 5 S. W. 60.

A creditor drew a draft on the debtor for a larger amount than was due, and attached thereto the account showing the amount to be the same as in the draft. A bank cashed the draft. Held, that the bank acquired a right to whatever amount was due from the debtor. Provident Nat. Bank v. C. D. Hartnett Co., 100 T. 214, 97 S. W. 689.

Decedent's wife, on assignment to her of physician's claims, was entitled to recover against the executor the full amount which the executor had agreed to pay the physicians. Bente v. Sullivan, 52 C. A. 454, 115 S. W. 350.

An employer issuing checks to his employés payable only in merchandise held not liable in money to the employés or their assignee for the amount of the check unless demand for payment in merchandise is refused. Attoyac River Lumber Co. v. Payne, 57 C. A. 327, 122 S. W. 278.

One to whom a paving contractor made an assignment of the amounts due on work yet to be performed cannot complain that the city made advances on the contract contrary to its provision; the contractor having abandoned work altogether. Alfalfa Lumber Co. v. Brady (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 204.

Evidence in an action by attorneys on their client's assignment of an interest in his cause of action after defendants' compromise with the client through other attorneys held sufficient to sustain a finding that defendant, by ordinary care, might have informed itself of such interest. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 487.

33. Rights of assignee as against third persons.—Where building contractors assigned all money due to a lumber company to secure advances of material and money, the owner could not be required to pay any of the money to subcontractors or materialmen. South Texas Lumber Co. v. Concrete Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 913.

A lumber company, to which all money due under a building contract had been assigned, to secure it for advances, etc., held not a trustee for subcontractors and materialmen, nor required to pay their claims in preference to its own. Id.

34. Rights of assignor against debtor.—Plaintiff assigned to his attorney, before filing suit, one-half of the amount realized on his claim for personal injuries. Held, that this did not limit plaintiff to a recovery of half his claim, although the attorney was not a party to the action. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 909.

35. Right of action by assignor.—If legal or equitable cause of action is assigned, the assignor cannot sue. Otherwise, if the legal title remains in him. Insurance Co. v. Coffee, 61 T. 287; Allison v. Insurance Co., 87 T. 593, 30 S. W. 547; Railway Co. v. Freeman, 57 T. 156; Winn v. Railway Co., 12 C. A. 198, 33 S. W. 593.

An agreement by plaintiff to pay his attorneys 40 per cent. of the amount recovered on his claim, either by action or compromise, is not such an assignment of an interest in the cause of action as to make such attorneys necessary parties plaintiff. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Abernathy (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 175.

Where plaintiff in an action for injuries assigned to her attorneys an interest in the cause of action, the attorneys did not thereby become necessary parties to the suit, and could not be made parties thereto on motion of the adverse party. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Mathes (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 411.

One transferring a claim and guaranteeing its collection held authorized to join the assignee in an action on the claim. Kenedy Town & Improvement Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 558.

Art. 584. [309] [267] Assignee of non-negotiable instrument may sue in his own name.—The assignee of any instrument mentioned in the preceding article may maintain an action thereon in his own name, but he shall allow every discount and defense against the same which it would have been subject to in the hands of any previous owner before notice of the assignment was given to the defendant; and in order to hold the assignor as surety for the payment of the instrument, the assignee shall use due diligence to collect the same. [Id.]

See dissenting opinion of Ramsey, J., in Stamford Compress Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Sup.) 144 S. W. 1130.

Instruments not negotiable.—See notes under Art. 582.

Claims and interests assignable.—See notes under Art. 583.

Notice to debtor.—Under this article and Art. 583, it was the duty of a bank, on taking a non-negotiable warehouse receipt from the original holder for a valuable consideration, to notify the company of the transfer in order to hold the company liable; and by notice to the company it could compel delivery to itself, or, if the company after such notice had delivered the cotton to the original holder, it could compel the company to pay over its value; but until such notice the company had the right to deal with the original holder as the owner of the cotton, and, if it then delivers the cotton to the original holder upon a reasonable explanation for not presenting the receipt, it is not liable to the assignee for its value. Stamford Compress Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1142.

Equities and defenses between original parties.—It is a good defense that the instrument was signed under an agreement that another was to sign who did not do so. —Proctor v. Evans, 1 App. C. C. § 647.

It is held by the court of appeals that the want or failure of consideration of a non-negotiable instrument cannot be set up as a defense when it was transferred before maturity for a valuable consideration, in due course of trade, in good faith, and without notice of any want or failure of consideration. That this article is to be construed in connection with Art. 589, which limits the defense of want or failure of consideration to actions on instruments transferred after maturity, and that Art. 584 is limited to other defenses. Barton v. Exchange Bank, 2 App. C. C. § 711. See Art. 589.

A certificate issued by a city clerk, showing that a contractor is entitled to a designated sum of money on a day certain, is not negotiable. The assignee of such a certificate succeeds only to the equitable rights which the contractor may have had. Sonnenthiel v. Skinner, 67 T. 453, 3 S. W. 686.

Where parties sign a non-negotiable note, which is to be delivered on certain conditions, the payee, or a purchaser with notice, is bound by the conditions. Campbell P. P. Co. v. Powell, 78 T. 53, 14 S. W. 245.

An assignee of a judgment takes it subject to all existing equities between the parties. Ellis v. Kerr, 11 C. A. 349, 32 S. W. 444.

This article and Art. 584 relate to non-negotiable instruments alone, and although any such instrument be assigned and the assignee may sue in his own name, yet he shall allow every discount and defense against it, to which it would have been subject in the hands of any previous owner before notice of the assignment was given to the maker. It is the interest only of the obligee which is assigned and the assignee takes it with all of its inherent as well as actual defenses. Ablowich v. Greenville Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 272, 54 S. W. 794.

The assignee of an oil option is not bound by the fraud of his assignor in procuring the contracts, though the grantors are in possession and the rights claimed under the option are consistent with such possession. National Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Teel (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 545, judgment affirmed, 95 Tex. 586, 68 S. W. 979.

A contract for an option by which a party may acquire an interest in land is within the provision of this article declaring "written instruments not negotiable by law" subject to all defenses in the hands of a purchaser that might be asserted against the original party. Judgment (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 545, affirmed. National Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Teel, 68 S. W. 979, 95 T. 586.

An assignee of a claim for professional services rendered in violation of the law prohibiting the practice of medicine without a license therefor may not recover thereon, unless he is entitled to protection as an innocent purchaser and bona fide holder. Barnes v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 610.

At common law the bailee was entitled to all defenses which accrued against the bail or before notice of assignment. Stamford Compress Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1142, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1160; Id. (Sup.) 144 S. W. 1130.

A municipality which advanced money to a contractor for work yet to be done is not liable to one having a verbal assignment of the proceeds of such work, where the contractor took the advance and abandoned work altogether Alfalfa Lumber Co. v. Brady (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 204.

Right of action by assignee.—Where a foreign corporation could not have maintained suit on a cause of action because of its failure to file its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state, as required by Arts. 1314, 1318, an assignee of such claim from the corporation cannot sue thereon. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562, 93 T. 378.

Where a claim was assigned to plaintiff to indemnify him against a liability as surety on the assignor's note, plaintiff had an interest in the collection of the claim, as well as title thereto by reason of the assignment, and was therefore entitled to recover thereon. Riggins v. Sass (Cr. App.) 127 S. W. 1064.

An assignee of part of a cause of action pending suit held entitled to enforce his claim by intervention in the original suit or by separate suit. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Holt (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1029.

——In his own name.—The right to a statutory penalty may be assigned, and suit therefor may be brought by the assignee in his own name. Winn v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 12 C. A. 198, 33 S. W. 593.

A bank to whom claims were assigned by a written transfer, and who gave credit to the assignor, with nothing to show that the transfer was a sham or done to prevent defendant's set-off or perpetrate a fraud upon the court, can sue in its own name, regardless whether it is the equitable owner. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. E. Van Winkle Gin & Machine Works (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 415.

Under this article the assignee for a valuable consideration of a non-negotiable receipt for cotton issued by a compress company becomes vested with the title to the cotton and may maintain an action for it against its assignor or the compress company before delivery, or against a subsequent purchaser from its assignor. Stamford Compress Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1142.

Under the common law the assignee of a non-negotiable written instrument could not maintain an action thereon in its own name. Stamford Compress Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1142, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1160; Id. (Sup.) 144 S. W. 1130.

The drawing of a check does not in general operate as an equitable assignment pro tanto of the drawer's deposit account, so as to entitle the holder to sue the bank in his own name. Central Bank & Trust Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 290.

Part owners of a car load of freight, damaged during transit, may assign their claim to one of their number, who may sue for and recover the entire damages in his own name as assignee. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

——In name of assignor.—A transfer to an attorney of a part of the cause of action, which refers to the cause, with the assignor as plaintiff, and authorizes the attorney to do all things necessary in the prosecution or settlement of the cause, either in or out of court, authorizes the attorney to prosecute the cause in the assignor's name. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reeves, 79 S. W. 1099, 35 C. A. 162.

Attorneys to whom a defendant assigned part of his cause of action on counterclaim were entitled to prosecute the action in defendant's name through all of the courts, so that defendant had no authority to dismiss his appeal or settle his controversy to the extent of the interest assigned. Seiter v. Marschall (Sup.) 147 S. W. 226.

Diligence.—Assignee of non-negotiable note must use due diligence to collect in order to hold assignor as surety. Merlin v. Manning, 2 T. 351.

Where a fire insurance policy assigned to secure a debt, the assignee must use due diligence to collect the same in order to hold the assignor. Gooch v. Parker, 16 C. A. 256, 41 S. W. 662.

Waiver of diligence.—Defendant's presentation of a claim for the amount of its deposit to the trustee in bankruptcy of a bank held not a waiver of its claim against plaintiff for damages resulting from the latter's failure to present a check against such deposit received by plaintiff before failure of the bank, for payment, or to return it within a reasonable time. Pink Front Bankrupt Store v. G. A. Mistrot & Co., 40 C. A. 375, 90 S. W. 75.

Art. 585. [310] [268] Waiver of diligence is not to be shown by parol.—Parol testimony shall be inadmissible to prove that the assignor, drawer, or indorser of any of the aforesaid instruments has released the holder thereof from his obligation to use due diligence to collect the same. [Act Jan. 25, 1840, p. 144, sec. 7. P. D. 225.]

Parol evidence inadmissible.—Plaintiff in an action against the drawer of a draft after acceptance, who had pleaded that the suit was not before filed because defendant requested that it be not done, and that he would pay it, cannot show such waiver by parol evidence. Seguin Milling & Power Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 456.

Art. 586. [311] [269] Assignor liable to assignee.—The assignee of any instrument not negotiable by the law merchant shall be entitled to recover from any previous assignor thereof; but, in any suit brought against a remote assignor of such instrument, he shall be subject only to such recovery and shall have the benefit of all defenses which he would have been entitled to had the suit been instituted by any intermediate assignee. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 223.]

Art. 587. [312] [270] Assignor, indorser, etc., may be sued alone, when.—Assignors, indorsers and other parties not primarily liable upon any of the instruments named in this title may be jointly sued with their principal obligors, or may be sued alone in the cases provided for in articles 1842 and 1843. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 225. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Cited. Breed v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 164.

Jointly or severally liable.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1842 and 1843.

The holder of a negotiable note, when the indorser and maker are about to dispose of their property in fraud of creditors, may at once bring suit against them. Smith v. Pickham, 8 C. A. 326, 28 S. W. 565.

In an action against the makers of a note, held not improper to join as defendant a third person falsely representing that the makers had signed the note. Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 239.

A purchaser of a note held entitled to sue the maker and transferror in the same suit. Harris v. Cain, 41 C. A. 139, 91 S. W. 866.

Under this article the holder of a negotiable instrument has the right to jointly sue all parties liable to him thereon, whether secondarily or primarily. McFarling v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 766.

Art. 588. [313] [271] Assignment, how put in issue.—When a suit shall be instituted by an assignee or indorsee of any written instrument, the assignment or indorsement thereof shall be regarded as fully proved, unless the defendant shall deny in his plea that the same is genuine, and moreover shall file, with the papers in the cause, an affidavit stating that he has good cause to believe, and verily does believe, that such assignment or indorsement is forged. [Id. sec. 5. P. D. 224.]

Application of statute.—This article applies to written instruments emanating from the party sought to be charged. Carpenter v. Historical Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 685.

In an action on a note by an assignee, the production of the note, with the assignment thereon, justifies a recovery, where the answer does not deny that the assignment is genuine, and no affidavit stating that it is believed to be forged is filed. Schauer v. Beitel's Ex'r, 92 T. 601, 50 S. W. 931.

The assignment of a chose in action founded on an open account is not such an instrument as is contemplated by this article, and must be proved, and without proof of execution it is not admissible in evidence. Standifer v. Bond Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 145.

Where, in a suit by the indorsee of a note against the maker and first indorser, she did not deny the transfer, but merely pleaded that plaintiff was charged with equities, she was not required to plead such matter under oath. Mayfield Grocer Co. v. Andrew Price & Co., 43 C. A. 391, 95 S. W. 31.

This article does not apply to an open account. McCormick v. Rainy, 101 T. 320, 107 S. W. 45.

Non est factum.—Where plea of non est factum is filed by defendant burden is on plaintiff to prove execution of contract of indorsement. Clymer v. Terry, 50 C. A. 300, 109 S. W. 1130.

In an action on a note by assignee of payee, defendant could prove, under general issue, that the note was pledged to secure an indebtedness other than that alleged by plaintiff, without filing the sworn plea required by this section. Handley v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 742.

Sufficiency of affidavit.—A verified answer that does not contain an allegation that either of assignments upon the notes sued on is not genuine and does not state that affiant has good cause to believe and verily does believe that such assignments are forged, is not such a denial under oath of the genuineness of the instrument as is contemplated by this article. Schauer v. Beitel, 92 T. 601, 50 S. W. 931.

Sufficiency of proof.—The assignment of an insurance policy is sufficiently proven by reading the policy and assignment in evidence. Phœnix Insurance Co. v. Shearman, 17 C. A. 456, 43 S. W. 930.

Art. 589. [314] [272] Consideration, failure of, when it constitutes a defense.—The defendant in any action that may be instituted upon any written instrument may plead a want or failure, or partial failure, of consideration, where such written instrument shall remain in the possession of the original payee or obligee, or when it shall have been transferred or assigned after the maturity thereof, or when the defendant may prove a knowledge of such want or failure of consideration on the part of the holder prior to such transfer. 1. Construction and application.—This article contains a general provision relating to a class of instruments, and is controlled by Arts. 583 and 584 relating particularly and especially to non-negotiable instruments in a case where a non-negotiable instrument is the subject-matter of the suit, and an instrument lacking negotiable words is subject to the same defenses in the hands of an assignee as it was while it was in the hands of the original payee even though the assignment was before maturity. Ablowich v. Greenville Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 272, 54 S. W. 794.

2. Necessity of consideration.—A release of liability for damages resulting from personal injury must be supported by a consideration. Railway Co. v. Winton, 7 C. A. 57, 26 S. W. 770; Railway Co. v. Wilson, 3 C. A. 586, 24 S. W. 686; Id., 85 T. 519, 22 S. W. 578.

A release of damages without consideration for breach of contract to transport cattle and making a new contract under compulsion does not prevent the party injured from recovering under the first contract. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 20.

In an action to recover on municipal bonds issued to aid a railroad, evidence held to show that the city received a consideration for the bonds. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 876.

In an action against a corporation on a note purporting to be indorsed by it, evidence held insufficient to support a finding that the goods for which the note was given were purchased for defendant corporation. Manhattan Liquor Co. v. Joseph A. Magnus & Co., 43 C. A. 463, 94 S. W. 1117; Same v. German Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1120.

Where there was no consideration for a payee's agreement with the principal maker to accept the note signed by him and accommodation maker, the payee could refuse to loan the money regardless of what occurred between him and the accommodation maker before the acceptance of the note. First State Bank of Teague v. Hare (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 501.

In action to foreclose vendor's lien by assignee whose assignment was not recorded, evidence held sufficient to show that the assignee of a subsequent lien without notice of plaintiff's lien paid a valuable consideration for his assignment. Busch v. Brown (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 683.

Stipulations in a contract of shipment limiting the carrier's liability and requiring notice as a condition precedent to an action held to be disregarded, where the evidence failed to show that there was any reduced rate as a consideration therefor. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 294.

3. Adequacy.—In action to cancel deed and rescind contract on ground of inadequacy of consideration, value of property at time of conveyance, and not at time of trial, should be ascertained to determine adequacy of consideration. Wells v. Houston, 23 C. A. 629, 57 S. W. 584.

A consideration of $1, recited as paid in an oil and gas lease, and in fact paid, was a mere nominal consideration which was insufficient to support the contract. Great Western Oil Co. v. Carpenter, 43 C. A. 229, 95 S. W. 57.

4. Written contract importing consideration.—See notes under Art. 7093.

5. Sufficiency in general.—A note given by a loanee of property to the custodian of the property for injuries caused by the maker of the note is upon sufficient consideration. Dolson v. De Ganahl, 70 T. 620, 8 S. W. 321.

Where the devisee of land which had been sold for taxes promised the executor of his devisor that he would buy the land, and convey it to the said executor, the contract was without consideration, and void. Thorp v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 323.

A promise by the builder to pay a contractor for material rejected by the architect, within the authority conferred upon him by the contract, is without consideration, and cannot be enforced. Brin v. McGregor (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 923.

A check given by a policy holder to an insurance agent to cover the amount of premiums sent to the company by the agent held based on a valuable consideration. Hall v. Krauskopf (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 117.

There is a valuable consideration for a deed where grantee conveys other land and gives his note. Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Neal, 23 C. A. 427, 56 S. W. 91.

A contract of shipment of live stock, limiting carrier's liability, held not void for want of consideration. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wright, 24 C. A. 291, 58 S. W. 846.

Plaintiff obtained a judgment and foreclosed a vendor's lien against a vendee, who afterwards died, and the plaintiff agreed with the vendee's wife that, if she would get appointed as independent executrix, instead of administrator, she would be allowed 10 per cent. of the value of such lands in lieu of the regular administration fees. The agreement was regarded by the vendor as being of substantial benefit, as the executor could then convey the property without any legal proceedings. Held, that the contract was not void for want of consideration. McLane v. Mackey (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 944.

The T. & S. R. Co. contracted to build and maintain a side track and switch for the mere convenience of a sawmill owner, in consideration of the latter releasing the company from all damages arising from the injury to or killing of stock belonging to him or his contractors or employés by the locomotives and cars on the side track and switch, and from all damages resulting from the injury or destruction of his and his contractors' and employés' property by fire from any locomotive of the company at or about the side track and switch. Held, that since the contract, on its face, showed a sufficient consideration to render it valid, the court could not on ex parte affidavits of one of the parties averring that it was not founded on any consideration, declare it void; the other party having the right to the submission of the question of a consideration to a jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Carter, 68 S. W. 159, 95 T. 461.

Where a petition to avoid an instrument as executed without consideration shows that plaintiff received stock in a corporation organized pursuant to the contract, and employment as superintendent of the business at a salary, a demurrer thereto is properly sustained. Parker v. Allen, 76 S. W. 74, 33 C. A. 206.

The release of a judgment lien held a valuable consideration sufficient to support a conveyance. J. S. Brown Hardware Co. v. Catrett, 45 C. A. 647, 101 S. W. 559.

A note executed by a tenant to the landlord's agent, authorized to collect rent, for rents to accrue, held without consideration. Roberts & Corley v. Feringer, 51 C. A. 592, 113 S. W. 149.

Where the construction of a street car track over the tracks of a railroad company created a common danger, imposing an obligation of care on both the railroad and street railway companies, a contract between them that, when the city required a watchman, extra guard, lights, or gates, the expense of maintaining them should be equally divided between the railroad company and the street car company was based on a sufficient consideration. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co., 103 T. 49, 123 S. W. 124, answering questions certified from court of civil appeals. See 124 S. W. 987.

Where land is subject to certain liens, a deed made in pursuance of an agreement that certain of the purchase-money notes shall be indorsed to the lienholders who shall thereupon cancel their liens is based on a sufficient consideration. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

Where, in an action on a premium note given to an insurance agent, there was evidence that the policy was in force at the time of the trial, that the agent had actually paid the premium for which the note was given after suit brought, and that the insurer had waived the provision in the policy that it should not be in force until the first premium had been paid in cash, the maker was not entitled to judgment over against the agent, on judgment being rendered against him in favor of the indorsee, on the ground that, because of the agent's failure to pay the premium in cash to the company before suit brought, the note was without consideration as between the parties. Newman v. Norris Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 725.

6. Mutual promises.—As to promise being a sufficient consideration, see Abstract Real Estate Ass'n v. Bahn, 87 T. 582, 29 S. W. 646, 30 S. W. 430; Foley v. Storrie, 4 C. A. 377, 23 S. W. 442.

The fact that the company which had issued a policy against accidents on the elevator on which plaintiff was injured paid the consideration for the release of plaintiff's claim held immaterial in an action on the claim against the proprietor of the elevator. The Oriental v. Barclay, 16 C. A. 193, 41 S. W. 117.

Where plaintiffs refused to convey certain land to a town site company until defendant's testator orally agreed that, if they would convey such land, he would convey to them 50 acres of other land belonging to him, of equal value, whereupon plaintiffs conveyed their land to the town site company, testator's agreement was based on a sufficient consideration. McCarty v. May (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 804.

Mutual promises, by which a shipper agrees to load and ship cattle on a certain day, and the railroad agrees to have cars ready to receive them on that day, when taken in connection with the subsequent conduct of the shipper in having the cattle ready at the time agreed on for shipment, constitute a sufficient consideration for the contract of shipment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Combes & Rector (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1045.

A grantor conveyed land for an expressed consideration of $1,500. The grantee executed a contract to reconvey. The two instruments formed one transaction. The purpose of the conveyance was to enable the grantee to litigate the title. Held, that the agreement to reconvey was supported by a sufficient consideration. McAllen v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 760.

Liability on a note given for inducing a third person to contract held not defeated on the theory that the contract did not bind such person to do anything. Price v. White (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 484.

A promise to do, forbear, or suffer, given in return for a like promise, is a consideration for an executory contract, provided the promise is not illegal or against public policy. Beauchamp v. Couch, 54 C. A. 471, 117 S. W. 924.

Where the consideration relied on for one executory promise of a party is another such promise of the adverse party to the contract, each promise must be binding to constitute a valuable consideration, and though the promise relied on as a consideration may not be expressly stated in the contract, yet where it appears from the entire instrument that such promise was intended, it is as valuable a consideration as if expressly stated. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 922.

7. Property and rights therein.—A note given for a part of the purchase price of land held to have been given for a valid consideration. Davis v. Weathered (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 21.

Sale of improvements on school land which plaintiff had contracted to buy, but which contract he had forfeited, held a good consideration for the assignment of a note by the purchaser of the improvements, though they had been forfeited with the land. Lewis v. Ross (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 504.

The abandonment of possession and claim to lands, subject to forfeiture to the state, is sufficient consideration for notes given to induce such abandonment. Bledsoe v. Sumner (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 838.

8. Rights under contracts—Subsidiary provisions.—A subsequent agreement between a cattle shipper and carrier held to constitute a complete contract based on a sufficient consideration. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1041.

The prospective commission of agents selling machinery on commission is a sufficient consideration for their personal agreement with one, as an inducement for him to buy, that they will keep extras on hand for repairs. Tyson v. Jackson Bros., 41 C. A. 128, 90 S. W. 930.

9. —— Release or abandonment of rights.—Release of damages by failure to furnish cars held without consideration. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Darlington (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 550.

A purchaser went into possession of land under a parol contract. It was afterwards agreed that the vendor should withhold his deed, and the purchaser should be released from the payment of interest until a question as to a conflict of surveys should be determined. Held, that the waiver by the purchaser of his right to at once demand the execution of the deed for so much of the land as was not in conflict was a sufficient consideration for the agreement. Kerr County v. Kitchens (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 551, on rehearing reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 152.

Where verbal contract for shipment of stock was made several days before the shipment a subsequent written contract signed by the consignor and limiting the liability to the shipper is without consideration. Railroad Co. v. Wright, 20 C. A. 136, 49 S. W. 147.

A written contract relieving defendant of its liability under a verbal contract, being without consideration, is properly disregarded. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Warren (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 537.

Plaintiff was the assignee of an oil and gas lease binding the lessee to begin the sinking of a well within 6 months from the date of the lease, in default of which the lessors were entitled to cancel the lease for default. Prior to the expiration of the 6 months without any work being done a new lease was executed, in consideration of a release of a portion of the property, which also provided that if work was not begun on a well within 9 months of the date of the second lease and completed within 15 months thereafter, etc., the lease should be void. Held, that the release of the first lease was a sufficient consideration for the second, and that a release of all of the lessee's rights under the second prior to the expiration of the time fixed for forfeiture was a sufficient consideration for defendant's contract to convey to plaintiff certain of the lands and to pay plaintiff $1,000 out of the proceeds of the sale of the first 50 acres of the land sold to others. Great Western Oil Co. v. Carpenter, 43 C. A. 229, 95 S. W. 57.

An agreement by an attorney with other attorneys employed to assist him that they could collect from the client a specified fee for their exclusive use, leaving open the question of his fee, whereby the other attorneys abandoned their right to a share in a larger sum which the client had originally agreed to pay, is supported by a sufficient consideration. Yeager v. Scott & Sanford (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 83.

10. Pre-existing liability.—The payment of an existing debt is a valuable consideration to support the transfer of a promissory note before maturity. Heffron v. Cunningham, 76 T. 312, 13 S. W. 259.

A pre-existing debt will not support a mortgage or purchase against a prior legal or equitable title. Watts v. Corner, 8 C. A. 588, 27 S. W. 1087. Citing Bank v. Mortgage Co., 6 C. A. 61, 24 S. W. 691; Id., 86 T. 636, 26 S. W. 489.

A bill of sale, made in consideration of the extinguishment of debts owing to buyer, and transferring all the personalty on seller's farm, the location of which is given, is valid. Billings v. Warren, 50 S. W. 625, 21 C. A. 77.

In an action to recover certain property which plaintiff claimed had been sold to him by defendant in satisfaction of a judgment against defendant which had been assigned to plaintiff, a requested instruction that, in order to recover, plaintiff must prove that the land described in the judgment had been sold as described in the judgment, and had not brought enough to satisfy the judgment, was properly refused; the satisfaction of the judgment being a consideration for the sale, whether any attempt had been made to enforce the judgment or not. Lewter v. Lindley (Civ App.) 81 S. W. 776.

11. Compromise and settlement.—See this case for a discussion of the common law rule that the payment and acceptance of a sum of money less than the amount of the indebtedness due in full satisfaction of the debt, is without consideration and does not bar the creditors' suit to recover the balance. Shelton v. Jackson, 20 C. A. 443, 49 S. W. 415.

The compromise of a suit for the recovery from defendant of land held by him under a valid grant—plaintiff's claim being based on a void grant—is nevertheless a sufficient consideration for promissory notes; it appearing that, in consequence of compromises by other defendants, the expense of continued litigation would have to be borne by the defendant alone. Peaslee v. Walker, 78 S. W. 980, 34 C. A. 297.

12. Forbearance.—There being a reasonable and valid ordinance prohibiting the interment of the dead within certain limits in a city, permission by the city to a company to use land therein for a cemetery, with supervision by the city sexton, is sufficient consideration for its agreement to sell burial lots at prices not exceeding a certain sum. City of Austin v. Austin City Cemetery Ass'n, 73 S. W. 525, 96 T. 384.

13. —— Extension of time of payment.—Extension of time of payment will support a promise. Steffan v. Bank, 69 T. 519, 6 S. W. 823; Hardware Co. v. Kaufman, 77 T. 136, 8 S. W. 283; Watts v. Corner, 8 C. A. 588, 27 S. W. 1087.

Consideration to extend time of payment held sufficient. Aiken v. Posey, 13 C. A. 607, 35 S. W. 732.

Where the time of payment of an interest-bearing note was extended, the interest was a sufficient consideration to support the agreement. Robson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 83.

A payment of part of interest due on a note is no consideration for an extension of time. Corbett v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 858.

Extension of time held a sufficient consideration for a note executed by an abandoned wife for a community debt. Crowder v. McLeod (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1166.

14. —— Forbearance to sue or defend.—An agreement to forbear to prosecute a suit to enforce a well-founded claim in law or equity is a sufficient consideration to support a promissory note of the debtor or of a third person, when the creditor, in pursuance to such agreement, has forborne as agreed upon. Such forbearance must be in respect of a well-founded claim, and there must be some person liable to suit therefor. Von Brandenstein v. Ebenberger, 71 T. 267, 9 S. W. 153. See Hilliard v. White (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 553.

It is sufficient a consideration for an agreement by a plaintiff not to levy execution against the property of certain of the defendants that such defendants agree not to defend the suit, but to assist the plaintiff in securing judgment against the remaining defendants. Crook v. Lipscomb, 70 S. W. 993, 30 C. A. 567.

An agreement by one having the apparent title to and claiming land to abandon his claim and allow judgment against him by default in favor of a holder of a judgment against a third person, in consideration of the assignment of the judgment to him, is a sufficient consideration for the assignment. W. L. Moody & Co. v. Rowland, 46 C. A. 412, 102 S. W. 911.

An implied agreement to forbear suit on a note for a time uncertain, while the payee should procure information as to a claim of shortage in land for which the note was given, was without consideration. Astin v. Mosteller (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 495.

15. —— Forbearance to contest will.—Abandonment of a contest of a will is a sufficient consideration for the devisee's contract to deliver to the contestant a certain amount of the proceeds of the sale of the devised land. Parriss v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 199, 122 S. W. 399.

16. —— Existence or validity of right or remedy.—Where a vendor, in consideration of the purchaser's agreement to forbear resisting his demand, against which there was no available defense, promised on a foreclosure of his lien to buy in the land in full satisfaction of his judgment for the balance due him, and to thereafter accept for the land from the purchaser a less sum than she owed, the promise was a mere gratuity; the purchaser not having parted with any right or assumed any burden in consideration thereof. Foster v. Ross, 77 S. W. 990, 33 C. A. 615.

17. Benefit to third person.—The payment of a sum of money to third parties at the instance and request of another is a sufficient consideration for an obligation to repay. Cohen v. Grimes, 45 S. W. 210, 18 C. A. 327.

The cancellation of a note made by her deceased husband is sufficient consideration for the widow's note, given while executrix of her husband. Reuter v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 683.

A promise by the owner of property fraudulently mortgaged by another to repay the mortgagee his bill, if he would return the property, is without consideration. Martin v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 83.

Voluntary payment by plaintiff of a judgment recovered against defendant by a third party, wholly discharging the same, would constitute a sufficient consideration for a subsequent promise by defendant to repay the amount paid. Wright v. Farmers' Nat. Bank, 72 S. W. 103, 31 C. A. 406.

Where testator's estate was bound for the value of land conveyed by plaintiffs to another at testator's request by reason of his failure to convey other land to plaintiffs according to his oral contract, a subsequent written contract by his widow and executrix, by which she personally bound herself to convey to plaintiffs the amount of land which her husband had previously agreed to convey, was based on a sufficient consideration. McCarty v. May (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 804.

The benefits to accrue to a company from a physician's services to its employés were ample consideration for its agreement to collect from the employés and pay him specified sums monthly. Texarkana Lumber Co. v. Lennard (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 506.

Agents of a vendor held bound on a contract to repay the price on a surrender of possession by a purchaser, though they received no personal benefit therefrom. McKinney v. E. F. Rowson & Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 643.

Accommodation paper must always be supported by a consideration, but the accommodation party is bound by the beneficial consideration moving to the party accommodated, if no other passes. Central Bank & Trust Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 700.

A note given by a stockholder individually in settlement of a debt owing by the corporation on an open account was supported by a sufficient consideration. Gauss-Langenberg Hat Co. v. Alley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1062.

18. Performance of legal obligation.—Cattle loaded upon a car under a parol contract or delivered to the carrier and a written contract afterwards exacted is without consideration where it imposes additional burdens or seeks to obtain a waiver of the common law liability. T. & P. R. Co. v. Avery, 19 C. A. 235, 46 S. W. 897.

Where the owner of a vendor's lien upon land agreed with plaintiff, who contemplated purchasing a portion of the land, to release the vendor's lien as to the land purchased by plaintiff on payment of a certain sum by plaintiff's grantor, and plaintiff's grantor paid such sum, the agreement with plaintiff to release the lien was not without consideration on the theory that plaintiff's grantor had only done what it had been obligated to do, as the payment of the purchase price by plaintiff was a consideration. McKinley v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 112.

19. Unenforceable or illegal consideration—What law governs.—A contract against the settled policy of the state, where it is attempted to be enforced, will not be upheld, though valid where made. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McIntyre, 82 S. W. 346, 36 C. A. 399.

Under Art. 5714, providing that no stipulation in any contract requiring notice to be given of any claim for damages as a condition precedent to the right to sue thereon shall be valid unless reasonable, and that any such stipulation fixing such period at a less period than 90 days shall be void, such a stipulation in a contract executed in Indian Territory, requiring notice to be given within 30 days, will not be enforced. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 41 C. A. 459, 93 S. W. 702, judgment reversed, 100 T. 185, 97 S. W. 459, 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 191, 123 Am. St. Rep. 798.

20. —— Violation of statute or ordinance.—A note given for money won at cards is without consideration. Norvell v. Oury, 13 T. 31; Knight v. Gregg, 26 T. 506; Connor v. Mackey, 20 T. 747; Tuckett v. Herdic, 24 S. W. 992, 5 C. A. 690.

A. employed B. to buy and sell "futures" in cotton, with an agreement that no cotton was to be received or delivered in pursuance of such sale or purchase, but only the difference between the price at which such purchase or sale was made and the price at the date of delivery was to be paid. On settlement A. was indebted to B. in a certain sum, for which he executed his promissory note. Held, the contract was against public policy and void as between the parties. Seeligson v. Lewis, 65 T. 215, 57 Am. Rep. 593.

A note given for the price of liquors sold in violation of law is void. Campbell v. Jones, 21 S. W. 723, 2 C. A. 263.

Where plaintiff contracted to construct for defendants a building of combustible materials within the fire limits of the city in violation of an ordinance, the contract was illegal, and plaintiff could not recover thereunder for materials furnished or work performed. Chimene v. Pennington, 79 S. W. 63, 34 C. A. 424.

A contract violating the state constitution is void. San Antonio Irr. Co. v. Deutschmann, 105 S. W. 486, 114 S. W. 1174, 102 T. 201.

In an action on a note, evidence held to show that the consideration thereof was at least in part for professional services rendered by one practicing medicine in violation of the law regulating the practice. Barnes v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 610.

21. —— Public policy in general.—A check given for the amount of a bet on the result of a presidential election is against public policy and void as between the original parties thereto, and in the hands of an innocent holder for a valuable consideration. Donnelly v. Citizens' Bank, 3 App. C. C. § 169.

Contracts between individuals having for their direct object the acquisition of public lands in a lawful manner are not void as against public policy. Judgment (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 736, reversed. Williams v. Finley, 90 S. W. 1087, 99 T. 468.

The right to acquire title to land by limitation is given by statute, and an agreement between two parties to so acquire such a title is not wrongful or inequitable. Hammons v. Clwer (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 889.

An agreement by a parent to emancipate his minor children, so as to relieve himself of their support for necessaries, is contrary to public policy. Snell v. Ham (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1077.

22. —— Immorality.—Notes given for the purchase of furniture for a house of prostitution are void. Reed v. Brewer, 90 T. 144, 37 S. W. 418.

The consideration of a note being, to the knowledge of the payee, to enable the maker to continue an unlawful and immoral business, from which it was expected to obtain money to pay off the note, is illegal, and the note cannot be enforced. Anderson v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 350.

23. —— Inducing fraud.—An instruction that if K. was doing business in the name of defendant in order to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, and plaintiff, knowing the fact, loaned him money to assist him in the business, plaintiff could not recover, was properly refused, as lending the money could not operate to defraud creditors. Kingsbury v. Waco State Bank, 70 S. W. 551, 30 C. A. 387.

A contract between a solvent debtor and a trustee, to whom he had conveyed his property with authority to convert the same into cash and pay creditors, which bound the trustee to settle with the creditors as cheaply as possible, and give the debtor the benefit of discounts procured from creditors, is contrary to public policy, because tending to lead the trustee to deal unjustly with the creditors. Haswell v. Blake (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 1125.

A contract, binding a purchaser from the state of school lands to execute to another a bond for title and complete the statutory period of occupancy necessary to perfect title, is not void as contrary to public policy. Johnson & Moran v. Buchanan, 54 C. A. 328, 116 S. W. 875.

An agreement by which the owner of goods turns the same over to another person for 12 months, during which time such other person is to carry on business with the goods and replenish the stock, and at the expiration of such time turn it back to the owner or so much as was on hand, and to turn back goods of a like kind to an amount equal to the value of the original stock, and to pay the owner for the use thereof 10 per cent. on the invoice price, is not a contract which is against public policy. Holder v. Shelby (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 590.

A contract made at or before the vesting of title in school land in a substituted purchaser, which contemplates that a third person shall acquire an interest in the land without the required settlement and occupancy, and that the substituted purchaser shall commit perjury in his affidavit of settlement and occupancy, will not be enforced by the courts at the suit of the third person. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 887.

A contract is void which has for its object the practice of deception upon a third person, or the taking advantage of his private confidence to draw him into a bargain by which the person undertaking to use his influence will secretly receive a benefit from the other party to the contract. Simon v. Garlitz (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 461.

A contract whereby plaintiff agreed with defendant in consideration of one-half of the profits to negotiate a sale of land to persons with whom plaintiff sustained the closest friendly relations, and to make use of the confidence in which they held him to prevail upon them to make the purchase, concealing any interest he himself had in the outcome, was a contract involving the perpetration of a deception amounting to a fraud, and is unenforceable, as opposed to public policy. Id.

24. —— Exemption from liability for negligence.—A contract between the Pullman Company and a railroad company, whereby the former agrees to indemnify the latter against any loss resulting from injury to any employé of the former while serving in the line of his duty, is not a contract against the negligence of the railroad company, but is valid; and the Pullman Company is liable to the railroad company for any damages the latter may pay, by reason of the negligence of the Pullman Company in not putting out signals when an employé was at work in a car in railroad yards. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Tracy (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 639.

25. —— Prevention of competition.—B., a plumber, drew an order on A., a contractor, for the payment of a certain portion of the sum due him under a contract, to the plumbers' association; A. knowing that the consideration thereof was the omission of such association to compete in the bidding. Held, that A. was a mere stakeholder as to such money, and, on payment of the money to the association after the order was countermanded by B., he was liable to B. for the amount of the order. Jageman v. Necco (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 822.

A., for his own information, in submitting a bid for the erection of a building, solicited bids from plumbing contractors, composing a plumbers' association, for the plumbing and heating. With knowledge that the plumbers had agreed not to compete against B., one of their number, he used B.'s bid as a basis for his bid for the contract, and, having obtained it, made a contract voluntarily with B. for the plumbing. Held, that being under no obligation to accept the bid of B., and doing so with full knowledge that competition had been suppressed, he could not avoid his contract with B. as being secured by the suppression of competition. Id.

Where two competing contractors agree as to the amount that each shall bid for doing certain work, on an understanding that the successful bidder shall share his profits with the other, the successful bidder is not liable to the other on such agreement, the same being contrary to public policy. Daily v. Hollis, 66 S. W. 586, 27 C. A. 570.

26. —— Injury to public service in general.—An agreement by a railroad company to maintain open farm crossings with the necessary cattle guards and wing fences is not against public policy, in the absence of a statute requiring companies to fence their tracks, as tending to endanger life. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Schawe, 55 S. W. 357, 22 C. A. 599; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clay, 66 S. W. 1115, 28 C. A. 176.

A city and certain individuals conveyed to a railroad certain lands; the city also granting the road the right of way over its streets. In consideration thereof, the road agreed to establish and perpetually maintain on the land its main machine shops and general offices, and in pursuance thereof established its shops and offices, and maintained the same in the city, until it was sold under foreclosure to another railroad, which removed the offices to another city. Held, that the contract was not void as against public policy. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 238, reversed 99 T. 491, 91 S. W. 1.

Since Art. 6423 requires railroads to maintain their general offices and machine shops at a city where they have contracted to maintain the same, the enforcement by the courts of such a contract is not against the public policy of the state. Judgment (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 238, reversed. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 91 S. W. 1, 99 T. 491, judgment affirmed on rehearing (Sup.) 93 S. W. 997.

A contract by a section foreman to procure a switch track to be constructed at a specified place by the company, in consideration of a conveyance of land to him, is not void as against public policy; the track being beneficial to the company and to the public. Wright v. Riley (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1134.

Under Art. 6423 a contract between a city and a railroad, whereby the latter, in consideration of a right of way through streets for its road, agreed to locate its shops and general offices in the city, is valid and binds the railroad occupying the streets for its tracks to maintain its general offices and shops in the city, and the enforcement of the contract is not against public policy. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. City of Sweetwater (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 251, judgment reversed 104 T. 329, 137 S. W. 1117.

27. —— Affecting appointment to or emoluments of office.—A contract of an officer appointed by the governor not to exercise the duties of his office, and to appoint such deputies as shall be named by the other parties to the contract, is void as against public policy. Burck v. Abbott, 54 S. W. 314, 22 C. A. 216.

Where plaintiff and defendant, the president and teller, respectively, of a bank, agreed that plaintiff should secure control of sufficient stock, with theirs, to elect a satisfactory board of directors and secure their own re-election, it will be presumed that those offices are lucrative, which would render the contract illegal, since the law implies that reasonable compensation will be paid them. Withers v. Edmonds, 62 S. W. 795, 26 C. A. 189.

Where a candidate for a public office enters into a contract whereby, in consideration of certain payments to be made, he agrees that the other parties may select his deputies and receive the fees of the office, such contract is against public policy, and void, and creates no indebtedness which can be reached by the officer's creditors in garnishment. Willis v. Weatherford Compress Co. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 472.

A contract involving the resignation of A. and the appointment of a designated person was contrary to public policy. McCall v. Whaley, 52 C. A. 646, 115 S. W. 658.

A contract between the county clerk and the county commissioners fixing the clerk's compensation for transcribing the record and making new indexes held invalid, though for less than the legal rate, since the statute prescribes his fees, and Pen. Code 1911, art. 113, and Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 3892, make it unlawful for an officer to remit any part of his fees. Russell v. Cordwent (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 239.

28. —— Ousting jurisdiction of courts and obstruction of justice.—A note given as collateral security for court costs is not void as against public policy. McDonald v. Young (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 885.

An agreement to vacate a judgment, and deed certain lands to the judgment debtor, in case he will testify in favor of the judgment creditor in a suit then pending, and the latter is successful, is void, as being against public policy. Bowling v. Blum (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 97.

A provision in a lease that the landlord shall not be liable for damages arising from any future distraint is against public policy and void, since, if valid, it would render the court powerless to remedy wrongs done to the tenant. Watson v. Boswell, 61 S. W. 407, 25 C. A. 379.

Where one prosecuted for unlawfully selling liquor to the prosecutor's minor son pleads guilty, and pays a fine in consideration of the prosecutor's promise not to sue civilly, the contract is unenforceable, as against public policy. Lucas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 823.

An agreement that, in consideration of the abandonment of a proceeding to perpetuate a witness' testimony, hearsay evidence thereof might be offered, was not invalid as contravening public policy. Thompson v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 73 S. W. 29, 31 C. A. 583.

Where, after a judgment establishing heirship and directing partition of the residue of an estate, certain attorneys who had been appointed to represent unknown heirs were preparing to appeal from a judgment awarding them $2,000 for their services on the ground that such allowance was unreasonable, a contract by an assignee of the interest of some of the heirs in the estate to pay such attorneys an additional amount in consideration of their abandonment of their appeal was void, as against public policy. Steger v. Hume, 79 S. W. 19, 97 T. 324, 33 C. A. 401.

A stipulation, in a contract to furnish ballast to a railroad company, that the company's engineer shall determine the question whether a material provision in the contract has been breached by either party and assess the damages occasioned thereby, is invalid; for such questions can only be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 922.

29. —— Compounding offenses.—The fact that the money procured from plaintiffs was to be used by defendant to settle claims held by persons against defendant's brother, who was being prosecuted criminally for wrongful appropriation of property, does not render void the contract under which the money was advanced, where plaintiffs had no knowledge of any agreement to stifle the criminal proceeding. Cohen v. Grimes, 45 S. W. 210, 18 C. A. 327.

Plaintiff may recover on a note executed by defendant of his free act, in consideration of funds he had embezzled, although induced to execute it through sense of guilt or fear. Largent v. Beard (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 90.

A contract and deed by which parents conveyed land to the grantee in payment of a debt due him from their son, on the grantee's agreement to forego his purpose to prosecute the son criminally, besides being a compounding of crime, under Pen. Code, art. 422, is void as contrary to public policy. Medearis v. Granberry, 38 C. A. 187, 84 S. W. 1070; Id. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 790.

One who executes a mortgage on an understanding that, in consideration thereof, his son shall not be prosecuted by the mortgagee, does not compound a felony; such crime, under Pen. Code 1911, art. 422, being the agreeing with the offender, for a consideration, not to prosecute or inform on him. Gray v. Freeman, 84 S. W. 1105, 37 C. A. 556.

Contracts in consideration of compounding a criminal offense are void because in contravention of public policy and Pen. Code 1911, art. 422, and will not be enforced or damages allowed for their breach. Shriver v. McCann (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 317.

Petition in an action to cancel a note and mortgage, alleging that by threats to criminally prosecute plaintiff they had been merged in a new note and mortgage, was insufficient to raise the issue of the note and mortgage's invalidity because based on an agreement to compound a criminal offense. Id.

30. —— Restraint of trade.—See notes under Title 130.

31. —— Rights of bona fide purchasers.—See notes under Art. 582.

32. —— Effect of partial illegality.—P. being indebted to B. executed to him his note for $350; about the same time B. accused P. of theft, and by threat of a criminal prosecution induced P. to execute to him a note for $1,000, with W. as surety, in consideration that he would not prosecute. P. having been indicted fled from the country, leaving property of the value of $1,250. W., to secure himself, procured from B. both notes, giving therefor his own note for $1,300, the balance due. W. then sued P. by attachment on his note to B. and recovered judgment, and applied the proceeds of the sale of the property, amounting to $725, on his judgment against P. In a suit by B. against W. on his note for $1,300, held, that the consideration for the note for $1,000 executed by P. and W. as surety was illegal and the note void; that the note sued on was vitiated by the illegality of a part of the consideration on which it was based. Wegner v. Biering, 65 T. 506. See Art. 584.

A promise made upon several considerations, one of which is unlawful, whether the illegality be by common law or statute, is void. Reed v. Brewer, 37 S. W. 418, 90 T. 144, following Edwards County v. Jennings, 35 S. W. 1053, 89 T. 618; Sanger v. Miller, 62 S. W. 425, 26 C. A. 111.

An illegal stipulation in a contract which is entire and indivisible in its nature will vitiate the whole contract. Burck v. Abbott, 54 S. W. 314, 22 C. A. 216.

Where any part of the consideration for a check was the payee's agreement to procure the dismissal of a criminal prosecution against the maker's son, the entire consideration was illegal, as against public policy, and no recovery could be based thereon. McNeese v. Carver, 40 C. A. 129, 89 S. W. 430.

A debtor conveyed his property to a trustee with authority to convert the same into cash and pay the creditors. The trustee verbally agreed with the debtor to settle the indebtedness as cheaply as possible, and give him the benefit of discounts procured from creditors. Held, that the illegal verbal agreement was distinct from the implied contract binding the trustee to return the property not needed to satisfy the claims of the creditors, for the debtor did not require any aid from the verbal agreement to establish his case for the money received by the trustee and not accounted for. Haswell v. Blake (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 1125.

33. —— Relief to parties.—A defendant is not precluded from invoking the illegality of a contract because he is equally guilty, and will obtain an unconscionable advantage; for the courts must refuse to enforce them, without regard to the effect on the parties. Burck v. Abbott, 54 S. W. 314, 22 C. A. 216.

Where an officer, for a consideration, agrees not to exercise the duties of his office, it is not unjust to deny him a recovery under the agreement because it will deprive him of the emoluments of his office; for, if he desired such emoluments, he should have discharged his official duties. Id.

Plaintiff sued on notes secured by a chattel mortgage, to which defendant interposed the defense that they were given in restraint of trade. Plaintiff contended that, since the time during which the trade was to be restrained was not fixed by the contract itself, the defense would not avail. Held, that plaintiff, having sued on the contract, thereby admitted that it was in force from the time of its execution up to and during the prosecution of such action, and hence the defense was meritorious. Mansur & Tebbetts Implement Co. v. Price, 55 S. W. 764, 22 C. A. 616.

The parties, who were president and teller and large stockholders in a bank, agreed that plaintiff should endeavor to secure the co-operation of other stockholders or control of sufficient stock to secure the election of a board of directors satisfactory to them, and who would continue them in their respective offices, and the expense of securing such control should be shared equally by them. After plaintiff had incurred expense, and secured control of stock which, added to theirs, was sufficient for their purpose, defendant defeated the plan by selling his stock. Held, that the agreement was illegal, because it involved the election of the parties to lucrative positions in the corporation; hence plaintiff was not entitled to recover the expense so incurred. Withers v. Edmonds, 62 S. W. 795, 26 C. A. 189.

The courts will not aid the grantee in recovering possession of land under a deed, the consideration for which was the compounding of crime, where the grantor remained in possession. Medearis v. Granberry, 38 C. A. 187, 84 S. W. 1070.

Though a landowner executing a mortgage thereon in consideration that the mortgagee would not prosecute the mortgagor's son for a felony had been guilty of compounding the son's crime, the fact would not prevent him from annulling the contract on the ground of duress. Gray v. Freeman, 84 S. W. 1105, 37 C. A. 556.

Where rescission of a contract for the sale of land was allowed the purchasers because it had not been disclosed that one of the purchasers was the vendor's agent in making the sale and received $3,000 commission, the court properly refused recovery between the agent and the vendor of money paid under the contract, they being in pari delicto. Houts v. Scharbauer, 46 C. A. 605, 103 S. W. 679.

If an illegal contract is executory, money paid thereunder may be recovered. The term "executed contract" means the performance of the contract, and not its mere execution. Hence money paid on a contract to sell a lot and building and stock of drugs, with an agreement that the amount paid should be retained by the seller if the remainder was not paid, may be recovered by the purchaser; no deeds to the property having been executed. McCall v. Whaley, 52 C. A. 646, 115 S. W. 658.

The court has jurisdiction of an action for breach of contract void because contrary to public policy, and where the petition does not disclose the vice of the contract, and the defense is made by the answer, the court may try the issue, though in a proper case it must render judgment against the validity of the contract. Coons v. Green, 55 C. A. 612, 120 S. W. 1108.

Where plaintiff transferred his stock to defendant as part of a scheme to defraud others by selling it to them for more than it was worth, he cannot recover it of defendant. Huff v. McMichael (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 574.

Whether one can recover on a transaction involving an illegal contract depends upon whether he requires any aid from the illegal contract to establish a case and if an illegal agreement is a joint undertaking, the parties to share equally in the profits, one party could recover from the other his share of such funds paid to the other for the joint benefit of both of them, since it would not be necessary to resort to the contract to ascertain the parties' rights. Simon v. Garlitz (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 461.

In an action to recover possession of one-half of notes and bonds received by defendant under a contract between defendant and plaintiff, regarding sale of land, the petition alleging that plaintiff was employed by defendant to use his influence with the persons to whom the land was sold to bring about the trade, that he did everything that he considered advantageous to make such trade, that it was through his efforts that the sale was made, and that, but for his services, the negotiations would not have been successful, so far relied upon the contract that, without it, his right of action would be incomplete. Id.

No action to recover damages for the breach of an illegal contract may be maintained, for such action is, in effect, an attempt to enforce such illegal contract. Bergin v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1184.

34. —— Relief to parties not in pari delicto.—While there is a conflict of decisions on the question as to whether a contract is rendered invalid on the mere ground that one party to it may have known of the intention on the part of the other to use the subject-matter thereof for an unlawful purpose, the tendency of the Texas decisions is to deny the invalidity of a contract for such cause. Labbe v. Corbett, 69 T. 503, 6 S. W. 808.

Defendant city entered into a contract with a water company by which the city agreed not to grant to any other person the right to furnish water for fire hydrants during the life of the contract which was for 25 years, and the city to have the privilege of buying the water works, but if the city did not exercise the option to purchase the contract to continue until the city finally purchased the work. Held that even if the stipulation granting an exclusive right in perpetuity was made for the benefit of the water company, so that the parties were not in pari delicto, the water company may still allege the illegality of the contract, to avoid its liability thereunder, nor was it estopped to set up the invalidity of the contract. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Houston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 973, reversed 116 S. W. 36, 102 T. 317.

35. —— Further or subsequent agreement.—B. and L., dealing faro in partnership, became indebted to several parties, which B. assumed to pay, said assumpsit being accepted in discharge of the original indebtedness, and L. executed to B. his note for his share of the debt. Held, that B. could recover on the note. Boggess v. Lilly, 18 T. 200; Mills v. Johnston, 23 T. 308; De Leon v. Trevino, 49 T. 88, 30 Am. Rep. 101; Lewis v. Alexander, 51 T. 578; Read v. Smith, 60 T. 379.

36. Failure of consideration.—To an action on a note the defendant can plead that it was given for personal property the title of which was not in the vendor. Richardson v. McFadden, 13 T. 278.

Upon the issue of failure of consideration set up by the defendant's plea, it devolves upon the defendant to show by evidence that the representation, in whole or in part, made by the plaintiff were false; that the false representations was as to a material matter; that the same was relied upon by defendant and influenced him in his action. Caruthers v. Cherry, 4 App. C. C. § 118, 16 S. W. 867.

The consideration of a note as between the original parties thereto may be inquired into, and it may be shown that it has failed either in whole or in part. Branch v. Howard, 23 S. W. 478, 4 C. A. 271.

The consideration of notes failed where they were given for governmental concessions that the payee agreed to transfer to a railroad company when organized by the maker, and the payee refused to transfer to such a company. Brown v. Viscaya (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 309.

Maker of note held entitled to rely on representations made by the payee so as to constitute defense of want of consideration, the representations proving false. Crebbin v. Farmers' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 402.

Purchasers of property, giving notes for the price on assurance that its debts amounted to a certain sum, and forced to pay more than the notes to protect the purchase, held not liable on the notes. Smith v. Roach (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 292.

A note given an attorney for services to be performed, not only before examining court, but on indictment, held subject to the contingency that payee would be disqualified from acting. Ablowich v. Greenville Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 272, 54 S. W. 794.

The consideration of a note held to be a loan of funds to settle a suit on street certificates, and not a mere extension of the certificates; and a subsequent adjudication declaring the certificates invalid did not invalidate the note for failure of consideration. Dooley v. Houston Land & Trust Co., 24 C. A. 275, 59 S. W. 619.

A contract by a life insurance agent to issue a paid-up policy for $25,000 on payment of about $2,000, being within his authority, its breach operated as failure of consideration of a note given in payment. Webb v. Moseley, 30 C. A. 311, 70 S. W. 349.

Failure of vendor's title held not to render purchase-money notes wholly without consideration, where the vendor had made valuable improvements for which he was entitled to compensation. Williams v. Finley, 99 T. 468, 90 S. W. 1087.

Where a vendor sold two tracts of land, failure of the vendor's title to the larger and principal tract did not render the purchase-money notes totally without consideration. Id.

When the revisors of statutes of 1879 compiled that work it is evident that their purpose was to put negotiable and non-negotiable instruments on the same footing in respect to defenses to them and protect the bona fide holder without notice of such paper against the defense of failure of consideration whether the paper was negotiable or not. McCormick v. Kampmann, 102 T. 215, 115 S. W. 24.

A purchaser of three sections of school land obtained a good title to one section only, and gave to the vendor a note for a part of the price. The purchaser received possession of the section to which he acquired a good title, so that he could acquire title to the other two sections. This section, together with the improvements, might equal in value all that the purchaser agreed to give for the whole. Held, that there was neither a total nor a partial failure of consideration for the note, but the vendor could recover thereon. Samples v. Wever, 56 C. A. 562, 121 S. W. 1129.

A vendor sold, with warranty of title, a specified number of lots, to two of which the title failed. The vendee, after notice from the vendor of a possible failure of title to the two lots, for which an abatement from the price was agreed upon accepted a deed of the entire property, paid part of the price and gave his notes for the balance. The two lots to which title failed were not necessary to the enjoyment of the rest, nor did they form any material inducement to the vendee's purchase. Held, that there was no failure of consideration which would sustain a plea of fraud, or warrant a rescission of the contract and a cancellation of the notes, but the vendor could recover on them. Harris v. Berry (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1148.

In an action for the price of fire hose, where defendant retained and used the hose as long as it would last, it was proper to charge that a total failure of consideration could not be found unless the hose was worthless, and had no market value at the time of delivery. City of Cleburne v. Gutta Percha & Rubber Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1072.

That, contemporaneously with the execution of certain promissory notes, there was a verbal agreement by the payee to take merchandise which the maker had on hand, bought of the payee, in payment of the notes, and not to demand payment if the agreement to ship the goods, for which no specified time was stipulated, was carried out, and that the payee declared the notes due and attempted to collect them, notwithstanding the shipment by the maker, does not constitute a failure of consideration for an accommodation indorsement, but merely entitles the indorser to such damages as he may have sustained by the breach of the contract. Crooker v. National Phonograph Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 647.

In an action on a note, evidence held to show failure of consideration. Woods v. Warren (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 293; Key v. Hickman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 275.

37. —— Against bona fide purchasers.—See notes under Art. 582.

38. Effect of want or failure of consideration.—Where a part of the consideration of a purchase of land fails, the purchaser is entitled to an abatement of price commensurate with the resulting injury. Blanks v. Ripley, 8 C. A. 156, 27 S. W. 732.

Where a policy was to be invalid unless the premium was paid in cash, a note given to the agent on condition of his advancing the premium is without consideration, where he fails to do so until after suit brought on the note. Saldumbehere v. Hadlock, 19 C. A. 653, 48 S. W. 197.

Though notes may be non-negotiable, still when transferred for value before maturity it is incumbent on the maker to show that the assignee had knowledge of failure of consideration before the transfer to him. Kampmann v. McCormick, 24 C. A. 462, 59 S. W. 833.

A bank accepting a draft cannot claim there was no consideration to support its acceptance. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 151.

A note executed to induce a person to enter into a contract is supported by a sufficient consideration, regardless of whether the contract afterwards made resulted in a loss. Key v. Hickman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 275.

If property was worthless for the purpose for which the seller knew it was purchased, the buyer may recover the price paid therefor, and have canceled such purchase money notes as still remain in the seller's hands. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Peveto (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 279.

Where one gave a note without consideration to a bank, with an understanding that it was not to be collected and was to be canceled at maturity, and it was renewed several times as though to cover interest, no element of estoppel, in favor of the bank, exists in an action on the note after maturity. Central Bank & Trust Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 700.

39. Obligation of surety.—See notes under Title 109.

Art. 590. [315] [273] Liability of drawer, etc., fixed by protest. —The holder of any bill of exchange or promissory note assignable or negotiable by the law merchant may also secure and fix the liability of any drawer or indorser of such bill of exchange or promissory note, for the payment thereof, without suit against the acceptor, drawer or maker, by procuring such bill or note to be regularly protested by a notary public for nonacceptance or non-payment, and giving notice of such protest to such drawer or indorser, according to the usage and custom of merchants. [Act March 20, 1848, p. 187, sec. 4. P. D. 232.]

In general.—The law providing the manner in which the liability of an indorser can be fixed is not limited to notes originating in transactions between merchants, their factors or their agents. Williams v. Planters' & Mechanics' National Bank of Houston (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 617.

Under this article and Art. 579 a suit on a negotiable vendor's lien note against the payee and indorser, which also sought to foreclose the vendor's lien, was properly brought in the district court, which had exclusive jurisdiction to render judgment, both for the debt and forclosing the lien, under Const. 1876, art. 5, § 8 (Art. 1705), giving the district court original jurisdiction of all suits for the enforcement of liens on land. Robinson v. Belt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 598.

Presentment.—When a bank at which a note is made payable has ceased to do business, and the maker of the note does not reside in the place in which such bank did business, the note can be presented for payment to another bank doing business in the same place. Bank v. Eubank, 4 App. C. C. § 170, 15 S. W. 41.

A draft was legally presented by the authorized agent of the rightful holder. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

Though a draft be not presented by the lawfully authorized agent of the rightful holder, the presentment inures to his benefit. Id.

Demand.—Possession of a note by a notary held a sufficient demand on the maker, where the note was payable at a city without naming any particular place, and the maker did not reside there. Williams v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank, 91 T. 651, 45 S. W. 690.

Time for protest.—When the indorsement is made after the maturity of a note, the holder must use due diligence to fix liability. Winston v. Kelly, 33 T. 354.

The liability of an indorser is not fixed by the protest of a note before it is due. Cruger v. Lindheim, 4 App. C. C. § 96, 16 S. W. 420.

A bill should be protested on the last day of grace. Kerr v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1011; Lumber Co. v. National Bank, 86 T. 299, 24 S. W. 260.

—— Instruments payable on demand.—A bill payable on demand, at sight, or so many days after, must be presented for acceptance. Jordan v. Wheeler, 20 T. 698. Otherwise, if payable at a certain period. Carson v. Russell, 26 T. 452. Excused by want of funds. Id.

A bill payable on demand, at sight, or so many days after sight, must be presented within a reasonable time. Chambers v. Hill, 26 T. 472; Jordan v. Wheeler, 20 T. 698; Nichols v. Blackmore, 27 T. 586.

A negotiable note payable on demand bears interest and is subject to limitation from date. The holder may sue without demand, and it is not entitled to days of grace. Brown v. Chancellor, 61 T. 437; Henry v. Roe, 83 T. 446, 18 S. W. 806.

A draft payable on demand becomes due at the date of its acceptance, or as soon thereafter as demand for payment can reasonably be made. Kampmann v. Williams, 70 T. 568, 8 S. W. 310.

The payee of a duplicate check held discharged from liability on his indorsement by the holder's laches in presenting the original for payment. Lewis v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 37 C. A. 241, 83 S. W. 423.

In absence of special circumstances, the presentment of a check for payment by a collecting bank on the day after it is deposited for collection is a sufficient diligence. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 551.

The failure of the payee of a check or its agent, the bank with which it was deposited for collection, to present the check for collection on the next day, held to release the maker from liability. Id.

Protest not necessary when.—No necessity exists for protest in order to fix the liability of an indorser on an instrument which is not negotiable. Kampmann v. Williams, 70 T. 568, 8 S. W. 310; First Nat. Bank v. De Morse (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 417.

Protest held unnecessary to hold prior indorser of draft, where it is discovered that indorsement in the name of drawee was a forgery. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Simpson Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 636, 47 S. W. 1024.

Protest against original promisor held unnecessary. Beissner v. Weekes, 21 C. A. 14, 50 S. W. 138.

Who entitled.—Delay in the presentation of an accepted draft does not affect the liability of the acceptor. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

A bank buying a draft by a seller and receiving an assignment of the bill of lading may not hold the seller liable on the failure of the acceptor to pay, without protest for nonpayment or suit therefor is brought within a proper time, and could not charge the drawer's account therewith. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 617.

Waiver of protest.—The waiver of acceptance by the drawer of a bill of exchange, payable at a certain period after its date, puts the drawer in the same situation as if the bill had been presented and acceptance refused. Carson v. Russell, 26 T. 452.

A party who has been relieved from liability on a bill of exchange by failure of the holder to present it in proper time may waive the consequences of such neglect, as by promise to pay after knowledge that he is discharged. Stone v. Smith, 30 T. 138, 94 Am. Dec. 299.

Demand and notice may be waived. National Bank v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 698.

A waiver of protest of a non-negotiable instrument is not a waiver of suit at the first or second term. Burke v. Ward (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 1047.

Presentment of note and notice of protest may be waived. Leeds v. Hamilton Paint & Glass Co. (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 77.

See First Nat. Bank v. St. Charles Sav. Bank (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 768, as to waiver of protest.

An indorser of a note, who waives protest and notice thereof, secures to the holder the rights secured by a timely protest; and it is not necessary to show the insolvency of the maker to fix the liability of the indorser. Costin v. Burton-Lingo Co., 57 C. A. 634, 123 S. W. 177.

Art. 591. [316] [274] Protest, how made, and evidence of.—It shall be the duty of any notary public who shall protest any bill of exchange or promissory note, for nonacceptance or nonpayment, to set forth in his protest and in his notarial record a full and true statement of what shall have been done by him in relation thereto, according to the facts, by specifying therein whether demand was made of the sum of money in such bill or note specified, of whom, and when and where such demand was made. It shall also be his duty to make the requisite notices of protest for the drawers and indorsers who are sought to be made liable, and when any such notice shall be served by him, he shall note in his protest and notarial record on whom and when such notice was served; and when such notice shall be deposited in the postoffice by him he shall specify when and where mailed, and to whom and where directed; and such protest, or a copy of such notarial record, certified under the hand and seal of such notary public, shall be admitted in all the courts of this state as evidence of the facts therein set forth. [Id. sec. 5. P. D. 233.]

Notice of protest.—Notice must be proven, if not recited in protest. Fisher v. Phelps, Dodge & Co., 21 T. 551.

One who is a party to the bill or acting under his authority may give notice of dishonor. Payne v. Patrick, 21 T. 680.

Drawer not entitled to notice when he has no funds in the hands of the drawee, nor reasonable grounds to expect that his bill will be accepted. Wood v. McMeans, 23 T. 481.

It must appear that notice was sent to the proper place. Earnest v. Taylor, 25 T. Sup. 37.

Testimony of notary held admissible to supply omissions in protest as to demand and notice. Williams v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 617.

Art. 592. [317] [275] Damages on protested bill recoverable, when.—The holder of any protested draft or bill of exchange, drawn by a merchant within the limits of this state upon his agent or factor living beyond the limits of this state, shall, after having fixed the liability of the drawer or indorser of any such draft or bill of exchange, be entitled to recover and receive ten per cent on the amount of such draft or bill as damages, together with interest and costs of suit thereon accruing. [Act Dec. 24, 1851, p. 23, sec. 1. P. D. 236.]

Art. 593. [318] [276] Days of grace allowed on all bills and notes.—Three days of grace shall be allowed on all bills of exchange and promissory notes assignable or negotiable by law. [Act Jan. 11, 1862, p. 43, sec. 1. P. D. 234.]

Days of grace.—The debtor is entitled to three entire days after the day of payment, and limitation does not commence to run until after the expiration of this period. Watkins v. Willis, 58 T. 521.

A note payable on demand is not entitled to days of grace. Brown v. Chancellor, 61 T. 437. Days of grace are allowed on all other negotiable paper, whether between merchant and merchant or between other persons. Id.

A protest cannot be made on a legal holiday. Post. Art. 4606. Where the holder of an accepted bill, or notary, does not know the residence of the drawer, due diligence requires inquiry of the other parties to the bill. Earnest v. Taylor, 25 T. Sup. 37.

When a bill or note is payable at a certain number of days after date, demand or sight, the day of its date, etc., is excluded in computing time. Moore v. Hollaman, 25 T. Sup. 81; Young v. Van Benthuysen, 30 T. 762.

When a bill is payable so many months after date the computation is made by the calendar, and (without counting the days of grace) the bill will become due on the day of the month corresponding with the day of the date; that is, if it be dated on the 10th day of the month it will become due on the 10th, to which the days of grace are to be added. Campbell v. Lane, 25 T. Sup. 93.

A non-negotiable note, or a negotiable note without days of grace, falling due according to its face on Sunday, is payable on the following Monday, which is also the proper date for presentment and protest, unless that is also a legal holiday. Hirshfield v. Bank, 83 T. 452, 18 S. W. 743, 15 L. R. A. 639, 29 Am. St. Rep. 660. The rule is otherwise when days of grace can be claimed. Sunday not being a legal day for exacting payment, all banking business being suspended by law, cannot be computed except when it is an intermediate day. Id.

Protest in order to fix liability on an indorser of negotiable paper must be made on the last day of grace. Carey Lombard Lumber Co. v. Bank, 24 S. W. 260, 86 T. 299.

Where defendant by a note agreed to pay money October 1st, "waiving grace and protest," the payee's cause of action thereon accrued October 2d, and the limitation ran from that date. Standard v. Thurmond (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 627.

2. Bona fide purchasers.—See notes under Art. 582.

3. Execution and delivery.—Bills and notes take effect from date of delivery. Hutchins v. Flintge, 2 T. 473, 47 Am. Dec. 659; Richardson v. Ellett, 10 T. 190.

If the name of a party is written in any part of an instrument to give it authenticity he will be bound thereby. Fulshear v. Randon, 18 T. 275, 70 Am. Dec. 281; Prince v. Thompson, 21 T. 480.

The signature of a party made by his authority or recognized by him is binding on him although not actually written by him. Railroad Co. v. Chandler, 51 T. 416.

As to the authority of an employé to execute a note in the name of his employer. Flewellen v. Mittenthal (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 234. Citing Collins v. Cooper, 65 T. 460; Merriman v. Fulton, 29 T. 97; Friedlander v. Cornell, 45 T. 586.

Intent to deliver a note is not equivalent to a delivery. Montgomery v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 414.

Mailing of a chattel mortgage, made to secure an undelivered note, to be recorded, does not, in itself, show a delivery of the note secured. Id.

Evidence in an action on notes held to sustain a finding that they were executed and delivered by authority of the company sued as their maker. Myrick Bros. Co. v. Jackson, 44 C. A. 553, 99 S. W. 143.

A note placed in escrow becomes binding on the maker and indorser on the fulfillment of the conditions, though there is no delivery. Ketterson v. Inscho, 55 C. A. 150, 118 S. W. 626.

In an action on a note, the objection that the note offered in evidence was signed with a rubber stamp is without merit. Carroll v. Mitchell-Parks Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 446.

Evidence, in an action on a promissory note, held to sustain a finding that it was executed by the contesting defendant. Miller v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 591.

4. Form of note.—The words "value received" need not be inserted. Jones v. Holliday, 11 T. 412, 62 Am. Dec. 487; Williams v. Edwards, 15 T. 41.

5. Designation of parties.—Counties as parties, see Art. 1371.

Words of description added to name of payee may be rejected. Gayle v. Ennis, 1 T. 184; Lipscomb v. Ward, 2 T. 277; Groce v. Herndon, 2 T. 410; De Cordova v. Atchison, 13 T. 372; Claiborne v. Yoeman, 15 T. 44; Nelson v. Bagby, 25 T. Sup. 305; Rider v. Duval, 28 T. 622.

If the name of the payee is blank the holder may insert his own. Close v. Fields, 2 T. 232; Jones v. Primm, 6 T. 170; Stone v. Brown, 54 T. 330.

Notes and bills should show by and to whom payable. Frazier v. Moore, 11 T. 755; Watrous v. Halbrook, 39 T. 572.

It may be shown that the signer acted as agent or trustee of another who is bound. Traynham v. Jackson, 15 T. 170, 65 Am. Dec. 152.

The president of a corporation who signs the corporate name to a promissory note, and his own name, with the word "president" following, and without inserting the word "by" between the corporate name and his own, does not thereby render himself individually liable as one of the makers thereof. A note was thus signed in which the word "we" was used preceding the word "promise" in the body of the note, which, by its terms, was made payable "at our office." Held: (1) The presumption must prevail that the office referred to was the office of the corporation; (2) that the president referred to the corporation as a thing to be spoken of not in the singular but the plural number. Latham v. Flour Mills, 68 T. 127, 3 S. W. 462.

A note given for a debt by a corporation, signed with the name of the corporate agent, who wrote the word "agent" after his signature, and who had been accustomed thus to sign for the corporation, as shown in this case by the evidence, when such signature is followed by that of other persons, is the note of the corporation as the principal debtor, and, as between the corporation and the other makers, the latter are sureties. McIlhenny Co. v. Blum, 68 T. 197, 4 S. W. 367.

As to liability of an undisclosed principal for whose benefit a note is executed, see McGregor v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 489. Citing Cattle Co. v. Carroll, 63 T. 48; Raymond v. Mann, 45 T. 301; Sessums v. Henry, 38 T. 37; Heffron v. Pollard, 73 T. 100, 11 S. W. 165, 15 Am. St. Rep. 764.

Rule that a note made payable to a dead man is void does not apply to a note made in renewal of one executed before the payee's death. Dark v. Middlebrook (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 963.

A note signed by H., "Assignee," held to be his personal obligation. Warren v. Harrold, 92 T. 417, 49 S. W. 364.

An executrix held liable in her representative capacity on a note which she signed individually for the benefit of the estate. Ellis v. Littlefield, 41 C. A. 318, 93 S. W. 171.

Where the name of a corporation was the "Houston Loan & Land Company" and not the "Houston Land & Loan Company," the fact that it, through its president, executed notes in the name of the latter, did not affect its liability on the notes. Houston Land & Loan Co. v. Danley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1143.

If an agent signs a promissory note with his own name as such and discloses no principal, he is personally bound. Abney v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Hillsboro (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 734.

Where a note is payable to a person as "executor" or "administrator," his indorsement of the note in his capacity as executor or administrator imposes a personal liability upon him; the addition of the word indicating his representative capacity being merely descriptio personæ. Id.

6. Designation of amount.—Statement in a note of the amount payable may be given in figures. Hubert v. Grady, 59 T. 502; Epperson v. Young, 8 T. 135; Callison v. Gray, 25 T. 84; Oppenheimer v. Fritter, 1 App. C. C. § 372.

A writing in following form was held sufficient to support a judgment: "$100. On or before July 1, 1888, I promise to pay to the order B. Whitaker the sum of one hundred ——— with interest," etc. Garrett v. Interstate Bank, 79 T. 133, 15 S. W. 224; Petty v. Fleishel, 31 T. 169, 98 Am. Dec. 524.

A bond given to secure a contract to deliver cattle which stipulates, "If the said S. A. Jackson shall fail to deliver any of said cattle, then this bond shall be good for the full amount thereof and J. A. Shelton may recover the full amount thereof," is a liquidated demand. Shelton v. Jackson, 20 C. A. 443, 49 S. W. 415.

7. Designation of time of payment.—A promissory note which does not specify any time of payment is payable on demand. Salinas v. Wright, 11 T. 575; Chambers v. Hill, 26 T. 473.

A demand note is due and actionable at once. Henry v. Roe, 83 T. 446, 18 S. W. 806.

The time of payment of note being left blank, it can be shown by extraneous evidence. Head v. C., B. & L. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 810.

Where time of payment is named with "privilege of extension," the privilege must be claimed before the date named. Davis v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 902. Time of payment essence of contract, when. Goodnight v. Texas L. & M. Co. (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 974.

A note payable on or before a certain date is certain as to time of payment. Buchanan v. Wren, 10 C. A. 560, 30 S. W. 1077; Brookshire v. Allen (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 164.

A note payable on or before the date named did not mature until the time named for payment. Brainerd v. Bute (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 575.

The date of a note payable a certain period after date controls a notation at the foot as to its maturity, which is not part of the note. Dark v. Middlebrook (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 963.

When the deed of trust provides that the trustee can sell the land on default of payment of the note or accrued interest, the interest being payable semi-annually, the payee can foreclose, before the note has matured, if interest has become due and has not been paid. Warren v. Harrold, 92 T. 417, 49 S. W. 364.

In an action on a duebill payable when convenient or when the profits of the debtor's business justified it, the petition should indicate that the contingency on which payment was conditioned had arisen, to show liability. Johnson v. Clements, 23 C. A. 112, 54 S. W. 272.

A note given for the purchase price of certain improvements on state land held due as soon as the land was awarded to defendant as a purchaser, regardless of when he applied to purchase the land, or when it was placed on the market for sale to actual settlers. Taylor v. McFatter (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 395.

The time of the payment of a note given as a compromise of a claim pending suit held to be in a reasonable time. Rivers v. Campbell, 51 C. A. 103, 111 S. W. 190.

Where notes were given for the price, and the seller retained a lien, the notes "to be paid as the net earnings of the gin may be able to pay them as per face of the note," such notes became a demand at maturity. Fuller v. Pryor, 57 C. A. 425, 122 S. W. 418.

The word "before," as ordinarily used in a note containing the on or before privilege, is inserted for the purpose of giving the payor the privilege of paying the note at any time before the date named on which payment must be made. Henry v. Lovenberg (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 675.

A note payable "on or before the year 1904" held due not later than January 1, 1904. Lovenburg v. Henry, 104 T. 550, 140 S. W. 1079, affirming Henry v. Lovenberg (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 675.

8. Place of payment.—A note executed in Missouri by a citizen of Texas but not made payable in Missouri and the enforcement of which through subrogation is asked in a Texas court is not entitled to the benefit of the statute of limitations of Missouri. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Gooding, 19 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 123.

Where no place of payment is designated in note, the maker may designate a place, and deposit the money there, to prevent default. Rose v. McCracken, 20 C. A. 637, 50 S. W. 152.

9. Acceptance.—A verbal acceptance or promise to a check or bill of exchange may be enforced. Such undertaking is not within the statute of frauds. The English and American courts having decided that such acceptances were not within St. 29 Car. II, c. 3, prior to its adoption in this state, the presumption is that it was intended that it should here receive the same construction. Neumann v. Shroeder, 71 T. 81, 8 S. W. 632.

A verbal acceptance is sufficient to bind the acceptor. Newman v. Shroeder, 71 T. 82, 8 S. W. 632; White v. Dienger (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 666; Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345; Seguin Milling & Power Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 456.

Unless the holder of a bill of exchange took it on account of promise of the drawee to the drawer to accept it, it is not an acceptance. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

This rule applies to an acceptance not written on the face of the paper. Id.

Where the purchaser of a draft made payable to another presents it to the drawee and obtains a promise to pay, in writing indorsed thereon, in case the paper is indorsed by the payee, it is an acceptance which does not release the drawer, and not a certification which does. Id.

Words and acts sufficient to constitute an "acceptance" of a check, stated. Home Nat. Bank of Baird v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Abilene (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 935.

That the transfers on the back of acceptances sued on were by printed signatures is immaterial, in the absence of evidence that they were not adopted as their genuine signatures by the indorsers. Midkiff & Caudle v. Johnson County Sav. Bank (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 705.

Reply telegram, stating that bank had money on deposit to pay a certain check, held equivalent to an acceptance. Elliott v. First State Bank of Ft. Stockton (Sup.) 152 S. W. 808, reversing (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 159.

10. ——— Effect.—The acceptor of a draft becomes the principal debtor and he cannot afterwards withdraw his acceptance on the ground that he was mistaken in believing he had funds in his hands of the drawer at the time he accepted. Grumback v. Hirsch, 17 C. A. 618, 43 S. W. 1031.

In an action on accepted drafts, held error to refuse to instruct that, if plaintiff had sufficient funds belonging to the company for which it discounted the drafts to have paid them after it learned defendant claimed a failure of consideration for the drafts, the jury should find for defendant. Sperlin v. Peninsular Loan & Discount Co. (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 232.

An acceptance has the effect of an admission by the acceptor that he has funds of the drawer with which to pay, and the acceptor becomes the principal debtor, primarily liable. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

A bank accepting a draft cannot claim there was no consideration to support its acceptance. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 151.

That the holder of a bill knows when he procures it, or when accepted, that the drawee accepts it as an accommodation does not affect the latter's liability to him. Id.

Defendant drawee having repudiated its acceptance of a draft and refused to pay it with or without a certain indorsement, causing the draft to be left on plaintiffs' hands, they had a right to assert the acceptance without procuring the indorsement. Id.

In an action against an acceptor of an order by a debtor to pay the creditor out of excess collateral in the acceptor's hands, on the theory that the collateral was sufficient to pay both the creditor and the acceptor's claims, but was wasted by the acceptor, or that he falsely represented that the collateral was so sufficient, it was necessary to show the debtor was insolvent. Ross v. W. D. Cleveland & Sons (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 315.

Facts which the holder of an accepted draft must show in order to recover against the drawer, stated. Seguin Milling & Power Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 456.

Acceptance of a draft attached to a bill of lading for cotton held not conditional so as to entitle the acceptor to recover on that ground because only half of the goods appearing to have been covered by the bill of lading attached to the draft were actually shipped. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

11. —— Unaccepted bill or check.—An unaccepted check on a bank does not constitute an equitable assignment of that much of the money in the bank. House v. Kountze, 17 C. A. 402, 43 S. W. 561.

An order by a creditor, directing his debtor to pay a portion of the account to a third person, is not binding on the debtor until after presentation and acceptance. Gulf, T. & W. R. Co. v. Stark (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 641.

12. Validity.—The execution of a note under a charge of having embezzled funds, and threats of arrest and imprisonment, is made under duress. Largent v. Beard (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 90.

If defendant embezzles plaintiff's funds, and, under duress, executes a note in settlement, the plaintiff is entitled to recover thereon to the amount embezzled. Id.

That a note was obtained through a threat to prosecute the maker held available as a defense to an action upon it. Thompson v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 357.

13. —— Fraud and mistake.—A defense by sureties that they signed under false representations by the payee that he held a mortgage of the maker sufficient to secure the indebtedness, held good. Galbraith v. Townsend, 20 S. W. 943, 1 C. A. 447.

A note obtained on a false representation upon which the maker relied may be canceled. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Mays (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 883.

Fraudulent representations resulting in maker's signing a renewal note held a defense to an action thereon. Wootters v. Haden (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 755.

A note is avoided by false representations of a character to induce the maker to believe them, and which are believed by him, irrespective of his exercise of ordinary diligence. Hall v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, 36 C. A. 317, 81 S. W. 762.

Where a promoter represents that property can be purchased for the corporation for a certain price, but the price includes commission or profit to the promoter, a subscriber can rescind a note executed for his subscription. Id.

Mistake is not ground for equitable relief, unless it is mutual or induced by the other party's conduct. Finks v. Hollis (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 463.

In proceedings to recover an attorney's fee paid on a note in alleged ignorance of an extension thereof, evidence examined and held insufficient to entitle those making the claim to an instruction as to the effect of misrepresentations, on notice of the extension received by defendants' attorney. Collins v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 122.

Fraud in procuring the acceptance of a note as part payment for articles sold held waived by delay in bringing action after notice of fraud. Warren v. Osborne (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 851.

Evidence in an action on a note, the makers defending against costs, etc., because the payee broke a promise to renew made with fraudulent intent not to keep it, held to sustain findings in their favor. Beaumont Carriage Co. v. Price & Johnson (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 499.

One induced to execute a contract on material representations relied on by him and afterwards shown to be false may have the contract canceled. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Costley (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 135.

The statement of an attorney for the indorsee of a note that the indorser would not be bound thereby is only the expression of an opinion as to the legal effect of the indorsement, and not the misstatement of a fact entitling the indorser to avoid liability for fraudulent representation. Wizig v. Beisert (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 954.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a cashier of a bank knew when he wrote a letter to the drawee of a draft in which he was interested, that his bank would not be able to fulfill promises made in such letter. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 151.

Evidence held insufficient to show a false promise by a bank cashier to the drawee of a draft, or of false representation or fraud, or that the promise was made under circumstances negativing a reasonable expectation of performance in due course of business. Id.

The rule permitting the cancellation of a contract for fraud will not be enforced where the rights of third parties have intervened. Hoeldtke v. Horstman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 642.

The payee of a note cannot preclude a defense of fraudulent representations by showing that the maker knew facts which, if followed with ordinary diligence, would have disclosed the fraud. Wisegarver v. Yinger (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1190, denying rehearing (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 925.

Knowledge of circumstances tending to disclose the falsity of representations held not to preclude reliance on such representations. Id.

In equity, a written contract may be avoided by proof of mistake, accident, or fraud. Murray Co. v. Putnam (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 631.

14. Alteration.—An alteration of a bill or note in a material part, by a party thereto, renders it void. Miller v. Alexander, 13 T. 497, 65 Am. Dec. 73; Muckleroy v. Bethany, 23 T. 163; Park v. Glover, 23 T. 469; Bogarth v. Breedlove, 39 T. 561; Harper v. Stroud, 41 T. 367; Morgan v. Vandermark, 1 App. C. C. § 511; Baldwin v. Haskell Nat. Bank, 104 T. 122, 133 S. W. 864, 134 S. W. 1178.

When a written instrument appears on its face to have been altered, it devolves on the party offering it in evidence to show that the alteration was made with the consent of the maker. Dewees v. Bluntzer, 70 T. 406, 7 S. W. 820.

Alteration of note by payee and subsequent restoration to original form, held not to preclude a recovery on same. Skelton v. Tillman (Sup.) 20 S. W. 71. See Meade v. Sandidge, 9 C. A. 360, 30 S. W. 245.

An alteration made without a fraudulent intent does not forfeit the original debt. Otto v. Halff (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 1052. But the collateral security is discharged. Id., 89 T. 384, 34 S. W. 910, 59 Am. St. Rep. 56.

The alteration of an instrument which does not change its legal effect does not vitiate it. Chamberlain v. Wright (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 707.

A change by the holder of a check of the name of the bank on which it is drawn is a material alteration. Morris v. Beaumont Nat. Bank, 37 C. A. 97, 83 S. W. 36.

The law will not aid to enforce a note which has been materially altered by the payee without the knowledge and consent of the maker. Adams v. Faircloth (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 507.

Where a note was altered at the instance of the payee and without the knowledge of one of the makers, the materiality of the alteration was not affected by the fact that it decreased the liability of the maker on the note. Id.

The alteration of a note held not material. Baldwin v. Haskell Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 443.

Before an accommodation indorser signed a promissory note, it was made payable to "myself," referring to the principal. After his indorsement, another person's name was inserted, without his knowledge or consent, after the word "myself," thereby changing the payee of the note. Held that, though the change was not prejudicial to the accommodation indorser, yet it was a change in the terms of the note, and hence relieved him of liability. Wilson v. Weis (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 841.

Where a note was returned to an indorser stamped "Paid" by a bank, that act is not an alteration of the note. McShan v. Watlington (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 722.

Addition of word "date" in writing after the word "maturity" in note bearing interest from maturity held a material alteration. Baldwin v. Haskell Nat. Bank, 104 T. 122, 133 S. W. 864, 134 S. W. 1178.

Such alteration was material, though intended as a mere memorandum. Id.

Alteration of note to make it conform to real agreement of parties held not to discharge the maker from original liability. Id.

15. —— Erasures before signing.—Where the name of one of the signers of a note was erased before delivery, the effect was the same as if the name had never been signed. Hess v. Schaffner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1024.

Where a vendor's lien note was indorsed on a printed form, part of which was erased, held, that the legal effect of the words of indorsement should be ascertained without reference to the erasure. Behrens v. Kirkgard (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 698.

16. Indorsement and transfer in general.—Notes and bills payable to bearer, or payable to order and indorsed in blank, are transferable by delivery, and the amount advanced may be recovered by a bona fide holder for value, as against a former owner from whom they may have been obtained by theft or fraud. Greneaux v. Wheeler, 6 T. 515; Planters' Bank v. Evans, 36 T. 592; Kauffman v. Robey, 60 T. 308, 48 Am. Rep. 264; Guerin v. Patterson, 55 T. 124; Texas Banking & Insurance Co. v. Turnley, 61 T. 365.

A note payable to the wife may be negotiated or collected by the husband. Art. 4621; Hemminway v. Mathews, 10 T. 207; Wells v. Cockrum, 13 T. 127. But if it is the separate property of the wife he cannot transfer it to one with notice. Hamilton v. Brooks, 51 T. 142; Texas Banking & Insurance Co. v. Turnley, 61 T. 365.

A foreign administrator may, by indorsement, assign a negotiable promissory note the property of the estate, and the indorser may maintain suit in this state in his own name upon such note. Abercrombie v. Stillman, 77 T. 589, 14 S. W. 196.

The form of the transfer (of negotiable paper), and whether written or verbal, are immaterial. Ft. Dearborn Nat'l Bank v. Berrott, 23 C. A. 662, 57 S. W. 340.

Under our statutes the rules of the law merchant with respect to the transfer of negotiable paper are not in all respects applicable to us. Such transfer may be made without indorsement and delivery. It may be made by assignment either written or oral. The maker of negotiable paper is liable to be garnished, if it is made to appear that at the time of service of writ he is indebted to the defendant, and if it is also made to appear at the same time that the paper for any reason is not current or negotiable. Hutcheson v. King, 37 C. A. 151, 83 S. W. 216.

A finding that a seller of a note did not sell it as the agent of another, but in his individual capacity, held warranted. Harris v. Cain, 41 C. A. 139, 91 S. W. 866.

An assignment of a note need not be in writing. Singletary v. Goeman (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 436.

A transferee of a vendor's lien note held liable only for the consideration received by him on a subsequent transfer. Tackett v. Mutual Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 347.

A sale of negotiable paper with representations that it is good, and that the makers are solvent, and that it would be paid at maturity, constitutes an assignment equivalent to an indorsement, rendering the seller secondarily liable. McFarling v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 766.

A verbal assignment of a negotiable instrument is of the same effect as an indorsement. Id.

Evidence, in an action on vendor's lien notes after payment in full to the payee, held to sustain a finding that the notes were pledged by the payee to the plaintiff bank to secure a loan to the payee by plaintiff. Lane v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 307.

17. What law governs.—In an action involving a note transferred in Missouri, a rule of Missouri law not based upon any statute, contrary to the law of the forum, and the weight of authority, is not binding upon the domestic courts. Third Nat. Bank v. National Bank of Commerce (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 665.

18. Title and rights acquired by purchase or payment.—A mortgage is an incident of the debt, and passes to the owner of the note for which it is a security. Perkins v. Sterne, 23 T. 563, 76 Am. Dec. 72; Solinsky v. National Bank, 82 T. 244, 17 S. W. 1050.

Transfer of a note secured by lien conveys the lien also. White v. Downs, 40 T. 225; Davis v. Wrigley, 1 App. C. C. § 730.

One paying a note under a contract with the maker is not subrogated to the rights of the payee, but his action is for the money paid. Halbert v. Paddleford (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 592.

Attorneys' fees stipulated in a note pass with the transfer of the note, whether made before or after maturity. Chicago Cottage Organ Co. v. Waddell (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 408.

A bank, cashing a draft drawn by a creditor against his debtor for a larger amount than was actually due, held to acquire the right to whatever amount was actually due. Provident Nat. Bank v. C. D. Hartnett Co., 100 T. 214, 97 S. W. 689.

The indorsement of the legal title only to acceptances was equivalent to an assignment of all the legal and equitable interest of the beneficial owner so far as the maker was concerned. Haggard v. Bothwell (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 965.

One who buys a draft from a bank drawn by it in favor of a third person is the owner thereof, entitled to return it and demand repayment. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

Where a pledgor of a note sells it, the purchaser assuming the debt for which it is pledged, and the pledgor afterwards obtains it from the pledgee, by paying part of the debt, the purchaser can recover of the pledgor, not the full amount of the note, but such amount less what the pledgor paid on the debt. Syler v. Culp (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 175.

19. Liability on indorsement.—When an indorsement is without date, in the absence of proof the date is presumed to be the date of the note. Hutchins v. Flintge, 2 T. 473, 47 Am. Dec. 659.

The defendant may show that the date of the indorsement is not the true date of the transfer. Goodson v. Johnson, 35 T. 622.

On the back of a note executed by a corporation, and above the indorsement of the name of the payee, were written the names of other parties. Held: 1. In the absence of any evidence except that afforded by an inspection of the note, such indorsers would be deemed original promisors or sureties. 2. The real character of the obligation intended to be assumed by such indorsement may be shown by parol evidence. 3. The note being the individual contract of the corporation was not changed by the indorsement into a joint contract of the indorsers and the corporation. Latham v. Flour Mills, 68 T. 127, 3 S. W. 462.

Right of indorser to have amount of acceptances securing indorsed note credited on the note determined. Williams v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 617.

The fact that the purchaser of a forged draft indorsed it to another for collection would not authorize the bank to assume that he thereby purposed to guarantee its genuineness. Moody v. First Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 278, 46 S. W. 660.

Where a builder indorsed defendant's note, in order that she might obtain money to erect certain buildings under a contract with such builder, the latter was an indorser for value, and liable as such. Vitkovitch v. Kleinecke, 33 C. A. 20, 75 S. W. 544.

An indorsement of a duplicate check by the payee held to create no different liability from that assumed by his indorsement of the original. Lewis v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 37 C. A. 241, 83 S. W. 423.

A buyer and a third person indorsing a note for the price held liable thereon, though the bill of sale delivered in escrow had not been actually delivered to the buyer. Ketterson v. Inscho, 55 C. A. 150, 118 S. W. 626.

Where the indorsers on promissory notes surrendered them to one of the makers, who then sold them, the purchasers cannot hold the indorsers liable. Downing v. Neeley & Stephens (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1192.

While a bona fide purchaser of a negotiable instrument may assume that the rights of the respective parties to such paper are precisely what they purport to be, yet he cannot assume that the title of the transferror is better than it purports to be. Id.

Where the indorsee of a note procured the indorsement by a fraudulent statement to the indorser that the only effect of his act was to transfer the notes it constituted a valid defense to the indorser's liability on the indorsement. Beisert v. Wisig, 103 T. 591, 131 S. W. 810, reversing judgment Wizig v. Same (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 954.

One not a mere indorser, but an original promisor, who placed his name on the paper sued on before its delivery and to subserve purposes of his own, is not entitled to the strict rights of a mere indorser or surety. Jones v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 395.

A holder of a note suing the indorsers without suing the principal obligors held required to show that the residences of such obligors are unknown, and cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence. Whitaker v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 921.

In the absence of restrictions, an indorsement consists of only one contract. Behrens v. Kirkgard (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 698.

An indorsement of vendor's lien notes held not to restrict the liability of indorser. Id.

An indorsement not otherwise limited by writing imports a contract that, if the note is not paid by the maker, it will be paid by the indorser. First Nat. Bank v. Powell (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1096.

An indorsement of a note is not merely a transfer thereof, but a new substantial contract embodying all of the terms of the instrument indorsed. Id.

An instruction, in an action against indorser, that he was entitled to an offset for any amount the holder could have collected from the maker by the exercise of reasonable diligence, was erroneous. Id.

One who signs his name on the back of a note, unaccompanied by any words expressing the nature of his undertaking, is as to an indorsee before maturity for value, and without notice, a surety. Erwin v. E. I. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

20. —— Compelling resort to security.—See notes under Title 109.

21. —— Regaining possession by indorser.—Where the payee of a promissory note indorses it and afterwards pays and takes it up, he stands, with reference to the maker, as if he had never parted with it; and his remedy is upon the note, and not upon account for money paid to the use of the maker. Williams v. Durst, 25 T. 667, 78 Am. Dec. 548; Tutt v. Thornton, 57 T. 35; Rush v. Bishop, 60 T. 177; Gray v. Altman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 760.

When indorsed paper is in the hands of the payee he may strike out indorsement. Texas Land & Cattle Co. v. Carroll, 63 T. 48; Hilliard v. White (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 553.

The payee of a promissory note in possession may erase his own and subsequent indorsements and sue thereon in his own name. Collins v. Panhandle Bank, 75 T. 254, 11 S. W. 1053; Texas L. & C. Co. v. Carroll, 63 T. 48.

A payee suing on the note in his possession showing his own indorsement has the right to have his indorsement stricken out. Anderson v. Milburn Wagon Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 603.

22. Indorsement without recourse.—An indorsement without recourse by the payee of notes secured by a chattel mortgage passes the ownership of the notes and the lien to the indorsee without any liability or guaranty of the payment of the notes on the part of the indorser. Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

23. Discharge of indorser.—See notes under Title 109.

24. Forged indorsement.—A forged indorsement does not pass title to commercial paper negotiable only by indorsement. Rolling v. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 302.

Express company paying money orders on plaintiff's forged indorsement held liable to plaintiff for the amount so paid. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Bilkiss (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 798.

A holder of a note on discovering that it was forged must give his transferror notice thereof within a reasonable time. Gardner v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 273.

A transferror of an interest in a forged note was not released from liability to the transferree on discovery of the forgery, because the transferee failed to return the note to him, where it had remained in the custody of one of the payees. Id.

25. Accommodation indorsement.—An accommodation indorser may withdraw his indorsement at any time before the note passes to innocent third parties. Markowitz v. Greenwall Theatrical Circuit Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 74, 317.

"Accommodation indorsement" defined. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 833.

26. Indorsement in blank.—By indorsement in blank, a bill or note payable to order becomes transferable by delivery. Hansborough v. Towns, 1 T. 58; Greneaux v. Wheeler, 6 T. 515; Weathered v. Smith, 9 T. 622, 60 Am. Dec. 186; Whitehed v. McAdams, 18 T. 551; Ross v. Smith, 19 T. 171, 70 Am. Dec. 327; Carter v. Eames, 44 T. 544; Johnson v. Mitchell, 50 T. 212, 32 Am. Rep. 602.

Blanks for names left in a writing may afterwards be filled by express or implied authority (McCown v. Wheeler, 20 T. 372; Hollis v. Dashiell, 52 T. 187; Stone v. Brown, 54 T. 330); and the power so conferred is a power coupled with an interest and is irrevocable. Threadgill v. Butler, 60 T. 599.

An indorsement in blank of a note is prima facie evidence of the holder's right to sue, and can be rebutted only by proof of mala fides. Jones v. Butler (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 367.

Indorsement on a note in blank gives the holder an absolute right of action thereon. Keller v. Alexander, 24 C. A. 186, 58 S. W. 637.

The holder of a note indorsed in blank is presumed to be the owner thereof. Myrick Bros. Co. v. Jackson, 44 C. A. 553, 99 S. W. 143.

By the law merchant, an indorsement of a check in blank for collection when passed to the credit of the drawee and drawn against by him amounts to a transfer of the legal title to the fund against which the check is drawn. Vaughn v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank of Alvord (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 690.

Indorsement of a note in blank not only transfers the title, but also constitutes an agreement on the part of the indorser to pay the note to the indorsee or holder, if not paid at maturity by the maker, when duly presented for payment on due and reasonable notice given to such indorser of its nonpayment by the maker. Walcott v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 981.

27. Liability of guarantor.—The guarantor of a note becomes absolutely responsible on its nonpayment. Shropshire v. Smith (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 174.

28. Judgment over against maker or payee.—In an action by the indorsers of a note against the makers to recover the amount of the note which the indorsers had been compelled to pay, charge to find for plaintiffs for respective amounts paid by them, with interest, held proper. Sheldon Canal Co. v. Miller, 40 C. A. 460, 90 S. W. 206.

A bank, other than the drawee bank, cashing check drawn on a special deposit, was entitled to recover the amount thereof from the maker and payee; the deposit having been garnished by the maker's creditors while in the hands of the bank with which it was deposited. Elliott v. First State Bank of Ft. Stockton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 159.

A purchaser of land deposited a sum of money in a bank to be checked in payment of the land and drew a check for the amount, which was cashed by another bank, but the amount of the deposit was garnished as money belonging to the vendor before the check was paid. Held, that the purchaser would be entitled to judgment over against the vendor for any amount he was compelled to pay to the bank cashing the check. Id.

The rule permitting judgment over against the maker in favor of the indorser, where the latter is compelled to pay an indorsed check, does not authorize a judgment over against the purchaser of land who gave a check on a special deposit made in his name for the purpose of paying for the land, which was afterward garnished in favor of the seller, upon rendition of judgment against him in favor of the bank cashing the check, the seller already being the equitable owner of the amount deposited. Id.

28½. Construction in general.—Two or more writings executed contemporaneously between the same parties, with reference to the same subject-matter, will be construed as one instrument. Thus, a conveyance of land by A. to B., and a note for the purchase money secured by a mortgage on the same land from B. to A., will be construed as a contract of sale, and not complete until the purchase money has been paid, and if the purchase price is not paid the superior title remains with the vendor. Dunlap v. Wright, 11 T. 597, 62 Am. Dec. 506; Robertson v. Paul, 16 T. 472; Ballard v. Anderson, 18 T. 377; Secrest v. Jones, 21 T. 121; Eppinger v. McGreal, 31 T. 147; Baker v. Clepper, 26 T. 629, 84 Am. Dec. 591; Cannon v. McDaniel, 46 T. 303; Burgess v. Millican, 50 T. 397; Ufford v. Wells, 52 T. 612. And so, where a note is given, and the vendor's lien is reserved in the deed, both instruments being construed together, the superior title remains in the vendor until payment is made. Monroe v. Buchanan, 27 T. 241; Baker v. Ramey, 27 T. 52; Webster v. Mann, 52 T. 416; Ufford v. Wells, 52 T. 612. But if the conveyance is absolute, and no lien is retained, the title passes, although the purchase money is unpaid. Pitschke v. Anderson, 49 T. 1.

A. conveyed to B. certain property for the alleged consideration of $10,000 acknowledging the assumption of certain debts therein specified as part of the consideration. Appended to the bill of sale was an agreement of B. to do certain things, and also to pay certain debts of A. and all other just debts then owing by A., not enumerated in the foregoing paper, if not barred when presented for payment. Held, that the two writings were to be considered together as parts of one instrument, and their effect was to charge the property with the payment of the debts named, and a suit to enforce the trust against the property was well brought. Wallis v. Beauchamp, 15 T. 303.

Below the signature of the maker of a note was a memorandum as follows: "If not punctually paid when due to draw 10 per cent. interest." In the absence of a plea of non est factum the memorandum was authenticated by the signature preceding it, and the two writings formed parts of one instrument. Prince v. Thompson, 21 T. 480. A. executed to B. a note for land, and also a mortgage to secure its payment. After A.'s signature to the mortgage was a memorandum obligating B. not to demand payment of the note until the happening of a certain event, but the memorandum was not signed by B. Held, that the agreement, note and mortgage were not affected by the unsigned memorandum appended to the mortgage. Alexander v. Baylor, 20 T. 560.

A. conveyed to B. a certain tract of land by a deed in the usual form, reciting a consideration and conveying the title. On the same day A. and B. entered into an agreement by which B. agreed to reconvey the land to A. on certain conditions, and the question was whether the latter instrument was a mortgage or conditional sale. Held that, for the purpose of determining this question, both instruments should be read together in the light of surrounding circumstances. Ruffier v. Womack, 30 T. 332. And see Boatright v. Peck, 33 T. 68; Walker v. McDonald, 49 T. 458; Alstin v. Cundiff, 52 T. 453.

Any memorandum or agreement of the parties written across the face or on the back of an instrument contemporaneously with its execution, and intended by them to constitute a part of the contract, is a substantive part of such instrument, and limits and qualifies it in the same manner as if inserted in the body of the instrument itself, and, with it, constitutes a single contract. Goldman v. Blum, 58 T. 630.

In an action of trespass to try title, A. claimed the land through a judgment in his favor against D., execution thereon, and sheriff's sale and deed. B. claimed the land under a prior conveyance from D., and a written undertaking of the same date by B., in which was a recital that the land had been transferred to him in trust for the payment of certain named debts, etc. The two instruments were construed together and held to constitute an assignment for the benefit of creditors, and as such was held to be void on account of a provision in the defeasance which conferred upon the assignee power to declare future preferences. Moody v. Paschal, 60 T. 483.

In an agreement between parties consisting of several distinct clauses or stipulations, there was an apparent conflict between the second and fifth clauses. Held, that the instrument must be so construed as to give effect to all of the stipulations if possible, and the apparent construction must yield to such a construction as can be given to both when read together to make both operate. Hearne v. Gillett, 62 T. 23.

A false description in a contract should be rejected as superfluous if the subject-matter of the contract is otherwise clearly identified by a clause in the instrument construed in the light of surrounding circumstances. Arambula v. Sullivan, 80 T. 615, 16 S. W. 436.

29. Construction as to parties—Joint or several.—The maker of a note held liable thereon, notwithstanding representations by a co-maker, who was also the president of the bank to which the note was given.—National Bank of Cleburne v. Carper, 28 C. A. 334, 67 S. W. 188.

The drawer and acceptor of a draft are jointly liable to the holder in case of nonpayment. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

Where a vendor's lien note stated that "we or either of us promise to pay," etc., the liability of the four makers was joint and several, though the conveyance, a part of the consideration of which was represented by the note, stated that the cash payment was made in the proportions of one-fourth, one-third, one-sixth, and one-fourth, and that the amounts to be paid on the note were in the same proportions. Dolinski v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 276.

30. —— Principals, sureties, or guarantors.—A person, not the payee, signing his name on the back of a note is prima facie liable as an original promisor, surety or guarantor. Cook v. Southwick, 9 T. 615, 60 Am. Dec. 181; Carr v. Rowland, 14 T. 275; Chandler v. Westfall, 30 T. 475; Harrison v. Sheirburn, 36 T. 73; Hueske v. Broussard, 55 T. 201; Rice v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1023; Beissner v. Weekes, 21 C. A. 14, 50 S. W. 138.

Indorsers distinguished from sureties. Texas Saving Loan Ass'n v. Smith (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 380.

One who appears to be a joint maker of a note is not entitled to the rights of a surety, though he signs as such, as against an indorsee before maturity without notice. Behrns v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 419.

Where surety signed note with notice to payee's agent that another was to sign it, and the other does not, the first is not liable. Carleton v. Cowart (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 749.

A recital upon the face of a check, payable to a third person, that it is given for payment of plaintiff's note, does not of itself charge plaintiff with the amount of the check. Sheldon Canal Co. v. Miller, 40 C. A. 460, 90 S. W. 206.

One of two co-makers of certain notes held liable for the entire debt, though his coobligor had been released by the holder's agreement not to sue her on the notes. Will A. Watkin Music Co. v. Basham, 48 C. A. 505, 106 S. W. 734.

In an action on indorsements on notes, binding the indorser to pay the notes on demand, he may not be held liable as a guarantor. Clymer v. Terry, 50 C. A. 300, 109 S. W. 1129.

Where a note is executed by two persons whereby they jointly and severally promise to pay a sum specified, and one signs it as an accommodation to the other, he is liable as a maker, and not a surety, so far as the payee of the note is concerned. Trabue v. Cook (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 455.

Where a debtor proposed to pay his debt by a note of a third person indebted to the debtor, and the creditor agreed, providing two persons signed the note with the third person, and the creditor on seeing the note signed by the third person and another required the debtor to get another signer, which was done, the creditor was estopped from asserting that he did not know that the two persons who signed with the third person were sureties only. Jackson v. Rollins (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 681.

The material difference between "guaranty" and "indorsement" of a note as referable to the original payee is as to the extent of liability when measured by the diligence due from the creditor, in order to charge the guarantor or indorser; both being agreements to pay the note. Walcott v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 981.

As between the makers, the question who of them is principal and surety is determined by ascertaining who receives the consideration for the note. First Nat. Bank v. Rusk Pure Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 89.

That some of the signers of a note were stockholders in the company which was the principal maker held not to prevent them from claiming the rights of sureties. Id.

One not a mere indorser, but an original promisor, is not entitled to the strict rights of a mere indorser or surety. Jones v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 395.

The payee of notes secured by a chattel mortgage who indorses them without recourse to one who takes them upon the faith of his fraudulent and false representations as to the financial responsibility of the makers, and that the mortgaged property was insured, is not liable as a guarantor in the indorsee's suit on the notes and to enforce the lien. Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

One who signs his name on the back of a note, unaccompanied by any words expressing the nature of his undertaking, is as to an indorsee before maturity for value, and without notice, a surety. Erwin v. E. I. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

Where a surety signed a note as maker under an agreement that he should be bound only on condition that a third person signed the note with him, and the third person signed his name on the back of the note without any words expressing the character of his undertaking, and the two made no contract between themselves, they were as between themselves sureties. Id.

31. Accommodation parties.—One who appears as sole maker cannot urge that he is an accommodation maker, and that his principal has not been, and is not, sued. Southern Building & Loan Ass'n v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 320.

32. —— Relation to other makers.—Maker of accommodation note held released, where indorser, with knowledge of the facts, releases payee of note. King v. Parks, 26 C. A. 95, 63 S. W. 900.

Accommodation makers of a note are, as between the parties, sureties. First State Bank of Teague v. Hare (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 501.

Where an accommodation maker delivered a note to the principal maker to enable him to obtain a loan, he made the principal maker his agent to deliver the note to the payee to obtain the loan; but the agency could be revoked at any time before the payee paid the money or anything of value to the principal maker. Id.

The revocation of agency created by an accommodation maker delivering the note to the principal maker to enable him to obtain money thereon may be accomplished either by the accommodation maker erasing his name from the note or by notifying the payee that he does not desire to be bound. Id.

An accommodated party cannot sue or recover from an accommodation party. Central Bank & Trust Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 700.

33. —— Liability.—Where note was made for purposes of sale, accommodation maker became bound to the holder of the note, though he may have known of its accommodation character at the time he took it. King v. Parks, 26 C. A. 95, 63 S. W. 900.

Persons discounting a note made to be discounted, on the payee refusing to do so, held entitled to recover of the accommodation maker. Bull v. Latimer & Helm (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 252.

That the holder of a bill knows when he procures it, or when accepted, that the drawee accepts it as an accommodation does not affect the latter's liability to him. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 151.

If the makers of a note agree when the loan is made that all shall be primarily liable, the payee may hold all parties as principals, though some of them were accommodation signers. First Nat. Bank v. Rusk Pure Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 89.

The signer can claim the rights of a surety as against the payee, if the payee knew when the note was executed and the loan was made that such signer was an accommodation signer. Id.

Accommodation makers of a note being sureties as between the parties, the judgment in an action on the note must be so framed that the execution shall first run against the property of the principal maker. First State Bank of Teague v. Hare (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 501.

34. Pledges.—See notes under Title 103.

35. Collateral agreements.—The payee of a note, agreeing, on transfer, to be liable as joint maker, held not discharged by transferee taking a new note of original maker. Bexar Building & Loan Ass'n v. Lockwood (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 253.

Where a note was given in part payment for goods, under an agreement that the seller should secure the buyer credit to continue business, the maker, to defeat its collection on the seller's breach, need not offer to return the goods, if the business was prudently managed and they were lost without his fault. McCardell v. Henry, 23 C. A. 383, 57 S. W. 908.

In an action on a note, an agreement that the payee would furnish the maker with such sums as he might need to enable him to properly conduct his business, held properly excluded; no facts being given which could form a basis for determining what sum would be required. Bailey v. Rockwall County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 530.

An agreement under which promissory notes were deposited with a third person construed, and held, that payee was entitled to their possession. Hodo v. Leeman, 27 C. A. 204, 65 S. W. 381.

An obligation evidenced by a note and letter to payees inclosing the same held one to pay the note when maker was able to do so. Glass v. Adoue & Lobit, 39 C. A. 21, 86 S. W. 798.

The taking by a creditor of a note from one who has assumed the debt held not a novation, releasing the old debtor, in the absence of an agreement to this effect. M. Gimble & Sons v. King, 43 C. A. 188, 95 S. W. 7.

A note and an instrument creating a lien to secure payment constitute one contract, and must be construed together. Fuller v. Pryor, 57 C. A. 425, 122 S. W. 418.

Where a note sued on was given for an advancement made by plaintiff to defendant to enable him to perform a house-moving contract, and was an unconditional promise to pay the amount advanced on January 1, 1909, and the written contract made contemporaneously with the execution of the note contained no stipulation at variance with that agreement, a contention that, because the note provided that it was subject to the terms of the contract, which contained no stipulation that the note should be payable according to its terms if defendant failed to comply with the contract, it was an obligation only to secure the forfeiture specified for nonperformance and not an unconditional promise to pay, was untenable. Hedges v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 592.

36. —— Additional indorsements.—A signer of a note on the agreement that it should not be binding until he procure the signatures of others held liable where he delivered the note without procuring the signatures, and the note was accepted. McGregor v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 398.

Where plaintiff sold land to a third party relying on defendant's written agreement to indorse one of the purchase-money notes, and, after the sale was consummated, defendant refused to indorse, plaintiff owed no duty to defendant to endeavor to obtain another indorser in his stead. Levy v. Wagner, 29 C. A. 98, 69 S. W. 112.

Where a sale of land on credit was induced and consummated in reliance on the written agreement of a third person to indorse one of the purchase-money notes, the liability of such person under the agreement after his refusal to indorse the note was the same as though he had indorsed. Id.

37. —— Security.—Where defendant conveyed mortgaged premises in consideration for lots, giving vendor's lien note to his grantee, which was to be canceled if the maker paid the mortgage, and after foreclosure defendant purchased the premises for the amount of the mortgage, such payment to the mortgagee, held not a defense to the note. Keller v. Alexander, 24 C. A. 186, 58 S. W. 637.

A chattel mortgage executed as part of the same transaction with the notes secured thereby held to authorize action on the note whenever the payee, with reasonable grounds, felt himself unsafe. Warren v. Osborne (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 851.

38. Extension and agreements to extend.—After the maturity of a note, the payee may sue at any time, in the absence of an agreement to extend the time of payment for any definite period. Caskey v. Douglas (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 562.

39. —— Sufficiency.—The extension of a note from December 1, 1897, until the next fall, was sufficiently definite to extend it at least until September 1, 1898. Robson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 83.

Evidence in a suit on notes held sufficient to establish an extension of time. Bitter v. Butchers' & Saloon Men's Ice Mfg. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 423.

A forbearance to sue on a note, in the absence of an agreement by the payee not to do so, does not amount to an extension of time for payment of the note. Guerguin v. Boone, 33 C. A. 622, 77 S. W. 630.

In an action on a note, evidence held not to show an agreement to definitely extend the time of payment. Caskey v. Douglas (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 562.

Where the payee of a note maturing January 1, 1908, wrote to the maker in November, 1907, that he would extend the time of payment for a year if interest was paid when due, but interest was not paid until about three months after maturity, there was no binding agreement excluding the time for payment. City Loan & Trust Co. v. Sterner, 57 C. A. 517, 124 S. W. 207.

Agreement to extend time of payment of notes on condition that the payees give satisfactory security held not an actual extension, where the payees, though agreeing to the condition, failed to comply with it. G. M. & J. W. Magill v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 184.

40. —— Effect.—An agreement to extend a note on payment of interest and the execution of a new note and trust deed held not binding where the new note and trust deed were not given. Tunstall v. Clifton (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 244.

In an action on a note, an agreement that the payee would credit a debt due the maker so soon as the amount due on the note is reduced to the amount due on the debt held properly excluded; the maker not showing that he had paid the note down to that point. Bailey v. Rockwall County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 530.

One who renewed an old note, knowing that the holder was trying to collect it, held to have waived his defense as against the old note. National Bank of Cleburne v. Carper, 28 C. A. 334, 67 S. W. 188.

An agreement extending the payment of certain notes held not to postpone the maturity thereof indefinitely, nor prevent the holders from establishing against the maker's estate. Dashiell v. W. L. Moody & Co., 44 C. A. 87, 97 S. W. 843.

That the payee of a note did not intend to keep a promise to renew is not shown by his mere nonperformance of the promise. Beaumont Carriage Co. v. Price & Johnson (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 499.

Where a note signed by a principal and accommodation makers stipulated that an extension might be made without the consent of the accommodation makers, an extension without their consent did not release them from their liability as sureties. First State Bank of Teague v. Hare (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 501.

41. Interest.—See notes under Title 72.

42. Defenses against payee.—Transfer by attorney of half interest in note held for collection under agreement for half of proceeds collected, after death of client, held no defense in action for full amount. Gray v. Cooper, 23 C. A. 3, 56 S. W. 105.

Instruction as to defendant's liability on a promissory note after rescission of the conveyance for which it was given and agreement to cancel, but subsequently indorsed in blank to plaintiff, either as collateral or in payment of a preceding debt owing by defendant, who also signed the notes as maker with the proposed purchaser, held erroneous. Jackson v. Dupree (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 606.

The right to sue the buyer on a note for the price is not affected because, after the maturity of the note, the seller executed, without consideration and when he had no title, a bill of sale of the goods to the indorser at the latter's request. Ketterson v. Inscho, 55 C. A. 150, 118 S. W. 626.

If the execution of a note by the vice president of the corporation and its guaranty by the corporation through him was for its benefit, subsequent entries on the corporate books as to the nature of the transaction could not affect the rights of the parties. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co., 104 T. 576, 140 S. W. 770, 141 S. W. 515.

It was a good defense to an action on a note that it was given for machinery in the possession of a railroad company which plaintiff was to deliver and which defendant was to try to sell, that the note was not to become binding unless he did sell it, and that plaintiff failed to pay the freight and deliver the machine. Williams v. Walter A. Wood Mowing & Reaping Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 366.

43. Payment, tender, or release.—When a note is payable in specific articles the debtor must make a tender at the time and place specified. If no place is specified the creditor, on request, must designate the place. If no time or place is specified the debtor must make a tender within a reasonable time, and at the place where the property was at the date of the contract, unless circumstances indicate a different place. On a proper tender the debt is discharged and the property passes to the creditor. If payment or tender of payment is not made in accordance with the terms of the contract, the debt must be discharged in money. Fleming v. Nall, 1 T. 246; Dunman v. Strother, 1 T. 89, 46 Am. Dec. 97; Chevallier v. Buford, 1 T. 503; Ward v. Lattimer, 2 T. 245; Baker v. Todd, 6 T. 273, 55 Am. Dec. 775; Dumas v. Hardwick, 19 T. 238; Blount v. Ralston, 20 T. 132; Trammell v. Pilgrim, 20 T. 158; Deel v. Berry, 21 T. 463, 73 Am. Dec. 236; Smith v. Falwell, 21 T. 466; Self v. King, 28 T. 552; Atterberry v. Biggerstaff, 36 T. 177; Williams v. Arnis, 30 T. 37; Burleson v. Grant, 36 T. 60; Grant v. Burleson, 38 T. 214; Duble v. Batts, 38 T. 312; Short v. Abernathy, 42 T. 94; Day v. Cross, 59 T. 595.

Penalty for non-payment at maturity not evaded without a tender or its equivalent. Proof that the note was not at the place of payment at maturity is not sufficient without showing readiness and ability to pay. Hermes v. Vaughn, 22 S. W. 189, 817, 3 C. A. 607.

Payment of a note before maturity may be refused. Burns v. True, 24 S. W. 338, 5 C. A. 74.

Credits on a note should be applied as they accrued, or they should bear the same rate of interest as the note. Hilliard v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 914.

As to release of one obligor of a joint and several note, see Elgin City Banking Co. v. Self (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 953.

Where a note is payable in other notes acceptable to the payee, the statement by the payee that he will accept the notes, if the indorsee is willing, held, under the evidence, not sufficient to show that the notes were satisfactory to the payee. Ellis v. Randle, 24 C. A. 475, 60 S. W. 462.

Payment of unindorsed note to one in possession thereof held good. Higley v. Dennis, 40 C. A. 133, 88 S. W. 400.

Payment of a note by the maker to the payee held not to have discharged it as against an indorsee. Staff v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 1089.

The payment by one of three makers of a joint and several note of a third of the amount thereof does not release him from his joint and several liability for the balance due. Alston v. Orr (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 234.

An exchange of checks at the clearing house in order to settle the indebtedness to the clearing house of a bank receiving a check for collection and the drawee bank held not to amount to a payment of the check. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 551.

Facts held to constitute payment of a draft and a receipt of the proceeds by the bank in which it was deposited. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

Payment of negotiable vendor's lien notes to the payee and the payee's release held not available to defeat an action by the pledgee, who had possession of the notes at the time of payment. Lane v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 307.

44. —— Application of payments.—Where a note was given to secure a line of credit, on an agreement that the first moneys paid on account should be applied on the note, held that, on an issue as to the payment of the note, it was immaterial whether payments on account had been actually applied by the payee on the note. Merrick v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 801.

Where, in an action on a note, defendants pleaded payment, an instruction that, if a remittance without instructions was applied on another indebtedness, it could not be considered as a payment on the note sued on, held improperly refused. Eastham v. Patty & Brockington, 37 C. A. 336, 83 S. W. 885.

45. —— Recovery of payments made.—A mistaken payment of a forged draft held not recoverable. Moody v. First Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 278, 46 S. W. 660.

Where, at the time a draft was paid by the drawee to a bank for whose benefit it was drawn, the bank had knowledge that conditions imposed by the drawee would not be complied with by the drawer, it is liable to the drawee for the amount so paid. Ketelsen v. Groos, 21 C. A. 31, 50 S. W. 591.

A bank, having agreed to pay to defendant C.'s draft "for cattle," held entitled to recover from defendant as for money had and received a sum included in a draft in favor of defendant which was not for cattle. First State Bank v. McGaughey, 38 C. A. 495, 86 S. W. 55.

Knowledge that a note, which was paid with an attorney's fees and costs, was not due when paid, held to preclude an action for such fees and costs on the ground of misrepresentation as to an extension of the note. Collins v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 122.

The fact that a note was stamped "Paid" by a bank does not destroy the liability of the maker where he has not paid it. McShan v. Watlington (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 722.

One delivering a check to a broker to be used as a part of the price for land, if he decided to purchase it, or to be returned, if he did not decide to purchase, held entitled to recover from the owner the proceeds thereof received by him from the broker, on deciding not to purchase, whether the broker was the agent of plaintiff or the owner. Scott v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 336.

46. —— Agreement to pay note.—The makers of a note, liable therefor under judgment recovered by the payee, may maintain an action against defendants for failure to pay the note according to agreement, without showing that the judgment has been paid. Tinsley v. McIlhenny, 30 C. A. 352, 70 S. W. 793.

47. —— Evidence.—Preferential payment of a note by a bankrupt held not to extinguish the note either as to the bankrupt's indorser or sureties. Hooker v. Blount, 44 C. A. 162, 97 S. W. 1083.

Evidence, in an action on a note wherein defendants pleaded a tender of payment conditioned upon a release of the liens of that note and another, held sufficient to sustain a finding that the note sued on was given in lieu of the other note. Stevens v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 791.

Certain proof held to prima facie show that a note had been paid by the maker. Gray v. Tribue (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 808.

In an action on a note, evidence held not to show a release. Woods v. Warren (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 293.

In an action on a note executed by a corporation to its president for money advanced, evidence held to require a finding that the note was paid by a check drawn on the corporation's account by the president in favor of another, the proceeds of which were delivered to such president. Del Rio Water Co. v. Griner (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1005.

Evidence held to show that an indorser, in executing and delivering a note to the obligee, did not intend to discharge the notes on which it was liable as indorser, but intended that they should remain as collateral security. Johnston v. Branch Banking Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 193.

48. Contribution.—An agreement by one of several joint and several obligors in a note to hold one of the signers harmless, to induce him to sign, does not defeat his right of contribution from the others. Murphy v. Gage (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 396.

49. —— Sureties.—See notes under Title 109.

When one of several obligors discharges a contract, or pays more than his proportion, the others will contribute equally to indemnify him for a payment in excess of his proportional part. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. McAnulty, 89 T. 124, 33 S. W. 963.

50. Attorney's fees—Right in general.—As to stipulation to pay attorney's fees, see Roberts v. Palmore, 41 T. 617; Miner v. Paris Exchange Bank, 53 T. 559.

A payee of notes held not precluded from recovering attorney's fees on the notes by defendant's claim against him for a conversion. Norwood v. Inter-State Nat. Bank, 92 T. 268, 48 S. W. 3.

Holder of certain notes held entitled to enforce a provision for attorney's fees, suit having been begun for the collection of the notes, though the maker was ready to pay on demand. Dieter v. Bowers, 37 C. A. 615, 84 S. W. 847.

Plaintiff held entitled to attorney's fees. Ellis v. National City Bank of Waco, 42 C. A. 83, 94 S. W. 437; Dashiell v. W. L. Moody & Co., 44 C. A. 87, 97 S. W. 843; Rutherford v. Gaines (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 866; Harfst v. State Bank of El Campo, 56 C. A. 31, 119 S. W. 694; Tomlinson v. H. P. Drought & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 262; Lanier v. Jones, 104 T. 247, 136 S. W. 255; Miller v. Gaar-Scott & Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1053; Astin v. Mosteller (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 701; Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 209.

Plaintiff held not entitled to recover stipulated attorney's fees. Le Tulle Mercantile Co. v. Rugely (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 438; Haynes v. Halverton, 51 C. A. 228, 111 S. W. 166; Adoue v. Kirby, 52 C. A. 623, 114 S. W. 163.

Plaintiff held entitled to recover 10 per cent. attorney's fees stipulated for in the notes of a corporation pledged to plaintiff as collateral security to notes, as well as attorney's fees stipulated for in the notes of the principal debtor, though a receiver was afterward appointed for both corporations, and that some of the collateral notes were not due when the receiver was appointed was immaterial. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. I. Campbell Co., 52 C. A. 445, 114 S. W. 887.

Where the holder agrees not to deliver notes to an attorney for collection if notified by 11 a. m. of the maker's readiness to pay, a notice not received till 12 m. does not comply with the understanding. Honaker v. Jones (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 649.

A notice over the telephone of a readiness to pay notes required to avoid a liability for attorney's fees held insufficient. Id.

Where renewals are indorsed on notes, failure of the new promise to stipulate to pay attorney's fees as originally provided held not to destroy that provision. Id.

The mere clerical error of omitting the pronoun "I" in the blank space of a printed note providing for an attorney's fee is immaterial in an action on the note. Rutherford v. Gaines (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 866.

A right to recover attorney's fees claimed in a petition in an action on notes will be treated as waived on appeal, where plaintiff requested that judgment be rendered on appeal for it pursuant to the mandate of the supreme court, and no evidence was introduced to support the allegation as to attorney's fees. State Bank of Chicago v. Holland (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 435.

Where a holder of a note impliedly agrees to negotiate with the payee and requests him to furnish information in regard to a claim of shortage in land for which the note was given, he therein is not estopped to claim the attorney's fees specified without notice that the negotiations are closed and demand for payment, where no bad faith, fraud, or mistake was alleged. Astin v. Mosteller (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 495.

51. —— Nature of claim.—A stipulation in a note for attorney's fees for collection held a contract for indemnity, and not stipulated damages, so that the maker is liable only for fees actually contracted to be paid to the attorney, or for the reasonable value of his services. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. I. Campbell Co., 52 C. A. 445, 114 S. W. 887; Reed v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 864; Hassell v. Steinmann (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 948; First Nat. Bank v. Robinson, 104 T. 166, 135 S. W. 372; Brown v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 950.

A stipulation in a note for attorney's fees in the event of a suit thereon held not a mere contract for indemnity but to bind the maker to pay such attorney's fees, in the absence of plea and proof that the amount is unreasonable. Beckham v. Scott (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 80.

52. —— Against whom recoverable.—Conditional payment by sureties on note of attorney's fees provided therein held not a bar to an enforcement thereof against the maker. Sinclair v. Weekes (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 107.

Attorneys' fees provided for in note in case of collection by suit may be recovered against the payee in an action by an indorsee. Smith v. Richardson Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 386.

A purchaser, electing to pay for the land sought to be recovered by the vendor in trespass to try title, held required to pay the attorney's fees stipulated for in the purchase-money notes. Moore v. Brown (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 310.

One who agreed to pay debt of maker to payees of note held liable for attorney's fees provided for therein. Trabue v. Wade & Miller (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 616.

53. —— Placing with attorney for collection.—Petition must allege that note was placed in attorney's hands for collection, in order that judgment by default can include attorney's fees, as stipulated. Smith v. Board, 21 C. A. 213, 51 S. W. 520.

Where a note provided for an attorney's fee of 10 per cent., should "judicial proceedings" be used in collecting it, such fee was not collectible on payment of the note by an assignee for benefit of creditors. Briam v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 572.

Evidence held not sufficient to show that a note stipulating for attorney's fees was deposited with attorneys for collection, so as to require payment of the attorney's fees. Hall v. Read, 28 C. A. 18, 66 S. W. 809.

Plaintiff held not shown to have placed the note sued on in the hands of attorneys for collection, so as to be entitled to the collection fee stipulated in such case. Ashburn v. Evans (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 242.

Where a note called for attorney's fees, a judgment therefor was not authorized where it was not alleged that the note was placed in the hands of the attorney for collection. Branch v. Taylor, 40 C. A. 248, 89 S. W. 813.

Holders of a promissory note held entitled to the payment of attorney's fees on the note being placed in an attorney's hands for collection. Jungbecker v. Huber (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 552.

In an action on a note providing for attorney's fees, the holder must allege and prove that the note was placed in the hands of an attorney for collection or suit, and the contract price of the attorney's services, or the reasonable value thereof. O'Connell v. Rugely, 48 C. A. 456, 107 S. W. 151.

Where a note stipulated for the payment of attorney's fees if it was placed in the hands of an attorney for collection on nonpayment, when it was given to an attorney for collection, the attorney's fees became a part of the debt. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. I. Campbell Co., 52 C. A. 445, 114 S. W. 887.

To justify the recovery of attorney's fees in an action on a note, held necessary to allege and prove that the note had been placed in the hands of an attorney for collection. Smith v. Childs (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 598.

54. —— Bringing suit.—A petition alleging that the note sued on was not paid at maturity, thereby entitling the holder to attorney's fees, held sufficient, without alleging that suit was brought on the note. Harris v. Scrivener (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 705.

Plaintiff in an action on a note held entitled to judgment for attorney's fees, as stipulated for therein, on bringing suit thereon, though his petition failed to allege the bringing of the suit. McAnally v. Vickry (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 857.

A cross-bill claiming an allowance for the amount due on certain notes for attorney's fees filed after maturity of the notes, held a suit brought thereon entitling defendant to attorney's fees. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Nicolini (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 84.

In an action on a note, held not necessary to allege or prove the bringing of an action thereon to include attorney's fees in the judgment. Adams v. Bartell, 46 C. A. 349, 102 S. W. 779.

A holder of a note, stipulating for attorney's fees in case suit is instituted thereon, held required to allege and prove certain facts in order to recover attorney's fees. Young v. State Bank of Marshall, 54 C. A. 206, 117 S. W. 476.

Where a note sued on provides for a percentage attorney's fee, if placed for collection after maturity or if sued on, it is unnecessary to allege that suit has been brought, that being established by the proceeding itself. Smith v. Norton (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 733.

Where it has been proved that plaintiff had employed attorneys to prosecute a suit on a note stipulating for attorney's fees to be paid by the maker, an agreement to pay reasonable compensation for their services would be implied without further proof of the fact. Rider v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 905.

55. —— Payment to, or agreement with, attorney.—Where a note provides for the payment of attorney's fees, they may be recovered, whether the payee has already paid them or not. Sinclair v. Weekes (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 107.

In an action against a surety on notes providing for a certain attorney's fee in case of collection, plaintiff held bound to allege either that he has paid or contracted to pay his attorneys the sum stipulated in the notes, or that such sum was a reasonable compensation for the service performed. Bolton v. G. C. Gifford & Co., 45 C. A. 140, 100 S. W. 210; Sorrel v. Same (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 212; Seeligson v. Same, Id. 213.

In an action on a note, in which plaintiff seeks to recover attorney's fees as stipulated therein, plaintiff need not allege that the contract with his attorney to collect the note was made in reliance on the stipulation, and that the maker is estopped to contest the reasonableness of the fee agreed upon. Frantz v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 740.

An allegation in a petition that the note sued on was placed in the hands of certain attorneys for collection; that action was brought thereon and plaintiff had incurred a liability on account thereof of the full amount of 10 per cent. on the principal and interest which was a reasonable charge, was sufficient, in the absence of a special exception, to obviate an objection that the petition did not sufficiently allege that plaintiff had contracted with its attorneys to give them such an amount for their services in collecting the note. Rider v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 905.

Where a note stipulates for a recovery of 10 per cent. for attorney's fees, if not paid when due, an allegation that it was placed by the plaintiff "in the hands of an attorney for collection, and he agreed to give said attorney said 10 per cent. as specified in the amount for services rendered and to be rendered in the collection of the same," with proof that the note was given to the attorney for collection, but without proof that he agreed to give the attorney 10 per cent., is sufficient to permit a recovery of the stipulated fees. First Nat. Bank v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1115.

In an action on notes providing for 10 per cent. attorney's fees for collection, plaintiff could show that he agreed to give his attorney such fees for his services. Daniel v. Brewton (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 815.

56. —— Tender to avoid.—An offer to pay the amount of a bond before suit held not a legal tender, so as to prevent the recovery of an attorney's fee by the obligee, under the provisions of the bond. Rogers v. People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 383.

Where the maker of a note offered to the payee to settle all differences, such offer held not a tender of payment which would relieve the maker of liability for attorney's fees. Greenhill v. Hunton (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 440.

A tender by sureties on promissory notes providing for an attorney's fee in case the notes are placed in an attorney's hands for collection, and so placed for collection, must include principal, interest, and a reasonable sum for attorney's fees. Bolton v. G. C. Gifford & Co., 45 C. A. 140, 100 S. W. 210; Sorrel v. Same (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 212; Seeligson v. Same, Id. 213.

The fact that the holder of notes providing for an attorney's fee in case the notes were placed in an attorney's hands for collection, made an excessive demand on the sureties thereon, did not excuse the latter from tendering the correct amount due. Id.

57. —— Amount.—Attorney's fees held collectible for the entire amount of note, though a part had been realized by sale of collateral after commencement of suit. McIlhenny v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 282.

In an action on a note which stipulates for interest and 10 per cent. attorney's fees, it is proper to render judgment for 10 per cent. of both principal and interest as attorney's fees. Carver v. J. S. Mayfield Lumber Co., 29 C. A. 434, 68 S. W. 711.

A note stipulating for a collection fee held to authorize a recovery of the fee based on the amount due at the time of the bringing of suit. Walker v. Tomlinson, 44 C. A. 446, 98 S. W. 906.

Where a vendor's lien note provided for 10 per cent. attorney's fees, the holder held entitled to recover 10 per cent. on the amount due and owing on the note at the time he contracted to pay such amount to his attorney. Mosteller v. Astin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1136.

One recovering on a note is not entitled to judgment for an attorney's fee stipulated for in the note, in the absence of a showing that he has paid or contracted to pay a fee, or the reasonable value of his attorney's services. Miller v. West Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 608.

In an action on a note for the balance thereof, after deducting the net amount realized by sale under a trust deed given to secure it, that from the proceeds of the sale the trustees named in the deed of trust paid the attorney as a fee a certain sum, less than 10 per cent. of the sum so collected, was in effect payment by the holder of the note, so as to make its deduction from the amount arising from the sale proper under the provision of the note for payment of 10 per cent. attorney's fee in case of the note being placed in the hands of an attorney for collection. Hassell v. Steinmann (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 948.

Defendant executed two vendor's lien notes for the price of certain real estate stipulating for 10 per cent. attorneys' fees in case suit was brought thereon, and on suit being brought alleged that at the time of the purchase plaintiff represented that certain improvements which were of the value of $2,500 were located on the land, which was not the fact, and prayed an offset to that amount on the notes. The jury returned a verdict finding that improvements of the value of $1,500 had been included in the sale which in fact were not on the land. Held, that plaintiff was not entitled to recover attorneys' fees on the amount of such offset. Ward v. Boydston (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 786.

Where a note stipulates for attorney's fees in the event a suit is brought thereon, held only necessary that suit is brought thereon to entitle the holder to recover the amount called for, in the absence of any effort to show that it is unreasonable. Beckham v. Scott (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 80.

Where notes stipulating for attorney's fees were, after nonpayment at maturity, placed in the hands of an attorney for collection, and judgment was rendered on the notes, the amount of attorney's fees recoverable was the specified per cent. of the amount of principal and interest due at the date of the judgment. Poulter v. Smith (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 279.

58. —— Reasonableness.—Where 10 per cent. was a reasonable attorney's fee, held, that it was immaterial that the regular attorneys of payee received only 10 per cent. on collections. McIlhenny v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 282.

In action on notes, court may determine amount of reasonable attorney's fees without hearing evidence. Burns v. Staacke (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 354.

It is not necessary, in a suit on a note which stipulates for 10 per cent. attorney's fees, to offer evidence that the amount is reasonable. Carver v. J. S. Mayfield Lumber Co., 29 C. A. 434, 68 S. W. 711.

The maker of a note held not entitled to defeat his liability for attorney's fees, stipulated for in the note, on the ground that the amount thereof was unreasonable. Robertson v. Holman, 36 C. A. 31, 81 S. W. 326; Dunovant's Estate v. R. E. Stafford & Co., 36 C. A. 33, 81 S. W. 101.

Where the holder of a note had made no contract with his attorney for collecting it, he was only entitled to recover the reasonable value of his services, though note provided for 10 per cent. attorney's fees. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Robertson, 38 C. A. 521, 85 S. W. 1020.

The maker of a note providing for attorney's fees held only liable for fees actually contracted for between the holder and the attorney or for the reasonable value of his services. O'Connell v. Rugely, 48 C. A. 456, 107 S. W. 151.

Recovery of 10 per cent. attorney's fees in an action on notes is properly allowed, they providing therefor if placed in the hands of an attorney for collection, which was done, and such sum being reasonable. Garza & Co. v. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 906.

Where a note provided that the maker should pay 10 per cent. additional as attorney's fees if placed in the hands of an attorney for collection by suit, such stipulation, while a mere contract of indemnity, could not be defeated, where the holder employs an attorney and contracts to pay the amount stipulated for his services, on the ground that the amount was unreasonable. Mosteller v. Astin (Cr. App.) 129 S. W. 1136.

Where a vendor's lien note provided for the payment of 10 per cent. additional attorney's fees, if placed in the hands of an attorney or collected by suit, and the holder placed the note in the hands of an attorney, who brought suit thereon, and there was neither pleading nor proof of any fraud or bad faith in making the note or the contract with the attorney or in bringing the suit, but there was evidence that the stipulated amount was reasonable, plaintiff was entitled to recover 10 per cent. of whatever amount the jury found was due and owing on the note at the time of making the contract with the attorney. Id.

Where a note contained a stipulation for attorney's fees at a stated percentage, and the owner of the note in good faith agreed with an attorney to pay him such percentage, that amount was recoverable whether it was a reasonable fee or not. Frantz v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 740.

A stipulation in a note for attorney's fees of a specified sum fixes the amount of fees in the absence of plea and proof that the amount is unreasonable. Miller v. Laughlin (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 711.

59. Right of action on note.—Plaintiff held to have no such interest in a note as to entitle him to sue thereon. Hart v. West, 16 C. A. 395, 41 S. W. 183.

Where a note is payable to "H., clerk of the district court," he may sue thereon in his individual capacity. McDonald v. Young (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 885.

Plaintiff having possession and legal title and beneficial interest in vendor's lien note sued on held entitled to sue. Bond v. National Exch. Bank (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 71.

Where a guardian gave his ward's money to plaintiff to loan, plaintiff can maintain an action on the note taken therefor. Sparks v. Coats, 22 C. A. 455, 54 S. W. 913.

The owner and holder of any negotiable instrument may sue in his own name to recover the amount due thereon. O'Connell v. Rugely, 48 C. A. 456, 107 S. W. 152.

That notes sued on bore indorsement of plaintiff held not to affect his right to sue. Bynum v. Hobbs, 56 C. A. 557, 121 S. W. 900.

Defendant, in an action on a note, held estopped to deny the plaintiff's ownership of the note sued upon. Schauer v. Von Schauer (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 145.

The payee of a note, executed in consideration of the maker's indebtedness to a third person, may sue thereon as a legal holder. Woods v. Warren (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 293.

Where, by erasure of indorsements and delivery, plaintiff had legal title to a note, he may maintain an action thereon, though another holds the equitable title. Gray v. Altman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 760.

60. Accrual of cause of action.—A note providing that, on default in interest, the whole note should become due at the option of the owner, permits suit upon the note before it is due. Craighead v. Bruff (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 764.

The holder of certain notes secured by a deed of trust held entitled to sue immediately thereon on the maker's failure to pay one of the interest notes for 60 days after maturity. Dieter v. Bowers, 37 C. A. 615, 84 S. W. 847.

A holder of a series of notes, each providing that on the failure to pay one at maturity the whole series shall mature at the option of the holder, held to show his exercise of the option. Beckham v. Scott (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 80.

A petition, in an action for the collection of a series of vendor's lien notes, held not to show on its face that it was filed before the debt had matured. O'Shields v. Poff (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1044.

Cause of action on a note due October 1st, grace having been waived, held to accrue October 2d. Standard v. Thurmond (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 627.

61. Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

62. Admissibility of evidence and presumptions.—See notes under Title 53.

63. Lost instruments—Indemnity.—In a suit on a note lost before maturity the court may require that indemnity should be given. Wiedenfeld v. Gallagher (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 248.

Where defendants do not appear and ask an indemnity bond in a suit on a lost note, it is not reversible error to render judgment against them without requiring such bond. Murray v. Dallas Homestead & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 604.

The fact that a written transfer of a portion of a fund was lost does not affect its validity or sufficiency. A. A. Fielder Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 605. See also E. T. F. Ins. Co. v. Coffee, 61 T. 287; Clay v. Gage, 1 C. A. 661, 20 S. W. 948; Keithley v. Seydell, 60 T. 78; Scherer v. Upton, 31 T. 617; Murray v. Dallas Homestead & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 604. See, also, notes under Arts. 1103, 3687 et seq., and Pleading.

64. Conversion of note.—In recovering for the conversion of a note owned jointly by plaintiff and defendant, plaintiff's right to recovery held not limited to the note's market value. Morris v. Smith, 51 C. A. 357, 112 S. W. 130.

The ordinary measure of damages for conversion of a negotiable bond is the amount prima facie due on the face of the bond; it being for defendant to prove that the bond is of less value. Kirkpatrick v. San Angelo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 362.

TITLE 17

BLACKLISTING

Article 594. Discrimination.—Either or any of the following acts shall constitute discrimination against persons seeking employment:

1. Where any corporation, or receiver of the same, doing business in this state, or any agent or officer of any such corporation or receiver, shall blacklist, prevent, or attempt to prevent, by word, printing, sign, list or other means, directly or indirectly, any discharged employé, or any employé who may have voluntarily left said corporation's service, from obtaining employment with any other person, company, or corporation, except by truthfully stating in writing, on request of such former employé, the reason why such employé was discharged, or why his relationship to such company ceased.

2. Where any corporation, or receiver of the same, doing business in this state, or any officer or agent of such corporation or receiver shall, by any means, directly or indirectly, communicate to any other person or corporation any information in regard to a person who may seek employment of such person or corporation, and fails to give such person in regard to whom the communication may be made, within ten days after demand therefor, a complete copy of such communication, if in writing, and a true statement thereof if by sign or other means not in writing, and the names and addresses of all persons or corporations to whom said communication shall have been made.

3. Where any corporation, or receiver of the same, doing business in this state, or any agent or employé of such corporation or receiver, shall have discharged an employé, and such employé demands a statement in writing of the cause of his discharge, and such corporation, receiver, agent or employé thereof fails to furnish a true statement of the same to such discharged employé, within ten days after such demand, or where any corporation or receiver of the same, or any officer or agent of such corporation or receiver, shall fail, within ten days after written demand for the same, to furnish to any employé voluntarily leaving the service of such corporation or receiver, a statement in writing that such employé did leave such service voluntarily, or where any corporation or receiver of the same, doing business within this state, shall fail to show in any statement under the provision of this title the number of years and months during which such employé was in the service of the said corporation or receiver in each and every separate capacity or position in which he was employed, and whether his services were satisfactory in each such capacity or not, or where any such corporation or receiver shall fail within ten days after written demand for the same to furnish to any such employé a true copy of the statement originally given to such employé for his use in case he shall have lost or is otherwise deprived of the use of the said original statement.

4. Where any corporation, or receiver of same, doing business in this state, or any agent or officer of the same, shall have received any request, notice or communication, either in writing or otherwise, from any person, company or corporation, preventing, or calculated to prevent, the employment of a person seeking employment, and shall fail to furnish to such person seeking employment, within ten days after a demand in writing therefor, a true statement of such request, notice or communication, and, if in writing, a true copy of same, and, if otherwise than in writing, a true statement thereof, and a true interpretation of its meaning, and the names and addresses of the persons, company or corporation furnishing the same.

5. Where any corporation, or receiver of the same, doing business in this state, or any officer or agent of such corporation or receiver, discharging an employé, shall have failed to give such employé a true statement of the causes of his discharge, within ten days after a demand in writing therefor, and shall thereafter furnish any other person or corporation any statement or communication in regard to such discharge, unless at the request of the discharged employé.

6. Where any corporation, or receiver of same, doing business in this state, or any officer or agent of such corporation or receiver, shall discriminate against any person seeking employment on account of his having participated in a strike.

7. Where any corporation, or receiver of the same, doing business in this state, or any officer or agent of such corporation or receiver, shall give any information or communication in regard to a person seeking employment having participated in any strike, unless such person violated the law during his participation on such strike, or in connection therewith, and unless such information is given in compliance with subdivision 1 of this article. [Acts 1907, p. 142. Acts 1909, p. 160, sec. 1.]

Constitutionality.—This article does not violate the fourth amendment of the federal constitution, or the state constitution, forbidding unreasonable searches and seizures. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 338; St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

This article does not deny to corporations the due process of law guaranteed by the fifth and fourteenth amendments of the federal constitution, and article 1, § 19, of the Texas Constitution. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 338; St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

This article does not deprive corporations of the equal protection of the laws under the state and federal constitutions. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 338; St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

This article, though retroactive, is not invalid as an ex post facto law, under Const. U. S. art. 1, § 9, subd. 3, and article 1, § 10, subd. 1, and Const. Tex. art. 1, § 16. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 338.

This article does not impair the obligation of contracts under Const. U. S. art. 1, § 10, subd. 1, and Const. Tex. art. 1, § 16. Id.

This article does not deny to corporations liberty of speech under the first amendment of the federal constitution and Const. Tex. art. 1, § 8. Id.

The blacklisting statute is not violative of the provisions of the state and federal constitutions in regard to unreasonable searches and seizures. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

This statute is constitutional. Id.

Retroactive operation.—A railroad employé, who is discharged before this article takes effect, and also makes his demand for a service letter before it takes effect, is within the article, where the railroad does not act on the demand until after it takes effect. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 338.

This article, subds. 1, 3, is retroactive in operation, and includes employés discharged before the act took effect. Id.

Excuse.—A railroad corporation is not excused from liability for making false statements in a service letter given under this article on the ground that such statements are privileged. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

"True statement."—"True statement," as used in this article, means that the employer shall fairly, honestly, and in good faith state the grounds or cause of discharge. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

Sufficiency of statement.—Under this article a railroad employé, who is discharged without sufficient cause, and on demand receives a service letter stating that he was discharged for insubordination, has a good cause of action for damages. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 338.

Where a brakeman refused to handle cars when directed so to do, on the ground that it was dangerous, and was discharged therefor, and a service letter was given him, in response to his written demand, which was never circulated by the company, and there was nothing to question its good faith in its statement that he had been guilty of insubordination, he had no cause of action against it because of the letter. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Inman (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1153.

Actions and evidence.—Evidence, in an employé's action for damages for failure of the employer to issue him a true statement of the reasons for his discharge, as required by this article, held to sustain a finding that the statement given plaintiff, which alleged that he was discharged for not properly doing nis work, was untrue, and was not made fairly, honestly, and in good faith. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

Art. 595. Discrimination prohibited, etc.—Any and all discriminations against persons seeking employment as defined in this title are hereby prohibited and are declared to be illegal. [Acts 1907, p. 142, sec. 2.]

Art. 596. Foreign corporations to forfeit permit for violating provisions; duty of attorney general.—Every foreign corporation violating any of the provisions of this title is hereby denied the right, and is prohibited from doing any business within this state, and it shall be the duty of the attorney general to enforce this provision, by injunction or other proceeding in the district court of Travis county, in the name of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 597. Every person or corporation violating provisions liable to forfeiture; suit; venue; duty of attorney general; fees.—Each and every person, company or corporation, who shall in any manner violate any of the provisions of this title shall, for each and every offense committed, forfeit and pay the sum of one thousand dollars, which may be recovered in the name of the state of Texas, in any county where the offense was committed, or where the offender resides, or in Travis county; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general, or the district or county attorney under the direction of the attorney general, to sue for the recovery of the same. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 598. Fees of prosecuting attorney.—The fees of the prosecuting attorney for representing the state in proceedings under this title shall be over and above the fees allowed him under the general fee bill. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 599. Prima facie evidence of agency.—In prosecutions for the violation of any of the provisions of this title, evidence that any person has acted as the agent of a corporation in the transaction of its business in this state shall be received as prima facie proof that his act in the name, behalf or interest of the corporation of which he was acting as the agent, was the act of the corporation. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 600. On application of attorney general, justice of peace to have witness examined.—Upon the application of the attorney general, or of any district or county attorney, made to any justice of the peace in this state, and stating that he has reason to believe that a witness, who is to be found in the county of which such justice of the peace is an officer, knows of a violation of any of the provisions of this title, it shall be the duty of the justice of the peace to whom such application is made to have summoned and to have examined such witness in relation to violations of any of the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 601. Witness sworn and examined, how; statement in writing and disposition of.—Such witness shall be summoned as provided for in criminal cases. He shall be duly sworn, and the justice of the peace shall cause the statements of the witness to be reduced to writing and signed and sworn to before him, and such sworn statement shall be delivered to the attorney general, district or county attorney, upon whose application the witness was summoned. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 602. Failure of witness to appear, contempt, etc.—Should the witness summoned as aforesaid fail to appear or to make statements of the facts within his knowledge under oath, or to sign the same after it has been reduced to writing, he shall be guilty of contempt of court and may be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars, and may be attached and imprisoned in the county jail until he shall make a full statement of all the facts within his knowledge with reference to the matter inquired about. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 603. Immunity of witness, if, etc.—Any person so summoned and examined shall not be liable to prosecution for any violation of the provisions of this title about which he may testify fully and without reserve. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 604. Written statement of cause of discharge, not to be used as cause of action, civil or criminal.—Said written statement of cause of discharge, if true, when so made by such agent, company or corporation, shall never be used as the cause for an action for libel, either civil or criminal, against the agent, company or corporation so furnishing same. [Id. sec. 8.]

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 605. Election on bonds required.—It shall be unlawful for the commissioners' court of any county, or the city or town council of any incorporated town or city in this state, to issue the bonds of said county, or town or city, for any purpose authorized by law, unless a proposition for the issuance of such bonds shall have been first submitted to a vote of the qualified voters, who are property taxpayers of said county, town or city; and unless a majority of the said qualified property taxpayers, voting at said election, be in favor of the proposition for the issuance of bonds, then the said bonds shall not be issued. If the proposition for the issuance of bonds be sustained by a majority of such property taxpayers, voting at such election, then such bonds shall be authorized and shall be issued by such commissioners' court, or city or town council; provided, that this article shall not be construed to authorize and render valid bonds without being first submitted to the attorney general, and certified to by him, as now required by law. [Acts 1899, pp. 103 and 258.]

Cited, Reagan Bale Co. v. Heuermann (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 228.

Injunction.—See Title 69.

"Bond issue."—Under this article and arts. 608, 610, a commissioners' court may issue bonds for less than $2,000 for the repair of a bridge for public purposes, though the aggregate amount of former issues for such purpose exceed $2,000; the term "bond issue" being confined to a class or series of bonds emitted at one time. Bell County v. Lightfoot, 104 T. 346, 138 S. W. 381.

Submission to taxpayers.—Bonds issued by proposition submitted to taxpayers, while the charter of El Paso of 1873, committing such proposition to the registered voters, was in force, held valid, since the constitution of 1879 had committed the vote on such questions to taxpayers. Conklin v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 879.

Use as collateral security by depositories.—See Title 44.

Official bonds.—See Title 99.

Art. 606. Proposition submitted, how.—The proposition to be submitted for the issuance of bonds shall distinctly specify the purpose for which the bonds are to be issued, the amount thereof, the time in which they are payable, and the rate of interest; and all voters desiring to support the proposition to issue bonds shall have written or printed upon their ballots the words, "For the issuance of bonds," and those opposed shall have printed upon their ballots the words, "Against the issuance of bonds." [Acts 1899, p. 258, sec. 2.]

Form of submission.—Under this article issuance of bonds payable in 40 years and redeemable after 10 years is not authorized by a vote on issuing bonds payable in 40 years and redeemable after 5 years. Simpson v. Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 858.

It was not improper to submit to municipal electors a question whether bonds should be issued for the purpose of "purchasing and constructing" an electric light plant. Id.

Art. 607. Time and place of election determined how.—The commissioners' court, or city or town council of such incorporated town or city, shall determine the time and place or places of holding said election; and the manner of holding the same shall be governed by the laws of the state regulating general elections. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 608. Do not apply in what cases.—The preceding articles of this chapter shall not apply to funding bonds issued, or to be issued, for the funding of any valid outstanding bonds of such county, town or city; nor to any bond issue for a sum less than two thousand dollars, when issued for the purpose of repairing buildings or structures for the building of which bonds are allowed to be issued. [Id. sec. 4.]

Powers of commissioners.—See notes under Art. 610.

Art. 609. Sections of special charters in conflict herewith repealed.—All sections of any special charter of any city or town in conflict with the terms of the preceding articles of this chapter are expressly repealed. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 610. [877] Courthouse, jail, bridge, road, and poorhouse and farm bonds, authorized.—The county commissioners court of any county in this State is hereby authorized and empowered to issue the bonds of said county for the following purposes:

1. For the erection of a county court house and jail, or either.

2. For purchasing or constructing bridges for public purposes, within the county or across a stream that constitutes a boundary line of the county, or for the purpose of improving and maintaining the public roads in the county; or for the purpose of establishing county poor houses and farms in the county; provided, that this Act shall not be construed as authorizing the commissioners court to issue bonds for any of the said purposes without submitting the same to a vote of the people of said county as provided in chapter 149, Acts of the twenty-sixth legislature of the state of Texas, Laws of 1899 [Arts. 605–608], provided, further, that when the commissioners court deem it advisable to issue bonds for the purchase or construction of bridges and the improvement and maintenance of public roads, both questions may be submitted and voted on as one proposition. [Acts 1911, p. 204, sec. 1, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1895, art. 877.]

Cited, Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1170.

Powers of commissioners.—This article confers an additional power on the commissioners' court. The court has power to levy a tax for the purposes named without providing for the issuance of bonds for that purpose. Cresswell Ranch & Cattle Co. v. Roberts County (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 737. See Ball v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 702.

Under Const. art. 5, § 18, this article and art. 614, the commissioners' court may erect a single building for a courthouse and jail where the exigencies of the case so require and the bonds voted on and issued may be voted on and issued as a single issue. Alley v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 295.

The power of county commissioners to provide for construction of a courthouse otherwise than from a sale of bonds was not abrogated by this article, nor by art. 608 Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1170.

Power of a county to build a courthouse does not imply power to issue bonds therefor. Id.

It being held that the commissioners' court had, under Act Feb. 11, 1881 (Acts 1881, c. 9), and Act Feb. 4, 1884 (Acts 1884, c. 17), the power to construct courthouses when in their judgment they are necessary, and to pay for the same either by evidences of indebtedness or by bonds, this article and art. 608 do not restrict the power of the court to issue evidences of indebtedness. Commissioners' Court of Floyd County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

—— Repair of bridges.—The authority conferred by this article and art. 608 embraces the repair and maintenance of such structure. Bell County v. Lightfoot, 104 T. 346, 138 S. W. 381.

Provision for interest and sinking fund.—See note under Art. 616.

Validity of bonds.—County obligations issued by the commissioners' court to build a courthouse held valid. Commissioners' Court of Floyd County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

—— Estoppel.—County held estopped to assert invalidity of courthouse bonds on account of illegal removal of county seat. Presidio County v. City Nat. Bank, 20 C. A. 511, 44 S. W. 1069.

—— Collateral issues—Defense to an action on courthouse bonds, based on illegal removal of county seat, raises collateral issue, and cannot be entertained. Presidio County v. City Nat. Bank, 20 C. A. 511, 44 S. W. 1069.

Art. 611. [878] To run not exceeding forty years; redeemable when.—All bonds issued under this chapter shall run not exceeding forty years, and shall be redeemable at the pleasure of the county at any time after five years after the issuance of the bonds, or after any period not exceeding ten years, which may be fixed by the commissioners' court. [Acts 1893, p. 112.]

Art. 612. [879] Interest on such bonds.—Said bonds shall draw interest at a rate not exceeding six per cent per annum, payable on the tenth day of April; or interest may, in the discretion of the commissioners' court, be made payable semi-annually, on the tenth day of April and the tenth day of October, respectively. Interest shall be evidenced by attached coupons. [Id.]

Ratification of agreement to pay interest.—Payment by county of interest on bonds issued by county judge pursuant to an order directing him to issue same, but not authorizing agreement to pay interest, held to constitute a ratification of the agreement to pay interest. Noel Young Bond & Stock Co. v. Mitchell County, 21 C. A. 638, 54 S. W. 284.

Art. 613. [880] Bonds to be based on and limited by taxable values.—The issue of bonds under this chapter shall be based upon the taxable values of the county according to the last approved assessment, and shall be limited as follows: Courthouse and jail bonds shall be limited to an amount not exceeding two per cent of said taxable values; bridge bonds shall be limited to an amount not exceeding one per cent of said taxable values. In determining the amount of the bonds of the respective kinds to be issued, previous indebtedness for said several purposes shall be considered. The total indebtedness of any county shall not be increased by any issue of bonds to a sum exceeding five per cent of its said taxable values. [Id.]

Art. 614. [881] Interest and sinking fund provided.—The commissioners' court shall levy annual ad valorem taxes sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds and create a sinking fund for their redemption; which said taxes shall not exceed, for courthouse and jail bonds, one-fourth of one per cent; for bridge bonds, fifteen cents on each one hundred dollars. [Id.]

Necessity of provision for sinking fund.—See notes under Art. 616.

Art. 615. [882] Bonds to be signed, countersigned, registered and sold at not less than par, etc.—The bonds shall be signed by the county judge and countersigned by the county clerk and registered by the county treasurer before delivery. The county treasurer shall keep an account of the amount of principal and interest paid on each, and no bond shall be sold at less than its par value and accrued interest, exclusive of commissions. [Id.]

Attachment of seal.—The failure to attach seal to municipal bonds does not invalidate them. Thornburgh v. City of Tyler, 16 C. A. 439, 43 S. W. 1054.

Registration.—County bonds described in their registration as payable to the state of Texas were payable to bearer. Held not to invalidate them. Hardeman County v. Foard County, 19 C. A. 212, 47 S. W. 30, 536.

Forfeiture of deposit.—Approval of municipal bonds by bidder's attorneys held a condition precedent to the city's right to forfeit a deposit, unless the attorney's disapproval was capricious and in bad faith. City of San Antonio v. E. H. Rollins & Sons (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1166, 1199.

Art. 616. [918a] Annual tax to meet interest and sinking fund.—Hereafter any county, city, or town, acting through its commissioners' court, city council, or board of aldermen, as the case may be, in authorizing the execution of any bonds in pursuance of law, shall, at the time, provide for the levy and collection of a tax annually of sufficient amount with which to pay the annual interest and a sinking fund with which to pay such bonded indebtedness at maturity. [Acts 1893, p. 84.]

Pledge of future revenues.—A city has no power to pledge its future current revenues for payment of interest and sinking fund on its bonded indebtedness. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780.

The constitution does not require the commissioners' court, in issuing county bonds, to make provision by an order of said court, for interest and sinking fund of said bonds. Mitchell County v. City Bank of Paducah, 91 T. 361, 43 S. W. 880.

Evidence held insufficient to show that railroad aid bonds were issued before a tax was levied to pay them. Thornburgh v. City of Tyler, 16 C. A. 439, 43 S. W. 1054.

The failure of the commissioners' court to levy a tax to pay the interest and create a sinking fund does not render bonds invalid. Presidio County v. City National Bank of Paducah, 20 C. A. 511, 44 S. W. 1069.

Bonds of a county held not invalidated by failure to the commissioners to provide for levying a tax for the payment at the time of providing for their issuance. Watson v. De Witt County, 19 C. A. 150, 46 S. W. 1061; Hardeman County v. Foard County, 19 C. A. 212, 47 S. W. 30, 536.

Collection of taxes.—Payment of railroad subsidy bonds by a county did not deprive it of power to subsequently collect taxes previously levied therefor. State v. Parker (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 495.

The payment of bonds by a county, to pay which a special tax has been levied, will not bar an action against a delinquent taxpayer to recover such tax. State v. Gibson, 27 C. A. 355, 65 S. W. 690.

Art. 617. [918b] Rate of interest; terms of sale.—Hereafter no bonds executed by any county, city, or town shall bear a higher rate of interest than six per cent per annum, and shall not be sold at less than its par value and accumulated interest, exclusive of commissions. [Id.]

Articles mandatory.—Articles 617 and 618 are mandatory. Boystun v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 541.

Art. 618. [918c] No bond to run longer than forty years.—Hereafter no county, city, or town shall execute a bond to mature later than forty years from the date of its execution. [Id.]

See note under Art. 617.

Art. 619. [918d] Conditions precedent to the issuance of bonds; examination by attorney general, etc.—Any county, city, or town in the state of Texas, desiring to issue bonds as authorized by the constitution and laws of this state, shall, before such bonds are offered for sale, forward to the attorney general the bonds to be issued, a certified copy of the order, or ordinance, levying the tax to pay interest and provide a sinking fund, with a statement of the total bonded indebtedness of such county, city, or town, including the series of bonds proposed, and the assessed value of property for purposes of taxation, as shown by the last official assessment, of such county, city or town, together with such other information as the attorney general may require; whereupon it shall be the duty of the attorney general to carefully examine said bonds in connection with the facts and the constitution and laws on the subject of the execution of such bonds, and if, as the result of such examination, the attorney general shall find that such bonds were issued in conformity with the constitution and laws, and that they are valid and binding obligations upon such county, city, or town, by which they are executed, he shall so officially certify. [Id.]

School bonds.—The attorney general is not required to examine and certify bonds issued by the trustees of a school district. Brownson v. Smith, 93 T. 614, 57 S. W. 570.

Art. 620. [918e] Bonds to be registered by comptroller.—When said bonds have been examined by the attorney general, and his certificate attached thereto, they shall be registered by the comptroller, in a book to be kept for that purpose. [Acts 1893, p. 84. Acts 1901, p. 16.]

Registration by comptroller.—See Title 65, Chapter 2.

Duties of state treasurer.—See Title 65, Chapter 3.

Art. 621. [469] [423] Comptroller's indorsement on bond and certificate.—In case of city bonds, the comptroller shall indorse on each bond so registered his certificate of registration, and give, at the request of the mayor, his certificate certifying to the amount of bonds so registered in his office up to date. [Acts 1875, p. 113, sec. 79.]

Art. 622. [918e] Certificate of attorney general recorded.—The certificate of the attorney general to the validity of such bonds shall be preserved of record, for use in the event of litigation. [Acts 1893, p. 84. Acts 1901, p. 16.]

Art. 623. [918e] Funding or refunding bonds not registered until old bonds presented for cancellation.—In the case of funding or refunding bonds, the comptroller shall not register the same until the old bonds, in lieu of which such funding or refunding bonds are issued, are presented to him for cancellation. [Id.]

Art. 624. [918e] Old bonds canceled and new bonds delivered; provided, etc.—After registration of the new bonds, the comptroller shall cancel the old, and deliver such new bonds to the proper party or parties; provided, further, that the old bonds may be so presented for cancellation, in installments, and a like amount of the new bonds registered and delivered as herein provided. [Id.]

Art. 625. [918f] Certificate of attorney general and registration prima facie evidence of validity.—Such bonds, after receiving the certificate of the attorney general, and having been registered in the comptroller's office, as provided herein, shall thereafter be held, in every action, suit, or proceeding in which their validity is or may be brought into question, prima facie valid and binding obligations. And in every action brought to enforce collection of such bonds, the certificate of the attorney general, or a duly certified copy thereof, shall be admitted and received in evidence of the validity of such bonds, together with the coupons thereto attached; provided, the only defense which can be offered against the validity of said bonds shall be for forgery or fraud. But this article shall not be construed to give validity to any such bonds as may be issued in excess of the limit fixed by the constitution, or contrary to its provisions, but all such bonds shall, to the extent of such excess, be held void. [Acts 1893, p. 84.]

Effect of certificate.—In addition to the recitals of the city council (in the ordinances with reference to issuance of bonds) the bonds in question bear the indorsement of the attorney general of the state to the effect that they are valid and are duly registered. Under this article they are prima facie valid, subject only to the defense of forgery or fraud as against their validity. It follows that city can recover taxes levied to create a sinking fund, and pay the interest on the bonds. City of Tyler v. Tyler B. & L. Ass'n, 99 T. 6, 86 S. W. 751.

Suit to declare bonds void.—Under this article, suit does not lie to declare void bonds already delivered, though they were made payable in 40 years and redeemable in 10 years, while the authority given by the electors was to issue bonds payable in 40 years and redeemable in 5 years. Simpson v. Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 858.

Suit can be brought by taxpayers to declare bonds invalid on statutory grounds only. Id.

Validating bonds and obligations.—See Title 42.

Art. 626. [918g] Law not applicable in certain cases.—Nothing in this law shall be construed to apply to the issuance of any bonds in cases where provisions for their issuance have been made, in whole or in part, before the passage of this law. [Id.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Strict compliance with requirements.—Bonds must be issued strictly in conformity with the law. Robertson v. Breedlove, 61 T. 316; Russell v. Cage, 66 T. 428, 1 S. W. 270; Polly v. Hopkins, 74 T. 145, 11 S. W. 1084; Ewing v. Duncan, 81 T. 230, 16 S. W. 1000; Nolan County v. State, 83 T. 182, 17 S. W. 823.

Bonds of county held not invalid because the commissioners' court did not comply with the constitutional requirement, where it was fully met by a legislative provision. Presidio County v. City Nat. Bank, 20 C. A. 511, 44 S. W. 1069.

Partial invalidity.—Bonds issued by commissioners' court for dual purposes, one of which is authorized and the other not, held void in the proportion which the cost of the unauthorized purpose bears to that authorized. Noel Young Bond & Stock Co. v. Mitchell County, 21 C. A. 638, 54 S. W. 284.

Validating bonds by payment of interest.—Where commissioners' court issued bonds for purpose for which they were not authorized to issue bonds, payment for several years of the interest thereon does not validate them, or estop the county to repudiate them. Noel Young Bond & Stock Co. v. Mitchell County, 21 C. A. 638, 54 S. W. 284.

Bona fide purchasers.—A purchaser of bonds issued for two purposes, one of which is unauthorized, but purporting on their face to be issued for the authorized purpose alone, must take notice of the order of the commissioners' court, and is not an innocent purchaser. Noel Young Bond & Stock Co. v. Mitchell County, 21 C. A. 638, 54 S. W. 284.

A purchaser of county bonds is not protected by recitals that they are issued in compliance with the constitution and laws, if the issue was unauthorized or the act under which they were issued was unconstitutional. Cass County v. Wilbarger County, 25 C. A. 52, 60 S. W. 988.

Delivery of bonds.—Evidence held to prove that city bonds were delivered on a certain date. City of Jefferson v. Marshall Nat. Bank, 18 C. A. 539, 46 S. W. 97.

1. PUBLIC ROADS—CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE OF

Article 627. Power to issue road, etc., bonds and levy tax for interest and sinking fund.—Any county in this state, or any political subdivision or defined district, now or hereafter to be described and defined, of a county, is hereby authorized and empowered to issue bonds, or otherwise lend its credit, in any amount not to exceed one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property of such county, or political subdivision, or defined district thereof, and to levy and collect such taxes to pay the interest upon such bonds and provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof, for the purpose of constructing and maintaining and operating macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turn-pikes, or in aid thereof. [Acts 1909, p. 186. Acts 1907, p. 251. Acts 1909, S. S., p. 271.]

Constitutionality.—These articles do not authorize each district to create a debt for their respective purposes equal to one-fourth of the assessed value of the real property in such district, contrary to Const. art. 3, § 52, as amended in 1904, but permit the first district formed for either purpose to create a debt in any amount not exceeding such one-fourth. Simmons v. Lightfoot (Sup.) 146 S. W. 871.

Bridge bonds.—See Title 40, Chapter 2.

Construction of sea walls.—See Title 83, Chapter 3.

Drainage bonds.—See Title 47.

Improvement districts.—See Title 83, Chapter 2.

Irrigation districts.—See Title 73, Chapter 3.

Navigation districts.—See Title 96.

City bonds and power to issue.—See Title 22, Chapter 4.

Art. 628. Election for; propositions, restrictions and requirements.—Upon the petition of fifty, or a majority, of resident property taxpaying voters of any county, or political subdivision or defined district of any county in this state, to the county commissioners' court of such county, such court shall have the power, and it is hereby made its duty, at any regular or special session thereof, to order an election to be held in such county, political subdivision or defined district thereof, to determine whether or not the bonds of such county, or political subdivision or defined district thereof, shall be issued in any amount not to exceed one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property of such county, or political subdivision, or defined district, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining or operating of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turn-pikes, or in aid thereof; and, at such election, there shall also be submitted to such resident property taxpaying voters the question as to whether or not a tax shall be levied upon the property of said county, or political subdivision or defined district thereof, subject to taxation, for the purpose of paying the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof. The amount of bonds proposed to be issued, with rate of interest thereon and date of maturity, shall be stated in the order ordering said election, and in the notice therefor. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 629. Notice of election.—Notice of said election shall be given by publication, in a newspaper published in the county for four successive weeks, and in addition thereto by posting notices at three public places in the county, one of which shall be at the courthouse door, for three weeks prior to said election, if said proposed issue of bonds and levy of taxes is for the entire county. If said proposed issue of bonds and levy of taxes is for any political subdivision or defined district of the county, notice of such election shall be given by publishing, in a newspaper published in the political subdivision or defined district in which such bond is proposed, and, if no newspaper is published in such political subdivision or defined district, then in some newspaper published in the county, for four successive weeks, and by posting in at least three public places in such political subdivision or defined district of the county, for three successive weeks prior to said election. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 630. Time, place and manner of holding election.—The commissioners' court of the county shall determine the time and place or places of holding such election; provided, no such election shall be held at any time less than thirty days from the time of making of the order ordering the election. The manner of holding said election shall be governed by the general laws of the state when not in conflict with the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter, and the returns of said election shall be made as now provided by law for making returns of elections held for the purpose of determining whether or not county bonds shall be issued. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 631. If election carried by two-thirds vote, bonds to be issued.—If, after the result of said election is known, it shall appear to the commissioners' court of the county in which said election was held, that a two-thirds majority of the vote cast at such election were in favor of the issuance of bonds, it shall be the duty of said commissioners' court, as soon thereafter as practicable, to issue said bonds on the faith and credit of said county, or of said political subdivision or defined district now or hereafter to be described and defined, within the state of Texas, and which may or may not include towns, villages, or municipal corporations of the county, as the case may be. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 632. Bonds, term, interest, examination, registry, custody; sale; disposition of proceeds; disbursement, regulation of.—Such bonds shall run not less than twenty nor more than forty years, with such option of redemption as may be fixed by the commissioners' court; and such bonds shall bear not more than five and one-half per cent interest per annum, and which bonds shall be examined by the attorney general of Texas, and registered by the comptroller of public accounts of Texas. Such bonds, when so issued, shall continue in the custody of, and under the control of the commissioners' court of the county in which they were issued, and shall be by said court sold to the highest and best bidder, for cash, either in whole or in parcels, at not less than their par value, and the purchase money therefor shall be placed in the county treasury of such county to the credit of the available road fund of such county, or of such political subdivision or defined district of such county, as the case may be. Such funds shall be paid out by the county treasurer upon warrants drawn on such funds issued by the county clerk of the county, countersigned by the county judge, upon certified accounts approved by the commissioners' court of the county, when such funds belong to the entire county; and, when such funds belong to a political subdivision or defined district of a county, such funds shall be paid out by the county treasurer upon warrants issued by the county clerk, upon certified accounts of the road superintendent of such road district, and approved by the commissioners' court of the county. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 633. General laws applicable.—The general laws of Texas relative to county bonds, not in conflict with the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter shall apply to the issuance, approval, registration, sale and payment of the bonds provided for in said provisions. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 634. Tax for interest and sinking fund; levy, assessment and collection; treasurer to be custodian, and to deposit with depository.—Before said road bonds shall be put on the market, the county commissioners' court of the county in which such election was held shall levy a tax sufficient to pay the interest on such bonds and to produce a sinking fund sufficient to pay the bonds at maturity; provided, that said tax herein authorized shall be assessed and collected in the same manner as now provided by law for the assessment and collection of other road taxes, if for a whole county, and, if for a political subdivision or other defined district of a county, then it shall be assessed and collected as is now provided by law for the assessment and collection of common school district special local taxes. And it is hereby made the duty of such commissioners' court to levy such tax, and it is hereby made the duty of the tax collector and assessor of such county wherein such taxes have been levied to assess and collect the same in the same manner and at the same time as other taxes. And said taxes, when so collected by such collector, shall be by him paid over to the county treasurer of such county, as and when other taxes are paid to the county treasurer. And the county treasurer of said county shall be custodian of all funds collected by virtue of this law, and shall deposit the same with the county depository as county funds. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 635. Treasurer to pay interest and sinking fund.—The treasurer shall pay the interest and principal as it becomes due on such bonds out of the funds so collected, in the same manner as the law directs in case of county courthouse bond funds. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 636. Numbering of districts and bonds to correspond, etc.; designation of bonds. Provision not applicable to bonds of whole county, designation of latter.—For the purpose of operating and being known under the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter, each political subdivision or defined district now or hereafter to be described and defined for the employment of said subdivision, in any county in this state shall be known as "Road District No..... of ..... county, Texas," and the bonds herein provided for in such political subdivision or defined district in any county, shall be known as "Road Bonds of Road District No.... of ..... county, Texas," being definitely numbered and bearing the name of the county in which it is located. This article shall apply only to districts composing less than a county, and shall not apply to bonds issued hereunder by a whole county, which county bonds shall be known as " ..... County Special Road Bonds," taking the name of the county issuing the same. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 637. District accepting provisions to be body corporate; powers.—For the purpose of this subdivision of this chapter, any political subdivision of a county or defined district, now or hereafter to be described and defined, accepting the provisions of said subdivision, by voting such tax, is hereby made and created a body corporate, which may sue and be sued in like manner as counties. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 638. Road district not liable for torts.—No road district created under the provisions of said subdivision shall ever be held liable for torts. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 639. County commissioner to be ex officio road superintendent, powers.—The county commissioner, in whose commissioner's precinct such political subdivision or defined district, now or hereafter to be described and defined is located, shall be ex officio road superintendent of said road district, with power to contract for and in behalf of such road district; provided, such contract shall not exceed the sum of fifty dollars, which shall be approved by the commissioners' court, and all contracts exceeding the sum of fifty dollars shall be awarded by the entire court, which contracts shall be binding on said county, political subdivision or defined district. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 640. Bids to be taken on contract work; contract to be let to lowest and best bidder. Rights to reject.—When work is done by contract in any county, political subdivision or defined district, bids shall be invited by publishing an advertisement in a newspaper or newspapers published in such county, and in a paper or papers outside of the county, when the commissioners' court may deem it advisable to do so, and the contract shall be awarded to the lowest and best bidder; provided, however, that the commissioners' court shall have the right to reject any and all bids. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 641. County operating under special road tax law may take advantage of provisions.—Any county operating under a special road tax law may take advantage of any of the provisions of this subdivision. [Id. sec. 9.]

2. CAUSEWAYS, VIADUCTS, BRIDGES, ETC., CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE AND USE OF

Art. 642. Elections in certain counties to authorize bonds for causeways, viaducts, bridges, etc.—Whenever the county commissioners of any county in the state of Texas, having a population in excess of fifty thousand inhabitants, according to the last preceding census taken by the United States, deem it expedient so to do, they may order an election, to ascertain the will of the qualified voters of such county, to determine the propriety of a bond issue to provide for the construction and maintenance of causeways, viaducts, bridges, and approaches, across any river and bottoms within the limits of such county, irrespective of any municipal boundaries. [Acts 1909, p. 46.]

Art. 643. Preliminary surveys and estimates; order for election to prescribe amount and terms of bonds.—The commissioners' court of such county shall, prior to ordering any such election as referred to in article 642, provide for preliminary surveys and estimates for such work, and shall, in the order for such election, prescribe the amount and terms of such bond issue. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 644. Resolution for election to be recorded, and submitted to vote, how.—Whenever the commissioners' court of such county deem it necessary or expedient to order such election, the resolution therefor shall be recorded in the minutes of the commissioners' court, and the resolution shall be submitted to the property owning qualified voters of said county, at any regular or special election which may be ordered by said court for that purpose, and if, at such election, a majority of the votes cast thereon shall be for such resolution, the same shall be deemed to be adopted, but if a majority of the votes cast thereon at such election shall be against said resolution, it shall be deemed to be rejected. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 645. General laws to govern election, etc., proclamation posted; publication.—Said election shall be governed in all respects by the law governing elections in this state, and the returns shall be made and canvassed in the same manner, and the results declared by proclamation of the county judge of said county; which proclamation shall be posted in at least three public places in said county, and, at the option of said county judge, published in some newspaper in said county. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 646. Qualifications for voting.—No person shall be permitted to vote at any election provided for in article 644, unless he is a property owner and taxpayer and qualified voter of said county. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 647. Ballot, form, etc., restrictions.—Those desiring to vote for the resolution shall have written or printed on their tickets the words, "For the Resolution to Issue Bonds to....." [here insert purpose of the proposed bond issue as set forth in said resolution], and those desiring to vote against the resolution shall have written or printed on their tickets the words, "Against the Resolution to Issue Bonds to..... ....." [here insert such purpose of the proposed bond issue, as set forth in said resolution]. Such tickets shall be written or printed on plain white paper, with black ink, or pencil, and shall contain no distinguishing mark or device, except as above provided, and, if printed, shall be in type of uniform size and face. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 648. If election carried by majority, etc., bonds to be prepared and executed, how, terms, regulations, etc.—If, at the election herein provided for, a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon at such election shall vote in favor of the resolution provided for in article 644, and after the commissioners' court has canvassed said vote and declared the result, and after the proclamation of said county judge, declaring the result, it shall be the duty of said court, under the supervision and direction of the comptroller of this state, to prepare and execute the bonds of the county for such sums as may be deemed advisable by said county, not exceeding the amount stipulated in said resolution, said bonds to bear not exceeding five per cent interest, payable annually, and which shall be redeemable in not less than five years and not more than forty years from the date thereof, the time of maturity to be expressed on the face of the bonds, and shall have such bonds registered or enrolled as in case of other county bonds, and the same shall not be sold nor negotiated at less than their par value; provided, that in no case shall said court issue bonds under this subdivision of this chapter for a greater sum or amount than that a levy for this purpose of five cents on the one hundred dollars property valuation of said county will yield sufficient revenue to pay such interest, as it accrues, and will at the same time create a sinking fund sufficient to pay the principal of such bonds at maturity. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 649. Levy of tax annually for interest and sinking fund.—When the bonds of the county are issued and sold, under the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter, it shall be the duty of said commissioners' court to levy an annual ad valorem tax on all property of the county; which tax, when collected, shall be used only for the purpose of paying interest on said bonds and creating a sinking fund to pay the principal of same. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 650. Commissioners may contract for privilege of using causeways, etc., or constructing, etc., tracks, telegraph lines, etc., not exclusive, etc., contracts; previous notice, etc.—The commissioners' court of such county is authorized to contract with individuals, firms or corporations, for the privilege of using such causeways, viaducts, bridges and approaches, or constructing and maintaining and using tracks, telegraph lines, or other such privileges as said commissioners may deem expedient, but shall make no exclusive nor preferential contracts, and before executing any such contracts shall give notice by posting at the courthouse door and in three other public places in said county the full terms and nature of such proposed contracts before execution of same. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 651. Revenues to be appropriated to maintenance and repair of structures; excess to road and bridge fund of county.—Any revenues that may accrue from any contract or contracts made in accordance with the provisions of the preceding article may be appropriated by the commissioners' court to the maintenance and repair of such structure or structures; and such court shall have the authority to make adequate provision for such maintenance and repair, as in the case of any other structure under its control. In the event the revenues accruing from the use of any such structure shall exceed the expenditures for its maintenance and repair, any such excess shall be applied to the road and bridge fund of the county. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 652. Commissioners may make regulations, etc., for use of structures.—The commissioners' court shall have authority to make rules and regulations for the use of any structure erected under the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter, and to provide for the enforcement thereof. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 653. Power of condemnation, etc.—Said county, acting through its commissioners' court, shall have the power, and is hereby authorized to take and appropriate such lands and other property, situated within or without the limits of any city or town, as may be deemed necessary for the establishment, location, construction, maintenance, repair or security of said causeways, viaducts, bridges and approaches, and to define the area of land needed not to exceed two hundred feet in width, and to acquire, take, hold and enjoy the same, for the purposes aforesaid, and shall have the right to exercise the power of eminent domain, and to condemn lands for the uses and purposes aforesaid; said condemnation proceedings to be instituted in the name of the county before the judge of the court having jurisdiction by law to act in condemnation proceedings for rights of way for railroad companies; and all laws in reference to applications and proceedings for the condemnation of rights of way for railroad companies shall apply to condemnations under this subdivision of this chapter, the county occupying the position of the railroad company, except that in no case shall the county be required to give bond; provided, nevertheless, that said county, acting through its commissioners' court, shall be empowered to take the fee simple estate to the land condemned or acquired hereunder, whenever deemed necessary for the purposes of this said subdivision; provided, further, that before exercising the power of eminent domain hereunder said county commissioners' court shall, by order duly entered on its minutes, define and describe the lands needed and determine whether an easement or fee simple estate in said land shall be taken. [Acts 1910, 3 S. S., p. 22.]

Art. 654. Use, etc., of streets, etc., may be granted for purposes of causeway, etc.—And the county commissioners' court of any county, with the consent of any city, given by its duly authorized municipal authorities, or the municipal authorities of any city in which said causeway, viaduct, bridge, and approaches are to be constructed and maintained, shall have power, and are hereby authorized, to grant the use of, and impose such additional uses upon all streets, alleys, public highways and other public grounds as they may deem necessary for the location, construction and maintenance of said causeways, viaducts, bridges and approaches, and may authorize the construction of same across or upon any such street, alley, public highway or public grounds. [Id.]

Art. 655. May condemn land of railway, etc.—Said county, acting through its commissioners' court, is authorized to enter upon any lands owned by any railway, telegraph or telephone corporation, in fee or in any less estate, whether acquired by purchase or condemnation, or by virtue of any provision in the charter of such corporation, for the purposes of this subdivision of this chapter, and, from time to time, to define and appropriate so much of said lands as may be necessary for the establishment, location, construction and maintenance of said causeways, viaducts, bridges and approaches, and shall have the right of access to construct and maintain said causeways, viaducts, bridges and approaches, and when constructed to repair the same, and may proceed to obtain the right of way, and to condemn lands for the use of the county in the manner provided by law in the case of railway corporations. Said county shall have the right to cross and intersect the line of any such railway, telegraph or telephone corporation; and, in case any differences shall arise between the county and said railway, telegraph or telephone corporation, as to the manner or mode of any crossing or intersection made by said causeway, viaduct, bridge and approaches, their differences shall be adjusted by the special commissioners appointed hereunder to assess damages for the land condemned. [Id.]

1. GENERAL POWERS OF FUNDING, REFUNDING AND COMPROMISING DEBTS

Article 656. [890] Debts may be funded, when and how.—All counties, incorporated cities and towns in this state owing debts are hereby authorized to fund the same in bonds of said counties, cities and towns, in such sums and at such rate of interest as may seem best to the authorities of said counties, cities and towns; provided, that in no case shall the rate of interest be greater than six per cent per annum; and provided, further, that this article and articles 658 and 659 shall not apply to any indebtedness of any counties, cities or towns made and undertaken since the eighteenth day of April, 1876, and shall not apply to any bonds issued under an act entitled, "An act to authorize counties, cities and towns to aid in the construction of railroads and other works of internal improvements," approved April 12, 1871; provided, further, that no city shall issue bonds to a greater amount than is authorized by its charter, where a limit is placed on the issue of bonds in its charter. [Acts of 1879, p. 61.]

Art. 657. [883] Old bonds of legal issue may be substituted by new.—Where bonds have been legally issued, or may be hereafter issued, by any county for any of the purposes named in article 610, new bonds bearing the same or a lower rate of interest may be issued, in conformity with existing law, in lieu thereof. [Acts 1893, p. 112. Acts 1901, p. 16.]

Art. 658. [891] Debts may be compromised.—All the counties, incorporated cities and towns of this state are hereby authorized to scale their debts of every description, bonded or otherwise, by adjustment and compromise with their creditors, and may issue bonds, as provided for in article 656, in any sums and at any rate of interest not greater than six per cent per annum, in settlement or compromise with said creditors, or with any one or more of them. [Acts of 1879, p. 61.]

Art. 659. [892] Sinking fund to be provided and tax levied.—Said counties, cities and towns, in funding and scaling their said indebtedness made and undertaken before said eighteenth day of April, 1876, as herein provided, shall provide a suitable sinking fund of two per cent per annum, to be applied to the payment of the principal of the bonds issued under article 656, and shall annually levy and collect a sufficient tax on all the taxable property of said counties, cities and towns to pay the interest and sinking fund aforesaid; provided, that, should there be annually collected more than is necessary to pay the interest already due and the two per cent sinking fund, such excess and sinking fund may be used in the purchase and cancellation of the bonds for which said sinking fund is set aside. [Id.]

2. STORMS, FLOODS, OR OTHER GREAT DISASTERS—FUNDING, REFUNDING AND COMPROMISE OF DEBTS IN CASE OF

Art. 660. Storms, etc., bonds, power to fund, refund and compromise.—Any county or city incorporated under the general laws of the state, in which there has been heretofore, or may be hereafter, great destruction or damage of property or depreciation of the value of taxable property, by reason of storms, floods, or other great disasters, is hereby authorized and empowered to fund or refund, compromise or settle its valid outstanding bonded and floating indebtedness in such manner as may be deemed to the best interest of such county or city. [Acts 1901, S. S., p. 18.]

Art. 661. Bonds issued for said purpose, regulations as to.—For the purpose of effecting the compromise or settlement, authorized by the preceding article, the said counties and cities are hereby severally authorized and empowered to issue bonds in denominations of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars each, for an amount sufficient to consummate such compromise or settlement, not to exceed the amount unpaid on the outstanding indebtedness; and the bonds hereby authorized may be exchanged for bonds, warrants, scrip, or other evidences of outstanding indebtedness of such county or city, or said bonds may be sold and the proceeds applied in the purchase of outstanding bonds or the payment of outstanding floating indebtedness; and said bonds may be issued without submitting the question of issuance to a vote of the taxpayers, and may be exchanged or sold from time to time in such amounts as may be required for refunding said outstanding bonds and funding or settling said floating debts; and said bonds may be issued, if deemed necessary, to an aggregate amount not exceeding six per cent of the taxable value of the remaining taxable property in such county or city. [Id.]

Art. 662. Order of commissioners' court, prerequisite, recitals, etc.—Before issuing any bonds, authorized by the two preceding articles, and not later than two years from and after the date of the storm or other disaster, the commissioners' court of the county, or the city council of the city, in which such storm or other disaster has occurred, shall, by an order or ordinance, as the case may be, duly entered on the minutes, recite the nature and date of such disaster, the taxable value of the remaining property subject to taxation in said city or county, as shown by the first approved assessment roll of such county or city made after such storm, flood, or other great disaster, and the amount of said bonds that will in the judgment of said commissioners' court, or the city council, be sufficient to fund, refund or compromise, or settle the outstanding valid bonded and floating indebtedness of such county or city, stating, also, the amount of said new bonds that will be required for refunding or settling each outstanding issue of bonds, and the amount of said new bonds that will be required in funding or settling the outstanding indebtedness charged against each particular fund. [Id.]

Art. 663. Classification of bond issues.—Separate classes of bonds shall be issued to refund or settle, respectively, each separate issue of outstanding bonds, and to fund or settle, respectively, the indebtedness against each particular fund. [Id.]

Art. 664. Apportionment of taxes, record.—Said court or council shall determine and record in the minutes the proportion of the several annual ad valorem taxes authorized by law that can be applied, respectively, in payment of the interest and sinking funds of the several classes of bonds without depriving the city or county of the funds which, in the judgment of said court, or city council, will be required to meet the necessary current annual expenses of such county or city. [Id.]

Art. 665. Levy for interest and sinking fund, proportioned, how.—A levy in proportion to such excess or excesses beyond the amount required for current annual expenses may be made to pay the interest and sinking fund, respectively, of the said several classes of bonds. [Id.]

Art. 666. Constitutional limit not to be exceeded.—The constitutional limitation as to the rates and purposes of the several taxes shall not be exceeded or disregarded. [Id.]

Art. 667. Commissioners to prescribe form and class of bonds, and for issuance.—Said commissioners' court, or city council, shall, also, by said order, or ordinance, prescribe the form and the classes of said bonds, and provide for the issuance thereof, at such dates as may be expedient. [Id.]

Art. 668. Term of bonds, etc.—Said bonds may be made payable at any date deemed expedient by such commissioners' court, or city council, not later than forty years from the date of the execution. [Id.]

Art. 669. Redemption of bonds.—Provision may be made for the redemption of said bonds after five years, or after such longer period, as may be deemed expedient. [Id.]

Art. 670. Interest rate.—Said bonds shall bear interest as stipulated and specified in coupons attached thereto, not to exceed four per cent per annum. [Id.]

Art. 671. Bonds to conform to requirements of certain articles not in conflict with the provisions of this subdivision.—Said bonds shall be issued under and subject to all requirements of articles 616 to 620, inclusive, and articles 622 to 625, inclusive, of this title, which are not in conflict with the requirements and provisions of this subdivision of this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 672. Signature and attestation of bonds.—Said bonds shall be signed by the county judge, or mayor, and attested by the county or city clerk, as the case may be. [Id.]

Art. 673. Registry by comptroller, after examination, etc., by attorney general.—When examined and certified by the attorney general, in compliance with article 619, said bonds shall be registered by the comptroller. [Id.]

Art. 674. Registry without presentation and cancellation of old bonds.—The bonds shall be registered by the comptroller without requiring the old bonds, warrants or other evidence of indebtedness to be presented to him for cancellation. [Id.]

Art. 675. Bonds delivered to county or city treasurer and registered by him.—Said bonds shall be delivered to the county or city treasurer, as the case may be, and said officer shall register said bonds in a book kept for that purpose, and said bonds may thereafter be sold or exchanged as herein authorized. [Id.]

Art. 676. Bonds not to be sold, etc., for less than par value and accrued interest.—Said bonds shall never be sold or exchanged for less than their face value and accrued interest. [Id.]

Art. 677. Date of sale, etc., indorsed and certified and attested, how, before delivery of bonds.—Before delivery of the bonds issued hereunder, the date of sale or exchange of said bonds shall be indorsed and certified on such bonds by the county judge or mayor, whose signature shall be attested by the county or city clerk, as the case may be. [Id.]

3. RAILROAD, ETC., SUBSIDY BONDS, ETC.—COMPROMISE, ADJUSTMENT AND REFUNDING OF

Art. 678. [909] Railroad, etc., subsidy bonds, how adjusted and paid.—Any county, city or town that has heretofore issued bonds to aid in the construction of railroads and other works of internal improvements are hereby authorized to compromise or adjust such indebtedness so created, in such manner as may be deemed to the best interest of such county, city or town; provided, that the amount of the debt and the rate of interest thereon shall not be thereby increased; and provided, further, that no debt which has become barred by the statute of limitation shall be thereby revived. For the purpose of carrying out the compromise or adjustment hereby authorized, the said counties, cities and towns are authorized to issue bonds, in denominations of not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars each, for an amount sufficient to consummate such compromise or adjustment, not to exceed the amount unpaid on the outstanding bonds. [Acts of 1887, p. 77.]

Art. 679. [910] Bonds sold and exchanged, how.—The bonds authorized by the preceding article may be exchanged for the bonds heretofore issued, or they may be sold and the proceeds used to buy up the old bonds as it may be necessary; provided, that the said bonds shall not be exchanged for the old bonds at a greater rate than par, except that the old bonds may be taken at a discount, and the new at the face value, according to agreement; and provided, that the new bonds issued hereunder shall not be sold for less than the amount for which the old bonds can be purchased. No such bonds shall be sold until there has been a contract by which the proceeds can be invested in the purchase of the old bonds. [Id.]

Art. 680. [911] Authority for executing bonds and terms and conditions of same.—If any county, city or town shall desire to avail itself of the provisions of articles 678 to 686, inclusive, and when arrangements shall have been made for the compromise or adjustment of any of the bonds, as hereinbefore mentioned, the commissioners' court of such county, or the city council of such town or city, shall enter an order, or adopt an ordinance, as the case may be, authorizing the issuance of bonds, which shall prescribe the amount to be issued, and shall cause blank bonds to be prepared for the purpose aforesaid. The bonds shall be made payable to bearer, and shall be payable such time after date as may be fixed and agreed upon, not to exceed fifty years, and shall bear such rate of interest as may be agreed upon, which shall not exceed the rate of interest that the old bonds now bear. The interest may be made payable annually, or semi-annually, and at such place as may be specified. Coupons shall be attached, representing each installment of interest as specified, which shall also include two per cent of the face of the bond as a sinking fund. The bonds issued by the county shall be signed by the county judge and attested by the county clerk, with the seal of the county, and the coupons shall be signed by the county judge. The bonds that may be issued by any city or town under the provisions hereof shall be signed by the mayor and attested by the city secretary or recorder, with the seal of such city or town attached, and the coupons shall be signed by the mayor. [Id.]

Art. 681. [912] Bonds may be exchanged or sold.—The bonds as herein authorized to be issued may be exchanged or sold from time to time, and in such amounts as can be procured of the old bonds by purchase or exchange. [Id.]

Art. 682. [912] Levy of tax for interest and sinking fund.—Whenever any bonds shall be issued, the county commissioners' court, or council of such city or town shall levy upon the last assessment of the property for such city or town, as the case may be, a tax sufficient to pay the interest and sinking fund of not less than two per cent upon such bonds. The tax so levied shall remain as the levy for that purpose until a new levy may be made for that purpose; provided, that such commissioners' court or council may, from time to time, increase or diminish such tax so as to adjust the same to the taxable values of the property of the county or city or town and the amount to be collected; provided, further, that the amount shall not at any time be reduced so that it will not raise an amount sufficient to pay the annual interest and sinking fund on all the bonds sold or exchanged under the provisions hereof. [Id.]

Art. 683. [913] Collector liable on bond for failure of duty; new collector appointed, when.—If the tax collector, or any officer charged with the duty of collecting the tax levied to pay the interest and sinking fund upon said bond, shall refuse to collect the said tax at any time, he shall be liable upon his official bond to any person who may be injured thereby. If any collector shall refuse to collect said taxes, then, upon the complaint of any citizen or person interested, or upon their own motion, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of such county, or the city council of such city or town, to appoint some suitable person, who shall qualify as required of the collector aforesaid, and shall proceed to collect said tax until the next general election, and until a collector shall be elected and qualified who will collect the same. If the commissioners' court or council aforesaid shall fail or refuse to appoint some person as aforesaid, then the governor of the state shall make such appointment of some suitable person who shall collect said taxes until the next general election and until some collector shall be elected who will collect the same; and such person so appointed by the governor shall qualify as the regular collector is or may be required by law. [Id.]

Art. 684. [914] Bonds to be registered in comptroller's office, how and effect of.—Before the bonds that may be issued hereunder shall be delivered, they shall be registered in the office of the comptroller of the state, who shall indorse upon each bond the date of such registration; and, when so registered and delivered, the said bonds shall not be subject to any defense that existed prior to the delivery of them, and this shall be stated in the face of the bonds. [Id.]

Art. 685. [915] Assessment of taxes and compensation of assessor.—The taxes levied hereunder shall be assessed by the officer whose duty it is by law to make the assessment for such county, city or town, who shall receive for such assessment one per cent for making such assessment. The officer whose duty it is by law to collect the taxes for such county, city or town, shall collect the taxes levied hereunder, and shall receive as compensation therefor one per cent of the amount collected. [Id.]

Art. 686. [916] Surplus fund, how applied.—If after all the matured coupons upon any series of bonds that may be issued hereunder have been paid off there shall remain a surplus of the taxes so collected for the payment thereof, then the commissioners' court of such county, or the council of such city or town, may use the surplus so remaining to purchase any of the outstanding bonds at not more than par. If said bonds can not be purchased at par, then the said surplus may be applied to the payment of the next maturing coupons upon their maturity, and the taxes for that year remitted to that extent. [Id.]

Art. 687. [893] May compromise and fund indebtedness.—The county commissioners' court of any county, or the mayor and board of aldermen of any city or town in this state, are hereby authorized and empowered to compromise and fund any existing bonded indebtedness by such county, city or town issued, and the coupons due thereon, to aid in the construction of railroads or other works of internal improvement, or other bonds issued by authority of law; and for this purpose they are hereby authorized and empowered to issue new bonds in denomination of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars, in their discretion, with interest coupons payable annually at the office of the state treasurer; said new bonds to become due and payable in twenty years, and to bear such rate of interest, not exceeding eight per cent per annum, as in their discretion may best subserve the purpose intended. [Acts of April 18, 1879, p. 109.]

Art. 688. [894] Authority to compromise limited.—No compromises shall be made under the provisions of articles 687 to 695, inclusive, by which any debt barred by the statute of limitation, or which may be barred at the time of such compromise, shall be revived, nor shall such new bonds, to be used in funding the principal of such old bonds, be issued for any greater amount than three-fourths of the principal of the old bonds outstanding; provided, that when the rate of interest of such new bonds is not more than five per cent per annum, then new bonds may be issued to the full amount of the old bonds outstanding; and provided, further, that the amount of new bonds to be issued for the funding of the matured interest shall be left to the discretion of the county commissioners' court or the mayor and board of aldermen, as the case may be, but in no case to exceed the amount of such matured interest. [Id.]

Art. 689. [895] Bonds exempt from taxation.—The new bonds thus issued by any county shall be exempt from the payment of all county taxes, general and special, in the county by which they are issued; and the new bonds thus issued by any city or town shall be exempt from the payment of all taxes levied by such city or town. [Id.]

Art. 690. [896] Issued and registered, how.—The county commissioners' court or mayor and board of aldermen, as the case may be, shall cause to be prepared the necessary blank bonds to give effect to the provisions hereof, the cost of which shall be paid out of the treasury of such county, city or town; said bonds, when issued by any county, shall be signed by the county judge and attested by the county clerk of such county, with the seal of the county court affixed; and when issued by any city or town shall be signed by the mayor and attested by the city clerk or secretary, with the seal of such city or town affixed; and such new bonds, whether issued by any county, city or town, shall be registered in the office of the state comptroller. [Id.]

Art. 691. [897] May be exchanged or sold.—Such new bonds may be exchanged for the old bonds at the rate specified in article 688, or they may be sold and the proceeds applied to the purchase of such old bonds at the rate specified in said article; provided, that no delivery of such new bonds shall take place unless a contract has already been entered into for the purchase of a corresponding amount of such old bonds; and provided, further, no bonds so issued shall be sold at less than par; each bond sold shall be made to bear the lowest rate of interest that will give it par value. [Id.]

Art. 692. [898] Tax laws to be continued in force.—All laws in force providing for the collection of taxes for the payment of the principal and interest of such existing bonds shall apply and be in force for the collection of taxes for the payment of the principal and interest of such new bonds; provided, that the sinking fund may be used in the purchase and cancellation of such new bonds whenever the same can be bought at not more than their par value. [Id.]

Art. 693. [899] Same subject.—The object and intention of these provisions being to enable the counties, cities or towns in this state which have granted subsidy bonds to railroads or other works of internal improvement, or created any bonded indebtedness whatever, to compromise the same and thereby reduce the burden of taxation, it is hereby declared, as an inducement to the holders of said bonds to accept the compromise, that whenever such compromise shall be entered into and accepted in good faith, either by the holder of the present bonds or by any person purchasing said new bonds as provided in the foregoing articles, that all laws in force or which may hereafter be in force for the assessment and collection of the state taxes, shall also be in force and apply to the assessment and collection of the taxes levied to meet the interest and sinking fund of said new bonds; and in any suits which may be instituted to enforce the payment of said new bonds or coupons against any such county, city or town, no defense either in law or equity shall be admitted in any of the courts of this state, except such as originated upon or subsequent to the issuance of such new bonds. [Id.]

Art. 694. [900] Collector liable for failing to collect tax, and when to be appointed by governor.—Whenever a collector of taxes shall neglect or refuse to collect the taxes levied for the payment of the interest and sinking fund of such new bonds, he shall be liable on his official bond at the suit of any person or persons holding any of said bonds or coupons for all such damages as said person or persons shall have sustained by reason of his neglect or refusal; nor shall such collector or his sureties be relieved of such liability by his resignation of the office; and whenever any person who may be elected collector of taxes of any county, city or town shall fail, neglect or refuse to give the bond required by law for the collection of such tax, or whenever the commissioners' court or the mayor or board of aldermen, as the case may be, shall appoint any person who shall fail, neglect or refuse to give said bond, or whenever they shall fail, neglect or refuse to appoint some person who will give said bond and collect said tax, then it is hereby made the duty of the governor to appoint some suitable person to collect said taxes, who shall perform all the duties required herein or [by] any other law of this state relating to the collection of said taxes from the time of his said appointment until the next general election. [Id.]

Art. 695. [901] Compromise by vote of the people; notice of election, how given.—No compromise which may be agreed upon between the commissioners' court or the mayor and board of aldermen, as the case may be, and the bondholders or others, shall be binding upon the taxpayers of any county, city or town until the terms of said compromise shall have been submitted to a vote of the property taxpayers at an election held by order of the commissioners' court, or mayor and board of aldermen, as the case may be, and a majority of the said taxpayers shall vote in favor of and ratify the terms of said compromise; said election shall be held in accordance with the general law regulating elections; provided, that none but property taxpayers shall vote at any such election; provided, further, that notice of such election shall be published for thirty days in some newspaper published in the county, city or town, as the case may be; and in case there shall be no paper published in such county, city or town, then by posting in ten public places in such county, city or town, as the case may be, for thirty days prior to any election hereunder. [Id.]

Art. 696. [917] County and city authorities may adjust tax to conform to interest and sinking fund for bonded indebtedness.—The county commissioners' court of any county, or the mayor and board of aldermen or city council of any city or town that have heretofore issued bonds to aid in the construction of railroads or other works of internal improvement, are hereby authorized and empowered to reduce the rate of taxation heretofore levied for the purpose of paying the interest and sinking fund on such bonds, so as to raise the amount necessary to pay the said interest and sinking fund which may become due annually according to the terms of the said bonds; and any county, city or town, by its said commissioners, or city council, or mayor and aldermen, may from time to time hereafter increase or diminish its rate of taxation according to the valuation of its taxable property, so as to raise the amount necessary for the payment of said interest and sinking fund annually; provided, that the taxes shall never be reduced below the rate that will raise the amount that is annually due upon such bonds. [Act of 1887, p. 29.]

Art. 697. [918] How amount of levy determined and fees of collector.—The levy of tax provided for in the preceding article shall be made upon the assessed valuation of the property of such county, city or town for the previous year, and shall remain in force from year to year until there has been a new levy, according to the provisions hereof. It shall be the duty of the officer who shall make the assessments annually for such county, city or town to make the levy of the taxes aforesaid upon the assessment of property made for general purposes, and to so return his rolls as to show the said tax due from each person the same as the other taxes are shown. No additional fees shall be allowed for said work. For collecting the said taxes, the tax collector of such county, city or town shall receive one and one-half per cent upon the amount collected. [Id.]

CHAPTER FOUR

SINKING FUNDS—INVESTMENTS, REPORTS, REGULATIONS AND PENALTIES

Art.
698. Sinking fund of county, city, town, school district or school community, to be invested in United States, state, city, or town bonds, provided, etc.
699. Report, annual, of county or city treasurer to comptroller, requisites of.
700. Draft on sinking fund not to be honored by treasurer except for interest, redemption or investment.
701. Penalties for failure to report or for diversion or misapplication.
702. Comptroller to notify attorney general, district or county attorney; suit to recover fund; payment into treasury.

Article 698. Sinking fund of county, city, town, school district or school community to be invested in United States, state, city or town bonds, provided, etc.—The commissioners' court of any county, the city council of any incorporated city or town, and the board of trustees of any independent school district, or of any other school district or school community, in the state of Texas, are authorized and empowered, whenever they may deem it advisable, to invest any sinking fund or sinking funds now on hand or hereafter acquired for the redemption and payment of any outstanding bonds of such county, city or town, or independent school district, or any other school district or school community, in bonds of the United States, of the state of Texas, of any county of the state of Texas, or of any incorporated city or town; provided, that no such bonds shall be so purchased which, according to their terms, mature at a date subsequent to the time of maturity of the bonds for the payment of which such sinking fund was created; and, provided, further, that in the event any commissioners' court, city council or board of trustees is unable to purchase any securities of the character above mentioned, which mature at a date prior to the time of maturity of the bonds for the payment of which such sinking fund was created, then they are authorized, in their discretion, to invest such funds in the bonds of any independent school district, or of any other school district or school community authorized to issue bonds, under the same restrictions as herein mentioned. [Acts 1905, p. 25, sec. 1.]

Art. 699. Report, annual, of county or city treasurer to comptroller, requisites of.—It shall be the duty of the treasurer of each county in this state and of each city, whether incorporated under the general law or by special charter, to make an annual report to the comptroller of public accounts of this state on the first day of August of each year, showing the condition of the interest and sinking fund for each set of bonds of said county or city outstanding on the thirtieth day of June of each year, which said report shall be made under oath, and shall show:

First. The outstanding bonded indebtedness of said city or county, giving date when issued, the amount of each set of bonds, the rate of interest they bear and when they mature.

Second. The tax levy in force to provide for the interest and sinking fund on each set of said bonds.

Third. The amount on hand to the credit of the interest and sinking fund of each set of said bonds, showing whether in cash or securities.

Fourth. The amount received by the said fund since last report, and from what source.

Fifth. The disbursements from said fund since last report, and for what purpose.

Sixth. The amount of said bonds redeemed since last report, and the amount still outstanding. [Acts 1899, p. 45.]

Art. 700. Draft on sinking fund not to be honored by treasurer except for interest, redemption or investment.—No city or county treasurer shall honor any draft upon the interest and sinking fund provided for any of the bonds of such city or county, nor pay out nor divert any of the same, except for the purpose of paying the interest on such bonds or for redeeming the same, or for investment in such securities as may be provided by law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 701. Penalties for failure to report or for diversion or misapplication.—Any treasurer who shall fail to make the reports provided for in article 699, or who shall divert said fund or apply said fund for any other purpose than as permitted by article 700, shall be subject to a penalty of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered by the state, and, in addition thereto, shall be liable for the amount of such fund so diverted. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 702. Comptroller to notify attorney general, district or county attorney; suit to recover fund; payment into treasury.—It shall be the duty of the comptroller of public accounts, whenever the reports of any treasurer show that he has diverted said funds, or when he shall fail to make such reports, to notify the attorney general of the state, or the district attorney of the district in which such treasurer resides, or county attorney in counties in which there is no district attorney provided for by law, of the fact, who shall thereupon institute suit against such treasurer and his official bondsmen for the amount of such penalty and of said fund so diverted; and the amount of such penalty so recovered shall be paid into the state treasury, and the amount of the diverted fund so recovered shall be paid into the county or city treasury to the credit of the fund from which it was so diverted. [Id. sec. 3.]

TITLE 19

BRANDS, TRADE MARKS, ETC.

Art.
703. Trade marks of carbonated goods.
704. Disposition of penalty funds.
705. Infringements enjoined.
706. Trade mark to be filed.

Article 703. [318a] Trade marks of carbonated goods, how established.—All manufacturers or dealers in carbonated goods, mineral waters, soda water, wine, cider, or other beverage, or manufacturers of medicine or other compound requiring the use of kegs, casks, barrels, boxes, syphons, bottles, or any other vessels for containers, upon which the names, brands, marks, or trade marks, or other designation of ownership or proprietorship is stamped, engraved, etched, blown in, impressed, or otherwise produced upon such boxes, syphons, bottles, or any other vessels for containers, may file in the office of the county clerk of the county in which the principal place or office of business is situated, a fac simile or description of the name or names, marks or devices, so used by such manufacturer or dealer in such wares herein enumerated, and cause such description to be published in a public newspaper published in such county for three successive weeks; and the act of so filing and causing to be recorded by the county clerk, and publishing, shall operate as a trade mark, securing to the said manufacturer the full protection of the law as a trade mark, entitling the said manufacturer to the sole and exclusive use in Texas of said mark, name, or device; for which services the clerk shall be allowed the sum of one dollar, to be paid by the party having such brands, etc., recorded. [Acts 1893, p. 125.]

Nature of trade-marks.—A trade-mark is a distinctive name, word, mark, emblem, design, symbol, or device used in lawful commerce to indicate or authenticate the source from which has come, or through which has passed, the chattel on or to which it is affixed. Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413, judgment reversed Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018.

Marks or names which may be acquired.—The words "Microbe Killer" on a label do not constitute a trade-mark; they being English words, in common use, and of fixed meaning. Alff v. Radam, 77 T. 530, 14 S. W. 164, 9 L. R. A. 145, 19 Am. St. Rep. 792. See Radam v. Capital Microbe Destroyer Co., 81 T. 122, 16 S. W. 990, 26 Am. St. Rep. 783.

The word "nickle" or "nickel," used by a general merchant whose wares are not as a rule sold for a nickel (five cents), is not a term descriptive of such business; and hence an exclusive right in such word may be acquired. Duke v. Cleaver, 19 C. A. 218, 46 S. W. 1128.

—— Geographical names.—A geographical name cannot be used exclusively as a trade-mark. Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413, judgment reversed Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018.

The purchaser of the business of a wholesale grocer, adopting the words "Georgia Coon," held entitled to restrain a third person from using the word "Coon." Id.

Persons who may acquire.—Any person or corporation capable of holding title to personalty may acquire the right to a trade-mark. Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413, judgment reversed Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018.

Assignments.—One Magale, a wholesale dealer in Monarch whisky, stamped on the barrels "Magale's Monarch Whisky." After his death, the successor to his business conducted it in Magale's name. Held that, on such successor's ceasing to do business, an assignment by him of such brand and trade-mark was against public policy. Mayer v. Flanagan, 12 C. A. 405, 34 S. W. 785. See Duke v. Cleaver, 19 C. A. 218, 46 S. W. 1128.

The assignment of a trade-mark to confer right on the assignee must be accompanied by a continuance of the use of the trade-mark. Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413, judgment reversed Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018.

Art. 704. [318b] Disposition of penalty funds.—All moneys collected as fines or penalty, under the provisions of this chapter, shall be returned by the justice of the peace into the county treasury, to become a part of the public road fund. [Id.]

Art. 705. [318c] Infringement of trade mark may be enjoined.—Every person, association or union of workingmen, incorporated or unincorporated, having adopted a label, trade mark, design, device, imprint or form of advertisement, as aforesaid, may proceed by suit to enjoin the wrongful manufacture, use, display or sale of any such label, trade mark, design, device, imprint or form of advertisement, and the manufacture, use, display or sale of any such counterfeit or imitation; and all courts having jurisdiction thereof shall grant injunctions to restrain such manufacture, use, display or sale, and shall award the plaintiff in such suit such damages resulting from such wrongful manufacture, use, display or sale as by him may have been sustained. Where such association or union is not incorporated suits under this law may be commenced and prosecuted by any officer or member of such association or union in his own name, for himself and for the use and benefit of such association or union. [Act 1895, p. 108.]

Knowledge or intent.—The testimony of defendant as to the intent with which the infringing trade-mark was adopted, or what suggested it, was immaterial. Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413, judgment reversed Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018.

Infringement may be as to color, size, and form, and equity will restrain the use of an infringing mark regardless of the intent with which it is being used. Id.

Imitation or simulation.—A yellow label, with a black border, containing the words "Microbe Destroyer," held, not a fraudulent imitation of a white label with a red border, containing the words "Microbe Killer." Alff v. Radam, 77 T. 530, 14 S. W. 164, 9 L. R. A. 145, 19 Am. St. Rep. 792.

The standard of comparison should be the trade-mark registered and in use when the injunction suit was filed. Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018, reversing judgment Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413.

A competitor held entitled to have defendant's use of a similar name enjoined. Scanlan & Bartell v. Williams, 53 C. A. 28, 114 S. W. 862.

Deception of public.—"Microbe Destroyer" and "Microbe Killer" held not so similar as to deceive the public. Radam v. Capital Microbe Destroyer Co., 81 T. 122, 16 S. W. 990, 26 Am. St. Rep. 783.

Any use of the key or catchword in a trade-mark in a way calculated to deceive is an infringement. Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413, judgment reversed Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018.

The use by S. & B. of the name of "S. Williams" in connection with their business held calculated to mislead the public generally, so as to confuse their business with that of their competitor "C. C. Williams." Scanlan & Bartell v. Williams, 53 C. A. 28, 114 S. W. 862.

The use of a label will not be restrained, unless the printed words, figures, lines, and devices are so similar that one exercising such reasonable observation as the public might be expected to use would mistake the one for the other. Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018, reversing judgment Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413.

Defenses—Misrepresentations of plaintiff.—The use of the words "genuine molasses," on molasses not pure cane molasses, held not such a deception as to prevent a wholesale grocer from obtaining relief against one infringing the trade-mark. Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413, judgment reversed Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018.

Pleading.—See Radam v. Capital Microbe Destroyer Co., 81 T. 122, 16 S. W. 990, 26 Am. St. Rep. 783; Goodman v. Bohls, 3 C. A. 183, 22 S. W. 11.

Evidence.—See Radam v. Capital Microbe Destroyer Co., 81 T. 122, 16 S. W. 990, 26 Am. St. Rep. 783.

Instructions and questions for jury.—See Goodman v. Bohls, 3 C. A. 183, 22 S. W. 11; Caffarelli Bros. v. Western Grocer Co., 102 T. 104, 127 S. W. 1018, reversing judgment Western Grocer Co. v. Caffarelli Bros. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 413.

Judgment and review.—See Radam v. Capital Microbe Destroyer Co., 81 T. 122, 16 S. W. 990, 26 Am. St. Rep. 783.

Art. 706. [318d] Trade mark to be filed, etc.—Every person, association or union of workingmen, incorporated or unincorporated, that has heretofore or shall hereafter adopt a label, trade mark, design, device, imprint or form of advertisement, shall file the same in the office of the secretary of state by leaving two copies, counterparts or fac similes thereof, with the secretary of state, and said secretary shall deliver back to such person, association or union so filing the same one of said copies, counterparts or fac similes, along with and attached to a duly attested certificate of the filing of same, for which he shall receive a fee of one dollar from such person, association or union. Such certificate of filing shall in all suits and prosecutions under this chapter be sufficient proof of the adoption of such label, trade mark, design, device, imprint or form of advertisement, and of the right of such person, association or union to adopt the same. No label, trade mark, design, device, imprint or form of advertisements shall be filed as aforesaid that would probably be mistaken for a label, trade mark, design, device, imprint or form of advertisement already of record; provided, that no person or associations shall be permitted to register as a label, trade mark, design, device, imprint or form of advertisement any emblem, design or resemblance thereto that has been adopted or used by any charitable, benevolent or religious society or association without their consent; and provided, further, that all persons, institutions or associations now using a label, trade mark, design, device, imprint or form of advertisement shall have thirty days time after this law takes effect in which to file such label, trade mark, design, device, imprint or form of advertisement under the provisions of this law, before the same can be registered by others. 1. Who are common carriers.—The liability of a ferryman is that of a common carrier. Albright v. Penn, 14 T. 290. An express company transferring baggage in a city is liable as a common carrier. Jones v. Priester, 1 App. C. C. §§ 613, 614.

A common carrier is one who is regularly or occasionally engaged in the business of carrying goods for others as a public employment; he must undertake to carry goods of the kind to which his business is confined for persons generally, and he must hold himself out as ready to engage in the transportation of goods for hire as a business, and not as a casual occupation. Haynie v. Baylor, 18 T. 498; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 1 App. C. C. § 1261.

Article 10, section 2, of the constitution, fixes the status of railroad companies as common carriers, and limits the power of the legislature to vary their liability from that which pertains to common carriers as distinguished from private carriers. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 1 App. C. C. § 1258.

2. Express companies.—See Title 56.

3. Railroads.—See Title 115.

4. Carriage of passengers—What law governs.—A contract to carry a passenger and his baggage to his destination and return, made by the initial carrier in Texas, is governed by the laws of this state. Mexican Nat. R. Co. v. Ware (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 343.

A statute of New Mexico requiring a party claiming damages for injury to file notice thereof within 90 days does not affect the right of recovery for injuries received in New Mexico where asserted under a contract to safely carry a passenger made in Texas; the passenger being a nonresident of New Mexico. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Landon (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 744.

A contract with a carrier requiring suit for injuries to one accompanying a shipment of stock to be brought within a specified time affects only the remedy, and is governed by the law of the forum. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dysart (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1047.

A contract of carriage evidenced by a ticket is governed by the law of the state where made. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Wiseman (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 793.

5. —— Who are passengers in general.—One held a street car passenger. Citizens' R. Co. v. Farley (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 94.

6. —— Payment of fare.—One boarding a train without a ticket, intending to pay, is a passenger. Railway Co. v. Washington (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 719.

A person who boards a car in a passenger train, able and intending to pay his fare, is a passenger. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 350.

One having a ticket, and boarding a wrong train by mistake, held a passenger, and not a trespasser. Gary v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 17 C. A. 129, 42 S. W. 576.

One who without a ticket boards a passenger train, prepared to pay his fare, is not a passenger if he takes passage on a part of the train not intended for passengers. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams, 91 T. 255, 42 S. W. 855.

If one boarded a passenger train without a ticket, but with money, intending to pay his fare, and paid it or would have done so had he been given an opportunity, he was a passenger. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1076.

A person who boarded a train intending to pay his fare when demanded by the person entitled to receive it, and who would have paid it upon such demand to the conductor, was a "passenger," and not a "trespasser," although he had already delivered a sum equivalent to his fare to the porter, who had no authority to collect fares. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 519.

7. —— Employés of others carried under contract with carrier.—Where a lumber company made arrangements with the defendant railway company for the transportation of its employés to and from work, an employé riding to work on a logging train was entitled to the rights of a passenger. Trinity Val. R. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1085.

An agent of an express company, entitled to ride on trains pursuant to a contract between the company and the railroad company, held a passenger while on the train in the discharge of his duties. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Blalack (Sup.) 147 S. W. 559, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 706.

Where the owner of a logging railroad carried, without compensation, one seeking employment with a contractor extending the line, the possibility that the owner might be benefited by the employment is too remote to afford any consideration for the transportation. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Sup.) 155 S. W. 179.

8. —— Invitation or acquiescence of carrier's employé.—One riding on a freight train by permission of a brakeman is not a passenger. Railway Co. v. Black, 87 T. 161, 27 S. W. 118.

A person riding on a switch-engine by permission of the engineer is not a passenger, and he cannot recover for personal injuries resulting from his contributory negligence. Wilcox v. Railway Co., 11 C. A. 487, 33 S. W. 379.

Where plaintiff, on a freight train with consent of the brakeman, to whom he had paid fare, was knocked off by such brakeman, held, a verdict for plaintiff was justified. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Black, 23 C. A. 119, 57 S. W. 330.

One riding on the bumper of a crowded street car, according to the usual practice allowed by the company, whose conductor does not try to prevent it, but takes his fare and warns him to be careful, is a passenger. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Happ, 57 C. A. 427, 122 S. W. 610.

In an action against a railroad, held, that at the time the conductor made a suggestion that he should carry children who had gone beyond their destination to the end of the division, and then return them next day, on which the action for damages was based, he was acting within the apparent scope of his authority, so as to confer upon the children the rights of passengers. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Pope (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1185.

9. —— Commencement and termination of relation.—A through passenger, leaving the train at an intermediate station, may re-enter the train, and when attempting to do so is entitled to protection as a passenger. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Humphreys, 25 C. A. 401, 62 S. W. 791.

Passenger on train remains such after alighting, and while on company's premises, for such time as is reasonably necessary to enable him to leave the grounds. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Dick, 26 C. A. 256, 63 S. W. 895; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Missildine (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 245.

A passenger removed from a railroad company's depot on the completion of her journey over its line, who re-enters the depot several days thereafter and procures a ticket to enable her to resume her journey from the depot of another company, is not a passenger of the former company while awaiting at its depot the departure of the other company's train, and the former company only owes the duty of ordinary care. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Duncan, 55 C. A. 440, 121 S. W. 362.

Relation of carrier and passenger between a railway company and a railway mail clerk held to have continued after he alighted, making the company liable for an assault by an employé. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Cassidy (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 389.

10. Tickets.—When, through the carelessness or inattention of the ticket agent, a person applying therefor fails to get a ticket in time to take passage on a train about to stop at the station, the company is responsible for the damages resulting from such negligence. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Rand, 1 App. C. C. § 255.

Railroad companies are not required to stop train at stations to allow passengers to get off and purchase ticket to another station. Easton v. Waters, 4 App. C. C. § 71, 16 S. W. 540.

A purchaser of an excursion ticket may be required to identify himself when demanding a return passage. Abram v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 83 T. 61, 18 S. W. 321.

Carrier held liable where his agent sells a passenger a ticket to the wrong place, and the passenger, on discovering the mistake, used due care in selecting a route from the place of discovery to the desired designation, though there was a better one. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 833.

Failure of railroad company to hold train while passenger was purchasing ticket held negligence. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Germany (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 586.

Railway excursion ticket held to have been presented before it had expired. Rutherford v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co., 28 C. A. 625, 67 S. W. 161.

Where an agent, authorized to sell tickets over a railroad, sold a ticket showing on its face that the passenger was entitled to passage to a point named therein, and the ticket was honored by the railroad on the going trip, and there was no claim that the agent was without authority to sell the ticket or direct how it should be signed to make it valid for the return trip, his representation as to how the ticket should be signed was binding on the railroad company. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 154, judgment reversed 104 T. 82, 133 S. W. 868.

A passenger held entitled to recover damages resulting from the refusal of the conductor to accept his ticket. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Wiseman (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 793.

The high degree of care which a carrier owes to its passengers does not apply in the making of a contract of carriage, and in the making of a contract by a sale of a ticket the carrier is held to the exercise of ordinary care only. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Wiggins (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1131.

11. —— Nature and effect of ticket.—A person holding a first-class ticket is entitled to be carried in cars and with as good accommodations as are provided for other persons of the same sex; when these are denied, the company is responsible in damages for any actual inconvenience and bodily injury, including both mental and physical pain, and for injury to the feelings. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Johnson, 2 App. C. C. § 186.

A railroad ticket held prima facie evidence of a contract for carriage between certain points. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ing, 29 C. A. 398, 68 S. W. 722.

Sale of a ticket to one who desired to ride on a freight train, without mentioning that a special permit was required, did not create an unconditional contract to carry the passenger. Ellis v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 30 C. A. 172, 70 S. W. 114.

Where a party purchased a ticket for passage over defendants' roads, they assumed the relation of common carrier toward her, and thereby assumed to perform all the duties of such carrier, and it is immaterial, so far as its liability for injuries is concerned, whether these duties arose by express stipulation or by a contract which necessarily involved their observance. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Landon (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 744.

12. —— Passes.—In issuing a drover's pass the drover has a right to assume that the railroad agent knew the rules of his company and is not bound to read the printed matter on the back of the pass. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Newman, 17 C. A. 606, 43 S. W. 915.

A signed condition on a railroad pass that the person using the same accepts "all risk of accident and damage to person and property" is void as against public policy. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Flood (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 331.

The anti-free pass law does not prevent carriers from carrying a passenger free to the next station beyond his destination where he has been carried beyond by mistake. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 341.

The agreement of a contract for furnishing ties for a railroad, part to be delivered in and part out of the state, in effect before, and therefore unaffected by, the Texas anti-pass law, that as part consideration for furnishing them the railroad shall furnish transportation over its line to the employés of the tie company while performing the contract, is not impaired by the provision that the transportation shall not be furnished if the agreement to do shall be held invalid under the law of any state. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Mitchell-Crittenden Tie Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1191.

13. —— Conditions in tickets.—When a railroad ticket limits the time within which it must be used, it will not entitle the owner to a passage after the expiration of that time. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. McDonald, 2 App. C. C. § 163.

Where a return ticket is sold, a reasonable time must be allowed for the trip and return. The agreement of the parties as to time controls, although in the ticket it is limited to a shorter period. Railway Co. v. Mackie, 71 T. 494, 9 S. W. 451, 1 L. R. A. 667, 10 Am. St. Rep. 766; Railway Co. v. Rather, 21 S. W. 957, 3 C. A. 72; Railway Co. v. Wright, 21 S. W. 400, 2 C. A. 463; Railway Co. v. Kinnebrew, 27 S. W. 631, 7 C. A. 549; Railway Co. v. Martino, 18 S. W. 1069, 21 S. W. 781, 2 C. A. 634; Railway Co. v. Dennis, 23 S. W. 400, 4 C. A. 90; Railway Co. v. Halbrook, 12 C. A. 475, 33 S. W. 1028.

The holder of a ticket for continuous passage limited as to route must conform to its requirements. Cases may arise in which by accident or otherwise continuous transit may be interrupted without fault on his part, when he would be entitled to resume his journey and to be transported as though no interruption had occurred. Railway Co. v. Henry, 84 T. 678, 19 S. W. 870, 16 L. R. A. 318.

As to the construction of a limited ticket, see Railway Co. v. Powell, 13 C. A. 212, 35 S. W. 841.

A ticket stamped good for one continuous passage held to entitle the holder only to a passage beginning on its date. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Demilley (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 147.

Terms of railroad ticket construed, and held to limit the right to begin a journey to the day of its date. Demilley v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 91 T. 215, 42 S. W. 540.

A passenger, holding a return ticket which required that it should be stamped at point of destination, can not complain of the refusal of the conductor to accept it on the return trip, he having failed to have it stamped. H. & T. C. R. Co. v. Arey, 18 C. A. 457, 44 S. W. 984.

A ticket, stipulating for return passage on the identification of the passenger, had on its margin a description of the passenger, and stipulated that the ticket would not be accepted unless the contract was signed by the person using it. Held, that the signature was not the only means of identification, and the agent authorized to approve the ticket and make it valid for the return trip could not refuse to hear other facts on the subject of identification. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 154, judgment reversed, 104 T. 82, 133 S. W. 868.

A purchaser of a reduced rate ticket which required him to identify himself as the original purchaser to the officers of the carrier has the burden of such identification, and, unless he complies with it, cannot recover for ejection. Jones v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 213.

14. —— Transfer.—A ticket sold at a reduced rate under an agreement that it should not be transferred can be taken up by the conductor if presented by any one except the original buyer. Levinson v. T. & N. R. Co., 17 C. A. 617, 43 S. W. 901; Id.; (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1032.

In the absence of constitutional or statutory prohibition, or a stipulation to the contrary on the face thereof, a railroad passenger ticket is transferable. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ing, 29 C. A. 398, 68 S. W. 722.

15. —— Transportation by connecting carrier.—A coupon round-trip passenger ticket construed, and held, that the ticket and each coupon constituted a separate contract between the passenger and each particular carrier over which the coupon was good for transportation. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Wiseman (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 793.

An initial carrier issuing a round-trip coupon passenger ticket held to make the agent of the terminal carrier the agent to prepare the ticket for the return trip. Id.

Condition of a contract of interstate carriage of a passenger that the seller should not be responsible beyond its own line for injury to the passenger held valid, and to prevent recovery for refusal of another line to honor the return ticket. Clark v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 716.

One railroad company which allowed another company to sell tickets over its line is bound to honor a ticket sold by the first company, where the purchaser had no notice of the limitation on the first company's authority. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1116.

16. Duties as to transportation.—A passenger on a railway train acquires the right only to be carried according to the custom of the road. Beauchamp v. Railway Co., 56 T. 239; Railway Co. v. Hassell, 62 T. 256, 50 Am. Rep. 525.

When, without negligence, carrier is not bound to transport passengers on schedule time. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Rogers, 16 C. A. 19, 40 S. W. 201.

17. —— Accommodations during transit.—A carrier must exercise as high a degree of care for the safety of passengers in providing seats in its cars as it does in providing the cars or the roadbed, or in the running of its trains. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Anthony, 24 C. A. 9, 57 S. W. 897.

A railroad company is bound to exercise more than ordinary care to provide its passengers with seats. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Morris (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 813.

Allowing a passenger to board a car, when there is no seat for him held not negligence per se. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bryant, 31 C. A. 483, 72 S. W. 885.

18. —— Discharging and setting down passengers.—When a passenger is negligently put off at a wrong station, no fault being imputable to him, he can recover for direct, proximate, natural and probable damages. Railway Co. v. Terry, 62 T. 380, 50 Am. Rep. 529; Car Co. v. McDonald, 2 C. A. 322, 21 S. W. 945; Railway Co. v. Martino, 2 C. A. 634, 18 S. W. 1066, 21 S. W. 781; Railway Co. v. Cole, 66 T. 562, 11 S. W. 629; Railway Co. v. Woods, 28 S. W. 416, 8 C. A. 462; Railway Co. v. Hartnett (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 1057.

Where a railroad company has carried a passenger beyond his destination it is responsible in damages for his discomfort, inconvenience, sickness, expenses and charges shown to have been the direct natural and proximate result of such breach of contract. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Terry, 62 T. 380, 50 Am. Rep. 529; H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Rand, 1 App. C. C. § 255.

It is the duty of a railway company, in order to afford the opportunity to passengers to leave the cars at their places of destination, to have announced the names of the different stations upon the arrival of the train, and then stop their train a sufficient length of time for passengers to get off without danger or injury to their persons. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Pollard, 2 App. C. C. § 484.

A railway company sold a passenger a ticket to G.; the train did not stop at G., and the passenger was put off at W. at midnight. Held, the company's first breach of duty was in selling the passenger a ticket to G., when the train did not stop at that place. After finding it impossible to put the passenger off at G., it was its duty to leave her at the nearest station where she could obtain comfortable accommodations, and from which she could travel with the least delay to G. This having been done, it was the passenger's duty, to use ordinary care to prevent injuries to herself greater than the situation demanded. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Cole, 66 T. 562, 1 S. W. 629.

A passenger on a railway train has no right to demand that he be put off at a point where there is no regular station, unless he has contracted for that privilege with some agent of the company having the real or apparent power to make such a contract, which may be inferred from a frequent exercise of such power by an agent within the knowledge of the principal. Hull v. E. L. & R. R. R. Co., 66 T. 619, 2 S. W. 831.

As to obligations of carrier to person remaining on the train through his own fault, after reaching his place of destination, see Railway Co. v. James, 82 T. 306, 18 S. W. 589, 15 L. R. A. 347; Conwill v. Railway Co., 85 T. 96, 19 S. W. 1017; Railway Co. v. Woods, 8 T. 462, 28 S. W. 416.

A passenger desiring to get off at a flag station, where trains do not stop unless request is made of the conductor, must notify the conductor of his desire to get off. Railway Co. v. Ryan, 4 App. C. C. § 305, 18 S. W. 866.

When a train has been stopped to allow passengers to get off, it is negligence set it in motion without apprising the passengers. Railway Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 167; Railway Co. v. Roundtree (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 989.

It is not the duty of the conductor of a passenger train to arouse sleeping passengers. Railway Co. v. Perry, 27 S. W. 496, 8 C. A. 78; Railway Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1113; Same v. James, 82 T. 306, 18 S. W. 589, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 347.

A conductor cannot bind the company by his promise to give a passenger special notice of the arrival of the train at a named regular depot. Railway Co. v. McCullough (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 285.

Statute requiring railroad trains to be stopped at crossings does not render company liable to a passenger for failure to stop caused by unavoidable accident. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 167.

Carrier held liable for failure to stop at a regular station. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McKenzie (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 831.

In an action to recover for placing plaintiff on the wrong train, an instruction that defendant's contract of carriage was complete when it transported the passenger to its depot, and it was not liable for any act occurring thereafter, held proper. Davis v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 25 C. A. 8, 59 S. W. 844.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, held proper to instruct that the conductor had authority to contract to stop the train at or near a station. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 106, 61 S. W. 726.

The mere fact that a railroad company receives a passenger without protest on a train which did not stop at the station to which she had a ticket, and she did not know that it did not stop there, did not make the company liable. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Campbell, 30 C. A. 35, 69 S. W. 451.

A passenger on a street car held entitled to damages for being carried past her destination against her will, and insulted by the motorman. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 309.

A passenger, who knows that the station of his destination has been reached, must promptly alight, though the trainmen failed to call the station, and, where he fails to promptly alight, he cannot rely on the failure of the trainmen to announce the station as furnishing him with a cause of action for carrying him beyond the station. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Bagby (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 254.

A carrier selling a passenger a ticket to a station held to contract to transport him to the station and to allow him a reasonable time to alight. Renfro v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 820.

Carrier's liability for negligently and incorrectly announcing the name of the station, or permitting a passenger to leave the train at a wrong station, stated. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 722.

19. Action for breach of contract to carry—Presumptions and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

20. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence in an action by a passenger against a railroad for setting her down at the wrong station held not to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Terry, 27 C. A. 341, 65 S. W. 697.

Evidence held insufficient to conclusively prove that a railroad agent promised that a certain train would stop at the point of destination of a ticket sold by him. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Kilgo (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 556.

In an action for carrying a passenger past his destination, evidence held to show that he was a resident of another county from that in which the suit was brought. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 130.

21. —— Damages.—Where a passenger is carried a short distance beyond the regular station in the nighttime, she can recover only for the extra inconvenience caused thereby. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McKenzie (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 831.

As to measure of damages resulting from failure to stop at a depot to a passenger desiring transportation. Railway Co. v. Cleveland (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 687.

Plaintiff held not entitled to recover for mental suffering of his wife, carried by defendants to the wrong station, under the evidence.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 833.

$500 damages for compelling a woman having a first-class ticket to travel in a car with drunken and disorderly men held not excessive. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sherbert (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 639.

A railroad company held liable for mental anguish suffered by a passenger, caused by her having received the wrong ticket. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Armstrong, 93 T. 31, 51 S. W. 835.

Where plaintiff suffered from exposure in returning to her destination after having been carried by, by a carrier, instruction that she could not recover for sickness caused thereby held properly refused. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ricketts, 96 T. 68, 70 S. W. 315.

Exemplary damages cannot be recovered for the malicious acts of railroad agents in failing or refusing to carry a passenger, where ratification is not shown. Townsend v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 71, 88 S. W. 302.

Damages for the breach of a contract for carriage of a passenger resulting from a derailment are the same as are recoverable in an action of tort on the same facts. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Landon (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 744.

The failure of a passenger to pay fare on the refusal of the conductor to accept his ticket held not a matter for consideration in mitigation of the damages sustained by the passenger. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Wiseman (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 793.

A carrier refusing to give a passenger an opportunity to reboard a train held guilty of an actionable breach of duty and liable to compensatory damages. Kirkland v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 505.

A railway company's liability for failure to take up a passenger at a station where a train was scheduled to stop held limited to such direct and consequential damages as were reasonably contemplated by the parties, excluding liability for additional suffering from a physical condition of which the company had no knowledge. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Thigpen (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 848.

The damages sustained by a passenger compelled to walk back because of the failure of the carrier's agent to sell him a proper ticket are not recoverable because too remote. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Wiggins (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1131.

22. Personal injuries—Care required in general.—A carrier of passengers is required to exercise the utmost care which can be exercised under all circumstances, short of a warranty of the safety of the passengers. Railway Co. v. Finley, 79 T. 85, 15 S. W. 266; Railway Co. v. Russell, 8 C. A. 578, 28 S. W. 1042; Railway Co. v. Kennedy, 12 C. A. 654, 35 S. W. 335.

A carrier of passengers by stage must use the utmost care for their safety, and it is his duty to employ a competent driver, and he is liable for injuries occasioned by the negligence of the driver. Gallagher v. Bowie, 66 T. 265, 17 S. W. 407.

A carrier of a passenger is not an insurer against personal injuries caused by a rough place in its road-bed. Railway Co. v. Killebrew (Sup.) 20 S. W. 182.

The measure of care of passengers is that high degree of care which cautious, prudent persons, skilled in the particular business, would commonly use under like circumstances. Dallas Ry. Co. v. Randolph, 27 S. W. 925, 8 C. A. 213; Dillingham v. Wood, 27 S. W. 1074, 8 C. A. 71; Railway Co. v. Dotson, 15 C. A. 73, 38 S. W. 642.

Carriers of passengers must exercise a high degree of care to protect them from violence and insults. Railway Co. v. Russell, 8 C. A. 578, 28 S. W. 1042.

Instruction that carrier of passengers must use "utmost care" held correct. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 16 C. A. 93, 40 S. W. 608.

A carrier must exercise such care of passengers as used by a very prudent, cautious, and competent person. Gary v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 17 C. A. 129, 42 S. W. 576.

A charge that carriers of passengers owed no duty to passengers who move from one car to another while train is in motion held properly refused. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Choate, 22 C. A. 618, 56 S. W. 214.

In an instruction stating that it was defendant's duty to exercise such care as a humane person of ordinary prudence would use, etc., the use of the word "humane" was error. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Peterson, 24 C. A. 548, 60 S. W. 275.

An instruction that a railroad company must exercise the highest degree of care for the safety of its passengers held proper. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. George (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 313.

A charge, in an action against a railroad company for injuries sustained by a passenger, held erroneous, on the ground that it imposed too high a degree of care. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Jumper, 24 C. A. 671, 60 S. W. 797; St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Byers (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 558.

A railroad's duty to its passengers is to exercise that high degree of care and prudence that would be used by very cautious, prudent, and competent persons under like circumstances; but it was not error to refuse to use the expression "highest degree of care" in instructions. Williams v. International & G. N. R. Co., 28 C. A. 503, 67 S. W. 1085.

It is the duty of a railroad company to use that high degree of care for the protection of its passengers which would be exercised by very cautious, prudent, and competent persons under similar circumstances, in providing necessary heat, water, and seats for the protection of their health. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Campbell, 30 C. A. 35, 69 S. W. 451.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, a charge that it was defendant's duty to exercise such a high degree of foresight as would have been used by other competent persons under similar circumstances held improperly refused. Arrington v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 551.

An instruction requiring of the carrier only the use of that high degree of care for the safety of its passengers that would be exercised by a prudent person under like circumstances held erroneous. Knauff v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1011.

Carriers are not absolute insurers of the safe carriage of passengers, but are only held to the exercise of a high degree of care. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bush, 104 T. 26, 133 S. W. 245, 32 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1201, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 201.

Where plaintiff's decedent was riding on a car in defendant's logging train, the defendant at least owed him ordinary care to transport him safely, unless it was released by the contract of passage. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 635.

A carrier must use a very high degree of care and watchfulness for the safety of its passengers. Adams v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 437.

Duty of a common carrier of passengers stated. Dallas Consol. Electric St. R. Co. v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1134.

A carrier is charged with the highest degree of care towards its passengers, and where its servants fail to use such degree of care it must respond for all proper damages sustained by the passengers thereby. Kirkland v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 505.

A carrier of passengers is bound to use the care that a very cautious, prudent, and competent person would exercise under the same circumstances. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Keeling (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 108.

A carrier is not required to adopt all possible precautions, or to exercise the utmost diligence which human ingenuity can imagine, to avert injury to a passenger. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Twichell (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 319.

A railroad company owes the highest degree of care that a very cautious, competent, and prudent person would exercise under the same or similar circumstances to protect its passengers from injury. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 709.

In order to hold a carrier liable for injuries, it was not essential that it must have anticipated the precise injury or precise person injured, but was sufficient that it ought to have anticipated a similar injury to some one similarly situated. Trinity & B. V. R. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

The high degree of care which a carrier owes to its passengers does not apply in the making of a contract of carriage, and in the making of a contract by a sale of a ticket the carrier is held to the exercise of ordinary care only. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Wiggins (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1131.

23. —— Elevators.—The owner of an elevator owes to a passenger the high degree of care generally owing by a common carrier. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Hanks (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 147, judgment reversed 104 T. 320, 137 S. W. 1120.

An owner of a passenger elevator operated in his office building, though not properly a carrier of passengers, must exercise a very high degree of care for the safety of persons carried by the elevator. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Hanks, 104 T. 320, 137 S. W. 1120.

24. —— Freight or mixed trains.—As to rights of passengers on freight train, see Railway Co. v. Black, 87 T. 160, 27 S. W. 118.

As to the liabilities of railway companies to person riding on freight trains, see Railway Co. v. Moore, 49 T. 47, 30 Am. Rep. 98; Railway Co. v. Cock, 68 T. 717, 5 S. W. 635; Railway Co. v. Campbell, 76 T. 174, 13 S. W. 19; Railway Co. v. Black, 87 T. 160, 27 S. W. 118; Railway Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 1042.

Negligence imputed to railway company, when. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Davidson, 21 S. W. 68, 3 C. A. 542; Railway Co. v. Smith, 74 T. 276, 11 S. W. 1104; Railway Co. v. Brazzill, 78 T. 314, 14 S. W. 609; Railway Co. v. Killebrew (Sup.) 20 S. W. 182.

Recovery cannot be had for injury to one on freight train in violation of the railroad's rules which the passenger knew it was trying to enforce. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 631.

Liability of railroad company to passenger riding on freight train against regulations determined. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Norris (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 708.

Where a freight train, on which plaintiff was riding, broke in two, and, through negligence of the operatives after the parting of the train, collision resulted, a charge that persons riding on freight trains assumed the extra danger necessarily incident to traveling on freight trains held not objectionable. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Rogers, 24 C. A. 382, 60 S. W. 61.

Where a freight train, on which plaintiff was riding as a passenger, broke in two, and through negligence of the train operatives a collision resulted, and plaintiff was injured, it was proper to charge that, while railroad companies are not insurers of the safety of passengers, they are required to use the utmost care to provide for their safety. Id.

In an action for injuries to a passenger on a freight train, an instruction that he could not recover if the jerking by which he was injured was only such as was "necessary" held not erroneous. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 32 C. A. 112, 72 S. W. 81.

Although a passenger on a freight train is subject to greater inconvenience and exposure to danger, there is no relaxation of the rule requiring the high degree of care which is due to those who travel on regular passenger trains. Lewis v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1006.

A carrier has the duty to exercise such care toward a passenger, as a very cautious or prudent person in a like business would exercise, under like circumstances, and such care is due by the servants of a railway company to its passengers, whether on a freight or passenger train. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Trower (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 588.

The duty of a railroad company operating a mixed train held bound to exercise the highest care for the safety of passengers consistent with the operation of that kind of train. Texas Mexican R. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 565.

25. —— Care as to persons intoxicated or under disability.—The care which railway companies must exercise in regard to the safety of those who travel on their trains is not limited to such action as would not inflict injury by their negligence on persons of robust health and of ordinary physical ability; persons of feeble health, old and decrepit, are entitled to travel on their trains, and the company must exercise care accordingly. Railway Co. v. Rushing, 69 T. 306, 6 S. W. 834.

Where a passenger is so intoxicated as to cause him to talk unintelligibly, and to stagger as he walked, the porter in charge of the train who knows of the passenger's condition and of his going on the platform owes him the duty to protect him from danger. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 294.

A carrier receiving a passenger suffering from an infirmity or illness held required to exercise all care that a reasonably prudent person would to protect him. Adams v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 437.

Train employés held entitled to assume that an intoxicated passenger going upon the platform steps realized the danger of his position, and would use reasonable care to protect himself. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Robinson, 104 T. 482, 140 S. W. 434.

Where an insane person boarded a train without a caretaker, it was the carrier's duty to exercise a high degree of care for his safety and to restrain him, if necessary, to prevent him leaving the train. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Sears (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1003.

26. —— Care as to persons meeting passengers.—Carriers owe ordinary care to persons visiting their depots for the purpose of welcoming the arriving of or bidding adieu to parting friends. Railway Co. v. Miller, 8 C. A. 241, 27 S. W. 905; Railway Co. v. Best, 66 T. 116, 18 S. W. 224; Railway Co. v. Brown, 78 T. 398, 14 S. W. 1034; Railway Co. v. Reich (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 817.

27. —— Persons to whom liable.—A common carrier of goods is not liable for injuries to passengers received by its agents without authority. Cook v. H. D. N. Co., 76 T. 353, 13 S. W. 475, 18 Am. St. Rep. 52.

A railroad company is bound to furnish safe cars for the transportation of all persons, whether they be passengers or employés, who have the right to travel on them, and if a car be so improperly constructed as to make its use gross negligence, and such negligence is the proximate cause of an injury, an action for damages will lie. Railway Co. v. Ryan, 69 T. 665, 7 S. W. 83.

One who has a ticket, and by mistake gets on the train going in the wrong direction, is a passenger on such train in the sense that the railway company is liable to him for any injury that he may suffer under the same rules of law applicable to passengers. Gary v. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 17 C. A. 129, 42 S. W. 576.

A company must conduct its business so as not unnecessarily or causelessly to injure trespassers on train. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Black, 23 C. A. 119, 57 S. W. 330.

A railroad company is not liable for an injury to a trespasser on a train, though it occurred through gross negligence of its employés, where such employés had not notice of his presence on the train. Crawleigh v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 28 C. A. 260, 67 S. W. 140.

A passenger rightfully on a train, though in a wrong coach, held not a trespasser. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shelton, 30 C. A. 72, 69 S. W. 653.

The previous condition of a passenger held not to relieve the carrier of liability for injuries. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Byrd, 40 C. A. 315, 89 S. W. 991.

A railroad company is not liable for injuries occurring to a passenger during other parts of her journey before becoming a passenger on its road, unless they were caused by parties who were tort-feasors with it. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Duncan, 55 C. A. 440, 121 S. W. 362.

Where, in an action by a mother for injuries inflicted on her by the carrier's employés while ejecting her ten year old son from a train, it appeared that plaintiff wrongfully refused to pay fare for the son and forcibly resisted his eviction, she forfeited her rights as a passenger, and was only entitled to ordinary care for her safety. Williamson v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 502, 122 S. W. 897.

A railroad company held negligent in shutting the vestibule door on a person standing on the lower step of a coach, so that it was necessary for him to jump from the car after the train had started, whether he was a passenger or a trespasser. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1076.

28. —— Acts or omissions of employés.—In an action against a railway company for damages sustained by the plaintiff through the alleged negligence of the defendant in operating a hand-car on which the plaintiff was riding under an invitation from a servant of the railway company, the authority of the servant to thus use a hand-car must be shown in order to render the company liable. (This case distinguished from Prince v. International & Great Northern R. R. Co., 64 T. 144.) Railway Co. v. Cock, 68 T. 713, 5 S. W. 635, 2 Am. St. Rep. 521.

Negligence of a brakeman in not flagging back far enough held not excused by the fact that he went back as far as usual. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 16 C. A. 93, 40 S. W. 608.

Though railroad train first approaching crossing has right of way, persons in charge thereof are bound to use care to avoid collision with the other train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 167.

Carrier held liable for the act of the engineer in negligently starting a train, so as to put a person who had paid a brakeman for a ride in extra peril. Claiborne v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 21 C. A. 648, 53 S. W. 837, 57 S. W. 336.

Where plaintiff had paid a brakeman to ride on defendant's train, it was error, in an action for injuries, to charge that, if the injury was occasioned by the operation of the train in the usual manner, plaintiff could not recover. Id.

In an action by a passenger for injuries, an instruction that the failure of any employé having care of the tracks to exercise a high degree of care was negligence, held proper where the accident was due to open switch. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bibolet, 24 C. A. 4, 57 S. W. 974.

In an action for injuries received while trying to board a train, an instruction that it was the duty of the servants of the railroad to use the care that very prudent persons would have used under the circumstances is correct. Texas Midland R. R. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 44.

Where the relation of passenger had ceased, it was proper to apply the rule of ordinary care to the act of defendant's depot master in placing a passenger on the wrong train. Davis v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 25 C. A. 8, 59 S. W. 844.

It was not error to refuse a charge that the act of defendant's agent in giving erroneous information to a passenger was negligence per se. Id.

A carrier held liable to a passenger, injured in attempting to re-enter the train, where the servants in charge gave it a sudden jerk just as she was entering. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Humphreys, 25 C. A. 401, 62 S. W. 791.

Conductor held to be agent of railroad, so that his act in assaulting a passenger was the railroad's act. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. La Prelle, 27 C. A. 496, 65 S. W. 488.

A prior assault on a conductor by a passenger, which had terminated, is no defense to the railway company in an action for damages for an assault by the conductor. Id.

Provoking conduct, not justifying a defendant in inflicting injuries complained of, held insufficient to defeat plaintiff's entire cause of action. Id.

In an action against a railroad company, based on insulting and humiliating language of a conductor to a passenger, held immaterial that the conductor did not intend to charge the passenger with dishonesty. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Tarkington, 27 C. A. 353, 66 S. W. 137.

Language by conductor of a railroad to a passenger held insulting and calculated to humiliate and mortify. Id.

In an action against a railway for injuries to a passenger while standing on the platform, held, that an instruction should have been given that if the porter knew, or could have known, that plaintiff was leaning against the car door, and closed the door with ordinary care to prevent plaintiff falling, plaintiff could not recover. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ball, 28 C. A. 287, 66 S. W. 879.

The fact that a passenger on a railroad train has been drinking and is boisterous, though it may warrant his expulsion from the train, if his conduct is calculated to disturb other passengers, does not authorize an assault on the passenger by the conductor. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson, 29 C. A. 184, 68 S. W. 58.

Car employés were sufficiently shown to have known of the use of profane language by plaintiff's fellow passengers, and that plaintiff was suffering from its cold condition, where it appeared that the conductor had passed through the car taking up tickets, and that other employés had swept it out after plaintiff had become a passenger. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Kingston, 30 C. A. 24, 68 S. W. 518.

A railroad was negligent where the conductor in charge of the train failed to inform a passenger that there were coaches attached to the train in which he might continue his journey. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shelton, 30 C. A. 72, 69 S. W. 653.

A railroad was negligent where an employé, who knew that the platform was insufficiently lighted and of the existence of a space between it and the lower steps of the car, directed and commanded a passenger to leave the train while under motion. Id.

Failure of a motorman to stop a street car and ring the bell before reaching a railroad crossing, as required by ordinance, held negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Holt, 30 C. A. 330, 70 S. W. 591.

A switching crew, doing yard work at a connecting point for defendant and another railroad, which employs and pays them, collecting half the cost from defendant, held to be equally the servants of both companies, and defendant is liable for their acts, the same as if it employed them. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Shelton, 96 T. 301, 72 S. W. 165.

Knowledge of a railway ticket agent that he was infected with smallpox was knowledge of the carrier, though he was not the principal ticket agent at his station. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Raney, 44 C. A. 517, 99 S. W. 589.

Railway mail clerk, injured while attempting to alight from the mail coach of one railway, held to have no right of action against another railway because of a failure of its employé to warn him that the train was about to start. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Keeling, 51 C. A. 386, 112 S. W. 808.

A carrier must exercise a very high degree of care to protect its passengers from misconduct, assaults, or injury by its servants. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gerren, 57 C. A. 34, 121 S. W. 905.

It was immaterial what position in the railroad company's employ a servant held to whom a passenger reported the condition of the door of a car which subsequently injured the passenger, where such servant was superintending the movement of the cars, as the railroad company would be liable for his negligence no matter what position he held in its employ. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lane (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1066.

A prospective passenger may assume, if not notified to the contrary, that employés in charge of a train at a station have authority to act for the company as to assisting and protecting passengers. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Sears (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1019.

A common carrier is liable for an injury to a passenger where its agents know, or have the opportunity of knowing, of a threatened injury, and neglect to take proper means to prevent or mitigate the injury. Twichell v. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 243.

Where a servant in the employ of a railroad at one of its depots, not acting in his capacity as servant, but for a personal grudge, leaves the depot and goes upon a train, and assaults a passenger, the road is not liable. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bush, 104 T. 26, 133 S. W. 245, 32 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1201, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 201.

If a street car passenger assaulted the conductor, the company was not liable for an assault committed by the conductor in repelling such assault, if he only acted upon reasonable appearance of danger, and used no more violence than was reasonably necessary to protect himself. Houston Electric Co. v. Park (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 229.

One who takes passage upon a railroad train necessarily places himself at the mercy of the carrier and its servants, and must depend for his safety upon their prudence and caution. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 635.

Statements made by carrier's conductor to plaintiff's wife held to impute falsehood and disgraceful conduct to her, for which plaintiff was entitled to recover damages in case such statements distressed and humiliated her. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 216.

A carrier of passengers held liable for the act of a conductor in assaulting a negro whom the conductor had ejected. Dallas Consol. Electric St. R. Co. v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1134.

An instruction that a passenger was entitled to courteous treatment by the conductor held not error. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 508.

Where a railroad employé intrusted with a switch key leaves the switch lock insecurely fastened, his act is one within the ordinary scope of his employment, and the railroad company is liable for resulting damages. Texas & G. R. Co. v. Boren (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 295.

Where plaintiff pleaded and proved that he was in the baggage room by invitation, it was proper to instruct that he could recover if injured through failure of railroad employés to exercise ordinary care, though the agent in charge of the baggage room did not know of his intention to board the train. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 709.

In an action by a female passenger for damages based on a proposal, made by the conductor, to take her to the end of the division and see that she returned home the next day, at a time when she had been carried past her station, held, that his language was not insulting, and hence not actionable. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Pope (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1185.

The acts of the conductor, after the train had reached the end of the division, in taking plaintiff to a house, which bore an ill repute, were not done while engaged in the company's business; and hence the company was not liable. Id.

A conductor who, to enforce the rules of the carrier, armed himself with a pistol, acted within the scope of his employment and was chargeable with the duty of protecting passengers from all danger, that might reasonably result from his use or handling of the pistol. Texas Midland R. R. v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 973.

Where a union depot is owned by a railroad company which furnishes a gateman, such gateman is the agent of all railroads using the depot so far as the general public is concerned. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Humphries (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1174; Same v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1177.

Where plaintiff was caused to board defendant's train by the negligence of a union station gateman and defendant's brakeman in omitting to examine her ticket, which called for another road, she was a passenger on defendant's train and entitled to the high decree of care which defendant was required to exercise toward passengers. Id.

29. —— Acts of fellow passengers or third persons.—The duty of protection which the carrier owes to the passenger includes a responsibility for the unlawful acts of fellow passengers, when by the exercise of the highest degree of care these acts might have been foreseen and prevented. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Johnson, 2 App. C. C. § 188.

A passenger on a railway car who is injured by reason of the malicious act of one not in the employ of the railway company, whereby the car was derailed, cannot recover for the damage inflicted. Railway Co. v. Lee, 69 T. 556, 7 S. W. 324.

Passengers in a second-class car are entitled to protection against the acts of fellow-passengers to the extent that good conduct must be exacted on the part of persons inclined to use of vulgar and offensive language and conduct. Railway Co. v. Mackie, 71 T. 492, 9 S. W. 451, 1 L. R. A. 667, 10 Am. St. Rep. 766.

Where a railroad company permitted indecent and disorderly conduct in a car where plaintiff's wife was a passenger, and failed to provide better accommodations, held that it was liable for resulting damages. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 821.

A passenger may recover for mental suffering caused by vulgar and profane language of others permitted to remain in the car. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Perkins, 21 C. A. 508, 52 S. W. 124.

A female passenger held entitled to recover from a carrier for an assault and indignities offered her while in the carrier's waiting room by a disorderly person permitted to be there. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Phillio, 96 T. 18, 69 S. W. 994, 59 L. R. A. 392, 97 Am. St. Rep. 868.

A railroad company held not liable for an assault on a passenger while the train was stopping at a regular meal station and the crew eating their dinner. Thweatt v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 227, 71 S. W. 976.

A railroad company is not liable for injuries to a female passenger who is shocked and made sick by improper language and conduct of fellow passengers during the absence of its servants, when they have no reason to know or anticipate improper conduct. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Duncan, 55 C. A. 440, 121 S. W. 362.

A carrier must exercise a very high degree of care to protect its passengers from misconduct, assaults, or injury by third persons. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gerren, 57 C. A. 34, 121 S. W. 905.

A carrier was not liable for an assault by C., a passenger, on another passenger, though the conductor was informed that there was ill feeling between such passengers, and that an assault might occur, where C. and the person assaulted occupied separate coaches, and the conductor passed through the train several times to observe the conduct of C., and found that he was acting in a peaceable manner, and the assault, when made, was entirely unexpected. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Twichell (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 319.

Where a railroad conductor apprehended that a drunken passenger would do bodily injury to another passenger, and advised the latter to go into another car, the conductor was guilty of negligence in failing to protect plaintiff or eject the drunken passenger. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 355.

30. —— Act of God.—In an action by a passenger for injuries, a defense that the injury was caused by the act of God held not well taken. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bell, 24 C. A. 579, 58 S. W. 614.

31. —— Condition and use of premises.—See also notes under Arts. 6591, 6693.

As to negligence in the maintenance of a depot for passengers, see Railway Co. v. Reason, 61 T. 613; Dillingham v. Teeling (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1094; Railway Co. v. Wylie, 7 C. A. 96, 26 S. W. 89.

A railroad was negligent in maintaining a platform on which passengers were expected to alight, with a space of 12 or 13 inches between it and the lower steps of the car. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shelton, 30 C. A. 72, 69 S. W. 653.

32. —— Taking up passengers.—If one entitled to the rights of a passenger on a railway train is, without being guilty of contributory negligence, injured in the effort to get on the train, which has started from the stopping place before the time designated to the passenger by the conductor in charge, the company is liable in damages for the injury. Railway Co. v. Davidson, 68 T. 370, 4 S. W. 636.

Starting train before passengers have time to get aboard, and leaving oil bucket so near train as to interfere with passengers boarding train, held negligence, warranting recovery by a passenger injured thereby. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Mayfield, 23 C. A. 415, 56 S. W. 942.

An instruction, in an action for personal injuries received while trying to board a train, that, if no signal had been given and no invitation extended by a servant of the railroad to passengers to get aboard the train, plaintiff could not recover, was erroneous. Texas Midland R. R. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 44.

Evidence held to warrant a recovery by a father for injuries to his minor son from the premature starting of a train. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Byers (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1009.

In general, railroad companies should stop their trains at stations long enough to allow all passengers who present themselves at the proper place to board the cars in safety, and it is the latter's correlative duty to present themselves at such place for getting on, and exercise reasonable expedition in so doing after the train stops. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 628.

A brakeman who undertook to assist a passenger to board the train was bound to exercise toward her that high degree of care that would have been exercised by a very competent, cautious, and prudent person, under the same circumstances. Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 925.

Where a person, without giving any signal, attempts to board a street car at a place where it slows down for a switch but does not stop, the car company's servants owe him no duty as a passenger. Gildemeister v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1097.

A street railway company is under the absolute duty to stop its cars a reasonable length of time to allow passengers to board them. Citizens' R. Co. v. Farley (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 94.

The duty of a carrier to exercise proper care to provide safe places for passengers to board and alight from trains may not be evaded by negligently carrying a passenger beyond his destination, compelling him to get on or off the train at an unusual place in the dark. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Missildine (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 245.

33. —— Sufficiency and safety of means.—As to the liability of a carrier of passengers, a charge that if the injury resulted from an accident produced by latent defects in machinery or road-bed which could not have been foreseen and provided against by due care, etc., the plaintiff cannot recover, is correct. But a further explanation is necessary as to what prudence and care reasonably cautious persons would have exercised under the circumstances. Fordyce v. Withers, 1 C. A. 540, 20 S. W. 766.

It is the duty of a railway company to properly and comfortably warm its coaches for the welfare and comfort of its passengers. Railway Co. v. Hyatt, 12 C. A. 435, 34 S. W. 677.

Charge, in an action against a railroad for death resulting from the derailment of a train, to find for defendant if a broken axle was the sole cause of the accident, held not erroneous as excusing defendant, notwithstanding the broken axle might have been due to its negligence. Johnson v. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co., 27 C. A. 616, 66 S. W. 906.

An instruction requiring a carrier to exercise a "great degree of care and caution" in keeping its machinery and appliances in a safe condition held not to impose too great a degree of care. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Broadhurst, 28 C. A. 630, 68 S. W. 315.

A railroad company held not liable as a matter of law for the failure of the air brake on the rear coach of its train to stop such coach and prevent a collision with the first section of the train, after the coach had been uncoupled by a drunken passenger; its duty to anticipate such occurrence being for the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Storey, 29 C. A. 483, 68 S. W. 534.

It is the duty of a railroad company to exercise that high degree of care which a very competent and prudent person would exercise in furnishing reasonably safe appliances and attachments necessary for the accommodation of its passengers, and it is also incumbent upon it to use the same care to see that such appliances and attachments are kept in a reasonably safe condition. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Swancey (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 677.

An instruction imposing on a carrier the absolute duty of furnishing reasonably safe and comfortable coaches for passengers held erroneous. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Maughon (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 611.

Duty of railway companies to keep steps of their coaches in safe condition for alighting passengers stated. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Gresham (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 483.

A steamship passenger did not assume the risk of being injured through lurching of the vessel while she was in a toilet room, arising from the company's failure to provide handrails. North German Lloyd S. S. Co. v. Roehl (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 322.

34. —— Management of conveyances.—Defendant held negligent where passenger train stopped on main track was collided with by a following freight train. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 16 C. A. 93, 40 S. W. 608.

A railroad company held liable for an injury to a pregnant passenger, caused by its negligence in allowing a car to collide with a train. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ferguson, 26 C. A. 460, 64 S. W. 797.

It is the duty of a street railway company to exercise the highest degree of care in operating its cars to prevent injury to passengers. Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Craig (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 239.

Customary violation of rule against passengers riding on car platform held not to avail one requested to go inside. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bryant, 31 C. A. 483, 72 S. W. 885.

Where a passenger was allowed to ride with others on the bumper of a crowded street car as he had done before, and without knowing that it had been prohibited on the day in question, and he was injured by the negligence of the company in managing the car, and the passenger, aside from his occupying the dangerous position, was not negligent, the street railroad company was liable. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Happ, 57 C. A. 427, 122 S. W. 610.

Municipal ordinances fixing the speed of street cars are for the benefit of persons crossing the track and not for passengers, and a violation of such ordinances does not raise an imputation of negligence per se in favor of an injured passenger. Walker v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1142.

35. —— Setting down passengers.—Though it would ordinarily be negligence for a railway company, after stopping at a station for a passenger to alight, to again put the train in motion before a reasonable time to leave the train has elapsed, yet, if after the lapse of such reasonable time the train is again put in motion without giving signal of an intention to move, by whistle or otherwise, such act would not be negligence per se. Railway Co. v. Williams, 70 T. 159, 8 S. W. 78.

A railroad company is required to furnish passenger only a reasonably safe place to alight, and not an absolutely safe place. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Woods, 15 C. A. 612, 40 S. W. 846.

If a passenger from his own fault and negligence is carried beyond his destination and attempts to get off the train while it is in motion, without being compelled to do so by the carrier, he assumes the risks of such acts and can not recover from consequent injuries. The contract of carriage having terminated, and the person being on the train through his own fault, the company could become liable only through failure of its servants to use ordinary care against inflicting injury upon him. Railroad Co. v. Atchison (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1075.

Instruction in injury case that carrier did not undertake to insure that its train would stop at a station long enough to enable passenger to alight held error. Martin v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1011.

Instruction that on passenger's alighting from train stopping a second time after hasty departure from station, failure of trainmen to exercise care of very cautious, prudent, and competent persons to enable him to safely alight, operating as proximate cause of injury, would entitle him to recover, held proper. Id.

That no box or stool was provided for passengers to alight held not proof of negligence authorizing a recovery for injuries sustained by a passenger in alighting from a train. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Frey, 25 C. A. 386, 61 S. W. 442.

In an action for injuries to a passenger in alighting, held, that defendant's negligence caused the injury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 106, 61 S. W. 726.

In an action by a passenger against a railroad, a requested instruction that, if such passenger deceived the conductor as to his destination, and the conductor was thereby caused to carry him beyond it, the railroad was not liable, held improperly refused. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 424.

A railroad company held not negligent as a matter of law in failing to announce on its trains their arrival at stations. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Goodyear, 28 C. A. 206, 66 S. W. 862.

Where a passenger was ordered by an employé to alight from a moving train, held, that he had a right to presume that such employé had authority to give such commands. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shelton, 30 C. A. 72, 69 S. W. 653.

A railroad held not relieved from liability for an accident to a passenger received in alighting by an announcement in the coach which the passenger could have heard, had he not been asleep. Id.

A railroad was negligent where an employé failed to stop a moving train in order to permit a passenger, who had been instructed to alight, to do so with safety. Id.

In an action against a railway company for injuries to a passenger, evidence held to warrant a finding that defendant was negligent in not assisting her to alight from train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Buchanan, 31 C. A. 209, 72 S. W. 96.

Where plaintiff, a mail clerk, was injured while alighting from his car before the train had arrived at its final destination, and plaintiff claimed that he was induced to alight by the act of a transfer man employed by another railroad company in rolling mail trucks to the side of the car, but plaintiff testified that he knew the two stops were made by the train at that place, one for a crossing and the final one for passengers to alight, and that the stop made was not the final one, and it also appeared that none of the train operatives saw or knew that plaintiff was attempting to alight at the place where he was injured, there was no evidence of the carrier's negligence sufficient to sus-tain a recovery. Rehearing, 51 C. A. 386, 112 S. W. 808, denied. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Keeling (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 597.

A carrier is charged with a high degree of care in guarding against possible dangers to passengers and in providing the safest means for alighting which are known and have been tested. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dunbar, 57 C. A. 411, 122 S. W. 574.

Under an ordinance requiring a street railroad to stop at street crossings where passengers request it, where the conductor received the fare and was then informed that the passenger wanted to alight at a particular street, he must stop the car there to permit the passenger to alight. Texas Traction Co. v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 494.

Though a carrier was negligent in the stopping of his train at a station, and in not putting a passenger off during such stop, yet if when it again stopped just beyond the station, and put her off, she was put off at a proper place, and the carrier was not guilty of negligence, she cannot recover; the only damages claimed being for injury from carrying articles back from the train to the waiting room. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 722.

Rule stated as to care required of railroad to protect from injury passengers preparing to alight from a train. Gulf, C. & S. M. R. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 527.

Where a street car stopped at a point where passengers might be reasonably expected to alight and was negligently started causing injuries to a passenger while in the act of alighting, the carrier would be liable without reference to the purpose for which the car was stopped. Citizens' R. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 434.

A porter in assisting a passenger to alight held negligent. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Krenek (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1154.

The time which a passenger train must stop to permit passengers to alight varies with each particular case; a longer time being required where there are many passengers. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 355.

A carrier must stop its car at the usual stopping place for a reasonably sufficient time to enable passengers to alight, and, where it does so, it is not liable for injuries to a passenger while alighting unless it knew that the passenger was in a position of danger. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Urban (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1028.

Where trainmen fail to stop or stop for a time insufficient to enable a passenger to alight, but put him down in the dark at a distance from the station, whereby he falls onto a cattle guard and is injured, they are guilty of actionable negligence. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Missildine (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 245.

36. —— Care as to persons accompanying passengers.—The duty of the company to one not a passenger is to use due diligence to abstain from injuring him when aware of his danger. Andrews v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1040.

It is the duty of the company to keep its premises in safe condition for the use of a passenger and of his friend aiding him to enter or leave its cars. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Best, 66 T. 116, 18 S. W. 224.

Carriers owe ordinary care to persons visiting their depots for the purpose of welcoming the arriving of or bidding adieu to parting friends. Railway Co. v. Miller, 8 C. A. 241, 27 S. W. 905; Railway Co. v. Best, 66 T. 116, 18 S. W. 224; Railway Co. v. Brown, 78 T. 398, 14 S. W. 1034; Railway Co. v. Reich (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 817.

One not a passenger must give notice of his intention to get off the train. Dillingham v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 203.

Duties and obligations of a railroad company to a person not a passenger. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Satterwhite, 15 C. A. 102, 38 S. W. 401.

When 18 year old boy boarded passenger train to assist relatives, and was injured in getting off after it had started, railway company held not negligent. Oxsher v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 420, 67 S. W. 550.

A husband of a female passenger, not intending to himself become a passenger, held not entitled to recover for indignities and assault suffered in the carrier's station, while merely accompanying his wife to the train. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Phillio, 96 T. 18, 69 S. W. 994, 59 L. R. A. 392, 97 Am. St. Rep. 868.

Where a railroad company or its servants consent to the custom of allowing persons to board its train to assist other passengers, a person who boards a train for that purpose may assume that the train will remain at the station for the usual time and allow passengers to get off, and need not inform those in charge of the train that it is his intention to get off, and if the train does not remain the customary time, and he is injured in making an exit, he may hold the carrier for its negligence. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hutchingson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 509.

It is no part of the duty of a brakeman to listen to conversations between persons about to get on the train; so that he not having heard such conversation, and understood therefrom that one of them was to assist the other on the train, and then get off, the occurrence of the conversation did not make it the carrier's duty to hold the train for the one wishing to get off. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Guess (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1060.

37. —— Proximate cause of injury.—If a street railway was negligent, contributing to the injury of plaintiff, in a collision with a steam railway, it was immaterial as affecting the street railway's liability, that the steam railroad contributed to the injury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Holt, 30 C. A. 330, 70 S. W. 591.

Evidence held to justify a finding that the proximate cause of the injuries to a child was a carrier's failure to keep its cars properly heated. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Duck (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 445.

If a passenger would not have fallen from a car platform but for his drunkenness, it was the proximate cause of the accident. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bryant, 31 C. A. 483, 72 S. W. 885.

Plaintiff went to defendant's station to take a train which was about two hours late, and while waiting in the waiting room of the station was injured in a scuffle among several boys who had entered the depot. There was no agent of the defendant in the depot at the time. Held, that the negligence of the defendant in not having a station agent present was not the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury, as defendant could not anticipate such result. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 695.

To authorize a recovery by a passenger for personal injuries, it is not necessary that the exact injuries received should have been foreseen as a probable result of the negligent act of the carrier's servant, but only that a reasonably prudent man in view of all the facts, would have anticipated some like injury. Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 925.

Injuries to a passenger unable to board a street car because of its sudden starting held the proximate result of the wrongful acts of the car men. Citizens' R. Co. v. Farley (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 94.

Misstatement of a carrier's agent as to the time of arrival of a belated train held not the proximate cause of a passenger's injury while attempting to board the train as it was pulling out of the station. Southern Kansas R. Co. of Texas v. Emmett (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 44.

A railway company's liability for injury to a passenger who slipped upon car steps while alighting is not affected because the steps may have become slippery and muddy through a very recent rain. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Gresham (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 483.

Where a street car passenger sued for injuries caused by the sudden jerk of the car in stopping to permit her to alight after the car had failed to stop at a prior signal, the failure to so stop was not the proximate cause of the accident. Barnes v. Hewitt (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 236.

Where plaintiff, about to take a street car, was struck by the overhang of the fender as it was rounding the curve, plaintiff's proximity to the track, and not any excessive speed of the car, was the proximate cause of the injury. Townsend v. Houston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 629.

Where a passenger carried beyond his destination on a dark night was compelled to alight at an unusual place and walk on the track back to the depot, an injury by falling into a cattle guard was the proximate result of the trainmen's negligence. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Missildine (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 245.

38. —— Companies or persons liable.—Where the evidence failed to show that the defendant company operated or controlled the connecting line on which the injuries to a passenger complained of occurred, it was error to refuse to direct a verdict for defendant. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Graves (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 324.

A carrier is responsible for the movement of its passenger coaches, whether operating them on its own track or that of another railroad and where a coach occupied by passengers was violently struck by the carrier's own cars or locomotives or those of the road with which it was associated in the use of the track, it was liable for injuries to passengers caused thereby. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Stone (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 587.

Where defendant's servant employed about a garage had no authority to use defendant's automobile in carrying plaintiff and his wife as passengers for hire, and was using it without defendant's consent, defendant was not liable for injuries to plaintiff resulting from his negligence. Christensen v. Christiansen (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 995.

39. —— Connecting carriers.—See, also, notes under Art. 731.

Where a passenger purchased a through ticket over several roads from one of them, authorized to act in this regard for the others, all the roads are liable for injuries to her from the negligence of any one of them. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Landon (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 744.

40. —— Operation by receiver.—The discharge of the receiver and the return of the property to the company, subject to all claims and liabilities, renders the company liable for negligent injuries during the receivership. Railway Co. v. Chilton, 27 S. W. 272, 7 C. A. 183.

Carrier responsible when its lines are operated by a receiver. Railway Co. v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 302.

41. —— Limitation of liability.—A common carrier of passengers cannot by contract exempt itself from responsibility or even limit its liability for injuries to a passenger resulting from the negligence of itself or its employés or agents in the scope of their employment; and this is so with reference as well to passengers traveling free of charge as to those paying full fare. The liability of the carrier of passengers does not depend on the fact that compensation for the passenger has been paid to it, but the same degree is incumbent on the carrier in the case of a passenger traveling on a free pass as in the case of one paying full fare. The negligence of an agent of whatsoever grade, as to matters within the scope of his employment, with reference to passengers, is the negligence of the corporation itself. G., C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. McGown, 65 T. 640; H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Hampton, 64 T. 427.

In selling a round-trip ticket the company may limit its liability to its own line. In fixing a time limit, the time allowed must be reasonable, and this is a question for the jury. Where the ticket states that it shall be good only three days after its date, the journey must be completed within the three days. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wright, 21 S. W. 399, 2 C. A. 463.

As to stipulations relieving the company from liability caused by personal injuries, see Railway Co. v. Adams, 6 C. A. 102, 24 S. W. 839.

A railroad company cannot escape liability for injury to a newsboy working on its trains for another corporation selling papers, etc., by a contracting antecedently for a release from liability, though the execution of the release by the newsboy is imposed as a condition affording him transportation. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Fenwick, 34 C. A. 222, 78 S. W. 549.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries in a collision causing death, where deceased was riding on a pass, in which there was a stipulation that he waived all claims for damages in case of injuries from any cause, such agreement was against public policy, and defendant, though a private carrier, was liable for injuries caused by its negligence. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 635.

While a condition in a pass issued by a common carrier of passengers, exempting the carrier from liability for negligence, is against public policy, such a condition in a pass, issued by the private owner of a logging railroad, which was not a common carrier, is valid. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Sup.) 155 S. W. 179.

42. —— Release of liability.—See, also, notes under Art. 589.

A written settlement in full for injuries received by a passenger through the negligence of a railroad company held to preclude a recovery for injuries not discovered at the time of the settlement. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McCarty, 94 T. 298, 60 S. W. 429, 53 L. R. A. 507, 86 Am. St. Rep. 854.

Where a physician for a railroad stated to one who had been injured while a passenger that her injuries were slight, and induced her by such statements, in the form of a statement of fact, to execute a release, her failure to further investigate the truth of such representation was no defense to the cancellation of the release. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Shuford, 36 C. A. 251, 81 S. W. 1189.

A release of a carrier from liability for injuries to a passenger held subject to cancellation, though fraudulent representations of defendant's servant had not been the sole inducement to the execution of the release. Id.

Fact that one who executed a release of a carrier from liability for injuries did not read the release held not to preclude her from having a cancellation of it. Id.

Under the circumstances in which a passenger injured on a train executed a release, the release held invalid. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Craig, 52 C. A. 611, 114 S. W. 850.

43. —— Parties to suits for injuries.—See Title 37, Chapter 5.

44. —— Death of party to suit for injuries.—See Title 37, Chapter 7.

45. —— Pleading in action for personal injury.—See notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

46. —— Presumptions, burden of proof, and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

47. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held to support a finding that defendant railroad was negligent in running its train into a station at a high rate of speed, and at the same time inviting passengers to board another train by crossing the track of the one approaching. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morgan, 26 C. A. 378, 64 S. W. 688.

Where plaintiff was on a freight train with consent of the brakeman, to whom he had paid fare, in an action for injuries received by being knocked off by such brakeman, evidence held insufficient to support a defense that plaintiff was on the train through collusion with the brakeman. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Black, 23 C. A. 119, 57 S. W. 330.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a verdict that the defendant railway company was guilty of negligence resulting in the death of plaintiff's husband. Trinity Val. R. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1085.

Evidence in an action against a carrier for personal injuries through negligence in carrying plaintiff beyond her station held to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Sampson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 692.

Evidence in action by plaintiff, who raised a car window, which fell on his hand, injuring it, held insufficient to sustain a judgment for damages. Texas Midland R. R. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 388.

Jury, in action against carrier, held justified in finding that defendant had not exercised due care for the protection of a passenger. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. La Prelle, 27 C. A. 496, 65 S. W. 488.

In an action for death of an alleged passenger on a freight train, evidence held to sustain a finding that deceased was not a passenger. Crawleigh v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 28 C. A. 260, 67 S. W. 140.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain verdict for plaintiff in action against carrier for assault on a passenger in a waiting room. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Phillio (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 915.

Evidence held insufficient to show an express invitation by authorized agent of railroad company to prospective passenger to visit remote corner of depot grounds, where he was injured. Davis v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 42, 68 S. W. 733.

Evidence in an action against a railroad company for injuries sustained by plaintiff while he was leaving defendant's train, held sufficient to sustain a finding that he was properly on the train. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Funderburk, 30 C. A. 22, 68 S. W. 1006.

In action by passenger against carrier for negligence, evidence held to sustain verdict for plaintiff. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Phillips, 29 C. A. 336, 69 S. W. 107.

In an action for damages for injuries to plaintiff's wife, through the sudden starting of defendant's train, evidence held to support a finding that the injury was due to the negligence of defendant's servants. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Harris, 30 C. A. 179, 70 S. W. 235.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a passenger, held, that the evidence was sufficient to sustain a finding that a physician, employed by the railroad and its claim agent in furtherance of a design to procure a release from defendant on payment of a small sum, had stated to her that her injuries were slight and that the amount which they offered to pay her was adequate compensation. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Shuford, 36 C. A. 251, 81 S. W. 1189.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, evidence held to warrant a finding that a release of plaintiff's injuries was procured by fraud. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Cain, 37 C. A. 531, 84 S. W. 682.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to plaintiff while traveling on a freight train, evidence held to support a verdict for plaintiff, as evidence to show that the train was so operated as to cause a serious bodily injury to him, if unexplained, is sufficient to support a finding of negligence. Lewis v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1006.

Evidence held to support a finding that a passenger was injured while attempting to alight from the train in consequence of the negligence of the trainmen in starting the train with a jerk. Texas & G. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 71.

Evidence held to show that defendant's trainmen failed to render plaintiff, a helpless paralytic, sufficient assistance in alighting from the car. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Shipley (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 952.

In a passenger's action against a railroad company for injuries by the falling of a transom upon him, the conductor's evidence held not to show that he inspected the transom fastenings to determine whether they were properly fastened or that it was his duty to do so. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dodgin (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 847.

Evidence that a brakeman, who undertook to assist a passenger to board the train, released his hold of her arm after she placed her foot upon the step before she could get her balance, and as she fell back caught her in the small of the back, causing painful and serious injuries, was sufficient to justify a finding that such injuries, or similar ones, might reasonably have been anticipated as a probable result of the act. Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 925.

Evidence held to sustain findings avoiding a release of claim for injury to a passenger. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1031.

In an action for injuries to a passenger becoming, while on the train, unable to protect herself from injury, evidence held not to show actionable negligence of the carrier in failing to protect her. Adams v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 437.

Evidence, in a railroad passenger's action for personal injuries sustained in a derailment, held to sustain a finding that the proximate cause of the accident was a "sun kink" in the rails. Hudson v. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 617, 618.

Evidence, in an action against a railroad for personal injuries, submitted by a charge which limited plaintiff's right to recover to proof of negligence on the part of defendant's employés in charge of the train, held sufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Neal (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 398.

Evidence held to show that the act of a railroad brakeman in shutting a vestibule door, thus preventing plaintiff's return from the lower step of a car, was within the scope of his employment. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1076.

Evidence held to authorize a finding that a conductor saw, or might have seen, that an alighting passenger required assistance. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Addis (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 955.

Evidence held to entitle a passenger to nominal damages for being set down beyond her station, the carrier's negligence in taking her there being proved without contradiction. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell, 104 T. 632, 143 S. W. 1147, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 722.

In an action for injury to a passenger by a lurch of the vessel, evidence held to sustain a finding that the company was negligent in not providing hand or guard rails. North German Lloyd S. S. Co. v. Roehl (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 322.

In an action against a carrier by passengers, evidence held to show that plaintiffs were induced to alight from a train at an unusual and improper point. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Morris (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1163.

In an action against a carrier, evidence held to show that injuries complained of were caused by exposure after alighting from defendant's train. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to show that company negligently permitted street car to be overcrowded. Osteen v. Dallas Consol. Electric St. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 643.

In an action against a carrier for an assault made on plaintiff while a passenger, evidence held to warrant a finding that the conductor was negligent in failing to stop the train and remove the offensive passenger who committed the assault. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 355.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that railway conductor's statement to a parent that it was a penitentiary offense to get on a train without a ticket for a child was made before payment of fare. Carpenter v. Trinity & B. V. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 363.

In an action against a railroad company for injury to a passenger while alighting from a coach, evidence held to warrant a finding that the brakeman who attempted to assist her was negligent. Gulf, W. T. & P. R. Co. v. Abbott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1078.

Verdict for passenger for personal injuries held supported by the evidence, where it showed that no employé of the company was present to ascertain the condition of the car steps before passengers commenced to alight. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 814.

Evidence held insufficient to raise the issue as to whether a passenger stepped into a hole in the street as she was alighting from a street car. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Hauskins (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1100.

In a passenger's action for injuries received in a wreck, evidence held to sustain a finding that the switch was unlocked and left so by a railroad employé intrusted with a switch key. Texas & G. R. Co. v. Boren (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 295.

In an action for injury to a lumber company's employé while riding on a logging train to his work, evidence held to warrant a finding that he was rightfully on the train. Knox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1134.

In an action by a passenger for personal injuries received in a derailment, evidence held to authorize a finding that the derailment was caused by the railroad company's negligence. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Matchett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1113.

In an action for injuries to a passenger thrown from the car platform by a sudden jerk or jar, evidence held to support a verdict for plaintiff. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Franklin (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 553.

Where plaintiff in an action for injuries resulting from the negligence of defendant's servant in operating an automobile for hire shows that defendant is the owner of the automobile, and that the servant was employed by defendant as driver of the automobile, he makes out a prima facie case against defendant. Christensen v. Christiansen (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 995.

In an action against a carrier for damages for injuries to a female plaintiff, evidence held sufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 922.

48. —— Damages.—Exemplary damages cannot be recovered on account of the willful or malicious conduct of the defendant's employé, but such conduct can be considered with reference to the award of actual damages. Dillingham v. Russell, 73 T. 47, 11 S. W. 139, 3 L. R. A. 634, 15 Am. St. Rep. 753; Railway Co. v. Anderson, 82 T.

516, 17 S. W. 1039; Railway Co. v. Mothers, 5 C. A. 87, 24 S. W. 79; Railway Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1032.

As to measure of damages for personal injuries. Railway Co. v. Lacy, 24 S. W. 269, 86 T. 244.

In an action for damages resulting from delay by the negligence of a carrier of passengers, the measure of damages is the amount paid for transportation (if any), mental suffering (if any) and loss of time, provided the facts show that these subjects of damages were reasonably within the contemplation of parties. Railway Co. v. Flores (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 899.

Measure of damages where one suffers mental anguish on account of the fright or distress of a child, see Pullman Palace Car Co. v. Trimble, 28 S. W. 96, 8 C. A. 335.

In suit by husband against a railway company for injuries to the wife the damages are such a sum as would be a fair and reasonable compensation for the injuries and physical and mental suffering sustained by the wife and for expenses necessarily incurred on account of the injuries. Railway Co. v. Glenk, 9 C. A. 599, 30 S. W. 278.

Measure of damages in given case for carrier's failure to properly care for delayed passengers. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Rogers, 16 C. A. 19, 40 S. W. 201.

Fright resulting from a carrier's negligence, which causes impairment of health, is a recoverable injury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McKenzie (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 831.

Measure of damages to a passenger injured in attempting to alight from a train stated. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McElree, 16 C. A. 182, 41 S. W. 843.

Actual damages can be recovered for mental suffering resulting from fright and apprehension of danger, when there is no accompanying physical pain. H. E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Perkins, 21 C. A. 508, 52 S. W. 124.

A recovery can not be had for suffering from mere fright, but where physical injury results from the mental shock a recovery can be had. Railroad Co. v. Hayter (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 128.

If a party can recover damages at all for mental sufferings caused by being separated from his family by the negligence of the agent in selling the ticket, he can only do so by alleging and proving that the facts in relation to his family and their condition and his anxiety to be with them, were known to the agent at the time the ticket was purchased. Jones v. Railway Co., 23 C. A. 65, 55 S. W. 371.

Where, in an action against a railroad company for injury to a passenger, the issues as to plaintiff's subsequent neglect of the injury are properly submitted to the jury, a judgment amply justified by the evidence will be affirmed. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Poe (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1071.

Damages sustained by a passenger from holding a child, not her own, but under her care, while a passenger on an overcrowded train, held not too remote. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rea, 27 C. A. 549, 65 S. W. 1115.

In an action by a passenger against a railroad company for damages for defendant's failure to protect plaintiff from an unprovoked assault by another passenger, plaintiff's mental suffering arising from such assault may be considered as an element of damages. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Giesen (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 653.

A parent, who was a physician, held entitled to recover for the reasonable value of medical service and for necessary expenses in the care of his infant child, injured by the carrier's negligence. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 28.

A practicing physician, who treated his wife and child, injured by a carrier's negligence, held not entitled to recover for loss of business while attending such wife and child. Id.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to an infant, the parent held not entitled to recover for pain suffered by the infant. Id.

In action for injuries to passenger, held proper to permit recovery for value of plaintiff's services for time lost on account of injuries. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Flood, 35 C. A. 197, 79 S. W. 1106.

The fact that passenger held and collected on accident policy held not to reduce damages to which he was entitled for his injuries. Id.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, plaintiff held not entitled to recover for diminished earning capacity. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith, 38 C. A. 507, 86 S. W. 943.

The measure of damages for insults offered a passenger by a servant of the carrier is such sum as will compensate the passenger for injured feelings, mental suffering, and the like. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Luther, 40 C. A. 517, 90 S. W. 44.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to a passenger, an instruction limiting plaintiff's recovery for medicines and medical attendance to such sums as he necessarily expended or incurred was correct. Mullen v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1000.

In action against carrier, plaintiff held entitled to recover for her mental suffering caused by wrongful treatment of her daughter. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Coopwood (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 102.

A person negligently injured while boarding a street car, although physically unsound before the accident, is entitled to damages for such injury as aggravated her previously diseased condition. Houston Electric Co. v. Green, 48 C. A. 242, 106 S. W. 463.

Mental suffering by one due to the negligent treatment by a carrier of her invalid sister while both were passengers held not ground of recovery. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Overton, 101 T. 583, 110 S. W. 736, 19 L. R. A. (N. S.) 500.

Evidence that injured passenger held an accident insurance policy at the time of his injury was properly excluded. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 709.

Where language of a conductor towards a female passenger is not in itself insulting or actionable, there can be no recovery for mental damages, on the theory that his undisclosed intention was to insult the passenger. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Pope (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1185.

49. —— Excessive damages.—In an action against a carrier for injuries to a passenger caused by assault of a drunken person in the waiting room, a verdict of $400 held not excessive. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Phillio (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 915.

Damages for carrying a passenger on a street car past her destination and insulting her held not excessive. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 306.

In an action for humiliation of a passenger by the alleged misconduct of defendant's conductor, a verdict allowing plaintiff $900 damages held excessive, and should be reduced to $100. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 508.

50. —— Questions for jury and instructions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 13.

51. Contributory negligence of and assumption of risk by person injured.—As to injuries resulting from negligence of passenger, see Sanchez v. Railroad Co. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 922.

Contributory negligence shown. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Wilson, 79 T. 371, 15 S. W. 280, 11 L. R. A. 486, 23 Am. St. Rep. 345; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Edwards, 78 T. 307, 14 S. W. 607.

To constitute contributory negligence the act complained of must be the proximate cause of the injury though not necessarily the nearest cause thereto. Railroad Co. v. Hoard (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 142.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, held that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 106, 61 S. W. 726.

A pregnant woman, injured by the negligent coupling of cars, held not precluded from recovering by her negligence in undertaking the journey. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ferguson, 26 C. A. 460, 64 S. W. 797.

One who stepped on a railroad track at a flag station, and while attempting to flag the train by means of lighted matches held in his hand was struck by the train, was guilty of contributory negligence precluding recovery, though the train customarily stopped on such signal, and the glare of the headlight dazzled and frightened such intended passenger, preventing him from recognizing how near the train was. Smith v. Gulf, B. & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1177.

The rule of assumed risk does not apply between carrier and passenger unless it be the risk of accidents not arising from the negligence of the carrier. Texas Midland R. R. v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 973.

52. —— Entering conveyance.—A passenger in attempting to get on or off a train in rapid motion is guilty of contributory negligence, and cannot recover damages for injuries sustained thereby. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Gorman, 2 App. C. C., § 776.

Negligence per se defined. Railway Co. v. Stewart, 14 C. A. 703, 37 S. W. 770.

A passenger's attempting to board a moving train is not negligence per se. Mills v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 94 T. 242, 59 S. W. 874, 55 L. R. A. 497.

In an action by a passenger against a railroad company for injury in being thrown off the train by a jerk as he was boarding after visiting a lunch counter, instruction that the company was not liable unless its employés knew that he was off and wanted to get on held properly refused. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 316.

Where plaintiff intending to board a street car got too close to the track and was struck by the overhang of the fender, his contributory negligence barred recovery for the railway company's negligence in operating the car at high speed. Townsend v. Houston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 629.

53. —— In transit.—A person in a situation where his mere presence is negligence cannot recover damages for personal injuries. Wilcox v. Railway Co., 11 C. A. 487, 33 S. W. 379.

Where a passenger train, by negligence of the railroad's servants, ran against a freight car which was driven on the main track by a storm, and injured plaintiff, who was a passenger on the train and was standing in the aisle of the car at the time of the collision, the court is not required to submit a charge on the question of contributory negligence, since the facts do not raise that question. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bell, 93 T. 632, 57 S. W. 939.

The fact that there was standing room in a railway coach did not make it negligence per se for a passenger to attempt to go to another car in search of a seat. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Morris (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 813.

Where a railway company agreed to transport the employés of a lumber company to and from work, an employé held not guilty of contributory negligence by riding on a lumber car which was pushed in front of the engine. Trinity Val. R. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1085.

In an action against a railway for injuries to a passenger, an instruction that it is not negligence of itself for a railway passenger to stand on the platform of a moving train was improper. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ball, 28 C. A. 287, 66 S. W. 879.

That a passenger transported in a freight car was standing, when injured by the violent jerking of the car held not to constitute contributory negligence as a matter of law. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 32 C. A. 112, 72 S. W. 81.

A passenger transported in a freight car held not guilty of contributory negligence in failing to leave the car while it was being switched in the yard at a junction point, during which he was injured. Id.

In an action against a carrier for injuries sustained by a woman by falling on the slippery deck, when stepping from the door of the saloon of the steamer, held, that the fact that she had taken a long step was not contributory negligence as a matter of law. Gillum v. New York & T. S. S. Co. (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 232.

In determining the question of a passenger's contributory negligence, held, that the nature of the train as a mixed freight and passenger train should be considered. Texas Mexican R. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 565.

54. —— Leaving conveyance.—A passenger, in attempting to get on or off a train in rapid motion, is guilty of contributory negligence, and cannot recover damages for injuries sustained thereby. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Gorman, 2 App. C. C. § 776.

A passenger who voluntarily alights from a train at a place other than the regular stopping place assumes the risk incident to his act. Conwill v. Railway Co., 85 T. 96, 19 S. W. 1047; (Civ. App.) Railway Co. v. Jordan, 33 S. W. 690.

A passenger held not guilty of negligence in attempting to alight incumbered with a valise and a child. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 88.

An instruction held to correctly state the rule as to contributory negligence of a passenger attempting to alight from a train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McElree, 16 C. A. 182, 41 S. W. 843.

Passenger held not guilty of contributory negligence in leaving train during stop, and waiting for signal before reboarding the train. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Mayfield, 23 C. A. 415, 56 S. W. 942.

Instruction that passenger alighting from train on its stopping a second time after hasty departure from station, without waiting for assistance, was guilty of contributory negligence, held error. Martin v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1011.

One injured while violating an ordinance prohibiting persons from jumping on and off moving trains held as a matter of law to be guilty of contributory negligence. Mills v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 291.

An instruction, in a suit for injuries sustained by falling off a depot platform, that it was the duty of the passenger to exercise such attention to a notice to passengers not to leave the train at a certain place "as a passenger of ordinary attention would have used," held erroneous. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 166.

The injury of a passenger while getting off a moving train before it reached the station held not to render company liable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cleveland (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 951.

It is not negligence per se for one to alight from a moving train. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Moss (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 894; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Krenek, 138 S. W. 1154.

Boy jumping from moving train after assisting passengers to board it held negligent under the facts. Oxsher v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 420, 67 S. W. 550.

A passenger, alighting from a slowly moving train in the dark on a depot platform at the request of an employé, was not guilty of contributory negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shelton, 30 C. A. 72, 69 S. W. 653.

In an action by a passenger for personal injuries, it was improper to condition the finding of contributory negligence on alighting from a moving train on a finding that plaintiff knew it was moving. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 112.

Under a contract prohibiting one accompanying a shipment of stock from getting on or off any freight car while switching was being done at stations, where such person after the train stopped attempted with the conductor's knowledge and permission to assist stock that were down, and was injured through the negligent operation of the carrier's servants in running against the train other cars which the engine which had been detached had picked up to place in the train, he was not within the contract. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dysart (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1047.

A passenger jumping from a moving train held guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1052.

55. —— Acts by permission or direction of carrier.—Where a passenger is permitted to ride on the bumper of a crowded street car, he is not guilty of contributory negligence in so riding which will relieve the carrier of liability for his injury resulting from the negligent management of the car, and in so riding he does not assume the risk of such injury. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Happ, 57 C. A. 427, 122 S. W. 610.

Evidence held insufficient to show that the person who directed plaintiff to jump from the train was an employé of the company. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Woods, 15 C. A. 612, 40 S. W. 846.

A passenger who obeyed the directions of the porter on the train to alight therefrom and remain standing outside in the cold, awaiting the train on which she should continue her journey, was not guilty of contributory negligence, and could recover for the injuries sustained in consequence of being exposed to the cold while waiting to change cars. Gibson v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1121.

56. —— Negligence as to incidental dangers.—A passenger, who asked the conductor to see the latter's automatic pistol, and who took the pistol and returned it to the conductor, was not guilty of negligence per se, and his act does not preclude a recovery for injuries sustained in consequence of the conductor causing the pistol to be discharged. Texas Midland R. R. v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 973.

A passenger, who subjects himself to a known danger from the negligence of the conductor in showing the operation of an automatic pistol or one reasonably to be expected, is guilty of contributory negligence, so that an instruction on assumption of risk is properly refused. Id.

57. —— Acts in emergencies.—That a passenger who was injured by jumping from a train derailed through defendant's negligence would not have been injured if he had remained on the train will not relieve defendants. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Norris (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 708.

Where defendant put plaintiff in a perilous position, and by reason of fright plaintiff jumped from the train and was injured, contributory negligence was no defense. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1076.

58. —— Avoidable injury.—Where plaintiff about to take an approaching street car was struck by the overhang of the fender as it was rounding the curve, he was required to prove that the motorman saw him in a position of peril in time to have avoided injuring him by stopping the car, and negligently failed to do so, in order to recover on the issue of discovered peril. Townsend v. Houston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 629.

59. —— Willful injury by carrier's employés.—The misconduct of a passenger assaulted by an employé of the carrier is admissible in mitigation of damages only, but where a passenger's conduct toward an employé is knowingly proffered with the specific purpose of bringing about a difficulty, and which in its probable result brings about a difficulty, it is such wrong on the passenger's part as requires the classification of his conduct as contributory negligence, though it may not amount to absolute justification for the assault which follows, and a passenger guilty of such contributory negligence cannot recover for such assault. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gerren, 57 C. A. 34, 121 S. W. 905.

60. —— Presumptions, burden of proof, and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

61. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action for injuries by jumping from a moving train, evidence held to warrant finding that plaintiff was not negligent. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crockett, 27 C. A. 463, 66 S. W. 114.

Evidence in an action for a railroad passenger's death by falling off the platform held to show that decedent fell off because of his own negligence in failing to see a switch target which struck him. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Robinson, 104 T. 482, 140 S. W. 434.

In an action against a railway company for injuries to a passenger, resulting from trainmen causing her to disembark at the wrong station, evidence held insufficient to warrant a finding that she was guilty of contributory negligence, making it proper to refuse instructions presenting that issue. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 933.

In an action for injuries to a passenger caused by the conductor discharging a pistol, evidence held to show that the accident was caused by the negligence of the conductor and that the passenger was free from contributory negligence. Texas Midland R. R. v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 973.

62. —— Questions for jury and instructions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 19.

63. Ejection of passengers and intruders.—It is the right of a railroad company to exclude or eject from its cars any person refusing to comply with a reasonable rule within his knowledge, and to use whatever force was reasonably necessary to accomplish that end. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Leak, 64 T. 654. The rule requiring a passenger to exhibit his ticket before entering the car, or when in it, is a reasonable one. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Goldstein, 2 App. C. C. § 274.

A reasonable time must be allowed for the production of the ticket. Railway Co. v. Wilkes, 68 T. 617, 5 S. W. 491, 2 Am. St. Rep. 515.

As to the right of a passenger to transportation and courteous treatment, see Alley v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 735.

Where a railroad has a rule forbidding the issuance of permits by conductors, and a passenger is ejected for want of such a permit, the company is not liable because its conductors have violated such rule. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 436; Same v. Jackson, Id. 440.

Where a passenger requests a permit to ride on a freight train, and is told by the ticket agent that the conductor will give him one, the company is liable for his ejection by the conductor for failing to have such permit. Id.

A passenger held not entitled to recover for ejection from freight train for want of a permit to be on it. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Stell, 28 C. A. 280, 67 S. W. 537.

Evidence in an action for ejecting a passenger from a street car held to authorize a finding that the company ratified the acts of its conductor. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. Randell, 29 C. A. 460, 69 S. W. 1013.

The liability of a railroad company for the act of an employé while ejecting a trespasser from railroad premises held unaffected by the personal intentions of the employé. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 240.

Where a passenger before boarding a train knew that the carrier had promulgated a rule prohibiting the train from stopping at his destination, such knowledge did not determine his right to travel to his destination on that train, if by continued nonenforcement of the rule the carrier had permitted it to become obsolete, or the passenger was misled by the carrier's conductor and ticket agent to believe that the train would stop at his destination, in which event his ejection at the station before his destination was reached was unlawful. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Herring (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1039.

There being no statute requiring employés in charge of a train when approaching a station to call its name in a reasonable time and manner for a passenger to alight, and this not being an absolute duty indispensable to the safety of the passengers, it was error to instruct, in an action for injury to a passenger from being ejected from the train after being carried beyond W., her station, that if the train employés, as the train approached W., failed to call its name in a reasonable time and manner, such failure authorized a recovery, if by it the passenger was carried beyond her destination and afterwards ejected. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1139.

64. —— Defective or invalid ticket or pass.—Company liable for ejection of passenger where agent wrongfully refuses to stamp his return ticket. Railway Co. v. Martino, 2 C. A. 634, 18 S. W. 1066, 21 S. W. 781.

Expulsion of the holder of a limited ticket which had expired held to give no right of action against the company. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Demilley (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 147.

A passenger has a right to assume that the carrier has furnished him a ticket correctly stating the terms of the contract he actually made and he is not bound to inspect it. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Copeland, 17 C. A. 55, 42 S. W. 239.

Where a shipment of stock is over two lines of carriers and the initial carrier issues to shipper "return transportation," and he presents this to the agent of the terminal carrier, who stamps it and says that it is all right, and he is subsequently ejected from the cars of the terminal carrier because his "return transportation" is not made out according to the rules of such carrier, whereby a shipper must sign a "drover's pass," he can recover damages for the wrongful ejection. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Lynch, 43 C. A. 121, 94 S. W. 1094.

Where an agent, at the time of the sale or preparation of a ticket, made a mistake without the knowledge of the purchaser, or misdirected or deceived him without his fault in some particular relating to his right of return transportation, the railroad company was liable for ejection of the passenger on the return trip, where the true facts were made known to the validating agent and the return conductor, and the identification of the passenger was sufficient to satisfy a reasonably prudent man. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 154, judgment reversed 104 T. 82, 133 S. W. 868.

Where a railroad agent wrongfully refused to approve a return trip ticket, and directed the passenger to take up the question with the conductor, and the passenger was ejected by the conductor, the passenger could recover damages. Id.

If a ticket held by a passenger was worthless, he was not entitled to ride thereon, and could be ejected, though he believed in good faith that he was entitled to ride on the ticket. Freeman v. Costley (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 458.

A round trip ticket over connecting lines plainly stipulated that it would not be accepted unless signed in ink by the purchaser and also by the agent of the issuing company, and that no agent or employé on any of the lines had any power to alter, modify, or waive any of the conditions of the contract, and that it must be signed in manuscript with ink by the person who was to use it, and not by another for him. A ticket was purchased by a husband for his wife, and the issuing agent told the husband that he might sign the wife's name, which he did. The ticket was accepted for her going passage, but the validating agent refused to validate it for the return trip. Held, that the ticket constituted a contract between the wife, her husband, and the carriers, and they having notice by the terms of the ticket that the issuing agent had no authority to modify its terms, the validating agent was within his rights, and no action lay for the company's refusal to accept the ticket for the wife's return passage and in ejecting her from the train. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lee, 104 T. 82, 133 S. W. 868, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 154.

That a passenger, after having been informed that she could not travel on a nonvalidated ticket, purchased a local ticket, in order to get on the train, held not to constitute a waiver of her right to recover damages for wrongful ejection, because of the carrier's refusal to accept the first ticket for transportation. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Lucas (Sup.) 144 S. W. 1126, 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 512, answer to certified questions followed on rehearing (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1149.

Interstate commerce rules held not to authorize ejection of the passengers because their tickets were not validated. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Wharton (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 282.

Trainmen have no right to eject or threaten a passenger who has been advised by the carrier's agent that her ticket is good, though the ticket be stamped otherwise. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Carlisle (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 653.

65. —— Tender or payment of fare to avoid ejection.—The holder of a valid ticket dishonored by the conductor may refuse to pay fare again and may leave the train. He may recover against the company the value of the unused portion of his ticket, inconvenience, loss of time and necessary expenses. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Crone (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 1074.

Where a passenger presented an invalid ticket, held error to charge that he was entitled to a receipt as a condition precedent to paying fare. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ritter, 16 C. A. 482, 41 S. W. 753.

A passenger whose ticket has been wrongfully refused need not pay his fare to lessen damages for ejectment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Copeland, 17 C. A. 55, 42 S. W. 239.

Evidence in an action for wrongful ejection from defendant's train, where plaintiff tendered less than the legal fare, considered, and held, that a verdict for plaintiff could not be sustained. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 253.

Refusal of a passenger on a train to pay the fare of a person under his charge held sufficient to justify his ejection from the train. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 655.

One who refuses to pay his fare when requested by the conductor may be ejected, though he afterwards offered to pay his fare when the train was stopped to eject him, as the conductor need not then accept it. Freeman v. Costley (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 458.

A formal tender of money by one about to be ejected from a train is not necessary, where the conductor in reply to an offer to pay said that the only thing to do was to get off. Southern Kansas R. Co. of Texas v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 873.

66. —— Intruders and trespassers.—A person who by mistake gets on a passenger train other than one on which he intended to take passage is a passenger upon the train he is on, and the relation of passenger and carrier exists between him and the company, and he cannot be treated as a trespasser. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Gilbert, 64 T. 536; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rather, 3 C. A. 72, 21 S. W. 951.

If one riding on the platform to avoid paying fare is assaulted and ejected without a demand for his fare, he is entitled to recover for injury sustained. Fordyce v. Beecher, 2 C. A. 29, 21 S. W. 179.

It cannot be assumed that a person on any car of a passenger train is a trespasser. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 350.

Where it appeared that a porter, if he pushed a person from the train, acted without authority, and it did not appear that there was any lack of diligence on the part of the conductor in failing to discover and prevent the wrongful act, the carrier would not be liable if the person ejected was a trespasser on the train. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1076.

67. —— Place and manner of ejection.—If a passenger, through the fault of servants of a railway company, takes the wrong train, it is the duty of the company to return him in safety to the place where the mistake was made or leave him at a convenient place until the return train arrives. If the passenger is ejected at an uncomfortable and unsafe place, the company is liable in damages for the bodily and mental suffering caused thereby as well as for the injuries resulting from the effort to reach a place of comfort and safety. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Gilbert, 64 T. 536.

A passenger who has no valid ticket, and who fails to pay his fare, is a trespasser, and may be ejected in a proper manner. He must be ejected in such a manner as not to endanger his safety, without the use of unnecessary force or violence, or circumstances of insult or indignity in the manner of his expulsion. For the violation of the rules the company would be responsible to the party injured in damages. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. McDonald, 2 App. C. C. § 164.

The degree of care required in ejecting a trespasser is reasonable and ordinary care, such as considerations of humanity would demand. Railway Co. v. Grigsby, 13 C. A. 639, 35 S. W. 815, 36 S. W. 496.

If plaintiff's wife assaulted an officer who was ejecting plaintiff from defendant's train, the officer was justified in using reasonable force to prevent further violence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ritter, 16 C. A. 482, 41 S. W. 753.

A passenger cannot recover except for excessive force exercised by the conductor in ejecting him from a train, when he refuses, upon request of the conductor, to sign his name as a means of identification as the person named in the ticket. Ketcheson v. Southern Pacific Co., 19 C. A. 288, 46 S. W. 907.

Railroad held liable for the violent ejection of a trespasser by one of its brakemen. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Lester, 24 C. A. 467, 59 S. W. 946.

Evidence held to justify a finding in favor of a passenger for injuries from his ejection from the train while in motion. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bohannon (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 776.

Though a carrier's conductor may remove a passenger from a car who is attempting to ride on an invalid ticket, and who refuses to pay fare except by the ticket, he must do so in a proper manner, and, if instead, he treats her rudely or subjects her to an indignity, she may recover damages against the carrier therefor. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lee, 104 T. 82, 133 S. W. 868, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 154.

Mere taking hold of the arm of plaintiff's wife and pulling her out of her seat in an endeavor to eject her from a train held insufficient to show use of excessive force. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 216.

While a carrier is not bound to awake a sleeping passenger that he may alight at his destination, and may thereafter eject him, it is bound not to eject him at an improper, unsafe or dangerous place. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 341.

Act of conductor in pushing a person from a train held negligence. Quigley v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 633.

68. —— Negligence in ejecting person under disability.—A passenger wrongfully ejected from a train when so drunk as not to know that he was ejected may recover damages, where, as soon as he came to himself, he was mortified and humiliated because of the occurrence, and where he had occasion frequently to explain to his friends how he came to be ejected. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Shepard (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 90.

69. —— Proximate cause of injury.—Where conductor wrongfully ejected a passenger and caused his arrest for a supposed assault, the imprisonment and detention are the proximate results of the act, and are properly considered by the jury in assessing the damages. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Conder, 23 C. A. 488, 58 S. W. 58.

A carrier's ejection of a passenger at an improper place after he had been carried by a station, held the proximate cause of his injury. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 341.

70. —— Contributory negligence of person ejected.—A purchaser of a ticket for his wife, stipulating for a return passage on identification, and providing that the ticket will not be accepted unless the contract is signed by the purchaser in person, may rely on the representations of the agent that he may sign his wife's name, in the absence of knowledge to the contrary, and is not chargeable with negligence in not reading the ticket. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 154, judgment reversed 104 T. 82, 133 S. W. 868.

One unlawfully ejected from a train by force and violence may recover for the injuries received, and the fact that by reason of his intoxication he fell and rolled down an embankment after his ejection may only be considered to diminish the damages. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Conner (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1135.

Where a conductor refused to accept fare from plaintiff's wife, and ejected her at an unsuitable place, the plaintiff's negligence in putting her on the train, and forgetting to give her ticket to her, was immaterial to recovery. Southern Kansas R. Co. of Texas v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 873.

71. —— Companies liable.—The initial carrier is liable for ejecting a passenger whose ticket the terminal agent has refused to validate. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Wharton (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 282.

An initial carrier held not liable for ejection of a passenger by a connecting carrier, where its agent, who sold the ticket, had no knowledge of a rule of the connecting carrier to the effect that the ticket sold was not good on the train from which the passenger was ejected. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1116.

72. Actions for wrongful ejection.—An action for refusing to honor tickets and for expelling a passenger arises from a tort. Mexican Cent. Ry. Co. v. Goodman, 20 C. A. 109, 48 S. W. 778.

The liability of a carrier for the misconduct of its agent at a station in confining in the station room an ejected passenger held not to depend on negligence. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Nappier (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 564.

73. —— Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 2.

74. —— Presumptions, burden of proof, and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

75. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held sufficient to show liability of a railroad company for the act of its conductor in ejecting a passenger from the train and causing his arrest. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Conder, 23 C. A. 488, 58 S. W. 58.

Evidence held to show that the agent of an initial carrier selling a ticket to plaintiff had no knowledge of a rule of the connecting carrier that the ticket was not good on a particular train from which the passenger was ejected. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1116.

76. —— Questions for jury and instructions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 13.

77. —— Damages.—No recovery can be had for mere fright. Southern Pac. Co. v. Ammons (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 135.

Verdict for $215 for ejecting passenger illegally held excessive. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Copeland, 17 C. A. 55, 42 S. W. 239.

In an action for the wrongful ejection of a passenger, a verdict in favor of plaintiff for $500 is not excessive. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cuniffe (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 692.

Where a passenger is wrongfully ejected from defendant's train and is sick as a result of exposure, he may recover for his pain, though there is no direct evidence thereof. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 436; Same v. Jackson, Id. 440.

A verdict for $500 damages held not excessive in an action for wrongfully ejecting a passenger. Id.

A passenger on a railroad, who resists payment of an illegally enacted bridge toll until force is used on his person, for the sole purpose of enhancing his damages, is not entitled to recover for such added indignities. Patterson v. Southern Pac. Co., 28 C. A. 67, 66 S. W. 308.

Evidence in an action for forcible ejection from defendant's train held to show no damage. Ellis v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 30 C. A. 172, 70 S. W. 114.

Evidence held insufficient to authorize a verdict of $1,250 for the ejectment of a female passenger from a train. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hood, 57 C. A. 497, 122 S. W. 569.

Where a passenger having a valid ticket was wrongfully ejected, and the acts of the conductor caused other passengers to believe that the ejected passenger was attempting to use an invalid ticket, a verdict for $500, which included $10 for the value of the ticket not used, was not excessive. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 154, judgment reversed 104 T. 82, 133 S. W. 868.

A passenger was wrongfully ejected at night from a train when so drunk that he did not know that he was ejected. As soon as he came to himself that night he was mortified and humiliated because of the occurrence, and he had occasion frequently to explain to his friends how he came to be ejected. He was and had been for many years a traveling salesman. Held, that a verdict for $250 was not excessive. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Shepard (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 90.

Plaintiff in an action against a carrier for attempted ejection of his wife being only entitled to recover for humiliation and shame suffered by her, a verdict in his favor for $500 was excessive, and should be reduced to $200. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 216.

Seven hundred fifty dollars each for being wrongfully ejected from train held not excessive recovery for three women traveling without escort. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Wharton (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 282.

Where plaintiff's wife, while traveling alone with three small children, was ejected from defendant's train, and forced to alight in a desolate spot, and was caused inconvenience, humiliation, and annoyance, a verdict of $1,500 was not excessive. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1116.

Where a conductor wrongfully put plaintiff's wife off a train in an insulting manner, a verdict for $1,000 damages held not excessive. Southern Kansas R. Co. of Texas v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 873.

78. Baggage.—Baggage includes such articles of necessity and personal convenience as are usually carried by passengers, including such a sum of money as is reasonable for the actual and incidental expenses of the journey and articles of small value purchased as presents for the traveler's family at home. The carrier is not responsible for the value of merchandise not intended for personal use. Jones v. Priester, 1 App. C. C. §§ 613–614; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Ferguson, 1 App. C. C. § 1255; I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. McCown, 2 App. C. C. § 712; Mo. P. Ry. Co. v. York, 2 App. C. C. § 641.

The delivery of a check for baggage by a common carrier constitutes a contract for its delivery. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Fort, 1 App. C. C. § 1252.

Where goods not ordinarily included in the term "baggage" are received by the carrier without question, who charges and receives extra compensation for the same as baggage, he is estopped from denying his liability for the value of articles lost. Mo. P. Ry. Co. v. Slater et al., 3 App. C. C. § 8; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Capps, 2 App. C. C. § 34.

When a passenger notifies the servants of a railway company of his wish that his baggage go with him, it is the duty of the company to take charge of it. The company is liable if the passenger, having been directed by a servant of the company where to deposit his baggage, delivered it at the place designated, but by mistake to another than an employé of the company. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Folliard, 66 T. 603, 1 S. W. 624, 59 Am. Rep. 632.

Baggage of a passenger having been deposited in its warehouse by a railroad company, at the request of the owner, its liability is that of a warehouseman. Railway Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 668.

A carrier of passengers may require information as to value of baggage, and may demand extra compensation for excess beyond a reasonable amount. The measure of damages for loss of baggage is its value with interest. Baggage includes jewelry of quality and value ordinarily taken by passengers of like station in life. Bonner v. Blum (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 60.

The allowance of baggage is a personal privilege extended to a passenger. He cannot take with him the baggage of another. Andrews v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1040.

The term "baggage" defined. Mexican Nat. R. Co. v. Ware (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 343.

It is the duty of a carrier of passengers to provide a place for the deposit and keeping of baggage of prospective and incoming passengers. Houston E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 353.

A baggage master in a union depot, who is the common agent of all carriers using the depot, is without authority to make a contract for a carrier maintaining a separate depot, in regard to the carriage of baggage properly delivered to and in the custody of the carrier's agent at its own depot. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1182.

79. —— Demand by and delivery to passenger.—The expense incurred in searching for baggage is not recoverable as a part of the actual damages. St. Louis, I. M. &

S. Ry. Co. v. Hindsman, 1 App. C. C. § 207; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Ferguson, 1 App. C. C. § 1254.

The reasonable time within which baggage must be called for is directly upon its arrival, with reasonable allowance for delay caused by the crowded state of the depot; but the lateness of the hour makes no difference if the baggage is placed upon the platform. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Capps, 2 App. C. C. § 35.

A demand for baggage must be made within a reasonable time. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Cook, 2 App. C. C. § 660.

It is the duty of a railway company to have the baggage of a passenger at its place of destination ready for delivery upon the platform at the usual place of delivery until the owner in the exercise of due diligence can call for and receive it within a reasonable time. If not called for, it is the company's duty to keep it as a warehouseman with ordinary care. Railway Co. v. Smith, 81 T. 479, 17 S. W. 133.

The ordinary damages for delay in delivering baggage is the value of its use. Railway Co. v. Douglas (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 487; Railway Co. v. Taylor, 3 App. C. C. § 192; Railway Co. v. Vancil, 2 C. A. 427, 21 S. W. 303.

The passenger having delayed 34 hours to call for his trunk, the carrier's liability therefor held only that of a warehouseman. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 430.

While a carrier is liable for the safe-keeping of a passenger's baggage left there for a reasonable time, it is not reasonable for a prospective passenger to leave baggage with the carrier for more than a day before the beginning of his journey, and the carrier is liable only as a warehouseman for such baggage. Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 353.

80. —— Loss or injury.—A petition by a transfer company, defendant in an action for the loss of baggage, bringing in the railroad to whose agents the baggage had been intrusted, alleged that the baggage had been lost by the railroad, and praying judgment over against it in case of recovery against the transfer company, held to state a cause of action. Houston Transfer & Carriage Co. v. Whitcomb (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 358.

An original carrier held to have performed its contract for the carriage of the baggage when it delivered the same at its separate depot; and the promise by the agent at the union depot to forward promptly applied only when the baggage reached such depot. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1182.

Carrier held not liable for humiliation caused passengers by having their trunks unlawfully searched by parties whose suspicions were aroused through a stench with which the trunks were impregnated from being placed in a baggage car with a corpse. Tarvin v. Texas & P. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 640.

81. —— Connecting carriers.—See notes under Art. 731.

82. —— Limitation of liability.—Where, in an action by a passenger for damages to his baggage, the court sustained the demurrer to defendant's answer alleging a limitation of its liability, defendant's assignment of error, that the court on the evidence should have limited the recovery as stipulated in the contract, held not sustained. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Seale, 28 C. A. 364, 67 S. W. 437.

While it is a reasonable regulation that baggage shall not be checked until a ticket is procured, a carrier cannot limit its liability by refusing to take charge of baggage until the procurement of a ticket. Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 353.

An interstate carrier issuing a baggage check which limits the value thereof as declared by its rules promulgated by the interstate commerce commission, in accordance with the Carmack amendment, thereby limits its liability, and the mere fact that the passenger's trunk was actually received and delivered to him does not make the contract for transportation and delivery any the less an interstate transaction. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Hailey (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1119.

83. —— Action for damages—Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

84. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence in action for the value of certain baggage lost by defendant railroad company considered, and held, that a verdict for defendant was not sustained by the evidence. Snaman v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1023.

Evidence as to the loss of a valise stolen through an open window of a sleeping car at a Mexican station held to justify findings that the company was negligent, and that the owner was not negligent. Pullman Palace Car Co. v. Arents, 28 C. A. 71, 66 S. W. 329.

Evidence held insufficient to show that the carrier was responsible for loss of articles from a passenger's baggage. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schafermeyer, 31 C. A. 586, 72 S. W. 1037.

In an action by a passenger for loss of baggage, evidence held sufficient to charge the carrier. Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 353.

85. —— Damages.—The measure of damages for loss of a passenger's baggage held merely the actual value of articles destroyed and the amount of damage to articles partially destroyed. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Seale, 28 C. A. 364, 67 S. W. 437.

The measure of damages in an action against a transfer company for the loss of a grip is the amount that articles of clothing contained therein were worth to the owner, and not the amount that it would have cost him to replace such articles. Houston Transfer & Carriage Co. v. Whitcomb (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 358.

The ordinary measure of damages for delay by a carrier in the transportation and delivery of baggage is the value of the use of the baggage during the delay and does not include damages for mental anguish. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1182.

The measure of damages for the loss of baggage, consisting of wearing apparel, is the value thereof at the time of the loss, determined by considering the cost of the articles, the extent of their use, and their condition at the time of the loss. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Hailey (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1119.

A carrier sued for loss of baggage consisting of wearing apparel of a passenger may not prove that the articles had a market value as secondhand articles and prove secondhand value. Id.

86. Palace cars and sleeping cars.—When a failure to exercise reasonable care results in the loss by theft of such personal effects as a passenger may reasonably carry with him, the sleeping car company is liable. The liability of the sleeping car company is not affected by the fact that the railway company to whose train the sleeping car is attached may receive the greater part of the money paid by the passenger for his transportation. If the passenger retains the exclusive control of his baggage, the carrier is not responsible for its loss, unless such loss results from the carrier's negligence. (See Fordyce v. Beecher, 2 C. A. 29, 21 S. W. 181.) Pullman Co. v. Pollock, 69 T. 120, 5 S. W. 814, 5 Am. St. Rep. 31.

A sleeping car company is responsible for baggage for personal use carried by a passenger. Stevenson v. Pullman Palace Car Co. (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 112.
