A sleeping car company must use reasonable care to guard its passengers from the depredations of thieves while they sleep. Stevenson v. Pullman Palace Car Co. (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 335; Dargan v. Pullman Palace Car Co., 2 App. C. C. § 691.

A sleeping car company is liable for property lost by occupants of the car only when it is shown to have been negligent, or that its servant in charge purloined the property. Pullman Palace Car Co. v. Hatch, 30 C. A. 303, 70 S. W. 771.

So far as concerns a passenger injured by being discharged beyond, instead of at, her station, the sleeping car company, on whose car she was the passenger, and its employés, were the servants of the railroad company operating the road, so as to make it responsible for their negligence. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 722.

An instruction held erroneous as requiring the sleeping car company to maintain a watch against the occurrence of thefts from the outside. Pullman Co. v. Schober (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 236.

87. —— Relation of passenger.—The relation of carrier and passenger arises between the Pullman Company and the purchaser through sale of a Pullman car seat check. Pullman Co. v. Custer (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 847.

88. —— Ejection.—A sleeping car company selling a ticket from one place to another to one having a railroad ticket between such places held liable where the passenger was ejected by the employés of a railway company. Pullman Palace-Car Co. v. Cain, 15 C. A. 503, 40 S. W. 220.

A sleeping car company held entitled to eject a passenger for insisting on taking rolls of blankets into the car with him. Pullman Co. v. Custer (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 847.

Evidence held to show ejection from a Pullman car, though the passenger was not actually therein. Id.

A sleeping car company's duty in ejecting passengers held unaffected by question whether it is a common carrier in the ordinary sense of the term. Id.

A sleeping car passenger held entitled to remove ground for ejection through his attempt to take improper baggage into the court. Id.

As affecting sleeping car company's right to eject a passenger who attempted to take improper articles into the car, his failure to request opportunity to check the articles held not excused. Id.

Instructions in an action for ejecting from a Pullman car a passenger who attempted to take improper baggage therein held properly refused. Id.

89. —— Action for damages.—In an action against a sleeping car company for the value of stolen goods, evidence held not to support a finding that the porter took the goods. Pullman Sleeping Car Co. v. Hatch, 30 C. A. 303, 70 S. W. 771.

In a suit for ejecting a Pullman car passenger, plaintiff held not entitled to recover upon a theory not constituting a basis of the suit. Pullman Co. v. Custer (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 847.

Evidence held to sustain a finding of a sleeping car company's negligence in permitting a berth window to be open between the window and the screen so that a passenger's effects might be stolen therefrom. Pullman Co. v. Schober (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 236.

90. —— Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 2.

91. —— Instructions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 19.

92. —— Damages.—Nine hundred dollars held excessive recovery for ejecting a passenger from a Pullman car. Pullman Co. v. Custer (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 847.

93. Carriage of live stock—Duties and liabilities in respect to transportation in general.—Whenever a railroad company receives cattle or live stock for transportation, it assumes the responsibility of a common carrier, although a bill of lading has not been delivered. Mo. P. R. R. Co. v. Graves, 2 App. C. C. § 680.

A railway company is bound, as a common carrier, to receive and transport live animals, when offered for transportation from one point to another in Texas, as other property, and is liable, after receiving them, as an insurer against loss from any cause except the act of God or of the public enemy, the act of the owner of the stock or the vicious propensities or inherent character of the animals. Railway Co. v. Trawick, 68 T. 314, 4 S. W. 567, 2 Am. St. Rep. 494.

In this state the statute provides that the duties and liabilities of common carriers shall be the same as prescribed by common law, and such liability as to the transportation of live stock is that of an insurer against loss from any cause, except the act of God, or of the public enemy, the act of the owner, the vicious propensities or inherent vice, infirmity, or character of the animals themselves. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Franklin (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1150.

Where cattle about to be shipped were inspected and a health certificate granted by a United States inspector, it was the carrier's duty to see that the certificate accompanied the shipment. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Jarman & Arnett (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1131.

Under Texas statutes, a carrier is bound to transport live animals, and is liable as an insurer except for injury from act of God, the public enemy, the act of the owner, or vicious propensities of the animals. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 676.

Where a carrier employed a stock yard company to hold cattle in pens while waiting shipment, notice to such company of orders to hold cattle was notice to the carrier. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Caruthers (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 238.

94. —— Connecting carriers.—See notes under Arts. 731, 732.

95. —— Contracts for transportation.—A verbal contract for the shipment of live stock held to control regulations of the subsequent written agreement. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Withers (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1073.

When a shipper has made a verbal contract with the carrier and paid the freight the day before the shipment, and after the cattle have proceeded on their journey he is required to sign a written contract, the verbal contract controls. Railway Co. v. Botts, 22 C. A. 609, 55 S. W. 514.

A common carrier may make either express or implied contracts for delivery beyond its own lines of cattle received for shipment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wells, 24 C. A. 304, 58 S. W. 842.

Where plaintiff contracted verbally for carriage of stock, and subsequently he was presented by the carrier's agent with written contracts that he was told were vouchers, and he signed the same, the terms of the verbal contract were binding. Southern Pac. Co. v. Anderson, 26 C. A. 518, 63 S. W. 1023.

In an action against a railroad company for damages received by cattle during carriage, written contracts of shipment held to merge all understandings between plaintiff and defendant prior thereto. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett, 27 C. A. 498, 66 S. W. 474.

In an action for damages to cattle en route to market, a requested instruction that, if the shipments were made under any other than an oral contract, plaintiff could not recover, was properly refused. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1041.

Mutual promises between shipper and railroad for shipment of cattle on certain day held a sufficient consideration for contract for shipment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Combes & Rector (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1045.

An action may be maintained against the carrier on a verbal contract of shipment, although a written contract may have been subsequently entered into. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McCord (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1032.

A contract for the shipment of live stock held not invalid by an independent contract between the shipper and another. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cox, 43 C. A. 79, 95 S. W. 1124.

A carrier's contract with M. to maintain dipping vats and dip cattle transported north of quarantine limits held not so connected with a contract for the carriage of cattle as to render the carrier liable for the negligence of M. Clegg v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 104 T. 280, 137 S. W. 109.

96. —— Limitation of liability.—See notes under Art. 708.

97. —— Sanitary regulations.—See Art. 7317.

98. —— Food and water.—See notes under Art. 714.

99. —— Duties in respect to delivery.—The carrier is primarily bound to unload stock at destination, unless the shipper is required to do so by special contract. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737, judgment reversed 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328.

100. —— Delay in transportation or delivery.—Where there is a delay in the delivery of cattle, but not such as to prevent their being sold as early as if they had arrived on time, the company is not liable. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Paine, 1 C. A. 621, 21 S. W. 78.

A carrier deviating from the regular and usual course from necessity is not responsible for the damages caused by the delay occasioned thereby. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Wentworth, 8 C. A. 5, 27 S. W. 680.

Where a contract for shipment does not specify any particular time for delivery, it must be made in a reasonable time. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 245.

A railroad company, receiving cattle for shipment, held bound to transport them in a reasonable time. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Porter, 25 C. A. 491, 61 S. W. 343.

Where a portion of the delay in the transportation of cattle is unavoidable and a portion is negligent, there can be no recovery, if, notwithstanding the negligent delay, the cattle would not have reached their destination in time for the market for which shipped. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Noelke (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 969.

A railroad company must exercise ordinary care to transport cattle to destination within a reasonable time. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 890.

Where a shipper of live stock sold the shipment to plaintiff, agreeing to deliver the live stock at destination, pay the expenses, and stand the loss of weight on the live stock, the purchaser to pay a fixed sum per hundredweight for their gross weight at destination, plaintiff had a right of action against the carrier for loss resulting from a fall in the market price of stock after the time they would have arrived at destination, but for delay in transportation, the assignor being entitled to recover for a resulting loss in weight of the cattle. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Johnson & Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 725.

An assignee of a consignment of live stock, the assignment providing that the shipper was to deliver the stock and stand expenses and loss in weight, and that the assignee should pay a fixed sum per hundredweight on the gross weight delivered, had no right of action against the carrier for damages merely for the bad appearance of the cattle on account of delay in arrival. Id.

The test of liability of a carrier on the question of delay in transportation of cattle is not whether the run made by it was reasonable, but whether it used reasonable care to transport in a reasonable time; and the reasonable care can be considered from all the circumstances. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Hurst & Riley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 599.

In an action for breach of a carrier's contract to ship cattle at a certain time, plaintiff was not bound to show that the delay at the starting point was caused by the carrier's negligence; it being sufficient to show a breach of the contract. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Whiteside (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1037.

In an action for breach of a contract to ship plaintiff's cattle on a certain train for a particular market, he was not estopped to recover for delay in starting by his knowledge that when the cattle were shipped they could not arrive for the market contracted for. Id.

Where a carrier breached its contract to ship cattle on a certain train to arrive for a particular market, it was liable for damages resulting, irrespective of whether thereafter, within a reasonable time, it furnished cars for the shipment. Id.

It is no defense to an action for injuries to a shipment of live stock that they were transported on the first scheduled train after their arrival, if the carrier in so doing was guilty of negligence. Kansas City, M. & O. R. Co. of Texas v. Beckham (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 228.

An instruction that if plaintiff's cattle had departed from division points on the first train after arrival, and that no delays occurred at such places, plaintiff could not recover, though the cattle may have been injured by delays and rough handling at intervening points along the route, was properly refused. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ideus (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 173.

A carrier cannot escape liability for injuries to a shipment of cattle by negligent delay by merely showing that the cattle were shipped on a freight train which proceeded on schedule time, where it did not appear that the train was operated upon such schedule that it would reach the destination within a reasonable time. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 434.

101. —— Excuses for delay.—Rush of business is not an excuse for delay in transportation of cattle. Railway Co. v. McAulay (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 475.

In an action for breach of a carrier's contract to transport cattle by a particular train, it was no defense that the delay resulted from negligent delay on another part of the road, or an unexpected or unprecedented rush of business, disorganizing its train service. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Whiteside (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1037.

In an action against a carrier for breach of contract to transport cattle in time for the next day's market, it was no defense that they arrived in time if they had been placed on the market immediately on arrival. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Albin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 933.

102. —— Loss or injury in general.—The railway company is responsible for injuries to live stock caused by negligence or improperly loading and transporting them. Mo. P. R. R. Co. v. Graves, 2 App. C. C. § 676.

A railway company is responsible for the damages resulting from its failure to provide for sufficient pens at the point of destination, for cattle transported over its road. G., C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. York, 2 App. C. C. § 813; Railway Co. v. Trawick, 80 T. 270, 15 S. W. 568, 18 S. W. 948.

Carriers assuming the duty of unloading cattle held liable for damages resulting from negligence. Mexican Nat. R. Co. v. Savage (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 663.

In action to recover for stock injured on freight train, it is error to charge that plaintiff cannot recover, if defendant used due care, and the injury was because the stock was weak. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dickens (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 124.

In action against railroad company for injuries to two car loads of horses, certain instruction defining negligence approved. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Tribble, 29 C. A. 104, 67 S. W. 890.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to live stock, an instruction as to the company's liability held erroneous, as imposing too high a degree of care. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Lock, 30 C. A. 426, 70 S. W. 456.

In an action against a railroad company to recover damages to stock shipped over defendant's road, a charge as to degree of care required of carrier held erroneous. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 68.

In an action for injury to stock in shipment, a charge should be given relieving defendant from liability if the injuries were occasioned by the inherent viciousness of the stock. Id.

The act of an agent of a railway company in billing a shipment to a place other than that stated in the contract of shipment held the proximate cause of the shipper's losing the benefit of the market. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 71.

A railroad company held not liable to a shipper of cattle for damages from insufficient bedding. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. O'Laughlin (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 610.

A carrier held liable for injuries to cattle included in the shipment under contract with a third person. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Zimmerman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 54.

It is the duty of a railway company to furnish sufficient suitable facilities for delivering cattle shipped over its line, and the crowded condition of the stockyards at its terminus will not relieve it from liability for damages from negligence in handling a shipment of cattle. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Henson, 56 C. A. 468, 121 S. W. 1127, judgment modified 103 T. 598, 132 S. W. 118.

Carriers of live stock are liable absolutely, irrespective of negligence for injury to stock, unless caused by act of God, the public enemy, the owner's negligence, or the natural vice of the animals, and hence, in an action against a carrier for damages for breach of contract to carry stock safely, it was error to eliminate all grounds of recovery except delay; the evidence showing, without explanation, that the cattle were injured when they reached destination. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737, judgment reversed 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328.

A shipper can recover damages for injuries to cattle en route from a cause for which the carrier was liable, as well as for the value of the cattle dying from injuries. Id.

A carrier of live stock must exercise ordinary care to prevent injury from the natural propensities of the animals, and is only exempt from liability from injuries so caused where such cause was the proximate cause of the injury. Id.

Carriers do not absolutely warrant live stock against the consequences of their own vitality, and, in absence of negligence, are relieved from responsibility for injuries occurring from such source, and they are not insurers against injuries arising from their nature and propensities, and which could not be prevented by reasonable care, foresight, and vigilance, and so, where injuries occur by reason of the inherent vices or natural propensities of the animals themselves, a carrier is relieved from responsibility, if he can show he provided all suitable means of transportation, and exercised the degree of care the nature of the property requires. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Franklin (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1150.

A carrier of live stock is not under the absolute duty of guaranteeing cattle against injury by reason of insufficient pens, and the true test is whether the pens under all the circumstances were such as a person of ordinary prudence would have provided. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Crenshaw (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 602.

A carrier is not responsible as insurer for live stock, and is absolved from liability by showing a want of negligence on its part during transportation thereof. Williams & Hawkins v. Gulf & I. R. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 390.

A contract by the shipper of live stock to bed the cars held no defense to an action for injuries to the stock. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Bivins (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1180.

A stockyards company under no duty, and having no contract relations with the owners, held not liable for injury to shipment of bulls, though it gave no notice of their arrival. Union Stock Yards Co. v. Hovencamp (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 704.

Where a shipper delivers live stock to a carrier under an express or an implied contract, the carrier is liable to the shipper for all damages done thereto, though another may have been interested therein. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 280.

Negligence of federal officers in dipping cattle in an improper mixture, and not of defendant carrier in failing to provide noninfected pens, held the proximate cause of their injury. Kansas City, M. & O. R. Co. of Texas v. McCunningham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 420.

Where the loss of weight of cattle in shipment was only temporary, due to the effect of transportation, and was not shown to be due to any negligence of the company in failing to ship the cattle in time, the shipper could not recover for such loss of weight. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 367; Same v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 368.

Where plaintiffs had control of cattle belonging to another with authority to ship, they were bailees and authorized to recover from the carrier for injury to the cattle by a breach of the carrier's contract of shipment. Eastern R. Co. of New Mexico v. Littlefie'd (Sup.) 154 S. W. 543.

Until delivery to the consignee, there is a right of action in the owner of cattle, the consignor, or one having an interest in them to sue for injuries received by them in shipment through the carrier's negligence. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Caruthers (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 238.

An instruction that plaintiff could not recover unless authority for the shipment was given by the consignee held properly refused. Id.

Where it appeared that the line of defendant company terminated at the point where cattle were taken by appellant, and that defendant had nothing to do with the forwarding of the cattle, a verdict for it was properly instructed. Id.

A carrier cannot defend on the ground that plaintiff was a joint owner of cattle with another, where the carrier made the contract of carriage with plaintiff alone. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Tomlinson (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 278.

Carriers of live stock, as of other freight, are liable absolutely for loss of, or injury to, stock intrusted to them for transportation, unless occasioned by act of God, the public enemy, negligence of the shipper, or the natural propensities of the animals. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Drahn (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 282.

103. —— Stock awaiting transportation.—The liability of a railway company begins from the time it receives stock in its pens for shipment. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 255.

A shipment of live stock begins when the cattle are received by the carrier in its pens preparatory to transportation. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 747.

A carrier of hogs held liable for an escape of such animals from pens not reasonably calculated to hold them. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1011.

104. —— Owner accompanying stock.—Where the owner accompanies stock under a specific contract to take care of them himself, and is given opportunity to do so, the common-law rule as to the carrier's liability as an insurer does not apply, as the facts as to an injury are not peculiarly or exclusively within the carrier's knowledge as they are when unaccompanied, but the owner may be presumed as well acquainted therewith as the carrier. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Franklin (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1150.

105. —— Contributory negligence of owner.—Finding of absence of contributory negligence set aside in action by shipper of cattle for damage in transit. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Belcher (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 706.

An instruction that a carrier was not liable for injuries to cattle in shipment, if plaintiff's failure to unload, water, and feed them contributed to the injuries, was properly refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Chittim, 24 C. A. 599, 60 S. W. 284.

Shippers having a contract for a certain rate for carrying cattle are not, by refusing for a time to pay a higher rate demanded, prevented from recovering damages for injuries to the cattle from ill treatment while detained. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Leatherwood, 29 C. A. 507, 69 S. W. 119.

The owner of a horse which had been shipped by rail from some distance to his residence intercepted the horse at a station 13 miles away and took him off the train. The horse was sick and could not eat or drink, but notwithstanding that it was a very hot day, the owner, who weighed over 200 pounds, rode the horse 13 miles to his residence, where the horse died. The owner did not have the horse examined in the first place, and although going along the road he showed signs of getting sicker, he did not stop and rode the 13 miles in about 3 hours. Held that, as a matter of law, he was guilty of contributory negligence precluding recovery against the railroad company, even conceding negligence on its part. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McCrary (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1162.

In the absence of evidence raising that issue, the shipper of live stock is not to be deemed guilty of contributory negligence in not accompanying his stock. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Drahn (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 282.

106. Actions against carriers of live stock—Jurisdiction and venue.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 4.

107. —— Parties.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 5.

The plaintiff sued for the value of a horse killed on the defendant's train. Evidence that the horse was the property of her husband's estate, of whose will she was executrix, did not suffice to authorize a recovery. T. & N. O. R. R. Co. v. Oates, 2 App. C. C. § 618.

108. —— Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

109. —— Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

110. —— Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—In an action against a carrier for injuries to a shipment of cattle, a verdict for the shipper held not against the evidence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. House & Watkins, 40 C. A. 105, 88 S. W. 1110.

Evidence held to show that delay in pen and in shipment reduced the value of cattle shipped in ascertainable amounts in any market. Scott v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 849.

In an action against railroads for damages through delay in transporting plaintiff's cattle, evidence held to show negligence on defendants' part justifying a verdict for plaintiff. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 381.

In an action against carriers of live stock to recover damages for loss in weight due to negligent delay in transportation, evidence held sufficient to support a finding of damage from shrinkage in the value of the stock. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Johnson & Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 725.

In an action against carriers for delay and rough handling of a shipment of cattle, evidence held sufficient to show that the cattle, in the condition in which they were when they arrived at their destination, had a market value at such time and place. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Moss (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 626.

In a suit against carriers of live stock, held that, under the evidence, there was sufficient proof of an item of damages sued for as a feed bill made necessary by delay. Id.

In a shipper's action against a railroad for damages to cattle through negligent delay, evidence held to show that the delay did not cause the cattle to be on the road any longer than they would have been had the delay not occurred. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1191.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a delay in transportation of plaintiff's cattle was caused by negligence of defendant railroads. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1194.

In an action for delay in the transportation of live stock, evidence held to justify a verdict. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bigham (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 432.

In an action against a railroad company for delay in the shipment of cattle, plaintiff's evidence as to the injury to the cattle held not to support a finding in his favor. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 819.

In an action against a carrier of live stock, evidence held not to justify a finding of misrouting of the shipment over the objections of the shipper. St. Louis, B. & M. R. Co. v. True Bros. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 837.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain recovery against carriers of live stock for misdelivery. Southern Kansas R. Co. of Texas v. Lockhart (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 127.

Statement as to proof required of negligence and injury therefrom to a shipment of cattle where a caretaker accompanies them. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 813.

Evidence held to support verdict for shipper against railway companies for negligent handling and delayed delivery of shipment of cattle. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 728.

Evidence held to establish facts that cattle shipped were in bad condition when reaching destination, as assumed in a hypothetical question. Id.

In an action against carriers of live stock for damages for causing loss in the weight and condition of cattle in transportation, evidence held not to sustain award of damages made. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Pannill (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1085.

Where the measure of damages is the difference between the market value of the cattle on arrival and what would have been their market value had they been promptly delivered, it is necessary for the proof to show the market value at both times. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dean (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 527.

In an action against a carrier for delay in a shipment of cattle, evidence held to warrant a finding of an unreasonable delay, which compelled plaintiff to hold the cattle over to the next day. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Wells, Nash & Nash (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 659.

Evidence, in an action for damage to cattle en route, held to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. Kansas City, M. & O. R. Co. of Texas v. Whittington & Sweeney (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 689.

A verdict for damages for injury to live stock held not without evidence to support it as to unreasonable delay in handling the shipment and negligence in furnishing impure food and water. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 309.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to cattle by delay and rough handling en route, evidence held to warrant a verdict for plaintiff, notwithstanding he accompanied the shipment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Ideus (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 173.

111. —— Instructions and questions for jury.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 13.
112. —— Verdict and findings.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 14.
113. —— Damages.—Measure of damages for injuries to live stock in course of shipment is the difference in their market value in the condition in which they arrived at the point of destination and in which they would have been but for the negligence. Railway Co. v. Le Gierse, 51 T. 189; Railway Co. v. Nixon, 52 T. 19; Railway Co. v. Stanley, 89 T. 42, 33 S. W. 109; Railway Co. v. Berchfield, 12 C. A. 145, 33 S. W. 1022.

In an action for damages resulting from injuries to live stock, the owner may recover of the carrier expenses reasonably incurred in efforts to restore the animals. Railway Co. v. Tuckett (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 670.

Where cattle were shipped from Texas to the city of Mexico, the measure of damages resulting from detention is the difference between their market value in Mexican money when detained and when delivered with legal interest. Mexican Nat. R. Co. v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 780.

A shipper may sue for and recover the damages accruing to the shipment, and the owner or other person interested is not a necessary party. Railway Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 782.

Damages for delay in shipment of cattle by a railway to their pasture is the difference between the expense at the places of shipment and delivery and the deterioration in value. Railway Co. v. Hume, 27 S. W. 110, 87 T. 211; Railway Co. v. Stanley, 89 T. 42, 33 S. W. 109; Railway Co. v. Berchfield, 12 C. A. 145, 33 S. W. 1022; Railway Co. v. Avery (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 704.

Measure of damages when cattle are killed in transit to market. Railway Co. v. Kemp (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 714.

Damages recoverable for delay of carrier in shipping live stock. Railway Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 237.

Measure of damages when there is delay in shipment, see Wells, Fargo Exp. Co. v. Samuels, 11 C. A. 15, 31 S. W. 305.

Measure of damages for injuring and killing cattle while in transit, see Railway Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 556.

Measure of damages for an animal injured on train is the difference between his value injured and uninjured at the place of destination. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Arnold, 16 C. A. 74, 40 S. W. 829.

Rule as to measure of damages for injury to cattle shipped held misleading, it appearing that but part of the damage occurred on defendant's road. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 415.

The measure of damages is the difference between the market price of the stock in the condition in which it was delivered at point of destination and what it would have been had the stock been properly cared for during the trip. Railroad v. Wright, 20 C. A. 136, 49 S. W. 147.

The measure of damages to a shipment of cattle from negligence of the carrier is the difference in their market value at the place of destination in the condition in which they should have been delivered and the condition in which they were delivered. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 26 C. A. 494, 63 S. W. 650.

Where plaintiff recovers of a carrier for injury to cattle while in transit, it is proper to allow him interest at 6 per cent. per annum from the time of delivery at their destination. Southern Pac. Co. v. Anderson, 26 C. A. 518, 63 S. W. 1023.

In an action against two connecting carriers for injuries to a shipment of cattle over both roads verdict held excessive. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 54.

The measure of damages for improper treatment of cattle shipped held to be the difference between their market value at their final destination and what it would have been but for the improper treatment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Houghton (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 718.

The measure of damages for a carrier's failure to seasonably deliver cattle at their destination held to be the difference in their market value as they were delivered and their market value if seasonably delivered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Botts (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 113.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to stock in transit, the measure of damages was the market value of the stock at the point of destination. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 68.

In an action against a carrier for damages to cattle resulting from delay in transportation and a collision, interest is recoverable as a part of the damages. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Smissen, 31 C. A. 549, 73 S. W. 42.

In an action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of live stock, plaintiff held entitled to recover the value of time spent and sums expended for medicines in treating the injured animals to prevent enhancement of damages. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Allen, 39 C. A. 236, 87 S. W. 168.

Where a carrier delayed the transportation, but was not negligent in handling live stock, the measure of damages was the difference between the market value of the cattle on their arrival at the point of destination in the condition in which they were, and their market value there when and in the condition they should have arrived, in so far as such difference was the consequence of the delay. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Cobb & McCrory (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 63.

In absence of market value at the destination of cattle injured in transit, the measure of damage is the intrinsic value of cattle killed, plus the difference in value, if any, in the intrinsic value of the surviving cattle at the time and in the condition in which they should have been delivered, and not their market value in the nearest market. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Wasson Bros. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 664.

The market value at destination of cattle damaged in shipment should govern in determining the measure of damages, if there is a market value there, and, if not, the shipper is entitled to the reasonable value of the cattle damaged by the carrier's negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 890.

The proper measure of damages for injury to a shipment of cattle is the difference in their market value in the condition in which they arrived at their destination and the condition in which they should have arrived. Scott v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 849.

Where cattle are lost in transit, the shipper may recover as damages their value at the point of destination where they were to be offered for sale. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Harriman Bros. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 932.

Where, in an action for damages to plaintiff's horses while being shipped over defendant's railroad lines, there was ample testimony to support the verdict, judgment will not be reversed on the ground that the amount is excessive because plaintiff's claim for damages, made shortly after the arrival of the horses at their destination, was for a smaller sum than the amount awarded by the jury. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1155.

The measure of recovery for a carrier's negligent delay in the delivery of live stock is the difference in the market value of the stock when delivered at destination, and what would have been their market value at the place of delivery had they been delivered with ordinary diligence. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Isenhower (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 297.

Where a shipper of live stock penned the stock in contemplation of immediate shipment to the point of destination for immediate sale, and the carrier delayed taking the stock, what occurred to the stock after they were penned and before the actual loading and moving of the same occurred during the shipment, so that the measure of damages was the difference in the market value of the stock at the point of destination at the time of delivery there and the market value there if delivered promptly. St. Louis, B. & M. R. Co. v. Murphy & Kay (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 306.

The measure of damages for injuries to a shipment of cattle during transportation, whether they are for immediate market or to be held for feeding and fattening and thereafter to be sold on the market, is the difference between the market price in the condition in which they were delivered and what their market price would have been at destination if proper care had been exercised during their shipment and in an action for such damages, evidence as to what a part of the cattle in question sold for three or four months after the time of shipment at a different market was inadmissible. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Golson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 456.

The measure of damages for live stock killed in transit is their "market," and not "reasonable," value. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

It was error to instruct that the measure of damage for injury to stock at an intermediate point in transit was the difference between their market value at the destination just before and just after the injury. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Aycock (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 198.

The measure of damages for live stock dying as the result of injuries caused by the negligence of the carrier is their market value at the place of destination at the time they should have arrived there. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 747.

In an action against carriers for damage to live stock, damage to cattle not owned exclusively by the plaintiffs is recoverable to the extent of their interest. Eastern R. Co. of New Mexico v. Littlefield (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1086.

In an action against carriers for injuries to live stock, an instruction on the measure of damages held erroneous. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Bivins (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1180.

A verdict held not excessive in an action for damages to live stock in transportation. Id.

In an action for delay in transporting cattle, reasonable delay in unloading the cattle for food, water and rest in transit held not to be considered in determining the damages. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Jarman & Arnett (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1131.

Statement of measure of damages for delay in transporting cattle, where they had no market value at destination, and there is evidence of their intrinsic value there. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Crews (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1049.

If cattle were injured before shipment by being dipped into crude oil, the fact that they were further injured by rough handling would not make the carrier liable for the entire damage. Quanah, A. & P. R. Co. v. Galloway (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 368.

On injury to the shipment, shippers of cattle for exhibition at a stock show and for sale were not entitled to recover from the carrier for loss of prize money which might have been won at the show. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Willie S. & J. B. Ikard Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 502.

A shipper held entitled to recover certain damages for the misrouting. St. Louis, B. & M. R. Co. v. True Bros. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 837.

Defendant carrier held liable for the cost of feed for cattle which was required solely because of the carrier's delay in transit. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Whiteside (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1037.

As against a stockyards company, the measure of damages for injury to a shipment of stock was the difference between their market value as delivered to the stockyards company and their value as actually delivered to the owner. Union Stock Yards Co. v. Hovencamp (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 704.

Measure of damages for injuries to a race horse during transportation defined. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Crippen (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 361.

A shipper's measure of damages for injuries to cattle is the difference between the market value at the time they arrived at destination and what would have been their market value had they arrived without delay. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Knox (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 902.

Where one of plaintiff's horses was so injured during transportation that it died shortly after arriving at destination, plaintiff was entitled to recover as a part of his damages the amount expended in treating the horse, and also for removing its carcass. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 676.

The verdict cannot be considered so grossly excessive as to reveal passion or prejudice, where the jury merely allowed the shipper the average difference between the market price of cattle on the day they should have arrived and on the day they did. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Blocker (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 955.

In an action for damage to live stock during shipment, an instruction held erroneous as authorizing double damages. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Tomlinson (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 278.

Measure of damages for negligence and delay in transportation of shipment of mules held to be the difference in the market value at the time and in the condition in which they arrived at their destination and their market value if handled with ordinary care and diligence. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Crowder (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 281.

114. Control of premises.—A railroad company is entitled to perpetually enjoin lunch vendors from going upon its depot platform or upon its right of way at, or adjacent to, its passenger station, as well as from going upon its passenger coaches, to sell articles of food. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 241.

115. Conversion of oil tank cars.—A common carrier obtaining oil tank cars from a person having the possession, but not the title, must return them on demand to the true owner, and, if it does not do so, it is guilty of conversion. Smith v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 101 T. 405, 108 S. W. 819.

Art. 708. [320] [278] Carriers can not limit their responsibility. —Railroad companies and other common carriers of goods, wares and merchandise, for hire, within this state, on land or in boats or vessels on the waters entirely within the body of this state, shall not limit or restrict their liability as it exists at common law, by any general or special notice, or by inserting exceptions in the bill of lading or memorandum given upon the receipt of the goods for transportation, or in any other manner whatever, and no special agreement made in contravention of the foregoing provisions of this article shall be valid. [Act Dec. 4, 1863. P. D. 452.]

1. Nature of right and of restriction.—A stipulation in a bill of lading that damages for loss of freight should be regarded as waived if demand in writing is not made within three days after the delivery of the freight is invalid. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Maetze, 2 App. C. C. § 634.

A stipulation in the bill of lading requiring the adjustment of damage to goods before their delivery does not apply when there is no delivery of the goods. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Golding, 3 App. C. C. § 36.

The Revised Statutes of the United States do not apply to the liability of a carrier operating entirely within this state. Houston D. Nav. Co. v. Insurance Co. (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 560.

All agreements, whether reasonable or not, made by common carriers within the state limiting their common-law liability, are invalid. Pacific Express Co. v. Hertzberg, 17 C. A. 100, 42 S. W. 795.

On shipments within this state a common carrier cannot limit its common-law liability. I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Parish, 18 C. A. 130, 43 S. W. 1066.

Railroads cannot by any contract or in any other manner constitute themselves private carriers nor stipulate for exemption from liability for negligence for themselves or servants. Railroads v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 365.

A contract between a railroad company and a mill owner for the construction of a side track and switch, in consideration of the latter releasing the company from liability, held not void, under art. 708, prohibiting carriers from limiting their liability. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Carter, 95 T. 461, 68 S. W. 159.

A contract releasing a railroad from damages for injury to property is not invalid under this article when it does not embrace property for the injury or destruction of which the company is liable as common carrier. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Carter, 95 T. 461, 68 S. W. 164.

A railroad company, in leasing a part of its right of way for a coalhouse, is not acting as a common carrier and may stipulate that it shall be exempt from liability for loss by fire. J. C. Wooldridge & Son v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 38 C. A. 551, 86 S. W. 942.

2. —— Authority of consignor.—In general the consignor has authority to stipulate the terms of transportation. Ryan v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co., 65 T. 13, 57 Am. Rep. 589.

3. —— Custom.—The liability of a common carrier cannot be limited by proof of custom. Tex. Exp. Co. v. Dupree, 2 App. C. C. § 320.

4. —— Carriage passengers and baggage.—See notes under Art. 707.

5. —— Carriage of live stock.—The words "common carriers of goods, wares and merchandise" are used descriptively rather than as of limitation, and embrace common carriers of live stock as of other property. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 1 App. C. C. § 1262.

The railroad is a common carrier as to live stock, and cannot limit its liability as such by contract. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Hamm, 2 App. C. C. § 493.

The opinion in Railroad Co. v. Harris, 67 T. 166, 2 S. W. 574, to the effect that carriers of animals are common carriers, subject to the same responsibilities imposed by law on carriers of other property, except as this is modified by the inherent character of such property; that a special contract, which by its terms purports to exempt a railway company from liability for injury in the transportation of cattle except such as might result from the willful negligence of a railway company, cannot be enforced, adhered to. Railway Co. v. Cornwall, 70 T. 611, 8 S. W. 312; M. P. R. R. Co. v. Fagan, 72 T. 127, 9 S. W. 749, 2 L. R. A. 75, 13 Am. St. Rep. 776.

The courts will not enforce a contract which fixes the value of animals at the shipping point instead of at their destination. Railway Co. v. Anderson, 21 S. W. 691, 3 C. A. 8.

A special written contract, by which the shipper is bound to feed and water live stock in transportation, is not in violation of this article. Tex. & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 167.

An agreement in a contract for the transportation of live stock, providing that in case of loss the shipper shall not recover the value of the property lost by the carrier's negligence, is against public policy and void. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harriman Bros. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 932.

A stipulation in a contract for transportation of live stock that the shipper will load, feed, and water, and unload and reload at feeding and transfer points, and will care for the stock while in cars and will relieve the carrier from any liability while in his charge, is void for limiting the carrier's common-law liability. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 649.

6. —— Shipper's fraud.—A fraudulent concealment by the shipper of the value of goods delivered to the carrier for transportation, by means of which the risk is increased or his care and vigilance may be lessened, will exempt the carrier from responsibility. Tex. Exp. Co. v. Dupree et al., 2 App. C. C. § 319; H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Burke, 55 T. 323, 40 Am. Rep. 808.

The mere failure on the part of the shipper to inform the carrier of the value of the goods shipped would not, per se, be such fraud as would discharge the carrier. The party who sends the goods is not bound to disclose their value unless he is asked. Thus, the fact that clothing was wrapped up with bedding, unless fraudulently so placed for the purpose of concealing its value, does not defeat recovery in case of loss. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 2 App. C. C. § 515.

7. Enlargement of liability.—A common carrier may, by special contract, enlarge his liability. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Schneider, 1 App. C. C. § 122.

8. Liability upon non-performance of special contract.—Where a carrier refuses to perform his part of the special contract he cannot take advantage of the restrictions and limitations in his favor, and becomes liable as if there was no special contract. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 195.

9. Interstate and foreign commerce.—This article does not apply to interstate carriage or traffic. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Park, 1 App. C. C. §§ 332–335; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 1 App. C. C. § 1260; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 191; Railway Co. v. Whitehead (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 172.

When a contract is to be performed partly in one state and partly in another, the intention of the parties gathered from the surrounding circumstances must govern. In the absence of attendant circumstances such construction will be given as will render the contract valid. Ryan v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co., 65 T. 13, 57 Am. Rep. 589.

A clause in a through bill of lading exempting the carrier "from damages or loss by fire while in depot," made in the state of Tennessee by a connecting road, being illegal in Texas, will nat be passed upon in the absence of allegation and proof that such limitation was legal where executed. Railroad Co. v. Moody, 71 T. 614, 9 S. W. 465.

An unreasonable stipulation in an interstate shipment is void. Railway Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 556.

Interstate commerce exists when a commodity has been delivered to a common carrier to be transported on a continuous voyage or trip to a point beyond the limits of the state where delivered. Houston D. Nav. Co. v. Insurance Co., 89 T. 1, 32 S. W. 889, 30 L. R. A. 713, 59 Am. St. Rep. 17.

This article applies as well to interstate shipments as to domestic ones and a contract as to baggage made in this state is controlled by the laws of this state. Mexican Nat. Ry. Co. v. Ware (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 344.

Under the statute of Texas, a railroad company receiving cotton in that state for transportation to Rhode Island cannot exempt itself from its common-law liability for loss from fire by conditions in its shipping receipt. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Richmond (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 410.

This article applies to such carriers as are engaged in carrying goods, etc., within this state, and does not apply to those engaged in interstate commerce. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Richmond, 94 T. 571, 63 S. W. 619.

This statute does not affect contracts made for interstate shipment nor does it purport to do so. A carrier cannot by contract limit its liability for damages caused by its negligence. A. T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smythe, 55 C. A. 557, 119 S. W. 895.

A state statute restricting the right of a common carrier to limit its liability has no application to a shipment from a point within the state to a foreign country. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Inman, Akers & Inman (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 275.

10. Negligence or misconduct.—An agreement limiting the liability of the carrier to damages resulting from the willful negligence of its agents is invalid. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 1 App. C. C. § 1257; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hamm, 2 App. C. C. § 493; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 195.

Where damage occurs to live stock in transit on account of negligence of the railroad company, the carrier cannot even by contract relieve itself from liability for such negligence of itself or its employés. Railway Co. v. Maddox, 75 T. 300, 12 S. W. 815; Railway Co. v. Wilhelm, 4 App. C. C. § 243, 16 S. W. 109.

A common carrier by contract, in cases not governed by the statutes of this state forbidding it, may stipulate against loss by fire not occurring through the contributory negligence of itself or servants. The burden of proof as to cause of loss and want of negligence is on the carrier. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. China Mfg. Co., 79 T. 26, 14 S. W. 785.

A common carrier cannot contract against liability for its own negligence. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Foltz, 22 S. W. 541, 3 C. A. 644.

A stipulation exempting a carrier from liability for fire held no defense, in the absence of proof that the fire did not result from the carrier's negligence. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. McFadden, 91 T. 194, 40 S. W. 216, 42 S. W. 593.

A railway company cannot restrict its liability for damages occasioned by its negligence or that of its employés. See Art. 708. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Rogers, 21 C. A. 605, 53 S. W. 366.

Delivery to a compress by a railroad company under the regulations of the railroad commission, requiring a railroad, when requested by the shipper of cotton, to deliver it to the nearest compress on the line of its route for compressing, being at a point between that of shipment and that stipulated by the bill of lading for delivery to the consignee, does not change its liability for the cotton while at the compress from that of common carrier, as it existed at common law, which this article prevents its limiting to that of warehouseman; but, under Art. 711, providing that the railroad company shall be liable as common carrier from the commencement of the trip till the goods are delivered to the consignee, at the point of destination, the compress is its agent; and it can relieve itself of liability for the burning of the cotton at the compress, under its stipulation against liability for fire, only by pleading and proving that its negligence, or that of its servants, did not contribute to such loss. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

11. Mode or form of limitation.—Subject to the limitations of this article carriers may make special contracts in relation to the transportation of freight. An agent of a railway company has authority to bind it by special contracts relating to the business of the company. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Hill, 63 T. 381, 51 Am. Rep. 642.

Where cotton had been delivered to a railroad company and accepted for shipment, that the bills of lading, which were prepared by the shipper and presented to the company's agent for signing, but had not been signed before the cotton was destroyed by fire, exempted the company from liability for loss by fire, would not prevent a recovery of the value of the cotton, as the company's liability did not depend upon the undelivered bill of lading, but upon acceptance of the cotton for transportation. Texas Midland R. R. v. H. L. Edwards & Co., 56 C. A. 643, 121 S. W. 570.

An express agreement between a carrier and a shipper is not necessary to exempt the carrier from liability for delay in delivery, due to congested conditions of traffic if the shipper was notified of such conditions when the shipment was tendered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stark Grain Co., 103 T. 542, 131 S. W. 410, modifying judgment (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1146.

Even if the carrier could be considered a party to the contract of insurance, consisting of a fire policy taken out by a shipper on goods shipped, reciting the release by assured of the carrier from liability under its bill of lading, and the waiver by the insurer of any right of subrogation against the carrier, it would be an indirect way of limiting its liability as a common carrier as existing at common law, and so would be ineffective as against the shipper's claim against it for the burning of the goods through its negligence. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

The owner of goods injured in transit held entitled to recover the full value of the loss, though the carrier did not charge full rates. Pacific Express Co. v. Rudman (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 268.

12. Notice of limitation.—A mere notice in the office of the railway company, or printed on the bill of lading, will not bind the shipper, though brought to his knowledge; but his assent is conclusively presumed to conditions inserted in the bill of lading when he has an opportunity to know its contents, has received it at the time of shipment, and the carrier has used no unfair means to deceive. The conditions are not void simply because they are printed in small type. Ryan v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co., 65 T. 13, 57 Am. Rep. 589; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Scrivener, 2 App. C. C. § 331.

A shipper is bound by a provision in a bill of lading provided that, if the shipper does not state the value of a shipment in the bill of lading, the carrier will not be liable for more than $50, although he was ignorant of its presence. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 340.

13. Consideration.—See notes under Art. 589.

14. Limitation to own line.—See notes under Art. 731.

15. Stipulation as to packing and marking.—Under this article, a stipulation in a receipt that the carrier should not be liable for any loss of money, jewelry, etc., unless the same was separately packed, sealed, marked as such, and so described, is invalid as an attempt to limit the liability of the carrier at common law under which carriers are liable as insurers for loss of money or valuables, whether bills of lading were given specifying them or not. Head v. Pacific Exp. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 682.

16. Limitation of amount of liability.—The measure of damages may be stipulated in the bill of lading. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Barnes, 2 App. C. C. § 579.

An agreement that limits the liability of the carrier as to the amount of damages recoverable is void. Railway Co. v. Ball, 80 T. 602, 16 S. W. 441.

Where injuries and damages result from negligence of a common carrier they cannot be restricted by contract to less than the value of the property destroyed. Ft. W. & D. Ry. Co. v. Greathouse, 82 T. 104, 17 S. W. 834.

A stipulation in the contract of carriage limiting the carrier's liability to a value fixed in the contract is not binding when the goods are injured through the carrier's negligence, in the absence of a statute permitting such a limitation of liability. Southern Pac. Co. v. Anderson, 26 C. A. 518, 63 S. W. 1023.

Stipulation in bill of lading that value of goods at place of shipment shall limit carrier's liability held against public policy. Southern Pac. Co. v. D'Arcais, 27 C. A. 57, 64 S. W. 813.

Where the evidence showed that plaintiff's cattle ranged in value from $40 for the lowest to $8,000 for the highest per head, and there was no reduction in the rate at which the cattle were carried, and no consideration for a limitation of the carrier's liability, a contract fixing such liability at $30 for each bull and $20 for each cow was unreasonable and void. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harriman Bros. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 932.

A carrier having an opportunity to see and know the nature and value of freight to be carried cannot by contract relieve itself from liability for full value for loss through its negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Crippen (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 361.

17. —— Shipments by express.—See notes under Title 56.

18. —— Validity as to consignee.—In an action against a carrier for injury to goods, the consignee is bound by a valid contract of carriage made between the shipper and the carrier as to the value of the goods. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 340.

19. Limitation of time to sue.—See notes under Art. 5713.

20. —— Notice of claim for damages.—See notes under Art. 5714.

21. Construction.—The provision in a contract of shipment of cattle that as a condition to recovery for injury thereto from any cause, including delay, the shipper shall give notice of claim therefor before removing them from the place of destination, does not apply to damages from loss by decline in the market, or to the expense of feed for the cattle after their delayed arrival and till the market day. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Hurst & Riley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 599.

22. Limitation as ground of defense—Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 8.

23. —— Presumptions and burden of proof.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

24. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action for damage to furs while being shipped, evidence held to warrant findings that there was no contract limiting the carrier's liability. Pacific Express Co. v. Rudman (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 268.

25. —— Question for jury.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 13.

Art. 709. [321] [279] Bound to carry goods, when.—Upon the tender of the legal or customary rates of freight on goods offered for transportation, to any common carrier whatever, such carrier shall receive and transport such goods, provided his vehicle or vessel has capacity safely to carry the goods so offered on the trip or voyage then pending, and such goods are of the kind usually carried upon such vehicle or vessel, and are offered at a reasonable time. Any common carrier refusing to transport goods, as above provided, taking in the same in the order presented, shall be liable to the party injured for damages sustained by reason of his refusal, and shall also be liable to a penalty of not less than five nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered in each case by the owner of the goods in any court having jurisdiction in the county where the wrong is done or where the common carrier resides; provided, this article shall not affect such corporations as are embraced in article 6554 of these statutes. [Id. sec. 453; amend., 1895, Sen. Jour., p. 478, sec. 14.]

Repealed as to railroads.—This article was repealed as to railroads by the act of April, 1887, amending article 4227, Revised Statutes 1879 [Art. 6554 of this compilation]. Railway Co. v. Kay, 85 T. 558, 22 S. W. 665. And see Railway Co. v. Bailey, 4 App. C. C. § 68, 15 S. W. 203.

Obligation to carry goods in general.—A common carrier of goods at common law may, by public notice, relieve himself from obligation to carry particular kinds of goods. This privilege does not extend to railroad companies, which are required to transport all such property as required by modern usage, and cannot limit their liability as such with respect thereto. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 1 App. C. C. §§ 1262–1264.

Refusal to receive for shipment.—When a carrier wrongfully refuses to take property offered for shipment, it is the duty of the owner to take care of and protect his property while delayed, and for the expenses thus incurred the carrier is liable. The carrier is also liable for the loss occasioned by delay in getting the produce to its market place or destination, to be estimated by ascertaining its price there when it should have arrived, had it been taken when offered, and its price at the time when it did arrive. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 63 T. 322.

An unexpected and unprecedented press of business will in general furnish a railway company a legal excuse for refusing to accept freight. Id.

Art. 710. [322] [280] Must give bill of lading.—Common carriers are required, when they receive goods for transportation, to give to the shipper, when it is demanded, a bill of lading or memorandum in writing, stating the quantity, character, order and condition of the goods; and such goods shall be delivered, in the manner provided by common law, in like order and condition to consignee, the unavoidable wear and tear and deterioration in due course of transportation only excepted; and in case such common carrier shall fail to deliver goods as above required, they shall be liable to the party injured for his damages, as at common law; and in case of their refusal to execute and deliver a bill of lading or memorandum in writing, as above required, they shall be liable to a penalty of not less than five nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered as in the preceding article. [Act Feb. 4, 1860. Id. 454.]

1. Bills of lading in general.—Unless the bill of lading contains data or refers to some other instrument from which data could be obtained by which the amount due can be ascertained, such bill of lading cannot be said to include the expense account. In absence of such data the expense account is not a part of the bill of lading. Schloss v. Railway Co., 85 T. 601, 22 S. W. 1014.

"Common carriers are required, when they receive goods for transportation, to give to the shipper, when it is demanded, a bill of lading or memorandum in writing, stating the quantity, character, order and condition of the goods." Railway Co. v. McCown (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 745. This under our statute constitutes a bill of lading. It is a contract entered into between the parties at the time the goods are delivered, and is equally binding on both parties. Schloss v. Railway Co., 85 T. 601, 22 S. W. 1014.

A carrier is compelled to issue to the shipper a bill of lading for goods intrusted to it for shipment. R. W. Williamson & Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 807.

Under art. 719, which provides that every bill of lading issued by the authorized agent of a carrier or receiver thereof shall be deemed and held to be the act and deed of the carrier or receiver, and the principal shall be liable thereon in accordance with its terms and this article, a bill of lading executed by a carrier is a "contract in writing" within art. 5688, providing that actions for debt, evidenced by or founded on any contract in writing, shall be brought within four years after the cause of action has accrued. Elder, Dempster & Co. v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 154 S. W. 975.

Evidence, in an action against a carrier for the amount overpaid by plaintiff upon a draft with bill of lading attached, showing a shipment of 62,000 pounds of corn when in fact the car contained but 46,000 pounds, held to show that the bill of lading truly indicated the amount delivered for carriage. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Watson (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 438.

2. Bill not required where carrier has no agent.—When the freight is loaded by the shipper at a place where there was no agent or means of weighing, the carrier is not required to comply with this article. Conley v. Sherman, S. & S. Ry. Co., 90 T. 295, 38 S. W. 519.

3. Not necessary to specify route in bill.—Though by the bill of lading the carrier could choose the route, it could not choose one which was obstructed, when another was open. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Houx, 15 C. A. 502, 40 S. W. 327.

There is nothing in this article requiring the receipt or bill of lading to specify the route over which the owner may wish his freight transported and there is no legal duty devolving upon the agent of railroad company to comply with requirement of the writ of mandamus awarded by the court to specify the routing in a bill of lading issued to a shipper. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 55 C. A. 12, 118 S. W. 624.

4. Demand for bill.—Plaintiff brought suit for the value of cotton delivered to a railroad on its platform and afterwards destroyed by fire. No bill of lading was demanded or received, and plaintiff sought to fix defendant's liability as a carrier by proof of the custom to receive freight on its platform, and that by reason thereof plaintiff did not demand a bill of lading. Held, that defendant was not liable as a common carrier. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Douglas, 2 App. C. C. § 30.

The demand must be specific and in strict compliance with the statute. Sherman, S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Conly (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 253.

5. Construction and operation of bill.—Effect of recitals in. Railway Co. v. Holder, 10 C. A. 223, 30 S. W. 383.

As to terms while in transit, while in depot, etc. Amory Mfg. Co. v. Railway Co. (Sup.) 37 S. W. 856, 59 Am. St. Rep. 65; Railway Co. v. Pepperell Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 965.

Where 485 half bales of cotton were delivered to a carrier for which a bill of lading for 485 bales was issued, a delivery of the half bales did not fulfill the requirements of the bill of lading. Wichita Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

Issuance of a bill of lading by a carrier is prima facie evidence of a delivery of the goods to the carrier. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lowery (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 992.

The consignor has the right to have the destination of his consignment diverted while in transit at any intermediate point through which it passes. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Caruthers (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 238.

6. —— Parol evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

7. Negotiability and transfer of bill.—A bill of lading is a quasi-negotiable instrument, the assignment of which, accompanied by delivery, passes to the assignee title to the goods so as to defeat the seller's right to stoppage in transitu. Railway Co. v. Heidenheimer, 82 T. 195, 17 S. W. 608, 27 Am. St. Rep. 861.

The transfer of a bill of lading in way of a pledge or as collateral security for a loan, if it does not absolutely defeat the right of stoppage in transitu, defeats the power of the pledgor to assert that right until he has discharged the debt secured by the transfer. Id.

The transfer by indorsement of a bill of lading, accompanied by its delivery, passes title to the property. Its effect cannot be varied by evidence of custom. Mercantile Banking Co. v. Landa (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 681; Railway Co. v. Heidenheimer, 82 T. 199, 17 S. W. 608, 27 Am. St. Rep. 861.

A bank in cashing a draft attached to a bill of lading drawn on consignee of goods becomes a purchaser, liable if the goods are not of a quality contracted to be furnished. Landa v. Lattin, 19 C. A. 246, 46 S. W. 48.

Indorsements on a draft attached to a bill of lading held to put the drawee on inquiry that the bank presenting it was a holder for collection only and not a purchaser. Gregory v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 66.

Where a draft attached to a bill of lading was paid to a bank holding it for collection only, such bank was not liable to the drawee for breach of the drawer's contract of sale. Id.

A sale of cotton by the pledgor of the bills of lading, pursuant to the uniform custom with the pledgee, held to release the carrier issuing the bills from liability to the pledgee. First Nat. Bank v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1033.

Bills of lading for cotton, pledged as security for money advanced to pay the accompanying drafts for the purchase price, held not functus officio because the drafts were paid. Id.

In case of oral contract for sale of wheat, on delivery of the wheat to a carrier, and delivery of the bill of lading to the buyer, title vests in him, and transportation is at his risk. Chas. F. Orthwein's Sons v. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co., 32 C. A. 600, 75 S. W. 364.

Where bill of lading taken to seller's order is indorsed and attached to draft on purchaser, which bank discounts or takes for collection, no title passes to purchaser until, by payment of draft, he obtains bill of lading. Grayson County Nat. Bank v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1094.

Buyer held not entitled to refuse to accept shipment for failure of seller to indorse bill of lading. Ziegler v. C. J. Gerlack & Bro. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 80.

One who negotiated forged ocean bills of lading for the owner and received the payment held not liable to the purchaser. Moritz & Pincoff v. Adoue & Lobit (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1140.

The transfer by a consignor to a bank of a bill of lading and draft followed by payment of the draft by the bank held to place the legal title to the property in the bank subject to the duty to deliver the property on payment of the draft. W. T. Wilson Grain Co. v. Central Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 996.

Where a seller of goods delivers them to a carrier and forwards bill of lading with draft attached for collection, the title vests in the buyer without payment of the price or actual delivery. Robinson & Martin v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 146 S. W. 537.

By a seller's indorsement of a draft with bill of lading attached, the bank paying the draft becomes the owner of the goods to the extent of enforcing a lien against them, and occupies a similar position to a mortgagee in possession. Commercial Bank of Chicotah, Okl., v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Santa Anna (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1175.

Plaintiff bank, the indorsee of a draft with bill of lading attached, in an action brought against its correspondent bank for wrongful delivery of the bill of lading to the buyer without payment of the draft, held entitled to recover only the value of the goods at the time they were so delivered. Id.

Under a bill of lading providing that the carrier would not be liable for any fault of the shipper or discrepancy in weight, it was not liable to the transferee of the shipper's draft with bill of lading attached for the amount overpaid on account of such discrepancy. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Watson (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 438.

8. —— Bona fide purchaser.—A seller under a warranty drew a draft on the buyer for the price, and with the bill of lading indorsed it to a bank in the ordinary course of business, and the bank gave the seller credit on its books for the amount of the draft, less the usual discount. The bank had no notice of any noncompliance with the contract on the part of the seller. Held, that the bank was an innocent purchaser for value, and it did not become a warrantor of the quality and quantity of the goods described in the bill of lading. First Nat. Bank of Chicago v. Mineral Wells & L. P. St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1099.

The bank forwarded the draft and bill of lading to its correspondent for collection, with instructions not to surrender the bill of lading until the draft was paid. The correspondent collected the draft in full, and remitted to the bank a part thereof. After the payment to the correspondent and before the transmission thereof to the bank, the latter was notified of the failure of the seller to comply with the contract of sale, and at that time the bank had in its possession funds belonging to the seller more than sufficient to satisfy the demands of the buyer for the loss it had sustained. The bank obtained judgment against its correspondent for the amount it retained. Held, that the bank was not liable to the buyer for the loss sustained, and the seller could not claim the amount due to the bank from its correspondent; there being nothing to impeach the good faith of the transaction as between the bank and the seller. Id.

9. Contracts for transportation.—A shipper, contracting with a railroad station agent for the transportation of freight, is under no legal obligation to make inquiries concerning the station agent's instructions or powers. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 883.

Written contract for shipment of cattle held not to merge previous verbal contract made by agent, in which he agreed to have cars ready on a certain day. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Combes & Rector (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1045.

In an action against a railway company for breach of contract to carry a dead body, an instruction on plaintiff's duty to provide an attendant held properly refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Linton (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 129.

10. —— Authority of agents and employés.—Where a shipper enters the offices of a carrier, he may assume that the person therein dealing with him has a right to bind the carrier, and, if he has not, the carrier must prove want of authority. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 265.

An agent of an initial carrier receiving goods for transportation to a foreign country has no power to contract with the shipper that the sum paid for carriage shall cover import duties demanded by the foreign country, where the charge demanded is the amount fixed according to tariffs promulgated by the carriers, and filed with and approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Breaux (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 287.

A railroad station agent has power to contract that the railroad will furnish cars at a named place and date for the transportation of freight so as to bind the company. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 305.

Where a carrier was induced to issue fraudulent bills of lading for half bales of cotton as full bales, by reason of false certificates of a compress company, the fact that the carrier's servant had knowledge of the fraud in time to have prevented its accomplishment, but negligently or willfully failed to disclose the same, did not bar the carrier's right to recover over against the compress company for any recovery against it on the bills. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

Where a carrier by the fraudulent certificates of a compress company was induced to issue bills of lading for full bales of cotton of estimated weights, when in fact only half bales were delivered to it, the carrier, not having pleaded a denial of the authority of its agent, was estopped to deny as against an innocent holder of the bills that it had received full bales to the number stated in the bills. Id.

A carrier's agent at a station to which goods were not consigned had no authority to contract to stop them at his station; nor had an agent at another station authority to contract to reship them from destination to his station. Anderson v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 358.

11. —— Modification.—Obligations under a contract to carry a dead body held not controlled by recitals of a receipt, given by the carrier's agent after the contract was made. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Linton (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 129.

12. —— Specific performance.—Specific performance of a contract securing to a railroad company certain freight held not to be denied on the ground that it conflicts with a prior contract with another railroad company. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Texas Short Line Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 355.

A contract with a proposed road for the transportation of freight held not to be denied specific performance because of lack of mutuality, in that it was terminable at the option of the proposed road. Id.

Specific performance of a contract with a railroad company securing to it the shipment of a percentage of the product of a salt company held not to be denied on the ground that the road was not sufficiently equipped to give good service. Id.

The fact that a contract with a proposed road for the shipment of certain freight has some time to run, and the acts required to be done may continue for such period, held to furnish no sufficient excuse for not enforcing specific performance, when the acts to be done are purely ministerial. Id.

In a suit by a railroad company for specific performance of a contract, evidence considered, and held insufficient to show that the contract was fraudulent. Id.

A provision in a contract with a railroad company that it shall terminate without notice whenever another railroad shall cease to compete for business held not to prevent specific performance, where the proposed road had been constructed and was a competing road, prohibited by the Constitution from consolidating. Id.

13. Delivery to carrier.—The placing of goods on the car of a railway company without authority is not a delivery to the company. Yoakum v. Dryden (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 312.

Plaintiff delivered cotton to a compress company, which was defendant's agent for shipment when compressed, and after the cotton had been checked by the compress company, plaintiff presented the bills of lading to defendant's agent, but he refused to sign them because the insurance carried by the compress company to cover cotton on its platform for shipment, pursuant to an agreement between it and the railroad company, was not sufficient to cover the cotton then on hand, and plaintiff's cotton was destroyed before the bills of lading were signed. Held, that there was a delivery of the cotton to defendant for transportation before the fire. Texas Midland R. R. v. H. L. Edwards & Co., 56 C. A. 643, 121 S. W. 570.

Railroad Commission Regulations, § 7, provides that, when cotton is tendered to a railroad on a compress platform on the track of the railroad, it shall be the duty of the railroad to take charge of and receipt for the cotton in the same manner and on the same terms as it would receive, and receipt for the cotton if tendered at any other place assigned by it for such transaction, provided, however, that the shipper or the compress company shall in such cases assume the additional risk of insurance involved by such act of the railroad. For cotton so tendered the railroad issued a bill of lading, providing that each carrier over whose route cotton was to be carried thereunder should have the privilege of, at its own cost, compressing the same in accordance with the rules and regulations of the railroad commission. Held, that through the compress company, as its agent, the railroad had possession of the cotton, so that its liability therefor as common carrier attached. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

In order to constitute delivery to a carrier, complete control of the goods must be given to it. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lowery (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 992.

14. Ownership, custody, and control of goods.—The shipper in whose name the bill of lading for goods is taken may sue the carrier for their non-delivery or loss. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Stewart, 1 App. C. C. § 1247.

When goods are delivered to the carrier to be delivered to the consignee, prima facie the consignee is the owner; but when the consignor merely contracts with the owner for the conveyance of the goods to a certain point, and the consignor is shown to be the owner before shipment, there is nothing to show the change of ownership. E. L. & R. R. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 64 T. 615.

The consignor or shipper may sue the carrier for injury to goods shipped, without reference to his property in such goods. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 84 T. 348, 19 S. W. 509.

The fact that property was shipped in the name of an agent will not prevent a recovery by the owner. Railway Co. v. Humphries, 4 C. A. 333, 23 S. W. 556; Railway Co. v. Freeman, 57 T. 156.

Property in hands of a carrier held not to belong to the consignee, so as to enable him to maintain an action for injuries thereto. Cudahy Packing Co. v. Dorsey, 26 C. A. 484, 63 S. W. 548.

Railroad company, erroneously delivering wheat to another than the consignee, held immediately liable to the consignor for the value of the wheat. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Seley, 31 C. A. 158, 72 S. W. 89.

In letters confirming a sale, reference to Galveston held one of price only, and not as a place of delivery, and title passed on delivery of the wheat to the carrier. Chas. F. Orthwein's Sons v. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co., 32 C. A. 600, 75 S. W. 364.

In case of oral contract for sale of wheat, on delivery of the wheat to a carrier, and delivery of the bill of lading to the buyer, title vests in him, and transportation is at his risk. Id.

Where seller takes bill of lading providing for delivery to himself or order, the goods are kept within his control, and the fact that the buyer is named as consignee does not pass title. Grayson County Nat. Bank v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1094.

A delivery of goods by the seller to a carrier held to transfer, under the contract, the property to the buyer. L. Greif & Bro. v. Seligman (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 533.

Where goods are turned over by the vendor to the common carrier, title passes to the vendee, although the shipment is C. O. D. Keller v. State (Cr. App.) 87 S. W. 669, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 489.

Where whisky was delivered by vendor to a carrier for transportation and delivery to vendees, title passed to vendees subject to vendor's right of stoppage in transitu. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rotter Bros. (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 402.

Where title to bees shipped remained in plaintiff, and he exercised control of them in transit, and the buyer and consignee only paid plaintiff for the bees which safely arrived, plaintiff was entitled to sue for damages against the railroad company for loss of bees in transit. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Laws (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 973.

If the consignor is the real owner of the goods, and makes the contract of carriage for himself, or if it is made directly with him, though he does not retain title to the goods, he may sue for their loss. Id.

Where a consignor shipped goods to himself as consignee, the buyer not to obtain the bill of lading until payment of the draft attached, the consignor alone could sue for damages for delay of shipment. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Robinson & Martin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 444.

Whether the title to goods remains in the consignor or not, if the contract for their transportation is directly made with him, he may sue thereon for damages in transportation; his recovery being for the benefit of the consignee if he was the real owner. Id.

When the risk of transportation of goods is upon the consignor, he will be considered the owner for the purpose of suing the carrier for loss or injury. Id.

Where a seller in Texas, who contracted with a buyer in New York to deliver to him there a specified quantity of goods, delivered the goods to a carrier and received a bill of lading making the shipment subject to the seller's order, and the seller indorsed the bill of lading and drew a draft on the buyer, and attached the bill of lading thereto, and sent it to New York for collection, with directions to deliver the bill of lading on payment of the draft, the title to the goods vested in the buyer when he paid the draft, and the seller, who had not guaranteed the weights of the shipment, could not, after payment of the draft, sue the carrier for a shortage thereafter occurring; but, where the title had not passed to the buyer at the time the shortage occurred, the seller could sue therefor. Texas S. S. Co. v. Dupree Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 621.

Where plaintiff, upon purchasing a car load of freight from the owner, which was being transported on defendant's line, executed a bond to defendant guarantying payment of any freight charges due, the actual payment of such charges, which were the consideration of the sale, was not a condition precedent to passing of title to plaintiff. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. W. J. Hughes & Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 719.

The consignor of goods as the party to the contract of shipment may sue the carrier for their destruction in transit, though he has sold them, and indorsed and delivered the bill of lading. St. Louis & S. W. R. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

The consignors of a shipment, though not the owners, may maintain an action in their own name for a breach of the contract of shipment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. A. B. Patterson & Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 698.

Owner shipping cotton held not entitled, under the bill of lading accepted by him, designating consignees as shippers and owners, to assert that he was the owner or consignor, nor to predicate a right of action thereon for the railroad's alleged wrongful delivery. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gilbreath (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1051.

A buyer of goods in whom the title is vested, but who is not entitled to possession from the carrier until payment of the price, may maintain an action against the carrier for damages from delay in transportation. Robinson & Martin v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 146 S. W. 537, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Robinson & Martin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 444.

Where a seller of goods delivers them to a carrier and forwards bill of lading with draft attached for collection, the title vests in the buyer without payment of the price or actual delivery. Id.

The "lawful holder" of bills of lading, within the meaning of the Carmack amendment, is the owner of the property transported or the beneficiary entitled to recover for loss or injury to the shipment, and a shipper was not deprived of his right to sue as such holder by surrendering the bills of lading in exchange for return transportation for himself. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 309.

15. Transportation and delivery by carrier.—See Art. 6610.

The carrier is discharged from his responsibility as such, when he finds no consignee to whom the goods may be delivered at the place of consignment. House v. Soder, 36 T. 629.

A delivery of goods to the agent of the consignee relieves the carrier. Railway Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 748.

Where the carrier delivers the goods to a person of the same name as the consignee, though by false and fraudulent devices such person impersonates the consignee, the carrier is not liable, unless he fails to act in good faith and with due diligence. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Hertzberg, 17 C. A. 100, 42 S. W. 795.

It was negligence for the carrier to deliver goods to the wrong person, though of the same name as the consignee, where such person had no bill of lading, and gave no evidence that he was the consignee, and he was wholly unknown to the carrier. Id.

A common carrier that negligently delivers goods to one impersonating the true consignee is liable therefor. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Critzer (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1017.

A contract between a railroad and a salt company construed, and held not to require delivery to the railroad for transportation a certain percentage of the salt company's tonnage as it accrued. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Texas Short Line Ry. Co., 99 T. 434, 90 S. W. 863, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 828.

16. Delay in delivery.—See notes under Art. 713.

Evidence held sufficient to show removal of goods by carrier from point of destination after delay of only 24 hours. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall & Brown Woodworking Mach. Co., 23 C. A. 211, 56 S. W. 140.

17. —— Perishable goods.—Carrier of perishable goods, obeying consignor's instruction not to ice, held not liable for damages, unless unreasonable delay in transportation required violation of instruction. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dorsey, 30 C. A. 377, 70 S. W. 575.

Where a carrier's agent consented, when requested, to place a car of perishable fruit in position for unloading and failed to do so and the fruit decayed, the carrier was liable for his negligent failure. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Payne (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1126.

18. —— Stoppage in transit.—The seller of chattels has a lien upon them and the right to hold them for the purchase price so long as they are in his possession; and, when they have been shipped for delivery to the debtor who has become insolvent, the right to stop them on the way, to recover possession, and subject them to the payment of such unpaid price. This right continues not only while the goods are in actual transit, but until they have reached their destination and are delivered into the actual or constructive possession of the consignee. Harris v. Tenney, 85 T. 254, 20 S. W. 82, 34 Am. St. Rep. 796.

The creditor's right to stop the goods is to recover the possession and hold them subject to the seller's lien, and, if the goods have been converted by one in violation of this right, he would be liable for the value of the same. In such suit the debtor is not a necessary party. Id.

At common law the implied obligation of a common carrier was to transport freight by continuous passage from the point of delivery within a reasonable time, and the carrier was not bound to permit the stoppage in transport. Bergin v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1184.

19. —— Place of delivery.—The consignee is entitled to receive his goods at the place where the carrier undertook to deliver them, and is under no obligation to seek, demand or receive them elsewhere. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 49 T. 748, 30 Am. Rep. 116; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 2 App. C. C. § 513. And goods must be so delivered, although partially injured by the act of God. Railroad Co. v. Harn, 44 T. 628.

Where a railroad company contracts to deliver a car of lumber to the consignee in a specified part of a city, a tender of the lumber to the consignee at its station in the city is not a compliance with its undertaking, and its failure to deliver in the part of the city specified is a breach of its contract, so that a sale of the lumber for charges claimed to be due thereon was a conversion thereof, which made it liable to the shipper for its value. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Driskell (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 466.

20. —— Presentment of bill of lading before delivery.—A carrier may require the production of a bill of lading before he delivers the goods, and he may do so before delivery when the consignee refuses to receipt for the goods. But a carrier cannot rightfully refuse to deliver the goods after inspecting the bill of lading, on the ground that the bill is not surrendered to him, if the consignee tenders the freight charges as contained in the bill and executes his receipt for the goods. Dwyer v. Railway Co., 69 T. 707, 7 S. W. 504.

The owner, in case of dispute as to amount due, refusing request to exhibit his bill of lading, cannot recover penalty for non-delivery. Railway Co. v. Dwyer, 75 T. 572, 12 S. W. 1001; Id., 84 T. 194, 19 S. W. 470.

Railroad held entitled to waive a provision in its bill of lading that it should receive bill of lading before delivery of goods. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gilbreath (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1051.

21. —— Liability for failure or refusal to deliver.—Mere delay, however unreasonable, on the part of the carrier in delivering goods does not amount to a conversion. The consignee must receive them so long as they retain their identity. Baumbach v. Railway Co., 23 S. W. 693, 4 C. A. 650.

Where a railway company retains wheat recovered after a storm an unreasonable time without delivery to the consignee, it is liable for conversion of the wheat so recovered. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 229, 67 S. W. 129.

Failure of delivery of freight by a carrier safely keeping the same does not amount to a conversion, but to constitute a conversion there must be a demand and a refusal to deliver. Davies v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 295.

Where goods shipped do not reach the destination, the carrier is guilty of conversion and liable for their value, except where an act of God intervenes. R. W. Williamson & Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 807.

Where a railroad company by mistake delivered goods consigned to plaintiff to another, but recovered them within a day, and tendered them to plaintiff within three days, there was no conversion. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wortham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1071.

Where a terminal carrier of an interstate shipment, through a mistake as to the rate, refused to deliver the goods until an excessive rate was paid, the refusal amounted to a conversion. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

22. —— Connecting carriers.—See notes under Arts. 731, 732.

23. Actions for failure to deliver or misdelivery—Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

24. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action against a carrier for failure to deliver a car load of goods, evidence held to warrant a finding that the goods, though delivered to the carrier had never been received by the consignee. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Schawe (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 910.

25. —— Damages.—A common carrier is liable for goods injured, lost or destroyed, while in his care, from any cause whatever, other than the act of God, the public enemy, or the fault of the owner, or seizure of the goods under legal process. Chevallier v. Straham, 2 T. 115, 47 Am. Dec. 639; Philleo v. Sanford, 17 T. 227, 67 Am. Dec. 654; Arnold v. Jones, 26 T. 335, 82 Am. Dec. 617; H. & T. C. R. Co. v. Burke, 55 T. 323, 40 Am. Rep. 808; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Schneider, 1 App. C. C. § 118; Heaton v. M. La & T. R., 1 App. C. C. § 774; T. E. Co. v. Dupree, 2 App. C. C. § 318; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Graves, 2 App. C. C. § 678; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Barnes, 2 App. C. C. § 576.

Although a bill of lading has not been demanded or delivered, if a railroad company has taken control of goods for shipment, the liability of the common carrier, as at common law, attaches. E. L. & R. R. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 64 T. 615. See T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hamm, 2 App. C. C. § 494; Railway Co. v. Dimmit County Pasture Co., 23 S. W. 754, 5 C. A. 186.

Whenever goods intrusted to a carrier from any cause require special care and attention, the carrier must do all that might reasonably be expected of a prudent and careful person, and if necessary incur reasonable expense for their preservation. When they are exposed to danger of deterioration or destruction from their inherent infirmity, or from any cause, it is his duty to employ a reasonable degree of skill and diligence to preserve them. M. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnes, 2 App. C. C. § 577.

The measure of damages for the non-delivery of goods is their value at the point of delivery. The freight charges, if not paid, should be deducted. Railway Co. v. Ball, 80 T. 602, 16 S. W. 441.

Liability of railroad company and compress association for cotton burned on a platform which was used jointly by the companies. Martin v. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co., 3 C. A. 133, 22 S. W. 195.

Loss sustained by consignor by reason of carrier's failure to deliver at destination named in bill of lading held special, and not recoverable, in the absence of proof that the carrier was instrumental in permitting it, or had knowledge of the consignor's contract with consignee. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pickens (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 156.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to goods in transit, defendant held entitled to a verdict. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood, 26 C. A. 500, 63 S. W. 654.

A common carrier is liable for goods injured, lost, or destroyed while in his care from any cause whatever, other than the act of God, the public enemy, or the fault of the owner, or a seizure of the goods under legal process. Bibb v. M. K. & T. Ry. Co., 37 C. A. 508, 84 S. W. 663.

In a suit for a carrier's conversion of a car of coke plaintiff, a manufacturing company held not entitled to recover for loss of an order for work subsequently filled. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Neches Iron Works, 57 C. A. 249, 122 S. W. 64.

A carrier is an insurer of the safe delivery of goods intrusted to it for shipment. R. W. Williamson & Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 807.

Defendant carrier held not liable for loss sustained by plaintiffs on a car of cabbage, where the consignee's refusal to accept the cabbage was not because of the carrier's error in adding an icing charge to the expense bill. Freeman v. Quebedeaux (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 643.

26. Loss or injury to goods.—A carrier, having notice that the shipper had sold cotton received for shipment, held liable for the difference between the cotton delivered to it and other cotton delivered by it to the consignee. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Chatham (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 111.

The measure of damages for the conversion by a carrier of household and kitchen furniture is actual value, and it is not necessary, to prove value, to first prove market value. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

27. —— Character and value of goods.—The carrier is not relieved of liability for loss of freight, bill of lading for which was issued stating contents and value as unknown, because the property was valuable, and it had no knowledge of the value; there having been no deception by the shipper. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quilhot (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 200.

If the shipper's misstatements as to the contents of a box shipped were material, and caused the carrier to omit the performance of some attention which the goods required, whereby they were lost, it would not be responsible for such loss, whether the misstatements were intentional or inadvertent. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ray (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 281.

If the packages in which freight is presented to the carrier, or the marks thereon, mislead it to believe that the freight is ordinary freight instead of goods of exceptional value, and the shipper does not notify the carrier of the character of the goods, the carrier is not liable for their exceptional value if lost. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quilhot (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 261.

The shipment of silverware and expensive china in a box and barrel is not so unusual nor is their value so extraordinary as to require the shipper as a matter of law to give notice to the carrier of their nature and value in absence of a request for such information, in order to recover for their loss en route. Id.

28. —— Fraud of shipper.—When goods are shipped as freight the carrier will be discharged from responsibility if the shipper has used fraud or concealment to deceive him, whereby his risk is increased or his care and vigilance may be lessened. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. York, 2 App. C. C. § 638.

Facts held to show a fraud by a shipper on a carrier, relieving it from liability for the theft of goods shipped. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Pitman, 30 C. A. 626, 71 S. W. 312.

29. —— Estoppel to deny consignee's title.—In action by consignee against carrier and consignor for damage to goods shipped, facts held not to constitute an estoppel to deny consignee's title. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dorsey, 30 C. A. 377, 70 S. W. 575.

30. —— Commencement, duration, and termination of liability.—The liability of a common carrier continues from the commencement of the trip until the goods are delivered to the consignee at the point of destination on its own line. Railway Co. v. Haynes, 72 T. 175, 10 S. W. 398. And see G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dwyer, 84 T. 194, 19 S. W. 470.

The liability of a common carrier is fixed by the receipt of an article for transportation. Railway Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 715.

Where plaintiff's cotton seed was placed in certain houses located on a carrier's right of way, but not belonging to the carrier, for storage until cars could be obtained in which it could be shipped, and no bills of lading had been issued, or other act done showing an intention to accept the seed for transportation, the railroad was not liable as a carrier for the destruction of the seed by fire communicated to the storage houses from fire originating on its cotton platform from sparks from defendant's engine. Abbott Gin Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 57 C. A. 263, 122 S. W. 284.

Where goods are placed in a carrier's possession for immediate shipment and are destroyed before transportation begins, the carrier cannot escape liability except by showing that the loss was due to an act of God, the public enemy, an inherent defect, or negligence of the shipper. Id.

A carrier required by the railroad commission regulations, when requested by the shipper of cotton, to deliver the cotton to the nearest compress on the line of its route for compression, but not required to deliver it to any other compress, having, at the request of the shipper, noted on the bill of lading that it was to be compressed at another compress, and there delivered it, is none the less liable for it as a common carrier while in the possession of the compress, though the shipper was interested in such compress, as such delivery must still be deemed a part of the railroad's duty as a common carrier; it having by its bill of lading reserved the right to have the compressing done at its cost. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

Common-law liability of carrier held to attach on receipt of goods till they reach destination, and consignee has been notified. R. W. Williamson & Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 807.

Under the facts, held, the relation of carrier and shipper had ceased, though the shipper left goods in the car, by permission, under agreement to pay demurrage. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 708.

31. —— Deviation.—A carrier changing without necessity the routing of a shipper is responsible for any loss which may occur, whether by act of God or any other cause. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Breaux (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 287.

32. —— Directions of shipper.—Where a shipper directed the carrier in a bill of lading to carry bananas with the ventilators of the car closed and the plugs all out, and the carrier closed the ventilators but left the plugs all in, the principle that the carrier is not responsible for loss or injury to goods occasioned by their being improperly loaded by the shipper has no application, and the carrier is liable for injury occasioned by violating the instructions. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Davis-Fowler Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 309.

Directions given by a shipper of fruit for loading held not to preclude a recovery for damages thereto. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Woldert Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1194.

33. —— Means of transportation.—A carrier is not required to procure cars of sufficient strength to withstand a storm which it cannot reasonably anticipate as likely to occur. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Texas Star Flour Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1179.

Where the evidence in a shipper's action showed that the defendant did not exercise due diligence to make the vessel seaworthy, the court properly refused to instruct that defendant was not required to make it seaworthy, but was required only to use due diligence in such respect. Mallory S. S. Co. v. G. A. Bahn Diamond & Optical Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 282.

34. —— Negligence.—Where one shipping goods shows loss by fire caused by sparks escaping from a locomotive, he establishes a prima facie case of negligence. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Loeb, 25 C. A. 24, 59 S. W. 617.

35. —— Act of God, vis major, or inevitable accident.—When the act of God is relied upon it must be shown to be the proximate cause of the loss, and without any concurrent negligence on the part of the carrier. Chevallier v. Straham, 2 T. 115, 47 Am. Dec. 639; Phillco v. Sanford, 17 T. 227, 67 Am. Dec. 654; M. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnes, 2 App. C. C. § 575.

For failure to carry and deliver goods the carrier cannot excuse himself by reason of the fact that, through human agency not under his control, this was prevented, without fault on his part. Railway Co. v. Levi, 76 T. 337, 13 S. W. 191, 8 L. R. A. 323, 18 Am. St. Rep. 45.

Where, in an action against a carrier for goods lost in an unprecedented storm, it appeared that the place of storage was safe under usual conditions, and it did not appear that there was any safer place after the danger became apparent, the company was not liable. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bergman (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 999.

Where a common carrier fails to make prompt delivery of goods, and they are thereby lost in an unprecedented storm, it will be protected from liability; the act of God, and not its negligence, being the proximate cause. Id.

In order to charge a common carrier with goods lost in an unprecedented storm, plaintiff must show that by ordinary prudence it could have protected the goods after becoming aware of the impending danger. Id.

A railway company is not liable for conversion of wheat in its posssesion for transportation, which was destroyed by an unusual storm, though there was delay in the transportation and delivery. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 229, 67 S. W. 129.

Where a shipment of vegetables was made when freezing weather was not unusual, held consignors could not recover for loss caused by severe, but not unprecedented, cold weather. Gillett v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 61.

An occurrence held an act of God, for which a carrier is not liable for damage to freight. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Texas Star Flour Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1179.

36. —— Effect of insurance.—It was stipulated in a bill of lading that in case the goods were destroyed the carrier should have full benefit of any insurance on them. The cotton was destroyed in transitu. The amount of the policy was paid by the insurance company to the owner, who transferred his claim against the railway company to the insurance company. Held, that the insurance company could not recover the loss from the carrier. B. & F. M. Ins. Co. v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 63 T. 475, 51 Am. Rep. 661.

As a carrier may insure directly it may stipulate for the insurance effected by the shipper. Insurance Co. v. Railway Co., 63 T. 475, 51 Am. Rep. 661; Railway Co. v. Insurance Co., 84 T. 149, 19 S. W. 459; Railway Co. v. Zimmerman, 81 T. 605, 17 S. W. 239.

A carrier can provide in his contract of shipment that he shall have the benefit of any insurance on the goods, and if the owner has received from the insurance company the amount of the loss he will be precluded thereby from recovery against the carrier. Railway Co. v. Zimmerman, 81 T. 605, 17 S. W. 239. See, also, Insurance Co. v. Easton, 73 T. 167, 11 S. W. 180, 3 L. R. A. 424.

A fire policy obtained by a shipper on goods shipped, reciting the release by assured of the carrier from liability under its bill of lading, and the waiver by the insurer of any right of subrogation against the carrier, constitutes no defense to a claim of the shipper against the carrier for the burning of the goods, there being no such privity between it and the parties to the contract of insurance, with reference thereto, as to authorize it to receive any benefit from it as against insured. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

Payment by an insurance company for cotton negligently burned by a railway company does not inure to the benefit of the railway company; there being no privity between it and insurer. Nussbaum & Scharff v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1083.

37. Connecting carriers.—See notes under Arts. 731, 732.

38. Action for loss or injury—Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

39. —— Presumptions, burden of proof, and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

40. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action against a common carrier to recover the value of property lost, to authorize a recovery the plaintiff must prove: 1. That defendant was a common carrier. 2. That the property was received as freight by defendant. 3. That the defendant failed to deliver the property at the place of destination. 4. The market value of the property at the place of destination at the time it should have been delivered. Railway Co. v. Douglas, 2 App. C. C. § 29.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that a shipment of cotton was destroyed by fire through a carrier's negligence. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Loeb, 25 C. A. 24, 59 S. W. 617.

Evidence held insufficient to show that damage sustained by goods in transit was due to act of God, and not to carrier's negligence. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Browne, 27 C. A. 437, 66 S. W. 341.

In an action against a railroad company for the value of cotton destroyed by fire, while on the platform of a cotton compress company to be compressed and shipped over defendant's railroad, evidence held to sustain a finding that the compress company was defendant's agent for receiving the cotton. Texas Midland R. R. v. H. L. Edwards & Co., 56 C. A. 643, 121 S. W. 570.

In absence of proof that the carrier received for transportation the goods claimed to be lost and damaged, a judgment against the carrier in an action for damages for loss and damage in transit is not sustained by evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cumby Mercantile & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 568.

In an action against a carrier for damages to goods, plaintiff's testimony as to their cost, the amount of their use and deterioration, and what they were worth to him, will be treated as sufficient proof of their value. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Giles (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 282.

Where, in an action for injuries to goods, plaintiff testified that he made the shipment, and that it was consigned to H., but there was no evidence that the property belonged to plaintiff, or that he had any interest therein after it was delivered to the carrier, he could not recover. Mexican Cent. Ry. Co. v. Locke (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 296.

Evidence in an action against a railroad compay for damages for the loss of three barrels of whisky held to sustain the verdict for plaintiff. Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Japhet & Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1194.

In an action for loss of silverware and china en route which were shipped, packed in a box and barrel, evidence held to sustain a finding that the railroad company's agent was not misled as to the character or value of the goods by any statement of the shipper, or by the nature of the packages or the markings thereon. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quilhot (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 261.

In an action against a carrier for damage to goods by fire while in control of the carrier, evidence held insufficient to conclusively overcome the presumption of defendant's negligence. Southern Pac. Co. v. Weatherford Cotton Mills (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 778.

In an action against a terminal carrier for damage to a shipment of apples, evidence held to establish a finding of actionable negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1020.

In an action against a carrier for damage to freight, evidence held to show that the damage was caused by an act of God. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Texas Star Flour Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1179.

Evidence held to sustain the jury's finding that defendant railroad company's agent did not notify a consignee of the arrival of the freight, for the loss of which consignee was seeking to recover. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1102.

41. —— Damages.—When an article has no market value, its real value is to be determined by the jury from its price at place of manufacture, cost of carriage, and a reasonable sum for profits, etc. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 813.

Interest was awarded in this case by the judgment, but, a remitter thereof being filed, the judgment was reversed, and judgment was rendered excluding the interest. Railway Co. v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 196.

When a part of the goods received by a carrier are lost or damaged, the consignee may refuse to receive the remainder and may recover the value of the entire shipment. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 2 App. C. C. § 342.

When the measure of damages is the value of the goods at the place of destination, the carrier is entitled to freight. Otherwise, when the value at the place of shipment governs. M. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnes, 2 App. C. C. § 580; I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson, 61 T. 550.

Where goods have no special marketable value, such as second-hand clothing, table furniture and the like, being useful chiefly to the owner, the measure of damages when lost is the value of the goods to the owner, the actual loss in money sustained by the owner by being deprived of such articles for his own use. T. P. Ry. Co. v. Cook, 2 App. C. C. § 661; I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson, 61 T. 550.

The general rule at common law is that the carrier, in case of loss of goods, is liable to the shipper or owner for their value, less the charges for transportation. This rule cannot be altered by contract so as to limit or restrict the liability of the carrier, when the contract is to be performed entirely within this state. Railroad Co. v. Booton, 4 App. C. C. § 232, 15 S. W. 909.

When goods are lost or destroyed in transit, the measure of damages is the value of the property at the place of destination. It has been held that interest on their value could not ordinarily be recovered as an element of damages. Fowler v. Davenport, 21 T. 627; Wolfe v. Lacy, 30 T. 349; Railroad Co. v. Muldrow, 54 T. 233; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Stewart, 1 App. C. C. § 1246; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Ferguson, 1 App. C. C. § 1254; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 191; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Hewett, 2 App. C. C. § 273. Unless the carrier was guilty of fraud or gross negligence. Grimes v. Watkins, 59 T. 133; Hudson v. Wilkinson, 61 T. 606. In a later case it is held that where a carrier fails to transport without delay property destined for market, interest on its value is an element of damage. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 62 T. 209. And see T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 2 App. C. C. § 343; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 2 App. C. C. § 514; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Maetze, 2 App. C. C. § 631; Railway Co. v. Ball, 80 T. 602, 16 S. W. 441.

When an article has no market value, such as family portraits, in estimating the damages the jury may consider their original cost and probable cost of reproducing them. H. & T. C. R. Co. v. Burke, 55 T. 323, 40 Am. Rep. 808.

The measure of damages where merchandise in transit is destroyed by fire is its value at the time of its loss with legal interest. Tucker v. Hamlin, 60 T. 174.

In case of total loss the measure of damages for the loss of mares with foal would be the price they would have brought at the place of destination in the condition they would have been in had the carrier exercised due and necessary care of the stock while in its possession, less the freight. M. P. R. R. Co. v. Fagan, 72 T. 127, 9 S. W. 749, 2 L. R. A. 75, 13 Am. St. Rep. 776.

Where the measure of recovery is the value of the property, it is proper for the jury to add interest from the date of the injury as part of the damages. Ft. W. & D. Ry. Co. v. Greathouse, 82 T. 104, 17 S. W. 834.

Where articles belonging to a museum were destroyed, it was held that the measure of damages was the value of such articles at the nearest market. No recovery can be had for any alleged depreciation in the value of articles not destroyed, nor for mental anguish caused by the delay. The probable net profits which plaintiff would have made by an exhibition if there had been no delay may be recovered. Yoakum v. Dunn, 21 S. W. 412, 1 C. A. 524.

Measure of damages for goods lost in transit. Terry v. Railway Co., 14 C. A. 451, 37 S. W. 234; Railway Co. v. Efron (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 639.

The measure of damages for goods lost in transit, where they have no market value, is the cost of reproducing same; but, if this cannot be done, then the value of the property to the owner is the rule. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ney (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 43.

The measure of damages for loss of goods by the negligence of a carrier is the value of the goods at the place of destination. Southern Pac. Co. v. D'Arcais, 27 C. A. 57, 64 S. W. 813.

The measure of damages for injury to household goods in use while in the hands of a carrier is the difference in actual value just prior to and just after the injury, and not the difference in market value. Wells Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314.

Where plate glass was totally destroyed in transportation, the measure of the carrier's liability was the market value of the glass at destination, with interest at 6 per cent., less the freight, together with so much of the freight and expense of hauling as had been prepaid. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hoffecker (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 617.

Where the freight due a carrier entered into the amount of damages for which the carrier was liable for loss of the goods, limitations did not run against the carrier's right to have the freight deducted from such damages. Id.

Measure of damages for injuries to freight during transportation stated. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1085.

Where an owner of goods shipped lost the sale because of their delivery in bad order, his measure of damages was the difference between the value of the goods in their damaged condition and the present value of his contract of sale. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Coulter (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 16.

Nonpayment of transportation charges held proper to be shown in an action for damage to fruit delivered to a carrier for transportation. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Woldert Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1194.

Art. 711. [323] [281] Liability as warehousemen, etc.—Railroad companies and other common carriers having depots and warehouses for storing goods, shall be liable as warehousemen are at common law for goods and the care of the same stored in such depots or warehouses before the commencement of the trip or voyage on which said goods are to be transported; but shall be liable as common carriers from the commencement of the trip or voyage until the goods are delivered to the consignee at the point of destination. [Id. 455.]

Carrier as warehouseman.—A warehouseman is liable only for want of ordinary care. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Schneider, 1 App. C. C. § 118; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Morse, 1 App. C. C. § 412.

It is not necessary to make a tender of the freight charges, unless demanded by the carrier, after the acceptance of the goods. If payment is then refused the carrier will hold the goods merely as a warehouseman until returned to the owner. The owner may recover actual damages for refusal to receive and ship goods tendered, upon an allegation that he was and always had been ready to pay charges, etc. What may be the rule in an action for the penalty is not determined. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 2 App. C. C. § 391.

Where a railroad company allowed shippers of cotton to leave cotton on its station platform until the full lot to be shipped was ready, it was liable, as a warehouseman, under this article, for part of a lot of cotton intended for shipment, left overnight on the platform by the shipper, in accordance with the custom, awaiting the rest of the shipment, to be brought the next day. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. S. Marshall Bulley & Son (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 480.

A railroad company held bound as a warehouseman to use ordinary care to prevent and extinguish fires. Id.

A shipper who left cotton upon a railroad's cotton platform, where it was burned, held not guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

Where at destination the shipper surrenders the bill of lading, and the railroad company places the car on the unloading track for him, and he, though removing part of the goods, allows others to remain therein, by permission of the company, on agreement to pay demurrage, the relation of carrier and shipper ceases, and any liability for the burning of those left is not that of a carrier. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 708.

Cotton compress as agent.—Delivery to a compress by a railroad company under the regulations of the railroad commission, requiring a railroad, when requested by the shipper of cotton, to deliver it to the nearest compress on the line of its route for compressing, being at a point between that of shipment and that stipulated by the bill of lading for delivery to the consignee, does not change its liability for the cotton while at the compress from that of common carrier, as it existed at common law, which article 708, prevents its limiting to that of warehouseman; but, under this article, the compress is its agent; and it can relieve itself of liability for the burning of the cotton at the compress, under its stipulation against liability for fire, only by pleading and proving that its negligence, or that of its servants, did not contribute to such loss. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

Commencement, duration, and termination of liability as carrier for loss or damage.—See notes under Art. 710.

Delivery by carrier in general.—See notes under Arts. 710 and 713.

Notice.—Railroad companies must give notice of the reception of freight by posting a written notice on the depot door, and the freight, if not removed within three days, will be held by it as a warehouseman at the expense of the owner. Post, Art. 6590.

Notice must be given within business hours and under such circumstances as will permit the consignee to receive and remove his goods. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Schneider, 1 App. C. C. § 121. A carrier by water is subject to the same rule. Morgan v. Dibble, 29 T. 107, 94 Am. Dec. 264.

Railroad companies must give notice to consignee before they will be released from their liability as carriers. Post, Art. 6590. Railroad companies are required to erect suitable warehouses at every station. Post, Art. 6589. A railroad is not liable as a common carrier for goods placed upon its platform, in its depot or warehouse for shipment, until the bill of lading is signed. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Douglas, 2 App. C. C. § 30.

A railway company becomes responsible only as a warehouseman when goods are stored after notice to the consignee. Railway Co. v. Haynes, 72 T. 175, 10 S. W. 393. And see G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dwyer, 84 T. 194, 19 S. W. 470.

Under this article, a carrier which has received goods at its station, and after notifying the consignee has put them in the warehouse of the station for safe-keeping, and has exercised due care to protect, preserve, and deliver such goods, is not liable for their value if lost. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Winn (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 972.

Where the consignee of goods does not at once receive them on notice of their arrival at destination, they must be stored, and the carrier's liability is that of warehouseman. R. W. Williamson & Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 807.

Articles 725, 726, authorizing a carrier to sell freight remaining unclaimed for three months on giving thirty days' notice, and these articles are not in pari materia because they are enacted for different purposes and are independent of each other, and the right to sell unclaimed freight does not depend on whether the carrier used due diligence to notify the consignee of the arrival of the freight, but, though it be assumed that the statutes must be construed together, a consignor shipping freight to itself must put itself in position to receive notice of the arrival of the freight at destination, and where it fails to do so, the carrier need not seek the consignee of the freight elsewhere to notify it of the arrival of the freight before making a sale of the freight remaining unclaimed for three months. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1158.

Demurrage and storage.—A consignee is liable for reasonable rates of demurrage and storage. Baumbach v. Railway Co., 23 S. W. 693, 4 C. A. 650.

Sale as unclaimed freight.—This article does not authorize a sale by a carrier of unclaimed freight. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1158.

Consignees' duty to pay freight.—A consignee must receive and pay charges for freight when tendered. He cannot refuse to receive a part because the entire amount shipped is not tendered. Railway Co. v. Booton, 4 App. C. C. § 67, 15 S. W. 502.

Art. 712. [324] [282] Diligence as to delivery.—If the carrier at the point of destination shall use due diligence to notify the consignee, and the goods are not taken by the consignee, and have in consequence to be stored in the depots or warehouses of the common carriers, they shall thereafter only be liable as warehousemen. [Id.]

Art. 713. [325] [283] Shall forward in good order, etc.—Where common carriers receive goods for transportation into their warehouses or depots they shall forward them in the order in which they are received, the first received to be first forwarded, without giving the preference to one over another; and in case they shall fail to do so, they shall be liable, absolutely, for all losses occurring while the goods remain, and for all damages occasioned or in any wise resulting from the delay; provided, that the trip or voyage shall be considered as having commenced from the time of the signing of the bill of lading, and the liability of the common carrier shall attach, as at common law, from and after such signing. [Id.]

Delay in transportation and delivery.—In an action against a common carrier for damages resulting from delay in delivering articles, it must be proven that the carrier was notified of a necessity for prompt delivery. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Talley, 2 App. C. C. § 766.

A carrier must ship perishable freight by the most direct route. Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express Co. v. Fuller, 13 C. A. 610, 35 S. W. 824.

Where no time for delivery is fixed in a contract of carriage, a reasonable time is implied. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Baugh (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 245; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Langbehn (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1188.

A carrier is under the duty to transport and deliver freight within a reasonable time and is not bound only to the exercise of ordinary care to so transport and deliver. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shults (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 845.

Carriers' liability for delaying transportation of many car loads of construction material held not affected because two cars were shipped before publication of a special rate made under the contract. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

A carrier, informed by a shipper that tents were intended to be used during severe weather as a stable for the protection of his horses, etc., had sufficient notice to render it liable for the expenses and damages which might result by reason of its failure to deliver them within a reasonable time. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 548.

—— Excuses.—When the goods are actually transported and delivered, but the time of delivery was delayed, such delay, if caused by mobs, strikes or other causes not under control of the carrier, may be excused; his duty then remains that he omit no reasonable effort to secure the safety of the goods. Railway Co. v. Levi, 76 T. 337, 13 S. W. 191.

A shipment having been accepted for transportation without notice to the shipper that there was a shortage of cars and an unprecedented amount of business, the carrier should be held liable for damages for unreasonable delay. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Early-Clement Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1015.

Where the breach of a carrier's undertaking was alleged to be a failure to exercise due care and diligence in making delivery, resulting in delay in delivery, the carrier could allege as a defense any facts which the law recognizes as an excuse for delay, though no exemption from liability on such ground was in the contract of shipment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stark Grain Co., 103 T. 542, 131 S. W. 410, modifying judgment (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1146.

To relieve a carrier from liability for delay in delivery due to a congestion of traffic, the shipper must be notified of such condition before the shipment is received, in absence of an express agreement of exemption, and in an action for delay in transporting wheat allegations that the delay was due to a congestion of traffic which was generally known, and that all contracts made with the carrier for shipment of grain on the lines where such conditions existed were made with reference to such conditions, and with full notice thereof by the shippers of their existence, did not show notice to a shipper whose grain was delayed; a showing of notice possessed by the public generally being insufficient. Id.

Failure of a railroad to ship an automobile held not excused by its temporary inability to secure a car large enough to hold it. Grigsby v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 709.

Carriers held bound to give preference to transportation of certain freight, notwithstanding unexpected and unprecedented business in general. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

In determining what is a reasonable time for transportation and delivery of freight under ordinary conditions, under a contract fixing no time, extraordinary conditions, not known to the shipper at the time of shipment, cannot enlarge the time. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Langbehn (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1188.

Railroad companies are not responsible for delays occasioned by accidents, but are responsible where such delays are attributable to their own negligence. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dean (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1127.

—— Connecting carriers.—See notes under Arts. 731, 732.

—— Assignment of claim for damages.—An assignment to plaintiff of a claim by a consignor of damages for delay in delivery vested in him the right of the shipper. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co., 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 1163.

Actions for delay—Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

—— Burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

—— Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held to constitute notice to a carrier of the destination of a corpse, and hence render it liable for delay in shipment. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. French, 23 C. A. 511, 57 S. W. 56.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant finding that vegetables shipped over defendant's road were damaged by delay at point of shipment. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 792.

In an action against railroad companies for negligent delay in shipping cotton, evidence held to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

In an action against a carrier for delay in delivery of shipments which the consignor ordered diverted from its original destination, evidence held to show that the delay was not from any fault of the consignor in failing to deliver original bills of lading in ordering the diversion. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Daniel & Burton (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 506.

Evidence held to show that delay in delivery of freight was not caused by the shipper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

—— Damages.—The measure of damages for failure to deliver goods not intended for use within a reasonable time is the loss and expenses occasioned by the delay, and the value of the goods at the time and place they should have been delivered are their value at the time and place of actual delivery. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Douglass, 1 App. C. C. § 67. See Railway Co. v. Darlington (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 251.

Where goods are intended for personal use, the value of such use during a delay in delivery is the measure of damages, in the absence of special circumstances. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Hindsman, 1 App. C. C. § 206.

When a carrier undertakes to deliver property within a certain time, with a knowledge of the special purpose for which it was sent, he must indemnify the shipper for special consequential losses for the delay to deliver within the time specified. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 814.

The owner of goods unreasonably delayed in transportation cannot refuse to receive them on that account and recover their full value, unless their value was wholly destroyed by the delay. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 815; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Maetze, 2 App. C. C. § 637.

When goods are intended for a special purpose the carrier is not responsible for special damages resulting from a delay in their transportation, unless the carrier had notice, either from the nature of the contents or by explanation of the circumstances, that damages would ensue from delay. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jessee, 2 App. C. C. § 403; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Maetze, 2 App. C. C. § 631; Ligon v. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co., 3 App. C. C. § 1. Notice given four days after the shipment of the freight is insufficient to charge the carrier. Ligon v. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co., 3 App. C. C. § 1.

The measure of damages for delay in the delivery of goods intended for use is the rental value of the goods during such delay. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jessee, 2 App. C. C. § 405; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Hewett, 2 App. C. C. § 273.

Loss of profits in a business cannot be allowed as damage, unless the data of estimation are so definite and certain that they can be ascertained reasonably by calculation. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jessee, 2 App. C. C. § 405; Electric Light Co. v. Cleburne W., I. & L. Co. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 504.

In estimating the rental value of property delayed, the market rental value should control. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Maetze, 2 App. C. C. § 631.

If the delay be excusable and due care be taken to protect against injury to the goods, the carrier is not responsible for damage naturally resulting from the delay, such as decay in fruit, fall in price, etc. Railway Co. v. Levi, 76 T. 337, 13 S. W. 191.

Profits not an element of damage resulting from delay in delivering freight. Bowden v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 987.

Cold and suffering held not the natural and proximate results of a breach of a contract to ship household goods. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. May (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 408.

Instructions as to damages recoverable against a carrier for delay in shipping a new invention, having no established rental value, held erroneously refused. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hassell, 23 C. A. 681, 58 S. W. 54.

Where, through the unreasonable delay of a carrier in delivering goods, they deteriorate in value, the owner may recover, in an action for damages, any reasonable expense occasioned by the delay. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Josey (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 606.

In an action against a carrier for mental anguish by delay in not carrying plaintiff's wife's body on the train upon which plaintiff was carried, recovery could not be had for mental anguish sustained by plaintiff's daughter and sister-in-law. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vandiver, 57 C. A. 470, 122 S. W. 955.

A railroad company was not liable in any event for damages caused by its negligent delay in shiping a merry-go-round, shipped to a certain point for use at a picnic there, beyond a reasonable time after its arrival in which it could have been set up for operation. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Shropshire & Shepperd (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 369.

When one ships goods by a common carrier, and alleges such fact and the value of the goods and failure to deliver in a reasonable time, he is entitled to interest on the value for the time of the unreasonable delay, and that he claims a rate of interest beyond the legal rate does not debar him from recovering the legal rate. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 103 T. 200, 125 S. W. 561.

The damages recoverable for delay in transportation is the difference in the value of the shipment when it should have been delivered and the time and place it was delivered together with a sum equal to the legal rate of interest on its value during the delay, and special damages occasioned by the delay which are the natural result of the breach of which the carrier had notice that the shipper would likely sustain by reason of the detention of the property. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 126 S. W. 694, 53 C. A. 460.

Where, in an action for delay in shipment of cotton, plaintiffs claimed damages from having to purchase cotton on a rising market to fill their contracts, it was necessary to plead and prove notice to the carrier at or before making the contract of shipment of the special conditions rendering such damages the natural and probable result of the breach under circumstances showing that the contract was to some extent based upon such conditions. Id.

In the absence of notice, at the time of the making of a contract of carriage, of special circumstances, the liability of the carrier for a failure to transport the goods within a reasonable time is limited to such damages as are the natural result of such failure, or such as may fairly be supposed to have entered into the contemplation of the parties at the time of the making of the contract as a probable result of its violation. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 258.

A carrier contracting to transport lumber to a retailer is not liable for special damages caused by a delay in transportation, resulting to the consignee by reason of the increased price paid by him to supply lumber of the kind contained in the delayed shipment to his customers, whereby he lost the retail profit which he would otherwise have made, and the extra time and expense in making local purchases, and the loss of customers and profits on sales by reason of not being able to supply demands for material of the character in the delayed shipment, unless the carrier at the time of the making of the contract for transportation knew of the peculiar circumstances under which damages for delay were likely to result, and the mere fact that the consignee was engaged in the sale of lumber, and that similar shipments had been made by the carrier, did not put the carrier on notice of conditions which would render it liable for such damages. Id.

The measure of damages for a carrier's delay in transporting goods is ordinarily the difference between the value of the property shipped when it arrived at its destination, and at the time when it should have arrived. Id.

To make a carrier liable for special damages for delay in the transportation of freight, the special circumstances must be made known to the carrier at the time of the making of the contract of shipment, and notice to the carrier after the shipment has started in its transportation and before it has reached its destination, and while it has been lost because missent, is insufficient to make the carrier liable for special damages, but for failure to make delivery after the shipment has reached its destination the carrier is responsible for such special damages as it is then informed will likely result from negligent delay in making a delivery. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cherry (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 152.

To charge a carrier of freight for special damages resulting from delay in transportation, held unnecessary that local agents have notice of special purpose of the shipment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

$75,250 held under the evidence not excessive recovery against carriers for delay in transporting material for construction of a government dam and canal. Id.

In an action for damages to a shipment of apples by delay in delivery, an instruction authorizing plaintiff to recover the difference in value held to specify the correct measure of damages. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1020.

Special damages for a carrier's delay in transportation cannot be recovered where the carrier had no notice at the time of contract of the special facts; not even those accruing from delay occurring after it is given such notice. Hassler v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 629.

Plaintiff in an action against a carrier for unreasonable delay held entitled to interest on the value of the shipment. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co., 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 1163.

A carrier, informed by a shipper that tents were intended to be used during severe weather as a stable for the protection of his horses, etc., had sufficient notice to render it liable for the expenses and damages which might result by reason of its failure to deliver them within a reasonable time. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 548.

Art. 714. [326] [284] Shall feed and water live stock.—It shall be the duty of a common carrier who conveys live stock of any kind to feed and water the same during the time of conveyance and until the same is delivered to the consignee or disposed of as provided in this title, unless otherwise provided by special contract; and any carrier who shall fail to so feed and water said live stock sufficiently shall be liable to the party injured for his damages, and shall be liable also to a penalty of not less than five nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered by the owner of such live stock in any court having jurisdiction in any county where the wrong is done or where the common carrier resides.

Cited, Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Crenshaw (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 602; Herrington v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 983.

Federal law compared.—The penalty is recoverable in an action in the circuit or district court of the United States within which the violation is committed, or the person or corporation resides or carries on its business. The lien for the expense incurred under this act can be enforced by suit. R. S. U. S. §§ 4386-4390; Railway Co. v. Ivy, 79 T. 444; 15 S. W. R. 692; St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. v. Turner, 20 S. W. R. 1006, 1 C. A. 625.

This article is not entirely similar to the federal statute regulating interstate shipments, and is limited to domestic shipments. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Startz, 37 C. A. 51, 82 S. W. 1072.

Application to interstate shipments.—This article does not apply to interstate shipments. Railway Co. v. Gann, 8 C. A. 620, 28 S. W. 349; Railway Co. v. Gray, 28 S. W. 280, 87 T. 312. But see Railway Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 837; Railway Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 930.

Duties and liability of carrier in general.—A shipper of cattle held entitled to be reimbursed for the amount paid on a feed bill for feeding cattle en route. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Botts (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 113

The law does not require absolutely that the carrier unload, rest, feed, and water cattle en route on an intrastate shipment, the federal statute imposing such requirements not applying to intrastate shipments. (Civ. App.) Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 123 S. W. 737, judgment reversed 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328.

Where there was evidence from which the jury might have found that the necessity for stopping cattle by a carrier at a certain place for feed and rest, in obedience to statute, was brought about by the negligence of the shipper, the shipper could not escape the damages incident to the delay thereby caused. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 898.

Under this article, if exercise of ordinary care required stock to be unloaded, fed, watered and rested, the carrier was not liable for damages resulting from any reasonable incidental delay. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328.

Where a shipper of live stock notified the carrier of his desire to water the stock while in the pens awaiting transportation and the stock needed watering, the jury could find that the failure of the carrier to provide reasonable facilities for watering the stock was actionable negligence. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 747.

When a railroad company failed to maintain pens for unloading stock, so as to comply with the act of congress prohibiting the confinement of live stock during transportation for more than 28 hours without unloading, and a conductor of a stock train stated to the shipper that, unless he would sign a written release extending the time to 36 hours, he would unload the cattle without pens, and the shipper signed the release to prevent such unloading, the release was not invalid as having been obtained by duress of property. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Graham & Price (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 632.

The duty of watering and feeding the cattle in the pens before shipment, made necessary on account of delay in shipment, was upon the carrier and not the shipper. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 329.

Under this article it is not sufficient that the carrier exercised reasonable care to provide reasonably sufficient facilities for watering the stock. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beckham (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 228.

Special contract.—Where the shipper accompanies and undertakes to feed and water live stock, the carrier must furnish him with the necessary and proper places for that purpose. Railway Co. v. Montgomery, 4 App. C. C. § 240, 16 S. W. 178.

Liability of carrier for failure to feed and water cattle on train where the shipper has contracted so to do, determined. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Arnold, 16 C. A. 74, 40 S. W. 829.

The fact that no reduction is made in the regular freight rate does not warrant the inference that the contract of carriage was without consideration so as to subject the carrier to statutory penalty for failure to feed and water live stock where the duty is imposed upon the owner by contract. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Peters (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 71.

The purpose of the statute is to give a cause of action so far as the penalty is concerned only in those cases where there was no special contract relieving the carrier of the duty to feed and water the stock. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 37 C. A. 595, 85 S. W. 44.

The statute requiring the carrier to feed and water stock while in its custody as such implies that the carrier must be informed of the conditions rendering it necessary to feed and water, and ordinary care only is required, and the carrier's conduct to constitute negligence depends on the surrounding circumstances, and, where cattle are brought to the carrier for shipment in apparently good condition, the carrier is not liable for failing to furnish opportunities to water them, unless it is notified of the necessity thereof. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 747.

Though the contract of carriage required the shipper to feed and water the cattle while in the pens before shipment, he was not bound to do so where no facilities for doing so were furnished at the pens by the company. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 329.

That a delay in transporting cattle was due to an accident to the carrier's engine did not avoid its liability for its refusal to give the shipper an opportunity to unload for food, water, and rest, where there were other engines available to move the cars to a place for unloading. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 206.

Carrier was liable for injuries to live stock, where it refused to give shipper an opportunity to unload them for food, water, and rest, though he had agreed to load and unload them, and assumed the risk and expense of feeding and watering them. Id.

A carrier was not relieved of its statutory duty to feed and water stock transported by the shipper's agreement to feed and water them himself, where it furnished him no facilities for feeding and watering. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 581.

Under the Carmack amendment to the interstate Commerce Act, a carrier of live stock subject to exceptions which would relieve it of liability at common law is an insurer, and cannot by contract shift its liability in connection with feeding and watering, etc., to the shipper. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 294.

A provision of a contract for the shipment of cattle that the shipper assumed all risks and expense in connection with feeding and watering the cattle was void under the Carmack amendment to the interstate commerce act. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Linger (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 298.

—— Waiver of provisions.—A provision of a contract for the shipment of cattle that the shipper assumed the risk and expense in connection with unloading, feeding, and watering the cattle was waived, where the carrier's yardman undertook to perform the duty imposed thereby on the shipper. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Linger (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 298.

Actions for penalty or damages.—One is not required to sue for the maximum amount of the penalty allowed by law, but any sum from $5 to $500, can be claimed. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 37 C. A. 595, 85 S. W. 44.

—— Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 3.

—— Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held insufficient to support a finding that the failure to unload and water plaintiff's shipment of cattle at a certain point was due to delay by defendant railroad. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1191.

CHAPTER TWO

BILLS OF LADING CERTIFIED, ETC.

Art.
715. Certain common carriers, etc., to issue bills of lading and certify, etc., same when demanded by shipper, etc.
716. Requisites, etc., of certificate, etc.
717. "Straight" and "order" bills of lading defined, and issuance of "order" bills of lading regulated.
718. Authority of agent to be posted in station, his signature attached.
719. Bills of lading issued by authorized agent, to be held act of carrier, etc., liability thereon; effect of certificate, etc.
720. Carrier's liability in case of delivery of goods without taking up, etc., "order" bill of lading; exception.
721. Same subject, where part of goods are delivered, etc., exception.
722. Procedure in case of loss of "order" bill of lading; carrier not relieved from liability to innocent purchaser, etc., proviso.
723. Carriers not liable, etc., when.
724. Duties and powers of railroad commission.

Article 715. Certain common carriers, etc., to issue bills of lading, and certify, etc., same when demanded by shipper, etc.—It shall be the duty of all railroad companies, steamship companies, and other common carriers, or receivers thereof, except express companies and pipe line companies, upon the receipt of freight for transportation, to issue bills of lading therefor, and to authenticate, validate or certify such bills of lading, when the same shall be demanded by the shipper, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S., p. 138, sec. 1.]

Bills of Lading.—See notes under Art. 710.

Art. 716. Requisites, etc., of certificate, etc.—Each bill of lading issued by a common carrier, to which the provisions of this chapter apply, for an intrastate shipment, shall contain and each bill of lading issued by such carrier for interstate or foreign shipment may contain, within the written or printed terms, in addition to the other requirements of this chapter, the following:

(a) The date of its issuance;

(b) The name of the person from whom the goods have been received;

(c) The place where the goods have been received;

(d) The place to which the goods are to be transported;

(e) A statement of whether the goods will be delivered to a specific person or the order of a specific person;

(f) A description of the goods or the packages containing them, which may, however, be in terms such as may be approved by the railroad commission;

(g) The signature of the carrier or the duly authorized agent of the carrier; said bill of lading shall be so signed with pen and ink, and the person signing the same shall attach his signature below all written, printed or stamped matter contained in said bill of lading, except the words, "Authorized Agent of....." (stating the name of his principal), which shall appear below his signature.

(h) The carrier may insert in a bill of lading issued by him any other terms and conditions; provided such terms and conditions shall not be contrary to law or public policy or the orders promulgated by the railroad commission; and provided, further, that no language shall be inserted in any bill of lading having the effect of limiting or avoiding any of the provisions of this chapter; provided, that when any form of bill of lading has been approved by the interstate commerce commission, and has been adopted by any carrier and made a part of its tariff, then such bill of lading, as to interstate and foreign shipments, shall be a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this article. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 717. "Straight" and "order" bills of lading defined, and issuance of "order" bills of lading regulated.—A bill of lading in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to a specific person is a "straight" bill of lading, and a bill of lading in which it is stated that the goods are consigned to the order of any person named in such bill of lading, is an "order" bill of lading. Order bills of lading shall not be issued in sets or in duplicate, but copies thereof may be issued; provided, such copy has written or printed across the face thereof: "Copy—Not Negotiable." [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 718. Authority of agent to be posted in station, his signature attached.—It shall be the duty of the carriers affected by this chapter to keep posted for public inspection in some conspicuous place in the station or place where freight is received an instrument of writing authorizing the agent of such carrier, or person authorized to act for such carrier, selected for such purpose, to execute, sign and issue bills of lading; and the agent or person so authorized to act for said carrier, so selected, shall attach his signature to such instrument in the same manner that he signs bills of lading. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 719. Bill of lading issued by authorized agent, to be held act of carrier, etc., liability thereon; effect of certificate, etc.—Each and every bill of lading issued by the authorized agent of any carrier or receiver thereof, affected by the provisions of this chapter, shall be deemed and held to be the act and deed of such carrier or receiver thereof, and the principal shall be liable thereon in accordance with the terms thereof. When any such bill of lading shall be validated, authenticated or certified in accordance with the rules and regulations herein provided for, and as may be prescribed by the railroad commission in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and in the hands of an innocent holder for value, it shall be incontestable as to the matters and things therein set forth. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 720. Carrier's liability in case of delivery of goods without taking up, etc., "order" bill of lading; exception.—If the carrier shall deliver goods for which an "order" bill of lading has been issued, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel said bill of lading, such carrier shall be liable for the failure to deliver the goods to any one who, for value, in good faith, purchases such bill of lading, whether the purchaser acquired title to the bill of lading before or after the delivery of the goods by the carrier, notwithstanding such delivery was made to the person entitled thereto, except when goods are sold to satisfy the carrier's lien, and except when compelled to do so by legal process. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 721. Same subject, where part of goods are delivered, etc., exception.—If a carrier delivers part of the goods for which an "order" bill of lading has been issued, and fails to take up and cancel the bill of lading, or to place plainly upon the bill of lading that a portion of the goods had been delivered, with a description which may be in general terms, either of the goods or packages that had been so delivered, or of the goods or packages which still remain in the carrier's possession, he shall be liable for the failure to deliver all of the goods specified in the bill of lading, to any one, who for value, and in good faith, purchases it, whether such purchaser acquires title to the bill of lading before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the carrier, and notwithstanding such delivery was made to the person entitled thereto, except when goods are sold to satisfy the carrier's lien, and except when compelled to do so by legal process. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 722. Procedure in case of loss of "order" bill of lading; carrier not relieved from liability to innocent purchaser, etc., proviso.—When an "order" bill of lading shall have been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction, in term time or in vacation, may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction, and upon the giving of a bond, with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court, to protect the carrier or any person injured by such delivery from any liability or loss incurred by reason of the original bill of lading remaining outstanding. The court may also, in its discretion, order the payment of the carrier's reasonable costs and counsel fees; but the delivery of the goods under an order of court, as provided for in this article, shall not relieve the carrier from liability to a person to whom the order bill of lading has been or shall be negotiated for value, and without notice of the proceedings or the delivery of the goods; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent the carrier from delivering the property covered by such lost bill of lading to any party claiming the same, on such terms as such party and the carrier may agree upon. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 723. Carriers not liable, etc., when.—The carrier shall not be liable under the provisions of this chapter, where the property has been replevied or levied upon or taken from the possession of the carrier by other legal process, or has been lawfully sold to satisfy the carrier's lien, or in case of the sale or disposition of perishable, hazardous or unclaimed goods, in accordance with law. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 724. Duties and powers of railroad commission.—It shall be the duty of the railroad commission to adopt and prescribe forms, terms and conditions for the authentication, certification or validation of bills of lading issued by common carriers referred to in article 715, and to regulate the manner and method of their issuance, and to take such steps as it may deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter; and it shall have authority to amend, alter and modify, from time to time, as may seem to it expedient, any regulations which may be adopted by it in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, after giving due notice thereof to all carriers interested and to the public. [Id. sec. 17.]

See Const. art. 10, § 2.

CHAPTER THREE

DISPOSITION OF UNCLAIMED OR PERISHABLE PROPERTY BY CARRIERS

Art.
725. Unclaimed freight may be sold, when and how.
726. Notice of such sale.
727. Carrier shall keep an account of sales, etc.
728. Carrier may sell live stock, when.
729. Carriers shall sell perishable property when.
730. Disposition of unclaimed intoxicating liquor.

Article 725. [327] [285] Unclaimed freight may be sold, when and how.—When any freight or baggage has been conveyed by a common carrier to any point in this state, and shall remain unclaimed for the space of three months at the office or depot nearest or most convenient to destination, and the owner, whether known or unknown, fails within that time to claim such freight or baggage, or to pay the proper charges if any there be against it, then it shall be lawful for such common carrier to sell such freight or baggage at public auction, offering each box, bale, trunk, valise or other article separately as consigned or checked. [Act May 2, 1874, p. 203. P. D. 5884a.]

Carrier's lien.—A carrier has a lien upon the goods to secure freight charges. An officer attaching goods stands, in respect to the lien for the freight, in the place of the carrier. Stuart v. Mau, 2 App. C. C. § 785.

Where a carrier wrongfully delivered goods to a second carrier, instead of the owner, the second had no lien thereon for freight. Liefert v. Galveston, L. & H. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 899.

Carrier held entitled to retain freight charges out of goods refused by consignee and sold under his directions. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Browne, 27 C. A. 437, 66 S. W. 341.

The lien is upon all the property on which the freight charges are due, and the right of sale is not restricted to so much of the property as may be necessary to pay the charges. T. & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Rucker (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 817.

Right to sell in general.—Under this article a carrier may sell freight remaining unclaimed for three months, regardless of whether any charges are due thereon, and the owner of the freight cannot by payment of charges compel the carrier to keep the freight longer than three months. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1158.

Place of sale.—Under this and following articles, defendant sold certain goods consigned to, but not accepted by, plaintiff. The goods were carried to the point of destination, which was a small town, but before sale were carried to a central point and there sold. Held, that the carrier did not have to sell the unclaimed goods at the destination, for the statute, being for the benefit of carriers, should receive a liberal construction according to Final Title, § 3, and further, such construction would be to the advantage of the owner as the goods would probably bring the best price at the central point, and any surplus, after paying charges, goes to the owner. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 77.

Notice.—This article, article 726, relating to notice, and article 712, authorizing a carrier using due diligence to notify the consignee to store freight not taken by the consignee and thereafter become liable only as warehousemen, are not in pari materia, because they are enacted for different purposes and are independent of each other, and the right to sell unclaimed freight does not depend on whether the carrier used due diligence to notify the consignee of the arrival of the freight, but, though it be assumed that the statutes must be construed together, a consignor shipping freight to itself must put itself in position to receive notice of the arrival of the freight at destination, and where it fails to do so, the carrier need not seek the consignee of the freight elsewhere to notify it of the arrival of the freight before making a sale of the freight remaining unclaimed for three months. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1158.

Conversion.—Where goods were wrongfully delivered by a carrier to a steamship company, instead of to the owner, the company, having notice of the ownership, had no lien for freight, and, on selling the goods, was liable for conversion. Liefert v. Galveston, L. & H. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 899.

A railway company, authorized by this article to sell freight for charges accruing against it, where consignee refuses to accept and shipper will make no disposition of it; but it is bound to give the notice of sale required by article 726. If it sells without giving such notice the sale is illegal, and the company is bound to the owner of the property as for conversion. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. North Texas Grain Co., 32 C. A. 93, 74 S. W. 569.

Art. 726. [328] [286] Notice of such sale.—Thirty days' notice of the time and place of sale, and a descriptive list of the packages to be sold, with names and numbers or marks found thereon, shall be posted up in three public places in the county where the sale is to be made, and on the door of the depot or warehouse, if any, where the goods are, and shall also give notice in at least one newspaper in the county, if any be published therein, for thirty days before sale; and out of the proceeds of such sale the carrier shall deduct the proper charges on such freight or baggage, including costs of storing and costs of sale, and hold the overplus, if any, to the order of the owner any time within five years, on proof of ownership made by the claimant or his duly authorized agent or attorney. [Id. P. D. 5884b.]

Notice.—The carrier before it can lawfully sell perishable goods which have been refused by the consignee must give the notice required by this article. Carter & Corey v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 681.

Article 725 and this article, authorizing a carrier to sell freight remaining unclaimed for three months on giving thirty days' notice, and article 712, authorizing a carrier using due diligence to notify the consignee to store freight not taken by the consignee and thereafter become liable only as warehousemen, are not in pari materia because they are enacted for different purposes and are independent of each other, and the right to sell unclaimed freight does not depend on whether the carrier used due diligence to notify the consignee of the arrival of the freight, but, though it be assumed that the statutes must be construed together, a consignor shipping freight to itself must put itself in position to receive notice of the arrival of the freight at destination, and where it fails to do so, the carrier need not seek the consignee of the freight elsewhere to notify it of the arrival of the freight before making a sale of the freight remaining unclaimed for three months. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1158.

Conversion.—A sale without the notice required by this article is illegal, and the company is bound to the owner of the property as for conversion. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. North Texas Grain Co., 32 C. A. 93, 74 S. W. 569.

A sale not in accordance with this article and article 727, amounts to a conversion by the railway company. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Rines & Co., 37 C. A. 618, 84 S. W. 1093.

See note to Art. 725.

Art. 727. [329] [287] Carrier shall keep an account of sales, etc.—The carrier shall keep an account of sales, copy of the notice, a copy of the sale bill, and the expense thereof proportioned to each article sold. [Id. P. D. 5884c.]

Art. 728. [330] [288] Carrier may sell live stock, when.—Should any live stock remain unclaimed for the space of forty-eight hours after its arrival at the place of its destination, the carrier may sell the same at public auction after giving five days' notice of the time and place of such sale, as prescribed in article 726, and apply the proceeds as prescribed in said article, after deducting reasonable expenses for keeping, feeding and watering said live stock from the time of its arrival at the place of its destination until disposed of as herein provided; and such carrier shall also keep an account of any such sale, copy of the notice, copy of the sale bill, and an account of all expenses. [Id. P. D. 5884d.]

Art. 729. [331] [289] Carrier shall sell perishable property, when.—Should any perishable property remain unclaimed after arrival at its place of destination until in danger of depreciation, it shall be the duty of the carrier to sell the same at public auction, after giving five days' notice of the time and place of sale, as prescribed in article 726, and apply the proceeds as prescribed in said article, and keep an account of such sale, copy of the notice, copy of the sale bill and an account of all expenses. [Id. P. D. 5884d.]

Right to sell.—As oats did not belong to the perishable class, this article, which provides for sale on five days' notice, is not applicable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. North Texas Grain Co., 32 C. A. 93, 74 S. W. 569.

Carrier of unclaimed perishable goods held to have a right to sell such goods when necessary to prevent total loss to the shipper. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. C. H. Cox & Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1196.

Conversion.—If a carrier sells perishable goods unlawfully, its action amounts to conversion. Carter & Corey v. International & G. R. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 681.

Art. 730. Disposition of unclaimed intoxicating liquor.—When any express company, railroad company or other common carrier, within this state, shall receive any package or parcel of whatsoever nature, whether from a point within or without this state, containing any intoxicating liquor, for transportation to any point within any county, justice precinct, school district, city or town, or subdivision of a county, where the sale of intoxicating liquors has been prohibited under the laws of this state, such express company, railroad company or other common carrier shall forthwith transport such intoxicating liquor to the place of its destination; and, upon the arrival of same at its place of destination, there shall be entered in a book to be kept for that purpose the names of the consignor and the consignee, the exact time of the arrival of such package or parcel at the place of its destination, the place from where shipped, the quantity and character of such intoxicating liquor, as shown on such package or parcel, the exact time delivered to the consignee, if delivered, and the signature of such consignee, who shall sign in person for same before delivery thereof; and such book shall be open at all reasonable hours for inspection by any officer of the law or any member of the grand jury. If such package or parcel be not called for and taken away by the consignee, and all charges thereon, if any, paid by such consignee, it shall be the duty of such express company, railroad company, or other common carrier, to start such package or parcel in transit back to the consignor thereof within seven days from the time of its arrival at the place of its destination; and the consignor shall be liable to such express company, railroad company, or other common carrier for the express or freight charges in transportation and returning same. Any express company, railroad company, or other common carrier, violating any of the provisions of this article or articles, shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each infraction thereof, to be recovered in the name of the state of Texas in any court of competent jurisdiction, in any county where such express company, railroad company or other common carriers have an office or an agent or a line of railway; and each day that such intoxicating liquor shall be kept at the place of its destination after the expiration of seven days from the time of its arrival shall be deemed a separate infraction. [Acts 1905, p. 379. Acts 1910, 3 S. S., p. 33.]

Constitutionality.—This article does not violate Bill of Rights, § 9, which provides that the people shall be secure in their persons, houses, and papers from all unreasonable searches and seizures. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 173.

This article is a valid exercise of the police power. Id.

Prosecutions thereunder.—This article and Act April 18, 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 160) § 1, requiring that each person who shall place any package containing any intoxicating liquor with any express company for shipment to prohibition territory shall place on the package the name of the consignor and consignee, and the words "intoxicating liquors" in plain letters, and making the violation of such section a misdemeanor, make the entries on the packages and in the books and papers of the express companies quasi public records and admissible in evidence in a prosecution for pursuing the occupation of selling intoxicating liquors in prohibition territory on proof that they were the records kept by the express company and identifying them, though they were not proved by the officer or agent of the express company making the entries; it also appearing that accused had signed such records as a receipt for the packages referred to therein. Stephens v. State, 63 Cr. R. 382, 139 S. W. 1141.

Under this article, held that, where defendant was charged with violating the local option law, evidence that on various occasions he went at night with unidentified persons to a railway station some distance from the place where he resided, and each time identified the one who was with him as the consignee of liquor at such station, and that none of the alleged consignees were known to the agent, was admissible to show defendant's alleged system in carrying on the business in violation of the law. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 904.

An indictment which charged that defendant about 3 o'clock in the afternoon of a certain day, the same being within the office hours of his express company, refused to permit the sheriff to inspect such books was sufficient, though it did not allege that the hour was "reasonable," especially where that ground was not given for the refusal. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 173.

CHAPTER FOUR

CONNECTING LINES OF COMMON CARRIERS

Art.
731. Connecting lines of common carriers defined.
732. Liability of such connecting lines.

Article 731. [331a] Connecting lines of common carriers defined. —All common carriers over whose transportation lines, or parts thereof, any freight, baggage or other property received by either of such carriers for through shipment or transportation by such carriers between points in this state on a contract for through carriage recognized, acquiesced in, or acted upon, by such carriers shall, in this state, with respect to the undertaking and matter of such transportation, be considered and construed to be connecting lines, and be deemed and held to be the agents of each other, each the agent of the others, and all the others the agents of each, and shall be deemed and held to be under a contract with each other and with the shipper, owner and consignee of such property for the safe and speedy through transportation thereof from point of shipment to destination; and such contract as to the shipper, owner or consignee of such property shall be deemed and held to be the contract of each of such common carriers; and, in any of the courts of this state, any through bill of lading, waybill, receipt, check or other instrument issued by either of such carriers, or other proof showing that either of them has received such freight, baggage or other property for such through shipment or transportation, shall constitute prima facie evidence of the subsistence of the relations, duties and liabilities of such carrier as herein defined and prescribed, notwithstanding any stipulations or attempted stipulations to the contrary by such carriers, or either of them. [Acts 1895, p. 186.]

Liability prior to enactment.—Prior to the enactment of this article, the liability of connecting lines has been defined in the following cases: Connecting lines of railroad, operating in conjunction, and recognizing each other's bills of lading, tickets and checks, are jointly and severally liable for freight or baggage shipped over their lines. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Hill, 63 T. 381, 51 Am. Rep. 642; G., H. & H. Ry. Co. v. Allison, 59 T. 193; St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Hindsman, 1 App. C. C. §§ 205, 207; T. & P. R. Co. v. Parrish, 1 App. C. C. § 942; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Fort, 1 App. C. C. § 1252; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Ferguson, 1 App. C. C. § 1253; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Ryan, 2 App. C. C. § 431; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Golding, 3 App. C. C. § 33; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Creath, 3 App. C. C. § 84. But the liability for exemplary damages is limited to the party at fault. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Hindsman, 1 App. C. C. § 207.

A common carrier is not liable beyond its own lines unless it has assumed such liability. The fact of receiving goods marked for a place beyond its own terminus does not import an agreement to transport to that place. Hunter v. Railway Co., 76 T. 195, 13 S. W. 190.

Merely charging a through rate of freight does not make carrier liable for negligence of connecting carriers. Railway Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 362.

Constitutionality of statute.—This article does not deprive a citizen of any of the privileges and immunities, or property without due process of law guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment to the United States constitution or Art. 1, § 19, state constitution. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Randle, 18 C. A. 348, 44 S. W. 603.

Duties and liabilities of initial carriers in general.—A carrier held not liable for damage on a connecting line as a partner, where the shipper did not rely on such partnership, but accepted contract limiting liability. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Houston (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 842.

The initial carrier having contracted for shipment between points within this state is liable for damages inflicted on the line of its connecting carrier as well as on its own line no matter what restrictions were inserted in the contract. See G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 261.

An instruction as to the measure of damages for injuries to cattle in shipment held not objectionable, as making defendant liable for injuries on connecting lines. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Chittim, 24 C. A. 599, 60 S. W. 284.

In an action against a railroad company for damages to cattle received during carriage over its own and a connecting line, that the waybill issued by defendant described the shipment as a through one held not to change written contracts for the shipment. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett, 27 C. A. 498, 66 S. W. 474.

In an action against a railroad company for damages to cattle received during carriage over its own and a connecting line, the shipping report, signed by agent of plaintiff and the connecting lines, held not to change written contracts for shipment between plaintiff and defendant. Id.

A railroad company, chargeable with unreasonable delay in holding a car containing vegetables, is liable for the natural consequences thereof, even beyond its own line. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 792.

Where a carrier agrees to transport freight over its own and connecting lines, it is answerable for damages on the connecting line. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Leatherwood, 29 C. A. 507, 69 S. W. 119.

A railway company, contracting to ship cattle over its own and a connecting line to a certain point, was liable for injury occurring on the connecting line. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McCarty, 29 C. A. 616, 69 S. W. 229.

In an action for injuries to live stock against two connecting carriers, an instruction held not error as permitting an assessment of damages against the carriers sued which in part occurred on the line of another. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 31 C. A. 464, 72 S. W. 1052.

This article and article 732 provide for suit and judgment against both or all carriers, in case of through contract of carriage, which is acquiesced in and acted upon. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Turner, 42 C. A. 532, 94 S. W. 216.

This article applies to a case in which the initial carrier undertook to have the goods transported at a given rate of freight from origin to destination in a car furnished by it for that purpose, and in which the bill of lading contained provisions for the benefit not only of the initial carrier but also of the connecting carrier. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 761.

Where the detention of plaintiff's cattle by the last connecting carrier which resulted in damage to them could have been prevented by plaintiff's conceding to the carrier's demand for $21 additional freight, which plaintiff was then able to pay, the initial carrier's negligence in quoting plaintiff an incorrect rate was not the proximate cause of the damage to the cattle by the delay so as to render such initial carrier liable therefor. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Reed, 56 C. A. 452, 121 S. W. 519.

In an action against an initial carrier for the conversion of a mule, alleged to have escaped from the car while in the possession of another carrier, defendant was liable, whether such other carrier acted as its agent in transporting the car or as a connecting carrier. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 445.

An initial carrier of goods consigned to a point off its own line, which delivers the goods to a final carrier other than the one called for by the contract with the shipper, becomes thereby an insurer of the goods and liable for injury received in the hands of the final carrier. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Kemendo (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 634.

Where a shipment over connecting lines is on a through bill of lading issued by one of them, both are equally liable to the shipper for any damages to the shipment through the negligence of either. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Waltman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 518.

An initial carrier of live stock need not load it on the connecting carrier's cars, delivery to the latter being sufficient. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones (Sup.) 134 S. W. 328, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

An initial carrier of live stock need not permit its cars to go over the connecting line, in the absence of special contract therefor, and is not liable for damage resulting from the unloading at the end of its line in the absence of negligence. Id.

Settlement with a connecting carrier for injury to a live stock shipment on its line did not affect the shipper's right to recover for damage negligently caused by the initial carrier. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blewett (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 243.

An initial carrier held not liable for its failure to notify a connecting carrier of the shipper's wish to divert a shipment of live stock to another point. Patton v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 721.

It is the duty of an initial carrier of live stock to furnish a car reasonably safe and suitable for their transportation. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Young & Webb (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1113.

Where all the shipments of live stock are not interstate shipments, judgment cannot be entered against the initial carrier for the whole amount of damages. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Sup.) 157 S. W. 745.

Routing shipment.—A shipper may designate the route by which goods shall be carried by the different railroads over which they pass. Judgment, Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 618, reversed. Thompson v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 126 S. W. 257, rehearing denied (Sup.) 128 S. W. 109.

A carrier's refusal to route freight as demanded by the shipper held a legal wrong, for which the shipper may recover resulting damages, notwithstanding any shipping contract subsequently made. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. True Bros. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 837.

A duty of a carrier to route a shipment as demanded by the shipper is not imposed until the freight is offered and tendered for shipment. Id.

Where a connecting carrier in custody of a passenger's baggage at the end of its line was notified by the passenger that the baggage had been shipped for delivery to the terminal carrier for transportation by it to the point of the passenger's destination, the initial carrier was liable for negligent delay in forwarding the baggage. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1182.

Where the connecting carrier selected by a shipper refuses to accept the shipment tendered by the initial carrier, the initial carrier should advise the shipper of the fact, depositing the freight in a warehouse if necessary, and await further instructions, but where the initial carrier in an effort to expedite the shipment sends it by another connecting carrier, and no loss is occasioned by such change of route, and the same delay would have happened had the route not been changed, the initial carrier is not liable. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Breaux (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 287.

Duties and liabilities of connecting and terminal carriers.—A railroad company held jointly liable with the connecting line for injuries to goods on such line, where both roads were operated as a partnership. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. McFadden, 91 T. 194, 40 S. W. 216, 42 S. W. 593.

A carrier may not avoid liability for delay in forwarding goods received by it in the usual way from a connecting carrier, on which charges were to be collected at their destination, because of excessive freight charges. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hassell, 23 C. A. 681, 58 S. W. 54.

A railroad company, forming a part of a system of railroads, held bound by the acts and declarations of an agent of the other companies, which are made in relation to shipments made over the system. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wells, 24 C. A. 304, 58 S. W. 842.

In an action against two connecting carriers for injuries to cattle shipped, over both roads, held error for the jury to consider the negligence of both roads in rendering a verdict against one. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 54.

A connecting carrier in a strictly domestic shipment is liable for damages occurring on a connecting line whether the contract of shipment is verbal or written. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. et al. v. Botts (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 114.

When the terminal connecting line has accepted and ratified the contract of shipment entered into by the shipper and initial carrier, and made such contract its own by receiving freight and acting upon the way bill for through shipment, by so doing it assumes and contracts for the shipper's free return passage from the point of destination, and when it breaches the contract by refusing such passage it becomes liable for damages together with all the connecting lines which are parties to the contract and may be sued in any county through which any of the connecting lines runs. Texas & P. Ry. v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 67.

This and article 732 provide for suit and judgment against both or all carriers, in case of through contract of carriage, which is acquiesced in and acted upon. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Turner, 42 C. A. 532, 94 S. W. 216.

An ultimate connecting carrier held not negligent in failing to ascertain that the unloading valve on an oil tank car was open before delivering the car to the consignee. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Wittnebert, 101 T. 368, 108 S. W. 150, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1227, 130 Am. St. Rep. 858, 16 Ann. Cas. 1153.

The delivering carrier having a statutory right to hold a shipment of cattle until all the freight is paid, a shipper cannot complain of injury to the cattle by their detention unless the carrier was negligent in caring for them. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Reed, 56 C. A. 452, 121 S. W. 519.

Where one of two connecting railroad companies received cattle for through shipment over the lines of both roads, and the terminal road received the cattle without making a new contract, the latter road acquiesced in the contract of the initial carrier, so that they were connecting lines within this article so that any stipulations by either limiting its liability to damages occurring on its own line would be immaterial in an action against it for injuries to cattle en route. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

Under this article it was the duty of both connecting carriers to load and reload a shipment of cattle at the connecting point, if they should have been unloaded there. Id.

A contract between two railroad companies held not to establish a partnership between them, nor to render them jointly liable as the agents of each other on account of a loss of freight. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Pennefather & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 948.

To bring a contract for shipment of live stock over connecting lines within this article, the contract must be for through carriage, and the shipment must be received and carried by the connecting carrier under that contract, and hence, where there is no through contract, a receipt by the connecting carrier does not fix joint liability. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328.

In an action against carriers for damages to a shipment of live stock, plaintiffs proved a verbal contract with one of defendants to transport the cattle over its line and the lines of the other defendants between two points in the state, but no written contract was issued, as there was no station agent at the place where the cattle were received. The other carriers received the shipment and assisted in its transportation to its destination. One defendant pleaded a special contract limiting liability, and such pleading was adopted by the other defendants, and plaintiffs denied that they signed any such contract, and no proof of any special contract was offered. Held, that a prima facie case was made under this article, and it was error for the court to limit the recovery against each defendant to injuries occurring upon its own line, and to refuse a requested instruction that, if the jury believed that the contract was a through contract and was accepted by all of the defendants, then, if they should find from the evidence that plaintiffs were entitled to recover, their verdict should be for plaintiffs against all defendants in such sum as they should find for plaintiffs. Williams & Hawkins v. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 390.

Where the transportation of live stock was delayed by the connecting carrier in consequence of unusual rains and wash-outs, and the delay required the terminal carrier to water and feed the stock, the reasonable time required for feeding and watering could not be charged against the connecting carrier as delay in transporting the stock. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Landa & Storey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 292.

Under this article and article 732 where a bill of lading for the transportation of cotton provided for through shipment over connecting lines, and the contract for through carriage was recognized, acquiesced in, or acted upon by such connecting carriers, they, as well as the issuing carrier, were bound by its terms. Elder, Dempster & Co. v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 154 S. W. 975.

Where a connecting carrier delivered a car on a track owned jointly with defendant, and informed defendant's agent that it had no charges against the car, it was defendant's duty to reship the same in accordance with orders from the owner, and its refusal to do so by reason of the connecting carrier's subsequent objection rendered defendant a joint tort-feasor and liable for damages from the delay. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lowery (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 992.

—— Injury by initial carrier.—A connecting carrier who receives freight on a through way bill from the initial carrier is liable for injuries done to the shipment on the line of the initial carrier. Texas & Pacific Railway Co. v. Randle, 18 C. A. 348, 44 S. W. 603.

When the shipment is wholly within this state, either connecting line is liable no matter on which line the damage occurred. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Ney (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 44.

Where the initial carrier only undertook to transport freight to the end of its line, and the connecting carrier did not receive the same under a through bill of lading, this article did not apply, and the connecting carrier was not liable for damages occurring on the line of the initial carrier. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Eastern Texas Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 488, 122 S. W. 972.

Where common carriers were connecting lines, within this article, the final carrier would be liable for damages caused to stock en route by the other carrier, as well as by itself, under article 732 making either of connecting carriers liable for injury to, or loss of, freight sustained in through transportation over connecting lines. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

Where a shipment over connecting lines is on a through bill of lading issued by one of them, both are equally liable to the shipper for any damages to the shipment through the negligence of either. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Waltman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 518.

A connecting carrier was not liable for defects in fruit cars, or for the failure to keep the cars at the proper temperature, where the cars were loaded by the initial carrier and accompanied by its messengers. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rackusin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 734.

—— Notice of special damages.—A connecting carrier of freight held chargeable with notice of special damages which would result to a contractor through delay in transportation. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

A connecting carrier must use reasonable diligence to transport freight if it receives information, before receipt by it of the shipment, of the importance of prompt transportation. Id.

Under a contract for carriage of many cars of construction material, held unnecessary to repeat notice with each shipment of the special purpose for which the material was to be used. Id.

—— Custom no excuse for delay.—An agreement of connecting carriers to hold goods in warehouse at their point of connection until controversies over freight charges were settled held not a custom binding on a consignee who had no knowledge thereof. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hassell, 23 C. A. 681, 58 S. W. 54.

Carriage of passengers.—See, also, notes under Art. 707.

This and article 732 regulate the liability of common carriers only with reference to freight and do not relate to carriage of passengers. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Doolan, 56 C. A. 503, 120 S. W. 1120.

Plaintiff, shipping the corpse of his father under the law applicable to the transportation of passengers, cannot rely on this article and he cannot demand the transfer of the corpse by the initial carrier to the connecting carrier without tendering the transfer ticket which he holds. Wren v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 682.

Interstate commerce.—When a commodity has been delivered to a common carrier to be transported on a continuous voyage or trip to a point beyond the limits of the state where delivered, the character of interstate or foreign commerce attaches. Houston Direct Nav. Co. v. Insurance Co. of North America, 89 T. 1, 32 S. W. 889, 30 L. R. A. 713, 59 Am. St. Rep. 17; Railway Co. v. Avery (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 704.

The fact that one of two connecting carriers owns a large amount of stock of the other does not render such road liable for the negligence of the latter. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 54.

In an action against a delivering carrier for damages to fruit, held error to refuse to instruct that if the fruit began to decay in the initial carrier's possession, and owing to its inherent nature the decay could not be stopped, the delivering carrier was not liable for the resulting damage. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mazzie, 29 C. A. 295, 68 S. W. 56.

In order to make the terminal of connecting lines in this state liable for baggage lost in an interstate shipment, beginning outside and ending within this state at a point on said terminal connecting line, it must be alleged and proved that there was a partnership or joint undertaking between the said terminal connecting line in Texas, and the initial and intermediate carriers as to the transportation of the lost baggage, or else that the terminal connecting line which is sought to be held liable actually received the baggage and failed to deliver it. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Berry, 31 C. A. 3, 71 S. W. 327.

That a shipment of cattle was interstate would not, of itself, independent of other issues made by pleading and evidence in a suit against connecting carriers for damages, render all jointly liable for injuries on one line only. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383.

In absence of proof of a partnership or other joint interest existing between two connecting carriers, the final carrier if itself without fault was not liable for delay on the line of the initial carrier. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stark Grain Co., 103 T. 542, 131 S. W. 410, modifying judgment (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1146.

Where the initial carrier is responsible for delay in transit of live stock to a certain point, and the connecting carrier for further delay, such carriers are jointly liable. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 381.

Under the act to regulate commerce (Act Feb. 4, 1887, c. 104, § 20, 24 Stat. 386), as amended by Act June 29, 1906, c. 3591, § 7, 34 Stat. 595, providing that any common carrier receiving property for transportation from a point in one state to a point in another state shall issue a bill of lading therefor, and shall be liable to the holder for any damage, whether caused by it or any connecting carrier, an initial carrier, which was under no obligation, by contract or otherwise, to notify a connecting carrier that the shipper desired a diversion of the shipment at a point on the connecting carrier's line, having delivered the shipment to the connecting carrier, was not liable for failure of the connecting carrier to make the diversion, as no fault was attributed to the connecting carrier. Patton v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 721.

A shipment from a point within to a point beyond the state is not governed by the local laws. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

Under a joint contract by connecting carriers to transport freight, each is liable for default of the other. Id.

The Carmack amendment held inapplicable where no damage results to an interstate shipment, as in cases of delay only. Id.

Liability of connecting carriers for delay in transporting car load freight held not affected because some of the shipments originated on a third line. Id.

In the absence of a partnership between connecting carriers, the initial carrier is the only one liable for the entire damage to a shipment within the act under the Carmack amendment of the federal statute. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 885.

Responsibility of a connecting carrier of live stock held to terminate when the animals were unloaded at the terminus of its line and delivered in pens to the connecting carrier. Id.

A connecting carrier of live stock is not bound to let its car be used to continue the transportation, and is not liable for delay caused by the connecting carrier in endeavoring to procure another car. Id.

If an intermediate carrier delivered horses to the shipper at a point where they were to be taken by another carrier, or to any one authorized to receive them other than a connecting carrier, such intermediate carrier would not be liable for injuries occurring thereafter. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. W. T. Meadors & Co., 104 T. 469, 140 S. W. 427.

A shipper of an interstate shipment held entitled to recover, under the Hepburn act, the entire damages from the initial carrier, though the connecting carriers are made parties. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Demere & Coggin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 623.

Where, in an action against initial, connecting, and terminal carriers for delay in the transportation of live stock, the evidence showed delay by the connecting and terminal carriers, the terminal carrier was liable only for the proportion of loss occasioned by its negligent delay. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Landa & Storey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 292.

An initial carrier of an interstate shipment is liable under the Carmack amendment for the negligence and delay of its connecting carrier. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 265.

The Carmack amendment held not to make an initial carrier absolutely liable, independent of negligence, but merely to permit the shipper to recover without the burden of locating the particular company negligent and to annul the stipulation usual in bills of lading limiting the liability of connecting carriers to damages on their own lines. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 309.

Where a terminal carrier of an interstate shipment, through a mistake as to the rate, refused to deliver the goods until an excessive rate was paid, the refusal amounted to a conversion. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

Under a verdict entitling a shipper to judgment, but showing damages to shipments to have occurred beyond the line of a defendant carrier, not the initial carrier, such defendant carrier was not liable. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Sup.) 157 S. W. 745.

Limitation of liability to carrier's own line.—When a carrier contracts for the carrying of goods over another line beyond his route, a stipulation that his responsibility is to terminate at the end of his line will be of no effect; and he will be held responsible for the negligence not only of himself and his servants, but of the connecting lines. G., H. & H. R. R. Co. v. Allison, 59 T. 193; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Golding, 3 App. C. C. § 33; H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Park, 1 App. C. C. § 332 et seq.; Tex. Exp. Co. v. Dupree, 2 App. C. C. § 318; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Logan, 3 App. C. C. § 187. See Railway Co. v. Wilbanks (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 302; Railway Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 131.

A carrier cannot limit his liability on a bill of lading, to terminate at the end of his own line. G., C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Golding, 3 App. C. C. § 34.

A stipulation for release from liability after the property has left the line of the carrier will result to the benefit of a connecting carrier. Railway Co. v. Adams, 14 S. W. 666, 78 T. 372, 22 Am. St. Rep. 56; I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Mahula, 1 C. A. 182, 20 S. W. 1002.

The liability of a railway for freight is limited to its own line when the bill of lading is so limited. When a through bill of lading is given, the liability includes injuries after the delivery to the connecting line, and such liability cannot be restricted by contract. Railway Co. v. Mayfield, 4 App. C. C. § 158, 15 S. W. 503; Railway Co. v. Vaughn, 4 App. C. C. § 182, 16 S. W. 775.

A company in a freight contract to a point beyond its own line may limit its liability to loss or injury caused upon its own line. McCarn v. Railway Co., 84 T. 352, 19 S. W. 547, 16 L. R. A. 39, 31 Am. St. Rep. 51; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 186.

A contract relieving the contracting company from liability for injuries occurring beyond its line applies only to injuries on a road not embraced in its system; and hence a leased road is liable for injuries to the property. Railway Co. v. Anderson, 21 S. W. 691, 3 C. A. 8.

A stipulation for release from liability after delivery to a connecting carrier is valid. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Thornton, 22 S. W. 67, 3 C. A. 197; I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Mahula, 1 C. A. 182, 20 S. W. 1002.

A carrier may limit his liability to his own line. Railway Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 142; Railway Co. v. Baird, 75 T. 263, 12 S. W. 530; Railway Co. v. Looney, 85 T. 159, 19 S. W. 1039, 16 L. R. A. 471, 34 Am. St. Rep. 787; Harris v. Howe, 74 T. 537, 12 S. W. 224, 5 L. R. A. 777, 15 Am. St. Rep. 862; Hunter v. Railway Co., 76 T. 195, 13 S. W. 190; Railway Co. v. Adams, 78 T. 372, 14 S. W. 666, 22 Am. St. Rep. 56; McCarn v. Railway Co., 84 T. 352, 19 S. W. 547, 16 L. R. A. 39, 31 Am. St. Rep. 51.

In interstate shipment, carrier can limit his liability to damages occurring upon his own line. Railway Co. v. Crossman, 11 C. A. 622, 33 S. W. 290.

Refusal to instruct that initial carrier was not liable for damages caused by the abuse of cattle while in the hands of a connecting road, though the contract limited liability to its own line, held not error. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 20.

A carrier receiving cattle for shipment under a contract limiting liability to its own line held liable for negligence of a connecting line with which it was in partnership. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Houston (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 842.

Where a carrier accepts freight from another line but requires a separate contract and the carrier limits its liability to its own line, it is not a connecting carrier, although it respects the through rate as made by the initial carrier. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 261.

In an action for damages occurring beyond defendant's line, an instruction that if, from previous dealings with defendant, plaintiff knew that a written contract limiting defendant's liability to its own line was always required, the verdict should be for defendant, was proper. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wright, 24 C. A. 291, 58 S. W. 846.

A shipper held not entitled to recover for damages to live stock shipped under an oral contract, on the ground that a written contract thereafter executed, limiting the carrier's liability to its own line, was made under duress. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Gallagher (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 97.

Where a railroad company's contract for the shipping of stock limited its liability to its own line, instructions should be given that defendant would not be liable for injuries after the stock passed out of its possession. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 68.

A railway company, limiting its liability to its own line in a contract of shipment, is liable for the negligence of its agent in billing the property to a wrong place on the connecting carrier's line. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 71.

Where an initial carrier accepted a shipment of cotton for transportation from a point in Texas to Bremen, Germany, it was entitled to limit its liability to loss or damage occurring on its own line. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Inman, Akers & Inman (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 275.

The initial carrier under an intrastate live stock shipment contract can limit its liability to damage accruing on its own line and in delivering the shipment to the connecting carrier. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

A contract by the initial carrier of an intrastate shipment limiting its liability to its own lines is valid, though articles 731 and 732 make carriers jointly liable where the connecting carrier acquiesces in the contract made by the initial carrier, so that the employés of a connecting carrier were not within a petition charging negligence of the employés of the initial carrier. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 747.

Where stock was carried over connecting railways, and there was no statute making it the duty of the first to notify the second carrier that the shipper wished to divert the shipment, and the contract expressly provided that the first carrier should be released of all liabilities after delivery of the stock to the connecting carrier, the initial carrier, after delivering the shipment to the second carrier, was not liable for its failure to notify the latter that the shipper wished the shipment diverted. Patton v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 721.

A joint contract by connecting carriers to transport freight held not controlled by provision in the bills of lading limiting the initial carrier's liability to delays occurring on its own line. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

Limitation of common-law liability.—See notes under Art. 708.

Actions against connecting carriers—Parties.—See Title 37, Chapter 5.

—— Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

—— Presumptions, burden of proof, and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

—— Sufficiency of evidence.—Proof held insufficient to show a joint contract between connecting carriers so as to make the last liable for loss of baggage, without a showing that it had once been in the possession. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Berry, 31 C. A. 3, 71 S. W. 326.

In an action against connecting carrier for damages to freight, evidence held to warrant a finding that the transportation was a single shipment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mazzie, 29 C. A. 295, 68 S. W. 56.

In an action against an initial carrier for the conversion of a mule, alleged to have escaped out of a shipment of two cars while in the possession of the defendant or its connecting carriers, evidence held sufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 445.

In an action against an intermediate carrier for delay in the transportation of live stock, a judgment for plaintiff is not supported by the evidence where there is no showing as to when the stock would have been shipped from the terminus of defendant's line, if defendant's train had not been late. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 463.

In an action for damages to goods shipped over the lines of connecting carriers, evidence held insufficient to show that at the time of delivery to the initial carrier they were in good order. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Barr (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 971.

In an action for injuries to live stock, evidence considered, and held sufficient to show negligence of all three connecting carriers. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bivins (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1180.

Evidence held to show that the general freight agent of an initial carrier was authorized to contract for a shipment for a connecting carrier. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

In an action against carriers for delay in carrying construction material, evidence held to sustain findings that completion of the construction work was not caused by defective machinery, labor troubles, or other matters beyond the carriers' control. Id.

Evidence held not to show that a carrier of live stock was liable for injury to the stock. Martin v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 615.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that damage to shipment was due to the fault of the initial carrier by delay and insufficient icing. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. A. B. Patterson & Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 698.

Evidence, in an action for damages for delay in the transportation of live stock, held sufficient to sustain a verdict against the initial carrier. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Dunford (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1129.

—— Question for jury and instructions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 13.

—— Damages.—See notes under Arts. 707, 710, 713.

Art. 732. [331b] Liability of such connecting lines.—For any damages for injury or damage to, or loss or delay of, any freight, baggage or other property, sustained anywhere in such through transportation over connecting lines, or either of them, as contemplated and defined in the next preceding article of this chapter, either of such connecting carriers which the person or persons sustaining such damages may first elect to sue in this state therefor shall be held liable to such person or persons; and such carrier so held liable to such person or persons shall be entitled in a proper action to recover the amount of any loss, damage or injury it may be required to pay such person or persons from the carrier through whose negligence the loss, damage or injury was sustained, together with costs of suit. [Id.]

Federal statutes.—In interstate shipments this article does not apply, but each company may limit its liability for such loss as may occur on its own line, and no recovery can be had for loss occurring on connecting lines in absence of allegation and proof of partnership or some joint traffic arrangement between the several connecting carriers. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Groves, 48 C. A. 45, 106 S. W. 417.

Where cattle, delivered to the initial carrier in good condition, were, before the beginning of the transportation, subjected to treatment causing injuries, and the cattle, when delivered to a connecting carrier, were in an injured condition, the connecting carrier was not liable, and the initial carrier, adjudged liable to the shipper, could not, under Interstate Commerce Act June 29, 1906, c. 3591, 34 Stat. 584, recover over against the connecting carrier. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jarmon, 141 S. W. 155.

Liability as between carriers.—Connecting carrier is not entitled to contribution from initial carrier for damages to property in transit. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Childs (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 41.

Where a carrier wrongfully delivered goods to a second carrier, who sold them for freight, on being compelled to pay the owner therefor, he could not recover from the first carrier. Liefert v. Galveston, L. & H. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 899.

Where a railroad employé recovered from his employer for damages received by a defect in a car delivered to the employer by another road, the employer was not entitled to judgment over against the other road. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Nass (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 910.

Jury having found defendant railroad company liable to plaintiff for injuries caused by a defective foreign car, defendant could not recover over against connecting carrier owning the car, though it was also guilty of negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Nass, 94 T. 255, 59 S. W. 870.

A connecting carrier is liable to a judgment over in favor of the receiving carrier against which the shipper of goods recovers judgment for injury thereto. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 26 C. A. 167, 62 S. W. 1075.

Under a contract between a carrier and a connecting carrier as to the exchange of freight, held error to render judgment in favor of the connecting carrier over against the other for damages caused by its negligence after the freight had come into its exclusive possession. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Reese, 29 C. A. 400, 68 S. W. 1019.

Where a railroad company contracted to ship cattle over its own and a connecting line, and in an action against both companies for injury to the cattle on the connecting line judgment was recovered against both, with judgment over in favor of the contracting company against the connecting company, the latter could not complain. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McCarty, 29 C. A. 616, 69 S. W. 229.

Initial carrier, on being held liable for the damages to live stock sustained on the connecting line, held to have the right to a judgment over against the latter. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 390.

Where freight is to be shipped over connecting lines from one point in the state to another, either can be held liable for damages sustained. The one not causing the damage can recover from the one that did cause it, if the former has to pay for the damage. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Terry & McAfee (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 793.

A connecting carrier delivering goods to a wrong party, and without requiring the production of the bill of lading, cannot recover from the initial carrier for damages recovered of such connecting carrier by the consignee or his assignee. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1106.

An initial carrier adjudged liable for the negligence of connecting carrier held subrogated to the rights of the shippers and entitled to recover against such connecting carrier. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Eastin & Knox, 100 T. 556, 102 S. W. 105.

A connecting carrier, which is not liable to the shipper for injury to freight may not recover over against the initial carrier the sum wrongfully recovered against it by the shipper, though the initial carrier is liable to the shipper. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Eastern Texas Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 488, 122 S. W. 972.

In an action to recover against carriers of live stock for damages from delay in transportation, evidence held sufficient to sustain a judgment over in favor of the initial carrier against one of the connecting carriers. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Johnson & Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 725.

Connecting carrier's liability to shipper or consignee.—See notes under Art. 731.

Limitation of liability.—See notes under Art. 708.

CERTIORARI

Chap.
1. Certiorari to the County Court.
2. Certiorari to Justices' Courts.

CHAPTER ONE

CERTIORARI TO THE COUNTY COURT

Art.
733. Certiorari to county court, issued when.
734. Application for.
735. Shall be granted on execution of bond.
736. Not to operate as supersedeas, unless bond given.
737. Writ to issue, to contain what.
738. When supersedeas granted.
739. Citation as in ordinary cases.
740. Trial de novo, judgment to be certified below.
741. Appeals and writs of error allowed.

Article 733. [332] [290] Certiorari to county court, issued when.—Any person interested in the estate of a decedent or ward may have the proceedings of the county court therein revised and corrected at any time within two years after such proceedings were had, and not afterward; provided, that persons non compos mentis, infants and femes covert shall have two years after the removal of their respective disabilities within which to apply for such revision and correction. [Act March 16, 1848, p. 106, secs. 7, 9. P. D. 480, 482.]

Cited, Heaton v. Buhler (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1078; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1189.

Nature of remedy.—The proceeding under these articles is direct, and not collateral. Linch v. Broad, 70 T. 92, 6 S. W. 751; Wipff v. Heder, 26 S. W. 118, 6 C. A. 685; Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1055.

The remedy by certiorari is as distinctly statutory and hence legal as the remedy by appeal, and is not made dependent upon a showing of cause why the remedy of an appeal was not pursued. Friend v. Boren, 43 C. A. 33, 95 S. W. 712.

Jurisdiction of district court.—The jurisdiction of the district court to revise the proceedings of the county court in matters of probate is appellate only, and can be exercised on appeal or by certiorari. Buchanan v. Bilger, 64 T. 589; Franks v. Chapman, 60 T. 46; Id., 61 T. 576; Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686.

District court has no jurisdiction to review on certiorari action of county court compelling administratrix to place certain land on inventory, where it was obliged to determine an issue of title outside its jurisdiction. Miers v. Betterton, 18 C. A. 430, 45 S. W. 430.

A district court can review the action of a commissioners' court, in allowing an assessor a fee in excess of that provided by statute, on certiorari. McDonald v. Farmer, 23 C. A. 39, 56 S. W. 555.

Certiorari will not lie to compel a county clerk to transmit to the district court a transcript of proceedings in the opening of a road. McKinley v. Frio County, 39 C. A. 618, 88 S. W. 447.

Where a guardian has taken an appeal from a probate order to the district court, and been unsuccessful on a trial de novo he cannot then take the case before the same court on certiorari and have another such trial. In re Pearce, 43 C. A. 398, 96 S. W. 1094.

Void orders by the county court in matters of estates of decedents can be reviewed in the district court by certiorari and their invalidity declared. Williams v. Steele, 101 T. 382, 108 S. W. 157.

Substantial wrong must have have been done the estate that relief may be granted on certiorari to review proceedings of the county court in probate matters. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 185.

Under this article the district court, on certiorari to review orders of the county court in the administration of a decedent's estate, has jurisdiction only to revise and correct such orders of the county court as were made within two years before the filing of the application for certiorari. Wade v. Scott (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 675.

—— Discretionary power of court.—Certiorari to set aside order of sale of insane person's land held not a matter of right. Fitzwilliams v. Davie, 18 C. A. 81, 43 S. W. 840.

—— Time and manner of exercising jurisdiction.—Certiorari cannot be granted at all in vacation, nor in term time, except on order of the court or by a majority thereof. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

No bond required from executors and administrators.—Executors and administrators, when taking a case to the district court for revision on certiorari under this article need not give bond. Adoue v. Gonzales, 22 C. A. 73, 54 S. W. 367.

Time within which proceedings must be begun.—The proceedings in a decedent's estate can be reviewed even where the statute has run against part of the petitioners who are not protected by minority. Miers v. Betterton, 18 C. A. 430, 45 S. W. 430.

There is nothing in the statute that requires a proceeding to set aside and annul an order of the county court relating to the administration of an estate to be begun and prosecuted while administration is pending. Bloom v. Oliver, 56 C. A. 391, 120 S. W. 1102.

Persons interested.—Where the mother dies before the father, and in the administration of his estate the community property is sold, her heirs cannot obtain a review by certiorari of the order for the sale. Roy v. Whitaker, 92 T. 346, 48 S. W. 892, 49 S. W. 367.

The remedy of a creditor having a lien on live stock of the estate, in case of abuse by the administrators of the right given them by the county court to use the stock in operating the plantation, held to be by proceedings in the county court, and not by certiorari. R. E. Stafford & Co. v. Dunovant's Estate (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 65.

Under this article a person interested in a decedent's estate was entitled, within the period mentioned, to certiorari to review the county court's order admitting decedent's will to probate, though petitioner had not appeared and contested the probate in the county court. Heaton v. Buhler (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1078.

Costs, how awarded.—See Arts. 2046, 2047.

Art. 734. [333] [291] Application for.—All applications for the writ of certiorari to the county court shall be made to the district court, or a judge thereof. It shall state the names and residences of the parties adversely interested, and shall distinctly set forth the error in the proceeding sought to be revised. [Id. P. D. 480.]

Pleading.—A petition for certiorari must state the facts constituting the error on which the writ is applied for. The record of the justice when sent up will be looked to in connection with the petition. Spinks v. Mathews, 80 T. 373, 15 S. W. 1101.

Allegation of fraud and mistake of next friend in a petition for certiorari to review the proceedings of the county court on an application to probate a will held insufficient. Harbison v. Harbison (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1006.

Petition for certiorari, on judgment against a carrier for damages for delay in delivering a feed shipment, held not to show a want of notice of the purpose of the shipment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kinney, 33 C. A. 533, 77 S. W. 18.

Petition for certiorari, which sets out part of evidence, but does not negative every phase of the evidence, and facts which would justify the judgment, held insufficient. Id.

A petition for certiorari to review an order allowing an administrator's account and discharging such administrator held not subject to general demurrer. Friend v. Boren (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 711.

A petition for certiorari to review an order admitting a will to probate held to sufficiently charge error in the probate proceedings. Heaton v. Buhler (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1078.

A petition for certiorari must allege facts which, if true, would require the rendition of a different decree on the merits from that appealed from. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

Under this article a petition to review orders of the probate court appointing one administratrix, on the theory that she was the putative wife of decedent and awarding her allowances and the homestead, which alleges that the court erred, in that she was not the surviving wife of decedent, is, in the absence of any special exception, sufficient to raise the question whether she was the putative wife; the word "wife" in the petition being used in its generic sense as including a putative, as well as a lawful, wife. Walker v. Walker's Estate (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145.

Parties adversely interested.—Under this article, where testator's heirs sought certiorari to review an order admitting his will to probate, the executor was the person adversely interested, and a petition stating his name and residence was sufficient. Heaton v. Buhler (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1078.

Art. 735. [334] [292] Shall be granted on execution of bond.—The writ of certiorari shall, in all cases, be granted upon the application of a party therefor, upon the applicant entering into bond in such sum as shall be required by the judge, sufficient to secure the costs of the proceeding.

Bond from executors and administrators.—See notes under Art. 733.

Art. 736. [335] [293] Not to operate as supersedeas, unless bond given.—A writ of certiorari shall not operate as a supersedeas of the judgment of the county court, unless the applicant therefor shall enter into bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in such sum as shall be fixed by the order of the district judge, payable to the adverse party, and conditioned for the performance of the judgment of the district court, in case such judgment shall be against the applicant.

Art. 737. [336] [294] Writ to issue to contain what.—The writ of certiorari shall be issued by the clerk of the district court upon the compliance of the party with the order of the district court or the judge thereof. It shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county, and shall command him to cite the clerk of the county court to make out a certified transcript of the proceedings designated in the writ, and transmit the same to the district court to which the writ is returnable, on or before the return day of the next succeeding term thereof.

Record.—Certiorari brings up only orders entered in the final minutes. Dement v. State, 39 Cr. R. 271, 45 S. W. 917.

Art. 738. [337] [295] When supersedeas granted.—When an order for a supersedeas has been made, it shall also require the clerk and all officers of said court to stay further proceedings on the judgment specified in said writ.

Art. 739. [338] [296] Citation as in ordinary cases.—Whenever a writ of certiorari has been issued, the clerk shall forthwith issue a citation, as in ordinary cases, for the party named in the application, as being adversely interested in the proceedings sought to be revised.

Art. 740. [339] [297] Trial de novo; judgment to be certified below.—The cause shall be tried de novo in the district court, but the issues shall be confined to the grounds of error specified in the application for the writ. The judgment shall be certified to the county court for observance. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 60. P. D. 1460.]

Trial de novo.—In certiorari to review a judgment of the county court, the judgment is no evidence of any fact on the trial de novo. Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1055.

That the administrator had paid out the entire estate, settled his account, and been discharged, held no defense to certiorari to review the proceedings and compel a restatement of his account. Friend v. Boren, 43 C. A. 33, 95 S. W. 711.

That a judge of a county court was disqualified to confirm a guardian's sale of real estate because the purchaser was related to the judge within the third degree was insufficient to require reversal of the order on certiorari, since under this article the district court, though exercising appellate jurisdiction only, would be bound to confirm the sale if otherwise regular, notwithstanding the disqualification of the county judge. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

A "trial de novo" means one "from the beginning, once more, anew," so that under this article, on certiorari from the district court to review an order of the county court approving a settlement of a minor's injury claim, the case must be retried upon the merits, without reference to errors in procedure committed in the county court, provided the issues are confined to the grounds of error specified in the application, so that questions as to what evidence was considered by the county court to the effect of its order are immaterial. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1189.

Judgment.—A judgment after the death of one of the parties to the proceeding is not void. Holman v. G. A. Stowers F. Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1120.

Where a motion to set aside such judgment is overruled the remedy is by appeal. Id.

It is proper for the court on certiorari to compel a restatement of the administrator's account to ascertain who the heirs are, and to make a proper disposition of the estate not lawfully paid out by the administrator, by giving to each heir the share to which he is entitled. Friend v. Boren, 43 C. A. 33, 95 S. W. 712.

Certification to county court.—As to certifying judgment to county courts, see Wipff v. Heder (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 164.

Art. 741. [340] [298] Appeals and writs of error allowed.—Appeals and writs of error to the supreme court, from the judgments of the district courts in cases of certiorari, shall be allowed, and shall be governed by the same rules as in other cases.

Appeal.—Court of civil appeals. See Const. Art. 5, §§ 3, 6; post, Arts. 1522, 1589, 2079.

An appeal can be taken from a judgment dismissing a suit for a certiorari and ordering a writ of procedendo. Holman v. Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1120.

CERTIORARI TO JUSTICES' COURTS

Art.
742. Certiorari to justices' courts.
743. On order of the county or district court or judge.
744. Requisites of the writ.
745. Affidavit of sufficient cause.
746. What application for certiorari must show.
747. Within what time granted.
748. Bond with sureties required.
749. Bond, affidavit and order to be filed.
750. Writ to issue instanter.
751. Justice shall stay proceedings and make return.
752. Citation as in other cases.
753. Cause to be docketed, and how.
754. Motion to dismiss at first term.
755. No amendment of bond or oath.
756. Judgment of dismissal.
757. Pleadings same as in justice's court, except, etc.
758. Issues, made up under direction of the court.
759. New matter may be pleaded, etc.
760. Trial de novo.
761. Appeals and writs of error in certiorari cases.

Article 742. [341] [299] Certiorari to justices' courts.—After final judgment in a court of a justice of the peace, in any cause, except in cases of forcible entry and detainer, the cause may be removed to the county court by writ of certiorari (or if the jurisdiction, civil or criminal, has been transferred from the county to the district court, then to the district court) in the manner hereinafter directed. [Acts of 1879, p. 125.]

Supplementary to appeal.—The remedy by certiorari is independent of the one by appeal, and additional thereto. Hail v. Magale, 1 App. C. C. § 852; Quinn v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 1108; Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Keel (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 1082.

A party may sue out the certiorari pending an appeal; if he does so, he may be compelled in an appellate court to elect which remedy he would rely upon; and the remedy abandoned would be dismissed at his cost. Quinn v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 1108; Lindheim v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 108.

Grounds for.—Certiorari to bring up suit on ground that justice had lost jurisdiction by dismissal held properly denied. Silcock v. Bradford (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 234.

Certiorari to bring up suit in justice court because of pendency of another suit held properly denied. Id.

Where a cause is decided by a justice of the peace on conflicting evidence, there cannot be a review by certiorari. Clevenger v. Murray (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 469.

Discretion of court.—Certiorari to review a justice court judgment is not granted as a matter of right; the application being addressed to the discretionery powers of the court. McBurnett v. Lampkin, 45 C. A. 567, 101 S. W. 864.

Cannot join several suits in one certiorari.—A. obtained eight several judgments by default against B. in as many separate suits in a justice's court. B. removed all these causes to the county court by certiorari, embracing them all in the same petition and bond. Held, that the joinder of the several suits in the proceeding by certiorari was not permissible, and the certiorari was properly dismissed. G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Ware, 2 App. C. C. § 357.

Certiorari to court of civil appeals.—The proper remedy for bringing to the court of civil appeals a record of the justice's court where the case originated is by certiorari, and not by affidavit to which the justice's transcript is attached. Peugh v. Moody (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 296.

Mandamus.—A justice of the peace refused to send up the papers in a case where an appeal had been perfected; the appellant obtained a writ of certiorari requiring the justice to send up the record as under an appeal in said cause, and that the cause be tried de novo in the county court. Held, that the proper remedy was by mandamus; but the certiorari having served the purpose of bringing the papers up to the county court, and by virtue of the fact that the court had jurisdiction on the perfected appeal, there should have been a trial de novo, and the case was improperly dismissed. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Dyer, 2 App. C. C. § 312; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. McTiegue, 1 App. C. C. § 459; Sherwood v. Galveston R. E. & L. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 694; Brown v. Grinnan, 2 App. C. C. § 413.

Art. 743. [342] [300] On order of the county or district court or judge.—The writ of certiorari shall be issued by order of the county court or the judge thereof, (or district court or the judge thereof, if jurisdiction is transferred to said district court) as provided in the preceding article.

Writ, by whom granted.—A writ issued without the fiat of the judge is void. Gaston v. Parker, 1 App. C. C. § 107.

A county judge who is disqualified from sitting in the trial of a case cannot grant a certiorari. Baldwin v. McMillan, 1 App. C. C. § 515; Fellrath v. Gilder, 1 App. C. C. § 1060.

But he has no authority to dismiss the proceeding on that account; the only action that he can legally take in the case is to transfer it to the district court. The consent of the parties will not confer upon him the authority to do more than this. Fellrath v. Gilder, 1 App. C. C. § 1060; Garrett v. Gaines, 6 T. 435; Chambers v. Hodges, 23 T. 104.

Art. 744. [343] [301] Requisites of the writ.—It shall command the justice of the peace to make and certify a copy of the entries in the cause on his docket, and transmit the same, with the papers in his possession, to the proper court on or before the first day of the next term thereof; but if there is not time for such transcript and papers to be filed at such term, then they shall be so filed at the next succeeding term of said court. [Act March 20, 1848, p. 163, sec. 67. P. D. 468.]

Grounds for dismissal.—The fact that the writ of certiorari is made returnable to a term subsequent to the next succeeding term is not ground for dismissal. Lindheim v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 108.

When a petition for a writ of certiorari has been granted and the bond executed and approved, the proceeding will not be dismissed on the ground that the clerk issued a subpœna duces tecum instead of a writ of certiorari in the usual form. Beauchamp v. Schiff, 3 App. C. C. § 170.

Art. 745. [344] [302] Affidavit of sufficient cause.—The writ shall not be granted unless the party applying for the same, or some person for him having knowledge of the facts, shall make affidavit in writing, setting forth sufficient cause to entitle him thereto. [Id.]

Necessity and requisites of affidavit.—All grounds of defenses must be negatived when the application is made by the plaintiff in the trial court, and against whom judgment has been rendered. Johnson v. Lane, 12 T. 179. An averment that the defendant offered no evidence is sufficient. Hagood v. Grimes, 24 T. 15.

The parties to, character and amount of, the judgment must be stated. Boyd v. Clark, 21 T. 426.

All the facts must be stated (Doughty v. Hale, 1 App. C. C. § 1251), and not the conclusion and belief of the applicant (Robinson v. Lakey, 19 T. 139; Givens v. Blocker, 23 T. 633; Bodman v. Harris, 20 T. 31; Mays v. Lewis, 4 T. 1; Riley v. Runkle, 29 T. 92; Oldham v. Sparks, 28 T. 425; Ford v. Williams, 6 T. 311).

It is not necessary to state the evidence of witnesses in an affidavit in totidem verbis, or written instruments in hæc verba; but it is sufficient to give the substance of the facts proved on the trial. Stuart v. Mau, 2 App. C. C. § 784.

It should appear from the affidavit that the affiant has knowledge of the facts stated (Spinks v. Mathews, 80 T. 373, 15 S. W. 1101), and that he used due diligence in prosecuting his cause of action or defense (Quinn v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 1108; Railway Co. v. Simon, 2 App. C. C. § 99).

A motion for certiorari not supported by affidavit and that fails to ask that the clerk send up a more perfect record, is insufficient. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 631.

Affidavits for a writ of certiorari to a justice of the peace construed, and held not insufficient. Webb v. Texas Christian University, 48 C. A. 264, 107 S. W. 86.

The requirement of the statute held satisfied. Lucas v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 659.

Under this article a statement in writing signed by a party and verified by affidavit made by him is sufficient. Id.

Need not show cause for failure to appeal.—Petitioner need not show reasons for not taking an appeal. Von Koehring v. Schneider, 24 C. A. 469, 60 S. W. 277; Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Keel (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 1082; Lucas v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 659.

Amendment.—Where the officer omitted to affix his official seal to the jurat, on a motion to dismiss the petition, the defeat may be cured by an amendment. Hail v. Magale, 1 App. C. C. § 854.

Art. 746. [345] [303] What application for certiorari must show.—In order to constitute a sufficient cause, the facts stated must show that either the justice of the peace had not jurisdiction, or that injustice was done to the applicant by the final determination of the suit or proceeding, and that such injustice was not caused by his own inexcusable neglect. [Id.]

Pleading in general.—Petition in the county court for certiorari to justice court held sufficient to authorize the grant of the writ. Bowman v. Weber (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 493.

Petition for certiorari to justice of the peace held to sufficiently set out the names of the parties. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Bellows (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 593.

Where the allegations of a petition for certiorari to review a justice's judgment in action by physician showed a material and vital error by the justice, it was error to dismiss the petition. Von Koehring v. Schneider, 24 C. A. 469, 60 S. W. 277.

Plaintiff, in applying for a writ of certiorari to review a justice court judgment, held within the rule that such an application must state the evidence or facts established in the trial court. McBurnett v. Lampkin, 45 C. A. 567, 101 S. W. 864.

Essentials of petition for certiorari to a justice's court stated. Gould v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 899.

It is not necessary for obtaining the remedy by certiorari to assign any excuse for not taking an appeal. Lucas v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 659.

Want of jurisdiction.—Cases in which the writ was applied for on the ground that the trial court did not have jurisdiction, and granted: Hill v. Faison, 27 T. 428; Perry v. Rohde, 20 T. 729; T. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Ballouf, 1 App. C. C. § 552; Braidfoot v. Taylor, 1 App. C. C. § 174; Harris v. Hood, 1 App. C. C. § 573. Refused: Pearl v. Puckett, 8 T. 303; Peabody v. Buentillo, 18 T. 313.

In a garnishment proceeding, where judgment was rendered against plaintiff by default without notice, held, that it was entitled to a review by certiorari. J. W. Butler Paper Co. v. Scarff & O'Connor, 46 C. A. 590, 102 S. W. 1168.

Injustice to applicant.—Granted on the ground that injustice was done to the applicant. Weihl v. Davy, 6 T. 168; King v. Longcope, 7 T. 236; Ahrens v. Giesecke, 9 T. 432; Hooks v. Lewis, 16 T. 551; Ice v. Lockridge, 21 T. 461; Smith v. Thomas, 1 App. C. C. § 677.

Petition for certiorari to justice of the peace held to sufficiently show that entry of judgment by justice was an injustice to petitioner. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Bellows (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 593.

Where the allegations in a petition for a writ of certiorari to review a judgment of a justice of the peace showed that judgment was rendered against the petitioner because of a forged receipt introduced by the appellee, it was error to dismiss the petition. Von Koehring v. Schneider, 24 C. A. 469, 60 S. W. 277.

Defendant's application for a writ of certiorari to a justice held to state facts sufficient to show that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover for goods sold or converted. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Edgewood Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1075.

Relator held to have sustained an injury entitling him to a writ of certiorari to review a judgment. Reed v. Sieckenius (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 487.

In the petition for a writ of certiorari to review a justice court judgment, mere general statements of a good defense, or that injustice has been done, is not sufficient, but it must state the facts upon which it is expected to recover. McBurnett v. Lampkin, 45 C. A. 567, 101 S. W. 864.

Certiorari will not lie to review a justice court judgment in order to permit a party to avail himself of a defense which he could have urged in the justice court and which he neglected to do. Id.

A general statement, in the application for a writ of certiorari to review a default judgment, that applicant did not owe plaintiff anything, and was prevented by sickness from appearing held to entitle applicant to the writ. Wilbur v. Lane, 53 C. A. 249, 115 S. W. 298.

Negligence of applicant.—Refused on account of the negligence of the applicant in presenting his cause of action or in making his defense. Mays v. Lewis, 4 T. 1; O'Brien v. Dunn, 5 T. 570; Ford v. Williams, 6 T. 311; Clay v. Clay, 7 T. 250; Perdew v. Steadham, 8 T. 274; Pearl v. Puckett, 8 T. 303; Hope v. Alley, 11 T. 259; Haley v. Villeneuve, 11 T. 617; Kirk v. Graham, 14 T. 316; Inge v. Benson, 15 T. 315; Peabody v. Buentillo, 18 T. 313; Robinson v. Lakey, 19 T. 139; Huston v. Clute, 19 T. 178; Bodman v. Harris, 20 T. 31; Davis v. Darling, 20 T. 803; Baldwin v. Hardin, 21 T. 443; White v. Casey, 25 T. 552; Railway Co. v. Coleman, 21 S. W. 936, 2 C. A. 548; Wilson v. Griffin, 1 App. C. C. § 1313; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Simon, 2 App. C. C. § 99; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 2 App. C. C. § 174; Hail v. Magale, 1 App. C. C. § 853.

Negligence of the attorney of defendant, whereby default judgment was rendered, is not neglect of defendant under this article. Lucas v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 659.

Want of merit.—When it appears from the affidavit that the applicant is justly indebted to the adverse party, he must offer to pay the amount admitted to be due, or the petition will be dismissed for want of equity. Parker v. Poole, 12 T. 86.

Refused for the want of merit. Criswell v. Richter, 13 T. 18; O'Brien v. Dunn, 5 T. 570; Clark v. Hutton, 28 T. 123; Cordes v. Kauffman, 29 T. 179; Clay v. Clay, 7 T. 250; Riley v. Runkle, 29 T. 92; Oldham v. Sparks, 28 T. 425.

Petition must show prima facie case.—When the grounds of an application are that the plaintiff failed to show cause of action by sufficient evidence, it is not necessary to show that the defendant set up his defense to the action in the court below. Lindheim v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 108.

A petition for certiorari need not set out verbatim the testimony of each witness, nor the exact contents of written documents. If it gives the substance of the evidence, from which it appears that injustice has been done, alleging that no other evidence was before the court, it is sufficient. Beard v. Miller, 4 App. C. C. § 76, 16 S. W. 655. See, also, Carroll v. Gilbert, 4 App. C. C. § 266, 17 S. W. 1086.

A petition must, directly or circumstantially, allege the facts that were in evidence on the trial in the justice's court. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Odom, 4 App. C. C. § 106, 16 S. W. 541.

A petition must either state all the evidence, or show that a material error occurred in the proceedings, or that applicant has not been able to avail himself of a legitimate prosecution or defense by no fault of his own, but one or all of these causes must be set forth with sufficient detail to show a prima facie case entitling petitioner to another hearing. Gould v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 899.

—— Amendment.—Where no objection was made by plaintiff in error to the amended petition in certiorari on the ground that it included matter not presented in the original petition, that question cannot be first raised on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1189.

Art. 747. [346] [304] Within what time granted.—Such writ shall not be granted after ninety days from the final judgment of the justice of the peace. [Id.]

Time within which writ must be sued out.—Writ of certiorari must be sued out within 90 days from date of final judgment. Judgment is final the day it is rendered if no motion for new trial is made. If such motion is made the judgment becomes final when it is overruled either by the court or by operation of law. Kyle v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 400.

Where defendant within 90 days obtained an order for a writ of certiorari, and filed a sufficient bond, the writ was not void because the bond was not approved until after 90 days. Wilbur v. Lane, 53 C. A. 249, 115 S. W. 298.

Certiorari pending appeal.—A writ of certiorari may be granted pending an appeal. Lindheim v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 108.

Where a party aggrieved by the judgment of the county court pursues the remedy of appeal to the district court, he has no right to the remedy of certiorari till the judgment of the district court be set aside. Harbison v. Harbison (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1006.

Laches.—Petitioner held not guilty of laches, so as to bar remedy by certiorari. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Bellows (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 593.

Art. 748. [347] [305] Bond with sureties required.—The writ shall not be issued unless the party applying therefor shall first cause to be filed a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the clerk, payable to the adverse party, in such sum as the judge shall direct, to the effect that the party applying therefor will perform the judgment of the county or district court, if the same shall be against him. [Id.]

Necessity and requisites of bond.—The omission of the name of the obligor in the body of the bond is immaterial when the bond is duly signed by him. Braidfoot v. Taylor, 1 App. C. C. § 175.

The writ will be dismissed when no bond is given (Cotton v. Gammon, 4 T. 83); or when the bond is signed by one surety only. (Mays v. Lewis, 4 T. 1).

A bond in substantial compliance with the statute is sufficient. Hooks v. Lewis, 16 T. 551. Where a bond sufficiently identifies the judgment, a small discrepancy in the amount of the judgment as actually rendered and as recited in the bond would not vitiate the bond. Hall v. Magale, 1 App. C. C. § 855.

For a description of the judgment the bond may refer to the application for the writ. Seeligson v. Wilson, 58 T. 369.

—— Amendment.—See notes under Art. 755.

"County or district court."—The expression "county or district court" in this article merely means that the bond should be conditioned that the party appealing should perform the judgment of the particular court applied to to issue the certiorari writ. Webb v. Texas Christian University, 48 C. A. 264, 107 S. W. 89.

Art. 749. [348] [306] Bond, affidavit and order to be filed.—The bond and affidavit, with the order of the judge, when made in vacation, shall be field with the clerk of the court to which the same is returnable.

Judgment on bond.—Where defendant, against whom a default judgment was rendered in justice's court, brought the case to the county court by certiorari, giving the statutory bond, plaintiff, obtaining a judgment showing a trial on the merits in the county court, was entitled to judgment against the sureties on the bond filed in the county court, under this article. Ingram v. McClure (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 339.

Release of sureties.—Upon dismissal of writ of certiorari and payment of costs, sureties on bond are released. Landa v. Moody (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 51.

Art. 750. [349] [307] Writ to issue instanter.—As soon as such affidavit, order of the judge and bond shall have been filed, the clerk shall issue a writ of certiorari, as directed in article 744. [Act May 10, 1850, p. 60, sec. 2. P. D. 470.]

Art. 751. [350] [308] Justice shall stay proceedings and make return.—Upon service of such writ of certiorari being made upon the justice of the peace, he shall stay further proceedings on the judgment and forthwith comply with said writ; but if there be not time for the transcript and papers to be filed at such first term, then they shall be so filed at the next succeeding term of said court. [Id. sec. 67. P. D. 468.]

Art. 752. [351] [309] Citation as in other cases.—Whenever a writ of certiorari has been issued, the clerk shall forthwith issue a citation, as in ordinary cases, for the party adversely interested.

Art. 753. [352] [310] Cause to be docketed, and how.—The action shall be docketed in the name of the original plaintiff, as plaintiff, and of the original defendant, as defendant.

Art. 754. [353] [311] Motion to dismiss at first term.—At the first term of the court to which the certiorari is returnable, the adverse party may move to dismiss the certiorari for want of sufficient cause appearing in the affidavit, or for want of sufficient bond.

Must move at return term.—A motion to dismiss the writ must be made at the return term, and the fact that the motion was made and overruled at the return term does not authorize a supplementary motion, embracing additional grounds, to be made and determined at the succeeding term of the court. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Conner, 2 App. C. C. § 109.

It is too late at subsequent term to move to dismiss the certiorari upon the same or other grounds, where a motion has been overruled at a former term. Park v. Sanger, 3 App. C. C. § 196.

A motion to dismiss a certiorari for want of sufficient cause must be made at the return term. Park Bros. v. Sanger Bros., 3 App. C. C. § 196; Brown v. Spharr, 4 App. C. C. § 132, 16 S. W. 866; Holt v. McCasky, 14 T. 229.

At the March term of the county court a cause was continued by agreement without prejudice to either party. At the May term a motion to dismiss was filed and sustained by the court. It was held on appeal that, the motion not having been on file when the agreement was made, it was not within the agreement. It was said that the statute is mandatory and the filing of the motion cannot be waived. No opinion is expressed as to the right to waive the presentation of the motion to dismiss when it is on file. Burns v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 83.

A defect in the bond is not jurisdictional, and where a motion to dismiss is not made at the first term the objection is waived. Howth v. Shumard (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1079.

Grounds for dismissal.—A motion to dismiss a writ of certiorari on the ground that the order therefor commanded the clerk to issue the writ to a certain justice of the peace, but that the writ was issued to the sheriff, held properly denied. Webb v. Texas Christian University, 46 C. A. 264, 107 S. W. 86.

A motion to dismiss the certiorari at the first term of court to which the writ is returnable should not prevail if based on any other defects in the proceedings than those named in the statute. Id.

The only grounds for the dismissal of a certiorari are those stated in this article; no other grounds can be entertained. A motion to dismiss on statutory grounds will not be entertained after the first term. Peck v. Reed, 3 App. C. C. § 265.

Hearing of motion.—In passing on exceptions to a petition for certiorari, the county court should accept its allegations as true. Odom v. Carmona (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 1100.

Hearing on appeal.—In considering a motion to dismiss certiorari the county or district court should look to the petition and transcript, to determine the merits of the motion. Kellers v. Reppien, 9 T. 443; Aycock v. Williams, 18 T. 392; Crawford v. Crain, 19 T. 145; Jones v. Nold, 22 T. 379; Darby v. Davidson, 27 T. 432; Seeligson v. Wilson, 58 T. 369; Nelson v. Hart (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 831; Rea v. Raley (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 169; McBurnett v. Lampkin, 45 C. A. 567, 101 S. W. 864.

And a reference cannot be made to the transcript of the justice to contradict it. Richers v. Helmcamp, 1 App. C. C. § 683; Hearn v. Foster, 21 T. 401.

And it is error to admit affidavits or evidence contradicting it. Von Koehring v. Schneider, 24 C. A. 469, 60 S. W. 277.

Facts alleged in application for writ of certiorari will be taken as true on appeal from judgment dismissing the same. Reed v. Sieckenius (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 487.

On motion to quash and dismiss the case, the petition must be taken as true. Richers v. Helmcamp, 1 App. C. C. § 683; Hearn v. Foster, 21 T. 401; Gould v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 899.

Art. 755. [354] [312] No amendment of bond or oath.—No amendment of the affidavit or bond shall be made in the county or district court, nor shall a new affidavit or bond be filed.

See Art. 2104.

New bond.—The district court should not permit a new certiorari bond to be filed. Harris v. Parker (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 844.

Can make second application.—The right to a writ of certiorari is not exhausted by a futile attempt to obtain one provided the subsequent application is in time. The first petition was dismissed and a second sued out. Wilbur v. Lane, 53 C. A. 249, 115 S. W. 298.

Art. 756. [355] [313] Judgment of dismissal.—If the certiorari be dismissed, the judgment shall direct the justice of the peace to proceed with the execution of the judgment below.

Procedendo on dismissal.—See, also, notes under Art. 760.

It is error to give judgment against the principal and his sureties as on affirmance. Givens v. Blocker, 23 T. 633.

A procedendo should be awarded. Clark v. Hutton, 28 T. 123; Givens v. Blocker, 23 T. 633; Miller v. Holtz, 23 T. 138.

On dismissal of appeal for want of jurisdiction, judgment may be rendered for appellant for costs of the appeal. L. I. & F. Co. v. White, 23 S. W. 594, 5 C. A. 109.

Art. 757. [356] [314] Pleading same as in justice's court, except, etc.—No pleading other than that required by law in the justice's court shall be necessary, except in cases of amendment, as hereinafter provided.

Art. 758. [357] [315] Issues made up under direction of the court.—When no pleadings have been filed in justices' courts, and none were necessary, the issues shall be made up under the direction of the court.

Art. 759. [358] [316] New matter may be pleaded, etc.—Either party may plead any new matter in the county or district court which was not presented in the court below; but no new cause of action shall be set up by the plaintiff, nor shall any set-off or counter claim be set up by the defendant which was not pleaded in the court below; and in all such cases the pleadings shall be in writing, and filed in the cause before the parties have announced themselves ready for trial.

This article is not applicable where the new cause of action, if any, is set up in the justice court. Nixon v. Padgett, 23 C. A. 689, 57 S. W. 854.

New cause of action, set-off, or counterclaim.—See City of Dallas v. McAllister (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 452, as to setting up a new cause of action, set-off or counterclaim.

Payment or any new matter not amounting to a new cause of action or counterclaim may be pleaded on appeal. Gholston v. Ramey (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 713; Brown v. Reed (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 74.

A defendant in an action for debt pleaded to the jurisdiction of the court. On appeal it was held that he was precluded from filing an answer setting up a breach of the written contract on the part of the plaintiff and setting up an oral contract in defense of plaintiff's claim. Good v. Caldwell, 11 C. A. 515, 33 S. W. 243.

A counterclaim or set-off not relied on in justice's court cannot be pleaded in the court on appeal. Good v. Caldwell, 11 C. A. 515, 33 S. W. 243; O'Maley v. Garriott (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 108; Jund v. Stute, 49 C. A. 510, 108 S. W. 764.

Where intervener before justice failed to verify plea, an amended original plea on certiorari from the district court does not set up a new cause of action because verified. Harris v. Parker (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 844.

A party can plead in the court to which he has appealed a case from the justice court, illegality of the contract on which he was sued, though he did not plead it below. White Dental Mfg. Co. v. Hertzberg, 92 T. 528, 50 S. W. 122.

Where sureties on a replevy bond have taken a case from the justice court to the county court by certiorari, an amended plea in the county court by the plaintiff in the judgment alleging that said sureties have converted the property to their own use, wherefore he asks judgment against them on that ground, sets up a new cause of action, and is not allowable. Barrett v. Habern, 22 C. A. 207, 54 S. W. 644.

Where an action on a note was tried by a justice on a counterclaim over which he had no jurisdiction that part of such claim consisting of failure of consideration was matter of defense on appeal notwithstanding this article. Brigman v. Aultman, Miller & Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 509.

Where plaintiff obtained judgment in the justice court and the case was appealed to the county court, plaintiff could not amend his pleading so as to claim a larger amount than he recovered in the lower court. Williams v. Houston Cornice Works, 46 C. A. 70, 101 S. W. 839, 1195.

This article does not prohibit amended pleadings in the county court. Davis v. Morris, 52 C. A. 184, 114 S. W. 684.

Plaintiff, in an action in a justice's court, could amend his petition on appeal to the county court so as to conform it to the details of the evidence developed at trial, without violating the rule against pleading a new cause of action by amendment. Wooley v. Corley, 57 C. A. 229, 121 S. W. 1139.

Under this article a plaintiff suing in justice's court two defendants for negligence may not on appeal ask judgment against a third person negligently causing the injury. Abeel v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 284.

General denial.—The defendant not appearing in the justice's court can plead the general denial in the appellate court. Railway Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 424; Swinborn v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 567.

Failure of consideration.—A plea of failure of consideration not pleaded in justice's court may be pleaded on appeal to the county court. Curry v. Terrell, 1 App. C. C. § 240; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Klepper (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 567; Bennett v. Paine (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 398; Slover v. Machine Co., 12 C. A. 446, 34 S. W. 1055; Brigman v. Aultman, Miller & Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 511; Contra, see Rush v. Lester, 2 App. C. C. § 442; Harrison v. Railway Co., 4 App. C. C. § 69, 15 S. W. 643; Machine Co. v. Slover, 4 App. C. C. § 236, 16 S. W. 105; Ostrom v. Tarver (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 701, 29 S. W. 69.

Written pleadings required.—Under this article plaintiff suing in justice's court two persons for negligence, may not on appeal recover against third person, though the oral pleading sufficiently pleaded the latter's negligence. Abeel v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 284.

Merely rule of pleading.—This article merely prescribes a rule of pleading or practice, and, if the parties see fit to try matters not pleadable under this article to judgment, without objection, the judgment would be conclusive. Crocker v. Mann (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 311.

Art. 760. [359] [317] Trial de novo.—The cause shall be tried de novo, in the county or district court; and judgment shall be rendered, as in cases of an appeal from justices' courts. [Act to establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Trial de novo.—The parties occupy the same position in the county court as in the justice's court, and the case is to be tried de novo. If the plaintiff fails to prosecute his suit or to give security for costs when required, the suit will be dismissed on motion of his adversary, and no execution can be issued on the judgment in the justice's court. It is only when the writ of certiorari is quashed for want of merits or because there is no sufficient bond that the judgment of the justice's court is revived. Miller v. Holtz, 23 T. 138; Givens v. Blocker, 23 T. 633; Clark v. Hutton, 28 T. 123.

When the writ was applied for on the ground that the officer neglected to affix his signature to the jurat to an affidavit for a writ of garnishment, but the objection was not made in the trial court, its omission could be supplied on the trial in the county court. White v. Casey, 25 T. 552.

Where defendant had instituted suit on a note and mortgage in justice court, and afterwards amended his petition by setting up an additional note, and obtained judgment thereon without notice to plaintiff, held that, in certiorari by plaintiff to the justice court, it was error for county court to refuse to hear evidence as to the second note, and to reduce defendant's judgment to the amount due on the first note. Nixon v. Padgett, 23 C. A. 689, 57 S. W. 854.

When a case is removed by certiorari from a justice to the county court the trial is de novo and the parties are entitled to have decided any matter that was in issue in the justice court or that could be made such in the county court by pleading of the parties. Webb v. Texas Christian University, 48 C. A. 264, 107 S. W. 89.

Art. 761. [360] [318] Appeals and writs of error in certiorari cases.—Appeals and writs of error from the judgments of the county or district court, in cases of certiorari from justices' courts, shall be allowed, subject to such rules and limitations as apply in cases appealed from justices' courts.

CHILD AND ANIMAL PROTECTION

Chap.
1. State Bureau of Child and Animal Protection.
2. Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

CHAPTER ONE

STATE BUREAU OF CHILD AND ANIMAL PROTECTION

Art.
761a. Governor to appoint state bureau.
761b. Ex-officio members of board of directors.
761c. Duties of bureau.
761d. Annual meeting.
761e. Annual report.
761f. Publication and distribution of report.
761g. Acceptance of act by state humane society.

Article 761a. Governor to appoint state bureau.—That the governor of the state of Texas shall appoint a state bureau of child and animal protection from and among the members of the directorate of the Texas state humane society, which shall be composed of not less than nine, nor more than twenty-one members. [Acts 1913, p. 108, sec. 1.]

Art. 761b. Ex-officio members of board of directors.—The governor, the superintendent of public instruction and the attorney general shall be ex-officio members of the board of directors of said state bureau. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 761c. Duties of bureau.—It shall be the duty of the said bureau to secure the enforcement of the laws for the prevention of wrongs to children and dumb animals as now defined and as hereafter may be defined by law; to appoint local and state agents to assist in this work; to assist the organization of district and county societies, and to give them representation in the state bureau; to aid such societies and agents in the enforcement of the laws for the prevention of wrongs to children and dumb animals as prescribed by law now existing, or which may hereafter exist; and to promote the growth of education and sentiment favorable to the protection of children and dumb animals. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 761d. Annual meeting.—Said bureau shall hold its annual meeting on the second Monday in November in each year, at the capitol of the state, for the transaction of its business and the election of officers, at which meeting all questions relating to child and animal protection in the state may be considered. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 761e. Annual report.—The said bureau shall make an annual report before the first day of January of each year to the secretary of state, embracing the proceedings of the bureau for the preceding year, and statistics showing the work of the bureau and its agents and county and district societies throughout the state, together with such papers, facts and recommendations as they may deem useful to the interests of children and dumb animals in the state, said report to be fully prepared for publication. The secretary of state shall cause the same to be published in pamphlet or book form by the state, under the supervision of the bureau. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 761f. Publication and distribution of report.—The number of copies of said report to be published shall be not less than five thousand, all of which shall be bound in uniform style, every two years in one volume, and shall be distributed by the secretary of state as follows: Ten copies, each, to the governor of the state, secretary of state, state comptroller and state treasurer, five copies, each, to the judges of the supreme court, and the attorney general, two to each member of the legislature, one copy to each judge and clerk of the district, county and federal courts, one copy to each board of county commissioners, one copy to each newspaper office in the state, ten copies to the state University, state industrial schools, and the warden of the penitentiary, two copies to each college of learning in the state, two copies to each of the other state boards, and the remainder to the bureau of child and animal protection. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 761g. Acceptance of act by state humane society.—If the said humane society shall accept the provisions of this Act, they shall certify their acceptance of the same to the secretary of state and state comptroller. [Id. sec. 7.]

PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

Art.
761h. Cruel or inhumane treatment; penalty.
761i. Food and water for animals impounded; penalty for failure.
761j. Right to enter pound or corral and supply food and water; reasonable cost may be collected; exemption.
761k. Live poultry; coops, crates and cages; water troughs; penalty for failure.
761l. On arrest agent of humane society may take charge of animals and vehicle, etc.; notice; lien.
761m. May take charge of animal abandoned, cruelly treated, etc.; society may collect expense.
761n. May detain till expense is paid.
761o. May destroy animal in certain cases.
761p. Enforcement of lien; sale.
761q. Officers or agents to have certificate or badge.
761r. Member of society may require arrest.
761s. Terms defined.
761t. Laws repealed.
761u. Pending proceedings; prior offenses.

Article 761h. Cruel or inhumane treatment; penalty.—Every person who overdrives, wilfully overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, unnecessarily or cruelly beats, or needlessly mutilates or kills, or carries in or upon any vehicle, or otherwise in a cruel or inhumane manner, or causes or procures to be done, or who having the charge or custody of any animal unnecessarily fails to provide it with proper food, drink or cruelly abandons it, shall, upon conviction be punished by fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars. [Acts 1913, p. 168, sec. 1.]

Art. 761i. Food and water for animals impounded; penalty for failure.—Every person who shall impound, or cause to be impounded in any pound or corral under the laws of this state or of any municipality in this state, any animal, shall supply to the same during such confinement a sufficient quantity of wholesome food and water, and in default thereof, upon conviction, be punished by fine or not less than five nor more than fifty dollars. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 761j. Right to enter pound or corral and supply food and water; reasonable cost may be collected; exemption.—In case any animal shall be at any time impounded as aforesaid and shall continue to be without necessary food and water for more than twelve successive hours, it shall be lawful for any person from time to time and as often as it shall be necessary, to enter into or upon any pound or corral in which such animal shall be confined, and to supply to it necessary food and water so long as it shall be so confined; such persons shall not be liable to any action for such entry, and the reasonable cost for such food and water may be collected by him or [of] the owner of the animals; and the said animal shall not be exempt from levy and sale, upon execution issued upon a judgment therefor. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 761k. Live poultry; coops, crates and cages; water troughs; penalty for failure.—Every person who shall receive live fowls, poultry or other birds for transportation or to be confined on wagons or stands, or by the owners of grocery stores, commission houses, or other market houses, or by other persons when to be closely confined shall place same immediately in coops, crates or cages made of open slats or wire on at least three sides, and of such height, that the fowls can stand upright without touching the top, and shall have troughs or other receptacles easy of access at all times by the birds confined therein and so placed that their contents shall not be defiled by them, in which troughs or other receptacles clean water and suitable food shall be constantly kept; shall keep such coops, crates or cages in a clean and wholesome condition; shall place only such numbers in each coop, crate or cage as can stand without crowding one another, but have room to move around; shall not expose same to undue heat or cold; shall remove immediately all injured, diseased or dead fowls or other birds, and in default thereof shall, upon conviction, be punished by fine of not less than five nor more than two hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment, for each offense. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 761*l*. On arrest agent of humane society may take charge of animals and vehicle, etc.; notice; lien.—When any person arrested under any provision of this Act is, at the time of such arrest, in charge of any vehicle drawn by or containing any animal cruelly treated, any agent of said humane society, having been authorized by the sheriff of the county to make arrests in such cases, may take charge of such animal and such vehicle and its contents, and the animal or animals drawing same, and shall give notice thereof to the owner, if known, and shall care and provide for them until their owner shall take charge of the same; and such agent shall have a lien on said animals and on said vehicle and its contents for the expense of such care and provision, or the said expense or any part thereof remaining unpaid may be recovered by such agent in a civil action. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 761m. May take charge of animal abandoned, cruelly treated, etc.; society may collect expense.—Any officer or agent of the said humane society may lawfully take charge of any animal found abandoned, neglected or cruelly treated and shall thereupon give notice thereof to the owner, if known, and may care and provide for such animal until the owner shall take charge of same, and the expense of such care and provision shall be a charge against the owner of such animal and collectible from such owner by said humane society in an action therefor. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 761n. May detain till expense is paid.—When said humane society shall provide neglected abandoned animals with proper food, shelter and care, it may detain such animals until the expense of such food, shelter and care is paid, and shall have a lien upon such animals therefor. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 761*o*. May destroy animal in certain cases.—Any agent or officer of the said humane society may lawfully destroy or cause to be destroyed any animal in his charge, when, in the judgment of such agent or officer, and by written certificate of two reputable citizens called to view same in his presence, one of whom may be selected by the owner of said animal if he shall so request, and who shall give their written certificates that such animal appears to be injured, disabled, diseased, past recovery, or unfit for any useful purpose. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 761p. Enforcement of lien; sale.—Any person or corporation entitled to a lien under any of the provisions of this Act may enforce the same by selling the animals and other personal property upon which such lien is given, at public auction, upon giving notice to the owner, if he be known, of the time and place of such sale, at least five days previous thereto, and by posting three notices of the time and place of such sale in three public places within the county, at least five days previous thereto; and if the owner be not known, then such notice shall be posted at least ten days previous to such sale. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 761q. Officers or agents to have certificate or badge.—Officers and agents of said humane society shall be provided with a certificate by said society that they are such officers or agents in such form as the directors of said society may choose, or with a badge bearing the name and seal of said society; and shall if requested, show such certificate or badge when acting officially. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 761r. Member of society may require arrest.—Any member of the Texas state humane society may require the sheriff of any county, the constable of any precinct or the marshal or any policeman of any town or city, or any agent of said society authorized by the sheriff to make arrests for the violation of this Act, to arrest any person found violating any of the provisions of this Act, and to take possession of any animal cruelly treated in their respective counties, cities or towns. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 761s. Terms defined.—In this Act the word "animal" shall be held to include every living dumb creature; the words "torture" and "cruelty" shall be held to include every act, omission or neglect whereby unnecessary or unjustifiable pain or suffering is caused, permitted or allowed to continue, when there is a reasonable remedy or relief, and the words "owner" and "person" shall be held to include corporations, and the knowledge and act of agents and employés of corporations in regard to animals transported, owned, employed by or in custody of the corporation shall be held to be the knowledge and acts of such corporations. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 761t. Laws repealed.—All Acts or parts of Acts in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 761u. Pending proceedings; prior offenses.—Nothing in this Act shall be held to apply to or in any manner affect any indictment, trial, writ of error, appeal or other proceedings, judgment, or sentence in case of violation of the provisions of this section by this Act repealed now pending in any court in this state, and the same shall be held, conducted and adjudged as provided by the law in force before this Act shall take effect. Any offense under the provisions of the section by this Act repealed which shall have been committed before this Act takes effect shall be required to be prosecuted and punished in accordance with the law in force at the time of the commission of such offense. [Id. sec. 14.]

GENERAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO CITIES

Art.
762. Cities, towns and villages may accept provisions of this title.
763. Provisions of this title do not apply until accepted.
764. General powers of the corporation.
765. Property, officers, etc., not affected by this title.
766. Rights, actions, etc., not affected by this title.
767. Cemetery lots exempt from forced sale.
768. City exempt from giving bond in suits.
769. Powers of city, etc., owning waterworks, sewers, gas and electric lights, to own land within or without limits.
770. May purchase, construct and operate systems inside or outside limits, and regulate, etc.
771. May sell water, etc., to persons outside, permit connections, etc.
772. May prescribe kind of mains and appliances, etc., inspect, etc.; make regulations; prescribe penalties.
772a. May mortgage and encumber light or water systems, etc.
772b. Expense of operation and maintenance of encumbered system to be first lien against income; rates to be equal, uniform and sufficient; free service, etc.
772c. Contracts, bonds and notes; obligation charge and not debt.
772d. Management and control of encumbered system to be in council or trustees, etc.
772e. Trustee to make sale on default; collection fees; foreclosure proceedings.
772f. May encumber light and water systems singly or together; in whole or in part; with or without franchise; sale, how authorized; limit of encumbrance, etc.
773. Limits of corporation to remain the same until extended, etc.
774. Cities, towns and villages may incorporate under.
775. Validating incorporations.
776. Validating incorporations.
777. Territorial boundaries of cities and towns, etc.
778. Excessive territory to be relinquished.
779. Validating certain incorporations.
780. Discontinuing territory.
781. Adjoining inhabitants may become part of city, how.
782. Segregating territory from city.
783. Liable for debts, etc.
783a. Cities on navigable streams and under special charters may extend limits; may acquire land for improvement of navigation, etc.
783b. Not to include land of other cities or town corporations.

Article 762. [381] [340] Cities, towns and villages may accept provisions of this title.—Any incorporated city, town or village in this state, containing one thousand inhabitants or over, including those incorporated under chapter fourteen of this title, or chapter eleven of title eighteen of the Revised Statutes of 1895, and other laws, general and special, may accept the provisions of this title relating to cities and towns, in lieu of any existing charter, by a two-thirds vote of the council of such city, town or village; which action by the council shall be had at a regular meeting thereof and entered upon the journal of their proceedings, and a copy of the same, signed by the mayor and attested by the clerk or secretary under the corporate seal, filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which such city, town or village is situated, and the provisions of this title shall be in force, and all acts theretofore passed incorporating said city, town or village which may be in force by virtue of any existing charter shall be repealed from and after the filing of said copy of their proceedings as aforesaid. When such city, town or village is so incorporated as herein provided, the same shall be known as a city or town, subject to the provisions of this title relating to cities and towns and vested with all the rights, powers, privileges, immunities and franchises therein conferred. [Acts of 1881, p. 115. Acts of 1885, p. 57.]

Cited.—Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808; Ex parte Wade (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 179.

Application.—This article applies to villages whether incorporated before or after the passage of the statute, and the officers of a village incorporated under chapter 14 in 1906 may accept the provisions of chapter 1. Trent v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 737.

Validity.—Municipalities are created by the state for its benefit, and the state may confer on them such authority as it sees fit, subject to the right of local self-government guaranteed by Bill of Rights, § 1, declaring that the maintenance of free institutions depends on the preservation of local self-government, and this article construed to authorize the officers of a village incorporated by a vote of the people to incorporate under the general law, is not invalid. Trent v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 737.

"Municipal corporation."—"Municipal corporation" defined. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

—— Must be created in some mode prescribed.—A municipal corporation must be created or dissolved, or its boundaries enlarged, in some mode prescribed by law. Failure to elect officers does not work a dissolution; the officers may still be elected, and the corporation may then incorporate under the general law, and such action will have the effect to repeal all former charters. State v. Dunson, 71 T. 65, 9 S. W. 103; Buford v. State, 72 T. 182, 10 S. W. 401; Largen v. State, 76 T. 323, 13 S. W. 161.

A reorganization in 1887 of the territory of a town incorporated in 1859, under the act of January 27, 1859, was void. Id.

Papers filed with county clerk not evidence unless.—Certified copies of the incorporation papers filed with the county clerk cannot be introduced in evidence unless they have been filed in the case and three days' notice given, as required by article 3700. Lamar v. State (Cr. App.) 95 S. W. 511, 512.

Presumption as to applicability of general laws.—A city, not shown to be operating under a special charter, is presumed to be subject to this and subsequent articles, relating to cities and towns; the burden being on it, in a suit against it, to show exemption from the operation of such general laws. City of Haskell v. Webb (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 127.

Control of sidewalks.—Whether a city was incorporated under this article or article 1033, it would have control over sidewalks within its limits, and would be liable for negligence with respect thereto. City of Haskell v. Barker (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 833.

Liability of city incorporated under general law.—A city or town incorporated under the general law is responsible in damages for an injury inflicted under circumstances which would fix liability on a city or town incorporated by special enactment, clothed with the same power and charged with the same duties. Baugus v. City of Atlanta, 74 T. 629, 12 S. W. 750.

Collateral attack.—Right of municipal corporation to exercise functions of government over certain territory held not subject to collateral attack. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bratcher, 54 C. A. 10, 118 S. W. 1091.

In habeas corpus proceedings to secure the release of a resident of an incorporated city from arrest, held, that the organization of the city could not be collaterally attacked. Ex parte Koen, 58 Cr. R. 279, 125 S. W. 401.

Art. 763. [382] [341] Provisions of this title do not apply until accepted.—The provisions of this title shall not apply to any city, town or village until such provisions have been accepted by the council in accordance with the preceding article. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 157.]

Historical.—No law existed prior to the act of March 27, 1885, under which towns and villages incorporated under chapter 14, title 22, on acquiring the requisite population, could accept the provisions of that title in lieu of an existing charter, in the manner prescribed by this article, and thus become an incorporated city under the first chapter of that title. Harness v. State, 76 T. 566, 13 S. W. 535.

Art. 764. [383] [342] General powers of the corporation.—All the inhabitants of each city, town or village so accepting the provisions of this title shall continue to be a body corporate, with perpetual succession, by the name and style by which such city, town or village was known before the acceptance of the provisions of this title, and as such they and their successors by that name shall have, exercise and enjoy all the rights, immunities, powers, privileges and franchises possessed and enjoyed by the same at the time of the acceptance of the provisions of this title, and those herein granted and conferred, and shall be subject to all the duties and obligations pertaining to or incumbent on the same as a corporation at the time of the acceptance of the provisions of this title, and may ordain and establish such acts, laws, regulations and ordinances, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state, as shall be needful for the government, interest, welfare and good order of said body politic, and, under the same name, shall be known in law, and be capable of contracting and being contracted with, suing and being sued, impleading and being impleaded, answering and being answered unto, in all courts and places, and in all matters whatever, may take, hold and purchase, lease, grant and convey such real and personal or mixed property or estate as the purposes of the corporation may require, within or without the limits thereof; and may make, have and use a corporate seal and change and renew the same at pleasure. [Id. sec. 2.]

1. Construction of charter.—Where the general provisions of a city charter are followed by particular provisions, the general powers are restricted thereby. Blankenship v. City of Sherman, 33 C. A. 507, 76 S. W. 805.

By an act incorporating a town and authorizing it to provide a jail for the county's use it was authorized to provide out of the public land belonging to it a site, and dedicate the ground to the county for that purpose. Vasser v. City of Liberty, 50 C. A. 111, 110 S. W. 119.

A grant of power to a municipal corporation by the legislature will be construed more strongly against the corporation. Mantel v. State, 55 Cr. R. 456, 117 S. W. 855, 131 Am. St. Rep. 818; Sue Lung v. Same (Cr. App.) 117 S. W. 857.

Legislative grants of municipal powers are to be strictly construed, but this rule does not apply to the mode adopted by the municipality to carry into effect powers expressly or plainly granted, where the mode is not limited or prescribed by the legislature. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

2. Power of legislature.—See, also, notes under articles in Chapter 4.

The legislature, in creating municipal corporations, may provide for the submission of proper subjects by the initiative method to the electors of the city. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas, 104 T. 114, 134 S. W. 321.

The legislature in granting corporate powers to the inhabitants of a community held authorized to limit the exercise of corporate functions. Reese v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 220.

Except as limited by the federal and state constitutions, the legislature held authorized to confer powers on municipal government. Bonner v. Belsterling, 104 T. 432, 138 S. W. 571. See City of Austin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 479.

3. Charged with notice of extent of powers.—A person dealing with a municipal corporation is bound to know the extent of its powers, and, where it fails to comply with an engagement made with him which it had no power to make, he cannot complain. City of Paris v. Sturgeon, 50 C. A. 519, 110 S. W. 459.

4. Powers—In general.—Municipal corporations have only such power as is granted by the legislature, unless otherwise provided in the constitution. City of Paris v. Sturgeon, 50 C. A. 519, 110 S. W. 459; Mantel v. State, 55 Cr. R. 456, 117 S. W. 855, 131 Am. St. Rep. 818; Sue Lung v. Same (Cr. App.) 117 S. W. 857; Ex parte Farnsworth, 61 Cr. R. 342, 135 S. W. 538.

What powers a municipal corporation possesses, stated. Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

5. —— Assumption of, effect.—The mere assumption and assertion by a city of a power not granted to it gains nothing by lapse of time. Conklin v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 879.

6. —— Police power.—See, also, notes under Chapter 4 of this title.

Police power of a city defined. Texarkana Gas & Electric Co. v. City of Texarkana (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 213.

The state legislature may delegate the exercise of the police power to city governments. Ex parte Brewer (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1068; Ex parte Pitchios (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1074.

7. —— Incidental.—Municipal corporations possess the powers expressly granted, those necessarily or fairly implied in or incident to powers expressly granted and those indispensable to declared objects and purposes of the corporation. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

8. —— Execute note.—A city has authority to execute a note for a legal obligation. City of Mineral Wells v. Darby (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 351.

9. —— Execute deed.—Charter provision held to authorize city to execute deed with covenant of general warranty. Abbott v. City of Galveston, 97 T. 474, 79 S. W. 1064.

10. Power to grant franchise to furnish lights.—A city has no power to grant an exclusive franchise to furnish light to its inhabitants. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 54, 104 S. W. 518.

11. Power of city to grant franchise, etc., in streets.—See notes under Arts. 854, 862, 863, and 865.

12. Power of city to purchase water and light plant.—See Art. 770 and notes.

13. Contracts—In general.—A contract by a city creating a debt, not made in compliance with Const. art. 11, § 5, is void. Noel v. City of San Antonio, 11 C. A. 580, 33 S. W. 263.

14. —— Validity.—A city held not bound by a contract, not entered into by it as required by its charter. London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Beaumont (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 894.

15. —— For lighting and water supply.—Contracts, resolution, and ordinance relating to the purchase of waterworks and the erection of additions thereto held one transaction, in determining time of creation of the debt therefor, and the provision for its payment. Winston v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 740.

A contract between a city and electric light company held not binding for want of mutuality, and hence the city was not liable under such contract for lights furnished, though it continued to use lights under a former contract. El Paso Gas, Electric Light & Power Co. v. City of El Paso, 22 C. A. 309, 54 S. W. 798.

Where electric light company, pursuant to a formal proposition to city council, furnished lights to city for a year and a half, and received payment monthly in accord with such proposal, a taxpayer in such city cannot maintain suit to avoid the contract on the ground that no contract was ever signed by mayor. Dallas Electric Co. v. City of Dallas, 23 C. A. 323, 58 S. W. 153.

16. —— To supply water construed.—A contract of a city to supply water held terminable at will. Sturgeon v. City of Paris (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 967.

17. —— Ratification.—The doctrine of ratification, as applied to the acts of municipal officers, stated. Gallup v. Liberty County, 57 C. A. 175, 122 S. W. 291.

18. City liable for services rendered for its benefit.—A city is bound to pay the reasonable value of services performed in its behalf and of which it has knowingly received the benefit. Penn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 636; City of San Antonio v. French, 80 T. 575, 16 S. W. 440, 26 Am. St. Rep. 763; Brand v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 340.

A city receiving the benefit of the services of an attorney cannot deny its liability therefor on the ground that he was employed without authority of the council. City of Denison v. Foster (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 1052.

19. Power to provide city with water and light.—See Arts. 865 and 867.

20. "Regulate."—The word "regulate," as applied to charter regulation of municipal affairs, is given diverse construction; some courts construing it in a restricted sense, while others give it a liberal construction. Withers v. Crenshaw (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1189.

21. Ultra vires contracts.—The use of a thing by a city that arose out of contract not made in the terms of the law imposes no implied liability upon the city, and does not in effect constitute a ratification of the alleged contract. City of Bryan v. Page, 51 T. 535, 32 Am. Rep. 637. See Nichols v. State, 11 C. A. 327, 32 S. W. 452.

When a contract with a municipal corporation has been carried out, the party who receives the benefits cannot urge the defense of ultra vires in an action to recover rents due on a lease by the corporation. City of Corpus Christi v. Central W. & W. Co., 8 C. A. 94, 27 S. W. 803.

22. —— Cannot be ratified.—A municipal corporation may ratify a contract (Noel v. City of San Antonio, 11 C. A. 580, 33 S. W. 263); but not when the contract was ultra vires (Ellis v. City of Cleburne [Civ. App.] 35 S. W. 495).

23. Provision for payment of debts.—A seller of fire hose to a city held entitled to recover the same in replevin, where the contract was unenforceable because the city failed to make provision for its payment, as required by Const. art. 11. Mineralized Rubber Co. v. City of Cleburne, 22 C. A. 621, 56 S. W. 220.

A contract by a city for the purchase of fire hose, without providing for the levy and collection of a sufficient tax to pay interest thereon and to create a sinking fund, held void. Id.

The fact that the current revenues of a city cannot be charged with the payment of a certain debt, and there is no provision of law authorizing the levy of a special tax to pay the same, does not render the debt void or prevent its reduction to judgment. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co. (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 359.

24. Liability for torts.—Exemplary damages. Ostrom v. City of San Antonio, 33 C. A. 683, 77 S. W. 829.

Maintaining dam.—City of Ennis v. Gilder, 32 C. A. 351, 74 S. W. 585.

Maintenance of dumping ground.—City of Coleman v. Price, 54 C. A. 39, 117 S. W. 905.

Digging ditch through plaintiff's land.—City of Dallas v. Beeman, 23 C. A. 315, 55 S. W. 762.

25. Towns and villages.—See Art. 1042.

26. General powers and duties of city council.—See Art. 813 et seq.

Art. 765. [573] [502] Property, officers, etc., not affected by this title.—All property, real, personal or mixed, belonging to any city accepting the provisions of this title, is hereby vested in the corporation created by this title, and the officers of said corporation, in office at the date of its acceptance, shall continue in the same, until superseded in conformity with the provisions of this title, from and after it takes effect. [Acts of 1875, p. 256.]

Pelican Island.—Joint resolution March 8, 1879, held to limit city of Galveston's control of Pelican Island to public uses. Weekes v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 102, 51 S. W. 544.

Taxes levied under former charter.—A city's right to taxes levied under a former charter is not impaired by a subsequent charter, repealing all former charters, without a saving clause as to rights accruing thereunder. Bennison v. City of Galveston, 34 C. A. 382, 78 S. W. 1089.

Art. 766. [572] [501] Rights, actions, etc., not affected by this title.—All rights, actions, fines, penalties and forfeitures in suits or otherwise, which have accrued under the laws heretofore in force, shall be vested in and prosecuted by the corporation hereby created; and no suit pending shall be affected by the passage and acceptance of this title, but the same shall be prosecuted or defended, as the case may be, by the corporation hereby created. [Id. sec. 153.]

Art. 767. [571] [500] Cemetery lots exempt from forced sale.—The cemetery lots which have, and may hereafter be laid out and sold for said city for private places of burial shall, with their appurtenances, be forever exempt from taxes, executions, attachments or forced sales. [Id. sec. 152.]

Art. 768. [570] [499] City exempt from giving bond in suits.—It shall not be necessary in any action, suit or proceeding in which the city, accepting the provisions of this title, shall be a party, for any bond, undertaking or security to be executed in behalf of the city; but all such actions, suits and proceedings shall be conducted in the same manner as if such bond, undertaking or security had been given, and, for all the purposes of such actions, suits and proceedings, the city shall be liable in the same manner, and to the same extent, as if the bond, undertaking or security in ordinary cases had been duly given and executed. [Id. sec. 151.]

Cited, City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 709.

Appeal bond.—A city is not required to give an appeal bond. City of Vernon v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 606.

Art. 769. Powers of city, etc., owning waterworks, sewers, gas and electric lights, to own land within or without limits.—Any town or city in this state, which may have been or may hereafter be chartered or organized under the general laws of Texas, or by special act or charter, and which city or town owns or operates waterworks, sewers, gas or electric lights shall have the power and right to own land for such purposes, within or without the limits of such town or city. [Acts 1909, p. 159.]

Extension of waterworks.—The question of the extension of a city waterworks system must be left to the discretion of the city authorities. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 54, 104 S. W. 518.

Art. 770. May purchase, construct and operate systems inside or outside limits, and regulate, etc.—Such town or city may purchase, construct and operate water, sewer and gas and electric light systems, inside or outside of such town or city limits, and regulate and control same, in a manner to protect the interests of such town or city. [Id. sec. 1.]

Power to purchase—Charters construed.—A city charter construed, and held not to authorize the council to purchase a water and light plant. City of Austin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 192.

The power cannot be implied from a charter provision authorizing the council to "erect, construct, build, operate, and maintain" such a plant, where the charter prescribed a certain plan of construction therefor. Id.

Such power held not to be implied from the fact that the commission authorized to control such system could not provide revenues to pay for the same. Id.

A charter amendment, authorizing the council to pledge part of the city's general revenue to the payment of a debt for water and light plant, held not to empower the council to make a purchase of such plant. Id.

Contract for construction of waterworks.—In an action against a contractor for breach of a contract to construct city waterworks, the city, under the evidence, held not damaged if the amount paid the contractor, plus the sum paid to complete the works, did not exceed the contract price. City of Sherman v. Connor (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 238.

Where the original contract for the construction of city waterworks was valid, and permitted changes, and changes were made, but the jury found for the contractor, including extras, in a sum less than the contract price, the fact that there was no provision for the levy of a tax to pay for the extras held immaterial. Id.

Dedication of sewer.—Evidence held insufficient to show a dedication of a sewer to a city. Diamond v. Smith, 27 C. A. 558, 66 S. W. 141.

A sewer constructed by a private person is not dedicated to public use by reason of its being placed in a public street. Oak Cliff Sewerage Co. v. Marsalis, 30 C. A. 42, 69 S. W. 176.

Sale of electricity to private persons.—Where a city owning and operating an electric light plant to light its streets sold electricity to private citizens for lighting, the courts would not interfere unless the sale to private persons resulted in a material impairment of the lighting of the streets. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 54, 104 S. W. 518.

One seeking to restrain a city owning and operating an electric light plant from selling electricity to private citizens for lighting held required to prove certain facts. Id.

Art. 771. May sell water, etc., to persons outside, permit connections, etc.—Such town or city shall have the power and right to sell water, gas, electric light or power and sewer privileges to any person or corporation outside of the limits of said town or city, and to permit them to connect therewith under contract with such town or city, under such terms and conditions as may appear to be for the best interests of such town or city. [Id. sec. 1.]

Power did not exist prior to enactment of this article.—See notes under Art. 865.

Art. 772. May prescribe kind of mains and appliances, etc., inspect, etc., make regulations and prescribe penalties.—Such town or city owning or operating such water or gas mains or sewer pipes and electric appliances shall have the right to prescribe the kind of water or gas mains or sewer pipes and electric appliances, within or beyond the limits of such town or city, and to inspect the same and require them to be kept in good order and condition at all times, and to make such rules and regulations, and prescribe penalties, concerning same, as shall be necessary and proper. [Id. sec. 2.]

For other powers of, and restrictions upon, city councils, in reference to waterworks, see Art. 865; and for power of condemnation for waterworks purposes, public or private, see Arts. 1003 and 1004.

Electrical appliances.—A city held authorized under its police power to regulate and supervise the installation of electrical apparatus inside or outside of buildings. Ex parte Cramer, 62 Cr. R. 11, 136 S. W. 61, 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 78, Ann. Cas. 1913C, 588.

Art. 772a. May mortgage and encumber light or water systems, etc.—All cities and towns operating under Title 18 of the Revised Civil Statutes of the state of Texas [Title 22] shall have power to mortgage and encumber any light systems or water systems, and the incomes thereof, and everything pertaining thereto, acquired or to be acquired, to secure the payment of funds to purchase same, or to purchase additional water powers, riparian rights, or to build, improve, enlarge, extend or repair such systems or either of them, and as additional security therefor, by the terms of such encumbrance, may grant to the purchaser or purchasers under any sale or foreclosure thereunder a franchise to operate the systems and properties so purchased, for a term not over twenty years after such purchase, subject to all laws regulating same then in force. [Acts 1911, p. 230, sec. 1.]

Art. 772b. Expense of operation and maintenance of encumbered system to be first lien against income; rates to be equal, uniform and sufficient; free service, etc.—Whenever the income of any lighting systems or water systems shall be encumbered under this Act, the expense of operation and maintenance, including all salaries, labor, materials, interest, repairs and extensions, necessary to render efficient service, and every proper item of expense shall always be a first lien and charge against such incomes. The rates charged for services furnished by any of the said systems shall be equal and uniform, and no free service shall be allowed except for city public schools, or buildings and institutions operated by such city or town, and there shall be charged and collected for such services a sufficient rate to pay for all operating, maintenance, depreciation, replacement, betterment and interest charges, and for interest and sinking fund sufficient to pay any bonds issued to purchase, construct or improve any such systems or of any outstanding indebtedness against same. No part of the income of any such system shall ever be used to pay any other debt, expense or obligation of such city or town, until the indebtedness so secured shall have been finally paid. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 772c. Contracts, bonds and notes; obligation charge, and not debt.—Every contract, bond or note issued or executed under this Act shall contain this clause: "The holder hereof shall never have the right to demand payment of this obligation out of any funds raised or to be raised by taxation." No such obligation shall ever be a debt of such city or town, but solely a charge upon the properties so encumbered, and shall never be reckoned in determining the power of such city or town to issue bonds for any purpose authorized by law. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 772d. Management and control of encumbered system to be in council or trustees, etc.—The management and control of any such system or systems during the time same are encumbered, may by the terms of such encumbrance be placed in the hands of the city council of such city or town; but if deemed advisable may be placed in the hands of a board of trustees to be named in such encumbrance, consisting of not more than five members, one of whom shall always be the mayor of such city or town; and the compensation of such trustees shall be fixed by such contract, but shall never exceed five per cent of the gross receipts of any such systems in any one year. The terms of office of such board of trustees, their powers and duties, the manner of exercising same, the election of their successors, and all matters pertaining to their organization and duties may be specified in such contract of encumbrance; but in all matters where such contract is silent, the laws and rules governing the council of such city or town shall govern said board of trustees so far as applicable. Said city council or board of trustees having such management and control shall have power to make rules and regulations governing the furnishing of service to patrons and for the payment for same, and providing for discontinuance of such service to those failing to pay therefor when due until payment is made; and such city council shall have power to provide penalties for the violation of such rules and regulations and for the use of such service without the consent or knowledge of the authorities in charge thereof, and to provide penalties for all interference, trespassing or injury to any such systems, appliances or premises on which same may be located. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 772e. Trustee to make sale on default; collection fees; foreclosure proceedings.—Any contract of encumbrance under this Act may name, or provide for the selection of a trustee to make sale upon default in the payment of the principal or interest according to the terms of such contract, and for the selection of his successor if disqualified or failing to act, and may provide for collection fees not exceeding five per cent of the principal; but no collection fees shall accrue, and no foreclosure proceedings shall be begun in any court or through any trustee, and no option to mature any part of such obligation because of default in payment of any installment of principal or interest shall be exercised until ninety days written notice shall be given to each member of the city council of such city or town and to each member of such board of trustees, if any, that payment has been demanded and default made, which notice shall date from the sending of a letter to each person to be notified, by registered mail, postage and registration fees prepaid, and addressed to them at the postoffice in such city or town; and if the installments of principal and interest then due shall be paid before the expiration of said ninety days, together with the interest prescribed in such contract, not exceeding ten per cent per annum, from the date of default until the date of payment, it shall have like effect as if paid on the date same was originally due. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 772f. May encumber light and water systems singly or together, in whole or in part, with or without franchise; sale, how authorized; limit of encumbrance, etc.—In the encumbrance of any properties under this Act, such city or town may encumber any such light systems and water systems, singly or together, and may or may not include in such encumbrance the franchise provided for, and may omit or include in said encumbrance the whole or any part of the properties mentioned in section 1 of this Act [772a], but no such system shall ever be sold until such sale is authorized by a majority vote of the qualified voters of such city or town; nor shall same be encumbered for more than five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), except for purchase money or to refund any existing indebtedness, until authorized in like manner; such vote in either case to be ascertained at an election, of which notice shall have been given in like manner as in cases of the issuance of municipal bonds by such cities and towns. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 773. [384] [343] Limits of corporation to remain the same until extended, etc.—The bounds and limits of said municipality shall be and remain the same as fixed and defined by the provisions of the act of incorporation, substituted by the provisions of this title; provided, that said limits of said corporation may be hereafter extended by adding additional territory to the same, whenever the majority of the qualified electors of said territory shall indicate a desire to be included within the limits of said corporation, in the manner provided in article 781 of this title. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 2.]

Extension of limits, how.—The extension of corporate limits must be made in conformity with the statute. Buford v. State, 72 T. 182, 10 S. W. 401.

Art. 774. [385] Cities, towns and villages may incorporate under.—Any city or town containing one thousand inhabitants or over may be incorporated as such, with all the powers, rights, immunities and privileges mentioned and described in the provisions of this title relating to cities and towns, in the manner prescribed in chapter fourteen of this title for incorporating towns and villages, except that the application to become incorporated shall be signed by at least fifty electors, residents of such city or town, and except that when an election is held according to the provisions of such chapter the words "towns and villages" shall be construed to read, and read, "cities and towns." When the entry by the county judge, provided in article 1041 in said chapter fourteen, is made with reference to a city or town of one thousand inhabitants and over, such city or town shall be invested with all the rights and privileges of such cities conferred by this title. [Acts of 1881, p. 63. Acts of 1881, p. 115.]

See validating act of 1895, p. 45, remaining in force by virtue of section 20 of the Final Title.

Attempt to incorporate void, when.—An attempt to incorporate a city under the general law while the special act incorporating it is in force is void. State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 912.

Towns and villages.—See Art. 1033 et seq.

Art. 775. [386] [340c] Validating incorporations.—That all towns and cities of one thousand inhabitants or more which have heretofore attempted to accept the provisions of this title and to become incorporated cities of one thousand inhabitants or more, under the general laws of Texas, and have failed to comply with all the requirements of said general law, or which are not included within the literal meaning of those cities which are authorized to accept the provisions of said general law, and all towns and villages incorporated under chapter eleven of title eighteen of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, or by special charter, or otherwise, but which now have one thousand inhabitants or more, and which have heretofore attempted to accept the provisions of this title in lieu of their said town or village charter and become incorporated cities of one thousand inhabitants or more, but which said cities have from and after the dates of their several attempted incorporations and their several efforts to accept the provisions of this title exercised the functions of cities of the class named, and were by the state of Texas recognized as such cities are hereby declared to be cities of one thousand inhabitants or more; and the several acts whereby they attempted to accept the provisions of said law are hereby, in all things, validated; and that all subsequent acts of said cities and towns done and performed as a city of one thousand inhabitants or more, after they had attempted to accept the provisions of said law as aforesaid are hereby validated and declared to be as binding as if said cities had been duly and legally incorporated; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed as validating any act of said cities, or the councils thereof, unless same were authorized by the general laws of the state under which they were attempting to act at the several dates when said acts were done; and provided, further, that the provisions of this article shall not validate the act of any town or city in unlawfully adding additional territory to such town or city, without the consent of such inhabitants so added to said town or city. [Acts of 1891, p. 26.]

The following act of 1895 appears to have been omitted from the Revisions of 1895 and 1911. It would seem to remain in force by virtue of section 7 of the Final Title: "All cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over which have heretofore attempted to accept the provisions of chapter 1, title 17, of the Revised Civil Statutes [Chapter 1, Title 22, of Rev. St. 1911] and which have attempted to be incorporated under the provisions of said general law, but which said attempted incorporation is invalid by reason of the failure of said cities or towns to comply with all the requirements of law relating to the incorporation of towns or villages, but which said cities or towns have from and after the dates of their several efforts to accept the provisions of law relating to the incorporation of cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over, exercised the functions of cities or towns of the class named, and been recognized as such cities or towns, be and are hereby declared to be cities of one thousand inhabitants or over, and their incorporation as such is hereby in all things validated: Provided, that nothing in this act shall be held to validate the incorporation of cities or towns that had less than one thousand inhabitants at the time of their attempted incorporation as such cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over. [Acts 1895, p. 45.]"

Constitutionality.—The legislature has authority to authorize chartered towns to accept the provisions of law relating to cities and thereby become chartered cities, and where a town has made the attempt to accept the provision, and thereby become a city, the legislature can validate the attempt. McMickle v. Hardin, 25 C. A. 222, 61 S. W. 324. See, also, State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 917.

A statute validating defects made in an honest effort to incorporate a city under the general law is not in conflict with the constitution, forbidding the legislature from passing any special law incorporating cities. State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 912.

Art. 776. Validating incorporations.—All cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over incorporated since March 30, 1895, which have heretofore attempted to accept the provisions of chapter one, title eighteen, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, and which have attempted to be incorporated under the provisions of said general law, but which said attempted incorporation is invalid by reason of the failure of said cities or towns to comply with all the requirements of the law relating to the incorporation of towns or villages, but which said cities or towns have from and after the dates of their several efforts to accept the provisions of law relating to the incorporation of cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over exercised the functions of cities or towns of the class named and been recognized as such cities or towns are hereby declared to be cities of one thousand inhabitants or over; and their incorporation as such is hereby in all things validated; provided, that nothing in this act shall be held to validate the incorporation of cities or towns that had less than one thousand inhabitants at the time of their attempted incorporation as such cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over. [Acts 1897, p. 59.]

Art. 777. [386a] Territorial boundaries of cities and towns, etc.—No city or town in this state shall be hereafter incorporated under the provisions of the general charter for cities and towns contained in Title twenty-two of the Revised Civil Statutes of this state, with a superficial area of more than two square miles, when such town or city has less than two thousand inhabitants, nor more than four square miles, when such city or town has more than two thousand and less than five thousand inhabitants, nor more than nine square miles, when such city or town has more than five and less than ten thousand inhabitants. It shall be the duty of the mayor and board of aldermen, immediately after they qualify as such officers, to pass an ordinance causing an actual survey of the boundaries of such town to be made according to the boundaries designated in the petition for incorporation, and the field-notes thereof recorded in the minute book of such town or city, and also in the record books of deeds in the county in which such town or city is situated. [Acts of 1895, p. 17.]

Territory included—Question of fact.—Whether more territory had been included than was intended to be used for strictly town purposes is a question of fact for a jury to decide, and not a question of law for the court. Merritt v. State (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 373.

—— Effect of including too much.—The charter of a city having been granted by special act, the fact that it includes in its limits large quantities of agricultural lands does not render it void. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780.

Where 75 per cent. of the land included in the petition for the incorporation of a town was agricultural land, the incorporation was invalid. Judd v. State, 25 C. A. 418, 62 S. W. 543.

It is the duty of the promoters for the incorporation of a city to fix its limits, so as not to include an unreasonable amount of pasture, agricultural, and wood land therein. State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 912.

The incorporation of a town with four square miles of territory and less than 2,000 inhabitants is illegal. Spurlin v. State, 51 C. A. 266, 115 S. W. 130.

—— Legislature can validate.—If a town is incorporated containing more territory than is authorized by this article, the legislature can validate the incorporation by a special act if it should see fit to do so. State v. Larkin (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 917.

Location to be determined how.—The location of an unincorporated town is not to be determined by the platted area, but by its collection of inhabited houses, which together with the area appurtenant to the same constitutes the town within the ordinary signification of the term. Ralls v. Parrish (Sup.) 147 S. W. 564.

Boundaries collaterally attackable.—Municipal boundaries can be inquired into in a local option election contest only to ascertain whether a voter resided within its limits. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

De facto incorporation.—A town held not incorporated de facto within certain boundaries. Foster v. Hare, 26 C. A. 177, 62 S. W. 541.

An election to determine whether a city shall be incorporated, the result of the election, the organization and election of officers of the corporation and the assumption of such officers to act for it creates a corporation de facto. Even if a municipality has been illegally constituted the State alone can take advantage of the fact in a proper proceeding instituted for the purpose of testing the validity of its charter. City of Carthage v. Burton (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 441.

Where a city is incorporated subsequent to adoption of this act, it is a city in fact, which might have been legally incorporated and is at least a de facto corporation and the property of its citizens is liable for the debts incurred by it. Id.

A town may be recognized and treated as such, though no map showing its subdivisions has been recorded. Ayres v. Patton, 51 C. A. 186, 111 S. W. 1079.

Art. 778. [386b] Excessive territory to be relinquished.—It shall be the duty of the mayor and the board of aldermen of any town or city in this state heretofore incorporated under Title eighteen of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895 of this state, and whose boundaries have been established so as to include more territory than is specified in article 777, to immediately cause a resurvey of the boundaries of such city or town to be made, so as not to include more territory than is provided for in article 777; such resurvey to be made and the field-notes thereof to be recorded as provided in article 777. [Id.]

Art. 779. [386c] Validating certain incorporations.—All cities and towns in this state whose charters may be void by reason of a failure to properly define their limits, or that may have included in such limits more territory than was provided for in article 386a, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, 1895, that shall have, within ninety days from the taking effect of an act of the twenty-eighth legislature, general laws of 1903, regular session, chapter 49, page 68, complied with article 386b, Revised Civil Statutes, 1895, are hereby declared to be valid; and such charters and incorporations are hereby in all things validated, the same as if such territorial limits had at first been properly established. [Acts 1903, p. 68.]

Historical.—See, also, Art. 775.

The amendment of 1897 of this article had become article 386c [779] when the amendment of 1901 was passed, and the reference made by that act to article 386c [779] had reference to the article as amended in 1897, and was sufficient. Larkin v. State (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 917.

Acts 27th Leg. 1st Called Sess. c. 19, amending Rev. St. 1895, art. 386c [779], validating the organization of municipalities invalid through having incorporated adjacent pastoral, agricultural, or other lands where such municipalities did not include more territory than provided by art. 777, validated the unauthorized annexation of territory to a town; it not appearing that the territory added was pastoral or agricultural nor that the town with such territory included more than that provided for in Art. 777. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

Art. 780. [386d] Discontinuing territory.—Whenever there exists within the corporate limits of any city or town organized under the general laws within this state territory to the extent of at least ten acres, contiguous, uninhabited, and adjoining the lines of any such city or town, the mayor and city or town council may by ordinance duly passed discontinue said territory as a part of said city or town; and when said ordinance has been duly passed, the mayor shall enter an order to that effect on the minutes or records of the city or town council; and, from and after the entry of such order, said territory shall cease to be a part of said city or town. [Act of 1895, p. 178.]

Cited, First Nat. Bank v. Litchfield (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 350.

Art. 781. [574] [503] Adjoining inhabitants may become part of city, how.—Whenever a majority of the inhabitants qualified to vote for members of the state legislature of any territory adjoining the limits of any city incorporated under, or accepting the provisions of, this title, to the extent of one-half mile in width, shall vote in favor of becoming a part of said city, any three of them may make affidavit to the fact, to be filed before the mayor, who shall certify the same to the city council of said city. The said city council may, by ordinance, receive them as part of said city; from thenceforth the territory so received shall be a part of said city; and the inhabitants thereof shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges of other citizens, and bound by the acts and ordinances made in conformity thereto, and passed in pursuance of this title. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 155.]

Election not required.—This article does not provide in terms that the will of the inhabitants shall be ascertained by an election held as in other cases. The voters interested may express their preference on the subject by any method of voting satisfactory to themselves and to the city council; and when it is shown by a proper affidavit that a majority favored annexation, the city council is authorized to receive the territory of their residences into the city limits. If there was an irregularity in the action of the council extending the city limits, the state alone can take advantage of the fact in a proper proceeding instituted for that purpose. Graham v. City of Greenville, 67 T. 62, 2 S. W. 742.

Annexation of territory.—As to extension of territory, see City of East Dallas v. State, 73 T. 371, 11 S. W. 1030; State v. Eidson, 76 T. 302, 13 S. W. 263, 7 L. R. A. 733; McCrary v. City of Comanche (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 679.

The organization of a municipal corporation with particular limits does not preclude enlargement of its boundaries by subsequent constitutional legislation. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

Under this article and Laws 1905, p. 302, § 148, which provides that any city which has taken charge of public schools within its limits may, by ordinance, extend its corporate lines for school purposes only on a petition signed by a majority of the qualified voters of the territory to be annexed, provided that the change shall not deprive the scholastic children of the remaining part of the common school district of the opportunity to attend school, any extension of a city's limits for school purposes, though it embraces land more than one-half mile in width, is authorized, if it complies with the condition preserving the right of attendance at school. City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 709.

Art. 782. [575] [503a] Segregating territory from city.—Whenever fifty qualified voters of any territory within the limits of any incorporated town shall sign and present a petition to the mayor of such city, praying that such territory, setting the same out by metes and bounds, be declared no longer a part of such town, it shall be the duty of the mayor thereof to order an election within thirty days thereafter, to be holden at the different voting precincts of said town; and if a majority of the legal voters of said town voting at such election cast their votes in favor of discontinuing said territory as a part of said town, the mayor of said city shall declare such territory no longer a part of said city, and shall enter an order to that effect on the minutes or records of the city council; and from and after the date of such order, said territory shall cease to be a part of said town; provided, no city or town shall thus be reduced to a less area than one square mile or one mile in diameter around the center of the original corporate limits. [Acts of 1883, p. 99.]

Controversy as to facts.—Where application is made to the mayor to order an election to restrict the limits of the city, if there be controversy as to the existence of the necessary facts, he cannot be compelled to act. State v. Eidson, 76 T. 302, 13 S. W. 263, 7 L. R. A. 733; Ewing v. State, 81 T. 172, 16 S. W. 872; Mathews v. State, 82 T. 577, 18 S. W. 711.

Art. 783. [576] [503b] Liable for debts, etc.—Whenever any territory shall withdraw as above provided, and such city or town shall at the time of such withdrawal owe any debts by bond or otherwise, such withdrawing territory shall not be released from the payment of its pro rata of such indebtedness; but it shall be the duty of said city council to continue to levy an ad valorem tax each year on the property of said territory of the same rate as is levied upon other property of such city, until the taxes collected from said territory shall equal its pro rata share of the indebtedness of said city or town at the time of the withdrawal. The taxes so collected shall be charged only with the cost of levying and collecting the same, and the same shall be applied exclusively to the payment of said pro rata share of indebtedness. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the inhabitants of said territory from paying in full, at any time, their pro rata share of the indebtedness of said city. [Id.]

Art. 783a. Cities on navigable streams and under special charters may extend limits; may acquire land for improvement of navigation, etc.—That from and after the passage of this Act the right, power and authority is hereby given to the city council of all cities situated along or upon navigable streams in the state of Texas, and acting under special charters, to extend the limits of said city for the limited purposes named in this Act, so as to include in said city the said navigable streams and the land lying on both sides thereof for a distance of twenty-five hundred (2500) feet from the thread of said stream to a distance of twenty (20) miles or less in an air line from the ordinary boundaries of said city, either above or below the boundaries of said city or both, by the passage of an ordinance extending the boundaries of said city to include the territory aforesaid, being a strip five thousand feet wide and twenty miles, more or less, in length, or so much thereof as the city council may consider advisable to add to the limits of said city; and from and after the passage of said ordinance the city council of said city shall have the right, power and authority to secure land within the territory so added to said city by purchase condemnation or gift for the improvement of the navigation of said navigable stream or waters, either by the United States or by said city, or by any navigation or other improvement district, and for the purpose of establishing and maintaining wharves, docks, railway terminals, side tracks warehouses or any other facilities or aids whatsoever to either navigation or wharves; and for these purposes the corporate limits of said cities shall, upon passage of said ordinance, be extended from the existing limits so as to include all the land added to said city by said ordinance, provided that said city shall have no right to tax the property over which such boundaries are so extended, unless such property be within the line and within the limits of the general city boundaries or limits; and provided further, that after the passage of said ordinance adding said territory to said city, said city shall have and exercise within said limits the fullest and most complete power of regulation of navigation and of wharfage and of wharfage rates and of all facilities, conveniences and aids to wharfage or navigation consistent with the constitution of this state, and shall further have authority by criminal ordinances or otherwise, to police the navigation of said waters and the use of said wharves and facilities and aids to wharfage and navigation, provided in all condemnation proceedings under this Act the same procedure shall apply that now applies in condemnation of land by cities for the purchases of streets. [Acts 1913, p. 47, sec. 1.]

Art. 783b. Not to include land of other cities or town corporations.—The power here granted shall not authorize the extension of the territory of any city for the limited purposes named so as to include any land which is already part of any other city or town corporation, whether incorporated under the general laws or under special law, or any land at the time belonging to any other city or town. [Id. sec. 2.]

OFFICERS AND THEIR ELECTION

Art.
784. Municipal government to consist of certain officers to be elected, etc.
785. Manner of electing officers, etc.
786. Election and term of office of mayor and aldermen.
787. Time of holding election, and returns thereof.
788. Who are qualified voters for city officers.
789. Managers of election shall be sworn; their powers and duties.
790. Proceedings when vote challenged in cities and towns of 10,000 inhabitants and over.
791. Proceedings in case of a tie vote.
792. Who are eligible to the offices of mayor and alderman.
793. Member of city council ineligible to other office, and shall not be contractor, surety, etc.
794. None but resident voters eligible to office.
795. Resignation of officers.
796. Power of city council to remove officers.
797. Vacancy, how filled.
798. Election to fill vacancy ordered by commissioners' court, when.
799. Election, etc., in such case, how conducted.
800. Outgoing officer shall deliver books, etc., to his successor.
801. City council composed of mayor and aldermen, etc.
802. Wards of city to remain unchanged until, etc.

Article 784. [387] [344] Municipal government consists of what.—The municipal government of the city shall consist of a city council composed of the mayor and two aldermen from each ward, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, except at called meetings or meetings for the imposition of taxes, when two-thirds of a full board shall be required, unless herein otherwise specified; provided, that where the city or town shall not be divided into wards, the city council shall be composed of the mayor and five aldermen, and the provisions of this title relating to proceedings in a ward shall apply to the whole city or town. The other officers of the corporation shall be a treasurer, an assessor and collector, a secretary, a city attorney, a marshal and city engineer, and such other officers and agents as the city council may from time to time direct; provided, that the office of treasurer, assessor and collector, city attorney, and city engineer may be dispensed with by an ordinance of the city or town council; and the powers and duties herein prescribed for such officers may be conferred by said council upon other officers. The above named officers shall be elected by the qualified electors of said city, as hereinafter provided for, and shall hold their offices for two years, and until the election and qualification of their successors. [Acts of 1881, p. 115.]

Not dissolved by failure to elect.—A municipal corporation is not dissolved by a failure to elect officers. State v. Dunson, 71 T. 65, 9 S. W. 103; Buford v. State, 72 T. 182, 10 S. W. 401.

Restraining acts of officers.—See Title 69.

Art. 785. [388] [345] Manner of electing officers, etc.—An election shall be held in each of the wards of said city, on the first Tuesday in April, next after the acceptance of the provisions of this title, and annually thereafter, at such place or places as the city council may direct, and of which thirty days' previous notice shall be given. Such election shall be ordered and notice thereof shall be given, and election officers and supervisors appointed, as provided by article 2934. The presiding officers and judges must be qualified voters in the city. The city council shall provide for their compensation, and, by ordinance, regulate and define their powers and duties. [Id. Acts 1905, S. S., p. 533, sec. 56.]

De facto officers.—See, also, Arts. 911, 1074, 3687.

As to de facto officers, see State v. Hoff (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 672.

City attorney.—The validity of a new city charter held immaterial to defendant's right to the office of city attorney, where the proceedings under which defendant was elected were valid whether they were held under the old or new charter. Orrick v. City of Ft. Worth, 52 C. A. 308, 114 S. W. 677.

Contesting elections.—See Art. 3046 et seq.

Art. 786. [389] [346] Election, etc., of mayor and aldermen.—At the first election under this title, there shall be elected by the qualified voters of said city, voting by ballot, a mayor, who shall hold his office for two years from the date of his election, and until his successor shall be elected and qualified; and at the first election held under this title there shall be elected by the qualified voters of said city two aldermen from each ward in said city, one of whom shall hold his office for one year, and the other for two years, from the date of their election; and the term for which each shall hold office shall be determined at the first regular meeting after said election by lot; provided, that there shall be one alderman for the long term and one for the short term from each of said wards respectively; and provided, further, that at each annual election thereafter there shall be elected one alderman from each ward, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor is duly elected and qualified; and provided, further, that where the city or town shall not be divided into wards, the city council may determine by proper ordinance what number of aldermen shall go out of office in one year, and the mode and manner of deciding which members shall hold for the long term and which for the short term. [Acts of 1895, p. 8.]

Art. 787. [390] [347] Time of holding election, and returns thereof.—At all elections under this title, the ballots of each ward shall be taken separately, the polls being opened in each ward for one day only, from eight o'clock a. m. until six o'clock p. m., with the privilege of a recess of one hour from twelve o'clock to one o'clock. Should the polls not be promptly opened for the reception of votes by eight o'clock a. m., the time thus lost shall be extended beyond the hour of six p. m., so as to secure the full period of nine hours for voting purposes. On closing the polls, the managers of election shall immediately proceed to count and cast up the votes for each candidate and certify and sign the returns in duplicate, one of which shall be sealed up and returned by the presiding officer for future use as a reference in case of a contested election; the other copy shall be sealed up with the name of the presiding officer written across the seals, and by the presiding officer, or in his absence or inability, by one of the judges or clerks, delivered in open session to the city council the next day or as soon thereafter as practicable. The officer so delivering the same shall make oath before the mayor or one of the aldermen that the returns by him delivered have not been altered or opened since being signed and sealed, as aforesaid. As received, the city council shall immediately open the returns from each ward, casting up the votes of the wards for mayor, city attorney, tax assessor and collector, treasurer, city marshal, city engineer and secretary, and for aldermen of the several wards as hereinbefore provided for; and the persons receiving the highest number of votes for the offices of mayor, city attorney, tax assessor and collector, treasurer, city marshal, city engineer, secretary, and aldermen shall be declared elected to their respective offices; provided, that at the first election held under this statute the two persons from the same ward receiving the highest number of votes in the city for aldermen of the wards for which they are candidates shall be declared elected aldermen of such wards respectively in which they were candidates; and at all subsequent elections held thereunder, only one alderman shall be elected from each ward by the qualified voters of such town or city. The newly elected officers may enter upon their duties on the fifth day thereafter, Sundays excepted; provided, that any officer may qualify at any time within thirty days after his election; otherwise the office shall be deemed vacant, and a new election held to fill the same. It shall be the duty of the secretary to notify all persons elected or appointed to office of their election or appointment; and the city council-elect shall meet at the usual place of meeting on the fifth day, Sundays excepted, after their election, or as soon thereafter as possible, and be installed under the provisions of this title. [Id.]

Art. 788. [391] [348] Who are qualified voters for city officers. —Every person not disqualified by law who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years and is entitled to vote for members of the legislature of this state, and is duly registered, and shall have resided within the corporate limits of said city for six months next preceding the election, shall be entitled to vote for the officers of said city; provided, nevertheless, that no person belonging to the regular army of the United States shall be so entitled. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 7.]

Art. 789. [392] [349] Managers of election shall be sworn; their powers and duties.—The managers of election shall be sworn well and truly to conduct the election, without partiality or prejudice, and agreeably to law, and according to the best of their skill and understanding; which oath shall be administered by the mayor or any justice of the peace. The presiding officer and judges thus qualified shall have power to administer oaths necessary to the performance of their official duties. When any person offering a vote shall be objected to by any one qualified to vote at such election, the managers shall examine him on oath touching the points objected to; and, if he fail in establishing his qualification to their satisfaction, his vote shall be rejected. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 790. [393] [394a] Proceedings where vote challenged.—In any election, state, county or municipal, being held in any city or town of ten thousand inhabitants or more according to the last preceding United States census, when the right to vote of any elector offering to vote is challenged, the following proceedings shall be had: The judges of election shall refuse to accept such vote of such elector, unless, in addition to his own oath, he proves by the oath of one well known resident of the ward that he is a qualified voter at such election and in such ward. When such vote is accepted, the judges shall cause the clerk of election to make a minute of the name of the elector and the party testifying under oath as to his qualifications; and such memoranda shall be kept by the clerk of the county court for six months after such election is held, subject to the order of the district judge. Whenever the right of an elector to vote is challenged, the word "challenged" shall be entered on the ballot, if accepted by the judges. Any elector voting at any election who does not possess the legal qualifications shall be punished as now provided by law for illegal voting; and any person swearing falsely as to his own qualifications or those of a challenged elector shall be punished as now provided by law for false swearing. [Acts of 1891, p. 47.]

Art. 791. [394] [350] Proceedings in case of a tie vote, etc.— Whenever it so happens in any election that there is a tie between two or more candidates for the same office all of whom cannot be elected, the city council shall declare such election void as between such candidates only, and immediately order a new election for the office, first giving not less than five days' notice thereof. In the event of a failure to meet on the part of the city council to examine the election returns and declare the result, the mayor shall discharge that duty. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 9.]

Art. 792. [395] [351] Who are eligible to the office of mayor and alderman.—No person shall be eligible to the office of mayor unless he possesses the qualifications of an elector, and shall have resided twelve months next preceding the election within the limits of the city; and no person shall be eligible to the office of alderman unless, in addition to the above qualifications, he be a resident of the ward from which he may be elected at the time of the election; provided, that if any alderman shall remove from the ward in which he was elected, his office shall be deemed vacant, and a new election ordered to fill the same. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 793. [566] [495] Member of city council ineligible to other office, and shall not be contractor, surety, etc.—No member of the city council shall hold any other employment or office under the city government while he is a member of said council, unless herein otherwise provided; and no member of the city council, or any officer of the corporation, shall be directly or indirectly interested in any work, business or contract, the expense, price or consideration of which is paid from the city treasury, or by an assessment levied by an ordinance or resolution of the city council, nor be the surety of any person having a contract, work or business with said city, for the performance of which security may be required, nor be the surety on the official bond of any officer of the city. [Acts 1875, p. 256.]

Art. 794. [562] [491] None but resident voters eligible to office.—No person other than an elector resident of the city shall be appointed to any office by the city council. [Id. sec. 143.]

Art. 795. [563] [492] Resignation of officers.—Resignation by any officer authorized to be elected or appointed by this title shall be made to the city council in writing, subject to their approval and acceptance; provided, that nothing in this article shall apply to appointments by the mayor. Any such appointee wishing to resign shall present his resignation to that officer, in writing, for his action. [Id. sec. 144.]

Not released until successor appointed.—The officer whose resignation has been tendered to the proper authority and accepted continues in office, and is not released from his duties and responsibilities until his successor is appointed or chosen and qualified. Jones v. City of Jefferson, 66 T. 576, 1 S. W. 903.

Art. 796. [564] [493] Power of city council to remove officers.—The city council shall have power to remove any officer for incompetency, corruption, misconduct or malfeasance in office, after due notice and an opportunity to be heard in his defense. In addition to the foregoing power of removal, the city council shall have power at any time to remove any officer of the corporation elected by them, by resolution declaratory of its want of confidence in said officer; provided, that two-thirds of the aldermen elected vote in favor of said resolution. [Id. sec. 145.]

Removal—Grounds.—An officer cannot be removed for disregarding the provisions of an unconstitutional ordinance. Milliken v. City Council, 54 T. 388, 38 Am. Rep. 629.

The commission of a criminal assault upon another by an officer is not within this article. Johnson v. City Council of Galveston, 11 C. A. 469, 33 S. W. 150.

The provision of a city charter held to have authorized the removal of an officer by council, irrespective of whether he had been elected by the people or by the council. Riggins v. Richards, 97 T. 229, 77 S. W. 946.

—— Police.—See Notes under Art. 808.

"Recall."—A recall is a method of removal of officers within Dallas city charter. Bonner v. Belsterling, 104 T. 432, 138 S. W. 571.

—— Provision for, held valid.—A recall provision in a city charter held not unconstitutional. Bonner v. Belsterling, 104 T. 432, 138 S. W. 571, affirming (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1154.

Removal of mayor and aldermen.—See Art. 6065 et seq.

Art. 797. [396] [352] Vacancy, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of mayor or alderman, by refusal to accept or failure to qualify, or by death, resignation or otherwise, the city council shall order a new election to fill such vacancy; and all special elections shall be conducted as is herein provided for in the annual election; provided, that in all special elections to fill vacancies ten days' notice shall be deemed sufficient. In case of a vacancy in any other office in the city than mayor or alderman, by refusal to accept or failure to qualify, or by death, resignation or otherwise, the mayor or acting mayor, shall fill such vacancy by appointment to be confirmed by the city council. [Acts of 1887, p. 41.]

Art. 798. [397] [353] Election to fill vacancy ordered by commissioners' court, when.—Whenever a vacancy occurs, by resignation or otherwise, in the municipal offices of any incorporated town or city in this state, so that the vacancy can not be filled under the charter of said town or city, or under the laws of this state now in force, then, and in that event, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of said county in which said town or city is situated, upon a petition of not less than twenty-six taxpaying voters living in said city, to order an election to be held to fill such vacancy, giving notice of not less than ten days in the usual manner provided for such elections; provided, where such town or city has been chartered by special act of the legislature, and such town or city contains more than two hundred and less than five thousand inhabitants, and the offices of such town or city have been vacant for a period of ten years or more, such charter of said town or city shall become void and forfeited, and no election of officers in such town or city shall be had; but the inhabitants of such town or city may reincorporate under the general laws of this state, relating to towns and cities, in the manner as now, or may hereafter be, prescribed by the laws of this state. [Acts 1897, p. 159. Acts 1875, p. 256.]

Constitutionality.—The act of 1897 (Gen. Laws 1897, p. 159, § 114), amending this article, embraces but one subject, which is the same as that of the article sought to be amended and is constitutional. State v. Larkin (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 914.

The act of 1897 amending this article does not violate Const. art. 3, § 35, providing that no bill shall contain more than one subject which shall be expressed in its title. Cofield v. Britton, 50 C. A. 208, 109 S. W. 497.

Art. 799. [398] [354] Election, etc., in such case, how conducted, etc.—Said election shall, in all things, be carried on as required by law in similar elections; and the officers so elected shall in like manner be qualified and installed into office. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 2.]

Cited, Balentine v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 465.

Art. 800. [565] [494] Outgoing officer shall deliver books, etc., to his successor, etc.—Whenever any person shall be removed from any office, or the term for which he was elected or appointed has expired, or he has resigned, or has ceased to act in his official capacity, he shall deliver over to his successor all books, papers and effects in any way appertaining to his office. Every person violating this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be deemed an offender within the meaning of any law of the state punishing such offenses, and, in addition thereto, he shall, on conviction before the mayor or recorder, be fined in a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, and imprisoned for any time not exceeding six months or either. Any officer who shall have been intrusted with the collection or custody of funds belonging to said city who shall be in default to said city, besides being liable to criminal prosecution and a civil action for debt, shall thereafter be incapable of holding any office under said city, until the amount of his defalcation shall have been fully paid to said city, with twelve per cent interest. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 146.]

Art. 801. [399] [355] City council composed of mayor and aldermen, etc.—The city council shall be composed of the mayor and aldermen provided for by this title. The mayor shall be president of the council, and in case of a tie on any question he shall give the casting vote. At the first meeting of each new council, or as soon thereafter as practicable, one of the aldermen shall be elected president pro tempore, who shall hold his office for one year. In case of the failure, inability or refusal of the mayor to act, the president pro tempore shall perform the duties and receive the fees and compensation of the mayor. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 12.]

Art. 802. [553] [482] Wards of city to remain unchanged until, etc.—The wards of each city accepting the provisions of this title shall be and remain unchanged by its acceptance; provided, that the city council shall have power from time to time to cause a division of said city to be made into as many wards as they may deem necessary, and for the good of the inhabitants of said city, and may change the boundaries of the same; but no such division or change shall be made unless it be done at least three months preceding the city election next ensuing; and said wards so established shall contain as far as practicable an equal number of voters. [Id. sec. 134.]

DUTIES AND POWERS OF OFFICERS

Art.
803. Officers shall take official oath.
804. Duties of mayor.
805. Mayor may summon citizens to act as a special police force, etc.
806. Powers of the mayor.
807. Ordinances and resolutions adopted shall not take effect until, etc.
808. May appoint police officers; salary, fees, tenure, etc.; bond; powers.
809. Duties and powers of the marshal.
809a. Certain cities may dispense with office of marshal, etc.
810. Duties of the secretary.
811. Treasurer shall give bond; his duties, etc.
812. Powers of city council over officers.

Article 803. [400] [356] Officers shall take official oath.—Every person elected by the voters of said city to fill any office, or by the city council, under this title, shall, before entering on the duties of his office, take and subscribe the official oath prescribed in the constitution of this state; and the city council may, by ordinance, require such additional oath as they may deem best calculated to secure faithfulness in the performance of their duties by such officers. [Id. sec. 13.]

Liability for acts of officers.—A city is not liable for the acts of its officers or employés engaged in the execution of its ordinances. Givens v. City of Paris, 24 S. W. 974, 5 C. A. 705. See City of Victoria v. Jessel, 7 C. A. 520, 27 S. W. 159.

A city is not answerable in damages for the negligence of its officers while exercising its police powers. Stinnett v. City of Sherman (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 847.

A city as a general rule is not liable for the torts of its officers in the discharge of their duties, but is liable for their unlawful acts in discharging functions conferred for the peculiar advantage of its own inhabitants. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 478.

Liability for acts of policemen.—See notes under Arts. 808, 809.

Liability for injuries in streets.—See notes under Art. 999.

Art. 804. [401] [357] Duties of mayor.—The mayor of the city shall be the chief executive officer of said corporation, and shall be vigilant and active at all times in causing the laws and ordinances for the government of said city to be duly executed and put in force. He shall inspect the conduct of all subordinate officers in the government thereof, and, as far as it may be in his power, shall cause all negligence, carelessness and positive violations of duty to be prosecuted and punished. He shall have power, whenever in his judgment the good of the city may require it, to summon meetings of the city council; and he shall, from time to time, communicate to that body all such information, and recommend all such measures, as may tend to the improvement of the finances, the police, health, security, cleanliness, comfort, ornament and good government of said city. [Acts of 1881, p. 115, secs. 1 and 2.]

Duties depend upon charter, etc.—The powers and duties of the mayor of a city depend entirely on the provisions of the charter and valid ordinances or by-laws and resolutions of the council passed in pursuance thereof. City of Galveston v. Hutches (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 214.

Powers.—See Art. 806.

Removal.—See Art. 6065 et seq.

Art. 805. [402] [358] Mayor may summon citizens to act as a special police force, etc.—Whenever the mayor shall deem it necessary, in order to enforce the laws of the city, or to avert danger, or protect life or property, in case of riot or any outbreak or calamity or public disturbance, or when he has reason to fear any serious violation of law or order, or any outbreak, or any other danger to said city, or the inhabitants thereof, he shall summon into service, as a special police force, all or as many of the citizens as in his judgment and discretion may be necessary and proper; and such summons may be by proclamation or order addressed to the citizens generally, or those of any ward of the city, or subdivision thereof; or such summons may be by personal notification. Such special police force, while in service, shall be subject to the orders of the mayor, shall perform such duties as he may require, and shall have the same power while on duty as the regular police force of said city; and any person so summoned and failing to obey, or appearing and failing to perform any duty that may be required by this title, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 15.]

De facto police.—Persons acting as peace officers and regarded as such by the general public held officers de facto, and arrest by such officers was valid. Ex parte Tracey (Cr. App.) 93 S. W. 538.

Art. 806. [403] [359] Powers of the mayor.—The mayor shall have like power, with a justice of the peace, to administer oaths of office. He shall possess and execute, in the city, in criminal cases, all the powers and duties of a justice of the peace. He shall have authority in case of a riot or any unlawful assemblage, or with a view to preserve peace and good order in said city, to order and enforce the closing of any theater, ball-room, grogshop, tippling-house, bar-room or other place of resort, or public room, or building, and may order the arrest of any person violating, in his presence, the laws of the state, or any ordinance of the city; and he shall perform such other duties and possess and exercise such other power and authority as may be prescribed and conferred by the city council. [Id. sec. 16.]

Execution of notes.—The mayor of a city cannot bind the city by executing a renewal of a note given by it without authority from the city council. City of Tyler v. Adams (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 119.

Deeds.—Mayor of a city held to have had no authority to bind the city by inserting a warranty in a deed. City of Galveston v. Hutches (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 214.

Where a resolution of city council authorized the mayor to make deed, covenant of general warranty contained in the deed executed thereunder held binding on the city. Abbott v. City of Galveston, 97 T. 474, 79 S. W. 1064.

Contracts.—A contract made by the mayor without authority from the council is void. Penn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 636.

Where the mayor of a city without authority executed a contract on behalf of the city, the city will not be estopped from denying the same; it not having received any benefit thereunder. Indiana Road-Mach. Co. v. City of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 908.

A resolution by a city council held to authorize the mayor to contract for the payment of a specified sum for a deed to land in dispute as a roadway. City of Longview v. Capps (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 160.

Compromise of litigation.—The adoption by the common council of an ordinance carrying out a compromise effected by the mayor and finance committee constitutes a ratification thereof. City of San Antonio v. San Antonio St. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 148, 54 S. W. 281.

Appointment of officers.—A city ordinance held presumed to relate only to the appointment of officers as to whom the mayor had the power of appointment. City of San Antonio v. Tobin (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 269.

Duties.—See Art. 804.

Removal.—See Cole v. Forto (Civ.App.) 155 S. W. 350, and Art. 6065 et seq.

Art. 807. [404] [360] Ordinances and resolutions adopted shall not take effect until, etc.—All ordinances and resolutions adopted by the council shall, before they take effect, be placed in the office of the city secretary; and if the mayor approve thereof, he shall sign the same; and such as he shall not sign, he shall return to the city council, with his objections thereto. Upon the return of any ordinance or resolution by the mayor, the vote by which the same was passed shall be reconsidered; and if, after such reconsideration, a majority of the whole number of aldermen agree to pass the same, and enter their votes on the journal of their proceedings, it shall be in force; and if the mayor shall neglect to approve or object to any such proceedings for a longer period than three days after the same shall be placed in the secretary's office as aforesaid, the same shall go into effect. [Id. sec. 17.]

For provisions as to recorder and clerk of corporation court, see chapter, "Corporation Courts."

Explanatory.—Acts 1899, p. 40, c. 3, creating corporation courts (embodied in chapter 5 of this title) abolished the municipal court and officers of judge, recorder and clerk thereof, in every city, town, or village (as theretofore established) after the due and legal organization of the corporation court therein.

Cited, Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. City of Belton, 57 C. A. 460, 122 S. W. 413.

Art. 808. May appoint police officers; salary, fees, tenure, etc., bond; powers.—The city council or town council in any city or town in this state, incorporated under the provisions of this title relating to cities and towns, may, by ordinance, provide for the appointment, term of office and qualifications of such police officer, or officers, as may by such city council be deemed necessary. Such police officer or officers so appointed by such city council shall receive a salary or fees of office, or both, as shall be fixed by the city council; and such city council may, by ordinance, provide that such police officer or officers so appointed shall hold their office at the pleasure of the city council and for such term as the city council may from time to time direct. Such police officer or officers, so appointed by such city council, shall give such bond for the faithful performance of his duties, as the city council may require; and such police officer or officers so appointed shall have like powers, rights and authority as are by said title vested in city marshals. [Acts 1907, p. 299.]

Charter provision self-executing.—A provision in a city charter granting its council authority to appoint policemen and prescribe their duties and compensation was self-executing, and required no resolution or ordinance to make it effective. City of Paris v. Cabiness, 44 C. A. 587, 98 S. W. 925.

Appointment and tenure.—See, also, note under Art. 825.

That one appointed policeman was suggested to the mayor by the marshal held immaterial, the mayor having no independent power of appointment. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 99, 79 S. W. 848.

A city charter provision that policemen shall hold office during good behavior is unconstitutional. City of Houston v. Mahoney, 36 C. A. 45, 80 S. W. 1142.

Under the San Antonio city charter, the board of police and fire commissioners held entitled to allow a mounted policeman holding office at the time of the adoption of the charter to hold over under the control of the commission. City of San Antonio v. Beck (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 263.

Reappointment.—Adoption of provision of city charter held not to create a vacancy in the office of policeman, so as to constitute a reappointment from the date of adoption. City of Houston v. Mahoney, 36 C. A. 45, 80 S. W. 1142.

Action of city council in adopting in code of ordinances provisions of charter placing police department under civil service rules, held not to amount to a reappointment for an additional term of a policeman serving at the time of such action. City of Houston v. Smith, 36 C. A. 43, 80 S. W. 1144.

Abandonment of office.—A policeman, discharged without authority, held not to have abandoned his office by serving as special policeman. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 99, 79 S. W. 848.

A policeman held to have abandoned his office by acceptance of appointment as constable. City of Paris v. Cabiness, 44 C. A. 587, 98 S. W. 925.

Discharge.—Inability of a police officer to read or write the English language held ground for removal, within the term "incompetency or inefficiency." Steinback v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 822.

The action of the city council in dismissing a police officer does not require the subsequent assent of the mayor to make it valid. Doherty v. City of Galveston, 19 C. A. 708, 48 S. W. 804.

The court cannot inquire into the regularity of a judgment of the Galveston city council removing a police officer or the competency or sufficiency of the evidence to support it. Id.

A provision of a city charter held to have sufficiently provided a mode of procedure on charges against an officer. Riggins v. Richards, 97 T. 229, 77 S. W. 946.

A provision of a city charter, prohibiting the discharge of policemen except after trial and for cause, is valid. City of Houston v. Mahoney, 36 C. A. 45, 80 S. W. 1142.

De jure officer.—A policeman held to have become a de jure officer, though not qualifying in strict conformity to requirements. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 99, 79 S. W. 848.

Policeman acting under appointment held to become a de jure officer entitled to retain his office for the full term pertaining thereto. City of Paris v. Cabiness, 44 C. A. 587, 98 S. W. 925.

Arrest without warrant.—A city charter and ordinances, authorizing policemen to arrest without warrant when an ordinance is violated in their view, is valid. Vann v. State, 45 Cr. R. 434, 77 S. W. 813, 108 Am. St. Rep. 961.

Salary.—Where no charges were preferred against a policeman, held, that he was not required to appeal to the city council from his discharge by the marshal as a condition to his recovery of salary for his unexpired term. Cawthon v. City of Houston, 31 C. A. 1, 71 S. W. 329.

A policeman entitled to draw $75 or $85 per month, according to the detail of work, who was illegally discharged before the expiration of his term, held entitled to recover salary for the unexpired term at the rate of $75 only. Id.

City ordinance providing the compensation of a city marshal, construed in the light of interpretation by the city council, held not void because fixing the salary at an excessive and unreasonable amount. City of Oak Cliff v. Etheridge (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 602

A city council has power to direct the payment of salary to a policeman and of a bill for paving. Riggins v. Richards (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 84.

A policeman, discharged without authority, held entitled to salary, though not performing the duties of the office, and engaging in other persuits. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 99, 79 S. W. 848.

That a policeman was not examined, though the police board was authorized to formulate rules for such examination, held not a matter to be raised by exception to his petition for salary. Id.

A city held chargeable with knowledge of the discharge of a policeman and his offer of services, rendering a demand for salary or further tender of services unnecessary. City of Paris v. Cabiness, 44 C. A. 587, 98 S. W. 925.

Mere irregularities in proceedings by which a policeman was appointed cannot be taken advantage of by the city to defeat his right to recover salary. Id.

A policeman in order to recover salary, in the absence of proof of discharge, held only required to prove his appointment, qualification, term, salary fixed, and nonpayment. City of San Antonio v. Serna, 45 C. A. 341, 99 S. W. 875.

The salaries of the officers and employés of the police department of San Antonio, fixed by an ordinance in March, 1903, held not affected by the city charter subsequently enacted. City of San Antonio v. Beck (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 263.

A policeman held entitled to receive a certain compensation until his removal from office. Id.

An acceptance by the police and fire commission, having control of the police and fire departments of a city, of the service of its appointee as a policeman, is an acceptance of the service by the city, creating an implied contract on its part to pay the appointee a salary. Id.

Bond.—A policeman's bond held not required to be conditioned otherwise than provided by the charter, though an ordinance declare his sureties liable for fines against him. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 99, 79 S. W. 848.

The execution of a proper bond held not a condition precedent to the right of office of policeman. Id.

Liability of sureties on bond.—A surety on a policeman's bond to a city to secure the faithful discharge of his duties is not liable for an assault by the officer, where the bond is not executed for the benefit of persons not parties thereto, and there is no city ordinance authorizing suits on such bonds by persons injured by the unlawful act of policemen. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Jasper, 56 C. A. 236, 120 S. W. 1145.

A person wrongfully arrested by a policeman held not entitled to maintain an action against the surety on the policeman's bond, where the right was not conferred by statute. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Crittenden (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 232.

City not liable for acts of police, when.—A city held not liable for the action of its police officers in impressing horses to be used in removing the dead, etc., after a destructive flood. City of Galveston v. Brown, 28 C. A. 274, 67 S. W. 156.

Private corporation liable for acts of policemen.—A corporation is responsible for a wrongful assault made by a watchman or detective employed by it, although he has been appointed a special police officer at the request of the employer. Perkins Bros. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 556.

Appointment by governor, etc.—A provision of a city charter for a commission appointed by the governor, and having jurisdiction of the police, fire, street, and health departments of the city, is held unconstitutional. Ex parte Levine (Cr. App.) 81 S. W. 1206.

A provision in a city charter for appointment of a chief of police and policemen by commissioners appointed by the governor is constitutional and valid. Ex parte Tracey (Cr. App.) 93 S. W. 538.

Art. 809. [407] [483a] [363] Duties and powers of the marshal.—The marshal of the city shall be ex officio chief of police, and may appoint one or more deputies; the appointment of which deputies shall only be valid upon the approval of the city council. Said marshal shall, either in person or by deputy, attend upon the recorder's or mayor's court while said court is in session, and shall promptly and faithfully execute all writs and process issued from said court; he shall have like power, with the sheriff of the county, to execute the writ of search warrant; he shall be active in quelling riots, disorder and disturbances of the peace within the limits of said city, and shall take into custody all persons so offending against the peace of the city and shall have authority to take suitable and sufficient bail for the appearance before the recorder's or mayor's court of any person charged with an offense against the ordinances or laws of the city; it shall be his duty to arrest, without warrant, all violators of the public peace and all who obstruct or interfere with him in the execution of the duties of his office or who shall be guilty of any disorderly conduct or disturbances whatever; to prevent a breach of the peace or preserve quiet and good order, he shall have authority to close any theater, bar-room, ball-room, drinking house, or any other place or building of public resort; and in the prevention and suppression of crime and arrest of offenders, he shall have, possess and execute like power, authority and jurisdiction as the sheriff of the county under the laws of the state. He shall receive a salary or fees of office, or both, to be fixed by the city council. The marshal shall give such bond for the faithful performance of his duties as the city council may require; and he shall perform such other duties and possess such other powers, rights and authority as the city council may, by ordinance, require and confer, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state.

May arrest beyond limits, when.—A city marshal of a town incorporated under the statute may arrest beyond the limits of the town one who has committed a felony within the county. Newburn v. Durham, 88 T. 288, 31 S. W. 195.

Arrest without warrant.—Evidence held sufficient to show that a marshal in making an arrest without warrant was acting in his official capacity. Riter v. Neatherly (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 439.

Liability to prisoner injured.—One injured in a city prison by reason of the failure of a policeman to properly search another prisoner held to have no cause of action against the chief of police. Stinnett v. City of Sherman (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 847.

A private citizen cannot maintain an action for damages against a chief of police for failure to comply with a city ordinance, requiring him to safely keep prisoners. Id.

Liability on bond.—Surety on bond of town marshal held not liable for his institution of malicious prosecution. Kidd v. Reynolds, 20 C. A. 355, 50 S. W. 600.

Rule for charging sureties of chief of police on official bond for wrongful act of such officer, stated. Gold v. Campbell, 54 C. A. 269, 117 S. W. 463.

Sureties on the official bond of a city marshal are liable for an assault committed by him while making an arrest, where he was assuming to act in his official capacity, though no offense was actually committed. Riter v. Neatherly (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 439.

Art. 809a. Certain cities may dispense with office of marshal, etc.—A city council or town council of any city or town within this state having less than three thousand inhabitants, according to the last preceding census, may, by an ordinance of said [city] council or town council, as the case may be, dispense with the office of marshal, and at the same time, by such ordinance, confer the duties of said office upon any peace officer of said county; provided, that when the city marshal has been elected by the people, he shall not be removed during his term of office, under the provisions of this article. [Acts 1875, p. 256; Acts 1901, p. 289; Acts 1903, p. 114.]

Art. 810. [408] [364] Duties of the secretary.—It shall be the duty of the city secretary to attend every meeting of the city council, and keep accurate minutes of the proceedings thereof in a book to be provided for that purpose, and to engross and enroll all laws, resolutions and ordinances of the city council, to keep the corporate seal, to take charge of, and preserve and keep in order, all the books, records, papers, documents and files of said council, to countersign all commissions issued to the city officers and licenses issued by the mayor, and to keep a record or register thereof, and to make out all notices required under any regulation or ordinance of the city. He shall draw all warrants on the treasurer, and countersign the same, and keep an accurate account thereof in a book provided for the purpose. He shall be the general accountant of the corporation, and shall keep in books regular accounts of the receipts and disbursements for the city, and separately, under proper heads, each cause of receipt and disbursement, and also accounts with each person, including officers who have money transactions with the city, crediting amounts allowed by proper authority and specifying the particular transaction to which such entries apply. He shall also keep a register of bonds and bills issued by the city, and all evidence of debt due and payable to it, noting the particulars thereof, and all facts connected therewith, as they occur. He shall carefully keep all contracts made by the city council; and he shall do, and perform, all such other duties as may be required of him by law, ordinance, resolution or order of the city council. He shall receive for his services an annual salary, payable at stated periods, and such additional fees as may be allowed by the city council.

Art. 811. [409] [365] Treasurer shall give bond; his duties, etc.—The treasurer of said city shall give bond in favor of the city in such amount, and in such form as may be required by the city council, and with sufficient security, to be approved by the city council, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties. He shall receive and securely keep all moneys belonging to the city, and make all payments for the same upon the order of the mayor, attested by the secretary under the seal of the corporation; provided, that no order shall be paid unless the said order shall show upon its face that the city council has directed its issuance, and for what purpose. He shall render a full and correct statement of his receipts and payments to the city council, at their first regular meeting in every quarter, and whensoever, at other times, he may be required by them so to do; at the end of every half year he shall cause to be published, at the expense of the city, a statement, showing the amount of receipts and expenditures for the six months next preceding, and the general condition of the treasury; and he shall do and perform such other acts and duties as the city council may require; and, for his services, he shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by the city council. [Id. sec. 22.]

Custodian of funds.—The city treasurer is the only lawful custodian of money belonging to the city. The city council cannot control his acts as to where he shall deposit the city funds. City of Bonham v. Taylor, 81 T. 59, 16 S. W. 555.

It is not necessary that the order should specify the particular fund out of which it is to be paid unless a special fund has been created under article 878. Minor v. Loggins, 14 C. A. 15, 37 S. W. 1086.

Bond—School funds.—See, also, Art. 2882.

A construction of articles 3725–3732 and 3791 of the Revised Statutes of 1879 (articles 3935–3937, 4031, Rev. St. 1895) leads unavoidably to the conclusion that it was intended that the safe keeping and disbursement of the school fund in cities having charge of the public schools should be secured by special bond. The sureties on the treasurer's general bond cannot be made liable for a defalcation in the special fund. Broad v. City of Paris, 66 T. 119, 18 S. W. 342.

—— Liability on.—In an action against a city for the balance due on an improvement contract, the city was not entitled to recover over on the treasurer's bond for an alleged defalcation. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 984.

Custodian of funds for sea walls.—See Art. 5593.

Art. 812. [411] [367] Powers of city council over officers.—The city council shall have power from time to time to require other and further duties of all officers whose duties are herein prescribed, and to define and prescribe the powers and duties of all officers appointed or elected to any office under this title whose duties are not herein specially mentioned, and fix their compensation. They may also require bonds to be given to the said corporation by all officers for the faithful performance of their duties. The city council shall provide for filling vacancies in all offices, not herein provided for; and, in all cases of vacancy, the same shall be filled only for the unexpired term. [Id. sec. 24.]

901. Other instances when debts may be compromised and bonds issued, etc.
902. Official paper, and contract for publishing, etc.

Article 813. [412] [368] City council, who shall preside over it, etc.—The mayor and aldermen shall constitute the city council of the city. The city council shall meet at such times and places as they shall by resolution direct. The mayor, when present, shall preside at all meetings of the city council, and shall, in all cases, have a casting vote, except in elections. In his absence and absence of president pro tempore, any one of the aldermen may be appointed to preside. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 25.]

Cited, Ex parte Wade (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 179.

Art. 814. [413] [369] Shall hold stated meetings; may call special meetings; petitions, etc., to, etc.—The city council shall hold stated meetings; and the mayor, of his own motion, or on the application of three aldermen, may call special meetings, by notice to each of the members of said council, the secretary and city attorney, served personally or left at their usual place of abode. Petitions and remonstrances may be presented to the council in writing only; and the council shall determine the rules of its proceedings, and be the judge of the election and qualifications of its own members, and have the power to compel the attendance of absent members, and punish them for disorderly conduct. [Id. sec. 26.]

Delegation of power.—As to the power of a city council to delegate its authority to others, see Railway Co. v. Riordan (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 519; Id., 85 T. 511, 22 S. W. 514.

Special meetings, etc.—Under a city charter, a call for a special meeting of the council held not to authorize an ordinance as to a matter not mentioned in the call. Mills v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1121.

The approval of the minutes of a special meeting of a city council at the following regular meeting is not a ratification of the acts of the special meeting. Id.

Art. 815. [567] [496] Attendance, etc., of officers.—Each alderman shall be fined three dollars for each meeting which he fails to attend, unless on account of his own sickness or that of his family. Any member of the city council remaining absent for three regular consecutive meetings of the board, unless prevented by sickness, without first having obtained leave of absence at a regular meeting, shall be deemed to have vacated his office, and the mayor shall proceed to fill the vacancy in accordance with the charter. [Id. sec. 148.]

Art. 816. [569] [498] Salary of officers shall be fixed by city council, etc.—The city council shall, on or before the first day of January next preceding each and every election, fix the salary and fees of office of the mayor to be elected at the next regular election, and shall, at the same time, establish the compensation or salary to be paid to the officers elected or appointed by the city council; and the compensation or salary so established shall not be changed during the term for which said officers shall be elected or appointed. [Id. sec. 150.]

Not mandatory.—This article is not mandatory, and where the council failed to fix the salary on or before January 1st, it may do so at any time before the general election; and where the council at a regular session on December 9th fixed the salary, it could after January 1st following, and before the general election, fix the salary at a less sum, and the mayor elected at the regular election following could only receive the latter sum. City of Belton v. Head (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 417.

This article requiring the salary of the mayor to be fixed by the council on or before January 1st preceding the election, was merely directory, so that his salary could be fixed after that date. City of Uvalde v. Burney (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 311.

Repeal of prior ordinance.—This article would repeal an ordinance, theretofore passed, fixing the salary of the mayor of a city at $2. City of Uvalde v. Burney (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 311.

Salary of mayor.—The fact that a mayor was required, in addition to performing his other duties, to discharge those of street commissioners or marshal would not deprive him of his right to salary earned. City of Uvalde v. Burney (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 311.

Art. 817. [464] [418] Power to pass, etc., ordinances, etc., and other powers.—The city council shall have power to pass, publish, amend or repeal all ordinances, rules and police regulations, not contrary to the constitution of this state, for the good government, peace and order of the city and the trade and commerce thereof, that may be necessary or proper to carry into effect the powers vested by this title in the corporation, the city government, or in any department or officer thereof; to enforce the observance of all such rules, ordinances and police regulations, and to punish violations thereof by fines, penalties and imprisonment in the prison, workhouse, or house of correction, or to work on the streets or other public works, or either, in the discretion of the court before whom conviction may be had; but no fine or penalty shall exceed one hundred dollars, nor the imprisonment more than fifteen days for any offense, unless a larger fine and longer period of imprisonment is herein allowed; and for any fine, penalty and costs imposed by the mayor or recorder in the trial of any cause or complaint before him, execution may issue to collect such fine and costs, to be levied and executed in the same manner that executions are from the district court. The same shall be issued by the mayor or recorder to the marshal, who, in levying on property and selling, shall have like power and authority as the sheriff of the county in executions issued from the district court; and the laws of the state, so far as applicable, shall apply to and be in full force and effect as to the executions issued from the mayor's or recorder's court; and any person upon whom any fine or penalty is imposed may be committed until the payment of the same, with costs, and in default thereof may be imprisoned in the city prison or workhouse, or house of correction, or may be required to work on the streets or other public work of the city for such time and in such manner as may be provided by ordinance; provided, such imprisonment shall not exceed fifteen days, unless a longer period is herein allowed. [Id. sec. 74.]

1. Not subject to judicial control, except, etc.—The acts of the council of a city held not subject to judicial control except in specified cases. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 54, 104 S. W. 518.

2. Charter—Rule of construction.—A city charter will not be so construed as to empower the city council to destroy the city government, if the language will permit a reasonable construction. Fenet v. McCuistion (Sup.) 147 S. W. 867.

Unless a charter contains an express power to enact an ordinance which is unreasonable, it should be held that it was not the intention to confer authority to enact such an ordinance. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

3. General powers of municipality.—See Art. 764 and notes.

4. Ordinances—In general.—A resolution of a city council is not an ordinance where the charter prescribing the manner in which ordinances must be passed was not complied with. American Const. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1019.

5. —— Enactment.—A resolution is not void because the rules of the common council were not suspended before its adoption. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

One of the board of aldermen of the city of Austin having died prior to the passage of a tax levy ordinance by the affirmative vote of seven of the board, such ordinance held to have received a majority under City Charter, §§ 4, 13, 31, 78. Nalle v. City of Austin, 41 C. A. 423, 93 S. W. 141.

Minutes of a city council showing the sustaining of an oral motion of a councilman to grant permission to inclose a portion of a street surrounding a new building held not to constitute an ordinance sufficient to grant the authority prayed. American Const. Co. v. Seelig, 104 T. 16, 133 S. W. 429.

No ordinance of an incorporated city is valid unless and until the statutory prerequisites to its enactment are substantially complied with. Ex parte Farnsworth, 61 Cr. R. 342, 135 S. W. 538.

Proceedings in the city council at the instance of a contractor held not to constitute an ordinance permitting him to fence building material deposited in a street and hence such fence was unlawful. American Const. Co. v. Caswell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1013.

6. —— Approval or veto.—The order in which ordinances were approved, and therefore the order in which they took effect, is a question of fact. City of Marshall v. Elgin (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 670.

7. —— Amendment.—Objection cannot be urged to resolutions of a city council that they failed to comply with a requisite as to the method of procedure, where they were merely amendatory to the main resolution, which was not objectionable on this ground. City of Paris v. Brenneman (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 58.

8. —— Repeal.—The council of a city may rescind action previously taken, and may repeal ordinances unless vested rights are thereby interfered with, or unless the statute prohibits the repeal of a prior ordinance. City of Belton v. Head (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 417.

9. —— Validity in general.—An ordinance held not void on the ground that it gives municipal authorities discretionary power. Kissinger v. Hay, 52 C. A. 295, 113 S. W. 1005.

A city ordinance, passed without authority by the city council, is void. Goar v. City of Rosenberg, 53 C. A. 218, 115 S. W. 653.

The powers of a municipal corporation held derived from legislative acts controlled by constitutional safeguards. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

Towns have only power to pass ordinances expressly conferred upon them by law, and in doubtful cases the ruling will be against the power claimed. Ex parte Farley (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 530.

An ordinance in pursuance of a legislative grant need not be in the language of the statute, nor exercise all the granted power. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

10. —— Partial invalidity.—See note under Art. 858.

11. —— Police regulations in general.—A city may by ordinance prohibit the sale of goods or liquors on Sunday. Ayres v. City of Dallas, 32 Cr. R. 603, 25 S. W. 631. Abram v. State, 34 Cr. R. 21, 28 S. W. 818.

An ordinance making it an offense for any one not in the employ of the railroad company to jump on or off a moving train, is invalid as applied to a person who in good faith attempts to get on a moving train as a passenger. Mills v. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 94 T. 242, 59 S. W. 875, 876, 55 L. R. A. 497.

An ordinance of a city held valid as an exercise of the police power to protect life and property. Ex parte Cramer, 62 Cr. R. 11, 136 S. W. 61, 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 78, Ann. Cas. 1913C, 588.

Cities may adopt reasonable regulations in respect to all matters subject to the police power, so long as such regulations do not amount to virtual prohibition, and are not in conflict with the state laws licensing occupations. Ex parte Brewer (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1068; Ex parte Pitchios (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1074.

Where an ordinance is not unreasonable on its face, the question may depend upon its operation upon particular conditions of fact, and its effect may be just and reasonable in general but arbitrary in the particular instance. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

12. —— Health regulations.—See notes under Art. 838.

13. —— Regulation of billboards.—City, authorized by its charter to pass general ordinances, held to have the right, within its police powers, to regulate the size, location, and construction of billboards. Ex parte Savage, 63 Cr. R. 285, 141 S. W. 244, Ann. Cas. 1913D, 951.

A municipal ordinance regulating billposting, the size, location, and construction of billboards, will be presumed to be reasonable. Id.

14. —— Vagrants and prostitutes.—See notes under Art. 829.

15. —— Sale of railroad tickets.—A city ordinance prohibiting the sale of railroad tickets by others than duly authorized agents of the railroad held not to deprive any citizen of equal rights with other citizens, or the right to carry on a lawful occupation or to transfer his property as he sees fit. Ex parte Hughes, 50 Cr. R. 614, 100 S. W. 160.

Such ordinance held not to deny the equal protection of the law by granting special privileges to railroads. Id.

17. —— Obstructing streets.—See notes under Art. 854.

18. —— Conflict with statute.—See, also, notes under Arts. 871, 872, 938, and 965.

A municipal ordinance, prohibiting pool selling on horse races and punishing any saloon keeper permitting pool selling on his premises, is void, as in conflict with a state law licensing the selling of pools on horse races. Ex parte Ogden, 43 Cr. R. 531, 66 S. W. 1100.

A municipal ordinance prohibiting "bunco business," when construed to prohibit gambling, held in conflict with the Penal Code, punishing gambling. Clark v. State, 46 Cr. R. 566, 81 S. W. 722.

Wherever the penalty in a municipal ordinance exceeds or is less than the penalty prescribed by the state law for the same offense, the ordinance is invalid. Ex parte McHenry (Cr. App.) 103 S. W. 390.

The rule that a city ordinance in conflict with the state law on the same subject is void held not applicable, unless the state law is operative in the city. Robinson v. City of Galveston, 51 C. A. 292, 111 S. W. 1076.

Where there is a conflict between a statute and an ordinance, the ordinance must yield, if necessary to hold either invalid. Mantel v. State, 55 Cr. R. 456, 117 S. W. 855, 131 Am. St. Rep. 818; Sue Lung v. Same (Cr. App.) 117 S. W. 857.

A municipal ordinance held invalid as suspending laws of the state. McDonald v. Denton (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 823.

The Dallas ordinance prohibiting bawdyhouses except in a defined district is not void as conflicting with the Penal Code prohibition against keeping such houses; no penalty being prescribed nor license given by the ordinance. Hatcher v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 914.

A town ordinance prescribing a less punishment for an offense similar to one under the state law than that fixed by the state law is void. Ex parte Farley (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 530.

An ordinance which conflicts with any law of the state, or which provides a greater or less penalty than the state law for the same offense, is invalid. Ex parte Brewer (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1068; Ex parte Pitchios (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1074.

Where it did not appear that the general stock law was in force in a county containing a city having a stock law ordinance, it was no objection to the ordinance that its penalties were different from the general law. Conner v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 567.

19. —— Identical with penal statute.—As to ordinances defining a penal offense, see Ex parte Bell, 32 Cr. R. 308, 22 S. W. 1040, 40 Am. St. Rep. 778.

A city council cannot pass an ordinance punishing an act which is made an offense by statute. Ballard v. City of Dallas (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 864.

A city council cannot legally create ordinances covering the same acts, and inflicting the same punishment therefor as provided by the Penal Code. Crowley v. City of Dallas (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 865.

A city ordinance which is identical in terms with a section of the Penal Code is invalid. Ex parte Wickson (Cr. App.) 47 S. W. 643.

Existence of state law providing penalty for the obstruction of streets held to render void a town ordinance punishing the obstruction of its streets. Ex parte Cross, 44 Cr. R. 376, 71 S. W. 289.

20. —— Surplusage.—An ordinance is not void by reason of surplusage. Bassett v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 554. See Heath v. Hall (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 160.

21. —— Right to question validity.—A person, who has not been refused a permit under a municipal ordinance, held not entitled to urge its invalidity because it grants discretionary power to municipal authorities. Kissinger v. Hay, 52 C. A. 295, 113 S. W. 1005.

22. —— Question for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

23. —— Rule of construction.—Statutes and ordinances must be reasonably construed. Von Diest v. San Antonio Traction Co., 33 C. A. 577, 77 S. W. 632.

24. —— Liability of city for acts of officers in enforcing ordinances.—See note under Art. 858.

25. Place of sale.—The marshal may sell property seized under this article at any place in the county. Dudley v. Jones, 26 S. W. 445, 6 C. A. 466.

Art. 818. [559] [488] Style of ordinances.—The style of all ordinances shall be, "Be it ordained by the city council of the city of ....." (inserting the name of the city); but it may be omitted when published in the form of a book or pamphlet. [Id. sec. 140]

Cited, Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. City of Belton, 57 C. A. 460, 122 S. W. 413.

Enacting clause.—An ordinance without the enacting clause is void. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 776.

The enacting clause of an ordinance of the city of Calvert, in the form prescribed by this article, is sufficient, though the corporate name of the city is the "Mayor, Aldermen, and Inhabitants of the City of Calvert," and the word "Calvert" alone is used. Ex parte Keeling, 54 Cr. R. 118, 121 S. W. 605, 130 Am. St. Rep. 884.

Art. 819. [557] [486] Ordinances, when and how published.—Every ordinance imposing any penalty, fine, imprisonment or forfeiture shall, after the passage thereof, be published in every issue of the official paper for ten days; if the official paper be published weekly, the publication shall be made in one issue thereof; and proof of such publication shall be made by the printer or publisher of such paper, making affidavit before some officer authorized by law to administer oaths, and filed with the secretary of the city or town, and shall be prima facie evidence of such publication and promulgation of such ordinances in all courts of the state; and such ordinances so published shall take effect, and be in force, from and after the publication thereof, unless otherwise expressly provided. Ordinances not required to be published shall take effect, and be in force, from and after the passage, unless otherwise provided. If any town or city shall desire to publish its ordinances in pamphlet or book form, it shall not be necessary to republish such ordinances as have been previously published. [Acts of 1889, p. 4.]

Cited, Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. City of Belton, 57 C. A. 460, 122 S. W. 413.

Art. 820. [560] [489] Ordinances, etc., remain in force until, etc.—All ordinances, regulations or resolutions in force in any city accepting the provisions of this title, and not in conflict with this title, shall remain in force under this title until altered, amended or repealed by the city council. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 144.]

Art. 821. [558] [487] Published ordinances admissible in evidence.—All ordinances of the city, where printed and published by authority of the city council, shall be admitted and received in all courts and places without further proof. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 139.]

Published by authority of city council.—A book purporting to contain the ordinances of a city incorporated under the general law is not admissible to prove the ordinances, without first showing that the book was printed and published by authority of the city council. The court cannot take judicial knowledge of the ordinances of a city incorporated under the general laws, but they must be alleged and proved like other facts. This article cannot be aided by article 3692 because the latter merely provides a rule for proving the laws of this state, the United States, territories, sister states, and foreign countries. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 84.

Resolutions for the paving of a street held admissible as evidence of the act of the city council, though no explanation was given of an interlineation therein. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

Evidence of city ordinance regulating laying out and acceptance of streets held admissible against city to show there had been no statutory dedication. City of San Antonio v. Sullivan, 23 C. A. 619, 57 S. W. 42.

Where a city charter required the courts to take judicial notice of its provisions, an ordinance held admissible in evidence after repeal of the charter without evidence of authority for its enactment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Holt, 30 C. A. 330, 70 S. W. 591.

Where, in an action for injuries on a railroad track, the authenticity of a city ordinance book was not disputed, it could not be first contended on appeal that the ordinance was not shown to have been in force at the time of the accident. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Owens (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 579.

Where a city is incorporated under a special charter, and in the charter the city council is required to compile, print and publish the ordinances in book form, and the charter also provides that the printed ordinances shall be admitted in evidence in any suit, a book purporting to contain the city ordinances is admissible in evidence without proof that it was printed and published by authority of the city council. Hall v. I. & G. N. R. Co., 98 T. 100, 81 S. W. 520.

In an action by a city for taxes, certain pamphlets held admissible in evidence as purporting to have been published by authority of the city council. City of Houston v. Stewart, 40 C. A. 499, 90 S. W. 49.

In an action for the death of one killed by a train within city limits, held that it was proper to read in evidence certain ordinances from a book, shown by its title to contain the ordinances of the city. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Frugia, 43 C. A. 48, 95 S. W. 563.

A book containing the ordinance of a city purporting to have been published in accordance with the city charter held sufficient evidence of the authenticity of an ordinance contained therein. Ft. Worth & R. H. St. Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 48 C. A. 487, 107 S. W. 556.

Where a city secretary testifies that the ordinances offered in evidence were printed and published by order of the city council this is sufficient predicate for the admission of the ordinances, without producing the order of the council. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Garber (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 743.

A book which purports to be the printed ordinances of a city is admissible to prove the ordinances, without parol evidence to show that the ordinances were printed by authority of the city council. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Garber (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 230.

An ordinance depending for its vitality on its acceptance by a railroad is inadmissible in evidence, in the absence of proof of its acceptance. Sutor v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 943.

Enacting clause unnecessary.—A book published by city council containing the ordinances for the purpose of proving an ordinance is not subject to objection because the ordinance in question as shown by the book has no enacting clause. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gray, 95 T. 424, 67 S. W. 763; Id. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 232.

That ordinances contained in a compilation of a city's ordinances did not contain an enacting clause did not make them inadmissible in evidence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Garber, 51 C. A. 70, 111 S. W. 227.

Presumption.—The testimony of the mayor of a city to the effect that a certain ordinance, according to his recollection, was duly adopted, that he did not remember that any objections were made, held sufficient to authorize a presumption that it was legally enacted. Heller v. Alvarado, 20 S. W. 1003, 1 C. A. 409.

Ordinances admissible—Regulating speed, etc., of train.—A municipal ordinance held admissible in evidence, in an action against a railroad company for the negligent death of a person on the issue of negligence of the railway company in failing to ring the bell as required by the ordinance. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Levy, 35 C. A. 107, 79 S. W. 879.

A municipal ordinance requiring railway companies to provide lights where the streets cross railways is admissible in evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Matherly, 35 C. A. 604, 81 S. W. 589.

Where an ordinance introduced in evidence in force at the date of its introduction, prohibited a certain act, it has no prima facie effect, unless it is shown to have been passed by the party offering it prior to the commission of the act. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries by striking plaintiff's wagon at a street crossing, in which the evidence raised the issue as to whether the speed of the train proximately caused plaintiff's injuries, ordinances prohibiting trains running at a speed exceeding six miles an hour were admissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 544.

Art. 822. [561] [490] Fines, etc., to be paid into city treasury.—All fines, forfeitures and penalties for the breach or violation of this title, or any regulation, order or ordinance of the city council, shall, when collected, be paid into the city treasury for the use and benefit of said city. [Id. sec. 142.]

Art. 823. [568] Council may remit fine and penalty.—The city or town council shall have power to remit in whole or in part, and on such conditions as may be deemed proper by them, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present, any fine or penalty belonging to the city, which may be imposed or incurred under this title, or under any ordinance or resolution passed in pursuance thereof. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 149.]

Art. 824. [568] May prescribe duties of officers, etc.—The city or town council shall have power to prescribe the duties of all officers and persons appointed by them or elected to any office or place whatever, subject to the provisions of this title. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 149.]

Art. 825. [440] [396] May create and regulate police.—To create, establish and regulate the police of the city; to appoint watchmen and policemen, and prescribe their duties and powers and compensation. [Id. sec. 52.]

Police officer, not deputy.—See, also, notes under Arts. 808 and 809.

This article authorized the city council to appoint policemen. The marshal appointed in accordance with the first ordinance failed to select a deputy, but after the first of January the council passed an ordinance appointing a deputy marshal, and giving him authority to act as general police officer, fixing his compensation and providing that the city marshal should not be responsible for the acts of the deputy. Held, that this officer was a police officer appointed under this article, and was not a deputy marshal so as to render the marshal liable for his salary. City of Oak Cliff v. Etheridge (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 605.

Art. 826. [457] [411] May prevent trespasses, etc., and punish offenders.—To prevent all trespasses, breaches of the peace and good order, assaults and batteries, fighting, quarreling, using abusive, obscene, profane and insulting language, misdemeanors and all disorderly conduct, and punish all persons thus offending. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 67.]

Art. 827. [425] [381] May regulate the carrying of weapons.—To regulate the carrying of weapons, and to prevent the carrying of the same concealed. [Id. sec. 38.]

Art. 828. [441] [397] May suppress riots, etc.—To suppress and prevent any riot, affray, noise, disturbance or disorderly assembly in any public or private place within the city. [Id. sec. 53.]

Affray.—An affray, though an offense by statute against the state, may by ordinance be made an offense against a city. Ex parte Freeland (Cr. App.) 42 S. W. 295.

Art. 829. [443] [399] May punish vagrants, etc.—To restrain and punish vagrants, mendicants, street beggars and prostitutes. [Id. sec. 55.]

Refuge home.—A declaration in a city ordinance that a refuge home is a place for the assembly of vagrants and a nuisance held not to give authority to the municipality to prohibit the erection of such a home or to confine it to certain localities. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

Prohibiting homes for fallen women.—An ordinance prohibiting, within the limits of a city, homes for the reformation of fallen women, held invalid as an invasion of the rights of property. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

Art. 830. [434] [390] May restrain, etc., the sale, etc., of intoxicating liquors.—To restrain, regulate and prohibit the selling or giving away indirectly to evade a tax or penalty, of intoxicating or malt liquors by any person within the city, except by persons duly licensed; to forbid or punish the selling or giving away of any intoxicating or malt liquors to any minor, apprentice or habitual drunkard. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 46.]

Power to regulate, etc., subject to revocation.—The power conferred upon incorporated cities and towns to regulate the liquor traffic within their limits is given with the implied condition that it is subject to be revoked by the adoption of prohibitory laws provided for by the constitution and the statutes. Cities and towns of the State have no vested right in the continuance of the liquor traffic. Williams v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 989.

Art. 831. [436] [392] May prevent sale of liquors in certain places.—The city council shall have full power, by ordinance, to prevent the sale or giving away of any intoxicating liquors in any house or other place where theatrical or dramatic representations are given, and also to prevent intoxicating liquors of any description from being brought into any house or place where such representations are given, under any pretext whatsoever. [Id. sec. 48.]

Authority to determine to whom to issue license.—The legislature may confer on the council of a city the power to conclusively determine what persons shall obtain a liquor license. Berger v. De Loach, 56 C. A. 532, 121 S. W. 591.

Balls in connection with saloon.—City authorities held without authority to authorize balls to be conducted on premises occupied for the sale of intoxicating liquors. Cunningham v. Porchet, 23 C. A. 80, 56 S. W. 574.

Saloon limits—Power to prescribe.—The state legislature has the right to delegate to a city authority to prescribe saloon limits therein. Cohen v. Rice (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1052.

An ordinance of a city enacted within the provisions of its charter, prescribing saloon limits and prohibiting the sale of liquor therein held a valid police regulation. Id.

A city ordinance prescribing saloon limits held not arbitrary or unreasonable. Id.

A city incorporated under the general incorporation law held not authorized to fix limits or prohibit saloons in any portion of the city. Ex parte Smith, 51 Cr. R. 395, 102 S. W. 115.

A town incorporated under the general incorporation law is not authorized under such law to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors within certain prescribed limits of the town. Ex parte Smith, 51 Cr. R. 466, 102 S. W. 1124.

The provisions of the special charter of the city of Ft. Worth, authorizing the city council to fix saloon limits in the city, held constitutional, as being a regulation of the liquor traffic, and not a prohibition thereof. Such charter provision is not unconstitutional as an improper delegation of legislative power to a city. Ex parte King (Cr. App.) 107 S. W. 549. A city ordinance fixing saloon limits held not void for unreasonable discrimination, nor invalid because a subsequent amendment to an occupation tax ordinance exacted a higher tax from saloon keepers within the saloon limits than that paid by those without. Andrews v. City of Beaumont, 51 C. A. 625, 113 S. W. 614.

Unlawful sale, etc., of liquors may be enjoined.—See Art. 4674.

Art. 832. [435] [391] May close drinking-houses, etc., on Sunday.—To close drinking houses, saloons, bar-rooms, beer saloons, and all places or establishments where intoxicating or fermented liquors are sold, on Sundays, and prescribe hours for closing them, and also all places of amusement and business. [Id. sec. 47.]

Charter held invalid.—A city charter, and ordinances passed thereunder, regulating the closing of saloons on Sunday, held invalid and not to abrogate the state law. Fay v. State, 44 Cr. R. 381, 71 S. W. 603.

Art. 833. [458] [412] May prevent and punish the keeping of disorderly houses, etc.—To prevent and punish the keeping of houses wherein indecent, loud or immodest dramatic or theatrical representations are given, houses of prostitution within the city, and to adopt summary measures for the removal or suppression of all such establishments. [Id. sec. 68.]

Prohibiting except in defined district—Validity.—Prohibiting bawdyhouses except in a defined district constitutes legitimate exercise of police power. Hatcher v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 914.

Conflict with state law.—See notes under Art. 817.

Art. 834. [442] May prohibit and punish the abuse of animals.—To prohibit and punish the abuse of animals.

Art. 835. [454] [409] May establish, etc., workhouses, etc.—To erect and establish one or more workhouses or houses of correction, within or without the city limits, make all necessary rules and regulations thereof, and appoint all necessary keepers or assistants. In such workhouse or house of correction may be confined all vagrants, stragglers, idle, suspicious and disorderly persons who may be committed by the mayor or recorder; and any person who shall fail or refuse to pay the fine, penalty or costs imposed for any misdemeanor or breach of any ordinance of the city may, instead of being committed to jail, be kept therein, subject to labor and confinement. [Acts 1879, p. 9, sec. 65. R. S. 1879, 409.]

Art. 836. [455] [410] May compel convicts to labor on streets, etc.—To compel and force all offenders against any ordinance of the city, found guilty by the recorder or mayor and sentenced to fine and imprisonment, to labor on the streets and alleys of said city or on any public work, under such regulations as may by ordinance be established. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 837. [456] [410a] Regulate hiring of convicts.—To compel any person who may be convicted of a violation of any of the ordinances of the city, and who may be committed to jail in default of the payment of the fine and costs adjudged against such person to be hired out to any individual, company or corporation within the county in which said conviction is had (and to remain in said county) for the purpose of paying off and discharging said fine and costs, under such regulations as may be prescribed by ordinance, and to pass such ordinances as may be necessary to the regulation and enforcement of said contract of hiring. [Acts of 1887, p. 136.]

Art. 838. [448] [404] May do, etc., to promote health and suppress disease.—To do all acts and make all regulations which may be necessary or expedient for the promotion of health or the suppression of disease. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 60.]

Cited, Ex parte Wade (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 179.

In general.—The city of Dallas may adopt appropriate ordinances to protect the public health, if they conform to the state law on the same subject. Mantel v. State, 55 Cr. R. 456, 117 S. W. 855, 131 Am. St. Rep. 818; Sue Lung v. Same (Cr. App.) 117 S. W. 857.

Dumping ground.—For the negligent maintenance of a dumping ground in such manner as to injure the adjacent resident, a city is responsible in damages. City of Sherman v. Langham (Sup.) 13 S. W. 1042; Hillsboro v. Ivey, 20 S. W. 1012, 1 C. A. 653.

One dumping garbage on his land, the noxious odors from which make it uncomfortable and dangerous to reside on adjacent land, would be liable to the adjoining owner for creating and maintaining a nuisance. City of Paris v. Jenkins, 57 C. A. 383, 122 S. W. 411.

This article authorizes a dumping ground outside the city limits. City of Haskell v. Webb (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 127.

—— Nuisance, measure of damages.—Measure of damages for dumping garbage on land is difference in rental value with and without the nuisance, with cost of taking care of the premises when not rented because of nuisance, and cost of removing. City of San Antonio v. Mackey's Estate, 22 C. A. 145, 54 S. W. 33.

There can be no recovery on the ground of permanent injury to property from dumping of garbage thereon. Id.

The injury resulting to plaintiff's property by the creation of a nuisance by a city by dumping garbage held under the pleading and evidence to be only temporary, so that the measure of damages was the depreciation in rental value of the property, and not its depreciation in market value. City of Paris v. Jenkins, 57 C. A. 383, 122 S. W. 411.

Can destroy property for suppression of disease.—A city held authorized to destroy property for the suppression of disease, under its charter, only when a necessity existed. City of Dallas v. Allen (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 324.

Art. 839. [417] [373] May make health and quarantine regulations.—To make regulations to prevent the introduction of contagious disease into the city; to make quarantine laws for that purpose, and to enforce them within the city and within ten miles thereof. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 840. [424] [380] May establish hospitals, etc.—To erect or establish one or more hospitals, and control and regulate the same, and to prohibit or to permit and regulate the establishment of private hospitals. [Id. sec. 37.]

Art. 841. [438] [394] May regulate inspection, etc., of provisions, etc.—To regulate the inspection of beef, pork, flour, meal, salt and other provisions, whisky and other liquors to be sold in barrels, hogsheads and other vessels and packages; to appoint weighers, gaugers and inspectors, and prescribe their duties and regulate their fees. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 842. [439] [395] May regulate weight and quality of bread.—To regulate the weight and quality of the bread to be sold or used within the city. [Id. sec. 51.]

Art. 843. [437] [393] May regulate butchers, etc.—To make such rules and regulations in relation to butchers as they may deem necessary and proper. [Id. sec. 49.]

Art. 844. [453] [408] May define nuisances and punish persons guilty thereof, etc.—To abate and remove nuisances and to punish the authors thereof by penalties, fine and imprisonment, and to define and declare what shall be nuisances and authorize and direct the summary abatement thereof.

Nuisance—Judicial question.—Articles 844, 854, and 863, giving to the council of cities the exclusive power over its streets, authorizing the abatement of nuisances and to define what shall be nuisances, and to control the construction of railroad crossings, authorize a city council to abate a nuisance at common law or under the statute, irrespective of any ordinance on the subject, but, where the thing complained of is not a nuisance per se, the question whether it is a nuisance is one for judicial determination. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. City of Belton, 57 C. A. 460, 122 S. W. 413.

Power to abate in general.—A city can maintain an action to abate a nuisance which renders the atmosphere unhealthy to many of its inhabitants. City of Belton v. Baylor Female College (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 680.

Matters which, though annoying, are in the nature of ordinary incidents of city or town life, cannot be abated as nuisances. Gose v. Coryell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1164.

The power to abate nuisances which can be exercised by the legislature and conferred by it on municipal corporations, held limited to the prohibition or regulation of matters which injure or interfere with the rights of the citizen. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

Cesspool.—A cesspool is not a nuisance per se, whether it emits offensive odors or not. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 368.

Oil storage tanks.—Apart from a city ordinance regulating the maintenance of oil storage tanks within a city, the construction and maintenance of tanks having a capacity of 11,000 gallons held not a nuisance. Texas Co. v. Fisk (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 188.

Barn.—Erection of a barn on defendant's lot directly across the street and in front of plaintiff's dwelling held not a nuisance in itself. Davis v. Joiner (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 252.

Livery stables.—While a livery stable is not a nuisance per se, it may be so conducted as to become injurious to the health or comfort of surrounding property owners. Hall v. Carter (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 461.

Evidence held to support a finding that livery stable was a private nuisance justifying equitable relief and damages for temporary discomfort. Id.

Nuisance erected by county.—A municipal corporation has authority to abate nuisances erected by the county within the city limits on land occupied by county buildings. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 368.

City can maintain action to abate nuisance.—A city may enjoin the county from erecting a jail and cesspool on a public square. City of Llano v. Llano County, 23 S. W. 1008, 5 C. A. 132.

An incorporated city may maintain an action to abate a nuisance within its limits. City of Belton v. Central Hotel Co. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 297; Llano County v. City of Laredo, 9 C. A. 372, 28 S. W. 926; City of Belton v. Baylor Female College (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 680.

Art. 845. [447] [403] May abate nuisances.—To abate all nuisances which may injure or affect the public health or comfort in any manner they may deem expedient. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 59.]

Owner not entitled to damages.—See, also, notes under Art. 844.

A horse, left by the owner in charge of a livery stable keeper, became sick with an incurable disease, and when it became a public nuisance it was killed, pursuant to the instructions of the mayor and aldermen and the town health officer, and at the request of the livery stable keeper. Held, that as the city had the right under this article and article 850, to summarily abate such a nuisance, calculated to affect the public health or comfort of its inhabitants, the owner was not entitled to recover even nominal damages from the city or the other parties concerned, on the ground that a trespass was committed because they did not get his consent; he being absent at the time. Mezlar v. Miles (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 972.

Art. 846. [450] [405] May compel the cleansing of premises.—To compel the owner or occupant of any grocery, soap, tallow or chandler establishment, or blacksmith shop, tannery, stable, slaughter-house, distillery, brewery, sewers, privy, hide-houses or other unwholesome on nauseous house or place, to cleanse, remove or abate the same, as may be necessary for the health, comfort and convenience of the inhabitants. [Acts 1879, p. 9, sec. 61.]

Health regulations.—See Arts. 838 and 839.

Art. 847. [459] [413] May require owner of drain, sink, etc., to fill up, cleanse, etc., the same, and punish for failure to do so.—To require the owner of private drains, sinks and privies to fill up, cleanse, drain, alter, relay, repair, fix and improve the same, as may be ordered by any resolution or ordinance of said city; and in the event of any failure, neglect or refusal to comply with any such order, the party so failing shall be liable to fine and imprisonment. In the event of there being no person in the city on whom such order can be served the city may have such work done and such improvements made on account of the owner thereof; and all costs, charges and expenses shall be a lien on the property, on the filing of a memorandum by the mayor, under the seal of the corporation thereof, and recording the same with the clerk of the district court; and the city may enforce said lien and institute suit in the corporate name and obtain judgment against said party for the amount so due as aforesaid in any court having jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 69. R. S. 1879, 413.]

Interference with private drains.—In an action by the owner of a sewer in a public street to enjoin a sewerage company from interfering therewith, the right of such owner to operate the sewer held not involved. Oak Cliff Sewerage Co. v. Marsalis, 30 C. A. 42, 69 S. W. 176.

In an action by the owner of a sewer in a street conveyed to a railway company before it was dedicated to public use, to restrain a sewerage company from interference with such sewer, the question of title between such owner and the railway company need not be determined. Id.

Dedication.—See notes under Art. 770.

Art. 848. [451] [406] May direct the location of certain establishments, etc.—To direct the location of business, tanneries, blacksmith shops, foundries, livery stables and any manufacturing establishment; to direct the location and regulate the management and construction of, restrain, abate and prohibit within the city limits, slaughtering establishments and hide-houses or establishments for keeping or curing hides, establishments for making soap, for steaming or rendering lard, tallow, offal and such other substances as may be rendered; and all other establishments or places where any nauseous, offensive or unwholesome business may be carried on. [Acts 1879, p. 9, sec. 62. R. S. 1879, 406.]

Art. 849. [452] [407] May regulate the burial of the dead, etc.—To regulate the burial of the dead; to purchase, establish and regulate one or more cemeteries; to regulate the registration of deaths, marriages and births; to direct the returning and keeping of bills of mortality. [Id. sec. 63.]

Cemetery.—Permission by a city to a company to use land for a cemetery in a prohibited district, under the superintendence of the city sexton, held consideration for its agreement not to charge over $25 for burial lots. City of Austin v. Austin City Cemetery Ass'n, 96 T. 384, 73 S. W. 525.

Cemetery corporations.—See Art. 1286 et seq.

Art. 850. [462] [416] May prevent, etc., dead animals, etc., being deposited within city limits.—To prevent any person from bringing, depositing or having within the limits of said city any dead carcass, or any other offensive or unwholesome substance or matter, and to require the removal or destruction by any person who shall have placed or caused to be placed upon or near his premises, or elsewhere, of any substance or matter, filth, or any putrid or unsound beef, pork or fish, hides or skins of any kind; and, on his default, to authorize the removal or destruction thereof by some officer of the city, and require the owner of any dead animal to remove the same to such place as may be designated. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 72.]

Dumping ground.—See notes under Art. 838.

Disposition of garbage—Ordinance relating to disposition of garbage held reasonable municipal regulation. Ex parte Anderson, 53 Cr. R. 243, 109 S. W. 193.

Owner of property not entitled to damages.—See note under Art. 845.

Art. 851. [445] [401] May tax, etc., dogs.—To tax, regulate or restrain and prohibit the running at large of dogs, and to authorize their destruction when at large contrary to ordinances, and to impose penalties on the owners or keepers thereof for violations of such ordinances. [Id. sec. 57.]

At large contrary to ordinance.—An ordinance authorizing an officer to shoot unmuzzled dogs on the street is in violation of article 473, Penal Code, and is void. Lynn v. State, 33 Cr. R. 153, 25 S. W. 779.

Tax on dogs.—Ordinance imposing tax on dogs held a valid exercise of the police power. Kidd v. Reynolds, 20 C. A. 355, 50 S. W. 600.

Art. 852. [449] Sanitary regulations by cities and counties.—To co-operate with the commissioners' court of the county in which the municipality is situated in making such improvements as may, by it and said court, be deemed necessary to improve the public health and promote efficient sanitary regulations, and to arrange for the construction of, and payment for, said improvements. [Acts of 1879, p. 9.]

Art. 853. [433] [389] Incorporated cities may establish libraries.—Any incorporated city or town in this state is authorized to establish a free library in such city or town, and to adopt rules and regulations for the proper management thereof, and to appropriate such part of the revenues of such city or town for the management and increase of such free library as the municipal government of such city or town may determine. [Acts Feb. 26, 1874, p. 13, sec. 1. R. S. 1879, 389.]

Art. 854. Control over streets, alleys, etc.—Any incorporated city or town in this state shall have the exclusive control and power over the streets, alleys and public grounds and highways, of the city, and to abate and remove encroachments or obstructions thereon; to open alter, widen, extend, establish, regulate, grade, clean, and otherwise improve said streets; to put drains, or sewers, thereon, and to prevent the incumbering thereof in any manner, and to protect the same from encroachments or injury and to regulate and alter the grade of premises; and to require the filling up and raising of the same; and such city council shall also have power to alter or vacate the alley in any block of ground within the city upon the written application of the owner of the block or if there be more than one owner of such block, then upon the written application of all the owners thereof uniting in such application; and such all [alley] so vacated shall thereupon revert to and become the property of the owner of the block of which it was a part, or if more than one, then to the owners of the adjoining lots therein, each extending to the center of the alley so vacated. [Acts 1913, p. 326, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 326, § 1, amends Art. 854 and adds Arts. 854a, 854b, and 854c.

1. Establishment of street.
2. —— "North."
3. Alteration of streets.
4. Law of the road.
5. Obstructions.
6. —— Removal.
7. —— Rights of abutting owners.
8. —— Liability of person violating ordinance.
9. Telephone poles in streets.
10. Regulations as to setting of telegraph poles.
11. Control over side walks.
12. May not alienate street.
13. Nuisance—A judicial question.
14. Street improvements.
15. Grant of franchises and privileges in streets—Power of city.
16. —— Construction of grant.
17. —— Forfeiture.
18. Liability for injuries from defects in streets.
19. Street cleaning and dumping grounds.
20. —— Individual citizens not liable.
21. Construction of sewers and liabilities arising therefrom.
22. Powers of county commissioners.

1. Establishment of street.—An ordinance held to have established a street, and not to be merely preparatory to the subsequent establishment. Grace v. Walker, 95 T. 39, 64 S. W. 930, 65 S. W. 482.

2. —— "North."—The word "north" in an ordinance establishing a street held to give only the course of the street. Grace v. Walker, 95 T. 39, 64 S. W. 930, 65 S. W. 482.

3. Alteration of streets.—Streets in a city are subject to change and alteration by legislative authority, and public inconvenience (Harrel v. Lynch, 65 T. 146), or a depreciation in value of property caused thereby, is damnum absque injuria. Wooters v. City of Crockett, 11 C. A. 474, 33 S. W. 391.

A city council has the right to curtail the width of a street. Scott v. City of Marlin, 25 C. A. 353, 60 S. W. 970.

An ordinance passed on the request of certain abutting owners, changing the width of a street from 25 to 40 feet, held binding on those who consented. Grace v. Walker, 95 T. 39, 64 S. W. 930, 65 S. W. 482.

4. Law of the road.—Plaintiff, who drove up to the left-hand curb of the street, and there held a conversation with a pedestrian, was not in violation of an ordinance requiring all persons to turn to the right so as to preclude a recovery of damages for injuries from the running away of his horse, caused by the negligence of defendant's servant who drove by him. United States Exp. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 617.

5. Obstructions.—An ordinance of a city prohibiting the unnecessary obstruction of sidewalks with boxes, vehicles, etc., is valid. Sandeguard Grocery Co. v. Conley, 47 C. A. 87, 104 S. W. 1073.

A fence built out into street in front of building in course of construction held illegal in absence of any ordinance authorizing it. Moore & Savage v. Kopplin (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1033.

An unauthorized or unreasonable obstruction or encroachment on a public highway is a nuisance at common law. Id.

6. —— Removal.—The city having a legal right to the possession and control of the streets is by statute impowered to enter upon the said streets and remove whatever obstructions may be found therein. City of Corsicana v. Zorn, 97 T. 317, 78 S. W. 926.

7. —— Rights of abutting owners.—See notes at end of Chapter 10.

8. —— Liability of person violating ordinance.—A violation of a city ordinance, by leaving an open ditch in a street by city licensee, held negligence per se. Browne v. Bachman, 31 C. A. 430, 72 S. W. 622.

9. Telephone poles in streets.—The enactment of this article is subsequent in point of time to article 1231 relating to telegraph lines, and it was not the intention of the legislature by granting cities exclusive control of streets, alleys, etc., to set at naught the authority previously given by it to telegraph and telephone lines to occupy such highways with their poles, wires, etc. Whatever power is lodged in the city council is delegated to it by the legislature. A city can regulate a telephone company in the use of its streets, but it cannot oust it entirely because it has obained no franchise authorizing the use and occupation of the streets. City of Texarkana v. Southwestern Telephone & Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 917.

The power of control of its streets, with right to abate any encroachments thereon, given a city by this article, is subordinate to the power given telegraph and telephone companies by article 1870 to set their poles along streets, subject only to the right given the city by article 1874 to specify location and kind of poles, so that injunction against interference by the city with erection of telephone poles in streets does not divest the city of its right of possession of the street; such right having been granted the company by the state. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

10. Regulations as to setting of telegraph poles.—See Art. 1231 et seq.

11. Control over sidewalks.—Article 762 authorizes the incorporation of any city containing 1,000 inhabitants or over, and article 854 declares that such a city shall have exclusive control over its streets. Article 1033 relates to towns or villages containing more than 500 and less than 10,000 inhabitants, and article 1049 provides that the board of aldermen of such towns shall have exclusive control over the streets, within the corporate limits. Held that, whether a city was incorporated under article 762 or article 1033 it would have control over sidewalks within its limits, and would be liable for negligence with respect thereto. City of Haskell v. Barker (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 833.

12. May not alienate street.—A charter held not to have given a city authority to alienate streets. Krause v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 828.

13. Nuisance—A judicial question.—See note under Art. 844.

14. Street improvements.—See Arts. 999–1017.

15. Grant of franchises and privileges in streets—Power of city.—The right to construct and operate a street railway cannot be conferred by a municipal ordinance. City of San Antonio v. Rische (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 388.

A city has the right to permit the use of its streets for the erection of poles and feed wires for use in connection with a street railway system. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Brock, 48 C. A. 41, 106 S. W. 460.

The state held to have the paramount authority to regulate the use of public highways, and a city succeeding to such authority may grant to private persons the privilege of permanently using portions of the highways to carry on a business furnishing public service. Texarkana Gas & Electric Co. v. City of Texarkana (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 213.

A city, in granting a franchise to a private individual to permanently occupy and use portions of the highways to carry on a business furnishing some public service, may impose conditions, and where the franchise is accepted it is subject to the conditions. Id.

A city council has no power to grant a license for an unreasonable use of a street interfering with the rights of an occupant of adjoining property. American Const. Co. v. Seelig (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 655.

Authority to enclose a portion of a street cannot be conferred on an abutting property owner by license or permit issued by a city officer without authority from the city council, but may be conferred by ordinance duly enacted. American Const. Co. v. Seelig, 104 T. 16, 133 S. W. 429.

16. —— Construction of grant.—A city ordinance held to impliedly authorize a street railway to transmit electric power over streets other than those mentioned in the ordinance. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Brock, 48 C. A. 41, 106 S. W. 460.

A street railway company, laying its rails in a street, held required, at common law and under the ordinance granting a franchise, to keep the track and street in good repair. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. v. Johns, 52 C. A. 489, 116 S. W. 62.

Evidence held insufficient to show that the grantees of a franchise to construct a street railroad commenced work within the time required by the ordinance granting the franchise. Spencer v. City of Palestine, 54 C. A. 392, 116 S. W. 857.

Grants of public rights by municipalities to individuals are strictly construed in favor of the public against the individual. Ennis Waterworks v. Ennis (Sup.) 144 S. W. 930.

An exclusive grant will not be implied unless given by express terms or clear implication. Id.

17. —— Forfeiture.—Where municipal ordinances granting franchises for the construction of an electric light plant and a street railway contained no provisions for forfeiture, and were accepted, the rights could only be declared forfeited in a suit brought for that purpose. Spencer v. City of Palestine, 54 C. A. 392, 116 S. W. 857.

18. Liability for injuries from defects in streets.—See notes under Art. 999.

19. Street cleaning and dumping grounds.—The cleaning of city streets and disposal of garbage is the exercise of a corporate power, as distinguished from a governmental function, for the abuse of which a city is liable. Ostrom v. City of San Antonio, 94 T. 523, 62 S. W. 909.

Where a city scavenger repeatedly deposited dead animals and other filth near plaintiff's residence, the fact that the city ordinance imposed a penalty for such acts did not exempt the city from liability. City of Stephenville v. Bower, 29 C. A. 384, 68 S. W. 833.

Where a city scavenger deposited dead animals, etc., near a residence, the city was liable, though the ground was not owned by it and was not under its control. Id.

A city held liable for a nuisance due to a dumping ground maintained by it, notwithstanding it was outside its corporate limits. City of Coleman v. Price, 54 C. A. 39, 117 S. W. 905.

A city acts in its individual, and not in its governmental capacity, in disposing of its garbage, and is liable as an individual for creating a nuisance in doing so, so that it would be liable to an adjoining owner, irrespective of negligence, where it established a garbage dump on its own land, the noxious odors from which made it uncomfortable and dangerous to reside on adjacent land. City of Paris v. Jenkins, 57 C. A. 383, 122 S. W. 411.

A city authorized to maintain a dumping ground is liable for damages to adjoining owners, caused by its maintenance as a nuisance. City of Haskell v. Webb (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 127.

20. —— Individual citizens not liable.—Individual citizens held not liable for improper burial of their refuse matter by the city authorities. Parsons v. City of Ft. Worth, 26 C. A. 273, 63 S. W. 889.

21. Construction of sewers and liabilities arising therefrom.—See notes under Art. 857.

22. Powers of county commissioners.—See notes under Art. 2241.

Art. 854a. Charter may authorize sale of squares, parks, streets, etc.—The charter or any amendment thereto, may authorize the city council, board of commissioners, board of aldermen or other city government, to sell and cause to be conveyed any land held or claimed for or as a public square or park, and parts of streets and alleys within the limits of the city. The proceeds of any such sale shall be used only for the purpose of acquiring public squares, streets, or alleys. [Id.]

Art. 854b. Charter may authorize closing streets and alleys for use by railroad company, etc.; sale or closing to be submitted to vote.—The charter, or any amendment thereto, may authorize the city council, board of commissioners, board of aldermen, or other city government to close for exclusive use temporarily or perpetually by any railroad company or other corporation having power of eminent domain, any part or parts, of any street or streets, alley or alleys, and to ratify and confirm any prior ordinances closing any street or streets, alley or alleys, or any part or parts thereof, for the use of any railroad company or any such other corporation.

No public square or park shall be sold and no street or alley, nor part or parts of any street or alley closed until the question of the sale of such public square or park for [or] the closing of such street or alley, or the part or parts, of such street or alley, has been submitted to a vote of the qualified voters, of the city or town, and approved by majority of the votes cast at such election. [Id.]

Art. 854c. In what towns and cities act may be enforced.—This Act shall be enforced in towns or cities under 5000 population or cities over 5000 population which have no special charter and in towns or cities incorporated under Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, and in cities or towns incorporated under any special law. The power authorized by this article may be conferred upon the city council, board of commissioners, board of aldermen, or other city government, by vote of the qualified voters, as in article 854b, of this Act provided. [Id.]

Art. 855. [426] [382] May prevent the incumbering of streets, etc., and cause unsafe buildings to be removed, etc.—To prevent the incumbering of the streets, alleys, sidewalks and public grounds, with carriages, wagons, carts, hacks, buggies, or any vehicle whatsoever, boxes, lumber, timber, firewood, posts, awnings, signs, or any other substance or material whatever, or in any other manner whatever; to compel all persons to keep all weeds, filth and any kind of rubbish from the sidewalks and streets and gutters in front of the premises occupied by them; to require and compel the owners of property to fill up, grade, gravel, and otherwise improve the sidewalks in front of same.

Rights and duties of railway in street.—See Title 115.

Art. 856. [550] [479] City council may cause dangerous buildings, etc., to be removed.—Whenever, in the opinion of the city council, any building, fence, shed, awning or any erection of any kind or any part thereof is liable to fall down and endanger persons or property, they may order any owner or agent of the same, or any owner or occupant of the premises on which such building, shed, awning or other erection stands or to which it is attached, to take down and remove the same, or any part thereof, within such time as they may direct; and to punish by fine and imprisonment, or either, any neglect, failure or refusal to comply therewith. The city council shall, in addition, have the power to remove the same at the expense of the city, on account of the owner of the property or premises, and assess the expenses on the land on which it stood or to which it was attached, and shall, by ordinance, provide for such assessment, the mode and manner of giving notice and the means of recovering any such expenses. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 131.]

Art. 857. [420] [376] May construct bridges, etc., sewers, sidewalks, etc.—To establish, erect, construct, regulate and keep in repair, bridges, culverts and sewers, sidewalks and crossways, and to regulate the construction and use of the same, and to abate and punish any obstructions or encroachments thereon; and the cost of construction of sidewalks shall be defrayed by the owner of the lot, or part of lot or block, fronting on the sidewalk; and the cost of any sidewalk constructed by the city shall be collected, if necessary, by the sale of the lot, or part of lot or block on which it fronts, together with the cost of collection, in such a manner as the city council may by ordinance provide; and a sale of any lot or part of lot or block to enforce collection of costs of sidewalks shall convey a good title to the purchaser; and the balance of proceeds of sale, after paying the amount due the city and costs of sale, shall be paid by the city to the owner. [Id. sec. 33.]

See City of Houston v. Bryan, 22 S. W. 231, 2 C. A. 553; Ringelstein v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 634; Ball v. City of El Paso, 23 S. W. 835, 5 C. A. 221; City of Dallas v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 292; City of Austin v. Colgate (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 896; Parker v. City of Laredo, 9 C. A. 221, 28 S. W. 1048; City of Bonham v. Preston (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 391; City of Belton v. Turner (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 831.

Contracts for construction of sewers.—A contract for the construction of a sewer held not to authorize the city to contract with others to do the work and to bind the contractors on the decision of the engineer as to the expense incurred in executing the contract. Marshall v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 138.

In an action for breach of contract for the construction of a sewer, a contention as to the classification of rock excavated held untenable, as assuming that in the engineer's opinion the material was rock which required blasting. Id.

Assignees of a contract for the construction of a sewer cannot complain of the city's obstructing the work prior to the time the contract was actually assigned and the assignment ratified by the city, though the latter may have known of the purchase. Id.

In a suit by original contractors against the city for breach of a sewer contract, the city held not entitled to all the sums paid by it to substituted contractors above the agreed contract price without evidence that the amount paid exceeded such price. Id.

In an action against a contractor for breach of a contract to construct city waterworks, the measure of damages defined. City of Sherman v. Connor (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 238.

A report by the city engineer dealing with a part only of the expense held insufficient to constitute a "decision," within the meaning of a contract for construction of a sewer. City of San Antonio v. L. A. Marshall & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 315.

One who contracts with a city to supervise the construction of sewers cannot be deprived of compensation by improper appropriation by the city of part of the sewer fund. City of Houston v. Potter, 41 C. A. 381, 91 S. W. 389.

Liability of city in respect to sewers and drains—Failure to construct.—Where a city has not undertaken to drain its streets it is not liable for damages resulting from its failure to do so. Messer v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 928.

—— Defects in sewers and drains.—Liability of city for negligently causing the flowing of private property from a city ditch. Houston v. Bryan, 22 S. W. 231, 2 C. A. 553.

When a city negligently allows a culvert to become stopped up, it is liable for damages caused thereby. City of Dallas v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 292.

A city authorized to maintain a general drainage system is liable for injury resulting from negligently maintaining the same. City of Dallas v. Webb, 22 C. A. 48, 54 S. W. 398.

A city held liable for the flooding of plaintiff's premises by surface waters. City of Houston v. Hutcheson (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 86.

In an action against a city for injury to abutting property from drainage ditches, held, that the measure of damages was the difference in value between two certain dates, excluding any general enhancement in value enjoyed by the community, and that there was no ground of objection to the adoption of those dates as dates of comparison in assessing damages. City of Houston v. Merkel (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 385.

The fact that there was no evidence of any purpose on the part of defendant city to permit any further enlargement of the ditches in front of plaintiff's property would not deprive plaintiff of the right to sue for permanent damages for the present and probable future natural enlargement of them. City of Houston v. Williams (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 387.

—— Sewer polluting water course.—The fact that sewage from a municipal sewer system is deposited on land some distance from a water course will not exonerate the city from liability for the pollution of the water course by such sewage. City of San Antonio v. Pizzini (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 635.

Charter authority to construct a sewer system does not exonerate a city from liability for negligence in failing to so care for the sewage as to prevent the pollution of a water course. Id.

The fact that plaintiff acquired his land subsequent to the construction of a sewer system by defendant city does not exonerate the city from liability for polluting a water course on which the land abutted. Id.

A city, leasing its sewer farm, held liable to the lower riparian owner where, by negligence of its lessee, the sewage escapes into a water course to its damage. City of San Antonio v. Diaz (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 549.

—— Right to recover damages.—In an action against a city for emptying sewage into a creek flowing through land of plaintiff, an instruction that, if he used such waters for irrigating purposes, he was guilty of contributory negligence, and could not recover, was properly refused. City of Antonio v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 855.

Where a city ordinance required connection with a sewer under penalty, such connection does not estop injured persons from complaining of a nuisance created by the sewer. Donovan v. Royall, 26 C. A. 248, 63 S. W. 1054.

—— Indemnity to city from lessee of sewer farm.—A city, sued for negligence in permitting its sewer system to pollute a water course, cannot recover indemnity from the lessees of its sewer farm, in the absence of a contractual relation between them obligating such lessees to care for the sewage. City of San Antonio v. Pizzini (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 635.

Art. 858. [446] [402] May prohibit, etc., the firing of arms, etc., the use of velocipedes, ringing of bells, etc.—To prohibit and restrain the firing of fire-crackers, guns and pistols, use of velocipedes, or use of any pyrotechnic or any other amusements or practices tending to annoy persons passing in the streets or sidewalks, or to frighten horses or teams; to restrain and prohibit the ringing of bells, blowing of horns and bugles, crying of goods, and all other noises, practices and performances tending to the collection of persons on the streets and sidewalks, by auctioneers and others, for the purpose of business, amusement or otherwise. [Id. sec. 58.]

Sales in street.—Partial invalidity of an ordinance relating to sales in streets held not to vitiate the remainder. Wade v. Nunnelly, 19 C. A. 256, 46 S. W. 668.

Not liable for acts of officers.—See, also, notes under Art. 803.

A city is not liable for the personal acts of its officers or employés in enforcing an ordinance under this article. Harrison v. Columbus, 44 T. 418; Keller v. Corpus Christi, 50 T. 614, 32 Am. Rep. 613; City of Corsicana v. White, 57 T. 382; Conway v. City of Beaumont, 61 T. 12; City of Galveston v. Posnainsky, 62 T. 130, 50 Am. Rep. 517; Givens v. City of Paris, 24 S. W. 974, 5 C. A. 705.

Art. 859. [463] [417] May prevent, etc., the driving of animals into or through the city.—To prevent, regulate and control the driving of cattle, horses and all other animals into or through the city. [Id. sec. 73.]

Art. 860. [444] [400] May establish pounds, etc.—To establish and regulate public pounds, and to regulate, restrain and prohibit the running at large of horses, mules, cattle, sheep, swine, goats, and to authorize the distraining, impounding and sale of the same for the costs of the proceedings and the penalty incurred, and to order their destruction when they can not be sold, and to impose penalties on the owners thereof for a violation of any ordinance. [Id. sec. 56. R. S. 1879, 400.]

Validity.—Ordinances adopted in conformity with this article may be enforced. Moore v. Crenshaw, 1 App. C. C. § 264; Coyle v. McNabb, 4 App. C. C. § 284, 18 S. W. 198; Waco v. Powell, 32 T. 258; City of Paris v. Hale, 13 C. A. 386, 35 S. W. 333.

An ordinance prohibiting the keeping of hogs in the business section and most heavily populated residence section of the city held not invalid. Ex parte Botts (Cr. App.) 154 S. W. 221.

A city ordinance, passed according to statutory authority, providing for the impounding of stock running at large, held constitutional. Conner v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 567.

Need not be submitted to voters.—It is not necessary that the ordinance under this article should be submitted to and approved by the freeholders of the municipality, nor is it invalid because it directs the marshal to establish public pounds. Batsel v. Blaine, 4 App. C. C. § 196, 15 S. W. 283.

The constitution and laws in pursuance thereof held not to prohibit a city from passing an ordinance prohibiting stock from running at large within its limits without first submitting the question to a vote of the people. Thompson v. City of Brownwood, 44 C. A. 623, 98 S. W. 938.

"Running at large."—A horse, running to his stable unattended, according to custom, held running at large, within an ordinance making it unlawful for horses to run at large. Allen v. Hazzard, 33 C. A. 523, 77 S. W. 268.

Plaintiff's cow found running at large in a city and taken up by a citizen and the marshal notified held running at large within a city ordinance providing for the impounding and sale of animals found running at large within the city limits. Conner v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 567.

Liability for injury to animal "running at large."—Though plaintiff's horse was running at large on a public street in violation of an ordinance, defendant held liable if his servant without ordinary care negligently drove his team against the horse. Ulit v. Biggs, 53 C. A. 529, 116 S. W. 126.

Conflict of ordinance with state law.—See note under Art. 817.

Art. 861. [442] [398] May prevent, etc., horse-racing, etc.—To prevent, prohibit and suppress horse-racing, immoderate riding or driving in the streets; to compel persons to fasten their horses or other animals attached to vehicles, or otherwise, while standing or remaining in the streets. [Id. sec. 54.]

Negligent use of street.—See notes at end of Title 22, Chapter 10.

Violation of ordinance.—It is negligence per se to drive through city streets faster than permitted by city ordinance. Foley v. Northrup, 47 C. A. 277, 105 S. W. 229.

Art. 862. [461] [415] May regulate street railways.—The city council shall have power to compel street railway companies to keep their roads in repair, and to make them conform to the grades of the streets upon which their tracks may be laid, whenever said streets shall have been graded by the city, and to restrain the rate of speed so as not to exceed seven miles per hour, and to compel said city railroads to supply ample accommodation for the safe and convenient travel of the people on the street where their track may run; the city council may enforce these regulations by proper ordinances, with suitable penalties for any violation of said ordinances. [Id. sec. 71.]

Grant of right to use street.—See notes under Art. 854.

Validity of regulations.—An ordinance regulating the running of street cars held reasonable on its face. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Holt, 30 C. A. 330, 70 S. W. 591.

Construction of regulations.—An ordinance held not to require electric railroad to provide trailers with fender and motorman. Von Diest v. San Antonio Traction Co., 33 C. A. 577, 77 S. W. 632.

A city ordinance requiring street cars to come to a full stop before crossing any railroad track held sufficiently comprehensive to include a spur track. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Vollrath, 40 C. A. 46, 89 S. W. 279.

Violation of ordinance.—When the ordinance of a city under which a street railway company is incorporated makes it the duty of the driver of a street railway car to keep a vigilant lookout for all persons approaching the railway track, and to stop the car on the first appearance of danger, a failure to perform this duty, followed by injury to one near the track, is of itself an act of negligence. Hays v. Railway Co., 70 T. 602, 8 S. W. 491, 8 Am. St. Rep. 624.

It is negligence to run cars at a greater rate of speed than is allowed by ordinance. City Railway Co. v. Wiggins (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 577.

In an action against a street railway company for injury to a passenger, a certain ordinance pleaded held to be relevant to the issue and properly admitted in evidence. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Bryant, 30 C. A. 437, 70 S. W. 1015.

A "substantial compliance" with a penal municipal ordinance, requiring street railways to maintain fenders, was sufficient. Fitzgibbons v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1186.

Art. 863. [460] [414] May control, etc., the laying of railway tracks, etc.—To direct and control the laying and constructing of railroad tracks, turnouts and switches, or prohibit the same in the streets, avenues and alleys, unless the same have been authorized by law, and the location of depots within the city; to require that railroad tracks, turnouts and switches shall be so constructed as to interfere as little as possible with the ordinary travel and use of streets, avenues and alleys, and that sufficient space shall be left on either side of a track for the safe and convenient passage of teams, carriages and other vehicles, and persons; to require railroad companies to keep in repair the streets, avenues or alleys through which their track may run, and, if ordered by the city council, to construct, and keep in repair, suitable crossings at the intersection of streets, avenues and alleys, and ditches, sewers and culverts, when the city council shall deem it necessary; to direct the use and regulate the speed of locomotive engines in said city, or to prevent and prohibit the use or running of the same within the city; provided, that the provisions of this article shall apply to railroads known as steam railroads, and not to city, street or horse railroads. [Id. sec. 70.]

Power to grant right to lay tracks in street.—A city has a right to grant a railroad company a right to lay a track in a street. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 28 C. A. 551, 67 S. W. 525.

A street railroad company's franchise held to confer the right to construct passing tracks on a particular street without the city council's consent. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. City of Denison (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 115.

A track which a street railroad company sought to construct in a street held a switch, and not a double track, within an ordinance authorizing the company to construct its tracks in the street. City of Denison v. Denison & S. Ry. Co., 103 T. 344, 127 S. W. 804.

A grant by a city under charter power is of a governmental or legislative character, and is entitled to the same construction as if the grant were direct from the Legislature. Whitcomb v. Houston (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 215.

A charter provision held to authorize a city council to allow a street railroad to lay tracks in a street and in an alley. McCammon & Lang Lumber Co. v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 85.

A city may grant to a railroad the right to use streets for its road in consideration of its establishing and keeping its general offices and shops in the city. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sweetwater (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 251.

Franchise entitled to protection as vested rights.—Where a city authorizes a railroad to lay a track in a street, it may not thereafter, without consent of such railroad, authorize another railway to use such track. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 28 C. A. 551, 67 S. W. 525.

A franchise granted by a city to a street railway company held entitled to the protection accorded to vested rights, precluding the city from subsequently imposing additional burdens. Texarkana Gas & Electric Co. v. City of Texarkana (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 213.

Regulation of railroads—Speed.—An ordinance forbidding trains to run in excess of six miles an hour is operative in the yards of railroad companies. Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Powell (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 695.

Person walking upon a portion of a railroad track commonly used as a footway to the knowledge of the company held rightfully upon the track, so as to be entitled to benefit of ordinance regulating speed of trains. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 28 C. A. 92, 66 S. W. 588, 67 S. W. 788.

A city ordinance prohibiting the running of trains within the city limits at a speed exceeding six miles per hour held binding on the railway companies, as well as those operating their trains. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Owens (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 579.

Land used by the public as a highway crossing a railroad held entitled to the character of a highway, making the city ordinances protecting the public in the use of highways applicable thereto. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Levy, 35 C. A. 107, 79 S. W. 879.

Ordinance of city, restricting speed of trains within its limits to six miles an hour, held not unreasonable. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bolton, 36 C. A. 87, 81 S. W. 123.

City held to have right by ordinance to regulate speed of trains to a reasonable limit. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Dillard (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 426.

Municipal regulations as to the speed of trains, etc., held applicable to places where the public habitually cross with acquiescence of the company. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Frugia, 43 C. A. 48, 95 S. W. 563.

—— Ringing of bell, etc.—An ordinance requiring a locomotive bell to be rung while the locomotive was in motion within the corporate limits held to apply to a railroad yard. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Melville (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 863.

A highway held a public highway, within the city ordinance requiring the engineer in charge of a locomotive to sound the whistle at street crossings, and such ordinance held to require a continuous ringing of the bell while the engines were in motion. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Levy, 35 C. A. 107, 79 S. W. 879.

—— Blocking crossing, etc.—The blocking of a public crossing by a train for more than five minutes, in violation of an ordinance, and its starting without warning while plaintiff was attempting to climb between it, constituted inseparable acts of negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bean, 55 C. A. 341, 119 S. W. 328.

—— Grade of tracks.—A city charter held to grant specific power to a city council to pass an ordinance compelling railroads to adjust the grade of their tracks, where they intersect streets, to the street grade, at their own expense. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 525.

The reasonableness or necessity of an ordinance requiring railroads to conform to grade of streets at crossings held not open to question. Id.

It is no objection to a city ordinance requiring railroad tracks to be reduced at crossings to grade that it would require the roadbed also to be reduced between crossings. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. City of Dallas, 98 T. 396, 84 S. W. 648, 70 L. R. A. 850.

In mandamus by a city to compel a railroad to establish a grade crossing, the railroad held entitled to show that it is impracticable to maintain a grade crossing. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. City of Belton (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 413.

Effect of non-observance, etc., upon liability of railroad.—To render negligence in running a train through a city at a speed beyond the rate allowed by ordinance actionable, it must have in some manner occasioned the injury complained of. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cardena, 22 C. A. 300, 54 S. W. 312.

Running a train within the corporate limits of a city at a greater rate of speed than permitted by an ordinance of the city is negligence per se, and the company is responsible for the value of an animal killed within its road-yard by such train. The fact that the owner of the animal permitted it to run at large, there being no ordinance prohibiting it, does not constitute contributory negligence. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Cockrell, 2 App. C. C. § 717.

Where injury occurs by reason of the violation of a city ordinance regulating the speed of railway engines, such violation is negligence per se, though recovery therefor may be defeated by contributory negligence. Chicago, R. I. & T. R. Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 496.

Where a party, injured because of the violation of an ordinance prohibiting the rapid running of trains, did not know of the ordinance, such fact did not affect the company's liability. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 28 C. A. 92, 66 S. W. 588, 67 S. W. 788.

Neglect of municipal authorities to enforce an ordinance prohibiting the rapid running of trains held not to excuse a violation of the ordinance and exempt a railroad company from liability for injuries caused by such violation. Id.

Violation of an ordinance prohibiting the rapid running of trains within city limits held negligence per se, entitling a party injured thereby to recover. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 28 C. A. 92, 66 S. W. 588, 67 S. W. 788; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Owens (Civ. App.) 75 S. W 579; Garber v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 857; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cambron (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1130.

Railroad company's failure to comply with an ordinance requiring it to maintain signal lights at all obstructions which it had placed in the streets near its track held negligence. Houston, B. & N. Ry. Co. v. Pollard, 28 C. A. 172, 66 S. W. 851.

The failure of a railway company to cause the engine bell to be rung while its engine is in motion, as required by ordinance, held negligence per se. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Levy, 35 C. A. 107, 79 S. W. 879.

The violation of city ordinances regulating the operation of trains within the corporate limits, resulting in an injury to a third person, is negligence per se. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Matherly, 35 C. A. 604, 81 S. W. 589.

In an action for injuries to a child, evidence held to show that the accident occurred at a point within the city limits of B., where defendant was bound to comply with a speed ordinance. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Ball, 38 C. A. 279, 85 S. W. 456.

Violation of a speed ordinance by a railroad company, causing injury to a person at a public crossing, held actionable negligence. Id.

Facts held insufficient to establish that the violation of a railroad speed ordinance was not the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Penny, 39 C. A. 358, 87 S. W. 718.

Failure of a railroad company to observe a speed ordinance at the time deceased was killed while crossing the track held not to constitute actionable negligence, unless it was the proximate cause of decedent's death. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jackson, 41 C. A. 51, 90 S. W. 918.

A railroad company is liable for injuries at a crossing caused by its violation of an ordinance requiring the engine bell to be rung continuously within the corporate limits. Garber v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 857.

That a speed ordinance was customarily violated, and the train operatives were not prosecuted therefor, was not a defense to an action for injuries at a crossing caused by running the train in violation of the ordinance. Id.

Speed of a train in violation of municipal ordinances held not the proximate cause of an injury to a horse at a crossing. Ludtke v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 377.

Ordinance admissible in evidence.—See notes under Art. 821.

Art. 864. [423] [379] May improve public grounds, cemeteries, etc.—To provide for the inclosing, regulating and improving all public grounds and cemeteries belonging to the city, and to direct and regulate the planting and preserving of ornaments and shade trees in the streets, sidewalks or public grounds. [Id. sec. 36.]

Street improvements.—See notes under Arts. 999-1017.

Art. 865. [418] [374] To provide city with water, etc.; water system not to be leased without vote, etc.—To provide, or cause to be provided, the city with water; to make, to regulate and establish public wells, pumps and cisterns, hydrants and reservoirs, in the streets or elsewhere within said city or beyond the limits thereof, for the extinguishment of fires and the convenience of the inhabitants, and to prevent the unnecessary waste of water; provided, that any city or town owning, or that may hereafter own, its water system and plant shall not lease or sell the same without first submitting the question of such proposed lease or sale to a vote of the qualified voters who are property taxpayers of such town or city, as shown by the last preceding tax rolls, at a general election, or at one held for that especial purpose, nor unless a majority of those voting shall vote in favor thereof. Before submitting such question to a vote as aforesaid, the proposed contract of lease or sale shall be distinctly set forth in the form of an ordinance or contract, and shall be filed with the city or town secretary or clerk for at least twenty days prior to the day of the election, and shall, at all times, be subject to inspection by the people of such city. [Acts 1875, p. 256. Acts 1900, p. 17.]

For irrigation.—A city may provide waterworks for irrigation. City of Ysleta v. Babbitt, 8 C. A. 432, 28 S. W. 702.

Municipal plants—Duty as to furnishing water.—A city operating waterworks must furnish water in due proportion to those entitled to it. City of Ysleta v. Babbitt, 8 C. A. 432, 28 S. W. 702.

One seeking to compel a city to supply water for his land, on which are only flowers and shrubs, held required to plead and prove such use of water is permitted by the city's water regulations. Sturgeon v. Paris (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 967.

—— Liability for injuries.—A city maintaining a system of waterworks is liable for injuries resulting from its negligence in supplying water. Lenzen v. City of New Braunfels, 13 C. A. 335, 35 S. W. 341.

A state can authorize a city to erect a dam across a navigable river, and thereby obstruct the use of its channel as a highway, without creating a liability against the city. City of Austin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 479.

Municipal corporation held not liable for the value of property destroyed by fire through city's negligent failure to furnish water. Butterworth v. City of Henrietta, 25 C. A. 467, 61 S. W. 975; Greenville Water Co. v. Beckham, 55 C. A. 87, 118 S. W. 889.

A municipal corporation cannot, in providing a reservoir for a system of waterworks, create a nuisance by flooding the land of a private citizen. City of Ennis v. Gilder, 32 C. A. 351, 74 S. W. 585.

The care required of a municipal corporation in constructing and maintaining a pipe line for a water supply determined. City of Paris v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 233.

—— Rates, charges, and regulations.—Regulations of a city as to charges and collection for water furnished by its waterworks system held unreasonable and invalid. City of Houston v. Lockwood Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 685.

Ordinances passed by city authorized by charter to make rules and regulations for a system of waterworks held reasonable regulations and as such enforceable. Id.

—— Release from liability for failure to supply.—A city cannot require citizen to sign release from liability for scarcity or failure in water supply. Dittmar v. City of New Braunfels, 20 C. A. 293, 48 S. W. 1114.

A city cannot require citizen who refuses to release it from liability for failure in water supply to pay a higher water rate. Id.

—— Shutting off water supply.—Action of city in shutting off water supply without notice held not justified by fact that citizen's family consisted of six persons, and he was only paying for five, or by fact that citizen was using water for bathtub and not paying therefor, or by the fact that the citizen drained his water into the street, and thereby created a nuisance. City of Van Alstyne v. Morrison, 33 C. A. 670, 77 S. W. 655.

—— Sale to persons outside limits.—No power is conferred by this article to provide any other territory than that embraced within the city with water, nor is any power to establish hydrants, etc., for the convenience of other persons than its inhabitants conferred upon it. The city cannot contract to furnish one not an inhabitant of its territory water for use outside of the city. City of Paris v. Sturgeon (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 459.

Private company supplying water.—City may provide for water by rents of hydrants from a water company. City of Corpus Christi v. Woessner, 58 T. 462; Dwyer v. City of Brenham, 65 T. 526; City of Terrell v. Dessaint, 71 T. 773, 9 S. W. 593; McNeal v. City of Waco, 89 T. 83, 33 S. W. 322; City of Cleburne v. Cleburne W. I. & L. Co., 14 C. A. 229, 37 S. W. 655.

—— Monopoly.—A contract by a city granting to a company the exclusive privilege, for a period of twenty-five years, of furnishing water to the city and its inhabitants, held contrary to the provisions of the constitution against monopolies. An exclusive right in the city to operate water-works distinguished from such an exclusive right in a private company. "Monopoly" defined. Altgelt v. City of San Antonio, 81 T. 436, 17 S. W. 75, 13 L. R. A. 383; City of Austin v. Nalle, 85 T. 522, 22 S. W. 668, 960.

The grant of an exclusive right of way to lay piping for supplying the town with water is ultra vires and void. Edwards v. Jennings, 89 T. 618, 35 S. W. 1053.

Granting that a contract for a city water supply was void as creating a monopoly, the city is nevertheless liable for what it received under the contract. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co., 97 T. 344, 78 S. W. 1058.

—— Rates and charges.—See, also, Art. 1018 and notes.

A water company supplying inhabitants of a city with water and operating under a franchise conferring the privilege of using the streets and public places is affected with a public interest, and is under obligation to serve the public in a reasonable way for a reasonable compensation, and, though it may adopt reasonable regulations for the conduct of its own business, still it cannot arbitrarily demand an unreasonable charge for its services or discriminate in its charges. Ball v. Texarkana Water Corp. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

This article does not carry with it by implication the right to regulate charges of a water company supplying inhabitants of the city under a franchise, since the right to regulate such charges is not inherent in the municipality, but belongs to the sovereignty, and can only be exercised by it directly or by delegation to some other body. Id.

—— Court cannot fix.—Under a petition alleging that a water company, supplying inhabitants of a city under a franchise, were charging petitioner an exorbitant rate for water, and asking that defendant be restrained from charging in excess of rates fixed by an ordinance, the court, there being no law authorizing the regulation of rates, cannot fix the rates to be charged in the future, since such action would be legislative and not judicial. Ball v. Texarkana Water Corp. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

—— Enforcement of contract.—City may bring an action to enforce its contract with a water company to furnish its inhabitants with water. Cleburne W. I. & L. Co. v. City of Cleburne, 13 C. A. 141, 35 S. W. 733.

A contract for the installment and maintenance for a long term of years of a waterworks system with fire hydrants may be specifically enforced in equity. Hubbard City v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 69.

A contract with a city to maintain a waterworks system held subject to specific performance. Bounds v. Hubbard City, 47 C. A. 233, 105 S. W. 56.

The provision of a contract with a city to maintain a waterworks system held not to provide a legal remedy, affecting the city's right to specifically enforce in equity the contract to maintain the system. Id.

Evidence, in a suit by a city to specifically enforce a company's contract to maintain a waterworks system, held sufficient to show that the company had failed to furnish an adequate supply of water and sufficient pressure for fire protection. Id.

—— Liability for injuries.—One whose property is destroyed by fire has no right of action against a water company for breach of its contract with the city to furnish water. House v. Waterworks Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 277.

A person cannot recover from a water company, that has a contract with a city to supply water to the city and its inhabitants, damages caused by the destruction of his property by fire. Greenville Water Co. v. Beckham (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 890.

Art. 866. [422] [378] May establish market house, etc.—To establish or erect, or cause to be established or erected, markets and market houses, designate, control and regulate market places and privileges, inspect and determine the mode of inspecting meat, fish, vegetables and all produce and every article and thing therein brought for sale. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 34.]

Prohibiting meat markets within six blocks of city market.—Ordinance prohibiting establishment of meat markets within six blocks of the city market house held to be authorized by the city charter empowering the city council to erect and maintain market houses and regulate butchers. Altgelt v. Gerbic (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 233.

An ordinance authorizing permits to establish stalls for vending meats held not to embrace part of the city in which meat markets within six blocks of the city market house were prohibited absolutely by another ordinance. Id.

Individual can construct market building.—An individual can construct a market building on a square dedicated by the town for market purposes, so long as it does not interfere with the rights of others to use the square for like purposes. McReynolds v. Broussard, 18 C. A. 409, 45 S. W. 760.

Can regulate peddlers of meat.—See notes under Art. 871.

Art. 867. [421] [377] May provide light and gas for city.—To provide for lighting the streets and erecting lamp posts and lamps therein, and regulating the lighting thereof, and from time to time create, alter or extend lamp districts; to exclusively regulate, direct and control the laying and repairing of the gas pipes and gas fixtures in the streets, alleys, sidewalks and elsewhere. [Id. sec. 34.]

See Arts. 769 and 770.

City can sell surplus electric power.—A city owning an electric light plant held authorized to expend current funds so as to use surplus electric power for private lighting. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 54, 104 S. W. 518.

The surplus of the proceeds of a municipal waterworks system held current funds and liable to be diverted to other needs. Id.

Liability for injuries.—City operating electric light plant in part for public purposes and in part for private purposes held liable for injuries to a lineman. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 478.

Art. 868. [461] [415] May assess and collect taxes on street railways.—The city council shall have power to assess and collect the ordinary municipal taxes upon street railways. [Id. sec. 71.]

For general powers of taxation, see chapter 6 of this title.

Power to assess taxes.—Section 134 of the charter of the city of Dallas held not to limit the power conferred by sections 118 and 135 to tax street railway franchises to the manner in which such franchises are taxed by the state or to restrict such power in any way. City of Dallas v. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co., 95 T. 268, 66 S. W. 835.

City ordinances imposing annual franchise tax upon a street railway company as a condition for the granting of its city franchises held not to take away the city's right to impose an ad valorem tax upon such franchises as authorized by charter. Id.

Assessments for street improvements.—See notes under Arts. 999 and 1011.

Art. 869. [427] [383] May tax, etc., certain occupations.—To tax all trades, professions, occupations, and callings, the taxing of which is not prohibited by the constitution of the state; which tax shall not be construed to be a tax on property. [Id. sec. 40.]

Occupation taxes.—See notes under Art. 928.

Art. 870. [430] [386] May license, etc., hackmen, and prescribe their compensation, etc.—To license, tax and regulate hackmen, draymen, omnibus drivers and drivers of baggage wagons, porters, and all others pursuing like occupations, with or without vehicles, and prescribe their compensation, and provide for their protection, and make it a misdemeanor for any person to attempt to defraud them of any legal charge for services rendered, and to regulate, license and restrain runners for railroads, stages and public houses. [Id. sec. 43.]

Can only regulate, not prohibit.—Under this article a city has no power of prohibition, and therefore an ordinance making it unlawful for any person under the age of 16 years to operate any automobile or other motor vehicle upon the city streets is invalid. Ex parte Epperson, 61 Cr. R. 237, 134 S. W. 685, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 303.

Regulation of hackmen—Validity.—An ordinance making it a misdemeanor to stand hacks on certain streets held void because unreasonable. Ex parte Battis, 40 Cr. R. 112, 48 S. W. 513, 43 L. R. A. 863, 76 Am. St. Rep. 708.

A city ordinance regulating hacks and street cars at a depot held not to prohibit the employés of the street cars from leaving the cars. Ex parte Vance, 42 Cr. R. 619, 62 S. W. 568.

A city ordinance establishing a hack stand at a depot at a greater distance therefrom than the place at which street cars are permitted to stop is not a discrimination, and hence does not render the ordinance void. Id.

A city ordinance establishing hack and street car stands at a depot, which requires the hack drivers to remain with their vehicles, but which makes no similar requirement as to the person in charge of the cars, is a discrimination, rendering the ordinance invalid. Id.

Provisions in a city ordinance fixing a hack stand and establishing regulations in relation thereto held not to render the ordinance void for unreasonableness. Id.

An ordinance, imposing a license fee on hackmen, held not invalid as imposing an unreasonable tax. Kissinger v. Hay, 52 C. A. 295, 113 S. W. 1005.

One held not entitled to urge the invalidity of an ordinance, prohibiting the use of streets by hackmen for a public stand, without first obtaining a permit, on the ground that it confers authority on officers to revoke the permit. Id.

An ordinance licensing hackmen, and regulating the use of streets, held a reasonable exercise of the power conferred by the charter of the city. Id.

An ordinance imposing an annual license tax on hackmen is not invalid as double taxation. Id.

Evidence held to show that an ordinance to license vehicles was reasonable, and that the license fees did not exceed what was reasonable and necessary to regulate the business. Ex parte Denny, 59 Cr. R. 579, 129 S. W. 1115.

Court may pass upon reasonableness of regulation.—The court may pass on the reasonableness of a city ordinance fixing stands for hacks and other vehicles for the transportation of goods and passengers. Ex parte Vance, 42 Cr. R. 619, 62 S. W. 568.

Art. 871. [428] [384] May license, etc., peddlers, theaters, etc.—To license, tax, and regulate, or suppress and prevent hawkers, peddlers, pawnbrokers, and keepers of theatrical or other exhibitions, shows and amusements. [Id. sec. 41.]

Constitutionality.—An ordinance prohibiting the peddling of any merchandise in a city's public square or in any of its public streets was held not class legislation. Ex parte Hogg (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 931.

An ordinance prohibiting the peddling of any merchandise in a public square or in any city street, not prohibiting any one from following the business of peddling, was not invalid as an invasion of the personal right to follow a business or vocation. Id.

Power to regulate.—The legislature may confer on cities the power to regulate peddling within their jurisdictions. Ex parte Henson, 49 Cr. R. 177, 90 S. W. 874.

Power of state to license peddlers held not to exclude right of cities to regulate them. Id.

—— Peddlers of meat.—Article 866 permits incorporated cities to inspect meat and produce. Article 871 authorizes them to license, tax, regulate, and suppress hawkers and peddlers. Article 838 permits the city to make all regulations necessary or expedient for the promotion of health or the suppression of disease. Held, when construed with this article, that a city had power to pass an ordinance requiring a license for peddlers of meat, which was not produced by the vendor, to provide for licensing and numbering such peddlers, and require them to keep the articles sold and the wagons in a sanitary condition, as well as to provide for the enforcement of such regulations. Ex parte Wade (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 179.

May prohibit peddling.—This article empowers a town to pass an ordinance prohibiting the use of certain streets and the public square for the purpose of peddling. Ex parte Henson, 49 Cr. R. 177, 90 S. W. 874.

Under article 817, giving city councils the power to pass ordinances and police regulations for good government, trade, etc., article 854, giving them exclusive control over streets, highways, and public grounds of the city, and article 866, authorizing it to regulate and inspect market places, a city was authorized to prohibit peddling of any kind of merchandise on its public square or any street within its limits. Ex parte Hogg (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 931.

Art. 872. [431] [387] May license, etc., billiard tables, etc.—To license, tax and regulate billiard tables, pin alleys, ball alleys, saloons, bar-rooms and all places or establishments where intoxicating or fermented liquors are sold; to suppress and restrain disorderly houses, tippling shops and groceries, gambling and gaming houses, lotteries and all fraudulent devices and practices, and prohibit bawdy houses and houses of prostitution or assignation within the limits of the city. [Id. sec. 44.]

Ordinances—Validity—Pool rooms.—A town ordinance forbidding pool halls to be open after 9 o'clock p. m. held in direct conflict with the state law. Ex parte Farley (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 530.

City ordinance of city requiring person owning or in control of a pool and billiard hall to close from midnight until 5 a. m. each week day, and from midnight Saturday until 5 a. m. Monday, held a "reasonable regulation." Ex parte Brewer (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1068; Ex parte Pitchios (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1074.

—— Bowling alleys.—An ordinance of a city of about 2,000 inhabitants, forbidding the maintenance of bowling alleys within the fire limits or within 100 yards of any residence or business house, held unreasonable and void. Ex parte Patterson, 42 Cr. R. 256, 58 S. W. 1011, 51 L. R. A. 654.

Lottery.—A knife rack operated by defendant, on which knives were stuck which defendant's customers attempted to ring, held not to constitute a lottery. McRae v. State, 46 Cr. R. 489, 81 S. W. 741.

A contract held a lottery and void. American Copying Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 777.

Elements of drawing constituting a lottery stated. Grant v. State, 54 Cr. R. 403, 112 S. W. 1068, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 876, 130 Am. St. Rep. 897, 16 Ann. Cas. 844.

Accused held to have disposed of a gun by a raffle. Hickman v. State (Cr. App.) 141 S. W. 973.

—— Agreement unenforceable.—An agreement between holders of lottery tickets to divide their winnings held unenforceable. Crutchfield v. Rambo, 38 C. A. 579, 86 S. W. 950.

Art. 873. [429] [385] May license, etc., circuses, etc.—To license, tax, and regulate, or prohibit, theaters, circuses, the exhibitions of common showmen, and of shows of any kind, and the exhibition of natural or artificial curiosities, caravans, menageries, and musical exhibitions and performances. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 874. [432] [388] May authorize proper officer to grant license, etc.—To authorize the proper officer of the city to grant and issue licenses, and to direct the manner of issuing and registering thereof, and the fees and charges to be paid therefor. No license shall be issued for a longer period than one year, and shall not be assignable except by permission of the city council. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 875. [414] [370] Shall control the finances and property.—The city council shall have the management and control of the finances and of all property, real, personal and mixed, belonging to the corporation. [Id. sec. 27.]

As to exemption of streets, etc., see post, Art. 5683.

Cited, Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Cannot loan funds—A municipal corporation has no power to lend its funds other than a sinking fund raised to meet the payment of a debt. City of Bonham v. Taylor, 81 T. 59, 16 S. W. 555. Municipal corporations are subject to the operation of general statutes of limitation, unless specially exempted from their operation. Mellinger v. City of Houston, 68 T. 37, 3 S. W. 249.

Duties, etc., of treasurer.—See Art. 811.

Ownership of ferry franchise.—The ownership by a city of a ferry franchise involves a public trust, and it must be administered by those to whom the affairs of the municipal government are committed, as in their discretion the public interest may require. Waterbury v. City of Laredo, 68 T. 565, 5 S. W. 81.

Art. 876. [577] [504] Rate of interest on city indebtedness.—No indebtedness of any character whatever hereafter incurred by said corporation shall draw a higher rate of interest than ten per cent per annum. [Act Feb. 26, 1874, sec. 156.]

Art. 877. [415] [371] Power to appropriate, money, etc.—The city council shall have power to appropriate money, and provide for the payment of debts and expenses of the city. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 28.]

Cited, Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Debts—What are.—A debt is a pecuniary obligation imposed by contract, except such as were, at the date of the contract, within the lawful and reasonable contemplation of parties, to be satisfied out of the current revenues for the year or out of some fund then within the immediate control of the corporation. City of Corpus Christi v. Woessner, 58 T. 465; Terrell v. Dessaint, 71 T. 770, 9 S. W. 593; McNeal v. City of Waco, 89 T. 83, 33 S. W. 322.

—— Order of payment.—Debts should be paid in the order of their filing. Olive v. San Antonio Builders' Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 789.

Ordinance prohibiting payment of debt void.—An ordinance which practically prohibits the payment of any debt contracted before a specified time, unless in the discretion of the officer intrusted with the only fund from which payment can be made he should see proper to make payment by compromise or otherwise, and this without reference to th justness of the debt or the condition of the city treasury, is void. City of Corpus Christi v. Woessner, 58 T. 462.

Execution against city.—See notes under Art. 1835.

Art. 878. [416] [372] Power to provide special funds for special purposes, etc.—To provide by ordinance special funds for special purposes, and to make the same disbursable only for the purpose for which the fund was created; and any officer of the city misappropriating said special fund shall be deemed guilty of malfeasance in office, and shall, on complaint of any one interested in said funds misappropriated, be removed from office, and be incapable thereafter to hold any office in said city. [Id. sec. 29.]

Cited, Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Diversion of funds.—A city ordinance, authorizing payment of expenses of previous years out of the general revenue fund, held void. Pendleton v. Ferguson, 99 T. 296, 89 S. W. 758.

Municipal authorities cannot legally use proceeds of bonds issued for an improvement to pay debts contracted before the election at which the bonds were voted. Simpson v. Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 858.

Art. 879. [466] [420] To appropriate revenues and for what purposes; to issue bonds, etc.—To appropriate so much of the revenues of the city, emanating from whatever source, for the purpose of retiring and discharging the accrued indebtedness of the city, and for the purpose of improving the public markets and streets, erecting and conducting city hospitals, city hall, waterworks, and so forth, as they may from time to time deem expedient. And, in furtherance of these objects, they shall have power to borrow money upon the credit of the city, and issue coupon bonds of the city therefor in such sum or sums as they may deem expedient, to bear interest not exceeding ten per cent per annum, payable semi-annually at such place as may be fixed by city ordinance; provided, that the aggregate amount of bonds issued by the city council shall, at no time, exceed six per cent of the value of the property within said city subject to ad valorem tax. [Id. sec. 76, R. S. 1879, 420.]

Construed.—A town exceeded its powers in contracting to issue bonds for a public purpose. It afterwards became a city under the general law. Held, that the contract was not ratified by the act of becoming a city, nor could the city ratify where an issue of the bonds would increase its indebtedness beyond the legal limit. Waxahachie v. Brown, 67 T. 519, 4 S. W. 207; Noel v. City of San Antonio, 11 C. A. 580, 33 S. W. 263.

This article, in authorizing the issuance of bonds to any amount which does not exceed six per cent of the value of all property subject to taxation within the limits of the city, must be understood as giving such authority only when a tax of one-fourth of one per cent upon the value of all property subject to taxation annually collected, will pay the interest on the bonds as it becomes due, and create a sinking fund sufficient to pay the bonds at the date of their maturity, as provided in article 925. The latter restriction applies to all cities. City of Palestine v. Royall, 16 C. A. 36, 40 S. W. 621.

Municipal bonds.—Nature of municipal bonds determined. Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1170.

—— School buildings.—See, also, Arts. 882 and 2874.

A city has power to issue coupon bonds of the city to borrow money for the erection of school buildings where it has assumed control of its public schools. Peck v. City of Hempstead, 27 C. A. 80, 65 S. W. 655.

—— "Accrued indebtedness."—The term "debt" as used in the constitution means any pecuniary obligation imposed by contract, except such as were, at the date of the contract, within the lawful and reasonable contemplation of the parties, to be satisfied out of the current revenues for the year or out of some fund then within the immediate control of the corporation. McNeill v. City of Waco, 89 T. 83, 33 S. W. 322.

Bonds issued by the city of El Paso under the charter act of 1889 (Sp. Laws, § 87), for the purpose of settling outstanding indebtedness for past expenses, held valid. Conklin v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 879.

Ordinances providing for the issue of bonds held not to show that the debts for which they were to be issued were invalid. Winston v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 740.

This article is direct and positive authority for the city to use its revenues, both its ordinary sources of taxation and any other source of income that it might have for the purpose of liquidating and discharging accrued indebtedness, which must mean debts of previous years and not of the current year; hence it cannot be true that current expenses not paid each year become void. Judgment can be rendered against a city for such debts if it should become possessed of property or funds subject to the payment of such debts. City of Tyler v. Jester & Co., 97 T. 344, 78 S. W. 1063.

—— Waterworks.—Prior to the constitutional amendment of 1883, cities of less than 10,000 inhabitants had no power to issue bonds to purchase of waterworks, and holders of bonds so issued were chargeable with notice of this fact. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1066.

—— Land for railroad right of way and depot.—The terms of section 3, art. 11, of the constitution are broad enough to prohibit a city or town from appropriating its revenues or using its credit to obtain right of way and depot grounds for a railway company. City of Cleburne v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 66 T. 457, 1 S. W. 342.

A city charter held to authorize bonds to purchase land for depot purposes. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. v. City of Jefferson, 30 C. A. 534, 70 S. W. 1005.

City charter held to empower aldermen to issue bonds directly to vendor of land to be used for a railway depot. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co., 35 C. A. 74, 79 S. W. 876.

—— Purchase sites and erect public buildings.—This article confers authority upon cities organized under the general laws to purchase sites and erect public buildings, and to issue bonds for that purpose, but no such power is given to towns under the general laws, and it may be doubted whether such power has been given to any town by special charter. The definition and authority of towns and villages are to be found in chapter 14 of this title, and they can exercise only such powers as are conferred in that chapter. The limitation as to the amount of taxation by cities and towns for municipal purposes is prescribed by the eleventh article of the constitution. Waxahachie v. Brown, 67 T. 519, 4 S. W. 207. See Bassett v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 554.

—— Does not apply to towns and villages.—See Art. 1033 et seq.

—— "Street improvements."—A bridge held a street improvement within the meaning of a city charter, authorizing the issuance of bonds for "street improvements." Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 408.

—— Railroad, etc., subsidy bonds.—See Art. 678 et seq.

—— Public improvements, etc.—See Art. 882.

—— Compromise of debts.—See Art. 891 et seq.

Limitation of amount.—In determining the amount of bonds a city may issue upon a given valuation of property, personal property is included with real estate values. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780.

Priority in payment of debts.—A debt for current expenses is entitled to priority of payment. City of Sherman v. Smith, 12 C. A. 580, 35 S. W. 294.

Purchaser of bonds.—Contract by a city to issue bonds and levy a tax held void as being in excess of authority. Purchaser bound by recitals in bond. No implied contract on part of city to pay for property purchased in such transaction. Gould v. City of Paris, 68 T. 511, 4 S. W. 650.

Transactions, after delivery of municipal bonds to attorney in fact of vendor of land, held immaterial as against innocent purchaser. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co., 35 C. A. 74, 79 S. W. 876.

Purchaser of municipal bonds, without any notice except of what appeared on their face, held a bona fide purchaser. Id.

Purchasers of bonds take the same subject to the law in force at the time of their issuance, including the constitutional limitation upon the taxing power of the city. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 88 S. W. 542, 89 S. W. 552.

Purchaser from purchaser.—Any subsequent transferee or holder of bonds under or for an innocent purchaser for value has the same protection as such innocent purchaser. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co., 35 C. A. 74, 79 S. W. 876.

Art. 880. [467] [421] City bonds shall specify, what.—All bonds shall specify for what purpose they were issued; and when any bonds are issued by the city a fund shall be provided to pay the interest and create a sinking fund to redeem the bonds; which fund shall not be diverted, nor drawn upon for any other purpose; provided, however, that said sinking fund may, as it accumulates, be invested in bonds of the United States, the state of Texas, or counties in said state; and the city treasurer shall honor no draft upon said fund except to pay interest upon or to redeem the bonds for which it was provided, or for investment in other securities as above provided. [Acts of 1889, p. 2. R. S. 1879, 421.]

Negotiability.—Bonds issued under Ft. Worth City Charter, §§ 87, 87a, authorizing its council to issue bonds, are not invalid because negotiable. Winston v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 740.

A city charter held to authorize the issuance of instruments having a negotiable character. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. v. City of Jefferson, 30 C. A. 534, 70 S. W. 1005.

Where charter gave city power to issue railroad aid bonds, it could make such bonds negotiable or payable to bearer. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co., 35 C. A. 74, 79 S. W. 876.

The power granted to raise money by issuing bonds implies the right to issue bonds having the commercial quality of negotiability. Bonds means negotiable securities. City of Austin v. Nalle, 85 T. 520, 22 S. W. 668, 960.

Recital of purpose for which issued.—City bonds held to recite with sufficient clearness the purpose for which they were issued. City of Jefferson v. Marshall Nat. Bank, 18 C. A. 539, 46 S. W. 97.

A recital in municipal bonds that they were issued to fund valid outstanding warrants is a sufficient recital of the purposes for which they were issued. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1066.

Date of issuance.—Fact that municipal bonds were not issued until nearly two years after passage of ordinance providing for their payment did not invalidate them. Moller v. City of Galveston, 23 C. A. 693, 57 S. W. 1116.

An ordinance authorizing the issuance of bonds may provide that the same be antedated. Id.

Interest and sinking fund—Necessity.—See, also, Arts. 698-702.

Power to levy tax, see Art. 925.

A contract to pay a debt by the issuance of bonds, no provision being made to create a fund, is void, and a guaranty of the contract is also void. Howard v. Smith, 91 T. 8, 38 S. W. 15.

City bonds issued subsequent to Const. 1876, without provision for the levy of a tax to pay interest and to provide a sinking fund, held invalid. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780.

A city cannot pledge its future current revenues for payment of interest and sinking fund on its bonded indebtedness. Id.

Where the issue of bonds provided for a 5 per cent. sinking fund, they were not invalid because the charter of the city provided for but 2 per cent. Conklin v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 879.

Const. art. 11, § 7, providing for a sinking fund of at least 2 per cent. to pay the debts of a city, held not to amend charter of El Paso (Sp. Laws 1873, § 22), providing for a levy of 2 per cent., to provide a sinking fund to pay bonds. Id.

Proof that ordinances authorizing issuance of city bonds contained no provision for interest and a sinking fund, as required by the constitution, does not prove that it was not made when the bonds were sold. Wright v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 406.

Under the requirements of the constitution and a city charter that, on creation of a municipal debt, provision shall be made for interest and a sinking fund, it is no objection to the debt that it was made prior to the issuance of bonds to which it referred. Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 408.

A contract with a city for building a bridge, to be paid for from proceeds of bonds already issued applicable thereto, held valid, though no provision was made in the contract for interest and sinking fund. Id.

The requirements of the constitution and a city charter of a provision for interest and a sinking fund on the creation of a municipal debt, make specific provision therefor by the council unnecessary. Id.

Contract for lighting streets between a city and electric light company for term of three years is not a debt within a charter provision requiring creation of a sinking fund. Dallas Electric Co. v. City of Dallas, 23 C. A. 323, 58 S. W. 153.

When there is a failure to create a sinking fund of at least 2 per cent to pay interest as required by the constitution, the obligation cannot be enforced. Peck v. City of Hempstead, 27 C. A. 80, 65 S. W. 655.

A municipal contract for the purchase of water and electric light works held to create a debt, without providing a sinking fund, and therefore to be in conflict with Const. art. 11, § 5. City of Austin v. McCall, 95 T. 565, 68 S. W. 791.

The making of a contract by a city for water for a number of years, to be delivered in the future, does not create a debt against the city; but its liability thereunder arises on the use of the water by the city during each year. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co., 97 T. 344, 78 S. W. 1058.

Notes executed by a city, replacing old notes, did not increase or create a debt, so as to require provision for interest and sinking fund. Id.

—— Not to be diverted.—The court has no power to render a judgment directing the payment of money in a sinking fund for any purpose other than that for which it was assessed and collected, because such money cannot legally be appropriated for any other purpose. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 88 S. W. 542, 89 S. W. 552.

—— Investment.—See, also, Art. 698.

Sinking fund may be invested how. Elser v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 739.

Art. 881. [468] [422] Bonds shall be signed, etc., and payable where and when, etc.—Said bonds shall be signed by the mayor and countersigned by the secretary, and payable at such places and at such times as may be fixed by ordinance of the city council, not less than ten nor more than forty years. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 78.]

"Signed by the mayor."—While H. was mayor thereof, a city contracted to issue certain bonds, and the bonds were engraved and printed, but before their signature and delivery H. had ceased to be mayor. The city council, however, by resolution authorized him to sign the bonds as mayor, which he thereupon did. It seems that the bonds thus signed are worthless, and an action cannot be maintained thereon. Water & Gas Co. v. City of Cleburne, 1 C. A. 580, 21 S. W. 393.

Seal.—Failure of board of aldermen to attach the city seal does not render city bonds invalid. Thornburgh v. City of Tyler, 16 C. A. 439, 43 S. W. 1054.

Art. 882. May issue bonds for public improvements; regulations as to.—All cities and towns providing for permanent public improvements, as contemplated by article 925, shall have the power to issue coupon bonds of the city therefor in such sum or sums as they may deem expedient, to bear interest not exceeding six per cent per annum; provided, that the aggregate amount of bonds issued for the construction or the purchase of public buildings, water works, sewers and other permanent improvements shall never reach an amount where the tax of twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of property will not pay current interest and provide a sinking fund sufficient to pay the principal at maturity; and provided, also, that the amount of bonds issued for street improvement purposes shall never reach an amount where the tax of fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of property will not pay current interest and provide a sinking fund sufficient to redeem them at maturity; and the amount of bonds legally issued under acts passed prior to the adoption of the present constitution shall not be computed and estimated in the amount of bonds which may be issued for the above named city improvements. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 444.]

Art. 883. [482] Gulf cities may issue bonds for harbors, etc.—The boards of aldermen, or other constituted municipal authorities of cities bordering on the coast of the gulf of Mexico, are hereby authorized and empowered to appropriate money to improve, and to aid in the improvement of, their harbors and of the bars at the entrance thereof; provided, that they shall not thereby increase their aggregate debt beyond the amount of indebtedness limited by their charters respectively; such appropriations to be made out of any surplus funds which may at any time be on hand, and by the use or sale of any bonds heretofore authorized to be issued; provided, such bonds are not needed for the purposes for which they were specially authorized; and, also, if necessary therefor, to issue and dispose of bonds with interest coupons attached in such amounts as may be necessary, not to exceed the limit of indebtedness fixed by their charters. [Acts of 1883, p. 48.]

Art. 884. [483] Interest and sinking fund tax to be levied, interest paid and bonds sold at not less than par.—The city council, or other constituted municipal authorities, as the case may be, shall levy an annual ad valorem tax on the property in said city, sufficient to pay the interest and create a sinking fund for the redemption of said bonds, as required by the constitution. The interest on said bonds shall be paid semi-annually, and it shall not exceed five per cent. Said bonds shall not be sold at less than par. [Id.]

Art. 885. [578a] Board of examiners of finances.—It shall be the duty of the mayor of each city or incorporated town within this state, incorporated under the general laws of the state, at the first regular meeting in January of each year of the board of aldermen or city council, by and with the advice and consent of such board of aldermen or city council, to appoint three resident citizens of such city or incorporated town, who shall constitute and compose a board of examiners of the finances of said city or incorporated town. [Acts 1895, p. 41.]

Art. 886. [578b] Duties of board.—It shall be the duty of such examiners when appointed to proceed to examine the books and accounts of the various officers of such city or incorporated town, and to make a true report of the financial condition thereof under oath to the mayor and board of aldermen or city council of such city or incorporated town as soon after their appointment as practicable; provided, that in no instance shall the return of such report under oath be deferred longer than the first regular meeting of the board of aldermen or city council in March of each year. [Id.]

Art. 887. [578c] Compensation.—Such examiners shall receive for their services such compensation as the board of aldermen or city council shall fix each, for every day actually employed in their investigations, not to exceed fifteen days in each year, which sum shall be paid by order of the board of aldermen or city council. [Id.]

Art. 888. [578d] Council to pass on such report.—The annual report of such board of examiners shall be passed upon by the board of aldermen or city council, and spread upon the minutes of their meeting at the first regular meeting of said board or council after the return of such report. [Id.]

Art. 889. [556] [485] Statement of receipts and expenditures, etc., shall be published annually.—The city council shall, at least ten days before the expiration of each municipal year, cause to be published in a city newspaper a correct and full statement of the receipts and expenditures from the date of the last annual report, together with the sources from which the funds were derived, and showing for what purpose disbursed, the condition of the treasury, together with such information as may be necessary to a full understanding of the financial condition of the city. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 137. R. S. 1879, 485.]

Art. 890. [465] [419] May pass ordinances to fund debt, etc.—To pass all necessary ordinances to provide for funding the whole or any part of the existing debt of the city, or of any future debt, by cancelling the evidences thereof, and issuing to the holders or creditors notes, bonds or treasury warrants, with or without coupons, bearing interest at any annual rate not to exceed ten per cent. The council shall also provide by ordinance for issuing the bonds of the city in such sums as may be agreed upon for railroad subsidies heretofore voted, or that may be hereafter voted, in accordance with the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 75. R. S. 1879, 419.]

Notes, bonds, and other evidences of indebtedness.—Cities have power under the statute to issue to creditors interest-bearing evidences of debt, and it would seem that when the city has ample revenue, outside of that which the law authorizes to be levied to meet current expenses, to meet such obligations, a tax for that purpose would not only be unnecessary but unlawful. City of Corpus Christi v. Woessner, 58 T. 462.

Evidence of indebtedness of a municipal corporation, given to provide for the payment of existing obligations, are not municipal bonds within the statute regulating the issuance of bonds. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co. (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 359.

This statute authorizes a city to issue either notes or bonds for the purpose of funding its outstanding indebtedness. Where it is evident that the parties to the transaction intended to issue notes, and having the power to do so their intention must be given effect, and the city having by ordinance directed that notes be issued and delivered in lieu of outstanding indebtedness is bound on the notes. City of Tyler v. Jester & Co., 97 T. 344, 78 S. W. 1062.

Nature of municipal warrants and orders determined. Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1170.

Ordinance directing issuance.—A recital, in an ordinance authorizing the execution of notes of municipal corporation, that the evidences of indebtedness therein enumerated were issued for current expenses, does not render the indebtedness prima facie valid. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co. (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 359.

It is not necessary to the validity of notes given by a city to evidence existing indebtedness that they should have been authorized by ordinance, as order or resolution of the city council would be sufficient. Id.

Where an ordinance authorized the issuance of refunding bonds, it was not necessary that a contract or proceeding with reference to sales should be confirmed by a further act of the council. City of San Antonio v. E. H. Rollins & Sons (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1166, 1199.

Purchaser charged with notice of ordinance, etc.—As a city in this state cannot issue funding bonds, except by an ordinance duly passed, a purchaser of such bonds must look to the ordinance, to see that it has been regularly passed, and that it confers authority for the issuance of the bonds offered for sale. But he is not charged with notice of other parts of the record, not connected with the bonds offered for sale. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Sup.) 86 S. W. 751.

Art. 891. [471] May compromise debts and issue bonds.—The mayor and board of aldermen are authorized and empowered, by resolution or ordinance of said board of aldermen by referring to this and the succeeding articles of this chapter relating hereto and adopting the same, to compromise and fund any existing valid indebtedness by the city or town issued, whether bonded or floating, and the coupons due upon the bonded debt; and for this purpose, they are authorized and empowered to issue new bonds, in denomination of not less than fifty nor more than one thousand dollars, in their discretion, with interest coupons payable semi-annually at the office of the state treasurer or at such other place as said board of aldermen shall provide; said new bonds to become due and payable in not exceeding thirty years, and to bear such rate of interest, not exceeding six per cent per annum, as in their discretion may best subserve the purpose intended. [Acts of 1887, p. 50.]

In general.—A release in writing of a claim against a city for damages for personal injuries in consideration of a promise of the payment of a certain sum of money is valid. Jennings v. City of Ft. Worth, 26 S. W. 927, 7 C. A. 329.

Compromise suit.—A municipal corporation, having the right to sue and be sued, may also compromise suits. City of San Antonio v. San Antonio St. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 148, 54 S. W. 281.

Existing valid indebtedness.—See, also, Arts. 656-697.

Bonds which are void, for lack of power in a city to issue them, cannot constitute the basis of valid funding bonds. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1066.

Contract, etc., containing inseparable illegal provisions, invalid.—A contract for the settlement of claims against a city held invalid, where it contained inseparable illegal provisions. City of Austin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 192.

Art. 892. [472] Barred debts can not be compromised.—No compromise shall be made under the provisions of this chapter, by which any debt shall be funded which is barred by the statute of limitations. [Id.]

Art. 893. [474] Bonds when executed must be registered with comptroller.—The mayor and board of aldermen shall cause to be prepared the necessary blank bonds to give effect to the provisions of this chapter, the cost of which shall be paid out of the treasury of such city or town; said bonds when issued by any city or town shall be signed by the mayor and attested by the secretary (or recorder if there be no secretary), with the seal of such city or town affixed; and such new bonds shall be registered in the office of the state comptroller. [Id.]

See provisions as to submission of bonds to attorney general, etc., Art. 1098 et seq.

Art. 894. [475] Bonds when issued, how disposed of, etc.—Such new bonds may be exchanged for the old bonds, or they may be sold and the proceeds applied to the purchase of such old bonds; provided, that no delivery of such new bonds shall take place, unless a contract has already been entered into for the purchase of a corresponding amount of such old bonds; and provided further, no bonds issued under this chapter as a compromise of existing indebtedness shall be sold at less than par; and each bond shall be made to bear the lowest rate of interest that will give a par value. [Id.]

Art. 895. [476] Tax laws to remain in force.—All laws in force providing for the collection of taxes for the payment of the principal and interest of such existing bonds shall apply and be in force for the collection of taxes for the payment of the principal and interest of such new bonds; provided, that the sinking fund may be used in the purchase and cancellation of such new bonds whenever the same can be bought at not more than their par value. [Id.]

Art. 896. [479] The method of liquidating compromise bonds.—Whenever a compromise of the debt of any city or town shall be effected, as hereinbefore provided, and the bonds are delivered to the creditors, a board of liquidation, consisting of five reputable citizens of such city or town shall be appointed forthwith in the manner following: The mayor of the city or town shall appoint one; the governor of the state shall appoint one; and the district judge of the district in which such city or town shall be situated shall appoint one; the city council of the city or town shall appoint one; and the holders of said indebtedness, or a majority of them, shall appoint one; and each shall fill vacancies in the office of their respective appointee in said board; and, in case of failure, neglect or refusal of any one or all of said officers to appoint a member of said board, or to fill vacancies therein, then the holders of said bonds, or any one or more of them, shall have the right to apply to the district court of the district in which such city or town shall be situated, or to the judge thereof in vacation, for the appointment of a member or members of said board necessary to complete the same; and it shall be the duty of said court or judge to make said appointment. The members of said board shall serve without compensation, and shall hold their offices for the term of four years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. Each member of said board shall take an oath to faithfully perform the duties of his office. A majority of said board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. Said board, or a majority thereof, shall select some solvent depository for all moneys coming under their control, as hereinafter provided, and for whose acts they shall be responsible and shall, in writing signed by them, notify the collector of taxes of said city or town of said selection. It shall thereupon become the duty of such collector to deposit at the close of business each day one-half of all moneys collected by him for the twenty-four hours next preceding, on account of all the taxes of whatever nature levied by said city or town, with the said depository, whose receipt therefor shall be an acquittance to said collector; and said collectors shall be liable on their official bonds for any failure to promptly make such deposits and for ten per cent per month of such amounts, and in addition thereto as penalty; which sums may be recovered by said board of liquidation in a suit therefor; and it shall be their duty to promptly institute such suits. But whenever the total of said deposits shall equal the annual interest on said bonds, it shall be lawful for such collector to discontinue said deposits, until he shall be notified in writing by said board that said deposits are reduced below that sum. Said funds of cities or towns shall be subject to the order of said boards of liquidation, and shall be applied by them to the payment, first, of the interest on said bonds as the same matures, and, secondly, to the payment of the principal thereof, and thirdly, to the payment of interest on any valid bonds issued by such city and not embraced in any issue of bonds issued under the provisions hereof, and, fourthly, to the payment of the principal of bonds of the character last referred to on the maturity of same. The members of said board shall be liable for the prompt payment of said interest out of said funds, and in case of failure or refusal they shall, in addition, be liable to ten per cent of the amount of such interest as damages to be recovered by any person aggrieved thereby, in any court of competent jurisdiction. Whenever there shall be in the hands of such depositories a sufficient sum to pay two per cent of the principal of said bonds, in addition to one year's interest, it shall be the duty of said board of liquidation to use the same in the purchase of outstanding bonds, provided in article 895; which bonds when so purchased shall be canceled, and shall, together with all coupons which have been paid, be returned to the council of the city or town. Expenses incurred by said board in advertising for purchase of bonds shall be paid out of said funds. Said boards shall make semi-annual reports to the said councils of their acts and of all receipts and disbursements of moneys coming under their control. [Id.]

Art. 897. [477] Laws to enforce collection continued in force, and all defenses to bonds cut off.—The object and intention of these provisions being to enable the cities or towns in this state which have granted subsidy bonds to railroads or other works of internal improvement, or created any other indebtedness whatever, whether bonded or floating, to compromise the same, and thereby reduce the burden of taxation, it is hereby declared, as an inducement to the holders of said bonds to accept the compromise, that whenever such compromise shall be entered into and accepted in good faith either by the holders of the present bonds or by any persons purchasing such new bonds as provided herein, that all laws in force, or which may hereafter be in force, for the assessment and collection of the state taxes shall also be in force and apply to the assessment and collection of the taxes levied to meet the interest and sinking fund of said new bonds; and in any suits instituted to enforce the payment of said new bonds or coupons against any such city or town, no defense either in law or equity shall be admitted in any of the courts of this state, except such as originated upon, or subsequent to, the issuance of such new bonds. [Id.]

Art. 898. [478] Tax collector; liability; governor to appoint, when.—Whenever a collector of taxes shall neglect or refuse to collect the taxes levied for the payment of the interest and sinking fund of such new bonds, he shall be liable on his official bond, at the suit of any persons holding any of said bonds or coupons, for all such damages as said person or persons shall have sustained by reason of his neglect or refusal; nor shall such collector or his sureties be relieved of such liability by his resignation of the office; and whenever any person who may be elected collector of taxes of any city or town shall fail, neglect or refuse to give the bond required by law for the collection of such tax, or whenever the mayor and board of aldermen shall appoint any person who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to give said bond, or whenever they shall fail, neglect, or refuse to appoint some person who will give said bond and collect said tax, then it is hereby made the duty of the governor to appoint some suitable person to collect said taxes, who shall perform all the duties required by these provisions or any other laws of this state relating to the collection of said taxes, from the term of his said appointment until the next general election. [Id.]

Art. 899. [480] Receiver appointed, when.—Any city or town so situated as is herein set forth, which fails to effect a compromise of its debts, or pending the negotiation of a compromise, shall be permitted, on its application setting forth its financial condition and insolvency, to have the district court of the county in which said city or town is situated take charge of the collection and appropriation of all taxes levied and assessed by said city or town, except so much thereof as is necessary to pay the current expenses of the city or town; and to that end, said court, or the judge thereof in vacation, shall appoint a receiver, or may make the assessor and collector of said city or town its receiver, to collect and pay into a named depository all taxes levied by said city or town for the payment of its debts; and said courts shall decide all questions of priority between conflicting claimants of said funds, and shall provide for the ratable and equitable distribution of said funds among all creditors entitled thereto. But it shall not be lawful for any court to appoint a receiver of or concerning any city or town except upon the voluntary application of such city or town. [Id.]

Art. 900. [473] Compromise bonds exempt from taxation and may be used to pay taxes.—The new bonds thus issued by any city or town shall be exempt from the payment of all taxes levied by such city or town; and the taxes levied to pay said new bonds may be paid in said bonds or coupons thereof if matured; provided, said coupons and bonds shall only be received in payment of taxes levied for the purpose of paying such bonds and coupons. [Id.]

Art. 901. [481] Other instances when debts may be compromised and bonds issued, etc.—Cities and towns shall also have authority to fund, compromise and liquidate their indebtedness and issue bonds therefor, under such conditions, restrictions and limitations as are prescribed under title 18 (bonds—county, municipal, etc.) conferring such authority on counties, cities and towns, and as may be otherwise provided by law.

Art. 902. [555] [484] Official paper, and contract for publishing, etc.—The city council shall, as soon as may be after the commencement of each municipal year, contract as they may by ordinance or resolution determine with a public newspaper of the city as the official paper thereof, and to continue as such until another is elected, and shall cause to be published therein all ordinances, notices, and other matters required by this title or by the ordinance of the city to be published. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 136.]

For provisions as to bonds of counties, cities, towns, etc., see Title 18.

CHAPTER FIVE

CORPORATION COURTS

Art.
903. Corporation court created.
904. Jurisdiction.
905. Judge or recorder elected or appointed how; term; mayor ex officio recorder when.
906. Recorder elected or appointed, when and how; discretion of council; term of office, etc.; vacancy; council may make mayor ex officio recorder when.
907. Clerk of corporation court elected by council when, provided; term; duties.
908. Right of trial before jury.
909. Rules of pleading, practice and procedure.
910. Seal of corporation court.
911. Complaint, how commenced and concluded; prosecution conducted by city attorney or deputy; county attorney may also represent state, but no fees; process.
912. Council to prescribe rules for collecting fees and costs, practice, etc.; rules in meantime.
913. Fines and costs paid into city treasury, etc.
914. Costs to be collected as provided by ordinances, but not greater than in justices' courts.
915. Jury and witness fees, and enforcing attendance of witnesses according to Code of Criminal Procedure.
916. Judge may punish for contempt as county judge; may take recognizances, admit to bail, etc., under rules in county court.
917. Process, how served; defendant entitled to notice of complaint, if demanded.
918. Writs of mayor, etc., may be executed anywhere in the county.
919. Proceedings when a peace bond, etc., given before mayor, etc., has been forfeited.
920. Fees of recorder, etc., how prescribed; paid out of city treasury; fines and costs collected and disposed of, how; committal; city liable to officers of appellate court, when; court to be always open.
921. Appeals to what court; trial de novo; appeals, how governed.
922. Until organization of corporation courts, municipal court as now established has jurisdiction, but thereafter abolished.

Article 903. Corporation court created.—There is hereby created and established in each of the cities, towns and villages of this state, now or hereafter incorporated, whether by general or special act, a court to be known as the corporation court in such city, town or village, which court shall have jurisdiction and organization hereinafter prescribed. [Acts of 1899, p. 40, sec. 1.]

Art. 904. Jurisdiction.—Said court shall have jurisdiction within the territorial limits of said city, town or village, within which it is established, in all criminal cases arising under the ordinances of the said city, town or village, now in force, or hereafter to be passed, and shall also have jurisdiction concurrently with any justice of the peace in any precinct in which said city, town or village is situated, in all criminal cases arising under the criminal laws of this state, in which the punishment is by fine only, and where the maximum of such fine may not exceed two hundred dollars and arising within the territorial limits of such city, town or village. [Id. sec. 2.]

Constitutionality.—The act of the twenty-sixth legislature establishing corporation courts is not invalid. Ex parte Wilbarger, 41 Cr. R. 514, 55 S. W. 969.

This act is not unconstitutional in giving the corporation court some of the jurisdiction of a justice court. Ex parte Freedman, 47 Cr. R. 487, 83 S. W. 1125.

Jurisdiction—Criminal.—City recorder's court held vested with authority to try such offenses against the penal laws of the state as justices of the peace might try. Harris County v. Stewart, 91 T. 133, 41 S. W. 650.

The city court of the city of Dallas has no jurisdiction to try violations of the Penal Code. Crowley v. City of Dallas (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 865.

Though a provision in a city charter to constitute a corporation court a state court was futile and without effect, it had jurisdiction to punish one on conviction of a municipal offense provided for by city ordinance. Ex parte Levine (Cr. App.) 81 S. W. 1206.

This section limits the jurisdiction of corporation courts in criminal cases to those arising within the territorial limits of the city wherein the court exists. An indictment alleging that the offense was committed in the county and does not allege that it was committed in the city is not good. Moss v. State (Cr. App.) 83 S. W. 830.

Corporation courts, organized pursuant to Acts 26th Leg. c. 33, have jurisdiction to try all criminal offenses arising under the ordinances of the city. Ex parte Hubbard, 63 Cr. R. 516, 140 S. W. 451.

—— Revocation of licenses.—Title 22 relates to the incorporation of cities and towns having a population of 1,000 or more; Rev. St. 1895, article 405, authorizes the city council to establish the office of recorder; article 933 provides that where, by ordinance, one is required to obtain a license for any occupation, and has been adjudged guilty of violating any ordinance in relation thereto, the mayor or recorder may suspend or revoke his license; and Acts 26th Leg. c. 33, establishes corporation courts in all incorporated towns and cities. Held, that the city council of a city, coming within such classification, did not have authority to revoke a license authorizing the conduct of the business of installing electrical apparatus. Wichita Electric Co. v. Hinckley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1192.

Art. 905. Judge or recorder elected or appointed, how; term, mayor ex officio recorder, when.—Such court shall be presided over by a judge to be known as the recorder of such court, in such city, town or village, who, in cities, towns or villages incorporated under special charter or charters, shall be elected or appointed in the manner and under the respective provisions of the charter now in force concerning the election or appointment of the magistrate to preside over the municipal court in such city, town or village, and all such provisions are hereby made applicable to the recorder herein provided for; and in cities, towns and villages not incorporated under special charter, such recorder shall be elected by the qualified voters of such city, town or village, in the same manner as the mayor of such city, town or village, and whose term of office shall be the same as such mayor; provided, in such cities, towns and villages not incorporated and acting under special charter, the mayor of such city, town or village shall be ex officio recorder of such court, and shall act as such, unless the city council or board of aldermen of such city, town or village shall, by ordinance, authorize the election of a recorder. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 906. Recorder elected or appointed, when and how; discretion in council; term of office, etc.; vacancy; council may make mayor ex officio recorder, when.—Every two years there shall be elected or appointed in each city, town or village within this state, now or hereafter incorporated, a recorder, who shall preside over the corporation court hereby created, and established, and who shall be elected or appointed as provided in article 905; provided, however, that whenever by the provisions of the charter under which such city, town or village is now incorporated, it is provided that the magistrate now presiding over the municipal court therein is to be elected by the people, then in such case the city council of any such city, town or village may order an election for the recorder, or, in its discretion, may appoint the recorder, who shall hold his office until the next general election for city officers; provided, further, that wherever in any such city, town or village, the office of the presiding magistrate of the municipal court therein shall not have expired when the recorder is elected or appointed therein, the said recorder, first elected or appointed, shall hold his term of office corresponding to the unexpired term of the said magistrate; and every two years thereafter such recorder shall be elected or appointed for a term of two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified. In case of vacancy in the office of recorder or clerk of the court in any city, town or village, such vacancy shall be filled by the council or board of aldermen for the unexpired term only; provided, further, that the board of aldermen may provide by ordinance for the mayor to act as ex officio recorder in all cities and towns not operating under special charter. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 907. Clerk of corporation court elected by council, when; provided; terms; duties.—There shall be a clerk of said corporation court elected by the council or board of aldermen of each such city, town or village, at the same time at which the recorder is elected; but, in such city, town or village, it may be provided by ordinance that the city secretary shall be ex officio clerk of the said court, and may be authorized to appoint a deputy, who shall have the same powers as the said secretary. The clerk of said court shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified. In case of an ex officio clerk as aforesaid, he shall hold his office during his term as city secretary. It shall be the duty of said clerk to keep a minute of the proceedings of the said court; to issue all process, and generally to do and perform all of the duties of a clerk of a court as prescribed by law for the clerk of the county court, in so far as the said provisions may be applicable. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 908. [406] [362] Right of trial before jury.—Every person brought before the mayor or recorder, to be tried for an offense for which the penalty may be fine or imprisonment, or both, shall be entitled, if he shall demand it, to be tried by a jury of six legal voters of the city, who shall be summoned, impaneled and qualified as jurors in justices' courts under the laws of the state. [Acts 1875, 2 S. S., p. 113, sec. 19.]

Art. 909. Rules of pleading, practice and procedure.—All rules of pleading, practice and procedure now established for the county court shall apply in said corporation court in each such city, town or village, in so far as the same are applicable, except that the proceedings in said court shall be commenced by complaint in the manner and under the regulations, as now provided by law, in cases prosecuted before justices of the peace, and except that the recorder need not charge the jury except upon charges requested in writing by the defendant or his attorney; which such charges he shall have power to give or refuse under the same rules and regulations now applicable to the granting or refusing of such charges by the county judge in criminal cases. Complaints before such court hereby created and established may be sworn to before the recorder, clerk of said court, the city secretary, the city attorney or his deputy, each and all of which officers, for that purpose, shall have power to administer oaths; or it may be sworn to before any other officer authorized by law to administer oaths; provided, that, in all cities, towns and villages in this state not operating under special charters, the rules of pleading, practice and procedure now established for justices courts shall apply to said corporation courts in such cities, towns and villages in so far as the same are applicable. [Acts 1899, p. 42, sec. 6.]

County court.—See Art. 1731 et seq.

City Attorney—Authority to administer oaths.—The authority of a city attorney to administer oaths is limited to swearing affiants to complaints in corporation courts. Johnson v. State, 47 Cr. R. 580, 85 S. W. 274.

Where a city was operating under the general act applying to cities of its class, and its city court was not operating under the corporation court act (Acts 26th Leg. p. 40), authorizing city attorneys to take affidavits in criminal cases, the city attorney could not take the affidavit and swear the complainant in a prosecution for violating the local option law. Kirksey v. State, 58 Cr. R. 188, 125 S. W. 15.

Art. 910. Seal of corporation court.—The said corporation court shall have a seal, having engraved thereon a star of five points in the center, and words, "Corporation Court in ————, Texas," the impress of which shall be attached to all proceedings, except subpœnas, issued out of said court, and shall be used to authenticate the official acts of the clerk and of the recorder, where he is authorized or required to use the seal of office. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 911. Complaint, how commenced and concluded; prosecution conducted by city attorney or deputy; county attorney may also represent state, but no fees; process.—In all prosecutions in said court, whether under an ordinance or under the provisions of the Penal Code, the complaint shall commence in the name of the state of Texas, and shall conclude, "against the peace and dignity of the state;" and, where the offense is covered by an ordinance, the complaint may also conclude, as "contrary to the said ordinance;" and all prosecutions in such court shall be conducted by the city attorney of such city, town or village, or by his deputy; but the county attorney of the county in which said city, town or village is situated may, if he so desires, also represent the state of Texas in such prosecutions, but, in all such cases, the said county attorney shall not be entitled to receive any fees or other compensation whatever for said services, and in no case shall the said county attorney have the power to dismiss any prosecution pending in said court, unless for reasons filed and approved by the recorder of said court. [Id. sec. 8.]

County attorney.—The county attorney has the exclusive right to appear in person or by deputy, and represent the state in all cases pending in a corporation court to which the state is a party, but he is entitled to no fees for so doing. Howth v. Greer (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 212, 213.

City attorney—Compensation.—Under a resolution of a city council, a city attorney held entitled to a pro rata share in commissions due city attorney on judgments collected by the city in suits brought by him, but not decided when he went out of office. City of Houston v. Stewart, 40 C. A. 499, 90 S. W. 49.

Under a resolution of a city council, a city attorney held entitled to commissions on taxes paid the city after he went out of office on judgments obtained by him. Id.

Under a resolution of a city council, giving city attorney a commission on sums collected by him by suit to enforce collection of taxes, the city held liable for arbitrarily releasing a portion of the judgment, or purchasing any of the property in satisfaction thereof. Id.

A city held to have had authority to give certain compensation for the collection of taxes by the city attorney. Id.

—— Representing state.—Under charter requiring city attorney to represent the state in the recorder's court on request, in prosecutions for violations of Penal Code, held, that city attorney was entitled to such fees as would be payable to district or county attorney. Harris County v. Stewart, 91 T. 133, 41 S. W. 650.

When acting as justice of the peace, held, that city recorder could appoint city attorney to represent the state in prosecutions only when district or county attorney failed to attend. Id.

A city attorney is not entitled to fees for prosecuting criminals in the recorder's court in a county that has a county attorney. Harris County v. Stewart, 17 C. A. 1, 43 S. W. 52.

—— Increase of salary during term of office.—See notes under Art. 7086.

Art. 912. Council to prescribe rules for collecting fees and costs, practice, etc.; rules in meantime.—The council or board of aldermen of each such city, town or village shall, from time to time, by ordinance, prescribe such rules, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter nor other laws of this state, as in the discretion of the council or board of aldermen may be proper to enforce, by execution against the property of the defendant, or imprisonment of the defendant, the collection of all costs and fines imposed by such court as herein created and established, and shall also have power to adopt such rules and regulations concerning the practice and procedure in such court as said council or board of aldermen may deem proper, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter nor other law of this state; and, until the passage of such ordinance, all rules and regulations of such city, town or village now in force concerning the municipal courts therein, and the enforcement of collection of fines and costs imposed by such court, shall be applicable to the court hereby created and established. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 913. Fines and costs paid into city treasury, etc.—All costs and fines imposed by the said court in any city, town or village, in any prosecution therein, shall be paid into the city treasury of said city, town or village, for the use and benefit of the city, town or village. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 914. Costs to be collected as provided by ordinances, but not greater than in justices' courts.—There shall be taxed against, and collected of, each defendant, in case of his conviction before such court, such costs as may be provided for by ordinance of the said city, town or village; but in no case shall the council or board of aldermen of any such city, town or village, prescribe the collection of greater costs than are prescribed by law to be collected of defendants convicted before justices of the peace. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 915. Jury and witness fees, and enforcing attendance of witnesses according to Code of Criminal Procedure.—The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure now in force regulating the amount and collection of jury and witness fees, and for enforcing the attendance of witnesses in criminal cases tried before a justice of the peace, shall, so far as applicable, govern and be applicable to the trial of cases before the corporation court herein created and established. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 916. Judge may punish for contempt as county judge; may take recognizances, admit to bail, etc., under rules in county court.—The judge of said corporation court shall have the power to punish for contempt to the same extent and under the same circumstances as the county judge may punish for contempt of the county court. He shall have power to take recognizances, admit to bail, and forfeit recognizances and bail bonds under such rules and regulations as now govern the taking and forfeiture of the same in the county court. [Id. sec. 13.]

May punish for contempt.—Under this article and Art. 909, construed with Art. 1770 giving a county court power to punish, as stated, one guilty of contempt, a corporation court established under this act had the same power to punish for contempt as a county court. Ex parte Hubbard, 63 Cr. R. 516, 140 S. W. 451.

Art. 917. Process, how served; defendant entitled to notice of complaint, if demanded.—All process issuing out of said corporation court shall be served by the chief of police or any policeman or marshal of the city, town or village within which it is situated, under the same rules and regulations as are now provided by law for the service by sheriffs and constables of process issuing out of the county court, so far as the same are applicable. But each defendant shall be entitled to at least one day's notice of any complaint against him, if such time be demanded. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 918. [551] [480] Writs of mayor, etc., may be executed anywhere in the county.—Writs issued by the mayor or recorder of said city for offenses against the laws may be executed, and the accused person or persons arrested by the marshal or his deputies anywhere within the county in which such city is situated. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 132.]

Art. 919. [552] [481] Proceedings when a peace bond, etc., given before mayor, etc., has been forfeited.—Whenever any person has been required by the mayor or recorder to give a peace bond, or a bond for good behavior, or any similar bond under this title, and has complied with such orders, and been guilty of a violation or infraction of such bond, and the same is proved or established to the satisfaction of that officer in any trial or complaint, such party so offending may be fined in the sum of two hundred dollars and imprisoned for two months; and the city in its corporate name may sue in any court having jurisdiction for the recovery of the penalty of such bond. [Id. sec. 133. R. S. 1879, 481.]

Art. 920. Fees of recorder, etc., how prescribed; paid out of city treasury; fines and costs collected and disposed of, how; committals; city liable to officers of appellate court, when; court to be always open.—Unless provided by special charter, the council or board of aldermen of each city, town or village shall, by ordinance, prescribe the compensation and fees which shall be paid to the recorder, city attorney, city secretary and other officers of said court, which compensation and fees shall be paid out of the treasury of the said city, town or village. In all such cases, the fines imposed on appeal, together with the costs imposed in the corporation court, and the court to which the appeal is taken, shall be collected of the defendant and his bondsmen, and such fine and the costs of the corporation court shall, when collected, be paid into the treasury of the city, town or village. When the defendant in such cases is committed to custody, he shall be committed to the custody of the chief of police or city marshal of such city, town or village, to be held by him in accordance with the ordinance of such city, town or village, providing for the custody of prisoners convicted before such corporation court; and said city, town or village shall be liable to the officers of the court to which the appeal is taken for the costs due them when such defendant has fully discharged such fine and costs. Such corporation court shall hold no terms, and shall be at all times open for the transaction of business. [Acts 1899, p. 43, sec. 15.]

Art. 921. Appeals to what courts; trial de novo; appeals how governed.—Appeals from judgments rendered by such corporation courts shall be heard by the county court, except in cases where the county courts have no jurisdiction, in which counties such appeals shall be heard by the district court of such counties, unless in such county there is a criminal district court, in which case the appeal shall be from the corporation courts to the said criminal district court; and, in all such appeals to such county court, district court, or criminal district court, the trial shall be de novo, the same as if the prosecution had been originally commenced in that court. Said appeals shall be governed by the rules of practice and procedure for appeals from justices' courts to the county court, as far as the same may be applicable. [Id. sec. 16.]

Appeal bond.—See, also, Art. 2097.

An appeal bond that shows the parties, the title of, the date of the judgment, and amount of fine but lacks the file number of the case, sufficiently identifies the case appealed from. Thielen v. State, 43 Cr. R. 310, 65 S. W. 533.

Art. 922. Until organization of corporation courts municipal court as now established has jurisdiction, but thereafter abolished.—Until the due and legal organization of the said court in any city, town or village, as herein provided for, the municipal court in said city, town or village, as now established, shall continue to exercise its powers and jurisdiction. After the due and legal organization of the said corporation court, the said municipal court and the office of the judge and recorder and clerk thereof shall be abolished, and the said municipal court in each city, town or village shall be entirely superseded by the corporation court and such officers herein created and established, as the same shall be and become duly and legally organized. [Id. sec. 17.]

CHAPTER SIX

TAXATION

Art.
923. Ad valorem tax.
924. May levy and collect tax for improvements, buildings, etc.
925. May levy tax for interest and sinking fund on certain bonds, for current expenses, permanent improvements, roads, etc.
926. Cities of ten thousand inhabitants and over to levy and collect tax; validating act.
927. Poll tax.
928. Occupation tax.
929. Occupations that are subject to taxation.
930. Same subject.
931. Power of city council to provide for assessing, etc., taxes.
932. Collection of license tax, etc.
933. Occupation license to be suspended or revoked, etc., when.
934. Real estate includes what.
935. Personal estate includes what.
936. City council may provide for the exemption of property from taxation, etc.
937. Taxes for payment of indebtedness.

Article 923. [484] [425] Ad valorem tax.—The city council shall have power within the city, by ordinance, to annually levy and collect taxes, not exceeding one-fourth of one per cent on the assessed value of all real and personal estate and property in the city not exempt from taxation by the constitution and laws of the state. [Id. sec. 81. Const. art. 11, sec. 4. R. S. 1879, 425.]

Power to levy.—As to power to levy taxes, see Audrey v. City of Dallas, 13 C. A. 442, 35 S. W. 726.

Levy must be by ordinance.—The tax must be levied by an ordinance passed by the city council, and a levy not made in accordance with this mode is void and creates no personal liability against the taxpayer. Peoples' Nat. Bank v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 632.

Proof that a city tax had been levied according to law must be made by proving the city ordinance levying the tax. Earle v. City of Henrietta, 91 T. 301, 43 S. W. 15.

In the levy of a tax by virtue of an election it must be done under an ordinance duly passed for that purpose. Where a mode is prescribed by which the city is authorized to do a certain thing that mode must be pursued. Miller v. State (Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 525.

Property taxable.—The franchises of a corporation, exercised by it in a city, are property, within the provision of a city's charter, requiring a tax on all property in it. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of San Antonio, 32 C. A. 101, 73 S. W. 859.

Art. 924. [485] May levy and collect tax for improvements, buildings, etc.—The city or town council or board of aldermen of any incorporated city or town within the limits of this state shall have power, by ordinance, to levy and collect an annual ad valorem tax of not exceeding twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property within such city or town for the erection, construction or purchase of public buildings, streets, sewers and other permanent improvements within the limits of such city or town. Within the meaning of this article shall be included building sites and buildings for public free schools and institutions of learning within those cities and towns which have assumed or which may hereafter assume the exclusive control and management of the public free schools and institutions of learning within their limits. [Acts of 1885, p. 99.]

Tax for support of schools.—See notes under Title 48, Chapter 17.

Taxes for payment of indebtedness.—See Art. 937.

Art. 925. [486] [425c] May levy tax for interest and sinking fund on certain bonds; for current expenses, permanent improvements, roads, etc.—The city or town council of any city or town in this state incorporated under the general law shall have the power, by ordinance, to levy and collect an annual ad valorem tax, sufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund on all indebtedness legally incurred prior to the adoption of the constitutional amendment in 1883, regarding the power of cities and towns to levy and collect taxes, etc., and may levy and collect twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of all property in such city or town for current expenses, and may levy and collect an additional twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation for the purpose of construction or the purchase of public buildings, water works, sewers, and other permanent improvements within the limits of such city or town, and shall also have power, by ordinance, to levy and collect a tax not exceeding fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of property for the construction and improvement of the roads, bridges and streets of such city or town within its limits. Within the meaning of this article shall be included building sites and buildings for the public free schools and institutions of learning within those cities and towns which have assumed, or may assume hereafter, the exclusive control and management of the public free schools and institutions of learning within their limits. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 444.]

For provisions as to bonds, contained in this act, see article 882.

Constitutionality.—This statute is valid, and not in conflict with Const. art. 8, § 9. Bodenheim v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 639, 132 S. W. 468.

Valid in part.—The rate of taxation need not be such as will raise the precise amount to pay bonds, and hence the including of a separable void tax did not invalidate the entire tax. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780, 44 S. W. 66.

A tax being in part valid the court can enforce a city's claim to the extent that the tax was lawful. Nalle v. City of Austin, 91 T. 424, 44 S. W. 66.

Where a tax was illegal only in part, and such part was capable of definite apportionment, the valid part was upheld. City of San Antonio v. Berry, 92 T. 319, 48 S. W. 493.

In an action by a city for the recovery of ad valorem taxes, the levy for a part of which was unauthorized, recovery may be had for authorized taxes. Wright v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 406.

Illegal tax levy, while in strictness returnable to taxpayers, may be applied as a credit on omitted legal levies, in order to avoid circuity. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 88 S. W. 542, 89 S. W. 552.

Levy prima facie evidence, etc.—Where a city council, intrusted by law with the duty of levying taxes, levies a tax for a designated purpose, such levy constitutes prima facie evidence that the facts existed which warranted the action of the council in making the levy. Nalle v. City of Austin, 23 C. A. 595, 56 S. W. 954.

Purposes.—Where a contract is of such a character as to require the levy of a tax to pay interest, etc., the contract is void if no levy is made. Kuhls v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 791; Noel v. City of San Antonio, 11 C. A. 580, 33 S. W. 263.

A provision in the charter of a city held not to authorize the levy of a tax for any improper purpose. Tone v. Denison (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1189.

A provision in a city charter held to authorize the city to levy a tax of a specified amount for a special purpose. Id.

—— To pay judgments.—A special charter reducing power of city to levy taxes to pay a judgment founded on a tort is not unconstitutional as impairing obligation of contracts. City of Sherman v. Langham, 92 T. 13, 40 S. W. 140, 42 S. W. 961, 39 L. R. A. 258.

A city held required to exercise the surplus of its taxing power to raise money to pay judgments against it. City of San Antonio v. Routledge, 46 C. A. 196, 102 S. W. 756.

—— Interest and sinking fund on bonds.—Duty to provide fund, see Art. 880.

Powers of the city of Austin defined as to raising money by taxation for the purpose of paying interest and sinking fund on its bonded indebtedness. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780.

Where a city bond issue is sold with the accrued interest, the city may collect a tax to pay the annual interest and sinking fund, though the bonds were sold less than one year prior to the levy. Id.

A tax cannot be collected to pay interest or to provide sinking fund on bonds prior to the date of their sale. Id.

A tax to provide a sinking fund for the payment of bonds is not illegal because the tax was not sufficient to pay the bonds at maturity. Conklin v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 879.

A tax to pay city bonds is not invalidated by the fact that the city purchased the bonds as an investment for its sinking fund. Id.

Taxpayers can defend against the assessment of taxes to pay interest and create a sinking fund on bonds void in the hands of any holder. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n, 99 T. 6, 86 S. W. 750.

—— Payment of bonds.—Levy of tax for payments on bonds. See Bassett v. City of El Paso, 88 T. 168, 30 S. W. 893.

Taxes levied under the charter of El Paso to redeem funded indebtedness bonds held valid. Conklin v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 879.

—— Current expenses.—A contract by a city for a street improvement is not a current expense to which current yearly revenues are applicable. Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 408.

City need not enact ordinance in order to enable officers to contract for current expenses, but it is sufficient if authority be found in minutes of council. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co., 97 T. 344, 78 S. W. 1058.

The validity of municipal warrants issued for current indebtedness held not affected by the fact that such indebtedness exceeded the current revenue. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1066.

Property subject to taxation—Vehicles for public use.—An ordinance of a city imposing a tax on vehicles kept for public use, not taxed by the state, held void. Ex parte Terrell, 40 Cr. R. 28, 48 S. W. 504.

—— Franchises of street railway.—See notes under Art. 868.

Amount dependent on valuation of property, etc.—Where only a 1 per cent. tax could be imposed in one year, a tax for over that amount for 15 months held valid. Berry v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 273.

Art. 926. [487] [426] Cities of 10,000 inhabitants and over to levy and collect tax; validating act.—Cities having more than ten thousand inhabitants may levy, assess and collect taxes not exceeding one and one-half per cent on the assessed value of real and personal estate and property in the city, not exempt from taxation by the constitution and laws of the state; and assessments, levy and collection of taxes made by such cities for the year 1889 are hereby made valid to the amount aforesaid; and such cities are hereby authorized to levy, assess and collect a further tax of twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars worth of property for the purpose of paying the debts of such city lawfully contracted prior to the first day of January, 1889, not to include any bonded debt. Any funding warrants that may be issued for such debt by any such city shall not be included in the limit of six per cent prescribed by article 879; provided, that this article shall not apply to, or in any manner affect, any city organized under a special charter, and shall not be construed to validate any debt contracted by any city without authority of law existing at the time the same was contracted. [Acts of 1889, p. 3.]

Mandamus will lie to compel levy to pay judgment, when.—Under this article a city must provide first for its current expenses, and mandamus will not lie to compel the city to set aside a portion of an annual levy for the payment of a judgment against the city. But it would lie, it seems, to compel the city to levy each year, the full amount of one and one-half per cent, and apply any excess after payment of preferred claims to the payment of the judgment. City of Sherman v. Langham, 92 T. 13, 40 S. W. 140, 42 S. W. 961, 39 L. R. A. 258.

"Debt lawfully contracted prior to, etc., January, 1889."—A judgment rendered against a city on the 29th of March, 1889, for an injury inflicted in 1888, is a "debt lawfully contracted prior to the 1st day of January, 1889." City of Sherman v. Langham, 92 T. 13, 40 S. W. 140, 42 S. W. 961, 39 L. R. A. 258.

"Debts" include what—"Contracted."—The word "debts" is broad enough to include a liability arising out of either tort or contract, and the word "contracted" is used in the statute in the sense of "incurred." City of Sherman v. Langham, 92 T. 13, 48 S. W. 140, 42 S. W. 961, 39 L. R. A. 258.

Art. 927. [489] [428] Poll tax.—The city council shall have power to levy and collect an annual poll tax, not to exceed one dollar, of every male inhabitant of said city over the age of twenty-one years (idiots and lunatics excepted), who is a resident thereof at the time of such annual assessment. [Acts of 1875, p. 113, sec. 82.]

Art. 928. [490] [429] Occupation tax.—The city council shall have power to levy and collect taxes, commonly known as licenses, upon trades, professions, callings and other business carried on; and each and every person and firm engaging in the following trades, professions, callings and business, among others, shall be liable to pay such license tax; but this enumeration shall not be construed to deprive the city council of the right and power to levy and collect other license taxes, and from other persons and firms, under the general authority herein granted. [Id. sec. 83.]

Constitutionality—Uniformity.—A municipal tax upon butchers vending meat, of $75 per stall per annum, and collected only of butchers vending meat at private stalls, and not of butchers renting stalls from the city, is a violation of the provision of the constitution requiring equal taxation. The inhibition applies to the collection equally as to the levy of taxes. Hoefling v. City of San Antonio, 85 T. 228, 20 S. W. 85, 16 L. R. A. 608.

The constitution provides that "all occupation taxes shall be equal and uniform upon the same class of subjects within the limits of the authority levying the tax." Const. art. 8, § 2. This is as binding in case of occupation taxes levied by a municipal corporation as in such taxation levied by the state. Id.

Power of city to license occupations.—When the legislature has declared that an occupation shall be taxed, then, and not before, has a county, town or city the power to levy a tax upon such occupation. Hoefling v. San Antonio, 85 T. 228, 20 S. W. 85, 16 L. R. A. 608. Contra, Hirshfield v. Dallas, 4 App. C. C. § 177, 15 S. W. 124; City of Laredo v. Loury, 4 App. C. C. § 320, 20 S. W. 89.

A city cannot authorize one to engage in a business that would injure the lives, health, or property of persons in the vicinity. A. Cohen & Co. v. Rittimann (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 59.

—— Bawdyhouse.—A city cannot tax and license a bawdyhouse. City of San Antonio v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 767.

—— Power to license not power to tax.—The power given in a city charter to license does not confer a power to tax; by which is meant the power to take from the citizen a sum for the support of the government, whether it be national, state or municipal. Hoefling v. San Antonio, 85 T. 228, 20 S. W. 85, 16 L. R. A. 608.

"License."—In a general sense a license is an official permit to carry on a business or trade, or perform other acts which are forbidden by law except to persons obtaining such permit. It also may apply to occupations not otherwise unlawful, but which the public welfare may require to be under some restraint. Hoefling v. San Antonio, 85 T. 228, 20 S. W. 85, 16 L. R. A. 608.

Art. 929. [491] [430] Occupations that are subject to taxation.—Every person and firm engaged in selling goods, wares and merchandise; every person or firm keeping a billiard table, ball alley, or nine or ten-pin alley, or any similar game; every person or firm selling goods, wares and merchandise at public auction; every merchandise or cotton broker, or commission business; every person or firm pursuing the occupation of hawker or peddler of goods or any article whatever. [Id. sec. 84.]

Art. 930. [492] [431] Same subject.—Nothing herein contained shall in any wise prevent or restrain the city council from collecting the license, and each license tax hereinbefore provided for by this title; each establishment shall be liable to said license tax; and any person or firm pursuing occupations, business, avocations or callings subject to said tax shall pay on each, and no license shall extend to more than one establishment, or include more than one occupation, avocation, business or calling. [Id. sec. 85.]

Art. 931. [493] [432] Power of city council to provide for assessing, etc., taxes.—The city council shall have power to provide by ordinance for the assessing and collecting of the taxes aforesaid, and to determine when taxes shall be paid by corporations, and when by the individual corporators; provided, no tax shall be levied unless by consent of two-thirds of the aldermen elected. [Id. sec. 86. R. S. 1879, 432.]

Art. 932. [494] [433] Collection of license tax, etc.—The license tax shall be collected by the assessor and collector, and shall be paid to that officer by each and every person and firm owing such license and before engaging in any trade, profession, business, calling, avocation or occupation subject to said tax; and, if any person shall engage in any business, calling, avocation or occupation which by an ordinance of the said city is subject to a license tax, without first having obtained said license, he, she or they shall, on conviction before the mayor or recorder's court, be liable to imprisonment or a fine of ten dollars, or both imprisonment and such fine, for each day such violation of said ordinance may continue; and this article shall apply to all persons owing any license and failing to pay the same; provided, that the city council may collect said license tax by suit in any court having jurisdiction, under such rules and regulations as they may provide by ordinance; said taxes, commonly known as licenses, laid as herein provided, shall not be construed to be a tax on property within the meaning of the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 87.]

Cannot collect interest by suit.—While the city may enforce the payment of a license tax by a suit, the payment of interest on the amount due cannot be enforced in such suit. Heller v. City of Alvarado, 20 S. W. 1003, 1 C. A. 409.

Cannot exempt property.—See note under Art. 936.

Art. 933. [554] [483] Occupation license to be suspended or revoked, etc., when.—In all cases where, by any provision of this title, or by ordinance passed in pursuance thereof, a person is required to obtain a license for any calling, occupation, business or avocation, and has, on complaint before the mayor or recorder, been adjudged guilty of violating any rule, regulation, or ordinance of the city council in relation thereto, the mayor or recorder, in addition to fine and imprisonment, or either, may suspend or revoke the license so granted. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 135.]

City council cannot revoke license.—See note under Art. 904.

Art. 934. [495] [434] Real estate includes what.—The term real estate or property, as used in this title, shall be construed to include lots, lands and all buildings or machinery and structures of every kind erected upon and affixed to the same. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 935. [496] [435] Personal estate includes what.—The term personal estate or property, as used in this title, shall be construed to include all household furniture, money, goods, capital, chattels, public stocks and stocks of corporations, moneyed or otherwise, and generally all property which is not real. [Id. sec. 89.]

Art. 936. [497] [436] City council may provide for the exemption of property from taxation, etc.—The city council may, by ordinance, provide for the exemption from taxation of such property as they may deem just and proper; provided, nothing contained in this chapter on taxation shall be construed to prevent the city council from imposing, levying and collecting special taxes and assessments for the improvement of the avenues, streets and alleys, as hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 90. R. S. 1879, 436.]

Contract involving exemption.—The legislature never having conferred upon the city of Austin the power to exempt any property which it was authorized to tax, a contract with a private company exempting it from taxation in consideration of its establishing gas works and furnishing the city with gas at a reduced price, in so far as it attempted to give the exemption claimed is void. This would violate the rule as to uniformity. Austin v. Gas Co., 69 T. 180, 7 S. W. 200.

Art. 937. [498] [437] Taxes for payment of indebtedness.—The city council may also levy, assess and collect taxes necessary to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund to satisfy any indebtedness heretofore legally made and undertaken; but all such taxes shall be assessed and collected separately from those levied, assessed and collected for current expenses of municipal government, and shall, when levied, specify in the act of levying the purpose therefor; and such taxes may be paid in the coupons, bonds or other indebtedness for the payment of which such tax may have been levied. [Const., art. 11, sec. 6. R. S. 1879, 437.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION OF TAXES

Art.
938. Power of city council to provide for collection of taxes.
939. Power of city council to regulate tax lists, assessment of taxes, etc.
940. Duty of taxpayers to render inventory of property, etc.
941. Assessor and collector, powers, duties, bond, etc.
942. Duty of assessor and collector to make list of personal property, etc.
943. Unrendered property shall be ascertained, etc., by assessor.
944. Assessment for back taxes.
945. Board of equalization, how constituted.
946. Annual meetings of board.
947. Value of property, how fixed.
948. Shall equalize value of lots.
949. Lists of unrendered property to be examined.
950. Notice to taxpayer, how given.
951. Valuation lowered, when.
952. Rolls to be approved, when.
953. Action of board final.
954. Compensation of board and secretary.
955. Oath of members.
956. Duty of assessor and collector in regard to collection of taxes.
957. Property of taxpayer shall be levied on and sold for taxes, when.
958. Assessor and collector shall make deed to purchaser of property sold for taxes; effect of deed, right of redemption, etc.
959. Sale may take place at any other time than that first advertised, and may be continued from day to day.
960. Property shall be struck off to city, when.
961. Certain provisions of general tax law applicable, when.
962. Property of infant, etc., may be redeemed, when.
963. Redemption of lands sold for taxes.
964. Taxes, etc., collectible in current money only.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 938. [499] [438] Power of city council to provide for collection of taxes.—The city council may and shall have full power to provide, by ordinance, for the prompt collection of all taxes assessed, levied and imposed under this title, and due or becoming due to said city, and are hereby authorized, and to that end may and shall have full power and authority to sell, or cause to be sold, real as well as personal property, and may and shall make all such rules and regulations, and ordain and pass all ordinances, as they may deem necessary to the levying, laying, imposing, assessing and collecting of any of the taxes herein provided. [Acts of 1875, p. 113, sec. 91.]

Special tax elections.—See Tone v. City of Denison (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1189.

Suits for taxes.—The weight of authority seems to be that when a statute does not provide an exclusive remedy for the collection of taxes, they may be enforced by suit. Cave v. City of Houston, 65 T. 619.

A city may sue for taxes due at any time after the day fixed for sale of such property for taxes. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780.

Though realty was offered for sale for an amount in excess of taxes legally due, yet the city might bring suit for the amount due. Id.

—— Validity of ordinance.—An ordinance of the city of Beaumont giving power to any court of competent jurisdiction to entertain a suit to foreclose the tax lien was enacted without authority and is inconsistent with the statute. Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446, 20 S. W. 184, 726.

—— Constitutionality of statute.—The power granted by a city to prosecute suits for taxes due it is valid, and not in violation of the constitution. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780.

—— Condition precedent.—Under Galveston City Charter, §§ 54, 56, 60, 61, held, that preparation of certain lists and direction to city attorney to file suit for taxes was not a condition precedent to the institution of such suit by the city. Brummer v. City of Galveston, 97 T. 93, 76 S. W. 428.

—— Plaintiff must show what.—In an action by a city to collect taxes, plaintiff was required to show prima facie a valid levy and assessment, and that the taxes were due and unpaid. City of Houston v. Stewart, 40 C. A. 499, 90 S. W. 49.

Under provisions of a city charter making tax rolls prima facie evidence of certain facts, held not necessary for the city to do more than introduce the tax rolls in order to make out its case. Id.

—— Limitation.—A city charter, providing that a taxpayer might rely on the four-year statute of limitations in any action for taxes alleged to be due the city, was valid except as to suits pending at the time it was passed, and with the qualification that a reasonable time must be allowed the city in which to institute suits for taxes prior to its passage. City of Houston v. Stewart, 40 C. A. 499, 90 S. W. 49.

—— Defenses.—A taxpayer, sued by a city claiming to have a population of over 10,000 for taxes levied under the authority conferred on cities of over 10,000, held not entitled to raise the question whether it has 10,000 inhabitants. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n, 98 T. 69, 81 S. W. 2.

In a suit by a city to recover taxes, taxpayer could not defend on the ground that the city had less than 10,000 inhabitants, and hence had not power to levy the tax. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1066.

—— May compromise.—A city may compromise and settle taxes due to it for general purposes by accepting therefor a deed of land for a road. Ostrum v. City of San Antonio, 30 C. A. 462, 71 S. W. 304.

—— Judgment.—Where a city is given the right by its charter to sue for taxes, it is entitled to judgment both against the person and the property. Berry v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 273.

—— Notice of sale.—The statute requires only that notices of sales pursuant to judgment obtained by a city for taxes be mailed to the property owner, not that they be received by him. Ross v. Drouilhet, 34 C. A. 327, 80 S. W. 241.

Assessment and collection of taxes in general.—See Title 126.

Art. 939. [500] [439] Power of city council to regulate tax lists, assessment of taxes, etc.—The city council shall have power, by ordinance, to regulate the manner and mode of making out tax lists or inventories and appraisements of property therein, and to prescribe the oath that shall be administered to each person on such rendition of property, and to prescribe how and when property shall thus be rendered, and to prescribe the number and form of assessment rolls, and fix the duties and define the powers of the assessor and collector, and adopt such measures as they may deem advisable to secure the assessment of all property within the limits of said city, and collect the tax thereupon; and may by ordinance provide that any person, firm or corporation having property subject to taxation or being liable for any tax under the provisions of this title, and neglecting to render a list, inventory and appraisement thereof, as required by ordinance of said city, shall be liable to fine and imprisonment. [Id. sec. 92.]

Property "within limits of city."—Const. art. 8, § 5, declares that all railroad property within the limits of any city shall bear its proportionate share of municipal taxation, and, if not previously rendered, the city authorities shall have power to require its rendition and collect the usual municipal tax thereon. Section 8 declares that property of railroad companies shall be assessed and taxes collected in the several counties in which the property is situated, including so much of the roadbed and fixtures as shall be in each county; and that the rolling stock shall be assessed in gross in the county where the principal office of the company is located, and the county tax paid on it shall be apportioned by the comptroller in proportion to the distance the road may run through any such county among the several counties through which the road passes, as a part of their assets. Held that, under Art. 7525, providing for the general taxation of the rolling stock of railroad corporations, and this article, a city containing the principal office of a railroad company was not, for that reason, authorized to levy municipal taxes on all the railroad's rolling stock, only a small portion of which would necessarily be within the city on the 1st day of January of each year; the term "lying or being within the limits of any city or incorporated town," etc., when applied to tangible movable property, meaning only such property as is actually and physically within the limits of the city. City of Tyler v. Coker (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 729.

Art. 940. [501] [440] Duty of taxpayers to render inventory of property, etc.—Every person, partnership and corporation owning property within the limits of the corporation shall, within two months after published notice, hand in to the assessor and collector of the city a full and complete inventory of the property possessed or controlled by him, her or them within said limits not exempt from taxation, on the first day of January of the current year, verified as required by ordinance; and any person failing or refusing to comply with the provisions of this article shall be liable to fine and imprisonment, and the city council shall, by ordinance, clearly define the duties of taxpayers herein, and make all necessary rules and regulations to secure the rendition of property and the collection of taxes due thereon. [Id. sec. 93.]

Property liable.—Land included within city limits after January 1st, though before the assessment of taxes for the year, is not subject to such taxes. City of Austin v. Butler (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 340.

Inventory—Latent ambiguity—Effect.—An assessment is not void on account of a latent ambiguity in the list furnished by the owner. Eustis v. City of Henrietta (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 632.

—— Right of taxpayer to object.—A taxpayer cannot complain that an assessment is defective in describing the property where the form of description furnished by him was followed. Scollard v. City of Dallas, 16 C. A. 620, 42 S. W. 640; Moody v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 16, 50 S. W. 481.

Where an assessor includes in his assessment property not owned by the citizen, or a greater amount than is taxable, the latter is entitled to relief, though he did not render his property as provided by the statute. Moody v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 16, 50 S. W. 481.

Where the statute requires taxpayers to render inventory of their property, it will be presumed a taxpayer furnished the description on the tax roll. Turner v. City of Houston, 21 C. A. 214, 51 S. W. 642.

Railroad company, whose agent rendered its property for taxation, held not entitled to take advantage of rendition not being in statutory form. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston, 33 C. A. 384, 77 S. W. 269.

Art. 941. [410] [366] Assessor and collector, powers, duties, bond, etc.—The assessor and collector shall make up the assessment of all property taxed by the city, and make duplicate rolls thereof, and, on completion of the rolls, shall deliver one of them to the city secretary. He shall collect all taxes due the city, and in the event of nonpayment of any taxes, shall proceed to sell the property to raise the amount of taxes so due; and shall in the performance of his duties, observe the provisions of this title, and the ordinances of the city relating thereto. He shall give bond, in such amount and in such form as the city council may prescribe, with good and sufficient sureties; and the city council may require a new bond whenever, in their opinion, the existing bond is insufficient; and whenever such bond is required, he shall perform no official act until said bond shall be given and approved. He shall, at the expiration of every week, pay to the treasurer all money by him collected, and shall report to the city council, at the first meeting in every month, all moneys so collected and paid; and he shall perform all such other duties, and in such manner and according to such rules and regulations as the city council may prescribe. The assessor and collector is authorized to require the owners of all property subject to taxation to render a correct account of the same, under oath, to be administered by him. The assessor and collector shall receive such fees and commissions for his services as may be allowed by the ordinances of the city. [Id. sec. 23.]

Bond.—Bond less onerous than that prescribed by statute, but in accordance with it so far as its provisions went, was held to be valid. City of Hallettsville v. Long, 11 C. A. 180, 32 S. W. 567.

—— Sureties not released, etc.—The sureties are not released from liability by the misrepresentations of the municipal officers, etc. City of Hallettsville v. Long, 11 C. A. 180, 32 S. W. 567.

Compensation prorated.—City assessor may recover his proportionate share of the compensation for assessing and collecting taxes, where the collection was made by his successor. Sufficiency of the petition. El Paso v. Ashford, 22 S. W. 177, 3 C. A. 378.

The commission fixed by ordinance as compensation for the office of tax assessor and collector must be prorated between two persons performing the work. City of Cameron v. Moore (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 964.

Description of property.—Ordinances of the city of San Antonio requiring the tax roll furnished to the collector to describe the property by lot and block, and state the value of each parcel separately, does not apply to the assessment. Guerguin v. City of San Antonio, 19 C. A. 98, 50 S. W. 140.

Valuation made by whom.—Where the board of appraisers approved the valuation of the assessor, a taxpayer cannot complain that it was the board's duty to place the valuation, and not the assessor's. Moody v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 16, 50 S. W. 481.

Separate valuation of personal property.—It is not required that the separate value of each piece of personal property should be given in the assessment either by statute or the charter of the city of San Antonio. Wright v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 406.

Tax rolls as evidence.—Tax rolls are sufficient evidence that taxes were levied by a city. Earle v. City of Henrietta (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 727; Homes v. Same, Id. 728.

Art. 942. [502] [442] Duty of assessor and collector to make lists of personal property, etc.—It shall be the duty of the assessor and collector to make out a list of all personal property which has not been given in for assessment according to the provisions of this title, and assess the same in the name of the owner, if he be known; if not, then it shall be assessed by description of the property and as unknown owner; and the value of such property shall be determined by the board of equalization, and the same may be sold as in other cases, if the tax be not paid in the time prescribed by law. [Id. sec. 95.]

Art. 943. [503] [443] Unrendered property shall be ascertained, etc., by assessor.—It shall be the duty of the assessor and collector, at the expiration of the time fixed by ordinance for the rendition of property, to ascertain such property in the city subject to taxation as has not been rendered; and the same shall be by him presented to the board of equalization for valuation by said board; and the same shall be by him entered in a supplement to the assessment roll as unknown, specifying the year for which said tax is not paid within the time prescribed by law; said property shall be sold at the same time and with like effect as other property. [Id. sec. 96.]

When property may be added to rolls.—Where city assessment roll has been substantially completed before levy of a tax, the fact that property not reported is afterwards added to the roll does not invalidate the tax. Scollard v. City of Dallas, 16 C. A. 620, 42 S. W. 640.

Art. 944. [504] [444] Assessment for back taxes.—Whenever the assessor and collector shall ascertain that any taxable property, real or personal, has not been assessed for the past year, he shall assess the same in a supplement to his next assessment roll, at the same rate under which such property should have been assessed for such year, stating the year for which such property should have been assessed; and the taxes thereon shall be collected in the same manner as other assessments. In all cases where any party has omitted to render property for taxation for any former year or years, and such taxes have not been paid, such party shall give such property in for assessment for the years thus omitted and pay such taxes; and the assessor and collector shall enter all such property in a supplement to his next assessment roll, under the head of payments for former years. [Id. sec. 97.]

Art. 945. [505] Appointment and duties of board of equalization.—The city councils of the several cities and towns of this state incorporated under the general laws shall annually, at their first meeting, or as soon thereafter as practicable, appoint three commissioners, each being a qualified voter, a resident and property-owner of the city or town for which he is appointed, who shall be styled the board of equalization; and at the same meeting said council shall, by ordinance, fix the time for the meeting of such board of equalization. [Acts of 1887, p. 152.]

Holding over after term a de facto board.—Acts of members of a city board of equalization having held over after their term held valid as the acts of a de facto board. Nalle v. City of Austin, 41 C. A. 423, 93 S. W. 141.

Art. 946. [506] Annual meetings of said board.—The board of equalization shall convene annually, at the time fixed by the city council, to receive all the assessment lists or books of the assessor of their city, for examination, correction, equalization, appraisement, and approval; and at all meetings of said board the city secretary shall act as secretary thereof. [Id.]

Art. 947. [507] Shall value property.—The board of equalization shall cause the assessor to bring before them, at the time fixed for the convening of said board, all the assessment lists or books of the assessor of their city, for their examination, that they may see if each and every person has rendered his property at a fair market value; and said board shall have power to send for persons and papers, to swear and qualify persons who testify, to ascertain the value of such property; and, if they are satisfied it is too high, they shall lower it to its proper value; and, if too low, they shall raise the value of such property to a proper figure. Said board shall also have power to correct any errors that may appear on the assessor's lists or books. [Id.]

Art. 948. [508] Values to be equalized by board.—The board of equalization shall equalize as near as possible the value of all the improved lots within the corporate limits of their city, having reference to the size and location of said lots and the improvements thereon, and shall equalize the value of unimproved lots as near as possible, having reference to the size and location thereof, and all other property of the same kind shall be made as nearly equal as possible. Any person may file with said board at any time before the final action of said board a complaint as to the assessment of his or any other person's property, and said board shall hear said complaint; and said complainant shall have the right to have witnesses summoned in sustaining said complaint as to the insurance on said property, or the rents and profits it may bring the holder thereof. [Id.]

Art. 949. [509] Unrendered property list to be examined by board.—The city assessor, at the same time that he delivers to said board his lists and books, as provided in article 947, shall also furnish to said board a certified list of the names of all persons who either refuse to swear or qualify or to sign the oath or affirmation as required by law, together with a list of the property of such persons situated within the corporate limits of their city, as made by him through other information; and said board shall examine said lists and appraise the property so listed by the assessor. [Id.]

Art. 950. [510] Notice to property owners.—In all cases where the board of equalization shall find it their duty to raise the value of any property appearing on the lists or books of the assessor, they shall, after having fully examined such lists or books and corrected all errors appearing therein, adjourn to a day not less than ten nor more than fifteen days from the date of adjournment, such day to be fixed in the order of adjournment, and shall cause the secretary of said board to give written notice to the owner of such property or to the person rendering the same of the time to which said board may have adjourned, and that such owner or person rendering said property may at that time appear and show cause why the value of said property should not be raised; which notice may be served by depositing the same, properly addressed and postage paid, in the city postoffice. [Id.]

Art. 951. [511] Board to lower values, when.—The board of equalization shall meet at the time specified in said order of adjournment, and shall hear all persons the value of whose property has been raised, and, if said board is satisfied they have raised the value of such property too high, they shall lower the same to its proper value. [Id.]

Remedy of taxpayer.—The remedy against a fraudulent assessment by the assessor is to review the assessment before the board of appraisers. Moody v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 16, 50 S. W. 481.

Art. 952. [512] Approval of lists and rolls by board.—The board of equalization, after they have finally examined and equalized the value of all property on the assessor's lists or books, shall approve said lists or books and return them, together with the lists mentioned in article 949, that he may make up therefrom his general rolls as required by law; and, when said general rolls are so made up, the board shall meet again to examine said rolls and approve the same, if found correct. [Id.]

Art. 953. [513] Action of board final.—The action of said board at the meeting provided for in article 951 shall be final, and shall not be subject to revision by said board or by any other tribunal thereafter. [Id.]

City charter provision.—Under the charter of the city of Austin (section 41), the decision of the county court on appeal from the board of equalization is final. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Board of Equalization of City of Austin (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 757.

Objection to payment of tax.—An objection to the payment of the tax can not be made on the ground only that there is no proper board of appeals to pass upon objections to assessments. Scollard v. City of Dallas, 16 C. A. 620, 42 S. W. 640.

Review of action of board.—Where it did not conclusively appear that a city board of equalization abused its discretion in fixing the valuation of certain property, the action of the board would not be disturbed. Linz v. City of Sherman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 71.

Art. 954. [514] Compensation of board.—The members of the board of equalization and the city secretary, while acting as secretary of said board, shall receive such compensation for their services, to be allowed by the city council, as said council may deem just and reasonable. [Id.]

Art. 955. [515] Oath to be taken.—Before said board shall enter upon their duties, they shall be sworn, by any officer authorized by law to administer oaths, to faithfully and impartially discharge all duties incumbent upon them by law as such board. [Id.]

Art. 956. [516] [445] Duty of assessor and collector in regard to collection of taxes.—The assessor and collector, after the completion of the assessment roll, as required by ordinance, shall proceed to collect the taxes therein mentioned within the time, and give such notice as may be prescribed by the city council, and for that purpose shall call once upon every person taxed, or on the agent or attorney of such person at the usual place of his or her residence, office, place of business, or elsewhere, and demand the payment of the tax charged upon his or her person or property, if the person is to be found, and if not, then a written demand, specifying the amount of taxes due, left at the residence with some adult member of the family, shall be a sufficient demand; provided, that if any person thus owing taxes has no residence, office or place of business, and no agent in the city or known to the assessor and collector, then the said demand shall not be necessary, and the ordinary published notice required by ordinance shall be sufficient. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 98.]

Art. 957. [517] [446] Property of taxpayer shall be levied on and sold for taxes, when.—If any person shall fail, neglect or refuse to pay the taxes imposed on him and his property, within the time prescribed by the ordinances of said city, the assessor and collector shall, by virtue of his tax list and assessment roll, levy upon so much property liable to taxation belonging to such person as may be sufficient to pay his taxes; and the assessor and collector shall give notice of the time and place of sale by advertisement in writing (if not unknown property), the property and amount of taxes, costs and fees due thereupon; such notice shall be published in some newspaper published in said city; and at the expiration of such notice, and on the day therein specified, the assessor and collector shall proceed to sell such property at public auction, in front of the court house door of the city, or such building as may be used for such purpose; provided, that when real estate is offered for sale the smallest portion of grounds (to be taken from the east side of the premises) shall be sold for which any person will take the same and pay the taxes, costs and fees. [Id. sec. 100.]

See Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446, 20 S. W. 184, 726; Higgins v. Bordages (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 350; Toepperwein v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 699.

Tax rolls evidence.—Under this article, in connection with Art. 7613, the tax rolls are evidence of what taxes had been levied by the city council. Homes v. City of Henrietta, 91 T. 318, 42 S. W. 1052; Id. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 728.

Least portion on east side.—The direction that the least portion of land on the east side of the tract should be sold need not be followed, if to do so would materially injure the remainder. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1036.

Art. 958. [518] [447] Assessor and collector shall make deed to purchaser to property sold for taxes; effect of deed, right of redemption, etc.—The assessor and collector shall, when any property has been sold for the payment of taxes, make, execute and deliver a deed for said property to the person purchasing the same, and such deed shall be prima facie evidence in all controversies and suits in relation to the right of the purchaser, his heirs and assigns, to the premises thereby conveyed, of the following facts:

First. That the land or lot or portions thereof conveyed was subject to taxation or assessment at the time the same was advertised for sale, and had been listed or assessed in the time or manner required by law.

Second. That the taxes or assessment were not paid at any time before the sale.

Third. That the land, lot, or portion thereof conveyed had not been redeemed from the sale at the date of the deed, and shall be conclusive evidence of the following facts:

1. That the land, lot or portion thereof sold was advertised for sale in the manner and for the length of time required by law.

2. That the property was sold for taxes or assessments as stated in the deed.

3. That the grantee in the deed was the purchaser.

4. That the sale was conducted in the manner prescribed by law.

And in all controversies and suits involving the title to land claimed and held under and by virtue of such deed, the person claiming title adverse to the title conveyed by such deed shall be required to prove, in order to defeat said title, either that the land was not subject to taxation at the date of the sale, that the taxes or assessment had been paid, that the land had never been listed or assessed for taxation and assessment, as required by this title or some ordinance of the city, or that the same had been redeemed according to the provisions of this title, and that such redemption was made for the use and benefit of the person having the right of redemption under the law; but no person shall be permitted to question the title acquired by the said deed without first showing that he, or the person under whom he claims title, had title to the land at the time of the sale, or that the title was obtained after the sale; provided, however, that the owner of such property shall have the right to redeem the same at any time within two years of the day and date of the sale thereof, upon paying to the purchaser double the amount of taxes for which the same was sold, together with the costs of such sale and double the amount of all taxes paid by the purchaser since such sale. The assessor and collector shall have full power to levy upon any personal property to satisfy any tax imposed by this title; all taxes shall be a lien upon the property upon which they are assessed, and, in case any property levied upon is about to be removed out of the city, the assessor and collector shall proceed to take into his possession so much thereof as will pay the taxes assessed and costs of collection. [Id. sec. 100.]

Constitutionality.—In so far as this article makes the payment of taxes by the owner to the city, or to a purchaser at a void sale or claimant under a void deed, a condition precedent to his resisting the claim made upon his property under such void proceeding, it is unconstitutional. Eustis v. City of Henrietta, 90 T. 468, 39 S. W. 567.

The requirement of the payment of taxes before making a defense against a void claim is unconstitutional. Eustis v. Henrietta, 91 T. 325, 43 S. W. 259.

Application.—The provisions of this article do not apply to a suit on a tax deed for land not described by it. Ozee v. City of Henrietta, 90 T. 334, 38 S. W. 768.

Deed as evidence of regularity of proceedings.—The levy of a tax is not proven by the recitals in the tax deed made by a municipal corporation. The ordinance passed by the city council is the proper proof. Earle v. City of Henrietta, 91 T. 301, 43 S. W. 15.

Deeds, effect of.—See City of Houston v. Bartlett, 29 C. A. 27, 68 S. W. 730.

Art. 959. [519] [448] Sale may take place at another time than that first advertised, when, and may be continued from day to day.—If, from any cause, the sale of property levied upon or seized for taxes shall not take place at the time first appointed, the assessor and collector shall appoint some other time, give like notice, and proceed to sell such property in the manner prescribed in the first instance; and, in case said property levied upon or seized for taxes can not be sold on the day advertised, such sale may be postponed from day to day until completed, of which postponement the assessor and collector shall give verbal notice at the expiration of sale each day. [Id. sec. 101.]

Art. 960. [520] [449] Property shall be struck off to city, when.—If, at any sale of real or personal property or estate for taxes, no bid shall be made for any parcel of land or any goods and chattels, the same shall be struck off to the city, and thereupon the city shall receive, in the corporate name, a deed for said property, and shall be vested with the same right as other purchasers at such sale, and shall have power to sell and convey the same. [Id. sec. 102.]

Purchaser from city.—Purchaser of a city's interest in land under foreclosure of a tax lien held to acquire no interest therein, where the court had no jurisdiction of the owner in the foreclosure proceedings. Scanlan v. Campbell, 22 C. A. 505, 55 S. W. 501.

Where a city acquires property for taxes under invalid proceedings, subsequently set aside after the property has been sold to an innocent purchaser, the taxpayer may recover the value of the property from the city. City of Houston v. Walsh, 27 C. A. 121, 66 S. W. 106.

Art. 961. [5198] [4760] Certain provisions of general tax law applicable, except, etc.—The provisions of chapter thirteen of title 126, in reference to the seizure and sale of real and personal property for taxes, penalties and costs due thereon, shall apply as well to collectors of taxes for towns and cities as for collectors of taxes for counties and collectors of taxes for cities and towns shall be governed, in selling real and personal property, by the same rules and regulations in all respects as to time, place, manner and terms and making deeds, as are provided for collectors of taxes for counties, except as in this chapter otherwise provided. [Acts 1876, p. 259, sec. 20.]

Application.—The law governing county collectors shall govern city collectors also. Eustis v. Henrietta, 91 T. 325, 43 S. W. 259.

This article makes the provisions of Chapter 13, Title 126, in reference to the seizure and sale of real estate and personal property for taxes, penalties and costs due thereon applicable to cities and towns. It expressly limits its applicability to the seizure and sale. People's Nat. Bank v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 632.

Foreclosure of lien.—The fact that a city was incorporated under the general incorporation act held not to defeat its right to maintain an action to foreclose a tax lien. Grace v. City of Bonham, 26 C. A. 161, 63 S. W. 158.

Description of property in an assessment as "store, S. Fourth and Mary sts.," owned by "Moore Bros.," held sufficient in action to enforce a lien for the taxes. Cooper Grocery Co. v. City of Waco, 30 C. A. 623, 71 S. W. 619.

Art. 962. [521] [450] Property of infant, etc., may be redeemed, when.—If the real estate of an infant, feme covert, or lunatic be sold under this title, the same may be redeemed at any time within one year after such disability be removed. [Id. sec. 103.]

Art. 963. Redemption of lands sold for taxes.—All lands sold under and by virtue of decree and judgment of court, for taxes due any incorporated city or town within this state, may be redeemed by the owner or owners thereof within two years from the date of deed, upon the payment to the purchaser, or his assigns, of double the amount so paid, including costs of court; provided, that purchaser at such foreclosure sale, and his assigns, shall not be entitled to the possession of the property sold for taxes until the expiration of two years from the date of deed. [Acts 1899, p. 50.]

Art. 964. [522] [452] Taxes, etc., collectible in current money only.—Taxes levied to defray the current expenses of the city government, and all license and occupation taxes levied, and all fines, forfeitures, penalties and other dues accruing to cities, shall be collectible only in current money. [Const. art. 11, sec. 4. Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 105.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Purchase of property subject to tax lien.—The provision of city charter that any person who shall purchase property incumbered with taxes shall take the property charged with a lien applies only to purchasers from a delinquent taxpayer, and not to a purchaser under a tax sale. City of Houston v. Bartlett, 29 C. A. 27, 68 S. W. 730.

Release of taxes.—Where a city, having two tax judgments on certain lots, sold under the last judgment without reserve, it thereby exhausted its security, and did not violate its charter, prohibiting the release of any tax. City of Houston v. Bartlett, 29 C. A. 27, 68 S. W. 730.

Liability for fees of notary.—Where the collector of a city without authority employed a notary to take acknowledgments to tax deeds to the city, and the council accepted the deeds without objection, they ratified the employment, and the city was liable for the fees. City of Dallas v. Martyn, 29 C. A. 201, 68 S. W. 710.

Voluntary or involuntary payment.—That a city tax collector, in his receipt, states the payment of an assessment on lands to have been made under protest, does not affect the character of the payment as voluntary or involuntary, where the lands have already been sold under the law regarding delinquent taxpayers, and bought by the city, and the payment is afterwards made in pursuance of an agreement between the former owner and the city. Galveston City Co. v. Galveston, 56 T. 486.

The proposition of a property owner to pay such assessment if the city would remit the interest and penalty allowed by law, though the right be reserved to resort to the courts should he thereafter find occasion, evidences a voluntary payment. Id.

A protest to be effective should refer specifically to property claimed to be illegally taxed, and not generally to property admitted to be legally taxed as well as the former. Id.

The payment of an illegal demand by a party with full knowledge of the facts, except in case of necessity, as to protect one's person or property, is deemed voluntary. Id.

Money collected as taxes by a city under an ordinance not authorized by its charter may be recovered by suit at law whether the tax was paid under compulsory process or not. Otherwise, if the money had been collected by the state authority, for want of power to sue the state. City of Galveston v. Sydnor, 39 T. 236.

Payment of tax to prevent sale of land held voluntary, though made under protest, and with notice of intention to sue for its recovery. Davie's Ex'rs v. City of Galveston, 16 C. A. 13, 41 S. W. 145; Baldinger v. Same (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 145.

An action will not lie for the recovery of taxes voluntarily paid. Moller v. City of Galveston, 23 C. A. 693, 57 S. W. 1116.

Evidence examined and held to justify a finding that a payment of back taxes by plaintiff to a city was voluntary. Ostrum v. City of San Antonio, 30 C. A. 462, 71 S. W. 304.

Certain evidence as to a compromise and payment of taxes claimed to have been paid involuntarily held properly admitted to an action to recover back the taxes. Id.

Assessment upon part only.—A lien cannot be foreclosed upon an entire piece of property when the taxes have been assessed upon a portion only. Cave v. City of Houston, 65 T. 619.

Taxes may be collected by suit.—See Notes under Art. 938.

Restraining collection of taxes.—See Title 69.

CHAPTER EIGHT

FIRE DEPARTMENT

Art.
965. City council may regulate and control the erection of wooden buildings.
966. May prohibit, etc., dangerous condition of chimneys, etc.
967. May prevent the deposit of ashes in improper places.
968. May require inhabitants to keep fire buckets, etc.
969. May regulate carrying on of business dangerous in promoting fires.
970. May regulate, etc., use of fireworks and firearms.
971. May control, etc., the storing of gunpowder, etc.
972. May regulate, etc., the building of parapets and party walls.
973. May compel owners of buildings to have scuttles, etc.
974. May provide regulations for extinguishment of fires.
975. Same subject.
976. May procure fire engines, etc.
977. Buildings may be blown up, etc., when, and the damage in such case.
978. Damages satisfied, how.

Article 965. [523] [453] City council may regulate and control the erection, etc., of wooden buildings.—The city council, for the purpose of guarding against the calamities of fire, may prohibit the erection, building, placing, moving or repairing of wooden buildings within such limits within said city as they may designate and prescribe; and may within said limits prohibit the moving or putting up of any wooden building from without said limits, and may also prohibit the removal of any wooden building from one place to another within said limits, and may direct, require and prescribe that all buildings within the limits so designated and prescribed, as aforesaid, shall be made or constructed of fire-proof materials, and to prohibit the rebuilding or repairing of wooden buildings within the fire limits when the same shall have been damaged to the extent of fifty per cent of the value thereof, and may prescribe the manner of ascertaining such damage; may declare all the dilapidated buildings to be nuisances and direct the same to be repaired, removed or abated in such manner as they shall prescribe and direct; to declare all wooden buildings in the fire limits which they deem dangerous to contiguous buildings, or in causing or promoting fires, to be nuisances, and require and cause the same to be removed in such manner as they shall prescribe.

Cited, City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

Fire limits—Inherent power to establish.—The statute gives city councils the power of regulating the erection of wooden buildings as a precaution against fires, but aside from the statute cities have the inherent power to establish fire limits and to prohibit the use of inflammable material in buildings or repairs thereto. Ex parte Cain, 56 Cr. R. 540, 120 S. W. 1000.

—— Regulations as to buildings.—A municipal ordinance prohibiting buildings not made of fireproof and incombustible materials within certain limits does not prevent buildings of such materials as will resist ordinary fires. Chimene v. Baker, 32 C. A. 520, 75 S. W. 330.

A municipal ordinance, expressly authorized by the charter, declaring that buildings of combustible material shall not be constructed within certain limits, cannot be attacked as unreasonable. Id.

An ordinance prohibiting the erection within certain limits of buildings not constructed of fireproof and incombustible materials held not uncertain and obscure. Id.

This article does not give a city council the authority to pass an ordinance limiting the construction of fire proof buildings to brick or stone. Ex parte Morris (Cr. App.) 120 S. W. 1008.

Under an ordinance requiring buildings of a certain kind to have one or more fire escapes, as directed by the building inspector, unless he deemed fire escapes unnecessary, the building need not be provided with more than one fire escape, where notice of such requirement is not given the owner by the inspector. Radley v. Knepfly (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 447.

An ordinance, requiring the third story of a building to be constructed as stated, in order to provide escape from fires, held unreasonable and void. Id.

An ordinance requiring buildings within fire limits to be of fireproof material, using for the walls brick, stone, or concrete, and for the roofs tin, slate, or iron, was reasonable in its discrimination against materials. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

Under an ordinance requiring buildings within fire limits to be constructed of fireproof material, using for the walls brick, stone, or concrete, and for the roofs tin, slate, or iron, sheet iron on a wooden frame, used for the walls and roofs of a building, was not within the term "fireproof materials." Id.

Under this article and Art. 975, authorizing such municipal regulations for the prevention of fires as are deemed expedient, an ordinance requiring buildings within the fire limits to have walls and roofs "constructed of fireproof material" was beyond the power granted because of the specification of materials to be used. Id.

The sheet iron and frame walls of a building should be required to be taken down, where the foundation was of brick and the roof was of sheet iron metal. Id.

—— Ordinance broader than statute void.—A city council can pass ordinances for the purpose of providing against calamities of fire, and may prohibit the erection, building, placing, moving or repairing of wooden buildings within such limits within the city as they may designate and prescribe. An ordinance which is broader than the statute is void. Ex parte Heidleberg (Cr. App.) 103 S. W. 396.

A city ordinance, establishing fire limits and prohibiting the construction of buildings therein, except buildings of brick or stone, held not in conflict with this article. Ex parte Morris, 56 Cr. R. 533, 120 S. W. 1007.

Injunction by adjoining owners.—See Title 69.

Art. 966. [524] [454] May prohibit, etc., dangerous condition of chimneys, etc.—The city council shall have power: To prevent and prohibit the dangerous condition of chimneys, flues, fire-places, stove-pipes, ovens, or other apparatus used in or about any building or manufactory, and to cause the same to be removed or placed in a secure and safe condition when considered dangerous. [Id. sec. 106.]

Art. 967. [525] [455] May prevent deposits of ashes in improper places, etc.—To prevent the deposit of ashes in places where they would be liable to produce fire, or in any wooden box or barrel, or within any wooden building, and to appoint one or more officers to enter into all buildings and inclosures to examine and discover whether the same are in a dangerous state, and to cause such as may be dangerous to be put in a safe condition. [Id. sec. 107.]

Art. 968. [526] [456] May require the inhabitants to keep fire buckets, etc.—To require the inhabitants to keep and provide as many fire buckets and ladders or other means to reach the roof as they shall prescribe, and to regulate the use thereof in times of fire. [Id. sec. 108.]

Art. 969. [527] [457] May regulate carrying on of business dangerous in promoting fires.—To regulate or prevent the carrying on of manufactories and works dangerous in promoting or causing fires; to prohibit or regulate the building and erection of cotton presses and sheds. [Id. sec. 109.]

Art. 970. [528] [458] May regulate, etc., use of fireworks and firearms.—To regulate or prevent and prohibit the use of fireworks and firearms. [Id. sec. 110.]

Art. 971. [529] [459] May control, etc., the storing of gunpowder, etc.—To direct, control or prohibit the keeping and management of houses or any buildings for the storing of gunpowder and other combustible, explosive or dangerous materials within the city; to regulate the keeping and conveying of the same. [Id. sec. 111.]

Art. 972. [530] [460] May regulate, etc., the building of parapet and party walls.—To regulate and prescribe the manner and to order the building of parapet and party walls. [Id. sec. 112.]

See Nalle v. Paggi, 81 T. 201, 16 S. W. 932, 13 L. R. A. 50.

Art. 973. [531] [461] May compel owners of buildings to have scuttles, etc.—To compel the owners or occupants of houses or other buildings to have scuttles in the roofs and stairs or ladders leading to the same. [Id. sec. 113.]

Art. 974. [532] [462] May provide regulations for extinguishment of fires.—To authorize the mayor, officers of fire companies, or any officer of said city, to keep away from the vicinity of any fire all idle, disorderly and suspicious persons, and arrest and imprison the same, and compel all officers of the city and all other persons to aid in the extinguishment of fires and in the preservation of property exposed to danger thereat, and in preventing goods from being stolen. [Id. sec. 114.]

Art. 975. [533] [463] Same subject.—And generally to establish such regulations for the prevention and extinguishment of fires as the city council may deem expedient. [Id. sec. 115.]

Cited, City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

Art. 976. [534] [464] May procure fire engines, etc.—The city council may procure fire engines and other apparatus for the extinguishment of fires, and have control thereof, and provide engine-houses for keeping and preserving the same; and shall have power to organize fire, hook and ladder, hose and ax companies, and fire brigade; and the companies so organized, with such assistant engineers as may be provided for, and the chief engineer, shall constitute the fire department of the city. Each company shall have the right to elect its own members and officers. The engineers shall be chosen in such manner as said department may determine, subject to the approval of the city council, who shall define the duties of said officers and pass such ordinances as they may deem proper for the interest and welfare of said department and to contribute to the efficiency thereof; all officers so elected and approved shall be commissioned by the mayor; and the said companies, officers and members shall observe and be governed by the ordinances of said city relating to the fire department; said companies shall have power to adopt their own constitution and by-laws, not inconsistent with the provisions of this title and the ordinances of said city; and said department shall take the care and management of the engines and other implements and apparatus provided and used for the extinguishment of fires; and their powers and duties shall be prescribed and defined by the city council. [Id. sec. 116.]

Control of department.—Provisions of a city charter held not to authorize the city council to order its fire department to take part in a parade for the private benefit of the city. Blankenship v. City of Sherman, 33 C. A. 507, 76 S. W. 805.

Where a city charter places the police and fire departments under the control of a civil service commission, giving the commission the right to discharge and appoint, the fact that officers and employés were appointed to their position by the mayor and approved by the city council did not deprive the commissioners of the control over them. Callaghan v. McGown (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 319.

A provision of a city charter, giving a civil service commission charge of the police and fire departments, gave such commission charge of the property pertaining to such departments. Callaghan v. Irvin, 40 C. A. 453, 90 S. W. 335.

Where a city by ordinance made an appropriation to support a fire department, it could not defeat the rights of the members of the department to their salaries, even though it may have been intended to give the mayor the authority to disburse the money to a fire department appointed by him. City of San Antonio v. Tobin (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 269.

Appointment and removal of members of department.—A provision of a city charter, giving a council power to establish and regulate a police force and fire department, held not in conflict with the power conferred on civil service commission to discharge and appoint officers and employés of such departments. Callaghan v. Tobin, 40 C. A. 441, 90 S. W. 328; Callaghan v. Irvin, 40 C. A. 453, 90 S. W. 335.

City council held not empowered to pass on appointment of chief of fire department by police and fire commission. City of San Antonio v. Tobin (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 269.

Liability for negligence.—Members of a fire department are not the servants of a city appointing them but of the general public, and the doctrine of respondeat does not apply to their conduct. Shanewerk v. City of Ft. Worth, 11 C. A. 271, 32 S. W. 918.

A city held not liable for injuries to plaintiff caused by the negligence of firemen while participating in a parade, under orders of the city council. Blankenship v. City of Sherman, 33 C. A. 507, 76 S. W. 805.

A fireman entering premises to extinguish a fire held a licensee. Houston Belt & Terminal R. Co. v. O'Leary (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 601.

Liability of city for insufficient water supply.—See notes under Art. 865.

Contract, etc., for the purchase of hose.—A seller of hose to a city under an unenforceable contract, having replevied the same, held entitled to recover compensation for the use of the hose while in the city's possession. Mineralized Rubber Co. v. City of Cleburne, 22 C. A. 621, 56 S. W. 220.

A city's failure to subject fire hose to a test on delivery held not a waiver of a warranty that the hose would stand a certain pressure test when delivered. Gutta Percha & Rubber Mfg. Co. v. City of Cleburne (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1131.

—— Provision for payment.—See notes under Art. 764.

Art. 977. [535] [465] Building may be torn down or blown up, etc., when, and the damages in such cases.—When any building in the city is on fire, it shall be lawful for the chief or acting chief engineer, with the concurrence of the mayor, to direct such building, or any other building which they may deem hazardous and likely to take fire and communicate to other buildings, to be torn down or blown up or destroyed, and no action shall be maintained against any person or against the city therefor; but any person interested in any such building so destroyed or injured may, within six months, and not thereafter, apply in writing to the city council to assess and pay the damage he has sustained, and, if the city council and the claimant can not agree on the terms of adjustment, then the application of such claimant shall be referred to three commissioners, one to be appointed by the claimant, one by the city council, and the third by both. They shall be sworn faithfully to execute their duty according to the best of their ability, shall have power to subpœna and swear witnesses and shall give all parties a fair and impartial hearing, and give notice of the time and place of meeting; said commissioners shall be qualified voters and owners of real estate in the city, shall take into account the probabilities whether the said building would have been destroyed by fire if it had not been so pulled down and destroyed, and the loss of insurance upon said property, if any, caused by pulling down, blowing up or destroying said building, and may report that no damage should equitably be allowed to such claimant. [Id. sec. 117.]

Art. 978. [536] [466] Damages satisfied, how.—Whenever a report shall be made, and finally confirmed for the appraising of said damages, a compliance with the terms thereof by the city council shall be deemed a full satisfaction of said damages.

CHAPTER NINE

SANITARY DEPARTMENT

[See Article 852.]

Art.
979. City council may appoint health physician, etc.
980. Power to make regulations in regard to pestilence and disease.
981. Owner, etc., of public conveyance, conveying into city person sick with contagious disease, liable to punishment, when.
982. Any person liable to punishment, when.
983. Inn-keeper, physician, etc., shall report persons sick with smallpox, etc.
984. Power of council to have city cleansed, etc.
985. Health physician may be authorized to do what.
986. Cities to regulate sewer, etc., connections, draining, plumbing.
987. Examining and supervising board of plumbers.
988. Composition of board.
989. Term regulated and vacancies filled by mayor and aldermen, etc.
990. Inspector of plumbing elected, when and how.
991. Board to examine plumbers and plumbing inspector, licenses and register of.
992. Licenses not to issue for more than one year, renewable, etc.
993. License fees; disposition of.
994. Members of board to receive no compensation.
995. License not transferable.
996. Examination and fee not required of same person but once.
997. No license until examination passed.
998. Every plumbing firm to have one member a practical plumber.

(See Arts. 838-852. See also Title 66, Health, Public, and especially Arts. 4540 et seq.)

Article 979. [537] [467] City council may appoint health physician, etc.—The city council shall appoint a health officer, and as many health inspectors as they may deem necessary, and shall prescribe, by ordinance, the powers and duties and compensation of the same. [Id. sec. 119. Acts 1909, p. 340, sec. 20.]

Liability for negligence.—A city in the exercise of its power to provide for the public health is liable for the negligence of its officers in that respect. City of Ft. Worth v. Crawford, 64 T. 202, 53 Am. Rep. 753; Id., 74 T. 404, 12 S. W. 52, 15 Am. St. Rep. 840; City of San Antonio v. Mackey, 14 C. A. 210, 36 S. W. 760.

Art. 980. [538] [468] Power to make regulations in regard to pestilence and disease.—The city council shall have power to take such measures as they may deem effectual to prevent the entrance of any pestilence, contagious or infectious diseases into the city; to stop, detain and examine, for that purpose, any person coming from any place infected, or believed to be infected, with that disease; to establish, maintain and regulate pest-houses or hospitals at some place within the city, or not exceeding five miles beyond its bounds; to cause any person who shall be suspected of being infected with any such disease to be sent to such pest-house or hospital; to remove from the city or destroy any furniture, wearing apparel, or property of any kind which shall be suspected of being tainted or infected with pestilence, or which shall be likely to pass into such a state as to generate or propagate diseases; to abate all nuisances of every description which are or may become injurious to the public health, in any manner that they may deem expedient; and from time to time do all acts, make all regulations, and pass all ordinances which they shall deem expedient for the preservation of health and the suppression of disease in the city. [Id. sec. 120.]

Prevention of disease.—A city held not liable for trespass committed by its mayor and police force in quartering a body of yellow-fever suspects in plaintiff's hotel. City of San Antonio v. White (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 858.

Art. 981. [539] [469] Owner, etc., of public conveyance conveying into city persons sick with contagious disease, liable to punishment, when.—The owner, driver, conductor or person in charge of any stage, railroad car or public conveyance, which shall enter the city, having on board any person sick of a malignant fever, or pestilential, contagious or infectious disease, unless such person became sick on the way and could not be left, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable with fine and imprisonment; and such owner, driver, conductor or person in charge, shall, within three hours after the arrival of such sick person, report in writing the facts, with the name of such person and the house where he was put down in the city, to the health officer; and every neglect to comply with these provisions shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either. [Id. sec. 121.]

Art. 982. [540] [470] Any person liable to punishment, when.—Any person who shall bring, or cause to be brought, into the city any person or property of any kind, tainted or infected with malignant fever, or pestilential, or infectious disease, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either. [Id. sec. 122.]

Art. 983. [541] [471] Inn-keeper, physician, etc., shall report persons sick with smallpox, etc.—Every keeper of an inn, hotel, tavern, boarding or lodging house in the city, in which any inmate thereof shall be sick with smallpox, varioloid, yellow fever, or other infectious or pestilential disease, shall, upon such fact coming to his knowledge, forthwith report the same to the health officer. Every physician in the city shall report, under his hand, to the officer above named, the name, residence and disease of every patient whom he shall have sick of any infectious or pestilential disease, within six hours after he shall have visited such patient. A violation of either of the provisions of this article, or any part of either of them, shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either. [Id. sec. 123.]

Art. 984. [542] [472] Power of city council to have city cleansed, etc.—The city council shall have power to require the filling up, draining and regulating of any lot or lots, grounds or yards, or any other places in the city, which shall be unwholesome, or have stagnant water therein, or from any other cause be in such condition as to be liable to produce disease; also to cause all premises to be inspected, and to impose fines on the owners of houses under which such stagnant water may be found, and to pass such ordinances as they may deem necessary for the purposes aforesaid, and for the making, filling up, altering or repairing of all sinks and privies, and directing the mode and material for constructing them in future, and for cleansing and disinfecting the same; and for cleansing of any house, building, establishment, lot, yard or ground, from filth, carrion or impure or unwholesome matter of any kind, and to punish any owner or occupant violating the provisions of any ordinance so passed, as aforesaid; and the city council shall, also, in addition to the foregoing remedy, have the power to cause any of the improvements above mentioned to be done at the expense of the city, on account of the owners, and cause expenses to be assessed on the real estate, or lot or lots, benefited thereby; and, on filing with the county clerk of the county in which the city is situated a statement, by the mayor, of such expenses, shall have a first and privileged lien on such property to secure such expenditure, and twelve per cent interest thereon. For any such expenditures and interest, as aforesaid, suit may be instituted and recovery had in the name of the corporation, in any court having jurisdiction; and the statement so made, as aforesaid, or a certified copy thereof, shall be full proof and satisfactory evidence of the amount expended in any such improvement. [Id. sec. 124.]

Art. 985. [543] [473] Health physician may be authorized to do what.—The health officer may be authorized by the city council, when the public interest requires, to exercise for the time being such of the powers and perform such of the duties of the chief of police as the city council may in their discretion direct, and authorized to enter all houses and other places, private or public, at all times, in the discharge of his duties, under this title, having first asked permission of the owners or occupants; the city council shall have power to punish, by fine and imprisonment, or either, any neglect or refusal to observe the orders and regulations of the health officer. [Id. sec. 125.]

For power of condemnation for hospitals, pest-houses, etc., see Art. 1003; and for other powers in reference to public health, see Art. 838 et seq.

Holding two offices unconstitutional.—The motion by a board of aldermen without the mayor's concurrence, requesting a health inspector to discharge the duties and receive the compensation of health officer, is virtually an appointment to the position of health officer, and violates the constitution, prohibiting one person holding two offices. Brumby v. Boyd, 28 C. A. 164, 66 S. W. 874.

Art. 986. Cities to regulate sewer, etc., connections, draining, plumbing.—Every city in this state, whether organized under the general laws of the state or by special act of the legislature, having underground sewers or cesspools, shall pass ordinances regulating the tapping of said sewers and cesspools, regulating house draining and plumbing. [Acts 1897, p. 236. Acts 1909, p. 162, sec. 1.]

Does not apply to Galveston.—This Act does not apply to the city of Galveston, since it does not have the officers named in the act as members of the board of plumbers, and the city can by ordinance create a board of examining plumbers. Robinson v. Galveston (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1078.

Mandamus to compel compliance.—Where a town or city has no city engineer or local board of health, mandamus will not lie to compel it to establish these officers in order that an "examining and supervising board of plumbers" may be established, as provided for by this act. Caven v. Coleman, 100 T. 467, 101 S. W. 199, reversing (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 777.

Art. 987. Examining and supervising board of plumbers.—Such cities shall create a board for the examination of plumbers, to be known as the examining and supervising board of plumbers, to provide for an inspection of plumbing. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 988. Composition of board.—The said board shall consist of the following five persons: A member of the local board of health, if there be such a board of health, and if there be no local board of health, then the city physician or the city health officer, the city engineer, the city inspector of plumbing, a master plumber of not less than ten years active and continuous experience as a plumber, and one journeyman plumber of not less than five years of such active and continuous experience. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 989. Term regulated and vacancies filled by mayor and aldermen, etc.—The mayor and the board of aldermen, or the board of commissioners, as the case may be, shall regulate the length of term each member shall serve; they shall fill all vacancies occurring in the examining and supervising board of plumbers, appointments to said vacancies to be for the unexpired term of the member whose place is filled. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 990. Inspector of plumbing elected, when and how.—In any such city where there is no city inspector of plumbing provided for by special charter, the board of commissioners, or board of aldermen, as the case may be, shall elect such inspector of plumbing, who shall hold office for a period of time to be fixed by such board; provided, that such city inspector of plumbing may be the city engineer, if the board should see fit to elect him. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 991. Board to examine plumbers and plumbing inspectors; licenses and register of.—The examining and supervising board of plumbers, herein created, shall examine and pass upon all persons now engaged in the business of plumbing, whether as a master plumber, employing plumber, or journeyman plumber, in their respective cities, and all persons who may hereafter wish to engage in the business of plumbing as master plumber, employing plumber, or journeyman plumber, within their respective jurisdictions, and also all persons who may apply for the office of plumbing inspector. They shall issue a license to such persons only as shall successfully pass a required examination. They shall also register, in a book to be kept for that purpose, the names and places of

Art. 992. Licenses not to issue for more than one year, renewable, etc.—They shall not issue licenses for more than one year, but the same shall be renewed from year to year, upon proper application. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 993. License fees; disposition of.—Each applicant for examination for plumber's license shall pay, to such person as the examining and supervising board of plumbers may designate to receive the same, the sum of three dollars for each master plumber examined, and the sum of two dollars for each journeyman plumber examined, which fees may be used by said board to defray any of its legitimate expenses, the residue, if any, to be paid over to the treasurer of the city in which said board shall operate. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 994. Members of board to receive no compensation.—Members of the examining and supervising board of plumbers shall receive no compensation for their services on said board. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 995. License not transferable.—Said license shall be non-transferable. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 996. Examination and fee not required of same person but once.—The examination and examination fee shall not be required of the same person more than once. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 997. No license until examination passed.—The license shall not be issued to any person or firm to carry on or work at the business of plumbing, or to act as inspector of plumbing, until he or they shall have appeared before the examining and supervising board for examination and registration, and shall have successfully passed the required examination. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 998. Every plumbing firm to have one member a practical plumber.—Every firm carrying on the business of plumbing shall have at least one member who is a practical plumber. [Id. sec. 5.]

1003. Condemnation of property.
1004. Condemnation of property by private corporations.
1005. Rules for condemning property for railways followed.
1005a. Cities under special charters may contract with railway companies for viaducts.
1005b. May abolish and close highways.
1005c. May issue viaduct bonds for damages; submission to vote; may give use of streets for viaducts.
1005d. Condemnation of land for viaducts.
1005e. May enforce contracts for viaducts.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 999. [544] [474] Power of city council to have streets, etc., graded, etc.—The city council shall be invested with full power and authority to grade, gravel, repair, pave or otherwise improve any avenue, street or alley, or any portion thereof, within the limits of said city, whenever, by a vote of two-thirds of the aldermen present, they may deem such improvement for the public interest; provided, the city council pay one-third and the owner of the property two-thirds thereof, except at the intersection of streets, from lot to lot across the streets either way, shall be paid for by the city alone; and said costs shall be assessed on the property fronting on said street so improved, to be collected in equal annual payments, not less than five in number; and all moneys collected from these assessments shall be appropriated exclusively to the payment of the bonds issued for the payment of the cost of said improvement. [Id. sec. 126.]

1. Control over streets, etc.
2. Petition of property owners—Effect.
3. Assessments—Constitutionality.
4. —— Not exercise of eminent domain.
5. Power exercised, how.

11. —— Responsibility for defects.
12. —— Care required.
13. —— Sufficiency and safety of way in general.
14. —— Nature of defect.
15. —— Notice of defect or obstruction.
16. —— Precautions against injury.
17. —— Proximate cause of injury.
18. —— Contributory negligence of person injured.
19. —— Practice and procedure.
20. —— Notice of claim for injury.
21. —— Sufficiency of evidence.
22. —— Measure of damages.
23. Indemnity to city.

1. Control over streets, etc.—See notes under Art. 854.

2. Petition of property owners—Effect.—Under Waco city charter, a petition of an abutter for improvement of a street is not an offer to make a contract with the city, but a mere consent that the street may be paved in accordance with the charter and ordinances. City of Waco v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 191.

If a petition for a street improvement be a proposition to the city, it must be construed with reference to the requirements imposed by law on the city in carrying out improvements. Id.

A petition to a city for a street improvement held not to have been unconditionally accepted so as to be binding on petitioners. Id.

3. Assessments—Constitutionality.—A charter which authorizes the city council to make the cost of the improvement of its streets a charge on property fronting upon such streets is valid. Roundtree v. City of Galveston, 42 T. 613; Taylor v. Boyd, 63 T. 533; Adams v. Fisher, Id. 657; Connor v. City of Paris, 27 S. W. 88, 87 T. 32.

Assessments for local improvements which do not discriminate against one in favor of another of those within the assessment district are not in violation of the constitutional provision requiring uniform and equal taxation. Lovenberg v. City of Galveston, 17 C. A. 162, 42 S. W. 1024.

A special assessment held not to violate the constitutional provision guarantying to all citizens the equal protection of the law. Id.

Assessments for local improvements, if properly conducted, do not deprive an owner of his property without due process of law. Id.

Statutes authorizing the imposition of special assessments for street improvements are constitutional. Houston City St. R. Co. v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 693.

Assessment for municipal improvement based on front-foot rule held valid. Harrell v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 838.

A statute conferring on a city the power to make local assessments, without providing for a tribunal to determine the validity of the proceedings, held not to take property without due process of law. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

A charter provision making the number of feet of frontage on the street the basis on which to estimate paving assessments is constitutional. Id.

An assessment under a charter provision making the number of feet of frontage the basis, held not void because of a difference in the depth of the various lots. Id.

A local assessment for paving may exceed the value of the abutting property assessed. Id.

The act of the twenty-seventh legislature, amending the charter of the city of Dallas and providing for the creation of improvement districts, etc., does not violate any provision of either the state or federal constitution. Kettle v. City of Dallas, 35 C. A. 632, 80 S. W. 874.

An assessment for benefits for a street improvement held not subject to the constitutional limitation relating to taxation. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 825.

An assessment against property abutting on a street, for the amount of benefits accrued to it by reason of the paving of the street, held not a taking of property for public use, without compensation, in violation of Const. art. 1, § 17. Id.

Where a city provided for the improvement of a street, to be paid for in part by assessments, it was not bound to treat a deficit as a debt, within Const. art. 11, § 5. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 984.

4. —— Not exercise of eminent domain.—An assessment of property abutting on a street for a proportionate part of the cost of paving it is not an exercise of the power of eminent domain. City of Austin v. Nalle, 102 T. 536, 120 S. W. 996.

5. Power exercised, how.—The power must be exercised by ordinance or resolution. City of Waco v. Prather, 90 T. 80, 37 S. W. 312.

Authority to change the grade of a street, which is conferred on the council by the city charter, cannot be granted by the consent of each member of the council individually, but the council must act as such. Denison & P. Suburban Ry. Co. v. James, 20 C. A. 358, 49 S. W. 660.

A street committee of a city council cannot authorize a railroad company to change the grade of a street, unless empowered by charter, or by the council. Id.

6. Costs, how assessed—Abutting property.—Damages to one part of a town lot from an adjacent ditch may be compensated by a benefit therefrom to another part of the lot. Allen v. City of Paris, 1 App. C. C. § 888.

That roll ownership of property to be assessed was not approved held no defense in action on improvement certificate where work was duly performed. Harrell v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 838.

The probability that a lot abutting on the street improved would in the near future be intersected by streets does not authorize its assessment for the cost of such street intersections. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

The city is responsible to the contractor for the entire contract price of the work, and the abutting owners are responsible to the city for two-thirds of the costs. City of Belton v. Sterling (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1027.

7. —— Street railway.—Statute authorizing cities to levy a tax for street improvements against abutting property owners authorizes the charge against a street railway company for the cost of the paving only between the rails. Houston City St. R. Co. v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 693.

8. Liability of city for injury to property.—Damages to one's property caused by the grading by a city of its streets adjacent thereto are recoverable. Cooper v. City of Dallas, 83 T. 239, 18 S. W. 565, 29 Am. St. Rep. 645; City of Ft. Worth v. Howard, 22 S. W. 1059, 3 C. A. 537; City of San Antonio v. Mullaly, 11 C. A. 596, 33 S. W. 256.

An abutting owner may recover damages from the city for destroying a street. City of Houston v. Kleinecke (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 250.

The owner of property may recover against a city damages done to property abutting upon the streets of a city by its action in changing the established grade and digging ditches thereon for the purpose of draining other streets. City of Houston v. Hutchins (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 269; City of Dallas v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 321. See City of Dallas v. Beeman, 12 C. A. 344, 34 S. W. 340.

City is liable for damages to abutting property resulting from change of grade in street made by railroad company under direction of city. Laager v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 61.

A city is not liable for injuries to property, arising from the construction of a street so as to cause surface water to accumulate on the property, unless the street was negligently constructed. Taylor v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 260.

City held not liable for sickness, etc., caused by the accumulation of surface water, owing to the construction of a street. Id.

9. Liability for defective streets—Duty to repair.—A city held liable for injury from defective sidewalk, though under its charter property owners must pay for repairs. City of Dallas v. Jones (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 606; Same v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 742.

Lack of funds on the part of a municipality is no justification for its failure to repair streets and sidewalks. City of Dallas v. Strayer (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 980; City of McKinney v. Brown (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 88.

The duty to use ordinary care to keep city sidewalks in repair is ordinarily on the city, and not on the abutting property owner. City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 109 S. W. 231.

10. —— "Streets" as to which liable.—Where a street in an unfrequented part of a city is not opened for public use, the city is not responsible for damages by reason of its defective condition. If used frequently by the public, the city is responsible. City of Galveston v. Posnainsky, 62 T. 119, 50 Am. Rep. 517; Klein v. City of Dallas, 71 T. 280, 8 S. W. 90; City of Austin v. Ritz, 72 T. 391, 9 S. W. 884; White v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1131. See City of Texarkana v. Talbot, 26 S. W. 451, 7 C. A. 202.

In action against city for injuries sustained by stepping into a hole near a sidewalk, held not necessary that plaintiff should show title of the land in the city. Still v. City of Houston, 27 C. A. 447, 66 S. W. 76.

11. —— Responsibility for defects.—A city is not liable for damages occasioned by the negligent operation of a water station built in its streets without authority, although its officials knew of the damage being done. City of Greenville v. Britton, 19 C. A. 79, 45 S. W. 970.

A municipal corporation is not relieved of its liability by reason of the failure of a railroad company to keep the street safe for passage. Railway Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 186.

Where the city directs the manner in which the railroad is constructed, maintained, used or operated and damages accrue from what is done by the company under the city's direction, the city is liable. The mere giving the right to construct the road where the city is authorized to do so does not make the city liable. Laager v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 61.

That a city granted a franchise to B. to excavate in its streets held not to render it liable for B.'s failure to comply with an ordinance requiring the covering or fencing of excavations. Browne v. Bachman, 31 C. A. 430, 72 S. W. 622.

In action for death at railroad crossing, evidence held to show exercise of jurisdiction over place of accident by municipal corporation under color of law. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bratcher, 54 C. A. 10, 118 S. W. 1091.

Liability stated of a city for injuries to a person from an obstruction placed in a public place by an association granted the right to use such place for show purposes. City of San Antonio v. Ashton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 757.

12. —— Care required.—A city held bound only to use ordinary care to keep its streets in a reasonably safe condition. City of Dallas v. Moore, 32 C. A. 230, 74 S. W. 95.

Test as to whether a municipal corporation has been negligent with reference to a defective sidewalk stated. City of Rockwall v. Heath (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 514.

A city's duty to use ordinary care to maintain a sidewalk in a reasonably safe condition includes the duty of exercising ordinary care to keep the walk free from such holes as would reasonably be deemed likely to cause injury to pedestrians. City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 109 S. W. 231.

13. —— Sufficiency and safety of way in general.—Small city having a small revenue held not liable for its failure to remove a stump on a side street standing on the line of the space set apart as a sidewalk, where the traveled way was safe and sufficiently wide. Wheeler v. Flatonia (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 951.

A driver on a city street was bound to take notice of an ordinance setting apart 10 feet as a sidewalk, although no sidewalks were actually constructed. Id.

14. —— Nature of defect.—Liability of city for injuries resulting from the negligent leaving of glass in a street by its officers. City of El Paso v. Dolan (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 669.

A city which allowed a table to remain on a sidewalk held liable to one injured by collision therewith. City of Palestine v. Hassell, 15 C. A. 519, 40 S. W. 147.

Where there were piles of rubbish in the street, and plaintiff cut his foot on glass therein, held, that he could recover. City of Galveston v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 48.

Where evidence, in action for personal injury caused by defective sidewalk, shows sidewalk was dangerous, without reference to question of repair, city is liable. City of Dallas v. Jones, 93 T. 38, 49 S. W. 577, 53 S. W. 377.

15. —— Notice of defect or obstruction.—City liable for defects in sidewalk if it have notice, either actual or constructive, and it is not material whether the sidewalk was built by the city or by a private person. The city is charged with notice if it could have discovered the defect by ordinary diligence. Klein v. City of Dallas, 71 T. 280, 8 S. W. 90; City of Austin v. Ritz, 72 T. 291, 9 S. W. 884. See City of Galveston v. Posnainsky, 62 T. 118, 50 Am. Rep. 517; Phillips v. City of Dallas, 3 App. C. C. § 294.

The existence of an obstruction on a sidewalk for two weeks held sufficient to charge city with notice. City of Palestine v. Hassell, 15 C. A. 519, 40 S. W. 147.

Notice to mayor is notice to city of nuisance committed by private scavengers licensed by city. City of San Antonio v. Mackey's Estate, 22 C. A. 145, 54 S. W. 33.

Actual notice can be given to a city only on proof of notice to an officer authorized to receive or report the same. City of Dallas v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 742.

A city held entitled to a peremptory instruction in its favor in a personal injury suit; no actual or constructive notice of the defect complained of being shown. City of Sherman v. Greening (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 424.

A city may be charged with notice of a defect in a street which examination of other defects would have shown. City of Dallas v. Moore, 32 C. A. 230, 74 S. W. 95.

Actual notice held not necessary to render a city liable for injury from a defective street. Id.

Where it was policeman's duty to report defects in sidewalks, notice to him of such defect is notice to the city. City of San Antonio v. Talerico (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 28.

Evidence held to warrant an inference of actual knowledge on the part of a city of the existence of a defect in the street. City of Dallas v. Muncton, 37 C. A. 112, 83 S. W. 431.

16. —— Precautions against injury.—City's failure to guard ditch in street with barriers and danger signals, as required by city ordinance, held negligence as a matter of law. City of Corsicana v. Tobin, 23 C. A. 492, 57 S. W. 319.

City's having habitually permitted ditches in its streets to be insufficiently guarded held not a defense to ditchers against city's action for rendering it liable for negligently guarding ditch. Id.

A city held liable only for the exercise of reasonable diligence to guard excavations in a street made by another after due notice. Browne v. Bachman, 31 C. A. 430, 72 S. W. 622.

City ordinances forbidding leaving a ditch open in a street held not to apply to the city, nor render the city's failure to comply therewith negligence per se. Id.

17. —— Proximate cause of injury.—Failure of a city to erect a suitable barrier on a street exposed to a river held the proximate cause of an injury resulting from complainant's falling into the river, for which the city was liable. City of San Antonio v. Porter, 24 C. A. 444, 59 S. W. 922.

Where a passenger was injured while alighting from a street car by the carrier's negligence, negligence of a city in excavating the street at that point held not to render the city liable for the injury. Yecker v. San Antonio Traction Co., 33 C. A. 239, 76 S. W. 780.

The proximate cause of an injury to a traveler held a defect in a street. City of Dallas v. McCullough (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1121.

18. —— Contributory negligence of person injured.—Plaintiff injured by obstruction in sidewalk held not guilty of contributory negligence. City of Palestine v. Hassell, 15 C. A. 519, 40 S. W. 147.

The fact that one injured while crossing a bridge was driving at an unlawful gait will not preclude a recovery unless such violation of the law contributed thereto. City of Marshall v. McAllister, 18 C. A. 159, 43 S. W. 1043.

Previous knowledge of an excavation in a street which caused the injuries does not necessarily show contributory negligence. City of Hillsboro v. Jackson, 18 C. A. 325, 44 S. W. 1010.

Attempting to drive a horse by a scraper left in the street held not to constitute contributory negligence. City of Weatherford v. Lowery (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 34.

A pedestrian, injured in crossing a street at a place other than a crossing, may recover, when the injury was caused by the city's negligently maintaining a dangerous place in the street. City of Dallas v. Webb, 22 C. A. 48, 54 S. W. 398.

That a person injured by reason of a defective railing, part of a street, was leaning against the railing while talking to another, held not to preclude recovery. City of Whitewright v. Taylor, 23 C. A. 486, 57 S. W. 311.

In an action for damages alleged to have been occasioned by a city's failing to erect a barrier on a street adjacent to a stream, that plaintiff knew that there were no barriers along such street cannot preclude his recovery for injuries sustained. City of San Antonio v. Porter, 24 C. A. 444, 59 S. W. 922.

An instruction that plaintiff could not recover for injuries sustained by falling into an unprotected ditch in a city street if he had knowledge of its existence held erroneous. Browne v. Bachman, 31 C. A. 430, 72 S. W. 622.

Question of contributory negligence of a pedestrian using a street with knowledge of a defect considered. City of Dallas v. Moore, 32 C. A. 230, 74 S. W. 95.

One may travel on a street although he knows it to be in an unsafe condition and there are other streets which he may use, unless to so travel is a disregard of ordinary care. City of Dallas v. Muncton, 37 C. A. 112, 83 S. W. 431.

Care required of traveler on city sidewalk stated. City of Cleburne v. Elder, 46 C. A. 399, 102 S. W. 464.

One is liable for injury caused by an obstruction placed upon a sidewalk by a contractor in repairing it, where she should have anticipated the obstruction from the nature of the work, whether she directed it to be placed there or not. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120.

A pedestrian injured by a defect in a city sidewalk is not negligent where she was ignorant of the defect until she sustained the injury. City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 109 S. W. 231.

19. —— Practice and procedure.—See notes under Title 37.

20. —— Notice of claim for injury.—Notice of injuries to city secretary held insufficient; charter requiring it to be given to council. City of Ft. Worth v. Shero, 16 C. A. 487, 41 S. W. 704.

Giving of notice of injuries within prescribed time held a condition precedent. Id.

Notice of injury, given to the mayor or secretary, is a condition precedent to recovery of damages from city, notwithstanding other servants of the city caused the injury. Parsons v. City of Ft. Worth, 26 C. A. 273, 63 S. W. 889.

A notice to a city of injury from a defective street held sufficient to give notice of a prolapsus of the womb. City of Dallas v. Moore, 32 C. A. 230, 74 S. W. 95.

21. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held not to justify verdict for the city, in an action for injury caused by a pedestrian stumbling on an obstruction on a sidewalk. Davis v. City of Austin, 22 C. A. 460, 54 S. W. 927.

In an action for injuries alleged to be due to a defect in a sidewalk, evidence examined, and held sufficient to sustain the verdict for plaintiff. City of Cleburne v. Elder, 46 C. A. 399, 102 S. W. 464.

In a personal injury action against a city, the uncontradicted evidence held not to show plaintiff's contributory negligence. City of San Antonio v. Ashton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 757.

22. —— Measure of damages.—A city is liable for injury from a defective sidewalk, including the aggravation resulting from the negligent treatment by the physician employed, in good faith and with ordinary care, to treat the injury. City of Dallas v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 742.

23. Indemnity to city.—An abutting owner held not liable to a city for damages recovered against it for injuries sustained by reason of a defective sidewalk. City of Dallas v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 742.

A city's implied consent to digging of ditch in its street held to be only on condition that ditch be guarded with barriers, as provided by city ordinance; and hence city can recover over, against ditchers, damages resulting from failure to so guard it. City of Corsicana v. Tobin, 23 C. A. 492, 57 S. W. 319.

In an action against a city and a street railway company for injuries to a traveler on the street, the city held entitled to plead over against the company in the event judgment was rendered against it. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. v. Johns, 52 C. A. 489, 116 S. W. 62.

Art. 1000. [545] [475] Estimate of cost of improvements shall be made, etc.—Whenever the city council shall determine to make any such improvement, they shall cause an estimate to be made of the probable cost thereof by the city engineer, or by some other officer of the city, or by a committee of three aldermen; and such engineer or other officer or committee shall also report a full list of all lots or fractional lots, giving number and size of the same, and the number of the block in which situated, and the names of the owners thereof, if known, and such other information as may be required by the city council; and if there be any lot or fractional lot the owner of which is not known, the same shall be entered on said list as unknown; it shall be the duty of the officer or committee aforesaid to enter on said list, opposite each lot or fractional lot lying and being on each side of the street, avenue or alley so to be improved as aforesaid, one-third of the estimated expense for such work or improvement on such avenue, street, or alley, fronting, adjoining or opposite such lot or fractional lot; and, on the acceptance and approval of said report and list by the city council, said amount shall be imposed, levied and assessed as taxes, and shall be a lien upon the property until the payment of the same. [Id. sec. 127.]

Article strictly construed.—This article provides how the estimate of the cost of such improvements shall be made, and declares that the amount imposed shall be levied and assessed as taxes, and shall be a lien upon the property until the payment of the same. These grants of power must be strictly construed and the statute closely followed. Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446, 20 S. W. 184, 726.

Conditions precedent to making improvement.—The report is a condition precedent to the improvement, the failure to make which renders a levy and assessment void. Kerr v. City of Corsicana (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 694.

The assessment, the report of the committee and its acceptance, and approval by the council, are conditions precedent to the letting of the contract. City of Corsicana v. Kerr, 89 T. 461, 35 S. W. 794.

Engineer's estimate of cost of public improvement held to have been considered by council as required before ordering the improvement, though entry of estimate was subsequent to order in the record. Davie's Ex'rs v. City of Galveston, 16 C. A. 13, 41 S. W. 145; Baldinger v. Same, Id.

Where a city council had authority to enlarge the portion of a street to be paved, by amendment to the resolution ordering a portion of it paved, the fact that they did it without waiting until the next regular meeting to receive data from the city engineer held not to render the assessment for the improvement void. City of Paris v. Brenneman (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 58.

Art. 1001. [546] [476] Property levied on and sold for taxes for improvements, when and how, etc.—After such action on the part of the city council as above provided for, such officer or committee shall give such notice as may be required by ordinance, of said tax being due and within what time payable, and shall commence forthwith to collect the same. And after the expiration of the period for payment of said tax, said officer or committee shall levy on so much of any property on said list on which said tax has not been paid as will be sufficient to pay the same, and the same notice of sale as is required in sales for other tax shall be given; and, if said tax be not paid before the day of sale, said officer or committee shall sell said property in the name and under the circumstances, and to the extent and subject to the same conditions which are or may be provided by ordinance for sale of real estate in the city, charged with the payment of taxes imposed by the said corporation; and said officer or committee shall execute a deed to the purchaser at any such sale; and all other provisions of this title in reference to a deed drawn by the assessor and collector shall apply to the deed provided for in this article. [Id. sec. 128.]

Sale of smallest portion.—Article 999, supra, requires that the tax shall be collected in not less than five annual payments. This article provides that the levy shall be on so much property as will be sufficient to pay the same, and like notice of sale as in sales for other taxes shall be given, and sale shall be subject to the same conditions provided by ordinance for other tax sales. One of the important rights here secured to the owner is a sale of the smallest portion of ground that any person will take and pay the taxes. Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446, 20 S. W. 184, 726.

Art. 1002. [547] [477] Suit against owner of property for improvement tax, when, etc.—In addition to the power and authority granted to the city council to collect said assessment of taxes as aforesaid, they shall have the further power and additional remedy of instituting suit in the corporate name in any court having jurisdiction for the recovery against any owner of property for the amount due for any such work so made as aforesaid; and the city council shall provide, by resolution or ordinance under the provisions of this title, for carrying out and executing the powers in this chapter conferred, and may adopt such resolutions and enact such ordinances and make such regulations as they may deem necessary. [Id. sec. 129.]

In general.—A city held to have exercised the power conferred on it to collect assessments by suit, where it by ordinance authorized the city attorney to bring suit whenever he might deem it advisable. Bennison v. City of Galveston, 18 C. A. 20, 44 S. W. 613.

Suit against owner, not property.—This article authorizes suit as an additional remedy. It only authorizes personal suit and moneyed judgment against the owner for the amount due. It does not authorize a suit against the property, nor one against the owner and the property together. A lien is given by statute, and the manner of its enforcement is provided. Suit may only be brought against the owner for the "amount due." Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446, 20 S. W. 184, 726.

Art. 1003. [548] Condemnation of property.—That whenever a city council of an incorporated city or town shall deem it necessary to take any private property, in order to open, change or widen any public street, avenue or alley, or for the construction of water mains, or supply reservoirs, or stand pipes for water works or sewers, or for the purpose of establishing thereon one or more hospitals or pest-houses, within or without the limits of such city or town, or for the purpose of constructing and maintaining sewer pipes, mains and laterals and connections and also private property upon which to maintain vats, filtration pipes and other pipes, and which to use and occupy as a place for ultimate disposition of sewerage in or out of the town or city limits, whenever it be made to appear that the use of any such private property is necessary for successful operation of such sewer system, and when it be also made to appear that such sewer system is beneficial to the public use, health and convenience, such property may be taken for such purposes by making just compensation to the owner thereof. If the amount of such compensation cannot be agreed upon, it shall be the duty of such city council to cause to be stated in writing the real estate or property sought to be taken, the name of the owner thereof, and his residence, if known, and file such statement with the county judge of the county in which said property is situated. [Acts 1909, p. 9.]

In general.—Though plaintiff knew a resolution of the council authorized digging a ditch through his land only on condition that private parties pay the damage, he was not estopped from claiming damages from the city because he did not notify it that he would not look to the private parties. City of Dallas v. Beeman, 23 C. A. 315, 55 S. W. 762.

Deed of land to a city for a street held not to relieve the city from liability for damages to the grantor's property occasioned by a grade made in extending the street. Bartels v. City of Houston, 32 C. A. 389, 74 S. W. 326; City of Houston v. Bartels, 36 C. A. 498, 82 S. W. 323, 469.

Constitutionality of statute.—Act Feb. 15, 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. c. 112), which authorizes the city of New Braunfels to condemn lands, etc., in constructing public utilities, violates Const. art. 3, § 56, and article 11, § 5, which prohibit the legislature from changing the charters of cities of less than 10,000 population by local or special law. Tolle v. City of New Braunfels (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 345.

Condemnation not authorized for.—This article does not authorize condemnation for a light plant, nor condemnation of the right to flood lands in maintaining waterworks. Tolle v. New Braunfels (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 345.

Compensation—Necessity.—The legislature cannot confer on a city authority to damage private property by the construction of a street, without compensation to the owner. City of Houston v. Bartels, 36 C. A. 498, 82 S. W. 323, 469.

—— Assessment.—Damages assessed how. City of Dallas v. Kahn, 9 C. A. 19, 29 S. W. 98; City of Dallas v. Miller, 27 S. W. 498, 7 C. A. 503.

—— Measure.—If in condemnation proceedings the injury to the property is shown to be permanent, the difference in the value of the property just before and after the injury was inflicted upon it is the proper measure of damages. If the injury is not permanent, then special damages, the proximate result of the act, can be recovered. City of Dallas v. Leake (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 338; Railway Co. v. Dunlavy, 56 T. 256; Railway Co. v. Ormond, 62 T. 274; Railway Co. v. Helsley, id. 593; Railway Co. v. Schofield, 72 T. 496, 10 S. W. 575; City of Texarkana v. Talbot, 7 C. A. 207, 26 S. W. 451. See Cooper v. City of Dallas, 83 T. 239, 18 S. W. 565, 29 Am. St. Rep. 645; Gilder v. City of Brenham, 67 T. 345, 3 S. W. 309; Adams v. Water Works (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1104.

—— Set-off of benefits.—Advantages accruing to plaintiff's property in common with other property adjoining the street, by the improvement thereof, cannot be set off against damages occasioned by such improvement. City of Houston v. Bartels, 36 C. A. 498, 82 S. W. 323, 469.

Effect of abandonment of proceedings.—Where a city abandoned condemnation proceedings for widening a street, held, that plaintiff could recover a sum assessed for benefits on his property and paid by him to the city. City of San Antonio v. Peters (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 827.

Art. 1004. [548] Condemnation of property by private corporations.—Any company or corporation, chartered under the laws of this state, for the purpose of constructing water works or furnishing water supply for any town or city, shall have the same right to condemn property necessary for the construction of supply reservoirs or stand pipes for water works, when deemed necessary to preserve the public health, that is given towns and cities under this article. Upon the filing of the statement provided for in this article, it shall be the duty of said judge, in term time or vacation, to appoint three disinterested freeholders and qualified voters of the county, as special commissioners to assess the damages to accrue to the owner by reason of such condemnation. And repealing all laws in conflict herewith. [Acts 1891, p. 172. Id.]

Art. 1005. [549] Rules for condemning property for railroads followed.—The commissioners so appointed shall, in their proceedings, be governed and controlled by the law in force in reference to the condemnation of the right of way for railroad companies and the assessment of damages therefor—the city, town, company or corporation occupying the position of the railroad company. And all laws in reference to applications for the condemnation for right of way of railroad companies, including the measure of damages, the right of appeal, and the like, shall apply to an application by a city or town, company or corporation, under this and the preceding article, for the condemnation of property for the purpose of opening, changing or widening streets, avenues or alleys, or for the construction of water mains, sewers, supply reservoirs or stand pipes—the city, town, company or corporation to occupy the position of the railroad company. [Acts of 1889, p. 3.]

Art. 1005a. Cities under special charters may contract with railway companies for viaducts.—That all cities within this state, acting under special charters granted by the legislature of the state of Texas, are hereby granted all necessary rights and powers to carry out and comply with existing contracts or to hereafter make contracts with railway companies owning or operting [operating] tracks in such cities, to erect and complete by such railway companies, all necessary viaducts, the construction and completion of which shall be at the expense of such railway companies, according to plans and specifications agreed upon between such companies and such cities. [Acts 1911, p. 235, sec. 1.]

Art. 1005b. May abolish and close highways.—All such cities are hereby given authority and power to abolish and close such portions of any highway, street or alley, crossed by railroad tracks, as such cities have or may agree to close and abolish, in consideration of procuring the erection and completion of any viaduct by any railway company or companies. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1005c. May issue viaduct bonds for damages; submission to vote; may give use of streets for viaducts.—Such cities are hereby given full power and authority to issue improvement bonds to be designated "viaduct bonds" to an amount not exceeding ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) for the purpose of raising sufficient funds to pay for the right of way for viaduct, over such property as may not be owned by such cities or by any of the railway companies affected, and to pay such damages, if any, which may be sustained by abutting property owners. Provided, that the question of issuance of said bonds shall be submitted to a vote of the property tax paying voters, and shall be carried by a majority vote of said voters, such election being called as is provided for on other questions in the charters of cities desiring an election on said bonds. In addition such cities are hereby given authority to give to railway companies the use of any portion of its streets, highways and alleys as may be necessary for a right of way for viaducts. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1005d. Condemnation of land for viaducts.—All such cities are hereby given the right of eminent domain and the power and authority to condemn all land necessary for right of way purposes for viaducts and approaches to same forming a necessary part of such viaduct; and when necessary to condemn, shall pursue the course and take such proceedings as are now provided for in cases where railway companies are authorized to condemn for right of way purposes. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1005e. May enforce contracts for viaducts.—All such cities are hereby given the right and power to compel the construction and completion of such viaducts as railway companies have by contract agreed with any such city to construct and complete or which any railway company or companies may hereafter agree to construct and complete, by mandamus proceedings in the district court of the county where any such viaduct or viaducts are to be completed, or through any other lawful means. [Id. sec. 5.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Establishment of streets by prescription.—A thoroughfare in a city shown to be a street by its use, etc. City of Waxahachie v. Connor (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 692.

The use of a vacant lot held not to create a right of way over it by prescription. Sutor v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 943.

—— Adverse possession.—See notes under Title 87, Chapter 1.

Title and rights of city.—That an abutter's predecessors owned the land upon which streets were located, and that their deeds fail to show allowance for streets, gives her no rights therein, where her deeds call for specified lots partly bounded by such streets. Perry v. Ball, 52 C. A. 134, 113 S. W. 588.

The title which a city acquires to a street by use thereof is a title to the easement as such, and when the public necessity for the easement ceases, and the use has been abandoned, the owner has the right to the possession thereof. City of Houston v. Bammel, 53 C. A. 336, 115 S. W. 661.

Grant of franchises and privileges.—See notes under Arts. 854, 863.

Title and rights of abutting owners.—One owning a lot fronting on the street owns the fee to the center of the street, subject only to the public easement. Waples-Painter Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1027.

If a street lies between a railway right of way and plaintiff's lot, the railway company cannot construct a fence on plaintiff's boundary line. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1068.

—— Deposit of building materials.—Use of streets by adjoining owners for the deposit of building materials while erecting a building must be reasonable. American Const. Co. v. Seelig (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 655.

Under a city ordinance, the owner of a lot on which a building was in process of erection held entitled to use one-third of the width of the street in front of his lot for the deposit of building materials. American Const. Co. v. Seelig, 104 T. 16, 133 S. W. 429.

Extent of contractor's right to use of street for deposit of building material and to erect a fence outside of such material held fixed by ordinance. American Const. Co. v. Caswell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1013.

—— Construction of fence.—Construction of a seven-foot solid board fence occupying more than one-third of a street in a business locality surrounding a building in process of erection held an unreasonable use of the street. American Const. Co. v. Seelig (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 655.

Fencing public street to protect building material without permission by ordinance held unlawful even though the material was lawfully on the street. American Const. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1019.

—— Remedies as to obstruction.—An individual property owner can maintain a suit to abate an obstruction to a street constituting a public nuisance only by showing some special and substantial injury to his own property rights. Ingram v. Turner (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 327.

Evidence held to show title in plaintiff, entitling him to maintain action to remove building in street obstructing entrance to his premises. Brunner Fire Co. v. Payne, 54 C. A. 501, 118 S. W. 602.

—— Injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

—— Damages.—Loss of profits to an established business from a wrongful obstruction of a street held a special damage recoverable by the person injured. American Const. Co. v. Caswell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1013; Same v. Davis, Id. 1019.

Liability of persons other than city for defects in streets.—The building of an obstruction across a street in violation of law subjects the one building it to liability to a person injured, notwithstanding the fact that there is no defect in its construction. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Davidson, 35 C. A. 558, 80 S. W. 1032.

It is immaterial to one's liability for injury caused by the negligence of her employé in repairing a sidewalk whether the sidewalk adjoined her property. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120.

One held bound to guard a temporary obstruction placed on a sidewalk, to avoid injury to pedestrians. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120; Id., 101 T. 535, 109 S. W. 1089, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 758.

Under rules stated, one held liable for the negligence of an independent contractor employed to repair a cement sidewalk. Id.

Where one creates an obstruction in a street which amounts to a public nuisance, he is liable for special injury resulting therefrom. Moore & Savage v. Kopplin (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1033.

—— Violation of ordinance.—See note under Art. 854.

Negligence in use of street.—When defendant recklessly drove at an excessive speed along a city street where people would likely be and injured plaintiff, he was liable, although he did not see plaintiff in the street ahead of him. Foley v. Northrup, 47 C. A. 277, 105 S. W. 229.

A pedestrian has a right to go on the street for the purpose of crossing, and while doing so has an equal right to the use of the street with the operators of vehicles therein. Vesper v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 377.

—— Frightening animals.—A city is liable for injuries sustained by one whose horse is frightened by a scraper left in the street after close of the day's work. City of Weatherford v. Lowery (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 34.

That plaintiff's wife was injured by her horse becoming frightened at a team covered by decorated cloths intended to advertise defendant's business while being driven through the streets of a city held to show defendant's negligence. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Drennon (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 705.

Where new means of locomotion become general on highways, effective means to prevent injury to others by the frightening of horses, etc., must be adopted. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Drennon, 104 T. 62, 133 S. W. 871.

One driving along a city street, who popped and cracked his whip within a few feet of a horse standing at a curb, is negligent, regardless of whether the driver used care in so doing. United States Exp. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 617.

—— Violation of ordinance.—See notes under Arts. 854 and 861.

—— Contributory negligence.—Where a person might have anticipated injury to a vehicle from leaving it in the street unguarded, it would be the duty of such person to properly guard against such injury, and whether that duty was performed would ordinarily be for the jury. Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Carter, 51 C. A. 331, 111 S. W. 1086.

A pedestrian is not negligent as a matter of law in attempting to cross a street without looking or listening for automobiles. Vesper v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 377.

Plaintiff, struck and injured by an automobile as she was waiting by the side of a street car track for an approaching car, held not negligent in having failed to look and listen for the automobile, which was being operated on the wrong side of the street, in violation of a city ordinance and recognized rules of the road. Posener v. Long (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 591.

It cannot be held as a matter of law that one driving a gentle and city-broke horse is guilty of negligence in failing at all times to have such a grip on the reins that he might control the horse if suddenly frightened by the cracking of another driver's whip. United States Exp. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 617.

—— Damages.—Driving through city streets at a rate showing a disregard of the safety and rights of persons on the streets evinces such a condition of mind as constitutes legal malice justifying exemplary damages. Foley v. Northrup, 47 C. A. 277, 105 S. W. 229.

Trespass by city officers.—See Ostrom v. City of San Antonio, 94 T. 523, 62 S. W. 909.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

STREET IMPROVEMENTS

Art.
1006. Powers acquired by accepting benefits of this chapter, and by whom.
1007. Terms defined.
1008. Governing body to order improvement of highways, etc.
1009. Cost of improvements, how paid, etc.; assessments.
1010. What cost assessed against railroad, etc., special tax lien enforcible, how.
1011. Cost how assessed; certificates; costs; attorneys' fees; liens.
1012. No lien on exempt property; owner personally liable; lien not invalidated, how, enforcement.
1013. Notice and hearing before assessment, etc.; no assessment in excess of benefit.
1014. Governing body may correct mistake, etc.; in assessment proceedings, etc.; may reassess, etc.
1015. Suit to set aside or correct assessment.
1016. Referendum on adoption of provisions of this chapter; ordinances to carry out same.
1017. Provisions of this chapter cumulative; subordinate to special charter.

Article 1006. Powers acquired by accepting benefits of this chapter, and by whom.—Towns, cities and villages, incorporated under either general or special law, which shall accept the benefits of this chapter as herein provided, shall have power to improve any street, avenue, alley, highway, public place or square, or any portion thereof, within their limits, by filling, grading, raising, paving or repaving the same in a permanent manner, or by the construction or reconstruction of sidewalks, curbs and gutters, or by widening, narrowing or straightening the same and to construct necessary appurtenances thereto, including sewers and drains. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 402, sec. 1.]

See Lentz v. City of Dallas, 96 T. 258, 72 S. W. 59, and City of Marshall v. Allen (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 849.

Art. 1007. Terms defined.—The term "city," whenever used herein, shall include all incorporated towns, cities and villages; that the term "governing body," whenever used herein, shall include the governing or legislative bodies of all incorporated towns, cities or villages, whether known as councils, commissions, boards of commissions, common councils, boards of aldermen, or city councils, or whatever name such bodies may be known or designated under general or special laws; that whenever the term "highway" is used herein, it shall include any street, avenue, alley, highway, or public place or square, or portion thereof, dedicated to public use. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1008. Governing body to order improvement of highways, etc.—The governing body of any city shall have power to order the improvement of any highway therein, or part thereof, and to select the materials and methods for such improvement, and to contract for the construction of such improvements in the name of the city, and to provide for the payment of the cost of such improvements out of any available funds of the city, or as herein provided. [Id. sec. 3.]

Ordinance or resolution for improvement.—Under Waco city charter, a resolution for a street improvement is the foundation of the city's right to proceed, and acts done prior thereto cannot be ratified. City of Waco v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 191.

A city charter held not to require a resolution for a street pavement to specify the kind of pavement to be used. City of Waco v. Chamberlain, 92 T. 207, 47 S. W. 527. See Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120.

Necessity of submission to competition.—The city council's authority under its charter to let a contract for a street improvement without advertising for bids held not lost by first attempting to let it by advertising. City of Waco v. Chamberlain, 92 T. 207, 47 S. W. 527.

Improvements subject of contract.—The city charter of Houston, relating to bids for public works, held not to apply to the employment of an architect to prepare plans. City of Houston v. Glover, 40 C. A. 177, 89 S. W. 425.

A section of a city charter, requiring public works to be let out to the lowest bidder, does not apply to a contract for the supervision of the construction of a public improvement. City of Houston v. Potter, 41 C. A. 381, 91 S. W. 389.

Preliminary estimate.—See notes under Art. 1000.

Construction of contract.—A contract entered into by a city for a street improvement held not to impose liability on abutters. City of Waco v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 191.

An estimate of work by a city engineer held not to constitute a "decision" as to the cost of the completion of the work, within the meaning of a contract. City of San Antonio v. L. A. Marshall & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 315.

Acceptance of work.—Where city contracts for a continuous line of sidewalk, the city council cannot accept portions of the sidewalk, leaving intervening spaces of greater or less extent. Berwind v. Galveston & H. Inv. Co., 20 C. A. 426, 50 S. W. 413.

Rights and remedies of contractor against municipality.—It was held not error to render judgment and fix a lien in favor of a paving contractor notwithstanding defects in the rolls and certificate. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

Where city accepts a part performance of a continuous improvement, the contractor cannot recover on a quantum valebat. Berwind v. Galveston & H. Inv. Co., 20 C. A. 426, 50 S. W. 413.

Where a sewer contract fixes the price for different kinds of excavation, the city's failure to disclose its knowledge of the existence of cemented gravel in the earth which the contractor will have to excavate held not such fraud as would justify the contractor in abandoning the work. Marshall v. San Antonio (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 138.

Where a city substitutes other contractors under a different contract in a suit by the original contractors against it, the contractors cannot complain of the court's refusal to permit them to prove that the city allowed the substituted contractors to use less expensive material. Id. See City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1079.

In an action on a contract for street paving, plaintiff held not entitled to recover on a quantum meruit. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Loughlin, 44 C. A. 580, 98 S. W. 948.

Rights and remedies of municipality against contractor.—A city did not waive its right to liquidated damages for delay in the paving of a street by permitting the contractor to begin and complete the work after the time limit in the contract had expired. Hipp v. City of Houston, 30 C. A. 573, 71 S. W. 39.

A paving contract held to give the city no right to retain the pay as security for repairs. City of San Antonio v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 666.

Rights of contractor's assignee.—Jones Lumber Co. v. Guaranty State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 472.

Art. 1009. Cost of improvements, how paid, etc.; assessments.—The cost of making such improvements may be wholly paid by the city, or partly by the city and partly by the owners of property abutting thereon; provided, that in no event shall more than three-fourths of the cost of any improvement, except sidewalks and curbs, be assessed against such property owners or their property; but the whole cost of construction of sidewalks and curbs in front of any property may be assessed against the owner thereof or his property. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1010. What cost assessed against railroad, etc.; special tax lien; enforcible, how.—Subject to the terms hereof, the governing body of any city shall have power to assess against the owner of any railroad or street railroad occupying any highway ordered to be improved, the whole cost of the improvement between or under the rails and tracks of said railroad or street railroad and two feet on the outside thereof, and shall have power, by ordinance, to levy a special tax upon said railroad, or street railroad, and its roadbed, ties, rails, fixtures, rights and franchises, which tax shall constitute a lien thereon superior to any other lien or claim, except state, county and municipal taxes and which may be enforced, either by sale of said property in the manner provided by law in the collection of ad valorem taxes by the city, or by suit against the owner in any court having jurisdiction. The ordinance levying said tax shall prescribe when same shall become due and delinquent, and the method or methods of enforcing the same. [Id. sec. 5.]

Constitutionality of charter provision.—A provision of a city charter requiring street railway companies to pay the cost of paving between the rails and tracks of the railway and for two feet on either side is not unconstitutional. Kettle v. City of Dallas, 35 C. A. 632, 80 S. W. 874.

Art. 1011. Cost, how assessed; certificates; costs; attorney's fees; liens.—Subject to the terms hereof, the governing body of any city shall have power, by ordinance, to assess the whole cost of constructing sidewalks or curbs, and not to exceed three-fourths of the cost of any other improvement, against the owners of property abutting on such improvement and against their abutting property benefited thereby, and to provide for the time and terms of payment of such assessments and the rate of interest payable upon deferred payments thereon, which rate of interest shall not exceed eight per centum per annum, and to fix a lien upon the property and declare such assessments to be a personal liability of the owners of such abutting property; and such governing body shall have power to cause to be issued in the name of the city assignable certificates, declaring the liability of such owners and their property for the payment of such assessments, and to fix the terms and conditions of such certificate.

If any such certificate shall recite that the proceedings with reference to making such improvements have been regularly had in compliance with law, and that all prerequisites to the fixing of the assessment lien against the property described in said certificate, and the personal liability, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts so recited, and no further proof thereof shall be required in any court.

The ordinance making such assessments shall provide for the collection thereof, with costs and reasonable attorneys fees, if incurred. Such assessments shall be secured by, and constitute a lien on, said property, which shall be the first enforcible claim against the property against which it is assessed, superior to all other liens and claims, except state, county and municipal taxes. [Id. sec. 6.]

Lien against street railway.—A lien upon a street railroad for paving between the rails held valid, though the company also owned lots abutting the street, that were assessed. Houston City St. R. Co. v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 693.

A city held to have equitably assigned its claim against a street railroad company for paving. Id.

Art. 1012. No lien on exempt property; owner personally liable; lien not invalidated, how; enforcement.—Nothing herein contained shall be construed to empower any city to fix a lien by assessment against any property exempt by law from sale under execution; but the owner of such exempt property shall nevertheless be personally liable for the cost of improvements constructed in front of his property, which may be assessed against him. The fact that any improvement is omitted in front of exempt property shall not invalidate the lien of assessments made against other property on the highway improved, not so exempt. The lien created against any property, or the personal liability of the owner thereof, may be enforced by suit in any court having jurisdiction or by sale of the property assessed in the same manner as may be provided by law for the sale of property for ad valorem city taxes. The recital in any deed made pursuant to such sale, that all legal prerequisites to said assessment and sale have been complied with, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts so recited and shall in all courts be accepted without further proof. [Id. sec. 7.]

Owner of homestead personally liable.—Under Galveston City Charter, tit. 9, arts. 1–10, the owner of a homestead is personally liable for a paving tax assessed against the homestead. Lovenberg v. City of Galveston, 17 C. A. 162, 42 S. W. 1024.

Petition.—Petition to enforce assessment held sufficient, though it show an assessment in gross, where it did not appear that the property had been rendered by the owner. Harris v. City of Houston, 21 C. A. 432, 52 S. W. 653.

A petition to enforce an assessment under city ordinance need not state for what purposes the assessment was made, where it alleges that ordinances of the city provided for the levy of a certain per cent. on property valuation. Id.

Art. 1013. Notice and hearing before assessment, etc.; no assessment in excess of benefit.—No assessment of any part of the cost of such improvement shall be made against any property abutting thereon or its owner, until a full and fair hearing shall first have been given to the owners of such property, preceded by a reasonable notice thereof given to said owners, their agents or attorneys. Such notice shall be by advertisement inserted at least three times in some newspaper published in the city, town or village, where such tax is sought to be levied, if there be such a paper there, if not, the nearest to said city, town or village, of general circulation in the county in which said city is located, the first publication to be made at least ten days before the date of the hearing. The governing body may provide for additional notice cumulative of notice by advertisement. Said hearing shall be before the governing body of such cities, at which hearing such owners shall have the right to contest the said assessment and personal liability, and the regularity of the proceedings with reference to the improvement, and the benefits of said improvement to their property, and any other matter with reference thereto. But no assessment shall be made against any owner of abutting property or his property in any event in excess of the actual benefit to such owner, in the enhanced value of his property, by means of such improvement, as ascertained at such hearing.

The governing body of any city making improvements under the terms hereof shall, by ordinance, adopt rules and regulations providing for such hearings to property owners, and for giving reasonable notice thereof. [Id. sec. 8.]

Benefit to property—No assessment in excess of.—See, also, notes under Art. 999.

The legislature cannot empower a municipal corporation to assess the cost of a public improvement on abutting property for a sum largely in excess of the benefits derived by such property. Hutcheson v. Storrie, 92 T. 685, 51 S. W. 848, 45 L. R. A. 289, 71 Am. St. Rep. 884.

A property owner held not estopped from questioning the validity of a special assessment on the ground that it was not levied on the basis of benefits. Id.

An assessment paid for widening a street can be recovered, when the improvement was abandoned and the work conferred no benefits on the property assessed. City of San Antonio v. Walker (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 952.

The cost of a local improvement may be assessed upon particular property only to the extent that it is specially and particularly benefited. Kettle v. City of Dallas, 35 C. A. 632, 80 S. W. 874.

—— Determination of council conclusive.—Where the council had power to improve streets within the city, held, that its determination whether an improvement by paving was a benefit to abutting property is conclusive in a court of law. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

Notice—Necessity.—The federal constitution does not require that a citizen, before a local assessment can be made on his property, must be served with notice, so as to allow him to be heard before a judicial tribunal. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

—— Sufficiency.—In action to collect taxes for street improvements under city charter, held, that a sufficient notice was given to the landowners. Breath v. Galveston (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 903.

Describing a proposed pavement as on "F. street, between the north line of M. street and the north line of K. street," held sufficient to charge abutters with notice. City of Waco v. Chamberlain, 92 T. 207, 47 S. W. 527.

Hearing.—A property owner has a right to be heard as to whether an improvement proposed to be made is beneficial to his property.

A municipality cannot be empowered to assess the cost of a local improvement on abutting property, without giving the property owner an opportunity to be heard on the question of benefits. Hutcheson v. Storrie, 92 T. 685, 51 S. W. 848, 45 L. R. A. 289, 71 Am. St. Rep. 884.

"Judgment confirming assessment."—A judgment confirming an assessment for benefits for a street improvement held not an adjudication that an owner of abutting property is indebted in the amount of the assessment. Nalle v. Austin (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 825.

Art. 1014. Governing body may correct mistake, etc., in assessment proceedings, etc.; may reassess, etc.—The governing body of any city shall be empowered to correct any mistake or irregularity in any proceedings with reference to such improvement, or the assessment of the cost thereof against abutting property and its owners, and in case of any error or invalidity, to reassess against any abutting property and its owner the cost or part of the cost of improvements, subject to the terms hereof, not in excess of the benefits in enhanced value of such property from such improvement, and to make reasonable rules and regulations for a notice to and hearing of property owners before such reassessment. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1015. Suit to set aside or correct assessment.—Any property owner, against whom or whose property any assessment or reassessment has been made, shall have the right, within twenty days thereafter, to bring suit in any court having jurisdiction, to set aside or correct the same, or any proceeding with reference thereto, on account of any error or invalidity therein. But thereafter such owner, his heirs, assigns or successors, shall be barred from any such action, or any defense of invalidity in such proceedings or assessments or reassessments in any action in which the same may be brought in question. [Id. sec. 10.]

No relief by injunction.—This article provides an ample remedy at law to set aside such assessments and precludes relief by injunction. Cole v. Forto (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 350.

Limitation.—Where an assessment made for widening a street was paid in June, 1893, and proceedings to widen the street were stopped in November, 1894, an action to recover the assessment paid, begun in July, 1895, held not barred. City of San Antonio v. Walker (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 952.

Effect of failure to petition.—Failure to petition the council for the correction of a special assessment, and to apply for an injunction to restrain the levy, held not to estop the property owner from questioning the validity of the tax. Hutcheson v. Storrie, 92 T. 685, 51 S. W. 848, 45 L. R. A. 289, 71 Am. St. Rep. 884.

Art. 1016. Referendum on adoption of provisions of this chapter; ordinances to carry out same.—The benefits of the provisions of this chapter shall apply to any city, and the terms thereof extend to the same, when the governing body thereof shall submit the question of the adoption or rejection hereof to a vote of the resident property taxpayers, who are qualified voters of said city, at a special election called for the purpose by said city. And said election shall be held as nearly as possible in compliance with the law with reference to regular city elections in said city; but said governing body is hereby empowered, by resolution, to order said election, and prescribe the time and manner of holding the same. Said body shall canvass and determine the results of such election; and, if a majority of the voters voting upon the question of the adoption of this chapter, at such election, shall vote to adopt the same, the result of the election shall by said governing body be entered upon their minutes, and thereupon all the terms hereof shall be applicable to and govern such city adopting the same. A certified copy of said minutes shall be prima facie evidence of the result of such election and the regularity thereof; and the facts therein recited shall in all courts be accepted as true. Whenever the provisions of this chapter shall have been adopted by any city, the governing body thereof shall have full power to pass all ordinances or resolutions necessary or proper to give full force and effect thereto and to every part thereof. Whenever one hundred qualified voters in any city shall in writing petition for an election to determine the adoption of this chapter, it shall be the duty of its governing body to order such election. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1017. Provisions of this chapter cumulative; subordinate to special charter.—This chapter shall not repeal any law, general or special, already in existence, pertaining to the making of such improvements, but the provisions of this chapter, and of resolutions or ordinances passed pursuant thereto shall be cumulative of, and in addition to, such existing laws; provided, that in any case in which a conflict may exist or arise between the provisions of this chapter and the provisions of any law granting a special charter to any city in the state, the provisions of such special charter shall control. [Id. sec. 12.]

CHAPTER TWELVE

PUBLIC UTILITY CORPORATIONS, RATES AND CHARGES—REGULATION BY COUNCIL, ETC

Art.
1018. City council may regulate rates.
1019. Mayor not to accept franks, privileges, etc.
1020. Council may pass ordinances to protect company, etc.
1021. Company to make reports.
1022. Penalties.
1023. City council of city owning plants may regulate rates. Also may establish and operate plants, etc.
1024. This chapter does not repeal, what.

tion, incorporated under the general laws thereof, shall have the power to regulate, by ordinance, the rates and compensation to be charged by all water, gas, light and sewer companies, corporations or persons using the streets and public grounds of said city or town, and engaged in furnishing water, gas, light or sewerage service to the public, and also to prescribe rules and regulations under which such commodities shall be furnished, and service rendered, and to fix penalties to enforce such charges, rules and regulations; provided, that the city council or board of aldermen shall not prescribe any rate or compensation which will yield less than ten per cent per annum net on the actual cost of the physical properties, equipments and betterments. [Acts 1907, p. 217, sec. 1.]

Cited, Nacogdoches Light & Power Co. v. Thomas & Richardson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1080.

Constitutionality.—The provision of a city charter for fixing telephone rates by ordinance under the initiative and referendum held to violate no constitutional provision. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80.

—— Impairment of contract rights.—An ordinance lowering telephone rates held not unconstitutional as violating the existing contracts of the telephone company with patrons for higher rates. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80.

A public service corporation cannot disable itself by private contract from performing the law, so as to be able to claim that such law violates such contracts. Const. art. 1, § 17. Id.

Inherent power of city.—A municipal corporation held not to have inherent power to pass an ordinance regulating the rates which a water company should charge. Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

Initiative and referendum.—A city's charter held to authorize the fixing of telephone rates by an ordinance passed under the initiative and referendum. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80.

A telephone company held not entitled to notice of a proposed change of rates by an ordinance passed under the initiative and referendum, other than the ordinary notice of the election at which it is to be voted on. Id.

Art. 1019. Mayor, etc., not to accept franks, privileges, etc.—It shall be unlawful for the mayor or any member of any city council or board of aldermen, of any such city, or town in this state, to accept directly or indirectly any frank, privilege, free light or water, or sewerage service, or other service, or a lower rate therefor than the regular rate established by said council or board of aldermen, or any gift or anything of value from any of the companies, corporations or persons heretofore mentioned in article 1018 of this chapter. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1020. Council may pass ordinances to protect company, etc.—The city council shall have the power to pass such ordinances as they may deem necessary or proper to protect any of said companies, corporations or persons, in the free and full enjoyment of all their rights and franchises, to prevent any interference with their property or privileges, and to prevent the free or unauthorized use or waste of the water or other commodity or service furnished, and to prescribe penalties to enforce such ordinances. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1021. Company to make reports.—Any such company, corporation, or person, who may be engaged in furnishing to the inhabitants of any city or town mentioned in article 1018, any water, light, gas or sewerage service, shall, on or before the first day of March of each year, file with the mayor of such city or town a report, in writing, sworn to by the manager, secretary, or president of such corporation, by a member of such company, and by any such person, which report shall show:

(a) The amount of any lien or mortgage upon the properties composing such plant;

(b) All other indebtedness pertaining to such enterprise and the consideration therefor;

(c) The actual cost of the visible physical properties, date when installed and the present value thereof, and herein the lands, machinery, buildings, pipes, poles, circuits, mains, shall each be treated separately;

(d) The annual cost of operating such plant, showing under separate items, the amount paid for actual salaries, amount paid for labor of all kinds, fixed charges, including interest, taxes and insurance, giving each separately, amount paid for fuel, for extensions and repairs, giving each separately, and particularizing the extension and repairs, the cost of maintenance, amount paid for damages, claims or suits for damages, identifying each claim or suit, amount paid for miscellaneous expenses, and, if any machinery or equipment is abandoned, worn out or its use discontinued within the preceding year, the same shall be stated, the original cost thereof shall be given, and the present value thereof shall be stated;

(e) The report shall give the gross earnings from any such plant, including revenues from every source whatever, stating items separately, amount received by each department. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1022. Penalties.—Any such corporation, or any member of such company, or any such person mentioned in this chapter, who shall for thirty days wilfully fail or refuse to file the report in the manner provided by this chapter; shall forfeit and pay to any such city or town the sum of one hundred dollars per day for each and every day during which it shall continue in default; or, if any such corporation, or company, or person, shall file any report, knowing that the same does not truly report the facts about the matters mentioned therein, it shall forfeit and pay to such city or town the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars for each such wilfully false report; all of which forfeitures and penalties shall be recovered at the suit of such city or town, in any court of competent jurisdiction of the county wherein such city or town is located. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1023. City council of city owning plants may regulate rates; also may establish and operate plants.—The city council of any city or town in the state of Texas, incorporated under the general laws thereof, shall have the power, where such city or town owns the plant to regulate, by ordinance, the rates and compensation to be charged the public by such city or town for water, sewerage, gas, electricity or other fluid or substance used for lights, heat or power, to establish and operate necessary plants for the manufacture, generation or production thereof, and to sell and distribute the same to the public within and throughout the limits of any such city or town. [Id. sec. 6.]

Constitutionality.—This article does not contravene Const. art. 3, § 35, providing that no bill shall contain more than one subject which shall be expressed in its title, etc. Joy v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 213.

Art. 1024. This chapter does not repeal, what.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as repealing or invalidating any provision of chapter 13 of this title or chapter 5 of title 25. [Id. sec. 7.]

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

PUBLIC UTILITY CORPORATIONS, RATES AND CHARGES—REGULATION BY COURT

Art.
1025. Extortionate rates unlawful, district court to regulate, etc.; provided, etc.
1026. City council to pass resolution, etc.; copy delivered to president, etc.
1027. After twenty days, suit in district court, if, etc.
1028. What to be considered in fixing rates, etc.; books to be produced;
Art.
rate to yield ten per cent, and to stand three years and less, etc.
1029. Appeal may be taken, etc.
1030. Upon judgment fixing rate, decree enforcing same, etc.; duty of attorney general, etc.
1031. What public utilities herein included.
1032. Any city incorporated under special charter may avail itself of provisions, etc.

Article 1025. Extortionate, etc., rates, unlawful; district courts given jurisdiction to regulate, etc., provided, etc.—All extortionate and unreasonable rates charged by public utility corporations, as hereinafter defined, are hereby declared to be unlawful; and the district courts of this state are hereby vested with jurisdiction and full power and authority to regulate, prevent and abolish the same; and, to this end, said courts are given the power and authority, whenever the public interest may require, to fix and establish rates for the service and products of all public utility corporations, and, whenever the public interest may require and to carry out the provisions herein conferred, said courts are hereby expressly authorized to issue injunctions, quo warranto, and all other writs for the purpose of carrying out and making effective the purposes of this chapter, and said writs shall be governed by the rules and regulations now prescribed by law; provided, that no proceeding shall be begun in a district court having for its purpose the fixing of rates of public utility corporations, until and unless the city council of the city or town desiring to invoke the power herein conferred upon the district courts shall comply with the provisions of article 1026 of this chapter. [Acts 1905, p. 348, sec. 1.]

Cited, Nacogdoches Light & Power Co. v. Thomas & Richardson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1080.

Art. 1026. City council to pass resolutions, etc.; copy to be delivered to president, etc.—If the city council of any city or town, incorporated under the general laws of this state, shall desire to invoke the power of the district court granted in article 1025 of this chapter, such council shall, by a two-thirds vote of all the members elected to said council, pass a resolution setting forth the matters complained of, naming the corporation against which the complaint is made, and in a general way the reasons for such complaint, and shall cause a copy of the same to be delivered to the president, vice president or secretary of said corporation, or cause to be left a copy of said resolution at the principal office of such corporation. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1027. After twenty days, suit in district court, if, etc.—If, within twenty days after the said corporation has been furnished with a copy of the resolution of the city council, the wrongs complained of shall not be corrected to the satisfaction of the city council, a petition setting forth the wrongs and grievances complained of, and stating the relief sought, may be filed in the name of the city or town as plaintiff against the corporation as defendant in any district court of the county in which such city or town may be situated; and process shall be issued upon said petition, and be served upon such corporation, as now provided by law in civil cases, and the case shall be set for trial in the same manner as other civil cases, except that it shall have precedence over all cases of a different character filed in such court as to the time of trial. Process shall issue in said cause at the instance of either party, in the same manner as process is now, or may hereafter issue in civil cases; and the right of trial by jury of the issues involved shall also be given upon the demand of either party, as provided by law. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1028. What to be considered in fixing rates; books to be produced; rate to yield ten per cent, etc., and to stand three years, unless, etc.—Upon the trial of the cause, it shall be the duty of the court or jury, in arriving at a decision as to whether or not the rates complained of are reasonable or extortionate, and in fixing the rates, to consider the cost of construction of the plant of the public utility corporation against which the petition is filed, the cost of the operation of such plant, its maintenance and repairs, the fixed charges that may be against the corporation, amount invested in such plant, and such other matters as may be material to the issues. And the court trying the same shall have the power to order the corporation to make profert of its books and records for inspection in court for its information in determining the question in issue. After a full hearing of all the evidence adduced by the parties, the court or jury shall have power, and it shall be their duty to fix the rates which may be charged by such public utility corporation; provided, that the rates fixed must be sufficient to yield such public utility company not less than ten per cent upon the investment, and the same shall continue in force for a period of three years. The rates fixed shall be entered of record upon the minutes of the court, and shall be held conclusive, as reasonable, fair and just, and shall remain for three years as the rates to be charged by such corporation, unless changed or modified by the judgment of said district court, or by the appellate courts to which either of the parties to said suit may appeal, or have writ of error. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1029. Appeal may be taken, etc.—If either party to the suit shall be dissatisfied with the decisions of the court and the rate thereby established, an appeal may be taken by either party to the court of civil appeals of the supreme judicial district in which such district court may be located; and said appeal shall be at once returnable to said court of civil appeals, and shall have precedence in such court of all cases of a different character therein pending; and the said parties to said suit may have their writ of error from the supreme court. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1030. Upon judgment fixing rate, decree enforcing same on pain of forfeiture of charter or permit; duty of attorney general or county or district attorney, under, etc.; to institute suit for forfeiture, etc.—When final judgment is rendered in any cause fixing the rates to be charged by said corporation, the court rendering such judgment shall order in its decree the enforcement of the same; and to this end and to carry out and execute such judgment, the court is hereby specially authorized and empowered to provide in its decree that, if the same is not obeyed according to the terms thereof, the said corporation shall forfeit its charter, if the same be a domestic corporation, or its permit to do business in this state, if the corporation be a foreign corporation; and, if said order or decree be violated, it shall be the duty of the attorney general, or county or district attorney under the direction of the attorney general, to institute suit in the district court of the county in which such corporation may have its principal office, or in Travis county, Texas, for the forfeiture of the charter of such corporation, or the cancellation of its permit, as the case may be, and, if said charter be forfeited or permit canceled, the offending corporation shall thereafter be prohibited from carrying on its business within this state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1031. What public utilities herein included.—The public utilities included within the meaning of this chapter are defined to be water companies, furnishing water to the public; gas companies, furnishing gas to the public; electric light or power companies, furnishing light or power to the public; telephone companies, furnishing telephones to the public; and sewerage companies, conducting sewerage for the public, whether said companies are incorporated under the laws of this state or a foreign state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1032. Any city incorporated under special charter may avail itself of provisions, but cumulative.—Any city within this state, incorporated under a special law, may, at its option, avail itself of the provisions of this chapter, but the same shall be cumulative of any other method which may now be provided in such special charter, and this chapter shall not repeal any provisions of such special charter. [Id. sec. 8.]

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

TOWNS AND VILLAGES

Art.
1033. May be incorporated, when.
1034. Towns and villages incorporated, when.
1034a. Validating incorporations.
1035. Adjoining territory, how added.
1036. County judge to order election to determine, etc.
1037. Officers appointed to hold election.
1038. Qualifications of electors.
1039. Tickets, written or printed.
1040. Returns of election.
1041. Duty of county judge to make an entry.
1042. Powers of corporation.
1043. Election of mayor, etc.
1044. Who are eligible for offices.
1045. Commission of mayor, etc.
1046. Officers—Term of office.
1047. Annual election of officers.
1048. Quorum may pass by-laws.
1049. May prevent and remove nuisances, regulate markets, etc.
1050. Board of aldermen may levy tax.
1051. Aldermen may prescribe fine, etc.
1052. Vacancies, how filled.
1053. Additional officers may be appointed.
1054. Board must prescribe amount of bonds, etc.
1055. If bond is not given in five days after, etc.
1056. Powers, duties and fees of marshals.
1057. Taxes, by whom collected, etc.; sale of property for, etc.
1058. Real estate sold may be redeemed, etc.
1059. Where purchaser is a non-resident.
1060. Ordinances not to be enforced, until.
1061. Where property is liable for taxes and owner is unknown.
1062. Charters amended, how.
1063. Takes effect, when.
1064. Property of re-incorporating city or town, vested how; assumption of indebtedness.
1065. Certain incorporations validated.
1066. Condemnation of railroad right of way and roadbed for streets.
1067. Proceedings for.
1068. Duty of railroad to keep in condition for travel portion of roadbed and right of way crossed by street; penalty.
1069. Condemnation for same purpose by county commissioners.

Article 1033. [579] [506] May be incorporated, when.—When a town or village may contain more than five hundred and less than ten thousand inhabitants, it may be incorporated as a town or village in the manner prescribed in this chapter. [Acts 1881, p. 63. Acts 1897, p. 193.]

Cited, Pence v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 608.

Application.—Article 762, allowing villages incorporated under title 22, c. 14, authorizing the incorporation of villages, to accept the provisions of chapter 1 of the title, enacted in 1885 (Laws 1885, c. 60), applies to villages whether incorporated before or after the passage of the statute, and the officers of a village incorporated under chapter 14 in 1906 may accept the provisions of chapter 1. Trent v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 737.

"Towns and villages."—Towns and villages authorized to incorporate for municipal or school purposes are defined as a collection of inhabited houses, implying a considerable aggregation of people living in close proximity. State v. Eidson, 76 T. 302, 13 S. W. 263, 7 L. R. A. 733.

Distinct from school purposes.—This and article 1034 provide for the incorporation of a town or village for municipal purposes, and are separate and distinct from the article authorizing the incorporation for free school purposes only and in no way affect the validity and force of the latter article. State v. Buchanan, 37 C. A. 325, 83 S. W. 726.

May impound stock.—By article 1049, providing that towns and villages incorporated under articles 1033–1064 may exercise exclusive control of streets, alleys, and other public places within the corporate limits, and prevent any nuisance therein, such towns and villages may pass ordinances for the impounding and sale of stock running at large within the corporate limits. Conner v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 567.

Art. 1034. [580] [507] Towns and villages incorporated, when.—If the inhabitants of such town or village desire to be so incorporated, at least twenty residents thereof, who would be qualified voters under the provisions of this chapter, shall file an application for that purpose in the office of the judge of the county court of the county, in which the town or village is situated, stating the boundaries of the proposed town or village, and the name by which it is to be known, if it be incorporated, and accompany the same with a plat of the proposed town or village, and including therein no territory except that which is intended to be used for strictly town purposes; provided, that if any town or village be situated on both sides of a line dividing two counties, application may be made to the judge of the county court of either county in which a portion of said town or village is located, in manner and form as is hereinbefore provided; provided, further, that in towns and villages that may be incorporated on territory in two counties, in the trial of the offense before the mayor or recorder for a violation of the laws of the state, or the ordinances of the corporation, an appeal shall be to the county court of the county in which the offense may have been committed, in cases in which said mayor or recorder has not final jurisdiction; but when said mayor or recorder are sitting as an examining court, parties brought before them as such examining court, charged with an offense against the laws of the state, shall be bound over by them to the county court of the county in which said offense is alleged to have been committed, or the district court, as the case may be, and provided, that a new election shall not be ordered in less than one year. [Acts 1889, p. 5. Id.]

Territory included.—An incorporation is valid when a reasonable amount of land is included, although a portion is not occupied. McClesky v. State, 23 S. W. 518, 4 C. A. 322. See White v. City of Quanah (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 839.

Nor does the inclusion of cultivated land within the territory render the incorporation invalid. The statute makes it a question of intent which is a question of fact, and the trial court having found as a fact that the land was intended at the time for the town brings it within the terms of the law. State v. Hoard, 94 T. 527, 62 S. W. 1055.

Must accompany application.—The provision of this article requiring a map of the territory to be incorporated is mandatory. Huff v. Preuitt (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 844.

The failure to accompany the petition with a plat of the proposed town was not such a non-compliance with this article as to render the attempt to incorporate the town invalid. State v. Hoard, 94 T. 527, 62 S. W. 1055; State v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 385.

A map or plat is a written instrument to be construed by the court. City of Atlanta v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 226, 120 S. W. 923.

Validity of election.—When, on the same day, the inhabitants of a town voted to incorporate under the general law as a city and also to become an independent school district, the incorporation as a city is valid, though the result of the school district election be first declared by the county judge. State v. Bean, 26 C. A. 605, 65 S. W. 202.

—— During existence of old corporation.—See Thompson v. State, 23 C. A. 370, 56 S. W. 603.

Collateral attack.—See, also, notes under Art. 774.

Where a county judge is authorized to pass on the qualifications of petitioners for an election whether a town shall be incorporated, and he does so, and the town is incorporated, in habeas corpus proceedings for the release of a resident of the town from arrest for the violating of an order requiring him to work roads outside the city, the qualifications of the petitioners cannot be collaterally attacked, so as to render the incorporation invalid and the arrest legal, since it is only directly as by quo warranto, that the corporation could be attacked. Ex parte Koen, 58 Cr. R. 279, 125 S. W. 401.

Art. 1034a. Validating incorporations.—That all towns and villages which have heretofore attempted to be incorporated under the provisions of chapter 11, title 18, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, and also under the provisions of chapter 14, title 22, of the Revised Statutes of 1911, but which said attempted incorporations failed to comply with all the requirements of law, respectively, under which they were attempted to be incorporated, but which said towns and villages have from and after the date of their attempted incorporations, as aforesaid, exercised the functions of incorporated towns and villages; and have been recognized as such towns and villages, be and they are hereby declared to be towns and villages of the class named, and their incorporations, be and the same are hereby declared to be as legal, and valid as if the original acts of incorporation had been in strict compliance with the requirements of the law; and be it further enacted that all acts and proceedings, heretofore done and performed by such towns and villages, within the scope and power of such incorporations under the laws of this state, be and the same are hereby validated and made binding on such incorporations. [Acts 1913, p. 150, sec. 1.]

Art. 1035. Adjoining territory, how added.—Whenever a majority of the inhabitants who are qualified voters of any territory adjoining the limits of any town or village, incorporated or hereafter incorporated under the provisions of this chapter, shall vote in favor of becoming a part of said town or village, any three of them may make affidavit to such fact, and file such affidavit with the mayor of said town or village, and such mayor shall certify the same to the council of said town or village. Thereupon, such council may, by ordinance, receive such inhabitants as a part of said town or village; thenceforth the territory so received shall be a part of said town or village, and the inhabitants shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges of other citizens and bound by all the acts and ordinances made in conformity thereto, and passed in pursuance of this chapter; provided, however, that the area of no town or village shall ever exceed that of cities or towns, as provided for in article 777, chapter one, title twenty-two, Revised Statutes of Texas. [Acts 1903, p. 116.]

Annexation invalid.—There having been no legislative authority for enlarging the territory of a town containing 200 and less than 1,000 inhabitants until Act March 31, 1903 (Acts 28th Leg. c. 89) adding this article, the annexation of territory by such a town was invalid and did not affect the pre-existing boundaries. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

Art. 1036. [581] [508] County judge to order election to determine, etc.—If satisfactory proof is made that the town or village contains the requisite number of inhabitants, it shall be the duty of the county judge to make an order for holding an election on a day therein stated, and at a place designated within the town or village, for the purpose of submitting the question to a vote of the people.

Cited, Reese v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 220.

Necessity for hearing.—It is necessary to have a hearing to show the judge that a city has the necessary inhabitants. That the judge knows it of his own knowledge, is not sufficient. Huff v. Preuitt (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 844.

Order may be nunc pro tunc.—It was not intended that the order for holding the election should be entered of record in any particular book. The county judge is required to make the order, and he can, after the election, enter the order on the minutes of the commissioners court nunc pro tunc. State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 916.

Finding of county judge conclusive.—The finding of a county judge that the territory sought to be embraced within a contemplated municipal corporation has the population required by statute is conclusive. State v. Goowin, 69 T. 55, 5 S. W. 678; Word v. Schow, 29 C. A. 120, 68 S. W. 192; State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 912.

The acts of the county judge in passing on a petition for the incorporation of a city ordering an election, followed by an election creating the incorporation, are not conclusive of the validity of the corporation as to the limit of boundaries as provided by law, as the court may review and determine the legality of all the proceedings taken to incorporate a city. Spurlin v. State, 51 C. A. 266, 115 S. W. 128.

Election must correspond with order.—Where a county judge ordered an election on the question of incorporating certain territory, an election on the question of incorporating one-half the territory embraced in the order was invalid. State v. Merchant, 38 C. A. 226, 85 S. W. 483.

Quo warranto.—See Title 114.

Art. 1037. [582] [509] Officers appointed to hold election.—The county judge shall appoint an officer to preside at the election, who shall select two judges and two clerks to assist in holding it; and after a previous notice of ten days, by posting advertisement at three public places in the town or village, the election shall be held in the manner prescribed for holding elections in other cases.

Art. 1038. [583] [510] Qualifications of electors.—Every male person who has attained the age of twenty-one years, and who has resided within the limits of the proposed town for the six months next preceding, and is a qualified elector under the laws of the state, shall be entitled to vote at the election.

Residence of incorporators.—The incorporators must all have lived within the limits of the new town, as no one could vote who did not reside therein. Reese v. Cobb (Sup.) 150 S. W. 887.

Art. 1039. [584] [511] Tickets, written or printed.—On each ticket the voter must write, or cause to be written or printed, "Corporation" or "No corporation."

Art. 1040. [585] [512] Returns of election.—If a majority of the votes are cast in favor of incorporation, the officers holding the election shall make return thereof to the county judge of the county within ten days after the same was held.

Art. 1041. [586] [513] Duty of county judge to make entry, etc.—The county judge shall, within twenty days after the receipt of the returns, make an entry upon the records of the commissioners' court, that the inhabitants of the town or village are incorporated within the boundaries thereof; which boundaries shall also be designated in the entry, and a certified copy of such entry, together with the plat of the town or village, shall thereupon be recorded in the proper record of deeds of such county. [Acts 1897, p. 193.]

Designation of boundaries.—Under rule stated, town boundaries held sufficiently described where they can be definitely ascertained. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

Entry only prima facie evidence.—The entry by the county judge on the records of the commissioner's court after the election of the incorporation of the town is but record evidence of the fact, and if entry had never been made, proof of the fact could otherwise be made, therefore it is immaterial whether the entry is made by the county judge or under his direction. Ex parte Drake, 55 Cr. R. 233, 116 S. W. 51.

Under this article such entry by the county judge is but prima facie proof of the facts recited therein, which may be established otherwise than by the record, and the entry of such order is not necessary, so that defects therein are immaterial. State v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 385.

Effect of failure to record.—This provision is merely directory, and the failure to record does not defeat the incorporation. State v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 415.

Art. 1042. [587] [514] Powers of corporation.—When the entry mentioned in the preceding article has been made, the town shall be invested with all the rights incident to such corporations under this chapter, and shall have power to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, and to hold and dispose of real and personal property; provided, such real property is situated within the limits of the corporation.

Realty within limits.—This article does not apply to land that had been acquired by the inhabitants by grant from the state, and the town may convey lands thus acquired, situated beyond its corporate limits. Reese v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 220.

Under this article a town cannot give title to property not within its limits, even though the town as originally established included such property, and had power to sell it, where the town as a corporation had been dissolved by vote of its inhabitants, and was later established under general law with its present boundaries. Reese v. Cobb (Sup.) 150 S. W. 887.

Art. 1043. [588] [515] Election of mayor, etc.—The county judge shall immediately order an election for a mayor, a marshal and five aldermen.

Art. 1044. [589] [516] Who are eligible for offices.—No person shall be eligible to any of said offices, nor shall any person be qualified to vote at any election to fill any of them, unless he possess the requisites provided by article 1038.

Art. 1045. [590] [517] Commission of mayor, etc.—The county judge shall, immediately after the returns have been made, commission the candidate who received the highest number of votes for the office of mayor, and shall deliver certificates of election to the other officers elected. [R. S. 1879, 517.]

Art. 1046. [591] [518] Officers; term of office.—The mayor, aldermen and all other officers elected at the first election under this chapter, regardless of the time of such first election, shall hold their offices until their successors shall have been duly elected and qualified at the next succeeding annual election, according to the provisions of the succeeding article. [Act May 26, 1873, p. 99, sec. 5.]

Art. 1047. [592] [519] Annual election of officers.—The annual election of officers of all towns and villages incorporated under the provisions of this chapter shall take place on such day as may be fixed by law for municipal elections throughout the towns and cities of the state. Should no such uniform day be fixed, then the elections herein provided for shall take place on the first Tuesday in April of each and every year. The mayor, or, in case of his inability or refusal to act, any two aldermen, shall order such annual election by notices posted for at least ten days at three public places within the corporate limits. The returns of such election shall be made to the town or village council, and certificates of election given by the mayor, or person acting as such, to the persons elected to the various offices for such corporation. [Id. sec. 6.]

De facto officers.—An election ordered by de facto officers, being in other respects according to law, is valid. State v. Goowin, 69 T. 55, 5 S. W. 678.

Not dissolved by failure to elect officers.—A municipal corporation is not dissolved by the failure to elect officers. State v. Dunson, 71 T. 65, 9 S. W. 103.

The failure of a town, incorporated by special act of the legislature, to elect officers, will not dissolve the corporation. Cofield v. Britton, 50 C. A. 208, 109 S. W. 493.

A municipal corporation cannot dissolve itself by mere nonuse of its corporate functions, as by failing to elect officers; dissolution being accomplished by legislative enactment or other mode provided by law. Pence v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 608.

Art. 1048. [593] [520] Quorum may pass by-laws.—The mayor shall be the president of the board of aldermen, and shall, with three of the aldermen, constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; and the quorum shall have power to enact such by-laws and ordinances not inconsistent with the laws and constitution of the state, as shall be deemed proper for the government of the corporation.

Ordinances.—See, also, notes under Art. 817.

Under this article an ordinance can be passed authorizing a policeman or other officer to arrest a man drunk in a public place without a warrant. Early v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 85.

Art. 1049. [594] [521] May prevent and remove nuisances, regulate markets, etc.—The board of aldermen shall have and exercise exclusive control over the streets, alleys and other public places within the corporate limits, and shall have the power to cause the male inhabitants between the ages of twenty-one and forty-five years, except ministers of the gospel actually engaged in the discharge of their duties, to work on the streets and public alleys not to exceed five days in any one year, or furnish a substitute, or a sum of money (not to exceed one dollar for each day's work demanded) to employ such substitute. They shall, as far as practicable, prevent any nuisances within the limits of the corporation, and cause such as exists to be removed at the expense of the person by whom they were occasioned or upon whose property they may be found; they may establish markets and may do whatever else may be necessary to give effect to the provisions of this chapter; provided, that, with the consent of the board of aldermen, where streets are continuations of public roads, the commissioners' court shall have power to construct bridges and other improvements thereon which facilitate the practicability of travel on said streets. [Acts 1895, p. 89.]

See Ex parte Campbell (Cr. App.) 22 S. W. 1020.

Control over streets, alleys, etc.—See Art. 854.

Nuisance.—See Art. 844.

May impound stock.—See, also, Art. 860.

Under this article towns and villages may pass ordinances for the impounding and sale of stock running at large within the corporate limits. Conner v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 567.

Art. 1050. [595] [522] Board of aldermen may levy tax.—The board of aldermen shall have power to levy and collect an occupation tax of not more than one-half the amount levied by the state; also to levy taxes on persons and property, real and personal, within the corporation, subject to taxation by the laws of the state; but the tax on persons and property shall not, in any one year, exceed the rate of one-fourth of one per cent on the one hundred dollars valuation. [Acts of 1891, p. 171.]

Poll tax.—See, also, Art. 927.

A poll tax may be collected when authorized by an ordinance under this article. Perry v. Rockdale, 62 T. 451.

Towns have no authority to impose and collect a poll tax. Morris v. Cummings, 91 T. 619, 45 S. W. 383.

Occupation tax.—See Art. 928.

Art. 1051. [596] [523] Aldermen may prescribe fine, etc.—The board of aldermen shall have power to prescribe the fine to be imposed by the mayor for the violation of any by-law or ordinance, which shall in no case exceed one hundred dollars; but no fine shall be imposed except upon the verdict of a jury, should the defendant demand a trial by jury.

Art. 1052. [597] [524] Vacancies, how filled.—When a vacancy shall occur in any of the offices created by this chapter, or by the board of aldermen under its provisions, the acting aldermen shall fill such vacancy for the unexpired term.

Art. 1053. [598] [525] Additional officers may be appointed.—The board of aldermen shall have power to appoint such officers, other than those mentioned in this chapter, as shall be deemed necessary to carry out the provisions of the same, to prescribe their duties and to fix their compensation; and shall also have power to dismiss them at any time, and appoint others in their stead.

Construed.—This article empowers the board of aldermen of towns and cities to appoint such officers (policemen) other than those mentioned in the town and village to act as they may deem necessary. Early v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 86.

Art. 1054. [599] [526] Board must prescribe amount of bonds, etc.—The board shall prescribe the bonds and security which the marshal and such other officers as may be appointed shall give, which shall be executed and approved by the mayor, before the marshal or other officer shall enter upon the discharge of his duties. Said bond shall be payable to the corporation.

Art. 1055. [600] [527] If bond is not given in five days after, etc.—If the bond required in the preceding article is not given within five days after the marshal is elected, or the officer appointed, the board shall have the power to appoint another marshal or officer in the place of the one so elected or appointed.

The Act of 1899, chapter 3, page 40, creating corporation courts (embodied in chapter 5, title 22) abolished the municipal court and the offices of judge, recorder and clerk thereof, in every city, town or village (as theretofore established) after the due and legal organization of the corporation court therein.

Art. 1056. [607] [534] Powers, duties and fees of marshals.—The marshal shall have the same power within the town that constables shall have within their precincts, and shall be entitled to the same fees. He shall discharge all other duties that may be prescribed by the by-laws and ordinances, not inconsistent with the laws of the state, and shall receive therefor such fees as may be fixed by the board.

May arrest without warrant, when.—See, also, Art. 809.

Under this article a town marshal can arrest a man drunk in a public place without a warrant if an ordinance of the municipal corporation so provides. Early v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 85.

Art. 1057. [608] [535] Taxes, by whom collected, etc.; sale of property for, etc.—The corporation tax shall be assessed and collected by the marshal; and, if the same be not voluntarily paid, he shall have power to make the collection in the same manner and with like effect as is prescribed in chapter seven of this title, for collection of taxes in cities, so far as is applicable.

Art. 1058. [609] [536] Real estate sold may be redeemed, etc.—Real estate sold for taxes due the corporation may be redeemed as provided in chapter seven of this title.

Art. 1059. [610] [537] Where purchaser is a non-resident.—Where the purchaser does not reside within the limits of the corporation, the estate may be redeemed by making the payment into the treasury of the corporation for the benefit of the purchaser.

Art. 1060. [611] [538] Ordinances not to be enforced until.—No ordinance or by-law shall be enforced until it has been published at least ten days in three public places in the town or in a newspaper, if one be published in the corporation. [R. S. 1879, 538.]

Art. 1061. [612] [539] Where property is liable for taxes and owner is unknown.—When any property shall be liable to assessment for corporation taxes, and the owner is unknown, such property shall be valued by the marshal and assessed by its description, stating that the owner of the property is unknown; unless the taxes are paid, the property shall be sold for the payment thereof, as nearly as may be, in the manner in which such property when duly rendered is required to be sold, and the sale shall be equally valid. [R. S. 1879, 539.]

Art. 1062. [613] Charters amended, how.—Towns and villages heretofore incorporated by the congress of the republic or the legislature of the state may, by a resolution of the board of aldermen and a two-thirds vote of the voters at an election held therefor, amend their charters in any particular not in conflict with the constitution of the state or the Revised Statutes. [Acts of 1881, p. 83.]

Art. 1063. [614] Takes effect, when.—In order to amend the charter of any town or village, it shall be necessary, before said amendment shall go into effect, for the board of aldermen to adopt a resolution setting forth the amendment; and a certified copy of the same shall be approved by the attorney general and recorded in the office of the secretary of state before the same shall take effect. [Id.]

Art. 1064. [616] [541] Property of any reincorporating city or town vested, how; assumption of indebtedness.—When any town or city shall reincorporate, under chapters one or fourteen of this title, upon a majority vote of the legal voters, taxpaying property owners of said town or city, all property, real and personal, of the old or de facto corporation, shall be vested in the new one; and the new corporation shall assume all the legal indebtedness, contracts and obligations of the old corporation; and, where cities and towns have reincorporated under chapters one or eleven of title eighteen, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, upon a majority vote of the legal voters taxpaying property owners of said city or town, all property, real or personal, of the old or de facto corporation, shall be vested in the new corporation; and the new corporation shall assume all the legal indebtedness, contracts, and obligations of the old corporation. [Acts 1891, p. 95. Acts 1897, p. 64.]

Cited, Reese v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 220.

Submission to vote.—Under the act of April, 1891, the assumption of a debt of a former municipality without a vote of the tax-payers is illegal. City of Brownwood v. Noel (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1014.

A corporation was abolished under the act of 1891 and it was reincorporated, the new corporation taking the property of the old. Held: That the new corporation was liable for the bonds of the old, notwithstanding the fact that the question was not submitted to a vote of the people. City of Brownwood v. Noel (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 890.

Constitutionality.—This article has been declared by our supreme court, in Electric Light Co. v. Keenan, 88 T. 197, 30 S. W. 868, to be unconstitutional. Ranken v. McCallum (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 977.

Debts of illegal incorporation.—The commissioners' court is not authorized to take possession of property of a city and apply the same to a payment of its debts after an illegal incorporation has been annulled by decree of court. Ewing v. Commissioners' Court, 83 T. 663, 19 S. W. 280.

Art. 1065. Certain incorporations validated.—All towns and villages which have heretofore attempted to be incorporated under the provisions of this chapter, but which, in said attempted incorporation, failed to comply with all the requirements of said chapter, but which said towns or villages have, from and after the date of their several attempted incorporations, as aforesaid, exercised the functions of towns and villages, and been recognized as such towns or villages, be and are hereby declared to be towns and villages of the class named, and their incorporations be and the same are hereby declared to be as legal and valid as if the original acts of incorporation had been in strict compliance with the requirements of the law; provided, that nothing in this article shall be held to validate the incorporation of towns and villages that had less than two hundred inhabitants at the time of this attempted corporations of such towns and villages. [Acts 1895, p. 90.]

Application.—See, also, Arts. 775 and 779.

This act only validates those corporations that attempted to incorporate but failed to comply with all the requirements of law, and not those that have not taken steps to incorporate. There is no inherent power in the inhabitants of a town or city to incorporate; they must follow the provisions of law permitting them to do so. Foster v. Hare, 26 C. A. 177, 62 S. W. 543.

This article applies to attempts to incorporate when the law is attempted to be followed, but in some particulars it was not done, and where if the forms of law had not been omitted the incorporation would have been valid. It does not apply where an attempt is made to incorporate in violation of law. Judd v. State, 25 C. A. 418, 62 S. W. 545.

This article did not validate an incorporation that was invalid because of the existence of a prior corporation. Pence v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 608.

Art. 1066. Condemnation of railroad right of way and roadbed for streets.—Any town or village in this state, incorporated under this chapter, or by special charter, shall have the right, and they are hereby empowered, to condemn the right of way and roadbed of any railway company whose roadbed runs within the corporate limits of such towns or villages, when deemed necessary and so declared, by a majority vote of the board of aldermen, for the purpose of opening, widening or extending the streets of such town or village; provided, there are less than four railroad tracks. [Acts 1897, p. 216, sec. 1.]

Art. 1067. Proceedings for.—Whenever the board of aldermen of any town or village, incorporated as aforesaid, shall have passed an ordinance or resolution to open, widen or extend a street to any point within its corporate limits, and such street is to be opened, widened or extended over or across any railroad bed and right of way, if such town or village, and the company over whose roadbed and right of way such street is to be opened, widened or extended, cannot agree as to the damages to be paid said railway company for the right of way over and across their roadbed and right of way, it shall be the duty of the mayor of such town or village to state in writing the point on said railroad right of way where said street is desired to be opened, widened or extended, giving the width and length of that portion of the right of way of the railroad sought to be condemned, and describing it so that it can be clearly identified, the object for which it is sought to be condemned, the name and style of the railway company, and file the same with the county judge of the county in which such town or village is situated. Upon the filing of such written statement with the county judge, the same proceedings shall be had for the purpose of condemning the right of way for the street that are now required by law for the condemnation of right of way for the benefit of railroad companies. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1068. Duty of railroad to keep in condition for travel portion of roadbed and right of way crossed by streets; penalty.—It shall be the duty of every railroad company in this state to place and keep that portion of its roadbed and right of way over or across which any public street of any incorporated town or village may run, in proper condition for the use of the traveling public; and, in case of its failure to do so for thirty days after written notice given to the section boss of the section where such work or repairs are needed, by the town marshal of such town or village, it shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every week such railroad may fail or neglect to comply with the requirements of this article, recoverable in any court having jurisdiction of the amount involved, in a suit in the name of such town or village. [Id. sec. 3.]

Duty to make repairs and liability arising therefrom.—See notes under Arts. 854, 862, 863.

Street railroad must use reasonable care to keep roadbed in repair, though not so required by act of legislature or charter. Laredo Electric & Railway Co. v. Hamilton, 23 C. A. 480, 56 S. W. 998.

Existence of ditch before construction of railway does not relieve railway company from obligation to keep covering in repair. Id.

City street railroad franchise, not imposing any duty on it to repair roadbed, does not relieve company from obligation to keep same in safe condition for ordinary travel. Id.

In action for injuries at railroad crossing, ordinance closing street held properly excluded. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 162.

Under Ft. Worth city charter, a street railway company held required to conform its tracks to the surface of the street, rather than to the grade line as fixed by the city engineer. Ft. Worth & R. H. St. Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 48 C. A. 487, 107 S. W. 556.

A street railway company, purchasing the property and franchise of another company, held to assume, not only the common-law obligation, but the contractual obligation, created by the franchise to the selling company, of keeping the tracks in repair so long as they are permitted to remain in the streets. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. v. Johns, 52 C. A. 489, 116 S. W. 62.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant a finding that a railroad company had acquiesced in the use of a crossing over its right of way in a city. City of Atlanta v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 226, 120 S. W. 923.

Liability of city.—See notes under Art. 999.

Art. 1069. Condemnation for same purpose by county commissioners.—County commissioners shall have the right, upon petition of twenty freeholders of any community, or unincorporated town or city, to condemn roadbed of railroads for same purpose. [Id. sec. 4.]

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Art.
1070. Election to determine.
1071. Qualification of voters, form of ballot.
1072. Judges and clerks; election, etc.; order; effect.
1073. Officers to be elected, etc.
1074. Clerk, etc., appointment, etc.
1075. Commissioners, powers and duties.
1076. Meetings and compensation.
1076a. Laws unrepealed; incorporations and bonds validated, etc.

Article 1070. Election to determine.—Whenever ten per cent. of the qualified voters of any incorporated city or town in this state, having a population of over one thousand inhabitants and less than five thousand inhabitants, incorporated under the provisions of chapter one, title twenty-two of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, or any previous general law, or hereafter incorporated under any general law, or of any incorporated town or village in this state having a population of more than five hundred inhabitants and less than one thousand inhabitants incorporated under the provisions of chapter fourteen, title twenty-two of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, or any previous general law, or hereafter incorporated under any general law, shall petition in writing the mayor of said city or town, or the mayor of such town or village as the case may be requesting that an election be ordered to determine whether such city or town, or such town or village, shall adopt the commission form of government, the mayor shall order an election within such city or town, or town or village, to determine whether or not the commission form of government shall be adopted. Thirty days' notice of such election shall be given by posting three written or printed notices of same at three public places in such city or town, or in such town or village, and by publishing such notice in some newspaper published therein if there be one. If any unincorporated city or town in the state of Texas, having a population of over one thousand and less than five thousand inhabitants, or any unincorporated town or village in the state of Texas having a population of more than two hundred and less than one thousand inhabitants, shall desire to be incorporated under the commission form of government as herein provided, an election to determine whether such incorporation may be had shall be called by the county judge of the county under the provisions herein governing incorporated cities and towns, and incorporated towns and villages, and notice of such election shall be given as herein provided, and if satisfactory proof is made that the city or town or town or village, contains the requisite number of inhabitants, it shall be the duty of the county judge, to make an order for holding an election on a day therein stated, and at a place designated within the city or town or town or village, for the purpose of submitting the question to a vote of the people. [Acts 1913, p. 36, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 36, amends Arts. 1070–1076 and adds Art. 1076a.

Commission form of government—Nature.—The commission form of municipal government is a democratic form of government, resting at last on the consent of a majority of the governed. Perrett v. Wegner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 984.

Art. 1071. Qualification of voters; form of ballot.—Every person entitled to vote at any general election under the laws of the state of Texas, regulating general elections, shall be a qualified voter under the provisions of this chapter. The ballots to be used in said election shall have written or printed thereon "For Commission" or "Against Commission." [Id.]

Art. 1072. Judges and clerks; elections, how held; returns; order; effect.—The mayor or county judge, as the case may be, shall appoint two judges of election, one of which shall be designated as the presiding judge, and shall appoint two clerks, to hold said election. The election shall be held and governed by the general laws of the state of Texas except as herein otherwise provided, and the returns shall be made to the mayor or the county judge, as the case may be, within five days after said election shall have been held. If a majority of the votes cast are "For Commission," then the mayor or the county judge, as the case may be, shall enter an order to that effect upon the minutes of the city council, or board of aldermen, or of the commissioners' court, as the case may be, and after the entry of said order said incorporated city or town or incorporated town or village, shall be under the commission form of government, and said unincorporated city or town, or unincorporated town or village, shall be incorporated and under the commission form of government. [Id.]

Art. 1073. Officers to be elected; terms; vacancies, how filled, etc.—At such election held in incorporated cities and towns, and incorporated towns and villages, there shall be elected at the same election held to adopt, or not to adopt, the provisions of this chapter, two commissioners, who shall serve until the first Tuesday in April following, and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified, and in said unincorporated cities and towns, and unincorporated towns and villages, there shall at such elections be elected a mayor and two commissioners, who shall serve until the first Tuesday in April following, and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified. The mayor of the incorporated cities and towns, and incorporated towns and villages, adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter shall continue to hold his office for the term for which he was elected, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. The term of office of the mayor and commissioners, except the first elected under the provisions hereof, shall be two years, and they shall be elected on the first Tuesday in April every two years. In case of the death or resignation of the mayor or commissioners, the others shall fill the place by appointment, provided, however, that shall a vacancy, from death, resignation, or failure to qualify, or any other cause, occur of the mayor and one commissioner at the same time, or of two commissioners at the same time, the vacancy shall be filled by special election called by the county judge of the county upon notice for the time and subject to all the regulations herein for the original election, the result of said election shall be certified by the county judge to the clerk of said commission, and shall be entered upon the minutes. In incorporated cities and towns and incorporated towns and villages, adopting the commission form of government under the provisions hereof, the members of the city council, and board of aldermen shall hold their offices until the commissioners elected hereunder shall have qualified, and after such qualification, the officers of city council, and board of aldermen shall be abolished, and the mayor and commissioners herein provided for shall constitute the "board of commissioners," of said city or town, or town or village. [Id.]

Art. 1074. Clerk; appointment, bond, duties and powers; city attorney, police and other officers; bonds of mayor and commissioners.—Said "board of commissioners" shall appoint a competent person to be clerk, who in addition to the duties of clerk, shall also be treasurer and assessor and collector of taxes of each city or town, or town or village. He shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, enter into a good and sufficient bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in double the estimated amount of annual revenues of such city or town or of such town or village, said estimate to be made by the "board of commissioners," and said bond to be approved by the "board of commissioners," and filed and recorded in the minutes of said "board of commissioners."

Said clerk shall be invested, and charged with, and shall exercise all the power, rights and duties, conferred upon, and imposed by the general laws, upon the clerk, treasurer, assessor, and collector of taxes, of cities and towns, or town and villages, as the case may be. Said "board of commissioners" shall also have the authority to appoint a city attorney and such police force and such other officers as they may deem necessary, and to fix the salary or other compensation to be received by such clerk, and by such officers, and define their duties, and at any time abolish any office which it creates, and may discharge any officer, clerk or employé which it appoints. The mayor and each commissioner shall enter into a bond in the sum of three thousand dollars each, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of their office; said bond of the officers first elected hereunder, shall be approved within twenty days after the entry upon the minutes of the city council, or board of aldermen, or the commissioner's court, as the case may be, provided for in article 1072 of this chapter, by the county judge, of the county in which such city or town, or town or village, is located, and to be payable to said city or town or town or village, for the use and benefit of said city or town, or said town or village. All subsequent bonds of officers elected hereunder shall be approved by the "board of commissioners." [Id.]

Art. 1075. Powers and duties of board of commissioners.—The "board of commissioners" of all incorporated cities or towns adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter, having a population of over one thousand and less than five thousand inhabitants, and of all unincorporated cities or towns, having a population of one thousand and less than five thousand inhabitants incorporating under and adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter, shall have all of the authority and powers, and be subject to all of the duties, granted and conferred under chapters one to thirteen, both inclusive, of title 22 of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, except where same may conflict with some provision of this chapter herein contained. In incorporated towns and villages of more than five hundred and less than one thousand inhabitants, adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter, and in unincorporated towns and villages of more than two hundred and less than one thousand inhabitants, incorporating and adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter, the "board of commissioners" shall have all authority and powers conferred under chapter fourteen of title 22 of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911 except where same may conflict with some provision contained herein. [Id.]

Art. 1076. Meetings and compensation.—Said "board of commissions" shall hold at least one regular meeting each month and the mayor or two commissioners may call as many special meetings as may be deemed necessary to attend to the business of said city or town or said town or village; and each of said commissioners and said mayor shall receive for their services five dollars per day for each regular meeting, and three dollars per day for each special meeting; provided, however, that said mayor or either of said commissioners shall not receive pay for more than five special meetings in any one month. In lieu of the per diem provided for herein, said "board of commissioners" of any such town or city with not less than two thousand population may fix a salary to be received by the mayor and commissioners of said city or town, or said town or village, not to exceed, however, the sum of twelve hundred dollars per year in any event, for said mayor, and six hundred dollars per year for each of said commissioners. [Id.]

Art. 1076a. Laws unrepealed; incorporations and bonds validated, etc.—This chapter, nor any provision herein, shall not repeal any laws under which such cities or towns or towns or villages, may now operate and shall not effect the incorporation of any city or town or town or village within the state of Texas, and incorporation of all cities or towns, or towns or villages, heretofore had or attempted to be had, under chapter fifteen of title 22 of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, or any previous general law, are hereby validated, as to area and powers and duties and all acts done under same, and all bonds heretofore issued by such cities or towns, or towns or villages, which have been approved by the attorney general of the state of Texas, and registered by the comptroller of the state of Texas, are hereby in all things, validated and declared to be valid and binding obligations against such city or cities, or such town or towns; but the provisions of this chapter shall apply to all such cities and towns, and towns and villages, from and after its passage, provided; the provisions of this Act shall not effect or take away the right of unincorporated cities and towns, and unincorporated towns and villages, to incorporate under any other general law of this state. [Id.]

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

ABOLITION OF CORPORATE EXISTENCE

Art.
1077. Abolition of corporation provided.
1078. Petition and election to abolish, provided, etc.
1079. Qualified voters at such election; duty of county judge.
1080. Receiver of abolished corporation; appointment; bond, etc.
1081. Duties of receiver.
1082. Claims against city, proceedings to collect.
1083. Limitation not to run, when.
1084. No receiver for corporation dissolved, when, etc.
1085. No suit to be brought on protested claims, after what time.
1086. Payment of claims, and priority; sale of property in hands of receiver.
1086a. Court to levy tax, when, etc.
1087. County assessor and collector to assess and collect tax; compensation.
1088. Suits by receiver against delinquent taxpayers.
1089. Compensation of receivers.
1090. Receivers compensation and costs prior claims.
1091. Claims paid pro rata according to priority.
1092. Balance turned over to trustees, etc., of public schools.
1093. Public free school management, etc.
1094. Collection of municipal or school taxes.
1095. Public buildings of abolished corporation.
1096. Corporation may be abolished, how.

Article 1077. [617a] Abolition of corporation provided.—Cities and towns incorporated under the general laws of the state, and cities and towns of ten thousand inhabitants or less chartered under special law, including those which may have heretofore accepted the provisions of chapter one, of this title, may abolish their corporate existence in the manner hereinafter provided. [Acts 1895, p. 166.]

Historical.—Until the passage of Articles 1077–1096 there was no way to abolish a town having a special charter. Pence v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 608.

Art. 1078. [617b] Petition and election to abolish, provided, etc.—When one hundred of the property taxpayers, who are qualified voters of any such city or town, desire the abolishment of such corporation, they may petition the county judge to that effect, who shall thereupon order an election to be held in such city or town, as in the case of its incorporation; provided, that when a majority of the property taxpayers, who are qualified voters, of any such city or town is less than one hundred in number, then the county judge shall order an election as above provided for upon the presentation to him of a petition signed by a majority of the property taxpayers of such city or town, who are qualified voters thereof, paying [praying] for same. [Acts 1899, p. 245.]

Art. 1079. [617c] Qualified voters at such election; duty of county judge.—All persons who are legally qualified voters of the state and county in which any such election is ordered, and are resident property taxpayers in the city or town where such election is to be held, as shown by the last assessment roll of such city or town, shall be entitled to vote at such election; and, if a majority of such qualified voters voting at such election shall vote to abolish such corporation, the county judge shall declare such corporation abolished, and enter an order to that effect upon the minutes of the commissioners' court, and from the date of such order, said corporation shall cease to exist. [Acts 1895, p. 166.]

Qualifications of voters.—Under the express provisions of Const. § 2, as amended in 1902, and Art. 1079, a resident of an incorporated town was not qualified to vote at an election, relative to the abolition of its corporate existence, unless he was a citizen of the United States, or had, at a proper time before the election, declared his intention of becoming a citizen, and unless he had paid his poll tax before the 1st day of February next preceding the election. Warrener v. Lambrecht (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 633.

Under this article and Arts. 7564 and 7577, the commissioners' court shall make up an assessment roll from the list rendered by assessors, and return the list to the assessors for making up the general rolls. The town assessors made up a tax roll, compiled from the county assessor's rolls, which was adopted by the council, and thereafter they made assessments, shown by assessment lists, against residents who had rendered property for taxation, but whose names were not on the tax roll. Held, that the assessment list was not an "assessment roll," within the meaning of the statute; and hence that such residents were not qualified voters, and their votes were properly refused. Id.

Art. 1080. Receiver of abolished corporation; appointment; bond, etc.—In all cases where any city or town having theretofore had a valid corporate existence, under the laws of the state of Texas, has abolished said corporate existence in the manner provided by law, and in all cases where any city or town having a valid corporate existence under such laws, may hereafter abolish their corporate existence, any creditor of any such city or town may apply to the judge of the district court of the judicial district, in which such city or town may be situated, for the appointment of a receiver for said corporation; and, after having posted up in at least three public places in the county wherein such city or town is located, one of which shall be in said city or town, written notices stating the substance of the application, when and before whom the same will be heard, such judge, either in term time or vacation, may appoint a suitable person as such receiver for such corporation, and shall fix the amount of bond to be given by such receiver in at least double the probable amount of the indebtedness or value of the property of such city or town, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as such officer, and for the paying over and delivery of all money and property coming into his hands as such receiver, to the party or parties entitled to receive same, such bond to be approved by the judge making the appointment; and same, together with the order of appointment, shall be filed with, and recorded in, the minutes of said court by the clerk of the district court of the county wherein such city or town is situated. [Acts 1905, p. 325.]

Construed.—This act authorizes a district court to appoint a receiver of an abolished corporation on the petition of any creditor and if the city has not property sufficient to pay all legal claims to levy a yearly tax for such purpose. City of Carthage v. Burton (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 442.

Art. 1081. Duties of receiver.—A receiver appointed under the preceding article, after having given the required bond, and after having same filed and recorded as therein directed, shall take charge of all the real and personal property, including moneys, minute books, ordinances, etc., except such property as pertains to the public free schools or devoted exclusively to public use, and shall return an inventory of all such property, money, books, etc., so received by him to the next succeeding term of the district court for the county in which such city or town is situated; and, for the purpose of securing such property, money, books, etc., he may, under the order of said court, or the judge thereof, made in vacation, bring suit or suits against any person or persons in possession of such property, books or moneys, or indebted to said city or town, the same as such city or town could were it still incorporated. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1082. Claims against city; proceedings to collect.—Any person, firm or corporation, having any claim against such city or town, shall, within six months from the appointment of said receiver, present to him a statement of the amount of such claim, duly verified, which, if he finds correct, he will mark allowed, and file same in said district court; and at its next regular term, if no protest be filed as hereinafter provided, said claim shall be approved by said court and shall thereafter be considered a valid debt against such city or town; provided, however, that no such claim or account against such city shall be allowed or approved by the receiver of such city without notice of the presentment thereof first having been given, by publication in some newspaper, if any in the town or city where same is filed or presented, for four successive weeks, and in case there be no newspaper published in such town or city, then by posting written or printed notice of the presentment of such claim, to be posted at the courthouse door of the county in which said town or city is situated for four weeks prior to the allowance of said claim or account. And such notice, whether published or posted, shall state the name and residence of the creditor, the amount and date of said claim and account, and for what purpose incurred. In case such receiver finds any claim so presented to him unjust, in whole or in part, he shall endorse his finding thereon, and return same to the claimant, who may file same with the district court, if he desires to accept the finding of the receiver, and such claim for the amount allowed by the receiver may be acted upon by the said court as other claims. In case any protest by any taxpayer of said city or town be filed against any claim filed in said court, together with a bond of sufficient sureties, to be approved by said court, that he will pay all costs of suit in case said claimant establishes his claim in full, in any state court in which he may sue thereon, then such district court shall refuse to approve such claim until it shall have been established by judgment, recovered thereon in a state court of competent jurisdiction; and such suit to establish such claim, or any claim disallowed in part or in whole, may be brought against the receiver, who shall make all legal defenses against such claim; but the court trying said claim is hereby authorized to hear and consider any material defense that may be, or may have been, urged against said claim, except that of limitation, though such claim, prior thereto, may have been reduced to judgment, but such judgment shall be considered, upon such trial as prima facie evidence of the justness of such claim. Any judgment recovered against such receiver upon a claim against such city or town shall be allowed by the receiver and approved by the district court wherein the receivership is pending; but, in all suits upon claims wherein protest and bond were filed in the district court, the claimant shall be liable for the costs of the suit, unless he recovers judgment for the full amount for which he asked the approval of the said district court; and, in suits upon claims rejected in part by the receiver, the claimant shall be liable for the costs of the suit, unless he establishes his claim for a greater amount than was allowed by the receiver. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1083. Limitation not to run, when.—Limitations shall not run, begin to run, or be plead against any claim against such city or town, at any time prior to six months after the appointment of such receiver. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1084. No receiver for corporation dissolved, when, etc.—No receiver shall be appointed for any such city or town whose corporate existence was dissolved prior to July 17, 1905, where the application therefor was not filed in said court within two years from and after July 10, 1905. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1085. No suit to be brought on protested claims, after what time.—No suit shall be brought against such receiver upon any claim, against the allowance of which a protest has been filed as herein provided for, at any time after six months from the date of filing such protest, nor after the expiration of six months from the date of the disallowance of any such claim, in whole or in part, where the claim has not been filed in the district court, after such disallowance as hereinbefore provided. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1086. Payment of claims, and priority; sale of property in hands of receiver.—It shall be the duty of the district court of the county in which such town or city is situated, and in which such receivership is pending, to provide for the payment of all claims legally established against such city or town, and to determine the priority of any claims, and to order the sale of all property in the hands of the receiver subject to sale for such purpose, and to direct such receiver to pay such claims. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1086a. Court to levy tax, when, etc.—In case the money and proceeds of property are insufficient to pay such indebtedness, then it shall be the duty of said court, at the request of any creditor, at the first regular term of said court in each year, to levy a tax upon all the property and real and personal estate, situated within the limits of said city or town, as previously incorporated, on the first day of the preceding January, not exempt from taxation under the constitution and laws of this state, sufficient to discharge the indebtedness, but not to exceed the rate allowed by existing law for such purposes in incorporated cities and towns. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1087. County assessor and collector to assess and collect tax; compensation.—Whenever the district court, having jurisdiction in the premises, has heretofore ordered, or may hereafter order, the assessment and collection of taxes for the payment of the indebtedness of such town or city, it shall be the duty of the county tax assessor for the county in which such town or city is situated to assess the taxes so ordered in like manner as taxes in rural school districts; and it shall be the duty of the county tax collector for such county to collect such taxes in like manner as taxes in rural school districts; provided, that this article shall not repeal any part of articles 1081 and 1082. For the services rendered under this article the assessor and collector shall receive the same compensation as for like services for the assessment and collection of taxes in rural school districts; and it shall be the duty of said collector to pay such taxes, when collected, to the receiver of such city or town. [Acts 1905, p. 327. Acts 1909, p. 68.]

Art. 1088. Suits by receiver against delinquent taxpayers.—Suits may be brought by the receiver against delinquents, and a lien shall exist upon all property for such taxes, the same as though the corporate existence of such city or town had never been abolished, and such levy and assessment had been made by its council and assessor. [Acts 1905, p. 327, sec. 4.]

Art. 1089. Compensation of receivers.—Receivers appointed under the provisions of this chapter shall receive such compensation as may be allowed by the court. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1090. Receivers' compensation and costs to be prior claims.—The compensation of the receiver, together with all court costs and expenses, shall constitute a prior claim against such city or town, and shall be first paid out of any money on hand or collected. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1091. Claims paid pro rata according to priority.—In case of taxation, the money collected each year shall be paid pro rata upon all claims according to their priorities, until all claims established and all costs and expenses are fully paid. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1092. Balance turned over to trustees, etc., of public schools.—On final settlement of such receivership, any money or property left on hand shall be turned over to the trustees or other officers in charge of the public free school situated in said city or town for the benefit of such school. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1093. [617e] Public free school management, etc.—Where the public free schools of any such city or town are under the management of trustees appointed or elected by the voters of the city or town, or by the city or town council, at the time its corporation is abolished under the provisions of this chapter, such trustees shall have the management of said schools for the remainder of the term for which they were appointed or elected, subject to the supervision of the commissioners' court, unless such city or town shall sooner become incorporated for school purposes only. [Acts 1895, p. 166.]

Art. 1094. [617f] Collection of municipal or school taxes.—All taxes for municipal or school purposes which shall have been levied at the date of abolishment of such corporation, and which shall have not been paid, shall be collected by the collector of the county in the same manner provided by law for the collection of state and county taxes, and paid into the county treasury; but the portion of such taxes levied for the purpose of maintaining the public free schools of such city or town shall be paid over to the trustees of public free schools of said city or town and applied by them to the purposes for which they were levied.

Art. 1095. [617g] Public buildings of abolished corporations.—When any corporation is abolished under the provisions of this chapter, and shall at the time of such abolishment own any public buildings, public parks, public works or other property, and the same shall not have been sold or disposed of as provided in this chapter, the same shall be managed and controlled by the commissioners' court of such county for the purposes to which same were originally used and intended; and, for this purpose, the commissioners' court shall have and exercise, with reference thereto, the powers originally conferred by charter upon the mayor and aldermen of such city.

Art. 1096. [615] [540] Corporation may be abolished, how.—When twenty-five of the qualified voters of any incorporated town or village shall desire the abolishment of such corporation they may petition the county judge to that effect, who shall thereupon order an election to be held in such town or village, as in the case of its incorporation; and, if there be a majority of the voters of said corporation, voting at such election in favor of abolishing such corporation, the county judge shall declare the corporation abolished, and enter an order to that effect upon the minutes of the commissioners' court; and, from and after the date of such order, the said corporation shall cease to exist; provided, nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to repeal or otherwise affect any laws now upon the statutes of this state providing for the incorporation of towns and villages for school purposes; said towns and villages having not less than two hundred inhabitants. [Acts 1897, p. 194.]

Applies only to incorporation under general laws.—This article applies only to those towns which had been incorporated and organized under the general laws of the state enacted for that purpose and not to a town organized under a special charter granted by the legislature. Ex parte Cross, 44 Cr. R. 376, 71 S. W. 289.

Abolished by failure to elect officers.—See notes under Art. 1047.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

CITIES HAVING MORE THAN 5,000 INHABITANTS—ADOPTION AND AMENDMENT OF CHARTER

Art.
1096a. May adopt or amend charter; election; limitations of charter and ordinances; taxation; debts.
1096b. Commission to frame new charter; submission to voters; submission of charter; submission of amendments, etc.
1096c. Mayor or chief executive to certify copy of adopted charter or amendments to secretary of state; record; judicial notice; cities may sue without security for cost; may appeal without bond.
1096d. Full power of local self government; enumerated powers.
1096e. Effect of enumeration of powers.
1096f. Former powers preserved, etc.
1096g. Vested property, actions, rights of action, etc., saved; special assessments, etc.
1096h. Improvement districts, improvements, bonds, etc.; personal charges, liens and special assessments, etc.
1096i. Penalties for obstruction or incumbrance of streets, etc.; street franchises; submission to voters.

Article 1096a. May adopt or amend charter; election; limitations of charter and ordinances; taxation; debts.—That cities having more than five thousand inhabitants may, by a majority vote of the qualified voters of said city, at an election held for that purpose, adopt or amend their charters, subject to such limitations as may be prescribed by the legislature, and providing that no charter or any ordinance passed under said charter shall contain any provision inconsistent with the constitution of the state, or of the general laws enacted by the legislature of this state, said cities may levy, assess and collect such taxes as may be authorized by law, or by their charters; but no tax for any purpose shall ever be lawful for any one year, which shall exceed two and one-half per cent. of the taxable property of such city, and no debt shall ever be created by any city, unless at the same time provision be made to assess and collect annually a sufficient sum to pay the interest thereon and creating a sinking fund of at least two per cent. thereon; and providing further that no city charter shall be altered, amended or repealed oftener than every two years. [Acts 1913, p. 307, sec. 1.]

Art. 1096b. Commission to frame new charter; submission to voters; submission of charter; submission of amendments, etc.—The legislative or governing authority of any incorporated city, having more than five thousand inhabitants may, by a two-thirds vote of its members, or upon petition of ten per cent. of the qualified voters of said city, shall provide by ordinance for the submission of the question, "Shall a commission be chosen to frame a new charter?" The ordinance providing for the submission of such question shall require that it be submitted at the next regular municipal election, if one should be held, not less than thirty nor more than ninety days after the passage of said ordinance; otherwise it shall provide for the submission of the question at a special election to be called and held not less than thirty days, nor more than ninety days, after the passage of said ordinance and the publication thereof in some newspaper published in said city. The ballot containing such question shall bear no party designation, and provision shall be made thereon for the election from the city at large of a charter commission of not less than fifteen members or more than one member for each three thousand inhabitants, provided, that a majority of the qualified voters, voting on such question shall have voted in the affirmative. The charter so framed by said commission shall be submitted to the qualified voters of said city at an election to be held at a time fixed by the charter commission not less than forty days nor more than ninety days after the completion of the work of the charter commission; provision for which shall be made by the legislative or governing authority of the city insofar as not prescribed by general law. Not less than thirty days prior to such election the legislative or governing authority of said city shall cause the city clerk or city secretary to mail a copy of the proposed charter to each qualified voter in said city as appears from the tax collector's rolls for the year ending January 31st, preceding said election. If such proposed charter is approved by a majority of the qualified voters, voting at said election, it shall become the charter of said city until amended or repealed; provided, that in preparing the charter, the commission shall, as far as practicable, segregate each subject so that the voter may vote "Yes" or "No" on the same. Provided, that where the legislative or governing authority of any city, or where any mass meeting has selected a charter committee, or charter commission, or where the mayor of any city has appointed a charter committee which has proceeded with the formation of a charter for said city, the provisions of this section as to the selection of the charter commission shall not apply to the first charter election to be held in said city under the terms of this Act. No charter shall be considered adopted until the votes have been counted and an official order entered upon the records of said city by the legislative or governing authority of such city declaring the same adopted. When the legislative or governing authority of any city of more than five thousand inhabitants deems it preferable to submit amendments to any existing charter and in the absence of a petition hereinbefore provided for, said legislative or governing authority may, on its own motion, and shall upon the petition of at least ten per cent. of the qualified voters of said city submit any proposed amendment or amendments to such charter; provided, that the ordinance providing for the submission of any proposed amendment or amendments shall require that it, or they, be submitted at the next regular municipal election, if one shall be held, not less than thirty nor more than ninety days after the passage of said ordinance; otherwise it shall provide for the submission of the amendment or amendments at a special election to be called and held not less than thirty nor more than ninety days after the passage of said ordinance, and the publication thereof in some newspaper published in said city. The legislative or governing authority of said city shall cause the city clerk or city secretary to mail a copy of the proposed amendment or amendments to every qualified voter in said city as appears from the tax collector's rolls for the year ending January 31st, preceding said election. Every such proposed amendment or amendments, if approved by the majority of the qualified voters voting at said election, shall become a part of the charter of said city. Each and every amendment or amendments submitted must contain only one subject and in preparing the ballot for such amendment or amendments, it shall be done in such a manner that the voter may vote "Yes" or "No" on any one amendment or amendments, without voting "Yes" or "No" on all of said amendments; and provided that no amendment or amendments shall be considered adopted until the votes have been counted and an official order has been entered upon the records of said city by the legislative or governing authority of such city, declaring the same adopted. Provided, that no ordinance shall be passed submitting an amendment or amendments until twenty days' notice has been given of such intention by publication for ten days in some newspaper published in said city. By "twenty days" is meant from the first date said notice is published.

Provided, that nothing in this Act shall prevent the qualified voters of any city of over five thousand inhabitants from adopting any charter or amendment thereto, and at the same time electing officers under such charter or amendment. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1096c. Mayor or chief executive to certify copy of adopted charter or amendments to secretary of state; record; judicial notice; cities may sue without security for cost; may appeal without bond.—That, upon the adoption of any such charter or any amendment to any existing charter by the qualified voters, as provided in section 1 of this Act [1096a], it shall be the duty of the mayor or chief executive officer exercising like or similar powers of any such city, as soon as practicable, after the adoption of any such charter or amendment, to certify to the secretary of state an authenticated copy, under the seal of this city, showing the approval by the qualified voters of any such charter or amendment; and the secretary of state shall thereupon file and record the same in a separate book to be kept in his office for such purpose; provided that the secretary of state shall not be allowed to charge any greater fee for the recording of any such charter or amendment than fifteen cents (15c) per hundred words, provided such fee shall not be less than two dollars ($2.00). That it shall be the duty of the city secretary of any such city or other officer exercising like or similar powers, upon the adoption and approval of any such charter, any amendment thereof by the qualified voters as herein provided, to record at length upon the records of the city, in a separate book to be kept in his office for such purpose, any such charter, or amendment so adopted. That, when said charter or any amendment thereof shall be recorded as herein above provided for, it shall be deemed a public act and all courts shall take judicial notice of same and no proofs shall be required of same. That all cities may institute and prosecute suit without giving security for cost, and may appeal from judgments without giving supersedeas or cost bond. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1096d. Full power of local self government; enumerated powers.—That by the provisions of this Act it is contemplated to bestow upon any city adopting the charter or amendment hereunder the full power of local self government, and among the other powers that may be exercised by any such city, the following are hereby enumerated for greater certainty:

The creation of a commission, aldermanic or other form of government; the creation of offices, the manner and mode of selecting officers and prescribing their qualifications, duties, compensation and tenure of office.

The power to fix the boundary limits of said city, to provide for the extension of said boundary limits and the annexation of additional territory lying adjacent to said city, according to such rules as may be provided by said charter.

To hold by gift, deed, devise or otherwise any character of property, including any charitable or trust fund; to plead and be impleaded in all courts, and to act in perpetual succession as a body politic.

To provide that no public property or any other character of property owned or held by said city shall be subject to any execution of any kind or nature.

To provide that no fund of the city shall be subject to garnishment, and the city shall never be required to answer in any garnishment proceedings.

To provide for the exemption from liability on account of any claim for damages to any person or property, or to fix such rules and regulations governing the city's liability as may be deemed advisable.

To provide for the levying of any general or special ad valorem tax for any purpose not inconsistent with the constitution of the state.

To provide for the mode and method of assessing taxes, both real and personal, against any person and corporation, including the right to assess the franchise of any public corporation using and occupying the public streets or grounds of the city separately from the tangible property of such corporation.

To provide for the collection of all taxes, including the right to impose penalties for delinquent taxes.

The power to control and manage the finances of any such city; to prescribe its fiscal year and fiscal arrangements; the power to issue bonds upon the credit of the city for the purpose of making permanent public improvements or for other public purposes in the amount and to the extent provided by such charter, and consistent with the constitution of the state; provided, that said bonds shall have been first authorized by a majority vote cast by the duly qualified property taxpaying voters voting at an election held for that purpose. Thereafter all such bonds shall be submitted to the attorney general for his approval and the comptroller for registration, as provided by the state law, provided that any such bonds, after approval, may be issued by the city, either optional or serial or otherwise as may be deemed advisable by the governing authority. That, whenever any city has heretofore been authorized, under any special charter, creating such city, to issue any bonds by the terms of such charter, the provisions of this Act shall not be construed to interfere with the issuance of any such bonds under the provisions of any charter under which such bonds were authorized.

To have the exclusive right to own, erect, maintain and operate water works and water works system for the use of any city and its inhabitants, to regulate the same and to have power to prescribe rates for water furnished and to acquire by purchase, donation or otherwise suitable grounds within and without the limits of the city on which to erect any such works and the necessary right of way, and to do and perform whatsoever may be necessary to operate and maintain the said water works or water works system and to compel the owners of all property and the agents of such owners or persons in control thereof to pay all charges for water furnished upon such property and to fix a lien upon such property for any such charges. To provide that all receipts from the water works may, in its discretion, constitute a separate or sacred fund, which shall be used for no other purpose than the extension, improvement, operation, maintenance, repair and betterment of said water works system or water works supply, and to provide for the pledging of any such receipts and revenues for the purpose of making of any of such improvements, and the payment of the principal and providing an interest and sinking fund for any bonds issued therefor, under such regulations as may be provided by the charter adopted by such city.

To prohibit the use of any street, alley, highway or grounds of the city by any telegraph, telephone, electric light, street railway, interurban railway, steam railway, gas company, or any other character of public utility without first obtaining the consent of the governing authorities expressed by ordinance and upon paying such compensation as may be prescribed and upon such condition as may be provided for by any such ordinance. To determine, fix and regulate the charges, fares, or rates of any person, firm or corporation enjoying or that may enjoy the franchise or exercising any other public privilege in said city, and to prescribe the kind of service to be furnished by such person, firm or corporation, and the manner in which it shall be rendered, and from time to time alter or change such rules, regulations and compensation; provided, that in adopting such regulations and in fixing or changing such compensation or determining the reasonableness thereof, no stock or bonds authorized or issued by any corporation enjoying the franchise shall be considered unless proof that the same have been actually issued by the corporation for money paid and used for the development of the corporate property, labor done or property actually received in accordance with the laws and constitution of the state applicable thereto. That, in order to ascertain all facts necessary for a proper understanding of what is or should be a reasonable rate or regulation, the governing authority shall have full power to inspect the books and compel attendance of witnesses for such purpose.

To buy, own, construct within or without the city limits and to maintain and operate a system or systems, of gas, or electric lighting plant, telephones, street railways, sewage plants, fertilizing plants, abattoir, municipal railway terminals, docks, wharfs, ferries, ferry landings, loading and unloading devices and shipping facilities, or any other public service or public utility, and to demand and receive compensation for service furnished for private purposes or otherwise, and to exercise the right of eminent domain as hereinafter provided for the appropriation of lands, rights of way or anything whatsoever that may be proper and necessary to efficiently carry out said objects. That any city shall have the power to condemn the property of any person, firm or corporation now conducting any such business and for the purpose of operating and maintaining any such public utilities, and for the purpose of distributing such service throughout the city or any portion thereof; provided that any city may adopt by its charter such other rules and regulations as it may deem advisable for the acquiring and operation of any such public utilities.

To manufacture its own electricity, gas or anything else that may be needed or used by the public; to purchase and make contracts with any person or corporation for the purchasing of gas, electricity, oil or any other commodity or article used by the public and to sell the same to the public upon such terms as may be provided by the charter.

To have the power to appropriate private property for public purposes whenever the governing authorities shall deem it necessary and to take any private property within or without the city limits for any of the following purposes, to-wit: city halls, police stations, jails, calaboose, fire stations, libraries, school houses, high school buildings, academies, hospitals, sanitariums, auditoriums, market houses, reformatories, abattoirs, railroad terminals, docks, wharves, warehouses, ferries, ferry landings, elevators, loading and unloading devices, shipping facilities, piers, streets, alleys, parks, highways, boulevards, speedways, play grounds, sewer systems, storm sewers, sewage disposal plants, drains, filtering beds and emptying grounds for sewer systems, reservoirs, water sheds, water supply sources, wells, water and electric light systems, gas plants, cemeteries, crematories, prison farms, and to acquire lands within and without the city for any other municipal purposes that may be deemed advisable. That the power herein granted for the purpose of acquiring private property shall include the power of the improvement and enlargement of the water works, including water supply, riparian rights, stand pipes, water sheds, the construction of supply reservoirs, parks, squares and pleasure grounds, public wharves and landing places for steamers and other crafts, and for the purpose of straightening or improving the channel of any stream, branch or drain, or the straightening or widening or extension of any street, alley, avenue or boulevard. That, in all cases where the city seeks to exercise the power of eminent domain, it shall be controlled, as nearly as practicable, by the law governing the condemnation of property of railroad corporations in this state, the city taking the position of the railroad corporations in any such case; that the power of eminent domain hereby conferred shall include the right of the governing authority, when so expressed, to take the fee in the lands so condemned and such power and authority shall include the right to condemn public property for such purposes.

To have exclusive dominion, control and jurisdiction in, over and under the public streets, avenues, alleys, highways and boulevards, and public grounds of such city and to provide for the improvement of any public street, alleys, highways, avenues or boulevards by paving, raising grading, filling, or otherwise improving the same and to charge the cost of making such improvements against the abutting property, by fixing a lien against the same, and a personal charge against the owner thereof according to an assessment specially levied therefor in an amount not to exceed the special benefit any such property received in enhanced value by reason of making any such improvement and to provide for the issuance of assignable certificates covering the payments for said cost, provided that the charter shall apportion the cost to be paid by the property owners and the amount to be paid by the city, and provided further, that all street railways, steam railways, or other railways, shall pay the cost of improving the said street between the rails and tracks of any such railway companies and for two feet on each side thereof. The city shall have the power to provide for the construction and building of sidewalks and charge the entire cost of construction of said sidewalks, including the curb, against the owner of abutting property, and to make a special charge against the owner for such cost and to provide by special assessment a lien against such property for such cost; to have the power to provide for the improvement of any such sidewalk or the construction of any such curb by penal ordinance and to declare defective sidewalks to be a public nuisance. That the power herein granted for making street improvements and assessing the cost by special assessment in the manner herein stated shall not be construed to prevent any city from adopting any other method or plan for the improvement of its streets, sidewalks, alleys, curbs or boulevards, as it may deem advisable by its charter.

To open, extend, straighten, widen any public street, alley, avenue or boulevard and for such purpose to acquire the necessary lands and to appropriate the same under the power of eminent domain and to provide that the cost of improving any such street, alley, avenue or boulevard by opening, extending and widening the same shall be paid by the owners of property specially benefited whose property lies in the territory of such improvement and to provide that the cost shall be charged by special assessment and that a personal charge shall be made against any owner for the amount due by him and to provide for the appointment by the county judge or other officer exercising like or similar powers of three special commissioners for the purpose of condemning the said lands and for the purpose of apportioning the said cost, which apportionment of said cost shall be specially assessed by the governing authorities against the owners and the property of the owners lying in the territory so found to be specially benefited in enhanced value by the said special commissioners. That the city shall pay such portion of such cost as may be determined by the said special commissioners, provided the same shall never exceed one-third the cost and the property owners and their property shall be liable for the balance of the same as may be apportioned by said commissioners. That the city may issue assignable certificates for the payment of any such cost against such property owners and may provide for the payments of any such cost in deferred payments, to bear interest at such rate as may be prescribed by the charter not to exceed eight per cent. That the city may adopt any other method for the opening, straightening, widening or extending of its streets as herein provided for as may be deemed advisable and charge the cost of same against the property and the owner specially benefited in enhanced value and lying in the territory of said improvement that its charter may provide. That the authority to adopt any other method shall include the manner of appointing commissioners, the manner of giving notice and the manner of fixing assessments or providing for the payment for any such improvement.

To control, regulate and remove all obstructions or other encroachments or incumbrances on any public street, alley or ground and to narrow, alter, widen or straighten any such streets, alleys, avenues or boulevards and to vacate and abandon and close any such streets, alleys, avenues or boulevards, and to regulate and control the moving of buildings or other structures over and upon the streets or avenues of such city.

That each city shall have the power to define all nuisances and prohibit the same within the city and outside the city limits for a distance of five thousand feet; to have power to police all parks or grounds, speedways, or boulevards owned by said city and lying outside of said city; to prohibit the pollution of any stream, drain or tributaries thereof which constitutes the source of water supply of any city and to provide for policing the same as well as to provide for the protection of any water sheds and the policing of same; to inspect dairies, slaughter pens and slaughter houses inside or outside the limits of the city from which meat or milk from same is furnished to the inhabitants of the city.

To license, operate and control the operation of all character of vehicles using the public streets, including motorcycles, automobiles or like vehicles, and to prescribe the speed of the same, the qualification of the operator of the same, and the lighting of the same by night and to provide for the giving of bond or other security for the operation of the same.

To regulate, license and fix the charges of fares made by any person owning, operating or controlling any vehicle of any character used for the carrying of passengers for hire or the transportation of freight for hire on the public streets and alleys of the city.

To provide for the establishment of districts within said city wherein saloons may be located or maintained and wherein spirituous, vinous and malt liquors may be sold to be drunk on the premises, and to prohibit the sale of such liquors or the location of such saloons without such defined district, to regulate the location and control the conduct of theaters, moving picture shows, ten pin alleys, vaudeville shows, pool halls, and all places of public amusements.

To license any lawful business, occupation or calling that is susceptible to the control of the police power.

To license, regulate control or prohibit the erection of signs or bill boards as may be provided by charter or ordinance.

To provide for the establishment and designation of fire limits and to prescribe the kind and character of buildings or structures or improvements to be erected therein, and to provide for the erection of fire proof buildings within certain limits, and to provide for the condemnation of dangerous structures or buildings or dilapidated buildings or buildings calculated to increase the fire hazard and the manner of their removal or destruction.

To provide for police and fire departments.

To provide for a health department and the establishment of rules and regulations protecting the health of the city and the establishment of quarantine stations, and pest houses, emergency hospitals and hospitals, and to provide for the adoption of necessary quarantine laws to protect the inhabitants against contagious or infectious diseases.

To provide for a sanitary sewer system and to require property owners to make connections with such sewers with their premises and to provide for fixing a lien against any property owner's premises who fails or refuses to make sanitary sewer connections and to charge the cost against the said owner and make it a personal liability. Also to provide for fixing penalties for a failure to make sanitary sewer connections.

The power to require water works corporations, gas companies, street car companies, telephone companies, telegraph companies, electric light companies, or other companies or individuals enjoying a franchise now or hereafter from the city to make and furnish extensions of their service to such territory as may be required by the charter.

Provided, that in all cities of over twenty-five thousand inhabitants, the city commissioners, or city council, or the governing board or authorities of any such city, when the public service of such city may require the same, shall have the right and power to compel any street railway or other public utility corporation to extend its lines or service into any section of said city not to exceed two miles, all told, in any one year.

To provide for the establishment of public schools and public school system in any such city and to have exclusive control over same and to provide such regulations and rules governing the management of same as may be deemed advisable; to levy and collect the necessary taxes, general or special, for the support of such public schools and public school system.

That, whenever any city may determine to acquire any public utility using and occupying its streets, alleys, and avenues as hereinbefore provided, and it shall be necessary to condemn the said public utility, the city may obtain funds for the purpose of acquiring the said public utility and paying the compensation therefor, by issuing bonds or notes or other evidence of indebtedness and shall secure the same by fixing a lien upon the said properties constituting the said public utility so acquired by condemnation or purchase or otherwise; that said security shall apply alone to the said properties so pledged; that such further regulations may be provided by any charter for the proper financing or raising the revenues necessary for obtaining any public utilities and providing for the fixing of said security.

To enforce all ordinances necessary to protect health, life and property, and to prevent and summarily abate and remove all nuisances and to preserve and enforce the good government, order and security of the city and its inhabitants, and as incident to giving effect to the provisions hereof article 812 of the Penal Code of the state of Texas is hereby amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

Art. 812 [Penal Code]. If any person shall wilfully obstruct or injure, or cause to be obstructed or injured in any manner whatsoever, any public road or highway, or any street or alley in any incorporated town or city, or any public bridge or causeway, he shall be fined in a sum not exceeding two hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 4.]

Explanatory.—The above article of the Penal Code is inserted for the reason that it seems to be inseparable from the texture of this act.

Art. 1096e. Effect of enumeration of powers.—The enumeration of powers hereinabove made shall never be construed to preclude, by implication or otherwise, any such city from exercising the powers incident to the enjoyment of local self-government, provided, that such powers shall not be inhibited by the constitution of the state. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1096f. Former powers preserved, etc.—All powers heretofore granted any city by general law or special charter are hereby preserved to each of said cities, respectively, and the power so conferred upon such cities, either by special or general law, is hereby granted to such cities when embraced in and made a part of the charter adopted by such city; and provided, that, until the charter of such city as the same now exists is amended and adopted, it shall be and remain in full force and effect. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1096g. Vested property, actions, rights of action, etc., saved; special assessments, etc.—That the adoption of any charter hereunder or any amendment thereof shall never be construed to destroy any property, action, rights of action, claims and demands of any nature or kind whatever vested in the city under and by virtue of any charter theretofore existing or otherwise accruing to the city, but all such rights of action, claims or demands shall vest in and inure to the city and to any persons asserting any such claims against the city as fully and completely as though the said charter or amendment had not been adopted hereunder. That the adoption of any charter or amendment hereunder shall never be construed to affect the right of the city, to collect by special assessment any special assessment heretofore levied under any law or special charter for the purpose of paving or improving any street, highway, avenue or boulevard of any city, or for the purpose of opening, extending, widening, straightening or otherwise improving the same, nor affect any right of any contract or obligation existing between the city and any person, firm or corporation for the making of any such improvements and for the purpose of collecting any such special assessment and carrying out of any such contract, the provisions of all charters shall be continued in force. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1096h. Improvement districts, improvements, bonds, etc.; personal charges, liens and special assessments, etc.—Any such city shall have the power to create and establish improvement districts, to levy, straighten, widen, enclose or otherwise improve any river, creek, bayou, stream, or other body of water or streets or alleys, and to drain, grade, fill and otherwise protect and improve the territory within its limits, and shall have the power to issue bonds for making such improvements, such improvement districts to be created and established agreeably to the general laws of the state providing for the creation of such improvement districts and the issuance of such bonds shall be governed by the powers a city possesses in the matter of issuing bonds.

Any such city shall further have the power to straighten, widen, levy, enclose, or otherwise improve any river, creek, bayou, stream, or other body of water, or streets, or alleys, and to drain, grade, fill and otherwise protect and improve the territory within its limits and to provide that the cost of making any such improvements shall be paid for by the property owners owning property in the territory specially benefited in enhanced value by reason of making any such improvements and a personal charge shall be made against any such property owners as well as a lien shall be fixed by special assessment against any such property, and the city may issue assignable certificates or negotiable certificates, as it deems advisable, covering such cost and may provide for the payment of such cost in deferred payments and fix the rate of interest not to exceed eight per cent., and pay [may] provide for the appointment of special commissioners or otherwise for the making and levying of said special assessment or may provide that the same shall be done by the governing authorities and that such rules and regulations may be adopted for a hearing and other proceedings had as may be provided by said charter. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1096i. Penalties for obstruction or incumbrance of streets, etc.; street franchises; submission to voters.—Any such charter may provide a different penalty for the obstruction or incumbrance of its streets, alleys, avenues and highways from that provided by the state law, and provided, further, that no ordinance shall be in conflict with the state law or provide a penalty in conflict therewith save and except in the case of the obstruction and incumbrance of the public streets, alleys, avenues and boulevards of said city.

No charter or any amendment thereof framed or adopted under the provisions of this Act, shall ever grant to any person, firm or corporation any right or franchise to use or occupy the public streets, avenues, alleys or grounds of any such city, but the governing authority of any such city shall have the exclusive power and authority to make any such grant of any such franchise or right to use and occupy the public streets, avenues, alleys and grounds of the city; provided, that if at any time before any ordinance granting a franchise takes effect, a petition shall be submitted to the governing authority signed by five hundred of the bona fide qualified voters of the city, then the governing authority shall submit the question of granting such franchise to a vote of the qualified voters of the city, at the next succeeding general election; provided such election shall occur within twelve months from the date such ordinance takes effect; that, if such election shall not occur within the said twelve months then said ordinance may be submitted if petitioned therefor as herein provided for at a special election to be called by the governing authorities therefor; provided, further that in case said ordinance is submitted at any of said elections, notice thereof shall be published at least twenty days successively in a daily newspaper published in said city prior to the holding of said election. The ballot used at said elections shall briefly describe the franchise to be voted on and the terms thereof and shall contain the words "For the granting of a franchise" and "Against the granting of the franchise." That if a majority of those voting at said election shall vote in favor of granting a franchise the governing body upon canvassing the returns shall so declare and said franchise shall take effect in accordance with its terms, provided, further, however, that no franchise shall extend beyond the period fixed for its termination. [Id. sec. 9.]

COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS

Art.		Art.
1097.	Appointment of commissioners and terms of office.	1100.	Force of acknowledgments thus taken.
1098.	Oath of commissioner.	1101.	Commissioners to take depositions.
1099.	Commissioner may administer oath or affirmation—their effect.	1102.	Commissioners' seal.

Article 1097. [618] [542] Appointment of commissioners and terms of office.—The governor of the state of Texas is hereby authorized to name, appoint, and commission one or more persons in each or any of the other states of the United States, the District of Columbia, or in each or any of the territories of the United States, or in each or any foreign country, upon the recommendation of the executive authority of said states, District of Columbia, or territories or foreign country, as he may deem expedient, which commissioners shall hold office for two years or until their successors are qualified, and shall have authority to take the acknowledgments and proofs of the execution of any deed, mortgage, or other conveyance of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, and also to take the privy examination, acknowledgment and declaration of married women as to all such instruments when executed by them. [Acts of 1885, p. 98.]

Art. 1098. [619] [543] Oath of commissioner.—Every commissioner, appointed as aforesaid, before he shall proceed to perform any duty under and by virtue of this title, shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation, before the clerk of any court of record in the city or county in which such commissioner may reside, well and faithfully to execute and perform all the duties of such commissioner, under and by virtue of this title, or the laws of this state; which oath or affirmation, certified to by the clerk, under his hand and seal of office, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state in this state. [Act May 8, 1846, sec. 4. P. D. 3765.]

Cited, Simpson v. Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 858.

Art. 1099. [620] [544] Commissioner may administer oaths or affirmations; their effect.—Every commissioner appointed by virtue of this title shall have full power and authority to administer an oath or affirmation to any person who shall be willing and desirous to make such oath or affirmation before him; and such oath or affirmation, made before such commissioner, shall be, and is hereby declared to be, as good and effectual, to all intents and purposes, as if taken by any officer in this state competent to take the same. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 3764.]

Cited, Simpson v. Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 858.

Art. 1100. [621] [545] Acknowledgments thus taken; their force.—Any contract, letter of attorney, or other writing, to be used or recorded in this state, and such acknowledgment or proof taken or made in the manner directed by the laws of this state, and certified by any one of said commissioners, before whom the same shall be taken or made, under his seal—which certificate shall be indorsed on, or annexed to, said deed or instrument aforesaid—shall have the same effect, and be as good and valid in law for all purposes, as if the same had been made or taken as now required by law. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 3763.]

Cited, Simpson v. Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 858.

Art. 1101. [622] [546] Commissioners to take depositions.—Every commissioner appointed under this title shall have power and authority to take depositions under a commission issued to him according to law, from any court in this state, to be used as evidence in any cause pending in a court of the same, when returned as prescribed by law. [Id. sec. 5. P. D. 3766.]

Cited, Simpson v. Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 858.

Art. 1102. [623] [547] Commissioners' seal.—Every commissioner under this title shall provide for himself a seal with a star of five points in the center, and the words, "Commissioner of the State of Texas," engraved thereon, which seal shall be used to certify all the official acts of such commissioner; and, without the impress of said seal upon any instrument, or to certify any act of such commissioner, said act shall have no validity in this state. [Act Dec. 31, 1861, p. 21, sec. 5. P. D. 3771.]

In general.—The seal engraved on a certificate of acknowledgment of a commissioner of deeds in 1859 held sufficient. Stark v. Harris (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 887.

1. Necessity of writing in general.—See, also, notes under Art. 3965.

When land is purchased on a credit, and a deed made to the purchaser which is intended by the parties to vest the legal and equitable title in the purchaser, a subsequent payment of the purchase-money by a third person does not vest the title in him who pays it, in the absence of written memoranda, signed by the parties, evidencing their intention, and creates no resulting trust, and is within the statute of frauds. Williams v. County of San Saba, 59 T. 442.

Certificates for land after location and survey must be conveyed as real estate. Groesbeck v. Bodman, 73 T. 287, 11 S. W. 322; Utzfield v. Bodman, 76 T. 359, 13 S. W. 475.

A deed in writing is not essential to the transfer of a pre-emption claim; a verbal sale to one who immediately becomes the occupant is sufficient. Hickman v. Withers, 83 T. 575, 19 S. W. 138.

An equitable interest in land can be divested by an instrument in writing only. Clitus v. Langford (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 325.

A conveyance of land may be established by circumstantial evidence. Thompson v. Dutton, 96 T. 205, 71 S. W. 544.

While real estate may be devised only by a written will, it is nevertheless true that in the construction of a will the broadest liberality is allowed in ascertaining the intention of the testator, which when ascertained will be given effect without regard to the form of expression. The statute applies to deeds and in construing them the legal effect of the language used is the question. Gidley v. Lovenberg (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 834, 835.

The classes of contracts regulated by the statute of frauds are not declared by the statute to be illegal and void. It merely provides a means of successful resistance in case the statute is not complied with. It is not the compliance with the statute which constitutes the contract. The statute presupposes its legality, the enforcement of which is only suspended by the statute until its provisions are satisfied. This statute in effect declares that no real estate shall be conveyed except by an instrument in writing; but as limited by construction there are means of conveyance recognized by the courts as lawful and are enforced. Bringhurst v. Texas Co., 39 C. A. 500, 87 S. W. 896.

A parol agreement to execute and deliver a deed of trust is not subject to foreclosure as a mortgage under this article. Poarch v. Duncan, 41 C. A. 275, 91 S. W. 1110.

An equitable mortgage cannot be created by an agreement not in writing. Id.

Where a deed absolute in form was given as a mortgage to secure a note, it cannot pass the title to the mortgagee by the parties subsequently entering into an oral agreement that the mortgagee was to take the land for the debt and interest thereon. Ullman v. Devereux, 46 C. A. 459, 102 S. W. 1163.

This article requires that the conveyance from one to another of any "estate of inheritance or freehold in lands" must be in writing. Allen v. Allen, 101 T. 362, 107 S. W. 529.

Under this article one who contracted to purchase land could only convey his equitable title arising from the contract by his written deed delivered to the grantee. Bush & Tillar v. O'Neal (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 242.

2. —— Easement or license.—A continuing right to land and fasten a ferry boat to one's land, whether denominated an easement or a license, cannot be conveyed except by writing, so as to bind the heirs of the owner of the land. Parsons v. Hunt, 98 T. 420, 84 S. W. 646.

An agreement such as constitutes a perpetual license in a building, and the land upon which it is located, is an estate of inheritance, that can only be created by writing. Adams v. Weir & Flagg (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 728.

An express grant or such use as implies a grant held necessary to establish an easement. Henslee v. Boyd, 48 C. A. 494, 107 S. W. 128.

A mere license or permission relating to real property is revoked by a conveyance by either licensor or licensee. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 253.

3. —— Lease.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1114 and 1115.

A lease of the wife's separate property for a longer period than one year is under the statute a conveyance in which the wife is required to join to make it valid. Dority v. Dority, 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 340.

A lease of lands for more than one year is a conveyance under this article. Starke v. Guffey Petroleum Co., 98 T. 542, 86 S. W. 3, 4 Ann. Cas. 1057.

The husband cannot rent the community homestead of himself and wife for a term of two years without executing a writing and having her sign and duly acknowledge the same. Such a lease executed by the husband alone is void. Haile v. Haile (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 435.

A parol lease by a wife of her separate property for a period of five years is invalid within this statute. Vaughn v. Pearce (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 171.

4. —— Gifts.—A parol gift of land followed by possession by the donee, who makes valuable improvements thereon in good faith, conveys title. Wootters v. Hale, 83 T. 563, 19 S. W. 134; Samuelson v. Bridges, 25 S. W. 636, 6 C. A. 425.

Where possession is taken and improvements are made under a verbal gift of land the gift is valid; parol evidence of such a gift is sufficient to establish adverse possession. Shepard v. Galveston, H. & H. Ry. Co., 22 S. W. 267, 2 C. A. 535.

A gift or relinquishment of a life estate is a "freehold" within this article. Wallis v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 62.

5. —— Partition.—A verbal partition of land by a married woman is valid as if she were discovert. Wardlow v. Miller, 69 T. 399, 6 S. W. 292; Ikard v. Thompson, 81 T. 285, 16 S. W. 1019; Arnold v. Attaway (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 482.

A parol partition of land among joint tenants, some of whom are married women, is not within the statute and is valid. Aycock v. Kimbrough, 71 T. 330, 12 S. W. 71, 10 Am. St. Rep. 745; Anderson v. Horn, 75 T. 675, 13 S. W. 24.

Where co-tenants execute a deed of partition, and one of them sells his property so partitioned to a third person, such person cannot claim privity of title with the other co-tenant. Illg v. De la Luz Garcia (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 857.

In an action to quiet title, held, that a parol agreement between executors of two estates, and a subsequent inventory and sale of an unlocated balance of a land certificate, operated as a partition of such certificate, and placed the title in the location made under it in one estate, and the unlocated balance in the other. Hall v. Reese's Heirs, 24 C. A. 221, 58 S. W. 974.

Parol agreement between owner of 310-acre tract of land and purchaser that 110 acres should be taken off south end of the tract held a valid agreement for partition. Mass v. Bromberg, 28 C. A. 145, 66 S. W. 468.

A distribution of land by parol gift among children held to be a valid partition, conferring title. Bonner v. Bonner, 34 C. A. 348, 78 S. W. 535.

A partition deed of community homestead property signed by a husband and wife held not defective because the wife's name did not appear in the body of the deed as a grantor. Brown v. Humphrey, 43 C. A. 23, 95 S. W. 23.

A deed by a married woman, though not acknowledged, may be effective for the purpose of accomplishing a partition. Cowan v. Brett, 43 C. A. 569, 97 S. W. 330.

Conveyances of land held to show an agreement to divide land equally after deducting that sold previously. Whitaker v. Farris, 45 C. A. 378, 101 S. W. 456.

Where a tenant in common conveys a specific part of the property, not more than his share, it is a binding partition, if enough is left for the other's full share, and he acquiesced in such partition. Berryman v. McDonald, 49 C. A. 81, 107 S. W. 944.

A partition of land by one owner, without the consent of the other parties interested, cannot be sustained, unless it is shown that it is just and equitable. Turner v. Pope (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 420.

6. Appointment of agent.—Agency to sell land, how constituted. Stringfellow v. Powers, 23 S. W. 313, 4 C. A. 199.

A description in a power of attorney to convey lands held sufficient. Crimp v. Yokeley, 20 C. A. 231, 48 S. W. 1116; Pool v. Unknown Heirs of Foster (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 923; McDonald v. Hanks, 52 C. A. 140, 113 S. W. 604.

A conveyance by another than the owners, merely on their parol consent, held ineffectual; there being nothing to constitute an estoppel. Kuteman v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 842.

7. —— Power as conveyance.—A clause in a power of attorney, executed by a married woman, conveying an undivided half of her lands, held not to prevent the power operating as a conveyance on delivery. Garner v. Boyle, 97 T. 460, 79 S. W. 1066.

8. —— Authority of agent.—A power of attorney which authorizes an agent to sell lands designated as being "titles which were granted to citizens by the legal authorities of the republic of Mexico" will support a conveyance under it by him, provided the land conveyed can be ascertained by reference to the titles thus described in the power. Dunnegan v. Butler, 25 T. 501.

A deed was executed perfect in every respect except that the name of the grantee was not inserted in the blank left for that purpose; at the same time the purchaser was verbally authorized by the vendor to fill the blank with his name, or that of any one to whom he might sell the land. Held, the verbal authority given to the vendee by the vendor to fill the blank with the name of the grantee, or with any other name, was sufficient. Threadgill v. Butler, 60 T. 599; McCown v. Wheeler, 20 T. 372; Viser v. Rice, 33 T. 139.

A sale of land by an attorney acting under power "to take possession of and to grant, sell and convey the same" is not rendered invalid by a sale made in absence of actual possession being taken of the land by the attorney; nor by the insertion of a clause of warranty which is not authorized by the power. The warranty only would be invalid; the deed would pass the title of the principal. Barnard v. Blum, 69 T. 608, 7 S. W. 98.

Power of attorney to convey land construed. Connor v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 83; Jones v. Gibbs, 18 C. A. 626, 46 S. W. 73; Smith v. Cantrel (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1081; Bean v. Bennett, 35 C. A. 398, 80 S. W. 662; Hunter v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 336; Brown v. Orange County (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 247; Skirvin v. O'Brien, 43 C. A. 1, 95 S. W. 696; Baker v. Hamblen, 48 C. A. 529, 107 S. W. 577; Brown v. Orange County, 48 C. A. 470, 107 S. W. 607; Veatch v. Gilmer (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 746; Roberts v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1120.

A power of attorney reciting, among other things, "and my said attorney is hereby empowered to locate any such certificate in my name, or sell and assign the same," does not authorize the agent to locate a government pension certificate, and also to sell the land after such location. Mitchell v. McLaren (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 269.

Power of attorney authorizing agent to sell any and all of the principal's property, and sign and execute in the principal's name any and all instruments of writing, confers power to sell real estate. Gardiner v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 558.

A power of attorney "to buy and sell land, and to transact all business necessary in transaction of my affairs," held to empower the attorney to convey land already owned by the principal. Texas Loan Agency v. Miller, 94 T. 464, 61 S. W. 477.

Under a power of attorney to demand and recover certain land and compromise with adverse claimants, as the principals might do if present, the agent may settle with an adverse claimant and execute a deed to complete such settlement. Wilcoxon v. Howard, 26 C. A. 281, 62 S. W. 802, 63 S. W. 938.

A power of attorney to sell real estate held not to authorize the agent to sell the property and defer certain payments until the determination of a suit between the grantor and grantee. Morton v. Morris, 27 C. A. 262, 66 S. W. 94.

A power to sell land carried authority to execute a conveyance thereof, but only for a consideration running to the owner of the land. Hunter v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1080; Id., 95 T. 648, 69 S. W. 66.

A power of attorney, authorizing a sale for cash or notes, does not authorize the execution of a deed without consideration. Rogers v. Tompkins (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 379.

A power of attorney executed by the widow of the sole owner of a firm authorizing conveyance of land belonging to the firm held to authorize a conveyance of the entire land, as against both the widow and her children. Clawson v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1086.

Under a power to sell and convey a town block, the attorney could establish an alley through it as an incident to the sale of the land. Wiess v. Goodhue, 46 C. A. 142, 102 S. W. 793.

In trespass to try title, a power of attorney to sell land "situated in ——— county, Tex.," will not be assumed to cover the land in controversy, where it appears the grantor owned other lands in the state. Teagarden v. Patten, 48 C. A. 571, 107 S. W. 909.

A power of attorney to sell land, granting full power to do with it as if it were the agent's own property, authorized a sale upon credit, and any disposition of the proceeds which the agent might make would not invalidate the sale, as the purchaser could assume that under the power the agent could dispose of the proceeds as he desired. Neill v. Kleiber, 51 C. A. 552, 112 S. W. 694.

Power of an agent to fix an interest in land implies the authority to demand a deed to the land. City of Longview v. Capps (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 160.

9. —— Termination of agency.—The power of a grantee to insert in the blank his name or the name of another given by the grantor is coupled with an interest, and is irrevocable, and may be exercised after the sale of the land to another. McCown v. Wheeler, 20 T. 372; Viser v. Rice, 33 T. 139; Threadgill v. Butler, 60 T. 599.

No presumption from lapse of time exists that a power of attorney has been revoked. Link v. Page, 72 T. 592, 10 S. W. 699.

A contract to sell land made by an agent in the lifetime of his principal, and perfected after his death, is a valid execution of the power, and conveys the land. Chase v. Bank, 1 C. A. 595, 20 S. W. 1027.

A deed by an attorney in fact, delivered after the death of the grantor, is inoperative. Kent v. Cecil (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 715.

A power to execute a conveyance is revoked by the death of the principal. Hennessee v. Johnson, 13 C. A. 530, 36 S. W. 774; Nehring v. McMurrain (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1032; Surghenor v. Taliaferro (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 648; Wall v. Lubbock, 52 C. A. 405, 118 S. W. 886; Gilmer v. Veatch, 56 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545; Merrill v. Bradley, 52 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 561.

A power of attorney authorizing an attorney to convey a wife's separate estate held not revoked by the death of the husband. Skirvin v. O'Brien, 43 C. A. 1, 95 S. W. 696.

A power of attorney given by joint owners of land to another joint owner of the same land to sell and convey it, which conveys to the attorney no interest in the land to be sold, is not a power coupled with an interest. Gilmer v. Veatch, 56 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545.

Evidence that an attorney in fact had not complied with the terms of the powers of attorney, coupled with an interest, and had made misrepresentations to his principals, held sufficient to warrant a judgment canceling the powers of attorney. Whitman v. Aldrich (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 464.

10. —— Execution of power.—See Hill v. Conrad, 91 T. 341, 43 S. W. 789, overruling Id. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 541; Morton v. Morris, 27 C. A. 262, 66 S. W. 94; Kane v. Sholars, 41 C. A. 154, 90 S. W. 937; Rye v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 185, 95 S. W. 622; Lightfoot v. Horst (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 606.

Where one purporting to act as the attorney for another executes a deed in his own name, the deed will be sustained if he had authority to execute it. Giddens v. Byers, 12 T. 75; Rogers v. Frost, 14 T. 267; Traynham v. Jackson, 15 T. 170, 65 Am. Dec. 152; Daughtrey v. Knolle, 44 T. 450; Hough v. Hill, 47 T. 148.

A deed made by one properly authorized by power to convey the property will pass the title, although it may declare by its recitals that it was executed by virtue of a power contained in some other instrument which was invalid. Link v. Page, 72 T. 592, 10 S. W. 699.

The names of the grantors must be given in a conveyance under a power of attorney. McMaster v. Childress, 10 C. A. 92, 30 S. W. 843.

The act of the donee of a power of attorney is valid where the intention to act under the power is shown by the instrument or attendant circumstances. Hill v. Conrad, 91 T. 341, 43 S. W. 789; J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Hooks, 47 C. A. 560, 106 S. W. 690; Neill v. Kleiber, 51 C. A. 552, 112 S. W. 694.

Where an instrument or the attendant circumstances show that it was not the intention to execute the instrument pursuant to a power to do so, the instrument cannot be made valid by reference to the power. Hill v. Conrad, 91 T. 341, 43 S. W. 789.

Where it is uncertain whether an act done was by virtue of a power conferred, the act will not be construed to be an execution of the power. Id.

Under authority to convey one-half of certain lands, including a section upon which was a town site, held, that a conveyance by lot or by metes and bounds of a lot sold is authorized and effective where no other land had been conveyed at the date of the sale. Jones v. Gibbs, 18 C. A. 626, 46 S. W. 73.

Where one has no interest in land save under a power to sell, his deed in his own name, conveying his interest, passes the title of the owner. Hunter v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1080.

Where one, having authority to sell the lands of another under a recorded power, conveys in satisfaction of his own debt, the grantee takes no title. Id.

A person claiming title to real estate under a conveyance by an agent having power to sell, but who exceeds his authority by conveying the property for his own debt, acquires no title unless he is an innocent purchaser. Hunter v. Eastham, 95 T. 648, 69 S. W. 66.

A creditor of a corporation, in possession of land under an oral agreement between him and an agent of the corporation, held not entitled to hold the same as against a purchaser on foreclosure of a deed of trust. Clark v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 538.

A deed with special warranty executed by an attorney in fact is effectual to convey title, although the power only authorizes the attorney to execute a quitclaim. Kane v. Sholars, 41 C. A. 154, 90 S. W. 937.

The power of attorney which gave authority to execute a deed is admissible in favor of a party claiming thereunder. Downs v. Stevenson, 56 C. A. 211, 119 S. W. 315.

11. —— What law governs.—Where a power of attorney not coupled with an interest was given in California with nothing in its terms to indicate where it was to be executed, and in an attempt to carry out the powers conferred land in Texas is sought to be sold, the law of Texas will control. Gilmer v. Veatch, 56 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545.

12. Dedication, requisites of.—Dedication of land to public use, how shown. French v. Scheuber, 26 S. W. 133, 6 C. A. 617.

On an issue as to whether a park and lake had been dedicated to the public, the questions whether the public knew that the lake had been formed by the construction of a railway, or whether the city was bound by a deed of the owner to the railway company, held immaterial. Gillean v. City of Frost, 25 C. A. 371, 61 S. W. 345.

The rendition of certain property for taxation, and payment of taxes thereon by one who had described the property as a park on a plat and sold lots by reference to the plat, held not to have interfered with the dedication. Sanborn v. City of Amarillo, 42 C. A. 115, 93 S. W. 473.

And to constitute a dedication the owner must intend absolutely and irrevocably to set apart the land for public use. Weidemeyer v. Reitch, 49 C. A. 166, 108 S. W. 167; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Cuneo, 47 C. A. 622, 108 S. W. 714; Cockrell v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 977; Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 575, 113 S. W. 610, 979; City of Atlanta v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 226, 120 S. W. 923.

A town authorized to locate a courthouse, clerk's office, and jail upon its public square held to have dedicated a site to the county for said buildings. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 67.

The assent and intent of the owner to appropriate land to a public use is sufficient to constitute a dedication and may be implied or expressed by deed. Menczer v. Poage, 55 C. A. 415, 118 S. W. 863; Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.

Where a city exhausted its power to dedicate land to the county by the dedication of half a public square, its assent to the occupation of a part of the other half by the county held not a further dedication. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 477, 128 S. W. 109, 129 S. W. 593.

The opening of an alley does not work a dedication unless it was opened for the benefit of the public. Davis v. Young (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1116.

In an abutting owner's action for damages caused by the construction and operation of a railroad on a public street, the dedication of the street and its use as a recognized public street were sufficiently shown by the recorded map and the sale and conveyance of property with reference to such street. Beaumont & G. N. R. Co. v. Yarbrough (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 252.

13. —— Capacity to dedicate.—A tenant held without power to dedicate leased property to the public for a street. Cockrell v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 977.

14. —— Ratification.—Ratification by one holding a vendor's lien on land, of a dedication of a street through it, held as effectual as though the dedication was made by him. City of Ft. Worth v. Cetti, 38 C. A. 117, 85 S. W. 826.

15. —— Evidence, sufficiency of.—Evidence held to show a dedication. State v. Travis County, 85 T. 435, 21 S. W. 1029; O'Brien v. Seale, 16 C. A. 260, 41 S. W. 150; Loustannau v. Robertson, 21 C. A. 85, 50 S. W. 489; Bellar v. Beaumont (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 410; Gillean v. City of Frost, 25 C. A. 371, 61 S. W. 345; Grace v. Walker, 95 T. 39, 64 S. W. 930, 65 S. W. 482; Gibbs v. Ashford, 27 C. A. 629, 66 S. W. 858; City of Corsicana v. Zorn, 97 T. 317, 78 S. W. 924; Heard v. Connor (Civ. App.) 84 S. W 605; Martinez v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 287; City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 67; Pullman v. Houston (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 69; City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 477, 128 S. W. 109, 129 S. W. 593.

Evidence held not to show a dedication. Jefferson County v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 711; City of San Antonio v. Sullivan, 23 C. A. 619, 57 S. W. 42; De George v. Goosby, 33 C. A. 187, 76 S. W. 66; Bosque County v. Alexander, 41 C. A. 528, 93 S. W. 238; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Cuneo, 47 C. A. 622, 108 S. W. 714; Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 575, 113 S. W. 610, 979; Sutor v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 943.

16. —— Question for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

17. —— Designation in maps or plats.—See Nicholson v. Campbell, 15 C. A. 317, 40 S. W. 167; Emerson v. Bedford, 21 C. A. 262, 51 S. W. 889; City of Corsicana v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 596, 78 S. W. 261; Sanborn v. City of Amarillo, 42 C. A. 115, 93 S. W. 473; Krause v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 828; Wiess v. Goodhue, 46 C. A. 142, 102 S. W. 793; City of Atlanta v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 226, 120 S. W. 923.

Land deeded subject to have street of neighboring town opened through it could not be taken for the opening of said street, as there was no dedication. Jefferson County v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 711.

Where a landowner lays out an addition to a city and files a plat showing streets and sells lots with reference thereto, title to the streets held to vest in the city. City of San Antonio v. Rowley, 48 C. A. 376, 106 S. W. 753.

The conveyance of land with reference to a recorded map on which a plot of ground is marked "park" does not amount to a dedication of such plot to the public or ratify a parol dedication by a former owner of which the grantor had no notice. Adoue & Lobit v. La Porte (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 134.

The act of an owner of land in selling lots on each side of a strip of land lying in extension of a street, while evidence tending to show implied dedication of the strip as a street, is not conclusive on that point. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1068.

Where land is platted as a town site, and the owner conveys part of the lots, with reference to streets, alleys, and a public square an easement is created. Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.

18. —— Acceptance.—To constitute a dedication there must be some act indicating, within a reasonable time, an acceptance of the dedication. Gilder v. City of Brenham, 67 T. 345, 3 S. W. 309; City of Galveston v. Williams, 69 T. 449, 6 S. W. 860; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Cuneo, 47 C. A. 622, 108 S. W. 714.

Acceptance of a dedication may be implied on the part of the city from acts clearly indicating a purpose to accept. Acceptance of the dedication on the part of the city might also be implied after continuous use by the public for such a period of time as would authorize the presumption of a grant, when adjacent improvements have been established with reference to the property as a street. The English rule that acceptance may be implied alone from long-continued use by the public cannot obtain in Texas as applicable to every case. The city never having marked the space claimed to have been dedicated as a street, delineated it on its maps as a street, or claimed it otherwise as such, an acceptance of the dedication could not be implied. Gilder v. City of Brenham, 67 T. 345, 3 S. W. 309.

In an action where it appeared land was deeded subject to have street of neighboring town opened through it, and was occasionally used as public way, held, there was no acceptance of dedication of way by county. Jefferson County v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 711.

Where property is dedicated as a public street, the city's delay in accepting it does not revoke its right to use it as a public street, unless the occupants acquired title by limitation prior to Act July 4, 1887. Williams v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 551.

Where land has been dedicated to a city for street purposes, and the dedication has been duly accepted, failure or delay in completing the opening of such street will not defeat the dedication. City of Dallas v. Gibbs, 27 C. A. 275, 65 S. W. 81.

Acts of a city held an acceptance of the dedication of streets by owners of a tract of land. City of Corsicana v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 596, 78 S. W. 261; City of Houston v. Finnigan (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 470.

Where a street was dedicated to the public, the purchaser of property abutting thereon acquired a vested right to have it kept open, and no acceptance of the dedication by the corporation was necessary. Heard v. Connor (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 605.

Prior to acceptance by the municipality, a dedication of property as a street may be revoked by devoting the property to a private use. City of Houston v. Finnigan (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 470, unless the owner of platted land conveyed the same with reference to streets and alleys on the plat. City of Corsicana v. Zorn, 97 T. 317, 78 S. W. 924.

And a purchase of lots described by reference to a plat constitutes an acceptance of a public park designated on the plat. Sanborn v. City of Amarillo, 42 C. A. 115, 93 S. W. 473.

An acceptance of the dedication of streets by a city was sufficient, although not made until a number of years after the dedication. Krause v. El Paso (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 828.

The dedication of streets by plat was not affected by a failure of the city to open up all the streets delineated at one time. Id.

19. —— Recording.—It is not essential to a dedication of streets, alleys, and a public square, according to a town site map, that the map be made or recorded by the owner himself; it being sufficient that he recognize and approve it. Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.

20. —— Estoppel.—A grantee of plaintiff's grantor held estopped, as against plaintiff, from asserting that a certain strip of land was not a street. Smith v. Allen (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 204.

The grantor of platted lots under a deed of trust describing the property as being platted held to be estopped from denying the dedication of the streets shown on the plat, though the property remained inclosed. Ostrom v. Arnold, 24 C. A. 192, 58 S. W. 630.

The rights of a city to land dedicated to it for street purposes cannot be lost by the city under the principles of equitable estoppel. Krause v. El Paso (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 828.

21. —— Operation and effect.—A deed of dedication to public of streets and alleys in a townsite and a deed granting a railroad a right of way over a street held to confer right to use of right of way, restricted only by the right of the public to the reasonable use of the street and the right not to have a nuisance imposed. Oklahoma City & T. R. Co. v. Dunham, 39 C. A. 575, 88 S. W. 849.

Dedication held irrevocable. Martinez v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 287; City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 67.

In determining the area dedicated by a town to a county for county buildings, the conditions existing at the time the original buildings were erected must govern. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 67.

The area dedicated by a town to a county as a site for buildings includes such space in addition to that covered by the buildings as is reasonably necessary. Id.

Fact that public did not use full width of dedicated street held not to affect the effect of dedication and acceptance. Brunner Fire Co. v. Payne, 54 C. A. 501, 118 S. W. 602.

A recorded conveyance having deprived the grantor of right of possession of an alley as against the grantee and the public, who immediately accepted the dedication, held, that a subsequent purchaser from the grantor acquired no greater rights than grantor had or could exercise. Dixon v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 591.

Where a city dedicates the south half of a public square to the county for county buildings, but retains the north half, the county is not entitled to maintain cesspools and privies on the north half. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 477, 128 S. W. 109, 129 S. W. 593.

Action of county in extending possession beyond ground dedicated by city held not to extend its title derived from the dedication. Id.

County claiming dedication by city of public square must rely on conduct of city to indicate extent of dedication. Id.

Where a city dedicated to a county as a single tract half a public square for county buildings, the abandonment of one of three buildings erected thereon by the county did not constitute an abandonment of any part of the tract. Id.

All dedications for public use are to be considered with reference to the purpose for which the dedication is made, or the use to which the premises may be applied. Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.

22. Tenancy in common—Creation of estate.—Establishment of boundaries between land held in common and adjacent land by agreement held to make the owner of the adjacent land a tenant in common in any of the common land between the true boundary and that thus established. Mahon v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 24.

Mere acceptance of a deed conveying a widow's interest as survivor of a community in property held not to make the person accepting the same, who claimed title under a different source, a tenant in common with the heirs of the deceased husband. York v. Hutcheson, 37 C. A. 367, 83 S. W. 895.

Where one of co-tenants conveyed her undivided one-half interest to a railroad, the latter became a tenant in common with her. Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 575, 113 S. W. 610, 979.

23. —— Mutual rights and liabilities.—A deed of a tenant in common to a specific parcel of land held in common is valid between the parties, and voidable only by co-tenants in so far as it may affect their rights. Arnold v. Cauble, 49 T. 527; March v. Huyter, 50 T. 243; Fitch v. Boyer, 51 T. 336; Camoron v. Thurmond, 56 T. 22; Rutherford v. Stamper, 60 T. 447; Maverick v. Burney, 88 T. 560, 32 S. W. 512.

An agreement with owners of land to pay a co-owner for looking after it held not terminated by one owner's selling his interest. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 55.

An agreement of cestuis que trustent to pay an agent for looking after their land held not terminated by conveyance of the land by the trustee. Id.

In trespass to try title, defendant, grantee of certain tenants in common, who had appropriated certain specific portions of the land, held precluded thereby from opposing claim of remaining co-tenants to undisposed-of portion of the land; the same being less than the plaintiff's undivided share. Zimpelman v. Power, 38 C. A. 263, 85 S. W. 69.

Co-tenants of land cannot be prejudiced by a conveyance of specific parcels by other co-tenants in which they are not concerned. Broom v. Pearson, 98 T. 469, 85 S. W. 790, 86 S. W. 733.

Before the rights of a tenant in common to contribute and share in a purchase of an outstanding title by the co-tenant can be cut off, notice that the purchase has been made must be given to the tenant. Niday v. Cochran, 42 C. A. 292, 93 S. W. 1027.

The rule that a tenant in common cannot purchase an outstanding title for his own benefit held not applicable to specified cases. Id.

A co-tenant claiming to share in the benefit of the purchase of an outstanding title made by a tenant held required to bear his share of the expenses incurred. Id.

Tenant in common held not to take title to land under compromise judgment in trust for purchaser of his co-tenant's interest at sheriff's sale. Mayes v. Rust, 42 C. A. 423, 94 S. W. 110.

Acquisition of an outstanding title by tenants in common held not to inure to benefit of co-tenants, where, prior to such acquisition, the co-tenancy was repudiated by the commencement of trespass to try title against such co-tenants. Stubblefield v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 406.

The taking of a subsequent deed from one of the tenants in common, who had not joined in the first deed, held not such a recognition of the co-tenancy as to include another co-tenant, with whom the grantee had no dealing. Naylor & Jones v. Foster, 44 C. A. 599, 99 S. W. 114.

Where a co-tenant in possession sold a portion of the land by warranty deed, and all the land was of uniform value, the other co-tenant's interest should be satisfied out of the land not conveyed. Beale's Heirs v. Johnson, 45 C. A. 119, 99 S. W. 1045.

One tenant in common can recover against a co-tenant only for the undivided interest he shows in the land. Cain v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 834.

24. —— Rights as to third persons.—One of several tenants in common of land not partitioned is entitled to the possession of the whole tract as against a mere trespasser. Thompson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 591.

Where a decedent owned 48½ acres of a tract, and children deeded to their mother their interest in such land off the west end of the tract, a conveyance of 48½ acres off of the west end by the mother conveyed all the title that she had in the land. Wade v. Boyd, 24 C. A. 492, 60 S. W. 360.

Where decedent owned an undivided interest in 48½ acres, and his children deeded to their mother their interest in 48½ acres off the west end of the tract, in the absence of evidence that designation was accepted by co-tenants, the mother took the entire interest of the children in the whole tract. Id.

A conveyance under a power executed by tenants in common held not to have amounted to two distinct conveyances of the entire tract. Gilmer v. Beauchamp, 40 C. A. 125, 87 S. W. 907.

Where decedent and another owned undivided interests in land, decedent's conveyance held to pass title only to his interest in the land conveyed. Eason v. Weeks (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 1070.

No one could complain of the exclusive use of the joint property by one tenant in common, except his co-tenant. Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 575, 113 S. W. 610, 979.

A railroad being co-tenant of a part of land, the other co-tenant could not dedicate any part thereof as a highway without the railroad's consent. Id.

One purchasing the interest of a tenant in common becomes a joint tenant with the other tenants in common, and as such he may recover the entire land from persons having no title. Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 173, 115 S. W. 674.

A conveyance by a tenant in common of a specified number of acres of the land owned in common held to convey his interest therein as against the co-tenant. Hawkins v. Hobson, 57 C. A. 118, 123 S. W. 183.

Where co-owners verbally agreed to pay plaintiff the reasonable value of services for selling the land, one of them afterwards orally agreeing to pay plaintiff 5 per cent. commission was liable for such commission upon the sale being made, though the last contract was made without the authority of the other co-owner. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

Tenants in common with others have no right to convey to a stranger specific portions of the common estate. Rosborough v. Cook (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1120.

25. —— Adverse possession.—See notes under Title 87, Chapter 1.

26. —— Parties to suits by or against.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 5.

27. —— Estate of heirs.—See Title 45.

28. —— Partition and effect thereof.—See Title 101.

29. Trusts—Express.—Evidence that satisfies a jury of the existence of a parol trust is sufficient to engraft it on an absolute deed. Neyland v. Bendy, 69 T. 711, 7 S. W. 497.

A deed from the husband recited that "he was largely indebted to his wife for money by him used and which belonged to her, and desiring to repay her he executes a deed." The deed conveyed certain lands to her children in trust for their mother. In the habendum clause the estate is to be held "in trust for her and themselves forever." Suit by guardian of the beneficiary (she being non compos) against the grantee and against her children for land conveyed by the deed. Held: 1. The nature of the trust not having been prescribed in the deed, it is what is known as a simple or dry trust, in which the beneficiary is entitled to the actual possession and enjoyment of the property, and to dispose of it or to call upon the trustee to execute such conveyances of the legal estate as he directs. 2. The granting clause in the deed is not controlled by the habendum clause, and the deed conveyed the land in sole trust for the mother. Moore v. City of Waco, 85 T. 206, 20 S. W. 61.

An agreement by one purchasing land for himself and another, who pays half the price, held to create a trust. Roach v. Crume (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 86.

Understanding between holders of vendor's lien notes that they constitute fund for paying prior mortgage liens creates no trust against purchaser thereof. Sullivan v. Cranz, 21 C. A. 498, 52 S. W. 272.

A deed to a railway company of the right to use the waters of a lake which the owner subsequently dedicated to a city held not to declare a trust in the railway company in favor of the city. Gillean v. City of Frost, 25 C. A. 371, 61 S. W. 345.

Unexpressed intention of grantee to take land as trustee for another cannot control terms of the deed. Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563.

Circumstances attendant on a conveyance of land held to show an express trust in favor of the grantor. Craig v. Harless, 33 C. A. 257, 76 S. W. 594.

In order to constitute a direct trust, no particular words are necessary; but there must be a conveyance, a fund, and a beneficiary. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 88 S. W. 542, 89 S. W. 552.

An instrument construed, and held not to have created an express trust. Bateman v. Ward (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 508.

A deed held to sufficiently designate the trust thereby created. Stith v. Moore, 42 C. A. 528, 95 S. W. 587.

A verbal agreement held to constitute a parol express trust in land in plaintiff's favor, defeating the title of an execution purchaser in an action against the trustee. Henderson v. Rushing, 47 C. A. 485, 105 S. W. 840.

A trust held sufficiently definite, and one must be treated as standing seised for the purposes of maintaining a building for a specified purpose. Rhodes v. Maret, 102 T. 519, 119 S. W. 1139.

An express parol trust to be engrafted on an absolute deed must be specific and clearly declared by the grantor, so that it may be executed by the trustee or enforced by the court. Roth v. Schroeter (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 203.

A trust held not enforceable because uncertain. Id.

Facts held to show a trust in land. Salter v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 627.

The doctrine that a trust in land must exist when the title passes and cannot be shown by a prior or subsequent agreement or declarations applies only to a resulting trust. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

An agreement to pay one-half of a mortgage note for the purchase money borrowed to pay for land is a valuable consideration, which will support an agreement by the maker of the note to hold half the land in trust for the promisor. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1047.

An agreement that land shall be taken in the name of a purchaser for the benefit of both parties to the agreement is, where based on sufficient consideration and made before the purchase, sufficient to create an express trust. Id.

To constitute an express trust, an agreement must have existed at the time of the acquisition of title by the trustee. Gilmore v. Brown (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 964.

To constitute a direct trust, there must be a transfer to one capable of holding the property, or some object or fund, and also a cestui que trust or purpose to which the fund is to be applied. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 197.

30. —— Resulting trust.—A resulting trust must exist at the instant the deed is taken, and the legal title vests in the grantee. No oral agreement or payment, before or after the title is taken, will create a resulting trust, unless the transaction is such at the moment the title passes that a trust will result from the transaction itself. Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 111.

To control a deed and establish a resulting trust in land by parol, the trust must be proved with clearness and certainty by evidence full, positive and satisfactory. No agreement by parol subsequent to the conveyance will create a trust in land. The trust results, if at all, the instant the deed is taken, and the legal title vests in the vendee. Cunio v. Burland, 1 U. C. 469.

The plaintiff furnished the purchase-money for a tract of land. The legal title for it was conveyed to the ancestor of the defendants. Held, that the equitable title vested in the plaintiff, and he was entitled to recover the title and possession of the land. Such right does not depend upon the existence of an express agreement at the time of the execution of the deed. By implication equity charges the holder of the title in such case with the duties and liabilities as upon express agreement recognizing the trust. Burns v. Ross, 71 T. 516, 9 S. W. 468; Holland v. Farthing, 21 S. W. 67, 2 C. A. 155; Ellis v. Cochran, 28 S. W. 243, 8 C. A. 510.

Where the legal owner of judgments in which others had an equitable interest satisfies the judgments in consideration of a conveyance of realty to him, a trust results in favor of the equitable owners, to the extent of their interest. McClure v. Bryant, 18 C. A. 141, 44 S. W. 3.

Where a legatee of a deceased vendor's claim for purchase money took a conveyance of the land in satisfaction of her demand against the purchaser, who owned the fee, held, that she did not take the conveyance in trust for the estate. O'Connor v. Vineyard, 91 T. 488, 44 S. W. 485.

No agreements made, and no payments made before or after a title is taken, can create a resulting trust, unless a trust results from the transaction itself, when title passes. Arnold v. Ellis, 20 C. A. 262, 48 S. W. 883; Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563; Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 53; Erp v. Meachem (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 230.

A person collecting a note and releasing a vendor's lien becomes a trustee for the true owner of the note, though it was barred, and though whatever lien he attempted to release could still be enforced. Burton v. Archinard (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 684.

Where a trustee makes a part payment with the separate funds of his cestuis que trustent on land purchased by him, a resulting trust is created in their favor. Stone v. Kahle, 22 C. A. 185, 54 S. W. 375.

Members of a church, who took assignment of mortgage debt and foreclosed in own name, held to hold for benefit of church, subject to lien for amount advanced. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

Facts in trespass to try title by an execution purchaser held not sufficient to show that the land was held by the execution debtor in trust for his son at the time of such sale. Bonner v. Ogilvie, 24 C. A. 237, 58 S. W. 1027.

Defendant, purchasing land under agreement to convey same to plaintiff, held to hold in trust for her. Yeager v. Neil, 26 C. A. 414, 64 S. W. 701.

Where the consideration of a deed conveying a street railway was furnished by a third person, who later purchased it at a trustee's sale, the third person is the absolute owner thereof. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

A transaction between a vendor and purchaser, as evidenced by an agreement by the former to buy in the land on a foreclosure of his lien, and to reconvey the same to the purchaser, held not to constitute a trust. Foster v. Ross, 33 C. A. 615, 77 S. W. 990.

Where defendant received money under a contract to pay the same to plaintiff, the relation between them was that of debtor and creditor, and not trustee and cestui que trust. Holland v. Shannon (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 854.

Payment by decedent of part of the consideration of a bond for title taken by him and his brother two years before the title passed to the brother, after decedent's death, was sufficient to support a resulting trust in favor of decedent's heirs. Scranton v. Campbell, 45 C. A. 388, 101 S. W. 285.

Where decedent and his brother took a bond for title from an administrator, the trust resulting in favor of decedent's heirs on the brother taking title after decedent's death was not affected by the fact that the bond did not bind decedent's estate, where the administrator was bound personally. Id.

The rule as to the creation of a resulting trust by payment of consideration for conveyance to another stated. Pearce v. Dyess, 45 C. A. 406, 101 S. W. 549.

Certain transactions considered, and held to have created a resulting trust. Id.

Where defendant purchased for plaintiff a tax deed to plaintiff's property, held, that he holds it in trust for plaintiff. Openshaw v. Rickmeyer, 45 C. A. 508, 102 S. W. 467.

A rule held applicable to resulting trusts only, and not to parol express trusts. Henderson v. Rushing, 47 C. A. 485, 105 S. W. 840.

To charge the grantee in a deed with a trust in the lands conveyed, it is enough to allege and prove the understanding and the facts on which the grantee received the conveyance. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

Where a trust under a deed depended on the agreement between the grantee and another, it was immaterial what the grantor intended. Michel v. Michel (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 358.

Grantee in deed held mere trustee of the legal title for grantor. Lewright v. Davis (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 599.

A woman seeking to establish a trust in her favor in lands purchased in the name of another held required to show certain facts. Hayworth v. Williams, 102 T. 308, 116 S. W. 43, 132 Am. St. Rep. 879.

Where a deed to a husband in trust for his wife for life, and for her children after her death, is in the nature of a family settlement, no resulting use in favor of the husband and wife by reason of the consideration having been paid by them in money will be presumed. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

If the circumstances under which land was purchased made the purchaser a trustee, equity would enforce a trust, whether the purchase was made as trustee. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

When a trust will result in favor of one paying deferred payments on land purchased in another's name stated. Erp v. Meachem (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 230.

Rule as to when a resulting trust arises stated. Watson v. Harris (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 237.

Where one person furnished part of the consideration paid for land, title to which was taken in the name of another, the former by showing the proportional amount of the consideration furnished by him could recover a like proportion of the land. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

A trust in land will not be declared, where the purchaser gave a note to obtain the purchase money, under an agreement with the claimed beneficiary that it should be paid out of the rents; and the beneficiary neither agreed to nor ever did anything to make the land produce rents. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1047.

One who paid half of the purchase money price of realty from money furnished by another held to take title under a resulting trust in favor of such other as to half of the land. Hicks v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1195.

An attorney of a judgment creditor, who purchases the debtor's real estate at an execution sale, holds the title under a resulting trust for the judgment creditor, who may treat the purchase as one made for him. Randell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 717; Same v. Cotton, Id. 719.

If one takes a deed for the benefit of another lending or advancing the price to the latter, a trust results, but if the agreement is that the purchaser takes the deed and pays his own money, and that it may afterwards be repaid and the land redeemed by him who sets up the trust, the parol agreement does not constitute a trust, but is within the statute of frauds. Schutz v. Harris (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 242.

Where the pastor of a church purchased real property for it, the fact that his agreement with the church did not cover the details of the transaction, and that he became personally liable on notes for the unpaid portion of the price, did not preclude the enforcement against him of a resulting trust. Gilmore v. Brown (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 964.

Where money paid by a church to its pastor with which to purchase real property was used for that purpose, he could not prevent a resulting trust by crediting the money on the indebtedness of the church to him for salary. Id.

Where funds of another are invested in land, a trust is created, regardless of the intention of the purchaser. Id.

In an action against the pastor of a church to enforce a resulting trust as to certain church property, an instruction permitting a recovery by plaintiffs as to the consideration for which notes were given by defendant, if it was agreed that the notes should be paid by the church, irrespective of when such agreement was made, held error. Id.

Where, in an action on a note executed by defendant construction company, in which land purchased by a town-site company was attached on the ground that it was held for the construction company, evidence that the town-site company was organized to hold land for the construction company and was owned by the latter's stockholders was admissible, as showing a resulting trust for the defendant. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Hereford v. Southwestern Engineering & Construction Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 680.

A mere lender of money used in purchasing land conveyed to the borrower can claim no resulting trust in his favor. Jordan v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 359.

Plaintiff's right of action to recover the value of a mortgaged building which defendants agreed to hold in trust for plaintiffs, purchasers of the equity, after foreclosing the lien, under an agreement with plaintiff's father, defendant's debtor, to foreclose the lien and hold the property for plaintiffs, was not affected by insolvency of plaintiff's father when he conveyed his property in trust to defendants; plaintiffs having purchased the equity before that time. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

The fact that one who agreed to hold mortgaged property in trust for the owners of the equity of redemption purchased it at the foreclosure sale for himself, and not for them, would not relieve him from liability to them for breach of his trust agreement. Id.

31. —— Constructive trust.—A constructive trust held not created by a promise by a devisee of land sold for taxes to purchase the land, and convey it to the executor of the devisor. Thorp v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 323.

Money received by a father from one to whom he had made an unauthorized conveyance of his children's land does not belong to the children. Arnold v. Ellis, 20 C. A. 262, 48 S. W. 883.

Purchase by tenant of his co-tenant's interest on execution sale under agreement, held not to show a constructive trust. Stafford v. Stafford, 29 C. A. 73, 71 S. W. 984.

Where land is sold under execution, and conveyed by the purchaser to the daughter of the execution debtor, there is no such relation between the parties as to create a trust in favor of the execution debtor. Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563.

Where defendants without authority collected plaintiff's share of her ancestor's estate, they became constructive trustees, and limitations began to run from time of notice to plaintiff. Bridgens v. West, 35 C. A. 277, 80 S. W. 417.

A guardian purchasing land in her own name at an execution sale under a judgment belonging jointly to her and her wards held to hold an interest in the land in trust for the wards. Hix v. Armstrong, 101 T. 271, 106 S. W. 317.

A county judge having purchased certain land under an execution of the county, which he controlled, held the land as trustee for the county. Bell County v. Felts (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1065.

Where a person obtains title to property by fraud, equity will raise a constructive trust to administer complete justice. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909; Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Wiseman, 103 T. 286, 124 S. W. 621, 126 S. W. 1109; Landrum v. Landrum (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 907; Jones v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 395; Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510.

Trusts in invitum do not depend upon agreement or expressions of the trustee; they arise from sound equitable principles. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

Equity will compel an attorney to convey to his clients lands to which they have acquired equitable title under his dealings in their behalf. Id.

An attorney employed to enforce interests in land for a share of the recovery could not defeat his clients' rights to interests in the land acquired by him under a compromise, by procuring the legal title to be vested in another. Id.

An attorney held not permitted to repudiate a promise that his clients should have part of land obtained under a compromise, leaving them merely to their remedy for breach of contract. Id.

An attorney employed to enforce interests in land for a share of the recovery held estopped to deny his clients' title and his trusteeship for their benefit. Id.

In a suit to establish a trust in land acquired by defendant under a compromise as plaintiffs' attorney, it is immaterial whether plaintiffs claimed by limitations or otherwise in the compromised suit. Id.

A parol trust may be ingrafted on the legal title by a preponderance of evidence. Stubblefield v. Stubblefield (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 965.

To establish a parol express trust in land, the proof must be clear and satisfactory. Goodrich v. Hicks, 19 C. A. 528, 48 S. W. 798; Kelly v. Short (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 877; Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

Evidence held to show that a trust resulted in favor of a debtor's daughter to the extent of payments made by her on attached lands. Caldwell v. Bryan's Ex'r, 20 C. A. 168, 49 S. W. 240.

Evidence held to show that a purchase at foreclosure was in trust for the mortgagor, whose interest was subject to execution for his debts. Hirshfeld v. Howard (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 55.

Evidence held to establish a direct trust. Houser v. Jordan, 26 C. A. 398, 63 S. W. 1049.

Evidence held sufficient to establish a resulting trust in land purchased by a father for the benefit of his children with funds inherited by them from their grandfather's estate. Hicks v. Pogue, 33 C. A. 333, 76 S. W. 786.

A parol trust cannot be impressed upon an apparent grant of the equitable, as well as legal, title, except by clear and certain evidence. Rogers v. Tompkins (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 379.

In an action to recover an interest in land on the ground that a resulting trust had arisen in favor of plaintiff, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding in favor of plaintiff. Pearce v. Dyess, 45 C. A. 406, 101 S. W. 549.

In a suit to recover an interest in certain personal property, evidence held to sustain a finding that defendant had purchased the property in trust for plaintiffs, and defendant in proportion to their ownership of the debt secured by the deed of trust. Haywood v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 469.

Evidence held to support a finding of the existence of a parol trust in real estate. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

In an action to establish a resulting trust in land, on the ground that plaintiff paid one-half the purchase money, evidence held to show either that plaintiff did not originally intend to take any interest in the land but afterwards formed the idea of doing so, or if he intended to take an interest he intended to pay the remainder due the state thereon, and a purchase-money note due a prior grantor, leaving defendant to pay the cash payment. Erp v. Meachem (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 230.

In an action to establish a resulting trust in land conveyed to defendant, on the ground of payment of one-half the purchase price by plaintiff, evidence held to sustain a finding that no part of the cash payment by plaintiff for the land was his own money and paid for himself. Id.

Facts held to warrant assumption that decedent and one with whom he unlawfully cohabited each owned an undivided half interest in property claimed by the lawful widow. Watson v. Harris (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 237.

Where there have been successive transfers of trust property, each link in the chain of transfers through which it is sought to follow the trust fund must be distinctly proved. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

A parol express trust in land may be established by the testimony of one witness supported by corroborative circumstances. Id.

Evidence held not to establish an express trust in land. Id.

Evidence held to show that land was not conveyed in trust, but that there was, at most, a failure of consideration. Landrum v. Landrum (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 907.

Evidence held not to show that a purchaser at an execution sale purchased under an agreement to hold the property in trust. Buckner v. Carter (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 442.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that the purchase price of certain land had been paid by defendant and the title conveyed to plaintiff, entitling defendant to a decree establishing his ownership. Keller v. Keller (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 581.

The rule that more than one witness is required to show that a deed, absolute on its face, was intended as a trust, applies only where the trust is being proved by declarations of a deceased trustee, or the trustee is testifying to the trust in his own interest. Id.

Testimony of a single witness as to declarations of a wife to whom her husband had conveyed land that she held it in trust for him held insufficient after her death to establish the trust. Yndo v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 920.

Evidence held to establish a parol trust in lands. Schmittou v. Dunham (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 941.

In trespass to try title a verdict finding that defendant D. did not purchase for plaintiff's benefit held sustained by the evidence. Hume v. Darsey (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 255.

In an action to declare a trust in land purchased by defendants' decedent with money furnished by plaintiff, evidence held to show that the money was lent to decedent, and that he purchased the property for himself. Jordan v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 359.

33. —— Reimbursement of trustee.—Where one pays for land with his own means, another claiming that the former acquired and held the title in trust for him is not entitled to the conveyance except on repayment of the purchase price thus advanced. Hoffman v. Buchanan, 57 C. A. 368, 123 S. W. 168.

Attorney acquiring titles to land by breach of trust with intention of depriving his client thereof held not entitled to reimbursement as a condition of the transfer of such titles to the client. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510.

34. —— Reformation.—In absence of fraud and collusion, equity will reform a deed of trust conveying separate property of a wife, to give it effect in accordance with the mutual intention of the parties. Avery v. Hunton, 23 C. A. 353, 56 S. W. 210.

35. —— Construction and operation of conveyance in general.—A recital in a deed conveying land to a trustee that the payments were made out of the trust funds is prima facie evidence of the fact recited. Kahle v. Stone, 95 T. 106, 65 S. W. 623.

A trust deed construed, and held to cover certain land donated to the grantor on account of wounds received by him in the service of the Republic of Texas. Nona Mills Co. v. Wright, 101 T. 14, 102 S. W. 1118.

A recital in a deed of trust held to show an intention to make a permanent provision for the beneficiaries therein. Parrish v. Mills, 101 T. 276, 106 S. W. 882.

In the construction of a deed of trust, the intention of the donor, arrived at by considering every part of the instrument, governs. Id.

The construction placed upon a trust deed by the parties thereto showing their intent in executing it should control. Montgomery v. Trueheart (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 284.

36. —— Title and rights of parties.—See notes under Art. 1106.

A trustee with power to sell land is not divested by an ineffectual attempt to make a sale. Texas Loan Agency v. Gray, 12 C. A. 430, 34 S. W. 650.

A cestui que trust has an equitable title, though the trustee has conveyed to another. Hanrick v. Gurley (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 994.

A wife cannot convey her beneficial interest in property deeded in trust for her support, though the deed does not restrict alienation by her. Monday v. Vance, 92 T. 428, 49 S. W. 516.

Trustee held entitled to the possession of property conveyed in trust during the continuance of the trust as against subsequent grantees of the beneficiaries. Monday v. Vance (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 346.

Where an alienation of a married woman's interest in a trust created for her benefit was incompatible with the purposes of the trust, she has no power to alienate such interest, though not restricted in the trust deed. Id.

Beneficiaries in a trust deed held not entitled to assert any rights by virtue of the deed itself, but that their claims must rest on the fact that the trust fund was used in the purchase. Kahle v. Stone, 95 T. 106, 65 S. W. 623.

A trustee is merely a depositary of the legal title, and his estate is but a power that may be exercised. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

Under a deed creating a trust, held, that the trustee acquired merely a naked title in trust for the owners of the beneficial interest. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917.

A title bond to convey land to a trustee, such trustee to secure the location of railroad depots on the land and to sell the land as town lots and after retaining a certain percentage of the price and the expenses of carrying out the trust to pay the balance to the vendor, the trustee to have the sole management of the property for five years and to then convey back to the vendor a certain percentage of land undisposed of which bond was accompanied by a deed in confirmation of the title bond, vested in the trustee the fee to the land for only five years under an active trust. Montgomery v. Trueheart (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 284.

A trustee held to take both the legal and equitable estates in view of the purpose of the trust, which was to enable the trustee to sell the land. Id.

A deed executed by a person for whom land was held in trust held to convey the equitable title to the land. Mortimer v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 341.

37. —— Power of sale and management.—A trustee, under authority to "manage, lease, rent, or sell" certain land, held not authorized to reinvest the income from such land in real estate. Stone v. Kahle, 22 C. A. 185, 54 S. W. 375.

A trustee's power to sell land held to have been terminated by a division of the property by agreement of the beneficiaries. Tinsley v. Magnolia Park Co. (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 629.

Beneficiaries in a trust deed, claiming title to the land by virtue of its recitals, are bound by its other conditions, and cannot repudiate a stipulation therein that the trustee shall have power to sell the property. Kahle v. Stone, 95 T. 106, 65 S. W. 623.

A trust deed held to sufficiently authorize the trustee to execute a conveyance of the land. Id.

When incumbered trust land is sold, the basis of its valuation, to determine the good faith of the trustee, is not the land freed from the incumbrances, but its value burdened with such incumbrances. Board of School Trustees of City of San Antonio v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 147.

A trustee held entitled to convey the estate only in the manner designated in the instrument creating the trust. Mansfield v. Wardlow (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 859.

A mortgage executed by a trustee under power to sell and convey only is void. Id.

Recitals in a deed executed by a trustee as to the existence of the deed of trust which was not introduced in evidence held insufficient to prove the authority to execute the deed. Skov v. Coffin (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 450.

38. —— Misappropriation by trustee.—Where land was conveyed in trust, and the trustee wrongfully sold it to innocent purchasers, he is liable for the value of the land at the time the beneficiaries sued to recover it. Mixon v. Miles (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 105.

One paying $1,000 for land worth $500,000, held to acquire no title against a cestui que trust, though he had no knowledge of his rights. Hanrick v. Gurley (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 994.

The measure of recovery by a beneficiary for the wrongful conversion of the land held in trust in a suit for damages for breach of a trust agreement, and not for the proceeds of the sale, will be the value of the land at the time of trial, and not the usual measure of damages in ordinary cases of conversion. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

39. —— Subsequent conveyance by creator of trust.—A husband and wife's deed of property in trust held to carve out of their estate therein a usufructuary interest, leaving the remainder subject to alienation by them. Monday v. Vance, 92 T. 428, 49 S. W. 516.

A deed purporting to convey a moiety of an estate previously conveyed to a trustee held not void, but a conveyance of the grantors' remainder. Monday v. Vance (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 346.

A deed of trust held not to deprive the grantor during the life of the trust from mortgaging the interest in the premises subject to the trust. Cage & Crow v. Perry (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 75.

40. —— Revocation and termination.—Unless the power is reserved in the conveyance, a grantor in a voluntary settlement cannot revoke the grant. Monday v. Vance, 92 T. 428, 49 S. W. 516.

A trust deed construed and the trust thereby created held not to terminate on the death of the last surviving trustee. Parrish v. Mills (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 184.

41. —— Practice and procedure.—See Title 37.

42. —— Admissibility of parol evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

43. —— Statute of frauds.—See Title 62.

44. —— Trusts for creditors.—See notes under Title 9.

45. —— Testamentary trusts.—See Titles 52 and 135.

46. Execution of conveyance.—See notes under Arts. 1109, 1114, and 1115.

In 1848 the owner of land sold the same, received the purchase-money, and acknowledged and delivered a deed, perfect in every respect except that the name of the grantee was not inserted in a blank left for that purpose. At the same time the purchaser was verbally authorized by the vendor to fill the blank with his name or that of any one to whom he might sell the land. In 1856 the purchaser sold the land to another, and with his deed delivered the deed he had received, with the blank not yet filled, and which was never filled until 1878, when, his attention being called to it, he inserted his own name. Held: 1. The verbal authority given by the vendor to fill the blank with the name of the grantee, or with any other name, was sufficient. 2. The power to fill the blank was a power coupled with an interest, and was irrevocable. 3. The fact that the purchaser had sold the land to another before he executed his power to fill the blank did not work a revocation of his authority. Threadgill v. Butler, 60 T. 599; Hollis v. Dashiell, 52 T. 187; Stone v. Brown, 54 T. 330.

The deed or other instrument may be said to be signed whenever the name of its maker is so written upon it as to evidence his intention to give authenticity to it. Thus, where the instrument was neither written nor signed by N., but was acknowledged by him for record and delivered, it was sufficient evidence of execution by him. Newton v. Emerson, 66 T. 142, 18 S. W. 348.

A deed from a partnership, signed by one of the partners as agent, conveys an equitable title to the vendee. Harris v. Bryson & Hartgrove, 34 C. A. 532, 80 S. W. 105.

This article contemplates that the name of the grantor shall be subscribed to a writing having the essentials of a conveyance, and that the signature shall be affixed by him or by some one authorized by him in writing, and where a grantor signs in blank and verbally commits to another to write or not to write a conveyance over his signature with power to determine whether the conveyance shall be filled in and delivered, and to whom the grant shall be made and to what property it shall apply, the instrument is incomplete, and the authority to fill the blanks and deliver the instrument is ineffectual. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917.

47. —— Burden of proof and evidence.—See notes under Title 53.

Evidence of the existence of a lost deed held to support a verdict upholding the same. Walker v. Pittman, 18 C. A. 519, 46 S. W. 117.

48. Capacity of parties.—See notes under Titles 9, 28, 52, 68, and 94.

49. Avoidance of deed.—Ignorance as to the character of an instrument or the fraud which brought about its execution must concur with notice, on the part of the grantee in a deed, to authorize its being set aside, when the deed is properly acknowledged. Davis v. Kennedy, 58 T. 516; Ragland v. Wisrock, 61 T. 391; Elmendorf v. Tejada (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 935.

Widow of one who purchased school lands under contract held to have such an interest in the land as entitled her to sue one who has fraudulently deprived her thereof to cancel certain deeds and establish a trust in her favor. Neil v. Yager, 22 C. A. 628, 55 S. W. 416.

Grantor held not entitled to a cancellation of deed delivered by agent without authority. Burke-Mobray v. Ellis, 44 C. A. 21, 97 S. W. 321.

Where a broker wrongfully obtained his principal's property, and had not parted with the title at the time condemnation proceedings were instituted, the principal held entitled to recover in an action to cancel the deed on the basis of the value of the land at the time of the bringing of such proceedings. Storms v. Mundy, 46 C. A. 88, 101 S. W. 258.

One who had given a note secured by a deed of trust held not entitled to a cancellation of the instruments because of defendant's failure to fulfill the promise which induced the execution of the instruments. Carter v. Ware Commission Co., 46 C. A. 7, 101 S. W. 524.

A grantor held not entitled to a decree for the cancellation of a deed, executed while he had sufficient mental capacity, on the ground that it was an unwise and unequal contract. Cox v. Combs, 51 C. A. 346, 111 S. W. 1069.

Ordinarily a deed cannot be rescinded solely because the parties' minds never met, but plaintiff must be reasonably free from negligence. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W 710. See, also, notes under Arts. 1114, 1115.

In a suit to rescind an exchange of property, plaintiff may recover damages by reason of fraudulent representations in case a rescission is inequitable. Campbell v. Rushing (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 133.

Where a purchaser is induced by fraud to buy land, and pays therefor in cash and notes, which are held by the vendors, or for their benefit, at the time of the trial of the purchaser's action for equitable relief from the fraud, a verdict for him and against the vendors may be for a rescission, canceling his notes, and for the cash payment made by him, with interest from the date of the payment. Hagelstein v. Blaschke (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 718.

50. —— Conditions precedent.—In an action to cancel a deed for fraud in the grantee it is not necessary for vendor to tender the consideration received by him. It is sufficient to offer to restore it. Garza v. Scott, 24 S. W. 89, 5 C. A. 289.

Where one asks for a rescission of a trade of land, and to be reinstated to the land conveyed by him, he must restore the other party to his original possession. Paul v. Chenault (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 682.

In action to cancel deed and rescind contract, it is not necessary that plaintiff offer to return specific property received by him, but it is sufficient if he offers to return the value thereof. Wells v. Houston, 23 C. A. 629, 57 S. W. 584.

Where a deed is procured through fraud and undue influence there is no equity in favor of grantee therein for reimbursement for expenditures made on the property. Jinks v. Moppin (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 390.

Client, as condition precedent to cancellation of deed to attorney for fraud and undue influence, held not required to pay attorney's fees. Id.

In an action to recover property fraudulently obtained, etc., necessity for tendering a release of rights acquired from defendants, stated. Witliff v. Spreen, 51 C. A. 544, 112 S. W. 98.

The inability of a purchaser of land to restore the status quo would preclude him from obtaining a rescission of the contract for mutual mistake as well as for fraud. Corbett v. McGregor (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 422.

A purchaser of land unable to restore it to the vendor held not entitled to rescission for alleged fraud. Id.

A person suing to partially rescind a conveyance for defendant's fraud held not required to offer to refund money received. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 710.

Grantors, in order to rescind a deed for fraud, held required to place the grantee in statu quo. May v. Cearley (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 165.

An administrator of a deceased grantor, who sues to set aside a deed, as procured by fraud of the grantee, need not offer to return the taxes paid by the grantee. Chambers v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 864.

In an action to cancel a conveyance on the ground of the grantor's insanity, the court may grant the relief sought by requiring the payment of such part of the consideration, if any, as was expended for necessaries for the grantor. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 290.

51. —— Burden of proof.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

52. —— Failure of consideration.—Where there is a total failure of consideration for a conveyance of land, the grantor is entitled to a cancellation of the deed. Richerson v. Moody, 17 C. A. 67, 42 S. W. 317.

53. —— Mistake.—A party seeking to set aside a deed alleged to have been made by mistake must be reasonably free from negligence. Gibson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 574.

Where a deed described the land conveyed as the west half of a section 55, and also by a description which called for the K. survey as the west boundary, and there was evidence that at the time the parties understood and intended that the land conveyed should not extend further than the east boundary of the K. survey, the grantee could not thereafter sustain a contention that the call for the K. survey was a mistake. McLennan v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 598.

A grantor held entitled to a cancellation of the deed on the ground of mutual mistake. Ferrell v. Delano (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1039.

54. —— Duress.—To constitute duress avoiding a deed, there must either be imprisonment or threats thereof, or of personal violence; the mere fear of losing property by foreclosure of a lien not being sufficient. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

55. —— Fraud.—A deed obtained by fraud may be set aside. De Perez v. Everett, 73 T. 431, 11 S. W. 388.

Evidence in an action to cancel a deed as fraudulent held to support a verdict for plaintiff. Lancaster v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 409.

In an action to set aside a deed for fraud, evidence held insufficient to establish fraud. Goree v. Goree, 22 C. A. 470, 54 S. W. 1036.

Where a married man, representing himself as single, married a woman and obtained from her a deed of her property without consideration, a finding that such deed was fraudulently obtained is justified. Hodges v. Hodges, 27 C. A. 537, 66 S. W. 239.

Intimate relations of friendship between the parties to a conveyance held proper for consideration, in connection with other facts and circumstances, in determining whether fraud was practiced in obtaining the same. Wells v. Houston, 29 C. A. 619, 69 S. W. 183.

A deed may be set aside for the grantees' breach of false and fraudulent promises to the grantor that they would take care of her for life, etc. O'Brion v. Camp, 46 C. A. 12, 101 S. W. 557.

That a vendee has accepted a conveyance containing covenants of warranty does not prevent him from rescinding on account of fraudulent representations of the vendor as to his title. Buchanan v. Burnett, 52 C. A. 68, 114 S. W. 406.

To justify cancellation of a deed, the charge of fraud in procuring its execution must be proved by clear and satisfactory evidence, such as will preponderate over presumptions or evidence on the other side. Selari v. Selari (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 997.

As to sufficiency of evidence, see Selari v. Selari (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 997; Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 710; Stone v. Houghton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1081; Odom v. Odom (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 900; Cage & Crow v. Perry (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 75; Hume v. Darsey (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 255.

A deed is void and will be canceled and annulled for fraud arising from imposition and undue confidence or influence practiced on a grantor of enfeebled mind produced by old age, and added mental and bodily infirmities. Caddell v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 432.

Since misrepresentations of material character, though innocently made, will furnish a valid ground for rescission of a contract, plaintiff, in his action to rescind a deed need not prove, in addition to misrepresentations, that they were made with knowledge of their falsity, though he had alleged such fact in his pleading. Peters v. Strauss (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 956.

A deed to the grantor's granddaughter obtained by her father's fraud is invalid. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

Promise of a grantee to execute a contract to reconvey on termination of his use, which he never intended to perform, made simply to induce a conveyance, held a fraud sufficient, if seasonably urged, to entitle the grantors to rescind. May v. Cearley (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 165.

Where a grantee procuring a deed by his fraud sought to show waiver of the fraud by the grantor, the grantor held entitled to show the facts and make the question of waiver one for the jury. Cotton v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 114.

A grantee of the separate property of a wife held chargeable with the fraud of the husband inducing the deed. Cage & Crow v. Perry (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 75.

The rule that the failure of a grantee to perform his promises, in consideration of which a deed was executed, is not fraud justifying cancellation of the deed does not apply where the promises are made to defraud, and without any intent at the time of performing them. Chambers v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 864.

Where a grantee obtained a conveyance by fraud, and entered into possession and made improvements, he could not recover the value of the improvements on the setting aside of the deed. Id.

Where a grantee in a deed of one lot procured by fraud the insertion of a provision conveying also another lot, a recovery on the ground of fraud was limited to a cancellation of the deed as to the latter lot. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to show that execution of release of rights by owner by adverse possession was procured by fraud, or that any advantage was taken of him. Davis v. Moye (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 962.

56. —— Undue influence.—Evidence held to show that a deed was procured by undue influence. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

57. —— Mental incapacity.—A deed will not be avoided on account of mental weakness of the grantor in the absence of imposition or undue influence. Beville v. Jones, 74 T. 148, 11 S. W. 1128.

A deed is void where at the time of its execution the grantor was laboring under such a degree of mental infirmity as made him incapable of understanding in a reasonable manner the nature and effect of his act. Caddell v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 432.

In an action to annul a deed for mental incapacity of the grantor, the court may consider proof of the mental and physical condition of the grantor both before and after the execution of the deed. Id.

Evidence held to show that at the time of executing a deed the grantor was mentally incapacitated. Caddell v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 432; Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

A deed cannot be set aside on the ground of insanity unless the incapacity existed at the time of execution. Armstrong v. Burt (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 172.

In an action to cancel a conveyance under power of attorney on the ground that the grantor was not of sound mind, where the defendants introduce a judgment restoring plaintiff to sanity previous to the conveyance, the burden is upon the plaintiff to show that he was insane at the time he executed the power of attorney. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 290.

To have the capacity to execute a valid conveyance the grantor must not only have the ability to transact the ordinary affairs of life and to understand their nature and effect, but also to exercise his will in relation thereto. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

58. Consideration.—See notes under Art. 589.

A contract for sale of unappropriated public lands to which vendor has no title is without consideration, though not void as against public policy. Raynor Cattle Co. v. Bedford, 91 T. 642, 45 S. W. 554.

59. —— Vendor's lien.—See notes under Title 86, Chapter 8.

60. Necessity and requisites of delivery and acceptance.—Delivery and acceptance by the grantee is essential in order to pass a title by deed of bargain or sale. Dikes v. Miller, 24 T. 417.

The fact that a deed, after its delivery to the grantee, has been by him returned to the grantor for safe keeping during the minority of the grantee, or during an expected absence, neither negatives nor disproves its previous delivery, nor annuls or destroys its effect of passing title to the property embraced in it as between the parties. Hart v. Rust, 46 T. 556.

To complete that delivery of a deed which is necessary to pass title to land, it must be placed by the grantor in the control of the grantee, with the intent that it shall become operative as a conveyance. Steffian v. Bank, 69 T. 513, 6 S. W. 823. If not accepted it will not operate as a conveyance. Perryman v. Rayburn (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 915.

A deed takes effect only from the date of its delivery (Insurance Co. v. Clarke, 1 C. A. 238, 21 S. W. 277; Lambert v. McLure, 12 C. A. 577, 34 S. W. 973), and the delivery may be either actual or constructive. If the deed be not actually delivered to the grantee or his authorized agent, it is essential to prove notice to the grantee of its execution and such additional circumstances as will afford a reasonable presumption of his acceptance of it. The presumption that a grantee will accept a deed because it is beneficial to him will never, it is said, be carried so far as to consider him as having actually accepted it. Possession of the deed by the grantee raises the presumption of its due delivery to him; but this presumption may be rebutted by proof. Tuttle v. Turner, 28 T. 759.

But return of deed to grantor, with intent to reinvest title, estops grantee. Dycus v. Hart, 21 S. W. 299, 2 C. A. 354.

An instrument does not operate as a conveyance unless it has been delivered. Naugher v. Patterson, 9 C. A. 168, 28 S. W. 582.

The rule that, where the rights of creditors are not involved, equity will not permit a grantor to invalidate his deed as fraudulent, has no application where it appears that it was never delivered. Blackman v. Schierman, 21 C. A. 517, 51 S. W. 886.

In an action to cancel a deed, an instruction to the effect that, if the grantee did not accept the conveyance during the lifetime of the grantor, he cannot recover, held not erroneous. Id.

A deed takes effect when signed and delivered, and the consideration paid, though afterwards sent back for acknowledgment. Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Neal, 23 C. A. 427, 56 S. W. 91.

Deed executed by husband to his wife, but never delivered, may be set aside at his instance. Newman v. Newman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 635.

A deed from a mother to her minor child conveys the grantor's estate, although the deed remained in the grantor's possession until the grantee's majority. Wadsworth v. Vinyard (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1171.

The question of delivery depends on the intention of the grantor; and an actual delivery by him in person is not essential. Henry v. Phillips (Sup.) 151 S. W. 533, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Phillips v. Henry, 135 S. W. 382.

Where the intention to deliver is clear, title passes to the grantee, though the grantor retains control of the deed during his lifetime. Id.

In order to vest title in a grantee, it is necessary not only that the deed be executed, but also that it be delivered. Williams v. Neill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 693.

A deed is not effective unless delivered with the grantor's intention that it shall become effective, and a deed obtained through the fraud of the grantee without the consent of the grantor is insufficient. Spotts v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 422.

61. —— Ratification.—Where a deed which had not been delivered to the grantee was placed of record by a third person, without the knowledge of the grantor, a ratification of this act by the grantor constitutes a delivery sufficient to pass the title. Pannell v. Askew (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 364.

62. —— Person entitled to accept.—It would seem that the commissioner of the general land office is the proper officer to accept for the state. Dikes v. Miller, 25 T. Sup. 281, 78 Am. Dec. 571; Hubbard v. Cox, 76 T. 239, 13 S. W. 170.

63. —— Persons to whom delivery may be made.—A delivery of a deed to one of two grantees is sufficient. Minor v. Powers (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 710.

Delivery to a third person by consent of grantee is sufficient. Diehl v. Fowler, 10 C. A. 558, 30 S. W. 1086.

Delivery of a deed to the husband of the grantee constitutes delivery to the grantee. Newman v. Newman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 635.

Delivery to an officer who took the acknowledgment of it, with instructions to deliver it to the grantee, held a good delivery of a deed. Belgarde v. Carter (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 964.

64. —— Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3687.

65. —— Evidence of delivery.—A deed to lands, signed by an independent executor, was not recorded until after his death; nor was it ever seen elsewhere than among his papers during his life. The executor, during his lifetime, spoke of the land as having been sold to B., and after the signing of the deed B. went into possession. Held not to establish a delivery of the deed. McLaughlin v. McManigle, 63 T. 553.

Delivery of a deed, how shown. See Puckett v. Williams, 11 C. A. 308, 32 S. W. 364.

In a suit in trespass to try title to land, evidence examined, and held sufficient to sustain the finding that a deed to the land executed by defendants was unqualifiedly delivered to plaintiff. Broom v. Herring, 45 C. A. 653, 101 S. W. 1023.

The delivery of a deed may be shown by the acts or words of the grantor showing that he intended the title should pass to the grantee, and showing that after the execution of the deed the grantor treated and recognized the property as belonging to the grantee, even though there is no manual delivery of the deed. Chew v. Jackson, 45 C. A. 656, 102 S. W. 427.

A deed by a husband and wife dated August 19, 1908, was acknowledged by the husband on that date and by the wife on November 4th following. The tenant in possession under a lease from the grantors paid rent to the purchaser to October 21st. Held not to authorize a finding that the deed was not delivered until November 4th. Garth v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 611.

The act of a grantor in delivering a deed in an envelope indorsed "T. J. P.," or "Mrs. M. H. and Miss J. K.," to a bank cashier with the statement, "Here is a deed to Miss J. K. and Mrs. P. H. that I want to lay away in the vault for safe-keeping, and the deed to be delivered after my death to them," showed an intention to reserve a right in the grantor to recall the deed during his lifetime, and that, if he should die without having exercised the right, it should be delivered to the grantees after his death; and therefore there was no present delivery to the grantees. Phillips v. Henry (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 382, reversed Henry v. Phillips (Sup.) 151 S. W. 533.

A deed held not to have been delivered. Payne v. Cox (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 336.

Evidence held to show that a second deed from a grantor was delivered subsequently to a deed back from the grantee to the grantor, though dated prior thereto. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 885.

66. —— Questions for court and jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

67. —— Redelivery, effect of.—Canceling, altering or redelivering the title deeds of corporeal interests in land does not revest the title in the grantor. Sanborn v. Murphy, 5 C. A. 509, 25 S. W. 459; Id., 86 T. 437, 25 S. W. 610; Dial v. Crain, 10 T. 444; Galbreath v. Templeton, 20 T. 45; Van Hook v. Simmons, 25 T. Sup. 323, 78 Am. Dec. 573.

68. Escrows, requisites of, in general.—Escrow defined. Beaumont Car Works v. Beaumont Imp. Co., 23 S. W. 274, 4 C. A. 257.

Delivery in escrow defined. Wallace v. Butts (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 687.

Agreement to remove cloud from title as condition precedent to payment of money in escrow, construed. Frichott v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 164.

Where deeds intended as advancements were deposited with a third person to be delivered, on the death of the grantor, the depositary held them not in escrow, but as bailee for the owners. McKnight v. Reed, 30 C. A. 204, 71 S. W. 318.

A deed delivered to a bank with the stipulation that it should not be turned over to the grantee, except with grantor's consent, was not held in escrow. Peters v. Strauss (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 956.

A deed held not to have been delivered in escrow. Payne v. Cox (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 336.

A grantor who executed a deed to his stepdaughters, whom he regarded as his own children, and who delivered it to the cashier of a bank for safe-keeping, with instructions to deliver to the grantees after his death, delivered the deed in escrow, and title passed to the grantees. Henry v. Phillips (Sup.) 151 S. W. 533, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Phillips v. Henry, 135 S. W. 382.

69. —— Depositaries.—A deed can never be delivered to the grantee himself as an escrow, but if intended to operate as such must be delivered to a third person for him. If a deed be delivered to him, the law, for wise purposes and on just principle, vests the interest conveyed instantly in him. Insurance Co. v. Clarke, 1 C. A. 238, 21 S. W. 277.

Grantor may make agent of grantee depositary to hold deed in escrow. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 198.

70. —— Revocation.—Grantors held not entitled to withdraw deed from depositary in escrow till after expiration of reasonable time notwithstanding time limit in contract between parties. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 960.

That order for return of deed by depositary was after time limited in contract between grantor and grantee held not conclusive that the withdrawal was authorized. Id.

Where a vendor delivered a deed to a bank in escrow, to be held by it until deferred payments were made, he could not withdraw the deed, without the purchaser's consent, until after a reasonable time, notwithstanding any time limit named in the contract. Smith v. Moore (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1017.

Where plaintiff sold certain land to defendant which was clouded by liens, agreeing to deposit $500 to obtain certain releases, and, if not obtained within 90 days, defendant was authorized to sue to remove the clouds, a petition alleging that plaintiff had obtained two of the releases and the defendant had refused to sue showed sufficient facts to entitle plaintiff to recover the balance on the deposit. Harper v. Martin (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1180.

71. —— Time of taking effect of deed.—Where a grantor executed deeds, and placed them in the hands of a third person, to be delivered to the grantees after his death, on the happening of such event and delivery to the grantees their title relates back to the execution of the deeds. McKnight v. Reed, 30 C. A. 204, 71 S. W. 318.

A deed or bill of sale placed in escrow, to be delivered on compliance with specified conditions, becomes effective on the fulfillment of the conditions, though there is no actual delivery. Ketterson v. Inscho, 55 C. A. 150, 118 S. W. 626.

Where delivery is to a third person in escrow for delivery to the grantee, after the grantor's death, a delivery as directed relates back so as to divest the title of the grantor from the first delivery. Henry v. Phillips (Sup.) 151 S. W. 533.

72. —— Wrongful delivery by depositary.—One placing a deed in escrow does not lose the land by the depositary wrongfully delivering the deed, followed by the grantee's sale to a bona fide purchaser. Boswell v. Pannell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 233.

A debtor, who executed a deed to a part of his homestead in consideration of the creditors' agreement to dismiss bankruptcy proceedings, which deed was deposited in escrow and delivered without authority, held entitled to its cancellation, where the creditors, instead of dismissing the bankruptcy proceedings, resisted his efforts to have them dismissed. Reeves v. Bomar (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 275.

Where a bond for title, placed in escrow for delivery on compliance with conditions, is delivered to the obligee, through his fraud, without the consent of the obligor, the delivery is insufficient, and persons claiming through the obligee have no rights in the absence of negligence of the obligor. Spotts v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 422.

Where a bond for title was placed in escrow for delivery on compliance with an unacknowledged contract, the obligor, by failing to record the contract or to take any steps to protect third persons dealing with the obligee, was not chargeable with negligence, and third persons dealing with the obligee, who by fraud procured the delivery of the bond, acquired no rights against the obligor. Id.

73. Parol or extraneous evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

74. Operation of conveyance in general.—See notes under Arts. 1106 and 1107.

A transfer of land operates as a transfer of the certificate by which it was located. Renick v. Dawson, 55 T. 102; Hines v. Thorn, 57 T. 98; Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 T. 1, 13 S. W. 300; Abernathy v. Stone, 81 T. 430, 16 S. W. 1102.

Deed to secure advances with power to sell and make warranty deed gives power to grantee to proceed to set aside an adverse title. Lerch v. Hill, 2 C. A. 421, 21 S. W. 183.

A deed confirming a previous deed is competent to convey title. Curdy v. Stafford (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 823; Id., 88 T. 120, 30 S. W. 551.

Confirmation of invalid deed providing that such deed should be valid from its date held a present conveyance of the land. Montgomery v. Hornberger, 16 C. A. 28, 40 S. W. 628.

A judgment for defendant in an action on a rent note, on the ground that the rent had passed to a grantee of the premises, was not sustained, where there was no evidence that the rent was due when the conveyance was made. Jones v. Laturnus (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1010.

Where defective deed is corrected by a second, the correction is as effective between the parties as though the deed had been reformed by a decree in equity. Milby v. Regan, 16 C. A. 352, 41 S. W. 372.

A deed conveying unappropriated public school lands is void, where the title thereto is in the state, and the grantor has acquired no claim under the law. Rayner Cattle Co. v. Bedford, 91 T. 642, 44 S. W. 410.

The courts will not aid the grantee in recovering possession of land under a deed, the consideration for which was the compounding of crime, where the grantor remained in possession. Medearis v. Granberry, 38 C. A. 187, 84 S. W. 1070.

Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that plaintiffs' ancestors sold and conveyed the land in controversy to one under whom defendant claimed. Brewer v. Cochran, 45 C. A. 179, 99 S. W. 1033.

Parties to whom stock was transferred in consideration of liquidating debts of a railroad company to which the owner, a married woman, had never made a legal transfer of the railroad property, held not to have acquired any title to the property. Texas Southern Ry. Co. v. Harle (Civ. App.) 101 S. W 878.

Where a party, by paying off a certain note, may receive a deed to certain property, he can only convey his right to receive the deed on compliance with the conditions, and cannot pass any title to the property. Smith v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 528.

A subscription paper signed by various persons who agree to pay the respective amounts set opposite their names for the purpose of erecting a two-story building, the upper part to be used as a Masonic lodge and the lower story for a school house is such a conveyance as will give the people of the community title to the lower story to be used as a school house, although the fee-simple title to the ground on which the building stands is in the Masonic lodge. The contract created a right in the nature of a use ingrafted upon the building, the committee appointed by the community to secure the construction of the building, constituting such a body in law as was capable of receiving the right conferred on the community. Rhodes v. Maret (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 435.

Purchasers of real estate held entitled to rely on recitals in a deed to their vendor that a nonnegotiable note for a part of the price had been canceled. Templeman v. McFerrin (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 333.

Title to a tract of land indicated. Kin Kaid v. Lee, 54 C. A. 622, 119 S. W. 342; Same v. Buck (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 345.

Neither a grantor under a subsequent deed reciting a void prior deed to her husband nor those claiming under the subsequent deed were estopped to deny the prior deed except against those claiming under it. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to sustain a finding that the ancestor of the heirs through whom defendant claimed had by lost deed conveyed the land to one through whom plaintiff claimed. (Civ. App. 1910) Kirby v. Hayden, 125 S. W. 993, judgment affirmed (Sup. 1911) Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Hayden, 104 T. 175, 135 S. W. 1149.

An heir who, pending a suit for partition, conveys all his interest to another heir who holds a vendor's lien note of the ancestor is relieved from liability by reason of the lien on his pro rata share. Thomas v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1164.

Stipulations by grantees of land to sell it to plaintiff for a public purpose at the same price paid for similar property held not enforceable by plaintiff, a stranger to the deed. Ft. Worth Improvement Dist. No. 1 of Tarrant County v. Weatherred (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 550.

75. Property or estate conveyed.—See notes under Arts. 1106 and 1107.

Where a tract of land has been bought and paid for as containing a certain number of acres (the purchaser relying on the representations of the vendor as to quantity), the vendor will not be excused from liability to account for a deficiency in the number of acres because his deed describes the tract as containing the quantity sold, more or less, if the deficiency be so great that it cannot be supposed it was intended to be within the risk which the parties meant to incur, or to have been intended to be embraced by the words "more or less," employed in the deed. Smith v. Fly, 24 T. 345, 76 Am. Dec. 109; Farenholt v. Perry, 29 T. 314; Weir v. McGee, 25 T. Sup. 20; O'Connell v. Duke, 29 T. 299, 94 Am. Dec. 282; Daughtry v. Knolle, 44 T. 450; Rich v. Ferguson, 45 T. 396. See Ladd v. Pleasants, 39 T. 415.

A deed which begins the description of the land conveyed, being part of a larger tract, at a point on the north line of the survey, when, by reference to the other calls, it was manifest that the south line was intended, was properly admitted in evidence—it further appearing that to begin on the north line would place the land sued for entirely beyond the limits of the larger tract of which it was alleged to constitute a part. Huff v. Webb, 64 T. 284.

There was a question as to the identity of a tract of land described as follows in two deeds: In a deed from A. to C., B. and G. the land is described as lot 5, block 44, giving metes and bounds. In a deed from C. and B. to G. it is described as lot 5, block 45, "being the same lot conveyed to them and G. by A." The variance was held to be immaterial. Cruger v. Ginnuth, 3 App. C. C. § 27.

Where an uncertainty as to the identity of land conveyed can be explained by extrinsic testimony, the deed is not void for want of description. McWhirter v. Allen, 1 C. A. 649, 20 S. W. 1007. See Mead v. Leon & H. Blum Land Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 298; Robertson v. Mooney, 21 S. W. 143, 1 C. A. 379.

Evidence held not sufficient to show plaintiff entitled to judgment for a strip of land alleged to be included in his grant by applying a corrected description. Scanlan v. Hitchler (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 762.

An uncertain description of land in a deed held to have been cured by reference to a patent for further description. League v. Scott (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 521.

Where, in trespass to try title, defendant claimed under a deed which stated that it conveyed and confirmed the title attempted to have been covered by a certain other deed, such other deed was admissible in aid of the description of the premises conveyed. Arnall v. Newcom (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 92.

Action by a mortgagee against the mortgagor and another held not an action on the mortgage note, so as to aid description in sheriff's deed. Edrington v. Hermann (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 936.

Evidence held to show that the inclusion of a 250-acre tract in the description of land conveyed was made under a misapprehension and mistake on the part of grantors and grantee. Laufer v. Moppins (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 109.

A false portion of the description in a deed held not to vitiate the deed where it was shown by extrinsic evidence what land was conveyed. West v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 927.

Evidence in trespass to try title held to show that the deed under which plaintiffs claimed called for land to commence on the north line of a certain tract at the west line of the grantee's land so as to include the property in controversy. Basham v. Stude (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 662.

76. Innocent purchasers.—See note under Art. 1104.

77. Reformation, grounds of.—Where a grantor inadvertently included land not intended by either party to be conveyed, the court may reform the deed so as to include only such land as was intended to be conveyed. Elder v. First Nat. Bank, 91 T. 423, 44 S. W. 62.

A mistake in law as to the effect of a provision in a deed held not to authorize a reformation thereof. Morton v. Morris, 27 C. A. 262, 66 S. W. 94.

Statement of what constitutes mutual mistake, authorizing reformation of a deed. Metcalfe v. Lowenstein, 35 C. A. 619, 81 S. W. 362.

Grantor in a deed from which by mutual mistake a reservation of merchantable pine timber was omitted will be granted relief in equity as against grantee and also as against a third person who purchased the timber with notice of the mistake. Mattox v. Davis (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 169.

In absence of evidence to show that it was grantor's intention to include plaintiffs as grantees, held, that the court could not reform a deed so as to vest in plaintiffs title to an interest in the land conveyed. Bonneville v. Dum (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1179.

That a grantee obtained the conveyance by promising to execute a contract to reconvey, which he afterwards failed and refused to perform, held not ground for reforming the deed so as to insert such agreement. May v. Cearley (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 165.

Equity will correct a description in a deed, made by mutual mistake of the parties, by which land actually sold is not conveyed. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 850.

A mistake in the description of a deed will only be corrected in equity, where it is mutual to all the parties. Id.

Equity will correct a mutual mistake in the description of a deed by a married woman, conveying the homestead or her separate property, if the deed is otherwise executed as required by law. Id.

Plaintiff held not entitled to a decree correcting the description in a deed, where the mistake was single to himself and resulted from his own carelessness. Cole v. Kjellberg (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 120.

To justify the reformation of a deed on the ground of mistake, the mistake must be a mutual mistake of both parties, and contrary to the intention of both parties. Dickey v. Forrester (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1181.

78. —— Conditions precedent.—Where an owner of two lots is deceived by a third person into believing that his deed conveys but one lot, and the purchaser is without knowledge of the deception, before the owner is entitled to any relief, he must return the consideration. Horwitz v. La Roche (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1148.

79. —— Laches.—The grantee's successors cannot, after 25 years, have the deed reformed because the grantors have orally recognized their claim to the land intended to be conveyed, the delay not being induced by such recognition, and grantee's successors not having materially changed their condition. Mathews v. Benevides, 18 C. A. 475, 45 S. W. 31.

The rule that an equitable trust is not stale, so long as recognized by trustee, does not apply, where grantee's successors knew for 25 years that the deed conveyed other land than that intended, during which time their claim was recognized by grantors. Id.

An equitable action to correct a mistake in a deed, brought more than 40 years after the date thereof, with no excuse pleaded or proved for such delay, will be deemed a stale demand. William Carlisle & Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 581.

80. —— Pleadings.—See Title 37, Chapter 3.

81. —— Evidence.—See, also, notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

In a suit to reform a deed, held, that there was no error in directing a verdict for defendants. Bonneville v. Dum (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1179.

A deed can be reformed only on clear and specific evidence. Id.

Evidence in trespass to try title, in which defendant sought to reform a deed by plaintiff and wife for mistake in describing the land, held to sustain a finding that plaintiff's wife knew when she executed the deed that it did not convey a certain tract. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 850.

In a suit for reformation of a deed, evidence held to support findings that property was omitted by mutual mistake. Harry v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 637.

82. —— Relief.—The court in an action to cancel a deed held not empowered to substitute a valid condition in place of a condition working an avoidance of the instrument. Morton v. Morris, 27 C. A. 262, 66 S. W. 94.

Art. 1104. [625] [549] Purchaser or creditor, without notice, not to be affected.—A conveyance, such as is described in the preceding article, shall not be good and effectual against a purchaser in good faith, without notice thereof and for a valuable consideration, nor against any creditor, unless such conveyance be acknowledged by the party who shall have signed or delivered it, or proved, in the manner required by law, and before some officer authorized by law to take such acknowledgement or proof, and be filed for record with the clerk of the county in which the land, or a part thereof, is situated. [Id. P. D. 997.]

See notes under Title 118, Chapter 3.

Art. 1105. [626] [550] Conveyance of the greater estate passes the less.—All alienations of real estate, made by any person purporting to pass or assure a greater right or estate than such person may lawfully pass or assure, shall operate as alienations of so much of the right and estate in such lands, tenements or hereditaments as such person might lawfully convey; but shall not pass or bar the residue of said right or estate purporting to be conveyed or assured; nor shall the alienation of any particular estate on which any remainder may depend, whether such alienation be by deed or will, nor shall the union of such particular estate with the inheritance by purchase or by descent, so operate as to defeat, impair or in any wise affect such remainder. [Id. P. D. 998.]

Under this article if a life tenant or one for years should undertake to convey the entire fee his conveyance would operate only to the extent of transferring his own interest. Kennedy v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 283.

A deed stating the names of the grantors, all of whom were recited to be heirs of M., declared that they had sold and quitclaimed unto the grantee all their interest in the land described, followed by a recital that, whereas one of the grantors was still a minor, the others bound themselves, their heirs, etc., to forever warrant and defend the premises against any claim that such minor, or any one for him, might set up to the described premises; it being expressly understood that the warranty only extends to any claim by or for the minor grantor. Held, that the recital in the deed that the grantors were all heirs of M. was mere descriptio personæ, and that the deed should be construed as conveying all the title of the grantors to the land described from any source acquired, and was not limited to such rights as they may have received as heirs of M. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

A deed from a mother to her son remised, released, and quitclaimed to the son described property, to have and hold during his natural life, unless the same or some part thereof be sold by him or some creditor of his, in which event the title to immediately vest in his children, if living, or, if not living, in L., if living, or, if he then have no children and L. be dead, then in the heirs of L., and at the death of the son, if the title should still be in him, the same to become the property of his heirs. Held, that the limitation in the deed was a restriction on alienation and void as repugnant to the fee intended to be granted. Diamond v. Rotan (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 196.

This result was not obviated by the provision of this article that the union of any particular estate with the inheritance by purchase or by descent shall not operate to defeat the remainder, since the purpose of the statute was to abolish the common-law technicalities regarding the characteristics of particular estates, essential to support a remainder, and to prevent such results from following the union of the particular estate with the inheritance in the same person, and in the present case there was an absorption of all the estates possible to be carved out of a fee-simple estate in the son. Id.

Art. 1106. [627] [551] An estate deemed a fee simple, when.—Every estate in lands which shall hereafter be granted, conveyed or devised to one, although other words heretofore necessary at common law to transfer an estate in fee simple be not added, shall be deemed a fee simple, if a less estate be not limited by express words or do not appear to have been granted, conveyed or devised by construction or operation of law. [Id. P. D. 999.]

Deed or quitclaim.—See note under Art. 1107.

Annuities.—Where a deed contemplated that payment of interest on purchase-money notes should continue during the joint lives of the grantors and the life of the survivor by way of an annuity, the survivor may recover the entire annuity, and not merely a moiety thereof. Kertz v. Grimminger (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1008.

Conveyance of mortgaged property.—When mortgagee acquires title of a vendee from mortgagor, mortgagor has no equity of redemption. Harris v. Masterson, 91 T. 171, 41 S. W. 482.

Where mortgagor allowed mortgagee to sell the land, and took the purchaser's notes in satisfaction of the mortgage debt, and deeded purchaser his interest in the land, the mortgage is satisfied. Wilkens v. Potts (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 279.

Estates or interests created, in general.—A. conveyed by deed a tract of land to the heirs of B. and his wife, B. and his wife then being alive. The consideration was paid by B. and wife, who sold it and executed a deed therefor to another, their children joining in the deed. Afterwards the heirs of A. conveyed the land to another. Held, that the title of A. was divested by the first conveyance, and no interest descended to his heirs. Bailey v. Heirs of Willis, 56 T. 212.

A deed containing no words of defeasance, conveying land in trust for the sole use and benefit of parties named therein in proportion to the debts specified as being due to each from the grantor, conveys the absolute title, to be disposed of by the trustee as the beneficiaries may direct or approve, and this without the aid of a court of equity. Catlett v. Starr, 70 T. 485, 7 S. W. 844.

A conveyance of a part of a tract of land surveyed but not patented operates as a conveyance by estoppel of the legal and equitable title thereto upon the issuance of the patent to the grantor. Abernathy v. Stone, 81 T. 430, 16 S. W. 1102.

As to the effect of the word "grant," see Parish v. White, 24 S. W. 572, 5 C. A. 71.

A deed may be made to take effect on grantor's death. Jenkins v. Adcock, 5 C. A. 466, 27 S. W. 21; Leslie v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 378.

A deed with general covenants of warranty held to pass title vested in grantor as survivor of community. Phœnix Assur. Co. v. Deavenport, 16 C. A. 283, 41 S. W. 399.

Where a deed to two was silent as to interest conveyed, the fact that one grantee afterwards conveyed an undivided interest in 40 acres of the tract held not to raise the presumption that the interest conveyed was the whole interest taken. Wade v. Boyd, 24 C. A. 492, 60 S. W. 360.

Where a deed to two was silent as to the interest conveyed to each, the fact that one conveyed an undivided interest of 40 acres in the land did not rebut the presumption arising from the first deed that the grantees therein owned the land in equal shares. Id.

A warranty deed with a stipulation that at the death of the grantee the property or the proceeds thereof remaining in her should revert to the bodily heirs of the grantor, leaves no interest in the grantor subject to execution for his debts. O'Neal v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 545.

An instrument authorizing one to take possession of any lands the signers might own in the state as heirs of another and sell any lands in which they might have an interest, and, in consideration of such services, conveying to such an attorney one-half of all lands in which they may have an interest in the state, conveyed to the attorney a one-half interest in all of the grantor's lands in the state, from whatever source they deraigned title. Merrill v. Bradley, 121 S. W. 561, 52 C. A. 527, certified questions answered 102 T. 481, 119 S. W. 297.

A deed for a valuable consideration, conveying land to one and his heirs forever in trust to hold for the sole use of his wife for life, and in trust to hold the remainder in fee for such persons as she may appoint by will or deed, and, in default of such appointment, then for her children, devests the grantors of the entire fee, leaving in them no reversionary interest contingent on the failure to exercise the power of appointment and the failure of children capable of taking the inheritance. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

The policy of holding the fee in abeyance is not favored in law, and it will be considered as having vested upon the first opportunity. Id.

A deed from father to son "granted, bargained, sold and conveyed and by these presents do grant, bargain, sell and convey unto the said (son) all that section, lot, tract or parcel of land," etc. The habendum clause recited, "to have and to hold all and singular the said premises unto the said (son) his heirs and assigns forever." The warranty clause read, "and I hereby bind myself, my heirs, executors and administrators to warrant and forever defend all and singular the said premises unto the said (son) his heirs and assigns. * * *" The deed also provided that "the land herein conveyed to be accepted by the said (son) as a portion of my estate at its estimated value whenever my estate shall be divided among my heirs after my death as one of my heirs." Held, that the clause "land herein conveyed to be accepted by the said (son)" meant that the land was to be accepted by him at the delivery of the deed; it being the intent to vest a present estate in the son at its delivery as an advancement to be accounted for whenever the father's estate was distributed at the value of the land when it was given to the son. Burgess v. McCommas (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 382.

An instrument executed by a man and wife reading, "Know all men by these presents that we * * * in consideration of love and affection, grant, bargain, sell and convey to said P." certain land, "to have and to hold for and during his natural life and in the event that said P. shall die without an heir of his body, then said land and premises shall descend to and vest in" the grantor's heirs, "and it is understood that this deed of conveyance shall not take effect until after both our deaths and we thereby reserve and retain the title during our natural lives and at our deaths, this deed shall be in full force and effect," if construed as a deed, conveyed an estate to commence only at the death of the survivor of the grantors. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

—— Fee simple.—Land purchased by a life tenant with the profits in his own right vests in him in fee. Gibony v. Hutcheson, 20 C. A. 581, 50 S. W. 648.

One of the essential qualities of a fee-simple estate is that it is one of inheritance which passes, upon the death of the ancestor, to all the heirs generally, and not to a particular heir or set of heirs. Bourn v. Robinson, 49 C. A. 157, 107 S. W. 873.

A freehold estate is assignable by the nature of the estate, and does not rest upon permission from the grantor given independently, as is the case with the interest of a purchaser of school lands before he acquires title. Id.

By one clause in his will a testator devised as follows: Unto my son Alexander's bodily heirs M. and A. certain described land. In a subsequent clause the will provided that M. and A. should not sell a particular part of the land devised and at their death it should revert to their heirs. Held, that M. and A. acquired a legal freehold estate, and the subsequent paragraph is a restraint upon alienation and therefore void. Seay v. Cockrell, 102 T. 280, 115 S. W. 1160.

A deed from a mother to her son remised, released, and quitclaimed to the son described property, to have and hold during his natural life, unless the same or some part thereof be sold by him or some creditor of his, in which event the title to immediately vest in his children, if living, or, if not living, in L., if living, or, if he then have no children and L. be dead, then in the heirs of L., and at the death of the son, if the title should still be in him, the same to become the property of his heirs. Held, that the limitation in the deed was a restriction on alienation and void as repugnant to the fee intended to be granted. Diamond v. Rotan (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 196.

Under a deed containing a limitation over in a certain event, held, that the grantee after the grantor's death became seised of the fee-simple title by a merger of estates so as to avoid the effect of the limitation. Id.

A deed for a valuable consideration held to divest the grantors of the entire fee. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917, rehearing denied Id., 1167.

—— Life estates.—The holder of a life estate in land may sell such interest and the purchaser may enter and hold the land until the death upon which the estate terminates. May v. Town Site Co., 83 T. 502, 18 S. W. 959.

Where a life tenant conveys land to another, the grantee takes an estate limited by the life of his grantor. Morris v. Eddins, 18 C. A. 38, 44 S. W. 203.

A sale of a life estate does not terminate it where the title vested in the life tenant is not expressly made contingent on her occupancy or retention of title. Simonton v. White (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 269.

Under provisions of deed from father to his married daughter, conveying life estate to grantee with remainder in fee to her children, grantee could not alienate her life estate. Simonton v. White, 93 T. 50, 53 S. W. 339, 77 Am. St. Rep. 824.

After the death of the parties to a deed absolute in form and the lapse of nearly 60 years, presumptions in derogation of legal title conveyed thereby cannot be indulged. Laguerenne v. Farrar, 25 C. A. 404, 61 S. W. 953.

A deed conveyed land to a husband in trust to hold for the sole use of his wife for her life, and in trust to hold the remainder in fee for such persons as she might appoint by will or deed, with a provision giving her power of disposition during life, the proceeds to be invested in other property to be held to the same uses. Held, that she took but a life estate, with a general power of appointment. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

A life estate is not enlarged because it is coupled with a general power of appointment. Id.

A deed construed, and held, that one acquired but a life estate. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917, rehearing denied Id., 1167.

—— Vested remainder.—A deed to a husband provided that he should hold the legal title as trustee for his wife during her life, "and in trust to hold the remainder thereof in fee for such persons as she may appoint either by will or deed, and in default of such appointment, then for her children." Held, that the children took a vested remainder. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

A deed held to create a vested remainder. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917, rehearing denied Id., 1167.

—— Limitation to heirs, issue, etc.—In a deed to a person for the term of his natural life, and at his death to his lawful issue forever, the words "lawful issue" thus employed are words of purchase and not of limitation. Hancock v. Butler, 21 T. 804. See Tendick v. Evetts, 38 T. 275.

By the common law, when a person takes an estate of freehold under a deed, will or other writing, with a limitation in the instrument by way of remainder of an interest of the same quantity to his heirs or the heirs of his body, as a class of persons to take in succession, the limitation to the heirs entitles the ancestor to the whole estate. Hawkins v. Lee, 22 T. 544; O'Brien v. Hilburn, 22 T. 616.

The word "heirs" denotes a class of persons who take by succession from generation to generation. Brooks v. Evetts, 33 T. 732.

A deed conveying property to certain grantees, their "heirs and assigns," construed to grant a fee in the use of the word "assigns." Johnson v. Morton, 28 C. A. 296, 67 S. W. 790.

The granting clause of a deed was to the grantor's son H. and to his "heirs," "on the terms and conditions hereafter stated," the habendum clause to H. and his "heirs," the special warranty to H. and his "heirs," and the "terms and conditions hereafter stated" were: "The intention * * * is to vest sufficient title in * * * H. to the * * * property so that he can, during his life, use, occupy, and enjoy it * * * as completely as though he had a fee simple, and at his death his children are to have a fee-simple title. Should * * * H. die without issue, then the title * * * is to revert in us * * * if we are living; if we are not living, then according to the descent and distribution laws * * * such of our heirs are to receive and have the same title as he gets, and whoever inherits said property hereafter shall have a fee-simple title." Held, that the rule in Shelley's Case did not apply, so as to vest the fee in H.; it appearing from the subsequent terms and conditions referred to in the granting clause, and which are to be read as if incorporated in it, that the word "heirs" therein is used, not in its legal sense, but in the sense of "children" or "issue" of H. living at his death, who are to take by purchase, as remaindermen. Judgment (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 673, reversed. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 103 T. 15, 122 S. W. 15.

The words "children" and "issue" in a deed will not be read as meaning "heirs," where not to do so will carry into effect the lawful intention of the grantor that the grantee take only a life estate, and his children living at his death the remainder; while to do so would defeat such intention. Id.

The rule in Shelley's Case is a rule of property in Texas. Cottrell v. Moreman (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 124.

Under this statute a devise to an adopted child "to have and to hold to him * * * and his lawfully begotten children" is a devise in fee; the will having been executed by an illiterate person and drawn by one unlearned in the law. Winfree v. Winfree (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 36.

Rule in Shelley's Case held not to apply to a conveyance to a grantee and to her heirs by direct line of descent, with remainder to such heirs, so that the grantee took only a life estate. Vaughn v. Pearce (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 171.

Where a deed conveyed land to a person for her natural life, with remainder to the heirs of her body and a limitation over in default of issue under the rule in Shelley's Case, she took a fee-simple title absolutely in the land. Peters v. Rice (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1181.

—— Conditional limitations.—A conditional limitation in a deed is valid. Lockridge v. McCommon, 90 T. 234, 38 S. W. 33.

The distinction between estate on limitation and one on condition, stated. Diamond v. Rotan (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 196.

Accrual of cause of action by remaindermen.—Where the holder of a life estate has sold the lands, the remaindermen cannot sue to recover the land sold until the tenant's death. Simonton v. White (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 269.

Exceptions and reservations.—Where a deed reserving streets in certain land belonging to a city is a link in the chain of title, though not a necessary link, the city is bound by the reservation. Such deed is admissible to show the reservation without producing the power of attorney under which it was executed. The city cannot object to a want of power in the attorney to make the reservation. Waco Bridge Co. v. City of Waco, 85 T. 320, 20 S. W. 137.

Recital in a deed held not to nullify a prior reservation of a tract contracted to be sold to another. Bartell v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 631.

A grantor held estopped to claim certain interest in land excepted in deed; the exception being repugnant to the grant. McDaniel v. Puckett (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1007.

Written defeasance, accompanying deed, construed, and held to recognize entire title, and not merely half interest in grantor. Turner v. Cochran, 30 C. A. 549, 70 S. W. 1024.

Conditions and restrictions.—Under the law of Mexico a bequest to one without power of alienation, or with limitation over to another, conveyed an absolute estate to the grantee, the fidei-commissary substitution being void. Gortario v. Cantu, 7 T. 35; Bufford v. Holliman, 10 T. 560, 60 Am. Dec. 223.

Deceased by will bequeathed to his son certain real estate, with the restriction that up to the age of twenty-five years he should only have the right to dispose of the revenue thereof, without the right to incumber or sell the property. In case the son died before reaching the age of twenty-five years the property should pass free from all charges to the daughter of deceased. The son mortgaged the property and died before arriving at the age of twenty-five years. Held, that under the sale of the property in satisfaction of the mortgage after the death of the son the purchaser acquired no title. Laval v. Staffel, 64 T. 370.

A parent, aged and infirm, conveyed by warranty deed real estate to her son and grandson, the expressed consideration being that the grantees should pay to her annually, in quarterly instalments, a designated sum for her support, and if not paid it should be lawful, whenever the grantor elected to do so, to take possession of the granted premises, and enjoy the property "as in her former estate." The grantees also signed the instrument, which contained a covenant for the payment of the instalments. The parent died after the first instalment fell due, and which was not paid. Held, 1st, the payment of the instalments was a condition subsequent, enforcible at the option of the grantor; 2d, the grantor having died without having claimed a forfeiture, the title remained with the grantees, subject to the payment to the estate of the instalment past due. Berryman v. Schumaker, 67 T. 312, 3 S. W. 46.

Deed made in consideration of support of grantor during life, reserving a vendor's lien and the right of grantor to live on and use the land during his life. If agreements complied with, fee to vest in grantee. Held an estate upon condition, and upon breach trespass to try title will lie. Mistreatment of grantor a breach. Alford v. Alford, 1 C. A. 245, 21 S. W. 283.

As to conditions subsequent in a deed conveying land, see Odessa Imp. Co. v. Dawson, 24 S. W. 576, 5 C. A. 487.

Right of forfeiture for breach of a condition subsequent held lost by failure to claim it for three years after breach. Jones v. McLain, 16 C. A. 305, 41 S. W. 714.

Provision in deed held to constitute a condition subsequent, requiring re-entry to enforce forfeiture. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ennis-Calvert Compress Co., 23 C. A. 441, 56 S. W. 367.

Re-entry by corporation for breach of condition subsequent held not to effect reversion of title to grantor. Id.

Where a deed provides that property conveyed shall be used solely for a certain purpose, to revert if not so used, use thereof for a purpose in addition to that specified held not to work a forfeiture of the title. Gleghorn v. Smith, 26 C. A. 187, 62 S. W. 1096.

Where realty is conveyed on condition subsequent, and the condition is complied with the grantor cannot complain of an abandonment of the property and the intrusion of a trespasser. Maddox v. Adair (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 811.

Where a grantor conveys property for a school, and has not objected to the school established, he cannot claim a forfeiture after the discontinuance of the school, on the ground that the grantees failed to establish the school required by the condition. Id.

Where a grantor conveys realty for the maintenance of a school to increase the value of adjacent property, he cannot insist on a forfeiture, after the school has been maintained until he has disposed of his adjacent property. Id.

Title held not to revert to the grantor on failure to perform certain covenants constituting a part of the consideration for a deed. Elliott v. Elliott, 50 C. A. 272, 109 S. W. 215, 1142.

Where the agreement of a son to care for and support his father during life in payment for land conveyed to him was made in good faith, the deed will not be set aside because the son subsequently changed his mind and failed or refused to perform such agreement; such conduct not amounting to legal fraud. Selari v. Selari (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 997.

A deed to trustees of a collegiate institute, which provides that a presbytery shall incorporate and perpetually operate a college by duly appointed trustees, that, in the event the presbytery fails to incorporate and to furnish a principal in the college free of charge to the local patrons thereof for five consecutive years, the property conveyed shall revert to the grantor, but, in the event that the presbytery shall incorporate and perpetually maintain the college, the grantor binds himself to defend the title, etc., contains only two express conditions of absolute forfeiture of the interest conveyed, consisting of the failure of the presbytery to incorporate and of the failure to furnish free a principal in the college for five consecutive years, and a subsequent abandonment of the college and failure to continuously maintain a school does not operate to forfeit the estate conveyed; the provision relating to that subject being a covenant. Glen Rose Collegiate Institute v. Glen Rose Independent School Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 125 S. W 379.

If there is a limitation clause in a deed which is irreconcilable with its consistent granting, habendum, and warranty clauses, it should be rejected, and the intention of the parties determined from the other clauses. Burgess v. McCommas (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 382.

Where plaintiff contracted to sell land to defendant, defendant agreeing to erect a building to cost a specified amount within a certain time, but the deed made in pursuance of the contract was silent as to the building but retained a vendor's lien for the price, the agreement to build was a covenant, and not a condition subsequent, and hence plaintiff's remedy for a breach was an action for damages, and not for cancellation. Harris v. Rather (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 754.

Apt and appropriate words must be used or a right of re-entry reserved, to create a condition in a deed, breach of which will work a forfeiture. Id.

Where a deed was absolute on its face, title would not revert on the grantee's failure to perform consideration covenants. Odom v. Odom (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 900.

Where a deed is absolute on its face, agreements by the grantee to support the grantor for life and pay her a specified sum are covenants only, and a failure to perform them will not alone authorize the cancellation of the deed. Chambers v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 864.

A provision in the habendum clause of a deed that the property was to be held so long as used for gin and mill purposes was a conditional limitation and not strictly a condition subsequent. McBride v. Farmers' & Merchants' Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1135.

The assignee of the grantor in a deed containing a conditional limitation could, upon a breach of this condition, maintain an action of trespass to try title and for the possession of the land covered by such deed. Id.

Enlargement of lesser grant into fee.—When land is charged with a trust which cannot be performed, or where a will directs an act to be done which cannot be accomplished, unless a greater estate than the one for life be taken, the devise will be enlarged to a fee. Bell County v. Alexander, 22 T. 350, 73 Am. Dec. 268.

The court will enlarge the estate taken by a trustee into a fee-simple estate if that be necessary to enable him to execute the trust, though the trust deed contains no words of inheritance. Montgomery v. Trueheart (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 284.

Trust charged on land.—See notes under Art. 1103.

Notice.—When by the recitals in recorded deeds in the chain of title it appears that a resulting trust exists in favor of parties not named, the purchaser is put upon inquiry. Montgomery v. Noyes, 73 T. 203, 11 S. W. 138.

Covenants.—See notes under Arts. 1108, 1112, and 1113.

Art. 1107. [628] [552] Form of conveyance.—The following form, or the same in substance, shall be sufficient as a conveyance of the fee simple of any real estate with a covenant of general warranty, viz.:

"The State of Texas,

"County of ————.

"Know all men by these presents, that I, ———, of the ——— [give name of city, town or county], in the state aforesaid, for and in consideration of ——— dollars, to me in hand paid by ———, have granted, sold and conveyed, and by these presents do grant, sell and convey unto the said ———, of the [give name of city, town or county], in the state of ———, all that certain [describe the premises]. To have and to hold the above described premises, together with all and singular the rights and appurtenances thereto in any wise belonging, unto the said ———, his heirs or assigns forever. And I do hereby bind myself, my heirs, executors and administrators to warrant and forever defend all and singular the said premises unto the said ———, his heirs and assigns, against every person whomsoever, lawfully claiming or to claim the same, or any part thereof.

"Witness my hand, this ——— day of ———, A. D. 19—.

"Signed and delivered in the presence of ———— ————."

1. Form in general.—Execution sale, see Title 25, Chapter 23.

Deed to or by county, see Arts. 1369, 1370; by executor or administrator, Art. 3514; execution sale, Title 54; by guardian, Title 64, Chapter 12; by sheriff, Art. 3514; by collector of taxes, Art. 7639; by improvement districts, Title 83, Chapter 2.

A deed in which a blank is left for the name of the grantee, and delivered to another with authority to fill the blank with the name of the purchaser, will, when the name of the grantee is inserted, operate as a conveyance. McCown v. Wheeler, 20 T. 372; Viser v. Rice, 33 T. 139; Threadgill v. Butler, 60 T. 599; Dean v. Blount, 71 T. 270, 9 S. W. 168.

Conveyance beyond grantor's interest.—A conveyance by the grantor of all his right, title and interest in land purchased from a named grantor, as it may more fully appear by a legal transfer of the same, is valid. Smith v. Westall, 76 T. 509, 13 S. W. 540; Harris v. Broiles (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 421; Clopper v. Saye, 14 C. A. 296, 37 S. W. 363.

An instrument describing lands and signed by a party, which had in its beginning and other parts the formal portions of a deed, but is without a habendum clause, which acknowledged the receipt of the consideration without stating from whom, which described land, but failed to state for what purpose and to designate a vendee, is not a deed. Wright v. Lancaster, 48 T. 250. See Taylor v. Taul, 88 T. 665, 32 S. W. 866.

In a petition the grantee in a patent was named "B. F. R." Deeds for the land, describing it as in the patent, named the patentee "B. R. R." The variance was immaterial. Richardson v. Powell, 83 T. 588, 19 S. W. 262.

A recorded instrument, executed by the record owner of land, stating that one A. is an equal owner of the land, and empowering him to sell and convey one-half of the same, is admissible in trespass to try title by the heirs of A. against persons who merely rely upon their possession. Wallace v. Pruitt, 20 S. W. 728, 1 C. A. 231.

Bishop of Catholic Church; conveyance to, for benefit of church, vests title in him. Gabert v. Olcott (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 286.

An assignment of a deed for land and a relinquishment of all the privileges thereunto belonging operates as a conveyance. Threadgill v. Bickerstaff, 26 S. W. R. 739, 7 C. A. 406.

Where the name of the grantee does not appear in the deed it may be shown by the recitals in the deed. Vineyard v. O'Connor, 90 T. 59, 36 S. W. 424.

Instrument creating lien held not to convey title to grantee. Hardy v. Brown (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 385.

A deed from Anton Metzzer is not admissible to prove title in plaintiff who claims through Anton Metzger. Mattfield v. Cotton, 19 C. A. 595, 47 S. W. 549.

It is sufficient to describe the grantees in a deed as the heirs of certain persons. Hill v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 357.

A deed, signed by the grantor as "Owen, Mullins & Co., by H., Agent," does not disclose on its face that it was executed by a firm. Harris v. Bryson & Hartgrove, 34 C. A. 532, 80 S. W. 105.

The fact that the grantor in a deed is described as "Sr." in the acknowledgment and does not add that appendage to his name in signing the deed held immaterial. Kane v. Sholars, 41 C. A. 154, 90 S. W. 937.

A deed to "An R." is good as a deed to "Ann R." Phillips v. Palmer, 56 C. A. 91, 120 S. W. 911.

A written instrument which in consideration of sincere friendship vests the grantee "and family with power to keep, hold, possess, occupy, cultivate and to retain and to bar and to exclude all persons from one certain place or improvement made by" the grantor "on a certain tract or parcel of land, known as," etc., "having bargained with" D. "for the purchase of said place" and with power "in case of extreme need" to sell "said improvement and to sign" the grantor's name, only authorized the grantee to sell the improvements on the land, and did not attempt to pass the land. Rushing v. Lanier (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 528.

2. Private seals.—See Title 121.

3. Deed or will.—See note under Art. 1111.

4. Deed or executory contract.—A deed which purports to convey immediately the title, but expressly reserves the lien to secure the payment of the purchase money, is an executory contract. Upon default the vendor may elect to enforce the contract of sale by suit for the purchase money, or to repudiate the agreement and recover the land. Summerhill v. Hanner, 72 T. 224, 9 S. W. 881.

A transfer of a land certificate and of the land to be located thereby is an executory contract to be enforced within ten years. A sale of located land before patent conveys the legal title thereto, although the patent issues to the original owner. Rankin v. Busby (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 678, citing Adams v. House, 61 T. 641; Johnson v. Newman, 43 T. 642; Daniel v. Bridges, 73 T. 150, 11 S. W. 121; Lindsay v. Freeman, 83 T. 263, 18 S. W. 727; Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495; Howard v. Stubblefield, 79 T. 3, 14 S. W. 1044; Frost v. Wolf, 77 T. 458, 14 S. W. 440, 19 Am. St. Rep. 761; Fuller v. Coddington, 74 T. 337, 12 S. W. 47; Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 T. 1, 13 S. W. 300.

A deed absolute in form, but reserving the vendor's lien for the purchase money, evidences an executory contract, which the grantor may rescind on default in payment of the purchase money. Graham v. West (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 920.

An instrument in form of a deed held an executory contract. Taylor v. Taul, 88 T. 665, 32 S. W. 866.

An instrument declaring that the sole owners in fee of the land "hereinafter conveyed," as the sole surviving heirs of H., to whom the land was patented, appointed G. & Co. attorneys in fact to recover the land, they to bear all expenses incident thereto in consideration of which, they sold and conveyed to G. & Co. an undivided one-third of such land to have and to hold unto the said G. & Co., their heirs and assigns forever, etc., is a present conveyance of the one-third interest in the land, and not a mere executory contract calling for a conveyance of an interest in lands thereafter to be recovered by G. & Co. Wadsworth v. Groom (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1156.

A deed absolute on its face cannot be construed as a contract for a contingent interest in the land, in the absence of evidence of a contract different from that imported by the terms of the deed. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

5. Deed, mortgage, or conditional sale.—In a suit by husband and wife to establish as a mortgage a deed absolute on its face, which was executed and delivered by them conveying the property of the wife, the real intent of the husband and wife at the time of executing the deed, which was not completed until its delivery, and the intent with which the instrument was received by the party named as vendee, must govern. If it was delivered and received with an intention and understanding between the parties that it should only be a security for a debt, such is its character, whatever contrary intention the husband and the vendees may have had prior to the delivery of the deed. And if the husband represented to the wife that the instrument should be only a mortgage, and she, relying upon such representation, executed the deed with that understanding, and it was afterwards delivered by the husband to the vendees, they having knowledge of the wife's understanding and intention, it will be a mortgage only. Davis v. Brewster, 59 T. 93.

Where a deed was executed for the purpose of securing the payment of a debt, the grantee who sold the land conveyed was compelled to pay the grantor the proceeds of the sale in excess of the debt due. Wiseman v. Baylor, 69 T. 63, 6 S. W. 743.

A deed absolute in form may be shown to be a mortgage. Gray v. Shelby, 83 T. 405, 18 S. W. 809.

A plaintiff seeking to have a deed absolute in form declared a mortgage should offer to do equity by offering to pay the debt secured by the mortgage, the existence of which he asserts. Bateson v. Choate, 85 T. 239, 20 S. W. 64.

A deed absolute in form, but given to secure a subsisting debt, is a mortgage. Lapowski v. Smith, 20 S. W. 957, 1 C. A. 391.

An instrument in the form of a deed may be shown by parol evidence to be in fact a mortgage as between the parties. Hawkins v. Willard (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 365.

Instruments constituting mortgage, see Williamson v. Huffman, 19 C. A. 314, 47 S. W. 276; Jefferies v. Hartel (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 653; Blake v. Lowry, 43 C. A. 17, 93 S. W. 521; Robinson v. State, 63 Cr. R. 212, 139 S. W. 978; Hume v. Le Compte, 142 S. W. 934.

Where property is conveyed, and the vendee immediately assumes obligations for the erection of a building thereon, and reconveys the property to the original owner, and takes his note for the price of the house, and reserves a vendor's lien, the conveyance and reconveyance constitute a mortgage to secure the payment of the notes. West End Town Co. v. Griggs, 93 T. 451, 56 S. W. 49.

Where the owners of land gave a deed thereof to one who had made advances to them, and the premises were redeeded, notes being given for the amount of the advances and a vendor's lien reserved, the transaction amounted to a mortgage. Butler v. Carter (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 632.

Where a son without consideration conveys land to his father, who, to secure a debt of the son, conveys to the creditor, who executes a contract to reconvey on payment of the debt, the transaction is a mortgage. Schultze v. Schultze (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

A deed, executed as a mortgage, cannot be converted into a deed by a subsequent parol agreement. Keller v. Kirby, 34 C. A. 404, 79 S. W. 82.

An absolute deed and a separate agreement to reconvey amount to a conditional sale. Goodbar & Co. v. Bloom, 43 C. A. 434, 96 S. W. 657.

Ordinarily the test of whether a transaction is a mortgage or a sale with a contract to repurchase is the existence of a debt. Hall v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 489.

Whether a conveyance of a business homestead is an absolute deed, or a mortgage which would be void, does not depend on the intention of the grantor and his wife, regardless of the grantee's intent. Nagle v. Simmank, 54 C. A. 432, 116 S. W. 862.

Where it is in doubt whether an instrument, given to secure a debt, is a mortgage or a conditional sale, equity will regard it as a mortgage. Moorhead v. Ellison, 56 C. A. 444, 120 S. W. 1049; Hume v. Le Compte (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 934.

An absolute deed given for a pre-existing debt will be held a mortgage, unless the debt to the extent of the consideration is extinguished and the evidence surrendered. Harrison v. Hogue (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 118.

That the grantor in an absolute deed understood it to be a mortgage is insufficient to establish the fact. Id.

A deed absolute on its face is a mortgage if from all the circumstances such was the intention of the parties. Id.

The assessment and payment of taxes by a mortgagee under a mortgage in the form of a deed would not change the mortgage into a deed. Hume v. Le Compte (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 934.

A conditional sale of property with the right to repurchase, but without any indebtedness or obligation on the part of the vendor to repay the purchase money, is not a mortgage. Parks v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 704.

6. —— Evidence.—A deed held not a mortgage. Richardson v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 248; Muckelroy v. House, 21 C. A. 673, 52 S. W. 1038; Focke v. Buchanan (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 820; Pumilia v. De George (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 813; Rotan Grocery Co. v. Turner, 46 C. A. 534, 102 S. W. 932; Middleton v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 789; Stringfellow v. Braselton, 54 C. A. 1, 117 S. W. 204; Elliott v. Morris, 49 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 209.

In the absence of anything to the contrary, an instrument purporting to pass an absolute title is a deed. Kirby v. National Loan & Investment Co., 22 C. A. 257, 54 S. W. 1081.

A deed held a mortgage. Hall v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 489; Moorhead v. Ellison, 56 C. A. 444, 120 S. W. 1049; Yates v. Caswell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 914; O'Neill v. O'Neill (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 729; Harrison v. Hogue (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 118; Parker v. Bushong (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 281.

The evidence to show that a deed, absolute in form, was intended as a mortgage, must be clear, unequivocal, and satisfactory. Harrison v. Hogue (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 118.

7. —— Estates and interests of parties.—When legal and equitable title are merged in assignee of mortgage, he may sue for the debt, but the land is the primary fund. Harris v. Masterson, 91 T. 171, 41 S. W. 482.

The title to mortgaged land remains in the mortgagor. Denison & P. Suburban Ry. Co. v. Smith, 19 C. A. 114, 47 S. W. 278; Galloway v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 180; Ferguson v. Dickinson, 138 S. W. 221; Burks v. Burks, 141 S. W. 337.

In foreclosure of an unregistered mortgage against a subsequent purchaser, he is not entitled to have his vendor brought in to answer in damages for false representations as to title. Oak Cliff College for Young Ladies v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 610.

Under an absolute deed given as security, the legal title is vested in the grantee so as to entitle him to exercise all the rights of an absolute owner against everyone except the grantor. Frazer v. Seureau (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 649.

At common law a mortgage conveyed the legal title and the right of possession, and nothing was left to the mortgagor except the right of redemption. Barron v. San Angelo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 142.

The rights of parties under a mortgage in the form of an absolute deed held the same as under an ordinary mortgage. Hume v. Le Compte (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 934.

8. Deed or bond for title.—A bond for title is an instrument which evidences the contract for the sale of lands, and is substantially an agreement by the vendor to make to the vendee a title to the land. When the purchase money is paid it vests in the purchaser an equitable title sufficient to enable him to recover and defend the possession in any action wherein his right to the possession may be drawn in question. It is superior to the legal title of the vendor, and a court of equity will compel a specific performance by decreeing a conveyance by the vendor of the legal title. Vardeman v. Lawson, 17 T. 10.

Deed distinguished from a bond for title to land. Peterson v. McCauley (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 826.

9. Quitclaim.—As to the effect of a quitclaim deed, see post, art. 6828 and the following cases: Rodgers v. Burchard, 34 T. 441, 7 Am. Rep. 283; James v. Drake, 39 T. 143; Carter v. Wise, 39 T. 273; Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153; Zimpelman v. Robb, 53 T. 274; Thorn v. Newsom, 64 T. 161, 53 Am. Rep. 747; Harrison v. Boring, 44 T. 255; Taylor v. Harrison, 47 T. 454, 26 Am. Rep. 304; Renick v. Dawson, 55 T. 102; Tate v. Kramer, 23 S. W. 255, 1 C. A. 427.

An instrument purporting to convey property, and not simply the grantor's title or claim thereto, is not a quitclaim deed. Richards v. Levi, 67 T. 360, 3 S. W. 444; Garrett v. Christopher, 74 T. 453, 12 S. W. 67, 15 Am. St. Rep. 850; Abernathy v. Stone, 81 T. 430, 16 S. W. 1102; Lindsay v. Freeman, 83 T. 259, 18 S. W. 727; Dycus v. Hart, 2 C. A. 367, 21 S. W. 299; Finch v. Trent, 3 C. A. 568, 22 S. W. 132; 24 S. W. 679; Stanley v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 601.

The use of the word "quitclaim" does not restrict the conveyance, if other language employed in the instrument indicates the intention to convey the land itself. Garrett v. Christopher, 74 T. 453, 12 S. W. 67, 15 Am. St. Rep. 850.

Where a deed purports to convey in the name of the one who makes it, and does not recite any agency, it may be held to pass whatever right the party had, whether as agent or principal. Bennett v. Virginia Land & Cattle Co., 1 C. A. 321, 21 S. W. 126.

A deed conveying the grantor's right, title, interest and claim only is a mere quitclaim. Daugherty v. Yates, 13 C. A. 646, 35 S. W. 937; Hunter v. Eastham, 95 T. 648, 69 S. W. 66; Slaughter v. Coke County, 34 C. A. 598, 79 S. W. 863; Breen v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 650; Smith v. Cook, 142 S. W. 26; Schmittou v. Dunham, 142 S. W. 941.

A quitclaim deed purporting to be given only to release a vendor's lien held to convey other lands described, which had not previously been sold, and on which there was no vendor's lien. Sanborn v. Crowdus Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 444.

A quitclaim deed construed, in connection with a prior deed between the same parties, and held, that the quitclaim did not operate to convey certain lots included therein by mistake. Sanborn v. Crowdus Bros. & Co., 100 T. 605, 102 S. W. 719.

A deed stating the names of the grantors, all of whom were recited to be the heirs of M., declared that they had sold and quitclaimed unto the grantee all their interest in the land described, followed by a recital that, whereas one of the grantors was still a minor, the others bound themselves, their heirs, etc., to forever warrant and defend the premises against any claim that such minor, or any one for him, might set up to the described premises; it being expressly understood that the warranty only extends to any claim by or for the minor grantor. Held, that the deed was not a mere quitclaim conveying a mere chance of title, but conveyed the land described. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

A release held not to have the effect of quitclaiming lands. Beaty v. Thos. Goggan & Bro. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 631.

10. Innocent purchasers.—See note under Art. 1104.

11. Alteration.—Where the original deed shows interlineations on its face, the date when they were made, and whether they were fraudulently made or not, are questions for the consideration of the jury; the transfer and record thereof being more than thirty years old. McWhirter v. Allen, 1 C. A. 649, 20 S. W. 1007.

Interlineation of a clause in a deed of trust after execution, without the maker's consent, held to materially change the contract of the parties and invalidate the deed. Kalteyer v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 462.

12. Recital of consideration.—It seems that the recital of a consideration is not necessary to the validity of a deed. Baker v. Westcott, 73 T. 129, 11 S. W. 157.

A recital in a deed as to its consideration is prima facie evidence on the question. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1089, reversing judgment on rehearing (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 810.

13. Recitals as to parties.—A deed perfect in every respect except that the name of the grantee was not inserted, the purchaser having been authorized to fill the blank to himself or another, was held to be sufficient. Threadgill v. Butler, 60 T. 599; McCown v. Wheeler, 20 T. 372; Viser v. Rice, 33 T. 139.

A deed to a married woman by her name previous to her marriage, her identity being shown, is valid to convey the land. Wilkerson v. Schoonmaker, 77 T. 615, 14 S. W. 223, 19 Am. St. Rep. 803.

In equity a deed made to or by a partnership in the firm name will pass the title to land. Frost v. Wolf, 77 T. 455, 14 S. W. 440, 19 Am. St. Rep. 761.

A deed by partners to a corporation of which they are the only stockholders passes title to the corporation. Sayers v. T. L. & M. Co., 78 T. 244, 14 S. W. 578.

A deed in which the grantee is not designated is void. Nolte v. Meyer, 79 T. 351, 15 S. W. 276.

Where a deed purports to convey in the name of one who makes it, and does not recite any agency, it may nevertheless be held to pass whatever right the person making it had to convey, whether an agent or principal. Bennett v. Land & Cattle Co., 1 C. A. 321, 21 S. W. 126.

Separate property, created by deed with covenants of warranty, and acknowledging a valuable consideration; such deed not avoided by the fact that the husband had not finished paying for the land. Swearingen v. Reed, 21 S. W. 383, 2 C. A. 364.

Sale and delivery of deed with blanks for grantee and consideration, with authority to grantee to fill up, with delivery of deed by grantee to another with blanks unfilled, and possession by such grantee and his heirs, is sufficient to authorize heirs of second grantee to recover against privies of first grantor. Runge v. Schleicher (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 423.

Where a married woman whose name did not appear in a deed as grantor signed, and acknowledged the same, the deed was held to be inoperative. Stone v. Sledge, 26 S. W. 1068, 87 T. 49, 47 Am. St. Rep. 65. See Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 460.

The body of a deed described the grantors as "Francisco Balli" and "Toniasita Garzas," his wife. The names signed to the deed, however, were "Franco Balli y Cabasos," and "Tomasita Garza," both signing by mark. The deed was properly acknowledged by the wife as "Tomasita Garza," whom the officer certified to be the wife of "Franco Balli y Cabasos," parties to the deed, but was not acknowledged by the husband. It was shown that "Franco" was an ordinary abbreviation for "Francisco," and that "y Cabasos" was used to denote that the mother of the person was named "Cabasos." Held, that the variance in the names was not fatal to the deed. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

Where a deed recited that the grantor, in consideration of $600 to him in hand paid, the receipt whereof was thereby acknowledged by F., did thereby bargain, sell, and guarantee the title to a specified parcel of land, the title to which the grantor guaranteed he would forever defend against all claims whatsoever to F., his heirs and assigns, etc., it sufficiently indicated that F. was the grantee. Snow v. Gallup, 57 C. A. 572, 123 S. W. 222.

14. Construction.—Every part of the deed should be given effect to if this can be done; but if conflicting intentions are apparent on its face, the object of the grant being considered, effect shall be given to what may appear to be the controlling object of the grantor. Pugh v. Mays, 60 T. 191.

An apparent repugnancy of the provisions of a deed should be reconciled by giving effect to the manifest purpose of the grantor. Cravens v. White, 73 T. 577, 11 S. W. 543, 15 Am. St. Rep. 803.

When there is a repugnance between a general and particular description in a deed the latter will control, unless the real intent can be gathered from the whole description. Cullers v. Platt, 81 T. 258, 16 S. W. 1003.

The field notes in a deed must be construed in their entirety, so as to give effect to all of the parts thereof. Chew v. Zweib, 29 C. A. 311, 69 S. W. 207.

Any mistake in the description contained in the deed should be corrected, and the same made to conform to the intention of the parties. Laufer v. Moppins, 44 C. A. 472, 99 S. W. 109.

Recitals in a deed concerning former conveyances are evidence of the facts stated and sufficient prima facie to establish them. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

The language of a deed must be construed against the grantors, in favor of the grantee, to convey the largest estate which the language can be construed to pass. Id.

Deeds should be construed so as to give effect when possible to the intent of the parties. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

A deed must be construed most strongly against the grantor, and forfeitures of the estate conveyed are not favored, and, where a deed is susceptible of any reasonable construction that will avoid a forfeiture, that construction will be adopted. Glen Rose Collegiate Institute v. Glen Rose Independent School Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 379.

If from the whole instrument there be a doubt whether or not grantor intended to convey land or his right to it, it becomes a question of fact to be determined from attending circumstances. (Civ. App.) Breen v. Morehead, 126 S. W. 650, judgment affirmed 104 T. 254, 136 S. W. 1047.

In the construction of a deed, all parts must be considered together, and its different clauses should not be construed as repugnant, if, by any reasonable interpretation, they can be reconciled so as to give effect to each. Burgess v. McCommas (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 382.

In the construction of deeds, the inquiry must be confined to the intention of the parties as gathered from the deed, and, where the description of property contained in a deed is intelligible, its effect cannot be changed or varied by construction, although it is plain that the terms or description used were not intended. Wadsworth v. Vinyard (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1171.

Where the parties to a conveyance of land have reduced their contract to writing in the form of a deed, the deed is to be taken, in the absence of fraud or mistake, as the final expression of their intention. Id.

Where a railroad company prepares right of way deeds which were thus signed by the grantors, they are to be most strictly construed against the grantee. Gladys City Oil, Gas & Mfg. Co. v. Right of Way Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 171.

In construing a deed the intent of the parties as shown by the instrument prevails, unless contrary to a rule of law. Morse's Heirs v. Williams (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1186.

The estate conveyed by a bill of sale is not enlarged by an inconsistent or repugnant habendum or warranty clause. Carter v. Clark & Boice Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 278.

A deed which is not attacked for fraud, accident, or mistake should be construed according to its terms. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

Where there is a repugnance between a general and a particular description, the latter controls; but, whenever possible, the real intention is to be gathered from the whole description. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 885.

A clause will not be given effect so repugnant to a deed as to destroy it. Martin v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 156.

The entire deed should be read in such a way as to harmonize all its parts, if possible, and to give it that interpretation most nearly in keeping with the real intention of the parties. Id.

15. Property conveyed.—A conveyance of lands is valid when it describes the lands with sufficient certainty to enable the vendee to identify them by the aid of extraneous evidence. Camley v. Stanfield, 10 T. 546, 60 Am. Dec. 219; Lohff v. Germer, 37 T. 578; Kingston v. Pickins, 46 T. 99; Ragsdale v. Robinson, 48 T. 379; Wilson v. Smith, 50 T. 365; Norris v. Hunt, 51 T. 609; Rainbolt v. March, 52 T. 246; Steinbeck v. Stone, 53 T. 382; Bowles v. Beal, 60 T. 322; Brown v. Chambers, 63 T. 131. See post, art. 1110; Berry v. Wright, 14 T. 270; McKinzie v. Stafford, 8 C. A. 121, 27 S. W. 790; Bratton v. Adams, 7 C. A. 161, 26 S. W. 1108; Hodges v. Ross, 25 S. W. 975, 6 C. A. 437.

A falsity in the description does not vitiate the deed when from the whole the land conveyed may be ascertained certainly. Berry v. Wright, 14 T. 270.

Where land in a deed is described by number of acres, grant and county, and the grantor owned, at the date of his grant, that or a less number of acres, the deed will convey the land, such facts being shown. When a larger number of acres is owned than that granted, the grantee becomes by the deed a co-owner or tenant in common with right of selection or partition. Flanagan v. Boggess, 46 T. 335; Wofford v. McKinna, 23 T. 36, 76 Am. Dec. 53; Kilpatrick v. Sisneros, 23 T. 136; Ragsdale v. Robinson, 48 T. 379; Kingston v. Pickins, 46 T. 99; Wilson v. Smith, 50 T. 369; Norris v. Hunt, 51 T. 614; Rainbolt v. March, 52 T. 246; Davenport v. Chilton, 25 T. 519; Pressley v. Testard, 29 T. 201; Early v. Sterrett, 18 T. 116; Berry v. Wright, 14 T. 270; Blackburn v. McDonald, 1 U. C. 355.

Description of land in a deed locating it in such manner that running one line will designate it and set it apart, and there is only one part of the survey where it could be so designated, is sufficient. Fletcher v. Ellison, 1 U. C. 661; Hubbard v. Cox, 76 T. 239, 13 S. W. 170.

The granting clause of a deed recited that the grantor bargained, sold, etc., the entire and undivided one-half of "all his lands in Texas." After describing several tracts in Texas owned by the grantor, it continued: "as well as all my lands or right to land of any kind and description, whether legal or equitable, in the state of Texas, or in any counties of such state." Held, that the deed was an evidence of an undivided one-half interest in all the grantor's land in this state. Witt v. Harlan, 66 T. 660, 2 S. W. 41.

Where the description in the deed given of the property to be conveyed is general in the granting clause, and is immediately followed in the same clause by an exception, which points out the particular property which is to be excluded from the grant, there is no repugnancy. When one purchased land, described in the deed in general terms as in the northeast corner of a larger tract, but also described by lines actually run by the surveyor and marked upon the ground, the actual survey must determine the locality of the land, and will control the general call for the unascertained corner of the larger tract. Koenigheim v. Miles, 67 T. 113, 2 S. W. 81.

A description of land contained in a deed is sufficient if it clearly designates the certificate by virtue of which the land was located and patented, and the deed on its face conveys all the land located and patented under that certificate. Bitner v. Land Co., 67 T. 341, 3 S. W. 301.

A defective description may be aided by reference to such other portions of the deed as make clear the specific property intended to be conveyed. If the deed refers to another instrument for further description, it is competent to resort to it to ascertain the location and description of the property sold. Cleveland v. Sims, 69 T. 153, 6 S. W. 634.

A deed conveying a town lot which describes it only by the length and breadth thereof, but which, in addition, designates the particular property by describing the improvements thereon, they being the only improvements of like character in the town, is sufficient. Harkey v. Cain, 69 T. 146, 6 S. W. 637.

A deed conveying many tracts of land attempted to convey land by the following description: "Three hundred and twenty-four acres, Milton Sweeney tract, in Polk county, valued at one hundred and seventy-one dollars." Held, that the description considered in connection with other deeds in the line of the claimant's title, which described more specifically the survey, sufficiently identified the land. Parrish v. Jackson, 69 T. 614, 7 S. W. 486.

When one who entered under a deed for a less quantity of land than 640 acres continues his possession until title is secured under the ten-year statute of limitations, the admission of the deed in evidence, which on its face is ambiguous as to the bounds of the land intended to be conveyed, becomes unimportant. Branch v. Baker, 70 T. 190, 7 S. W. 808.

The land was described as 200 acres, part of a designated league to be run off fronting 475 varas on the W. river and back for complement, field notes to be attached to the deed as a part thereof. Held, that the description was sufficiently certain, and the deed was not impaired as a recorded instrument by reason of the field notes not being attached. Nye v. Moody, 70 T. 434, 8 S. W. 606.

A deed referring to a patent accompanying it or to other well-known deeds, and conveying all the tract not disposed of, sufficiently, describes the land. Land Co. v. Chisholm, 71 T. 523, 9 S. W. 479; Steinbeck v. Stone, 53 T. 382; Hart v. McDade, 61 T. 208; Brown v. Chambers, 63 T. 135; Wright v. Lassiter, 71 T. 640, 10 S. W. 295.

A deed for "two hundred acres of land including improvements on Pophers' creek," where there is evidence showing two or more improvements upon the creek, does not sufficiently describe any land as a basis of recovery. Bullock v. Smith, 72 T. 545, 10 S. W. 687. See Polk v. Chaison, 72 T. 500, 10 S. W. 581.

The description of the land in the several deeds in the chain of title must substantially conform. Harkness v. Devine, 73 T. 628, 11 S. W. 872.

A description in a conveyance of an entire survey which designates the particular survey intended to be conveyed is sufficient. Snow v. Starr, 75 T. 411, 12 S. W. 673. See Williams v. Ellingsworth, 75 T. 480, 12 S. W. 746.

A deed for a designated number of acres of land, "more or less," is a conveyance of the land embraced in the description, and not a designated quantity. If a diminution in quantity results from a conflict in part between the land embraced in the calls and other land adversely held under superior title, and the purchaser seeks relief against his vendor, he must aver the facts in his pleading. Bellamy v. McCarthy, 75 T. 293, 12 S. W. 849.

A grant of "all that certain tract or parcel of land inherited from my deceased parents in the county of Brazoria, Texas," passes title to land shown to have been owned by the grantor's father at his death in that county. Smith v. Westall, 76 T. 509, 13 S. W. 540.

A description by which the land can be identified is sufficient. Westmoreland v. Carson, 76 T. 619, 13 S. W. 559; Henry v. Whitaker, 82 T. 5, 17 S. W. 509.

For questions of sufficiency of description in particular deeds, see McIlhenny v. Binz, 80 T. 1, 13 S. W. 655, 26 Am. St. Rep. 705; Munnink v. Jung, 22 S. W. 293, 3 C. A. 395. See Womack v. Slade (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 947; Herman v. Likens (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 981; Petrucio v. Gross (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 43; Arnall v. Newcom, 29 C. A. 521, 69 S. W. 92; Houston Oil Co. v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533, 124 S. W. 85, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 662; William Carlisle & Co. v. King (Sup.) 133 S. W. 241; affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 581, and rehearing denied (Sup.) 133 S. W. 864; Mitchell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 501; Hunt v. Wright (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1007; Noland v. Weems (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1031; Holman v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 885.

A deed conveying "a league granted to Mrs. Martha Baker by Talbot Chambers" is not void for uncertainty. Gresham v. Chambers, 80 T. 544, 16 S. W. 326.

An omitted call in the description of land may be supplied by reversing the calls. Brown v. McKee, 80 T. 594, 16 S. W. 435.

Land was conveyed to R. C. Co. of "Throckmorton county." A conveyance was offered by the R. C. Co. of "Shackelford county," signed by the president and secretary, with a seal bearing the words, "R. C. Co., Throckmorton county, Texas." In absence of testimony that there were two companies, it was presumed that there was a misnomer or misdescription, which would not defeat the conveyance. Ballard v. Carmichael, 83 T. 355, 18 S. W. 734.

A line of a survey is described as running "with the edge of the main high land and edge of the marsh." This controls a call for course and distance. Richardson v. Powell, 83 T. 588, 19 S. W. 262.

Deed conveying so many acres, to be selected by grantee out of a larger tract, is good. If grantee waives right to select, he may have his interest determined in partition instituted by other tenants. Dohoney v. Womack, 19 S. W. 883, 20 S. W. 950, 1 C. A. 354.

The recital of "more or less" does not preclude the vendee from showing a contemporaneous agreement for a sale by the acre where there is an allegation of fraud or mistake. Franco-Texan Land Co. v. Simpson, 20 S. W. 953, 1 C. A. 600; Wheeler v. Boyd, 69 T. 293, 6 S. W. 614.

A transfer describing the land conveyed as "one-half, or thirteen labors of land, of the headright certificate of the grantor, G. W. K., to one league and labor of land, No. 661, first class, issued by the board of land commissioners for Red River county, republic of Texas, the survey lying between Bois d'Arc and Caney, Fannin county, Texas," is not void for want of description, since it is evident that any uncertainty as to the identity of this land can be explained by extrinsic evidence. McWhirter v. Allen, 1 C. A. 649, 20 S. W. 1007.

"All that certain interest in the landed estates of H. and M., deceased, to which we are or may be entitled by gift, devise or descent, or otherwise," sufficient. Harris v. Broiles (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 421.

A deed conveying the "right, title and interest" of the grantor in a tract of land, with warranty against all claims, conveys the land and not merely the actual interest of the grantor. Lewis v. Terrell, 26 S. W. 754, 7 C. A. 314.

A deed of a certain number of acres out of a described tract conveys a proportionate undivided interest therein. Linnantz v. McCulloch (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 279.

A conveyance of a part of a tract of land is void for uncertainty; but it is valid if the part is designated or can be ascertained from the description. Curdy v. Stafford, 88 T. 120, 30 S. W. 550.

Description of land sufficient when its boundaries can be ascertained by calculation. Wells v. Heddenberg, 11 C. A. 3, 30 S. W. 702.

A conveyance including more land than the grantor owns conveys all that he has within the designated tract. Id.

It being shown that the grantor owned land in a named county, a conveyance of all the land owned by him in that county is sufficiently descriptive to pass the title. Brigham v. Thompson, 12 C. A. 562, 34 S. W. 358.

Description by chain of title with references to the county records, etc., held sufficient. Rankin v. McCarthy (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 979.

A deed which fails to identify land should be received in evidence when by the aid of extrinsic evidence the land conveyed can be identified. Hitchler v. Boyles, 21 C. A. 230, 51 S. W. 648.

Deed referring to prior deed for description held to convey tract as therein described, notwithstanding a reference to such tract as containing less land. Jordan v. Young (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 762.

Conveyance of all of grantor's unsold lands in a league named is sufficient description. Smith v. Clay (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 74.

Where 600 acres of land were reserved from a deed, an undivided interest amounting to 600 acres would be excepted, in the absence of evidence showing boundaries of the land reserved. Bartell v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 631.

Description of land as that conveyed and described in a previous deed held sufficient to vest title in the grantee. First Nat. Bank v. Hicks, 24 C. A. 269, 59 S. W. 842.

A deed describing the land conveyed as so many feet abutting on two streets held to be legally consistent with the true intent of the parties, as it might be found to have existed, as to whether the street lines should coincide with the fences, or a survey showing the actual boundaries to extend beyond those inclosed. Bell v. Wright, 94 T. 407, 60 S. W. 873.

The description of particular tracts in a deed of trust and a subsequent deed to the same grantee held not to restrict or limit general clauses conveying all grantor's property in C. county. Lauchheimer v. Saunders, 27 C. A. 484, 65 S. W. 500.

Deed conveying 110 acres out of a 310-acre tract, and describing the 310 acres accurately, sufficiently describes tract conveyed. Mass v. Bromberg, 28 C. A. 145, 66 S. W. 468.

The absolute devise of the entire rents of certain buildings conveys the buildings and the real estate on which they rest. Such use includes the corpus. Gidley v. Lovenberg, 35 C. A. 203, 79 S. W. 834, 835.

Where land sold was described by metes and bounds, the words, "containing by estimate" a certain number of acres, were equivalent to the words, "more or less." Mayer & Schmidt v. Wooten, 46 C. A. 327, 102 S. W. 423.

The variance between the date of an original grant from the government dated May 27, 1835, and the statement in an act of sale by the original grantee to a purchaser describing the land as in the original grant from the government, but giving the date of that grant as on May 28, 1835, does not render the act of sale to the purchaser so uncertain in describing the land that it will be inadmissible in evidence. Judgment, Ryle v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 823, reversed. Davidson v. Ryle, 103 T. 209, 124 S. W. 616, 125 S. W. 881.

Land may be described in a deed by reference to another registered deed or to a recorded judgment or decree, under the general rule that that is certain which can be made certain. Kimbell v. Powell, 57 C. A. 57, 121 S. W. 541.

Recitals in a deed concerning former conveyances are evidence of the facts stated, and sufficient prima facie to establish them. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

The description of the land conveyed by a deed which referred to the grant and field notes for a more particular description was sufficient, if the description in the instruments referred to sufficiently described the land. Houston Oil Co. v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533, 124 S. W. 85.

A deed described the land conveyed as "being all the land belonging to L. and situated in B. county, * * * 177 acres of the C. survey." There were two C. surveys in B. county, one of which included 177 acres and the other a larger tract. Held, that the deed could be reasonably construed as conveying land belonging to L., consisting of the entire C. survey of 177 acres, and was not as a matter of law void for not sufficiently describing the land conveyed. Long v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 40.

A deed of an accretion, in which the lands are described by metes and bounds, held to transfer all the title of the grantor. Plummer v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1162.

Where grantor conveyed a tract of land described by metes and bounds, and fully identified on the ground, the subsequent acquisition of land in the vicinity does not inure to the benefit of the grantee unless it touches the land conveyed. Connor v. Mangum (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 256.

Where land conveyed by an erroneous call corrected by other calls in the description could be fully identified and located by the field notes, the erroneous call did not render the description insufficient. Id.

Reference to the land described in a deed as "the Cobb land" must yield to the specific description. Bond v. Garrison (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 839.

The specific boundaries described in the deed should be held as intending to describe the property to be conveyed. Basham v. Stude (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 662.

A grantee in a deed conveying a lot described as a designated lot on a recorded plat does not obtain the title of the grantor in a part of the adjacent lot acquired by limitations. Ward v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 310.

Where defendant establishes a right to the recovery of a certain number of acres of land conveyed to his grantors with the right to select the tract from a larger tract, he will be confined to the land occupied and claimed by his grantors. Hermann v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 574.

A grantee in a deed held not to acquire title to additional land by mere recitals in a subsequent deed by the grantor to a third person of adjacent property. Fewell v. Kinsella (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1174.

A deed of a specified number of acres, to be taken out of a larger tract of the grantor, held to pass title to the grantee, and to confer on him the right to select the land. Wing v. Red (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 301.

It was sufficient that a deed referred to other deeds in evidence for a more perfect description of the land in controversy, wherein the land was fully described. Hayes v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 327.

Conveyance of undivided half of tract of land, described as 1,600 acres, which actually contained over 2,000 acres, held to convey half of the actual quantity. Wadsworth v. Vinyard (Sup.) 147 S. W. 560, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1171.

A description in a deed as 1,000 acres undivided and part of a larger tract held sufficient to convey the quantity mentioned in whatever portion of the larger tract belonged to the grantor. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

Where neither a grantor nor any of his ancestors had ever owned the west one-half of a league, but owned the east half, a deed of an undivided 810 acres in such league must be construed to convey land only in the east half. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 885.

A deed conveying land according to a map or plan of a town site makes the map or plan a part of the deed. Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.

In trespass to try title, a deed describing the land as situated "in the pasture of the Lucero de Alameda in the county of Hidalgo" is too uncertain to be admissible in evidence, in the absence of extrinsic evidence to identify the land. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 328.

16. —— Appurtenances and easements.—Appurtenances are things belonging to another thing as principal and which pass as incident to the principal thing. The term as used in conveyances passes nothing but the land and such things as belong thereto and are part of the realty; or, as some of the authorities put it, whatever is necessary to the commodious enjoyment of a thing. Johnson v. Nasworthy, 4 App. C. C. § 107, 16 S. W. 758.

A grant of land, with no outlet except over the grantor's lot, carries with it a way of necessity. Kruegel v. Nitschmann, 15 C. A. 641, 40 S. W. 68.

Where a mortgagee, having an easement on the mortgaged property, forecloses the mortgage without setting up the easement, the purchaser takes the property free of the easement. Rembert v. Wood, 16 C. A. 468, 41 S. W. 525.

Where a deed of a right of way over a survey reserved the right to use water in the ditch on the right of way for the purpose of watering stock in a certain pasture, held, that the right to damages for the destruction of the ditch was limited to that part of the survey that included the pasture. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Haas, 17 C. A. 309, 42 S. W. 658.

The purchaser of a lot abutting on lands dedicated as an alley acquires an easement therein, though the city has neither accepted the dedication nor opened the alley. Loustannau v. Robertson, 21 C. A. 85, 50 S. W. 489.

A deed of a part of a city lot held to convey the property to a street as actually established. Bell v. Wright (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 615.

Warranty in deed and permission to grantee to erect improvements held not to estop grantor, who has retained a tract surrounded by the one granted, to claim a right of way. Holman v. Patterson, 34 C. A. 344, 78 S. W. 989.

Where a lot was sold with reference to a plat designating part of the original tract as "reserved for railway purposes" held that the purchaser acquired the right that it should be used for railway purposes alone. Temple v. Sanborn, 41 C. A. 65, 91 S. W. 1095.

A way of necessity arises where a grantor conveys land not having any outlet save over his remaining land. Williams v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 629.

17. —— Crops and timber.—A deed conveying certain land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances to the same, held not to convey the growing crops thereon. McKinney v. Williams (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 335.

The purchaser at foreclosure of land, held not entitled to crops ungathered and remaining on the land at the time of his purchase, as against a purchaser from the mortgagor before sale. Id.

Whether certain crops on land conveyed were served to the grantor under a parol agreement at the time the property was conveyed held for the jury. Carter & Donaldson v. Childress (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 714.

Timber passes with land conveyed as part of the realty, though not mentioned in the deed. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

18. —— Fixtures.—Fixtures pass with the land conveyed. Meyer v. Orynski (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 655.

Where the owner of a building had the right to remove it from the premises, the owner of the premises could not be held liable for conversion of the building because of a sale of the premises by him. Shelton v. Piner (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 65.

19. —— Questions for court.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 3.

19½. —— Boundaries in general.—See notes under Title 79, Chapter 5.

20. Estates or interests created.—See notes under Art. 1106.

Art. 1108. [629] [553] Other forms and clauses valid.—No person shall be obliged to insert the covenant of warranty, or be restrained from inserting any clause or clauses in conveyances hereafter to be made, that may be deemed proper and advisable by the purchaser and seller; and other forms not contravening the laws of the land shall not be invalidated. [Id. P. D. 1000.]

Covenants in general.—See notes under Art. 1112.

A covenant of general warranty is not limited or restrained in its operation by a succeeding covenant in the same deed to defend the title against all persons claiming through the patent or deed under which the vendor held the land. Rowe v. Heath, 23 T. 614. A stipulation in a deed that the land conveyed should be used for a certain purpose only, is binding upon the grantee and his assigns, and a forfeiture would result where such improper use was permitted by the grantee or his assigns, or where there has been an unreasonable delay in stopping such improper use by another without authority. Carpenter v. Graber, 66 T. 465, 1 S. W. 178.

If a deed of partition contains a limited warranty it will generally have the effect of restricting the remedy to the covenant expressed in the deed. James v. Adams, 64 T. 193.

Contract for conveyance of land to which the title was defective; note given for purchase money with right of rescission if the title was not perfected within two years. Held, that the right of rescission passed to a remote vendee, who took under a general warranty, agreeing to pay purchase money and other liens, and that he could sue for breach of warranty after having paid the note given by the original vendee. Wood v. Thornton, 85 T. 109, 19 S. W. 1034.

—— After-acquired title.—See notes under Art. 3687, Estoppel.

—— Covenants of title.—A deed conveyed all right, title and interest of the grantor in the land mentioned therein. The deed referred to the grant from the government and its conveyance to the grantor, showing a perfect chain of title, and then closed with a general warranty of title. Held, that the warranty was not limited by the estate conveyed. Peck v. Hensley, 20 T. 673; Burleson v. Burleson, 28 T. 383.

A general covenant of warranty in a deed applies to the title, and not to the quantity of land, and is therefore not broken by a shortage in the number of acres named in the deed, though the land may have been sold by the acre. Mosteller v. Astin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1136.

Where the warranty and habendum clauses in a deed recited a conveyance of all the described premises, and the grantors bound themselves to defend all of the same against all persons lawfully claiming the same, the covenant of warranty extended to the quantity of the land. Davis v. Fain (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 218.

Warranty in a deed held to cover the quantity of land as well as the title. Withers v. Crenshaw (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1189.

—— Covenants against incumbrances.—A covenant against liens and incumbrances is distinct from a warranty of title and protects the grantee against interests in third persons which, though consistent with the fee being in the grantor, will diminish the value of the estate conveyed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 561.

Where another than grantor had the title to a tract in fee, free from any easement or servitude in favor of any one else, his claim was an adverse claim of title, but was not an incumbrance upon the estate granted so as to be a breach of a covenant against incumbrances contained in the deed. Id.

—— Covenants running with the land.—The covenant of general warranty runs with the land and passes to each successive purchaser. One effect of such a covenant is to pass, without another conveyance, any title to the same land acquired from another source by the covenantor. Flaniken v. Neal, 67 T. 629, 4 S. W. 212.

A purchaser may rely upon covenants of warranty of remote vendors. Allison v. Pitkin, 11 C. A. 655, 33 S. W. 293.

A covenant of warranty runs with the land and inures to the benefit of the last vendee. Rutherford v. Montgomery, 14 C. A. 319, 37 S. W. 625.

A stipulation in a lease forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquors on the premises, under penalty of a forfeiture of the lease, runs with the land. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 103 T. 24, 122 S. W. 254, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 67.

Certain covenants contained in deeds by which defendant contracted to furnish water to plaintiff held not to run with the land for all time, and therefore were too indefinite to entitle plaintiff to recover for breach thereof. McQuitty v. Harton (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 777.

—— Parties liable.—When a warrantor has been notified by his vendee of the pendency of a suit to recover the land and required to appear and defend the title, the judgment for plaintiff will establish that the recovery is under a paramount title. If the vendor has not been required to defend, the judgment is evidence of an eviction only, the burden of proof being on the warrantee to show that he was evicted by paramount title. If the warrantee yields without suit to a paramount title, or buys it in, he may sue for breach of warranty, assuming the burden of proof of all facts which entitle him to a recovery. Clark v. Mumford, 62 T. 531.

A vendor of land who gives a general warranty of title, when made a party defendant in a suit against his vendee, must defend the title. Brown v. Hearon, 66 T. 63, 17 S. W. 395.

A married woman is not personally liable on a warranty in a conveyance of community property. Freiberg v. De Lamar, 27 S. W. 151, 7 C. A. 263.

A co-tenant is not bound by the covenants in a deed by the tenant holding the record title. Jones v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 527.

Where one in possession of land is a party to a suit against his remote grantor to foreclose a vendor's lien, in which suit plaintiff recovers judgment, he does not lose his right to a judgment against his warrantor because he has sold the land pendente lite. Lewis v. Ross (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 504.

Where a husband and wife, claiming that she is the owner of a tract of public school land for full consideration paid, execute a deed with covenant of warranty of title purporting to convey such tract, the husband is liable on such covenant, notwithstanding the pretended conveyance of such land was illegal. Blum v. Johnson, 28 C. A. 10, 66 S. W. 461.

Where a husband and wife join in a deed with covenant of warranty of a tract of land which they claimed she owned, the land in fact being public school land, in an action for breach of such covenant, judgment cannot be recovered against her, either on the covenant or because the contract was illegal. Id.

In an action on a covenant of warranty, evidence held to establish an unequivocal request on the part of plaintiff's attorneys to their warrantor to appear and defend the title in a suit previously brought against a third party claimant to quiet title. Sachse v. Loeb, 45 C. A. 536, 101 S. W. 450.

A warranty in a deed involves a personal obligation by the grantor to which the grantee has a right, and which cannot be switched to another without his consent. Smith v. Pitts, 57 C. A. 97, 122 S. W. 46.

Where title fails to property conveyed to a grantor in exchange, he may proceed against his grantor for a breach of warranty. Hatton v. Bodan Lumber Co., 57 C. A. 478, 123 S. W. 163.

An evicted grantee under a warranty deed may look to any or all of the warrantors in his chain of title. Penney v. Woody (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 872.

—— Parties entitled to rely on covenants.—A covenant of warranty in a deed of partition between an owner and one having no interest is not available to the latter. A contract of warranty must have a consideration to support it. Davis v. Agnew, 67 T. 206, 2 S. W. 43, 376.

When land is purchased under mutual mistake as to the locality of adjoining surveys called for in a deed, the true position of which limits and diminishes the area of the land, equity will afford no relief to the purchaser, and it is immaterial that the conveyance was with special warranty. Moore v. Hazelwood, 67 T. 624, 4 S. W. 215.

One who accepts a deed with full knowledge of an incumbrance or adverse claim cannot set up a breach of warranty until the adverse claim is established. Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 625, 8 S. W. 98.

A purchaser of land taking a quitclaim deed, or deed with special warranty, in absence of fraud, the maker understanding the facts, cannot defend against suit upon the purchase-money note by showing that the vendor had no title to the land and that no title passed. McIntyre v. De Long, 71 T. 86, 8 S. W. 622.

A deed conveying incumbered land contained covenants of general warranty. The deed of the grantee to a third person contained similar covenants. The grantor and grantee executed a bond with sureties to indemnify the third person against the incumbrance. The sums recovered against the third person on account of the incumbrance were less than the sum the grantor received from the grantee, or the sum the third person paid to the grantee, but less than the amount of the bond. Held, that the third person was entitled to a judgment on the warranties in the deed as well as on the bond for the sums adjudged against him. Hawkins v. Potter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 642.

Where D. purchased an outstanding title by a warranty deed and gave an option to the heirs of L. to purchase the land by paying the amount paid by D., and interest, the fact that such heirs procured the outstanding title to be set aside was no defense to D.'s action on the warranty. Hume v. Darsey (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 255.

—— Performance or breach.—It is competent for a purchaser of land, who has received a deed with special warranty, to show that a fraud has been practiced upon him in respect to the title. Where in the negotiations preliminary to the execution of the contract the purchaser stipulates for a perfect title, and is afterwards induced, by the false or fraudulent representations of the vendor, to accept a quitclaim deed or a deed with special warranty, in the belief that he is acquiring a perfect title, and one free from litigation at the time, he will be permitted to show that he was deceived in respect to the title, and may be relieved against such contract. (Citing Mitchell v. Zimmerman, 4 T. 75, 51 Am. Dec. 717; York's Adm'r v. Gregg's Adm'x, 9 T. 85; Hays v. Bonner, 14 T. 629; Wells v. Groesbeck, 22 T. 429.) Rhode v. Alley, 27 T. 445.

Judgment of eviction in trespass to try title is evidence of eviction only. On proof of title superior to that of grantor, grantee has a cause of action upon the warranty. Peck v. Hensley, 20 T. 673; Westrope v. Chambers, 51 T. 178; Clark v. Mumford, 62 T. 531; Buchanan v. Kauffman, 65 T. 235; Ogburn v. Whitlow, 80 T. 239, 15 S. W. 807; Johns v. Hardin, 81 T. 40, 16 S. W. 623.

Upon exchange of lands, each deed contained a stipulation that if the grantee was ousted from possession the deed should be of no effect, and he should have the right to re-enter possession and own the land given in exchange. Each deed also contained a covenant of general warranty. Held, first, the party ousted of his possession by one having a superior title had the right to elect whether he would re-enter or rely upon his warranty. Second, this right to re-enter existed as against the purchaser of the land given in exchange. Third, the warranty worked no estoppel. Pugh v. Mays, 60 T. 191.

When land is described in a warranty deed by metes and bounds, and it is found that a portion of the land described is embraced within the limits of an older and superior grant, the result is a partial breach of the warranty and the purchaser is entitled to a proportionate abatement of the purchase-money. This rule is applicable to cases where the deficiency was not known when the conveyance was made. It is not necessary that the purchaser should offer to surrender the deed and to deliver possession of the land. Nor is it necessary that he should show in whom the superior title to the conflict vested when the purchase was made. Doyle v. Hord, 67 T. 621, 4 S. W. 241.

A judgment by consent of the parties to the suit will not support an action against the vendor who was not a party thereto for breach of warranty in a deed for land. Maverick v. Routh, 23 S. W. 596, 26 S. W. 1008, 7 C. A. 669.

A condition that no liquor should be sold on the land conveyed, before the town should be "legally" incorporated, held not broken by sales after the town was incorporated, though the incorporation was declared invalid. Jones v. McLain, 16 C. A. 305, 41 S. W. 714.

Evidence held sufficient to show breach of warranty in a deed, and to entitle grantee to recover. Witte v. Pigott (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 753.

Where a grantee goes into possession under a warranty deed, a right of action for breach of the warranty does not accrue until his title is assailed. Huff v. Riley, 26 C. A. 101, 64 S. W. 387.

A covenant of title of a grantor, conveying land owned in part by another, and while the latter's title to the other part was maturing by adverse possession, was only breached as to the extent the latter owned the land, and not to the extent of title acquired by adverse possession after the conveyance. Schwarz v. Jones, 57 C. A. 603, 122 S. W. 956.

A contract between a covenantee and the attorneys for the owner of a paramount title that, in case suit by their client for a tract, including that in question, was finally determined in his favor, the attorneys, who held only a contract for an undivided one-fourth interest in the event of recovery, would protect the covenantee to the extent that he should receive out of their interest as much land as he lost was not such a purchase of the paramount title by the covenantee as would authorize a suit on the warranty. Sievert v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 721.

A covenant of warranty in a deed of land against persons claiming the land, or any part thereof, through the grantor, is not breached, where the title under which the grantee was ousted by a third person was adverse to the title claimed by the grantor. Sour Lake Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 662.

A grantee can recover on his warranty only on recovery against him by the owner of a superior title. Ward v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 310.

Where, in trespass to try title, the judgment gave a vendee the land called for by his deed, and as much as he purchased, he was not entitled to recover against his grantor on his cross-action against him for breach of warranty on the ground that he bought with reference to a line which had been established by agreement between his grantor and adjoining owners in contemplation of his purchase, and that he did not receive a portion of the land that he supposed he would receive, where it did not appear that the land he claimed to have lost was of any greater proportionate value than that which he received in place thereof under the judgment. Sutherland v. Kirkland (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 851.

Where title to part of land conveyed by metes and bounds and described as a certain number of acres, more or less, fails, the grantor is liable on his covenant warranting title; it being immaterial whether the conveyance was in gross or by the acre. Houston v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 699.

Settlement by a grantee of a warranty deed for a breach of warranty made with a remote grantor held to have released other warrantors. Penney v. Woody (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 872.

There is no right of action for breach of warranty until there is an equivalent to an actual eviction, and it then only exists originally in the estate, legal representatives, or personally of the person holding under the warranty at the time of the eviction. Id.

Where a vendor who warranted the title paid off an incumbrance on the premises and took a release thereof, his failure to record the release or deliver it to his vendee was not a breach of the warranty. Adams v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1195.

Exceptions to pleas of set-off and reconvention, setting up damages from breach of covenant of warranty, held properly sustained because the items set up were not recoverable for breach of warranty. Id.

Where the land described in the deed included 35 acres which the parties thought the tract included, when, in fact, there was only 22 acres, there was a failure of title as to 13 acres, and not merely a deficiency of quantity. Smith v. McGlothlin (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 655.

A covenant against liens and incumbrances is breached upon the execution and delivery of a deed, if at all. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 561.

A grantor would not be estopped from claiming that the facts did not show a breach of the covenant against incumbrances. Id.

—— Damages for breach.—The measure of damages in a suit upon a general warranty of title to land after the eviction of the vendee by superior title maintained in the suit against the vendee is the purchase money with interest. Attorney's fees and costs, in the absence of an express stipulation to pay, will not be allowed. Turner v. Miller, 42 T. 418, 19 Am. Rep. 47; Glenn v. Mathews, 44 T. 400; Clark v. Mumford, 62 T. 531. See Rowe v. Heath, 23 T. 614; Thiele v. Axell, 24 S. W. 552, 803, 5 C. A. 548.

Where the purchaser has voluntarily removed an incumbrance, or acquired the paramount title, the damages are limited to the amount reasonably paid for that purpose. McClelland v. Moore, 48 T. 355.

When lands have been exchanged by deed with warranty of title, and the title to one of the tracts fails, a recovery may be had against the grantor for the value of the land to which title has failed, as agreed upon by the parties, with interest. If the rights of third parties have not intervened the plaintiff may enforce his lien on the land conveyed by him. White v. Street, 67 T. 177, 2 S. W. 529.

In case of breach of general warranty, the warrantee is entitled to recover of the warrantor the purchase money. When the premises have been occupied by the warrantee and he has not accounted nor is accountable for rents and profits, he is entitled to recover interest upon the purchase money only for the time succeeding eviction. If the holder of the paramount title recovers mesne profits for a certain period, the warrantee will be entitled to recover of the warrantor interest for the same period, and, also, for the time succeeding actual eviction. Brown v. Hearon, 66 T. 63, 17 S. W. 395.

Where land is conveyed by general warranty, and the title fails, but no fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the grantor is shown, the amount which the grantee pays to acquire title is the measure of damages. James v. Lamb, 21 S. W. 172, 2 C. A. 185.

Where a grantee of land purchased on credit is temporarily deprived of the use thereof, his damages are presumptively the rate of interest he agreed to pay on the price. Huff v. Reilly, 26 C. A. 101, 64 S. W. 387.

Where a grantee had possession under a warranty deed for several years before he was ejected, he cannot recover interest paid on the price while he was in possession. Id.

The amount of damages recoverable from a remote warrantor of the title to land is the amount he received for the land from his immediate grantee. Lewis v. Ross (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 504.

Where the grantee in a deed is sued by her grantee of the same premises for breach of her covenant of warranty, the land being public school land, and causes her grantors to be impleaded, she is entitled to judgment against them for the consideration paid by her, with interest, though no judgment is recovered against her. Blum v. Johnson, 28 C. A. 10, 66 S. W. 461.

An evicted covenantee may recover of a remote warrantor of the title the sum received by such warrantor from his immediate grantee, without regard to the amount paid for the land by the covenantee. Lewis v. Ross, 95 T. 358, 67 S. W. 405.

The question whether money to be paid on the nonperformance of a covenant is liquidated damages, or a penalty, is determined by the intention of the parties. Santa Fé St. Ry. Co. v. Schutz, 37 C. A. 14, 83 S. W. 39.

Where land is sold with a warranty of title, and the warrantee sells to another, also warranting the title, and title fails, the original warrantee is entitled to recover the amount of his purchase money together with the costs incurred in the suit against him by the one to whom he warranted it. Mayer & Schmidt v. Wooten, 46 C. A. 327, 102 S. W. 423.

The general rule as to the measure of damages where title to part of the land sold with a warranty fails is none the less applicable because the warrantee believed the whole of the land purchased was within an inclosure, whereas the part to which title failed was without the inclosure. Id.

Where title to land sold with a warranty fails, and the consideration was not paid in money but in other property, the value of that property is the measure of damages. Id.

The allowance of interest against warrantors from the date of their deed held not erroneous. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917, rehearing denied Id. 1167.

The measure of damages of the grantee under a warranty deed on breach of the warranty and on eviction is not necessarily controlled by the amount he paid for the land, but by the amount received by the warrantor or warrantors to whom he elects to look for compensation. Penney v. Woody (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 872.

Attorney's fees are not recoverable as an item of damages for breach of warranty of title in the absence of an express stipulation to pay them. Adams v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1195.

The proper measure of damages for breach of warranty of title cannot exceed the value of the land, with interest from the time of sale. Id.

The measure of damages for breach of warranty consisting in a deficiency in the land conveyed is the difference between the actual value of the property received and the amount paid therefor. Davis v. Fain (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 218.

Where the title to a six-foot strip of land off the side of a lot in controversy failed, the measure of damages for breach of warranty was the difference between the value of the lot with and without the strip, disregarding any increased valuation because of improvements erected on the lot. Withers v. Crenshaw (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1189.

Art. 1109. [630] [554] Must be witnessed or acknowledged.—Every deed or conveyance of real estate must be signed or acknowledged by the grantor in the presence of at least two credible subscribing witnesses thereto; or must be duly acknowledged before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments, and properly certified to by him for registration. [R. S. 1879, 554.]

Execution by attorney.—See notes under Art. 1103.

Acknowledgment.—See notes under Arts. 1114 and 1115 and Title 118, Chapter 2.

One partner can acknowledge the execution of a deed made by a firm of which he is a member. L. & H. Blum Land Co. v. Dunlap, 23 S. W. 473, 4 C. A. 315.

Certificate of acknowledgment is conclusive in the absence of fraud. Herring v. White, 25 S. W. 1016, 6 C. A. 249.

A certificate of acknowledgment which has been lost is a part of the deed, and its existence and contents may be proved in the same manner in which the deed proper may be proved. Simpson v. Edens, 14 C. A. 235, 38 S. W. 474.

Though a notary taking the acknowledgment of a trust deed was disqualified, the instrument was valid as between the parties from the time of its delivery. Southwestern Mfg. Co. v. Hughes, 24 C. A. 637, 60 S. W. 684.

Where a deed contained two different acknowledgments, executed at different dates, it did not authorize a presumption that the deed was not delivered until the second acknowledgment. Bogart v. Moody, 35 C. A. 1, 79 S. W. 633.

Heirs of a deceased member of a community cannot attack the title of a purchaser derived from the survivor of the community by showing the invalidity of the acknowledgment of the deed to such purchaser. Derrett v. Britton, 35 C. A. 485, 80 S. W. 562.

Dereliction of notary in taking acknowledgment of a married woman held not to affect the grantee. Johnson v. Callaway (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 178.

Where the execution and acknowledgment of a deed occurred at the same time an instruction that knowledge of the grantor's unwillingness to sign did not affect the rights of the persons claiming under it, if she acknowledged it voluntarily, held not objectionable. London v. Crow, 46 C. A. 190, 102 S. W. 177.

That an instrument is not acknowledged in a manner to authorize its registration is a circumstance tending to show that the parties did not intend it to be a completed conveyance. Lipscomb v. Fuqua, 55 C. A. 535, 121 S. W. 193, judgment affirmed, 103 T. 585, 131 S. W. 1061.

A deed is not duly registered unless the record shows that the certificate of proof or acknowledgment is sufficient. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

A deed by husband and wife is not inadmissible because their acknowledgments were taken on different dates. Smith v. Burgher (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 75.

Where it was undisputed that plaintiff claimed through a regular chain of title from the patentee of the survey, and that defendants were trespassers, the fact that the acknowledgment of a feme covert heir of the patentee was defective was immaterial. Gibson v. Oberfelder (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 829.

—— Correction of defective certificate.—To entitle a party to a correction of a defective certificate of acknowledgment of a married woman, he must plead a state of facts showing his right to it, as parol evidence that the officer complied with the law is not admissible. Kopke v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 15.

A judgment in an action to correct a defective acknowledgment held not a judgment in personam so as to require personal service. Veeder v. Gilmer, 47 C. A. 464, 105 S. W. 331.

—— Question for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Authority to take.—See notes under Title 23, Title 35, Chapter 2, and Title 97.

Fees for taking.—See notes under Title 58, Chapter 4.

Witnesses.—The husband who was a subscribing witness to a deed made to his wife during the marriage, and who at the time of its execution was not, under the statute, a competent witness to establish it, cannot as such subscribing witness prove it up for registration. Presumably the property, if acquired, was community, and the deed, in contemplation of law, was a conveyance to the husband. Hardin v. Sparks, 70 T. 429, 7 S. W. 769.

A deed without subscribing witnesses, which has been acknowledged by the grantor, but has not been recorded, is valid; but when offered in evidence its execution may be proven by the grantor, or by any person who was present at its execution. Meuley v. Zeigler, 23 T. 88.

Where a bill of sale has no subscribing witnesses, the vendee is a competent witness to prove its execution. Lang v. Dougherty, 74 T. 226, 12 S. W. 29.

A deed, though not witnessed, held admissible in evidence. Robb v. Robb (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 92.

Delivery and acceptance.—See note under Art. 1103.

Non-compliance with statute.—A deed without witnesses or acknowledgment is sufficient to convey land. Its execution can be proven on the trial by the grantee. McLane v. Canales (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 29.

Conveyance held admissible in evidence, though not acknowledged. Morgan v. Baker (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 27.

Deed held inadmissible where a certificate of acknowledgment fails to show that the grantees were known. Hines v. Lumpkin, 19 C. A. 556, 47 S. W. 818.

A deed of land executed by a husband and wife, sufficiently acknowledged as to the husband, but defectively acknowledged as to the wife, held properly received in evidence. Colville v. Colville (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 870.

Art. 1110. [631] [555] Conveyance by sheriff or other officer will pass title, when.—Every conveyance of real estate by a commissioner, sheriff or other officer legally authorized to sell, under or by virtue of a decree or judgment of any court within this state, shall be good and effectual to pass the absolute title to such real estate to the purchaser thereof; but nothing herein shall be construed to affect the right, title or interest of any person or persons other than the parties to such conveyance, decree or judgment, and those claiming under them. [Id.]

Conveyance by officer in general.—The conditions and solemnities annexed to the execution of a power must be strictly complied with, however unessential they might otherwise have been. Their observance is indispensable and admits of no equivalent or substitution. Crosby v. Huston, 1 T. 203; Johnson v. Bowden, 37 T. 621; Johnson v. Bowden, 43 T. 670; Hart v. Rust, 46 T. 556; McLane v. Belvin, 47 T. 493.

As between private parties to a deed, the presumption will be indulged that some interest should pass. No such presumption can be indulged in favor of the sheriff's deed. If from the description contained in the sheriff's deed, or if from deeds and instruments specifically referred to in the sheriff's deed, the land can be identified with reasonable certainty, the description is sufficient. Brown v. Chambers, 63 T. 131.

A reference in the sheriff's deed to the county records generally having a description of land conveyed by the deed renders the deed void for uncertainty. Reference to the records for description and identification must be limited to the conveyance mentioned in the deed. Id.

Art. 1111. [632] [556] Estates in futuro.—An estate or freehold or inheritance may be made to commence in futuro, by deed or conveyance, in like manner as by will. [Id. P. D. 1002.]

Cited, Daggett v. Barre, 135 S. W. 1099.

Future estate in general.—Where a grantor executes a deed and parts with all control over it by delivering it to a third person for delivery to the grantee at the death of the grantor it takes immediate effect and vests in the grantee's title effective after the death of the grantor and is not controlled by this article. Griffis v. Payne, 92 T. 293, 47 S. W. 973.

Where a grantor conveys land to a trustee for a third party, and gives the trustee power to do certain things in regard to the land, among them the power to sell, but provides that the premises shall not be sold during the grantor's life, the instrument is essentially a deed reserving certain rights to the grantor during his life, and takes effect upon delivery. Freeman v. Jones, 43 C. A. 332, 94 S. W. 1073.

Deed or will.—An instrument in form of a deed, conveying land "should we not sell or dispose of the same before death," is a will. Wren v. Coffey (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 142.

Deed distinguished from a will. Chrisman v. Wyatt, 26 S. W. 759, 7 C. A. 40.

An instrument conveying land in fee simple in consideration of love and affection, with a covenant that the grantor should remain in possession during his life, etc., is a deed and not a will. Carpenter v. Hannig (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 774.

An agreement that the grantor should have possession during her life is not testamentary. Matthews v. Moses, 21 C. A. 494, 52 S. W. 113.

Where an instrument is in the form, and contains all the essential requisites of a deed, is duly acknowledged and delivered, it is a deed and not a will and takes effect upon delivery although by its terms the grantors reserved in themselves a homestead during their lives. Martin v. Fairies, 22 C. A. 539, 55 S. W. 601.

An instrument in the form of a deed with the usual habendum, tenendum, and warranty clauses, but reciting "This deed is to take effect at my death and not before," is not testamentary in its nature, but was intended as a deed. McLain v. Garrison, 39 C. A. 431, 88 S. W. 485, 89 S. W. 284.

Under this article a deed providing that the land should remain in the grantor's possession, that the proceeds thereof should be used for the support of his family during their lives, and that at their death the land should go to the grantee in fee simple, is a valid conveyance and not testamentary. Wright v. Giles (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1163.

Under this article the fact that an instrument provided that the disposition of the property should take place after the death of the testator is not controlling in determining whether it was a will or a deed. Belgarde v. Carter (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 964.

Art. 1112. [633] [557] Implied covenants.—From the use of the word "grant" or "convey," in any conveyance by which an estate of inheritance or fee simple is to be passed, the following covenants, and none other, on the part of the grantor for himself and his heirs to the grantee, his heirs and assigns, are implied, unless restrained by express terms contained in such conveyance:

1. That previous to the time of the execution of such conveyance the grantor has not conveyed the same estate, or any right, title or interest therein, to any person other than the grantee.

2. That such estate is at the time of the execution of such conveyance free from incumbrances.

Such covenants may be sued upon in the same manner as if they had been expressly inserted in the conveyance.

Covenants.—See notes under Art. 1108.

Implied covenants in general.—Where there are no covenants as to title, none will be implied, except as to prior conveyance by the grantor and that such estate is free from incumbrances. Hawkins v. Wells, 17 C. A. 360, 43 S. W. 816.

The words grant or convey carry with them a covenant against incumbrances. Taylor v. Lane, 18 C. A. 545, 45 S. W. 317; Bullitt v. Coryell, 38 C. A. 42, 85 S. W. 483; Lowry v. Carter, 46 C. A. 488, 102 S. W. 931.

Where a deed grants only right acquired under a certain deed, a covenant of warranty is confined to the interest conveyed. Bumpass v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1103.

The covenant of quiet enjoyment and that the lessor has the right to lease is always implied in a lease, unless inconsistent with its terms. Maxwell v. Urban, 22 C. A. 565, 55 S. W. 1124.

In the partition of land between owners in common, a covenant of general warranty of title to the respective allotments will ordinarily be implied. James v. Adams, 64 T. 193.

By force of the statute any conveyance using the words "grant or convey" carries with it an implied warranty that the estate conveyed is, at the time of the execution of such conveyance, free from incumbrances, unless restrained by express terms contained in such conveyance. Rotan v. Hays, 33 C. A. 471, 77 S. W. 655.

An illegal verbal agreement between a trustee in a deed of trust and the grantor held distinct from the implied contract, binding the trustee to return the property not needed for the purposes of the trust. Haswell v. Blake (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 1125.

Where title to land sold with a warranty fails, the warrantor is liable whether the warrantee was told by him or otherwise knew that part of it was fenced by another. Mayer & Schmidt v. Wooten, 46 C. A. 327, 102 S. W. 423.

The rule entitling a purchaser of a part of a tract of land incumbered to require the part retained by the vendor to be sold to pay the incumbrance held to rest on equitable principles, not on warranty in the conveyances. Hawkins v. Potter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 643.

A contract for the sale of land stipulating for a good and sufficient warranty deed cannot be specifically enforced at the suit of the vendor where, at the time he offered to convey, the land was subject to vendor's lien notes in a large amount, such lien being an "incumbrance" under this article and Art. 1113, providing that the word "grant" in a conveyance imports a warranty against incumbrances. Roos v. Thigpen (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1180.

Where a deed contained no express warranty nor any language limiting the warranty against incumbrances implied from the use of the words "grant" or "convey" under this article, and the grantor at the time had no title, a title subsequently acquired by him vested immediately in the grantee by force of the implied warranty. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

A covenant against liens and incumbrances is breached upon the execution and delivery of a deed, if at all. Texas & P. R. Co. v. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 561.

A covenant against liens and incumbrances is distinct from a warranty of title and protects the grantee against interests in third persons which, though consistent with the fee being in the grantor, will diminish the value of the estate conveyed. Id.

—— Restraint of warranty.—A grantor may limit his warranty to that part of the land about which there is no controversy. Gallon v. Van Wormer (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 547.

The words "by, through, or under" the grantor added to the usual covenants of warranty of a statutory deed so limit the conveyance as to make it substantially different from the one contracted for, the latter being a warranty deed. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Crowl, 28 C. A. 443, 67 S. W. 902.

—— Estoppel.—See notes under Art. 3687, Estoppel.

Damages for false representations.—The measure of damages for false representations as to quality of land is the difference between the purchase price and a sum of money which bears the same proportion to the purchase price as the actual value of the land bears to the value thereof if it had been as represented. Merrill v. Taylor, 72 T. 296, 10 S. W. 532; Pruitt v. Jones, 14 C. A. 84, 36 S. W. 502.

Art. 1113. [634] [558] Incumbrances include what.—The term "incumbrances" includes taxes, assessments and all liens upon real property.

Covenants.—See notes under Art. 1108.

Breach of warranty against incumbrance.—In a legal sense the word "incumbrance" means an estate, interest or right in lands diminishing their value to the general owner; a paramount right in or weight upon land which may lessen its value. Thomson v. Locke, 66 T. 383, 1 S. W. 112.

Taxes are included in incumbrances as here used, and when vendee has paid taxes due when deed was made he can recover them back on the implied warranty from the vendor. Bullitt v. Coryell, 38 C. A. 42, 85 S. W. 483.

A contract for the sale of land stipulating for a good and sufficient warranty deed cannot be specifically enforced at the suit of the vendor where, at the time he offered to convey, the land was subject to vendor's lien notes in a large amount, such lien being an "incumbrance" under this article and art. 1112, providing that the word "grant" in a conveyance imports a warranty against incumbrances. Roos v. Thigpen (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1180.

A paramount outstanding title is an "incumbrance" within the meaning of a covenant against incumbrances. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

Where another than grantor had the title to a tract in fee, free from any easement or servitude in favor of any one else, his claim was an adverse claim of title, but was not an incumbrance upon the estate granted so as to be a breach of a covenant against incumbrances contained in the deed. Texas & P. R. Co. v. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 561.

A grantor would not be estopped from claiming that the facts did not show a breach of the covenant against incumbrances. Id.

Art. 1114. [635] [559] Conveyance of separate lands of the wife, how made.—The husband and wife shall join in the conveyance of real estate, the separate property of the wife; and no such conveyance shall take effect until the same shall have been acknowledged by her privily and apart from her husband before some officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments to deeds for the purpose of being recorded, and certified to in the mode pointed out in articles 6802 and 6805. [Acts 1897, p. 41.]

See Art. 4621.

Conveyance in general.—A deed executed by the wife alone, without the assent of her husband, is invalid, unless executed under such circumstances as invested her with the power of disposition without his assent. Cannon v. Boutwell, 53 T. 626; Thomas v. Chance, 11 T. 634.

A husband cannot create an easement in the wife's separate land, unless she joins. Railway Co. v. Duriett, 57 T. 48; Railway Co. v. Donahoo, 59 T. 128; Railway Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 324.

A deed purporting to convey the separate property of the wife, signed by husband and wife, and acknowledged by both, is valid though the name of the husband be not mentioned in the body of the deed. Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 460. But it was held otherwise where the wife's name did not appear in the body of the deed. Stone v. Sledge, 87 T. 49, 26 S. W. 1068, 47 Am. St. Rep. 65; Thompson v. Johnson, 24 C. A. 246, 58 S. W. 1030.

A married woman executed a deed to her separate property, reciting a consideration of $1,500. The name of the grantee was left blank. The deed was placed by the husband with S. to effect a sale. B. had agreed to purchase the land for $1,500, which he understood to be the price asked, but afterwards declined to purchase at that price on account of a supposed defect in the title. Subsequently B. and S. agreed upon a sale for $1,000. The deed was delivered and money paid, but without the knowledge or consent of the wife, who refused to receive any part of the purchase-money. Held, that the wife could recover the property, but the case was remanded for the purpose of determining whether B. was a purchaser in good faith, so as to be entitled to pay for his improvements. Cole v. Bammel, 62 T. 108.

By statute, a conveyance of real estate, the separate property of the wife, is not valid unless the husband joins therein and it is privily acknowledged by her. And an executory contract by her for the sale of real estate is not enforcible. Jones v. Goff, 63 T. 248.

A conveyance of her separate property by a married woman, not executed in strict compliance with the statute, is an absolute nullity. Nichols v. Gordon, 25 T. Sup. 109; Berry v. Donley, 26 T. 737; Eckhardt v. Schlecht, 29 T. 129; Whetstone v. Coffey, 48 T. 269; Baily v. Trammell, 27 T. 317, 328; Fitzgerald v. Turner, 43 T. 79; Looney v. Adamson, 48 T. 619. See Womack v. Womack, 8 T. 397, 58 Am. Dec. 119; Dalton v. Rust, 22 T. 133; Clayton v. Frazier, 33 T. 91; Smith v. Elliott, 39 T. 201.

The interest of a married woman in land inherited from a deceased parent as part of such parent's community estate is not divested by showing that such married woman, acting alone in her own right, independent of her husband, received from the surviving parent a sum of money in payment for her interest, and executed a transfer and release of such interest to the surviving parent, as part of her separate estate; such interest could only be conveyed by the joint deed of the husband and wife, accompanied with a certificate of the privy acknowledgment of the wife. Equity in seeking to uphold a family settlement consummated in the absence of fraud between the parties in interest will not enforce it against one laboring under a statutory disability to make such settlement. When the statute prohibits the consummation of the settlement in the manner attempted, equity cannot affect it. If, however, a married woman, who in a settlement, acting alone and for herself, receives a consideration for land inherited by her as part of the community estate of her mother, and makes a deed thereto to her surviving father, in which she is not joined by her husband, though she cannot thus divest herself of title, and may recover the land, she can only do so by accounting to those who have become entitled to the deceased father's interest for the money she received in settlement with him. Stephens v. Shaw, 68 T. 261, 4 S. W. 458.

A married woman can execute a valid bond for title on an executory contract to convey her separate real estate when joined by her husband. Angier v. Coward, 79 T. 551, 15 S. W. 698. As to an executory contract for the conveyance of the homestead, see Jones v. Goff, 63 T. 249.

A deed for land the separate property of a married woman, executed by her without the joinder of her husband, no fraud or concealment having been practiced by her in the sale, is a nullity. Ford v. Ballard, 1 C. A. 376, 21 S. W. 146. It seems where the title to community property is in the wife, she may, by the consent of the husband, dispose of it without his formally joining her in the conveyance. Fox v. Brady, 1 C. A. 590, 20 S. W. 1024.

A conveyance by a married woman of an entire tract of land in which she has an undivided interest does not defeat an afterwards acquired interest therein. Wadkins v. Watson, 24 S. W. 385, 86 T. 194, 22 L. R. A. 779.

A married woman can unite with her husband in a conveyance of her separate estate to a third person with intent that it should be reconveyed by him to her husband. Riley v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 394, 86 T. 240.

As to the execution of a deed by the husband and wife conveying her separate property, see Halbert v. Hendrix (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 911.

A conveyance of land, the separate property of the wife, by the husband under a power of attorney is void. Halbut v. Brown, 9 C. A. 335, 31 S. W. 535.

A married woman is not estopped from asserting her rights to land not conveyed in conformity with law, unless she has been guilty of a positive fraud, or is guilty of some act of concealment or suppression which in law would be equivalent thereto; nor is she estopped by receiving the proceeds of the sale. McLaren v. Jones, 89 T. 131, 33 S. W. 849; Fitzgerald v. Turner, 43 T. 82; Johnson v. Bryan, 62 T. 626; Williams v. Ellingsworth, 75 T. 483, 12 S. W. 746.

A wife held by an instrument signed by her and her husband to ratify the conveyance of her estate by her husband under a power of attorney. Scales v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 828.

Forged deed of husband held inoperative as to his wife, though she had executed another deed to same land. Abee v. Bargas (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 489.

Deeds executed to convey a wife's separate property through a trustee to the husband, to be held as community property, are void. Kellett v. Trice, 95 T. 160, 66 S. W. 51.

If a woman is a minor she becomes emancipated from the disability of minority by her marriage, and a conveyance made by her joined by her minor husband and properly acknowledged by her, is valid and conveys her separate estate therein. The fact that her husband is a minor does not affect the validity of the conveyance. Tippett v. Brooks, 95 T. 335, 67 S. W. 495, 513.

A deed by husband and wife of "our undivided interest of one-half" in certain land, the grantee immediately reconveying to the husband, will be held to convey their undivided community interest, and not the undivided separate interest of the wife. Stratton v. Robinson, 28 C. A. 285, 67 S. W. 539.

Where the separate interest of the wife is an equitable one she must join her husband in the conveyance just as if it were her legal estate. Cauble v. Worsham, 96 T. 86, 70 S. W. 738, 97 Am. St. Rep. 871.

A married woman held not able alone to give a valid power of attorney to a third person to sell her separate real property. Nolan v. Moore (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 785.

A deed by a married woman conveying to her husband land belonging to her separate estate is void. Hughey v. Mosby, 31 C. A. 76, 71 S. W. 395.

A deed from a wife to her husband of land belonging to her separate estate conveyed no title, though made in exchange for community land which he joined her in conveying to one designated by her as a gift from her. Jarrell v. Crow, 30 C. A. 629, 71 S. W. 397.

Where the deed to a wife shows that the property was her separate estate, one claiming under a deed from her husband alone is not an innocent purchaser. Laufer v. Powell, 30 C. A. 604, 71 S. W. 549.

A conveyance of land by a married woman alone held void. McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670.

The wife must join her husband in making lease of her separate estate for a period longer than one year. Dority v. Dority, 96 T. 215, 71 S. W. 950, 60 L. R. A. 941. Affirming Id., 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 340.

A married woman has no power to dispose of her separate estate in land by a parol gift thereof. Tannery v. McMinn (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 640.

A wife's interest in railroad property held not conveyed to a company chartered for the purpose of acquiring the property. Harle v. Texas Southern Ry. Co., 39 C. A. 43, 86 S. W. 1048.

A married woman, setting up an equity in land growing out of a trust relation between her and her husband, must show that holders of the legal title, to whom the husband has conveyed the land, are not bona fide purchasers, in order to be entitled to prevail against such holders of the legal title. Sparks v. Taylor, 99 T. 411, 90 S. W. 485, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 381.

Where the right of a married woman to exercise the power of sale or gift of her separate personalty is restricted by statute by the requirement of the consent of the husband, the exercise of the power by the wife contrary to the consent of her husband is futile. Bledsoe v. Fitts, 47 C. A. 578, 105 S. W. 1142.

The fact that the husband is a minor held not to save from invalidity the wife's deed of her separate property because of his not joining in it. Zimpleman v. Portwood, 48 C. A. 438, 107 S. W. 584.

A deed by a wife under a power of attorney from her husband, and in her own capacity, held to convey both their interests, even if the land were the wife's separate estate. Kin Kaid v. Lee, 54 C. A. 622, 119 S. W. 342; Same v. Buck (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 345.

The husband has no power to convey his wife's separate property without her consent. Ligon v. Wharton (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 932.

A wife's separate deed to her separate land held void. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

A wife's separate deed to her separate land held not cured by subsequent recitals in the husband's deed to other land to the same grantee. Id.

A wife's void deed for want of jointure held not cured by a recital in a subsequent deed by her and others, after she became sole, that the land had been previously conveyed to her by the grantee. Id.

A married woman being bound by her deed of her separate property after final delivery to her grantee, she is bound after it has by her consent been delivered in escrow to the same extent as other persons. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 960.

A deed duly executed by a married woman and her husband, conveying her expectancy in the community estate of her living mother, vests her interest at the time in the grantee. Daggett v. Barre (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1099; Barre v. Daggett (Sup.) 153 S. W. 120.

In an action where a wife contested the validity of a deed of trust, evidence held to sustain a finding that at the time of the execution thereof she was mentally incompetent. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

—— Presumptions.—See notes under Arts. 3687, 4623.

—— Estoppel.—See notes under Art. 3687, Estoppel.

—— Insanity of husband.—A wife may convey her separate property without her husband joining where he is insane. Clark v. Wicker (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1114.

—— Separation.—Deeds of separation made after the separation, or when in the act of separating, are valid so far as they settle the rights of property between the husband and wife, if made without coercion or undue influence, and the provisions are just and equitable. Rains v. Wheeler, 76 T. 390, 13 S. W. 324; O'Shaughnessy v. Moore, 76 T. 606, 13 S. W. 570.

An abandoned wife may herself dispose of her separate property. Bennett v. Montgomery, 22 S. W. 115, 3 C. A. 222; Clark v. Wicker (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1114; Therriault v. Compere (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 750.

Testimony held not to show abandonment of a wife so as to make her deed valid without her husband's signature. Nelson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1106.

A wife may convey land without husband joining in deed, where she had acquired it after he had abandoned and ceased to support her. Stewart v. Profit (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 563.

—— Power of attorney.—A married woman can, jointly with her husband, make a valid conveyance of lands, her separate property, by an attorney in fact, duly authorized by power of attorney, executed and acknowledged in a manner prescribed by law for the execution and acknowledgment of deeds of conveyance. And the attorney in fact can make the legal acknowledgments of his deed, as such attorney, for registration. Patton v. King, 26 T. 685, 84 Am. Dec. 596; Warren v. Jones, 69 T. 462, 6 S. W. 775, citing Patton v. King, 26 T. 686, 84 Am. Dec. 596.

The husband, who acts under a general power of attorney from his wife, duly acknowledged, cannot convey her separate estate. Cannon v. Boutwell, 53 T. 626; Peak v. Brinson, 71 T. 310, 11 S. W. 269; Cardwell v. Rogers, 76 T. 37, 12 S. W. 1006; Halbert v. Brown, 9 C. A. 335, 31 S. W. 535; Chaison v. Beauchamp, 12 C. A. 109, 34 S. W. 303. See Berry v. Donley, 26 T. 737.

The husband may, by his separate power of attorney, authorize his wife to execute in his behalf a conveyance of her separate property. Rogers v. Roberts, 13 C. A. 190, 35 S. W. 76.

A married woman by a power of attorney executed and acknowledged by her alone may authorize a third person to sell and convey her land and such person acting with the husband can convey her separate estate. Nolan v. Moore, 96 T. 349, 72 S. W. 584, 97 Am. St. Rep. 911.

Where a woman, after executing a power of attorney to sell her interest in land and before a sale was made by the agent, married, the marriage revoked the power. Gilmer v. Veatch, 56 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545.

—— Wife's acknowledgment.—A deed for land not acknowledged by a married woman in the manner prescribed by the statute, as to her is an absolute nullity. Berry v. Donley, 26 T. 737; Cross v. Everts, 28 T. 524; Whetstone v. Coffey, 48 T. 269; Looney v. Adamson, Id. 619; Breitling v. Chester, 88 T. 587, 32 S. W. 527; Garcia v. Illg, 14 C. A. 482, 37 S. W. 470.

A deed from a wife to her husband is void and its record affects no one with notice of its contents. Stiles v. Japhet, 84 T. 91, 19 S. W. 450; Graham v. Stuve, 76 T. 533, 13 S. W. 381.

A deed signed and acknowledged by the wife, two years after its execution by the husband, is valid. Halbert v. Hendrix (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 911; Halbert v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 913.

A deed defective for want of the acknowledgment of a married woman is validated by her acknowledgment after the husband's death. Breitling v. Chester, 88 T. 586, 32 S. W. 527, reversing Id. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 464.

A deed of a married woman, not acknowledged by her husband, as required by statute, is a nullity as against her. Illg v. De la Luz Garcia (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 857.

A deed by a husband and wife, conveying the wife's separate property, but not acknowledged by her, held admissible to corroborate testimony that the property conveyed was purchased by the grantee, and that a subsequent deed to his widow was made in ratification of the sale to him. Fordtran v. Perry (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1000.

Acknowledgment of a married woman taken before an officer who is the husband of the grantee is invalid. Silcock v. Baker, 25 C. A. 508, 61 S. W. 939.

The deed of a married woman conveying her separate estate, containing an acknowledgment failing to comply with the statute, is not voidable only, but is absolutely void, though "void" is generally used in the sense of "voidable." Holland v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 882.

A married woman is not bound by her deed of land till after due acknowledgment thereof before an officer. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 960. See, also, notes under Art. 6802.

—— Ratification.—A deed with a defective description may, by the acts and declarations of the grantor, when acted upon by the vendee, be cured of its vice by acts of ratification and recognition. Patterson v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 837.

The fact that a married woman accepts the proceeds of the sale of her land made by her husband, she not joining in the deed, neither amounts to a ratification or estoppel, nor does it raise an equity against her right to recover, or require her to refund the consideration received. Owens v. N. Y. & T. Land Co. (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 1057; Fitzgerald v. Turner, 43 T. 84; Berry v. Donley, 26 T. 744; Moores v. Lenney, 2 C. A. 295, 21 S. W. 70[illegible]. But when she joined her husband in the deed and received the purchase money she is bound by a defective acknowledgment. Morris v. Turner, 5 C. A. 708, 24 S. W. 708.

Married woman may waive invalidity of condemnation of separate property without compliance with requirements as to "conveyances." City of San Antonio v. Grandjean, 91 T. 430, 41 S. W. 477, 44 S. W. 476.

Where a married woman's separate property is taken for public use, she may, with the consent of her husband, waive invalidity in the proceedings, and is estopped by accepting the compensation awarded. Id.

Where a wife's separate deed to her separate property was void for want of jointure, it was not cured by her recital, in a subsequent deed by her and others after she had become sole, that the land had been conveyed by her to the grantee, under the rule that confirmation, while available to make a voidable or defeasible estate absolute, cannot operate on an estate void at law. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

A deed by a married woman of her separate property without jointure of her husband was void, and was not cured by a statement in the husband's subsequent deed of other lands to the grantee, reciting that the lands then conveyed adjoined the land conveyed by his wife under such void deed. Id.

The right of a wife to obtain a decree canceling a deed of her separate property on the ground of her husband's fraud held not waived by ratification. Cage & Crow v. Perry (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 75. See, also, notes under Art. 6802.

Judicial sale and eminent domain.—Sale of separate property of a married woman under a personal judgment against her, good against a collateral attack. Henson v. Sackville, 21 S. W. 187, 2 C. A. 416.

Property of married woman may be taken for public use without compliance with requirements as to deeds by married woman. City of San Antonio v. Grandjean, 91 T. 430, 41 S. W. 477, 44 S. W. 476.

Evidence.—The acknowledgment of a married woman to a lost deed can be established by parol or by circumstantial evidence. Daniels v. Creekmore, 7 C. A. 573, 27 S. W. 148; Overand v. Menczer, 83 T. 130, 18 S. W. 301; Blanton v. Ray, 66 T. 61, 17 S. W. 264.

A notarial certificate showing that a married woman had acknowledged the deed, etc., can be contradicted by proof that the woman never appeared before the notary and that the certificate was false. Wheelock v. Cavitt, 91 T. 679, 45 S. W. 796, 66 Am. St. Rep. 920.

Rights of purchasers.—If a deed from a married woman be procured by fraud in the purchaser, the fact that the deed contained recitals that the vendor "had employed able counsel, that the deed was made without solicitation from the vendee, and with a full knowledge of the vendor's rights," will not estop such married woman from showing that the purchaser, who occupied as between the parties the position of a trustee, had fraudulently concealed the value of the property. Hickman v. Stewart, 69 T. 255, 5 S. W. 833.

The mere fact that the husband imposed upon his wife, and by misrepresentations induced her to sign a deed, coupled with the fact (if it existed) that the notary did not comply with the law in taking her acknowledgment, could not affect the rights of the vendees, they being ignorant of the facts. The precedent debt of the husband to the grantees was a valuable consideration between the parties, and no additional consideration need be shown to have passed to the wife to give validity to the deed. When the consideration of a deed by a married woman is so grossly inadequate and unreasonable as to excite suspicion of unfairness and undue influence, or of want of willingness to execute the same, the purchaser would be put upon inquiry as to the truth of the certificate of her privy examination and acknowledgment and in such case she could show its falsity. Webb v. Burney, 70 T. 322, 7 S. W. 841.

A married woman is not bound by the representations of her husband as to the number of acres in a tract of land conveyed by them, she having no knowledge of such representations having been made. Terry v. Barbour, 24 S. W. 381, 5 C. A. 474. Citing Moore v. Hazelwood, 67 T. 624, 4 S. W. 215; Wheeler v. Boyd, 69 T. 293, 6 S. W. 614; Bellamy v. McCarthy, 75 T. 293, 12 S. W. 849; Weir v. McGee, 25 T. Sup. 30; Daughtrey v. Knolle, 44 T. 450; Smith v. Fly, 24 T. 345, 76 Am. Dec. 109; Wadkins v. Watson, 24 S. W. 385, 86 T. 194, 22 L. R. A. 779.

A purchaser of land for an adequate consideration is not affected by the fraud of the husband in procuring the execution of the deed by the wife, he having no knowledge of nor participating in the fraud. Hickman v. Hoffman, 11 C. A. 605, 33 S. W. 257.

A deed with certificate of acknowledgment by wife held not to convey title, even to an innocent purchaser for value and without notice, where it had never in fact been acknowledged by her. Wheelock v. Cavitt, 91 T. 679, 45 S. W. 796, 66 Am. St. Rep. 920.

Purchaser from married woman held entitled to set up her equitable interest against outstanding legal title. Cauble v. Worsham, 96 T. 94, 70 S. W. 737, 97 Am. St. Rep. 871.

In order for grantors to attack recitals in certificates of acknowledgment to deeds, it is necessary to show that the grantees had notice of the fraud of the notary and of his failure to properly take the acknowledgments, or that there was collusion between the notary and the grantee. Evart v. Dalyrymple (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 223.

Where a grantee agreed to pay a specified sum in money, property, and debts for the conveyance of a wife's separate property, and the consideration recited in the deed was that sum which was not actually paid, he was chargeable with the husband's fraud inducing the execution of the deed. Cage & Crow v. Perry (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 75.

Though the deed of a wife be properly certified by the notary taking her acknowledgment, it may be avoided by her, if the acknowledgment does not speak the truth, and was obtained by fraud, provided the grantee had notice before he paid the purchase money. Stringfellow v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 937.

A deed by a widow, who has remarried, and the surviving daughter, also married, to a one-seventh interest in land described as having descended to their decedent, whereas only a one-fourteenth interest descended to him, passes a one-fourteenth interest only; the warranty not operating against the grantors. Pritchard v. Fox (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1058.

Restoration of purchase money on avoidance.—Plaintiff, being a married woman, cannot be compelled to repay purchase price of land before recovering the land. De Garcia v. Lozano (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 280.

A deed executed by a husband and wife, conveying the wife's separate estate, is a nullity, if not acknowledged by her, and its record is not constructive notice of its contents. Fordtran v. Perry (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1000.

Where a married woman seeks to recover her separate estate conveyed because of her defective acknowledgment of the conveyance, she is not required to refund the consideration received as a condition of recovery. Silcock v. Baker, 25 C. A. 508, 61 S. W. 939.

A wife who obtains a decree canceling a deed of her separate property on the ground of the fraud of her husband, of which the grantee was chargeable, must account to the grantee for the value of the land conveyed to her by the grantee, and appropriated by her by conveying the same to another. Cage & Crow v. Perry (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 75.

Where a wife sues for the cancellation of a deed of her separate property on the ground of the fraud of her husband of which the grantee was chargeable, the court in granting relief must require her to restore the part of the consideration received, but she need not restore the part paid to the husband and not operating to the benefit of the separate estate. Id.

Art. 1115. [636] [560] Conveyance of homestead, how made.—The homestead of the family shall not be sold and conveyed by the owner, if a married man, without the consent of the wife. Such consent shall be evidenced by the wife joining in the conveyance, and signing her name thereto, and by her separate acknowledgment thereof taken and certified to before the proper officer, and in the mode pointed out in articles 6802 and 6805. [Id.]

See Art. 4621.

Conveyance in general.—The husband has no power, directly or indirectly, to alienate property, a portion of the purchase-money of which has not been paid, and which is occupied by his wife and himself as a homestead, unless his wife joins in the conveyance, or the same is done in good faith by the husband in settlement of a lien for unpaid purchase-money. If the husband, under pretense of satisfying a claim for unpaid purchase-money, acts in bad faith, when no necessity for sale exists and with the purpose to deprive his wife of her homestead right, his act conveys no title, as against the wife, to purchaser with notice. Morris v. Geisecke, 60 T. 633. Citing Farmer v. Simpson, 6 T. 304; Meyer v. Claus, 15 T. 518; White v. Shepperd, 16 T. 163; Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 160; Gillum v. Collier, 53 T. 593; Hicks v. Morris, 57 T. 662; De Bruhl v. Maas, 54 T. 474.

The husband and wife cannot convey the homestead by an executory contract for its sale. Jones v. Goff, 63 T. 248.

C. and wife regularly executed a deed defective in description, for their homestead, to K. It was intended as security for money advanced. C. sold to L., after pointing out the corners, and put him in possession, and K., at C.'s request, made the deed to L. L. remained in possession until his sale to R. C. and wife had never abandoned the land as homestead, and sued R., who at his purchase was ignorant of the homestead character of the property. Held, that L. took no title as against the homestead, because the transfer from K., at the husband's request, did not conclude the wife, nor did the husband's pointing out the corners of the tract cure the defective description of the land in the deed. Coker v. Roberts, 71 T. 598, 9 S. W. 665.

That there was ambiguity in the deed under which the homestead was held did not empower the husband to release the homestead in an adjustment with his vendor of disputed boundaries of the tract. Dobkins v. Kuykendall, 81 T. 180, 16 S. W. 743.

A lease of the homestead for a term of years must be joined in by the wife of the lessor. Dykes v. O'Connor, 83 T. 160, 18 S. W. 490; Ellis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 602.

A husband in possession of land under a deed cannot, by attorning to another who does not show a superior title, divest the wife of her homestead rights acquired by such possession. Id.

As to contract to convey land in consideration of a married woman conveying her homestead, see Williams v. Graves, 26 S. W. 334, 7 C. A. 356.

Where there is a lien upon the homestead the husband may in good faith convey it in settlement of the claim, or adjust it as he sees proper, without being joined by his wife. Investors' Mortg. Sec. Co. v. Loyd, 11 C. A. 449, 33 S. W. 750; Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 160; White v. Shepperd, 16 T. 172.

The wife cannot be divested of any interest in the homestead by any act of her husband, short of abandonment, to which she was not a party. Gober v. Smith (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 910.

Wife held not bound by agreement to arbitrate mistake in partition of lands, which had become a homestead, because not a party to it. Oldham v. Medearis (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 350.

There being sufficient land left to satisfy all homestead demands, held, that the homestead character was not impressed on a part that was sold, so as to require the wife to join in the deed. Neiman v. Schuster (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1075.

Conveyance of land by the husband, after testamentary deed to the wife, operates as a revocation of deed to the wife, and vests title in grantee. De Bajligethy v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 272, 56 S. W. 95.

Where a conveyance of one lot of a homestead, consisting of two lots jointly owned by the grantor and the heirs of his wife, leaves sufficient property to satisfy the interests of such heirs, the purchaser takes a good title. Thompson v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 578.

The fact that there is an incumbrance on a homestead, which the purchaser assumed, held not to sustain the deed of the husband alone. Gibbons v. Hall (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 814.

Where the husband and wife have joined in executing a lien on the homestead, the husband cannot waive her rights or extend the lien by any act in which she does not join. San Antonio Real Estate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 665.

A parol gift of a part of a homestead by a husband held void for lack of compliance with the statutory requirements. Morris v. Wells, 27 C. A. 363, 66 S. W. 248.

An option on the homestead, given by the husband without obtaining the wife's signature, is not enforceable. Miller v. Gray, 29 C. A. 183, 68 S. W. 517.

A conveyance of a homestead by a husband though his wife does not join therein, operates as a valid conveyance thereof, if he afterwards abandons the homestead, and acquires another homestead. Anderson v. Carter, 29 C. A. 240, 69 S. W. 78.

A wife who joins her husband in a sham deed of the homestead, and enables him to borrow money on the notes received for the pretended purchase price from an innocent indorsee of such notes, is bound by the apparent validity of the lien reserved in the deed to secure such notes. Cooper v. Ford, 29 C. A. 253, 69 S. W. 487.

A husband alone cannot contract with a railway company, empowering it to use water from a spring located on his homestead and to enter on the homestead to erect necessary pumping works. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Cluck, 31 C. A. 211, 72 S. W. 83.

A contract for the sale of machinery, whereby the purchaser agreed to give a mechanic's lien on the premises whereon the machinery was to be situated, and which premises constituted the purchaser's homestead, was not invalid because not signed by the purchaser's wife. Fred W. Wolf Co. v. Galbraith, 35 C. A. 505, 80 S. W. 648.

A deed of a portion of a homestead by a husband alone to a son without the consent of the wife held void. Penn v. Case, 36 C. A. 4, 81 S. W. 349.

A married woman's joint contract with her husband for the sale of land in which she had a separate interest, occupied as her homestead, held not binding on her or her heirs as to her separate interest. Ley v. Hahn, 36 C. A. 208, 81 S. W. 354.

A husband cannot by a sale and abandonment in fraud of his wife destroy her homestead rights. Gray v. Fussell, 48 C. A. 261, 106 S. W. 454.

After abandonment of a husband by his wife without the intention of returning held, that the husband had a right to incumber the community property and to pass the fee-simple title thereto. Mabry v. Kennedy, 49 C. A. 45, 108 S. W. 176.

Where a single man contracted to sell and convey his homestead and thereafter married, the homestead rights of the wife in the land were subordinate to the contract, irrespective of whether or not she had notice of the contract before the marriage. Parriss v. Hughes, 50 C. A. 155, 109 S. W. 1140.

A wife is a necessary party to any contract by which the homestead is to be alienated and her concurrence in every substantial detail is as vital to its validity as that of the husband. Blume v. White (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1066.

A married woman's deed of her homestead is void, unless executed by herself and her husband in strict conformity with the requirements of the law regulating such conveyances. Id.

A conveyance in fee of any part of a homestead by the husband, without the wife joining is inoperative as against her homestead rights. Wooten v. Pennock, 52 C. A. 430, 114 S. W. 465; City of Houston v. Bammel, 53 C. A. 336, 115 S. W. 661.

An attempted conveyance of the homestead by complainant's husband, without her joining therein, was void even as to the husband's community interest in the homestead, where no other homestead was acquired, and the property continued to be the homestead of the wife. Marble v. Marble, 52 C. A. 380, 114 S. W. 871.

Any homestead right of defendant's wife in land, having been acquired after defendant contracted to deliver to plaintiff a certain part of the proceeds of his contemplated sale of it, was subordinate to plaintiff's right under the contract. Parriss v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 199, 122 S. W. 399.

A wife who has not joined in her husband's deed to the homestead and who has not acquired another homestead, or those claiming under her, may have the husband's deed set aside and recover the property sold. Pullman v. Houston (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 69.

Plaintiff and his wife gave a deed of their homestead on the agreement that it was to secure payment of certain indebtedness of plaintiff. Thereafter plaintiff sold his homestead, and at his request the grantee in the trust deed conveyed the property to the purchaser. Held, that such deed was as effectual to convey title as if it had been executed by plaintiff in person. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

Where husband and wife acquired title to a homestead by adverse occupancy, a conveyance of the homestead by the husband alone did not pass any title, but the husband and wife were entitled to the land. Coler v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 664.

Prior to the present constitution, a deed of trust of the homestead, executed by the husband alone to secure a community debt, is not enforceable during the life of the wife, but on her death it becomes valid. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

A deed conveying a homestead acknowledged by each grantor and containing a notary's certificate of acknowledgment is conclusive, in the absence of fraud or imposition in which the grantee participated or had knowledge. McGee v. Tinner (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 866.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, an instrument executed by a husband and wife conveying the homestead, absolute in form, but intended as a mortgage, was as between the parties absolutely void. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227.

The joint deed of husband and wife is in general essential to the conveyance of the homestead. Reyes v. Escalera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

A wife cannot be deprived of her homestead by her husband, without her knowledge or consent, accepting a lease of it from a person who has no title thereto. Lumpkin v. Woods (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1139.

Title to a homestead could only be conveyed by a deed, duly executed and acknowledged by the grantor's wife. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 850.

The conveyance of a homestead by a husband without the concurrence of the wife is absolutely void and passes no title. Crutcher v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 658.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, and this article, there can be no valid conveyance of a homestead without the joinder of the wife therein. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

—— What constitutes homestead.—See notes under Title 55.

This article applies to a sale of fixtures attached to and forming a part of the homestead. House v. Phelan, 83 T. 595, 19 S. W. 140.

—— Disposition of proceeds.—Although execution and acknowledgment of the deed of a homestead is required from the owner's wife, her consent to the disposition of the proceeds of the homestead by the husband, as long as he acts in good faith towards her, is not required, as the husband has the right to select the homestead for the family and to control the proceeds of its sale. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

—— Abandonment of homestead.—After a husband and wife owning a homestead had left the state, the husband returned to Texas and sold the land, the wife not joining in the deed. In a suit by the wife against the purchaser, after the death of the husband, to recover the property as her homestead, her declarations, made before leaving the state, showing dissatisfaction with the country and intention of leaving it permanently, are admissible in evidence as tending to show abandonment, even though not made to the purchaser or known to him at the time of his purchase. Burcham v. Gann, 1 U. C. 333.

After a husband and his wife abandon a farm as a home, the husband has the legal right to sell the farm without his wife's consent, whether it is his own separate property or the community property of himself and wife, and if the deed to the farm is executed by the grantee in a trust deed of the property at the request of the owner, before the farm is abandoned as a home, in the absence of such fraud upon the wife as would entitle her to a rescission of the sale, it would become effective to convey title as soon as the abandonment occurred. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

Where a husband and wife live on a homestead, the separate property of the husband, and the wife is legally declared insane, so as to be incapacitated from consenting to a deed of the homestead by joinder, and privy acknowledgment, and the husband, with the children, removes from the homestead, his sale of the lot, more than a year after such removal, with no intent to defraud the wife, is valid, regardless of whether, at the time of the removal and abandonment, he intended to acquire another homestead, or whether another homestead had in fact been acquired. Gilley v. Troop (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 954.

—— Insanity of wife.—Where a husband alone conveys the homestead, which is community property, the wife being hopelessly insane, and abandons the homestead, the conveyance is effective. Shields v. Aultman, Miller & Co., 20 C. A. 345, 50 S. W. 219.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, this article, and article 6802, where a wife, who with her husband had for six months occupied a homestead lot, the separate property of the husband, was legally declared insane and confined in an institution for about three years, during which time the husband, without intent to defraud the wife, sold the lot and removed from it, the sale by the husband was valid. Gilley v. Troop (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 954.

—— Absence of wife.—A husband living on a homestead cannot convey it alone, though his wife is temporarily living away. Gibbons v. Hall (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 814.

—— Separation.—After a wife has abandoned husband and homestead, she has no interest in the homestead which will prevent his conveying a good title thereto. Mann v. Wilson, 39 C. A. 111, 86 S. W. 1061.

A wife abandoned by her husband may alone convey her homestead situated on her separate property. Mabry v. Citizens' Lumber Co., 47 C. A. 443, 105 S. W. 1156.

—— Acknowledgment by wife.—See notes under Art. 1109, and Title 118, Chapter 2.

A wife cannot defeat a conveyance of the homestead, or of her separate property, by showing that when her acknowledgment to the deed was taken she did not understand its import, or that the officer did not explain it to her, unless she also shows that these acts were brought to the knowledge of the purchaser. Miller v. Yturria, 69 T. 549, 7 S. W. 206.

Where a wife did not acknowledge the deed to a homestead, her title was not forfeited by the fact that after removing from the property she was divorced, and afterwards married another man. Huss v. Wells, 17 C. A. 195, 44 S. W. 33.

Certificate of acknowledgment by wife of deed to homestead cannot be impeached, where the vendee's knowledge of or connection with the alleged fraud is not shown. Hurst v. Finley (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1072.

A deed acknowledged by each grantor and containing a notary's certificate of acknowledgment held conclusive in the absence of fraud or imposition. McGee v. Tinner (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 866.

The separate acknowledgment of the wife to a joint deed by husband and wife is essential to the conveyance of the homestead under general circumstances. Reyes v. Escalera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

A deed of the homestead held void as against the wife because defectively acknowledged with the knowledge of the grantee. De West v. Barthelow (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 86.

A deed to a homestead held void as to the wife, where she did not appear before the officer who acknowledged the deed until after its delivery and record. Yaseen v. Green (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 824.

Evidence held to require a finding that plaintiff's wife, when a deed to the homestead was executed, did not acknowledge the deed. Id.

Title to a homestead could only be conveyed by a deed duly executed and acknowledged by the grantor's wife. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 850.

—— Ratification.—Where husband conveyed 110 acres out of 310-acre homestead tract, and subsequently authorized the purchaser to take his 110 acres from the south end of the whole tract, wife held authorized, after husband's death, to ratify such agreement. Mass v. Bromberg, 28 C. A. 145, 66 S. W. 468.

A husband held not entitled by subsequent acts, unauthorized by his wife, to validate a conveyance of the homestead procured by the fraud of the grantee. Cotton v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 114.

A wife's right to rescind a sale of the homestead for fraud could not be cut off by any act of ratification by her husband. Morrison v. Cotton (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 866.

—— Estoppel.—See, also, notes under Arts. 3687 and 6802.

A married woman is not estopped by her deed of conveyance in which her husband does not join. Daniels v. Mason (Sup.) 38 S. W. 161, 59 Am. St. Rep. 815.

A wife held not estopped by her acts in seeking the sale of a homestead from denying its validity, where she did not acknowledge the deed. Huss v. Wells (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 33.

A wife, signing a deed to a homestead under the representation and belief that it was a mortgage, held not estopped from claiming the property as a homestead by the fact that she knew the supposed mortgage was to be used by the mortgagee in negotiating a loan. Black v. Garner (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 918.

A married woman's acknowledgment of a deed conveying the homestead held defective, and hence she was not estopped from asserting her rights to the homestead; no fraud appearing on her part. Id.

Where a husband has conveyed the homestead, he is estopped to afterwards set up title on the ground that his wife did not join. Mann v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1061.

Where a husband, without his wife joining, transferred part of their homestead, and she afterwards abandoned the homestead and acquiesced in its partition between her deceased husband's heirs and herself, the husband's deed became effective by estoppel. Wooten v. Pennock (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 465.

Where a married woman's deed to her husband was void, and she thereafter conveyed the land to G. by deed reciting the former conveyance to the husband, neither she nor those claiming under G.'s deed were estopped to deny the validity of the conveyance to the husband, except as against those claiming under it. Merriman v. Blalack (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 552.

A married woman cannot be estopped to assert her rights in land unless she has been guilty of some positive fraud, or some act of concealment or suppression equivalent thereto. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

A married woman who falsely represented herself to be single, and who conveyed land to a grantee relying on her representations and performing the acts required of him to obtain title, is guilty of fraud and is estopped from asserting title as against him. Keller v. Lindow (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 304.

A married woman held not estopped from claiming her separate estate in land. Hannay v. Harmon (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 406.

A wife not having acknowledged a deed to the homestead held not estopped as against a purchaser to deny its validity on that ground. Yaseen v. Green (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 824.

The homestead rights of a wife can only pass by estoppel, which is predicated upon affirmative fraud upon her part. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 850.

Where a woman has conveyed land by a deed, in which her husband did not join, but which he is estopped to attack, their children are also estopped from attacking the deed. Stewart v. Profit (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 563.

—— Reconveyance.—Where a homestead is subject to a vendor's lien, the husband may, in good faith, reconvey the homestead in satisfaction of the incumbrance, and such reconveyance will be binding on his wife, though her separate property paid part of the purchase price. Evans v. Marlow (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 347.

—— Fraud.—See notes under Art. 1106.

The deed of a married woman having been obtained by fraud, held, that the question of delivery was immaterial. Stringfellow v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 937.

Easements and Incumbrances.—A husband may without the concurrence of his wife create an easement over a part of the community homestead, provided it does not materially interfere with the wife's use of the property for homestead purposes. Randall v. Railway Co., 63 T. 586; Railway Co. v. Titterington, 84 T. 225, 19 S. W. 472, 31 Am. St. Rep. 39; Orrick v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 443; City of Houston v. Bammel, 53 C. A. 336, 115 S. W. 661; Purdie v. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 364.

A mortgage on a homestead created after its dedication is null and void, and no subsequent acquisition of another homestead by the mortgagor can give it validity. Hays v. Hays, 66 T. 606, 1 S. W. 895. And see Carter v. Hawkins, 62 T. 393; Moores v. Wills, 69 T. 109, 5 S. W. 675.

A married man has power to adjust and settle liens and prior equities upon land subject to which it has been made the homestead; but such a conveyance in fraud of the rights of the wife is void. She is not precluded by the purchaser's ignorance of facts from showing the truth. Sherring v. Augustus, 11 C. A. 194, 32 S. W. 450. See Eylar v. Eylar, 60 T. 315; Investors' Mortg. Co. v. Loyd, 11 C. A. 449, 33 S. W. 750; Cadwaller v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 829.

Conveyance being regular on its face, improper taking of wife's acknowledgment cannot affect one taking mortgage from grantee. Forbes v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1097.

Where a married woman, with her husband, occupied her separate property as a homestead, he could not create a permanent easement thereon by permitting the construction of a ditch over it. Harrison v. City of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 515.

Where a mortgage is invalid, as being on the homestead of a husband and wife, an assumption of the payment of the mortgage debt by the wife in a subsequent conveyance of the property to her by her husband does not make the mortgage a lien on the land. Parrish v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1044.

An unmarried man may mortgage his homestead, though the same is exempt from execution. Melton v. Beasley, 56 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 574.

The sale of a homestead under a deed of trust for an indebtedness, part only of which is a valid lien, under the Constitution is void. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 633.

Where B., holding a deed of trust to a homestead, paid taxes thereon at the request of the owners, and they were included in the amount secured by the deed of trust, this gave him a valid lien on the homestead to the amount of the taxes paid. Id.

An unmarried woman may mortgage her homestead, though she is the head of a family of minor children. McGee v. Tinner (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 866.

Where a mortgage by means of a deed absolute on its face was placed on a homestead, it was void so far as the homestead is concerned. O'Neill v. O'Neill (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 729.

The head of a family owning more than 200 acres of land impressed with the homestead character may designate what 200 acres thereof constitutes the homestead, and mortgage the balance, provided that this is done in good faith, and not for the purpose of avoiding the law prohibiting the mortgaging of the homestead, and that the part so designated includes the dwelling and appurtenances thereto. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1063.

A lien, under a mortgage executed after a declaration of homestead on the land, was void, except as to the amount in excess of the 200 acres allowed. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 619.

In determining whether there was an excess of over 200 acres allowed as a homestead in several tracts, in a proceeding to foreclose mortgage liens, the field notes showing an excess were prima facie proof of that fact. Id.

In satisfying a mortgage lien out of land designated as a homestead, held, that any excess over the 200 acres allowed as a homestead should be located out of a tract sold by the homesteader. Id.

A mortgage on the homestead of husband and wife is void when not signed by the wife. Tips v. Gay (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 306.

Commissions paid to procure a loan for the purchase of a homestead, constituting no part of the original contract for the purchase, cannot be secured by a lien on the homestead. James v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 679.

Rights of purchasers and mortgagees.—Where the homestead is conveyed by deed regular in form and duly acknowledged by the wife, and the deed is attacked on account of the insanity of the husband, such deed is not held to be void but only voidable. To avoid a deed the rules of equity demand that the party seeking the rescission must pay back the consideration received under the deed. This applies in case of homestead where the deed is avoided on account of the insanity of the husband. Where the plaintiff asking rescission offers to do equity, and the decree ascertains that plaintiff is owing a sum of money received under the deed, the decree should, on rescinding the contract, order sale of the property for the money owing, after reasonable time for its payment. Pearson v. Cox, 71 T. 246, 9 S. W. 124, 10 Am. St. Rep. 740.

A wife may, by suit, set aside a sale of the homestead made under duress within the knowledge of the grantee. Davis v. Van Wie (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 492.

The husband who alone executed a bond to convey property owned and occupied as a homestead at the time of its execution, who afterwards removed with his family to a new home which he was providing for the family at the time and abandoned the former home, may be compelled in a suit for specific performance to convey the title. Aultman v. Allen, 12 C. A. 227, 33 S. W. 679. If facts exist which would prevent the enforcement of a specific performance of the contract, an action for damages will lie for its breach against the husband when damage has been sustained. Under article 16, section 50, of the state constitution, mortgage liens, deeds of trust and deeds involving a condition of defeasance on the homestead are void; but this does not apply to a contract to convey at a future time when the property shall have lost its homestead character. Goff v. Jones, 70 T. 572, 8 S. W. 525, 8 Am. St. Rep. 619.

A conveyance of the community homestead by the husband, the wife's signature having been obtained by fraud, with general warranty, is effective as a conveyance to the extent of his interest, after the property ceases to be occupied as a homestead. Stallings v. Hullum (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1033; Stewart v. Mackey, 16 T. 57, 67 Am. Dec. 609; Allison v. Shilling, 27 T. 450, 86 Am. Dec. 622; Irion v. Mills, 41 T. 310; Goff v. Jones, 70 T. 572, 8 S. W. 525, 8 Am. St. Rep. 619.

In an action of trespass to try title, an instruction that if plaintiffs knew, before he became indebted to them, that defendant's conveyance of his homestead was fictitious, they could not recover held properly given. Schneider v. Sanders, 26 C. A. 169, 61 S. W. 727.

A purchaser of the community homestead of a husband and wife, after the wife's death, held to have acquired the husband's interest in the community, and also his interest as surviving husband of the separate portion belonging to the wife. Ley v. Hahn, 36 C. A. 208, 81 S. W. 354.

Where a husband and wife gave a deed of their homestead, that the wife understood the instrument to be a mortgage did not warrant a cancellation of the deed. Wilson v. Lewis, 36 C. A. 371, 81 S. W. 834.

In a suit by a wife to cancel a deed of the homestead, an instruction resting defendant's right to a judgment on a showing that the transaction whereby he acquired title was not simulated held erroneous. Id.

A wife held entitled to have a conveyance of homestead set aside because of her ignorance of the true consideration. Johnson v. Callaway (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 178.

Under the facts held there was a fraud of the husband inducing the wife to join in a conveyance, of which the vendee was put on notice. Scoggin v. Mason, 46 C. A. 480, 103 S. W. 831.

A pre-existing debt held not a consideration protecting one as a bona fide purchaser, where the conveyance is attacked by the grantor's wife for his fraud on her. Id.

A grantee in a married woman's deed to her homestead held chargeable with notice of any fraud or concealment on the part of the notary in taking her privy examination and acknowledgment thereto. Blume v. White (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1066.

Cause of action by a married woman to set aside a deed to the homestead held not based solely on the misstatement by the notary of the consideration expressed in the deed, but also to include deception of the notary, the grantee, and plaintiff's husband concerning the real transaction. Id.

Where a community homestead is sold by the husband alone, and thereafter the homestead is abandoned by the husband and wife and a new one is acquired, the deed becomes effective to transfer the title, in the absence of fraud against the rights of the wife. Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 173, 115 S. W. 674.

A warranty deed of a homestead executed by a husband only held not to convey the wife's interest and to operate only by virtue of the covenant of warranty. Vickers v. Peddy, 55 C. A. 259, 118 S. W. 1110.

Persons dealing with a homestead must take notice of the conditions that impress it with the homestead character. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple, 56 C. A. 65, 119 S. W. 728.

A husband's deed to the homestead, in which the wife does not join, conveys the title as against every one but the wife and those claiming under her. Pullman v. Houston (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 69.

Plaintiff and his wife gave a deed of their homestead on the agreement that it was to secure payment of certain indebtedness of plaintiff. Thereafter plaintiff sold his homestead, and at his request the grantee in the trust deed conveyed the property to the purchaser. Held, that such deed was as effectual to convey title as if it had been executed by plaintiff in person. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

Where a deed of trust stated with particularity that it secured only debts supposed to support a lien on a homestead, such as purchase money, taxes, and cash for improvements, this is sufficient to put a prudent person on inquiry as to the nature of the property; and, where such inquiry would have brought full knowledge of the facts, a purchaser at a sale under the deed of trust cannot claim that he had no notice that the property was a homestead. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 633.

Where the owners of land had lived on it from 1874 to their death in 1900, a purchaser under a deed of trust given by them, even after their death and the destruction of the homestead, must take notice of their death and the homestead character of the property at the time the deed of trust was given, regardless of any want of actual knowledge of the facts. Id.

A conveyance of the homestead by a husband alone held not to convey any title to the grantee. Coler v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 664.

Though a mortgage on the homestead in the form of an absolute deed was void as between the parties, it was valid as against the transferee, without notice, of the purchase-money note, so that she was entitled to have the vendor's lien reserved in the deed foreclosed and the land sold to satisfy the debt. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227.

As a rule possession is notice of the possessor's title, and where a grantor by deed, absolute in form, but in fact a mortgage, conveying a homestead, was in actual possession when his grantee executed a trust deed to another, the holder of the purchase-money notes and her assignee were chargeable with notice that the original grantor claimed the land as her homestead, and that her deed was intended as a mortgage. Id.

A wife of a party in a contract of exchange of real estate held not entitled to set aside a conveyance to the adverse party on the ground that she understood notes executed by the adverse party were a part of the consideration, and not an indemnity against liens on property conveyed by the adverse party. Austin v. Rupe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 547.

A wife suing to set aside a deed executed by herself and husband on the ground of fraud held required to show fraud of her husband or the purchaser. Id.

Though the deed of a wife be properly certified by the notary taking her acknowledgment, it may be avoided by her, if the acknowledgment does not speak the truth, and was obtained by fraud, provided the grantee had notice before he paid the purchase money. Stringfellow v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 937.

If execution of a deed by a married woman was procured by fraud, she might attack it, though it had been lawfully delivered, the same as if possession of it had been obtained and record made of it by fraud, so that, in such case, question of delivery is immaterial. Id.

A homestead exemption held not subject to defeat by representations in a deed, executed by a husband and wife in the actual possession of homestead property. Deaton v. Southern Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 294.

Art. 1116. [637] [561] Failing as a conveyance, shall be valid as a contract.—When an instrument in writing, which was intended as a conveyance of real estate, or some interest therein, shall fail, either in whole or in part, to take effect as a conveyance by virtue of the provisions of this chapter, the same shall nevertheless be valid and effectual as a contract upon which a conveyance may be enforced, as far as the rules of law will permit.

See Bedford v. Rayner Cattle Co., 13 C. A. 618, 35 S. W. 931.

Conveyance in general.—A sale of located land before patent vests the legal title in the vendee on the issuance of the patent. Johnson v. Newman, 43 T. 642; Adams v. House, 61 T. 641; Daniel v. Bridges, 73 T. 150, 11 S. W. 121; Lindsay v. Freeman, 83 T. 263, 18 S. W. 727; Ledbetter v. Higbee, 13 C. A. 267, 35 S. W. 801.

A purchaser induced to buy land by the fraudulent representations of the vendor as to its quality, situation and value, which he at the time believed and acted upon, may have the sale rescinded. Dean v. Ingle, 1 U. C. 186.

A sale of a land certificate before location is an executory contract which must be enforced within ten years after there has been a refusal to convey. Fuller v. Coddington, 74 T. 337, 12 S. W. 47; Frost v. Wolf, 77 T. 458, 14 S. W. 440, 19 Am. St. Rep. 761; Howard v. Stubblefield, 79 T. 3, 14 S. W. 1044; Rankin v. Busby (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 678.

A power of sale in a trust deed is suspended by the death of the maker. Where the property is appropriated by the sole legatee the trustee is authorized to sell. Heirs of Rogers v. Watson, 81 T. 400, 17 S. W. 29; Nat. Exch. Bank v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 277.

A disputed lien may be established by parol evidence. Meriwether v. Asbeck (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1101.

Restoring consideration.—See notes under Art. 1106.

Competency of parties.—Under the Spanish law, written assent of the curator and the authority of the judge were essential to a valid alienation of the real estate of a minor. But if there was no curator, and the minor was over fourteen years of age, the sale was valid without such assent, provided there was no lesion and provided the authority of the judge was obtained. Void contract of an infant might be ratified by him, either expressly or tacitly, after arriving at full age, without any of the formalities required by law to give validity to a minor's contract, and such ratification might be inferred from acts done after majority. Means v. Robinson, 7 T. 502; Hunt v. Turner, 9 T. 385, 60 Am. Dec. 167.

At common law the conveyance of real estate by a minor is voidable only, and may be avoided by him after he arrives at full age; and in such case he should offer to restore the purchase money. Kilgore v. Jordan, 17 T. 341; Stuart v. Baker, 17 T. 417; Bingham v. Barley, 55 T. 281, 40 Am. Rep. 801.

A conveyance by a minor, executed under a power of attorney, is held subject to the same general rule. Graves v. Hickman, 59 T. 381.

The rule which requires one who seeks, on reaching the age of twenty-one years, to avoid a deed made during minority, to restore the purchase money does not apply when the purchase money was received by a third party, and never reached the possession of the minor. The fact that such third party was the recognized agent of the minor to receive the purchase money is immaterial. A minor can make no agent to perform an act to his injury, and whether the act be beneficial or injurious is left to the minor's discretion on reaching full age. Vogelsang v. Null, 67 T. 465, 3 S. W. 451.

In trespass to try title brought by one who seeks to avoid a deed alleged to have been made by him during minority and without consideration, he must not only establish that he was a minor when the deed was made, but that no consideration was in fact paid. In such a case, when there is no offer to return a consideration for the land, it is incumbent on the plaintiff to show that he received none. Wade v. Love, 69 T. 522, 7 S. W. 225.

Contracts by minors not founded on an illegal consideration are voidable only, at the instance of the minor, and this rule has been applied to a deed. Marlin v. Kosmyroski (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1042; Cummings v. Powell, 8 T. 84; Stuart v. Baker, 17 T. 418; Bingham v. Barley, 55 T. 285, 40 Am. Rep. 801; Ferguson v. Railway Co., 73 T. 346, 11 S. W. 347; Askey v. Williams, 74 T. 294, 11 S. W. 1101, 5 L. R. A. 176.

CHAPTER ONE

PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS

Art.
1117. Corporations classified.
1118. Public corporations.
1119. Private corporations.

Article 1117. [638] [562] Corporations classified.—Corporations are either public or private. [Act April 23, 1874, p. 120. P. D. 5932. Acts 1873, p. 42.]

Art. 1118. [639] [563] Public corporations.—A public corporation is one that has for its object the government of a portion of the state. [P. D. 5933.]

Art. 1119. [640] [564] Private corporations.—Private corporations are of three kinds: First, religious; second, corporations for charity or benevolence; and, third, corporations for profit. [R. S. 1879, 564. P. D. 5934.]

"Corporation."—A corporation is a "person" within the equal protection of Const. U. S. Amend. 14. State v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 223.

Distinguished from partnership.—Corporation and partnership defined and distinguished. Cameron v. First Nat. Bank, 23 S. W. 23. See McLeary v. Dawson, 87 T. 524, 29 S. W. 1044.

Quasi-public corporations.—A city water company is a quasi-public corporation, governed by the rules of law applicable to such corporations, and its charter may be annulled in a suit by the state for failure to perform corporate acts for a long period of time. City Water Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 259.

CHAPTER TWO

CREATION OF CORPORATIONS

Art.
1120. Private corporations may be created.
1121. For what purposes corporations may be created.
1122. Charter and what it must set forth.
1123. Charter must be subscribed and acknowledged.
1124. Business firm shall give notice of intention to incorporate.
1125. Private corporations for profit must subscribe full amount of stock and pay fifty per cent. of same before being chartered.
1126. Secretary of state to receive, file and record charter, on satisfactory evidence, and payment of fees and franchise tax.
1127. Satisfactory evidence defined.
1128. Secretary of state may require other evidence.
1129. Certain corporations exempt from provisions.

Art.
1130. Subscriptions and payment of stock required of excepted corporations.
1131. Must be filed with secretary of state, etc.
1132. Corporation shall exist from time of filing charter, etc.
1133. Charter may be amended, how.
1134. When amendments shall take effect.
1135. Amendments, what void and what valid.
1136. Renewal of charter of certain benevolent, etc., corporations, how.
1137. Renewal and consolidation of two or more such corporations, etc., how.
1138. Existence of corporation shall not be disputed collaterally.
1139. Legislature may alter, reform or amend.

Article 1120. [641] [565] Private corporations may be created.—Private corporations may be created by the voluntary association of three or more persons for the purposes and in the manner hereinafter mentioned. [Acts 1874, p. 120. Acts 1897, p. 188. P. D. 5935.]

Constitution and general laws.—Under the constitutions of 1846, 1861 and 1866, a corporation could be created by a bill passed by two-thirds of both houses of the legislature, and a charter could be repealed by the same vote, compensation being made for the franchise. Sayles' Constitutions, pp. 211, 247, 323. No provision relating to corporations is found in the constitution of 1869. The constitution of 1876 provides that "no private corporation shall be created except by general laws." Art. 12, secs. 1, 2. General laws concerning corporations were passed December 2, 1871, April 23, 1873 and 1874, August 15, 1876, and the provisions of these acts were substantially incorporated in title 20 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1879. This title of the Revised Statutes was amended by the acts of June 31, 1885 (19th Leg. p. 59); April 30, 1888 (20th Leg., S. S., p. 1); April 24, 1891 (22d Leg. p. 161); April 20, 1893 (23d Leg. p. 109; March 29, 1895 (p. 33); April 30, 1895 (p. 190).

By article 12 of the constitution of 1876 a private corporation can be created only by general laws providing therefor. G. C. Ry. Co. v. G. C. S. Ry. Co., 63 T. 529.

Art. 1121. [642] [566] For what purposes corporations may be created.—The purposes for which private corporations may be formed are:

1. The support of public worship.
2. The support of any benevolent, charitable, educational or missionary undertaking.
3. The support of any literary and scientific undertaking; the maintenance of a library or promotion of painting, music and other fine arts.

For old section 3a, see section 16.

4. The encouragement of agriculture and horticulture by associations for the maintenance of public fairs and exhibitions of stock and farm products.
5. The maintenance of a public or private cemetery or crematory.
6. The construction and maintenance of any species of roads and bridges in connection therewith.
7. The construction and maintenance of a bridge which may be used for any or all modes of travel and transportation.
8. The construction and maintenance of a telegraph and telephone line.
9. The establishment and maintenance of a ferry.
10. The establishment and maintenance of a line of stages.
11. The building and navigation of steamboats and vessels and the carriage of persons and property therein.
12. The supply of water to the public.
13. The manufacture and supply of gas, and the supply of light, heat, and electric motor power, or either of them, to the public by any means.
14. The transaction of any manufacturing or mining business, and the purchase and sale of such goods, wares and merchandise used for such business.
15. The transaction of a printing or publishing business, and in connection therewith, the sale of goods, wares, and merchandise of a stationery and blank book manufacturing business.
16. For the establishment and maintenance of oil companies, with authority to contract for the lease and purchase of the right to prospect for, develop, and use, coal and other minerals, and petroleum; also, the right to erect, build and own, all necessary oil tanks, cars, and pipes, necessary for the operation of the business of the same. [Acts 1897, p. 188.]

For old section 16, see section 70.

17. The erection or repair of any building or improvement, and the accumulation and loaning of money for said purposes, and for the purchase, sale and subdivision of real property in towns, cities and villages, and their suburbs not extending more than two miles beyond their limits and for the accumulation and loaning of money for that purpose. [Acts 1897, p. 189.]

18. The transportation of goods, wares and merchandise, or any valuable thing.

19. The promotion of immigration.

20. The construction and maintenance of sewers.

21. For constructing or acquiring, with power to maintain and operate, street railways and suburban railways and belt lines of railways within and near cities and towns, for the transportation of freight and passengers, with power also to construct, own and operate union depots; and any such company using electricity as the motive power for the operation of its lines shall have the right and authority to supply and sell electric light and power to the public and municipalities; and for the establishment of companies to buy, own, sell and convey right of way upon which to construct railroads; provided, that all street and suburban railways engaged in transporting freight shall be subject to the control of the railroad commission. But no street railway company shall ever be exempted from payment of assessments that may be legally levied or charged against it for street improvement. Any corporation heretofore organized under the general laws of this state, and which now owns or operates with electric power any street or suburban railway within the state, shall be, and the same hereby is, authorized to supply and sell electric light and power to the public or municipalities, and to acquire or otherwise provide the necessary appliances therefor, and may, by proceeding in the manner provided by existing laws, amend its articles of incorporation so as to expressly include such authority. [Acts 1897, p. 189. Acts 1903, p. 62.]

22. The erection and maintenance of market houses and market places.

23. The construction, maintenance and operation of dams, reservoirs, lakes, wells, canals, flumes, laterals, and other necessary appurtenances for the purpose of irrigation, navigation, milling, mining, stock raising and city water works.

24. The purchase and sale of goods, wares and merchandise, and agricultural and farm products. [Acts 1897, p. 189.]

24a. Corporations may be created for the purpose of gathering and harvesting cotton; provided that the authorized capital stock of corporations authorized by this section shall not exceed fifty thousand dollars. [Acts 1911, p. 28, sec. 1.]

24b. Corporations may be created for the purpose of doing a general advertising business. [Id.]

25. The buying and selling of goods, wares and merchandise of any description, by wholesale or wholesale and retail; provided, that no corporation created under this subdivision shall be chartered with a capital stock of less than twenty thousand dollars; and provided, further, that such wholesale and retail business shall not be conducted apart or in separate establishments.

26. The construction of harbors and canals on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

27. The growing, selling and purchasing of seeds, plants, trees, etc., for agricultural, horticultural and ornamental purposes, and to purchase and lease all lands necessary for that purpose.

28. The construction or purchase and maintenance of mills, gins, cotton compresses, grain elevators, wharves, and public warehouses for the storage of products and commodities, and the purchase, sale and storage of products and commodities by grain elevator and public warehouse companies, and the loan of money by such elevator or public warehouse companies.

29. The accumulation and loan of money; but these subdivisions shall not permit incorporations with banking or discounting privileges.

30. The construction and maintenance of stock yards and pens.

31. The construction and maintenance of establishments for slaughtering, refrigerating, canning, curing, and packing meat, and loaning or advancing money by such establishments on any class of live stock.

32. The construction and maintenance of establishments for the preserving and canning of fruits, vegetables and fish.

33. The establishment and maintenance of clearing houses.

34. To construct and maintain water power.

35. The constructing of railroads and bridges for railroad companies.

36. To support and maintain bicycle clubs, and other innocent sports. [Acts 1897, p. 189.]

37. To act as trustee, assignee, executor, administrator, guardian or receiver, when designated by any person, corporation or court so to do, and to do a general fiduciary and depository business; to act as surety and guarantor of the fidelity of employés, trustees, executors, administrators, guardians or others appointed to or assuming the performance of any trust, public or private, under appointment by any court or tribunal, or under contract between private individuals or corporations; also on any bond or bonds that may be required to be filed in any judicial proceeding; also to guarantee any contract or undertaking between individuals, or between private corporations, or between individuals or private corporations and the state and municipal corporations or counties, or between private corporations and individuals; to act as executor, and testamentary guardian, when designated as such by decedents; or to act as administrator or guardian, when appointed by any court having jurisdiction; provided, that, when any executor's, administrator's, or guardian's bond, or any bond required to be filed in any judicial proceeding, may be signed as surety by any corporation organized by authority of this subdivision, and if such corporation shall be deemed and considered by the officer charged by law with the duty of accepting and approving such bond as sufficient security for the amount of such bond, such bond may be accepted and approved by the officer charged by law with the duty of accepting and approving the same without being signed by other sureties than such corporation; and any statute or law to the contrary, or requiring any such bond to be signed by two or more good and sufficient sureties, shall be governed and controlled by the provisions of this subdivision; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to permit any corporation to go upon any bond of any state or county official in this state; provided, that each corporation organized under this subdivision, shall publish in some newspaper of general circulation in the county where such company is organized, on the first day of February of each year, a statement of its condition on the previous thirty-first day of December, showing under oath its assets and liabilities, that a copy of this statement be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and a fee of twenty-five dollars is paid to that officer for filing the same, and that an examination of its affairs be made at any time by the commissioner of insurance and banking, such examination to be at the expense of the company; provided, the guaranty and fidelity companies organized under the provisions of this subdivision shall have a paid up capital stock of not less than one hundred thousand dollars, and shall keep on deposit with the state treasurer money, bonds, or other securities, in an amount not less than fifty thousand dollars, said securities to be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, and that this amount to be kept intact at all times. [Act 1897, p. 190. Acts 1903, p. 197.]

38. The establishment of transportation companies, with power to buy, construct, lease, own, operate, maintain and convey all kinds of steamships, vessels and other water crafts, and may navigate the same between all parts of the globe, and upon rivers, and construct, buy, lease, own, maintain, operate and convey warehouses, docks and wharves, and to buy, lease, receive, own, hold, and enjoy real and personal property necessary in the transaction of its business; to receive, purchase, hold, use and convey such rights, privileges, franchises and property, and to exercise beyond the jurisdiction of this state such power as may be granted to or conferred upon it by any foreign government, state or municipality; to have officers and agents, and to maintain offices at all points at which the company may do business; to act as principal or agent in buying or selling merchandise in all foreign countries; to carry passengers, freight, express and mail. [Acts 1897, p. 191.]

39. For the purpose of doing business in any state or foreign country:

(a) The establishment of land companies to buy, own, sell and convey real estate and minerals, and engage in mining, agriculture and stock raising.

(b) Doing a general business in merchandise and manufactures.

(c) The acquisition, construction, maintenance, operating and owning of power and illuminating plants, and systems of every character.

(d) The acquisition, construction, maintenance, operating and owning of urban and other lines of railway and all other kinds of transportation and communication.

(e) The improvement of harbors and rivers, and the acquisition, construction, ownership and operating of canals, irrigation works, wharves and warehouses, and all kinds of machinery, tools and materials used for all the purposes enumerated in this subdivision; provided, that any corporation organized under the provisions of this subdivision shall only own such real estate in this state as may be necessary for its office; provided, further, that, for every charter granted under the provisions of this act which may include more purposes than are contained in any one paragraph of this subdivision, a separate franchise fee or tax shall be paid to the state of Texas for the additional purposes for which such corporation is organized under the various paragraphs of this subdivision. [Acts 1897, p. 191. Acts 1901, p. 70.]

40. The making, compiling and owning of abstracts of titles to lands, and liens of all characters on any property, or any other abstracts of records of this state or any county thereof, required by law.

41. The improvement of rivers and other waterways in this state, and to render the same navigable for steam vessels and other water crafts, with the authority to charge and collect tolls for the navigation of such rivers and waterways.

42. The protection and preservation and propagation of fish, oysters, and game.

43. The organization and maintenance of volunteer fire companies.

44. The protection of women and children and the prevention of cruelty to animals. [Acts 1897, p. 191.]

45. The erection and maintenance of sanitariums, with the right to acquire, and own lands and town lots; to improve, cultivate, rent and alienate same; to erect storage dams and otherwise develop irrigation on such lands; to erect, acquire and maintain hotels and bath houses on its property; and in conjunction therewith; to erect and maintain training schools and outdoor sports, on its property for the training and pleasure of its patients, and their families; to maintain and carry on such industrial enterprises in conjunction therewith as shall be necessary, to furnish employment to the patients therein, and their families; provided, such corporation shall not own or control more land, than is necessary for the actual conduct and control of a sanitarium. [Acts 1913, p. 114, sec. 1.]

46. The organization of fire, marine, life and live stock insurance companies; provided, that such live stock insurance companies may be organized with an authorized and paid up capital stock of not less than ten thousand dollars; and provided, further, that all insurance companies mentioned in this subdivision shall be in all other respects subject to, and shall comply with, all of the provisions of title 71, of the Revised Statutes of Texas. [Acts 1897, p. 191. Acts 1907, p. 292.]

47. To construct steam and electric plows for breaking, cultivating and draining of lands.

48. The organization of laborers, workingmen, wage earners and farmers to protect themselves in their various pursuits. [Acts 1897, p. 191.]

49. The promoting and taking stock in manufacturing companies or corporations.

50. The organization of mutual fire, or storm, or lightning insurance companies, without an authorized capital; provided, that the members of said mutual fire insurance companies applying for such charters shall be resident citizens of the state of Texas, which fact shall be proven by the affidavit of a credible person accompanying the articles of incorporation when filed with the secretary of state, and such affidavit shall state that the person making the same is cognizant of the facts therein stated; provided, further, that no permit to transact business within this state shall be granted to any mutual fire, or storm, or lightning insurance company without an authorized capital, incorporated under the laws of any other state.

51. The raising, buying and selling of live stock.

52. The establishment and carrying on of dairies and creamery companies. [Id. p. 192.]

53. The construction, maintenance and operation of terminal railways; and any such terminal railway company, in addition to the rights conferred by law upon corporations generally, shall have and exercise all rights and powers conferred upon railroad companies by chapters 8 and 9 of title 115 of the Revised Statutes of Texas relating to railroads, including the right to issue bonds in excess of its authorized capital stock; provided, that its stock and bonds shall be issued under the direction of the railroad commission of this state, in accordance with the stock and bond law regulating the issuance of stocks and bonds by railroads; and the commission shall fix the values of the property, rights and franchises of such terminal railway company; and its stocks and bonds shall not exceed the amount authorized by the railroad commission of Texas; and jurisdiction over the issuance of the bonds herein authorized is hereby expressly vested in the railroad commission; provided, that no such terminal company shall have the right to charge any railroad company for terminal facilities a greater amount than may be, from time to time, designated and established by the railroad commission, which shall have authority to prescribe such rates and rules for the operation of all such terminal companies as will prevent discrimination by them against any common carrier with respect to either charges or service; provided, further, that the provisions of articles 6656, 6657 and 6658 of the Revised Statutes of Texas shall apply to any and all orders, rulings, judgments and decrees of the railroad commission made, entered or held under the provisions of this subdivision in regard to such terminal railway companies. [Acts 1907, p. 300. Acts 1905, p. 211; 1897, p. 130.]

54. To build, maintain and operate a line of railroad to mines, gins, quarries, manufacturing plants, breweries and mills, and to condemn land necessary for the right of way for such road, from and between such mine, gin, quarry, manufacturing plant or mill, and the nearest line of railroad; but no corporation created under the provisions of this subdivision shall have the power to condemn private property until said corporation shall declare itself a public highway and common carrier, thus placing said road under the control of the railroad commission of this state.

55. To excavate, maintain and operate drainage ditches, canals, and flumes, and to condemn land necessary for the right of way and machinery plants for such drainage ditches, canals and flumes. [Acts 1897, p. 192.]

Explanatory.—The legislature skipping a number gave to this subdivision the number 57, and so continued the numbering down to subdivision 65. These numbers have been changed so as to run consecutively.

56. For the organization of cotton exchanges, chambers of commerce and boards of trade, with power to provide and maintain suitable rooms for the conduct of their business, and to establish and maintain uniformity in the commercial usages of cities and towns, to acquire, preserve and disseminate valuable business information, and to adopt rules, regulations and standards of classification, which shall govern all transactions connected with the cotton trade, and with other commodities where standards and classification are required, and generally to promote the interest of trade and increase of facilities of commercial transactions. [Acts 1899, p. 58.]

57. For the organization of companies for growing and selling of fruits, vegetables and tobacco.

58. For the organization of exchanges, with authority to deal in the stocks of mining companies.

59. For conducting the business of undertaker and embalmer. [Acts 1901, p. 70.]

60. The construction, acquiring, maintaining and operating lines of electric, gas, or gasoline, denatured alcohol, or naptha motor railways within and between any cities or towns, in this state, for the transportation of freight, or passengers, or both, with power, also to construct, own and operate union depots and office buildings. But no electric, gas, or gasoline, denatured alcohol, or naptha railways, incorporated under this sub-division, shall ever be exempt from the payment of assessments that may be legally levied, or assessed against it for street improvements. Corporations created under this sub-division shall be, and are authorized to exercise the right of eminent domain for the purpose of acquiring right of way upon which to construct their railway lines, and sites, for depots and power plants, upon the same conditions, and in the same manner, as railroad corporations are now required to do under the laws of this state, and shall have the same rights, power and privileges as are now granted to inter-urban electric railway companies, by chapter 17, of title 115, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, passed at the regular session of the thirty-second legislature, and all the powers of whatsoever kind, or character, conferred by said chapter; provided no property upon which is located a cemetery shall ever be condemned, unless it shall affirmatively be shown, and so found by the court trying such condemnation suits, that it is necessary to take such property, and no other route is possible or practicable; and provided that the electric, gas or gasoline, denatured alcohol or naptha motor railways incorporated under this sub-division, which shall engage in transporting freight shall be subject to the control of the railroad commission. [Acts 1913, p. 67, sec. 1, amended Acts 1913, p. 349, sec. 1.]

That any corporation heretofore organized under the general laws of this state, and which now own, or operates, a line of electric, gas or gasoline, denatured alcohol, or naptha motor railway, within and between, any cities or towns, in this state, shall be and the same hereby is authorized to own and operate office buildings, and may, by proceeding in the manner provided by existing laws amend its articles of incorporation so as to expressly include such authority. [Acts 1913, p. 67, sec. 2, amended Acts 1913, p. 349, sec. 2.]

61. For the organization of companies for the purpose of growing, preparing for market, and selling rice, with power to construct, maintain, and operate such dams, reservoirs, lakes, wells, canals, flumes, laterals, and other appurtenances as may be necessary or convenient for the purpose of irrigating.

62. For the organization of companies for the purpose of growing and selling sugar cane with the right to make and refine sugar, molasses, and all by-products of sugar cane, and to sell the same. [Acts 1905, p. 28.]

63. For the organization of companies for constructing, operating and maintaining causeways, or causeways and bridges, which may be used for any and all modes of travel and transportation, with the right to demand, receive and collect charges as fares or tolls. Any company organized under this subdivision, that shall construct a causeway and bridge of at least one mile in length across any bay or arm of the sea contiguous to a city having not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, within this state, shall have authority to borrow money and issue bonds without being limited in the amount of such issue by the provisions of article 1162. [Acts 1905, p. 87.]

64. For the organization of companies to conduct and carry on a general apiary business, and in connection therewith to manufacture bee hives and bee keepers' supplies, and the purchase and sale of such goods, wares and merchandise used, manufactured and produced in such business. [Acts 1907, p. 11.]

65. For the establishment and maintenance of fishing, hunting and boating clubs; the protection, preservation and propagation of fish and game; the purchase and ownership of such lands and bodies of water as may be desirable in connection therewith; the erection of suitable improvements thereon; and the raising of such live stock for profit only as the preserves of such club will maintain; provided, also, that fishing and hunting clubs heretofore chartered in this state, may amend their charters and take advantage of this law by complying with existing regulations for the amendment to charters of private corporations.

66. The auditing of books, accounts and transactions of persons, firms or corporations, private, public or municipal.

67. To construct, purchase, maintain and operate warehouses at one or more places in the state for the storage of products of the soil, with authority to issue negotiable receipts therefor. Any corporation organized under this subdivision, shall, by provision of its charter, or by amendment thereof, limit the amount of its capital stock that may be owned or controlled directly or indirectly by one stockholder, and the number of votes that may be cast in any stockholders' meeting by one stockholder to not exceeding one thousand dollars of its capital stock.

68. To manufacture and sell denatured alcohol and its by-products. Any corporation organized under this subdivision may, by provision in its charter, or by amendment thereof, limit the amount of its capital stock that may be owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by one stockholder, and the number of votes that may be cast in any stockholders' meeting by one stockholder.

69. To guarantee titles to lands and indemnify the holders thereof against losses by reason of defects in titles. [Acts 1907, p. 291.]

70. The establishment, maintenance, erection or repair of a hotel, office building, opera and play house, apartment house, or steam laundry. [Acts 1897, p. 189.]

71. For the purpose of guaranteeing and assuring the validity of bills of lading and other contracts.

72. Private corporations may be created for, or after being created, may be so amended as to include two or more of the following purposes, namely: The construction or purchase and maintenance of mills and gins; the manufacture and supply to the public, by any means, of ice, gas, light, heat, water and electric motor power, or either, in connection with such mills and gins, or either, the harvesting of grain, or the harvesting and threshing of grain; provided, that the authorized capital stock of all incorporations, authorized by this subdivision shall not exceed two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. [Acts 1903, p. 227.]

That corporations organized or chartered under the laws of this state for the manufacture of ice, in addition to the privileges and power now extended to such corporations, shall be authorized to engage in and transact the business of buying, selling and refrigerating poultry and poultry products, and buying, selling, canning and refrigerating fruits, produce and dairy products. [Acts 1913, p. 267, sec. 1.]

73. Private corporations may be created for or after being created may so amend their charters so as to include two or more of the following purposes, namely: The supply of water to the public for irrigation, power, municipal or domestic purposes; the manufacture of and supply of ice to the public; the generation of and supply of gas, electric light and motor power to the public; the manufacture, supply and sale of carbonated water to the public; the operation of cotton seed oil mills and the operation of cotton compresses.

Provided, that corporations including more than one of the purposes named in this article shall pay the franchise tax provided by law for each of the purposes so included in their said charters or amendments thereto; and provided further that the authorized capital stock of corporations created under or authorized by this article which shall include irrigation and any one or more of the other purposes named in this article, shall not exceed $1,000,000.00; and that the authorized capital stock of corporations created under or authorized by this article which shall include water works, for the supply of water to the public or municipalities, and any one or more of the other purposes named in this article except irrigation, shall not exceed $500,000.00, and that the authorized capital stock of corporation so authorized by this article for any two or more of the purposes named in this article except irrigation and water works or the supply of water to the public, shall not exceed $200,000.00. [Acts 1913, p. 352, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 352, sec. 1, enacts "that article 650b of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1895, as enacted by the thirtieth legislature, Acts 1907, page 294, and that subdivision 73 of article 1121 of title 25 of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911 be so amended as to hereafter read as" above set forth.

74. Corporations may be formed and chartered for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating canals, drains and ditches outside of the corporate limits of cities and towns in any county in the state of Texas. [Acts 1897, p. 109. Acts 1893, p. 109; 1891, p. 161; 1888, S. S., p. 1; 1887, p. 40; 1885, p. 59.]

75. A private corporation may be formed and chartered for the purpose of conducting livery and transfer business with auto and horses drawn vehicles and for the sale of such vehicles. [Acts 1913, p. 174, sec. 1.]

Purposes for which may be created—Several and distinct purposes.—A corporation can be formed for any one or more of the purposes specified in any one of the subdivisions of this article, but not for two or more purposes as designated in two or more of the subdivisions. Ramsey v. Tod, 95 T. 614, 69 S. W. 135, 93 Am. St. Rep. 875.

Corporations cannot be formed for two or more distinct purposes when incorporation for such purposes is only authorized by separate subdivisions of the general incorporation statute; but when several purposes are specified in one subdivision of the statute a corporation may be formed for any one or more of the purposes so specified. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 463.

This subdivision, while giving the right to incorporate for a business consisting of manufacturing and mining, does not authorize incorporation for two businesses—one of manufacturing and the other of mining. Johnston v. Townsend, 103 T. 122, 124 S. W. 417.

A foreign corporation organized as a religious body for the spiritual, moral, and physical reformation of the working classes, for the reclamation of the vicious, criminal, dissolute, and degraded, etc., with the employment of its funds restricted by law to philanthropic, benevolent, and charitable purposes, is not organized for separate and distinct purposes, and its charter is not invalid on that ground. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

Where one of the purposes unauthorized, charter is invalid.—Where one of the purposes declared in the proposed charter is not authorized by law the fact that another purpose mentioned in connection therewith is a lawful one does not save it, and the secretary of state will not be compelled to file it. Miller v. Tod, 95 T. 404, 67 S. W. 484.

Subdivision 1.—A church association failing to organize under the provisions of the statute cannot sue as a corporation or hold real estate. Tunstall v. Wormley, 54 T. 476.

Subdivision 2.—See Art. 1225 et seq.

A corporation can be formed for purposes missionary and educational, the promotion of harmony of feeling and concert of action among Baptists, and to further the interests of the Christian religion. Cranfil v. Hayden, 22 C. A. 656, 55 S. W. 809.

The Daughters of the Republic of Texas which was organized as a corporation for the declared purpose of perpetuating the memory and spirit of the men who achieved Texan independence, and to encourage historical research into the early history of Texas, and promote the celebration of Independence Day of the Texas Republic, and erect monuments upon places made historic in the war for Texan independence, was a corporation organized for "educational" purposes within this subdivision; "education" in the statutory sense meaning not merely instruction received at school, but the whole course of training, both moral, intellectual, and physical. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 197.

Subdivision 14.—Under this subdivision and the statute which requires the preparation of a charter setting forth the purpose for which the corporation is formed a proposed charter stating, "The purpose for which this corporation is formed is the transaction of a manufacturing and mining business and the purchase and sale of goods, wares and merchandise used for such business," was too indefinite, since it might be interpreted as meaning the authorization of the pursuit of both businesses. Johnston v. Townsend, 103 T. 122, 124 S. W. 417.

Subdivision 21.—See, also, Art. 1242 et seq. and Art. 6405 et seq.

A street railway company that has leased its line to a corporation for purpose of transporting freight is equally liable with such corporation for injury to adjacent property. Aycock v. S. A. Brewing Ass'n, 63 S. W. 954, 26 C. A. 341.

The legislature having the power to grant a charter, and the city having granted a franchise to build a street railway for the transportation of freight, an abutting property owner can not restrain such use of the street or have the road declared a nuisance, though he owned the fee and granted the land to the city for street purposes only. Rische v. Texas Transportation Co., 27 C. A. 33, 66 S. W. 326.

A street railway company incorporated under this subdivision could construct and operate a line of road beyond the limits of the city wherein it was chartered to operate, and into a city which was practically a suburb of the other. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Houston Electric Co., 57 C. A. 170, 122 S. W. 287.

That a corporation adopted the name "Houston Belt & Terminal Railway Company," and its charter provides for a route forming a complete "belt" line around the principal part of the city, does not contradict a purpose, plainly declared in the charter, to form a terminal company under subdivision 53, as distinguished from a suburban belt line provided for by this subdivision. Houston B. & T. R. Co. v. Hornberger (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 272.

That the charter of a terminal railroad company, organized under this subdivision as amended by Act May 9, 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 109), restricts the length of its main line to about 20 miles, following a route described in general terms, does not prevent it from condemning land lying more than 20 miles from the specified place of beginning, if the road is being constructed in the reverse direction from the calls in the charter, and such land lies within the 20-mile limit under such construction. Id.

Under Const. art. 1, § 17, prohibiting grant of irrevocable and uncontrollable franchises, incorporation of a terminal railroad company under this subdivision as amended by Act May 9, 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 109) did not constitute a contract which could not be modified by subsequent legislation, as affecting the company's right to accept and rely on the subsequent amendment of the act in 1907 (Acts 30th Leg. c. 157), by acting under the amendment, so as to make the operation of the road a public use, entitling the company to exercise the right of eminent domain as a common carrier, within Const. art. 10, §§ 1, 2. Id.

Subdivision 23.—See Art. 4988.

This subdivision constitutes the body of the law upon the subject of the utilization of water for the promotion of the several industries of which it treats. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co., 98 T. 494, 86 S. W. 11, 107 Am. St. Rep. 640. See Arts. 4984–5107.

Under articles 7256 and 7258, a corporation formed under this subdivision is entitled to acquire land by eminent domain proceedings. Cotulla v. La Salle Water Storage Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 711.

Subdivision 25.—Cited, San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1104.

Subdivision 27.—This subdivision does not authorize the incorporation of a company for the purpose of "growing, selling and purchasing of rice and other agricultural products and to purchase and to lease all lands necessary for that purpose." Miller v. Tod, 95 T. 404, 67 S. W. 484.

Subdivision 28.—See Art. 1322 et seq.

Under this law a corporation can be formed to buy compresses, and it can buy a number of compresses in different parts of the state. The law authorizes the creation of a corporation for this purpose, and the right to forfeit the charter (as being in violation of the anti-trust law) depends upon the intent with which it was procured, and it devolves upon the state to establish an unlawful intent to justify the forfeiture claimed. State v. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co., 95 T. 603, 69 S. W. 61.

Subdivision 29.—See Arts. 380, 386.

Corporation with banking or discounting privileges defined. Blakely v. El Paso Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 26 S. W. 292; Sweeney v. El Paso Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 290.

Subdivision 37.—Statement of liability of a safety deposit company as a bailee for hire, for abstraction of a deposit from a box. Guaranty Trust Co. v. Diltz, 42 C. A. 26, 91 S. W. 596.

Subdivision 39.—This subdivision does not confine the power of a corporation to buy, own, and sell real estate to corporations organized for that purpose alone, and a foreign corporation empowered to purchase and hold land may purchase and hold land in Texas. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

Subdivision 50.—See Arts. 4705, 4725, 4794, 4809, 4839, 4862, 4905, 4919, 4942.

A live stock insurance company formed under this subdivision before the amendment of 1907 went into effect did not have to comply with the requirements of title 71, regulating other insurance companies. The amendment however makes such a company subject to the provisions of title 71. State v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 367.

A live stock insurance company organized under this subdivision to "conduct a live stock insurance company or business upon a mutual or co-operative plan without authorized capital stock and to issue policies of indemnity," to its members, is not such a mutual relief association as is mentioned in article 4972. It is merely a live stock insurance company conducted on the mutual or co-operative plan. State v. Burgess, 101 T. 524, 109 S. W. 923.

Subdivision 56.—This statute is valid, and where a corporation does not comply with it, it is not entitled to the issuance of a permit by the Secretary of State to transact business in this state. English & Scottish Am. Mortg. & Ins. Co. v. Hardy, 93 T. 289, 55 S. W. 169.

This subdivision relates only to the prerequisites to incorporation, and does not regulate the issuance of stock, regulated by Const. art. 12, § 6, providing that no corporation shall issue stock, except for money paid, labor done, or property actually received. McCarthy v. Texas Loan & Guaranty Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 96.

Subdivisions 61 and 62.—Cited, Johnston v. Townsend, 124 S. W. 417.

Subdivision 73.—Cited, Johnston v. Townsend, 124 S. W. 417.

Conveyance to proposed corporation.—This article and article 1122 require a preliminary organization before application is made for a charter for a corporation, and provide that it must also be shown that at least 10 per cent. of the authorized capital has been paid in. The deed to the unorganized corporation conveyed land to the proposed incorporation as a partnership and did not fail for want of a grantee. Smith v. First Nat. Bank of Flatonia, 43 C. A. 495, 95 S. W. 1116.

Art. 1122. [643] [567] Charter and what it must set forth.—A charter must be prepared setting forth:

1. The name of the corporation.
2. The purpose for which it is formed.
3. The place or places where its business is to be transacted.
4. The term for which it is to exist.
5. The number of its directors or trustees, and the names and residences of those who are appointees for the first year.
6. The amount of its capital stock, if any, and the number of shares into which it is divided.
7. The charter of a bridge or ferry company shall also state the stream intended to be crossed by the bridge or ferry.
8. The charter of a road company shall also state: First, the kind of a road intended to be constructed; second, the places from and to which the road is intended to be run; third, the counties through which it is intended to be run; fourth, the estimated length of the road. [P. D. 5937.]

Art. 1123. [644] [568] Charter must be subscribed and acknowledged.—The charter of an intended corporation must be subscribed by three or more persons, two of whom at least must be citizens of this state, and must be acknowledged by them before an officer duly authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds; provided, that all charters for the purposes named in clauses two and three of article 1121 of this chapter and title may be subscribed by married women, who may also be stockholders, officers and directors thereof; and their acts, contracts and deeds shall be as binding and effective for all the purposes of said corporation as if they were males; and the joinder and consent of their husbands and privy examinations separate and apart from them shall not be required. [Acts of 1887, p. 103.]

Art. 1124. [679] [603] Business firm shall give notice of intention to incorporate.—Whenever any banking, mercantile or other business firm desires to become incorporated without a change of the firm name, such firm shall, in addition to the notice of dissolution required at common law, give notice of such intention to become incorporated, for at least four successive weeks, in some newspaper published at the seat of state government, and in the county in which such firm has its principal business office, if there be a newspaper in such county, and, if not, then in some newspaper published in some adjoining county; and until such notice shall have been so published for the full period above named, no change shall take place in the liability of such firm or the members thereof.

Art. 1125. Private corporations for profit must subscribe full amount of stock and pay fifty per cent of same, before being chartered.—The stockholders of all private corporations created for profit with an authorized capital stock under the provisions of this chapter, shall be required, in good faith, to subscribe the full amount of its authorized capital stock, and to pay fifty per cent thereof before said corporation shall be chartered. [Acts 1901, p. 18. Acts 1897, p. 192. Acts 1907, p. 309, sec. 1.]

Art. 1126. Secretary of state to receive, file and record charter, on satisfactory evidence of compliance, and payment of fees and franchise tax.—Whenever the stockholders of any such company shall furnish satisfactory evidence to the secretary of state that the full amount of the authorized capital stock has in good faith been subscribed, and fifty per cent thereof paid in cash, or its equivalent in other property or labor done, the product of which shall be to the company of the actual value at which it was taken, or property actually received, it shall be the duty of said officer, on payment of office fees and franchise tax due, to receive, file and record the charter of such company in his office, and to give his certificate showing the record thereof. [Id.]

Art. 1127. Satisfactory evidence defined.—Satisfactory evidence above mentioned shall consist of the affidavit of those who executed the charter, stating therein:

1. The name, residence and postoffice address of each subscriber to the capital stock of such company.
2. The amount subscribed by each, and the amount paid by each.
3. The cash value of any property received, giving its description, location and from whom and the price at which it was received.
4. The amount, character and value of labor done, from whom, and price at which it was received. [Id.]

Art. 1128. Secretary of state may require other evidence.—If the secretary of state is not satisfied, he may, at the expense of the incorporators, require other and more satisfactory evidence before he shall be required to receive, file and record said charter. [Id.]

Art. 1129. Certain corporations exempt from provisions.—Corporations created under subdivisions 21, 29, 37, 53, 54 and 60 of article 1121, as well as corporations formed for the construction, purchase and maintenance of mills and gins, having a capital stock of not exceeding fifteen thousand dollars, mutual building and loan associations, and also waterworks, ice plants, electric light plants and cotton warehouses in cities of less than ten thousand inhabitants are exempt from the provisions of articles 1125 to 1128, inclusive. [Id.]

Art. 1130. Subscriptions and payment of stock required of excepted corporations.—The stockholders of all private corporations such as are designated in the last preceding article, created for profit and with an authorized capital stock under the provisions of this chapter shall be required to pay in at least one hundred thousand dollars in cash of their authorized capital stock, or to subscribe at least fifty per cent, and pay in at least ten per cent of their authorized capital before they shall be authorized to do business in this state; and whenever the stockholders of any such company shall furnish satisfactory evidence to the secretary of state that at least one hundred thousand dollars of its authorized capital stock has been paid in, in cash, or that at least fifty per cent of its authorized capital has been subscribed and ten per cent paid in, it shall be the duty of said officer to receive, file and record the charter of such company in the office of the secretary of state, upon application and the payment of all fees therefor, and to give his certificate showing the record of such charter and authority to do business thereunder. [Acts 1901, p. 18, sec. 1; modified by Acts 1907, p. 309.]

Art. 1131. [645] [569] Must be filed with secretary of state, etc.—Such charter shall thereupon be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who shall record the same at length in a book to be kept for that purpose, and retain the original on file in his office. A copy of the charter, or of the record thereof, certified under the great seal of the state, shall be evidence of the creation of the corporation. [Act April 23, 1874, sec. 9. P. D. 5940.]

Art. 1132. [646] [570] Corporation shall exist from time of filing charter, etc.—The existence of the corporation shall date from the filing of the charter in the office of the secretary of state, and the certificate of the secretary of state shall be evidence of such filing. [Id. sec. 10. P. D. 5941.]

Existence independent of subscription or payment.—The existence of a corporation is not dependent upon the subscription to its stock or the payment therefor. It follows that when the company files its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state it becomes a corporation in law, and that the owners of its stock and the managers of its business cannot be held liable as partners for debts contracted by it. National Bank v. Texas Investment Co., 74 T. 421, 12 S. W. 101.

—— Dependent upon filing of charter.—In this article and articles 1122 and 1131 it is specifically declared what acts are necessary to bring and the date when the corporation is brought into existence. Performance of all the prerequisites short of filing the charter with the secretary of state is not sufficient to bring the company into existence as a corporation de jure. Nor do we think such acts are sufficient to create an association a corporation de facto. Bank of De Soto v. Reed, 50 C. A. 102, 109 S. W. 259.

Art. 1133. [647] [571] Charter may be amended, how.—Any private corporation heretofore organized or incorporated, or which may hereafter be organized or incorporated, for any of the purposes mentioned in this chapter may amend or change its charter or act of incorporation by filing, authenticated in the manner required by this chapter as to an original charter of incorporation, such amendments or changes with the secretary of state; and, in case of a corporation, created by special act of the legislature, said corporation shall cause the amendments or changes to its charter to be authenticated as required in the case of an original charter of incorporation, and filed with the secretary of state, together with the original charter of such company, and such amendments thereto, or changes therein, if any, as have been made by special act of the legislature; and the same shall be recorded by the secretary of state, followed by the proposed amendments or changes thereof. [Id. sec. 10. P. D. 6011b.]

See Lytle v. Custead, 23 S. W. 451, 4 C. A. 490.

Authority to amend construed.—Corporation's statutory authority to amend its charter held not to extend to a prior stock subscription contract, so as to bind the subscriber to take stock in a corporation with different powers from that contemplated in the subscription. Comanche Cotton Oil Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 528.

Increase of stock by amendment void.—An increase of the capital stock of a corporation from $100,000 to $1,200,000 by an amendment is void. Kampman v. Tarver, 29 S. W. 768, 87 T. 491.

Art. 1134. [648] [572] When amendments shall take effect.—The amendments or changes provided for in the preceding article shall take effect and be in force, from the date of the filing thereof with the secretary of state; and the certificate of the secretary of state shall be evidence of such filing. [Id.]

Art. 1135. [649] [573] Amendments, what void and what valid.—No amendment or change violative of the constitution or laws of this state or any of the provisions of this title shall be of any force or effect; amendments or changes may include additional purpose for which private corporations may be incorporated to that contained in its original or amended charter, as are specified in subdivision 72 of article 1121; but such amendments which so change the original purpose of such corporation as to prevent the execution thereof shall be of no force or effect. [Acts 1903, p. 227.]

Cited, Johnston v. Townsend, 124 S. W. 417.

Art. 1136. Renewal of charter of certain benevolent, etc., corporations, how.—Any private corporation created either by special act of the legislature or under the provisions of the general law for the support of any benevolent, charitable, educational or missionary undertaking, the support of any literary or scientific undertaking, the maintenance of a library, or the promotion of painting, music or other fine arts, whose charter may expire or may have expired by limitation, may revive such charter, with all the privileges and immunities and rights of property, real and personal, exercised and held by it at the date of the expiration of its said charter, by filing, with the consent of a majority of its tockholders, a new charter under the provisions of the general law of the state of Texas, reciting therein such original privileges and immunities and rights of property, and by filing therewith a certified copy of such original expired charter. [Acts 1907, p. 301. Acts 1909, p. 226.]

Art. 1137. Renewal and consolidation of two or more such corporations, etc., how.—Any two or more of such corporations may revive and consolidate their charters under a new corporate name, or under the name of either, with all privileges, immunities and rights of property, real and personal, enjoyed by each at the date of the expiration of their several charters, by, in like manner, filing a charter, which shall recite the fact of consolidation, accompanied by certified copies of said original charters; provided, the provision thereof shall not be construed to relieve any corporation from the payment of occupation taxes, now or hereafter required by law. [Id.]

What constitutes consolidation.—Purchase of property and franchise of one corporation by another does not constitute a consolidation. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Ericson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 92.

Assent of stockholders.—The directors of a private corporation organized for commercial purposes held without authority to consolidate the corporation with another without the consent of the shareholders. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Status of original and consolidated corporation.—Where, after commencing action against a corporation, it was consolidated with another corporation, it did not dissolve the corporation, so as to abate the suit. Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Driskill, 31 C. A. 200, 71 S. W. 997.

Where a corporation is consolidated with another, or becomes merged therein, whether a new corporation is created, or the old corporation is continued, depends on the intention of the parties. Ericson v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle (Sup.) 146 S. W. 160.

Succession to rights of original corporation.—The rights of a corporation or a stockholder held not to inure to the benefit of a new corporation or association. McLean & Dilden v. Sherman & Denison Pressed Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 442.

Liability of new corporation.—Where one corporation sells out to another, the latter held not liable for injuries to a servant of the former. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Anderson, 41 C. A. 342, 91 S. W. 607.

Actions by or against consolidated corporation.—A corporation, which, after executing a contract for the sale of land, transferred all its stock, assets, and liabilities to another corporation, could not sue the purchaser for failure to deliver a share of the produce of the land, as agreed, as a payment on the price. Judson v. Bell (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 169.

Consolidation of corporations of different states.—Corporations created in different states can consolidate only by concurrent legislation, in which event there is a separate and distinct corporation in each state. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World, 39 C. A. 385, 88 S. W. 259.

Where two corporations, created under the laws of different states, attempted to consolidate without legislative authority, the attempt was a nullity, and did not create a de facto corporation. Id.

Corporations created by different states may not consolidate, unless the power to do so is expressly conferred by their charter, or by some statute. Gordon v. American Patriots of Springfield, Ill. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 331.

A consolidation of two corporations created by laws of different states without authority to consolidate held not to create a corporation de facto by user. Id.

Art. 1138. [675] [599] Existence of corporation shall not be disputed collaterally.—No person who assumes an obligation to an ostensible corporation, as such, shall resist the enforcement of such obligation, on the ground that there was in fact no such corporation, until that fact shall have been adjudged in a direct proceeding had for the purpose.

Who may question corporate existence.—The legislature may make the question, whether a corporation has been created or not, depend on the action and determination of some official or tribunal whose determination the courts will have no power to revise. State v. Goowin, 69 T. 55, 5 S. W. 678. See State v. Hoff (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 672.

The validity of a corporation can be questioned only by a quo warranto proceeding. Troutman v. McCleskey, 27 S. W. 173, 7 C. A. 561.

The validity of a corporation cannot be questioned by the corporation in a suit against it, and its legal existence as a bona fide corporation organized under a statute can only be questioned by the state. The Oriental v. Barclay, 16 C. A. 193, 41 S. W. 117; Oriental Inv. Co. v. Sline (Civ. App.) Id. 130; Dillard v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1023; International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239; Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

The rule that the validity of a corporation cannot be attacked collaterally, but can be attacked only by the state in a direct proceeding, is founded on public policy, and is not to be so applied as to defeat the assertion of just legal rights by parties in the courts. Parks v. West, 102 T. 11, 111 S. W. 726.

Art. 1139. [650] [574] Legislature may alter, reform or amend.—All charters or amendments to charters, under the provisions of this chapter, shall be subject to the power of the legislature to alter, reform or amend the same. [Act April 23, 1874, sec. 9.]

DECISIONS IN GENERAL

De facto corporations.—Although a private corporation may not have complied with all the statutory requirements, it is a "de facto corporation." Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

CHAPTER THREE

POWERS AND DUTIES OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, AND DUTIES OF STOCKHOLDERS IN REFERENCE THERETO, ETC.

1141. Unpaid stock payable when; proof of payment.
1142. On default of payment secretary of state to forfeit charter, how.
1143. Notification of forfeiture; record of same; relief from forfeiture within six months, conditions of, etc., revival.
1144. On failure to revive, affairs of corporation wound up; provided right to avoid forfeiture within two years, but no prejudice to creditor.
1145. May increase its capital stock, how.
1146. Watering stock prohibited, forfeiture for violation.
1147. Watered stock and bonds not for money, etc., quo warranto suit to cancel.
1148. Suit may be dismissed or not brought on what conditions.
1149. Remedies cumulative.
1150. Increase in certain cases validated.
1150a. Amendments increasing stock in certain cases validated.
1151. Unpaid increase of stock payable when; forfeiture for default.
1152. May decrease stock, how.
1153. Quorum of directors, and annual elections.
1154. President and secretary to be chosen.
1155. By-laws may be adopted, altered, etc.
1156. May increase number of directors or trustees.

1158. Trustees to be elected to control religious corporation.
1159. Directors shall have general management, etc.
1160. Directors shall cause record to be kept, etc.
1161. Shall report to stockholders and make dividends.
1162. May borrow money.
1163. Existing corporations may accept provisions of this title, etc.
1164. Corporation restricted to objects of its creation.
1165. Restrictions upon creation of debts.
1166. Contributions to political parties or candidates, etc., by corporation officers, etc., forbidden.
1167. Penalty of forfeiture for violation of provisions of either of last three preceding articles.
1168. Stock of corporation is personal estate.

Art.
1169. Directors may require payment of stock.
1170. Stock forfeited, when and how.
1171. Corporation may sue its own members.
1172. Misnomer shall not vitiate.
1173. Corporation may convey lands, how.
1174. Principal office must be kept in state.

Article 1140. [651] [575] General powers of corporations.—Every private corporation, as such, has power:

1. To have succession by its corporate name for the period limited in its charter, not to exceed fifty years, and when no period is limited, for twenty years.

2. To maintain and defend judicial proceedings.

3. To make and use a common seal.

4. To purchase, hold, sell, mortgage or otherwise convey such real and personal estate as the purposes of the corporation shall require, and also to take, hold and convey such other property, real, personal, or mixed, as shall be requisite for such corporation to acquire in order to obtain or secure the payment of any indebtedness or liability due, or belonging to, the corporation.

5. To appoint and remove such subordinate officers and agents as the business of the corporation shall require, and to allow them a suitable compensation.

6. To make by-laws not inconsistent with existing laws for the management of its property, the regulation of its affairs and the transfer of its stock.

7. To enter into any obligation or contract essential to the transaction of its authorized business.

8. To increase or diminish by a vote of its stockholders, cast as its by-laws may direct, the number of its directors or trustees, to be not less than three nor more than twenty-one; provided, that any corporation formed under subdivisions 1, 2 and 3, article 1121, may increase the number of its directors or trustees to not more than twenty-five. [Id. Acts 1907, p. 301. Acts 1909, p. 225. P. D. 5942.]

1. Construction of charter, etc.
2. Corporate powers and liabilities—In general.
3. —— Incidental.
4. —— Sell franchise.
5. —— Purchase own stock.
6. —— Appoint general manager.
7. —— To sue and be sued.
8. —— To act as trustee.
9. —— To enter into partnership.
10. —— Indemnity, guaranty, and suretyship.
11. —— Power of street railway to acquire land.
12. —— Taking notes, etc.
13. —— Sales.
14. —— Issue bonds.
15. Capacity to contract in general.
16. Contracts before incorporation or organization.
17. —— Liability for contracts of promoters.
18. —— Rights on contracts of incorporators.
19. Promoter's withdrawal of subscription.
20. Contracts of employment.
21. Ultra vires contracts.
22. Property and conveyances—Power to convey.
23. —— Conveyance to corporation composed of grantors.
24. —— Power to mortgage.
25. Sale of real estate.
26. —— Lease.
27. Shareholder's purchase from or sale to corporation.
28. Mortgage without seal not void.
29. Bonds and stock.
30. Powers of foreign corporation.
31. Estoppel to deny corporate powers of corporation.
32. —— By receiving and retaining benefits.
33. —— Of third persons.
34. Liens for debts of corporation.

1. Construction of charter, etc.—The rule that the powers bestowed in a written constitution must always be construed as having in view the preservation and continuity of the entity constituted is true, whether applied to voluntary associations, commercial corporations, or to political governments. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

2. Corporate powers and liabilities—In general.—A company incorporated under general law acquires only a corporate existence, and no powers aside from those which the law declares it may exercise, except such as are necessary to the carrying on the business authorized by the charter. The charter of a street railway, incorporated under general law, can confer, in and of itself, no right to use any street, no matter what may be its provisions; such right to use must be acquired from the municipal government. A city has the right to designate what particular portion of its street shall be occupied by the track of an incorporated street railway company. The grant of a right to use a street for a railway track will not preclude the city from granting a like privilege, over the same street, to another company, unless the right granted in the first instance could not be made available if the privilege conferred in the last grant were exercised. If the first grant be general, and the last specifies a particular portion of the street upon which the track may be laid, the enjoyment of the right under the specific grant will be protected when, under it, in the public interest, the road is constructed. Ft. Worth Ry. Co. v. Rosedale Ry. Co., 68 T. 163, 7 S. W. 381. See Schneider v. Sellers (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 126, and Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510.

3. —— Incidental.—In every expressed grant of power to a corporation, there is implied a power to do whatever is necessary or reasonably appropriate to the exercise of such express authority, and a trading corporation expressly authorized to buy and sell merchandise has the right to sell a bill of lumber and take the purchaser's note in payment therefor. Dillard v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1023.

4. —— Sell franchise.—In the absence of statutory authority a corporation can neither sell nor mortgage its corporate existence or franchise; nor will a judicial sale or sale under execution of the property of a corporation carry with it to the purchaser the right to be a corporate body. City Water Co. v. State, 88 T. 600, 32 S. W. 1033.

5. —— Purchase own stock.—A corporation has authority to buy its own stock. Howe Grain & Mercantile Co. v. Jones, 21 C. A. 198, 51 S. W. 24.

In the absence of charter or statutory prohibition, a solvent corporation, with the assent of its stockholders, may purchase its own stock for the purpose of settling differences in its management and preserving its business integrity, though it pays more than the market price therefor. San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1104.

6. —— Appoint general manager.—A corporation has power to appoint a general manager, although such office is not named in its charter or by-laws. Hamm v. Drew, 93 T. 77, 18 S. W. 434.

7. —— To sue and be sued.—Corporations may, as well as individuals, suffer damages from loss of credit and expense of litigation, and when a malicious and oppressive trespass is committed upon their property, they have the right to claim such damages, to be fixed by the jury, as in other cases. Railway Co. v. Telegraph Co., 69 T. 277, 5 S. W. 517, 5 Am. St. Rep. 45.

In a suit against a corporation for damages for its failure to deliver bonds under a contract, and to recover the principal and interest due, the plaintiff is entitled, on a recovery, in the absence of evidence as to the value of the bonds, to judgment for the full amount of the bonds and interest. Railway Co. v. Broussard, 69 T. 617, 7 S. W. 374.

Corporations must sue and be sued by their corporate names. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 288.

Where, at the time a corporation was sued, it had not failed to pay its franchise tax, a condition precedent to its right to do business in the state, it would not be deprived of the right to defend the action by afterwards failing to pay such tax. J. T. Stark Grain Co. v. Harry Bros. Co., 57 C. A. 529, 122 S. W. 947.

A private corporation, in the absence of a charter or statutory provisions to the contrary, has the same capacity to sue and be sued as a natural person, though not expressly conferred. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

8. —— To act as trustee.—A corporation may act as a trustee for any purpose within the scope of its charter or the governing statute. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 197.

9. —— To enter into partnership.—An agreement to receive logs and operate a sawmill held invalid because part of an illegal contract of partnership between a corporation and defendants. Sabine Tram Co. v. Bancroft, 16 C. A. 170, 40 S. W. 837.

A Texas corporation cannot enter into partnership with individuals. Id.

The fact that defendant railroad company owned the greater part of the stock of another company and the same person was president of both corporations did not of itself make them partners nor agents for each other. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. W. T. Meadors & Co., 104 T. 469, 140 S. W. 427.

10. —— Indemnity, guaranty, and suretyship.—Corporation formed solely to manufacture cotton-seed oil, and to gin and bale cotton, could not indorse a firm note, and was hence not liable thereon to the payee. South Texas Nat. Bank v. La Grange Oil-Mill Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 328.

Where a corporation without authority of its charter guarantees the payment of other persons' notes without any consideration, it is not estopped to plead the defense of ultra vires. Deaton Grocery Co. v. International Harvester Co. of America, 47 C. A. 267, 105 S. W. 556.

A corporation chartered for the purpose of buying and selling goods has no power to contract to be responsible for payment of other persons' notes in which it has no interest. Id.

In an action against a corporation as surety on a liquor dealer's bond, the charter of the corporation held to give it implied power to become a surety on such bond. Munoz v. Brassel (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 417.

A corporation not organized to execute contracts of suretyship may be liable as a surety. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 417.

A corporation's guaranty of the payment of a note held ultra vires except as stated. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 222.

A contract of guaranty by a corporation held ultra vires. W. C. Bowman Lumber Co. v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 618.

A corporation has no power to make, indorse, or otherwise become liable on commercial paper for the mere accommodation of another person or corporation. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 833.

A corporation organized to buy and sell cattle had power to guarantee payment of an indebtedness due a bank from a firm as a part of the price of cattle bought by the corporation from such firm. North Texas State Bank v. Crowley-Southerland Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1027.

A corporation, in order to collect an indebtedness due from a partnership, took over all the property of the partnership, agreeing to guarantee an indebtedness of the partnership to a bank, and on the sale of the property to apply the proceeds first to the guaranteed debt. Held, that the transaction was not ultra vires, the corporation having been organized to buy and sell cattle, and the debts involved having arisen from such business. Id.

11. —— Power of street railway to acquire land.—A street railway cannot acquire land by a contract to extend its lines in consideration therefor as these are not the classes of land specified in the statute. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 495.

12. —— Taking notes, etc.—A trading corporation expressly authorized to buy and sell merchandise held to have the right to sell a bill of lumber and take the purchaser's note in payment therefor. Dillard v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1023.

Where the charter gives no power to exchange lands for personal property, the acceptance of a transfer of a note in payment for land sold is void, and a recital of the nature of the transaction in the deed affects subsequent purchasers with notice. Land Co. v. McCormick, 85 T. 416, 23 S. W. 123, 34 Am. St. Rep. 815.

A corporation not created with banking privileges may discount a note. Logan v. Texas Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 8 C. A. 490, 28 S. W. 141.

13. —— Sales.—Where a corporation was organized to manufacture boxes for handling fruit, it cannot be contended that an agreement to procure certificates of exportation for such boxes was ultra vires. Pierpont Mfg. Co. v. Goodman Produce Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 347.

A corporation organized to manufacture and deal in building material and to purchase and sell such material as is necessary in the transaction of its business may not contract for the doing of $1,900 worth of work in excavating and grading for a building and in constructing cement floors thereof, etc., to enable it to sell $1,900 worth of its material. Mitchell v. Hydraulic Bldg. Stone Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 148.

14. —— Issue bonds.—Authority to a corporation to issue bonds for money and property is authority to sell them for such consideration. Western Supply & Mfg. Co. v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 41 C. A. 478, 92 S. W. 986.

15. Capacity to contract in general.—A corporation organized to manufacture building material held not authorized to contract to do excavating. Mitchell v. Hydraulic Bldg. Stone Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 148.

16. Contracts before incorporation or organization.—Rule as to the presumption of the assumption of debt by a corporation formed by a partnership stated. Modern Dairy & Creamery Co. v. Blanke & Hauk Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 153.

17. —— Liability for contracts of promoters.—Corporation liable for expenses of a person in procuring subscriptions. Weatherford, etc., Ry. Co. v. Granger (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 71.

A corporation is not bound for the acts and contracts of its promoters, unless its charter so provides, or it expressly ratifies such acts or contracts after incorporation. Railway Co. v. Granger, 86 T. 350, 24 S. W. 795, 40 Am. St. Rep. 837; Weatherford Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Bonham C. P. Co. v. McKellar, 26 S. W. 1056, 86 T. 694; Modern Dairy & Creamery Co. v. Blanke & Hauk Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 153; American Home Life Ins. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 424; Weathersby v. Texas & Ohio Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 243.

A corporation held liable for a purchase made in its behalf by one acting for a promoter. Lancaster Gin & Compress Co. v. Murray Ginning-System Co., 19 C. A. 110, 47 S. W. 387.

A contract with the promoters of a corporation held to be severable. American Home Life Ins. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 424.

Land purchased by a corporation with notice of a contract entered into by its promoters held subject to a lien for the performance of such contract. Weathersby v. Texas & Ohio Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 243.

The purchase by a corporation of timber lands held not to impose on it liability on a contract of the promoters to purchase an option on such lands; it having no notice of such option contract. Id.

Right of action on contract for personal services made with promoters of corporation held to be against corporation and not against the promoters where, after its organization as contemplated when the contract was made, the services were performed for the corporation. Bradshaw v. Jones (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 695.

18. —— Rights on contracts of incorporators.—Where, subsequent to the execution of a contract between a partnership and another, the partnership was incorporated, the corporation acquired the rights of the partnership under the contract, and was authorized to assign it. Brooks v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 564.

19. Promoter's withdrawal of subscription.—A promoter of an intended corporation may withdraw his subscription before the organization and before any expense or liability has been incurred. Doyle v. Glasscock, 24 T. 200; Hopkins v. Upshur, 20 T. 89, 70 Am. Dec. 375; McCrimmin v. Cooper, 27 T. 113; Patty v. Hillsboro R. M. Co., 23 S. W. 336, 4 C. A. 224. See Railway Co. v. Granger, 24 S. W. 795, 86 T. 350, 40 Am. St. Rep. 837.

20. Contracts of employment.—A contract between a corporation, which had leased an opera house, and an individual, making him manager of the house, etc., held not ultra vires. Markowitz v. Greenwall Theatrical Circuit Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 74, 317.

21. Ultra vires contracts.—When an act of a corporation is ultra vires, but not illegal, the person receiving the benefits thereof cannot repudiate his liability. Walters v. Texas Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 8 C. A. 500, 29 S. W. 51.

Exemplary damages are not allowable against a corporation for breach of a contract. Arkansas Const. Co. v. Eugene, 20 C. A. 601, 50 S. W. 736.

An ultra vires contract of a corporation held wholly void, not merely voidable. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co., 104 T. 576, 140 S. W. 770, 141 S. W. 515.

Corporation, having retained the benefits of a contract, by which it obtained goods in consideration of indorsing notes to pay debts of S., held estopped to claim that the act was ultra vires. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 833.

22. Property and conveyances—Power to convey.—The terms "otherwise convey," as expressed in this article, embrace the power to lease the land which belongs to the corporation. The lease of land of a corporation for a term of years to others to carry on the same kind of business that the company was authorized under its charter to carry on, is not an abandonment by the company of the purposes for which it was organized. Starke v. Guffey Petroleum Co., 98 T. 542, 86 S. W. 3, 4, 4 Ann. Cas. 1057.

23. —— Conveyances to corporation composed of grantors.—A conveyance of land by partners in business to a corporation of which the members of the firm became the only stockholders passes title to the corporation, the stock being a consideration for such transfer. Sayers v. T. L. & M. Co., 78 T. 244, 14 S. W. 578.

24. —— Power to mortgage.—A mortgage of all the property of a private corporation carries with it its franchises. Pumphrey v. Threadgill, 9 C. A. 184, 28 S. W. 450.

A corporation created for a public purpose can mortgage its property. Pumphrey v. Threadgill, 87 T. 573, 30 S. W. 356.

25. Sale of real estate.—The right of a corporation to dispose of the real estate it is authorized to purchase is a necessary incident to its ownership thereof. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

A corporation incorporated to erect buildings and to accumulate and loan funds to purchase real estate, and authorized by subdivision 4 to sell and convey such real estate as the purposes of the corporation may require, has authority to grant to a traction company a right of way over its land. Id.

A resolution of the board of directors of a corporation which empowers the corporation to sell its lands to "members" of the corporation authorizes a sale to the shareholders who are not directors and is valid. Judgment, Nueces Valley Irr. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 633, reversed. Davis v. Nueces Valley Irr. Co., 103 T. 243, 126 S. W. 4.

26. —— Lease.—An oil company can lease its holdings to another for the purpose of mining for oil where it reserves to the corporation a royalty on the product, when such lease is not inconsistent with the purpose for which the corporation was formed, or is in furtherance of the object of its formation. Stark v. Guffey Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1084.

27. Shareholder's purchase from or sale to corporation.—Shareholders of a corporation who are not directors may as a general rule in good faith buy from or sell to the corporation. Davis v. Nueces Valley Irr. Co., 103 T. 243, 126 S. W. 4.

A sale of corporate property to a stockholder not a director, made pursuant to a resolution of the board of directors, is valid in the absence of fraud or unfairness on the part of the stockholder, and the sale needs no ratification. Id.

28. Mortgages—Construction.—A chattel mortgage is not void because the corporation executing it failed to authenticate it by its seal. Fowler v. Bell (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 822. See, also, Bermea Land & Lumber Co. v. Adoue, 20 C. A. 655, 50 S. W. 131.

29. Bonds and stock.—Where stock is issued and disposed of for less than its face value, article 12, section 6 of the constitution does not render it void as to the excess in value over the price paid. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

A sale of bonds by a corporation for cash at ninety-five per cent. of their par value is not prohibited by article 11, section 6 of the constitution. North Side Ry. Co. v. Worthington, 88 T. 562, 30 S. W. 1055.

Bonds issued by one corporation for the benefit of another are ultra vires. Id. See Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

Purchasers of stock under an agreement held to render themselves liable for a deferred payment by putting it out of their power to comply with an option provided in the agreement. Johnson v. Sharp, 56 C. A. 80, 120 S. W. 518.

A corporation not authorized by statute to issue preferred stock could not issue stock which would prefer the holders to creditors of the corporation. Reagan Bale Co. v. Heuermann (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 228.

30. Powers of foreign corporation.—As to the powers of a foreign corporation within this state, see Galveston Land & Imp. Co. v. Parkins (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 256.

31. Estoppel to deny corporate powers of corporation.—The maker of a promissory note payable to a corporation, upon which suit is brought by an innocent holder, cannot defend on the plea of ultra vires. Smith v. White (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 809.

In an action by a corporation on a purchased claim for damages, held, that, though the purchase was ultra vires where the contract was executed, it was binding on the seller, and defendant could not raise the question of ultra vires. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Jeff Chaison Townsite Co., 48 C. A. 555, 107 S. W. 609.

In an action on vendor's lien notes given by a corporation to its president which were held by plaintiff as collateral, the corporation held not entitled to urge the invalidity of their notes in the absence of an offer to reconvey the land for which they were given. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 417.

A corporation entering into an ultra vires contract held entitled to rely on the defense of ultra vires. Mitchell v. Hydraulic Bldg. Stone Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 148; W. C. Bowman Lumber Co. v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 618.

Under this subdivision and article 1162 which gives corporations power to borrow money on the corporate credit and to execute notes therefor, and pledge their property, held, that, where the vice president of a business corporation executed a negotiable note in his own name to pay a debt of the corporation, and indorsed thereon the guaranty of the corporation executed by himself as vice president, and the note was made in double the amount of the indebtedness at the request of the payee, who agreed to fix the balance later, and nearly half of its face was used to discharge the corporate indebtedness, and the corporation had refused to restore such amount, the unauthorized execution of the note by the vice president was merely a misuse of granted power, and not a wholly ultra vires act, and, under the circumstances, the corporation was estopped as against a bona fide purchaser of the note from asserting the vice president's want of authority to execute the guaranty and note. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co., 104 T. 576, 140 S. W. 770, 141 S. W. 515.

32. —— By receiving and retaining benefits.—The makers of a note for borrowed money are estopped from denying the power of the corporation to make the loan. Smith v. White (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 809; Keys v. Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 809; Bond v. Manufacturing Co., 82 T. 309, 18 S. W. 691.

A mutual insurance company cannot defend an action on a policy, where premium has been received, by showing its want of authority to issue the same, either under its own laws or those of the country where the property was situated. Continental Fire Ass'n v. Masonic Temple Co., 26 C. A. 139, 62 S. W. 930.

An ultra vires contract executed by a corporation is not binding on it beyond the benefits received. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 222.

A corporation need not return or offer to return the benefits received by it under an ultra vires contract in order to deny its liability thereon beyond the amount of such benefits. Id.

Where a corporation received a large addition to its assets in consideration of its execution of certain notes to pay debts of S., it, having received and retained the benefits of the contract, was estopped to claim that it was ultra vires. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 833.

Where a corporation has received benefits under a contract made by it, it is estopped to plead ultra vires to an action for breach of it. Kincheloe Irr. Co. v. Hahn Bros. & Co. (Sup.) 146 S. W. 1187.

Where a corporation's ultra vires contract is executory, neither party is estopped to deny its validity; but, where a corporation has purchased its own stock and received the benefits of the contract, it cannot, in an action on notes given therefor, set up ultra vires. San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1104.

33. —— Of third persons.—A party borrowing money from a private corporation, not having legal power to loan money, is estopped from denying its power when sued for the money. Bond v. Terrell Mfg. Co., 82 T. 309, 18 S. W. 691.

34. Liens for debts of corporation.—Under a contract between the organizers of a corporation, which was ratified by the corporation, one of the parties agreeing to buy equipment held to occupy a position with reference to the corporation analogous to that of seller or agent, so that a lien for the price of the materials furnished arose. Panhandle Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 963.

Art. 1141. Unpaid stock payable when; proof of payment.—The stockholders of all corporations chartered as provided in articles 1125 to 1128, inclusive, as modified by article 1129, shall, within two years from the date of the filing of such charter by the secretary of state, pay in the unpaid portion of the capital stock of such company; proof of which shall, within said time, be made to the secretary of state, in the manner provided in articles 1126 to 1128, inclusive, for the filing of charter. [Acts 1907, p. 309, sec. 2.]

Art. 1142. On default of payment, secretary of state to forfeit charter, how.—In case of the failure to pay the unpaid portion of capital stock, and to make proof thereof to the secretary of state within two years from the date of the filing of the charter, the charter of such company shall, because thereof, become forfeited; which forfeiture shall be consummated without judicial ascertainment by the secretary of state entering upon the margin of the ledger kept in his office relating to such corporations the word "forfeited," giving the date and reason therefor. [Id.]

Art. 1143. Notification of forfeiture; record of same; relief from forfeiture within six months, conditions of, etc.; revival.—The secretary of state shall notify such corporation by mailing to the postoffice named as its principal place of business, or to any other place of business of such corporation, addressed in its corporate name, a written or printed statement of the date and fact of such forfeiture; a record of the date and fact of such notice must be kept by such officer; provided, that the stockholders of any such corporation whose charter has been forfeited as above provided who shall, within six months from the date of such forfeiture, and not thereafter, pay in full the unpaid capital stock of such company and furnish to the secretary of state proof of such fact as required herein, and, in addition, shall pay the secretary of state, as fees belonging to his office, the sum of five dollars per month for each month and fractional part thereof between the date of forfeiture and settlement, the company shall be relieved from such forfeiture; and said officer shall write on the margin of said ledger the word "revived," giving the date thereof. [Id.]

Art. 1144. On failure to revive, affairs of corporation wound up; provided right to avoid forfeiture within two years, but no prejudice to creditor.—If the stockholders should fail to cause the charter powers of said corporation to be revived, as just provided, then, and in such event, the affairs of such company shall be administered and wound up as on dissolution; provided, however, the stockholders of any such company shall have the right, at any time within the two years given, to make payment of the unpaid portion of the capital stock, to reduce the same so that by reduction, or reduction and payment, the full amount of the capital stock authorized by such reduction shall be paid, and thus avoid a forfeiture of the charter; but no creditor of said company shall in any wise be prejudiced by such reduction of its capital stock in any claim or cause of action such creditor may have against such company or any stockholder or officer thereof. [Id.]

Art. 1145. [652] [576] May increase its capital stock, how.—A corporation may increase its authorized capital by a two-thirds vote of all its stock; provided, that no stock shall be issued except for money paid, labor done or property actually received. And when such vote is given in favor of the increase, the same may be done by the board of directors, trustees, or managing board, of such corporation; and, upon such increase of stock being made in accordance with the above provisions and certified to the secretary of state by the directors, together with satisfactory proof, which shall be the affidavit of the directors showing that the full amount of the increase has been in good faith subscribed, and fifty per cent thereof paid, and in other respects conforming to the proof required as an original application for charter, or showing that such portion thereof has been subscribed or subscribed and paid, as is required for the corporation, thus increasing its stock, and, if the secretary of state is satisfied that the increase of stock has been made in accordance with law and that the requirements of law have been complied with as to the subscription and payment of stock and in other respects, as on an original application for charter, he shall file such certificate of increase; and thereupon the same shall become a part of the capital stock of such corporation. Such certificate shall be filed and recorded in the same manner as the charter. [Id. sec. 3.]

Increase of more than double invalid.—Where a corporation increases its capital stock more than double its original authorized capital, the increase is invalid whether made at one or more times. This decision is under article 576, R. S. 1879. Berg v. San Antonio St. R. Co., 17 C. A. 291, 42 S. W. 647, 43 S. W. 929.

Art. 1146. Watering stock prohibited; forfeiture for violation.—No corporation, domestic or foreign, doing business in the state, shall issue any stock whatever, except for money paid, labor done, which is reasonably worth at least the sum at which it was taken by the corporation, or property actually received, reasonably worth at least the sum at which it was taken by the company. Any corporation which violates the provisions of this article shall, on proof thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, forfeit its charter, permit or license, as the case may be, and all rights and franchises which it holds under, from or by virtue of the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1147. Watered stock and bonds not for money, etc., quo warranto suit to cancel.—Where any corporation has issued and has outstanding any stocks or bonds, given or issued for any purpose, other than money paid to, labor done for, or property actually received by the corporation, it shall be the duty of the attorney general of this state, when convinced that the facts exist which authorize the action, to institute quo warranto or other appropriate judicial proceedings in some court of competent jurisdiction in Travis county, or in any other county of this state where such corporation may be sued, to have any such stocks or bonds issued in violation of the constitution and statutes of this state, canceled, expunged and held for naught; and, within the meaning of the above, is included any bond or stock given in renewal, or in lieu of any originally issued, for purposes other than those mentioned above, also any issued by any corporation with which the corporation originally issuing any such stock or bonds has merged or been consolidated and given by said issuing corporation, in the place of those originally issued for purposes other than as mentioned above. [Acts 1907, p. 342, sec. 3.]

Art. 1148. Suit may be dismissed or not brought under what conditions.—If any suit authorized under article 1147 has been instituted, the same shall be dismissed at the cost of the defendant, or if not instituted, no action shall be brought, if the defendant corporation shall surrender, or cause to be surrendered, to the court or to the railroad commission of Texas, for destruction, all such illegal stocks complained of, and also the illegal bonds complained of, with proper and legal releases thereof, suitably executed for record, with such other written evidences and documents as may be necessary to show that such stocks or bonds are no longer outstanding against the corporation. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1149. Remedies cumulative.—The rights and remedies given by the last two articles are cumulative, and shall not affect, change or repeal any other remedies or rights now existing in this state for the enforcement, payment, or collection of fines, forfeitures and penalties. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1150. [652a] Increase in certain cases validated.—That in all cases where the amount of the capital stock of any corporation has heretofore been increased by more than one increase thereof to an amount in excess of double the amount of the original capital, and such increase has been made with the sanction of the secretary of state, under his construction of the law, such increase shall be, and the same is hereby, validated and declared legal. [Acts 1893, p. 123.]

Art. 1150a. Amendments increasing stock in certain cases validated.—That all charter amendments increasing the authorized capital stock of corporations organized under the terms of chapter 117, Acts of the 26th Legislature, approved May 15, 1899, and which were filed in the office of the secretary of state after the taking effect of an act of the legislature passed in 1907, page 309 Session Acts, approved April 25, 1907, and prior to the taking effect of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, be and such charter amendments increasing the authorized capital stock of such corporations are in all things as to the said increase of capital stock fully validated; provided that all stock issued or hereafter to be issued under any such amendment or amendments must have been or shall be fully paid up, and such corporations coming within the purview of this Act shall not receive any of the benefits hereof unless such corporation seeking the same shall within twelve months from the taking effect of this Act make to the secretary of state satisfactory proof by the affidavit of their president, treasurer, secretary and directors, and by such other evidence as may be required by the secretary of state, showing that all such stock at the time of making such proof has been fully paid in the manner and to the extent as is required by the constitution and laws of this state, and thereupon shall receive a certificate from the secretary of state, under the seal of the state, that such proof has been made and that such corporation has fully complied with the law and with the provisions of this Act; provided further that this Act is applicable alone to such domestic corporations as were organized under the terms of chapter 117, Acts of the 26th Legislature, approved May 15th, 1899, that by amendment or amendments to their charter increased their authorized capital stock within the dates named above, and no provision hereof shall be availed of or be made applicable to any foreign corporation doing business in this state; and provided further that if at the expiration of twelve month from the taking effect of this Act any amount of stock authorized to be issued under any amendment or amendments to charters mentioned above, shall not have been fully paid up and proof thereof as provided above made to the secretary of state of the fact of such payment, then to the extent that the amount of the authorized capital stock comprehended by such amendment or amendments shall remain unpaid shall not be and remain any part of the authorized capital stock of said corporation, and the same shall be decreased down to the amount actually paid and proven by an amendment to said charter filed and approved under the provisions of chapter 3, title 25, Revised Civil Statutes of 1911; and provided further that nothing in this Act shall be construed to validate any stocks or bonds issued by any such corporation, in violation of section 6, article 12 of the constitution of this state or of any statutes passed thereupon. [Acts 1913, p. 420, sec. 1.]

Art. 1151. Unpaid increase of stock payable when; forfeiture for default.—In case of failure by the stockholders to pay the unpaid portion of an increase of stock within two years from the date of the filing of the certificate of increase in the office of the secretary of state, the charter of such company shall be forfeited; and the provisions of article 1145 of this chapter shall govern the same, as in case of an original creation of a corporation. [Acts 1907, p. 311, sec. 3.]

Art. 1152. May decrease stock, how.—A corporation may decrease its capital stock by such amount as its stockholders may decide by a two-thirds vote of all its outstanding stock, in like manner as is required for an increase as above provided; but no such decrease shall prejudice the rights of any creditor of such corporation in any claim or cause of action such creditor may have against the company, or any stockholder or director thereof; nor shall such decrease become effective until full proof is made by affidavit of the directors to the secretary of state of the financial condition of such corporation, giving therein all its assets and liabilities, with names and postoffice addresses of all creditors and amount due each; and the secretary of state may require, as a condition precedent to the filing of such certificate of decrease, that the debts of such corporation be paid or reduced. [Id. sec. 3.]

Purchase of own stock.—A by-law of a corporation providing for the purchase of its own stock held valid. Howe Grain & Mercantile Co. v. Jones, 21 C. A. 198, 51 S. W. 24.

These articles do not prohibit a corporation from purchasing its own stock to settle differences in its management and preserving its business integrity, with the intention of reissuing and selling it again, especially where the seller knew of the directors' resolutions setting forth such intention. San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1104.

When a corporation buys its own stock, the capital stock is not reduced by that amount, nor is the stock merged. Id.

Art. 1153. [665] [579] Quorum of directors and annual elections.—A majority of the directors or trustees shall constitute a quorum, and be competent to fill vacancies in the board, and to transact all business of the corporation. An annual election shall be held for directors or trustees, at such time and place as the by-laws of the corporation may require. [Id. sec. 15. P. D. 5946.]

Pecuniary interest of director.—Resolutions affecting the pecuniary interests of a director are void when such director was necessary to constitute a quorum. Railway Co. v. Adams, 26 S. W. 1040, 87 T. 125.

Art. 1154. [656] [580] President and secretary to be chosen.—The directors or trustees shall choose one of their number president, and shall appoint a secretary and treasurer and such other officers as they may deem necessary for the corporation. [Id. sec. 16. P. D. 5947.]

Directors have general management.—Under article 1159, providing that the directors of a corporation shall have the general management of its affairs, and this article, corporate powers can only be exercised under the authority of the directors. Standard Underground Cable Co. v. Southern Independent Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 429.

President's powers over corporate assets.—See Toyaho Creek Irr. Co. v. Hutchins, 21 C. A. 274, 52 S. W. 101, and Aransas Pass Harbor Co. v. Manning, 94 T. 558, 63 S. W. 627.

Vice-president.—In the absence of a by-law conferring the power, a vice-president has no authority to bind the company by a contract of employment. Railway Co. v. Faulkner, 88 T. 649, 32 S. W. 883.

Art. 1155. [657] [581] By-laws may be adopted, altered, etc.—The directors or trustees may adopt by-laws for the government of the corporation; but such by-laws may be altered, changed or amended by a majority vote of the stockholders at any election or special meeting ordered for that purpose by the directors or trustees, on a written application of a majority of the stockholders or members. [Id. sec. 17. P. D. 5948.]

Power to enact by-laws construed.—Where the directors of a corporation are given the right to enact by-laws for the government thereof, the power is not unlimited, but is only such as will be in harmony with the powers the directors are supposed to exercise for the purposes sought to be accomplished. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Effect.—The by-laws of a corporation govern in all cases to which they are applicable. B. & L. Ass'n v. Abbott, 85 T. 220, 20 S. W. 118.

Art. 1156. [658] [582] May increase number of directors or trustees.—All corporations heretofore created, and now in existence, under any law of this state, are hereby authorized to increase the number of directors or trustees of any such corporation. [Id. sec. 18. P. D. 5949.]

Amendment of charter not necessary.—An increase of the number of directors can be made without an amendment of the charter. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

Art. 1157. [659] [583] Failure to elect directors shall not dissolve, etc.—In case it should happen that an election for directors or trustees should not be held on the day appointed by the by-laws of any corporation, such corporation shall not, for that reason, be deemed to be dissolved; but it shall be lawful on any other day to hold a meeting and elect its directors or trustees, in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-laws thereof. [Id. sec. 19. P. D. 5950.]

Ground for forfeiture.—The failure of a corporation to elect directors or officers or to perform any corporate act for a long period of time, and the attempted sale of its property, are sufficient grounds for forfeiting its charter. City Water Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 259.

Art. 1158. [660] [584] Trustees to be elected to control religious corporation.—The secular affairs of a religious corporation shall be under the control of a board of trustees, to be elected by the members of such corporation; and the title to all property of any such corporation shall vest in such trustees. [Id. sec. 20. P. D. 5951.]

Devise construed.—The language of the will that said "that the said church shall distribute the yearly income from the same (the land) to its dependent orphans and members as above directed" may properly be construed to mean that the church by its governing officers or its trustees charged with the management of its business affairs, shall make the distribution referred to. Banner v. Rolf, 43 C. A. 88, 94 S. W. 1128.

Art. 1159. [661] [585] Directors shall have general management, etc.—The directors or trustees shall have the general management of the affairs of the corporation, and may dispose of the residue of the capital stock, at any time remaining unsubscribed, in such manner as the by-laws may prescribe. [Id. sec. 21. P. D. 5952.]

1. Delegation of authority.
2. Compensation — Resolutions providing therefor.
3. —— By-laws providing therefor.
4. Management of corporate affairs.
5. Rights as creditors—Pledge.
6. Corporate property, funds, etc.—Conversion.
7. —— Purchase and sale of.
8. Individual profits, etc., from corporate business.
9. Dealings with corporation or shareholders.
10. Officers, etc., of different corporations.

25. —— Wrongful acts.
26. —— Persons entitled to question authority of agent, etc.
27. —— Estoppel to deny authority or acts.
28. —— Ratification and repudiation.
29. —— Notice to officers, and agents as affecting corporation.
30. —— Notice of authority of agents, etc.
31. —— Evidence as to authority—Sufficiency.
32. —— Bonds—Foreclosure.
33. —— Torts—Scope of authority.
34. —— Exemplary damages.
35. —— Minority Stockholders—Rights of.

1. Delegation of authority.—The board of directors of a corporation cannot confer upon others power to discharge duties involving judgment and discretion, except in the ordinary business of the corporation, unless authorized by the charter. Temple v. Dodge, 89 T. 69, 32 S. W. 514, 33 S. W. 222.

The nondelegable duties of a private corporation consist of those primary duties which the law as a matter of public policy imposes as a condition on which the corporation shall exist and carry on business which may injuriously affect the person or property of another, and the failure to perform that class of duties is a personal omission of the corporation, and, if such failure is the result of negligence, the negligence is that of the corporation. Jacksonville Ice & Electric Co. v. Moses (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 379.

2. Compensation—Resolutions providing therefor.—Resolution of directors fixing the salary of one of them as treasurer held void, so that the money appropriated by him as salary could be recovered for the corporation. Greathouse v. Martin (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 385.

3. —— By-laws providing therefor.—By-laws of corporation construed, and held that, on absence of president through sickness, and performance of duties by vice president, the latter is entitled to the salary of the office. Brown v. Galveston Wharf Co. (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 41.

In the absence of a provision in the by-laws therefor, one officer is not entitled to compensation for performing duties of another officer during latter's absence. Brown v. Galveston Wharf Co., 92 T. 520, 50 S. W. 126.

In the absence of a provision in by-laws for deductions for absences, an officer is entitled to salary for full term as an incident of his office, though his absences were without leave. Id.

Where a director of a corporation and his dummies fixed the salary of the treasurer, and then elected him to that office, the resolution was void and the money appropriated for such salary could be recovered in a suit for the benefit of the corporation. Greathouse v. Martin, 100 T. 99, 94 S. W. 322.

4. Management of corporate affairs.—Whether the president of an insurance company willingly or unintentionally by culpable negligence, ostensibly received for its benefit forged municipal bonds in exchange for stock, he is responsible to make good the default. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Wiseman, 103 T. 286, 124 S. W. 621, 126 S. W. 1109.

5. Rights as creditors—Pledge.—A pledge of corporate property by directors of the corporation to themselves, without the consent of all the stockholders, held void. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 97 T. 31, 75 S. W. 7, 104 Am. St. Rep. 835.

6. Corporate property, funds, etc.—Conversion.—Directors of a corporation directing the use of money paid on stock subscriptions for the payment of obligations contracted prior to filing the charter held liable for conversion at suit of the corporation's creditors. Bank of De Soto v. Reed, 50 C. A. 102, 109 S. W. 256.

7. —— Purchase and sale of.—Where directors of a corporation sold property held by one of them in trust for it, the fact that a subsequent survey disclosed that there was an excess of 50 acres above what all the parties supposed at the time of the sale would not render the sale invalid as fraudulent. Tenison v. Patton, 95 T. 284, 67 S. W. 92.

If directors of a corporation make a valid sale of property which one of them held in trust for it, the members of the corporation cannot subsequently invoke the principle that a trustee cannot deal with the trust to his own profit, though the trustee effects a subsequent resale and receives commissions therefor. Id.

A sale of corporate property made by the president of a corporation to his wife held voidable. Davis v. Nueces Valley Irr. Co., 103 T. 243, 126 S. W. 4.

8. Individual profits, etc., from corporate business.—Evidence considered, and held that defendant's position as director and trustee of a corporation did not conclusively render a sale of its property by the directors voidable, though he subsequently profited thereby. Tenison v. Patton, 95 T. 284, 67 S. W. 92.

A director of a railroad company held without authority to obtain a right of way from himself, and bind the company to perpetually maintain a depot and line of railway in a certain place. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Logue (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 11.

Execution of corporate note and deed of trust by president of private corporation as security for his own debt held fraudulent. Wharton v. Washington County State Bank (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 699.

9. Dealings with corporation or shareholders.—Right of directors, sureties on a corporate note, to bid in the property secured by trust deed at a sale thereof to protect their interest, determined. College Park Electric Belt Line v. Ide, 15 C. A. 273, 40 S. W. 64.

A contract made by a corporation with some of its directors held voidable, and not void. Farwell v. Babcock, 27 C. A. 162, 65 S. W. 509.

An agreement between a director of a corporation and the corporation that property secured by the former should be his individual property is valid. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

While one director may contract with a corporation, the entire board of directors cannot do so. Id.

A stipulation in a contract between two street railway companies, made for the benefit of the directors of one of them, held void. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 97 T. 31, 75 S. W. 7, 104 Am. St. Rep. 835.

President of a corporation cannot acquire title to property at a trustee's sale made merely to clear the title of the corporation to that property. Id.

A corporation held not estopped to sue to set aside illegal conveyances of its property authorized by former directors because other persons acquired the corporation's stock with notice. Nueces Valley Irr. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 633.

Where a prior board of directors of a corporation illegally transferred certain of its property, a ratification of such transactions by a new board not consisting of all the stockholders did not validate the conveyances. Id.

Where certain corporate conveyances were invalid, but not fraudulent, the corporation will be required to refund the purchase price as a condition to the cancellation of the conveyances. Id.

While a corporation at its mere option cannot avoid a contract with one of its directors, it may avoid a trade affecting its interests made by and with directors acting for both parties. Id.

Directors of a corporation held not entitled to authorize its president to convey the corporation's property to such directors and to his wife. Id.

A director of a corporation cannot act in the matter in which his interest is adverse to the corporation. Id.

The directors of a corporation may not deal with it, where their official action is necessary to authorize the transaction. Judgment, Nueces Valley Irr. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 633, reversed. Davis v. Nueces Valley Irr. Co., 103 T. 243, 126 S. W. 4.

The directors of a corporation may purchase its bonds or take them as security for personally indorsing corporate paper, providing the transaction is free from any taint of fraud or unfairness. Medford v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 876.

10. Officers, etc., of different corporations.—In the absence of fraud, corporations having officers in common will not deprive them of the right to contract together. City Nat. Bank of Texarkana v. Merchants' & Planters' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 338.

10½. Actions—By stockholders.—When a corporation, in violation of its duty, refuses to bring a suit, to the injury of a stockholder, he may institute the suit. Cowles v. Glass (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 293. Citing Cates v. Sparkman, 73 T. 619, 11 S. W. 846, 15 Am. St. Rep. 806; Becker v. Real Estate Co., 80 T. 475, 15 S. W. 1094.

11. —— Between corporation and officers.—Where an agent of a corporation retained profits belonging to the company, the corporation might recover them, although the directors had acquiesced in his retaining them. Moore v. Waco Building Ass'n, 19 C. A. 68, 45 S. W. 974.

12. —— Between shareholders and officers.—Stockholders of a bank held entitled to recover against the cashier for individual profits retained by him from a transaction relating to bank property. Tenison v. Patton (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 810.

Where the directors of a corporation illegally conveyed its property to themselves and others, a nonassenting stockholder could require the corporation to sue to vacate the conveyances, and on its failure could sue in his own name. Nueces Valley Irr. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 633.

A conspiracy among the officers of a corporation to defraud a stockholder affords no cause of action unless it is effective. Caffall v. Bandera Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 105.

13. Representation by officers and agents.—A corporation may transact business by its agents beyond the limits of its domicile. Franco-Texan Land Co. v. Laigle, 59 T. 339; Rio Grande Cattle Co. v. Burns, 82 T. 50, 17 S. W. 1043.

A corporation may be bound by acts of acquiescence in a transaction which was irregular or in excess of the power of its officer. Fort Worth Pub. Co. v. Hitson, 80 T. 217, 14 S. W. 843, 16 S. W. 551. See State v. Broach (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 86.

The authority of a president, as agent of the corporation, must be found in organic law of the corporation, in a delegation of authority by its directors, or be implied from custom or habit of doing business. Gulf Grocery Co. v. Crews (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 654.

14. —— Who may represent.—A director of a corporation is without authority to act in a matter in which his interest is adverse to that of the corporation. San Antonio St. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 26 S. W. 1040, 87 T. 125.

Individual directors, or a majority of stockholders, acting separately, cannot bind a corporation to pay for an improvement on its land. Nicholstone City Co. v. Smalley, 21 C. A. 210, 51 S. W. 527.

The general power of the officers of a private corporation to perform all corporate acts refers to the ordinary business transactions of the corporation, and does not include the power to destroy the body itself, or the right to enlarge its capital stock. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

When one corporation makes use of another as its instrument, the principal corporation is represented by the agents of the subcorporation, and its liability is the same as if it had done the business in its own name. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Sizemore, 53 C. A. 491, 116 S. W. 403.

A general manager of a corporation is its general agent; that is, one authorized to transact any business in which it may be engaged. Booker-Jones Oil Co. v. National Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 815, denying second application for rehearing (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 623.

Under this article and article 1154, by which the directors or trustees of a corporation shall choose one of its number president, corporate powers can only be exercised under the authority of the directors. Standard Underground Cable Co. v. Southern Independent Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 429.

In the absence of any authority of any agent of a corporation to bind it by contract, a contract purporting to perpetually bind the corporation to perform a specified act is not binding on it. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Logue (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 11.

Under this article and articles 1160, 6445, no corporate power may be exercised by any one except the board of directors, or by an agent specially empowered by the board to act for them, and an officer of the board may not bind the corporation by virtue of his position, but there must be action by the board either in performing the act or authorizing its performance, and such authority may be inferred from the surrounding circumstances. Id.

A loan company making a usurious contract through its general agent and manager is bound by his acts and statements, notwithstanding undisclosed limitation of his authority of which the borrower had no notice. Interstate Savings & Trust Co. v. Hornsby (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 960.

An act done under the direction of defendant's manager breaches its contract none the less because of the person doing it not being its employé. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1066.

A bill of sale held not the act of a corporation because the word "president" was signed after the name of one of several stockholders who owned all of the stock, executing it in their own names. Inman v. Brown (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 652.

15. —— Actual or apparent authority.—The authority of an agent of a corporation must depend, as that of the agent of a person, on the terms of his appointment; and such agencies differ, in this respect, only in that a corporation cannot empower an agent to do any act which may not lawfully be done under its charter, while a person may empower his agent to do any act not forbidden by law. Acts by an officer of a corporation in excess of power conferred by the charter are void, in the sense that they can have no effect to divest the corporation of right in or to any property belonging to it. Land Co. v. McCormick, 85 T. 416, 23 S. W. 123, 34 Am. St. Rep. 815.

An officer of a corporation having authority to make a regulation has authority to waive it. American Cotton Bale Improvement Co. v. Forsgard (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 475.

Notwithstanding a regulation by a corporation that goods should not be sold on its account except on a written order, it is liable for goods delivered without an order, if its president promised payment therefor. Id.

A cashier of a bank is not authorized to make an agreement with a party the effect of which is to change a written contract between the said party and the bank. Dycus v. Traders' Bank & Trust Co., 52 C. A. 175, 113 S. W. 329.

A corporation is bound by oral or written contracts made by its authorized agents legally empowered to make contracts. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Logue (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 11.

An act done under the direction of defendant's manager breaches its contract none the less because of the person doing it not being its employé. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1066.

20. —— Purchases, sales, and warranties.—A contract of sale not binding upon a company because made in its behalf by an agent without authority to do so is not binding upon the other party. American Brewing Ass'n v. Gossett (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 357.

Action of president of telephone company in purporting to undertake to pay plaintiff company for goods sold by it to another held not authorized by the by-laws of defendant company or by its board of directors, so that the company was not liable. Standard Underground Cable Co. v. Southern Independent Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 429.

The contract of the president of a lumber company for the purchase of an option on a large tract of timber land held not binding on the corporation; such purchase not being a matter in the ordinary course of the business of the company. Weathersby v. Texas & Ohio Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 243.

A president of a wholesale grocery company held not expressly authorized to make a contract for the purchase of a stock of goods and fixtures. Gulf Grocery Co. v. Crews (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 654.

Where the general manager and sales agent of a land company sold land without authority, neither the sale, nor agreements leading up thereto, were binding upon the corporation unless ratified. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

21. —— Collections and payments.—A telephone company's lineman held to have no authority to receive telephone rental. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Luckett (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 856.

22. —— Bonds and mortgages.—One holding bonds pledged as collateral security held entitled to prove them up to the extent of their face value, and have a distribution out of the funds accruing from a sale under a foreclosure, on the basis of the bonds, to the extent of the amount of his primary debt and interest. Western Supply & Mfg. Co. v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 41 C. A. 478, 92 S. W. 986.

The action of the directors in pledging bonds of their corporation as security for the corporation's note, upon which they were sureties as individuals, was not void. Medford v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 876.

Where the bonds of a corporation had been pledged as security for a loan, the directors could waive foreclosure of the pledge and thereby validate a sale of the bonds by the creditor to purchasers having no fiduciary relation to the corporation. Id.

23. —— Compromises.—An agreement for the compromise of a claim against a corporation, made on behalf of the corporation by two of its stockholders, held binding upon both parties. W. F. Taylor Co. v. Baines Grocery Co., 31 C. A. 385, 72 S. W. 260.

24. —— Representations.—A corporation is not bound by the representations of individual trustees. Its representations must be made by the corporation itself, acting through its board of trustees or directors having charge of its affairs. Kolp v. Specht, 11 C. A. 685, 33 S. W. 714.

Representations of an officer or agent of a corporation will not create a liability against the corporation unless concerning a matter within the scope of the corporation's powers and of the agent's authority. Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 97 T. 536, 80 S. W. 601, 104 Am. St. Rep. 879.

On an issue whether a release of a carrier from liability for injuries to a passenger had been obtained by fraud, held, that the representations of a physician employed by defendant were binding on it. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Shuford, 36 C. A. 251, 81 S. W. 1189.

25. —— Wrongful acts.—It is not necessary to liability of an irrigation company for false representations of its general manager that the person applying for the information should have known his purpose. Cleghon v. Barstow Irr. Co., 41 C. A. 531, 93 S. W. 1020.

In an action against a corporation for damages for conspiring to injure plaintiffs' business, the corporation held liable for the conduct and statements of its president. American Freehold Land Mortgage Co. of London v. Brown (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 856.

While a contract with a corporation may be rescinded for false representations by the corporate officers or agents, though the corporation had no knowledge of and did not consent to such representations, the corporation is not liable in damages as for deceit, unless it authorized the making of the representations. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Seidel, 52 C. A. 278, 113 S. W. 945.

Where the bonds of a corporation were pledged as security for the corporation's note and later were purchased from the creditor by the directors of the corporation at their full face value for cash, and no objection was made to the transaction for ten years, the purchasers of the property of the corporation under a conveyance, recognizing the validity and priority of this security, could not assail the transaction. Medford v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 876.

That an irrigation company supplied water upon the terms specified in an unauthorized verbal contract executed by its agent, and collected the money therefor, did not charge the company with notice of the contract and estop it from denying the authority of its agent. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

28. —— Ratification and repudiation.—To make the master liable in punitory damages for the torts of the servant, a ratification may be shown by an adoption of the act. A ratification by a corporation must be the act of some chief officer of the company. Railway Co. v. Reed, 80 T. 362, 15 S. W. 1105, 26 Am. St. Rep. 749.

Directors of a corporation may ratify the act of its president in assigning a chose in action in favor of the corporation, without adopting a resolution and having it spread on the corporation's minutes. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 93 T. 378, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562.

Ratification of a contract of employment by the vice president of a corporation held to relate back to the beginning of the transaction, and to validate the contract, though originally made by the corporation's secretary and treasurer without authority. Peach River Lumber Co. v. Ayers, 41 C. A. 334, 91 S. W. 387.

That a corporation received and retained the benefit of an unauthorized agreement by one of its officers held not to be a ratification thereof; the corporation being without knowledge of the agreement. Hurlbut v. Gainor, 45 C. A. 588, 103 S. W. 409.

A contract made by an agent of a corporation held ratified by the corporation. Hayward Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 403.

Where the president of a railroad company assumed to contract on behalf of the company with citizens of a town to extend the line in consideration of their subscriptions, and the company appropriated and used the right of way obtained under the contract, it thereby adopted the contract. Texas & G. Ry. Co. v. Whiteside, 55 C. A. 593, 119 S. W. 126.

A corporation may ratify by passive acquiescence, as well as by affirmative action, the unauthorized acts of its agents, and its acquiescence, with knowledge if continued for a considerable time, operates as a ratification. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

When knowledge is brought home to a corporation of the unauthorized act of an agent, it must promptly disavow it, or it will be held to have ratified the act. Id.

If the bringing of a suit in the name of a private corporation without authority of the governing body was illegal, the subsequent ratification of such action by the governing body at a regular meeting in proper form operated to legalize the action from the beginning. De Zavala v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 160.

Sales made by an officer of a corporation to his wife held ratified. Davis v. Nueces Valley Irr. Co., 103 T. 243, 126 S. W. 4.

A ratification, if made with full knowledge of the material facts, is sufficient without reference to knowledge or lack of knowledge of the law. Id.

The stockholders of a corporation may by unanimous action in meeting assembled, or separately by their several acts, ratify a sale by its president. Id.

A corporation accepting and not repudiating any of the benefits of a contract held not entitled to urge that the officers making the contract acted beyond the scope of their authority. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sweetwater (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 251.

A railroad company acquiring a right of way held not bound by a contract to perpetually maintain its depot and line in a designated place. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Logue (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 11.

Evidence held to show that execution of a note sued on was authorized by defendant corporation. Knox City Milling Co. v. Warren (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1007.

That the general agent of a corporation in making a contract for it exceeded his authority is no defense to action for its breach of the contract; it having undertaken performance of it. Kincheloe Irr. Co. v. Hahn Bros. & Co. (Sup.) 146 S. W. 1187.

Where a land company with full knowledge of the facts ratifies and adopts an unauthorized sale of land by its agent, it is estopped to deny the agent's authority, but cannot be held to have adopted acts of its agent of which it is ignorant. In an action on a salesman's contract of employment, evidence held to sustain a finding that the employing corporation's vice president had authority to make the contract. Carter Grocer Co. v. Day (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 365.

Evidence held insufficient to show that the irrigation company's agent who sold land to plaintiff was authorized to contract to deliver water at a designated time or to show that the company had such knowledge of the contract as rendered the subsequent execution of a deed to the purchaser a ratification of it. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

32. —— Bonds—Foreclosure.—Where a corporation's bonds are held in part by its directors as individuals and in part by parties not interested in the corporation, and all are joined in an action to foreclose the lien which secures the payment of the bonds, the court should grant proper relief on the bonds held by the parties not interested in the corporation, though the lien claimed by the directors cannot be enforced. Medford v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 876.

33. —— Torts—Scope of authority.—An assault by defendant's servant held within the scope of his authority. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Sobel (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 925.

34. —— Exemplary damages.—In an action against a corporation, evidence held to sustain a finding that the representations of its agent were known to be false, and were made to deceive, entitling plaintiff to exemplary damages. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 945.

A foreign corporation held liable for actual and exemplary damages, for state agent's fraudulent representations in transferring a mortgage held by the corporation. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson, 97 T. 432, 79 S. W. 516.

35. Minority stockholders—Right of.—See Falfurrias Immigration Co. v. Spielhagen (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 164, Joy v. Ft. Worth Compress Co., 24 C. A. 94, 58 S. W. 173, and Farwell v. Babcock, 27 C. A. 162, 65 S. W. 509.

Art. 1160. [662] [586] Directors shall cause record to be kept, etc.—They shall cause a record to be kept of all stock subscribed and transferred, and of all business transactions; and their books and records shall, at all reasonable times, be open to the inspection of any and every stockholder. [Id. sec. 21.]

Records as evidence.—The record of proceedings is the best evidence of the transactions of a corporation; a certified copy of the record relating thereto, properly authenticated, is evidence. It is incompetent to prove by parol the records of a corporation without showing the loss of the original record or otherwise accounting for the absence of such original. Stock Ass'n v. West, 76 T. 461, 13 S. W. 307.

Art. 1161. [663] [587] Shall report to stockholders and make dividends.—They shall, also, when required by one-third of the stockholders thereof, present reports in writing of the situation and amount of business of the corporation, and declare and make such dividends of the profits from the business of the corporation as they shall deem expedient, or as the by-laws may prescribe. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 1162. [653] [577] May borrow money.—Corporations shall have power to borrow money on the credit of the corporation, not exceeding its authorized capital stock, and may execute bonds or promissory notes therefor, and may pledge the property and income of the corporation. [Acts 1883, p. 98, sec. 13. P. D. 5944.]

Notes—Liability on.—The liability of a corporation on notes executed by its president and general manager held unaffected by what the money was borrowed for or how it was expended. Houston Land & Loan Co. v. Danley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1143.

A corporation held liable on the joint notes of itself and a party to whom plaintiff sold his stock in the corporation, where the practical effect of the transaction was a purchase of goods by the corporation. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 833. And see Moon Bros. Carriage Co. v. Waxahachie Grain & Implement Co., 35 S. W. 337, 13 T. C. A. 103.

—— Forged.—A corporation held not liable on a note containing a necessary signature, which the corporation's treasurer had forged, by reason of the fact that the treasurer had authority to issue negotiable paper, and signed the corporation's name by his own hand. Merchants' & Farmers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Lufkin Nat. Bank, 34 C. A. 551, 79 S. W. 651.

—— Accommodation.—The secretary of a corporation organized to erect, maintain, and manage a hotel held without authority to execute in its name a note for accommodation or otherwise. First Nat. Bank v. Abilene Hotel Co., 46 C. A. 595, 103 S. W. 1120.

A corporation has no power to become liable on commercial paper for the mere accommodation of another person or corporation. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 833.

—— As affected by signature.—Signature of note in name of corporation by its officer conducting a branch of its business held the act of the corporation. Dreeben v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 510.

Where the name of the president of the corporation was signed to a paper by his son, recognizing the validity of a note signed by another officer of the corporation, the act was not that of the president; it not appearing that the son is authorized to sign his father's name to the paper. Dreeben v. First Nat. Bank, 100 T. 344, 99 S. W. 850.

Where the name of a corporation was the "Houston Loan & Land Company" and not the "Houston Land & Loan Company," the fact that it, through its president, executed notes in the name of the latter, did not affect its liability on the notes. Houston Land & Loan Co. v. Danley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1143.

—— Officers authorized to execute.—That one is vice president of a corporation does not enable him to sign a note for the corporation, in the absence of authority from it. Dreeben v. First Nat. Bank, 100 T. 344, 99 S. W. 850.

That one was treasurer of a corporation, and purported to act as such in signing the note, did not show authority to do so; it not appearing that the by-laws, the charter, or the directors empowered him to execute notes. Id.

An authorization to borrow money and execute secured notes therefor did not authorize the president of a corporation to execute a note and deed of trust in settlement of an existing debt, and a note and deed so executed in the name of the corporation were void. Wharton v. Washington County State Bank (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 699.

Art. 1163. [664] [588] Existing corporations may accept provisions of this title, etc.—Any corporation heretofore organized, and now in existence, under any general or special law of the republic or state of Texas, may, by a vote of its board of directors, accept any or all of the provisions of this title, and have and exercise all of the rights, power and privileges conferred by this title, by filing a copy of their acceptance with the secretary of state; whereupon, that portion of its charter inconsistent with this title, or the portion accepted, shall cease to be applicable to such corporation; and it shall have the exclusive right to carry out the objects of said corporation, as described in its act of incorporation, or certificate, filed with the secretary of state, if acting under a general law within the limits or boundaries described in said act of incorporation, or certificate, as the case may be, without any limitation as to time, and shall possess all the privileges and franchises conferred by its act of incorporation or certificate filed with the secretary of state, not abandoned in the copy of acceptance of any or all the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 22. P. D. 5953.]

Art. 1164. [665] [589] Corporation restricted to objects of its creation.—No corporation, domestic or foreign, doing business in this state, shall employ or use its stock, means, assets, or other property, directly or indirectly, for any other purpose whatever than to accomplish the legitimate objects of its creation or those permitted by law. [Acts 1907, p. 312, sec. 5.]

Construction.—This provision of the statute is merely declaratory of the common law, by which corporations are strictly confined in their powers to the limits and purposes for which created. But when a contract has been performed and the corporation has received the benefit of the contract, it cannot repudiate its obligation incurred thereby. Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 632, 8 S. W. 98.

Diversion of funds.—This article virtually enacts a limitation upon the power of the corporation that it shall not divert its funds or change its business from that which is declared in its charter. A lease by an oil corporation of its lands to others for a term of years to carry on the same kind of business, is not a change of business, nor a diversion of funds, and is legal. Starke v. Guffey Petroleum Co., 98 T. 542, 86 S. W. 4, 4 Ann. Cas. 1057.

Liability on contracts before organization.—As to liability of corporation on contracts made before its organization, see Railway Co. v. Granger, 24 S. W. 795, 86 T. 350, 40 Am. St. Rep. 837.

Forfeiture.—Under this article, as amended by Acts 1907, c. 166, § 5, to provide that no corporation shall employ or use its stock or other property for any purpose, other than to accomplish the legitimate objects of its creation, or that permitted by law, and that any corporation which violates those provisions shall, on proof thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, forfeit its permit, license, or charter, and Art. 1936, providing for judgment in all cases where the defendant has been duly served and has not answered. Held that, in a suit to forfeit the franchise of a corporate club because of its illegal sale of liquor, a default judgment could be taken; the amendment not withdrawing this class of cases from the operation of the general rule as to defaults, and merely requiring the facts to be judicially ascertained. Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

General powers of corporations.—See notes under Art. 1140.

Art. 1165. [665] [580] Restrictions upon creation of debts.—No corporation, domestic or foreign, doing business in this state, shall create any indebtedness whatever except for money paid, labor done, which is reasonably worth at least the sum at which it was taken by the corporation, or property actually received, reasonably worth at least the sum at which it was taken by the corporation. [Id.]

"New debt."—The execution of new notes for an indebtedness existing when a new member came into the corporation is not the creation of a new debt, within an agreement that no new debt shall be created without the consent of four-fifths of all the stock. King County Land & Live-Stock Co. v. Thomson, 21 C. A. 473, 51 S. W. 890.

Art. 1166. Contributions to political parties or candidate, etc., by corporation officers, etc., forbidden.—No corporation, domestic or foreign, doing business in the state shall, directly or indirectly, contribute or pay any part of its assets, property or funds to any political party, or to any officer or campaign manager of any political party, or to any person whatsoever, for or on account of such party, nor to any candidate for any office, before or after nominations are made, or to aid in defraying the expenses of any candidate for office, or to any person for or on account of aid in defraying the expenses of a candidate for office, or to any person whatsoever, for, or on account of aid in maintaining or defraying the expenses of any campaign or political headquarters, or to any person whatsoever, for or on account of the success or defeat of any question to be voted upon by the qualified voters of this state, or any subdivision thereof. [Acts 1907, p. 312, sec. 5.]

Art. 1167. Penalty for violation of either of the last three preceding articles.—Any corporation which shall violate any of the provisions of either of the three last preceding articles, shall, on proof thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, forfeit its charter, permit or license, as the case may be, and all rights and franchises which it holds under, from, or by virtue of, the laws of this state.

Whenever it appears that the money, assets, property, or funds of a corporation have been issued, paid out, or used, in violation of any of the provisions of either of the three last preceding articles, by any agent, attorney, director, or officer of such corporation, it shall be held and considered the act of the corporation, unless, within one year from the date of such violation, it has caused to be entered through its board of directors on its records in this state, an order repudiating the wrong and permanently dismissing from its service all persons directly or indirectly connected with such violation. [Id. sec. 5.]

Operation prospective only.—This article was meant to reach future omission alone and cannot be relied on for forfeiture for past omissions on the part of the company. Reed v. Sampson, 55 C. A. 552, 118 S. W. 754.

Art. 1168. [666] [590] Stock of corporation is personal estate.—The stock of any corporation created under this title shall be deemed personal estate, and shall be transferable only on the books of the corporation in such manner as the by-laws may prescribe. [Id. sec. 24. P. D. 5955.]

Transfer of shares—Unpaid stock.—Unpaid stock of a corporation may be transferred in good faith and with consent of the corporation. Nicholson v. Showalter, 83 T. 99, 18 S. W. 326.

—— Pledges.—The pledgee holding stock of a private corporation as collateral security is not defeated in his right by an attachment, although the transfer had not been made to him upon the books of the company. Tombler v. Palestine Ice Co., 17 C. A. 596, 43 S. W. 896.

This article, if applicable to a bank organized under Acts 29th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 10, only affects the right to dividends, the privilege of voting, and other rights of a stockholder; and a pledgee of bank stock acquires a lien thereon, though there is no transfer on the books of the bank. First State Bank of Montgomery v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 691.

On facts stated, held, that the district court had jurisdiction to direct an equitable distribution of funds arising from the winding up of the corporation, between the pledgee of shares of stock given as collateral security, the widow, and executrix of the pledgor, and all other parties interested therein, without suit by the pledgee against the widow to foreclose the lien. Clarke v. First State Bank of Dallas (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 203.

Registration of transfer—Necessity.—Though a corporation refused to enter a transfer of stock, such transfer held valid and to entitle the transferee to dividends subsequently declared. Blooming Grove Cotton-Oil Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 552.

—— Liability for refusal.—When a corporation refuses to transfer stock on its books to one who has acquired the interest of a stockholder, and refuses to recognize the right of such purchaser, these acts amount to a conversion of the stock, and its owner has the right either to sue for specific performance or for damages for the market value of the stock so converted. Rio Grande Cattle Co. v. Burns, 82 T. 50, 17 S. W. 1043.

Art. 1169. [667] [591] Directors may require payment of stock.—The board of directors or trustees of any corporation may require the subscribers to the capital stock of the corporation to pay the amount by them respectively subscribed, in such manner, and in such installments, as may be required by the by-laws. [Id. sec. 25. P. D. 5956.]

1. Does not apply to assessments on bank stock.
2. Where issuance is ultra vires.
3. Contract of subscription — Construction.
4. —— Liability of subscriber.
5. —— Through promoters or agents.
6. Liability on contract of promoters.
7. Subscriptions obtained by fraud.
8. —— Reliance on representations.
9. —— As to stock to be subscribed.
10. —— Estoppel.
11. —— Effect of fraud and remedies of subscriber.
12. Conditional subscription.
13. Withdrawal or cancellation.
14. Release or discharge.
15. Payment.
16. Forfeiture.
17. Persons entitled to certificates.
18. Fraudulent issue.
19. Estoppel to allege invalidity.
20. Damages.

1. Does not apply to assessments on bank stock.—This article and Art. 1170, providing that, where any stockholder neglects to pay any installment, the directors may declare his stock and previous payments forfeited to the corporation, refer only to unpaid subscriptions to stock, and do not apply to assessments on bank stock, as authorized by the banking act (Acts 29th Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 10) §§ 40, 50; and a failure of a holder of bank stock to pay an assessment does not justify the forfeiture of the stock, and does not affect the rights of a pledgee of the stock under no personal liability to pay the assessment. First State Bank of Montgomery v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 691.

2. Where issuance is ultra vires.—When an increase of stock is ultra vires, a subscriber thereto cannot be compelled to pay assessments thereon. Kampman v. Tarver, 29 S. W. 768, 87 T. 491.

3. Contract of subscription—Construction.—Where plaintiff contracted to sell stock in a corporation to be organized with a capital of $5,000,000, tender of stock in corporation organized with a capital of but $2,000,000 was insufficient. Faulkner v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 990.

Subscription to stock of cotton oil mill company held binding, though charter gave corporation power to erect and operate cotton gins necessary as feeders for the mill. Comanche Cotton Oil Co. v. Browne, 99 T. 660, 92 S. W. 450.

4. —— Liability of subscriber.—Stock was subscribed to create a cotton compress company, under an agreement among the subscribers that a charter of incorporation should be obtained so soon as necessary steps could be taken, and a sufficient amount of stock subscribed to assure the success of the enterprise; it being agreed that the capital stock should not exceed $30,000, which should be paid as might be required by rules to be adopted by the company. After $34,000 of stock had been subscribed officers were elected at a meeting, all the subscribers participating and agreeing that the capital stock should be fixed by charter at $100,000 as the maximum, though it was agreed that so large an amount would not be needed. It was so fixed by charter. One who, being present at such meeting, was chosen a director, afterwards refused to pay the assessment on his stock. There was no stipulation that the liability of a subscriber should depend on the fact that the full maximum of stock allowed by charter should be taken. Held, that he was liable. (Distinguished from Hotel Co. v. Bolton, 46 T. 633.) Compress Co. v. Saunders, 70 T. 699, 6 S. W. 134.

Where stock subscriptions were paid, business begun, and the money partly exhausted before the charter was filed, the stockholders held liable for the balance of their subscriptions due after crediting the assets on hand when the charter was filed. Bank of De Soto v. Reed, 50 C. A. 102, 109 S. W. 256.

The liability of a subscriber for the capital stock of a corporation held absolute. Bivins v. Panhandle Packing Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 523.

5. —— Through promoters or agents.—Statement by a subscriber to the stock of a corporation held not to estop her to object that the corporation formed possessed a wider scope than that contemplated by the subscription, and that she was therefore not liable thereon. Comanche Cotton Oil Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 528.

A subscription for stock before incorporation held not to be void ab initio for incompleteness or uncertainty in the terms of the agreement embodied therein, and to be supported by a sufficient consideration. Steely v. Texas Improvement Co., 55 C. A. 463, 119 S. W. 319.

A corporation held not bound by representations made to a subscriber for stock, and it could recover on the subscription. Bivins v. Panhandle Packing Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 523.

6. Liability on contract of promoters.—See notes under Art. 1140.

7. Subscriptions obtained by fraud.—To entitle one to rescind a contract for the subscription of stock on the ground of false representations, it is not necessary that the representations were knowingly false and made with intent to deceive. Byers Bros. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 437.

8. —— Reliance on representations.—False representations, inducing a subscription to stock, held sufficient to avoid the subscription, when actually relied on. Byers Bros. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 437.

One subscribing for corporate stock held not entitled to rely upon certain representations made by the corporation's representatives. Gough Mill & Gin Co. v. Looney (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 782.

9. —— As to stock to be subscribed.—False promise by president of corporation to subscribe for stock held sufficient to avoid a subscription made by another in reliance thereon. Byers Bros. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 437.

10. —— Estoppel.—Where the agent of a nonresident loan association fraudulently represented that the company was solvent, and thereby induced defendant to subscribe for shares, defendant held not estopped by laches in discovering the condition of the company, so as to preclude him from rescinding his contract for fraud. Park v. Kribs, 24 C. A. 650, 60 S. W. 905.

11. —— Effect of fraud and remedies of subscriber.—The remedy of a purchaser of corporate stock under fraudulent representations of stockholders held an action against the stockholders for the fraud. Kennedy v. Bender, 104 T. 149, 135 S. W. 524.

A subscription to the stock of a corporation induced by fraud is voidable only when repudiated by the subscriber, and is not void. Burleson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 559.

12. Conditional subscription.—A subscription to the capital of a proposed corporation held not conditioned upon a certain person being specially interested in the enterprise. Smith v. First Nat. Bank, 43 C. A. 495, 95 S. W. 1111.

13. Withdrawal or cancellation.—A subscriber for stock before incorporation held liable thereon, if he did not obtain the consent of the other subscribers to a withdrawal, and did not withdraw his subscription before the organization of the corporation and its acceptance thereof. Steely v. Texas Improvement Co., 55 C. A. 463, 119 S. W. 319.

Plaintiff having entered into a contract whereby stock in a corporation was purchased, his renewal of a note for the purchase of the stock, made with knowledge of the facts, held a reaffirmation of his purchase. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. of Oklahoma v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 662.

14. Release or discharge.—A subscriber to the stock of a corporation to be organized to operate a cotton seed oil mill held released where the corporation's charter authorized it to own and operate cotton gins in addition. Comanche Cotton Oil Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 528.

15. Payment.—Promoters are entitled to a credit, in considering whether the stock issued to them is fully paid up, of the increase in value of properties between the time when they were contracted for by the promoters and the time when they were conveyed to the corporation. Cole v. Adams, 19 C. A. 507, 49 S. W. 1052.

Promoters of a corporation are entitled to be credited in payment of stock issued to them, with the value of a municipal contract secured by them, and transferred to the corporation which received the benefit of it. Id.

Property conveyed in payment of stock in a corporation, as against creditors without notice, is not a payment except to the extent of its actual value. Id.

The net profits of a corporation, prior to the issuance of its stock, which were expended in improvements, should be credited as a payment on stock issued to the promoters of the corporation. Id.

Where a corporation began business before filing the charter, the stockholders became liable as partners, and payment of liabilities incurred before filing the charter cannot be regarded as payment upon their stock subscriptions. Bank of De Soto v. Reed, 50 C. A. 102, 109 S. W. 256.

Where stock subscriptions were paid in and partly exhausted in business begun before filing the charter, the stockholders should be credited on their subscriptions with assets on hand at the time of filing the charter. Id.

A stock subscription agreement held unenforceable and void for vagueness as to the time payment should be made. San Antonio Irr. Co. v. Deutschmann, 102 T. 201, 105 S. W. 486, 114 S. W. 1174.

Plaintiff held not entitled to recover from a corporation the value of an interest in a franchise, where the recovery would, in effect, enforce a stock subscription agreement void under Const. art. 12, § 6. Id.

A subscriber of stock, who paid for the stock, may, on the failure of the corporation to issue stock, recover back the money paid with interest. Ferrell v. Millican (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 230.

16. Forfeiture.—Acts of corporation with reference to subscriber's stock held to constitute conversion thereof. Nicholson-Watson Shoe & Clothing Co. v. Urquhart, 32 C. A. 527, 75 S. W. 45.

17. Persons entitled to certificates.—The corporators and stockholders of a corporation are not entitled to full paid-up shares of stock for the full value of the property and effects of the corporation above the liabilities of the corporation. Cole v. Adams, 19 C. A. 507, 49 S. W. 1052.

The promoters of a corporation who are not subscribers to the capital stock are not entitled to shares of paid-up capital stock to the full value of the property owned by the corporation above its indebtedness at the time the stock was issued. Id.

18. Fraudulent issue.—A corporation, induced by fraud to issue paid-up stock, held not entitled to treat the stock as void in the hands of bona fide purchasers. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

A corporation, induced by fraud to issue stock for the benefit of an individual held entitled to proceed against the estate of the individual, in view of a constitutional provision. Id.

19. Estoppel to allege invalidity.—A corporation, induced by fraud to issue stock, held entitled to either cancel the stock or treat the party guilty of the fraud as the purchaser thereof. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

20. Damages.—The measure of damages for the conversion by a company of shares of its stock, subscribed for at par value, but not received by the subscriber, is the difference between the par and market values, less the amount due thereon. Nicholson-Watson Shoe & Clothing Co. v. Urquhart, 32 C. A. 527, 75 S. W. 45.

A buyer of corporate stock seeking to recover damages for the fraud inducing the sale held entitled to recover only the damages he suffered thereby. Reed v. Holloway (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1189.

Art. 1170. [668] [592] Stock forfeited, when and how.—If any stockholder shall neglect to pay any installment, as required by the board of trustees, the directors or trustees may declare his stock and all previous payments forfeited to the use of the company; but no stock shall be forfeited until the directors or trustees have caused a notice in writing to be served on him personally, or by depositing the same in the postoffice, properly directed to him at the postoffice nearest his usual place of residence, stating that he is required to make such payment at the time and place specified in said notice, and that if he fails to make the same his stock and all previous payments thereon will be forfeited for the use of the company; which notice may be served, as aforesaid, at least thirty days previous to the day on which such payment is required to be made. [Id. sec. 26. P. D. 5957.]

Forfeiture void, when.—In absence of compliance with the statute forfeiture of subscribers' stock for non-payment of amount due thereon, is void; payment in advance not having been expressly required by the charter. Nicholson-Watson Shoe & Clothing Co. v. Urquhart, 32 C. A. 527, 75 S. W. 47.

Art. 1171. [669] [593] Corporation may sue its own members.—All bodies corporate may sue for, recover and receive from, their respective members all arrears or other debts, dues or other demands which are now, or hereafter may be, owing to them, in like mode, manner and form as they might sue for, recover and receive the same from any person not a member of their body. [Id. sec. 27. P. D. 5958.]

Art. 1172. [674] [598] Misnomer shall not vitiate.—No misnomer of any corporation shall defeat or vitiate any gift, grant, conveyance, devise, or bequest to the same. [P. D. 5965.]

Art. 1173. [676] [600] Corporation may convey lands, how.—Any corporation may convey lands by deed, sealed with the common seal of the corporation, and signed by the president or presiding member or trustee of said corporation, or in common form without seal by its attorney in fact, where the instrument constituting such attorney in fact is executed in said manner first mentioned; and such deed, when acknowledged by such officer or attorney in fact to be the act of the corporation, or proved in the manner prescribed for other conveyances of lands, may be recorded in like manner and with the same effect as other deeds; and all conveyances by corporations heretofore executed in the manner herein set forth shall be held valid so far as regards the manner of execution. [Acts 1905, p. 230. P. D. 5966.]

Construction.—The authority conferred upon the president to execute a deed for land does not imply the power to make the sale. The power of sale must be derived from the charter and exercised in accordance with its provisions. Fitzhugh v. Franco-Texas Land Co., 81 T. 306, 16 S. W. 1078; Green v. Hugo, 81 T. 452, 17 S. W. 79, 26 Am. St. Rep. 824.

Power to convey.—The right of a corporation to dispose of the real estate it is authorized to purchase is a necessary incident to its ownership thereof. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

Ratification.—Acts of a corporation subsequent to the execution of a deed of trust in its behalf by its president held to constitute a ratification of his act. Clark v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 538.

Officers and agents.—See notes under Art. 1159.

Sufficiency of acknowledgment.—A deed for land by a national bank to which was signed the corporate name with the bank seal affixed by J. K., president, and R. P. A., cashier, had affixed thereto the following certificate of acknowledgment: "This day personally appeared J. K., president of said First National Bank of the city of Dallas, and R. P. A., cashier of said bank, both of whom are to me well known, and severally acknowledged that they executed the above and foregoing instrument for the purposes and considerations therein contained." The acknowledgment was held sufficient. Muller v. Boone, 63 T. 91.

Presumption of vice president's authority.—When a deed of a corporation is signed by its vice-president and sealed with its seal, in absence of evidence to the contrary it is presumed that the contingency existed which authorized the vice-president to act. Ballard v. Carmichael, 83 T. 355, 18 S. W. 734.

Notice to grantee.—One claiming title through a deed made by an agent of a corporation is chargeable with notice of the power or want of power of such agent to bind the corporation. Green v. Hugo, 81 T. 452, 17 S. W. 79, 26 Am. St. Rep. 824.

Deed to self as grantee.—The president or presiding member or trustee of a corporation can execute a deed of the corporation to himself as grantee. His act as such officer is merely ministerial. Jones v. Hanna, 24 C. A. 550, 60 S. W. 280.

Conveyance after forfeiture.—Conveyance by president of corporation whose charter was forfeited held to convey his proportionate interest, though conveyance was unauthorized. Aransas Pass Harbor Co. v. Manning, 94 T. 558, 63 S. W. 627.

Trust deed—Construction.—A trust deed on property then owned and after-acquired property held to cover property for which the corporation was negotiating and which it afterwards acquired. Medford v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 876.

Art. 1174. [673] [597] Principal office must be kept in state.—Each corporation or joint stock company of every description, whether organized and acting under a special charter or general law of the state, shall keep its principal office within this state. [P. D. 5962.]

Charter need not specify location of office.—A charter can be granted to a corporation to do business in this state and another state. It is not necessary for the charter to state where the principal office shall be kept in this state, but the law requires that its principal office shall be kept in this state. Beattie v. Hardy, 93 T. 131, 53 S. W. 685.

CHAPTER THREE A

SALE OF CORPORATE STOCK

Art.
1174a. Corporations affected by act; promotion commissions or fees.
1174b. Corporations affected; mining, oil or gas companies; townsite companies.
1174c. Sale of stock; filing statement; contents of statement; foreign corporation to file copy of charter; employment of experts; statement of townsite company.
1174d. Granting or refusing permit; stock previously sold; promotion fee; when permit shall not issue; bond.
1174e. Suit to compel issuance of permit.
1174f. Misrepresentations; suit on bond; amount of recovery; successive suits; new bond; list of officers, agents, etc.
1174g. Deposit of net proceeds of sales.
1174h. Books showing sales to be kept; inspection by state officers.
1174i. Violation of act; notice to corporation; cancellation of permit; suit to reinstate.
1174j. Foreign corporations; no permit unless fifty per cent of stock subscribed; loan and insurance companies excepted.
1174k. Foreign corporations; power of attorney to receive process.
1174l. Organization within two years; refundment to subscribers; extension of time.
1174m. Act cumulative.
1174n. Corporations and transactions not affected by act.
1174o. Deposit of funds with State Treasurer; examination of corporations; expenses.
1174p. Definition of terms.

Article 1174a. Corporations affected by act; promotion commissions or fees.—Every private corporation, foreign or domestic, organized for profit, which is now attempting or shall hereafter attempt to increase its capital stock, and every proposed corporation attempted to be organized which shall, directly or indirectly, through itself, its agents or employés, or through any person or association of persons, holding companies, sales companies or otherwise, or through any other agents, sell or contract to sell any stock of such corporation or proposed corporation, upon which sale or proposed sale or contract of sale any part of the proceeds derived or to be derived therefrom are used or to be used, directly or indirectly for the payment of any commission, promotion, organization fee or other expenses incident, directly or indirectly, to the sale of its shares of stock, except attorney's fees, charter fees, franchise tax, permit fees and stationery and supplies, shall be subject to the provisions of this act. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 66, sec. 1.]

Art. 1174b. Corporations affected; mining, oil, or gas companies; townsite companies.—This act shall also apply to any mining, oil or gas corporation increasing its stock or proposed mining, oil or gas corporation attempting to sell stock in which any land or mineral or thing of value is to be procured from, in or under such land that has been or is to be placed as an asset with or in the corporation or proposed corporation, whether any promotion fee is charged or not, and to any townsite corporation or proposed townsite corporation. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1174c. Sale of stock; filing statement; contents of statement; foreign corporation to file copy of charter; employment of experts; statement of townsite company.—Before offering for sale or contracting to sell, directly, or indirectly, any stock of such proposed corporation, or such increased stock of any existing corporation, or before selling any stock in any townsite corporation as provided in section 2 [Art. 1174b], such corporation, or those promoting or having charge of the sale of stock of any proposed corporation, shall file, under oath, in the office of the secretary of state, where, under the law, a charter would be filed in his department, or in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking, where, under the law, a charter would be filed in his department, together with a filing fee of twenty dollars, the following documents: A statement showing in full detail the plan upon which the corporation proposes to increase its capital stock or upon which the promoters or those having charge of the sale of stock of any proposed corporation proposes to sell its stock and organize the corporation, together with a copy of all the forms of contracts, stock (or deeds, if the same shall come under section 2 hereof) to be used by the corporation or promoters, or those having charge of the sale of stocks of any proposed corporation in connection with such stock sales. The statement shall further show the name, location and domicile of such corporation, and the names of its officers or proposed officers, if any, or promoters, and the addresses of all the parties; the amount of capital stock of any corporation already organized, the proposed increase, or the proposed capital stock of the corporation to be organized, and the price at which the stock is proposed to be sold; and the price at which the stock is proposed to be sold shall not be changed without filing with the secretary or commissioner, as the case may be, a statement of such change, which shall be subject to his approval. Any such corporation or promoters of such proposed corporation shall furnish the secretary or commissioner such other information as may be necessary or proper concerning the sale of its stock.

If it shall be a corporation organized under the laws of any other jurisdiction, it shall file with the secretary or commissioner a copy of its charter, and such other evidence of its authority as the secretary or commissioner may require.

Said statement shall also show the commission, promotion fee and other estimated incidental expenses proposed to be charged for the organization of such proposed corporation, or the increase in the capital stock of any corporation already organized, and how the commissions or fees are to be paid.

If the corporation or proposed corporation comes under section 2 hereof, the officers of the corporation, or the promoters of the proposed corporation shall state the facts upon which they base their estimate of the actual value of the property which is to become an asset of the corporation, and the secretary or commissioner shall require such proof as he may deem proper to establish the actual value of the property.

The secretary or commissioner shall have the right to employ such experts as he may deem necessary, and the experts shall be employed at the expense of the corporation or promoters of a proposed corporation.

No corporation proposed to be organized for the purpose of buying or selling townsites and town lots shall hereafter be granted a charter by the secretary of state, or if a foreign corporation shall not be granted a permit to do business in the state of Texas unless the incorporators of said proposed corporation or officer of such foreign corporation shall file with the secretary of state each and every document, contract and all papers referred to in section 3 of this act, as well as a general statement of the plan of its proposed townsite, and a general statement of its methods of advertising same, together with a sample copy of its advertising literature, and no charter shall be granted any corporation unless after the compliance with the provisions of this act and in the judgment of the secretary of state, such business of any proposed townsite corporation will be honestly and fairly conducted both to the corporation and to the public. And each and every corporation in this state now existing or hereafter organized desiring to engage in the sale of townsite lots or sites shall, prior to such sale, file with the secretary of state a general plan of said proposed lots to be sold, as well as a copy of any and all proposed contracts to be made with the public in the sale thereof, and a general statement of the literature proposed to be issued, and all matter referred to in section 3 hereof, and if in the judgment of the secretary of state said sale will be conducted both honestly and fairly to the corporation and to the public, a permit to conduct said sale shall be granted. This provision shall not be construed to authorize the creation of any corporation for any purpose not now authorized by the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1174d. Granting or refusing permit; stock previously sold; promotion fee; when permit shall not issue; bond.—The secretary or commissioner, upon the receipt of the information as provided for in section 3 [Art. 1174c], shall grant or refuse such permit.

If the secretary or commissioner shall decide that the sale of stock will be fairly and honestly conducted, both to the corporation and to the public, such permit shall be granted, provided that the commissions, promotion and other incidental expenses, exclusive of the exempted expenses mentioned in section 1 of this act [Art. 1174a], shall not be more than fifteen (15) per cent of the price at which such stock is to be sold as shown by the application or amended application.

Provided, that where any proposed corporation has already sold its stock, or a part thereof, or any part thereof has been subscribed at the time this act shall take effect, this act shall not effect stock previously sold or subscribed nor any contracts made in reference to same; but if any of the stock of said proposed corporation remains unsold or unsubscribed, said corporation shall, nevertheless, be entitled to a permit upon complying with the other conditions of this act, including the future sale or subscription of any of its stock.

The commission or promotion fee shall be paid to the agent or promoter as the stock is sold by him and paid for by the purchaser. The stock shall be considered as paid for when paid for in cash, property or labor.

No permit shall be granted unless there shall appear upon the subscription lists and contracts of such corporation or proposed corporation, in bold type, the amount of the commissions, promotion fees and other estimated expenses incident to the sale of such stock, and the interest which the officer, agent, employé or promoter selling or contracting to sell such stock has in such sale; nor shall such permit be granted until the applicants therefor have entered into a bond for not less than one thousand dollars ($1000) nor more than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), the same to be fixed by the secretary or commissioner at not more than ten per cent of the stock proposed to be issued. The said bond shall be payable to the secretary or commissioner as the case may be, and his successor in office, conditioned that the facts set forth in the application for such permit, and the proof and statements offered to such secretary or commissioner, upon which the application is based, are true, and that they will comply with the provisions of this act in the sale of the stock of such corporation or proposed corporation. Said bond may be made with individual sureties or a surety company authorized to do business in the state of Texas, and the bond shall be approved by the secretary or commissioner. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1174e. Suit to compel issuance of permit.—If a permit shall be refused by the secretary or commissioner the parties applying therefor may bring suit in the district court of Travis county, Texas, to require said secretary or commissioner to issue such permit. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1174f. Misrepresentations; suit on bond; amount of recovery; successive suits; new bond; list of officers, agents, etc.—Any person who shall be induced to purchase any stock of any corporation or proposed corporation by the officers, agents, employés, promoters or trustees, by reason of any misrepresentation of any material fact concerning such stock, such person or persons shall have the right to bring suit upon the bond above provided for, and such bond shall be subject to, and security for, such person so purchasing the stock, provided that such person shall not be entitled to recover more than the money paid, or the actual value of the property given, or the labor performed, in exchange for such stock, with legal interest from the date of the payment or the performance of the services, or the transfer of the property.

One or more recoveries upon such bond shall not vitiate the same, but it shall remain in full force and effect, but no recoveries upon such bond shall ever exceed the full amount of same, and upon suits being filed in excess of the amount of same, the secretary or commissioner may require a new bond, and if the same is not given within thirty days, he may cancel the permit herein provided for.

Whenever any permit has been issued, the corporation or persons receiving the same shall file a list of the names of their or its authorized officers, agents and employés, and the postoffice address of each; and, in case of the change of any of its officers, agents or employés, it shall file a list of such changes with the secretary or commissioner. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1174g. Deposit of net proceeds of sales.—All moneys or other things of value collected by such corporation or the promoters of a proposed corporation, for the sale of its stock or contract for the sale of its stock, shall be deposited by said corporation to its credit, or by the promoters of a proposed corporation, to the credit of its proposed officers or trustees, with the exception of the amount allowed for commissions, promotion fees and other incidental expenses, with a bank, bank and trust company or trust company incorporated under the laws of this state, or of the United States. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1174h. Books showing sales to be kept; inspection by state officers.—All such corporations, and the organizers or trustees of proposed corporations shall keep a set of books, which shall show the amount of money, or other things of value received by such corporation or proposed corporation, from the sale of its stock, or from contracts of sale of its stock, and such books shall show the number and amounts of stock sold or contracted to be sold, by whom sold, and to whom sold, or contracted to be sold, and the postoffice address of each. Said books shall at all times be open for inspection by the secretary or commissioner, or his duly authorized agent. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1174i. Violation of act; notice to corporation; cancellation of permit; suit to reinstate.—Whenever the secretary or commissioner shall have information that any corporation, or the promoters of the proposed corporation, its officers, agents or employés, are not complying with the terms of this act in the sale of its stock they shall notify such corporation, or the officers, agents or employés or the promoters of the proposed corporation to appear, within twenty days, and show cause why such permit should not be canceled, and after the hearing such secretary or commissioner shall have the right to cancel such permit if the proof shall show that such corporation or proposed corporation, or its officers, agents or employés are not complying with the terms of this act, but the parties or corporation holding such permit shall have the right to bring suit, in the district court of Travis county, Texas, against the secretary or commissioner, to reinstate such permit to sell stock. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1174j. Foreign corporations; no permit unless fifty per cent of stock subscribed; loan and insurance companies excepted.—No permit to sell stock shall ever be issued to any foreign corporation which has not at the time of making application for permit at least fifty per cent of its capital stock subscribed and paid in, providing that this shall not apply to any foreign corporation engaged exclusively in the business of lending money in this state, nor to any insurance company that is required by law to obtain a permit from the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1174k. Foreign corporations; power of attorney to receive process.—Each foreign corporation or the promoters of any proposed foreign corporation desiring to sell or contract to sell its stock in this state shall first file with the secretary or commissioner a like power of attorney to that provided for life insurance corporations in article 4773, Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas of 1911, and service may be had upon the corporation and the secretary or commissioner, as the case may be, as therein provided for, and the secretary or commissioner, as the case may be, upon receipt of such process as is therein provided for, shall proceed as is provided for him to do in article 4774, Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas of 1911, and the secretary or commissioner's acts and conduct in regard to such power of attorney, and such process shall be the same as is provided for in said articles 4774 and 4773, and the effect, force and result of such acts shall be the same as therein provided for. [Id. sec. 11.]

Explanatory.—Section 12 of this Act makes it a misdemeanor to violate the provisions of the Act, and is omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

Art. 1174*l*. Organization within two years; refundment to subscribers; extension of time.—At the expiration of two years from the granting of a permit under this act if the proposed corporation has failed to organize, then all subscribers must be refunded the amount paid to the promoter or trustee; provided, however, that the secretary or commissioner may grant an extension of time for the sale of securities. [Id. sec. 12a.]

Art. 1174m. Act cumulative.—This act shall be construed to be cumulative of any other law or laws of this state. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 1174n. Corporations and transactions not affected by act.—The terms of this act shall not apply to any national bank, nor to any corporation having a charter granted under any act of the congress of the United States, nor to any state bank, bank and trust company or trust company organized under the laws of this state, nor to any corporation organized under the federal reclamation act, approved June 17, 1902, or the regulations established by the secretary of the department of the interior in pursuance thereof. Nor shall the terms of this act apply to any corporation or the promoters of any corporation organized under the laws of Texas which does not sell or contract to sell its stock to more than twenty-five bona fide purchasers; provided, it does not act as the agent or trustee, holding company or sales company in the promotion of any concern which is included under the terms of this act. Nor shall this act apply to any railroad or railway company or interurban railroad or railway company, or street railroad or railway company. Nor shall this act apply to the sale of stock of a corporation by a bona fide owner of same, who had in good faith bought the same, and who in the purchase and sale of same was and is not acting directly or indirectly as promoter or agent of such corporation. Nor shall this act apply to a bona fide stock or stock broker in the sale of stock, which stock has been by such corporation sold and issued to a bona fide purchaser prior to the offering of same for sale by such broker; provided, that such purchaser or broker was not acting, directly or indirectly, as promoter of such corporation. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1174*o*. Deposit of funds with state treasurer; examination of corporations; expenses.—All moneys collected under the terms of this act by the secretary or commissioner shall be quarterly deposited by him with the state treasurer and credited to the general fund. Whenever the secretary or commissioner shall deem it necessary to examine the books of any corporation or proposed corporation, subject to the provisions of this act, or investigate its financial condition, he shall do so at the expense of the corporation or proposed corporation under investigation, and the corporation or the agents of the corporation or proposed corporation being investigated shall pay to the secretary or commissioner, or his agent, making the investigation his actual expenses and seven dollars and fifty cents per day for such investigation, which said expenses shall be paid at the termination of such investigation by the concern investigated. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1174p. Definition of terms.—Whenever the word "secretary" is used in this act it shall be considered to mean secretary of the state of Texas, and whenever the word "commissioner" is used in this act it shall be considered to mean commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 16.]

CHAPTER FOUR

LAND—ACQUISITION, ETC., OF, RESTRICTED

Art.
1175. Purchase of land, unless necessary to business or to secure debts, prohibited.
1176. Excess of land over necessary amount to be alienated, when.
1177. Certain corporations forbidden to acquire lands.
1178. Lands previously acquired, to be alienated when.
1179. Purchase, subdivision and sale of city, etc., lands, not prohibited.
1180. Forfeiture prescribed; duty of attorney general.
1181. Proceeds of such forfeitures to be covered into the treasury.

Article 1175. Purchase of land, unless necessary to business or to secure debts, prohibited.—No private corporation shall be permitted to purchase any land under the provisions of this chapter, unless the lands so purchased are necessary to enable such corporation to do business in this state, or except where such land is purchased in due course of business, to secure the payment of debt. [Acts 1893, p. 36. Acts 1897, p. 48.]

In general.—Where a statute authorizes corporations to acquire real property, the fact that the charter does not expressly authorize it does not render the acts of a corporation ultra vires and void, so as to make an agent acting in behalf of the corporation liable individually. Ray v. Foster (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 54.

Where a director received a deed to lands intended for the corporation, but outside of the power of the latter to acquire, it cannot compel a conveyance thereof from him. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

A judgment creditor of the president of a corporation cannot, by purchase on execution sale of property held by him in trust for the corporation, defeat the corporation's title on the ground that it was not authorized to acquire such property. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 97 T. 31, 75 S. W. 7, 104 Am. St. Rep. 835.

President of a street railway company held to have taken a grant of land as trustee for the company. Id.

A creditors' bill against a corporation to subject land to the debts of the corporation held not demurrable, because the corporation, under its charter, had no authority to purchase and hold lands. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Hereford v. Southwestern Engineering & Construction Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 443.

Capacity to acquire can only be questioned by state.—Where a corporation is incompetent, by its charter, to take title to real estate, a conveyance to it is not void but voidable only at the suit of the state. Schwab Clothing Co. v. Claunch (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 922; Ray v. Foster (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 54; Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

Lien for performance of promoter's contract.—Land purchased by a corporation with notice of a contract entered into by its promoters held subject to a lien for the performance of such contract. Weathersby v. Texas & Ohio Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 243.

Art. 1176. [749c] Excess of land over necessary amount to be alienated, when.—All private corporations authorized by the laws of Texas, as provided in article 1121, to do business in this state, whose main purpose is not the acquisition or ownership of lands, as mentioned in the preceding articles, which have, heretofore, or may hereafter, acquire by lease, purchase or otherwise more land than is necessary to enable them to carry on their business, shall, within fifteen years from the time this law takes effect, or the date said land may be hereafter acquired, in good faith, sell and convey in fee simple all lands so acquired, and which are not necessary for the transaction of their business. [Id.]

Cited, Kirby v. Pitchfork Land & Cattle Co., 129 S. W. 1151.

Art. 1177. [749a] Certain corporations forbidden to acquire lands.—No private corporation heretofore or hereafter chartered or created whose main purpose of business is the acquisition or ownership of land by purchase, lease or otherwise shall hereafter be permitted to acquire any land within this state by purchase, lease or otherwise. [Acts 1893, p. 36.]

Land necessary to actual business.—Where a corporation owned no more land than was necessary to be used in the prosecution of its actual business, it was not within this article. Kirby v. Pitchfork Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1151.

Art. 1178. [749b] Lands previously acquired, to be alienated when.—All private corporations whose main purpose or business is the acquisition or ownership, by purchase, lease or otherwise, of lands in this state, shall, within fifteen years from the time this law takes effect, make an actual bona fide sale of all lands, or interest therein acquired, before this law takes effect, and shall, within said fifteen years, by proper deed, convey in good faith all their right and title to said land. And lands acquired by corporations in payment of debts due such corporations shall be sold and conveyed as herein provided, within fifteen years from the date of the acquisition of such land. [Id.]

Fifteen years to alienate.—A corporation which has acquired land which under its charter it has no right to hold has 15 years from the passage of the act of March 24, 1893, within which to sell, and if it acquired title for a valuable consideration, without notice of any defect in the title, it can defend its possession and right under plea of innocent purchaser. Schneider v. Sellers, 98 T. 380, 84 S. W. 421.

Art. 1179. Purchase, subdivision and sale of city, etc., lands not prohibited.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to prohibit the lease, purchase, sale or subdivision of real property within incorporated towns, cities or villages, and their suburbs not extending more than two miles beyond their corporate limits, by corporations whose charters authorize them to lease, purchase, sell and subdivide real estate, within towns, cities and villages, and their suburbs whether their suburbs be stated to be measured from the limits, merely, or the corporate limits, of such towns, cities and villages; and provided, further, that all such corporations now existing, or which may be hereafter created, shall be authorized to lease, sell, or subdivide real property in any unincorporated city, town or village, or the suburbs thereof, within this state; provided, if there be a courthouse in such city, town or village, such lease, sale or subdivision may extend two miles in any direction from such courthouse. If there be a depot or depots, and no courthouse, then the two miles shall be measured from the depot nearest the center of such city, town, or village; and, in case there be neither courthouse nor depot, then the two miles shall be measured from the center of such city, town or village. [Acts 1893, p. 36. Acts 1897, p. 48.]

Art. 1180. [749d] Forfeiture prescribed; duty of attorney general.—All corporations holding lands contrary to the provisions of this law shall hold the same subject to the forfeiture and escheat proceedings; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general, or other attorney appointed by the governor for that purpose, when he is informed or has reason to believe that any corporation is holding lands in violation of this law, to institute suit in the name of the state of Texas, in the district court of Travis county, or in the district court of any county in

Texas where such corporation may have an agent, or in any county where any part of the land may be situated, against such corporation, as is provided in title 51, for the escheat of estates of deceased persons dying without devise thereof and having no heirs. [Acts 1893, p. 36.]

Not entitled to receiver.—The fact that lands held by a corporation in violation of the laws of the state are in danger of being forfeited to the state does not entitle a party to have a receiver appointed, as the forfeiture proceedings could still be invoked. American Tribune New Colony Co. v. Schuler, 34 C. A. 560, 79 S. W. 375.

Art. 1181. [749e] Proceeds of such forfeitures to be covered into the treasury.—If it shall be determined upon the trial of said suit that lands are held contrary to this law, the court trying said cause shall enter judgment condemning such lands and ordering them to be sold as under execution. The proceeds of such sale to be applied; first, to the payment of costs of such suit, and balance to be paid into the state treasury, subject to be paid to the stockholders, or persons entitled to receive the same as owners, upon proper proof made within twelve months from date of sale; and if the legal representatives of such corporation fail to claim the said balance of money realized on sale of said land, then it shall escheat absolutely to the state and be applied to the available school fund of the state of Texas. The court trying said cause shall allow the attorney representing the state a reasonable fee, to be taxed as cost in the suit, but in no case shall the state be liable for costs or fees unless it is successful in said suit. [Id.]

Unauthorized purchase of land not void.—A purchase of land by a corporation which is not authorized by its charter to acquire and hold real estate is not void, but is good and binding as to all the world except the state. If the state should secure a declaration of forfeiture, the lands would be sold and the proceeds distributed to the stockholders. This shows that the holding of the land is not unlawful. Schneider v. Sellers, 98 T. 380, 84 S. W. 420.

CHAPTER FIVE

REPORTS BY CERTAIN CORPORATIONS

Art.
1182. Certain corporations to make reports to secretary of state.
1183. Same subject.
1184. Reports to be under oath, etc.
1185. Copies of reports to be filed with mayor and with county clerk, recorded, etc.
1186. Penalty.

Article 1182. Certain corporations to make reports to secretary of state.—Every corporation within this state owning, leasing or operating in this state, in cities or towns of over twenty-five hundred population, according to the last official census of the United States, a street railway, electric lighting or power plant furnishing light or power to the public, gas plant furnishing gas to the public, water plant furnishing water to the public, and sewerage company furnishing sewerage to the public, shall annually, on or before the first day of March of each year, file a report with the secretary of state, upon blank forms to be furnished by the secretary of state, showing the following facts:

1. The authorized capital stock of such corporation, the amount of such stock, that has actually been issued, and how much of such stock actually issued is common, and how much preferred, and how much is due upon unpaid stock.

2. The bonded indebtedness of such corporation, and how many bonds have been actually sold, the rate of interest upon such bonds, and when such bonds mature, and the price at which such bonds were sold.

3. Any other fixed lien or mortgage upon such property, and the amount thereof.

4. The floating indebtedness of such corporation, including all bills payable of whatever nature.

5. The value of the visible tangible property of such corporation, giving separate values of lands, machinery, buildings, tracks and equipment, and in gross, all bills receivable and cash on hand.

6. The annual cost of operating such corporation, showing under separate items: (a) amount paid for salaries; (b) amount paid for labor; (c) fixed charges, including interest, taxes and insurance, giving each separately; (d) amount paid for fuel; (e) amount paid for extensions, repairs and maintenance, giving each separately; (f) amount paid for claims or suits for damages; (g) amount paid for miscellaneous expenses.

7. The annual gross earnings of such corporation, including revenues from every source, showing by separate items amount received by departments, such as amount received for light, amount received for sewerage, for power, water, gas, amount received for street railway fares and tickets. [Acts 1905, p. 40, sec. 1.]

Art. 1183. Same subject.—The corporations mentioned in article 1182 shall also make to the secretary of state, upon blanks to be furnished by him, reports as to the price charged the public for sewerage, gas, water, light, power, and the price charged per passenger upon street railways, and if any such corporations have contracts with cities or towns for furnishing water or light, then, the amount of such charge. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1184. Reports to be under oath, etc.—The reports provided for in articles 1182 and 1183 shall be under oath, and shall be made by any officer of the corporation having knowledge of the facts, or its general manager or superintendent. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1185. Copies of reports to be filed with mayor and with county clerk, recorded, etc.—A true copy of the reports required by the provisions of this chapter, sworn to as provided, shall be filed annually, on or before the first day of March of each year, with the mayor of the city or town where the corporation has its principal place of business; and there shall also be filed at the same time a true copy of said reports with the clerk of the county court of the county in which such corporation has its principal place of business; and the same shall be, by said clerk, delivered to the commissioners' court; and such reports shall be recorded in a properly indexed book, to be kept for that purpose, and open to the inspection of the public at all times. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1186. Penalty.—Any such corporation as described in article 1182, which shall for thirty days wilfully fail or refuse to file the reports in the manner provided by this chapter, shall forfeit and pay to the state one hundred dollars for each and every day during which it shall continue in default; which shall be recovered by suit in a court of competent jurisdiction by the attorney general of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 5.]

CHAPTER SIX

BOOKS, RECORDS, ETC.—EXAMINATION OF

Art.
1187. Attorney general, etc., may examine books, etc.
1188. Same subject; not to be made public, etc., except, etc.
1189. Foreign corporation to forfeit permit for refusal, etc.
1190. Domestic corporation to forfeit charter rights for refusal, etc.
1191. Venue of suits in Travis county.
1192. Provisions cumulative.

Article 1187. Attorney general, etc., may examine books, etc.—Every corporation doing business in this state by virtue of a permit or charter granted under the laws of this state shall permit the attorney general, or any of his assistants or representatives when authorized in writing by the attorney general, to make examination of all the books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws, and other records of said corporation as often as he may deem it necessary. The attorney general, or his assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives, shall present a request in writing to the president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary, manager, agent or other officer of said corporation at the time the attorney general or his assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives, desire to examine said books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws and other records belonging to said corporation; and it shall be the duty of the officer or agent of any corporation to whom said request is presented to immediately permit the attorney general, or his authorized assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives, to inspect and examine all the books, records and other documents of said corporation, as hereinabove set forth. [Acts 1907, p. 34, sec. 1.]

Art. 1188. Same subject; not to be made public, etc.; except, etc.—The attorney general, or any of his assistants or representatives when authorized in writing by the attorney general, shall have the power and authority to make diligent investigation into the organization, conduct and management of any corporation authorized to do business within this state, and shall have power to inspect and examine all or any books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws, and other records of such corporation, and take copies of any or all of such records or documents herein set forth as in his judgment may show or tend to show that said corporation has been or is engaged in acts or conduct in violation of its charter rights and privileges, or in violation of any law of this state; provided, that the attorney general, or his assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives, shall not make public or use said copies or any information derived in the course of said examination of said records or documents as hereinabove set forth, except in the course of some judicial proceedings of which the state is a party, or in a suit by the state to cancel the permit or forfeit the charter of such corporation, or to collect penalties for a violation of the law of this state, or for the information of any of the officers of this state charged with the enforcement of its laws. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1189. Foreign corporation to forfeit permit for refusal, etc.—Any foreign corporation doing business in this state under a permit granted under the laws of this state, or any officer or agent thereof, who shall fail or refuse to permit the attorney general, or his authorized representative or representatives, assistant or assistants, to examine any or all of its books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws and other records of said corporation, whether same be situated within this state or in any other state within the United States, or shall fail or refuse to permit said attorney general or his authorized assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives to take copies of same, as provided for in article 1188, shall thereby forfeit its right to do business in this state; and its permit shall be canceled. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1190. Domestic corporation to forfeit charter rights for refusal, etc.—Any domestic corporation chartered under the laws of this state which shall fail or refuse to permit the attorney general, or any of his authorized assistants or representatives, to examine any or all of its books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws, and other records of said corporation, whether the same be situated within this state or in any other state within the United States, or shall fail or refuse to permit said attorney general, or any of his authorized assistants or representatives, to take copies of same as provided for by article 1188, shall forfeit its charter rights and privileges. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1191. Venue of suits in Travis county.—All suits to forfeit charters of domestic corporations or to cancel the permits of foreign corporations for violating the provisions of this act shall be prosecuted by the attorney general in the district courts of Travis county; and venue of said suits is hereby given to said courts. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1192. Provisions cumulative.—The provisions of this chapter shall be cumulative of all other laws now in force in this state, and shall not be construed as repealing any other right, power or means afforded by law for securing testimony or inquiring into the charter rights and privileges of corporations. [Id. sec. 7.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

LIEN OF STATE FOR FINES AND PENALTIES, ETC.

Art.
1193. State to have lien on property within state for fines, etc., from date of suit to forfeit charter, etc.
1194. Action not to abate by dissolution, etc.; receivership when; writs; lien.
1195. Attorney general may bring suit to foreclose lien; service.
1196. Rights and remedies cumulative.
1197. No compromise without trial, without consent of attorney general.

Article 1193. State to have lien on property within state for fines, etc., from date of suit to forfeit charter, etc.—Whenever any corporation created under the laws of this state, or any foreign corporation authorized to do business in this state, shall violate any law of this state, including any law against trusts, monopolies and conspiracies, or combinations or contracts in restraint of trade, for the violation of which fines or penalties or forfeitures are provided, all property of such corporation within this state at the time of such violation, or which may thereafter come within this state, shall, by reason of such violation, become liable for such fines or penalties and for all costs of suit and of collection; and the state of Texas shall have a lien on all such property from the date that suit shall be instituted by the attorney general, or district or county attorney acting under his direction, in any court of competent jurisdiction within this state, for the purpose of forfeiting the charter or canceling the permit of such corporation, or for such fines or penalties. The institution of such suit for such fine, penalties or forfeiture shall constitute notice of such lien. Where any such law has heretofore been violated, or shall be violated, before the taking effect of this act, and a cause of action exists for such fine, penalties or forfeiture, or shall come into existence before the taking effect of this act, and suit shall be filed in such case, the state shall have a lien, to secure the payment of such fine, penalties and costs from the time this act shall take effect, on all property of such corporation within this state or which shall thereafter become or be brought within the state. [Acts 1907, p. 175, sec. 1.]

Proceedings to enforce lien.—The state has by this act a lien on all the property in this state of a corporation that has violated any law of this state from the time suit shall be instituted, to forfeit the charter or permit to do business of the corporation or for fines and penalties. The proceeding is one in rem. To accomplish the object of the law, a seizure of the property is essential, and the way to accomplish a seizure is through a receiver. The court having appointed a receiver, all the property of the corporation is drawn to the custody of the court, and the court thus having possession of the property its jurisdiction attached, not to the person of the defendant but to the thing that the law made triable for the consequences of the illegal acts denounced by the statutes, upon which the suit is based. Jurisdiction attaches from the time of filing bill for appointment of receiver, though no possession has been taken by him of the property sought to be administered by the court. Having acquired complete jurisdiction of the res no other court has the power to disturb its jurisdiction or invade its limits. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 47 C. A. 162, 103 S. W. 840 et seq.

Action of debt lies.—An action of debt lies for the recovery of statutory penalties where the statute does not require a resort to criminal prosecutions for their enforcement, though it does not direct any method of enforcement. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 48 C. A. 162, 106 S. W. 918.

Art. 1194. Action not to abate by dissolution, etc.; receivership when; writs; liens.—Any action or cause of action for any fine, forfeiture or penalty that the state of Texas has, or may have, against any corporation chartered under the laws of this or any other state, territory or nation, shall not abate or become abated by reason of the dissolution of such corporation, whether voluntary or otherwise, or by the forfeiture of its charter or permit. Whenever a corporation against which the state has heretofore instituted suit, or shall hereafter institute suit, for forfeiture of its charter, or cancellation of its permit, or for fines or penalties under any law of this state, shall dissolve in this or any other state, or shall have a judgment rendered against it in this or any other state, for the forfeiture of its charter, the court in this state in which such suit is pending shall appoint a receiver for the property and business of such corporation within this state, or that may come or be brought within this state during such receivership; or the court may, in any case wherein the state is suing any such corporation for the forfeiture of its charter, or of its permit to do business in this state, or for fines or penalties, appoint a receiver for such corporation, whenever the interest of the state may seem to require such action. If such dissolution shall take place or judgment of forfeiture be rendered against such corporation before this act takes effect, the court shall, upon the taking effect of this act, appoint a receiver for the property and business of such corporation in this state; and the state shall have the right to writs of attachment, garnishment, sequestration or injunction, without bond, to aid in the enforcement of its rights created by this act; and all property that may come into the possession of any receiver appointed under the provisions of this act, not otherwise exempt by law, shall be subject to the lien herein created, and for the payment of any such fine or penalty. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1195. Attorney general may bring suit to foreclose lien; service.—The attorney general or any district or county attorney acting under his direction, may bring suit in the name of the state of Texas, for the foreclosure of such lien in the district court of any county in the state of Texas; and, in case the suit for foreclosure should be brought against any corporation which has dissolved or had a judgment for the forfeiture of its charter or the cancellation of its permit rendered against it, pending any suit by the state of Texas against such corporation for the forfeiture of its charter or cancellation of its permit, or for penalties or fines, service may be had upon any person within this state who acted and was acting as agent of any such corporation in this state at the time of such dissolution or forfeiture of charter or cancellation of permit. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1196. Rights and remedies cumulative.—The rights and remedies given by this act shall be construed as cumulative of all other laws in force in this state, and shall not affect, change or repeal any other remedies or rights now existing in this state for the enforcement, payment or collection of fines, penalties and forfeitures. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1197. No compromise without trial without consent of attorney general.—In case any suit should heretofore be brought in any of the courts of this state for the recovery of penalties mentioned in this act, the same shall not be settled or compromised without trial upon the merits thereof, without the consent and approval of the attorney general of the state. [Id. sec. 5.]

CHAPTER EIGHT

LIABILITY OF STOCKHOLDERS AND DIRECTORS

Art.
1198. When and how stockholders may be made liable on execution.
1199. Secretary shall furnish names, etc., of stockholders to plaintiff.
1200. Directors liable for debts of corporation, when and to what extent.

Article 1198. [671] [595] When and how stockholders may be made liable on execution.—If any execution shall have been issued against property or effects of a corporation, except a railway or a religious or charitable corporation, and there can not be found any property whereon to levy such execution, then the execution may be issued against any of the stockholders to an extent equal to the amount of the stock unpaid; but no execution shall issue against any stockholder, except upon an order of the court in which the action, suit or other proceeding shall have been brought or instituted, made upon motion in open court, after a reasonable notice in writing to the person or persons sought to be charged; and, upon such motion, such court may order execution to issue accordingly; or the plaintiff in execution may proceed by action to charge the stockholders with the amount of his judgment, in accordance with the liability of the stockholders. [P. D. 5960.]

Does not apply to insolvent corporation, when.—The provisions of this article do not apply to an insolvent corporation in hands of a receiver. A creditor cannot by execution against the stockholders enforce the payment of his judgment where the corporation has been placed in the hands of a receiver on his application. Showalter v. Laredo Improvement Co., 83 T. 162, 18 S. W. 491.

Creditor can sue stockholders directly, when.—Where a contract for the transfer of plaintiff's trunk was made with a corporation, an action for the loss thereof could not be maintained against an individual stockholder therein. Gregory v. Webb, 40 C. A. 360, 89 S. W. 1109.

Where the insolvency of a corporation and nonpayment of stock subscriptions are undisputed, a creditor held entitled to sue the stockholders directly. Bank of De Soto v. Reed, 50 C. A. 102, 109 S. W. 256.

Liability as stockholders—In general.—It is not necessary that shares of stock should have been actually issued and delivered to any of the subscribers to create a liability. Their subscription fixes their liability. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

Where, in a motion to enforce liability of stockholders for unpaid subscriptions, the evidence showed that the directors proceeded against had not subscribed for any stock and did not own any it was insufficient to sustain a judgment against the directors for at least $100. The plaintiffs not having alleged that the defendants being directors were estopped to deny that they each owned at least one share of stock. McFarland v. Martin & Moodie (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 640.

One held liable as a subscriber of corporate stock. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

The balance due on unpaid stock subscriptions is a fund for the satisfaction of the corporate debts. Herf & Frerichs Chemical Co. v. Brewster, 54 C. A. 217, 117 S. W. 880.

A member of a temporary association organized by stock subscribers for the purpose of organizing a corporation held liable for injuries to an employé engaged in work in furtherance of the business in which the corporation when chartered will engage. Farmers' Gin & Milling Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 668.

—— Unpaid subscriptions.—Article 12, section 6, of the constitution does not change the rule that stockholders of a corporation are liable to the creditors for the par value of the capital stock subscribed for and held by them. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

Where subscribers have not paid all they agreed to pay for their stock, the balance, when recovered, should constitute a fund for all the creditors, whether with or without notice. Id.

Where creditors had notice when their debts were created of the arrangement between the corporation and the subscribers to its capital stock, by which they received it for less than par, they cannot hold the subscribers for a greater sum than they agreed to pay. Id.

The unpaid subscriptions of corporate stock form a part of the assets of the corporation to which the holders of its bonds may look for satisfaction of their claims. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Delaware Western Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 447.

—— Paid-up stock.—In determining the liability of stockholders who receive stock marked fully paid, the value of the property transferred by them to the corporation for the stock should be considered. Cole v. Adams, 92 T. 171, 46 S. W. 790.

—— Extent of liability.—On distribution of a corporation's assets among its stockholders, the stockholders become liable to the extent of the stock received by them. McLean v. Moore (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1074.

—— Effect of transfer of stock.—A stockholder who transfers his stock in good faith, while the corporation is solvent, and who has the transfer entered on the books of the corporation, is not liable to the corporation or its creditors for unpaid subscriptions. Cole v. Adams, 19 C. A. 507, 49 S. W. 1052.

The transferror of corporate stock directly to the corporation without the intervention of a trustee is not released from his liability on the stock. San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1104.

—— Preferred stockholders.—Holders of preferred stock in a corporation, in the absence of statutory or contract provisions, are in the same position as to the corporation itself and to creditors as holders of common stock, except as to the preference right to dividends. Reagan Bale Co. v. Heuermann (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 228.

—— Bona fide shareholders in de facto corporation.—A charter on its face stated that two of those signing as corporators were residents of this state, and the secretary of state gave the necessary certificate to the articles of incorporation. None of the incorporators were citizens of this state, and upon that ground the charter was forfeited. While the corporation was in operation parties in good faith bought stock in it. It was held that a de facto corporation existed and bona fide shareholders were not responsible for its debts. American Salt Co. v. Heidenheimer, 80 T. 344, 15 S. W. 1038, 26 Am. St. Rep. 743.

Accrual of cause of action.—No cause of action against the subscribers ever accrues to the creditors until they have exhausted their remedy against the corporation. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

Liability of stockholders to creditors and to each other.—See Art. 1208.

Right to jury trial.—In a proceeding under this article to enforce payment by stockholders for unpaid subscriptions the stockholders are entitled to a jury trial upon paying the jury fee. McFarland v. Martin & Moodie (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 639.

Action and judgment.—It is not necessary for the plaintiff to set out the cause of action of the creditors against the corporation with the same particularity as would be required in an original suit by the creditor against the corporation to establish it. When claims have been established by the court in the receivership proceedings, an allegation of that fact conclusively showed the liability of the corporation for them. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

A judgment should not be rendered against a receiver after his discharge. Railway Co. v. Wylie (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 771.

Art. 1199. [672] [596] Secretary shall furnish names, etc., of stockholders to plaintiff.—The secretary or other officer having charge of the books of any corporation, on demand of the plaintiff in any execution against the corporation, his agent or attorney, shall furnish such plaintiff, his agent or attorney with the names and places of residence of the stockholders as far as known, and the amount of stock held by each, as shown by the books of the corporation. [P. D. 5961.]

Art. 1200. [670] [594] Directors liable for debts of corporation, when and to what extent.—If the directors of any corporation shall knowingly declare and pay any dividend when the corporation is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which would render it insolvent, they shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the corporation then existing, and for all debts of the corporation which thereafter, during the time such directors respectively remain in office, shall be contracted. The amount for which they shall be so liable shall not exceed the amount of such dividend; and if any of the directors shall be absent at the time of declaring the dividend, or shall object thereto, at the time such dividend is declared, and shall file their objections in writing with the secretary or other officer of the corporation having charge of the books, they shall be exempted from said liability. [Acts 1874, p. 120. Acts 1871, 2 S. S., p. 66. Acts 1893, p. 123. P. D. 5959.]

In general.—As to liability of directors of an insolvent corporation, see Nenney v. Waddill, 25 S. W. 308, 6 C. A. 244.

Where corporation transferred its assets to its president to pay debts, and he distributed a surplus among the stockholders without payment of plaintiff's claim, judgment against him personally is proper. Carter v. Forbes Lithograph Mfg. Co., 22 C. A. 549, 56 S. W. 227.

A party charging that the officers of a corporation had misapplied certain corporate funds, which should have been in part applied to his claim against the corporation, must, in order to recover against such officers as individuals show what part of such funds should have been applied to his claim. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

CHAPTER NINE

INSOLVENT CORPORATIONS

Art.
1201. Unlawful for insolvent corporations to do business in state.
1202. Attorney general, etc., to bring quo warranto, etc., to forfeit charter or cancel permit; receiver, etc.
1203. Stockholders or creditors may sue to dissolve when; by leave of court, with notice, etc.
1204. Rights and remedies cumulative.

Article 1201. Unlawful for insolvent corporations to do business in state.—It shall be unlawful for any insolvent corporation, domestic or foreign, to do business in this state, or to exercise or retain any franchise or permit or charter granted from or by the state. [Acts 1907, p. 341, sec. 1.]

Art. 1202. Attorney general, etc., to bring quo warranto, etc., to forfeit charter or cancel permit; receiver, payment of indebtedness as affecting suit, etc.—It is hereby made the duty of the attorney general of this state, when convinced that any corporation is insolvent, to institute quo warranto or other appropriate proceedings in some court of competent jurisdiction, either in Travis county or in any other county in which said corporation may be sued, to forfeit its charter, if a domestic corporation, and to cancel its permit, if a foreign corporation.

It shall be the duty of the several district and county attorneys of this state, to bring and prosecute the proceedings mentioned above whenever directed so to do by the attorney general of Texas; and the court trying said cause, after the corporation has been shown to be insolvent, may, in its discretion, appoint a receiver or receivers for said corporation and all its properties, with full power to settle its affairs, collect its outstanding debts and divide the moneys and other properties belonging to said company among the stockholders thereof, after paying the debts due and owing by such corporation, and all expenses incident to the judicial proceedings and receivership; and the court may continue the existence of such corporation for three years, and for such further reasonable time as may be necessary to accomplish the objects and purposes of this act. [Id. sec. 2.]

If any suit authorized by this article has been instituted the same shall be dismissed at the cost of the defendant; or, if not instituted, the same shall not be begun, if the defendant corporation, through its stockholders, shall pay off its indebtedness or reduce the same by paying, so that it is relieved of insolvency. [Id. sec. 4.]

Insolvency—What constitutes.—A corporation held not insolvent, so that its assets became a trust for creditors, where it had not ceased to do business. College Park Electric Belt Line v. Ide, 15 C. A. 273, 40 S. W. 64.

A corporation is insolvent when its assets are insufficient to pay its debts and it has ceased to do business, or has taken, or is in the act of taking, a step which will practically incapacitate it for conducting the corporate enterprise with reasonable prospect of success, or when its embarrassments are such that early suspension and failure must ensue. Mere excess of liabilities over assets does not necessarily constitute insolvency. State v. Trinity Life & Annuity Society (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1174.

"Insolvency," as the term is ordinarily used, is not a mere failure to pay debts, but is an insufficiency of property and assets to pay debts. San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1104.

—— Effect of.—A corporation is not necessarily dissolved by insolvency. Gresham v. Savings Bank, 2 C. A. 52, 21 S. W. 556. A surrender of its franchise will not be presumed so long as it has power to continue its business. Nor will a sale of its visible property to pay debts and a temporary suspension of business work a forfeiture of its charter, if new stockholders purchase and resume business under the old charter, or if capital is called in by new subscriptions and business resumed. Savings Bank v. Sachtleben, 67 T. 421, 3 S. W. 733.

—— Evidence of.—In a suit to procure the appointment of a receiver of a corporation, evidence held insufficient to show insolvency or imminent danger of insolvency. Brenton & McKay v. Peck, 39 C. A. 224, 87 S. W. 898.

Corporations dissolved, how.—See Art. 1205 et seq.

Removal of assignee, etc., and appointment of receiver.—See note under Art. 104.

Failure to begin operations in three years does not ipso facto dissolve.—The language used in this article indicates that it was not intended that failure to commence operations within three years should be anything more than a cause for dissolution of the corporation. It was not intended that default on the part of the corporation should ipso facto dissolve the corporation. Article 1205 prescribes how a corporation is dissolved. Reed v. Sampson, 54 C. A. 552, 118 S. W. 750, 751.

Remedies of creditor.—A diligent creditor may pursue the remedies provided by law for the collection of his debt. The insolvency of a corporation does not prevent a levy upon its property to satisfy a judgment. Harrigan v. Quay (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 896.

Claims against insolvent corporation enforced, how.—A claim against an insolvent corporation can only be enforced in a proceeding wherein all the creditors are parties. College Park Electric Belt Line v. Ide, 15 C. A. 273, 40 S. W. 64.

A party foreclosing assessment lien held entitled to an order of sale, though in the meantime the property had been sold by receiver under foreclosure of another lien in another court, the receivership being closed. Houston City St. Ry. Co. v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 693.

A person's claim for injuries inflicted by an insolvent corporation, though not reduced to judgment, is an equitable lien on its property, constituting its officers trustees thereof for his benefit. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

Purchaser of property not liable, when.—A purchaser of the property of an insolvent corporation under foreclosure proceedings held not responsible for liabilities of the corporation. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 324.

Directors of insolvent bank liable, when.—See, also, Art. 554.

The directors of a banking corporation are personally liable at the suit of an individual depositor for damages sustained by reason of the insolvency of the corporation, when the depositor is induced to place money in the hands of the corporation solely by representations of solvency made to the general public by the directors. Seale v. Baker, 70 T. 283, 7 S. W. 742, 8 Am. St. Rep. 592.

Appointment and powers of receiver.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 21.

Art. 1203. Stockholders or creditors may sue to dissolve when; by leave of court, with notice, etc.—Stockholders of any insolvent corporation who own twenty-five per cent of its stock, or creditors of any such insolvent corporation who own twenty-five per cent of its indebtedness, may institute and prosecute a suit for the dissolution of such corporation; provided, that before any petition is filed by either the attorney general, or under his authority, or by stockholders or creditors, as provided in this chapter, leave therefor shall be first granted by the presiding judge of the court in which the proceeding is to be instituted; and, on presentation of any petition, it shall be the duty of such judge, before granting leave to file the same, to carefully examine the same; and he may also require an examination into the facts; and it shall be made to appear with reasonable certainty from said petition, or from the petition and the facts, as the case may be, that the relief sought should be granted; and it is further provided that any such corporation proceeded against shall have ten full days notice prior to the day set for the hearing, on an application for the appointment of a receiver. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1204. Rights and remedies cumulative.—The rights and remedies given by this chapter are cumulative, and shall not affect, change or repeal any other remedies or rights now existing in this state for the enforcement, payment or collection of fines, forfeitures and penalties. [Id. sec. 6.]

Preferred creditors.—See Reagan Bale Co. v. Heuermann (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 228, and General Electric Co. v. Canyon City Ice & Fuel Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 78.

CHAPTER TEN

DISSOLUTION OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS

Art.
1205. Corporation is dissolved, how.
1206. Unless receiver appointed, president etc., to be trustees, and close business.
1207. Trustees responsible to creditors, etc., to what extent.
1208. Liability of stockholders to creditors and to each other.
1209. Stockholder may compel contribution.
1210. Only liable for unpaid stock.
1211. Members or officers of defunct corporation not to do business under old corporate name, etc.

Article 1205. [680] [604] Corporation is dissolved, how.—A corporation is dissolved:

1. By expiration of the time limited in its charter.

2. By a judgment of dissolution rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction.

3. Where four-fifths in interest of all the stock outstanding shall vote in favor of a dissolution at a stockholders' meeting called for that purpose on notice signed by a majority of the directors, stating time, place and object of the meeting, served personally, or by mail, at least thirty days next before the meeting. If, at said meeting, four-fifths in interest of all the stockholders of said company shall signify their consent in writing to the dissolution of the corporation, such consent in writing, together with a list of the directors and officers of the company, giving postoffice address and place of residence of each, certified by the president and secretary and treasurer as true and correct action of the stockholders, shall be filed with the secretary of state; or when, without a stockholders' meeting, all the stockholders of the corporation consent in writing to a dissolution, the same shall be certified to as above and filed with the secretary of state. When any such certificate as above mentioned is filed with the secretary of state, he shall issue a certificate that such consent has been filed and that the corporation is dissolved; and said officer shall so note on the ledger in his office. [Acts 1907, p. 311, sec. 4. P. D. 5968.]

4. A corporation is dissolved whenever, under any special provision of law, its charter is forfeited without judicial ascertainment.

5. Where a corporation created under this title or a general law of this state shall fail to commence active operations within three years after filing its charter with the secretary of state, its charter is hereby forfeited, and the corporation is dissolved. [P. D. 5969.]

6. Whenever a corporation upon proper judicial ascertainment is found to be insolvent.

Acts of incorporators.—March 1, 1883, four persons formed a corporation. Each member paid into the stock $10,000. No certificates of stock were issued, and nothing more was paid in nor anything withdrawn. The business was "buying, selling, raising and breeding cattle," etc., and was carried on in Mexico. Regular meetings were held for several years. February 1, 1884, the incorporators made an agreement which recited that they had equally invested $40,000 in cattle in Coahuila, describing them, and each agreed to be equally responsible for all expenses, etc., and equally interested in profits. It was held that the corporation continued to exist and the members were not liable as partners. Cattle Co. v. Burns, 82 T. 50, 17 S. W. 1043.

Evidence in a suit to vacate a decree foreclosing a vendor's lien on land conveyed to a corporation by its president examined, and held to show that the corporation had not forfeited its right to act as such, and that it was the proper party plaintiff, and not the administrator or heirs of the president. Fox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 597.

Expiration of time limited.—The legal existence of corporations and associations formed for a limited period of time terminate ipso facto on the expiration of the time, without action on the part of those in charge of its business affairs. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Judicial decree.—Where a corporation was dissolved by judicial decree an employé's right of action for services was against such trustees. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Nicolini (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 84.

Actions by or against corporation after dissolution.—Upon the dissolution of a private corporation all actions at law against it abate. The statutes of this state do not provide for the further prosecution of an action at law against a foreign corporation, after its dissolution, against the legal representative. It would seem that a suit at equity abated by such dissolution might be revived. Limitation will run against a bill of revivor to make proper parties, such existing, who represented the defunct corporation and who could be made parties. Life Association v. Goode, 71 T. 90, 8 S. W. 639.

Corporation, after dissolution, held to have no power to maintain trespass to try title. Baldwin v. Johnson, 95 T. 85, 65 S. W. 171.

Stockholders in private foreign corporation, after dissolution, held empowered to bring trespass to try title. Id.

A corporation could not be sued after it had been dissolved and a receiver appointed for it. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 816.

Forfeiture—Grounds.—Facts held sufficient to warrant a revocation of a corporation charter for having entered into a combination in restraint of trade, in violation of the anti-trust law. Crystal Ice & Manufacturing Co. v. State, 23 C. A. 293, 56 S. W. 562.

—— Proceedings to enforce.—In a proceeding for the forfeiture of a corporation's charter, predicated on a violation of the anti-trust law of April 30, 1895, a contention that such act was accepted as part of the contract under which the charter was granted, and that its violation authorized a cancellation of the charter, though the act was unconstitutional, is without merit. State v. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1049.

Appointment of receiver.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 21.

Art. 1206. Unless receiver appointed, president, etc., to be trustees, and close business.—Upon the dissolution of any corporation, unless a receiver is appointed by some court of competent jurisdiction, the president and directors or managers of the affairs of the corporation at the time of its dissolution, by whatever name they may be known in law, shall be trustees of the creditors and stockholders of such corporation, with full power to settle the affairs, collect the outstanding debts, and divide the moneys and other property among the stockholders, after paying the debts due and owing by such corporation at the time of its dissolution, as far as such money and property will enable them after paying all just and reasonable expenses; and to this end, and for this purpose they may, in the name of such corporation, sell, convey and transfer all real and personal property belonging to such company, collect all debts, compromise controversies, maintain or defend judicial proceedings, and to exercise the full power and authority of said company over such assets and properties; and the existence of every corporation may be continued for three years after its dissolution from whatever cause for the purpose of enabling those charged with the duty to settle up its affairs; and, in case a receiver is appointed by a court for this purpose, the existence of such corporation may be continued by the court so long as in its discretion it is necessary to suitably settle up the affairs of such corporation. [Id. sec. 7.]

Application.—This is the only statute that provides that the president and board of directors of a corporation shall be trustees and take possession of the property of the corporation and such provision is made only in the case of a dissolution, and does not apply in case of a forfeiture of the charter by the judgment of a court. If this article could apply in cases where there has been a forfeiture of the charter by the state it can only apply when no receiver has been appointed by some court of competent authority. San Antonio Gas Co. v. State, 22 C. A. 118, 54 S. W. 289.

Appointment of receiver.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 21.

Rights of creditors.—A creditor of a corporation may pursue the remedies provided by law for the collection of his debts, and subject its property to their payment. Florsheim Bros. v. Wettermark, 10 C. A. 102, 30 S. W. 505.

And when one or more of the directors die the survivors take the whole property subject to the trust. Aldridge v. Pardee, 60 S. W. 791.

Where a corporation is dissolved the property belonging thereto passes to the directors to be held by them for the benefit of corporation creditors. Id.

Dissolution pending receivership.—If a corporation is dissolved pending the receivership, the receiver would continue to enjoy the easements of the corporation, and upon sale its franchises necessary to the use of the property vest in the purchaser. City Water Co. v. State, 88 T. 600, 32 S. W. 1033.

Effect of dissolution.—A sale of land on execution, levied after the dissolution of a corporation, under a judgment rendered before dissolution, passes no title. Aldridge v. Pardee, 24 C. A. 254, 60 S. W. 789.

Rights of commissioners, etc., of foreign corporation.—Commissioners appointed by stockholders of a private foreign corporation to wind up affairs held to have no power to bring trespass to try title. Baldwin v. Johnson, 95 T. 85, 65 S. W. 171.

Art. 1207. [683] [607] Trustees responsible to creditors, etc., to what extent.—The trustees mentioned in the preceding article shall be severally responsible to the creditors and stockholders of such corporation to the extent of its property and effects that shall have come into their hands. [P. D. 5971.]

Art. 1208. [684] [608] Liability of stockholders to creditors and to each other.—If any corporation created under this title or any general statute of this state, except railway, or charitable or religious corporations, be dissolved, leaving debts unpaid, suit may be brought against any person or persons who were stockholders at the time of such dissolution, without joining the corporation in such suit; and if judgment be rendered and execution satisfied, the defendant or defendants may sue all who were stockholders at the time of dissolution for the recovery of the portion of such debt for which they were liable; and the execution upon the judgment shall direct the collection to be made from property of each stockholder respectively; and if any number of stockholders defendants in the case shall not have property enough to satisfy his or their portion of the execution, then the amount of deficiency shall be divided equally among all the remaining stockholders, and collections made accordingly, deducting from the amount a sum in proportion to the amount of stock owned by the plaintiff at the time the company dissolved. [P. D. 5972.]

Upon dissolution assets become trust fund for creditors.—Upon the dissolution of a corporation there is an equitable lien upon its property in the hands of the stockholders, or of persons taking with notice, in favor of the creditors of such corporation. Nor would the fact that the corporation has not been legally dissolved by law affect the principle upon the stockholders parceling out the property of the corporation among themselves, with the express agreement subjecting the property to its debts. Panhandle Nat. Bank v. Emery, 78 T. 498, 15 S. W. 23.

When a private corporation ceases to do business its property is held by its directors as a trust fund for the benefit of all of its creditors, and is not subject to attachment. Lyons-Thomas Hardware Co. v. Perry Stove Mfg. Co., 86 T. 143, 24 S. W. 16, 22 L. R. A. 802; Rogers v. East Line Lumber Co., 11 C. A. 108, 33 S. W. 312.

The assets of a private trading corporation which has failed in business by reason of insolvency become a trust fund for the benefit of all of its creditors. Wright v. Euless, 12 C. A. 136, 34 S. W. 302.

Rights and liabilities of stockholders.—See, also, Art. 1198 and notes.

Stockholders, on the dissolution of a domestic corporation, hold the corporate property as tenants in common after the payment of all debts. Ferrell v. Millican (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 230.

Art. 1209. [685] [609] Stockholder may compel contribution.—If any stockholder pay more than his due proportion of any debt of the corporation, he may compel contribution from the other stockholders by action. [P. D. 5973.]

Other provisions.—This article controls Art. 1328, post. Ferrier v. Knox County (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 896.

Art. 1210. [686] [610] Only liable for unpaid stock.—No stockholder shall be liable to pay debts of the corporation beyond the amount unpaid on his stock. [P. D. 5974.]

Art. 1211. Members or officers of defunct corporation not to do business under old corporate name, etc.—When any charter or permit heretofore or hereafter granted under the laws of the state of Texas to any corporation to do business in said state shall have been forfeited, it shall be unlawful for any persons who were members or officers of said defunct corporation at the time of such forfeiture to do business in Texas under the old corporate name of such corporation, or to use the same or like signs or advertisements which were used by such corporation before such forfeiture. [Acts 1905, p. 335.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

RELIGIOUS, CHARITABLE AND OTHER CORPORATIONS

Art.
1212. Powers and privileges of.
1213. Directors, etc., not to usurp spiritual functions.
1214. Certain orders may incorporate, how.
1215. Incorporation of grand body to include what; rights of subordinate bodies.
1216. Grand and subordinate bodies may elect their own trustees, etc.; other powers.
1217. May acquire and hold land and personalty necessary for sites, etc., sell mortgage, etc.
1218. Subordinate bodies subject to grand, etc.
1219. On demise of subordinate body, property vests in grand body, subject, etc.
1220. Grand body may loan certain funds, take liens on real estate, etc.
1221. Grand body may provide in charter what, etc.
1222. Rights of grand body now chartered.
1223. Franchise tax not required.
1224. Not required to state capital stock in charter.

Article 1212. [713] [637] Powers and privileges of.—Any religious society, charitable, benevolent, literary, or social association (other than colleges, universities, academies or seminaries), and also any military or fire company, may, by the consent of a majority of its members, become a body corporate under this title, electing directors or trustees, and performing such other things as are directed in the case of other corporations; and when so organized shall have all the powers and privileges, and be subject to all the restrictions in this title contained, for the objects named in the charter, and shall have the same power to make by-laws for the regulation of their affairs as other corporations. [Acts 1899, p. 236.]

In general.—A savings and loan association held not a mutual benefit association. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 160.

Courts will give effect to action of church society in removing trustee from office for breach of trust, if done by proper proceedings. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

Minority of members of church cannot depose trustees, at meeting held by them not regular business meeting, without notice to majority or to trustees to be removed. Id.

A person not a member of a church and a nonresident of the state may nevertheless be a trustee. Id.

A voluntary association will not be presumed, as a matter of law, to be governed by the commonly accepted parliamentary rules. Gipson v. Morris, 31 C. A. 645, 73 S. W. 85.

"Ecclesiastical matter" defined. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Constitutional provisions.—It is the purpose of the constitution to forbid the use of public funds for the support of any particular denomination of religious people, whether they be Christians or of other religions. Church v. Bullock, 104 T. 1, 109 S. W. 115, 16 L. R. A. (N. S.) 860.

Constitution and rules.—Authorized rules made by proper church functionaries will be enforced by courts, when not in conflict with law. Alexander v. Bowers (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 342.

The constitution of a religious denomination held to limit the powers of the church officials to those expressly given in the constitution. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

The constitution of a religious denomination held not to authorize its general governing body to form a union with another religious denomination having the same or similar form of government, doctrine, and standards. Id.

The constitution of a religious denomination held not to confer on its governing bodies the power to introduce such fundamental changes as will operate to impair the integrity of the organization or affect its legal identity. Id.

Where the power to alter or amend any of the provisions of the written constitution of a voluntary religious association is delegated to any of the officers of the association, there is the implied qualification that it shall be used in the furtherance of the objects for which the association was formed and in harmony with its general plan of organization. Id.

Membership in general.—Where the fellowship of an independent religious society has been withdrawn from a member at a regular meeting of the church conference, he is no longer a member, and has no vote at a subsequent meeting. Gipson v. Morris, 35 C. A. 645, 73 S. W. 85.

When one becomes a member of a voluntary religious association, he subscribes to all of its rules and regulations, and consents to the exercise of such powers as have been conferred on its managing officers, and is bound thereby in the future conduct of its affairs. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Remaining members of a lodge of Masons, sufficient in number to constitute a lodge under the laws of the grand lodge, held entitled to the property of the local lodge as against withdrawing members. Minor v. St. John's Union Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Ancient York Masons (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 893.

A majority of a local lodge of Masons owing allegiance to a grand lodge cannot dissolve it and devote its property to other purposes, so long as enough loyal members remain to constitute a lodge under the laws of the grand lodge. Id.

Where a subordinate lodge of Masons existed under a charter of a grand lodge, and a conveyance was made to trustees for its benefit, the title was held for the lodge itself, and not for its individual members. Id.

A member of a lodge of Masons, on ceasing to be such, parts with his interest in real estate held by trustees for the benefit of the lodge. Id.

In an action against a beneficial association for injuries, where the tripping of plaintiff was not a part of the ceremony, but an independent act of some one in the temple, the association was not liable. Grand Temple and Tabernacle of Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 173.

Meetings and elections.—A fraudulent or arbitrary ruling on a vote by a presiding officer of a voluntary association will not be upheld. Gipson v. Morris, 31 C. A. 645, 73 S. W. 85.

Decision of the presiding officer of a church, from which no appeal was taken, that the body stood adjourned, held conclusive on the church, and could not be reviewed by the courts. Gipson v. Morris, 36 C. A. 593, 83 S. W. 226.

Officers and committees.—The general powers of church officers held not materially different from those exercised by the managing directors of private corporations. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

When church officers undertake to make fundamental alterations in the organization affecting the entire membership and their status, the civil courts will ascertain the authority of the officers, when called in question by the proper parties and in proper proceedings. Id.

Courts will inquire into the authority of officers of religious societies where a property right depends thereon. Id.

An officer of an unincorporated church who signed a contract in his official capacity held liable individually regardless of his intention to become so. Summerhill v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 492.

An unincorporated church organization is not liable on its contracts, and for that reason an officer of such an organization who signs one is not liable in his official capacity. Id.

Subordinate bodies.—The regulations adopted by a religious denomination pursuant to its authority held valid and enforceable as against the subordinate bodies and members. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Ecclesiastical tribunals.—Actions and declarations by a Baptist council, an association and a convention, held not conclusive on a majority of a congregation as to whether it was the true church. Jarrell v. Sproles, 20 C. A. 387, 49 S. W. 904.

Under Cumberland Presbyterian constitution, the general assembly of the church held to have power to determine whether it was authorized by the constitution to unite with another church, and its decision will not be reviewed by the civil court. Brown v. Clark, 102 T. 323, 116 S. W. 360, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 670.

A local church, being a member of the church organization of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, held bound by the orders and judgments of the courts of the church. Id.

The decision of the general assembly of a church that its confession of faith was the same as that of another church so that they could unite held binding upon the civil courts, so that a member could not object to the union of the churches on the ground that the confessions of faith were different, or that one church admitted negroes and the other did not. Id.

Consolidation.—A union between two religious denominations held to involve the extinction of one of them, not binding on dissenting members. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

It is no part of the duty of civil courts to pass on the issue of expediency of union between religious bodies. Id.

The officers of one religious denomination held not entitled to unite with another denomination in such a manner as to terminate the temporal organization of the former denomination. Id.

An action of the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church held not legal fraud so as to vitiate the vote for union with the Presbyterian Church of the United States. Horton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1088.

Members of the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, voting for union with the Presbyterian Church of the United States, held not entitled to urge that their votes were fraudulently procured. Id.

Dissolution.—Where a voluntary religious association began in a compact between the individuals composing it, it must end by a dissolution or abandonment of that compact. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Not exempt from execution.—The property of a religious corporation organized to maintain a hospital is not exempt from execution, though the services of the hospital are given free to those who cannot pay, and all sums received for services are expended in the maintenance of the establishment, the payment of a mortgage debt and of an annual sum for the maintenance of the mother organization located in another state. Armendarez v. Hôtel Dieu (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1030.

—— Liability for injury to employé.—As to the liability of a religious society controlling an educational institution, see Trustees, etc., v. Hahn, 7 C. A. 249, 26 S. W. 755.

A religious corporation organized to operate a hospital is not exempted from liability for injury sustained by an employé through negligence chargeable to it, though money received in payment for services was expended in maintaining the institution for the benefit of the poor, to pay off a mortgage on its property, and to support its mother institution located in another state. Armendarez v. Hôtel Dieu (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1030.

Art. 1213. [713] [637] Directors, etc., not to usurp spiritual functions.—Such directors or trustees shall not usurp or exercise the functions of the officers in charge of the spiritual affairs of any society. [Id.]

Not to usurp spiritual functions.—The officers of a religious corporation cannot usurp the power or exercise the functions of the officers in charge of the spiritual affairs of a religious society. Cranfil v. Hayden, 22 C. A. 656, 55 S. W. 809.

Art. 1214. Certain orders may incorporate how.—The grand lodge of Texas, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, the grand Royal Arch chapter of Texas, the grand commandery of Knights Templars of Texas (Masonic); the grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Texas, and other like institutions and orders organized for charitable or benevolent purposes may, by the consent of their respective bodies, expressed by a resolution or otherwise, become bodies corporate under this title. [Id.]

Transaction between community and lodge.—Effect of a transaction between a community and a lodge respecting the construction and use of a building on the lodge's land, stated. Rhodes v. Maret (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 433.

Art. 1215. Incorporation of grand body to include what; rights of subordinate bodies.—The incorporation of any such grand body shall include all of its subordinate lodges, or bodies holding warrant or charter under such grand body; and each of such subordinate bodies shall have all the rights of other corporations under and by the name given it in such warrant or charter issued by the grand body to which it is attached, such rights being provided for in the charter of the grand body. [Id.]

Art. 1216. Grand and subordinate bodies may elect their own trustees, etc., other powers.—Such grand bodies and their subordinates may elect their own trustees or directors, or name certain of their officers as such, and perform such other acts and things as are directed or provided by law in the case of other corporations, and shall have full power to make constitutions and by-laws for the government and regulation of their affairs. [Id.]

Art. 1217. May acquire and hold land and personalty necessary for sites, etc., sell, mortgage, etc.—Such institutions or orders, grand and subordinate, as are mentioned or included within this chapter shall have the right to acquire and hold such lands and personalty as may be necessary or convenient for sites upon which to erect buildings for their use and occupancy, and for homes and schools for their widows, orphans or aged or decrepit or indigent members, and to sell or mortgage the same, such conveyances to be executed by the presiding officer, attested by the secretary and the seal; but the power and authority of such subordinate bodies to sell or to mortgage shall be subject to such conditions and prerequisites as may be from time to time prescribed or established by the grand body to which the subordinate is attached. [Id.]

Property and funds.—Conveyances to trustees for the benefit of a church of a particular faith held made for the benefit of the congregation for whose benefit the conveyances were made, unincumbered by any conditions so far as the grantors were concerned. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

The right of property conveyed to a church belonging to a particular denomination held to depend on the right of succession. Id.

Questions of government and control of property of church having congregational form of government are determined by the will of the numerical majority of its members. Stogner v. Laird (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 644.

—— Mortgage.—A defectively executed mortgage of church property, recognized by church as legal, held enforceable. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

—— Diversion.—Where property was conveyed on condition that it should be used for a particular religious faith, the courts will prevent diversion of the property from such purpose. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

—— Effect of change of doctrine or discipline.—The adoption by a congregation of a new doctrine cannot, in the absence of evidence of its principles, be regarded as a heterodoxy. Jarrell v. Sproles, 20 C. A. 387, 49 S. W. 904.

Where no trust was imposed on church property to be used for the support of any particular dogma, the courts will not imply such a trust for the purpose of expelling members from its use who have changed their articles of faith. First Baptist Church of Paris v. Fort, 93 T. 215, 54 S. W. 892, 49 L. R. A. 617.

Title and possession of church property of an independent church should be awarded to authorities entitled thereto under constitution of church, irrespective of adherence to theological doctrines. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

—— Effect of division of church.—Though in the minority, the members of a church who adhere to its original doctrine are entitled to property dedicated before the schism at which the majority of the members forsook the doctrine. Peace v. First Christian Church of McGregor, 20 C. A. 85, 48 S. W. 534.

In a church governed on the principle of congregational sovereignty, a division carries to the majority the control of property vested in the deacons for the use of the church. Jarrell v. Sproles, 20 C. A. 387, 49 S. W. 904.

A minority of church members, after forming another organization because the majority have abandoned the original articles of faith, held not entitled to obtain possession of church property. First Baptist Church of Paris v. Fort, 93 T. 215, 54 S. W. 892, 49 L. R. A. 617.

Minority, who leave church because majority have abandoned religious tenets of the church, are not entitled to possession of church property. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

Where a voluntary society becomes separated into two bodies as a result of a vote at a meeting, the rights of each body will depend on which had a majority of the members at that time. Gipson v. Morris, 31 C. A. 645, 73 S. W. 85.

The rule that title to church property of a divided congregation is in that part which adheres to the original organization held subject to a designated qualification. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Members of a church held entitled to the property held in trust for the church as against the claims of other members. Id.

Where the Cumberland Presbyterian Church was united with the Presbyterian Church of the United States by the lawful action of the tribunals of the former church, property of a local church of the Cumberland Church, deeded to the local church before the union, held to belong to those members of the local church who recognized the authority of the Presbyterian Church of the United States. Brown v. Clark, 102 T. 323, 116 S. W. 360, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 670.

Contract between factions of church held not required to be authorized and entered into by a majority of all the members. Bottom v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 833.

One of two divisions or factions of a church is not entitled to enjoin the other faction from alleged interference with church property, unless the factions were divided in opinion, or unless one or both had effected an organization claiming to be the original organization. Stogner v. Laird (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 644.

—— Jurisdiction of courts to determine rights of property.—Each member of a church organization is the equal of every other member, and has the absolute right, which the courts will protect, to have the property controlled and administered according to its organic plan, and to participate in its affairs in harmony therewith. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

In disputes between factions of religious societies, the civil courts can determine only those affecting property rights, and ecclesiastical or doctrinal questions will be inquired into only so far as to determine such rights. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1149.

—— Actions.—In a suit against the minority faction of a church to obtain control of the church property, evidence held to show that the rules of a certain work on parliamentary law were customarily used by the church. Gipson v. Morris, 36 C. A. 593, 83 S. W. 226.

Evidence, in an action for an injunction, held sufficient to show that plaintiffs, claiming as trustees of a church had been elected by an affirmative vote at an authorized convention of the church. Stogner v. Laird (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 644.

Contracts and indebtedness.—In an action involving the right to the property of a religious association, defendants, who were in possession, held entitled to borrow money necessary for its maintenance and protection pending determination of the action. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1152.

Art. 1218. Subordinate bodies subject to grand, etc.—Such subordinate bodies shall, at all times, be subject to the jurisdiction and control of their respective grand bodies, and subject to have their warrants or charters revoked by such grand body. [Id.]

Relation between grand and subordinate bodies.—The relation neither of master and servant nor principal and agent held to exist between the grand body of a beneficial association and members of a subordinate temple in inflicting an injury while acting outside of its authority and not in furtherance of its business. Grand Temple and Tabernacle of Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 173.

Art. 1219. On demise of subordinate body property vests in grand body, subject, etc.—Upon the demise of any subordinate body so incorporated, all property and rights existing in such subordinate body shall pass to, and vest in, the grand body to which it was attached, subject to the payment of all debts due by such subordinate body; but the grand body shall never be liable for any sum greater than the actual cash value of the effects of such subordinate actually received by it, or its authority. [Id.]

Art. 1220. Grand body may loan certain funds, take liens on real estate, etc.—Any grand body incorporated under this chapter shall have the right and authority to loan any funds held and owned by it for charitable purposes, for the endowment of any of its institutions or otherwise, and may secure such loans by taking and receiving liens on real estate, or in such other manner as it may elect; and upon sale of any real estate under such lien, such grand body may become the purchaser thereof and hold title thereto. [Id.]

Art. 1221. Grand body may provide in charter, what, etc.—Any grand body incorporating under this chapter may provide in its charter for the expiration of its corporate powers at the end of any given number of years; or it may provide in its charter for its perpetual existence, and by its corporate name have perpetual succession of officers and members. [Id.]

Art. 1222. Rights of grand body now chartered.—Any such grand body or subordinate body now having a valid chartered existence may continue under its present charter, or reincorporate under this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 1223. Franchise tax not required.—Bodies incorporated under this chapter shall not be subject to, or required to, pay a franchise tax. [Id.]

Art. 1224. [714] [638] Not required to state capital stock in charter.—No religious, literary, social, scientific, industrial, benevolent or other society, association, company, corporation or institution that does not have a capital stock will be required in its charter to make any statement of the amount of capital stock or amount of each share; but such charter, if it contains the other statements therein required, and also an estimate of the value of the goods, chattels, lands, rights and credits owned by the corporation will be sufficient. [P. D. 6001.]

CHAPTER TWELVE

EDUCATIONAL CORPORATIONS

Art.
1225. Faculty of, and their powers.
1226. Directors, etc., may make by-laws, etc.
1227. May procure shops, etc., for manual labor purposes.
1228. May convert property into stock or scholarships.
1229. Limitation as to debts, and liability of directors.
1230. May change location, etc.

Article 1225. [707] [631] Faculty of, and their powers.—The president, professors or principals shall constitute the faculty in academy, college or university corporations, and shall have power to enforce the rules and regulations enacted by the directors or trustees for the government and discipline of the students, and to suspend and expel offenders, as may be deemed necessary. [P. D. 5994.]

Art. 1226. [708] [632] Directors, etc., may make by-laws, etc.—The directors or trustees named in the charter, as required by this title, of any college, academy, university or other corporation to promote education, and their successors, may make all necessary by-laws, elect and employ officers, provide for filling vacancies, appoint and remove professors, teachers, agents, etc., and fix their compensation, confer degrees, and do and perform any and all necessary acts to carry into effect the objects of the corporation. [P. D. 5995.]

Art. 1227. [709] [633] May procure shops, etc., for manual labor purposes.—Such corporations may procure, to be used as a part of the course of education, shops, tools and machinery, land for agricultural purposes, and necessary buildings for carrying on their mechanical and agricultural operations. [P. D. 5996.]

Art. 1228. [710] [634] May convert property into stock or scholarships.—Any such corporation may convert its property, except when held upon some special trust, into stock or scholarships, and file a certificate of their action, as required in the case of an increase of capital stock of a corporation. Such conversion can only take place by the consent of a majority of the stockholders. [P. D. 5997.]

Payment of tuition with stock of corporation.—A receipt of its own stock by a solvent college corporation in payment of a debt for tuition is a valid payment, though it is invalid if made after the insolvency of the corporation. Roach v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 803.

Art. 1229. [711] [635] Limitation as to debts and liability of directors.—The directors of any such corporation, whose property is held not as stock, but upon trust or devise, donation, gift or subscription, shall not contract debts beyond the means of the corporation. If they do contract debts to a larger amount, they shall be held individually liable for the same, after the means of the corporation are exhausted. [P. D. 5998.]

Art. 1230. [712] [636] May change location, etc.—Any such corporation may, by a vote of three-fourths of the directors, or if the same is owned in shares of stock, then by a vote of three-fourths of the stockholders, change the location and name of the institution, and transfer the effects thereof to where removed, or may apply the property thereof to other purposes of education than those named in the original charter filed with the secretary of state. [P. D. 5999.]

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

TELEGRAPH CORPORATIONS

Art.
1231. May set poles, etc., across public roads, etc.
1232. May enter upon lands, etc.
1233. One company can not contract to exclude another.
1234. Company may own line in or out of state, and may join with other company.
1234a. Persons, firms and corporations owning local telephone exchange may purchase or join, etc.
1235. Cities, etc., may direct as to posts, etc.
1236. Manner of consolidating with another company.
1236a. Consolidating telephone company with another company.

Article 1231. [698] [622] May set poles, etc., across public roads.—Corporations created for the purpose of constructing and maintaining magnetic telegraph lines are authorized to set their poles, piers, abutments, wires and other fixtures along, upon and across any of the public roads, streets and waters of this state, in such manner as not to incommode the public in the use of such road, streets and waters. [P. D. 5984.]

Construction and application.—This article applies to telephone as well as telegraph lines. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Telegraph & Telephone Co., 18 C. A. 500, 45 S. W. 151; City of Texarkana v. S. W. Tel. & Tel. Co., 48 C. A. 16, 106 S. W. 916; City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

The above chapter does not embrace a cause of action that accrued to a corporation at a time when it did no business in this state. Whitley v. General Electric Company, 18 C. A. 674, 45 S. W. 959.

This and article 1232 apply to like proceedings by telephone companies organized under article 1121, subd. 8, authorizing corporations for the construction of telegraph and telephone lines, for condemning lands for their use. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Tel. & Tel. Co., 93 T. 313, 55 S. W. 117, 49 L. R. A. 459, 77 Am. St. Rep. 884.

Telephone companies are required to set their poles in and upon public streets in such manner as not to incommode the public in the use of the streets. The poles must not be so located as to be dangerous. Alice, Wade City & C. C. Telephone Co. v. Billingsley, 33 C. A. 452, 77 S. W. 257; South Texas Tel. Co. v. Tabb, 52 C. A. 213, 114 S. W. 449.

Since this article grants to telephone companies the right to construct their lines on city streets, subject to the city's right under article 1235 to regulate the manner of such construction, and to require alterations in the lines after they are constructed, a provision in a telephone company's franchise granted by a city operating under the general laws of the state, requiring it to pay money for the permission to establish its lines in the streets of the city, was unenforceable for lack of consideration. People's Home Telephone Co. v. Gainesville (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1044.

The power of control of its streets, with right to abate any encroachments thereon, given a city by article 854, is subordinate to the power given telegraph and telephone companies by this article subject only to the right given the city by article 1235 to specify location and kind of poles, so that injunction against interference by the city with erection of telephone poles in streets does not divest the city of its right of possession of the street; such right having been granted the company by the state. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

Rights in and use of streets, roads, and other public places.—A telephone company held not entitled to restrain a house mover from moving wires temporarily to move a house in accordance with an ordinance. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1000.

—— Consent of municipality.—The erection of telephone lines along the streets of a city by its permission and with the consent of the state does not create a nuisance. The party injured can recover damages for the injury sustained, but the telephone line is not abatable as nuisances generally are, and but one recovery will be permitted. Brown v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co., 17 C. A. 433, 44 S. W. 59.

A city having only right to designate where poles of a telephone company shall be located, and having by ordinance undertaken to do so, its council, by refusing to act on an application of a telephone company agreeing to comply with the ordinance, and any further suggestions of the company, waived its privilege as to the latter. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

—— Ordinances for use of streets in general.—A municipal ordinance providing for the issuance of permits for digging telephone pole holes at the discretion of the city marshal held void. City of Texarkana v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co., 48 C. A. 16, 106 S. W. 915.

—— Application for permit.—That the application of a telephone company to a city council for permit to erect poles in the street, referring to and offering to comply with all the ordinances on the subject, erroneously designated them as civil, instead of criminal, is immaterial. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

It is no ground, for a city refusing permit to a telephone company to erect poles in street, that it deposited, instead of money a certified check to cover any damages; that being equivalent to a deposit of money. Id.

A long-distance telephone company cannot be denied a permit to erect its poles in the streets of a town on the ground that it adopted only the civil ordinances of the town, and deposited a certified check in lieu of money to cover any damages. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Sup.) 157 S. W. 1163.

—— Payment for use of streets or roads.—Where a franchise to construct a telephone line within a city was granted to plaintiff, who was E.'s assignee, and not to E., plaintiff was not estopped to dispute the validity of a provision imposing a gross earnings tax for the right to use the streets. People's Home Telephone Co. v. Gainesville (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1044.

Art. 1232. [699] [623] May enter upon lands, etc.—Such companies are also authorized to enter upon any lands, whether owned by private persons in fee or in any less estate, or by any corporation, whether acquired by purchase or by virtue of any provision in the charter of such corporation, for the purpose of making preliminary surveys and examinations with a view to the erection of any telegraph lines, and from time to time to appropriate so much of said lands as may be necessary to erect such poles, piers, abutments, wires and other necessary fixtures for a magnetic telegraph, and to make such changes of location of any part of said lines as may from time to time be deemed necessary, and shall have a right of access to construct said line, and, when erected, from time to time as may be required, to repair the same, and may proceed to obtain the right of way and to condemn lands for the use of the corporation in the manner provided by law in the case of railway corporations. [Acts 1873, p. 123. P. D. 5985.]

Includes telephone companies.—The above article includes telephone companies, and they also have the right to appropriate the necessary land for their poles. Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Co. v. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 106.

Telephone companies have the same rights and privileges that railroad companies have as to entering upon lands and setting their poles, etc. The fact that when this law was passed (1871) the telephone was not then in contemplation of the legislature does not control the construction of article 1121, subd. 8, for if the language used is broad enough to include a subsequently developed method, the later invention might be controlled by the pre-existing law, as if it had been in existence at the time the law was made. Railroad Co. v. Southwestern Tel. & Tel. Co., 93 T. 313, 55 S. W. 117, 49 L. R. A. 459, 77 Am. St. Rep. 884.

The law authorizing condemnation of land for telegraph lines includes telephone lines. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Tel. & Tel. Co., 25 C. A. 488, 61 S. W. 407.

Property subject to appropriation.—A telegraph company held entitled to condemn for the erection of a telegraph line a right of way that had been previously condemned for the construction of a railroad. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 106.

A telegraph and telephone company can condemn property which has already been condemned and is in use by another corporation and use such property for its purposes, without showing that it is impractical to construct its line in any other way than along the property sought to be condemned. But the condemnation will not be allowed if it will practically destroy the use to which the property has already been devoted, unless the new use to be made of the property is of such great importance to the public that another public use of less importance shall be set aside for its benefit and that the new enterprise can not be accomplished in any other practical way. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. & Tel. Co., 96 T. 160, 71 S. W. 270, 60 L. R. A. 145.

Damages—Liability to abutting owner.—A telephone line may have been constructed by authority of law and with due care, yet, if its presence on the street causes or contributes to depreciation of "market value" of abutting property, the company is liable. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 103 T. 128, 124 S. W. 627.

An abutting lot owner has a right to grow trees on the sidewalk, and if damaged by telephone wires, contributing to depreciation of market value of property, the injuries should be considered as if caused by the structure. Id.

—— Additional use or burden.—Where telephone lines are constructed in a street, the structure is an additional burden. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 103 T. 128, 124 S. W. 627.

One acquiring property abutting on a street held entitled to recover damages to his property by changes in telegraph and telephone lines in the street existing at the time of the purchase, thereby increasing the servitude. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 104 T. 258, 136 S. W. 1049.

—— Measure of.—The measure of damages to be paid by a telegraph company to a railroad for so much of its right of way as is needed by the former for its poles, etc., is to be measured by the extent which such user impairs the value of the use of the land by the railroad. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Telegraph and Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 86; Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) Id. 106; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Postal Tel. Cable Co. (Civ. App.) Id. 108; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 56 S W. 201; Texas Midland R. Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 312.

The peculiar advantage to the telegraph company from the use of the way is not an item of damage. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 106.

The cost of clearing the grass from the poles is not an item of damage. Id.

The expense to the railroad company in clearing the way should not be considered in estimating the damages. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Postal Tel. Cable Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 108.

The value of the use of the right of way to the telegraph company should not be considered in estimating damages. Id.

The railroad was not entitled to recover subsequent damages that might accrue through the maintenance of the line. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 312.

Measure of damages for construction of telegraph and telephone line in front of property stated. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 942.

Jurisdiction of county court.—See notes under Title 35, Chapter 3.

Art. 1233. [700] [624] One company cannot contract to exclude another.—No corporation shall have power to contract with any owner of land for the right to erect and maintain a telegraph line over his lands to the exclusion of the lines of other companies. [P. D. 5986.]

Art. 1234. [701] [625] Company may own line in or out of state, and may join with other company.—Any corporation created as herein provided may contract, own, use and maintain any line or lines of telegraph, whether wholly within, or wholly or partly beyond, the limits of this state, and shall have power to lease or attach to the line or lines of such corporation other telegraph lines, by lease or purchase, and may join with any other corporation or association in constructing, leasing, owning, using or maintaining their line or lines, upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the directors or managers of the respective corporations, and may own and hold any interest in such line or lines, or may become lessees thereof on such terms as the respective corporations may agree. [P. D. 5987.]

Explanatory.—The following article (1234a) purports to amend this article, but it would seem that it was intended to merely extend its provisions to local exchanges.

Does not apply to private line.—The right to lease conferred by statute is the power to acquire or join the lines of other corporations and does not apply to a line connecting a mill of a private person with the main line of the telephone company. American Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Kersh, 27 C. A. 127, 66 S. W. 75.

Art. 1234a. [701] [625] Persons, firms and corporations owning local telephone exchange may purchase or join, etc.—Any person or firm or any corporation organized under the laws of the state of Texas owning a local telephone exchange whether wholly within, or partly beyond the limits of the state, shall have power to purchase and may join with any other individual, firm or corporation in constructing, leasing, owning, using, or maintaining any other local telephone exchange, upon such terms as may be agreed upon between such persons, or the directors, or managers of the respective corporations, and may own and hold any interest in such local telephone exchange or may become lessees thereof on such terms as the respective persons, firms or corporations may agree; provided; In the case of the purchase, lease or acquisition of one local telephone exchange by a company owning, another, when both systems are operating in the same incorporated city or town, the consent of such city or town shall be secured. [Acts 1913, p. 92, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 92, § 1, enacts that article 1234 be "amended, by article 1234a, which shall read as" above set forth. See note under Art. 1234.

Art. 1235. [702] [626] Cities, etc., may direct as to posts, etc.—The corporate authorities of any city, town or village through which the line of any telegraph corporation is to pass may, by ordinance or otherwise, specify where the posts, piers or abutments shall be located, the kind of posts that shall be used, the height at which the wires shall be run; and such company shall be governed by the regulations thus prescribed; and, after the erection of said telegraph lines, the corporate authorities of any city, town or village shall have power to direct any alteration in the erection or location of said posts, piers or abutments, and also in the height at which the wires shall run, having first given such company or its agents opportunity to be heard in regard to such alteration. [P. D. 5988.]

Art. 1236. Manner of consolidating telegraph company with another company.—Any telegraph company now organized, or which may hereafter be organized under the laws of this state, may, at any regular meeting of the stockholders thereof, by vote of persons holding a majority of shares of the stock of such company, unite or consolidate with any other company or companies now organized, or which may hereafter be organized, under the laws of the United States, or of any state or territory, by the consent of the company with which it may consolidate or unite; and such company so formed may hold, use and enjoy all the rights and privileges conferred by the laws of Texas on companies separately organized under the provisions of this title, and be subject to the same liabilities. [P. D. 5989.]

Explanatory.—This article is amended by adding thereto Art. 1236a.

Art. 1236a. Consolidating telephone company with another company.—Any telephone company now organized, or which may hereafter be organized under the laws of this state, owning a local telephone exchange may at any regular meeting of the stockholders thereof by vote of persons holding a majority of shares of the stock of such company, unite or consolidate such local exchanges with the local exchange of any other company or companies now organized, or which may hereafter be organized under the laws of the United States, or of any state or territory by the consent of the company with which it may so consolidate or unite; and such company so formed may hold, use, and enjoy all the rights and privileges conferred by the laws of the state of Texas, on companies separately organized under the provisions of this Title, and be subject to the same liabilities. Provided; that where two or more local exchanges are operating in the same incorporated city or town, the consent of such city or town shall be secured for such consolidation. Provided further; in case of the purchase, lease, acquisition or consolidation of one local telephone exchange with another, when both systems are operating in the same incorporated city or town, the rates charged for local telephone service after such consolidation, shall not exceed the rates charged by the company charging the lowest rates in such city or town at the time of such purchase, lease, acquisition or consolidation, unless authorized by such city or town. [Acts 1913, p. 92, sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 92, § 2, enacts that article 1236 be "amended by adding thereto article 1236a which shall read as" above set forth.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANIES

Art.
1237. Corporations owning or operating lines, etc., shall arrange for transfers, etc., as follows.
1238. Telephone companies, etc., shall connect lines at common points, how, etc.
1239. Telegraph companies, etc., shall transmit transferred messages, etc., when.
1240. City council, etc., to hear and determine whether transfers necessary and just, etc.
1241. Companies to comply with order of council, etc., or forfeit what; provided, etc.; appeal, etc.

Article 1237. Corporations owning or operating lines, etc., shall arrange for transfers, etc., as follows.—All companies and corporations that own or operate telephone or telegraph lines for the purpose of transmitting messages from one point to another are hereby required to arrange for conversations or transfer of messages as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1907, S. S., p. 462.]

See Arts. 1234a, 1236a.

Art. 1238. Telephone companies, etc., shall connect lines at common points, how, etc.—All companies, individuals, firms or corporations doing a telephone business in this state shall be compelled to make physical connections between their toll line at common points, for the transmission of messages or conversations from one line to another; such connection to be made through the switchboard of such individuals, companies, firms or corporations, if any is maintained at such points, so that persons so desiring may converse from points on one of such lines to points on another. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1239. Telegraph companies, etc., shall transmit transferred messages, etc., when.—All telegraph companies or persons, firms, corporations or associations of persons, which are now, or shall hereafter be, engaged in the business of accepting and transmitting messages to and from different points in this state, where the use of a telegraph instrument or instruments is necessary in the conduct of such business, shall, if there be any other persons, firm, corporation or association engaged in such business at the same point or in the same town, city or village, provide means whereby all messages conveyed to such points over the lines of any such companies shall be transferred to the lines of either or all other such companies engaged in such business at such common points, and transmitted to their final destination; and such facilities shall be provided as will guarantee the transfer of such messages in compliance with the provisions of this chapter; provided, that in no case shall any message be transferred from one line to another against the will of the company first handling same when it is possible for such company to deliver said message direct to the party for whom it is intended by way of the line or lines operated and owned by said company; and provided, further, that no telegraph or telephone company shall, under the provisions of this chapter, be compelled to receive from the wires or lines of any other telegraph or telephone company and convey to its final destination any message originating at any point on its own lines. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1240. City council, etc., to hear and determine whether transfers be necessary and just, etc.—The city council in incorporated cities, and the commissioners' court at points where there is no city council, shall, on the application of one hundred resident citizens, or upon its own motion, hear such evidence as they think necessary; and, upon a final hearing they shall determine whether or not it would be necessary for public convenience, and just to the telephone or telegraph companies, to make such connection or arrange for transfer of messages; whereupon they shall enter of record their findings, and shall also set out in their order the conditions upon which such arrangements for conversation or transfer of messages shall be made, and shall decide what proportion of expense shall be paid by each of said connecting lines. [Id. sec. 4.]

Validity.—The part of an order of a city council requiring a telephone company to maintain a connection with another company for transfer of messages being authorized by this article such part is valid, as regards right to recover the penalty prescribed by article 1241 for noncompliance therewith, even though the part of the order attempting to fix compensation on messages originating outside the city is void. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 604.

Art. 1241. Companies to comply with order of council, etc., or forfeit what; provided, etc., appeals, etc.—Whenever the city council or commissioners' court shall enter an order in compliance with article 1239, requiring telephone or telegraph companies to arrange for conversation or transfer or [of] messages, it shall be compulsory on said company to arrange for such conversation or transfer of messages, and, failing to do so, shall forfeit to the state of Texas, on suit by the county or district attorney, the sum of ten dollars for each and every day they so neglect; provided, that the penalty herein assessed shall not be operative against a company which is prevented from making connections as herein required, through the fault or omission of another company, so long as such fault or omission shall cause such failure on its part to so connect; provided, further, that any company ordered to arrange for conversations or to transfer messages between its line and another line as herein provided shall have the right to appeal from such order to the court having jurisdiction over said matter, and the court shall, if it shall find that appellant had reasonable grounds for prosecuting such appeal, suspend the penalty herein provided for until such appeal is finally determined. [Id. sec. 5.]

Action for penalty.—It is not necessary for recovery from a telephone company of the penalty prescribed by this article that a message should have been offered for transmission. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 604.

Defenses.—It is no defense to an action for the penalty prescribed by this article that it has made unsuccessful efforts with the other company to arrange for a proper distribution of the compensation for handling messages; it being its duty to make the connection and leave the matter of distribution of compensation for future settlement. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 604.

70. Power of city to regulate setting of poles.

1-3. Regulation of rates and charges.—See Arts. 1018, 1025.

4. Injuries from construction or maintenance.—In an action against a telephone company by a railway employé for personal injuries by being struck by a telephone wire suspended across the railway track, evidence held to warrant a finding that defendant was the owner of the telephone line. American Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Kersh, 27 C. A. 127, 66 S. W. 74.

A telephone company, trimming trees which interfered with its wires, held liable in damages. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Branham (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 949.

In an action against a telephone company for injuries alleged to have been caused by the negligent placing of a telephone pole in the street, evidence held to show that the location of the pole was the proximate cause of the injuries. Alice, W. C. & C. C. Telephone Co. v. Billingsley, 33 C. A. 452, 77 S. W. 255.

Under the pleadings and evidence, held, that plaintiff was entitled to recover for injury from defendant's telephone wire striking his wagon as he was driving on a road, though the road at that point deviated from the regularly established road. Adams v. Weakley, 35 C. A. 371, 80 S. W. 411.

In action against a telephone company for injuries alleged to have been sustained by a fall over a wire negligently left in a street, proof held insufficient to raise the issue of contributory negligence. Texas & P. Telephone Co. v. Prince, 36 C. A. 462, 82 S. W. 327.

A telephone company placing and maintaining an instrument in the house of a patron for his use held required to maintain in connection with its wires and instruments approved lightning arresters. Southern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Evans, 54 C. A. 63, 116 S. W. 418.

In an action against a telephone company for injuries to the wife of a patron by lightning entering into the house through the company's failure to provide a proper lightning arrester, evidence held to justify a recovery. Id.

A telephone company held authorized to construct and maintain reasonably necessary guy wires to support its poles, provided it exercises ordinary care for the safety of pedestrians. City of Ft. Worth v. Williams, 55 C. A. 289, 119 S. W. 137.

In an action against a telephone company for injuries to a traveler by contact with a guy wire across a way, evidence held to justify a finding that he was free from contributory negligence. Texas Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 705.

In an action against a telephone company for injuries to a traveler by contact with a guy wire across a way, evidence held to justify a finding of negligence in the maintenance of the wire. Id.

A telegraph and telephone company maintaining wires over the roof of a building held bound to exercise ordinary care to so maintain them as not to injure a third person. Panhandle Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1129.

Whether a telephone company is liable for injury to a railway brakeman, struck while standing on a freight car by a wire suspended by the company over the railway tracks, depends upon whether the railway company authorized the wire to be so suspended. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Corbett (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 826.

Company held not liable if it did not construct the line or control it. Id.

If the recipient's residence beyond the free delivery limits was not known to the sender of a telegram when he filed it for transmission, the agent at the receiving office should notify the sender so as to give him an opportunity to pay the extra charges. Id.

A telegraph company, after receiving a message by telephone according to its custom, cannot rely on conditions in its printed forms requiring extra charges where sendee lives beyond the free delivery limits. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Parham (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 819.

That the addressee lived beyond the free delivery limits did not relieve a telegraph company from its duty to exercise ordinary diligence to deliver the telegrams, where it made no demand for extra charges for delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1169.

17. —— Delivery after office hours.—Telegraph company held bound by parol agreement to deliver night message at certain time. Seffel v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 857.

A telegraph company may establish office hours for the transmission, receipt, and delivery of messages. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Rawls (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 136.

A telegraph company is not under obligations to "promptly transmit and deliver" night messages received before 6 p. m. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Rawls (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 136; Same v. White (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 790.

A telegraph company is liable for failure to deliver a message outside of office hours, where it had contracted to deliver it at once for a consideration. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Perry, 30 C. A. 243, 70 S. W. 439.

Where a telegraph company by a reasonable rule fixes office hours after which it will not receive messages, it owes no duty to accept messages for transmission or to deliver them after that hour. Starkey v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 53 C. A. 333, 115 S. W. 853.

In an action against a telephone company for failing to notify plaintiff of a sick call, that the call was received after office hours held no defense; it appearing that it was received without objection. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 89.

18. —— Delivery on Sunday.—Where a telegraph message is sent on Sunday, it is subject to the reasonable rules of the company as to its business hours on that day. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 920.

19. —— Forwarding, or retransmission.—Where full pay is taken for transmitting a message to its destination the company is liable for default, though it may have to use the line of another company. W. U. Telegraph Co. v. Shumate, 21 S. W. 109, 2 C. A. 429.

Where it is within the authority of the agent of a telegraph company to contract to deliver messages beyond the line, it is also within his authority to agree on reasonable means of delivery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Carter, 24 C. A. 80, 58 S. W. 198.

An agreement to use the mails as part of the means of delivering a telegram beyond the company's line is not such an unreasonable selection as to charge the sender with notice of a lack of authority on the agent of the company to make the agreement. Id.

The sender of a message may require that the telegraph company forward it over a particular connecting line, though its rules require such messages to be sent by the nearest line, and the line designated was not the nearest. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Turner, 94 T. 304, 60 S. W. 432.

A telegraph company, whose receiving agent knew that the addressee was in an adjoining city, held negligent in failing to retransmit the message to such city. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hendricks, 26 C. A. 366, 63 S. W. 341.

20. —— Effect of misspelling of name of addressee.—Where a telegram intended for plaintiff, whose name was "Wafford" was directed to "Frank Warford," such names were idem sonans and it was the duty of the telegraph company to exercise ordinary care to deliver the message to plaintiff. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wafford, 43 C. A. 589, 97 S. W. 324.

21. —— Effect of mistake or vagueness in or wrong address of addressee.—Failure to deliver telegram held not excused because wrongly addressed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Cain (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 624.

Though a telegram is addressed "care some hotel," the telegraph company does not discharge its whole duty by inquiring at the various hotels in the place, if by ordinary care the addressee could be found elsewhere. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Waller, 37 C. A. 515, 84 S. W. 695.

A contract to deliver certain messages to the addressees "toward Houston Heights" held too uncertain and indefinite for enforcement. Klopf v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 829.

Under facts stated a telegraph company held bound to deliver a telegram at "Holdenville, I. T.," though it was addressed to "Holenville, I. T." Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hankins, 50 C. A. 513, 110 S. W. 539.

A mistake in transmitting a telegram by which the initial of the person addressed was changed, so that the telegram was never delivered, held negligence, so as to render the company liable. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co., 102 T. 148, 114 S. W. 98.

A long-distance telephone company held not to have relied on an original direction given for a person with whom communication was desired. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. McCoy, 102 T. 446, 119 S. W. 88.

Mistakes in the address of a telegram do not relieve a telegraph company from liability for negligent delay in delivering it. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Holley, 55 C. A. 432, 119 S. W. 888.

A telegraph company receiving for transmission and delivery a message containing a mistake in the address must exercise ordinary care to deliver the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Holcomb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 190.

That the addressee lived at C. and the telegrams were addressed to him at O. did not excuse nondelivery where C. and O. were in effect one village. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1169.

22. —— Nature and contents of message and relationship between sender and addressee, and notice thereof to company.—When communications relate to sickness and death, there accompanies them a common-sense suggestion that they are of importance, and that the persons addressed have in them a serious interest. Is it an unreasonable rule and one not comporting with the use of the telegraph, that the dispatcher will be released from diligence unless the relations of the parties concerned as well as the nature of the dispatch are disclosed? Telegraph Co. v. Ward, 4 App. C. C. § 317, 19 S. W. 898.

Language of telegram held to require prompt efforts of delivery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1035.

Liability of telegraph company for failure to deliver telegram, instructing the sheriff not to sell plaintiff's land on execution, determined. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 119.

A telegraph company is charged with notice of the relationship between the addressee and a sick person concerning whom the telegram is sent. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Sweetman, 19 C. A. 435, 47 S. W. 676.

The company receiving a message relating to serious sickness or death must take notice of the purpose for which it is sent as disclosed by it, and that the addressee has a serious interest in its prompt delivery. Id.

Telegram held sufficient to notify company that proximate result of failure to deliver would be to deny one to whom it is sent the opportunity to attend his mother's funeral. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 521.

Telegraph company held to have had notice that the purpose of a message was to delay funeral of the wife of the sender until his arrival. Jones v. Roach, 21 C. A. 301, 51 S. W. 549.

Where a telegraph company fails to deliver a message pertaining to a purchase of cotton reading: "Accept offer five three-quarters. Send tickets," etc.,—the sender's failure to notify the company's agent that the delivery was necessary to close a contract cannot defeat his recovery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Turner, 94 T. 304, 60 S. W. 432.

It is not essential to an action brought by a partnership against a telegraph company for its negligent failure to properly transmit a telegram addressed to one of the members that the company was informed that the message was intended for the firm's benefit. Postal Telegraph Co. of Texas v. L. W. Levy & Co. (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 134.

A telegraph company is chargeable with notice of any relation that exists between all parties to the message, and with notice of such purposes as may be reasonably inferred from the language used. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Steele (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 546.

A telegraph company is not liable for negligence in the delivery of a message, unless it had notice of the beneficial interest of the complaining party. Herring v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 882.

Telegrams held insufficient on their face to charge a telegraph company with notice that failure to deliver would entail a loss upon the sender. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Farrington (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 609.

A telegram reading: "Cannot sell to trade over ninety cents to one dollar. If satisfactory ship minimum car quick this basis"—gave notice that it related to shipment of article requiring immediate attention. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Federolf (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 314.

In stated cases, a telegraph company held liable for damages for failure to promptly transmit messages which did not show on their face that a failure would cause a loss. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. True (Sup.) 148 S. W. 561, 41 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1188.

23. —— Duty to notify sender of inability or failure to deliver.—A failure of a telegraph agent to notify the sender of a message that the line was out of repair, not shown to have affected the action of the sender, held not to have rendered the company liable for a failure of the purpose of the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDonald, 42 C. A. 229, 95 S. W. 691.

A telegraph company's agent could bind the company by a contract to report whether or not a message was delivered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 607.

24. Delay.—Where a company receives a message from a connecting line, the charges being divided, it is liable for delay in delivery. W. U. Telegraph Co. v. Taylor, 22 S. W. 532, 3 C. A. 310.

The sender of a telegram may rely on the transmission and delivery of a message without unreasonable delay and is not bound to anticipate that there will be negligence therein. Mitchell v. W. U. Tel. Co., 12 C. A. 262, 33 S. W. 1016.

Evidence, in an action for delay in delivery of a telegram, held to sustain a verdict that defendant telegraph company was negligent. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Davis, 16 C. A. 268, 41 S. W. 392; Same v. Vanway (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 414; Same v. Downs, 49 C. A. 255, 119 S. W. 119; Same v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 616; Same v. Harris (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 876; Same v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 121.

In action against telegraph company for delay in delivery of message, evidence held insufficient to sustain verdict for plaintiff. Robinson v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1053.

In the absence of explanation excusing delay, held, that a telegraph company was liable for failing to deliver a message in time. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 659.

Defendant telegraph company held liable for damages resulting from its delay in delivering a telegram, by reason of which property was sold under execution which had been ordered stayed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 627.

In an action for failing to promptly deliver a telegram, evidence held to show the company had used due diligence. Hargrave v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 687.

Facts held not to show that a telegraph company was negligent in delivering a message, so as to render it liable for the delay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Redinger (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 156; Same v. Hamilton, 36 C. A. 300, 81 S. W. 1052; Same v. Campbell, 41 C. A. 204, 91 S. W. 312.

Where the lines of a telegraph company are down when a message is tendered, if it is received without informing the sender of the defects in the lines, it is liable for any delay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Birge-Forbes Co., 29 C. A. 526, 69 S. W. 181.

Where, at the time of receiving a message to transmit, plaintiff's agent knew that certain lines were down, but did not know that the company did not have other lines by which the message could be sent, such knowledge did not exempt the company from liability for the damages resulting from delay. Id.

An agreement for a delay in the transmission of a telegram, based on a false statement of the telegraph clerk, held not to estop the sender from claiming damages for such delay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Seffel, 31 C. A. 134, 71 S. W. 616.

A telegraph company held liable for failure to deliver a cipher message within a reasonable time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Houston Rice Mill. Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1084.

A telegraph company must use ordinary care in its effort to promptly transmit and deliver a message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDonald, 42 C. A. 229, 95 S. W. 691; Same v. True, 101 T. 236, 106 S. W. 315.

That a person whose name was signed to a death message by his agent was in another state held not to prevent the addressee from recovering for a delay in its delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Moran, 52 C. A. 117, 113 S. W. 625.

That a telegraph company accepted and transmitted a death message implied an obligation to make prompt delivery. Id.

Evidence, in an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivery of a telegram, held to show that the messenger intrusted therewith was negligent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 717.

Facts held to show actionable negligence on the part of a telegraph company in delaying a telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Barrett, 55 C. A. 323, 118 S. W. 1089.

In an action against a telegraph company for negligently delaying the delivery of a message, evidence held to authorize a recovery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 618.

In a suit for failure to promptly transmit and deliver a telegram, evidence held to show the addressee could have been found at his place of business if defendant's agent had exercised ordinary diligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 151.

A telegraph company held not guilty of negligent delay in delivering a message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cobb, 103 T. 183, 125 S. W. 311.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a telegram, evidence held to support the finding that the addressee was at the place to which the telegram was sent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 616.

In an action for delay in delivery of telegram, evidence held insufficient to show that the telegraph messenger was negligent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Stracner (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 845.

25. —— Messages received after office hours.—Telegraph company held not liable for delay in delivering message on Sunday. Western Union Tel. Co. v. McConnico, 27 C. A. 610, 66 S. W. 592.

In determining whether a telegraph company was negligent in delivering a message received during closed hours on Sunday, the time consumed after the office was opened in copying, numbering, enveloping, and addressing the message was properly computed. Id.

A telegraph company, sued for delay in delivering a message, held not entitled under the facts to raise the defense that its office at the place of delivery was never open for the delivery of messages at the time the particular message was received. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Cavin, 30 C. A. 152, 70 S. W. 229.

A contract for the transmission of a telegram held to create no liability for failure to transmit the message on the day it was received. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Weeks (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 674.

The contractual liability of a telegraph company establishing office hours, held not affected by the act of its agent there in rendering occasional gratuitous services outside office hours. Id.

26. —— Effect of addressee's living outside free delivery limit.—Where the addressees of certain messages did not reside in the municipality to which the messages were directed, the telegraph company was not liable for delay in delivering to the addressees in a separate adjoining locality. Klopf v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 829.

A telegraph company's failure to deliver a telegram promptly held not to be excused on the ground that the sendee resided beyond its free delivery limits. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 876.

Statement as to duty and negligence of a telegraph company as to delivery of a message, where, after the sending thereof, it demands and receives extra pay for delivery to the addressee living in the country. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hosea (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 298.

That the sender of a telegram did not advise the company that the recipient lived beyond the free delivery limits, nor offered to pay the extra charges for service, was not a defense to an action for negligent delay in delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 904.

Where a sender paid the fee charged, and the agent who knew that the addressee lived beyond free delivery limits did not demand an extra fee, the telegraph company could not relieve itself from negligent delay in the delivery on the ground that an extra fee was not paid. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Holcomb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 190.

Where the company did not demand an extra charge upon receiving a message for delivering beyond the free delivery limits, and the contract did not require prepayment of such charge, failure to deliver promptly, is not excusable on the ground that sendee resided beyond such limits, though sender knew that fact, and the company did not. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Parham (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 819.

27. —— Nature and contents of message, and relationship between sender and addressee and notice thereof to company.—The message: "You had better come and attend to your claim at once," imparted notice of its purpose and the importance of its prompt delivery, so as to bring such matters within the contemplation of the parties in the contract for its transmission. Telegraph Co. v. Sheffield, 71 T. 570, 10 S. W. 752, 10 Am. St. Rep. 790.

Evidence considered, and held to apprise a telegraph company that a message was important, and to render the company liable for damages resulting from delay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Birge-Forbes Co., 29 C. A. 526, 69 S. W. 181.

A telegram held not to show a consummated sale, so as to relieve the telegraph company from damages for sale to another, because of delay in delivering the message. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Snow, 31 C. A. 275, 72 S. W. 250.

Lack of knowledge of a certain fact held not to relieve a telegraph company from liability for negligence in failing to promptly deliver message relating to serious illness of plaintiff's wife. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hamilton, 36 C. A. 300, 81 S. W. 1052.

A telegraph company held charged with notice that the sendee would suffer great anguish if she did not receive the message in time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Campbell, 41 C. A. 204, 91 S. W. 312.

A message held to give the telegraph company notice that the parties referred to therein were brother and sister, rendering its prompt transmission important. Id.

A message held to inform the telegraph company of the importance of a prompt delivery, rendering it liable for delay. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 42 C. A. 462, 92 S. W. 1036.

A telegram held not to render the company liable for failure to deliver it in time to enable addressee to attend a funeral at a place other than that from which the message was sent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ayers, 41 C. A. 627, 93 S. W. 199.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message from plaintiffs to their agent it was no defense that the message was couched merely in cautionary terms, and was not a command. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Houston Rice Mill. Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1084.

A telegraph company held chargeable with notice of the character of illness of a person referred to in a telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Craven (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 633.

A telegram filed with a telegraph company for transmission held to sufficiently indicate to the company that it referred to a matter from which damages would follow from a delayed delivery. Postal Telegraph Co. of Texas v. L. W. Levy & Co. (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 134.

A telephone company taking a call from another company for transmission held not liable for failure to deliver, where it did not receive the same with notice that it was urgent, unless it was the agent of the first company or in partnership with it. Sabine Valley Telephone Co. v. Oliver, 46 C. A. 428, 102 S. W. 925.

A message and the surrounding circumstances held to have charged a telegraph company with notice of the consequences of its failure to promptly deliver the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. True (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 1180.

Certain messages held notice to defendant telegraph company that a failure to correctly transmit and deliver one of them might cause damage to the addressee. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 265.

Facts held insufficient to notify a telephone company of the purpose for which one placed a long-distance call. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Flood, 51 C. A. 340, 111 S. W. 1064.

A telegraph agent was not required to inquire the purpose of a message reading, "Come at once," so as to affect the company with notice of whatever might have been learned. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Kibble, 53 C. A. 222, 115 S. W. 643.

Evidence held to charge a telegraph company with notice that the recipient of a death message had a beneficial interest therein. Herring v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 882.

Facts held to constitute negligence in the delivery of a death message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 715.

The contents of a telegram held to put the telegraph company on notice that death might result from the injury announced therein, of relationship existing between the sendee and the person injured, and that the sendee would probably desire to attend the burial of the person injured, if he died. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 876.

A telegraph company guilty of delay in delivery of a message held chargeable with notice of the transaction between the sender and sendee. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. True (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 983.

A telegram in Spanish, the dominant language of the country, held notice of its importance, though the agent did not understand the language. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Olivarri (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 816.

It is no defense to an action for failure of a telephone company to promptly deliver a message to plaintiff, whereby he was prevented from arriving at his mother's funeral, that his father received a message when he would arrive, and, instead of delaying the funeral a few hours for his arrival, directed it to proceed at the time set. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Givens (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 676.

Where a person not an employé of a telegraph company was present in its office as an employé of a railroad company who jointly occupied the office, his receipt of a message for delivery, with notice that damages would likely result from delay, held not to charge the company with such notice. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Horn (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 557.

A telegraph message reading, "Mother is very low," puts the company upon notice of the relationship between the person referred to and the addressee of the message, so as to render the company liable for its negligent delay. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1116.

28. —— Duty to notify sender of inability to transmit or deliver message within reasonable time or time stipulated.—Where a telegraph company receives a message, to transmit and deliver to a connecting line, it is its duty, on discovering that such line is out of order and cannot deliver the message promptly, to notify the sender. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Sorsby, 29 C. A. 345, 69 S. W. 122.

A telegraph company, receiving a message to be forwarded over its lines and delivered to a connecting carrier, is not required, on finding that the latter's lines are out of order, so that the message cannot be promptly delivered, to attempt to deliver same by telephone or mail. Id.

The acceptance of a telegram obligates the company to promptly transmit and deliver it, or notify the sender of impending delay. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 607.

29. Errors.—A telegraph company need only exercise ordinary care to transmit and deliver accurately messages received for transmission. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. S. A. Pace Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1172.

Where the agent of a telegraph company received a message by telephone, and accepted it for transmission, the company was liable for mistakes in the transmission. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Buchanan (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 850.

Where a person telegraphs a guaranty of payment for goods purchased, the telegraph company is the sender's agent, and the sender is bound according to the terms of the message as transmitted, received, and delivered to the addressee, and not as delivered to the telegraph company. Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

30. Disclosure of communications.—A telegraph company is liable for disclosing the contents of a message to the extent of injuries resulting therefrom. Railway Co. v. Todd, 4 App. C. C. § 318, 19 S. W. 761.

31. Forged messages.—Telegraph company held not to warrant authenticity of forged message, so as to render it liable, even though free from negligence. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Uvalde Nat. Bank, 97 T. 219, 77 S. W. 603, 65 L. R. A. 805, 1 Ann. Cas. 573.

Proof that forged message was sent over company's wire and deceived its servants held not to show freedom from negligence in delivering such message, in the absence of proof of precautionary measures against such frauds. Id.

32. Failure to furnish news or market reports or quotations.—If a telegraph company contracted to furnish correct market reports, its failure to do so is a breach of its contract, irrespective of whether it exercised ordinary care in furnishing the reports. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bradford, 52 C. A. 392, 114 S. W. 686.

33. Liability for acts or omissions of employés.—Evidence held to show that a telephone operator was defendant's agent, so as to render defendant liable for damages resulting from delay. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Taylor, 26 C. A. 79, 63 S. W. 1076.

Telegraph operator held to be servant of company, not agent, and rule as to when principal is charged with knowledge of agent was not applicable. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 32 C. A. 427, 72 S. W. 620, 74 S. W. 943.

In an action against a telephone company for failure to notify plaintiff of a sick call, evidence held sufficient to show that an operator at a certain point was the common agent of defendant and another company for all communications to be transmitted over the lines of both companies. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 89.

The agent of a telegraph company, who receives a message by telephone, is not thereby made the agent of the sender. though the company requires all messages to be given in writing, if the sender does not know of such requirement. Gore v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 977.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages for failure to deliver a message, knowledge which the defendant's agent acquired as railroad agent held admissible as evidence of defendant's negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1153.

34. Act of God or vis major.—In an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message, defendant held entitled to plead the fact that its line was down as a defense. Faubion v. Western Union Tel. Co.. 36 C. A. 98, 81 S. W. 56.

A telegraph company held not entitled to excuse delay in delivering a death message because its commercial wire is out of business, where wires used for railroad business are open. Buchanan v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 974.

A claim by a telegraph company that delay in delivery of a message was caused by a wire being down, with no excuse for such condition, is no defense. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Glenn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1116.

In an action for delay in the delivery of a message, evidence held to support a finding that the delay was caused by the negligence of the company and not by act of God. Id.

35. Contributory negligence.—The failure of one who pays a telegraph company to transmit a message to have the same repeated will not exempt the company from damages resulting from its failure, through negligence, to have the message delivered. And this though the blank on which the message was written contains a stipulation that the company will only be liable for the amount received for sending the message, if delay should occur in its delivery, unless the message be repeated. The rule is otherwise when the action against the company is for error committed in transmitting the message. Negligence, without regard to the degree, will render such company liable for actual damage resulting from its failure to deliver a message. Railway Co. v. Wilson, 69 T. 739, 7 S. W. 653.

In an action for failure to promptly deliver a telegraph message, evidence held to present a reasonable excuse for the recipient's delay in acting on it after receipt. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bryson, 25 C. A. 74, 61 S. W. 548.

Evidence held to sustain finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence in choosing route by which to reach his sick father after reception of telephone message. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Taylor, 26 C. A. 79, 63 S. W. 1076.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages, owing to plaintiff's receipt of a message fraudulently sent by one who had tapped the wires, plaintiff held not guilty of contributory negligence. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 232.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to promptly deliver a death message, plaintiff held not negligent in not telegraphing request for postponement of funeral. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 843.

Where the sender of a telegram furnished the fullest address he was able to obtain, he was not guilty of negligence contributing to the nondelivery of the telegram. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 613.

In an action for negligent delay in delivering a death message, evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence in not taking an earlier train than the one she took to reach the funeral. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Porterfield (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 850.

Contributory negligence barring recovery for delay in delivering message held not shown, as matter of law. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hardison (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 541.

The negligence of a person receiving a telegram in failing to reply is not chargeable to the person sending the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Landry (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 461.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in the delivery of a message announcing the death of plaintiff's mother at a distant town, the failure of plaintiff to take the first train for that town held to defeat a recovery, provided an ordinarily prudent person would have taken that train. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnsey, 49 C. A. 487, 109 S. W. 251.

In an action for failure to promptly transmit a telegram, evidence held sufficient to sustain a jury finding that plaintiff was not negligent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Rabon (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 580.

In an action for delay in delivering a telegram, evidence held to warrant a verdict finding that the delay was due to defendant's negligence proximately resulting in the damage, and that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Mack (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 921.

Plaintiff, in an action against a telephone company for delay in connections, preventing her presence at the deathbed of her father, held not guilty of contributory negligence in not starting when she first heard that he was slightly hurt. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gehring (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 754.

Where telephone company neglected to obtain long distance connection, so that H. could notify plaintiff of the death and funeral of his sister, defendant could not claim that H. was negligent in failing to postpone the funeral. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Jarrell (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1165.

Where defendant telegraph company erroneously informed H. that plaintiff had left the place where a telephone call was sent for him, H. was excused from further attempt to reach plaintiff there by telegram. Id.

In an action for failure to deliver a message announcing the expected death of plaintiff's child, defendant held not negligent, so as to preclude recovery, because he had failed to respond to a prior telegram, relating to the same matter, which had been delivered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 121.

In an action for nondelivery of a telegram, as a result of which perishable produce was lost, evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff used due diligence to dispose of his produce. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Federolf (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 314.

36. Prevention of damage from default or error.—Where a telegram is delivered, the receiver is not compelled to take unusual means to avoid the injury caused by delay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1035.

A telegraph company held not liable for failure to deliver a message, in the absence of proof that plaintiff's agent had no authority to do acts which, if done, would have prevented the damage. Mitchell v. Western Union Tel. Co., 23 C. A. 445, 56 S. W. 439.

Telegraph company held liable for one's losing a purchase through delay in delivering a telegram, though, if he had noticed it was delayed, he could, by telegraphing, have prevented the loss. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Snow, 31 C. A. 275, 72 S. W. 250.

It being the duty of the addressee in a telegram to minimize the damages resulting from a telegraph company's negligent delay in delivery, he may recover for his expense in lessening such damage. Postal Telegraph Co. of Texas v. L. W. Levy & Co. (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 134.

In an action for failure to deliver a telegram, sender held not misled and prevented from sending another message by a relay telegram received by her. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Garrett, 46 C. A. 430, 102 S. W. 456.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message announcing the death of plaintiff's mother, the failure to embalm the mother's remains held immaterial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnsey, 49 C. A. 487, 109 S. W. 251.

The duty to avoid and mitigate damages held not to require plaintiff, suing for loss of sale of produce by nondelivery of telegram, to dispose of produce to other than actual purchasers. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Federolf (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 314.

Where a loss occurred before sender of telegram learned that it had not been delivered, the rule requiring an injured party to avoid or mitigate the loss held inapplicable. Id.

37. Proximate cause of loss or damage.—In a suit for damages against a telegraph company for failing to deliver a message countermanding the shipment of goods, the plaintiff must prove the delivery of the message to the company before the goods were actually shipped. W. U. T. Co. v. Bertram, 1 App. C. C. § 1152.

Failure to deliver telegram in time to enable plaintiff to attend his mother's burial held not excused by fact that plaintiff's reply telegram was received in time to have postponed the burial. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Cain (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 624.

In an action for nondelivery, a defense that plaintiff could not have arrived at the funeral had the message been delivered falls, where he could have arrived within three hours of the usual time for interment, and it was delayed that long. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Waller (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 396.

The failure of a father to reach his son before the death of the latter is not an element of damages for a failure to deliver a telegraph message, where the father could not have reached the son before his death if the message had been delivered. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hendricks, 26 C. A. 366, 63 S. W. 341.

The delay in the transmission of a telegram held to have been the proximate cause of the suffering of the addressee in failing to reach her daughter's deathbed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Seffel, 31 C. A. 134, 71 S. W. 616.

Negligence of a telegraph company in transmitting a message held the proximate cause of plaintiff's loss by the cancellation of a theatrical performance. Gaddis v. Western Union Tel. Co., 33 C. A. 391, 77 S. W. 37; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Anslet, 53 C. A. 264, 115 S. W. 624; Same v. Delcher, Id.

Evidence held sufficient for finding that the funeral of plaintiff's son would have been delayed until plaintiff's arrival, if the telegraph company had transmitted correctly a notice of the son's death. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Chambers, 34 C. A. 17, 77 S. W. 273.

A telegraph company held guilty of negligence in delaying the delivery of a message, which negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's mental anguish. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Shaw, 33 C. A. 395, 77 S. W. 433.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message, a recovery held not authorized, in the absence of any evidence that the delivery of the message would have avoided the consequences of which plaintiff complained. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Campbell, 36 C. A. 276, 81 S. W. 580.

In an action against a telegraph company, defendant held not liable for personal injuries to plaintiff, caused by her not having a night robe. Id.

In an action for delay in delivering a death message, evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff would have attended the funeral by a route specified if the message had been delivered in time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ford, 40 C. A. 474, 90 S. W. 677.

In an action against a telegraph company for refusal to accept a message for transmission to a point on a connecting line, evidence held to warrant a finding that the failure to receive the message was the proximate cause of the injury. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 686.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message, evidence that plaintiff could have reached the place where his father died in time for the funeral, had it been promptly delivered, held to establish a prima facie case. Lawrence v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 27.

The sender of a message to withhold a body from burial held not damaged by delay where by the greatest diligence the message could not have been delivered until after interment had occurred. Klopf v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 829.

In an action for failure to promptly transmit and deliver a message, evidence held to sustain a finding that, if the telegram had been promptly transmitted and delivered, plaintiff would have gone to and reached his son prior to his death. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Sloss, 45 C. A. 153, 100 S. W. 354.

Where it was shown that the failure to deliver a telephone message to plaintiff was not the proximate cause of his failure to be with his child at its death, the telephone company was not liable. Sabine Valley Telephone Co. v. Oliver, 46 C. A. 428, 102 S. W. 925.

In an action for negligent delay in the delivery of a telegram held that the showing that thereby plaintiffs had been prevented from making a purchase on which they would have made a profit entitled them to recovery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. True (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 1180.

In an action against a telegraph company for failing to deliver a message calling a physician to attend the sender's son, evidence held not to show that, had the telegram been promptly delivered, the physician would have come. Slaughter v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 688.

It is essential to a recovery for the failure of a telegraph company to deliver a message calling a physician to attend the sender's son that plaintiff show that, had the message been promptly delivered, the physician would have come in response thereto. Id.

In an action to recover damages for failure to promptly transmit a telegram to plaintiff's brother, the failure to transmit promptly held not the proximate cause of the brother's failure to arrive by a particular train. Landry v. Western Union Tel. Co., 102 T. 67, 113 S. W. 10.

Evidence held to show that, if a death message had been received without delay, the addressee would have telegraphed the sender to delay burial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Moran, 52 C. A. 117, 113 S. W. 625.

Evidence in an action against a telegraph company held to show negligence but for which plaintiff would have reached the bedside of his dying wife about 15 hours sooner than he did. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hughey, 55 C. A. 403, 118 S. W. 1130.

A delay of about 38 hours in delivering a telegram held not due to the mistake in the address, but to the negligence of defendant's employés. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Holley, 55 C. A. 432, 119 S. W. 888.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in the delivery of message, evidence held insufficient to support the burden on plaintiff of proving that the delay was the proximate cause of the injury. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hudson, 56 C. A. 238, 120 S. W. 1112.

In an action against a telegraph company for negligent delay in delivering a message, thereby depriving the sender of the privilege of buying bank stock, certain evidence held to show that the sender would have acquired the stock had the message been promptly delivered. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Harriss, 56 C. A. 105, 121 S. W. 358, 122 S. W. 891.

In an action for failure to transmit a telegram, evidence held to justify a finding that if plaintiff had received the message in time she could have attended her father's funeral. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDavid (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 893.

In an action for failure to deliver a message, evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff could have reached the place of burial in time to have attended the funeral of her father, had the message been delivered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDavid, 103 T. 601, 132 S. W. 115.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages for delay in delivering a message, preventing plaintiff from attending her brother's funeral, evidence held to sustain a finding that defendant's negligent delay in delivery at the receiving point prevented plaintiff from attending her brother's funeral. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 876.

In an action for damages from delay in delivering a telegram preventing plaintiff from going home to attend her brother's funeral, the competent testimony held to show the time when the train departed, which plaintiff could have taken on the day she would have gone home had the telegram been promptly delivered. Id.

In an action against a telegraph company for the nondelivery of a telegraphic order for merchandise, evidence held to show that, if the message had been delivered, the order would have been filled. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Talerico (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 575.

Though a telegraph company was negligent in delivery of a message concerning the burial of plaintiff's brother, it was not liable, where plaintiff could not have reached the place of burial in time therefor, if the message had not been delayed. Kolb v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1081.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain a judgment against a telephone company for mental suffering from delay in delivering a telephone message, in not showing that, but for the delay, plaintiff would have arrived in time for his mother's funeral. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Givens (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 676.

Evidence in an action for negligent delay in delivering a telegram announcing the probable death of plaintiff's daughter held to show that plaintiff's inability to reach his daughter's bedside before her death was proximately caused by the negligent transmission and delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance, 151 S. W. 904.

In an action for delay in the delivery of a message announcing the death of plaintiff's brother-in-law, thereby depriving plaintiff and his wife of the opportunity of attending the funeral, evidence held to justify a finding that if the message had been promptly delivered they would have attended the funeral. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Glenn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1116.

38. Limitation of liability.—Where telegraph company limited its liability to its own line, it is liable for negligence whereby the telegram is delayed on its line, resulting in ultimate failure of connecting line to deliver it. Weatherford, M. W. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Seals (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 841.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages, caused by the receipt by plaintiff of a fraudulent message sent by one who had tapped the wires, in answer to a message sent by plaintiff, held proper not to admit stipulation on back of defendants' blank. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 232.

A telegraph company, failing to transmit a cipher message, of the nature of which it had no notice, held liable only to the fee paid for transmission. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Mellor & Barnes, 33 C. A. 264, 76 S. W. 449.

Notice of the nature and importance of a cipher message, delivered to a telegraph company for transmission, held not imputed to the company. Id.

A telegram in a foreign language for delivery in that country held not in the same category as a cipher message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Olivarri (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 930.

A telegraph company cannot contract to relieve itself from liability for its own negligence. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Harriss, 56 C. A. 105, 121 S. W. 358, 122 S. W. 891.

39. —— Requirement of notice of loss and presentation of claim therefor.—Validity of stipulation, see notes under Art. 5714.

Contract as to time for presenting claim for damages a defense in action for damages. Lester v. W. U. Tel. Co., 84 T. 313, 19 S. W. 256. Such a stipulation is not binding when the facts are concealed from the party injured. Railway Co. v. Todd, 4 App. C. C. § 319, 19 S. W. 761.

A stipulation that written demand for damages caused by failure to promptly deliver a telegram shall be made within 90 days, before action will lie, is reasonable and will be upheld. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Vanway (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 414.

Where a contract for the transmission of a telegraph message requires claims for damages for negligence in transmission or delivery to be presented within 90 days, the sender cannot maintain an action commenced within such time without a prior presentation of such claim. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hays (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 171.

Objection that claim was not filed for delay in delivering telegram before institution of suit, as required by company's contract, held bad under the facts. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hays, 29 C. A. 25, 67 S. W. 1072.

Where a telegraph company's contract provides that it will "not be liable for damages or statutory penalties in any case where the claim is not presented in writing within 90 days," a party who has filed a claim with the company within the 90 days cannot, after the 90 days have expired, recover for subjects of damage not indicated therein. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Murray, 29 C. A. 207, 68 S. W. 549.

Party suing telegraph company for delay in delivering telegram held not bound by the amount of damages stated in claim filed with the company. Id.

The failure to present a claim to a telegraph company for damages held not to preclude suit within the time allowed by the contract of transmission to file such claim. Phillips v. Western Union Tel. Co., 95 T. 638, 69 S. W. 63.

Commencement of suit against telegraph company within 90 days held compliance with contract requiring written claim for damages within that time. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Cooper, 29 C. A. 591, 69 S. W. 427; Same v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 843.

Filing of a suit and service of citation held a sufficient compliance with a stipulation in a telegram providing for written notice of a claim for damages. Phillips v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 997.

40. —— Requirement of repetition.—In absence of contract limiting liability if message be not repeated, proof of error in transmission makes a prima facie case. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hines, 22 C. A. 315, 54 S. W. 627.

An addressee of an unrepeated message held not precluded from a recovery of damages for a failure to deliver the same by a condition on the telegraph blank that the company would not be liable for any mistake in the transmission of an unrepeated message. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Norris, 25 C. A. 43, 60 S. W. 982.

A stipulation, so far as it relieves a telegraph company from negligence in not delivering or transmitting an unrepeated message, cannot be enforced; but for mere errors or mistakes in transmission such a stipulation is lawful and reasonable. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Ragland (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 421; Same v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 151.

Where a telegram was not repeated, held, under the contract, the company was not liable for error in transmission, unless due to want of ordinary care. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 359.

Where a telegram intended to cancel a contract between the sender and plaintiff was properly addressed when filed for transmission, the sender was under no obligation to have the same repeated in order to insure proper transmission. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 265.

A telegraph company held liable for negligence in transmitting an unrepeated telegram, notwithstanding an agreement limiting the company's liability for mistakes, etc., as to an unrepeated message, to the amount paid for sending it. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co., 102 T. 148, 114 S. W. 98.

A telegraph company held not entitled to limit its liability for an unrepeated message so as to relieve it from its negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 629.

The failure of the sender of a message to have it repeated does not preclude a recovery of damages, caused by the negligence of the telegraph company in changing the address of the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 622.

41. —— Of amount of liability.—A telegraph company held negligent in the transmission of a message, and therefore liable for the damages sustained notwithstanding a provision limiting its liability for mistakes in unrepeated messages to the amount paid for transmission. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 265.

42. —— Notice and acceptance of conditions and persons bound thereby.—Telegraph company cannot avoid liability for failure to transmit telegram by statements on back that it is the agent of the sender. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Seals (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 964.

Condition on contract of a telegraph company that it should not be liable for delays from unavoidable interruptions in the working of its lines does not exempt the company for delays resulting from causes known to its agent, of which the sender was not informed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Birge-Forbes Co., 29 C. A. 526, 69 S. W. 181.

An unknown provision in the contract for sending a telegram held not binding either as a part of the contract for the transmission or as a regulation of the company. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 232; Same v. Douglass (Tex.) 133 S. W. 877.

A stipulation on the reverse side of a message that the initial telegraph company would not be liable for negligent transmission or delivery beyond its own line held unavailable to the initial company as a defense for the negligent acts of the connecting company. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Harriss, 56 C. A. 105, 121 S. W. 358, 122 S. W. 891.

The receiver of a telegram held bound by the stipulations on the blank on which the message was written. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Taber (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 268.

A sendee of a telegram held not bound by the terms of the contract as evidenced by the matter printed on the telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Timmons (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1169.

Addressee in action for damages arising from delay in the delivery of a night message held bound by provisions of the contract that such messages would be received for delivery not earlier than the morning of the next day, and would be delivered free only within the established free delivery limits. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 790.

43. Transmission and delivery of messages by connecting lines.—The analogy of connecting telegraph lines to connecting railways is so great that the established rules of law which determine the liability of the latter may be applied to the former. Smith v. Telegraph Co., 84 T. 359, 19 S. W. 441, 31 Am. St. Rep. 59.

Telegraph company held responsible for failure to deliver message to connecting lines promptly where it contributes to failure to deliver. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Seals (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 964.

An arrangement between a telegraph and a telephone company whereby each received and collected for messages going over both lines does not create an agency between the companies. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lovely (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 563.

A telegraph company receiving for transmission a message addressed to point on a connecting line must transmit the message with reasonable promptness to the end of its own line and deliver it to the connecting line. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 686.

Where a telegraph message is destined beyond the line of the receiving company, the sender has the absolute right to select the connecting route, and this must be observed, though the line selected is out of order. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDonald, 42 C. A. 229, 95 S. W. 691.

A telegraph company held not liable, though at fault, for the failure of the purpose of a message routed over a connecting telephone line which was out of repair. Id.

Where the Postal Telegraph Company received a message for transmission to a point beyond its lines and collected the price for delivery at the point of destination, and delivered the message to the Western Union Telegraph Company for delivery at the point of destination with knowledge of the facts, the latter company was bound to transmit and deliver the message within a reasonable time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Tice (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1078.

A telegraph company need not accept a message for points beyond its own line, and a suggestion that a messenger fee will be necessary and the requiring a guaranty of the fee before delivery to a connecting line do not bind the telegraph company to deliver the message to a point beyond its own line. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 332.

A telegraph company is relieved from liability for negligence occurring on its connecting line in the delivery of a message resulting in injury to a sendee, unless otherwise bound by special contract. Id.

A stipulation on a message that the telegraph company is merely the agent of the sender, without liability, in forwarding it over the lines of any other company, is reasonable and valid. Id.

The suggestion by an agent of a telegraph company receiving a message for transmission beyond the company's lines that a messenger fee will be necessary and requiring a guaranty of a fee before a delivery to a connecting line do not create a special contract binding the initial company to deliver the message in any event, and do not make it responsible for the negligence of the connecting company. Id.

44. Persons entitled to damages.—An action for damages resulting from failure to transmit or deliver a telegram cannot be brought by one not a party to the contract, unless he had a beneficiary interest therein. Railway Co. v. Levy, 59 T. 564, 46 Am. Rep. 278; Stuart v. Telegraph Co., 66 T. 585, 18 S. W. 351, 59 Am. Rep. 623; Telegraph Co. v. Adams, 75 T. 535, 12 S. W. 857, 6 L. R. A. 844, 16 Am. St. Rep. 920; Telegraph Co. v. Jones, 81 T. 273, 16 S. W. 1006; Telegraph Co. v. Beringer, 84 T. 38, 19 S. W. 336; Telegraph Co. v. Hale, 11 C. A. 79, 32 S. W. 814.

When a telegram does not show that it was for the plaintiff's benefit, being neither sender nor receiver, he must show his interest in order to recover damages. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Fore (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 783.

A message sent to a husband in behalf of his wife, but signed by a third party, will form a basis for damages on the part of the wife for delay in delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Olivarri (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 816.

Facts held to establish a contract relation between plaintiff and a telephone company entitling her to sue for negligent failure to give a telephone connection, preventing her presence at her father's deathbed. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gehring (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 754.

45. —— Sender.—A telegraph company owes no duty to the sender, and is not liable for consequences to him resulting through failure to deliver a message, unless the language thereof affirmatively shows his interest, or the company has legal notice of such interest outside the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 714.

46. —— Addressee.—Where it is evident that the message was sent for the benefit of the addressee he may sue for damages caused by delay, without reference to the fact that the charges were paid by the sender. Telegraph Co. v. Beringer, 84 T. 38, 19 S. W. 336.

Acts held insufficient to entitle the addressee of a message to recover for delay in delivery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bryant, 35 C. A. 442, 80 S. W. 406.

The addressee of a message held entitled to maintain an action for delay in the transmission and delivery thereof. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cook, 45 C. A. 87, 99 S. W. 1131; Same v. Parsley, 57 C. A. 8, 121 S. W. 226; Same v. E. F. Connell Land Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1162.

Where defendant telephone company neglected to establish long-distance connection under a contract made by H. to talk to plaintiff, plaintiff was entitled to sue on the undertaking. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Jarrell (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1165.

47. —— Third persons.—Though a telegraphic message is neither prepared, delivered nor paid for in person by the one for whose benefit it is sent, yet if it be prepared, etc., by others acting for him at his request, the contract is complete, and the company having knowledge of its urgency and importance is liable in damages for negligence in its transmission and delivery. Railway Co. v. Redicker, 67 T. 190, 2 S. W. 527.

A husband held entitled to sue for the breach of a contract to transmit a telegram to his wife sent by a third person. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Gilliland (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 212.

A telegraph company is not liable for mental anguish suffered from failure to deliver a telegram by one not appearing on the face of the message, or otherwise known to it, as a beneficiary. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Herring (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 699.

48. Companies and persons liable for damages.—A contract by a telegraph company for the transmission of a message held a contract rendering it liable for the negligence of another company employed in the performance of the contract. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Harriss, 56 C. A. 105, 121 S. W. 358, 122 S. W. 891.

Where defendant telephone company contracted to furnish a through call over its own line and that of a connecting telephone company, it was not relieved from liability as a matter of law, because the failure to carry out its agreement resulted from the negligence of the connecting company. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Jarrell (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1165.

49. Actions for damages—Pleading.—See Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

50. —— Evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

51. —— Instructions and province of court and jury.—See Art. 1970 et seq.

52. —— Verdict.—See Art. 1976 et seq.

53. —— Rights of action and conditions precedent.—In an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message, the causes of action of the senders of the message held separate. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Campbell, 36 C. A. 276, 81 S. W. 580.

The failure of a telegraph company to deliver a message to a broker held not to result in damages. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. E. F. Connell Land Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1162.

54. —— Defenses.—It is no defense to an action for negligently delivering a telegram that plaintiff did not pay for its transmission. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Sweetman, 19 C. A. 435, 47 S. W. 676.

Failure to repeat message not a defense to action for damages for failure to correctly designate place from which message was sent. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Tobin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 540.

In action against telegraph company for failure to promptly deliver a message sent plaintiff by his agent, that message was transmitted without charge held no defense. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Snodgrass, 94 T. 284, 60 S. W. 308, 86 Am. St. Rep. 851.

A telegraph company held not relieved from liability for loss resulting from its negligent delay in delivering a message whereby plaintiffs were prevented from purchasing certain cattle by the fact that plaintiffs may also have a claim against the person from whom they intended to purchase for not giving them a reasonable time in which to make the purchase. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. True (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 1180.

Where plaintiff shipped a construction outfit because of the nondelivery of a telegram canceling plaintiff's contract to perform which the shipment was made, the fact that the filing of the telegram for transmission operated as a cancellation of the contract constituted a basis for the recovery of damages, and was not a defense to plaintiff's action. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 265.

That plaintiff afterwards purchased and sold at a profit held not to prevent his recovery of damages for nondelivery of a telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 148.

Where an employé of defendant telegraph company delivered a spurious message to plaintiff bank, inducing it to cash a draft on an alleged trust company in New York, defendant thereby committed a fraud on plaintiff, for which plaintiff's contributory negligence in failing to take further precautions to ascertain the genuineness of the message was no defense. Postal Telegraph & Cable Co. v. Traders' State Bank (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 745.

55. Grounds and elements of compensatory damages in general.—In suit for damages resulting from injury to wife, the death of a still-born infant, and grief of the mother occasioned thereby, could not form any basis for or element of damages. If the death of the child aggravated the mother's illness, it was a subject of inquiry into extent of and the injury to the mother thereby increased. Telegraph Co. v. Cooper, 71 T. 508, 9 S. W. 598, 1 L. R. A. 728, 10 Am. St. Rep. 772.

The damages recoverable for failure to deliver a message are such as are the natural and necessary consequences of the breach of the contract as contemplated by both parties. Weatherford, M. W. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Seals (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 841; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Landry (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 461; Same v. Kibble, 53 C. A. 222, 115 S. W. 643; El Paso & N. E. Ry. Co. v. Sawyer, 54 C. A. 387, 119 S. W. 110; Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Smi ı (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 733; Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Wilcoxson (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 868; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 257; Same v. Barkley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 849; Johnson v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 814; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Federolf (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 314.

Expense incurred by plaintiff in sending his brother to funeral of the mother held an element of damages against the company, falsely stating she was dead. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hines, 22 C. A. 315, 54 S. W. 627.

A husband held not entitled to recover traveling expenses as part of his damages against a telegraph company for mistake in sending a message as to the condition of his sick wife, causing him to return home. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Patton (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 973.

Loss of time held an element of damages for a failure to deliver a death message. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Ragland (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 421.

Elements of damage on failure to deliver telegram to meet sender at depot at night determined. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Norton (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1081.

In an action against a telegraph company for failing to deliver a message, the happening of an event held not within the contemplation of the parties. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burch, 36 C. A. 237, 81 S. W. 552.

Death and decomposition of body of plaintiff's wife held fairly and reasonably to have been anticipated by telegraph company, negligently failing to promptly deliver message. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hamilton, 36 C. A. 300, 81 S. W. 1052.

In an action against a telegraph company for mental and physical suffering of plaintiff's wife, caused by delay in delivering a telegram, suffering occasioned by the inclemency of the weather held a proper element of damage. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Siddall (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 343.

In an action against a telegraph company for the refusal to transmit a message, certain damages held recoverable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 686.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to send and deliver a message promptly, plaintiff held not entitled to recover damages for the loss of an option to buy cattle, resulting from defendant's delay. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. True, 101 T. 236, 106 S. W. 315.

Where plaintiff shipped a construction outfit to no purpose because of a telegraph company's failure to transmit a telegram canceling plaintiff's contract, charges paid for the inspection of plaintiff's mules necessary to shipment and for freight held proper elements of damage. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 265.

Essential to a telephone company's liability for consequential damages caused by its negligent failure to notify one for whom a call is placed that another desires to talk to him, stated. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Flood, 51 C. A. 340, 111 S. W. 1064.

A telegraph company failing to deliver a telegram held liable for injuries sustained by the sender and his wife. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Powell, 54 C. A. 466, 118 S. W. 226.

Severance of connection of a telephone company, whereby a subscriber is deprived of service he is entitled to, makes the company liable to the subscriber not merely for general damages, but for such as were the natural and probable result of the special conditions of which the company had notice. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1066.

In action by husband and wife for failure to deliver a telegram advising the father of the illness of his child and the need for money, held, that plaintiffs could recover as for actual damages; the injury resulting from a nervous breakdown, caused by sitting up nights, etc., without rest, while caring for the child. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burris (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1173.

56. —— Notice or knowledge of circumstances and effect thereof.—A party cannot recover special damages for the breach of a contract unless his adversary had notice at the time of its violation of the loss that might be expected to result. Daniel v. Telegraph Co., 61 T. 456, 48 Am. Rep. 305; Telegraph Co. v. Brown, 84 T. 54, 19 S. W. 336; Telegraph Co. v. Kemp Grocer Co. (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 905.

Telegraph Co. v. Brown, 71 T. 723, 10 S. W. 323, was overruled in so far as it asserts the proposition that it is necessary that a telegraph message must disclose the relationship of the persons named in it. Telegraph Co. v. Carter, 85 T. 580, 22 S. W. 961, 34 Am. St. Rep. 826.

A telegram: "Smithville, 9—4, 1889. To W. S. C., Taylor: N. B. G. is dead. Answer F. S. F."—was not promptly delivered. M. E. C. was the wife of W. S. C. and daughter of the deceased G. Action for damages by W. S. C. against the telegraph company. Held, that the defendant company is not chargeable with notice, from the terms of the dispatch, of the fact that M. E. C. was the wife of W. S. C., or daughter of the deceased G. Telegraph Co. v. Carter, 85 T. 580, 22 S. W. 961, 34 Am. St. Rep. 826.

A telegram: "Your child is low. Come at once"—held to put company on notice that child might die at any time, and to form basis for damages for failure to arrive in time for the funeral. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Waller (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 396.

In an action for delay in the delivery of a death message, the telegraph company held charged with notice that the addressee would probably desire to attend the funeral. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ford, 40 C. A. 474, 90 S. W. 677.

In an action for damages resulting from the failure of defendant telegraph company to deliver a message advising plaintiff's brother that their mother was dying, certain information given by plaintiff to defendant's agent, taken in connection with the message, held to tend to notify defendant that the addressee was intended to be summoned to attend the mother's funeral, and to sympathize with and console plaintiff in her distress. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 714.

In an action for damages resulting from the failure of defendant telegraph company to deliver a message advising plaintiff's brother that their mother was dying, certain information given by plaintiff to defendant's agent held not notice to him that the mother left no property, that plaintiff could not provide for the mother's burial, and that the addressee could and would have done so. Id.

A telegram reading: "Your mother is dying. Come at once. [Signed] Callie"—did not, on its face, charge the telegraph company with notice that the sender had any interest in the subject-matter of the message. Id.

A message delivered to a telegraph company for transmission held not to advise the company that a failure to deliver it will result in special damages to the sender. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Twaddell, 47 C. A. 51, 103 S. W. 1120.

A telegraphic message held sufficient to indicate to the agents of the telegraph company that the sender of the message was the wife of the addressee. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Steele (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 546.

Telegrams passing between plaintiff and another held sufficient to inform the company that plaintiff was about to ship an outfit, and that its shipment was countermanded, so that, on the company's negligent failure to deliver the answer, plaintiff could recover the expenses of shipping the outfit. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co., 102 T. 148, 114 S. W. 98.

Where there is nothing in a message to give a telegraph company notice that special damages will result from a failure to deliver, such damages cannot be recovered. Lewin-Cole Commission Co. v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 313.

A telegram held to sufficiently notify defendant telegraph company's agents that damages might result from its nondelivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Williams, 57 C. A. 267, 122 S. W. 280.

A death message held not notice to the telegraph company that the remains would be carried to a place other than that from which the message was sent. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 733.

A telegram reading, "Can get option for one twenty-five per acre for forty days putting up five hundred dollars," shows on its face, and is notice to the company, that pecuniary loss will result if not correctly transmitted. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 629.

A telephone company held to have notice, through its operator, who claimed to be the doctor called up by plaintiff, of the condition of plaintiff's wife, so as to be liable for the damages from a doctor not coming. Texas Central Telephone Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 926.

A telegram advising the purchase of certain horses on which plaintiffs had an option held not notice to the telegraph company that special damages would result from a failure to deliver the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Barkley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 849.

A telegraph company held not liable for physical and mental suffering following the failure to deliver a wife's telegram to her husband to meet her on the arrival of a certain train. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Arend (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1190.

A telegraph company receiving a message for transmission held chargeable with knowledge of the importance of the message to a third person, rendering it liable for damages sustained by him in consequence of an error in transmitting the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robertson Bros. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 454.

A message of a daughter to her father held to give notice to the telegraph company that she expected some one of her near relatives, including her father, to come to her. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Landry (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 848.

To make a telephone company liable for special damages for breach of its duty to a subscriber to place him in communication with other telephones, it is not necessary that it should have had notice of special conditions when the contract of subscription was made, but enough that it had such notice before breach. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1066.

A telegraph message addressed to B., reading, "Mrs. B. says Lavonia has had fever and needs money," was notice to the company that the addressee was the husband and Lavonia was the child, and that the matter was urgent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Burris (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1173.

A telegram: "Sterling Dosier, Colo. Texas. Tom Tucker's baby died to-day. If any one can come send telegram. [Signed] Sam Corley"—sufficiently put the telegraph company on inquiry which would have disclosed the relationship between the parties. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 198.

Without notice to a telegraph company that he was going to undertake a trip relying on the agent's statement that his telegram had been delivered, the special damages occasioned by the trip were not recoverable. Crane v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 444.

57. —— Remote, contingent, or speculative damages.—Claim that, if telegram had not been delayed, the funeral of plaintiff's wife would have been postponed until his arrival, held not speculative, so as to make damages for delay too remote. Roach v. Jones, 18 C. A. 231, 44 S. W. 677.

Recovery for delay in transmitting message, whereby plaintiff's wife was buried before his arrival, is not barred on the ground that damages are speculative. Jones v. Roach, 21 C. A. 301, 51 S. W. 549.

The loss of the benefit of a normal course, owing to worry caused by the loss of a position occasioned by a mistake in a telegram, held too remote an injury to be a basis for recovery against the telegraph company. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Partlow, 30 C. A. 599, 71 S. W. 584.

A telegraph company held liable for damages occasioned by the loss of a position as teacher, caused by a mistake in a telegram, though at the time of the telegram the plaintiff had no certificate, as required by Art. 2780. Id.

Certain damages in an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message held too remote. Western Union Tel. Co. v. McNairy, 34 C. A. 389, 78 S. W. 969.

An attorney, having made an unnecessary trip to his wife's bedside because of a telegraph company's failure to deliver a message, held not entitled to recover fees which he would have earned during the time lost while making such journey. Kopperl v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1018.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message, the fact that plaintiff's wife was frightened and annoyed, and suffered a nervous shock on account of her mother's failure to meet her, as intended by such message, held not too remote for allowance as an element of damage. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Siddall (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 343.

In an action for damages for a telegraph company's failure to deliver a message directing plaintiff not to ship his contractor's outfit, plaintiff held not entitled to recover profits which he would have made upon another contract had he not shipped his outfit. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co., 102 T. 148, 114 S. W. 98.

In an action for delay in delivering a telegram, causing abandonment of a theatrical performance, plaintiff's damages held not so speculative as to preclude recovery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Auslet, 53 C. A. 264, 115 S. W. 624; Same v. Delcher, Id.

Certain damages resulting from negligent delay in delivery of messages held too remote and speculative to be recoverable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 257.

Damages to plaintiff by the nondelivery of a telegram held not too speculative. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 148.

A telegraph company which negligently transmitted a message requesting the sending of duplicate parts of a gasoline engine used to pump water for irrigation purposes held liable for damages to crops caused by delay in receiving the parts of the engine sent for. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Goldwire (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 503.

A telegraph company delaying the delivery of expense money sent to a nurse agreeing to render services for three weeks without charge held liable for the compensation paid during the three weeks for the services of another nurse. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ulmer (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 528.

Sickness caused by exposure by being compelled to walk a certain distance, as a result of negligence in failing to deliver a death message, held not an element of damages for such failure. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Ragland (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 421.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering telegram, certain items of damages held recoverable, but others held too remote. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Murray, 29 C. A. 207, 68 S. W. 549.

58. —— Direct or indirect consequences.—A wrongdoer is liable in damages for all the injurious consequences of his tortious acts which, according to the usual course of events and general experience, were likely to ensue, and which, therefore, when the act was committed, he may usually be supposed to have foreseen and anticipated. McAllen v. Telegraph Co., 70 T. 243, 7 S. W. 715.

A telegraph company held to have no defense to liability arising from a mistake in a telegram in the fact that the telegram referred to an option, and the loss occurred through a sale of the property by the exercise of that option. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 629.

The addressee of delayed telegram suing for damages for delay in delivery could not recover on the theory that she could have had the burial of her husband postponed until she arrived, where she could not have reached the place of burial if the message had been delivered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 790.

59. Damages for mental suffering.—Injury to feelings, caused by a negligent failure to deliver a telegram relating to domestic affairs, is an element of actual damages. Telegraph Co. v. Cooper, 71 T. 508, 9 S. W. 598, 1 L. R. A. 728, 10 Am. St. Rep. 772.

Delay in delivering message inquiring for lost child; mental suffering an element of damages. Womack v. W. U. Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 417. So, also, where a mother failed to reach her son before his death. W. U. Telegraph Co. v. Evans, 1 C. A. 297, 21 S. W. 266.

A telegraph company is not responsible, because of delay in sending a message, for mental anguish resulting from an occurrence not contemplated by the sender of the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Landry (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 461.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message warning the sendee not to come to a city on account of the presence of yellow fever, which delay resulted in his going there and remaining 18 hours before he could get a returning train, the mental anguish suffered by reason of his exposure to the danger of contracting the disease was a natural and probable result of the delay in delivery and was a proper element of damages, though after events showed that he was in no danger of contracting the fever. Rich v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 93.

Where a person was suffering mental anxiety because of the knowledge that her relatives were on a train bound for a fever stricken city, and a failure of a telegraph company to send a message to them on the train warning them of their danger merely prolonged the pre-existing anxiety, she could not recover for failure to send the message on the ground of her mental anguish. Id.

Damages for mental anguish due to failure to deliver a telegram held not recoverable unless the telegraph company knew of the telegram's importance or was by its language put on inquiry. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Olivarri (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 930.

A message, "Come at once," held insufficient to inform the telegraph agent that mental distress of any character would probably result from failure to promptly deliver the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Kibble, 53 C. A. 222, 115 S. W. 643.

A telegraph company held not liable for the failure to deliver an answer to a telegram, where the answer would not have alleviated the plaintiff's mental anxiety already occasioned by the delay in the delivery of a telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Barrett, 55 C. A. 323, 118 S. W. 1089.

A contract by a telephone company for the delivery of a message entered into in the state of Arkansas contains among the substantive provisions the right granted the addressee by Kirby's Dig. Ark. § 7947, to recover damages for mental anguish for a failure of a performance of its duty. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Parsley, 57 C. A. 8, 121 S. W. 226.

If plaintiff went to a town through defendant telegraph company's failure to deliver to him a message stating that yellow fever was there prevalent, and suffered mental anguish from a reasonable apprehension that he would contract the disease, that it subsequently appeared that he was in no actual danger was immaterial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Rich (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 686.

Certain mental anguish held to be regarded as reasonably within the contemplation of the parties as the probable result of defendant telegraph company's failure to deliver a message. Id.

1253. Rates, tolls and charges subject to legislative control.

Article 1249. [721] [644a] This chapter embraces, what.—This chapter shall embrace and include the creation of private corporations for the purpose of constructing, owning and operating deep water channels from the waters of the Gulf of Mexico along and across any of the bays on the coast of this state to the mainland, for the purposes of navigation and transportation, and for the construction, owning and operating docks on the coast of this state for the protection and accommodation of ships, boats and all kinds of vessels for navigation and their cargoes. [Acts of 1887, p. 91.]

Embraces water inlets.—This article embraces tide water inlets also. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co., 92 T. 275, 47 S. W. 967.

Canals—Power to control and regulate.—The federal government may exercise jurisdiction and control over artificial canals connecting the natural navigable waters of the United States. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 324.

A canal, extending from salt water of the United States to an intersection with a navigable bayou constructed for the accommodation of ships, held navigable water of the United States. Id.

Art. 1250. [722] Added powers.—Every such channel corporation shall, in addition to the powers herein conferred, have power:

1. To cause such examination and survey for its proposed channel to be made as may be necessary to the selection of the most advantageous route for such purpose, by its officers, agents or servants; to enter upon any of the waters of such bays and upon any of the lands of this state, or of any person.

2. To take and hold such voluntary grant of real estate and other property as shall be made to it to aid in the construction and maintenance of its deep water channel and works pertinent thereto.

3. To construct its channel across, along, through, or upon, any of the waters of the bays within the jurisdiction of this state, and so far into the mainland as may be necessary to reach a place for its docks that will afford security from cyclones, storms, swells and tidal waves, with such depth as may suit its convenience and the wants of navigation, not less than five feet, and a width of not less than forty feet.

4. To furnish to vessels and boats adapted to the purpose facilities for navigating in and along the entire length of its channel, and to charge and collect a toll therefor, to be prescribed and established by its by-laws, not to exceed one cent per barrel bulk of the capacity of each vessel for each mile of the length of its channel used by the vessel going either way.

5. To borrow such sums of money as may be necessary for constructing, finishing, or operating its channel, and to issue and dispose of its bonds for any amount so borrowed, and to mortgage its corporate property and franchises to secure the payment of any debt contracted for the purposes aforesaid; provided, that damages for any property appropriated by such corporation shall be assessed and paid for as is provided for in case of railroads.

6. To enter upon and condemn and appropriate any lands of any persons or corporation that may be necessary for the uses and purposes of such channel corporation; the damages for any property thus appropriated to be assessed and paid for in the same manner as provided by law in the case of railroads; provided, that no damages shall be assessed against or paid by it for any portion of the route of the channel embraced within and covered by the waters of any bay or lake on the coast of this state, nor for any portion of any island belonging to the state that may be requisite and necessary to the construction and successful operation of its channel; and provided, further, that its right of way shall not be less than the actual width of its channel, and not more than seven hundred feet in width on each side of its channel; provided, that when the land sought to be condemned under this chapter is arable land, such right of way shall not extend further than six hundred feet on each side of the channel from the edge or boundary of said channel.

7. To construct, own, and operate its channel so far into the waters of the Gulf of Mexico as may be necessary to obtain an adequate depth of water at its gulf entrance to facilitate the ingress and egress of such vessels as may navigate the same in so far as this state may have the power to grant such right, which shall be in subordination to that of the government of the United States, in so far as that government has the constitutional power to control the same. [Acts 1895, p. 185. Acts 1887, p. 91. Acts 1897, p. 19.]

Condemnation.—The company need not show to entitle it to condemn that it is sought to be done in order to reach a place of safety. See art. 1249. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co., 92 T. 275, 47 S. W. 967.

The channel company need not show authority of secretary of war for construction before condemning land. Id.

Because this article, in conferring the power of eminent domain on channel and dock corporations provides that it shall be exercised in the manner provided by law in the case of railroads, it does not limit their right to the cases in which it might be exercised by railroads. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 848.

In crossing the mainland the company was operating under a right of eminent domain rather than the sovereign right to improve navigation, and therefore though the navigation of the bayou may have been incidentally improved, the sovereign right of the state in that regard was no bar to a claim for damages resulting to a riparian owner by reason of the pollution of the bayou. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co., 100 T. 192, 97 S. W. 686, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 656.

Riparian rights.—A corporation organized under this article receives all the powers possessed by the state as against riparian owners for the improvement of navigation. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 848.

Art. 1251. [723] [644c] Dock corporations; added powers.—Every such dock corporation shall, in addition to the powers heretofore conferred, have power:

1. To purchase, take and hold such land or real estate as shall be necessary for the construction and operation of its docks, approaches, entrances, moorings and ways and the construction, use and enjoyment of such warehouses, stores and sheds as may be necessary to the receiving and discharging of freights, goods, wares and merchandise, and the proper protection and preservation thereof; provided, that no such dock corporation shall ever have the right or power to take or condemn to its use any private property without the free consent of the owner thereof, expressed by a sufficient deed in writing.

2. To construct its dock or docks in such manner and of such size and depth as it may deem meet and proper to suit the convenience of such vessels as may see fit to use and occupy the same, and to collect from the vessels using the same, or from their masters, owners or consignees, such sum or sums for the use thereof as may be authorized by its by-laws and agreed to by such masters, owners or consignees.

3. To borrow such sums of money as may be necessary for constructing, completing or operating its dock or docks, and to issue and dispose of its bonds for such amount so borrowed, and to mortgage its corporate property and franchises to secure the payment of any debt contracted for the purposes aforesaid. [Acts 1895, p. 185.]

Art. 1252. [724] [644d] Corporations created under this chapter; additional power granted.—Every such corporation shall, in addition to the powers heretofore conferred, have power:

1. To purchase, take and hold such land or real estate as shall be necessary for the construction, maintenance and operation of its harbor approaches, entrances, and ways thereto, and the construction of wharves, piers and warehouses.

2. To construct, own and maintain its harbor by building piers and break-waters so far into the gulf as may be necessary to obtain sufficient depth of water to facilitate the ingress and egress, and the safety while in port of such vessels as may enter the same, in so far only as the state may have the power to grant such right, which, however, shall be exercised subject and in subordination to the government of the United States, in as far as it may have constitutional power to control the same.

3. To provide facilities to vessels and boats entering its harbor for anchorage, receiving and discharging cargoes and passengers, and to charge and collect fair and reasonable tolls and wharfage therefor, to be prescribed by its by-laws.

4. To borrow money in such amounts and on such terms as may be necessary for constructing and finishing or operating its harbor or piers, and to issue and dispose of its bonds for any amount so borrowed, and to mortgage its corporate franchises to secure the payment of any debt contracted for the purposes aforesaid. [Id.]

Art. 1253. [725] [644f] Rates, tolls and charges subject to legislative control.—All rates, tolls or charges made by any corporation formed under the provisions of this chapter shall be subject to the right of the Legislature from time to time to alter, revise, change or amend the same. [Id.]

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

DEEP WATER CORPORATIONS

Art.		Art.
1254.	Corporations acting under authority of congress may purchase certain coast land from the state.	1258.	Right to construct docks, etc., charge tolls, subject to railroad commission and general laws regulating rights of said corporations.
1255.	May purchase certain other lands.	1259.	Rights, powers and privileges granted shall not interfere with, what.
1256.	Application for purchase, how made.	1260.	Shall file release with secretary of state of right of control by congress.
1257.	Regulating surveys, payment of purchase money, forfeitures, etc., under foregoing articles.

Article 1254. [726] Corporations acting under authority of congress may purchase certain coast lands from the state.—Any corporation organized under the laws of Texas which is now authorized or which may hereafter be authorized by an act of congress of the United States to construct, own, operate or maintain, with private capital, a deep water harbor, navigable channel, docks or wharves on the gulf coast of Texas shall be permitted to purchase from the state of Texas, at two dollars per acre, so much of any public lands, islands, shores or shallow bays belonging to the state of Texas as may be situated within one-half mile from any point or points on the construction works of any jetties or any such deep water channel leading into the main harbor from the open sea; provided, that in no case shall such strip or body of land be more than one-half mile in width; and such company or corporation may also purchase from the state, at the same price per acre, any lands, shores, islands or shallow bays within one fourth mile of each side of every navigable channel that such company or corporation may construct through or across such shallow bays in the prosecution of such work. [Acts of 1891, p. 166.]

Art. 1255. [727] May purchase certain other lands.—Any such company or corporation owning, in whole or in part, any lands fronting or abutting upon any shallow bays in which any such work is being constructed, may purchase at the same price per acre any lands, shores or shallow bays adjoining and lying in front of such lands; provided, that such purchase shall not extend into such bay so as to include land covered with water having an average depth of more than three and one-half feet at mean low tide. That the purchases under the provisions of this article shall not extend a greater distance along the front of the survey on the shore than three miles, nor a greater distance into the bay than one-half mile; provided, that the islands known as Tolly island and Lydia Ann islands, situated in Aransas bay, shall not be subject to purchase under the provisions herein; provided, that one-half of the proceeds of the sale of the lands as provided for herein shall belong to the permanent free school fund of this state. [Id.]

Art. 1256. [728] Applications for purchase, how made.—All applications of a purchaser to buy under the foregoing articles shall be made in writing to the commissioner of the general land office, accompanied by one-fifth of the purchase money, and also by a copy of the act of congress authorizing the construction of such deep water harbor, navigable channel, docks or wharves, and a complete plat or map showing the location and design of such improvements; and said plat or map shall also show the public lands, shores, islands and shallow bays applied for, and the depth of such shallow bays in feet, determined by actual survey or as shown by the United States coast survey map. [Id.]

Art. 1257. [729] Regulating surveys, payment of purchase money, forfeiture, etc., under foregoing articles.—Upon the payment of one-fifth of the purchase money as hereinbefore provided, the commissioner of the general land office shall issue a receipt therefor, and attach thereto a copy of the application and plat filed by said purchaser; which said receipt shall be sufficient authority to the proper county surveyor to survey the lands, shores, islands or shallow bays sold; provided, that the remainder of the purchase money may be paid at any time within five years after the date of first payment; and deferred payments shall bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, payable annually. If any company or corporation purchasing any land, island or shallow water bays, under these provisions shall fail to secure twenty feet of water over the bar between the Gulf of Mexico and the main harbor within five years from the date of such purchase and maintain said twenty feet of water continuously for two years, then, all such rights shall revert to the state. If the purchaser of any island, shallow water bay, land, or either, under these articles, shall fail to pay the annual interest upon any part of the purchase money when such interest shall become due, or if such purchaser shall fail to pay the principal when the same shall become due, then, all rights acquired under such purchases shall be forfeited, with all payments made thereon, without any judicial ascertainment of such forfeiture; and the commissioner of the general land office shall indorse upon the contract of purchase, that the same is forfeited, whereby all rights so acquired shall be forfeited and revert to the state. If any such corporation shall fail to conform to the act of congress in prosecuting such work, or if such corporation shall fail to secure twenty feet of water at low tide upon the bars and other obstructions between the main harbor and the Gulf of Mexico within five years after the twenty-first day of April, 1891, if such corporation then existed, or within five years of the date of the filing of the charter of any such company as hereafter formed, then, all islands, lands, shallow bays and other rights acquired under this chapter shall be forfeited and shall revert to and vest in the state of Texas. [Id.]

Art. 1258. [730] Right to construct docks, etc., charge tolls subject to railroad commission and general laws regulating rights of said corporations.—Any corporation organized under the laws of this state, which has such authority as mentioned in article 1254 conferred upon it by act of the congress of the United States, may construct, own and maintain upon the gulf coast of Texas, in connection with its deep water harbor and navigable channels, docks and wharves and navigable channels for the accommodation of commerce, and such corporation may charge, demand and receive reasonable and just tolls, and charge for the use of such docks and wharves; but all navigable channels so constructed shall forever remain open and free to all vessels without fee or charge; the tolls and charges for the use of said docks and wharves shall be equal, just and uniform to all vessels, persons and corporations, without discrimination as to amount charged or delay in handling the same; and all such tolls and charges shall be under the control of the legislature of the state of Texas; and, until otherwise directed by the legislature, shall be subject to control and regulation by the railroad commission, under the rules prescribed for the regulation of railroads, so far as applicable. Any railroad, or other means of transportation, which may be constructed between the mainland and any deep water harbor or channel shall be a public highway; and all rates and charges for the transportation of freights and passengers thereon shall be subject to the control and regulation of the railroad commission as a railroad; such railroad or other means of transportation shall receive from each and every ship, boat and vessel, or from the wharf on which the same is discharged, all freights and passengers, and transport and deliver them to the consignee, or any connecting line of railroad, without discrimination as to charges or delay in transportation and delivery, and shall in like manner receive from every person and from every connecting line of railroad all freight and passengers and transport and deliver the same to each and every ship, boat, vessel, person or corporation for delivery to such ship, boat or vessel on like equal and just terms, without discrimination as to charges and delay in transportation or delivery thereof. Nothing herein shall be construed to affect any rights acquired before the enactment of this law. The acceptance of the provisions herein, or the exercise of any rights or privileges granted herein, by said corporation, or any person or corporation holding under the same, shall be deemed and held to be a contract with the state; that any wilful violation of these provisions or the doing of any act herein prohibited shall work a forfeiture of all rights acquired hereunder, so far as then held or claimed by the person or corporation guilty of such violation. [Id.]

Art. 1259. [731] Rights, power and privileges granted shall not interfere with, what.—The privileges and rights granted herein shall never be exercised so as to, in any way, hinder or interfere with the completion of any railroad heretofore chartered to be built to and upon Harbor island, in and upon the location designated in such charter; nor with any such railroads acquiring and controlling all necessary depot grounds, wharf grounds and deep water fronts that it may or could have acquired legally had not this law been enacted. [Id.]

Art. 1260. [732] Shall file release with secretary of state of right of control by congress.—Before any rights can vest in any corporation by virtue of any purchase of public lands, islands, shores or shallow bays, the said corporation shall file with the secretary of state a release to the state of Texas of all claim or right to have its tolls or charges imposed for any use to be made of such property or structures thereon regulated by any act of congress now existing or hereafter to be passed. [Id.]

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

DRAINAGE CORPORATIONS

Art.
1261. Authority for incorporation.
1262. Corporation may contract for drainage and charges subject to control of legislature; lien.
1263. Drains, etc., to be reported to and approved by commissioners' court.
1264. May acquire lands for business, how.
1265. May borrow money for construction, etc., issue bonds; mortgage property, etc.
1266. Lands to be alienated, except.
1267. Excepted lands.

Article 1261. Authority for incorporation.—Corporations may be formed and chartered under the provisions of this chapter, and under the general incorporation laws of the state of Texas, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating canals, drains and ditches outside of the corporate limits of cities and towns in any county in the state of Texas. [Acts 1897, p. 109, sec. 23.]

Art. 1262. Corporation may contract for drainage and charges subject to control of legislature; lien.—Such corporations shall have full power and authority to make contracts for permanent drainage of any tract of land and the charges therefor, said charges subject to the control of the legislature; and the rights therein shall be secured by a lien herein expressly given upon the lands benefited by said drain or canal other than homesteads. [Id.]

Art. 1263. Drains, etc., to be reported to and approved by commissioners' court.—All drains and canals, so constructed by such corporations, shall be reported to the commissioners' court of the county wherein constructed, and approved by the same. [Id.]

Art. 1264. May acquire lands for business, how.—Any corporation, so organized under the provisions of the general laws of the state of Texas, or the provisions of this chapter for the purpose of drainage, shall have power to acquire lands for the purpose of its business, or in payment of stock or drainage rights, and to hold and dispose of such lands and all other property. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 1265. May borrow money for construction, etc., issue bonds; mortgage property, etc.—Such corporation may borrow money for the construction, maintenance and operation of its ditches and canals and laterals, and may issue bonds, and mortgage its corporate property and franchises to secure the payment of any debts contracted for the same. [Id.]

Art. 1266. Lands to be alienated, except.—Land acquired by such corporations, except such as are designated in the next succeeding article, shall be alienated within fifteen years from the date of acquiring same, or be subject to judicial forfeiture. [Id.]

Art. 1267. Excepted lands.—Lands used for the construction, maintenance and operation of canals, drains, ditches and laterals, shall be excepted from the requirements of the last preceding article. [Id.]

CHAPTER NINETEEN

MACADAM AND PLANK ROAD CORPORATIONS

Art.
1268. May enter upon land, make survey, etc.
1269. May condemn land, etc.
1270. If road is out of repair, charter may be forfeited.
1271. Shall not collect tolls when road is out of repair.
1272. Width of road and how to be constructed.
1273. No toll gates permitted in towns, etc.
1274. Tolls to be regulated by commissioners' court.
1275. Persons exempt from tolls.
1276. Mile posts and rates of toll.
1277. Any person may complain of non-repairs; proceedings in such case.
1278. Travelers practicing fraud, may be sued, etc.

Article 1268. [687] [611] May enter upon lands, make surveys, etc.—It shall be lawful for any corporation created for the purpose of constructing a macadam or plank road, by its agents and servants, to enter upon any lands, to make surveys, estimates and locations. [Acts 1873, p. 123. P. D. 5975.]

See Arts. 1278a–1278x.

Art. 1269. [688] [612] May condemn land, etc.—If any such corporations shall require, for the construction or repair of its road, or any bridge thereof, any stone, timber or other material, from land adjoining to or near said road, and can not contract for the same with the owner thereof, such corporation may proceed to have the value of the same assessed; and the same proceedings shall be had therefor as is provided by law to be taken by railway corporations in like cases; and all macadam or plank road corporations shall have the right also to condemn, in like manner, and occupy, any quantity of land, not exceeding one acre at any one place, for the purpose of erecting toll-houses thereon. [P. D. 5976.]

Art. 1270. [689] [613] If road is out of repair, charter may be forfeited.—If any road, or any part thereof, after it shall have been completed, shall be suffered to be out of repair, so as to be impassable for the space of two months, unless when the same is being repaired, the company owning such road shall be liable to forfeit its corporate powers and privileges; and such forfeiture may be enforced by suit, as in other cases of forfeiture of charter by incorporated companies. [P. D. 5977.]

Art. 1271. [690] [614] Shall not collect tolls when road is out of repair.—If any such company shall suffer the road to be out of repair, to the injury, hindrance or delay of travelers, for an unreasonable time, such company shall have no right to collect tolls thereon until the same is again repaired. [P. D. 5977.]

Art. 1272. [691] [615] Width of road and how to be constructed.—All macadam or plank roads shall be opened not exceeding sixty feet wide, thirty feet of which shall be cleared of brush and logs; and at least sixteen feet in width shall be made an artificial road, composed of stone, gravel, wood or other convenient material, in such manner as to secure a firm and substantial road. [P. D. 5978.]

Art. 1273. [692] [616] No toll-gates permitted in town, etc.—No company, or association of individuals, which has been, or may hereafter be, incorporated, for the purpose of making such road, shall erect or keep any toll-gate, or receive any toll within the corporate limits of any incorporated city, town or village, or within one-half mile of such limits. [P. D. 5978.]

Art. 1274. [693] [617] Tolls to be regulated by commissioners' court.—As soon as such road shall have been completed, or any part thereof, not less than five miles together in any part of the road, unless the same is less than five miles long, and so from time to time, as often as five miles in addition shall be completed adjoining any five miles previously constructed, the commissioners' court of the county in which such finished road lies, or, in case the road lies in two or more counties, the commissioners' court of either of said counties, shall, on application of the agent of the company, appoint three judicious house-holders, who shall, on oath, examine the same, and report their opinion to the court in writing; and, if such report shall state that the road, or such part thereof, be completed agreeably to the provisions of this chapter, the court shall by license, in writing, authorize the company to erect gates at suitable distances and demand and receive of persons traveling such road the toll that may be fixed by the commissioners' court. [P. D. 5979.]

Art. 1275. [694] [618] Persons exempt from tolls.—Any person or persons going to or from public worship on the Sabbath, common schools and other institutions of learning, funerals, militia muster, the troops of the United States and of this state, may pass over such road free from toll. [P. D. 5980.]

Art. 1276. [695] [619] Mile posts and rates of toll.—All macadam or plank road companies shall put up a post or stone at the end of each mile, with the number from beginning of said road, fairly cut or painted thereon; and also in a conspicuous place near each gate shall be placed a board with the rates of toll painted thereon; and no toll shall be demanded unless such rates are kept up. [P. D. 5981.]

Art. 1277. [696] [620] Any person may complain of non-repairs; proceedings in such case.—If any macadam or plank road company shall fail to keep their road in repair for five days successively, any person may file a complaint in writing before any justice of the peace of the county, setting forth the nature of the defect complained of, designating the place in the road where it exists; and it shall be the duty of the justice to appoint two disinterested persons as inspectors, to meet at the place complained of, within five days, and, of the time and place of meeting, reasonable notice shall be given to the gate-keeper nearest to the place of meeting; and the inspectors shall then examine into the truth of the matter complained of; and, if they shall find the complaint to be true, they shall send a certified copy of the complaint and of the finding thereon to the keeper of each of the gates between which such defective place shall be, and thereafter no toll shall be received at such gates for the intermediate distance until the part of the road complained of shall be fully repaired; and the inspectors and justice of the peace shall be entitled to two dollars and a half per day for their services, and shall be paid by the company, if the complaint be sustained, and, if it shall fail, then by the complainant. [P. D. 5982.]

Art. 1278. [697] [621] Travelers practicing fraud may be sued, etc.—If any person using any part of said road shall, with intent to defraud such company, falsely represent himself to any toll-gatherer as entitled to exemption from paying toll, or shall make any untrue statement as to the distance he has traveled or intends to travel on the road, or shall practice any fraudulent means, and thereby lessen or avoid the payment of tolls, each and every person concerned in any such fraudulent practices shall, for every such offense, forfeit and pay such company the sum of five dollars, to be recovered by such company in an action of debt before any justice of the peace of the county where the offender may be found. [P. D. 5983.]

CHAPTER NINETEEN A

TOLL ROAD CORPORATIONS

Art.
1278a. Authority for incorporation.
1278b. How created, etc.
1278c. Who may incorporate.
1278d. Only domestic corporation authorized.
1278e. Articles of incorporation.
1278f. Articles to be submitted to attorney general; certificate.
1278g. Articles to be filed with secretary of state; affidavit; record; certificate.
1278h. Corporation shall exist from time of filing articles, etc.
1278i. When body corporate.
1278j. Continuance of corporation; renewal.
1278k. Amendment of articles.
1278l. May own and operate toll roads, etc.
1278m. Right of way over state lands, etc.
1278n. May enter upon lands, make surveys, etc.
1278o. Width of road; cuttings, embankments, etc.
1278p. May cross railroads, etc.
1278q. May cross streams, highways, canals, etc.
1278r. Openings through fences, etc.
1278s. Culverts, sluices, etc.
1278t. May not obstruct navigable waters.
1278u. Condemnation of property.
1278v. Traffic rules and regulations; tolls.
1278w. May not refuse reasonable use of road, etc.
1278x. Laws repealed.

Article 1278a. Authority for incorporation.—That for the purpose of encouraging the building and maintenance of good roads and highways in the state of Texas, it shall be lawful on and after the passage and taking effect of this act, to create private corporations for the purpose of constructing, building, acquiring, owning, operating and maintaining toll roads within this state. [Acts 1913, p. 143, sec. 1.]

See Arts. 1268–1278.

Art. 1278b. How created, etc.—Such corporations shall be created in the manner provided by the general incorporation laws of the state of Texas, as contained in the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of this state, and shall be subject to all of the provisions of such laws, except as the same may be herein changed, modified or amended. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1278c. Who may incorporate.—Any number of persons, not less than five, being subscribers to the stock of any contemplated toll road, may be formed into a corporation for the purpose of constructing, building, acquiring, owning, operating and maintaining such toll roads, by complying with the requirements of this Act. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1278d. Only domestic corporation authorized.—No corporation, except one chartered under the laws of the state of Texas, shall be authorized or permitted to construct, build, operate, acquire, own or maintain any toll road within this state. [Id.sec. 4.]

Art. 1278e. Articles of incorporation.—The persons proposing to form a toll road corporation shall adopt and sign articles of incorporation, which shall contain:

1. The name of the proposed corporation.
2. The places from and to which it is intended to construct the proposed toll road, and the intermediate counties through which it is proposed to construct the same.
3. The place at which shall be established and maintained the principal business office of the proposed corporation.
4. The time of the commencement and the period of continuation of the proposed corporation.
5. The amount of the capital stock of the corporation.
6. The names and places of residence of the several persons forming the association for incorporation.
7. The names of the members of the first board of directors, and in what officers or persons the government of the proposed corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested.
8. The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of the proposed corporation. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1278f. Articles to be submitted to attorney general; certificate.—The articles of incorporation, when so prepared, adopted and signed, shall be submitted to the attorney general of the state, whose duty it shall be to carefully examine the same; and, if he finds them to be in accordance with the provisions of this Act and not in conflict with the laws of the United States or of this state, he shall attach thereto a certificate to that effect. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1278g. Articles to be filed with secretary of state; affidavit; record; certificate.—When said articles have been examined and certified as provided in the preceding section, the same shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, accompanied by an affidavit in writing, signed and sworn to by at least three of the directors named in such articles, before some officer of the state authorized by law to administer oaths, which affidavit shall state that the entire amount of the capital stock of such proposed corporation has been in good faith subscribed, and that fifty per cent of the amount subscribed has been actually paid to the directors named in such articles; and the secretary of state shall cause such articles, together with said affidavit, to be recorded in his office, and shall attach a certificate of the fact of such record to said articles, and return the same to such corporation. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1278h. Corporation shall exist from time of filing articles, etc.—The existence of such corporation shall date from the filing of the articles of incorporation in the office of the secretary of state; and the certificate of the secretary of state, under the seal of the state, shall be evidence of such filing. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1278i. When body corporate.—When the articles of incorporation have been filed and recorded as herein provided, the persons named as corporators shall thereupon become and be deemed a body corporate, and be authorized to proceed to carry into effect the objects set forth in such articles, in accordance with the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1278j. Continuance of corporation; renewal.—No toll road corporation shall be formed to continue more than fifty years in the first instance, but such corporation may be renewed from time to time, for periods not longer than fifty years, in the manner provided for the renewal of railroad corporations by sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, of article 6414, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1278k. Amendment of articles.—Any such toll road corporation may amend or change its articles of incorporation in the manner provided for railroad corporations by articles 6418, 6419, 6421 and 6422, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1278*l*. May own and operate toll roads, etc.—Every such toll road corporation shall have the right to construct, build, acquire, own, operate and maintain toll roads between any points within this state. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1278m. Right of way over state lands, etc.—Every such corporation shall have the right of way for its line of road through and over any lands belonging to this state, and to use any earth, timber, stone or other material upon any such land necessary to the construction and operation of its road through or over said land. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 1278n. May enter upon lands, make surveys, etc.—Every toll road corporation shall have the right to cause such examination and survey for its proposed road to be made as may be necessary to the selection of the most advantageous route, and for such purposes may enter upon the lands or waters of any person or corporation, but subject to responsibility for all damage that may be occasioned thereby. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1278*o*. Width of road; cuttings, embankments, etc.—Every such toll road corporation shall have the right to lay out its road, not exceeding two hundred feet in width, and to construct the same; and for the purpose of cuttings and embankments to take as much more land as may be necessary for the proper construction and security of its road, and to cut down any standing trees that may be in danger of falling upon or obstructing such road, making compensation in the manner provided by law. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1278p. May cross railroads, etc.—Every such corporation shall likewise have the right to construct its road across any railroad, street railroad or interurban line within this state, which it may intersect or touch; provided that it shall properly fence such crossings, and restore, in other respects, the property thus intercepted or crossed to its former state. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 1278q. May cross streams, highways, canals, etc.—Every such corporation shall have the right to construct its road across any stream of water, water course, street, highway, plank road, turnpike or canal which the route of said road shall intersect or touch; but such corporation shall restore the stream, water course, street, highway, plank road, turnpike or canal thus intersected or touched to its former state, or to such state as not to unnecessarily impair its usefulness, and shall keep such crossings in repair. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 1278r. Openings through fences, etc.—Every toll road corporation in this state which may fence its right of way may be required to make openings or crossings through its fence and over its roadbed every five miles thereof, in the manner provided with reference to railroad corporations by articles 6487, 6488, 6489, 6490, 6491, 6492 and 6493 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 1278s. Culverts, sluices, etc.—In no case shall any toll road corporation construct its road without first constructing the necessary culverts or sluices, as the natural lay of the land requires, for the necessary drainage thereof. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 1278t. May not obstruct navigable waters.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize the erection of any bridge or any other obstruction across or over any stream of water navigable by steamboats or sail vessels at the place where any bridge, or other obstruction, may be proposed to be placed so as to prevent the navigation of such stream of water. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 1278u. Condemnation of property.—Every toll road corporation shall have and enjoy all of the rights, privileges and immunities conferred by and be subject to all of the provisions of articles 6502 to 6534, inclusive, of chapter eight of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of the state of Texas relating to the condemnation of private lands and property by railroad corporations. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 1278v. Traffic rules and regulations; tolls.—Every toll road corporation shall have the power to promulgate, by its board of directors, all necessary and reasonable rules and regulations relating to the manner in which traffic shall move over any toll road operated by it, and to refuse the use of such road to any person who shall fail or refuse to abide by such rules and regulations; and shall be empowered to fix and charge tolls for the use of such roads; provided, that such rules and regulations shall not be contrary to law, and provided that the rate to be charged for each class of vehicle shall be the same to all in each of such classes. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 1278w. May not refuse reasonable use of road, etc.—No such corporation shall have the right arbitrarily to refuse the use of such road to any person who shall offer to pay the regular toll therefor, except that such corporation shall be authorized to refuse to permit such road to be used by any vehicle which shall render the same unduly hazardous to the patrons of said road or damaging to the surface thereof, or to any person who shall fail or refuse to abide by the reasonable and necessary traffic regulations promulgated by such corporation. [Id. sec. 23.]

Explanatory.—Sections 24 and 25 of this act make it criminal offenses to trespass upon or obstruct a toll road, and are omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

Art. 1278x. Laws repealed.—That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 26.]

CHAPTER TWENTY

BRIDGE AND FERRY CORPORATIONS

Art.
1279. Distance between bridges and ferries regulated.
Art.
1280. Commissioners' court shall regulate tolls.
1281. Owner liable for damages.

Article 1279. [718] [642] Distance between bridges and ferries regulated.—Whenever any person or persons shall file with the secretary of state any article of association for the erection and maintenance of a bridge or ferry, it shall not be lawful for any other toll-bridge or toll-ferry to be established on the same stream within the limits specified in said article; provided, that said limits shall not extend more than three miles above and three miles below said bridge or ferry; and provided, further, that this article shall not be so construed as to prohibit bridges and ferries at the crossings of any road on such stream within such limits declared either before or after the erection of such bridge or ferry to be a public road by the commissioners' court of the county in which such crossing is situated. [Act April 23, 1874, sec. 79. P. D. 6011c.]

Application.—This article does not restrict the general authority granted by Art. 2241, except as to ferries from which there is no public road. The provision in said article that the same is not to be so construed as to prohibit ferries at the crossing of any road which the commissioners' court in the county in which such crossing is situated should declare to be a public road is an express recognition of the general authority of the commissioners' court to establish public roads and ferries whenever and wherever in its discretion the public may require. Alabama Ferry Co. v. Leathers, 30 C. A. 16, 69 S. W. 118.

Art. 1280. [719] [643] Commissioners' court shall regulate toll.—All charges or tolls for crossing any bridge or ferry shall be regulated by the commissioners' court by an order made at a regular term, and spread upon the minutes of said court, as provided in the case of other bridges and ferries. [Id. sec. 80. P. D. 6011d.]

Art. 1281. [720] [644] Owner liable for damages.—All persons or corporate companies owning any toll-bridge or ferry shall be liable for all damages caused by neglect, delay or the insufficiency of their bridge or ferryboat, which damages may be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 81. P. D. 6011e.]

[706] [630] May contract with cities, etc.—The municipal authorities of any city, town or village, in which any gas, light or water corporation shall exist, are hereby authorized to contract with any such corporation for the lighting or supplying with water the streets, alleys, lots, squares and public places in any such city, town or village. [P. D. 5993.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE A

GAS, ELECTRIC CURRENT AND POWER CORPORATIONS

[See Arts. 1303-1308.]

Art.
1283a. Who may incorporate.
1283b. Corporation, how organized.
1283c. Powers of corporation.
1283d. Condemnation of property; poles; pipes.
1283e. Power to borrow, issue stock, mortgage, etc.
1283f. May not discriminate.

Article 1283a. Who may incorporate.—That any number of persons, not less than three, may organize themselves into a corporation for the purpose of generating, manufacturing, transporting and selling gas, electric current and power in this state. [Acts 1911, p. 228, sec. 1.]

Art. 1283b. Corporation, how organized.—The manner and method of organizing such corporations shall be the same as provided by law for the organization of private corporations under chapter 2, title 21, of the Revised Civil Statutes of the state. [Id. sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—Chapter 2, Title 21, above cited, refers to the Revised Statutes of 1895. The provisions of said title and chapter are found in Title 25, Chapter 2, of this compilation.

Art. 1283c. Powers of corporation.—Such corporation shall have the power to generate, make and manufacture, transport and sell gas, electric current and power to individuals, the public and municipalities for light, heat, power and other purposes, and to make reasonable charges therefor; to construct, maintain and operate power plants and substations and such machinery, apparatus, pipes, poles, wires, devices and arrangements as may be necessary to operate such lines at and between different points in this state; to own, hold, and use such lands, rights of way, easements, franchises, buildings and structures as may be necessary for the purpose of such corporation. [Id. sec. 3.]

See Sherman Gas & Electric Co. v. Belden (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 897.

Art. 1283d. Condemnation of property; poles; pipes.—Such corporation shall have the right and power to enter upon, condemn and appropriate the lands, rights of way, easements and property of any person or corporation, and shall have the right to erect its lines over and across any public road, railroad, railroad right of way, interurban railroad, street railroad, canal or stream in this state, and any street or alley of any incorporated city or town in this state, with the consent and under the direction of the governing board of such city or town. The manner and method of such condemnation shall be the same as is provided by law in the case of railroads, pipe lines, telephone and telegraph lines; provided, that such lines shall be constructed upon suitable poles in the most approved manner and maintained at a height above the ground of at least twenty-two (22) feet; or pipes may be placed under the ground as the exigencies of the case may require. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1283e. Power to borrow, issue stock, mortgage, etc.—Such corporation shall have the right to borrow money, to issue stock and preferred stock, to mortgage its franchises and property to secure the payment of any debt contracted for any of the purposes by such corporation, and shall possess all the rights and powers of corporations for profit in this state, wherever the same may be applicable to corporations of this character. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1283f. May not discriminate.—It shall be unlawful for any corporation organized under this Act to discriminate against any person, corporation, firm, association or place in the charge for such gas, electric current or power, or in the service rendered under similar and like circumstances. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

SEWERAGE COMPANIES

Art.
1284. Corporation may condemn private property for sewers, etc., when, etc.
1285. Method same as for railways.

Article 1284. Corporation may condemn private property for sewers, etc., when, etc.—Every company or corporation heretofore incorporated under the laws of the state of Texas, or that may hereafter be incorporated under the laws of the state of Texas, for the purpose of owning, constructing or maintaining a system of sewerage in any city or town in this state, shall be, and are hereby, authorized and empowered to condemn private property through which to lay, construct and maintain sewer pipes, mains and laterals, and connections, and also private property upon which to maintain vats, filtration pipes and other pipes, such property to be used and occupied as a place for ultimate disposition of sewage, in or out of the town or city limits, whenever it be made to appear that the use of any such private property is necessary for successful operation of such sewer system, and when it be also made to appear that such sewer system is beneficial to the public use, health or convenience; provided, that the right of condemnation herein permitted shall not be invoked nor exercised within the corporate limits of the city or town except as permitted or required by the city or town granting franchise to the company or corporation seeking the right of condemnation. [Act 1899, p. 263, sec. 1.]

Art. 1285. Method same as for railways.—The method of procedure for the condemnation of property for purposes provided in article 1284 shall be the same, so far as applicable, as now provided by law of this state or that may be hereafter provided for entering and condemnation of rights of way for use in the construction and operation of railroads. [Id. 2.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Pollution of creek by sewer—Liability.—Plaintiff was entitled to recover for damages to his land by pollution of a creek flowing through it, caused by construction of sewers. New Odorless Sewerage Co. v. Wisdom, 30 C. A. 224, 70 S. W. 354.

Liability of city in construction of sewers.—See notes under Art. 999.

Power of city to own land, etc., for sewerage purposes.—See Art. 769 et seq.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

CEMETERY CORPORATIONS

Art.
1286. Incorporation and powers; charter to state what.
1287. Owners of lots shareholders, etc.
1288. Directors and officers chosen, how; married woman may be, etc.
1289. Power to acquire and hold land, including land dedicated to burial purposes.
1290. Owners of lots in dedicated land so purchased may participate in organization.
1291. Divisions of dedicated land so purchased, to be preserved, etc.
1292. Ground to be laid out, plotted, approved, attested and recorded.
1293. Corporation may make by-laws and regulations.
1294. Directors may make rules to keep lots in order, etc., but, etc.
1295. Meeting of lot owners to create corporation to take title, etc., notice of; majority determines action; selection of directors.
1296. Directors to elect officers.

Art.
1297. Corporation not required to make reports.
1298. City council may control location of cemetery and limit price of lots.
1299. Commissioners' court may limit price of lots of cemetery outside of city.
1300. Powers of.
1301. May convey lots for purposes of sepulture.
1302. Owners of lots are members of corporation.

Article 1286. Incorporation and powers; charter to state what.—Corporations for the purpose of owning and maintaining public or private cemeteries, or for the purpose only of maintaining and caring for cemeteries, may be formed under and in accordance with the provisions of this title, and when so organized, shall have and exercise all the powers conferred by this chapter. In framing a charter for such corporation, if desired to confer upon it the powers specified in this chapter, the charter shall state that the corporation is organized in pursuance of this chapter. [Acts 1907, p. 37, sec. 1.]

Art. 1287. Owners of lots shareholders, etc.—Each owner of a lot or lots which may be embraced in any cemetery subject to the provisions of this chapter shall be a shareholder in any corporation to which the land may belong, and shall be entitled to all rights and privileges of a shareholder, whether the title to the lot or lots was acquired from the corporation, or was owned before its organization. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1288. Directors and officers chosen how; married woman may be, etc.—The directors and officers of any corporation created in pursuance of this chapter shall be chosen under, and in accordance with, the provisions of this title, except that married women may be directors and officers in such corporations, and may perform any duties and execute any deed or contract appertaining to the duties of the office so held, without the concurrence of their husbands. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1289. Power to acquire and hold land, including land dedicated to burial purposes.—Every corporation organized under this chapter shall have the power to acquire, own and hold all lands and other property which may be necessary or suitable to the accomplishment of its purposes, and may acquire lands which have been previously dedicated to burial purposes, by conveyance from the person or persons in whom title may be, or from any person who may hold such land in trust, with the power to transfer it to preserve the trust. [Id. sec. 4.]

Title to land.—After dedication of land for cemetery purposes, the legal title remains in the corporation only for the purpose of conveying the lots to those who wish to buy for the purpose of sepulture, and the corporation cannot create debts on the faith of the land so dedicated, and lots conveyed cannot be sold under execution. Oakland Cemetery Co. v. People's Cemetery Ass'n, 93 T. 569, 57 S. W. 27, 55 L. R. A. 503; Sherman v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1075.

Art. 1290. Owners of lots in dedicated land so purchased may participate in organization.—In case the land purchased as herein specified, or any portion of it, has been used as a cemetery, then the owners of lots therein shall have the right to participate in the organization of the corporation, and shall be shareholders therein after the company has been organized. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1291. Divisions of dedicated land so purchased, to be preserved, etc.—Whenever any corporations organized under this chapter shall acquire lands already used for burial purposes, the division of the said ground into lots, streets, etc., existing at the time of its acquisition, shall be preserved so far as is necessary to protect the rights of those who have already acquired lots therein. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1292. Ground to be laid out, plotted, approved, attested, and recorded.—It shall be the duty of any such corporation, after its organization, to cause the ground which it may acquire for cemetery purposes to be laid out in proper avenues and alleys, blocks and lots, as may be found convenient and necessary for the proper use thereof; and the corporation shall cause a plot to be made of said cemetery ground, which shall be approved by the board of directors, and shall be attested by the president and secretary of the corporation, after which it shall be recorded in the county clerk's office of the county. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1293. Corporation may make by-laws and regulations.—Every corporation organized under this chapter shall have the power to make all necessary by-laws as prescribed by this title, and also to make all rules and regulations necessary to govern in the sale of lots and the use of the same by the purchasers thereof. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1294. Directors may make rules to keep lots in order, etc., but, etc.—The board of directors shall have authority to make reasonable rules, requiring the lot owners to keep their lots clean from improper growth, so as to preserve the good order and proper appearance of the grounds, but shall not have power to require of any lot owner a particular character of improvement therein. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1295. Meeting of lot owners to create corporation to take title, etc.; notice of; majority determines action; selection of directors.—When it is desired to create a corporation under this chapter to receive the title to lands theretofore dedicated to the purpose of a cemetery, notice of the time and place of a meeting of the lot owners shall be published in a newspaper in the county, if there be one, for thirty days; and printed notices shall be posted at, and upon, such cemetery for thirty days prior to the time fixed for the meeting. When the lot owners and other persons uniting in the formation of the corporation shall assemble, the majority of those present and voting shall decide upon the question of incorporation, and the conveyance of the land to it. Such meeting shall select the board of directors to be named in the charter, which may consist of lot owners alone, or persons may be chosen as directors who are not owners of lots in the cemetery. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1296. Directors to elect officers.—The board of directors shall elect the officers of such corporation required by this title. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1297. Corporation not required to make reports.—Corporations formed under this chapter shall be exempt from any provision of law requiring periodical reports to be made to any department of the state government. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1298. City council may control location of cemetery and limit price of lots.—The city council of any city in which the cemetery is to be located shall have the power to control the location of any such cemetery, and to prescribe the maximum price at which lots therein shall be sold to the public. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1299. Commissioners' court may limit price of lots of cemetery outside of city.—When any such cemetery is located without the limits of any city, the commissioners' court of such county shall have the power to prescribe the maximum at which lots therein shall be sold. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1300. [715] [639] Powers of.—Cemetery corporations shall have power to divide the land of the cemetery into lots and subdivisions for the purposes of the cemetery, and to tax the property for the purpose of its general improvement. [P. D. 6002.]

Art. 1301. [716] [640] May convey lots for purposes of sepulture.—Such corporation shall have power to convey, by deed or otherwise, any lot or lots of the cemetery for purposes of sepulture. When such lots shall have been surveyed and platted, the survey and plat shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county wherein the same are situated, and shall not afterward be changed or altered. No lots shall be sold or disposed of until such plat shall have been recorded. [P. D. 6003.]

Art. 1302. [717] [641] Owners of lots are members of corporation.—All owners of lots purchased of any such corporation shall become members thereof, and be entitled to vote in the election of its officers and upon any other matters to the same extent as stockholders in other corporations. [P. D. 6004.]

OIL, GAS, SALT, ETC., COMPANIES

[See Arts. 1283a–1283f.]

Art.		Art.
1303.	How corporation may be formed.	1307.	Right to borrow money, issue stock, mortgage franchises, etc.
1304.	Same subject.	1308.	Discrimination unlawful.
1305.	Powers of corporation.
1306.	Right of condemnation.

Article 1303. How corporation may be formed.—Any number of persons, not less than three, may organize themselves into a corporation for the purpose of storing, transporting, buying and selling of oil and gas, salt, brine and other mineral solutions in this state. [Acts 1899, p. 202, sec. 1.]

Art. 1304. Same subject.—The manner and method of organizing such corporations shall be the same as provided by law for the organization of private corporations in chapter 2 of this title, and the provisions of this chapter shall apply to all corporations already organized for any of the purposes of this chapter. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1305. Powers of corporation.—Such corporations shall have power to store and transport oil and gas, brine and other mineral solutions, and to make reasonable charges therefor; to buy, sell and furnish oil and gas for light, heat and other purposes; to lay down, construct, maintain and operate pipe lines, tubes, tanks, pump stations, connections, fixtures, storage houses, and such machinery, apparatus, devices and arrangements as may be necessary to operate such pipes and pipe lines between different points in this state; to own, hold, use and occupy such lands, rights of way, easements, franchises, buildings and structures as may be necessary to the purpose of such corporation. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1306. The manner and method of such condemnation shall be the same as is provided by law in the case of railroads; provided, that such pipes or pipe lines shall not pass through or under any cemetery, church or college, school house, residence, business or store house, or through or under any building in this state, except by the consent of the owner or owners thereof; and provided, further, that all such pipes and pipe lines, when same shall pass through or over the cultivated or improved lands of another, shall be well buried under ground at least twenty inches under the surface, and such surface shall be properly and promptly restored by such corporation unless otherwise consented to by the owner or owners of such land; provided, further, that, if such pipes or pipe lines shall be laid over or along any uncultivated or unimproved lands of another, and such lands shall thereafter become cultivated or improved, such pipes or pipe lines shall be buried by said corporation as hereinbefore provided, within a reasonable time after notice by the owner of such lands, or his agent, to said corporation or any agent thereof; and provided, further, that whenever such pipes or pipe lines shall cross any public road or highway, railroad, street railroad, or street or alley, the said pipes and pipe lines shall be so buried and covered as not to interfere with the use and occupancy of such road, highway, street or alley by the public, or use and occupancy of such railroad or street railroad by the owner or owners thereof; and provided, further, that such pipe lines so laid shall not exceed eight inches in diameter. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1307. Right to borrow money, issue stock, mortgage franchises, etc.—Such corporation shall have the right to borrow money, to issue stock and preferred stock, to mortgage its franchises and property to secure the payment of any debt contracted for any of the purposes of such corporation, and shall possess all the rights and powers of corporations for profit in this state, wherever the same may be applicable to corporations of this character. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1308. Discrimination unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any corporation organized under this chapter to discriminate against any person, corporation, firm, association, or place in the charge for such storage or transportation, or in the service rendered, but shall receive, store or transfer oil or gas for any person, corporation, firm or association upon equal terms, charges and conditions with all other persons, corporations, firms, or associations for like service. 1313. Return of deposit in what case.

Article 1309. Deposit with state treasurer.—Every corporation, company or individual, doing business in this state as a bond investment company, or company to place or sell bonds, certificates or debentures on the partial payment or installment plan, shall, and the same is hereby required to, deposit with the state treasurer, in cash or securities approved by the state treasurer, the sum of five thousand dollars; and, in addition thereto, they shall be required to deposit semi-annually with the state treasurer, in cash or securities, to be approved by said officer, ten per cent of all the net premiums received, until the sum deposited shall amount to the sum of one hundred thousand dollars. [Acts 1897, p. 119.]

Art. 1310. Forfeiture of charter in default of deposit; attorney general to sue for; and receivership; duties of receiver, etc.—If any such company, being a domestic corporation, shall fail, for sixty days after the passage of this act, or for sixty days after the organization of such company, to make with the state treasurer the deposit required by this act, it shall be considered to have forfeited its charter; and the attorney general shall, immediately upon receiving information thereof, bring suit in the name of the state, in the district court of Travis county, to have such charter or certificate of incorporation declared forfeited and of no effect, and said court shall declare such charter forfeited, and appoint a receiver for such company, whose duty it shall be, under the order of the court, to distribute to the shareholders the assets of the company. The court shall, out of the assets of the company, make such allowance for compensation for the receiver as shall be equitable and just. [Id. sec. 2.]

Cited, Chickasha Milling Co. v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 355.

Non-resident creditor.—A non-resident creditor has the same right as a resident to participate in the distribution of the fund, when a charter is forfeited and the assets distributed under orders of the court. Morrell v. Colonial Security Co., 101 T. 309, 107 S. W. 525.

Art. 1311. In case of failure of corporation, receiver appointed how; duties; deposit used; treasurer to pay out how.—In case of the failure of any company covered by this chapter, the district court of the county or city in which the principal office is located, upon the application of one or more shareholders, shall appoint a receiver for such company, whose duty it shall be to wind up its affairs, liquidate its debts, and distribute its assets, using therefor, upon the order of the court, the deposit previously made, to secure the shareholders, with the state treasurer; and the state treasurer is hereby authorized to pay out such deposit in accordance with requisitions made upon the state comptroller by said receiver, and approved by the court, upon the warrant of the state comptroller. [Id. sec. 4.]

Power of court.—The court is without power to order the comptroller to draw his warrant on the treasurer, before the rights of the parties interested in the fund have been adjudicated, and the debts established. Ex parte Stephens, 100 T. 107, 94 S. W. 327.

The court has authority to demand, and it is the duty of the comptroller, upon the order of the court to draw a warrant upon the treasurer for the funds deposited in his department to be disposed of by the court. The funds and assets of the corporation in the treasury should be surrendered to the court to be distributed according to its judgment. Hart v. Stephens, 100 T. 412, 100 S. W. 136.

Foreign or domestic investors.—The deposits are for the benefit of non-resident as well as resident creditors. Morrell v. Colonial Security Co., 101 T. 309, 107 S. W. 525, reversing (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 941.

Art. 1312. Interchange of cash and securities in deposit; approval of attorney general.—At any time, when requested so to do by any company, such as is mentioned in this chapter, the state treasurer is hereby authorized to permit such company to interchange cash for the securities, or securities for the cash, deposited by such company with the state treasurer, under the provisions of this chapter, such securities always to be approved by the state treasurer on the written advice of the attorney general. [Acts 1901, p. 282.]

Art. 1313. Return of deposit in what case.—Should any such company, such as is mentioned in this act, cease to do business in this state, and shall satisfy the comptroller and the attorney general that it has no liabilities in this state, the comptroller shall issue his warrant to the state treasurer; and the state treasurer is authorized, and it is made his duty, upon such warrant of the comptroller, to return to such company the cash or securities deposited by it under the provisions of this chapter. Article 1313a. Who may incorporate; purposes; articles; acknowledgment; contents.—Any number of persons, not less than five, who are residents of this state, desiring to organize a building and loan association for the purpose of building and improving homesteads, removing incumbrances therefrom, and loaning money to the members thereof, may, by complying with the provisions of this Act, and entering into articles of association, become a corporate body. Said articles of association shall be signed by persons associating and acknowledged before some person authorized by the laws of this state to take acknowledgments to deeds, and shall set forth:

First, the name assumed by the association, which shall not be the same assumed by any other association incorporated under this Act, nor so similar as to be liable to mislead.

Second, the purpose for which the association is formed.

Third, the amount of its authorized capital stock; and the number of shares into which it is divided; the par value of each share; and the number of shares subscribed for, which shall not be less than fifty in number.

Fourth, the names of the incorporators; their respective residences and the number of shares subscribed by each.

Fifth, the term of its corporate existence, which shall not exceed fifty years.

Sixth, the name of the town, city or village in which such association is to be located. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 72, sec. 1.]

See annotations at end of chapter.

Art. 1313aa. Approval of articles; copy to commissioner of insurance and banking; recording with county clerk; effect; proviso.—When executed as aforesaid, said articles of association shall be approved by, and filed with the secretary of state, and a copy thereof, duly authenticated under the hand and seal of state, shall be delivered to the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall file the same in his office, and a like copy thereof shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which the principal office of such association is located; whereupon the persons named in the articles of association, their associates and successors, shall become a corporate body for the period for which they were organized, and shall exercise such powers as are herein granted, and such other powers as are necessary to enable such association to carry out the purpose of its organization, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act; provided, that before such association shall proceed to business it shall adopt by-laws for the regulation and management of its business. Said by-laws shall not become operative until a copy thereof, duly certified by the president and secretary of the association shall have been approved by and filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and when so approved and filed the said commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue his certificate of such approval and filing and thereupon said association may proceed to business. The provisions of this Act shall not apply to loan corporations heretofore incorporated under the laws of Texas loaning money on real estate, or improvements thereon, in cities of this state of more than thirty thousand inhabitants and not requiring the borrowers to be members thereof, or holders of shares in such corporations, and which have been doing business for as long as ten years prior to the passage of this Act. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1313b. Board of directors; election.—The corporate powers of every building and loan association heretofore organized under the laws of this state, or which may be incorporated under this Act, shall be exercised by a board of directors of not less than five (5) members, who shall elect from their own number the officers of the association. The mode of electing members of said board of directors and officers, and their respective terms of office shall be prescribed in the by-laws. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1313bb. Bonds of financial officers; directors may require additional sureties; directors not to be sureties.—The secretary and treasurer of such association, and all other officers who sign and endorse checks, have charge of money or securities of such association, shall, before entering upon the duties of their office, each give such bond for the faithful performance of the same as shall be required and approved by the board of directors. Additional sureties or such increase of said bond as they may deem necessary, may be required at any time by the board of directors. Directors shall not be accepted as sureties on such bonds, and shall be individually liable for any loss sustained through their negligence or failure to comply with the provisions of this section. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1313c. Shares; payment in installments; advance payments; series; nature of property in shares; retirement; lien; new shares; increase of capital stock.—The authorized capital stock of such association shall be divided into shares having a par value of not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than two hundred dollars, each, payable in periodical installments, called dues, not exceeding two dollars per month on each share; provided, that the by-laws may provide for the advance payment of installment dues and for which there may be issued an advance payment certificate. The shares may be issued in series, or at any time as the by-laws shall determine and subscriptions therefor shall be made payable to the association. Said shares shall be deemed personal property, transferrable on the books of the association in the manner prescribed in the by-laws, and shall be paid off and retired as the by-laws shall direct. Every share shall be subject to a lien for the payment of unpaid dues and such other charges as may be lawfully incurred thereon under the provisions of this Act, and the by-laws may prescribe the manner of enforcing such lien. New shares may be issued in lieu of shares matured, withdraw, retired, or forfeited; but at no time shall the shares issued and in force exceed the aggregate number of shares into which the authorized capital stock is divided as designated in the articles of the association; provided, further, that any building and loan association heretofore or hereafter incorporated under the laws of this state, may, by a resolution adopted by a two-thirds vote of shares represented and voted at any annual meeting, or at any meeting called for that purpose, increase its authorized capital stock and shares, or amend its articles of association or by-laws, in any manner not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act; but no such increase of authorized capital stock nor amendments shall have effect until a copy of such resolution, certified by the president and secretary of such association, shall be filed, approved and recorded in the same manner as is provided in section two of this Act for the filing and recording of original articles of association and the filing and approval of by-laws. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1313cc. Meetings of directors; loans; priority of loans; no loans to persons not members; security; number of payments; duties of commissioner of insurance and banking; loans to non-members.—At such times as the by-laws shall designate, not less frequently than once a month, the board of directors shall hold meetings, at which the funds in the treasury applicable for loans shall be loaned to the members who, in open competition, shall bid the highest premium for priority of right to a loan; or in lieu thereof, such funds may be loaned, either with or without premium, as the borrower may, in writing agree to pay, in which case the priority of right to a loan shall be decided by the priority of the application therefor. The manner in which said premium may be paid shall be prescribed in the by-laws. No loans shall be made by such association to anyone not a member thereof (except as hereinafter provided), nor to any member for an amount greater than the par value of the shares held by such member. Borrowers shall be required to give real estate security, unincumbered except by the prior liens held by such association, accompanied by a transfer and pledged to the association the shares borrowed upon as collateral security for the payment of the loan; provided, that no loan made upon real estate security shall exceed in amount two-thirds of the appraised valuation of such real estate; provided further, that the shares of such association may be received as security for the loan of an amount not to exceed ninety per cent of the withdrawal value of such shares; provided further, that, subject to the approval of the commissioner of insurance and banking, the number of payment of dues, interest and premium required from the borrowing stockholder to pay off his loan and secure a release of his encumbrance may be limited to such a definite number as the by-laws may provide; and provided further, that when the funds in the treasury applicable for loans shall accumulate and be in excess of the amount required for loans to members, they may be loaned to non-members upon real estate securities unincumbered by prior liens in an amount not to exceed fifty per cent of the appraised value of such securities, or may be invested in such securities as are authorized to be accepted by savings banks in this state, but at no time shall such loans and investment exceed twenty per cent of the assets. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1313d. Failure of borrower to offer security; interest, premium and expense; forfeiture of pledge on default; proviso.—If the borrower neglects to offer security satisfactory to the board of directors within the time prescribed by the by-laws, his or her right to the loan shall be forfeited, and he or she shall be charged with interest or premium, if any, for one month, together with any expense incurred and the money appropriated for such loan may be reloaned at the next or any subsequent meeting.

Whenever a borrowing shareholder shall be in arrears in the payment of dues, interest or premium for more than four months the board of directors may, at their discretion, declare the pledged shares forfeited, and the whole amount of the loan due and payable, and its collection, together with the arrears of interest, premium and fines, may be enforced by proceedings upon the security held by the association, in accordance with law; provided, that the withdrawal value of the pledged shares, at the time of the commencement of the foreclosure proceedings shall be credited upon the loan. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1313dd. Payment of loans; amount; credit for part of premium; retention of membership.—Any borrowing shareholder desiring to repay his loan shall have the privilege of doing so at any time, by giving the association thirty days written notice of such intention. The borrower shall be charged with the amount of the original loan, together with all the arrearages of interest, premium and fines and other legal charges, and shall be given credit for the withdrawal value of his shares pledged as security; and the balance shall be received by the association in full satisfaction of said loan; provided, that in cases where the premium is deducted from the loan in a gross sum, and the borrower repays the loan before the expiration of the tenth year from the date upon which said loan was made, such borrower shall be given credit for one-tenth of the premium paid for every year of the said ten years then unexpired; provided further, that any borrower desiring to retain his or her shares and membership may repay his loan without claiming credit for the withdrawal value of said shares whereupon said shares shall be retransferred to him or her, and shall be free from any claim by reason of said loan. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1313e. Meaning of "withdrawal value."—By the term "withdrawal value" as used herein is meant: The then value of the stock at the time indicated in the connection in which the words are used less the lawful charges against such shares in favor of the corporation. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1313ee. Neglect to elect officers not to terminate corporation.—No corporation or association created under this Act shall cease or expire from neglect on the part of the corporation to elect officers at the time mentioned in their by-laws, and all officers elected to such corporation shall hold their offices until their successors are duly elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1313f. Purchase of security at judicial or other sale; disposition.—Any loan or building association incorporated by or under this Act is hereby authorized and empowered to purchase at any sheriff's or other judicial sale, or at any other sale, public or private, any real estate upon which such association may have or hold any mortgage, lien or other incumbrance, or in which said association may have an interest for the purpose of collecting any debt due it, or for the protection of its interest in such real estate, and the real estate so purchased to sell, convey, lease or mortgage, at pleasure to any person or persons whomsoever, and to the highest bidder after advertising same in some local paper for four consecutive weeks. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1313ff. Extension of corporate existence by vote of stockholders; report to secretary of state; filing with commissioner of insurance and banking.—Any loan or building association incorporated under this Act, or any prior act, may extend the duration of time for which said association was organized by a vote of two-thirds of the capital stock of such association represented and voting at any annual meeting of the stockholders of such association, or at any special meeting called for that purpose; thereupon the board of directors shall transmit a copy of the proceedings of such annual meeting or of such special meeting, duly attested, to the secretary of state, who shall make a duly authenticated copy thereof, as provided in said section three of this Act, certifying to the extension of time of such corporation, and the same shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking and recorded as provided in said section three of this Act, and any building and loan association incorporated under any prior act, and extending the duration of the time for which it was incorporated, in the manner herein provided, shall be deemed as incorporated under and be invested with all the power given in this Act, the same as though such corporation had been originally incorporated under it. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1313g. Publication of statement of financial condition.—Each association formed under the provisions of this Act shall, at the close of its first year's operations, and annually at the same period in each year thereafter publish in at least one newspaper published in the same place where its principal office may be located, or if no newspaper be published in such place, then in the newspaper published nearest such place, a concise statement, verified by the oaths of its president and secretary, showing the actual financial condition of the association, and the amount of its property and liabilities, specifying the same particularly. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 1313gg. Supervision by commissioner of insurance and banking; proviso.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall have supervision of all building and loan associations doing business in this state, and shall be charged with the execution of the laws of this state relating to such association; provided, that during the absence or disability of the commissioner of insurance and banking his chief clerk or deputy shall be authorized to perform all the duties relating to the control and supervision of such associations and the execution of the laws above described. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1313h. Financial statement; filing with commissioner of insurance and banking; contents; penalty for failure; investigation.—Every building and loan association doing business within this state shall, on the first day of January of each year, or within sixty days thereafter, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a full and detailed statement of its financial condition on the 31st day of the preceding December, and the business transacted during the preceding year within this state. Said statement shall set forth the amount and character of its assets, liabilities, receipts and disbursements, and shall contain such other information, and be in such form as the commissioner of insurance and banking may prescribe, and shall be subscribed and sworn to by the secretary and treasurer of such association. Any such association refusing or neglecting to file the annual statement herein required within the period hereinbefore prescribed shall forfeit five dollars per day for each and every day such statement shall be withheld, and the commissioner of insurance and banking may maintain an action in the name of the state to recover such penalty, which, upon its collection, shall be paid into the state treasury. And shall within thirty days after such refusal to file such annual statement investigate the affairs of the association, and if found in a failing condition take charge of its affairs. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1313hh. Examination by commissioner of insurance and banking; special examiners; compensation.—Once in each year, or oftener, if in the opinion of the commissioner of insurance and banking it shall be necessary the commissioner of insurance and banking shall make or cause to be made, an examination into the affairs of all building and loan associations doing business in this state. Such examinations shall be full and complete, and in making the same the examiner shall have full access to, and may compel the production of all books, papers and moneys, etc., of the association under examination, and may administer oaths to and examine the officers of such association or any other person connected therewith, as to its business and affairs.

The commissioner of insurance and banking may appoint such special examiners as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act. Such examiner shall be paid at the rate of eight dollars per day; they shall also receive necessary traveling expenses connected with the duties of their office, which shall be paid by the state treasurer on the warrant of the commissioner of insurance and banking and the approval of the governor. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 1313i. Financial unsoundness or mismanagement; duties of commissioner of insurance and banking; suit by attorney general; liquidation; receiver; dissolution.—Whenever it shall appear to the commissioner of insurance and banking that the affairs of any such association are in an unsound condition, or that it is conducting its business in an unsafe or unlawful manner, such commissioner shall at once notify the board of directors of such association, giving them twenty days in which to restore its affairs to a safe and sound condition, or to discontinue its illegal practices. If after twenty days such restoration shall have not been made, or such illegal practices shall have not been discontinued, said commissioner may order one of the examiners, appointed to examine such association, or a special examiner appointed for the purpose, to take possession of all books, records and assets of every description of such association and hold and retain possession of the same pending the further proceedings hereinafter specified. Should the board of directors, secretary or person in charge of such association refuse to permit the said examiner to take possession aforesaid, said commissioner shall communicate such fact to the attorney general, whereupon the attorney general shall at once institute such proceedings as may be necessary to place such examiner in immediate possession of the property of such association. Upon taking possession of the effects of the association as aforesaid, said examiner shall prepare a full and true statement of the affairs and conditions of such association, including an itemized statement of its assets and liabilities, and shall receive and collect all debts, dues and claims belonging to it, and may pay the immediate and reasonable expense of his trust. Said examiner shall be required to execute to the commissioner of insurance and banking a good and sufficient bond, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as custodian of such association, which said bond shall be approved by said commissioner.

The commissioner of insurance and banking shall, within fifteen days next after said examiner has acquired possession of the property of such association, convene a special meeting of the shareholders for the purpose of considering and acting upon the examiner's report of the affairs and conditions of such association as found by him from his examinations thereof. The shareholders may, at said special meeting, by the votes of those owning two-thirds of the shares in force, resolve to go into liquidation, and for that purpose may, by a majority vote of those present, elect from among their number a receiver and fix his compensation. The compensation to be allowed a receiver under this Act shall be an amount reasonably in proportion to the value of the property of the association, and in no event shall exceed $2500.00 per annum. A copy of said resolution, duly certified by the presiding officer and secretary of said special meeting, together with the name and address of the receiver thus elected, shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking. Said receiver shall be charged with a proper distribution of the assets, discharge of all liabilities and final closing up of the business of such association, and before he shall enter upon the duties of his office he shall be required to execute to the association a good and sufficient bond, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties, which shall be approved by and filed with said commissioner. Upon the election and qualification of said receiver as aforesaid, the said examiner shall, when so ordered by the commissioner of insurance and banking, turn over and deliver to said receiver all the books, papers, money and effects of every description in his hands belonging to such association. Said receiver shall, upon the completion of said duties intrusted to him, prepare a statement to that effect, reciting therein that all of the liabilities of such association have been completely discharged and its assets and property distributed among all the persons entitled thereto. Said statement shall be subscribed and sworn to by said receiver and filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and a notice of such dissolution shall be published for three successive weeks in any newspaper published in the county wherein the principal office of such association is located. Upon the filing of said statement and making publication as aforesaid, such association shall be deemed dissolved. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 1313ii. Liquidation by shareholders not possible; injunction and receivership.—If after having called a meeting of the shareholders as herein provided, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall find that liquidation by the shareholders can not be had or consummated, he shall communicate such fact, together with a statement of the condition of the association to the attorney general, who shall thereupon institute the necessary proceedings to enjoin such association from doing any further business, and for the appointment of a receiver therefor. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 1313j. Shareholders in arrears; forfeiture; withdrawal value.—If a shareholder be in arrears in the payment of dues upon unpledged shares, the board of directors may, if the shareholder fails to pay the amount of arrears within thirty days after notice, declare said shares forfeited. The withdrawal value of said shares at the time of forfeiture shall be ascertained and paid to such shareholder upon such notice as the by-laws may prescribe, provided, that fines for the non-payment of dues, interest or premium shall not exceed one per cent per month on each dollar in arrears. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 1313jj. Gross earnings; apportionment; reserve; expense fund.—The gross earnings of every building and loan association shall be ascertained at least once in each year, from which shall be deducted a sufficient amount to meet the operating expenses of such association, and from said earnings only shall such expenses be paid. From the balance of the earnings there shall be set aside at least one per cent annually as a reserve fund, until such fund reaches five per cent of the outstanding loans, at which rate it shall thereafter be maintained and held by annual appropriations from the earnings. From said reserve fund shall be paid all losses sustained by said association from depreciation of securities or otherwise. After providing for expenses of the association, and the reserve fund, as aforesaid, the residue of such earnings shall be transferred and apportioned to the credit of shareholders as the association by its by-laws shall provide. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 1313k. Consolidation of associations; non-consenting stockholders; proviso.—At the annual meeting, or at any meeting called for that purpose, any two or more building and loan associations organized under the laws of this state may by two-thirds of the vote of all shareholders of each of the different associations resolve to consolidate into one upon such terms as shall be mutually agreed upon by the directors of such associations. Any shareholder not consenting to such consolidation shall be entitled to receive the withdrawal value of his stock in settlement, or, if a borrower, to have such value applied in part settlement of his loan; provided, that such consolidation shall not take effect until a copy of said resolution, certified by a majority of the board of directors of each association, shall be filed with the secretary of state, and with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and recorded in the manner hereinbefore provided. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 1313*l*. Voluntary dissolution; sale of property to other association; filing statement with commissioner of insurance and banking.—At the annual meeting, or at any meeting called for that purpose, any building and loan association of this state may, by a vote of shareholders owning two-thirds of the shares in force, resolve to liquidate and dissolve the corporation. In order to facilitate such dissolution the board of directors may, if they deem advisable, sell and transfer the mortgage securities and other property of such association to another corporation, person or persons, subject, however, to the vested and accrued rights of the mortgagors; provided, that before said resolution shall have effect, a copy thereof, certified by the president and secretary of such association, together with an itemized statement of its assets and liabilities, sworn to by a majority of directors, shall be filed with the commissioner of banking and insurance. After filing a copy of the resolution as aforesaid, it shall be unlawful for such association to issue stock or make any loans, but all of its income and receipts, in excess of actual expense of management, shall be applied to the discharge of its liabilities. [Id. sec. 22.]

Explanatory.—Section 23 defines certain offenses by officers of the association, and is omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

Art. 1313m. Report by commissioner of insurance and banking to governor; printing.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, shall, annually, at the earliest possible date after the statements of such associations are received, make a report to the governor of the general conduct and condition of all building and loan associations doing business in this state, including the information contained in such statements, arranged in tabular form together with such suggestions as he may deem expedient. There shall be printed of said report as many copies as the commissioner of insurance and banking shall deem necessary. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 1313n. Fees; limitation of amount.—Every building and loan association organized under the laws of this state shall be subject to and pay to the secretary of state the following fees, which fees shall be paid into the state treasury, to wit: for filing articles of associations, by-laws, amendments, or any other paper, one dollar; for making and certifying to articles of association, by-laws, or any other paper required to be filed with the secretary of state, twenty cents per folio of one hundred words; for making the annual examinations herein provided, one seventy-fifth part of one per cent of the gross amount of assets of such association, which fee shall be paid at the time of filing its annual statement, and shall at the same time pay to the secretary of state an annual franchise tax of ten dollars; provided, that the examination fee of any association shall not be less than twenty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars in any one year; provided, further, that the expense incurred and services, other than examinations performed especially for such association shall be paid in full by such association. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 1313*o*. Foreign associations; subject to domestic laws.—The foreign building and loan associations doing business in this state shall conduct the same in accordance with the laws of this state governing domestic building and loan associations, and shall comply with all requirements of said laws, except as herein provided. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 1313p. Foreign associations; procuring certificate of authority; prerequisites; agreement as to service of process; deposit.—No foreign building and loan association shall do any business in this state until it shall procure from the secretary of state a certificate of authority to do so. To procure such certificate of authority such foreign association shall comply with the following provisions:

First. It shall file with the secretary of state a certified copy of its articles of incorporation, a copy of its by-laws and rules governing it, and of its certificates and all printed matter issued by it, together with a statement of its financial condition such as is required annually from all building and loan associations organized under the laws of this state.

Second. It shall file with the secretary of state a written instrument, properly executed, agreeing that any summons or process of any court in this state may issue against it from any county in this state, and when served upon the secretary of state, shall be accepted irrevocably as a valid service upon such foreign association; provided, however, that the secretary of state shall mail a copy of such legal process served upon him to the home office of such foreign association, and the secretary of state shall, within six days, certify to the court from which such summons or process issued the fact of such mailing. The plaintiff shall for each process so served pay to the secretary of state, at the time of such service, a fee of two dollars, which shall be recovered by the plaintiff as part of the taxable costs if he prevail in the suit.

Third. It shall deposit with the secretary of state one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), either in cash or bonds of the United States, or bonds of any state in the United States, or bonds of any county or municipal corporation in the state of Texas, or mortgages, being first liens on improved and productive real estate located within this state, and worth at least twice the amount of the liens, or furnish surety company bond in said sum of $100,000; which securities or surety company bond shall be approved by the secretary of state. Said deposit shall be held as security for all claims of residents of this state against such foreign associations, and shall be liable for all judgments or decrees thereon; and said securities shall not be released until all shares of such foreign associations held by residents of this state shall have been fully redeemed and paid off, and its contracts and obligations to residents of this state shall have been fully performed and discharged. Such foreign associations may collect and use the interest on any securities so deposited, so long as it fulfills its obligations and complies with the provisions of this Act. It may also exchange them for other securities of equal value, if satisfactory to the secretary of state; provided, that if the business of such associations be solely that of lending money in this state, and that it sells none of its stock except where loans are actually made on real estate in this state for the full amount of the stock so sold, and made at the time of the sale of such stock, then in such event the provisions of this Act requiring a deposit bond of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) shall not apply. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 1313q. Securities deposited with secretary of state; deposit with state treasurer; withdrawal.—All such securities deposited with the secretary of state shall be immediately deposited by him with the state treasurer, who, with his sureties, shall be responsible for the safe keeping thereof. The state treasurer shall deliver such securities only upon the written order of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 1313r. Foreign associations; certificate to commissioner of insurance and banking; certification to secretary of state.—Whenever such foreign association has complied with the provisions of this Act, the secretary of state shall so certify to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and thereupon such foreign association, shall also furnish to the commissioner of insurance and banking a full and complete financial statement of its affairs duly sworn to by its president and secretary, together with such other information as said commissioner of insurance and banking may require, which said report shall be filed annually thereafter. And if the commissioner of insurance and banking is satisfied that such association is in sound financial condition and shall be satisfied that such foreign association is conducting its business in accordance with the laws of this state, and shall regard it safe, reliable and entitled to public confidence, he shall so certify to the secretary of state, who shall issue certificate of authority and renewals of such certificate of authority upon the payment of the fees as herein provided. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 1313s. Foreign associations; fees.—All foreign building and loan associations shall pay to the secretary of state the following fees, which shall be paid into the state treasury, to-wit: For filing each application for admission to do business in this state, fifty dollars ($50.00) for each certificate of authority and annual renewal of the same, twenty-five dollars ($25.00) and an annual franchise tax of two hundred and fifty ($250.00) dollars. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 1313t. Foreign associations; satisfaction of judgments from deposited securities; proceedings; deficiency.—If at any time any shareholder of such foreign association residing in this state, shall recover judgment against such foreign association, and which after thirty days shall not have been satisfied the state treasurer, upon an order from the secretary of state, shall proceed to sell at the current market value, sufficient of the bonds, or collect sufficient of the mortgage securities deposited with him to satisfy the amount of such judgment, together with five per cent for his services and expense; provided, that before ordering the state treasurer to dispose of such securities as aforesaid, the secretary of state shall be served with an affidavit by the plaintiff or his attorney, setting forth the recovery of judgment, and that the same has remained unpaid for thirty days, and that no proceedings are pending for appeal or reversal of the same; provided, further, that such foreign association after notice of the service of such affidavits, shall not transact any new business in this state until any deficiency of securities caused by the necessity of satisfying such judgments shall have been made good by further deposit of similar securities with the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 1313u. Foreign associations; examination; expense; proviso.—Every foreign building and loan association doing business in this state shall be subject to the same examinations, as are building and loan associations organized under the laws of this state; provided, that the expense of all examinations of such foreign association shall be paid by the association examined, and the money so received shall be paid into the state treasury; provided, it shall not be necessary for such examination to be made but once in each year; provided, further, that such expense shall only include the necessary traveling expenses of such examiner and the sum of eight dollars per day, for each day actually required in making such examinations. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 1313v. Foreign associations; revocation of certificate of authority; notice.—Should the secretary of state find, upon examination, that such foreign association does not conduct its business in accordance with law, or that the affairs of such foreign association are in an unsound condition, or if such foreign association refuses to permit examination to be made, he may revoke the certificate of authority granted such foreign association to do business in this state; provided, that upon the revocation of such certificate of authority, the secretary of state shall mail a notice thereof to the home office of such foreign association, and cause a similar notice to be published in at least one newspap er published in the city of Austin. After publication of said notice it shall be unlawful for any agent of such foreign association to receive any further payments on shares from shareholders residing in this state, except payment on shares on which a loan has been made. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 1313w. Foreign associations; compliance with domestic statutes; penalty for violation.—No foreign building and loan association shall be permitted to do business in this state unless the provisions of this Act are fully complied with and all contracts made by such foreign associations while in default shall be absolutely void. Any such association violating any of the provisions of this Act, or failing to comply with any of its provisions, shall be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, such fine to be recovered by an action in the name of the state of Texas, in any court of competent jurisdiction, and upon the collection thereof, the same shall be paid into the state treasury. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 1313x. Unauthorized associations; agency for; penalty.—It shall be unlawful for any person to act as agent for any building and loan association not authorized to do business in this state, or to solicit, sell, or dispose of any shares of any such unauthorized association; and any person or persons acting for any such unauthorized association, or in any manner aiding in the transaction of the business of such association in this state, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense, and in default of payment of such fine shall be imprisoned in the county jail, for a period not to exceed one year. All fines collected under the provisions of this section shall be paid into the state treasury. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 1313y. Repeal.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 36.]

19. Actions by and against associations.
20. Insolvency and receivers.
21. Consolidation.

1. Nature and status of associations in general.—A stock certificate in a savings and loan association was issued on condition that the holder of the certificate should have no claim or interest in the affairs or assets of the association, nor control over them, except the right to vote, in person or by proxy, at stockholders' meeting, and the right to collect $100 per share at the expiration of 6½ years, and that the holder's only liability should be for the payment of monthly or quarterly dues, under penalty of fines and forfeitures. Held to show the association is not a mutual benefit association. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 49 S. W. 160, 20 C. A. 111.

2. Membership.—In estimating the amount due from a deceased stockholder to a building and loan association he should be credited merely with the withdrawal value of his shares, and not with their estimated value. Hensel v. International Building & Loan Ass'n, 85 T. 215, 20 S. W. 116.

Where a savings and loan association is solvent, in the possession of its assets, and conducting its business as a going concern, a stockholder who is also a creditor may obtain a preference by attachment. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 49 S. W. 160, 20 C. A. 111.

One who buys the stock of a building association, pledged by a borrowing member as security for a loan, and assumes the obligations of the borrower, as a part of the price of land mortgaged to secure the loan, becomes a member of such association, when it accepts him as a substitute for the borrower, assents to the conveyance of the land, and allows him the rights and privileges of a stockholder, though the stock is not transferred on its books. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 56 S. W. 580, 23 C. A. 98.

3. Stock—Transfer of shares.—Where the agent of a building and loan association located in another state represented that the company was solvent, and thereby induced defendant to contract for a loan and to subscribe for shares, and in less than two months thereafter the association went into insolvency, defendant was not guilty of laches in not discovering the condition of the company, so as to preclude him from rescinding the loan contract and his subscription for fraud. Park v. Kribs, 60 S. W. 905, 24 C. A. 650.

Defendant contracted for shares in plaintiff building and loan association in order to procure a loan from plaintiff, and in less than two months thereafter the association became insolvent, and defendant claimed that plaintiff's agent fraudulently represented the company as solvent. There was no evidence of any intervening rights of third parties, or that defendant had participated in the transactions of the company. A receiver of the insolvent corporation brought an action to foreclose a mortgage securing defendant's loan. Held, that it was proper to charge that, if the jury should find that defendant was induced to contract for the loan and subscribe for shares by the fraudulent representations of plaintiff's agent, defendant was entitled to rescind the loan contract, and to an offset of the amounts he had paid on the shares. Id.

4. —— Maturity of shares.—Where a loan association induces a person to take stock and borrow money by a statement expressly guarantying that the shares of stock would be paid for at their face value within a specified time, the association is estopped from claiming that the contract was merely a subscription to stock in a mutual benefit society, and that it was not to be bound for the face value, on the maturity of the stock, unless it could pay all stockholders on a like basis. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 49 S. W. 160, 20 C. A. 111.

Where a certificate of stock in a building and loan association recites that it is issued and held subject to the by-laws, which make the stock mature when it equals its face value through the business of the company, a representation of the company's agent that the stock would mature in a certain time does not estop the company from denying its liability as for matured stock after such time, there being no fraud, accident, or mistake. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 530.

The power of the building association to mature its stock by collecting dues and earning profits from loans in accordance with its plan of organization is terminated by a voluntary sale of all its assets. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 56 S. W. 580, 23 C. A. 98.

A finding that plaintiff's stock in a building and loan association was worth $500 held erroneous, as not supported by the evidence. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 344.

5. —— Release or surrender of shares.—Plaintiff, a stockholder in a building and loan association, sued to recover the amount which he had paid in on his stock, pleading a by-law of the association permitting stockholders to withdraw after due notice filed, and to receive the amount actually paid in, etc. But there was a proviso in the by-law, which he did not set out, that at no time should more than one-third of the funds in the treasury be applied to the demands of withdrawing stockholders without the consent of the directors. Held that, even if the variance had not been material, and the by-law had been admissible, plaintiff could not have recovered, there being no proof that there were any funds in the treasury, nor that the directors consented to the application of funds to plaintiff's demand. Texas Homestead Building & Loan Ass'n v. Kerr (Sup.) 13 S. W. 1020.

A provision in the charter of a building and loan association, that "at no time shall more than one-half of the funds in the treasury be subject to the demands of withdrawing members," does not prevent a member who has given proper notice of his withdrawal from recovering judgment on claim for the amount paid in. Printers' Building & Loan Ass'n v. Paxton (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 389.

In an action against a building and loan association to recover the value of 60 shares of stock, it appeared that, after the stock was issued to plaintiff, he negotiated a loan from defendant, giving a mortgage on land, and transferring the stock as security; that, a short time after making the loan, he ceased paying assessments on the stock, but made several payments on the loan; that in a settlement subsequently made, after several months' correspondence, plaintiff signed an instrument reciting that he had received from the association "abstract of title, bond, trust deed, and release of same, having this day released my stock in said association, and settled all accounts with the same"; and that plaintiff received the papers named in the instrument, and the corporation retained the certificate of stock. Held, that the instrument was a release of plaintiff's stock to defendant. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Hamm (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 313.

6. —— Withdrawal of member and redemption of shares.—The by-laws of an association provided that any stockholder wishing to withdraw unpledged stock should give 30 days' written notice, when he should be entitled to the amount actually paid in, with such interest or profits as the directors should determine, deducting all dues and fines, and that, if the interest on any loan or any dues remained unpaid more than three months, the directors might compel payment of principal, interest, and fines by proceeding on the securities according to law. Held, that where the association proceeded under the latter clause to compel payment, the stockholder was entitled to have credit for the withdrawal value of his stock under the prior clause. International Building & Loan Ass'n v. Biering (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 1025.

7. Dues, fines, and assessments—Dues or payments on stock.—Cessation of business by a building and loan association releases its members from further payment of dues, as the association thereby renders the maturity of the stock impossible. Blakeley v. El Paso Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 292.

A member of a building and loan association cannot apply usurious interest paid upon a loan in liquidation of stock dues, so long as such interest does not exceed the amount of the principal. Heady v. Bexar Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 468.

The foreclosure and sale of the lien of a building and loan association on a member's stock for unpaid dues terminates the liability of the member for stock assessments. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Logan (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1088.

A loan company sent to its shareholders a circular letter stating that the stock could not be made to pay out at its fixed maturity, and, unless relieved by prompt assessments, the attempt to mature it at its face value would speedily result in bankruptcy, and that the stock contained provisions for such assessments as the board of managers deemed necessary, by which the stock could be matured at its fixed date, but such course would cause great hardship to shareholders, and the sentiment of the members, expressed by the 84,000 shares represented at the annual meeting, was that assessments should not be resorted to, but that some plan be devised which would afford the holders a safe and adequate return. The letter set out a plan submitted to the shareholders. Held, that such letter did not justify a shareholder in ceasing to pay dues and assessments, and entitle him to recover dues and assessments paid. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Oxford (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 1078.

8. —— Fines for nonpayment.—The association was not entitled to recover fines imposed after a member had availed himself of the withdrawal privilege. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 47 S. W. 71, 19 C. A. 52.

9. Officers and agents.—An agent of a building and loan association, who has, under the by-laws, no authority to make any contract for the company, other than to receive applications for membership and for loans, and forward the same to headquarters, cannot bind the company by unauthorized representations to an applicant for membership and for a loan, unless the company has knowledge of such representations and acts upon them. Guarantee Sav., Loan & Investment Co. v. Mitchell, 39 C. A. 205, 87 S. W. 184.

10. Powers, rights, and liabilities of associations in general.—Under Const. art. 16, § 16, providing that no corporation shall hereafter be created, renewed, or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, where a building and loan association loans an individual a certain amount, taking his note for such amount, and an additional amount equal to the interest on the loan for the time it is to run, the transaction is a discounting, within the meaning of the constitution. Anderson v. Cleburne Building & Loan Ass'n (App.) 16 S. W. 298.

The taking by a building and loan association of a member's note in excess of the amount loaned, no part of the loan being retained, is not a discount proceeding, within the constitutional provision prohibiting the creation of corporations with banking or discounting privileges. Sweeney v. El Paso Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 290, distinguishing Anderson v. Cleburne Building & Loan Ass'n (App.) 16 S. W. 298; Blakeley v. Same (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 292.

A charter of a building and loan association, authorizing it to aid its members in acquiring and improving land, empowers it to make contracts for the erection of homesteads. Heady v. Bexar Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 468.

11. Loans—In general.—Where a building association voluntarily sells its assets, in the interest of nonborrowing members, thus terminating its power to mature its stock, on which borrowing members had a right to rely, the latter are entitled to a rescission of their loan contracts, and an equitable adjustment of their accounts. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 56 S. W. 580, 23 C. A. 98.

12. —— Power to make and right to receive.—Where a building and loan association made a loan to one not a member by taking his note therefor, the transaction was a discounting, and in violation of a provision of its charter that it should not lend money to any person other than its own members. Anderson v. Cleburne Building & Loan Ass'n (App.) 16 S. W. 298.

13. —— Security in general.—Where a foreign loan and investment company engages in business in this state without obtaining the permit required of foreign corporations, it is nevertheless bound by its usury laws, although the usurious contract expressly provides for its performance in another state, where it would not be so. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67.

A foreign building and loan association, doing business in Texas under a permit from the state, by making a loan contract showing that both parties intended it should be performed in Texas, subjects the contract to the usury laws of Texas, though the note was made payable in the foreign state, where the contract was not usurious. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 47 S. W. 71, 19 C. A. 52.

A usurious building and loan note negotiated in Texas is governed by the laws of that state, though executed and performable in another state, according to the laws of which it would not be usurious. People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n v. Bessonette (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 52.

A foreign loan association, allowed by the laws of the state where it was organized to take any amount of interest on loans, obtained a permit to do business in Texas, and made a loan to a citizen of the state, secured on lands in Texas, and providing for interest which was usurious in Texas. The deed of trust did not stipulate, in terms, for any particular place of payment. The by-laws allowed payments to be made to a secretary of a local board in the state of Texas, but provided that he should not be deemed the agent of the corporation in receiving such payments. Held, that the contract was usurious, as governable by the laws of Texas. Southern Building & Loan Ass'n v. Atkinson, 50 S. W. 170, 20 C. A. 516.

14. —— Payment and satisfaction.—Where a building and loan association has permitted borrowing members to pay their debts before maturity in a certain manner, it will be estopped to refuse to settle with a member on the same basis who has acted on the faith of such course of dealing. Goggin v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1133.

A stockholder in a building and loan association cannot have payments on his stock applied in satisfaction of a loan, the stock not having matured. Sweeney v. El Paso Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 290; Blakeley v. Same, Id. 292.

Where a building association loaned money which was to be paid at the maturity of certain shares of its stock owned by and pledged to it by defendant, which stock was to be paid for in installments, and was to be credited with the earnings derived from the loan of the installments so paid, and said association subsequently changed its by-laws so as to authorize it to cease making assessments on stock of nonborrowing members, and fix a different time for the maturity of the debts of borrowing members, said association thereby rendered itself powerless to perform its contract with defendant, and defendant was entitled to be credited with the amount he had already paid in, and, having paid more than the original debt, he should be discharged. International Building & Loan Ass'n v. Braden (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 704.

In the absence of an agreement to the effect that a stockholder in a building and loan association may have his payments on stock applied to the extinguishment of his loan debt, he has no legal right to demand that such payments shall be so applied. Pioneer Building & Loan Ass'n v. Everheart, 44 S. W. 885, 18 C. A. 192.

An undisputed agreement between a borrowing stockholder and a building and loan association that stock payments should be applied to discharge the loan will be enforced. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Keller, 50 S. W. 183, 20 C. A. 616.

The charter and by-laws of a building and loan association provided that payments on stock constitute part of the loan fund, and that members holding a certain class of certificates were entitled to withdraw the amount paid to the loan fund, without notice to the association, the same as if it was matured stock. Held, that a borrower, having pledged such stock as collateral to a loan, and having given notice of his desire to pay the same and to avail himself of all his rights as a stockholder, was entitled to have payments thereon applied in payment of his debt. Id.

An agreement to make a given number of monthly payments in full discharge of a building association loan was evidenced by bonds secured by a deed of trust and assignment of a certificate of stock issued to the debtor, which styled a fixed part of each monthly total as payment of principal, and the balance as payment of interest, without reference to stock dues; and such parts were so entered in the debtor's pass book. The deed and certificate indicated that a stock payment was contemplated. Held, that the part of each monthly payment so referred to as principal was on account of the principal, and not on account of stock dues. Mathews v. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 604.

Where a trust deed given to a building and loan association to secure a loan on stock is not due by its terms, but the association, under a provision therein contained, elects to declare it due for default in payment of installments on the stock and interest and premiums, the debtor is entitled to credit for the actual value of his stock, regardless of whether the contract was usurious. Judgment 49 S. W. 632, 93 T. 1, reversed. Leary v. People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n, 51 S. W. 836, 93 T. 1.

A borrowing member of a building association, who is entitled to a rescission of his loan contract, and an equitable adjustment of his account, if chargeable with no losses, should be charged with the sum loaned, with legal interest to the date of the adjustment, and credited with all payments, calculated on the principle of partial payments. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 56 S. W. 580, 23 C. A. 98.

15. —— Forfeitures for nonpayment.—If stock of a member of a building and loan association is sold by the association for default in payment of interest, which is due by the terms of a usurious contract, but not legally collectible, the sale will pass no title, even to a bona fide purchaser. Jackson v. Cassidy, 68 T. 282, 4 S. W. 541.

The association retained a lien on the member's stock, with the right to sell it in case she made default in paying principal or interest. Claiming that default had been made, the association sold the stock, but afterwards credited the member on its books with an amount sufficient to reduce the interest to 12 per cent. per annum, the legal rate. Held, that the vice in the contract could not be cured in this way. Id.

16. Mortgages and liens—In general.—Plaintiff, holding certain shares in the defendant association, contracted a loan from it, and secured it by her note, a deed of trust, and the assignment of her shares. The stock certificate issued to plaintiff contained an agreement authorizing the withdrawal of such shares on certain conditions, and promising to pay, in such event, a sum equal to all installments paid, with interest at 10 per cent. thereon from the date of the several payments. Having fully complied therewith, plaintiff gave notice of such withdrawal, and requested that the sum due be applied in payment of such loan. It appeared that the amount due plaintiff exceeded the sum borrowed. Held, that plaintiff was entitled to a judgment canceling such note and deed of trust, though the business of such association may have resulted in a loss. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Pancoast, 43 S. W. 280, 17 C. A. 312.

Where a mortgage to a building association provided for 10 per cent. attorney's fees in case of legal proceeding, a borrower who sued to cancel his mortgage as paid was liable for attorney's fees where a small balance was found due the association. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 47 S. W. 71, 19 C. A. 52.

The certificate of shares in a savings and loan association provided that any suit on the certificate should be brought in the county in which the association had its main office. A deed of trust given by a borrowing stockholder on his lands in another state was to be canceled on the maturity of the stock. Held, that an action to cancel the deed as a cloud on the stockholder's title, and to restrain the sale of the lands under the power in the deed, was properly brought where the land was situated, especially since the courts of the state where the association was located had no jurisdiction to remove the cloud or enjoin the sale. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 49 S. W. 160, 20 C. A. 111.

The doctrine that cancellation is only to be granted on payment of the debt and legal interest is not applicable to a suit to cancel a building and loan mortgage and contract which is alleged by plaintiff not to represent the real contract, but to be a device to evade the usury laws. Walter v. Mutual Home Sav. Ass'n, 29 C. A. 379, 68 S. W. 536.

17. —— Foreclosure.—Under a building association's loan contract providing that if the trust deed securing the loan should be "foreclosed by action in court" an attorney's fee should be allowed, the fee is allowable on foreclosure under a petition in reconvention filed in a suit by the borrower to enjoin a sale under a power in the trust deed, where the injunction was asked on the untenable ground that the land was a homestead, though the association had proposed to sell under the power for a greater sum than was due. Building & Loan Ass'n v. Griffin, 39 S. W. 656, 90 T. 480.

Objections by defendant, sued by a building association to foreclose a mechanic's lien, to credits allowed him, and to the disposition made of his stock, must be pleaded. Bringhurst v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n, 47 S. W. 831, 19 C. A. 355.

In connection with a provision which authorizes the collection of the debt on default of a member by foreclosure of a trust deed, a by-law of a building association provided that, where a borrower failed to pay interest and assessments, the association might ascertain the amount due from him by crediting him with dues paid and the withdrawal value of his shares of stock. Another by-law provided that on such default the loan should mature, and a right to sue result. Held that, under the by-laws, on default of a loan secured by a mechanic's lien, the amount due was ascertained in the same way as on foreclosure of a deed of trust. Id.

Defendant was induced to contract for a loan and to subscribe for shares in a nonresident building and loan association through the fraudulent representations of the association's agent that the corporation was solvent. To secure the loan, defendant executed an installment bond which contained a provision for the payment of attorney's fees in case of suit, and a deed of trust on a house and lot, and assigned his shares of stock to the association. In less than two months thereafter the company went into insolvency, and its receiver brought an action to foreclose the deed of trust in order to wind up the affairs of the association. Held, that the receiver was not entitled to enforce the provision in the bond for attorney's fees, since the insolvency of the association caused a premature abandonment of the original contract, and the receiver must recover on an implied contract which entitled him only to the amount of the loan, with interest. Park v. Kribs, 60 S. W. 905, 24 C. A. 650.

18. Rights and liabilities as to persons not members or borrowers.—An owner of realty contracted for the construction of a building thereon, arranging with a building and loan association to furnish the money. When the contractor was entitled to pay for the work done he went to the architect, who furnished him an estimate addressed to the owners of the land, and which was taken by the contractor to the building and loan association, which gave its check payable to the owners of the land, who indorsed it to the contractor. In excavating for the building the contractor removed earth supporting the foundation of an adjacent building so that it fell. Held, that the building and loan association was not liable. Henry v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 248.

19. Actions by and against associations.—See, also, notes under Title 37.

Where a loan by a building and loan association is ultra vires, in that it is at an excessive rate, and also is a discounting in violation of a constitutional provision, the borrower is not estopped to set up the plea of ultra vires. Anderson v. Cleburne Building & Loan Ass'n (App.) 16 S. W. 298.

A member of a building association alleged that he had paid on his stock a certain amount, and given the notice of withdrawal required by the by-laws; that the directors had failed to ascertain the withdrawal value of his stock; and that, under the by-laws, he was at least entitled to all he had paid; and prayed judgment therefor and general relief. Defendant answered, setting up its by-laws, and that it had thereunder ascertained the value of the stock at a certain sum. Held, that the court properly allowed plaintiff such admitted value, though more than that alleged by him. International Building & Loan Ass'n v. Biering, 86 T. 476, 26 S. W. 39.

Where the by-laws of a loan association provided that the association should have 90 days after the filing of claims and their approval to pay matured shares of stock, the act of the association, after the maturity of plaintiff's shares, in offering him a specified sum, which was less than their face value, in full settlement, on condition that the shares should be surrendered and a receipt in full given, estops the association from setting up tho prematurity of an action brought before the expiration of the 90 days,—especially where it continues to repudiate its contract. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 49 S. W. 160, 20 C. A. 111.

20. Insolvency and receivers.—See, also, notes under Arts. 2128–2155.

A borrowing member of a building and loan association is not entitled, on the insolvency of the association, to have the amount of his dues paid in applied in payment of his debt, but must share pro rata with the other members. Price v. Kendall, 14 C. A. 26, 36 S. W. 810.

A provision in the contract between a building and loan association and a borrowing member that, if the latter desires to have his shares of stock redeemed in the repayment of his debt, they are to be taken at a cash valuation not less than the amount of dues paid thereon, with 5 per cent. interest, does not entitle the borrowing member, on the insolvency of the association, to have applied, in an action by the receiver appointed for the association to recover the debt, the amount of dues paid and interest in part payment, the balance of the debt not being tendered. Id.

21. Consolidation.—Where a mutual building and loan association sold its assets without a delinquent shareholder's consent, and the shareholder rescinded his contract, he was entitled to credit for the value of his stock at the time the assets were sold, and not at the time he made default, since his default did not terminate his membership, and hence could not defeat his right to share in the subsequent profits of the association. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 344.

A shareholder in a building and loan association agreed to pay one dollar per month on each share until it matured, and monthly payments of one-half of 1 per cent. of the amount of his note as interest, and one-third of 1 per cent. into a sinking fund. The association, without consent of its shareholders, sold its assets to another company. Held, that an adjustment of the equities of the parties by charging the shareholder with the sum actually received from the association, with legal interest, and by crediting him with the sums paid as interest and into the sinking fund as part payments on the principal, and with the value of his stock, was proper. Id.

Where a building and loan association, without the consent of its stockholders, sold its assets to another company, and by the terms of the contract and the by-laws of the association the delinquency of a stockholder did not render shares absolutely forfeitable, the fact that a borrowing stockholder was delinquent did not deprive him of the right to rescind his contract. Id.

Where plaintiff executed a deed of trust to a building and loan association to take up a note for the purchase price of the lot, and to pay for material which had been used in erecting a building on it, and the association, without the consent of its stockholders, assigned its assets to defendant, and ceased business, the defendant was entitled, on plaintiff's rescinding his contract, to be subrogated to the vendor's lien, and to a foreclosure of the lien. CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

FOREIGN CORPORATIONS

Art.
1314. Permit to do business, etc., in state must be obtained and how; purposes; foreign corporations.
1315. Permit to do business, affidavit as condition of issuance; requisites of.
1316. Secretary of state to require proof in what case.
1317. Rights under permit.
1317a. Right to purchase, hold, sell, mortgage, etc., real and personal estate; provisos as to alienation.
1318. No such corporation can maintain any suit, etc.
1319. Corporations exempted from provisions hereof.
1320. Permit to extend for period of ten years.
1321. Evidence.

Article 1314. Permit to do business, etc., in state must be obtained, and how; limitation as to purposes; showing as to stock by foreign corporations.—Hereafter, any corporation for pecuniary profit, except as hereinafter provided, organized or created under the laws of any other state, or of any territory of the United States, or of any municipality of such state or territory, or of any foreign government, sovereignty or municipality, desiring to transact business in this state, or solicit business in this state, or establish a general or special office in this state, shall be, and the same is hereby, required to file with the secretary of state a duly certified copy of its articles of incorporation; and, thereupon, the secretary of state shall issue to such corporation a permit to transact business in this state. [Acts 1897, p. 167.]

If such corporation is created for more than one purpose, the permit may be limited to one or more purposes. [Id.]

Provided, that foreign corporations obtaining permits to do business in this state shall show to the satisfaction of the secretary of state that at least one hundred thousand dollars, in cash, of their authorized capital stock has been paid in, or that fifty per cent of their authorized capital stock has been subscribed, and at least ten per cent of the authorized capital has been paid in, before such permit is issued. [Acts 1901, pp. 18–19.]

Cited, State Bank of Chicago v. Holland, 103 T. 266, 126 S. W. 564; Jackson Woolen Mills v. Moore (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 642.

Constitutionality.—The act of April, 1887 (20th Leg. p. 116 et seq.), relating to foreign corporations was held unconstitutional Land Co. v. Worsham, 76 T. 556, 13 S. W. 384.

The amended article was not violative of the constitution of the United States. Western Paper Bag Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 364.

Enforcing against a foreign corporation already doing a local business in the state of a statute exacting conditions as prerequisite to doing such business held not an abridgment of privileges and immunities of a citizen of another state. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 194.

A foreign corporation, not empowered to do so by the federal government, has no authority to transact a domestic business in a state, unless authority be granted by the state, which can impose any conditions as a prerequisite to permission to do such business, and the corporation cannot question the reasonableness or validity of the law prescribing the conditions, and hence the state could exact a fee; the sum depending on the amount of the capital stock, the major portion of which was outside of the state. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 194, judgment reversed (Sup.) 126 S. W. 1197.

Power of state to regulate.—It is not within the judicial province of the courts of a state to supervise and direct the internal affairs and management of a foreign corporation. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lunday, 51 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.

A state has the absolute right to exclude or permit a foreign corporation from doing business within its limits, and may impose such conditions as it may see fit in granting permission. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Shannon, 52 C. A. 634, 115 S. W. 361.

Extent of state's power to exact license fee from foreign corporations, stated. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 194.

Act Cong. July 24, 1866, c. 230, 14 Stat. 221, being an act to aid in the construction of telegraph lines and to secure to the government the use of them for postal and other purposes, provides that any telegraph company organized under the laws of any state shall have the right to construct and operate telegraph lines over the public domain and along any military or post roads of the United States, that government messages shall have priority over the lines of telegraph companies accepting the benefits of the act, and prohibits the transfer of the rights granted, and provides that the government may within a specified time purchase the lines. Held, that the act is not equivalent to a federal charter to transact a general local business within a state, but deals with the right to use public property, and does not render companies accepting its benefits agencies of the federal government, whereby the state would be powerless to prescribe conditions upon their right to do a local business. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 194, judgment reversed (Sup.) 126 S. W. 1197.

A state may prescribe the conditions on which alone a foreign corporation can do business in the state. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. E. Van Winkle Gin & Machine Works (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 415.

Right to sue and defend without permit.—See, also, notes under Art. 1318.

This article does not forbid a foreign corporation from suing in the state courts merely because it is a foreign corporation, as the prohibition applies only to those desiring to transact or solicit business or establish a general or special office in the state. Geiser Mfg. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 610.

May hold property, when.—A foreign corporation, empowered by its charter to acquire and hold real and personal property, may acquire and hold such property in Texas which it has purchased outside the state, though the corporation has no permit to do business in the state, under this article and Art. 1318. Lakeview Land Co. v. San Antonio Traction Co., 95 T. 252, 66 S. W. 766.

Interstate transactions.—The sale of goods by a corporation in a state other than that of its domicile, and the shipment of the goods to such state, is interstate commerce; and a law of the latter state forbidding the transaction of business in such state or the maintaining of suits therein, without filing its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state and paying a fee for a permit, is void as a regulation of interstate commerce. Bateman v. Western Star Milling Co., 1 C. A. 90, 20 S. W. 931; Lyons-Thomas Hardware Co. v. Reading Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 300; Miller v. Goodman, 91 T. 41, 40 S. W. 718; Lasater v. Purcell Mill & Elevator Co., 22 C. A. 33, 54 S. W. 425; Gale Mfg. Co. v. Finkelstein, 22 C. A. 241, 54 S. W. 619; Pasteur Vaccine Co. v. Burkey, 22 C. A. 232, 54 S. W. 804; De Witt v. Berger Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 335; Barnhard Bros. & Spindler v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 378; French, Finch & Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1034; Erwin v. E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

Such law would not apply where the goods were sold by the corporation at its place of business, where it did not appear that the parties contemplated the shipping of the goods into Texas. Reed v. Walker, 21 S. W. 687, 2 C. A. 92.

Corporations can sue on interstate shipment because this is interstate commerce. Railway Co. v. Davis, 93 T. 378, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562.

Where a foreign corporation makes contract for labor and material for construction of a building in Texas and sends laborers and employés to perform the contract, it is not engaged in interstate commerce and must get a permit to do business in the state. St. Louis E. M. Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 512.

This article is not applicable, where the business involved is interstate business. Geiser Mfg. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 610.

The construction of a glass factory by a foreign corporation did not constitute interstate commerce, where the necessary labor and part of the material was obtained within the state. Ft. Worth Glass & Sand Co. v. S. R. Smythe Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1136.

"Transaction of business" within state.—This article does not apply to a corporation which ships goods to a resident of this state on an unsolicited order. Zuberbier v. Harris (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 403.

The purchase of land in Texas by a corporation outside of the state does not constitute the transaction of business within the state. Corporations created in other states can purchase and hold property in Texas if authorized by their charters or laws under which they are created. Lakeview Land Co. v. San Antonio Traction Co., 95 T. 252, 66 S. W. 768.

Ownership and lease of land by foreign corporation and assignment of rent claim held not doing business within the state, so as to require it to procure a permit. Wilson v. Peace, 38 C. A. 234, 85 S. W. 31.

Unless a foreign corporation is transacting or soliciting business in this state or has an office here, it is not required to have a permit to do business to enable it to sue in our courts. King v. Monitor Drill Co., 42 C. A. 288, 92 S. W. 1047, 1048.

Acceptance by foreign corporation of note payable in this state held not doing business within the state, within statute relating to permits therefor. Norton v. W. H. Thomas & Sons Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 711.

The construction of a glass factory, including the furnishing of material and labor, constituted the transaction of business within this article though the contract was made outside the state. Ft. Worth Glass & Sand Co. v. S. R. Smythe Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1136.

The phrase "transacting business," in this article and art. 1318, requiring foreign corporations desiring to transact business in the state to secure a permit, is not necessarily synonymous with doing business, as to do business in the state imports a carrying on of business of the corporation for the purpose of its organization, while the transaction of business rather imports the idea of isolated transactions. To "do business" is to carry on any particular occupation or employment for a livelihood or gain, as agriculture, trade, mechanic arts, or profession (quoting 3 Words and Phrases, p. 2155). S. R. Smythe Co. v. Ft. Worth Glass & Sand Co., 105 T. 8, 142 S. W. 1157.

What constitutes "transacting business," within this article and art. 1318, determined. Id.

Under this article and art. 1318, providing that no foreign corporation not securing such permit may maintain any action in the state, the construction of gas producers, including the furnishing of material and labor, constituted the "transaction of business" within the statute, although the contract was made outside of the state. Id.

A foreign corporation engaged in the manufacture of powder sold powder to a resident, under a contract assigning to the resident trade territory and fixing the price. The corporation shipped, direct from its powder mills, powder to a construction company in Texas. A small part of the powder used by the construction company was shipped from a point in the state. The corporation collected the money from the resident, and never presented any bill to the construction company. Thereafter the resident obtained a note from the construction company for the price and transferred it to the corporation. Held, that the corporation was not engaged in business in the state within this article and art. 1318, requiring a foreign corporation to obtain a permit to transact business in the state. Erwin v. E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

"Corporation for pecuniary profit."—A foreign corporation organized for benevolent, religious, or philanthropic purposes, required by its charter to set apart for such purposes its entire receipts, so that no member or employé shall receive any pecuniary profit except reasonable compensation for services in effecting the purposes of the corporation, etc., is not a corporation for pecuniary profit within this article and art. 1318, requiring foreign corporations for pecuniary profit to obtain a permit to transact business in the state, and need not obtain such a permit as a condition precedent to its right to sue. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

May be limited to one or more purposes.—Under this article, where a corporation for pecuniary profit, chartered for more than one purpose, applies for permits to do business in the state, the secretary of state may limit the business to one or more purposes; and thus the statute recognized the right of a corporation to operate for more than one purpose, though a corporation created for one purpose may not be used to promote a totally different purpose. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

Foreign corporation subject to laws.—A foreign corporation permitted to do business in the state must conduct itself in accordance with its laws. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80, judgment reversed (Sup.) 134 S. W. 321.

Foreign corporation unlawfully transacting business.—A note given to a foreign corporation, which has not complied with this article and art. 1318, is not void and is enforceable in the hands of an innocent indorsee for value before maturity. State Bank of Chicago v. Holland, 103 T. 266, 126 S. W. 564.

Business transactions by a foreign corporation, which has not complied with the Texas statutes, so as to entitle it to do business within the state, are not void, but only unenforceable in the courts of the state, so that the proper judgment in an action predicated on such transaction is one of dismissal, leaving the corporation to resort to the courts of other jurisdictions. New State Land Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 253.

—— Right of assignee.—One who obtained from a foreign corporation, which had not complied with the Texas statutes for doing business within the state, so as to authorize it to sue, an assignment pendente lite of the cause of action sued on occupied no better position than the corporation, and could not maintain the action. New State Land Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 253.

—— Cancellation of permit no defense to notes.—Cancellation of a foreign corporation's permit to do business within the state held no defense to a suit on notes given for the price of a part of its assets sold in liquidation of its business. Wren v. Stanton Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1145.

Art. 1315. Permit to do business, affidavit as condition of issuance; requisites of.—As a condition precedent to the issuance by the secretary of state of a permit to any foreign corporation, authorizing it to do business in this state, the president, vice-president, secretary, or treasurer, or two of the directors of such corporation, shall make and subscribe an affidavit in writing stating that such corporation is not a trust or organization in restraint of trade in violation of the laws of this state, has not, within twelve months next preceding the making of such affidavit, become or been a party to any trust agreement of any kind or character whatsoever, which would constitute a violation of any anti-trust law of the state existing at the date of such affidavit, and has not, within that time, entered into, or been in anywise a party to, any combination in restraint of trade, within the United States of America, and that no officer of such corporation has, within the knowledge of affiant, within twelve months next preceding the date of such affidavit, made, on behalf of such corporation or for its benefit, any such contract, or entered into, or become a party to, any such combination in restraint of trade. Such affidavit in writing shall be personally subscribed and sworn to by such affiant or affiants before some officer who is by law duly authorized to administer oaths, and the jurat of such officer shall be attested by his official signature and seal of office; and such affidavit in writing so attested shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state before the issuance of any such permit. [Acts 1909, S. S. pp. 267–8. Id.]

Cited, Judson v. Bell (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 169.

Art. 1316. Secretary of state to require proof in what case.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state to require satisfactory proof as to the amount of capital actually invested in this state before issuing any permit to any foreign building and loan company to do business in this state. [Id. p. 267.]

Art. 1317. Rights under permit.—Such corporation, on obtaining such permit, shall have and enjoy all the rights and privileges conferred by the laws of this state on corporations organized under the laws of this state. [Acts 1897, p. 167.]

Art. 1317a. Right to purchase, hold, sell, mortgage, etc., real and personal estate; provisos as to alienation.—Such corporations, under such permits, shall be authorized and empowered to hold, purchase, sell, mortgage or otherwise convey such real estate and personal estate as the purposes of such corporation may require, and also, to take, hold and convey such other property, real, personal or mixed, as may be requisite for such corporation to acquire, in order to obtain or secure the payment of any indebtedness or liability due, or which may become due, or belonging to, the corporation; provided, that, if such corporation so obtaining a permit to do business in this state, shall acquire any real estate under the powers herein conferred, it shall alienate all real property so acquired by it not necessary for the purposes of such corporation, within fifteen years from the time of acquisition, and provided, further, that such corporation shall alienate all real estate acquired by it for the purposes of such corporation, within fifteen years from the expiration of the time for which the permit is issued, or, if such permit be renewed, or such corporation be otherwise authorized to carry on business in this state, then such corporation shall alienate such real estate within fifteen years after the expiration of the time for which such permit is extended, or it is so authorized to carry on business in this state; and provided, further, that, if such corporation shall cease to carry on business in this state, that it shall alienate all such real estate so acquired by it, within fifteen years after the time it shall so cease to carry on business in this state. [Id.]

Rights under permit.—By this law foreign corporations have and enjoy all the privileges which are conferred upon domestic corporations organized under the laws of this state, and by complying with its terms are made equal to domestic corporations. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Telegraph & Telephone Co., 93 T. 313, 55 S. W. 119, 49 L. R. A. 459, 77 Am. St. Rep. 884; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Telegraph & Telephone Co., 25 C. A. 488, 61 S. W. 407.

This article is not intended to fix the domicile of a foreign corporation in this state. It only places such corporation on the same footing as a domestic corporation in the transaction of its business. The venue of suits against foreign corporations is fixed by article 1830, subd. 28. Coco-Cola Co. v. Allison, 52 C. A. 54, 113 S. W. 309.

—— Subject to police power.—Grant of permit to foreign corporation to do business does not absolve it from responsibility to the police power. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 19 C. A. 1, 44 S. W. 936.

Contracts will not be enforced, when.—Enforcement of contracts of a foreign corporation will not be permitted, when the exercise of powers of such corporation are prejudicial to the state's interest or policy. Chapman v. Hallwood Cash Register Co., 32 C. A. 76, 73 S. W. 969.

Art. 1318. [746] No such corporation can maintain any suit, unless.—No such corporation can maintain any suit or action, either legal or equitable, in any of the courts of this state upon any demand, whether arising out of contract or tort, unless at the time such contract was made, or tort committed, the corporation had filed its articles of incorporation under the provisions of this chapter in the office of the secretary of state for the purpose of procuring its permit. [Id.]

Cited, State Bank of Chicago v. Holland, 103 T. 266, 126 S. W. 564; Swearingen v. Myers (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 664.

Necessity of compliance with statute.—See, also, notes under Art. 1314.

A foreign corporation which puts its manufactured products into the hands of agents for sale on commission may sue in this state for a conversion of such property, without the necessity of obtaining a permit to do business. Allen v. Tyson-Jones Buggy Co., 91 T. 22, 40 S. W. 393.

A foreign corporation may maintain an action on an account in Texas, where the contract on which the action is based was made in the home state of the corporation. Brin v. Wachusetts Shirt Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 295.

A foreign corporation can maintain a suit for property it owns in this state that did not grow out of the business in which it was engaged in this state without proving that it had a permit to do business. Mansur & Tebbetts Implement Co. v. Beer, 19 C. A. 311, 45 S. W. 972.

But where such corporation drives cattle from a foreign country (Mexico) into Texas and ships from one point to another within the state, the transaction relates to interstate commerce within the act of congress of February 4, 1887, and it can maintain an action for breach of contract although it could not maintain an action relating to domestic commerce on account of not having complied with the provisions of this article. Railroad Co. v. Davis, 93 T. 378, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562.

A foreign corporation doing business in this state is not prohibited from bringing suit on a demand arising out of an interstate contract though at the time such contract was made or tort committed it had not filed its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 93 T. 378, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 564.

Where a corporation doing business in another state buys an obligation of indebtedness and comes into the state to adjust and collect its demand, it does not violate any law which places it out of the pale of that comity, which in the absence of a statute permits a foreign corporation to sue in the courts of this state. Security Co. v. Panhandle Nat. Bank, 93 T. 575, 57 S. W. 24.

A statute held not to prohibit a foreign corporation from maintaining, as trustee under a will, an action of trespass to try title. Eskridge v. Louisville Trust Co., 29 C. A. 571, 69 S. W. 987.

A foreign corporation may sue on a note given for machinery sold, where the transaction was one of interstate commerce, without having a permit to do business in the state. Lane & Bodley Co. v. City Electric Light & Waterworks Co., 31 C. A. 449, 72 S. W. 425.

A foreign corporation held entitled to sue for the foreclosure of a mortgage under which it was trustee, though the corporation had not been granted permission to do business in the state. Commercial Telephone Co. v. Territorial Bank & Trust Co., 38 C. A. 192, 86 S. W. 66.

A trust company in Missouri held entitled to sue in Texas to foreclose a mortgage, etc., without taking out a permit to do business there. Western Supply & Mfg. Co. v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 41 C. A. 478, 92 S. W. 986.

This chapter does not prevent suits for the enforcement or protection of lawfully acquired property rights. Kingman Texas Implement Co. v. Borders (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 614.

Pleading and proof as to compliance with statute.—In a suit by a foreign corporation it need not allege that it has complied with article 1314. The allegation and proof must be made by the defendant. Miller v. Goodman, 15 C. A. 244, 40 S. W. 743.

Article 1314 and this article, providing that no such corporation may sue in the courts of the state without having obtained the permit, make the permit a condition precedent to the right of a foreign corporation for pecuniary profit to sue, so that it must allege and prove that it had such permit when the cause of action arose. Taber v. Interstate B. & L. Ass'n, 91 T. 92, 40 S. W. 954; Southern Building & Loan Ass'n v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 320; Delaware Ins. Co. v. Security Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 918; Peters v. Anheuser-Busch Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 516; St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 512; Turner v. Natl. Cotton Oil Co., 50 C. A. 468, 109 S. W. 1114; City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860; Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. E. Van Winkle Gin & Machine Works (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 415.

This article only applies to foreign corporations that are doing business in this state, and when there is nothing in a petition filed by a foreign corporation from which it can be inferred that it is engaged in business in this state, or that the transaction out of which the cause of action arose took place here, it need not show that the plaintiff has a permit to do business in this state. Brin v. Wachusetts Shirt Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 295; King v. Monitor Drill Co., 42 C. A. 288, 92 S. W. 1047; Brown v. Guarantee Savings, Loan & Investment Co., 46 C. A. 295, 102 S. W. 138; New State Land Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 253; Adams v. Gray & Dudley Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 650; Jackson Woolen Mills v. Moore (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 642.

A foreign corporation which has a special office in this state and an agent but which has not filed its charter with the secretary of state and taken out a license to do business in this state, cannot maintain an action in this state for alleged damages to its cattle. Nor can an assignee of the claim for damages sued thereon. Railroad v. Davis, 93 T. 378, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562.

A foreign corporation must plead and prove that it has obtained a permit (to do business in the state) to entitle it to a judgment in the courts of this state. There are exceptions to this rule. One is that when the corporation is engaged in interstate commerce, and another where the corporation is in the employ of the general government. A further exception is made by our statute in that it is stipulated that its provisions are not to apply to railroad corporations. If for any reason a foreign corporation suing as plaintiff is excepted from the statutory rule, it should set out the facts showing that it comes within one of the exceptions. Chapman v. Hallwood Cash Register Co., 32 C. A. 76, 73 S. W. 969, 970.

In an action by a foreign corporation, petition held to show that plaintiff was engaged in interstate commerce. French, Finch & Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1034.

A foreign corporation suing for goods sold in the state of Texas need not allege or prove a permit to do business there. Heisig Rice Co. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 45 C. A. 383, 100 S. W. 959.

Petition of a foreign corporation held not objectionable for failure to show its capacity to sue in Texas. Gulf & Interstate Ry. Co. v. Southwestern Coal Selling Co. (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 64.

Mode of objection to petition.—The question whether a foreign corporation has alleged and proved that it had a permit to do business in the state cannot be raised for the first time in the appellate court. Mansur & Tebbetts Implement Co. v. Beer, 19 C. A. 311, 45 S. W. 972.

In an action by a foreign corporation, where the petition does not show that the corporation is doing business in the state in violation of law, that defense cannot be raised by exception, but must be pleaded. Panhandle Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Kellogg Switch-Board & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 963.

An objection that plaintiff, a foreign corporation could not sue because it had not taken out a permit to do business in Texas, could not be raised by an assignment of error, where there was no statement of facts, and plaintiff's petition failed to disclose affirmatively that plaintiff was doing business in the state without having taken out a permit, and plaintiff might have established its case in such a manner as to be unaffected by the statute regulating foreign corporations. Pratt v. Interstate Savings & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 921.

Proper judgment is dismissal.—Where a foreign corporation sued in the state, though it was not entitled to do so, because it had not secured the permit to do business required by Art. 1314 and this article, the judgment should have been one dismissing the suit, and a judgment that plaintiff take nothing by the suit was erroneous. S. R. Smythe Co. v. Ft. Worth Glass & Sand Co., 105 T. 8, 142 S. W. 1157.

Business transactions by a foreign corporation, which has not complied with the Texas statutes, so as to entitle it to do business within the state, are not void, but only unenforceable in the courts of the state, so that the proper judgment in an action predicated on such transaction is one of dismissal, leaving the corporation to resort to the courts of other jurisdictions. New State Land Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 253.

Actions by or against—Jurisdiction.—The courts of the state have jurisdiction of a cause of action in favor of a nonresident plaintiff against a corporation doing business in the state. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Shaw, 33 C. A. 395, 77 S. W. 433.

A Texas court of equity has jurisdiction of a suit against a foreign corporation, domiciled in another state, to determine whether an insurance policy is in force or has been legally forfeited. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lunday, 51 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.

The court held to acquire jurisdiction of an action against a foreign corporation by reason of impounding the money and property of the corporation in the hands of a domestic corporation summoned as garnishee. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

"Interstate Commerce."—See notes under Art. 1314.

Rights of assignee.—See notes under Art. 1314.

Art. 1319. [747] Corporations exempted from provisions hereof.—The provisions of this chapter shall not apply to corporations created for the purpose of constructing, building, operating or maintaining any railway, or to such corporations as are required by law to procure certificates of authority to do business from the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id.]

Art. 1320. [748] Permit to extend for period of ten years.—No permit shall be issued for a longer period than ten years from the date of filing such articles of incorporation in the office of the secretary of state. [Id.]

Art. 1321. [749] Evidence.—Either the original permit or certified copies thereof by the secretary of state shall be evidence of the compliance on the part of any corporation with the terms of this chapter. A certificate of the secretary of state to the effect that the corporation named therein has failed to file in his office its articles of incorporation shall be evidence that such corporation has in no particular complied with the requirements of this chapter. [Id.]

Certified copies showing revocation.—Certified copies of a judgment and of judgments and orders on appeal therefrom, showing the revocation of a foreign corporation's permit to do business in the state and affirmance thereof, etc., held admissible, under a general denial, raising the issue of plaintiff's right to do business in the state at the time of the execution of the instruments sued on. Turner v. National Cotton Oil Co., 50 C. A. 468, 109 S. W. 1112.

Receipt for franchise tax.—The existence of a receipt for a franchise tax held to create no presumption that a foreign corporation has complied with the laws of the state and obtained a permit to do business therein. Turner v. National Cotton Oil Co., 50 C. A. 468, 109 S. W. 1112.

Certificate of secretary of state.—The certificate of the secretary of state declaring that the right of a foreign corporation to do business in the state has been forfeited, is no evidence of the forfeiture. St. Louis E. M. Fireproofing Co. v. Bellharz (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 512.

COTTON—BALING OF

Art.
1322. Baling of cotton regulated; penalty.
1323. Person, firm, etc., receiving for storage, transportation, etc., cotton not baled as required, liable for injuries to employé; duty of inspection.
1324. Duty of commissioner of labor.
1324a. Ginners to write or stamp weight of bagging and ties on bale, etc.; violation; misdemeanor.
1324b. Compressors to write or stamp words and figures prescribed by preceding article, when defaced or hidden; violation; misdemeanor.
1324c. Separate offenses.
1324d. Greater deduction for tare unlawful.
1324e. Violation of preceding article; misdemeanor.
1324f. Separate offenses.

Article 1322. Baling of cotton regulated; penalty.—That every person, firm, corporation or association of persons, owning or operating a compress in this state, and their agents and employés, are hereby required, in compressing, recompressing, baling or rebaling cotton bales, to so bind and tie every bale of cotton by them compressed, recompressed, baled or rebaled, that no such bale shall be delivered to any railroad company, or other common carrier, by such person, firm, corporation or association of persons, their agents or employés, unless such bale of cotton shall be free from all or any dangerously exposed ends of bands or buckles, or any dangerously exposed or protruding part of the ties, bands, buckles or splices used in tying or binding such bale of cotton. And any such person, firm, corporation or association of persons, who shall fail to bind or tie any bale of cotton by them compressed, recompressed, baled or rebaled, in the manner above provided, and shall deliver, or cause to be delivered, any such bale of cotton, to any railroad company, or other common carrier, such person, firm, corporation or association of persons, shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas the sum of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, which may be recovered in a civil suit brought in the name of the state of Texas in a court of competent jurisdiction. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S. p. 118, sec. 1.]

See annotations in Title 131.

Art. 1323. Person, firm, etc., receiving for storage, transportation, etc., cotton not baled as required, liable for injuries to employé; duty of inspection.—Any person, firm, corporation or association of persons, receiving for storage, loading for transportation, or transporting, any such compressed bale or bales of cotton, in this state, containing any dangerously exposed ends of bands or buckles, or any dangerously protruding part or parts of the ties, bands, buckles or splices used in tying or binding such bale or bales of cotton, shall be liable in damages for injury to any person in the employ of such person, firm, corporation or association of persons, occasioned by reason of such dangerously exposed ends of bands or buckles, or any dangerously exposed or protruding part or parts of the ties, bands, buckles or splices used in tying or binding such bale or bales of cotton, while in the discharge of the duties of such employment. The duty of inspection of such bales of cotton shall be on the employer and not on the employé. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 1324. Duty of commissioner of labor.—It shall be especially the duty of the commissioner of labor and his deputies to see that the provisions of articles 1322 and 1323 hereof are observed and enforced; and, in pursuance thereof, he shall obtain and collect evidence of all violations of said provisions upon the part of persons, firms, corporations and associations of persons engaged in the business of compressing cotton, who shall fail to comply with the said provisions. The commissioner of labor shall file annual statements with the governor, showing in detail all expenses incurred by him in connection with his duties under this act. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1324a. Ginners to write or stamp weight of bagging and ties on bale, etc.; violation; misdemeanor.—That the owners, lessees, operators or receivers of all cotton gins, in this state, shall stamp or write, upon each and every bale of cotton ginned by them, in plain figures, the weight of the bagging and ties in which the cotton is wrapped, said figures to be written or stamped with indelible ink, and shall be not less than four inches in height and three inches in width, and shall be preceded by the word, "tare," written or stamped upon the bale with indelible ink, the letters composing said word to be not less than four inches in height and three inches in width. Any person wilfully violating the provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten, nor more than one hundred dollars. [Acts 1911, p. 47, sec. 1.]

Art. 1324b. Compressors to write or stamp words and figures prescribed by preceding article, when defaced or hidden; violation; misdemeanor.—That the owners, lessees, operators or receivers of all cotton compresses in this state, shall write or stamp upon each and every bale of cotton compressed by them, the word and figures placed upon such bale or bales of cotton by the ginner ginning the same, in compliance with section 1 of this Act [Art. 1324a], in the same manner as provided for ginners in said section 1, should such word and figures be defaced or hidden during the process of compression. Any person wilfully violating the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten ($10.00) dollars, nor more than one hundred ($100.00) dollars. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1324c. Separate offenses.—Each bale of cotton ginned and each bale of cotton compressed without having placed thereon the word and figures as provided in sections 1 and 2 [Arts. 1324a, 1324b], respectively, of this Act, shall constitute a separate offense. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1324d. Greater deduction for tare unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, cotton exchange or board of trade, to make a greater deduction for tare, either from the gross weight of any bale of cotton or the price of same than is shown by the figures placed upon the bale in compliance with section 1 of this Act [Art. 1324a]. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1324e. Violation of preceding article; misdemeanor.—Any person, firm, corporation, cotton exchange, or board of trade, or any agent of any person, firm, corporation, cotton exchange, or board of trade who violates the provisions of section 4 of this Act [Art. 1324d], shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine, of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1324f. Separate offenses.—Each bale of cotton from which a greater deduction for tare is made, than is shown by the figures written or stamped upon same, shall constitute a separate offense. [Id. sec. 6.]

TITLE 27

COUNTER CLAIM

25. Certiorari to justice's court.

1. In general.—Reconvention, see Egery v. Power, 5 T. 501; Walcott v. Hendrick, 6 T. 406; Alford's Adm'rs v. Cochrane, 7 T. 485; Hammonds v. Belcher, 10 T. 271; Castro v. Gentiley, 11 T. 28; Carlin v. Hudson, 12 T. 202, 62 Am. Dec. 521; Sterrett v. Houston, 14 T. 153; Castro v. Whitlock, 15 T. 437; Oldham v. Erhart, 18 T. 147; Brady v. Price, 19 T. 285; Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 358; Slaughter v. Hailey, 21 T. 537; North v. Swing, 24 T. 193; Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 245; Beckham v. Hunter, 37 T. 551; Coleman v. Bunce, 37 T. 171; Avery v. Stewart, 60 T. 154; Scalf v. Tompkins, 61 T. 476; De La Vega v. League, 64 T. 205; Schwartz v. Burton, 1 App. C. C. § 1216; Howard v. Moore, 1 App. C. C. § 225.

Parties are not compelled to plead in reconvention or set-off; and may, where there are mutual judgments, maintain an action to set off one against the other. Wright v. Treadwell, 14 T. 255.

Insolvency does not authorize the pleading of one tort in offset to another. Smith v. Bates (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1044.

A guarantor held not entitled to assert his rights to subrogation in reconvention or in defense to an action to cancel a trust deed for his fraud. Cleveland v. Carr (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 406.

Defendant held to have no right of set-off in an action on notes given for the price of land. Pires v. Snodgrass, 91 T. 105, 41 S. W. 68.

Defendant in trespass to try title can file plea of reconvention for recovery of money paid plaintiff for sale of land before he had any title to it. Stacy v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 759.

In an action on an irrigating contract, held, on the evidence, that excessive damages were allowed a defendant on his counter claim. Old River Rice Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 154.

2. Estoppel or waiver.—Purchaser of horse may set off damages for fraud after he has paid part of purchase price with knowledge of the fraud. Mills v. Johnson, 22 S. W. 530, 3 C. A. 359.

Where a note was discharged by crediting an open account of the maker, holder could not thereafter insist that the account was not a proper offset against the note. Lowry v. Smith, 42 C. A. 112, 94 S. W. 450.

One held estopped from asserting any claim against the title of a purchaser of real estate, so that the purchaser's payment in satisfaction of the claim was not available as an offset against the price. De Steaguer v. Pittman, 54 C. A. 316, 117 S. W. 481.

3. Set-off of judgments.—The power to set off judgments will be exercised in equity. Dutton v. Mason, 21 C. A. 389, 52 S. W. 651.

A cross-action in trespass to try title seeking to set off a judgment, held within the rule permitting counter claims and pleas in reconvention. Brin v. Anderson, 25 C. A. 323, 60 S. W. 778.

To allow a judgment to be set off against another judgment held inequitable under the facts. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 800.

4. Set-off against interest-bearing debt.—The claim of one sued on an interest-bearing debt should be set off against the debt as of the time it became due. Brown v. Montgomery, 19 C. A. 548, 47 S. W. 803.

5. Counter claim.—Counter claim, Allbright v. Aldrich, 2 T. 166; Thomas v. Hill, 3 T. 270; Bradford v. Hamilton, 7 T. 55; Cannon v. Hemphill, 7 T. 184; Phillips v. Pattello, 18 T. 518; Hahn v. Cook, 1 App. C. C. § 689. Citing Hanchett v. Gray, 7 T. 549; Henderson v. Gilliam, 12 T. 71; Hamilton v. Van Hook, 26 T. 302; Smith v. McGehee, 1 App. C. C. § 940; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Wood, 1 App. C. C. § 1179; Bolton v. Sadler, 1 App. C. C. § 1227.

A counter claim or plea in reconvention is in effect a suit against plaintiff. Dixon v. Watson, 52 C. A. 412, 115 S. W. 100.

6. Actions in which remedy is available.—Where an action on promissory notes against the maker, and an action by him against the party suing on the notes upon his agreement to pay the maker for certain stock sold, were consolidated, and recovery had on the notes, the maker may set off the money due him for the stock. Harpold v. Moss, 101 T. 540, 109 S. W. 928.

In an action by a partnership to enjoin collection of a default judgment taken against it as a corporation, defendant could file a cross-action for any debt owing by the partnership. Spaulding Mfg. Co. v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1122.

7. Counter claim against state.—In a suit by the state to recover certain lands, one of the defendants held not entitled to file a plea in the nature of a cross-bill demanding affirmative relief. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 318.

8. Subject-matter of counter claim in general.—Commissions at a specified rate agreed upon for the sale of personal property can be pleaded in offset. June v. Brubaker, 24 S. W. 79, 5 C. A. 79.

One sued on a note on pleading and proof of overpayment can recover the balance. James v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 26.

Usurious interest paid on a note to a national bank cannot be set off against the principal of the note. Comanche Nat. Bank v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 413.

Money tendered into court by a defendant on rescission of a trade for breach of warranty cannot be set off on the judgment obtained by plaintiff without defendant's consent. Sanders v. Britton (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 209.

The principle of compensation will not be applied to extinguish mutual debts, one arising on account, and other on note. Walker v. Fearhake, 22 C. A. 61, 52 S. W. 629.

In suit for rent defendant can plead in reconvention amount due for clearing and improving the land under a contract. Hurst v. Benson, 27 C. A. 227, 65 S. W. 77.

In an action on a note given in part consideration of a lease, the maker held entitled to a set-off for breach of guaranty as to possession. Stribling v. Gray (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 789.

Where a contract for the sale of a merry-go-round was rescinded and the consideration applied to the purchase of a shooting-gallery, the sale of the former could not be made the basis of a cross-bill in a suit to set aside a transaction with reference to the latter. Parker v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 856.

9. —— Vendor and purchaser.—A purchaser cannot offset against the price the cost of extinguishing an outstanding title of which he knew at the time of the purchase. De Steaguer v. Pittman, 54 C. A. 316, 117 S. W. 481.

The defect in the title for the curing of which an expenditure by the purchaser may be made, and reimbursement claimed as an offset to the purchase price, held such as amounts to a breach of covenant of warranty. Id.

10. Parties to and mutuality of cross-demands in general.—Demands cannot be set off unless they are mutual and between parties to the action. Allbright v. Aldrich, 2 T. 166; Thomas v. Hill, 3 T. 270; Bradford v. Hamilton, 7 T. 55; Cannon v. Hemphill, 7 T. 184; Hanchett v. Gray, 7 T. 549; Henderson v. Gilliam, 12 T. 71; Phillips v. Pattello, 18 T. 518; House v. Cessna, 24 S. W. 962, 6 C. A. 7; Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 247; Hamilton v. Van Hook, 26 T. 302, 306; Casey v. Hanrick, 69 T. 44, 6 S. W. 405; Howard v. Randolph, 73 T. 454, 11 S. W. 495; Fry v. Houston, 26 S. W. 284, 6 C. A. 710; Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816; Hahn v. Cook, 1 App. C. C. § 689; Smith v. McGehee, Id. § 940; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Wood, Id. § 1177.

In the absence of fraud, one who dealt with an agent of a firm, supposing him to be a partner, cannot set off claims against the agent, in an action brought by the firm. Griffith v. Kroeger (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 772; Henderson v. Johnson, 22 C. A. 381, 55 S. W. 35; McGrew v. Norris, 140 S. W. 1143.

A note executed by S. to W. cannot be set off by S. with a judgment against the wife of W. Shields v. Stark (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 540.

Payment by trustee for the benefit of creditors of a claim out of his private funds held not a set-off against a balance due his immediate seller purchasing at trustee's sale. Park v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 46, 56 S. W. 759.

A stockholder of a building association held not entitled to have his judgment against such association for the value of his shares credited on the amount of his transfer by such association to a third party. State Nat. Loan & Trust Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 318, 63 S. W. 552.

The cause of action on which defendant counterclaimed held to be against plaintiffs. Tyson v. Jackson Bros., 41 C. A. 128, 90 S. W. 930.

Where the suit is by the legal holder of acceptance but he is not the beneficiary or equitable owner, the defendant could plead and prove and set off payment he claims to have made to the amount found due by reason of only a partial failure of consideration for the acceptance sued on. In absence of such pleading the court was bound to render judgment for amount he found to be due. Haggard v. Bothwell (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 965.

In an action by a husband and wife for assault committed on the wife, defendant may not plead in reconvention a subsequent and separate assault committed on him by the husband. McCormick v. Schtrenck (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 720.

Where a contractor sued the owner for shelves and counters in a store, the owner could not set up a counter claim for damages for breach of contract between him and a third person for the construction of the building. Brown v. Dolle (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 291.

Where a municipal contractor, to whom a materialman had furnished materials, failed to complete the work, and the city let out the contract to another contractor, and the materialman obtained judgment against the city, which it paid without appeal, the city could not set off the amount of such judgment against the claim of the subsequent contractor. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1079.

11. Demands of one or more co-defendants.—Where plaintiff held a lien on land of tenants in common for services performed for them, and one of them had a counter claim held, that the interest of such one was liable for his proportion, less the counter claim. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 55.

12. Joint and separate claims and liabilities.—A firm account cannot be set off against an individual claim of a partner. Haley v. Cusenbary (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 587.

A partner held entitled to be reimbursed for his expenses in procuring a firm judgment before any part of the judgment was subject to any set-off by reason of the judgment debtor obtaining a judgment against the copartner. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 800.

A claim against a firm cannot be set off in an action by one of the parties on his individual claim. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

13. Claims and liabilities in different rights and capacities.—A bank deposit belonging to decedent's estate held not a proper set-off to a note of his executrix, given in consideration of the cancellation of another note held by the bank. Reuter v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 683.

Where it is sought to set off a judgment against a defendant individually against a judgment in his favor as a member of a firm, the set-off will be refused unless equity demands it under the facts. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 800.

An agreement of an insurance agent to renew a policy held one of the insurance company, so that claim for breach of it cannot be set off in an action by the agent on his individual claim. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

14. Set-offs and counter claims against assigned causes of action.—Assignee of judgment held to have superior equity to right of set-off of judgment defendant. Dutton v. Mason, 21 C. A. 389, 52 S. W. 651.

Defendant in an action held not entitled to set off a claim against interveners and assignees of plaintiff's cause of action. Gage v. Hunter, 43 C. A. 241, 94 S. W. 1104.

Defendant held not entitled to set off a judgment for costs recovered by it in a county court against an assignee of a judgment recovered against defendant, where no equitable grounds for such relief were pleaded or proved. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cassinoba, 44 C. A. 625, 99 S. W. 888.

Where the right to have one judgment set off against another did not exist at the time of the assignment of one of the judgments, the right of set-off was lost by the assignment. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 800.

Judgment debtor held entitled to set off against the assignee of the judgment seeking to enforce it for the assignor's benefit any proper counter claim held against the assignor. Trammell v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 429.

In an action for commissions due plaintiff's assignor for procuring the exchange of land for a hardware stock, defendant held entitled to plead a counter claim arising out of misrepresentations of plaintiff as to the goods included in the hardware stock. Inman v. Brown (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 652.

In an action on certain claims assigned by F., defendant company held not entitled to set off an overpayment made to a construction company for work performed by F., in the absence of an agreement by F. that it might be set off against the defendant's indebtedness to him for other work. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Stark (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 641.

15. Assigned claims as set-offs and counter claims.—In trespass to try title by vendor against vendee's grantee, who had failed to pay lien notes assumed, held, that grantee may set off a debt against the vendor, secured by pledge of the notes, against claim for use and occupation. Smith v. Cottingham, 20 C. A. 303, 49 S. W. 145.

16. Effect of failure to assert or claim.—The fact that the indorsee of notes, when sued on a check given for their purchase, failed to counter claim the indorser's liability on his indorsement, will not preclude a subsequent suit to enforce it; the statute authorizing counter claims being permissive. Norton v. Wochler, 31 C. A. 522, 72 S. W. 1025.

17. Counter claim against non-resident plaintiff allowed, when.—Judgment on a cross-demand may be rendered against a non-resident plaintiff suing in this state. Andrews v. Whitehead (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 800.

In a suit by a seller of a piano to recover it on the buyer's failure to pay therefor, a cross-bill for the piano accepted by the seller in part payment or for the value thereof held properly allowed, though the seller was not a resident of the county in which the suit was brought. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 948.

18. Effect of exemption.—Where, in a suit on a note, plaintiff recovers, and defendant also recovers for an attachment therein of an exempt crop, it is proper, in entering judgment, to specify that the recoveries cannot be set off. Moore v. Graham, 29 C. A. 235, 69 S. W. 200.

In an action for conversion of exempt property, a judgment cannot be set off against the claim. Staggs' Heirs v. Piland, 31 C. A. 245, 71 S. W. 762.

19. Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action by a landlord to recover his share of a crop, evidence held to sustain a finding for defendant on a plea in reconvention. Poutra v. Martin (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 725.

20. Costs, security for.—See Art. 2056.

21. Discontinuance, when defendant has filed counter claim.—See Art. 1900.

22. Non-suit, when counter claim filed.—See Art. 1955.

23. Not allowed in county court on appeal.—See Art. 759.

24. Plea of payment, counter claim, etc.—See Art. 1907.

25. Certiorari to justice's court.—See notes under Art. 759.

Art. 1326. [751] [646] Requisites of the plea.—The plea setting up such counter claim shall state distinctly the nature and the several items thereof, and shall conform to the ordinary rules of pleading. [P. D. 3444.]

Plea—Requisites and sufficiency.—See, also, notes under Art. 1907.

Under this article an answer was defective which pleaded as a defense to a note that it had been given for goods ordered and that substitute and inferior goods had been sent, but did not show what part of the goods sent were not as ordered. Clayton v. Western Nat. Wall Paper Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 695.

Art. 1327. [752] [647] Judgment over in defendant's favor, when.—On the trial of such issue, if the defendant shall establish a demand against the plaintiff exceeding that established against him by the plaintiff, the court shall render judgment for the defendant for such excess. [P. D. 3446.]

Art. 1328. [753] [648] Judgment for costs, how determined.—Whenever a counter claim is pleaded under the provisions of this chapter, the party in whose favor final judgment is rendered shall also recover his costs, unless it should be made to appear on the trial that the counter claim of the defendant was acquired after the commencement of the suit, in which case, if the plaintiff establishes a cause of action existing at the commencement of the suit, he shall recover his costs. [Id. and Act Jan. 2, 1860, p. 5. P. D. 3445–6.]

Construed.—Construing this article in connection with art. 1374, it is held that the latter article controls. Ferrier v. Knox County (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 896. See McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Gilkey (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 325.

Notes due by an attorney may be set-off by accounts for professional services due the latter. Wherever an independent action is commenced for said services and another suit brought on the notes, the costs of both actions may be adjudged against the party pleading set-off where he amends his answer for that purpose, as he thereby abandons his separate action. Brown v. Montgomery, 19 C. A. 548, 47 S. W. 803.

Art. 1329. [754] [649] Certain and uncertain damages not to be set off against each other.—If the plaintiff's cause of action be a claim for unliquidated or uncertain damages, founded on a tort or breach of covenant, the defendant shall not be permitted to set off any debt due him by the plaintiff; and, if the suit be founded on a certain demand, the defendant shall not be permitted to set off unliquidated or uncertain damages founded on a tort or breach of covenant on the part of the plaintiff. [P. D. 3447.]

See Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 358; Riddle v. McKinney, 67 T. 29, 2 S. W. 748; Imperial R. M. Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 5 C. A. 686, 27 S. W. 49.

Reconvention.—As to reconvention, see Egery v. Power, 5 T. 501; Walcott v. Hendrick, 6 T. 406; Alford's Adm'rs v. Cochrane, 7 T. 485; Hammonds v. Belcher, 10 T. 271; Castro v. Gentiley, 11 T. 28; Carlin v. Hudson, 12 T. 202; Sterrett v. Houston, 14 T. 153; Castro v. Whitlock, 15 T. 437; Oldham v. Erhart, 18 T. 147; Brady v. Price, 19 T. 285; Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 358; Slaughter v. Hailey, 21 T. 537; North v. Swing, 24 T. 193; Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 245; Beckham v. Hunter, 37 T. 551; Coleman v. Bunce, 37 T. 171; Avery v. Stewart, 60 T. 154; Scalf v. Tompkins, 61 T. 476; De La Vega v. League, 64 T. 205; Schwartz v. Burton, 1 App. C. C. § 1216; Howard v. Moore, 1 App. C. C. § 225.

Actions for uncertain damages.—As to unliquidated damages, see Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 358; Hamilton v. Van Hook, 26 T. 302; Craddock v. Goodwin, 54 T. 578; Shook v. Peters, 59 T. 393; Knight v. Ragland, 2 App. C. C. § 78.

A judgment in another suit cannot be pleaded as an offset to a claim for damages for a wrongful attachment. Imperial Rolling Mill Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 27 S. W. 49, 5 C. A. 686.

In an action to recover unliquidated damages, a note given by plaintiff to defendant cannot be set off. Santleben v. Froboese, 17 C. A. 626, 43 S. W. 571.

Plaintiff's damages for illegal ejectment from lands worked by him under a contract cannot be set off by the value of goods purchased at defendant's store. Ellis v. Stine (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 758.

A defendant cannot set up against plaintiff's demand in tort any contract indebtedness. Wheat v. Ball (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 182.

In a suit for tort for unliquidated damages, it is improper to plead in offset a claim for payment for use and benefit and for repairs and work. Stagg's Heirs v. Piland, 31 C. A. 245, 71 S. W. 764.

Under the direct provisions of this article, defendant cannot set off a debt claimed to be due him from plaintiff against damages for a tort committed against plaintiff by him. Baldwin v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 747; Curlee v. Rogan (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1126.

A defendant setting up a liquidated demand as a counter claim in an action on a liquidated demand held not required to prove a certain agreement in order to avail himself of the right to set up his claim as a counter claim. Ruzeoski v. Wilrodt (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 142.

In a suit for damages for the unlawful seizure of exempt property under legal process, plaintiff's indebtedness to defendant cannot be offset against his right to damages. Pate v. Vardeman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 317.

Where cotton fraudulently packed was shipped under two drafts attached to bills of lading collected through different banks, an amount recovered by the consignee in an action involving the transaction represented by one of the drafts could not be set off against the compress company's liability for the fraud occasioned by the cotton shipped under the bills of lading attached to the other draft. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

Actions on certain or liquidated demands.—The term "liquidated" means adjusted, certain, or settled in respect to amount. The term "certain demand" has been held to have the same meaning as the word "debt." Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 245; Jones v. Hunt, 74 T. 657, 12 S. W. 832; Worley v. Smith, 26 C. A. 270, 63 S. W. 903.

November 14, 1883, S. recovered a judgment against M., as assignee of Fondard & Yglesias, for $1,280.62 and foreclosure of a lien on certain goods then in the possession of M. In a suit by M. against S. on the note, held: (1) That the balance due on the judgment was a liquidated demand against the assignee, and could be pleaded in set-off against the promissory note sued on. (2) That the judgment against M. in favor of S. was not superseded by the subsequent agreement between them, and that, even if such were the case, the balance due for the goods undelivered under the agreement would be a liquidated demand, the amount of which could be easily ascertained, and might, under the statute of this state, be set off against the note executed by S. to M. Sheldon v. Martin, 65 T. 409.

In a suit for the wrongful conversion of money received by defendant, the defendant pleaded in set off certain items of indebtedness owing him by plaintiff. It was held that, as the money withheld by the defendant was known, the measure of damages was a matter of calculation in no wise uncertain or unliquidated, and it was proper to allow the offsets pleaded and proved. Jones v. Hunt, 74 T. 657, 12 S. W. 832.

Damages for breach of a contract which can be ascertained from the agreement of the parties can be pleaded in set-off. Bank v. Lynch, 25 S. W. 1042, 6 C. A. 590; Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 251; Riddle v. McKinney, 67 T. 32, 2 S. W. 748; Jones v. Hunt, 74 T. 657, 12 S. W. 832.

A demand held a liquidated one which might be set off by defendant in an action for the price of goods sold. Harrington Lumber Co. v. Smith, 44 C. A. 363, 99 S. W. 110.

The fact that the open account sued on was verified by affidavit did not affect defendant's right to plead the counter claim. Nor did it affect the nature of the demand as being certain or uncertain. Hallinan v. Levytansky, 46 C. A. 228, 102 S. W. 463.

In an action on a note and to foreclose a lien on personalty, defendant may plead in reconvention a claim for unliquidated damages for negligent injury to crops, growing on premises rented from plaintiff. Steiner v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 359.

Whether a cause of action is founded on a liquidated demand preventing the interposition of a counter claim held determinable alone from the petition. Brooks Tire Mach. Co. v. Shields, 48 C. A. 531, 108 S. W. 1005.

A demand is liquidated when the amount is agreed upon by the parties or fixed by law, and a counter claim for unliquidated damages, not growing out of or connected with the action cannot be interposed as a defense. Brooks Tire Mach. Co. v. Shields, 49 C. A. 531, 108 S. W. 1007.

Plaintiff's demand in an action on notes is liquidated, within this article. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

Unliquidated claim cannot be set off against certain demand.—As to unliquidated damages, see Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 358; Hamilton v. Van Hook, 26 T. 302; Craddock v. Goodwin, 54 T. 578; Shook v. Peters, 59 T. 393; Knight v. Old, 2 App. C. C. § 78.

In an action on a promissory note for the purchase of land and to foreclose the vendor's lien, the maker cannot plead in reconvention unliquidated damages resulting to him from the action of the plaintiff in selling another tract of land for defendant in violation of a trust for less than its value. (Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 251; Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 358; Cato v. Phillips, 28 T. 101.) Riddle v. McKinney, 67 T. 29, 2 S. W. 748.

In a suit on a promissory note the defendant cannot plead in reconvention damages growing out of an unauthorized act of the plaintiff not connected with the note sued on. Schmidt v. Rost, 1 App. C. C. § 684.

In a suit to foreclose the vendor's lien by one holding purchase-money notes for a steammill and the land on which it is situated, damages to the property occasioned by the bursting of the mill boiler, caused by the plaintiff muddying the water supplying the mill by maliciously building hog-pens on his own land adjoining the mill, and keeping the hogs on the stream supplying the mill with water, cannot be pleaded by the defendant in reconvention, even though the plaintiff be alleged to be insolvent and unable to respond in damages for his wrongful or malicious acts. The defendant cannot plead failure of consideration in suit for purchase-money on account of damages to the property occasioned by the malicious acts of the plaintiff committed after the sale, and such is the case where the plaintiff is insolvent. Fondren v. Leake, 1 U. C. 151.

The right to plead a counter claim for personal services is not affected by the fact that their value had not been agreed upon. McCarty v. Squyres (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 356.

An unliquidated claim for damages founded on a tort cannot be set off against a certain demand. Norwood v. Interstate Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 927; Presnall v. McLeary (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1066; Taylor v. Bewley, 23 C. A. 509, 56 S. W. 937; Worley v. Smith, 26 C. A. 270, 63 S. W. 903; Clevenger v. Galloway & Garrison (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 914; Miller v. Black (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 560.

In action by tenant against a landlord for converting furniture left on premises after they were vacated, defendant may not claim damages for allowing lewd women on the premises as a set-off to plaintiff's action. Schwulst v. Neely (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 608.

In an action to recover for pasturage furnished defendant's cattle, damages sustained by defendant from breach of the contract, whereby plaintiff agreed not to overstock the pasture, is proper matter for a plea in reconvention. Fields v. Haley (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 115.

Where plaintiff abandoned his contract to clear land after part performance, he may recover on a quantum meruit, leaving defendant to recoup damages for failure to perform. Wanhscaffe v. Pontoja (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 663.

Damages sustained from the negligence of an officer levying on property in distress proceedings held properly reconvened in a suit for rent. Hurst v. Benson, 27 C. A. 227, 65 S. W. 76.

A tenant in an action for distress held entitled to recover from the landlord the value of property levied on under the distress warrant, which was delivered to the landlord and consumed by him. Riggs v. Gray, 31 C. A. 268, 72 S. W. 101.

In an action for pasturage furnished defendants' cattle, damages claimed by a plea in reconvention held not too remote. Scovill v. Melton, 38 C. A. 351, 85 S. W. 463.

A pleading by a tenant sued for rent which alleged by way of a cross-action a claim for damages held insufficient. Blackwell v. Speer (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 903.

Under an agreement by a building contractor, held that damages for his nonperformance were a proper set-off against a sum owing to him. Schoenfeld v. Karnes City Independent School Corp. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 406.

In an action by a water company for rent from land supplied with water, held proper for the court to submit defendant's right to counterclaim for damages to his crop caused by plaintiff's lack of care in furnishing water. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435.

The claim of a deceased tax collector's bondsmen for shortage, which had not been judicially ascertained and had been assigned to the collector's successor, could not be set off against the latter's liability to the collector's heirs for fees on delinquent taxes. Bond v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 395.

In an action on two promissory notes and a mortgage given for the purchase price of certain machinery, plaintiff's failure to repair a defective engine held a good set-off. Mangum v. Buffalo Pitts Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1196.

Where the term of an employment contract, which had been breached, had expired, in an action against the servant on a note, the amount the servant was entitled to recover for breach of the contract was available as a proper counter claim. Couturie v. Roensch (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 413.

—— Unliquidated claim can be set off against unliquidated demand.—An unliquidated demand resulting from the breach of one contract may be pleaded as a set-off to an unliquidated demand growing out of the breach of another contract. Sanders v. Bridges, 67 T. 93, 2 S. W. 663. A claim for unliquidated damages for breach of contract may be set off against an open account for goods sold and delivered. Bodman v. Harris, 20 T. 31.

Set-off for damages for breach of contract of sale held allowable, if petition upon open account might be construed as upon unliquidated demand. Taylor v. Bewley, 93 T. 524, 56 S. W. 746.

Objections and waiver.—This article does not apply where there is no objection by the parties or by the trial judge to the pleading of a liquidated demand in a suit upon a tort or vice versa. Such matters may be pleaded and tried in the same proceeding by consent. Gillett v. Moody (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 35.

This article, even if having application to the setting up of a debt as a justification of the act claimed to be a tort, and not as an offset, requires objection in the trial court to the consideration of the matter set up by defendant. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 285.

Art. 1330. [755] [650] Matters incident to plaintiff's cause of action may be set off.—Nothing in the preceding article shall be so construed as to prohibit the defendant from pleading in set off any counter claim founded on a cause of action arising out of, or incident to, or connected with, the plaintiff's cause of action.

In general.—In the following cases exceptions to the plea were sustained on the ground that the damages claimed were too remote, and did not grow out of, or were not connected with, the main subject: Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 358; Pinson v. Kirsh, 46 T. 26; Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 245.

Evidence is not admissible in proof of a counter claim where it appears on its face that it did not grow out of, was incident to, or connected with, plaintiff's cause of action. Couch v. Parker, 1 App. C. C. § 436.

In an action on a note, defendant may recover damages in reconvention for failure of the payee to do that for which the note was given. Brown v. Viscaya (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 309.

In suit for rents accruing pending appeal and before sale under judgment in partition, defendant may offset taxes paid by him on plaintiff's interest during such period. Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 207.

Where defendant paid taxes which were a lien on lands purchased with a covenant against incumbrances, he was entitled to set off such taxes against vendor's lien notes given for the price. Bullitt v. Coryell, 38 C. A. 42, 85 S. W. 482.

A claim of defendants for an attorney's fee and costs paid on the note sued on, held to constitute a proper counterclaim in an action on the note. Collins v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 122.

A claim for compensation for work done may be set off against a claim for advances. French, Finch & Co. v. Hicks, 52 C. A. 427, 114 S. W. 691.

Plaintiff sued for balance due for stock of goods, part of consideration being tract of land conveyed by defendant. Defendant pleaded in offset value of abstract delivered to plaintiff which he agreed to return but did not. Held that matter pleaded in offset grew out of and was connected with original transaction. Hamilton v. Dismukes, 53 C. A. 129, 115 S. W. 1184.

A buyer when sued for the price held entitled to offset the proportional value of articles not delivered. Edwards v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 510.

A cross-action by way of counter claim held to have arisen out of the same transaction as plaintiffs' cause of action. Cunningham v. M. W. & B. G. Daves (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 808.

Held, that defendants' claim for the new casings was connected with and grew out of the sale of goods to the defendants, and hence was available as a counter claim under this article. Ajax-Grieb Rubber Co. v. Byars & Thompson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 921.

Liquidated or unliquidated demands.—When a party after making a contract, but before its performance, discovers a fraud, and the other party still goes on and performs his part, he is thereby precluded from the equitable remedy of cancellation, and also from the remedy of recovering back the consideration; but in an action on the contract he may recover damages for the deceit and fraud. Grabenheimer v. Blum, 63 T. 369.

When a plaintiff's action is to recover unliquidated damages for a tort, it is not permissible for the defendant to plead a counter claim for the debt due by plaintiff as incident to, connected with, or growing out of, plaintiff's cause of action. That plaintiff is insolvent constitutes no exception to the rule. Knight v. Old, 2 App. C. C. § 78; Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 245.

In a suit by an engineer of a railroad for the value of his services, the defendant can plead in reconvention damages on account of the negligent acts of plaintiff as engineer. Scott v. Railway Co., 4 App. C. C. § 287, 18 S. W. 137.

In an action for debt the defendant cannot plead in reconvention damages resulting from a criminal proceeding instituted by plaintiff in another state, alleged to have been instituted for the purpose of collecting the debt sued on. Pittman v. Keith (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 88.

In an action for rent defendant may recover actual and exemplary damages for the wrongful suing out and levy of the distress warrant. T. & P. Coal Co. v. Lawson, 10 C. A. 491, 31 S. W. 843.

Where defendant published libelous matter of plaintiff while attempting to collect a claim against him, such claim cannot be set off in plaintiff's action for the libel. Brown v. Durham (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 331.

The maker of a note may in reconvention plead damages for payee's breach of an agreement as a part of which the note in suit was given. Hansen v. Yturria (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 795.

Landlord sued for conversion of furniture left on premises by tenant on vacating them may set off pro tanto, rent due. Schwulst v. Neely (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 608.

In a suit for rent defendant can file plea in reconvention for damages for wrongfully suing out distress warrant and also claim compensation for clearing the land under the contract. Such plea does not set up two causes of action. Hurst v. Benson, 27 C. A. 227, 65 S. W. 77.

In an action on a contract, set-off held allowable, because arising out of a related transaction, and also claiming liquidated damages. Spears & Kattman v. Netherlands Fire Ins. Co., 31 C. A. 567, 72 S. W. 1018.

An open account for the keep of a horse and the lien therefor may be asserted by way of counterclaim against a suit for the animal's conversion, though the action sounds in tort. Gooch v. Isbell (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 973.

A counter claim may be for unliquidated damages, where arising out of the same transaction in which the note sued on was given. Tyson v. Jackson Bros., 41 C. A. 128, 90 S. W. 930.

Where a shortage in number of cattle did not arise out of nor was in any way incident to or connected with the pasturage of the cattle on appellant's implied obligation to pay the reasonable value of the pasturage, it could not be set off in a suit for the pasturage. Gage v. Hunter, 43 C. A. 241, 94 S. W. 1104.

If the demand sought to be adjudicated by the defendant is necessarily connected with and incident to the suit brought by plaintiff it is a proper matter of cross-action, whether liquidated or unliquidated. Bateman v. Hipp, 51 C. A. 405, 111 S. W. 972, 973.

In an action by the shipper against the buyer and a consignee for the price of fruit sold, the buyer could file a cross-action against the seller for damages caused by breach of his contract to ship by a certain route, and by the negligence of the seller's agent in charge of the cars, and against the carriers for negligence in handling the cars, though the cross-action involved both matters ex contractu and ex delicto; both arising out of the same transaction. Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73.

Where plaintiff sues on notes reserving a vendor's lien, defendant's claim for breach of a contract subsequent to the notes to renew or procure insurance on the property on which the vendor's lien was reserved is not founded on a cause of action arising out of or incident to, or connected with, plaintiff's cause of action within this article. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

The amount paid to the property owner by the attaching creditor, after sale of cotton seized on second attachment levied by the creditor, held only available as an offset against the recovery for the wrongful seizure of the cotton, and not for wrongful seizure of other property. Pate v. Vardeman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 317.

In an action for damages for breach of defendant's contract to cut and deliver timber from a certain tract for plaintiff, defendant, under this article, could plead in reconvention a claim for hauling logs from a different tract. Hardeman-King Lumber Co. v. Hampton Bros., 104 T. 585, 142 S. W. 867.

Sureties upon the bond of a contractor held entitled to counterclaim for material appropriated by the owners. Bell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 953.

Under this article a tenant sued for rent may set off a claim for unliquidated damages from the landlord's negligently permitting his cattle to injure the tenant's crop. Duran v. Lucas (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 695.

Where a contractor to construct shelving and counters in a store sued for the contract price, the owner could not set up a counter claim for unliquidated damages for breach of contract for the building, made between him and a third person, and prior to the contract sued on as the damages were not founded on a cause of action arising out of, or incident to, or connected with, the cause of action sued on. Brown v. Dolle (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 291.

In action for rent, a tenant was not entitled to reconvene for damages for causing her to abandon the premises, where the lease had been theretofore canceled by mutual agreement, without first having the cancellation agreement set aside for alleged duress. Hedrick v. Smith (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 305.

In an action for a balance alleged to be due on a building contract, a defendant, if entitled to recover for injuries to the building from a breach of the contract, may also recover for injuries to the merchandise in the building. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Evens & Lee (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1053.

Where plaintiff sued on a liquidated demand for the price of goods sold, defendant could not set off unliquidated damages for breach of warranty of certain automobile casings purchased from plaintiff and not replaced according to contract, but might set off a claim for breach of plaintiff's agreement to exchange new casings for old if made as part of the same transaction in which defendant purchased the goods sued for and part of the inducement for such purchase, in which case the counter claim would be available under this article. Ajax-Grieb Rubber Co. v. Byars & Thompson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 921.

Damages to the pledgor of cotton tickets as collateral security for advances, resulting from their loss by the pledgee, may be pleaded by way of set-off in the pledgee's action for such advances. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

Necessity and effect of insolvency.—In action for damages for unlawful entry of plaintiff's dwelling, and seizure and sale of a piano therein, under an order of sale, defendant held not entitled to a set-off against plaintiff's claim, though plaintiff was insolvent. Hillman v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 787.

Amount as affected by limits of court's jurisdiction.—See, also, Art. 1763 et seq.

Under this Article and Art. 1900, providing that right to be heard thereon shall not be prejudiced by dismissal of plaintiff's suit, it is immaterial to a defendant's right to recover on the counterclaim that the amount thereof is less than would be within the court's jurisdiction as an original cause of action. Cooksey v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1175.

CHAPTER ONE

CREATION OF COUNTIES

Art.
1331. Legislature may create counties.
1332. Must have nine hundred square miles, unless, etc.
1333. Exterior territory may be divided into counties at any time.
1334. Counties created out of other counties must have seven hundred square miles.
1335. Line of new county shall not approach nearer than twelve miles to an established county seat.
1336. Counties with less than nine hundred square miles may be created, how.
1337. Existing counties may be reduced to seven hundred square miles, how.
1338. New county shall pay its part of the liabilities of the old county.
1339. New counties to pay pro rata of indebtedness.
1340. Such indebtedness, how apportioned.
1341. Suits to have precedence; special tax to pay judgments.
1342. Non-residents to pay to comptroller.
1343. When territory is added, duty of commissioners in organized counties.
1344. Tax for pro rata indebtedness.
1345. Tax collected in unorganized counties by comptroller.
1346. County bonds held by school funds apportioned between counties, when.
1347. Commissioners' court to levy tax for, prorated.
1348. Part of existing county shall not be detached, etc., except, etc.
1349. Election shall be ordered, when, etc.
1350. Application shall show, what.
1351. Notices of such election shall contain, what.
1352. Question to be voted upon.
1353. Law governing other elections shall govern this.
1354. Returns of election, how and to whom made.
1355. Another election for the same purpose shall not be held for five years.

Article 1331. [756] [651] Legislature may create counties.—The legislature shall have power to create counties for the convenience of the people, subject to the following provisions of this chapter: [Const., art. 9, sec. 1.]

Cited, Parrish v. Ralls (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 933.

Unorganized counties.—The legislature can attach an unorganized county to several organized counties for different purposes, as convenience may suggest. First Nat. Bank v. McElroy, 51 C. A. 284, 112 S. W. 801.

Art. 1332. [757] [652] Must have 900 square miles, unless, etc.—In the territory of the state, exterior to the counties now existing, no new county shall be created with a less area than nine hundred square miles, in a square form, unless prevented by pre-existing boundary lines. Should the state lines render this impracticable in border counties, the area may be less. [Id.]

Attacking legality of existence of county.—The legal existence of a county created by the legislature and recognized by the state can be questioned as containing the area required by the constitution by the state alone. Blackburn v. Delta County, 48 C. A. 370, 107 S. W. 80.

Art. 1333. [758] [653] Exterior territory may be divided at any time.—The territory referred to in the preceding article may at any time, in whole or in part, be divided into counties in advance of population, and attached, for judicial and land surveying purposes, to the most convenient organized county or counties. [Id.]

Creating new counties.—An unorganized county has generally been treated as a part of the county to which it is attached for judicial purposes so far as the exercise of local governmental power over it is concerned. Cattle Co. v. Faught, 69 T. 402, 5 S. W. 494.

Art. 1334. [759] [654] Counties created out of other counties must have 700 square miles.—Within the territory of any county or counties now existing, no new county shall be created with a less area than seven hundred square miles; nor shall any such county now existing be reduced to a less area than seven hundred square miles. [Id.]

Art. 1335. [760] [655] Line of new county shall not approach nearer than 12 miles to an established county seat.—No new counties shall be created so as to approach nearer than twelve miles of the county seat of any county from which it may, in whole or in part, be taken. [Id.]

Art. 1336. [761] [656] Counties with less than 900 square miles may be created, how.—Counties of a less area than nine hundred, but of seven hundred or more, square miles, within counties now existing, may be created by a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature, taken by yeas and nays, and entered on the journals. [Id.]

Art. 1337. [762] [657] Existing counties may be reduced to 700 square miles, how.—Any county now existing may be reduced to an area of not less than seven hundred square miles by a like two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature, taken by yeas and nays, and entered on the journals. [Id.]

Art. 1338. [763] [658] New county shall pay its part of the liabilities of the old county.—When any part of a county is stricken off and attached to, or created into, another county, the part stricken off shall be holden for, and obliged to pay, its proportion of all the liabilities then existing of the county from which it was taken, in such manner as the law shall provide. [Id.]

Dividing old county.—No credit will be given to the new county for public buildings and bridges remaining in the old county. Mills County v. Brown County, 29 S. W. 650, 87 T. 475.

The term "new counties" includes all counties created out of others. As to payment of debts by new counties. Id.

Art. 1339. [764] New counties to pay pro rata of indebtedness.—Any county which has heretofore been created, or may hereafter be created, by the legislature of the state of Texas, out of any other county or counties, shall be held liable for, and bound to pay its proportion of all the liabilities of the county or counties from which it was taken, existing at the date of its creation of such new county, according to the proportionate value of the property in the excised territory, and the value of the property remaining in the old county; and a suit to recover the same may be brought by the parent county, either in the district court of such parent county, or in the district court of the newly created county; and the court shall have power to make any order or render any judgment necessary to carry out and satisfy its decree therein; provided, that the provisions of this article shall not apply to any county, the claims against which have already been placed before courts having jurisdiction thereof and tried or dismissed under laws that were at such time constitutional. [Acts of 1893, p. 124.]

Suits for indebtedness apportioned.—The statute of limitations did not begin to run against suits authorized by this article until its enactment; and a suit brought within two years thereafter was in time. Mills County v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 552. The claim need not be presented to the commissioners' court for allowance under Art. 790. Mills County v. Lampasas County, 90 T. 603, 40 S. W. 403; Id., (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 552.

In action by county against a new county created out of it to recover proportionate part of the original county's debt, taxpayers of the new county are not necessary parties. Hardeman County v. Foard County, 19 C. A. 212, 47 S. W. 30, 536.

Defendant was not entitled to credit for back taxes collected in the territory after the organization of the new county. Id.

The new county is entitled to credit for back taxes collected by parent county in territory of the new county after organization. Hardeman County v. Foard County, 19 C. A. 212, 47 S. W. 30, 536.

Suit can be brought in the parent county against counties that have been carved out of the former, to force the new counties to pay their pro rata of an indebtedness incurred by the parent county before the new counties were formed and the new counties are liable for their pro rata share of such indebtedness, in a suit brought by the holders of the indebtedness against the parent county and are proper parties to such suit. Jeff Davis County et al. v. City Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 157, 54 S. W. 39.

Bona fide purchasers of bonds.—County bonds held valid obligations in favor of a bona fide holder against the county issuing them and counties taken therefrom. Jeff Davis County v. City Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 157, 54 S. W. 39.

Art. 1340. [765] Such indebtedness, how apportioned.—Where any suit has been, or shall be, brought to enforce payment of the indebtedness created by the parent county or counties, or for the pro rata share of the excised territory, the assessment rolls of the parent county or counties for the year in which such new county was created shall be conclusive evidence of the property and value thereof remaining in the parent county and in the excised territory at the date of the creation of such new county; provided, that when the new county was organized and made assessment rolls for the same year as that in which it was created, such rolls shall be taken as conclusive evidence of the property therein and the taxable values thereof at the date of the creation of such new county; and the assessment rolls of the parent county for the same year shall be conclusive evidence of the property and the value thereof remaining in the parent county at the date of the creation of such new county. [Id.]

Conclusiveness of rolls.—In action by county to recover of another created from it its proportion of the debt of the original county, held, the tax rolls were not conclusive, where it appeared on their face that the same property had been twice listed therein. Hardeman County v. Foard County, 19 C. A. 212, 47 S. W. 30, 536.

Art. 1341. [765a] Suits to have precedence; special tax to pay judgments.—All suits brought under this law are hereby declared to be of general public interest, and shall be given precedence upon the dockets of the courts of this state; and, if the plaintiff shall recover, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of the newly created county to levy a special tax on all property in the territory taken from the plaintiff county sufficient to pay off the judgment, and, if the first levy be insufficient, to make said levy annually till said judgment is satisfied, and the judgment of the court shall order said commissioners' court to make such levies. [Id.]

Art. 1342. [766] Non-residents to pay to comptroller.—It shall be the duty of the comptroller of public accounts to assess and collect from the nonresidents of unorganized counties such rate of taxation, to pay the pro rata share of the debt due by such unorganized county, as the commissioners' court of the parent county shall levy on property in said parent county to pay such debt, and a certified statement of the commissioners' court making the levy in the parent county, giving the amount of the levy, shall be authority for his action. [Acts of 1889, p. 136.]

Art. 1343. [767] When territory is added, duty of commissioners in organized counties.—When the territory taken is added to, and made a part of, an organized county, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of such county to levy and have collected on all property in such territory a tax sufficient to pay their pro rata of the indebtedness, said tax not to exceed the constitutional limit; and it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of the county to which any unorganized county may be attached for judicial purposes to levy and have collected on all property in such unorganized county owned or held by resident citizens a tax for the purpose of paying such indebtedness. [Id.]

Art. 1344. [768] Tax for pro rata indebtedness.—When any county has organized, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of such county to levy and have collected on all property in this county such rate of taxation to pay the pro rata share of the debt due by such county as the commissioners' court of the parent county shall levy on property in said parent county to pay such debt. [Id.]

Art. 1345. [769] Tax collected in unorganized counties by comptroller.—All county taxes due unorganized counties collected by the comptroller shall be kept by him to the credit of such unorganized county until the same shall have been organized; then he shall, upon demand of the treasurer of the former unorganized county, pay the same over to the said treasurer; provided, that in case any unorganized county is indebted to any county from which the same has been created, and which debt existed at the time of its creation, the comptroller shall use so much of said fund as may be necessary to pay the pro rata share of such debt due by such unorganized county; and an order of the commissioners' court of the parent county stating the amount due from the unorganized county shall be authority for the comptroller to draw his warrant for said amount; and the provisions of this article shall apply to all money now held by the comptroller for unorganized counties and to all money hereafter collected. [Id.]

Art. 1346. [770] County bonds held by school funds apportioned between counties, when.—When any new county has been created wholly and entirely out of any existing county, if any bonds were legally issued by the parent county prior to the severance of a part of its territory, such of said bonds and the coupons due thereon as are held by the school fund of the state of Texas shall be apportioned between the parent county and the county or counties created out of the parent county, by the comptroller of public accounts, on the basis now provided by law. [Acts 1891, p. 39.]

Art. 1347. [771] Commissioners' court to levy tax for, pro rated.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of the parent county, or any county created out of the parent county, which has now or may hereafter be organized, to levy and have collected on all property in such county a tax to pay such county's pro rata share of the debt. It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of any county to which any unorganized county may be attached for judicial purposes to levy and have collected on all property in said unorganized county owned by resident citizens thereof a tax for the purpose of paying said county's part of the debt; and it shall be the duty of the comptroller of public accounts to assess and collect on all property in such unorganized counties owned by non-residents a tax to pay said counties' pro rata part of said debt; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to authorize the levy and collection of any tax in excess of that now allowed by the constitution of this state. [Id.]

Art. 1348. [772] [659] Part of existing county shall not be detached, etc., except, etc.—No part of any existing county shall be detached from it and attached to another existing county until the proposition for such change shall have been submitted to a vote of the electors of both counties, and shall have received a majority of those voting on the question in each. [Const. art. 9.]

Art. 1349. [773] [660] Election shall be ordered, when, etc.—An election for the purpose named in the preceding article shall be ordered by the county judge, or county judges, of the county or counties from which it is proposed to detach any portion thereof, or to attach any portion thereto, upon the application in writing of not less than fifty qualified voters of said county or counties.

Art. 1350. [774] [661] Application shall show, what.—The application provided for in the preceding article shall designate particularly, by metes and bounds, the portion of territory proposed to be detached, and shall show the number of square acres contained within said bounds, and the number of square acres remaining in the county or counties from which it is proposed to detach such part or parts, and the distance on a direct line of the county seat of any such county or counties from the nearest boundary line of the territory which it is proposed shall be detached.

Art. 1351. [775] [662] Notices of such election shall contain what.—The notices of such election shall contain, substantially, the boundaries and statements contained in the application, and in the order of election.

Art. 1352. [776] [663] Question to be voted upon.—The question to be voted upon at such election shall be, for or against the proposition, and the ballots shall be, "For the proposition," or "Against the proposition."

Art. 1353. [777] [664] Law governing other elections shall govern this.—Such election shall be governed by the law governing other elections so far as the same may be applicable, and not in conflict with any of the provisions of this chapter.

Art. 1354. [778] [665] Returns of elections, how and to whom made.—The returns of such election shall be made to the county judge, or county judges, of the county or counties in which the election takes place; and such county judge, or county judges, shall estimate the vote and make duplicate statements of the same, and shall certify to such statements officially; and one of said statements, together with a copy of the application certified to by him officially, he shall seal in an envelope, writing his name across the seal, and indorsing upon the package "Election returns of ..... county," and direct and transmit the same by mail or other safe conveyance to the speaker of the house of representatives at the seat of government, in time for the same to be received at as early a day as practicable during the next session of the legislature.

Art. 1355. [779] [666] Another election for same purpose shall not be held for five years.—When any such election has been held in a county, and the proposition to detach a portion thereof has been defeated, no other election for the same purpose shall be ordered or held for the period of five years thereafter.

ORGANIZATION OF COUNTIES

Art.
1356. Old county shall organize new one.
1357. Election to be ordered, when and by whom.
1358. County commissioners may act, when.
1359. New county subject to old until organized.
1360. Disorganized county is to be attached to other county, until, etc.
1361. County attached to another may be organized, how.
1362. Certificates of election in such cases.
1363. Books, etc., shall be delivered to such officer.
1364. Elections in unorganized counties.

Article 1356. [780] [667] Old county shall organize new one.—Whenever any new county shall hereafter be established, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of the county from which the territory of such new county, or the greater part thereof, was taken, at least one month previous to the general election of county officers next after such new county shall have been established, to lay off and divide such new county into convenient precincts for the election of justices of the peace, county commissioners and constables, defining particularly the boundaries of such precincts; and also to designate convenient places in such new county where elections shall be held; of all which they shall cause a record to be made by the clerk, and a copy thereof shall be transmitted to the county judge of such new county when elected. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 1063.]

Destruction of field notes.—The mere facts that the field notes of G. precinct where local option election was held had been burned could not render invalid the field notes of a justice precinct in one of its calls referring to G. precinct. Ex parte Walton, 45 Cr. R. 74, 74 S. W. 314.

Mistake as to boundaries.—An order of the commissioners' court for a local option election held to correct a prior mistake as to boundaries of a commissioner's precinct. Martin v. Mitchell, 32 C. A. 385, 74 S. W. 565.

In case of conflicting calls in the report of viewers to fix the boundaries of a commissioner's precinct, evidence of a mistake held admissible to show which of the calls was the true one. Id.

Art. 1357. [781] [668] Election to be ordered when and by whom.—It shall be the duty of the county judge of every county from which any new county has been so taken, at least one month previous to the general election of county officers next after such new county has been established, to order an election to be held in such new county, on said general election day, for all county officers authorized to be elected by the people of such new county, and to appoint a presiding officer for each place designated in such new county, for holding elections; such order of elections shall specify the number of precincts, their boundaries, and the officers to be elected in such county. Such presiding officers shall hold such elections in accordance with the laws regulating elections, and shall make their returns to the county judge who ordered such election, who shall open and examine such returns and give certificates to the persons elected. [Id. P. D. 1064.]

Art. 1358. [782] [669] County commissioners may act, when.—In all cases where the office of county judge shall be vacant, any two of the county commissioners shall be authorized to perform all the duties required of the county judge by the provisions of this chapter. [Id. P. D. 1065.]

Art. 1359. [783] [670] New county subject to old until organized.—Until a new county is organized in accordance with law, the territory thereof shall remain in all respects subject to the county from which the same has been taken.

Control pending organization.—Acts which create new counties do no more than to provide for their organization, and until the new county is actually organized the territory remains subject to the jurisdiction of the old county; and the inclusion of the new county by name in another judicial district, and in an act apportioning senators, etc., among the several counties of the state, does not affect the question. O'Shea v. Twohig, 9 T. 336; Clark v. Goss, 12 T. 395, 62 Am. Dec. 531; Wilson v. Catchings, 41 T. 587.

Until the inhabitants of the territory embraced within the boundaries of a new county exercise the privilege granted to them by the legislature by organizing their county government, they remain subject to the dominion of the government of the old county, and the acts of the officers of the latter, done in the performance of their official duties within the territory of the new county prior to its organization, are legal and valid. A new county created out of a portion of the territory of an original county, independent of express provisions therefor in the act creating the new county, cannot recover any part of the money and revenues belonging to the old county at the time of the organization of the new county. Reeves Co. v. Pecos Co., 69 T. 177, 7 S. W. 54; Baker v. Beck, 74 T. 562, 12 S. W. 229; Folts v. Ferguson, 77 T. 301, 13 S. W. 1037.

Until the new county is actually organized it remains in all things subject to the jurisdiction of the old county and the placing of the unorganized county in a different judicial district does not sever its connection with the parent county. Stark v. Harris (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 889.

Art. 1360. [784] [671] Disorganized counties to be attached to other counties, until, etc.—All legally organized counties that, from any cause, may have lost, or may hereafter lose, their county organization, shall be, for all judicial and surveying purposes, and for the registration of deeds, mortgages and all other instruments that are now, or may hereafter be, required or permitted by law to be recorded, attached to the organized county whose county seat is nearest to the county seat of such disorganized county, and so remain attached until such disorganized county shall again be legally organized. [Act Nov. 5, 1866, p. 90.]

Art. 1361. [785] [672] County attached to another may be organized, how.—When any unorganized or disorganized county has been attached to another county for judicial or other purposes, and desires to be organized or reorganized, a petition expressing such desire, signed by not less than one hundred and fifty qualified voters residing in such unorganized or disorganized county, may be presented to the commissioners' court of the county to which such unorganized or disorganized county is attached, and thereupon it shall be the duty of said court to proceed without delay to the organization or reorganization of such county, as the case may be, in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the organization of new counties. [Act May 1, 1874, p. 188, sec. 2.]

Cited, Oden v. Barber (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 676.

Time for election.—This article does not fix the time of holding the election as in arts. 1355-1357. On application made November 12, 1888, an election was ordered and the result declared December 24, 1888. The organization was held to be valid. State v. Cooke, 78 T. 406, 14 S. W. 996; Ewing v. Duncan, 81 T. 230, 16 S. W. 1000.

Liability of unorganized county to suit.—An unorganized county cannot be sued, though attached to an organized county for judicial purposes. Brewster County v. Presidio County, 19 C. A. 638, 48 S. W. 213.

Art. 1362. [786] [673] Certificates of election in such cases shall be issued by whom and bonds taken, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county judge of the county conducting the organization of another county to issue the certificates of election to the officers elected in such organized or reorganized county, and to approve the bonds of such officers, and administer to them the oath of office in accordance with law. [Id. sec. 3.]

Qualifying for office.—When the county judge and county commissioners have been elected with a view to the organization of an unorganized county, two of such commissioners cannot, in connection with the county judge, organize the court before the others have qualified, and before the expiration of the time allowed by law for such qualification. Cassin v. Zavalla County, 70 T. 419, 8 S. W. 97.

Art. 1363. [787] [674] Books, etc., shall be delivered to such officers.—It shall be the duty of all officers of the county from which any new county has been created, or to which any such newly organized or reorganized county has been attached, and the duty also of all other persons who may have in their possession any books, records, maps or other property belonging to such newly organized or reorganized county, to deliver the same to the proper officers of such newly organized or reorganized county within five days after such officers have been legally qualified as such; and any officer or person who shall wilfully fail to make such delivery upon demand made therefor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as provided in the Penal Code. [Id. sec. 4.]

Delivering records to new county.—When a new county is created out of the territory of another, it is the duty of the county clerk of the parent county to deliver any public records pertaining to the new county to the county clerk of the latter county, and it is his duty to give a certified copy of a record pertaining to the county although the record was made before the new county was carved out of the parent county. Hooks v. Colley, 22 C. A. 1, 53 S. W. 56.

Art. 1364. [788] [675] Elections in unorganized counties.—In all cases where a county is not organized, and there is no officer in the same authorized by law to organize such county, the county judge of the nearest county which is organized may order elections for county officers in any such disorganized county, and appoint the presiding officers and managers and clerks of election, as prescribed by law in other cases. [Act March 26, 1848. P. D. 3624.]

CHAPTER THREE

CORPORATE RIGHTS AND POWERS

Art.
1365. County a body corporate.
1366. Suits against.
1367. Inhabitants of, may be jurors, etc., in such suits.
1368. Execution shall not issue against county.
1369. Deeds, grants, etc., to counties valid, etc.
1370. Commissioner to sell real estate of.
1371. Contracts with county valid.
1372. Suits on notes, etc., by county.
1373. Agents to contract for county may be appointed.
1374. Costs in suit against county.

Article 1365. [789] [676] County a body corporate.—Each county which now exists, or which may be hereafter established, shall be a body corporate and politic. [Act May 11, 1846. P. D. 1044.]

County as corporation.—Counties are not corporations in the fullest sense of that term. A county is not liable for injuries caused by a defective bridge. Heigel v. Wichita County, 84 T. 392, 19 S. W. 562, 31 Am. St. Rep. 63.

Unorganized county.—Until a county becomes legally organized for purposes of its own county government it is not to be considered a subdivision of the state, capable of performing legal and political functions, but the legislature can designate the place where instruments affecting property situated in the unorganized county shall be recorded. First Natl. Bank v. McElroy, 51 C. A. 284, 112 S. W. 803.

Liability for torts.—An action can be maintained against a county for damages caused by establishing a public road. Hamilton County v. Garrett, 62 T. 602. And for the value of timber used by an overseer of roads. Watkins v. Walker County, 18 T. 585, 70 Am. Dec. 298.

Counties are not liable for the mere neglect or wrong of their officers, unless made so by statute. Crause v. Harris County, 18 C. A. 375, 44 S. W. 616; Boaz v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 200.

A county is not liable for damages caused by the negligent construction of a ditch by its officers or agents, unless the liability is expressly or by necessary implication imposed by statute. Floria v. Galveston County (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 540.

Injuries to land adjoining a highway by the construction of a ditch therein held not a taking of or injury to private property for which the county was liable. Zavalla County v. Akers (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 245.

A county is not liable for the overflow of a farm due to the negligent construction of a ditch by the county. Siewerssen v. Harris County, 41 C. A. 115, 91 S. W. 333.

Contracts.—See, also, Title 40, Chapter 2.

In an action against a county on a contract alleged to have been made with the county attorney, and ratified by the commissioners' court, but which was such that the commissioners' court had no power to make it, the county could not be estopped from setting up this defense. Baldwin v. Travis County, 40 C. A. 149, 88 S. W. 480.

Payment of a warrant by a county held a ratification of a purchase of certain road machinery in consideration of a safe and a sum of money, so as to pass title to the safe without a bill of sale or an order entered in the commissioner's court. Woodward v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 76.

A county having exercised its option to take the price paid by the county judge for property bought by him at the county's judicial sale, instead of the land, held not entitled to recover the land without restoring the purchase price. Felts v. Bell County, 103 T. 616, 132 S. W. 123.

Art. 1366. [790] [677] Suits against.—No county shall be sued unless the claim upon which such suit is founded shall have first been presented to the county commissioners' court for allowance, and such court shall have neglected or refused to audit and allow the same, or any part thereof. [P. D. 1045.]

Presentation of claim.—In a suit by a county against the treasurer to recover certain moneys in his hands, the defendant has the right to claim commissions due him for collecting money in his hands, without having presented his claim therefor to the court for allowance. Trinity County v. Vickery, 65 T. 554.

Limitation does not run against a school claim during the period of its recognition by the county as a valid claim, and not until after its disallowance. The legislature may require a county to pay a just debt, and thereby enable the creditor to enforce its collection, even after the lapse of such time as would otherwise bar it by limitation. Caldwell County v. Harbert, 68 T. 321, 4 S. W. 607.

A claim for damages against a county for trespass on lands should be presented for allowance before suit. Norwood v. Gonzales Co., 79 T. 218, 14 S. W. 1057.

This article applies to claims by one county against another. Presidio County v. Jeff Davis County (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 177.

This statute protects a county from garnishment. Herring-Hall-Marvin Co. v. Bexar County, 16 C. A. 673, 40 S. W. 145.

A county may sue another county formed out of a portion of its territory for the latter's proportion of the debts of the old county without presenting the claim for allowance. Mills County v. Lampasas County, 90 T. 603, 40 S. W. 403; Id. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 552.

This article does not apply where a part of a county is stricken off and attached to or created into another county, and the new county is sued for its proportion of the existing indebtedness of the parent county as provided for in article 764 under article 9, section 1, of the constitution. Brewster County v. Presidio County, 19 C. A. 638, 48 S. W. 213.

Where a county voluntarily intervenes in a suit against the overseer of a road district for unlawful removal of a fence, and assumes all liability for the overseer's acts, it cannot complain that, to maintain the suit, the claim for damages should have been presented to the commissioners' court, after it has repudiated plaintiff's claim, and the suit has been determined against it. Luckie v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 690.

In an action by a county to recover land granted for services rendered under a voidable conveyance, an objection that the grantee's claim had not been presented to the commissioners' court for allowance was without merit, in view of the fact that the grant was made in consideration of such services. Club Land & Cattle Co. v. Dallas County, 26 C. A. 449, 64 S. W. 872.

This article is not applicable to claims against a county arising under article 6935. The latter article providing a special procedure for cases arising thereunder. Holt v. Rockwall County, 27 C. A. 366, 65 S. W. 390.

This article does not apply in case of trespass to try title to recover land claimed by county as a public road. Bowie County v. Powell (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 237.

County bonds are not such claims as are required by statute to be presented to the commissioners' court before suit. Martin County v. Gillespie County, 30 C. A. 307, 71 S. W. 421.

The rejection by the auditor put it out of the power of the commissioner's court to act upon the claim and amounted to a rejection by that court, bringing it within the terms of this article, and the owner of the claim could sue upon it and establish the claim against the county. Anderson v. Ashe, 99 T. 447, 90 S. W. 874.

The claim may be presented after the commissioners' court has taken steps to appropriate the land, although the actual appropriation has not occurred. Bell County v. Flint (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 329.

Under this article the "neglect" of the commissioners' court to make the allowance is sufficiently shown by evidence that the court has been given a reasonable time within which to act, and has failed to allow the claim. Williams v. Bowie County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 199.

Under this article an individual having a claim against the county for the value of his services in preparing delinquent tax lists must, before suing, present his claim to the commissioners' court for allowance, and the fact that the court had made an order directing the tax collector to institute a suit for delinquent taxes, and to restrain the delinquent taxpayer from paying over to the claimant a sum due on a judgment for delinquent taxes, and a suit against the individual to collect from him all taxes in excess of a specified per cent. that had been collected by him under the contract with the county for the proceeds of delinquent tax lists, was not such a refusal to allow the claim as would excuse the failure to file the claim with the commissioners' court. Stringer v. Franklin County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1168.

This article applies to a suit for damages caused by the opening of a road. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 156.

An action against a county for damages for the cutting by its road supervisor, acting under its commissioners, of an embankment built by plaintiff to impound water for his mill, is not an action for the taking of private property without compensation, though subsequent to the construction of the embankment the public road was so changed as to run across and along the embankment, but is an action for damages within this article, so that the presentation of a claim for the damages and the refusal of the commissioners' court to allow it are conditions precedent to a right to sue. Bogue v. Van Zandt County (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1065.

—— Of set-off.—In an action by a county against a county treasurer for funds of the county, and which he has collected and refuses to pay over, the defendant cannot plead in offset claims for services rendered by him which have not been acted on by the county court. Colorado County v. Beethe, 44 T. 447.

Actions.—Bringing of unauthorized suit held ratified by commissioners. Mills County v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 552.

Counties are not liable for injuries resulting from the negligence of their officers or agents unless made so by statute. Crause v. Harris County, 18 C. A. 375, 44 S. W. 616.

The commissioners' court has the exclusive right to determine whether a suit shall be brought in the name and for the benefit of such county, except in a case where the concurrent or exclusive right is conferred on some officer or tribunal by the legislature to exercise in the same specified case a like discretion. Article 366, which directs the district and county attorney to institute suit in certain contingencies, confers on them no authority to institute suit against the wishes of the commissioners' court to recover back money authorized by the court to be paid out of the county funds. Looscan v. Harris County, 58 T. 511.

In trespass to try title by a county to recover school lands, an agreement in a different action to abide the decision in another action held to estop plaintiff from asserting title to the same land involved in such first named case. Lamar County v. Talley (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1069.

Under this and the preceding article, a county against which any liability exists may be sued after the claim has been presented and litigated. Boaz v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 200.

Parties.—See notes under Art. 1835.

Pleading.—See, also, notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

It is not necessary in a suit brought for the use of a county that the petition should show on its face that the county had authorized it. Such an objection can be taken only by plea in abatement. Smith v. Wingate, 61 T. 54.

For allegations in a suit against a county upon a claim, see Leech v. Wilson County, 62 T. 331.

In a suit against a county for damages for establishing a public road across plaintiff's land, the petition must allege that the particular claim sued on was presented to the commissioner's court, and rejected before the suit can be maintained. Bell County v. Flint (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 329.

A compliance with this article is a condition precedent to bringing suit and if the petition fails to allege compliance it is subject to general demurrer. Yantis v. Montague County, 50 C. A. 403, 110 S. W. 161.

Garnishment.—Statute held to prevent garnishment of county. Herring-Hall-Marvin Co. v. Bexar County, 16 C. A. 673, 40 S. W. 145.

The fact that a county filed an answer and made a defense to garnishment proceedings against it held not to constitute a waiver of its exemption from garnishment. City of Sherman v. Shobe, 94 T. 126, 58 S. W. 949, 86 Am. St. Rep. 825.

In the absence of statute, a county cannot be subject to garnishment. Id.

Art. 1367. [791] [678] Inhabitants may be jurors, etc., in such suits.—In all suits instituted by or against any county, the inhabitants of the county so suing or being sued may be jurors or witnesses, if otherwise competent and qualified according to law. [P. D. 1049.]

Interest as disqualification.—Residents and taxpayers of a county are not disqualified from sitting as jurors in a case in which the county is an interested party. Watson v. De Witt County, 19 C. A. 150, 46 S. W. 1061.

The interest of a taxpayer in a note due the county is too remote to render him incompetent to sit as a juror in an action on such note. Martin v. Somervell County, 21 C. A. 308, 52 S. W. 556.

Art. 1368. [792] [679] Execution shall not issue against county.—No execution shall be issued on any judgment against any county; but, when a judgment shall be rendered against a county, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of such county to settle and pay such judgment in like manner and pro rata as other claims of a similar description are settled and paid by said court. [P. D. 1050.]

Art. 1369. [793] [680] Deeds, grants, etc., to counties valid, etc.—All deeds, grants and conveyances heretofore made, or which may be hereafter made and duly acknowledged, or proven, and recorded as other deeds of conveyance, to any county, or to the courts or commissioners of any county, or any other person or persons, by whatever form of conveyance, for the use and benefit of any county, shall be good and valid to all intents and purposes to vest in such county in fee simple or otherwise all such right, title, interest and estate as the grantor in any such deed or conveyance had at the time of the execution thereof in the lands conveyed and was intended thereby to be conveyed. [P. D. 1051.]

Power to hold land.—Counties may take, hold and dispose of private property for municipal uses, or such uses and purposes as subserve the public good, and the exercise of the legal and subordinate legislative powers with which they may be invested by law. Bell County v. Alexander, 22 T. 351, 73 Am. Dec. 268; Baker v. Panola County, 30 T. 86; Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153; Ryan v. Porter, 61 T. 106. A deed of release by the grantee of land to the state will pass title. Dikes v. Miller, 25 T. Sup. 281, 78 Am. Dec. 571.

Counties may take title to and enjoy real estate without any limitation as to the purpose for which it may be used. Scalf v. Collin Co., 80 T. 514, 16 S. W. 314.

A county can hold an equitable title as well as a legal title, and the mode of conveying title by the county applies to all titles of whatever quality they may be. Bell County v. Felts (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1071.

Art. 1370. [794] [681] Commissioners to sell real estate of.—The county commissioners' court may, by an order to be entered in the minutes of said court, appoint a commissioner to sell and dispose of any real estate of the county at public auction; and the deed of such commissioner, made in conformity to the order of said court, under his proper hand and seal, for and in behalf of the county, duly acknowledged and proven and recorded, shall be sufficient, to all intents and purposes, to convey to the purchasers all the right, title and interest and estate whatever which the county may have in and to the premises to be conveyed; provided, however, that nothing contained in this article shall authorize the county commissioners' court of any county to dispose of any lands given, donated or granted to such county for the purposes of education in any other manner than shall be directed by law. [P. D. 1052.]

Conveyances by commissioners.—A county may not dispose of land at private sale, and a deed made by the clerk, under the order of the court, for such purpose, does not pass title to the land. Ferguson v. Halsell, 47 T. 421.

A private donation of land by the commissioners' court, upon condition that a gristmill shall be erected and maintained thereon, is void. Llano County v. Knowles (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 549.

In the disposition of the county's school lands the commissioners' court has power to appoint a commissioner to sell the lands at public sale, but it has no power to commit to him all the power vested in the county and the commissioners' court by the constitution without restriction, viz.: the power of sale, the discretion to fix terms, prices, rates of interest and other necessary elements of a sale and also the power of adopting the mode and manner of sale. Logan v. Stephens County (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 110.

Where the courthouse and records of the court had been destroyed by fire, the commissioner's authority to sell the land in question could be proved thirty-eight years afterwards, by reading in evidence other deeds that he had executed about the same time and by proving his signature by his son. Hardin County v. Nona Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 824, 825.

—— Ratification.—Where a county had full power to sell school lands as provided by the commissioners' court, but the sale of timber thereon was invalid because made by the county judge under an ultra vires delegation of authority by the commissioners' court, the approval of the sale by the commissioners' court and the receiving of the purchase money and use thereof by the county for school purposes constituted a ratification of the sale barring a recovery by the county. Carter-Kelly Lumber Co. v. Angelina County (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 293.

The order of the commissioners' court approving a sale of timber on school lands need not be in writing to constitute a ratification of the sale. Id.

Non-compliance with statute.—A sale of real estate made otherwise than prescribed by this article confers no title. A deed executed to a party to satisfy a claim against the county by the district clerk by order of the county court would not pass title to such land. Ferguson v. Halsell, 47 T. 421.

A grantor donating land to a county can, by an instrument creating the right, impose conditions for its disposition by county officers in a manner different from that prescribed by the statute; and where the conveyances of such land were made for portions thereof, for a period of forty years, and the records had been burned, leaving no evidence of the character or terms of the original grant to the county, the presumption will be indulged that those officers acted in pursuance of the powers contained in the grant to the county. Wooters v. Hall, 61 T. 15.

An attempted sale not made at public outcry and in the manner provided by this article confers no title upon the purchaser and passes no title out of the county. Bell County v. Felts (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1071.

Contracts respecting lands.—A contract by the commissioners' court with one who had purchased county land, reducing the rate of interest on the price, being prohibited by the constitution, acceptance of the lower rate held not by estoppel to prevent recovery of interest according to original contract. Blackburn v. Delta County, 48 C. A. 370, 107 S. W. 80.

Under the constitution, the commissioners' court of a county held without right to contract with one who had theretofore purchased county land, reducing the rate of interest on the price. Id.

Art. 1371. [795] [682] Contracts with a county valid.—All notes, bonds, bills, contracts, covenants, agreements or writings, made, or to be made, whereby any person is, or shall be, bound to any county, or to the court or commissioners of any county, or to any other person or persons, in whatever form, for the payment of any debt or duty or the performance of any matter or thing to the use of any county, shall be valid and effectual, to all intents and purposes, to vest in said county all rights, interests and actions which would be vested in any individual, if any such contract had been made directly to him. [P. D. 1053.]

Art. 1372. [796] [683] Suits on notes, etc., by county.—Suits may be commenced and prosecuted on such notes, bonds, bills, contracts, covenants, agreements and writings, in the name of such county, or in the name of the person to whom they were made, for the use of the county, as fully and effectually as any person may or can sue on like notes, bills, contracts, covenants, agreements or writing made to him. [P. D. 1054.]

Parties to suit.—See notes under Art. 1835.

Art. 1373. [797] [684] Agents to contract for county may be appointed.—The county commissioners' court may appoint an agent or agents to make any contract on behalf of the county for the erection or repairing of any county buildings, and to superintend their erection or repairing, or for any other purpose authorized by law; and the contract or acts of such agent or agents, duly executed and done, for and on behalf of the county, and within his or their powers, shall be valid and effectual to bind such county, to all intents and purposes. [P. D. 1055.]

Appointment of agents.—The commissioners' court has power to employ attorneys to defend suit against the county. Bank v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 775.

Contract by county to engage physician for certain services, part of which were unauthorized, held valid as to the part which it had power to enter into. Galveston County v. Ducie, 91 T. 665, 45 S. W. 798.

Evidence held to sustain a verdict that there was no contract by a county to employ an architect. Gordon v. Denton County (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 737.

A county held liable for fees of physician secured in an inquest to determine whether deceased was lying down or standing when shot. Polk County v. Phillips, 92 T. 630, 51 S. W. 328.

In action by a county to set aside a contract to convey lands and recover the same, evidence held admissible to show certain person agent for county in making sale. Slaughter v. Coke County, 34 C. A. 598, 79 S. W. 863.

The commissioners' court can appoint an agent to contract on behalf of county for erection or repairing of county buildings, and to superintend their construction, and such contracts made within scope of agent's powers are binding on county. This contemplates express authority to make the particular contract, or one which arises by necessary implication from the power actually granted. Jackson-Foxworth Lumber Co. v. Hutchinson County (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 412.

Where the law imposes on an officer the performance of acts as a part of his official duties, the commissioners' court of the county is without authority to contract with any other person to perform such services. Stringer v. Franklin County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1168.

Under this article the commissioners' court may appoint the county judge or any other agent to make a contract for it for the construction of a courthouse. Allen v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 348.

A contract between a county and a broker by which the latter is authorized to sell school land "at and for the sum of $4 per acre" is not violative of the provision requiring the county to pay the cost of sale, but merely fixes the minimum price at which the land shall be sold. Foard County v. Sandifer, 105 T. 420, 151 S. W. 523.

Powers of agents.—An order of county commissioners authorizing a committee to build a sewer for the county courthouse held to give it no implied authority to agree that persons on the street may connect with the sewer. Fayette County v. Krause, 31 C. A. 569, 73 S. W. 51.

A contract between county and agent for survey and sale of land held not to give the agent an irrevocable power to sell, coupled with an interest. Hollingsworth v. Young County, 40 C. A. 590, 91 S. W. 1094.

Ratification of acts.—The agreement of a committee appointed by county commissioners to build a county sewer, that persons on the street might connect with the sewer, held not ratified by the commissioners. Fayette County v. Krause, 31 C. A. 569, 73 S. W. 51.

Evidence.—In an action against a county for breach of contract employing plaintiff to survey and sell lands, burden held on plaintiff to prove unfairness of the county's action. Hollingsworth v. Young County, 40 C. A. 590, 91 S. W. 1094.

Art. 1374. [798] [685] Costs in suit against county.—When the plaintiff in any suit against a county shall fail to recover a greater amount than the county commissioners' court of such county shall have allowed to such plaintiff on the presentation of his claim to such court, such plaintiff shall pay all costs of such suit. [P. D. 1056.]

As affected by terms of contract.—A county held not liable for costs, where there were several claimants to a fund in its possession whose rights had to be adjudicated. Harris County v. Donaldson, 20 C. A. 9, 48 S. W. 791.

Under an agreement of a county that it would deliver all of certain convict bonds to the prosecuting attorney for suit, but that it should be exempt from liability for costs, the retention of some of such bonds was a failure to perform the condition precedent to its right of exemption from liability for costs in suits on the bonds. Waller County v. McDade, 25 C. A. 280, 60 S. W. 1003.

Right of county to costs.—A county is not entitled to attorney's fees in defending itself against a contract not providing for such fees. Harris County v. Donaldson, 20 C. A. 9, 48 S. W. 791.

CHAPTER FOUR

COUNTY LINES

Art.
1375. Survey made.
1376. Boundary, how marked.
1377. Natural objects to be named.
1378. Notice to other counties.
1379. Oath and bond of surveyors.
1380. Field-notes to be returned and recorded.
1381. In absence of one surveyor the other shall act.
1382. Commissioner of the land office to direct survey in case of disagreement.
1383. Expense to be divided between the counties.
1384. Land district to be surveyed.
1385. Suit to establish boundary; venue; jurisdiction and powers of court; rule for determination of matter.
1386. Land commissioner not to place line on map until filing of certified copy of judgment and field-notes.

Article 1375. [799] Survey made.—Whenever it shall appear to the satisfaction of the county court of any county in this state, or notice shall be given such court by the commissioner of the general land office, that the boundary, or any part thereof, of the county is not sufficiently definite and well defined, such court shall appoint an experienced and competent practical surveyor, whose duty it shall be to ascertain, by actual survey, the boundary, or any part thereof, of said county, and to make and establish the lines and corners in a manner herein prescribed; and the court, in the order making the appointment, shall specify the line or lines to be run, and the corners to be established and marked; and shall in all things conform to the law defining the boundaries of said county. [Acts 1879, p. 137.]

Art. 1376. [800] Boundary how marked.—The initial corners of the surveys herein provided for shall be designated by posts, mounds, or stone monuments; the posts shall be of hewn cedar, cypress or bois d'arc, at least eight inches in diameter, five feet long, and set in the ground not less than three feet; the mounds shall be of stone when practicable, otherwise of earth, and not less than two feet high; that at the end of each mile in said boundary a like post, mound, or stone monument shall be established; the initial corners shall be described on the post or monument established there.

Establishment of lines.—Whether or not a county is within the limits of the state of Texas is a political question and cannot be determined by the judicial department. Harrold v. Arrington, 64 T. 233. The statutory mode of ascertaining the locality of the dividing lines between counties on the ground must be pursued. A suit cannot be maintained by one county against another to establish the true boundary line between them and to enjoin from the exercise of jurisdiction. Guadalupe County v. Wilson County, 58 T. 228. See post, Art. 1382.

When a county line has once been definitely fixed upon the ground by an actual survey made, reported and approved as required by the statute, the county court has no power to order another survey made and thereby establish another boundary line. Jones v. Powers, 65 T. 207.

Commissioner of general land office has no power to re-establish boundary lines which have been duly established. Kaufman County v. McGaughey, 21 S. W. 261, 3 C. A. 655.

This article applies when the boundary lines have never been established. Marsalis v. Creager, 2 C. A. 368, 21 S. W. 545.

Notice is an indispensable prerequisite to a survey. Marsalis v. Garrison (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 920.

In 1882 the commissioners of adjoining counties had no authority or jurisdiction over the establishment of boundary lines between their respective counties. Kaufman County v. McGaughey (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 927.

Art. 1377. [801] Natural objects to be named.—In the field-notes of the surveys of the lines ordered to be run, the surveyor shall give an accurate description of all prominent natural objects crossed by, or adjacent to, said lines, as well as of the corners and lines of surveys on or near said boundaries.

Art. 1378. [802] Notice to other counties.—It shall be the duty of the court making such order to cause a copy thereof to be sent to the county courts of the counties interested in such boundary, stating the time and place, which time shall not be later than twenty days after the meeting of the county court of the county notified, for the commencement of the survey, and such notice shall be given at least ten days before the meeting of said county court; and it shall be the duty of the court so notified to appoint an experienced and competent practical surveyor to proceed at the time and place to assist in running and establishing such line.

Powers of commissioners of one county.—A commissioner's court of one county cannot settle the location of the county boundary line. Wise County v. Montague County, 21 C. A. 444, 52 S. W. 615.

Art. 1379. [803] Oath and bond of surveyors.—The surveyors herein provided for shall take the oath of office prescribed by law for county surveyors, and shall, before entering upon the duties herein prescribed, enter into bond with two or more sureties to be approved by the county court, in the sum of one thousand dollars, payable to the county judge, or his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duty.

Art. 1380. [804] Field-notes to be returned and recorded.—When the line shall have been surveyed and marked as herein provided, it shall be the duty of the surveyor to make due return of the field-notes and map to the county court; which field-notes and map shall be recorded by the clerk, and a certified copy thereof returned to the general land office.

Art. 1381. [805] In the absence of one surveyor the other shall act.—If either of the surveyors appointed to run and mark such line shall fail to attend at the time and place appointed, the one in attendance shall proceed alone to perform the duties assigned him, and make his report to the county court of the county employing him, which, being approved by such court, shall be recorded as evidence of the line in question; and the line so surveyed and marked shall thereafter be regarded as the true boundary line between the counties.

Art. 1382. [806] Commissioner of the land office to direct survey in case of disagreement.—Should the surveyors above provided for fail to agree as to the true boundary line between their respective counties, the facts of such disagreement, with a full statement of the questions at issue between them, shall be by them reported to the commissioner of the general land office, whose duty it shall be to examine the disputed matter at once; and from such data as the maps and archives of his office furnish, shall designate to such surveyors the line to be run, stating at what specific point they shall begin and to what specific point they shall run, adhering as nearly as possible to the line designated in the act creating such county line, which instruction shall be authority for said surveyors to run such line; and the line so run as above directed shall thereafter be the true dividing line between said counties. [Acts of 1879, p. 137.]

Agreements.—No boundary line agreement attempted to be made by a county whereby its title to school land is devested can have any effect unless it is made by the commissioner's court, and is a matter of record. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

Art. 1383. [807] Expense to be divided between counties.—The expense of surveying and marking such line shall be divided between the counties interested, in proportion to the frontage of each county upon the line, and paid for by each county as proportioned. The surveyors appointed as herein provided shall receive for their services the sum of three dollars per mile for each mile run. The expense of establishing the posts, mounds, or stone monuments shall be paid by the counties interested, and they shall be erected under the supervision and direction of the surveyor.

Art. 1384. [808] Land districts to be surveyed.—Before any county in this state, not already organized as a separate land district under existing law, shall be recognized as such, the county court shall cause the boundary lines of the county to be surveyed and marked and the field-notes and map of such survey, duly recorded, returned to the general land office as provided in this chapter.

Art. 1385. Suit to establish boundary; venue; jurisdiction and powers of court; rule for determination of matter.—Notwithstanding the preceding articles of this chapter, any county in this state may bring suit against any adjoining county or counties, for the purpose of establishing the boundary line between them. Such suit shall be brought in the district court of the county in an adjoining judicial district whose boundaries are not affected by the suit, and whose county seat is nearest the county seat of the county suing. And said court shall try said cause as other causes, and shall have full and complete jurisdiction to determine where such boundary line is located, and, if necessary, shall order the same to be remarked and resurveyed. And if, in the trial of any such cause, it shall be found that the boundary line between the counties involved has never been established and marked, or, if marked, has become indefinite and undefined, said court shall have power to re-establish the same and order it marked. And any boundary line so established by such judgment shall thereafter be regarded as the true boundary line between the counties in question; provided, that if it shall be found in any such cause that the boundary line in question has been heretofore established under the law then in force, the same shall be declared to be the true line, and shall be resurveyed and established as such. [Acts 1897, p. 222.]

Authority of court.—The powers conferred upon the district court by this article are very general and they should be restricted in no degree by incomplete proceedings on the part of contesting counties. Jurisdiction is conferred "notwithstanding" the preceding articles and full and complete jurisdiction is given to determine the location of the boundary line whether on the trial it shall appear to have been theretofore established or not. Lampasas County v. Coryell County, 24 C. A. 195, 65 S. W. 68.

This article gives the district court power to determine all matters incident to the existence of the boundary line, including the determination of the fact as to which of two or more lines is the correct one and fixing such line. Presidio County v. Jeff Davis County (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 279.

Conformity to statute.—The burden is on a county to show that its special proceedings for the establishment of boundary lines have been authorized by statute. Wise County v. Montague County, 21 C. A. 444, 52 S. W. 615.

Defenses.—Stale demand and limitations have no application to proceedings to determine the boundary line of counties. Presidio County v. Jeff Davis County (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 278.

Decree and effect thereof.—A decree confirming the location of a county line as established and recognized for half a century should not be overthrown unless error clearly appears. Lampasas County v. Coryell County, 27 C. A. 195, 65 S. W. 67.

Where, in an action between adjoining counties to determine the boundary line between them, the true line is ascertained to be as located by a survey formerly made under direction of the county court, it is immaterial whether such directions were regular or not. Id.

Art. 1386. Land commissioner not to place line on map until filing of certified copy of judgment and field-notes.—Provided, further, that it shall be unlawful for the commissioner of the general land office to mark, fix or place on any of the maps in said office any contested county line at any definite point thereon, until a certified copy of the final judgment of the court, herein provided, is filed in the general land office, together with a certified copy of the field-notes of the line so established by such judgment. [Id.]

CHAPTER FIVE

COUNTY SEATS

Art.
1387. Election for county seats.
1388. Two-thirds vote necessary, when, to create.
1389. Election for removal of, when.
1390. Proceedings for removal of county seat.
1391. Geographical center, how designated.
1392. Who may vote, and form of ballot.
1393. Election, how conducted and ordered.
1394. County seats removed, when.
1395. No change by election until after five years.
1396. Courts held at county seats.
1397. Court house and jail provided.
1398. When commissioners' court may fix place of holding court.
1399. County offices at county seat.

Article 1387. [809] Election for county seats.—In the organization of any county or counties now existing, or hereafter to be created by the legislature, it shall be the duty of the county judge holding the election in such new county for county officers thereof to order an election for the location of a county seat therein, which shall be conducted in the same manner as that regulating the election of the officers of such new county; and the place receiving a majority of all the votes cast by the electors voting on the location of such county seat shall thereafter be the county seat of such county, subject to be removed as other county seats; provided, that when any county has been organized, and no county seat has been located, the county judge of such county shall order an election for the location of a county seat. [Acts of 1883, p. 82.]

Validity of election.—Donation of a lot in a town to induce a voter to vote to establish the county seat at said town is void as against public policy. Roby v. Carter, 25 S. W. 725, 6 C. A. 295.

Art. 1388. [810] Two-thirds vote necessary, when, to create.—No county seat first established in a newly organized county shall be located at any point more than five miles from the geographical center of any county in this state, unless by a two-thirds vote of all the electors voting on the subject in said county. [Acts of 1881, p. 67.]

Art. 1389. [811] Election for removal of, when.—Hereafter, no county seat situated within five miles of the geographical center of any county shall be removed except by a vote of two-thirds of all the electors in said county voting on the subject; nor shall any county seat be removed from a point more than five miles from the geographical center of any county to any other point more than five miles from such center, nor from a point within five miles of the geographical center to any other point within five miles of such center, except by a two-thirds vote of all the electors in said county voting on the subject; provided, that no person shall be allowed to vote except he be a bona fide citizen of the county in which he offers to vote. A majority of said electors, however, voting at such election may remove a county seat from a point more than five miles from the geographical center of the county to a point within five miles of such center; in either event the center to be determined by a certificate from the commissioner of the general land office, in the manner hereinafter set forth. [Acts of 1879, p. 84.]

See Caruthers v. State, 67 T. 132, 2 S. W. 91.

Election in general.—A mandatory writ to compel the transfer of public records to a place claimed to be the county seat at the suit of a private citizen. Walker v. Tarrant County, 20 T. 20; Harrell v. Lynch, 65 T. 146; Ex parte Towles, 48 T. 414.

When the basis of an action for that purpose involves a pecuniary interest not originating in the election, the vote on the removal of the county seat may be inquired into and its proper legal effect determined. Caruthers v. Harnett, 67 T. 127, 2 S. W. 91.

Where any part of an unincorporated town independent of a plat thereof is located within a radius of five miles of the geographical center of a county, the town is within such radius within this article. Ralls v. Parrish, 105 T. 253, 147 S. W. 564.

A county seat is "within five miles" of the geographical center of the county, within this article, where any part of the county seat would be included within a circumference described around such center with a five-mile radius, although the whole of the county seat is not within such circumference. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 810.

Under this article, art. 1397, and art. 1750, the "county seat" does not consist merely of the courthouse, jail, and other public buildings, but consists of the town plot of the town designated as the county seat at the time it is so designated. Id.

Art. 1390. [812] Proceedings for removal of county seat.—When it becomes desirable to remove the county seat of any county, it shall be the duty of the county judge of said county, or, in case of his failure or inability to act, then two of the county commissioners of said county, upon the written application of not less than one hundred freeholders and qualified voters, who are resident citizens of said county thereof, to make an order in writing upon the minutes of said commissioners' court for the holding of an election at the various voting precincts in said county, on a day therein named, which shall not be less than thirty nor more than sixty days from date of said order, for the purpose of submitting the question to the electors of said county; provided, that, when a county seat has been established for a longer term than ten years, it shall require two hundred freeholders and qualified voters to make said application; provided, further, that in counties having less than three hundred and fifty legal voters, to be determined by the number of votes cast at the last preceding election for the state and county officers, such application may be made by one hundred resident freeholders and qualified voters of said county; and provided, further, that, when a county seat has been established for a longer term than forty years, it shall require a majority of the resident freeholders and qualified voters of said county to make the application, said majority of freeholders and qualified voters to be ascertained by the county judge, or, in case of his failure or inability to act, then by any two of the county commissioners of said county, from the assessment rolls thereof. [Acts 1893, p. 164. Acts 1903, p. 118.]

In general.—When a county seat is removed the county will not be enjoined from selling unsold lots at the suit of the donor, who gave the land to the county on the condition of the location of the county seat thereon. Walker v. Tarrant County, 20 T. 16.

No citizen of a county has a vested right in the locality of the county seat by living in or near it, or by living in the county. Walker v. Tarrant County, 20 T. 16, citing Alley v. Denson, 8 T. 297. See, also, McClelland v. Shelby County, 32 T. 17.

Petition.—The word "citizens," as used in the statute providing that a given number of "citizens" may apply for an election to change the county seat, applies only to voters. Scarborough v. Eubank (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 569.

A county seat election, ordered without the requisite number of petitioners, is invalid. Id.

A petition held sufficient to call into exercise the power of a county judge to order an election to determine the question of removal of the county seat. Martin v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 827.

A petition requesting the county judge to order the county commissioners to hold an election to submit to the electors of a county the question whether "it is desirable" to remove the county seat is sufficient to authorize the judge to order an election to determine the question of removal of the county seat. Id.

The validity of an election for the removal of a county seat cannot be questioned on the ground that the petition for the election was not signed by a sufficient number of the freeholders and electors of the county. Id.

Order of county judge.—An entry of an order in any book containing other entries of a like nature is sufficient. It is not necessary that the order should enumerate the places to be voted for. Whitaker v. Dillard, 81 T. 359, 16 S. W. 1084.

The action of the county judge in passing upon the sufficiency of a petition for a removal of a county seat (as to number of names and qualifications of the signers, etc.), is conclusive, and his action cannot be called in question upon a contest, and the election annulled after a legal majority of qualified voters have voted for the change sought to be accomplished. Scarbrough v. Eubank, 93 T. 106, 53 S. W. 573.

An order of a judge in a county seat removal election held to include a determination that the place to which the county seat was removed was within five miles of the center of the county. Kilgore v. Jackson, 55 C. A. 99, 118 S. W. 819.

Location of new county seat.—A vote of the electors of a county to remove the county seat to a designated town had reference to the town as constituted by the aggregation of inhabited houses in close proximity to each other and the area appurtenant thereto, and not to the town as designated on a plat filed the day before the election and of which the electors had no notice; the town being unincorporated. Ralls v. Parrish, 105 T. 253, 147 S. W. 564.

The intention of the voters at the time of the selection of a new county seat must control in determining its location. Id.

Invalid proceedings.—A voter has no property right in the location of the county seat, and therefore an unlawful removal deprives him of no right. The depreciation in the value of his property is not a wrong for which equity, in the absence of a legal remedy, will give redress. Harrell v. Lynch, 65 T. 146.

Abatement of mandamus proceedings.—See notes at end of Title 37, Chapter 7.

Art. 1391. [813] Geographical center, how designated.—The commissioner of the general land office, upon being notified by the county judge of any county that a proposition is submitted to the people of such county, or that it is desirable on the part of the people thereof, that the center of such county should be designated, preliminary to the removal of any county seat, shall, from the maps, surveys and other data on file in his office, designate the center of such county, and shall certify the same to the county judge of such county, who shall cause the same to be spread upon the records of deeds of his county. [Acts 1879, p. 84.]

Issuance and effect of certificate.—Where the land commissioner's certificate designated the center of the county "to be a point within the boundaries of the R. O. W. McManus 320-acre survey, near the center of said survey" it was a sufficient designation. Kilgore v. Jackson, 55 C. A. 99, 118 S. W. 820, 821.

Where, after the commissioner of the general land office had once certified the geographical center of a county, a new certification was made by him on the application of the county judge prior to proceedings for a change of the county seat, and neither certificate was attacked for fraud or mistake, it must be presumed, especially when not clearly denied, that since the making of the first certificate there had been such changes in the maps, surveys, and data on file in the land office pertaining to the county from which such certificates were required to be made, as to change the location of the geographical center of the county. Parrish v. Ralls (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 933.

Since such certificate depended on surveys and objects called for in field notes, which were subject to change during passing years, it was intended that the commissioner should make such designation and certificates when called on to do so, and hence the fact that the center of a county had been once certified by the commissioner did not preclude a subsequent certification on application to the county judge. Id.

The validity of a certificate of the commissioner of the land office locating the geographical center of a county held not affected by his subsequent revocation of it under a mistake. Martin v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 827.

The question of determining the geographical center of a county as a basis for an election for the removal of the county seat is committed to the commissioner of the land office, and his certificate is conclusive in the absence of fraud, or such gross mistake as implies fraud. Id.

Where the method pursued by the commissioner of the land office to locate the geographical center of a county as a basis for an election to remove the county seat was substantially correct, any question of mistake in fixing the center as certified to by him, as disclosed by the method pursued, was immaterial. Id.

Under this article, the commissioner may issue a certificate whenever any election for a county seat is ordered, and the voters at each county seat contest are entitled to know from such certificate made at the time of the election of the location of the geographical center of the county, and while such a certificate is designed to serve in such election as evidence, and may not be impeached except for fraud or gross mistake, it is not intended to serve as evidence indefinitely. Ralls v. Parrish, 105 T. 253, 147 S. W. 564.

The giving by the commissioner of the general land office of a certificate showing the geographical center of a county, as required by this article, is a ministerial act, and it may be done under his supervision, or by some one employed by him, and a certificate purporting to be the commissioner's act is valid, though the manual work necessary to determine the geographical center is done by an employé. Id.

Art. 1392. [814] Who may vote and form of ballot.—All persons who are qualified electors under the constitution and laws of the state shall be entitled to vote at said election; and, on each ticket, the voter shall write or cause to be written or printed: "For removal to ....." [inserting the name of the place]; or, should the voter be in favor of the county seat remaining where the same is already located, he shall write or cause to be written or printed on his ticket: "For remaining at ....." [inserting the name of the place]. [Id.]

Art. 1393. [815] Election how conducted and ordered.—The county judge or commissioners shall order said election in each voting precinct in said county, which shall be conducted, as near as may be, as elections for county officers; and the officers holding the election shall make return thereof to the officer ordering said election, within ten days after the same was held, who shall then proceed to open said returns and count the same, and declare the result, which shall be entered upon the records of said commissioners' court, and shall also state the name of the place from which the same is removed, and the name of the place to which the same is removed; and a certified copy of such entry shall thereupon be, by the county clerk of said county, recorded in the proper record deeds of such county. [Id.]

Declaration of result.—Until the order is set aside or vacated, the town therein named is the county seat, and the burden is on the one assailing it to show that it does not correctly name the town. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1089.

Contest of election.—In a proceeding to contest a county-seat election brought after the result is declared the sufficiency of the petition on which the election was ordered may be determined. Scarborough v. Eubank (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 569.

An election for the removal of a county seat cannot be contested on the ground that the county judge ordered it without the requisite number of qualified applicants. Scarbrough v. Eubank, 93 T. 106, 53 S. W. 573.

On a county seat election contest, the votes of a certain precinct held not to be excluded for irregularities in making the returns. Durham v. Rogers, 48 C. A. 232, 106 S. W. 906.

On appeal from a judgment ordering a new election on a county seat election contest held, that judgment should be rendered in favor of a certain place as county seat as claimed by the appellees, who had filed cross-assignments of error, notwithstanding their failure to perfect an appeal. Id.

Ballots at a county seat election held not to be excluded for not bearing the signature of the presiding election officer. Id.

Burden of showing that town declared selected as county seat was not within five miles of center of county held to be upon party contesting selection. Wallis v. Williams, 50 C. A. 623, 110 S. W. 785.

Contention that town contesting for selection as county seat was not shown to be more than five miles from center of county held not entitled to consideration on appeal from order of county court declaring another town selected, where the order was not contested on the ground asserted in the contention. Id.

The burden was on parties contesting a decision that an election for the removal of the county seat had resulted favorably to removal to show that the old county seat town was within a radius of five miles of the center of the county, and that the voters originally voted for the county seat, as located. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1089.

Evidence, in a suit by citizens of a town to contest an election by which the county seat was removed to another town, held to sustain a finding that in voting the county seat of such town the voters intended to vote with reference to the actual location of the building, and not to the town plat. Id.

Art. 1394. [816] County seats removed, when.—When the entry mentioned in the preceding article has been made, the county seat, if the election be held to move the county seat from a point within five miles of the geographical center to a point more or less than five miles from the geographical center, or from a point more than five miles from the geographical center, to any other point more than five miles from such center, shall be removed to the place receiving the votes of two-thirds of all the electors voting on the subject; and such place shall thereafter be the county seat of such county. But, if the election be held to move the county seat from a point more than five miles from the geographical center to a point within five miles of such center, then the county seat shall be moved to the place receiving a majority of all the electors in the county voting at such election, and such place shall thereafter be the county seat of such county. [Id.]

Count of votes.—It is proper to count for the geographical center the votes cast for "the center of the county." Whitaker v. Dillard, 81 T. 359, 16 S. W. 1084.

Recognition of validity of new location.—Change of county seat held invalid, although recognized as valid by public and officers. Presidio County v. Jeff Davis County (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 278.

Art. 1395. [817] No change by election until after five years.—Whenever an election for the location or removal of a county seat shall have been voted on by the electors of any county and the question settled by said electors, it shall not be lawful for a like application to be made for the same purpose within five years thereafter. [Id.]

Art. 1396. [818] [704] Courts shall be held at county seat.—All terms of the district, county and county commissioners' courts shall be held at the county seat. [R. S. 1879, 704.]

Cited, Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 366.

Art. 1397. [819] [705] Court house, jail, etc., to be provided.—It shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of each county, as soon as practicable after the establishment of a county seat, or after its removal from one place to another, to provide a court house and jail for the county, and offices for county officers at such county seat, and keep the same in good repair. [R. S. 1879, 705.]

County buildings.—Whether a courthouse and jail are needed by a county is for sole determination by the commissioners. Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1170.

County commissioners can create a debt to construct a courthouse and jail, if provision for a tax is made. Id.

County commissioners have power to erect a courthouse and jail under a contract providing for payment of the contractors with warrants drawn against the courthouse and jail funds, though the payments are not all within the year of the making of the contract or construction of the building, and to provide for interest on any deferred payments evidenced by such warrants. Id.

Authority of county commissioners to contract for construction of a courthouse cannot arise from estoppel, acceptance, or ratification. Id.

Const. art. 11, § 2, requiring courthouses to be provided for by general law, limits county commissioners' power to construct courthouses to the manner and means so provided. Id.

Const. art. 8, § 9, limiting the rate of taxation for county purposes, limits the power of the legislature under art. 11, § 2, requiring courthouses to be provided for by general law, as well as county commissioners in acting under such law. Id.

The power of county commissioners to provide for construction of a courthouse otherwise than from a sale of bonds was not abrogated by Act May 26, 1899 (Acts 26th Leg. c. 149), nor by Act April 28, 1903 (Acts 28th Leg. c. 4), authorizing issuance of county bonds. Id.

The "county seat" does not consist merely of the courthouse, jail, and other public buildings, but consists of the town plot of the town designated as the county seat at the time it is so designated. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 810.

Art. 1398. [820] When commissioners' court may fix place of holding court.—Until the county seats of new counties are established, as required by the provisions of this chapter, the courts of such new counties shall be held at such place as may be appointed by the county commissioners' court of such county. [Acts 1879, p. 84.]

Art. 1399. [821] [706] Officers shall keep offices at county seats.—The county judge, sheriff, clerks of the district and county courts, county treasurer, assessor of taxes and collector of taxes, county surveyor and county attorney of the several counties of this state shall keep their several offices at the county seats of their respective counties. [Act March 16, 1848. Act May 13, 1848. R. S. 1879, 706. O. & W. 282, 284.]

CHAPTER SIX

COUNTY BOUNDARIES

Article 1400. [822] Boundaries as established, adopted, and acts creating continued in force.—The county boundaries of the counties in this state as now recognized and established are adopted as the true boundaries of such counties, and the acts creating such counties and defining the boundaries are continued in force.

New counties.—The following new counties have been created: Armstrong, Acts 1913, p. 60; Brooks, Acts 1911, p. 55; Culbertson, Acts 1911, p. 53; Dunn, Acts S. S. 1913, p. 86; Jim Hogg, Acts 1913, p. 133; Jim Wells, Acts 1911, p. 58; Kleberg, Acts 1913, p. 14; Real, Acts 1913, p. 264; Willacy, Acts 1911, p. 83.

Incorrect boundaries.—Defining the boundaries of Childress county, see Wortham v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 702.

An established and definitely marked boundary line between two counties, recognized by the commissioner of the general land office and the two counties at the time of the adoption of this article providing that the county boundaries as recognized and established are adopted as the true boundaries, is the boundary line, though not mathematically correct. Stephens County v. Palo Pinto County (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1006.

Judicial notice.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

[823] [934] Duty of commissioners' court to procure ledger, etc.—The several county commissioners' courts shall each procure a well-bound ledger and index, and shall cause to be entered in said book a full, complete and orderly statement of the condition of the finances of the county.

Art. 1402. [824] [935] Duty of county clerk to keep accounts.—It is hereby made the duty of the clerk of the county court to open and keep in said book, which shall be known as a finance ledger, an account with each and every officer of the county, district, or state, who is now, or may hereafter be authorized or required by law to receive or collect any money or other property for the use of, or belonging to, the county. The clerk shall also keep such other accounts as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title; that all items shall be entered daily under their respective heads, and said finance ledger shall be at all times subject to the inspection of the public. [Acts 1893, p. 160.]

Cited, Hall v. Bell County (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 178.

Art. 1403. [824a] [935a] Same.—It shall be the duty of the said clerk to balance each account so kept, and make a tabular statement, under oath, at each regular term of the commissioners' court for the three months next preceding the month when such court meets in regular session, to be presented to said court during the second day of its term, specifying therein the names of the creditors of said county, and the items of indebtedness, with their respective dates of accrual, and also the names of persons to whom moneys have been paid, with the amounts paid each; the names of persons from whom moneys have been received, with the date of receipt, and for what account received, during the quarter for which such statement is prepared; said statement shall also show the amount to the credit or debit of each fund separately. [Id.]

Art. 1404. [824b] [935a] Same.—It shall be the duty of said clerk, immediately after the first regular term of the commissioners' court in each year, to publish for one time in some weekly newspaper published in his county (or if there be no paper published therein, then by posting four copies of such exhibit, one in each commissioners' precinct, one of which shall be at the court house door, the other three at public places in such precincts), an exhibit showing the aggregate amount received and the aggregate amount paid out of each fund for the four preceding quarters, and the balance to the credit or debit of each fund; also the amount of indebtedness of said county, with their respective dates of accrual, and to whom and for what due; also the amount to the debit or credit of each officer or other persons with whom an account is kept. The cost for publishing the same shall be paid by order of the commissioners' court out of the general fund of the county. [Id.]

Art. 1405. [824c] [935b] Compensation of clerk.—The clerk shall receive annually as compensation for the labor performed in keeping the finance ledger as provided for in article 1402, and making the quarterly statement as provided for in article 1403, the sum of five dollars for each one thousand dollars tax assessed as due the county, to be paid quarterly on order of the commissioners' court out of the general fund of the county; provided, the same be not less than one hundred nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars per annum.

Art. 1406. [825] [936] Accounts shall be opened how, and shall be indexed.—Said accounts shall be opened by stating at the top of the page the name of the officer and his office; and all of said accounts shall be properly indexed for convenient reference.

Art. 1407. [826] [937] Account with the tax collector.—The accounts of the tax collector shall be kept as follows: A separate account shall be kept for each separate fund that may be upon the tax rolls; each account shall state the name of the collector, the character of the fund entered therein, and the year for which the same is assessed.

Art. 1408. [827] [938] Receipt of collector for tax rolls.—Whenever the tax rolls are ready for delivery to the tax collector, the court or officer having control of the same shall take from the collector a written receipt for the same, specifying the amount therein assessed and due the county, stating separately the amount assessed to each fund, and shall deliver said receipt to the clerk of the county court, who shall charge the collector with the amount stated in said receipt in the proper account; and said amounts shall be treated as debts due the county by the collector.

Art. 1409. [828] [939] How the collector may discharge his indebtedness.—The collector shall discharge said indebtedness within the time prescribed by law, by filing with said clerk receipts for the same, as follows:

1. The commission due the collector.
2. The assessor's receipt for commissions due such assessor, if any are to be paid by the county.
3. Proper vouchers for such payments as he is now, or may hereafter be, required to pay out of any money on hand.
4. The receipt of the county treasurer for the money paid into the treasury.

Art. 1410. [829] [940] Collector shall make separate lists of indigent and delinquent taxpayers, etc.—The collector shall make separate lists of the indigent and delinquent taxpayers, showing their names, and the amount due by each taxpayer; and the court shall carefully examine said indigent and delinquent list, and shall make an order and enter the same upon the minutes of the court, stating the names and amounts that are adjudged uncollectible; and the collector shall have credit for the amounts included in said order in the proper accounts.

Art. 1411. [830] [941] No credit shall be entered for delinquent taxes until allowed by the court.—No credit for indigent or delinquent taxes shall be entered in said collector's accounts until an order of the court has been made and entered allowing the same.

Art. 1412. [831] [942] Taxes for each year shall be kept separate.—In keeping accounts with the collector, the taxes assessed for each year shall be kept separate and distinct.

Art. 1413. [832] [943] Tax collector going out of office shall deliver tax rolls to successor, etc.—Whenever a tax collector shall go out of office, he shall deliver to his successor the tax rolls in his possession, and shall receive from his successor a receipt in writing for the amount of taxes due on the tax rolls so delivered, specifying the amount of each fund and each year separately, and also the amount due on the indigent and delinquent list; which receipts he shall deliver to the clerk of the county court, who shall enter them to the credit of the collector presenting them, to the extent that the same are allowed by the court as hereinbefore provided, and shall charge the amounts so credited to the successor in office of such collector, in the proper accounts.

Art. 1414. [833] [944] Collector shall collect occupation tax, and receipt for same.—All occupation taxes due the county shall be collected by the tax collector of the county without assessment, and the collector shall give to the party paying the tax a receipt in writing, stating the name of the person paying the same, the occupation paid for, the time such occupation is to be pursued, and the amount collected for the state and for the county.

Art. 1415. [834] [945] County clerk shall issue occupation license, when.—Upon the presentation of the receipts provided for in the preceding article to the clerk of the county court of the county in which such tax has been paid, such clerk shall issue a license in the name of the state or county, or both, in accordance with the tax paid, to the person paying such tax, authorizing him to pursue the occupation named in such receipt during the time for which he has paid the tax.

Art. 1416. [835] [946] County clerk shall make two reports of licenses issued at end of each month.—Said clerk shall, at the end of every month, make two reports in writing, one of licenses issued on taxes paid to the state, which he shall forward to the comptroller of public accounts, by mail; the other of licenses issued on taxes paid to the county, and file the same in his office.

Art. 1417. [836] [947] What the reports shall state, etc.—The reports required by the preceding article shall state the name of the licensee, the occupation, the time for which the license is issued and the amount of taxes paid therefor, and shall be dated and signed officially by such clerk and attested by his seal of office.

Art. 1418. [837] [948] Clerk shall keep occupation tax account with collector.—The clerk shall keep an occupation tax account with the collector of the county, in which he shall charge the collector with all licenses issued for the county; and the collector shall have credit in said account for his commissions, and the amount paid into the treasury upon filing the proper receipt of the county treasurer with such clerk.

Art. 1419. [838] [949] Clerk shall keep account with sheriff.—An account shall be kept by the clerk with the sheriff of each county, in which such sheriff shall be charged with all judgments, fines, forfeitures and penalties, payable to the county, rendered in the district or county courts of the county, or any other court of his county, and with the collection of which he is, by law, made chargeable.

Art. 1420. [839] [950] How sheriff may free himself from liability under preceding article.—The sheriff may free himself from liability from the charge required in the preceding article by—

1. Producing the receipt of the county treasurer showing the payment of such judgment, fine, forfeiture or penalty.
2. By showing to the satisfaction of the commissioners' court that the same cannot be collected, or that the same has been discharged by imprisonment or labor, or by escape, without his fault or neglect; and none of the credits herein provided for, except those on the receipts of the treasurer, shall be entered without an order of the commissioners' court allowing the same.

Art. 1421. [840] [951] Clerks, etc., shall report fines, judgments and jury fees monthly.—Clerks of the district and county courts, county judges, county treasurers, sheriffs, district and county attorneys, constables and justices of the peace, who shall collect or handle any money for the use of the county, shall make a full and complete report, under oath, in writing, to the commissioners' court, at each regular term thereof, of all fines imposed and collected and all judgments rendered and collected for the use of the county, and all jury fees collected in their respective courts in favor of, or for the use of, the county; and at the same time to present their receipts and vouchers showing what disposition has been made of the money collected, fines imposed and judgments rendered; which reports, receipts and vouchers shall be carefully examined by the said commissioners' court, and, if found to be correct, shall cause the clerk to enter the same on the financial ledger, and, if found to be incorrect, shall summon said officer before them, and have the same corrected; and said reports, receipts and vouchers shall be filed in the county clerk's office. [Acts 1887, p. 36.]

Cited, Hall v. Bell County (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 178.

Art. 1422. [841] [952] What the reports shall show.—The reports required by the preceding article shall state fully—

1. The name of the party fined and the amount of the fine, or the name of the party against whom judgment was rendered and the amount of such judgment, as the case may be.

2. The style and number of the cases in which fines have been imposed or judgments rendered, and the date thereof.

3. The amount of jury fees collected, and the style and number of the case in which each jury fee was collected and from whom collected.

Art. 1423. [842] [953] Fines imposed and judgments rendered by justices shall be charged against them, etc.—Fines imposed and judgments rendered by justices of the peace shall be charged against the justice of the peace imposing or rendering the same; and he may discharge said indebtedness by filing with the clerk of the county court the treasurer's receipt for the amount thereof, or by showing to the satisfaction of the commissioners' court that he has used due diligence to collect the same without avail, or that the same have been satisfied by imprisonment or labor.

Art. 1424. [843] [954] District attorney shall make report, etc.—The district attorney of each district shall, at each term of the district court for each county in his district, make a report in writing, to the clerk of the county court, of all moneys received by him since the last term of the district court for such county, for the use of such county.

Art. 1425. [844] [955] County attorney shall make report.—The county attorney of each county in the state shall make a similar report to the one required in the preceding article to the clerk of the county court of his county, at the end of each month.

Art. 1426. [845] Judgment not collectible may be sold.—Whenever the principal and sureties upon any judgment, the proceeds of which revert to, and belong to, any county, are insolvent so that under any existing process of law said judgment or any part thereof can not be collected, the commissioners' court of said county are hereby constituted a board to dispose of such judgment, and are hereby empowered and authorized, by such advertising as they may deem necessary, to offer for sale, as they may deem to be the best interests of the county, all the right of the county to such judgment. And, if by public sale, if the amount bid on the same shall not be deemed sufficient, they shall refuse to accept the same, and dispose of the same in any manner deemed by them most advantageous to the interest of the county, and, upon sale, shall make a proper assignment of said judgment to the purchaser. [Acts 1879, p. 9.]

Constitutionality.—This article is not in contravention of section 55, article 3, of the constitution, prohibiting the legislature from authorizing a release or relinquishment of an obligation due a county. Lindsey v. State, 96 T. 586, 74 S. W. 751.

Judgment debtor.—The commissioners cannot compromise with, nor sell to judgment debtor either directly or indirectly a judgment in favor of the county obtained on a bail bond. Lindsey v. State (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 334.

Art. 1427. [846] [956] Any officer collecting money for county shall report the same.—When any officer collects money belonging to, and for the use of, any county, he shall, except where otherwise provided in this title, forthwith report the same in writing to the clerk of the county court of the county to which such money belongs, stating fully in such report from whom collected, the amount collected, the time when collected, and by virtue of what authority or process collected.

Sureties.—This article binds the sureties of an officer for such moneys only as he receives in his official capacity. Henderson County v. Richardson, 15 C. A. 699, 40 S. W. 38.

Validity of settlement.—The manner of settlement of the payment by a judge to the county of property bought at a sheriff's sale held valid. Felts v. Bell County, 103 T. 616, 132 S. W. 123.

Art. 1428. [847] [957] Money collected by officer shall be charged to him, etc.—When any officer reports to the clerk of the county court any money collected by such officer for the use of the county, the amount of money so collected shall be charged to such officer, and he may discharge himself from such indebtedness by producing the receipt of the proper county treasurer therefor.

Charge against officer.—Where a county judge by purchasing property at a sheriff's sale was accountable to the county for the purchase price, the county's crediting itself on a debt owing him to the extent of the purchase had the same effect as if the money was paid by him. Felts v. Bell County, 103 T. 616, 132 S. W. 123.

Art. 1429. [848] [958] Estray account.—There shall also be kept in the ledger, provided for in article 1401, an estray account, in which shall be entered on the debit side of each application made to the clerk of the county court to estray any animal in his county by entering the date of the application, the name of the person estraying, and a brief description of the animal, or animals, to be estrayed; and the amount of such charge shall be left blank until said person shall file his account of the sale of said animal or animals; and, upon the filing of said account, the net amount due the county from such sale shall be entered in the blank.

Art. 1430. [849] [959] Same subject.—When the receipt of the county treasurer is presented to the clerk, showing any amount paid into the treasury on account of the sale of an estray, the same shall be entered on the credit side of the account, showing the date, name of payer, amount paid and a brief description of the estray, and such amount shall be charged on the debit side of the county treasurer's account.

Art. 1431. [850] [960] Clerk shall keep account with county treasurer.—An account shall also be kept in said ledger by the clerk with the county treasurer, in which such treasurer shall be charged separately with the amount of each fund for which he gives a receipt to the sheriff, collector, or other person paying the same into the treasury; and such treasurer shall have credit for all moneys paid out by him, when the commissioners' court has approved his reports of the same, and for his legal commissions.

Art. 1432. [851] [961] County treasurer shall register claims against the county.—The county treasurer of each county shall keep a well-bound book in which he shall register all claims against his county, when presented to him for registration; and no claim, or any part thereof, against a county shall be paid by such county treasurer, nor shall the same, or any part thereof, be received by any officer in payment of any indebtedness to the county, until it has been duly registered in accordance with the provisions of this title.

Payment according to classification.—See notes under Art. 1433.

Art. 1433. [852] [962] Claims shall be classified.—Claims against a county shall be registered in three classes, as follows:

1. All jury scrip and scrip issued for feeding jurors.
2. All scrip issued under the provisions of the road law or for work done on roads and bridges.
3. All the general indebtedness of the county, including feeding and guarding prisoners, and paupers' claims.

Payment according to classification.—The treasurer shall pay off claims in each class in the order in which they are registered. Clarke & Courts v. San Jacinto County, 18 C. A. 204, 45 S. W. 315.

The holder of a registered claim can insist that the claim be paid as provided in the above article notwithstanding the provisions of articles 1438 and 1439 giving the commissioners' court power to create other classes of funds. Id.

Under articles 1432–1437, the county treasurer shall register all claims against the county and shall pay off each class in the order registered. Shock v. Colorado County, 52 C. A. 473, 115 S. W. 63.

Art. 1434. [853] [963] Manner of registering claims.—Each claim shall be entered in the register, stating the class to which it belongs, the name of the payee, the amount, the date of the claim, the date of registration, the number of such claim, by what authority issued, and for what service the same was issued.

Judgment against county.—When a warrant is issued on the treasurer and not paid because the fund upon which it was drawn has been used to pay claims of a different class a judgment may be had against the county. Clarke & Courts v. San Jacinto County, 18 C. A. 204, 45 S. W. 315.

Judgment held properly allowed against a county for refusal to pay warrant. Id.

Art. 1435. [854] [964] What shall be written on registered claim.—When a claim has been registered, the treasurer shall write on the face of the same its registered number, the word "registered," the date of such registration, and shall sign his name officially thereto.

Art. 1436. [855] [965] Claims shall be numbered, in what order.—Claims shall be numbered in the order presented, and, if more than one claim is presented at one and the same time, they shall be numbered in the order of their date.

Art. 1437. [856] [966] Order in which claims shall be paid.—The treasurer shall pay off the claims in each class in the order in which they are registered.

Art. 1438. [857] [967] Classification of county funds.—The funds received by the county treasurer shall be classed as follows:

1. All jury fees, all money received from the sale of estrays, and all occupation taxes; and this class of funds shall be appropriated to the payment of all claims registered in class first, described in article 1433.

2. All money received under any of the provisions of the road and bridge law, including the penalties recovered from railroads for failing to repair crossings, prescribed in article 6494, and all fines and forfeitures; and this fund shall be appropriated to the payment of all claims registered in class second.

3. All money received, not otherwise appropriated herein or by the commissioners' court; and the funds of this class shall be appropriated to the payment of all claims registered in class third. [Const., art. 16, sec. 24.]

Art. 1439. [858] [968] Commissioners' court may create other classes of funds, etc.—The commissioners' court shall have power to cause such other accounts to be kept, creating other classes of funds, as it may deem proper, and require the scrip to be issued against the same and registered accordingly.

Art. 1440. [859] [969] Said court may transfer one class of funds to another, except, etc.—The commissioners' court shall have power, by an order to that effect, to transfer the money in hand from one fund to another, as in its judgment is deemed necessary and proper, except that the funds which belong to class first shall never be diverted from the payment of the claims to which the same are appropriated by article 1438, unless there is an excess of such funds.

Art. 1441. [860] [970] County treasurer shall report registered claims each month.—The county treasurer shall, at the end of each month, file in the office of the clerk of the county court of his county a report in writing, showing the total amount of claims registered by him during said month, stating each class separately.

Art. 1442. [861] [971] Clerk shall enter report upon ledger, etc.—The clerk with whom the report required by the preceding article is filed shall enter the same upon the ledger under the head of "Registered indebtedness of the county," keeping a separate account of each class of indebtedness, and, from the reports of the treasurer of disbursements made, credit said accounts with the total amount of vouchers of each class of claims paid.

Art. 1443. [862] [972] Party receiving payment of claim shall receipt thereon.—The county treasurer, or any other officer disbursing money for the county, or receiving county claims in payment of dues of any kind, shall require the party receiving payment of, or credit for the same, his agent or attorney, to receipt in writing upon the face of such claim for the amount so paid or received thereon.

Art. 1444. [863] [973] Officer receiving claim in payment of debt to county shall report list of same.—Every officer who shall collect any fine, penalty, forfeiture, judgment, tax or other indebtedness due the county, in claims against the county, shall keep a descriptive list of such claims, and shall when he reports such collection file with his report a list stating the party in whose favor each claim was issued, the class and registered number thereof, the name of the party paying in such claim, and the amount received, and for what purpose received.

Art. 1445. [864] [974] Claims received by other officer than county treasurer shall be reported to county treasurer.—Claims received for the county by any officer other than the treasurer shall be turned over together with the list mentioned in the preceding article to the county treasurer, who shall give a proper receipt for the same, and the county treasurer shall file said list with his report in the office of the clerk of the county court.

Art. 1446. [865] [975] County treasurer shall keep accounts, etc.—The county treasurer shall keep accurate accounts showing all the transactions of his office in detail; and all warrants by him paid off shall be punched at the time he pays them; and the vouchers relating to and accompanying each report shall be presented to the commissioners' court with the corresponding report, when it shall be the duty of said court to compare the vouchers with the report, and all proper vouchers shall be allowed and the treasurer credited with the amount thereof. [Acts of 1889, p. 6.]

Art. 1447. [866] [976] Claim shall be canceled, when and how.—When a claim presented as a voucher has been found by the court to be correct, the court shall cause the same to be canceled by writing or stamping upon the face thereof the word "canceled," and the clerk shall attest the same by his official signature.

Art. 1448. [807] [977] Report of treasurer, order approving; to recite what; credit.—When the commissioners' court has compared and examined the quarterly report of the treasurer, and found the same correct, it shall cause an order to be entered upon the minutes of the court, stating the approval thereof, which order shall recite separately, the amount received and paid out of each fund by the treasurer since the preceding treasurer's quarterly report, and the balance of such fund, if any, remaining in the treasurer's hands, and the court shall cause the proper credit to be made in the accounts of the treasurer, in accordance with said order. [Acts 1897, p. 27.]

Art. 1449. [867] [977] Commissioners to inspect and count cash, etc., in hands of treasurer, etc.—Said court shall actually inspect and count all the actual cash and assets in the hands of the treasurer belonging to the county at the time of the examination of his said report. [Id.]

School fund embraced.—The county school fund was embraced in this article requiring the county funds to be counted by the commissioners' court. Poole v. Burnett County, 97 T. 77, 76 S. W. 426.

Art. 1450. [867] [977] Affidavit of compliance, etc.; filing, record and publication of, etc.—Prior to the adjournment of each regular term of the court, the county judge and each of the commissioners shall make affidavit in writing that the requirements of articles 1448 and 1449 have been in all things fully complied with by them at said term of said court, and that the cash and other assets mentioned in said county treasurer's quarterly report made by said treasurer to said court, and held by him for the county, have been fully inspected and counted by them, giving the amount of said money and other assets in his hands; which affidavits of the members shall be filed with the county clerk of the county, and by him recorded in the minutes of the said county commissioners' court of the term at which the same were filed; and the same shall be published in some newspaper published in the county, if there be a newspaper published in the county, for one time, to be paid for at the same rate as other legal notices. [Id.]

Art. 1451. [868] [978] Commissioners' court shall examine and correct all accounts and reports, etc.—The commissioners' court shall, at each regular term, examine all accounts and reports relating to the finances of the county, and compare the same with the vouchers accompanying them, and cause such corrections to be made as are necessary, in order to make said accounts and reports correct, and shall cause all orders made by them, appertaining to said accounts and reports, to be properly entered upon the minutes of said court and noted upon said accounts and reports.

Art. 1452. [869] [979] Reports and vouchers shall be filed and preserved in county clerk's office.—All reports and vouchers shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court, and shall be carefully preserved therein, and shall be briefly noted in the proper account upon the ledger.

Art. 1453. [870] [980] District judge shall appoint committee to examine into the finances of county.—At each term of the district court, the district judge, upon request of the grand jury, may appoint a committee consisting of three citizens of the county, men of good moral character and intelligence, and experienced accountants, to examine into the condition of the finances of the county.

Art. 1454. [871] [981] Duty of such committee.—It shall be the duty of the committee provided for in the preceding article to examine all the books, accounts, reports, vouchers and orders of the commissioners' court relating to the finances of the county that have not been examined and reported upon by a previous committee; to count all the money in the office of the county treasurer belonging to the county, and to make such other examination as to them may seem necessary and proper in order to ascertain the true condition of the finances of the county, and the court shall, if necessary, upon the application of said committee, send for persons and evidence to aid them in their investigation.

Art. 1455. [872] [982] Report of committee.—Said committee shall, at the earliest practicable day after their appointment, make to said district court a report in writing, in detail, stating whether the books and accounts required to be kept by the provisions of this title are correctly kept in accordance with said provisions, and setting forth fully the condition of the finances of the county, the state of each officer's account, and specifying all irregularities, omissions or malfeasance of any kind that they may discover. Said report shall be signed and sworn to by said committee and filed in the office of the clerk of said district court, and the attention of the grand jury called thereto as soon after the filing of the same as practicable.

Art. 1456. [873] [983] Pay of committee.—Said committeemen shall each be entitled to receive for their services three dollars for each day, not to exceed five days, that they may be engaged in the performance of their duties as such, which fees shall be paid out of the county treasury upon the certificate of the district judge stating the number of days served.

Art. 1457. [874] [984] All reports shall be sworn to.—All reports required under any of the provisions of this title shall be sworn to by the officer making the same, before some officer authorized to administer oaths.

Art. 1458. [875] [985] Monthly reports shall be filed, when.—All monthly reports required by any of the provisions of this title shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court of the proper county within five days after the end of each month.

Art. 1459. [876] [986] Warrants issued against county by judge or court shall be attested by clerk, etc.—All warrants or scrip issued against the county treasurer by any judge or court shall be signed and attested by the clerk or judge of the court issuing the same, under his official seal; and no justice of the peace shall have authority to issue warrants against the treasury for any purpose whatever, except as provided in article 1117 [1170] of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Signature of judge.—A warrant issued upon a claim audited and allowed by the county commissioners' court need not be signed by the judge. Callaghan v. Salliway, 23 S. W. 837, 5 C. A. 239.

Negotiability.—The holder of a county warrant is not charged with notice of any order made by the commissioner's court after the order directing its issuance, directing the treasurer to pay no claim which had not been registered under Act May 1, 1874. Leach v. Wilson County, 68 T. 353, 4 S. W. 613.

Though a warrant be not negotiable, the county would be liable to an equitable transferee thereof in the absence of any defenses. Shock v. Colorado County, 52 C. A. 473, 115 S. W. 61.

Warrants to pay a contractor constructing a courthouse are nonnegotiable, and cannot be made so by a provision of the contract. Allen v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 348.

Validity.—Warrants are not void because made payable at the county seat or at a point outside the state. Allen v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 348.

Interest.—See notes under Art. 4973.

Property in warrant.—The county held to have no property in the proceeds of a warrant issued to the county tax assessor for his fees and assigned by him to and collected by a creditor, though he was at the time indebted to the county for excess fees. American Nat. Bank v. Petry (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1040.

Right of action on warrants.—While a county warrant is prima facie evidence of a subsisting debt, and assignable, it affords no right of action until the county has by some act repudiated the claim. Leach v. Wilson County, 62 T. 331. See San Patricio County v. McClane, 58 T. 243.

1496. County clerk's duties, how affected.
1497. Removal of auditor, grounds, mode.
1498. Bell county exempt from provisions.

1. APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATIONS, BOND

Article 1460. County auditor appointed in what counties; title; term; salary.—In any county of this state, having a population of forty thousand inhabitants or over, or having therein a city with a population of twenty-five thousand or over, according to the last United States census, there shall be appointed an auditor of accounts and finances, the title of said office to be county auditor, who shall hold his office for a term of two years and until his successor is appointed and qualified; and who shall receive an annual salary of twenty-four hundred dollars, to be paid out of the general fund of the county upon the order of the commissioners' court. [Acts 1907, p. 315. Acts 1905, p. 381.]

Constitutionality.—Const. art. 3, § 56, prohibits the legislature from passing any local or special law regulating the affairs of counties, and declares that no local or special laws shall be passed where a general law can be made applicable. B. county having the requisite population, plaintiff was appointed auditor therefor, and served until after the passage of Acts 31st Leg. c. 120, on April 1, 1909, amending this article and exempting B. county by name from the provisions thereof. Held, that the word "regulating," as used in the constitutional provision, should not be given a narrow or technical signification, and that the act establishing the office of county auditor was an act regulating county affairs within such section, and hence the act amending the same by exempting B. county was a special or local law regulating county affairs and was therefore unconstitutional. Hall v. Bell County (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 178.

Under Const. art. 3, § 56, providing that the legislature shall not, except as otherwise provided, pass any local or special law regulating the affairs of counties, Acts 31st Leg. c. 120, exempting Bell county from the provisions of this article, is invalid. Bell County v. Hall (Sup.) 153 S. W. 121.

Art. 1461. Appointment by whom; reported to commissioners; recorded.—The county judge shall convene a special meeting of the judges of the county and district courts, or courts having jurisdiction in the county, who shall jointly appoint the auditor, a majority vote ruling. The action shall then be reported by the county judge to the commissioners' court in regular or special session, which shall have said appointment entered upon the minutes of said court. [Acts 1905, p. 381, sec. 2.]

Art. 1462. Qualifications.—The auditor to be appointed must be a man of unquestionably good moral character and intelligence, thoroughly competent in business details; he must be a competent accountant who has actually had practical experience in auditing and accounting. The judges empowered with this appointment must carefully investigate and consider the qualifications of said person before appointment. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1463. Bond; oath, requisites of.—The auditor shall, within twenty days of his appointment, and before he enters upon the duties of his office, make a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in the sum of five thousand dollars, payable to the county judge or his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties, to be approved by the commissioners' court. In addition to said bond, he shall make the usual oath of office and an additional one in writing, stating that he is in every way qualified under the provisions and requirements of this chapter, and giving fully the positions of private or public trust he has heretofore held, and the length of service under each of said employments or appointments. He shall further include in his oath that he will not personally be interested in any contract with the county. [Id. sec. 4.]

2. ASSISTANT AND CLERICAL HELP

Art. 1464. May appoint assistant, with consent of county judge.—The auditor may, at any time, appoint an assistant to act in his stead, and who may discharge the duties of the auditor during his absence or unavoidable detention, said appointment to be made with the consent of the county judge, who shall require said assistant to take the usual oath of office for faithful performance of duty. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 1465. May appoint clerical help, with consent of county judge.—The auditor shall also have the power to appoint additional clerical help when needed, with the consent of the county judge, or of the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 5.]

3. BOOKS AND STATIONERY

Art. 1466. Books and stationery.—The auditor shall, at the expense of the county, provide himself with all necessary ledgers, books, records, blanks and stationery. [Id. sec. 5.]

4. DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUDITOR

Art. 1467. General duties of auditor.—It shall be the duty of the auditor to have a general oversight of all the books and records of all the officers of the county, district or state, who are now, or who may hereafter be, authorized or required by law to receive or collect any money, funds, fees or other property for the use of, or belonging to, the county. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1468. Access to and right to examine accounts, orders of commissioners, etc.—He shall have continual access to, and shall examine, all the books, accounts, reports, vouchers and other records of any of the officers, and also the orders of the commissioners' court relating to the finances of the county. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1469. Reports, monthly, under article 1421, examination of.—All reports required under article 1421 shall also be carefully examined and reported on by him. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1470. Reports and books of officers, quarterly examination and checking of.—He shall at least once in each quarter check the books and examine all the reports of the tax collector, the treasurer and all other officers, in detail, verifying the footings and correctness of same, and shall stamp his approval thereon, or note any differences, errors or discrepancies. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1471. Report, quarterly, of treasurer, examination of.—He shall carefully examine the quarterly report of the treasurer, of all the disbursements, together with the canceled warrants which have been paid, and shall verify the same with the register of warrants issued as shown on the books of the auditor. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 1472. Count, etc., cash in hands of treasurer or depository, how, when, etc.—It shall be the duty of the auditor, without giving any notice beforehand, to examine fully into the condition of, or to inspect and count the cash in the hands of, the county treasurer, or in the bank in which he may have placed same for safe keeping, not less than once in each quarter, and oftener as desired. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1473. Law, see to enforcement of.—The auditor shall see that the law is strictly enforced. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1474. Balances, see that all to credit of funds are on hand.—The auditor shall see that all balances to the credit of the various funds are actually on hand in cash. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1475. Investment of funds, see that none unauthorized.—He shall fully investigate and see that none of said funds are invested in any manner, except as the law may otherwise authorize. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1476. Forms for collection, mode of keeping, etc., accounts; time for reports, shall prescribe.—He shall prescribe and prepare the forms to be used by all persons in the collection of county revenues, funds, fees and all other moneys, and the mode and manner of keeping and stating their accounts, and the time, mode and manner of making their reports to the auditor, also the made and manner of making their annual report of office fees collected and disbursed, and the amount refunded to the county in excess of those allowed under the general fee bill law. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1477. Regulation for collecting, accounting, etc., may adopt and enforce.—He shall have the power to adopt and enforce such regulations not inconsistent with the constitution and laws, as he may deem essential to the speedy and proper collection, checking and accounting of the revenues and other funds and fees belonging to the county. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1478. Deposits in treasury to be made how.—All deposits that are made in the county treasury shall be upon a deposit warrant issued by the county clerk in triplicate; said warrants shall authorize the treasurer to receive the amount named, for what purpose, and to which fund the same shall be applied. The treasurer shall retain the original; the duplicate shall be signed and returned to the county clerk for the county auditor, and the triplicate signed and returned to the depositor. The auditor shall then enter same upon his books, charging the amounts to the county treasurer and crediting the party depositing same. The treasurer shall not, under any circumstances, receive any money in any other manner than that named herein. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1479. Bids for stationery, etc.; purchase from lowest bidder, etc.—Bids shall be hereafter asked for all supplies of stationery, books, blanks, records, and other supplies for the various officers for which the county is required to pay, and the purchase made from the lowest bidder, after filing said bid with the auditor for record. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 1480. Bids for supplies, etc.—Supplies of every kind, road and bridge material, or any other material, for the use of said county, or any of its officers, departments or institutions, must be purchased on competitive bids, the contract to be awarded to the party who, in the judgment of the commissioners' court, has submitted the lowest and best bid. It shall be the duty of the county auditor to advertise for a period of two weeks in at least one daily newspaper, published and circulated in the county, for such supplies and material according to specifications, giving in detail what is needed. Such advertisement shall state where the specifications are to be found, and shall give time and place for receiving such bids. All such competitive bids shall be kept on file by the county auditor as a part of the records of his office and shall be subject to inspection by any one desiring to see them. Copies of all bids received shall be furnished by the county auditor to the county judge and to the commissioners' court; and when the bids received are not satisfactory to the said judge, or county commissioners, it shall be the duty of the county auditor to reject said bids and readvertise for new bids; provided, that in cases of emergency, purchases not in excess of fifty dollars may be made upon requisition, to be approved by the commissioners' court, without advertising for competitive bids. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 1481. Claims, etc., to be filed in what time; not to be paid until, etc.—All claims, bills and accounts against the county must be filed in ample time for the auditor to examine and approve same before the meetings of the commissioners' court; and no claim, bill or account shall be allowed or paid until same shall have been examined and approved by the county auditor. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1482. Shall examine and approve claims; to be verified.—It shall be the duty of the auditor to examine such claims, bills and accounts, and stamp his approval thereon. If deemed necessary by the auditor, all such accounts, bills, or claims must be verified by affidavit touching the correctness of the same, before some person authorized to administer oaths. [Id. sec. 15.]

Approval of auditor condition precedent.—This section is mandatory and makes the approval of the auditor a condition precedent to the exercise of jurisdiction over the claim by the commissioners' court. Anderson v. Ashe, 99 T. 447, 90 S. W. 874.

The examination and approval of the auditor is a condition precedent to the exercise of jurisdiction over a claim by the commissioners' court. Yantis v. Montague County, 50 C. A. 403, 110 S. W. 162.

Art. 1483. May administer oaths, when.—The auditor is hereby authorized to administer oaths for the purposes of this chapter. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1484. Restrictions and requirements in audit and approval of claims, requisition, etc., bids for supplies, etc.—He shall not audit or approve any claim against the county, unless the same has been contracted as provided by law, nor any account for the purchase of supplies or material for the use of said county or any of its officers, unless, in addition to other requirements of law, there is attached thereto a requisition signed by the officer ordering same and approved by the county judge; which said requisition must be made out and signed and approved in triplicate by the said officers, the triplicate to remain with the officer desiring the purchase, the duplicate to be filed with the county auditor, and the original to be delivered to the party from whom said purchase is to be made before any purchase shall be made. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 1485. Warrants, to countersign, except jury.—All warrants on the county treasurer, except warrants for jury service, must be countersigned by the county auditor. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1486. Register, shall keep, of warrants issued by clerks and judges; who shall report, etc.—He shall keep a register of all warrants issued by the judges or clerks on the county treasurer, and their dates of payment by the treasurer. In order that he may do so, the clerks of the county and district courts, or the judges therefor, who are authorized to issue any warrant on the county treasurer, shall on forms prepared by the auditor daily furnish to the auditor an itemized report specifying the warrants that have been issued, their numbers, their several amounts, the names of the persons to whom payable, and for what purpose. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1487. Accounts, shall keep, with officers named, relieving clerk of finance ledger.—It shall be his duty to keep an account with each and every person named in the preceding sections [articles] and in doing so he shall relieve the county clerk of keeping the finance ledger required in article 1402. His books shall show the detailed items of the indebtedness against all of said officers and the manner of discharging same. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1488. Statements to be required from persons receiving money or property of county.—He shall require all persons who shall have received any moneys belonging to the county, or having the disposition or management of any property of the county, to render statements to him. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1489. Books, general set of, showing transactions of county, shall keep.—He shall keep a general set of books, which shall show all the transactions of the county relating to accounts, contracts, indebtedness of the county, and its receipts and disbursements of all kinds. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1490. Report tabulated, shall make for each regular meeting of commissioners.—He shall make tabulated reports of said funds and accounts for each regular meeting of the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1491. Reports, quarterly and annual, to be made to commissioners, showing what, etc.—He shall make quarterly and annual reports to the commissioners' court, setting forth all the facts of interest, and showing the aggregate amounts received and disbursed out of each fund, the condition of each and every account on the books, the amount of bonded and other indebtedness of the county, together with such other information and suggestions as he may deem proper, or the commissioners' court may require. This annual report shall be made to include all transactions during the year ending July 31 of each year, and shall be completed and filed at a special term of the commissioners' court in September. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1492. Estimate, shall prepare for commissioners; who shall prepare budget.—He shall prepare an estimate of all the revenues and expenses, and annually furnish same to the commissioners' court, which court shall carefully make a budget of all appropriations to be set aside for the various expenses of the county government in each branch and department. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1493. Expenses, shall see that do not exceed appropriations.—He shall carefully keep an oversight of same to see that the expenses of any department do not exceed said budget appropriation, and keep the commissioners' court advised of the condition of said appropriation accounts from time to time. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1494. Account with each appropriation, shall open, etc.—He shall open an account with each appropriation in said budget, and all warrants drawn against same shall be entered to said account. [Id. sec. 10.]

5. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Art. 1495. Provisions of this chapter cumulative, but controlling.—The provisions of this chapter are cumulative, and, where conflicting with any existing law, the provisions of this chapter shall control. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 1496. County clerk's duties, how affected.—Where the provisions of this chapter impose upon the auditor like duties as are now required of the county clerk, the provisions of this chapter shall prevail, and to such extent only is the county clerk relieved of his duties. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 1497. Removal of auditor, grounds, mode.—Whenever an auditor, appointed under the provisions of this act, has been sufficiently proven guilty of official misconduct, or has proven to be incompetent to faithfully discharge the duties required of him, he may, after due investigation by the same power which appointed him, be removed, and his successor appointed as provided in articles 1461 and 1462. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 1498. Bell county exempt from provisions.—Bell county shall be exempt from the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1909, p. 238.]

TITLE 29 A

COUNTY HOSPITAL

Art.
1498a. Power of commissioners' court to establish or enlarge; petition of voters; submission of issue of bonds; powers of commissioners' court.
1498b. Board of managers; appointment; term; vacancy; expenses; removal.
1498c. Officers; superintendent; physicians; salaries; powers and duties of board.
1498d. Out-patient department; dispensary and clinics.
1498e. School for education, care and treatment of children suffering from tuberculosis.
1498f. Duty of state board of health; publications; duty of board.
1498g. Duties of board; records; bills and accounts; reports, etc.
1498h. Duties and powers of superintendent; admission and discharge of patients, etc.; bond.
1498i. Admission of patients; applications; duty of superintendent; payments, etc.
1498j. Support of patients; duties and powers of superintendent; power of county court.
1498k. Managers to have access; inspection, etc.
1498l. Hospital in connection with poor house.
1498m. More than one hospital.
1498n. Commissioners' court may contract in county having no city of more than 10,000 inhabitants, etc.; cooperation with cities and towns in certain cases.
1498o. Duty of commissioners' court in county having city of more than 10,000 inhabitants; submission of issue of bonds to voters, etc.
1498p. Adjacent counties may join in certain cases.

Article 1498a. Power of commissioners' court to establish or enlarge; petition of voters; submission of issue of bonds; powers of commissioners' court.—The commissioners' court of any county shall have power to establish a county hospital and to enlarge any existing hospitals for the care and treatment of persons suffering from any illness, disease or injury, subject to the provisions of this Act. At intervals of not less than twelve months, ten per cent. of the qualified property tax paying voters of a county may petition the commissioners' court of such county to provide for the establishing or enlarging of a county hospital, in which event it shall be the duty of said commissioners' court within the time designated in such petition to submit to the property tax paying voters of the county either at a special or at a regular election, the proposition of issuing bonds in such aggregate amount as may be designated in said petition for the establishing or enlarging of such hospital; and whenever any such proposition shall receive a majority of the votes of the qualified property tax payers voting at such election, said commissioners' court shall establish and maintain such hospital, and shall have the following powers:

To purchase and lease real property therefor, or acquire such real property, and easements therein, by condemnation proceedings, in the manner prescribed by the present law authorizing a condemnation of right of way of railroads.

To purchase or erect all necessary buildings, make all necessary improvements and repairs and alter any existing buildings, for the use of said hospital; provided, that the plans for such erection, alteration or repair shall first be approved by the state health officer, if his approval is requested by the said commissioners' court.

To cause to be assessed, levied and collected, such taxes upon the real and personal property owned in the county as it shall deem necessary to provide the funds for the maintenance thereof, and for all other necessary expenditures therefor.

To issue county bonds to provide funds for the establishing, enlarging and equipping of said hospital and for all other necessary permanent improvements in connection therewith. And to do all other things that may be required by law in order to render said bonds valid. To appoint a board of managers for said hospitals as hereinafter provided.

To accept and hold in trust for the county, any grant or devise of land, or any gift or bequest of money or other personal property or any donation to be applied, principal or income, or both, for the benefit of said hospital, and apply the same in accordance with the terms of the gift. [Acts 1913, p. 71, sec. 1.]

Art. 1498b. Board of managers; appointment; term; vacancy; expenses; removal.—When the commissioners' court shall have acquired a site for such hospital and shall have awarded contracts for the necessary buildings and improvements thereon, it shall appoint five citizens of the county, of whom at least two shall be practicing physicians, and at least one a woman, who shall constitute a board of managers of the said hospital. The term of office of each member of said board shall be two years. Appointments of successors shall be for the full term of two years, except that appointment of persons to fill vacancies occurring by death, resignation or other cause shall be made for the unexpired term. Failure of any manager to attend three consecutive meetings of the board shall cause a vacancy in his office, unless said absence is excused by formal action of the board of managers. The managers shall receive no compensation for their services, but shall be allowed their actual and necessary traveling and other expenses within the state of Texas, to be audited and paid by the commissioners' court in the same manner as other expenses of the hospital. Any manager may at any time be removed from office by the commissioners' court of the county for cause after an opportunity to be heard. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1498c. Officers; superintendent; physicians; salaries; powers and duties of board.—The board of managers shall elect from among its members a president and one or more vice-presidents, and a secretary and a treasurer. It shall appoint a superintendent of the hospital who shall hold office at the pleasure of said board. Said superintendent shall not be a member of the board of managers, and shall be a qualified practitioner of medicine, physician or other person specially trained for work of such character.

The board of managers shall also appoint a staff of visiting physicians, who shall serve without pay from the county, and who shall visit and treat hospital patients at the request either of the managers or of the superintendent.

Said board of managers shall fix the salaries of the superintendent and all other officers and employés within the limits of the appropriation made therefor by the commissioners' court, and such salaries shall be compensation in full for all services rendered. The board of managers shall determine the amount of time required to be spent at the hospital by said superintendent in the discharge of his duties. The board of managers shall have the general superintendence, management and control of the said hospital, of the grounds, buildings, officers and employés thereof; of the inmates therein, and of all matters relating to the government, discipline, contracts and fiscal concerns thereof; and make such rules and regulations as may seem to them necessary for carrying out the purposes of such hospital. They shall maintain an effective inspection of said hospital and keep themselves informed of the affairs and management thereof; shall meet at the hospital at least once in every month, and at such other times as may be prescribed in the by-laws; and shall hold an annual meeting at least three weeks prior to the meeting of the commissioners' court at which appropriations for the ensuing year are to be considered. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1498d. Out-patient department; dispensary and clinics.—The board of managers may also establish and operate an out-patient department or free dispensary and clinic, at the hospital or in the city nearest to which the hospital is located, with branch dispensaries or clinics in every city or town in the county of five thousand population and over, and they shall appoint a physician or physicians, who shall serve at such dispensaries or clinics, and shall determine the amount of time required to be spent at such dispensaries or clinics by such physicians, and shall fix the salaries, if any, of such physicians. Said board of managers shall also appoint one or more trained visiting nurses to serve in connection with each such dispensary or clinic, and in connection with the hospital, and shall fix their salaries, within the limits of the appropriation made therefor by the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1498e. School for education, care and treatment of children suffering from tuberculosis.—The board of managers may also establish, at the hospital, or in the city nearest to which the hospital is situated, or in the largest city in the county, a special and separate school for the education, care and treatment of children suffering from tuberculosis. Said school shall be conducted as a branch of the hospital and the pupils and inmates of said school shall be considered as inmates of the hospital and subject to all the provisions of this Act. Said board of managers shall appoint a teacher or teachers, specially qualified, to instruct and care for the pupil-inmates of said school. Said board of managers shall delegate the superintendent of the hospital, a member or members of the staff of visiting physicians, a physician or physicians in attendance upon any county dispensary, or shall employ a physician to attend the inmates of said school, and to supervise their care and treatment, and shall delegate one of the hospital nurses, or a visiting nurse, or shall employ a nurse to assist in the care and treatment of said pupils. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1498f. Duty of state board of health; publications; duty of board.—It shall be the duty of the state board of health, from time to time, to make rules and regulations for the care of persons suffering from communicable disease and for the prevention and spread of such diseases; and to prepare circulars, pamphlets, bulletins and other publications giving information as to the cause, nature, treatment and prevention of disease. The board of managers shall, from time to time, purchase from the state board of health, at the actual cost of printing, printed copies of such rules and regulations, circulars, pamphlets, bulletins and other publications, or shall have same printed, and shall send or deliver such copies to all practicing physicians in the county, to all public schools and to such private schools as request such copies, and to such organizations, churches, societies, unions and individuals as may present written requests for copies of circulars, pamphlets, bulletins and such other publications prepared by the state board of health. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1498g. Duties of board; records; bills and accounts; reports, etc.—The board of managers shall keep in a book provided for that purpose a proper record of its proceedings, which shall be open at all times to the inspection of its members, to the members of the commissioners' court of the county and to any citizen of the county.

The board of managers shall certify all bills and accounts, including salaries and wages, and transmit them to the commissioners' court of the county, who shall provide for their payment in the same manner as other charges against the county are paid.

The board of managers shall make to the commissioners' court of the county, annually, and at such times as the commissioners' court shall direct, a detailed report of the operation of the hospital, dispensaries and school during the year, showing the number of patients received and the methods and results of their treatment, together with suitable recommendations and such other matter as may be required of them, and shall furnish full and detailed estimates of the appropriations required during the ensuing year for all purposes, including maintenance, the erection of buildings, repairs, renewals, extensions, improvements, betterments or other necessary purposes. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1498h. Duties and powers of superintendent; admission and discharge of patients, etc.; bond.—The superintendent shall be the chief executive officer of the hospital, but shall at all times be subject to the by-laws, rules and regulations thereof, and to the powers of the board of managers.

He shall, with the consent of the board of managers, equip the hospital with all necessary furniture, appliances, fixtures and all other needed facilities for the care and treatment of patients, and for the use of officers and employés thereof, and shall purchase all necessary supplies, not exceeding the amount provided for such purposes by the commissioners' court.

He shall have general supervision and control of the records, accounts and buildings of the hospital, and all internal affairs, and maintain discipline therein, and enforce compliance with and obedience to all rules, by-laws and regulations adopted by the board of managers for the government, discipline and management of said hospital and the employés and inmates thereof. He shall make such further rules, regulations and orders as he may deem necessary, not inconsistent with law or with the rules, regulations and directions of the board of managers. He shall, with the consent of the board of managers, appoint such resident officers and such employés as he may think proper and necessary for the efficient performance of the business of the hospital, and prescribe their duties; and for cause, stated in writing, he may discharge any such officer or employé at his discretion, after giving such officer or employé an opportunity to be heard.

He shall cause proper accounts and records of the business and operations of the hospital to be kept regularly from day to day in books and on records provided for that purpose; and shall see that such accounts and records are correctly made up for the annual report of the commissioners' court, as required by section 7 of this Act [Art. 1498g], and present the same to the board of managers, who shall incorporate them in their report to the said commissioners' court.

He shall receive into the hospital, under the general direction of the board of managers, in order of applications, or according to the urgency of need of treatment, any person found to be suffering from any illness, disease or injury, who has been an actual resident and inhabitant of the county for a period of at least one year prior to his application for admission to said hospital. He shall also receive into the hospital, patients sent by the commissioners' court of any adjacent county, which has contracted with the board of managers of the hospital for the care and treatment of its sick and diseased and injured persons, resident in such counties for a period of at least one year. Such patients shall not be received and cared for unless there is sufficient provision for the care of the sick, diseased and injured of the county in which the hospital is situated. Said superintendent shall cause to be kept proper accounts and records of the admission of all patients, their names, age, sex, color, marital condition, residence, occupation and place of past employment.

He shall cause a careful examination to be made of the physical condition of all persons admitted to the hospital and provide for the treatment of each such patient according to his need; and shall cause a record to be kept of the condition of each patient when admitted, and from time to time thereafter.

He shall temporarily or permanently discharge from said hospital any patient who shall willfully or habitually violate the rules thereof; or who is found not to be sick, diseased or injured; or who is found to have recovered therefrom; or who for any other reason is no longer a suitable patient for treatment therein; and shall make a full report thereof at the next meeting of the board of managers; and the said board shall make such final disposition of the case as they may think proper. From the decision of the board of managers there shall be no appeal.

He shall collect and receive all moneys due the hospital, keep an accurate account of the same, report the same at the monthly meeting of the board of managers, and transmit the same to the county collector within ten days after such meeting.

He shall before entering upon the discharge of his duties, give a bond in such sum as the board of managers may determine, to secure the faithful performance of the duties of his office. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1498i. Admission of patients; applications; duty of superintendent; payments, etc.—Any resident of the county in which the hospital is situated, desiring treatment in such hospital, may apply in person to the superintendent or to any reputable physician for examination, and such physician, if he find that such person is suffering from any illness, disease or injury, may apply to the superintendent of the hospital for his admission. Blank forms for such applications shall be provided by the hospital, and shall be forwarded by the superintendent thereof gratuitously to any reputable physician in the county upon request. So far as practicable, applications for admission to the hospital shall be made upon such forms. The superintendent of the hospital, upon receipt of such application, if it appears therefrom that the patient is suffering from illness, disease or injury, and if there be a vacancy in the said hospital, shall notify the person named in such application to appear in person at the hospital. If, upon personal examination of such patient, or of any patient applying in person for admission, the superintendent is satisfied that such person is suffering from any illness, disease or injury, he shall admit him to the hospital as a patient. All such applications shall state whether, in the judgment of the physician, the person is able to pay in whole or in part for his care and treatment while at the hospital; and every application shall be filed and recorded in a book kept for that purpose in the order of its receipt. When said hospital is complete and ready for the treatment of patients, or whenever thereafter there are vacancies therein, admission to said hospital shall be made in the order in which the names and applicants shall appear upon the application book to be kept as above provided, in so far as such applicants are certified to by the superintendent to be suffering from any illness, disease or injury. No discrimination shall be made in the accommodations, care or treatment of any patient because of the fact that the patient or his relatives contribute to the cost of his maintenance, in whole or in part, and no patient shall be permitted to pay for his maintenance in such hospital a greater sum than the average per capita cost of maintenance therein, including a reasonable allowance for the interest on the cost of the hospital; and no officer or employé of such hospital shall accept from any patient thereof any fee, payment or gratuity whatsoever for his services. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1498j. Support of patients; duties and powers of superintendent; power of county court.—Whenever a patient has been admitted to said hospital from the county in which the hospital is situated, the superintendent shall cause inquiry to be made as to his circumstances, and of the relatives of such patient legally liable for his support. If he finds that such patient, or said relatives are liable to pay for his care and treatment in whole or in part, an order shall be made directing such patient, or said relatives to pay to the treasurer of such hospital for the support of such patient a specified sum per week, in proportion to their financial ability, but such sum shall not exceed the actual per capita cost of maintenance. The superintendent shall have power and authority to collect such sum from the estate of the patient, or his relatives legally liable for his support, in the manner provided by law for the collection of expenses of the last illness of a deceased person. If the superintendent finds that such patient, or said relatives are not able to pay, either in whole or in part, for his care and treatment in such hospital, the same shall become a charge upon the county. Should there be a dispute as to the ability to pay, or doubt in the mind of the superintendent, the county court shall hear and determine same, after calling witnesses, and shall make such order as may be proper, from which there shall be no appeal. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1498k. Managers to have access; inspection, etc.—The resident officer of the hospital shall admit the managers into every part of the hospital and the premises, and give them access on demand to all books, papers, accounts and records pertaining to the hospital, and shall furnish copies, abstracts and reports whenever required by them. All hospitals established or maintained under the provisions of this Act shall be subject to inspection by any duly authorized representative of the state board of health, or any state board of charities that may hereafter be created, and of the commissioners' court of the county; and the resident officers shall admit such representatives into every part of the hospital and its buildings, and give them access on demand to all records, reports, books, papers and accounts pertaining to the hospital. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1498*l*. Hospital in connection with poor house.—Wherever a county hospital for the care and treatment of persons suffering from any illness, disease or injury exists in connection with, or on the grounds of a county poor house or elsewhere, the commissioners' court shall appoint a board of managers for such hospital, and such hospital, and its board of managers, shall thereafter be subject to all provisions of this Act, in like manner as if it had been originally established hereunder. Any hospital which may hereafter be established by any commissioners' court shall in like manner be subject to all the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1498m. More than one hospital.—When deemed advisable by the commissioners' court, and approved by the state board of health, a county may maintain more than one county hospital for the purpose aforesaid. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 1498n. Commissioners' court may contract in county having no city of more than 10,000 inhabitants, etc.; co-operation with cities and towns in certain cases.—It shall be lawful for any commissioners' court of any county which has no city with a population of more than ten thousand persons, to contract for a period not exceeding one year, with any regularly incorporated society or hospital or municipality within the county maintaining a hospital, or with any other adjacent county, for the care of any or all of the sick, diseased or injured inhabitants of the county, upon such terms and conditions as they may by agreement think proper. Where a county has established a hospital as required by section 15 of this Act [Art. 1498*o*], it shall be lawful for the board of managers to contract with any regularly incorporated society or hospital or city or town within the county maintaining a hospital, for the care of some of the sick, injured or diseased persons applying for admission to the county hospital.

It shall be lawful for the commissioners' court of any county to cooperate with and to join the proper authorities of any city or town having a population of ten thousand persons or more in the establishment, building, equipment and maintenance of a hospital in said city or town, and to appropriate such funds as may be determined by said commissioners' court, after joint conference with the authorities of such city or town as may be necessary, and the management of such hospital shall be under the joint control of such commissioners' court, and city authorities. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1498o. Duty of commissioners' court in county having city of more than 10,000 inhabitants; submission of issue of bonds to voters, etc.—Where no provision is made as provided in section 14 [Art. 1498n], and no county hospital is now provided for the purpose aforesaid, or where such provision is inadequate, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of each county which now has a city with a population of more than ten thousand persons, on or before December 1, 1913, and of any county which may later have a city with a population of more than ten thousand persons, within six months from the time when such city shall have attained such population, such population to be ascertained by such commissioners' court in such manner as may be determined upon resolution thereof, to provide for the erection of such county hospital or hospitals, as may be necessary, for that purpose, and to provide therein a room or rooms, or ward or wards, for the care of confinement cases, and a room or rooms or ward or wards, for the temporary care of persons suffering from mental or nervous disease, and also to make provision in separate buildings for patients suffering from tuberculosis and other communicable diseases, and from time to time to add thereto accommodations sufficient to take care of the patients of the county. This time may be extended by the state board of health for good cause shown. Unless adequate funds for the building of said hospital can be derived from current funds of the county, available for such purpose, issuance of county warrants and script, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court to submit, either at a special election called for the purpose, or at a regular election, the proposition of the issuance of county bonds for the purpose of building such hospital. If the proposition shall fail to receive a majority vote at such election said commissioners' court may be required thereafter at intervals of not less than twelve months, upon petition of ten per cent. of the qualified voters of said county, to submit said proposition until same shall receive the requisite vote authorizing the issuance of the bonds. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1498p. Adjacent counties may join in certain cases.—Where found to be more practicable, and when approved by the state board of health, two or more adjacent counties, having each a population of less than fifteen thousand persons, may join for the purposes of this Act, and erect one or more hospitals for their joint use, under the terms and conditions above set forth for a single county.

In such cases such combined counties shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same liabilities as a single county, herein provided for; and the district court in either county shall in such case have the same power for the purpose of enforcing this Act, as are herein provided for in case of single counties. [Id. sec. 16.]

TITLE 30

COUNTY TREASURER

Art.
1499. Election and term of office.
1500. Oath and bond of.
1501. Shall give new bond, when.
1502. Office to be declared vacant, when.
1503. Vacancy, how filled.
1504. Appointee's oath, bond.
1505. Shall receive moneys belonging to counties, etc.
1506. Shall keep true accounts and superintend collection of moneys, etc.
1507. Shall report to commissioners' court.
1508. Shall deliver money, etc., to successor.
1509. Shall not pay out money, except, etc.
1510. Shall examine dockets, accounts, etc.
1511. Shall perform such other duties as may be required by law.

Article 1499. [919] [987] Election and term of office.—At each regular biennial election for state and county officers, there shall be elected in each county, by the qualified voters thereof, a county treasurer, whose term of office shall be two years and until his successor is qualified. [Const. art. 16, sec. 44. Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 199.]

Removal of county officers.—See Title 98, Chapter 2.

Art. 1500. [920] [988] Oath and bond of.—The county treasurer, before entering upon the duties of his office, and within twenty days after he has received his certificate of election, shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution of this state and shall give a bond payable to the county judge of his county, with at least two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court, in such sum as such court may deem necessary, conditioned that such treasurer shall faithfully execute the duties of his office and pay over according to law all moneys which shall come into his hands as county treasurer, and render a just and true account thereof to said court at each regular term of said court, which oath and bond shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of such county and safely preserved. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 1096.]

Explanatory.—Old Art. 921 substituted by Acts 1905, p. 263, § 31, for which see title "Education, Public," Art. 2768; also see Acts 1909, p. 22, § 154a.

Must account for funds.—An officer who is custodian of public money does not occupy the relation of a mere bailee for hire, who is responsible only for such care of the money as a prudent man would take of his own. He is bound to account for any pay over the public money, less his commissions, or his sureties must pay it for him. (Bogg v. State, 46 T. 10; Boyden v. United States, 13 Wall. 17, 20 L. Ed. 527; United States v. Prescott, 3 How. 578, 11 L. Ed. 734; United States v. Morgan, 11 How. 154, 13 L. Ed. 643; United States v. Dashiel, 4 Wall. 182, 18 L. Ed. 319.) Wilson v. Wichita County, 67 T. 647, 4 S. W. 67.

A county treasurer, having constituted the tax collector his agent to keep the money of the county, is responsible for it in case of its misappropriation. Kempner v. Galveston County, 76 T. 450, 13 S. W. 460.

—— Lost by theft.—It is no defense to an action on a treasurer's bond for failure to account for public funds that they were stolen by robbers. Coe v. Foree, 20 C. A. 550, 50 S. W. 616.

Indemnity to surety.—See notes under Title 109.

Obligation on defective bond.—Bond of county treasurer held valid as a common-law obligation, though defective under statute. Edmiston v. Concho County, 21 C. A. 339, 51 S. W. 353.

Action on bond.—The county judge may bring suit against the county treasurer on his official bond without averment or proof that suit was directed by the commissioners' court. Wall v. McConnell, 65 T. 397.

Where an action is brought on a treasurer's bond given under this article to secure the general funds of the county, recovery cannot be had on a bond given under article 921, Rev. St. 1895, given to secure the school fund of the county, although both bonds are signed by the same sureties. The action should have been brought under the latter article. Connor v. Zachry, 54 C. A. 188, 115 S. W. 867, 117 S. W. 179, 180.

Demand.—Demand of payment for defalcation of county treasurer is not necessary to charge his sureties. Coe v. Nash (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 235.

Release of sureties.—See notes under Title 109.

Bond as treasurer of improvement district.—See Title 83, Art. 5566.

—— Of navigation district.—See Title 96, Art. 5988.

—— Of school funds.—See Art. 2768.

Art. 1501. [922] [990] Shall be required to give new bond, when.—It shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court, whenever they may consider the bonds, or either of the bonds, of a county treasurer, from any cause, insufficient or doubtful, to require such treasurer to give another bond or bonds, or to give additional bond or bonds, as the case may be.

Liability on additional bond.—The sureties on an additional bond are not liable for money lost by the treasurer before the execution of such bond. Coe v. Nash, 91 T. 119, 41 S. W. 473, reversing 40 S. W. 235.
