CHAPTER SEVEN

JURIES FOR THE WEEK—HOW MADE UP

Art.
5165. Jurors for the week, how selected.
5166. If not selected on day appointed may be subsequently done.
5167. If practicable, to be of jurors selected by jury commissioners.
5168. May be filled up, how.

Art.
5169. May be adjourned.
5170. Oath to be administered to the sheriff when jurors not selected are to be summoned by him.
5171. Court may hear excuses of jurors.
5172. Defaulting juror to be fined.

Article 5165. [3179] Jurors for the week, how selected.—On Monday of each week of the court for which a jury shall be summoned, and for which there may be jury trials, or where the jury trials for the week have been set for some other day, then on such day the court shall select thirty qualified jurors, or a greater or less number, in its discretion, to serve as jurors for the week. [Id.]

Ordering sheriff to summon venire.—The court has no authority to order the sheriff to summon a venire for the trial of a civil cause. Lewis v. Merchant, 4 App. C. C. § 115, 16 S. W. 173; Cassidy v. Kluge, 73 T. 155, 12 S. W. 13.

Art. 5166. [3180] If not selected on day appointed, may be subsequently done.—Should such selection from any cause not be made on the day appointed, it may be made on any subsequent day.

Art. 5167. [3181] If practicable, to be of jurors selected by jury commissioners.—Such jurors shall be selected from the names included in the jury list for the week, if there be the requisite number of such in attendance who are not excused by the court.

Dismissing jury until later date.—Construing this article and Art. 5169, the court has power to dismiss a jury selected for any week of a term until another week or further day of the term for service. Howard Oil Co. v. Davis, 76 T. 630, 13 S. W. 665.

Sheriff to summon additional jurors.—See note under Art. 5168.

Art. 5168. [3182] May be filled up, how.—If the requisite number of such jurors be not in attendance at any time, the court shall direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number of qualified persons to make up the requisite number of jurors. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 80, sec. 11.]

Sheriff to summon additional jurors.—If there is no dereliction of duty or intentional disregard of the statute on the part of the judge, whereby there is forced upon the defendant a part only of the jurors summoned by the jury commissioners for the week, it is the judge's duty under this article and Art. 5167 to require a sufficient number of talesmen to make up the requisite number to be summoned. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perry, 38 C. A. 81, 85 S. W. 64.

Appointing new commission to summon additional jurors.—See notes under Art. 5127.

Taking jurors from another court.—Where there are two district courts in one county, the judge of one has no right to order sheriff to bring in regular jurors of the other courts to serve in his court. They should be summoned as provided by law. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gilvin (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 985.

Talesman at trial of cause.—See notes under Art. 5205.

Art. 5169. [3183] May be adjourned.—The court may adjourn the whole number of jurors for the week, or any part thereof, to any subsequent day of the term, but jurors shall not be paid for the time they may so stand adjourned. [Id. p. 83, sec. 24.]

Dismissing jury until later date.—The court has power to dismiss a jury selected for any week of a term until another week or further day of the term for service. Oil Co. v. Davis, 76 T. 630, 13 S. W. 665.

Art. 5170. [3184] Oath to be administered to the sheriff when jurors not selected are to be summoned by him.—Whenever it may be necessary to summon jurors who have not been selected by jury commissioners under the provisions of this title, the court shall administer to the sheriff and each of his deputies the following oath: "You do solemnly swear that you will, to the best of your skill and ability, and without bias or favor toward any party, summon such jurors as may be ordered by the court; that you will select none but impartial, sensible and sober men, having the qualifications of jurors under the law; that you will not, directly or indirectly, converse or communicate with any jurymen touching any case pending for trial; and that you will not by any means attempt to influence, advise or control any jurymen in his opinion in any case which may be tried by him. So help you God." [Id. sec. 12.]

Failure to administer oath.—The sheriff, having been sworn at the beginning of the term, need not be sworn again prior to summoning talesmen to fill out a special venire. Deon v. State, 37 Cr. R. 506, 40 S. W. 266.

Though in a civil action the officer sent to summon talesmen was not sworn according to law, the irregularity was not available to defendant as error. San Antonio Trac-tion Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 554.

The failure of the court to administer to officers summoning jurors not selected by jury commissioners the oath required by this article is error. Sewall v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 569.

Art. 5171. [3185] Court may hear excuses of jurors.—The court may hear any reasonable excuse of a juror, supported by oath or affirmation, and may either release him entirely or until some other day of the term.

Excusing juror after being impaneled.—The judge, for good cause, may excuse a juror after he has been impaneled. Railway Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 254.

Art. 5172. [3186] Defaulting juror to be fined.—Should any juror who has been lawfully notified fail to be in attendance on the court in obedience to such notice without some reasonable excuse, to be judged of by the court, he shall be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 10.]

CHAPTER EIGHT

5175. Time of demand.	5183. Order of court.
5176. Same.	5184. Clerk to keep jury docket.
5177. Rules for justices' courts elsewhere prescribed.	5185. Jury trial day to be fixed.

Article 5173. [3187] Right of trial by jury to remain inviolate, subject, etc.—The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate, subject to the following rules and regulations. [Const., art. 1, sec. 15.]

Functions of court and jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Action of court infringing right of trial by jury.—The direction of a verdict in a civil action held not a violation of the constitutional guaranty of trial by jury. Henry v. Mc-New, 29 C. A. 288, 69 S. W. 213.

Constitutional right of trial by jury held not violated in instructing a verdict for defendants. Henry v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 599.

Primarily all questions of fact are for the jury, and unless it appears without doubt that what would ordinarily be a question of fact has, from the state of the evidence, become a question of law, a court cannot deprive a party of his constitutional right of trial by jury by deciding the question. Merritt v. State, 42 C. A. 495, 94 S. W. 372.

Plaintiff, after the erroneous denial of its motion for a jury trial, having submitted its entire case to the court, could not insist on a reversal where the undisputed evidence required a verdict for the defendants. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Smith (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 547.

In an action by a parent to recover the custody of her minor child, an order overruling plaintiff's motion for a new trial, and upon its own motion decreeing that plaintiff should have custody of the child for one month in each year, was an invasion of the province of the jury. Cobb v. Works (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 349.

Trial by jury in probate matters.—See, also, notes under Art. 3221.

A contestation of the probate of a will must on demand be tried by a jury. Cockrill v. Cox, 65 T. 669.

Right to jury trial.—The right of trial by jury cannot be defeated by a legislative enactment. C. & M. Ry. Co. v. Morris, 68 T. 49, 3 S. W. 457.

If the pleadings and evidence present a controverted question of fact, it is error to refuse a jury trial. Burnett v. Ft. Worth Light & Power Co. (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 175.

Defendant held entitled to trial by jury. Hays v. Housewright (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 922.

A defendant may not arbitrarily be deprived of his statutory right of a trial by a jury selected by the jury commissioners. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Big-ham (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 432.

Suits in equity.—On request of plaintiff a suit in equity was properly submitted to a jury on special issues. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

On submitting issues in an equity case, only such matters of fact as in some way tend to establish or defeat a cause of action need be submitted. Id.

Contempt proceedings.—A party prosecuted by contempt proceedings for the violation of an injunction cannot demand a jury trial. Ex parte Allison, 48 Cr. R. 634, 90 S. W. 492, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 622, 13 Ann. Cas. 684.

Mandatory injunction.—In a suit for a mandatory injunction to compel obedience to a decree that defendant open a public highway across its property, it was not error to grant a jury trial. Santa Fe Townsite Co. v. Norvell, 55 C. A. 488, 118 S. W. 762.

Inquisition proceedings.—In guardianship proceedings, an issue as to the ward's sanity held formed, which the court could determine without a jury where no jury was demanded. Ferguson v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 632.

Determination of venue.—On the question whether a defendant was a resident of the county in which an action was brought, so as to give the court jurisdiction of his person, he was entitled to trial by jury. J. D. Hudgins & Bro. v. Low, 42 C. A. 556, 94 S. W. 411.

Issues of fact presented by a plea of privilege are triable by a jury, unless a jury is waived. Koip v. Shrader (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 860.

Effect of denial of jury trial.—A judgment will not be reversed on account of the denial of the right of trial by jury, when no other judgment could be rendered on the facts. Caldwell County v. Harbert, 68 T. 321, 4 S. W. 607.

Findings of jury in divorce suits.—In suits for divorce, neither the trial court nor the court of civil appeals is bound by the finding of the jury upon questions of fact, but may, in their sound discretion, disregard the verdict and render the judgment that justice requires. De Fierros v. Fierros (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1067.

Waiver of right.—Plaintiff's right to trial by jury in a suit to restrain the collection of certain taxes held waived. Nalle v. City of Austin, 41 C. A. 423, 93 S. W. 141.

One on trial for a misdemeanor held not entitled to waive a jury after the hearing of the evidence and require the court to assess the punishment on a plea of guilty. Johnson v. State, 55 Cr. R. 507, 116 S. W. 1148.

The statute providing that in misdemeanor cases a jury may be waived by accused requires a formal waiver. Id.

A jury question cannot be waived in criminal cases. Davis v. State, 64 Cr. R. 8, 141 S. W. 264.

Art. 5174. [3188] Must be demanded and jury fee be paid.—No jury trial shall be had in any civil suit, unless an application therefor be made in open court and a jury fee be deposited, or an affidavit be made of inability to make such deposit, as hereinafter prescribed. [Const., art. 5, secs. 10, 17.]

Necessity of jury when demanded.—When a demand for a jury has been made, and the fee therefor paid by one of the parties when the case is regularly reached, neither the judge nor the opposite party has authority, in his temporary absence and without his assent, to proceed in the trial without a jury. Lacroix v. Evans, 1 App. C. C. § 749.

Where a defendant at a previous term demanded a trial by jury and paid the fee, it was improper at a subsequent term and in his and his attorney's absence for the court, upon a statement by the plaintiff's attorney that the defendant would waive a jury, to pass on the action himself. Hays v. Housewright (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 922.

Failure to demand jury.—A party not having demanded a jury cannot complain that the court had discharged several of the jurors. Doll v. Mundine, 7 C. A. 96, 26 S. W. 87.

Manner of demanding jury to be strictly enforced.—Demand for a jury made by defendants joined by plaintiff during the trial held properly refused. Goldman v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 283.

The law as to how a jury shall be demanded in order to entitle a party to jury trial should be strictly enforced, where, even admitting his witnesses would testify as he states, a directed verdict for the other party would be justified. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 285.

Demand in open court.—Written application filed with the clerk, and not brought to the court's attention, is not made in "open court," within Art. 5174, providing that no jury trial shall be had, unless application therefor be made in open court. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 285.

Time for demanding jury.—See notes under Art. 5175.

Jury fee.—Where the one demanding a jury trial withdraws the jury fee, he cannot complain that the case was not tried by a jury. Harris v. Kellum & Rotan Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1027.

Where no jury fee has been paid, plaintiff is entitled to have the case tried as a nonjury case, although it is entered on the jury docket. Ranson v. Leggett (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 668.

The refusal of a jury trial was not error, where plaintiff neither offered to pay the jury fee nor made affidavit of his inability to pay it. Kruegel v. Murphy & Bolanz (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 680.

Time for depositing jury fee.—See note under Art. 5180.

Review of court's discretion.—In the absence of a clear showing of an abuse of discretion, the refusal of the trial court to grant a jury trial, where the demand for a jury was not made within the time prescribed by statute, will not be disturbed on appeal. Kenedy Town & Improvement Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 558.

Art. 5175. [3189] Time of demand.—Any party to a civil suit in the district or county court desiring to have the same tried by jury, shall make application therefor in open court on the first day of the term of the court at which the suit is to be tried, unless the same be an appearance case, in which event the application shall be made on default day. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171, sec. 11.]

Excuse for failure to demand on first day.—The failure to demand a jury on the first day of the term is excused when the presiding judge was not competent to enter the order. Hays v. Hays, 66 T. 606, 1 S. W. 895.

Demand on appearance day.—On the call of the docket on default day no jury was demanded in the case; after the call was completed, and the jury cases were set for a future day, the non-jury cases were called for trial, and, an application for a continuance of the case having been overruled, plaintiff demanded a jury. Held, the application came too late. Hunt v. Makemson, 56 T. 9.

A jury may be demanded at any time on appearance day when the case is called for trial. Cook v. Cook, 23 S. W. 927, 5 C. A. 30. See Burgess v. Singer Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1110; Kelley-Goodfellow Shoe Co. v. Liberty Ins. Co., 28 S. W. 1027, 8 C. A. 227; Hardin v. Blackshear, 60 T. 132.

The terms "default day" and "appearance day" have the same meaning, and an application on the fourth day of the term is too late. Cruger v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 282.

Failure to demand in time.—When a proper demand for a jury has not been made, the defendant is not entitled to have the damages assessed by a jury. Bumpass v. Morrison, 70 T. 756, 8 S. W. 596.

If a jury is not demanded at the proper time a party cannot, as a matter of right, afterwards demand that his case shall be tried by a jury. Cabell v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 81 T. 104, 16 S. W. 811; McFaddin v. Preston, 54 T. 403; Hardin v. Blackshear, 60 T. 132; Berry v. T. & N. O. Ry. Co., 60 T. 654; Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 63 T. 473; Ellis v. Bonner, 27 S. W. 687, 7 C. A. 539; Brooks v. Pegg (Sup.) 8 S. W. 595. If demanded at a subsequent term it should be granted. Noel v. Denman, 76 T. 306, 13 S. W. 318.

A demand for a jury after the jury docket is disposed of and four days before the case is called for trial is properly refused. Petri v. Bank, 83 T. 424, 18 S. W. 752, 29 Am. St. Rep. 657; Denton Lumber Co. v. Bank (Sup.) 18 S. W. 962.

One who was negligent in not being present at the trial in person or by attorney cannot complain that his case was not retained on the jury docket. Harris v. Kellum & Rotan Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1027.

A demand for a jury trial was held to have come too late. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Thompson, 18 C. A. 279, 44 S. W. 402.

Where defendant had performed every requirement for a jury trial, but was absent on the day of the trial, it was error to try the cause without a jury, since her right was not forfeited by absence. Fitzgerald v. Wygal, 24 C. A. 372, 59 S. W. 621.

Where, after a case had been called and postponed, defendant's counsel paid the jury fee, but made no demand for a jury trial, and did not call the court's attention thereto until after the case was regularly called for trial on the nonjury docket, and the granting of a jury trial would necessitate a postponement of the trial to a subsequent week, and greatly inconvenience plaintiff, who was a nonresident, and who had twice journeyed from his home to attend the trial, the refusal to grant a jury trial was proper. City Loan & Trust Co. v. Sterner, 57 C. A. 517, 124 S. W. 207.

This article, enacted pursuant to Const. art. 1, § 15, empowering the legislature to pass laws regulating the right to trial by jury, is not mandatory, and a litigant may only be deprived of a jury trial when his delay in demanding a jury and tendering the jury fee will probably work injury to the adverse party. Kenedy Town & Improvement Co. v. First Nat. Bank of Victoria (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 558.

In the absence of a clear abuse of discretion, the refusal of the trial court to grant a jury trial, where the demand for a jury was not made within the time prescribed by statute, will not be disturbed on appeal. Id.

Application in open court for jury trial, without which Art. 5174, provides there shall be no jury trial, was properly denied, where not made till the case was called for trial, subsequent to the first day of the court, and the other party was ready for trial, with its witnesses in court; and a postponement of three weeks would be necessary for a jury trial. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 285.

Jury necessitating continuance.—Where a demand for a jury, not made within the prescribed time, if acceded to would continue a case for the term, it may properly be refused. Petri v. Lincoln Nat. Bank, 83 T. 424, 18 S. W. 752, 29 Am. St. Rep. 657; Id., 84 T. 153, 19 S. W. 379. See Cabell v. Shoe Co., 81 T. 104, 16 S. W. 811.

Where a party complies with the requirements of the statute he is entitled to a jury trial although to grant such right may compel a continuance when one party is ready and anxious to try. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Smith (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 549.

Where a party did not demand a jury trial on the first day of the term, and his delay in demanding a jury might, if granted, result in carrying the case over the term, because of the necessity of further postponement of the case at the time fixed, to permit the trial of other cases having precedence, the refusal to grant a jury trial was within the discretion of the court. Kenedy Town & Improvement Co. v. First Nat. Bank of Victoria (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 558.

Demand after application for continuance.—A demand for a jury may be made after an application for continuance is overruled, no prejudice having resulted from the delay. Cook v. Cook, 5 C. A. 30, 23 S. W. 927.

Trial by jury on transfer to another court.—When a case, in which a trial by jury has been demanded and fee paid, has been transferred to another court, the party is entitled to a trial by jury. Warner v. Crosby, 75 T. 295, 12 S. W. 745.

Time for depositing jury fee.—See notes under Art. 5174.

Art. 5176. [3190] Same.—Should any court be in session when the preceding article shall go into effect, the application for a jury trial in any cause pending therein, and which is to be tried at such term, may be made at any time before the case is called for trial.

Art. 5177. [3191] Rules for justices' courts elsewhere prescribed.—The manner of applying for a jury trial in the justices' courts, and the proceedings thereon, are prescribed in the title relating to justices' courts.

Art. 5178. [3192] Call of docket for demands for jury trial.—On the first day of each term of the court, the court shall call over the docket, except appearance cases, and shall note thereon in each case whether or not a jury trial is applied for therein, and by which party.

Jury not waived by failure to demand at preceding term.—A jury trial at one term is not waived by a failure to demand it at a preceding term, as is made plain by the provision that at each term the docket is to be called to give parties the opportunity to make the demand. San Jacinto Oil Co. v. Culberson, 100 T. 462, 101 S. W. 198.

Art. 5179. [3193] Same as to appearance docket.—On the call of the appearance docket at each term of the court, the court shall in like manner note in each appearance case whether or not a jury trial is applied for, and by whom.

Art. 5180. [3194] Jury fee.—The party applying for a jury trial in the district or county court shall, on the same day, deposit with the clerk, to the use of the county, a jury fee of five dollars if in the district court, and of three dollars if in the county court. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171, sec. 11.]

Time for depositing jury fee.—A discretion may be exercised by the judge in allowing the deposit of the jury fee if made before trial and no injury results to the adverse party. Hardin v. Blackshear, 60 T. 132. See Wood v. Kieschbaum (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 326.

The plaintiff filed an affidavit under Art. 2053, and the clerk thereupon placed the case on the jury docket. While the parties were engaged in selecting a jury the defendant objected to the case being tried by a jury on the ground that the affidavit did not conform to Art. 5181. Plaintiff asked leave to amend his affidavit, which was refused. He then deposited the jury fee with the clerk and demanded a trial by jury, which was refused. Held, that a trial by jury should have been allowed. Berry v. T. & N. O. Ry. Co., 60 T. 654.

A jury was demanded on the first day of the term and the jury fee paid on the second day. Held, that when no injury resulted to the opposing party, and neither the business of the court nor the trial of the cause was delayed thereby, the jury fee should have been accepted and the jury allowed. Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 63 T. 473.

A jury was demanded by the plaintiff at the proper time and the cause was placed on the jury docket, but the jury fee was not then paid. A motion to strike the case from the jury docket on the ground that the jury fee was not paid on the first day of the term was sustained, although it appeared that it was paid before the motion was filed. Held error. Allyn v. Willis, 65 T. 65.

This article is not mandatory regarding the deposit, which may be made on the second day and before the case is called for trial. Allen v. Plummer, 71 T. 546, 9 S. W. 672; Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 63 T. 473; Hardin v. Blackshear, 60 T. 132.

The failure to pay the jury fee on the day required should not deprive a party of a jury trial when the plaintiff is not prejudiced thereby or the business of the court disturbed. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Everheart, 10 C. A. 468, 32 S. W. 90.

Case transferred from county to district court.—When a jury has been demanded in the county court and fee paid, on the transfer of the case to the district court the party making the demand has a right to a jury. Warner v. Crosby, 75 T. 295, 12 S. W. 745.

Art. 5181. [3195] Oath of inability to make jury fee deposit.—The deposit mentioned in the preceding article shall not be required when the party shall, within the time limited for making such deposit, file with the clerk an affidavit in writing signed by him, to the effect that he is unable to make such deposit, and that he can not, by the pledge of property or otherwise, obtain the money necessary for that purpose. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 81, sec. 18.]

Defective affidavit.—A party having filed a defective affidavit was on the call of the case for trial permitted to deposit the fee in cash. Berry v. T. & N. O. Ry. Co., 60 T. 654.

Art. 5182. [3196] Cases heretofore entered on jury trial docket, excepted.—The preceding article shall not apply to cases which have been heretofore properly entered on the jury trial docket in accordance with former laws.

Art. 5183. [3197] Order of court.—Upon a compliance with the foregoing provisions, the court shall order the clerk to enter the suit on the jury docket. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171, sec. 11.]

Late demand for jury necessitating continuance.—See notes under Art. 5175.

Art. 5184. [3198] Clerk to keep jury docket.—It shall be the duty of the clerks of the district and county courts each to keep a docket, to be styled, "The Jury Docket," in which shall be entered in their order the cases in which jury trials have been ordered by the court. [Id.]

Art. 5185. [3199] Jury trial day to be fixed.—The court shall, by an order entered on the minutes, designate any day during the term for the taking up of the jury docket and the trial of causes thereon; and such order may be revoked or changed at discretion. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 81, sec. 14.]

Changing order of cases on jury docket.—The court may require a cause to be tried out of its order upon the jury docket without reference to the consent of the parties.

The exercise of this power may be revised on appeal, it appearing that a party has been injured. Railway Co. v. Shuford, 72 T. 165, 10 S. W. 408.

Absence of jury as ground for continuance.—The absence of a jury under the orders of the court on the day set for trial is not a ground for continuance. Cole v. Terrell, 71 T. 549, 9 S. W. 668.

Art. 5186. [3200] Application for jury not to be withdrawn, unless, etc.—When one party has applied for a jury trial, as herein provided, he shall not be permitted to withdraw such application without the consent of the parties adversely interested.

Art. 5187. [3201] When application withdrawn, court may permit jury fee to be withdrawn also.—When a party who has applied for a jury trial has been permitted under the preceding article to withdraw such application, the court may, in its discretion, by an order permit him to withdraw also his jury fee deposit.

5189.	Not allowed, when.	5196.	Certain questions not permissible.
5190.	Challenge to array must be in writing.	5197.	Peremptory challenge.
5191.	Court shall decide at once.	5198.	Number in district court.
5192.	Proceedings when challenge to array is sustained.	5199.	In the county court.
5193.	Challenge to a particular juror.	5200.	Challenge to a particular juror made orally.
5194.	Challenge for cause.	5201.	Court to decide challenges promptly.

Article 5188. [3202] Challenge to the array of jurors.—Any party to a suit which is to be tried by a jury may, before the jury is drawn, challenge the array of jurors upon making it to appear that the officer summoning the jury has acted corruptly, and has wilfully summoned jurors known to be prejudiced against the party challenging or biased in favor of the adverse party. [Id. p. 83, sec. 25.]

Applies only to venires summoned by sheriff.—This article only applies to venires which have been summoned by the sheriff under a valid order of the court, and does not restrict the right of the litigant to question the power of the court to order a venire to be summoned by the sheriff and to substitute such a venire for one regularly drawn by the jury commissioners and which had been duly sworn and impaneled. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Pullen, 33 C. A. 143, 75 S. W. 1085.

Necessity of corruption or misconduct.—In order to challenge an array selected as talesmen, there must be alleged corruption, or such other conduct on the part of the officer as the statute requires. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perry, 38 C. A. 81, 85 S. W. 64.

Jurors were drawn for the second, third and fourth weeks of the term, but the case was not tried during these weeks. The judge summarily ordered the sheriff to summon a jury for the 6th week, to try the case. Only one or both of the causes stated in this article can be urged to support the challenge to the array and as neither was interposed the motion to quash the venire was properly overruled. Haywood Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 404.

An objection to a jury that the panel was not drawn for a particular week, but was drawn for the whole term of three weeks is not good. There is only one ground of challenge to the array, and that is the corruption of the officer summoning the jury. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth, 53 C. A. 351, 116 S. W. 368.

Summons by mail.—Under this article and Art. 5189, which prohibits challenge to an array where the jurors have been selected by jury commissioners under title 75, it is not ground for such challenge that 10 names were taken from the jury wheel at a time, where the names were written down in the order in which they were taken out, nor that some of the jurors were not summoned in person, notice being mailed to them, where 35 regular jurors obeyed summons and the court excused for good cause down to 24, who were regularly impaneled, and where no challenges were made for cause. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

It was not ground for a challenge to array that the jury had been summoned by postal card, instead of orally, as provided by Art. 5162, where the actual attendance of the jurors was thereby secured; such statute being merely directory, and no such grounds of challenge to array being specified by this and the following articles. Miller v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 591.

Time for objection.—An exception to the manner of impaneling a jury is waived, unless taken at the time the jury is impaneled; and it cannot be raised by embodying the entire motion for new trial in a bill of exceptions. Black v. State, 46 Cr. R. 590, 81 S. W. 302.

Where accused, tried at one term, accepted, without objection, the jury selected at a prior term, he could not after trial complain of the time of the selection of the jury. Kinch v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 649.

Nature of motion.—A motion to quash the jury panel must be deemed a challenge to the array, though not expressly purporting to be such. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

Art. 5189. [3203] Not allowed, when.—No challenge to the array shall be entertained where the jurors have been selected by jury commissioners under the provisions of this title.

Prejudice—remedy.—Under the express provisions of this article, where jurors have been selected by jury commissioners, a challenge to the array will not be entertained, and hence such a challenge on the ground that the array was so constituted as to be prejudiced against an accused person was properly overruled, his proper remedy being by motion for a change of venue. Columbo v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 910.

Art. 5190. [3204] Challenge to array must be in writing, etc.—All challenges to the array must be in writing, setting forth distinctly the grounds of such challenge, and must be supported by the affidavit of the party, or some other credible person.

Challenging each juror.—Where jurors are improperly brought in and offered to a party, and he challenges each one as presented, this is not a challenge to the array. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gilvin (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 985.

Oath of officer.—Challenge to the array, under Code Cr. Proc. 1895, arts. 661, 663, must be based on oath that the officer summoning has acted corruptly. Arnold v. State, 38 Cr. R. 1, 40 S. W. 734.

Art. 5191. [3205] Court shall decide at once.—When a challenge to the array is made, the court shall hear evidence, and shall decide without delay whether the challenge shall be sustained or not.

Art. 5192. [3206] Proceedings when challenge to the array is sustained.—If the challenge be sustained, the array of jurors summoned shall be discharged, and the court shall order other jurors to be summoned in their stead, and shall direct that the officer who summoned the persons so discharged, and on account of whose misconduct the challenge has been sustained, shall not summon any other jurors in the case. [Id.]

Art. 5193. [3207] Challenge to a particular juror.—A challenge to an individual juror is either—

1. A challenge for cause; or
2. A peremptory challenge.

Challenge for cause.—See notes under Art. 5194.

Art. 5194. [3208] Challenge for cause.—A challenge for cause is an objection made to a particular juror, alleging some fact which, under the provisions of the first chapter of this title, disqualifies him to serve as a juror in any case, or in the particular case, or which, in the opinion of the court, renders him an unfit person to sit on the jury.

See Wolf v. Perryman, 82 T. 112, 17 S. W. 772; Jones v. Ford, 60 T. 130; Kelley-Goodfellow Shoe Co. v. Liberty Ins. Co., 8 C. A. 233, 28 S. W. 1029.

Competency in general.—See notes under Arts. 5115, 5117.

Grounds not specified in statute.—Construing this article and Art. 5116 held, that the trial court may allow the challenge of a juror for cause on other grounds than those which the statute declares shall render him disqualified in the particular case. This power is discretionary, and when exercised it will not be reversed, unless it has resulted in preventing a fair and impartial trial. Couts v. Neer, 70 T. 468, 9 S. W. 40.

Necessity for challenge.—Where defendant had not challenged a juror for cause or otherwise, held not error to allow the juror to act. Kugaft v. State, 38 Cr. R. 681, 44 S. W. 989.

Where an accused failed to question a juror, the fact that he was not qualified held not ground for reversal. Corley v. State (Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 1073.

Accused, having failed to strike a talesman when he had the opportunity, could not complain because such juror was disqualified. Bice v. State, 55 Cr. R. 529, 117 S. W. 163.

Time for raising objections.—See notes under Art. 5208.

Right to complain of failure to sustain challenge.—Denying defendant's challenge to certain jurors held not prejudicial error where he afterwards peremptorily challenged them. Sawyer v. State, 39 Cr. R. 557, 47 S. W. 650.

Accused cannot complain of the action of the court in overruling a challenge for cause, whereby he was compelled to exhaust his peremptory challenges, if, after the juror was excused, but one more juror was drawn, and accused accepted him without objection. Morrison v. State, 40 Cr. R. 473, 51 S. W. 358.

Where the bill of exceptions did not show defendant had at any time exhausted his peremptory challenges, held not error for the state to accept a juror, thereby compelling defendant to exhaust one of his peremptory challenges. Renfro v. State, 42 Cr. R. 393, 56 S. W. 1013.

Grounds for challenge to jurors not interposed in trial court will not be considered on appeal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth, 53 C. A. 351, 116 S. W. 365.

When a challenge for cause was overruled, accused should have excused the juror peremptorily, if he had any peremptory challenges left. Chapman v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 580.

One accused of murder is not entitled to complain of the sustaining of challenges for cause to jurors, where he had several unexhausted peremptory challenges. Grant v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 760, 42 L. R. A. (N. S.) 428.

Examination of juror.—See notes under Art. 5195.

Art. 5195. [3209] On trial of challenge for cause, evidence to be heard.—Upon a challenge for cause the examination shall not be confined to the answers of the juror, but other evidence may be heard in support of or against the challenge.

Examination of juror.—In examining a juror on his voir dire it is not improper to ask him if he knows anything about the facts of the case or if he has made up his mind about the case. The examination need not be confined to the literal language of the statute, but may extend to an inquiry as to the bias or prejudice relating to the subject-matter of the litigation as well as to that which may be felt toward the parties personally. A refusal to allow such examination touching the qualification of a juror affords cause for a reversal. Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 650, 7 S. W. 670.

Parties should be allowed full opportunity to ascertain the state of feeling existing between proposed jurors and litigants. Davis v. Panhandle Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 926.

A motion to require state's attorney to disclose the names of parties employing counsel to assist him to enable defendant to inquire of the jurors if they were related to them held properly refused. McGee v. State, 37 Cr. R. 668, 40 S. W. 967.

Question on voir dire examination of a juror in the trial of a negro for murder of a white man considered, and held proper, as tending to show whether or not he was prejudiced against the negro for killing a white man. Fendrick v. State, 39 Cr. R. 147, 45 S. W. 589.

Defendant was not entitled to ask the jurors what was meant by various legal terms, as bearing on their mental fitness. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Belt, 24 C. A. 231, 59 S. W. 607.

Where the court refuses to permit a party to ask jurors improper questions touching their competency, it is not the duty of the court to indicate what questions he would permit to be asked. Id.

Where one of the jurors on his examination stated he had expressed no opinion, defendant held not estopped, by his failure to examine the juror further, from thereafter objecting to him on the ground that he expressed an opinion. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 60 S. W. 562.

In criminal cases certain conduct on trial held not erroneous as a challenge to a juror during his absence from courtroom. Dodd v. State, 44 Cr. R. 480, 72 S. W. 1015.

One on trial for homicide held not entitled to ask jurors certain questions to enable him to properly exercise his peremptory challenges. Yardley v. State, 50 Cr. R. 644, 100 S. W. 399, 133 Am. St. Rep. 869.

Where, before accused had been called on to exercise his right of challenge, the court had interrogated the entire jury as to whether or not they had served as jurors in that court for as many as six days within the last six months, and they had all either answered "No," or made no dissent to the question, accused might assume in challenging that they had not so served. Benton v. State, 52 Cr. R. 360, 107 S. W. 838.

In a prosecution for seduction, exclusion of certain question to juror on voir dire examination held not error in view of juror's answer to another similar question which was allowed. Faulkner v. State, 53 Cr. R. 258, 109 S. W. 199.

A question asked prospective jurors in a trial for violating the local option law held proper. Irvine v. State, 55 Cr. R. 347, 116 S. W. 591.

In a prosecution for illegally selling liquor, it was not error to permit a private prosecuting attorney to ask the jury concerning their attitude towards testimony of detectives, that he might intelligently exercise his peremptory challenges. Morrow v. State, 56 Cr. R. 519, 120 S. W. 491.

Questions to jurors on their voir dire held not improper as tending to commit them to a large verdict. Rice v. Ragan (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1148.

The court's action in excluding a question to the jury on voir dire examination as to whether they would give accused the benefit of any reasonable doubt on the question of his insanity held proper. Jones v. State, 60 Cr. R. 139, 131 S. W. 572.

On a trial for rape, where a juror testified that he served as juror in a criminal assault case, the exclusion of a question asked juror as to the verdict therein was not error. Wragg v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 342.

Defendant held entitled to ask each of the veniremen whether they would give him the benefit of the presumption of innocence and the benefit of reasonable doubt throughout the trial. Caton v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 590.

A statement by the district attorney, in examining the jurors before impanelment, that the law made it a felony to engage in the occupation of selling intoxicants in local option counties, followed by a question whether the jury believed that was a good and wholesome law and ought to be enforced as any other law, to which they answered, "Yes," was not reversible error on the ground that it tended to prejudge the facts. Wilson v. State (Cr. App.) 154 S. W. 571.

— Discretion of court.—Discretion of court on challenge of juror for cause will not be reviewed unless clearly abused. Riddles v. State (Cr. App.) 46 S. W. 1058.

The scope of the preliminary examination of jurors, though resting in the discretion of the trial judge, may be reviewed by the appellate court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1011.

The refusal to allow the defendant to ask certain questions on the preliminary examination of jurors held an abuse of the discretion of the trial court. Id.

In the absence of anything showing an abuse of the trial court's discretion in disposing of an attack on the juror, its action will not be disturbed; the presumption being that the trial court satisfied himself that there was no misconduct on the juror's part. Stratton v. Riley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 606.

The discretion of the trial court in overruling the motion in such case held abused. In view of the testimony of the jurors as to discussion as to attorney's fees and medical bills. Id.

Art. 5196. [3210] Juror not to be asked certain questions.—In examining a juror, he shall not be asked a question the answer to which may show that he has been convicted of an offense which disqualifies him, or that he stands charged by indictment or other legal accusation with theft or any felony.

Does not excuse negligence in ascertaining qualifications.—This article does not excuse want of diligence in other respects to ascertain a juror's qualifications, and after trial it is too late to object that a juror was under indictment. Sinsheimer v. Edward Well Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 187.

Art. 5197. [3211] Peremptory challenge.—A peremptory challenge is made to a juror without assigning any reason therefor.

In general.—In a prosecution for theft, refusal to allow defendant peremptory challenges held not error. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 75 S. W. 298.

Examination of juror.—Examination in trial for cause, see notes under Art. 5195.

Certain question to jurors with a view of peremptory challenges held improper. Drye v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 65.

Art. 5198. [3212] Number of peremptory challenges in district court.—Each party to civil suit in the district court shall be entitled to six peremptory challenges. [Act Dec. 1, 1871, p. 61, sec. 6.]

More than one plaintiff or defendant.—Where there is more than one defendant the challenges are limited to six, when the issues to be tried between the plaintiff and the defendant are the same. This rule is not affected by the fact that the extent of liability may be different. Hargrave v. Vaughn, 82 T. 347, 18 S. W. 695; Wolf v. Perryman, 82 T. 112, 17 S. W. 772.

When two or more defendants have a common defense, they are considered as one party. Allen v. Waddill (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 273; Jones v. Ford, 60 T. 127; Wolf v. Perryman, 82 T. 112, 17 S. W. 772; Hargrave v. Vaughn, 82 T. 347, 18 S. W. 695.

If the issues are different, each is entitled to challenges. Rogers v. Armstrong, 30 S. W. 848. When the plaintiff and an intervener are making a common fight against a garnishee and none against each other, they constitute one party. Kelley-Goodfellow Shoe Co. v. Liberty Ins. Co., 28 S. W. 1027, 8 C. A. 227.

On the trial of right of property between the attaching creditors of the vendee and the vendor, the former constitute a single party and are allowed but six challenges. Raby v. Frank, 12 C. A. 125, 34 S. W. 777.

On a trial of the right of property between a mortgagee and the purchasers at an execution sale, the purchasers held entitled only to the challenges allowed to a single party. Watts v. Dubois (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

Where defendants did not exercise or attempt to use all the six challenges which they were allowed, they could not complain on appeal of a refusal to allow them separate jury list and six peremptory challenges each. Wells v. Houston, 29 C. A. 619, 69 S. W. 183.

Where there are two defendants in a case and one as warrantee pleads over against his codefendant as warrantor for recovery on his warranty they are each entitled to six challenges. If there are no antagonistic interests among several defendants to a suit, they are considered but one party and are collectively entitled to but six challenges. Waggoner v. Dodson, 96 T. 6, 69 S. W. 994.

Where the interests of two defendants jointly sued were identical, they were not entitled to separate jury lists or more than six peremptory challenges. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1041.

Each of several defendants, having conflicting claims, held entitled to six peremptory challenges. First Nat. Bank v. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co., 97 T. 201, 77 S. W. 410.

In an action against several defendants, entitled to six peremptory challenges each, it was not error to allow the defendants to consult in exercising their challenges. Id.

Defendants having conflicting interests are distinct parties within the statute relating to challenges to jurors. Sweeney v. Taylor Bros., 41 C. A. 365, 92 S. W. 442.

Each defendant was not entitled to six peremptory challenges, where there was no fact issue between them, though one raised an issue between himself and plaintiff not raised by the other defendant. Witliff v. Spreen, 51 C. A. 544, 112 S. W. 98.

In an action against two street railway companies and a city for injuries to a traveler on a street rendered defective because the track protruded over the surface thereof, the two companies held entitled to only six peremptory challenges between them. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. v. Johns, 52 C. A. 489, 116 S. W. 62.

Each defendant is entitled to six peremptory challenges when there is a controversy between them. Hogsett v. Northern Texas Traction Co., 55 C. A. 72, 118 S. W. 807.

In trespass to try title, where one of the defendants pleaded over against the other as his warrantor to the land, and the other pleaded a general denial, each were entitled to six challenges, though there was no real contest between them. Hannay v. Harmon (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 406.

Where connecting carriers made a common defense to the same attorneys at suit for injury to live stock in transit, and did not require separate jury lists, it was not error to limit the number of their peremptory challenges to six between them. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 829.

— Intervener.—When there is an intervener but there is no contested issue between him and the defendants, it is proper to treat them all as defendants and restrict them to the number of challenges allowed defendants in a civil action. Baum v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 650.

Conflict of laws.—One is entitled only to the number of challenges allowed by law at the time of the trial. Edmonson v. State (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 154.

Ry. Co. v. Stell* (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 981.

Where there is more than one defendant in a case in the county court and the interests of the codefendants are antagonistic, each defendant is a party to the suit in the sense in which that term is used in the statute and is entitled to the number of challenges named in the statute. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Bingham, 40 C. A. 469, 89 S. W. 1114.

Art. 5200. [3214] Challenge to a particular juror made orally, etc.—Challenges for cause and peremptory challenges to a particular juror may be made orally on the formation of a jury to try the case, as provided in articles 5206 and 5208.

Art. 5203. [3217] Shall place names of jurors in the box.—When the parties to a civil cause, which is to be tried by a jury, have announced themselves ready for trial and no challenge to the array is made, the clerk shall write the names of all the regular panel for the week on separate slips of paper, as near the same size and appearance as may be, and shall place such slips in the box provided for in the preceding article, and shall mix them well. [Id.]

Time for making challenges for cause.—See note under Art. 5206.

Art. 5204. [3218] Shall draw and record names.—The clerk shall draw from the box, in the presence of the court, the names, one by one, of twenty-four jurors, if in the district court, or so many as there may be, if there be a less number in the box; and the names of twelve jurors if in the county court, or so many as there may be if there be a less number in the box; and shall write the names as they are drawn upon several slips of paper and deliver one slip to each of the parties to the suit or their attorneys. [Id. sec. 22.]

When to be drawn.—The names of the jurors should be drawn and the lists made after the parties have announced ready for trial. Railway Co. v. Keith, 74 T. 287, 11 S. W. 1117.

Panel containing less than 24.—That the panel from which the jury is drawn is not full is immaterial. Railway Co. v. Greenlee, 70 T. 559, 8 S. W. 129; Railway Co. v. Duvall, 12 C. A. 348, 35 S. W. 699.

The parties may be compelled to strike the jury from a panel containing more than 12 but less than 24 names. Gray v. State ex rel. Langham, 19 C. A. 521, 49 S. W. 699.

Art. 5205. [3219] Where names of full jury not found in the box.—Where there are not so many names drawn from the box as twelve, if in the district court, or six, if in the county court, the court shall direct the sheriff to summon such number of qualified persons as it may deem necessary to complete the panel; and the names of the persons so summoned shall be placed in the box and drawn and entered upon slips as provided in the preceding article.

In general.—Where a juror, after selection, cannot be found, permitting a talesman to go on the jury held without prejudice. Moore v. Dunn, 16 C. A. 371, 41 S. W. 530.

Appellant held to have consented to the selection of the jury by any means adopted by the court, and hence not entitled to object to the manner of such selection on appeal. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Foster, 26 C. A. 497, 63 S. W. 952.

Where, when a case is called for trial, a jury was out, and, after exhausting the remainder of the panel, talesmen were called and qualified, and plaintiff had exhausted his challenges on the list before the other jury returned, it was not error to complete the trial jury from such talesmen. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Wright, 31 C. A. 249, 71 S. W. 760.

Party consenting to setting cause for trial at a time at which trial must be had before a picked up jury held to have waived objection to such jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Coggin & Dunaway, 44 C. A. 423, 99 S. W. 1052.

Under the statute permitting trial to proceed with less than 12 jurors in certain cases, a motion to withdraw a juror for interest developed by the evidence held properly denied. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 328.

Talesmen not to be summoned while 12 remain on panel.—Construing this article and Arts. 5207, 5208, held, that the object of the statute was, as far as practicable, to secure the formation of a jury from the names selected by the jury commissioners, and to prevent delay in the formation of a jury. If, when a jury is to be impaneled, as many as 12 names remain of the panel for the week, no talesman should be summoned until challenges for cause have been made. If, after challenge for cause, as many as 12 remain in the jury box, both parties must then proceed to make their peremptory challenges. Whenever the number is less than 12, either when first drawn or after challenges for cause, or peremptory challenges, then, and not before, the court may order others to be summoned by the sheriff. Railway Co. v. Greenlee, 70 T. 553, 8 S. W. 129.

Where as many as 12 regularly drawn jurors remained it is reversible error to add the names of talesmen until the list of those regularly drawn has been reduced by challenge. Houston Electric Co. v. Seegar, 54 C. A. 255, 117 S. W. 903.

Art. 5206. [3220] Challenge for cause to be made, when.—When as many as twelve or more jurors, if in the district court, or six or more, if in the county court, are drawn, and the slips containing their names are delivered to the parties, if either party desire to challenge any juror for cause, such challenge shall now be made.

Time for objection.—Grounds of challenge not presented at the proper time are waived. McGehee v. Shafer, 9 T. 20; Givens v. State, 6 T. 343; Rector v. Hudson, 20 T. 234; Boetge v. Landa, 22 T. 105.

Construing Art. 5203 and this article, held, it is contemplated by the statutes that the challenge of jurors for cause should be made after their names are drawn by the clerk and the jury lists delivered to the parties, but this may be waived by counsel. If, before the delivery of the list, an exception be taken to the questions propounded to test the qualification of the juror, it cannot be objected on appeal that the examination was conducted at an improper time, when no such objection was urged before. Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 650, 7 S. W. 670.

A party failing to make any effort to ascertain whether jurors are impartial, or failing to object when discovered after trial commenced, cannot urge the objection after a verdict. Blanton v. Mayes, 72 T. 417, 10 S. W. 452.

Where a juror stated on his voir dire that he had expressed no opinion, but during the trial defendant discovered that an opinion had been expressed by the juror, and he immediately moved for suspension of the trial and the juror's removal, he was in the exercise of due diligence. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 60 S. W. 562.

Objection to juror, because not a freeholder in the state or householder in the county, cannot be made after verdict. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Woodward, 26 C. A. 389, 63 S. W. 1051.

Where defendant failed to question a juror as to his ability to read or write, the discovery after the trial that he could not read or write or understand the English language is not sufficient ground for setting aside the verdict. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 229.

Failure to investigate jurors' competency on voir dire held to preclude urging their prejudice on motion in arrest. Russell v. State, 44 Cr. R. 465, 72 S. W. 190.

Refusal to permit challenge of juror after impaneling held not error. Andrews v. State (Cr. App.) 76 S. W. 918.

Permission granted to plaintiff's counsel, after the jury had been impaneled, to interrogate a juror as to an opinion expressed derogatory to plaintiff, held not error. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Paschall, 41 C. A. 357, 92 S. W. 446.

An objection that a juror who sat in the trial was not qualified is too late when not made until after verdict. Rice v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 715.

Jurors held not disqualified, especially when the objection to their competency was made after the jury was impaneled. King v. State, 50 Cr. R. 321, 97 S. W. 488.

An objection that a juror is disqualified because he had served more than six days within the six months preceding the trial comes too late after verdict. Waggoner v. Porterfield, 55 C. A. 169, 118 S. W. 1094.

There is no negligence in relying on what a juror professes on his voir dire, which will preclude a grant of new trial asked for on the ground of disqualification subsequently discovered. Makey v. Dryden (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 633.

The grounds of disqualification of jurors in this article are of equal importance, and it being too late after trial to raise the question of a juror not being a freeholder or householder, and not knowing how to read and write, it is likewise too late after trial to object that a juror was under indictment for a felony, though Art. 5196 prohibits a juror being questioned as to his having been indicted or convicted; that not excusing want of diligence in other respects to ascertain qualifications. Sinsheimer v. Edward Well Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 187.

If accused was not accorded the right to challenge any member of the petit jury at the time of its organization, it could be raised by him when called on to announce ready for trial. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

Objection that a juror was not competent because he could not read and write the English language comes too late after verdict. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

The competency of a juror accepted by parties cannot be attacked after the verdict has been rendered. Stratton v. Riley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 606.

Error in overruling challenge for cause—Failure of record to show that peremptory challenges were exhausted.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 20.

Art. 5207. [3221] When number reduced, etc., by challenge for cause.—If the number of jurors be reduced by challenge for cause to less than twelve in the district court, or six in the county court, the court shall order other jurors to be drawn or summoned, as the case may be, and entered upon the slips in place of those who have been set aside for cause.

In general.—Where a party had exhausted his challenges on the list of jurors furnished, it was error to so draw talesmen that he was obliged to accept them without opportunity to challenge. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 18 C. A. 380, 45 S. W. 819.

Completing a jury by summoning talesmen held not error. Gonzales v. State, 58 Cr. R. 257, 125 S. W. 395.

Filling vacancy after trial has begun.—After the full jury of 12 men has been selected and the trial commenced, and a juror is disabled so that he cannot continue to serve, the court is not authorized to have talesmen summoned and force the parties to select a juror from the talesmen to fill up the jury. But under Art. 5215 the court can compel the parties to proceed with the trial before the 11 remaining jurors. Waggoner v. Sneed, 53 C. A. 278, 118 S. W. 549.

Art. 5208. [3222] Peremptory challenge to be made, when.—When a juror has been challenged and set aside for cause, his name shall be erased from the slips furnished the parties; and, if there be remaining on such slips not subject to challenge for cause, twelve names, if in the district court, or six names, if in the county court, the parties shall proceed to make their peremptory challenges if they desire to make any. [Id.]

List not to be read until both parties have stricken.—The defendant is not entitled to have the list of jurors remaining after the striking by plaintiff, called before he passes on the jury. Insurance Co. v. Brown, 2 U. C. 160.

Art. 5209. [3223] Lists to be returned to the clerk and jury to be called.—When the parties have made their peremptory challenges, or when they decline to make any, they shall deliver their slips to the clerk; and the clerk shall, if the case be in the district court, call off the first twelve names on the slips that have not been erased, and if the case be in the county court, the clerk shall call off the first six names on the slips that have not been erased, who shall constitute the jury to try the case.

Right of parties to jury list.—Refusal of a separate jury list to defendants jointly sued on a bond held not error. Janes v. Ferd Helm Brewing Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 896.

Art. 5210. [3224] When jury is left incomplete.—When, by peremptory challenges, the jury is left incomplete, the court shall direct such number of other jurors to be drawn or summoned, as the case may be, as the court may consider sufficient to complete the jury; and the same proceedings shall be had in selecting and impaneling such jurors as are had in the first instance.

Challenging talesmen.—A party who has not exhausted his challenges may exercise his right to challenge when talesmen are called to complete the jury. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 80 T. 101, 15 S. W. 705.

Art. 5211. [3225] Jurors to be sworn.—When the jury has been selected, such of them as have not been previously sworn for the trial of civil causes, shall be sworn by the court, or under its direction.

Effect of not swearing.—Judgment will not be reversed because record falls to show that jury were sworn, no point having been made in trial court. Gay Ranch Co. v. Rowland (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1086.

Judgment rendered on a verdict of a jury which was not sworn is not necessarily void. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Butler, 52 C. A. 327, 135 S. W. 1064.

Waiver of objections.—It is too late after trial to object that a juror was not sworn. Burns v. Mathews (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 79.

Defendant, failing to object that the jury had not been sworn, held to have waived the defect, and a judgment entered on a verdict against defendant was not void though it recited that the jury was not sworn. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 52 C. A. 323, 114 S. W. 671.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

OATH OF JURORS IN CIVIL CASES

Art.
5212. Jury shall be sworn.

Art.
5213. Form of oath.

Article 5212. [3226] Jury shall be sworn.—Before the trial of any civil cause, the jurors shall be sworn by the court, or under its direction. [Act Feb. 13, 1858, sec. 10. P. D. 3984.]

Cited, State v. W. C. Ward & Sons (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 182.

Presumption that jury was sworn.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Art. 5213. [3227] Form of oath.—The form of the oath to be administered to jurors in civil cases shall be in substance as follows: "You, and each of you, do solemnly swear that in all cases between parties which shall be to you submitted, you will a true verdict render, according to the law, as it may be given you in charge by the court, and to the evidence submitted to you under the rulings of the court. So help you God." [Id. P. D. 3984.]

Affirmance.—Error in discharging a juror, who desired to affirm, but would not be sworn, is not cured because defendant had not exhausted his peremptory challenges when the jury was completed. Riddles v. State (Cr. App.) 46 S. W. 1058.

CHAPTER TWELVE

JURIES—HOW CONSTITUTED, AND THEIR VERDICTS

Art.
5214. Jury in district court.
5215. Death or inability of jurors in district court pending trial.

Art.
5216. Jury in the county and justices' courts.
5217. The entire jury must concur in the verdict.

Article 5214. [3228] Jury in district court.—The jury in the district courts shall be composed of twelve men; but the parties may by consent agree, in a particular case, to try with a less number. [Const., art. 5, sec. 13.]

In general.—The discharge of a juror because improper influence was exercised on him does not warrant the court in proceeding to trial with the remaining jurors, over objection. Sunset Wood Co. v. Broadnax (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 487.

Necessity of less than 12 signing verdict.—When a juror is excused from service by counsel for both parties after the trial has begun, and a verdict is rendered by the remaining 11, it is not necessary that all should sign it. Lumber Co. v. Hancock, 70 T. 312, 7 S. W. 724.

Where a juror becomes sick during the trial and is excused by both parties, it is not necessary for remaining 11 to sign the verdict; but it is proper for it to be signed by the foreman. If the juror had died or been disabled, the remainder could have returned the verdict; but all the remaining jurors should have signed the verdict. Gray v. Freeman, 37 C. A. 556, 84 S. W. 1110.

Record need not show names of jurors.—When the record recites that “thereupon came a jury of 12 good and lawful men,” and names but 11, in the absence of an objection in the trial court on that ground, it will be presumed on appeal that the last name was omitted by mistake. Foster v. Van Norman, 1 T. 636. It is not necessary to set out the names of the jurors. Clark v. Davis, 7 T. 556.

Interest of juror developed by evidence—Remedy.—Since the statute does not permit a trial to proceed with less than 12 jurors, except in case jurors, not exceeding 3, may die or be disabled, and disqualification is not provided for, a motion to withdraw a juror for interest developed by the evidence would be denied, as the only remedy would be to move to withdraw announcement of ready for trial and have the case withdrawn from the jury and another trial ordered. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 328.

Art. 5215. [3229] Death or inability of jurors in district court pending trial.—Where, pending the trial of any case in the district court, one or more of the jurors, not exceeding three, may die or be disabled from sitting, the remainder of the jury shall have power to render the verdict; but in such case the verdict shall be signed by every remaining member of the jury. [Id. Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 82, sec. 19.]

Compelling parties to proceed with less than 12 jurors.—Where a juror is disabled, so as to be incapacitated from serving, after the trial has begun, the court may compel the parties to proceed with the remaining jurors. Waggoner v. Sneed, 53 C. A. 278, 118 S. W. 549.

Necessity for signing verdict.—Where a juror dies or becomes disabled, the verdict should be signed by the remaining jurors. Gray v. Freeman, 37 C. A. 556, 84 S. W. 1110.

Mental distress caused by sickness in family.—A juror is not disabled from sitting “by mental distress caused by sickness in his family demanding his presence at home. It may be cause for suspending the trial.” If a juror becomes so sick as to be unable to sit longer, he is plainly disabled. If by reason of some casualty or otherwise a juror is physically prostrated, so as to be wholly incapable of sitting as a juror, or loses his mental powers, so as to become insane or idiotic, he would be disabled from acting. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Waller, 56 T. 331, citing Ray v. State, 4 App. 454.

Insanity.—Under Const. art. 5, § 13, providing that, when, pending trial, one or more jurors, not exceeding three, may die or be disabled from sitting, the remainder of the jury may render the verdict, and this article, to the same effect, where a juror became insane, he was properly discharged, and the trial continued before the remaining jurors. Sunset Wood Co. v. Broadnax (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 487.

Review of court's discretion.—The question of disability rests in the judgment and discretion of the trial judge, and unless this discretion appears to have been abused the court's action will not be revised. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 54 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 160, 161.

Art. 5216. [3230] Jury in county and justices' courts.—The jury in the county courts and in courts of justices of the peace shall be composed of six men. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 5217. [3231] Entire jury must concur in verdict.—No verdict shall be rendered in any cause except upon the concurrence of all the members of the jury trying the same. [Id. sec. 19. Const., art. 5, sec. 13.]

Necessity of full number.—Under the constitution, providing that a county court jury shall consist of six men, the court cannot discharge one and force a trial by the remaining five. Jackson v. J. A. Coates & Sons (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 24.

Coercion.—Jurors should not be coerced to find a verdict. Burgess v. Singer Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1110.

Correction of verdict.—The court, in the presence and at the request of the jury, may correct the verdict, the jurors assenting thereto. Hilburn v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 925.

Method of arriving at verdict.—Where, in an action on an order drawn on funds due a contractor, a verdict is rendered for the only amount for which it could be rightfully rendered, a contention that it is a subtraction verdict is unavailing. Foley v. Houston Co-op. & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 160.

The action of the court in upholding a verdict as against the objection that it was a quotient verdict held not an abuse of discretion. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trippett, 50 C. A. 279, 111 S. W. 761.

Verdict held to have been arrived at by lot, and erroneous. Texas Midland R. R. v. Atherton (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 704.

Arriving at a verdict by dividing the sum of the amounts each juror thought plaintiff entitled to recover by 11, and adopting the quotient as the amount of the verdict, held not to be commended. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lane (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1066.

A verdict reached by an agreement made beforehand that each juror should write down the amount he would award, and that the total of such amounts should be divided by 12, and the quotient should be the verdict, and rendered for a sum equal to the quotient, will be reversed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 269.

Quotient method of obtaining part of a verdict for damages, held to render the verdict illegal. Whisenant v. Schawe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 146.

Where the jury differed as to the amount of the recovery and agreed to divide by 12 the sum each should name, but it was understood that the method was not to be binding as to the result, and a verdict was thereafter agreed to by all, the court properly refused to set aside the verdict. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 707.

New jury on disagreement.—Where the first jury disagreed, the court may again set the case for trial during the same term and call a new jury. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Crowder, 25 C. A. 536, 64 S. W. 90.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

COMPENSATION OF JURORS OF THE DISTRICT AND COUNTY COURTS IN CIVIL CASES

Art.

5218. Pay of jurors.

Art.

5220. Jury scrip receivable at par for all county taxes.

Article 5218. [3232] Pay of jurors.—Each juror in civil cases shall receive two dollars and fifty cents for each day, and for each fraction of a day, he may serve or attend as such juror. [Acts 1911, p. 104, sec. 1, amending Art. 3232, Rev. St. 1895.]

Art. 5219. [3233] Certificate of jury service.—The amount due to jurors shall be paid by the county treasurer upon the certificate of the clerk of the district or county court in which such service was rendered: which certificate shall state the service, when rendered, by whom rendered, and the amount due therefor. [Act Nov. 12, 1866, p. 201, sec. 1.]

Mandamus to compel issuance of certificate.—It not being the duty of the clerk to deliver certificates evidencing jury service to any person than to those who rendered the service, he cannot be compelled by mandamus to deliver them to any other person. Pace v. Ortiz, 72 T. 437, 10 S. W. 541.

Art. 5220. [3234] Jury scrip receivable at par for all county taxes.—All certificates issued under the provisions of the foregoing article shall, without further action by any authority, be receivable at par for all county taxes. The same may be transferred by delivery, and no rule or regulation made by the commissioners' court or other officer or officers of a county shall defeat the right of the holder of any such certificate to pay county taxes therewith. It shall employ the superintendent. It shall make an annual report to the governor setting forth in full all the facts pertaining to the school, including receipts and dis-

It shall include in its report the general condition of the students committed to its care, and the success with which the reformatory measures of the school have been administered. [Id. sec. 3, amending Art. 5223, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5224. [2944] Provision of suitable instruction; what shall be taught.—Said board of trustees and the superintendent shall provide for, establish and maintain suitable instruction and training of the inmates of said institution. Said instruction shall include common school, as well as industrial, or agricultural branches, or either or all, as may be deemed desirable by said board and superintendent; provided that it shall be the duty of said board and superintendent to arrange that each student of said training school shall receive a reasonable amount of instruction in the school of letters and industrial branch each year. Each inmate shall be given definite instruction and training in some useful occupation. Each inmate shall be given such moral training and discipline as he is capable of receiving. The prime end to be sought by said board is to reform, educate and train the children committed to the institution, into industrious and useful law-abiding citizens, strengthen their self-control and place them in a moral environment that will build character and inculcate correct ideas of civic virtue and responsibility. [Id. sec. 4, amending Art. 5224, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5225. [2945] The superintendent; removal; qualifications; oath and bond.—The board of trustees shall appoint a superintendent of said school who shall not be removed without cause, which shall be stated by said board in writing and filed with the secretary of state for public record, and in case board desires to dismiss said superintendent it shall give him two months' notice. The superintendent shall be a man of high moral character, education and training, and who shall have had experience in handling wayward and delinquent boys. The superintendent shall before entering upon the duties of his office take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall give a bond in the sum of $10,000 payable to the governor or his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. Said bond shall be signed by the superintendent and two good and sufficient sureties, or by himself and some solvent surety company, authorized to transact business in Texas, and shall be approved by the secretary of state and be deposited in his office. [Id. sec. 5, amending Art. 5225, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5226. [2946] Powers and duties of superintendent.—The superintendent shall have control and management of the training school, subject to the provisions of this law and the regulations adopted by the board.

1. It shall be the duty of the superintendent to keep a register in which he shall enter the name, date of reception, previous moral character, habits and education, so far as can be ascertained, his conduct and deportment, educational and vocational advancement while in said school, the discharge, death, escape, commutation of time, parolment and punishment of each inmate or person admitted to said institution.

2. He shall see that the buildings are kept in good and sanitary order, and that the premises are kept in a healthful and cleanly condition.

3. He shall keep or cause to be kept, the books of the institution fully exhibiting all moneys received and disbursed, the source from which received and purposes for which the same is expended; provided, that all supplies for the institution shall be purchased by the state purchasing agent the same as for other similar institutions. The said books shall give a complete record of all products produced on the farm, or received from any source, and shall show the disposition made of the same, whether sold or consumed. Said books shall at all times be open for the inspection of the board of trustees or the governor, or to any one appointed by the governor to inspect or audit said books.

4. At the first regular meeting after the first of the months of March and September the superintendent shall make a semi-annual report in duplicate, in writing under oath, showing in detail the fiscal operations of the institution since the last report, giving under appropriate heads the total number of inmates in the institution at the date of the report, the number received since last report, the number discharged since last report, the number paroled, or otherwise discharged, with such recommendations for the improvement of management or other matter as he may deem proper. One of said reports, shall be presented to the board of trustees at their regular quarterly meeting and the other shall be forwarded to the governor.

5. It shall be the duty of the superintendent to make supplemental reports in writing to the board of trustees on any matter within the scope of his duties, when requested to do so by the president of the board of trustees. [Id. sec. 6, amending Art. 5226, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5227. [2947] Employment of subordinate officers, teachers and employés; character and habits of employés; salaries; accounts.—The superintendent shall employ and may dismiss for cause stated in writing to the board, such sub-ordinate officers, teachers and employees as may be deemed requisite, and necessary to the conduct, administration and maintenance of said institution, up to the standards of efficiency and utility essential to accomplish the best results; provided that it shall be a violation of the rules of said institution for any employee to use tobacco or intoxicating liquors in any form while on duty, and should any employ be guilty of violating this rule, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to discharge such employee.

The salaries and compensation of all subordinate officers, teachers and employés aforesaid, shall be fixed by the board of trustees, not to exceed the amounts appropriated for same, and the same shall be prescribed by said board in the form of an itemized account sworn to by said superintendent; and the same shall be paid monthly on the comptroller's warrants based upon such sworn itemized account aforesaid. Said account shall contain the name and address of each person and the amount due and for what service; provided, that no account for salary shall be presented by said superintendent until the same has been fixed by said board as herein provided. [Id. sec. 7, amending Art. 5227, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5227a. Religious services; chaplain; salary.—The board of trustees shall provide for religious services at said state institution, for the benefit of the inmates thereof, and to that end shall employ a chaplain, who shall be an ordained minister of the gospel, and the superintendent shall require all inmates in said institution, who are physically able, to attend at least one religious service on each Sunday. Such chaplain shall, under the direction of the superintendent, devote his time to the religious and moral training and education of said inmates, and to visiting sick inmates at such times and occasions as may be necessary, and shall receive an annual salary not to exceed ($720.00) seven hundred and twenty dollars; provided, such chaplain may also be a teacher, such as is provided in article 2947. [Acts 1911, p. 211, sec. 1.]

Art. 5228. [2948] Who to be confined; discharge of inmates.—There shall be confined in said state training school for boys all persons confined in the state institution for the training of juveniles at the time this law takes effect, and all persons committed to the state training school for boys, and all persons who may be sentenced to a term in said state institution for the training of juveniles before this law takes effect, and their present status and terms of sentence shall not be affected by this law; also all juveniles committed to said institution by any court within this state acting under authority of law. Provided, that all inmates sentenced to the state institution for the training of juveniles shall only be required to serve out their unexpired terms in said institution, at which time they shall be released. [Acts 1909, p. 103. Acts 1913, S. S., p. 7, sec. 8, amending Art. 5228, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5229. Article 5246h. Actions for personal injury or resulting death; defenses excluded.—In an action to recover damages for personal injuries sustained by an employee in the course of his employment, or for death resulting from personal injury so sustained, it shall not be a defense:

1. That the employee was guilty of contributory negligence; but in such event the damages shall be diminished in the proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to such employee, provided that no such employee who may be injured or killed shall be held to have been guilty of contributory negligence where the violation by such employer of any statute enacted for the safety of the employees contributed to the injury or death of such employee.

2. That the injury was caused by the negligence of a fellow employee.

3. That the employee had assumed the risk of the injury incident to his employment; but such employer may defend in such action on the ground that the injury was caused by the wilful intention of the employee to bring about the injury.

4. Provided, however, in all such actions against an employer who is not an [a] subscriber as defined hereafter in this Act, it shall be necessary to a recovery for the plaintiff to prove negligence of such employer or some agent or servant of such employer acting within the general scope of his employment. I. DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF MASTER IN GENERAL

1. Injuries to or death of railroad employés.—See Title 115, Chapter 14.

2. Nature of master's duty in general.—An employer does not insure the safety of his employé, being bound only to use ordinary care for his safety. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 451.

An employer is not required to foresee the negligence of an employé and guard against it. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Wolfshohl (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 644.

3. Relation of parties.—An employer's duty to one who volunteers to do certain work is different from its duty to one regularly employed to do it. Davis, Pruner & Howell v. Woods (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 950.

4. — Independent contractors.—A person employed by the day to do a piece of work, and allowed by the contract to adopt his own methods in performing it,—the employer paying the expenses incurred, and looking to him for results only,—is an independent contractor. City of Groesbeck v. Pinson, 50 S. W. 620, 21 C. A. 44.

Where plaintiff, an experienced paper hanger and painter, contracted to do certain decorating for defendant at a specified price, to be paid for on completion of the work—plaintiff to furnish all the materials and appliances and employ his own help—he was an independent contractor, and not a servant of defendant. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Paris, 87 S. W. 724, 39 C. A. 424.

One contracting to erect a building and deliver it completed, hiring his own assistants, and not subject to the direction of the company building it as to the details, held an "independent contractor." Edmundson v. Coca-Cola Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 273.

A building contract held not rendered other than one with an independent contractor by a provision permitting the other party to check and approve the pay rolls and bills for material after the building is completed. Id.

Mere advances to a contractor for the erection of a building not shown to have been used in purchasing material held not to render him a mere agent or employé of the company. Id.

A person erecting a building under a contract providing that the contract price should be the cost, plus a per cent. held not rendered an employé of the company with whom the contract was made by the payment by such company of telephone, printing, and stamp bills, and the cost of a trip to the city where the building was in course of construction. Id.

5. — Acts done under employment or by invitation of master's servants.—Plaintiff was employed to work in the bottling department of defendant's brewery, and was injured in defendant's washhouse while taking empty beer kegs from stacks and painting them; the washhouse being a different department, the superintendence of which was intrusted to a different foreman from the one in charge of the bottling department. Plaintiff was not employed to work in the department in which he was injured. The foreman of the bottling department had no authority from defendant, as plaintiff knew, to put him or any of defendant's employés to work in a different department. Held, that in respect to the work plaintiff was doing when he was injured, the relation of master and servant did not exist between him and the defendant, and plaintiff could not recover, as a servant of defendant, for his alleged injuries. Freeman v. San Antonio Brewing Co., 85 S. W. 1165, 38 C. A. 396.

A servant, inexperienced and under age, was injured while at work on the double-board of a derrick. The foreman saw him go up the derrick to work on the double-board, and knew his inexperience, but did not instruct or warn him of danger, but permitted him to work there. Held, that he was not a volunteer, but must be regarded as having been put to the work by the foreman. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

Where a master divided his business into departments, and required employés idle in their own departments to help in some other department, and the foreman of a department received an employé of another department and accepted his services and directed him, the employé was not a volunteer, but was engaged in the performance of his duties. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Palz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

A traction company is not liable to plaintiff injured while employed by or assisting its servant in cleaning electrical machinery, where the plaintiff looked to the servant for his pay. Blalack v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1086.

6. Scope of employment.—Plaintiff, while directly employed as a cake runner or trucker, in the press room of defendant's oil mill, having been familiar with the duties of a former puller, and he and his co-employés in such room having frequently exchanged work with each other, and this practice having been known to and acquiesced in by defendant, he, when injured in working the puller, while temporarily relieving the former puller, was not a mere volunteer, but a servant of the defendant. Belton Oil Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 884.

Though there was a custom in defendant's mill before plaintiff's injury therein while temporarily exchanging work with another employé for men to exchange work, yet defendant's foreman not having approved of or consented to the custom, but used ordinary care to prevent the exchange of positions, defendant was not liable for the injury. Id.

A lumber company's teamster held a mere licensee in passing along a logging railroad track to his work as affecting the company's liability for injury caused by a passing train. Hopkins v. Garrison-Norton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 310.

7. Medical attendance on injured employé.—A company employed and paid physicians, and undertook to treat its employés when sick or injured, deducting 50 cents per month from each employé's wages. The employés had no interest in the fund thus raised, nor in its distribution, and when they ceased their employment their right to treatment ended. The surplus of the fund each year was retained by the company. Held, that the company was liable to an injured employé for unskillful treatment by its physician. Texas & P. Coal Co. v. Connaughton, 50 S. W. 173, 20 C. A. 642.

Defendant, a mining company, is not entitled to immunity from liability for malpractice in treatment of plaintiff, an injured employé, by the company's physician, on the ground that the physician was selected by plaintiff's employés' union, and defendant only acted gratuitously in taking from employés' wages a certain amount monthly, and paid out the same for medical treatment of injured employés, where the evidence fails to show that the union selected or employed the physician who, after the first few days, treated plaintiff for a number of months. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. McWain, 57 C. A. 512, 124 S. W. 202.

Where a mining company undertakes to furnish medical treatment for its employés, it is liable for the negligence of the physician employed by it in discharge of such undertaking, though it makes no deduction therefor from the wages of the employés. Id.

8. Cause of injury.—In an action for injury caused by defendant's lumber falling on his employé, a charge authorizing a recovery though the falling of the lumber was not due to defendant's negligence was properly refused. Mayton v. Sonnefeld (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 608.

Where an employé engaged in stacking flour was injured in consequence of the stack giving way because of the defective manner in which the flour had been stacked, the failure of the employer to employ a helper did not contribute to the injury. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

A servant suing for personal injury must, to recover, prove not only that the master was negligent as alleged, but also that such negligence was the proximate cause. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

A master is not liable to his servant for the negligent act of the servant of an independent contractor; but, where the master is negligent, and the negligence of the servant of the independent contractor concurs with his own in causing the injury to his servant, he is liable therefor to the same extent as if the injury had been caused by his negligent act alone. Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973.

An employer may become liable for negligently exposing a servant to a hidden danger, known to the master and unknown to the servant, which is incurred by the latter in doing the work which he is employed to do, although the danger arise from the conduct of strangers. Medlin Milling Co. v. Boutwell, 104 T. 87, 133 S. W. 1042, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 109, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 442.

9. Accidental or Improbable Injury—Duty to anticipate consequences.—A master cannot be held responsible for the consequence of an act which ought not reasonably to have been foreseen, though the servant injured thereby was a minor. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Dullnig (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 889, judgment affirmed Dullnig v. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. (Sup.) 87 S. W. 332.

A master is not bound to furnish a servant, handling bottles filled with charged mineral water, a mask to prevent injuries from an explosion, where bottles charged to the pressure of those which the servant was handling had never been known to explode, and such explosions could not be and were not anticipated. Dullnig v. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. (Sup.) 87 S. W. 332, affirming G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Dullnig (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 889.

A master is not exempt from responsibility for negligent injury to a servant merely because the particular injury could not have been anticipated, if he could have reasonably anticipated that some injury might result as the natural consequence of the negligence. Rice v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 715.

Where, in an action for the death of an employé while performing his duties as foreman in a lumber yard, the evidence showed that the accident was caused by the combined action of a defective engine and a defective railroad track, causing the track to sink and slide, throwing the footboard over against a plank sidewalk, a charge that, if decedent was injured by the sliding of the track, and if the employer by the exercise of ordinary care could not have anticipated such an occurrence, a verdict should be found for defendant, was properly refused; it not being necessary, to render the employer liable, that he should have foreseen the exact occurrence which caused the accident, but it being enough that he might reasonably have anticipated an accident of this nature to occur as a result of the defective track or defective engine, or both. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 95 S. W. 607, 41 C. A. 632.

Where a defect in machinery is liable to cause some injury to a servant, the fact that the particular accident which did result was improbable and not to be reasonably anticipated will not relieve the master from liability therefor. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Bivens, 47 C. A. 396, 105 S. W. 831.

A master is not liable to his servant for an injury resulting from pure accident, or from causes which could not be reasonably anticipated, unaccompanied by lack of ordinary care on the master's part, but the fact that an accident was so unusual and extraordinary that it could not reasonably have been expected to happen does not relieve the master from the effect of his negligence; and, where an injury is such that it might have been reasonably anticipated, he is liable, where his negligence proximately caused the injury. Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973.

An employer held not required to anticipate that oil would be ignited by lightning. Butler v. Gulf Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 340.

10. Joint liability of separate employers.—Where one company made an executory sale of its property to another, under an agreement that they were to have joint possession, they are both liable for injuries to an employé. San Antonio Waterworks Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 181.

Plaintiff, an employé of one of defendant corporations, was injured by reason of defective appliances, while assisting both corporations in the placing of certain oil tanks, under the supervision and direction of a common foreman for both corporations. Held, that both defendants were bound to use ordinary care to furnish plaintiff with reasonably safe appliances, and that a failure to perform that duty through their common foreman rendered both or either of such corporations liable for plaintiff's injuries. American Cotton Co. v. Simmons, 87 S. W. 842, 39 C. A. 189.

11. Contracts limiting or releasing liability.—An agreement by a parent, as an inducement to the employment of a minor child, to hold the employer harmless for any injury to the child occasioned by the employer's negligence, is contrary to public policy and void, whether applied to active or passive negligence. Pacific Express Co. v. Watson, 57 C. A. 111, 124 S. W. 127.

II. APPLIANCES AND PLACES FOR WORK

12. Nature of master's duty and liability and care required in general.—The limit of the duty of a master is to exercise ordinary and reasonable care to provide reasonably safe appliances and working places and to keep them in a reasonably safe condition. Quintana v. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co., 37 S. W. 369, 14 C. A. 347; The Oriental v. Barclay, 41 S. W. 117, 16 C. A. 193; Oriental Inv. Co. v. Sline, 41 S. W. 130, 17 C. A. 692; Bering Mfg. Co. v. Peterson, 67 S. W. 133, 28 C. A. 194; Hightower v. Gray, 83 S. W. 254, 36 C. A. 674; Price v. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co., 90 S. W. 717, 41 C. A. 47; Ham v. Hayward Lumber Co., 43 C. A. 566, 96 S. W. 938; Vilter Mfg. Co. v. Kent, 47 C. A. 462, 105 S. W. 525; Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973; Ablene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson, 131 S. W. 299; Texas Co. v. Strange, 132 S. W. 370; Kampmann v. Mendoza, 141 S. W. 161; Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Luckey, 144 S. W. 1148; Freeman v. Grashel, 145

S. W. 695; Farmers' Gin & Milling Co. v. Jones, 147 S. W. 668; Gamer Co. v. Gamage, Id. 721; Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Luckie, 153 S. W. 1158; Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright, 154 S. W. 1168; City of Austin v. Gress, 156 S. W. 535.

An employe, after complaining of insufficient light, continued to work on the promise of the foreman to furnish more light, which was not done, and was injured while performing work which he had been ordered to do by the foreman. Held, that the employer was guilty of actionable negligence. Hillje v. Hettich (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 491, judgment reversed 67 S. W. 90, 95 Tex. 321.

An employer, employing men to stack lumber in its lumber yard, is required to exercise ordinary care only to provide a reasonably safe foundation for the lumber stacks, and a like degree of care to maintain it in such condition. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Dickerson, 94 S. W. 153, 42 C. A. 504.

Where defendant had employed deceased to do certain work on and about certain oil tanks furnished and controlled by another, which work required him to go on top of the tanks, it was defendant's duty to see that the tanks were properly constructed, in so far as their improper construction might involve danger to deceased while engaged in the performance of his duties, or to warn him of the improper construction and the dangers arising therefrom. Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 332, questions from court of civil appeals certified 100 T. 358, 99 S. W. 1024, and judgment reversed on rehearing (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 276, affirmed 101 T. 125, 105 S. W. 318.

The master's duty to furnish reasonably safe appliances for the use of his servants does not require him to attend to the regulation of parts which necessarily have to be adjusted in the course of their use for particular work, and the adjustment of which is incident to their ordinary use. Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Willie, 52 C. A. 550, 114 S. W. 186.

The employer is required to exercise care as to the safety of premises only in case the injury to the employe could have been foreseen by an ordinarily prudent person. Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 917.

It is a master's duty to provide his employes a reasonably safe place to work. Fer-ris Press Brick Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 499; Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Clark, 126 S. W. 322; Freeman v. Mireles, 127 S. W. 1162; Fraser-Johnson Brick Co. v. Baird, 128 S. W. 460; Texas Co. v. Strange, 132 S. W. 370.

A master must exercise care to furnish the servant a safe place to work and safe instrumentalities to work with, and he must take precautions for the safety of the servant when he has knowledge of facts which suggest danger to the servant in the prosecution of his work. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

The law held to impose on a master stated duties as to the safety of servants. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

Owners and operators of cotton gins held required to provide suitable and reasonably safe machinery of a kind used by skilled gin operators for their employes. Guitar v. Randel (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 642.

An employer must furnish a safe place for work and reasonably safe tools and conveyances for transportation, etc. Beck v. Texas Co., 105 T. 303, 148 S. W. 295, reversing judgment Texas Co. v. Beck (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 439.

13. Delegation of duty.—Where the contract of hiring requires the workmen to provide or erect the scaffolds upon which to work, the employer is not responsible for injuries sustained by defects therein. Maughmer v. Behring, 46 S. W. 917, 19 C. A. 299.

Where a deck hand on a tugboat was injured by stepping on a siphon pipe, which another deck hand had carelessly left lying on the deck—it being the duty of the deck hands to keep the deck clear—the negligence was in a mere detail of the business, for which the owner of the boat was not responsible. Direct Nav. Co. v. Anderson, 69 S. W. 174, 29 C. A. 65.

Where plaintiff, a truckman of defendant express company, was injured by being struck by the tongue of a truck, owing to the wheels of the truck falling into a hole in a crossing over railroad tracks, and it was shown that defendant's agent directed the performance of the duty undertaken by plaintiff, and knew of the defect in the crossing before the accident, and had complained thereof to the agents of the railroad company, defendant was not released from liability by reason of a contract between it and the railroad company under which the duty of keeping the premises in repair devolved upon the latter. Pacific Express Co. v. Shivers, 92 S. W. 46, 41 C. A. 291.

The duty of a master to furnish a reasonably safe working place for the servant cannot be delegated. Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973; Buchanan & Gilder v. Blanchard, 127 S. W. 1153; Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 128 S. W. 912.

The duty of a master as to the safety of servants may be delegated without affecting responsibility of the master for its proper performance. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

14. Failure to furnish tools or appliances.—In a suit for personal injuries received by plaintiff while attempting to clean an alleged defective linter in a cotton-oil mill, it is error to charge that if plaintiff was not provided with proper implements to perform the services incident to his immediate employment, and through inexperience did not know it was dangerous to undertake to do such work with said implements, he can recover, as the jury should be instructed that they must first determine whether suitable implements were provided, and whether defendant was negligent in not providing such implements; and also, even though defendant did not provide suitable implements, yet plaintiff cannot recover unless such failure to provide him proper implements was the proximate cause of the injury. Hillsboro Oil Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 874.

Where a servant required to keep a machine running had to put in place an iron bolt thereon, which required a nut to hold it, and the master failed to furnish a bolt with a nut for that purpose, and the servant, exercising ordinary care, attempted to supply the place of the nut by wrapping a string around the end of the bolt, and, while so doing, was injured, the master was liable. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co. v. Harkey, 48 S. W. 1005, 20 C. A. 225.

A sugar mill company operating a railroad on its plantation held not required to carry jack screws upon the engine for use in putting it back upon the track, if derailed. Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Luckey (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1148.

15. Custom and usage.—An instruction in an action for injuries to an employé while stacking lumber in consequence of the foundations of the stack giving way, making it the duty of the employer to provide such safe foundations for its stacks as were commonly used by skilled and experienced millmen, was erroneous, for the employer could not absolve itself from responsibility by providing a foundation such as was commonly used by experienced millmen, if ordinary care required another foundation; nor would it be liable for a failure to do so, if ordinary care did not require it. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Dickerson, 94 S. W. 153, 42 C. A. 504.

That defendant's equipment was in general use in the same business is not conclusive that defendant exercised ordinary care. Lyon v. Bedgood, 54 C. A. 19, 117 S. W. 897.

In a personal injury action by a servant, where the only inference to be reasonably drawn from the evidence was that the master conformed to the usage of prudent men in well regulated concerns in the same business, he could be declared as a matter of law to have been in the exercise of due care. Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 349.

Where a master failed to guard an exciter used to generate electricity, which was wholly enclosed except for a few openings necessary for the adjustment of the machine, held, that he was not guilty of negligence; it appearing that no other manufacturer of electricity guarded the machine. Id.

16. Appliances or places owned, controlled or provided by third persons.—An electric lineman was injured by coming in contact with two live wires placed within a few inches of each other on the same side of the pole, when they should have been placed on opposite sides and on opposite ends of the cross-arm. The lineman did not know that the current was on, though he had heard that it was to be turned on as soon as repairs were completed. The employer knew that the wires were improperly placed and that the current was on, though the actual placing of the wires had been done by the previous owner of the plant. Held, that the employer was negligent. General Electric Co. v. Murray, 74 S. W. 50, 32 C. A. 226.

A master who rents ballast cars for use in his business held required to use ordinary care to furnish reasonably safe cars and maintain them in such condition. Texas Trac-tion Co. v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1069.

Where a master owes to servant the duty of exercising ordinary care to furnish him a reasonably safe place to work, he cannot be heard to say, in justification of a failure to discharge such duty, that he did not control the place where he had put the servant to work. Cooper v. Robischung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1050.

17. Defects in tools, appliances and places for work in general.—In an action by an employé to recover damages for personal injuries sustained by reason of a defective hand car, the court erred in instructing the jury that it was the duty of the master to furnish its employé safe machinery; the only duty of the master being to use ordinary care to avoid such defects as might expose employés to danger while using the machinery with ordinary care. Eddy v. Adams (Sup.) 13 S. W. 490.

The duty of an employer to his servant engaged in setting up a machine in a building is to exercise ordinary care to make the premises safe for him while engaged at his work, and if the employer is negligent in having an object in such a place and in such condition as to fall on him, while he was where his work called him, the master would be liable, in the absence of contributory negligence. Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 917.

Where a servant of a manufacturer of structural work, employed in a building as a member of the rivet gang, was ordered to pick up scraps of iron between piles of steel beams in the yard of the factory, the manufacturer was required to exercise reasonable care to make the place for the servant to work reasonably safe, and where the beams were unsafely piled, and the servant was injured in consequence of a pile falling on him, the master was liable. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Boyles (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 492.

The death of a servant, caused by the falling of a pile of cotton seed, held not the result alone of the action of gravity on the pile, but of the nonperformance of the duty of the master to protect him. Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Curvier (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1132.

18. Temporary appliances, structures or dangers.—A master constructing a building is not liable for a transitory danger to which an employé is exposed, due to no fault of plan or construction. Armour & Co. v. Dumas, 95 S. W. 710, 43 C. A. 36.

A master is not responsible for injuries from the place becoming unsafe through the negligence of the workmen in the manner of carrying on the work, where he has furnished a reasonably safe appliance and place, and he need not keep the place safe at every movement so far as such safety depends on the due performance of the work by the workmen. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

Generally, an employer owes a nonassignable duty to furnish a safe place in which his employés are to work, but not when the danger is transitory and due to no fault of plan or construction, but to the nature of the work. Lantry-Sharp Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 363.

The rule that the master is not liable for injuries to a servant while engaged in making a dangerous place safe held not to apply where a coal digger is preparing an entry in a mine for props, at the time and in the manner directed by the vice principal. Reid Coal Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 847.

The rule requiring a master to furnish a servant with a safe place to work does not apply, where the servant is at work on a structure which is undergoing constant changes. Lowrey v. Fitzhugh (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1190.

The rule that one of the nondelegable duties of an employer is to provide a reasonably safe place in which to work is subject to the exception that the employer need not keep the working place safe when the work of the employé makes the place more or less dangerous as the work advances. Producers' Oil Co. v. Bush (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1032.

The allowing of excelsior from a cutter to pile up around the machine for baling it, in the absence of the servant, who fed the machine, on an errand for the master, rendering the work of feeding the machine dangerous, was not a mere transitory condition, not to have been anticipated by the master in providing a safe place to work. Hartshorn Bros. v. Williamson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 264.

19. Defective or dangerous machinery.—A wooden platform over the rollers of an oil mill, containing a slot through which the machine was fed, was broken, and sagged down until it almost touched the rollers, though it should have been several inches above them. The teeth on the rollers were so dull that the oil cakes had to be forced against the rollers in feeding the machine, and the hand of a servant so engaged was caught and injured while forcing a cake of oil meal between the rollers. Held, in an action against the master, that it was negligent in failing to remedy such defects. Ladonia Cotton Oil Co. v. Shaw, 65 S. W. 693, 27 C. A. 65.

Where defendant assigned plaintiff to work consisting of pulling shucks out of a feed machine operated by belts and rollers, knowing that one of the belts was defective, plaintiff having but slight knowledge of the machinery, and being told that the work involved no danger, defendant was chargeable with knowledge of the effect which the breaking of the belt would have in increasing plaintiff's danger. P. E. Schow & Bros. v. McCloskey (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 386, judgment affirmed 113 S. W. 739, 102 T. 129, 20 Ann. Cas. 1.

Where a cotton mill company, with knowledge that an employé employed by it as a doffer boy, with his mother's consent, was a minor, changed his work and put him to work around a carding machine without his mother's knowledge, which work was more dangerous, and while so working he was injured as the proximate result of such change and his capacity to earn money diminished, the cotton mill company is liable. Hillsboro Cotton Mills v. King, 51 C. A. 518, 112 S. W. 132.

Where a paper manufacturing company maintained wood pulp digesters covered by a heavy lid, fitting in a groove in which it was necessary to place a hydraulic gasket to prevent the escape of steam and acid vapor, it was guilty of negligence in using a gasket known to be defective, as a result of which steam and acid vapor escaped, causing injuries to an employé. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1168.

20. Buildings.—Where 50-pound sacks of flour were stacked without laying the sacks in alternate cross layers, thereby tying the sacks, the employer was negligent in placing an employé on a stack eight feet high with instructions to work thereon. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

21. — Fire escapes.—Ordinances of city of Dallas require the owners or lessees of factories over two stories high in a city to provide the same with suitable fire escapes. Defendant was a wholesale drug company, occupying a four-story building, with its city department and offices on the ground floor, its packing room and heating plant in the basement, and its stock on the remaining floors. On the third floor defendant's chemist, plaintiff's minor son, and two others, were employed in bottling goods and compounding prescriptions, the room containing vessels for fluids and a drug mill, but no other machinery; the entire output of the laboratory being less than 2 per cent. of the business, and three-fourths of that was rebottled goods. No one was employed on the top floor. A fire broke out on the first floor, and plaintiff's son jumped from a window on the third floor to a building below and was injured. Held, in an action for loss of his services, that the evidence was not sufficient to present the issue as to whether defendant was operating a factory requiring fire escapes. Hernischel v. Texas Drug Co., 61 S. W. 419, 26 C. A. 1.

22. Scaffolds, ladders and supports.—A master is bound to furnish the servant with a safe place to work and must use ordinary care in doing so; therefore, where a master had a servant painting a roof, and he was using two ladders which were tied together, one on each side of the roof ridge, if they were tied with a chain in the usual manner which the master had reason to believe was safe, and which an ordinarily prudent person under those circumstances would have believed to be safe, the master is not liable because they came apart and caused an injury to the servant. Planters' Gin Co. v. Washington (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 880.

In an action for injuries to a servant by the fall of a loose plank being used as part of a scaffold under circumstances wherein the material was being constantly removed from one place to another, defendant held not negligent in failing to provide a safe place to work. Lowrey v. Fitzhugh (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1190.

23. Mines and other excavations.—Where the timber crew in a mine had commenced to brace the roof of one of the rooms, and while at work there a member of the track crew, whose duty it was to lay track and clear away obstructions, was killed by the caving in of the roof and deceased had nothing to do with the work of timbering or propping, the master was not absolved from liability under the rule as to the liability to servants who are engaged in the business of making safe an unsafe place. Lone Star Lignite Mining Co. v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 841.

The rule that a master must furnish a safe place to the servant in which to work is applicable to a mineowner. Stag Canon Fuel Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 677.

Where employés in drilling oil wells were supplied with necessary tools, including a jet, for their safety, and they decided that they would not use the jet, and one of them was killed by gas escaping as the work progressed, the employer did not fall to provide a reasonably safe place in which to work. Producers' Oil Co. v. Bush (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1032.

24. Electrical apparatus and structures.—Where it was the duty of a lineman to inspect the poles erected by him, and determine whether they were suitable, and to reject those found unfit, the master was not negligent in sending to him a defective pole, which defect could be plainly seen. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 299.

Where it is the duty of the general manager of an electric light company to determine whether poles were suitable for the use intended, and it is not the duty of the lineman to inspect them, the general manager must exercise ordinary care to select poles reasonably safe for use. Id.

The rule of safe place applies to electric light poles and wires. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 478.

25. Shipping.—On the loading of a vessel merchandise was drawn up an inclined plane to the deck level, and then by a derrick and sling swung over a certain hatch.

The arm of the derrick was too low to swing the merchandise over the center of the hatch, but swung it six inches from the center, and that much nearer another hatch, under which plaintiff was working. When the load, when reaching the deck level, was not opposite the center of the hatch, it was the duty of the gangwayman to adjust it, so it would swing over the center. A load swung over the hatch under which plaintiff was working, and fell, injuring him. Held sufficient to show the injuries to be due to defective rigging or handling. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 203, judgment reversed 70 S. W. 950, 96 Tex. 99.

26. Covering or guarding dangerous machinery or places.—A petition showing that plaintiff, an employé in defendant's service, while undertaking, in the course of his employment, to pass over a line shaft, became entangled in it and the pulley attached to it, and was injured thereby; alleging that it was negligence to construct the shaft without a covering to protect employés from it while the machinery was in operation, as it was dangerous in that condition, and that the danger was known to defendant, or might have been by the exercise of reasonable care, and was not known to plaintiff,—is sufficient in its allegations of negligence. Miller v. Itasca Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 366.

Plaintiff, an employé in defendant's foundry, while carrying a ladle of molten metal stepped into a hole which defendant had excavated a few minutes before in an unusual place—in a pathway used by employés—and left unguarded. Plaintiff had no knowledge of the hole, and when he stepped into it he was burned by spilled material from the ladle. Held, that plaintiff was injured by defendant's negligence. San Antonio Foundry Co. v. Drish, 85 S. W. 440, 38 C. A. 214.

27. Latent defects.—Where the evidence allows of a finding that the parting of a wire cable from a hook at its end, resulting in an employé being struck by a car moved thereby, was caused by the breaking of the cable within the socket, forming part of the hook, to which the cable was fastened by passing through an opening, and then having the wires at the end within the socket untwined, spread out, turned back, and then filled with melted lead, it is proper to charge on latent defects; there being evidence that this was the most approved method of fastening, and that there was no perceptible defect in the cable before it was put in. Quintana v. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co., 37 S. W. 369, 14 C. A. 347.

A charge that defendant was not required to guard against latent defects which could not have been discovered by such inspection as a reasonably cautious person would have given, and that, if the elevator fell by reason of latent defects that could not have been discovered prior to the accident by the use of reasonable care (that is, such care as an ordinarily prudent person would have used in defendant's position), defendant was not liable, did not require a higher degree of care than is imposed by law. The Oriental v. Barclay, 41 S. W. 117, 16 C. A. 193.

If defects in a rope used by defendant in loading a vessel were such as to be undiscoverable by an inspection made with ordinary care, defendant was not negligent toward an employé injured by the rope breaking and the chute supported by it falling on him by permitting the rope to be used. Suderman & Dolson v. Woodruff, 47 C. A. 229, 105 S. W. 217.

Plaintiff was sent to the top of a telephone pole to cut wires, and after the wires were cut, the pole fell, injuring plaintiff. The pole was white cedar, and its fall was caused by its rotten condition. It had not been inspected by defendant, other than the superficial observation of the pole after its erection. Plaintiff, when he was directed to ascend the pole, kicked it for the purpose of ascertaining whether it was sound, and discovered no defect. Held, that there was no negligence on the part of defendant in failing to discover the condition of the pole. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Tucker, 114 S. W. 790, 102 T. 224, reversing 50 C. A. 476, 110 S. W. 481.

28. Inspection and test.—It is the duty of an electric company stringing its wires on a pole belonging to another to inspect it before sending its employés to work there. San Antonio Edison Co. v. Dixon, 42 S. W. 1009, 17 C. A. 320.

Where a derrick was erected by experienced men, but was thereafter removed, under direction of the master, by inexperienced workmen, and the master made no inspection to see whether it had been properly erected after removal, he was guilty of such negligence as rendered him liable to a servant for injuries received by its fall. Westbrook v. Crowds (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 195.

An employé while raising a smokestack, was injured by its fall, caused by the straightening of a hook in the block and tackle. The only test as to the sufficiency of the hook consisted in striking the smokestack with the hands while it was being lifted from a wagon to the ground. Held, to justify a finding that the employer was negligent in failing to properly test the appliance. El Paso Foundry & Machine Co. v. De Guereque, 46 C. A. 86, 101 S. W. 814.

A master purchasing an appliance of an approved pattern from a reputable dealer is not thereby released from the duty of inspecting the same until something happens in its use which directs attention to an imperfection, as reasonable inspection is imposed by law at all times. Alamo Dressed Beef Co. v. Yeargan (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 721.

A defect in an appliance, procured by a master from a reputable dealer, which ordinary care in the course of reasonable inspection will disclose, is not a latent defect, but is a defect for which the master, in the performance of his duty of inspection, is responsible. Id.

Where brick burners had been in the habit for two or three years of using a shed along the side of a kiln to go upon to avoid the gases and heat, and cleats of wood had been nailed thereon to keep them from slipping while so doing, the duty of inspection to see that the shed was in a safe condition for so doing was upon the employer. Ferris Press Brick Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 499.

Where an employé in a cotton oil mill was injured through the use of a defective cloth in forming a cake of cotton seed meal, held, that the master was not necessarily exonerated, because he supplied a sufficient number of good cloths. Leonard Cotton Oil Co. v. Burnes (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1082.

Defendant held bound, not only to use reasonable care to furnish reasonably safe tools, but to use the same care in keeping them in reasonably safe condition. Freeman v. Starr (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1150.

In an action for injuries to a coal miner, instruction held to correctly state the duty of a master to furnish a safe place. Adams v. Consumers' Lignite Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1178.

A mineowner has the duty of inspecting the mine. Stag Canon Fuel Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 677.

It is the employer's duty to inspect electric light poles and wires, and see that they are reasonably safe from defects and dangers. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 478.

29. Knowledge by master of defect or danger.—Defendant was a wholesale drug company occupying a four-story building, and on the third floor were the chemist, plaintiff's minor son, and others employed in compounding prescriptions. A fire occurred at noon, when it was the custom of most of the employes including plaintiff's son, to be absent; but he had been requested by the chemist to remain and his presence in the building was known only to the chemist, who was not present when the fire broke out. The first and third floors were connected by a speaking tube, so that the boy could have been notified, had his presence been known. The fire spread with such rapidity that the employes on the first floor had but little time to escape, and plaintiff's son, being unable to escape otherwise, jumped from the third-story window and was seriously injured. Held, that in an action to recover for his injuries, there being no contention that the fire was caused by defendant's negligence or that it could have been extinguished, it was not error to direct a verdict for defendant. Hernischel v. Texas Drug Co., 61 S. W. 419, 26 C. A. 1.

The mere fact that defendant's foreman, plaintiff's superior, was not aware of the defect which caused plaintiff's injury, is not sufficient to relieve defendant from liability for failure to exercise ordinary care to keep the tools, machinery, and appliances reasonably safe for his servant's use. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Bivens, 47 C. A. 396, 105 S. W. 831.

Actual knowledge is not necessary to fix liability for injuries through dangerous instrumentalities, but the master will be liable if he has failed to exercise due care in ascertaining the condition of affairs bringing about the injury. Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Solcher (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 26.

If it is notorious that an appliance is defective or unfit, knowledge of its condition will be imputed to the master, and, where a dangerous agency continues for such length of time that due care would cause discovery by the master, he is charged with knowledge of it. Id.

A master is chargeable with constructive notice of what naturally and probably will happen as the result of what he knows, and he must foresee what experience will teach him is likely to follow from a given state of facts. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Palz (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 912.

A master held chargeable with knowledge of the condition of machinery and the unsafe character of work in connection therewith. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Palz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

If the master knows, or by the exercise of ordinary care can know, that the tools or place of work furnished to the servant are not reasonably safe, he is chargeable with negligence. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1168.

30. Repairs.—An employer is not bound to so repair an appliance as to make it suitable and reasonably safe for the purpose for which it is used, but merely to use ordinary care to so repair it. Glenn Lumber Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 285.

The duty of a master to furnish safe places to work includes the duty of maintaining them in that condition. Raney v. Houston Lighting & Power Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 178.

31. Improper or unusual use or test.—There was no negligence in failing to furnish a servant with a reasonably safe hammer, where the hammer furnished was ordinarily as safe as any other for doing the work, could have been used without danger at any other place, and was rendered dangerous solely by the act of the servant in using it, without necessity therefor, at a place where it could readily be caught in the machinery. Hettich v. Hillje, 77 S. W. 641, 33 C. A. 571.

Fact that an employe injured by being caught by bolts and nuts projecting from a revolving spliced shaft came into contact with them because of his arms giving way when he attempted by seizing rafters to draw himself up over the shaft did not affect the question of the employer's negligence in using the shaft without first covering the splice. Longview Cotton Oil Co. v. Thurmond, 55 C. A. 499, 119 S. W. 130.

A master is liable for injuries caused by a defective window sill customarily used with his knowledge and acquiescence to stand on while oiling machinery, though it was not primarily intended for that purpose. Williams v. Hennefield, 57 C. A. 54, 120 S. W. 567.

32. Proximate cause of injury.—Deceased was employed at the bottom of a mine shaft in shifting empties and placing loaded cars on the cage. The timber supporting the cage, and the sheet-iron surface surrounding it, had become decayed or misplaced, so that loaded cars could not be placed thereon without some one getting on the cage to pull them on and adjust them. While deceased was so engaged, the cage, without negligence of the mine owners, was suddenly hoisted, and deceased was caught between the cage and shaft, and injured. Held, that the untimely hoisting of the cage, and not defendants' negligence in permitting the timbers and sheet-iron surface surrounding the cage to become misplaced, was the proximate cause of the injury, and hence there could be no recovery. Roe v. Thomason, 61 S. W. 528, 25 C. A. 67.

An instruction, defining "proximate cause" as "such a cause in the absence of which injury would not have happened," was erroneous as ignoring the distinction between proximate and remote cause, and leaving out the essential element that the result must be such as a person of ordinary prudence should have foreseen as likely to occur, as a probable consequence in the light of all the attending circumstances. Gulf Cooperage Co. v. Abernathy, 54 C. A. 137, 116 S. W. 869.

Plaintiff, a night shoveler in defendant's seedhouse, slipped just after entering and stepped into a conveyor box and was injured. Negligence was alleged, in that the conveyor had been lengthened without notice to him, and that additional lights had not been furnished, as promised. Plaintiff knew, when he entered the building, that the conveyor box extended beyond the point where he stepped, prior to its extension, and the box and conveyor were plainly distinguishable by the available light. Held, that defendant's failure to provide the light promised and to warn plaintiff of the extension of the conveyor was not the proximate cause of the injury. Brazos Oil & Light Co. v. Crawford, 57 C. A. 389, 122 S. W. 916.

Negligence of an employer held not the proximate cause of injury to an employé. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 290.

Where plaintiff attempted to pull from a sprocket wheel a sprocket chain, which from its worn condition had wound itself round the wheel, and was injured by the chain suddenly coming off by breaking or unhooking, causing his hand to fly back against a saw, the worn condition of the chain was not the proximate cause of the injury. Dayton Lumber Co. v. Hastings (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 863.

Where an employé of a paper mill company, on seeing steam and acid vapor escaping from a defective gasket on a wood pulp digester, climbed out of a window, and hung on the sill to avoid being scalded, and while in that position lost his hold, and fell to the ground, and was injured, the negligence of the employer in maintaining a defective gasket was the proximate cause of the injury. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1168.

The proximate cause of the injury to an employé, fireman of a stationary engine, was the negligent starting of it by the engineer, a fellow servant, before the fireman had time to get away, after turning the fly wheel by hand, as a preliminary to starting; the defect in the engine, on account of which it had been stopped, being only the occasion. Mansfield Oil Mill Co. v. Edgmon (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1012.

III. METHODS OF WORK, RULES, AND ORDERS

33. Methods of work and duty to protect servant in general.—That a business might have been carried on in a less dangerous manner is immaterial, where the servant has been sufficiently instructed. Mitchell v. Comanche Cotton Oil Co., 51 C. A. 506, 113 S. W. 158.

34. Delegation of duty.—The duty to furnish a safe place to work, which an express company owes to a servant employed to ride in one of its cars, extends only to the construction and equipment of the car, and loading express matter by another servant in a dangerous manner is not a breach of this duty. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Page, 68 S. W. 528, 29 C. A. 489.

35. Knowledge of danger.—Duty of a lumber mill sawyer on discovering peril of a employé announced. Williams v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1182.

36. Rules—Reasonableness and sufficiency.—In a suit for personal injuries received by an inexperienced hand while attempting to clean an alleged defective lint in a cotton-oil mill, the jury should be instructed that, even though they believe plaintiff was ordered to do this work in addition to the work he was originally employed to do, that of itself does not entitle him to recover, but that they must find that defendant was guilty of negligence, and that plaintiff himself was not guilty of negligence contributing, directly and proximately, to his injuries. Hillsboro Oil Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 874.

Deceased was killed by the throwing down of a platform on which he was repairing a cable over railroad tracks in his employer's factory yard, the accident being caused by the smokestack of an engine striking the cable. Decedent's employer had made rules that the gate for the admission of railroad engines into the yard should be opened only on orders of the weighmaster, and it was customary, when engines desired to enter the yard, to give four blasts of the whistle. Engines did not usually enter the yard oftener than once a day, and on the day in question, before deceased started to work on the platform, he had been ordered by his foreman not to begin work until the engine had left the yard, which he did. The accident was caused by the engine again entering the yard without the gate being opened according to the custom, and without whistling. Held that, decedent's employer having promulgated rules, which, if followed, would have provided for decedent's safety, it was not guilty of negligence in failing to make other rules therefor. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns, 74 S. W. 758, 96 T. 573, reversing (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626.

37. Construction and operation.—A rule of an owner of a coal mine held not to require a miner to discover the condition of the roof to the extent of relieving the owner from the duty of maintaining a safe place to work. Stag Canon Fuel Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 677.

38. Negligence in giving orders.—While plaintiff was running a log carriage in a sawmill, the saw veered, and struck the head block of the carriage, and displaced it, and on the return trip scraped against it, making a loud noise, whereupon the engines were stopped. Held, that defendant's foreman, in ordering the engineer to go ahead, before examining the saw, was guilty of negligence, though the saw was new and of standard make. Sulphur Lumber Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 696.

The negligence of a yardmaster in pulling a pin and uncoupling a car, pushed by the engine, to let it run down a grade, and then signaling the engine to stop, after the car had acquired too great speed, is not excused by the fact that he was prevented from sooner uncoupling it and stopping the engine by the sticking of the pin. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 118.

IV. WARNING AND INSTRUCTING SERVANTS

39. Duty to warn and instruct in general.—Plaintiff's son was employed by a drug company, and a fire occurred in the building at noon, when it was the custom of most of the employés, including plaintiff's son, to be absent; but he had been requested by the chemist to remain, and his presence in the building was known only to such chemist, who was not present when the fire broke out. The first and third floors were connected by a speaking tube, so that the boy, who was on the latter floor, could have been notified of the fire, had his presence been known. The fire spread with such rapidity that the employes on the first floor had little time to escape, and plaintiff's son jumped from a window and was injured. Held, that no issue of liability of defendant on the theory of discovered peril was presented by the evidence. Hernischel v. Texas Drug Co., 61 S. W. 419, 26 C. A. 1.

An employé was instructed to use a chisel in repairing a piece of cast iron by cutting off a portion of it, but reported to the foreman that the chisels were dull. He was told to apply to another employé to sharpen the chisels, and by him was directed to use one that he thought was all right. This he used until it became dull, so that to accomplish his purpose he struck the chisel harder, and was injured by a particle of iron striking him in the eye. Held, that the master could not be supposed to know from plaintiff's conduct that he would use a dull chisel, and was not bound to warn him of the danger. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. v. Noll, 83 S. W. 900, 37 C. A. 269.

A sleeping car company could not reasonably anticipate that a match would be in one of its berths, and that a servant in cleaning the berth would ignite it, and cause bedbug poison, which he was using in the berth, to explode and injure him, so that it was not, in failing to warn him, guilty of negligence causing the injury. Pullman Co. v. Caviness, 53 C. A. 540, 116 S. W. 410.

A master is bound to know conditions making extrahazardous the place where he puts his servant to work, and a failure to warn him of danger is not excused because the master did not know of the conditions creating it. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

An employer held not required to warn employes that oil would be ignited by lightning. Butler v. Gulf Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 340.

40. Delegation of duty.—The duty of a master to instruct a servant as to all abnormal or extraordinary risks beyond the comprehension of the servant, or which he has no means to safeguard himself against, is not delegable, and the failure of the master to perform this duty is negligence. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Bivens, 47 C. A. 396, 105 S. W. 831.

41. Inexperienced or youthful employé.—Where plaintiff was employed by defendant to drive one of its teams after he told defendant that he was not an expert driver, and required a gentle team, which defendant promised to give him, but instead it knowingly gave him a dangerous team, without notice to him, and plaintiff, while exercising due care, was run away with and injured, a verdict in his favor is sustained by the evidence. Wrought Iron Range Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 557.

A youthful and inexperienced servant's knowledge that it is dangerous to come in contact with saws does not relieve the master from warning him that, in repairing a machine in a certain manner, he is in danger of coming in contact with a saw therein. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co. v. Harkey, 48 S. W. 1005, 20 C. A. 225.

Plaintiff, while employed by defendant company, was ordered by a vice principal of defendant to paint a hot boiler with coal tar. While painting the boiler, some of the tar popped into his eye, eventually causing its loss. Plaintiff was ignorant of such work, and was not told of such danger by the vice principal. Coal tar was a proper material to paint boilers with, and no such accident was shown to have occurred before, and the vice principal was not aware of any danger that might arise from its use. Held, that the master was not liable for negligence in not instructing the servant of the danger, as it was not such a danger as would require special precautions to avoid. San Antonio Gas Co. v. Robertson, 56 S. W. 323, 93 T. 503, reversing (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 347.

Plaintiff, an inexperienced minor, was employed in trucking oil cake to a crusher. An elevating belt frequently became choked, and the foreman would then call plaintiff and others to assist him in unchoking it. Plaintiff was directed to get on the crusher, and press with one foot on the belt, and in doing so he slipped, and his foot was crushed. Held, that the court properly instructed that it was the duty of a master who puts an inexperienced minor at work more dangerous than that for which he was engaged to warn him of the danger. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

A servant, who had worked for five or six weeks about the premises and machinery in repairing which he was injured, a part of whose duties had been oiling the machinery, and who knew the manner of repairing the same, having repaired similar parts before, could not be considered an inexperienced workman in the sense of imposing on his employer the duty of instructing him, or warning him in such a way as to save him from exposure to the danger which brought about his injury. Hettich v. Hillje, 77 S. W. 641, 33 C. A. 571.

Where an inexperienced servant operating a planing machine was injured by the timber he was working on being thrown back by the knives having been reset by the foreman in the servant's absence and without his knowledge, the master was guilty of negligence in having failed to warn him of the change. Texarkana Table & Furniture Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 782.

Where, in an action for injuries to a servant caused by a defective driftpin used by him, plaintiff alleged that the pin when in proper condition was adapted to the use and purpose intended, and if the pin had been suitable, and the head thereof surrounded with soft or malleable iron, particles would not have been thrown therefrom nor the injury occurred, plaintiff was not entitled to object to certain instructions on the theory that the work in which the servant was engaged was dangerous of itself, and that defendant was bound to warn such servant, who was a minor and inexperienced, though the danger was obvious. Wood v. Texas Cotton Product Co. (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 496.

An employer's vice principal was not relieved of the duty of warning an employé of the danger incident to work on a building, because the servant represented he was experienced and competent to do the work, if the vice principal saw immediately before the employé's accident, from his acts, that he was inexperienced. McCracken v. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co., 45 C. A. 485, 101 S. W. 520.

A master need not warn a servant, though an infant, of ordinary risks and dangers which the servant actually knows and appreciates, or which are so apparent that one of his age and capacity would, under like circumstances, by the exercise of ordinary care, know and appreciate. Mitchell v. Comanche Cotton Oil Co., 51 C. A. 506, 113 S. W. 158.

An employer need not warn an employé against dangers incident to the work, where the latter has represented himself to be competent and the employer is ignorant of his inexperience. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 363.

One held bound to warn his employé against dangers incident to work outside of the ordinary employment. Henry v. McCown (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1170.

It is the duty of a master to warn a boy of all dangers not obvious, or not brought home to his knowledge by the exercise of ordinary care in the performance of his duties; a failure to do so being negligence. Hartshorn Bros. v. Williamson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 264.

42. Dangers known to employé.—Where a servant has knowledge of certain dangers incident to his employment, the failure of the master to give adequate warning of such dangers does not render him liable for an injury resulting therefrom. Ladonia Cotton Oil Co. v. Shaw, 65 S. W. 693, 27 C. A. 65.

A boy between 19 and 20 years of age, who had worked on a farm for 6 years, and was well acquainted with farm work, including the handling of oats, loaded sheaf oats on a wagon, and while sitting on the oats and driving over a well-known road the wagon struck a rough place, and he was thrown off and injured. Held, that the master was not liable, though he had not warned the boy of the danger. Tucker v. Nat. Loan & Investment Co., 80 S. W. 879, 35 C. A. 474.

If a servant knew enough to put one of ordinary prudence on inquiry as to the charged condition of a wire, the master was relieved of giving notice of its condition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Burton, 53 C. A. 378, 115 S. W. 364.

If a servant knows the danger and the means of avoiding it as well as the master, there is no need of instructing him. Brownwood Oil Mill v. Stubblefield, 53 C. A. 165, 115 S. W. 626.

Where an employer promised his stationary engineer at the close of the workday on Saturday to remedy a defective condition in the engine room made by the dripping of oil onto the floor, the employer was not bound to warn the engineer when he went to work on the next Monday morning of the dangerous condition created by the oil on the floor, in addition to the fact that the oil was still there; the engineer being familiar with the danger. Dallas Oil & Refining Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 418.

43. Obvious or latent dangers.—Where a servant is of mature years, and the danger is open to observation to any man of ordinary capacity, and as apparent to the servant as the master, there is no duty to instruct or warn. Brownwood Oil Mill v. Stubblefield, 53 C. A. 165, 115 S. W. 626.

A master need not warn a servant of dangers open and obvious to one of the servant's age and intelligence. Gulf Cooperage Co. v. Abernathy, 54 C. A. 137, 116 S. W. 869.

Where a servant was engaged in setting up a rock crusher more than 30 feet in height, the master is not bound to warn him of the danger of falling off, or from the negligence of fellow servants; such dangers being apparent to the most inexperienced. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 105 T. 407, 150 S. W. 1156.

44. Dangers from extraneous sources.—Decedent, a railroad switchman, having taken the knuckle from the coupler of his switch engine, in order to haul a defective car, was informed by his foreman that he would proceed up the track to examine other cars that were to be moved, and directed decedent after placing the car to return to the same track. This decedent did, and, while readjusting the knuckle of the coupler, was caught between the engine and the next car, shoved along the track by another crew entering from the other end of the switch, without warning to him. Held, that decedent's foreman, having knowledge of decedent's position, was negligent in failing to warn decedent of the danger. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

Any negligence of the master in not warning an inexperienced employé as to dangers of moving saws in a machine which he was directed to clean held not the proximate cause of his injury from accidental slipping and falling into the saws. Vernon Cotton Oil Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 424.

General warning to an employé against a danger does not extend to a piece of work, not in the general line of his employment, and directed by the employer to be performed. Henry v. McCown (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1170.

45. Sufficiency and effect of warnings or instructions.—Where the master warned and instructed a servant when first employed, he need not repeat the warning. Mitchell v. Comanche Cotton Oil Co., 51 C. A. 506, 113 S. W. 158.

If defendant's foreman warned plaintiff in time for him to have removed his hand from the place of danger, and plaintiff heard the warning, this would be a defense, whatever its proper denomination. Waggoner v. Sneed, 53 C. A. 278, 118 S. W. 547.

46. Proximate cause of injury.—Where a sleeping car company for many years used an insect poison to clean up its cars without any accident, and there was nothing in its composition to show that it was dangerous when properly used, the failure of the company to warn a servant that it was dangerous was not negligence which proximately caused an injury to the servant by an explosion of the poison. Pullman Co. v. Caviness, 53 C. A. 540, 116 S. W. 410.

V. NUMBER AND COMPETENCY OF FELLOW EMPLOYÉS

47. Number required for work.—A wire cable, running between two of defendant's buildings, and over a railroad track, was lowered for repairs. There was an engine working on the track, and defendant's superintendent directed the man in charge of the work to wait until the engine was out of the yard, and station a man to stop the engine, and warn the workmen, if it returned. The watchman was not so stationed. The engine returned, struck the lowered cable, and killed plaintiff's husband. Held, that defendant was negligent in not furnishing a watchman, or seeing that he was stationed so as to stop the engine. Burns v. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co., 63 S. W. 1061, 26 C. A. 223.

Decedent was killed by the throwing down of a platform on which he was at work repairing a cable over railroad tracks, the accident being occasioned by the smokestack of an engine striking the cable. The premises were those of the decedent's employer, and were inclosed by a high fence, railroad trains having access thereto. It was customary for an engine to whistle when about to enter, and the employer had a man to open the gate, but there was no one to warn employes engaged in the work decedent was. An approaching engine was not visible from the platform where decedent was stationed. On the occasion in question the gateman was absent when the engine entered. Held, that the employer was negligent in failing to furnish a safe place to decedent in which to work. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626, judgment reversed 74 S. W. 758, 96 T. 573.

Defendant was not guilty of negligence in failing to provide a watchman to look out for engines approaching the yard. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns, 74 S. W. 758, 96 T. 573, reversing (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626.

Where a servant, ordered to assist in handling a wooden beam with inadequate assistance, was ignorant, by reason of his inexperience, of the weight of the beam, and the number required to safely handle it, and the master was charged with a knowledge of the danger of the undertaking, the master was liable for the injuries received by the servant while assisting in handling the beam. San Antonio Traction Co. v. De Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 420.

A master's liability to adopt a reasonably safe and practicable method of work includes the duty to provide a sufficient number of men therefor. Judson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

48. Competency.—The employment of men to assist in the erection of telegraph poles, without making any inquiry as to their competency for such work, is negligent, and the employer is liable to a fellow servant for an injury resulting therefrom. Postal Tel. Cable Co. of Texas v. Coote (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 912.

The mere fact that a servant is incompetent does not make the master liable for his negligence, if he has exercised proper care in selecting the servant and ascertaining his fitness. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 80 S. W. 847, 36 C. A. 18.

One act of negligence on the part of a servant held insufficient to charge the master with negligence in employing him. Butler v. Gulf Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 340.

49. Proximate cause of injury.—To render a master liable for injuries to a servant, caused by the negligence of an incompetent fellow servant, such incompetency must have been the cause of the injury. Campbell v. Wing, 5 C. A. 431, 24 S. W. 360.

Decedent was killed by the throwing down of a platform on which he was at work repairing a cable over railroad tracks; the accident being occasioned by the smokestack of an engine striking the cable. The premises were those of the decedent's employer, and were inclosed by a high fence; railroad trains having access thereto. It was customary for an engine to whistle when about to enter, and the employer had a man to operate the gate; but there was no one to warn employes engaged in the work decedent was. An approaching engine was not visible from the platform where decedent was stationed, and on the occasion in question the gateman was absent when the engine entered. Held, that the employer's negligence in failing to have a watchman was a concurring proximate cause with the negligence of the railroad company in entering the yard without a signal, and in colliding with the cable, so as to charge the employer. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626, judgment reversed 74 S. W. 758, 96 T. 573.

VI. NEGLIGENCE OF FELLOW SERVANTS

50. Operation of railroads.—See Title 115, Chapter 14.

51. Negligence as ground of liability in general.—A servant cannot recover at common law for injuries caused by the negligence of a fellow servant. Price v. Houston Direct Nav. Co., 46 T. 535; Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 453; Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 349.

In an action by a railroad employe against his employer for personal injuries to his wife, caused by the negligence of another employe, the rule that an employe cannot recover of the master for injury caused by the act of a fellow servant has no application. Campbell v. Harris, 4 C. A. 636, 23 S. W. 35.

Under Art. 4694, subs. 1, 2, private corporations other than common carriers are not liable for the death of an employe caused by the negligence of another employe, but are liable for deaths caused by the negligence of a vice principal. William Miller & Sons Co. v. Wayman (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 197.

Plaintiff was employed in a cotton gin as a millwright, his duties being to look after the machinery and everything pertaining to that part of the business, and requiring him to go to various places where the work was being carried on. While passing along a passway from one part of the works to another, he was injured by being struck by a bale of cotton thrown, according to custom, by another servant from the second story of the building. Held, that plaintiff and the one who threw the bale were fellow servants. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 80 S. W. 847, 36 C. A. 18.

An employe engaged in mixing concrete for a building in process of construction is a fellow servant of the carpenters and employes engaged in sweeping rubbish into the basement, all being engaged in the common work of erecting the building, with no one having authority over the others. Armour & Co. v. Dumas, 95 S. W. 710, 43 C. A. 36.

Plaintiff and P. were common day laborers in defendant's employ. P., at the direction of his superior, neither of whom were authorized to employ or discharge plaintiff, called him to assist in holding a chisel which was being driven into a piece of timber. The chisel was insecurely fastened, so that, when plaintiff pulled down on it as he was directed to do, it flew out, and he fell, and was injured. Held, that P. was plaintiff's fellow servant, and that plaintiff could not recover for his negligence, if any, in setting the chisel. Vilter Mfg. Co. v. Kent, 47 C. A. 462, 105 S. W. 525.

A bricklayer, having no duty to erect scaffolds as a place to work, such structures being furnished by the master and erected by carpenters separately engaged, is not a fellow servant with the carpenters. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 370.

53. Nature of act of fellow servant and performance of duties of master.—A servant cannot recover for injury from negligence of a coservant in moving the lever of a machine, though the coservant's duties were merely to take away the product of the machine and he had been directed not to touch the machine. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. De Vond (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 43.

In loading and arranging express matter in the car, an express messenger is acting within the scope of his ordinary duties as servant, and a fellow servant cannot recover because of the negligent manner in which the arranging is done. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Page, 68 S. W. 528, 29 C. A. 489.

If a servant's death resulted from the negligence of the employer's agents placed in charge of its plant to control and direct the employés, the act of such servants would be the employer's act so as to make it liable. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 852.

Where one employé is placed under the control of another, the latter's orders respecting the work are the employer's orders regardless of the grade which the directing employé otherwise holds. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 363.

A servant in a cotton oil mill held not entitled to recover for the negligence of another servant in inspecting certain appliances, unless that servant inspected them with regard to their safety as appliances. Leonard Cotton Oil Co. v. Burnes (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1082.

The duty of a master to furnish a servant a reasonably safe scaffold on which to work is not delegable to fellow servants. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 327.

Where employés drilling oil wells were supplied with proper appliances, including a jet to protect them from escaping gas, and it was the duty of one of them to use the jet when necessary, his failure to use it to protect against escaping gas, causing the death of a coemployé, was a breach of duty of the employé, for which the employer was not liable. Producers' Oil Co. v. Bush (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1032.

The one acting as foreman in the absence of the regular foreman had absolute charge of the work and the adjustment of the machinery, and had taken the place of another employé, and permitted the latter to go and hire more men. The employer gave no testimony to show that such acting foreman was not in authority. Held, that the acting foreman was not a fellow servant, but a vice principal. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 203, judgment reversed 70 S. W. 950, 96 Tex. 99.

Pisch*, 77 S. W. 1047, 33 C. A. 684.

Mere passive consent by an employer that one employé direct another, when unaccompanied with a duty on the part of the directed employé to obey the directions given, will not fix liability on the employer for negligent directions of the directing employé. Texas & P. Coal Co. v. Manning, 78 S. W. 545, 34 C. A. 322.

Where neither express authority to one employé to direct another, nor knowledge of authority assumed by such employé brought home to the employer or to any one standing in the relation of vice principal, was shown, consent on the part of the employer to the exercise by the employé of such authority will not support an inference or presumption of authority to such employé to direct and control the other. Id.

An employer is not liable for the negligence of a foreman by which an employé is injured, unless the foreman had the power to employ or discharge the employé. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat, 79 S. W. 869, 35 C. A. 36.

An assistant general manager of a corporation, who has general authority in the conduct of its business and the direction of its work, is a vice principal and not a fellow servant with inferior servants engaged in the actual operation of the business, although he has no power to employ and discharge such inferior servants. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Anderson, 91 S. W. 607, 41 C. A. 342.

A foreman directing an employé to work in a particular place is not a fellow servant of the employé. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

Mere proof that an employé was a foreman, unaccompanied by any proof that he was deputed by the employer to perform the personal and nondelegable duties of the employer, did not show that the employé was a vice principal for whose acts the employer was liable. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733, reversed, 103 T. 253, 126 S. W. 2.

Though W., foreman of defendant's sawmill, had authority to employ and discharge employés only after consultation with defendant's president, yet he, having authority to direct and control the other employés and supervise their work, was a vice principal as to plaintiff's intestate, an employé therein in taking B., another employé, from his regular work of block setting, and sending him below the floor to unscrew the nuts from bolts in a broken floor plate, in doing which B. came in contact with a lever, setting machinery in motion, killing intestate; so that defendant was liable for the foreman's negligence in so sending B., knowing he was incompetent and inexperienced and ignorant of the character and use of the machinery amidst which he was instructed to work. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 35.

One who is the foreman of a department in an establishment divided into departments, with power to hire and discharge employés in that department, is a "vice principal" in the conduct of that department, and any negligence on his part in the conduct of the business committed to him is negligence of the master. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

One is a "vice principal" who is employed to hire, direct, and discharge employés or to whom the employer has delegated a duty owing to workmen, though otherwise he may be a fellow servant; it being the authority given in a particular matter, and not the grade of service, which determines the issue of vice principal or fellow servant. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 363.

Where a master places a servant in charge of certain work with authority to control and direct other servants, such superior servant represents the master while in the performance of such duties. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Riser, 137 S. W. 1188.

Fitzhugh* (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1190.

A servant without power to employ or discharge is not a vice principal, but as to servants of the same master is a fellow servant. Judson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

55. — Nature of act or omission, and performance of duties of master.—One of two employés, in the erection of a compress, superintended the carpenter work, and the other the machinery. The latter, in hoisting a heavy girder, called the former to his assistance, and while there a hoisting block slipped, on account of its greasy condition, and fell, striking him a fatal blow. Held, that as it was the duty of the company in the first instance to remove the grease, and as such duty was nontransferable, the failure of the superintendent of the machinery to do so was not such negligence of a fellow servant as precluded a recovery. Terrell Compress Co. v. Arrington (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 59.

The foreman of a telegraph company in charge of the construction of its lines is the vice principal of the company, and it is responsible for an injury resulting from his negligence in hiring incompetent men. Postal Tel. Cable Co. of Texas v. Coote (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 912.

Where plaintiff was employed by the superintendent, and told to report to a foreman, and plaintiff was not instructed in his duties, or warned of danger by the superintendent, and the plaintiff and others were called by the foreman to assist him in starting an elevating belt on certain machinery managed by him, the foreman was a vice principal, and not a fellow servant, of plaintiff. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

A vice principal having control of the loading of a vessel, who takes the place of the gangwayman whose duty it is to give orders for the movements of a derrick used in hoisting goods, is not, while so acting, a fellow servant. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 203, judgment reversed 70 S. W. 950, 96 T. 99.

Where plaintiff was injured by the fall of a barrel which had been negligently set on a joist above where plaintiff was working, and the barrel fell when another servant went on the joist to get a barrel in obedience to the order of his foreman, the latter's act did not constitute negligence on the part of plaintiff's fellow servant. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Eichhorn, 44 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

Where an employer places a foreman in charge of the construction of a building, with authority to control and direct the workmen, who are instructed to obey his orders, and a workman receives injury while obeying the foreman's order, the foreman's negligence is the employer's. McCracken v. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co., 45 C. A. 485, 101 S. W. 520.

An employé while working on the top of a stack of flour was injured in consequence of the fall thereof. The flour had been stacked before his employment began. He was directed by the employer's foreman to work on the top of the stack. Held, that the injury was not caused by a fellow servant. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

A servant, while actually engaging in the work with other servants, is not a vice principal as to such servants, though he has power to direct and control them. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 453.

Where it is the duty of the servant to keep the machine he is operating in proper condition for use, the act of the foreman in undertaking to repair a defect therein is that of a mere intruder, for whose unauthorized act the master is not responsible. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co., 103 T. 253, 126 S. W. 2, reversing (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733.

Where it is the duty of the foreman in a sawmill to keep the machinery in proper condition, he represents the master in the performance of a nondelegable duty, and is not a fellow servant of the sawyer. Id.

A servant was killed while attempting to release a freight elevator. A truck loaded with merchandise was wheeled into the elevator, and when the two front wheels got on the elevator it went down, and a fellow employé grabbed the cable, and the elevator started up so that the front wheels were caught between the floor of the elevator and the floor of the building. The work of releasing the elevator was done under the directions of the vice principal. Held, that the master was liable on it appearing that the release of the elevator was within the sphere of the duties committed to the vice principal and that the direction he gave was, under the circumstances, negligent, though he was not liable for the unsafe condition of the elevator arising during the progress of the work. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

The rule that a master is not liable ordinarily for the negligent act of a foreman proximately resulting in injury to a servant, unless the foreman had the power to employ or discharge the servant, does not apply to a foreman giving orders to those who have been placed by the master under him to work, and in reference to work under his control, but he speaks for the master and is a vice principal. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Boyles (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 492.

Though one be a vice principal as to general management and control of work, if his negligence be that of a colaborer and not in exercising his authority, he is, as to such negligence, a fellow servant and not a vice principal. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 363.

If a vice principal on hearing a negligent order given permits it to be obeyed, he thereby makes it his own. Id.

A servant superintending the erection and shifting of scaffolds on a building held a vice principal. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Riser (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1188.

In determining the liability of the master for injuries to a servant, certain questions held immaterial. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

A vice principal held authorized to direct a servant to assist in releasing a stalled freight elevator used in the work. Id.

A foreman in a mill held a vice principal. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper, 105 T. 21, 142 S. W. 1168.

The act of a foreman, throwing a lighted match into a pool of oil, held not an act for which the master was liable. Butler v. Gulf Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 340.

A servant, injured in setting up a rock crusher through the negligence of the carpenter, who, though directing operations, had no power to hire and discharge, cannot recover from the master; the carpenter being a mere fellow servant. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 105 T. 407, 150 S. W. 1156.

Death of employé struck by hoisting bucket held caused by the negligence of a vice principal who directed another employé to signal the engineer to permit the bucket to drop without warning the employé or ascertaining whether he was in a position of danger. William Miller & Sons Co. v. Wayman (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 197.

56. Existence of relation of master and servant in general.—Where no proof is offered in support of the allegation that plaintiff was engaged in expediting the business of his master when he was injured by the negligence of defendant's servants whom he was assisting to move certain cars, he cannot recover, since in such case he would be a mere volunteer standing in the same position as a regular employé. Bonner v. Bryant, 79 T. 540, 15 S. W. 491, 23 Am. St. Rep. 361.

A servant injured in consequence of negligent work done by servants before his employment began and such servants are not fellow servants. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Boyles (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 492.

Plaintiff, a servant of a transfer company who was directed to take a team and do some moving for a well driving company, was, while engaged in such work under the direction of the well driving company's foreman, a servant of that company and a fellow servant of its servants. Judson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

57. Servants of separate masters in same work.—Lessees of a penitentiary are not responsible for an injury to a convict by the defective construction of a bunk made by a servant of the penitentiary commissioners having charge of the convicts. Cunningham v. Moore, 55 T. 373, 40 Am. Rep. 812.

When the injured person, plaintiff's wife, was working for her husband, who was boarding the men of defendant company under an agreement that the company should retain their board and pay it to plaintiff, the wife and the engineer were not fellow servants. Brown v. Sullivan, 71 T. 470, 10 S. W. 288.

A servant of a contractor erecting a building and a servant of an independent contractor are not fellow servants. Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973.

58. Concurrent negligence of master and fellow servant.—An action for the death of plaintiff's son, through negligence of a railroad company in allowing slabs to obstruct the side of a switch, where the negligence of the defendant is shown, in the absence of contributory negligence on the part of the deceased, recovery is not defeated by the contributory negligence of fellow servants. Howe v. St. Clair, 8 C. A. 101, 27 S. W. 800.

The employer is liable for an injury to an employé from the concurrent negligence of the master and fellow servants. Sincere v. Union Compress & Warehouse Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 326.

A foreman who directs a servant to work beneath a place where another servant is working, and fails to warn the lower servant that the end of a timber being sawed off by the upper servant is about to fall, is guilty of such negligence as will render his master liable, though the upper servant is also negligent. American Cotton Co. v. Smith, 69 S. W. 443, 29 C. A. 425.

Where a servant employed in a cotton gin, while passing from one part of the works to another, was struck by a bale of cotton thrown from the second story of the building by another servant in the discharge of his duty, the fact that the injured servant and the one discharging the bale were fellow servants would not preclude a recovery, if the injured servant was hurt through the negligence of the master in failing to provide a safe passage, or in failing to employ a competent servant to discharge the cotton, or in failing to instruct him to give a proper warning before discharging the bale. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 36 C. A. 18, 80 S. W. 847.

If negligence of the master concurs with that of a fellow servant in producing the injury, the master is as liable for the consequences thereof as though his negligence was the sole cause of the injury. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Eichhorn, 44 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

Plaintiff, a laborer employed by defendant, which operated a railroad, was ordered to ride on flat cars loaded with telephone poles, the cars being pushed by a locomotive. The road was uneven, and the rocking of the cars caused the end of the poles on the front car to fall, whereupon defendant's general manager cried out, and plaintiff, noticing the condition of the poles, jumped from the car and was injured. The poles would not have fallen had a certain pin been placed in a standard on the front of the car. All of the hands had been engaged in loading the car, but plaintiff had not assisted in fixing the standard, and knew nothing as to its condition. Held, that an instruction that, if there was negligence in failing to secure the standard and negligence in allowing the track to be rough and uneven, a verdict should be returned for plaintiff was proper. Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Mounce, 46 C. A. 230, 102 S. W. 142.

If the breaking of a rope and consequent injury to an employé was due to the concurrent negligence of the master in selecting and using the rope and of the employé's fellow-servants in using it, the employers are liable. Suderman & Dolson v. Woodruff, 47 C. A. 229, 105 S. W. 217.

An employé in a sawmill was injured while adjusting a guide pin of a circular saw, by the slipping of the wrench used to tighten the pin. The wrench was worn, and loosely fitted the head of the pin, which was also worn. A co-employé had put cloth in the threads of the guide pin to hold it more securely, and the employé put a severer strain on the wrench than ordinary. Held, that the act of the co-employé was not the proximate cause of the injury. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733, reversed 103 T. 253, 126 S. W. 2.

Where a servant of a contractor erecting a building was injured by the fall of a ladder because of the negligence of the contractor in improperly securing it, and in putting a servant to work beneath it where he might be injured by its fall if displaced, the contractor failed to use ordinary care to furnish the servant a reasonably safe place to work, and his negligence was the proximate cause of the injury, though the displacement of the ladder was caused by the negligence of a fellow servant. Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973.

A master is liable for injury to a servant through its negligence, though there is concurrent negligence of a fellow servant. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 35.

Where the negligence of the master concurs with the negligence of a servant, the master is liable. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 283.

Act of a fellow servant in untying a rope, whereby a scaffold was precipitated to the ground injuring plaintiff, held not the proximate cause of the injury. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Riser, 137 S. W. 1188.

Where the master's negligence in failing to guard dangerous machinery is the proximate cause of injury, he is not relieved from liability by the fact that plaintiff's fellow servant was negligent in operating the machine. Armour & Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 861.

59. Willful acts and gross negligence of fellow servants.—A corporate employer is not liable for injuries to a new employé inflicted by its officers and employés while attempting, in sport, to lay the new employé across a barrel for the purpose of padding him, as an initiation into the service, though the custom of initiating all new officers and employes had existed for years with the knowledge and acquiescence of the officers and managers; the act both of the officers and of the employes being wholly without the scope of their authority. Medlin Milling Co. v. Boutwell, 104 T. 87, 133 S. W. 1042, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 109, reversing (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 442.

VII. ASSUMPTION OF RISK

60. Operation of railroads.—See Title 115, Chapter 14.

61. Nature and extent in general.—A policeman does not, by virtue of his employment, assume risks incident to defective sidewalks and highways. City of Galveston v. Hemmis, 72 T. 558, 11 S. W. 29, 13 Am. St. Rep. 828.

Where a servant is injured from one of the known dangers ordinarily incident to his service without negligence on his part, his injury is ascribed to one of the ordinary risks of the employment which he assumed in entering the service, and the relation of master and servant must appear before the doctrine of assumed risk is applicable. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Brown, 60 C. A. 482, 109 S. W. 950.

The risks assumed by a servant stated. Leonard Cotton Oil Co. v. Burnes (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1082.

The defenses of assumption of risk and contributory negligence are inconsistent, and the existence of one necessarily excludes the other. Armour & Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 861.

62. Reliance on care of master.—In an action for injuries received through the negligence of a co-laborer, an instruction that plaintiff would be put on inquiry to ascertain, before engaging in work with such laborer, whether he was a man of ordinary intellect, and understood the English language, was erroneous, since, in the absence of actual knowledge of such want of capacity, plaintiff could assume that the master had exercised reasonable discretion in selecting the servant. B. Lantry Sons v. Lowrie (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 837.

Where plaintiff was injured by the fall of a barrel insecurely placed on a joist above the floor of the room in which plaintiff was working, she did not assume the risk, she being under no obligation to inspect the premises for such dangers, nor to presume that defendant would negligently place the barrel in an insecure position. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Elchhorn, 44 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

Where a bricklayer goes upon a scaffold as a place of work, the scaffold having been built by carpenters engaged in the same general employment, he has the right to assume that the master has performed his duty to provide a safe place to work. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 370.

A servant need not anticipate the master's negligence, and he does not assume the risks of the failure of the master to perform his duty. Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Curvier (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1132.

A servant is not bound to use ordinary care to see whether the master has discharged his duty of furnishing a safe place for work, but may presume that the master has discharged his duty, without assuming the risk arising from the failure to do so, unless he knows or should have known that the place was dangerous. Cooper v. Robischung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1050.

63. Dangers incident to nature of work.—A servant assumes the risk of all dangers ordinarily incident to his employment. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Burton, 53 C. A. 378, 115 S. W. 364; Alamo Dressed Beef Co. v. Yeagan (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 721; Freeman v. Irving, 136 S. W. 810; Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Luckey, 144 S. W. 1148; Brown Cracker & Candy Co. v. Johnson, 154 S. W. 684; Taylor v. White, 156 S. W. 349.

In a servant's action for injuries an instruction that plaintiff assumed as matter of law all risks of injury ordinarily incident to the employment; that, if his injury resulted from risks ordinarily incident to the work, the verdict should be for defendant; that by the expression "risk ordinarily incident to the work" is meant a risk of injury that does not grow out of an act of negligence on the part of defendant or his other employes, etc.—correctly stated the law. Freeman v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1194.

64. Defective or dangerous tools, appliances and places.—Plaintiff in entering the employ of defendant assumed the ordinary risks of the service for which he was employed, and if he was employed for the purpose of "riveting," and the flying or chipping of the tools used for this purpose was one of such risks, and he was injured thereby, he could not recover. H. S. Hopkins Bridge Co. v. Burnett, 85 T. 16, 19 S. W. 886.

Plaintiff was injured by a piece of steel which flew off a rivet hammer used by a co-employe, while holding a sledge hammer against a rivet. He had been at the work five or six days, and knew nothing as to the condition of the rivet hammers. The tool company making the hammers had a high reputation, and its tools were in high standing. Such hammers must be highly tempered, to serve their purpose, and, being so, are liable to chip and crack when in use. All of the rivet hammers were cracked and shivered, and had been for five or six days. Employes testified that there was little likelihood of the hammers cracking or shivering when sound, but that, becoming cracked, there was great liability of pieces chipping off. It was further shown that the cracked condition of the hammer from which the piece causing the injury flew was apparent on a casual examination; also, that defendant had a man on the scene as superintendent of the work. Held, that an instruction that, it being shown that the hammers by which plaintiff was injured were made by a company whose tools were of high standing, and that such hammers must be highly tempered, and therefore liable to chip and crack when in use, plaintiff assumed the risk of being injured by such chipping or cracking, and therefore the finding should be for defendant, was properly refused, since the facts, as shown, did not apply to hammers which had become cracked and chipped from use. De La Vergne Refrigerating Mach. Co. v. Stahl, 60 S. W. 319, 24 C. A. 471.

Where a deck hand on a tugboat, a part of whose duties consisted in keeping the deck clear, stepped on a siphon pipe lying on the deck, causing him to slip and be caught in a coil of rope attached to a tow, the risk of such an accident was one which he had assumed. Direct Nav. Co. v. Anderson, 69 S. W. 174, 29 C. A. 65.

The question of a master's negligence in failing to provide his servant with a reasonably safe place to work does not arise where it is clearly shown that the servant himself selected the place at which he performed the work for convenience sake, and without any order or suggestion from his foreman, whereas the work could have been done elsewhere without incurring the danger incident to the performance of the work in the place chosen. Hettich v. Hillje, 77 S. W. 641, 33 C. A. 571.

An employé in charge of a gin stand, and required to watch the machinery, look out for defects, and unchoke the same on it becoming choked up with cotton seed, assumed the risk of injury resulting to him in consequence of his hand being carried into the saws while unchoking the machinery. Thompson v. Planters' Compress Co., 48 C. A. 235, 106 S. W. 470.

Where it is the duty of the servant to keep the machine he is operating in proper condition for use, he assumed the risk of injury from defects therein. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co., 103 T. 253, 126 S. W. 2, reversing (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733.

Where temporary structures, erected to complete a main structure, are put up by the same workmen as are engaged on the main structure, the workmen who have put it up assume the risk of such structure being unsafe. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 370.

The rule that a master must exercise ordinary care to furnish a servant a reasonably safe place to work does not apply where the place becomes unsafe during the work. Adams v. Consumers' Lignite Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1178.

An operator of an electrical ironer in a laundry does not assume the risk of injury from explosions caused by defective wiring. Kampmann v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 161.

A servant engaged in winding up doors of ballast cars rented by his master for use in his business does not assume a risk of injury caused by the breaking of a chain. Texas Traction Co. v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1069.

Where a telephone lineman was not instructed to use a ladder in ascending poles, he did not assume the risk of injury from defects in a pole, received while climbing the same in the usual manner. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1052.

An employé may assume that the place in which he works is reasonably safe. Farmers' Gin & Milling Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 668.

65. Dangerous operations and methods of work.—A servant in entering the master's employ assumed the ordinary risks of the service for which he was employed, and if he was employed for the purpose of "riveting," and the flying or chipping of the tools used for this purpose was one of such risks, and he was injured thereby, he could not recover. H. S. Hopkins Bridge Co. v. Burnett, 19 S. W. 886, 85 T. 16.

Where a servant went into the mouth of an elevator bin to cave cotton seed which had become lodged therein, he assumed the risk of digging in the bottom of the bin, whereby the seed slipped and crushed him. Brown v. Miller (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 547.

Plaintiff was employed in an oil mill, and was directed to get on the crusher, and put one foot on the belt, which had choked, to press it down, and in doing so he slipped, and his foot was caught in the crusher. It was not shown that there was any rule as to how the work should have been performed. Held, that it was not error to refuse to instruct that, if the defendant knew or ought to have known how the business was conducted, he assumed the extraordinary hazard arising from the manner in which it was conducted. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

A longshoreman working in the hold of a vessel under an open hatch, and injured by the fall into the hatch of merchandise which is being loaded into another hatch, did not assume the risk. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 203, judgment reversed 70 S. W. 950, 96 Tex. 99.

While an employé may assume that the master has done his duty in furnishing a reasonably safe place to work, and is not required to make an inspection, yet, when he is instructed to do work in a particular manner and knowingly violates such instructions, he assumes the risk of any resulting injury. Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 322.

A servant employed to shovel cotton seed from a seed pile into a conveyor assumes the risk of injury occasioned by the fall of the pile by gravity. Vernon Cotton Oil Co. v. Catron (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 404.

On facts stated, held, that a servant injured by attempting to lift a pipe from a ditch had not assumed the risk. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Clayton (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 268.

66. Inadequate rules or direction of work.—Decedent was killed by the throwing down of a platform on which he was at work repairing a cable over railroad tracks, the accident being occasioned by the smokestack of an engine striking the cable. The premises were those of the decedent's employer, and were inclosed by a high fence, railroad trains having access thereto. It was customary for an engine to whistle when about to enter, and the employer had a man to operate the gate, but there was no one to warn employés engaged in the work decedent was. An approaching engine was not visible from the platform where decedent was stationed, and on the occasion in question the gateman was absent when the engine entered. The engine occasioning the accident had entered the yards once before that morning, and the employer's superintendent instructed decedent's foreman in decedent's presence not to go to work until the engine left the yard. After the engine left, and the gate had been closed, decedent went to work. On its return the engine gave no signal. Held, that the decedent did not assume the risk. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626, judgment reversed 74 S. W. 758, 96 Tex. 573.

67. Incompetency or negligence of fellow servants.—A guard employed to ride on an express car and protect it from robbers, by accepting employment, assumes the risk of injury resulting from the negligence of fellow servants in the usual course of the company's business. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Page, 68 S. W. 528, 29 C. A. 489.

An employé engaged in mixing concrete for a building in process of construction was injured in stepping on upturned nails protruding through a piece of board lying on the floor on which he was at work. Employés engaged in taking care of the rubbish had placed the board there. Held, that the employé received his injuries from a cause, the risk of which he assumed. Armour & Co. v. Dumas, 95 S. W. 710, 43 C. A. 36.

A servant assumes the dangers arising from the negligence of his fellow servants when committed in the performance of their own duties as well as those which are obvious and incidental to their employment. Judson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

68. Knowledge by servant of defect or danger.—Plaintiff was employed in taking cinders and ashes from a pit covered with two loose, heavy plates of iron. He placed one plate on its edge, propping it with a stick, and while at work in the pit the plate fell, injuring him. He had worked there six weeks, and knew of the condition of the plate covers, and had full opportunity to know of any defects which would render the plate thus secured dangerous. Held, that he could not recover. Brown v. Brown, 71 T. 355, 9 S. W. 261.

Where an employé knew or should have known that a hammer used by him for "riveting" was unsuited to the work, he was not entitled to recover from the master for an injury occasioned by its use. H. S. Hopkins Bridge Co. v. Burnett, 19 S. W. 886, 85 T. 16.

Plaintiff was engaged in loading iron for defendants. While attempting to lift on a car a piece of iron, one end of which was not raised to the top of the car, it struck the side of the car, and bounded back on plaintiff. Plaintiff was accustomed to loading iron, and knew how many men were necessary to load iron of that size. He testified that it required from six to ten men to load that kind of iron, while only five handled this one. Held, that plaintiff was not entitled to recover, since he knew, as well as defendants, the danger of loading the iron with that number of men. Eddy v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 295.

Though plaintiff had applied for and been given employment, and put to doing certain work, yet from this it could not be presumed that he knew the danger of other work, which, over his protest, he was thereafter, on the discharge of the person who had done it, told that he must do. Hillsboro Oil Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 432.

An instruction that, if plaintiff knew that a fellow servant was of low order of intellect, he assumed the risks that might result from engaging in the same work with him, in so far as such injury might result from that condition, was correct. B. Lantry Sons v. Lowrie (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 837.

A wooden platform over the rollers of an oil mill, containing a slot through which the machine was fed, was broken and sagged, until it almost touched the rollers, though it should have been several inches above them. The teeth on the rollers were so dull that the oil cakes had to be forced against the rollers in feeding the machine, and the hand of an employé was caught and injured while forcing an oil cake against the rollers. He had fed the machine but a short time before the accident, and knew of the defective condition of the platform. He did not know that the teeth of the rollers were dull, but knew that the hard oil cakes had to be forced into the rollers, which was the result thereof. Held, that such employé assumed the risk of his hand being caught while feeding the machine. Ladonia Cotton Oil Co. v. Shaw, 65 S. W. 693, 27 C. A. 65.

A servant ordered to take a certain number of men with him, and go to a certain place and get a wooden beam, who knew of the weight of the beam and the number of men required to handle it with safety, assumed the risks arising from undertaking to handle it with an inadequate force. San Antonio Traction Co. v. De Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 420.

A servant assumes the risk in performing work alone in a place where the conditions are such that he must necessarily know that he is exposed to danger, whereas the work could be done elsewhere without any such exposure; and he cannot count on the negligence of the master in failing to provide two men to do the work. Hettich v. Hillje, 77 S. W. 641, 33 C. A. 571.

A servant who was aware of the fact that a conveyor box was open, and of the danger in working with the hammer just above the revolving screw, and who was not so working under the pressure of a peremptory order from the foreman, assumed the risk, and any negligence in having the conveyor uncovered was immaterial. Id.

An employé in a brewery, injured by the falling of a pile of kegs he was to wash, having known of the slanting slippery floor and of the throbbing from the engine, assumed the risk thereof. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Pisch, 77 S. W. 1047, 33 C. A. 684.

Though a master is bound to exercise ordinary care to furnish suitable and safe machinery and to employ a sufficient number of competent and skillful servants, he is not responsible for injuries to a servant caused by his failure so to do, if the servant knows, or by the exercise of ordinary care for his own safety would have known, of such failure, as the servant assumed the risk arising from the negligent failure of the master in such particulars. Smith v. Armour & Co., 84 S. W. 675, 37 C. A. 633.

Plaintiff, an employé in defendant's foundry, while carrying a ladle of molten metal, stepped into a hole which defendant had excavated a few minutes before in an unusual place in a pathway used by employés and left unguarded. Plaintiff had no knowledge of the hole when he stepped into it, and was burned by spilled material from the ladle. Held, that the hole being in an unusual place in the pathway, where plaintiff had never known one to be placed before, and his attention not having been called thereto, he did not assume the risk. San Antonio Foundry Co. v. Drish, 85 S. W. 440, 38 C. A. 214.

A risk, though known to the servant, is not deemed in law to have been assumed unless the danger arising from such risk is, likewise, known by him. Peck v. Peck, 87 S. W. 248, 99 T. 10, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 257.

An employé must exercise ordinary care for his own safety, and if he discovers, or in the exercise of ordinary care could have discovered, the defective condition of the appliances and its attending danger, he assumes the risk proximately resulting from the defect. Price v. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co., 90 S. W. 717, 41 C. A. 47.

An employé does not assume the risk of a defect in an appliance, unknown to him, and which the employer knows of, or for which he is responsible. Smith v. Buffalo Oil Co., 91 S. W. 383, 41 C. A. 267.

Where a servant was injured while wheeling salt in defendant's factory by reason of the defective construction of a runway, and such defect was not known to the servant nor patent to observation, he did not assume the risk. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 131.

A servant, whose duty it is to move lumber in a truck over a roadway from a sawmill to the place where it is piled, does not assume the risk of injury from the breaking of a plank in the roadway, because he knew that such accidents occasionally happened. William Cameron & Co. v. Realmuto, 45 C. A. 305, 100 S. W. 194.

Though an employé struck in the eye by a rivet thrown from a pulley belt on the breaking thereof cannot recover for his injury on the theory that the belt was defective, where it appeared that, if it was defective, he knew of its condition and assumed the risk, he can recover on the theory that the belt's breaking was caused by a pulley negligently permitted to remain in a defective condition; plaintiff not knowing of such defect. Poindexter v. Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co., 107 S. W. 42, 101 T. 322, reversing Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co. v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 439.

A servant, thoroughly experienced in the work, who continues to operate a defective machine, without promise on the part of the master of guaranty against injury or of mending the machine, assumes the risk, where he has full knowledge of the defect and of its effect on the operation of the machine. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. Scott, 51 C. A. 117, 112 S. W. 107.

Where a servant's duties required him to adjust one end of a skid to an ice chute and place the other end on his wagon, he was chargeable with knowledge of the condition of the apparatus from his daily use thereof. Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Willie, 52 C. A. 550, 114 S. W. 186.

A servant assumes the risk of all dangers from the master's negligence, whose existence he knows, or could have learned of by that care which a prudent man would have used under the circumstances, so that if a servant knew that a wire was dangerously charged, or was warned sufficiently to put an ordinarily prudent man upon notice that it might be, he assumed the risk of injury therefrom. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Burton, 53 C. A. 378, 115 S. W. 364.

A true test of whether a servant, who did not fully comprehend his danger when injured, was relieved from assumption of the risk, is: Would a person of ordinary prudence, of his age and experience, in a similar situation, have comprehended the danger or risk? Brownwood Oil Mill v. Stubblefield, 53 C. A. 165, 115 S. W. 626.

Where an employé directed by the foreman to jump on the tongue of a wagon while drawn by an engine knew of the danger of falling and of being injured or such danger was obvious, he assumed the risk of such danger. Texas Bitulithic Co. v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 146.

If a servant stepped into an open elevator shaft when there was sufficient light in the shaft to render the danger of so doing patent and open to the common observation of persons possessing the experience and discretion to appreciate such a danger which the servant possessed, the injuries would be the result of an assumed risk. Swift & Co. v. Martine, 53 C. A. 475, 117 S. W. 209.

An employé in a sawmill was injured while adjusting a guide pin of a circular saw, by the slipping of the wrench used to tighten the pin. The wrench was worn, and loosely fitted the head of the pin, which was also worn, both of which facts he knew. He was an experienced man, and was familiar with the tightening of the guide pin. He voluntarily continued to work with the defective appliances. Held, that he assumed the risk as a matter of law, precluding a recovery. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733, reversed 103 T. 253, 126 S. W. 2.

A mine operator failed to construct an appliance to prevent water cars from being pushed into a shaft. An employé engaged in emptying the water cars was killed by falling into the shaft. He had worked around the mouth of the shaft for a number of months, and he knew that there was no appliance to prevent cars from falling into the shaft if pushed therein in the absence of the cage. There was nothing to show that it was the duty of the operators of the cage not to remove it while the employé was emptying the water cars. The absence of the cage was apparent to the employé if he paid any attention. Held, that the employé assumed the risk as a matter of law. Mt. Marion Coal Min. Co. v. Holt, 54 C. A. 411, 118 S. W. 825.

An experienced line man in the employ of a telephone company injured, while climbing one of its poles, by placing one hand on a messenger wire, which he knew to be grounded, and the other one on an iron step, in contact with which, as he could have seen, was an electric light wire of the city, which at such time should have been dead, but which was charged through contact, at a distance, with the wire of a third company, owing to its negligence, assumed the risk from the negligence of the telephone company in not keeping the city wire away from the step, it being the rule with such electricians to deal with each wire as if it were charged, and he, though ignorant of the presence of electricity in the city wire, having equal facility with his master for knowing thereof. Ft. Worth Light & Power Co. v. Moore, 55 C. A. 157, 118 S. W. 831.

Plaintiff, after being employed three days in defendant's seedhouse, was injured by his arm being caught in a set screw projecting from the collar of a revolving shaft as he was endeavoring to adjust a belt. The screw was near the end of the shaft, 15 feet from the floor, and, when plaintiff had occasion to be near it, it was difficult for him to observe it, because the shaft and screw were revolving at high speed. He did not know of the screw, which projected from one to two inches above the collar of the shaft, and which was both unusual and dangerous. Held, that plaintiff, being entitled to assume that the machinery was reasonably safe, did not assume the risk of the danger he was subjected to by the screw. Waggoner v. Porterfield, 55 C. A. 169, 118 S. W. 1094.

Where a servant working with a cotton bale press was familiar with any supposed defects in it, knew that it would occasionally drop cotton onto the floor, and that it was necessary to replace it between the rollers, and as a man of mature years knew the danger of placing his hand between the rollers, and that there was no shield to prevent his hands from coming into contact with the rollers, he assumed the risk of injury from replacing between the rollers with his hands cotton fallen from the press. Maxwell Ginning Co. v. Wallan, 57 C. A. 42, 121 S. W. 182.

A servant knowing of defects in appliances, may recover for injuries resulting therefrom, where he did not know of the danger in their use. Muse v. Abeel (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 430.

A servant does not assume the risk of his master's negligence, unless he knows or is charged with knowledge thereof, and of the danger arising therefrom. Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973.

Where the place where a servant was injured did not become dangerous during the progress of the work he was doing, but was dangerous when his master put him there to work, and the servant did not know of the danger, he did not assume the risk. Id.

A servant who had for seven months been using a passageway and was thoroughly acquainted with all of the surroundings and with the condition of the lights, and knew all the dangers connected with approaching too close to machinery near the passageway, assumed the risk from insufficient lighting of the way. Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Solcher (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 26.

A servant does not assume the risk from the failure of the master to do his duty, unless he knows of the failure and the attendant risks, or in the ordinary discharge of his own duty must necessarily have acquired the knowledge, and so, as regards assumption of risk, is under no duty of exercising ordinary care to discover the danger of removing a pulley belt while the machinery is in motion, which the master, without any warning as to danger, orders him to do in a certain way. Gentry v. Stephenville Oilmill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 879.

A servant, holding a steel cutter to cut off the heads of rivets while a fellow servant strikes the same with an iron maul, does not assume the risk of injury by the breaking off of slivers of steel by reason of the force of the blows, unless he knows of the defects of the cutter, or the defects are so obvious as to charge him with knowledge of them, and of the danger incident thereto. Buchanan & Gilder v. Blanchard (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1153.

The test of assumed risk is whether the employé actually knew of the danger in time to avoid it, and, if not, whether an ordinarily careful man in performing his work would have discovered the dangerous condition, and as an ordinarily prudent man have anticipated the peril. Freeman v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1194.

Where it is the duty of the general manager of an electric light company to determine whether poles are suitable for the use intended and it is not the duty of the lineman to inspect them, the lineman does not assume the risk of injury by climbing a pole which broke with him unless he knows that the pole is defective or in the ordinary discharge of his own duty must have acquired that knowledge. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 299.

Where plaintiff, while working at night on the double boards of an oil derrick, slipped therefrom and was injured, and when he went there he knew that there was no light on that part of the derrick, and that the manner of doing the work necessarily caused water and mud to be on the boards, he assumed the risk of the absence of light and the slippery condition of the boards incident to the mud and water. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes, 103 T. 515, 131 S. W. 531, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

If a bricklayer goes upon a scaffold, and there discovers it is in immediate danger of falling, and without using proper care to protect himself from injury remains thereon, waiting for another division of workmen to repair it, he assumes the risk of his position. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 370.

Where a bricklayer has discovered the danger that a scaffold would fall, and immediately after and before he could protect himself from injury by the use of ordinary care, the scaffold fell, he did not assume the risk of injury. Id.

Where a servant was injured while painting a roof because two ladders which were tied together, one being on one side of the ridge of the roof and the other on the other, came apart, the servant assumed the risk and cannot recover if he saw how they were tied immediately before the injury, and knew as well as any one whether or not it would hold. Planters' Gin Co. v. Washington (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 880.

Plaintiff was employed by a packing company to work on a sausage grinder, and had worked about a month and a half before he was injured. The day before he was injured the machine was not working well, and plaintiff and the foreman took the machine apart and took the knives out, and, after seeing that they were dull, the foreman put them back, and plaintiff went on with his work. The machine did not feed well, and plaintiff pushed the meat down upon the knives with his hands, and was familiar with the way in which the conveyor cut the meat and drew it into the machine, and knew that, if his hand came in contact with the conveyor, it would be drawn into the machine. His hand was caught by the conveyor while pressing the meat down and drawn into the machine. Held, that his injuries were caused from a risk which he assumed as incident to the employment, and for which his employer was not liable. Hood v. Houston Packing Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 446.

A servant, though he owes no duty of inspection, cannot shut his eyes to dangers obvious to the ordinary man, and he assumes the risks of a danger of which he has actual knowledge and of such hazards as he would have learned by the ordinary circumspection of a prudent man. Farmers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 369.

Where a servant knew of knots in a lever before it broke, and of the effect of the knots as rendering the lever weak and insufficient, he assumed the risk of injury therefrom by continuing in the service. Texas Co. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 812.

A servant, in order to be charged with an assumption of risk on the ground that he knows of the existence of the defect, must not only know of the situation, but also of the danger that is likely to result from it. Lone Star Lignite Mining Co. v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 841.

A servant, to assume a risk, must know the danger, or, in the prosecution of his work, must necessarily know of it. Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Curvier (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1132.

A servant assumes risks from defects of which he has knowledge. Leonard Cotton Oil Co. v. Burnes (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1082.

Where a servant appreciated the danger before he was injured, it was immaterial whether he acquired the knowledge from a coemployé or from the master. Adams v. Consumers' Lignite Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1178.

Where a lathe operator was injured by a defect in the machine, the defense of assumed risk was limited to whether he knew or could have known of the danger by the use of ordinary inspection. El Paso Foundry & Machine Co. v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 156.

A servant who knew of the defect in one timber of a lumber dock held to have assumed the risk of injury therefrom. Griffin v. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 303.

An experienced coal miner held to have assumed the risk of a certain injury as a matter of law. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Beall (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 363.

A telephone lineman who did not know of defect in pole, used in the construction of a telephone line, and which he was required to ascend, did not assume the risk of injury from defects in the pole while climbing the same in a careful manner. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1052.

A servant injured by falling through a hole in a floor with which he was familiar, and who chose a dangerous way when there were several safe ways for him to use, held to have assumed the risk. Dallas Gas Co. v. Patton (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 313.

If injury to an employé through derailment of a hand car on which he was riding resulted from excessive speed of the car, his knowledge of the car's defective condition would not preclude his recovery on the ground of assumed risk. Beck v. Texas Co., 105 T. 303, 143 S. W. 295, reversing judgment Texas Co. v. Beck (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 439.

A servant is not bound to inspect a pick furnished him by the master to determine whether it is properly tempered. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

Where plaintiff was employed by or engaged in assisting a traction company's agent in cleaning electrical machinery and knew of the danger therefrom when the current was on, he assumed the risk of injury, and the company was not liable therefor. Blalack v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1086.

The doctrine that, where a servant undertakes to do work, he assumes the ordinary perils incident thereto, is not applicable to the performance of services with defective machinery, unless such defects are known to him, and he appreciates the danger therefrom. Orange Lumber Co. v. Ellis, 105 T. 363, 150 S. W. 582.

A servant having knowledge of defective machinery used in the performance of his work does not assume every possible risk which may result therefrom, including extraordinary risks of which the master should know, unless they be obvious or the servant has knowledge thereof and a complete appreciation of the danger. Id.

Where plaintiff, injured by catching his hand in spools while guiding the rope on them, knowing that he could not reach the switch from his position near the spools in order to stop the machine if he caught his hand in the rope, which he knew might happen, he assumed any risk from the location of the switch. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Wolfshohl (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 644.

An experienced employé in drilling oil wells who knows of the danger of escaping gas without using a jet, and who continues in the employment without using a jet, assumes the risk of injury by escaping gas. Producers' Oil Co. v. Bush (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1032.

A servant knowing that the number of men present to perform a particular piece of work is insufficient assumes the risk involved in the undertaking with such number. Judson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

Employé engaged on an elevator shaft in an unfinished building, who with knowledge of the negligent manner of operating a hoisting bucket in the shaft placed himself in a position to be struck by a descending bucket, held to have assumed the risk of injury from the employer's negligence. William Miller & Sons Co. v. Wayman (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 197.

69. Inexperienced or youthful employé.—Plaintiff made a contract with the defendants, whereby plaintiff's 16 year old son was to be employed in defendants' cotton gin to mark, assort, and weigh the bales of cotton ginned at the round bale press. The boy was inexperienced in the work, and had been employed about two months, when he was injured while assisting one of the workmen, G., in cleaning out a gin stand in one of the square bale gins. Just before the accident the boy was not at his regular place, but was standing near the square bale gin, and G. called to him to help clean out the gin stand, as the same had become "choked," and required to be cleaned at once. The work in the gin was done under the personal supervision of one of the defendants, who, at the time of the accident, was standing near where the boy was cleaning the gin, but he did not see the boy until just before the accident, and because of the noise of the machinery he had not heard G. call. G. was not a foreman, but of equal rank with all the workmen, and he had never been authorized to call others to his assistance, and had never done so before. Held insufficient to show a cause of action against defendants for injuries, since the boy was a mere volunteer in cleaning the gin, G. not having authority to call him to his assistance. Werner v. Trautwein, 61 S. W. 447, 25 C. A. 608.

Plaintiff, an inexperienced minor, was employed in an oil mill in trucking oil cake to a crusher. An elevating belt frequently became choked, and the foreman would then call plaintiff and others to assist him in unchoking it. Plaintiff was directed to get on the crusher, and press with one foot on the belt, and in doing so he slipped, and his foot was crushed. Held, that in view of the plaintiff's inexperience, and that he was working under the immediate direction of the foreman, and had little opportunity to consider the act, a verdict in his favor should be sustained. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

A servant must be held to have known that, if he got underneath an overhanging rock, and struck it with a sledge hammer, portions of it would necessarily fall, and, if he was in the way, he would be struck, although he had previously had no experience in digging under rock. Hightower v. Gray, 83 S. W. 254, 36 C. A. 674.

An inexperienced employé who was placed at work on a stack of flour improperly stacked, and who did not know the danger of working thereon, did not assume the risk. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

Where an infant servant has been properly instructed and warned, his minority usually ceases to be a material factor in estimating the master's liability, and the defenses of assumption of risk and contributory negligence are then available against him, if under the same circumstances such defenses would be available against adults. Mitchell v. Comanche Cotton Oil Co., 51 C. A. 506, 113 S. W. 158.

In an action for injuries to a minor servant, an instruction that, if plaintiff was incapable of running the machine, and had not been warned of the danger, he did not assume any risk, was erroneous, since plaintiff assumed the risk of such dangers as were open and obvious to one of his age and experience. Gulf Cooperage Co. v. Abernathy, 54 C. A. 137, 116 S. W. 869.

A servant 19 years old, and inexperienced in working on a derrick used in drilling oil wells, does not assume risk resulting from the master permitting the double-board on which he worked to slant, and be slick from oil and water, unless warned of the danger. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

A minor employé held not to have assumed the risk, nor to have been guilty of contributory negligence. Henry v. McCown (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1170.

It is not enough to establish assumption of risk, as matter of law, by an inexperienced youth that he knew if he got his hand under the knife of the machine, from which he was removing the boards cut by it, it would be cut, but it must be shown he understood the probability of getting it under there when doing his work. Bryson v. Moore (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 233.

70. Obvious or latent dangers.—The main issue was whether the servant knew, or had been warned, of the danger of injury. The defendant introduced testimony that the danger was open to common observation, and that the servant had been duly warned. Held, that it was error to refuse to instruct on the law of assumed risks. Planters' Oil Co. v. Mansell (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 913.

Where a servant of mature years was directed to go to a sand bank for a load of sand, and was injured by the caving of the bank as he alighted from his wagon, and the physical condition of the bank and the probability of its caving were as obvious to the servant as to the master, the servant assumed the risk. Ft. Worth Stockyards Co. v. Whittenburg, 78 S. W. 363, 34 C. A. 163.

The risks which the servant assumes are, first, those which are ordinarily connected with his particular work, and with which it is assumed that he is acquainted; and, second, those risks which are manifest, whether they arise from the nature of the business, the manner in which it is conducted, or the use of improper or defective appliances. Hightower v. Gray, 83 S. W. 254, 36 C. A. 674.

The employé was of mature years, and his testimony showed that he knew the difference between working with a sharp and with a dull chisel, though he testified that he was inexperienced in this kind of work, and did not know that the particles would fly with force, or would bound back if they struck an iron surface. Held, that, having knowledge of the obvious conditions which led to his injury, he was chargeable with knowledge of the danger, and assumed the risk. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. v. Noll, 83 S. W. 900, 37 C. A. 269.

An employé in loading a vessel assumed the risk of injury from such defects in a rope used as would not have been disclosed to the master by an inspection conducted with ordinary care. Suderman & Dolson v. Woodruff, 47 C. A. 229, 105 S. W. 217.

Danger of the caving of a ditch in which plaintiff, an ordinary laborer, was working at the time of his injury, held not so obvious as to charge him with assumption of the risk. City of Austin v. Gress (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 535.

71. Notice or complaint to master.—Where plaintiff called the attention of the foreman to a defect in the machinery near which he was at work, and was assured by the foreman that he was in no danger therefrom, and, relying on this statement, returned to work, where he was injured in a peculiar manner, not to be ordinarily expected by him, there was no assumption of risk. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Bivens, 47 C. A. 396, 105 S. W. 831.

An employé built a scaffold to remove the walls of a building pursuant to the orders of his employer. The employé was an experienced scaffold builder. The employer ordered the employé and co-employés to take down a lintel weighing about 1,200 pounds. The employé expressed the opinion that the scaffold was not strong enough, but the employer urged that it was sufficient, and the employé and co-employés attempted to remove the lintel, and the scaffold broke, injuring the employé. Held, that he assumed the risk as a matter of law. Gilmartin v. Kilgore, 52 C. A. 177, 114 S. W. 398.

Where a servant calls the master's attention to a defect in a machine which he is operating, and the master undertakes to repair it and informs the servant he has done so, directing him to use it, the servant is under no duty to inspect. Hughes-Buie Co. v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 328.

72. Promise to remedy defect or remove danger.—Plaintiff, a brakeman, on the objection of defendant's agent to pulling derailed cars, because of a defective drawhead, replied that he hoped that the same would break, because then defendant would have to repair it. The agent then told a carpenter to fix it immediately, but it was not fixed for 12 days; and plaintiff continued using it, with knowledge of its defective condition, and was injured. Held, that since the instructions given by the agent to repair were intended to facilitate the master's business, and not for the employé's protection, it was not such a promise to repair as relieved plaintiff from the assumption of the risk involved in using it in its defective condition, without objection, after the instructions were given. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 55 S. W. 362, 22 C. A. 596.

In an action by an employé for injuries resulting from the defendants' failure to furnish lights at the place of accident after the defendants' foreman had promised to do so, the testimony of the foreman that he had general charge and a right to employ and discharge all employés is sufficient to support a finding that he was authorized to bind defendants by his promise to furnish the lights. Hillje v. Hettich (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 491, judgment reversed 67 S. W. 90, 95 Tex. 321.

Where an employé, after complaining of insufficient light at the place of employment, continued to work on the promise of the foreman to furnish more light, which was not done, and the employé was thereby injured, he will not be deemed to have assumed the risk incurred by remaining at work. Id.

A promise by a master to furnish light in a place where a servant is required to work, which is dangerous for the want thereof, does not prevent the assumption of risk by the servant in continuing to work therein, after the master has had a reasonable time to supply the lights. Judgment (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 491, reversed. Hillje v. Hettich, 67 S. W. 90, 95 Tex. 321.

A promise made by a city to an employé to repair a defective bridge would not justify the employé in remaining at work, so as to make the city liable for injuries resulting from the defect, where, by reason of the fact that many like promises to repair the defect had been made and always broken, he must have known that there was no intention to make the repairs. City of Houston v. Owen (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 788.

The promise to repair would not make the city liable for the injuries where it was clear from the evidence that the employé had no intention of quitting work even if the repairs were not made, but made his complaint merely because he thought the bridge might be injured by a failure to repair. Id.

Where a servant informs the master of a defect in appliances, and the master promises to correct the defect, the servant, so long as he has reasonable grounds to expect, and does expect, that the master will repair, does not, by continuing in the employment, assume the additional risk from the master's neglect, and, if injured, may recover if one of ordinary prudence would have continued in the service. Medlin Milling Co. v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 689.

A servant injured because of insufficient light held not to have assumed the risk. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 378.

Where a baker requested the master to repair defective lights near his place of work, and had reasonable grounds to believe that a promise to do so would be complied with, he did not assume the risks from such defective lights by continuing his employment for a couple of days after such promise. Brown Cracker & Candy Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 684.

A servant held to have assumed the risk of injury from unguarded machinery as a matter of law, where his first request to have it guarded was not heeded, and upon his last request some two months before the injury his superior promised to have it guarded as soon as he could, but failed. Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 349.

73. Compliance with commands.—Where a person ordered by his foreman to pass a rope under electric wires understands the danger of coming in contact with such wires, he assumes the risk in obeying the order. Newnom v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 669.

Plaintiff was employed in an oil mill, and was directed to get on the crusher, and put one foot on the belt, which had choked, to press it down, and in doing so he slipped, and his foot was caught in the crusher. It was not shown that there was any rule as to how the work should have been performed. Held, that it was not error to instruct that the servant assumed the risk ordinarily incident to the business. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

Risks involved in carrying out the master's orders are not assumed by the servant, unless the danger is so obvious and threatening that no prudent man would undertake it. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat, 79 S. W. 869, 35 C. A. 36.

Where a servant was killed while attempting to obey an order to assist in releasing a freight elevator, the master, to invoke doctrine of assumed risk, must show that ordinary care had been exercised to ascertain the condition of the elevator. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

Servant undertaking by order of master to lift weight beyond his capacity held to assume the risk of so doing. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Clayton (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 268.

74. Risks outside scope of employment.—Plaintiff having been instructed by the foreman to perform work other than he had contracted to do, and not in the line of his employment, and with which he was not familiar, it cannot be said, as matter of law, that he assumed the risk of being injured by a danger thereof of which the employer knew, but did not warn him. Hillsboro Oil Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 432.

The fact that the work in the performance of which a servant was injured was outside of his duties does not affect the doctrine of assumed risk, where there was no danger involved in the work itself, and the danger to which the servant became exposed was created by himself in selecting the place he did for its performance, whereas there were other safe places practicable for the purpose, though possibly not so convenient. Hettich v. Hillje, 77 S. W. 641, 33 C. A. 571.

Plaintiff, a sawmill employé, was injured by the fall of a ladder leading from the first to the second floor of defendant's mill. The ladder had been fastened both at the top and bottom, and had been provided by defendant for use of the men; but prior to the injury a substantial stairway had been erected, and the ladder had been ordered removed, and the men told not to continue to use it. Plaintiff denied that he had ever heard such orders, and there was evidence that other employés continued to use the ladder with the knowledge of the foreman. The foot of the ladder was located near a rope used in hoisting timber to the second floor, which rope caught under the bottom of the ladder, tilting it over, and causing plaintiff to fall. Held, that plaintiff did not assume the risk incident to the use of the ladder, instead of the stairway, as a matter of law. Pipkin v. Hayward Lumber Co., 94 S. W. 1068, 43 C. A. 304.

Employé riding on employer's log train for his own benefit held a licensee, and not to be so riding on the employer's implied invitation. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Gresham (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 847.

An employé in a paper mill does not assume the risk of an injury received while attempting to escape from a room that is filled with scalding hot steam and acid vapor from a digester that had been insecurely closed with a defective gasket. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1168.

75. Concurrent negligence of master.—A servant does not assume risks of the master's own negligence. Mayton v. Sonnefeld (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 608.

The fact that a servant knows that a fellow servant is negligent does not preclude a recovery resulting from the concurring negligence of the fellow servant and a vice principal. American Cotton Co. v. Smith, 69 S. W. 443, 29 C. A. 425.

A servant employed in a cotton gin was using a passway, going from one portion of the works to another, when he was struck by a bale of cotton thrown by another servant, according to custom, from the second story of the building. In an action for the injuries there was evidence showing that, while plaintiff knew that it was dangerous to use the passway, the danger did not exist if the servant who was charged with the duty of throwing the bale was experienced, or had been instructed to give the proper warning before discharging the bale, that no warning was given at the time of the accident, and that plaintiff did not know of the incompetency of the servant who threw the bale. Held, that it was proper to refuse instructions which assumed that plaintiff's mere use of the passway with the knowledge of the danger would justify a verdict in favor of defendant, since plaintiff, under the circumstances, had a right to assume that the servant charged with the duty of throwing the bale would give the proper warning and that he was a competent servant. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 80 S. W. 847, 36 C. A. 18.

A servant cannot claim indemnity, although he is working under the immediate supervision of the master, where the danger is so obvious and apparent that no ordinarily prudent man would incur it. Hightower v. Gray, 83 S. W. 254, 36 C. A. 674.

A servant does not assume the risk of injury resulting from the negligence of the master or the foreman who represents him. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co., 103 T. 253, 126 S. W. 2, reversing (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733.

A servant does not assume the risk incident to the negligent performance of the master, through its foreman, of the duties it owed him, but only the risks of which he had knowledge, actual or constructive. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 35.

An employé's assumption of obvious risks does not release the employer's liability for injury caused by the employer's intervening negligence. Lantry-Sharp Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 363.

The risks which a servant assumes held only such risks as arise after the master has exercised due care. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

A servant does not assume risks arising from the master's failure to do his duty unless he knows of it and the attendant risks or must have acquired such knowledge. Texas Traction Co. v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1069.

A servant may assume that appliances are reasonably safe and the manner of conducting the business reasonably safe. Id.

A servant's assumption of obvious risks from machinery does not absolve the master from liability if, concurrently therewith, the extinguishment of the light under which he was working as a result of defendant's failure to repair it contributed to his injury. Brown Cracker & Candy Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 684.

VIII. CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE

76. Application of the doctrine in general.—Inadvertency is synonymous with inattention, heedlessness, carelessness, negligence, and thoughtlessness, so that a servant cannot recover for injuries caused through his own inadvertence. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Wolfshohl (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 644.

77. Statutory provisions.—An act declaring that contributory negligence of an employé shall not bar a recovery, but that the damages shall be diminished, is not unconstitutional. Freeman v. Kennerly (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 580.

78. Care required of servant.—It is the duty of an employé to use ordinary care for his own safety. Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 322.

It is the duty of a servant in the discharge of his duties to use reasonable care for his own safety. Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Luckey (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1148.

79. Inexperienced or youthful employé.—An employé, a green hand, was put in charge of machinery, which outwardly indicated no danger, as attendant upon the wiping of a certain plate attached to it, and was directed by the superintendent to wipe such plate without any caution, whereby he was injured. Held, that he was not negligent in failing to so examine the machinery as to have perceived the danger. Howard Oil Co. v. Farmer, 56 T. 301.

The rule as to the care to be exercised by an inexperienced person set to operate dangerous machinery by his employer is such care in the use of implements and in the operation of the machinery as an ordinarily prudent man of his experience and in his situation would ordinarily use while performing the same duties, and not "such care as a man of his experience and in his situation would ordinarily use." Hillsboro Oil Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 874.

Where a master directed a youthful and inexperienced servant generally to repair a machine, and the servant did it in the precise manner in which he had on a previous occasion been told to fix it, without being warned that that method was dangerous and improper, the servant was not guilty of contributory negligence. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co. v. Harkey, 48 S. W. 1005, 20 C. A. 225.

Plaintiff, an inexperienced youth, being suddenly called to go on a crusher to assist in unhooking a belt, fulfilled his duty if he exercised ordinary care in doing so, and was not chargeable with negligence in not having ascertained what dangers were incident to such work. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

Though the lumber which falls on a minor employé while, by direction of the foreman, doing different work from what he was employed to do, was negligently piled, recovery cannot be had for his injury if, considering his age and intelligence, he was not exercising proper care, or the danger was obvious. Hildenbrand v. Marshall, 69 S. W. 492, 30 C. A. 135.

An inexperienced employé who was placed at work on a stack of flour improperly stacked, and who did not know of the danger of working thereon, was not guilty of contributory negligence. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

A minor servant, when not warned, need exercise only such care as one of ordinary prudence, of his age and experience, would use in the similar circumstances, but is guilty of contributory negligence when he fails to exercise such degree of care, and hence, in an action for injuries to a minor servant while operating dangerous machinery, an instruction that, if plaintiff was inexperienced and was not warned, he could not be guilty of contributory negligence, was erroneous. Gulf Cooperage Co. v. Abernathy, 54 C. A. 137, 116 S. W. 869.

Minority places the injured person in the same position as an inexperienced adult so far as machinery is concerned, and where the danger is apparent, or the servant has been warned of the danger, negligence will be imputed to a minor, as well as an adult, if any injury is received from the machinery. Krisch v. Richter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 186.

A servant, 18 years of age, had worked in a bakery for nearly a year and was familiar with a certain machine containing cog wheels and was ordered by his foreman to clean the machine, which was in motion, and, while cleaning it, his fingers were caught in the cogs. He knew of the situation of the cog wheels and there was evidence that the servants had been instructed to beware of the machinery and cogs. There was no evidence that plaintiff was weak-minded. Held, that he was guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

A minor employé held not to have assumed the risk, nor to have been guilty of contributory negligence. Henry v. McCown (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1170.

In an action for injury to a paper cutter operator caused by the blade unexpectedly falling, held improper to authorize the jury to consider certain matters on an issue of contributory negligence. National Biscuit Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 65.

80. Reliance on care of master.—In the absence of knowledge to the contrary, an employé may assume that the employer has exercised ordinary care in furnishing him a reasonably safe place in which to work. Price v. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co., 90 S. W. 717, 41 C. A. 47.

A servant may act on the assumption that an appliance is properly constructed for the purpose for which it is permitted to be used. Williams v. Hennefield, 57 C. A. 54, 120 S. W. 567.

A servant may rely on the performance of the duty of the master to furnish a safe place to work and safe instrumentalities with which to work. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Palz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

An employé is not guilty of contributory negligence, where he relies upon the assurance by his employer or a vice principal, as to the safety of a place of work, tools, machinery, or appliances, or upon a promise to protect and guard the employé from danger, unless the danger is so obvious or imminent that no ordinarily prudent person would encounter it. Beck v. Texas Co., 105 T. 303, 148 S. W. 295, reversing judgment Texas Co. v. Beck (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 439.

81. Scope of employment.—In an action for the death of a cotton oil company employé caused by a caving of a mass of cotton seed hulls, it was error to refuse to instruct that if, while decedent was asleep, the hulls in flowing from a chute covered him, and he was thereby suffocated, there could be no recovery. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 451.

82. Choice of ways and places for work.—A servant employed in a cotton gin, while using a passway from one part of the works to another, was struck by a bale of cotton thrown from the second story of the building by another servant in the discharge of his duties. Held, that if the injured servant could have used another and convenient passageway, which, in the exercise of ordinary care, he should have taken, his failure to do so was contributory negligence. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 80 S. W. 847, 36 C. A. 18.

Plaintiff, a sawmill employé, was injured by the fall of a ladder leading from the first to the second floor of defendant's mill. The ladder had been fastened both at the top and bottom, and had been provided by defendant for use of the men, but prior to the injury a substantial stairway had been erected, and the ladder had been ordered removed and the men told not to continue to use it. Plaintiff denied that he had ever heard such orders, and there was evidence that other employés continued to use the ladder with the knowledge of the foreman. The foot of the ladder was located near a rope used in hoisting timber to the second floor, which rope caught under the bottom of the ladder, tilting it over, and causing plaintiff to fall. Held, that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Pipkin v. Hayward Lumber Co., 94 S. W. 1068, 43 C. A. 304.

83. Occupying dangerous position.—Where plaintiff was thrown from the pilot of defendant's engine attached to a log train on which plaintiff was riding, and the proximate cause of his injury was the dangerous position which he had voluntarily taken, instead of selecting a more secure place on the train, he was guilty of contributory negligence, as a matter of law, precluding a recovery. Burns v. Chronister Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 163.

84. Knowledge of defects or dangers.—If a servant's injuries were caused by the insecurity of a temporary brace which he and other servants nailed to the structure, he must be held to have known it and at least jointly responsible for its insecurity. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 453.

Where an employé excusably ignorant of the fact that a shaft was spliced sought to cross over the shaft in performing his duty, and was caught by the bolts and nuts projecting from the splice, the court in determining whether the employé in taking the course he did, instead of another way, was guilty of contributory negligence, should not consider the fact that bolts and nuts projected from the shaft. Longview Cotton Oil Co. v. Thurmond, 55 C. A. 499, 119 S. W. 130.

A manager of a cotton gin held not guilty of contributory negligence because of knowledge of an insecure wheel, which his employer, on being told, had promised to repair. Guitar v. Randel (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 642.

85. Duty to discover or remedy defects or dangers.—A servant is not required to use diligence to discover defects not obvious in appliances furnished him, or in the place provided for his work, but may assume that the master has discharged his duty in respect thereto. Terrell Compress Co. v. Arrington (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 59.

An employé was injured by the falling of a hoisting block, used in raising a heavy timber, which was caused by its greasy condition. The employé knew of its condition previous to the accident, but the director of the work had undertaken to remove the grease, and the employé had no notice of his failure to do so. Held, that he had a right to assume that the hoisting block had been put in reasonably safe condition before undertaking the work. Id.

In an action for injuries caused by a piece of steel which flew off plaintiff's coemployé's riveting hammer, it was agreed that riveting hammers are necessarily brittle to some degree, and liable to chip while in use. Held, that a charge declaring that unless plaintiff did not know, and by the use of ordinary care could not have known, of the condition of the hammer, he could not recover, was proper. De La Vergne Refrigerating Mach. Co. v. Stahl, 60 S. W. 319, 24 C. A. 471.

The fact that the trimmer was required to report by entries in what was called the "Trouble Book" any defect that he saw on the lines did not preclude his recovery for the injury, where he was not instructed to look for defects not observable without the application of some test, and was not furnished with appliances to test the rods, etc. Dupree v. Tamborilla, 66 S. W. 595, 27 C. A. 603.

A trimmer employed by an electric light company, who, in caring for a lamp at the top of a 30-foot pole, used the iron rods supporting the lamp to steady himself, his weight resting at the time on the step below, was not guilty of contributory negligence, where the rods appeared to be solid iron three-fourths of an inch in diameter, though they were in fact hollow and rusted, so that they broke, causing him to fall to the ground. Id.

A master seeking to excuse himself from liability for failing to inspect his property, which results in the injury of his servant, must show that the duty of such inspection was one of the primary objects of the servant's employment. Dupree v. Alexander, 68 S. W. 739, 29 C. A. 31.

Where a deck hand on a tugboat, while fastening a rope attached to a tow, stepped on a siphon pipe which had been carelessly left on the deck, it was a danger that he should have guarded against; and if he failed to do so, and was injured, he was guilty of contributory negligence. Direct Nav. Co. v. Anderson, 69 S. W. 174, 29 C. A. 65.

Though diligence to discover defects and dangers in the premises and appliances furnished by a master is not laid on the servant, yet the servant is expected to take such care for his safety as a person of ordinary prudence would take under like circumstances; and therefore if a servant is ignorant of the defect and danger of an appliance, and the ignorance is due to a want of such care as a person of ordinary prudence would use under the circumstances, and is the proximate cause of his injury, the master is not liable. Horton v. Ft. Worth Packing & Provision Co., 76 S. W. 211, 33 C. A. 150.

A servant is not required to inspect the appliances that are furnished him, but can assume that they are reasonably safe. Peck v. Peck, 87 S. W. 248, 99 T. 10, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 257.

Where, in an action by an employé for injuries received in consequence of the falling of a scaffold on which he was at work, defendant pleaded contributory negligence, an instruction that, where a servant is placed at work by the master in a certain place, the servant has a right to presume that the place is and will be reasonably safe by the master using ordinary care, was not erroneous. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 140.

A servant of an express company was not required to inspect the trucks or platform where he worked to ascertain if the company had performed its duty to furnish reasonably safe tools and place to perform his work. Wells, Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 441, judgment reversed 100 T. 577, 102 S. W. 107.

Plaintiff was injured by the fall of a barrel insecurely placed on a joist above the floor of the room in which she was working. Held, that there was no negligence on plaintiff's part proximately contributing to her injury sufficient to preclude her from recovery. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Eichhorn, 44 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

An employé is not required to exercise diligence to discover defects in appliances furnished. Waggoner v. Sneed, 53 C. A. 278, 118 S. W. 547.

A servant required to oil machinery is not charged with the duty of discovering defects in a window sill customarily used for the work. Williams v. Hennefield, 57 C. A. 54, 120 S. W. 567.

Brick burners who had been in the habit for two or three years of using a shed along the side of a kiln to go upon to avoid the gases and heat, cleats of wood having been nailed thereon to keep them from slipping, were not required to inspect the shed to see that it was in a safe condition, but could rely upon the presumption that the employer had done his duty in inspecting the shed. Ferris Press Brick Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 499.

Where an electric light company was required to furnish a lineman constructing an electric light line with proper poles, and it negligently furnished a defective pole, which broke while he climbed it, the company could not urge that he was negligent in failing to inspect the pole for defects, for he could rely on the assumption that the company exercised ordinary care to select reasonably safe poles. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 299.

A bricklayer who has discovered that the scaffold on which he is to work is in immediate danger of falling cannot wait thereon for it to be repaired, unless his conduct in so doing is that of an ordinarily prudent man. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 370.

A servant employed as oiler in a mill who knows that there are many unguarded set screws and that there must be a set screw in every set collar, but who does not know that the screws are exposed, need not inspect the appliances, and his failure to make an examination and discover that a set screw which caught him and injured him was exposed did not defeat a recovery. Farmers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 369.

An employé injured while using a defective appliance held not chargeable with knowledge of the defect. Kampmann v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 161.

An engineer failing to request proper appliances held not entitled to recover for injuries. Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Luckey (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1148.

A rule of a coal mine owner, that employés must use precautions to prevent accidents and should not work in an unsafe place when timber would remedy the danger, did not require a miner to discover the condition of the roof to the extent of relieving the master from the duty of maintaining a safe place to work. Stag Canon Fuel Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 677.

The rule that a servant is under no obligation to use ordinary care to ascertain whether his master has furnished a reasonably safe place to work has no application, where the injury is to a vice principal. Raney v. Houston Lighting & Power Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 178.

A master being bound to exercise ordinary care to furnish a safe place for his servants to work, it is not their duty to inspect the place so furnished. City of Austin v. Gress (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 535.

86. Dangerous methods of work.—Where it was necessary for a brakeman on a logging train to ride on a car loaded with logs, and there was no other place for him to ride than on the stringer, he was not negligent in riding there, so as to preclude a recovery for his death in a collision between the train and a car. Ragley Lumber Co. v. Parks, 46 C. A. 539, 103 S. W. 424.

Plaintiff's failure to attach guy wires to a defective telegraph pole before beginning to work thereon held contributory negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Tweed (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1155.

87. Disobedience of rules or orders.—Where a servant of a street railroad company was injured while riding on a car which the company provided for its servants, to be used while going to and from work, the fact that a rule of the company prohibited the workmen from so riding was no defense to an action for negligence causing the death. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dilworth (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 352.

Where an employé violates instructions which are known to him, while engaged in a dangerous employment, and such violation contributes to his injury, he cannot recover. Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 322.

88. Compliance with commands or threats.—Where a fuel oil equipment company was engaged in setting certain oil tanks to be used as a part of the plant of defendant cotton company, in which work plaintiff was injured while under the direction of plaintiff's foreman, who ordered plaintiff to assist in the work, plaintiff was entitled to assume that in so doing he was working for defendant, and that his foreman had authority to have the work done and to order plaintiff to assist therein. American Cotton Co. v. Simmons, 87 S. W. 842, 39 C. A. 189.

Where a servant was killed while attempting to release an elevator pursuant to the directions of the vice principal, the doctrine that the master was not liable if the injuries were sustained from the use of the elevator in a manner different from that in which it was intended to be used did not apply. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

89. Acts in emergencies.—An act of defendant's superintendent in calling a warning in an excited manner to prevent an injury, which caused plaintiff to jump from a railroad car and sustain the injuries complained of, was not an act of negligence on the part of the superintendent, but might be considered with other circumstances in determining whether plaintiff was warranted in jumping from the car. Mounce v. Lodwick Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 240.

Where, in suit for injuries to a servant while at work on the double-board of a derrick, it appeared that, because the board slanted and was slick from oil and water, he was in the act of falling, that to save himself he caught at the traveling block while in motion, and his hand caught between the cable and sheaves and was drawn into the block and injured, there was nothing to show he put his hand in the traveling block without exercise of ordinary care, for under the circumstances he was incapable of exercising any care save that arising from instinct of self-preservation. Producer's Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

In a servant's action for injuries in endeavoring to save a fellow servant's life, it must appear that such fellow servant was in a perilous position through the master's negligence. Jos. & Simon Lintz Realty Co. v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 535.

Plaintiff, an employé of a paper mill company, was not guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to escape by way of a window, and falling from the window to the ground below in an effort to escape from scalding steam and acid vapor which was being emitted from a wood pulp digester owing to a defective gasket. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1168.

90. Proximate cause of injury.—Where a person negligently ordered to pass a rope under electric wires is injured by accidentally or negligently coming in contact with the wires, the act of the person injured, and not the negligence in giving the order, is the proximate cause of injury. Newnom v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 669.

Where a servant, in the performance of his duties, attempts to mend a certain belt in close proximity to a certain machine for the reason that there is not sufficient light at any other place, but with full knowledge of the position, operation, and dangerous character of the machinery, and is injured thereby, the failure of the master to furnish sufficient light is not the proximate cause of the injury. Hillje v. Hettich, 67 S. W. 90, 95 T. 321, reversing (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 491.

The negligent raising of the lever of a machine by the employé, bringing the carriage forward and injuring him, prevents his recovery of the employer, notwithstanding the absence of a spring from the lever, where in any condition of the machine the effect of raising the lever was to bring the carriage forward, and the lever was raised by hand even where the machine was supplied with the spring to hold the lever down. Anderson v. Jefferson Cotton Oil & Refining Co., 74 S. W. 342, 32 C. A. 288.

91. Injury avoidable by care of master.—It was not error to charge that if defendant by its agents could, by ordinary care, have avoided the consequences of the negligence of the person injured, or if it by direct act of its agents caused the act which produced the injury, defendant is liable. Brown v. Sullivan, 71 T. 470, 10 S. W. 288.

A servant employed in a cotton gin was using a passway, going from one portion of the works to another, when he was struck by a bale of cotton thrown by another servant, according to custom, from the second story of the building. In an action for the injuries there was evidence showing that, while plaintiff knew that it was dangerous to use the passway, the danger did not exist if the servant who was charged with the duty of throwing the bale was experienced, or had been instructed to give the proper warning before discharging the bale, that no warning was given at the time of the accident, and that plaintiff did not know of the incompetency of the servant who threw the bale. Held, that defendant's motion for a new trial on the ground that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence was properly overruled. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 80 S. W. 847, 36 C. A. 18.

Where plaintiff selected the pilot of defendant's logging engine on which to ride to the place where he was to continue his work, and just prior to his being thrown therefrom he was preparing to alight, while the train was in motion, in accordance with the order of his foreman, the fact that he was in plain view of defendant's engineer at the time, and that the latter made no effort to stop the train, was insufficient to raise the issue of discovered peril. Burns v. Chronister Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 163.

Inapplicable to certain classes of employees.—The provisions of this Act shall not apply to actions to recover damages for the personal injuries or for death resulting from personal injuries sustained by domestic servants, farm laborers, nor to the employees of any person, firm or corporation operating any railway as a common carrier, nor to laborers engaged in working for a cotton gin, nor to employees of any person, firm or corporation having in his or their employ not more than five employees. Article 5247. Governor to purchase, when.—When any land shall be required by the state for the use of the state penitentiaries, or any other of the public institutions of the state, or for any other public use, the governor of the state is hereby authorized and empowered to purchase said land, or the right to the use thereof, for the purpose for which the same may be required. [Acts 1903, 1 S. S., p. 10, sec. 1.]

Art. 5248. Land may be condemned.—Should the governor in the exercise of the power conferred by the preceding article not be able to agree with the owners of any land which, or the use of which, may be needed for any public use as aforesaid, upon the compensation to be paid therefor, such land may be condemned for such public use in the name of the state of Texas as herein provided. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5249. Land, how condemned.—Whenever it may become necessary to condemn any land for any public use as hereinbefore provided, upon the direction of the governor, proceedings shall be instituted against the owner of said land, and of any interest therein, by the attorney general of the state, or under his direction, by the proper district or county attorney, who shall file with the county judge of the county in which said land, or a part thereof, may be situated, a statement showing the land sought to be condemned, and the purpose thereof, the names and places or residences of the owners of the same, or if not known, stating that fact. Upon the filing of the statement provided for in this article, it shall be the duty of said county judge, in term time or vacation, to appoint three disinterested freeholders of said county who are qualified voters therein, as special commissioners to assess the damages to accrue to the owner of said property by reason of such condemnation. Said special commissioners shall, in their proceedings, be governed and controlled by the laws in force in reference to the condemnation of right of way for railroad companies and the assessment of damages therefor; and the proceedings shall be in accordance with such law, the State of Texas occupying the position of the railroad company; and all laws in reference to the applications for the condemnation for right of way of railroad companies, including the measure of damages, the service of notice, actual or constructive, on the owners of said property, the right of appeal and the like not inconsistent with the other provisions of this chapter, shall apply to the application by the state and these proceedings. But it is expressly provided that in case of such condemnation of property, should the award of damages be deemed by the governor excessive, the same shall not be paid; but in such case the state shall pay the costs of such proceedings, and no further action shall be taken thereunder. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5250. Costs.—Should the damages awarded be less than had been offered by the state to said property owner, the costs of such proceedings shall be taxed against said owner, and may be collected by execution as in other cases or paid by the state and deducted from the amount to be paid said owner upon such award. Should the amount awarded be greater than the amount offered by the state, such costs shall be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5251. Right of way for penitentiary railroad.—Should any land be purchased by the governor, or condemned as herein provided, for the purpose of obtaining right of way for any railroad or train road, to be built or extended and operated in connection with, or for the use of, any of the penitentiaries of this state, or any of the farms of this state, and used in connection with the state penitentiaries, the penitentiary board is hereby authorized and required to pay, out of any money authorized by law to be used for the support and maintenance of said penitentiaries, the damages and costs herein provided for in case of condemnation, or the price of said property if purchased by voluntary purchase by the governor as herein provided. Eminent domain defined. City of Austin v. Nalle, 102 T. 536, 120 S. W. 996.

The right of eminent domain is inherent in the Legislature, and is impliedly reserved in all dedications and grants. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Eminent domain is the right or power of a sovereign state to appropriate private property for the promotion of the general welfare. The power is an attribute of government and is inherent in it, and embraces all cases where the property of the individual is taken without his consent by such sovereign power. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1064.

The power of eminent domain is the right of the sovereign to take private property for public uses. Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 388.

2. Distinction from other powers.—Limitation on power of eminent domain, requiring adequate compensation, held not to restrict the proper employment of the police power. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. City of Dallas, 98 T. 396, 84 S. W. 648, 70 L. R. A. 850.

Police regulations do not constitute a taking under the right of eminent domain. Hatcher v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 914.

3. Constitutional provisions.—The purpose of the constitutional provision prohibiting the damaging or destroying of private property for a public use without compensation was to place public, or quasi public, corporations upon the same basis with private persons as to liability for such injuries. Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 575, 113 S. W. 610, 979.

In a constitutional provision requiring compensation before taking of property for public use, the terms "property" and "taken" defined. McCammion & Lang Lumber Co. v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co., 104 T. 8, 133 S. W. 247, 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 662, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 870.

4. Delegation of power.—The right of eminent domain conferred by law on an individual or a corporation can be exercised only by the strictest adherence to the terms of the grant. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1064.

Grants of power of eminent domain are strictly construed, and methods set forth in the statute granting the power must be strictly followed. Reitzer v. Medina Valley Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 380.

The delegated power of eminent domain can only be expressly conferred by statute, and such statutes are construed strictly in favor of the owner of the condemned property. Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 388.

The right to take private property for a public use may only be exercised under the protection of a legislative grant and under the conditions attached thereto. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 696.

5. Property subject to condemnation.—The right of eminent domain does not exist as to public land. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

6. Necessity of compensation.—Private property cannot be taken or damaged for public use without compensation. Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 575, 113 S. W. 610, 979.

7. Sufficiency of provision for compensation.—Under the constitution, a city held not entitled to collect an assessment for benefits resulting from a street improvement without showing that adequate compensation will be made for the assessment, by showing that the improvement will be put in within a reasonable time. City of Austin v. Nalle (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 126.

8. Taking or injuring property as ground of compensation—In general.—A municipal corporation is liable for lands taken for, and damages caused by, the construction of a public improvement, though the contract under which the improvement was constructed was void. Harrison v. City of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1064.

9. — Nature of injury to property not taken.—Where a city permanently occupied land by turning the channel of a ditch over it, the owner was entitled to the value of the land so taken under Const. art. 1, § 17. Harrison v. City of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 515.

To constitute a damaging of private property within the constitutional provision prohibiting the damaging of private property for public use without compensation, there must be an interference with its free use and enjoyment, resulting in some physical inconvenience, discomfort, or detriment. Hellbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 575, 113 S. W. 610, 979.

A property owner is not bound to keep his premises attractive, or to refrain from making them unattractive or offensive to the æsthetic sense of his neighbors, so long as his use thereof does not interfere with their use of their own property. Id.

Where damage to real property is permanent, so that the depreciation in its market value constitutes the measure of damages, recovery may be had for prospective as well as present injuries. Id.

Where injuries to a public highway were not permanent, but were capable of being remedied by the wrongdoer or others interested in the highway, abutting owners could not recover for prospective injuries to the property, based upon the depreciation in its market value. Id.

10. — Damages to abutting property from construction or maintenance of railroad.—See notes at end of Chapter 8 of Title 115.

11. Measure of compensation—In general.—An owner of land, part of which is condemned, is entitled to the market value of the portion taken and the depreciation in value of that not taken, thus entitling him to the value of that taken, even if the remainder is enhanced in value. Ft. Worth Improvement Dist. No. 1 of Tarrant County v. Weatherred (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 550.

12. — Deduction of benefits.—Special benefits to property injured by the construction of public works held available as an offset against any damages. Burton Lumber Corp. v. City of Houston, 45 C. A. 363, 101 S. W. 822.

An owner seeking damages for the maintenance of public work, not encroaching on the half of the street lying next to his property, held required to submit to a deduction for special benefits accruing from the works. Id.

13. Condemnation of land for particular purposes—For streets in cities and towns.—See Arts. 1003–1005, 1066, 1067, 1069.

14. — By cities and towns for water supply, sewerage disposal or hospitals.—See Arts. 1003–1005.

PUBLIC DOMAIN

Art. 5278. Vacant public lands belong to free school fund.	Art. 5279. All public lands retained at annexation.

Article 5278. Vacant public lands belong to free school fund.—All vacant public lands, not otherwise appropriated, except islands, lakes and bays within tidewater limits along the gulf of Mexico, are the property of the public free school fund. [Acts 1900, p. 29.]

Character as school lands.—When lands by legislation have been appropriated to the public school fund, the legislature cannot by subsequent legislation change their character as public school lands, and if by mistake of the land commissioner they were not charged to the school fund in the adjustment made by Act Feb. 23, 1900, and the school fund has not been compensated therefor, this does not affect their character as school lands. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 611.

Art. 5279. [4036] All public lands retained at annexation.—In order that the provisions of law relating to the public domain may be brought together, the following extract is made from the joint resolutions of the congress of the United States for annexing Texas to the United States, approved March 1, 1845, and the joint resolution of the congress of the republic of Texas assenting to the same, approved June 23, 1845, viz.:

“Said state, when admitted into the Union, * * * shall also retain all the vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits, to be applied to the payment of the debts and liabilities of said republic of Texas, and the residue of said lands, after discharging said debts and liabilities, to be disposed of as said state may direct,” etc. [Joint Res., June 23, 1845.]

See Appendix for tabulation and other representation of omitted or repealed land laws.

Quarantine station.—Land occupied by quarantine buildings erected by the state of Texas on the east end of Galveston Island held not land excepted from a prior grant by the republic of Texas, and therefore did not pass to the United States under the cession of public property on the admission of Texas into the Union. State v. Jadwin (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 490.

Lands under a void grant issued November 20, 1835, after land offices were closed, held not "titled land," within the meaning of the constitution and statutes. Williams v. League (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 570.

2. Spanish and Mexican grants.—As to titles in Cameron, El Paso, Hidalgo, Kinney, Nueces, Presidio, Starr and Webb counties, see Sayles' Early Laws, arts. 2255, 3486.

In action of trespass to try title the defendant's title was a colonial grant for which he had received a testimonio properly executed. His title was not affected by the fact that the protocol was not signed by the commissioner. Titus v. Kimbro, 8 T. 210.

In 1831 a concession of land was made to Juan Jose Acosta. The surveyor in his report describes the land as having been surveyed for Juan Justo Liendo. The act of possession was dated September 30, 1834. It was held that the mistake in the use of the last name was corrected by the context. Clay v. Holbert, 14 T. 189.

In an action of trespass to try title plaintiff claimed the land in controversy under a grant to M. in 1835, and a conveyance by M. to plaintiff in 1840, made in good faith and for a valuable consideration. The plaintiff admitted that he was a native of the United States, that he came to Texas in 1835 without his family, and after remaining three weeks returned to the United States, and had never been in Texas since as a citizen, and had never taken possession of the land. Held, that the issue of the grant precluded an inquiry into the merits and qualifications of the grantee, and that the title in the hands of a purchaser was not affected by the conduct of the grantee. Johnston v. Smith, 21 T. 722; Styles v. Gray, 10 T. 503; Hardiman v. Herbert, 11 T. 656; Hatch v. Dunn, 11 T. 708; Bowmer v. Hicks, 22 T. 155; Luter v. Mayfield, 26 T. 325; Howard v. Colquhoun, 28 T. 134; Ruiz v. Chambers, 15 T. 586; Babb v. Carroll, 21 T. 767; Bradshaw v. Smith, 53 T. 474; Todd v. Fisher, 26 T. 243; Lindsay v. Jaffray, 55 T. 631; Palmer v. Curtner, 55 T. 67; Walters v. Jewett, 28 T. 201; McPhail v. Burris, 42 T. 145; Cavazos v. Trevino, 35 T. 133.

The want of authority of the officer in extending a title prior to the revolution of 1836, which rendered it void, must be shown by the law, or that he attempted to exercise his authority beyond the territory over which he had jurisdiction, or something of like character, and not from proof of mere error of the officer in extending title to one not in fact legally entitled, but who he believed was entitled to receive it. Hanrick v. Jackson, 55 T. 17.

See Act Aug. 15, 1870 (12th Leg., S. S., p. 201). State v. De Leon, 64 T. 553; Garza v. State, 64 T. 670.

Conveyance by citizen of the state of Coahuila in 1834 of his right as a colonist to locate land held recognized by constitution of republic of Texas. Stone v. Crenshaw, 30 C. A. 394, 70 S. W. 532.

On the extension of final title to a Texas land grant, the fee held to have vested in applicant's attorney in fact and not in the applicant. Surghenor v. Tallafarro (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 648.

Where, in 1824, the government of Coahuila and Texas granted four leagues of land for colonization purposes, and a town was established as the seat of municipal government of the colony, it was within the power of the congress of Texas to place the title in the town to the unsold portion of the grant for the use and benefit of its citizens. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 100 T. 438, 101 S. W. 190.

Where a Spanish grant vested in the grantee, an estate in fee, persons claiming title as heirs of the grantee need not show that he never forfeited the land. Flores v. Hovel (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 606.

A Spanish grant held not void because of insufficient description of the land granted. Id.

A Spanish grant held to vest a perfect title in the grantee subject to conditions subsequent. Id.

3. Lands subject to colonization.—Under the general colonization act declaring that there cannot be colonized lands within 10 leagues of the coast of the gulf of Mexico, the interior line of the littoral leagues lying between given coast points is not determined by following the curvatures of the coast. A straight line between the two outer termini of the end lines may be drawn when the line is short and there is no great curvature of the coast; but, if otherwise, the rule is to meander the coast line, plat the surveys, and lay down a straight line between the two coast points; from a point of intersection with that line, run a perpendicular 10 leagues into the interior, and from the apex runs a line to either end of the boundary parallel to the base line. Hamilton v. Menifee, 11 T. 718.

4. Grant to United States—Accretion.—The grant by the republic of Texas to the United States of specific lands devoted to public defense held not to entitle the latter to lands subsequently attached by accretion to that part of Galveston Island previously used for defense. State v. Jadwin (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 490.

5. Grant of lands under water.—Soil under public navigable waters may be the subject of a grant by the sovereign. Baylor v. Tillebach, 20 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 720.

Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co.* (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 147.

Purchasers from grantee in a deed executed by the mayor of Socorro held charged with notice of the power of the mayor to execute the deed. Skov v. Coffin (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 450.

7. Land certificates—Former law.—See Appendix for omitted or repealed land laws. A file of a certificate made before the reservation of the land by the state or other purposes is superior thereto, though the survey was not made till afterwards; it being made within a year from the file. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 114.

The issuance of a certificate to those designated therein as heirs of the party entitled is conclusive of their right to it on a collateral inquiry, whether the decision of the board was right or not. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495; Fleming v. Giboney, 81 T. 422, 17 S. W. 13.

An unlocated land certificate is a chattel. Porter v. Burnett, 60 T. 220; Sewell v. Laurence, 2 U. C. 376; Barker v. Swenson, 66 T. 407, 1 S. W. 117. After its location it becomes a chattel real. Hearne v. Gillett, 62 T. 23; East v. Dugan, 79 T. 329, 15 S. W. 273; Harvey v. Carroll, 5 C. A. 324, 23 S. W. 713.

One who for a period of thirty-seven years sleeps upon his claim to an interest in a land certificate, an adverse right to which is openly asserted, and who, during all that period, makes no effort to repel the assertion of the adverse claim, is estopped from asserting his rights by reason of his laches. Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155.

The mere possession of a land certificate is not evidence of title. Chamberlain v. Pybas, 81 T. 511, 17 S. W. 50; Fisher v. Ullman, 3 C. A. 322, 22 S. W. 523.

A land certificate issued without authority, defective in terms, rejected by the court of claims, not recommended by the land board, and not established by suit, is void. White v. Martin, 66 T. 340, 17 S. W. 727.

Land certificates held personal property, so that title is governed by law of domicile. Ward v. Cameron, 97 T. 466, 80 S. W. 69.

Facts held to show that an act of the legislature intended to confirm in one a right to a tract of land as the head of a family. Houston Oil Co. v. Gallup, 50 C. A. 369, 109 S. W. 957.

A land certificate is the obligation of the government entitling the owner to secure the designated quantity of land by following the requirements of the law. Waterman v. Charlton, 102 T. 510, 120 S. W. 171.

The title to the land ordinarily depends on and follows the title to the certificate, and the ownership of the certificate constitutes title to land. Id.

The issuance of a patent upon location and survey made for owners of certificates vests in the patentee the absolute title to the land, except as against the state or some one having a prior legal or equitable right. Murphy v. Luttrell, 56 C. A. 149, 120 S. W. 905.

One locating land under a certificate held not a mere trespasser, but an owner of an interest in the land. Duren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 376.

Under Paschal's Dig. arts. 4302 and 4211 et seq., it was the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to satisfy himself that the original certificate was a valid one, before issuing an unlocated balance certificate, and it will be presumed that he discharged this duty; hence, where a survey was made in B. county in 1838, under which land was patented in 1847 and canceled in 1855, because in conflict with older valid claims, and not for any infirmity of the certificate, and another survey, made in B. county in 1847 by virtue of the certificate, was patented during that year, and the commissioner in 1855, after canceling the patent issued on the survey made in 1838, again recognized the certificate as valid by issuing the unlocated balance certificate, the original certificate was prima facie valid. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

The right of the holder of a land certificate to obtain title to land by location of the certificate descends to his heirs, but, until location, no title to any land is acquired. Blair v. Hennessy (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1076.

Facts held to establish a partition of a land certificate between defendant and his coheirs precluding him from successfully claiming an interest in land located by them. Robertson v. Brothers (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 657.

Under Paschal's Dig. art. 4167, invalidating sales of land under conditional certificates, a sale of land under a conditional certificate passes no title, legal or equitable, to the purchaser. Sauvage v. Wauhup (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 259.

Where a special act, authorizing the issuance of a certificate to the original holder of an unconditional certificate, is a pure donation, conferring no rights upon the holder's assignee, the heirs of the holder are both the legal and beneficial owners of the special act certificate; and a patent thereunder vests them with the legal title. Broussard v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 347.

For laws and decisions relating to certificates for land under colony contracts of Peters, Castro, Fisher and Miller, German Emigration Company, and Mercer, see Early Laws of Texas, and Sayles' Real Estate Laws of Texas, vol. 1, arts. 164-194.

8. — Headright certificates.—A headright certificate was issued in 1838 to the father of plaintiff; the mother died in 1839; in 1851 the father transferred his interest in the certificate to J., and J. made a similar transfer to M.; in 1855 a duplicate certificate, the original having been lost, was issued in the name of the father, and in 1860 the land was patented to M., as his assignee. Up to the issuance of the patent the absence of the defendant from the state would prevent the running of the statute of limitations against him. After the issuance of the patent the statute was suspended and remained suspended until March 30, 1870. From 1874 to 1879 the county in which the land lay was not attached for judicial purposes to any organized county. Held that, under the facts of this case, the heirs of the mother were not estopped from asserting their community interest in the land. Merrill v. Roberts, 64 T. 441.

In 1839 L. with his wife and children emigrated to Texas; in the same year his wife died and he married again; on January 10, 1840, a conditional certificate for six hundred and forty acres was issued to him; in the spring of the same year he died leaving surviving his last wife and the children of his first wife. In November, 1849, an unconditional certificate was issued to L. or his heirs, it not appearing which; in September, 1851, the land was surveyed under the certificate, and in 1874 patented to the heirs of L. Held, that the heirs were entitled to the land to the exclusion of the last wife. Marks v. Hill, 46 T. 345.

The authority to patent upon first-class headright claims is based upon the report of the traveling board that the certificate is genuine, or, if adverse, upon the certificate being established as genuine by suit; any other evidence is insufficient authority. Miller v. Brownson, 50 T. 583.

A certificate granted by the legislature in lieu of an unrecommended first-class headright certificate is a gratuity, and inures to the benefit of the grantee, and does not confer title upon an assignee of the unrecommended land certificate. McKinney v. Brown, 51 T. 94.

The action of a legally constituted board of land commissioners in 1838, deciding who were the heirs of a deceased party who had been entitled under the law to land, and issuing to them a headright certificate, is conclusive of their right to it in a collateral inquiry, and in like manner a patent based on such certificate to those designated therein as heirs of the party entitled, is conclusive on the question of their heirship. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495, citing Styles v. Gray, 10 T. 506; Hardiman v. Herbert, 11 T. 661; Ruis v. Chambers, 15 T. 590; Babb v. Carroll, 21 T. 767; Bowmar v. Hicks, 22 T. 155; Bradshaw v. Smith, 53 T. 474; Todd v. Fisher, 26 T. 243; Lindsay v. Jaffray, 55 T. 631; Howard v. Colquhoun, 28 T. 134; Walters v. Jewett, 28 T. 201; McPhail v. Burris, 42 T. 145; Palmer v. Curtner, 55 T. 67; Hanrick v. Jackson, 55 T. 32.

Patent under unlocated headright certificate issued after the death of the owner to him, "his heirs and assigns," vests the legal title in his heirs. Hereford v. House, 16 C. A. 356, 40 S. W. 847.

Contract for location of headright certificate and deed held to vest a legal title. Stone v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1077.

Recitation in a certificate held conclusive that the grantee of bounty lands fell in the Alamo, and hence the heirs of a soldier by the same name, who survived, could not hold lands under such certificate. Dick v. Malone, 24 C. A. 97, 58 S. W. 168.

Location under headright certificate by one owner held not ratified by the others by the sale of the certificate, where they did not know of location. Kirby v. Estell, 24 C. A. 106, 58 S. W. 254.

Plaintiff held not entitled to recover on the ground that the evidence was not sufficient to show that the headright certificate to the land under which defendant had obtained title was issued to plaintiff's father, though the person to whom it was issued was of the same name. Stafford v. Kreinhop (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 166.

A headright land certificate, which has not been examined by the traveling board of land commissioners, or which has not been established as genuine and valid by a judgment of the district court, is void, and will not authorize a survey. Pope v. Anthony, 29 C. A. 298, 68 S. W. 521.

Findings of a board of land commissioners as to death of the grantee in a conditional headright certificate held not conclusive. Buster v. Warren, 35 C. A. 644, 80 S. W. 1063.

Evidence held insufficient to show plaintiffs were the heirs of B., to whose administrator a headright certificate was issued. Balentine v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 465.

Recital in a headright certificate issued by a board of land commissioners to one as administrator of B., that B. was killed at the Alamo held to require strong evidence to overcome it. Id.

9. — Bounty land certificate.—The pay of soldiers under joint resolution of November 24, 1836, held not limited to money, but to include land grants for service, including the time between the soldier's leaving home and his mustering into the service. Halsted v. Allen (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1068.

A bounty land certificate held a grant based on the consideration of the soldier's service. Id.

A certificate issued to the heirs of those who fell at the Alamo was a mere gratuity evidencing the gratitude of the republic for the soldier's sacrifice, the right to which vested in his heirs; it formed no part of his estate, and was not subject to sale by the administrator for the payment of debts. Todd v. Masterson, 61 T. 618, citing Rogers v. Kennard, 54 T. 35; Ames v. Hubby, 49 T. 710. It is otherwise where a certificate was issued to the heir under a pre-existing contract or obligation in favor of the ancestor. Goldsmith v. Herndon, 33 T. 705; Soye v. Maverick, 18 T. 100; Rogers v. Kennard, 54 T. 30; Todd v. Masterson, 61 T. 618; Allen v. Clark, 21 T. 404; Hornsby v. Bacon, 20 T. 556; Warnell v. Finch, 15 T. 163; Marks v. Hill, 46 T. 345.

The survey and location of public land by virtue of a bounty warrant issued by the state is sufficient to sever the land from the public domain and vest title in the owner of the warrant for whom the location and survey were made. Stubblefield v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 406.

A certificate and patent to the heirs of a soldier of the war of Texas for her independence held a certificate and patent to those who were the heirs of such person at the time of his death. Waterman v. Charlton (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 779.

Effect of a statute, passed to relieve one entitled to a bounty warrant certificate barred by limitations, stated. Sherman v. Pickering, 56 C. A. 633, 121 S. W. 536.

Special act directing the issuance of a certificate for two tracts of land to the original owner of an unconditional headright certificate, passed at the instance of his assignee, to whose transferee the patent thereunder issued, held not a bounty or donation to the heirs of the original holder. Broussard v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 347.

10. — Confederate certificate.—Where a survey was located and patented to plaintiffs by virtue of a Confederate certificate, and the alternate survey for the school fund was not located contiguous thereto, held, that their location was illegal, and that they could not convey good title. Maurice v. Upton (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 504.

The fact that the lands were located under "Confederate certificates" does not make title thereto invalid. Brackenridge v. Claridge, 91 T. 527, 44 S. W. 819, 43 L. R. A. 593.

The unauthorized act of the commissioner of the general land office in issuing patents for lands under veteran donation certificates which had previously been appropriated to the public school fund cannot operate as an estoppel against the state. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 607.

11. — National road certificates.—Assignment of national road certificates gives title to land patented on a relocation thereof. Gist v. East, 16 C. A. 274, 41 S. W. 396.

Under a transfer with warranty of so much of a national road certificate as was located on a certain tract, held, that transferee took a like amount of other land there-after patented under a relocation of the certificate. Miller v. Gist, 91 T. 335, 43 S. W. 263.

12. — Duplicate certificates.—A duplicate land certificate, issued in place of one lost by the commissioner of the land office, confers no greater right than the original. Kempner v. State, 31 C. A. 363, 72 S. W. 888.

Where a duplicate certificate in lieu of one lost could be obtained under existing laws, it was competent for the legislature, under the constitution of 1870, to direct the issuance of an original certificate in satisfaction of a pre-existing right which had once been evidenced by a certificate which had been lost. If such a certificate had been in existence, the fact that the party was entitled to such certificate did not authorize the grant of a new certificate by the legislature under the constitution of 1870. Holmes v. Anderson, 59 T. 481, citing constitution of 1870, art. 10, sec. 6; Bacon v. Russell, 57 T. 415.

As a duplicate certificate professes to confer no rights other than such as the original gave, if there be no original it confers no rights whatever. Following Gunter v. Meade, 78 T. 634, 14 S. W. 562. It seems also to have been held in that case that the fact of an original certificate having been used for one labor would not give such jurisdiction to the commissioner of the general land office as would render a duplicate for a league and labor issued thereon voidable only and not void. Land & Mortgage Co. v. State, 1 C. A. 616, 23 S. W. 258.

A duplicate certificate issued where there was no original or where the original has been satisfied is void. Gunter v. Meade, 78 T. 634, 14 S. W. 562; Texas Land & Mortgage Co. v. State, 1 C. A. 616, 23 S. W. 258.

A special act directing a certificate to issue in lieu of another one pronounced void is, in effect, a donation. White v. Martin, 66 T. 340, 17 S. W. 727. The act of March 31, 1883, validating surveys and patent by virtue of certificates issued under special laws passed under the constitution of 1870, cannot retroact and make that, which was no title at all at the time another title accrued, superior to that other title. White v. Martin, 66 T. 340, 17 S. W. 727.

A mere irregularity in the issuance of a duplicate cannot avail a subsequent locator claiming the land under a different title. Seibert v. Richardson, 5 C. A. 504, 23 S. W. 899.

The owner of a land certificate may assert title to land secured under a duplicate obtained and located in fraud of the owner. Seibert v. Richardson, 86 T. 295, 24 S. W. 261. See Holmes v. Anderson, 59 T. 481; Bacon v. Russell, 57 T. 418.

Validity of locations and surveys made under original certificates held not affected by mistake in having duplicate certificates issued and surveys made thereunder. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 607.

Where the land commissioner issues a duplicate certificate, though in fact the original was not lost, the real owners, on establishing their ownership, could accept the location of the duplicate, and would in equity be entitled to recover the land. Jackson v. Nona Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 928.

Issuance of unconditional land certificate and duplicate certificate upon loss of the unconditional certificate held not a judicial determination that the location under the original certificate had been abandoned. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Toler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1111.

13. — Transfer of certificates.—A purchaser for value under a patentee is not chargeable with constructive notice of latent defects in the transfer of the certificate upon which the patent issued, when there is nothing upon the face of the patent which would put a prudent man on such inquiry as would lead to notice of such defects. Wimberly v. Pabst, 55 T. 587.

Conditional certificates issued to emigrants and settlers under the land law of 1837, and prior to the passage of the act of January, 1839, were transferable by the grantee. Graham v. Henry, 17 T. 164.

The prohibition of the grantee of conditional certificates to assign them was first introduced by the act of January 4, 1839, and was confined to claims acquired under that act. Graham v. Henry, 17 T. 164; Perry v. Glass, 25 T. 368; Merrifweather v. Kennard, 41 T. 273.

A sale of a land certificate conveys the equitable title to the land on which it is subsequently located. Keyes v. Railroad Co., 50 T. 174; Hermann v. Reynolds, 52 T. 391; Stone v. Brown, 54 T. 330; Sickles v. White, 66 T. 178, 17 S. W. 543.

A transfer of a land certificate upon which was based the delivery of a patent to the land by the commissioners, when found in the land office, is an archive, and a certified copy thereof is admissible in evidence. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495.

A verbal sale of a land certificate conveys the vendor's right thereto. In 1838 the assent of the husband to a verbal sale by the wife of her interest in a certificate was not required to be in writing. After a lapse of nearly 40 years such assent was presumed, it being shown that the husband was aware of the sale. Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155.

The transfer of a land certificate conveys only an equitable title; the conveyance of land after location gives such title that it will at once become a legal title if the patent is issued in the name of the original grantee. Satterwhite v. Rosser, 61 T. 173; Adams v. House, 61 T. 640; Abernathy v. Stone, 81 T. 430, 16 S. W. 1102; Culmell v. Borroum, 13 C. A. 458, 35 S. W. 942.

A land certificate after location loses its character as personal property and becomes a chattel real, title to which can no longer pass by parol. Hearne v. Gillett, 62 T. 23.

An unlocated land certificate is personal property and passes title by sale and delivery. The owner of a certificate may elect to treat adverse possession as a conversion, and, if he seeks to recover its value, must bring his action within two years from the accrual of his cause of action, but his failure to do so does not annul his right to recover the land located by such certificate. Barker v. Swenson, 66 T. 407, 1 S. W. 117. Citing Andrews v. Smithwick, 20 T. 111; Smithwick v. Andrews, 24 T. 488; Andrews v. Smithwick, 34 T. 544. And see Lindsay v. Jaffray, 55 T. 626; Stone v. Brown, 54 T. 330;

Johnson v. Newman, 43 T. 639; Randon v. Barton, 4 T. 292; Watkins v. Gllkerson, 10 T. 340; Evans v. Hardeman, 15 T. 480; Cox v. Bray, 28 T. 251; Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155; Neal v. Bartleson, 65 T. 478.

When a land certificate is sold under execution or in course of an administration, the right to secure land under it passes to the purchaser, as under a voluntary sale. Barker v. Swenson, 66 T. 407, 1 S. W. 117.

A land certificate with a blank indorsement thereon prior to its location is, when unexplained, prima facie evidence of title in the holder. Fisher v. Ullman, 22 S. W. 523, 3 C. A. 322.

The transfer of a located land certificate vests title in the vendee. A transfer before location or survey confers an equitable title in the grantee to be enforced within ten years. Rankin v. Busby (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 678; Keyes v. Railroad Co., 50 T. 174; Stone v. Brown, 54 T. 330.

Assignment of certificate after patent conveys an equitable title. Hume v. Ware, 28 S. W. 935, 87 T. 380.

An unconditional certificate issued to an assignee is prima facie evidence of his title. Davis v. Bargas, 88 T. 662, 32 S. W. 874.

An instrument conveying all the right, title, and interest in a headright certificate held to pass all the grantor's interest, whether or not the certificate had been located. McCoy v. Pease, 17 C. A. 303, 42 S. W. 659.

Deed conveying certain land, reciting the number of certificate under which it was located, prior to the location, held to convey only an equitable title. Flash v. Herndon (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 608.

Where one holding certificate conveyed an equitable title to the land located thereunder, and on receiving patent conveyed the land to another, the legal title was vested in such other. Id.

The legal title to land patented to assignor of certificate after assignment held to vest in assignee. Batcheller v. Besancon, 19 C. A. 137, 47 S. W. 296.

A land office certificate held transferable, prior to location of land thereunder, without a written assignment. Ehrenberg v. Baker's Ex'rs (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 435.

Transfer of a land-office certificate prior to location held sufficient to entitle the transferee to recover in an action as against locator's heirs. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to raise a presumption of the transfer of a land office certificate necessary to support plaintiff's title. Id.

A party claiming to be the assignee of a headright certificate for the land in controversy could not, by mere lapse of time, unaided by acts of ownership, be declared the owner, though no one had asserted a contrary title. Morgan v. Butler, 23 C. A. 470, 56 S. W. 689.

Evidence held to create presumption that the father of plaintiff had assigned a headright certificate to the land in controversy to defendant's predecessor, which would authorize a judgment for the defendant. Stafford v. Kreinhop (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 166.

The files of a suit for a certificate for land held such that reasonable diligence would have shown one buying land, patent for which was issued on a certificate of the court to claimant, that there was a new trial in which judgment was against claimant. Kempner v. State, 31 C. A. 363, 72 S. W. 888.

Written contract held to show a sale of land certificates. Ward v. Cameron, 97 T. 466, 80 S. W. 69.

An unlocated land certificate was personal property. Phillips v. Palmer, 56 C. A. 91, 120 S. W. 911.

A certain outstanding title to land held not to be asserted against a purchaser for value without notice thereof. Ingalls v. Orange Lumber Co., 56 C. A. 543, 122 S. W. 53.

Broocks v. Payne (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 463.

Under Paschal's Dig. arts. 5612, 5613, 5629-5631, 5633, 5698, 5771, relating to settlement of estates of decedents and the sale of property of the estate, which do not specifically require that an order of court be had for the sale of personalty, the transfer of a land certificate by an administratrix before her discharge is valid without an order of court, though made 18 years after letters were taken out. Id.

An unlocated land certificate is a chattel, title to which may pass by parol sale and delivery. Duren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 376.

The original holder of a headright certificate having assigned the same and then obtained a duplicate on an affidavit of loss of the original, no title passed to an assignee of the duplicate as against those holding under the original. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

Where an original headright certificate was assigned, and thereafter the assignor obtained a duplicate under which land was located, the assignee of the original was entitled to claim such location. Id.

Where defendants had the legal and equitable title to land located under an assigned original headright certificate, the doctrine of stale demand did not apply to their claim thereto as against one holding under a duplicate certificate. Id.

Under Paschal's Dig. art. 4140, which authorized a board of land commissioners to issue a certificate covering lands to one claiming as assignee of a person entitled, a certificate that a specified person, as assignee of another, proved himself, according to law, to be entitled to one league and one labor of land secured to the assignor or his assigns by the certificate is conclusive on the question of the assignee's rights as such, at least as against all persons other than his claimed assignor and those claiming under the latter, in a proceeding to recover the land. Early v. Compton (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 694.

Rights acquired by an assignee under a headright certificate, by having the land located and surveyed and the field notes returned as required by law, held sufficient to support trespass to try title. Sabine Valley Timber & Lumber Co. v. Cagle (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 697.

14. — Good faith in transfer.—A grant by the state to land to a transferee of a certificate for land holding under a forged transfer held to be divested by the state or by the original holder of the certificate or his heirs on proof of the fraud and forgery. Blair v. Hennessy (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1076.

The purchaser of an unlocated land certificate, though in good faith, for value, and without notice, will not be protected against prior transfers thereof from his vendor, in the absence of facts raising an estoppel. Tompkins v. Creighton-McShane Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 306.

The mere fact that a transfer of an unlocated land certificate was not recorded held not to render a subsequent purchaser from the same holder a purchaser in good faith, and without notice. Id.

A headright certificate, before the location of land thereunder, is personal property within the rule that a purchaser can acquire no better title than his vendor has. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

15. Entries and locations under former law.—See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws. Defendant received from plaintiff $1,000 with which to buy land certificates, two-thirds of the land so located to belong to plaintiff and one-third to defendant. The defendant failed to locate the land certificates according to the terms of the contract, and the plaintiff repudiated the acts of the defendant altogether. In a suit for the breach of the contract, the money received by the defendant, with legal interest from the time he received it, is the measure of damages. Durst v. Swift, 11 T. 281; Sutton v. Page, 4 T. 147; Garrett v. Gaines, 6 T. 443; Hall v. York, 16 T. 23; Mitchell v. McLemore, 9 T. 151; Murchison v. Payne, 37 T. 305; Eborn v. Zimbleman, 47 T. 503, 26 Am. Rep. 315; Close v. Fields, 13 T. 626; White v. Affleck, 1 U. C. 78.

A title to land is not divested by a mere declaration of abandonment. Railway Co. v. McGehee, 49 T. 489; Hanrick v. Cavanaugh, 60 T. 1; Hanrick v. Dodd, 62 T. 75.

Trespass to try title can be maintained by one who has settled upon vacant land, upon which he filed as a pre-emptor, and procured, as such, a survey of the same. The claim of such a one constitutes an equitable though defeasible title, which, on compliance with the pre-emption law, would mature into a legal title. Buford v. Gray, 51 T. 331.

The right to land attaches at the date of the file and application and cannot be defeated by the refusal of the officer to accept the location. De Montel v. Speed, 53 T. 339; Hamilton v. Avery, 20 T. 612; Sherwood v. Fleming, 25 T. Sup. 408; Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153; Gullett v. O'Connor, 54 T. 408; Groesbeck v. Harris, 82 T. 411, 19 S. W. 850.

A locator does not lose his right through the fault of the surveyor unless a subsequent locator is misled thereby. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 65 T. 186.

The equities of the locator of a land certificate, who locates without contract with the owner, do not extend to fixing a right in the land secured by the location, or even to a lien upon it for his compensation. Grimes v. Smith, 70 T. 217, 8 S. W. 33; Boone v. Hulsey, 71 T. 176, 9 S. W. 531.

Under Rev. St. 1895, arts. 4055, 4123-4126, 4131, 4138, 4142, a certificate filed with a survey in the land office cannot be withdrawn for any purpose. Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58.

A location is not void on account of a mere irregularity. Railway Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1102.

Prior or subsequent knowledge of a partial location of a certificate, or subsequent conduct, does not estop the purchaser from claiming a subsequent location for his exclusive benefit, where the first location was for the exclusive use of his vendor's co-owner. Estell v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 8.

The owner of an undivided interest in a certificate may locate thereunder for his exclusive benefit to the extent of such interest, free from any claim of his co-owner. Id.

Payments of fees at the land office held not to give a claim against the interest of minors in land, in the absence of a contract by a duly qualified guardian. Ellis v. Le Bow, 30 C. A. 449, 71 S. W. 576.

General laws authorizing locations or entries upon and surveys of public lands or public domain or vacant lands do not apply to lands that have previously been appropriated, reserved, or set aside. Roberts v. Terrell, 101 T. 577, 110 S. W. 733.

Parties claiming a forfeiture of a location of public lands, by virtue of Act Aug. 30, 1856 (4 Laws, p. 499; Paschal's Dig. art. 4210), it having been shown that the land was located under a valid certificate, should bring the case within its terms. Keith v. Guedry (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 392.

The rights of one locating land under a certificate and of those claiming under him held not open to the objection of a stale demand. Duren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 376.

Taking land in satisfaction of an agreement to survey a larger tract in consideration of a third interest held to divest the owner of such tract and his heirs of any interest in the smaller. Addington v. Howard (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 268.

Location under an unconditional land certificate held to have exhausted the holder's right to appropriate public lands, and location under an unconditional certificate subsequently issued, and under a duplicate certificate, the unconditional certificate having been lost, was void. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Toler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1111.

The constitution of 1846, article 14, section 2, required that land certificates in existence at its adoption should be surveyed and returned to the general land office within five years after its adoption, or be forever barred.

16. — Vacant public land.—The granting of a certificate to be located upon "vacant public land" contemplates vacant land subject to location; the phrase being generally used interchangeably with others to indicate lands subject to location or settlement. Roberts v. Terrell, 101 T. 577, 110 S. W. 733.

A certificate granted with the right of location upon any of the vacant public lands of the state within or without the several reservations theretofore created by law held only to be located upon lands subjected to location of which islands are not a part. Id.

The patent carries with it a prima facie right to the land granted to the patentee. The adverse claimant must show a superior equitable right to rebut such presumption. Johnson v. Eldridge, 49 T. 507.

The words "land titled," used in section 2, article 14, of the constitution, embrace land covered by that evidence or right which the state gives through a patent, and are not restricted to those lands which are held under patent, which, in the absence of this section, would be deemed sufficient to confer title. If for reasons not appearing on the face of a patent the grant would be void or voidable, the land embraced in the calls of the patent would, for the purposes contemplated by the section, be deemed "land titled." Truehart v. Babcock, 51 T. 169; Summers v. Davis, 49 T. 554; Westrope v. Chambers, 51 T. 188; Bryan v. Crump, 55 T. 10; Day Land & Cattle Co. v. State, 68 T. 526, 4 S. W. 865; De Court v. Sproul, 66 T. 368, 1 S. W. 337; Hanrick v. Dodd, 62 T. 91; Woods v. Durrett, 28 T. 436; Sherwood v. Fleming, 25 T. Sup. 427; and Patrick v. Nance, 26 T. 301, cited. Under section 2, article 14, of the constitution, any location made on land which, before the adoption of that constitution, had been patented, is illegal, though the patent may have been void, if it emanated from offices of the state authorized to convey title. Hanrick v. Dodd, 62 T. 91, and Miller v. Brownson, 50 T. 583. When an illegal location is made on "land titled," the subsequent cancellation of the patent will not validate the location. Winsor v. O'Connor, 69 T. 571, 8 S. W. 519.

However irregular or illegal may have been the course of procedure which led to the issuance of a patent to land, the land covered by it is not subject to future location. Adams v. Railway Co., 70 T. 252, 7 S. W. 729.

17. — Application.—The right of the owner of a land certificate to unappropriated land is fixed by the date of his file and application. De Montel v. Speed, 53 T. 339; Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153; Groesbeck v. Harris, 82 T. 411, 19 S. W. 850.

The law does not require the application for entry to be made by the owner of the certificate. The possession of the certificate with ability to deliver it to the surveyor is sufficient to support the entry. The rightful owner alone can complain, and he may adopt the act and the ownership of the land remains in him. The surveyor may write out the application. Beatty v. Masterton, 77 T. 168, 13 S. W. 1014.

A subsequent application for a survey of public lands held not in conflict with a prior one, if the prior application be considered an application in gross. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

18. — Surveys.—On the 1st of June, 1840, a tract of land was located by the proper files made in the office of the county surveyor; before the return of the field-notes to the land office the same land was relocated in 1845 and a patent issued in 1848. In 1853 the field-notes of the first location were returned to the land office within the time prescribed by law. In a contest between those claiming under the first location and those claiming under the patent, it was held that the latter were bound by the matters shown by the records of the surveyor's office constituting an appropriation of the land, and that those holding under the location had the better title. Wyllie v. Wynne, 26 T. 42.

Failure in the officers of the land office to delineate upon the maps in the office a grant on file in its archives would not affect such grant in favor of a subsequent location for which a patent has been issued. Elliott v. Mitchell, 47 T. 445.

By the act of November 29, 1871 (P. D. 7096), it was necessary that the certificate should be filed with the survey in the general land office within twelve months, and the act provided that the withdrawal of such certificate from the general land office should render such location and survey null and void. The withdrawal contemplated by the statute was intended to designate the act of the owner or some one for him, consenting that by his act the location and survey formerly made should become null. The theft or unauthorized withdrawal of a certificate from the general land office will not have the effect of rendering null a valid location and survey. Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 487; Snider v. I. & G. N. R. Co., 52 T. 306.

The owner of land certificates who employs and pays the deputy surveyor for the work of actually surveying the land on which the certificates are located, and who defrays all his expenses, is not liable to the county surveyor for the fees for surveying, there being no contract between the deputy and the principal surveyor in regard thereto. Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335.

One who files, in a proper manner, and delivers a valid land certificate to the county surveyor, has twelve months within which to have the land applied for surveyed, as against any one having notice that he has taken these steps to appropriate the land, and this though the county surveyor fails to make the proper file entry, and did not keep either the application or the certificate in his office, but deposited them elsewhere for safe-keeping. Cassin v. O'Sullivan, 61 T. 594.

When corrected field-notes are filed in the land office, if the second survey covered land which could not have been embraced in the survey first made, it is necessary for the parties to proceed as in an original appropriation of the land. If the location originally made would cover the land embraced in the survey last made, then the first survey can be corrected so as to conform to the original location. Railway Co. v. Thompson, 65 T. 186.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that the survey was made in accordance with the location. Id.

If the location originally made would cover the land embraced in the survey last made, the first survey cannot be corrected so as to conform to the original location, notwithstanding the first survey and the certificates were still in the general land office. If the second survey covers land not embraced in the first survey, the parties must proceed as in an original appropriation of land. Id.

Where a survey is made under two certificates, an acceptance of a patent under one of them does not operate as an abandonment of the location and survey of the land not covered by the patent, in the absence of other evidence showing such an intention. Id.

A survey made on the location of a land certificate cannot be corrected by making a survey on entirely different land. Adams v. Railway Co., 70 T. 252, 7 S. W. 729.

When a block of surveys embracing many locations under certificates belonging to the same owner is in partial conflict with land previously appropriated, only so much of each location as may be in entire or partial conflict with older surveys can be floated. Although the owner of a land certificate was mistaken in his initial point of survey, yet if he surveyed vacant land which he intended at the time to thus appropriate, such survey deprives him of the right afterwards to float his certificate and locate it on other land. Id.

A location not followed by a survey within the time mentioned is void, as to one having an adverse interest. De La Garza v. Cassin, 72 T. 440, 10 S. W. 539; Greenwood v. McLeary (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 708.

A location of land by entry or file, not followed by a survey within twelve months, is void, and the land becomes subject to relocation under other land certificates. Relocation of same certificates upon the land is forbidden. De La Garza v. Cassin, 72 T. 440, 10 S. W. 539.

A failure to return the certificate to the land office within twelve months after the survey is fatal to any right thereunder. Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58.

Under Rev. St. 1895, arts. 4055, 4123-4126, 4131, 4138, 4142, a certificate filed with a survey in the land office cannot be withdrawn for any purpose. Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58.

See N. Y. & Texas Land Co. v. Thomson, 83 T. 169, 17 S. W. 920; Lockhart v. Keller (Sup.) 9 S. W. 179.

For rules applicable to question of boundary, see Rand v. Cartwright, 82 T. 399, 18 S. W. 794.

The withdrawal from the land office of the certificates and field-notes by an unauthorized person does not make void the location. The most that would be required in such case would be that the owner take means for its return within reasonable time after knowing of the withdrawal of the certificate. Musselman v. Strohl, 83 T. 473, 18 S. W. 857. See Gillespie v. Feris, 3 App. C. C. § 124.

A survey prior in point of time, in the absence of equities, confers a prior right. Mohler v. Welge (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 850.

If a second set of field-notes made after the expiration of the time prescribed constitute a relocation, then the certificate is barred; otherwise not. The commissioner in issuing the patent decided the second field-notes to be merely a correction of the original survey, which was made in time. Even if this was error, it would not make the patent void and subject to collateral attack. Tarlton v. Kirkpatrick, 1 C. A. 107, 21 S. W. 405.

While the law requires the two surveys for the individual and state, to be contiguous to each other, yet if made apart, they are irregular but not void, and surveys thus illegally made have been validated by law. See Railway Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1102; Smith v. McGaughy, 87 T. 61, 26 S. W. 1073; Barrow v. Gridley, 25 C. A. 13, 59 S. W. 602.

The failure to file field-notes in the time prescribed by this article does not invalidate a location. N. Y. & T. Land Co. v. Gardner, 11 C. A. 404, 32 S. W. 786; Garza v. Cassin, 72 T. 442, 10 S. W. 539.

Where a party complies with the laws in making locations, the validity of the survey will not be affected by refusal of surveyor or commissioner of land office to recognize its validity. Fardee v. Adamson, 19 C. A. 263, 46 S. W. 43.

The fact that surveys made under a certificate for the entry of public land are not contiguous is an irregularity of which the state alone can take advantage. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 607.

A senior survey of public land must have its quantity of land out of the public domain, and junior surveys must give way to it. McCaleb v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 111.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that appropriated school lands were surveyed as required by Rev. St. 1895, arts. 4130-4132. Elwood, Arnett & Arnett v. Copeland (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 146.

A locator of a land certificate must make an entry thereof, or application for survey, in which the land desired is described with sufficient certainty to apprise the surveyor what particular land he is required to survey; and where such application describes the land by metes and bounds the application must be held to have segregated the land described and none other, from the public domain, and a general statement of the locator as to what he intended must yield to the particular description of the land desired. Texas Mexican Ry. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Under Paschal's Dig. art. 4573, Act Aug. 30, 1856 (Laws 1856, c. 145), in force at the time a survey was made, holders of the certificates locating public lands were authorized to have them surveyed without first making an application therefor. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

19. — Location.—A valid location and survey is a legal title as distinguished from an equitable right. Olcott v. Ferris (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 848; Duren v. Railway Co., 24 S. W. 258, 86 T. 287.

The location of a land certificate upon the public domain subject to location severs the land covered by it from the mass of the public domain for twelve months from the date of the location. McKinney v. Grassmeyer, 51 T. 376; Threadgill v. Bickerstaff, 29 S. W. 757, 87 T. 520.

A joint owner of a land certificate may locate separately the interest owned by him, so as not to create therein a tenancy in common in it with those owning the other interests in the certificate. Glasscock v. Hughes, 55 T. 461. A sale of a part of a land certificate, as a half interest, gives the vendee the right to locate such interest for himself. Farris v. Gilbert, 50 T. 350.

While a valid location of a land certificate on public lands confers a vested right, it is subject to the right of the legislature to prescribe a time within which the owner must perform the remaining acts required by law to the completion of his title, and to annul the imperfect right on non-compliance with the law requiring the performance of such acts. Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 487.

The right of a person who has located a valid land certificate upon vacant public land and caused the same to be surveyed and the surveyor's certificate returned to the general land office within the time prescribed by law, is a vested right, and is entitled to all the protection given to such right under every constitution of the republic and state. Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 487, citing Sherwood v. Fleming, 25 T. Sup. 428; Hart v. Gibbons, 14 T. 215; Smith v. Taylor, 34 T. 607; Duren v. Railway Co., 86 T. 291, 24 S. W. 258; Illies v. Feriches, 11 C. A. 575, 32 S. W. 915.

A location is not void on account of a mere irregularity. Railway Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1102.

A location and survey of a land certificate and return of field-notes vests title in the owner of the certificate. Cresswell Ranch & Cattle Co. v. Waldstein (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 260.

Nothing short of the location of a land certificate or other evidence of right on and survey of land will entitle a party to maintain the action of trespass to try title. Fall v. Nation, 17 C. A. 160, 43 S. W. 46.

Grantee of a void grant of land issued after land offices were closed November 13, 1835, held not entitled to the land under Act Feb. 8, 1875, where another person had in 1874 located thereon. Williams v. League (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 570.

Evidence held to show that plaintiff's location did not include lands claimed by defendant under another location, and that the locations were not conflicting. Clawson v. Williams, 27 C. A. 130, 66 S. W. 702.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain the finding of the jury as to the location of the land in controversy. Cochran v. Moerer, 39 C. A. 75, 87 S. W. 160.

The survey and location of land by virtue of a valid bounty warrant is sufficient to segregate land from the public domain and vest title in the owner of the warrant for whom the survey and location were made and is sufficient title to authorize the maintenance of action for trespass to try title. Stubblefield v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 409.

One who located a certificate of land under contract to procure patent in the name of another, who should hold one-third of the land for his benefit, held to have acquired equitable title to one-third of the land. Morris v. Unknown Heirs of Hamilton (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 66.

Evidence held to authorize a finding that a survey was located on a prior survey. Warner v. Sapp (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 125.

A holder of a state land certificate on which an unlocated balance remained held entitled to locate land thereunder from the date of the return to the general land office of correct field notes of the survey thereof. Munson v. Terrell, 101 T. 220, 105 S. W. 1114.

Whether authority was given to locate a certificate, as between the parties to an action involving the land, was of no importance, as the location inured to the benefit of the owner of the certificate, if he wished to avail himself of it. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

20. — Entry.—The law does not require the application for entry to be made by the owner of the certificate. The possession of the certificate with ability to deliver it to the surveyor is sufficient to support the entry. The rightful owner alone can complain, and he may adopt the act and the ownership of the land remains in him. The surveyor may write out the application. Beatty v. Masterton, 77 T. 168, 13 S. W. 1014.

In the absence of additional facts showing that the title to public land, acquired by a subsequent grantee of the entryman, is superior or different from that of the entryman, any defects available against the latter's title are available against such grantee. Walraven v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 96 T. 331, 74 S. W. 530.

Failure of owner of certificate for the entry of public lands to make written entry or application describing the land applied for held a mere irregularity, which does not invalidate the location and survey made by the surveyor. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 607.

21. — Lifting certificate.—Where land certificates were not located until after the time allowed from the locator's entry, the certificates could not afterwards be lifted and relocated on other land. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Under the statute, an order authorizing the lifting of a certificate of location of school land held void. Talley v. Lamar County, 104 T. 295, 137 S. W. 1125.

22. — Transfers and contracts.—Conveyance by one who has made entry vests title in grantee on issuance of patent. Morgan v. Baker (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 27.

The act of December 21, 1837, provided that the lands thereby granted should not be subject to a sale or alienation, mortgage or execution during the lifetime of the person to whom such warrant or patent shall be granted. This only restrained sale or alienation during the lifetime of the grantee, but he could devise or bequeath the land as any other property owned by him. Ames v. Hubby, 49 T. 705. And see Todd v. Masterton, 61 T. 618, as to the construction of various acts granting lands to soldiers.

The equities of the locator of a land certificate who locates without contract with the owner do not extend to fixing a right in the land secured by location to a lien upon it for his compensation. Grimes v. Smith, 70 T. 217, 8 S. W. 33.

The purchaser of a certificate with knowledge of a prior partial location cannot locate the remainder for his exclusive benefit, even where the first location was without knowledge of his grantors. Estell v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 8.

When confederate land scrip has been located, and the land surveyed, the scrip becomes merged in the land, though no patent has issued, and a deed to the land passes title. Watts v. Bruce, 31 C. A. 347, 72 S. W. 253.

Evidence held to show the execution of a locative contract, the performance thereof, and to establish equitable title in defendants. Logan v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 395.

A pre-emptioner after having fulfilled all the statutory requirements for a patent can only convey his interest by an instrument in writing. Wilson v. Nugent (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 241.

A written transfer of a certificate after the location of public land thereunder operates as an equitable transfer of the land so located. Alford Bros. & Whiteside v. Williams, 41 C. A. 436, 91 S. W. 636.

Prior to the location of a public land certificate, the rights of the holder thereunder may be transferred by parol. Id.

Actual knowledge by a subsequent locator of the previous location by another precludes him from deriving any advantage from the fact that the surveyor's office contained no evidence thereof at the date of the subsequent location. Waterhouse v. Corbett, 43 C. A. 512, 96 S. W. 651.

The location and survey of public land held to separate the land from the public domain so far as the right of the locator to sell was concerned. Sims v. Sealy, 53 C. A. 518, 116 S. W. 630.

A location under a land certificate by the administrator of the original holder who had transferred it was not void, but inured to the benefit of the transferee. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Toler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1111.

23. — Priorities.—In 1838 a conditional certificate for 640 acres of land was issued to K., and located by him in R. county. An unconditional certificate was afterwards issued to him and located in P. county subsequent to the passage of the act of August 30, 1856 (Laws 1856, c. 145, § 2; Rev. St. 1895, art. 4134). The field notes of the surveys for both locations were duly returned to and filed in the land office. Subsequently a duplicate certificate was issued, reciting the loss of the unconditional certificate, and under this certificate the land in controversy was located. There was no evidence of any abandonment of the location in R. county. Held, that the first location exhausted the right of the holder to appropriate public land, and the subsequent locations were void. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Toler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1111.

Even if the location under the original certificate was abandoned, the location under the duplicate certificate was void, since that made under the unconditional certificate in P. county being valid, the act of 1856 (Laws 1856, c. 145, § 2; Rev. St. 1895, art. 4134) expressly prohibited the lifting or floating of the certificate and its subsequent location upon other land. Id.

A prior location, followed by the statutory diligence in making survey and returning the field-notes, is an appropriation of the land against any claim having its inception subsequent to such date. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. McGehee, 49 T. 481; Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153. It cannot be prejudiced by any subsequent wrongful or fraudulent act of the surveyor. Hughes v. Perry, 21 T. 778.

A junior location will support a patent except as against a prior title. Gullett v. O'Connor, 54 T. 408; Thompson v. Johnson, 2 U. C. 258.

A patent issued on a junior location is voidable at the suit of the party having the prior right, but is valid as to all other persons. Gullett v. O'Connor, 54 T. 409; League v. Rogan, 59 T. 427; De Court v. Sproul, 66 T. 368, 1 S. W. 337.

As against a junior locator with notice that a survey upon a prior location was actually made in the field, the certificate of the surveyor failing to show that fact, it may be shown by parol. The failure or refusal of the commissioner of the general land office to patent on such defective certificate cannot affect its validity. Holmes v. Anderson, 59 T. 481.

The relocation of a certificate under article 4136, Rev. St. 1895, does not affect a prior location duly made on the land by another. De La Garza v. Cassin, 72 T. 440, 10 S. W. 539.

A survey prior in point of time, in the absence of equities, confers a prior right. Mohler v. Welge (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 850.

24. Homestead donations under former law.—See Roberts v. Trout, 13 C. A. 70, 85 S. W. 323; Votaw v. Pettigrew, 15 C. A. 87, 38 S. W. 215. See, also, Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

A contract for the joint acquisition of title to vacant land is neither within our statute of frauds nor against public policy. Such contract can be enforced by partition of such lands. Such rights can attach to the land when acquired subject to any burden, legal or equitable, upon it at the time of its occupancy as homestead. A contract to acquire land to be used as homestead does not require the assent of the wife, and it will be enforced without her aid or consent, even after its occupancy as the homestead. Reed v. Howard, 71 T. 204, 9 S. W. 109.

The state may exercise such supervisory control as may be necessary to enforce the performance of the trust upon which the land is donated, but it cannot by legislation divert its use to other and different parties and purposes than those contemplated when it was originally granted. Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153; Milam County v. Blake, 54 T. 169; Palo Pinto County v. Gano, 60 T. 249.

When the application of the established rules by which the true location of the boundary of a grant leads to contrary results or confusion, that rule must be adopted which is most consistent with the intention on the face of the grant, read in the light of all the surrounding facts and circumstances. Lilly v. Blum, 70 T. 704, 6 S. W. 279; Meade v. Blum Land Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 298.

One residing temporarily on land does not acquire a pre-emption right. Jones v. Hart (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 704.

This article when construed in the light of sections 2, 4, and 5 of article 7 of the constitution of 1876, does not embrace the public free school lands. T. C. Ry. Co. v. Bowman (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 556.

Patent of land as a homestead donation held not subject to collateral attack by defendant in action of trespass to try title brought by the patentee to recover certain other lands. Carter v. Clifton, 44 C. A. 132, 93 S. W. 209.

The persons intended by a state grant to the heirs of a certain person are those who would have inherited the right granted had it existed at his death. Waterman v. Charlton, 102 T. 510, 120 S. W. 171.

When a legislative grant is not made in discharge of some obligation of the government that the law would recognize, the grant is not in a legal sense anything but an act of sovereign grace and a pure donation. Sherman v. Pickering, 56 C. A. 633, 121 S. W. 536.

One cannot acquire the right to a quarter section of state land as a homestead by having others than himself or his assignee actually occupy the land for him, so that one who attempted to do so could not establish an equitable title in himself, as against one to whom the patent was issued as the actual occupant. Rogers v. Blackshear (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 938.

25. — Application.—This article was intended to protect land from location by another for the period of 30 days after its occupancy or settlement by one intending to pre-empt it begins. It was intended for the benefit of the occupant seeking a homestead donation, and was never intended to prohibit the occupant from making his application for land at any time after the expiration of the 30 days, if no location made by a third party intervened. Gammage v. Powell, 61 T. 629.

A location by virtue of a land certificate upon land occupied by a pre-emption settler, after the expiration of 30 days from his occupancy, and before the application of the settler for land, interposes no bar to the subsequent application of the settler. Id.

That application was not made for the land by the pre-emptor within 30 days after his settlement is immaterial, where the application was made before any other valid claim attached to it. McCarthy v. Gomez, 85 T. 10, 19 S. W. 999.

An application made for a homestead donation in the name of the wife, but made by the husband for a homestead for the family, is not invalid because not made in name of the husband. Id.

The application must be made within the time prescribed by the statute. Jones v. Hart (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 704.

26. — Affidavit.—The affidavit is not evidence against one claiming the land adversely. Jones v. Hart (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 704.

The acts of January 27, 1845, February 13, 1854, and November 12, 1866, and Rev. St. 1895, art. 4163, are substantially the same, and if the required affidavit is not made the survey would not be valid. Miller v. Moss, 65 T. 179.

Issuance of patent on false affidavits of occupancy of land claimed as homestead donation held not to defeat the equity of another, who took steps to acquire the land as a homestead donation. Drinkard v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 198.

27. — Survey.—The lowest grade, course or distance is made to prevail over the highest grade, when, upon applying the calls of the grant to the land, the surrounding and connected circumstances adduced in proof to explain the discrepancy show that course or distance is the most certain and reliable evidence of the true locality of the grant. Booth v. Strippleman, 26 T. 441; Stafford v. King, 30 T. 257, 94 Am. Dec. 304; Davis v. Smith, 61 T. 21; Fagan v. Stoner, 67 T. 287, 3 S. W. 44; Booth v. Upshur, 26 T. 70; Bigham v. McDowell, 69 T. 100, 7 S. W. 315.

To avoid the forfeiture under this article the settler must show a legal excuse for the failure to record and return the field-notes. Taylor v. Criswell, 4 C. A. 106, 23 S. W. 424.

A survey may be made after the expiration of the time if no other rights intervene. Truehart v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 842.

Where a homestead donee, after completing the three years' occupancy, removes therefrom without filing proof in the land office of his performance of conditions, another person, in good faith relocating the same, will take a good title from the state. Gallup v. Thacker, 103 T. 310, 126 S. W. 1120.

Neither one who failed to apply for a survey of pre-empted land and failed to return the field notes to the General Land Office within the time required by Rev. St. 1895, art. 4171, nor his grantees acquired any preference right to the land. Cook v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 716.

Grant which did not describe land so it could be identified or specify any particular quantity held void for uncertainty. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

28. — Occupation and abandonment.—A fair construction of this act authorizes a sale of an incomplete occupation by a pre-emptor of a homestead, and will allow the time of occupancy of the original settler and his assignee to be added together in computing three years. Palmer v. Chandler, 47 T. 332; Houston v. Dickson, 66 T. 79, 1 S. W. 375; Johnson v. Townsend, 77 T. 639, 14 S. W. 233.

To obtain 160 acres of land as a pre-emption, it must be settled upon and occupied by a family. When the family has for its head a husband and wife, the right to the land results from their joint settlement and labor, and is community property. The fact that settlement upon public land was made by a woman and her husband after the wife had, from her own means and before marriage, paid the surveyor's fees will not deprive the property of its community character, when the husband and wife resided on the land in compliance with law until the title issued. Mills v. Brown, 69 T. 244, 6 S. W. 612.

A homestead donation is lost by a failure to occupy it. Garrett v. Weaver, 70 T. 463, 7 S. W. 766; McCarthy v. Gomez, 85 T. 10, 19 S. W. 999; Jones v. Hart (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 704. See Yochum v. McCurdy, 39 S. W. 210.

The occupation referred to must be of land titled or equitably owned. And such occupation must be of the owner or some person holding for him, and not a mere occupant without claim of right. Paston v. Blanks, 77 T. 330, 14 S. W. 67. See Yochum v. McCurdy (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 210.

One residing temporarily on land does not acquire a pre-emption right. Jones v. Hart (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 704.

Where a single man settled on land for the purpose of acquiring it as a homestead donation, and did everything necessary to that end except to file in the land office evidence that he had done so, his right and title did not become such as to prevent the state from disregarding it after he removed therefrom, and ceased to comply with the law as a basis for a grant. Gallup v. Thacker, 103 T. 310, 126 S. W. 1120.

One cannot acquire the right to a quarter section of state land as a homestead by having others than himself or his assignee actually occupy the land for him for the time required by law, so that one who attempted to do so could not establish an equitable title in himself as against one to whom the patent was issued as the actual occupant. Rogers v. Blackshear (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 938.

29. — Settlement.—A failure to make settlement upon land claimed as homestead pre-emption, or to occupy the same, will result in a forfeiture of the right of such claimant. Garrett v. Weaver, 70 T. 463, 7 S. W. 766. This forfeiture may be taken advantage of by another pre-emptor who is an actual settler, for the land became vacant by such forfeiture. McCarthy v. Gomez, 85 T. 10, 19 S. W. 999.

Facts showing a settlement on a homestead donation sufficient to defeat a subsequent patent. Traylor v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 241; Busk v. Lowrie (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 414.

The applicant must be an actual settler in good faith on the land. Busk v. Lowrie, 86 T. 128, 23 S. W. 983; Martin v. McCarty, 74 T. 128, 10 S. W. 221; Luckie v. Watt, 77 T. 262, 13 S. W. 1035.

As to who is an actual settler, see Jones v. Hart (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 704.

30. — Transfer.—Two settlers on vacant land agreed, before a survey was made, on a dividing line, on the faith of which both improved their respective selections. One to whom the land was afterwards patented, and who had notice of the agreements concerning it, cannot recover from the first purchaser the land on which he has his improvements, and which he was to have by the agreements concerning the division line, survey and patent. Mitchell v. Nix, 1 U. C. 126.

A fair construction of this act authorizes a sale of an incomplete occupation by a pre-emptor of a homestead, and will allow the time of occupancy of the original settler and his assignee to be added together in computing three years. Palmer v. Chandler, 47 T. 332; Houston v. Dickson, 66 T. 79, 1 S. W. 375; Johnson v. Townsend, 77 T. 639, 14 S. W. 233.

A deed in writing is not essential to the transfer of a pre-emption claim. A verbal sale to a purchaser who immediately becomes the occupant is sufficient. Hickman v. Withers, 83 T. 575, 19 S. W. 138.

Under the statute prohibiting the alienation of land, located by virtue of a donation warrant, during the lifetime of the grantee, a lease for 99 years constitutes an alienation in violation of the statute, and is void. Overby v. Johnston, 42 C. A. 348, 94 S. W. 131.

Const. art. 14, § 6, gives to every head of a family without a homestead 160 acres of public land on condition that he locate and occupy the same three years. Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4170, provides that no assignment of a homestead donation right by the occupant or settler before the patent has been obtained shall be valid unless by deed duly authenticated as required by law. Held, that the statute contemplated the assignment of an occupant's homestead claim, and, upon three years of continuous occupancy, the settler or his assignee has a vested right in the equitable fee-simple ownership, and may demand a patent investing him with legal title. Phillips v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 319.

31. Grants to railroads.—A railroad held entitled to no land grant, it being prohibited by Const. 1869, art. 10, § 6. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State, 90 T. 607, 40 S. W. 402.

Where a filing on railroad lands was made, and thereafter a survey was made and field notes returned within the prescribed time, the filing gave a right prior to a grant made by the state after the filing, but before the survey. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State, 24 C. A. 117, 56 S. W. 238.

Location of railroad certificates on certain lands subject to the prior location of certificates by another road held valid. Raoul v. Terrell, 99 T. 157, 87 S. W. 1146.

Where a railroad company was chartered in 1866, and authorized to condemn private property for a right of way, it was impliedly authorized to construct its line over the public domain. Ayres v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 39 C. A. 561, 88 S. W. 436.

Where a grant of a right of way to a railroad in public lands rested upon a condition subsequent, failure to perform such condition did not revoke the grant, but merely authorized a forfeiture by judicial proceedings or legislative act. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Western Stockyards Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1172.

32. Rights and liabilities of purchaser from city.—A purchaser of land from a city having the absolute power of sale held not required to see that the proceeds of such sale are properly applied in accordance with the purposes for which the land was held. Board of School Trustees of City of San Antonio v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 147.

Article 5280. [4042] General land office established.—There shall be one general land office, which shall be at the seat of government, where all land titles which have emanated, or may hereafter emanate, from the state shall be registered, except those titles the registration of which may be prohibited by the constitution. [Id. sec. 1.]

Historical.—The present land system was substantially established by the act of December 22, 1836 (1st Cong., p. 216), and December 14, 1837 (2d Cong., p. 62). By the fourteenth article of the plans and powers of the provisional government of Texas, land commissioners, empresarios, or persons in anywise concerned in the location of land under the laws of Mexico or Coahuila and Texas, were ordered to cease their operations and desist from further locations until the land offices were established. The act of the consultation closing the land offices took effect November 13, 1835. Constitution of Republic, General Provisions, § 10; Constitution of 1845, art. 7, § 21; Constitution of 1876, art. 13, § 5; Jones v. Menard, 1 T. 785; Donaldson v. Dodd, 12 T. 381; Edgar v. Galveston City Co., 21 T. 302; Parker v. Bains, 59 T. 15.

The general land office was not practically opened until some time in 1844. Dobbin v. Bryan, 5 T. 276; State v. Delesdenier, 7 T. 76; Emmons v. Oldham, 12 T. 18; All transfers of certificates on file in the general land office are archives. Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155.

Salary of commissioner.—See Title 120, Chapter 1.

Removal of commissioner.—See notes under Title 98, Chapter 1.

Papers, maps and field-notes.—A paper is deemed to have been filed in the general land office only when it shall have been delivered into the custody of the commissioner, or of some one appointed by him under law to receive it, to be kept in its proper place for the inspection of parties interested. Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 487.

An indorsement made in the general land office on the field-notes of a survey of its illegality cannot affect legal rights. Thomson v. Railway Co., 68 T. 392, 4 S. W. 629.

Art. 5281. [4043] Commissioner to have custody of books, etc.—The commissioner of the general land office shall have custody and control of all books, records, papers, maps and original documents appertaining to the titles of lands heretofore and by the provisions of the law denominated archives; and the said books, records, papers and original documents shall become and be deemed the books and papers of said office. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 71.]

See Title 8; Sayles' Early Laws, arts. 2255, 3486; Act Aug. 15, 1870, 12th Leg., S. S., p. 201; State v. De Leon, 64 T. 553; Garza v. State, Id. 670; Elliott's Adm'r v. Mitchell, 47 T. 445.

Custody.—Where the testimony showed that the county clerk's office of a county was the place where original ancient grants of land had been kept and recorded since the day of the republic, and a witness testified that more than 30 years before when he was deputy county clerk, he had found an original grant in the archives of the office, and another witness testified that he got the original grant from the office of the county clerk, and that the county clerk authorized the witness to bring the document into court, the original grant was properly received in evidence, though under Act Dec. 22, 1836, the commissioner of the general land office was entitled to the custody of the grant, since the fact that such custody was not obtained did not effect the validity of the grant, or render it inadmissible by a party claiming under it. Flores v. Hovel (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 606.

Art. 5282. [4044] Night watchman.—The said commissioner is hereby authorized to employ one night watchman for the general land office, at a salary not to exceed six hundred dollars per annum. [Act Feb. 27, 1875, p. 56.]

See Art. 4410.

Art. 5283. Papers to be kept in land office, how.—The commissioner shall adopt the most convenient method for filing papers and preserving the records of said office; provided, a list of all papers in each file shall be retained in the file, and each employé who files a paper shall place his own name thereon. [Acts 1909, p. 429, sec. 6.]

Art. 5284. [4045] Examination of papers, etc., permitted, when.—Any one desirous to examine any of the papers, records or files in the general land office shall first obtain the consent of the commissioner, or the chief clerk, in writing so to do, and an order for the detail of a clerk of said office to be present and superintend such examination. [Act June 2, 1873, p. 180. P. D. 7099kk.]

Commissioner's discretion.—To the commissioner of the general land office is committed the discretion of permitting anyone to examine the papers, files, and records in the general land office, and the supreme court has no power to compel him to give his consent to such examination. This article and Art. 5285 prescribe the manner in which persons may be allowed to examine the records in the land office. Anderson v. Rogan, 93 T. 182, 54 S. W. 242.

Art. 5285. [4048] Clerk to examine papers after, etc.—After an examination is made, the clerk in charge of same shall carefully examine the papers of said file and see that they are all in place. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 7099mm.]

Art. 5286. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5288. shall reside in the county and keep his office at the county seat, who shall hold his office for two years and until his successor may be elected and qualified. [Const., art. 16, sec. 44. Act Jan. 26, 1858, p. 199. Act Aug. 19, 1876.]

Surveyor de facto.—To constitute a de facto officer he must have such colorable right to the office, the duties of which he undertakes to discharge, as might induce the public to suppose without inquiry that he is de jure the officer. The surveyor of one county, who, as such, assumes in violation of statute to make surveys in another county in which another officer is alone empowered to make surveys, cannot be de facto the surveyor of such other county, even though his acts as such be generally acquiesced in and sanctioned by the commissioner of the general land office. Cox v. Railway Co., 68 T. 226, 4 S. W. 455.

Scope of powers.—The district surveyor of one county was not authorized to make the surveys in another county, where that county at that time was attached to a different land district than that to which the surveyor belonged. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. De Berry, 34 C. A. 180, 78 S. W. 736.

Art. 5301. [4069] Oath and bond required.—Before entering upon his duties, the county surveyor shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall enter into bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court of the county, in such sum as may be fixed by such commissioners' court, not to be less than five hundred dollars nor more than ten thousand dollars payable to the governor and his successors in office, conditioned that he will faithfully perform all of the duties of his office, which bond shall be deposited and recorded in the county clerk's office of the county. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 1081, 4522. Amended Acts 1897, p. 26.]

Art. 5302. [4070] Commissioners' court to fill vacancy.—Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of county or district surveyor in any of the counties, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of the county in which such vacancy occurs to fill by appointment such vacancy, such appointment to continue in force until the next general election. In the event such commissioners' court shall fail to appoint a person to fill such vacancy, or if they shall appoint a person to fill same and he shall fail to qualify and act as such surveyor, then any county or district surveyor of the nearest county or district to such county, who may be accessible and willing to act shall be authorized to do surveying in such county, and for his services he shall be entitled to receive the same fees and compensation as are now provided by law for county and district surveyors, and such surveyor shall be subject to the same law as is now applicable to county and district surveyors for the faithful performance of their duties. In making a survey under the provisions hereof, said surveyor shall make out and return said field-notes in the manner and form as required under article 5336, but he shall sign the field-notes officially, as the surveyor of his own county or district, and also cause to be attached to said field-notes, so made by him, a certificate of the county clerk of proper county, to the fact that there is no qualified surveyor of such county. [Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 219. Amended Acts 1905, p. 371.]

Art. 5303. [4071] Duties of county surveyor.—Each county surveyor shall receive and examine all field-notes of surveys which have been, or may hereafter be, made in said county, and upon which patents are to be obtained, and shall certify to the same according to law, and shall record such field-notes in a book to be kept by him for that purpose; and he shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by law. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4522.]

Art. 5304. [4072] Surveyor to report to commissioners' court as to inclosed school lands.—It shall be the duty of the surveyor of each county to make a report to the county commissioners' court on the first Monday in June each year of the number of sections of public school lands in his county inclosed during the past year, and the names of the person or persons controlling such inclosed lands, and the number of sections controlled by him or them respectively. [Acts 1879, p. 101.]

Art. 5305. [4073] Shall record all field-notes in his district.—The surveyors of the several counties of this state shall record in a well-bound book all the surveys in the county or district for which he was elected, with the plats thereof that he may make, whether private or official; and such record shall be open to the inspection of the public: for which service the surveyor may charge, in addition to the fees now allowed by law for field work, twenty cents per hundred words for such record. [Acts 1881, p. 71.]

Filing field-notes.—Filing of field-notes in the district surveyor's office was not essential to an appropriation of school lands. Elwood, Arnett & Arnett v. Copeland (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 146.

Art. 5306. [4074] Shall plat surveys upon map, etc.—It shall be the duty of every district, county and special county surveyor, once in every three months, to plat upon the map of his district or county all surveys made to that date within the three preceding months, and transmit sketches and field-notes of same to the commissioner of the general land office, together with a list of all land certificates or warrants on file in his office, giving the number, date and quantity in acres of each, stating by whom and to whom the same purports to have been issued, and when and by whom filed; and any surveyor failing or refusing to comply with the provisions of this article shall be subject to a fine of five hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered by the state before the district court on complaint of any party aggrieved, or of the proper county or district attorney, whose duty it shall be to prosecute all such suits. A certificate from a postmaster certifying that a letter or package containing the returns herein provided for was mailed in his office, addressed to the commissioner of the general land office, shall be evidence of the fact in any suit against a surveyor under this article. [Act Jan. 26, 1858. P. D. 1087.]

See Stout v. Taul, 71 T. 438, 9 S. W. 329.

Contents of certificate.—The failure in the officers of the land office to delineate upon the maps in the office a grant on file in its archives will not affect such grant in favor of a subsequent location upon which a patent had been issued. Elliott v. Mitchell, 47 T. 445.

Under the statute in force in 1855 (Paschal's Dig. art. 4573), which only required that the surveyor keep a book and register entries for an application for surveys in his county, and that the certificate must be in his hands when he made the survey, and remain in his office until he returned the field notes to the General Land Office, article 1087, which required him once in every three months to plat upon the map of his county all surveys made to that date within the three preceding months, and articles 1088 and 4522, which declared that his books, maps, etc., should be open at all times for inspection, held, that it was not necessary to embody the description of a certificate in the field notes of a survey made under it. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

Art. 5307. [4075] Record books furnished.—The commissioners' courts of the several counties shall furnish the county surveyors of their respective counties with the necessary books of record pertaining thereto. [Act March 9, 1875. Act Feb. 2, 1860. P. D. 1089.]

Art. 5308. [4076] Deputies appointed; oath and bond required, etc.—The county or district surveyor shall appoint as many deputy surveyors as he may deem necessary for the county or district, and shall administer to them the oath of office, and take the bond hereinafter prescribed, and shall furnish them such instructions as may be furnished to him from time to time by the commissioner of the general land office; and such deputy surveyor, before he enters upon the duties of his office, shall enter into bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court, in the sum of five thousand dollars, payable to the governor and his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, which bond shall be deposited and recorded in the clerk's office of the same county; and the county or district surveyor shall immediately report such appointment to the commissioner of the general land office, and state when such deputy entered upon the discharge of the duties of his office. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4522.]

Duties of deputy.—It seems that it is the duty of the deputy surveyors to do the field work; there is no statute which makes it the duty of the principal surveyor to do such work. Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335.

Liability for fees.—See Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335.

Individual interest in purchase of public lands.—See State v. Thompson, 64 T. 690.

Art. 5309. [4077] Chain carriers and markers.—It shall be the duty of each deputy district or county surveyor to administer an oath to each individual employed by him as chain carrier or marker for the faithful performance of his duties as such, in accordance with the instructions given him; and no person under the age of sixteen years shall be employed in either of the above capacities; and, further, it shall be the duty of said deputy to subscribe the name of each of the chain carriers to his field-notes previous to returning the same to the county surveyor. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4523.]

Art. 5310. [4078] Deputy surveyors shall return field-notes.—It shall be the duty of all deputy surveyors to make returns of the field-notes of every survey by them made, within three months after making the survey, to the county or district surveyor for his approval; and any deputy neglecting to do so shall be liable for damages at the suit of any person thereby injured. [Act Feb. 5, 1840. P. D. 4112.]

Filing field notes.—Filing of field notes in the district surveyor's office was not essential to an appropriation of school lands. Elwood, Arnett & Arnett v. Copeland (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 146.

Art. 5311. [4079] County surveyor may do work of deputy.—Any county surveyor may do the work of a practical surveyor, and may also perform all the duties required of a deputy surveyor, and in such case he shall make out, certify to, record and return the field-notes under his own official signature. [Act Dec. 20, 1837.]

Duties of county surveyor.—The county surveyor is not required to do the work of a deputy. Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335.

Art. 5312. [4080] Shall keep a map in his office for inspection.—It shall be the duty of each county or district surveyor to make out and keep in his office, free for the inspection of all persons, a map on which all the surveys made in his county shall be laid down and properly connected; which map shall be corrected at the end of every three months. [Act Feb. 5, 1840.]

Art. 5313. [4081] Duty on change of boundary.—Hereafter, when any change may take place in the boundaries of any county, it shall be the duty of the surveyor of any county from which territory may be so taken, to furnish the surveyor of the county including such territory with a full and complete copy of all the field-notes of surveys made in the same. [Act Feb. 5, 1840.]

Art. 5314. [4082] Contested elections, by what court tried.—Whenever the election of any person to the office of county or district surveyor may be contested, like notice shall be given and proceedings had as in case of contested elections for county officers. When the district is composed of one county, the contest shall be tried in such county, but where the district is composed of more than one county, then such contest shall be tried in the county from which the district takes its name. [Act Feb. 7, 1853.]

Art. 5315. [4083] Their duties, how regulated.—All district surveyors shall be governed in the discharge of their official duties by the same provisions of law which regulate and prescribe the duties of county surveyors so far as the same may be applicable; and, upon their removal from office or at the expiration of their term of office, they shall deliver to their successors all records, books, papers, maps and other things appertaining to the office. [Act May 12, 1846.]

Art. 5316. [4084] Deputy district surveyors.—Each district surveyor shall appoint one or more deputy surveyors, who shall qualify and give bond in manner and form as required of deputy county surveyors, and whose duties shall be the same as those of deputy county surveyors so far as the same may be applicable; and, when such surveyor does the work of surveying in a new county, he shall notify the special county surveyor acting under his direction, and report his work to him to be mapped and noted on his records.

Art. 5317. [4085] Special county surveyor for unorganized county.—It shall be the duty of each district surveyor, within twenty days after his election, to appoint as his deputy a special county surveyor for each unorganized county within his district, who shall hold his office during the term of his principal, unless sooner superseded by the appointment of another as his successor. The district surveyor shall immediately notify the commissioner of the general land office of every such appointment. Each special county surveyor so appointed shall have all the powers, perform all the duties and be subject to all the penalties appertaining to county surveyors, and shall keep, in addition to the returns to be made to his principal, a record and map of all the transactions in his office, to become part of the county surveyor's records of such county whenever it may be organized. All such special county surveyors shall reside and keep their offices in their respective counties, if there be settlements in the same, but if there be no settlements in the county, then at the nearest town to such county. Whenever any county may elect a county surveyor, who shall have qualified and given bond, and who shall have procured the maps and records required by law, the district surveyor within whose district such county may have been, or may be at the time, and his deputy shall cease to exercise any official acts within the same. [Act Jan. 26, 1858. P. D. 1085.]

Status.—Deputy surveyors in unorganized counties attached to surveying districts are mere assistants to the district surveyor, and their appointment does not relieve him from the duty of making surveys in such unorganized counties. Tex. Mex. Ry. Co. v. Locke, 63 T. 623.

Art. 5318. [4086] Deputy surveyor of new county to procure maps.—Deputy surveyors of the several new counties shall procure from the district surveyors of their respective districts, or make out the same, a map of all the surveyed lands situated in the new county to which such deputy may be assigned, which shall be kept in the office of such deputy at the county site, for the inspection of all persons interested. [Act May 11, 1846. P. D. 4276.]

Art. 5319. [4087] Surveys of deputy to be placed on map.—All surveys made by a deputy surveyor in a new county, after being examined and placed upon the map of the district, shall be placed upon the county map. [Id. P. D. 4277.]

Art. 5321. [4089] Special deputies, bond, etc.—The district or county surveyor of any county shall have the power to appoint a special deputy, who shall be empowered to perform all official acts which said district or county surveyor may legally perform; and the said special deputy surveyor, before entering on the discharge of his duties, shall give bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in the sum of five thousand dollars, payable to the governor, for the faithful discharge of the same, which shall be approved by the commissioners' court of the county and filed with the county clerk thereof. [Id. P. D. 1092.]

Art. 5322. [4090] Surveyor not authorized to survey, until, etc.— Any surveyor, elected as provided by law, in a county not previously a separate land district, shall procure a certified map of the surveys in said county, and a certified copy of all files, applications and locations of lands therein from the surveyor's office of the land districts to which said county belonged, and file the same in his office for the inspection of any one interested in examining the same. [Act Jan. 26, 1858.]

Surveyor's noncompliance with law.—The failure of the surveyor to observe the requirements of this article and Arts. 5323 and 5324 will not affect the title of one claiming under an official survey. Tex. Mex. Ry. Co. v. Locke, 63 T. 623.

Art. 5323. [4091] To return field-notes of county boundaries.— When the surveyor shall have complied with the provisions of the preceding article, it shall be his duty immediately to make out and return to the general land office field-notes properly certified to, of the boundaries of such county; and the commissioners' court of said county shall make the necessary provision for paying the expenses thereof. [R. S. 1879.]

Art. 5324. [4092] Transcript to be obtained from land office, when.—Whenever the maps, field-notes of surveys or other records, or any part thereof, of the surveyor's office in any county or land district shall from any cause be lost or destroyed, or when any new county shall organize, or new land district is created, it shall be the duty of such county or district surveyor to obtain from the commissioner of the general land office a transcript of such maps, field-notes of surveys or other records of his office of his county or land district, certified to as required by law, and for obtaining which he shall be entitled to five cents per hundred words, and the state shall be entitled to ten cents per hundred words, to be paid by the commissioners' court of his county; said transcript of records so certified shall answer all the purposes and have the same force and effect in law that the original could have. [Acts 1885, p. 92. Amend. 1895, Sen. Jour., p. 482.]

See note under Art. 5322.

Art. 5325. [4093] Authorized to rent office.—The district and county surveyors are authorized to rent some suitable building or room in which to keep their offices in case the said surveyors can not be provided with offices in the court houses of their respective counties. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 196.]

Art. 5326. [4094] Rent of office, how paid.—The county commissioners' court shall make the necessary arrangement for paying the rent of an office rented by said surveyors, upon satisfactory evidence showing that the rent was reasonable and the office necessary, and that there was no office provided for said surveyors in the court house of their county. [Id.]

Art. 5327. [4095] To have a deputy in office, when.—In all cases where the county surveyors do not reside at the county seats of their respective counties, they shall and are hereby required to have deputies in their respective offices residing at said county seats, who shall keep their offices open and the records thereof subject to the examination of any person interested therein, and who shall have authority to receive and file land certificates or other evidences of right to land, and also to receive and record all files or designations of land to be surveyed. [Act Feb. 25, 1863. P. D. 1093.]

Art. 5328. [4098] Right to examine books, etc.—Any person interested for himself, or as agent or attorney of another, shall at all times have the right to examine the books, papers, plats, maps or other archives belonging to the office of any district, county or special surveyor, on the payment of the fee fixed by law. [Act Jan. 26, 1858. P. D. 1086.]

Art. 5329. [4100] Transcripts, etc., by whom paid for.—The transcripts of records and maps, together with the examination of the same, shall be paid for by the county for the benefit of which they are made, allowing ten cents for every one hundred words in copying said records, and three dollars per day for each day the draftsman may be actually and necessarily engaged in copying maps, as provided by law; and clerks and district surveyors for examining and certifying transcripts of records shall have three dollars per day. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 1078.]

Art. 5330. [4101] Surveyors to establish true meridian, etc.—The district or county surveyors of the several counties, in order to secure uniformity in the courses indicated by the different surveyors' compasses or other instruments used within their several jurisdictions, shall, in some convenient place at their respective county seats, establish a true meridian by a substantial monument, to be erected at the expense of the county, and shall adjust, or cause to be adjusted, to the said meridian all such instruments before being used within their respective jurisdictions, and shall keep in their offices a standard chain of the true measurement of ten varas, to which all chains used by themselves or their deputies shall be adjusted before being used in the measurement of lines of surveys. [Act June 2, 1873, p. 173. P. D. 7099sss.]

Art. 5331. [4102] Responsible for neglect or failure, etc.—All surveyors shall be held responsible to parties interested for any cost that may accrue in rectifying any errors that may occur in their work by reason of neglect or failure to comply with the requirements of the preceding article. [Id. P. D. 7099ttt.]

Art. 5332. [4103] Shall turn over records, etc.—Upon the removal from office, or at the expiration of the term of office, of any county or district surveyor, he shall deliver to his successor all records, books, papers, maps and other things appertaining to his office. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 4525.]

Historical.—Sayles' Civ. St. 1889, art. 3868, legalized the election of county surveyors on February 15, 1876, and confirmed their official acts.

Art. 5333. [4104] County clerk shall take charge of books, etc., when.—Whenever an organized county from any cause has not a qualified county surveyor, the county clerk of such county is hereby required to take charge of all records, maps and papers belonging to the county surveyor's office and safely keep the same in his office. [Act Oct. 18, 1866, p. 31.]

Art. 5334. [4105] Surveyor's records may be transcribed.—Whenever the county commissioners' court of any county shall deem the same necessary, they shall order the surveyor's records to be transcribed in good and substantial books, in a plain hand, by the surveyor or special deputies sworn to make true copies of the same, for which services they shall be allowed not more than ten cents per hundred words, to be paid out of the county treasury. [Act Nov. 6, 1871, p. 18.]

Article 5335. [4142] What authorizes a survey.—All surveys shall be made by authority of law, and by a county, district or deputy surveyor duly appointed or elected and qualified.

See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

Art. 5336. [4144] Field-notes shall describe what.—The field-notes of every survey shall state—

1. The county or land district in which the land is situated.
2. The authority under or by virtue of which it is made, giving a true description of same.
3. The land by proper field-notes with the necessary calls and connections for identification (observing the Spanish measurement by varas).
4. A diagram of the survey.
5. The variation at which the running was made.
6. It shall show the names of the chain carriers.
7. It shall be dated and signed by the surveyor.
8. The correctness of the survey, and that it was made according to law, shall be certified to officially by the surveyor who made the same; and also that such survey was actually made in the field, and that the field-notes have been duly recorded, giving book and page.
9. When the survey has been made by a deputy, the county or district surveyor shall certify officially that he has examined the field-notes, has found them correct, and that they are duly recorded, giving book and page of record.

See Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

Field notes.—The survey of certain tracts was not actually made by the surveyor; the calls began at an object stated by course and distance from a certain corner of survey 146, which was actually established on the ground; the objects called for were the same objects designated as the corners of certain grants actually located at different places, but so represented on the maps that the calls for objects at their corners were proper for corners of the surveys made. Held, if the corner of a survey was actually established on the ground, or could be established from other calls, the true position of the tracts designated can be established. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Thompson, 65 T. 186

The statute in force in 1855 (Paschal's Dig. art. 4573) only required that the surveyor keep a book and register entries for an application for surveys in his county, and that the certificate must be in his hands when he made the survey, and remain in his office until he returned the field-notes to the general land office. Art. 1087 required him once in every three months to plat upon the map of his county all surveys made to that date within the three preceding months, and arts. 1086 and 4522 declared that his books, maps, etc., should be open at all times for inspection. Held, that it was not necessary to embody the description of a certificate in the field-notes of a survey made under it. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

The term "field-notes" in its ordinary sense means the notes made by the surveyor in the field while making a survey, describing by course and distance, and by natural or artificial marks found or made by him, where he ran the lines and made the corners. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

Presumptions as to survey.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Requisites and sufficiency of surveys.—No rights can be acquired under a legislative ratification of an illegal survey as against an intervening survey legally made before the passage of the act. Cox v. Railway Co., 68 T. 226, 4 S. W. 455.

Failure of surveyor of public lands to conform to description embraced in the entry and application held a mere irregularity, not invalidating the surveys. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 607.

Description or field-notes of land intended to be mortgaged in application for loan held not essential to validity of mortgage, so that the fact that at time it was signed by the applicant it contained no description, and that a description and field-notes were afterwards inserted, is immaterial. Pickett v. Gleed, 39 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

A description in field-notes of a survey of public lands held sufficient, so that holders of other certificates were estopped to deny notice thereof. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

Where field-notes of a survey of public land contained the words "also by virtue of the same certificate," held, that the description in the field-notes of 708,578 sq. vs. was also contained in the description of 8,676,872 sq. vs. Id.

Where a patent has been issued on an office survey alone, the land granted may not be identified on the ground by maps subsequently made, where more conclusive proof is in existence. Finberg v. Gilbert, 104 T. 539, 141 S. W. 82.

The court in determining the location of land in a patent, where there has been an insufficient survey, held required to ascertain the intention of the parties gathered from the grant in the light of the acts constituting the survey. Id.

A surveyor of a grant of public lands held required to make a survey sufficient to locate and identify it as actually made on the ground. Id.

A grant of public land held not invalid because of the failure of the surveyor to make a proper survey; but, where the survey is defective, the grant must be located by a survey made in conformity with the calls as reported by the surveyor. Id.

Evidence held to require a finding that a survey was improperly located, and that a ruling of the land office rejecting it for that reason was proper. Lucas v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1109.

Surveys to be returned in twelve months—Former law.—See Hart v. Gibbons, 14 T. 215; Sherwood v. Fleming, 25 T. Sup. 428; Smith v. Taylor, 34 T. 607; McKinney v. Grassmeyer, 51 T. 376; Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 487; Cassin v. O'Sullivan, 61 T. 594; Garza v. Cassin, 72 T. 442, 10 S. W. 539; Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58; Duren v. Ry. Co., 86 T. 291, 24 S. W. 258; Threadgill v. Bickerstaff, 87 T. 520, 29 S. W. 757; New York & T. Land Co. v. Gardner, 11 C. A. 404, 32 S. W. 786; Illies v. Freichs, 11 C. A. 512, 32 S. W. 915.

Art. 5337. [4146] Copy obtained on loss of original field-notes.—When the original field-notes of any survey made by authority of law shall have been heretofore, or may be hereafter, lost or destroyed, it shall be lawful for the party who owned the same, or his agent, on making affidavit of the loss or destruction of such field-notes and filing the same in the office of the county or district surveyor, to apply to such surveyor of the county where the survey was made and recorded and obtain from him a certified copy of the record thereof, which copy shall be as valid and efficient in law as the original was, and shall secure to the party all the rights before the commissioner of the general land office that the original would have done. [Id. P. D. 4552.]

Art. 5338. [4147] Surveys on navigable streams.—All lands surveyed for individuals, lying on navigable water courses, shall front one-half of the square on the water course and the line running at right angles with the general course of the stream, if circumstances of lines previously surveyed under the laws will permit; and all streams, so far as they retain an average width of thirty feet, shall be considered navigable streams within the meaning hereof, and they shall not be crossed by the lines of any survey. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4529.]

See Shaw v. Schuch (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 688.

Legality.—A survey extending across a navigable stream is illegal. N. Y. & Texas Land Co. v. Thomson, 83 T. 169, 17 S. W. 920.

The statute is merely directory, and, though a stream was within the statutory definition, the fact that a line of a survey crossed it would not render the survey illegal or void. Bunnell v. Sugg (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 701.

Under this article, held, that a contention that a survey is void on account of crossing a navigable stream is not available against a patent issued by the state on the part of one claiming under a junior grant. Id.

Grantee's title.—Navigability of waters is a question for the jury. Jones v. Johnson, 6 C. A. 262, 25 S. W. 650.

Where a survey borders on a lake, a strip extending into the water beyond a straight line called for by the surveyor held a part of such survey. Bland v. Smith (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 49.

There is no difference in the effect of a grant fronting a navigable stream and one fronting on a stream declared by statute to be navigable because of its width, and the locator's title extends only to the water mark and title to the channel of the stream remains in the state. City of Austin v. Hall, 93 T. 591, 57 S. W. 564.

Public rights.—Under this article the public would have a right to the use of streams more than 3½ feet in width as navigable public highways whenever they have sufficient water for such purpose. Orange Lumber Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 604.

Art. 5339. [4148] Surveys shall be in a square.—All surveys not made upon navigable water courses shall be in a square, so far as lines previously surveyed will permit. [Id.]

Art. 5340. [4150] Notice to settlers.—It shall be the duty of the surveyor in all cases, before he runs a division line between two settlers or occupants claiming lands, to notify in writing the parties interested before running the same; and any survey which may be made contrary to the true intent and meaning of this article shall not be a lawful one. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4528.]

Art. 5341. [4151] Trial as to disputed line before justice of the peace.—When two or more persons can not agree to a division line of any land which has never been surveyed agreeably to law, it shall be lawful for either party to apply to any justice of the county or territory in which the land lies, or if there be no justice of the peace in the county or territory, then to the nearest justice in any county or territory, and make oath that he has tried and has not been able to settle the dispute between himself and one or more other persons (naming them) concerning a division line; and the said justice shall issue a warrant to any lawful officer to summon the party or parties defendant, together with six disinterested jurors, to meet upon the premises in dispute, together with such witnesses as either party may choose to have summoned, to give evidence on a certain day, naming at what time and place; the justice shall also meet the parties, examine all the testimony before the jury, who shall on oath hear and determine the case in dispute, and shall also determine who shall pay the costs of suit; each juror in such case shall be allowed two dollars per day for such services, the other officers, such fees as have already been established by law for other similar services; provided, that, if the land in dispute shall be on a county line, it shall be lawful for a justice of either county in which part of the land may be to act in such case; and in case either party be dissatisfied with the decision they shall have the right to appeal to the county court within ten days upon giving bond and security for the costs. [Id. P. D. 4527.]

Art. 5342. [4152] When surveys void.—All surveys represented upon the maps of the general land office, the field-notes of which shall not be returned to the general land office, under the provisions of this chapter, and for which there are no titles on file in said office, shall be null and void, and be stricken from the maps of said office, when it is made to appear to the commissioner of the general land office, by the certificate of the county clerk of the county in which the land is situated, that there is no title to said survey on record in said county, and by the affidavits of two credible citizens of said county that the said land is not occupied by the owner nor by some person holding for him. [Acts 1885, p. 50.]

See Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58.

Art. 5343. [4153] Liability for failing to survey.—If any district or county surveyor shall fail, neglect or refuse, when the amount of lawful surveying fees of any location of land may be tendered to him by any person legally entitled to the survey, to make or cause the survey of the same to be made within one month of the time of the tender to him of said surveying fees, he and his sureties shall be liable on his official bond to the party or parties legally entitled to the same, in the amount of damages or injury said party or parties may sustain by reason of such neglect, refusal or failure, to be recovered before any competent tribunal. [Id. P. D. 4569.]

See Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335.

Art. 5344. [4154] Field-notes to be sent back for correction, when.—If, upon examination of the field-notes of a survey in the general land office, they are found to be incorrect, it shall be the duty of the commissioners to cause a plain statement of the errors, with a sketch of the map, to be forwarded by mail, or by the party interested, to the surveyor who made the survey, with a requisition to correct the same and return corrected field-notes to the general land office. [Act Oct. 24, 1871, p. 11. P. D. 7091.]

See Tarleton v. Kilpatrick, 1 C. A. 107, 21 S. W. 405.

Correction.—The commissioner of the general land office being charged with the duty of correcting surveys and field-notes (9 Gammel's Gen. Laws, p. 107) corrected field-notes of surveys approved and adopted by such commissioner identifying the land claimed by plaintiff under his patent, constitutes a prima facie case in his favor. Finberg v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 979.

Where changes in field-notes as they were originally made were made after the rights of parties contesting the survey had become fixed, such rights could not be affected by the changes. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

Art. 5345. [4155] The same corrected and returned, how.—It is hereby made the duty of surveyors who shall have made and delivered incorrect field-notes, upon the requisition of the commissioner of the general land office, provided for in the preceding article, or of the party interested, to make corrected field-notes and return the same to the general land office without delay and without any additional compensation. [Id. P. D. 7092.]

Art. 5346. [4156] Correction by certificate, when made.—When a conflict of survey does not exist on the ground, but appears only on the maps or in the field-notes, it shall only be required of the surveyor to make an official certificate of the facts and furnish a true sketch of the survey with its connections. [Id.]

See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

Art. 5347. [4261] Commissioner to have surveys made, when.—For the purpose of ascertaining the conflicts and errors in and making proper corrections of surveys of lands made for the common school, university or asylum funds, or other surveys in which the state may be interested, directly or indirectly, in cases where, from discrepancies or imperfections in field-notes, it may become necessary for the proper compilation of maps, or for the proper location and identification of said lands upon the ground, the commissioner of the general land office is hereby invested with full power and authority to have such surveys made as he may deem necessary, and to appoint competent surveyors for this purpose. [Acts 1887, p. 107.]

Resurveys.—Where two surveys appeared to have been contiguous by the record of the original survey, the fact that subsequent resurveys and alterations in the record showed that they were not contiguous did not invalidate the surveys. Barrow v. Gridley, 25 C. A. 13, 59 S. W. 602.

The rule for resurvey by the land commissioner of school lands sold to a purchaser and containing an excess of acreage stated. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 143 S. W. 141.

Correction of surveys.—Evidence held to warrant a finding that the numbers of certain surveys were changed in the land office by the commissioner and orders given to the surveyor to make the same changes in the field notes. Lee v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 868.

Art. 5348. [4262] Bonds, etc.—Any surveyor appointed under the provisions of this law shall make and execute a bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned and payable the same as bonds of county and district surveyors; he shall also take the oath prescribed by the constitution for other officers; said bond to be approved by the commissioner of the general land office and shall be conditioned as other surveyor's bonds. He shall be under the control and direction of the commissioner of the general land office; and, under such direction, may survey the common school, university and asylum lands, or other lands in which the state may be interested, and prepare and return field-notes of same and certify to any and all facts, and generally do and perform such official acts as might lawfully be done by a county or district surveyor, and shall sign his name officially as "state surveyor." [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5349. [4263] May have lands surveyed, when.—The commissioner of the general land office may have any lands belonging to the common school, university or asylum funds, or other lands in which the state may be interested, or lands alternating therewith, surveyed or resurveyed, and field-notes or corrected field-notes of same returned to his office by any surveyor appointed under this law, which field-notes shall have the same force and effect as if made by the county or district surveyor of the county or district in which said land lies; and, upon the adoption and approval of said field-notes by the commissioner of the general land office, he shall forward to the surveyor of the county or district in which said land lies, certified copies of said field-notes, which thereafter shall be a part of the records of said surveyor's office. In carrying out the provisions of this law, the commissioner of the general land office may, when requested by the owner of lands alternating with the lands resurveyed under the provisions of this law, cancel patents, and in lieu thereof issue patents in accordance with said resurvey; provided, that all such owners shall pay the expenses incurred in making such corrected surveys of their lands and in issuing said patents; provided, that no claims shall be created against the state for services performed under this law in the absence of a previous appropriation therefor. [Id.]

Acceptance of resurvey.—It is a condition precedent to the consummation of an agreement for the resurvey of school lands by a state surveyor as authorized by Rev. St. 1895, arts. 4251–4263c, that the resurvey be accepted by the land office, unless waived by the parties. Crosby v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1110.

Art. 5350. Mineral lands to be surveyed; points marked; surveyor appointed; his salary.—The commissioner of the general land office of Texas may employ a state surveyor, or surveyors, whose duty it shall be to definitely locate on the ground such school land surveys, or blocks of surveys as the said commissioner may designate between the Pecos river and the Rio Grande, commencing at such point in the mineral bearing territory of Brewster county as may appear to be most advantageous to the state. The said surveyor, or surveyors, shall qualify as now provided by statute for state surveyors before entering upon his duties, and shall be under the direction of and subject to the orders of said commissioner. He shall file in the general land office the field-notes and maps of his work; and, when approved by the commissioner, the lines so established, as evidenced by such field-notes and maps, shall be the established lines of the surveys or blocks of surveys represented thereby. All surveys made shall be marked by permanent natural or artificial objects. The said surveyor shall receive for his services, not to exceed one hundred and sixty-five dollars per month, and to be paid in the same manner as are other employés of the said land office. [Acts 1907, p. 285, sec. 1.]

Art. 5351. Land commissioner to co-operate with United States geological survey; regulations as to co-operation.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized to confer with the director of the United States geological survey, and to accept the co-operation of the United States with this state in the execution of a topographic survey and map of the territory which is hereby authorized to be surveyed. The said commissioner shall have the power to arrange with said director, or other authorized representative of the United States geological survey, concerning the details of said work and the method of its execution; provided, that the said director of the United States geological survey shall agree to expend on the part of the United States upon said work a sum equal to that hereby appropriated, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to secure the proper topographic map or maps. In arranging details heretofore referred to, the said commissioner shall, in addition to such other provisions as he may deem wise, require that the topographer in charge shall give a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned and payable the same as that required of the surveyor provided for above, and that the maps resulting from this survey shall be similar in general design and quality to the Van Horn quadrangle of El Paso county, edition of March, 1906, made by the United States geological survey, and shall show the outlines of all surveys, and kinds of timber and vegetable growth of commercial value, the location of all natural or artificial water roads and shall show the contour lines showing the elevation and depression for every one hundred feet in vertical interval of the surface of the county; that the resulting map or maps shall wholly recognize the co-operation of the state of Texas and that as each manuscript quadrangle of the map or maps is completed, the commissioner shall be furnished by the United States geological survey with photographic copies of the same, and as the engraving on each quadrangle is completed, the commissioner shall be furnished by said director with the resulting maps. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5352. Persons owning private lands may co-operate.—Should any person or persons, owning private lands which alternate with the school land, desire to co-operate with the commissioner of the general land office in having the surveying done and in having the topographic map or maps made, as above provided for, such services and co-operation may be accepted upon a fair division of the expense. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5353. General authority of commissioner to have surveys made; compensation of official; state surveys, etc.—Whenever the commissioner of the general land office shall deem it to the best interest of the state to cause to be made a survey or resurvey of any land or lands which are now, or which may be, owned or claimed by the state of Texas, or which commissioner may deem it expedient to have surveyed, or resurveyed, in order to determine whether such land or lands are owned or should be claimed or sued for by the state of Texas, he may designate and employ one or more competent and experienced surveyors, each to be known as, "Special state surveyor," to do such work, and shall be authorized to allow and pay, as hereinafter provided, reasonable compensation for such services, the amount of such compensation to be determined by such commissioner, not exceeding in any instance the rate of two hundred dollars per month, and may also incur and pay, as hereinafter provided, any and all reasonable expenses which may be incidentally involved in or connected with the making of any and all such surveys and resurveys. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5354. Official surveyors, how commissioned; qualified.—Any such designation of any and all such surveyors shall be evidenced by a written instrument which shall be signed by the commissioner of the general land office, officially, and attested by his seal of office, and such written instrument shall designate, in at least general terms, the land or lands which such surveyor or surveyors may be so designated and employed to survey or resurvey; and before doing any such work, such surveyor or surveyors shall take and subscribe before an officer authorized by law to administer oaths within this state, an affidavit to the effect that affiant will faithfully, impartially and to the best of his knowledge and ability make the survey or resurvey called for in such instrument of designation; and such affidavit shall be endorsed upon or attached to such instrument of designation. Such instrument of designation, together with such affidavits, shall be filed in the general land office before any such work shall be done thereunder. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5355. Field-notes to be returned; force and effect of.—Field-notes and a plat of any and all such surveys and resurveys, signed by such special state surveyor, or surveyors, shall be returned to and filed in the general land office, and shall thereafter have the same force and effect as if made and returned by a district or county surveyor under existing laws. [Id. sec. 8.]

See note under Art. 5336.

Former law.—Act Feb. 10, 1852 (Laws 1852, c. 69), provided that the field notes of all surveys made previous to the passage of the act "shall be laid out and returned in the manner required by law to the general land office on or before the 31st of August, 1853, or they shall become null and void, and the said surveys shall become vacant land, and be subject to be relocated and surveyed as in other cases by a person holding a genuine land certificate or other legal evidence of claim to land." Held, that the act referred only to surveys of land made under laws of the republic or state of Texas, and not to titles previously granted by the Spanish or Mexican government. State v. Gallardo (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 664.

Conflicting surveys.—Where the field-notes of a survey actually made in 1840 were recorded, and a patent issued in 1846, such patent was held superior to another issued in 1845 on a conflicting survey made in 1844. Waterhouse v. Corbett, 43 C. A. 512, 96 S. W. 651.

Where a survey under which plaintiff claimed was the oldest, the superior right was in the plaintiff, notwithstanding that other surveys were patented first. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

Where one having a junior survey accepted a patent according to corrected field-notes, he cannot claim any land included in the original survey, but excluded from the corrected survey and patent. Jones v. Petty (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 663.

Where surveys are in conflict, the junior survey must yield to the senior survey to the extent of the conflict. Guillory v. Allums (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 685.

Evidence held to justify a finding of a conflict in surveys of public lands, so that, to the extent of the conflict, the junior survey must yield. Id.

Art. 5356. Conflicts in alternate surveys; how adjusted.—In all cases where land certificates granted by the state have been located in a block or blocks of two or more alternate surveys, and either or all of such surveys are found to be either wholly or partly in conflict with older valid surveys, such individual surveys as may not be patented in such block or blocks, and which may conflict as aforesaid, and such school surveys, except those which may be sold, or those which may have been sold and were in good standing on the thirty-first day of October, 1898, or those for which there may be pending purchase applications in general land office at the time said commissioner of the general land office shall issue his instructions to the surveyor, as hereinafter provided, may be adjusted under the direction of the commissioner of the general land office as provided herein. [Acts 1899, p. 330, sec. 1.]

Art. 5357. Surveyor's duties in adjusting conflicts.—When any such adjustment is desired, as mentioned in the preceding article, the said commissioner shall, upon request of the party owning such individual survey or surveys, or, in the absence of such application, upon his own judgment, direct the proper surveyor of the county in which such conflicting surveys may be situated, to survey such sections as may be in conflict, and so alter or change the field-notes of each and every survey for which an adjustment is sought, except where the school survey has been sold or applied for as above provided; and, in making such change or alteration, the said surveyor shall divide the total area of the individual survey and its alternate school survey equally between the individual and the school survey, unless there is an excess, in which case the excess shall go to the school survey, and patents shall issue accordingly; provided, that the state shall not be required to pay any costs in the matter of resurveying and setting the boundary lines of said lands as provided for in this chapter. [Id. sec. 2.]

Segregation of excess.—The land commissioner, on discovery of an excess of school lands in a section or survey purchased from the state in good faith, must segregate the excess by separating it from the body of the section as resurveyed in a body as near a square as practicable, starting at the beginning corner of the original survey. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 140 S. W. 91.

Art. 5358. In case of conflict, to issue in what cases.—The commissioner of the general land office shall ascertain the entire number of acres in the school surveys wholly or partly free from conflict, exclusive of any excess there may be in each of said school sections, in any particular block, and also the entire number of acres in the individual surveys free from conflict in such block, and shall issue patents on enough of the individual surveys, if there be enough, to equal in area the total area of said school surveys so wholly or in part free from conflict, without considering the excess in each school section; and, in case the total area of the individual surveys in any particular block exceeds the total area of the school surveys, then such excess shall be equally divided between the individual and the school surveys, and patents shall issue accordingly; and if in any case the total area of the school surveys in any particular block, not including any excess there may be in each school section, nor to give any individual any more than their respective total complement by reason of such resurvey, exceeds the total area of the individual surveys, then such excess shall be equally divided between the individual and school surveys, and patents shall issue accordingly; provided, sufficient amount of the school surveys not sold or applied as aforesaid remain to admit of such division. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5359. In cases of conflict number of surveys changed; correction made to protect purchasers.—Where purchasers of school lands have been misled as to the correct lines of their surveys, and have improvements thereon, the commissioner of the general land office may, by the written consent of the purchaser of the school survey and the owner of the individual survey, filed in the general land office, be authorized to change the number of surveys, or have them so corrected as to protect the improvements of the purchaser of the school lands. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5360. Third persons protected.—The provisions of this chapter shall not affect prior valid rights of third persons. [Id. sec. 5.]

1. Agreements within statute of frauds.—See notes under Art. 3965.

2. Relative importance of conflicting elements.—Where a decree for title called for a beginning point, thence south to a given point, thence east to a given point, thence north to a given point, thence east to the point of beginning, it was held that, as the course and point designated in the last call were inconsistent, the point should control the course. Tison v. Smith, 8 T. 147.

In ascertaining boundaries, the most material and the most certain calls will control those that are less material and less certain. Hubert v. Bartlett, 9 T. 97.

In ascertaining boundaries, or the locality or identity of lands, called for in a deed or grant, recourse is to be had (1) to natural objects; (2) to artificial marks; (3) to course and distance. Bolton v. Lann, 16 T. 96.

Where some bounds called for cannot be located with certainty, but others can, there is no question as to which should control, as there is no inconsistency proved, but those certainly located must be followed. Bass v. Mitchell, 22 T. 285.

The beginning corner of a survey as given in the field-notes is of no more dignity than any other corner found on the ground. Davis v. Smith, 61 T. 18; Ayers v. Har-riss, 64 T. 296; Same v. Lancaster, Id. 305; Luckett v. Scruggs, 73 T. 519, 11 S. W. 529; Miles v. Sherwood, 84 T. 485, 19 S. W. 853; Cox v. Finks (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 95, appeal dismissed 43 S. W. 1, 91 T. 318; Wilkins v. Clawson, 37 C. A. 162, 83 S. W. 732; Ramseaur v. Ball (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 590; Francis v. Patterson, 143 S. W. 678; Rosenthal v. Sun Co., 156 S. W. 513; Crosby v. Stevenson, Id. 1110.

Where other calls of a survey are found to be more material and certain, the jury may, if necessary, disregard a particular boundary line called for in the field notes. Jones v. Andrews, 62 T. 652.

In tracing a survey, controlling importance need not be given to the line first run. Ayers v. Harris, 64 T. 296; Same v. Lancaster, Id. 305.

In arriving at a boundary line as originally run, natural objects are controlling calls; artificial objects, second in importance; course, third; and distance, fourth; and, where there is still uncertainty, that rule should be adopted most consistent with the intent of the grant. Luckett v. Scruggs, 73 T. 519, 11 S. W. 529.

Where all the calls made by the locating surveyor cannot be strictly observed, as few should be disregarded as possible. Hill v. Smith, 6 C. A. 312, 25 S. W. 1079.

Where plaintiff, in a suit to recover land, only established a conflict between a call for a well-established corner of an older survey and one for the established line of another survey, he is not entitled to recover, since the calls are of equal dignity. Morgan v. Mowles (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 155.

Where, on an issue as to the location of a boundary line, it appears that some of the calls in the field notes of the surveyor must be treated as mistakes, those should be selected as made by mistake which will produce the fewest possible conflicts. Lyon v. Waggoner, 37 C. A. 205, 83 S. W. 46.

While, in ascertaining boundaries, calls for rivers and streams are, standing by themselves, awarded highest dignity, calls for artificial objects the next, and calls for courses and distances the next, yet the relative weight of the various classes of calls is evidentiary merely, and not absolute, and aided by other facts the weakest may overcome the highest, the purpose of the inquiry being to find the footsteps of the surveyor, thus a call for a river will yield, when it is shown that the surveyor did not actually reach the stream, similarly a call for a marked line of an older survey may be made to yield, and even a call for an unmarked prairie line will prevail over a call for courses and distances, when it reasonably appears from the evidence that the surveyor actually went to it and intended by his field notes to include the land bounded by it. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 898.

In locating boundaries, resort is to be had first to natural landmarks, next to artificial monuments, then to adjacent boundaries, and last to courses and distances. Ridgell v. Atherton (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 129.

The relative dignity of calls in field notes in ascertaining the location of a survey is, first, natural objects, such as streams and timber; second, artificial objects, such as the fixed line of an adjoining survey about which there is no dispute, and then courses and distances. Wilkins v. Clawson, 50 C. A. 82, 110 S. W. 103.

The corner or section of a survey designated by the field notes as the beginning corner or section has no more importance in locating the survey than any other corner or section, so that where all the sections of a survey were surveyed by the same person, in absence of evidence as to how the surveys were actually made, it is permissible to begin at the south boundary line and run the sections north, though the field notes call for the beginning at the northern tier of sections of the survey and each tier of sections calls to begin on the tier to the north of it. State v. Sulflow (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 652.

As a rule, calls in field notes should be given priority as follows: First, calls for natural objects; second, calls for artificial objects; third, calls for courses; fourth, calls for distance; and, as a corollary to the latter two, calls for quantity. But such rule is not absolute, as calls for a higher order may sometimes be made by mistake, when the calls for a lower order may prevail, and those calls should control, even if of a lower order, which, under the circumstances, most clearly indicate the intention of the grant. Id.

Where two calls of a grant of public land descriptive of a line or corner lead to different results, the presumption is that one of the calls was inserted by mistake, and the mistaken call must be disregarded. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

Rules relating to the comparative dignity of calls are designed to aid in determining which calls of a survey were made by mistake, but the rules relating to actual surveys are frequently not applicable to office surveys. Gilbert v. Finberg (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 507.

3. — Control of elements consistent with intention.—Where there is a call for a corner, designated in a former deed as "K.'s corner," which was not marked, certain, or notorious, and the purchaser buys by a survey, which is the repetition of a former survey, and its lines were established and notorious, he cannot claim to that corner, when he would thus obtain a very much larger tract of land than he purchased; it being clear that the tract so surveyed was intended to be the one set off on partition to his trustee, grantor, who had only this title to convey. Bragg v. Lockhart, 11 T. 160.

Where the boundaries described in a deed to land are inconsistent with each other, those are to be retained which best subserve the prevailing intention, manifested on the face of the deed. Browning v. Atkinson, 37 T. 633.

When two descriptive calls are given in a survey, both of equal dignity, as a call for a corner and a marked line, preference will be given to that one which is most consistent with the intention to be derived from the entire description. Harrell v. Morris (Sup.) 5 S. W. 625.

On an issue of the north and south boundary between parties claiming under adjacent surveys, the evidence clearly showed that it was the intention of the surveyor to have defendant's (the later) survey join plaintiff's on the west. It was subsequently found that, to join the surveys, the call for distance on defendant's south line would be short 56 varas in a line 1,300 varas long, and would give the survey 306 acres, instead of the 300 acres called for. Held, that the evident intention of the surveyor to leave no vacancy between the surveys should control the slight error of distance. Brown v. Bedinger, 72 T. 247, 10 S. W. 90.

A grantor conveyed "lot 1, block 2, town of Concho, M.'s addition to San Angelo, said lot being 60 feet front by 120 feet deep." Afterwards he conveyed to the same grantee "lot 2, block 2," "said lot being 60 feet front by 120 feet deep." The grantor owned the whole block at the time of these conveyances. The addition had been laid out by him, and the plat on file in the county clerk's office divided block 2 into lots 26 feet wide by 120 feet deep. Held that, in the absence of evidence indicating a contrary intention, the word describing the width of the lots must be rejected as falsa demonstratio. Arambula v. Sullivan, 80 T. 615, 16 S. W. 436.

Where the description in a deed contains no patent ambiguity, but, on its application to the land described, it results in a lot of the most singular shape, plainly never intended by the parties, there is no error in ignoring the calls for courses, and applying only the calls for distance, where the land which the evidence shows was intended to be conveyed may be thereby fully identified. Talkin v. Anderson (Sup.) 19 S. W. 350.

Where the evidence shows it was the intention of the parties to a deed that only the land comprised within the description by courses and distances should be included, such description will control one by number of lot and block. Mullaly v. Noyes (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 145.

Where the deeds in plaintiff's chain of title called for the east line of the H. survey as the western boundary, but in the survey made at the request of plaintiff, before his purchase, the surveyor stopped at a "rock" before the call for distance was satisfied, for the sole reason that he believed he had reached the H. line, and plaintiff's deed recited an intention to convey the same number of acres as was conveyed by previous deeds in the chain of title, there was evidence showing an intention to convey all the land within the boundaries named in the deed, and the fact that the survey subsequently made erroneously located the boundary did not preclude plaintiff from obtaining the land up to the exact line of the H. survey. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001.

It being necessary to disregard one or the other set of calls in the field notes of office surveys, calls found to have been made under a mistake as to the relative position of the surveys may be disregarded, and effect given to the real intention of the person who made the field notes. Sellman v. Sellman (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 48.

Where, in a boundary suit, the intention of the surveyor in making surveys, whose lines are uncertain, is the controlling question, the jury should consider his purpose as gathered from what he did in making the surveys, the description of the land he gave, and all the circumstances attending the transaction, but not a secret intention which found no expression in his acts. Masterson v. Ribble, 78 S. W. 353, 34 C. A. 270.

The courts will uphold boundaries where a technical error in a call may be disregarded, and the territory attempted to be described thereby ascertained; and any call may be disregarded in order to ascertain the footprints of the surveyor in establishing the boundary of the territory attempted to be marked out on the land. Williams v. State, 107 S. W. 1121, 52 Cr. R. 371.

Where a block of sections of public lands was so marked on a map in the state land office as embraced between two rivers, but the lines of the eastern tier of sections in the block had not been marked on the ground by the surveyor, and it was the intention of the surveyor, the locator, and the state to grant land extending the distance necessary to make up the several tiers of sections as shown on the plat, such intention would not be nullified merely because the surveyor located the sections under the mistaken impression that the F. river was east of them; the mistake in plating being insufficient to control the calls for course and distance embodied in the field notes. Gilbert v. Harris (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 392.

Where different calls in grants of public lands lead to conflicting results, preference must be given to the calls which most probably indicate the intention of the government, as expressed in the face of the grant, read in the light of the surrounding circumstances. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

4. — Control of natural objects and monuments over other elements in general.— In determining boundaries, natural and permanent objects control courses and distances. Urquhart v. Burleson, 6 T. 502; Hubert v. Bartlett, 9 T. 97; Anderson v. Stamps, 19 T. 460; Weider v. Hunt, 34 T. 44; Galveston County v. Tankersley, 39 T. 651; Johns v. Schutz, 47 T. 578; Davis v. Smith, 61 T. 18; Clark v. Hills, 67 T. 141, 2 S. W. 356; Gerald v. Freeman, 68 T. 201, 4 S. W. 256; McAninch v. Same, 69 T. 445, 4 S. W. 369; Johnson v. Archibald, 78 T. 96, 14 S. W. 266, 22 Am. St. Rep. 27; Coughran v. Alderete (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 109; Bland v. Smith (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 773.

Calls for marked bearing trees control calls for points supposed to be fixed by other deeds. Mitchell v. Burdett, 22 T. 633.

A surveyor, having run one line to and established a corner at a large spring on which a tree was growing, returned to the beginning, and ran the opposite lines, and, having established another corner, called thence by course and distance to the first one; but a line on such course and distance would materially deflect from the first corner. Held, the first corner would prevail over the course and distance, though the tract thereby included 420 acres more than the certificate called for, while, if the course and distance were followed, the excess would only be 64 acres. Robertson v. Mosson, 26 T. 248.

When a patent called for fixed and natural objects as corners, and also for the line of another survey, the former is the controlling call, especially when the latter is of uncertain locality. Jones v. Leath, 32 T. 329.

Where there were calls for natural objects, and evidence as to their locality, all tending to fix a disputed line of a grant, an instruction, in effect, telling the jury to resort to quantity in determining the line, is erroneous. Ayers v. Harris, 64 T. 296.

A requirement in a grant that the boundary lines shall be run so as to include certain culturable lands is a call for a natural object that will control courses and distances. Clark v. Hills, 67 T. 141, 2 S. W. 356.

An instruction that a call for a natural object, such as a creek, or for an artificial object, such as a well-marked and long-established public road, will control course and distance, and also the lines of the survey, unless such lines are actually marked upon the ground, is properly refused where the calls for the creek and road in the survey are incidental, and to so locate the survey would force it 2,500 varas away from all its other connections. Jones v. Andrews, 72 T. 5, 9 S. W. 170.

Plaintiff alleged a vacancy of 1,590 varas between two surveys having a common east line and three others lying to the east of them. Four of them were made by one surveyor, at about the same time, and all, by mutual use of the same lines and corners, were evidently intended to have a common line, and to include the whole territory. No marked lines were found on the ground, and, to locate their exterior lines by measurement from identified corners of adjacent surveys, several thousand varas distant to the east and west, and measuring the required distances towards the interior, the vacancy would exist as asserted. But, measuring from other nearer identified corners of like surveys, the discrepancy on one side of the line would be trifling. There was evidence from which the court might well find, as it did, that a pile of stones claimed by defendants as a corner in the common line was such corner. No vacancy was shown on the county map. Held, that the identified corner of the surveys in question must prevail over measurements from contiguous surveys, and, while there was an apparent excess of land in some of the surveys, there was no vacancy. Booker v. Hart, 77 T. 146, 12 S. W. 16.

Though call for natural objects in a deed as a general rule controls courses and distances, it does not control absolutely. Linney v. Wood, 66 T. 22, 17 S. W. 244.

Land had been conveyed to plaintiffs, less "a certain piece or parcel of land heretofore conveyed to W. K. B. [defendant], referring for description to record of deed." The calls of such deed made the north and south lines of the land (a parallelogram) each 135.6 varas long, commencing at the "west boundary line of the Parker county survey," whereas that line, as established by objects, and with reference to which, as so established, the parties had contracted, was 70 varas further east than the calls of the deed for distance. Plaintiffs claimed the intervening strip. Held, that the line as established by objects, and not by the calls of the deed for distance, should prevail, and that defendant was entitled to judgment. Davis v. Baylor (Sup.) 19 S. W. 523.

In a controversy over surveys and other boundary lines, courses and distances yield to natural and ascertained objects. Warden v. Harris (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 834.

The field notes of the survey of the J. county school land, described its northeast corner in the same manner as the field notes of a survey adjoining it on the east described its northwest corner. The field notes of the school-land survey called for the southwest corner and the west line of the other survey. A witness testified to having found the northeast corner 20 years ago, on the ground, at a distance north of the place where the call for distance north from the southeast corner placed it. One survey, of a series of surveys made 30 years ago as one block, and calling for another, called for the southwest corner of a survey to the northeast which was well established on the ground, and for the north line of the school-land survey as located by the witness as its south line. The calls for distance in the school-land survey were nearly all erroneous and excessive. The evidence tended to show that, by fixing the northeast corner where witness had found it, it would be a little too far west, and, taking it for the northwest corner of said adjoining survey, one of the calls of the latter would not fit, and the north line of the school-land survey would extend a few varas beyond the south line of the survey located towards the northeast, for whose southwest corner one of the surveys in said block of surveys called. Held, that the call for distance should be disregarded, and the monument found by the witness taken as the northeast corner. Allen v. Worsham (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 525.

Where a boundary line is sufficiently identified along its course by natural objects, it will control distance wherever it is called for in the field notes of a survey, if there is a conflict; the presumption being that the surveyor actually made the survey on the ground, and established the corners as called. Burge v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 81.

Where there is no ambiguity on the face of a deed which calls for marked corners found on the ground, but the course and distance of one of the lines do not correspond with such corners, the line must run straight between the corners. Sloan v. King, 69 S. W. 541, 29 C. A. 599.

Where a deed calls for a line identified by natural and artificial objects called for, such line will prevail over an inconsistent call for distance. Thaxton v. Wadsworth (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 91.

Where a survey called for a specified distance to a stake, the call for distance must yield on the location of the stake being established, the order of control of conflicting calls being, first, natural objects; second, artificial objects; and, third, courses and distances. Thatcher v. Matthews, 101 T. 122, 105 S. W. 317.

Where a survey called for a specified distance to a stake, the call for distance must yield on the location of the stake being established. Thatcher v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1006.

The courts, in grading the dignity of the different classes of calls found in deeds descriptive of land, intended only to establish a rule for arriving at the location of the boundaries actually established, and the rule that monuments and natural objects are superior to course and distance does not impeach the sufficiency of course and distance to locate a boundary, but course and distance must yield to the superior grade in cases of conflict. Jaggers v. Stringer, 47 C. A. 571, 106 S. W. 151.

The general rule that monuments and natural objects will prevail over calls for course and distance, in cases of conflict, does not apply where the surrounding circumstances show that the superior marks were placed by inadvertence, or that there was a verbal mistake in the description of the monument or natural object. Id.

A tract was surveyed, and the corners of blocks, lots, streets, and alleys were marked by stakes. The surveyor died soon after, and another surveyor was employed to prepare a plat from the one made at the time of the survey and put it in a condition for record. The corner of a lot as located by the course and distance called for by the plat did not coincide with the corner located by the surveyor's stake. Held, that the stake fixed by the surveyor controlled the calls for course and distance in the plat. Werkheiser v. Foard (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 983.

In determining boundaries where there are conflicting calls, calls for course and distance must yield, first, to natural objects, and, second, to artificial objects. Weston v. Meeker (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 461.

Where the calls for courses in the field notes of the W. survey were general and conflicting, a finding of the court in passing on the facts without a jury that a call for an old building which was nearest the beginning point was more material and certain than calls for adjoining surveys, and that it was entitled to greater weight in tracing the footsteps of the surveyor who located the W. survey than the calls given by other surveyors in their field notes of adjoining surveys subsequently made, was justified. Jordan v. James, 53 C. A. 408, 115 S. W. 872.

Where there is a conflict between distance and artificial objects, calls for distance must yield, except where it is apparent from the face of the grant that the calls for natural and artificial objects were inserted by mistake or were laid down by conjecture, in which case course and distance will prevail, as being the best evidence of the actual intent of the parties. Ramseur v. Ball (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 590.

Where the calls for corners and lines are identified on the ground by bearing trees, they will control over calls for distances, if the calls are conflicting. Granberry v. Storey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1122.

In an older survey, where there is a call for an unmarked corner or line where the same can be easily found, it will have the dignity of a call for an artificial object, and will control a call for distance. Byrd v. Langbein (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 206.

The general rule as to descriptions is that a call for a natural object will control calls for distance and for quantity, and an excess of 105 acres in a survey of 1,280 acres is not so great as to require an exception to such rule. Daughtrey v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1060.

Lines located by monuments or courses in distances control calls for quantity. Colins v. Warfield (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 107.

Where a stake at the southwest corner of a survey and a stake and mound at its northwest corner, called for in the field notes, could not be found, but there was evidence that they were located 1,849 varas west of another survey, such location being established, the call for distance would yield to the call for the monuments. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art v. Gieseke (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 612.

5. — Control of water courses, highways and fences over other elements.—Where a survey describes the land as lying on one side of a navigable river, the lines will be so run as that none of them shall cross the river, notwithstanding that, if the courses and distances were followed, the tract would include land across the river. Phillips v. Ayres, 45 T. 601.

On a question whether a sheriff, in executing a writ of possession, correctly interpreted a part of the decree calling for a line from a point on a lake; "thence southward with the meanders of said lake 405 varas to the mouth of the lane on the south bank; thence south,"—the jury were warranted in finding that he should have run the line south from the mouth of the lane instead of from the point to which the 405 varas carried him, since that point was necessarily variable, depending upon the distance from the water line at which the meanders were run. Jackel v. Reiman, 78 T. 588, 14 S. W. 1001.

The patent to a survey, after establishing the northeast corner, called "thence west 6,127 varas, a stake in the south bank of W., a cottonwood 4 inches in dia. brs. S. 45½ deg. W. 217 varas, a do. 12 in. in dia. brs. S. 43¼ deg. W. 210 varas, a bushy topped elm mkd. S. brs. N. 89 deg. E. about 413 varas." Locating the northwest corner 413 varas from the elm as called for in the patent made the distance between the northeast and northwest corners 6,343 varas. Held, that as the river had changed its course since the survey, and there was evidence that the northwest corner when originally located was 203 varas from the elm, the call for the distance between the two corners, and not the call for course and distance from the bearing tree to the northwest corner, should prevail, since the call for the bank of the river was originally the controlling circumstance by which the northwest corner would be located. Meade v. Leon & H. Blum Land Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 298.

Where a survey of land borders on a marsh or lake, a strip of three acres of land extending into the water beyond a straight line called for by the surveyor, and shown on a map of the land, is part of such survey; and this, though the law requires the court to follow the footsteps of the surveyor in determining the boundary of a given tract. Bland v. Smith (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 49.

Calls for course and distance must yield to a call for the meanders of a creek. Moore v. Loggins (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 183.

A call for a creek in the field notes of a survey calling for a stake as the beginning, and from thence north at 3,200 vrs. a creek, at 3,800 vrs. a stake, thence west at 4,152 vrs. a stake, etc., to the point of beginning, is a descriptive and not a locative call, and is not of higher dignity than a call for course and distance. Runkle v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 745.

Where, notwithstanding a call for a river or a marked line of an older survey, it is shown by other evidence that the survey did not reach the stream or the marked line, the call for the river or line will yield. Goodson v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 696.

6. — Control of metes and bounds or courses and distances over other elements.—A general recital of quantity in a deed or grant must yield to metes and bounds. Dalton v. Rust, 22 T. 133.

Course and distance from an established point will prevail over a supposed line and corner which at the time of the grant had not been run and established. McCown v. Hill, 26 T. 359.

When the lines called for are of doubtful identity, course and distance should be resorted to, as furnishing the best evidence the case is susceptible of, since it is only when lines called for in a deed are actually marked, and can be identified, that they control calls for course and distance. Browning v. Atkinson, 37 T. 633.

Where, from actual corners, lines not marked are run by course and distance, and a stream is found where called for, but of a different name from that called for in the field notes, it may be inferred that the call for the stream was a mistake, and to that extent course and distance would be regarded, instead of the call for a stream elsewhere made in the field notes. Jones v. Burgett, 46 T. 284.

While the general rule, in determining the location of a survey where there are conflicting calls, is that courses and distances must yield to natural or artificial monuments or objects, there are cases where courses and distances will control, as where it is apparent from the face of the grant that such monuments or objects were inserted by mistake, or laid down by conjecture and without regard to rule. Robinson v. Doss, 53 T. 496.

Where a call in a deed is for "a corner" on a prairie, with no other call to designate it; thence "S. 30 deg. E., with the west line of the A. survey," the call for the older survey does not control the call for distance, the evidence showing a mistake of the surveyor. Oliver v. Mahoney, 61 T. 610.

Where one of the lines of a survey is established, the other lines may be determined by course and distance called for from such line, disregarding a call for a survey evidently caused by a mistake arising from the inaccuracy of the map in use at the time. Boon v. Hunter, 62 T. 582.

A line or corner of another survey called for in field notes made without an actual survey may be disregarded, when evidently called for by mistake, and to observe them would be inconsistent with all other calls, and with the course and distance called for, and the manifest intention of the parties. Id.

Where the upper and lower corners of a tract were identified as located on a river, but the back line of the survey could not be identified by finding either the northwest corner, which was the second called for by the grant, or by identifying the northeast corner by the objects called for, but a marked line was found on the proper course of the east line prolonged beyond what was disputed as the northeast corner, and the first line called for by the grant was the west line, and ran back from one of the established corners on the river, the jury should have been instructed that if they could not fix the northeast corner, or the north or back line, by monuments or marks, they should fix it by courses and distances from the first and second lines of the survey, the second or back line being extended to meet the recognized east line as extended beyond the point disputed as the northeast corner. Ayers v. Harris, 64 T. 296.

A deed of conveyance described the land by courses, "to include 571 acres of land, and, if such point will not include sufficient of land to make the complement, 571 acres, it is to run north," under a certain survey, for the deficit. Held, that the grantee was not restricted to 571 acres, if the tract described contained more. Johnson v. Garrett, 25 T. Sup. 13.

The upper half of a tract of land was taken by a widow for her community share in the land. Subsequently a person purchased from an heir a portion of the whole tract, which portion was described by metes and bounds, and bordered on the tract taken by the widow. Held, that the purchaser could not complain, in an action for partition by one of the heirs, that the widow's half was not included in the suit. Franks v. Hancock, 1 U. C. 554.

A deed purported to convey 160 acres of land, described by metes and bounds, under a survey. The line of the B. survey was once called for, and if treated as controlling, it reduced from 350 to 44 varas a line purporting to have been run according to distance, and reduced the number of acres to 90. The lines and corners connecting the two surveys were in an unoccupied prairie, and the parties knew nothing of the boundaries of either tract. The field notes of that part of the survey did not point to or call for any natural boundary or visible landmark. Held, that the call for distance was controlling. Webb v. Brown, 2 U. C. 36.

Courses and distances will not be made subordinate to an unmarked prairie line, which could not itself be ascertained except by running the boundaries of another survey according to course and distance. Gerald v. Freeman, 68 T. 201, 4 S. W. 256; Johnson v. Archibald, 78 T. 96, 14 S. W. 266, 22 Am. St. Rep. 27.

The southeast corner of a survey was fixed with reasonable certainty, though not by the objects called for, which had disappeared, and the northwestern corner with absolute certainty, and lines run from these corners, on courses called for, would intersect at a point from which the true bearing of a tree referred to in the patent would be S., 30 W., 96 varas. The patent named the bearing of the tree from the corner as S., 30 E., 96 varas. Held, that the point of intersection, found by running lines as described, should be considered as the true corner, rather than that ascertained by adopting the bearing from the tree given in the patent, and rejecting the courses from the southeast and northwest corners. Davidson v. Killen, 68 T. 406, 4 S. W. 561.

Where, in an office survey, a line was described as running from a fixed point south to another point described, but not established on the ground, which did not lie in the designated course, it being intended that the line should run north and south, held, that the second point named being descriptive, and not locative, should be disregarded, and that the line should follow the course named. Lilly v. Blum, 70 T. 704, 6 S. W. 279.

Though courses and distances are the lowest in dignity and importance of calls employed in grants, yet, when the land can be more certainly identified by running the courses and distances, the grant should be so determined. Bigham v. McDowell, 69 T. 100, 7 S. W. 315.

It is not prejudicial error to charge that, if the jury can fix the lines of the survey in harmony with its calls and known corners, then the fact that the lines would include more than the area called for in the grant becomes immaterial, and the extent of the area should not be considered "further than as a circumstance to aid you, in connection with all the evidence in the case, in following the footsteps of the original surveyor, and fixing the true boundaries of said grant," where the lines as claimed by plaintiff include more than was intended to be conveyed by the grant. Ayers v. Harris, 77 T. 108, 13 S. W. 768.

Plaintiffs' survey described the courses as running south a certain distance to the north boundary line of survey No. 138, and east along the northern boundary of No. 138 and No. 132; but according to the distance recited in the survey the west line would fall short of the north boundary of No. 138, leaving a strip of land between it and the south boundary of plaintiffs' survey. The survey of No. 132, made about the same time as plaintiffs' survey, called for the south boundary of plaintiffs' survey as its northern boundary, and other adjoining surveys made about the same time made it appear that such was the boundary line. Held, that the courses and boundaries will prevail as against the distance recited in plaintiffs' survey, making it extend south to the north boundaries of Nos. 138 and 132. Wyatt v. Foster, 79 T. 413, 15 S. W. 679.

In trespass to try title, there was evidence that one B., the original grantor of the land, had fixed the outer boundaries of the farm lots of which plaintiff's and defendant's lots were subdivisions, and also that a line had been originally run and marked showing where certain lots fronting on a certain street had terminated. There was further evidence that the grantees of B., through whom plaintiff and defendant, respectively, claimed title, may have fixed by agreement a line between the lots in controversy. Held, that course and distance from the true western line of the street was not the controlling means for the determination of the line between the lots, since there was other evidence authorizing a finding as to the boundary between the parties. Machon v. Randle, 66 T. 282, 17 S. W. 477.

Where a surveyor establishes two initial points on the ground itself, and from these the remaining surveys are plotted in on a map, and in the plot calls are made for a river, the true course of which the surveyor has mistaken, the surveys must be run out as plotted, the calls for the river yielding to course and distance. New York & T. Land Co. v. Thomson, 83 T. 169, 17 S. W. 920.

The statement of the quantity of land supposed to be conveyed, and inserted in deeds by way of description, must yield to courses and distances. Rand v. Cartwright, 82 T. 399, 18 S. W. 794.

Land granted by the state had been simply platted on paper without an actual survey having been made. The second corner called for was 300 yards further distant from the beginning corner than the distance specified in the patent. There were other calls in the patent for well-established monuments. Held, that other calls of the patent, as well as course and distance, should be looked to in determining what was the particular land intended to be conveyed. Roberts v. Helm, 1 C. A. 100, 20 S. W. 1004.

A survey called for a course from a certain point south 712 varas; thence east 1,438 varas, calling for the northeast corner of survey No. 1,158, which was an open corner. It was contended that the call for the northeast corner of 1,158 should control, extending the call "south 712 varas" to 986½ varas, and extending the call "east 1,438 varas to 1,555 varas. Held that, as the northeast corner of 1,158 was to be found by running course and distance from some established corner, it was not error to reject the call for that corner as a mistake, since by its rejection there was harmony in the calls, and the requisite quantity of land was secured by the survey. Robertson v. Mooney, 1 C. A. 379, 21 S. W. 143.

In trespass to try title, it appeared that J., under whom both parties claimed, conveyed the north 50 feet of a lot to plaintiff, the balance going by mesne conveyances to defendants. At the time of the purchase by plaintiff, J. pointed out a fence as his north line, and a line 50 feet south, marked by stakes, as his south line. Plaintiff adopted both lines as true, and they were true according to the distances mentioned in the deed to J., but according to the courses of said deed both lines were 30 feet too far north. Held, that plaintiff is confined to the 50 feet of land lying between the fence and stakes, since the courses in a deed must yield to distances when such was the evident intention of the parties. Scott v. Weisburg, 3 C. A. 46, 21 S. W. 769.

Where the calls in a surveyor's field notes can be ascertained, they control an ascertainable object not called for. Ratliff v. Burlison, 7 C. A. 621, 25 S. W. 983, 26 S. W. 1003.

Where there are no monuments, the land must be bounded by the courses and distances named in the patent or deed. Id.

The courses and distances in the survey about which there is a dispute will prevail over those of adjacent surveys. Tippen v. McCampbell (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 647.

Where there is a call in the field notes of a younger survey for the west line and southwest and northwest corners of an older survey, the west line of the latter survey cannot be run at a variation different from that called for in its field notes, to reach an unmarked tree not clearly identified as the original corner, but must be run at its proper course and distance. Williams v. Beckham, 6 C. A. 739, 26 S. W. 652.

Where a surveyor makes a mistake in supposing that he has reached the western lines of an older survey when running the course and distance called for, the calls for course and distance should control in locating boundaries. Aransas Pass Colonization Co. v. Flippen (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 813.

The International & Great Northern survey No. 500 called for the south line of the Silvey league as its northern boundary. It also called for the northeast corner of I. & G. N. survey No. 11 as its northwest corner. The north line of the I. & G. N. surveys was a continuous one, and at the time such surveys were made the Silvey southern line was shown by the maps of the general land office, and was then supposed to be at the point called for by the field notes of the I. & G. N. surveys. Subsequent surveys showed that the Silvey line was located further north. The I. & G. N. surveys could not be extended so as to reach the Silvey line as it was truly located, without disregarding calls for distance, as well as calls for surveys on which they were based. Held, that the call for the Silvey line, manifestly a mistake, was controlled by the calls for distance and the other surveys. Layton v. New York & T. Land Co. (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 1120.

The rule that marked trees and lines, when found on the ground and identified, control calls for courses and distances, has no application where the survey was not made on the ground, but was copied from other surveys. Bell v. Preston, 47 S. W. 375, 753, 19 C. A. 375.

A call in a patent read, "Thence south with the east boundary line of the Thompson survey 1,344 varas, to the northeast corner on the S. B. line of the John Davis survey." The call for the S. B. line of the Davis survey was incorrect, as that line would have to be prolonged westwardly to be reached. Held that, the call for the corner of the Thompson survey and the distance being correct, they would control. Warden v. Harris (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 834.

A survey of plaintiff's land called for the well-established corner of another survey, and did not indicate that the north line extended beyond that corner. At the time of the survey it was accepted that that corner marked the western boundary of another survey adjacent to plaintiff on the east, which the owner occupied, but it was later discovered that the true boundary of such survey was a considerable distance further east. The line from the corner to plaintiff's south line marking his eastern boundary was well established by the marks and calls for distances, but the survey called for the western boundary of the adjacent survey. Held, that plaintiff's eastern boundary did not extend to the western boundary of such survey. Morgan v. Mowles (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 155.

In a suit to determine a boundary the court cannot properly state to the jury that the location of a certain stake as a corner of the survey was the controlling inquiry, and, if they found where the original surveyor placed it, that would terminate the controversy, as the call for the stake could not control the call for distance from the beginning corner. Matthews v. Thatcher, 76 S. W. 61, 33 C. A. 133.

Lines and boundaries described in a deed cannot be controlled by objects found on the ground, indicating the footsteps of the surveyor, where there are no calls for such objects. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson, 81 S. W. 781, 36 C. A. 131.

Where, in an action to determine a disputed boundary, there is sufficient evidence to induce the belief that there is a mistake in a call for natural or artificial objects, and not in the call for course and distance, the latter will prevail. Hamilton v. Blackburn, 43 C. A. 153, 95 S. W. 1094.

Where the call for distances in a senior survey includes land in a junior survey, and there is nothing to limit the force of the call for distances in the senior survey, the call for distances therein controls. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

Lines and boundaries described in a deed cannot be controlled by objects found on the ground, indicating the footsteps of the surveyor, where there are no calls in the deed for such objects. Brodhent v. Carper (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 183.

The rule that where the lines of a survey were run on the ground, and a monument fixed in a certain place was called for, the call for the monument is superior to the call for course and distance, does not apply where the monument called for was not placed in position by the surveyor, but was merely an office call, and when, in such a case, a call for course and distance will maintain the integrity of an older survey, it will take precedence over the fictitious call for a monument. Holdsworth v. Gates, 50 C. A. 347, 110 S. W. 537.

An office survey was intended to follow the line of an older survey, and called for a monument which was not located on the ground. By following the call for course and distance, the original shape of the older survey would be preserved, while, following the call for the monument, the original shape of the older survey would be destroyed. Held, that the call for course and distance governed, and the boundary of the office survey must follow the call for course and distance. Id.

In determining the true dividing line between surveys, if, from a definite beginning point, course and distance alone will with reasonable certainty locate and identify the line, course and distance will control. Gull v. O'Bryan (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 593.

Where no marked trees are on a patented survey identified as those of the grant, the true boundary must be ascertained by course and distance given in the patent. Id.

Where nothing appears on the face of grants, or from testimony, to indicate that any other course was observed in making the surveys than true north and south lines, and the adoption of magnetic lines would lead to results inconsistent with calls of one of the grants, the true north and south lines should control. Barrera v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 902.

Where there is a discrepancy between the call for quantity in a deed and the boundary calls therein, the call for quantity must yield to the calls in the field notes for the location of the lines. Pratt v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 111.

When land is described by clear and distinct metes and bounds, from which the boundaries can be readily ascertained, such description will control any general words of description added thereto. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Where the surveyors who located surveys Nos. 13, 6, and 7, believed, in locating such surveys, that the N. W. corner of the H. survey with reference to which they were located was 256 varas west from where it was in fact, at a point due north from the recognized N. E. corner of survey No. 13, the call for course and distance from the undisputed lower S. E. corner of survey No. 6 and N. E. corner of No. 13, instead of the mistaken call for the N. W. corner of the H. survey, should be adopted; the fact that such latter corner was well identified not making the call for it controlling, irrespective of the mistake in its location. Lafferty v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 216.

The calls for the line of another survey do not prevail over courses and distances. Love v. Jones (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1128.

Where the land contained in an office survey was described as laid out by courses and distances, it embraced only the amount of the description. Id.

Where a line called for in the field notes of a county school land survey was an open unmarked line, the corners of the school survey must be located by course and distance. Polk County v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 204.

Where the field notes of a county school land survey are complete and consistent the calls must control. Id.

The calls in the report of commissioners of partition and the decree and deeds pursuant thereto for a certain corner of a league as the starting point and courses and distances therefrom govern, in the absence of agreement to the contrary or estoppel, the question of boundary over calls in the field notes of the commissioners' surveyor for trees identifying corners. Blair v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 354.

Course and distance will control natural marks or boundaries, if it appears that the latter were inserted by mistake, or were laid down by conjecture, and without regard to rule. Crosby v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1110.

7. — Control of lines marked or surveyed over other elements.—Where the lines of a survey have been run, and can be found, they constitute the true boundaries, which must not be departed from, or made to yield to course and distance, or to any less certain and definite matter of description or identity. Bolton v. Lann, 16 T. 96.

Lines actually marked must be adhered to, though they vary from the course or distance. Dalby v. Booth, 16 T. 565; Anderson v. Stamp, 19 T. 460; Bartlett v. Hubert, 21 T. 8; Booth v. Upsher, 26 T. 64; Williams v. Mayfield, 57 T. 364; Marshall v. Crawford, 2 U. C. 477; Lockett v. Scruggs, 73 T. 519, 11 S. W. 529; Worsham v. Morgan (Civ. App.)

28 S. W. 918; Burnett v. Gault, 54 S. W. 268; Hughes v. State, 123 S. W. 177, 57 C. A. 306; Taft v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 437; State v. Sulflow, 123 S. W. 652.

Where the tract granted is a parallelogram, bounded on three of its sides by the lines of former surveys, which lines are called in the grant, but the actual survey, through mistake, has not been made so as to coincide with said lines, the lines actually run will not control the lines of the older surveys. Anderson v. Stamps, 19 T. 460.

Calls for marked lines control calls for points supposed to be fixed by other deeds. Mitchell v. Burdett, 22 T. 633.

The rule that the corner of a survey is not necessarily a more certain and material monument than the marked line or marked trees called for in a grant, and will not necessarily control calls for those objects, obtains where the grant calls for the southwest corner of another survey as the beginning corner, and no such bearing trees or witness trees as those therein described were to be found there, nor any such marked line running therefrom, but were all found 1,000 yards north of said southwest corner; the surveyor being probably mistaken in supposing, when there, that he was on the corner. Duren v. Presberry, 25 T. 512.

Of the calls in a grant, any identified lines or points that were run and established on the ground previous to the grant will prevail over course and distance, regardless of the configuration or excess of area resulting from closing the lines. McGown v. Hill, 26 T. 359.

The location of the lines of a survey is to be determined by the lines as actually run upon the ground, where this can be ascertained; nor will this rule be varied because a call is made to run to the line of an older survey, if that line was never reached in the survey actually made, but the surveyor stopped at another line, which was mistaken for it. Burnett v. Burriss, 39 T. 501.

The statement of the quantity of land supposed to be conveyed and inserted in deeds by way of description must yield to marked lines. Id.

Proof that a surveyor established a line and corner will control a call for an adjoining survey, which would be reached by prolonging the line further. Castleman v. Pouton, 51 T. 84.

A call for a corner, which though not recognized by natural or artificial objects at the point, is clearly ascertained by established marked lines called for, there intersecting, will take preference of a call for distance. Buford v. Gray, 51 T. 331.

A call for a corner, not recognized by natural or artificial objects, but clearly established by marked lines, will prevail over a call for quantity. Id.

Where title has issued to two surveys for a league of land, each located and surveyed at the same time, and which call for a common marked corner and a common divisional line, the location of the dividing line is not affected by the fact that by observing it an excess of 1,000 acres would be contained in one of the surveys. Bunton v. Cardwell, 53 T. 408.

The corner of an adjoining survey, called for as a beginning point, does not necessarily control, but will yield to other satisfactory indicia as to where the true line was in fact run, as where the facts show that a call for the corner of another survey as a beginning was a mistake of the surveyor, capable of correction by other objects corresponding with the calls in the grant. Jones v. Andrews, 62 T. 652.

Where a marked line is called for in a league grant, and that line can be identified, it will control a call for course and distance; but where the grant calls for no line, but the field notes in the title call for a width of 2,000 varas, and one line being well established, an old line with marks corresponding in age with the date of the grant is found at such a distance from it as will make the grant 2,560 varas wide, the mere fact of such a line being found will not compel the extension of the grant to such line, instead of the 2,000-vara line. Fagan v. Stoner, 67 T. 286, 3 S. W. 44.

The grantor described the land by the true distances bounding the tract, but, by mistake, referred to a boundary line which made the grant convey a strip in excess of the land he intended to convey. The grantee moved his fence so as to include the extra strip, recorded his deed, and conveyed to defendant, a bona fide purchaser. In an action by the grantor to recover of defendant, held, that the boundary as fixed on the ground governed the calls for distance recited in the deed to defendant's grantor. Garrison v. Crowell, 67 T. 626, 4 S. W. 69.

Where the defendant's title to a certain tract of land depended upon whether the land was included in plaintiff's survey or not, and it appeared that, if the boundaries of plaintiff's land were determined according to the course and distance called for in plaintiff's patent, the tract would not be therein included, while it would if the boundaries were determined according to certain marked corners called for, held, that the marked corners called for should be taken as the true corners, and the course of the lines thence run as designated in the field notes without regard to distance. McAninch v. Freeman, 69 T. 445, 4 S. W. 369.

In a controversy concerning the true boundary of a tract of land which had been surveyed at different times and by different methods, the rule that marked lines shall control in establishing the boundary does not prevail, unless it is shown that they were made upon the original survey. Moore v. Whitcomb (Sup.) 4 S. W. 373.

If there are conflicting calls indicating two distinct lines of a survey, that actually run by the surveyor will prevail. Duff v. Moore, 68 T. 270, 4 S. W. 530.

The rule that a call for a marked line will prevail over a call for distance does not apply where there are no objects, natural or artificial, to show the line. Id.

In an action to recover a tract of land lying between a slough and a river, plaintiff claimed title by virtue of a grant which bounded the land granted by the river, and the defendant introduced evidence that the surveyor who surveyed the grant meandered the slough instead of the river. Held that, in determining the true boundaries of the grant, the sole question was to ascertain exactly where the surveyor ran his lines, and, if the jury found that he ran the line along the slough, they should find for the defendant. Allen v. Koepsel, 77 T. 505, 14 S. W. 151.

Where the calls of the field notes of the title papers under which both parties claim begin at the corner of a certain survey, and plaintiff's title papers locate that corner at a rock set in the ground, which is there at the time of trial, but the survey made by order of court shows that this rock is not at the place where the calls in the original survey would place it, the line is not to be determined by the recent survey, nor by the course and distance of the original survey, but it is to be located by the jury where it appears from the evidence to have actually been located originally. Evans v. Foster, 79 T. 48, 15 S. W. 170.

In an action involving the location of a boundary line between the M. and the A. surveys, it appeared that the M. survey adjoined the A. on the north, and that the disputed line was located in each survey by reference to the south line of the P. survey, which was marked on the ground. The P. survey adjoined the M. on the west. The three surveys were made by the same surveyor. The calls of the A. survey, which was not shown to have been made on the ground, were as follows for the western and northern boundaries: From the S. W. corner "N. 10,017 varas, to a stake in S. B. line of the P. survey; thence E., passing S. E. cor. of said P. survey, and S. W. cor. of the M. survey, 15,500 varas, to a cor. in the prairie; thence S. 1,064 varas, to beginning." The west and south lines of the M. survey were described therein as follows: From N. W. corner "S. 3,685 varas, pass N. E. cor. of P. survey, 13,685 varas, S. E. cor. of same on N. line of A. survey, a corner-stone mkd. 'X,'" giving bearings, etc.; "thence east, with said line, 8,737 varas, to beginning." The course "N. 10,017 varas" in the A. survey would carry the N. W. corner of that survey 1,084 varas north of the south line of the P. Held, that the south line of the P., being marked on the ground, and being called for in both the A. and the M. surveys, would control the courses and distances given therein, and the south line of the P., extended east, was the boundary between the M. and the A. Montague County v. Clay County Land & Cattle Co., 80 T. 392, 15 S. W. 902.

A deed professed to convey "400 acres, more or less, out of the southeast corner" of a certain survey, and described the tract conveyed by metes and bounds, courses and distances. According to the courses and distances the land conveyed did not reach to the east line of the survey. It was proved that when the tract conveyed was surveyed the east line of the survey could not be found, and that the surveyor only established the west corners of the tract. The position of these corners was not disputed. There were 400 acres within the courses and distances named in the deed. Held, that the deed passed title to all the land between the west corners of the tract and the east line of the survey. Baker v. Light, 80 T. 627, 16 S. W. 330.

In surveying and subdividing a grant the northern line was established and marked on the ground south of the true northern line. The northeastern subdivision was conveyed to plaintiff according to the plat made of the survey, the deed also calling for a certain number of acres; the number contained in it taking the line as established and marked for its northern boundary. Plaintiff had not seen the line on the ground, and bought according to the plat, which indicated the subdivision to be in the extreme northeast of the grant; but, for a long time thereafter, he supposed the line as marked to be the true line. Held, that the line as marked fixed the northern boundary of plaintiff's purchase. Smith v. Boone, 84 T. 526, 19 S. W. 702.

Where land is actually surveyed, and its lines marked, they control over the general description "up the bayou." Lutcher & Moore Lumber Co. v. Hart (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 94.

Where a purchaser bought a subdivision of an original survey, which survey, as made upon the ground, is shown with certainty, calls in the deed must yield; and the fact that the deed, by mistake, called for a north line 276 varas further north than the surveyor actually ran and established the line, does not entitle such purchaser to go to that line, and take in land not embraced in the original survey. Shelton v. Bone (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 224.

Where there was an inconsistent description in a survey, by reason of a call for two points to be coincident, which in fact were not so, and there was evidence that one point was located on the ground at the time of said survey, and that it corresponded with other descriptions in the survey, thereby tending to show that the line of said survey was run upon the ground, it will control the other description in the field notes of a point which could only be located by course and distance from an established corner several miles away. Utley v. Smith (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 906.

The boundaries of land as actually made and marked on the ground by the surveyor will control over a call in the field notes for the boundary of another tract, erroneously supposed by the surveyor to be identical with the one marked by him. Busk v. Mangum, 37 S. W. 459, 14 C. A. 621.

Where, in making an original survey intended to segregate a particular tract of land from the public domain, the surveyor establishes and marks a corner so it can thereafter be identified on the ground as called for in his field notes, such corner will control a call for another object as another corner, when he did not go on the ground, and establish such other corner, but merely supposed that course and distance from the corner established would reach it. Cox v. Finks (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 95, appeal dismissed 43 S. W. 1, 91 T. 318.

Where field notes called for unmarked lines of surrounding older surveys, the position of which could be actually ascertained, and there was no evidence as to how the survey was actually made, it was presumed that the surveyor actually made the survey on the ground, and such unmarked lines prevailed over calls for courses and distances, in case of conflict. Waggoner v. Daniels, 44 S. W. 946, 18 C. A. 235.

Where a foreclosure decree covers designated quarter sections of land, but the distance called for in the field notes does not cover all of such quarter sections, the calls for the marked and established corners override the calls for distance, where nothing more certain appears to the contrary, though such calls for corners carry two quarter sections, and the calls for distance but one. Galloway v. State Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 236.

Where, at one end of the line of an original survey, there are evidences of the remains of trees corresponding with the calls in the survey, it is to be regarded as a marked line, and its location cannot be ascertained by running the lines of the original survey by course and distance. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001.

Where it appears in a boundary suit that there are well-known and undisputed original corners established on the ground in surrounding surveys, that fact does not control other calls which are conflicting, but such fact must be considered by the jury, together with all the other circumstances in evidence, to determine the conflicting calls. Master-son v. Ribble, 78 S. W. 358, 34 C. A. 270.

A call for a marked line as a boundary, which is well marked and defined, controls a call for a beginning corner evidently not on the true boundary line, but in all probability located after the location of the surveys of the land. Deaton v. Feazle (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 534.

A corner called for in a deed will, if identified, be accorded the weight and dignity of a marked line, and will control a call for distances, unless overcome by force of circumstances and shown to be a mistaken call. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 898.

In order that a call for a marked boundary line may overcome a call for courses and distances, it must be identified on the ground; but, if this is done, it is immaterial that the marked corner has been destroyed. Id.

The lines as actually run and the corners as actually established, when consistent with other locative calls, fix the true boundaries of a survey. Thatcher v. Matthews, 101 T. 122, 105 S. W. 317.

An owner of 50 acres of land made a subdivision from it which he called a 50-acre subdivision, but there was no evidence that the entire 50-acre tract was included therein. The map of the subdivision purported to have been made from actual survey on the ground, and the only known and fixed object designated was a country road on the west of the tract. The dimensions of all the lots were shown, and they either adjoined each other or were separated by a roadway of designated width. Plaintiff purchased a lot which lay 110 feet from the east line of the subdivision. Held that, in the absence of evidence showing the location of the lot by the original surveyor, it could not be located 110 feet west of the east line of the original undivided tract, which would be 197.93 feet further east from the country road than the distance shown on the map, but the general rule requiring the footsteps of the surveyor to be followed in locating the lines of a survey should be applied. Cheek v. Foster, 50 C. A. 387, 110 S. W. 765.

Calls for the corners of adjoining surveys must be rejected when they conflict with the actual work of the surveyor. Taft v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 437.

The true location of a survey or any line or corner thereof should be determined by finding the lines and corners actually made on the ground by the surveyor, and if the calls in the field notes are inconsistent so as to make the location of the true line uncertain, those calls should be adopted which are most consistent with the surveyor's intention as shown by the field notes, and the surrounding circumstances. Lafferty v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 216.

A survey actually made on the ground, and which can be identified, held to control the calls in the field notes. Grigsby v. Earle (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 448.

A line fixed by stipulation is controlling over other calls. Francis v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 678.

Where there is an actual survey of public land granted, and the field notes of the survey are expressed in the grant, it is conclusively presumed that the government intended to convey the land embraced in the survey, and the court in determining the land granted must follow the footsteps of the original surveyor. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

The rule that in the identification of a survey the footsteps of the surveyor on the ground should be followed by whatever rule they may be traced cannot be applied, unless the survey and the footsteps of the surveyor are actually found and identified. Crosby v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1110.

8. — Control of calls for adjoiners over other elements.—A call for an old established boundary line will control a call for course or distance. Bolton v. Lann, 16 T. 96; Woods v. Robinson, 58 T. 655; Langermann v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 124; Morse's Heirs v. Williams, 142 S. W. 1186.

Where a survey called to commence in the immediate neighborhood of a well-known corner, and to run east 3,160 varas to the corner of another survey, and by following the distance none of the natural or artificial objects called for could be found at the places named, whereas, if the first line stopped at the distance of 750 varas, every crossing of the creek, spring, and artificial object called for was found, the long distance called for should be disregarded, and the survey should be made to stop at 750 varas. Stafford v. King, 30 T. 257, 94 Am. Dec. 304.

A description in a deed reciting that the tract contained 200 acres, being part of the C. survey, the other part of which had been sold to G., will control a contradictory description by courses and distances, where the part sold to G. is clearly identified. Ragsdale v. Robinson, 48 T. 379.

The field notes of three grants all gave the northern boundary of a fourth grant as their southern boundary. The distance, however, from the south line of such fourth grant to the south line of the three grants, exceeded by 240 varas the distance called for as the width of the southern grant. Held that, notwithstanding such discrepancy, the south line of the three grants would be considered the north line of the other, many years after the surveys were made and the monuments referred to had disappeared. Freeman v. Mahoney, 57 T. 621.

A call in a survey for the line of another survey, which is an open line on the prairie at the point of intersection, will not yield to a conflicting call for distances when the location of the open line is certainly determined by natural objects, marked lines, and fixed corners of abutting surveys. Fordtran v. Ellis, 58 T. 245.

Where a survey calls for adjacent grants that bound it without dispute on four or more sides, and five of the corners of such survey are established, the boundaries of such survey must be determined by the calls for the previous adjacent grants, and by a line run so as to establish the sixth and last corner as called for in the grant, and from that corner run the crossing lines, disregarding both course and distance, if necessary, so as to embrace within the lines of the patent all of the land lying between the adjacent surveys called for in the patent as constituting the outer boundaries of the grant. Woods v. Robinson, 58 T. 655.

A call for the marked line of an older adjoining survey will prevail over a call for distance, the presumption being that the surveyor identified the line called for by the marks on the ground, and that the mistake occurred in the measurement or calculation of the distance. Duff v. Moore, 68 T. 270, 4 S. W. 530.

Where it was the evident intention of the officers of the state to include in the locations all the vacant land between the boundaries of surrounding surveys, and it was not shown that more land was embraced in the field notes than they so intended, and the configuration of the land was not changed, held, that the abutting surveys called for would be the correct boundaries, and that the locations should extend to them when no material excess in the land is shown. Moore v. Reiley, 68 T. 668, 5 S. W. 618.

In an action involving the boundary to land, an instruction that though "no survey has ever been made, yet if the calls of the patent to the land for other and surrounding surveys are such that thereby the land conveyed by the patent can be identified," there is a sufficient description, is erroneous, where the eastern boundary is in controversy, and no survey is called for except on the north. Bigham v. McDowell, 69 T. 100, 7 S. W. 315.

The northwest corner of a survey was plainly marked, and part of the west line was also marked. The rest of the survey had apparently not been run on the ground, but the southeast corner was ascertainable from the field notes, being located on an established line of another survey, and at a given distance from an established point. The lines of survey as called for in the field notes were correct as to courses, but were too short to reach from one of said corners to the other. Held, that the survey included all the land between the corners bounded by the lines as extended so as to reach from one corner to the other. Randall v. Gill, 77 T. 351, 14 S. W. 134.

Where a patent calls for unmarked lines of surrounding surveys, the position of which can be accurately ascertained, and there is no evidence as to how the survey was actually made, such unmarked lines will prevail over courses and distances, in case of a conflict. Maddox v. Fenner, 79 T. 279, 15 S. W. 237.

The first of certain land certificates was located by starting at a known point on the south side of a river, and running south a certain distance, thence west 950 varas, and thence north to the river, so as to inclose 640 acres; and each succeeding block was located in a similar manner, starting from the northwest corner of the preceding block, and specifying the river as the north side. Held, that where, by reason of a sharp turn in the river towards the south, for which allowance was not made in the field notes, a certain block lies between two and three miles north of the river, if placed according to the call for the corner of the preceding block, or does not adjoin such block, if placed south of the river, the former call must prevail; and a subsequent attempted correction of the survey of the disputed block, and those depending on its location, whereby the river is made the north boundary line, is void, since it is a relocation, and not a correction. Sanborn v. Gunter, 84 T. 273, 17 S. W. 117, 20 S. W. 72.

In determining the bounds of a survey a call for another survey definitely located is properly ignored where, if followed, it will necessitate a total disregard of course and distance, and cause the remaining bounds both to conflict with several other surveys and to end so far from the starting point as to exclude about 1,000 acres from the survey. Gregg v. Hill, 82 T. 405, 17 S. W. 338.

Where a junior survey was not made on the ground, and the calls are for the surrounding surveys, the lines of such surveys will be the lines of the junior survey. Kuechler v. Wilson, 82 T. 638, 18 S. W. 317.

Where, in describing a boundary line, another known line is called for, and the distance gives out before reaching the line called for, the distance is to be disregarded. Worsham v. Chisum (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 905.

Where, in order to give effect to calls for unmarked lines of surrounding surveys, surveyed about the same time, the configuration of three out of the four surveys would have to be changed, and also all calls, except the one requiring the surveys to connect, among which would be included a corner marked by bearing trees, would have to be disregarded, and the north and south lines of the surveys increased 10 per cent., it is proper to disregard the call for the surveys to connect. Texas Town-Site Co. v. Hunnicutt (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 520.

Survey No. 426 is north of survey No. 11. The northwest corner of survey No. 11 is at a point 68 varas south of the southwest corner of survey 426, and bearing trees of the southwest corner of the latter survey do not correspond with the bearing trees described in the patent of survey No. 11 as the northwest corner of said survey. The northwest corner of survey No. 11 is 60 varas south of the south line of survey 426, called for as being the north line of said survey. Held, that there was a vacancy between the two tracts, notwithstanding the field notes in the patent of survey No. 11 gives its north boundary line as identical with the south boundary line of survey 426. Koch v. Poerner (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 386.

Where the boundaries of a survey were in issue, and there was no evidence as to how the survey was made, a call in the field notes for a line fixed with certainty should prevail over a call for distance, which, if followed, would make a shortage in the quantity of land called for by the grant. Besson v. Richards, 58 S. W. 611, 24 C. A. 64.

In a controversy as to the boundary of a survey, located by projection from a certain point, the evidence showed that there was no dispute as to the northern boundary of surveys on the south or the southern boundary of surveys on the north. The surveyor's field notes called for a line commencing at the northwest corner of the survey on the north, and running along the boundaries of the adjoining surveys, mentioned by name, but the distances given did not bring such boundary line to within 400 varas of some of such named surveys. Held, that the surveyor was mistaken as to distances, and that his mentioning the other surveys by name showed that it was his intention to include in such survey all the land between the surveys mentioned. Coleman County v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 383.

Where a survey is located by projection from a certain point, and a boundary thereof does not correspond with the boundary line of adjoining surveys, which are mentioned in the field notes of such survey, in determining whether the calls for distance in such survey or the calls for the latter surveys shall control the survey must be construed by reference to the calls in the grant, and such calls cannot be aided by the lines and calls of other surveys not mentioned in the field notes, and the intention of the surveyor at the time of the location must be ascertained and given effect. Id.

Where the beginning corner of a survey located on a river cannot be accurately identified on the ground on account of changes in the river, other surveys adjoining, and made subsequently by different surveyors, referring to and identifying the prairie corners of the former survey by artificial objects, may be looked to in identifying the beginning corner; but, if the beginning corner is located, from the evidence, within a radius inconsistent with the reputed prairie corners, the latter must yield. Matthews v. Thatcher, 76 S. W. 61, 33 C. A. 133.

Where the surveyor laying out the S. survey, 65 years before the controversy in question, called for every angle and offset in any adjacent survey, and the east line of the adjoining Y. survey was called as the western boundary of the S. survey, which line could be located with absolute accuracy, and its true location was not disputed, and also called for the southeast corner and the east line of the A. survey, which was definitely fixed, such unmarked lines, designated as the eastern boundaries of the Y. and H. surveys, controlled calls for courses and distances which came 2,055 varas short of tying on the east line of the Y. survey. Steusoff v. Jackson, 40 C. A. 328, 89 S. W. 445.

A call of a deed for a railroad right of way will, if unexplained, be treated as a call for another tract of land, and will control conflicting calls for distance. Judgment (Civ. App. 1905) 87 S. W. 847, reversed. Couch v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 99 T. 464, 90 S. W. 860.

A survey of a tract of land called for the old surveys on every side thereof and for courses and distances without any distances being measured on the ground. The calls for the old surveys were the most material calls. Held, that the calls for the older surveys controlled, and included in the survey the land bounded by the old surveys though others had subsequently, pursuant to the scrap act, made surveys within such boundaries. Isaacs v. Texas Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1040.

The line of a tract of land may as well be the subject of a call as any other object, and such a call will control course and distance. Ridgell v. Atherton (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 129.

Where it appears from a survey that it was the intention of the surveyor in making an office survey to make the boundary line of an actual survey the boundary line of the office survey, which line was well marked and defined, the fact that the distance called for in the office survey would overlap the boundary of the actual survey is of no consequence, since the call for distance must yield to the course, and this is so, though it is claimed that the survey called for had been abandoned. Shindler v. Lutchter & Moore Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 941.

The calls in a patent constitute a written description, and when not ambiguous or conflicting, the boundaries of the land granted are to be determined from some of the calls of the grant, and extraneous facts can only be used to remove or determine conflicting calls, and hence where patent of the H. survey by its calls ties a boundary line in dispute to the G. and A. surveys, and neither the H. survey nor the G. nor A. survey ties to any call for the B. survey, and the calls in the H., G. and A. surveys are not uncertain, a line traced from the B. survey could not be considered. Guill v. O'Bryan (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 593.

The call in a patent of a survey for the south line of another survey as its north line controls a call for distance which will not make its north line reach the other survey. Goldman v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 282.

A call in the patent of a survey for a fixed and undisputed line as a boundary cannot be controlled by the lines and corners marked on the ground by the original surveyor in making the survey; his field notes making no reference to such objects. Id.

The reason why a call for an unmarked prairie line will usually not control over a call for distance is because the surveyor probably did not know where such line was, being unmarked, but supposed it as indicated by the call for distance, and ran his line the distance called for in the field notes, and called for the unmarked line under the mistaken belief that he had reached it, but a call for an unmarked prairie line will control over a call for distance where its location is easily ascertained by running it from known lines or corners, so that it might be reasonably supposed that the location of such line was more probably accurate than the measurement of the distance thereto. State v. Sulflow (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 652.

Where an unmarked line of an older survey is called for and it can be identified with certainty, it will supersede a call for distance. Goodson v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 696.

Where a marked line of an adjacent survey is called for, and such line can be ascertained with accuracy, but there is no evidence as to how the survey was actually made, and a controversy arises as to whether course and distance or the marked line shall prevail, objects found on the ground may be considered as indicating the footsteps of the surveyor, though there are no calls for such objects in the grant. Id.

Calls in a deed held controlled by reference to partition decree and calls for adjoining. Morse's Heirs v. Williams (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1186.

A call for a line or corner of another survey, made under a misapprehension as to the true location of such survey, will not control as to the location of a survey calling for such corner or line. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

In determining the relative importance of locative calls, designations for adjacent surveys are artificial objects in determining the boundaries of grants. Crosby v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1110.

9. — Control of maps, plats and field notes over other elements.—Field notes named in a decree of partition as determining the boundaries are conclusive among the parties thereto, although a plat of the commissioners in conflict therewith also forms part of the decree. Hurt v. Evans, 49 T. 311.

The lines of a grant cannot be extended in conformity with a map deposited in the land office in 1847 without field notes, but accompanied by an explanatory letter of the surveyor, where such extension would violate distance, quantity, boundaries, and configuration, and establish a survey repugnant to all the calls of the grant. Schaeffer v. Berry, 62 T. 705.

Where two surveys made by the same surveyor at about the same time call for a common division line, and are mapped as adjoining, the fact that an excess exists in the amount of land included in one or both along the line of junction is not sufficient reason for separating them in favor of one subsequently locating on such excess. Stanus v. Smith, 8 C. A. 685, 30 S. W. 262.

A description of land as part of a tract or survey is general, and will be controlled by boundaries indicated on a plat or map. Bogges v. Allen (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 195, judgment affirmed Allen v. Bogges, 58 S. W. 333, 94 T. 83.

Where the issue is the location of a boundary line between adjoining lands, that method of constructing the line should be adopted which will present an arrangement of several surveys as nearly identical with that shown by the original map as possible, instead of an observance of courses and distances, which would result in the destruction of the original configuration of the surveys. Lyon v. Waggoner, 37 C. A. 205, 83 S. W. 46.

Where the field notes of a survey are complete in themselves, and contain no inconsistent calls, and can be identified by course and distance from the beginning corner, it is not permissible to look to the field notes of another survey to create inconsistency in the calls of the survey which are complete in themselves. Upshur County v. Le-wright (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1013, modifying 99 S. W. 441, on rehearing.

The lines of a grant must be established by the calls contained in its field notes where there is no conflict or inconsistency in them. Polk County v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 204.

10. — Control of quantity over other elements.—On an issue involving the location of a certain boundary line, it was proper to charge that the jury should not consider any excess in the quantity of land in the survey in question, unless it would assist them in determining the original location of such disputed line. Branch v. Simons (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 40.

In settling a boundary line dispute, its location is not controlled by quantity of land in the respective parcels, where the proper course from a known starting point is given, though quantity may be considered in solving a doubt as to the true variation to be adopted in running the line. McDonald v. McCrabb, 47 C. A. 259, 105 S. W. 238.

Where there was no obscurity about the dividing line between tracts of land conveyed by deed and containing in reality only 124 acres, and adjoining land in the same survey, and such line and the respective corners called for in the deed were distinctly marked and established, the grantee was limited to the lands described in the deed, and the mere recital, following the description calling for such line and corners, "Containing 160 acres, being the north half of said survey," did not control, since a general description cannot control a particular description, about which there is no doubt. Ridgell v. Atherton (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 129.

The fact that the number of acres included within the lines run according to courses and distances equalled the number called for, while the adoption of other lines would embrace an area largely in excess thereof, was evidence in support of the judgment adopting the lines run according to courses and distances. Hughes v. State, 57 C. A. 306, 123 S. W. 177.

Calls for quantities will not prevail over calls for corners and lines which are identified on the ground by bearing trees. Granberry v. Storey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1122.

11. Natural and permanent objects.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

Lines and boundaries cannot be constructed with reference to objects that may be found on the ground as indicating the footsteps of the surveyor, when there are no calls in the grants for such objects. Hamilton v. Blackburn, 43 C. A. 153, 95 S. W. 1094.

Where the bearing trees called for in a senior survey had disappeared, a claimant under a junior survey was entitled to show the location of the trees. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

12. Artificial monuments and marks.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

The identity of a tree relied on in fixing the northwest corner of the M. survey is not sufficiently shown to call for a change in the lines as fixed by surveyors 50 years ago, where the tree seems to have been recently marked, and the marks are not such as surveyors make in marking bearing trees; where the south line of another survey on which such corner rests is a well-defined line, running much of the way through timber, and such tree is 30 rods south of such line; and where a surveyor who located a younger survey west of it in 1857 testified positively that he found an oak tree called for by the M. survey as its northwest corner, on which he fixed the northeast corner of the younger survey, and that such tree was a bearing tree, the subsequent destruction of which was clearly shown. Williams v. Beckham, 6 C. A. 739, 26 S. W. 652.

Lines and boundaries cannot be constructed with reference to objects that may be found on the ground as indicating the footsteps of the surveyor, when there are no calls in the grants for such objects. Hamilton v. Blackburn, 43 C. A. 153, 95 S. W. 1094.

Where a stake is placed to locate a corner of a survey, the stake fixes the corner as conclusively as if the corner was marked by a permanent object. Thatcher v. Matthews, 101 T. 122, 105 S. W. 317.

The court will attach considerable importance to a call in a grant of a Mexican state for stone monuments in the field notes, where the law of the state required corners to be erected of quarried rock and lime mortar. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

13. Courses and distances.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

Where a marked line can be found, it must be pursued as far as it may be done in its whole extent; but, if it does not extend to the point of intersection, then it must be continued until the intersection is made, taking the course called for or required by the deed. George v. Thomas, 16 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 612.

Where a division line exists at both extremities, and for a principal part of the distance, it will be considered a continuous line. Id.

A grant of flats beginning at the corner of a lot, "and running thence north, 150 varas, to a stake; thence eastwardly, with the channel of the harbor in the bay and with the general course of the island, at the distance of at least 150 varas from the shore, to a stake 150 varas from the easternmost point of the island"—should be construed as running the boundary line from the starting point eastwardly, keeping at least 150 varas from the shore, to the channel, and not, in a direct line, to the nearest point of it. Galveston v. Menard, 23 T. 349.

A grant described a third line, by course and distance, to a stake in the line of another survey; thence, along such line, by course and distance, to the upper river corner of such other survey. The line of the other survey ran across a prairie, and was not marked except by blazes on a few scattering trees near the river. To make the intersection called for, the course and distance of the third line called for would have to be materially altered and enlarged. Held, that the third line should be run by course and distance only, and the fourth line by course, with a prolongation of the distance to close the survey, if necessary. Booth v. Strippleman, 26 T. 436.

In trespass to try title to determine the northern boundary of Burnet's colony, under the designation in Pasch. Dig. art. 248, "a point clear of the twenty boundary leagues parallel with the river Sabine; thence, on a line, to Navasoto creek; thence down the creek"—the evidence should be confined to a direct west line from said "point," and, if such line would pass north of Navasoto creek, it must be varied so as to strike the northern branch of that creek. Elliot v. Mitchell, 28 T. 105.

Where the shape of a tract was intended to be a square, and the lines called for in the patent are of equal length, the fact that the course of one line is S., 85 deg. E., instead of S., 56 deg. E., is an obvious clerical mistake, corrected by the other calls. Barnard v. Good, 44 T. 638.

Land was described as "the lower or south half" of a tract. The boundary running nearest north and south ran north, 19 deg. E., and the other ran north, 71 deg. W. Held, that the parcel should be divided by a line run north, 71 deg. W., and that the most southerly part was that conveyed. Farley v. Deslonde, 69 T. 458, 6 S. W. 786.

Where neither the corners of plaintiffs' nor defendants' land are satisfactorily established, and there is a well-established and identified corner of another survey, from which, by following course and distance, defendants' survey can be constructed, such course should be followed, though the boundaries thus established include land within the boundaries of plaintiffs' junior survey. Griffith v. Rife, 72 T. 185, 12 S. W. 168.

A call in a survey read, "Thence east with the south line of the Davis survey, * * * to a stake and west line of the Becton survey." The south line of the Davis survey did not strike the west line of the Becton survey, but, if the latter were prolonged south, it would strike the Davis survey at the southeast corner. Held, that the call should go to the Davis southeast corner. Warden v. Harris (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 834.

A call in a patent read, "Thence south 744 varas, to place of beginning." To reach such beginning it was necessary to go north 518 varas. Held, that the word "south" should read "north." Id.

The rule that, in the absence of natural or artificial objects identifying a survey on the ground, the proper method of locating it is to run course and distance from the nearest identified object or corner called for in the field notes of the survey or its connections, is not a rule of law of universal application. Smith v. Jarvis, 47 C. A. 185, 105 S. W. 1168.

14. — Reversing calls.—Only when the lines of a survey were actually run and measured on the ground can the calls be reversed to ascertain the boundaries. Ayers v. Lancaster, 64 T. 305.

The order in which the surveyor gives the lines and corners in his certificate of the survey is immaterial; and where the thing to be determined is a line running from a fixed object, directly west a given distance, to another fixed object, and the object called for at the eastern end has been obliterated and that at the western end remains, the line may be determined by reversing the tracing, and running the proper course and distance from the western end. Griffin v. Roe, 2 U. C. 511.

In trespass to try title, the issue related to the east boundary line of plaintiff's league and labor of land. By following the calls of the field notes from the northwest corner of the grant (a point on a river), south along the river, then east, then north, and thence west, the point of beginning would not be reached by about 1,000 varas; whereas, by reversing the calls and traveling the lines east, south, and west, the south line would reach the river in about 1,000 varas less than called for in the notes. There was evidence tending to show that the north line had been surveyed, and that the south line had not. Held, that it was not error for the court to reverse the calls, and trace the lines east, south, and west, so as to harmonize the objects of the grant. Swenson v. Willsford, 84 T. 424, 19 S. W. 613.

It is not error in ascertaining the true locality of the back line of a survey fronting, with established corners, on a river, to reverse the calls of the survey, if it is found that thereby the discrepancy in the area of the survey is lessened, and the back line falls along the line of the alleged conflicting survey, which is, moreover, of prior date; the recognized rule being that the beginning corner in the certificate of survey is of no higher dignity than any other corner. Miles v. Sherwood, 84 T. 485, 19 S. W. 853.

The rule as to reversing the calls of a survey in order to establish a disputed boundary does not apply when the only evidence tending to identify any corner or line of the disputed land is evidence in reference to one corner, and the other boundary can be established by running course and distance. Pierce v. Schram (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 716.

If, by reversing the calls of a grant, a more accurate result can be obtained in locating the land surveyed than by following the order of the field notes, that method should be pursued. Burge v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 81.

Where it is apparent from the face of a deed that there is a mistake as to the directions in the calls for course and distance, the calls may be reversed in order to ascertain the intention of the grantor. Moore v. Loggins (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 183.

Where the calls mentioned in a deed conveying part of a survey are such that they would extend beyond the survey and would not close, but it is apparent from the deed itself which part of the survey was intended to be conveyed, the court, looking at the map and the other field notes, and seeing a way to harmonize the calls, may take part of them in reverse direction, so as to close the survey, and may ascertain by calculation from the area mentioned in the deed the direction of the last call, which would make clear the grantor's intention to convey certain land, and the deed is not void. William Carlisle & Co. v. King, 103 T. 620, 133 S. W. 241, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 681, and rehearing denied (Sup.) 133 S. W. 864.

Calls in the field notes of a survey may be reversed, when a call for a posterior line is more definite than the first line, and more clearly shows the footsteps of the surveyor; but otherwise the calls should be followed in the order given in the field notes. Daughtrey v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1060.

In determining the location of a survey, it is as lawful and persuasive to reverse the courses as to follow the order in the certificate. Crosby v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1110.

15. Location of corners.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

The ascertainment of any one corner of a survey is sufficient to identify it, where the courses and distances are given; and, in order to ascertain a corner, the surveyor is not confined to the discovery of landmarks called for in the field notes, but may resort to his recollection of objects not mentioned in the field notes. De Leon v. White, 9 T. 598.

Effect should be given to all the several corners of a survey if it can be done, and a second or third corner may be as useful in locating the survey as the beginning corner; but a third corner, which is at best doubtful, cannot, in fixing the position of the survey, prevail over the beginning corner; and especially is this the case where the survey in question is based upon an older one, and the beginning corner is identical with a corner of the older survey, which is identified on the ground. Hord v. Olivari (Sup.) 5 S. W. 57.

An instruction making the importance of an established northeast corner, in locating the north and west lines of a survey, dependent upon the jury's belief that such western line was not run, is erroneous, as such corner has the same weight for the purpose in question, whether the western line was run or not. Scott v. Pettigrew, 72 T. 321, 12 S. W. 161.

Where the beginning corner of a survey is the southwest, but the southeast corner is equally well identified, a charge limiting the jury to finding the unidentified northeast corner by the first and second lines from the southwest corner is erroneous, as the southeast corner is of equal importance, unless the line from the former corner was actually run and measured, and that from the latter not. Scott v. Pettigrew, 72 T. 321, 12 S. W. 161; Lancaster v. Ayers (Sup.) 12 S. W. 163.

In an action to establish a boundary line, where the beginning corner calls for a wild China tree, and none of the other corners or lines have been marked on the ground, it is error to charge that "a beginning corner is of no higher dignity or importance than any other corner of the survey," since the true location of the beginning corner is controlling. Ayers v. Beatty, 5 C. A. 491, 24 S. W. 366.

On an issue as to the location of land conveyed by courses and distances, it is error to instruct that, if a corner of an adjoining survey was a well-marked corner, the jury might adopt it as a beginning corner in locating the land in controversy, where a calculation from the corner of other adjoining surveys would vary such location, and there is testimony that a corner of the land in controversy was established at the place where the calculation from such other adjoining surveys would locate it, though the corner marks testified to as having been placed there are not mentioned in the deed or field notes of the land in controversy. Davis v. Coleman, 40 S. W. 606, 16 C. A. 310.

Whether or not land sued for was a part of plaintiff's survey turned on the position of its southwest corner. The field notes of the survey placed the beginning, the southeast corner, on the west line of an old survey, but calls in the north and south line for a railroad conflicted with calls for corners, and showed that the surveyor was mistaken either as to the location of the railroad or the west line of the old survey. From contemporaneous surveys it was apparent that the surveyor knew the location of the road, and actually placed the southeast corner east of such west line. Held, that a judgment for plaintiff was erroneous, since, by placing the beginning corner where the surveyor actually located it, and traversing the length of the south line, the southwest corner would fall short of the land in dispute. Hunt v. O'Brien (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 487.

A deed described land as commencing on an extension of a street a given distance from a city tract line which crosses the street obliquely at an acute angle from northeast to southwest. Held, that the deed called for a line at right angles from the city tract line, and not the longer line extending from the point where the tract line crossed the street. Raley v. Magendie (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 174, motion denied (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 1198.

16. Location of lines.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

If the line cannot be traced in its whole extent, still it is to be observed, and cannot be departed from where it can be found and traced, especially after long-continued occupancy in reference to it. George v. Thomas, 16 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 612.

When a surveyor sought to correct and enlarge a survey, which he had made with plainly marked lines and established corners, by simply running out one line from a corner of the tract, establishing no corner there, but calling for that distance in his field notes, and said notes called for the bearing trees at the corners established in the original survey, it was held that the true boundary line was that formed in the original survey, and that there was in fact no correction of the survey at all. Bartlett v. Hubert, 21 T. 8.

A deed purporting to convey "one hundred acres of the land, known in the division of the Morgan league as part of the lot No. 12, having the original lines of the said league for its north and south boundaries, and adjoined on the east by lot No. 11," is a specific grant of 100 acres, having for the western boundary a line running parallel with the west line of lot No. 11, so as to include 100 acres adjoining that lot. Lenon v. Walker, 2 U. C. 563.

A surveyor, in running a division line where it strikes the bend of a river, may go around the bend, and continue his line at a point on the river directly in the course of the line he was running, so as to give to the tract on each side of the line its proper quantity of land. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 3 S. W. 671.

If the beginning point is established, lines should be run in both directions as far as possible, and the gap closed as seems most consistent with all the calls. Hill v. Smith, 6 C. A. 312, 25 S. W. 1079.

Where a surveyor does not run on the ground some of the lines of the survey when he makes the location, but adopts lines run by a former surveyor, such lines must be followed, as if he actually ran them on the ground. Lester v. Hays, 38 S. W. 52, 14 C. A. 643.

The western boundary of the L. survey as called for in the patent being N., 30° W., and the western boundary of the S. survey as shown by the patent being the same, and the S. survey being north of the L. survey, and the northwest corner of the L. survey and the southwest corner of the S. survey being a common corner, the prolongation N., 30° W., of the west boundary of the L. survey, is the west boundary of the S. survey. Bullard v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 205.

The only question in an action to try title was whether the south line of lot 3 of a certain league extended to the south line of the league. A decree in partition had established six lots, the calls of lot 6 commencing at the northwest corner of the league; thence south 5,891 varas to the south boundary of the league; thence east; thence north to a certain bayou. The west line of each succeeding lot in descending numbers commenced at the northwest corner of the next higher numbered lot, and it was the same as the east line of such lot, and the second call was east. The north line of each of the lots was on the bayou. The field notes of lot 3 showed the first course to be south only 5,830 varas. Held, that the south boundary of lot 3 was at the league boundary, since the difference in distance was accounted for by the meander of the bayou on the north boundary. Lincoln v. Waddell (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 613.

A surveyor's map represented the land surveyed as being in the form of a square, with a straight line midway extending north and south across it, on either side of which line, and perpendicular to it, were eight rectangular parallelograms. Such north and south base line was the only work actually done upon the ground, the other lines being projected from it. A subsequent survey showed that it was not straight; the southwest corner of the northernmost league and the northwest corner of the league adjoining on the south, in the east tier of the block, being east of the line as described in the original survey. Held, in a boundary suit between the owners of the respective leagues, that the division line should be established by extending a line from said corner in an easterly direction, parallel with the north and south lines of the other league surveys in that tier of the block. Wise v. Sayles, 38 C. A. 229, 86 S. W. 775.

When some and not all of the lines of a survey were run, it becomes necessary for the jury to determine the location of the lines that were not run, as well as those that may be ascertained by following the footsteps of the surveyor. Upshur County v. Lewright (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1013, modifying 99 S. W. 441, on rehearing.

Where a boundary of a section line road sought to be opened was disputed, the authorities properly ran the disputed line upon the variation of the needle proved by test to have been employed in the blocks from which the complaining landowners' surveys take their connections. Smith v. Jarvis, 47 C. A. 185, 105 S. W. 1168.

Where two lines have been found, and the quantity can be obtained by connecting the termini by a straight line, the description would be so closed instead of running several lines of different courses and length to include the area. Poitevent v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 443, reversed, 103 T. 111, 124 S. W. 87.

In an action to establish a survey, the east line was in dispute. The evidence showed that the survey began at the southeast corner of an elder survey. The northwest corner and the southwest corner of the disputed survey were defined on the ground by the original bearing trees. Held, that the proper manner of establishing the eastern line of such survey was by running a line east from the northwest corner of the survey in dispute to the southeast corner of the elder survey, as established, by intersecting the south and east line of said survey from the known corners thereof, though it gives the survey in dispute an excess over the field notes, and then by running the line west from such southeast corner of the elder survey to the known northwest corner of the survey in dispute, and then south to its known southwest corner, then east the number of varas called for, thence north to the place of beginning, so that the survey will be run in accordance with its calls except that the calls for distances will be disregarded, which calls will be controlled by the calls for the bearing trees at the northwest and southwest corners of the survey. Byrd v. Langbein (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 206.

A call in a deed held to call for a straight line, and not a line with the bend of a road referred to. Conner v. Conner (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 233.

In all boundary disputes, the primary object is to ascertain the lines as they were located by the original surveyor, to which end his footsteps are to be followed, if possible. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science and Art (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1182.

17. Designation, quantity and location of land.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

A grantor's league extended up a river to the mouth of a creek, thence up the creek a certain distance, and the creek to the point where the league left it was navigable. The deed called for "all the upper half of the league, * * * including half of the front of said league on the river, and back for quantity." Held that, in determining the lines of the grantee's land, the river front referred to in the conveyance should be considered as including the land fronting on the creek as well as that actually on the river. Swisher v. Grumbles, 18 T. 164.

The owner of an unsold balance in a league of land made a deed for all and singular a certain piece or parcel of land containing 1,000 acres, situated and described as follows: "In Harris county, and on the Buffalo bayou, adjoining the city of Houston, being the part of the league granted to R." Held that, as against a subsequent vendee of the maker of such deed, the unsold balance of the league passed, although it contained more than 1,000 acres. Hunter v. Morse, 49 T. 219.

The description in a deed was as follows, viz.: "Beginning at the west corner of the G. survey; thence S., 45° E., to B.'s corner; thence N., 45° E., to B.'s corner on T.'s line; thence N., 45° W., to the south boundary line of the E. survey; thence S., 45° W., to the beginning,—to include 571 acres of land; and, if said point will not include enough land to make the complement, 571 acres, it is to run north on said E. survey for the deficit." Held, that it passed all the grantor's land in the G. league, bounded on one side by B.'s line and on the other by T.'s line, and that what it lacked of 571 acres should be supplied from the E. league. Johnson v. Garrett, 25 T. Sup. 13.

A deed conveying a portion of a block of land described the boundaries as "beginning with the southeast corner of the block; thence west, with the south boundary line of said block, — varas, to a stake"; and then gave the remaining boundaries by courses and distances, "so as to contain five acres of land off the east side of the block." Held, that the deed limited the quantity of land intended to be conveyed to five acres, and that the length of the first line called for in the deed was not specified because it was intended for that line to be only long enough, when considered with the other calls in the deed, to make an area of five acres. Henry v. Whitaker, 82 T. 5, 17 S. W. 509.

A description of land in a deed gave the length and direction of three lines, running from the beginning point south, east, and north to a well-defined point, thence calling to go west and south far enough to include 400 acres conveyed. There was nothing to indicate that the lines thus given would not close, but a calculation demonstrated that a line running from the northeast corner only such a distance west as that a line running south from the northwest corner would reach the beginning point would not embrace the 400 acres within the boundaries described. The defect in the description consisted in the failure to state the length of two of the lines, and the omission of a line necessary to close the survey. Held, that the description was not fatally defective, but would be sustained by supplying the line necessary to close the survey, which would include the quantity. Tompkins v. Thomas, 54 C. A. 440, 118 S. W. 581.

18. Maps, plats and field notes.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

Where there is a conflict as to the location of land by a survey, but two corners thereof can be definitely identified, the courses and distances may be ascertained from the field notes, and the entire survey constructed therefrom. Rand v. Cartwright, 82 T. 399, 18 S. W. 794.

It is error to charge that the intention of a surveyor that a line should run the distance called for in his field notes, rather than to a corner called for, must be determined by evidence outside of the call, in the notes themselves. Mock v. Hatcher (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 30.

The field notes of a surveyor stated that on a line running from a corner he found a corner with bearings, and that the point where he found the bearings was a specified distance south of another corner. Another surveyor, making a survey and map, showed by his measurements that such corner with bearings was not that distance from the corner referred to in the field notes. Held, that the field notes were not evidence of the location of the corner with the bearings. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

Field notes do not locate lines on the ground, but merely furnish data by which surveyors can locate them. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Morin, 53 C. A. 531, 116 S. W. 656.

Where two adjoining lots in a block are conveyed in accordance with the plat of the block, their boundaries will be located in accordance with such plat, and they will not be affected by the transfer, by the same owner, of another lot under a prior plat, giving the lots different widths and boundaries. Toudouze v. Keller (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 185.

The term "field notes" in its ordinary sense are the notes made by the surveyor in the field while making a survey, describing by course and distance, and by natural or artificial marks found or made by him, where he ran the lines and made the corners. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

Where a map attached to the grant of a Mexican state has letters on which, without any explanation, are meaningless, but under the map in the original grant is an explanation of the same, made by the surveyor general, showing that the letters indicate the boundaries of surrounding surveys, the explanation indorsed on the map is a part thereof. Id.

19. Adjoining or adjacent lands.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

The line of a tract of land may as well be the subject of a call as any other object. Marshall v. Crawford, 2 U. C. 477.

Where a deed calls for the corner of a survey as it was supposed to be at the time of execution, and it is afterwards found that the survey was wrongly located, it will, if such was the intention of the parties, convey the land located where the corner of the survey was supposed to be, and not land situated where the true corner is subsequently established. Koenigheim v. Miles, 67 T. 113, 2 S. W. 81.

A subsequent locator is not entitled to rely upon a single call in a previous survey of an adjoining grant to determine the boundary line, when such call is in conflict with others. Davidson v. Killen, 68 T. 406, 4 S. W. 561.

The boundaries of a survey may be located by surrounding surveys referred to in its field notes, though its corners and lines cannot be found on the ground, and though there is a discrepancy in its area between the field notes and its boundaries as so located. Longoria v. Shaeffer, 77 T. 547, 14 S. W. 160.

Where the boundaries of a survey cannot be located by its own calls and field notes, they may be established by the field notes of adjacent surveys. Kuechler v. Wilson, 82 T. 638, 18 S. W. 317.

An action of trespass to try title to land involved the question of whether the land sought to be recovered was a part of the Mary Beacham league or a vacancy between that survey and the Punchard league. In the field notes of the Mary Beacham its west line called for the east line of league No. 3. League No. 3 was afterwards resurveyed, and called the "Punchard league." There was not so much land in the new survey, and the distances and boundaries were not the same, and the north line of the Mary Beacham, on being run from its northeast corner, as called for by witness trees, gets its complement before reaching the east line of the Punchard survey, leaving vacant the amount of land sought to be recovered, except about eight acres, conceded to be in the Mary Beacham. Held, that such land, with the exception of the eight acres specified, did not form a part of the Mary Beacham league, but was a vacancy between that survey and the Punchard league. Moore v. McCown (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 1112.

A junior survey was located between the lines of two older surveys—east of one and west of another. Held, that the older surveys must be determined by their field notes, and, when ascertained, they fixed the location and quantity of the junior dependent survey. Bennett v. Latham, 45 S. W. 934, 18 C. A. 403.

Where the field notes of a surveyor concerning the location of bearing trees in another survey are inconsistent, they are no evidence of the location of the bearing trees, which had disappeared. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

The only work actually done on the ground in locating sections of two tracts of land was to establish a corner of one section in one tract and the corner of another section in the other tract, then found to be a designated number of miles apart east and west, and to meander streams and to run lines two miles apart through the territory intended to be appropriated by the sections to form the tracts. From data furnished by such work the tracts were platted and their field notes made in the surveyor's office. Held, that no one of the sections forming the tracts could be regarded as having been actually surveyed, and its lines and corners fixed on the ground. Austin v. Espuela Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1138.

Tracts 1 and 2 were surveyed at about the same time by same surveyor, but no survey in either tract called for any survey in the other. The work actually done on the ground consisted in locating a corner of a section in each tract. Thereafter surveys of lands adjacent to tract 1 were made, the field notes of which called for a beginning at a corner in tract 1. Held, that there was nothing to indicate any reason why the surveys in tract 1 and in the lands adjacent should not be constructed from the identified corner in tract 1, without any resort to the corner in tract 2. Id.

Where the calls for course and distance of a disputed boundary are inconsistent, lines in adjacent surveys tied to those in controversy can be consulted in determining the true boundary. Kingsley v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 105.

Any facts which tended to show the actual footsteps of the surveyor in making the different subdivisions that compose the respective blocks could be used to ascertain the boundaries of the blocks, which were merely the boundaries of the outside subdivisions, and, where no mark could be found designating and fixing the lines of the outside subdivisions, they could be fixed by marked corners and footsteps around inside surveys to which they were tied by the field notes. Taft v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 437.

It is only in the absence of other means of identification that known calls in other surveys can be appealed to, to locate a tract of land. Id.

Where the northeast corner and east line of a tract of land conveyed corresponded with the same corner and line of a larger grant, held, that it must be assumed that the southeast corners also corresponded. Morse's Heirs v. Williams (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1186.

Deeds executed on same day held to be construed together, in determining a boundary line. Id.

A survey of a junior grant entirely surrounded by senior grants held an office survey, disclosing an intention of the surveyor to extend the boundaries of the junior grant to the boundaries of the senior grants. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

20. Waters and water courses.—Conflicting elements, see ante.

A right in private individuals to the flats in front of their lots out to the channel may be devoted to wharves and the like, without being subject to the control of the public. City of Galveston v. Menard, 23 T. 349.

In the absence of all other evidence, where the deed, in defining the boundary of the appellant's land, said, "thence down the main channel of the Comal spring," the thread of the stream of the Comal was the utmost limit of the rights of the appellant. Muller v. Landa, 31 T. 265, 98 Am. Dec. 529.

Under a grant to a city of land described as extending to the seashore, and bounded by it, the shore is not included, and the city cannot interfere with bath houses erected on the shore, unless they constitute a nuisance. Galveston City Surf Bathing Co. v. Heidenheimer, 63 T. 559.

21. — Meandered waters.—A deed described the property conveyed in part as follows: "Thence down said creek with its meanders as follows: East 200 vrs.; south, 45 deg. E., 590 vrs.; east 620 vrs., corner at junction of branch, whence a lyn brs. N., 86 deg. E., 3 vrs. distant, and an elm brs. N., 10 deg. E., 7 vrs. distant. Thence up said branch with its meanders as follows: North 130 vrs.; N., 45 deg. W., 150 vrs.; north 360 vrs., a lyn brs. N., 70 deg. W., 2 vrs." Held, that the meandering of the branch was the boundary to the end of the call last recited, and a claim that the line should follow course and distance was untenable. Griffin v. Barbee, 68 S. W. 698, 29 C. A. 325.

Although a grant calls for marked corners upon the bank of a nonnavigable stream, and for a line or lines between such corners which do not correspond with the center of the stream, yet the boundary line extends to the center of the stream, unless there is a clear intent that the grantor wished otherwise. Dutton v. Vierling (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 450.

22. — Accretion and avulsion.—When a stream, being a boundary, alters its channel by a gradual process of wear, the boundary shifts with the channel; but, if it changes the same violently and visibly, as by making "a cut-off," the boundary adheres to the abandoned channel. Collins v. State, 3 T. App. 323, 30 Am. Rep. 142.

Where a river forming a boundary line of plaintiff's premises has, through avulsion, changed its channel, plaintiff is not entitled to recover land beyond the thread of the river as it was before the change. Rodriguez v. Hernandez, 79 S. W. 343, 35 C. A. 78.

A city had no authority to prevent the removal by plaintiff of a bank of gravel which had been formed as an accretion to plaintiff's land, which abutted on a river, though a portion of the accretion was within the city limits, where such removal did not interfere with the proper use of the city streets or create a nuisance. Goar v. City of Rosenberg, 53 C. A. 218, 115 S. W. 653.

23. — Islands.—Where, by the terms of a grant of islands, the entire area was bounded by the east and west forks of the river, such fact did not preclude the idea that some of such islands, as shown by the maps, were divided from others by smaller streams flowing from such forks. Petrucio v. Gross (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 43.

A finding that the land in controversy, consisting of an island, was embraced within the boundaries of a certain grant, by fixing the extreme northern point of the islands comprising such grant at over three leagues from the mouth of the river, was not erroneous, as being in conflict with the terms of the grant, where such grant, which conceded one league of land bounded by the east and west forks of the river, definitely located its extreme southern point at about one-half league from the mouth of the river, and the maps and sketches in evidence showed that the width thereof was greatly less than the length of a side of a square league. Id.

24. Public ways.—An owner platted his land into lots, blocks, and streets. The location of the streets on the ground could not be fixed from information derived from the unrecorded plat or from any defined monuments, either natural or placed on the ground by the surveyor of the plat. The dedicatory sold and pointed out the lines of streets to lots sold, and the city opened the streets in accordance with such designation. Held, that the lines pointed out by the dedicatory should govern as to subsequent purchasers. Haynes v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 434.

The sale of land bounded by an alley carries to the purchaser the fee to the center of the alley, unless otherwise provided expressly or by clear implication; that the grantor, after conveying the land, intended to withhold his interest in the alley, being never presumed. Wiess v. Goodhue, 46 C. A. 142, 102 S. W. 793.

A deed conveying the blocks on each side of a street passes the title to the fee of the street to the grantee. Cocke v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 46 C. A. 363, 103 S. W. 407.

25. Railroad rights of way.—The right of way of a railroad is not a public highway, within the rule of construction of deeds to lands bounded by a public highway, in such sense as to make a deed calling for a right of way as a boundary convey the owner's interest in the land between the boundary of the right of way and the railroad track. Judgment (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 847, reversed. Couch v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 99 T. 464, 90 S. W. 860.

26. Priority of grants and deeds.—Act Feb. 1, 1845, requiring owners of land by titles from the Mexican government, the lines of which were not correctly marked, to have the same resurveyed and plots returned to the land office, which plots would be delineated on the county maps, after which they were to be regarded as the only true boundaries of said land, not being compulsory, where the owner of such a grant failed to avail himself of it, and the land was patented to another, the elder grant, if capable of identification, must prevail. Byrne v. Fagan, 16 T. 391.

Where two surveys are contemporaneous, neither can claim any advantage over the other from mere priority in the date of the final title. Nor can the boundary of one be enlarged by reason of the other being pronounced invalid by the courts years afterwards. Welder v. Carroll, 29 T. 317.

It appeared that a certain road, constituting the dividing line between plaintiffs' and defendants' lands, could not be precisely located by physical evidences on the ground; that the meanders of such road were given by calls for courses and distances in the field notes of the original, unauthorized survey of defendants' land only, and not in those of the survey of plaintiffs' land, which was made first, but was not shown to have been authorized; that neither of these sets of field notes called for the other; that a re-survey of plaintiffs' land, upon which their patent was issued, was made subsequent to another survey of defendants' land, and the issue of their patent thereon; and that the meanders of the road, as called for in the respective patents, were irreconcilable. Held, that the original survey of defendants' land was superseded by that upon which their patent was issued, and that the latter will prevail over that of plaintiffs' junior patent. Griffith v. Rife, 72 T. 185, 12 S. W. 168.

27. Priority of surveys.—Where, in a conflict as to the boundaries between two surveys, it appears that the later survey was not made on the ground, but in the surveyor's office, and from his memory of a former survey, and that it called for certain trees as an established corner of an adjoining survey, while in fact the trees were not on such survey, the former survey must control. Fenley v. Flowers, 5 C. A. 191, 23 S. W. 749.

Where the original surveys agree with maps that have been in use for many years, they should not be held erroneous because they do not agree with resurveys made long afterwards, and based upon the assumption that information furnished by living persons as to the locality of lines and corners is absolutely correct. McCombs v. Sheldon (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1114.

The location of original corners by a subsequent survey is not conclusive where such location is not based on an actual discovery of then existing corners. Knippa v. Umlang (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 915.

Where marks on a line of a survey were not quite as old as those on the surrounding older surveys, but there was evidence that the marks were not as old as those on other lines of the same survey, no presumption exists that such line was not run by the original surveyor of the tract, but by the patentee thereof, after the original survey. Morgan v. Mowles (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 155.

Where, in an action to establish the boundaries of a senior survey, defendant opposes marked lines made in delineating a junior survey, together with proof of the general reputation and recognition of surveyors in making contiguous surveys, but no witness claims to have found evidence of the original junior survey, and there is no evidence of possession or acquiescence, held, that the courses and distances must control, and the junior yield to the senior survey. Hornberger v. Giddings, 71 S. W. 989, 31 C. A. 283.

Where a survey previously located has its beginning and last corners on a river and the other corners in a prairie, other adjoining surveys, made subsequently by different surveyors, identifying the prairie corners by artificial objects, which are not called for in the previous survey, are not admissible to extend the distances in the previous survey from the known corners. Matthews v. Thatcher, 76 S. W. 61, 33 C. A. 133.

A party claiming under a prior survey has a vested right in the lands embraced in the boundaries of the survey as against one claiming under a subsequent survey. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

The field notes of a junior survey cannot be resorted to for the purpose of creating an ambiguity in the calls of a senior survey. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

Where the call for distances in a senior survey includes land in a junior survey, and there is nothing to limit the force of the call for distances in the senior survey, the call for distances therein controls. Id.

The rule that a prior location made by an office survey is valid, and will prevail over any subsequent survey, though actually surveyed on the ground, that may conflict therewith, since the prior location appropriates the land, has no application where the calls in an office survey limit the boundary in a certain direction to a line of another survey well marked with a corner established, which was actually made on the ground, and where the call for distance conflicts with the call for such line. Shindler v. Lutzer & Moore Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 941.

Where the calls in an office survey are based on another survey actually made on the ground and established at the time, both surveys recognizing a landmark which could only be known by an actual survey, the fact that the field notes of the office survey were dated one day earlier than the field notes of the actual survey did not affect the priority of the actual survey. Id.

A survey takes its position on the ground according to its own field notes, uncontrolled by calls in the field notes of junior adjacent surveys. Williams v. McLeroy (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 251.

The weight to be given to a call for a line or corner of a senior survey in determining the land included in a junior survey depends on whether the lines or corners of the senior survey were probably known to the surveyor at the time of the junior survey. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

28. Remedies for establishment of boundaries.—A suit will not lie to have judicially ascertained and determined a division line, if the line had been run by former owners, and could be in part discovered. George v. Thomas, 16 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 612.

Where a suit is brought by one of two owners of contiguous land, to compel the other to permit him to run the dividing line, and it appears that the line had been run by former owners, it was held that the right to have a divisional line run and judicially established, if necessary, rests on the same principle as a right to an action for specific performance. Id.

Equity does not take jurisdiction of a suit to settle a boundary between adjoining landowners, merely because the line is in dispute, but there must be some additional ground of equity jurisdiction. Nye v. Hawkins, 65 T. 600.

An ambiguity in the description in a deed, arising when it is sought to apply the description to the property, may be corrected in an action to establish a boundary, and a resort to equity is unnecessary. Sloan v. King, 77 S. W. 48, 33 C. A. 537.

29. — Practice and procedure.—See notes under Titles 37 and 128.

30. — Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

31. — Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—The verdict gave defendant a lot 20 varas in depth, to sustain which some evidence was given. One witness swore that the depth by actual measurement made by him was 21 varas, but he measured from a point shown to him by plaintiff's son, which was not established as a true point by proof. Held, that the evidence of measurement did not have a conclusive effect on the finding of the jury. McCarthy v. Cabrera, 17 T. 629.

If a boundary line between two surveys was marked on the ground, and it can be ascertained by a resurvey, following the calls in the title and map forming part of it and the ancient landmarks made by the original surveyor, or if its locality can be proved by witnesses from their personal knowledge or on information derived from general reputation, or from its having been pointed out to them by the surveyor by whom it was run, or others who were present at the time and cognizant of the fact, this will fix its position, though there may be a discrepancy between its position thus ascertained and that given by the calls or plat on the grant. Welder v. Carroll, 29 T. 317.

The fact that a certain line of survey was generally, but erroneously, understood to be at a certain place, should be considered in determining what weight ought to be given to the calls for that line in a deed to a neighboring tract; and in determining what lands were conveyed by such deed, other calls therein may be given a controlling influence. Jones v. Powers, 65 T. 207.

The report of a surveyor appointed by the court is entitled to no more weight as evidence than the testimony of a witness who knows the facts. McAninch v. Freeman, 69 T. 445, 4 S. W. 369.

If the evidence in the case, from all the surrounding and connecting circumstances, satisfies the jury that the true location of a grant can be more certainly found by running courses and distances, called for in the field notes from such corners as they may find to be marked and established on the ground, than by observing the calls for natural or artificial objects, they must so determine it. Bigham v. McDowell, 69 T. 100, 7 S. W. 315.

Where there are two conflicting surveys, and the evidence of a surveyor who ran the lines of both showed with reasonable certainty the true location of the disputed boundary to be as alleged by plaintiff, and there is no evidence to establish a different line, judgment should be for plaintiff. Houston v. Brown (Sup.) 8 S. W. 318.

In an action to try title to land, where the title depends upon the location of a line, proof beyond a reasonable doubt is not necessary. Scott v. Pettigrew, 72 T. 321, 12 S. W. 161.

Where there is evidence that a surveyor was mistaken as to where he was when he located a certain survey, it is proper to allow the survey to stand as he testifies he located it, without crediting his testimony as to where he was. Hume v. Hernstadt (Sup.) 12 S. W. 285.

In trespass to try title it appeared that the northeast corner of plaintiff's land was the northwest corner of defendant's land, but no natural or artificial object was called for by the field notes. Plaintiff's northwest corner and defendant's southwest corner were well identified, and, following course and distance from the corners, located the boundary line as claimed by plaintiff. Defendant's land was surveyed in 1838, and the line located where he claimed it, which was recognized until 1860, when a new survey was made, and the line established about 347 feet east of the line as first located. At that time, commencing at the well-established southwest corner of defendant's land, defendant's west line could be traced by marks and trees, as called for in the field notes, to about three-fourths of a mile from the point where the divergence begins. Afterwards another survey was made, beginning at plaintiff's well-established northwest corner, and course and distance were followed for the northeast corner, defendant's northwest corner, and the line was found to be as claimed by plaintiff. Defendant surveyed again in 1887, and located the line as claimed by him. Held, that a judgment for defendant was without evidence to support it. Porter v. Miller, 76 T. 593, 13 S. W. 555, 14 S. W. 334.

In trespass to try title the contention between the parties depended on the proper quantity of land in the original grant under which defendants claimed. The official maps of the county, and the testimony of those who had been the county surveyors for many years, and others who had made surveys of the grant, showed that it cornered at a stone, and at a tree marked with the grantee's initials, which were, according to testimony, established by the colonial surveyor, and had been for 50 years recognized as the true monuments. According to this evidence the grant was as claimed by defendants. Plaintiffs' evidence consisted of old surveys, maps, and field notes purporting to have been made by the colonial surveyor, giving courses and distances, and monuments not easily distinguishable, showing the grant as claimed by plaintiffs. Held, that defendant's evidence should prevail. Withers v. O'Connor, 76 T. 185, 13 S. W. 743.

Where the field notes of a survey, and maps made by different county surveyors, show that the west line of a certain survey is the east line of a former survey, and that line is taken as the boundary for more than 47 years, the fact that the courses and distances of the respective surveys show a gap between them is not sufficient, after such lapse of time, to prove that the surveys do not actually adjoin. Standlee v. Burkitt, 78 T. 616, 14 S. W. 1040.

Surveys Nos. 323 and 324 were patented to plaintiff's husband. In 1870 his agent employed one B. to survey No. 324, and one W. had him survey No. 323. B. did not find the corners called for in the field notes, and located the lines by their relation to the lines of other surveys as shown by a land-office plat. Soon afterwards W. purchased No. 323 by the description given in the patent. In 1879 the bearing trees called for by the field notes were discovered, and the lines were run in accordance therewith. The survey of 1870 gives the land in dispute to the intervener, who claims under W., and that of 1879 gives it to No. 324. Held, that a verdict sustaining the survey of 1879 should not be disturbed. Koenigheim v. Sherwood, 79 T. 508, 16 S. W. 23.

In trespass to try title the controversy was in respect to the location of the boundary between the Stone and Woodford leagues, which was the north boundary of the land in suit. Several leagues, including the Stone and Woodford leagues, were located contiguous to each other by a surveyor in 1834; and the evidence showed that they were surveyed on a common base line. In running out the Duggins league, and the Hood and Stone leagues, north of it, the north boundary of the Duggins was clearly established. The field notes of the Woodford called for the northeast corner of the Duggins, and a continuation of the north line of the Duggins was intended to be the north line of the Woodford. Plaintiff claimed that the northeast corner of the Duggins, which was also the northwest corner of the Woodford, was fixed by an elm about 135 yards north of the base line, as the line was indicated by all the other evidence. The call in the Duggins field notes was "an elm, 15 inches in diameter, brs. S. 88° E., 21 vrs.; and a hackberry, 10 inches in diameter, brs. N., 86° W., 28 vrs." The bearing claimed by plaintiff was "an elm, marked 'H,' in a small prairie," which was described by two witnesses as a tree marked by them as a guide to the corner. There was in fact an elm 135 varas south of the corner, as claimed by plaintiff, marked with old colony marks. The Woodford league was a square, whose sides were 5,000 varas; and, running the west line by course and distance, both trees were near the continuation of the line, but the distance gave out before defendant's elm was reached, and the distance to plaintiff's elm was 5,240 varas. No witness undertook to identify the corner positively. There was even more doubt about the northeast corner of the Woodford. Held, that plaintiff failed to sustain the line as claimed by him. Stephens v. Motl, 82 T. 81, 18 S. W. 99.

The northeast and southeast corners of a survey were well known, and marked on the ground. The calls were for north and south boundaries of 698 varas in length. If the southwest corner, designated as the beginning point, be located according to the call in a certain direction, and at a certain distance from a certain corner of another tract, then the north and south boundaries would be 1,900 varas in length, and the survey would contain more than twice the amount of land it was intended to appropriate. Neither the western boundary line, nor either of the corners therein, nor trees or rock piles referred to as being at such corners, could be found on the ground, locating the southwest corner according to the calls therefor. If, however, the west boundary be located 698 varas west of the east boundary, the survey would contain all that it was intended to appropriate, and at the corners would be found rock piles and the stool of a tree, which might be those referred to in the description. Moreover, one of the chain bearers testified that in making the survey the lines were run on the ground commencing at the northeast corner, and that they ran north and south boundary lines, about 700 varas in length. Held, that the jury were justified in finding the western boundary of the survey to be 698 varas west of the east line as determined by the corners on the ground. Lumpkin v. Draper (Sup.) 18 S. W. 1058.

Plaintiff and defendant owned adjoining tracts of land, the two together constituting a parallelogram. The controversy involved a strip of 40 acres lying between the two, caused by a prolongation of defendant's side lines from 1,900 to 2,200 varas as alleged by him. Defendant's survey called for 1,900 varas, but he offered parol evidence to show that the lines actually laid down by the surveyors were 2,200 varas long. The south-east, northwest, and southwest corners of defendant's survey were positively identified, and the distances between them were found to be those set out in his survey. The evidence of two witnesses, relied on by defendant to show the extension, differed as much as 54 varas as to the length of his side lines. Held, in view of such difference, and of the fact that defendant's tract could be located without difficulty according to the calls of his deed, that plaintiff was entitled to judgment. Williams v. Winslow, 84 T. 371, 19 S. W. 513.

Courses and distances must yield to the demands of an actual survey when the evidence determines the fact of such survey; so that, where the surveyor's field notes show actual surveys on the ground, and the lines and corners thereof are called for as contiguous, and evidence of such surveys are still found which reasonably indicate an excess in the distance of the lines of 260 varas in 7,116 varas, at the date of the survey (1856), considered trifling, and a slight variance of 75 varas in the course, these discrepancies should not overcome the other evidence pointing to the fact that the surveys are contiguous. Graham v. Dewees, 85 T. 395, 20 S. W. 127.

On an issue as to whether there was a vacancy between the east line of the A. survey and the west line of the C. T. R. R. Co. surveys Nos. 1 and 2, which lay contiguous—one north of the other—it appeared that the south line of the A. survey, in terms, ran "east 1,866 varas to the west line of the C. T. R. R. Co. survey No. 2, thence north 3,670 varas to the northwest corner of the C. T. R. R. Co. survey No. 1," and the field notes of the A. survey stated that the east line of that survey and the west line of the C. T. R. R. Co. surveys were coincident. It further appeared that the existence of a vacancy between the two lines would involve a violation of the west call of the A. survey, while the absence of such vacancy would harmonize with the surrounding surveys. Held, that a verdict finding such a vacancy to exist was against the weight of the evidence, and should be set aside. Waggoner v. Daniels, 4 C. A. 354, 23 S. W. 738.

In a suit concerning the boundary line between lands of H. and A., the surveyor, who had located the line by order of the court, fixed it as claimed by H., by objects on the ground, which were called for in deeds to H. and his vendors. There was evidence that H. acquiesced in such line, and that his vendors had recognized it, and that a tree called for near a stream had been washed away, but another tree, marked and described as the one called for in the deed, stood in the proper position, and was positively identified by the surveyor as the call in the deed. Held sufficient to establish the boundary line as claimed by H. Adams v. Halff (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 334.

All parties claimed under a partition decree about 35 years old. A surveyor appointed by the court reported that he had run the north line of the survey from east to west, finding most of the bearing trees described in said decree, and some stakes; that he found the east line of the west quarter, which had been set off in the partition, plainly marked; that at defendant's request he then ran the north line east from the point which defendant asserted to be the west corner of the league, said point being 520 varas east of the point asserted by the plaintiff, and fixed by witness in running the line west, and failed to find any bearing trees, and found a conflict of 520 varas. Two county surveyors testified that they had surveyed the same land, and come to the same conclusion. Held, that the west line was as contended by plaintiff. Butts v. Caffall (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 373.

Where, in trespass to try title, the issue is as to the location of a boundary line, and the evidence is conflicting, all that can be required of plaintiff is to show the line, as claimed by him, by a preponderance of the evidence. Briggs v. Pierson, 7 C. A. 638, 26 S. W. 467.

Where defendant claims title through a survey whose calls are the lines of certain older surveys which are supposed to surround it, if no vacancy exists between such surveys, the verdict should be for plaintiff. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartz (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 782.

The field notes of the survey in suit and those of another tract, surveyed at about the same time, called for a common bearing tree at the southwest corner of the tract in suit. A marked tree was found, and the original bearing trees of adjoining surveys, calling for the southwest corner of the tract in suit, were identified. A line run by following the lines of an older survey towards the point where it had a common bearing tree with the southwest corner of the tract in suit fell short only 34 varas of the point at which a surveyor appointed by the court had fixed such corner. Held, that the evidence sufficiently established the position of the southwest corner. Stanus v. Smith, 8 C. A. 685, 30 S. W. 262.

In an action involving the question of boundary, the jury adopted a survey reported by S., except that they established the southwest corner 106 varas west of where S. located it. There was evidence that S. measured the south line from the bank of a river, that it was about 106 varas from the bank to the top of a bluff where there were cedar trees, that the surveys made prior to the grant called for a cedar tree at such point, and that the river had materially moved its channel eastward. Held, that the verdict, as to such corner, was supported by the evidence. Taylor v. Brown (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 312.

An original plat called for a tree that was identified by marks made on it by the maker of the original survey, and, starting from the point fixed by the tree, the plat fixed the direction of a line which plaintiff claimed was the boundary in controversy, and on which defendants had erected a stone wall. Defendants' surveyors fixed another line, but they did not deny the existence of the tree nor explain why they disregarded it in making their survey. Held, that a judgment for defendants was not sustained. Ostrom v. Layer (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1095.

The field notes of the S. survey, under which plaintiff claimed title to the land in dispute, called for the beginning corner at the northwest corner of the L. survey. The southwest corner of the latter survey was well established and recognized, and a line run therefrom N., 30° W., 1,400 varas, reached the point claimed by plaintiff as the beginning corner of the S. survey. This point was designated in the field notes as a rock mound, whence a willow tree bore S., 36° E.; and, though these monuments were not found, a surveyor testified that, in making a survey in 1879, he located the northwest corner of the L. survey by running course and distance from its southwest corner, and found an old mound of rock answering the description in the field notes, and that, while he did not find the willow tree, he did find a branch where the course and distance willows had grown, and there were stumps of willows at the proper bearing and distances from said course. The calls in the field notes of defendant's patent made defendant's east line overlap the west line of the S. survey as thus ascertained 222 varas. Held, that the evidence showed that the true location of the southwest corner of the S. survey was at the northwest corner of the L. survey, and that the land described in defendant's patent overlapped plaintiff's west line 222 varas. Bullard v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 205.

Where to establish the line of a survey at a certain tree, claimed by one party to be an original line tree, would do violence to the course of such line and the width of the survey as originally called for, but to place it according to the contention of the other party would conform to the original calls, a judgment in favor of the latter was proper. Richardson v. McCullough (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 974.

Evidence in suit to establish the boundary between adjoining owners held sufficient to establish that claimed by defendant. McCulloch v. Patman (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1012.

In an action involving a disputed boundary line, evidence held to sustain a judgment in favor of defendants. Barrow v. Lyons, 38 C. A. 585, 86 S. W. 773.

On an issue as to the location of a boundary, evidence held insufficient to show the existence of a monument called for in a deed under which one of the parties claimed. Chew v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 925.

The declaration of a former owner of land as to his boundary line, corroborated by evidence of general reputation during a long period of time, is, in the absence of opposing evidence, sufficient to sustain a finding locating the boundary accordingly. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 898.

In an action of trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to support a judgment sustaining the contention of the plaintiff as to the location of a boundary. Camp v. League (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1062.

In trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to sustain the court's finding as to the location of a boundary. Harris County Irr. Co. v. Hornberger, 42 C. A. 450, 94 S. W. 145.

Evidence on the issue of the location of a boundary between senior and junior surveys examined, and held not to locate lost bearing trees called for in the senior survey, and the distances called for therein control. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

In trespass to try title, evidence examined, and held to show that the boundary line of a survey was located as claimed by defendants. Davidson v. Equitable Securities Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 787.

On an issue as to the location of a boundary, evidence considered, and held sufficient to sustain the finding of the jury as to the location. Beckham v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 131.

Where, in trespass to try title, plaintiffs claimed under the P. grant and a witness who was a surveyor, civil engineer, and chief draftsman in the general land office testified that the P. survey could not be identified, mapped, or patented because it did not call for any other surveys or objects that appeared on the official map by which its relative position could be determined, and that he was unable to locate the P. survey by the calls for its lines contained in two adjoining surveys, the field notes of the latter surveys shown to be delineated on official maps, which called for the boundary lines of the P. survey, did not necessarily establish the location of such survey on the ground with such certainty as to require a finding that the land described in plaintiffs' petition was part of the P. grant. McDonald v. Downs, 45 C. A. 215, 99 S. W. 892.

Where plaintiff in trespass to try title seeks to overcome the proof that the calls for course and distance and the description of his tract, as shown by his deed, are definite, and sufficient to locate a corner with precision, and the location so made is in accord both with the configuration of the tract and with the quantum of land specified, and establish the corner at another place, he can do so only by showing with reasonable certainty, not only the existence of the monument or natural object mentioned in his field notes, but that the object is in conflict with the calls for course and distance contained in it. Jaggers v. Stringer, 106 S. W. 151, 47 C. A. 571.

On the issue of the existence of vacancies between surveys, evidence held to warrant a finding that vacancies did not exist. Austin v. Espuela Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1138.

In trespass to try title involving disputed boundaries, testimony by a tenant of one of the tracts that the owner of the other had pointed out the boundary line, but not showing that they had an agreement that it should be placed at that point, was insufficient to establish a boundary by agreement or create an estoppel. Hunter v. Malone, 49 C. A. 116, 108 S. W. 709.

Evidence, in an action involving the position of a survey, held to sustain a finding as to the location of the corners. Simpson v. De Ramirez, 50 C. A. 25, 110 S. W. 149.

In an action involving the location of a boundary line, evidence held to establish plaintiff's claim. Franklin v. Texas Savings & Real Estate Inv. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1166.

In trespass to try title, in which the defense was that a prior survey fully covered the land called for by plaintiff's patent, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the boundaries of the prior survey were certain and fully covered the land claimed by plaintiff, and left nothing to satisfy plaintiff's patent. Hackbarth v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 591.

In an action to determine the boundary between two surveys, evidence held to show that the true line ran so as to include the disputed land in defendants' survey. Guill v. O'Bryan (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 593.

Evidence held to sustain a judgment establishing a boundary line between certain surveys. Myers v. Moody (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 920.

Evidence held to show that the south boundary line of a tract conveyed out of a survey was the south boundary of such survey, as referred to in the deed, and not a line a certain distance south of a point designated on a plat. Ramseur v. Ball (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 590.

In trespass to try title to determine the location of a boundary, evidence held to sustain a verdict fixing the boundary in accordance with plaintiff's contention. Walker v. Hollis (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 567.

In an action by the state to recover a tract claimed to exist as a vacancy between a survey purchased by defendants under the 50-cent act (Acts Sp. Sess. 16th Leg. c. 52) and certain leagues, evidence held to sustain a finding that no vacancy existed, in that defendant's survey was actually located on the ground along the boundary line of such leagues. State v. Sulflow (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 652.

In trespass to try title, in which the controverted question was the location of the north boundary of a certain survey, evidence held to sustain a finding that such line was as claimed by defendant. Cochran v. Casey (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1145.

Evidence in a suit to determine the boundary between two surveys held to sustain the finding as to the location thereof. Cleveland v. Bruce Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1188.

In trespass to try title to a strip of land plaintiff introduced in evidence deeds under which defendant claimed, which deeds described the land as a lot of a city block fronting on a designated street. According to the position of the block as indicated by monuments erected by the city after plaintiff and a remote grantee of defendant had acquired their respective tracts, the strip was a part of plaintiff's lots. The undisputed evidence did not show that the block had been correctly fixed as to its original position by the monuments, but there was evidence indicating that one of the lines of the block as it originally existed was some distance from the place fixed by the monuments. At the time the deceased husband of plaintiff purchased, the locality was in the brush, and the husband had his lots surveyed and built a fence on the lines then given him. Held that, though the deeds in defendant's chain of title referred to a city block, the deeds were not conclusive between the parties as to the true boundary line between their lots. Campbell v. San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 750.

In trespass to try title to determine the location of a boundary line, evidence held to sustain a special verdict for defendant. Hermann v. McIver (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 798.

Evidence held to sustain a finding locating a boundary line. Francis v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 678.

Evidence that a wall was constructed by adjoining owners as a party wall held not to change the true boundary line. Fewell v. Kinsella (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1174.

In trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that the figure "8" in one call of plaintiff's survey was by mistake inserted, instead of the figure "5." Jones v. Petty (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 663.

In an action to recover land, evidence held to support a finding that the land was within the boundaries of a designated league, and within boundaries described in deeds under which defendant claimed. Cole v. Webb (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 245.

In an action for damages for cutting and removing timber and carrying away gravel, evidence held insufficient to show that a line claimed by the defendants as the boundary line of a section which was the dividing line between the plaintiff's and defendants' tracts was made by the surveyor preparatory to and as a basis for the issuance of a patent to the section. Burke v. Braumiller (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 206.

Evidence held to support a verdict locating a boundary line at the distance called for in field notes from a corner. Jones v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 275.

Witness' testimony as to location of crossing by which grant was located held valueless to establish a valid grant, where the effect would be to locate the grant in a town whose officers could not legally make such a grant. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

In trespass to try title involving a disputed boundary line, evidence held sufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science and Art (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1182.

In a boundary dispute evidence of a marked line, recognized for more than 40 years, held sufficient to establish an old marked line. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science and Art v. Gieseke (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 612.

Evidence in trespass to try title held to show that the survey in controversy was located as claimed by plaintiff, showing that the first call of the field notes "along line of" a certain survey was inadvertent. Gilbert v. Finberg (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 507.

In trespass to try title to a survey of school lands, evidence held insufficient to establish an agreed boundary. Crosby v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1110.

Testimony, that in 1859 and subsequently the road to H.'s mill turned northwest before reaching the west line of the B. survey, is without probative force in establishing the south boundary line of plaintiff's land, described in their deed of 1894 as "the old road that formerly ran from H.'s old mill by the old plantation of R., as explained in a deed from L. to R., dated February 18, 1850." Cramer v. Barfield (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 256.

35. Agreements between parties.—It is only where there is a doubt as to the identity of the dividing lines, that the parties may establish their lines by a parol agreement. Houston v. Sneed, 15 T. 307.

Courts will not disturb parol agreements of boundaries, but will encourage such settlements of disputed, conflicting, or doubtful boundaries, as a means of suppressing spiteful and vexatious litigation. McArthur v. Henry, 35 T. 801.

The east and west halves of a 640-acre tract were, by partition, respectively apportioned to the wives of E. and W. W. being desirous of improving the west half, and no surveyor being convenient, E. and W., as testified to by a third person, who was with them, "stepped off the land the best they could, so as to enable W. to know where to erect his fence." E. remarked that it made no difference whether they were over the line or not. W. accordingly erected his fence, E. making no objection then or afterwards. It did not appear that this fence was adopted as a line, or that any line was marked beyond the fence, which extended but a small part of the distance across the tract, and which varied from the direction of the corresponding lines of the tract 5 degrees. Another witness testified that he had frequently heard E. and W. talk about the land, and never heard either of them say that there was any line established between them, and had never heard that the fence was recognized as a line. Held, that the evidence was insufficient to establish a verbal partition line. Dement v. Williams, 44 T. 158.

Where neighbors are in doubt about their boundaries, and both are ignorant where they are, and they in good faith establish divisional lines between them, and these lines are acted upon and acquiesced in, even for a period within the statute of limitations, such agreements ought to be upheld. Coleman v. Smith, 55 T. 254.

Where owners of adjoining estates agree, verbally, on a compromise line as the dividing line between them, it is not necessary to the validity of such an agreement that it should have been acquiesced in for a long time. Cooper v. Austin, 58 T. 494.

Where adjoining owners, intending to establish a division line according to the true boundary, by mistake agreed on a line which did not conform to the true boundary, the agreement was not void. Cooper v. Austin, 58 T. 494; Harn v. Smith, 79 T. 310, 15 S. W. 240, 23 Am. St. Rep. 340; Lecomte v. Toudouze, 82 T. 208, 17 S. W. 1047, 27 Am. St. Rep. 870.

Plaintiff, whose land was claimed adversely, agreed to the appointment of parties to survey and settle the location of a line, supposing that the controversy only involved the line between two old surveys which had been patented. The adverse claimant had procured a patent to a narrow strip of land which was included in plaintiff's original survey, but not included according to the calls in the patent based thereon. Plaintiff was in ignorance of the character of the adverse claim, and also of the fact that his patent did not correctly set out his field notes. Held, that plaintiff was entitled to have his agreement canceled. Morrill v. Bartlett, 58 T. 644.

Two pre-emptioners on adjoining, unsurveyed state lands agreed on a dividing line. One sold his improvements, and the other represented to the purchaser that he did not claim any of the land improved. The purchaser agreed with the nonvendor that all the vacant land should be surveyed in the nonvendor's name, he to convey to the purchaser all the land included in the survey on the purchaser's side of the agreed line, when patented, the purchaser to pay his share of the expenses. Under this agreement the purchaser continued the improvements on his side of the agreed line, and, when the survey was made as agreed, offered to pay his share of the expenses. Held, that a subsequent patentee of the land, having notice of the agreements concerning it, could not recover from the first purchaser the land which he had improved, and which he was to have by the agreements concerning the division line, survey, and patent. Mitchell v. Nix, 1 U. C. 126.

Where a division line is run by the agreement and direction of adjoining landowners, for the purpose of settling a dispute, and it is agreed on and acquiesced in by them at the time and for more than a year afterwards, the parties must abide by it. Eberling v. Weyel, 2 U. C. 501.

A parol adjustment of boundaries between adjoining owners does not operate as an estoppel, where the party setting it up has not changed his position for the worse, nor the other acquired any rights under it. Bridges v. Johnson, 69 T. 714, 7 S. W. 506.

A mere license by the owner of one tract of land permitting the owner of an adjacent tract, the boundary line between which and the former tract is disputed, to fence and occupy over the true line, will not amount to an agreement accepting the line claimed by the license as the boundary, though his possession extends up to the line so claimed. Wright v. Lassiter, 71 T. 640, 10 S. W. 295.

The fact that plaintiff's vendor and defendant once agreed to establish a line with reference to the land in controversy, but never executed the agreement, does not affect plaintiff's rights. Evans v. Foster, 79 T. 48, 15 S. W. 170.

Allegations that the true location of a certain lot was not well defined and known, and that various surveys had left it uncertain, are sufficient to sustain an agreement fixing the boundary line. Harn v. Smith, 79 T. 310, 15 S. W. 240, 23 Am. St. Rep. 340.

Where adjoining proprietors agree verbally upon a certain line, improvements by one up to the line are notice thereof to a purchaser from the other. Houston v. Sneed, 15 T. 307.

Where adjacent owners are in doubt as to the boundary, and after a survey agree upon a certain line, their agreement is valid, and the line as established by it will be held to be the true one. Levy v. Maddox, 81 T. 210, 16 S. W. 877.

An agreement between adjoining owners as to their boundary, by which one gains several feet more than his deed calls for, cannot affect the question of the proper boundary between him and another adjoining owner on the opposite side. Bohny v. Petty, 81 T. 524, 17 S. W. 80.

Where a division line between two tracts of land owned by different persons has been extended in the wrong place, and the parties then expressly agreed that it should be the line between them, it becomes their established division line. Harrell v. Houston, 66 T. 278, 17 S. W. 731.

The fixing of a boundary line by parol is not within the operation of the statute of frauds, since, when the boundary is fixed by the parties, they hold up to it, not by virtue of the parol transfer, but by virtue of their title deeds. Lecomte v. Toudouze, 82 T. 208, 17 S. W. 1047, 27 Am. St. Rep. 870.

In trespass to try title between adjoining landowners, defendant testified that he had settled the disputed boundary line by oral agreement with plaintiff and her husband, and that a bend in the line was to be made to allow plaintiff to retain certain improvements she had made. The county surveyor testified that, at the request of defendant and plaintiff's husband, who stated that they had settled the disputed line, he surveyed the line under their direction, so as to leave plaintiff her improvements, and that they expressed their satisfaction with the line as run. The surveyor was corroborated by three witnesses as to the agreed line. The parties immediately erected a fence on the line, and each held possession up to the fence till the beginning of suit, 18 months afterwards. Held, that the parties had established the boundary by oral agreement. Id.

Where a dispute arises as to the eastern boundary of a certain survey, an agreement by the owner with a neighbor owning part of the land east, bringing the line eastward, does not estop such owner to assert, as against one claiming other land east, that the line as originally claimed by such owner is the true boundary. Langermann v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 124.

Where one of adjoining owners conveys his land to a third person, the location of the division line must be determined by the facts and conditions existing at the time of the conveyance, and cannot be subsequently shifted by an agreement to which all persons interested in the lands are not parties. Donaldson v. Rall, 37 S. W. 16, 14 C. A. 336.

Where adjoining landowners agree that a certain hedge is the boundary line, such agreement settles all questions between them as to the extent of their ownership. Brown v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 49.

Where plaintiff and defendant entered into an agreement to fix the boundaries of a survey, and later a modified agreement was drawn up, on defendant being dissatisfied with the boundaries as fixed under the original agreement, a refusal by defendant to enter into the modified agreement, or to accept the boundaries fixed thereunder, left the original in full force, and entitled plaintiff to judgment fixing the boundaries as determined by the survey made thereunder. Masterson v. Bockel, 75 S. W. 42, 32 C. A. 509.

A recital in a party wall contract that the wall was built on the line between the lots, coupled with evidence showing knowledge of defendant's grantor of the actual location of the wall, and his acquiescence in the possession of the strip in controversy for 16 years by plaintiff's grantor, was sufficient to sustain a conclusion that the prior owners of the two lots agreed, at the time the wall was built, that the division line should be established as the center of the party wall, as indicated in the agreement. Roberts v. Fellman Dry Goods Co., 42 C. A. 590, 92 S. W. 1060.

Defendant's remote grantor agreed with certain heirs owning land south of his that his south line was a line running east from a bois d'arc stake, excluding the tract in controversy, but the subsequent conveyances bounded the land as adjoining the heir's land and including the disputed tract. Held that, neither defendant nor his immediate grantor having known of the agreed line, he is not bound thereby; the stake being insufficient to give notice thereof, and no possession of the land cut off by the agreed line having been taken by the heirs, nor anything done to put purchasers upon notice of the agreement. Taylor v. Blackwell (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 214.

Where the boundary between two lots of land is in dispute, the owners may agree upon a division line as the true boundary between them, and the agreed line is binding upon them and those claiming under them, whether it be the true boundary or not. McKeon v. Roan (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 404.

A tenant or subtenant had no authority as such to bind the owner of the land by an agreement as to boundaries with an adjoining owner. Hunter v. Malone, 49 C. A. 116, 108 S. W. 709.

After an uncertain boundary line had been fixed by agreement of the abutting owners, one of them sold to defendant, and an action was subsequently brought by a purchaser of the property on the opposite side of the line to try title to the strip of land between the line as fixed by agreement and the original line. Held, that an instruction to find for defendant if the boundary line was fixed by agreement as alleged, regardless whether the purchaser of the property on the other side of the line at the time of his purchase knew of the agreement fixing such line, was properly refused. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Dupuy, 52 C. A. 46, 113 S. W. 973.

Where an uncertain boundary between two surveys is fixed by agreement of the owners, and defendant purchased the land on one side of the agreed line believing that the same belonged to the survey owned by his vendor, and in good faith paid value therefor, and acted on the agreement locating the line, not knowing that there was any mistake, the owners of the other survey would be estopped to deny that the boundary line fixed by agreement was not properly located. Id.

Where the exact location of a boundary line is uncertain, and it is located by an agreement of the abutting owner, knowledge on the part of a person who subsequently purchases a part of the property that the agreed line is not the true line will not defeat his right to hold to said line if he purchases on the faith of such agreement. Id.

A boundary line fixed by agreement of adjoining owners is binding upon them, regardless of whether it is the true line. Provident Nat. Bank v. Webb (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 426.

Where there was an excess of land in a block over the acreage embraced in the original field notes, and all but one of the owners of a tier of sections signed an agreement for a resurvey and adjustment of boundaries, one of the signers could not recover a strip from another in conformity to the resurvey, where thereby the latter would lose a portion of the land embraced in the original field notes of his land, because of his inability to obtain any land from the one who refused to sign. Smith v. Gilley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1107.

An oral agreement between two landowners to have their boundary line run held a common-law arbitration. Hill v. Walker (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1159.

The running of a boundary line held an award conclusive upon two landowners. Id.

Where the means of information were equally open to both parties to a boundary agreement, a mistake as to the true location of the line as shown by an approved survey was not sufficient to invalidate the agreement, unless one of the parties knew the true line and thereby gained an advantage over the other. Denton v. English (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 264.

Where one of the parties to a boundary agreement, who knew about a survey fixing the true line, concealed that fact from the other and thereby induced him to sign a boundary agreement to his disadvantage, the action of the first party constituted such fraud as would invalidate the agreement. Id.

36. Estoppel in general.—The owner of a grant of land employed a surveyor to survey it, under instructions to resurvey and remark the lines and corners. The surveyor established new corners, which cut off a part of the original grant. Held, that the act of the surveyor, being unauthorized, could not be referred to the owner, so as to constitute an estoppel on the ground that a person who subsequently located the land so cut off was misled by the lines marked as the boundaries of the grant at the instance of the owner. Love v. Barber, 17 T. 312.

A party's concession that he claims under his deed to a given line of a survey does not admit that such line is elsewhere than where defined by his title, and does not preclude him from showing that the line asserted by an adverse claimant is not the true line. Jones v. Andrews, 62 T. 652.

In an action involving the true location of a boundary line between plaintiff's and defendants' lots, it appeared that before the conveyance to defendants the lots were surveyed, and it was found that plaintiff's building stood 20 inches beyond the surveyed line, and upon the other lot; that plaintiff refused to buy this narrow strip, but tore down his building, and he and defendants' grantor built a fence on the surveyed line; that after defendants purchased they told plaintiff that they were going to build, and wanted the matter of boundary line thoroughly understood, and would like to build where it would be no inconvenience to plaintiff; that they then spoke of the surveyed line as the dividing line, and plaintiff suggested that defendants build on a place partly included in the disputed strip, which they did. Held, that plaintiff was precluded from denying that the surveyed line was correct. Garza v. Brown (Sup.) 11 S. W. 920.

Where the location of a road constituting the dividing line between plaintiffs' and defendants' lands is in dispute, the purchase and holding of adjacent land by one of the defendants does not constitute such a recognition of the locus of the road as would operate as an estoppel, where plaintiffs were not induced thereby to change their position for the worse. Griffith v. Rife, 72 T. 185, 12 S. W. 168.

A. and B., being tenants in common of a section of land, agreed that A. should have the south half, and B. the north half. A. deeded the southwest quarter, and by mistake located the upper boundary too far north. Her grantee deeded it to defendants without any reference to the northern boundary. B. deeded the north half to plaintiff, calling for the proper southern boundary. Held, that plaintiff was not estopped from claiming the boundary line described in his deed. Carley v. Parton, 75 T. 98, 12 S. W. 950.

Where a dividing line is established between tracts of land owned by a county, before purchases are made of land on each side of it, and the deeds under which parties claim have been made, and are known by the parties to have been made, with reference to that line, they, and all the persons claiming through them, are bound by it. Briscoe v. Puckett (Sup.) 12 S. W. 978.

When one was not influenced in his purchase by a certain survey, no estoppel as to boundaries arises in his favor. Koenigheim v. Sherwood, 79 T. 508, 16 S. W. 23.

N., owning surveys 5 and 6, sold to L. survey 5, which lay east of survey 6, pointing out in good faith, as the dividing line, a line east of the true line, on which N. had built a fence. Thereafter L., acting for N., showed survey 6 to defendant, pointing out the same line. N. contracted to sell defendant 160 acres out of survey 6. Subsequently, N. gave defendant a special warranty deed of 160 acres lying immediately west of said fence. Between the making of the contract and the giving of the deed, N. and L. had learned the true dividing line, and L., having taken possession and cultivated up to that line, had deeded survey 5 to plaintiff, to whom he had pointed out the true line, and who had no notice of the contract between N. and defendant, which had not been filed. Held, that plaintiff was not estopped from claiming the land up to that line by reason of the fact that his grantor pointed out to defendant the fence as the dividing line. Hollingsworth v. Fowkes, 6 C. A. 64, 22 S. W. 1110, 24 S. W. 708.

Where a landowner surveys a boundary line for his land, which is publicly marked, and sells land with reference thereto, he is estopped from denying the correctness of its location as against one locating land with reference thereto. New York & T. Land Co. v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 737.

A landowner is not estopped from denying lines established by him, as against subsequent adjoining landowners to whom he pointed out the lines as his boundaries when they purchased the adjoining lands, unless they relied on such acts and representations, and were induced by them to make the purchases. Stanus v. Smith, 8 C. A. 685, 30 S. W. 262.

Where, in trespass to try title, a strip between adjoining landowners was in question, and defendant claimed that when he bought a certain line was pointed out to him by the grantor, which included the land in question, as the boundary line, the fact that the other party to the action afterwards admitted such line to be the true boundary did not estop him to deny its location, defendant not having bought on his representation. Davidson v. Pickard (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 374.

On an issue as to the location of the true boundary line between two surveys, there was evidence that plaintiff had, prior to the litigation, recovered in a suit the land that he claimed in his survey, and had a writ of possession executed, and appointed an experienced surveyor to receive possession from a sheriff, and that in so doing the surveyor selected the line contended for by defendant. Held, that the acts of plaintiff's agent constituted no estoppel on him. Hornberger v. Giddings, 71 S. W. 989, 31 C. A. 283.

W. made a deed to A. of part of a block, describing it as "beginning at its N. E. corner, thence south 82 feet." It was understood that A. desired to buy enough off the north end of the block for a residence, and W. and A. had gone on the land, and, by an erroneous measurement, had fixed the N. E. corner 13 feet further south than it really was. From there they measured 82 feet south. Had they measured from the true N. E. corner, enough land would not have been given A. to build on, because of a gully at the north end. After the lines were thus run, A. built a fence along the south line so fixed, and a house close to it. Held, that A. got title to all land north of the fence, either on the theory of an agreed boundary or by estoppel, he having acted on the boundary pointed out. Parrish v. Williams (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1097.

If the owner of land pointed out the boundary line to a tenant occupying the adjoining tract, and such tenant placed a fence on the line designated, the owner was not estopped, independently of adverse holding or limitations, from claiming to the true line. Hunter v. Malone, 49 C. A. 116, 108 S. W. 709.

Plaintiff and his family had a homestead in one half of a city lot, but a narrow strip thereof was inclosed with the other half of the lot by a fence. Defendant purchased the adjoining lot without any inquiry as to the true boundary, and subsequently erected improvements which encroached upon the strip belonging to plaintiff. Plaintiff did not object to the erection of the improvements on his land, nor did he make any misrepresentations inducing their erection thereon; but his wife, upon learning that defendant was occupying the strip, objected thereto. Held, that plaintiff was not estopped from asserting the true boundary between his homestead and defendant's lot. Werkheiser v. Foard (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 933.

If plaintiff and defendant's grantor in locating a boundary fence acted under a mistake that the line thereof was the boundary line, neither would be estopped from showing that it was not in fact the real boundary line or from showing where such line really is, and plaintiff not having represented, nor induced defendant to believe, when defendant purchased, that the fence was on the line, defendant is in no better position than his grantor, and plaintiff was not estopped to show that the fence was located by mistake and was not on the line. Weston v. Meeker (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 461.

In trespass to try title involving land along a boundary line, defendant was not estopped to claim title to the land by limitation or otherwise because of any act of his remote grantor while acting as a commissioner in the partition of plaintiff's ancestor's estate; it appearing that if the report of partition signed by him embraced the disputed land he did not know it, and that the surveyor for partition, who was, also, a commissioner, recognized, in such remote grantor's presence that the fence now claimed by defendant as the boundary was the boundary. Id.

An instrument executed by the general manager of a company which recited that by mistake the company had put its fence on a part of an adjacent survey of another without showing the distance over the line of the survey except that the fence was located "too far west" operated, in the absence of any evidence, as an admission that the fence was not on the boundary between the two surveys, and that the true boundary line was not west thereof, and operated as an estoppel against limitation of title or adverse possession. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1059.

Where there is a dispute as to the boundaries of land conveyed, and the grantor agrees to be bound by a survey of the land, and the survey does not sustain his contention, he is not estopped to claim in opposition to the survey as against a subsequent grantee, who knows of such claim, and does not act or rely on the failure of the original grantor to give him notice of such grantor's repudiation of the survey. Pierce v. Texas Rice Development Co., 52 C. A. 205, 114 S. W. 857.

Adjacent owners made an agreement as to the boundary. Subsequently one of the owners permitted a forfeiture of his land to the state. Thereafter his son was awarded the land by the state, and the son subsequently conveyed it to such owner. Held that, as there was no privity of estate in such owner's present and former holdings, his acts prior to the forfeiture were not available as an estoppel against him in establishing the boundary. Runkle v. Smith, 52 C. A. 186, 114 S. W. 865.

Representations by plaintiff's ancestor in defendant's presence as to a boundary line would not estop plaintiffs from asserting the true boundary line as against defendant, where the representations were not made to influence defendant's conduct, and he did not rely thereon. Gaffney v. Clark (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 330, rehearing denied 118 S. W. 606.

Where it did not appear that plaintiff's testator had actual notice of a resurvey of certain land in controversy by defendant's father, or that she had been caused to do or omit to do anything to her prejudice by reason thereof, plaintiff was not entitled to the benefit of a plea of estoppel. Hill v. Collier (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1084.

A grantee of 200 acres of land, to be taken out of a larger tract, who recorded his deed and, in selecting the land, included land not owned by the grantor, was not estopped from relocating the land, where his original selection was made by mistake. Wing v. Red (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 301.

Grantors are estopped, by pointing out boundaries, from afterwards asserting title to the land within the boundaries pointed out. Zander v. Schultze (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 222.

37. Recognition and acquiescence.—If an infant acquiesces in the settlement of boundaries after coming of age, he is bound. George v. Thomas, 16 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 612.

Where one of the owners is a married woman, and the line is run fairly and honestly, and is acquiesced in by her, it ought to be as binding on her as on others. Id.

Although the presumption in favor of a boundary line acquiesced in by adjoining proprietors is strengthened by lapse of time, there is no period fixed by statute which will render the presumption conclusive. Each case must furnish its own rule, according to its own circumstances, modifying the conclusiveness of the presumption. Floyd v. Rice, 28 T. 341.

In a boundary case between two adjoining landowners, it appeared that defendant built his fence and erected his improvements with reference to a particular line contended for by him as the true division line. The parties derived their respective title from the same source. There was some evidence that plaintiff had acquiesced in such a line, but his acquiescence could only have endured three years or less. There was evidence that on one occasion plaintiff's ancestor pointed out to a witness a line different from that now claimed by plaintiff, and possibly the same line claimed by defendant. Held, that a verdict for defendant would not be disturbed. McArthur v. Henry, 35 T. 801.

Though one of two adjoining proprietors has been led to establish, or acquiesce in the establishment of, a line as the true boundary between the estates, by the misrepresentation of the other, still the line is binding on him as to purchasers from the other, who make improvements relying upon the supposed boundary. Notice to such purchasers that he does not recognize the line as the true boundary is sufficient, however, to save his rights, and he need not actually take steps to prevent their trespass. Hefner v. Downing, 57 T. 576.

The presumption that a boundary line acquiesced in is the true one, though strengthened by lapse of time, does not become conclusive in any fixed period, and depends for its strength largely upon the degree of information as to his rights possessed by the person to be affected. Medlin v. Wilkins, 60 T. 409.

Acquiescence for more than 30 years in a division line precludes either party from setting up a new line. Davis v. Mitchell, 65 T. 623.

Where, in an action to recover land, there is no evidence that plaintiff assented to the location of the boundary line claimed and used by the defendant, he is not estopped, unless by limitation, from asserting his claim. Horst v. Herring (Sup.) 8 S. W. 306.

Plaintiff's father, who conveyed the land to him as a gift, while owner caused the boundary line to be established and permanently marked, and defendant, while the line was so recognized, bought the adjoining tract, relying on such boundary, and made improvements, and occupied the land for many years without adverse claim by plaintiff. Held, that the latter was estopped to deny that such line is the true boundary. Anderson v. Jackson (Sup.) 13 S. W. 30.

An acquiescence by one of the heirs of a testator in a boundary line established by the executor does not bind the other heirs. Lagow v. Glover, 77 T. 448, 14 S. W. 141.

An owner's failure to object to improvements on that part of his lot lying beyond his fences, and his recognition of them as the true boundaries for several years, he being ignorant of a mistake in their location, is not such acquiescence in the boundaries so established as prevents him from recovering up to the true line. Bohny v. Petty, 81 T. 624, 17 S. W. 80.

Where a division line between two tracts of land owned by different persons has been extended in the wrong place, and accepted and acquiesced in as the dividing line from 1875 to 1883, it becomes their established division line. Harrell v. Houston, 66 T. 278, 17 S. W. 731.

Where adjoining landowners agree on a disputed division line, and such line is acted on and acquiesced in by them, it is binding on them, and those claiming under them, without regard to the length of time it was so acted on and acquiesced in. Bailey v. Baker, 4 C. A. 395, 23 S. W. 454.

Plaintiff is not estopped from asserting title to property to a given line by recognizing another line prior to receiving the deed under which he claims. Reed v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 986.

A boundary line may be established by agreement or by acquiescence in and acceptance and recognition of a line as a boundary. Wardlow v. Harmon (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 828.

In an action involving a disputed boundary line, claimed by defendant to be identical with a line shown to have been run by a surveyor for a county road, an instruction implying that any acquiescence by plaintiff and defendant, or those under whom they claim, however small, in the line run by the surveyor, should defeat recovery, is error. Vogt v. Geyer (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1100.

Acquiescence in a boundary line, not amounting to an estoppel, is merely a fact to be weighed by the jury in determining the correct boundary. Id.

Where one adjoining owner occupied up to a certain line, and allowed the other owner to do so, under the belief, induced by a mistake in a survey, that such was the true line, it cannot be presumed that such line was agreed on as the boundary. Stier v. Latreyte (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 589.

The fact that adjoining landowners acted on a boundary line for six years, and until plaintiff discovered a shortage in his acreage, when he contended that the line was established by mistake, did not constitute an estoppel against plaintiff's obtaining a determination of the true boundary, but his acquiescence was a fact proper to be submitted to the jury. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001.

Where all parties interested in a tract of land purchase their interests with reference to a fence line, and such line is recognized as the dividing line for more than 20 years, it must be taken as the true line. Sullivan v. Michael, 39 C. A. 564, 87 S. W. 1061.

Long acquiescence in a boundary line raises no presumption of law that the line is the properly established and determined boundary line. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

To establish a boundary by agreement or create an estoppel, somebody must have been misled to their injury, and mere acquiescence in a boundary, where no one has been induced to change his situation, for a period short of the longest period of limitation, would not be sufficient. Hunter v. Malone, 49 C. A. 116, 108 S. W. 709.

Where a line coinciding with a fence between two parcels was fixed and determined by original owners, and for more than 30 years was recognized and acquiesced in by all claiming under them, it would not avail plaintiff, in trespass to try title, that this was not the true boundary. Roberts v. Blount (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 933.

38. Practical location by parties.—Where the position of one of the corners called for was not accurately known to either party, and each had equal opportunity to inform himself in regard to it, and they, acting together, disregarded information given to them, and ran the lines as they agreed to be right at the time, but in such a manner that, as it afterwards appeared, one got 50 acres of land more than he was entitled to upon an equal division which they intended to have made, it was held the losing party was nevertheless bound by the division so made. Hoxey v. Clay, 20 T. 582.

Where a deed calls for a certain corner and line of a known survey, but the parties, by mistake, lay other lines and corners on the ground, and the rights of innocent parties afterwards become fixed by the lines and corners as laid down, such lines and corners will control those of the survey. Blumberg v. Mauer, 37 T. 2.

A dividing line fairly agreed upon and marked out by the owners of adjoining tracts of land will be conclusive upon both, and those claiming under them, as to the true locality of their dividing line, though it may subsequently, after long acquiescence, be ascertained to vary from the course called for in the deeds under which the parties claimed prior to agreeing upon the line; and the rule is the same whether the marked line be recognized and called for in a deed, or whether it be subsequently marked and established by the parties. Browning v. Atkinson, 46 T. 605.

One who marks and records evidence of the boundaries of his land is estopped from afterwards alleging, as against a subsequent locator of adjoining land, that the boundary so marked was incorrect. Timon v. Whitehead, 58 T. 290.

Where, in 1858, parties owning adjoining land took possession, and afterwards, by mutual consent, moved their fences, reducing the width of a lane between them, and in 1874 caused a survey to be made resulting in one's withdrawal of his fence, the other, in an action of trespass to try title brought in 1880, was estopped from asserting a different line. Davis v. Smith, 61 T. 18.

In an action to recover a strip of land as a part of survey 25, defendant claimed that the land was a part of survey 24. It appeared that plaintiff and defendant's grantor built a fence between the two surveys, which was agreed by them to be the true boundary line; that the fence stood for 12 years, and during that time had been acquiesced in by them as the correct line; that plaintiff, with the consent of defendant's grantor, had joined a fence to this line, inclosing survey 25 and the strip in question. Held, that the line as established was the true boundary, and that the strip in question was a part of survey 25. King v. Mitchell, 1 C. A. 701, 21 S. W. 50.

Where defendant and plaintiff's grantor agreed on the line between their lots, and built a fence thereon, plaintiff, as subsequent grantee, is bound by such line. Eddie v. Tinnin, 7 C. A. 371, 26 S. W. 732.

If the grantee fenced to his south line as he knew it to be, and as it had actually been surveyed on the ground by the surveyor and by himself, as assistant, and another grantee, relying on such designation of boundary, bought from their common grantor the land lying south of this fence, those claiming under the first grantee would be estopped from claiming land south of the fence. Holland v. Thompson, 12 C. A. 471, 35 S. W. 19.

An owner of land held estopped by his acts in building a fence and maintaining a line as a boundary for several years from asserting that the line was at some other point. Schiele v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 303.

39. Private surveys.—The boundary of land, the legal title to which is in the state, cannot be fixed, as against the state, by a surveyor merely employed to survey it, and who makes a mistake in the boundary line, nor by failure to correct the mistake, as the state cannot be bound by estoppel. Saunders v. Hart, 57 T. 8.

A boundary line fixed by a surveyor employed by various property owners is not binding on such owners, as against an adjoining owner, who was not a party to the surveying, and who never acquiesced in the line as fixed by the surveyor. Kampmann v. Heintz (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 329.

Where, on a private survey of land described in a deed, the surveyor abandons a call for the beginning corner, which was clearly erroneous, and adopts a new beginning corner, whereby the boundaries are made to substantially comply with the other calls of the deed, in determining what land was conveyed by the deed the boundaries as fixed by the survey will control. Blackburn v. Norman (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 718.

A boundary line fixed in 1857 by the court, and accepted by the adjoining owners for 20 years, will not be changed to conform with a survey made in 1877 by one of the owners, who thereafter claimed to the new line, and built a fence along that line the following year, and occupied the strip between the old line and the new 15 years. Stark v. Homuth (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 761.

Where the purchaser of a tract of land bounded by one of the lines of an original survey caused the same to be surveyed at the time of his purchase, he is not bound by the latter survey, and the original boundary line can be located on the ground. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001.

40. Official surveys.—See notes under Art. 5336 et seq.

41. Apportionment of excess or deficiency.—Where a block is subsequently found to contain more land than the aggregate amount called for by the surveys of the tracts within it, the proper course is to divide the surplus proportionably among the several tracts. Welder v. Carroll, 29 T. 317.

Where an entire tract of land is conveyed by two deeds, that for each portion calling for the line of the other as a boundary line, and the tract contains more land than the amounts expressed in the deeds, the excess must be divided between the two grantees in proportion to amounts called for in the deeds, irrespective of the prices paid therefor. Sellers v. Reed, 46 T. 377.

In an action to settle the boundary line between two tracts of land, where the surveys were made at the same time, by the same person, and call for each other, but no boundary line was fixed on the ground, a space left between them, according to the surveyor's field notes, will be apportioned to the owners of the tracts in proportion to their respective interests. Ware v. McQuinn, 7 C. A. 107, 26 S. W. 126.

On an issue as to the boundary between two surveys, none of whose original corners can be found, where but one corner of an adjacent survey on the north and one corner of a survey on the south are found, and the distance between such corners is in excess of that called for by the field notes, the boundary in question should be determined by apportioning such excess to the two surveys whose corners are found, and measuring the distance called for in the field notes from the line thus ascertained on the north. Knippa v. Umlang (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 915.

Two adjacent tracts were surveyed by locating a corner in each tract a specified distance apart. On a resurvey, it was found that the distance was greater, and the surveyor in making a resurvey disposed of the excess by apportioning it between the sections resurveyed. Held, that the excess was properly disposed of. Austin v. Espuela Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1138.

Where a plat of lots in a block specifies the frontage of each lot, with one exception, any deficiency in the width of the block will fall on that lot, and its width will be the length of the block minus the sum of the width of the other lots. Toudouze v. Keller (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 185.

Where a block of surveys are made by the same surveyor as one piece of work, each of such surveys fronting on a river, but only one corner on the river is found on the northern survey, and one on the southern survey, and none found on any of the intervening surveys, and the field notes of each survey call for lines and corners of the adjoining surveys for its own lines and corners, and there is an excess in distance over that called for in the field notes of the different surveys between the two original corners found and identified, and no ambiguity or conflicting calls appear in the field notes or on the surveyor's sketch, the excess should be prorated between the several surveys according to their respective widths as called for in the original field notes. And, when the dividing lines between said surveys are so found, the western boundary of each being the river, which is not shown to have changed its position, the north and south lines and the eastern boundary of any of the surveys are established by running east the course and distance called for from the river, and thence north or south as called for in the field notes, the distance called for, by adding the proportion of the excess in distance found to belong to such survey. Johnson v. Knippa (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 905.

Where there is an excess of land left on the west side of a block of land by reason of the fact that the entire tier of surveys from east to west is tied to the east line of the block by specific calls for courses and distances, it would require an agreement by all the owners of such tier of sections before it could be apportioned among them. Gilley v. Smith (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 838.

See Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Historical.—Act Feb. 7, 1884, reserved a right of way for public roads across patented lands. See Sayles' Civ. St. 1889, art. 3952a.

Validity.—As to who are permitted to question the validity of a patent, see Todd v. Fisher, 26 T. 239; Martin v. Brown, 62 T. 485; Decourt v. Sproul, 66 T. 371, 1 S. W. 337; N. Y. & T. Land Co. v. Gardner, 11 C. A. 404, 32 S. W. 786.

A patent for a survey of land will not be held void because of difficulty in determining its locality, or because it is not susceptible of being located in the usual way, where there exists any means of identifying the land sought to be included. Finberg v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 979.

The issuance of a patent to public lands is a ministerial act and must be performed according to law. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 318.

Where no actual survey of public lands was made, all matters of description in the patent must be considered to determine the particular lands conveyed. Finberg v. Gilbert, 104 T. 539, 141 S. W. 82.

Grantees under a legislative act held to be presumed to have accepted the patent and thereby have become bound by the survey upon which it was based. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

Conclusiveness.—Upon the questions of fact upon which the patent is based, in the absence of fraud, the patent is conclusive. Styles v. Gray, 10 T. 503; Russell's Heirs v. Randolph, 11 T. 460; Decourt v. Sproul, 66 T. 368, 1 S. W. 337; Taylor v. Lewelyn, 79 T. 96, 14 S. W. 1052; Boon v. Hunter, 62 T. 582.

A patent to the plaintiff is evidence of title, unless the defendant shows a valid grant to some one else previous to the date of the location and survey on which plaintiff's patent was issued, or that defendant had the prior and superior equitable title to the land at the date of said patent. Miller v. Brownson, 50 T. 583.

It can be attacked only by the state or one having color of title to the land. Bryan v. Shirley, 53 T. 440; League v. Rogan, 59 T. 427.

When title is sought to be deraigned through one to whom the patent issued, as the assignee of another, it is not necessary to go behind the patent to show a legal or equitable right of the assignee to the certificate on which the patent issued as against one who asserts no legal or equitable claim to such certificate. Tom v. Sayers, 64 T. 339.

If suit be brought upon lands patented but upon illegal surveys, the certificate being genuine, no one not claiming under a right prior to the issuance thereof can question their validity. Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58.

The decision of the officer, commissioner or tribunal authorized to issue titles to land is 'conclusive of the facts necessary to sustain the grant. Smith v. Walton, 82 T. 547, 18 S. W. 217.

Priority of title is determined by priority of location and not of patent. Whitman v. Rhomberg (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 451.

The patent is evidence conclusive that the land, if vacant, was subject to sale and patent under act of March 11, 1881. Koch v. Poerner (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 386.

A patent purporting to have been issued by virtue of a purchase and payment under a certain act establishes in the patentee at least a prima facie right to the land. Burkhead v. Bush (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 67.

One whose claim is subsequent to issuance of a patent to school land held not authorized to attack it. Frontrouy v. Atkinson, 45 C. A. 324, 100 S. W. 1023.

Party other than state or one claiming title to land under reservation in favor of the state held not entitled to have patent declared invalid. Keenan v. Slaughter, 49 C. A. 180, 108 S. W. 703.

Where a resurvey of land was had, and the former field notes corrected so that the survey embraced less land, and a patent issued on the corrected field notes only, the owner, in the absence of a showing of mistake, is bound by the patent calls. Gulliv v. O'Bryan (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 593.

Proof of a patent to a third person held not to preclude plaintiff's recovery on prior possession. Saxton v. Corbett (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 75.

A patent to school land held not subject to attack by subsequent purchaser of school land. Millar v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 440.

After land sold by the state under one act is subsequently acquired and patented under a subsequent contract made under a different act, it is too late to question the validity of the patent as against parties holding land thereunder, whether the first purchaser's right was forfeited or not. Breen v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 650.

Improvements made on land by one knowing that it belonged to the state do not prevent the state from patenting the land to any one else, or affect the right of the patentee to recover title and possession. Dunn v. Wing, 103 T. 393, 128 S. W. 108.

A patent of state land can only be attacked by the state, or by one having a right in the land prior to that of the patentee. Id.

Recitals.—A purchaser is charged with notice of all facts recited in the patent under which he claims title. Renick v. Dawson, 55 T. 102.

When the recitals in a patent to land show that one of the mesne conveyances of the certificate on which the patent issued was made by a bankrupt to his assignee in bankruptcy, the patentee acquires by virtue of his patent only such estate as the bankrupt could convey, and took the property subject to all the equities with which it was chargeable in the hands of the bankrupt. Id.

Where other recitals identified a certificate as No. 907, the officials of the general land office correctly treated the No. 707 as a clerical error. Jackson v. Nona Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 928.

Patent as evidence of title.—A patent is prima facie evidence of title. Rutherford v. French, 2 U. C. 724; Stevens v. Geiser, 71 T. 140, 8 S. W. 610; Clements v. Eggleston, 2 U. C. 483; Gullett v. O'Connor, 54 T. 408.

Field notes and maps referred to in grant may be considered in aid of description contained in grant. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 898.

Transfer.—See this case for facts upon which it was held that the issuance of a patent upon a land certificate transferred after its location inured to the benefit of the transferee. Bachelor v. Besancel, 19 C. A. 137, 47 S. W. 296.

Prior improvements as bearing on patent rights.—Improvements made on land by one knowing that it belonged to the state, and without having done anything entitling him to hold it, do not prevent the state from patenting the land to any one else, and do not affect the right of the patentee to recover title and possession. Dunn v. Wing, 103 T. 393, 128 S. W. 108.

Parties affected by judgment canceling patent.—The judgment in a proceeding between parties canceling a patent does not affect those not parties to the suit. Musselman v. Strohl, 83 T. 473, 18 S. W. 857.

One, by filing new field notes as corrected field notes of the original survey and taking a patent thereon, held to have canceled the original field notes and annulled his title to land in the original notes omitted from the new notes. Montgomery County v. Angier, 32 C. A. 451, 74 S. W. 957.

Art. 5362. [4176] When patent to be issued.—Whenever the field-notes of a survey and the land certificate by virtue of which the same was made have been returned to and filed in the general land office within the time prescribed by law, if it shall appear after due examination that such survey was correctly and legally made upon vacant and unappropriated land, and that the land certificate is genuine and unsatisfied, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to make out and deliver to the rightful owner thereof, his agent or legal representative, a patent for the land described in said survey. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4286.]

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Persons entitled.—An inchoate right to a patent for a disputed tract of land may be abandoned by filing new surveys excluding such tract and including another, and obtaining a patent thereunder. Wise County Coal Co. v. Phillips, 21 C. A. 293, 51 S. W. 331.

Effect of mistake.—When the commissioner of the general land office was mistaken as to the boundaries of a county, the claimant of land depending on the commissioner's acts ought not to be held responsible. Magee v. Chadoin, 30 T. 644.

A patent issued by mistake to one having no right to the land is invalid. McWhirter v. Allen, 1 C. A. 649, 20 S. W. 1007.

A patent to Jarard E. G. held to pass title to Jared E. G., Jr. Clark v. Groce, 16 C. A. 453, 41 S. W. 668.

Claimants under a patent held not entitled to have it corrected so as to interfere with the rights of claimants under a later patent conflicting with the certificate and survey on which the former patent was based. Lubbock v. Binns, 20 C. A. 407, 50 S. W. 584.

Where a state land certificate was located for one Hanaford, but the patent was issued to one Hansford, a finding that the certificate had been located for Hansford will be reformed, to comply with the certificate, as a clerical error. Hanaford v. Morton, 22 C. A. 587, 55 S. W. 987.

Field notes set out in a patent containing less land than the original patent, under which plaintiff claimed, held not to constitute a fatal variance, where all the land was included in the original patent. Id.

The fact that an error was made in the name of the patentee in a state land patent did not change the patentee's legal title to an equitable claim, subject to the defense of state demand. Id.

Where the commissioner of the general land office, in issuing patents, acts on the surveyor's correction of original field notes, a presumption arises that the correction was authorized. Ward v. Forrester (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 751.

Certain discrepancy between power of attorney to sell land and patent for the land held immaterial. Kane v. Sholars, 41 C. A. 154, 90 S. W. 937.

Art. 5363. [4177] When to be referred to attorney general.—Should it appear to the commissioner of the general land office, from the records of his office or from information on oath given him, that there is some illegality in the claim, he shall, if he deems it necessary, refer the matter to the attorney general, whose decision in writing shall be sufficient authority for him to issue or withhold the patent as the case may be.

Art. 5364. [4178] Map of county to be filed.—No patent shall be issued upon any claim, unless a map of the county in which the same is situated shall be on file in the general land office. [Act Jan. 19, 1841. P. D. 4305. Acts 1879, ch. 121, p. 129.]

Mistake as to county boundaries.—When the commissioner of the general land office was mistaken as to the boundaries of a county, the claimant of land depending on the commissioner's acts ought not to be held responsible. Magee v. Chadoin, 30 T. 644.

Failure to delineate on maps.—The failure in the officers of the land office to delineate upon the maps in the office a grant on file in its archives will not affect such grant in favor of a subsequent location upon which a patent had been issued. Elliott's Adm'r v. Mitchell, 47 T. 445.

Art. 5365. [4179] Patents on surveys in two counties.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized and required to issue patents in all cases upon surveys of land lying in two or more counties or districts, where no conflict between such surveys and others exist, and to which there is no other objection than that of a division in said surveys, occasioned by a county or district boundary passing through them; provided, the field-notes shall have been recorded in the office of the county or district surveyor of both counties or districts. [Act May 9, 1846. P. D. 4315.]

Art. 5366. [4180] Patents on more than two surveys, when.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized and required to issue patents to the legal owner of a land certificate in all cases where the same has been located in two surveys, and where the same is bounded by other surveys. [Act April 7, 1846. P. D. 4314.]

Art. 5367. [4181] In case of conflict, how patent may issue.—In cases where conflicts exist between surveys, the commissioner of the general land office shall be authorized and is hereby required to issue patents to such portions of such surveys as are free from conflicts. [Act May 9, 1846. P. D. 4316.]

Art. 5368. [4182] Shall issue patent to assignee, when.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby required to issue patents to, and in the name of, the assignee of any genuine land certificate issued in conformity to law. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 4294.]

Rights of assignees.—Transfers of certificates prior to the issuance of patents to the original owners or their heirs or legal representatives will inure to the benefit of those to whom the certificates were transferred. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495; Satterwhite v. Rosser, 61 T. 166; Adams v. House, 61 T. 639; Neal v. Bartleson, 65 T. 478; Capp v. Terry, 75 T. 391, 13 S. W. 52; Davis v. Bargas, 12 C. A. 59, 33 S. W. 548. See De Cordova v. Bliss, 12 C. A. 530, 34 S. W. 146.

The sale of a land certificate after its location effects an equitable transfer of the land located by virtue of it. Lewis v. Johnson, 68 T. 448, 4 S. W. 644.

The defense of innocent purchaser is inapplicable to cases involving conflicting claims as purchasers of school land. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

Record.—See notes under Title 118, Chapter 3.

Art. 5369. [4183] Before issuing to assignee, transfers, etc., must be filed.—Before any patent shall issue to the assignee under the preceding article, he must present and file a sufficient and properly authenticated chain of transfer, assignment or obligation for title, or a power of attorney showing a transfer from the original grantee to the assignee. [Id.]

Filing chain of transfer.—Unless the chain of title of transfer, assignment, or obligation for title, or power of attorney is filed, the commissioner cannot issue patent. Peterson v. Rogan, 94 T. 176, 59 S. W. 252.

Art. 5370. [4184] Patent may issue to assignee without transfer, when.—All patents may issue in the name of the assignee when the certificate was granted in the name of the assignee, without an exhibition of a chain of transfers as prescribed in the preceding article. [Act Feb. 3, 1845. P. D. 4292.]

Assignment.—A patent inures to the benefit of the assignee of the certificate by virtue of which the land was located. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495.

Art. 5371. [4185] Patents to deceased persons shall inure to whom.—All patents which have heretofore been issued by the authorities of the republic or the state of Texas, in the names of persons deceased at the time of issuing such patents, and all patents for lands which may be issued hereafter by authority of the state of Texas, in the names of persons deceased at the time at which said patents may be issued, shall be, to all intents and purposes, as valid and effectual to convey and secure to the heirs or assignee, as the case may be, of such deceased persons, the land so patented, or which may be so patented, as though such deceased persons had been in being at the time such patents bear date. [Act Dec. 24, 1851. P. D. 4228a.]

See Cole v. Grigsby, 89 T. 223, 35 S. W. 792.

Construction.—Under Act March 31, 1883, p. 38, surveys and patents on warrants issued under special laws enacted after March 31, 1870, and prior to April 11, 1876, were validated. See Sayles' Civ. St. 1889, art. 3964a. The following rulings were made under the act of 1883:

When the proviso to an act of the legislature restricts its benefits to designated persons, the fact that a claimant of such bounty belongs to the designated class must be shown before he can recover. Blum v. Looney, 69 T. 1, 4 S. W. 857.

The provision of Act March 31, 1883, is legal, but in order to be effective to one claiming its benefits as a settler entitled to a headright, he must allege and show that he was an actual settler in Texas as far back as March 2, 1836. The issuance of a patent cannot afford evidence of this fact. Id.

That act did not retroact and make that which was no title at all at the time another title accrued superior to that other title. White v. Martin, 66 T. 340, 17 S. W. 727.

Where a land certificate was granted to R. by special act, passed February 19, 1873, it is held, under the authority of Ralston v. Skerrett, 82 T. 486, 17 S. W. 843, that the validating act of March 31, 1883, inured to the benefit of the heirs of R., although patent had issued to him thereon, and he had died prior to the date of such validating act. Russell v. Bates, 1 C. A. 609, 21 S. W. 132.

Rights of heirs.—The issuance of a patent to those designated in the certificate as heirs of the parties entitled to the land is conclusive as to the question of their heirship. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495; Grigsby v. May, 84 T. 240, 19 S. W. 343. See Vera- mendi v. Hutchins, 48 T. 531. A grant to two persons, heirs of J. P., deceased, it appearing from the recitals in the grant that it was based on the emigration to and settlement in Texas of J. P., vested the title in the parties named, in trust for the benefit of all his heirs. Delk v. Punchard, 64 T. 360.

The fact that a patent was subsequently issued to the heirs of a testator held not to affect the right of devisees under his will to recover the land. Dean v. Jagoe, 46 C. A. 389, 103 S. W. 195.

A widow, applying as the head of a family for land, held to acquire an equity thereto perfected by an act of the legislature, so that the title passed by her will to her devisee. Houston Oil Co. v. Gallup, 50 C. A. 369, 109 S. W. 957.

While ordinarily a patent to the heirs of a decedent conveys the title to those who are the true heirs at law, yet, where the certificate on which the patent is based shows that it was granted by a board or a court to particular persons as such heirs, the patent is to be regarded as a grant to those persons. Houston Oil Co. v. Hayden, 104 T. 175, 135 S. W. 1149.

A land certificate having been located, a portion of the land was allotted to defendant, and he subsequently sold parts thereof to others. The other heirs having applied to the state land commissioner to float the certificate, defendant objected so far as it affected the land so awarded to him and a balance certificate was issued to the other heirs which they floated on other land. Held, that such facts established partition of the certificate between defendant and the other heirs, and that he was estopped to claim any part of the land located by them. Robertson v. Brothers (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 667.

Art. 5372. [4186] In what order patents shall issue.—The commissioner of the general land office is authorized and required to patent surveys in the order in which they may be made ready for patenting, without regard to the order of filing in the general land office or the order of application; provided, that, when application is made for patent on any claim, and the office fees therefor have been paid, such claim shall have preference over claims for which no application has been made; provided, such surveys shall have been regularly mapped, or there be sufficient evidence that no previous survey has been legally filed in the land office covering the same ground as represented on the maps of the office. [Act April 8, 1861. P. D. 4300. Acts 1879, S. S., ch. 27.]

Art. 5373. [4187] Patents on unrecommended certificates prohibited.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby prohibited from issuing a patent upon any survey that shall have been made by authority of a certificate issued prior to March 16, 1840, and has not been returned as genuine and legal by the commissioners appointed by the act of January 29, 1840, or by authority of a warrant issued for military services, unless the same shall have been presented to and approved by the secretary of war, the adjutant general, or the commissioner of the court of claims, as heretofore prescribed by law, or unless said certificate or warrant shall have been issued by authority of a special act of the legislature; and any patent issued contrary to the provisions of this article shall be null and void, unless the person claiming such patent shall produce to the commissioner of the general land office the judgment or decree of a district court of the republic or state of Texas, from which no appeal was taken within the time prescribed by law, that he is justly entitled to the amount of land under the constitution and laws. [Act Jan. 29, 1840. P. D. 4288. Acts 1879, ch. 121, p. 129.]

See Appendix for repealed and omitted land laws.

Art. 5374. [4189] Patent may be canceled in whole or in part, where issued by mistake.—Where a patent to land has been or may hereafter through mistake be issued upon any valid claim for land which is afterward found to be in conflict with any older title, it shall be competent for the owner of such patent, or any part of the land embraced therein, and within such conflict, to return the same to the commissioner of the general land office for cancellation, or in case the owner of such land in conflict can not obtain the patent, then he shall return instead thereof legal evidence of his title to such patent, or part thereof; and in either case he shall make and file with the said commissioner an affidavit in writing that he is still the owner of the same, and has not sold or transferred it; and, should it appear from the records of the general land office, or from a duly certified copy of a judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction before which the title to such land may have been adjudicated, that such conflict really exists, it shall be lawful for him to cancel the patent, or such part thereof as shall appear to belong to the party so applying. [Act March 10, 1885, p. 76.]

Fraud.—Sale of school lands under a false representation of the grantor that he had resided thereon for three years, which would entitle him to a patent, held fraudulent, so as to authorize cancellation. Settle v. Stephens, 18 C. A. 695, 45 S. W. 969.

The state is not required to refund the purchase money paid for school lands on setting aside a patent for fraud in obtaining it. State v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 599.

The fraud which will vitiate a patent issued by the proper authority of the state must be fraud practiced on the state or its duly constituted agents, and not on a claimant of the land. Hulett v. Platt, 49 C. A. 377, 109 S. W. 207.

Purchaser for value.—A grantee, taking a deed from a patentee of land in consideration of advances previously made, held not a purchaser for value, as against the state's right to set aside the patent for fraud. State v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 599.

Where plaintiff's application and survey of public lands were fraudulently altered, and the land was subsequently patented to defendant's grantor, plaintiff held not entitled to the land as against such grantor. Robles v. Cooksey (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 584.

That the patentee of land defrauded the state in procuring the patent held not to entitle another who illegally attempted to have it patented for himself to recover the land from the patentee, or his grantee, with notice. Rogers v. Blackshear (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 938.

Art. 5375. [4190] When in partial conflict, may be canceled.—In cases where there is only a partial conflict, the commissioner of the general land office may, under like circumstances and in like manner as is provided for in the preceding article, cancel any patent presented to him, and issue a patent to the applicant for such portion of the land covered by his patent as may not be in conflict with the older title, where from the field-notes the same may be done. [Act Feb. 3, 1874. P. D. 4302.]

Art. 5376. [4191] Commissioner required to deliver patent, when.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized and required to issue and deliver all patents now or hereafter ready for delivery to the person entitled to receive the same, when it appears from the books of said office that the legal fee for said patent has been at any time heretofore deposited in said office and not withdrawn. [Acts 1891, p. 182.]

Vernon-Sayles
1914
Amended
35 L. P. 119

Art. 5377. Patents on homestead claims, to issue when.—The commissioner is directed to issue patents to all homestead claimants, pre-emptors, and other persons who settled upon public lands in good faith and attempted to purchase the same and had the field-notes thereto returned to and actually filed in said land office prior to October 23, 1898, where the law under which said settlement, pre-emption or purchase was made is complied with, and patent could legally issue thereto, had it not been for the decision of the supreme court of the state of Texas in the case of Hoge vs. Baker, rendered on October 23, 1898; provided, proof of occupancy shall be filed in the land office and payment of patent fees made. [Amended Acts 1903, p. 228, sec. 9.]

Art. 5378. [4192] Refunding of fee when patent can not issue.—Upon proper proof being made to the comptroller that deposits have been made in any special funds of moneys, for which deposits and payments no patents for lands can be issued for which such payment may have been or may hereafter be made, the comptroller is authorized to issue his warrant in favor of such parties for such amount as may be found to be due; provided, this article shall not apply to surveys, the errors in which may be corrected. [Acts 1883, p. 113.]

Note.—This article was chapter 111 of Laws 1883, and was amended and superseded by chapter 104 of Laws 1895. The chapter was inserted by the codifiers of 1895 as article 4159c. See Art. 5404 herein.

Art. 5379. [4193] When patent may be delivered to agent.—No patent shall be delivered in any case to an agent or legal representative until he shall have filed written authority from the owner.

Art. 5380. [4194] Commissioner required to issue patents on certificates not reported by clerks, when.—The commissioner of the general land office is authorized and required to issue patents to lands that have been surveyed and returned to the general land office and have been suspended because the clerks of the county courts have failed to make reports as required by law, when said commissioner is satisfied from evidence in his office that such patents should issue. [Acts 1883, p. 82.]

Note.—This article originally read: "The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized and required to issue patents to lands that have heretofore been surveyed," etc. See 2 Sayles' Civ. St. 1889, art. 3967a.

Art. 5381. [4195] Penalty for failure to pay fees on patents; venue, etc.—If any patents remain in the land office six months after the owners are notified of the issuance, and to pay the dues on the same, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to add to the amount of said fees a penalty of ten per cent per month for the whole time the fees may remain unpaid, and to collect said penalty and fees from the persons or corporations to whom said patents have been granted; and said commissioner shall have no authority to deliver any patent for land or certified copy of field-notes or certificate thereof until the whole amount of said fees and penalty shall have been paid, and it is made the duty of the attorney general to bring suit for the same in the district court of Travis county. [Acts 1879, p. 62.]

Fees payable.—Fees are payable upon all patents issued from the land office. Taylor v. Hall, 71 T. 213, 9 S. W. 141.

Art. 5382. [4196] State shall have a lien to secure the fees.—The state of Texas has and shall hereafter have a lien upon all the land conveyed by or included in all patents to land granted by the state for the amount of fees and penalties provided for in the preceding article, and said land shall be subject to be sold in satisfaction of the same. [Id.]

Art. 5382a. Surveys validated; when patent to be issued.—That in all cases where parties resurveyed or re-located lands by virtue of any valid land certificates previously surveyed and on file in the general land office, with or without having taken out certified copies thereof, and thereby failed to comply strictly with the law, such last named survey, which in law might be deemed a re-location, shall be valid, and the owner shall hold thereunder, thereby abandoning all other surveys previously made, and the commissioner of the general land office is authorized to issue patents therefor. Provided such re-location shall not be patented if made in conflict with any valid location or survey previously made. [Acts 1889, p. 107, sec. 1. Amended Acts 1913, p. 357, sec. 1.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

LAND RESERVATIONS

Art.	Art.
5383. Locations validated.	5386. One-half of public domain added to permanent fund.
5384. Lands sold for taxes to state, etc.	5387. The asylum lands.
5385. All unappropriated lands declared part of permanent school fund.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter. See, also, Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.]

Article 5383. [4265] Locations validated.—Any and all public lands heretofore surveyed by railroads, or corporations, or any company, or any person in this state, for the benefit of the public free schools of this state, by virtue of any certificate, valid or invalid, void or voidable, be and the same are hereby declared to be lands belonging to the public free schools of this state. [Acts 1883, p. 4.]

Application.—This article was intended to apply to all lands theretofore surveyed for the benefit of the public free schools, and to appropriate such lands to that fund, and it applies to surveys in which there are irregularities in the manner of making the same, or to a failure to comply with the statutory provisions with reference to the entry or application for survey or in returning the certificate and field notes of such surveys to the general land office. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 611.

Art. 5384. [4266] Lands sold for taxes to state, etc.—When lands are sold in unorganized counties and bid in by the comptroller for the state for the taxes due thereon, and are not redeemed by the owner thereof, nor his agent, within two years, by the party redeeming the same paying double the amount for which said land was sold, then the land thus sold and unredeemed shall become vacant and revert to and become a part of the public free school fund, to be sold and disposed of as other lands belonging to the public free school fund are to be sold and disposed of by law. [Acts 1879, p. 140.]

Art. 5385. All unappropriated lands declared part of permanent school fund.—All lands heretofore set apart under the constitution and laws of Texas, and all of the unappropriated public domain remaining in the state of Texas, of whatever character, and wheresoever located, including any lands hereafter recovered by the state, except that included in lakes, bays and islands along the gulf of Mexico within tide-water limits, is set apart and granted to the permanent school fund of the state; and all such lands heretofore or hereafter recovered from railway companies, firms, persons, or other corporations by the state, by suit or otherwise, and constituting a part of said school fund as herein provided, shall be disposed of as other school lands, except as otherwise provided by law. In all cases where said land, or any portion thereof, has been surveyed into tracts of six hundred and forty acres, more or less, and field-notes thereof returned to and filed in the general land office, the same is hereby declared a sufficient designation of said land; and the commissioner of the general land office shall dispose of the same by the survey and block numbers contained in said field-notes. [Acts 1900, p. 29. Acts 1899, p. 123.]

Constitution.—For construction of article 7, section 2, of the constitution, setting apart school lands, see G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. State, 77 T. 367, 12 S. W. 988, 13 S. W. 619; Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58; Pulliam v. Runnels County, 79 T. 363, 15 S. W. 277.

Retroactive operation.—Acts 26th Leg. c. 81, declaring that all lands theretofore or thereafter recovered by the state shall at once become part of the permanent school fund, cannot have a retroactive effect as to land, the patent to which was prior to such act validated by the legislature, after having been declared invalid by a judgment in favor of the state. State v. Powell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 746.

Lands included in appropriation.—In the case of lands equitably owned by the public free school fund, one whose homestead survey thereof under which he claims not having been made until October, 1898, and the benefit of these laws of 1899 and 1900 being limited to those whose homestead surveys were made prior to such time, it cannot avail him that he became an actual settler and made application for such survey before that time. Burkhead v. Bush (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 68.

Where one has taken all necessary steps in 1896 and subsequently to acquire land under the homestead laws as then existing, before the land had been withdrawn by the act of 1900, he has title superior to one who purchases from the state (land in question) as school land by patent issued to him in October, 1902. Lane v. Huffman (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1071.

Art. 5386. [4253] One-half of public domain added to permanent fund, etc.—After the payment of the amounts due from the state to the common free school fund out of the proceeds of the sales heretofore made, or hereafter to be made, of that portion of the public lands set aside for the payment of the public debt by an act approved July 14, 1879, and an act amendatory thereof approved March 11, 1881, and the payment directed to be made to the common school and university funds by an act approved February 23, 1883, the remainder of said land, not to exceed two million of acres, contained in the counties and territory specially mentioned in said acts, or the proceeds thereof, set aside by said acts for the payment of the public debt, heretofore or hereafter to be received by the state, shall one-half thereof constitute a permanent endowment fund for the university of Texas and its branches, including the branch for the instruction of colored youths. [Acts 1883, p. 71.]

See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

Art. 5387. [4254] The asylum lands.—The four hundred thousand acres of land set apart for the lunatic asylum, the blind asylum, the asylum for the deaf and dumb, and an orphan asylum, in equal portions of one hundred thousand acres for each of said asylums, by the provisions of an act of the legislature entitled, "An act setting aside and appropriating land for the benefit of asylums," approved August 30, 1856, is hereby recognized and set apart to provide a permanent fund for the support, maintenance and improvement of such asylums. [Const., art. 7, sec. 9. Act Aug. 30, 1856, p. 76.]

See Early Laws, Art. 2595.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Islands.—The term "reservation" used in the grant of a certificate, held intended in the sense of lands subject to appropriation which have at different times been reserved temporarily from general and subjected to particular locations, and does not include islands. Roberts v. Terrell, 101 T. 577, 110 S. W. 733.

It is the policy of the state of Texas to reserve its islands from location. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 318.

A public land certificate issued under a special act, not authorizing its location on an island, held not subject to location on an island belonging to the state. Id.

Certain special acts held not to constitute a ratification of the location of certain land certificates by W. on islands belonging to the state. Id.

Lands situated on islands in Texas are reserved from location. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State, 104 T. 168, 135 S. W. 522.

Abandonment of appropriated lands.—Title to a part of public lands appropriated for a particular use held to become a vested right not impaired by abandonment. Talley v. Lamar County, 104 T. 295, 137 S. W. 1125.

Lease of reserved lands.—The acts creating the Memphis and El Paso reservation did not operate as an appropriation of the lands, but only as a mere withdrawal from the location by others than those for whose benefit the reservation was created, and do not preclude the lease of unlocated portions thereof by the commissioner of the general land office. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68 S. W. 703.

See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

Cancellation of patent to surveyor.—By the provisions of Pen. Code, art. 164, no county or district surveyors or their deputies shall be directly or indirectly engaged in the purchase of public land. When patent has been issued to such a purchaser, the state can maintain an action to cancel the patent without returning or offering to return the purchase-money paid by the defendant to the state. State v. Thompson, 64 T. 690.

Art. 5389. [4215] Abstract to be corrected when necessary.—The commissioner of the general land office shall make it the special duty of one of his clerks to constantly correct the abstract of patented, titled and surveyed lands required to be kept in his office according to errors discovered, changes by cancellation of patents, changes of county lines, and creation of new counties, and to add all new patented surveys at the date of the patent. [Id. sec. 4.]

Excerpts admissible in evidence.—Excerpts from the abstract of Texas land titles, published by the land commissioner as required by this article, are admissible in evidence in trespass to try title. Whitaker v. Browning (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1197.

Art. 5390. [4216] Supplemental abstract furnished, when.—During the month of August of each year hereafter, the commissioner of the general land office shall have made out and furnished to the comptroller of public accounts a supplementary abstract of all patents that have been issued from his office during the year ending on the thirty-first day of August. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5392. [4218] Printing of, how paid for, etc.—The sum necessary to pay for the printing and binding of said supplemental abstracts shall be paid out of the general appropriation made by the legislature for printing; and all moneys received by the comptroller by the sale of said abstracts shall be paid into the treasury to the credit of said appropriation. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5393. [4218a] Certain locations validated.—The titles to all lands located by virtue of certificates issued to railroad companies in whole or in part for sidings, switches or turnouts, and which lands were transferred by any of said companies, or their duly appointed receivers or assigns, prior to the first day of January, A. D. 1891, to purchasers in actual good faith for value, and are now owned by such purchasers, their heirs or assigns, be and the same are hereby validated to such purchasers, their heirs or assigns, and also to all actual settlers on such lands so far as the state may have any claim, and that the titles to all public free school, university, or asylum lands located by virtue of such certificates are also validated, whether the locations were voidable or not by reason of their having been made by the wrong surveyor; provided, that this article shall not apply to lands for the recovery of which suit has already been instituted by the state, nor be construed to validate locations made on lands that were at the time appropriated or reserved from such locations, nor shall it be construed to in any manner apply to or affect the rights of third parties heretofore acquired in good faith; provided, further, this article shall not apply or be held to validate titles in the following other cases:

1. Where said lands were transferred through foreclosure proceedings against such companies to trustees or mortgagees or other persons or corporations interested in mortgages on said lands, or who held said lands for such interested persons or corporations, and where the apparent title to said lands was still in said companies or their receivers or their transferees at such foreclosure sale on January 1, 1891, and have not been subsequently transferred to actual settlers on such land or to bona fide purchasers thereof for value and without notice.

2. Where said lands have been transferred by said companies in evasion and fraud of the laws of alienation applicable thereto and the title is now in the name of the original vendees of said companies. [Acts 1895, p. 36.]

Art. 5394. Failure to alienate, no forfeiture when.—The failure of any railway company or other original grantee of any valid alternate land certificate to alienate their lands or any portion thereof, granted to them within the periods specified in the laws under which said lands were granted, or by any other law of the state of Texas, shall not be deemed a sufficient cause for forfeiting such lands, or any part thereof, by the state of Texas; provided, it shall appear that such lands have in fact, by a bona fide sale, been already alienated to actual purchasers; and provided, further, that all lands now held by such original grantee shall be sold to actual bona fide purchasers on or before the first day of July, 1910, otherwise such lands as are not so alienated shall revert to and become the property of the state of Texas; provided, further, that all lands affected by this article shall be alienated in tracts not to exceed four sections to any one person or persons, and that no person, persons, or corporations shall make more than one purchase of said lands. [Acts 1903, p. 130.]

Art. 5395. Must alienate within what time.—Any railway company which has in any manner whatsoever acquired title to or interest in any land in this state, not required in the construction, operation or repair of its railway, or for yards, stations, or other facilities, shall alienate the same in good faith on or before the first day of July, 1910, otherwise the same shall be forfeited to the state at the suit of the attorney general. [Id.]

Art. 5396. [4274] Surplus segregated from public domain, when.—Surveys and blocks of surveys made by virtue of valid alternate scrip be and the same are hereby declared to segregate from the mass of the public domain all land embraced in said surveys, or blocks of surveys, as evidenced by the corners and lines of same, or by calls for natural or artificial objects, or the calls for the corners and boundaries of other surveys, or by the maps and other records in the general land office. [Acts 1889, p. 104.]

Application.—In order to become the beneficiary under Arts. 5396-5398, the person invoking their protection must show that he is a purchaser of the entire section before he can claim the prior right to purchase the excess and (2) he must exercise that right within the period of six months after the date of the resurvey which discloses the excess. Willoughby v. Long (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 648.

Where the state has received and approved an application to purchase a section of school land, previously surveyed by authority of law in good faith, Arts. 5396-5398 contemplate that the land commissioner may sell the excess to the purchaser of the section or survey affected thereby, without segregating the excess from the body of the section or survey, and does not give the commissioner arbitrary or discretionary authority to segregate the excess from the body of the section and locate it in any portion of the section regardless of improvements or of the quality of the land segregated as compared with other portions of the section, and without regard to equitable rules governing the partition and distribution of lands. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 140 S. W. 91, 143 S. W. 141.

Resurvey.—Where the land commissioner, after discovering an excess of school land in a section or survey sold to a bona fide purchaser, desires to segregate the excess as authorized by Arts. 5396-5398, he must begin the resurvey at the beginning corner of the original survey, and leave the section or survey in a body and as near a square as may be practicable, and, after giving the purchaser his quantum of acreage, lop off the excess. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 140 S. W. 91, 143 S. W. 141.

Rights of purchaser.—A survey of state land containing 685 acres was purchased as containing 640. Defendant, a subsequent purchaser, having sold 200 acres to a third person, sold 485 to plaintiff. Held, under Arts. 5396-5398, that, no segregation having been made, plaintiff cannot assume that the 45-acre excess will be taken from his tract, and hence cannot recover from defendant such deficiency in the acreage purchased by him. Gale v. Wright (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1163.

Under Arts. 5396-5398, a vendee of a purchaser of a section containing excess lands is entitled to have the original purchaser purchase the excess for the vendee's benefit, or purchase the same in his own name as the purchaser's assignee; and hence, on a shortage in the sale quantity being discovered by reason of the existence of an excess in the survey, the purchaser's vendee was entitled to perfect his title to the excess and to recover from the purchaser under his warranty of title such sum as the vendee was required to expend for that purpose, not to exceed the amount paid to the purchaser in the first instance for the shortage, with legal interest. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 140 S. W. 91, 143 S. W. 141.

Art. 5397. [4275] Belong to public free school fund.—All excess in said surveys are donated and declared to belong to the public free school fund of the state; and it shall be the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to ascertain, by any and all means practicable, the existence and extent of such excesses, and to provide for and direct such surveys, or corrected surveys, as may be necessary for this purpose; provided, that, where such surveys were made in blocks of two or more surveys, said respective surveys shall remain on the ground consecutively as placed therein, as shown by the maps, sketches and field-notes originally returned to the general land office; provided, that the person who has already purchased, or who may hereafter purchase from the state the particular section to which surplus shall by such resurvey be made contiguous, shall have the prior right for the period of six months after such resurvey shall have been made, in which to purchase such excess on the same terms on which such purchaser has already bought or may buy. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5398. [4276] Excess to be added.—All such surveys which, under the direction of the commissioner of the general land office have been or may be hereafter corrected, so that all excess in the original surveys shall be placed in the surveys belonging to the public free schools, are hereby validated, and the action of the commissioner is hereby ratified; and he is directed and authorized to issue patents to the owners thereof, and to sell such surveys belonging to the public free schools, securing to the state the benefit of such excesses. [Id. sec. 3.]

Application.—See notes under Art. 5396.

Where the draughtsman in the land office, according to custom in such office, adopted the designation and numbering of such surveys made by the surveyor and appearing in the field notes, it was a sufficient compliance with this article. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 610.

Art. 5399. [4277] Shall not affect.—The provisions of this law shall not apply to nor affect the rights of the third persons heretofore acquired in good faith. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5400. [4278] Conflicts.—Nothing in the preceding four articles shall apply to any lands for which patents have been issued. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5401. [4279] Even numbered surveys in conflict, etc.—Where the common school or even numbered surveys in conflicting locations, made by virtue of alternate land certificates, are not identical or upon the same land, the commissioner of the general land office may, where he deems it to the interest of the state to do so, change the numbers of the surveys in the conflicting locations so as to make the common school or even numbered surveys in both locations identical; provided, that the commissioner of the general land office shall not change the numbers of surveys without the written consent of the owner of the certificates by virtue of which said surveys are made. [Acts 1889, p. 104.]

Art. 5402. [4271] Land, how sold and proceeds invested.—Each county may sell or dispose of the lands granted to it for educational purposes in such manner as may be provided by the commissioners' court of such county; and the proceeds of any such sale shall be invested in bonds of the state of Texas, or of the United States, and held by such county alone as a trust for the benefit of public free schools therein, only the interest thereon to be used and expended annually. [Id.]

See, also, notes under Arts. 1370, 1373.

Title and rights of counties in general.—The title of a county to school lands, the patent of which it had received from the state before the adoption of the constitution of 1869, was not divested by section 8, article 9, of that instrument, which gave to the legislature control of such lands. That section would only affect such school lands as had not been patented. Galveston County v. Tankersley, 39 T. 651. The authority of this decision is recognized in Worley v. State, 48 T. 1; but the court says: "We are by no means prepared to assent to what is said in the opinion in that case denying the power of the state over lands granted by her to her own political subdivisions for public purposes."

The state cannot arbitrarily take from a county its school lands. Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153.

The state may exercise such supervisory control as may be necessary to enforce the performance of the trust upon which the land is donated, but it cannot by legislation divert its use to other and different parties and purposes than those contemplated when it was originally granted. Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153; Milam County v. Blake, 54 T. 169; Palo Pinto County v. Gano, 60 T. 249.

The counties may sell or dispose of their lands in such manner as the commissioners' court may direct. Palo Pinto County v. Gano, 60 T. 249.

The entire proceeds of the sale of land belong to the permanent school fund of the county. Pulliam v. Runnels County, 79 T. 363, 15 S. W. 277; Tomlinson v. Hopkins County, 57 T. 572; Cassin v. La Salle County, 1 C. A. 127, 21 S. W. 122.

County school lands are exempt from taxation while owned by the county. Land & Cattle Co. v. Board, 80 T. 489, 16 S. W. 312.

The intention in granting lands to counties for educational purposes was to impose upon the several counties the duties of trustees as to such lands. Board of School Trustees v. Webb County (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 488.

Construction of grants.—The legislature intended to prescribe one broad general rule to the construction of grants of school lands to counties and that rule is that the land included in the patents shall be held to be that included in the lines returned to the land office without regard to mistakes in surveying. * * * Where lines are given which embrace all of the land between two sets of surveys but the surveyor by a mistake not shown by his return has erroneously stated the distance, the lines given in the land are made to conclusively control whether the distance and quantity are as the surveyor intended or not. Steward v. Coleman County, 95 T. 445, 67 S. W. 1017, 1018.

Powers of commissioners' court in general.—See, also, Title 40, Chapter 2.

Purchasers of school land held charged with notice of any want of power of a commissioner appointed to sell such lands by an order of the commissioners' court. Logan v. Stephens County (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 109.

The commissioners' court is authorized to sell the county's school lands in such manner as it may provide. San Augustine County v. Madden, 39 C. A. 257, 87 S. W. 1057.

Const. art. 7, § 6, as it existed in 1881, provided that lands granted to counties for school purposes might be sold by the counties as provided by the commissioners' court; the proceeds to be held for the benefit of the public schools. Const. 1876, art. 5, § 18, declared that the county commissioners' court should exercise such powers and jurisdiction over all county business as was conferred by the constitution or laws of the state, and this article and Art. 2271, made it the duty of the commissioners' court to provide for the disposition of all county school lands in the manner provided by the commissioners' court. Held that, while such provisions authorized a disposition of such lands, they could only be sold "in the manner" provided by the commissioners' court, which had no power to delegate to the county judge the power to make such sales as agent for the county, and sales so attempted to be made by him were invalid. Gallup v. Liberty County, 57 C. A. 175, 122 S. W. 291.

— Ratification of sale.—Where a county had full power to sell certain school lands, but the sale was invalid because made by the county judge under an ultra vires delegation of authority by the commissioners' court, the county, having received the purchase money and used it for county purposes, thereby ratified the sale and was not entitled to recover the land. Gallup v. Liberty County, 57 C. A. 175, 122 S. W. 291.

Approval of a sale of the timber on school lands by the commissioners' court and the receiving of the purchase money and use thereof by the county for school purposes held a ratification of the sale. Carter-Kelly Lumber Co. v. Angelina County (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 293.

The order of the commissioners' court approving a sale of timber on school lands need not be in writing to constitute a ratification of the sale. Id.

Contracts for purchase.—The commissioners' court has the authority to release the original vendees from their liability on a vendor's lien note for the purchase money of the county school land and to accept instead the obligation of the parties to whom such vendees sold secured by a deed of trust on the land. Waggoner v. Wise County, 17 C. A. 220, 43 S. W. 836.

A sale of school lands held executory prior to payment of the price authorizing the commissioners' court to reduce the rate of interest on the purchaser's obligation. Delta County v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 902.

One of defendants held not to have taken a part of land as agreed under a contract between plaintiff and defendants, whereby each was to take a certain amount of land purchased from the county. Ellerd v. Cox, 52 C. A. 60, 114 S. W. 410.

Where one of several parties to an agreement for the purchase of county land defaulted in his payments, the county held not entitled to recognize certain persons as entitled to take up his interest as against another party to the agreement though an option to do so had been expressly reserved. Id.

The county held not a necessary party to an action by one of several parties to an agreement, under which they bought county lands, to enforce his right to take up the interest of a defaulting party to the agreement. Id.

A county held to rescind its contract to sell school land. Tinney v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 184.

There is no distinction between an express provision and an implied provision in a county's executory contract for the sale of its school lands, as to the county's right to rescind it, in case of a breach by the grantee. Fullerton v. Scurry County (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 971.

Right of purchaser to enforce specific performance of contract for school lands after his own breach, as dependent on the provisions of the contract as to forfeiture of payments made, stated. Id.

Existing law as to a county's right to rescind an executory contract of sale of its school lands held to enter into an executory contract of sale, and become a part of it. Id.

Acquiescence by county officers in a contract of sale of school lands, ineffectual to pass title, held not to raise a limitation as against the county. Id.

Judicial proceedings, by which a county recovered judgment for school lands which it had sold, held not to divest grantees of the purchaser from their right to tender and obtain specific performance of the original contract upon certain conditions. Id.

County selling school lands and retaining a vendor's lien held entitled, upon breach of contract, to rescind the contract and retake possession, without notice to the purchaser's grantees or their representatives. Id.

County held to have the right to rescind its executory sale of school lands and to resume possession thereof on breach by the purchaser, without notice of rescission to his infant grantees or heirs. Id.

On county's rescission of entire executory contract for the sale of its school lands, held, that a minor grantee, although without notice of a rescission by the county, could not acquire an undivided interest in common with the school fund. Id.

Sale for consideration other than money.—A county cannot convey a part of its school lands to pay expenses of its location. Tomlinson v. Hopkins County, 57 T. 572.

Where a part of the consideration of the sale of county school land is other than money the sale is invalid. Tomlinson v. Hopkins County, 57 T. 572; Cassin v. La Salle County, 1 C. A. 127, 21 S. W. 122.

The entire consideration must be money. If a part of the consideration is anything other than money the sale is invalid, if the purchaser knew the fact or might have known it, however innocent of any intention to defraud or deceive he may have been. San Augustine County v. Madden, 39 C. A. 257, 87 S. W. 1057.

Fact that a purchaser of county school lands in addition to paying full value for the land agrees to release a claim against the county held not to invalidate the sale. Taber v. Dallas County, 101 T. 241, 106 S. W. 332.

Payment for services in subdividing land.—Where county commissioners convey school lands for services in subdividing the whole tract, in a suit to recover from a subsequent grantee it is not incumbent on the county to pay the defendant the value of such services. Dallas County v. Club Land & Cattle Co., 95 T. 200, 66 S. W. 294.

Employment of agents and payment of commission.—The commissioners' court held to have power to appoint agents to sell county school lands on specified terms, convey the lands, receive the purchase money, deposit it to the credit of the school fund, and make an annual report pursuant to a written contract. Matagorda County v. Casey, 49 C. A. 35, 108 S. W. 476.

A stipulation in a contract with agents for the sale of county school lands held not an agreement to pay them out of the proceeds of the sales; and hence on its face an unauthorized diversion thereof. Id.

Where county commissioners without authority authorized a sale of school lands by the county judge, the fact that he was allowed a commission out of the purchase price, all of which belonged to the county school fund, did not invalidate the sale. Gallup v. Liberty County, 57 C. A. 175, 122 S. W. 291.

Amount for which sold.—Fact that it should be subsequently found that county school land was in fact worth more than it brought held not to avoid the sale fairly made. Taber v. Dallas County, 101 T. 241, 106 S. W. 332.

Warranty of title.—A county held not liable on a warranty of title contained in a deed of certain school lands, which deed the commissioner making the same had no authority to execute. Logan v. Stephens County (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 109.

Boundary agreement.—A county may dispose of the fee in its school lands only by sale, and cannot make such disposition by a boundary line agreement. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

Abandonment of lands purchased.—On facts stated, held, that the grantees of a purchaser of county school lands had abandoned their rights therein. Fullerton v. Scurry County (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 971.

Lease.—A county may lease its school lands. McInnes v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 816.

Liability of sureties on treasurer's bond.—When the school lands are sold on credit, the county taking the purchaser's notes therefor, the interest upon the notes becomes a part of the available school fund, and the sureties on the treasurer's bond are liable for the safe-keeping of such moneys that come into his hands. Simons v. Jackson County, 63 T. 428.

Investment of school fund.—This article does not restrict the general power of the court over the investment of the school fund. Boydston v. Rockwall County, 24 S. W. 272, 86 T. 234. See Kentucky Cattle Raising Co. v. Bruce, 78 T. 269, 14 S. W. 619.

The county has no authority to loan the proceeds of sales on a note secured by deed of trust of lands belonging to the borrower, but he cannot avoid such note and security under the plea of ultra vires. Albright v. Allday (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 646.

Diversion of funds.—Where county school land is sold by the trustees in good faith for full market value, the validity of the sale held to depend upon whether they have applied all the proceeds to the school fund, as required by Const. 1876, art. 7, § 6. Taber v. Dallas County, 101 T. 241, 106 S. W. 332.

Art. 5403. [4272] Actual settlers to have preference.—In any sale of county school lands, under the provisions of the preceding article, the actual settlers residing on said lands shall be protected in the prior right of purchasing the same to the extent of their settlement, not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres, at the price fixed by the commissioners' court, which price shall not include the value of existing improvements made thereon by such settlers. [Id.]

In general.—A settler's occupancy operates as a notice of his claim against purchasers from the county. Land Co. v. Earle, 71 T. 468, 12 S. W. 66.

Actual settlement at the time the county offers the land for sale gives the settler a prior right to purchase, which is assignable. Best v. Baker, 3 C. A. 551, 22 S. W. 1067, 24 S. W. 679; Harris v. Byrd, 3 C. A. 677, 22 S. W. 659.

A settler on school lands belonging to a county cannot be deprived of his right to pre-emption without an offer to sell made in good faith. Carrington v. Harris (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 197.

That one moved on county land knowing it was for sale, and remained there five years, held not to relieve county from duty of offering land to him before selling it to another. Id.

Who are actual settlers.—See notes under Art. 5416.

A settler upon school land belonging to a county cannot be deprived of his pre-emption by a sale to another without an offer to sell first having been made to him in good faith and a rejection on his part. Carrington v. Harris (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 197.

Assignee.—The settler's right to purchase may be lawfully transferred to another. Baker v. Millman, 2 C. A. 342, 21 S. W. 297. See Perkins v. Miller, 60 T. 61.

Vested right.—The preference right creates no vested right after the period of preference has expired, unless the settler took, before the expiration of the period, such further steps as the law required to bring about a purchase by him. Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.

Price.—To defend against the county, the settler must buy at the price fixed by the court of the county which owned the land. Clay County Land Co. v. Wood, 71 T. 460, 9 S. W. 340; Same v. Earle, 71 T. 468, 12 S. W. 66; Baker v. Dunning, 77 T. 28, 13 S. W. 617; Baker v. Millman, 77 T. 46, 13 S. W. 618.

The settler has the prior right to purchase the block occupied by him, on tender of the price fixed by the county on the block. Ward v. Worsham, 6 C. A. 22, 24 S. W. 843. See Patterson v. True (Sup.) 2 S. W. 860.

Art. 5404. [4159c] Land purchase money refunded, when.—Upon proper proof being made to the comptroller that money has been in good faith paid into the state treasury upon lands for taxes, lease and purchase money, for which, on account of conflicts, erroneous surveys, or illegal sales, patents can not legally issue, or upon lands which patents have issued and have been or may hereafter be legally canceled, the comptroller is hereby authorized to issue his warrant for the amount so paid into the treasury in favor of the parties who have in good faith paid such money, for which they receive no consideration; provided, that this article shall not apply to surveys, the errors in which may be corrected; and provided, further, that whenever the official records of the general land office shall show that patents for such lands can not legally issue upon such surveys, on account of conflicts, erroneous or illegal sales, or that patents issued on such lands have been legally canceled, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to issue his certificate to that effect, which certificate filed with the comptroller shall be sufficient proof to authorize him to act under the provisions hereof. [Id. p. 162.]

Article 5405. [4218b] Sale and lease of public lands provided for.—All lands set apart for the benefit of the public free schools, the lunatic asylum, the blind asylum, the deaf and dumb asylum, and the orphan asylum shall be sold and leased under the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1895, p. 63.]

See Elliott v. Morris, 49 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 209; Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101; Ericksen v. McWhorter, 143 S. W. 245; Cox v. Robinson, 105 T. 426, 150 S. W. 1149.

In general.—Under the laws in force October 2, 1882, the school lands could be withdrawn from the market. Kentucky Cattle Raising Co. v. Bruce, 78 T. 269, 14 S. W. 619.

The time within which lands shall be sold is within the discretion of the legislature. Swenson v. Taylor, 80 T. 584, 16 S. W. 336; Canales v. Perez, 65 T. 291.

Act March 29, 1887, p. 61, considered in Cox v. Finks (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 95; Id., 91 T. 318, 43 S. W. 1.

Constitutional provisions.—The constitution does not inhibit the lease of the school lands. Smisson v. State, 71 T. 222, 9 S. W. 112; Fitzgerald v. State (Sup.) 9 S. W. 150; Cunningham v. State (Sup.) 11 S. W. 871; Falls County v. Delaney, 73 T. 463, 11 S. W. 492; Brown v. Shiner, 84 T. 505, 19 S. W. 686; Arnold v. State, 71 T. 239, 9 S. W. 120; Coleman v. Lord, 72 T. 288, 10 S. W. 91; Swenson v. Taylor, 80 T. 564, 16 S. W. 336.

Section 4, article 7, of the constitution of 1876, provides: "The lands herein set apart to the public free school fund shall be sold under such regulations, at such times, and on such terms as may be prescribed by law." While this commands that the lands shall be sold, it leaves it entirely to the discretion of the legislature when it shall be done. It fails to direct that the entire body of such lands shall be immediately sold, or that until sold no other disposition shall be made of them. See Brown v. Shiner, 84 T. 505, 19 S. W. 686; Swenson v. Taylor, 80 T. 584, 16 S. W. 336.

The legislature may deal with the public school lands in any manner not inconsistent with the express provisions of the constitution. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Art. 5406. [4218c] Duties of commissioner of the general land office.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby vested with all the power and authority necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter, and shall have full charge and discretion of all matters pertaining to the sale and lease of said lands, and their protection from free use and occupancy and from unlawful enclosure, with such exceptions and under such restrictions as may be imposed by the provisions of this chapter, or by the constitution of the state. He shall, as soon as practicable, adopt such regulations not inconsistent with the constitution or this chapter as may be deemed necessary for carrying into effect the provisions of this chapter, and may from time to time alter or amend such regulations so as to protect the public interest; but all regulations shall be submitted to the governor for his approval before adoption or promulgation. He shall adopt all necessary forms of applications for sales or leases, and all other forms necessary or proper for the transaction of the business imposed upon him by this chapter, and may, from time to time, call upon the attorney general to prepare such forms; and it shall be the duty of that officer to furnish the commissioner of the general land office with such advice and legal assistance as may be requisite for the due execution of the provisions of this chapter; and it shall be the duty of such commissioner to call upon the attorney general for advice whenever there is any doubt as to the meaning of this chapter, or any provisions thereof. [Id.]

Powers of commissioner.—The authority given the commissioner of the land office to lease public lands, Acts 1895, is not in conflict with article 14, § 6, Const. 1876, authorizing homestead donations. Bain v. Simpson, 18 C. A. 429, 45 S. W. 395.

The law both before and after the amendment of 1897 clearly authorized the commissioner of the land office to lease the school, asylum and other lands, and the lessee is entitled to recover as against trespassers. Sullivan v. Hall, 22 C. A. 440, 55 S. W. 579.

It would seem that the land commissioner is given the power, when necessary, to cause a transfer (if not theretofore done by the secretary of the land board) of obligations of purchasers of school lands from the treasurer's office to his own, and the land commissioner could not forfeit the land without indorsing a forfeiture on the obligation. Comanche Co. v. Brightman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 976, 977.

The adoption of rules and regulations by the commissioner held not a condition precedent, essential to the validity of sales and leases of certain public lands. West v. Terrell, 96 T. 548, 74 S. W. 903.

Under this article the land commissioner is nominally invested with a very enlarged discretion in reference to the sale and lease of the school and asylum lands. But the restrictions with reference to the sale are so specific as to deprive him practically of all discretion in the matter. This is not so with regard to a lease. He can make a lease for not less than three cents an acre and for not longer than five or ten years as the case may be (Art. 5452). In the one case the state makes the offer the acceptance of which is the contract. In the other the making of the lease is confided to the discretion of the commissioner. When he has made a lease for 10 years, it will be presumed that he has examined the question and found that the quality of the land is such as to permit a lease for that term. Sanford v. Terrell (Sup.) 87 S. W. 656.

Art. 5407. Classification and valuation.—The commissioner of the general land office may, from time to time, as the public interest may require, classify or reclassify, value or revalue, any of the lands set apart for the benefit of the public free school, lunatic asylum, the blind asylum, the deaf and dumb asylum and the orphan asylum, designating the same as agricultural, grazing, or timbered land, according to the fact in the particular case; and he may prescribe such regulations in relation thereto as he may deem necessary to secure a correct classification; provided, all agricultural lands shall be sold at not less than one dollar and fifty cents per acre, and all grazing lands shall be sold at not less than one dollar per acre. He may also reclassify any lands heretofore erroneously classified, upon the official certificate of the commissioners' court of the county in which said land is situated, or of the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes, certifying what the proper classification should be, said certificate to be signed by the entire commissioners' court, including the county judge, or upon such other evidence as may be satisfactory to the commissioner. And it shall be his duty to notify in writing the county clerk of each county the classification and valuation affixed upon each section of land in his county, and each county attached to it for judicial purposes; and he shall forward the same to the county clerk of the county for which said list was made, or to the county clerk of the county to which the said county is attached for judicial purposes. The said commissioner shall also notify said clerk of each and every sale as soon as they are made. Upon receipt of said list, or any notice required to be given under the provisions of this act, the county clerk receiving the same shall forthwith file and record said list or notice in a well bound book to be kept for that purpose. When informed of the sale of any land, the clerk shall enter on his books, opposite the description of the land so sold, the name of the purchaser and the date sold, and the said list and notice of sale so furnished the said clerk, and the said books shall be considered public records, and be open to public inspection; and it is hereby made the duty of the county clerk to exhibit the said book and the records to any person who shall apply therefor. When any portion of said land has been classified to the satisfaction of the commissioner of the general land office, under the provisions of this chapter, such land shall be subject to sale, but to actual settlers only, except where otherwise provided by law; provided, that the purchaser shall not include in his purchase more than two sections of agricultural land. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 1. Art. 4218e, Act 1895, amended Acts 1897, p. 184. Art. 4218b, Act 1895. Art. 4218e, Act 1895, amended Acts 1897, p. 184. Act of 1905, p. 159, part of sec. 1. See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

See Snyder v. Nunn, 66 T. 255, 18 S. W. 340; Perez v. Canales, 69 T. 674, 7 S. W. 507; Flannagan v. Nasworthy, 1 C. A. 470, 20 S. W. 839.

In general.—What is probably meant by "when any portion of the school land has been classified to the satisfaction of the commissioner it shall be subject to sale," is that it is again "subject to sale" as it originally was when classified to the satisfaction of the commissioner—to be put upon the market and sold in the same manner. O'Keefe v. McPherson, 25 C. A. 313, 61 S. W. 535.

This law was intended merely to give fuller and more accurate information as to unsold lands in order to help purchasers and facilitate sales. It was not intended to stop sales which were then going on and continued to be made under other provisions. Lands were not taken off the market and sales suspended by this act until the statement provided by section 1 had been made to the county clerks. Barnes v. Williams, 102 T. 444, 119 S. W. 90.

Powers and duties of commissioner.—See notes under Art. 5406.

The commissioner has no discretion in regard to sale to an applicant. Burnett v. Winburn (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 969. The act does not apply where, after location, the number of acres is reduced by correcting adjoining surveys. Thompson v. Langdon, 87 T. 254, 28 S. W. 931.

Under this article the commissioner is himself empowered to make the classification, and this classification and appraisal are necessary for the sale of the lands. When application is made to lease, the commissioner can determine to what class the land belonged in the first instance without the aid of a previous classification. He is presumed to have done his duty, and having made a lease for 10 years, his action is conclusive as to the rights of the lessee under the lease. Sanford v. Terrell (Sup.) 87 S. W. 656.

Necessity of classification and valuation.—An appraisal of the land is a condition precedent to its sale. Snyder v. Nunn, 66 T. 255, 18 S. W. 340. See Perez v. Canales, 69 T. 674, 7 S. W. 507; Flannagan v. Nasworthy, 1 C. A. 470, 20 S. W. 839.

The act of 1887 did not give a preference right to a settler upon land prior to its classification. No right is acquired by actual occupancy before the land is put on the market. Hovert v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 710.

Public school lands cannot be bought until they are classified and put on the market for sale. Cordill v. Moore, 17 C. A. 217, 43 S. W. 298.

A purchaser of school lands cannot maintain an action of trespass to try title against one holding under lease from the state without showing that the lands had been classified and appraised by the commissioner of the land office. Thompson v. Austry (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 581.

After judgment declaring forfeiture of land is filed in the land office the commissioner can reject application of former purchaser on the ground that the same had not been listed by the county clerk and put on the market. Willoughby v. Townsend, 93 T. 80, 53 S. W. 581.

Classification and appraisal are not necessary in respect to land leased. Sanford v. Terrell (Sup.) 87 S. W. 656.

The law for classifying state lands applies only to those belonging to the free school and asylum funds, and not to other public lands, and the latter were not required to be classified before leased. The statute requires the commissioner to lease the lands when not in demand for actual settlement, but it does not expressly declare for a classification before lease; the language of the statute amounts to little more than a vague suggestion that there should be a classification before a lease. It is not agricultural lands which the commissioner is not authorized to lease for more than five years, but lands which have been classed as agricultural. Id.

To authorize the purchase of the land it is essential that at the time the application is made the land should be listed with the county clerk in the manner required by this act. Unless this is done the land is not on the market subject to purchase. Williams v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 436.

Reclassification and reappraisal.—An approval of a reappraisal of all school lands "which appeared on the market" held not to constitute a reappraisal of a tract which had previously been awarded to plaintiff. Bowerman v. Pope, 25 C. A. 79, 61 S. W. 330, 75 S. W. 1093.

Where an application to purchase school land at $1 per acre is made while the land is appraised at $2 per acre, and the appraisal is changed to $1 per acre and the land thereafter awarded to the applicant at such price on such application, the award is valid and takes the land out of the market. Steward v. Wagley, 29 C. A. 105, 68 S. W. 297.

This act did not require a new classification and appraisal of the public lands offered for sale by the state, nor did it suspend the sale thereof, until the land commissioner could make up and send out the revised lists. Where one makes application on May 7, 1901, for land which was classified as dry grazing land and appraised at $2 an acre May 27, 1896, and was an actual settler, he was entitled to the land over one who had been awarded the land at $1 an acre by the commissioner September 3, 1900, but who was not an actual settler. The fact that the commissioner made an award which was void did not take the land off the market. Briggs v. Key, 30 C. A. 565, 71 S. W. 43.

A sale of school lands reappraised at $5 an acre to an applicant applying for the purchase while the appraised value was fixed at $3 an acre is not a sale in compliance with law. Erp v. Tillman, 103 T. 574, 131 S. W. 1057.

Report of commissioners' court.—The settler can purchase at the price fixed by the commissioners' court. Land Co. v. Wood, 71 T. 460, 9 S. W. 340.

The commissioner of the land office can approve of the appraisal of school lands by the commissioners' court, although not made strictly in compliance with the statute. Dooley v. Maywald, 18 C. A. 386, 45 S. W. 221.

Fifteen years after sale of school lands, purchaser could assume that tabulated report from the commissioner's court had been filed with commissioner of land office, as required by law. Scott v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 480.

Notice of classification and effect thereof.—The filing of the notification by the commissioner of the classification is not essential, and an application is not insufficient for that reason. Cordill v. Moore, 17 C. A. 217, 43 S. W. 298.

School land is not subject to sale on the same day that it is forfeited for non-payment of interest, in the absence of notice to the county clerk by the land commissioner that the land is offered for sale. The fact that the commissioner had previously advertised the land for sale does not dispense with necessity of sending notice to county clerk. Boswell v. Terrell, 97 T. 259, 78 S. W. 4.

Under this article and Art. 5409, land is on the market for sale when the clerk of the county court receives notice of the classification and appraisement, and the act of 1905 does not conflict with these articles in this respect. Estes v. Terrell, 99 T. 622, 92 S. W. 407.

Effect of classification and valuation.—An actual settler applying to purchase school land under law of 1897, at a price less than its appraised value, held entitled to award, where the commissioner, before acting on application, reduced the price to less than that offered. Hendrix v. Gracey (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 137.

A party has no right to buy at $1.50 per acre land put on the market at $2.00, and hence the deposit and his obligation to buy at $1.50 per acre give him no rights; neither does it make any difference that three days after his deposit and obligation the land was reclassified at $1.50 per acre. Gracey v. Hendrix, 93 T. 26, 51 S. W. 846.

Where school land was appraised at $2 per acre, the fact that it appeared on the books of the land office without appraisement, and that land so listed was understood to be on sale at $1.50 per acre, held not to validate an application to purchase it at that price. Bowerman v. Pope, 25 C. A. 79, 61 S. W. 330, 75 S. W. 1093.

Where the price of school lands has been fixed by the commissioner, an application for and award of the land to a proposed purchaser at a less price is void. Nard v. Baker, 27 C. A. 461, 66 S. W. 306.

Award of school lands to applicant at a reduced price held valid. Threadgill v. Butler, 33 C. A. 347, 77 S. W. 43.

The commissioner of the general land office held not required to sell at less than $2 per acre public school lands, a classification of which valuing it at $2 per acre was regularly made by him and recorded in his office, though on the same day he forwarded to the county clerk a "corrected and revised list of all unsold school lands," showing it to be valued at $1 per acre. Wilson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 818.

When notice of the classification and appraisement is sent to the county clerk, and is received by him, the tract is subject to sale and the land commissioner is without authority to postpone the sale to some future date. Estes v. Terrell, 99 T. 622, 92 S. W. 407.

Where school lands are classified and prices fixed and placed on the market, it is an offer of sale by the state the acceptance of which by an actual settler completes the sale. Williams v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 432.

Where an application for the purchase of school land appraised at $3 per acre was not acted on until after the commissioner had reappraised the land at $5 per acre, a sale to the applicant at $3 per acre was not a sale in compliance with law. Erp v. Tillman, 103 T. 574, 131 S. W. 1057.

An application to purchase school land at a price below that at which it has been appraised and offered for sale secures no right to the applicant, and the application does not constitute an acceptance of an offer to sell subsequently made for a price below that stated in it. Id.

A sale of public school lands at a price less than the appraised value is invalid. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 157 S. W. 1160.

Cancellation of sales for errors in classification.—The land commissioner, after he has made a classification and appraisement under the law, and has awarded the land to a purchaser, has no right to cancel a sale to a purchaser on the ground alone that he made a mistake in the classification and appraisement. The conditions precedent to the power to sell having been complied with (by the commissioner) and the purchaser, by his application having accepted the offer to sell thus held out by the statute through such action of the commissioner and having complied with the statutory requirements, there was a complete executory contract of sale. Harper v. Terrell, 96 T. 479, 73 S. W. 949.

Evidence.—See, also, notes under Arts. 3687, 3696.

In a contest for school land, evidence considered, and held insufficient to show that the land had not been appraised at the price for which it was awarded to an applicant. Davis v. McCauley, 28 C. A. 211, 66 S. W. 1124.

In trespass to try title by the purchaser of school lands, held, that there was nothing to show a classification and appraisement prior to his application. Corrigan v. Fitzsimmons (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 68.

Evidence held to show prima facie classification and appraisal of home section before the grant. Stolley v. Lilwall, 33 C. A. 48, 84 S. W. 689.

 L. P. 313

Art. 5408. Advertisement of land.—In cases where lands may be leased and the same shall come on the market by reason of the expiration of such lease, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to notify the county clerk ninety days, when practicable, before the expiration of such lease of the date of such expiration. When a lease is for any cause canceled, he shall notify the county clerk of that fact and fix a date not less than ninety days thereafter on and after which applications to purchase may be filed. All notices of expiration and cancellation of leases shall be forthwith recorded as required for notices of classification and valuation. The commissioner shall adopt such means as may be at his command that will give the widest publicity as to when land will be on the market for sale by reason of expiration of any lease. Such publicity shall, when practicable, be given ninety days in advance of such expiration. When a lease is canceled for any cause, the land shall not be for sale until ninety days thereafter. Immediately after the cancellation of a lease or leases the commissioner shall proceed to give publicity to the fact, the same as is herein required with reference to publicity of expiring leases. If there are no other satisfactory or sufficient means at the command of the commissioner that will give the necessary publicity, he shall have printed at the expense of the state, to be paid out of the appropriation for public printing, a list or lists of the lands, and send them out in the mail and to every person requesting them. Such lists shall also contain a brief statement as to how one shall proceed to purchase the land. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 2.]

See Sayles v. Robison, 103 T. 430, 129 S. W. 346.

Effect of outstanding lease.—Invalid sale of lands to lessee cannot be treated as continuation of lease, though payments exceeded amount due under lease. Burnam v. Terrell, 97 T. 309, 78 S. W. 500.

A part owner of a lease of state school lands cannot alone waive the lease, so as to authorize purchase of the lands. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 569.

Mere proof that a state lease had been executed for a period sufficient to embrace an award of state school land, without showing that the lease had been forfeited or the rights thereunder duly waived, held insufficient to show the award invalid. Hood v. Pursley, 39 C. A. 476, 87 S. W. 870.

A lease of school lands held void and no obstacle to a subsequent award to defendant on which judgment was rendered. Buchanan v. Barnsley, 51 C. A. 253, 112 S. W. 118.

Expiration of lease.—Premature application for purchase, see notes under Art. 5410.

A lease of public lands for five years from April 16, 1897, held to have expired midnight April 16, 1902. Patterson v. Terrell, 96 T. 509, 74 S. W. 19.

Purchase after cancellation of lease.—The provisions of this article relating to the giving of notice as to land which becomes subject to sale by the termination or cancellation of a lease, were not applicable to land which must be surveyed before it can be sold under section 8 of the act of April 15, 1905; no land being subject to sale upon cancellation of a lease until it is surveyed, so that the fact that the full 90 days' notice was not given to the county clerk upon the cancellation of a lease of unsurveyed land would not affect the validity of the survey and sale of such land under section 8. Meador v. Robison, 103 T. 206, 125 S. W. 564.

Art. 5410. Actual settlers, applications.—All sales shall be made by the commissioner of the general land office, or under his direction. Any person desiring to purchase any of the surveyed land mentioned in this chapter shall make a separate application in writing for each tract applied for and be addressed to the commissioner of the general land office.

It shall sufficiently designate the tract sought to be purchased, and give the price offered therefor, which shall not be less than the appraised value fixed by the commissioner. Each application shall contain the affidavit of the applicant to the effect that he desires to purchase the land for a home, or as additional to the home applied for, or as additional to his own land which has been theretofore purchased from the state, or as additional to his own private land, as the case may be, and that he is or will, as the case may be, in good faith, become in person an actual bona fide settler on some portion of the land he purchases, or upon his other land, as the case may be, within ninety days from the date his application is accepted, also that he is not acting in collusion with others for the purpose of buying the land for any other person or corporation, and that no other person or corporation is directly or indirectly interested in the purchase thereof; also every application shall be accompanied by the obligation of the applicant in a sum equal to the amount of the deferred payment offered for the land. Said application, affidavit and obligation shall be filed in the land office through due course of mail and not by any one in person, in an envelope addressed to the commissioner of the general land office at Austin, Texas; and, when the land is to come on the market at some future date, the envelope shall have endorsed thereon as follows: "Application to buy land; Sections, Block, Grantee, County, Date on market," and the blanks shall be properly filled out. When the envelope so endorsed is received in the land office, it shall be safely and securely kept and preserved by the commissioner, or his chief clerk, without being opened until the day following the date endorsed thereon as to when the land comes on the market, and one or both of them shall begin at ten o'clock a. m., on the day following the day the land comes on the market, to open the envelopes for inspection of the applications, and such action as is herein provided for, and in the presence of the applicants, if they desire to be present, or in the presence of such person as they may designate to represent them; and said applications shall immediately be filed, together with all other applications received up to that time for the same land. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 3.]

See Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101; Hanna v. Atchison, 141 S. W. 190.

Rights of applicants in general.—A petition, in a suit to recover school land by an applicant for the purchase thereof, not alleging that he is either an actual settler on the land or is an owner of and actual settler on other lands, held fatally defective. Sterling v. Seif, 30 C. A. 284, 70 S. W. 238.

Under the law in force in 1897, an applicant could not purchase more than two agricultural sections, and an application for three (or four) is improper and forms no basis of title, and should be excluded from evidence, and having been excluded he can offer no evidence of his obligation, or payment and settlement. Goethal v. Read, 35 C. A. 461, 81 S. W. 594.

An application for the purchase of school lands is properly rejected, where at the time the application is made the records of the commissioner's office show they are under lease or have been sold to another person. Bradford v. Brown, 37 C. A. 323, 84 S. W. 392.

If school land is unsold and is lawfully on the market for sale, the application of one who may be entitled to purchase and who complies with all the terms of the statute and the rules of the land office, cannot be arbitrarily rejected by the land commissioner; and when one who is suing upon his rejected application has brought himself within the terms of the law, he has overcome the presumption that the commissioner has acted lawfully in rejecting his application. Knapp v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 394.

Under the facts, one who made a bid for school lands held not entitled to an award. Hobbs v. Robison, 103 T. 89, 124 S. W. 89.

In view of this article the provisions of Art. 5408, relating to the giving of notice as to land which becomes subject to sale by the termination or cancellation of a lease, were not applicable to land which must be surveyed before it can be sold under section 8 of the act of April 15, 1905; no land being subject to sale upon cancellation of a lease until it is surveyed, so that the fact that the full 90 days' notice was not given to the county clerk upon the cancellation of a lease of unsurveyed land would not affect the validity of the survey and sale of such land under said section 8. Meador v. Robison, 103 T. 206, 125 S. W. 564.

When land is on the market in general.—Premature application, see post.

When the legislature spoke of land "to come on the market at some future date," they meant merely such lands as were to be subject to sale at a time subsequent to the making of the applications, and that the word "future" was intended to relate to the time at which the application was made, and not to the time at which the statute was passed or took effect. Flores v. Terrell, 99 T. 575, 92 S. W. 32.

Other sales.—A fraudulent purchase and sale does not interpose a legal obstacle to another purchaser. A sale can be contested in the courts at any time before the final proof is made. A subsequent purchaser is not bound to wait for the state to obtain a judicial forfeiture of the prior fraudulent purchase. Metzler v. Johnson, 1 C. A. 137, 20 S. W. 1116; Hitson v. Glasscock, 21 S. W. 710, 2 C. A. 617.

Where an application to purchase school lands was regular, and the applicant was an actual settler thereon until his assignment to another, the award of the land to such applicant took the land off the market until it was declared forfeited by proper proceedings; and a subsequent applicant, alleging abandonment, could not recover the lands. Duncan v. State, 28 C. A. 447, 67 S. W. 903.

An award of school lands by the commissioner of the general land office, void because the applicant was not an actual settler, did not take the land off the market. Briggs v. Key, 30 C. A. 565, 71 S. W. 43.

Uncanceled award held sufficient to keep school lands from being subject to a subsequent application. May v. Hollingsworth, 35 C. A. 665, 30 S. W. 841.

Evidence held not to show a prior award of state land had been canceled, so as to place it on the market, when plaintiff made application to purchase it. Smith v. Hughes, 39 C. A. 113, 86 S. W. 936.

Where school land had been once sold it could not again be put upon the market until the sale had been legally forfeited. Bumpass v. McLendon, 45 C. A. 519, 101 S. W. 491.

An applicant to purchase school land, claiming that a prior application by the holder of a lease was invalid, held required to show a termination of the state's rights under the lease. Patterson v. Knapp (Sup.) 103 S. W. 489.

The commissioner of the general land office is powerless to sell school land which has been legally sold previously where the prior purchase is kept in good standing. Zettlemeier v. Shuler, 52 C. A. 648, 115 S. W. 78.

One claiming school land under a subsequent award must show the invalidity of the previous sale. Id.

A sale of school land after it had been sold to another, and while the prior sale was in force, does not affect the title of the prior purchaser or of the state. Pohle v. Robertson, 102 T. 274, 115 S. W. 1166.

On abandonment of purchase of school land, substitution of third person for another purchaser held complete, and sufficient to take the land off the market. Fitzhugh v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 913.

Public school lands were not subject to purchase where a prior sale thereof had not been officially canceled when the application to purchase was filed, so that the subsequent sale was unauthorized and conveyed no right. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

A cancellation of a void award of public lands to a minor is not necessary to a subsequent award of the land to an adult. Rainer v. Durrill (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 589.

Purchase by minors and married women.—As the act authorizing the sale of school lands (July 8, 1879), and declaring that "any" person may become a purchaser, etc., did not expressly authorize minors to become purchasers, a sale to a minor who complies with the law, creates no contract between the state and the minor which could be enforced against the state by one who afterwards bought the minor's interest in the land under an order of a probate court, and then paid the balance of the purchase money to the state treasurer. State ex rel. Walker v. Rogan, 93 T. 248, 54 S. W. 1018.

The contention that a married woman had no right to acquire school lands, because she was not a "person" within the contemplation of the statute authorizing the sale of such lands to "any person," held not maintainable. Anderson v. Neighbors, 25 C. A. 504, 61 S. W. 145.

A sale to a minor who is old enough to become an actual settler under statutes making that the sole qualification of a purchaser should be upheld, especially in view of the decisions and the action of the land department of the state authorizing such sales. O'Keefe v. McPherson, 25 C. A. 313, 61 S. W. 535.

A minor is entitled to purchase land under this article. Watson v. White, 26 C. A. 442, 64 S. W. 828.

A minor who is an actual settler is not denied the privilege of buying additional lands by reason of his minority. White v. Watson, 34 C. A. 169, 78 S. W. 237.

Sales of public lands are not void because made to a minor. Taylor v. Lewis, 38 C. A. 390, 85 S. W. 1011.

In a proceeding to cancel a sale of school land on the ground of the purchaser's minority, the state must allege and maintain it by proof. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

An award of public lands to a minor is invalid. Rainer v. Durrill (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 589.

The removal by the district court of the disability of infancy of one to whom public land had been previously awarded does not avoid an award to an adult made subsequent to the award to the minor and prior to the removal of disability. Id.

Necessity and sufficiency of application in general.—An application to purchase public school lands, accompanied by an affidavit of settlement thereon for a home, are conditions precedent to acquiring title. Cordill v. Moore, 17 C. A. 217, 43 S. W. 298.

An application to purchase school lands, where in compliance with the act of 1895, is good, under the amendatory act of 1897. Abilene Live Stock Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 885.

When the application complies substantially with the statute and one-fortieth of the aggregate purchase price is tendered, the erroneous recital of the balance of the purchase money due may be treated as surplusage or at most as a clerical error and the right of the applicant—an actual settler and intending purchaser—cannot be thus defeated. Joyce v. Sisk, 26 C. A. 68, 62 S. W. 961.

Application to purchase school land held not void for a certain irregularity. Faucett v. Sheppard, 33 C. A. 64, 75 S. W. 538.

An application for the purchase of school lands held to sufficiently describe the lands to empower the commissioner to sell the same. Lindsey v. Terrell, 100 T. 548, 101 S. W. 1073.

Inclosure of state land does not of itself confer any right in or to the land, but only gives a preference right to purchase. Underwood v. King, 102 T. 561, 119 S. W. 298.

An application to purchase state land cannot include several separate tracts. Giraud v. Robison, 102 T. 488, 119 S. W. 1145; Scrivner v. Same (Sup.) 119 S. W. 1146.

A purchase of school land held not absolutely void because of a mistake in the application. Samples v. Wever, 56 C. A. 562, 121 S. W. 1129.

An application by one who has purchased the east 240 acres of 529½ acres surveyed and placed on the market as school land, which describes the land applied for as additional land to his 240 acres, does not sufficiently describe the land, and an award thereof by the commissioner is not a sale in compliance with the law. Erp v. Tillman, 103 T. 574, 131 S. W. 1057.

Under the provision of this article requiring the original purchaser of public land to forward his application properly describing the land, and Art. 5436 authorizing him to sell and the substitute purchaser to file his obligation with the commissioner of the general land office, together with the duly authenticated conveyance or transfer from the original purchaser, a proper description in the substitute purchaser's affidavit, if required, was substantially complied with by application of the substitute purchaser, with the attached obligation describing the land correctly and including the county where it was located, so as to authorize the commissioner to recognize him as a purchaser of the land, though the application itself omitted the county. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 253.

Time for making application.—An application and affidavit, made for the purpose of acquiring title to public school lands, which were sworn to before the land was put on sale, but otherwise regular, held insufficient. Cordill v. Moore, 17 C. A. 217, 43 S. W. 298.

An application to purchase public school lands is properly made after the lands are classified and placed on the market, but before notification thereof has been filed. Id.

An application to purchase school lands, filed before the same have been placed on the market by the commissioner by listing the same with the county clerk, is properly rejected. Willoughby v. Townsend, 93 T. 80, 53 S. W. 581.

An application to purchase public school land, which was made the same day, but prior to the receipt of the notice by the county clerk of its classification and appraisal, but reached the general land office afterwards, held not invalid. Lester v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 429, 63 S. W. 916.

Where one who applied to purchase school lands before settlement afterwards settles on the land, without making a new application, but relies on the application made, he waives, in a contest with another applicant, any superior right by reason of his settlement. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 116.

Where a settler on school land applies for an additional tract before acquiring title to his home tract, but acquires such title before the application is considered, the award held valid. Id.

Under the agreed statement of facts in trespass to try title to school lands, held, that the court must assume that the land was regularly on the market at the time of plaintiff's application to purchase the land. Hardman v. Crawford, 95 T. 193, 66 S. W. 206.

Where two or more applications for the purchase of leased school lands are filed prior to the expiration of the lease by persons other than the lessee, the first applicant is entitled to the land, if the other applicants do not file a further application after the lease has expired. Corbin v. McGee (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1068.

Where various applications to purchase leased school lands were all premature, because made before the expiration of the lease, but one of the applicants filed another application after the expiration of the lease, he was entitled to the land, though his first application was not prior to that of the other premature applicants. Id.

A lease of school land for a term of two years from August 26, 1899, cannot be regarded as expiring prior to 12 o'clock midnight of August 26, 1901, and an application to purchase made prior thereto is premature. Id.

Prematurity of affidavit to accompany application for purchase of school lands held immaterial. McGee v. Corbin, 96 T. 35, 70 S. W. 79.

Where, in trespass to try title to school lands, plaintiff fails to show that the land was classified at the time of his application to purchase, he cannot recover. Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1003.

Application to purchase public school lands leased for two years from August 26, 1899, held not premature, though filed after midnight August 25, 1901. McChristy v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 569.

Application to purchase public lands as an actual settler held not affected by the fact that it was sworn to a few hours before the settlement. Allen v. Frost, 31 C. A. 232, 71 S. W. 767.

An applicant for the purchase of certain public lands held entitled to an acceptance of his application, though it was filed with the county clerk prior to the expiration of a lease of the land. Patterson v. Terrell, 96 T. 509, 74 S. W. 19.

As against one who applied to purchase the land after the county clerk has received notice of valuation, one who has applied to purchase before the receipt by the clerk of such notice acquires no right or title in the land by his application, because his application was prematurely made. Ford v. Brown, 96 T. 537, 74 S. W. 537.

The land is not on the market for sale until the notice of the valuation placed upon it has been received by the county clerk of the county in which it is located. The law itself makes the offer of the sale of the land by the action of the commissioner in giving notice to the clerk. The specific requirement of the statute as to the manner in which the application shall be made necessarily implies that the value of the land should be determined before the application is presented; and considering the provisions of Art. 5409 in connection with such requirements, we think it was the intention of the legislature by requiring notice to be given to the county clerk of the valuation to afford all persons equal opportunity to purchase. Id.

An application by an actual settler to purchase school land, though premature, held to give title against one who made an invalid application to purchase. Ford v. Brown, 33 C. A. 198, 75 S. W. 393.

An application for school lands, made after classification and appraisal, but before notice thereof has reached the clerk, is void. Corrigan v. Fitzsimmons (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 68.

An outstanding lease of public school lands precludes an application to purchase them, though the lessee is ineligible as a purchaser. Pruitt v. Scrivner (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 976.

In a suit to recover school land awarded to plaintiff, proof that he was an actual settler at the time he applied for the land is unavailing, in the absence of evidence of classification and appraisal. Smithers v. Lowrance, 35 C. A. 25, 79 S. W. 1088.

Where a lease of school land had not expired at the time plaintiff applied to purchase the same, but before plaintiff's application was acted on the lease expired, and defendant applied to purchase the same, the land was properly awarded to defendant. Jones v. Lohman, 36 C. A. 418, 81 S. W. 1002.

A premature application to purchase public school lands held not to give applicant a right to the land, where, before their award to her, another made proper application. Perry v. Rutherford, 39 C. A. 477, 87 S. W. 1054.

Award of school lands based on application made before lands were regularly on the market held valid. Williams v. Barnes, 44 C. A. 298, 99 S. W. 127.

When a lease has been canceled and the land placed again on the market, a purchaser has no right to file his application to buy until the date fixed by the commissioner for filing applications and if he files before this time the commissioner has the right to reject it. Fine v. Robison, 102 T. 406, 118 S. W. 126.

If public school land is not on the market and subject to sale when application therefor is filed, a subsequent award by the commissioner, after the land comes on the market, upon the premature application, is void. Tillman v. Erp (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 547.

If public school land is not on the market when application therefor is filed, the application confers no rights upon the applicant, and cannot be made effective by the acceptance of the land commissioner. Id.

An application for the purchase of school land, filed more than a month before the cancellation of a prior sale to another and acted on after the cancellation of the prior sale and after the commissioner had reappraised the land, raising it from $3 to $5 per acre, is insufficient, and a sale to the applicant on his application is ineffectual. Erp v. Tillman, 103 T. 574, 131 S. W. 1057.

An application for the purchase of school land, made prior to the cancellation of a previous sale of land to another, is an application to purchase land not open to purchase until the previous sale is canceled, and no right is acquired at the time of the filing of the application nor prior to the cancellation. Id.

One, who has filed prematurely an application for the purchase of school land so that he cannot secure a right because the land cannot then be bought, has the right to make application when the proper time has arrived, and under proper circumstances this may consist in the use for that purpose of the papers already prepared and on file and the payment already in the proper hands. Id.

Application for the purchase of school land filed more than a month before the cancellation of a prior sale to another, and acted on after the cancellation of the prior sale and a reappraisal of the land by the commissioner, held ineffectual to give the applicant title. Id.

Mode of filing or presenting application.—Filing of application to purchase school lands held sufficient. McGee v. Corbin, 96 T. 35, 70 S. W. 79.

Under this article an award cannot be set aside, and the land awarded to one who had sent a bid which did not reach the commissioner's office in time because the letter containing it remained in the post office, owing to absence of an employé of the land office whose duty it was to get the mail. Byrne v. Robison, 103 T. 20.

— Application by agent.—The proposed purchaser of school lands is authorized to employ an agent to present his application. Sweet v. Slough (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 854.

Under law regulating purchase of school lands, requiring purchaser to make affidavit and execute notes for price, one acting as agent of another to present latter's application to commissioner of land office is deemed to be his agent only to extent of lands described in application. Sweet v. Slough (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 1043.

Where application to be made.—Where the land lies in two counties application to purchase may be made in either. It is not required that it be made in both. Davis v. Burnett, 35 C. A. 30, 79 S. W. 105.

Successive applications.—Rights under a first application to purchase public school lands held not waived by a second application. Perry v. Rutherford, 39 C. A. 477, 87 S. W. 1054.

Withdrawal of application.—A party seeking to claim school land as a purchaser from the state held to have withdrawn his application to purchase and forfeited his right to claim the land as a purchaser. Hamilton v. Gouddy, 46 C. A. 506, 103 S. W. 1117.

Collusion.—Purchaser of state school land held entitled to contest the validity of a prior purchaser's title, on the ground that his purchase was made for the benefit of a third party. Thomson v. Hubbard, 22 C. A. 101, 53 S. W. 841.

When the purchaser agrees with a third party to allow him the use of so much of the land for grazing purposes as the purchaser did not need for money with which to make payment, this is not acting in collusion with another within the meaning of the law. Wyatt v. Lyons, 25 C. A. 88, 60 S. W. 576.

One who is not a bona fide purchaser of a section of agricultural land but who settled upon and attempts to purchase for benefit of others acquires no title as against one who subsequently applies to purchase in good faith. Logan v. Curry (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 83.

The title of a purchaser of school land is not subject to collateral attack on the ground that he purchased in collusion with another, and hence was not a bona fide purchaser. Logan v. Curry, 95 T. 664, 69 S. W. 129.

When the affidavit is made this concludes the question of good faith as to the matter of collusion. Id.

No one except the state can raise the question of fraud and collusion between applicants for the purchase of state public lands. Thomson v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 649.

An adverse claimant cannot assail the title of a purchaser of school lands on the ground that, in making his purchase, he acted in collusion with some other person. Hamilton v. Votaw, 31 C. A. 684, 73 S. W. 1091.

Right of persons to purchase public lands as detached sections held not prevented by their inducing another to buy other lands, so as to make such sections detached, where he purchased in good faith. Maney v. Eyres, 33 C. A. 497, 77 S. W. 428, 969.

Only the state can attack as collusive a purchase of public school lands, made on proper affidavit and compliance with all legal requirements. Maney v. Eyres, 33 C. A. 497, 77 S. W. 428, 969.

Only the state can raise the issue of collusion after an award of school lands. May v. Hollingsworth, 35 C. A. 665, 80 S. W. 841.

A contract, binding a purchaser from the state of school lands to execute to another a bond for title and complete the statutory period of occupancy necessary to perfect title, is not void as contrary to public policy. Johnson & Moran v. Buchanan, 54 C. A. 328, 116 S. W. 875.

Collusion between persons interested in the purchase of state land held not to strengthen the rights of an adverse claimant. Underwood v. King, 102 T. 561, 119 S. W. 298.

Where the applicant for lands makes the affidavit required by a purchaser, and the commissioner accepts it and awards the sale, he is without power to cancel the sale because of collusion. Mitchell v. Robison, 103 T. 642, 132 S. W. 465.

A contract relating to the acquisition of an interest in state school land held non-enforceable. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 887.

One purchasing lands under an executory contract to convey held not entitled to compel specific performance of the agreement; the land being state school land, and the agreement being collusive for the purpose of defrauding the state. Purinton v. Brown (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1080.

The payment of fees for a cancellation of the original award, and the making of a new award of school lands to a purchaser by the original purchaser, was not such collusion as would invalidate a purchase-price mortgage given to the original purchaser. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Right and interest of purchaser.—Purchase-money notes, given to a party who sells unappropriated public land that he has no right to, are without consideration. Rayner Cattle Co. v. Bedford, 91 T. 642, 45 S. W. 554.

A purchaser of school lands held to take it incumbered with the public road previously established by a commissioner's court. Middleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 812.

A purchaser of school lands from the state, whose purchase is in good standing, is entitled to possession as an ordinary vendee, and the state cannot, in the absence of special authority, maintain trespass to try title, even though another makes claim adversely to the title of the vendee. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 1178.

Land included in application or purchase.—A purchase of a section of land held not to include an excess included in the original survey. Willoughby v. Long (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 646.

A purchase from the state held to include a whole survey. Willoughby v. Long, 96 T. 194, 71 S. W. 545.

An application for 400.8 acres of the south part of a certain section held subject to location anywhere in the south part of such survey. Morgan v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 1164.

Opening applications.—The word "day" in this section means not the next calendar day, but the next day on which the land office is required to be open, and when the land comes on the market on Friday, the 20th of April (the 21st being a legal holiday, and the 22d Sunday), the next day when applications can be opened and considered is Monday, the 23d. Fessenden v. Terrell, 100 T. 273, 98 S. W. 640.

Art. 5411. Cash payments, how remitted.—Such applicants shall transmit with their applications the required first payment in the form of money or remittance collectible on demand in Austin, and convertible at par into money on the order of the state treasurer, without liability; provided, that, should a remittance be made payable to the commissioner of the general land office, such payment shall not be invalid for that reason, but the commissioner shall endorse it to the state treasurer without incurring liability and the same shall be treated as if payable to the treasurer. If the payment is not made as required in this article, the application shall be void. [Acts 1909, p. 429.]

Mistake.—Applicant's right to purchase cannot be defeated by a mistake of the land commissioner or state treasurer in inadvertently returning a part of the purchase money which the applicant has tried to retransmit. Faucett v. Sheppard, 24 C. A. 552, 60 S. W. 277.

Art. 5412. Remittances, how accounts kept.—When an envelope enclosing an application to purchase land is opened and the remittance for the first payment is in the general land office, the commissioner shall cause such remittance to be listed in triplicate daily, and in such form as to show the purpose and amount of each remittance, the name and address of the applicant, and transmit the remittance and two of the lists to the treasurer. On receipt thereof, the treasurer shall check the remittances with the lists, and, if found to be correct, he shall receipt one of the lists and return it to the commissioner and retain the other list; and thereupon the commissioner shall deliver the third list retained by him to the comptroller of public accounts. The treasurer shall at once collect all collectible remittances and report to the commissioner and comptroller all remittances not collectible in Austin. The items not collected shall be returned to the commissioner, and the application for which such remittances were made shall be void. All first payments thus collected by the treasurer shall be retained by him until he receives notice from the commissioner of the final disposition of the applications to purchase; and thereupon he shall at once return to each applicant the amount shown to have been paid on his rejected applications. A duplicate of the notice to the treasurer of accepted and rejected applications and the amount of first payment shall be transmitted to the comptroller. On the last working day of each month, the treasurer shall deposit in the treasury to the credit of the proper fund the sum collected by him on accepted applications during that month. [Id.]

Art. 5413. Awards, how made; notice and accounts of.—Notices of awards shall be prepared and issued by the commissioner, and shall be appropriately numbered, and shall be so worded as to constitute a receipt for first payment when signed as such by the commissioner. Books shall be prepared containing two copies of the notice of award and a suitable number of coupons to be used by the applicant in making subsequent payments on the land. The notice of award shall be prepared in duplicate, one to be detached from the book and retained in the land office, the other, with the coupons attached, to be sent to the applicant. The coupons in each book shall be prepared in duplicate, each of which shall be numbered with the same number as that on the notice of award. The form of the coupons shall be so prepared as to be suitable for, and shall be used by the remitter in making all subsequent payments on the land, the original to be so worded as to be used as a receipt for remittances when signed as such by the commissioner. The remitter shall describe each tract of land on which he is making remittance by properly filling in the blanks on both the original and duplicate coupons, and shall enter in the proper blanks the amount remitted as interest, and the amount remitted as principal, and both the original and duplicate shall be mailed to the commissioner with the remittance. The commissioner shall likewise furnish former purchasers with similar coupon books, without notice of award, which coupon shall be used by them in the same manner as herein provided when making remittances for interest or principal, or both. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5414. Remittances, disposition of and accounts of.—All accounts with purchasers and lessees of the lands mentioned in the preceding articles and university land shall be kept in the general land office. A remittance payable to the commissioner of the general land office shall not be invalid for that reason, but he shall endorse it to the treasurer without incurring liability. Immediately on receipt thereof the commissioner shall list in triplicate, separate from first payments, all money and other forms of remittances received for the purposes stated in this article and in such form as to show the amount of each remittance, the name and address of the remitter, and the probable fund to which the remittance should be deposited. The remittances and two of the lists aforesaid shall be transmitted to the treasurer. On receipt thereof, the treasurer shall check the remittances with the list, and if found to be correct he shall receipt one of the lists and return it to the commissioner and retain the other list, and thereupon the commissioner shall deliver the third list retained by him to the comptroller. The treasurer shall at once collect all collectible remittances and report to the commissioner and comptroller all remittances not collectible in Austin. The items not collected shall be returned to the commissioner. On the last working day of each month, the treasurer shall deposit into the treasury to the credit of the proper fund, as indicated by the lists theretofore furnished him by the commissioner, eighty per cent of all collections which have come into his hands during that month upon such lists, and hold the remaining twenty per cent thereof upon deposit receipts issued therefor by the comptroller; provided, when the commissioner shall have issued receipts to the remitters for remittances, he shall immediately notify the comptroller and treasurer definitely the fund or funds to which the whole of such remittances so receipted for should have been applied; and thereupon the treasurer shall deposit to the credit of the proper fund or funds the remaining twenty per cent of such remittances so receipted for. The commissioner shall furnish all available data to the state board of education when requested to do so by said board. The commissioner, treasurer and comptroller shall each keep an account with each fund mentioned in the preceding articles according to the lists and notices given and received by them. [Id.]

Art. 5415. Purchaser's name to be given; permanent records to be kept.—Persons making payments of interest, principal or lease rentals on land shall give the name of the original purchaser or lessee and sufficiently designate the land. All lists and notices provided in the preceding articles, to be given by the commissioner to the treasurer and comptroller, shall be retained in each of those departments as permanent records thereof. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5416. Award and settlement.—When the applications and obligations aforesaid have been filed in the general land office, and upon inspection they are found correct and the land is found to be classified and valued, and on the market for sale the day the application was filed, or on any prior date and still unsold, and the first payment made as required by law, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to award the land to the one offering the highest price therefor. If two or more applicants offer the same price for the same land, the same being the highest price offered, they shall be advised of that fact and a date fixed not less than thirty days thereafter within which time they may again file applications, and notice shall be sent to the clerk and other publicity shall be given that said lands are still on the market to any one, and the time in which applications to purchase the same may be filed as in the first instance. The applicant offering the highest price shall receive the award. If the second or subsequent applications should be found to offer the same price, the procedure shall be as in the first instance. An application at a less price than the former application contained shall not be considered. An application to purchase land coming on the market at some future date shall not be considered for award prior to the day next following the day the land comes on the market for sale. Land that is or may be on the market, and not filed on as herein provided, may be filed on and sold to any one at any time upon proper applications filed in the land office as herein provided, and in accordance with law, except the envelope enclosing the application shall not be required to have any memorandum thereon, and, if two or more applications should be filed the same day for the same land, the one offering the highest price shall be accepted, but, if two or more such applicants should offer the same price, the commissioner shall proceed as herein provided for in the first filing. All sales shall date from the day the successful applicant's application was filed in the land office. The applicant shall have ninety days from the date of the acceptance of his application within which to actually settle upon the land so purchased; and he shall within thirty days after the expiration of said ninety days given within which to make settlement, file in the land office his affidavit that he has in good faith actually in person settled upon the land purchased by him. Should the applicant fail to make and file the affidavit and proof of settlement as herein provided within the time specified, the commissioner of the general land office shall indorse that fact upon his application, cancelling the same, and immediately place the same upon the market by notice to the clerk, fixing a date not less than thirty days thereafter when applications may be filed for the purchase thereof; and any sum which may have been paid upon a former application, canceled as aforesaid, shall be forfeited to the fund to which the same belonged. All sums paid in by an unsuccessful applicant shall be returned to him. Provided, if for any cause a designated home tract can not be awarded to an applicant and there be no other obstacle to the award of one or more tracts as additional thereto, such applicant shall be permitted, without prejudice, to designate one of the additional tracts as a home tract, which shall, with such other tracts as he has applied for and are within five miles thereof, be awarded to the applicant. The commissioner shall advise the applicant why he can not award to him the home tract and request a new designation by his affidavit; and, in default of such affidavit being filed in the land office within thirty days after such notice, the commissioner may reject all the applications of such applicant, but, should no rights intervene, such affidavit may be considered at any time prior to a rejection. The affidavit shall be sufficient authority for the change of the home tract, and shall relate back to the date of the filing of the application in the land office. A purchaser may live on any tract designated as a home, or move from any designated home tract to any of his additional land, at any time during the required three years residence on the land. The applicant shall accompany the application aforesaid with his obligation to the state, duly executed, binding the purchaser to pay to the state at the land office at Austin, Texas, on the first day of November of each year thereafter, until the whole purchase price is paid, one-fortieth of the aggregate price, with interest at the rate of three per cent per annum on the whole unpaid purchase money, which interest shall also be payable on the first day of November of each year; and in default of the interest the land shall be forfeited as now provided by law. At the same time the applicant applies to purchase the land, he shall also deposit in the land office one-fortieth of the aggregate price of the same as the first payment thereon. A purchaser shall not transfer his land prior to his actual settlement thereon, and evidence of that fact filed as herein provided; and any attempt to so transfer by deed, bond for title, or other agreement shall operate as a forfeiture of the land to the fund to which the same belonged, together with all the payments made thereon; and when sufficiently informed of the facts which operate as a forfeiture, the commissioner shall note the fact of forfeiture upon the application and proceed to place the land on the market by notice to the proper county clerk and advertisement in the manner provided for canceled leases. Estoppel against state.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 37, § 10.

Acceptance and rejection.—An unsigned indorsement, made on the back of an application to purchase school lands, showing the date of its rejection, is not evidence to show that the application was rejected. Smith v. Russell, 23 C. A. 554, 56 S. W. 687.

The acceptance of the offer of the state, and the compliance by the applicant to purchase therewith, held to be what will constitute him a purchaser of school lands, and not the acceptance of his application by the land commissioner. Tillman v. Erp (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 547.

Conflicting claims—Priorities.—The law awards the land to the first applicant who is able to make affidavit to actual settlement and comply with the other requirements of the statute. The fact that some other person may have preceded him in settling thereon, but not in making application to purchase, will not deprive him of his right. Hobert v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 710.

Where an applicant for the purchase of school lands by mistake enters on the wrong land, such mistake will not invalidate his title as against a subsequent applicant, who has not, prior to the correction of the mistake, acquired any right by taking possession. White v. Hall (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 810.

An application to purchase school lands as an actual settler held to convey superior title over a subsequent attempted purchase. Martin v. Marr, 26 C. A. 55, 62 S. W. 932.

In trespass to try title, held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover by reason of a prior application for the purchase of the land. Clack v. Hart, 26 C. A. 46, 62 S. W. 935.

Evidence held not to show that the acts of the county clerk in making and mailing an application to purchase public school land gave the applicant an undue preference, so as to render the application invalid. Lester v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 429, 63 S. W. 916.

Where public school lands have been awarded to an actual settler as pasture lands, one subsequently discovering oil therein cannot acquire a prospector's rights. Chappell v. Rogan, 94 T. 650, 63 S. W. 1006.

Where applications to purchase school lands were both premature, land held properly awarded to party first filing the application. Hazlewood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 67 S. W. 80.

In trespass to try title to school land, where plaintiff's application to purchase, dated Friday, was indorsed as filed on Sunday, and defendant's two days later, an instruction that if plaintiff's "was filed on any other day than Sunday, about the time or soon after he made it, the jury should find for him," was error. Stephens v. Porter, 29 C. A. 556, 69 S. W. 423.

An applicant who files for the purchase of school land before the expiration of a lease thereof to another held entitled thereto as against applicants filing after the award to him. Smith v. Zesch, 30 C. A. 444, 70 S. W. 775.

Acts 1900, 1st called Sess. p. 33, § 7, does not deal with the question as to whom or how the land is to become subject to sale at all. Assuming that a sale is to be made, it determines rights of priority among applicants and fixes the right of a lessee when, the land being on the market, he seeks to become a purchaser. West v. Terrell, 96 T. 548, 74 S. W. 905.

On an issue whether the application of plaintiff to purchase school land or that of defendant first reached the hands of the commissioner of the land office, evidence held insufficient to sustain a verdict for defendant. Coody v. Harris, 36 C. A. 465, 81 S. W. 1233.

Where plaintiff and defendant filed rival applications to purchase two sections of school land, held immaterial that plaintiff filed his application for the second section before defendant filed his. Fellers v. McFatter, 46 C. A. 335, 101 S. W. 1065.

It is the application and not possession that fixes title in the purchaser of public school land. Possession must be shown, but an applicant who files his application to purchase prior in time to any other legal applicant acquires title. Id.

Where an applicant to purchase school lands by mistake settled on adjoining land, and on discovering the mistake immediately removed to the land applied for she was entitled to the same as against a subsequent locator and applicant with notice of her claim. Morgan v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 1164.

Where a prior purchaser of school lands took up her residence a short distance therefrom in good faith, and on discovering her mistake, moved onto the land, she was entitled to it as against a subsequent locator with notice. Morgan v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 736.

A good-faith applicant to purchase school land held entitled to it as against a prior applicant. Barnes v. Williams' Adm'r (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 978.

— Who may make objections.—The issue of the good or bad faith of the purchaser, who is an actual settler on the land, cannot be made by a mere trespasser. Gray v. Thompson, 5 C. A. 32, 23 S. W. 926; Swan v. Busby, 5 C. A. 63, 24 S. W. 303.

The disability of minority can not be urged by a person seeking to purchase school land after the commissioner of the land office had awarded it to such person laboring under the disability of minority. Weatherford v. McFadden, 21 C. A. 260, 51 S. W. 548.

One who has abandoned possession of school lands cannot dispute claim of one thereafter in possession under land commissioner. Chesser v. Baughman, 22 C. A. 435, 55 S. W. 132.

Where there was no objection on the part of the state to a sale of school land to defendant because she was a married woman, a subsequent lessee from the state cannot question her right to purchase on that ground. Anderson v. Neighbors, 25 C. A. 504, 61 S. W. 145.

Attitude of owner of school land lease with regard to the time of expiration thereof held to prevent him from attacking the validity of a sale to another applicant on the ground that his application was prematurely filed. Corbin v. McGee (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1068.

There is nothing in our law that will prevent an actual settler who has complied with the statute in an effort to purchase school lands from showing that a previous award, made within less than three years from the date of his own application and settlement, was a nullity by reason of the fact that such prior applicant did not comply with the essential requirement of actual settlement at the time of the application under which such prior award had been made, although a certificate of occupancy has been issued by the commissioner to the first applicant. Lamkin v. Matsler, 32 C. A. 218, 73 S. W. 971. This case is distinguished from Logan v. Curry, 95 T. 664, 69 S. W. 129.

An applicant for the purchase of school land cannot question the sufficiency of the proof of occupancy of a prior purchaser thereof after the commissioner has issued his certificate. Harper v. Dodd, 30 C. A. 287, 70 S. W. 223.

Where the sale of school lands is permitted to stand by the state, another cannot buy the same land unless the sale was or has become null and void. Weyert v. Terrell, 100 T. 409, 100 S. W. 133.

In trespass to try title by a grantee of the purchaser of the land from the state, defendant cannot show that the purchaser perpetrated a fraud on the state, without showing a right in himself to the land other than through the purchaser. Elliott v. Morris, 49 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 209.

Any collusion in securing a second award of school lands after a sale by the purchaser can be taken advantage of only by the state. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Where, by reason of the lapse of a year from the award of public school lands to plaintiff, the sale became valid as between him and a third person, though invalid as against the state, because a prior sale had not been canceled, no one could acquire a valid title by purchase from the state, in the absence of action by the state to forfeit plaintiff's purchase. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

— Improvements and other expenditures.—A settler upon vacant public lands cannot recover from a subsequent purchaser from the state the value of improvements made by him. Finks v. Cox (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 512.

An instruction authorizing the jury to consider defendant's acts and misconduct before and after the date of her application to purchase school lands for the purpose of determining the good faith of her settlement held proper. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1010.

In an action of trespass to try title to school land between rival applicants, plaintiff could not claim to have made any improvements on the land in good faith after his application was rejected as having been made at the same time defendant's was and after filing the suit, and could not recover from defendant the value of such improvements. Fellers v. McFatter, 46 C. A. 335, 101 S. W. 1065.

A grantee of a purchaser of school lands paying one-fortieth of the price in cash is in the attitude of the state, and improvements made in good faith on the land cannot be urged against him. Hamman v. Presswood (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1052.

— Right to maintain trespass to try title.—J. actually settled upon state school land fraudulently purchased by K., and duly made application to purchase the same from the state, tendering the first payment therefor, which was refused because of prior sale to K. Held, that such possession and tender entitled J. to sue K. and M., his assignee, in trespass to try title and to recover judgment for the land. Metzler v. Johnson, 1 C. A. 137, 20 S. W. 1116.

A purchaser of school lands from the state, whose purchase is in good standing, is entitled to possession as an ordinary vendee, and the state cannot, in the absence of special authority, maintain trespass to try title, even though another makes claim adversely to the title of the vendee. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 1178.

The word settlement used in the constitution does not limit the right of purchase to the land actually improved. Perkins v. Miller, 60 T. 61.

Actual settlement by the original purchaser or some one holding under him is sufficient. Chancey v. State, 84 T. 529, 19 S. W. 706.

K. purchased a section of school land under the act of 1887. His application and affidavits therefor represented him to be an actual settler. He was not in fact an actual settler, nor had he purchased the land in good faith. Held, such purchase conferred no title on him nor his assignee, against one who afterward settled on the land and duly applied to purchase it. Metzler v. Johnson, 1 C. A. 137, 20 S. W. 1116.

One who is not in fact an actual settler, or who does not purchase in good faith, acquires no title. Id.

One who settles on a section of school land is entitled to purchase all or any portion of it. Simon v. Stearns, 17 C. A. 13, 43 S. W. 50.

The plaintiff put a covered wagon bed on the land, placed bedding and provision box in it, set up a stove outside, fenced in a small piece of ground, put some feed in the enclosure, ate dinner and stayed all night. He made application for the land the following day. Held, that the question as to whether he was a settler in good faith should be submitted to the jury together with his after conduct in regard to the land. Borchers v. Mead, 17 C. A. 32, 43 S. W. 300.

Evidence held to support finding that plaintiff was actual settler on land. Borchers v. Mead, 17 C. A. 32, 43 S. W. 300; Willoughby v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 335; *Singleton v. Evidence showing that plaintiff, the day before she made application to purchase as an actual settler on state school land, picked out a place for a house, and that no one was occupying the land, and there were no improvements, is insufficient to show that plaintiff was an actual settler when she made her application. Renner v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 867.

It is no evidence against one's claim as settler in C. county that claimant's husband was compelled to serve on jury in H. county; he having objected, and claimed residence in C. county. Barnett v. Murray (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 784.

The definition of the residence of a married man contained in Art. 2941, as being the place where his wife resides, is not necessarily to be applied in determining whether one be an actual settler on school lands. If there be no separation of husband and wife and the latter's absence is but temporary, and the intention of both is as soon as practicable to reside upon the land as their home, active settlement and occupancy being shown in the husband, the rule does not require the actual pedal presence of the wife. Chesser v. Baughman, 22 C. A. 435, 55 S. W. 132.

This article entitles any actual bona fide owner of and resident upon any lands other than free school, asylum or public lands to purchase three additional sections situated within the five-mile radius from the land he so owns and upon which he so resides the same as if he had applied to purchase public school lands from the state in the first instance. The owner or his vendee, who has applied to purchase other lands from the state is required to reside continuously upon such patented land, or on some portion of the land applied for, for three years after the application to purchase the additional land is made, and a failure so to do forfeits the land applied for without any action of the commissioner. McKnight v. Clark, 24 C. A. 89, 58 S. W. 147.

See this case for facts which do not make one an actual settler on public land bought for a home. Jones v. Bourbonnais, 25 C. A. 94, 60 S. W. 987.

An applicant for the purchase of school land does not lose his right thereto by mistakenly and in good faith settling on adjacent land, believing it to be the tract he applied for. Hall v. White, 94 T. 452, 61 S. W. 385.

An applicant to purchase school lands as an actual settler, who builds his house through mistake on an adjoining tract, held an actual settler. Martin v. Marr, 26 C. A. 55, 62 S. W. 932; Moody v. Hahn, 25 C. A. 474, 62 S. W. 940.

Unless an applicant to purchase state public land is an actual settler thereon, he obtains no right thereto, though he thereafter makes a sufficient settlement. Thomson v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 649.

The long-continued use of an existing home by one who has applied to purchase school land, as an actual settler, may furnish convincing evidence that he did not intend to make the school land his home. Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1003.

Wife of applicant for school lands held to have made settlement for both, and not for herself alone. Willingham v. Floyd, 32 C. A. 161, 73 S. W. 831.

A purchaser of land which is not detached must comply with conditions of actual settlement. Witcher v. Wiles, 33 C. A. 69, 75 S. W. 889.

An award of public free school lands to one as an actual settler thereon, and of other sections as additional thereto, is of no validity, unless such person is an actual settler in good faith. Lewis v. Scharbauer, 33 C. A. 220, 76 S. W. 225.

See this case for evidence which was sufficient to show that a purchaser of school land was not an actual settler in good faith as required by this article, though his absence may not have amounted to an abandonment under the homestead exemption law. Mann v. Greer, 33 C. A. 517, 77 S. W. 34.

One who actually occupies and settles on land, intending to make it his home, is an actual settler. May v. Hollingsworth, 35 C. A. 665, 80 S. W. 841.

Evidence held to sustain a finding against the good faith of plaintiff's settlement on land which he made application to purchase from the state. Smith v. Hughes, 39 C. A. 113, 86 S. W. 936.

On an issue as to whether defendant was an actual settler on school lands when he applied to purchase, the evidence held sufficient to show such settlement. Smith v. Florence, 43 C. A. 557, 96 S. W. 1096.

School lands can be sold to actual settlers only. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Terrell, 100 T. 406, 100 S. W. 134.

In trespass to try title to certain school lands, evidence held to support a finding that defendant entertained an honest belief that she had located on the land applied for, that she was justified in so believing, and that she continued so to believe until she moved onto the lands, immediately after discovering her mistake. Morgan v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 1164.

The policy of the state in the disposition of its school lands is to sell only to those who will actually settle upon them and occupy them as homes. Bourn v. Robinson, 49 C. A. 157, 107 S. W. 873.

A sale of school lands to one not an actual settler is a nullity. Williams v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 432.

One who makes his home on public lands is an "actual settler" thereon, within the statute permitting such settlers to purchase additional school lands, though his habitation is such that it can hardly be called a house. Corrigan v. Fitzsimmons, 51 C. A. 444, 111 S. W. 793.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to support a finding that defendant was an actual settler on a half section of land when he applied to purchase additional school lands. Id.

Held, that there was no failure to reside on school land so as to warrant a cancellation of its purchase. Bustin v. Robison, 102 T. 526, 119 S. W. 1140.

Evidence held to support a finding that a purchaser of school lands substantially complied with the law as to residence on the lands. State v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 520.

A purchaser of state school lands may not fulfill the conditions of settlement and occupancy by proxy. Ericksen v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 847.

Where, in a suit involving conflicting claims to state school land, the evidence showed that plaintiff, a married man and the head of a family, purchased the land; that he in person, at or before the purchase, went on the land, and that subsequently he was there one or more times assisting in making improvements; that the wife, excepting temporary absences, continuously occupied the land, making improvements thereon, and that the husband remained away the greater part of the time pursuing his business; that he purchased the land for a home, and that his business was necessary to secure money with which to pay his indebtedness on the land—a charge that if plaintiff did not actually and in person settle on the land he could not recover, and that occupancy by one's wife without his presence was not sufficient, was erroneous as unduly emphasizing the necessity of plaintiff's personal occupancy, and in excluding a consideration of the acts of the wife. Id.

An "actual settler" as involving title to school land is one who actually occupies and settles upon the land, intending to make it his home. Beaty v. Yell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 911.

Conduct of applicant for purchase of school land held to raise issue as to abandonment of purchase. Fitzhugh v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 913.

Evidence held to show abandonment of plaintiff's residence in a particular county, warranting vacation of his purchase of school land therein. Lane v. Samora (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 818.

An instruction that settlement on school land for the purpose of purchasing the same might be made in a tent was objectionable, as intimating that settlement in a tent was a compliance with the law. State v. Haley (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1003.

On the issue of whether there was a sufficient settlement by one who becomes a substitute purchaser of public school lands, emphasis should not be given by instructions to the fact that the settlement and occupancy must be "in person," thus tending to exclude from the jury's consideration the acts of his wife in aid of his settlement and occupancy, to which, as well as all other circumstances, the jury may look; Acts 29th Leg. c. 103, even if adding anything, by the use of the words "in person," to the prior requirements as to settlement, being directed in terms only to an original purchaser of school lands, and not repealing Art. 5436, as to the affidavit a substitute purchaser thereof shall make as to settlement. Ericksen v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 245.

A purchaser of school lands conveying it shortly after award and then leaving it for more than seven months for more or less unexplained absence abandoned it as a matter of law, though he claimed the conveyance was not absolute, and that he intended to return. Anthony v. Ball (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 612.

Only the original purchaser can make the settlement required by the statute and the affidavit proving such settlement; a settlement by his wife being insufficient. McWhorter v. Ericksen (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 624.

Affidavit.—A sale to one whose application and affidavit stated that he was an actual settler, when in fact he was not, conveys no title. Hitson v. Glascock, 2 C. A. 617, 21 S. W. 710; Metzler v. Johnson, 1 C. A. 137, 20 S. W. 1116.

An application to purchase state lands made on Sunday is not void. Willoughby v. Townsend, 18 C. A. 724, 45 S. W. 861; Id. (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 335.

Affidavit held not to comply with the requirement that an application for the purchase of school lands shall be accompanied by affidavit that applicant desires to purchase the land for a home and has in good faith settled thereon. Willoughby v. Townsend, 93 T. 80, 53 S. W. 581, reversing (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 335.

The failure of an officer taking the affidavit of an applicant for the purchase of additional school lands to affix seal held not to make the application junior to a subsequent application. Watson v. White, 26 C. A. 442, 64 S. W. 826.

Under these acts requiring an intending purchaser to swear that he is not purchasing for another, a title bond given by a prospective purchaser while the land is still public domain is void because it seems to require a false affidavit by the purchaser. Mahoney v. Tubbs, 34 C. A. 96, 77 S. W. 823.

Where one applies to purchase additional land, but by mistake his application is made to purchase as an actual settler, his affidavit reciting that he is an actual settler (which is untrue), but is in all other respects sufficient, and had made the cash payment and afterwards has paid the annual interest, as against a collateral attack by a subsequent applicant, his title to the land is good. Weckesser v. Lewis, 35 C. A. 18, 79 S. W. 355.

This act requires not only a settlement upon the land, but also the filing of an affidavit thereof before the land can be transferred. Good v. Terrell, 100 T. 275, 98 S. W. 641.

A sale of school land before the affidavit of settlement is actually on file in the land-office, works a forfeiture of the purchase. Brown v. Terrell, 100 T. 309, 99 S. W. 542.

Where one fails to file his affidavit of settlement within 120 days from the date of the acceptance of his application, it will be immediately canceled, and the land again placed on the market. Jones v. Terrell, 100 T. 410, 100 S. W. 137.

The date of the deed is not conclusive evidence of the date of the transfer, and where the deed is wrongly dated, as of a date anterior to that of filing of affidavit of settlement, and there is no controversy as to this, the sale having been canceled, mandamus will issue to compel a reinstatement. Patton v. Terrell, 101 T. 221, 105 S. W. 1116.

Under this article and Art. 5421, giving preference rights of purchase to original lessees or their assignees, and providing that if one purchasing under the section does not comply with the law as to settlement and residence, the sale shall be canceled, a purchaser under Art. 5421 need not file the affidavit required by this article. Hanna v. Atchison (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 190.

The date of delivery by filing for record, and not the date of the deed purchasing public land, nor of the acknowledgment, would control as to whether the deed conveying state school land was void as being executed before the filing of an affidavit of settlement by the original purchaser. Payne v. Cox (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 336.

Obligation of purchaser.—Variance between application for purchase of school lands and the purchaser's obligation held immaterial. Hamilton v. Votaw, 31 C. A. 684, 73 S. W. 1091.

The statute does not require that the obligation for the payment of the purchase money shall describe the land. But having undertaken to describe it, the obligation would be void if it described a different tract of land than that described in the application. Id.

Fact that insufficient obligation was given with application to purchase school land held immaterial, where proper obligation was afterwards filed. Faucett v. Sheppard, 33 C. A. 64, 75 S. W. 538.

Deposit.—The first payment must be in the treasury at the time the bids are opened to entitle the applicant to the award of the land. Rawls v. Terrell, 101 T. 157, 105 S. W. 489.

The provision that, "at the same time the applicant applies to purchase the land he shall also deposit in the state treasury one fortieth of the aggregate price of the same as the first payment thereon," does not apply to a sale of eighty acres which is required to be for cash. Buckley v. Terrell, 101 T. 487, 109 S. W. 861.

A deposit in the state treasurer's office of a check on a bank by the highest bidder for school land open to competitive bidding held a payment, entitling the bidder to the land. Whitis v. Robison, 102 T. 389, 117 S. W. 429.

Under this article such deposit is a condition precedent to the purchase of the land, and it is improperly awarded to one who, though the highest bidder, has not made his deposit, as against a lower bidder who has made his deposit. Fitzhugh v. Johnson, 105 T. 318, 148 S. W. 286.

Forfeiture or cancellation of purchase.—Evidence considered in an action to recover school lands, and held, that an award of the land to plaintiff's grantor was properly canceled. Spence v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 180.

The commissioner of the general land office has a right to cancel an award of public domain not authorized by law. Moore v. Rogan, 96 T. 375, 73 S. W. 1.

Commissioner of general land office, or successor, held to have power to rescind sale of public lands made by mistake. Burnam v. Terrell, 97 T. 309, 78 S. W. 500.

It is the duty of the land commissioner to forfeit the award when settlement (on the land) has not been made in the 90 days; and this without exception or qualification. Suares v. Terrell, 100 T. 315, 99 S. W. 542.

The commissioner of the land office cannot cancel an award to a purchaser of school land; that being a judicial act, authority for which is vested in the courts. Trimble v. Burroughs, 52 C. A. 266, 113 S. W. 551.

School lands settled on and sold to another held to be the subject of contract, though the lands were forfeited after the sale was made. Bynum v. Hobbs, 56 C. A. 557, 121 S. W. 900.

A commissioner of the general land office is not authorized to forfeit a purchase of land on the ground of the purchaser's minority, nor on the ground of collusion. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

A purchaser of state lands made the necessary payments and settled thereon. A defective affidavit of settlement was made when he executed a conveyance and instructed his agent not to deliver the deed until the affidavit was filed. A new affidavit was filed after the date of the deed, which recited that the payment of the price should be by notes bearing interest from the date of the deed. There was no proof as to when the notes were delivered. Held, that the purchase was subject to forfeiture under the provision of this article that any attempt of a purchaser to transfer his land prior to his actual settlement, and evidence of that fact duly filed, shall operate as a forfeiture. Payne v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 703.

The conveyance of the purchaser to his grantee disclosed that fact; and the grantee, if consulted, would have disclosed that he bought the land from the purchaser. The purchase was forfeited, and thereafter a third person purchased from the state. Held, that the grantee of the original purchaser was not entitled to recover the lands from the subsequent purchaser. Id.

Purchase of additional lands.—Sayles' Civ. St. art. 4218fff, provided that "any actual bona fide owner of and resident upon any other lands contiguous to said lands, or within a radius of five miles thereof, may also buy any of the aforesaid lands." The two preceding articles, 4218f and 4218ff, made provisions for persons who purchased from the state, but article 4218fff comprehended any actual bona fide owner of land, who filled the other requirements mentioned therein. Smith v. Rothe (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 755.

A statute authorizing a purchaser of a home section of school lands to purchase additional sections to the exclusion of actual settlers held not unconstitutional as class legislation. McGrew v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 63.

The statute providing that a bona fide owner and resident of lands may purchase additional land does not authorize the purchase of land intended as a home place and additional lands at the same time. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 851.

The right to purchase additional lands is expressly conferred by Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218f, as amended by the act of 1897, which is not affected by the act of 1901. The amount of land the settler was entitled to purchase was to be determined by the number of surveys and not by the quantity in acres. The words "home section" include within their meaning a survey of less than 640 acres of land. Hazelwood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 67 S. W. 84.

Where an application for additional school lands is rejected, the applicant acquires no right to the land thereunder, unless it is shown that the land was within five miles of his home tract. Spence v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 180.

Since the statute gives to the owner of the other lands the right to purchase school lands in proximity thereto, when the owner does so purchase he acquires the title, and at any time before the right of a third party has intervened he ought, in case the mistake in the description of the land upon which he bases his right to purchase has been inadvertently made, be permitted to show the fact and to correct his application. Nesting v. Terrell, 97 T. 18 75 S. W. 486.

Where, one in his application to buy additional lands, but through mistake alleges in the application that he is an actual settler, but in all other respects he complies with the law, and after discovery of the mistake he files another application in all things correct, he will be awarded the land over one who files application subsequent to the first application of the other party and previous to his second. Ratliff v. Terrell, 97 T. 522, 80 S. W. 600.

The legislature did not by the use of the words "owner of other" intend to include the owner of a lot or lots in a town. The law means the owner of agricultural or grazing lands. Conn v. Terrell, 97 T. 578, 80 S. W. 608, 609.

Where an application to purchase several sections of school land had written below the description the words, "Settlement is on No. 4," it was not sufficient to indicate that that was the applicant's home section, and that he was residing thereon at the time of application. Goethal v. Read, 35 C. A. 461, 81 S. W. 592.

In trespass to try title to additional school land, purchaser held bound to prove that the land was within the prescribed distance of other land owned or settled on by him. Knippa v. Brown (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 658.

Where an application to purchase a home section fails because of the superior rights of a lessee of the land applied for, a claim of the applicant to another section as "additional lands" must also fail. Sanford v. Terrell (Sup.) 87 S. W. 655.

Evidence that the land commissioner had rejected plaintiff's application on other grounds held insufficient proof that plaintiff had not purchased all the additional land he was entitled to buy. Reininger v. Pannell, 46 C. A. 137, 101 S. W. 816.

However essential it may be that a purchaser of additional lands is an actual resident upon his home section or "other lands," there is nothing in the statutes requiring the applicant for additional lands to state in his sworn application that such is the fact. The only requirement is the matter about collusion. Pohle v. Robertson, 54 C. A. 326, 116 S. W. 862.

— Settlement on and title to home tract.—When there has been a bona fide purchase under previous laws, under the act of 1881 and there has been an actual bona fide occupancy and residence upon such section for three years prior to the act of 1897, an additional section within a radius of five miles of the land so occupied may be purchased. The purchaser need not in person reside on the original section nor make his home there. But the original section must either be occupied by himself or some one for him. Thomson v. Hubbard, 22 C. A. 101, 53 S. W. 841.

The law does not require that the actual owner and resident, should have purchased the land from the state on which he resides and which is contiguous to or within a radius of five miles of the public land he desires to purchase. If he has been in actual possession of the land under deeds for many years, has made valuable improvements thereon and paid taxes, he is a bona fide owner and resident upon the land on which he resides and is entitled to purchase although there may be a break in his chain of title. The very language seems to demand not a perfect title, but an ownership and residence in good faith situated with reference to the land he wishes to purchase as the statute demands. Smith v. Rothe (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 754.

Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, Art. 4218f, as amended by articles 4218ff and 4218fff therein, required that both the original purchaser and his vendee must be an actual settler upon the parent section in order to give a right in any case to any additional lands. Schwarz v. McCall, 94 T. 10, 57 S. W. 34.

A party cannot recover if there is no proof that the land sued for is within a radius of five miles of the land occupied by him. The burden is on plaintiff to show this. Faucett v. Sheppard, 24 C. A. 552, 60 S. W. 277.

Where applicants for the purchase of additional public lands were unmarried men, having an abode elsewhere, and made no substantial improvements, nor remained any considerable length of time on the land, the question of a bona fide settlement was for the jury. Wyatt v. Lyons, 25 C. A. 88, 60 S. W. 575.

Settlement on the additional land sought to be purchased within six months from the date of the application is not required. Settlement on the home tract is sufficient. Dabbs v. Rothe, 25 C. A. 201, 60 S. W. 312.

One who was not an actual settler on the land which he had bought in good faith for a home under provisions of Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218f, cannot buy additional land, although he has been prevented from actually settling on the purchased land by sickness. Jones v. Bourbonnais, 25 C. A. 94, 60 S. W. 987.

To entitle one to additional land he must not only be a resident—an actual settler—upon school land within the prescribed radius, but he must also have been a purchaser thereof. One who marries the widow of a purchaser and thereafter resides with her on the land is not eligible to buy additional land. Boyd v. Montgomery, 27 C. A. 206, 66 S. W. 243.

An actual settler can purchase section or fraction of section upon which settlement is made and at the same time as much as three additional sections provided they are contiguous to or within radius of five miles of home section. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 901.

Settlement on leased school land prior to the expiration of the lease does not give right to apply for adjoining land. Corbin v. McGee (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1068.

Original wrongful entry on home section of applicant for purchase of additional school lands held immaterial. McGee v. Corbin, 96 T. 35, 70 S. W. 79.

Instruction in action, by applicant to purchase additional school lands, to recover such lands, held erroneous as submitting immaterial issue as to actual settlement of applicant's predecessor on home section. Coody v. Harris, 31 C. A. 169, 71 S. W. 607.

When one has resided on his home section for three years, the additional land purchased by him, though unpatented is subject to sale under execution issued on a judgment against him. Martin v. Bryson, 31 C. A. 98, 71 S. W. 615.

Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218fff, only applies to those who have bought additional lands as the owners of lands other than school lands. Roberson v. Sterrett, 96 T. 180, 71 S. W. 385, 73 S. W. 3.

It contemplates that the purchaser may perfect his title to the additional lands purchased by him by the continued residence for three years upon his original land or upon the land so purchased; and it would seem that he is allowed to tack his occupancy of the purchased land to that of the land originally owned by him in order to make up the designated period, provided there is no lapse between the two. In the event he fails to make such continued residence and occupancy, the law provides that his purchase shall work a forfeiture and this is the only forfeiture prescribed in this article. Id.

Plaintiff in trespass to try title held not precluded from questioning defendant's actual settlement on his home section, when he applied to purchase the land in controversy as additional land. Ford v. Brown, 33 C. A. 198, 75 S. W. 893.

An actual settler on school land, who claims the right to purchase additional land, must not only have actually occupied and settled upon his land, but must intend to make it his home. Mahoney v. Tubbs, 34 C. A. 96, 77 S. W. 822.

The right to purchase additional lands is limited by the statute to "bona fide purchasers." No such right is extended to a mere occupant of other lands. Trevey v. Lowrie, 33 C. A. 606, 78 S. W. 19.

In order to constitute one a qualified purchaser of additional lands, he must be the owner of his home or base survey. He need not have vested in him an indefeasible legal title. If he has an equitable title, or such right as entitles him to a specific performance of a verbal contract between him and the legal owner of his home tract, he would be the "owner" within the purview of this statute. Bone v. Cowan, 37 C. A. 519, 84 S. W. 386.

Where defendant was not an actual settler on a home section of school lands at the time additional land was awarded to her, such award was ineffective. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1010.

Where the state land commissioner did not contest relator's right to purchase his home section of school land as such, he could not deny his incidental right to purchase additional land subject to sale. Murphy v. Terrell, 100 T. 397, 100 S. W. 130.

Where petitioner's application to purchase his home section was invalid, the land commissioner properly canceled his application for additional tracts until relator had selected a new home section. Bogel v. Robison, 102 T. 496, 119 S. W. 1144.

A bona fide purchaser of a home section used by the vendor as a base for the purchase of school land held authorized to make the home section a base for such a purchase. State v. Ellis, 49 C. A. 561, 130 S. W. 891.

— Occupancy of additional land.—A settler on agricultural land purchasing pasture lands is not required to remove and settle on one of the other tracts. Watts v. Wheeler, 10 C. A. 117, 30 S. W. 297.

This article does not provide that in case of sale by original purchaser of additional lands to purchase of a home section that the failure of his vendee to occupy and continue to reside upon the land so purchased by him, shall subject him to forfeiture as does Art. 5426, and the omission indicates that it was not the intention that such rule should apply to a sale of additional lands purchased from the state by one as the owner of lands other than school lands as provided for in Art. 5426. Roberson v. Sterrett, 96 T. 180, 71 S. W. 385, 73 S. W. 3.

Under Sayles' Civ. St. art. 4218fff, persons who owned and occupied lands other than those purchased from the state could become the owners of additional lands out of the public domain upon a compliance with the statute regulating such sales. Whether the purchaser occupies the additional lands or not is optional with him. Roddy v. White, 32 C. A. 422, 75 S. W. 358.

Conclusiveness of rejection or acceptance of application.—The award of the land commissioner is not conclusive as to the facts. Eastin v. Ferguson, 4 C. A. 643, 23 S. W. 918.

Where commissioner determines to which of two rival applicants for the purchase of school lands an award shall be made, it is immaterial whether he assigned a proper reason therefor, if he decided properly. Willoughby v. Townsend, 93 T. 80, 53 S. W. 581.

The validity of an award of school lands will not be considered, in an action by the person to whom the land is granted for damages against a mere trespasser, who exhibits no title to the land. Forst v. Rothe (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 575.

Acceptance by the commissioner of the general land office of application to purchase land as an actual settler is not conclusive of such settlement against a subsequent applicant. Franklin v. Kerlin, 32 C. A. 380, 74 S. W. 592.

An award of school land to an applicant to purchase same as additional land held not evidence that the same was located within the prescribed distance of other land owned or settled on by him. Knippa v. Brown (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 658.

Proof of an award of land by state land commissioner makes a prima facie case of ownership in the one receiving the award, sufficient to entitle him to recover until by proper evidence the commissioner of the general land office is shown to have exceeded his authority in making the award. Holt v. Cave, 38 C. A. 62, 85 S. W. 309.

An award of school land by the commissioner is prima facie evidence that the land was on the market and that all prerequisites to his power to make the sale had been met. Hood v. Pursley, 39 C. A. 475, 87 S. W. 870.

In trespass to try title to certain school lands, it was not error for the court to refuse to charge that the act of the commissioner of the general land office in awarding the land to defendant was prima facie evidence that she was an actual settler on her home section. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1010.

Since an award to a purchaser of school land does not fix title in the purchaser as against one making due application to purchase unless such purchaser has complied with the law authorizing an award, and was legally qualified to purchase, if plaintiff was not an actual settler upon the land when it was awarded to him, it remained open to settlement by defendant, and, if defendant complied with the law, his rights were not affected by a rejection of his application by the commissioner of the general land office. Barnes v. Williams' Adm'r (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 978.

Certificate of sale.—The land commissioner has the power to give a certificate as to any fact appearing of record in his office, but we do not believe that he has the power under the head of "Remarks" to state that the section of school land had been sold, and that the sale was still in good standing. Knapp v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 394.

Mistake in middle initial of person named in certificate of sale of school land held immaterial. Trimble v. Burroughs, 41 C. A. 554, 95 S. W. 614.

Release of purchaser.—A transaction releasing the original purchaser of school lands and awarding the same lands to his purchaser held not against public policy. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Art. 5416a. Validating act.—That in all cases where persons have on file in the general land office valid application to purchase school and other public lands and awards to them have been duly made on such application and such persons failed to settle on their lands within the ninety days required by law, but have in fact settled thereon in good faith to make the same their home, and in all cases where the applicant did become an actual settler on the land but failed to file his affidavit of settlement within the time required by law but did file the affidavit and such purchaser or his legal assignee has continued to reside thereon then and in that event such settlement and attempted purchases are hereby declared to be valid. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 21, sec. 1.]

See Final Title for list of validating acts.

Validating acts.—Effect of an act validating locations under Confederate veteran certificates on action pending, determined. Cox v. Finks (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 95.

Act Feb. 8, 1875, validating a void grant of land in 1835, held to confer no title as against an actual settler under Const. 1869, art. 10. Williams v. League (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 570.

The objection that, on the sale of state land, no tabulated statement was filed in the surveyor's office, cannot be made available where the omission was cured by a healing act. Garrett v. Findlater, 21 C. A. 635, 53 S. W. 839.

Under Acts 1899, p. 259, a sale made to a minor is validated. Strickel v. Turberville, 28 C. A. 469, 67 S. W. 1059.

Even if sale of public school land made in 1898 be void, because to a minor, it is validated by Acts 1899, p. 259. Johnson v. Bibb, 32 C. A. 471, 75 S. W. 73.

Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 4269, providing that vested rights shall not be disturbed by the location of school land in favor of a county, a location of school land for the state under authority of Const. art. 7, § 2, providing that all alternative sections of land reserved to the state or that shall be hereafter made to railroads or other corporations, and one-half of the public domain, etc., shall constitute a public school fund, will prevail over a subsequent location of county school land, although a patent is first issued on the county location. Ellwood v. Stallcup, 57 C. A. 343, 122 S. W. 906.

Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 4269, providing that in surveys of school lands the calls for distance must prevail over calls for natural objects, where the calls for distance will give the land intended, otherwise not, the court, in ascertaining the boundaries of a county school land grant, will so construe the field notes as to give the county the benefit of those calls that are most favorable to its interests when they can be ascertained with a reasonable degree of certainty, though by so doing some other call may be displaced which may, under ordinary rules of construction of determining the superiority of calls, be given effect and made to control when the lines of county school lands are not involved, and a boundary line which can be ascertained with a reasonable degree of certainty will control the call for distance if in accordance with the conditions prescribed in the statute, but in determining a lost line in a county school land grant the ordinary rule of construction, in recognition of the controlling influence of established corners, controls. Polk County v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 204.

Art. 5417. To whom awarded, when application rejected.—If for any cause an application for land or timber which offers the highest price can not be accepted, those offering the next highest price and filed on same day shall be considered in their order of price until one may be awarded. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 6e.]

Art. 5418. Eight section counties; complement of land.—One who has not purchased any land since April 19, 1901, may purchase, on condition of settlement, in the counties of Brewster, Crockett, Edwards, El Paso, Jeff Davis, Kinney, Pecos, Presidio, Sutton, Terrell and Val Verde, not to exceed eight sections of six hundred and forty acres each, more or less, which are wholly within said counties. One who has heretofore, or who may hereafter, purchase a complement as aforesaid, shall not purchase any more. One who has purchased or may hereafter purchase on condition of settlement four sections of six hundred and forty acres each, more or less, wholly or partly within any county other than those hereinabove named since said date, shall not purchase any more on condition of settlement. One who has purchased less than a complement, as aforesaid, may hereafter purchase in any county such number of sections as his lack of a complement in the county of the former purchase bears to a complement in the county of such former purchase. One who has heretofore purchased land on condition of settlement, which lies partly within an eight-section county and partly within a four-section county, shall be considered for the purpose of future purchase by him as having purchased in a four-section county. Every additional survey applied for shall be situated within five miles of the designated home tract, except the survey on which the lessee, who may apply [to buy] out of his lease, may have placed permanent and immovable improvements of the value of five hundred dollars, need not be within such radius. No survey shall be sold in any county except as a whole, notwithstanding it may be leased in two or more parts. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 490, sec. 6.]

See Gaddes v. Terrell, 101 T. 574, 110 S. W. 429.

Purchase of additional sections.—One who has purchased four sections under a former law (that of 1901) in one of the excepted counties, is authorized under the law of 1905 to buy the whole or any part of four additional sections. "Complement," as used in this section means eight sections. One who has bought less than four sections in an excepted county under a former law can purchase enough under this section (Acts 1905, p. 167, § 6) to fill up the complement of eight sections. Ross v. Terrell, 99 T. 502, 90 S. W. 1094.

Art. 5419. Settlement and residence.—All of the surveyed school land wholly or partly within the counties of Andrews, Brewster, Cameron, Crane, Crockett, Dimmit, Duval, Ector, Edwards, El Paso, Gaines, Hidalgo, Jeff Davis, Kimble, Kinney, La Salle, Loving, Maverick, McMullen, Midland, Pecos, Presidio, Reeves, Starr, Sutton, Terrell, Terry, Upton, Uvalde, Val Verde, Ward, Webb, Winkler, Yoakum, Zapata and Zavala shall be sold on condition of settlement as provided by this act and existing statutes, except tracts of one hundred acres or less shall be sold for cash. The land purchased by one, either for cash or on deferred payment without condition of settlement, shall not be computed against him in his purchase on condition of settlement. Every purchaser on condition of settlement shall in person reside continuously on either the designated home tract or on some portion of the land purchased as additional thereto, for three consecutive years next succeeding the date of the award of the home tract, or from the date of the award of the first tract, as additional to a home already owned, as the case may be, including the ninety days allowed to settle. The proof of such settlement and residence shall be made as now provided by statute. [Id. sec. 6a.]

See Gaddes v. Terrell, 101 T. 574, 110 S. W. 429; Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Requirement as to residence.—When a purchaser has proved his occupancy of the home tract, and is in actual occupancy when he applies for and is awarded an additional section, he does not have to occupy either section for three years next after the purchase of the additional section. Zettlemeyer v. Shuler, 52 C. A. 648, 115 S. W. 80.

This article added nothing to the former statute requiring purchasers to reside on the land as a home for three consecutive years after their purchase, except that it repealed the permit to reside elsewhere six months in each year for the purposes specified. State v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 520.

Forfeiture for nonoccupancy or abandonment.—See Arts. 5424, 5425, and notes.

Proof and certificate of occupancy.—See notes under Art. 5444.

Art. 5420. Limitations as to purchases.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby prohibited from selling to the same party more than one complement of four or eight sections of land, according to the county; and all applications to purchase land shall also disclose the prior lands purchased by the applicant from the state, if any, and the residence of the applicant at said time; and, if it appear therefrom, or from the records in the land office, that said applicant has already purchased land aggregating four or eight sections, according to county, since April 19, 1901, his application shall be rejected; provided, this shall not apply to sales made to a purchaser and afterwards canceled as invalid for some reason other than abandonment, and where the purchaser himself was not at fault. [Acts 1901, p. 292, sec. 3.]

See Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.

Not repealed.—Acts 27th Leg. c. 125, § 3 (Art. 5420 herein), was not repealed by Acts 29th Leg. c. 103, § 8 (Art. 5432 herein). Houston v. Koonce (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1159; Id. (Sup.) 156 S. W. 202.

Limitations as to amount of land.—See, also, Arts. 5418, 5419.

The purpose of first part of this section seems to have been mainly to prevent one who had previously purchased four sections from making a new settlement and purchasing again. This inhibition was not contained in the previous laws. The language that the commissioner "is hereby prohibited from selling to the same party more than four sections of land" was probably used out of abundant caution to reaffirm the existing rule on the subject. Hazlewood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 67 S. W. 84.

The words "four sections" refer rather to surveys than to quantity of acres, and the sections may contain less than 640 acres each. Id.

Acts 27th Leg. c. 125, § 3 (Art. 5420 herein), prohibiting the commissioner of the general land office from selling to the same person more than four sections of land, was not repealed by Acts 29th Leg. c. 103, § 8 (Art. 5432 herein), providing for the survey and sale of public school lands, but the two acts so far as they relate to the same subject, are to be construed together; and hence, where one had purchased four sections under the act of 1901, a further purchase of two sections under the act of 1905 was void. Houston v. Koonce (Sup.) 156 S. W. 202.

— No limitation in certain counties.—See Art. 5422.

Art. 5421. Right of lessees.—An original lessee of a lease executed prior to April 15, 1905, who has never parted with any interest in his lease, except by purchase, may purchase out of such lease in whole surveys only one complement of sections, or such part thereof as will make his total purchase since April 19, 1901, not to exceed eight or four sections, according to the county; provided, an original lessee who has not heretofore exercised his right to buy one complement of sections out of one or more leases and should not hereafter desire to do so, may assign one or more leases to a qualified purchaser, and his assignee shall have the same right to purchase out of the leases one complement of sections, or such number thereof as the assignor may be qualified to purchase, or such number as the assignee may be qualified to purchase; provided, that in case the assignment should have been made and acknowledged before an officer authorized to take acknowledgments the assignee may exercise that right as provided for under the act of April 15, 1905. Only one complement shall be sold out of any lease, including that heretofore sold out of it. One who desires to buy land out of his lease shall first give written notice to the commissioner of the general land office, and specify the land he wants to buy not less than sixty days prior to expiration of the lease. The commissioner shall make, or cause to be made, an inspection of the land, if he is not already in possession of sufficient information, and appraise same at its reasonable market value, and advise such person and the proper county clerk of the value placed thereon. Thereafter the land shall be subject to sale to the lessee only during the life of the lease. After a lease expires or is canceled, no one shall have any preference to purchase any land contained therein. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 5.]

Constitutionality.—This act, giving a preference to lessees and their assignees to purchase the lands held by them under lease, is not unconstitutional. Glasgow v. Terrell, 100 T. 581, 102 S. W. 100.

Leases of public lands in general.—See notes under Art. 5452.

Lessee's preference right of purchasing.—See, also, Arts. 5452, 5453, and notes.

The privilege of a lessee of state lands to purchase the land within 60 days after the expiration of the lease, destroyed by the transfer of the lease, held not revived by the transferee quitclaiming his interest in the lands to lessee. Adkinson v. Porter (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 43 (decided under prior act).

A lessee of state lands is entitled to a preference right to purchase the land provided his right is exercised by completing the purchase before the expiration of his lease. Welhausen v. Terrell, 100 T. 150, 97 S. W. 79.

Petitioner by erroneous indorsement on his applications to purchase state lands, held to have lost his preference right to purchase as lessee. Id.

The act of 1905 gives to a lessor or to the assignee of an entire lease the right to purchase a complement of land out of the leased premises, but provides in express terms that the provision shall apply only to leases existing at the time of the passage of the act. Trezevant v. Terrell, 100 T. 289, 99 S. W. 94.

Time of exercising privilege.—A lessee's right to purchase in preference to others is conditional on his exercising the right before the expiration of his lease. Welhausen v. Terrell, 100 T. 150, 97 S. W. 79.

The assignee of a lease which has expired has no preference rights of purchase of land which came on the market September 1, 1905. Murphy v. Terrell, 100 T. 397, 100 S. W. 132.

Where the lessee after the expiration of his lease and before September 1, 1905, applied to the land commissioner notifying him of his purpose to buy the premises covered by the lease he had no prior right to purchase the land. Patterson v. Crenshaw, 47 C. A. 440, 105 S. W. 998 (decision under Acts 1905, p. 167, § 11).

Land that may be acquired.—The purpose of this article was to define the rights of lessees and their assignees, and the purpose of the limitation was to hedge against any construction that would permit an applicant to acquire by purchase more than four sections, save in the counties excepted in Article 5418. Ross v. Terrell, 99 T. 502, 90 S. W. 1094.

By the words "tracts of land," only such lands as were actually surveyed at the time the act was to take effect, and possibly such detached parcels of 640 acres or less, as could be brought under the act without making an additional survey were intended to be included in the word tract. Raper v. Terrell, 100 T. 287, 99 S. W. 93 (decision before the amendment of 1907).

The holder of a lease of school lands, who is an actual settler, is entitled to purchase all the land embraced in his lease. Patterson v. Knapp (Sup.) 103 S. W. 489.

Rights of assignee.—It would seem from Acts 1900, 1st called Sess., p. 33, § 7, that whenever the legislature desired to confer a right upon the assignees of a lessee, they were expressly mentioned. Hazlewood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 67 S. W. 82.

The privilege of a lessee of state lands to purchase the land within 60 days after the expiration of the lease in preference to other purchasers is a personal privilege, destroyed by his transferring the lease to another. Adkinson v. Porter (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 43 (decided under prior act).

Where outstanding lease of school land has been assigned to purchaser and homestead occupant of a neighboring section, it is no obstacle to his purchase of the leased section. Mitchell v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 373, 74 S. W. 48.

The assignee of the rights of a lessee of public land may purchase the land during the life of the lease. Fields v. Davis (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 52.

Where a lessee from the state assigns his lease, it is no bar to an application by the assignee, on surrendering the same, to purchase the lands covered thereby. Walker v. Marchbanks, 32 C. A. 303, 74 S. W. 929.

When after the lease part of the lands were sold to a third party with the consent of the lessee, and the lessee then assigned the remainder of the lease, the assignee is entitled to purchase, because, while he is not the assignee of the entire original lease, yet he is the assignee of the "entire lease," when the assignment was made, within the meaning of this law. Garza v. Terrell, 99 T. 506, 90 S. W. 1093 (decision before the amendment of 1907).

The preference right given under this article to lessees and their assignees to purchase lands held under lease, is not confined to assignees who were such when the act took effect. Glasgow v. Terrell, 100 T. 581, 102 S. W. 100.

Where assignment of lease was executed, but not acknowledged when the act of 1907 became effective, the assignee could not purchase under the law of 1905, and as he did not give his notice 60 days before the expiration of the lease, he could not purchase under the act of 1907. Ross v. Terrell, 101 T. 224, 105 S. W. 1117.

Effect of application or purchase upon lease.—Where the lessee of public school lands filed with the commissioner of the land office a consent for their sale to a certain person, and her attempted purchase was void, the lease continued in force. Smith v. McClain, 96 T. 568, 74 S. W. 754.

Where the holder of a lease of school lands makes a valid purchase of the lands, the lease is terminated. Patterson v. Knapp, 100 T. 587, 102 S. W. 97.

Where the holder of a lease of school land applied to purchase on the maturity of an installment of rent, the fact that an award was not made until after notices to state treasurer did not affect the presumption that the lease was not canceled because of the sale. Patterson v. Knapp (Sup.) 103 S. W. 489.

Where an entire section of school land was embraced in an unexpired lease when the lessee applied to purchase certain of the leased land, including the east half of such section, and thereafter, during the term of the lease, the purchase was forfeited, the west half of the section remained subject to the lease, and could not be resold. Ford v. Terrell, 101 T. 327, 107 S. W. 40.

That a lessee of public school land who makes application to purchase it, and tenders his lease for cancellation, is not entitled to buy, does not subject the land to purchase by another. Halbert v. Terrell, 102 T. 29, 112 S. W. 1036.

Art. 5421a. Certain sales and leases validated, etc.—All sales made out of leases of unsurveyed school lands that may have been erroneous by reason of a lack of definiteness of lease-holds and unmarked survey lines, and all sales made on lines of four-section counties and eight-section counties, and such sales of land as may have been [made] in a four-section county, and other sales as may have been made in an eight-section county, as may have been erroneous on account of a lack of clearness in the statute regulating the rights of purchasers in four-section counties and eight-section counties, are hereby validated and declared to be good sales so far as probable errors herein mentioned may affect such sales; provided that nothing in this Act shall validate or affect any land sales or titles for which suits may be now pending in any of the courts of this state on behalf of the state. The commissioner of the general land office may issue his official certificate on all proofs of occupancy now on file in the general land office previous to the taking effect of this Act, whether such proofs were filed within two years' period of grace as provided by law, or not. [Acts 1911, p. 206, sec. 1.]

See Final Title for list of validating acts.

Art. 5421b. Certain settlements and attempted purchases validated.—In all cases where persons have made valid applications to purchase land on the condition of becoming an actual settler thereon within ninety days after the date of acceptance and award under the Act of April 15, 1905 [Arts. 5407, 5408, 5410, 5416], and Acts amendatory thereto, and the land was subject to sale and the application was accepted and award was issued as required by law, and the applicant did become in person an actual bona fide settler on the land within the time required by law, but did not file in the general land office the required affidavit of settlement within the time required by law, but did file the affidavit, and such purchaser, or his legal assignee, has continued to reside thereon, then, and in that event, such settlement and attempted purchases are hereby declared to be valid; provided that this Act shall not validate any land acquired by fraud. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5422. Sales without settlement.—The surveyed school and asylum land and the timber thereon situated wholly within any county other than those named in article 5419 shall be sold in whole tracts only, and without condition of settlement or limit as to quantity, and either for cash with the right to patent at once, or for one-fortieth cash with five per cent interest on the deferred payment, together with all the pains and penalties of forfeiture for non-payment as is now or may hereafter be provided by law. All applications for the purchase of land without settlement, and either for cash or on deferred payment, shall be in writing and accompanied by the affidavit of the applicant that he desires the land for his own benefit and not for any other person or corporation. When any such purchase is fully paid for, the land may be patented. No land on which there is merchantable timber shall be sold until the timber is sold for cash and fully paid for. Should two or more applicants offer the same price for any tract on the same date, the same being the highest price offered, and one should offer full cash payment and another should offer one-fortieth cash payment and balance on time, the application on deferred payment shall be accepted. Such of the land in the counties included within this section as is now sold, but which may hereafter become subject to sale, shall not be subject to sale until the former sale shall have been canceled and the land and timber, if any thereon, shall be reappraised by the commissioner, and a date fixed not more than sixty days from the date of such cancellation, when it may be subject to sale to the one offering the highest price therefor. Notice of such cancellation and reappraisal shall be mailed to the proper county clerk, together with the date when the land and timber, if any, will be subject to sale. [Acts 1907, p. 490, secs. 6b and 6e.]

Construction of language of statute.—The surveys referred to in this law clearly appear to be the sections, and the purpose is to require each section, no part of which has been sold, to be sold as a whole, and not in subdivisions as heretofore. The fact that part of a section may be under lease and is thereby temporarily kept off the market is not made to take it out of the rule. Ford v. Terrell, 101 T. 327, 107 S. W. 40.

“Such land” means under the provision of the act, lands that are subject to sale without the condition of actual settlement. The previous section of the act (Art. 5419 herein) mentions by name the counties in which actual settlement is required. Hamilton v. Terrell, 101 T. 330, 107 S. W. 48.

Application to purchase in general.—Whenever the money is deposited an application being on file, it may be considered provided some adverse application has not been filed for the purchase of the land. Respondent had applied for twelve parcels of land and deposited one fortieth of price in the treasury but his applications had been rejected for all except one eighty-acre tract which was required to be sold for cash, the payment on which amounted to $5.75. He then applied for the purchase of this tract for cash and directed that the money on deposit be applied to the payment. The land was awarded to him but afterwards the award was canceled. This was error. Buckley v. Terrell, 101 T. 487, 109 S. W. 861.

Art. 5423. [4218/] Forfeiture of purchase by non-payment of interest, etc.—If upon the first day of November of any year any portion of the interest due on any obligation remains unpaid, the commissioner of the general land office shall endorse on such obligation, “Land Forfeited,” and shall cause an entry to that effect to be made on the account kept with the purchaser; and thereupon said land shall thereby be forfeited to the state without the necessity of re-entry or judicial ascertainment, and shall revert to the particular fund to which it originally belonged, and be resold under the provisions of this chapter, or any future law; provided, the purchaser of land prior to August 20, 1897, shall have the right, at any time within six months after such endorsement of “Lands Forfeited” to institute a suit in district court of Travis county, Texas, against the commissioner of the general land office, for the purpose of contesting such forfeiture and setting aside the same, upon the ground that the facts did not exist authorizing such forfeiture, but, if no such suit has been instituted as above provided, such forfeiture of the commissioner of the general land office shall then become fixed and conclusive. In any cases where lands have been forfeited to the state for the non-payment of interest, the purchasers, or their vendees, may have their claims reinstated on their written request, by paying into the treasury the full amount of interest due on such claim up to the date of reinstatement, provided that no rights of third persons may have intervened. In all such cases, the original obligations and penalties shall thereby become as binding as if no forfeiture had ever occurred. If any purchaser shall die, his heirs or legal representatives shall have one year in which to make payment after the first day of November next after such death, and shall be absolved and exempt from the requirement of settlement and residence thereon; provided, that all necessary and temporary absence from such land of such purchaser, for the time of not more than six months in any one year, for the purpose of earning money with which to pay for the land, or for the purpose of schooling his children, shall not work a forfeiture of his title; provided, further, that nothing in this article contained shall be construed to inhibit the state from instituting such legal proceedings as may be necessary to enforce such forfeiture, or to recover the full amount of the interest and such penalties as may be due the state at the time such forfeiture occurred, or to protect any other right to such land; which suits may be instituted by the attorney general, or under his direction, in the proper court of the county in which the land lies, or of the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes. [Acts 1895. Acts 1897, p. 39, sec. 1. Art. 4218~~l~~, Acts 1895, amended Acts 1897, p. 184. Art. 4218~~l~~, Acts 1895.]

See Barker v. Torrey, 69 T. 7, 4 S. W. 646; Berrendo Stock Co. v. McCarty, 85 T. 412, 21 S. W. 598; Schilling v. State, 2 C. A. 578, 22 S. W. 233; Patterson v. O'Docherty, 4 C. A. 462, 23 C. A. 293; Atkeson v. Bilger, 4 C. A. 99, 23 S. W. 415; Anderson v. Waco State Bank, 86 T. 618, 28 S. W. 344; Slaughter v. Cooper, 56 C. A. 169, 121 S. W. 173; Elliott v. Morris, 49 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 209.

Constitutionality of various acts.—Act Feb. 23, 1885, declaring that failure to pay interest on school lands prior to a certain date should not forfeit the purchaser's rights, was constitutional. Capps v. Garvey (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 379.

Legislature may authorize land commissioner to declare forfeiture for nonpayment of interest in sale of school lands, without reference to law under which rights of purchaser accrued. Waggoner v. Flack, 21 C. A. 449, 52 S. W. 584.

This act (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218~~l~~) simply enforces a right which existed in the state from the formation of the contract. It takes away no right of the purchaser, unless it can be said that he had the right to demand that the particular remedy provided by the act of 1879 should be followed. A subsequent statute which simply changes the remedy without impairing rights is not repugnant to any constitutional provision. Standiver v. Wilson, 93 T. 232, 54 S. W. 898.

Not repealed.—Act March 25, 1897, did not repeal Acts 1895, p. 67, § 11, so as to prevent a forfeiture for nonpayment of interest. Waggoner v. Flack, 92 T. 633, 51 S. W. 330.

The act of 1905 only repeals laws in conflict with it. This article provides that if a purchaser of school lands shall die, his heirs or legal representatives shall have one year in which to make payment after the 1st day of November next, after such death, and shall be exempt from the requirement of settlement and residence thereon. There is nothing in the act of 1905 that conflicts with this provision, and, hence it is not repealed. Clark v. Terrell, 100 T. 277, 98 S. W. 642.

Acts 1905, p. 163, § 6 (re-enacted with modifications as Art. 5418 herein), is not in conflict with the provision in article 4218~~l~~, Rev. St. 1895 (Art. 5423 herein), permitting absence from the land not exceeding six months without forfeiture, and therefore the act of 1905 does not repeal said provision. Gaddes v. Terrell, 101 T. 574, 110 S. W. 429. But see note under "Temporary absence for six months," post.

Acts 27th Leg. c. 125, § 3 (re-enacted as Art. 5424 herein), and Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218~~l~~ (re-enacted with modifications as Art. 5423 herein), were not repealed by Acts 30th Leg. Ex. Sess. c. 20, §§ 6e, 6a (Arts. 5419, 5425, herein), nor were they repealed by Acts 29th Leg. c. 103 (see Art. 5416 herein). Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Statutes not retrospective.—See, also, note under "Forfeiture for nonpayment of interest in general," post.

Acts 1895, p. 67, § 11, authorizing a forfeiture of school lands, has reference to future sales only. Capps v. Garvey (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 379.

Under Act Feb. 23, 1885, relating to state lands, the land commissioner cannot forfeit a contract made in 1884 for nonpayment of interest for 1882. Cuba v. Island City Sav. Bank (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 532.

Act April, 1895, providing for forfeiture of school lands on default, does not apply to a contract made under act of 1883. Blum v. Fristoe (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 656.

Under Act April, 1895, providing for forfeiture of school lands, no forfeiture can be had prior to November 1, 1895. Id.

Previous law.—Sections 9 and 10 of the act of April 13, 1883, provide for the forfeiture of purchases of public school lands upon nonpayment of interest by March 1st of each year by indorsement upon the purchaser's obligation, without a judicial ascertainment of the facts. The acts of February 16, 1885, and of February 23, 1885, are construed as repealing the provisions of the act of 1883, authorizing a summary forfeiture. There was therefore no law in force between August 1 and November 15, 1887, under which purchases of land under the act of 1883 could be declared forfeited for nonpayment of interest. If such annual installments of interest shall not be paid as they mature, the state may bring suit for their collection and enforce the state's vendor's lien. Stock Co. v. McCarty, 85 T. 412, 21 S. W. 598. This ruling was made without the court's attention being called to the act of 1887. The ruling is corrected in the later case of Anderson v. Waco State Bank, 86 T. 618, 28 S. W. 344.

Payment of interest or installments in general.—Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218~~l~~, did not in terms extend the time of the maturity of the annual installments, but in effect it did so, by withholding from the commissioner the power to forfeit for nonpayment of interest until the time named and when the person whose claim had been forfeited pays interest subsequent to August 1, but previous to November 1, 1897, for the years 1895 and 1896, he paid all the interest that was due within the meaning of the article at the date of reinstatement. Pardue v. White, 21 C. A. 121, 50 S. W. 591.

It is not necessary to tender subsequent installments where the commissioner of the land office has refused the first installment, and rejected the application in favor of a rival applicant. Willoughby v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 335.

Forfeitures disfavored.—Forfeitures of public free school lands by the commissioner of the general land office are disfavored, and will not be sustained upon doubtful authority. Salgado v. Baldwin, 105 T. 508, 152 S. W. 165.

Forfeiture for nonpayment of interest in general.—The commissioner of the land office can declare a forfeiture of school lands bought under the act of April 1, 1887, for the failure to pay interest. Fristoe v. Blum, 92 T. 76, 45 S. W. 993.

The commissioner of the land office is authorized to declare forfeiture of land for failure to pay interest accrued prior to this act. Waggoner v. Flack, 92 T. 633, 51 S. W. 330 (decided under Act March 25, 1897).

The right of a vendor to rescind a contract of sale for the nonpayment of purchase money does not depend upon the life of the vendee and the commissioner can declare the land forfeited for nonpayment of interest though the vendee is dead, and he is not required to take action on the 1st day of November, but can act after that date if the interest is unpaid on said date. McKinley v. Keath, 24 C. A. 570, 59 S. W. 813.

The commissioner can only forfeit the land when the fact exists which authorizes him to forfeit. Hence he can set aside an inadvertent, unauthorized attempt to forfeit. Johnson v. Bibb, 32 C. A. 471, 75 S. W. 73.

The state has power, through a declaration of the land commissioner, to forfeit a sale of its lands for the nonpayment by the vendee of the interest on price. Lawless v. Wright, 39 C. A. 26, 86 S. W. 1039.

Statement of land commissioner. that a purchaser of public lands was in good standing held not to estop the state to declare a forfeiture for a prior nonpayment of interest. Mound Oil Co. v. Terrell, 99 T. 625, 92 S. W. 451.

— Notice to purchaser.—In absence of statute, failure of commissioner of land office to give notice that claim for land is subject to forfeiture for nonpayment of interest held not to estop the state to declare forfeiture. Mound Oil Co. v. Terrell, 99 T. 625, 92 S. W. 451.

— Indorsement of forfeiture.—The rescission of the contract does not depend upon the act of the commissioner in indorsing the words "lands forfeited" thereon and causing entry to that effect to be made. Default in payment and subsequent payment are ipso facto a rescission. Island City Savings Bank v. Dowlearn (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 308. (This decision construes act of 1891.)

So important is it that the land shall be indorsed "forfeited" that the time allowed the purchaser in this article in which to contest the forfeiture by suit is fixed by the date of the indorsement: "Lands forfeited." O'Keefe v. McPherson, 25 C. A. 313, 61 S. W. 535; Comanche Co. v. Brightman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 976.

Under this article a land commissioner indorsed upon the contract with the original purchaser, and also upon the file wrapper which contained all the papers, and upon the account kept in the land office, the words "Land Forfeited." Held, such indorsement was sufficient, without placing it upon the obligation of the second substitute purchaser. Hoefler v. Robison, 104 T. 159, 135 S. W. 371.

— Death of purchaser.—See, also, note under "Not repealed," ante.

Where the husband applied to purchase school lands, the fact that the wife died did not entitle the children to a further time in which to make payment, under the provision for the heirs when the purchaser dies. Simon v. Stearns, 17 C. A. 13, 43 S. W. 50.

After the death of a purchaser (who dies owing interest on his purchase) the land commissioner cannot declare a forfeiture of the land, until the expiration of one year from the 1st day of November next after the death of the purchaser. Potter v. Robison, 102 T. 448, 119 S. W. 92.

The contract of a husband to buy public land is a community obligation and the wife acquires a half interest in the land by virtue of the contract even though she does not sign the contract. She thus becomes a "purchaser" and her heirs have the right to pay the overdue interest within one year after 1st of November next after her death, the husband having died before the wife died. Leaverton v. Robison, 102 T. 516, 120 S. W. 169.

— Reinstatement.—See, also, Art. 5428, and notes.

The commissioner of the land office is only authorized to make a reinstatement of the account where no rights of third persons have intervened. Waggoner v. Flack, 21 C. A. 449, 52 S. W. 584.

The statute in a case in which the right of a former purchaser to be reinstated is involved places no time limit on the applicant. The limit there is to cases where after forfeiture "no rights of third persons may have intervened." Cobb v. Webb, 26 C. A. 467, 64 S. W. 793.

See this case for facts held sufficient to show that one had actually settled on land that had been forfeited to the state for nonpayment of interest, and application for reinstatement, after such actual settlement, was properly refused. Price v. Bates, 32 C. A. 374, 74 S. W. 608.

The provision in this article for the forfeiture of land for the nonpayment of rent, in no way weakens or affects the proposition that a forfeiture restores the land to the public domain and reinvests the title in the state. Where one has bought land from the state and forfeiture was declared for nonpayment of rent, and land put on sale again, and another has bought and after holding a while has relinquished his title to the state, and the former has been reinstated, the reinstatement did not have the effect of continuing the title, whether legal or equitable in him after the forfeiture, and the 10-year statute of limitation was interrupted by the time that elapsed from the forfeiture to the reinstatement. Lawless v. Wright, 39 C. A. 26, 86 S. W. 1040.

Where purchase of land has been forfeited for nonpayment of interest, the purchaser cannot be reinstated if rights of other persons have intervened. Mound Oil Co. v. Terrell, 99 T. 625, 92 S. W. 453.

Where the west quarter of a section was the only part of the section on the market, an application to purchase complying with the law in all respects save that it designated the land applied for as 160 acres of the named section without other description, was sufficient to give the applicant standing with the right to comply with the requirement of the commissioner to perfect his description, and when the letter perfecting the description was filed in the landoffice the same day that a former purchaser applied for reinstatement, reinstatement was properly refused. Lindsay v. Terrell, 100 T. 548, 101 S. W. 1073.

Under this article the right to reinstatement is absolute, and is not defeated by the act of the commissioner in erroneously awarding the land to a third person. Davis v. Yates (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 281.

The right of a purchaser of school land forfeited for nonpayment of interest to reinstatement held to become fixed as of the date of his compliance with the statute authorizing reinstatement. Id.

A purchaser of school land who had been reinstated as purchaser after forfeiture held entitled to claim the land as against one claiming under an erroneous award of the lands after the forfeiture. Id.

Under this article an application for a reinstatement made after a subsequent purchaser had completed his purchase came too late. Jones v. Robison, 104 T. 70, 133 S. W. 879.

A misrepresentation of facts by the treasurer of the land office as to condition of accounts in his office does not entitle one to reinstatement of a forfeited purchase after the rights of legal purchasers have intervened. Id.

Forfeiture for nonoccupancy.—See Arts. 5424, 5425, and notes.

Temporary absence for six months.—A settler does not forfeit his rights by being absent not exceeding six months for the purpose of educating his children and making money to pay for the land. Under the laws of 1895 the settlement must be for the bona fide purpose of making a home. Willoughby v. Townsend, 18 C. A. 724, 45 S. W. 861.

The provision in this article for temporary absence from the land not exceeding six months is not repealed by section 6 of the act of 1905 (Art. 5419 herein) requiring a residence of three successive years next succeeding the date of the purchase of the home tract. Gaddes v. Terrell, 101 T. 574, 110 S. W. 429.

The act of 1907 (Art. 5419 herein), requiring purchasers to reside in person continuously on the land, repealed the permit of the former law to reside elsewhere six months in the year for the purposes specified. State v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 520.

Under this article, where a purchaser, after remaining in actual possession thereon for 10 days, went to an agricultural college to take a course in veterinary surgery under contract with other persons who paid his expenses and agreed to pay him more than double what he had been receiving when he returned with his certificate from the college, his purpose being to earn an increased salary to pay for the land, and his intent being to return to the land, which he did, in good faith, being absent less than 2½ months, his absence was within the article, and did not work a forfeiture of his purchase. Ramsey v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 930.

A purchaser left his land to take a course in veterinary surgery under a contract for his services when he returned, with the proceeds which he intended to pay what he owed on the land. Held, that this article contemplates only an absence when actually earning the money, and the absence for the purpose of schooling is not within its terms and would work a forfeiture. Ramsey v. Patterson, 105 T. 378, 150 S. W. 889.

Suits to enforce forfeitures.—As to attorney's fees in school land litigation, see Arts. 3925, 3926.

A county attorney has no right to appear and represent the state to enforce forfeiture of school lands. Duncan v. State, 28 C. A. 447, 67 S. W. 904, 905.

Art. 5423a. Purchasers after January 1, 1907, and before January 1, 1913, who have forfeited for non-payment of interest, may repurchase, when.—In case any of the public free school lands that has been purchased from the state after January 1st, 1907 and prior to January 1st, 1913, on condition of settlement and residence may hereafter be forfeited for the non-payment of interest in the manner now provided by law the owner of such land at the date of forfeiture, provided the forfeiture was made by reason of interest accrued or accruing prior to the passage of this Act, shall have the right for a period of ninety days after notice of classification and appraisal of his land, as herein provided, to repurchase any of such tracts, not to exceed one complement of sections upon the terms and conditions prescribed in this Act. [Acts 1913, p. 336, sec. 1.]

Art. 5423b. Owner to advise commissioner of wish to repurchase; duties of commissioner.—When any of the land included within the preceding section has been forfeited for the non-payment of interest, the commissioner of the general land office shall forward such a list of land to the proper county clerk, and within thirty days after the receipt of said list by the clerk, the owner mentioned in the preceding section, who may wish to repurchase any or all of the land, not to exceed one complement of sections, as now provided by law, that he may have permitted to be forfeited, shall advise the commissioner of the general land office of such wish. As soon as practicable after the receipt of such advise by the commissioner, he shall furnish the board of appraisers hereinafter provided for, a complete list of all such lands, together with the names of all persons who have advised him of this desire to repurchase their said lands, or a part of their complements of sections, giving the post-office address of each person, as well as such other information he may have in his possession as will enable said board to properly appraise said lands as hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5423c. Board of appraisers, how constituted, etc.; duties; forfeited owner to file application to repurchase, etc.; provisions applicable.—There is hereby created a board of appraisers, consisting of three members, to be composed of the commissioner of the general land office, and two members to be appointed by the governor of the state. Said board shall organize, take the constitutional oath of office and elect one of its members chairman and one secretary thereof, which board and each member thereof shall have the power to administer oaths and take testimony by depositions or otherwise, and said board when organized shall notify the commissioner of the general land office of the facts of its organization and that it is ready to receive from him the list of lands, names of forfeiting purchasers, and other information and data, as provided for in section 2 [Art. 5423b] of this Act. Upon receipt of such data and information, said board shall ascertain the reasonable values of said land and appraise accordingly, and shall prepare triplicate notices of the appraisal and classification, sending one to each of the forfeiting owners and to the commissioner of the general land office, and retaining one in its possession until the completion of its duties under this Act; when same, together with all the papers and data in the possession of said board, shall be deposited by the secretary thereof with the commissioner of the general land office, who shall keep same on file in his office as an archive thereof. If such forfeiting owner desires to repurchase the land at the appraised value placed thereon by said board, he shall file his application therefore [therefor] in the general land office within ninety days after the date of notice of appraisal, together with one-fortieth of the appraised value and his obligation for the remaining portion of the purchase price, bearing 3 per cent. interest per annum. The said one-fortieth cash payment shall conform to the requirements now prescribed for the first payments on applications for the purchase of other public free school lands. Before any application shall be accepted and the award issued thereon under the right herein given, the applicant shall deposit in the general land office for the use of the general fund a sum of money equal to seven and one-half dollars for each section of land awarded herein, for the purpose of reimbursing said fund for the moneys drawn therefrom under the provisions of this Act. The land commissioner shall pay into the state treasury all money paid into his office under this section of this Act, and the treasurer shall place same to the credit of the general fund. All terms, conditions and penalties now provided for the sale of public free school lands shall apply, govern and control all sales made under this Act, except as may be otherwise provided herein. If the land purchased under the right given herein shall have been resided upon, for three years as required by law prior to the date of purchase, and sufficient proof of that fact shall be in the general land office, the purchaser shall not be required again to reside on it; but, if such residence shall not have been completed prior to the date of repurchase, then the purchaser shall purchase the land upon condition of settlement and residence and continue to reside upon the land in person until he shall have completed the required three years of continuous residence next succeeding the date that the original residence was begun. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5423d. Commissioner to sell if right to repurchase not exercised, etc.—If the owner at the date of forfeiture shall not exercise his right to repurchase, the commissioner of the general land office shall again place the land on the market for sale as is now provided by law for the sale of leased land. In all such sales the same terms, conditions, limitations, pains and penalties and regulations now prescribed by law for the sale of other public free school land in the same county and the payments therefor, shall govern such sales. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5423e. Liens on repurchased land unimpaired.—Provided, that whenever any land, affected by this Act, is forfeited and afterwards repurchased under the rights of repurchase given by this Act, to the owner at the time of forfeiture, any lien legal or equitable, and any valid contractual right in favor of any person, firm or corporation, existing against, in and to, said land, or any part of same at the time of forfeiture, shall remain unimpaired and in full force and effect as if no such forfeiture had occurred. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5423f. Compensation of board of appraisers, etc.—Each member of the board of appraisers provided for by this Act except the commissioner of the general land office shall receive as compensation for his services the sum of ten dollars per day for each day actually employed in the performance of his duties as a member of said board, not to exceed ninety days, together with all necessary expenses, including the necessary expenses of the commissioner of the general land office; provided, however, that number of days of actual service for which said member shall have received compensation, as well as expenses incurred by said board in the performance of its duties, shall be stated under oath in writing by said board, or some member thereof, and which, when approved by the governor, shall be filed with the comptroller, who shall thereupon issue a warrant upon the state treasurer for the same. There is hereby appropriated out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated the sum of ten thousand dollars or so much thereof, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5424. Permanent improvements to be erected by purchaser; forfeiture.—Every purchaser shall be required within three years after his purchase to erect permanent and valuable improvements on the land purchased by him, which improvements shall be of the reasonable market value of three hundred dollars. If any purchaser shall fail to reside upon and improve in good faith the land purchased by him as required by law, he shall forfeit said land and all payments made thereon to the state, to the same extent as for the non-payment of interest, and such land shall be again upon the market as if no such sale and forfeiture had occurred; and all forfeitures for non-occupancy shall have the effect of placing the land upon the market without any action whatever on the part of the commissioner of the general land office; and, if any purchaser shall be forced to yield possession of the land purchased by him from the state on account of any writ or other judicial process issued from a court of competent jurisdiction, or be compelled to temporarily yield his possession from a well-grounded fear of death or serious bodily injury, such absence shall not work the forfeiture provided by law for non-occupancy; but no writ of injunction shall issue in any case involving the title or possession of lands herein referred to where the applicant has an adequate remedy at law by sequestration or otherwise. [Acts 1901, p. 292, sec. 3.]

Not repealed.—This article and article 42181, Rev. St. 1895 (re-enacted with modifications as Art. 5423 hereof), held not repealed by Acts 30th Leg. Ext. Sess. c. 20, §§ 6a, 6c (Arts. 5419, 5425, herein) nor by Acts 29th Leg. c. 103 (see Art. 5416 herein). Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Not retrospective.—Where one contesting an award of school land made his application before this statute took effect, the question whether the owner to whom the land was awarded continued to reside on the land after the award is immaterial. Davis v. McCauley, 28 C. A. 211, 66 S. W. 1124.

It was not the intention of the legislature in passing this law to affect in any manner the rights of those who had purchased under the previous law and whose account was in good standing in the general land office. It did apply to lands, which had been previously sold, but which had been forfeited, or might thereafter be forfeited, in accordance with the provisions of laws under which they had been bought. Bates v. Bratton, 96 T. 279, 72 S. W. 158.

A sale of school land prior to the adoption of this article is governed by the law of 1895 (Acts 1895, p. 63, c. 47), requiring forfeitures of sales of school land for nonresidence to be declared by the commissioner. Samples v. Wever, 56 C. A. 562, 121 S. W. 1129.

Forfeiture for nonoccupancy or abandonment.—Art. 5423 permits temporary absence from the land for not more than six months when such absence is necessary for certain purposes. See, also, notes under Art. 5444, which requires the commissioner to prescribe regulations respecting occupancy by purchasers for three years after purchase. And see Art. 5425 and notes.

See this case for facts which show that the plaintiff was entitled to the land as an actual settler which had applied for, and obtained from the land commissioner the right to purchase. Singleton v. Wright (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 249.

A purchaser executed a bond reciting a sale of the land and obligating himself to make title after acceptance of proof of three years' occupancy. Prior thereto the purchaser leased the land to the obligee, reserving the use of it and continuing in possession of part of the land. This was not an abandonment of the land, subjecting it to another sale. Witcher v. Wiles, 33 C. A. 69, 75 S. W. 890.

Absence from the land for eight months while attending a normal school in a distant county, is a failure to reside upon the land purchased as required by law, and works a forfeiture of the land. Andrus v. Davis, 99 T. 303, 89 S. W. 773.

If one moves off the land and abandons the same, he forfeits all rights acquired by virtue of his application to purchase. Edwards v. Terrell, 100 T. 26, 93 S. W. 426.

Where school land sold by the state was not abandoned, the land commissioner had no authority to forfeit the sale on the ground, and his action could not affect plaintiff's lien on the land created prior thereto. Bumpass v. McLendon, 45 C. A. 519, 101 S. W. 491.

If a person leaves the land for six months without a well-grounded fear of death or serious bodily harm, he forfeits his purchase. Overfelt v. Vinson, 46 C. A. 381, 103 S. W. 1190.

Where a purchaser actually settled on the land within 90 days, his absence from the land prior to this actual settlement was not such a failure to reside on the land as forfeited the purchase. Ramsey v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 930.

In an action to disaffirm a conveyance of public school lands made by plaintiff when an infant, allegations in the petition of plaintiff's purchase from an individual and plaintiff's occupancy thereafter for a couple of months, but not showing whether plaintiff's grantor had purchased from the state, or the length of his occupancy of the land, are insufficient to show plaintiff's abandonment of such lands within three years, so as to forfeit her title. Salser v. Barron (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1039.

Does not ipso facto work forfeiture.—Land purchased and abandoned will not be treated as forfeited until so declared by the land commissioner. Adams v. Terrell, 101 T. 331, 107 S. W. 538.

This section should not be construed to mean that non-occupancy results ipso facto in a forfeiture of the land and placing the same on the market for sale without any action on the part of the land commissioner. Williams v. Keith (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1058.

Under this article abandonment by an actual settler purchaser will not ipso facto place the land at once upon the market, but it can only be done by the declaration of forfeiture by the commissioner as prescribed by statute. Tillman v. Erp (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 547.

A nonoccupation of school lands purchased from the state alone does not work a forfeiture ipso facto. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Under this article nonoccupancy does not ipso facto constitute such a forfeiture as will place the land upon the market, subject to resale, without cancellation of the prior sale. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

Further action by commissioner unnecessary.—If the purchaser or his vendee failed to reside upon the land as the law requires, it became forfeited and the land again on the market without any action of the commissioner. The rule has been held to be different when after three years' occupation, proof thereof has been made and the commissioner has issued his certificate of that fact. Bates v. Bratton (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 39.

Under this article no action by the commissioner is necessary to work a forfeiture; and hence an indorsement by the commissioner on the purchaser's application that it was forfeited for failure to reside on the land was not evidence of forfeiture as against the purchaser. Slaughter v. Cooper, 56 C. A. 169, 121 S. W. 173.

Under this article a cancellation by the land commissioner of the sale of school lands on the ground that the purchaser did not settle thereon in good faith, and a resale to another party, fixes the status of the first party's claim, without any further action by the commissioner. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Fear of death or bodily harm.—The fear of death or serious bodily injury, which will excuse a purchaser of state school lands for abandoning the same within three years after the purchase, need not be such as would be given way to only by a man of ordinary prudence and courage. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 569.

If such fear as in law justified plaintiff in temporarily yielding his possession continued since the abandonment, he would not while under such fear, be required to resume such possession in order to prevent a forfeiture of his rights. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1013.

Removal in obedience to judgment.—Where an applicant for the purchase of state lands obeyed a judgment of ouster, and moved off without waiting to be put off by an officer, such relinquishment of possession did not constitute an abandonment of the application. Clack v. Hart, 26 C. A. 46, 62 S. W. 935.

Good faith of settler.—Under this article a citizen, as well as the state by a direct proceeding, may attack the bona fides of a settlement on public lands even after a certificate of three years' occupancy has been granted by the land commissioner, since the certificate is not conclusive as to the purchaser's bona fides in settling upon the land. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Under this article, which is similar to Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218½ where the commissioner declares a forfeiture of land in actual occupancy, because the purchaser did not reside thereon as required by law, this necessarily involves an inquiry into and a finding adverse to the purchaser's good faith. Id.

Effect of forfeiture.—This section does not forbid a purchase merely because the applicant has suffered a forfeiture of a previous purchase on the ground of abandonment and there is no provision in the statutes which does so. The only penalty attached to abandonment, is forfeiture of the purchase and of the payments made. Cameron v. Terrell, 101 T. 330, 107 S. W. 47.

Where the purchaser of school land, after cancellation for abandonment, voluntarily made a second application and was awarded a second allotment, he acquiesced in the cancellation of his first purchase. Williams v. Robison, 103 T. 90, 124 S. W. 85.

Decisions under article 4218I, Rev. St. 1895.—Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218I, provided for forfeiture for non-occupancy as well as for non-payment of interest, but when re-enacted as Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 5423, the provision as to forfeiture for non-occupancy was omitted.

This article makes the failure to reside upon the land purchased and not upon the "other land" the ground of forfeiture. O'Keefe v. McPherson, 25 C. A. 313, 61 S. W. 535.

It is only after the land commissioner has marked the land "forfeited" that the land can be resold. Id.

The statute declares that forfeiture shall result from the failure to reside upon and improve the land, and does not require any action of the land commissioner or other officer as a prerequisite to the forfeiture. Hardman v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 662; Comanche Co. v. Brightman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 976.

The term "occupancy" as used in the statutes regulating the sale of school lands means actual settlement and residence upon the land. Hardman v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 662.

On a contest between applicants to purchase school lands, award held void and to leave the land subject to sale, without a forfeiture being declared, as prescribed by Art. 5423. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 116.

Under this article lands which had become subject to forfeiture by reason of the failure of the purchaser to continue his residence upon the same as required by the act were not subject to be sold again until the commissioner had declared the forfeiture. Bates v. Bratton, 96 T. 279, 72 S. W. 157, 158.

The phrase "improvements in good faith," as used in Rev. Stat. 1895, art. 4218I, only meant such improvements as are necessarily incidental to the required settlement. It was not required that the improvements should be to any specified amount. McLendon v. Bumpass, 51 C. A. 586, 114 S. W. 464.

Under Acts 1895, p. 67, c. 47, § 11 (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218I), regulating the sale of public free school lands, land sold to an actual settler, subject to forfeiture for failure to comply with the condition of three years' occupancy, is not forfeited to the state, with the effect of being again upon the market for sale, by the mere fact of abandonment of the purchaser, but to have that effect the land commissioner must make formal declaration of such forfeiture by the indorsement "Land forfeited" on the purchaser's obligation. Tillman v. Erp (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 547.

Where a purchaser of school land while the law of 1895 (Acts 1895, p. 63, c. 47), requiring forfeitures of sales of school land for nonresidence to be declared by the commissioner, was in force, conveyed land to a grantee, who received possession before a forfeiture for the purchaser's abandonment had been declared, the grantee took such title as would support an action against a mere trespasser. Samples v. Wever, 56 C. A. 562, 121 S. W. 1129.

Parol sale of improvements.—A parol sale of improvements made by a settler on public land and not attached to the land held valid. McCullers v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 502.

Lien on improvements.—A lien acquired by plaintiff on school land sold by the state before the purchaser had completed the three years' occupancy required by statute was valid, and could be enforced after the requisite occupancy had been completed. Bumpass v. McLendon, 45 C. A. 519, 101 S. W. 491.

Art. 5425. Forfeiture for failure to settle on land, etc.—One who has heretofore, or who may hereafter, purchase land out of a lease or otherwise on condition of settlement in the counties named in article 5419 and fails to settle thereon within the required time, or fails to file in the land office his affidavit of settlement within the required time, or fails to comply with the law as to residence on the land, or executes a transfer contrary to the provisions hereof, except those stated in this chapter as not being void, he shall forfeit the land and all payments made thereon to the fund to which the land belongs; and, when the commissioner shall be sufficiently informed of the facts which operate as a forfeiture, he shall cancel the award or sale by noting the act of forfeiture on the obligation, and mail notice of that fact to the proper county clerk. Such land shall not be subject to sale again at a less price than the former sale price, unless the commissioner shall have re-appraised the land at a less price after noting the act of forfeiture. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 6e.]

See Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Forfeitures disfavored.—Forfeitures of public free school lands by the commissioner of the general land office are disfavored, and will not be sustained upon doubtful authority. Salgado v. Baldwin, 105 T. 508, 152 S. W. 165.

Forfeiture—in general.—The land commissioner is authorized to forfeit for the specified causes and the attorney general is authorized to bring suit for the protection of any other right. The contract not being void, the purchaser is entitled to have the evidence which the statute prescribes of its existence and of his compliance with its terms preserved and kept up in the land office by the action of the commissioner until his rights under it have been terminated by the state. The commissioner himself cannot cancel a sale on the ground alone that he made a mistake in the classification and appraisal. He is not in all matters pertaining to public school lands the representative of the state. Harper v. Terrell, 96 T. 479, 73 S. W. 949, 950.

Where the action of the land commissioner in canceling a sale of school lands is proper, it is immaterial whether he assigns the proper reason for his action. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

The commissioner of the general land office cannot declare a forfeiture of a purchase of school land for collusion. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

A commissioner of the general land office is not authorized to forfeit a purchase of school land on the ground of the purchaser's minority, though the state could cancel a sale on that ground in a proceeding for that purpose. Id.

Under this article a forfeiture for "collusion and failure to settle upon and occupy and improve the land in good faith as a home, as required by law," is unauthorized. Salgado v. Baldwin, 105 T. 508, 152 S. W. 165.

— For nonpayment of interest.—See Art. 5423 and notes.

— For nonoccupancy or abandonment.—See notes under Art. 5424.

— Failure to settle in good faith.—Acts 30th Leg. c. 20, § 6e (re-enacted with modifications as Art. 5425 herein), wherein grounds for declaring a forfeiture of a purchase of school land are specified without mention of a failure to settle in good faith, does not change the law as to a settlement in good faith, and authority to declare a forfeiture for failure to so settle, as section 6a (Art. 5419 herein) expressly provides that the land shall be sold on condition of settlement as provided by this act and existing statutes. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

— Forfeiture for unauthorized transfer.—Under Arts. 5435, 5436, and this article, where a holder of a right to a title in school lands transferred his interest within less than 12 months after the sale to him by the state, the award to him became ipso facto forfeited and the land reverted to the state free of any incumbrance which the purchaser may have placed thereon. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

— Conclusiveness of records as to forfeiture.—In an action of forcible entry and detainer of school land, it is not proper to go outside the records of the land office to show a state of facts which would impeach such records and show a forfeiture not declared by the office. Renfro v. Harris, 28 C. A. 58, 66 S. W. 460.

— Conclusiveness and effect of forfeiture.—In an action to try title to land, the fact that the land commissioner had forfeited the sale to the party under whom plaintiff claims was not conclusive against him, but he could show that the attempted forfeiture was unauthorized and of no effect. Bumpass v. McLendon, 45 C. A. 519, 101 S. W. 491.

The forfeiture by the commissioner of the general land office of a school land purchase is not conclusive as to the purchaser's rights. Zettlemeyer v. Shuler, 52 C. A. 648, 115 S. W. 78.

Art. 5426. [4218ff] Forfeiture of home tract works forfeiture of other land, when.—When any purchaser buys and settles upon a section, or part of a section, of school lands, and buys, either at the same time or subsequently, other lands in addition thereto, a forfeiture for any legal cause of the part on which he resides, at any time before the three years residence thereon has been completed, shall work a forfeiture of the entire purchase, except such part thereof as he may have previously sold to another. But, after the three years residence has been completed, a forfeiture of the home tract shall not of itself work a forfeiture of the other tract or tracts. [Acts 1895, amended 1897, p. 184.]

— Application.—This article applies to those who have purchased a section or a part of a section of school lands, and who have subsequently or at the same time bought an additional section. Roberson v. Sterrett, 96 T. 180, 71 S. W. 385, 73 S. W. 3.

— Extent of forfeiture.—Forfeiture of the part on which the settler resides works a forfeiture of title to the additional land bought. Dabbs v. Rothe, 25 C. A. 201, 60 S. W. 813.

Art. 5427. [4218h] Terms of repurchase of forfeited agricultural lands.—The owner of land which is in fact agricultural, purchased prior to August 20, 1897, and which land is not subject to forfeiture at said date, shall not be permitted, in case said land is forfeited, to purchase said forfeited land from the state for a less price per acre than the contract price under the former sale. [Acts 1895, amended 1897, p. 184.]

Art. 5428. [4218f] Purchasers prior to July 30, 1895; rights of under forfeiture.—Where any of the lands referred to have been sold prior to July 30, 1895, in quantities greater or less than forty acres or multiples thereof, and are in good standing as to interest payments, they may be patented in such quantities. Any owner of land purchased prior to said date, and which land has been or may be forfeited for non-payment of interest, shall have ninety days prior right, after the land is again placed upon the market, to purchase said land without the condition of settlement and occupancy, in case it has been occupied for three consecutive years as required by law; but, if not, then he shall reside thereon until the occupancy under the first and last purchase shall together amount to said term of three years; provided, that, when any forfeiture has been made, the commissioner of the general land office shall add to the appraised value of such land the amount of interest due thereon at the time of forfeiture, which shall be paid in cash with the first payment of one-fortieth of the appraised value of the land when purchased under the preference right to purchase given herein. [Acts 1895, amended 1897, p. 184. Art. 4218j, Acts 1895.]

Right to preference.—Where school lands had been sold by the settler after application to purchase, but before securing the patent, he has no prior right to purchase them as owner after forfeiture for failure of the grantee to pay the interest due state as agreed. Settle v. Stephens, 18 C. A. 695, 45 S. W. 969.

The person who is the owner at the time the forfeiture is declared has 90 days' prior right to purchase the land after it is placed upon the market. Unless he complies with the statute in the particulars named (regarding the purchase) during the 90 days grace given him, the commissioner has no power to award him the land over other legal applications made during that time, nor can the commissioner extend the time beyond the 90 days. Cobb v. Webb, 26 C. A. 467, 64 S. W. 794.

A corporation is not entitled to the preference right of 90 days, where it is the vendee of the original purchaser, to buy detached land situated in a county organized prior to January 1, 1875. The prior right for 90 days to purchase such lands did not change the legal qualification of the purchaser prescribed in article 4218z, Rev. St. 1895. Mound Oil Co. v. Terrell, 99 T. 630, 92 S. W. 454.

Art. 5429. Timber lands defined; regulations for sale of.—The commissioner of the general land office shall adopt such regulations for the sale of timber on timbered lands as may be deemed necessary and judicious, subject to the provisions of this chapter. By timbered lands is meant lands valued chiefly for the timber thereon. [Acts 1901, p. 296, sec. 8.]

See Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.

Rule regarding application.—This section authorizes the land commissioner to adopt a rule requiring the purchaser as a prerequisite to purchase the timber on the timbered lands referred to, to make and file in the land office a written application therefor of a certain prescribed form in substance. Hornbeck v. Terrell, 38 C. A. 70, 85 S. W. 486.

Art. 5430. Same.—One who applies to purchase the timber shall file his application in writing in the general land office in the manner now provided for the filing of applications for the purchase of land, and pay to the land office the full cash payment according to the price offered therefor, but not at a less price than that fixed by the commissioner. Should two or more persons each apply to purchase the timber and land on the same day, and one should offer more for the timber but less for the land than a competitor, then the one offering the highest price for the timber shall have an option for thirty days, as now provided by law for designating home tracts, to take the land at the highest price offered by such competitor. Should the one offering the highest price for the timber not want the land at such highest price, but should want the timber, it shall be awarded to him. Should one who applies for both timber and land offer the highest price for the land, but a lower price for the timber, he shall have an option of thirty days as aforesaid to purchase the land, if it should not be purchased by the one who offers the highest price for the timber; but, should the one who offers the highest price for the timber and the lesser price for the land not want the land at such high price, nor should he exercise his option by purchasing the timber alone, then the land and timber shall be awarded to the one offering the highest price for the land, and next highest price for the timber. The commissioner shall appraise all timber at its reasonable market value, and it shall not be sold at a price less than that so fixed by him. Should two or more applications for timber alone be filed on the same day, the one offering the most therefor shall be accepted. All timber shall be sold in full tracts. The purchaser of timber without the land shall have the right of ingress and egress upon the land for a period of five years after date of award for the purpose of removing or protecting the timber thereon, and the purchaser shall be entitled to all the timber thereon for that period and no longer. After that time the title to the timber shall revert to the fund to which the land belonged and be again subject to sale by the state, unless the land shall sooner be sold and fully paid for and patent issued thereon; and in that even the timber shall revert to the owner of the land. The owners of timber heretofore purchased, which has not been removed and the five years in which to remove same or to purchase the land have not expired, but may expire on or before November 1, 1907, may purchase the land on that date at the price fixed by the commissioner and without condition of settlement, either for cash or on deferred payment, with five per cent interest as provided in this chapter for other purchasers without settlement. In case the five years do not expire before said date, only the owner of the timber shall have the right to purchase the land as herein provided at any time prior to the removal of the timber and within the five years allowed in which to remove same. Land on which timber has heretofore been sold, and the timber has been or may be removed, or the five years shall have expired and the land not purchased by the owner of the timber, shall not be sold until it is re-classified and re-appraised by the commissioner, and a date fixed not more than sixty days after such action for the sale thereof. Notice of such action and date fixed for sale shall be mailed to the proper county clerk. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 6c.]

Purchase of timber withdraws land from sale.—Under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218q (re-enacted with additions and modifications as Art. 5430 herein), no one may purchase land on which the timber has been sold and stands until the expiration of five years from the sale, except the purchaser of the timber, or his vendee, so that a sale of the timber withdraws the land from sale to an actual settler during the five years, and for this period it can be sold only to the purchaser of the timber, or his vendee thereof. Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.

Rights of purchaser of timber cannot be impaired.—Where by Acts 1895, p. 68, c. 47, § 16, a purchaser of timber on public lands has the right to purchase the land itself within five years without being an actual settler thereon, this right could not be affected by Acts 1901, p. 296, c. 125, § 8 (Art. 5431 herein) passed thereafter, containing the same provisions as section 16, except that purchasers of timber must settle on the land, since the right was a part of the consideration for the sale of the timber and was a vested right which could not be impaired by subsequent legislation. Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.

The rights of a purchaser of timber on public lands, under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218q (re-enacted with additions and modifications as Art. 5430 herein), are contractual and vested, and may not be impaired or taken away by future legislation; and, where a purchaser of timber has the right under the statute to purchase the land on the terms fixed in the statute, his rights are not affected by the subsequent laws of 1901, though so intended by the legislature. Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.

The state could not grant to a patentee land that it had previously contracted to sell to the purchaser of timber, and any patent impairing such purchaser's right to acquire title by compliance with the terms of his contract was void, and passed no title. Kirby v. Conn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 232.

Rights acquired by purchaser of timber.—Failure of a purchaser of standing timber to be cut and removed from land to pay a sum as rental for an extension of his right to the exercise of privileges granted held not to forfeit his title to the uncut timber on the land. Montgomery County Development Co. v. Miller-Vidor Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1015.

An instrument construed as a conveyance of standing timber as personalty, to be severed and removed from the land. Id.

Corporation may purchase land.—See, also, Art. 5432.

Under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218q (re-enacted with additions and modifications as Art. 5430 herein), the fact that a corporation is the real purchaser of the timber on public lands does not prevent it from purchasing the land within the time prescribed. Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.

When purchaser's right to land accrues.—Where a purchaser of the timber on school land filed prior to the removal of the timber an application to purchase the land, and paid the price at the same time, he became entitled under the statute to the land, and his cause of action against an adverse claimant accrued at that time and not at the time of a subsequent award of the land to him; that being mere evidence of his existing right to the land. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. McGrew (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 191.

Purchaser need not be actual settler.—Acts 1895, p. 63, c. 47, § 3, relating to the sale of public school lands, provides, in section 3, for a classification thereof and when classified to be subject to sale but to actual settlers only, with a limitation of quantity in certain cases, and provides, in sections 8 and 9 (pages 64 and 65), the time for settlement of the land and proof thereof. Section 16 (page 68) of the act provides that the Commissioner of the general land office shall adopt regulations for the sale of the timber on timber lands, and that purchasers of timber shall have five years to remove the timber, and that when all the timber is taken off the lands may be classified and sold as grazing land, and that a purchaser of timber within the five years may purchase the land on which the timber is purchased "under the provisions of the act." Held, that the statute evidently contemplated two classes of purchasers, actual settlers on the land and purchasers of timber, and the quoted words at the end of section 16 did not refer to preceding sections, and hence a purchaser of timber buying the land was not obliged to settle thereon to get good title. Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.

A purchaser of timber on public lands, under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218q (re-enacted with modifications as Art. 5430 herein), authorizing the sale of timber on public lands, need not be an actual settler. Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.

Effect of issuance of patent in disregard of preference.—In pursuance of Acts 1895, p. 68, c. 47, § 16, a purchaser of timber on public land exercised the right given by the section to purchase the land itself, but did not comply with all the terms of the section in making his application to purchase. Before he made application the land had been erroneously classified as "grazing land" and so sold and patent issued to the purchaser, the title of whom was void as against the purchaser of the timber, if he had complied with the terms of the section. Held, in trespass to try title by the purchaser of the timber against the vendee of the purchaser of grazing land, that the court, on adjudging that plaintiff was entitled to the land on his compliance with the provisions of the act granting him the right of purchase, would not cancel the patent to defendant's vendor, since such patent conveyed a good title until plaintiff established a better title by compliance with the statute. Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.

Art. 5431. Timber and lands sold prior to August 12, 1907.—The purchaser of timber prior to August 12, 1907, shall have five years from that date within which to remove the timber therefrom, and, in case of failure to do so, such timber shall thereby be forfeited to the state without judicial ascertainment; provided, that all timbered lands sold prior to such date, from which the timber has been cut and taken off, may be placed on the market and sold as agricultural or grazing lands, according to classifications to be made by the land commissioner; provided, that upon application of the purchaser or his vendees of any such timber made within five years from the purchase of such timber, the commissioner of the general land office shall have said land classified at the expense of the owner of said timber as agricultural or grazing land, and the owner of said timber shall have the right to purchase said land at the valuation fixed by said commissioner on the same terms and conditions as other lands of like classification are sold under the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1901, p. 296, sec. 8.]

Vested rights cannot be impaired.—See, also, note under Art. 5430.

Where by Acts 1895, p. 68, c. 47, § 16, a purchaser of timber on public lands has the right to purchase the land itself within five years without being an actual settler thereon, this right could not be affected by this article passed thereafter, containing the same provisions, except that purchasers of timber must settle on the land, since the right was a part of the consideration for the sale of the timber and was a vested right which could not be impaired by subsequent legislation. Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.

Under Acts 27th Leg. c. 125, a purchaser of timber with the right to purchase the land at any time before five years, but before the timber has been removed a part of the consideration for which he paid the state, has a vested right when the state accepts his application to purchase the timber, and he complies with the terms of such purchase, which could not be impaired by a sale of any part of the land and the issuance of patents thereto from the state to another, during the time in which the purchaser had the statutory right to buy the land; and the fact that the act of 1907 relieved those holding such purchase rights from complying with the requirement of actual settlement did not change the date of his purchase of the timber as the date upon which his right to purchase the land became vested. Kirby v. Conn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 232.

Who may exercise right to purchase.—Under this article the commissioner need not inquire into equities between a remote vendee of the purchaser of the timber and a third person, growing out of the fact that the latter furnished the price for the conveyance to the remote vendee, and, where the legal title to the timber is in a vendee of the purchaser, a third person has not the right to purchase the land. Ragley v. Robison, 103 T. 240, 126 S. W. 1.

Settlement on land necessary.—Acts 1895, p. 68, c. 47, § 16, gave a purchaser of timber on public school lands the right to buy the land itself within five years without settling on the land. Acts 1901, p. 296, c. 125, § 8 (Art. 5431 herein), contained the identical terms as section 16, except that, after providing that the owner of the timber shall have the right to purchase the land, it further provides "at the valuation fixed by the commissioner on the same terms and conditions as other lands of like classification are sold under the provisions of this chapter," and the sections other than section 8 provided for sale to actual settlers only. Held, that section 8 would be construed to change the rule in section 16 that a timber owner could purchase the land itself without settling on the land. Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.

Art. 5432. Unsurveyed or scrap lands.—Any person desiring to purchase any portion of the unsurveyed school lands shall first make a written application to the surveyor of the proper county or district in which the land, or a portion thereof, is situated, signed and sworn to by the applicant, giving his postoffice address, and designating the land he desires by metes and bounds, as nearly as practicable, and stating that he desires to have the land surveyed with the intention of buying it, and that he is not acting in collusion with or attempting to acquire land for another person or corporation. It shall be the duty of the surveyor to file and record such application, and to survey the land and file the application and field-notes in the land office within ninety days from the date of the filing of the application, together with a properly prepared and certified sketch of the survey, with the variations at which all lines were run. The land shall be surveyed under the instructions of the commissioner of the general land office. The applicant shall pay to the surveyor one dollar as a filing fee, and his further lawful fees for surveying the land. When the surveyor returns the application and field-notes to the land office, he shall report under oath the classification and market value of the land, and also the timber thereon and its value, which may be considered in connection with such other evidence as may be required in determining the class and price to be given the land or timber. If, upon inspection of the papers, the commissioner is satisfied, from the report of the surveyor and the records of the land office, that the land is vacant and belongs to the school fund, and the survey has been made according to law, he shall approve same and notify the applicant that the land is subject to sale to him, stating the classification, price and terms, which shall be the same as that for surveyed lands, except as herein provided; provided, all unsurveyed vacant tracts not disclosed by the official maps in use in the land office at the time an application for the survey is filed, may be sold for cash, or for one-fortieth cash with five per cent interest on the deferred principal, and without condition of settlement and improvement, and with the right to pay the same out at any time and obtain patent; all unsurveyed vacant tracts which are subject to overflow, or situated in bottoms or swamps or otherwise so as to be unsuitable for settlement, may be sold for cash or for one-fortieth cash, with five per cent interest on deferred principal, and without condition of settlement and improvement, and with the right to pay the same out at any time and obtain patent; all unsurveyed vacant tracts not exceeding six hundred and forty acres, and not less than one hundred acres, which are disclosed by the official maps in use in the land office at the time an application for a survey is filed, and which are now or may be entirely surrounded by valid surveys or sold school surveys, shall be sold as a whole, and may be sold for cash, or for one-fortieth cash with five per cent interest on deferred principal, and without the condition of settlement and improvement, and with the right to pay same out at any time and obtain patent; all unsurveyed vacant tracts of one hundred acres or less shall be sold for cash only; all other unsurveyed vacant tracts disclosed by the official maps in use in the land office when an application for survey is filed, shall be sold on condition of settlement and improvement as provided by law for the sale of surveyed land; provided, that land heretofore or hereafter recovered by the state from claimants holding or claiming same under Spanish or Mexican titles shall be considered as vacancies disclosed by the official maps, and the person who in good faith so held or claimed such land under the claim aforesaid shall have a prior right for ninety days after the date of the final recovery of such land hereafter, to file on and purchase four sections of six hundred and forty acres each for cash, or for one-fortieth cash with five per cent interest on the deferred principal, and without the condition of settlement, and with the right to pay same out at any time and obtain patent. When the land is applied for and purchased under this article, without condition of settlement and improvement, the application to purchase shall otherwise conform to the requirements of applications for surveyed land, except as to settlement and designation of home tract. In all cases of the sale of any land on deferred payments and without the condition of settlement and improvement, as provided for in this article, the merchantable timber thereon, if any, shall first be paid for in cash. All land appropriated to the public school fund by the act of February 23, 1900, and which has heretofore been surveyed at private expense, may be sold under the provisions of this article relating to undisclosed vacancies and swamp lands. If within sixty days from the date of the notice of approval of any survey as herein provided, the applicant shall not have filed in the land office his purchase application at the appraised value fixed on the land, and in compliance with this article, such land shall be placed on the market for sale, upon the same terms and conditions as other surveyed school land. When any land, lying between older surveys, is held by the commissioner of the general land office to be unsurveyed or vacant land appropriated to the public school fund by the act of February 23, 1900, and is sold as such under the provisions of this chapter, and thereafter any suit arises between the owner or owners of such older surveys, and the purchaser from the state or his vendees, any final judgment rendered in such suit shall be deemed and held conclusive as to the existence or non-existence of such vacancy; provided, if in any suit judgment is obtained through collusion or fraud against the state, the same may be set aside and vacated at the suit of the state any time within five years thereafter. All unsurveyed tracts of six hundred and forty acres or less shall be sold as a whole, and all tracts of more than six hundred and forty acres shall be sold in such tracts as may be required or approved by the commissioner. No one shall hereafter have any preference to purchase any unsurveyed land, except as provided in this chapter for original lessees out of leases. All tracts containing one hundred acres or less, wheresoever situated, shall be sold for cash and without condition of settlement. All applications to purchase land under any preference right, which were filed in the land office prior to August 12, 1907, shall be accepted. No corporation shall purchase any land under the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 8.]

See Houston v. Koonce (Sup.) 156 S. W. 202.

Right to cause survey and purchase in general.—Defendant held entitled to apply to have surveyed, classified, and to purchase unsurveyed state land within plaintiff's inclosure, subject to plaintiff's prior right, without settling on the land. King v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 334.

The right given by Acts 1905, p. 164, § 8, to an applicant who has caused public land previously unsurveyed, to be surveyed for the purpose of buying it within sixty days after the approval of the survey, is not taken away by the provisions of section 6e of the act of 1907 (provision quoted re-enacted in Art. 6432 herein), that "no one shall hereafter have any preference to purchase any unsurveyed land, except as provided in this act for original lessees out of leases." The right given in the law of 1905 is not a preference right in the sense of the above question from the law of 1907. Pence v. Robison, 102 T. 489, 119 S. W. 1145.

— Where title is in dispute.—Where there is a dispute as between the state and another party as to the title of a tract of land the commissioner cannot be compelled to make a sale. Act Feb. 23, 1900, p. 29, c. 11, § 6, as amended by Act April 15, 1901, p. 253, c. 88, applies only to such lands as appeared upon the maps and records of the general land office not to be claimed by other parties, and to such as had been adjudged to the state, if ever so claimed. Juencke v. Terrell, 98 T. 237, 82 S. W. 1026.

Land held under lease.—Where the land is held under a lease, and the lease is in good standing, the fact that the legislative act appropriated the lands to the public school funds, and provided for their sale cannot be considered as ipso facto abrogating the lease. The lease is valid and conferred upon the lessee the sole right to the use of the land covered thereby until such right was legally divested in the manner provided by law. Adair v. Hays, 31 C. A. 446, 72 S. W. 257.

The provisions of Art. 5408 relating to the giving of notice as to land which becomes subject to sale by the termination or cancellation of a lease were not applicable to land which must be surveyed before it can be sold under this article; no land being subject to sale upon cancellation of a lease until it is surveyed, so that the fact that the full 90 days' notice was not given to the county clerk upon the cancellation of a lease of unsurveyed land would not affect the validity of the survey and sale of such land under this article. Meador v. Robison, 103 T. 206, 125 S. W. 564.

— Time of application.—The fact that an application to purchase school land was dated prior to the approval of the survey thereof is insufficient to warrant a conclusion that the application was entertained by the surveyor before the land was on the market. Dooley v. Maywald, 18 C. A. 386, 45 S. W. 221.

The action of the surveyor in entertaining an application to purchase school land before the commissioner of the land office approved the appraisal report of the commissioners' court will not render void the sale of the land to the applicant, in the absence of the rights of third parties intervening. Id.

Effect of application for survey.—The application merely secures the right to have the survey made and in 60 days after the approval of the field notes by the commissioner of the general land office and notification that it was on the market to become the purchaser as required in cases of sales of other school lands. Adair v. Hays, 31 C. A. 446, 72 S. W. 257.

An application for survey of public lands by metes and bounds held not to furnish notice precluding the subsequent location and survey of lands outside the tract so described. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Tender of cost of survey.—Evidence held to establish a valid tender of the cost of surveying certain state land so as to protect plaintiff's prior right to purchase. King v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 334.

Application under act of 1900.—A petition for mandamus to compel the land commissioner to rescind his action in canceling a purchase, and to reinstate the contract of purchase, is fatally defective under Acts 1900, p. 29, § 6, when it fails to show that the land sought to be purchased is a part of a tract embracing 2,560 acres or less, and fails to allege that the land was embraced in the terms of the section because it shows no right in the applicant to purchase and no right in the commissioner to sell the land. Moore v. Rogan, 96 T. 375, 73 S. W. 1.

When sale must be for cash.—Under Acts 1905, p. 164, § 8, only unsurveyed vacant tracts of eighty acres or less shall be sold for cash only, so that where a tract of 80 acres was surveyed under the act of 1900 as amended by the act of 1901, the commissioner of the land office could sell upon the payment of one-fortieth of the purchase money and the balance on time with interest. Hamman v. Presswood (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1053.

Field notes must be filed within 90 days.—In October, 1906, an application was filed by C. and the land surveyed in November, 1906, and the application and field notes filed in the land office in December, 1906. The field notes conflicted with other surveys, and the surveyor who had surveyed the land was notified in February, 1907. M.'s application for the same land was filed December 24, 1908, and surveyed February 11, 1909, which application and field notes were filed in the land office March 3, 1909, and found correct. February 16, 1909, corrected field notes were filed by C. The commissioner refused to value the land on C.'s application, as M.'s application was filed prior to the return of the corrected field notes made for C. Held, that under this article it was necessary that the surveyor for C. should within 90 days return correct field notes, and, M. having filed his application and a survey having been made before the corrected field notes of C. were returned to the land office, after the 90 days, M. acquired a superior right to purchases and the land was properly awarded. Cox v. Robison, 103 T. 354, 127 S. W. 806.

Preference given party who has improved or inclosed land.—Acts 1905, p. 167, § 8, gave the person whose inclosure embraced any unsurveyed school lands, or who had improved the same, the right to purchase the same in preference to others at any time within 90 days after notice given as provided therein. The following cases were decided under that or similar acts:

Under acts 1889, c. 54, p. 48, a person having a preference right must be a settler within his inclosure. Hume v. Gracy, 27 S. W. 584, 86 T. 671.

That defendant settled on and improved vacant state land within plaintiff's inclosure did not deprive plaintiff of the prior right to purchase within 90 days after the land had been surveyed, classified, and appraised. King v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 334.

When land is situated in one's inclosure he has the preference right to purchase at any time within 90 days after it was surveyed, classified and appraised and he has received notice thereof. Id.

Where one person has the land inclosed and another has improvements on it, the statute does not prefer the owner of the land to the owner of the improvements. The latter has the same right as the former to buy 160 acres, and where the owner of the improvements has secured a patent to the land the owner of the inclosure must show a better title in order to recover the land. Underwood v. King, 102 T. 561, 119 S. W. 300.

Equities of adverse claimant.—Where B. abandoned certain land in controversy in 1896 and made no claim thereto until 1905 prior to which plaintiff had acquired a right to purchase, no equities survived B.'s abandonment which he could transfer to defendant. King v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 334.

B., having voluntarily made certain payments on state lands to which plaintiff had a prior right to purchase with knowledge of such right, held not entitled to reimbursement as a condition to plaintiff's right to a decree vesting title in her. Id.

Isolated or detached lands.—Article 4218y, Rev. St. 1895, provided for the sale, without necessity of settlement, of isolated and detached public lands in certain counties. The statute was re-enacted in Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 5450, without the provision referred to above.

The statute authorizing the sale of detached and isolated sections of school land, without requiring settlement, applies to sections which were not isolated when the act was passed, but which subsequently became so. Thomas v. Wolfe, 16 C. A. 22, 40 S. W. 182.

The question whether or not a section is subject to sale thereunder is to be determined from its situation, as shown by the state maps at the time of sale. Id.

If the purchaser acts in good faith a sale will not be held unlawful because it may subsequently be discovered that a mistake was made in the mapping and location. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a sale of school land as isolated land was invalid. Id.

The statute is mandatory; and it is the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to accept all bids for isolated sections and parts of sections of the school lands at a dollar an acre upon the purchasers tendering the part of the purchase money, and the obligation for the balance, as was required by the general law, whether the lands are classified as agricultural, timbered or grazing. State ex rel. Weber v. Rogan, 94 T. 62, 54 S. W. 1016, 55 S. W. 559, 57 S. W. 940.

After the commissioner of the general land office has declared a forfeiture in the case of a detached and isolated section it is not necessary for him to report the forfeiture to the county clerk of the county in which the land is situated before it is again subject to purchase. All that is necessary to acquire an inchoate title is to make application to the commissioner, and to tender the amount of cash required together with a statutory obligation for the balance. Id.

This article (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218y) applies to a county that had been organized prior to January 1, 1875, but whose organization had lapsed and was not organized at said date, but was again organized thereafter. Tompkins v. McKinney, 93 T. 629, 57 S. W. 804.

The word "may" in this article (Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218y) ought to be construed in its literal sense—that is to say, as a word merely conferring a power upon the commissioner to sell the lands therein specified at one dollar per acre and not as making it obligatory upon him to do so, and therefore mandamus will not lie to compel him to do so. Weber v. Rogan, 94 T. 62, 54 S. W. 1016, 55 S. W. 559, 57 S. W. 941, 942.

A person buying under the law applying to detached land can not have his title attacked because he may desire to let some one else have the benefit of his purchase. The sale of such land is inhibited to none but a corporation. Wurzbach v. Burkett (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 590.

Certain state lands held detached lands at the time of their sale. Hamilton v. Votaw, 31 C. A. 684, 73 S. W. 1091.

That one was entitled to purchase public lands as actual settler held not to render valid his purchase of sections as isolated, when in fact connected. Burnam v. Terrell, 97 T. 309, 78 S. W. 500.

Sale of connected sections as isolated held not rendered valid by subsequent invalid sale of the connecting section. Id.

The act of the land commissioner in determining whether lands are isolated and detached from other public land is ministerial and not judicial. And where he acts under a mistake in believing that the lands are detached and makes a sale, when he discovers his mistake he can rescind his previous action and cancel the award, or his successor can do this. Id.

There is no conflict between the proviso of Gen. Laws 27th Leg. p. 253, c. 88, providing that actual settlement of unsurveyed and detached lands containing less than 640 acres shall not be necessary, and section 7 of Act April 19, 1901, which provided that all lands which are or may become detached shall be sold to actual settlers only, the latter only applying to surveyed lands, and the proviso was not repealed by said act. The two laws having been passed by same legislature, and not being in conflict, should be construed as one act. McGrady v. Terrell, 98 T. 427, 84 S. W. 641.

In forbidding sale of school lands to any but actual settlers, an exception is made in case of "isolated and detached" lands lying in certain counties, but by the terms of this article (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218y) a sale to a corporation is not permitted. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Terrell, 100 T. 406, 100 S. W. 134.

By the express terms of Acts 1901, p. 296, § 7, the exception in Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218y, as to "isolated and detached" lands, is eliminated in express terms, and such lands are made subject to sale to actual settlers only. One must become an actual settler upon school lands within 90 days after the land is awarded to him. Id.

Vacancies between surveys.—Claimant to vacant public domain, in action of trespass to try title, held entitled to show that the land claimed as vacant was outside the corrected boundaries of original surveys under which plaintiff claimed. Austin v. Espuela Land & Cattle Co., 34 C. A. 39, 77 S. W. 830.

One who has not acquired any right to land held not entitled to litigate the question of a vacancy between surveys under which another claims the land. Hickey v. Collins, 40 C. A. 565, 90 S. W. 716.

State cannot intervene in suit between adverse claimants.—The provision that, when any suit arises between the owners of the older survey and the purchaser, any final judgment shall be conclusive as to the existence of such vacancy, but, if the judgment be obtained through collusion against the state, it may be vacated at any time within five years, does not authorize the state to intervene in such an action. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 1178.

Corporation cannot purchase.—See, also, notes under Arts. 5428, 5430.

Land subject to classification as agricultural or grazing land cannot be sold to a corporation. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Terrell, 100 T. 406, 100 S. W. 135.

Art. 5433. Minerals, gayule and lechuguilla reserved.—The land which is now or may hereafter be classed as mineral may be sold for agricultural or grazing purposes, but all sales of such land shall be upon the express condition that the minerals shall be and are reserved to the fund to which the land belongs, and such reservation shall be stated in all applications to purchase; provided, should any person who has no authority or right to do so cut or remove any mineral, gayule or lechuguilla from the land belonging to the public free school fund, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code, and in addition thereto judgment shall be rendered against the defendant in behalf of the state in a sum of money equal to the value of the substance so cut or removed, which shall be collected as under execution; and when collected, the money shall be remitted to the state treasurer and by him credited to the fund to which the land belongs. The commissioner shall adopt all

See Cox v. Robinson, 105 T. 426, 150 S. W. 1149.

Applies only to land designated as mineral land.—Provision, in statute for sale of public school and asylum lands, for affidavit by applicant as to knowledge of minerals, and that as to reservation of minerals, apply only to lands designated as mineral lands. Schendell v. Rogan, 94 T. 585, 63 S. W. 1001.

Mines and mining.—See Title 93.

Art. 5434. Sale of gayule and lechuguilla.—The commissioner of the general land office may, with the consent and approval of the governor and attorney general, sell the gayule, lechuguilla, growing or found upon the public free school land, exclusive of timber. The sales may be upon such terms, conditions and limitations as they may deem most advantageous, having in view the protection of the interest of the school fund and the state. They may also enter into such contracts as they may deem wise for the purpose of having determined the commercial properties and value of any and all such material, and for such purpose they may enter into executory contracts of sale; provided, they shall not in such contracts cause the expenditure of public money nor incur any liability on the state. [Acts 1907, p. 251.]

Art. 5435. Transfers.—One who hereafter buys land on condition of settlement shall not sell any part of such purchase prior to one year after date of award of the home tract, nor prior to one year after date of the award of the first additional tract purchased to a formerly acquired home, unless the required residence has sooner been completed. After the lapse of the time aforesaid, the purchaser may sell all of his land, or any part thereof, in whole tracts, according to his purchase, to another qualified purchaser, who will become an actual bona fide settler on some part thereof at date of his transfer, if the residence is not complete, and such assignee shall complete the residence on the land by continuous residence thereon as required of his vendor; and if the vendor does not sell all of his purchase he shall continue to reside upon his home tract, or on some part of that retained, until the completion of the residence required of him. A purchaser on condition of settlement under this chapter, or any former law, who may have the right to sell his land, or a part of it, may sell his whole home tract, or one or more of his additional tracts, as a whole, according to his purchase, to another purchaser who owns a designated home tract within five miles of each of such tracts as he may purchase as assignee, and the assignee may take each of the tracts as additional to his own designated home tract; provided, the total tracts so purchased by an assignee prior to the completion of the residence of the vendor, together with the former purchase of the assignee, shall not exceed one complement of sections. In such cases, the assignee shall continue to reside in person upon either his formerly designated home tract, or on one of his formerly acquired additional tracts, or on one of his additional tracts purchased as assignee, continuously until the completion of the residence required of him under his former purchase and that of his vendor. No tract hereafter purchased shall be transferred, except as a whole, prior to the issuance of patent thereon; but, should a transfer of less than a whole tract be made after the purchaser has the right to sell in whole tracts under the provisions of this chapter, such transfer shall not be void, but the owner shall not be substituted as assignee on the records of the land office. The failure to pay the interest on the whole of such tract shall operate as a forfeiture of every part thereof. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 6d.]

See Ericksen v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 245.

Explanatory.—It has been the purpose to group the decisions since this law took effect here, while decisions relative to transfers prior thereto will be found under Art. 5436, as also all decisions having express reference to that article. Cases relative to transfers of land as additional to the transferee's home tract will also be found under this article.

Right to transfer in general.—A contract agreeing to convey school land, when an action involving the title thereto should have terminated favorably to the contracting party, held not invalid. Hudman v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 186.

36 L. P. 316

Art. 5435
Vernon Sayles
1914
Amended
37 L. P. 118

The law does not favor restrictions on the alienation of a title acquired in public land, whether complete or inchoate. Breen v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 650.

A sale of school lands awarded by the state before the three years' occupancy prescribed as a prerequisite to the issuance of final title by the state is not against public policy. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Judicial sale.—The rights of a purchaser of school lands prior to the completion of the three-year occupancy held to be only a chattel interest, and not subject to sale in judicial proceedings. Bourn v. Robinson, 49 C. A. 157, 107 S. W. 873.

Time of transfer.—Under this article and Arts. 5425, 5436, where a holder of a right to a title in school lands transferred his interest within less than 12 months after the sale to him by the state, the award to him became ipso facto forfeited and the land reverted to the state free of any incumbrance which the purchaser may have placed thereon, and, where his vendee later secured an award from the state, he took the land free from the incumbrance of a trust deed executed by the vendor. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Transfers of tracts additional to home tract in general.—A charge that a grantee of state school lands from the original purchaser must have occupied the original tract as a condition precedent to his right to purchase additional land was error. Thomson v. Hubbard, 22 C. A. 101, 53 S. W. 841.

Under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218ff, a sale by a purchaser before the completion of the three years' occupancy, to one not an actual settler on the land sold, did not forfeit title thereto, because the purchaser has the right to sell to one not an actual settler. Nesting v. Terrell, 97 T. 18, 75 S. W. 486.

A purchase of additional school land by owner of other lands, is not forfeited but his rights pass to vendee, before occupation, not an actual settler, where he continues to own and occupy the land made the basis of the purchase. It was not necessary that the purchaser nor any of his vendees should occupy the land. Miller v. Hallford, 34 C. A. 243, 73 S. W. 239.

Limitation on amount of land.—Before this law went into effect a father had purchased four sections and his son two and part of another. After this law became effective the son conveyed one of his sections to his father and the father conveyed one of his to the son. The land commissioner had no right to cancel the son's conveyance because the father obtained no more than he was entitled, for by the transaction he gave up one of his sections when he obtained the one from his son. Cunningham v. Terrell, 101 T. 613, 111 S. W. 652.

Location of land.—Under this article, held, that it was not necessary that the land purchased be wholly within a radius of five miles of the home tract; it being sufficient that the land to be purchased be not more than five miles from the home section at the nearest point of the home section to that sought to be purchased. Bradford v. Robison (Sup.) 141 S. W. 769.

Title or rights acquired by transferee.—Though a purchaser of school land might mortgage his interest before he had completed the three years of occupancy, his subsequent sale thereof before the termination of the occupancy and therefore before his interest was subject to a judgment lien would prevent the mortgage lien from attaching to the land in the hands of the purchaser. Bourn v. Robinson, 49 C. A. 157, 107 S. W. 873.

Though the state may wholly ignore a subsequent purchaser of school land and recognize only the contract of the original purchaser, it does not follow that, as between the original purchaser and the vendee of an interest in the former's inchoate title the conveyance is void. Breen v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 650.

The grantee of a substituted purchaser of school land, having been also duly substituted as a purchaser in the General Land Office and complied in all things with the law governing occupancy as an actual settler, irregularities or even invalidity of previous sales to his grantor or the original purchaser from the state become immaterial as affecting his title. Goodwin v. Koonce (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 620.

A purchaser of the rights of one to whom school land has been awarded occupies by substitution on the commissioner accepting him the position of an original purchaser, but he takes subject to any right to the land intervening between the award and his purchase. Davis v. Yates (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 281.

One to whom a deed was made by one having contract with the state for purchase of public land held not in privity with the state, and so not entitled to attack the forfeiture of such sale by the state, and through it a patent of the land to another on a subsequent sale. Breen v. Morehead, 104 T. 254, 136 S. W. 1047.

Evidence in trespass to try title brought by one purchasing from a purchaser of state land, held to show that the intention of plaintiff and his grantor was that the land should not be conveyed prior to the grantor's filing his notice of settlement in the land office. Payne v. Cox (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 336.

Art. 5436 was not repealed by this act, and a substituted purchaser under this article becomes an original purchaser from the state. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

A subsequent purchaser of school lands from the original purchaser, who held a recorded mortgage from an intermediate purchaser, was not an innocent purchaser. Id.

A grantee of one to whom school lands have been awarded by the commissioner of the general land office acquires, prior to issuance of patent, an equitable title, and he may enforce rights which his grantor could enforce against third persons claiming under an obligee in a bond for title, though annual interest installments due to the state have not been paid. Spotts v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 422.

Liens for and collection of purchase price.—Where the state through its regular authorized officer makes an award of public lands to one authorized to purchase, the land so far passes out of the state as to authorize its sale by the purchaser, thereby creating between himself and his purchaser the relation of vendor and vendee, and, where possession accompanies such transfer, the second purchaser may not thereafter successfully plead a total failure of consideration upon the forfeiture of his vendor's title. Slaughter v. Cooper, 56 C. A. 169, 121 S. W. 173.

That the land office, after forfeiting school land, which was sold by the settler to another, reinstated the sale and awarded the land to such other, held good defense to the plea of failure of consideration of the notes given for the lands, which were secured by a vendor's lien. Bynum v. Hobbs, 56 C. A. 557, 121 S. W. 900.

A substituted purchaser of school lands legally awarded by the state had a vendible title, though the three years' occupancy, prerequisite to issue of final title, had not been completed, which was sufficient to support a purchase-money mortgage and notes therefor. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Where a subsequent purchaser of school lands acquiesces in the acts of his vendor in procuring the cancellation of the original award, and the making of a new award to the purchaser, he is estopped to object to the validity of his mortgage to the original purchaser. Id.

A pre-existing debt for a balance due on the purchase price of school lands, though the vendor had no title thereto, held a good consideration for a mortgage thereon, executed on the cancellation of the vendor's rights and an award to the purchaser. Id.

— Recovery back after payment.—In an action to recover money paid for land, to actual settler under contract with state, judgment in another action held inadmissible to show eviction under the rule that the law by which the rights of vendor and vendee are adjusted as to private lands is inapplicable where the attempted conveyance is of public domain. Slaughter v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 897.

Registration of conveyance.—A conveyance of the equitable ownership of a homestead settler in the public domain acquired by the completion of three years of continuous occupancy held subject to registration with the county court, so as to be constructive notice to subsequent purchasers. Phillips v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 319.

Art. 5435a. Transfers other than personal; accounts with transferees, etc.—Upon presenting to the commissioner of the general land office of a regular chain of transfer to any of the sold public free school, university or asylum lands of this state, where same have been or may hereafter become matured under occupancy as required by law, in cases where occupancy is required, and where the terms and conditions of sale by the state to the original purchaser thereof have been otherwise complied with in cases where occupancy is not required, from the heir or heirs, executor, administrator or survivor in community of any deceased owner thereof, or from the guardian of any minor or person of unsound mind, who are the owners thereof, or from any trustee under deed of trust, or mortgagee in any mortgage with power of sale, or transfer executed by the sheriff or other officer of any court of this state having competent jurisdiction, by virtue of any execution or order of sale issued out of such court, and in all cases where title emanates from and is authorized by any court proceedings of the courts of this state, it shall be the duty of said commissioner to cause such chain of transfer to be filed together with the proper and necessary obligations and other instruments of verification hereinafter provided for, and thereupon the commissioner shall separate the account of the land so transferred from the account of the original or parent tract, and shall open a new account for the land so transferred in the name of the person filing such transfer, in the same manner as accounts are now opened with persons filing personal transfers. [Acts 1911, p. 32, sec. 1.]

Art. 5435b. Certified copies to be filed with transfers, etc.—When the transfer of any executor, administrator, or guardian is so filed it shall be accompanied by a copy of the order of the probate court appointing such executor, administrator or guardian of such estate and approving and confirming the sale of which such transfer is the evidence, duly certified to by the clerk of the county court of the county in which such order of confirmation was made. When the transfer of any survivor in community is so filed it shall be accompanied by a copy of the order of the probate court appointing such survivor in community, and also by a copy of the oath and bond, and the order approving same, of such survivor in community, all duly certified to under the hand and seal of the county clerk of the county where such orders were made and such oath and bond are filed. When the transfer of any trustee in any deed of trust, or any mortgagee under a mortgage with power of sale is filed as provided in this Act, it shall be accompanied by a copy of the deed of trust or mortgage, as the case may be, under which such transfer was made, duly certified to under the hand and seal of the county clerk of the county in which such land may be situated. When any transfer of a sheriff or other officer of a court is filed as provided in this Act, it shall be accompanied by a copy of the execution, order of sale or other process authorizing the execution of such transfer, together with the sheriff's return thereon, which copy shall be duly certified to under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court from which such execution or order of sale issued. When the judgment or decree of any court of this state is filed wherein the title to any of such lands is decreed out of the owner, such judgment shall be duly certified to by the clerk of the court in which judgment was rendered. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5435c. Transfer fees.—The commissioner shall charge and collect such fees for filing the transfers provided for in this Act as are now charged for filing personal transfers, and in addition thereto he shall charge and collect a fee of fifty cents for the certified copies which accompany each transfer, the same to be paid into the state treasury as other fees are now paid. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5435d. Provisions applicable to transfers other than personal.—The lands described in section 1 [Art. 5435a] of this Act shall be subject to patent in like manner as lands that are transferred by chain of personal transfer, and shall be subject to the same conditions and penalties as are prescribed by law for other free school, university and asylum lands of this state; provided that patent when issued shall issue in the name of the person to whom said land was last transferred by personal transfer as shown by such transfers on file in the land office; provided, that the commissioner of the general land office shall deliver said patent to the party entitled thereto as shown by the mesne conveyances on file in his office; provided, that no account shall be opened and no patent issued as provided for in this Act, except in such quantities as are now provided by law in cases of personal transfer. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5435e. Purchasers of land in certain counties may sell within year, etc.—One who has heretofore bought or who may hereafter buy public free school land on condition of settlement and occupancy in the counties of Andrews and Bailey, Cameron, Cochran, Crane, Dimmit, Duval, Ector, Gaines, Hidalgo, La Salle, Loving, McMullen, Midland, Starr, Terry, Upton, Winkler, Yoakum and Zavala, may sell after one year from date of award any portion of said land to another in the manner provided in article 4218k, Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, but such assignees shall complete the residence thereon as provided in section 6 [Art. 5435] of the land sales act of 1907, approved May 16th, 1907. [Acts 1911, p. 154, sec. 1.]

Art. 5436. [4218k] Lands patented, when.—Purchasers shall have the option of paying the purchase money for their lands in full at any time after they have occupied the same for three consecutive years; and when they have made such payment in full, together with the proof that they have occupied the land for three consecutive years, they shall receive patents for the same upon payment of the patent fee prescribed by law. Purchasers prior to August 12, 1907, may also sell their lands, or a part of the same, in quantities of forty acres, or multiples thereof, at any time after the sale; and in such cases the vendee, or any subsequent vendee, or his heirs or legatees, shall file his own obligation with the commissioner of the general land office, together with the duly authenticated conveyance or transfer from the original purchaser and the intermediate vendee's conveyance or transfer, if any there be, duly recorded in the county where the land lies, or to which said county may be attached for judicial purposes, together with his affidavit, in case three years residence has not already been had upon said land and proof made of that fact, stating that he desires to purchase the land for a home, and that he has in good faith settled thereon, and that he has not acted in collusion with others for the purpose of buying the land for any other person or corporation, and that no other person or corporation is interested in the purchase, save himself; and thereupon the original obligation shall be surrendered or canceled or properly credited, as the case may be, and the vendee shall become the purchaser direct from the state, and be subject to all the obligations and penalties prescribed by law, and the original purchaser shall be absolved in whole or in part, as the case may be, from further liability thereon; and, if he or his vendor has already resided on his home section for three years, or when he or his vendor, or both together, shall have resided upon it for three years, the additional lands purchased may be patented at any time. [Acts 1895.]

Explanatory.—It has been the purpose to group the decisions having express reference to this article and all those decided prior to the time that Art. 5435 went into effect here, while all other cases relative to transfers will be found under that article. All cases relative to transfers of land as additional to the transferee's home tract will also be found under Art. 5435.

Not repealed.—This article was not repealed by Acts 30th Leg. 1st Ex. Sess. c. 20, which provides in section 6d (Art. 5435 herein) that "one who hereafter buys land on condition of settlement shall not sell any part of such purchase prior to one year after date of award of the home tract," and a substituted purchaser under that section will become an original purchaser from the state. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Right to transfer in general.—An actual settler who tenders the purchase money has an interest which he can transfer. Wood v. Wesson (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 1069.

Land can only be sold under this article to the person selected by the original purchaser. O'Keefe v. McPherson, 25 C. A. 313, 61 S. W. 536.

The original purchaser of state lands, having an interest which will ripen into title by the payment of the purchase price, may make a valid contract for the sale of his interest therein. Gunnels v. Cartledge, 26 C. A. 623, 64 S. W. 806.

The statute authorizes the actual settler to convey to another, but requires of the vendee to make the same character of settlement upon the land as was required of the original purchaser. The state allows an actual settler to be substituted by another of the same qualifications, but an actual settler can not transfer the land before the expiration of three years' occupancy unless the state at the time gets another actual settler in the place of the one that is released. Hardman v. Crawford, 95 T. 193, 66 S. W. 208.

One who purchases lands from the state under a contract which provides for certain payments upon the making of which he will become entitled to a patent and in default of any of which he forfeits all rights under his contract has a vendible interest in such lands prior to their forfeiture, and one which is subject to execution. Martin v. Bryson, 31 C. A. 98, 71 S. W. 615.

Land awarded by commissioner of general land office, occupied for three years, proofs having been made, held subject of sale and mortgage. Logue v. Atkeson, 35 C. A. 303, 80 S. W. 137.

The state allows an actual settler to be substituted by another with the same qualification and performing the same duties, but there is no provision by which land once sold to and occupied by an actual settler can be transferred before the expiration of three years' occupancy, to another person, unless the state at the same time acquires another actual settler in the place of the one that is released. Dugat v. Means (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 364.

— Mortgages.—Land duly awarded and occupied for three years, proof of which has been made, may be mortgaged. Logue v. Atkeson, 35 C. A. 303, 80 S. W. 137.

A mortgage executed by the purchaser of school lands before he had completed the three years occupancy created a lien on the land, enforceable against the succeeding purchaser, after he had completed and made proof of the requisite occupancy. Harwell v. Harbison, 43 C. A. 343, 95 S. W. 30.

Form of transfer.—Transfer of land certificate with name of vendee in blank held good as against one making the transfer. Walker v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1045.

Title, rights and liabilities of substitute purchaser.—A transferee of a contract for the purchase of school land, who takes all the statutory steps to have himself substituted as purchaser, and is so substituted, is entitled to all the rights he would have had if he had been an original purchaser. Thomas v. Wolfe, 16 C. A. 22, 40 S. W. 182.

Under the laws relating to the sale of state school land, a failure of the vendee to substitute his obligation to the state for unpaid purchase price for that of the original purchaser held not to work a forfeiture of vendee's title. Lee v. Green, 24 C. A. 109, 58 S. W. 196, 347.

A valid sale of an unconditional land certificate by the administrator of the owner thereof is sufficient to pass title thereto to the purchaser. Harvey v. Petty (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 893.

One who purchases lands from the state under a contract which provides for certain payments upon the making of which he will become entitled to a patent, has an interest therein which is subject to execution. Martin v. Bryson, 31 C. A. 98, 71 S. W. 615.

A sale to a substitute purchaser of public lands held valid, without regard to validity of original and prior substitute sales, though the first payment was made only by the original purchaser. Johnson v. Bibb, 32 C. A. 471, 75 S. W. 71.

When the terms of the statute have been complied with the sale to a substitute vendee is to all intents and purposes a new sale upon substantially the same terms and conditions as if the sale was an original one, save that actual settlement seems not to be required where three years' occupancy has already been had, and proof of that fact made and save that the substitute applicant is not by said article required to make the first payment as in case of the original purchaser. Id.

Bona fide purchasers of county school lands held to acquire a good title against the county, notwithstanding invalidity of original conveyance from the county. San Augustine County v. Madden, 39 C. A. 257, 87 S. W. 1056.

Where defendant obtained the rights of K. in the purchase of certain state lands, and was substituted as the purchaser, he was entitled to the benefit of K.'s cash payment required of original purchasers. Reininger v. Pannell, 46 C. A. 137, 101 S. W. 816.

A purchaser of the rights of one to whom school land has been awarded occupies by substitution, on the commissioner accepting him, the position of an original purchaser, but he takes subject to any right to the land that intervened between the award and his purchase. Davis v. Yates (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 281 (2nd case).

Where a purchaser of school land abandoned his purchase, the substitution of a third person for another purchaser was complete and took the land off the market, though the attempted sale to the second purchaser was void for his failure to deposit the first payment with the state treasurer. Fitzhugh v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 913.

Under this article, held, that the claim of one purchasing from the original purchaser after the settlement was complete, and an affidavit of settlement was filed and who continued his settlement and paid all dues and made valuable improvements thereon, would not be forfeited because he did not file the application to become a substituted purchaser. Payne v. Cox (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 336.

Under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4291 (Art. 5410 herein), requiring the original purchaser of public land to forward his application properly describing the land, and article 4292 (Art. 5436 herein), a proper description in the substitute purchaser's affidavit, if required, was substantially complied with by application of the substitute purchaser, with the attached obligation describing the land correctly and including the county where it was located, so as to authorize the commissioner to recognize him as a purchaser of the land, though the application itself omitted the county. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 253.

Settlement upon land.—The purchaser, in the event of his vendor not having resided on the land for three years must file his affidavit stating that he has in good faith settled upon the land, and he must show that his and his vendor's occupancy together has covered the period of three years. Hardman v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 662.

Actual settlement by a substitute purchaser is not required, where three years' occupancy has already been had and proof thereof offered. Johnson v. Bibb, 32 C. A. 471, 75 S. W. 73.

Land sold to an actual settler cannot be transferred until it has been occupied for three years, unless the state at the same time acquires another actual settler in the place of the first one. Dugat v. Means (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 364.

Title to state school land can only be secured by an original or substituted purchaser from the state, accompanied with actual settlement and continued occupancy, and while one may accept a transfer from another and make settlement and occupancy of the land, his only right is that of a substituted purchaser, and as such, he must make the affidavit of settlement and occupancy required by this article, and aver that he is purchasing the land for his home, and that he is not acting in collusion with others. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 887.

On the issue of whether there was a sufficient settlement by one who becomes a substitute purchaser of public school lands, emphasis should not be given by instructions to the fact that the settlement and occupancy must be "in person," thus tending to exclude from the jury's consideration the acts of his wife in aid of his settlement and occupancy, to which, as well as all other circumstances, the jury may look; Acts 29th Leg. c. 103 (Art. 5410 herein), even if adding anything, by the use of the words "in person," to the prior requirements as to settlement, being directed in terms only to an original purchaser of school lands, and not repealing this article. Ericksen v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 245.

Plaintiff in an action involving conflicting claims to public school lands, of which he became substitute purchaser, and which were thereafter forfeited by the land commissioner, on the ground of plaintiff's failure to reside thereon, and then sold to defendant, may prove that, before his purchase, he and his wife had a home of considerable value in the state, which constituted part of the consideration given by them for the lands involved, and that they thereafter acquired no other property for a home till the purchase in question; plaintiff in becoming a substitute purchaser being required by this article to make affidavit, etc.; his purpose and good faith being therefore in issue, and the fact of his old home having been surrendered and having been of considerable value being circumstances relevant and material on the issue of his good faith and illustrative of the purpose and acts on which he relied as constituting settlement, there being evidence that at and before his purchase his wife in person went on the land for the purpose of making a home thereon, and that he, with the same purpose, was thereafter there a number of times and assisted in making improvements. Id.

Plaintiff purchased school lands from a purchaser from the state before the expiration of the three years' occupancy by such purchaser. Plaintiff's wife immediately went on the land, made her home thereon, but plaintiff did not personally go thereon for over two months, and was not there continuously after that time. Held, that there was not a sufficient settlement on the land by plaintiff under this article. McWhorter v. Ericksen (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 624.

Lien for and collection of purchase money.—The purchaser of school land may sell on credit and foreclose his lien while the title is in the state. Wilson v. Hampton, 2 U. C. 426.

A purchaser sold to another with the understanding that the latter could forfeit and buy back from the government, and he reserved a vendor's lien to secure the contract price. Held, that the vendor's lien attached after the land had been rebought by such vendee from the state. Garrett v. Findlater, 21 C. A. 635, 53 S. W. 839.

Where a purchase of state lands is forfeited, after their sale by the original grantee, for the nonpayment of interest, the vendee of the latter cannot resist payment of his purchase money notes on the ground that the original application to purchase contained a misdescription of the land. Gunnels v. Cartledge, 26 C. A. 623, 64 S. W. 806.

Proof and certificate of occupancy.—See art. 5444 and notes.

Right to attack sale or patent.—When patent has been issued no one claiming under an after-acquired right can attack patentee's title. That only the state can do by direct proceeding. Logan v. Curry, 95 T. 664, 69 S. W. 129; Id. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 82.

Until the grant is made (by issuance of patent) the sale or transaction is in fieri and subject to collateral attack for want of actual settlement. After patent has been issued the title is not subject to collateral attack by subsequent applicants. Id.

The validity of a patent to land cannot be attacked by one in possession as a trespasser of land covered by the patent. Yarbrough v. De Martin, 28 C. A. 276, 67 S. W. 177.

Error in patent regarding grantee's name held, on the evidence, not to vitiate title. New York & Texas Land Co. v. Dooley, 33 C. A. 636, 77 S. W. 1030.

Art. 5437. Same.—Land which has been sold by the state prior to August 12, 1907, and which has been or may be subsequently transferred in tracts other than in legal multiples, may, in the discretion of the commissioner, be so patented. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 9.]

Art. 5438. [4218k] Payments and patents for town sites.—Whenever a town shall be located and established upon any lands sold under this or any former law, the purchaser or his vendee shall be permitted to pay the entire balance of principal and interest due the state upon such land and obtain a patent therefor at any time; but no such payment shall be permitted or patent issued until such purchaser or owner of such land shall file in the general land office a certified plat of such town, made by a surveyor, which shall be accompanied by the affidavit of the owner of such land, corroborated by the affidavit of five disinterested and credible citizens of the county, to the effect that a town, giving its name, has been located and established upon the land, and that there has been erected therein, and is being occupied by bona fide citizens, twenty business and residence houses, or either, or both. [Acts 1895.]

Art. 5439. Application of railroad to buy, to contain what.—Any railroad company owning, operating or constructing a line of railway in this state, desiring to purchase any portion of the public free school, university or asylum lands in this state, under the provisions of this law and the succeeding articles, for the location and establishment thereon of town sites, depots, stations, yards, divisional terminals, shops, round houses or water stations, shall file with the commissioner of the general land office, if the land desired be public free school or asylum lands, and with the board of regents of the state university, if the land desired is university land, an application to purchase each tract so desired, supported by the affidavit of its president, vice-president or chief engineer, which application shall:

First. Describe by metes and bounds or otherwise sufficient to satisfy the commissioner of the general land office, or the board of regents of the state university, as the case may be, of the particular tract or tracts of land that it desires to purchase under the provisions of this law.

Second. Said application shall show that said land so applied for is desired and needed by said railway company for some one or more of the purposes for which the sale of such lands are authorized by this article, and that it is the intention of said railway company to speedily use said land for such purpose or purposes.

Third. That said application is not made for the use or benefit of any other person or corporation than the applicant, nor in collusion with, or in the interest of any other person or corporation whatsoever; and

Fourth. That said railway company applying for said land shall furnish the commissioner of the general land office, or board of regents of the state university, as the case may be, with a plat and map, together with the field-notes of each tract of land so applied for, if required by such commissioner, or board of regents, which plat and map shall accompany said application and affidavit. [Acts 1905, p. 58.]

Right of way over public lands.—See Art. 6482 and notes.

general land office for the purchase of public school land, or with the board of regents for the purchase of university land, under the provisions hereof, said commissioner, or said board of regents, as the case may be, shall investigate the matter therein set forth; and, if after such investigation, he or they shall be satisfied that the statements made in such application are true, he or they shall then determine and fix the fair and reasonable value of such tract or tracts of land, regardless of any lease thereon, unless the lessee should have two hundred dollars worth of improvements thereon, in which event the consent of the lessee shall be first obtained, and he or they shall advise the applicant of the price so fixed; and, if said railway company desires said land at the price so fixed, it shall pay therefor in cash to the state treasurer the price so fixed by the commissioner of the general land office, or said board of regents, as the case may be; and the treasurer shall give his receipt showing such payment, whereupon there shall be issued and delivered to the said railway company a patent for said tract or tracts of land, to be properly executed by the governor and the commissioner of the general land office upon payment of the patent fee therefor; provided, that no mineral land shall be sold under this law. [Acts 1903, p. 127.]

Art. 5441. Limitations as to purchase.—The amount of land that may be purchased by any one railway company, or for any one railway company, under the provisions of this law, for the several purposes named in these articles, and the conditions and limitations imposed thereon, shall be as follows: If such land is desired for the purpose of the location and establishment thereon of depots, stations, yards, divisional terminals, shops or round houses, said railway company shall be permitted to purchase only such an amount of land as may be necessary for the proper operation and maintenance of said railway, which fact shall be determined by said commissioner of the general land office, or said board of regents, as the case may be; and, if desired by them, they may, for that purpose, have the advice and assistance of the engineer of the railroad commission of Texas; and, if said land applied for be desired for water stations at points on or near said line of railway where it is necessary to construct and maintain a dam and reservoir for the impounding of rain water, for the operation and use of said railway, sufficient land may be sold for such purpose as may be necessary for the proper construction, preservation and maintenance of such water station, not to exceed six hundred and forty acres for each water station. And, if said land be desired for the location and establishment thereon of a town site, not exceeding three hundred and twenty acres shall be sold for each town site. Provided, that, if any railway company shall fail to use said land so purchased by it under any of the provisions of these articles, for the purpose for which same was sold, within five years from the date of the patent for each tract of land sold, said land, and all improvements thereon belonging to said railway company shall revert to the fund to which it formerly belonged. And provided, further, that, if said land is sold for town site purposes, such tract must be at least eight miles distant from any other tract of land sold for the same purpose to said railway company, and, after such sale, no other tract or tracts of land shall ever be sold to said railway company, or its assigns, for town site purposes, adjoining said tract sold for such purpose. And provided, further, that if the land applied for be for the purpose of depots, stations, yards, divisional terminals, shops or round houses, the land applied for for such purposes must adjoin the line of road, railroad tracks or right of way of said railway company; and all lands sold for town sites must either adjoin said railway tracks, line of road or right of way, or adjoin land sold under the provisions hereof to said railway company for depots, stations, yards, divisional terminals, shops or round houses. And provided, further, that all lands acquired for town site purposes under these articles shall be in good faith placed upon the market for sale, and said railway company shall alienate the title to said land so sold to said railway company within the term of ten years after acquiring title to same. And provided, further, that, if said land be desired for a water station and reservoir for the impounding of rain water for the use and operation of said railway, each tract sold for such purpose must be within three miles of the line of road of said railway company, and must be at least eight miles distant from any other tract sold to the same railway company for same purpose; and, when said tract of land sold for water stations does not adjoin said line of road of said railway company, said railway shall have the right of way over any lands belonging to either of the funds mentioned in this act for its water mains from its said water station to its line of railway. [Acts 1905, p. 58.]

Art. 5442. Applications for less than 320 acres to particularly describe.—If any railway company desires to purchase any public free school land under the conditions and provisions of the foregoing articles out of any tract of such public free school land containing less than three hundred and twenty acres, it shall, in its application therefor, describe by metes and bounds, or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the commissioner of the general land office, the particular portion of any existing survey which it may so desire to purchase, and such commissioner shall be and is hereby authorized to sell such number of acres so applied for, though less than the whole survey, under the provisions and conditions of the foregoing articles, but all sales of less than the entire tract shall be in eighty acre tracts, or multiples thereof. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5443. No actual settlement required.—This law shall not be construed to require any character of actual settlement to be made upon the land sold under its provisions previous to the sale and patent thereof, nor shall it be construed as in any way changing or modifying the present laws in relation to the sale of public free school, university and asylum lands of this state, except as provided for in the preceding articles. Whenever any land is sold to railway companies for the purposes mentioned in this chapter and shall be used for any other purposes than those mentioned in this chapter, then such land shall revert back to the state. All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Acts 1903, p. 127.]

Art. 5444. [4218j] Regulations as to occupancy.—The commissioner of the general land office shall prescribe suitable regulations whereby all purchasers shall be required to reside upon, as a home, the land purchased by them for three consecutive years next succeeding the date of their purchase, except when otherwise provided. Such regulations shall require the purchaser to reside upon the land for three consecutive years herein mentioned, and to make proper proof of such residence and occupancy to the commissioner of the general land office within two years next after the expiration of said three years, by his affidavit, corroborated by the affidavits of three disinterested and credible persons, to be certified by some officer authorized to administer oaths; and on making such proof the commissioner shall issue to the purchaser, his heirs and assigns, a certificate showing that fact. If any person has sold the whole, or any part of, his purchase under this or any former law, his vendee, or if he refuses to do so, the vendor himself, may make proof of occupancy as provided herein.

Occupancy in general.—On a purchase of state school land, an actual settlement for three years from the date of the original purchase held essential to the acquisition of title. Redwine v. Hudman, 104 T. 21, 133 S. W. 426.

Proof of occupancy.—Proof of occupancy of lands purchased from state may be made by copy of original affidavit of purchaser in land office. McGrew v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 63.

Under Act 1905, § 4 (Gen. Laws 1905, c. 103), requiring purchasers of school land to settle thereon within 90 days after acceptance of their applications, and to file an affidavit of settlement in good faith within 30 days after the 90 days, and under section 5, giving preference rights of purchase to original lessees or their assignees, and providing that if one purchasing under the section does not comply with the law as to settlement and residence, the sale shall be canceled, a purchaser under section 5 need not file the affidavit required by section 4. Hanna v. Atchison (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 190.

Certificate of occupancy—In general.—While the land commissioner can act upon the statutory proof and certificates, yet if doubt is thrown upon the disinterestedness and credibility of the witnesses, he should enquire into the matter and refuse the certificate if he is satisfied that the land had not been resided upon for the period required by law. Logan v. Curry, 95 T. 664, 69 S. W. 131.

The defense of innocent purchaser of land under a certificate of occupancy is good against an attack of the state upon the sale on the ground of nonoccupancy. State v. Hughes, 97 T. 520, 80 S. W. 524.

Neither this article nor Art. 5445 require the commissioner of the land office to give more than one certificate, which is as to the occupancy of the tract on which the purchaser or those under whom he claims have resided and actually maintained a home; therefore mandamus will not lie to compel him to give another certificate as to the sufficiency of the same occupation as a compliance with the statute as to other lands purchased from the state. Conger v. Robison, 104 T. 141, 135 S. W. 110.

— Conclusiveness.—The certificate issued by the commissioner can be attacked collaterally and if the proof shows that the applicant was not an actual settler, the sale to him will be declared void. Logan v. Curry (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 82.

A certificate of occupancy is conclusive, except perhaps as to the state. Logan v. Sperry, 95 T. 664, 69 S. W. 131.

As against one claiming public land under settlement and application to purchase, a certificate of occupancy issued by the commissioner of the general land office to others after his rights accrued, and after he commenced action against them for the land, is not conclusive. May v. Hollingsworth, 32 C. A. 245, 74 S. W. 592.

Applicant to purchase public lands, held entitled to litigate question of prior applicant's actual occupancy, notwithstanding commissioner's acceptance of latter's proofs. Forester v. Berry, 35 C. A. 175, 79 S. W. 591.

One applying for land, after the commissioner of the general land office has accepted another's proof of occupancy and issued his certificate, cannot controvert the fact of occupancy. Smith v. McClain, 39 C. A. 152, 87 S. W. 212.

The issuance of a certificate of settlement and occupancy is conclusive, not only as to rights accruing thereafter but also against claims of an actual settler on the land before the issuance of the certificate, who did not seek to assert any right to the land at law until after the issuance of the certificate. Williams v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 433-435.

A certificate of occupancy issued by the commissioner of the general land office covering a home section of school land concludes the question of occupancy as affecting the settler's right to an additional section. Zettlemeyer v. Shuler, 62 C. A. 648, 115 S. W. 78.

A certificate of occupancy of school lands held not conclusive as against a prior claimant to the land. Barnes v. Williams, 102 T. 444, 119 S. W. 89.

A certificate of three years' occupancy of school lands is not conclusive as against a claimant whose rights accrued before the issuance of the certificate. Gilmore v. Lockwood, 57 C. A. 616, 124 S. W. 111.

A certificate of three years' occupancy is not conclusive as to the good faith required of the settler by Art. 5424. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

— Revocation of certificate.—Commissioner of land office held to have no authority to reverse his determination as to occupancy to the prejudice of holder of a certificate thereof. Smith v. McClain, 39 C. A. 152, 87 S. W. 212.

Where a certificate is issued by the commissioner, showing that the purchaser has occupied the land as required by statute, it cannot be revoked for failure to so occupy. Mitchell v. Robison, 103 T. 642, 132 S. W. 465.

— Effect of absence of certificate.—Court properly disregarded title in trespass to try title, depending on purchase from land commissioner by one not a settler, and concerning whose occupancy no certificate had issued. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 419.

Appellee owned a home within five miles of lands in controversy and on May 5, 1899, applied to purchase 640 acres and on July 15, 1899, applied to purchase 320 additional acres. The lands were awarded to him. On June 16, 1902, appellant applied to purchase the 640-acre tract as a home and the 320 as additional, but his application was rejected. He moved on the lands June 9, 1902, for purpose of making a home there and still resides on the land. On August 2, 1902, appellee made his proofs of occupancy of the land for three years and the same was filed in the land office August 4, 1902, and the same were accepted by the commissioner, but it is not made to appear that the commissioner issued a certificate showing the fact. Before the proofs had been filed affidavits setting up appellee's abandonment of the land had been filed by appellant with the land commissioner. The trial court erred in refusing to allow appellant to show that appellee had abandoned his home land before the expiration of three years from the date of his application. Forester v. Berry, 35 C. A. 175, 79 S. W. 591, 592.

Prior to the issuance of a certificate of three years' occupancy, an actual settler on school land whose application had been rejected might contest the right of the person to whom the land was awarded on the ground that the latter was not or had not remained an actual settler. Williams v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 432.

Forfeiture for nonoccupancy.—See Arts. 5424–5426, and notes.

Affidavit of nonoccupancy.—Commissioner of general land office held not entitled to require the making of an affidavit of nonoccupancy of certain public lands as a condition precedent to selling the same. Haney v. Atwood, 42 C. A. 270, 93 S. W. 1093.

Art. 5445. Certificates of occupancy to be recorded, etc.—If a proof of occupancy has heretofore been, or should hereafter be, filed in the general land office, in accordance with the statute under which the purchase was made, or may be made, and it should be approved by the commissioner by the issuance of the certificate of its sufficiency, the said certificate may be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county or counties in which the land is situated, and shall thereafter be a muniment of title of the home tract and additional land purchased to such home tract. [Acts 1907, p. 490.]

See Conger v. Robison, 104 T. 141, 135 S. W. 110.

Certificate of occupancy.—See Art. 5444 and notes.

— Admissibility in evidence.—See notes under Arts. 3696, 3707.

Under Art. 3700, making a certified copy of any instrument affecting title to land admissible in evidence when a proper predicate is laid, and this article, a certified copy of such a certificate is admissible in evidence on a proper predicate being laid. Whitaker v. Browning (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1197.

Art. 5446. [4218m] Coupling occupancy under second purchase to cure defects of first.—In all cases where persons have purchased, or may hereafter purchase, state, school or asylum lands under any act of the legislature authorizing the sale thereof and requiring a residence of three years thereon, and said persons have so resided upon said land, or may hereafter reside thereon, for the period of three years as required by law, and their files have been, or may hereafter be, canceled and purchases annulled by the commissioner of the general land office on account of conflict with other surveys, said persons shall have the right to purchase other lands of the classes mentioned in this article without being required to reside thereon. Persons desiring to avail themselves of the benefits of this provision shall make satisfactory proof to the commissioner of the three years' residence under their first purchase. [Acts 1895, p. 163.]

Art. 5447. [4218n] Vendees of original purchasers protected.—In all cases where any of the lands mentioned in this chapter have been sold prior to July 30, 1895, under any law authorizing the sale thereof, and the original purchaser shall have sold, or may hereafter sell, any part of his purchase in quantities of forty acres or multiples thereof, and the conveyance to his vendee or vendees is filed in the general land office after having been duly recorded in the proper county, the commissioner shall credit his account with the value of the land sold, and shall open up new accounts with the original purchaser and such vendee or vendees, and the commissioner shall patent said land to the owners thereof in quantities of forty acres or multiples thereof; provided, that when any of such land is situated within three miles of a county seat it may be patented in twenty acre tracts. [Id.]

Transfers by original purchaser in general.—See Arts. 5435, 5436, and notes.

Art. 5448. [4218o] Cemetery, church and school house sites.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized to patent in quantities of not less than one nor more than five acres any of the vacant and unappropriated public domain of Texas, or any of the lands mentioned in this chapter, as sites for cemeteries, churches or school houses. When the land is desired as a location for a school house, the patent shall issue to the county judge of the proper county and his successors in office in trust for that purpose; and, when desired for a church house or a cemetery, it shall be issued to trustees designated by those requesting the patent. If the land has been previously sold by the state and not patented, the owner thereof shall execute a deed therefor to the county judge, or trustees, as the case may be, and cause the same to be recorded in the office of the county clerk of the proper county, and to be filed in the general land office, and shall be entitled to credit on his account with the state for the value therefor. The value of the land and patent fee shall be paid to the commissioner of the general land office before patent issues. Such land shall be taken from the margin of a tract or section, or of a subdivision thereof, as the case may be. [Id.]

Art. 5449. [4218p] Accounts, etc., with purchasers to be kept.—The commissioner of the general land office shall retain in his custody as records of his office all applications, affidavits, obligations and all other papers relating to sales of said lands, and shall cause to be kept accurate accounts with each purchaser. All purchase money due upon lands, as well as accrued interest, and all other moneys arising from the sales or leases of said lands shall be paid by the purchaser or lessee direct to the land commissioner, who shall cause an accurate account to be kept with each purchaser. [Id.]

Art. 5449a. Relief to certain persons compelled to defend suit because of erroneous award, etc.—That any person who has filed on any of the public school lands of this state, subsequent to January 1st, 1907, and prior to January 1st, 1913, and to whom an award was made, and afterwards canceled, or withdrawn before the expiration of the time required by law, to make settlement on said land; and to whom said land was again awarded by the commissioner of the general land office, after the cancellation by him of a prior erroneous award, to third parties; and who has been compelled to defend a lawsuit to obtain title to, or possession of said land because of such erroneous award, or awards of said land, made by the commissioner of the general land office, to an adverse party or parties; shall in making proof of occupancy of said land, be entitled to credit for the full time said land was in litigation, and from the date of the applications to purchase were filed as a result of said erroneous award or awards; and, be it further provided, that the party to whom the land should have been awarded, in the first instance, in estimating the cost of the improvements required by law to be put upon said land; shall be entitled to credit for the value of all improvements placed on said land subsequent to January 1st, 1907, and prior to January 1st, 1913. [Acts 1913, p. 66, sec. 1.]

Art. 5449b. Certain sales and patents validated.—All public school lands sold by the State of Texas, and patented prior to the first day of October, 1883, applied for and sold by virtue of the Act of 1879, approved July 18th [8th], 1879, relating to the sale of public free school lands in organized counties, and the Act approved April 6, 1881, relating to the sale of such lands in unorganized counties sold and patented prior to said October 1, 1883, wherein the original patentee has paid the state school fund for said land, and has sold and parted with the title thereto, prior to the first day of June, 1895, and wherein said lands are now owned and in the possession of subsequent purchasers for value the title to same in the present owners is hereby quieted, and the said sales and patents validated. [Acts 1913, p. 351, sec. 1.]

LEASES

Art. 5450. [4218y] Commissioner may withhold agricultural lands from lease, when.—The commissioner of the general land office may withhold from lease any agricultural lands necessary for the purpose of settlement; and no agricultural lands shall be leased, if, in the judgment of the commissioner, they may be in immediate demand for settlement, but such lands shall be held for settlement, and sold to actual settlers only, under the provisions of this chapter. [Amended 1897, p. 184.]

Former law—Isolated and detached lands.—See notes under Art. 5432.

Art. 5451. [4218r] Commissioner to advertise lands for lease, how.—All leases under the provisions of this chapter may be advertised by the commissioner in such manner as he may think best, and let to the highest responsible bidder in such quantities and under such regulations as he may think to the best interest of the state not inconsistent with the equities of the occupant. All bids and offers to lease may be rejected by him prior to signing the lease contract, for fraud or collusion, or other good and sufficient cause.

See Sayles v. Robiston, 103 T. 430, 129 S. W. 346.

Discretion of commissioner.—Under this article as amended by act of 1897, it was discretionary with the commissioner to advertise or not as he deemed best and this discretion the courts have no power to control. West v. Terrell, 96 T. 548, 74 S. W. 905.

Art. 5452. Leases, how and when made.—Any person desiring to lease any portion of the lands belonging to any of the funds mentioned in this chapter shall make application in writing to the commissioner of the general land office, specifying and describing the particular lands he desires to lease; and thereupon the commissioner, if the lands applied for are subject to lease, and not in immediate demand for actual settlement, shall notify the applicant in writing who offers the highest price, that his proposition to lease is accepted; and thereupon he shall execute to the lessee in the name and by the authority of the state of Texas a lease of said lands for such time as may be agreed upon, not to exceed five years; and, when satisfied that the lessee has paid to the state the rent for one year in advance, he shall deliver said lease to the clerk of the county court of the county in which the land is situated, or of the county to which said county is attached for judicial purposes; and it shall be the duty of the clerk to record in a well-bound book kept in his office, open to public inspection, a memorandum or abstract of said lease, showing the number of the survey or surveys leased, the name of the original grantee, the amount leased, the name of the lessee, the date of the lease and the number of years it has to run; and for entering said memorandum the clerk shall be entitled to a fee of twenty-five cents. Upon payment of said fee, the clerk shall deliver the lease to the lessee, and no other record of leases hereafter made shall be required, except said memorandum. When any of such leases are filed for record, the clerk shall make the memorandum or abstract above provided for. All lands which may be leased shall be subject to sale at any time, except where otherwise provided herein. This provision in regard to the sale of leased lands shall apply to leases heretofore made as well as to those hereafter to be made. Any section, or part of a section, which may be leased shall not be sold except to the lessee, nor shall the lessee be disturbed in his possession thereof during the term of his lease, when he has placed on such section, or part of a section, improvements to the value of two hundred dollars. [Acts 1901, p. 292, sec. 4.]

Authority to lease in general.—See, also, note under Art. 5455.

The commissioner of the general land office has authority to lease unsurveyed lands. Harrington v. Blankenship (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 585.

The land commissioner both before and after the amendment of 1897 was authorized to lease the school, asylum and other lands. Sullivan v. Hall, 22 C. A. 440, 55 S. W. 579.

Where lands are a part of the void surveys made by the Houston & Texas Central Railway Company within the Memphis & El Paso reservation, and being otherwise unappropriated, had become a part of the public free school fund the land commissioner has power to lease them. The above-mentioned reservations did not constitute an appropriation of the public lands situated therein. The lands were merely withdrawn from location and survey by others than those for whose benefit the reservations were created. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68 S. W. 704.

Conflicting applications.—Where one makes application and it is erroneously rejected by the land commissioner and he fails to take steps to compel acceptance of his application, and another makes application which is granted and the lease made, the former cannot by making application subsequently have the lease to second applicant canceled and thus recover the land, because by his action he acquired no such right to the land as entitled him to recover from the second applicant to whom the land was leased. Watts v. Cotton, 26 C. A. 73, 62 S. W. 931.

Construction and validity of lease.—A lease of public lands is not invalid because they are designated as school lands when not yet allotted to any fund. Harrington v. Blankenship (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 585.

Construction impliedly given by commissioner of the land office as to duration of lease of school lands sustained. McGee v. Corbin, 96 T. 35, 70 S. W. 79.

A lease of school lands held invalid. Fish Cattle Co. v. Terrell, 97 T. 490, 80 S. W. 73.

Validating by ratification.—Action of commissioner in recognizing an invalid lease of school lands, and of treasurer in accepting rent thereunder, held not a ratification by the state. Ketner v. Rogan, 95 T. 559, 68 S. W. 774.

Acts of land commissioner and state treasurer held to be a ratification of act of deputy district clerk in adding to a lease of public lands. McGill v. Sites (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 695.

Recording lease.—Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218s, provided that all leases theretofore made and not recorded should be filed for record as therein provided within three months after the taking effect of the act.

This article (Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218s) was evidently remedial in so far as it afforded relief to persons who held lease contracts formerly made and not recorded. By it the state not only waives the condition up to the time of the passage of the act but recognizes the leases as valid, and extends the time within which they might be recorded for three months after the time this act took effect. Irwin & Sanders v. Mayes, 33 C. A. 517, 73 S. W. 35.

Clerk's certificate.—A lease is invalid if there is no evidence that the application was accompanied with the clerk's certificate that no lease of said land is of record in his office. Without this certificate the land commissioner has no right to make the lease. Irwin & Sanders v. Mayes, 31 C. A. 517, 73 S. W. 35 (decision under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218s).

Payment of rent.—Where a lease of school lands is of the sections by name and for a sum in gross, it may be doubted whether a small deficiency of acreage in one of the sections would entitle the lessee to any abatement of the rent. People v. Terrell, 97 T. 74, 76 S. W. 432.

The commissioner of the general land office has no authority to receive less than a year's rent on the lease of school lands. Sherrod v. Terrell, 97 T. 165, 76 S. W. 916.

Constituent leases of school lands being in good standing, and consolidated lease of same lands reserving the same rentals being void, payments on consolidated lease should be applied to constituent leases, thereby keeping them in force. Scott v. Slaughter, 35 C. A. 524, 80 S. W. 643.

Year's rental, deposited with an application for the lease of school lands, held to be properly applied to an existing lease, which applicant held covering the same lands, so that a new lease was void. Thomson Bros. v. Lynn, 36 C. A. 79, 81 S. W. 330.

Extension or renewal of lease.—See Art. 5453, and notes.

Assignment of lease.—Transfer of lease of school lands void in part held to amount to a consideration for money paid therefor. Scott v. Slaughter, 35 C. A. 524, 80 S. W. 643.

Want of consent by commissioner of general land office to transfer of lease of school lands would not be presumed, in order to base a forfeiture thereon. Id.

Where the commissioner of the general land office did not claim a forfeiture of a lease of school lands on the ground of want of consent to a transfer thereof, the transferee could not set up such want of consent in order to defeat his contract. Id.

In an action on a note given for the conveyance of a leasehold estate in state lands, the fact that the commissioner of the land office did not consent to the conveyance was no defense. Wilkinson v. Sweet (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 702.

A transfer of a lease of public lands is authorized to be filed in the land office, without being acknowledged by the grantor or recorded in the county where the land is. McKee v. West, 55 C. A. 460, 118 S. W. 1135.

Leased land subject to sale.—See, also, Art. 5453.

The provision that all leased lands shall be subject to sale except as otherwise provided applies to the ordinary lease, and not to leases acquired under Art. 5455, and hence did not repeal the latter section. Sayles v. Robison, 103 T. 430, 129 S. W. 346.

Improvements exempting from sale.—The burden is on the applicant to purchase leased land to show that at the date of his application the lessee did not have improvements on the land of the value of $200. White v. Pyron, 23 C. A. 105, 57 S. W. 56.

Evidence held to support a verdict that improvements on public lands were not worth $200. Shelton v. Willis, 23 C. A. 547, 58 S. W. 176.

All public free school lands are subject to sale, including those that have been leased, but a lessee shall not be disturbed during term of his lease when he has made improvements of value of $200. The burden is on him claiming benefit of exception that there are improvements exceeding in value $200. Id.

If one wishes to bring himself within the second clause of the exceptions contained in this article (Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218s) the burden is on him to show that the improvements are of permanent character. Clark v. McKnight, 25 C. A. 60, 61 S. W. 350.

Where one makes application to purchase school land within a five-mile radius duly classified, appraised and placed on the market for sale, and makes the first payment, he is entitled to recover although the land is under lease if the purchaser in the lease has not acquired or put on the land improvements worth $200. Id.

The lessee had the right, when his lease was made subject to sale to actual settler before the expiration of the term by making improvements upon a section of value of $200, to take it out of the rule and make his lease absolute as to such section. Hazlewood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 67 S. W. 82, 83.

Making of valuable improvements on school lands by lessee, claiming under a void lease substituted for a valid one, before the expiration of the term, held not to prevent the purchase of the land by another on expiration of the valid lease. Ketner v. Rogan, 95 T. 559, 68 S. W. 774.

Does not validate unauthorized leases.—The provisions concerning leases theretofore made refer to valid leases and the purpose is to make clear what leased lands shall be subject and what ones not subject to sale. There is nothing whatever to indicate a purpose to validate unauthorized leases. Ketner v. Rogan, 95 T. 559, 68 S. W. 777.

Art. 5453. Regulations as to leases in absolute lease districts.—The following counties shall constitute the absolute lease district, to wit: El Paso, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Brewster, Reeves, Pecos, Loving, Winkler, Ward, Yoakum, Terry, Gaines, Andrews, Ector, Midland, Upton, Crane, Crockett, Sutton, Val Verde, Edwards, Kinney, Maverick, Zavala, Dimmit, La Salle, McMullen, Webb, Duval, Nueces, Kimble, Zapata, Starr, Hidalgo and Cameron. All tracts of land lying partly inside and partly outside of the absolute lease district shall be considered, for the purpose of sale and lease, as being wholly without said district. And lands situated in the absolute lease district which may be leased shall not be sold during the term of the lease, except as provided herein. X On the expiration of any lease in the absolute lease district, the lands shall remain subject to sale for a period of ninety days, and, if it has been previously classified and valued by the commissioner of the general land office, and notice given to the county clerk, it shall not be necessary to give the clerk any further notice in order to put the land on the market, but it shall be considered as already on the market and subject to sale. During said period of ninety days, the commissioner of the general land office shall suspend action upon any application to lease said land, and shall award it upon any legal application to purchase made during said time. X The party purchasing any of said lands, whether inside or outside of the absolute lease district, within the inclosure of another, shall not turn loose any stock within the inclosure until he shall have provided sufficient water for the stock so turned loose, and any violation of this provision shall be an offense, and, upon conviction, the party so offending shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code. If no application to purchase has been filed within ninety days after the expiration of the lease, then the former lessee shall have a preference right over any one else for thirty days thereafter to re-lease such lands, or any part thereof, but his lease shall run from the expiration of his old lease. In all cases where the lease is terminated under any of the provisions of this chapter before the expiration of the term of lease, the lessee shall have a pro rata credit upon his next year's rent or the money refunded to him by the treasurer, as he may elect. On the expiration of his lease or its termination under the provisions of law, or by a final judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction, the lessee shall have the right for the period of sixty days to remove any or all improvements he shall have placed upon the leased premises. No purchaser or other person than the lessee shall be permitted to turn loose within such lessee's inclosure more than one head of horses, mules or cattle or in lieu thereof, four head of sheep or goats, for every ten acres of land so purchased, owned or controlled by him and uninclosed. Each violation of the provisions of this chapter which restrict the number of stock which may be turned loose in such inclosure shall be an offense, and the offender, on conviction, shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code. The commissioner of the general land office is hereby prohibited from renewing any lease before its expiration, as shown on the face of the original lease contract; and no lease contract shall be canceled, except in cases where the land has been, or may be, sold as provided by law, or where the lessee fails to pay the annual rental due the state within sixty days from the date it becomes due. And when the lessee shall fail to pay his annual rental within sixty days after it becomes due, the commissioner of the general land office shall cancel said lease, and immediately notify the county clerk of the county in which the land, or a part thereof, is situated, of the cancellation and the date when canceled, and the clerk shall note the date of cancellation on his lease record. [Acts 1901, p. 292, sec. 5.]

Constitutionality of prior law.—Acts 1897, pp. 186, 187, providing that in a certain section of the state leased land shall not be subject to sale during the term of the lease, is not a local law and is not violative of the constitution. A law is not local that operates upon subject in which the people at large are interested. Reed v. Rogan, 94 T. 177, 59 S. W. 257.

Sale of leased lands in general.—See, also, note under "Preference rights of lessee," post; and see Art. 5421 and notes.

All lands which may be leased are made subject to sale unless they fall within some of the exceptions named in the statute and where the only exception is that part of the land lies south and west of the line designated in the statute, the exception is not available and the whole section can be sold. It cannot be said that half of the section is west and south of the line, when only a part of it is. Joyce v. Sisk, 26 C. A. 68, 62 S. W. 961 (decision under prior act).

A denial by the commissioner of the general land office of an application to purchase certain land in the absolute lease district held justified by the circumstances. Carothers v. Rogan, 96 T. 113, 70 S. W. 18.

Where a lessee assigns his lease, it is no bar to an application by the assignee to purchase the land. Mitchell v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 373, 74 S. W. 48; Walker v. Marchbanks, 32 C. A. 303, 74 S. W. 929.

The commissioner of the general land office had no authority to sell sections of school land in the absolute lease district which were under lease, except by the consent of the lessee. Smith v. McClain, 96 T. 568, 74 S. W. 754.

Under this act lands situated in the territory defined as the absolute lease district and under lease were not subject to sale without regard to the lease. West v. Terrell, 96 T. 548, 74 S. W. 904.

Proof of issuance of prior lease held not to overcome presumption that land commissioner did his duty in awarding land covered by lease to a purchaser, no proof being offered that the lease was still in force. Davis v. Tillar, 32 C. A. 383, 74 S. W. 921.

After the 30 days have expired the land is again on the market. Valentine v. Sweatt, 34 C. A. 135, 78 S. W. 387.

The land could be classified and appraised while the lease was in existence and the moment the lease expired by time or cancellation the land was at once on the market. Id.

A lease of school lands for five years from November 15, 1897, did not expire until midnight of November 15, 1902, rendering an application to purchase the same premature. Jones v. Lohman, 36 C. A. 418, 81 S. W. 1002.

A third person held to possess no absolute right to purchase school lands formerly leased to another. Patterson v. Knapp, 100 T. 587, 102 S. W. 97.

Preference rights of lessee.—See, also, Arts. 5421, 5452, and 5454; and see "Sale of leased land in general," ante.

Where a section had improvements of the value of $200 upon it, the lessee was not required to wait 60 days before leasing it again, as was the case of a section without improvements of that value but could apply at once for a lease of such section. Hazlewood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 67 S. W. 83 (decision under a provision of Acts 1901, p. 292, § 5, permitting the re-leasing of lands, without their becoming subject to sale, provided they have been improved to the extent of $200, which provision was not carried into Rev. Civ. St. 1911, Art. 5453).

The act of 1897 (chapter 129, p. 184, Acts of 1897), prohibited the sale of leased land in the absolute lease district to any one except the lessee or his assignee. If the transferee of the rights of the lessee was ineligible to purchase, the land commissioner could not sell to any one else. Treary v. Lowrie, 40 C. A. 321, 89 S. W. 982, 983.

Waiver of rights.—Where a lessee of public school lands within the absolute lease district filed with the commissioner of the general land office consent that the same might be sold to a certain person, the commissioner could not sell during the lease to any other than the one designated. Smith v. McClain, 96 T. 568, 74 S. W. 754.

Rights of assignee of lessee.—See, also, note under "Preference rights of lessee," ante; and see Arts. 5421, 5452, and notes.

The intention of the legislature was to confer the 60-day prior right to purchase upon the lessees only, and not upon those to whom the lease might be assigned. Although an assignment of the lease is not expressly prohibited, such assignment was in contemplation of the legislature when it passed the act, and the privilege was intended to be conferred upon the original lessees only. Hazlewood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 67 S. W. 82.

Since the exception is made by reason of the improvements the privilege (to release) is intended to be granted to him only by whom the improvements are made (and not to an assignee of the lease). It is, therefore, the duty of the land commissioner not only to suspend action for sixty days upon an application (of assignee) of lessee to lease, but also to award the land to a purchaser upon his application to purchase the land, where the application to purchase and the application to re-lease are filed contemporaneously. But even if the applicant to lease was entitled to the benefit of the exception (by reason of the improvements) and his application to lease was contemporaneous with the application to purchase and both are made as soon as they can be after the expiration of the original lease the commissioner should award the land to the applicant to purchase. Any other construction would place it in the power of a lessee having improvements of a value of $200, or over, on a section of school land in the absolute lease district by making application to re-lease before or immediately upon the expiration of the former lease, to prevent its sale forever, notwithstanding the undoubted purpose of the framers of our constitution and laws to give the actual settler not only the right to purchase but also the preference over an applicant to lease. This act (of 1901) only authorizes the commissioner to accept a lease where the land is "not in immediate demand for actual settlement," thus differing, at least in the language employed, from previous acts which authorized him to lease "if satisfied" that the lands applied for were not in immediate demand for actual settlement. Taylor v. Rose, 30 C. A. 471, 70 S. W. 1023.

Renewal or extension before expiration of term.—Lease of school land, invalid because substituted for another lease before the expiration of the term, held not to have become valid as a new contract, though recognized by the commissioner after he had power to lease the land. Ketner v. Rogan, 95 T. 559, 68 S. W. 774.

A lease cannot be extended by a second lease. But a second lease is valid if made to take effect at the expiration of the first lease and the first annual rental is paid. McDowell v. Terrell, 99 T. 107, 87 S. W. 668.

Removal of Improvements.—See, also, Art. 5457.

Defendant took a lease from the land commissioner of public school lands, and, in reliance thereon, placed movable improvements thereon. Afterwards, and during the term of the lease, plaintiff bought the land of the state, and in trespass to try title recovered judgment, which was affirmed by the court of civil appeals; the lease being held void. Writ of error was denied by the supreme court, which afterwards overruled a motion for rehearing. Held that though there be no law permitting a rehearing in the supreme court when an application for writ of error is denied by it, and the judgment became final when such application was denied, which was more than 60 days prior to issuance of mandate by the court of civil appeals which was delayed because of the pendency of such motion for rehearing, and defendant did not within such 60 days demand of plaintiff the right to remove such improvements, he may recover their value, defendant having denied such subsequent demand by him; this article not prohibiting the removal after such period, and claims for improvements in good faith being allowed on principles of equity, so that defendant, having brought himself within that rule, and shown a reasonable excuse for not sooner demanding right to remove, did not forfeit his claim. Buchanan v. Wilburn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1198.

Cancellation of lease.—See, also, Art. 5456 and notes.

Acts 1901, p. 296, c. 125, was supplemental to and amendatory of the previous laws, and repealed the existing statutes only in so far as they were in conflict therewith. The only change in reference to the canceling of the lease is that the new law clearly makes it the duty of the commissioner to cancel the lease and immediately give notice of the fact to the county clerk, of the county in which the land lies. Willoughby v. Terrell, 99 T. 488, 90 S. W. 1092.

The provision in this section clearly implies that upon the failure of the lessee to pay within 60 days, it was the duty of the commissioner by some official action to declare the lease forfeited, and that until this was done the land was not on the market for sale. Id.

— Clerk's record as evidence.—The record of the county clerk of the cancellation of a lease is admissible in evidence to show such cancellation. Valentine v. Sweatt, 34 C. A. 135, 78 S. W. 387.

Damages for violation of statute.—Where defendant acquired title to land previously inclosed in plaintiff's pasture, plaintiff was entitled to recover for grass and water consumed by defendant's cattle placed in the pasture in excess of the number defendant's land was capable of sustaining. Lyons v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 182.

Where defendant turned more cattle in plaintiff's pasture than defendant's land inclosed therein was capable of supporting, plaintiff was not precluded from recovering damages by the fact that there was other land in the pasture owned and used by third persons. Id.

Plaintiff, having inclosed certain land, held not required to fence off a portion thereof subsequently sold by the state to defendant, in order to protect himself against defendant's stock. Id.

The provision regarding the number of head of stock that may be pastured by a purchaser within a lessee's inclosure has effect only upon lands bought under its provisions. At time act was passed the defendant's two sections had been sold by the state. Id.

Art. 5454. Expired leases; regulations as to.—When a lease expires or is canceled for any cause, the commissioner shall not consider an application to lease the land prior to ninety days from such expiration or cancellation, and no lease on any land shall be made if it is in demand by purchasers. An original lessee, or the assignee of an entire leasehold, who was such owner at the date of the termination thereof, shall have a preference to another lease of the land at the expiration of the ninety days over another applicant to lease, provided he is willing to pay and will pay as much therefor as another, after due publicity; provided, no lease shall be made at less than three cents per acre. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 7.]

Preference to re-lease.—See Art. 5453 and notes.

Cancellation of lease.—See Arts. 5453, 5456, and notes.

Art. 5455. [4218t] Where lessees secure permanent water, rights of.—Any person desiring to lease any portion of the lands aforesaid on which no permanent water supply exists, shall notify the commissioner of the general land office in writing that he desires to lease lands, specifying and describing them, provided he can obtain the necessary supply of water by boring or otherwise, and that he will within ninety days lease said lands, provided such water supply can be obtained; he shall also make and file with the commissioner of the general land office his bond, with good and sufficient personal security, in a sum equal to one year's rental of the quantity of land applied for, payable to the state of Texas, conditioned that he will diligently and in good faith try to secure water on such land during such ninety days, and if secured will lease the designated lands for the term prescribed herein; and thereupon the commissioner shall for such ninety days withhold the lands thus designated from lease to any other person; within or at the expiration of said ninety days and annually thereafter such applicant to lease shall pay to the state of Texas, in advance, one year's rental of the land applied for by him; on satisfactory proof of which payment the commissioner shall execute and deliver to the lessee a lease of the said lands, signed by himself officially and attested by the seal of the land office, together with which he shall deliver up the bond of said lessee, marked, "Satisfied." If the said lessee shall fail to apply for his lease and make the payment aforesaid within said ninety days, and shall also within said ninety days fail to make proof to the satisfaction of the commissioner of the general land office within that time that he has in good faith and diligently used proper means and expended proper efforts to secure a water supply on such land and failed, then and in that case the commissioner shall mark said bond, "Forfeited," and shall deliver the same to the attorney general of the state, who shall at once cause the said bond to be sued upon and collected; and such collection shall become a part of the available school fund. The penalty stated in such bond is hereby declared to be liquidated damages, and judgment for that sum shall in all cases be recovered by the state. Proof satisfactory to the commissioner of the general land office that proper, suitable and diligent effort had been made by such applicant to secure water, and that sufficient water could not be secured, shall relieve the principal and sureties on said bond from all responsibility therein, and it shall be marked, "Satisfied," by said commissioner and delivered to the principal therein. No lease of less than four sections of unwatered pasture lands shall be made, unless such less number includes all unleased land in that vicinity belonging to the several funds mentioned in this chapter. Lessees or their vendees who shall have at their own expense secured water on their leaseholds in accordance with the provisions of this article shall, at the expiration of their lease contract, have the right to a renewal of their leases for another term of five years at the price then provided by law, by giving sixty days' written notice to the commissioner, as provided in the preceding article. [Acts 1895, p. 63.]

Not repealed.—The provision of Art. 5452 that all leased lands shall be subject to sale except as otherwise provided applies to the ordinary lease, and not to leases acquired under this article, and hence did not repeal this article. Sayles v. Robison, 103 T. 430, 129 S. W. 346.

There is no repugnancy between Acts 1895, c. 47, § 17 (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218r [Art. 5451 herein]), section 18 (Rev. St. 1895, Art. 4218s [see Art. 5452 herein]), and section 19 (Rev. St. 1895, Art. 4218t [Art. 5455 herein]); the first two making rules for lands generally, and the last section applying specially to lands having no permanent water supply, and such sections having been re-enacted without change, as part of the Revised Statutes, section 19 (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218t [Art. 5455 herein]) was not repealed by implication by the former sections of the statute. Id.

Power of commissioner.—The power of the land commissioner to lease the public lands and under given circumstances to cancel such leases and thereafter again to re-lease the same, seems to be expressly given. From such express powers it seems the power to consent to an assignment of the lease may be fairly implied especially in view of the legislative recognition of "vendees of lessees" in the latter part of this article, relating to certain leases of school lands there authorized, and the further apparent, if not real, recognition of such assignments by the supreme court in the case of Hazlewood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 67 S. W. 80. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68 S. W. 706.

Condition of renewal.—This article means that the lessees shall pay the price provided by law at the time of the renewal. Sayles v. Robison, 103 T. 430, 129 S. W. 346.

Art. 5456. [4218v] Lease, how forfeited; lien on improvements for rents.—If any lessee shall fail to pay the annual rent due, in advance, for any year, within sixty days after such rent shall become due, the commissioner shall cancel said lease by writing under his hand and seal of office, which writing shall be filed with the other papers relating to such lease, and thereupon such lease shall immediately terminate. During the continuance of all leases, and after forfeiture, the state shall have a lien upon all property owned by the lessee upon the leased premises to secure the payment of all rents due, which lien shall be superior to all other liens whatsoever; and it shall not be essential to the preservation or validity of such lien that it shall be reserved in the instrument of lease. [Acts 1901, p. 29, sec. 5.]

Nonpayment does not work forfeiture ipso facto.—A lessee has the right to make payment at any time before formal cancellation, failure to pay as required not working a forfeiture ipso facto. People v. Terrell, 97 T. 74, 76 S. W. 433.

Cancellation of lease in general.—See, also, Art. 5453 and note.

Where a certain lease is shown to have been canceled, and there is evidence that it should not have been, the said evidence will not affect the fact that it was canceled. Borchers v. Mead, 17 C. A. 32, 43 S. W. 300.

Upon production of lease of territory within the absolute lease district, prima facie title at least was shown in the lessee and the burden was on the one attacking the title to show that not only cause for forfeiture existed but that in fact the commissioner had declared the lease canceled in the manner prescribed by the statute, that in writing under his hand and seal of office, and the writing filed with the other papers relating to such lease. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68 S. W. 705.

A land commissioner held to have no power to cancel an existing lease of school lands and execute another lease to the holder of the lease so canceled. Blevins v. Terrell, 96 T. 411, 73 S. W. 515.

Where a valid lease of school lands was illegally canceled and an intervening lease executed, and after the expiration of the first lease the intervening lease was canceled and a third lease executed, the latter lease held valid. Id.

Rights of a lessee of public lands held terminable by an informal cancellation under the facts. West v. Terrell, 96 T. 548, 74 S. W. 903.

The fact that application for new lease of public lands was made by lessee before expiration of his old lease held not to affect power of commissioner to cancel and relet. Id.

Conceding that such formal declaration of cancellation was essential in order to terminate the rights of a lessee by the mere action of the commissioner, such rights might also be terminated by an informal cancellation, when the right to cancel existed and all parties concerned agreed to or acquiesced in it. Id.

This article requires a declaration canceling a lease to be in writing under the commissioner's hand and seal and to be filed with the other papers relating to the lease. Such paper is essential to cancellation of a lease. Bradford v. Brown, 37 C. A. 323, 84 S. W. 392.

A letter from the land commissioner to the state treasurer and the county clerk of the county in which the land lay, and the award of the land to an assignee of the lessees to note a cancellation of the lease on their records, do not show such a formal cancellation of the lease as this article requires before an applicant is entitled to purchase. Patterson v. Knapp (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 126.

A land commissioner had no power to cancel a lease before its termination where there had been no failure to pay the rentals due, and issue a new lease of the same land to the same lessee for a longer period. McGill v. Sites (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 695.

— Reinstatement after cancellation.—An attempted reinstatement by the commissioner of the general land office of a lease of public school lands canceled by him for nonpayment of rent held void. Wilson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 818.

Payment of arrears as condition to new lease.—Lands were leased in 1890 for 10 years under the law of 1887, but were forfeited by the commissioner in 1894 for the nonpayment of rent. In 1897 a second lease was made to the lessee in the first lease without his having paid the arrearages, and therefore it is urged that the second lease is invalid. This law (Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218v, providing that a new lease shall not be entered into until all arrears under the original lease are paid) relied on to show the invalidity was not passed until 1895, and does not apply to forfeitures that had already occurred when the act took effect. The language of the law is clearly prospective, and applies to future events only. The words (in this law) "such lease shall not be made to original lessees until all arrears are fully paid" mean the leases mentioned in the provision which immediately precedes; that is, leases authorized upon forfeitures thereafter to be incurred. The legislature had in mind only future forfeitures, and did not intend that the law should apply to those which had occurred before the act took effect. Angle v. Terrell, 97 T. 509, 80 S. W. 232.

This article only applies to the original lease, so that where, after forfeiture of a lease of school lands, for failure to pay rent, the lease was canceled, subsequent leases made to the original lessee and his assignee as tenants in common, were not void under this article. Rhae v. Terrell, 100 T. 626, 103 S. W. 481.

Art. 5457. [4218w] Lessees may remove improvements, when.—All improvements made by lessees on lands leased by them are hereby declared to be personal property, which may be removed by such lessees on the expiration of their lease contracts; and they shall have sixty days after such expiration in which to remove the same.

Removal of improvements.—See, also, Art. 5453 and note.

Improvements placed on school lands by a purchaser of such character so as to become fixtures will pass to the state on legal forfeiture of the contract of purchase, together with the land of which they constitute a part. Clark v. McKnight, 25 C. A. 60, 61 S. W. 350.

Improvements constituting fixtures placed in good faith on land by an intending settler under the state pre-emption laws cannot be removed by him where he fails to have the survey recorded in the general land office, and application to purchase the land is made by another. McCullers v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 502.

Recovery of value from subsequent purchaser.—One taking a void lease of public school land and in good faith making improvements held entitled to recover thereof of the subsequent purchaser from the state. Buchanan v. Wilburn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1198.

Art. 5458. One year to assert right to leased or sold land.—All persons claiming the right to purchase or lease any public free school lands, or any lands belonging to the state university, or either of the state asylums, which have been heretofore, or which may be hereafter, sold or leased to any other person under any provision of the law authorizing the sale or lease of any of said lands, shall bring his suit therefor within one year after the date of the award of such sale or lease, and not thereafter. [Acts 1905, p. 35.]

See Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

Constitutionality of prior law.—Act May 27, 1899, requiring suits against the purchaser of public school lands to be begun within six months after the act took effect, was not retroactive, and does not deprive any one of vested rights, and is constitutional. Dabbs v. Rothe, 25 C. A. 201, 60 S. W. 813.

Limitation of actions in general.—See, also, notes under Art. 5459.

Under this article and Art. 5459, one claiming no interest in the home section of an original settler, cannot attack the validity of his claim thereto merely to resist his right to purchase additional lands as an incident to his settlement on and occupancy of the home section. Murphy v. Terrell, 100 T. 397, 100 S. W. 131.

After more than a year has elapsed after a sale of school land has been reinstated without any suit being brought to vacate same, such sale cannot thereafter be vacated at instance of a subsequent applicant to purchase. Weyert v. Terrell, 100 T. 409, 100 S. W. 133.

This article was intended to bar after one year an action to set aside an award of school land by the commissioner because of insufficient application. Tillman v. Erp (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 547.

A lease of school land for 10 years from March 22, 1898, was kept in force by regular payments of rent until June, 1900, when it was superseded by another lease including the same and other land for 10 years from that date. Held, that mandamus to compel the commissioner to award the land to another, begun November 1, 1909, was barred by limitations under this act. King v. Robison, 103 T. 390, 128 S. W. 368.

This article applies to an award of lands made before passage of the act. Barnes v. Williams' Adm'r (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 978.

Under this article, where a purchaser's right to purchase school land is forfeited by the commissioner, his right to reinstatement, if any, is a claim of right to purchase, to which the statute applies; and, unless suit to enforce such right is instituted within a year after the award, it is barred. Nations v. Miller (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 261.

This article and Art. 5459 were intended to limit to one year the time in which an award or sale of land by the state might be attacked on the ground of irregularity by one claiming a right to purchase, and did not affect one whose right in the land sought to be recovered had vested prior to an award or sale by the state to the adverse claimant. Kirby v. Conn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 232.

— When statute does not apply.—The provision of this act requiring suit to be brought within 12 months from the date of the award when a purchaser desires to set aside a sale theretofore made, applies only to cases where the state recognizes the validity of the purchase being attacked, and does not apply to a case where there has been a forfeiture of the former purchase, and the land again put upon the market. Slaughter v. Terrell, 100 T. 600, 102 S. W. 402.

This law does not apply in a case where the validity of the purchase is not attacked, but the purchaser's right to the land is assailed on the ground that he has forfeited it by nonoccupancy, and that such forfeiture had the effect of placing the land upon the market without any action of the land commissioner. Campbell v. Enochs (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 880.

This article applies only in cases in which persons claim the right to purchase land which has been sold to others, and it does not apply to an action by a purchaser of school land reinstated after a forfeiture brought against one claiming under an erroneous award subsequent to the forfeiture when such award was canceled. Davis v. Yates (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 281.

Where a purchaser of school land was reinstated after a forfeiture of his right for nonpayment of interest before any third person acquired any rights, subsequent to the forfeiture and prior to the application for reinstatement, an action of trespass to try title brought against one claiming the land under an award to one not entitled to purchase within a year after the reinstatement was not barred by this article. Id.

This article does not apply to a void sale, but to a sale voidable for some irregularity, and no length of time can legalize a void award. Rainer v. Durrill (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 589.

— What constitutes bringing suit.—An action, within this article, is begun by filing of a motion for leave to file a petition for mandamus against the commissioner to compel him to award the land, accompanied by the petition therefor. King v. Robison, 103 T. 390, 128 S. W. 368.

Under this article the filing of an answer in trespass to try title within one year after the passage of the act, setting up such a right, is a sufficient compliance with the terms of the statute; the act simply requiring that the adverse claim be asserted within one year, and not that any particular form of action be brought. Barnes v. Patrick, 105 T. 146, 146 S. W. 154.

Pleading the statute.—This act being an act of limitations, it is necessary to plead it, in order to gain any right under it. Williams v. Keith (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1058.

The title of a purchaser of school land resulting from the operation of this article comes from the operation of the act, and need not be pleaded as constituting a new cause of action arising from transactions during the pendency of a suit involving the right to purchase, but is a matter of law to be noticed and applied by the court, and when a year has passed without an attack on an award, it stands as if valid from the beginning, and the production of it at the trial is evidence to sustain an action for the land. Erp v. Tillman, 103 T. 574, 131 S. W. 1057.

This article is not merely a statute of limitations for the benefit of a party to a suit to be pleaded or waived, but is a rule of substantive law and a rule of evidence which the courts must take notice of, and after the expiration of the time fixed in the act the state only may interfere with purchases of school land, and in a contest as to the right to purchase school land, an award constituting the title of a purchaser may be produced in evidence without specially pleading it, and when it is produced and shown to have stood for a year, the statute makes it conclusive evidence of a valid sale against every one but the state. Id.

Jurisdiction and parties.—This act does not give the supreme court exclusive original jurisdiction of a proceeding to adjudge the validity of an award to a purchaser, and trespass to try title or a proceeding to quiet title in the district court is a proper remedy. Barnes v. Williams' Adm'r (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 978.

The validity of an award of Texas school lands to a purchaser may be adjudicated without making the commissioner of the general land office a party. Id.

Art. 5459. Same.—If no suit has been instituted by any person claiming the right to purchase or lease any of said land within the period of time limited in the foregoing article, it shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of the law with reference to the sale or lease of such lands have been complied with; provided, that nothing in this and the preceding article shall be construed to affect the state of Texas in any action or proceeding that may be brought by it in respect to any of said lands. [Id.]

See Nations v. Miller (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 261.

Effect of act—As to state.—The statute of limitations of 1905 held not intended to deny to the state rights previously exercised as to public lands by its agents, so that the rights of one holding an invalid lease were cut off by the action of the commissioner in making a subsequent award of the land without bringing suit. Buchanan v. Barnsley, 51 C. A. 253, 112 S. W. 118.

Under this article the commissioner of the general land office could not be required to recognize an invalid sale, though the state did not repudiate it. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

— As to others.—Where, by reason of the lapse of a year from the award of public school lands to plaintiff, the sale became valid as between him and a third person, though invalid as against the state because a prior sale had not been canceled, no one else could acquire a valid title by purchase. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

5466. Sums recovered, how appropriated.	5474. Attorney's fees in such cases.
5467. Suits to recover lands illegally oc- cupied.

Article 5460. State land agents, appointment and salary.—The commissioner of the general land office, with the consent and approval of the governor, shall appoint two state land agents, who shall hold their office at the pleasure of the governor and commissioner, and receive a salary of thirteen hundred dollars each per annum. [Acts 1899, p. 176, sec. 1.]

Art. 5461. Duties of such agents.—Such agents shall have the power, and it is made their duty, to investigate and make inquiries into and concerning the location, valuation and condition of any and all lands controlled or owned by the state; also concerning the free use, occupancy or inclosure of any of said lands without authority of law, and all depredations upon timber of said lands. They shall also procure and furnish information as to location and quality of such lands to all persons desiring to purchase or lease same. [Id.]

Art. 5462. Agents to make monthly reports.—Such agents shall make monthly reports to the commissioner or governor touching any and all matters investigated by them, and make such other reports and perform such other duties relating to such lands as may be required of them by the commissioner and governor. [Id.]

In addition to the salary of such agents, they shall be allowed their actual traveling expenses, not to exceed the sum of one thousand and five hundred dollars per annum, for the expenses incurred by both of such agents, the same to be allowed only upon the duly sworn itemized statement that said sum was actually paid and necessary to the discharge of their duties. [Id.]

Art. 5464. Suits to be brought.—When said agents shall have reported that any public free school, asylum, or other public lands is or has been used or occupied or inclosed without authority of law, or that any timbered land belonging to any of said fund has been or is being destroyed, or depredated upon to the injury of such land, or the detriment of such fund, the governor shall investigate same, and in his discretion direct that suit be instituted for the recovery of such sums as may appear to be proper under this law and article 5467, or he may transmit such documents as he may deem proper to the proper officer or court for the purpose of criminal proceeding, as provided for in articles 850, 851, 852, 853, 859, 860 of the Penal Code and neither of said remedies shall be exclusive of the other, but the one shall be cumulative of the other, and the state may use either or both remedies; provided, that this shall not repeal any pre-existing criminal law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5465. Damages recoverable.—In civil suits, the amount of damage for use or occupancy, or unlawful inclosure, shall be not less than five cents per acre per annum. [Id.]

Art. 5466. Sums recovered, how appropriated.—All recoveries under the preceding articles shall be paid into the state treasury for the benefit of the available school fund, or to the fund to which such land, upon which such recovery is had, may belong. For the purpose of recovery herein, the state shall not be required to prove a continuous daily use or occupancy or herding or line riding by the defendant, or any one for him; provided, that, if any person who is so unlawfully using any of said lands will either buy or lease same, and pay the arrears due thereon, no action shall be begun or continued against him. This action shall apply to individuals or corporations. [Id.]

Art. 5467. [4218x] Suits to recover lands illegally occupied.—If the governor shall at any time be credibly informed that any portion of the public lands, or the lands belonging to any of the several funds named in this chapter, have been inclosed or that fences have been erected thereon without authority of law, he is authorized in his discretion to direct the attorney general to institute suit in the name of the state for the recovery of such lands and damages, and a fee of not less than ten dollars for the attorney when the sum recovered is less than one hundred dollars, and, when it is over that sum, the fee shall be ten per cent, to be paid by the defendant for the use and occupancy of the same, and the removal of such inclosures and fences; and such damages shall not be for a less sum than five cents per acre per annum during such occupancy. For the recovery by the state of all lands sold under the provisions of this or former laws which have been, or may hereafter be, forfeited to the state for any reason, and for the recovery of any money due the state on leases made under this or former laws, and for the recovery of damages for the unlawful use and occupancy of such lands, as provided in this article, or any former laws, jurisdiction is expressly conferred on the courts of Travis county having jurisdiction thereof under the constitution concurrently with courts of the districts in which the land is situated; and all such suits shall be instituted by the attorney general, or under his direction. In suits provided for in this article, the court shall issue a writ of sequestration directed to any sheriff of the state, commanding and requiring such officer to take such land and all property thereon belonging to the person or persons so unlawfully occupying said lands into his actual custody, and hold the same subject to further orders of the court; and the state shall not be required to give bond. Such writ of sequestration may be executed by any sheriff of the state into whose hands it may be delivered, and it shall be the duty of any sheriff into whose hands it may come to proceed and execute such writ. The defendant in such suit may replevy as in ordinary cases by giving bond as prescribed by law; and such cases shall have precedence on the docket and stand for trial before all other cases; and, in case judgment is recovered by the state in such suit, the court shall order such inclosure or fences to be removed, and shall tax the costs of the suit against the defendant; and all property found upon the land belonging to the defendant, not exempt from execution, shall be liable to the payment of such costs and damages in addition to the personal liability of the defendant. Appeals may be prosecuted from all judgments in such cases as in ordinary cases, except that the state shall not be required to give bond to perfect its appeal, and such cases on appeal shall have precedence over all other cases. If any person shall make a lease contract, and after the same is inclosed by fence shall for any cause decide not to continue payment of his lease, either in whole or in part, he shall give public notice by publication in any local paper having the largest circulation, for at least sixty days before the time in which his next annual payment shall become due, that he will not continue his lease after the year for which payment is made, and shall also state the number and block of the land which he will not lease inside his inclosure if he only intends to surrender a part of his lease, and shall post and shall keep posted for said sixty days notice on all gates of his pasture of such intention; then, and then only, he shall not be subject to the suit nor liable for the damages provided for in this article. [Acts 1895, p. 63, amended p. 75. Acts 1899, p. 176.]

Recovery of public lands in general.—Greer county having been decided by the United States supreme court not to be a part of Texas, the state of Texas held entitled to recover land granted to it for school purposes. Greer County v. State, 31 C. A. 223, 72 S. W. 104.

A judgment by an applicant for purchase of public lands against one holding it as tenant of the state held not to estop the state to deny that he has not acquired the right to purchase. Willoughby v. Terrell, 99 T. 488, 90 S. W. 1091.

In ejectment by the state to recover certain islands, a plea of defendant railroad company tendering an issue as to its legal right to build a railroad across an island held to raise a mere moot question, on which it was not entitled to judgment. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 318.

In action by the state to recover land, claim by a railroad company of right of way held not to present academic question, since judgment without reservation would be conclusive against the railway. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State, 104 T. 168, 135 S. W. 522.

In action by state to recover land, claim by defendant railroad company of right of way held not a suit against the state. Id.

Grant of land located only by reference to a jacal and ranch held not available as a defense to the state's suit for public free school land, where there was no proof of the location of such jacal and ranch. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

Evidence, in an action by the state for public free school land and rents, held not to show that the land in controversy was included in the land relinquished by act of the legislature passed February 10, 1852. Id.

— Authority of county attorney.—A county attorney has no authority to bring suit in behalf of state to compel forfeiture to state of school lands. Duncan v. State, 23 C. A. 447, 67 S. W. 904, 905.

— From innocent purchasers.—There is no such thing as an innocent purchaser as against the state, claiming under a patent issued without authority of and contrary to law. Kempner v. State, 31 C. A. 363, 72 S. W. 888.

State, in action to recover school lands in the hands of innocent purchaser, on the ground of fraud in procuring the certificate of purchase, held not entitled to prevail, on showing that commissioner of the land office committed error as to questions of fact. State v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 608.

Complaint by state to recover school lands in the hands of an innocent purchaser, on the ground of fraud in procuring certificate of occupancy, held insufficient. Id.

— Establishing title.—In an action for public free school land and rents, the state need not prove title, but can recover unless the defendants show title either from the government of Spain or the state of Texas. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

The recitals of a judgment in another action against the state that the land in controversy in the present suit was titled under the Spanish government was incompetent to show that it did not belong to the state of Texas, where such recitals were immaterial to the issues of the former case. Id.

— Who may take advantage of purchaser's fraud.—The title of a purchaser of public lands acquired by fraud on the state is not open to attack, except by the state, or by one having a prior equitable or legal right. Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101; Same v. Morgan, Id. 1109; Same v. Simms, Id.

The state alone may take advantage of fraud in transactions for the acquisition of its lands, where the rights of an individual do not antedate such fraud. Campbell v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1180.

Disposition of recovered lands.—See Art. 5385.

Action for rent or damages for detention.—In the state's action for rents and public free school land detained by defendants, evidence held to support a finding for $6,000 rents. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

While the measure of the damages which the state may recover for the unlawful detention of public free school land is the reasonable rental value of such lands for the period detained, evidence of the amount for which such lands were rented by defendants to a third person was admissible to show such value. Id.

Trespass on public lands.—The state may prevent the unauthorized inclosure of the school lands. State v. Goodnight, 70 T. 682, 11 S. W. 119. A county may recover possession against an intruder upon the county school land. Falls County v. Delaney, 73 T. 463, 11 S. W. 492.

Art. 5468. The attorney general to bring suits for lands.—When any of the lands described in this title, or any of the other public lands of the state held or owned by any fund, or any lands in which this state, or any such funds, have an interest, are held, occupied or claimed by any person or association or corporation adversely to the state, or to such fund, it shall be the duty of the attorney general to institute suit therefor, together for rent thereon, for any damages thereto; and for the purpose of any such suits for such lands, or affecting the title thereto, or right growing out of the same, the venue thereof is fixed in Travis county, Texas, concurrently with the county of defendant's residence, and the county where the land is situated; and the courts of said county shall have the same jurisdiction over the defendant and the subject matter of the same as if such defendant resided, and such property was situated, in said county. [Acts 1900, p. 29, sec. 8.]

— Suits authorized to be brought.—Acts 1901, 1st. Sp. Sess., c. 4, § 11, authorizes suits in two instances. In one for the recovery from the person or persons in possession thereof, or claiming title thereto, of all lands which are held or claimed under titles emanating from the Spanish or Mexican governments when no valid evidence of such grants are to be found in the records or among the files of the general landoffice; and in the other when it is necessary to determine the exact location and boundaries of such lands where the evidence on file in the general landoffice does not sufficiently identify the land claimed. When the allegations in the petition show that one object of the suit is to determine the true location and boundaries of the land emanating from the Spanish or Mexican government, the suit was authorized by last provision quoted above. And when the petition shows that the defendant is claiming more land than he is entitled to by virtue of said grant, and that no legal survey of said grant has been made and field notes thereof returned to the general landoffice, as required by law, and that such excess belongs to the school fund and its recovery is sought by the suit, it is sufficient to authorize suit for said excess under the first clause of the above quoted provision of law and also under this article, and the petition was not subject to a general demurrer. Sullivan v. State, 41 C. A. 89, 95 S. W. 646.

Under this article the state is not authorized to maintain trespass to try title to school land which has been sold to a vendee who has not made default in his contract and is in good standing, even though other persons make adverse claims against the land, for lands validly sold become segregated from the mass of lands held in the several funds and cannot be said to thereafter belong to such funds. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 1178.

Disposition of recovered lands.—See Art. 5385.

Art. 5469. Suit for mineral and timber depredations.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general of the state of Texas to bring suit against every person, firm, association of persons, or corporations, for the value of all minerals or other property of value taken from school, university, asylum and other public lands and for all timber which has been, or may hereafter be, cut, destroyed, sold, used or otherwise appropriated by them off of any such public lands. [Acts 1905, p. 38.]

Art. 5470. Venue.—The venue of said suits shall be in any county in Texas, or in the county where the injury occurs, or a part thereof, or in the county of the residence of the defendant, at the discretion of the attorney general. [Id.]

Art. 5471. To report offenders to attorney general.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of the general land office and the county attorneys of the state to report to the attorney general semi-annually, or oftener if they desire, the names and residence of every person, firm, association of persons or corporations, who have cut, used, destroyed, sold or otherwise appropriated any timber on the aforesaid lands or taken any minerals or other property of value therefrom, and such other data and evidence as shall come to their knowledge. [Id.]

Art. 5472. Attorney general may compromise.—The attorney general shall have power by and with the consent of the governor to compromise and settle with or without suit any of the aforesaid liabilities. [Id.]

Art. 5473. Money to be turned over to school fund.—Whatever sums are collected or received by the attorney general shall be turned over by him to the permanent funds to which they belong. [Id.]

Art. 5474. Attorneys' fees in such cases.—As compensation for said services, the attorney general and county attorneys shall receive the following compensation, respectively, to be paid by the defendant as part of the costs to be taxed against the defendant, to wit: The attorney general, ten per cent; the county attorney, five per cent of the amount recovered if recovered by suit, and if recovered by compromise, then said officers shall receive one-half of the above amounts, respectively; provided, that the county attorneys shall receive compensation only from cases reported by them to the attorney general. It shall be the duty of county attorneys to assist the attorney general in whatever way they may be requested in relation to such cases. [Id.]
