Article 4435. Election and qualification.—A commissioner of agriculture shall be elected by the people at the same time and in the same manner, who shall qualify and assume office, as all other state officers. He shall be an experienced and practical farmer, and shall have knowledge of agriculture, manufacture and general industry. [Acts 1907, p. 127, sec. 1.]

Art. 4436. Term of office.—The term of office of said commissioner shall be two years, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. Any vacancy occurring in said office shall be filled for the unexpired term by appointment of the governor. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4437. Oath and bond.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, he shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall execute a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the state of Texas, to be approved by the governor, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, which oath and bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4438. Location of office.—The office of the commissioner shall be located in the city of Austin. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4439. Chief clerk.—Said commissioner shall appoint one chief clerk, who shall possess a practical knowledge of agriculture, horticulture, manufacturing and kindred industries, and the proper methods of marketing the products of said industries. He may appoint such other clerks as the labors of his office may require, and all clerks shall be removable at the pleasure of the commissioner. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4440. Chief clerk shall act, when.—The chief clerk shall possess all the powers and perform all the duties attached by law to the office of commissioner during the necessary or unavoidable absence of the commissioner, or his inability to act for any cause. The commissioner shall be responsible for the acts of his chief clerk, who shall, before entering upon the duties of his position, take the oath required of the commissioner, and shall enter into bond in the sum of three thousand dollars with two or more sureties to be approved by the governor, and payable to the state of Texas, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4441. Same.—The chief clerk shall discharge such duties as may be prescribed by the commissioner; his annual salary shall not exceed fifteen hundred dollars per annum, payable monthly on certificate of the commissioner, and his expenses while traveling on the business of the office, under the direction of the commissioner, shall be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4442. Seal.—The commissioner shall have and may use a seal of office, the design of which shall consist of a star with five points, surrounded by a wreath of olive and live oak; said seal shall not be less than one and a half and not more than two inches in diameter, and on the margin thereof around the wreath shall be inserted the words, "Commissioner of Agriculture, State of Texas," or some intelligible abbreviation thereof. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4443. Duties.—The duties of the commissioner shall be as follows:

1. He shall cause to be executed all laws in relation to agriculture.
2. He shall encourage the proper development of agriculture, horticulture and kindred industries.
3. He shall encourage the organization of agricultural societies; and, for the benefit of the agricultural communities, he shall cause to be held farmers' institutes at such times and at such places throughout the state as will best promote the advancement of agricultural knowledge and the improvement of agricultural methods and practices. He shall publish and distribute such papers and addresses read or delivered at these institutes as he shall deem to be of value to the farming interest.
4. He shall investigate the subject of sub-soiling, the problems of drainage and of irrigation, their relation to agriculture, with a view to extending the area of the same, and the best modes of effecting each in the different portions of the state.
5. He shall investigate and report upon the question of broadening the market and of increasing the demand for cotton goods and all other agricultural and horticultural products, both in the United States and in foreign countries. Further, it shall be his duty to compile the statistics showing from abroad the number of bales of cotton consumed by the spinners, and demands for our cotton, the methods and course that sales to foreign countries now take, showing the purchasers, brokers, etc., through whose hands the cotton largely passes after leaving the producers, likewise showing in what countries an increased trade could be worked up, and thereby giving a better outlet for the trade and the best method to bring consumer and purchaser together, and all other information beneficial to farmers.
6. He shall cause to be investigated the diseases of grain, cotton, fruit, and other crops grown in this state, with a view to discovering remedies for such diseases. He shall also investigate the habits and propagation of the various insects that are injurious to the crops of this state, and the best methods for their destruction. The protection of fruit trees, shrubs and plants shall be under his direct supervision and control, and he shall have and exercise all the powers and perform all the duties in relation thereto, conferred or imposed by law.

7. He shall investigate the subject of grasses and report upon their value and the cultivation of the varieties best adapted to the different sections of the state. He shall also collect and publish information relating to forestry, tree planting, the best means of preserving and replenishing forests, and shall encourage the planting and culture of nut trees and recommend such legislation as may be necessary for the protection, restoration and preservation of the forests of this state.

8. He shall inquire into the subjects connected with stockraising, dairying and poultry; the obtaining and rearing of such domestic animals and fowls as are of most value, and the breeding and improvement of the same. He shall encourage the raising of fish and the culture of bees.

9. He shall investigate and report upon the growing of wool, and the utility and profit of sheep raising; he shall also inquire into the culture of silk, its preparation for market and its manufacture.

10. He shall correspond with the department of agriculture at Washington, and with the departments of agriculture of the several states and territories of the United States, and, at his option, with those of foreign countries, and with the representatives of the United States in foreign countries, with the view of gathering facts and information that will aid and advance the interests of agriculture in Texas. He may also, for the same purpose, correspond with such organizations, societies, associations and individuals in the state as he may choose, having for their object the promotion of agriculture in any of its branches.

11. He shall collect and publish statistics and such other information regarding such industries of this state and of other states as may be considered of benefit in developing the agricultural resources of this state. He shall cause a proper collection of agricultural statistics to be made annually; and, to this end, he shall furnish blank forms to the tax assessors of each county before the first of January of each year, including forms as to the acreage in cotton, grain and other leading products of the state, to be filled out by persons assessed for taxes, together with such instructions as will properly direct said assessor in filling them out. It is hereby made the duty of said tax assessor to return said blanks, with accurate answers, to the commissioner of agriculture on or before the first day of June following. It is further made the special duty of the said tax assessor to forward by registered mail to the commissioner of agriculture lists of the names and addresses of all ginner within their counties when asked to do so by the commissioner. It shall be the duty of the commissioner to furnish to every ginner blank forms for reports, which forms shall be filled out by said ginner as the commissioner may direct, and returned by them to the commissioner. In order to facilitate the collection and collation of accurate information concerning the various subjects treated of in this chapter, the heads of the several state departments, and of the state institutions, are hereby required to furnish accurately such information as may be at their command whenever called upon for same by said commissioner. In the prosecution of his work, the commissioner is hereby empowered to enter manufacturing establishments chartered or authorized to do business in this state, and said corporations shall furnish such information as said commissioner may request of them.

12. He shall make and publish such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4444. Shall be member of board of directors of A. & M. college.—The commissioner of agriculture shall be ex officio a member of the board of directors of the agricultural and mechanical college of the state, and shall be allowed all necessary expense in attending the meetings of said board. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4445. Shall make report.—The commissioner shall make and submit to the governor, on or before the first day of November of each year, a full and comprehensive report showing the work and expenditures of his office during the fiscal year preceding, which report shall be transmitted by the governor to the legislature. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4446. Report printed and distributed.—Under the direction of the commissioner, the public printer shall print annually not to exceed ten thousand copies of the annual report of said commissioner, said report to be distributed to the farmers through the farmers' institutes and other agricultural organizations or otherwise, at the discretion of the commissioner. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4447. Commissioner shall co-operate with A. & M. college.—No provision of this chapter shall be construed as to in any way conflict with the scope and character of the work of the agricultural and mechanical college or of the agricultural experiment stations, but the said commissioner shall co-operate with the said agricultural and mechanical college and said agricultural experiment stations in all lines looking toward the agricultural and horticultural interest of the state. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4448. Duties as to irrigation.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of agriculture to prepare and make public reports on the present system of irrigation now in operation in this state, the cost of maintenance and operation of same, the character and kind of irrigation plants which result in the greater saving to the users of water, the class and character of water contracts entered into by the various canal companies; he shall also inquire into the reasonableness and fairness of rates being charged for water by the various canal companies in this state, and, from time to time, shall make public the result of his inquiries; he shall collect and publish statistics and other information regarding the irrigation of rice and other crops as may be of benefit in developing and collaborating a more efficient system of laws safeguarding and defining the rights of users and sellers of water for irrigating purposes; and he shall make up and file an annual report on same with such recommendations as he may deem beneficial to the industry, which report shall be filed with the governor and transmitted to the legislature. [Act 1909, p. 353, sec. 1.]

Art. 4449. To employ engineers.—The commissioner of agriculture is hereby empowered and authorized to employ a competent engineer and expert, possessing a practical knowledge of the application of irrigation to the raising of rice and other crops, for the purpose of assisting him in performing the duties required of him in the preceding article. [Id. sec. 2.]

BUREAU OF COTTON STATISTICS

Art. 4450. Shall maintain bureau of cotton statistics.—The commissioner shall maintain in the department of agriculture a bureau of cotton statistics, as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1907, p. 313.]

Art. 4451. Public ginners, who are; to obtain certificate.—All custom ginners of seed cotton in this state are declared to be public ginners. Any person or persons, firm or corporation in this state, before engaging in the business of public ginners, shall obtain from the county clerk of the county in which gin is located a certificate after the following form:

Number

This is to certify that of county, Texas, has this day filed affidavit required by law of all public ginners in this state.

(Seal.)

.....,
County clerk of county, Texas.

[Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4452. Affidavit.—The form of affidavit to be made to, and filed with, the county clerk shall be as follows:

I, of county, Texas, do solemnly swear that I will, so long as I may operate a public gin, make and forward a true and correct report of the number of bales of cotton ginned by me to the commissioner of agriculture at Austin, as required by law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4453. Certificate furnished commissioner.—The county clerk shall number each certificate issued by him consecutively, beginning at number one, and shall immediately forward to the commissioner of agriculture the name and postoffice address to whom certificate was issued. The clerk shall issue certificates to all ginners and shall take the affidavits as herein required without cost to ginners. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4454. Commissioner to furnish blanks.—The commissioner of agriculture, upon receipt of information of the issuance of a ginner's certificate from any county clerk in this state, shall immediately forward all necessary blanks to the public ginner for making official cotton report, which shall consist of the following:

Envelopes addressed to the commissioner of agriculture, Austin, Texas; and there shall be printed upon the upper left hand corner the words, "Official Cotton Report of County," also blanks, to-wit:

Official Cotton Report.
Certificate No. 19...

Commissioner of Agriculture,
Austin, Texas.

Sir: This is to certify that I have ginned bales of cotton from the day of 19....., to the day of 19.....

(Signed) [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4455. Ginners to report to commissioner.—All public ginners shall make and forward reports to the commissioner of agriculture on the blanks furnished them, by the third of each month, stating the exact number of bales ginned by them the preceding calendar month. This report must be made by all ginners, unless they have ceased to operate, the notice of which must be forwarded to the commissioner of agriculture. These reports must be securely sealed by ginners. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4456. Reports opened and made public, when.—The commissioner of agriculture shall open, on the eighth of each month, and tabulate the official cotton reports of the various counties in the presence of three credible witnesses, who shall be appointed by the governor. The complete report, showing total number of bales of cotton ginned, shall be given out to the public, including the press, at eleven o'clock a. m., on the ninth of each month. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4457. Revealing contents of reports punishable.—If the commissioner of agriculture, his assistants, or any one else connected with the opening and tabulating of these official cotton reports, or any other person, shall give out any information as to the number of bales of cotton ginned before the time specified by this act, shall, upon conviction, be punished as provided by the Criminal Code. [Id. sec. 7.]

PROTECTION OF FRUIT TREES, SHRUBS AND PLANTS

Art. 4458. Shall supervise protection of trees, etc.—The protection of fruit trees, shrubs and plants shall be under the supervision and control of the commissioner of agriculture, and the same shall be regulated as provided in the ensuing articles. [Acts 1909, p. 316.]

Art. 4459. Proceedings where diseased trees, etc., are found.—No person in this state shall knowingly or wilfully keep any peach, almond, apricot, nectarine or other trees affected with the contagious disease known as yellows. Nor shall any person keep for sale any apple, peach, plum or other tree affected with nematode galls, crown galls, or root rot. Nor shall any person knowingly or wilfully keep any plum, cherry or other trees affected with the contagious disease or fungus known as black knot; nor any tree, shrubs or plant infested with or by the San Jose scale or other insect pest dangerously injurious to, or destructive of, trees, shrubs or other plants; nor any orange or lemon trees, citrus stocks, cape jasmines or other trees, plants or shrubs infested with "white fly," or other injurious insect pests or contagious diseases of citrus fruits; nor subtropical plants, shrubs, evergreens or ornamentals; nor any china, forest or other trees, shrubs or plants, infested with injurious insect pests or contagious diseases. Every such tree, shrub or plant shall be a public nuisance, and as such it shall be the duty of the commissioner of agriculture, or his representatives, to abate it; and no damage shall be awarded for entering upon the premises upon which there are trees, shrubs or plants infected with yellows, black knot, crown gall or other infectious or dangerous disease, or infested with San Jose scale or other dangerous insect pest, for the purpose of legally inspecting the same; nor shall any damages be awarded for the treatment by the commissioner of agriculture, or his duly authorized agents or representatives, of such trees, shrubs or plants, or for altogether destroying such trees if necessary to suppress such insect pest or disease, if done in accordance with the provisions of this article. But the owner of the trees, shrubs or plants shall be notified immediately upon its being determined that such trees, shrubs or plants should be destroyed, by a notice in writing signed by the commissioner, or the person or persons representing him; which said notice in writing shall be delivered in person to the owner of such trees, shrubs or plants, or left at the usual place of residence of such owner, or, if such owner be not a resident of the locality, to notify by leaving such notice with the person in charge of the premises, trees, shrubs or plants, or in whose possession they may be. Such notice shall contain a brief statement of the facts found to exist, whereby it is necessary to destroy such trees, shrubs or plants, and shall call attention to the law under which it is proposed to destroy them, and the owner shall, within ten days from the date upon which such notice shall have been received, remove and burn all such diseased or infected trees, shrubs or plants. If, however, in the judgment of said commissioner, or person representing him, any tree, shrub or plant infested with any disease, or infested with dangerously injurious insects, can be treated with sufficient remedies, he may direct such treatment to be carried out by the owner under the direction of the commissioner, agent, employé or representatives. In case of objections to the findings of the chief inspector, employés or representatives of the commissioner, an appeal may be made to the commissioner, whose decision shall be final. An appeal must be taken within five days from service of said notice, and shall act as a stay of proceedings until it is heard and decided. When the commissioner, or chief inspector, or employer or representative appointed by him, shall determine that any tree or trees, shrub or other plants must be treated or destroyed forthwith, he may employ all necessary assistance for that purpose; and such representative or representatives, agent or agents, employé or employés, may enter upon any or all premises necessary for the purpose of such treatment, removal or destruction. But such commissioner, or the person representing him, shall, before such treatment or destruction, first require the owner or person in charge of the trees, shrubs or plants, to treat or destroy same, as the case may be; and, upon the refusal or neglect upon the part of said owner or person in charge to so treat or destroy such trees, plants or shrubs, then such commissioner, chief inspector, or person or persons representing him, shall treat or destroy such trees, shrubs or plants; and all charges and expenses thereof shall be paid by such owner or person in charge of said trees, shrubs or plants, and shall constitute a legal claim against such owner or person in charge, which may be recovered in any court having jurisdiction, upon the suit of such commissioner, or chief inspector, or the county attorney of the county where the premises are situated, together with all costs, including an attorney fee of ten dollars, to be taxed as other costs. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4460. Nurseries to be examined and certificates issued.—The commissioner of agriculture shall cause an examination to be made at least once each year of each and every nursery or other place where trees, shrubs or plants, commonly known as nursery stock, are grown or exposed for sale, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the trees, shrubs or plants therein kept or propagated for sale are infected with contagious disease or diseases, or infested with insect pests. If, after such examination, it is found that the said trees, shrubs or other plants so examined are apparently free in all respects from any contagious or infectious disease or diseases, dangerously injurious insect pest or pests, the said commissioner shall issue to the owner or proprietor of the stock so examined a certificate setting forth the fact that the stock so examined was at the time of such examination apparently free from any and all such disease or diseases, insect pest or pests. No such certificate shall be negotiable or transferable, and shall be void if sold or transferred. Any such act or sale or transference shall be punishable as provided by this law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4461. Shipments of nursery stock to be accompanied by certificate.—All nursery stock consigned for shipment, or shipped by freight, express or other means of transportation, shall be accompanied by a copy of said certificate attached to each car, box, bale, bundle or package. When such box, bale, bundle or package, contains nursery stock to be delivered to more than one individual, partnership, or corporation, each portion of such nursery stock to be delivered to such individual, partnership or corporation, shall also bear a copy of the certificate of inspection issued as provided in the preceding article. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4462. Nursery stock shipped into state; certificate of inspection.—No individual, partnership or corporation outside the state shall be permitted to ship nursery stock into this state without first filing with the commissioner of agriculture a certified copy of his or their certificate of inspection issued by the proper authorities in the state in which the proposed shipment originates. This certificate must show that the stock to be shipped has been examined by the proper officer of inspection in that state or province, and that the stock is apparently free from all dangerous insect pests or contagious diseases; and, when fumigation is required by the commissioner of agriculture, that the stock has been properly fumigated. Immediately upon receipt of the filing with the commissioner of agriculture of this certificate, he shall, in addition, make further investigation as to the moral standing and integrity of the applicant as will satisfy him that the applicant is entitled to receive a certificate. A fee of five dollars shall be required from the applicant, upon receipt of which the commissioner of agriculture may issue a certificate permitting the applicant to ship into the state. Each box, bale or package of nursery stock from outside the state shall bear a tag on which is printed a copy of the certificate of this state, and also a copy of the certificate of the state in which it originates. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4463. Transportation companies not liable, when.—No transportation company or common carrier shall be liable for damages to the consignee or consignor for refusing to receive for transportation or deliver such trees, packages, bales, bundles or boxes when not accompanied by copies of the certificates provided for in the preceding article. The agent of such companies or common carriers shall report any such shipment to the commissioner of agriculture immediately. Shipments of nursery stock into this state, or originating within the state, without tags or proper certificates as provided for in article 4462 shall be dealt with as in article 4459. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4464. Commissioner to revoke certificate, when.—The commissioner shall have power to revoke any certificate which has been issued when he shall find that false representations have been made by the party or parties to whom certificates have been issued, or who have refused to comply with the law, instructions, rules and regulations given by the commissioner of agriculture as required by the provisions of this chapter and its enforcement. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4465. Provisions, how enforced.—The commissioner of agriculture shall enforce the provisions of the foregoing articles, and make and enforce such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with such articles, as may be deemed necessary for carrying the same into effect, including the provisions relating to the inspection of nurseries, orchards, forest trees, greenhouses, and all other products originating from the same, within the meaning of these articles. He shall also appoint one person who shall be designated as chief inspector, whose duty it shall be to inspect, or cause to be inspected, under the directions of the commissioner of agriculture all trees, plants and shrubs of every kind whatsoever, grown, produced or offered for sale by any nursery, dealer, individual or corporation in this state, and also to inspect, or cause to be inspected, all orchards provided for above, and may employ such other person or persons, expert or experts, as may be necessary from time to time for administering and carrying into operation and enforcing these provisions; provided, the chief inspector shall not, during the time of such service, be interested in or connected with any nursery business whatsoever. The said commissioner shall fix and collect reasonable fees for the inspection provided for, and not less than two dollars and fifty cents nor more than fifteen dollars shall be charged for each inspection. All fees collected shall be paid to the department of agriculture and credited to the fund provided for administering this law. Any persons or experts employed by the commissioner of agriculture for the purpose of administering the provisions, rules and regulations hereof shall be paid a salary. Such salary shall not exceed the sum of five dollars per diem and traveling expenses while actually engaged in performing their duties, the same to be paid out of any fund made available to the department of agriculture for the enforcement of this law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4466. Provisions, how enforced by prosecution.—To enforce the provisions hereof, and the rules and regulations of the commissioner of agriculture in reference thereto, suit shall be entered by the county attorney in any court having jurisdiction, and the sheriff or peace officer of any such court shall perform his usual duties in enforcing the provisions hereof. Any moneys appropriated for the department of agriculture for the administration of these provisions shall be available for use to the amount necessary for the enforcement hereof, as indicated herein; provided, that all fines collected from proceedings hereunder shall revert to the available school fund of the county in which the prosecution originates and is tried. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4467. Terms defined.—The term "nursery stock," within the meaning of these articles, shall include all fruit trees and vines, shade trees and forest trees, whether such shade or forest trees be especially grown for sale in a nursery or taken from the forests and offered for sale; all scions, seedlings, roses, evergreens, shrubbery or ornamentals, also such greenhouse plants, or propagation stock, all classes of berry plants, cut flowers taken from plants, bushes, shrubs or other trees growing in this state, which may be a medium for disseminating injurious insect pests and contagious diseases. The term "nursery" shall be construed to mean any grounds or premises on which nursery stock is grown, or exposed for sale. "Being in the nursery business" applies to any individual, partnership or corporation which may either sell or grow, or both grow and sell, nursery stock regardless of the variety or quantity of nursery stock sold or grown. The term "dealer" shall be construed to apply to any individual, partnership or corporation not growers of nursery stock, but who buy and sell nursery stock for the purpose of reselling and reshipping under their own name or title, independently of any control of those from whom they purchase. An "agent of a nursery or dealer" shall be construed to apply to any individual, partnership or corporation selling nursery stock, either as being entirely under the control of the nursery or dealer with whom the nursery stock offered for barter and traffic originates, or some co-operative basis for handling nursery stock with the grower or dealer, as specified in this article. Any such agent shall have proper credentials from the dealer he represents or co-operates with, and, failing in that, any such agent shall be classed as a dealer, and subject to such rules and regulations as may be adopted relative to them, and shall be amenable to the same penalties for violations of any provisions of these articles, or the rules and regulations of the commissioner. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4468. Rules and regulations by commissioner.—The commissioner of agriculture shall prepare suitable rules and regulations for the traffic of cape jasmine cut flower shipments, also for the shipment of such greenhouse and floral plants as may require control, in order that the purposes for which this law is established may be accomplished. He shall also provide such rules and regulations concerning city, private or public parks, avenues of shade trees, shrubbery and ornamentals along the streets of cities, for city residences, and city property generally, as will secure a protection and immunity from insect pests and contagious diseases intended to be provided for by this law. It shall be the duty of city administrations through their proper officers, the duty of owners of parks, of city residence or other city property, to obey these rules and regulations, and co-operate with the commissioner of agriculture, or his representatives, in enforcing such rules and regulations, or any provisions of this law. [Id. sec. 9.]

BOLL WEEVIL—REWARD FOR EXTERMINATION

Art. 4469. Reward.—The sum of fifty thousand dollars is appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated for the purpose of discovering a practical remedy for the destruction of the boll weevil, said money to be used as hereinafter set forth, to-wit: That said money be held in the state treasury subject to a warrant drawn thereon signed by the governor, president of agricultural and mechanical college and the commissioner of agriculture of Texas. That said persons shall constitute a board whose duty it shall be to offer, in the name of the state of Texas, the said named fifty thousand dollars to any person or persons who shall discover and furnish a practical remedy for the destruction of the cotton boll weevil in Texas. That said money shall not be drawn from the treasury until it has been thoroughly proven as hereinafter provided that the person or persons in whose favor the warrant is drawn have produced a practical remedy that will destroy the cotton boll weevil. Said board of three as aforesaid shall act jointly with a committee of five practical farmers to be appointed by the governor from five representative districts of the cotton producing belt of the state where the cotton boll weevil is prominent. [Acts 1903, p. 72, sec. 1.]

Art. 4470. Expenses and claim for reward.—The sum of two thousand five hundred dollars, or so much thereof as is necessary, be and the same is hereby appropriated to pay the expenses and per diem of the board appointed to pass on the remedy produced, said money to be used out of any money not otherwise appropriated and paid out under direction of the governor; provided, that each member shall be allowed five dollars per day for his services. The persons presenting their claims for said reward must subscribe to the following oath, to wit: "I,, have discovered a practical method by which the cotton boll weevil can be destroyed at a cost of not more than one dollar per acre per annum, and cause no bad effect to the cotton. My method is so economical that it can be used by all cotton planters." [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4471. Farmers to make affidavit.—Said five practical farmers, reputable citizens, shall subscribe to the following oath: "I,, swear (or affirm) that I have witnessed experiments and applications of Mr. in the destruction of the cotton boll weevil at I further swear (or affirm) that this method of destroying the weevil is so economical and practical that, if followed as directed by, will effectually destroy the weevil affecting cotton. That I have witnessed the test made for the destruction of the cotton boll weevil, that I have not received anything, or been offered anything, of value to secure my vote or influence in securing the reward for the party or parties claiming the same, and I do further swear (or affirm) that, to the best of my judgment, that the method offered by, which I have seen tested, is economical, practical and will destroy the cotton boll weevil, if followed as directed." [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4472. Discoverer to report to governor.—After the person or persons claiming said reward have complied with the above demands, he or they shall report to the governor that he or they have discovered a practical remedy for the destruction of the cotton boll weevil. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4473. Farmers appointed to experiment.—It shall then be the duty of the governor to appoint five practical farmers, of good character and reputation, as aforesaid, selecting one from each of five representative districts of the cotton producing belt of Texas, who shall assemble at a place designated by the governor, where experiments will be carried on by the party or parties claiming said reward, and, in case of refusal, resignation or disqualification of any member of the committee, the governor shall appoint another from the representative district so vacated to fill his place. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4474. Oath; preliminaries before payment of reward.—Those who have been selected by the governor to pass upon the practicability and expediency of the method by which he or they propose to kill or destroy the cotton boll weevil shall subscribe to the following oath: "I,, do solemnly swear that I am not related to the party or parties who are now claiming said reward, neither am I in any way interested in his patent or proposed means of destroying the cotton boll weevil." After a fair test or tests covering all points claimed by the inventor or discoverer of a practical remedy for the destruction of the cotton boll weevil have been made, or may be made from time to time covering two consecutive years, to satisfy fully all members of the committee appointed by the governor, commissioner of agriculture, and the president of the agricultural and mechanical college, that the remedy proposed by the party or parties having been given a fair test for two consecutive years under every requirement of the committee appointed by the governor, and having been by them declared to be so economical, practical and effective and that the cost of same does not exceed one dollar per acre per annum, will so report to the governor, in writing, giving in full the details of the experiment witnessed, and recommending that the governor, commissioner of agriculture and the president of the agricultural and mechanical college pay to the party or parties who have made the test the reward offered by the state of Texas. [Id. secs. 6, 7.]

Art. 4475. Same.—After the aforesaid board of practical farmers, acting jointly with the governor, commissioner of agriculture and president of the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas, have passed on the claims of all who make application for the aforesaid reward, and have decided upon the most meritorious claim presented as hereinbefore required, then shall a period of two successive years elapse in which the people may put into practical application the remedy recommended. And, if at the expiration of the two years it has, in the judgment of the aforesaid board, proven a success, the fifty thousand dollars shall be awarded to the person or persons discovering or inventing said remedy. Provided, that the insecticide, device or machine, if patented, or, if any insecticide, the formulæ of same shall be conveyed to the state of Texas before said party competing for the prize shall have the right to have same tested by the board free of charge; provided, further, this remedy shall not interfere with the discovery of any remedy by the state of Texas in the experimental station or by the agricultural and mechanical college; and provided, also, no man shall receive any benefit until he first proves that he was the first discoverer of such remedy; and the governor shall have the right at any time to suspend this appropriation provided a satisfactory remedy has in his judgment been discovered by the state experimental board. [Id. sec. 8.]

AGRICULTURAL AND EXPERIMENTAL STATIONS

Arts. 4476–4483.—Superseded. See Acts S. S. 1913, p. 98 [Arts. 140–14vv], amending Acts 1913, p. 339. The last-named act amended Acts 1909, p. 332, which was incorporated into Rev. Civ. St. 1911, as Arts. 4476–4483.

Art. 4484. Board of directors of A. & M. college to assist U. S. government in maintaining stations.—The board of directors of the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas are authorized and directed to assist the national government in maintaining an experiment station for the purpose of conducting experimental culture of tobacco and carrying on researches and experiments in tobacco growing under the direction of the national government's expert in the seventeenth representative district. Article 4485. [2908] Appointment by the governor.—The governor shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, a commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall be a citizen of the state and experienced in matters of insurance. [Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 219, sec. 2; Acts 1887, p. 99; Acts 1889, pp. 53-54; Const., art. 16, sec. 38.]

Art. 4486. [2909] His term of office.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the appointment and qualification of his successor. [Id. secs. 2, 5.]

Art. 4487. [2910] Vacancies in office, how filled.—The governor may fill any vacancy occurring in the office of commissioner of insurance and banking, and report the name of the person so appointed to the senate, if in session, or at the next succeeding session of the legislature. Should the senate fail to confirm the appointment made by the governor within ten days after being advised thereof, then the said office shall be deemed vacant and a new appointment shall be made until the office is filled. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4488. [2911] Oath and bond.—Within fifteen days after notice of his appointment, and before entering upon the duties of his office, he shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall give a bond to the state of Texas in the sum of five thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the governor, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, which oath and bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. p. 219, sec. 3.]

Art. 4489. [2912] May appoint clerks.—Said commissioner may appoint a competent chief clerk and such other clerks as the labors of his office may require; and all clerks shall be removable at the pleasure of the commissioner. [Sen. Jour., 1895, p. 478.]

Art. 4490. [2913] Chief clerk, duties of.—The chief clerk shall possess all the power and perform all the duties attached by law to the office of commissioner during the necessary or unavoidable absence of the commissioner, or his inability to act from any cause. The commissioner shall be responsible for the acts of his chief clerk, who shall, before entering upon the duties of his position, take the oath required of the commissioner; he may also be required by the commissioner to enter into bond with security, payable to said commissioner, for the faithful performance of the duties of his position. [Id.]

Art. 4491. Title and seal of office.—The said commissioner shall be styled, the commissioner of insurance and banking, and shall have a seal of office, the design of which shall consist of a star with five points, with letters composing the word "Texas," arranged between the respective points thereof; said seal to be not less than one and a half and not more than two inches in diameter, and on the margin, "Department of Insurance and Banking," or an intelligible abbreviation thereof. Such seal thus formed and impressed shall be the seal of office of the department of insurance and banking. [Acts of 1889, p. 53. Acts 1907, p. 127, sec. 16.]

Art. 4492. [2915] Ineligibility of certain persons.—No person who is a director, officer or agent of, or directly or indirectly interested in, any insurance company, except as insured, shall be a commissioner or clerk; and it shall be unlawful for such commissioner, or any person employed by him or in any way connected with his office, to purchase all or any part of any mine or mineral land, to be in any manner interested in such purchase, during the term of his office or employment. [Acts of 1887, p. 99. Acts 1888, p. 10.]

Art. 4493. [3050] Duties of commissioner.—In addition to the duties required of the commissioner of insurance and banking, he shall perform other duties as follows:

1. Shall execute the laws.—To see that all laws respecting insurance and insurance companies are faithfully executed.

2. File articles of incorporation and other papers.—To file and preserve in his office all acts or articles of incorporation of insurance companies and all other papers required by law to be deposited with him, and, upon application of any party interested therein, to furnish certified copies thereof upon payment of the fees prescribed by law. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 59, par. 2.]

3. Calculate net value of policies.—He shall, as soon as practicable in each year, calculate or cause to be calculated in his office, by an officer or employé of his department, the net value on the thirty-first day of December of the previous year of all the policies in force on that day in each life or health insurance company doing business in the state, upon the basis and in the manner prescribed by law. [Id. par. 3.]

4. Shall see that the company has net value of policies on hand.—Having determined the net value of all the policies in force, it shall be his duty to see that the company has in safe securities of the class and character required by the laws of this state the amount of said net value of all its policies, after all its debts and claims against it and at least one hundred thousand dollars of surplus to policy holders have been provided for. [Id. par. 4.]

5. May accept the valuation of commissioners of other states.—He may accept the valuation made by the insurance commissioner of the state under whose authority a life insurance company was organized, when such valuation has been properly made on sound and recognized principles, as a legal basis as above; provided, the company shall furnish to him a certificate of the insurance commissioner of such states, setting forth the value calculated on the data designated above of all the policies in force in the company on the previous thirty-first day of December, and stating that, after all other debts of the company and claims against it at that time, and one hundred thousand dollars surplus to policy holders, were provided for, the company had, in safe securities of the character required by the laws of this state, an amount equal to the net value of all its policies in force, and that said company is entitled to do business in its own state. [Id. par. 5.]

6. Shall see that company furnishes certificate.—Every life insurance company doing business in this state during the year for which the statement is made that fails promptly to furnish the certificate aforesaid shall be required to make full detailed lists of policies and securities to the insurance commissioner, and shall be liable for all charges and expenses consequent upon not having furnished said certificates. [Id. par. 6.]

7. Shall calculate the reserve on fire insurance.—For every company doing fire insurance business in this state, he shall calculate the reinsurance reserve for unexpired fire risks by taking fifty per cent of the premiums received on all unexpired risks that have less than one year to run, and a pro rata of all premiums received on risks that have more than one year to run; provided, that, when the reinsurance reserve, calculated as above, is less than forty per cent of all the premiums received during the year, the reinsurance reserve in this case shall be the whole of the premiums received on all of its unexpired risks. For every company transacting any kind of insurance business in this state, for which no basis is prescribed by law, he shall calculate the reinsurance reserve upon the same basis prescribed in this section [article] as to companies transacting fire insurance business. [Id. par. 7.]

8. Shall charge premiums.—In marine and inland insurance, he shall charge all the premiums received on unexpired risks as a reinsurance reserve. [Id. par. 8.]

9. Duties when company's capital is impaired.—Having charged against a company other than life, the reinsurance reserve, as prescribed by the laws of this state, and adding thereto all other debts and claims against the company, he shall, in case he find the capital stock of the company impaired to the extent of twenty per cent, give notice to the company to make good its whole capital stock within sixty days, and, if this is not done, he shall require the company to cease to do business within this state, and shall thereupon, in case the company is organized under authority of the state, immediately institute legal proceedings to determine what further shall be done in the case. [Id. par. 9.]

10. Shall publish results of investigation.—The commissioner shall publish the result of his examination of the affairs of any company whenever he deems it for the interest of the public. [Id. par. 10.]

11. Shall suspend or revoke certificate.—He shall suspend the entire business of any company of this state, and the business within this state of any other company, during its non-compliance with any provision of the laws relative to insurance, or when its business is being fraudulently conducted, by suspending or revoking the certificate granted by him; and he shall give notice thereof to the insurance commissioner or other similar officer of every state, and shall publish notice thereof; provided, that he shall give such company at least ten days notice in writing of his intention to suspend its right to do business or revoke the certificate of authority granted by him, stating specifically the reason why he intends to so suspend or revoke such certificate of authority. [Id. par. 11.]

12. Shall report to attorney general.—He shall report promptly and in detail to the attorney general any violation of law relative to insurance companies or the business of insurance. [Id. par. 12.]

13. Shall furnish blanks.—He shall furnish to the companies required to report to him the necessary blank forms for the statements required. [Id. par. 13.]

14. Shall keep records.—He shall preserve in a permanent form a full record of his proceedings and a concise statement of the condition of each company or agency visited or examined. [Id. par. 14.]

15. Give certified copies.—At the request of any person, and on the payment of the legal fee, he shall give certified copies of any record or papers in his office, when he deems it not prejudicial to public interest, and shall give such other certificates as are provided for by law. [Id. par. 15.]

16. Report annually to governor.—He shall report annually to the governor the names and compensations of his clerks, the receipts and expenses of his department for the year, his official acts, the condition of companies doing business in this state, and such other information as will exhibit the affairs of said department. [Id. par. 16.]

17. Send copies of reports to.—He shall send a copy of such annual report to the insurance commissioner or other similar officer of every state and to each company doing business in the state. [Id. par. 17.]

18. Report laws to commissioners of other states.—On request, he shall communicate to the insurance commissioner or other similar officer of any other state, in which the substantial provisions of the law of this state relative to insurance have been, or shall be, enacted, any facts which by law it is his duty to ascertain respecting the companies of this state doing business within such other state. [Id. par. 18.]

19. See that no company does business, when.—He shall see that no company is permitted to transact the business of life insurance in this state whose charter authorizes it to do a fire, marine, lightning, tornado or inland insurance business, and that no company authorized to do a life or health insurance business in this state be permitted to take fire, marine or inland risks. [Id. par. 19.]

20. Admit mutual companies, when.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall admit into this state mutual insurance companies organized under the laws of other states and who have two hundred thousand dollars assets in excess of liabilities engaged in cyclone, tornado, hail and storm insurance. [Id. par. 20.]

Art. 4494. May change form of annual statement.—The commissioner of insurance and banking may, from time to time, make such changes in the forms of the annual statements required of insurance companies of any kind, as shall seem to him best adapted to elicit a true exhibit of their condition and methods of transacting business; provided, that such terms and requirements shall elicit only such information as shall pertain to the business of the company. [Id. sec. 60.]

Art. 4495. Duty when parties refuse to appear and testify.—Whenever any person shall refuse to appear and testify or to give information authorized by this chapter to be demanded by the commissioner of insurance, such commissioner may file his application under oath with any district judge or district court within this state, where said witness is summoned to appear; and it shall be the duty of said judge to summon said witness, administer oaths as required by law and require answers to such questions; and such judge or court shall have power to punish for contempt as now provided by law. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 63.]

Art. 4496. Sheriffs, etc., shall execute service.—Sheriffs and other peace officers of this state shall execute process directed to them by the commissioner of insurance and make return thereof to him, as in the case of process issued from any of the courts. [Id. sec. 64.]

Art. 4497. Shall issue certificate of authority, when; revoke certificate, when.—Should the commissioner of insurance and banking be satisfied that any company applying for a certificate of authority has in all respects fully complied with the law, and that, if a stock company, its capital stock has been fully paid up, that it has the required amount of capital or surplus to policy holders, it shall be his duty to issue to such company a certificate of authority under the seal of his office, authorizing such company to transact insurance business, naming therein the particular kind of insurance, for the period of not less than three months nor extending beyond the last day of February next following the date of such certificate. And, if any such insurance company organized under the laws of any state or country, after having obtained a certificate of authority from the commissioner of insurance and banking, or other officer authorized to issue such permit to do business in this state, shall bring in any federal court any suit or action against any citizen of this state, or shall remove any suit or action heretofore or hereafter commenced in any court of this state, to which it is a party, to any federal court, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall forthwith revoke and recall the certificate of authority of such insurance company to do and transact business in this state; and no renewal of authority shall be granted to such insurance company to do business in this state for a period of three years after such revocation; and such insurance company shall thereafter be prohibited from transacting any business in this state until again duly authorized by law. [Id. sec. 40.]

Refusal of permit—Grounds.—Where the commissioner of insurance is empowered to revoke an existing permit issued to an insurance company because it violates the law, he may refuse to grant a permit for the same reason. Glens Falls Ins. Co. v. Hawkins, 103 T. 327, 126 S. W. 1114.

Art. 4498. Shall compute reserve liability of companies.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking, as soon as practicable in each year, to compute the reserve liability on the thirty-first day of December of the preceding year of every company organized under the laws of this state, or authorized to transact business in this state, which has outstanding policies of insurance on the lives of citizens of this state, in accordance with the following rules:

1. The net value on the first day of December of the preceding year of all outstanding policies of life insurance in the company issued prior to the first day of January, 1910, shall be computed according to the terms of said policies on the basis of the American experience table of mortality, and four and one-half per cent interest per annum.

2. The net value on the last day of December, of the preceding year, of all policies of life insurance issued after the thirty-first day of December, 1909, upon the basis of the actuary's or combined experience table of mortality, with four per cent interest per annum; provided, that the policies of any such life insurance company thereafter issued upon the reserve basis of an interest rate lower than four per cent shall be computed upon the basis of the American experience table of mortality with interest at such lower rate per annum; provided, that any company which, on January 1, 1909, was writing policies on the basis of four and a half per cent, may continue on that basis until January 1, 1912, and its policies shall be so valued.

3. In every case in which the actual premium charged for an insurance is less than the net premium for such insurance computed according to its respective tables of mortality and rate of interest aforesaid, the company shall also be charged with the value of annuity, the amount of which shall equal the difference between the premium charged and that required by the rules above stated, and the term of which in years shall equal the number of future annual payments due on the insurance at the date of the valuation. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4499. Shall calculate reinsurance reserve.—On the thirty-first day of December of each and every year, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall have calculated in his office the reinsurance reserve for all unexpired risks of all insurance companies organized under the laws of this state, or transacting business in this state, transacting any kind of insurance other than life, fire, marine, inland, lightning or tornado insurance, by taking fifty per cent of the gross premiums on all unexpired risks that have less than one year to run and a pro rata of all premiums received on risks that have more than one year to run. [Id. sec. 53.]

Art. 4500. Shall examine companies, have free access to books, etc.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall, at the end of each two years, or oftener if he deems necessary, in person or by one or more examiners, commissioned in writing, visit each company organized under the laws of this state, and examine its financial condition and its ability to meet its liabilities. He shall have free access to all the books and papers of the company or agents thereof relating to the business and affairs of such company, and shall have power to summon and examine under oath the officers, agents and employes of such company and any other person within the state relative to the affairs of such insurance company. He may revoke or modify any certificate of authority issued by him when any conditions or requirements prescribed by law for granting it no longer exist; provided, that he shall give such company at least ten days notice in writing of his intention to revoke or modify such certificate of authority issued by him, stating specifically the reasons why he intends to revoke or modify such certificate. The expense of every such examination shall be paid by the company so examined, but the commissioner shall not make any charge for services except for traveling or other actual expenses and shall furnish the company with an itemized statement of such expenses. [Id. sec. 41.]

Art. 4501. Powers and duties of commissioner in case of examination.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, for the purpose of examination authorized by law, has power either in person or by one or more examiners by him commissioned in writing:

1. To require free access to all books and papers within this state of any insurance companies, or the agents thereof, doing business within this state.

2. To summon and examine any person within this state, under oath, which he or any examiner may administer, relative to the affairs and conditions of any insurance company.

3. To visit at its principal office, wherever situated, any insurance company doing business in this state, for the purpose of investigating its affairs and conditions, and shall revoke the certificate of authority of any such company in this state refusing to permit such examination. The reasonable expenses of all such examinations shall be paid by the company examined.

4. He may revoke or modify any certificate of authority issued by him when any conditions prescribed by law for granting it no longer exist.

5. He shall also have power to institute suits and prosecutions, either by the attorney general or such other attorney as the attorney general may designate, for any violations of the law of this state relating to insurance; and no action shall be brought or maintained by any person other than the commissioner of insurance and banking for closing up the affairs or to enjoin, restrain or interfere with the prosecution of the business of any such insurance company organized under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 4502. [3054] Transfer of securities by commissioner not valid unless countersigned by treasurer.—No transfer by the commissioner of securities of any kind, in any way held by him in his official capacity, shall be valid unless countersigned by the treasurer of the state. [Acts 1879, p. 224, sec. 13.]

Art. 4503. [3055] Duty of treasurer in regard to such transfers.—It is the duty of the state treasurer:

1. To countersign any such transfer presented to him by the commissioner.
2. To keep a record of all transfers, stating the name of the transferee, unless transferred in blank, and a description of the security.
3. Upon countersigning, to advise by mail the company concerned, the particulars of the transaction.
4. In his annual report to the legislature, to state the transfers and the amount thereof, countersigned by him. [Id.]

Art. 4504. [3056] Free access to records, books, etc., given to commissioner and treasurer.—For the purpose of verifying the correctness of records, the commissioner of insurance shall be entitled to free access to the treasurer's records, required by the preceding article, and the treasurer shall be entitled to free access to the books and other documents of the insurance department relating to securities held by the commissioner. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4505. [3057] Instruments executed by commissioner, and copies of papers in his office made evidence.—Every instrument executed by the commissioner of insurance of this state, or of any other state, in which the substantial provisions of the laws of this state relating to insurance have been, or shall be, enacted, pursuant to authority conferred by law, and authenticated by his seal of office, shall be received as evidence; and copies of papers and records in his office certified by him, and so authenticated, shall be received as evidence with the same effect as the originals. [Id. p. 223, sec. 11.]

Papers deposited in commissioner's office.—An undertaking by defendant was attached to the bond of a foreign insurance company filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, which undertaking reinsured the surety on such bond, and provided that it was agreed by defendant that the reinsurance should inure to the benefit of the commissioner of insurance and banking, "and to any and every party who may be a beneficiary under said bond," and that an original action against defendant might be maintained "upon said bond and this contract just as if [defendant] had signed said original bond." Held that defendant by such undertaking made itself a party to the original bond filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking as if it had originally signed the bond, so that an authenticated copy of such bond was admissible in evidence in an action against defendant by a policy holder in the insurance company, under this article. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 816.

Art. 4506. [3058] Commissioner authorized to make inquiries of company, etc.—The commissioner of insurance is authorized to address any inquiries to any insurance company in relation to its business and condition, or any matter connected with its transactions which he may deem necessary for the public good or for a proper discharge of his duties; and it shall be the duty of the company so addressed to promptly answer such inquiries in writing. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 39, sec. 18.]

Art. 4507. [3059] Annual statement to be tabulated and submitted to legislature by commissioner.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner to cause the information contained in the annual statements of companies to be arranged in tabular form and prepare the same in a single document for printing, and submit the same to the legislature as a portion of his regular report to that body. [Id. p. 43, sec. 28.]

Art. 4508. [3060] Insurance company's certificate of authority to transact business to be revoked, when.—Should any insurance company fail or neglect to pay off and discharge any execution, issued upon a valid final judgment against said company, within thirty days after the notice of the issuance thereof, then in that event the certificate of authority of said company to transact business of insurance shall be revoked, canceled and annulled, and said company shall be prohibited from transacting business of insurance in this state until said execution be satisfied. [Acts 1879, ch. 144, p. 159.]

CHAPTER EIGHT

STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

Art.		Art.
4509.	Election of.	4516.	Governor shall lay such report before legislature.
4510.	General duties.	4517.	School officers to make reports to state superintendent.
4511.	Instructions binding.	4518.	Reports to be filed.
4512.	Shall note educational progress.	4519.	Shall pro rate available funds monthly.
4513.	Shall have school laws printed.	4520.	Shall disburse warrants drawn by comptroller.
4514.	Shall furnish plans for school buildings.
4515.	Shall make report.

Article 4509. Election of.—There shall be elected, at each general election for state and county officers, a state superintendent of public instruction, who shall hold his office for a term of two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified, and shall receive an annual salary of twenty-five hundred dollars, and may employ as many clerks as may be necessary to perform the duties of his office; provided, that no greater number shall be employed than the legislature has appropriated salaries for. The superintendent shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by law. Appeal shall always lie from the rulings of the state superintendent to the state board of education. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 24.]

Art. 4510. General duties.—The superintendent of public instruction shall be charged with the administration of the school laws and a general superintendency of the business relating to the public schools of the state. He shall hear and determine all appeals from the rulings of the decisions of subordinate school officers, and all such officers and teachers shall conform to his decisions, unless they are reversed by the state board of education. He shall prescribe suitable forms for reports required of subordinate school officers and teachers, and blanks for their guidance in transacting their official business and conducting public schools, and shall, from time to time, prepare and transmit to them such instructions as he may deem necessary for the faithful and efficient execution of the school laws, and by whatsoever is so communicated to them, shall they be bound to govern themselves in the discharge of their official duties. He shall examine and approve all accounts of whatsoever kind against the school fund that are to be paid by the state treasurer, and, upon such approval, the comptroller shall be authorized to draw his warrant. [Id. sec. 25.]

General supervision.—Where the state superintendent decides a teacher's contract valid in an action by her to compel recognition, the defense that other contracts were made which, if enforced, would create a deficiency, cannot be raised. Town of Pearsall v. Woolls (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 959.

The state superintendent has general supervision over county superintendents. Watkins v. Huff (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 924.

Appellate powers.—A county superintendent held to have lost his right to appeal from a decision of the state superintendent to the state board of education by failing to take his appeal with due diligence. Watkins v. Huff (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 922.

Appeal must first be made to superintendent of public instruction in school matters before resort is had to civil courts. McCullum v. Adams (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 527.

Under this article an appeal to, and a decision by, the superintendent is a condition precedent to a right of any party complaining of the decisions of a subordinate officer to bring the matter in controversy before the courts. Trustees of Chillicothe Independent School Dist. v. Dudley (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1007.

Art. 4511. Instructions binding.—The state superintendent shall advise and counsel with the school officers of the counties, cities and towns and school districts as to the best methods of conducting the public schools, and shall be empowered to issue instructions and regulations, binding for observance on all officers and teachers in all cases wherein the provisions of the school law may require interpretation in order to carry out the designs expressed therein, also in cases that may arise in which the law has made no provision, and where necessity requires some rule in order that there may be no hardships to individuals, and no delays or inconvenience in the management of school affairs. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4512. Shall note educational progress.—It shall be the duty of the state superintendent of public instruction to inform himself concerning the educational progress of the different parts of this state and of other states. In so far as he may be able, he shall visit different sections of this state and address teachers' institutes, associations, summer normals and other educational gatherings, to instruct teachers and arouse educational sentiment; and the legislature shall make adequate appropriation for necessary traveling expenses, or those of his representative, when in the service of the state. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 4513. Shall have school laws printed.—He shall cause to be printed for general distribution such number of copies of school laws as may at any time be necessary, to be determined by the state board of education. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4514. Shall furnish plans for school buildings.—It shall be the duty of the state superintendent of public instruction to prepare as many as three sets of plans for public school buildings, the said plans being designed to meet the needs of rural schools of various sizes, and, upon request of the trustees of any school district, shall furnish copies of such plans and specifications. [Id. sec. 81. Amended Act 1909, p. 21.]

Art. 4515. Shall make report.—The state superintendent shall, one month before the meeting of each regular session of the legislature and ten days prior to any special session thereof, at which, under the governor's proclamation convening the same, any legislation may be had respecting the public schools, make a full report to the board of education of the condition of the public schools throughout the state. Such report shall give all the information called for by the board of education, and contain such other matters as the state superintendent shall deem important. [Id. sec. 46. Acts 1905, p. 263.]

Art. 4516. Governor shall lay report before legislature.—The governor shall lay such report before the legislature, and two thousand copies of said report shall be printed in pamphlet form for the use of the legislature and for distribution among the various school officers and libraries within the state, and the superintendents of public schools of other states and territories of the United States and Canada, and the bureau of education at Washington city. [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 4517. School officers to make reports to state superintendent.—The state superintendent shall require of county judges, county, city and town superintendents, county and city treasurers and treasurers of school boards, and other school officers and teachers, such school reports relating to the school fund and other school affairs as he may deem proper for collecting information and advancing the interests of the public schools, and shall furnish the county, city and town superintendents, and other school officers and teachers, for the use of such officers and teachers, the necessary blanks and forms for making such reports and carrying out such instructions as may be required of them; and any county judge, or county, city or town superintendent, assessor, treasurer or teacher, who shall wilfully fail to make such report within twenty days after the same shall have been required by the state superintendent to be filed, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall on conviction be fined as provided in the Penal Code; and said fine shall be paid, when collected, to the available school fund. [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 4518. Reports to be filed.—The state superintendent shall file all reports, documents and papers transmitted to him and the state board of education by county or city school officers, and from all other sources, pertaining to public schools, and keep a complete index of the same. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4519. Shall pro rate available funds monthly.—On the first day of each month, the state superintendent of public instruction shall pro rate to the several counties, cities and towns and school districts constituting separate school organizations, according to the scholastic population of each, the available school money collected during the preceding month and then on hand as shown by the certificate issued that day to him by the comptroller, and shall thereupon certify to the comptroller the total sum pro rated to each; and such certificate shall be authority for the comptroller to draw his warrant in favor of the treasurer of each such county, city or town or school district for the amount stated in such certificate. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 432, sec. 5.]

Cited, Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Mapes (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 528.

Art. 4520. Shall disburse warrants drawn by comptroller.—He shall receive from the state treasurer all warrants drawn by the comptroller in favor of the treasurer of the available school fund of each county, city or town, and each school district having control of its public school, and shall transmit such warrants to the respective treasurers in favor of whom they are drawn. Article 4521. Texas state board of health; how constituted.—The Texas state board of health shall consist of seven members, who shall be legally qualified practicing physicians, who shall have had at least ten years experience in actual practice of medicine within the state of Texas, of good professional standing, who shall be graduates of reputable medical colleges, to be appointed biennially by the governor on or before the tenth day of March following his inauguration. One member of said board, who shall be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate, shall be designated by the governor as state health officer, and who shall be president and executive officer of the board. The members of said board shall hold their office for a term of two years, and until their successors shall be appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed for cause. [Acts 1909, p. 340, sec. 1.]

Art. 4522. Salaries and expenses of president and members.—The president of said board shall receive annually a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars. The other six members of said board shall receive no salary, but each of said members shall be allowed for each and every day he shall be in attendance upon the meetings of the board the sum of ten dollars, including the time spent in travel, and three cents per mile going and coming for actual expenses, to be paid on their vouchers when approved by the president of the board and the governor, by warrant drawn by the comptroller against the general appropriation provided by law for that purpose; provided, no member shall receive more than five hundred dollars annually. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4523. Time and place of meeting of board.—A majority of the members of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. The board shall meet at Austin quarterly on a day to be fixed by the board, or hear and determine all appeals from the rulings and decisions of subordinate as often and at such time and places as such meetings shall be deemed necessary for the board. Timely notice of such meetings shall be given to each member of the board by the president thereof. The board shall be convened on call of the president, or on demand of three members of said board made in writing to the president. The office of said board shall be in the capitol, at Austin; and the said board shall be furnished with all necessary equipment and supplies, including laboratory supplies, books, stationery, blanks, furniture, etc., as other offices of the state are furnished, including suitable rooms for its offices and laboratories, necessary for carrying on the work of the board, and to be provided in the capitol building, or other suitable buildings, to be designated by the governor. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4524. Officers and assistants appointed; salaries and duties.—The president of the board shall appoint, with the approval of the governor, the following officers and assistants:

1. An assistant state health officer, who shall be a legally qualified practitioner of medicine under the laws of the state of Texas, and who shall have had five years experience in the practice of medicine in this state, whose duty it shall be to assist the president of the board in a general supervision of the affairs of his office and in the enforcement of quarantine and sanitation throughout the state. Said assistant state health officer shall receive an annual salary of two thousand and four hundred dollars.

2. A registrar of vital statistics, whose duty it shall be to correct, record, compile and tabulate the vital and mortuary statistics of the state as provided by law, and shall also be secretary of the board, and perform such other duties as may be directed by the president of the board, and he shall receive an annual salary of one thousand and eight hundred dollars.

3. A chemist and bacteriologist, who shall be learned in chemistry, pathology, and bacteriology and he shall receive a salary of one thousand and eight hundred dollars per annum. He shall make examinations and analyses of such things and matters as may be submitted to him by the board, or the state health officer, and shall report results of such examinations in such manner and form as may be directed by the board.

4. One stenographer and bookkeeper combined, at a salary of one thousand and two hundred dollars per annum.

5. One inspector, at a salary of one thousand and eight hundred dollars per annum. It shall be the duty of such inspector to conduct such inspection as required by the board and the president of the board, and to assist in the enforcement of all sanitary and quarantine laws of the state, and to perform such other necessary services as may be prescribed by the president of the board. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4525. Members of board to qualify; commissions to issue.—Members of the board shall qualify by taking the constitutional oath of office before an officer authorized to administer oaths within this state. Upon presentation of oaths and their certificates of appointment signed by the governor, the secretary of state shall issue commissions to them under the seal of the state, which shall be evidence and be authority to act as such members of the board. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4526. Bond of the president.—The president of the board shall execute bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the governor and his successors in office, conditioned for faithful performance of his official duties, to be approved by the governor, and filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4527. President shall have charge of state quarantine.—The president of the board shall, besides his other duties, have charge of and superintend the administration of all matters pertaining to state quarantine. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4528. General powers and duties of the state board of health.—The state board of health shall have general supervision and control of all matters pertaining to the health of citizens of this state, as provided herein. It shall make a study of the causes and prevention of infection of contagious diseases affecting the lives of citizens within this state and except as otherwise provided in this Act shall have direction and control of all matters of quarantine regulations and enforcement and shall have full power and authority to prevent the entrance of such diseases from points without the state and shall have direction and control over all sanitary and quarantine measures for dealing with all diseases within the state and to suppress same and prevent their spread. [Acts 1913, p. 147, sec. 1, amending Acts 1909, p. 340, sec. 9, thus superseding Art. 4528, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4528a. Dissemination of information for prevention of communicable disease; bulletins; free lectures and exhibits; employment of assistants; expenses; encouragement of local societies.—The state health department shall disseminate information concerning the cause, nature, extent and prevention of communicable disease and shall arrange for free lectures and health exhibits, and shall cause to be printed and distributed free of cost to the people, bulletins, pamphlets, circulars, leaflets, cards, and other printed matter, printed in English, Spanish and German, containing useful information for the protection of the individual and the public health. The state health department shall send a public health exhibit in a railway car or cars over the lines of railroads in the state of Texas and shall cause the exhibit to be displayed in the cities and towns on railway lines. With the display of the exhibit there shall be given free lectures and talks to the people, illustrated, where possible, with stereopticon and moving pictures, and printed matter containing useful information pertaining to the protection of health and prevention of disease shall be distributed. The details of the work shall be planned by the state health department and the state health officer may employ assistants to carry on the work, for such periods of time as may be necessary and shall fix their salaries, provided that the salary of the director of the work shall not exceed $200.00 a month and the salaries of traveling representatives shall not exceed $125.00 a month and the salaries of other employees shall not exceed $100.00 a month. Necessary expenses of such employees shall be paid in the same manner that expenses of other employees of the state are paid. The state health officer may designate any employee as a health officer, and during their term of service, employees so designated shall have the power and authority of a health officer.

The state health department shall encourage the organization of county and city societies and committees for the prevention of disease and protection of the public health and may co-operate with any corporation organized under the laws of Texas for benevolent and charitable purposes, in the movement to disseminate information concerning the cause, nature, extent and prevention of communicable disease. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 191, sec. 1.]

Art. 4528b. Free transportation on railroads.—It shall be lawful for any railroad company to furnish free of charge a car or cars for the display of the public health exhibit and to furnish free transportation to the persons actually engaged in the work in connection with the display of the public health exhibit. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4528c. Expenditures by counties and cities.—It shall be lawful for the commissioners' court of any county or of the city council of any city or the city commissioners of any city or other governing body of any city or town to contribute to the local expense of the display of the public health exhibit. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4528d. State health officer may accept donations.—It shall be lawful for the state health officer to accept donations and contributions to the expense of the display of the public health exhibit. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4528e. Appropriation; expenditures subject to approval of governor.—There is hereby appropriated, to be disbursed at the discretion of the state health officer, for the purposes mentioned in section 1 of this Act, in the same manner as other expenses of his office, the sum of $2000.00 for the cost of preparation of the exhibit, $3000.00 for the expenses of the work until September 1st, 1913, and $10,000 for the expenses of the work from September 1st, 1913, to September 1st, 1914, and $10,000 for the expenses of the work from September 1st, 1914 to September 1st, 1915. Provided no obligation shall be incurred nor money expended under the provisions of this Act unless first approved by the governor. [Id. sec. 5.]

Arts. 4529–4533.—Superseded. Acts 1911, p. 173, amends section 10 of chapter 30 of the Acts of the 31st Legislature. Section 10 is embraced in Arts. 4529–4533, Rev. St. 1911. The Revised Statutes mistakenly ascribes Articles 4530, 4531, and 4532 to section 7 of the act referred to. The result is that Articles 4529–4533 are superseded. See Art. 4553a.

Art. 4535. Perform duties of state health officer.—It shall be the duty of said Texas state board of health to perform all functions and duties now imposed by existing laws upon the state health officer; and whenever state health officer is mentioned in the present laws, the Texas state board of health shall be deemed to succeed in purpose and effect, whenever such statutes are not in conflict with this chapter. [Acts 1909, p. 340, sec. 12.]

Art. 4536. Members of board may enter, examine and inspect, etc.—The members of the board of health and every person duly authorized by them, upon presentation of proper authority in writing, are hereby empowered, whenever they may deem it necessary in pursuance of their duties, to enter into, examine, investigate, inspect and view all ground, public buildings, factories, slaughter houses, packing houses, abattoirs, dairies, bakeries, manufactories, hotels, restaurants and all other public places and public buildings where they may deem it proper to enter for the discovery and suppression of disease and for the enforcement of the rules, regulations and ordinances of the sanitary code for Texas after it has been adopted, promulgated and published by the board for the enforcement of any and all health laws, sanitary laws or quarantine regulations of this state. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4537. Investigations by board; powers and duties of court.—The members of said board of health and its officers are severally authorized and empowered to administer oaths and to summon witnesses and compel their attendance in all matters proper for the said board to investigate, such as the determination of nuisances, investigation of public water supplies, investigation of any sanitary conditions within the state, investigation of the existence of infection, or the investigation of any and all matters requiring the exercise of the discretionary powers invested in said board and its officers and members, and in the general scope of its authority invested by this chapter. The several district judges and courts are hereby charged with the duty of aiding said board in its investigations and in compelling due observance of the provisions of this chapter; and, in the event any witness summoned by said board or any of the officers or members of the same shall prove disobedient or disrespectful to the lawful authority of such board, officer or member, such person shall be punished by the district court of the county in which such witness is summoned to appear as for contempt of said district court. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4538. Office of county physician abolished; office of county health officer substituted.—The office of county physician is abolished within the several organized counties of this state, and instead the office of county health officer is created; and such office of county health officer shall be filled by a competent physician legally qualified to practice under the laws of the state of Texas and of reputable professional standing. [Id. secs. 17–18.]

Art. 4539. Qualification, appointment and compensation of county health officer.—It is hereby made the duty of the commissioners' court by a majority vote in each organized county to appoint a proper person for the office of county health officer for his county, who shall hold office for two years and until his successor shall be appointed and qualify, unless sooner removed for cause. Said county health officer shall take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office, and shall file a copy of such oath of office and a copy of his appointment with the Texas state board of health; and, until such copies are so filed, said officer shall not be deemed legally qualified. Compensation of said county health officer shall be fixed by the commissioners' court; provided, that no compensation or salary shall be allowed, except for services actually rendered. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4540. Office of city health officer substituted for city physician.—The office of city physician for the several incorporated cities and towns within this state is abolished, and instead created the office of city health officer; and such office of city health officer shall be filled by a competent physician, legally qualified to practice medicine within this state, of reputable professional standing. [Id. secs. 20, 21.]

Art. 4541. City health officer.—The city council or the city commissioners, as the case may be, of each incorporated city and town within this state shall elect a qualified person for the office of city health officer by a majority of the votes of the city council or city commission, as the case may be, except in cities which may be operated under a charter providing for a different method of selecting city physicians, in which event the office of city health officer shall be filled as is now filled by the city physician, but in no instance shall the office of city health officer be abolished. The city health officer, after appointment, shall take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office, and shall file a copy of such oath and a copy of his appointment with the Texas state board of health, and shall not be deemed to be legally qualified until said copies shall have been so filed. [Id. sec. 22.]

Status of officer.—The health officers of a city are officers of the state, their functions are governmental and are conferred in the interest of the public at large. White v. City of San Antonio, 94 T. 313, 60 S. W. 427.

Art. 4542. City health officers to be appointed by board, when.—In case the authorities hereinbefore mentioned shall fail, neglect or refuse to fill the office of county or city health officer as in this chapter provided, then the Texas state board of health shall have the power to appoint such county or city health officer to hold office until the local authorities shall fill such office, first having given ten days notice in writing to such authority of the desire for such appointment. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4543. Duties of county health officer.—Each county health officer shall perform such duties as have heretofore been required of county physicians, with relation to caring for the prisoners in county jails and in caring for the inmates of county poor farms, hospitals, discharging duties of county quarantine and other such duties as may be lawfully required of the county physician by the commissioners' court and other officers of the county, and shall discharge any additional duties which it may be proper for county authorities under the present laws to require of county physicians; and, in addition thereto, he shall discharge such duties as shall be prescribed for him under the rules, regulations and requirements of the Texas state board of health, or the president thereof, and is empowered and authorized to establish, maintain and enforce quarantine within his county. He shall also be required to aid and assist the state board of health in all matters of local quarantine, inspection, disease prevention and suppression, vital and mortuary statistics and general sanitation within his county; and he shall at all times report to the state board of health, in such manner and form as it shall prescribe, the presence of all contagious, infectious and dangerous epidemic diseases within his jurisdiction; and he shall make such other and further reports in such manner and form and at such times as said Texas state board of health shall direct, touching such matters as may be proper for said state board of health to direct; and he shall aid said state board of health at all times in the enforcement of its proper rules, regulations, requirements and ordinances, and in the enforcement of all sanitary laws and quarantine regulations within his jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4544. County health officer under direction of board; proceedings against for failure in duty.—In all matters with which the state board of health may be clothed with authority, said county health officer shall at all times be under its direction; and any failure or refusal on the part of said county health officer to obey the authority and reasonable commands of said state board of health shall constitute malfeasance in office, and shall subject said county health officer to removal from office at the relation of the state board of health; and pending charges for removal said county health officer shall not receive any salary or compensation; which cause shall be tried in the district court of the county in which such county health officer resides. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4545. Duty of health officers as to indigent consumptives.—Hereafter, when any indigent person suffering from tuberculosis is sojourning in any other county than his residence makes application for financial relief to any county health officer or commissioners' court of any county in this state, or the mayor or health officer of any city in this state, before any relief is granted, he shall make an affidavit that he is indigent and unable to provide for himself. When such affidavit is made, it shall be the duty of the county health officer, mayor, city health officer or county judge to forthwith notify the state health officer of the case, giving the name of the patient and the place of his residence. If such patient is a bona fide citizen of any county within the state of Texas, it shall be the duty of the state health officer, and he shall have the power, to purchase a ticket for said patient and furnish him with sufficient additional means to purchase food en route to his former home, and return such patient thereto. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4546. County health officers under direction of board; proceedings against for failure of duty.—In the event any county health officer shall fail or refuse to properly discharge the duties of his office, as prescribed by this chapter, the state board of health shall file charges with the commissioners' court for the proper county, specifying wherein such officer has failed in the discharge of his duties; and at the same time the state board of health shall file a protest with the county clerk and the county treasurer against the payment of further fees, salary or allowance to said county health officer; and, pending such protest and charges, it shall not be lawful for such county health officer to be paid or to receive any subsequently earned salary, fees or allowances on account of his office, unless such charges are shown to be untrue and are not sustained. After five days notice in writing to said county health officer, the commissioners' court shall hear the charges, at which hearing the county judge shall preside, and the state board of health may be represented. Either party, the state board or the county health officer, may appeal from the decision of said court to the district court of the county; and, pending such appeal, no salary, fees or allowance shall be paid to said county health officer for any subsequent earned salary; and, in the event the charges shall be sustained, the county health officer shall be charged to pay all costs of court, and shall forfeit all salary, fees and allowances earned subsequent to the date of filing the charges and protests. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4547. No cost or appeal bond required of board.—No bond for costs, or bond on appeal, or writ of error shall be required of the state board of health or state officials in any actions brought or maintained under this chapter. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4548. Duties of city health officer enumerated.—Each city health officer shall perform such duties as may now or hereafter be required by the city councils and ordinances of city physicians, and such duties as may be required of him by general law and city ordinances with regard to the general health and sanitation of towns and cities, and perform such other duties as shall be legally required of him by the mayor, councils, commissioners or the ordinances of his city or town. He shall, in addition thereto, discharge and perform such duties as may be prescribed for him under the directions, rules, regulations and requirements of the state board of health and the president thereof. He shall be required to aid and assist the state board of health in all matters of quarantine, vital and mortuary statistics, inspection, disease prevention and suppression and sanitation within his jurisdiction. He shall at all times report to the state board of health, in such manner and form as shall be prescribed by said board of health, the presence of all contagious, infectious and dangerous epidemic diseases within his jurisdiction, and shall make such other and further reports in such manner and form and at such times as said state board of health shall direct, touching all such matters as may be proper for the state board of health to direct, and he shall aid said state board of health at all times in the enforcement of proper rules, regulations and requirements in the enforcement of all sanitary laws, quarantine regulations and vital statistics collection, and perform such other duties as said state board of health shall direct. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4549. City health officer may be removed, when and how.—In all matters in which the state board of health may be clothed with authority, said city health officer shall at all times be governed by the authority of said board of health, and failure or refusal on the part of said city health officer to properly perform the duties of his office as prescribed by this chapter shall constitute malfeasance in office, and shall subject said city health officer to removal from office at the relation of the state board of health, which cause shall be tried in the district court of the county in which such city health officer resides. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4550. Board to file charges against city health officer.—In the event of a failure or refusal of said city health officer to properly discharge his duties of his office, the state board of health shall file charges against said city health officer with the council or city commission of the proper town or city, which shall specify in what particulars said city health officer has failed in respect to the discharge of his duties, and shall at the same time file a protest with the city secretary and city treasurer against the payment to said city health officer of further fees, salary or allowance; and, pending such charges and protest, no further salary, fees or allowance shall be paid to said city health officer, unless such charges are shown to be untrue and not sustained. After five days notice in writing to said city health officer, the charges shall be heard before the mayor and council, or the mayor and commission, of the town or city in which said city health officer shall reside, at which hearing the state board of health may be represented, and either the city health officer or the state board of health shall have the right of appeal to the county court of the county in which the city or town is situated; and, if said charges be sustained, said city health officer shall be adjudged to pay all costs of court, and shall forfeit all salary, fees and allowances accrued subsequent to the date of filing of the charges and protest originally and which may be due him on account of his office. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4551. Compensation of city health officer.—The compensation of city health officer shall be fixed by the mayor and council, or the mayor and commissioners, of the respective towns and cities within this state. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 4552. Annual conference of county and city health officers.—There shall be an annual conference of county health officers and city health officers of this state at such time and place as the state board of health shall designate, at which conference the president or some member of the state board of health shall preside. The several counties, towns and cities may provide for and pay the necessary expense of its county health officer or city health officer for attendance upon said conference. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 4553. Legal proceedings in name of board; duty of attorney general in regard to.—In all matters wherein the board of health shall invoke the assistance of the courts, the action shall run in the name of the state of Texas; and the attorney general shall assign a special assistant to attend to all legal matters of the board; and, upon demand of the board, it shall be the duty of the attorney general to promptly furnish the necessary assistance to the board to attend to all its legal requirements. [Id. sec. 31.]

Article 4553a. Sanitary code.—The following rules are hereby enacted as the "Sanitary Code for Texas," adopted for the promotion and protection of the public health and for the general amelioration of the sanitary and hygienic condition within this state, for the suppression and prevention of infectious and contagious diseases, and for the proper enforcement of quarantine, isolation and control of such diseases, to wit:

QUARANTINE AND DISINFECTION

Rule 1. Physicians shall report contagious and pestilential diseases and deaths from same.—Every physician in the state of Texas shall report in writing or by an acknowledged telephone communication to the local health authority, immediately after his or her first professional visit, each patient he or she shall have or suspect of suffering with any contagious disease, and if such disease is of a pestilential nature, he shall notify the president of the state board of health at Austin by telegraph, or telephone at state expense, and he or she shall report to the said health authority every death from such disease immediately after it shall have occurred. The attending physician is authorized and it is made his duty to place the patient under restrictions of character described hereinbelow in the case of each and every respective disease.

Rule 2. Local health authority means city or county health officer or local board of health.—For the purpose of these regulations, the phrase "local health authority" shall be held to designate the city or county health officer, or local board of health, within their respective jurisdictions.

Rule 3. "Contagious diseases" shall include Asiatic cholera, etc., and be reported to the president of the state board of health.—The phrase "contagious disease" as used in these regulations shall be held to include the following diseases, whether contagious or infectious; and as such shall be reported to all local health authorities and by said authorities reported in turn to the president of the state board of health: Asiatic cholera, bubonic plague, typhus fever, yellow fever, leprosy, smallpox, scarlet fever (scarlatina), diphtheria (membranous croup), epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis, dengue, typhoid fever, epidemic dysentery, trachoma, tuberculosis and anthrax.

Rule 4. City and county health officers to keep record of contagious diseases.—City and county health authorities shall keep a careful and accurate record of all cases of contagious diseases as reported to them, with the date, name, age, sex, race, location and such other necessary data as may be prescribed by the state board of health. And they shall also make a monthly report of all contagious diseases, of which they may be cognizant, to the president of the state board of health, before the fifth of the following month, upon blank forms provided by the state board of health. The reports on tuberculosis are to be privately kept and are to be considered in the light of a confidential communication, not for the purpose of isolation, but with the object of education in sanitary precautions, and to supply literature of the state board of health.

Rule 5. Rules and regulations as to quarantine and disinfection to be observed by health authorities, etc.—The following rules of instruction for the regulation of quarantine, isolation and disinfection in the several contagious diseases, hereinbefore mentioned, are to be observed by all boards of health, health officers, physicians, school superintendents and trustees, and others. All health authorities of counties, cities, and towns in this state are hereby directed and authorized to establish local quarantine, hold in detention, maintain isolation and practice disinfection as hereinafter provided for, of all (such infected) persons, vehicles or premises which are infected or are suspected of being infected with any of the above named diseases whenever found.

(a) Absolute quarantine includes, first, absolute prohibition of entrance to or exit from the building or conveyance except by officers or attendants authorized by the health authorities, and the placing of guards if necessary to enforce this prohibition; second, the posting of a warning placard stating "contagious disease," in a conspicuous place or places on the outside of the building or conveyance; third, the prohibition of the passing out of any object or material from the quarantined house or conveyance; fourth, provision for conveying the necessities of life under careful restrictions to those in quarantine.

(b) Modified quarantine includes, first, prohibition of entrance and exit, and in absolute quarantine except against certain members of the family authorized by the health authorities to pass in and out under certain definite restrictions; second, the placing of a placard as before; third, isolation of patient and attendant; fourth, prohibition of the carrying out of any object or material unless the same shall have been thoroughly disinfected.

(c) Absolute isolation includes, first, the confinement of the patient and attendants to one apartment or suite of apartments, to which none but authorized officers or attendants shall have admission; second, screening of room and entire house if necessary with not less than 16-mesh wire gauze; third, the prohibition of passing out of the sick room of any object or material until the same has been thoroughly disinfected; fourth, protection of the air of the house by hanging a sheet, kept constantly moist with a disinfectant solution, over the doorway of the patient's room or rooms and reaching from the top of the floor; fifth, if in the opinion of the local health authority the patient can not be treated, with reasonable safety to the public, at home, the removal of the patient and exposures to a contagious disease hospital or pest house.

(d) Modified isolation includes the confinement of the patient and attendants to one room or suite of rooms, to which none but authorized officers or attendants shall have admission, but allowing the attendants to pass out of the room after disinfection of person and complete change of clothing; second, screening as above mentioned; third, the prohibition of passing any object or material out of the sick room until it has been disinfected; fourth, protection of the doorway as before.

(e) Special isolation includes, first, prohibition of patient from attending any place of public assemblage; second, the providing of separate eating utensils for the patient; third, prohibition of sleeping with others or using the same towels or napkins.

(f) By complete disinfection is meant disinfection during illness, under direction of attending physician, of patient's body, of all excretions or discharges of patient and of all articles of clothing and utensils used by patient, and after recovery, death or removal, the disinfection of walls, woodwork, furniture, bedding, etc.

(g) By partial disinfection is meant disinfection of discharges or excretions of patients and their clothing and the room or rooms occupied by the patient during illness.

Rule 6. Disinfection shall be done according to direction of state board of health.—All disinfection prescribed in these regulations shall be a part of the control of the disease, and shall be done according to the direction of the Texas state board of health in its circular on disinfection.

Rule 7. Health authority shall placard all houses where contagious diseases exist.—Upon notice that smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, or other quarantinable disease exists within his jurisdiction, it shall be the duty of the local health authority to have the house in which such disease prevails placarded by placing a yellow flag or card not less than eight inches wide and twelve inches long with the words "contagious disease" and the quarantine regulations printed thereon in a conspicuous place on said house.

Rule 8. Persons forbidden going to or leaving quarantined premises.—After the house is flagged, or placarded, all persons, except the attending physician or health officer, are forbidden from going in or leaving such premises, without the permission of the local health authority, and the carrying off, or causing to be carried off, of any material whereby such disease may be conveyed, is prohibited until after the disease has abated and the premises, dwelling and clothing have been disinfected and cleaned as the local health authority may direct.

Rule 9. Person affected or exposed to contagious diseases shall obey health authority.—It shall be the duty of all persons infected with any contagious disease, or who, from exposure to contagion from such disease, may be liable to endanger others who may come in contact with them to strictly observe such instructions as may be given them by any health authority of the state, in order to prevent the spread of such contagious disease, and it shall be lawful for such health authorities to command any person thus infected or exposed to infection to remain within designated premises for such length of time as such authority may deem necessary.

Rule 10. Persons having certain diseases shall not be allowed on thoroughfares.—All persons having any quarantinable disease are prohibited from riding on any public vehicle or conveyance, and from being upon public thoroughfares or in public assemblages.

Rule 11. Placard shall not be destroyed or removed.—No person, or persons, shall alter, deface, remove, destroy or tear down any card posted by a local health authority. The occupant or person having possession or control of a building upon which a quarantine notice has been placed shall within twenty-four (24) hours after the destruction or removal of such notice by other than the proper health authority, notify the local health authority of such destruction or removal.

Rule 12. Quarantinable pestilential diseases; absolutely quarantined.—In the management and control of the following pestilential diseases: cholera, plague, typhus fever and yellow fever, the house must be placarded, premises placed in absolute quarantine, patient in absolute isolation and a complete disinfection done upon death or recovery taking place.

Rule 13. Quarantinable dangerous contagious diseases; modified quarantine.—In the management and control of leprosy, smallpox, scarlet fever (scarlatina), diphtheria (membranous croup), and dengue, it is required that the house be placarded, premises placed in modified quarantine, patient in modified isolation, and complete disinfection done upon death or recovery.

Rule 14. Non-quarantinable contagious diseases.—The management and control of typhoid fever, cerebro-spinal meningitis (epidemic), epidemic dysentery, trachoma (acute catarrhal conjunctivitis), tuberculosis and anthrax require special isolation and partial disinfection.

Rule 15. Quarantinable for school purposes; barred from school twenty-one days.—Persons suffering from measles, whooping cough, mumps, German measles (rotheln) and chickenpox, shall be required to be barred from school for twenty-one days (at the discretion of the local health officer) from date of onset of the disease, with such additional time as may be deemed necessary, and may be readmitted on a certificated [certificate] by him attesting to their recovery and non-infectiousness.

Rule 16. Minor diseases to be excluded during illness.—Those actually suffering from tonsillitis, scabies (itch), impetigo contagiosa, favus, shall be excluded from school during such illness and be readmitted on the certificate of the attending physician attesting to their recovery and non-infectiousness.

Rule 17. Above rules not to abrogate other measures.—Provided, that the above requirements shall in no sense be construed as abrogating any additional precautionary measures enforced by local health authorities, but it is expected that additional restrictive measures will be taken, at the discretion of the local health authorities when the necessity arises, more especially in the more densely populated cities and towns, or when violations of quarantine occur.

Rule 18. Health authorities to investigate reported cases.—Whenever a local health authority is informed or has reason to suspect that there is a case of smallpox, scarlet fever, or other reportable disease within the territory over which he has jurisdiction, he shall immediately examine into the facts of the case and shall adopt the quarantine or employ the sanitary measures as herein provided.

Rule 19. Health authority shall see that quarantine and disinfection is carried out.—Within his jurisdiction, each and every local health authority shall see that the quarantining or disinfection of any house, building, car, vessel, or vehicle, or any part thereof and of any articles therein likely to retain infection, is carried out, and that all persons who have been in quarantine, are required to take a disinfecting bath before the same are released. And in the event of the disease having been smallpox, all persons exposed shall be isolated for eighteen days from the time of last exposure unless successfully vaccinated.

Rule 20. Premises occupied by persons with contagious diseases to be disinfected before reoccupied.—No person shall offer for hire or cause or permit any one to occupy apartments previously occupied by a person ill with smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, or tuberculosis, or any quarantinable disease, until such apartments shall have been disinfected under the supervision of the local health authority.

Rule 21. On failure to disinfect premises they shall be placarded.—Whenever these rules and regulations, or whenever the order or direction of the local health authority requiring the disinfection of articles, premises or apartments, shall not be complied with, or in case of any delay, said authority shall forthwith cause to be placed upon the door of the apartment or premises a placard as follows: "These apartments have been occupied by a patient suffering with a contagious disease and they may have become infected. They must not be again occupied until my orders directing the renovation and disinfection of same have been complied with. This notice must not be removed, under penalty of the law, except by an authorized health official."

Rule 22. Nurses and midwives shall report redness of eyelids or inflammation to health authority.—Whenever any nurse, midwife or other person not a legally qualified practitioner of medicine shall notice inflammation of the eyes or redness of the lids in a new-born child under his or her care, it shall be the duty of such person to report the same to the local health authority, or in his absence, any reputable physician, within twelve hours of the time the disease is first noticed.

Rule 23. Householders or heads of families to report contagious diseases.—Every hotel proprietor, keeper of a boarding house or inn, and householder or head of a family in a house wherein any case of reportable contagious disease (including tuberculosis) may occur, shall report the same to the local health authority within twelve hours of the time of his or her first knowledge of the nature of such disease, unless previous notice has been given by the physician in attendance; and in cases of quarantinable diseases until instructions are received from the said local health authority shall not permit any clothing or other article which may have been exposed to infection to be removed from the house; nor shall any occupant of said house change his residence elsewhere without the consent of the said local health authority.

Rule 24. Persons suffering from reportable diseases shall not work where food products are produced.—No person suffering with any reportable disease, or who resides in a house in which there exists a case of smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, or typhoid fever, shall work or be permitted in or about any dairy, or any establishment for the manufacture of food products, until the local health authority has given such a person a written certificate to the effect that no danger to the public will result from his or her employment or presence in such establishment.

Rule 25. Health authority shall send attending physician printed matter.—Immediately after being notified of any case of smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria [diphtheria], typhoid fever, or tuberculosis, the local health authority shall send to the attending physician, or with his approval directly to the patient the printed matter published by the state board of health relative to the prevention and control of such diseases.

Rule 26. Persons with trachoma or contagious catarrhal conjunctivitis to be excluded from schools.—Persons afflicted with trachoma, granulated lids, or contagious catarrhal conjunctivitis must be excluded from schools, public assemblages, and from close association with other individuals, unless they are under the constant care and strict supervision of a competent physician, and hold a certificate from said physician stating that active inflammation has subsided, said certificate to be countersigned by a local health authority.

Rule 27. Schools temporarily closed and disinfected.—A school house wherein a child suffering from smallpox, scarlet fever or diphtheria has been present, shall be deemed infected and must be temporarily closed and thoroughly disinfected and cleaned under the supervision of the local health authority before the reopening of the school.

Rule 28. School may be reopened after disinfection and vaccination.—In the event of the aforementioned disease being smallpox and in case the board of trustees having passed a regulation requiring a successful vaccination of all teachers and pupils, the school may be reopened immediately after the disinfection and cleaning, and all teachers and pupils who have been successfully vaccinated may return; otherwise the school shall be kept closed eighteen days or until the local health authority directs otherwise.

Rule 29. Health authority to notify superintendents of pupils from infected houses.—The local health authority shall notify the superintendent or principal of any school of the locations of quarantinable diseases, and if the superintendent or principal finds any attendants in such school who live in said houses, he shall deny them admission to the said schools, only admitting them again upon presenting a certificate from the attending physician, countersigned by the local health authority, that there is no longer danger from contagion.

Rule 30. Children with contagious diseases shall not attend school.—No superintendent, principal or teacher of any school, and no parent, master or guardian of any child or minor, having the power and authority to prevent, shall permit any child or minor, having any quarantinable disease, or any child residing in any house in which any such disease exists or has recently existed, to attend any public, private, parochial, church or Sunday school until the requirements of these rules shall have been complied with.

Rule 31. Health authorities to assume control of quarantine in their jurisdiction.—In all incorporated cities and towns the city health authorities shall assume control and management of contagious diseases and exposures and practice quarantine, isolation and disinfection as herein provided. In those portions of all counties in this state, outside of incorporated cities and towns, the county health officer shall assume management and control of contagious diseases and exposures and practice quarantine, isolation and disinfection as herein provided.

Rule 32. These rules not to prevent local rules of quarantine if no conflict.—Nothing contained in these regulations shall be construed to prevent any city, county or town from establishing any quarantine which they may think necessary for the preservation of the health of the same; provided, that the rules and regulations of such quarantine be not inconsistent with the provisions of these regulations and be consistent with and subordinate to said provisions, and the rules and regulations prescribed by the governor and state board of health. It shall be the duty of the local health authority to at once furnish the president of the state board of health with a true copy of any quarantine orders and regulations adopted by said local authorities.

Rule 33. Health authorities may pass through quarantine lines.—All health authorities shall have the privilege and shall be allowed to pass through all quarantine lines, whether instituted at the instance of state or local authorities, they first requesting permission and acquainting the officers or guards in charge with the fact of their being properly authorized health officers, and with the additional statement that they are fully acquainted with the nature of the disease that they are visiting, and further that they will take proper precautions to prevent carrying the infection themselves.

VITAL STATISTICS

Rule 34. Physicians, surgeons, midwives and parents shall report births.—All physicians, surgeons or accoucheurs (midwives) who may attend at the birth of a child, or, in the absence of such attendance, either parent of the child, shall report the fact, together with all statistical data relating thereto, within five days from time of the birth to the city or county registrar as hereinafter provided for.

Rule 35. Undertakers shall report deaths.—Every person acting as undertaker shall file with the proper registrar a certificate of death and all persons furnishing a coffin or box in which to bury the dead shall be deemed undertakers.

Rule 36. City and county "registrar."—For the purposes of these rules and regulations the phrase "county registrar" shall be held to designate the clerk of the county court, when a birth or death is returnable from a county, outside of incorporated cities or towns; and in all such incorporated cities and towns the term city registrar shall be held to designate the city health officer or other city official, acting as registrar for said city, and all returns of births and deaths accruing [occurring] outside of incorporated cities and towns shall be made to the county registrar of the county in which said births and deaths occur; all returns of births and deaths occurring within any incorporated city or town shall be made to the city registrar of the city or town in which said births and deaths occur, and all returns of deaths where the bodies are buried within any incorporated city or town shall be made to the city registrar.

Rule 37. In incorporated cities and towns, city health officer to act as city registrar, etc.—Each and every incorporated city or town in the state of Texas shall constitute a primary registration district. In such incorporated city or town, the city health officer shall be and shall be known as the city registrar. Each city registrar shall appoint a deputy whose duty it shall be to act in his stead in case of absence, illness or disability, and both city registrar and his deputy shall be subject to all rules and regulations herein mentioned. Provided, that in cities or towns where the city secretary or other city officials are, at the date of promulgation of the sanitary code for Texas, officiating as registrars of births and deaths under local ordinances which require a burial permit, based upon a duly accredited death certificate, before allowing the dead to be buried, such officers shall be continued as city registrars in and for such cities and towns, but shall be subject to the rules and regulations herein contained. That the body of any person whose death occurs in any said registration district shall not be interred, deposited in a vault or tomb, cremated or otherwise disposed of, or removed or transported from said registration district until a permit for burial, removal or other disposition shall have been properly issued by the city registrar of the registration district in which the death or interment occurs. And no such burial or removal permit shall be issued by any registrar until a complete and satisfactory certificate and return of the death has been filed with him as hereinafter provided. Provided, that a transit permit issued in accordance with the law and health regulations of the place where death occurred, whether in Texas or outside of the state, may be accepted by the city registrar of the district where the body is to be interred or otherwise finally disposed of, as a basis upon which he shall issue a local burial permit, in the same way as if the death occurred in his city, but shall plainly enter on the face of the copy of the record which he shall make for return to the state registrar the fact that it was a body shipped in for interment, and give the actual place of death. But when a body is removed from a district in Texas to an adjacent or nearby district for interment, not requiring the use of a common carrier or the issue of a transit permit, then the city registrar's burial permit from the district where death occurred may be accepted as authority for burial. It shall be the duty of the aforementioned city registrar to record in a permanently bound book, which shall be secured from the city for that purpose, all births and deaths which shall occur within their respective cities and towns, together with such statistics and data as shall be furnished him by the birth certificates and death certificates herein elsewhere provided for, and it shall be the duty of said city registrar to transmit all such original birth and death certificates received during the preceding month to the state registrar of vital statistics at Austin on or before the tenth day of the following month.

Rule 38. Form of certificate.—All certificates of births and deaths shall be made in the manner prescribed by the state board of health and in the form of certificate prescribed by the state registrar to the aforementioned registrars.

Rule 39. Undertaker shall fill out certificate and obtain particulars.—In case of death (including stillbirths) in which any undertaker buries the dead or assists at such burial, it shall be the duty of such undertaker to accurately and properly fill out the death certificate as provided by the state registrar, in so far as regards the "personal and statistical particulars," and further, he shall obtain from the physician or coroner the answers to questions under the heading of "medical particulars" of the death certificate; said death certificate to be mailed or handed in by the undertaker to the county registrar within five days after said death occurs; provided, that in case the undertaker can not communicate with the physician or coroner within the five days specified, he shall mail the death certificate to such physician or coroner, as accurately and properly filled out as possible, for such physician or coroner to complete the "medical particulars" of the death certificate, in which event the aforesaid physician or coroner shall make report to the proper registrar.

Rule 40. Physicians shall promptly give medical particulars to undertaker.—It shall be the duty of every physician in the event of a death (including stillbirths) occurring in any case at which said physician is the last in attendance, to promptly and accurately fill out the questions in the "medical particulars" of the death certificate when the death certificate is presented by the undertaker.

Rule 41. Physician last in attendance shall report rural deaths.—In the event of a death occurring in the rural districts of the state and no undertaker being in attendance or responsible for the report of the death, the physician last in attendance or the coroner, in the event of his being called in, shall accurately and completely fill out the certificate of death and transmit it to the county registrar.

Rule 42. Coroner shall give information, also head of house.—In case of death (including stillbirths) where a coroner shall hold an inquest to ascertain the cause of death, the said coroner shall answer the questions (medical particulars) as in rule 39 to be answered by the attending physician, and answer them in as full and complete manner as the information from such coroner's inquest will permit; and when a person dies without medical attendance and does not require the attendance of a coroner, the head of the household where such death occurs, or the next of kin, shall immediately notify the local health authority who shall, after proper investigation, and, if deemed necessary by him, after an autopsy to determine the cause of death, issue a certificate of death.

Rule 43. Superintendents of hospitals to give information.—If the deceased died in a hospital or other institution, the person acting as undertaker shall present the certificate to the superintendent or head of such institution for the special information indicated on the blank for such cases. The undertaker shall then fill in the other information above required and transmit the complete certificate to the proper registrar.

Rule 44. Undertakers shall report physicians for neglect of giving information.—In the event of the neglect or refusal of the physician, coroner, superintendent or person in charge of any hospital or other institution to promptly and accurately fill out the death certificate as above required, and sign it, when so requested by an undertaker, the same shall be immediately reported by the undertaker to the state registrar for the purpose of prosecution.

Rule 45. Stillborn or those dead births of seven months gestation to be reported.—All stillborn children (those dead at birth after seven months gestation) shall be registered as births and also as deaths, and a certificate of both the birth and the death shall be filed with the proper registrar, in the usual form and manner, the certificate of birth to contain in place of the name of the child, the word "stillborn." The "medical particulars" of the death certificate shall be signed by the attending physician, if any, or midwife, and shall state the cause of death as "stillborn," with the cause of the stillbirth, if known, whether a premature birth, and, if born prematurely, the period of uterine gestation, in months, if known.

Rule 46. Clerks shall record all statistical data.—The clerk of the county court in every county in the state of Texas shall record all statistical data relating to such births and deaths as are reported to him from his county outside incorporated cities and towns in a permanently bound book which he shall secure and keep for that purpose, in form as supplied by the state registrar, and shall transmit the original certificates to the state registrar by the tenth of each month following the month in which they are received.

Rule 47. Sextons shall keep record.—All sextons or superintendents of cemeteries are required to file all burial permits received and to record in a permanently bound book, the names of all persons interred, date of interment, place of burial, number of the grave or section of cemetery where buried and name of undertaker; and shall before the tenth of the following month make a report to the state Registrar of all deceased persons deposited in their respective cemeteries during the preceding month.

Rule 48. State registrar shall supply blanks, etc.—The state registrar shall prepare, print and supply to all city and county registrars all blanks and forms used in reporting births and deaths or in otherwise carrying out the purposes of this regulation, and each county shall print and supply their county registrar and each city council supply their city registrar with a permanently bound book, in form prepared by the state registrar for recording all statistical data relating to births and deaths in their respective jurisdictions; and the state registrar shall prepare and issue such detailed instructions as may be required to secure the uniform observance of its provisions and the maintenance of a perfect system of registration. He shall carefully examine all certificates received and if any such are incomplete or unsatisfactory he shall require such further information to be furnished as may be necessary to make the record complete and satisfactory. And all physicians, midwives, informants or undertakers connected with any case, and all other persons having knowledge of the facts, are hereby required to furnish such information as they may possess regarding any birth or death upon demand of the state registrar, in person, by mail, or through the county or city registrar. He shall further arrange, bind and permanently preserve the certificates in a systematic manner.

Rule 49. City and county registrars shall furnish blanks to those required to report.—It shall be the duty of the city and county registrars to supply blank forms of certificate and such instructions as are applied to them by the state registrar to all in their respective jurisdictions who are required to make reports under these regulations.

Rule 50. City and county registrars examine all certificates of birth and death.—Each city and county registrar shall carefully examine each certificate of birth or death when received, and if any such are incomplete or unsatisfactory, he shall require such further information to be furnished as may be necessary to make the record complete and satisfactory. He shall number consecutively the certificates of birth and death, in two separate series, beginning with the "number one" for the first birth and first death in each calendar year.

DEPOTS, RAILWAY COACHES AND SLEEPING CARS

Rule 51. Contagious diseases barred from public vehicles.—No person known to be suffering from any contagious disease such as smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles or whooping cough shall be allowed to enter or ride in any day coach, sleeping car, interurban car or street car, and when any such person is discovered to be in any car as mentioned above, it shall be the duty of the conductor or other individual in charge of said car to notify the nearest or most accessible county or city health officer and the latter shall remove and isolate said patient as is proper in such case or circumstance.

Rule 52. Depots, etc., to be ventilated and heated.—Each depot, railway coach, sleeping car, interurban car and street car while in use for the accommodation of the public shall be properly ventilated, and, if necessary, heated, and a sufficient amount of heat shall be furnished in time of need so that fresh air can be supplied without causing it to become unduly or uncomfortably cold; and the janitor, conductor, caretaker or other person in charge shall see to it that the air is replenished with fresh air from time to time as needed to prevent the same from becoming foul, unsanitary or oppressive.

Rule 53. Cuspidors to be provided, disinfected, etc.—Cuspidors must be provided in adequate numbers in all waiting rooms of depots and railway stations; each day coach shall be provided with one cuspidor for each seat or every two chairs, and two in each smoking apartment; except that in each parlor car there may be as few as one cuspidor to every three seats and two cuspidors used in the smoking apartment; in each sleeping car shall be placed one cuspidor to each section and three cuspidors in the smoking apartment, one of which cuspidors, in the absence of a dental lavatory, shall be of an unusually large size and placed near the wash basin for use in washing the teeth; each aforementioned cuspidor shall contain not less than one-third of a pint of an approved disinfectant solution, and the cuspidor shall be emptied, washed in a similar solution and replenished each trip or every twenty-four hours.

Rule 54. Dry cleaning prohibited.—Dry dusting and dry sweeping is prohibited at all times in waiting rooms of depots and railway stations, or in railway coaches, sleeping cars, interurban cars and street cars.

Rule 55. Coaches to be cleaned after each trip; how cleaned.—Railway day coaches shall be thoroughly cleaned at the end of each trip, and in no instance shall the day coach go uncleaned longer than two days when such coach is in use; the thorough cleaning of day coaches shall consist as follows:

(a) Windows and doors shall be first opened and the aisle-strip, if there be any, removed, and, when possible, thoroughly sunned.

(b) All upholstery shall be dusted and brushed, using the vacuum process cleaning apparatus whenever possible.

(c) Floor mopped or swept, after it has been sprinkled with an approved disinfectant solution, or preferably cleaned by sprinkling with sawdust moistened with said approved disinfectant and sweeping. After cleaning, as described, the floor must be scrubbed with soap and water to which may be added the same disinfectant solution.

(d) Closet floors, urinals, toilet bowls, and walls must be cleaned by washing, scouring and wiping with an approved disinfectant solution, to which soda ash or other cleansing agent may be added.

(e) All arms of seats and window ledges must be wiped free of dust with a damp cloth (preferably one wet with disinfectant solution).

(f) Provided, that where the vacuum cleaning apparatus is installed and coaches are thoroughly cleaned with this method daily, the aforementioned method of brushing, cleaning and scrubbing may be used as seldom as once in each period of seven days.

Rule 56. Railway stations to be cleaned.—The sanitary method of cleaning as prescribed in the foregoing rule must be followed in the sanitation of waiting rooms of depots and railway stations once in every twenty-four hours.

Rule 57. Dining cars, etc., to be thoroughly cleaned.—Parlor, buffet and dining cars must be cleaned at cleaning terminals, as set forth in rule 55 of this chapter. Carpets and draperies to be removed, dusted, sunned and aired. Food boxes, refrigerators, closets, drawers, and cupboards to be cleaned, scalded and treated with a solution containing 2 per cent formaldehyde, or other approved disinfectant.

Rule 58. Interurban and street cars to be washed, disinfected, etc.—Interurban cars and street cars must be washed with a hose and scrubbed thoroughly once every twenty-four hours, and must be disinfected with formaldehyde gas under the supervision of the local health authority immediately after any case of contagious disease has been discovered therein.

Rule 59. Sleeping cars to be cleaned; disinfected.—All sleeping cars shall be cleaned at cleaning terminals according to the methods set forth in rule 55 above, at least twice during a period of every seven days; shall be disinfected with formaldehyde gas at least twice during a period of seven days; upon routes designated by the president of the state board of health, all sleeping cars shall be disinfected as seldom as once during a period of seven days. In addition to the foregoing, all sleeping cars shall be disinfected immediately after any case of contagious or infectious disease is discovered therein. All blankets used in sleeping cars must be thoroughly sterilized and washed at intervals of not more than ninety days.

Rule 60. Record of disinfection to be kept and signed.—On each passenger car operated in the state of Texas a disinfection record must be kept and preserved, and on same the following records are to be entered and kept, viz:

1. Place and date of each disinfection.
2. Length of time devoted to each such thorough disinfection.
3. Each item in said record shall be inserted immediately after each act recorded, and the signature of the person or persons doing said cleaning or disinfection must appear beneath the said records.

Rule 61. Water coolers to be provided; manner of cleaning.—All depots, railway coaches, sleeping cars, or interurban cars must be provided with a water cooler for the use of patrons and the traveling public; such water cooler must be so constructed as to be easily removed for the purpose of cleaning; must be emptied, rinsed and cleaned, and must be scalded and sunned when possible once in each period of twenty-four hours, and must be filled with good and wholesome drinking water when in service. Ice for use in water coolers must not be dumped on floors, sidewalks or car platforms. It must be washed and must be handled with ice-tongs.

Rule 62. Expecting on floors prohibited.—Expecting on the floor or walls or furniture of any waiting room in any depot, on any depot platform, in any railway coach, sleeping car, interurban car, or street car in this state, is prohibited. Placards calling attention of passengers and employes shall be hung in a conspicuous place in each of the aforementioned rooms and cars.

Rule 63. Expecting in basins prohibited.—Brushing of teeth or expecting in basins used for lavatory purposes is prohibited, and placards calling attention of passengers and employes shall be hung in a conspicuous place in the dressing room of passenger coaches.

Rule 64. Separate compartments for negro porters.—Sleeping car companies shall provide compartments and bedding for their negro porters separate from those provided for their white passengers.

Rule 65. Negro porters prohibited from sleeping in.—Negro porters shall not sleep in sleeping car berths nor use bedding intended for white passengers.

Rule 66. Certain floor covering prohibited.—No waiting room in any depot or railway station shall be floored in part or entirely with burlap, cocoa matting, or sacking cloth.

Rule 67. Water closets to be provided.—All depots and railway station shall provide adequate urinals and water closets for patrons and the traveling public; must keep them in proper sanitary condition, and if within five hundred feet of any public sewer, must make permanent sanitary connection with same. Any privy or box closet furnished by any such railway company shall be protected from flies by screening or other effective method, including hinged lids or other device for covering the opening in the seats of said closets. Such privies and closets as are not in connection with a sanitary sewer shall be provided with a watertight box, or other receptacle underneath, and when full or at any time when its condition shall create a nuisance or become unsanitary, and in no instance shall such box-closet go longer than one month before it must be emptied and disinfected with 5 per cent carbolic acid solution or other approved disinfectant solution.

Rule 68. Railway premises shall be drained.—The premises of all depots and railway stations shall be thoroughly drained, so that no stagnant water will collect on said premises.

Rule 69. All cisterns, etc., shall be screened.—All cisterns, fire water barrels, or other water containers upon the premises of any depot or railway station shall be screened with not less than 16-mesh wire gauze.

GOVERNING THE PREPARATION FOR TRANSPORTATION OF DEAD BODIES

Rule 70. Bodies dead of pestilential diseases.—No body of any person dead of Asiatic cholera, bubonic plague, typhus fever or small-pox shall be transported except in a hearse or undertaker's wagon unless said body shall have been cremated.

Rule 71. Bodies dead of dangerous contagious diseases.—The bodies of those who have died of diphtheria (membranous croup), scarlet fever (scarlatina, scarlet rash), glanders, anthrax or leprosy, shall not be accepted for transportation unless prepared for shipment by being thoroughly disinfected by (a) arterial and cavity injection with an approved disinfectant fluid, (b) disinfecting and stopping all orifices with absorbent cotton, and (c) washing the body with the disinfectant, all of which must be done by a licensed embalmer, holding a certificate as such. After being disinfected as above, such body shall be encased in an air-tight zinc, tin, copper or lead-lined coffin, or iron casket, all joints and seams hermetically soldered, and all enclosed in a strong, tight wooden box. Or, the body being prepared for shipment by disinfecting as above, may be placed in a strong coffin or casket, and said coffin or casket enclosed in an air-tight copper or tin case, all joints and seams hermetically soldered and all enclosed in a strong outside wooden box.

Rule 72. Bodies dead of non-quarantinable contagious diseases.—The bodies of those dead of typhoid fever, puerperal fever, erysipelas, tuberculosis and measles, or other dangerous communicable disease, other than those specified in rules 70 and 71, may be received for transportation when prepared for shipment by filling cavities with an approved disinfectant, washing the exterior of the body with the same, and stopping all orifices with absorbent cotton and encased in an air-tight coffin or casket; provided, that this shall apply only to bodies which can reach their destination within forty-eight hours from time of death. In all other cases such bodies shall be prepared for transportation in conformity with rule 71. But when the body has been prepared for shipment by being thoroughly disinfected by an embalmer holding a certificate, as in rule 71, the air-tight sealing may be dispensed with.

Rule 73. Bodies dead of other diseases.—The bodies of those dead of diseases that are not contagious, infectious or communicable may be received for transportation when encased in a sound coffin or casket and enclosed in a strong outside box; provided, they reach their destination within thirty hours from time of death. If the body can not reach its destination within thirty hours from time of death, it must be prepared for shipment by filling cavities with an approved disinfectant, washing the exterior of the body with the same, and stopping all orifices with absorbent cotton, and encased in an air-tight coffin or casket. But when the body has been prepared for shipment by being thoroughly disinfected by a licensed embalmer as in rule 71, the air-tight sealing may be dispensed with.

Rule 74. Persons accompanying bodies dead of contagious diseases.—In cases of contagious or infectious diseases, the body must not be accompanied by persons or articles which have been exposed to the infection of the disease, unless certified by the health officer as having been properly disinfected; and before selling passage tickets, agents shall carefully examine the transit permit and note the name of the passenger in charge, and of any other proposing to accompany the body, and see that all necessary precautions have been taken to prevent the spread of disease. The transit permit in such cases shall specifically state who is authorized by the health authorities to accompany the remains. In all cases where bodies are forwarded under rule 71, notice must be sent by telegraph to health officer at destination, advising the date and train on which the body may be expected. This notice must be sent by or in the name of the health officer at the initial point, and is to enable the health officer at destination to take all necessary precautions at that point.

Rule 75. Bodies not shipped by express.—Every dead body not shipped by express must be accompanied by a person in charge, who must be provided with a passage ticket and also present a full first-class ticket marked "corpse" for the transportation of the body, and a transit permit showing physician's or coroner's certificate, name of deceased, date and hour of death, age, place of death, cause of death, and if of a contagious or infectious disease, the point to which the body is to be shipped, and when death is caused by any of the diseases specified in rule 71, the names of those authorized by the health authorities to accompany the body. The transit permit must be made in duplicate, and the signatures of the physician or coroner, health officer and undertaker must be on both the original and duplicate copies. The undertaker's certificate and paster of the original shall be detached from the transit permit and pasted on the end of the coffin box. The physician's certificate and transit permit shall be handed to the passenger in charge of the corpse. The whole duplicate copy shall be sent to the official in charge of the baggage department of the initial line and by him to the secretary of the state board of health at Austin.

Rule 76. Bodies shipped by express.—When dead bodies are shipped by express, the whole original transit permit shall be pasted upon the outside box, and the duplicate forwarded by the express agent to the secretary of the state board of health at Austin.

Rule 77. Disinterred bodies treated as contagious.—Every disinterred body, dead from any disease or cause, shall be treated as contagious or dangerous to the public health and shall not be accepted for transportation unless said removal has been approved by the state or local health authorities having jurisdiction where such body is disinterred, and the consent of the health authorities of the locality to which the corpse is consigned has first been obtained; and all such disinterred remains shall be enclosed in a hermetically sealed (soldered) zinc, tin or copper-lined coffin or box. Bodies deposited in receiving vaults shall be treated and considered the same as buried bodies.

Rule 78. Transfer of dead bodies in transit.—When it may become necessary to transfer dead bodies in transit from one railway train to another, or from one station to another, or from a station to a ferry, the affidavit of the undertaker and permit of the local health officer accompanying the remains shall be in all cases sufficient authority for such transfer.

Rule 79. Certificate furnished by undertaker.—No common carrier shall accept for transportation any body unless a certificate is furnished by the undertaker preparing such body for shipment to the effect that the foregoing rules have been complied with in the preparation for transportation of said body.

Any person who shall violate any of the rules, regulations or provisions of the sanitary code of Texas, as herein set forth, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than ten dollars and not more than one thousand dollars.

Provided, this Act shall not be construed to repeal any of the laws of this state now in force affecting the public health, which are not clearly in conflict herewith, but shall be construed to be cumulative to said laws. [Acts 1911, p. 173, sec. 1, amending Acts 1909, p. 340, sec. 10, and superseding Arts. 4529–4533, Rev. St. 1911.]

CHAPTER THREE POLLUTION OF WATERS

Art.
4553b. Polluting certain waters unlawful;
penalty for violation, etc.
4553c. Enjoining pollution; penalty for violation of injunction, etc.

Art.
4553d. Certain cities, towns, persons, etc., to have three years to make arrangements for sewerage.
4553e. State board of health to enforce; inspector, how appointed; duties.

Article 4553b. Polluting certain waters unlawful; penalty for violation, etc.—That it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, private or municipal, to pollute any water course or other public body of water, from which water is taken for the use of farm live stock and for drinking and domestic purposes, in the state of Texas, by the discharge, directly or indirectly, of any sewage or unclean water or unclean or polluting matter or thing therein, or in such proximity thereto as that it will probably reach and pollute the waters of such water course or other public body of water from which water is taken for the use of farm live stock and for drinking and domestic purposes. A violation of this provision shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars and not more than one thousand dollars. When the offense shall have been committed by a firm, partnership or association, each member thereof who has knowledge of the commission of such offense, shall be held guilty. When committed by a private corporation, the officers and members of the board of directors, having knowledge of the commission of such offense, shall each be deemed guilty; and when by a municipal corporation, the mayor and each member of the board of aldermen or commission, having knowledge of the commission of such offense, as the case may be, shall be held guilty, as representatives of the municipality; and each person so indicated, as above, shall be subject to the punishment provided hereinabove. Provided, however, that the payment of the fine by one of the persons so named shall be a satisfaction of the penalty as against his associates for the offenses for which he may have been convicted. Provided, the provisions of this Act shall not apply to any place or premises located without the limits of an incorporated town or city, nor to manufacturing plants whose effluents contain no organic matter that will putrify, or any poisonous compounds, or any bacteria dangerous to public health or destructive of the fish life of streams or other public bodies of water. [Acts 1913, p. 90, sec. 1.]

Art. 4553c. Enjoining pollution; penalty for violation of injunction, etc.—Upon the conviction of any person under section 1 of this Act [Art. 4553b], it shall be the duty of the court, or judge of the court, in which such conviction is had, to issue a writ of injunction, enjoining and restraining the person or persons or corporation responsible for such pollution from a further continuance of such pollution; and for a violation of such injunction, the said court and the judge thereof shall have the power of fine and imprisonment, as for contempt of court, within the limits prescribed by law in other cases; provided, that this remedy by injunction and punishment for violation thereof shall be cumulative of the penalty fixed by section 1 of this Act; and the assessment of a fine for contempt shall be no bar to a prosecution under section 1; neither shall a conviction and payment of fine under section 1, be a bar to contempt proceedings under this section. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4553d. Certain cities, towns, persons, etc., to have three years to make arrangements for sewerage.—Any city or town of this state, with a population of more than fifty thousand inhabitants, which has already an established sewerage system dependent upon any water course or other public body of water, from which water is taken for the use of farm live stock and for drinking and domestic purposes, or which discharges into any water course or other public body of water, from which is taken for the use of farm live stock and for drinking and domestic purposes shall have three years from and after the taking effect of this Act within which to make other provisions for such sewage. Cities and towns of less population than fifty thousand inhabitants shall have three years within which to make other arrangements for the disposal of such sewage. Any person, firm or corporation, private or municipal, coming under or affected by the terms of this bill or any independent contractor having the disposal of the sewage of any city or town, shall have three years within which to make other arrangements for the disposal of such sewage, or other matter which may pollute the water, as defined in this bill. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4553e. State board of health to enforce; inspector, how appointed; duties.—The Texas state board of health is authorized, and it is hereby made its duty, to enforce the provisions of this Act; and to this end, the governor shall appoint, by and with the consent of the senate, an inspector, to act under the direction of the said board of health and the state health officer, making such investigations, inspections and reports, and performing such other duties in respect to the enforcement of this Act as the said board of health and the state health officer may require. [Id. sec. 4.]

Article 4553f. Charbon districts.—That all of that portion of the state of Texas in which charbon or anthrax has heretofore been prevalent or any district of the state of Texas in which charbon or anthrax may become prevalent, shall be known as charbon districts and shall be subject to the provisions hereof. [Acts 1913, p. 147, sec. 2 (10a).]

Art. 4553g. Cases of animals suffering from charbon or anthrax to be reported; failure to report misdemeanor.—That each person residing in a district where charbon or anthrax is prevalent or where the same is supposed to be prevalent shall report in writing to the county health officer, who in turn shall report in writing to the president of the state board of health at Austin, all cases where an animal or animals are suffering with charbon or anthrax or supposed to have such disease, and each physician practicing in the state of Texas shall report in writing to the president of the state board of health all persons suffering from charbon or anthrax or supposed to be suffering from same and in case of failure to do so any person so failing shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $10.00 nor more than $25.00 and each case of which no report is made shall constitute a separate offense. [Id. (10b).]

Art. 4553h. State board of health to employ bacteriologist; duties; salary; appropriation.—That the state board of health shall employ a bacteriologist at a salary of not more than $300.00 per month and during the time that charbon or anthrax is prevalent he shall make an examination and analysis and a scientific research for the purpose of combating with said disease and said bacteriologist may be kept in the district affected by charbon as many months each as the state board of health deems necessary and for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act the sum of four thousand ($4000.00) dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of the general revenue not otherwise appropriated which shall be paid out on warrant drawn by the president of the state board of health and attested by the secretary of said board. [Id. (10c).]

Art. 4553i. Duties of board; isolation of stock.—That the state board of health acting through one of the members or through the local health office in the county where charbon is reported to be prevalent shall in person or through some one employed by them, visit all stock reported to have charbon or anthrax and see that proper steps be taken for the isolation of same from other stock and also isolate other stock which have been exposed to said disease and so keep same isolated for such a period as it may deem necessary. [Id. (10d).]

Art. 4553j. Carcasses to be destroyed; failure misdemeanor.—That carcasses of stock which have died from charbon or anthrax shall be destroyed by burning by the owner or person in charge within 24 hours after death and any owner or person having charge of said animals who should fail to destroy said carcasses as herein provided shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $25.00 nor more than $100.00 and each 24 hours after the first 24 hours that said carcass is permitted to remain undestroyed shall be considered a separate offense. [Id. (10e).]

Art. 4553k. Powers and duties of county health officer; isolation or quarantine proclamation; penalty for failure to obey.—The county health officer shall be the exclusive judge of the necessity of isolation or quarantine of all animals infected therewith and when in the judgment of said county health officer there exists a necessity thereof [therefor] said county health officer shall issue a proclamation directing that all animals of certain classes which he may specify in the infected district, in either the entire county or any political subdivision thereof, shall be placed and kept in an enclosure by the owners or keeper thereof, and any owner, or keeper of such animals for the owners, who shall fail or refuse to obey the requirement of such proclamation shall be fined in any sum not less than $10.00 nor more than $50.00 and where any owner or keeper for the owner shall have more than ten animals subject to the quarantine regulations herein provided the fine shall be doubled and each day that any owner or keeper for such owner shall fail to comply with the proclamation of said county health officer, shall constitute a separate offense and such quarantine shall continue and be in effect as long as in the judgment of such county health officer it may be necessary to prevent the spread of charbon or anthrax. [Id. (10f).]

Art. 4553l. Proclamation, when sufficient.—The proclamation of the county health officer provided for in section 10f of this Act [Art. 4553k] shall be sufficient, if it name the kinds or classes of stock to which it shall apply and it shall be published in some newspaper published in the county if there be one; and if there be no newspaper it shall be posted in three public places in said county one of which shall be at the court house door of such county if the proclamation pertains to the whole county, but if only to a subdivision of the county, then in any three public places in such subdivision, and one insertion in a newspaper shall be sufficient, and such proclamation shall be effective three days after such notice is given. [Id. (10g).]

Art. 4553m. May prohibit running at large of animals; submission to voters; ballots, etc.; commissioners' court to issue proclamation when vote in favor of prohibiting.—In all counties now affected with charbon or anthrax, or which may hereafter become affected, the qualified voters of such county or any political subdivision thereof may, in the manner hereinafter provided, prohibit the running at large of cattle, horses, sheep, goats and hogs or any of such animals within such county or subdivision thereof; provided that, upon the petition of ten per cent of the qualified voters of such county or subdivision, thereof presented to the commissioners' court of such county in open session, requesting such court to order an election to be held in such county or political subdivision thereof said petition to state the territory within which an election is requested and the kinds of animals to be effected and also for what portions of the year it is desired to prohibit such stock from running at large, or whether the entire year, it shall be the duty of said commissioners' court to order such election to be held within such territory as may be petitioned for, naming the kinds of animals to be affected thereby and as designated in the order for such election; and such commissioners' court shall also designate in said order of election the time within which such stock is to be prohibited from running at large, whether for the entire year or for portions thereof; which the said court is hereby authorized to do in accordance with the petition therefor. Such commissioners' court is hereby authorized and it is made its duty to provide for the holding of such elections and compensation of officers thereof, provided that the expense of such election shall be borne by the county wherein such election is ordered and held; and provided further that in any such election so to be held the ballots shall read as follows:

“For the Running at Large of Domestic Animals,” and “Against the Running at Large of Domestic Animals.”

Returns of such election shall be made by the presiding officers of the precinct or precincts of the county where such election is held, to the county judge of such county, whose duty it shall be to forthwith call the commissioners' court together for the purpose of canvassing the returns; and if it shall be found by the commissioners' court, upon a canvass of such returns, that a majority of the qualified voters of the county or subdivision thereof wherein such election was held, is in favor of prohibiting the running at large of such domestic animals as hereinbefore named, then it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of such county to forthwith declare the result of said election and give public notice thereof by proclamation of such court to be issued and posted within three public places of the county or subdivision thereof in which such election has been held. [Id. (10h).]

Art. 4553n. Permitting animals to run at large after proclamation unlawful; penalty, etc.—From and after the issuance and posting of the proclamation hereinabove provided for, it shall be unlawful for any owner or keeper of such animals hereinabove designated or any of them to permit such animals as have been voted upon to run at large within such county or subdivision thereof at any time within which the same has been prohibited; and in case of failure or refusal of any owner or keeper of such stock or any of them to comply with such proclamation he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined in any sum not less than five dollars ($5.00) nor more than fifty dollars ($50.00) and each day that any owner or keeper for such owner shall fail to comply with the law as herein provided for, shall constitute a separate offense.

The venue of such prosecution shall lie in the counties where the offense is committed. [Id. (10i).]

Art. 4553o. Laws repealed and unrepealed.—This Act shall not be construed to repeal the laws of this state now in force affecting the public health, which is not clearly in conflict herewith but shall be construed to be cumulative to the said law but all laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Id. (10j).]

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general at end of chapter].

Article 4554. [4321] Governor empowered to issue proclamation, when.—The governor is empowered to issue his proclamation declaring quarantine on the coast, or elsewhere within this state, whenever in his judgment quarantine may become necessary; and such quarantine may continue for any length of time as in the judgment of the governor the safety and security of the people may require. [Acts 1891, p. 188.]

Notice of proclamation.—The governor is empowered to quarantine against any point when he has reason to believe that there is danger from yellow fever or other contagious or infectious disease, and when he issues his quarantine proclamation every citizen is charged with knowledge of it, and if a buyer orders goods at a time when the customary route of shipment is quarantined, he is in no position to claim damages for a deviation in the shipment from the accustomed route. Mobile Fruit & Trading Co. v. Boero (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 361.

Art. 4555. [4324] May issue proclamation, when.—Whenever the governor has reason to believe that the state of Texas is threatened at any point or place on the coast, border or elsewhere within the state with the introduction or dissemination of yellow fever contagion, or any other infectious and contagious disease that can and should, in the opinion of the Texas state board of health, be guarded against by state quarantine, he shall, by proclamation, immediately declare said quarantine against any and all such places, and direct the Texas state board of health to promptly establish and enforce the restrictions and conditions imposed and indicated by said quarantine proclamation; and when from any cause the governor can not act, and the exigencies of the threatened danger require immediate action, the Texas state board of health is empowered to declare quarantine as prescribed in this article, and maintain the same until the governor shall officially take such action as he may see proper. [Acts 1891, p. 188, sec. 4.]

Art. 4556. [4326] Local quarantine.—The law in regard to local quarantine by the inhabitants of any point or points on the coast or elsewhere in the state shall remain in full force when in conformity with this title; provided, that in all differences and disputes between any such points, contiguous or remote, within this state, such differences and disputes shall be immediately by the local health authorities, if any, and if none, by the inhabitants themselves, reported and submitted to the governor; and, on the receipt of such report, he shall forthwith order the state health officer to such points with instructions to investigate the same and report the exact condition of things, and upon investigation of such report shall issue his proclamation declaring the determination of the issue, and by said proclamation the aforesaid differences shall be governed and determined. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4557. [4328] Local to be subordinated to state authorities.—Whenever quarantine is declared by the governor or by any county or corporate authorities in the state, it shall be the duty of such authorities to establish a quarantine station or stations where any person may be detained for such length of time as, in the discretion of the quarantine officers, the public safety may demand; provided, that all county and municipal quarantine shall be subordinate, subject to and regulated by such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the governor or Texas state board of health. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4558. [4329] Shelter, etc., to be furnished by health officer to persons detained.—It shall be the duty of the Texas state board of health to furnish persons detained by them with necessary shelter and subsistence (not including crews of vessels, except such as are removed by the quarantine officers from infected vessels), and to provide all other things essential for the protection and comfort of those held in quarantine, and all such expenses authorized by the Texas state board of health and approved by the governor shall be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4559. [4330] Expenses, etc.—All the costs and expenses of enforcing and maintaining the general quarantine, or such as are ordered by the governor or Texas state board of health shall be paid out of the fund appropriated for quarantine purposes. All quarantine officers appointed by the governor shall be selected and commissioned by the governor of the state, and shall be paid by the state, and all health authorities of the state, or of any county or city thereof, shall obey the rules and regulations prescribed by the governor or Texas state board of health. The regular officers in charge of regular established quarantine stations on the coast shall be allowed one hundred and fifty dollars per month while on duty at their respective stations; provided, that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply to the port of Galveston; and provided, that the officer in charge of said station shall receive two hundred dollars per month. Temporary officers, or those commissioned by the governor to guard against threatened epidemics, and those stationed at railway crossings on the Rio Grande shall receive one hundred and fifty dollars per month while on duty, and such other pay for extra expenses actually incurred as may be deemed just by the governor and Texas state board of health. All quarantine officers, whether of towns, cities, counties or state, shall be authorized to administer oaths to any person or persons suspected of violating any quarantine regulations; and any person or persons swearing falsely shall be punished according to the provisions of the Penal Code. [Acts 1895, p. 142.]

Art. 4560. [4331] Stations to be provided.—It is hereby made the duty of any county, town or city authority upon the coast or elsewhere in Texas, at as early a day as practicable after the promulgation of the governor's proclamation declaring quarantine, to provide suitable stations where they are not now provided, at sufficient distance from the usual places of landing of vessels, or the depots of railroads coming into their respective counties, towns or cities, and to select, appoint and employ a competent physician as health officer, subject to the approval of the governor, at such stations, and to furnish said officer with such guards, employes and other things as may be necessary to render such quarantine effective; and said county, town or city authorities may provide for the establishment and maintenance of quarantine, subordinate, subjected to, and regulated by, such rules and regulations as the governor and Texas state board of health may prescribe. [Acts 1883, p. 17.]

Art. 4561. [4332] Governor may appoint local health officer, when.—Whenever, on the coast of Texas or elsewhere in this state, the authorities of any county, town or city fail, refuse or neglect to establish quarantine as provided in the preceding article, then and in that event the governor shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to appoint a health officer and to prescribe such regulations for the government of the same as he may deem necessary. [Acts 1891, p. 186.]

Art. 4562. [4333] Incoming vessels to be stopped.—It shall be the duty of all health officers and all quarantine authorities to stop each and every vessel from any infected port or district, notwithstanding the said vessel may have a clean bill of health, if deemed necessary, (and such health officers or quarantine authorities shall have power so to do) to take the affidavit of the master of said vessel as to the health of himself and crew from the time of sailing from said infected port or district; and such officers and authorities shall detain said vessel at quarantine for such length of time as may be prescribed by the governor and Texas state board of health in their rules and regulations governing quarantine; and all such officers and authorities may use force if necessary in order to discharge the duties imposed upon them by the provisions of this title and the rules and regulations of the governor and Texas state board of health. [Acts 1883, p. 17.]

Art. 4563. [4334] Vessels from infected ports.—Any vessel arriving at any of the quarantine stations of this state, designated by the proper authorities, from any infected port or district, without a clean bill of health from the proper officers from said port or district, shall be taken possession of by the health officer or other quarantine authority at the station at which said vessel arrives, and be held by the same until all fines that may have been assessed against the master of said vessel for a violation of the quarantine laws, rules and regulations have been paid, or until said vessel shall have been replevied in accordance with law. [Acts 1891, p. 188, sec. 12.]

Art. 4564. [4335] Payment of fine, etc.—The payment of the fine which may be assessed against the master of such vessel shall not operate as a release or discharge of the vessel from quarantine, but the same rules shall apply as in case of other vessels placed in quarantine. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4565. [4336] Expenses to be itemized.—It shall be the duty of the county, town or city authorities aforesaid, as soon as quarantine ceases to exist, to forward to the comptroller of the state an itemized account of all receipts and expenditures made by them, and when approved by the governor and Texas state board of health, said comptroller shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer for the payment of any balance that may be due said authorities, or either of them, and pay into the treasury any excess of receipts over expenditures as a credit to the quarantine fund. [Acts 1883, p. 18.]

Art. 4566. [4337] Corporate authorities may establish quarantine, when.—Nothing contained in this title shall be construed to prevent any town, city or county from establishing any quarantine which they may think necessary for the preservation of the health of the same; provided, that the rules and regulations of such quarantine be not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, and be consistent with, and subordinate to, said provisions and the rules and regulations prescribed by the governor and Texas state board of health. [Id.]

of the counties wherein such towns and cities are situated, may co-operate with each other in making such improvements connected with said towns, cities and counties as may be deemed by said authorities and courts necessary to improve the public health and to promote efficient sanitary regulations; and, by mutual agreement, they may provide for the construction of said improvements and the payment therefor. [Acts 1879, S. S. p. 9.]

Art. 4568. [4340] Commissioners' court may direct county physician to declare quarantine, when.—Whenever the commissioners' court of any county has reason to believe that they are threatened at any point or place within or without the county limits with the introduction or dissemination of a dangerous, contagious or infectious disease that can and shall be guarded against by quarantine, they may direct their county health officer to declare and maintain said quarantine against any and all such dangerous diseases; to establish, maintain and supply stations or camps for those held in quarantine; to provide hospitals, tents or pest houses for those sick of contagious and infectious disease; to furnish provisions, medicine and all other things absolutely essential for the comfort of the well and the convalescence of the sick. The county physician shall keep an itemized account of all lawful expenses incurred by local quarantine, and his county shall assume and pay them as other claims against the county are paid. Chartered cities and towns are embraced within the purview of this article, and the mere fact of incorporation does not exclude them from the protection against epidemic diseases given by the commissioners' court to other parts of their respective counties. The medical officers of chartered cities and towns can perform the duties granted or commanded in their several charters, but must be amenable and obedient to rules prescribed by the Texas state board of health. This article, however, must not be construed as prohibiting any incorporated town or city from declaring, maintaining and paying for local quarantine. [Id. sec. 15.]

Location of pest-house.—The commissioners' court can be enjoined from establishing a smallpox pest-house in close proximity to a public schoolhouse, because such house is a nuisance and the court has no authority to maintain a nuisance. Thompson v. Kimbrough, 23 C. A. 350, 57 S. W. 328.

Maintenance and supplies to inmates.—A county whose commissioners' court has determined that they are threatened with the introduction or dissemination of a dangerous, contagious or infectious disease, that can and should be guarded against by quarantine and has directed the county physician to declare and maintain such quarantine, should furnish to those thus detained, such provisions, medicines and other things as are absolutely essential to their comfort and convalescence, and is legally liable therefor. It is not optional with the county to assume the duty of supplying these things. Nor is a county excused because there is no county physician to keep an itemized account of expense incident to the quarantine. King County v. Mitchell, 31 C. A. 171, 71 S. W. 611.

Expenses—Liability of county.—Where a ranchman and his employés were in quarantine, expenditures necessarily made by him in supplying their needs were not voluntary, so as to preclude recovery from the county. King County v. Mitchell, 31 C. A. 171, 71 S. W. 610.

Art. 4569. [4341] Bond of health officer at Galveston.—The quarantine or health officer at Galveston, Texas, shall give bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the governor, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the care and preservation of any steam vessel or vessels belonging to the state at his station, and for the faithful performance of his duty. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4570. [4342] To prescribe rules, etc.—It is hereby made the duty of the governor and Texas state board of health, upon completion of the disinfecting warehouse at Galveston or any port on the coast of Texas, to prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the disinfection of all vessels and their cargoes and passengers arriving at said ports from any infected port or district, the object of such rules and regulations being to provide safety for the public health of the state without unnecessary restrictions upon commerce and travel. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4571. [4342a] Sale of condemned property.—The state health officer be and is hereby authorized, with the advice and consent of the governor, to sell to the best advantage of the state, for cash, any property in the quarantine service that is useless, and to apply the proceeds thereof to the general revenue of the state of Texas, and make due report of said sale or sales to the governor. [Acts 1895, p. 2.]

Art. 4572. Vessels to be disinfected; fees of quarantine officer, etc.—Any vessel arriving at a port of this state, and required to be disinfected by the terms of the governor's quarantine proclamation, shall be disinfected by the quarantine officer of such port and shall pay to such quarantine officer such fees as may be prescribed by the governor, before being released from quarantine. All vessels boarded by the quarantine officer of any port shall pay to such officer such fees as are prescribed by the governor. The quarantine officer receiving such fees shall give bond in such sum as may be prescribed by the governor for the safe keeping of such collection, and shall report and remit them to the Texas state board of health at least once every month. [Acts 1901, p. 266.]

Art. 4573. Persons to disinfect at their own expense.—Every person having control of any public building, railway company, sleeping car company, or other corporation, company or individual, or the receiver thereof, engaged in the carrying of passengers in this state, shall, at their own expense, within a prescribed time after receiving notice of the promulgation of the rules and regulations of the state board of health in relation thereto, carry the same into effect, or be punished as prescribed in the Penal Code. [Acts 1903, p. 180.]

Art. 4574. In case of irreconcilable conflict.—Any provisions of this chapter which may irreconcilably conflict with the provisions of the foregoing chapter, shall yield to such provisions.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Liability for spread of contagion.—Railroad company, taking charge of an employé afflicted with smallpox, held to owe to each individual member of the community the duty to prevent the spread of the disease, and hence liable to a person injured by the failure to perform such duty. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood, 95 T. 223, 66 S. W. 449, 56 L. R. A. 592, 93 Am. St. Rep. 834.

Person afflicted with contagious disease held to be under the control of person having him in charge while delirious, so that the latter was liable for damages arising from failure to exercise due care in preventing him from going at large. Id.

Railroad company held not relieved from liability for damages resulting from the spread of contagion by a smallpox patient, with whose custody it was charged, by reason of the fact that the city in which the patient became ill would not be liable for failing to maintain an effectual quarantine. Id.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's child from defendant's negligence in allowing smallpox patient, whom it had charge of, to escape, plaintiffs held not guilty of contributory negligence in not having the child vaccinated. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 802.

In an action for injuries from negligence in allowing smallpox patient, whom defendant had charge of, to escape, evidence held to show negligence. Id.

Vernon Sayles
37 L. P. 14

Article 4575. Dairy and food commissioner; appointment, salary and bond.—Immediately after the taking effect of this Act, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the governor shall appoint a suitable person to be dairy and food commissioner, who shall be a practical analytical chemist and bacteriologist, which office is hereby created, and which commissioner so appointed shall hold office for a term of two years or until his successor is appointed and qualified. Said commissioner shall receive an annual salary of $2000.00. Before entering upon the duties of his office he shall subscribe and file in the office of the secretary of state an oath of office in the form prescribed by law, and shall enter into bond with the state of Texas, in the sum of $10,000.00, with sureties to be approved by the governor, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties. [Acts 1911, p. 76, sec. 9.]

Note.—Acts 1911, p. 76, sec. 26, repeals chapter 94, Acts 31st Leg., and all other laws in conflict, and hence supersedes Arts. 4575-4595, Rev. St. 1911. Acts 1911, p. 76, sec. 22, made an appropriation to carry into effect the act for the remainder of the year ending August 31, 1911. Sections 2 and 19 of Acts 1911, p. 76, are purely criminal, and hence are here omitted.

Constitutionality of act.—The pure food law is not unconstitutional as to one charged with violating the act because the title does not specifically refer to and describe the offense, which is done in the body of the act. Focke v. State (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 267.

The pure food law is not unconstitutional as to one charged with selling fruit not protected from flies, dust, and dirt, because the offense charged is not contained or disclosed in the caption, but in the body of the act. Green v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 311.

Art. 4576. May be removed; vacancy, how filled.—The governor shall have the power to remove such commissioner at any time in his discretion and in case of a vacancy in the office of commissioner from any cause, the governor may appoint another person to fill the same. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4577. Assistant chemists; appointment; salary; bond.—The said commissioner is hereby authorized and empowered, with the advice and consent of the governor, to appoint two assistant chemists. The salary of the assistant chemists shall be $1500.00 per annum each. The assistant chemists shall each enter into bond with the state of Texas for the sum of $5000.00, with sureties to be approved by the governor, conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4578. Stenographer; appointment and salary.—The commissioner shall appoint one stenographer for the transaction of the business of his office. Said stenographer shall receive an annual salary of $900.00. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4579. Inspectors; appointment; duties; salary.—The commissioner shall have power to appoint two inspectors at a salary of not to exceed $1200.00 per annum each, whose duties it shall be to collect samples of foods and drugs, and places where foods and drugs are manufactured, or kept for sale, and to perform such other duties as may be prescribed and directed by the commissioner, according to his rules and regulations. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4580. Expenses of department provided for.—The actual and necessary expenses of the dairy and food commissioner and his assistants and deputies in the performance of their official duties shall be paid by the state. The amounts for the same shall be audited by the comptroller and upon his warrant drawn upon the state treasury. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4581. Office and laboratory.—The office and laboratory of the dairy and food commissioner shall be at the state capitol, and office and laboratory room shall be furnished in the capitol building. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4582. Duties and powers of commissioner.—It shall be the duty of the dairy and food commissioner, or any inspector or deputy appointed by him, to carefully inquire into the quality of the foods and drug products manufactured or sold or exposed for sale, or offered for sale in this state, and they may in a lawful manner procure samples of the same and make due and careful examination and analysis of all or of any such food and drug products, to discover if the same are adulterated, or misbranded, impure, or unwholesome, in contravention of this Act, and it shall be the duty of the commissioner to make complaint against the manufacturer or vender thereof, in the proper county, and furnish the evidence thereon and thereof to obtain a conviction for the offence charged. The dairy and food commissioner, or his inspectors, or any person by him duly appointed for that purpose, shall make complaint and cause proceedings to be commenced against any person for the violation of any of the laws relative to adulterated, misbranded, impure or unwholesome food, and in such case he shall not be obliged to furnish security for costs; and he shall have power in the performance of his duties to enter into any creamery, factory, store, salesroom, drug store or laboratory, or place where he has reason to believe foods or drugs are made, prepared, sold or offered for sale or exchange, and to open any cask, tub, jar, bottle or package containing or supposed to contain any article of food or drug and examine or cause to be examined the contents thereof, and take therefrom samples for analysis. The persons making such inspection shall take such sample of such article or product and he shall mark or seal such sample and shall tender at the time of taking it to the manufacturer or vender of such product or to the person having the custody of the same the value thereof, and a statement in writing of the reason for taking such sample. It shall also be the duty of the dairy and food commissioner to formulate, publish and enforce such rules and regulations as may be necessary to enforce this Act, and he shall adopt the standards for foods, food products, beverages, drugs, etc., and the methods of analysis authorized as official by the United States department of agriculture in so far as they are applicable in the light of modern discovery and scientific research. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4583. Unlawful for officers to issue certificates in what cases.—It shall be unlawful for the dairy and food commissioner or his deputy or assistants while they hold office to furnish to any individual, firm or corporation any certificate as to the purity or excellence of any article manufactured or sold to or by them to be used as food or drug or in the preparation of foods or drugs. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4584. Annual report of commissioner; contents.—The commissioner shall make an annual report to the governor on or before the 31st day of August in each year which shall be printed and published at the expense of the state, which report shall cover the entire work of his office for the preceding year, and shall show, among other things, the number of manufactories and other places inspected and by whom, the number of specimens of food and drug articles analyzed, and the number of complaints entered against any person or persons for the violation of the laws relative to the adulteration of foods and drugs, the number of convictions had and the amount of fines imposed therefor, together with such recommendations relative to the statutes in force as his experience may justify. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 4585. Bulletins; notices of judgments.—The commissioner is hereby empowered with authority to issue bulletins quarterly, or as often as in his judgment he may deem advisable, showing the work of the commissioner. And he shall give notices of the judgments of the courts, by publication, in such manner as he may prescribe by the rules and regulations, and the expenses of such publications shall be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4585a. Condemnation, confiscation and forfeiture of articles adulterated or misbranded; suit, how brought; judgment; duties and fees of district and county attorneys; bond for delivery to owner.—That any article of food or drug that is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act shall be liable to be condemned, confiscated and forfeited by a suit, to be brought in the district court of the county where said article of food or drug is located, by a suit to be filed in said court in the name of the state of Texas as plaintiff, and in the name of the owner thereof as defendant, if said owner be known; if he be unknown, then in the name of said article of food or drug, and service shall be obtained in said cases in the same manner that the law provides that service shall be obtained in civil cases. That upon a trial of said case, if it be determined by the court or jury trying said case that said article of food or drug is misbranded or adulterated, or of a poisonous or deleterious character within the meaning of this Act, the same shall be disposed of by destruction or sale in accordance with the judgment of the court, and the proceeds thereof, if sold, less the legal cost and charges, shall be paid into the treasury of this state. And it is hereby made the duty of the different district and county attorneys in this state to file forfeiture and condemnation suits under this Act at the request of the dairy and food commissioner, and said district or county attorneys, as the case may be, shall be entitled to a fee of $15.00, to be paid out of the proceeds arising from the sale of the property condemned, said fee to be in addition to all other fees allowed by law, and shall be over and above the fees allowed under the general fee act of this state. It is further provided, that upon payment of the costs of such forfeiture or condemnation proceeding by the owner of the property proceeded against and by his executing and delivering a good and sufficient bond in double the value of the goods proceeded against, payable to the state of Texas, conditioned that said articles shall not be sold or otherwise disposed of contrary to the provisions of this Act, the court may by order direct that said goods be delivered to the owner thereof. In all proceedings begun under this section, either party may demand trial by jury, of any issue of fact joined in any such case, and all such proceedings shall be at the suit of and in the name of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4585b. Names and addresses of manufacturers and vendors to be registered with commissioner; fees; pure food fund.—All manufacturers of foods and drugs doing business in the state of Texas, or all such persons as shall bring into and offer for sale within the state any article of food or drug, shall annually register their firm names and addresses with the dairy and food commissioner and shall pay to said commissioner a fee of $1.00 for such registration on or before the first day of September of each year. Such fees shall be turned over by the commissioner to the state treasurer and set apart as a fund to be known as "The Pure Food Fund," which fund, or as much thereof as may be necessary, may, with the advice and consent of the governor, be used by the commissioner for paying the expenses of the dairy and food department. The amounts for such expenses shall be audited by the comptroller upon his warrant drawn upon the state treasury. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4585c. Additional assistants; compensation.—The said dairy and food commissioner shall be authorized to appoint, such additional inspectors, chemists, clerks and other additional assistants as in his judgment may be necessary, whose compensation shall be paid out of the registration fees and penalties collected by the commissioner. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4585d. Dairy and food department to assist.—The dairy and food department shall assist the state board of health in such manner and at such times as may be necessary for protecting the public health of the state. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4586. Manufacture and sale of adulterated and misbranded foods prohibited.—That no person, firm or corporation, shall within this state manufacture for sale, have in his possession with the intent to sell, offer or expose for sale, or sell or exchange any article of food, or drug which is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act. The term "food" as used herein shall include all articles used for food, drink, flavoring, confectionery or condiment, by man, whether simple, mixed or compounded. That the term "drug" as used in this Act shall include all medicines and preparations for internal or external use recognized in the United States Pharmacopœia or National Formulary, and any substance or mixture of substances intended to be used for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease of either man or animal. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4587. Drugs, confectionery and foods, when deemed adulterated.—That for the purposes of this Act an article shall be deemed to be adulterated: (a) In the case of drugs; (1) if, when sold under or by a name, recognized in the eighth decennial revision of the United States Pharmacopœia or in such United States Pharmacopœia as was official at the time of labeling it, or in the National Formulary, it differs from the standard strength, quality or purity laid down therein; (2) if, when sold under or by a name not recognized in the eighth decennial revision of the United States Pharmacopœia, but which is found in some other Pharmacopœia or other standard work on materia medica, it differs materially from the standard of strength, quality or purity laid down in such work; (3) if its strength, quality or purity falls below the professed standard under which it is sold. (b) In the case of confectionery: If it contain terra alba, barytes, talc, chrome yellow, or other mineral substance or poisonous color or flavor, or other ingredients deleterious or detrimental to health or any vinous, malt or spirituous liquor or compound, or narcotic drug. (c) In the case of food; (1) if any substance has been mixed and packed with it so as to reduce or lower or injuriously affect its quality or strength; (2) if any substance has been substituted wholly or in part for the article; (3) if any valuable constituent of the article has been wholly or in part abstracted, or if the product be below that standard of quality, quantity, strength or purity represented to the purchaser or consumer; (4) if it be mixed, colored or powdered, coated or stained in a manner whereby damage or inferiority is concealed; (5) if it contain any added poisonous or other added deleterious ingredient which may render such article injurious to health, provided, that when in the preparation of food products for shipment they are preserved by any external application applied in such manner that the preservative is necessarily removed mechanically, or by maceration in water or otherwise, and directions for the removal of said preservative shall be printed on the covering of the package, the provisions of this Act shall be construed as applying only when said products are ready for consumption; (6) if it consists in whole or in part of a filthy, decomposed or putrid animal or vegetable substance, or any portion of an animal or vegetable unfit for food, whether manufactured or not, or if it is the product of a diseased animal, or one that has died otherwise than by slaughter. For the purpose of this Act, the term "filthy" shall be deemed to apply to food not securely protected from flies, dust, dirt, and as far as may be necessary by all reasonable means from all foreign or injurious contaminations. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4588. Term "misbranded" defined.—That the term "misbranded," as used herein, shall apply to all drugs or articles of food or articles which enter into the composition of food, the package or label of which shall bear any statement, design or device regarding such article or the ingredients or substances contained therein which shall be false or misleading in any particular. That for the purposes of this Act an article shall also be deemed to be misbranded: (a) In the case of drugs; (1) if it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the name of another article; (2) if the contents of the package as originally put up shall have been removed in whole or in part and other contents shall have been placed in such package, or if the package fail to bear a statement on the label of the quantity or proportion of any morphine, phenacetin, opium, cocaine, heroin alpha, or beta eucaine, chloroform, cannabis indica, chloral hydrate, or acetanilid or any derivative or preparation of any such substances contained therein. (b) In the case of food: (1) if it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article; (2) if it be labeled or branded so as to deceive or mislead the purchaser or purport to be a foreign product when not so, or if the contents of the package as originally put up shall have been removed in whole or in part and other contents shall have been placed in such package, or if it fail to bear a statement on the label of the quantity or proportion of any morphine, opium, cocaine, heroin alpha, or beta eucaine, phenacetin, chloroform, cannabis indica, chloral hydrate or acetanilid, or any derivative or preparation of any of such substances contained therein; (3) if in package form and the contents are stated in terms of weight or measure, they are not plainly and correctly stated on the outside of the package; (4) if the package containing it or its labels bear any statement, design or device regarding the ingredients or the substances contained therein, which statement, design or device shall be false or misleading in any particular, provided that an article of food which does not contain any added poisonous or deleterious ingredient shall not be deemed to be adulterated or misbranded in the following cases: First in case of mixtures or compounds which may be now or from time to time hereafter known as articles of food, under their own distinctive names, and not an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article, if the name be accompanied on the same label or brand with a statement of the place where said article has been manufactured or produced; second, in the case of articles labeled, branded or tagged so as to plainly indicate that they are compounds, imitations or blends; that the term "blend," as used herein, shall be construed to mean a mixture of like substances, not excluding harmless coloring or flavoring ingredients used for the purpose or coloring and flavoring only; and provided, further, that nothing in this Act shall be construed as requiring or compelling proprietors or manufacturers of proprietary foods which contain no unwholesome added ingredients to disclose their trade formulas except in so far as the provisions of this Act may require to secure freedom from adulteration or misbranding. [Id. sec. 3.]

Arts. 4589, 4590. Repealed. See note under Art. 4575. The provision of Art. 4589 has been carried into section 2 of the new act (Art. 4587).

Constitutionality of act.—See note under Art. 4575.

Art. 4591. Manufacture and sale of certain foods, discolored and adulterated, prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person to manufacture, sell, offer or expose for sale or exchange any article of food to which has been added formaldehyde, boric acid or borates, benzoic acid or benzoate sulphurous acids or sulphites, salicylic acid or salicylates, abraltal, beta naphthal, fluorine compounds, dulcin, glucin cocaine, sulphuric acid or other mineral acid except phosphoric acid, any preparation of lead or copper or other ingredient injurious to health; provided, that nothing in this Act shall be construed as prohibiting the sale of catsups, sauces, concentrated fruits, fruit juices, and like substances preserved with one-tenth of one per cent of benzoate of soda, or the equivalent benzoic acid, when a statement of such fact is plainly indicated upon the label; provided, further, that the oxides of sulphur may be used for bleaching, clarifying and refining food products. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4592. Baking powder to be labeled, how.—Whoever manufactures for sale within this state, or offers or exposes for sale or exchange or sells any baking powder or compound intended for use as a baking powder under any name or title whatsoever shall securely affix or cause to be securely affixed to the outside of every box, can or package containing such baking powder or like mixture or compound a label distinctly printed in plain capital letters in the English language, containing the name and residence of the manufacturer or dealer, and the ingredients of the baking powder. Baking powder containing less than 10 per cent of available carbon dioxide shall be deemed to be adulterated. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4593. Sale of impure milk prohibited.—That it shall be unlawful for any person either by himself or agent to sell or expose for sale or exchange any unwholesome, watered, adulterated or impure milk or swill milk or colostrum, or milk from cows kept upon garbage, swill or any other substance in a state of putrefaction or other deleterious substances, or from cows kept in connection with any family in which there are infectious diseases, or from sick or diseased cows; provided, "skim milk" may be sold if on the can, or package from which such milk is old, the words "skim milk" are distinctly painted in letters not less than one inch in length. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4594. Repealed. See note under Art. 4575.

Art. 4595. Exemptions from prosecutions.—That no dealer shall be prosecuted under the provisions of this Act, when he can establish a guaranty signed by the wholesaler, jobber, manufacturer, or other party residing within this state or in the United States from whom he purchases such article, to the effect that the same is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act, designating it. Said guaranty, to afford protection, shall contain the name and address of the party making the sale of such articles to such dealer, and in such case said party or parties shall be amenable to the prosecutions, fines and other penalties, which would attach, in due course to the dealer under the provisions of this act. CHAPTER SEVEN

EMBALMING BOARD

Art.	Art.
4596. Embalming board; how constituted; terms of office; qualifications, how removed.	4601. Renewal of license, fee for.
4597. Board, when appointed; vacancies, when filled.	4602. License to be revoked, when, how.
4598. Certificates of appointment, members qualify.	4603. Department to be self-sustaining; moneys received, how appropriated.
4599. Duties and powers of board.	4604. Unlawful to practice without license.
4600. Application to engage in business, fee; skill required.	4605. Provisions of chapter do not apply to what.

Article 4596. Embalming board; how constituted; terms of office; qualifications, how removed.—The state board of embalming shall consist of five members to be appointed by the state board of health, and all vacancies occurring in the board shall be filled by the said board for the unexpired term. The term of each member of said board shall be for two years. The members of said board shall be practical embalmers, having experience in said business, and the care of, and the disposition of, dead human bodies. The members of said board shall be citizens of this state. The appointing board shall remove any member of said board for neglect of duty, incompetency or improper conduct. [Acts 1903, p. 123, sec. 1.]

Art. 4597. Board, when appointed; vacancies, when filled.—The board shall be appointed on or before the first day of June, and all vacancies occurring by the expiration of their respective terms of office shall be filled annually on the aforesaid date. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4598. Certificates of appointment; members qualify.—The state board of health shall furnish each person appointed to serve on the state board of embalming a certificate of appointment, and such appointee shall qualify by taking the usual oath of office before any officer authorized by law to administer oaths in this state, within ten days after said appointment has been made, and this fact shall be noted on the certificate of appointment, and shall be filed with the board of embalmers. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4599. Duties and powers of board.—The board of embalming shall have the power and it shall be its duty:

1. To prescribe a standard of proficiency as to the qualifications of those engaged, and who may engage, in the practice of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of dead bodies in this state.

2. To meet at least once in each year, and oftener, as the proper and efficient discharge of its duties may require. At least fifteen days' notice of the time and place of meeting of said board shall be given by publication in at least three daily newspapers published in different towns and cities of the state. Three members of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of all its business and the performance of all its duties.

3. To elect a president and secretary from the members of said board, who shall serve for one year, or until their successors shall be elected and qualified.

4. To adopt a common seal.

5. To adopt rules and regulations and by-laws from time to time not inconsistent with the laws of the state or the United States, whereby the performance of all the duties of said board and the practice of embalming dead human bodies shall be regulated. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4600. Application to engage in business; fee; skill required.—Every person engaged or desiring to engage in the practice of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of dead human bodies within the State of Texas shall make a written application to the state board of embalming for a license, accompanying the same with a license fee of five dollars, whereupon the applicant as aforesaid shall present himself or herself before said board at a time and place to be fixed by said board; and, if the board shall find upon examination that the applicant is of good moral character, possessed of the knowledge of the venous arterial system, the location of the heart, lungs, bladder, womb and other organs of the human body, and the location of abdominal, pleural and thoracic cavities, location of the carotid, brachial, radial, ulnar, femoral and tibial arteries, a knowledge of the science of embalming and the care and disposition of the dead, and has a reasonable knowledge of sanitation and the disinfection of bodies of diseased persons, and the apartment, clothing and bedding in case of death by infectious or contagious diseases, the board shall issue to said applicant a license as a duly licensed embalmer, authorizing him to practice the science of embalming. Such license shall be signed by a majority of the board and attested by its seal. All persons receiving license under the provisions of this chapter shall have said license registered in the county clerk's office in the county in the jurisdiction of which it is proposed to carry on said practice, and shall display said license in a conspicuous place of business of said person so licensed. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4601. Renewal of license; fee for.—Every registered embalmer, who desires to continue the practice of his profession, shall annually thereafter, during the time he shall continue in such practice, on such date as said board may determine, pay to the secretary of said board a fee of two dollars for the renewal of said license. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4602. License to be revoked, when, how.—The state board of embalming shall be and is hereby authorized to revoke any license issued by them for good and sufficient cause, subject to the right of appeal to the state board of health, whose decision shall be final. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4603. Department to be self-sustaining; moneys received, how appropriated.—All expense, salaries, and per diem to members of this board shall be paid from fees received under the provisions of this chapter, and shall in no manner be an expense to the state. All moneys received in excess of per diem allowance, and other expenses provided for, shall be held by the secretary of said board as a special fund for meeting the expenses of the board. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4604. Unlawful to practice without license.—It shall be unlawful for any person not a registered embalmer to embalm or pretend to practice the science of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of the dead, unless said person is a registered embalmer, within the meaning of this chapter. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4605. Provisions do not apply to what.—Nothing in this chapter shall apply to, or in any manner interfere with, the duties of any municipal, county and state officer, or state institution, nor apply to any person simply engaged in the furnishing of burial receptacles for the dead, but only to such person or persons engaged in the business of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of the dead. [Id. sec. 10.]

DECISIONS IN GENERAL

Removal of county physicians.—Where county removes physician appointed for stated time at stated salary without cause, held liable for salary less what he was able to earn because of release from duties as county physician. Galveston County v. Ducle, 91 T. 665, 45 S. W. 798.

TITLE 67

HOLIDAYS—LEGAL

Art.
4606. What are legal holidays.

4607. Arbor day.

Article 4606. What days are legal holidays.—The first day of January, the twenty-second day of February, the second day of March, the twenty-first day of April, the third day of June, the fourth day of July, the first Monday in September, the twelfth day of October, and the twenty-fifth day of December, of each year, and all days appointed by the president of the United States, or by the governor, as days of fasting or thanksgiving, and every day on which an election is held throughout the state, are declared holidays, on which all the public offices of the state may be closed, and shall be considered and treated as Sunday or the Christian Sabbath for all purposes regarding the presenting for payment or acceptance and of protesting for and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks and promissory notes placed by the law upon the footing of bills of exchange. [Acts 1893, p. 4. Acts 1911, p. 52, sec. 1, amending Art. 2939, Rev. St. 1895, as amended by Acts 1905, p. 14.]

Effect in general.—The statute does not require the public offices of the state to be closed on legal holidays, nor prohibit the courts from transacting business. In enumerating what is forbidden to be done on a holiday, and leaving the performance of other things discretionary, it is manifest that judicial acts, not specially prohibited, which are performed on that day, are not void. Houston & E. & W. Tex. Ry. Co. v. Harding, 63 T. 162; Williams v. Verne, 68 T. 414, 4 S. W. 548.

The provision that all public offices of the state may be closed on legal holidays is not mandatory. While a court may adjourn if it sees fit or may take no action on a legal holiday, yet any action taken by it would not be illegal. An indictment found by a grand jury impaneled on a legal holiday is not therefore invalid. Webb v. State (Cr. App.) 40 S. W. 989.

Judicial proceedings.—See notes under Art. 1816.

Art. 4607. [2940] Arbor day.—The twenty-second day of February of each year, the same being a legal holiday, is further set apart and designated as "Arbor Day," to be devoted to the planting and cultivation of forest, shade and ornamental trees throughout the state, and to be observed for that purpose in such manner as may seem best to the people of each community. HUSBAND AND WIFE

Chap.

1. Celebration of Marriage.

Chap.

3. Rights of Married Women.
4. Divorce.

CHAPTER ONE

CELEBRATION OF MARRIAGE

Art.

4608. Who are authorized to celebrate rites.
4609. Who are not permitted to marry.
4610. License.
4611. Consent of parent or guardian.
4612. Record and return of license.

Art.

4613. Certain intermarriages prohibited.
4614. Marriage by bond, etc., validated.
4615. Issue legitimated.
4616. Cohabitation of certain persons considered as marriage.

Article 4608. [2954] Who authorized to celebrate rites.—All regular licensed or ordained ministers of the gospel, Jewish rabbis, judges of the district and county courts, and all justices of the peace of the several counties are authorized to celebrate the rites of matrimony between all persons legally authorized to marry. [Act Nov. 1, 1866, p. 72. Acts 1891, p. 96. P. D. 7119.]

Applicability of statute in general.—The statute is merely directory, and the fact that the minister celebrating a marriage was not ordained as provided by law does not render the marriage void, provided there was a valid common-law marriage. Holder v. State, 35 Cr. R. 19, 29 S. W. 793.

Ceremonial marriage in general.—See Early Laws, arts. 212, 290, 1002.

A marriage duly solemnized in Texas, while subject to the laws of Mexico, though the husband might have had a former wife living, imposed upon the second wife, if ignorant of this fact, all the obligations and invested her with all the rights of a lawful wife, so long as this ignorance continued. Smith v. Smith, 1 T. 621, 46 Am. Dec. 121.

Recitals of the will of a mother held sufficient evidence, where undisputed, to prove coverture of a daughter at the time a cause of action arose and was instituted, and to prevent the bar of limitation. Summerhill v. Darrow, 94 T. 71, 57 S. W. 942.

Where a man and woman, after being married once, have a second ceremony performed, the first marriage not being dissolved, the second marriage, though of no effect if the first was legal, will be effective if the first was void. Knapp v. State, 54 Cr. R. 633, 114 S. W. 836, 130 Am. St. Rep. 903.

Certain facts held to raise a presumption that a ceremonial marriage was valid. Clayton v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1082.

In an action for partition, evidence held to show a ceremonial marriage between plaintiff's parents. Id.

Where a formal marriage is proved, evidence simply that the parties were reputed in the locality to be unmarried is insufficient as a matter of law to disprove the marriage. Id.

Marriage may be contracted without complying with the statutes, and without any ceremony by an officer or minister of the gospel. Grigsby v. Reib (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1124.

Nature of marriage.—As to marriages in Texas prior to the adoption of the common law, see Smith v. Smith, 1 T. 621, 46 Am. Dec. 121; Yates v. Houston, 3 T. 433; Nichols v. Stewart, 15 T. 226; Wheat v. Owens, 15 T. 241, 65 Am. Dec. 164; Lee v. Smith, 18 T. 141; Carroll v. Carroll, 20 T. 731; Rice v. Rice, 31 T. 174; Lewis v. Ames, 44 T. 319; Routh v. Routh, 57 T. 589.

In Protestant countries marriage is regarded as a civil contract, subject to the control and regulation of the law of the state; nothing more is needed to constitute it a valid contract than capacity to contract, and mutual consent and mutual wills, expressed in the manner prescribed for its proper attestation and authentication. Rice v. Rice, 31 T. 174; First Nat. Bank v. Sharpe, 12 C. A. 223, 33 S. W. 676.

Under the law of Mexico in force in Texas prior to the revolution, marriage was regarded as a civil contract, but it was not constituted by mere cohabitation without an intention to enter into a state of matrimony and assume its duties and obligations. Lewis v. Ames, 44 T. 319.

The relation of husband and wife, and the rights, privileges, duties, and obligations arising therefrom, are precisely the same whether the marriage was a common-law or statutory one. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

Husband and wife are living together when they occupy the same dwelling, eat at the same table, hold themselves to the world, and conduct themselves as husband and wife. Levy v. Goldsoll (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 420.

Marriage is not a contract, but a status created by the mutual consent of one man and one woman. Grigsby v. Reib (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1124.

— As abating suit.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 7.

Common-law marriage—Requisites and validity.—A marriage regularly made according to the common law without observing the statute regulations is a valid marriage. Holden v. State, 35 Cr. R. 19, 29 S. W. 793. See Telegraph Co. v. Proctor, 25 S. W. 811, 6 C. A. 300; Chapman v. Chapman, 11 C. A. 392, 32 S. W. 564.

Evidence held to show a common-law marriage. Simmons v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 639; Edelstein v. Brown, 95 S. W. 1126; Harlan v. Harlan, 125 S. W. 950; Schwingle v. Keifer, 135 S. W. 194.

A marriage under common law or license regularly issued is valid. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cody, 20 C. A. 520, 50 S. W. 135.

Sufficiency of evidence to show marriage reviewed. Cuneo v. De Cuneo, 24 C. A. 436, 59 S. W. 284.

Where a man and woman commenced to cohabit at a time when the woman was the wife of another, subsequently holding themselves out as husband and wife held not to establish a common-law marriage. Edelstein v. Brown, 35 C. A. 625, 80 S. W. 1027.

A common-law marriage is valid. Burnett v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 238; Harlan v. Harlan, 125 S. W. 950. And sufficient to sustain a conviction of bigamy. Burks v. State, 50 Cr. R. 47, 94 S. W. 1040.

The rule as to the evidence required to show a common-law marriage stated. Edelstein v. Brown (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1126.

On an issue as to whether defendant had been the husband of a certain woman, evidence held to justify a finding that on the granting of a divorce to the woman from another she and defendant had agreed to become husband and wife. Id.

If the parties are within the marriageable age, a common-law marriage is valid. Jackson v. Banister, 47 C. A. 317, 105 S. W. 66.

Living together as man and wife under a mutual agreement to live in the relation constitutes a common-law marriage. Knight v. State, 55 Cr. R. 243, 116 S. W. 56.

A common-law marriage should be satisfactorily proved. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

Consent of the parties to be husband and wife, and not merely living together, constitutes a common-law marriage. Id.

A common-law marriage exists when a man and woman enter into an agreement to become husband and wife, and in pursuance of such agreement to live together and cohabit as husband and wife, and hold each other out to the public as husband and wife. Wofford v. State, 60 Cr. R. 624, 122 S. W. 929; Berger v. Kirby, 105 T. 611, 153 S. W. 1130.

Evidence, in an action to recover personalty belonging to a decedent, on the ground that plaintiff was his wife, held to sustain a finding that she made no agreement to become decedent's wife, or that any agreement made was not made in good faith with intention to cohabit thereunder. Grigsby v. Reib (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1027.

Marriage by cohabitation and reputation.—Where the only evidence relied on to prove marriage is of cohabitation and repute, then reputation inconsistent with the matrimonial character of the parties is sufficient to make an issue of fact. Clayton v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1082.

To establish a marriage by reputation, there must be a consensus of opinion that the parties living together are husband and wife. Schwingle v. Keifer (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 194.

A marriage held not a putative marriage. Walker v. Walker's Estate (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145.

Consent of parties in general.—The mutual consent of the parties is necessary to the creation of the marriage relation; the contract being a civil contract in that a church ordinance or rite is not required. Grigsby v. Reib (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1124.

Marriage by mutual agreement.—A contract per verba de presenti or per verba de futuro cum copula is a valid common-law marriage. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

A mere agreement to become husband and wife without a present intention to assume that relation does not constitute a marriage. Grigsby v. Reib (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1027.

A present agreement to be husband and wife, not followed by cohabitation, does not constitute a valid marriage. Grigsby v. Reib (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1124.

To constitute a valid marriage by agreement, the cohabitation must be professedly as husband and wife, so that the parties may be known as husband and wife by their conduct. Id.

An agreement between a man and woman that they would live together so long as they desired but either could dissolve the marriage at any time, did not constitute a lawful marriage by agreement. Schwingle v. Keifer, 105 T. 609, 153 S. W. 1132.

Pleading allowing proof of common-law marriage.—See notes under Art. 1827, § 114½.

Duress.—A marriage consummated while the man is under arrest for seducing the woman, and on the advice of the officers of the law and bystanders that, by marrying, the party under arrest would be relieved from further prosecution, is not void on the ground of duress. Johns v. Johns, 44 T. 40.

Certain facts held not to show a marriage under duress. Merrell v. Moore, 47 C. A. 200, 104 S. W. 514.

Ratification.—One held to have ratified a marriage entered into under duress. Merrell v. Moore, 47 C. A. 200, 104 S. W. 514.

Effect of informal or invalid marriage.—See notes under Arts. 4621, 4622.

Art. 4609. [2955] Who not permitted to marry.—Males under sixteen and females under fourteen years of age shall not marry. [Id.]

Persons who may marry.—Bigamy is prohibited, but a person is not punishable therefor whose husband or wife has been continually remaining out of the state, or shall have voluntarily withdrawn from the other and remained absent for five years, the person marrying again not knowing the other to be living within that time. Divorced persons may marry. A man cannot marry his mother, his father's sister or half-sister, his mother's sister or half-sister, his daughter, the daughter of his father, mother, brother or sister, or of his half-brother or sister, the daughter of his son or daughter, his father's widow, his son's widow, his wife's daughter, or the daughter of his wife's son or daughter. A woman cannot marry her father, her father's brother or half-brother, her own brother or half-brother, her son, the son of her brother or sister, or of her half-brother or half-sister, the son of her son or daughter, her mother's husband after the death of her mother, her daughter's husband after the death of her daughter, her husband's son, the son of her husband's son or daughter. P. C. 481-485.

A female under eighteen years of age married without the consent of her parents, the license having been procured by her husband by fraudulent representation and false swearing. On information thereof and before cohabitation, she repudiated the ceremony, abandoned her husband and brought suit for divorce. Held, that the marriage was properly declared to be void. Robertson v. Cole, 12 T. 356.

A husband and wife separated in 1829. They lived at places remote from each other, and the wife married again in 1835, and the husband in 1837. The husband and last wife lived together as man and wife until his death in 1853. In a controversy between a child by the first wife and the second wife and her children, it was held that the second marriage of the husband was valid without proof of a divorce, although the second wife knew of the first marriage of her husband, the first wife living, but again married. Carroll v. Carroll, 20 T. 731.

Even if a woman married her putative husband in good faith, believing that he had been divorced, he being in fact married at the time, her marriage to him was void. Midleton v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 789.

An agreement to live together as husband and wife, made during the lifetime of the wife of one of the parties, was void and could not constitute a marriage. Grigsby v. Reib (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1027.

In view of this article, the offense of seduction, which consists of having carnal knowledge of a female with her consent, obtained under a promise of marriage, may be committed with a girl under 15 years of age at the time, and the fact that, as the girl had not arrived at the age of 15 years, the offender might be guilty of rape, does not affect the state's right to prosecute for seduction. Murphy v. State (Cr. App.) 143 S. W. 616.

— Liability of minor for breach of contract.—See notes under Title 94.

— Presumptions and burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12, and Art. 5707.

Art. 4610. [2956] License.—Any person desirous of marrying shall apply to the clerk of the county court, and shall receive from him a license directed to all persons authorized by law to celebrate the rites of matrimony, which shall be sufficient authority for any one of such persons to celebrate such marriage. [Act June 5, 1837. P. D. 4666.]

Licenses and licensing officers—Failure to procure license.—It is not a prerequisite to the validity of a marriage that a license issue. Chapman v. Chapman, 11 C. A. 392, 32 S. W. 564; Burks v. State, 50 Cr. R. 47, 94 S. W. 1040.

— Authority to issue license.—See Art. 1752.

A deputy county clerk held authorized to issue marriage licenses. Mahon v. State, 46 Cr. R. 234, 79 S. W. 28.

— Duty and liability of officers.—In action by a father against a clerk for illegal issuance of a marriage license to his minor daughter, plaintiff held estopped, by statement made to daughter, from saying she did not have his consent. Evans v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 143.

When application is made to clerk for marriage license it is his duty to ascertain whether he is authorized to issue license. Id.

A clerk who issued a marriage license to a girl but a few months over 14 years of age held not liable to the parent for the loss of the daughter's services. Jackson v. Banister, 47 C. A. 317, 105 S. W. 66.

Art. 4611. [2957] Consent of parent or guardian, etc.; consent of county judge when no parent or guardian.—No clerk shall issue a license without the consent of the parent or guardian of the parties applying, if there be a legally appointed guardian of either party to such license, said consent to be given in person or in writing, signed and acknowledged by said parent or guardian before an officer authorized to take acknowledgements, unless the parties so applying shall be, in case of the male twenty-one years of age, and in case of the female eighteen years of age, and if there be any doubt in the mind of the clerk of the county court issuing such license, he shall not issue said license unless there shall be presented to him a certificate under oath from their parent or guardian or some person other than the contracting parties that the contracting parties have attained the ages aforesaid; provided, further, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the issuance of marriage license in seduction prosecution. Provided, that in cases where any minor has neither parent nor guardian, then the clerk shall not issue a license without the consent of the county judge of the county of the residence of such minor, such consent to be in writing and signed and acknowledged by such county judge. [Acts 1911, p. 63, sec. 1, amending Art. 2957, Rev. St. 1895.]

Art. 4612. [2958] Record and return of licenses.—The said clerk shall record all licenses so issued by him in a well-bound book kept for that purpose; and it shall also be the duty of the persons solemnizing the rites of matrimony to indorse the same on the license and make return of the same to the office of the clerk of the county court within sixty days after the celebration aforesaid; which return shall also be recorded as aforesaid. [P. D. 4668.]

Return and record of licenses.—The return on a marriage license is admissible to prove the date of marriage. Stoker v. Patton (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 64.

A marriage license is an instrument authorized to be recorded, and a certified copy thereof is inadmissible in evidence in a trial for bigamy, unless it has been filed among the papers in the case three days before the trial. Burton v. State, 51 Cr. R. 196, 101 S. W. 228.

The record of a marriage license and the return thereof is not constructive notice to a third person dealing with either spouse, of his or her relation to the other. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

Art. 4613. [2959] Certain intermarriages prohibited.—It shall not be lawful for any person of Caucasian blood or their descendants to intermarry with Africans or the descendants of Africans; and, should any person as aforesaid violate the provisions of this article, such marriage shall be null and void. [P. D. 4670. P. C. 326.]

Presumptions arising from cohabitation.—As the laws forbid the intermarriage of the white and black races, such marriage will not be presumed from the cohabitation, as man and wife, of a white man with a mulatto woman, from 1837 until his death in 1868. Oldham v. McIver, 49 T. 556, citing Clements v. Crawford, 42 T. 601, and overruling Honey v. Clark, 37 T. 686.

Marriage of slaves.—As to marital rights of persons held in slavery, see Honey v. Clark, 37 T. 686; Clements v. Crawford, 42 T. 601; Oldham v. McIver, 49 T. 556; Kinlow v. Kinlow, 72 T. 639, 10 S. W. 729.

Where slaves cohabiting together continued to live together as man and wife after their emancipation, their marital status became legal, entitling the wife and her children to property acquired during the existence of such relation. Waff v. Sessums, 28 C. A. 183, 66 S. W. 865.

Art. 4614. [2960] Marriages by bond, etc., validated.—Whereas, many persons heretofore, previous to the passage of an act approved June 5, 1837, regulating marriages, and for other purposes, had, for the want of some person legally qualified to celebrate the rites of matrimony, resorted to the practice of marrying by bond, and others have been married by various officers of justice not authorized to celebrate such marriages, and whereas, public policy and the interest of families require a further legislative action on the subject, therefore, all such marriages are declared legal and valid to all intents and purposes, and the issue of such persons are declared legitimate children and capable of inheritance. [Act Feb. 5, 1840. P. D. 4671.]

Legalizing marriages.—By the ordinance and decree of 1836 (1 Early Laws, art. 212), marriages under existing laws were declared legal. After that date marriages could be celebrated by judges, alcaldes, commissaries and ministers of the gospel.

By the act of June 5, 1837 (1st Cong., p. 233; 1 Early Laws, art. 290), former marriages were legalized on condition that the parties publicly solemnized the rites before a proper officer within six months from the passage of the law. All former marriages where either party died while living as husband or wife with the other were declared legal, and the children were legitimized.

In 1832 A. and B. contracted marriage by bond and lived together a few months. In 1834 C. and B., living together as man and wife, and having a child about six months old, contracted marriage by bond, A. and B. having previously canceled their bond. A short time afterwards C., while living with B. as man and wife, died. Held, that the second marriage was legalized by legislation on that subject, and the issue of C. and B. legitimated. Nichols v. Stewart, 15 T. 226.

A man married a wife in Texas before an alcalde in 1831. The marriage, not having been solemnized by a Catholic priest, was void. In 1834 he separated from his wife and was married to another by a person without official authority, and continued to live with the second wife until 1857, when he deserted her and married a third wife. Held, that the second marriage was legalized by the acts of 1836, 1837 and 1841, and the first and third marriages were void. Rice v. Rice, 31 T. 175.

Marriages by bond.—Parties were married in Texas by bond on the 23d of July, 1830, but separated prior to the death of the husband in 1835. The question being whether a child born of the marriage was the legal heir of the father and could inherit his estate, it was held that the contract of marriage evidenced by the bond above mentioned was valid. Sapp v. Newson, 27 T. 537.

Art. 4615. [2961] Issue legitimated.—In cases where persons have so intermarried agreeably to the custom of the times, and where husband or wife has since died, then and in that case the issue of such marriages are hereby legitimated. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4672.]

Art. 4616. [2962] Cohabitation of certain persons considered as marriage.—All persons who at any time heretofore have lived together as man and wife, and both of whom, by the laws of bondage, were precluded from the rites of matrimony, and continued to live together until the death of one of the parties, shall be considered as having been legally married, and the issue of such cohabitation is declared legitimate; and all such persons as were so living together in such relation on the fifteenth day of August, 1870, shall be considered as having been legally married, and the children heretofore or hereafter born of such cohabitations are declared legitimate. [Act Aug. 15, 1870, p. 127. P. D. 7120.]

Hearsay evidence of marriage.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 85.

CHAPTER TWO

MARRIAGE CONTRACTS

Art. 4617. What stipulation may be made.
4618. How authenticated.

Art. 4619. Can not be altered after marriage.
4620. Reservation by wife to be recorded.

Article 4617. [2963] What stipulations may be made.—Parties intending to enter into the marriage state may enter into what stipulations they please, provided they be not contrary to good morals or to some rule of law; and in no case shall they enter into any agreement, or make any renunciation, the object of which would be to alter the legal orders of descent, either with respect to themselves, in what concerns the inheritance of their children or posterity, which either may have by any other person, or in respect to their common children; nor shall they make any valid agreement to impair the legal rights of the husband over the person of the wife, or the persons of their common children. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4632.]

Registration of marriage contract.—See notes under Title 118.

Art. 4618. [2964] How authenticated.—Every matrimonial agreement must be acknowledged before some officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments to deeds, and attested by at least two witnesses; the minor capable of contracting matrimony may give his consent to any agreement which this contract is susceptible of, but such agreement must be made by the written consent of both parents, if both be living; if not, by that of the survivor; if both be dead, then by the written consent of the guardian of such minor. [P. D. 4633.]

Art. 4619. [2965] Can not be altered after marriage.—No matrimonial agreement shall be altered after the celebration of the marriage.

Postnuptial acts or agreements.—A postnuptial agreement between husband and wife cannot change their property rights to that of partners, or convert community property into separate property. Cannon v. Boutwell, 53 T. 626; Cox v. Miller, 54 T. 16; Green v. Ferguson, 62 T. 525; Miller v. Marx, 65 T. 131; Graham v. Stuve, 76 T. 533, 13 S. W. 381; Proetzell v. Schroeder, 83 T. 684, 19 S. W. 292; Engleman v. Deal, 14 C. A. 1, 37 S. W. 652.

A postnuptial contract between husband and wife, renouncing her interest in the community property which they possess or may thereafter acquire, is a nullity. Proetzell v. Schroeder, 83 T. 684, 19 S. W. 292.

Art. 4620. [2966] Reservation by wife must be recorded.—When the wife, by a marriage contract, may reserve to herself any property, or rights to property, whether such rights be in esse or expectancy, such reservation, to be valid as to the subsequent purchasers or creditors of her husband, must be acknowledged and recorded as provided by law. [P. D. 4635.]

Article 4621. [2967] Separate property; management; joinder of husband; permission by district court where husband refuses to join, etc.; wife's property not subject to husband's debts; conveyance of homestead.—All property, both real and personal, of the husband owned or claimed by him before marriage, and that acquired afterwards by gift, devise or descent, as also the increase of all lands thus acquired shall be his separate property. The separate property of the husband shall not be subject to the debts contracted by the wife, either before or after marriage, except for necessities furnished herself and children after her marriage with him. All property of the wife both real and personal, owned or claimed by her before marriage, and that acquired afterwards by gift, devise or descent, as also the increase of all lands thus acquired be shall be the separate property of the wife. During marriage the husband shall have the sole management, control and disposition of his separate property, both real and personal, and the wife shall have the sole management, control and disposition of her separate property, both real and personal; provided, however, the joinder of the husband in the manner now provided by law for conveyance of the separate real estate of the wife shall be necessary to an encumbrance or conveyance by the wife of her lands, and the joint signature of the husband and wife shall be necessary to a transfer of stocks and bonds belonging to her or of which she may be given control by this Act; provided, also, that if the husband shall refuse to join in such encumbrance, or conveyance, or transfer of such property the wife may apply to the district court of the county of her residence, and it shall be the duty of the court, in term time or vacation, upon satisfactory proof that such encumbrance, conveyance or transfer would be advantageous to the interest of the wife, to make an order granting her permission to make such encumbrance, conveyance or transfer without the joinder of her husband, in which event she may encumber, convey or transfer said property without such joinder. Neither the separate property of the wife, nor the rents from the wife's separate real estate, nor the interest on bonds and notes belonging to her, nor dividends on stocks owned by her, nor her personal earnings shall be subject to the payment of debts contracted by the husband. The homestead, whether the separate property of the husband or wife, or the community property of both, shall not be disposed of except by the

1. Applicability in general.—This article applies to real estate owned by nonresidents. Heldenheimer v. Loring, 6 C. A. 560, 26 S. W. 99.

2. Definitions—"Acquired"—"Claim"—"Owned or claimed."—Under this article and Art. 4621, ownership resting in adverse possession for 10 years, existing in part before marriage and in part after marriage, is community property; the word "acquired" denoting all property coming to husband or wife during coverture by title, other than by gift, devise, or descent; and the word "claim," when applied to land, importing a legal or equitable right to the land; and the words "owned or claimed" signifying a legal or equitable ownership, or legal or equitable right to demand the land. Sauvage v. Vauhoh (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 259.

3. "All property, both real and personal."—There being no statute limiting the power of a married woman in the conveyance of any of her separate property, if joined by her husband, and the phrase, "all property, both real and personal," as used in the statute as designating the property that shall constitute separate property, being used in a general sense, a married woman, joined by her husband, can make a valid conveyance of her expectancy in the community estate of her mother. Daggett v. Barre (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1099.

4. — "Increase."—Profits arising from the sale of the lands of a married woman, the husband as her agent continuing to buy with her funds and sell, are within the term "increase" in this article. Evans v. Purinton, 12 C. A. 158, 34 S. W. 350.

5. Adverse possession between husband and wife.—See, also, notes under Art. 5681. Where a wife went into adverse possession before marriage, and the title ripened by limitation during marriage, held, the land is her separate property. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Speights (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 572.

Where title to land occupied by a husband and wife is perfected by adverse possession after his death, the land becomes the wife's separate estate. Cook v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 279.

6. Separate estate of husband in general.—Whether a grant of land to a colonist was separate or community property is determined as follows: If the surviving husband received the grant by reason of his immigration, etc., independent of his status as a married man at the date of his wife's death, it was his separate property. If an increased quantity was given to the survivor by reason of the fact that at the date of the death of the wife he was then a married man it was community property. Hodge v. Donald, 55 T. 344; Wimberly v. Pabst, 55 T. 587. See Durst v. Dougherty, 81 T. 650, 17 S. W. 388; Proetzel v. Schroeder, 83 T. 684, 19 S. W. 292; Stiles v. Japhet, 84 T. 91, 19 S. W. 450; Gaston v. Wright, 83 T. 282, 18 S. W. 576.

Land acquired by a surviving husband under an act of the legislature granting land to settlers in Peters' colony, passed after the death of the wife, is the separate property of the husband. McReynolds v. Bowlby, 1 U. C. 452.

Evidence held to establish that a business of the husband was his separate property. Holloway v. Shuttles, 21 C. A. 188, 51 S. W. 293.

Land in the state purchased by a married man with money earned during coverture in Massachusetts is his sole property, and the wife on divorce is not entitled to one-half thereof. Blethen v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 571.

Land purchased by a husband before his marriage is his separate property, and, if paid for with community funds, the community estate is entitled to a reimbursement. Hillen v. Williams, 25 C. A. 268, 60 S. W. 997.

A husband, by purchasing an outstanding title to the wife's property with community property, acquired no interest therein. Gebhart v. Gebhart (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 964.

An insurance policy on the life of the wife, paid for with community funds, on the death of the wife becomes the separate property of the husband. Martin v. McAllister, 94 T. 567, 63 S. W. 625.

Where a husband furnished $1,500 of the purchase price of certain land out of his separate property, to that extent the land became his separate estate. Letot v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1121.

Where a husband who had been occupying public land with his wife applied after her death for a survey, and obtained patent, the land is his separate land, and no interest vested in the wife. Simpson v. Oats (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 940.

An interest in real estate inherited by a man is his separate property. Sauvage v. Wauhup (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 259.

If an assignment of a headright certificate to an assignee, who obtained a patent in 1852, was prior to the holder's divorce from his wife, the title to the whole land passed to the assignee, and third persons could acquire no title under the wife. Steddum v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 273.

7. Foreclosure—Judgment against wife.—The court in a suit to foreclose a mortgage executed by a mortgagor who was single at the time held not authorized to render judgment against his wife. Adams v. Bartell, 46 C. A. 349, 102 S. W. 779.

8. Conveyances or gifts by wife to or for husband.—A wife, joined by her husband, can convey her separate property to a third person, who may convey to the husband. Riley v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 394, 86 T. 240.

Facts held not to raise a presumption that a wife had made a gift to her husband. Tilson v. Gass, 46 C. A. 163, 102 S. W. 751.

Conveyances held not to make land the separate property of the husband, and the conveyances were only valid in so far as they subjected the land to the payment of money borrowed. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 638.

9. Conveyances in trust.—Under wife's conveyance of her separate estate to her husband as trustee, with power to use and invest at such times as he in his discretion may see proper, after investing in land, he had power to sell and reinvest. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Massie, 94 T. 339, 60 S. W. 544.

10. Conveyances of husband's separate estate.—Land, title to which is in the husband before marriage, is his separate property, and may be conveyed without his wife's consent, where it has not become their homestead. Wright v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1096.

11. Actions by husband.—In a suit by a husband for value of timber cut from land which is his separate property, his wife is neither a necessary nor proper party. Railway Co. v. Starr, 22 C. A. 353, 55 S. W. 393.

In an action of trespass to try title by the husband and wife, an appeal can be prosecuted by him from a judgment rendered in favor of defendants. Corley v. Renz (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 935.

12. Abandonment by husband as affecting rights of parties.—A husband, having unjustifiably abandoned his wife, held not entitled to any part of the rental value of his property in his wife's possession during her life, but was entitled to one-half of the rents accruing therefrom thereafter. Cervantes v. Cervantes (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 790.

13. Separate property and rights of husband and wife in general.—Money or property received for the sale of, or in exchange for, the separate property of either husband or wife, remains separate property. McIntyre v. Chappell, 4 T. 187; Love v. Robertson, 7 T. 6, 56 Am. Dec. 41; Huston v. Curl, 8 T. 239, 58 Am. Dec. 110; Rose v. Houston, 11 T. 324, 62 Am. Dec. 478; Chapman v. Allen, 15 T. 278; Schneider v. Fowler, 1 App. C. § 856; Smith v. Bailey, 66 T. 553, 1 S. W. 627; Bank v. Weems, 69 T. 499, 6 S. W. 802, 5 Am. St. Rep. 85; Cabell v. Mencer (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 206.

A husband and wife, as regards their individual property, are separate and distinct persons. He cannot bind her separate property, dispose of it, subject it to the payment of debts, or renew a debt for which it was bound, so as to prevent the bar of the statute of limitations. Read v. Allen, 56 T. 176; Milburn v. Walker, 11 T. 344; McGee v. White, 23 T. 180.

An annuity due a person before marriage and payable thereafter is separate property. Krohn v. Krohn, 23 S. W. 848, 5 C. A. 125.

Where the origin of the title precedes the marriage, land acquired during the marriage is the separate property of the spouse in whom the title originates. Welder v. Lambert, 91 T. 510, 44 S. W. 281.

Where a husband and wife actually separate for good, a division of their community property fairly consummated is effectual, and what each obtains becomes separate property. Batla v. Batla (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 664.

Where a husband and wife, who had permanently separated, divided their community estate, in a suit by the wife to set aside the settlement as having been procured by fraud the husband's relation to her should be considered, in connection with the circumstances surrounding the transaction, in determining its character. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

Where a deed was intended as a joint gift to a husband and wife, they were each invested with an undivided half of the land as their separate property. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

The rule that a title when perfected, relates back to and takes effect from the time of its origin, and that the status of property, as separate or community, is determined by the character of the right in which it had its inception, does not apply where a claim to property rests on adverse possession, partly before and partly during marriage, but applies only where the right to the land is referred, in the first instance, to some legal or equitable claim before marriage. Sauvage v. Wauhop (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 259.

Where property is purchased partly with the separate estate of the wife and partly with community funds, the wife acquires a separate interest proportionate to the amount of her separate estate. Texas Moline Plow Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 266.

In a controversy to which the state is not a party, whether public land purchased from the state in the name of either husband or wife is community property or separate property must be determined by the character of the right by which the title thereto had its inception. McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1157.

14. Separate estate of wife in general.—A wife, by purchase or gift from her husband or others, can acquire property in her own right without the intervention of a trustee. Reynolds v. Lansford, 16 T. 286; Smith v. Strahan, 16 T. 314, 67 Am. Dec. 622; Story v. Marshall, 24 T. 305, 76 Am. Dec. 106; Price v. Cole, 35 T. 461; Ryan v. Ryan, 61 T. 473; Peters v. Clements, 46 T. 125; Baldrige v. Scott, 48 T. 178; Hall v. Hall, 52 T. 294, 86 Am. Rep. 725; McCormick v. McNeel, 53 T. 15.

A non-negotiable note given for the separate property of the wife and payable to her order is her separate property. Hamilton v. Brooks, 51 T. 142; Morris v. Edwards, 1 App. C. C. § 548; Kemper v. Comer, 73 T. 196, 11 S. W. 194.

The mere deposit of money by a husband to the account of his wife, a receipt for the same being taken in her name, does not of itself show that it was intended as a gift to the wife as her separate property. Wellborn v. O. F. B. & E. C., 56 T. 501, citing Mitchell v. Marr, 26 T. 329; Huston v. Curl, 8 T. 239, 58 Am. Dec. 110; Veramendi v. Hutchins, 48 T. 531.

When property is purchased partly with the means of the wife, her interest is proportionate to the amount paid by her. Cleveland v. Cole, 65 T. 402, citing Love v. Robertson, 7 T. 6, 56 Am. Dec. 41; Claiborne v. Tanner, 18 T. 68; Zorn v. Tarver, 45 T. 519; Battle v. John, 49 T. 203; Braden v. Gose, 57 T. 37.

The right of a married woman to own property is as absolute as that of her husband. Montgomery v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 1304.

A stock of goods, the separate property of the husband at the date of his marriage, was from time to time replenished and increased until the wife's death. The property to the extent of the value of the goods at the date of the marriage was protected against those claiming through the deceased wife. Schmidt v. Huppmann, 73 T. 112, 11 S. W. 175.

A contract to acquire land by a married woman by means of a land certificate held by her as her separate property may be by parol. Ikard v. Thompson, 81 T. 285, 16 S. W. 1019; Bennett v. Virginia Ranch, Land & Cattle Co., 21 S. W. 126, 1 C. A. 321.

The earnings of the wife, as between her and her husband, are her separate property. Cavil v. Walker, 26 S. W. 854, 7 C. A. 305.

Where separate funds of the wife and community funds are used for the purchase of land, she has an equitable interest in the land proportioned to her investment. Godard v. Reagan, 28 S. W. 352, 8 C. A. 272.

If a husband conveys community property to his wife, this converts it into her separate property. Hunter v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 820.

When the policy is payable to the wife, the obligation which it evidences is her separate property, and when the note, to secure which the policy has been transferred, becomes barred, the wife can plead the statute of limitation, the husband being dead, in a suit on the note. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Gooding, 19 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 123.

A conveyance by husband and wife of property in trust for the support of the wife and children, and education of the latter, but does not prescribe how the property will devolve after the trust is executed, carves out of the estate a usufructuary interest in favor of the wife and children and leaves the remainder unaffected, and hence subject to alienation by the grantors. Monday v. Vance, 92 T. 423, 49 S. W. 516.

A married woman, with consent of her husband, may settle on public lands. Barnett v. Murray (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 784.

Property purchased and paid for with the wife's own money would be separate property. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

Where a married woman and her husband bought a home partly with money which the wife owned in her separate right, subsequently mortgaged the home, in litigation which ensued the husband deposited in court the amount due on the mortgage to avoid foreclosure, a large part of which was furnished by the wife's son with the understanding that on a sale of the home it should be paid to her for her separate use, and upon a sale in which she joined on her husband's promise to reimburse her for the amounts which she put into the home and which her son advanced, the husband deposited such amounts in a bank in her name, the deposit was her separate estate and was not subject to her husband's debt to the bank. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Center v. Hill (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 526.

That a wife permitted a strip of land owned individually by her in a city to be platted and used by the tenants occupying adjoining lots owned by her husband did not affect her separate title as against the husband's heir. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 705.

Where a husband and wife agree that certain horses and their increase shall be the wife's separate property, and he brands them with her recorded brand, the agreement is binding upon him and his heirs and invalid only as to community creditors. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

Where a married woman's money is invested in land in her husband's name, she owns, in her separate right, a part of the land proportionate to the amount of her funds invested therein. Kingman-Texas Implement Co. v. Herring Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 394.

Where title to land occupied by a husband and wife is perfected by adverse possession after his death, the land becomes the wife's separate estate. Cook v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 279.

A married woman with her husband's consent may purchase public school land from the state. McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1157.

Where a third person agreed to give a wife money to buy land from the state, the first payment was made out of money so given, and it was intended that deferred payments would be so made, the land was her separate property, though the husband joined in notes for such deferred payments, and a judgment against the husband was not a lien thereon. Id.

15. What law governs.—Evidence held not to show that common-law rule as to marital rights of wife in respect to her separate estate prevailed in foreign state. Clardy v. Wilson, 24 C. A. 196, 58 S. W. 52.

16. Conveyances or gifts to or for use of wife as her separate property.—Land conveyed to a married woman by a deed of gift is her separate property. Fisk v. Flores, 43 T. 340; Ames v. Hubby, 49 T. 710; Samuelson v. Bridges, 25 S. W. 636, 6 C. A. 425.

Property conveyed to a wife "to her sole and separate use" becomes her separate property, whether the consideration was paid with separate or community funds. Morrison v. Clark, 55 T. 437.

A husband can make a conveyance to the wife of his separate property, or of the community property, so as to vest the title in her as separate property, provided the rights of creditors are not encroached upon. Brown v. Brown, 61 T. 56; Rily v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 394, 86 T. 240.

A husband, being indebted to the wife, conveyed to her a certain tract of land for the purpose of discharging said debt, but without the knowledge or consent of the wife. At the time of the delivery of the deed to the wife she was informed by her husband that he had previously conveyed the land to his father by a deed then unrecorded. Held, that the wife could not, as a bona fide purchaser, hold the land against the prior unrecorded deed. Pearce v. Jackson, 61 T. 642.

A husband, being indebted to the wife on account of her separate funds used by him, in pursuance of an agreement between them, paid for a tract of land, which by his direction was conveyed to the wife in payment of such indebtedness. Held, that the land was her separate property. McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 648; Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 390.

The application of the separate funds of a wife in part payment of a tract of land, with her approval, gives her a proportional interest in the land, and, when the deed is taken by the husband in his name, the trust in favor of the wife is created, and she becomes the equitable owner of such proportional interest. Blum v. Rogers, 71 T. 669, 9 S. W. 595.

A deed to a married woman, "her heirs and assigns, to her proper use, benefit and behoof forever in fee simple," with warranty against all debts, etc., and against the lawful claims of all persons whatsoever to the said grantee, does not indicate that it is the wife's separate estate, or put a purchaser upon inquiry as to her equities. Stiles v. Japhet, 84 T. 91, 19 S. W. 450.

A conveyance of land by a husband to the wife for a valuable consideration vests title in her without the recital that it was intended for her separate use. Swearingen v. Reed, 21 S. W. 383, 2 C. A. 364.

Property purchased with the separate means of the wife, part cash and part in notes, is her separate property. Parker v. Fogarty, 23 S. W. 700, 4 C. A. 615.

A conveyance to a wife, for cash and on credit, the funds so used being her separate estate, vests title in her. Sinsheimer v. Kahn, 24 S. W. 533, 6 C. A. 143.

Evidence in proceedings to garnishee money deposited in a bank held to sustain a finding that the money was deposited as the separate property of the wife of the judgment debtor. Kingman-Texas Implement Co. v. Herring Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 394.

29. Management of separate estate of wife.—The authority conferred on a husband of managing the wife's separate property gives him the power to bind the same for expenses incident to its proper management and preservation. Milburn v. Walker, 11 T. 329.

A husband, during marriage, has the management of the wife's separate property. Clay v. Power, 24 T. 304; Holloway v. Holloway, 30 T. 164; Mabry v. Harrison, 44 T. 286; Hemmingway v. Mathews, 10 T. 207; Wells v. Cockrum, 13 T. 127.

A nonnegotiable promissory note, given for the separate property of the wife, and payable to her order, cannot be transferred by the husband without her authority, and parties having notice of her rights would acquire no title thereto by such unauthorized act of her husband. Hamilton v. Brooks, 51 T. 142; Morris v. Edwards, 1 App. C. C. § 548; Kempner v. Comer, 73 T. 196, 11 S. W. 194.

A husband cannot bind the wife and her separate property, unless the same is done with her knowledge and by her authority and consent. Adamson v. Shiel, 4 App. C. C. § 294, 18 S. W. 464.

When the wife's separate estate consists of securities which may be legally converted into money, the husband cannot, after conversion, appropriate it to the payment of debts for which the wife's separate estate is not liable, or mingle it with funds belonging to himself or the community estate, or invest it in his own name, without rendering his estate liable for its repayment. Richardson v. Hutchins, 68 T. 81, 3 S. W. 276.

A husband has a right to check out of a bank money deposited by the wife as her separate property. He has authority also to collect the purchase money of the wife's separate estate. Coleman v. First National Bank, 17 C. A. 132, 43 S. W. 938.

That officers of a bank knew her husband to be a man of dissolute habits would not make the bank liable for checks drawn by him against his wife's money deposited in her name. Id.

A pledge of a stock certificate bought with the separate funds of the pledgor's wife, to one having no notice thereof, is valid. Anderson v. Waco State Bank, 92 T. 506, 49 S. W. 1030, 71 Am. St. Rep. 867.

Where a husband deposited his wife's separate money on the understanding that he is to draw it out, the bank is bound to pay his checks drawn on the fund. Coleman v. First Nat. Bank, 94 T. 605, 63 S. W. 868, 86 Am. St. Rep. 371, affirming (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 93.

Payments of rent by a lessee to a husband under a lease of the wife's separate property, while the husband was apparently in the rightful custody of her separate property, is a bar to a recovery of such rents by the wife. Dority v. Dority, 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 338.

Where a debtor assigned certificates of stock to a husband for the benefit of the wife, the assent of the husband to the assignment was binding on the wife. South Texas Nat. Bank v. Texas & L. Lumber Co., 30 C. A. 412, 70 S. W. 768.

Where a husband appropriated the entire income of his wife's separate estate to his own benefit, contributing nothing to her support, nor paying taxes, he may be enjoined from interfering with such estate, and the management and control thereof be given to her. Dority v. Dority, 96 T. 215, 71 S. W. 950, 60 L. R. A. 941.

Though a lease of a wife's separate estate was originally void because of her failure to join therein, it was rendered valid and binding, when, with full knowledge of the facts, she afterwards assigned, and acknowledged an assignment with the lease contract annexed. Ascarete v. Pfaff, 34 C. A. 375, 78 S. W. 974.

A husband has no right to convert to his use the separate estate of the wife, and she can maintain against him a suit to recover her separate estate by him wrongfully converted, and can have a resulting trust declared in her favor in land held by him in his own name and paid for in whole or in part by her separate funds. Heintz v. Heintz, 56 C. A. 403, 120 S. W. 942.

Under this article, that a debtor, after transferring a growing crop of rice to his wife, remains in possession of and manages it, and that accounts with the owner of the land on which the crop transferred was raised was kept in the name of the husband as they had been kept previous to the transfer, does not indicate that the transfer was simulated and fraudulent. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

This article does not invest a husband with a right of property in the wife's separate property, nor give him the right of disposition thereof; and he has not, by reason of such possession, the right to mortgage the property to his creditor, though the wife has failed to file a schedule of her property, as provided by Arts. 6845, 6848. Walker v. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 312.

The husband has the right of possession, management, and control of the wife's separate property, but without her consent he has no power to dispose of it. Givens v. Carter (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 623.

This article invests a husband with such control of his wife's separate property as is necessary to the proper exercise of the right, and completely suspends her management thereof during marriage so as to permit him to deal with it as with his own, notwithstanding any agreement by him with her to the contrary, except that he cannot incumber or convey it to persons having notice of her ownership, and hence though money belonging to a wife's separate estate was deposited in a bank by the wife with her husband's apparent consent under a contract with the bank, as evidenced by the passbook, that only the depositor could withdraw it, the husband could afterwards withdraw such deposit without making the bank liable therefor to the wife in the absence of intervening rights of third parties; the husband's action in withdrawing the money being a resumption of his management of the property which revoked his wife's implied agency for him in depositing the money. Wagoner Bank & Trust Co. v. Warren (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 691.

30. Contracts—Acknowledgment.—Contract between husband and wife and a third person held not binding when not acknowledged by wife. Gilbough v. Stahl Bldg. Co., 16 C. A. 448, 41 S. W. 535.

31. — Ratification.—Where a married woman and her husband affirm her contract, the other party cannot avoid it because of her incapacity. Stringfellow v. Early, 15 C. A. 597, 40 S. W. 871.

32. — Authority of husband after separation.—A husband, after separation, will not be permitted to manage the wife's separate property. Dority v. Dority, 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 338.

33. — Authority of wife after separation.—When a husband has deserted the wife, is separated from her, or confined in the penitentiary, she is authorized to manage her separate property, and to make contracts as a feme sole. Walker v. Stringfellow, 30 T. 570; Blanchet v. Dugat, 5 T. 507; Wright v. Hays, 10 T. 130, 60 Am. Dec. 200; Fullerton v. Doyle, 18 T. 3; Ann Berta Lodge v. Leverton, 42 T. 18; Carothers v. McNese, 43 T. 221; Zimpleman v. Robb, 53 T. 274; Davis v. Saladee, 57 T. 326; Wright v. Blackwood, 57 T. 644; Ezell v. Dodson, 60 T. 331; Black v. Black, 62 T. 296; Heidenheimer v. Thomas, 63 T. 287; Siator v. Neal, 64 T. 222; Clements v. Ewing, 71 T. 370, 9 S. W. 312.

A wife held entitled to maintain a suit to cancel leases of her separate property fraudulently executed by the husband after permanent separation. Dority v. Dority, 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 338.

34. Conveyance of homestead.—See notes under Art. 1115.

35. Conveyance of separate estate of wife.—See notes under Art. 1114.

A husband has no authority to convey title to his wife's separate property without her consent. Coleman v. First National Bank, 17 C. A. 132, 43 S. W. 938; Givens v. Carter (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 623; Waggoner Bank & Trust Co. v. Warren (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 691.

Without her consent, a wife's separate property cannot be appropriated by others with her husband's permission. Therriault v. Compere (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 750.

A sale by the husband of his wife's personal property is invalid, unless he had express authority from her to sell or unless she ratified the sale. Hudspeth v. State, 54 Cr. R. 371, 112 S. W. 1069, 130 Am. St. Rep. 894.

A deed by a widow, who has remarried, and the surviving daughter, also married, to a one-seventh interest in land described as having descended to their decedent, whereas only a one-fourteenth interest descended to him, passes a one-fourteenth interest only: the warranty not operating against the grantors. Pritchard v. Fox (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1058.

36. — Parties in suits for wife's separate property.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 5.

37. — Measure of damages for wrongful conveyance.—Measure of recovery by wife on account of her husband's act in taking title to and disposing of land purchased with her money, stated. Sparks v. Taylor, 99 T. 411, 90 S. W. 485, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 381.

38. — Rights of creditors.—A husband's interest, under a deed to him as trustee for his wife, held but a personal trust, and if he conveyed to her, it did not become an estate which might be subjected to the claims of creditors on her death. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

39. — Joinder of wife as waiver of interest in land received.—Joinder of a wife in conveyance of land held to waive her interest in land received therefor by the husband, which was subject to his debts on his death. Phillips v. Phillips, 23 C. A. 532, 57 S. W. 59.

40. — Consideration.—A conveyance of a large amount of the wife's property and small amount of the husband's, for a consideration of one dollar paid by each to the other, to a trustee to reconvey to the husband to be held as community property, is without consideration. Kellett v. Trice, 95 T. 160, 66 S. W. 51.

41. — Mortgage—Liability on.—A wife's separate property mortgaged for money loaned to him became liable on the same principle as a surety, and anything which would operate as a discharge for a surety would release the lien on the property. Red River Nat. Bank v. Bray (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 968.

An unauthorized extension by a husband and his creditor of time of payment of a debt secured by deed of trust on the wife's separate property released the lien on the property. Id.

42. — Conveyance after wife's death.—Where, after the death of the wife, her husband sells her separate property, and with the proceeds buys land, taking the title in his name, he holds as trustee for her heirs, and a purchaser from him with notice takes charged with such trust. Oaks v. West (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1033.

43. — Title of purchaser.—The holder of a note payable to a married woman, transferred by the husband in due course of trade without notice that it was in fact the wife's separate property, takes a superior separate title thereto. James v. Jacques, 26 T. 320, 82 Am. Dec. 613; Chapman v. Allen, 15 T. 283; Love v. Robertson, 7 T. 9, 56 Am. Dec. 41; Fox v. Brady, 1 C. A. 590, 20 S. W. 1024.

A purchaser from a husband of land acquired during marriage, the deed to which is made to the wife, is not thereby put upon inquiry as to any equity she might have in respect to it, but is protected if he buys in ignorance of her claim to it as separate property. The rule is otherwise if the deed show that the consideration paid was the wife's separate estate or that the purchase was designed for her separate benefit. And so the purchaser acquires no title if at the date of his purchase he has reasonable information of these facts. Kirk v. Navigation Co., 49 T. 213; Cooke v. Bremond, 27 T. 457, 86 Am. Dec. 626; Veramendi v. Hutchins, 48 T. 531; French v. Strumberg, 52 T. 92; McDaniel v. Weiss, 53 T. 256; Wallace v. Campbell, 54 T. 87; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 319; Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 111; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 648; Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 390; McBride v. Banguss, 65 T. 174.

A married man to whom a deed for land was made, paid for with the money of his wife, is her trustee, and a purchaser from him with notice acquires no title. Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 114; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 652; Blum v. Rogers, 71 T. 668, 9 S. W. 595; Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 394; Cobb v. Trammell, 30 S. W. 482, 9 C. A. 527.

A purchaser from a woman, to whom a patent for the land sold issued after the death of her husband, takes title as against the heirs of the deceased husband, unaffected by his community interest, in the absence of notice of its existence. Wren v. Peel, 64 T. 374.

If title to property be in the name of the husband alone, a purchaser from him who has paid value without actual notice of the wife's interest will be protected against her claim or the claim of her heirs. Edwards v. Brown, 68 T. 329, 4 S. W. 380, 5 S. W. 87.

A bona fide purchaser for value from the husband of land apparently community property will be protected against the undisclosed claims of separate ownership by the wife. Malry v. Grant (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 614.

Deed from purchaser at execution sale construed, and held to vest the beneficial interest in the grantee, as well as the legal title, under certain facts. Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563.

Where the legal owner of land dies, leaving three children and a wife, who remarries and has a child from such marriage, and after the death of the mother one of the three children of the legal owner dies, a purchaser must take notice of the child of the second marriage, who is an heir to the child who died, and will be deemed to have notice of the right of such child to share in the equitable marital interest held by the mother. Woodburn v. Texas Town Lot & Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 365.

44. — Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

45. Authority of wife to give or sell her personal estate.—A wife's right of disposition of personal property is as unrestricted as if she were a feme sole, and her separate acknowledgment of a mortgage of such property is not required by the statute. Wilkinson v. Rowland, 3 App. C. C. § 11; Bledsoe v. Fitts, 47 C. A. 578, 105 S. W. 1142, et seq.

46. — Forms of conveyances.—Such contracts of a married woman made in 1855 as she could properly make by parol for the acquisition of land or for its partition may equally well be proved by her written declarations, even when not acknowledged by her in the manner that the statute requires to make effectual her conveyance of real estate. Ikard v. Thompson, 81 T. 285, 16 S. W. 1019.

It has been held under the act of 1846 that a wife could convey separate personal property without writing subscribed and privy acknowledgment. Ballard v. Carmichael, 83 T. 355, 18 S. W. 734.

Under the act of April 30, 1846 (Sayles' Early Laws, art. 1670), a conveyance of personal property by a married woman must be by a written instrument privily acknowledged. McDaniel v. Garrett, 11 C. A. 57, 31 S. W. 721.

47. Gifts causa mortis.—The statute authorizing a married woman to dispose of her separate property by will without the consent of her husband is inapplicable to the right of the wife to make a gift of her separate property causa mortis without the consent of the husband. Bledsoe v. Fitts, 47 C. A. 578, 105 S. W. 1142.

48. Rights and liabilities of heirs.—An agreement between husband and wife that certain horses and their increase should be her separate property held binding on his heirs. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

49. Liability of husband or wife.—A husband is liable for exemplary as well as actual damages for slanderous words uttered by the wife. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 146.

Where a husband converts the wife's separate estate into money or other property and appropriates that to the benefit of himself or to the benefit of the community, he is liable to the wife or to her estate or heirs for its value. Tison v. Gass, 46 C. A. 163, 102 S. W. 751.

A husband is not personally liable on a building contract made by his wife before marriage for the benefit of her separate estate. Johnson v. Griffiths & Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 683.

A wife is not liable personally for rents collected by her husband after sequestration of land which had been her separate property. Grayson County Nat. Bank v. Wandelohr (Sup.) 146 S. W. 1186.

Where a husband sold grass from his wife's land but failed to deliver the same, he was liable for breach of contract regardless of his ownership or right to sell. Kreisle v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1132.

In an action on a note, in which defendant relied on coverture, a decree of divorce is admissible in evidence to show that she was a feme sole at the time of the suit, and had ratified the contract made while she was a feme covert. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

A woman conducting her own business, buying furniture with her separate property, at a time when she was permanently separated from her husband, and only two months before she was divorced from him, and who ratified the sale after divorce by payments thereon, cannot rely on coverture to defeat the sale. Id.

50. — Enforcement.—A wife may maintain against her husband a suit by attachment levied on their community property, to secure payment of a debt which is her separate property, due from the husband. Ryan v. Ryan, 61 T. 473. And see Black v. Black, 62 T. 296.

A wife, who is a creditor of her husband, has no greater remedial rights than other creditors. Holloway v. Schuttles, 21 C. A. 188, 51 S. W. 293.

51. — Preferences.—See notes under Art. 3966, § 14.

52. Agency of wife for husband.—A husband can constitute his wife an attorney in fact to dispose of his property. Presnall v. McLeary (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1066.

The failure to deliver a telegram to a wife of the sendee, in the absence of the latter, held, not to render the company liable for damages, marriage not making her such an agent. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Moseley, 28 C. A. 562, 67 S. W. 1059.

A wife is not liable personally for rents collected by her husband after sequestration of land which had been her separate property. Grayson County Nat. Bank v. Wandelohr, 105 T. 226, 146 S. W. 1186.

Where a wife agreed that a note payable to her might be pledged to secure a loan to her husband but did not consent to sale, and did not indorse the note, a transfer by him was beyond the scope of his agency. Morgan v. Hays (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 315.

Where a husband had knowledge of the dissolution of a partnership, his wife would also be charged with notice. Thompson v. Harmon (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1161.

57. — Personal liability of husband or wife.—A wife held not bound by the false representations of her husband as to her land to induce a sale thereof. Lewis v. Hoeldtke (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 309.

Where a husband, who acted for his wife in the sale of her land, represented as a fact that the tract contained more land than it did, he was liable in deceit, though he was merely mistaken. Id.

58. Revocation of agency by marriage.—Where a woman, after executing a power of attorney to sell her interest in land and before a sale was made by the agent, married, the marriage revoked the power. Gilmer v. Veatch, 56 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545.

59. Revocation of power of testamentary trustee.—Where a wife by her husband's will became trustee of the estate with power to sell, as well as executrix, her subsequent marriage did not ipso facto terminate such power of sale, whatever the effect of the marriage on her relation as executrix. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 885.

60. Bond of married woman as executor as binding her estate.—See Art. 3314.

61. — Bond as guardian.—See Art. 4105.

62. Descent and distribution.—See notes under Title 45.

63. Allowance to widow and children.—See notes under Title 52, Chapter 17.

64. Contracts for arbitration of property rights.—Contract of married woman with husband to arbitrate property rights held void. Crouch v. Crouch, 30 C. A. 288, 70 S. W. 595.

Art. 4622. [2968] Community property; what property shall be under control, etc., of wife; bank deposits.—All property acquired by either the husband or wife during marriage, except that which is the separate property of either one or the other, shall be deemed the common property of the husband and wife, and during coverture may be disposed of by the husband only, provided, however, the personal earnings of the wife, the rents from the wife's real estate, the interest on bonds and notes belonging to her and dividends on stocks owned by her shall be under the control, management and disposition of the wife alone, subject to the provisions of article 4621, as hereinabove written; and further provided, that any funds on deposit in any bank or banking institution, whether in the name of the husband or the wife, shall be presumed to be the separate property of the party in whose name they stand, regardless of who made the deposit, and unless said bank or banking institution is notified to the contrary, it shall be governed accordingly in honoring checks and orders against such account. 1. Applicability in general.—This article applies to real estate owned by nonresidents. Heidenheimer v. Loring, 6 C. A. 560, 26 S. W. 99.

2. Validity of marriage affecting property rights.—Land granted to a married man as a colonist is the community property of himself and wife. A reputed wife, not legally married, but living with her husband in Texas at the date of the grant, is entitled to one-half of the land on the death of the husband. Babb v. Carroll, 21 T. 765.

A. and B. married in Illinois in 1839 and separated in 1845 without a divorce. A. came to Texas in 1844, returned to his former home in the spring of 1845, and in the fall returned to Texas with his three children of a former marriage and with the avowed purpose of abandoning his wife, who remained in Illinois with her children, never having removed to Texas. In 1852 A. married T. in Texas, with whom he lived as his wife until his death in 1864. T. had no knowledge of A.'s former marriage. The property in controversy situated in Texas was acquired after the last marriage. Held, in a contest between B., the first wife, and a child of A. by his last wife, that B. was entitled to one-half of the property acquired by A. in Texas. The court expresses no opinion as to the rights of the last wife in property acquired during the last marriage. Routh v. Routh, 57 T. 589.

A putative wife held entitled to one-half of the property jointly acquired during the cohabitation. Lawson v. Lawson, 30 C. A. 43, 69 S. W. 246.

Where a husband married his wife at a time when she was mentally incompetent, the marriage was void, and he acquired no rights in her property by virtue thereof. Holland v. Riggs, 53 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 167.

The rights of a woman marrying a man in good faith who has a former wife living stated as to the community property. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robertson, 55 C. A. 309, 121 S. W. 202.

3. Community property in general.—Whether a grant of land to a colonist was separate or community property is determined as follows: If the surviving husband received the grant by reason of his immigration, etc., independent of his status as a married man at the date of his wife's death, it was his separate property. If an increased quantity was given to the survivor by reason of the fact that at the date of the death of the wife he was then a married man, it was community property. Hodge v. Donald, 55 T. 344; Wimberly v. Pabst, 55 T. 587. See Durst v. Dougherty, 81 T. 650, 17 S. W. 388; Proetzel v. Schroeder, 83 T. 684, 19 S. W. 292; Stiles v. Japhet, 84 T. 91, 19 S. W. 450; Gaston v. Wright, 83 T. 282, 18 S. W. 576.

Merchandise purchased by a wife with money borrowed on the faith of her separate property as security is community property. Heidenheimer v. McKeen, 63 T. 229.

Where property purchased by a wife is to be paid for out of proceeds of crops on her land, it is community property. Cleveland v. Cole, 65 T. 402; Connor v. Hawkins, 66 T. 639, 2 S. W. 520.

Property purchased by a wife on credit is community property. Epperson v. Jones, 65 T. 425; Smith v. Bailey, 66 T. 553, 1 S. W. 627.

The grant of a headright certificate in 1838 to a married man, reciting that fact and the date of his immigration to Texas, does not constitute such certificate community property when the grantee had immigrated with his children, and had married subsequent to his arrival in Texas, although the parties were living together as husband and wife at the date of the certificate. Boone v. Hulsey, 71 T. 176, 9 S. W. 531.

Bounty land warrants under ordinance of December 5, 1835, granted to a married man are community property. Nixon v. Wichita L. & C. Co., 84 T. 408, 19 S. W. 560.

A cause of action for a wrong to a wife is common property. Telegraph Co. v. Kerr, 23 S. W. 564, 4 C. A. 280.

Money collected upon an endowment insurance policy upon the life of the husband, payable as directed by will, is community property, and the surviving wife is entitled to one-half of the proceeds. Martin v. Moran, 11 C. A. 509, 32 S. W. 904.

If the husband did not, with his separate means, pay for land acquired after marriage, his wife was a tenant in common with him. House v. Williams, 16 C. A. 122, 40 S. W. 414.

A wife held to acquire no community interest in land conveyed to her husband without consideration to enable him to qualify as surety. Crenshaw v. Harris, 16 C. A. 263, 41 S. W. 391.

Money derived by mortgage of wife's separate lands is community property. Canfield v. Moore, 16 C. A. 472, 41 S. W. 718.

Where a husband and wife separated for good and divided their community property, the mere fact that they years afterwards began living together again did not convert it into community property. Batla v. Batla (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 664.

Property purchased with community funds conveyed to wife continues community property. Kahn v. Kahn (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 946.

Lands purchased in part with funds from community estate of husband, and partly with separate estate of wife, is community property to extent of investment of community funds. Clardy v. Wilson, 24 C. A. 196, 58 S. W. 52.

Evidence held to establish a resulting trust in favor of the community estate of husband and wife in property purchased at foreclosure, which was not changed by subsequent payments made to the purchaser out of the separate estate of the wife. Hirshfeld v. Howard (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 55.

Where a life tenant of land executed a deed of her interest to plaintiff, the holder of the fee-simple title, and her husband, at the same time that plaintiff deeded her interest in other land to the life tenant, and the deeds did not show that the consideration for them was the exchange of lands, the interest conveyed to plaintiff became community property. Scales v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 336.

That a surviving spouse purchases land with money secured from community property after the death of the other spouse does not impress the character of community property on the land so purchased. Griffin v. McKinney, 25 C. A. 432, 62 S. W. 78.

Proceeds of insurance policy on wife's life, payable to the husband, held to be the latter's separate property, and not community property. Martin v. McAllister, 94 T. 567, 63 S. W. 624.

If land purchased by husband and wife was bought partly for cash and partly on credit, and the cash was paid out of community funds, the land was community property, and, if the husband paid the balance, the property was chargeable therewith. Moore v. Moore, 28 C. A. 600, 68 S. W. 59.

Lands in Texas bought by a married man, with money which was his separate property, under the laws of the state where he earned it, held not community property. Blethen v. Bonner, 30 C. A. 585, 71 S. W. 290.

In an action to subject community lands in payment of note, wife's answer held not to show that title had been divested out of community estate and invested in her. Teague v. Lindsey, 31 C. A. 161, 71 S. W. 573.

Land purchased with the separate funds of a wife held not community property, subject to the husband's debts. Hall v. Levy, 31 C. A. 360, 72 S. W. 263.

A land certificate, transferred to a husband during coverture, becomes community property. Booth v. Clark, 34 C. A. 315, 78 S. W. 392.

Where a deed on a pecuniary consideration conveyed land to husband and wife, its legal effect was to convey the property to them as a community. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

Deed to wife, consideration for which is paid in community funds, held to convey title to the community, and place the lands under the husband's control. Newman v. Newman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 635.

A ring purchased by a wife during coverture is community property, in the absence of evidence that it was purchased with her separate funds. Sweeney v. Taylor Bros., 41 C. A. 365, 92 S. W. 442.

The property acquired by husband and wife during marriage, otherwise than by gift, devise, or descent, held community property. Merrell v. Moore, 47 C. A. 200, 104 S. W. 514.

A second wife held to have, as to the property acquired during the continuance of the relation existing between herself and a man not divorced from former wife, the rights of a lawful wife. Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 53.

Land conveyed to a married woman becomes community property unless paid for by her separate means, or unless the title was placed in her own name for the purpose of making a gift to her. Wade v. Wade (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 188.

Where a man and wife settle on 160 acres of public land for the purpose of securing the land as a homestead, under the statute, and the wife dies in about a year, and the man marries again, and he and his second wife are living on the land when occupancy ripens into title, the land is the community property of the second marriage. Creamer v. Briscoe (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 636.

Land acquired as a donation homestead held to belong to the community estate of the husband's first marriage, and not to the community estate of his second marriage. Creamer v. Briscoe, 101 T. 490, 109 S. W. 911, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 154, 130 Am. St. Rep. 869.

Even if application for a survey of public land were made by a husband during his wife's lifetime, if she dies before patent issues, she has obtained no community interest in the land. Simpson v. Oats (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 940.

Land acquired during the existence of a second marriage, by the exchange of land which constituted community property of the first marriage, does not become community property of the second marriage. Haring v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 389.

A wife held not entitled to premiums on or proceeds of life policy taken out by her husband for his children by a former marriage, premiums of which had been paid from community funds. Rowlett v. Mitchell, 52 C. A. 589, 114 S. W. 845.

Part of proceeds of fraternal life insurance held to have become community property. Wooden v. Wooden (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 627.

All property conveyed to either a husband or wife during the marriage relation will, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, be presumed to be community property. Kin Kaid v. Lee, 54 C. A. 622, 119 S. W. 342; Same v. Buck (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 345.

Property purchased on credit and afterward paid for with proceeds of the sale or mortgage of the wife's separate estate is not community property. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

The rights acquired under a tax deed conveying property to the husband was community property. Callen v. Collins, 56 C. A. 620, 120 S. W. 546.

Land purchased by the husband during marriage is part of the community estate. Edwards v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 914.

A chose in action accruing to either spouse during the marriage by reason of an injury to the person is community property. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robertson, 55 C. A. 309, 121 S. W. 202.

Where a woman marries in ignorance of the fact that the man she marries has another wife living, and lives with him until his death in ignorance of the existence of the former wife, she is entitled to the rights of a lawful wife in the property acquired by them or either of them during their marriage, regardless of whether she contributed anything to the community property. Id.

Even though a deed by its terms conveyed to a wife in her separate right, it could be shown that she took title under an express trust for the benefit of the community or her husband. Du Perier v. Du Perier (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 10.

Where a deed from a third party to a wife does not in terms convey the property to her separate use, or show that the consideration was paid out of her separate estate, title vests prima facie in the community. Id.

That the apparent title to lots was in a married woman does not of itself authorize a finding that they were her separate property. Keith v. Aubrey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 278.

Where a wife purchased goods on credit to enable her to conduct a mercantile business in her own name, such goods became community property, so as to make her husband liable for the price, whether or not he knew that she purchased them on credit for her store. Richburg v. McIlwaine, Knight & Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1166.

A contract by a husband for the purchase of state school land held a community obligation through which the wife acquires a half interest in the land. Ericksen v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 847.

Though, under this article and Art. 4623, a house purchased by the husband with his earnings after marriage, and the deed taken in the name of the wife, is community property, an indictment for a criminal burning of the house properly alleged the ownership to be in the husband, and proof that the property was purchased with the husband's earnings, and that the deed was taken in the name of the wife did not establish a variance. Pinckard v. State, 62 Cr. R. 602, 138 S. W. 601.

Property acquired by limitation by a married person becomes community property. Mitchell v. Schofield (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 254.

Under this article, a debt in favor of both for merchandise sold and delivered and a debt due the wife for personal services constitute community property, even if it was agreed that part of the proceeds when collected should belong to the wife. Gentry v. McCarty (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 152.

Unimproved land purchased by a husband during the life of his first wife, which was improved by buildings, and which the family was occupying as a homestead before her death, is community property, even though no part of the purchase price had been paid, and the wife's interest therein descended and vested in her children, subject to the homestead rights of her husband, and charged with the unpaid purchase price, which was a community debt. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1142.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

Where the money of a married woman was used to purchase land, title being taken in the name of the husband, and afterwards the husband and wife sold the property and with the proceeds purchased land, title to which was taken in the name of the wife, the equitable title to the land last purchased was in the wife, and it did not belong to the community, though there were no recitals in the deed that the consideration was paid by the wife from her separate means, or that the same was her separate estate. Aycock v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 641.

Shares of stock purchased from separate means of a married woman did not become community property. Gale Mfg. Co. v. Dupree (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1048.

Community property assigned for the benefit of creditors and purchased by H. in trust for the wife, on being repurchased by her with borrowed money, held to have again become community property of the debtor and his wife. Schutz v. Harris (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 242.

Real estate, the legal title to which was acquired by a husband during marriage, is community property, and a mere payment by him of the price out of his separate funds after his wife's death does not make him the sole owner, in the absence of any appropriation by him. Miller v. Odom (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1185.

Land conveyed to a wife in consideration of the payment of an outstanding note to secure which a lien is retained is the community property in the absence of any provision in the deed that it shall be the wife's separate property. Cockburn v. Cherry (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 161.

In a controversy to which the state is not a party, whether public land purchased from the state in the name of either husband or wife is community property or not must be determined by the character of the right by which the title thereto had its inception. McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1157.

An instruction that all property deeded to either husband or wife during marriage and all effects possessed at the death of either is presumed to be community property, unless the contrary be "satisfactorily proven," was not erroneous as on the weight of the evidence in view of this article, and the following article. Wood v. Dean (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 363.

Property purchased on credit for a business carried on by a husband on the wife's property and paid for out of the proceeds of such business is community property and not the separate property of the wife. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

4. Equitable title.—Equitable title defined. Edwards v. Brown, 68 T. 329, 4 S. W. 380, 5 S. W. 87; Patty v. Middleton, 82 T. 586, 17 S. W. 909; Hall v. Gwynne, 23 S. W. 289, 4 C. A. 109; Brackenridge v. Rice (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 588; Cumby v. Henderson, 25 S. W. 673, 6 C. A. 519.

Where land is conveyed to a husband, no beneficial interest of the wife appearing upon the face of the deed, her interest in the same by virtue of the marital community is equitable, the entire legal title being vested in the husband; and upon her death her heirs succeed to no such legal title or interest in the land as would defeat the rights of an innocent purchaser from the husband. Woodburn v. Texas Town Lot & Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 365.

5. Right of second community.—A second community cannot acquire an interest in land of which the wife is a tenant for life as survivor of the first community or create a charge against it by placing improvements thereon. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 710.

6. Life insurance.—Where a husband and wife assigned an insurance policy as collateral, the wife's death prior to that of her husband defeated the assignment and all rights predicated thereon. Stevens v. Germania Life Ins. Co., 26 C. A. 156, 62 S. W. 824.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

7. Interest, increase, rents, profits and products of separate property.—Interest accruing on the separate funds of the wife is community property. Braden v. Gose, 57 T. 37; Cabell v. Meinczer (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 206; Farrish v. Williams, 53 S. W. 79.

Profits derived from an investment of the wife's separate estate are community property. Epperson v. Jones, 65 T. 425; Heidenheimer v. Felker, 1 App. C. C. § 362; Ratto v. Holland, 2 App. C. C. § 469.

Crops grown on the land of a wife, though the labor and other means used in their production are of her separate estate, became community property. Connor v. Hawkins, 66 T. 639, 2 S. W. 520; Cleveland v. Cole, 65 T. 402; citing De Blane v. Lynch, 23 T. 25; Forbes v. Dunham, 24 T. 611; Carr v. Tucker, 42 T. 330; Seligson v. Staples, 1 App. C. C. § 1071; Hayden v. McMillen, 23 S. W. 430, 4 C. A. 479.

While the increase of cows, the separate property of the wife, becomes community property, a lien upon the unborn calves cannot be obtained by a levy of an execution upon the cows. Blum v. Light, 81 T. 414, 16 S. W. 1090.

Lumber sawed in a mill, the separate property of the wife, from trees grown on her separate property, the rents accruing on her realty, are community property. Hayden v. McMillen, 23 S. W. 430, 4 C. A. 479.

Rents of wife's separate property belong to the community. Schepflin v. Small, 23 S. W. 432, 4 C. A. 493.

Goods purchased with the profits of the wife's separate money, and on credit, are community property. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Lastinger (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 924.

Offspring of wife's animals held community property. Avery v. Popper (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 951.

The increase of live stock during the existence of the married relation is community property, though it is the increase of stock which is the separate property of the husband or wife. Wolford v. Melton, 26 C. A. 486, 63 S. W. 543.

The rents of a married woman's separate estate are community property, and, where assigned as security by husband and wife for the former's debt, are not discharged by an extension of time of payment given to the husband. De Berrera v. Frost, 33 C. A. 580, 77 S. W. 637.

The increase of cattle given to a married woman is community property. Barr v. Simpson, 54 C. A. 105, 117 S. W. 1041.

An interest in real estate inherited by a man is his separate property; but an interest purchased during his marriage is presumptively community property. Sauvage v. Wauhop (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 259.

Though the increase of live stock owned by the wife and existing before the death of her husband is community property in the absence of an agreement otherwise between them, the increase of her live stock after his death is not community property. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

A crop of hay grown on the land of the wife is community property and subject to sale by the husband. Kreisle v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1132.

8. Improvements on separate property.—A house constructed on the separate property of the wife, and paid for with community funds, remains part of the community. Maddox v. Summerlin, 92 T. 483, 49 S. W. 1033, 50 S. W. 567.

Where a wife used community funds to make improvements and pay taxes on her husband's separate property, such property was liable to the wife's heirs for one-half of the cost of the improvements and taxes. Cervantes v. Cervantes (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 790.

Where improvements on land owned separately by husband and wife were erected with community funds, such improvements became community property. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

In an action by a wife for her separate property and for a half of the community property, the husband held not entitled to be reimbursed for improvements made on the separate property of the wife. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 145.

If a wife inherited a lot from her father and her husband erected improvements thereon, the improvements would be community property, so that the husband would have an interest in the property. Brady v. Maddox (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 739.

The general rule that property acquired during marriage is presumptively that of the community does not apply to improvements made upon realty shown to be the separate estate of one of the spouses; and, in an action between a surviving husband and a daughter of his deceased wife to determine whether certain property was separate or community property, a showing by the surviving husband, to the satisfaction of the jury, that a particular piece of property belongs to him individually makes a prima facie case of his ownership of the improvements, and it devolves upon the daughter to rebut the case thus made, in order to establish her claim for reimbursement for one-half of the value of the improvements. Darden v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 944.

9. Earnings of husband or wife.—A husband held entitled to have money earned by the wife and paid on debts contracted by her for loans and for necessities applied first to the necessities. Cline v. Hackbarth, 27 C. A. 391, 65 S. W. 1086.

Money earned by a married woman by teaching school is community property in the absence of an agreement between herself and husband that it shall be her separate estate. Barr v. Simpson, 54 C. A. 105, 117 S. W. 1041.

The earnings of a husband and wife belong to the community estate, and are under the control of the husband. Lilly v. Yearly (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

10. Partnership.—As to rights and liabilities of a married woman as partner in a mercantile business, see Middlebrook v. Zapp, 73 T. 29, 10 S. W. 732.

11. Damages for injuries to husband or wife.—Damages recovered for a tort inflicted upon a wife becomes community property. Gallagher v. Bowie, 66 T. 265, 17 S. W. 407.

Damages recovered for personal injuries to a married person are community property. Rice v. Railway Co., 27 S. W. 921, 8 C. A. 130; Railway Co. v. Barnett, 61 T. 638; Ezell v. Dodson, 60 T. 331. See Nickerson v. Nickerson, 65 T. 281, where the damages accruing resulted from the wrongful act of the husband. Pac. Express Co. v. Black, 27 S. W. 830, 8 C. A. 363.

Money obtained by a husband as damages for personal injuries sustained subsequent to marriage is community funds. Bohan v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 959.

A right of action against a railroad for personal injuries to a husband held community property, one-half of which might be set apart to the wife on divorce. Ligon v. Ligon, 39 C. A. 392, 87 S. W. 838.

Damages for a wife's loss of credit as a merchant and destruction of her business are community property and recoverable only by her husband. Ainsa v. Moses (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 791.

Damages for personal injuries to either husband or wife are community property. City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 109 S. W. 231.

Damages recovered by a widow and children for a malicious criminal prosecution against the husband and father being community property, damages recovered will be equally divided between the widow and children. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Groseclose (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 736.

Damages sustained by a husband and wife for injuries to the wife, being community property, it was not material that a single verdict, including damages to both, was allowed. Posener v. Long (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 591.

12. — Apportionment of damages.—Apportionment of damages between plaintiffs held erroneous for want of evidence to sustain it. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Buchanan, 48 C. A. 129, 107 S. W. 595.

13. What law governs.—Where the husband received money belonging to the wife at their marriage, which became his by the common law, and afterwards he invested the money in land in Texas, held, that such land was not community property. McDaniel v. Harley (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 323.

Under the Spanish law, property held by either spouse before marriage, remains the separate property of such consort, and the status of the property is to be determined by the origin of the title. Welder v. Lambert, 91 T. 510, 44 S. W. 281.

Facts held not to show one was domiciled in Texas, and was temporarily absent, so that the laws of Texas would determine his marital rights to property earned while absent. Blethen v. Bonner, 30 C. A. 585, 71 S. W. 290.

14. Existence of community.—A woman who marries a man holding a divorce, without knowing that such divorce is void, is entitled to a partnership or community interest in property jointly acquired during the time she lives with him as his wife, and she can assert her rights thereto against the lawful wife and her children after the husband's death. Morgan v. Morgan, 1 C. A. 315, 21 S. W. 154.

That plaintiff, while maintaining illicit relations with deceased, worked for him without receiving specific wages, is insufficient to give her a community interest in deceased's property. Harris v. Hobbs, 22 C. A. 367, 54 S. W. 1085.

A putative wife, so long as she acts innocently, has the rights of a lawful wife as to the property acquired by her and her supposed husband, in analogy to the rule which governs the rights of copartners. Middleton v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 789.

15. Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 4623.

16. Evidence—Sufficiency of.—Proof that at the marriage the husband had much money and the wife nothing, and that during the marriage their property decreased, does not rebut the presumption that the property belongs to the community. Schmeltz v. Garey, 49 T. 49.

That part of the purchase money for land purchased by a husband during the life of the first wife was paid during the life of his second wife is not sufficient evidence that the money so paid was the community of the husband and the second wife. Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 32.

The testimony of a husband that property possessed jointly by himself and wife when she died was her separate property cannot control the legal effect which attaches to the detail of facts connected with its acquisition, which impress it with the character of community property. Peet v. Railway Co., 70 T. 522, 8 S. W. 203.

Where, at the time property was sold, the husband's separate property, if any, was commingled with the community property beyond recognition, any presumption that might arise from statements in deeds that the real estate which was purchased by a part of the proceeds of sale was his separate property is rebutted, and its status as community property is established. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

Direct testimony of an intention to make land separate property of wife held necessary to prevent the legal presumption that it was community property. Hirsch v. Howell (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 887.

Evidence held not to support a verdict that property was community property. Riddle v. Riddle (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 970.

Testimony held not to contradict evidence that property was not community property. Gilbert v. Edwards, 32 C. A. 460, 74 S. W. 959.

On issue as to whether certain lands were community property, the presumption that they were held rebutted. Thayer v. Clarke (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 1050.

The presumption that property conveyed to a wife is community property may be overcome by proof showing that it is the wife's separate property. Hames v. State, 46 Cr. R. 562, 31 S. W. 708.

The presumption that land conveyed to a husband during marriage was purchased with community funds may be rebutted by showing that as a matter of fact he bought the land and paid for it out of his separate funds. York v. Hilger (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1117.

Where a homestead is acquired ten years after marriage, so strong is the presumption that it is community, that strong and satisfactory evidence will be required to destroy its community character. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 815.

In trespass to try title, evidence held not to rebut the presumption of community interest in the property. Henry v. Vaughan, 46 C. A. 531, 103 S. W. 192.

The proof rebutting the presumption that property acquired during coverture is community, and to establish its separate character, must be clear and satisfactory. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 145.

Where community property was involved, evidence held to show that the wife was the mother of four children. Hardy Oil Co. v. Burnham (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 221.

Evidence held to justify a finding that real estate was community property of a husband and wife. Wing v. Red (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 301.

Where a wife living with her husband purchased land from the state in her name, pursuant to an agreement with a third person that he would give the wife the money to cover the expenses and pay for the land, the first payment, interest, and taxes were paid by her out of money so given her, the husband and wife both expected that deferred payments would be met by means of such gifts, and neither had any reasonable expectation or hope that they would be able to finish paying for the land unless such gifts were made as promised, the facts overcame the presumption that land purchased by the husband or wife while living together is community property, although the husband joined in the notes for the deferred payments, and hence, the land being her separate property, a purchaser from the husband and wife took it free from a lien of a judgment against the husband. McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1157.

17. Management conveyances, Incumbrances or gifts of community property before separation of parties.—While the husband may convey property to his wife to reimburse her for appropriating her separate estate to either himself or for community purposes, or may make her a gift of his interest in the community property, yet he cannot convey to his wife his community interest, which is subject to the payment of community debts, so as to withdraw it from the reach of creditors. The gift passes to her his community interest, but he cannot so contract that the future gains and profits thereof shall be exempt from the payment of community debts existing, or which may be afterwards contracted. Green v. Ferguson, 62 T. 525.

A wife, joined by her husband, can convey the community property to a third person, who may convey to the husband. Riley v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 394, 86 T. 240.

As to conveyance of community property by the husband to defraud the community estate, see Smitheal v. Smith, 10 C. A. 446, 31 S. W. 422.

A pre-existing debt is a sufficient consideration of a trust deed on community property. Boehm v. Beutler, 16 C. A. 380, 41 S. W. 658.

Joinder of a wife is not necessary to a trust deed given by the husband on community property. Id.

A conveyance by a husband to his wife of community property converts it into her separate property. Hunter v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 820.

On a husband's sale of community property to pay a community debt, the question whether the buyer was an innocent purchaser in paying for the property with a pre-existing debt did not arise. Therriault v. Compere (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 750.

A deed by a wife held to convey a community estate. Maxson v. Jennings, 19 C. A. 700, 48 S. W. 781.

Husband held to have a community or separate estate in separate lands, so that deed without wife's signature vests his estate in the grantee. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Neal, 23 C. A. 427, 56 S. W. 91.

Conveyances construed, and held void, as attempts to transform wife's separate estate into community property. Kellett v. Kellett, 23 C. A. 571, 56 S. W. 766.

In the absence of fraud on the rights of his wife, a purchaser of land may renew the original purchase-money note after it is barred by limitations, and thereby bar her rights in the premises, though the land is his homestead. Jackson v. Bradshaw, 24 C. A. 30, 87 S. W. 878.

Where a note reserving a vendor's lien, executed to a husband and wife for the purchase price of realty, is transferred by them to a third party in an action on the note, it is error to decree an undivided half of the lot to the wife free from the lien, and foreclose the lien as to the husband. Noel v. Clark, 25 C. A. 136, 60 S. W. 356.

Under the facts, a husband's fraudulent conduct, creating a charge on community property, held not to bind the wife. Cetti v. Dunman, 26 C. A. 433, 64 S. W. 787.

A deed by a husband of an undivided 110 acres out of a 310-acre tract owned by him and his wife as community property, and occupied by them as a home, will pass the title thereto, though the wife does not join therein. Mass v. Bromberg, 28 C. A. 145, 66 S. W. 468.

Where two-thirds of the land on which a lake was situated was community property, whether a grant of water rights, executed by husband and wife, was properly executed by the wife, held immaterial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Fenn, 33 C. A. 352, 76 S. W. 597.

A wife's contract for the sale of community property in payment of community debts held binding on her and on her children. Hughes v. Landrum, 40 C. A. 196, 89 S. W. 85.

A wife alone with the assent of her husband may make a valid conveyance of community real estate. Roos v. Basham, 41 C. A. 551, 91 S. W. 656.

A husband may sell or pledge community property purchased by the wife. Sweeney v. Taylor Bros., 41 C. A. 365, 92 S. W. 442.

A married woman, seeking to set aside a deed of community property on the ground of the fraud of the grantee, her son, held not entitled to recover all the land; the son owning an interest by inheritance from her husband. Wade v. Wade (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 188.

A husband may convey community property without the wife joining in the deed. Zuckerman v. Munz, 43 C. A. 337, 107 S. W. 78.

A deed from a husband alone held sufficient to convey the title to community property other than homestead. Best v. Kirkendall (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 932.

A deed given by a husband to his wife with her consent of a life estate in community land, with remainder to certain of their children, held to convey the entire estate, and not merely the husband's interest therein. Lindly v. Lindly (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 467, judgment affirmed (Sup.) 113 S. W. 750. And the wife may not claim title to half the land as her community interest therein, on the theory that the transaction was governed by the doctrine of election. Id.

In an action to try title to land in which defendant claimed an interest as the putative wife of plaintiff's grantor, evidence held to warrant a finding that defendant did not in good faith believe that she was lawfully married to plaintiff's grantor, or that she was his wife at the time title to the property was acquired by him. Middleton v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 789.

A married woman's deed of gift to her children held to convey her interest in the community estate, though her husband's name does not appear as grantor in the deed and he held the record title. Couch v. Schwalbe, 51 C. A. 94, 111 S. W. 1046.

A husband may convey a life estate in community property to his wife with remainder to their children. Lindly v. Lindly, 102 T. 135, 113 S. W. 750, affirming Lindly v. Lindly (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 467.

The husband cannot by gift to himself convert community property into his separate property, neither during his lifetime nor by will. Rowlett v. Mitchell, 52 C. A. 589, 114 S. W. 845.

The absolute right of a husband to dispose of community property held to end with the termination of the marriage relation. Id.

A man, while a widower took out a policy in W. O. W. for benefit of his children by first marriage. After second marriage he continued to pay premiums on policy from community funds of second marriage without intent to defraud second wife. This he could do because his right to dispose of community funds is absolute so long as it is not exercised for the purpose of defrauding his wife. Id.

Where the boundary between land constituting the community and homestead of a husband and wife and the land of the adjacent owner is in dispute, an agreement between the adjacent owner and the husband alone, fixing the boundary, is valid. Moreno v. Salazar (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 391.

Land conveyed by a married woman and her husband held not subject to a levy under execution issued under a judgment against the husband. Barr v. Simpson, 54 C. A. 105, 117 S. W. 1041.

A pretended sale of a stock of merchandise by one to his wife held ineffectual. Dawson v. Baldrige, 55 C. A. 124, 118 S. W. 593.

Conveyances held not to make land the community estate of husband and wife, and the conveyances were only valid in so far as they subjected the land to the payment of money borrowed. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 638.

That husband and wife, contributing community property, jointly made a contract of partnership with another does not invalidate the contract as between the husband and the third person, who understood he was dealing only with the husband, and the wife not engaging in the conduct of the business. Keith v. Aubrey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 278.

Though a husband can dispose of community property without his children's consent or without his wife's consent when not in fraud by her rights, he cannot give her interest to a stranger. Watson v. Harris (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 237.

A married man may without consent of his wife make partition with one to whom he and his wife have conveyed an undivided half of community property, so long as her homestead rights are respected. Paschall v. Brown (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 509.

A parol agreement by a wife and children to release their claim in community estate in consideration of the husband and father conveying to them other land is not enforceable, though the conveyances were made. Winfree v. Winfree (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 36.

A grantee of a purchaser of state lands who agrees to pay the state a specified sum per acre, and who moves on the land with his wife and family, may, during the life of his wife, convey without her consent, in order to relieve himself of his burden to the state, or he may forfeit the land to the state. Jones v. Harris (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 69.

Under the constitutions of 1845 and 1866, held, that a husband's trust deed of community property, subject to a homestead, without the wife's consent, became an effective trust deed on the death of the wife. Wiener v. Zwieb, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771, 147 S. W. 867.

An absolute deed of a husband to community property held to vest the title. Snipes v. Morton (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 286.

A husband, in the absence of fraud on the rights of his wife, was competent to convey community land, no homestead rights being involved, without joinder of the wife. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 856.

A husband's power to convey community property, not burdened with homestead rights, in the absence of fraud on the rights of the wife, without her joining, conferred by this article, continues until the marriage relation is legally dissolved. Id.

A conveyance by a husband alone of community property passes title. Watts v. Snodgrass (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1149.

18. — Recovery for ouster.—A wife cannot sue for damages for being ousted from land purchased by her husband, and upon which she was living with him at the time of such ouster. Jackson v. Bradshaw, 28 C. A. 394, 67 S. W. 438.

19. — Trusts in favor of wife.—Rents of a wife's separate property belong to the community and may be conveyed to a trustee to apply to her support. Schepflin v. Small, 23 S. W. 432, 4 C. A. 493.

20. — Sale of expectancy in community estate.—A wife's expectancy in the community estate of her living mother is, after the death of her father, the subject of sale by her. Barre v. Daggett, 105 T. 572, 153 S. W. 120.

21. — Insanity of wife.—When the wife is hopelessly insane the husband can alone convey the homestead, which is community property. In this case, even if insanity of the wife does not give the husband the right to convey alone, the deed is effective because at time of sale the homestead had been abandoned. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Shields, 20 C. A. 345, 50 S. W. 219.

22. — Insanity of husband.—A wife whose husband is insane may not convey community property constituting the homestead and make contracts as a feme sole. Heidenheimer v. Thomas, 63 T. 287. See Forbes v. Moore, 32 T. 195.

23. — Evidence.—Evidence held to support a finding that the use by a husband of community funds of his second marriage to pay premiums on a life policy in favor of the children of his first marriage was not with intent to defraud his second wife. Rowlett v. Mitchell, 52 C. A. 589, 114 S. W. 845.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to sustain a finding that defendant in purchasing was put on inquiry as to plaintiffs' claim to the land as community property. Ross v. Martin (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 718.

Evidence that it was generally known that husband and wife were separated, and that property conveyed by his separate deed was community property, held insufficient to justify an inference of fraud, or charge the purchaser with notice of the husband's fraudulent intent to deprive his wife of her interest. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 856.

24. Abandonment or separation or dissolution of community as affecting title of parties.—As to the property rights of a married woman abandoned by her husband. Insurance Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 829.

When a decree of divorce is entered, and no order is made touching community property, the husband and wife become tenants in common of the community interest. Southwestern Mfg. Co. v. Swan (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 813; Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 685.

In an action to subject community lands to payment of a debt, cross-action set up by wife held not maintainable, in that it sought a partition of community property, in which proceeding plaintiff had no concern. Teague v. Lindsey, 31 C. A. 161, 71 S. W. 573.

Statement of right of husband, who has deserted his wife, to dispose of community property. King v. King, 41 C. A. 473, 91 S. W. 633.

The right of a wife to her share in the community property acquired by her husband held not forfeited, where the husband abandoned the wife and a child, and the wife, erroneously believing that he had obtained a divorce, married. Merrell v. Moore, 47 C. A. 200, 104 S. W. 514.

A wife having been abandoned by her husband held entitled to collect and expend for her necessities wages earned by the husband, and to receipt therefor to the husband's employer. Irwin v. Irwin (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1011.

25. — Abandonment or separation as affecting right to manage, Incumber or convey.—When a husband has deserted the wife, is separated from her, or confined in the penitentiary, she is authorized to manage community property and to make contracts as a feme sole. Walker v. Stringfellow, 30 T. 570; Blanchet v. Dugat, 5 T. 507; Wright v. Hays, 10 T. 130, 60 Am. Dec. 200; Fullerton v. Doyle, 18 T. 3; Ann Berta Lodge v. Leverton, 42 T. 18; Carothers v. McNese, 43 T. 221; Zimpelman v. Robb, 53 T. 274; Davis v. Saladee, 57 T. 326; Wright v. Blackwood, 57 T. 644; Ezell v. Dodson, 60 T. 331; Black v. Black, 62 T. 296; Heidenheimer v. Thomas, 63 T. 287; Slator v. Neal, 64 T. 222; Clemens v. Ewing, 71 T. 370, 9 S. W. 312.

Where a husband abandons his wife she may assert her rights in the community property and may intervene in a suit against the husband by his creditors for her own protection. Cullers v. James, 66 T. 494, 1 S. W. 314.

After abandonment of a husband by his wife without the intention of returning held, that the husband had a right to incumber the community property and to pass a fee-simple title thereto. Mabry v. Kennedy, 49 C. A. 45, 108 S. W. 176.

A deed of a wife to community property held admissible in trespass to try title on a showing of abandonment by her husband. Snipes v. Morton (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 286.

In trespass to try title against a husband and wife, evidence held to show an abandonment by the husband of the wife, so as to clothe her with power to sell community property. Id.

That husband and wife were living apart, and had been separated for several years, did not of itself deprive the husband of the authority to convey community real property by separate deed, nor was it sufficient to show that such conveyance was fraudulent as to the wife. But evidence that it was generally known in the neighborhood that the husband and wife were separated, and that the land was community property, was insufficient to raise an inference of fraud or charge the purchaser with notice of a fraudulent intent of the husband to deprive the wife of her interest therein. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 856.

26. — Divorce as affecting right to manage, incurber or convey.—After divorce the husband can only bind his half interest in property by a new contract. A sale of one-half interest in community land would convey his entire interest therein. The remaining half, if the sale by metes and bounds made an equitable division, would be the property of the wife, with legal title in the husband or his heirs. In absence of any connection by the defendants with the equitable title of the wife, the plaintiffs holding the legal title, can recover the land. Goode v. Jasper, 71 T. 48, 9 S. W. 132.

After divorce, if the community property is not disposed of by the decree, the former husband and wife are tenants in common of such property, and the former husband no longer represents the former wife or the community estate. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 685.

27. — Authority, interest and liability of survivor.—See notes under Art. 2469 and Title 52, Chapter 29.

28. — Presumptions.—See notes under following article and Art. 3637, Rule 12.

29. Actions for community property.—A husband's right to sue for money alleged to be community property may be defeated by proof under a general denial, that it was his wife's separate property. Michael v. Rabe, 56 C. A. 441, 120 S. W. 565.

The husband alone can sue for community property. Cone v. Belcher, 57 C. A. 493, 124 S. W. 149.

While suit to recover on an account due a community should be brought by the husband, that the wife was made party plaintiff was no ground for dismissing the cause; dismissal of the wife on timely exception being the proper remedy. Gentry v. McCarty (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 152.

Since the damages sustained by husband and wife for personal injuries to the wife are community property, it was no objection, in a suit by both to recover damages, that the verdict made a single allowance for both. Posener v. Long (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 591.

30. — Right of action by abandoned wife against husband.—An abandoned wife held not entitled to recover a personal judgment against her husband for an alleged fraudulent disposition by him of wages constituting community property. Irwin v. Irwin (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1011.

31. — Quietling husband's title.—The husband's title to community property will not be quieted against the unfounded verbal assertion of the wife to title. Newman v. Newman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 635.

32. Rights and liabilities of heirs.—See notes under Art. 2469 and Title 52, Chapter 29.

33. Limitations.—See notes under Title 87.

34. Redemption of community from liens.—In a suit to enforce a vendor's lien, the wife of the vendee, being entitled to a community interest in the land, held entitled to redeem. Cavin v. Wichita Valley Townsite Co., 36 C. A. 336, 82 S. W. 342.

35. Administration of community property.—See notes under Title 52, Chapter 29.

36. Allowance to widow and children.—See notes under Title 52, Chapter 17.

Art. 4623. [2969] Presumption as to community property.—All the effects which the husband and wife possess at the time the marriage may be dissolved shall be regarded as common effects or gains, unless the contrary be satisfactorily proved. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4638.]

Applicability in general.—The presumption which obtains when the marriage is dissolved, that property in the possession of either spouse belongs to the community, applies to dissolution by divorce as well as by death. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 996.

Presumptions and burden of proof.—Property found in the possession of either husband or wife at the time the marriage is dissolved is presumed to be community estate. Wright v. Wright, 3 T. 179; Cox v. Miller, 54 T. 16; Heidenheimer v. Loring, 26 S. W. 99, 6 C. A. 560; McCelvey v. Cryer (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 175; Perkins v. Adams, 17 C. A. 331, 43 S. W. 529; Edelstein v. Brown (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1126.

Property acquired by purchase, whether the conveyance be in the name of the husband or of the wife, or in the names of both, is prima facie presumed to belong to the community. Lott v. Keach, 5 T. 394; Huston v. Curl, 8 T. 239, 58 Am. Dec. 110; Hemingway v. Mathews, 10 T. 207; Wells v. Cockrum, 13 T. 127; Chapman v. Allen, 15 T. 278; Smith v. Strahan, 16 T. 314, 67 Am. Dec. 622; Higgins v. Johnson, 20 T. 389, 70 Am. Dec. 394; Mitchell v. Marr, 26 T. 329; Cooke v. Bremond, 27 T. 457, 86 Am. Dec. 626; Stanley v. Epperson, 45 T. 645; Johnson v. Harrison, 48 T. 257; Veramendi v. Hutchins, 48 T. 531; McDaniel v. Weiss, 53 T. 259; Cox v. Miller, 54 T. 16; Wallace v. Campbell, 54 T. 87; Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 111; Collins v. Turner, 1 App. C. C. § 517; Edwards v. Brown, 68 T. 335, 4 S. W. 380, 5 S. W. 87; Finn v. Williamson, 75 T. 336, 12 S. W. 852; Proetz v. Schroeder, 83 T. 684, 19 S. W. 292; Stiles v. Japhet, 84 T. 91, 19 S. W. 450; Swink v. League, 25 S. W. 807, 6 C. A. 309; Ingersol v. McWillie, 30 S. W. 56, 9 C. A. 543; Keyser v. Clifton (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 957; Schneider v. Sellers, 25 C. A. 226, 61 S. W. 541; Clardy v. Wilson, 27 C. A. 49, 64 S. W. 489; Blackwell v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 659; Flannery v. Chidgey, 33 C. A. 638, 77 S. W. 1034; Thayer v. Clarke (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 1050; Hoopes v. Mathis, 40 C. A. 121, 89 S. W. 36; Henry v. Vaughan, 46 C. A. 531, 103 S. W. 192; Parks v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 921; O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899; Ross v. Martin, 104 T. 558, 140 S. W. 432, 141 S. W. 518; Sauvage v. Wauhup (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 259; Aycock v. Thompson, 146 S. W. 641.

The presumption in favor of the community, resulting from a deed made to either husband or wife, may be rebutted by proof that it was bought with the separate funds of either. When the deed is made to the wife, it may be shown to be for her benefit, not only from the advance by her of the purchase money, but if the funds be advanced from the separate means of the husband, the presumption of a gift arises, and if from the community fund, it may be proven that the husband intended a gift, and directed the deed to be made in her name. Dunham v. Chatham, 21 T. 231, 73 Am. Dec. 228; Smith v. Strahan, 16 T. 314, 67 Am. Dec. 622; Higgins v. Johnson, 20 T. 389, 70 Am. Dec. 394; Story v. Marshall, 24 T. 305, 76 Am. Dec. 106; Hatchett v. Conner, 30 T. 104; Tucker v. Carr, 39 T. 98. Such a trust cannot be ingrafted on a deed to the prejudice of creditors or purchasers without notice; and the fact that a conveyance is made to a married woman does not put the purchaser upon inquiry. Cook v. Bremond, 27 T. 457, 86 Am. Dec. 626; Flanagan v. Oberthier, 50 T. 379; Alstin v. Cundiff, 52 T. 453; McDaniel v. Weiss, 53 T. 257; Wallace v. Campbell, 54 T. 87.

Plaintiff, suing as a feme sole, alleged that she was the owner and entitled to possession, and that she held by regular chain of title, which she fled. One of the deeds was made whilst her husband was living. Held, that there was no error in refusing to charge that presumptively the land was community property. Distinguished from Hatchett v. Connor, 30 T. 104.

One who bought from the state school lands in the name of his wife, in pursuance of a contract with other parties, by the terms of which they also should purchase other sections, all of which were to be used for mining purposes, must be presumed, in the absence of evidence, to have used community funds in acquiring the lands patented to her. If, at the time of the application to purchase, it was the intention of the husband that the land should belong to her, then, as to the husband and his heirs, and those claiming under him with notice, the land would be regarded as the separate property of the wife. Edwards v. Brown, 68 T. 329, 4 S. W. 380, 5 S. W. 87.

That a wife joins in a conveyance (not properly acknowledged by her) does not raise a presumption that the land was community property. Bassett v. Martin, 83 T. 339, 18 S. W. 587.

Where land purchased by a husband was paid for with his separate property, the equitable title conferred by statute on the wife on his death presumptively existed, in the absence of anything to the contrary in the deed to the husband. Kirby v. Moody, 84 T. 201, 19 S. W. 453.

Where a deed is made to the wife, and there is no language in the deed tending to show that the property is the separate property of the wife, the presumption is that it is community property. Fox v. Brady, 1 C. A. 590, 20 S. W. 1024; McKinney v. Nunn, 82 T. 44, 17 S. W. 516.

A conveyance to a wife without a recital that it is intended for her separate use does not destroy the presumption that it is community property. Sinsheimer v. Kahn, 6 C. A. 143, 24 S. W. 533; Cooke v. Bremond, 27 T. 459, 86 Am. Dec. 626; French v. Strumberg, 52 T. 109; Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 112.

Presumptions will not be indulged in violence of the recitals in a conveyance. Mari-posa L. & C. Co. v. Silliman, 26 S. W. 978, 87 T. 142.

A married woman's recorded brand on cattle raises the presumption that they are community property, if acquired during coverture, unless the record shows contrary. Rhodes v. Alexander, 19 C. A. 552, 47 S. W. 754.

Deeds to and by the wife held not to destroy the presumption that the land acquired during coverture was community estate. Maxson v. Jennings, 19 C. A. 700, 48 S. W. 781.

Where property is purchased with community funds, and the deed taken in the wife's name, there is no presumption that it was to become her separate estate by gift from the husband. Schwartzman v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 113.

No presumption arises that land was purchased with the wife's separate means because the conveyance, made after the husband's death, recites that the consideration was paid by her. Clark v. Clark, 21 C. A. 371, 51 S. W. 337.

Where a deed executed by the surviving wife of one who during his life held the title is more than 30 years old, it should be presumed that the land was community property. Wolf v. Gibbons (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 238.

Personal property, acquired during marriage, is presumed to have been earned by one or the other, or both, members of the community. Thayer v. Clarke (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 1050.

Facts held to give rise to presumption that land conveyed to a husband during marriage was purchased with community funds. York v. Hilger (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1117.

The court may assume, when there is nothing to show when the property of deceased was acquired, that it was acquired during the existence of the marriage relation. Stein v. Mentz, 42 C. A. 38, 94 S. W. 449.

The legal presumption that land purchased by a husband and wife during the existence of the marriage is community property prevails in the absence of proof to the contrary. Letot v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1121.

In an action by the children and heirs at law of a deceased woman to recover her community interest from her surviving husband, the burden of proof was on defendant to satisfactorily prove that the property acquired during the marriage was his separate property. Edelstein v. Brown (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1126.

A sale of land by a trustee to his wife, held presumed to have become the common property, and cannot be held against an application to set aside the sale accompanied by an offer to do equity. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 505, 109 S. W. 903.

The consideration for land conveyed to husband during lifetime of wife being cash, in the absence of evidence that the money was the separate property of the husband, the presumption is that the land at the death of the husband was community. Frey v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 593.

Where land is "reciprocally possessed" at the dissolution of the marriage by the death of one of the parties, it must be regarded as common effects or gains unless the contrary is satisfactorily proved. Phillips v. Palmer, 56 C. A. 91, 120 S. W. 912.

The rule that property acquired during marriage is presumptively that of the community held not to apply to improvements made upon realty shown to be the separate estate of one of the spouses. Darden v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 944.

Where, on a wife securing a divorce, her husband testified that he had separate property prior to the marriage, but that after the marriage he kept no separate account of the funds, but made a "Duke's Mixture" of the whole thing, and he made no attempt to trace the changes and mutations of the property, a decree dividing it as community estate was proper. Ervin v. Ervin (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1139.

It is presumed that property acquired during a first marriage belonged to the community estate of that marriage. Lynch v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 461.

The presumption that property acquired during the existence of the relation of husband and wife was community property is rebuttable, and may be overcome by a showing that the consideration was from the separate means of one of the spouses. Winfield v. Rilling (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 828.

Property sued for by a husband will be presumed to be community property of both husband and wife. Ellerd v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1171.

Real estate acquired during marriage and occupied by the parties is presumptively community property, and on the death of the husband, leaving no children living at the time of his death, the title vests in the surviving wife. Ross v. Martin, 104 T. 558, 140 S. W. 432, 141 S. W. 518.

A payment by a husband on community property soon after the death of his wife does not raise a presumption that the money belonged to his separate estate. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1142.

Where a woman executed a deed as survivor of the community estate, and marriage, death of the husband, and destruction of county records were shown, the facts justified a presumption that the property was community property and that the grantor had authority to sell. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

Public land purchased from the state in the name of either husband or wife while they are living together is prima facie community property, but the presumption may be overcome by proof that, as between the husband and wife, such land is the separate property of one or the other. McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1157.

An instruction that all property deeded to either husband or wife during marriage and all effects possessed at the death of either is presumed to be community property, unless the contrary be "satisfactorily proven," was not erroneous as on the weight of the evidence in view of this article and Art. 4622. Wood v. Dean (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 363.

Art. 4624. What property subject to debts of wife; husband must join in certain contracts.—Neither the separate property of the husband nor the community property other than the personal earnings of the wife, and the income, rents and revenues from her separate property shall be subject to the payments of debts contracted by the wife, except those contracted for necessaries furnished her or her children; provided, the wife shall never be the joint maker of a note or a surety on any bond or obligation of another without the joinder of her husband with her in making such contract. [Act March 13, 1848. P. D. 4643. Acts 1913, p. 61, sec. 1 amending Art. 4624, Rev. St. 1911.]

Authority to contract in general.—When a husband has deserted the wife, is separated from her, or confined in the penitentiary, she is authorized to manage the community property and her separate property, and to make contracts as a feme sole. Walker v. Stringfellow, 30 T. 570; Blanchet v. Dugat, 5 T. 507; Wright v. Hays, 10 T. 130, 60 Am. Dec. 200; Fullerton v. Doyle, 18 T. 3; Ann Berta Lodge v. Leverton, 42 T. 13; Carothers v. McNese, 43 T. 221; Zimpleman v. Robb, 53 T. 274; Davis v. Saladee, 57 T. 326; Wright v. Blackwood, 57 T. 644; Ezell v. Dodson, 60 T. 331; Black v. Black, 62 T. 296; Heidenheimer v. Thomas, 63 T. 287; Slater v. Neal, 64 T. 222; Clemens v. Ewing, 71 T. 370, 9 S. W. 312.

The laws of another state authorizing a married woman to contract debts as a feme sole, a debt contracted by her in that state can be sued on in this state. Merrielles v. State Bank, 24 S. W. 564, 5 C. A. 483.

A married woman has power to compromise a suit and agree on a judgment in person or by attorney. Cordray v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 245.

A married woman can contract for the purchase of property, part in cash and part on time. For the deferred payment her separate property cannot be held liable, but she would be protected to the extent of the cash consideration paid out of her separate estate. Pitt v. Elser, 7 C. A. 47, 32 S. W. 146.

Parties under coverture are bound by their agreements made in the course of judicial proceedings and upon which a judgment is entered. Blagge v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 756.

Since no cause of action exists against a married woman as a partner in a mercantile firm, a garnishment against her alone, in an action against the firm, is properly quashed. Cleveland v. Spencer (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 405.

A check signed by a wife alone, with her husband's consent, is valid. Ragsdale v. Groos (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 256.

A widow who has remarried may renew a note given by her former husband and herself as part of the price of property and thereby extend the time in which to pay the price. Proetzel v. Rabel, 21 C. A. 559, 54 S. W. 373.

The debts named may be contracted by the wife without reference to abandonment by the husband. Palmer v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

A judgment cannot be rendered against a married woman on notes not executed for necessities furnished to her or family, or for the preservation of her separate estate. Noel v. Clark, 25 C. A. 136, 60 S. W. 356.

Where plaintiff kept house, and nursed and cared for an invalid wife, under promise of a legacy, which was not given, the fact that the invalid's husband lived with her, and hence necessarily received benefit from the service, did not affect plaintiff's right to compensation from the wife's estate. Von Carlowitz v. Bernstein, 28 C. A. 8, 66 S. W. 464.

An agreement by a married woman for division of property, as between herself and husband on the one side, and her adult children on the other side, is valid. Crouch v. Crouch, 30 C. A. 288, 70 S. W. 595.

The authority granted the wife by this article is strictly construed, and no appeal to the equitable powers of the court can be made to bind the wife not executed under the provisions of the statute. Flannery v. Chidgey, 33 C. A. 638, 77 S. W. 1035.

The purchaser of a note signed by a wife, must take notice of her coverture, and of the existence or nonexistence of the circumstances and facts, that would authorize her to execute a contract such as is authorized by this article. Haas v. American Nat. Bank, 42 C. A. 167, 94 S. W. 439, 440.

The common law has been so far modified as to permit the wife to contract debts for necessaries furnished herself and children, and for expenses incurred for benefit of her separate property. This is the extent of her right to contract in this state, unless her husband joins her in the contract, or she has been abandoned by him. Lane v. Moon, 46 C. A. 625, 103 S. W. 215.

One held not entitled to defeat recovery for a married woman's services on the ground that she was not authorized by her husband to contract therefor. O'Connell v. Storey (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1174.

A wife held not personally liable for a piano not purchased for her separate estate. Wright v. Couch (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 321.

A married woman is not liable on her note, where the consideration was a previous debt due from her husband. Burnham-Hanna-Munger Dry Goods Co. v. Carter, 52 C. A. 294, 113 S. W. 782.

A married woman cannot bind herself for debts by ordinary contract, except as authorized by this article, and is not liable on a contract to pay a commission for the sale of her separate property, which was not signed by the husband nor acknowledged by the wife. Billingsly v. Swenson Land Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 194.

A partnership contract between husband and wife jointly with a third person held not invalid on that account between the husband and third person. Keith v. Aubrey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 278.

A married woman because of her coverture was not liable on notes given by her for the price of a piano. Hall v. Decherd (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1133.

A wife has no legal capacity to make a contract to sell her separate property, either directly or indirectly, or to authorize her husband to do so, where there is no evidence that the contract is for necessaries or for the benefit of her separate property. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 960.

A married woman is not bound by a parol contract for the payment of commissions for the sale of land. Caldwell v. Scott Bros. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1192.

A rental contract of a farm constituting the separate property of a married woman, which gives to the lessee the use of the farm for his own benefit for a year in consideration of a stipulated rental in money, is not a contract for the benefit of the separate property of the wife within this article, and she is not bound thereby. Taylor v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1061.

A married woman's contract for a purpose other than such as is expressly authorized by statute is void. Thompson v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 706.

In general, a married woman cannot make a contract or be bound by one made for her, or under her authority, not for necessaries, or for the benefit of her separate property. Lemons v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1065.

The petition in an action by a married woman, in which her husband joined, alleged the making of a contract with defendant, a real estate broker, by the wife in the husband's presence, and with his consent, by which she was to have a share of the broker's commissions on sales to purchasers sent him by her. An amended petition, filed after a new action would have been barred by limitations, in which the husband was named as sole plaintiff, alleged the making of the contract by him. Held, that the contract alleged in both petitions was the same; and hence the cause was not barred by limitations, since the contract alleged in the original petition was the husband's contract, made by the wife as agent, in view of this article, which is the only statute authorizing a married woman to contract. Lilly v. Yearly (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

A married woman has no power, except such as is given by statute, to bind herself personally by a contract. Id.

— Abandonment by husband.—Wife held competent to lease premises in absence of husband, where judgment in action of forcible entry and detainer had been rendered. Golden v. City of Galveston, 20 C. A. 584, 50 S. W. 416.

A wife who has been abandoned by her husband can execute a valid mortgage to secure a debt theretofore incurred for necessaries. Fermier v. Brannan, 21 C. A. 543, 53 S. W. 699.

When abandoned by the husband a wife's contracts are treated as those of a feme sole, and she can make contracts, not only concerning her separate estate, but in certain instances as to the community estate. Palmer v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

Where a married woman has been abandoned, she may contract without joining her husband. Heagy v. Kastner (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 788.

A wife who has been abandoned by her husband may act as a feme sole, pay community debts, and convey community property, either for that purpose or to secure necessities for herself and family, as the survivor of the connubial partnership, and is authorized to bind herself by a note executed to secure an extension of the community debt. Crowder v. McLeod (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1166.

A woman conducting her own business, buying furniture with her separate property, at a time when she was permanently separated from her husband, and only two months before she was divorced from him, and who ratified the sale after divorce by payments thereon, cannot rely on coverture to defeat the sale. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

— Avoidance of contract with wife.—Though a married woman is not bound by her contract, the other party to the contract cannot refuse to perform it. J. B. Watkins Land Mortg. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 560.

One cannot avoid a contract to purchase because made with a married woman. Frazier v. Lambert, 53 C. A. 506, 115 S. W. 1174.

Necessaries and family expenses as charges.—To charge the estate of a wife with a debt contracted under this article, it must be shown that it was contracted by herself or by her express authority, for necessaries for herself or children, or for the benefit of her separate property, and that the charges were reasonable and proper. Harris v. Williams, 44 T. 124; Warren v. Smith, 44 T. 245; Christmas v. Smith, 10 T. 123; Butler v. Robertson, 11 T. 142; Milburn v. Walker, 11 T. 329; Rhodes v. Gibbs, 39 T. 432; Trimble v. Miller, 24 T. 214; Hutchinson v. Underwood, 27 T. 255; Covington v. Burleson, 28 T. 368; Menard v. Sydnor, 29 T. 257; Lee v. Crosby, 1 App. C. C. § 140; Searcy v. Mealler, 1 App. C. C. § 929; Rosenbaum v. Harloe, 1 App. C. C. § 850; Eager v. Morris, 1 App. C. C. § 177; Kelley v. Embree, 1 App. C. C. § 192; Wheeler v. Burks (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 434; Finks v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 711. Contra, see McFadden v. Crumpler, 20 T. 374; Christmas v. Smith, 10 T. 123; Brown v. Ector, 19 T. 346; Haynes v. Stovall, 23 T. 635. And see George v. Stevens, 31 T. 670; Magee v. White, 23 T. 180; Stansbury v. Nichols, 30 T. 145.

Evidence held sufficient proof of possession of separate estate by wife to support judgment against her for necessaries. Palmer v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

In an action against the estate of a wife for necessary personal services rendered to her, it is not necessary to show that her husband was unable or refused to pay for such services. Von Carlowitz v. Bernstein, 28 C. A. 8, 66 S. W. 464.

A note executed by a married woman partly for necessaries for herself and children held enforceable against her separate property. Hild v. Hellman (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 44.

A married woman's note after the death of her husband held not enforceable against her unless it was for necessaries, or she had converted community property. J. B. Newton & Sons v. Puente (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1161.

— What are necessaries.—When husband and wife have lived in one place and in rented property, and for the benefit of the wife's health have moved to another place and lived in rented property for a while, and then the wife concludes to build a home, the house so purchased is not such a necessary as will bind the wife's separate property for its payment. Bexar Building & Loan Ass'n v. Heady, 21 C. A. 154, 50 S. W. 1079, 57 S. W. 583.

An attorney at law can maintain an independent suit against the husband for legal services rendered the wife in divorce proceedings against him, as for necessaries furnished the wife. An agreed fee cannot be collected unless it was reasonable. Bord v. Stubbs, 22 C. A. 242, 54 S. W. 633.

Attorneys employed by a wife to prosecute a divorce can recover from the husband therefor only on a showing that the suit was instituted by the wife in good faith and for probable cause. Dodd v. Hein, 26 C. A. 164, 62 S. W. 811.

Under the facts, held, that a wife had no authority to bring a child into the family without her husband's consent, and to execute a note for the tuition of such child in a business college. Haas v. American Nat. Bank, 42 C. A. 167, 94 S. W. 439.

A wife purchasing the articles will be the judge of what are necessary for herself and children, subject to decision of court and jury as to whether they are reasonable and proper. Desmond v. Dockery (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 115.

— Husband's liability for necessaries.—A husband is liable for necessaries furnished the wife after he has abandoned her. Palmer v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

Debts or liabilities charged on separate estate.—A married woman is not personally liable for the unpaid purchase money of land conveyed to her by direction of the husband. Lynch v. Elkes, 21 T. 229; Farr v. Wright, 27 T. 96; Trimble v. Miller, 24 T. 214; Covington v. Burleson, 28 T. 368; Menard v. Sydnor, 29 T. 257.

A married woman, by mortgage or deed of trust executed by herself and husband, and duly acknowledged under the statute, can encumber her separate property for the prior debts of her husband. Trimble v. Miller, 24 T. 214; Covington v. Burleson, 28 T. 368; Menard v. Sydnor, 29 T. 257; Lynch v. Elkes, 21 T. 229; Rhodes v. Gibbs, 39 T. 432; Hollis v. Francois, 5 T. 195, 51 Am. Dec. 760; Shelby v. Burtis, 18 T. 644; Wiley v. Prince, 21 T. 637; Hall v. Dotson, 55 T. 520; Wilkinson v. Rowland, 3 App. C. C. § 11. In such a case the property conveyed stands as surety for the debt, and whatever will discharge an individual surety will, under similar circumstances, discharge the property; as, that an action on the debt is barred as to her. Wofford v. Unger, 55 T. 480.

A wife is liable for the value of materials used in beneficial improvements of her separate property, the title to which is in a trustee, when, by the wife's consent, the trustee permits the husband, as his agent, to manage the property and contract debts in the trustee's name. Perkins v. Baker, 38 T. 45.

A married woman, the owner of a ferry, is not liable for damages occasioned by the negligence of her husband or his servants. Henry v. Voltz, 1 App. C. C. § 775.

A married woman, who voluntarily pays her money or other personal property upon a contract made by her, or in any way that would bind a man, cannot recover it back simply upon the ground that she is a married woman. If she repudiates her contract she must return what she has received. Pitts v. Elser, 28 S. W. 513, 87 T. 347.

When the wife signs notes with her husband for his debt, and executes a mortgage on her separate property to secure the same, she occupies the position of a surety for the debt, and any fact that will ordinarily release a surety will release her property, and an extension of the time of payment of the notes without the consent of the wife will release her property. Beattie v. Keller (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 408.

Allegations that creditors, secured by a deed on community property and also separate property of the debtor's wife, permitted the community property to be squandered, held to charge laches on their part constituting cause for relief to parties claiming the separate property through a conveyance from the wife. Schneider v. Sellers, 25 C. A. 226, 61 S. W. 541.

Where services were rendered married woman in behalf of her separate estate, held unnecessary to show that they benefited such estate. Emerson v. Kneezell (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 551.

Where a debtor conveys property to a wife to satisfy a debt due her separate estate, and she assumes payment of debts due other creditors, the conveyance vests title in the property in her, and imposes on her the obligation of paying the debts assumed. Hugo & Schmeltzer Co. v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 163.

In order to enforce a note for attorney's fees against a wife's separate property, it must appear that she made the contract of employment herself, or that she authorized her husband to make it. Cushman v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1031.

Property devised to a woman for life, "to receive for her sole and separate use, and no other," the rents and profits thereunder, is her separate property, so that rents are not liable for husband's debts. Sullivan v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 680.

The separate estate of a wife is not liable for services rendered in nursing her deceased husband, though contracted for by her. Flannery v. Chidgey, 33 C. A. 638, 77 S. W. 1035.

The land of a married woman, hypothecated for an obligation of her husband, held not bound; the agreement under which it was hypothecated not having been complied with. Schneider v. Sellers (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 126.

Release of community property of husband and wife by creditor held to release lien of trust deed on real estate of wife securing husband's debt. Schneider v. Sellers, 98 T. 380, 84 S. W. 417, affirming (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 126.

The wife is jointly liable with her husband for torts committed by her, and her separate property may be subjected to a judgment rendered against her therefor. Magerstadt v. Lambert, 39 C. A. 472, 87 S. W. 1068.

The insolvency of a husband does not affect the rule that a contract or extension of his debt, not participated in by the wife, discharges her property which stands as surety for the debt. De Barrera v. Frost, 39 C. A. 544, 88 S. W. 476.

A husband has no authority to extend any indebtedness secured by a mortgage on the wife's separate property. Id.

A deed of trust given by a husband and wife on her separate property to secure his debt held not to have authorized him to make extensions so as to deprive her of any rights she might have the reason of an extension not participated in by her. Id.

A judgment over against a married woman in favor of a surety in a mortgage held erroneous. Littler v. Dielmann, 48 C. A. 392, 106 S. W. 1137.

Where the contract provided that the money loaned the husband and wife was to be expended in making an improvement upon the wife's separate property, but it was not so used the wife's separate property cannot be held for the debt, though she joined her husband in giving a lien on her property to secure the debt. To hold her liable on the contract it must be shown that the labor was furnished or improvement made for the purpose of benefiting her separate property. Stroter v. Brackenridge, 51 C. A. 170, 118 S. W. 633; Id., 102 T. 386, 118 S. W. 634.

Where a debt was contracted by a wife, or by her authority, and was for the benefit of her separate estate, she and her separate estate were bound therefor. Teel v. Blair (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 478.

Where a part of a loan evidenced by a note executed by a husband and wife secured by deed of trusts on her separate property was used as intended to pay prior liens on the property and taxes and premiums for insurance on the property, the property was primarily liable for such part under this article, and a change in the contract made by the creditor and the husband, who was the principal debtor, did not release the property from liability for such part. Dearing v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 876.

An unauthorized extension by a husband and his creditor of time of payment of a debt secured by deed of trust on the wife's separate property released the lien on the property. Red River Nat. Bank v. Bray (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 968.

A married woman is not bound by a parol contract for the payment of commissions for the sale of land. Caldwell v. Scott Bros. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1192.

Where a married woman, to whom property had been devised for life, with remainder in fee to her children, after the probate court had set aside and canceled the will, brought an action to construe the will, such action was for the benefit of her separate estate; and hence she was liable for the allowance therein made to the guardians ad litem for the infant defendants, though the court held that she was not entitled to maintain such action. Thompson v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 706.

A married woman's contract for a purpose other than such as is expressly authorized by statute is void. Id.

Where a contract for the building of a house was for the benefit of the separate estate of the wife, who signed with her husband, a judgment in an action for the debt was properly entered as personal against both husband and wife, as a married woman is authorized so to contract. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

A contract by a married woman for the construction of a well on her separate property for a reasonable price was valid without the acquiescence or consent of the husband. Lemons v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1065.

Where property of a married woman had been sold under a trust deed and title taken in the name of the mortgagee, under an express agreement, of record, that it might be redeemed upon paying the indebtedness for which it had been sold, the payment of such indebtedness was not a "purchase of property," so as to be forbidden as a purpose for which she could borrow money. Blair v. Teel (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 878.

A part of a loan to a married woman, not used for the benefit of her separate estate, cannot be made a charge on such estate except as to the property upon which she has executed a deed of trust to secure its payment. Id.

A married woman's note for borrowed money is not binding upon her, unless the money borrowed was used for the benefit of her separate estate. Id.

— Mercantile business and partnerships.—A wife cannot become a partner in business with her husband or any one else. Neither the wife nor husband can invest her separate property in a mercantile business, and thereby become entitled to the profits arising therefrom as part of her separate estate. Her separate estate cannot be subjected to the debts of the pretended partnership, but she would be a creditor of the firm to the extent of her separate property thus invested. If such an arrangement was formed by the wife with the assent of her husband, he would become liable as partner by reason of his interest in the profits created by the investment of the wife's money. Miller v. Marx, 65 T. 131; Wallace v. Finberg, 46 T. 35; Cox v. Miller, 54 T. 25; Brown v. Chancellor, 61 T. 437; Green v. Ferguson, 62 T. 525; Cockrum v. McCracken, 1 App. C. C. § 65; Ratto v. Holland, 2 App. C. C. § 469.

A wife may become a merchant, but she must conduct the business with goods which are her separate property, and must not invest the community estate or the credit of her husband in the purchase of goods, if she wishes them to be exempt from her husband's debts. She cannot purchase on credit, but must buy for cash only, and be ready to show that the money so used is her separate means. The profits become community property. If profits are mixed with her separate money used in their purchase, she must be prepared to show how much of her own money entered into the purchase. The burden of proving this is not upon the creditor who seizes the goods for her husband's debt. Epperson v. Jones, 65 T. 425. Citing Cleveland v. Cole, 65 T. 402; Braden v. Gose, 57 T. 41; Green v. Ferguson, 62 T. 529.

A married woman is not bound for debts contracted for carrying on a mercantile business. Steinback v. Weill, 1 App. C. C. § 936; Cockrum v. McCracken, 1 App. C. C. § 65.

When the wife's separate means are used as the capital stock of a partnership, she becomes a creditor of the concern for the amount contributed. Smith v. Bailey, 66 T. 553, 1 S. W. 627.

Assent of husband to wife charging her separate estate.—The assent of the husband is unnecessary to enable the wife to charge her separate estate with debts contracted under this article. Booth v. Colton, 13 T. 359.

Liability of husband.—The husband is liable with the wife on a joint contract executed by them for the improvement of the wife's separate property. Smotridge v. Lovell, 35 T. 58, citing Cartwright v. Hollis, 5 T. 152; Haynes v. Stovall, 23 T. 627; George v. Stevens, 31 T. 673.

Horse purchased by wife for use in business of her own is not a necessary for which husband is liable. Palmer v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

Both husband and wife are liable for necessaries furnished the wife after abandonment by the husband. Id.

Where a married woman, amply provided for, left her husband, he was not liable for her debts for necessaries, unless she left with his consent. Cline v. Hackbarth, 27 C. A. 391, 65 S. W. 1086.

Mere failure of a husband to give notice of his wife's separation from him held not to render him liable for goods purchased by her. Sanger v. Bernay (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 606.

A husband held not liable on notes given by his wife without his knowledge to enable the wife's sons to carry on a business. Richburg v. Sherwood, 101 T. 10, 102 S. W. 905.

A husband is not liable on notes given by his wife, without his knowledge, for goods purchased for a business conducted by their sons in her name, nor for the debt evidenced by the notes, though he did not protest upon learning of the transaction. Richburg v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 524.

Enforcement.—Mortgagor held entitled to foreclose on the husband's life interest in the wife's separate property covered by the deed. Dearing v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 876.

Where a piano was not purchased by a husband or by his wife as his agent, nor for the community estate, but by the wife individually, neither the husband nor the estate were liable on notes given by the wife for the price. Hall v. Decherd (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1133.

A note of a married woman cannot be enforced against her after the death of her husband, unless it was for necessaries or unless she has converted property of the community estate which was subject to the payment of community debts. J. B. Newton & Sons v. Puento (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1161.

A personal judgment was improperly rendered against wife, in an action against husband and wife, to recover the balance due for materials for erecting a house on the homestead lot; there being no showing that the homestead selected was necessary as a home for the wife, and it only appearing that the husband contracted for the erection of the building upon their homestead with the wife's consent. Howell v. McMurry Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 848.

— Parties to actions.—See notes under Arts. 1839-1841.

Art. 4625. [2971] Judgment and execution in such cases.—Upon the trial of any suit as provided for in the preceding article, if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court and jury that the debts so contracted or expenses so incurred were for the purposes enumerated in said article, and also that the debts so contracted or expenses so incurred were reasonable and proper, the court shall decree that execution may be levied upon either the common property or the separate property of the wife, at the discretion of the plaintiff. [P. D. 4644.]

In general.—Although the debt sued for may be for the benefit of the wife's separate property, yet if it was not contracted for by herself or her authority, her separate estate cannot be held liable. Parker v. Wood (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 941.

Verdict.—A general verdict for plaintiff under this article is sufficient, without reciting in the verdict finding of facts. The verdict, when construed with reference to the pleadings, implies that the jury found the facts. Evans v. Gray, 38 C. A. 442, 86 S. W. 376, contra, see Powers v. Parks (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 712.

Form of judgment and execution.—A judgment against the husband and wife on a debt properly contracted by them for the benefit of her separate property may direct execution to be levied on the community property, or on her separate property, at the discretion of the plaintiff. Grant v. Whittlesey, 42 T. 320.

A judgment against a husband and wife for services rendered for the benefit of the separate estate of the wife should order payment out of their community estate, or from her separate estate. Evans v. Breneman (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 80.

In a suit against husband and wife for debt contracted by wife for benefit of her separate estate a charge authorizing verdict against the husband is harmless in view of the fact that the judgment restricts levy of execution to wife's separate property and her community interest and provides that no execution shall issue against husband's separate property. Emerson v. Kneezell (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 551.

Injunction will not lie to restrain execution against a wife's separate property on a judgment against husband and wife on a joint note, on the contention that the note was not given for necessities, or for expenses incurred for her separate estate, or for any tort committed by her. Walters v. Cantrell (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 790.

It was not necessary that a judgment against a husband and wife state specifically that the separate property of the wife was liable therefor. Smith v. Ridley, 30 C. A. 158, 70 S. W. 235.

The failure of a judgment against a husband and wife to specifically authorize execution against the wife's separate property does not invalidate it or prevent satisfaction thereof out of such property. Love v. McGill, 41 C. A. 471, 91 S. W. 246.

A debt incurred on a contract to give a minor girl a year's course at a business college, under some circumstances may be a necessary, and reasonable and proper within this article. Haas v. American Nat. Bank, 42 C. A. 167, 94 S. W. 441.

A statutory judgment rendered against a married woman on her replevy bond held a nullity and may be directly attacked in a suit to vacate the same and enjoin the execution thereof. Lane v. Moon, 46 C. A. 625, 103 S. W. 211.

A valid judgment against a married woman may be collected out of either her separate or community estate. Id.

Where a piano was purchased by a married woman for her minor sons, and a chattel mortgage given by her to secure the purchase money notes the seller was entitled to a foreclosure of his lien. Hall v. Decherd (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1133.

A contract by a married woman for the drilling of a well on her separate real property for a reasonable price was for the improvement thereof, and was enforceable against her. Lemons v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1065.

The error in a judgment against a married woman arising from its failure to specifically award execution against the wife's property, as provided by this article, does not render the judgment subject to collateral attack. White v. Cowles (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 982.

Art. 4626. [2972] Husband failing to support wife, etc.—Should the husband fail or refuse to support his wife from the proceeds of the lands she may have, or fail to educate her children as the fortune of the wife would justify, she may, in either case, complain to the county court, which, upon satisfactory proof, shall decree that so much of such proceeds shall be paid to the wife for the support of herself and for the nurture and education of her children, as the court may deem necessary. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4637.]

In general.—When the husband has assumed a power of disposition or control over her property inconsistent with her rights, this action of itself affords a sufficient reason for omitting to join him in an action which has for its object a restoration or preservation of the rights of which he has sought to deprive her. In such case the district court has jurisdiction. It is not a proceeding contemplated by this article, and an unsuccessful proceeding under this article would not be res adjudicata of a proper suit in district court. Dority v. Dority, 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 340.

Agency of wife to purchase necessities.—Marriage alone confers on the wife an agency to purchase necessities for herself and children, if her husband fails to supply them. Whether goods purchased are necessities is a question for the jury. Walling v. Hannig, 73 T. 580, 11 S. W. 547; Clements v. Ewing, 71 T. 370, 9 S. W. 312.

Effect of abandonment of wife by husband.—The right of a married woman to support by the husband is not lost by reason of his abandonment of her. Railway Co. v. Spicker, 61 T. 427, 48 Am. Rep. 297; Clements v. Ewing, 71 T. 370, 9 S. W. 312.

Action by wife for support and alimony.—A wife cannot maintain an action against her husband to require him to support her, except by suit for divorce or a proceeding under this article. Burns v. Burns (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 333.

Decrees.—A decree under this article in favor of the wife is conclusive of the rights of the wife. Young v. Willis, 63 T. 388.

Action against husband.—In a suit against a husband, the wife is neither a necessary nor proper party when there is no prayer to subject the separate property of the wife to the payment of the debt. Walling v. Hannig, 73 T. 580, 11 S. W. 547.

In an action against a husband for rent of rooms let to his wife and for the price of rugs, etc., sold to her, evidence held not to show that defendant failed to provide his wife with a home furnished according to his position in life and circumstances. Fields v. Florence (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 187.

Art. 4627. [2973] Community property liable for debts.—The community property of the husband and wife shall be liable for their debts contracted during marriage, except in such cases as are specially excepted by law. [Act Aug. 26, 1856.]

Community debts—What are.—Land standing in name of husband and wife held subject to mechanic's lien of materialman who had no notice that wife claimed it as separate property.

rate estate, and who was informed by the husband that it was his property. Hord v. Owens, 20 C. A. 21, 48 S. W. 200.

Where a husband and wife were living together on school land when a purchase was made by the wife, and continued to live thereon until a litigation arose, the presumption is that the purchase was made by the husband's consent, and the obligation for the purchase price is a valid community debt. Neighbors v. Anderson, 94 T. 487, 61 S. W. 145, 62 S. W. 417.

Neither party owning community property can create debts and make them a charge on the property, nor use the proceeds of the property in the payment of such debts, after a decree of partition has been rendered. Moor v. Moor (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 347.

Where a husband and wife separately owned an undivided half of certain real estate, a debt created by them for the erection of improvements on the land was a community debt. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

A debt incurred by the husband during the existence of the marriage relation is prima facie a debt of the community. Dever v. Selz, 39 C. A. 558, 87 S. W. 891.

Evidence held to show that a husband gave his separate property to his children, and executed a note and deed of trust to secure his obligation to the children on account thereof, so as to make the obligation enforceable against community property. Word v. Colley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 257.

A "community debt" is a liability made by a husband during marriage; and the husband surviving the wife may renew the community obligation and make it a charge on community property. Id.

A deed, dated November 1, 1902, conveying property for a consideration named, payable in cash, and promissory notes given for the remainder, was prima facie evidence of an existing community debt. Norwood v. King (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 366.

— Consideration.—Extension of time secured by a wife who had been abandoned by her husband by the execution of her sole note for the payment of a community debt constituted a sufficient consideration for the note. Crowder v. McLeod (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1166.

Community and separate debts—Property liable for.—Community property is liable to execution for the debts of the wife contracted before marriage. Taylor v. Murphy, 50 T. 291.

Where judgment is recovered against the husband and wife for a debt contracted by her before marriage, the judgment may direct that execution shall be levied upon her separate property only. Muse v. Burns, 3 App. C. C. § 77; Tarlton v. Weir, 1 App. C. C. § 145, citing Nash v. George, 6 T. 236; Booth v. Cotton, 13 T. 359; Rountree v. Thomas, 32 T. 288.

Crops raised on land on separate property of the wife and children, who by agreement paid debts created by them for their separate use, are not subject to the debts of the husband. Nelson v. Frey, 4 App. C. C. § 248, 16 S. W. 250.

The separate estate of one member of the community must reimburse the community for any proper improvements made in good faith upon the separate estate with community funds. Furrh v. Winston, 66 T. 521, 1 S. W. 527, citing Rice v. Rice, 21 T. 66; Bond v. Hill, 37 T. 626.

Judgment against husband for community debt held superior to a prior judgment in favor of the husband's interest in the community property. Ghent v. Boyd, 18 C. A. 88, 43 S. W. 891.

A sale under a judgment on a note given by a husband for the price of land purchased by him passes whatever community interest the wife has in the land. Culmore v. Medlenka (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 676.

A wife's land cannot be subjected to the husband's debts, unless the improvements were made with his or community funds, to defraud creditors, in which she participated. Maddox v. Summerlin, 92 T. 483, 49 S. W. 1033, 50 S. W. 567.

A judgment creditor may sell merely the interest of the husband in the community property, where the husband does not object, notwithstanding the wife's share is liable under the judgment. Campbell v. Antis, 21 C. A. 161, 51 S. W. 343.

Where husband uses his wife's separate funds to improve his property, it becomes liable for such funds so long as it remains in his hands or in the hands of his heirs. Parish v. Williams (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 79.

Creditor, having notice that land was purchased with intention that it should become separate estate of wife, cannot subject same to judgment against husband. Clardy v. Wilson, 24 C. A. 196, 53 S. W. 52.

An agreement by a married woman, together with her husband, that her cattle should be held as security for community debts to be incurred by him, was valid. Word v. Kenon (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 365.

The separate property of a wife cannot be sold to reimburse the community estate for improvements made out of community funds. Collins v. Bryan, 40 C. A. 88, 88 S. W. 432.

Community property is subject to a judgment founded on the wife's torts, even though it includes exemplary damages. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 146.

A wife who advanced to her husband money owned in her own name could not complain of a judgment after his death, which treated the advancement as a charge against the community estate of the parties. Goldstein v. Susholtz, 46 C. A. 582, 105 S. W. 219.

In an action by a wife for her separate property and for a half of the community property, the husband held not entitled to recover for improvements made on the property. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 145.

A wife's separate property would only be bound for the payment of a community debt by reason of a mortgage executed thereon by her for that purpose. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

Evidence, in an action on a note, brought against a married woman and her husband, to charge her separate property, held sufficient to sustain allegations that upon the first application for the loan it was represented that they wanted the money to improve her separate estate, and afterwards, and before the money was loaned, that it was wanted to pay off debts for which her separate estate was liable, and that it was used. Blair v. Teel (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 878.

All community property of an estate, except the homestead, is liable for community debts. Williamson v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 998.

Parties liable for.—When the wife purchases goods for the use of herself and husband, he is charged with her contract, if he does not promptly repudiate her action and restore the goods. Walling v. Hannig, 73 T. 580, 11 S. W. 547; Hamilton v. Peck (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 403.

The fact that improvements on the wife's separate property are paid for with community funds does not give community such interest in the property as can be taken by execution against the husband. Schwartzeman et ux. v. Cabell et al. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 113.

Where a piano was purchased by the wife individually, neither the husband nor the community estate were liable on notes given by her for the purchase. Hall v. Decherd (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1133.

Goods, purchased by a wife on credit to be resold in her store held community property, so as to make her husband liable for their price. Richburg v. McIlwaine, Knight & Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1166.

A husband is not liable for the ordinary general community debts contracted by his wife without his authority. Jones v. O. W. Lyman Millinery Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 864.

A wife is not personally liable for the community debts contracted by her husband. Vinson v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1095.

A wife who has been abandoned by her husband can bind herself by the execution of a note for the settlement of community debts. Crowder v. McLeod (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1166.

Conveyance of community property by survivor in payment of debts.—See notes under Title 52, Chapter 29.

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Rights and remedies of creditors.—After death of one spouse, see notes under Title 52, Chapter 29.

It is no defense to an action on a note representing a debt chargeable against community property that such property has been exhausted or appropriated. Brown v. Adams (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 761.

Where a husband and wife agreed that certain horses and their increase should be the wife's separate property, the agreement was invalid as to community creditors. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

Art. 4628. [2974] Female under 21 emancipated by marriage.—Every female under the age of twenty-one years, who shall marry in accordance with the laws of this state, shall, from and after the time of such marriage, be deemed to be of full age, and shall have all the rights and privileges to which she would have been entitled had she been at the time of her marriage of full age. [Act March 13, 1848. P. D. 4642.]

In general.—Only those females under 21 who had never been married being minors, disability of minority is removed by marriage. Grayson v. Lofland, 21 C. A. 503, 52 S. W. 121.

Termination of guardianship.—The guardianship of a female is terminated by her marriage. Carpenter v. Soloman, 4 App. C. C. § 34, 14 S. W. 1074.

Limitations.—Despite this statute, the marriage of a woman under 21 years of age will not start the running of the statute of limitations until she reaches her majority. Gibson v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 694.

Art. 4629. [2975] Rights of persons married elsewhere.—The marital rights of persons married in other countries, who may remove to this state, shall, in regard to property acquired in this state during the marriage, be regulated by the laws of this state. [P. D. 4639.]

In general.—Parties married in Tennessee at a time when the common law was in force which declared that marriage operated as a gift from the wife to the husband of all personalty reduced to possession by the husband during marriage. They afterwards removed to Texas and the husband invested the money his wife had at her marriage in land here. Held, the land was the husband's separate property. McDaniel v. Harley (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 323.

Art. 4629a. May apply to district court to be feme sole for mercantile and trading purposes, how.—Any married woman within this state may, with the consent of and joined by her husband, apply to the district court of the county in which she may be a bona fide resident for judgment or order of the said court removing her disabilities of coverture and declaring her feme sole for mercantile and trading purposes. [Acts 1911, p. 92, sec. 1.]

Art. 4629b. Petition; contents.—Said application shall be in the form of a petition in writing, addressed to said court, setting out the cause or causes which make it desirable or advantageous to said married woman to be so declared feme sole. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4629c. Hearing on petition.—Upon the filing of said petition same shall be docketed as in other cases, and at any time thereafter the district court may, in term time, take up and hear said petition and evidence in regard thereto. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4629d. Decree declaring married woman feme sole for mercantile and trading purposes; effect of decree.—If upon a hearing of said petition, and evidence relating thereto, it should appear to the court that it would be to the interest and advantage of the said married woman so applying, then said court shall enter its order or decree declaring said married woman feme sole for mercantile or trading purposes, and thereafter the said married woman may, in her own name, contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, and all of her separate property not exempt from execution under the exemption laws of Texas, shall thereafter be subject to her debts and liable under execution therefor, and her contracts and obligations shall be as binding on her as if she were a feme sole. Provided, however, that no married woman shall convey or encumber her separate real property except as now provided by law. [Id. sec. 4.]

Right of action by husband for damages to wife.—Husband may recover damages for the physical and mental suffering of his wife, caused by the negligence of the defendant. Pacific Express Co. v. Black, 27 S. W. 830, 8 C. A. 363.

A husband, in an action for a nuisance causing the sickness of his wife, may recover for the loss of the society and the comfort of the wife. Neville v. Mitchell, 28 C. A. 89, 66 S. W. 579.

Article 4630. [2976] Marriage may be annulled, when.—The district court shall have power to hear and determine suit for the dissolution of marriage, where the causes alleged therefor shall be natural or incurable impotency of body at the time of entering into the marriage contract, or any other impediment that renders such contract void, and shall have power and authority to decree the marriage to be null and void. [Act Jan. 6, 1841. P. D. 3449.]

See McNeill v. Casey (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1130; Dillingham v. Kerr, 139 S. W. 911.

Art. 4631. [2977] Divorce may be granted in what cases.—A divorce by separation from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed in the following cases:

1. Where either the husband or wife is guilty of excesses, cruel treatment or outrages toward the other, if such ill treatment is of such a nature as to render their living together insupportable.

2. In favor of the husband, where his wife shall have been taken in adultery, or where she shall have voluntarily left his bed and board for the space of three years with the intention of abandonment.

3. In favor of the wife, where the husband shall have left her for three years with intention of abandonment, or where he shall have abandoned her and lived in adultery with another woman.

4. In favor of either the husband or wife, when the other shall have been convicted, after marriage, of a felony and imprisoned in the state prison; provided, that no suit for divorce shall be sustained because of the conviction of either party for felony until twelve months after final judgment of conviction, nor then if the governor shall have pardoned the convict; provided, that the husband has not been convicted on the testimony of the wife, nor the wife on the testimony of the husband. [Act May 27, 1876, p. 16. P. D. 3451.]

See Art. 4632 for additional grounds for divorce.

1. In general.—The power to grant divorces for causes arising after marriage is restricted to those enumerated in the statute. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3; Sharman v. Sharman, 18 T. 521.

2. Cruelty—Acts constituting.—A series of studied vexations and deliberate insults and provocations, without apprehension of personal violence, is sufficient ground for divorce. Sheffield v. Sheffield, 3 T. 79; Wright v. Wright, 3 T. 168; Pinkard v. Pinkard, 14 T. 356, 65 Am. Dec. 129.

Words and acts which affect the mental feelings enter into the definition of legal cruelty. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3; Nogees v. Nogees, 7 T. 538, 58 Am. Dec. 78.

Cruel treatment is ground for divorce, when it is of such a character as to create a reasonable apprehension of danger to the physical safety of the party complaining. Huilker v. Huilker, 64 T. 1; Sheffield v. Sheffield, 3 T. 79; Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3.

That a wife at one time expressed fear that her husband would poison her is not cause for divorce. After the act alleged as grounds for divorce, the fact that the husband seeking the divorce endeavored to induce the wife to live with him negatives the allegation that the act was such as to render their living together insupportable. Sapp v. Sapp, 71 T. 348, 9 S. W. 258.

Religious opinions, doctrines or practices which are not immoral cannot be made a ground for divorce. Haymond v. Haymond, 74 T. 414, 12 S. W. 90.

A single act of personal violence by the husband to the wife, as a blow with the fist in the face, or an act creating a reasonable apprehension of personal safety, may be a sufficient cause for divorce against the husband. Miller v. Miller, 72 T. 250, 12 S. W. 167; Huilker v. Huilker, 64 T. 1.

In absence of physical violence by the husband, such cruel treatment to the wife must be shown as will produce a degree of mental distress threatening to impair her health. Eastman v. Eastman, 75 T. 473, 12 S. W. 1107; Bush v. Bush (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 217.

Where the wife made a false statement as to where she had been, in response to a question put by the husband, held, that an accusation imputing misconduct on her part, in the absence of any explanation by her, could not be considered malicious. Loring v. Loring, 17 C. A. 95, 42 S. W. 642.

A husband held justified in using reasonable and necessary force to protect himself against the wife's interference while he was properly chastising their child. Id.

Refusal of wife to grant husband intercourse held not cruel treatment, when he is old and his virility impaired. Varner v. Varner, 35 C. A. 381, 80 S. W. 386. Nor is the unjustifiable refusal of a spouse to engage in sexual intercourse a ground. Nor is refusal of a wife to engage in sexual intercourse save under conditions a ground. Lohmuller v. Lohmuller (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 751.

The act of the husband in taking from the mother the infant child and going with it out of the country, and keeping it from the mother for the space of more than a year, and not returning it at all, is not in terms a ground of divorce, and is not such "cruel treatment or outrages" as will authorize a divorce under this subdivision and article. Slaughter v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 194.

A husband, pursuing a course of harsh conduct toward his wife, violently threatening to assault her, cursing and abusing her, and using insulting epithets, and falsely charging her with want of chastity, and thereby rendering it unsafe for her to live with him, is guilty of cruelty justifying a divorce. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 638.

In an action for divorce for cruel treatment, a requested charge requiring plaintiff to prove by a preponderance of evidence that defendant on one occasion seized her by the hair, snatched her around, and slammed her head and body violently against the bedstead many times, was objectionable, as the substance of the issue would have been established by proof that defendant slammed her head, but not her body, or her body and not her head, against the bedstead once, and not several times. Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 697.

Untrue charges by a husband of unchastity and infidelity against his wife constitute cruel treatment entitling the wife to a divorce. Aycock v. Aycock (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1139; Jones v. Jones, 60 T. 451; Bahn v. Bahn, 62 T. 513, 50 Am. Rep. 539; Williams v. Williams, 67 T. 198; 2 S. W. 823; Scott v. Scott, 61 T. 119. Though the charges do not have the effect of seriously impairing the physical health of the wife. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 524. But the mere charge of adultery on part of the husband, made by the wife, though repeatedly made and false, is not ground for divorce in favor of husband. McAllister v. McAllister, 71 T. 695, 10 S. W. 294.

A wife who without provocation abuses the husband's daughter of a former marriage, defames the memory of the husband's deceased wife, wantonly assails his character, publishes him as indolent and good for nothing, demands his expulsion from a benevolent society as unworthy of membership, assaults him, constantly abuses him, applies to him in the hearing of others opprobrious epithets, excludes him from his dwelling, and ceases to perform the duties of a wife, thereby rendering his living with her unendurable, is guilty of excesses and cruel treatment, justifying a divorce. Dawson v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 379.

A wife's surveillance of her husband does not constitute cruel and inhuman treatment, entitling him to divorce, if caused by his matrimonial misconduct. Dickinson v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 205.

Mere profane and abusive language, not involving an attack on a wife's chastity, at intervals, is not sufficient cruel and inhuman treatment to justify a divorce. Bingham v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 214.

The enormity of alleged cruel and inhuman treatment, consisting of words and abusive language, should be considered in the light of the environment and circumstances surrounding the parties. Id.

That a faithful wife disturbed by jealousy, on learning of the infidelity of her husband, called him names which, in English amount to no more than "poor person" or "tramp" held not such cruel treatment as afforded ground for divorce. De Fierros v. Fierros (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1067.

3. — Question for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

4. — Provocation.—Misconduct of plaintiff, to defeat the right to a divorce for cruelty, need not equal defendant's, but must be reasonably calculated to have provoked defendant's misconduct. Bohan v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 959.

5. — Condonation.—Condonation or reconciliation is not a bar to complaint as to past outrages, etc., where there has been subsequent ill treatment or reasonable apprehension of further violence. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3; Nogees v. Nogees, 7 T. 538, 58 Am. Dec. 78.

Evidence of cruel treatment of husband held inadmissible, as having been condoned. Dority v. Dority (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 106.

Dismissal of suit for divorce, and return of plaintiff to live with defendant, at his request and on his promise to abstain from repetition of the offense and to treat her as a husband should, does not prevent consideration in a subsequent suit for divorce of his acts prior to the bringing of the first suit; he having after the reunion repeated the acts of cruelty complained of before, or been guilty of some other like cause for divorce. Oster v. Oster (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 265.

The doctrine of condonation applies as well to cruelty as other grounds of divorce. Bingham v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 214.

6. — Recrimination.—Mutual recrimination, quarreling and fighting will defeat an action for divorce, except where the provocation is great and the retaliation is slight. Beck v. Beck, 63 T. 34; Jones v. Jones, 60 T. 451; Hale v. Hale, 47 T. 336, 26 Am. Rep. 294.

In a suit for divorce for cruelty, it was error to refuse to instruct that, if the parties were equally at fault, verdict should be for defendant; there being evidence raising an issue of recrimination not submitted. Bohan v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 959.

Failure to submit an issue of recrimination in a suit for divorce for cruelty held not justified by the fact that there was evidence raising no such issue as to one of the specified acts charged in the petition. Id.

If recrimination on the part of an injured spouse is insignificant as compared with great provocation on the part of the other, a divorce may be granted. Staples v. Staples (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 120.

7. — Allegations of cruelty.—See notes under Art. 1827, § 114½.

8. — Evidence.—Evidence held not to justify a divorce for husband on ground of cruelty. Cunningham v. Cunningham, 22 C. A. 6, 53 S. W. 75.

Nor to justify a divorce for wife on ground of conduct by husband, rendering living with him unsupportable. Id.

Evidence held not to sustain decree of divorce for cruelty. Dority v. Dority (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 106; Ingle v. Ingle, 131 S. W. 241; Bingham v. Bingham, 149 S. W. 214.

Proof that defendant called plaintiff a bitch on one occasion, and used other abusive language toward her, held not in itself to entitle her to a divorce for cruel treatment. Bush v. Bush (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 217.

A divorce on the ground of cruelty held properly refused. Ryan v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 464.

A husband held guilty of cruelty justifying a divorce. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 638.

A decree denying a divorce on the ground that the proof was not full and satisfactory was proper. Ingle v. Ingle (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 241.

9. — Answer as evidence.—Allegations of answer charging plaintiff with adultery, in view of its plea of the general issue, held not evidence of a ground of divorce in that he had accused her of adultery. Oster v. Oster (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 265.

10. — Instructions.—See notes under Art. 1971.

11. Abandonment—elements of.—Separation and abandonment must concur for the full period of three years. Pinkard v. Pinkard, 14 T. 355, 65 Am. Dec. 129; McGowen v. McGowen, 52 T. 667; Besch v. Besch, 27 T. 392; Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 1022; Hannig v. Hannig (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 695.

Occasional or habitual intoxication of the husband, if the latter is not continued for great length of time, and of such a character as to justify the wife for abandonment, is not ground for a divorce. Camp v. Camp, 18 T. 528.

Abandonment is not necessarily implied from separation, but a jury may find the intention of abandonment upon proof of unexplained continued absence for more than three years. Besch v. Besch, 27 T. 390; Hare v. Hare, 10 T. 355.

To constitute a voluntary separation with the intention of abandonment, it must appear that the plaintiff neither caused, procured, nor consented to the separation. McGowen v. McGowen, 52 T. 657.

A statement by a wife to her husband which induced a voluntary separation held not such excessive cruelty as relieved him from the effects of such separation and entitled him to a divorce for desertion. Gray v. Gray, 43 C. A. 348, 95 S. W. 46.

Facts held to entitle a wife to a divorce for abandonment. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 943.

Where a husband deserted his wife, and, without intending to resume the marital relation, induced, her to cohabit with him under the belief that the marital union had been restored, and again abandoned her, the period of desertion essential to a divorce was not interrupted. Womble v. Womble (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 473.

12. — Offer of renewal of cohabitation.—An offer to return before the expiration of three years, after a voluntary abandonment, precludes the granting of a divorce on that ground. McGowan v. McGowan (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 399.

Where a husband repents his wrongful desertion, and returns, intending to resume marital relations, the wife's failure to do so puts her in the wrong, and makes her the deserting party. Womble v. Womble (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 473.

13. — Agreements for separation.—The conduct of the offending spouse may be such that the other will be justified in not objecting to a separation. Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 720.

14. — Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827, § 114½.

15. — Evidence.—Evidence held to entitle plaintiff to a decree on the ground of abandonment. Ervin v. Ervin (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1139; Ogden v. Ogden, 144 S. W. 355.

16. Imprisonment for felony.—The commission of a felony, where there has been no conviction, is not a statutory ground for divorce; but the killing of the child of the wife by the husband may be such an outrage as to authorize a divorce. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3.

The commutation of the punishment adjudged against one convicted of a felony is not equivalent to a pardon. Young v. Young, 61 T. 191.

17. Failure to support.—Mere failure to support wife and family is not ground for divorce, where the husband endeavors in good faith to procure employment, although unsuccessful. Loring v. Loring, 17 C. A. 95, 42 S. W. 642.

Failure to support his wife is not of itself ground for divorce from the husband. Barrett v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 821.

18. Grounds existing at time of marriage.—A husband cannot have the marriage annulled because the wife was with child by him at the date of the marriage. McCulloch v. McCulloch, 69 T. 682, 7 S. W. 593, 5 Am. St. Rep. 96.

A divorce will not be granted for antenuptial incontinence. Griggs v. Griggs (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 941.

That a wife, before marriage, falsely represented to her husband that she was pregnant, thereby inducing the marriage, is not ground for divorce. Young v. Young (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 898.

Antenuptial pregnancy, followed by the birth of an illegitimate child of which the husband is not the father, is ground for a divorce, unless followed by condonation on the husband's part. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 661.

19. Judgment—Validity in part.—See notes under Art. 1994.

20. Change of name.—See Art. 5954.

Art. 4632. Plaintiff must be resident; suit not to be heard within 30 days; remarriage; divorce where marriage was to escape penalties for seduction; additional ground for divorce.—No suit for divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall be maintained in the courts of this state unless the petitioner for such divorce shall at the time of exhibiting his or her petition, be an actual bona fide inhabitant of the state for a period of twelve months, and shall have resided in the county where the suit is filed six months next preceding the filing of the suit; provided, that such suit shall not be heard or divorce granted before the expiration of thirty days after the same is filed; and provided, further, that neither party to a divorce suit, wherein a divorce is granted upon the ground of cruel treatment, shall marry any other person for a period of twelve months next after such divorce is granted, but the parties so divorced may marry each other at any time upon obtaining a license as provided in article 4610; provided that where a man marries the woman whom he seduces to escape penalties of the law punishing for seduction, the man shall not be entitled to a divorce for any cause within three years after such marriage, provided that this Act shall not apply to any case where either the husband or wife is insane.

Provided further that in addition to the grounds for divorce now provided by statute, that where any husband and wife have lived apart without co-habitation for as long as ten years, the same shall be sufficient grounds for divorce. [Act May 27, 1873, p. 117. P. D. 3459. Acts 1913, p. 183, sec. 1, amending Art. 4632, Rev. St. 1911.]

See Young v. Young (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 898.

Residence of plaintiff.—Suit may be brought by the wife in the county where she permanently resides, without reference to his residence or the place where the offense for which divorce is sought was committed. Jones v. Jones, 60 T. 451.

A continuous, actual residence in the county is required, and a constructive residence while the plaintiff lives in another or is bodily present there does not meet the requirements of the statute. It was intended by this statute not only to compel an actual good faith inhabitancy of this state, but an actual residence in the county where the suit for divorce is instituted, and not a constructive or imaginary residence. Michael v. Michael, 34 C. A. 630, 79 S. W. 75.

Plaintiff in a divorce action must at the time of exhibiting his petition be an actual inhabitant of the state and have resided in the county where the suit is filed six months next preceding the filing of the petition. Brashear v. Brashear (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 568.

The temporary absence of a wife from the county of her residence held not to defeat her residence in that county for the purposes of venue of a subsequent action for divorce. McLean v. Randell (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1116.

This article demands an actual and continuous, as distinguished from a legal, residence; and, while it is not necessary that every day or every week must be passed in the county, the bulk of the time must be passed there. Dickinson v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 205.

And a divorce decree recovered without actual, continuous residence by petitioner in the state and county for the time required, is void, and may be set aside for fraud in a direct proceeding though jurisdiction appears on the face of the proceedings. Id.

— Acquisition of domicile for purpose of divorce.—After a husband had abandoned his wife, for which she demanded a divorce, her residence could not be regarded as the residence of her husband, but depended on the place where she actually resided. Michael v. Michael, 34 C. A. 630, 79 S. W. 74.

A wife on abandoning her husband held entitled to choose her residence for purposes of venue of a subsequent action for divorce. McLean v. Randell (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1116.

— Suit against nonresident.—A suit for divorce may be brought against a non-resident defendant, where the marriage was solemnized and the grounds for divorce occurred in Texas. Trevino v. Trevino, 54 T. 261.

A decree of divorce held conclusive on the parties, though one of them was a non-resident of the state. Stuart v. Cole, 42 C. A. 478, 92 S. W. 1040.

Allegation and proof of residence.—See, also, notes under Art. 1824, § 19, and Art. 1827, §§ 114, 114½.

Residence in the county where the suit is brought for six months next preceding the bringing of the suit, as required by this article and Art. 1830, must be alleged and proved. McLean v. Randell (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1116.

A defendant, who defends the suit and who files a cross-bill, need not allege in the cross-bill that he has been a resident of the county in which the suit is pending for six months immediately preceding, notwithstanding this article which is applicable only to plaintiff instituting the suit. Charlton v. Charlton (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 290.

Findings on jurisdictional questions.—Where a divorce case is submitted upon special issues, held, the jury must make findings as to jurisdictional questions to support the judgment. Bruner v. Bruner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 796.

Evidence that plaintiff had lived in Texas all her life held to sustain a finding that she was a bona fide inhabitant of the state when she sued for divorce. Gamblin v. Gamblin, 52 C. A. 479, 114 S. W. 408.

Judgment—Collateral attack.—See notes under Art. 1994.

— Conclusiveness.—See notes under Art. 1994.

Art. 4633. [2979] Husband and wife competent witnesses.—In all suits and proceedings for divorce from the bonds of matrimony, the defendant shall not be compelled to answer upon oath, nor shall the petition be taken as confessed for want of answer, but the decree of the court shall be rendered upon full and satisfactory evidence, upon the verdict of a jury, if a jury shall have been demanded by either party, and if not, upon the judgment of the court affirming the material facts alleged in the petition. In all such suits and proceedings the husband and wife shall be competent witnesses for and against each other, but neither party shall be compelled to testify as to any matter that will criminate himself or herself; and where the husband or wife testifies, the court or jury trying the case shall determine the credibility of such witness, and the weight to be given such testimony; but no divorce shall be granted upon the evidence of either husband or wife, if there be any collusion between them. [Acts 1897, p. 49.]

See Lohmuller v. Lohmuller (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 751; Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Former law.—Before the amendment of the statute, neither party was a competent witness in regard to matters affecting the right to divorce. Stafford v. Stafford, 41 T. 111; Cornish v. Cornish, 56 T. 564.

In a suit by a wife, admissions by the husband that he gave the wife a venereal disease are not admissible. But on such issue it may be shown that he sent her a package of medicine with instructions how to use it. Hanna v. Hanna, 3 C. A. 51, 21 S. W. 720.

Admissions in pleadings as dispensing with proof.—An admission of the marriage in the answer does not dispense with its proof by competent evidence. Simons v. Simons, 13 T. 468; Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3; Stafford v. Stafford, 41 T. 111.

Right of nonanswering defendant.—A defendant failing to answer is not precluded from resisting a divorce and can insist that the case shall be called in due order. Bostwick v. Bostwick, 73 T. 182, 11 S. W. 178.

Evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Witnesses—Examination of.—Where in a suit for divorce both parties were represented by attorneys, and defendant's attorney declined to cross-examine a witness for plaintiff, the court was authorized to cross-examine the witness in order to bring out all the facts and avoid collusion, subject only to review for abuse of discretion. Ingle v. Ingle (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 241.

Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—Suspicion as to the fidelity of the wife is not sufficient to authorize a divorce. Trevino v. Trevino, 54 T. 261; Burney v. Burney, 11 C. A. 174, 32 S. W. 328.

The proof to justify a decree of divorce should be full and satisfactory. No less as to the means of knowledge of the witnesses than to their credibility. Gardell v. Gardell, 42 C. A. 202, 94 S. W. 458.

The weighing of the testimony of a party to a divorce action is governed by the same considerations as that of other witnesses, the credibility of such witness being for the jury in view of the interest of the witness and other circumstances tending to weaken or strengthen his testimony. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 524.

A divorce cannot be granted upon the uncorroborated testimony of the one seeking it. Lohmuller v. Lohmuller (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 751.

Discretion of court.—The judge may refuse to render a judgment for divorce if the evidence is not satisfactory to him. Moore v. Moore, 22 T. 237; Haygood v. Haygood, 25 T. 576.

The trial court has a wide discretion in determining whether the testimony warrants a divorce. Duffer v. Duffer (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 354.

The court must grant a divorce when it clearly appears from the undisputed testimony that plaintiff is entitled to one. Ogden v. Ogden (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 355.

Conclusiveness of findings of jury.—The verdict of the jury is not binding on the court on appeal in a divorce suit. Lohmuller v. Lohmuller (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 751.

In suits for divorce, the trial court is not bound by the finding of the jury upon questions of fact, but may render the judgment that justice requires. De Fierros v. Fierros (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1067.

Vacation of decree for fraud.—A decree of divorce procured by perjury or fraud will not be set aside therefor, unless the perjury or fraud consists of intrinsic acts not examined and determined in the divorce proceedings. Moor v. Moor (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 347.

Review on appeal.—The action of the court denying a divorce is subject to revision on appeal. Jernigan v. Jernigan, 37 T. 420; Huilker v. Huilker, 64 T. 1; Paulson v. Paulson (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 778.

Where plaintiff's evidence in a suit for divorce is conflicting, a decree for defendant will not be disturbed. Barrett v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 951.

Judgment refusing a divorce on the ground of abandonment will not be reversed, where the plaintiff was the only witness to the fact of abandonment. Seago v. Seago (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 941.

An assignment that the court erred in granting a divorce, because there was no proof on the record that plaintiff was a bona fide resident of the state, or that she had resided in the county for six months, will not be reviewed, where the motion for new trial failed to call the question to the attention of the trial court. Wetz v. Wetz, 27 C. A. 597, 66 S. W. 869.

A verdict in a divorce proceeding will not be set aside on appeal, though resting alone on the testimony of one of the parties. Barrow v. Barrow (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 120.

If the jury determined that the testimony of a party to a divorce action was credible and based their verdict thereon, the court of civil appeals cannot disturb their verdict, especially where it was approved by the trial court. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 524.

A finding of the trial court denying a divorce will be disturbed only when it clearly appears that the court has erred, and not when the right to divorce depends wholly upon the testimony of the plaintiff. Duffer v. Duffer (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 354.

In suits for divorce, the court of civil appeals is not bound by the finding of the jury upon questions of fact, but may render the judgment that justice requires. De Fierros v. Fierros (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1067.

Art. 4634. [2980] Division of property.—The court pronouncing a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall also decree and order a division of the estate of the parties in such a way as to the court, shall seem just and right, having due regard to the rights of each party and their children, if any; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to compel either party to divest himself or herself of the title to real estate. [P. D. 3452.]

Jurisdiction of court to order division in general.—The court granting a divorce has authority to partition the separate from the community property and divide the latter. Rice v. Rice, 21 T. 58.

Where prayer for alimony is stricken, and nothing is left but suit for divorce, a money judgment is not justified. Boyd v. Boyd, 22 C. A. 200, 54 S. W. 380.

Where a wife sues for partition of real property, the court has no jurisdiction of property outside of the state to adjudge that it is community property and decree its partition. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

In a suit for divorce, jurisdiction to enforce certain claims of the husband's creditors out of property delivered to the wife pending investigation held to attach as incidental to the main suit, regardless of amount or value. Also held error to strike out certain pleas of the husband's creditors as foreign to the issues in the suit. Bradley v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1112.

The court has jurisdiction to inquire into the community property of the plaintiff and defendant, and to make disposition of the same between them. Ex parte Latham, 47 Cr. R. 208, 82 S. W. 1046.

In decreeing divorce to the wife, the court has power to make such a decree as will properly protect the wife and minor children in the use of community property which constitutes a homestead. Holland v. Zilliox, 38 C. A. 416, 86 S. W. 36.

Variance between the averment as to ownership of property in a citation and in a petition for divorce, and to adjudicate property rights, held not so misleading as to render the citation insufficient to support a judgment giving the property to plaintiff. Sperry v. Sperry (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 419.

The district court has jurisdiction to try a divorce proceeding, and, if the divorce is granted, to decree as to the property rights of the parties; but, if divorce is denied, the court has no power to adjust the property rights of the parties otherwise than fixed by law. Burns v. Burns (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 333.

In a suit by a wife for divorce, the character and quantity of community property being shown, but not its value, the court was authorized to direct partition by commissioners. Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 697.

The court may adjust property rights in a divorce action, but cannot subject husband's interest in the homestead to debts due the wife. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 682.

Parties.—The statute does not prohibit a joint owner of lands that might be in controversy between the husband and wife to become a party to a proceeding looking towards the partition of such land. Weaver v. Manley, 46 C. A. 133, 101 S. W. 848.

Property subject to division.—Land held by wife in trust for children cannot be partitioned in divorce suit to which they are not parties. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 418.

Disposition of separate property.—As a general rule, the separate property should be restored to its owner. Fitts v. Fitts, 14 T. 443.

In a proper case the separate property may be placed in the hands of a trustee to pay the rents, etc., to the husband, wife and children in such proportions as the court may direct without divesting the owner of the title. Fitts v. Fitts, 14 T. 443. Or place it in the hands of a trustee, to be under the supervision of the court, for the support and education of minor children; but the title of either party to real estate cannot be divested. Rice v. Rice, 21 T. 53.

A husband having, during marriage, by deed of gift, conveyed certain property to his wife for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, the property was decreed to the wife as her separate property. Stafford v. Stafford, 41 T. 111.

That there is a probability of an after-born child does not justify a court in granting permanent alimony to a wife out of the husband's separate property. Boyd v. Boyd, 22 C. A. 200, 54 S. W. 380.

A wife, paying premiums on a policy on the life of her husband assigned to her by the husband during the existence of the marriage relation, is, on the divorce of the parties, entitled to a lien on the policy for such premiums. Hatch v. Hatch, 35 C. A. 373, 80 S. W. 411.

But a money judgment against the husband, does not give the wife any right in or lien on a policy on the life of the husband assigned to the wife. Id.

Property purchased by a husband with his separate funds and its proceeds, and property in which the same is invested, should be regarded as his separate property in a division in divorce proceedings. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199.

And an instruction limiting the jury's consideration of plaintiff's separate property to property paid for by him out of his separate means acquired prior to marriage held erroneous. Id.

Where after a default divorce decree in favor of a husband in which no disposition of the children nor provision for their support was made, no mention of either children or property having been made in the case, the husband brought habeas corpus against his former wife to obtain the custody of the children which was denied on account of their tender age, a judgment, on the wife's application, appointing a trustee of that part of certain of the husband's lands which were rented, to receive the rents and pay over a stated monthly sum to the former wife for the support of herself and the children, was proper, though the husband had remarried and occupied part of the lands as his homestead. Bemus v. Bemus (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 503.

Disposition of community property.—Such a division of the community property may be made as may be equitable and just, having reference to the condition of the parties and the support and education of the children. Trimble v. Trimble, 15 T. 18; Fitts v. Fitts, 14 T. 443; Simons v. Simons, 23 T. 344; Young v. Young (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 83.

Where the circumstances require it, the community property may be placed in the hands of a trustee, to be under the supervision of the court, for the support and education of the minor children. Rice v. Rice, 21 T. 53.

It is error to divest either party of all title in the community property. Craig v. Craig, 31 T. 203.

A wife, in whose favor a decree of divorce is made, is entitled to satisfaction out of the mass of community property for such portion of her interest as she does not obtain in kind, and this as against a purchaser with notice, pending suit. Moore v. Moore, 59 T. 54.

The community homestead can be sold and the proceeds partitioned. Kirkwood v. Domnau, 80 T. 645, 16 S. W. 428, 26 Am. St. Rep. 770. But an order directing a sale thereof, for partition, is not a divestiture of title, but merely provides for a division of the property under this article. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 815.

The court may by decree provide for the use of the homestead by the wife and children. Kirkwood v. Domnau, 80 T. 645, 16 S. W. 428, 26 Am. St. Rep. 770.

The court may apportion to the wife her interest in the community estate free of any charge on account of the husband's liability for the community debts. Hubbard v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 388.

The husband held chargeable with rents of community estate and with community in his hands. Stone v. Stone (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1022; Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199. But he is not chargeable with rent of the residence nor the business homestead. And the husband is entitled to credits on community funds for alimony paid, and for payments on community debts and taxes, and expenses of managing community property; and is not entitled to compensation for the management of the property. Stone v. Stone (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1022; Williams v. Williams, 125 S. W. 937, 1199. And the wife should be charged with one-half of the community funds taken by her when she separated from her husband. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199.

Where divorce decree provided for sale of husband's interest in community property, either by selling his individual interest or by selling whole property for partition, held, that sale of his individual interest was permissible, though sale of whole would have been more beneficial to him. Boyd v. Ghent (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 704.

On partition of community property under a decree in a wife's favor, it is error to leave to commissioners of partition the determination of the amount of the income thereof received by her husband. Bohan v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 959.

Where a wife who petitions for a partition of community property is not sufficiently acquainted with the property to describe it in her petition, and the husband refuses to answer interrogatories seeking to obtain a description of the property, the court may ascertain its description and embody it in the decree. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

The power given the court on pronouncing decree of divorce, to order a division of the property in such a way as seems just and right, does not alter the presumption as to community property. Id.

A judgment awarding the entire community estate to one party in a decree of divorce is erroneous. The proper judgment in case where the wife secures judgment in divorce suit, if the facts warrant it, is to give her judgment for one half of the community lands in fee and the use of the entire property for life, and the husband the other half subject to the said use. Long v. Long, 29 C. A. 536, 69 S. W. 429.

In an action to recover certain rents under a divorce decree, defendant held not entitled to object that such decree was erroneous, in that community debts exceeded the community property given him. Connellee v. Werenkiold (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 747.

A right of action against a railroad for personal injuries to a husband held community property, one-half of which might be set apart to the wife on divorce. Ligon v. Ligon, 39 C. A. 392, 87 S. W. 838.

Where, in divorce, the wife petitioned for partition of the community property, it appearing that the husband had converted the property and had the money, the court had authority to decree a partition of the money as well as the property. Owens v. Owens, 40 C. A. 641, 90 S. W. 664.

A decree giving the wife one-half of the rents of the estate pending partition thereof protected her rights. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 315.

Where the community property is adjudged to the wife by a divorce decree, the husband as between the two no longer has any interest therein, and, if a creditor of the community seeks to subject the interest of the former husband as it existed at the time of the divorce decree to payment of his claim, he can do so only in a proceeding to which the former wife is a party, and it is immaterial that the creditor had no knowledge of the divorce decree, since, the divorce proceeding being in rem, he was affected with notice without actual knowledge, and hence, where a divorce decree adjudged community property to the wife, the subsequent levy of execution on cattle, which had been community property, to satisfy a judgment rendered in an action against the former husband alone after the divorce decree, and the sale thereunder of the husband's alleged interest in the community property, was void, where the former husband had not acquired any interest in the cattle since the divorce decree. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 685.

The court, in awarding a divorce to a wife, with half of the community estate exempt from execution, held not required to render judgment for the husband for the amount of the community debts. Franks v. Franks (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1110.

In an action for divorce and partition of the community property, if the homestead of the parties is not susceptible of partition, it will be sold. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 682.

A divorce decree, charging plaintiff with the care and custody of minor children, awarding her 200 acres of land, one half in fee and the other half for life, and giving the defendant a 53.1-acre tract of land, one half in fee and the other half for life, and all the personal property in the community estate, worth about 9,000—was not inequitable, though it charged him with the total community debts, amounting to about $1,900. Huntsman v. Huntsman (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 351.

— Judgment.—Where property questions were submitted on special issues, and the verdict found the monthly rental value of real estate, but not the time it was rented, a judgment thereon held erroneous. Stone v. Stone (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1022.

Judgment awarding personal property to defendant in a divorce action held not indefinite in specifying it. Gebhart v. Gebhart (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 964.

— Effect of disposition as against children or creditors.—A levy of execution upon community property after divorce of the owners thereof and sale thereunder held void. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 685.

A judgment in a divorce suit held not to divest a child of the parties of any interest he might have in the land independent of a trust conveyance to him. Winfree v. Winfree (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 36.

— Enforcement of order.—In a divorce case, court held to have power to commit defendant to jail for indefinite time to compel compliance with order in relation to adjustment of community property rights of plaintiff and defendant, notwithstanding inapplicability of statute with reference to punishment for contempts. Ex parte Latham, 47 Cr. R. 208, 82 S. W. 1046.

Permanent alimony.—There is no such thing in the state as permanent alimony. Bond v. Bond, 41 C. A. 129, 90 S. W. 1128.

Right of wife to compel husband to support her.—A wife cannot maintain an action against her husband to require him to support her, except by suit for divorce or a proceeding under Art. 4626. Burns v. Burns (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 333.

Vacation of division of property.—In suit by divorced wife to set aside partition of community property made under agreement with husband, objection that she did not offer to return property received under the partition cannot be raised by general demurrer to petition. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

Where a wife sues to set aside a partition of community property, it is only necessary, as regards the benefits received under the partition, that she manifest in her petition a willingness to restore the property received by her, or have it considered by the court in the partition. Id.

In a suit by a wife to set aside a partition of community property, findings held to sustain judgment that the agreement and settlement was procured by fraud of husband. Id.

Where a divorced wife seeks to set aside in favor of her decree for alimony a mortgage by her husband to take up a prior mortgage and a new loan, it is not error, on setting aside the mortgage, to subordinate her claim to the prior mortgage. Schultze v. Schultze (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

Where, in a suit by divorced wife to set aside decree of divorce in so far as it affected her property rights, the jury found that certain property awarded the husband was community property, and fixed its value, the husband held not entitled to take such property upon payment of one-half of the value fixed by the jury. Bracht v. Bracht (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 895.

Property not disposed of by judgment of divorce.—If partition is not made of community property, either party may afterwards bring suit to recover his or her interest. Whetstone v. Coffee, 48 T. 269; Wimberly v. Pabst, 55 T. 587; Murray v. Murray, 66 T. 207, 18 S. W. 506; Gray v. Thomas, 83 T. 246, 18 S. W. 721; Henry v. Forshee, 84 T. 185, 19 S. W. 381.

In an action by a husband divorced against the divorced wife for property in Texas, the courts of Texas will apply the laws of this state without proof of the law of Massachusetts. Blethen v. Bonner, 93 T. 141, 53 S. W. 1016.

Where a divorce was granted to a wife because of wrongs inflicted on her by her husband, he will not be heard to say, in a subsequent proceeding by the wife for partition of the community property, that her conduct was such as to deprive her of an equal share of the property. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

A husband and wife, after divorce, became tenants in common of the community property, and either may recover the entire interest as against a trespasser. Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563. The former husband no longer represents the former wife nor the community estate. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 685.

Defendant having consented to a part of a divorce decree, requiring payment of certain rents in D. county, held bound thereby, though no such relief was prayed in the pleadings. Connellee v. Werenskiold (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 747.

The right of the community estate to claim the benefit of the wife's adverse possession of land conveyed to the husband under a tax deed held not destroyed by the subsequent divorce of the wife and an unexecuted order for partition of the property then made. Callen v. Collins, 56 C. A. 620, 120 S. W. 546.

A husband, supporting a stepchild during marriage, held not entitled to judgment against the wife, obtaining a divorce, with alimony. Franks v. Franks (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1110.

Support of children.—A divorced wife cannot assert homestead rights in the separate estate of her husband. But as guardian of their children she may prosecute their rights in their father's homestead after his death. Their homestead rights are not affected by the fact that their custody had been awarded to the mother. Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 553, 17 S. W. 82.

The only authority for making provision for the children in the final decree in a divorce case is the general power given in this article which does not go further than to authorize the court to do so out of the property of the parties. Ligon v. Ligon, 39 C. A. 392, 87 S. W. 839.

The rights of the children of the union ought to be conserved, not by a fixed charge against either the father or the mother, but in the division of the estate between the parties. Bond v. Bond, 41 C. A. 129, 90 S. W. 1128.

Where the court on granting a divorce to a wife held that all the property owned and possessed by the husband was his separate property, and awarded the custody of the children to the wife, the court had no jurisdiction to order the husband to pay to the clerk $15 a month for the benefit of the children, and to make such allowance a lien on the husband's real estate, etc. Barry v. Barry (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1142.

The duty of a father to support his children is not terminated by a decree of divorce obtained by him in a suit in which the question was not raised, nor will an order in habeas corpus awarding their custody to the mother impose the burden of support solely on her, especially where she and they are wholly without means of support except her earnings, so that a clause was properly inserted in the habeas corpus order providing for their support from the income of property owned by the husband. Bemus v. Bemus (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 503.

Where a judgment of divorce was secured by a husband in the absence of the wife, on his pleadings, in which he did not inform the court of either children or property, the court could at a later time appoint a trustee of the father's property for the maintenance of these children. Id.

Art. 4635. [2981] Condonation, connivance and collusion.—In any suit for divorce for the cause of adultery, if it shall be proved that the complainant has been guilty of the like crime, or has admitted the defendant into conjugal society or embraces after he or she knew the criminal fact, or that the complainant, if the husband, connived at his wife's prostitution, or exposed her to lewd company, whereby she became ensnared to the crime aforesaid, it shall be a good defense and a perpetual bar against said suit; or if it appears that the adultery complained of is occasioned by collusion of the parties, and done with intention to procure a divorce, or where both parties shall be guilty of adultery, then no divorce shall be decreed. [P. D. 3460.]

Adultery as bar to action.—A decree of divorce is properly refused, where it is shown that both parties have been guilty of adultery. Haines v. Haines, 62 T. 216.

Plaintiff's adultery is a bar to her action of divorce for any cause. Oster v. Oster (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 265.

Condonation.—A finding in a suit by the husband for divorce held a finding that he had condoned the wife's misconduct. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 91.

The doctrine of condonation applies as well to cruelty and other grounds for divorce as to adultery, except that the act of cruelty is condoned only until the particular act is repeated; the condonation, however, being conditional that the injured party is to be treated with conjugal kindness and consideration in the future, and, if this is not accorded, the former act of cruelty is revived, providing the last act is not produced by the offensive conduct of the party complaining. Bingham v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 214.

Collusion.—Where, in divorce, the court does not pass on the merits, but denies a decree on the ground of collusion, on reversal the cause will be remanded without rendering a decree for either party. Erwin v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 53.

Art. 4636. [2982] Legitimacy of children; parties may marry again.—A divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall not in any wise affect the legitimacy of the children thereof; and either party may, after the dissolution of the marriage, marry again. [P. D. 3453.]

See Art. 4632, which modifies this article as to right to remarry.

Liability for support of children after divorce.—The liability of a father for necessities for his children continues to exist after he is divorced from his wife. Ligon v. Ligon, 39 C. A. 392, 87 S. W. 838.

The duty to support children held not terminated by a divorce obtained by the father, nor cast on the mother by the award of their custody to her in proceedings after the decree. Bemus v. Bemus (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 503.

Where the court appointed a trustee of a divorced father's lands for the support of the children, the order directing the trustee to pay a specified monthly sum for their support held proper. Id.

Right to marry.—An implied prohibition against a second marriage resulting from a decree of divorce not expressly authorizing it will not be given extraterritorial effect. Wingo v. Rudder (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1073.

Art. 4637. [2983] Debts and alienations after suit filed.—On and after the day on which the action for divorce shall be brought, it shall not be lawful for the husband to contract any debts on account of the community, nor to dispose of the lands belonging to the same; and any alienation made by him after that time shall be null and void, if it be proved to the satisfaction of the court that such alienation was made with a fraudulent view of injuring the rights of the wife. [P. D. 3457.]

Applicability in general.—This article is applicable in a case in which divorce proceedings were pending in which the right to the property owned by the husband and wife was not put in issue. The general rule which makes the right of a purchaser pendente lite to depend on the result of litigation in which the right to the property sold was in controversy applies. Berg v. Ingalls, 79 T. 522, 15 S. W. 579.

The court will not construe this article in a case where a deed is made by the husband on the same day that a suit for divorce is filed by the wife, when the evidence does not show that the suit was filed at an hour prior to the making and recording the deed. If the wife claims that the suit was filed before the deed was made, she should have shown that fact by evidence. Sparks v. Taylor, 99 T. 411, 90 S. W. 487, 488, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 381.

A sale of a former husband's alleged interest in community property held properly enjoined. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 685.

For a conveyance to be void the property conveyed need not be community property, but may be separate property of the husband or property which he holds in trust for his wife. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 289.

Definition—"Community property."—"Community property" includes the interest remaining in property purchased by a husband in his own name mainly with his wife's money subsequent to their marriage, after allowing his wife an interest proportionate with the part of the purchase price paid by her. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 289.

Validity of conveyances.—A deed was void which was executed by a husband after action brought by his wife for divorce, and which was fraudulently dated back and entered of record as of the day that the divorce action was brought. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 289.

Previous service of process on the husband is not essential to make void a conveyance made by him on or after the day the suit for divorce is brought. Id.

A conveyance made in violation of this statute was void regardless of the fact that the divorce action was subsequently dismissed. Id.

Rights of purchasers.—The purchasers of property sold by a husband in violation of this statute were entitled, in the wife's action against them, to protection by a lien or partition to the extent of the taxes paid by them and of the husband's separate interest in the proceeds of the sale of the land. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 289.

Conclusiveness of judgment.—Where, pending a divorce suit by a wife, her husband was defendant in an action to cancel a deed to property claimed as community property, the record title to which was in him, of which action the wife had notice, and, after the wife had obtained her divorce, a judgment against the husband, canceling the deed, was binding on her. Gabb v. Boston (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 569.

Art. 4638. [2984] Inventory and appraisement; injunction.—At any time during a suit for divorce the wife may, for the preservation of her rights, require an inventory and an appraisement to be made of both real and personal estate which are in the possession of the husband, and an injunction restraining him from disposing of any part thereof in any manner. [P. D. 3458.]

Injunctive relief.—Divorce proceedings limit the authority of the husband over community property only when exercised for fraudulent purposes. If the wife require further protection an injunction must be invoked. Moore v. Moore, 73 T. 382, 11 S. W. 396.

A wife, on averment that the husband, pending suit, is likely to dispose of the property, is, it seems, entitled to an injunction. Turner v. Turner, 47 C. A. 391, 105 S. W. 237.

The rights given in divorce cases by statute to sequester the property and to an injunction to restrain defendant from disposing of the property held not exclusive and to preclude the appointment of a receiver. Shaw v. Shaw, 51 C. A. 55, 112 S. W. 124.

Dissolution of injunction.—Where a temporary injunction has been granted the wife in a divorce suit to restrain the husband from disposing of the community property, pending the suit, it is error to dissolve the injunction before the rights of the parties are adjudicated. Turner v. Turner, 47 C. A. 391, 105 S. W. 238.

Art. 4639. [2985] Temporary orders.—Pending any suit for a divorce the court, or the judge thereof, may make such temporary orders respecting the property and parties as shall be deemed necessary and equitable. [P. D. 3454.]

In general.—Under this article the court can appoint a receiver to take charge of the wife's interest pending a divorce suit. The fact that the husband's interest in the real property which he has been enjoined from disposing of, is sufficient to protect the wife from damage for mismanagement or fraudulent disposition of the personal property, will not defeat the wife's right to have a receiver appointed to take charge of said personal property. Shaw v. Shaw, 51 C. A. 55, 112 S. W. 128.

Appointment of receiver pending appeal.—Where defendant appealed from a judgment for divorce which also divided community property, and executed a supersedeas bond, it was not within the jurisdiction of the district court thereafter to interfere with the community property by appointing a receiver for the conservation of plaintiff's interest. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199.

And defendant was entitled to possession and control of the property pending appeal, and was responsible for plaintiff's interest in the property and in the rents and revenues. Id.

Art. 4640. [2986] Alimony.—If the wife, whether complainant or defendant, has not a sufficient income for her maintenance during the pendency of the suit for a divorce, the judge may, either in term time or in vacation, after due notice, allow her a sum for her support in proportion to the means of the husband, until a final decree shall be made in the case. [P. D. 3456.]

Definition—"Final decree."—The term "final decree," as used in this article, means a decree finally terminating the action, and not a decree of the district court from which an appeal has been perfected by supersedeas, and hence the wife is entitled to alimony pending such appeal. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937.

Jurisdiction of court in general.—Application for divorce gives the court jurisdiction to hear the question of alimony. Burns v. Burns (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 333.

The rule that final judgments cannot be altered after the term at which they are rendered does not necessarily prevent the court from thereafter making further orders not inconsistent with the judgment, and under this article the fact that judgment was rendered granting a divorce to the husband without providing for the wife's maintenance would not prevent the trial court, after final adjournment for the term, from allowing alimony pending an appeal from the decree, on the ground that the husband had voluntarily provided for the support of his wife and children until the decree was rendered, and expressed his willingness when testifying to continue to do so, but after rendition of the decree granting the divorce and awarding the children to his wife and after the appeal therefrom, refused to do so; the court having such power until final adjudication on appeal. Ex parte Lohmuller, 103 T. 474, 129 S. W. 834, 29 L. R. A. (N. S.) 303.

Claim to and award of alimony.—On appeal the decree of the district court as to alimony was reversed and rendered for a different amount, and the defendant was enjoined from disposing of his property for the purpose of avoiding payment. Wiley v. Wiley, 33 T. 358.

It was error to adjudge plaintiff entitled to one-half the income of the community estate accruing pendente lite, where there is nothing in the pleading or evidence on which to base it. Bohan v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 959.

The mere filing of a motion by a husband, instituting a suit for divorce, to dismiss the action does not destroy the claim of the wife for alimony and attorney's fees. Varn v. Varn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 639.

— Attorney's fees as alimony.—Where a divorce as prayed for by both husband and wife was refused, attorney's fees in favor of the wife against the husband were not recoverable as alimony. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 91.

— Duration of liability.—A dismissal of the suit or a judgment refusing a divorce annuls the order for alimony made pending suit for the instalments remaining due and unpaid. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 29; O'Haley v. O'Haley, 31 T. 502.

An appeal from a judgment granting or refusing a divorce does not suspend the operation of the order for alimony. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937.

— Accountability on partition for alimony received.—A wife on partition of the community property should be charged with alimony received pendente lite. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937.

— Enforcement.—On refusal of husband to pay alimony fixed by the court, the court can adjudge him to be in contempt, and can order him to be confined in the county jail until he complies with the order of the court. Ex parte Davis, 101 T. 607, 111 S. W. 394, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1140.

Where there is no community property, the husband in a suit for divorce is bound to pay alimony for the maintenance of his wife out of his separate estate. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199.

The enforcement of an order for alimony is not suspended by an appeal from a judgment granting or refusing divorce. Id.

Appeal.—An order granting alimony is not appealable. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199.

Art. 4641. [2987] Custody of children.—The courts aforesaid shall have power, in all cases of separation between man and wife, to give the custody and education of the children to either father or mother, as to the said court shall seem right and proper, having regard to the prudence and ability of the parents, and the age and sex of the child or children, to be determined and decided on the petition of either party; and in the meantime to issue any injunction or make any order that the safety and well being of any such children may require. [P. D. 3461.]

Power of court in general.—The court may award the custody of the children to either parent. Norris v. Norris (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 405.

In divorce cases the jurisdiction of the court over the custody and support of minor children is a continuing one. Plummer v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 597.

Procedure, trial by court or submission to jury.—The court does not decide the question whether the trial court can submit the question of the custody of a child in a divorce case but decides that the trial court can submit the question on a special issue for the purpose of aiding him in making proper disposition of the child and upon their finding can make the disposition. The party complaining not having objected to the submission of the special issue waives his right to have the matter determined by the court without submitting it to the jury. Wright v. Wright, 50 C. A. 459, 110 S. W. 159, 160.

Grounds for award of custody.—The custody of the minor children is a question of the welfare of the children rather than of deference to the affections or feelings of the parents. Haymond v. Haymond, 74 T. 414, 12 S. W. 90; Trimble v. Trimble, 15 T. 18.

In granting a divorce to a wife for cruelty, held not error to give the husband the custody of a four year old daughter. Norris v. Norris (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 405.

In a suit for divorce, the custody of the children, who were more than 14 years of age, and who expressed a desire to live with their mother, held properly awarded to her. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 943.

In an action for divorce, evidence that plaintiff was without means, and if their child was awarded to her she and the child would be compelled to live with her father, who was a man of bad moral character, a drunkard, and a gambler, held admissible. Bush v. Bush (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 217.

Evidence that if their child was awarded to defendant it would be cared for by his unmarried sister, who was competent and had affection for the child, held admissible. Id.

A husband, obtaining a divorce and the custody of a minor child, is entitled to retain the custody, where he is a man of good moral character and has an income amply sufficient to enable him to care for the child, and where he has at all times well cared for the child. Morrison v. Miller (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 480.

Judgment.—An award of the custody of the children is conclusive in any subsequent proceeding. Jordan v. Jordan, 23 S. W. 536, 4 C. A. 559.

Where a decree of divorce awards the custody of a child to the wife, and awards alimony for the child's support, such decree is conclusive, if not appealed from. Schultze v. Schultze (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

Where a divorce decree was tainted with fraud, in so far as it awarded the custody of minor children to the husband, the doctrine of res adjudicata was not applicable. And the wife was entitled to have the custody of such children awarded to her. Trammell v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 119.

A judgment of divorce awarding to the wife the custody of the children held a mere judicial determination that she shall have the preference legal right to their custody. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

Modification of judgment.—Courts of equity have jurisdiction over the question of the custody of minors, their decrees always being subject to modification or change upon proper showing; the courts retaining jurisdiction over the child. Hall v. Whipple (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 303.

The burden is on one claiming that fact to show that conditions have so changed since a judgment of divorce awarding the custody to one parent as to render such parent an improper custodian, requiring that custody be given to another. Grego v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 361.

The court may modify or alter its order as new issues or changed circumstances require. Plummer v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 597.

Where a wife, who when her husband obtained a divorce and the custody of their child refused to perform the duties of a mother and was without a permanent home, subsequently acquired a home, with permanent employment and with opportunity to care for the child, and actually cared for the child, there was a changed condition sufficient to authorize the court to award to her the custody of the child. Ex parte Boyd (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 254.

— Of foreign judgment.—Foreign decree, determining the custody of a minor child in a divorce suit, held not a bar to a subsequent proceeding to modify it, on proof that the situation and character of the respective parties had changed. And evidence as to the conduct and situation of the parties prior to such foreign decree held admissible in corroboration. Wilson v. Elliott, 96 T. 472, 73 S. W. 946.

Though an order of court awarding to a spouse obtaining a divorce the custody of a child of the parties must be given full faith and credit by the courts of another state, it is res judicata only so long as the circumstances existing at the time of the order remain unchanged. Ex parte Boyd (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 254.

Order for support.—Where the court had denied a husband a divorce, and granted the custody of a child to the wife, order cannot be entered against the husband for a monthly payment for the child's support. Defee v. Defee (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 274.

The statute does not authorize a decree compelling the husband to pay a monthly allowance to support a minor child whose custody is awarded to the wife. Ligon v. Ligon, 39 C. A. 392, 87 S. W. 839.

The power conferred by the latter clause of this article to make provision for the children was for exercise pendente lite as is clear from the use of the words "in the meantime." Id.

Where a child is awarded to either party upon the dissolution of the marriage, the court cannot fix a charge against the other for its support, maintenance and education, until it arrives at a certain age. The child must be provided for in the division of the estate of the parties. Bond v. Bond, 41 C. A. 129, 90 S. W. 1128.

The court, having granted a divorce to a wife and found that the husband's property was separate property, had no jurisdiction to order a monthly payment by the husband for the benefit of the children, and make same a lien on the husband's realty. Barry v. Barry (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1142.

The court held entitled, in proceedings by a divorced husband to obtain custody of the children, on awarding the children to the mother, to appoint a trustee of the father's lands to receive the rents and apply a part thereof to their support, "though a part of the lands were occupied by the father as a homestead." Bemus v. Bemus (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 503.

A wife, upon being granted a divorce, held not entitled to recover from her husband amounts expended from her earnings in supporting minor children taken with her, while the parties lived apart. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 524.

The court has no power, on granting a wife a divorce, to award alimony to the wife for the support of a child, whether it be temporary in its nature, or without any condition that the child shall live. Martin v. Martin (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 344.

— Duration of liability imposed.—Where a decree of divorce awards the custody of a child to the wife, and requires a payment by the husband for its support, but does not make such allowance a lien on his property, such allowance ceases on his dying testate, leaving such child sole legatee. Schultze v. Schultze (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

— Modification of order.—In trespass to try title by children of a former marriage against minor children for whose benefit a trust was declared by a divorce decree in land separately owned by the father, the former cannot complain of a judgment making their title subject to the terms of the divorce decree; the decree being subject to modification on their application, if circumstances warrant modification. Plummer v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 597.

The court may modify its decree as to the support of children as new issues or changed circumstances require. Id.

— Enforcement of order.—Provision, inserted by agreement in decree for divorce, for payment in support of minor child, is enforceable only by execution. Ex parte Gerish, 42 Cr. R. 114, 57 S. W. 1123.

Appeal.—Assignment that court erred in awarding custody of children to wife on granting her a divorce, without hearing evidence as to who was best fitted to care for them, held not supported. Wetz v. Wetz, 27 C. A. 597, 66 S. W. 869.

Discretion and review.—In cases of the custody and support of the children of a divorced couple, the law having committed such matters to the district judge's sound discretion, his findings of fact are conclusive on appeal, unless an abuse of this discretion appears. Bemus v. Bemus (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 503.

Art. 4642. [2988] Costs.—The court may award costs to the party in whose behalf the sentence or decree shall pass, or that each party shall pay his or her own costs, as to the court shall appear reasonable.

Costs in general.—In a suit for divorce, judgment against defendant, settling property rights, casts the costs on him. Stone v. Stone (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1022.

Attorney's fees as costs.—Attorney's fees cannot be taxed as costs on behalf of the wife; but when the wife is without fault, her reasonable attorney's fees are chargeable to the husband. McClelland v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 350.

Where a divorce was refused, attorney's fees held not recoverable as costs of the suit. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 91.

Under the circumstances, held not just to allow the wife reasonable attorney's fees in a divorce action. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 524.

Charge against husband's interest.—The court can make costs in divorce by the wife a charge against the community interest of the husband. Ghent v. Boyd, 18 C. A. 88, 43 S. W. 891.

Liability for attorney's fees.—Husband held liable for attorney's fees of wife, where she has no separate property, and suit is dismissed by agreement of parties. Ceccato v. Deutschman, 19 C. A. 434, 47 S. W. 739.

In an action against a husband for attorney's services rendered the wife in divorce proceedings, plaintiff may recover if he show there was probable cause for divorce, and need not show that the divorce proceedings were necessary for the legal protection of the wife. But evidence of services rendered her in a suit against the husband for assault is irrelevant. And the complaint in the suit against the husband for aggravated assault on the wife is irrelevant, while the petition filed for divorce is admissible to prove that such suit had been filed. Bord v. Stubbs, 22 C. A. 242, 54 S. W. 633.

The husband and wife are both liable for reasonable counsel fees of attorneys prosecuting her suit for divorce, when it appears that the facts alleged were probably true and constituted such cruelty as rendered cohabitation insupportable. Hicks v. Stewart & Templeton, 53 C. A. 401, 118 S. W. 206.

The husband and wife are liable for reasonable attorney's fees necessarily incurred in her suit for divorce, regardless of her mental capacity to contract. Id.

The court refusing to grant a divorce held not entitled to render judgment for the wife against the husband for attorney's fees. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 91.

Attorney's fees, incurred by the wife in a divorce suit, held recoverable from the husband if such costs were necessities. Id.

A husband is liable for attorney's fees incurred by the wife in prosecuting a suit for divorce, whether prayed for by the wife in the suit for divorce, or sued for by her attorney in a separate action. Varn v. Varn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 639.

The mere filing of a motion by a husband suing for divorce, to dismiss the action, does not destroy the claim of the wife for alimony and attorney's fees. Id.

In a divorce suit by a wife, where a probable cause exists that she was entitled thereto, her husband is liable for attorney's fees contracted by the wife. McLean v. Randell (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1116.

Procedure for recovery of fees.—There being no statutory provision for attorney's fees, proceedings to recover them of the husband held not ancillary to the main suit. Ceccato v. Deutschman, 19 C. A. 434, 47 S. W. 739.

Where a husband sued for divorce, and the wife answered and claimed attorney's fees, the court, dismissing the action on the motion of the husband, could in the same proceeding render judgment against the husband for attorney's fees. Varn v. Varn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 639.

Appeal.—On appeal in divorce, the appellate court will not determine the amount of attorney's fees where no finding in respect thereto was made below. Aycock v. Aycock (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1139.

	4693. Procedure.

Article 4643. [2989] Writs of injunction granted, when.—Judges of the district and county courts shall, either in term time or vacation, hear and determine all applications and may grant writs of injunctions returnable to said courts in the following cases:

1. Where it shall appear that the party applying for such writ is entitled to the relief demanded, and such relief or any part thereof requires the restraint of some act prejudicial to the applicant.

2. Where, pending litigation, it shall be made to appear that a party doing some act respecting the subject of litigation, or threatens or is about to do some act or is procuring or suffering the same to be done in violation of the rights of the applicant, which act would tend to render judgment ineffectual.

3. In all cases where the applicant for such writ may show himself entitled thereto under the principles of equity, and as provided by statutes in all other acts of this state, providing for the granting of injunctions, or where a cloud would be put on the title of real estate being sold under an execution against a person, partnership or corporation, having no interest in such real estate subject to the execution at the time of the sale, or irreparable injury to real estate or personal property is threatened, irrespective of any legal remedy at law. Provided, that no district judge shall have the power to grant any writ of injunction returnable to any other court than his own, unless the application or petition therefor shall state that the resident judge, that is, the judge in whose district the suit is, or is to be brought is absent from his district, or is sick and unable to hear or act upon the application, or is inaccessible, or unless such resident judge shall have refused to hear or act upon such application for the writ of injunction, or unless such judge is disqualified to hear or act upon the application; and the facts of, and relating to, such judge's absence, or sickness and inability, or disqualification, or inaccessibility, or refusal to act, must be fully set out in the application for the writ, or in an affidavit accompanying said application; and, in case of such absence or sickness and inability or inaccessibility or disqualification of the resident judge, or in case of his refusal to hear or act upon such application, no district judge shall have the power to grant the writ when the application therefor shall have once been acted upon by a district judge of the state; provided, that when the judge applied to shall have refused to hear or act upon such application he shall indorse thereon, or annex thereto, his refusal to hear or act upon such application, together with his reason therefor; provided, that nothing herein shall apply to the granting of writs of injunction by non-resident judges to stay execution or to restrain foreclosures, or to restrain sales under deeds of trust, or to restrain trespasses, or to restrain the removal of property, or to restrain acts injurious to or impairing riparian or easement rights where proof is made to the satisfaction of such non-resident judge that it is impracticable for the applicant to reach the resident judge and procure his action in time to effectuate the purpose of the application. A resident judge shall be deemed inaccessible, within the meaning of this act, when, by the ordinary and available means and modes of travel and communication, he can not be reached in sufficient time to effectuate the purpose of the writ of injunction sought. Whenever an application or petition for the writ of injunction shall be made to a non-resident judge upon the ground that the resident judge is inaccessible as hereinbefore defined, the party making such application, or his attorney, shall make and file with the application, as a part thereof or annexed thereto, an affidavit setting out fully the facts showing that the resident judge is inaccessible, and the efforts made by the applicant to reach and communicate with said resident judge, and the result of said efforts in that behalf; and, unless it appears from said affidavit that the applicant has made a fair and reasonable effort to procure the action of the resident judge upon said application, no non-resident judge shall have the power to hear said application upon the ground of inaccessibility of the resident judge; and should any non-resident judge hear said application upon said ground of inaccessibility of the resident judge, and should grant the writ of injunction prayed for, said injunction so granted shall be dissolved upon it being shown that the petitioner has not first made reasonable effort to procure a hearing upon said application before the resident judge. 1. Repeal of former act.—Pen. Code, arts. 503-505, authorizing suit to restrain the keeping of a disorderly house to be brought by any citizen, without showing that he is personally injured by the acts complained of, is not repealed by subdivision 3 of this article as amended by Acts 31st Leg. p. 354, c. 34, which has reference largely to the practice with reference to granting writs, hearing thereof, and appeals and orders granted therein, but does not by its terms or necessary implication repeal the former provision. Ex parte Morgan, 57 Cr. R. 551, 124 S. W. 99, 136 Am. St. Rep. 996.

2. Infringement of trade-mark.—See Title 19.

3. Nature and purpose of injunction in general.—Remedy of sureties on forthcoming replevin bond, on entry of judgment without notice, is not by injunction. Cabell v. Floyd, 21 C. A. 135, 50 S. W. 478.

Where it is doubtful whether an action is one at law or equity, injunction may issue therein and must be obeyed until dissolved. Ex parte Warfield, 40 Cr. R. 413, 50 S. W. 933, 76 Am. St. Rep. 724.

The appropriate function of the writ of injunction held to afford preventive relief only. Norwood v. Leeves (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 53.

A writ whereby persons were restrained from intruding themselves on the county committee of the Democratic party, and members of the committee were restrained from attempting to include the intruders as members, held an injunction. Ware v. Welch (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 263.

4. Nature of right protected.—The violation of an abstract right is not cognizable in any court much less in a court of equity, unless injury and damages are alleged and proved to have resulted therefrom. Foust v. Warren (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 406.

5. Discretion of court.—The right to relief by injunction against a nuisance is not an absolute right, but one resting in the sound discretion of the court. Gose v. Coryell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1164.

No abuse of discretion held to appear in denying a mandatory injunction to compel defendant to fill up a ditch which drained the boundary between his and plaintiff's land. Simon v. Nance (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 661.

The granting of an injunction is not as a rule a matter of absolute right, but of discretion. Id.

6. Jurisdiction.—See, also, notes under Art. 4653.

The execution of a judgment can only be enjoined by the court in which it was rendered. Bell v. York (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 68.

An injunction will lie to restrain the collection of a judgment void for want of jurisdiction in the court rendering the same. Tucker v. Williams (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 585.

✓ The district court of one county can enjoin the execution of a writ of possession issued by the district court of another county, while allowing the execution of an order of sale as to the same property. Modisette v. National Bank, 23 C. A. 589, 56 S. W. 1007.

Action to restrain sale of land under judgment need not be brought in court where judgment was rendered, where no attack is made on validity of judgment. Corbett v. Provident Nat. Bank, 23 C. A. 602, 57 S. W. 61.

✓ The court in which a judgment was originally rendered is the court in which an injunction restraining an execution of the judgment is returnable, and a suit brought in the district court of another county, where a levy was made on land, to enjoin its sale and to set aside the judgment of the court of civil appeals affirming the judgment of the district court, was properly dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 984.

The fact that the court was without jurisdiction to hear and determine the issue of a suit when it issued a temporary restraining order did not render its action in hearing a motion to dissolve, and rendering a judgment dissolving the injunction, void, thereby leaving the injunction still in existence. Id.

Where two petitioners in a suit to enjoin the sale of land levied on under an execution were not parties to the action from which the execution issued, but joined their co-plaintiffs in the execution of a supersedeas bond on appeal of the case, they were not such strangers to the judgment of the district court as to entitle them to maintain a suit in another county, where levy was made on their land, to enjoin its sale and set aside the judgment of the court of civil appeals affirming the judgment of the district court. Id.

A county court of one county has not jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin execution of a judgment of a county court of another county. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Higbee, 32 C. A. 502, 74 S. W. 955.

In order to prevent a multiplicity of suits, equity will take cognizance of a controversy, determine the rights of the parties, and grant the relief required to meet the ends of justice. Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. v. MacMaster, 51 C. A. 527, 113 S. W. 337.

A court of equity never aids in the commission of a wrong, nor in protecting or preserving an unjust advantage obtained. Sanders v. Cauley, 52 C. A. 261, 113 S. W. 560.

The facts showing the inaccessibility of the resident judge, and the efforts made to reach him must be fully stated, in order that the judge to whom the application is presented may determine whether a fair and reasonable effort has been made to reach the resident judge. Unless this is done the affidavit is fatally defective. Lee v. Broocks, 54 C. A. 220, 118 S. W. 165.

Under this article and Art. 4664, which provides that motions to dissolve injunctions without determining the merits may be heard after answer filed in vacation as well as in term time on at least 10 days' notice to the opposite party, or his attorney, the word "vacation," as so used, meant the vacation of the district court of the county wherein the case was pending, in which an injunction was awarded, and hence, there being no statute fixing the place for hearing motions to dissolve, a judge granting an injunction in vacation may hear a motion to dissolve it in a county other than that in which the suit is pending. Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 366.

The county court rendering a judgment on appeal from a justice's court which was not void has alone authority to issue an injunction enjoining the judgment. Moore v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 234.

Where the order of a judge to whom application was made for an injunction restraining sale of a homestead on execution in a county other than that to which the writ was returnable recited that the judge of the district court of the county to which it was returnable was inaccessible, and the truth of the recital was not questioned, the judge could grant the injunction under this article. Parsons v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1084.

Under this article, where a decree had been rendered by a district court, and an application had been made to the judge thereof for an injunction restraining the levy of an execution based thereon, and had been denied, the judge of another district, though of concurrent jurisdiction and holding court in the same county, had no jurisdiction to grant the writ. Dawson v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1149.

Under Const. art. 5, §§ 8, 16, relating to the jurisdiction of the county and district courts in the issuance of executions, and this article and Art. 4653, providing that injunction to stay execution should be returnable to and tried in the court where such writ is pending, or such judgment rendered, and in other cases in the district or county court of the county of domicile, according to the amount in controversy, a district judge might, where the equities warranted, enjoin execution of a judgment of the county court, though he could not finally dispose of the injunction proceeding, which should be finally disposed of in the county court. Baker v. Crosbyton Southplains R. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 569.

A special judge elected by the practicing attorneys to hold court and conduct the business thereof in the absence of the regular district judge has no authority to issue a writ of injunction returnable to another county of the same judicial district. Wynn v. R. E. Edmonson Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 310.

7. — Adjudication of all issues.—The court, having acquired jurisdiction, can adjudicate all the issues in the case. Willis v. Gordon, 22 T. 243; Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. 384; Stein v. Frieberg, 64 T. 271.

Where the district court has obtained jurisdiction by reason of an injunction sued out to restrain the sale of property levied under execution, it rightfully retains the cause for the purpose of decreeing damages for detention of property by the officer and plaintiff in execution. Chambers v. Cannon, 62 T. 293.

Where a defendant in a judgment obtains an injunction restraining its execution on the ground that the judgment is void, the court will retain jurisdiction and render judgment on the original cause of action, if the plaintiff in execution is legally entitled to it on the merits. Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. 384; Willis v. Gordon, 22 T. 241; Bourke v. Vanderlip, 22 T. 221; Masterson v. Ashcom, 54 T. 324; Hale v. McComas, 59 T. 484; Stein v. Frieberg, 64 T. 271.

Equity, having obtained jurisdiction to enjoin an enforcement of certain void judgments by laborers for conversion of rice on which they claimed a lien, it was error to refuse to retain such jurisdiction to determine the existence of such lien. Houston Rice Milling Co. v. Hankamer, 43 C. A. 576, 97 S. W. 119.

Where a court takes jurisdiction of a proceeding to enjoin execution on a dormant judgment, it may, having taken such jurisdiction, proceed to determine all of the issues between the parties. Spiller v. Hollinger (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 338.

8. Jurisdiction dependent on nature of subject-matter and amount in controversy.—See notes under Arts. 1705, 1713, 1764, 1772.

9. Venue.—See notes under Art. 4652.

10. Petition.—See, also, notes under Art. 4649.

Where the court on appeal vacated an injunction restraining a judgment creditor of plaintiff's grantor from selling under execution realty held by plaintiff under a conveyance duly recorded before the levy, it will permit plaintiff on remand to amend the petition so as to bring a case within subdivision 3 of this article. Latham Co. v. Shelton, 57 C. A. 122, 122 S. W. 941.

The petition for injunction permitted by this article, "where a cloud would be put on the title of real estate being sold under execution against a person * * * having no interest in such real estate subject to the execution at the time of sale, or irreparable injury to real estate is threatened," should show absence of such interest in such person, or that such injury would be done by the execution sale. S. K. McCall Co. v. Page (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 655.

11. Inadequacy of remedy at law.—The execution of a judgment will not be restrained on the ground that the court had refused a continuance, the party having a remedy by appeal. Western v. Woods, 1 T. 1.

An application for injunction to restrain the execution of a judgment of a justice of the peace and to remove the same to the district court for a new trial on account of error in the decision will not be granted, where the party applying, through negligence, has failed to prosecute a certiorari within the time prescribed by law. Fitzhugh v. Orton, 12 T. 4; Rotzeln v. Cox, 22 T. 62; Musgrove v. Chambers, 12 T. 32. But see Manning v. Hunt, 36 T. 118; Garner v. Smith, 40 T. 505; Jordan v. Corley, 42 T. 284; Railway Co. v. Dowe, 70 T. 1, 6 S. W. 790.

An injunction to restrain the prosecution of an action of forcible entry and detainer before a justice of the peace, on the ground that plaintiff had no title to the land, or possession, or right to possession thereof, but that title and possession are with defendant, will be refused, as these facts could be set up as a defense to the action. Chadoin v. Magee, 20 T. 476. And, if it fails, defendant has his remedy by certiorari. Smith v. Ryan, 20 T. 661; Gibson v. Moore, 22 T. 611.

A judgment will not be enjoined where the party has a remedy by appeal. Windisch v. Gussett, 30 T. 744; Robinson v. Sanders, 33 T. 774; Jordan v. Corley, 42 T. 284; Roundtree v. Walker, 46 T. 200.

A party seeking possession of or protection against injury to land, in an action of trespass to try title or to foreclose a mortgage, must resort to the writ of sequestration. Injunction is not the remedy. Bateson v. Choate, 85 T. 239, 20 S. W. 64.

An injunction will not be granted where the law provides a full, complete, and adequate remedy. Railway Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 1134; Id., 88 T. 346, 31 S. W. 613, 31 L. R. A. 200; Railway Co. v. Ellisor, 14 C. A. 706, 37 S. W. 972; Lightfoot v. Murphy, 47 C. A. 112, 104 S. W. 511; Frazier v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 662.

Injunction will not issue against the publication of the result of a local option election, since the statute points out a different remedy for contesting the same. Ex parte Mayes, 39 Cr. R. 36, 44 S. W. 831.

Equity will grant an injunction to enforce a covenant not to engage in a particular business, since there is no adequate remedy at law. Anderson v. Rowland, 18 C. A. 460, 44 S. W. 911.

Where city owning waterworks wrongfully refuses to furnish water to citizen, he has no adequate remedy at law, and may sue in equity. Dittmar v. City of New Braunfels, 20 C. A. 293, 48 S. W. 1114.

An injunction against the removal of a schoolhouse will not be dissolved on the ground that sequestration was an adequate legal remedy. Green v. Gresham, 21 C. A. 601, 53 S. W. 382.

Injunction suit by mayor to restrain oyster from office held improper; remedy at law being adequate. Riggins v. Thompson, 30 C. A. 242, 70 S. W. 578.

Failure to pursue remedy by appeal or certiorari gives no right to substitute a suit by injunction. Kyle v. Richardson, 31 C. A. 101, 71 S. W. 399.

Suits for injunction may be maintained in cases where the applicant is entitled to the relief demanded, although there may be an adequate remedy at law. Sullivan v. Dooley, 31 C. A. 589, 73 S. W. 83, 84.

A railroad company held to have no adequate remedy at law to prevent a trespasser from using its track on which to operate a railroad velocipede, and hence was entitled to an injunction to restrain such use. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Puckett (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 662.

Adjoining property owners held without any adequate remedy at law to restrain a railroad's unlawful use of a street as a switchyard, and, therefore, were entitled to an injunction. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 177.

Temporary injunction held properly dissolved; there being other adequate remedy. Josey v. Peristein, 48 C. A. 355, 107 S. W. 558.

Equity will not aid a party, if his claim grows out of, or depends on, or is inseparably connected with, his own prior fraud or misconduct, but will leave him to his remedies and defenses at law. Sanders v. Cauley, 52 C. A. 261, 113 S. W. 560.

That a note executed by plaintiff was obtained through the fraudulent representations of defendant is available as a defense in an action on the note, and therefore is not ground for the issuance of a writ of injunction restraining the enforcement of the note. Turner v. Patterson, 54 C. A. 581, 118 S. W. 565.

An injunction against maintaining an action cannot be made to serve the purpose of an appeal. Id.

It is always necessary to exhaust all legal remedies before an injunction will be granted. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shields, 56 C. A. 7, 120 S. W. 222.

A party held not entitled to an injunction restraining a justice of the peace on the ground that he had not exhausted his legal remedy. Jones v. Curtis, 56 C. A. 181, 120 S. W. 530.

In courts administering both law and equity the rules denying injunction, where there is a remedy at law should not be applied as rigidly as at common law. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 868.

Interference with a telephone company's right to erect poles in a street leaves it without adequate remedy at law, where its line is completed to the city, and it is threatened with arrest of its employes if they proceed with the work. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

Under this article one showing itself entitled to injunction under the principles of equity is entitled to the writ, where it is threatened with irreparable injury to its property rights independent of whether it has an adequate legal remedy. Id.

12. — Trespass and injury to real property.—An injunction may be issued under this article to prevent defendant in trespass to try title from inclosing the land and removing timber, though sequestration under article 7094 is an adequate legal remedy.

Mitchell v. Burnett, 57 C. A. 124, 122 S. W. 937. But see Frazier v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 663.

Under this article, as amended by Acts 31st Leg. p. 355, c. 34, § 2, authorizing the judges of the district courts to grant injunctions where irreparable injury to realty is threatened, irrespective of any legal remedy, that the applicant has an adequate remedy at law would not prevent the granting of an injunction to prevent irreparable injury to realty if he is otherwise entitled thereto under equitable principles. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

Where the destruction of shade or ornamental trees situated in a city sidewalk abutting on property of a private owner is not necessary in the furtherance of a public service, equity will restrain a threatened destruction thereof, though the owner may have an adequate remedy at law as defined by the rules of the common law; this article giving the remedy by injunction where an applicant may show himself entitled thereto under the principles of equity. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 104 T. 258, 136 S. W. 1049.

In an action for cutting and removing timber from plaintiff's land and mingling and confusing it with defendant's own timber, where it was shown that defendant was threatening to, and unless restrained would, remove the property from the county and dispose of it, that he was insolvent, and irresponsible, and that unless defendant was restrained from removing the logs, plaintiff would lose their value, plaintiff was entitled to a temporary injunction, against the removal and disposal of the logs, pending the action under this article, as amended by Acts 31st Leg. 1st Ex. Sess. c. 34, authorizing the issuance of injunctions, where irreparable injury to personal property is threatened, irrespective of any legal remedy at law, and was not confined to the remedy by sequestration or attachment. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 337.

13. — Collection of taxes.—Several suits to collect taxes against the property of several owners should not be enjoined at the joint suit of such owners on grounds which are available as defenses in such suits. McMickle v. Hardin, 25 C. A. 222, 61 S. W. 322.

An injunction will not lie against the state treasurer, comptroller and attorney general to restrain them from performing their duties under Acts 1905, c. 141, on the ground that the statute is unconstitutional, as the railroad company which seeks the injunction has an adequate remedy at law. Stephens v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 100 T. 177, 97 S. W. 309.

The collection of taxes will not be restrained by injunction, except where there is no adequate legal remedy. Cole v. Porto (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 350.

Persons who own the same kind of property, and who are affected in the same way by taxes imposed by the same officers, and whose rights are identical, may join in a suit to restrain the collection of taxes, though they have an adequate remedy at law, under the express provisions of this article. Porter v. Langley (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1042.

14. — Judgment and execution.—Injunction will not lie to restrain the enforcement of a judgment which can be reviewed by certiorari. Railway Co. v. Ware, 74 T. 47, 11 S. W. 918; Same v. Wright, 88 T. 346, 31 S. W. 613; San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Glass (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 339.

Where goods are wrongfully taken under execution, the trial of right of property does not afford an adequate remedy and hence the sale may be enjoined. Sumner v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 825.

A surety on a bond in a claimant's suit cannot, by a separate action, restrain enforcement of a judgment entered therein by stipulations between the principal parties; his remedy being by appeal. Johnson v. Blum, 17 C. A. 260, 42 S. W. 791.

Injunction will not issue to prevent execution sale of real property, where parties have adequate remedy at law. Modisette v. National Bank, 23 C. A. 589, 56 S. W. 1007.

Injunction against a judgment and execution held improperly refused on the ground of adequate remedy at law. Crook v. Lipscomb, 30 C. A. 567, 70 S. W. 993.

Injunction will not lie to restrain the sale of land, where there is an adequate legal remedy. Hahn v. P. J. Willis & Bro., 31 C. A. 643, 73 S. W. 1084.

An injunction will not lie to restrain execution of a justice's judgment, rendered in a suit of which he had jurisdiction, where the amount involved was insufficient to sustain an appeal. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Coca Cola Co., 32 C. A. 611, 75 S. W. 563.

The remedy for the error in computing interest accrued on a demand or otherwise, so that the judgment is rendered for an excessive sum, is by appeal or certiorari, and not by injunction. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Warbington (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 988.

The owner of land, holding it under a deed duly recorded prior to a levy to satisfy a judgment against another, has an adequate remedy at law, and the sale of the property under the levy will not be enjoined. Latham Co., Bankers, v. Shelton, 57 C. A. 122, 122 S. W. 941.

Injunction does not lie to restrain a sale under an execution on the ground of errors in the rendition of the judgment, but the remedy is by appeal. Denson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 811.

Where a stock of goods levied on as that of a husband in fact belongs to the wife, equity will restrain the enforcement of the judgment, as by a proceeding at law to try the right of property the damages against the sheriff, both as to the goods seized and the remainder, would be released, the goods would have to be returned to the custody of the officer until the determination of the right thereto and would be subject to such other writs as might have been levied before the trial, and the wife would be deprived of the right to have the goods replaced and sold with the stock, so that the remedy at law would not be plain and adequate. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 294.

The execution of a judgment taken in justice's court on imperfect service, or no service at all, will not be enjoined, where defendant has a remedy by appeal or writ of certiorari. Slaughter v. American Baptist Publication Society (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 224.

15. — Keeping bawdyhouse.—See notes under Art. 4639.

16. — Waiver of objection.—Where an injunction suit was instituted April 2, 1906, an objection that complainant had an adequate remedy at law, first made in an amended answer filed May 26, 1909, held waived by delay. Rogers v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 599.

17. — Pleading inadequacy of remedy at law.—See notes under Art. 4649.

18. Injunction ineffectual or not beneficial.—A taxpayer cannot enjoin the issue of bonds voted by a city, but which would be void even in the hands of a bona fide purchaser, since neither he nor the city could suffer any injury from the issue. Bolton v. City of Antonio (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 64.

Where, pending suit to enjoin an execution, a levy thereunder is released, and the execution is returned with the release indorsed thereon, the injunction will be denied. Thompson v. Goolsby, 48 C. A. 23, 106 S. W. 936.

A person is not entitled to an injunction to restrain a threatened injury, if the execution of the threats is such action as cannot be appropriately controlled by injunction. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy, 51 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.

A court will not grant injunctive relief or a mandatory decree which it could not enforce because the party cast is a nonresident of the state. Gaines v. Farmer, 55 C. A. 601, 119 S. W. 874.

A temporary injunction will not issue to restrain city officers from paying interest warrants after they have paid the same. Heuermann v. Church (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 212.

Temporary injunction against sale and delivery of municipal bonds does not lie if they were delivered before the application for the injunction was heard. Simpson v. City of Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 858.

19. Injury to defendant.—An injunction to restrain a nuisance held properly granted, notwithstanding its effect would be seriously injurious to defendant. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1006.

The court, in determining the propriety of restraining a railway company from using its tracks in a street for railway purposes, on the ground that the same creates a nuisance to the injury of an individual, held required to consider the relative injury to the individual and that which would be inflicted on the company and the public by granting the injunction. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff, 102 T. 433, 118 S. W. 134, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 749.

Where, in a suit between irrigation companies to enjoin defendant from taking water, the issuance of the injunction would have greatly injured the crops of defendant's tenants, and it is not clearly shown that it would have appreciably increased plaintiff's water supply or that its tenants needed a greater amount, a temporary injunction was properly denied. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

If more damage is likely to result from granting a temporary injunction than by refusing it, it should not be granted, but any doubt as to whether greater injury will result in refusing than in granting it should be resolved in plaintiff's favor. Id.

20. Defenses in general.—In a suit by commissioned branch pilots to restrain a defendant from acting as a branch pilot, it is no defense that plaintiffs have confederated together to prevent him from becoming a branch pilot and from pursuing his occupation as a pilot. Olsen v. Smith (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 320.

Plaintiff in suit for injunction against nuisance, held not to have so conducted himself as to bar injunctive relief. Faulkenbury v. Wells, 28 C. A. 621, 68 S. W. 327.

The fact that plaintiffs, while in the control of a corporation, made unlawful contracts in restraint of trade, does not prevent them after their control has expired to sue to restrain the performance of such contracts. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Blount, 49 C. A. 138, 107 S. W. 1163.

Where the rights of the parties in an action for an injunction are doubtful, the court should look at the balance of convenience, and act upon the consideration of the comparative inconvenience which may arise from granting or withholding the injunction. Jeff Chalson Town-Site Co. v. McFaddin, Wiess & Kyle Land Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

In order to constitute an "estoppel in pais," on the part of one who seeks to enjoin the continuance of a nuisance, it must be shown that the matters claimed to constitute an estoppel have in some material respect influenced the conduct of the party invoking the estoppel. Gose v. Coryell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1164.

In an action to enjoin a nuisance, prescription held not available as a defense. Id.

21. Laches.—Suit to enjoin default judgment obtained against plaintiff in 1889 held not barred under the facts, though not brought until 1900. Dashner v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 151, 68 S. W. 307.

One entitled to an injunction restraining a railway company from continuing a nuisance by using streets for switching purposes held required to act within a reasonable time after the creation of the nuisance. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff, 102 T. 433, 118 S. W. 134, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 749.

That a levee obstructing the usual flow of the waters of a stream forming a boundary between adjacent land was allowed to remain for over 25 years without complaint was a bar to equitable relief to enjoin its continuance. Knight v. Durham (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 591.

Long-continued acquiescence and lapse of time, independent of statute, will defeat the right to injunctive relief. Simon v. Nance (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 661.

Taxpayers held not to have lost the right to bring a suit to restrain the collection of an invalid tax levy by delaying such action until an attempt or threat to enforce collection of the tax. Petty v. McReynolds (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 180.

22. Possession to support suit.—A private corporation given the exclusive possession and control of property owned by the state, charged with its care and maintenance, has the right to defend its possession as against a trespasser by action to enjoin the trespass, and need not show express statutory authority, since the statute carried with it the grant of every power needed to carry its purpose into effect. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

23. Right of individual to restrain acts against public welfare.—No action lies to restrain an interference with a mere public right, at the suit of one who has not suffered from or been threatened with a damage peculiar to himself. San Antonio v. Strumbers, 70 T. 366, 7 S. W. 754.

Where the collection of an illegal tax is about to be enforced, one or more persons against whom the tax is levied may enjoin its collection. Morris v. Cummings, 91 T. 618, 45 S. W. 383.

Performance of illegal contract by city will not be enjoined at suit of one not showing that he is injuriously affected, or that he has no adequate remedy at law. Wood v. City of Victoria, 18 C. A. 573, 46 S. W. 284.

A lot owner cannot restrain destruction of trees on land dedicated for public park, where he sustains no special injury. Hulse v. Powell, 21 C. A. 471, 51 S. W. 862.

The fact that plaintiff was a citizen, voter, and taxpayer in the school district in which a local option election was held did not entitle him to maintain an action to restrain the commissioners' court from declaring the result. Hill v. Roach, 26 C. A. 75, 62 S. W. 959.

Plaintiff, engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors, held not entitled to enjoin the court from declaring a local option election valid. Harding v. Commissioners' Court of McLennan County, 27 C. A. 25, 65 S. W. 56.

A private citizen cannot enjoin an appointee from discharging the duties of health officer. Brumby v. Boyd, 28 C. A. 164, 66 S. W. 874.

A city taxpayer may enjoin the city from entering into a wrongful contract involving an expenditure of municipal funds. City of Austin v. McCall, 95 T. 565, 68 S. W. 791.

In an action by a city and others to enjoin removal of defendant railroad's offices and shops from the city, individual plaintiffs held to occupy no better position than plaintiff city as to relief prayed. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 238.

A railroad's use of a street in the heart of a city as a switchyard held a taking for a private use which could be restrained at the suit of an adjoining property owner. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 177.

A hotel owner held to have the right to restrain the unlawful use of a city street by a railroad company for switching purposes. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1006.

An individual held not entitled to maintain a suit for an injunction to restrain a railway company from using tracks in a street, but the individual should be remitted to his action for damages. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff, 102 T. 433, 118 S. W. 134, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 749.

The organization of an unorganized county cannot be restrained at the suit of a private citizen. Oden v. Barber (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 676.

Complainants held to have suffered special damages different from that suffered by the public from the obstruction of a street by a board fence surrounding the building in process of erection, and were, therefore, entitled to maintain an injunction to restrain its continuance. American Const. Co. v. Seelig (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 655.

The court at the suit of a private citizen and taxpayer will not enjoin one from maintaining a saloon without first applying for a license in the manner required by Arts. 7433 and 7435, where he has a license which is duly posted as required by law. Doyle v. Scott (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 829.

A taxpayer held not entitled to sue to restrain a street railway company from constructing a switch in a street, on the ground that it interfered with the public safety. Acheson v. Denison & S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 467.

To entitle a private person to restrain the obstruction of a public road, he must show special injuries, peculiar to himself, from the obstruction, differing from the injury to the public generally, since otherwise suit must be brought by the proper public officers. Owens v. Varnell (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 256.

Discontinuance of street car line may be enjoined at the suit of a landowner who had dedicated streets in consideration of an agreement to operate a line thereon, where its operation would not prevent the company from performing its duties to the public. Houston Electric Co. v. Glen Park Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 965.

24. Proceedings in aid of which injunction is authorized.—Injunction held not to lie in aid of jurisdiction to issue the writ of habeas corpus in favor of persons held under criminal process. Denton v. McDonald, 104 T. 206, 135 S. W. 1148, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 453.

25. Costs.—Plaintiffs held liable for costs on dissolution of injunction to restrain execution of an order for sale of real estate. Modisette v. National Bank, 23 C. A. 589, 56 S. W. 1007.

Owner of land taken for a public road held not entitled, on dissolution of an injunction restraining the road overseers from removing certain obstructions which the owner had placed in the road, to costs of the action up to the time of a correction of the award of damages. Dunman v. Nall (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 177.

Award of costs on perpetuating an injunction held proper. Pickereil v. Irby (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 332.

Where defendant improperly sued out execution on a dormant judgment, the costs in a proceeding to enjoin execution on the judgment, although it had not been discharged, and might be revived, will be taxed against defendant. Spiller v. Hollinger (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 338.

26. Grounds for granting or denying temporary injunction.—Certain facts held to warrant granting of a temporary prohibitive injunction forbidding interference with canal. Jeff Chaison Town-Site Co. v. McFaddin, Wiess & Kyle Land Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

Where a petition against a water company supplying the inhabitants of a city under a franchise is based on the theory that the water company is a public service corporation and, as such, compelled to furnish water at a reasonable rate, alleging the unreasonableness of the rates charged and a threatened irreparable injury by shutting off petitioner's water supply, a case is made for a preliminary injunction restraining the shutting off of the supply. Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

Temporary injunction against interference by city with construction of a railroad in new location held properly refused under the circumstances. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 724.

Lessee of ice cream privilege at park held entitled, on payment of arrears of weekly rentals, to temporary injunction against forfeiture of lease. Creamery Dairy Co. v. Electric Park Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1106.

Where the court properly refused an application to file an information in quo warranto, the refusal to grant a preliminary injunction sought as ancillary held proper. State v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 826.

An application for a preliminary injunction held properly refused on the ground that it would accomplish the whole purpose of the suit without a trial on the merits. Ort v. Bowden (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1145.

A temporary injunction is properly granted to protect members of the executive committee of a national party from disturbance by intruders who have no right or title to the office, and to restrain members of such committee from attempting to include the intruders as members; the proceeding not being one to try title to the office. Ware v. Welch (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 263.

27. Duration of preliminary injunction.—A preliminary injunction continues in force until the matter is finally heard and determined, in the absence of a motion to dissolve. Ex parte Roper, 61 Cr. R. 68, 134 S. W. 334.

Temporary restraining order pending the hearing on an order to show cause why a writ of injunction should not issue held to expire on the date fixed for the hearing, whether any action was then taken by the trial judge or not. Cole v. Forto (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 350.

28. Mandatory injunction.—An injunction will be granted to compel the holder of a negotiable note to indorse a payment thereon. Kopplin v. Koplin, 28 S. W. 220, 8 C. A. 625.

A contractor who has paved a street under a contract to repair defects caused by wear or any imperfections, and who has given a bond for faithful performance, cannot be compelled to repair by mandatory injunction. Franklin Fireproofing Co. v. City of Dallas, 29 C. A. 448, 68 S. W. 820.

If the railroad company fails to construct sufficient culverts and sluices, and damage results from such failure, injunction will lie to compel such construction; and if a dam has been constructed across the channel of a stream over which the road passes, and the dam creates a nuisance by diverting the water from its natural channel and causing it to overflow and injure land of adjacent owners, an injunction will lie in favor of such owners to compel the removal of the dam. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harbison (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 454.

Though a decree that a party open a public highway across its property made no provision for the contingency of noncompliance, the court is not powerless to extend relief and a mandatory order will lie. Santa Fé Townsite Co. v. Norvell, 55 C. A. 488, 118 S. W. 762.

Scope of remedy by mandatory injunction stated. Jeff Chaison Town-Site Co. v. McFaddin, Wiess & Kyle Land Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

Where interference of defendant's telegraph and telephone lines with trees in front of plaintiff's premises could be obviated without great expense or inconvenience, the issue of a mandatory injunction is proper. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 942.

Proceedings for an order compelling defendant to furnish water to irrigate plaintiff's crop held one for mandamus and not injunction. Old River Rice Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 494.

An owner of property abutting on a street recovering damages for injury caused by the maintenance of telegraph and telephone wires in the street held not entitled to a mandatory injunction. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 104 T. 258, 136 S. W. 1049.

Mandatory injunctions are not issued unless extreme or very serious damage will ensue from withholding relief. Id.

An owner of shade or ornamental trees held entitled to a mandatory injunction for the removal of telegraph and telephone lines threatening to destroy the trees. Id.

Plaintiff held not entitled to mandatory injunction, requiring the board of trustees of an independent school district to recognize his right to act as superintendent of the schools, and to control them; he having refused to perform his contract with the trustees. Young v. Dudley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

Great caution is exercised in issuing a mandatory injunction, plaintiff being required to make out a clear case, and one must show that he would receive substantial injury if the writ were refused, to be entitled to a mandatory injunction. Simon v. Nance (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 661.

A mandatory injunction will not generally be granted until final hearing on the merits, unless on a showing of a clear right, and a case of necessity or extreme hardship. Ort v. Bowden (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1145.

As a general rule, a mandatory injunction should not be ordered before a final hearing and to execute the judgment. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Where a railroad company willfully fails to comply with Const. art. 10, § 9, requiring railroads to pass through county seats within three miles of their line, the court can enforce obedience thereto by mandatory injunction. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561.

29. — Transfer of possession.—Trustee in possession of firm goods to be sold to pay debts held entitled to injunction compelling restoration of goods seized on execution against one partner. Sumner v. Crawford, 91 T. 129, 41 S. W. 994.

Doctrine that it is not the function of a preliminary injunction to transfer the possession of land from one person to another pending an adjudication of the title does not apply where the effect of the injunction is only to restore plaintiff's possession, which had been forcibly invaded, and preserve the status until the party's rights could be determined. Jeff Chaison Town-Site Co. v. McFaddin, Wiess & Kyle Land Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

A mandatory injunction may be granted in a proper case without notice, even for the purpose of restoring to the owner possession of the premises of which he has been deprived by trespass. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

Grounds for granting a preliminary injunction to transfer the possession of land from one person to another stated. Simms v. Reisner (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 278; Montgomery County Development Co. v. Miller-Vidor Lumber Co., 139 S. W. 1015.

A temporary injunction cannot be used to divest property from one party to another; the only legitimate scope of such a remedy being to preserve the status quo of the parties' rights until the determination of the litigation. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1149.

30. Proceedings which may be restrained in general.—An injunction will not be granted to control the proceedings of courts on the ground of errors of law or judgment, where no appeal is allowed. Railway Co. v. Dowe, 70 T. 1, 6 S. W. 790; Id., 70 T. 5, 7 S. W. 368.

An injunction will be granted to restrain the sale of property in the hands of a receiver, seized under a writ of attachment. Railway Co. v. Lewis, 81 T. 5, 16 S. W. 647, 26 Am. St. Rep. 776.

31. Civil actions.—An injunction will be granted to restrain the collection of a negotiable note given for land to which the vendor had no title. Bedwell v. Thompson, 25 T. Sup. 247.

Where plaintiff and defendant are subject to the jurisdiction of the court, the former may obtain an injunction to restrain the defendant from prosecuting a garnishment suit in another state, when no law exists in the state where the suit was begun which affords the protection given by the laws of Texas. Moton v. Hull, 77 T. 80, 13 S. W. 849, 8 L. R. A. 722.

An injunction granted by the district court restraining a party from prosecuting a suit in the county court infringes on the jurisdiction of the county court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cleburne Ice & Cold Storage Co., 37 C. A. 334, 83 S. W. 1100.

The general rule stated as to when equity will not enjoin an action at law. Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. v. MacMaster, 51 C. A. 527, 113 S. W. 337.

Petitioner held entitled to enjoin defendant from maintaining an action in a justice's court for loss of property of the value of $20, which property was covered by a judgment against petitioner in a former action by defendant. Engleman v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1089.

A complainant in an interpleader suit may enjoin proceedings in another court against him for the same debt, fund, or duty that the entire litigation may be drawn into one principal action. Rochelle v. Pacific Express Co., 56 C. A. 142, 120 S. W. 543.

Where a court of equity has jurisdiction of the person of the defendants, it may restrain them from prosecuting actions in another state or a foreign country, although the actions involve property located in such other country. Nelson v. Lamm (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 664.

Injunction does not lie to stay prosecution of a suit merely because there is no cause of action to sustain it or to enjoin assertion of a cross-action where no fraud in prosecuting it is claimed. Courchesne v. Santa Fé Fuel Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 684.

That judgments of a justice court or of a county court would be final in certain suits brought in justice court does not authorize the county court to enjoin prosecution of such suits. Id.

32. — Preventing multiplicity of suits.—Injunction will be granted to restrain successive suits on the same cause of action. Cannon v. Hendrick, 5 T. 339; Railway Co. v. Dowe, 70 T. 5, 7 S. W. 368.

Where the rights of a large number of persons are involved, or a multitude of suits may be avoided and great individual loss and damage prevented, a court of equity may interfere to prevent the collection of a tax, if its validity may be considered and determined by the court just as consistently with public policy before as after its collection. George v. Dean, 47 T. 73.

An injunction will be granted to restrain a multiplicity of suits when the causes of action may be joined. Railway Co. v. Dowe, 70 T. 1, 6 S. W. 790; Id., 70 T. 5, 7 S. W. 368.

An action for an injunction held not maintainable on the ground of preventing a multiplicity of suits. Hammer v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1058.

In the absence of any alleged defense avoiding the policy, or any denial of liability thereon, equity will not enjoin insured, under a health and accident policy providing monthly indemnity for disability, from bringing suits for each part of the indemnity as it became due. Rau v. American Nat. Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 645.

33. Criminal prosecutions.—Injunction will not lie to restrain a tax collector from instituting criminal proceedings against one pursuing occupation without paying the tax. Yellowstone Kit v. Wood, 18 C. A. 683, 43 S. W. 1068.

37. — Erection of buildings.—An adjacent property owner held entitled to restrain the construction of a building of combustible material, in violation of an ordinance, and the erection of other buildings of combustible material, in violation of an ordinance, cannot preclude him from restraining the construction of such building contiguous to his property. Chimene v. Baker, 32 C. A. 520, 75 S. W. 330.

Where the owner of a lot adjoining other vacant lots before building a residence on his lot obtains from the owner of the adjoining lots an assurance that he will not erect on his lot a wagon and feed yard, after the erection of the residence, he has an equitable right by estoppel to enjoin the erection of the objectionable structures. Woods v. Lowrance, 49 C. A. 542, 109 S. W. 419, 420.

38. — Stay of waste.—In a suit to quiet title, plaintiff in possession under a claim of ownership held entitled to an injunction pendente lite to protect the property against injury and waste. Chancey v. Allison, 48 C. A. 441, 107 S. W. 605.

Injunction is proper in trespass to try title to stay waste which would result in irreparable injury to property pending the action. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

Where plaintiff sought an injunction on the ground that the tenant and subtenant were committing waste, and intended to carry on an obnoxious business, he could not obtain relief against the subtenant on the ground that the lease stipulated against subletting without written consent. Fred v. Moseley (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 343.

39. Violation of contract in general.—Plaintiff need not show damages to obtain an injunction to enforce a covenant to refrain from engaging in a particular business. Anderson v. Rowland, 18 C. A. 460, 44 S. W. 911.

The violation of a contract by which one sells his business and agrees not to engage therein in that place, binding himself to pay a stipulated sum on violation of the contract as liquidated damages, will not be enjoined. Rucker v. Campbell, 35 C. A. 178, 79 S. W. 627.

Where, for a valuable consideration, a railroad company has contracted to establish its general offices and locate its machine shops and roundhouses in a town or city, an injunction will lie to prevent their removal by the company from said town or city, and the company cannot by amending its charter acquire the right of removal of its offices, machine shops, etc. City of Tyler v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 90 T. 491, 91 S. W. 4, 13 Ann. Cas. 911.

One brother held not entitled to enjoin another from violating a contract to support their sister on the theory that a nuisance would result to plaintiff in being compelled to care for her. Caruth v. Caruth (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 300.

Where the discontinuance of operation of a street car line in violation of contract would result in serious damage while it did not appear that its operation would damage the company, held that a temporary injunction would be sustained. Houston Electric Co. v. Glen Park Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 965.

40. Breach of covenant.—That plaintiff recovered damages already suffered for a breach of the contract not to reopen business is no reason for refusing an injunction protecting him for the future. Welsh v. Morris, 81 T. 159, 16 S. W. 744, 26 Am. St. Rep. 301.

An injunction will be granted to enforce a covenant not to engage in a particular business, although the plaintiff does not show any damages. Anderson v. Roland, 18 C. A. 460, 44 S. W. 911.

A covenant in a deed limiting the use of the land conveyed will be enforced in equity by injunction, though the covenant is not of the class technically running with the land. Woods v. Lowrance, 49 C. A. 542, 109 S. W. 418.

41. Sale of corporation stock for assessments.—An injunction will be granted to restrain the sale of nonassessable stock in a corporation for assessments illegally made. San Antonio Ry. Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 639.

42. Interference with franchise.—Where a telephone company, pursuant to its franchise, erected poles and strung wires thereon, an electric light company, whose franchise was granted afterwards, will be enjoined from placing its wires in such close proximity as to impair the efficiency of the telephone service. Paris E. L. R. Co. v. S. W. Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 902.

43. Acts of public officers, boards, and municipalities.—Injunction will lie to restrain the illegal seizure or use of books and papers pertaining to any public office, the illegal expenditure of county funds or the illegal issue and delivery of county bonds. Caruthers v. Harnett, 67 T. 127, 2 S. W. 523.

Sureties on a city treasurer's bond may by injunction protect themselves against a misappropriation of the city funds in the hands of such treasurer. City of Bonham v. Taylor, 81 T. 59, 16 S. W. 555.

To authorize an injunction restraining the council of a city organized under the general laws of the state in the exercise of the powers conferred by statute, the complainant must show himself injured by the impairment or deprivation of some vested right. Wootters v. City of Crockett, 11 C. A. 474, 33 S. W. 391. See Conner v. City of Paris, 27 S. W. 88, 87 T. 32.

A city should not be enjoined from interfering with a lot when it has only attempted to remove fences from the adjoining street. City of San Antonio v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 97.

Courts held to have no power to enjoin the officers of a state, unless they are about to take some act under an unconstitutional law, which constitutes an unlawful interference with the rights of complainant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shannon, 100 T. 379, 100 S. W. 138, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 681.

Where a tax levied by a school district was illegal because excessive, bonds proposed to be issued upon such illegal levy will be enjoined. Snyder v. Baird Independent School Dist., 102 T. 4, 113 S. W. 521.

A railway company may restrain the enforcement of an unreasonable order of the railroad commission, requiring the company to erect and maintain a depot at a place designated. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 192.

Courts will not enjoin adoption of an ordinance within the legislative discretion of the governing body of a municipal corporation. Hatcher v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 914.

A court of equity cannot enjoin peace officers from enforcing a valid criminal statute. Id.

Where a railroad has not for five or six years used a portion of its track, which the erection of a sea wall by a city renders it impracticable to rebuild, a temporary injunction against interference by the city with the construction of a track on a new location, which would accomplish the whole purpose of the suit without a trial upon the merits, is properly refused. Galveston & W. R. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 724.

In mandamus to compel the county commissioners' court to take certain sections of land out of the E. school district, where they had been fraudulently placed by the commissioners in dividing the county into common school districts, and permit them to be annexed to the C. independent district, the petition alleged that E. school district bonds were about to be issued, and would be signed by the county judge and treasurer on a certain day, and that, upon the issuance and sale of the bonds, they would become liens on the E. school district, including the sections sought to be withdrawn, for 30 years, and prayed that the county judge and treasurer be restrained from signing the proposed bonds, and that the commissioners' court be restrained from buying them with county funds until they have been approved by the attorney general. Under this article and Const. art. 5, § 8, as amended in 1891, giving a district court general supervisory control over the commissioners' courts, and general original jurisdiction over all causes of action whatever for which a remedy is not provided, a temporary injunction was properly granted as prayed. McLaughlin v. Smith (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 248.

Where the validity of evidences of indebtedness issued by the court of county commissioners to pay for the construction of a courthouse was doubtful, it being questionable whether they were bonds under Acts 1889, c. 149, the issuance of such indebtedness will not be enjoined at the suit of taxpayers. Commissioners' Court of Floyd County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

The question of the building of a courthouse rests in the discretion of the county commissioners, and hence, though the majority of the taxpaying voters are opposed, they are not entitled to an injunction to prevent the building of a courthouse according to plans selected by the court. Id.

44. — Levying and collecting tax.—It is not sufficient ground for an injunction restraining the collection of a tax upon an assessment actually made, that it has not been correctly described on the assessment rolls prepared from the assessment actually made. Prima facie, the tax is due upon the assessment, and equity will not aid one who is himself in default. Harrison v. Vines, 46 T. 15.

A misdescription of the property of a taxpayer by the assessor, or a mere irregularity in his entry of it upon the assessment list or roll, furnishes no sufficient ground for enjoining the collection of a tax for which the plaintiff was justly liable, and with which his property had been legally assessed by the proper officer charged with this duty. George v. Dean, 47 T. 73.

Injunctions granted to restrain the sale of property levied on to satisfy a tax illegally assessed. George v. Dean, 47 T. 84; Bank v. Rogers, 51 T. 606; Court v. O'Connor, 65 T. 339; Davis v. Burnett, 77 T. 3, 13 S. W. 613; Schmidt v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 546.

Where cattle properly assessed for taxation in one county were also assessed in another county, it was not necessary, before applying for an injunction against the latter assessment to seek relief from the board of equalization, or other officers having control in matters of taxation, and unimportant whether the taxes in the former county were paid before or after the levy which was sought to be enjoined. It was sufficient if the right to the taxes had fully accrued to that county, and this was effected by the previous assessment made thereon. Court v. O'Connor, 65 T. 334; Hardesty v. Fleming, 57 T. 400.

The acts of an assessor listing land in the wrong county and selling the same do not cast a cloud upon the title thereto which would authorize an injunction to restrain the collection of the tax. Chisholm v. Adams, 71 T. 678, 10 S. W. 336.

The collection of illegal taxes will be restrained by injunction. Davis v. Burnett, 77 T. 3, 13 S. W. 613; Court v. O'Connor, 65 T. 334. See Rosenberg v. Weekes, 67 T. 578, 4 S. W. 899; Cook v. Railway Co., 24 S. W. 544, 5 C. A. 644.

An injunction will not be granted to prohibit a tax collector from demanding an occupation tax. Yellowstone Kit v. Wood, 18 C. A. 683, 43 S. W. 1068.

A property owner may be required to pay the legal tax before being granted equitable relief against an excessive tax. Conklin v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 879.

In the absence of a showing that school trustees did not act for the best interests of the districts, their acts in changing the location of the school building are no ground for restraining levy taxes ordered by the district. Boesch v. Byrom, 37 C. A. 35, 83 S. W. 18.

The levy of a tax voted by a school district will not be restrained because the call for the election to authorize such tax was participated in by de facto trustees. Id.

Action against state officers to enjoin collection of tax held not a suit against state. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 436; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Stephens, Id.; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Davidson, Id.; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Same, Id.; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Stephens, Id.; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Davidson, Id.; State v. Galveston, H. & H. Ry. Co. of 1882, 93 S. W. 460, 469; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. State, 93 S. W. 461, 469; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Same, Id.; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Same, 93 S. W. 462, 469; Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Same, 93 S. W. 463, 469; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Same, Id.; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Same, 93 S. W. 464, 469; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Same, 93 S. W. 465, 469; Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Same, 93 S. W. 466, 469; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; State v. St. Louis, B. & M. R. Co., 93 S. W. 467, 469; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Texas Midland R. Co. v. Same, 93 S. W. 468, 469.

A suit against state officials to restrain them from collecting a privilege tax imposed by Acts 29th Leg. p. 358, c. 148, re-enacted with modifications in 1907 and embodied in title 126, chapter 2, is a suit against the state and cannot be maintained without its consent. Producers' Oil Co. v. Stephens, 44 C. A. 327, 99 S. W. 157; Texas Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 160. Contra, see Galveston, H. & S. Ry. Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 436.

Action for injunction held not maintainable by a county tax collector to enjoin collection of a judgment for delinquent taxes recovered by the county by persons unauthorized by law to receive it. Stringer v. Holle, 47 C. A. 632, 105 S. W. 1146.

An action to restrain an independent school district from issuing bonds to raise money for school purposes and from levying a tax on the property in the district to pay the same held not objectionable as a collateral attack on the corporate existence of the district. Parks v. West, 102 T. 11, 111 S. W. 726.

A railroad company held not entitled to an injunction restraining the collection of taxes because of an unfair valuation of its property. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hassell, 57 C. A. 522, 123 S. W. 190.

Where national bank stock was assessed in a county at 85 per cent. valuation, while all other property was assessed at a 41 per cent. valuation, there was discrimination and the stockholders might enjoin the collection of the excessive tax. Langley v. Smith (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 660.

Where a school district has been organized under color of statutory authority, its corporate existence and the rights of the trustees to exercise their functions cannot be inquired into in a collateral proceeding to restrain a threatened levy and collection of taxes upon the property of plaintiffs. Coffman v. Goree Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 132.

A property owner who has not paid taxes assessed against him, nor offered to pay them, cannot sue to enjoin an excessive levy. McMahan v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1123.

On suit to restrain the collection of taxes, that excessive property was levied on is not available to plaintiff. Id.

A suit against officers of a county to restrain the collection of taxes assessed against property is not a suit against the state, so as to require the consent of the Legislature to its institution. Porter v. Langley (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1042.

45. — Acts relating to roads or streets.—Injunction will lie to restrain the opening of a public road not legally established. Floyd v. Turner, 23 T. 292. But an injunction was refused when applied for on the ground that insufficient damages were awarded. Duer v. Police Court of Austin City, 34 T. 283.

Injunction will lie to restrain the opening of a public road under an order made without notice. Pending such injunction new proceedings may be taken to open such road, which would be a defense to the injunction, but costs will be allowed plaintiff up to date of regular condemnation. Evans v. Live Stock & Land Co., 81 T. 622, 17 S. W. 232.

The owner of a lot abutting on an alley held entitled to an injunction against the obstruction of the alley by another abutter, under authority of the city. Kalteyer v. Sullivan, 18 C. A. 488, 46 S. W. 288.

After a city has condemned one's property for the purpose of opening a street, and time for appealing therefrom has lapsed, and an ordinance is passed changing the street through the property, an injunction will lie to prevent the opening without new condemnation proceedings. City of San Antonio v. Sullivan, 23 C. A. 658, 57 S. W. 45.

Opening a public road by county commissioners' court will not be restrained, because of irregular proceedings, at the instance of one who consented to its selection and urged his claim for damages, which are not shown to be insufficient or ineffectively provided for. Allen v. Parker County, 23 C. A. 536, 57 S. W. 703.

Injunction to prevent opening a road, because of irregular proceedings, held not to lie at the suit of one who alleges no damage, and is only interested through residence in the neighborhood and recommendation of another route. Id.

A property owner is entitled to an injunction to restrain the opening of a contemplated road over his land, where there has been no valid condemnation of such land for the road. Plowman v. Dallas County (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 252.

Where gates have been constructed across a third-class road under a statute permitting them when the right of way was granted to the county without compensation, held, that an injunction would lie to restrain their removal by the county authorities. Adkins v. Bumgardner (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 132.

An owner of land sought to be taken for a public highway held not entitled to enjoin the taking for want of just compensation on the ground that the jurors appointed to award the compensation did not possess the proper qualifications. Midleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 637.

An allegation that the commissioners' court did not after full investigation find that the public interest would be served by the alteration of a highway would not be ground for an injunction restraining the taking of land for that purpose. Stewart v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 590.

Owners of land through which a proposed road was laid held not entitled to resort to equity to restrain the opening of the road. Powell v. Carson County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 235.

A number of residents and owners of land on a highway, who were similarly affected by a threatened discontinuance of the highway, could join in suing to restrain the discontinuance. Porter v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 469.

46. — Appointment and removal of and interference with officers.—An injunction will be granted to restrain the usurpation of the office of county clerk by one claiming under an appointment by the commissioners' court, which did not have authority to determine whether or not a vacancy existed. Ehlinger v. Rankin, 29 S. W. 240, 9 C. A. 424.

A municipal officer de jure or de facto is entitled to an injunction to restrain the city authorities from unlawfully appointing a successor and dispossessing him of his office and property thereof. Callaghan v. McGown (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 319; Same v. Tobin, 40 C. A. 441, 90 S. W. 328; Same v. Irvin, 90 S. W. 335.

One elected a member of the board of education of a city at a regular election for a specified term held entitled to an injunction to prevent one from wrongfully ousting him from office. Bonner v. Belsterling (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1154.

The superintendent of the public schools of a city, holding office for a specified term to which is attached a salary not due, is entitled to restrain persons usurping the office of board of education from removing him from his office or interfering with him in the discharge of his office. Lefevre v. Belsterling (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1159.

In a suit by a de facto incumbent of the office of chief of police of a city to determine the right to the office, the court, on an application by plaintiff for a temporary injunction, could not properly grant defendant a temporary injunction on his cross-bill. Perrett v. Wegner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 984.

Injunction held the proper remedy of a school superintendent to compel the school trustees to recognize his right to the office, and to prevent them from interfering therewith. Young v. Dudley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

47. — Publishing election returns.—Publication of the result of a local option election cannot be enjoined. Ex parte Mayes, 39 Cr. R. 36, 44 S. W. 831.

Petition for injunction to restrain the publication of the result of a local option election, on the ground of the unconstitutionality of the law, held to state a cause of action within the cognizance of a court of equity. Sweeney v. Webb, 33 C. A. 324, 76 S. W. 766.

An injunction does not lie to restrain the commissioners' court from canvassing the returns and publishing notice of the result of a local option election. Robinson & Watson v. Wingate, 98 T. 267, 83 S. W. 182.

An injunction will not lie to restrain the declaration of the result of an election locating a county seat. Townsen v. Mersfelder, 49 C. A. 289, 109 S. W. 420.

48. Enforcement of void ordinance.—Injunction will lie to restrain the enforcement of an ordinance of a city which is void. City of Austin v. Austin City Cemetery Ass'n, 28 S. W. 528, 87 T. 330, 47 Am. St. Rep. 114.

The enforcement of a void ordinance, not resulting in irreparable injury to vested property rights, cannot be restrained. Wade v. Nunnally, 19 C. A. 256, 46 S. W. 668.

One held not entitled to maintain a suit to restrain the enforcement of a void ordinance where no property rights will be affected by the enforcement thereof. Robinson v. City of Galveston, 51 C. A. 292, 111 S. W. 1076.

Where the enforcement of a void ordinance regulating plumbers will injure the business of a firm engaged in the plumbing business, injunction will lie to restrain the enforcement of the ordinance. Id.

Where the attempted enforcement of an invalid ordinance would constitute an invasion of property rights, its enforcement will be enjoined. Goar v. City of Rosenberg, 53 C. A. 218, 115 S. W. 653.

Injunction lies to protect private rights against an illegal ordinance. Hatcher v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 914.

The rule that equity will not interfere by injunction to prevent criminal prosecutions under a void city ordinance is subject to the rule that equity will grant relief where there is not a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law, and when it is necessary to prevent irreparable injury. City of Houston v. Richter (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 189.

Equity, at the suit of numerous journeymen plumbers of a city suing for themselves and others similarly situated, may restrain by injunction the enforcement of a void ordinance, requiring journeymen plumbers to procure a city license and give a bond. Id.

49. Publication of libel.—The general rule is that injunction will not lie to restrain publication of a libel, especially in view of the guaranty of liberty of speech in Const. art. 1, § 8. Mitchell v. Grand Lodge, Free & Accepted Masons, 56 C. A. 306, 121 S. W. 178.

50. Nuisance.—An injunction will be granted to restrain the establishment of a nuisance. Jung v. Neraz, 71 T. 396, 9 S. W. 344; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Cook, 26 S. W. 96, 6 C. A. 573.

Where a barn and barnyard, used as a breeding ground and for dairy purposes, constitute a nuisance, an injunction will lie. Hockaday v. Wortham, 22 C. A. 419, 54 S. W. 1094.

Where a city granted a franchise to construct a sewer, and provided for its terminal on a creek flowing through plaintiff's land, which polluted the stream, an injunction restraining the maintenance of the terminal held properly granted. Donovan v. Royall, 26 C. A. 248, 63 S. W. 1054.

Where a cotton gin near a residence is a nuisance, in that it interferes with the comfortable enjoyment of the residence, the owner, though not residing there, is entitled to injunction against the nuisance. Faulkenbury v. Wells, 28 C. A. 621, 68 S. W. 327.

The mere proximity of a proposed cemetery to residence property, and the consequent depreciation of its value, affords no right of action to restrain the establishment of the cemetery. Elliott v. Ferguson, 37 C. A. 40, 83 S. W. 56.

Where an injunction was asked to restrain defendants from establishing a cemetery where it would pollute plaintiff's wells and springs held, that the rule as to the balance of convenience did not apply. Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 453.

The right to abate nuisances is a well-established doctrine of equity courts, based on the maxim that the owner of property must so use it as not to materially injure another. Hamm v. Gunn, 51 C. A. 424, 113 S. W. 304.

In an action to abate a nuisance caused by noxious vapors arising upon the land of another, it must be shown that the injury visibly diminishes the value of plaintiff's property and the comfort and enjoyment of it. Boyd v. Schreiner (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 100.

When the cause of annoyance and discomfort arising from a nuisance is continuous equity will restrain it. Id.

Injury to the business of keeping a hotel occasioned by a nuisance held susceptible to ascertainment and satisfaction in money so that an injunction would not lie to restrain the nuisance. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff, 102 T. 433, 118 S. W. 134, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 749.

Residents of cities, towns, or villages must of necessity submit to consequences resulting from occupations and pursuits carried on in the immediate neighborhood which are lawful and necessary for trade and commerce; and matters which, though in themselves annoying, are in the nature of ordinary incidents of city or town life, cannot be abated as nuisances. Gose v. Coryell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1164.

An injunction against the maintenance of a cotton gin alleged to constitute a nuisance should not be granted, unless, in addition to the proof ordinarily necessary to establish the existence of a nuisance, it appears that in maintaining the gin where located defendant is acting unreasonably; such question being one of fact to be determined from all the testimony. Id.

Locality is to be considered in determining whether a certain use of property is a nuisance, and, if so, whether relief should be awarded by injunction or the injured party be restricted to an action for damages. Id.

Before equity will enjoin the construction of works not per se a nuisance, it must clearly appear that the operation thereof will create a nuisance. Robinson v. Dale (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 308.

Under subdivision 1 of this article, authorizing the court to restrain an act prejudicial to the applicant therefor, one aggrieved by a nuisance seriously affecting his health and life, and the comfortable enjoyment of his home, may sue in equity to abate the nuisance, though the person causing the nuisance is financially responsible for the damages incurred for the injury caused thereby one for which there is no adequate remedy at law. Stark v. Coe (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 373.

Owners of lots abutting upon a public square dedicated for county courthouse purposes held entitled to enjoin its use for the construction of a public comfort station by the town. Clement v. City of Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.

51. — Public or private injury.—An injunction will be granted in behalf of the state to abate a public nuisance which is an injury to the property or civil rights of the public at large and which it is her duty, as agent of the public, to prevent. State v. Goodnight, 70 T. 682, 11 S. W. 119; City of Belton v. Central Hotel (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 297; State v. Patterson, 14 C. A. 465, 37 S. W. 478.

This article does not authorize the court to enjoin a public nuisance created by one pursuing the business of selling intoxicating liquor without a license, but the party seeking the remedy must show himself entitled to the writ under the general principles of equity unless he brings himself by pleading and proof clearly within the letter of some statute enlarging the remedy. Spence v. Fenchler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094.

52. — Operation of railroads.—An injunction to restrain a freight street railway company from operating its road held properly denied, on the ground that the injury was not irreparable. Rische v. Texas Transp. Co., 27 C. A. 33, 66 S. W. 324.

Where a street railway company, incorporated for transportation of freight, has obtained the sanction of the municipal authorities, an abutting property owner cannot restrain its use of the street. Id.

A railroad company has the right to acquire all the lands that it needs in the construction and operation of its road, and a private citizen cannot enjoin the company from building and operating necessary round houses, machine shops, water tanks, coal bins, etc., on its property, because these things disturb him in his home near by, and depreciate the value of his property, although he may have a cause of action for damages thereby occasioned. Rainey v. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 95.

A railroad company cannot select its location for machine shops arbitrarily and without reference to damage to property or to the discomfort of persons living nearby. In a proper case it can be enjoined. If it is not proper to enjoin, the injunction should be denied and the party complaining left to his action for damages. Rainey v. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co., 99 T. 276, 89 S. W. 772, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 590, 122 Am. St. Rep. 622, 13 Ann. Cas. 580.

Vibration and noises caused by a railroad using city streets lawfully for making up trains, switching, etc., do not constitute such a nuisance as can be prohibited by injunction. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1006.

Facts held to show special injury to a hotel keeper by the operation of railroad trains in a city street, such as to authorize its restraint as a private nuisance. Id.

53. Calling state convention.—An illegal call for a state convention will not be enjoined by a court of equity, since such relief would be purely for the protection of a political right. McDonald v. Lyon, 43 C. A. 484, 95 S. W. 67.

54. Enforcement of resolution by insurance society.—Where the executive officers of a mutual benefit society attempt to enforce an unauthorized resolution, the member's remedy is by injunction. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Ericson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 92.

55. Cancellation of or change in beneficiary certificate.—A mutual benefit association cannot be enjoined from issuing a new certificate changing the beneficiary as requested by the member, notwithstanding alleged equitable rights of plaintiff. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. of Texas v. Jones, 47 C. A. 533, 106 S. W. 184.

Unless the threat by officers of an association to cancel complainant's certificate, if executed, will produce substantial injury, it is no ground for injunction. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy, 51 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.

56. Sale of note.—An injunction will be granted to restrain the negotiation of negotiable promissory notes obtained by fraud. Bedwell v. Thompson, 25 T. Sup. 247.

In a suit to restrain the sale of a vendor's lien note held by defendant against plaintiff, an objection to the complaint held untenable. Neal v. Whitlock, 45 C. A. 457, 101 S. W. 284.

57. Sale of community property.—Pending suit for divorce the plaintiff, being a married woman, may obtain a writ of injunction to restrain her husband from selling or encumbering the community property. Art. 4643; Wright v. Wright, 3 T. 168.

58. Fraudulent transfer of property.—Injunction will lie to restrain the fraudulent transfer of property. Washington County v. Schulz, 63 T. 32.

59. Interference with corporate management.—Equity held to have jurisdiction of the suit of a corporation at the instance of its de facto officers to enjoin others claiming to hold the offices, where their acts interfere with the management of the corporation business. De Zavala v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 160.

60. Use or control of live stock.—An injunction will be granted to restrain a person from controlling live stock on the range, the property of the plaintiff in the suit. Hickman v. Hickman, 5 C. A. 99, 27 S. W. 31.

Where the administration of the estate of a decedent was pending in the probate court, one suing for the foreclosure of a mortgage covering certain live stock belonging to the estate could not in such suit secure an injunction restraining the use of the animals. Dunovant's Estate v. R. E. Stafford & Co., 36 C. A. 33, 81 S. W. 101.

61. Building party wall.—Where plaintiff agreed that defendant might erect a party wall on the division line between their respective lots, injunction is the proper remedy to prevent defendant from building the wall in an improper manner, without a showing of irreparable injury. Everly v. Driskill, 24 C. A. 413, 58 S. W. 1046.

62. Communicating with plaintiff's wife.—Restraining defendant in a suit for the partial alienation of a wife's affection from conversing with, or writing to her in any way, or associating with her, held not inconsistent with freedom of speech or of the press or of locomotion; and defendant could be enjoined from speaking to her, though the conversation may not tend to a breach of marital relations between plaintiff and his wife. Ex parte Warfield, 40 Cr. R. 413, 50 S. W. 933, 76 Am. St. Rep. 724.

63. Selling railroad tickets.—A carrier held entitled to an injunction to restrain the dealing in return trip tickets not transferable. Lytle v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 100 T. 292, 99 S. W. 396, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 437.

A railroad company is not entitled to an injunction against dealing in nontransferable railway tickets which may thereafter be issued as occasion may arise. Lytle v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 199.

64. Erection or maintenance of levee or dam.—Equity will not interfere at the suit of an owner of land bordering on a stream with a right of the adjacent owner to erect levees on his own land, unless material injury results therefrom. Knight v. Durham (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 591.

A married woman could not enjoin the maintenance of a dam by a corporation entitled to exercise the power of eminent domain, which would submerge a homestead, where the husband had waived prepayment of compensation before appropriation of the land, but was only entitled to recover compensation for her homestead. Reitzer v. Medina Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 380.

65. Interference with right to water.—When the natural flow of water is diverted, so as to result in injury to the owner of land, an injunction should issue to prevent the continuance of the wrong. G., H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Tait, 63 T. 323. But see I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Malone, 1 App. C. C. § 234.

Injunction to restrain upper owner from maintaining dam held properly denied, where it appeared that interference with the flow was caused by obstruction in ditch for which defendant was not liable, and not by the dam. Standart v. Vivion, 22 C. A. 142, 54 S. W. 44.

One who has prepared his land and planted a crop, relying on a contract whereby another was required to furnish him water, is entitled to an injunction compelling specific performance of the contract. Bay City Irr. Co. v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 545.

One interested in waters of a stream held entitled to have its diversion enjoined. Santa Rosa Irr. Co. v. Pecos River Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1014.

Grantee of lot and appurtenances held entitled to restrain vendee of former owner from selling rights to make connections with water main supplying plaintiff's lot with water, where such connections would interfere with plaintiff's rights to an adequate supply of water. Hunstock v. Limburger (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 327.

Under this article, and Art. 5088 et seq., declaring that unappropriated waters of flowing rivers may be acquired for irrigation and other purposes, a lower riparian owner is not entitled to a temporary injunction against the diversion of water for the irrigation of nonriparian land in the absence of a showing that his land is now being used or is intended for immediate use or is prepared for agricultural or other purposes rendering the use of the water of the river necessary and beneficial. Biggs v. Leffingwell (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 902.

Necessity for preventing defendant from obtaining prescriptive right to take water from above plaintiff's riparian land held not sufficient to authorize the grant of a temporary injunction. Id.

An upper riparian owner cannot be enjoined by a lower owner from diverting water until the former shall construct an intake, headgate, canals and ditches, and a return ditch for surplus water, so that the diversion may be made without unnecessary waste, where by agreement with such lower owner the surplus water of the upper owner was turned into the lower owner's canal, as the rule requiring the return is for the benefit of and may be waived by the lower owner. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

A second appropriator of water cannot be deprived by injunction of water which a prior appropriator did not need. Id.

If the water supply of plaintiff irrigation company was not sufficient because another irrigation company, other than defendant, was taking with plaintiff's consent more water than it was entitled to receive, defendant could not be held responsible for the shortage in plaintiff's water supply, and itself enjoined from taking water. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

66. Pollution of water.—The wrongful pollution of a stream by one riparian owner to the injury of others may be enjoined. Teel v. Rio Bravo Oil Co., 47 C. A. 153, 104 S. W. 420.

67. Operation of mill.—One acquiring after maturity a note given by a buyer of a half interest in a sawmill plant and timber held not entitled to restrain the operation of the mill and the creation of liens for wages of employes under Arts. 5644-5649. Norwood v. Leeves (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 53.

68. Hearing and determination of application for injunction.—In a suit to enjoin defendants from locating a cemetery in a certain place on the ground that it would pollute the plaintiff's wells and springs held, that it was not necessary for the jury to find which wells or springs would be polluted. Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 453.

On an application for temporary injunction against interference by a city with the construction of a railroad track on a new location, where the city is confined on the hearing to a denial under oath of the allegations of the petition, and to such affidavits, rebutting the case as made by the petition and supporting affidavits, as could be procured by voluntary action of the witnesses, the cause will not be decided on the merits, though there is little dispute as to the main facts, the city being entitled to have its rights determined on a full trial, where it can have compulsory process for its witnesses, with the right of cross-examination. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 724.

Right to the possession of archives, records, and other property belonging to a public office cannot be determined on an application for a temporary injunction in a suit to determine title to the office. Perrett v. Wegner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 984.

Upon hearing, after granting a temporary injunction provisionally, the judge could determine the meaning of a statute upon which plaintiff's probable right to an injunction depended. Gibson v. Sterrett (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1189.

Equity will not enjoin the completion nor require the removal of a fence where the determination of the issues necessarily requires the determination of the title to the land upon which the fence is located. Walker v. Haley (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 360.

69. Decree.—If the plaintiff admit his indebtedness in his petition, upon the dissolution of the injunction the defendant is entitled to judgment for the amount due, on a prayer to this effect, and without specific allegations as to such indebtedness. Bourke v. Vanderlip, 22 T. 221; Willis v. Gordon, 22 T. 241.

While a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace cannot be revised in the district court, it would seem that in a suit brought in the district court by the defendant, to prevent by injunction the collection of the judgment on the ground of fraud, and because the judgment was dormant, the district court would have power to inquire whether the sum for which the judgment was rendered was still due, and if so to render a judgment against the plaintiff in the injunction suit for the amount. In such a proceeding, when it is shown that the judgment has not been paid, the injunction should be dissolved. Seymour v. Hill, 67 T. 385, 3 S. W. 313.

In a suit by injunction to restrain the sale of property under a judgment erroneously rendered, the defendant, who was plaintiff in the judgment, can have the judgment set aside and the proper statutory judgment rendered therein. Krall v. Printing Press Co., 79 T. 556, 15 S. W. 565.

After enjoining the issuance of an execution on a void judgment, the court having obtained jurisdiction will render judgment for the amount shown to be due. Hickman v. White (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 692, citing Edrington v. Aillsbrooks, 21 T. 186; Willis v. Gordon, 22 T. 241; Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. Sup. 384.

A judgment in a suit to enjoin the sale of land under an execution need not determine the amount of the debt, where the only issue raised by the pleadings and evidence is whether the property is a homestead, and therefore exempt. Warren v. Kohr, 26 C. A. 331, 64 S. W. 62.

Where a complaint by the commissioned branch pilots seeks to restrain a pilot from acting as a branch pilot, the decree cannot include his associates, agents, and employés. Olsen v. Smith (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 320; Pettersen v. Smith, 30 C. A. 139, 69 S. W. 542.

A decree restraining a defendant who has not been created a branch pilot from piloting any foreign vessels in or out of the Galveston port held too broad. Pettersen v. Smith, 30 C. A. 139, 69 S. W. 542.

Where intervener, in an action to restrain the enforcement of a judgment, admitted payment before intervention, plaintiff was entitled to judgment. Abee v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 973.

A decree enjoining the furnishing of water under existing contracts to certain persons not parties to the suit held invalid. Watkins Land Co. v. Clements, 98 T. 578, 86 S. W. 733, 70 L. R. A. 964, 107 Am. St. Rep. 653.

A railroad held not entitled to object to a decree restraining certain acts as of a date when the railroad had voluntarily promised to desist from committing them. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 177.

In a suit to restrain the collection of certain state privilege taxes, a judgment for the taxes should have been in favor of the state, and not in favor of the officers sued. Producers' Oil Co. v. Stephens, 44 C. A. 327, 99 S. W. 157; Stephens v. Morning Star Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 159; Southwestern Oil Co. v. State, Id.

In a suit to enjoin a breach of a contract with a city to maintain a waterworks system, a decree held not objectionable as requiring the use of existing machinery beyond its life. Bounds v. Hubbard City, 47 C. A. 233, 105 S. W. 56.

A decree restraining the manufacturer and seller of salt from violation of the anti-trust laws, without specifying what acts would constitute such violation, held insufficient. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Blount, 49 C. A. 138, 107 S. W. 1163.

In an action for injunction, held that the decree was unauthorized by the pleadings. Mundy v. Hart (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 236.

A decree in a suit for a mandatory injunction to compel obedience to a decree that defendant open a public highway across its property granting such relief held required to incorporate a certain provision in the latter decree. Santa Fé Townsite Co. v. Norvell, 55 C. A. 488, 118 S. W. 762.

A judgment held erroneous in perpetuating an injunction without provision for its dissolution on payment of the judgment. Parriss v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 199, 122 S. W. 399.

Where a petition seeks only to enjoin the construction of a railroad crossing over a street railroad, the court could not prescribe a particular character of crossing and require it, and no other, to be installed. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1140.

In a suit to restrain a husband from exercising control over a wife's separate property, a decree held not warranted by the pleading. Burns v. Burns (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 333.

An injunction will not be issued against unknown persons who are not made parties to the suit. Hamner v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1058.

An injunction operates in personam only. Clement v. City of Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.

70. — Order for payment of deposit in court.—Defendants in execution sought by injunction to restrain the collection of an execution, the money having been deposited in court. Under a judgment for plaintiff in execution who asserted his right to the fund with prayer for general relief, he was entitled to an order for the payment of the money. Goodman v. Henley, 80 T. 499, 16 S. W. 432.

71. — Decree on sustaining demurrer to bill.—See notes under Art. 4663.

72. — Uncertainty.—Decree in suit against city to abate its waterworks dam as a nuisance held not objectionable as indefinite. City of Ennis v. Gilder, 32 C. A. 351, 74 S. W. 585.

A decree enjoining defendants from using the water of a creek and spring to irrigate undefined parts of a number of surveys was void for indefiniteness. Watkins Land Co. v. Clements, 98 T. 578, 86 S. W. 733, 70 L. R. A. 964, 107 Am. St. Rep. 653.

In a suit to enjoin a breach of contract with a city to maintain a waterworks system, a decree held not too indefinite and uncertain to be enforceable in equity by ordinary process. Bounds v. Hubbard City, 47 C. A. 233, 105 S. W. 56.

Judgment, directing defendants assuming to act for plaintiff corporation to dismiss all suits brought by them and cancel all powers of attorney which they hold, held not erroneous for uncertainty. Nelson v. Lamm (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 664.

A decree, in a riparian owner's suit enjoining defendant from taking any water for nonriparian lands, except when the river was overflowing its banks at plaintiff's land, was too indefinite to be enforced. Biggs v. Lee (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 709.

73. — Modification.—In an action to enjoin defendant from closing a road, a modification of the injunction on final hearing held not error. Smith v. Ernest, 46 C. A. 247, 102 S. W. 129.

Reformation of order granting an injunction allowed, where it grants a permanent injunction without notice, but the writ issued is in form a temporary injunction until the hearing. Jeff Chaison Town-Site Co. v. McFaddin, Wiess & Kyle Land Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

Plaintiffs, who were members of the minority faction of a religious society, held not entitled to complain of the modification of a temporary injunction which permitted the collection of dues and the admission of new members; it appearing that their right to the property and to protection from expulsion were preserved. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1149.

74. Recovery of damages and continuation of injunction.—Where plaintiff recovers, as damages for a nuisance, the amount of depreciation of his property, based on the permanency of the nuisance, he cannot also have the continuation of the nuisance enjoined. Hockaday v. Wortham, 22 C. A. 419, 54 S. W. 1094.

If a nuisance is permanent, so that the damage therefrom to adjacent property constantly and regularly occurs, the person injured may recover the resulting depreciation in the value of his property, both for the past and future at one time, and is not entitled, in addition, to have the nuisance enjoined. If a nuisance to adjacent property was abatable, the person injured thereby would be entitled, in an action to abate the nuisance, to recover such damages as would fairly compensate him for having been deprived of the enjoyment of his property up to trial, and, in addition, to have the maintenance of the nuisance restrained. Kennedy v. Garrard (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 570.

75. Defense in action for wrongful injunction.—That the owner of a house cut off its top and moved it under telephone wires was no defense to his action for wrongful injunction against interference with the wires. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1000.

76. Evidence.—See notes under Art. 4619.

77. Judgments and orders appealable.—See notes under Art. 4644.

78. Assignments of error.—See notes under Art. 4644.

79. "Vacation" defined.—See notes under Art. 4664.

Art. 4644. Appeals allowed to courts of civil appeals.—Any party or parties to any civil suit wherein a temporary injunction may be granted, refused or dissolved, under any of the provisions of this title, in term time or in vacation, may appeal from the order or judgment granting, refusing or dissolving such injunction, to the court of civil appeals having jurisdiction of the case; but such appeal shall not have the effect to suspend the enforcement of the order appealed from, unless it shall be so ordered by the court or judge who enters the order; provided, the transcript in such case shall be filed with the clerk of the court of civil appeals not later than fifteen days after the entry of record of such order or judgment granting, refusing or dissolving such injunction. [Acts 1909, p. 354, sec. 2.]

See Naylor v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 475.

Nature of proceeding.—Where defendant in replevin showed that the property in controversy was levied on by a constable who refused to accept a sufficient replevy bond, and prayed that the constable be compelled to accept the bond and deliver the property to defendant, the proceeding resulting in granting the relief demanded could not be treated as one granting a temporary mandatory injunction, within this article and Art. 4646, but the proceeding must be treated as one for mandamus independent of the replevin action. Keasler Lumber Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 345.

Notice of application for an injunction.—This article did not contemplate changing the rule that an ex parte order for an injunction may be granted. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. of Oklahoma v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 662.

Judgments and orders appealable.—No appeal lies from the refusal of the district judge to grant an injunction in chambers. Gibson v. Templeton, 62 T. 555.

An appeal will not lie from an interlocutory order modifying and continuing in force a temporary injunction, where the record fails to show that the cause has been finally tried or disposed of. Medlin v. Seidemann (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 590.

This article does not authorize an appeal from an order overruling a motion to dissolve a temporary injunction. Walstein v. Nicholson, 47 C. A. 358, 105 S. W. 208; Jeff Chaison Town-Site Co. v. McFaddin, Wiess & Kyle Land Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716; Dodson v. Boger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1021; Bledsoe v. United Brothers of Friendship and Sisters of Mysterious Ten, 131 S. W. 256; Jaynes v. Burch, 151 S. W. 596; Simpson v. City of Nacogdoches, 152 S. W. 863; Gregory v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas, 154 S. W. 236.

Contra, see Hoskins v. Velasco Nat. Bank, 48 C. A. 246, 107 S. W. 606.

There is no appeal from an order refusing to grant an injunction. In this case the court holds that the writ granted was a temporary injunction, and of course, an appeal would lie upon it being dissolved. Caswell v. Fundenberger, 47 C. A. 456, 105 S. W. 1018.

The court of civil appeals has jurisdiction of an appeal from an order of a district court in vacation dissolving a temporary injunction restraining execution of judgment of county court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 52 C. A. 323, 114 S. W. 672.

It is only when a temporary injunction is granted or having been granted is dissolved that right of an appeal from the judge's order is given. City of Marshall v. Allen (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 851.

Parties against whom an injunction has been granted, by filing a motion to dissolve, which was overruled, did not lose their right to appeal from the order granting the injunction. Jeff Chaison Town-Site Co. v. McFaddin, Wless & Kyle L. Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

Acts 1907, c. 107, authorizes an appeal from an order granting a temporary restraining order. American Const. Co. v. Seelg (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 655.

A suit to enjoin officers from prosecuting plaintiffs for crime held a civil suit, so that an appeal by the officers lies from the judgment granting relief. McDonald v. Denton (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 823, affirmed Denton v. McDonald, 104 T. 206, 135 S. W. 1148, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 453.

An agreement for postponement of a hearing of application for an injunction held not to operate as a restraining order, so as to make subsequent proceedings nothing more than a motion to dissolve a restraining order, from which an appeal would not lie. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 868.

This article affords a speedy remedy by immediate appeal from such an order not previously allowed by law, irrespective of the final determination on the merits, and an appeal from a final judgment dissolving a preliminary injunction and dismissing the suit is not affected thereby, but is regulated by the statute regulating appeals generally. Hamner v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 951.

An order of a judge in vacation, requiring an irrigation company to furnish a sufficient amount of water to irrigate the crop of a person who had been adjudged entitled to such water, was not one granting a temporary injunction, but one granting a mandamus, and no appeal lay therefrom. Old River Rice Irrigation Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 494.

This article does not authorize an appeal from an order modifying a temporary injunction, and denying a motion to dissolve the same as modified. Powdrill v. Powdrill (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 272.

Since this article does not authorize an appeal from an order refusing to dissolve an injunction, nor limit the right to move to dissolve, defendant did not waive his right to appeal from a temporary injunction by filing a motion to dissolve, which was undisposed of when the appeal was taken. Young v. Dudley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

Under this article the court of civil appeals may review on appeal a vacation order refusing a preliminary injunction. State v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 826.

Under Art. 4643 and this article an order of a court, determining an appeal bond for an appeal from a justice's court sufficient and denying the dissolution of an injunction to restrain a sale under execution of the judgment of the justice, is not a final judgment, and no appeal therefrom may be taken. LeBaume v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 301.

Under this article the court of civil appeals will hear an appeal in an action by a company seeking to condemn land to compel the owner to permit it to inspect and survey the land, coupled with an application for temporary injunction. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1064.

An interlocutory order granting a temporary injunction is appealable. Ware v. Welch (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 263.

Jurisdiction to review an order denying a motion to dissolve or modify a temporary injunction is not given by this article. Weiborn v. Collier (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 655.

This article does not make an order dissolving a temporary injunction a final order, but merely gives a right of appeal from such order, which is an interlocutory one and not reviewable prior to the statute until final determination of the suit. McKenzie v. Withers (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 658.

An appeal from an order dissolving a temporary restraining order is properly dismissed where a prior appeal from an order refusing a temporary injunction involving the same issues is pending. Simpson v. City of Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 863.

An order dismissing a temporary order restraining execution, made merely on the pleadings, and without evidence as to the merits, is not appealable. McKenzie v. Withers (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 413.

Under this article a party may appeal from an order modifying a temporary injunction. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1149.

Necessity of objections or exceptions in trial court.—Where, in an action to enjoin the carrying out of a local option election, the question that the election was not held at the designated place cannot be first raised on appeal. Roper v. Scurlock, 29 C. A. 464, 69 S. W. 456.

In suit to enjoin opening highway, failure to allege variance between route as adopted and as ordered held to preclude urging objection on appeal. McCown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 850.

This article as amended by the act of 1907 contemplates that some action must be taken in the court below calling in question the correctness of the proceedings before the appellate court can revise its action. The errors assigned are such as may be waived where no objection has been urged in the court below, and no fundamental error of the trial is shown, therefore the appellate court has no power to revise the action of the lower court. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co., 55 C. A. 116, 118 S. W. 790.

Since a temporary mandatory injunction order may be made in chambers out of term, without notice to the adverse party, or hearing, an exception to the order granting such an injunction is not necessary to authorize an appeal therefrom. Young v. Dudley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

Objection that an injunction against a nuisance was too broad cannot be reviewed on appeal, where no steps were taken below to limit the scope of the decree, which conformed to the prayer for relief and the findings. Nations v. Harris (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 334.

Assignments of error.—While under the direct provisions of Art. 4643, as amended by this article, formal assignments of error are not necessary on appeal from an order granting an injunction, the assignments of error in the record may be considered in determining the objections to the order, but it is immaterial whether such assignments technically comply with the court rule. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

Notice of appeal.—Since a temporary mandatory injunction order may be made in chambers out of term, without notice to the adverse party, or hearing, a notice of appeal was not necessary to give a right to appeal from such an order. Young v. Dudley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

Matters included in transcript.—On appeal from the granting of an injunction at an ex parte hearing, it was error to include in the transcript defendant's answer and application for fixing the amount of the appeal bond, where they were not filed until the injunction was granted. Wynn v. R. E. Edmondson Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 310.

Filing transcript.—The petition with the fiat of the judge endorsed thereon, granting the temporary writ of injunction was filed July 11th. This constituted the "entry of record of such order" within the meaning of section 2 of the act of 1907, amending this article, and to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction the transcript must have been filed within 15 days from 11th day of July. Baumberger v. Allen, 101 T. 352, 107 S. W. 526, 527.

Under this article it was sufficient that, within 15 days from the filing with the district court of the petition with the judge's order indorsed thereon, a second transcript was filed in the court of civil appeals showing that the transcript was filed within 15 days after entry of the order. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

Under this article it was held that, though ordinarily the time of filing transcripts was not jurisdictional as shown by Art. 1608, in view of the fact that no appeal was theretofore allowed from such orders and from the nature of the order itself the time of filing transcripts was jurisdictional, and the failure to file could not be waived by the parties so as to give the appellate court jurisdiction. C. B. Livestock Co. v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 854.

Under this article the court can acquire no jurisdiction where the record is not filed in the appellate court within the time specified. Powdrill v. Powdrill (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 272.

Under this article and Arts. 4645, 4646, it is intended that the entire record be filed within 15 days, that the case may be disposed of with dispatch, so that the general statute relating to making and filing statements of fact, giving 30 days after adjournment therefor, does not apply, but, if the statement is not filed in the 15 days, relief can be had only under article 1382, providing for consideration of statements of fact not filed within the time prescribed by law, provided good ground is shown for such delay. Hicks v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 955.

An appeal from an order granting a temporary injunction cannot be considered, where the transcript was not filed in the court of civil appeals within 15 days from the entry of record. Jaynes v. Burch (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 596.

Where within 15 days after the entry of an order granting a temporary injunction a party files the transcript on appeal in the court of civil appeals and duly complies with the other requisites of appeal, such as giving bond, etc., the right of appeal becomes a fixed right and cannot be defeated by any effort he may make to have the injunction dissolved in the court below. Houston Electric Co. v. Glen Park Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 965.

Where the record on appeal from an order granting a temporary injunction was filed in the court on appeal within 15 days after entry of the order, the appeal would not be dismissed though the record was not filed until more than 15 days after the entry of an order of injunction and to show cause why it should not be perpetuated. City of Houston v. Richter (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 189.

Suspension.—When an injunction is dissolved by final judgment, and an appeal is prosecuted by giving a supersedeas bond, the injunction is continued in force, and the court will enforce obedience to its mandates until it reverses them. Williams v. Pouns, 48 T. 141; G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. F. W. & N. O. Ry. Co., 68 T. 98, 2 S. W. 199, 3 S. W. 564.

If the order granting an injunction limits its duration to the hearing of the cause in the district court, and on hearing the injunction is dissolved, the order of dissolution is not suspended by an appeal. Ft. Worth Ry. Co. v. Rosedale Ry. Co., 68 T. 163, 7 S. W. 381.

Where an injunction has been granted and dissolved, in the absence of an appeal bond, the injunction is not kept alive. Griffin v. State (Cr. App.) 87 S. W. 156.

A temporary injunction restraining a defendant from selling intoxicating liquors on premises is not suspended by appeal under this article, with supersedeas bond required by Arts. 2101, 2103. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 56 C. A. 162, 121 S. W. 213.

This article leaves it to the discretion of the court or judge to determine the operation of an appeal, but contemplates that suspension shall be pending the appeal, and he cannot set aside a suspensory order after appellant complies therewith by giving a supersedeas bond, and after the record is filed, giving the appellate court full jurisdiction. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 571.

Costs.—Where appellant included in the transcript pleadings which could not be considered, he was taxable with the costs of including same. Wynn v. R. E. Edmondson Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 310.

Art. 4645. Proceedings on appeal.—It shall not be necessary to brief such case in the court of civil appeals or supreme court, and the case may be heard in the said courts on the bill and answer, and such affidavits and evidence as may have been admitted by the judge granting, refusing or dissolving such injunction; provided, the appellant may file a brief in the court of civil appeals or supreme court upon the furnishing the appellee with a copy thereof not later than two days before the case is called for submission in such court, and the appellee shall have until the day the case is called for submission to answer such brief. [Id. sec. 3.]

Filing transcript.—See notes under Art. 4644.

Discretion of lower court.—The action of the court on a motion to dissolve a temporary injunction will not be disturbed, in the absence of abuse of discretion. Lone Star Lodge, No. 1935, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1180.

Where the trial court modified a temporary injunction at the request of defendants, such order cannot be disturbed on appeal because, at the time of the modification, defendants were in contempt and might have been denied any relief on that ground; the trial court not being bound to deny relief for that reason. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1149.

Consideration of pleadings and evidence.—This act authorizes the court of civil appeals and the supreme court to consider the answer and affidavits and evidence only when same constituted a part of the case before the judge at the time he made the order appealed from. When the hearing by the judge is ex parte, and the order is made on the allegations in the petition alone, the appellate court, in reviewing the action of the judge, should consider the petition alone. City of Paris v. Sturgeon, 50 C. A. 519, 110 S. W. 460.

In view of an express provision of the statute giving the right of appeal from an order dissolving a temporary injunction, held, that a document containing evidence as to which a motion to strike out and disregard was sustained below cannot be considered on such appeal. Daniels v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 569.

Where an application for a temporary injunction was denied solely on the ground that the bill showed no equities and no evidence was heard, the court on appeal must take the sworn bill as true and determine plaintiff's right therefrom. Middleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 637.

Proceedings on a motion to dissolve the injunction order appealed from, filed after the order was entered, held not to be considered on appeal. Young v. Dudley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

On an appeal from an order granting a preliminary injunction, held, that the appellate court would consider the entire record. Commissioners' Court of Floyd County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

Under this article a statement of facts or bill of exceptions need not be filed on appeal from an order denying an injunction, but the court of civil appeals must look to the answer and evidence as well as to the petition. Sutherland v. Cabiness (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 331.

The court on appeal in an injunction proceeding has no power to look to certificates of the clerks of the county and district courts, made part of the transcript, but which were not before the court below when the order for injunction was made. Baker v. Crosbyton Southplains R. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 569.

Recitals of a judgment below in action to enjoin a judgment held to show that a trial amendment to the petition, granted the day after dissolving the injunction, was considered on the issue, requiring similar consideration on appeal. Axtell v. Lopp (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 192.

In the determination of an appeal from an order granting a temporary injunction made on plaintiff's verified bill alone, defendant's answer thereafter filed cannot be considered. Houston Electric Co. v. Glen Park Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 965.

Burden of proof.—Since this article authorizes appellate courts to dispose of appeals from injunction orders on the pleadings, and such affidavits and evidence as may have been admitted, if it is doubtful from the transcript whether the trial court acted upon evidence, other than the pleadings, the burden of showing what evidence was acted on is upon the party claiming that evidence was introduced, other than as shown by the transcript. Young v. Dudley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

Questions reviewed.—Where the case is tried on its merits, exceptions to the sufficiency of the answer to authorize the court to dissolve a temporary injunction will not be considered. Jordan v. Chester (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 904.

The propriety of granting a temporary injunction need not be considered on appeal where there was no motion to dissolve it before final hearing. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 20 C. A. 111, 49 S. W. 160.

Dissolution of temporary injunction held not assignable as error after decree adverse to appellant and failure to file supersedeas bond. Brumby v. Boyd, 28 C. A. 164, 66 S. W. 874.

On defendant's appeal from a temporary injunction, facts stated in the application to the district court to have the amount of the appeal bond fixed, which related to plaintiff's right to the injunction, held to be considered. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

On appeal in an action by a property owner to enjoin county officers from condemning land and laying out a highway, the district court cannot review the amount of damages. Schlinke v. De Witt County (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 660.

Harmless error.—Complainant in a suit to enjoin the opening of a road for want of notice to him held not entitled to complain of a conclusion that the former commissioners' courts recognized the road as a second-class road, if there was evidence sustaining a conclusion that the road was in fact a second-class road. Smith v. Palo Pinto County (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1193.

Dismissal of appeal.—An appeal by plaintiffs in an action wherein a temporary injunction was dissolved and the court refused to permit the order of dissolution to recite the dismissal dismissed. Clevenger v. Cariker (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 177.

An appeal from the granting of a temporary injunction compelling appellant to furnish water to irrigate appellee's crop of rice will be dismissed; the subject-matter of the litigation having ceased to exist. Old River Rice Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 494.

It was no ground for dismissal of an appeal from a final judgment dissolving an injunction that it was in form an appeal from an order dissolving an injunction. Smith v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 426.

*will be reversed
may 24, 1911*

In taxpayers' action to enjoin performance of contract with city, where it appeared that, pending the action, it had been performed and payment in full made, appeal from order denying temporary injunction would be dismissed. Langham v. City of Beaumont (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 869.

Where a temporary injunction restraining the removal of personal property from plaintiff's land was dissolved, and the property was removed pending the appeal which did not stay the order dissolving the injunction, the appeal will be dismissed; the case being moot, and the only point left being the question of costs. Electric Park Co. v. San Antonio Baseball Ass'n (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1189.

Affirmance.—The court on appeal held authorized to affirm an order dissolving a temporary injunction, in view of the admissions on the argument that all acts sought to be restrained had been done. Liebovitz v. American Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1048.

— Grounds.—Affirmance of a judgment granting an injunction held proper on grounds stated, though the trial court gave other grounds for its action. Hillsman v. Cline (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 726.

Art. 4646. Case to have precedence on appeal.—Such case shall be advanced in the court of civil appeals or supreme court on motion of either party, and shall have priority over other cases pending in such courts. [Id. sec. 4.]

✓ Art. 4647. [2990] No injunction against a judgment, except, etc.—No injunction shall be granted to stay any judgment or proceedings at law, except so much of the recovery or cause of action as the complainant shall in his petition show himself equitably entitled to be relieved against, and so much as will cover the costs. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363. P. D. 3930.]

Injunction against judgment or execution.—An execution on an award of arbitrators, which had been made a judgment of court, will not be restrained, no fraud being alleged. Jones v. Frosh, 6 T. 202; Payne v. Metz, 14 T. 56.

An injunction will be refused, where the ground for the injunction existed before the judgment and was known to defendant, or might have been discovered by ordinary diligence on his part. Prewitt v. Perry, 6 T. 260; York's Adm'r v. Gregg's Adm'r, 9 T. 85; Gibson v. Moore, 22 T. 611; Crawford v. Wingfield, 25 T. 414; Harrison v. Vines, 46 T. 15; Overton v. Blum, 50 T. 417.

An injunction to restrain a judgment will be refused, when it appears that plaintiff therein is endeavoring to collect no more than was really due. Watrous v. Rodgers, 16 T. 410.

One who appeals from a judgment without giving supersedeas cannot enjoin its enforcement. Dunson v. Spradley (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 327.

Injunction restraining execution held properly refused. Anders v. Spalding (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 298.

In an action to enjoin the execution of a judgment, plaintiff, though not served with the summons, must show that he had a defense or other equity, or such relief will be denied. Foust v. Warren (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 404.

Injunction by an administrator to prevent sale on execution of interest of certain heirs in land belonging to an estate in course of administration held not to lie. Hahn v. P. J. Willis & Bro., 31 C. A. 643, 73 S. W. 1084.

Equitable title holders held not entitled to injunction restraining sale of land on execution directed against stranger to legal title. Brown v. Ikard, 33 C. A. 661, 77 S. W. 967.

The holder of the record title, having possession, held not entitled to restrain a sale thereof under an execution as the property of a third person. Magoffin v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 843.

A defendant held entitled to restrain the enforcement of a judgment against him, though he had taken no proceedings under Rev. St. 1899, art. 1357, for the correction of the judgment. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Skeeter Bros., 44 C. A. 105, 98 S. W. 1064.

On an application to perpetually enjoin an execution for costs, held, that an injunction would not issue, whether the judgment was void or not. Ward v. Powell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1188.

A defendant suing to vacate a default judgment in trespass to try title held to sufficiently show a defense justifying relief. Crosby v. Di Palma (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 321.

— Tender of amount due.—One who seeks to enjoin the collection of a judgment for causes which would entitle him to relief from paying part of the amount adjudged against him must pay off or tender payment of so much of the judgment as under the averments of the petition equity cannot relieve against. Smith v. Smith, 75 T. 410, 12 S. W. 678.

The collection of a judgment on a contract, only part of which has been performed, will not be enjoined, unless the reasonable value of the services performed be tendered. Jordan v. Chester (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 904.

In an application for an injunction to restrain the collection of a larger amount than was due on a judgment, it was not necessary to deposit the amount due in court in order to maintain the action. Hamburger v. Kosminsky (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 958.

Under this article one of several makers of a note who seeks to restrain a judgment on the note must tender the part of the debt which he admits to be due from him. Twitchell v. Askew (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1072.

Equity will not intervene at the instance of a judgment debtor to stay execution, unless he tenders payment of the amount admitted to be due. Shannon v. Hay (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 360.

✓ — Grounds for injunction in general.—Injunctions have been granted to restrain the sale of real estate under execution when it will cast a cloud upon the title. Huston v. Curl, 8 T. 239, 58 Am. Dec. 110; Clegg v. Varnell, 18 T. 294; Dunham v. Chatham, 21

T. 228, 73 Am. Dec. 228; Mitchell v. Marr, 26 T. 329; Smith v. Boquet, 27 T. 512; Kirk v. Navigation Co., 49 T. 213; Roe v. Dailey, 1 U. C. 347; Ryburn v. Getzendaner, 1 U. C. 349; Huggins v. White, 7 C. A. 563, 27 S. W. 1066; Rodriguez v. Buckley (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1123; Texas Brewing Co. v. Bisso, 50 C. A. 119, 109 S. W. 270.

An injunction to restrain the sale of real estate under a decree of court, at the suit of a person not a party to the proceeding, on the ground that he is the rightful owner of the land and said sale would result in unnecessary litigation and expense to petitioner, will be refused. Henderson v. Morrill, 12 T. 1; Cameron v. White, 3 T. 152; Carlin v. Hudson, 12 T. 202, 62 Am. Dec. 521.

An execution for costs in a suit, where it is admitted that a part of the judgment is just, will not be restrained. Criswell v. Bledsoe, 22 T. 656.

An injunction to restrain a sale under execution, on the ground that the sheriff had levied on valuable, improved city lots for a comparatively insignificant debt, when he well knew that petitioner had ample personal property and unimproved land in the county to satisfy the execution, will be refused, it appearing that the petitioner had not pointed out property to the sheriff and had failed to designate in his petition what or where his other property, subject to execution, was situated. Smith v. Frederick, 32 T. 256.

An injunction will lie to restrain execution when waived as to the principal. Parker v. Nations, 33 T. 210; Jenkins v. McNeese, 34 T. 189.

An injunction will lie to restrain execution when plaintiff is dead. Dailey v. Wynn, 33 T. 614.

When a defendant, through accident or mistake, and without default in the proper degree of watchfulness and care required by careful men in their own cases of equal importance, failed to present his defense fully, the court will, in its discretion, grant relief by injunction to stay proceedings under the judgment and re-examine the case. Taylor v. Fore, 42 T. 256; Overton v. Blum, 50 T. 417.

A party cannot restrain by injunction the execution of judgment on the ground that it is unjust, unless he shows that he had a meritorious defense, and had used diligence to present it, and was prevented by the fraud, accident, or acts of the opposite party, wholly unaffected by any fault or negligence of his own. Jordan v. Corley, 42 T. 284; Crawford v. Wingfield, 25 T. 414; Nevins v. McKee, 61 T. 412; Conteras v. Haynes, 61 T. 104; Morris v. Edwards, 62 T. 205; Ratto v. Levy, 63 T. 278; Clegg v. Darragh, 63 T. 357; Harn v. Phelps, 65 T. 592; Ferguson v. Herring, 49 T. 126; Harrison v. Crumb, 1 App. C. C. § 991; Bullard v. White, 2 App. C. C. § 286; Byars v. Justin, 2 App. C. C. § 686.

A purchaser of a landlord's title under execution may stay proceedings by an insolvent landlord under a judgment in forcible entry and detainer proceedings brought against the tenant, until the question of title can be determined. Texas Land Co. v. Turman, 53 T. 619.

Injunctions have been granted to restrain an execution against one not a party to the suit. Jeffus v. Allen, 56 T. 196.

An injunction will be granted to restrain the sale, under execution against the husband, of land the separate property of the wife, conveyed to her by deed apparently vesting title in the marital community. Roe v. Dailey, 1 U. C. 247, citing Huston v. Curl, 8 T. 239, 58 Am. Dec. 110; Mitchell v. Marr, 26 T. 320; Smith v. Boquet, 27 T. 512; Dunham v. Chatham, 21 T. 244, 73 Am. Dec. 228; Kirk v. Navigation Co., 49 T. 213; Ryburn v. Getzendaner, 1 U. C. 349.

An injunction will not be granted on the ground that the law prohibits an appeal by reason of the amount in controversy. It must also be shown that the judgment is unjust. Railway Co. v. Henderson, 83 T. 70, 18 S. W. 432.

Injunction is the proper proceeding to restrain an execution sale at the suit of a prior mortgagee, whose mortgage was wrongfully marked "satisfied" by a person without authority from him, and who took a subsequent mortgage on the faith of a contract with the mortgagors that the prior mortgage should remain in force until the entire debt was satisfied. Ivory v. Kempner, 21 S. W. 1006, 2 C. A. 474.

An injunction will not be granted to correct errors in a judgment which might have been corrected by legal remedies. Reast v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1003.

Defects in execution held mere irregularities not authorizing injunction of levy. Dunson v. Spradley (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 327.

One whose goods were wrongfully taken under execution held entitled to an injunction against the sale. Sumner v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 825.

Where notes given in consideration of services to be performed were put in judgment before performance, and afterwards the payee neglected to perform, the enforcement of the judgment should be enjoined. Jordan v. Chester (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 904.

Where execution on a judgment for witness fees has not been issued to the county in which judgment was rendered, levy of execution to another county will be enjoined. Norwood v. Orient Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 188.

Equity held to have jurisdiction on the ground of a mistake of fact to relieve against a judgment entered on a forged agreement, though the adverse parties were innocent. Lindsley v. Sparks, 20 C. A. 56, 48 S. W. 204.

A person against whom two judgments had been rendered for the same obligation held not entitled to enjoin the collection of either judgment, in the absence of fraud. Mason v. House, 20 C. A. 500, 49 S. W. 911.

One is not entitled to have sale under execution enjoined because a portion of the property levied on belonged to deceased defendant. Corder v. Steiner (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 277.

Plaintiff held entitled to an injunction restraining defendant from collecting more than the excess of her judgment against it over its judgment against her. Kelly Furniture, Carpet & Hardware Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 794.

Fraud on the part of a judgment plaintiff in obtaining his judgment need not be shown to authorize the judgment debtor to enjoin its collection. Dashner v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 151, 68 S. W. 307.

Agreement relieving defendants from liability on judgment to be rendered held not to lay a basis for injunction until actual levy of execution. Crook v. Lipscomb, 30 C. A. 567, 70 S. W. 993.

Even in cases of direct attack, a plaintiff seeking the interposition of the court's equitable powers by injunction to stay proceedings under an alleged void judgment must allege and show either that the judgment on its face or the record in the cause otherwise affirmatively shows a want of jurisdiction, or else that some equity against the judgment or defense to the cause of action upon which it is predicated exists. Foust v. Warren (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 406.

A judgment creditor's insolvency will entitle the judgment debtor to enjoin the collection of the judgment, so that a counterclaim which he has may be established as a credit against it. Norton v. Wochler, 31 C. A. 522, 72 S. W. 1025.

One held not entitled to have a judgment against him enjoined, because he and his attorney could not be present at the trial, and the other party refused to postpone. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Higbee, 32 C. A. 502, 74 S. W. 955.

Judgment for license tax held not void, so that relief by injunction against execution could not be had. Francis Bros. v. Robinson, 40 C. A. 328, 89 S. W. 803.

A wife owning a homestead interest in land held entitled to have it protected by injunction from a writ of possession or execution in a suit against her husband. Taylor v. Ward (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 465.

Purchaser of land held not entitled to enjoin execution of judgment for sale of land, obtained by vendor in suit on purchase money notes, by merely showing that suit had been brought against himself and the vendor by a person claiming title to the land. Broocks v. Lee, 46 C. A. 372, 102 S. W. 777.

In a suit by a wife in which her husband joined to enjoin a sale under an execution against the husband of real estate claimed by her, the court held authorized to grant the injunction. Texas Brewing Co. v. Bisso, 50 C. A. 119, 109 S. W. 270.

An injunction held to lie to prevent a cloud on title by a sale of a married woman's land under an execution against the husband. Barr v. Simpson, 54 C. A. 105, 117 S. W. 1041.

Defendant in execution held entitled to enjoin plaintiff in execution from further enforcing execution, where the latter had wrongfully recovered from a defaulting bidder the difference between his bid and the amount received on a resale, which, under the statute, belonged to defendant in execution. Shanley v. York, 54 C. A. 214, 118 S. W. 146.

Where the amount of an execution as stated in the advertisement of sale exceeds the judgment by only 20 cents, the difference, on an application for injunction against the sale, should be disregarded as too trivial to be considered. Lee v. Broocks, 54 C. A. 220, 118 S. W. 164.

The failure of the advertisement of sale to state that the execution provided for collection of interest affords no ground for injunction. Id.

Where a judgment in a justice court is for more than $20, and is appealed and tried de novo in the county court, the district court will not enjoin the judgment for errors committed by the justice. New York Chemical Co. v. Spell Bros., 56 C. A. 315, 120 S. W. 579.

An injunction sued out by a wife to prevent the sale of property on an execution against her husband may be perpetuated on a showing that she owns the property. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

To justify the issuance of an injunction by the district judge to enjoin a judgment, the judgment must be void, and the invalidity must be shown on its face or must appear affirmatively from the record. Moore v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 234.

Injunction to restrain collection of an erroneous judgment held not a proper proceeding to set it aside. Cariker v. Dill (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 843.

The enforcement of a judgment obtained against the owner of a lot in garnishment would be enjoined where a mechanic's lien was enforced for the same debt. Waples-Painter Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1027.

A person held not entitled to equitable relief against a default judgment on the ground that he was misinformed by his attorney. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 294.

The district court has no power to enjoin the enforcement of a justice's judgment in a nonappealable case, unless it was obtained by fraud, accident, or mistake. Flow v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1081.

A default judgment based on the allegation that defendant was a corporation when in fact it was a copartnership, none of its members being parties, and service having been had on a certain person as agent of the alleged corporation, did not bind the partnership and enforcement of the judgment was properly enjoined on the theory that it was a nullity. Spaulding Mfg. Co. v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1122.

A surety on the replevin bond of defendant in sequestration proceedings, where the repleved chattels had been returned to the plaintiff, may enjoin a judgment, not only for the chattels, but for the withholding, though the return was not urged as a defense by the defendant. Axtell v. Lopp (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 192.

The issuance of an order of sale on execution prior to the valid entry of the judgment being unauthorized, an injunction will issue against a sale of the property. Hubbart v. Willis State Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 458.

That persons have sold property and conveyed it by warranty deed authorizes them to apply for injunction to prevent its unlawful sale on execution as their property. S. K. McCall Co. v. Page (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 655.

Justice's Judgment.—An injunction to restrain the collection of a judgment rendered in a justice's court, on the ground that the debt upon which the judgment was rendered was a portion of a debt due by petitioner for a sum exceeding the jurisdiction of the court, and which had been divided for the sole purpose of bringing two suits on the claim in the justice court, will be denied, it not appearing that petitioner was deprived of a right or remedy. Pryor v. Emerson, 22 T. 162.

An injunction to restrain execution of a judgment of a justice of the peace, on the ground that it was rendered on a note which was not due when the suit was commenced and before the expiration of five days after service of citation, will be refused. McNeill v. Hallmark, 28 T. 157.

An injunction will be granted to stay execution of a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace against a garnishee on his indebtedness on a note not due. Kapp v. Teel, 33 T. 811.

An injunction to restrain a justice of the peace from adjudicating a case arising under an unconstitutional statute will be refused. Jones v. Stallworth, 55 T. 138.

Where the right of appeal is denied by statute, as where the amount in controversy is less than $20 in the justice's court, an injunction will not be granted to restrain the execution of the judgment. Odum v. McMahan, 67 T. 292, 3 S. W. 286.

A county court may by injunction restrain a proceeding in a justice's court to determine priority of attachments issued from each court. Moody v. McRimmon, 27 S. W. 780, 7 C. A. 582.

The district court may enjoin the enforcement of a judgment of a justice of the peace whatever the amount may be. Railway Co. v. Blankenbeckler, 13 C. A. 249, 35 S. W. 331.

Defendant to a default in justice court held not entitled to relief by injunction against the judgment because of an alleged defective service of the summons. Sherman Steam Laundry Co. v. Carter, 24 C. A. 533, 60 S. W. 328.

Defendant was entitled to an injunction restraining enforcement of a judgment rendered by a justice after granting a new trial without notice. Smith v. Carroll, 28 C. A. 330, 66 S. W. 863.

A nonresident held entitled to restrain enforcement of a justice's judgment without showing a valid defense. August Kern Barber Supply Co. v. Freeze, 96 T. 513, 74 S. W. 303.

Where a justice of the peace set aside a judgment by default the day after it was rendered and granted a new trial held, that the judgment rendered therein was not void, and injunction to restrain enforcement would not lie. Cohen v. Moore (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 422.

A judgment of a justice of the peace setting aside a judgment of dismissal rendered after the term of court in which the judgment of dismissal was rendered held of no validity and properly enjoined. Rivers v. Campbell, 51 C. A. 103, 111 S. W. 190.

Where there was evidence both ways on the plea of privilege interposed by defendant in justice's court, and the justice in overruling the plea merely committed an error of law, the judgment rendered by him could not be enjoined. Coca Cola Co. v. Allison, 52 C. A. 54, 113 S. W. 308.

Where a plea of privilege to be sued in another county is ignored by the justice of the peace or improperly overruled, the district court may enjoin the execution of the judgment. Id.

The district judge has power to enjoin prosecution of cases in justice court wherein it is alleged in the petition that the suits were instituted with the purpose of vexing, harassing and needlessly embarrassing plaintiff and in the injunction suit to determine the matters involved in suits in justice court. Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. v. MacMaster, 51 C. A. 527, 113 S. W. 339.

Facts which must be shown by one to entitle him to an injunction restraining proceedings under a judgment of a justice, stated. Jones v. Curtis, 56 C. A. 181, 120 S. W. 530.

The enforcement of a judgment of a justice of the peace held not to be enjoined; the justice having jurisdiction of the subject-matter and parties, and the judgment being merely erroneous. Hudson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 486.

Where a judgment was valid on its face, error in disregarding defendant's plea of privilege in an action in a justice's court cannot be remedied by injunction. Lyons Bros. Co. v. Corley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 603.

Where appellant perfects an appeal from a judgment of a justice's court, and thereby vacates the judgment, a dismissal of the appeal by the county court does not reinstate the judgment, and an injunction lies to restrain execution thereon. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McKee Bros. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 658.

A judgment of a justice of the peace fixing a different rate than that fixed by the railroad commission held not void so as to authorize an injunction to restrain collection thereof. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 380.

The district court has no power to enjoin enforcement of a justice's judgment in a nonappealable case, unless it was obtained by fraud, accident, or mistake. Flow v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1081.

The privilege to be sued before a justice in a given district is a matter of defense and does not affect the validity of a judgment rendered, and hence enforcement of such judgment will not be restrained. Pye v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1086.

— Satisfied judgment.—An injunction will be granted to restrain an execution upon a judgment which has been paid. Dickenson v. McDermontt, 13 T. 248; Clow v. Merritt, 15 T. 134; Love v. Powell, 67 T. 15, 2 S. W. 456.

The district court of one county has jurisdiction to restrain enforcement of a judgment of a justice court of another county, where it is shown that the judgment has been satisfied. Osborne & Co. v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 73.

— Dormant judgment.—An injunction will be granted to stay execution upon a dormant judgment. North v. Swing, 24 T. 193; Jordan v. Corley, 42 T. 284. But in such a case the judgment may be revived on plea in reconvention. Oldham v. Erhart, 18 T. 147; Trevino v. Stedman, 48 T. 561.

When an injunction is issued to restrain the collection of a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace on the ground of fraud, and because the judgment was dormant, the court has power to inquire whether the sum for which the judgment was rendered is still due, and if so to render a judgment against the plaintiff in the injunction suit for the amount. In such a proceeding, when it is shown that the judgment has not been paid, the injunction should be dissolved. The only ground for not issuing execution on a dormant judgment being the legal presumption of its payment, when this presumption ceases, to perpetuate the injunction would be in fact to violate the rule which denies the right, unless irreparable injury would result from its being refused. Seymour v. Hill, 67 T. 385, 3

S. W. 313, citing Watson v. Newsham, 17 T. 437, and North v. Swing, 24 T. 193, which are distinguished.

While execution on a dormant judgment is improper, it should not be permanently enjoined, where it appears that the judgment has not been discharged, and may be revived. Spiller v. Hollinger (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 338.

✓ Void judgments.—An injunction will be granted to enjoin a judgment rendered by one not in fact a judge (Walker v. McMaster, 48 T. 213), or rendered without service of process (Hamblin v. Knight, 81 T. 351, 16 S. W. 1082, 26 Am. St. Rep. 818; Edrington v. Alsbrooks, 21 T. 186. See S. W. Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Howard, 22 S. W. 524, 3 C. A. 335; Cook v. Railway Co., 22 S. W. 59, 3 C. A. 145; Stapleton v. Wilcox, 21 S. W. 977, 2 C. A. 542; Railway Co. v. Rawlins, 80 T. 579, 16 S. W. 430).

✓ An injunction will be granted to restrain the execution of a judgment void for want of jurisdiction over a defendant in the suit. Wofford v. Booker, 10 C. A. 171, 30 S. W. 67; Dunlap v. Sutherland, 63 T. 38; Freeman v. Hawley, 77 T. 498, 14 S. W. 364, 19 Am. St. Rep. 769; Williams v. Warren, 82 T. 322, 18 S. W. 560; Chambers v. Hodges, 23 T. 110; Cooke v. Burnham, 32 T. 129; Smith v. Deweese, 41 T. 595; Glass v. Smith, 66 T. 548, 2 S. W. 195.

An injunction will not be granted to restrain the sale of personal property under an execution on a void judgment. Geers v. Scott (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 587.

Enforcement of judgment will not be enjoined for disqualification of judge. Dunson v. Spradley (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 327.

✓ Where a plea of privilege to be sued in the county of one's residence, when properly entered and established, is ignored or improperly overruled by a justice, the execution of the judgment rendered by the justice may be enjoined as void for want of jurisdiction. Jennings v. Shiner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 276.

Enforcement of void judgment will be enjoined. Harrison v. Lokey, 26 C. A. 404, 63 S. W. 1030.

A judgment, void for want of jurisdiction, may be enjoined. Dashner v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 151, 68 S. W. 307.

An injunction lies to restrain the execution of a void judgment where the invalidity appears affirmatively from the record. Ketelsen & Degetau v. Pratt Bros. & Seay (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1172.

A statutory judgment rendered against a married woman on her replevy bond held a nullity, and may be directly attacked in a suit to vacate the same and enjoin the execution thereof. Lane v. Moon (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 211.

Where neither the justice's court nor the county court to which the case was appealed acquired jurisdiction of complainants in a suit against them, the judgment of the county court against them will be enjoined. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 424.

To justify the issuance of an injunction by the district judge to enjoin a judgment, the judgment must be void, and the invalidity must be shown on its face or must appear affirmatively from the record. Moore v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 234.

✓ The district court may enjoin the collection of a void judgment rendered by a justice of the peace, but cannot do so for mere error. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 380.

A default judgment against a partnership on allegation that it was a corporation and service having been had on a certain person as agent of the alleged corporation held void and its enforcement subject to injunction. Spaulding Mfg. Co. v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1122.

Where plaintiff's homestead was sought to be subjected to the payment of a void justice's judgment against her, she was entitled to an injunction to restrain the sale of the homestead, but not to have the judgment declared void. Rainwater v. Gwaltney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1191.

— Exempt property.—Injunctions have been granted to restrain executions in favor of several plaintiffs levied upon exempt property. Clegg v. Varnell, 18 T. 294.

Injunction granted to restrain sale of exempt property. Rodriguez v. Buckley (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1123; Dearborn v. Phillips, 21 T. 449; Nichols v. Claiborne, 39 T. 363; Samuelson v. Bridges, 25 S. W. 636, 6 C. A. 425; Alexander v. Holt, 59 T. 205; Stein v. Frieberg, 64 T. 271.

Where a sheriff seized exempt property under an execution, sale by him may be enjoined, even though the property has been taken from the sheriff on a delivery bond; the giving of the bond being an additional ground for the injunction. Peevehouse v. Smith (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1196.

Where a sheriff seized exempt property under an execution, an injunction will issue to prevent its sale by him, even though the property has been taken from the sheriff on a delivery bond; the giving of the bond being only an additional ground for enjoining the sale. Id.

— Judgment record lost.—An injunction will be granted to restrain an execution when the record of the judgment has been lost. Cyrus v. Hicks, 20 T. 483.

— Direct or collateral attack.—An attack on a judgment by means of injunction is direct, and not collateral. Dashner v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 151, 68 S. W. 307.

A cross-bill in a suit to enjoin defendant from entering on land claimed by plaintiff by virtue of a decree held a direct attack on the decree. Clevenger v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1062.

A suit by a judgment debtor to vacate the judgment and to enjoin the execution of the same on the ground of its invalidity is a direct attack. Lane v. Moon (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 211.

A suit to enjoin the further enforcement of an execution, on the ground that the execution plaintiff had recovered sufficient from a defaulting bidder to satisfy his judgment which the execution defendant should have recovered, held not a collateral attack on the judgment, in the action against the bidder. Shanley v. York, 54 C. A. 214, 118 S. W. 146.

A suit to enjoin the enforcement of certain judgments foreclosing a city's alleged tax lien on certain property held a direct attack thereon. McMickle v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 74.

— Inadequacy of remedy at law.—See notes under Art. 4643.

Art. 4648. [2991] Injunction to stay execution within twelve months, unless, etc.—No injunction to stay an execution upon any valid and subsisting judgment shall be granted after the expiration of one year from the rendition of such judgment, unless it be made to appear that an application for such injunction has been delayed in consequence of the fraud or false promises of the plaintiff in the judgment, practiced or made at the time of, or after rendition of, such judgment, or unless for some equitable matter or defense arising after the rendition of such judgment. If it be made to appear that the applicant was absent from the state at the time such judgment was rendered, and was unable to apply for such writ within the time aforesaid, such injunction may be granted at any time within two years from the date of the rendition of the judgment. [Id. P. D. 3931.]

Application in general.—When a judgment is void, its enforcement may be enjoined at any time. Cooke v. Burnham, 32 T. 129; Fox v. Woods, 34 T. 220; McGar v. Nixon, 36 T. 289; Thompson v. Bohannon, 38 T. 241. See Cook v. Baldrige, 39 T. 250; Nichols v. Snow, 42 T. 72; Miller v. Clements, 54 T. 351; Hayes v. Bass, 1 App. C. C. § 16. The limitation does not apply when the injunction is asked for on account of matter arising subsequent to the judgment. Easley v. Bledsoe, 59 T. 488; Clegg v. Varnell, 18 T. 294; Harrison v. Crumb, 1 App. C. C. § 993.

An injunction may be granted within twelve months after the affirmation of a judgment on appeal, although applied for more than that time after the rendition of the judgment in the district court. Wills Point Bank v. Bates, 76 T. 329, 13 S. W. 309; Williams v. Haynes, 77 T. 283, 13 S. W. 1029, 19 Am. St. Rep. 752.

This article does not apply to an injunction to protect the homestead against invasion under a judgment for the recovery of the land in which the wife was not a party. Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019. Nor to a suit to reform a judgment. Kempner v. Jordan, 26 S. W. 870, 7 C. A. 275. Nor to a suit brought by one not a party to the judgment. Kempner v. Ivory (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 538. See Lumpkin v. Williams, 1 C. A. 214, 21 S. W. 967; Williams v. Lumpkin, 26 S. W. 493, 86 T. 641.

See, for facts held to be insufficient to bring the plaintiff in an application for injunction within the exception of the above article of the statute, McCray v. Freeman, 17 C. A. 268, 43 S. W. 37.

Where defendant in an erroneous judgment learned of the judgment during the term at which it was rendered, but did not apply to the court for relief during such term, he could not afterwards enjoin its execution. Rowlett v. Williamson, 18 C. A. 28, 44 S. W. 624.

This article has no application to an action brought upon equitable grounds to vacate a judgment and enjoin its execution, but the period of time in which such action may be brought is determined by Art. 5690. Lane v. Moon (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 214.

The claim that the execution could not be enjoined because it was issued more than one year after rendition of judgment is untenable, where the injunction is sought "for some equitable matter or defense arising after the rendition of such judgment." Griffith v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 757.

This article only applies to matters affecting rendition of the judgment and does not apply to matters that subsequently arise, and would not bar an injunction staying an execution on the ground that the judgment creditor, who caused the issuance of the execution, had ceased to be the owner of the judgment. Kruegel v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 216.

Under this article a judgment debtor's right to enjoin the execution of the judgment to enable him to set off claims acquired since the rendition of the judgment was not barred. Trammell v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 429.

Agreement to stay execution.—An agreement to stay execution in a case does not take it out of the statute. Pillow v. Thompson, 20 T. 206.

That a surety on a replevin bond in reliance on false statements of the defendant principal, who, after the disposal of the action, conspired with the plaintiff to defraud the surety, that he would settle the judgment against which the surety had a defense, and that it would be all right, delayed injunction proceedings for more than a year, will not, despite this article, preclude him from maintaining an injunction. Axtell v. Lopp (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 192.

Art. 4649. [2992] Injunctions granted on sworn petition.—No writ of injunction shall be granted, unless the applicant therefor shall present his petition to the judge, verified by his affidavit taken before some officer authorized to administer oaths, and containing a plain and intelligible statement of the grounds for such relief. [P. D. 3929.]

See Scales v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 205; Alamo Club v. State, 147 S. W. 639.

Petition in general.—A petition to restrain collection of a tax held not to state that the board of equalization did not approve the assessment. Clawson Lumber Co. v. Jones, 20 C. A. 208, 49 S. W. 909.

Cross-bill to action to restrain contractor from interfering with certain premises, alleging lien for improvements which he had assigned, states no cause of action. Tian v. Lloyd, 21 C. A. 433, 52 S. W. 932.

Where the statute of limitations is pleaded by plaintiff, in an action against a city to enjoin it from interfering with a lot, described as bounded by certain streets, and the city disclaims any intention to interfere with any portion of the lot other than the designated streets, it is error to hold that the plea applies to a cross action by the city to enjoin plaintiff from interfering with the opening of the streets. City of San Antonio v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 97.

Petition to enjoin execution sale alleging judgment to be void on certain grounds held to admit its validity in other respects. Loan & Deposit Co. of America v. Campbell, 27 C. A. 52, 65 S. W. 65.

Certain pleadings construed in an action by a surviving wife and children to restrain a sale of community property under an execution against her after her remarriage, and held to raise the questions as to whether such sale could then be made, and whether, after her death pending the action, her estate, or that of her deceased husband, or the community estate, were represented. Wingfield v. Hackney, 95 T. 490, 68 S. W. 262.

Petition to enjoin judgment held to show good defense to original cause of action. Dashner v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 151, 68 S. W. 307.

In a suit to restrain the erection of a building of combustible materials, allegations in the answer held properly stricken out. Chimine v. Baker, 32 C. A. 520, 75 S. W. 330.

In proceedings to enjoin operation of a ferry, the question of plaintiff's want of consent held properly in issue by the pleadings. Parsons v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 120.

Where complainant prayed for an injunction, to which he was not entitled, his petition was properly dismissed, on the dissolution of the temporary injunction. Magoffin v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 843.

In a suit to enjoin the collection of taxes on timber standing on county school lands, on the ground that it was exempt from taxation, allegations of the petition held to show that the title to the timber was vested in plaintiff. Montgomery v. Peach River Lumber Co., 54 C. A. 143, 117 S. W. 1061.

In an action to restrain the enforcement of a default judgment, on the ground of fraud in procuring the same, it is proper to plead all the facts in order to show fully the equities sought. Dalhart Real Estate Agency v. Le Master (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 860.

Refusal of a judge in chambers to sustain special exceptions to the petition for an injunction held not error. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 868.

In a suit to enjoin the Railroad Commission from enforcing rates, certain evidence held admissible under the allegations of the petition. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737, judgment reversed Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 105 T. 101, 145 S. W. 573.

In an action to enjoin a railway company from constructing a fence between its right of way and plaintiff's lot, an exception to an allegation in the petition that the fence was apt to injure plaintiff's existing and contemplated lines of business was properly overruled. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1068.

Averments that a judgment of a justice of the peace was void, and that the justice had no jurisdiction over the subject-matter or the person of plaintiff suing to restrain enforcement of the judgment, are mere legal conclusions. Pye v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1086.

In an action to enjoin a justice's judgment on the ground of a previous judgment of nonsuit, an allegation that in the first action the justice stated that he would be compelled to render judgment for defendant is not equivalent to an allegation that judgment had been announced so that no nonsuit could be taken. Id.

Requisites of petition.—A petition to enjoin the collection of a tax because of the unlawful and excessive assessment should show that the petitioner had used every mode provided by the law for his relief, and should allege readiness to pay the tax admitted to be due. Rio Grande R. Co. v. Scanlan, 44 T. 649.

The petition must state all the material and essential elements entitling the party to relief, and negating every reasonable inference arising upon the facts so stated, that the party might not, under other pertinent supposable facts, be entitled to relief. Gillis v. Rosenheimer, 64 T. 246; Moody v. Cox, 54 T. 492; Martin v. Sykes, 25 T. Sup. 197; Carter v. Griffin, 32 T. 212; Smith v. Frederick, 32 T. 256; Harrison v. Crumb, 1 App. C. C. § 992; Cameron v. White, 3 T. 152; Henderson v. Morrill, 12 T. 1; Carlin v. Hudson, 12 T. 203, 62 Am. Dec. 521; Ferguson v. Herring, 49 T. 130; Whitman v. Willis, 51 T. 421; Spencer v. Rosenthal, 58 T. 41; Purinton v. Davis, 66 T. 456, 1 S. W. 343; Braden v. Gose, 57 T. 37; Wheeler v. Gray, 23 S. W. 821, 5 C. A. 12.

A party seeking to enjoin a public officer as to his official acts must show his interest in the subject-matter and that he will be injured by the acts which he seeks to restrain. Caruthers v. Harnett, 67 T. 127, 2 S. W. 523; Jung v. Neraz, 71 T. 396, 9 S. W. 344.

A petition must state the facts showing the threatened injury. Land & Cattle Co. v. Board, 80 T. 489, 16 S. W. 312.

In a petition for an injunction against an execution on the ground that the judgment under which it issued had been rendered in violation of an agreement between counsel for the parties, it should be alleged that the attorneys had authority to make the agreement. Anderson v. Oldham, 82 T. 223, 18 S. W. 557.

The rule that he who seeks relief in equity from effects of a judgment rendered against him on personal service must show that he was not guilty of culpable neglect in not making his defense to the suit is simple and easily understood, but its application is often attended with difficulty. The facts in this case reviewed, and held to show a case entitling appellant to equitable relief. Lumpkin v. Williams, 1 C. A. 214, 21 S. W. 967.

As to allegations necessary to enable one to enjoin a sale of land under an execution to which he was not a party, see Cook v. Tex. & P. Ry. Co., 22 S. W. 59, 3 C. A. 145.

Petition to restrain sheriff from levying on bank stock in which plaintiff has an equity must state nature of his interest. Davis v. Beall, 21 C. A. 133, 50 S. W. 1086.

The rule of pleading that statements of a party are to be taken most strongly against him held reinforced in injunction suits by the requirement that the essential elements entitling plaintiff to relief shall be certain. City of Paris v. Sturgeon, 50 C. A. 519, 110 S. W. 459.

A petition in a suit to enjoin an execution on a justice's judgment held required to set out the evidence in support of the plea of privilege interposed in justice's court and overruled by the justice. Coca Cola Co. v. Allison, 52 C. A. 54, 113 S. W. 308.

Requisites of petition by resident citizen for an injunction restraining the commissioners' court from opening the ballot boxes and counting the votes cast at a local option election defined. Clarey v. Hurst (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 840.

In a suit for an injunction, the material facts calling for relief must be alleged with sufficient certainty to negative every other reasonable inference therefrom. Schlinke v. De Witt County (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 660.

An application for an injunction must allege the facts with directness, certainty, and particularity. Shannon v. Hay (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 360.

The allegations of a petition for injunction should both aver and negative all facts upon which the right to the injunction depends. Weaver v. Emison (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 923.

The petition, in an action to restrain city officers from putting into effect ordinances for the paving of certain streets and from collecting assessments therefor, should have alleged the sums sought to be collected, in order that the amount of the bond might be fixed under Art. 4650, providing that, when an injunction is applied for to restrain the execution of a money judgment or the collection of a debt, the bond shall be fixed in double the amount of the judgment or debt. Cole v. Forto (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 350.

— Verification.—The pleadings relating to restraining process or orders must be verified. Wright v. Wright, 3 T. 168.

A petition for temporary injunction sought during the pendency of a suit and prior to final trial must be sworn to. Johnson v. Daniel, 25 C. A. 587, 63 S. W. 1033.

A petition for an injunction, signed by plaintiff, to which the jurat of a proper officer certifying that it was subscribed and sworn to before him was attached, held sufficiently verified. Chancey v. Allison, 48 C. A. 441, 107 S. W. 605.

An affidavit to a petition for an injunction held sufficient. Paine v. Carpenter, 51 C. A. 191, 111 S. W. 430.

To entitle complainant to an injunction restraining enforcement of a judgment pending appeal from an order dissolving an injunction restraining execution of the judgment, complainant was bound to file a sworn petition alleging that the appeal was based on a supersedeas bond. Lee v. Broocks, 51 C. A. 344, 111 S. W. 778.

Where the only grounds relied on for temporary injunction were stated in an unsworn petition, a copy of which was made an exhibit to the petition for injunction and the affidavit did not pretend to state that the facts contained in the petition were true, it was improper to grant the injunction in the face of this statute requiring application for injunction to be sworn to. Lee v. Broocks, 54 C. A. 220, 118 S. W. 165, 166.

Verification to an affidavit to a petition for a preliminary injunction held insufficient. Moss v. Whitson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1034.

Under this article a petition for an injunction, verified by one of the attorneys of the petitioner, who states that the facts alleged are within his knowledge and true, on information received from another, and that he believes the same to be true, is not sufficiently verified. Clarey v. Hurst (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 840.

Under this article a temporary injunction should not be granted where the affidavit of verification is made on knowledge, information, or belief with nothing to show what statements are made on knowledge, and which on information or belief, since affidavits should be so direct and unequivocal that an indictment for perjury will lie if the oath is falsely made. Smith v. Banks (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 449.

Where none of the allegations of a petition for a temporary injunction were on information and belief, supporting affidavit that the allegations as to facts were true, that the allegations based upon knowledge and belief were true to the best of affiant's knowledge and belief was sufficient. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 337.

Sufficiency of petition.—A petition for an injunction to prevent the collection of a state tax, which discloses no individual damage about to be suffered from the sale sought to be enjoined, except that the sale would cast a cloud on the title of the plaintiff, is not sufficient to authorize the injunction. Red v. Johnson, 53 T. 284. But see Galveston Gas Co. v. County of Galveston, 54 T. 287.

A petition for injunction to restrain the sale of land for taxes assessed under the act of August 21, 1876, and which taxes were alleged to be excessive, is not sufficient to authorize the writ, if the petition shows no excuse for the failure of the plaintiff to take proper steps to refer, at the proper time, the valuation complained of to the board of equalization. H. & T. C. R. Co. v. County of Presidio, 53 T. 518.

Allegations of a telegraph company held sufficient to authorize an injunction to restrain the execution of a judgment against its property, the judgment having been obtained against another company. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Howard, 22 S. W. 524, 3 C. A. 335.

Bill to enjoin execution sale of land as the property of plaintiff's grantor held good as against a general demurrer. Paddock v. Jackson, 16 C. A. 655, 41 S. W. 700.

Allegation of petition that county officers had diverted one fund to another held too vague for issuance of injunction. Clarke & Courts v. San Jacinto County, 18 C. A. 204, 45 S. W. 315.

Complaint in action by resident to enjoin performance by city of illegal contract to furnish water to a company outside the city held to show no sufficient reason for granting relief. Wood v. City of Victoria, 18 C. A. 573, 46 S. W. 284.

Petition to enjoin county from opening roads through plaintiff's land held insufficient, as not stating an entry by the county, except on proceedings in accordance with law. Hall v. La Salle County (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 862.

Petition that alleges sheriff is levying execution on property of others does not state ground for injunction. Davis v. Beall, 21 C. A. 183, 50 S. W. 1086.

A petition for an injunction to restrain the erection of a fence held demurrable, and to justify the dissolution of a temporary injunction restraining its erection. Slaughter v. Collup, 22 C. A. 578, 55 S. W. 182.

Petition in a suit to enjoin the sale of land levied on, because of homestead interests of two of the plaintiffs, who were tenants in common with the other plaintiffs, which did not designate what part of the land was claimed as a homestead, was insufficient. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 984.

A petition to restrain the collection of a larger sum than was due on a judgment held not demurrable as an attack on the validity of the judgment. Hamburger v. Kosminsky (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 958.

Where plaintiff's petition affirmatively shows that certain property is their homestead, and negatives the fact that defendants' judgment is a lien thereon, and alleges that defendants are about to sell such homestead under execution, and prays an injunction, the petition is good as against a general demurrer. Wylyde v. Capps, 27 C. A. 112, 65 S. W. 648.

Petition for injunction restraining commissioners' court from declaring a local option election valid held not to show that petitioner was entitled to sue because failing to allege that he was "legally" engaged in the retail liquor business. Harding v. Commissioners' Court of McLennan County, 96 T. 174, 66 S. W. 44.

A bill to enjoin a judgment creditor of a grantor from selling under execution realty conveyed to plaintiff held not to present a case for equitable relief. Chamberlain v. Baker, 28 C. A. 499, 67 S. W. 532.

A bill to enjoin a judgment creditor of a grantor from selling under execution realty conveyed to plaintiff, together with defendant's answer and the reply thereto, held to warrant the trial court in finding that the deed was void as against creditors. Id.

In a suit to enjoin a judgment, the petition held sufficient to justify a decree enjoining the issuance of execution thereon. Deleshaw v. Edelen, 31 C. A. 416, 72 S. W. 413.

Allegation, in petition to enjoin opening highway, that plaintiff's damages have not been paid, held sufficient to let in proof. McCown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 850.

Petition of liquor dealers held not to show them entitled to enjoin publication of result of a local option election. L. Eppstein & Son v. Webb (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 337.

Allegations of a petition in a suit by a tenant held to entitle him to an injunction restraining the landlord from depriving him of a portion of the premises and of the crops, and for damages sustained. Foster v. Roseberry (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 701.

Bill held not to show special injury to plaintiffs, entitling them to enjoin illegal call for state convention of political party. McDonald v. Lyon, 43 C. A. 484, 95 S. W. 67.

In a suit to restrain a levy on certain property, plaintiffs' petition alleging that they were entitled to point out property to be levied on by the sheriff held subject to exception. Stone v. Tilley (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 718.

A petition in a suit for an injunction to restrain defendants from locating a cemetery where it would pollute plaintiff's wells and springs held sufficient. Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 453.

A petition to enjoin execution for costs held to show that injunction was sought "for some equitable matter or defense arising after the rendition of such judgment," under Art. 4648. Griffith v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 756.

A petition to enjoin execution for costs held to sufficiently allege that all were paid or a willingness and readiness to pay any balance unpaid. Id.

In a suit to enjoin the collection of taxes on timber standing on county school lands, petition held to show that plaintiff's theory was that the timber could not be taxed separately so long as it was not severed, irrespective of whether the county owned it, and hence was bad on general demurrer. Montgomery v. Peach River Lumber Co., 54 C. A. 143, 117 S. W. 1061.

Under a petition, held, that petitioner was entitled to a preliminary injunction to restrain a water company from shutting off his supply of water. Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

A petition held to state a cause of action justifying a temporary injunction. Middleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 637.

A petition to restrain the inclosure of a part of a street for building operations to the damage of occupants of adjoining property held not objectionable for failure to sufficiently allege that the obstructions were unlawfully erected, etc. American Const. Co. v. Seelig (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 655.

In an action for an injunction, the bill held sufficient as against a general demurrer. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 868.

A petition for an injunction restraining sale of land on execution as plaintiff's homestead held sufficient in the absence of special exceptions to entitle plaintiff to prove his homestead claim. Parsons v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1084.

A petition in a suit by a city to enjoin a telephone company from increasing its rates held to sufficiently make the franchise of the company a part of the petition. Panhandle Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. City of Amarillo (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 638.

A complaint to restrain levy on certain land, held insufficient, where it failed to allege that other lands pointed out to the officer, and of sufficient value, were clear of incumbrances, not homestead, etc. Pierson v. Connellee (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1039.

In a suit to restrain alleged violation of an original railroad company's contract by a reorganized corporation, certain allegations held insufficient to show that certain prior liens covered the property of the original company and remained after a sale to defendant. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cole (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1094.

A petition by a railroad company to enjoin execution of a judgment against it in condemnation proceedings on land which was subject to a vendor's lien, showing that on the owner's failure to discharge the lien attorney's fees had accrued, and that the execution would cause the company to pay an amount greater than the judgment, in order to free the land from the lien, stated ground for injunction. Baker v. Crosbyton Southplains R. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 569.

An allegation, in a petition for injunction against execution, that the petitioner now tenders into court the balance of amount due on a judgment, and asks that on satisfaction thereof it be paid to defendant, or whoever is entitled to it, sustains an order for injunction, without actually showing that the money had been paid into the court. Id.

A petition for an injunction to restrain third persons from intruding as members of the executive committee of a national party, and to restrain members thereof from inducing the intrusion, alleging that plaintiffs were the duly qualified and elected members, and that defendants were without color of title and were mere intruders, held to sufficiently negative the inference that the proceeding was one to try title for the office. Ware v. Welch (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 263.

A petition held not to sufficiently allege fraud or other ground of equitable relief so as to authorize the enjoining of the enforcement of a justice's judgment, though it was not appealable because of the amount involved. Flow v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1087.

A petition by a public weigher to enjoin an unauthorized weigher held not open to general demurrer for failure to allege that the office of public weigher had been created by the commissioner's court of the county, and that necessary steps had been taken by the voters to the creation of such office. Perry v. Carlisle (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1155; Carlisle v. Perry, Id. 1158.

A petition to enjoin a sale of land which complainant claimed was her homestead, on a judgment recovered against her husband, since deceased, held not subject to a general demurrer. Bailey v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 531.

— Allegations as to facts.—Injunction was sought against an irrigation ditch company to restrain it from taking lands of the plaintiffs for a site for dam and for ditches. It appeared that condemnation proceedings were pending under the statute. There was no allegation that the land was not within the arid portion of the state. Held error to grant a perpetual injunction. McGhee Irrigation Co. v. Hudson, 85 T. 587, 22 S. W. 398.

Sufficiency of bill for injunction against execution held determinable from the facts alleged in it and those supplied by the answer. Paddock v. Jackson, 16 C. A. 655, 41 S. W. 700.

A petition for an injunction restraining the collection of a tax that states that the tax was levied upon an unreasonably excessive assessment, made in fraud of plaintiff's rights, states a cause of action. Johnson v. Holland, 17 C. A. 210, 43 S. W. 71.

The owner of abutting property can not enjoin a company from building a railroad on a street of a city between certain breweries and the nearest railroad on the allegation that the sole purpose of the construction of the railroad was for the private use of certain persons. The petition for injunction should have specifically averred the facts that negative the public use. Mangan v. Texas Transportation Co., 18 C. A. 478, 44 S. W. 998.

Where a petition for an injunction filed in the county court failed to allege the value of the subject-matter of the suit, a plea in reconvention claiming damages could not aid the petition, so as to give the court jurisdiction to grant the writ. De Witt County v. Wischkemper, 95 T. 435, 67 S. W. 882.

Allegations as to possession by agent, which, if adverse to him, would have given them title, when contradicted by other allegations of petition, held not to entitle plaintiffs to injunction restraining sale of land on execution against agent. Brown v. Ikard, 33 C. A. 661, 77 S. W. 967.

The petition in a suit by a wife in which her husband joined to enjoin the sale of her land under execution against the husband held sufficient without alleging facts which make the property the wife's separate property. Texas Brewing Co. v. Bisso, 50 C. A. 119, 109 S. W. 270.

A bill to enjoin a judgment alleging that the judgment was void, but setting out no facts to show that it was void, held insufficient to authorize relief. New York Chemical Co. v. Spell Bros., 56 C. A. 315, 120 S. W. 579.

Facts alleged in the petition in trespass to try title held not to authorize the dispossession of defendants from the land by a mandatory injunction. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

It is not sufficient, in a suit for injunction, to merely allege that the commission of threatened acts will work irreparable harm; but the facts must be alleged. Id.

The facts alleged in a petition, which was in the usual form in trespass to try title and for rent and damages, did not authorize the dispossession of defendants by mandatory injunction, either with or without notice; such an injunction being proper only where the necessity therefor is pressing. Id.

It is not sufficient, in a suit for injunction, to merely allege that the commission of threatened acts will work irreparable harm, but facts must be alleged showing that fact. Id.

A petition alleging abandonment by a husband, taking the children, and intention to remove them from the state, and the wife's desire and ability to retain them, authorized a temporary injunction against their removal from the jurisdiction. Green v. Green (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 567.

A bill to enjoin execution of a judgment of a justice of the peace not alleging facts showing invalidity of service, or facts saving his right to set the judgment aside from being barred by limitations, held insufficient. Board v. Adams, 146 S. W. 685.

In an action to enjoin a railway company from constructing a fence between its right of way and plaintiff's lot, an allegation that the right of way constituted a public highway to and from which plaintiff had a right of ingress and egress, etc., was subject to exception for failing to plead facts showing such a right. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1068.

A petition in a suit by a county and a city and the citizens thereof to restrain a railroad company from removing from the city its machine shops, roundhouses, and general offices held, in the absence of special exceptions, to state facts binding railroad companies to maintain their shops and roundhouses and general offices in the city. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

A petition to restrain an execution sale under a justice's judgment, which alleged that the justice was without jurisdiction because the suit was based on 20 notes of $10 each and 10 per cent. attorney's fees, as against which a credit of $45 had been allowed, did not show that the amount involved was in excess of $200; there being no averment as to the date of the credit. Chance v. Pace (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 843.

A petition to enjoin a substituted trustee from selling land which states that such trustee did not have authority under the trust deed, which was a conclusion, but pleads no facts showing whether the deed of trust gave him authority, was insufficient; a power to sell being strictly construed. Hicks v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 845.

The petition of a public weigher who sought to enjoin an unauthorized weigher from weighing produce which alleged that the plaintiff was the public weigher for the town of S. is not deficient for failing to allege that S. was a city; the word "town" being a generic word which includes cities, boroughs, and villages. Perry v. Carlisle (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1155; Carlisle v. Perry, Id. 1158.

In an action to enjoin the cutting and removal of timber the mere allegation that plaintiffs would otherwise suffer irreparable damage was but a legal conclusion. Alf Bennett Lumber Co. of Texas v. Fall (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 209.

— Inadequacy of remedy at law.—A petition in a suit for an injunction restraining execution on a void judgment, showing on its face that the petitioner has a legal remedy, is demurrable. Givens v. Delprat, 28 C. A. 363, 67 S. W. 424.

Where branch pilots sue to restrain one not a branch pilot from acting as such, an allegation that the defendant is insolvent, so that the statute authorizing a judgment against him is of no avail, shows plaintiffs without adequate remedy at law. Petterson v. Smith, 30 C. A. 139, 69 S. W. 542.

A bill to restrain issuance of an execution held without equity in that it appeared that the matters relied on could have been set up as a defense in the action. Wilson v. Cook (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 236.

A petition to restrain the prosecution of a suit in a sister state held to state no cause of action because of failure to show any inadequacy of the defense at law in the courts of the sister state. Lightfoot v. Murphy, 47 C. A. 112, 104 S. W. 511.

A petition for an injunction, though containing no allegation that the threatened wrong will result in irreparable injury, and that petitioner has no legal remedy, is sufficient in the absence of special exception. Mitchell v. Burnett, 57 C. A. 124, 122 S. W. 937.

Dissolution on demurrer to bill.—See notes under Art. 4663.

Evidence.—The plaintiffs, in seeking a perpetual injunction, had the burden of showing facts authorizing its issuance. Failure to allege that the land was not arid was a fundamental defect. McGhee Irrigation Co. v. Hudson, 85 T. 587, 22 S. W. 398.

Evidence held insufficient to entitle a judgment debtor to restrain execution. McCray v. Freeman, 17 C. A. 268, 43 S. W. 37.

Where it is uncertain whether a verdict for plaintiff in an action to recover damages resulting from the wrongful removal of plaintiff's fence by the overseer of the road district is based on evidence that the damage was done by negligence in removal or on evidence of unauthorized removal, a decree perpetuating an injunction enjoining interference with the fence is not justified. Luckie v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 690.

Evidence in a suit to enjoin the collection of the judgment held not sufficient to show that plaintiff had not received credit for a payment alleged to have been made by him. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wade (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 807.

Where the plaintiff in an action to enjoin a trespass is in actual and exclusive possession of the land, it is not necessary to prove title from the government. Creswell v. Beakley, 28 C. A. 245, 67 S. W. 907.

Where, in a suit to restrain the maintenance of a cotton gin near a dwelling, it appears the dust and lint complained of issue from pipes extending through the roof, a finding of the jury that a fence about the gin would not obviate the difficulty is warranted. Faulkenbury v. Wells, 28 C. A. 621, 68 S. W. 327.

In an action to enjoin a sewerage company from interference with a private sewer in a public street, held, that plaintiff made a prima facie case on showing that he had acquired the title of the original owner of the sewer. Oak Cliff Sewerage Co. v. Marsalls, 30 C. A. 42, 69 S. W. 176.

In a suit by adjoining property owners to restrain a railroad's use of a street for a switchyard, evidence held sufficient to show that complainants had sustained special injury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 177.

In injunction proceedings to restrain defendant from engaging in the photograph business, evidence held to support a jury finding in favor of plaintiff. Parrish v. Adwell (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 441.

Certain proofs held not to authorize an injunction restraining the construction of a cotton gin, on the ground that its operation would create a nuisance. Robinson v. Dale (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 308.

That one was in actual possession would be only prima facie evidence of his title or right of possession necessary to support his suit to enjoin another from trespassing thereon. Paul v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 438.

Under Art. 4643, providing for the grant of a writ of injunction where it shall appear that the party applying for the writ is entitled to the relief demanded, and such relief or any part thereof requires the restraint of some act prejudicial to the applicant, and Rev. St. 1895, art. 3115 et seq., declaring that unappropriated waters of flowing rivers may be acquired for irrigation and other purposes, a lower riparian owner is not entitled to a temporary injunction against the diversion of water for the irrigation of nonriparian land in the absence of a showing that his land is now being used or is intended for immediate use or is prepared for agricultural or other purposes rendering the use of the water of the river necessary and beneficial. Biggs v. Leffingwell (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 902.

Evidence held insufficient to authorize a temporary injunction restraining defendant from boring for oil on land held under a lease. Simms v. Reisner (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 278.

Where, in a suit to enjoin enforcement of a judgment, the truth of plaintiff's allegations was denied, it was error to perpetuate the injunction on no other proof than the affidavit on which the preliminary injunction was granted. Withers v. Linden (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1117.

Evidence in a suit to restrain an obstruction to a public road held not to show any special injury to plaintiff different from that suffered by the public generally. Owens v. Varnell (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 256.

In a proceeding to enjoin the commissioners' court from building a new courthouse, evidence on motion to continue a temporary injunction held not sufficient to warrant a reasonable belief that the actions of the court were founded in fraud. McWilliams v. Commissioners' Court of Pecos County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 368.

As a rule, injunction will be granted to prevent a cloud being cast upon a title to realty, when the evidence upon which plaintiff's right depends is not of record, or shown by the instruments upon which it depends. Weaver v. Emison (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 923.

Art. 4650. [2993] Judge's fiat to be indorsed on petition.—If, upon the inspection of such petition, it shall appear to the judge from the facts stated therein that the applicant is entitled to the writ, he shall indorse on such petition or annex thereto his written order directing the clerk of the proper court to issue the writ of injunction prayed for, upon such terms and under such modifications, limitations and restrictions as may be specified in said order; and the judge shall also specify in such order the amount of the bond to be given by the applicant as a prerequisite to the issuance of the writ. If the injunction be applied for to restrain the execution of a money judgment or the collection of a debt, the bond shall be fixed in double the amount of such judgment or debt. [P. D. 3933.]

Giving new bond.—Should it appear that the amount of the bond is insufficient, the judge may permit the plaintiff to give a new bond in a sufficient amount. Downes v. Monroe, 42 T. 307.

Time for filing bond.—It is error to permit a bond to be filed after judgment. Downes v. Monroe, 42 T. 307.

Validity of bond.—See notes under Art. 4654.

Duration of temporary restraining order.—It is obvious that under this article and Art. 4651 the judge is authorized to place upon a preliminary injunction such limitation as to the time of its operation as he may see proper; and an order indorsed by the judge on a petition for injunction, directing the clerk to cite defendants to appear at a certain time and place to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be granted and at the same time to issue "a restraining order to defendants * * * pending such hearing" shows that the intention was to limit the operation of the order until such time as the parties could be heard upon the issue, whether under the allegations of the petition and answer, should one be filed, an injunction to remain in force until the final disposition of the case should be granted. Riggins v. Thompson, 96 T. 154, 71 S. W. 14.

Requisites of petition.—See notes under Art. 4649.

Art. 4651. [2994] Notice to opposite party, when.—Upon application for any writ of injunction, if it appear to the judge that delay will not prove injurious to either party, and that justice may be subserved thereby, he may cause notice of such application to be served upon the opposite party, his agent or attorney, in such manner as he may direct, and fix a time and place for the hearing of such application.

Power to issue ex parte injunction.—While the facts alleged in the petition did not show any reason for issuing even a prohibitory injunction without the notice provided for by this article, where delay will not injure either party, the issuance of the prohibitory injunction without notice was not such an abuse of the trial court's discretion as would justify its vacation. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

It is discretionary with the trial court, on application for a temporary injunction, to act upon plaintiff's petition without notice to defendants, or to permit them to present pleadings and evidence and dispose of the matter as then presented. Commissioners' Court of Floyd County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

The power of equity to grant a preliminary injunction without notice should not be exercised, unless there is a pressing necessity for such action. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Rule as to mandatory injunction.—A mandatory injunction may be granted in a proper case without notice, even for the purpose of restoring to the owner possession of the premises of which he has been deprived by trespass. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

Where a railroad company obligated by contract to maintain in a city its machine shops, roundhouses, and general offices had removed the same before suit was filed to restrain the company from violating its obligation, the court should not without notice grant a mandatory injunction compelling the company to remove its general offices from their present location to the city. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

The power of equity to grant a preliminary injunction without notice should not be exercised unless there is a pressing necessity for such action, and, as a general rule, a mandatory injunction should not be ordered before a final hearing of the case, and for the purpose of executing the judgment. Id.

Duration of temporary restraining order.—See notes under Art. 4650.

Transfer of subject-matter after rule to show cause.—A party cannot avoid the effect of an injunction by transferring the subject-matter of the order to another before the issuance of the writ, when he knows that a rule has been granted to show cause. City of San Antonio v. Rische (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 388.

Dissolution of ex parte injunction.—Ordinarily a temporary injunction granted ex parte will be dissolved on motion on answer under oath denying specific allegations of the petition material to granting it. Daniels v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 569.

An order dissolving, on answer under oath clearly denying the material facts, and supported by ample testimony, a temporary injunction, granted without notice, on the petition, will be affirmed. Wainwright v. Cotter (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 419.

Art. 4652. [2995] Petition to be filed and cause docketed.—Upon the grant of any writ of injunction, the party to whom the same is granted shall file his petition therefor, together with the order of the judge granting the same, with the clerk of the proper court; and, if such writ of injunction does not pertain to a pending suit in said court, the cause shall be entered on the civil docket of the court in its regular order in the name of the party to whom the writ is granted as plaintiff and of the opposite party as defendant.

See Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 366.

Venue.—A suit to enjoin a sale of land under a judgment to which the plaintiff is not a party may be brought in the county in which the land is situated. Huggins v. White, 27 S. W. 1066, 7 C. A. 563.

In an action to restrain the enforcement of a judgment against the land of a stranger to the judgment, the action was properly brought in the county where the land was situated. Horvets v. Dunman, 46 C. A. 177, 102 S. W. 462.

This article and the following article fix the venue of suits for injunction for causes other than to stay proceedings in a suit or execution on a judgment in the county of the domicile of defendant. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Under Art. 1830, subd. 27, providing that, when in any law authorizing any particular character of action the venue is expressly prescribed, the suit shall be commenced in the county to which the jurisdiction may be given, this article, and Art. 4653, providing that writs for injunction shall be returnable to and tried in the county in which defendant has his domicile, a suit against a railroad company for injunctive relief only can be brought in the county in which the corporation has its domicile. Id.

Art. 4653. [2996] Writs, where returnable.—Writs of injunction granted to stay proceedings in a suit, or execution on a judgment, shall be returnable to and tried in the court where such suit is pending, or such judgment was rendered: writs of injunction for other causes, if the party against whom it is granted be an inhabitant of the state, shall be returnable to, and tried in, the district or county court of the county in which such party has his domicile, according as the amount or matter in controversy comes within the jurisdiction of either of said courts. If there be more than one party against whom any writ is granted, it may be returned and tried in the proper court of the county where either may have his domicile. [Id. P. D. 3932.]

See Reagan v. Evans, 2 C. A. 35, 21 S. W. 427; Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 366; Ferguson v. Fain, 142 S. W. 1184.

Application.—This article does not apply in case of an injunction to restrain collection of judgment of justice court, as the justice court has no power to issue writs of injunction or to determine issues dependent thereon. Foust v. Warren (Sup.) 72 S. W. 405.

In reference to proper county in which writs of injunction are returnable, this article should be looked to where an injunction has been issued against a county, rather than to Art. 1830 on the general subject of venue of suits. Little v. Griffin, 33 C. A. 515, 77 S. W. 635.

Where the suit is not to stay any proceedings in the case or to stay the execution on a judgment, but injunction is sought against the sale of a particular piece of property, and the injunction does not prevent the levy of the process upon any other property subject to it, an injunction can be sued out of another court than the one in which judgment was rendered and out of which execution was issued. In such case this article does not apply. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Peter, 35 C. A. 49, 80 S. W. 108.

This article does not apply where the injunction is to restrain an execution on a void judgment, where the invalidity affirmatively appears from the face of the record, and the injunction may be sued out in the county where the execution is sought to be levied. Ketelsen & Degetan v. Pratt Bros. & Seay (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1174.

This article applies to suits attacking the validity of the judgment, or presenting defenses properly connected with the suit in which it was rendered and which should have been adjudicated therein, and does not apply to a suit to enjoin the issuance of an execution in favor of one not entitled to have it enforced. Kruegel v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 216.

Art. 1830, subd. 17, providing that no inhabitant of the state shall be sued out of the county of his domicile, except when suit is brought to enjoin execution of a judgment, in which case the suit may be brought in the county where the judgment was rendered, and this article, apply only when suit is to restrain execution of a judgment because of some infirmity in the judgment or the writ, or where some equity has arisen since the judgment which should prevent enforcement, and does not apply where the injunction is only to prevent sale of exempt property, in which case suit may be brought in any court having jurisdiction of the subject-matter in the county in which any defendant resides or in which the property, if realty, is situated. Parsons v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1084.

Jurisdiction and venue.—See, also, notes under Arts. 4643, 4652.

The first clause of this article is imperative. Hendrick v. Cannon, 2 T. 259; Winnie v. Grayson, 3 T. 429; Cook v. Baldrige, 39 T. 250; Hugo v. Dignowitty, 1 App. C. C. § 158; George v. Dyer, 1 App. C. C. § 780.

An injunction to restrain the sale of land in A. county under an execution issued on a judgment rendered in B. county must be returned to the court from which the execution issued. Seligson v. Collins, 64 T. 314, citing Hendrick v. Cannon, 2 T. 259; Winnie v. Grayson, 3 T. 429; Cook v. Baldrige, 39 T. 250.

When the plaintiff in injunction is not a party to or in any wise connected with a judgment rendered in another county, or the execution issued thereon, an injunction to restrain the sale of goods under such execution levied on in the county of plaintiff's residence is returnable to the proper court of the latter county. Brown v. Young, 1 App. C. C. § 1241, citing Winnie v. Grayson, 3 T. 429. And see Art. 1830, § 17.

Our courts have uniformly held that the court in which the judgment is rendered alone has jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin the execution of such judgment, unless such judgment is void. Adoue v. Wettermark, 22 C. A. 545, 55 S. W. 511.

Writ of injunction to restrain officer from selling property under execution must be sued out in the court issuing the execution. Id.

The district court has no jurisdiction in a case which is in substance a suit to stay execution upon a judgment of the county court. The latter court only has jurisdiction. Smith v. Morgan, 28 C. A. 245, 67 S. W. 919.

Judgment of affirmance on a supersedeas bond, given on appeal by a third party solely from a judgment of foreclosure in a suit on a debt and to foreclose a mortgage lien, held not a judgment against appellant for the amount of the money judgment below against the mortgagor, but only an affirmance of the judgment then recovered, and hence appellant was entitled to resist execution thereunder by injunction from a court other than that rendering judgment of affirmance. Adoue v. Wettermark, 28 C. A. 503, 68 S. W. 553.

An injunction suit to restrain execution of an order of sale issued on a judgment must be brought in the court in which the judgment was obtained. Broocks v. Lee (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 757.

A writ of injunction to restrain execution of a judgment rendered by the county court is returnable to the county court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 52 C. A. 323, 114 S. W. 671, 672.

The judgment of a county court prima facie valid is not subject to attack in any other court. (In this case injunction was sued out in the district court.) Wheeler v. Powell (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 689.

Under this article a district court has not jurisdiction to dissolve a temporary writ of injunction previously granted by the district judge, restraining the enforcement of a judgment rendered by the county court. Godfrey v. Lackey (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1145.

This article fixes the venue of trials on the merits of applications for injunctions to arrest the execution of judgments, and does not change the laws conferring jurisdiction on the county or district courts over the subject-matter. Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 258.

This article does not give the district court jurisdiction to hear and determine an application for an injunction to restrain execution upon a judgment rendered in the county court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 52 C. A. 327, 135 S. W. 1064.

Under this article a county court has jurisdiction to enjoin proceedings on an execution for costs out of that court. Ward v. Powell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1188.

Under this article the writ in a suit in the county court to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment of the Lee county court should be returnable to that court, unless the judgment sought to be enjoined was absolutely void. Hillsman v. Cline (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 726.

Under Const. art. 5, §§ 8, 16, relating to the jurisdiction of the county and district courts in the issuance of executions, and Art. 4643 and this article, a district judge might, where the equities warranted, enjoin execution of a judgment of the county court, though he could not finally dispose of the injunction proceeding, which should be finally disposed of in the county court. Baker v. Crosbyton Southplains R. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 569.

Where the injunction applied for is merely ancillary to the main purpose of the suit, the suit is not a suit for injunction within this article, providing that writs for injunction shall be returnable to and tried in the county in which defendant has his domicile. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Art. 4654. [2997] The bond for injunction.—Upon the filing of the petition and order of the judge hereinbefore provided for, in the proper court, and before the issuance of the writ of injunction, the complainant shall execute and file with the clerk a bond to the adverse party, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by such clerk, in such sum as may be affixed in the order of the judge granting the writ, conditioned that the complainant will abide the decision which may be made therein, and that he will pay all sums of money and costs that may be adjudged against him, if the injunction be dissolved in whole or in part. If the state be complainant in any petition for injunction, no bond shall be required. [P. D. 3933.]

Provision mandatory.—The provisions of this article are mandatory and no exception is made in favor of a receiver. Paine v. Carpenter, 51 C. A. 191, 111 S. W. 431.

The issuance of a preliminary injunction without bond held erroneous, in the absence of facts justifying such discretion. Pierson v. Connellee (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1039.

Signature by attorney.—On motion to quash temporary injunction on ground that plaintiff's name was not signed to the bond, held that his name might be signed thereto by his attorney, and thereupon the motion be overruled. Haynes v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 49, 111 S. W. 427.

Validity.—Where a bond is less onerous than required by the statute, as when it is executed for a less amount than the judgment enjoined, it is valid for the amount named in the bond. Miller v. Clements, 54 T. 351.

An injunction bond payable to one of the parties defendant "et al." will not be quashed. Parker v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1031.

Order for bond by appellate court.—On appeal from a judgment granting an injunction, where it appears that plaintiff did not execute and file with the clerk of the court a bond for injunction, and that the district judge who granted the writ did not fix the amount of the bond to be executed as a condition precedent to the issuance of the writ as expressly required by this article, the court of civil appeals, where the petition states grounds for injunctive relief, may enter such orders and judgment as should have been entered by the lower court, requiring the execution of the bond by plaintiff to be approved by the clerk of the district court. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 868.

Filing bond.—See notes under Art. 4650.

Damages in general.—See notes under Art. 4667.

Liability.—If the bond is more onerous than required by statute, judgment cannot be rendered against the sureties. James v. Reynolds, 2 T. 250; Hanks v. Horton, 5 T. 103; Pillow v. Thompson, 20 T. 206.

When an injunction is sued out against the sale of personal property seized in execution, some of which is subject to execution, the measure of damages upon dissolving the injunction is the value of the property subject to execution. The defendant, upon an injunction suit upon proper pleadings in reconvention and proof, may recover his damages for the wrongful suing out of the injunction, without service of citation upon the sureties upon the injunction bond. Sharp v. Schmidt, 62 T. 263; Coates v. Caldwell, 71 T. 19, 8 S. W. 922, 10 Am. St. Rep. 725.

Injunction bond does not cover attorney fees. Jones v. Rosedale Street Ry. Co., 75 T. 382, 12 S. W. 998; Davis v. Rosedale Street Ry. Co., 75 T. 381, 12 S. W. 999.

Where defendants are enjoined from conducting their business in such manner as to injure and annoy plaintiff by fire and smoke, in an action on the injunction bond they cannot recover for loss sustained by voluntarily closing their business. Bancroft v. Russell, 3 C. A. 95, 22 S. W. 240.

Where plaintiff applied for an injunction to restrain the collection of a larger amount than was due on a judgment against him, defendant held not entitled to a judgment against the sureties on the injunction bond for the amount due. Hamburger v. Kosminsky (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 958.

In a suit to restrain the enforcement of a judgment and to set the same aside, held error to give judgment for defendant against plaintiff and the sureties on his injunction bond for the amount of the debt, costs, and interest. Warren v. Foust, 36 C. A. 59, 81 S. W. 323.

Where enforcement of a foreclosure decree is wrongfully restrained, the purchaser is entitled to recover on the injunction bond the rental value of the premises up to the time he was placed in possession. Stevens v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

Where an injunction restraining an execution sale is dissolved, judgment against the sureties on the injunction bond may not be rendered for the amount to be collected by the execution, without pleading and proof that the temporary injunction had caused such damage. Dillard v. Stringfellow & Hume, 50 C. A. 410, 111 S. W. 769.

The conditions of an injunction bond to abide the decision held not to prevent a second suit for the same relief, and plaintiff is not liable on the bond for defendant's expenses in defending another injunction suit, brought by plaintiff after the dissolution of the first. Carpenter v. First Nat. Bank of Sour Lake, 53 C. A. 23, 114 S. W. 904.

— Profits.—Profits which would have been made if an established business had not been interfered with by injunction may be recovered. Galveston City R. Co. v. Miller et al. (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 1132.

Judgment against sureties in injunction suit.—Upon the dissolution of an injunction judgment cannot be rendered on the bond for the amount of the debt enjoined against the principal and sureties unless a cross-action is filed. If such an action is not filed, suit may be brought against the principal and sureties on the bond. Appleton v. Draughan, 11 C. A. 89, 32 S. W. 46.

It is unnecessary to cite sureties on an injunction bond to answer a plea of reconvention in order to render judgment against them for damages caused by the injunction. Smith v. Wilson, 18 C. A. 24, 44 S. W. 556.

In a suit to enjoin the sale of property levied on under an execution, the direction of a verdict against plaintiff and the sureties on the injunction bond held erroneous. Webb v. Caldwell (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 97.

Action on bond.—Where defendant in injunction answered to the merits and reconvened for damages, but the action was tried and judgment rendered without reference to such plea, an action on the injunction bond for damages was not barred. Crebbins v. Bryce, 24 C. A. 532, 60 S. W. 587.

In an action on an injunction bond, evidence examined, and held to warrant the amount of the verdict rendered. Hill v. Peeler (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1005.

In a suit to enjoin the sale of property under an execution, held, that the court properly allowed defendant to dismiss a cross-bill as to plaintiff, and prosecute his action against the sureties on the injunction bond. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

Art. 4655. [2998] Clerk to issue the writ.—When the petition, order of the judge and bond aforesaid are filed, it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue the writ of injunction directed in such order, in conformity with the terms thereof, and to deliver the same to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county for service and return.

Issuance of writ by clerk of another county court.—A temporary injunction held not subject to dissolution because the judge directed the clerk of the court of a county other than the one in which the suit was pending to issue the writ. Buchanan v. Barnsley (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 843.

Art. 4656. [2999] The writ and its requisites.—The writ of injunction shall be sufficient if it contains substantially the following requisites:

1. Its style shall be, "The State of Texas."
2. It shall be directed to the person or persons enjoined.
3. It must state the names of the parties to the proceeding, plaintiff and defendant, and the nature of the plaintiff's application, with the action of the judge thereon.
4. It must command the person or persons to whom it is directed to desist and refrain from the commission or continuance of the act enjoined, or to obey and execute such order as the judge has seen proper to make.
5. It shall state the term of the court to which such writ is returnable. ✓
6. It shall be dated and signed by the clerk officially, and attested with the seal of his office; and the date of its issuance must be indorsed thereon.

Art. 4657. [3000] Writs may issue in different counties.—If there be several persons enjoined, residing in different counties, a writ shall issue to each of such counties.

Art. 4658. [3001] To whom delivered.—The clerk issuing any such writ of injunction shall deliver the same to the sheriff or any constable of his county, if the person enjoined be a resident of such county; if the person enjoined be a resident of some other county, the clerk shall forward such writ by mail to the sheriff or any constable of such county.

Art. 4659. [3002] Service and return of the writ.—The officer receiving any writ of injunction shall indorse thereon the date of its receipt by him, and shall forthwith execute the same by delivering to the party enjoined a true copy of such writ; and the original shall be returned to the court from which it issued, on or before the return day named therein, with the action of the officer indorsed thereon or annexed thereto, showing how and when he executed the same. ✓

Art. 4660. [3003] Duty of defendant upon service of writ.—The party upon whom any writ of injunction is served shall obey the command thereof and refrain from the commission of the act enjoined so long as such injunction continues in force; or, if the continuance of an act or acts be enjoined, the person enjoined shall immediately cease such act or acts and thereafter refrain from their continuance so long as such injunction remains in force. Any person violating the provisions of this article shall be dealt with as hereinafter directed.

Art. 4661. [3004] Injunctions restrain attorneys, etc., as well as the party.—Any injunction restrains the counselors, solicitors, attorneys, agents, servants and employés of the party, as well as the party himself.

Parties affected.—An injunction does not affect a person not a party to the suit in the exercise of rights acquired before its institution. Shelby v. Burtis, 18 T. 644. Nor can a stranger to the suit complain that a contract was made in violation of an injunction not affecting him at the time the contract was made. Hewitt v. Patrick, 26 T. 326.

Art. 4662. [3005] Citation to issue to defendants.—When any writ of injunction is issued, and such writ does not pertain to a suit pending in the court, the clerk of such court shall issue a citation to the defendant as in other civil cases, which shall be served and returned in like manner as ordinary citations issued from said court. But if any injunction is issued after notice to the defendant, as hereinbefore provided, no citation to such defendant shall be necessary. ✓

Necessary parties defendant.—Under this article, Arts. 1869–1873, providing for citation to nonresident defendants and the manner of its service and return, Art. 1874, providing for citation by publication, and Art. 1885, declaring that no judgment shall be rendered against any defendant, unless upon service, acceptance, waiver of process or appearance held that, where nonresident execution creditors placed execution in the hands of the sheriff, who levied upon property claimed as a homestead, and the debtor then applied for an injunction against the sheriff as the only party defendant, the execution creditors were necessary parties defendant, and that without notice to them in one of the statutory methods the injunction was a nullity. McCanless v. Gray (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 174.

Art. 4663. [3006] The answer.—The defendant to an injunction proceeding may answer as in other civil actions; but no injunction shall be dissolved before final hearing because of a denial of the material allegations of the plaintiff's petition, unless the answer denying the same is verified by the oath or affirmation of the defendant. [P. D. 3929.]

Answer.—An injunction may be made perpetual on the pleadings when the material allegations in the petition are not denied in the answer. Eason v. Killough, 1 App. C. C. § 604.

A general denial to a petition for an injunction, is not subject to general demurrer, but it makes it necessary for plaintiff to prove his case. Murphy v. Smith, Walker & Co., 38 C. A. 50, 84 S. W. 679.

In a suit to enjoin execution for costs, matters in the answer referring to matters occurring on the trial of the original cause held properly stricken out as immaterial. Griffith v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 756.

An order dissolving a temporary injunction rendered without notice on petition, will be affirmed, having been on an answer under oath, clearly denying material facts and supported by ample testimony. Wainwright v. Cotter (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 419.

— Answer by all parties.—Where fraud is charged against several parties, all of the defendants must answer to authorize a dissolution of an injunction. Orr v. Moore, 1 App. C. C. § 587.

Decree on sustaining demurrer to bill.—An injunction may be wholly dissolved on sustaining a general demurrer to the bill. O'Neal v. Wills Point Bank, 64 T. 644.

A demurrer to a petition was sustained on two of the grounds assigned, and overruled as to the third. The plaintiff declined to amend and to proceed further with the case, and judgment was given for the defendant on his injunction bond for damages and costs. Held, that the action of the plaintiff was equivalent to a voluntary nonsuit, and the action of the court would not be revised on appeal. Id.

Where, in a proceeding to enjoin the enforcement of an order of the railroad commission, a general demurrer to the petition was overruled, and defendant declined to further answer, judgment was properly rendered for plaintiff. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 51 C. A. 447, 112 S. W. 345.

This article contemplates a dissolution upon a denial alone, and does not apply to a dissolution on a demurrer on full hearing. Smith v. Palo Pinto County (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1193.

Art. 4664. [3007] Dissolution in term time or vacation.—In all cases of injunction, motions to dissolve the same without determining the merits may be heard after answer filed, in vacation as well as in term time, at least ten days' notice of such motion being first given to the opposite party or his attorney. In such cases, the proceedings upon such hearing including the action of the judge upon the motion, shall be entered upon the minutes of the proper court by the clerk thereof, on or before the first day of the succeeding term of such court, and thereafter shall constitute a part of the record of the same. [P. D. 3934.]

See Duncan v. Herder, 57 C. A. 542, 122 S. W. 904.

Time for making motion.—A motion to dissolve a temporary injunction, made after both sides had announced ready and the jurymen were taking their seats, was properly refused. Briggs v. New South Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 885.

"Vacation" defined.—"Vacation," as used in Arts. 4643, 4664, means the vacation of the district court of the county wherein the case was pending, in which an injunction was awarded, and hence, there being no statute fixing the place for hearing motions to dissolve, a judge granting an injunction in vacation may hear a motion to dissolve it in a county other than that in which the suit is pending. Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 366.

Consideration of merits.—On a motion to dissolve an injunction granted by the appellate court, the court will not consider questions involving the merits. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 842.

Dissolution of ex parte injunction.—See notes under Art. 4651.

Discretion of court.—Whether a temporary injunction should be continued in force on the principle that more harm would result to plaintiff if wrongfully dissolved than would result to defendant if wrongfully allowed to stand is within the court's sound discretion. Daniels v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 569.

Rulings of the court on dissolution of a temporary injunction and denying a mandatory injunction held not an abuse of the court's judicial discretion. Lone Star Lodge No. 1935, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1180.

A temporary injunction granted ex parte will be dismissed at the instance of defendant on the coming in of his answer, unqualifiedly denying all the allegations of the bill material to the granting of the injunction, unless irreparable injury may result or some peculiar circumstances exist, when the court may, in its sound discretion, refuse a dissolution. Id.

The dissolution of a temporary restraining order rests largely in the discretion of the court, and its action will not be disturbed, in the absence of an abuse of discretion. Id.

Even if the sworn answer denies all of the equities of the bill, the dissolution of a temporary injunction is largely a matter of judicial discretion, to be decided upon the particular facts. Porter v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 469.

Where the answer is a complete denial, the dissolution of a temporary injunction against the sale of land under a trust deed rests largely in the discretion of the trial court. Corbett v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 858.

In an action to enjoin the cutting and removal of timber, held, in view of the failure to establish defendants' insolvency, of the allegation of plaintiffs' insolvency, and of the nature of the injury, that a dissolution of the temporary injunction leaving the parties to their actions at law was a proper exercise of the court's discretion. Alf Bennett Lumber Co. of Texas v. Fall (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 209.

Dissolution on pleadings.—On a motion to dissolve on an exception to the petition, the allegations of the petition are taken to be true. Jackson v. Browning, 1 App. C. C. § 605.

Defendant's answer having denied all the material allegations of a petition, an interlocutory judgment was properly dissolved. Frazier v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 662.

On motion to dissolve a temporary injunction, the bill must be taken as true, in the absence of a sworn answer traversing the equity of the bill. Dawson v. Baldrige, 55 C. A. 124, 118 S. W. 593.

On motion to dissolve an injunction on bill and answer, the answer, when sworn to in so far as responsive to the bill, is taken as true. Id.

A temporary injunction will be dissolved, when the answer is sworn to and unequivocally denies all the material allegations of the bill, unless irreparable mischief is likely to ensue from its dissolution, or unless some peculiar circumstances exist. Id.

A temporary restraining order against a judgment is properly dissolved, when heard on bill and answer denying all the material allegations of the verified bill. New York Chemical Co. v. Spell Bros., 56 C. A. 315, 120 S. W. 579.

A bill to enjoin a judgment held properly dismissed, where no request was made to retain the case for trial after a hearing on bill and answer. Id.

A temporary injunction could be dissolved, though not prayed for by formal motion, where the answer contained such prayer. Smith v. Palo Pinto County (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1193.

The principle that a temporary injunction will not be dissolved, in the absence of a specific denial under oath of the allegations of the bill, merely by reason of matters pleaded in confession and avoidance thereof, held inapplicable in a certain case. Rabb v. La Feria Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

On motion to dismiss an injunction on bill and answer, the verified answer must be taken as true in so far as it is responsive to the bill. Lone Star Lodge No. 1935, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1180.

A temporary injunction granted ex parte held dissolved at the instance of defendant, on the coming in of his answer explicitly denying the material allegations of the bill. Id.

In a suit to restrain the enforcement of a justice's judgment, failure of the petition to show that plaintiff had a meritorious defense held no ground for dissolving a preliminary injunction. Withers v. Linden (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1117.

A verified answer only argumentatively denying the equities of plaintiff's bill, held insufficient to require the dissolution of a temporary injunction. Id.

Sworn answer held not to deny all of the allegations of a bill, so as to make it erroneous to continue a temporary injunction. Porter v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 469.

An affidavit accompanying the answer in an injunction suit held to sufficiently negative the allegations of the petition to warrant dissolution of the temporary injunction. Gibson v. Sterrett (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1189.

Where an injunction against enforcing a judgment was sought on the ground that the property in litigation had been returned before judgment, allegations in the verified answer that none of the property had been returned for credit on the judgment will not warrant dissolution of a temporary injunction. Axtell v. Lopp (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 192.

Where a judgment debtor sued to restrain the judgment creditor from enforcing the judgment, joining the constable to prevent a sale, and the judgment creditor and the constable filed sworn answers denying the material averments of the petition, the court could dissolve the temporary restraining order upon motion. McKenzie v. Withers (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 413.

Evidence.—Affidavits are admissible in evidence on hearing on answer and motion to dissolve injunction restraining sale of land under decree. Brightman v. Fry, 17 C. A. 531, 43 S. W. 60.

The dissolution of a temporary injunction to restrain the commissioners' court from declaring the result of a local option election held proper under the evidence. Hill v. Roach, 26 C. A. 75, 62 S. W. 959.

An order dissolving an injunction restraining the sheriff from executing a writ of possession is proper, where there is evidence that the land claimed in the injunction suit is not the same as that in the writ. Jett v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 309.

Dismissal of suit.—When the temporary injunction has been dissolved on the filing of an answer swearing away the equities of the bill, the plaintiff is entitled to a trial upon the merits, unless the right is expressly waived; and it is error to dismiss, though the plaintiff make no request for a trial on the merits. Pullen v. Baker, 41 T. 419; Fulgham v. Chevallier, 10 T. 518; Burnley v. Cook, 13 T. 586, 65 Am. Dec. 79; Dearborn v. Phillips, 21 T. 449; Texas Land Co. v. Turman, 53 T. 623; Roe v. Dailey, 1 U. C. 247 (Gaskins v. Peebles, 44 T. 390; Sims v. Reddin, 20 T. 386; Lively v. Bristow, 12 T. 60; Clegg v. Darragh, 63 T. 357; Baldrige v. Cook, 27 T. 565, overruled, and the distinction laid down in Texas Land Co. v. Turman not recognized); Love v. Powell, 67 T. 15, 2 S. W. 456.

When an injunction is dissolved in chambers, the judge has no authority also to dismiss the suit, and consequently no appeal can be taken from such order. Price v. Bland, 44 T. 145; Grant v. Chambers, 34 T. 573; Aiken v. Carroll, 37 T. 73; Coleman v. Goyno, 37 T. 552; Wagner v. Edmiston, 1 App. C. C. § 673.

When the injunction is dissolved by reason of a sworn denial of the facts stated in the petition, the suit should be continued for a hearing on the merits if plaintiff demand or indicate his wish that this should be done. Washington County v. Schulz, 63 T. 32; Floyd v. Turney, 23 T. 292; Horton v. Jones, Dallam, 466; L. & H. Blum v. Schram & Co., 58 T. 524.

When, on the dissolution of an injunction, the plaintiff asks that the cause stand over for trial, it is error for the court to dismiss the suit if the averments of the petition entitled plaintiff to the relief sought, or could have been amended so as to state a good cause of action. Washington County v. Schulz, 63 T. 32; Hale v. McComas, 59 T. 484; Corsicana v. White, 57 T. 382; Pryor v. Emerson, 22 T. 162; Cook v. De La Garza, 13 T. 431; Gibson v. Moore, 22 T. 611; Pullen v. Baker, 41 T. 420; Gaskins v. Peebles, 44 T. 390; Sims v. Redding, 20 T. 387; Floyd v. Turner, 23 T. 292; Lively v. Bristow, 12 T. 60; Fulgham v. Chevallier, 10 T. 518; Baldrige v. Cook, 27 T. 565; Elington v. Allsbrooks, 21 T. 138; Eccles v. Daniels, 16 T. 137.

In a suit to set aside a judgment as obtained on perjured testimony, it was error, on dissolving the temporary injunction against a sale under the judgment, to dismiss the bill without a hearing on the merits. Avocato v. Dell' Ara (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 443.

Upon a petition to enjoin defendant from selling plaintiff's property on execution, in which a temporary injunction has been granted, the court, on dissolving the injunction, should not dismiss the suit, although plaintiff does not affirmatively demand a trial upon the merits. McKenzie v. Withers (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 413.

Partial dissolution.—A plaintiff held not entitled to complain of an order dissolving in part a temporary restraining order. Purdie v. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 364.

Dissolution on judgment in favor of defendant.—Absolute dissolution of a temporary injunction against a trespass by a condemnor on judgment in its favor held not improper. Rabb v. La Feria Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

Harmless error.—The denial of a motion for a postponement of the dissolution of an injunction, made on the sole ground that this article gave a technical right to 10 days' notice of a motion to dissolve, where there was no contention that the moving party was not ready for trial or prejudiced in any matter, was not reversible error, since it did not cause the rendition of an improper judgment under rule 62a (149 S. W. x), providing that reversal shall be for no other cause. McWilliams v. Commissioners' Court of Pecos County (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 368.

Art. 4665. [3008] Refunding bond on dissolution.—Upon the dissolution of any injunction restraining the collection of money, by an interlocutory order of the court or judge, made in term time or vacation, if the petition be continued over for trial, it shall be the duty of the court or judge to require of the defendant in such injunction proceedings a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the clerk of the court; which bond shall be payable to the complainant in double the amount of the sum enjoined, and conditioned to refund to the complainant the amount of money, interest and costs, which may be collected of him in the suit or proceeding enjoined, in the event such injunction is made perpetual on final hearing. [P. D. 3937.]

Application of statute.—An injunction restraining a substituted trustee under a deed of trust from selling the land, but saying nothing about the collection of the notes for which the deed of trust was security, was not one restraining the "collection of money" within this article. Hicks v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 845.

Rights of intervener.—An intervener in a suit for debt and foreclosure of an attachment lien has no right to have the money withheld from the judgment debtor, unless he gives a bond conditioned that he will pay plaintiff all the damages he might sustain if the intervener failed to show that he was not entitled thereto. Eichoff v. Tidball, 61 T. 421.

Art. 4666. [3009] Judgment on such bond.—In the event such injunction is perpetuated on final hearing, the court may, on motion of the complainant, enter judgment against the principal and sureties in any bond taken in accordance with the provisions of the preceding article for such amount as may be shown to have been collected from such complainant. [P. D. 3938.]

Art. 4667. [3010] Damages for delay.—Upon the dissolution of an injunction, either in whole or in part, on final hearing, where the collection of money has been enjoined, if the court be satisfied that the injunction was obtained only for delay, damages thereon may be assessed by the court, at ten per cent on the amount released by the dissolution of the injunction, exclusive of costs. [P. D. 3935.]

Right to damages in general.—Where goods are illegally seized under execution, plaintiff cannot recover damages for the erroneous issuance of an injunction to prevent a sale. Sumner v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 825.

The court, upon dissolving an injunction restraining a void judgment, held not authorized to enter judgment against plaintiff and his sureties, nor to award damages under this article. Givens v. Delprat, 28 C. A. 363, 67 S. W. 424.

On plaintiff's dismissal of his suit for an injunction, defendant may recover damages for the wrongful suing out of the injunction. Clevenger v. Cariker, 50 C. A. 562, 110 S. W. 795.

Where a temporary injunction staying the issuance of execution on a judgment which was not final was improperly dissolved, it was error to award the statutory penalty for suing out the injunction. Texas Co. v. Beddingfield, 53 C. A. 10, 114 S. W. 894.

In an action for wrongful injunction restraining plaintiff from removing a building, plaintiff held entitled to recover damages from the date of defendant's refusal to surrender, and not from the date of the writ. Hermann v. Allen (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 794.

An injunction restraining one from removing or interfering with a building held not to require him to leave appliances for moving houses which he had put under the building before the issuance of the injunction, and therefore on dissolution of the injunction he could not recover the value of the proper use of the appliances. Hermann v. Allen, 103 T. 382, 128 S. W. 115.

Where defendant was wrongfully prevented from removing his property from plaintiff's premises by an injunction sued out by plaintiff, defendant was entitled to recover the damages proximately resulting on a plea in reconvention. Lancaster v. Roth (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 597.

Discretion of court.—The assessment of damages is within the discretion of the judge, and will not be revised unless there has been manifest error. Pierrepont v. Sasse, 1 App. C. C. § 1298; Ross v. Lister, 14 T. 469; Fall v. Ratliff, 10 T. 291; Clegg v. Darragh, 63 T. 357; Perrin v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 927.

The trial court only can determine the question whether the injunction was sued out for delay, and whether the penalty should be allowed. Carpenter v. First Nat. Bank, 53 C. A. 23, 114 S. W. 906.

Measure and amount of damages.—On the dissolution of an injunction, the judgment against the sureties on the bond is limited to the 10 per cent. damages assessed by the court. Judgment cannot be rendered for the principal sum enjoined. T. & N. O. Ry. Co. v. White, 57 T. 129; Avery v. Stewart, 60 T. 154; Stone Cattle Co. v. Davis, 3 App. C. C. § 149; Bayless v. Alston, 1 App. C. C. § 1031; Johnson v. Moore, 2 App. C. C. § 210.

The proper measure of damages against one who improperly enjoined the collection of taxes is interest on the amount enjoined. Rosenberg v. Weeks, 67 T. 578, 4 S. W. 899.

Where property is levied on to satisfy a judgment, and one who is not a party thereto claims an injunction restraining the sale of the property, the plaintiffs in the judgment are not entitled, upon a dissolution of the injunction, to recover against the principal and sureties in the bond the amount of their judgment then remaining unpaid, without alleging damage or injury resulting from the grant of the injunction. Robertson v. Schneider, 1 C. A. 408, 20 S. W. 1129.

In estimating damages to be allowed a mill owner on dissolution of an injunction restraining him from cutting and using certain timber, it is proper to consider the cost to him of moving his tramway to other timber and of moving it back again. French v. McCready (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 894.

The allowance of $100 damages on dissolution of an injunction restraining the sale of certain personal property held a proper exercise of the trial court's discretion. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Jones, 41 C. A. 4, 90 S. W. 1129.

Attorney's fees or other expenses not taxable as costs held not recoverable as damages in a cross-action in the injunction suit. Carpenter v. First Nat. Bank of Sour Lake, 53 C. A. 23, 114 S. W. 904.

In an action for withholding possession of a building by wrongful injunction, the measure of damages was the reasonable rental value, and not interest on the value of the building. Hermann v. Allen (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 794.

That the submission of an appeal from a judgment perpetuating an injunction was postponed by stipulation held not to restrict defendant therein in an action for wrongful injunction to damages for the detention of his property which accrued subsequent to the final judgment of reversal on the appeal. Id.

Under this article, held that where defendant, in a suit to enjoin an execution, brought a cross-action for damages, but on the hearing showed no proof of damages caused by the temporary injunction, a judgment against the plaintiff and the sureties on his injunction bond for the full amount of the judgment upon which execution had issued was unauthorized. Patterson v. English (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 18.

Exemplary damages.—Exemplary damages are not recoverable for the malicious suing out of an injunction. Railway Co. v. Ware, 74 T. 47, 11 S. W. 918; Shackelford County v. Hounsfield (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 358.

Liability on injunction bond.—See notes under Art. 4654.

Art. 4668. [3011] Disobedience a contempt.—Disobedience of an injunction may be punished by the court or judge, in term time or in vacation, as a contempt. [P. D. 3934.]

Power to punish.—Where a writ of injunction has been irregularly or improvidently issued, it must be obeyed until it is dissolved, and one may be punished for disobeying it. Ex parte Breeding (Cr. App.) 90 S. W. 635, 636.

Under the express provisions of this article the court may in vacation punish one for a violation of an injunction. Ex parte Looper, 61 Cr. R. 129, 134 S. W. 345, Ann. Cas. 1913B, 32.

Art. 4669. [3012] Procedure in case of disobedience.—In case of such disobedience, the complainant, his agent or attorney, may file in the court in which such injunction is pending, or with the district or county judge, as the case may be, in vacation, his affidavit, stating the person guilty of such disobedience, and describing the act or acts constituting the same; and thereupon the court or judge shall issue, or cause to be issued, an attachment for such person, directed to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county, and requiring such officer to arrest the person therein named and have him before the court or judge at a time and place to be named in such writ.

Affidavit or complaint.—Under this article the issuance of attachment on the affidavit of another is a mere irregularity in process, so that one arrested under such circumstances, and after hearing committed on an order in the contempt proceeding, cannot, for such irregularity, obtain his release by habeas corpus, which is a proper remedy only where the court was without jurisdiction in the matter, or so exceeded its jurisdiction that its judgment was void. Ex parte Morgan, 57 Cr. R. 551, 124 S. W. 99, 136 Am. St. Rep. 996.

The complaint calling to the court's attention the fact that relator had violated an injunction restraining him from maintaining a disorderly house, when signed by the county attorney officially, is sufficient, though not verified by him. Ex parte Yoshida (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1166.

Consideration of merits.—The court, in proceeding to enforce by contempt a temporary injunction, need not consider the merits of the controversy or whether the injunction was improperly granted, but it is sufficient that the injunction was granted and was violated. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 56 C. A. 162, 121 S. W. 213.

Writ of commitment.—Where relator was adjudged guilty of contempt in violating an injunction restraining him from continuing to run a disorderly house, a writ of commitment for contempt, showing that the order was made in the court which had issued the injunction, is not invalid because, through a clerical error, it recited that it was given in another court. Ex parte Yoshida (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1166.

Art. 4670. [3013] Persons guilty to be imprisoned.—On return of such attachment, the court or judge shall proceed to hear proof; and, if satisfied that such person has disobeyed the injunction either directly or indirectly, he shall be committed to jail without bail until he purges himself of such contempt, in such manner and form as may be directed by the court or judge.

Violation of decree and punishment.—Where a court has authority to enjoin, its writ must be obeyed until dissolved, though irregular and erroneously granted. Ex parte Warfield, 40 Cr. R. 413, 50 S. W. 933, 76 Am. St. Rep. 724.

It is error to punish the violation of a preliminary injunction by instructing that defendant's testimony in his own behalf is not to be construed, as it is also error to regard obedience to a preliminary injunction by instructing that defendant is entitled to a verdict. Lake v. Copeland, 31 C. A. 358, 72 S. W. 99.

The fact that defendant in injunction suit had answered by an attorney held not to show that he had knowledge of the issuance of injunction. Ex parte Stone (Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 1000.

A party violating an injunction subsequently dissolved for an irregularity or want of equity held liable to punishment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cleburne Ice & Cold Storage Co., 37 C. A. 334, 83 S. W. 1100.

A decree against officers and agents of an insurance society, restraining them from canceling a certificate, is enforceable only by attachment of bodies and punishing the contumacious individuals. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy, 51 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.

Where persons against whom an injunction issued knew of it, its issuance, service, and conformity to statute held unimportant. Ex parte Young, 103 T. 470, 129 S. W. 599.

— Contempt.—In order to render one guilty of a contempt, consisting of the violation of an injunction, it is not necessary that the writ should have been served on him, if he had actual knowledge of its issuance. Ex parte Stone (Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 1000.

Under this article it appears that the sole authority vested in the court in such cases is to commit to jail until the recalcitrant party purges himself of such contempt in such manner and form as may be directed by the court; that is, on disobedience of an injunction, the court can imprison without bail and hold such party in custody until he purges himself after the manner and form directed by the court. Ex parte Morgan (Cr. App.) 86 S. W. 756.

Court of civil appeals held to have jurisdiction to punish as for contempt of court an agent violating, pending an appeal therefrom, an injunction of the district court enjoining the selling by defendants, their agents, etc., of certain railroad tickets. Lytle v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 41 C. A. 112, 90 S. W. 316.

An appellate court will not interfere with a judgment punishing for contempt in violating an injunction, unless the lower court was without jurisdiction or had no authority to render the particular judgment. Ex parte Garza, 50 Cr. R. 106, 95 S. W. 1059.

Complainant in an injunction suit held not to have so invited defendant to violate the injunction as to relieve defendant from contempt. Ex parte Cash, 50 Cr. R. 623, 99 S. W. 1118, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1304, 123 Am. St. Rep. 865.

The selling of tickets by a ticket broker, in violation of an injunction, held to have constituted a contempt. Id.

An order for contempt for the violation of an injunction held sufficient. Id.

That an affidavit for contempt for violating an injunction was sworn to on information and belief only did not deprive the court of jurisdiction to punish the party charged. Ex parte Dupree, 101 T. 150, 105 S. W. 493; Ex parte Byrd, 101 T. 157, 105 S. W. 496.

A writ of injunction served on an enjoined person held sufficient to render him guilty of contempt in disregarding it, even though through a clerical error it was made returnable at a date prior to its issuance. Ex parte Testard, 101 T. 250, 106 S. W. 319; Ex parte Howard, 101 T. 254, 106 S. W. 321.

The court having the power to restrain the grading of a sidewalk by a city in a proper case, that the injunction was erroneously issued under the circumstances would not prevent the city's agents from being guilty of contempt for violating the order. City of Marshall v. Allen (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 849.

One who, with knowledge of an injunction against another, aids and abets the latter in violating the injunction, is guilty of contempt. Ex parte Testard, 102 T. 287, 115 S. W. 1156, 20 Ann. Cas. 117.

The court, in proceeding to enforce by contempt a temporary injunction, need not consider the merits of the controversy or whether the injunction was properly granted. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 56 C. A. 162, 121 S. W. 213.

Parties having knowledge of injunction held guilty of contempt in disobeying it, whether parties to the suit and served with notice or not. Ex parte Young, 103 T. 470, 129 S. W. 599.

Under this article a provision, in an order committing persons for contempt in violating an injunction, that they be held until they purge themselves of the contempt in such manner as the court may direct, does not invalidate the judgment prescribing a fine and imprisonment; but, in case no direction is given by the judge who grants the writ, the parties will be entitled to be discharged on compliance with the expressed terms of the order. Id.

One restrained by a preliminary injunction held not entitled to urge in contempt proceedings for a violation of the injunction that he had not been given a speedy trial. Ex parte Roper, 61 Cr. R. 68, 134 S. W. 334.

— Collateral attack on decree.—Where the court has jurisdiction of the parties and the matter adjudicated in the sense that it has jurisdiction of the class of cases to which the particular case belongs, an injunction is not absolutely void, however erroneous the decision may be, and hence cannot be questioned in proceedings for violation thereof. Lytle v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 41 C. A. 112, 90 S. W. 316.

Art. 4671. [3014] General principles of equity applicable, when.—The principles, practice and procedure governing courts of equity shall govern proceedings in injunctions when the same are not in conflict with the provisions of this title or other law.

See Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Judgment.—See notes under Art. 4643.

Art. 4672. [3015] Injunction by the state.—The full right, power and remedy of injunction may be resorted to and invoked by the state at the instance of the county or district attorney or attorney general, to prevent, prohibit or restrain the violation of any revenue law of the state. [Acts 1888, p. 10, sec. 1.]

See Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Art. 4673. [3016] Shall be cumulative.—The right and remedy provided by the preceding article shall be cumulative of other laws in force in this state. [Id. sec. 2.]

INJUNCTIONS IN PARTICULAR CASES

Article 4674. Unlawful sale, etc., of liquors may be enjoined.—Any person, firm or corporation in this state who may engage in, pursue, carry on, or maintain, any of the following described occupations or callings under the circumstances and conditions herein described, are hereby declared to be the creators and promoters of a public nuisance, and may be enjoined at the suit either of the county or district attorney in behalf of the state, or of any private citizen thereof.

1. Any person, firm or corporation who may engage in or pursue the business of selling intoxicating liquor without having first procured the necessary license and paid the taxes required by law.

2. Any person, firm or corporation who may, as owner, proprietor or agent, establish, manage or conduct any public place or business where intoxicating liquors are stored, kept, drunk, sold or dispensed within any county or precinct within this state, wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law.

3. Any person, firm or corporation who may, under the pretense of selling or dispensing intoxicating liquor on prescription, in any county or precinct in this state wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law, and who in thus selling or dispensing such intoxicating liquor violates the law; provided, if, on final hearing, such injunction is sustained, the license of such person shall be revoked, and he shall not thereafter be permitted to again pursue such business for a period of one year.

4. Any person who, as a physician, follows the business of writing and issuing prescriptions to persons contrary to law, prescribing the use of intoxicating liquors to such persons, in any county or precinct in this state wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law.

5. Any person who shall engage in the business of peddling or "bootlegging" intoxicating liquor in any county or precinct in this state wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law.

6. Any person who canvasses or solicits orders for the sale of intoxicating liquor from persons other than those engaged in the lawful sale of the same in any county or precinct in this state wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law. [Acts 1907, p. 166, sec. 1.]

See Stockard v. Reid, 57 C. A. 126, 121 S. W. 1144; State v. De Silva, 105 T. 95, 145 S. W. 330.

Construction of statute.—A statute authorizing an injunction against the keeping of a house for the sale of liquors without a license held at least a penal statute, and must be strictly construed. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654.

Who may bring suit.—A lessee held not entitled to restrain the sublessee from selling intoxicants on the premises; but injunction will lie at the suit of a lessee, to prevent the sale on the premises by the sublessee of intoxicating liquors in violation of the original lease. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n (Sup.) 122 S. W. 254.

Liability of club.—A bona fide club, which, as a mere incident and without profit, furnishes liquor to its members, and not to the public generally, is not a person, "engaged in the occupation or business of selling intoxicating liquors," though each individual act of such club in territory where the sale of liquor is prohibited by law is a sale. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654.

Injunction against disorderly house.—An injunction against a disorderly house for the sale of liquors without a license, held not sustainable, under Pen. Code, art. 359, unless the persons doing the acts complained of may be prosecuted and convicted under the statute. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654.

Saloon without license limits.—The charter of Dallas (act of 1907) empowers the city to define limits within which saloons may be confined. Although one has obtained a saloon license under the act of 1907 regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, yet he can be enjoined from keeping a saloon without the prescribed limits in said city. Paul v. State, 48 C. A. 25, 106 S. W. 451.

Art. 4675. Procedure as in other cases.—The procedure in all cases brought under the preceding article shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, as nearly as may be; provided, that, when the suit is brought in the name of the state by any of the officers aforesaid, the petition for injunction need not be verified. [Id. sec. 2.]

Application.—By this act the legislature intended not to enlarge the powers of the district court to grant injunctions in local option cases, but rather to curtail them by requiring the judge in whose district the territory to be affected is situated to issue the writ with the exceptions enumerated. Merrill v. Savage, 49 C. A. 292, 109 S. W. 410.

Petition.—A private person, to be entitled to a temporary injunction under this article, must allege that a person named pursued the business of selling intoxicating liquors without a license; and a mere allegation in the petition that liquors are kept for sale on premises described, without defendant obtaining a license, is insufficient. Spence v. Fenchler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094.

— Verification.—A petition to enjoin a corporate club from illegally selling intoxicating liquor, when not required to be verified, is no evidence, even though verified. Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

In a suit to enjoin an incorporated club from selling intoxicating liquors and keeping a place for the purpose of gaming, and for a forfeiture of its franchise, the petition, alleging the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors and the keeping of a place for gambling, need not be verified by affidavit; the provisions relating to quo warranto not requiring verification, and this article and Art. 4688 expressly waiving the requirement of verification in petitions for injunctions to restrain such acts. Id.

Validity of injunction.—An injunction restraining a druggist licensed to sell liquor held not void because going beyond the limits authorized by law. Ex parte Roper, 61 Cr. R. 68, 134 S. W. 334.

Violation of injunction.—An injunction restraining a subtenant from selling intoxicating liquors on the leased premises held violated by sales made by a third person. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 56 C. A. 162, 121 S. W. 213.

A person held not, on the showing made, subject to punishment for the violation of an injunction restraining the selling or keeping for sale of intoxicants. Ex parte Griffin, 60 Cr. R. 502, 132 S. W. 770.

One convicted of selling whisky in violation of the local option law and of an injunction held not entitled to plead his conviction in bar of contempt proceedings for a violation of the injunction. Ex parte Looper, 61 Cr. R. 129, 134 S. W. 345, Ann. Cas. 1913B, 32.

Art. 4676. Persons compelled to testify.—Any person may be compelled to testify and give evidence in any proceeding under the two preceding articles, but such evidence shall not be used against such person in any criminal prosecution in this state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Constitutionality.—This act is constitutional. Burckell v. State, 47 C. A. 393, 106 S. W. 190.

Art. 4677. Cumulative remedy.—The foregoing remedy by injunction shall not be held to supersede or repeal any law now in force correcting the evils defined, but shall be cumulative of all such laws. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4678. Sale of intoxicating liquors in local option territory enjoined.—The actual, threatened or contemplated use of any place, room, premises, building or part thereof, in any county, justice precinct, town, city or subdivision of a county, as may be designated by the commissioners' court of said county, in which the sale of intoxicating liquors has been prohibited under the laws of this state, for the purpose of selling intoxicating liquor in violation of law, or in which to keep, store or deposit any intoxicating liquor for the purpose of being sold in violation of law, or the possession of, or having under control or management at any such place, or any intoxicating liquor for the purpose and with the intent to sell the same in violation of law, shall be enjoined at the suit of the state, or of any citizen thereof. [Acts 1910, 3 S. S. p. 35, sec. 11.]

Constitutionality.—This is not a special law under the terms of our constitution, nor is it invalid, and where an injunction has been granted under the provisions of this law, its violation can be punished as for contempt. Ex parte Dupree, 101 T. 150, 105 S. W. 493, et seq.

Jurisdiction upon unsworn petition.—The fact that the petition is not sworn to is a mere irregularity, which does not deprive the district court of jurisdiction. Ex parte Dupree, 101 T. 150, 105 S. W. 493, et seq.

Application.—An injunction to restrain a club from selling intoxicating liquors to its members cannot be granted under Pen. Code, art. 359, defining a disorderly house, unless the persons doing the acts complained of may be prosecuted under the statute. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654.

This act is at least quasi penal and must be strictly construed. Id.

Art. 4679. Who made party defendant.—Any person, company, corporation or association of persons who may so use, or be about to use, or who may aid or assist in any such actual or threatened use, of such place, room, premises, building or part thereof, or any person who may have, possess or manage for any such purpose any intoxicating liquor, or who may aid or assist another in thus possessing, having or maintaining or managing intoxicating liquor for such purpose, may be made a party defendant to such suit. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4680. By whom prosecuted.—The attorney general and the several district and county attorneys shall institute and prosecute all such injunction suits that the said attorney general or district or county attorney may deem necessary; provided, that such suit may be brought and prosecuted by any one of said officers; and provided, further, that nothing contained herein shall prevent said injunction from issuing at the suit of any citizen of this state who may sue in his own name, and any such citizen shall not be required to show that he is personally injured by reason of the matters and things of which he complains. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4681. Same proceedings as in other cases, except.—The procedure in all cases brought hereunder shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, or where injunction is sought, as near as may be; provided, that where the suit is brought in the name of the state by any of the officers aforesaid, the petition therefor need not be verified, nor shall the state be required to pay or give security for costs or on appeal; and appeal by the state shall be perfected by giving notice thereof in open court, and all such cases shall have precedence on the docket of all courts where pending. [Id. sec. 14.]

Application.—The application of this law is not restricted to local option laws proper (Arts. 5715-5730), but the law is a cumulative remedy, and applies in any prescribed territory, without regard to the method by which laws inhibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors are enacted or put in operation. Paul v. State, 48 C. A. 25, 106 S. W. 451.

Art. 4682. General reputation evidence.—In any proceeding under the provisions of the three preceding articles evidence of the general reputation of the house, place, building, premises or part thereof, or of the business, occupation or pursuit of the defendant involved, may be admitted in evidence as tending to prove the allegations of the complaint; provided, that in any investigation no person shall be exempt from giving testimony therein, but the testimony given by a witness shall not be used against him in any criminal action or proceeding, nor shall any criminal action or proceeding be brought against such witness on account of any testimony so given by him. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4683. Injunction against soliciting orders in local option districts.—The actual, threatened or contemplated pursuit of any such business mentioned in articles 7479 and 7480 of the title, "Taxation," in any local option territory, by any person or firm or association of persons or corporations, without there having first been procured a license therefor as provided in said articles, shall be enjoined at the suit of the state at the instigation of either the county or district attorney, or at the suit of any individual citizen of the county where the business is, or is about to be, pursued; and it shall not be necessary for any citizen to show that he has any pecuniary interest involved; and the state shall not be required to give security for cost, and all the rules of evidence, practice and procedure that pertain to courts of equity generally, or that exist by virtue of any law of this state, may be invoked and applied in any injunction proceeding instituted hereunder. [Acts 1909, p. 53, sec. 6.]

Art. 4684. Injunction against sale of non-intoxicating liquors without license.—The actual, threatened or contemplated pursuit of any such business mentioned in article 7476 of the title, "Taxation," by any such person or firm or association of persons or corporations, without there having first been procured a license therefor as provided in said article, shall be enjoined at the suit of the state at the instigation of either the county or district attorney, or at the suit of any individual citizen of the county where the business is, or is about to be, pursued; and it shall not be necessary for any citizen to show that he has any pecuniary interest involved, and the state shall not be required to give security for cost, and all the rules of evidence, practice and procedure that pertain to courts of equity generally, or that exist by virtue of any law of this state, may be invoked and applied in any injunction proceeding instituted hereunder. [Acts 1909, p. 51. Amended Acts 1909, 2 S. S. p. 397.]

Art. 4685. Use of premises for gaming enjoined.—The habitual use, actual, threatened or contemplated, use of any premises, place, building or part thereof, for the purpose of gaming or of keeping or exhibiting games prohibited by the laws of this state, shall be enjoined at the suit either of the state or of any citizen thereof. [Acts 1905, p. 372.]

Constitutionality.—This act is constitutional, and therefore valid. Ex parte Allison, 99 T. 455, 90 S. W. 870, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1111, 122 Am. St. Rep. 653.

Application.—This law only applies to those who own or have some control over the premises where the gambling is carried on. Ex parte Garza, 50 Cr. R. 106, 95 S. W. 1060, 1061.

Who may bring suit.—A gambling house is, under the statute, a nuisance, and may be enjoined at the instance of any one injured thereby. Ex parte Allison, 48 Cr. R. 634, 90 S. W. 492, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 622, 13 Ann. Cas. 684.

Petition.—See for petition to enjoin the use of premises for gaming held to be sufficient, Cain v. State ex rel., 106 S. W. 770.

Verification of petition.—In a suit to enjoin an incorporated club from selling intoxicating liquors and keeping a place for the purpose of gaming, and for a forfeiture of its franchise, the petition, alleging the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors and the keeping of a place for gambling, need not be verified by affidavit; the provisions relating to quo warranto not requiring verification, and Art. 4675 and this article expressly waiving the requirement of verification in petitions for injunctions to restrain such acts. Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Art. 4686. Parties and proceedings.—Any person who may so use, or who may be about to use, or who may aid or abet any other person in the use of any premises, place or building or part thereof, may be made a party defendant in such suit. [Id. sec. 1.]

Constitutionality.—See notes under Art. 4685.

Application.—See notes under Art. 4685.

Petition.—See notes under Art. 4685.

Art. 4687. Suits, by whom instituted.—The attorney general and the several district and county attorneys shall institute and prosecute all suits under the two preceding articles that said attorney general or such district or county attorney may deem necessary to enjoin such use; provided, that such suit may be brought and prosecuted by any one of said officers; and provided, further, that nothing in the above proviso contained shall prevent such injunction from issuing at the suit of any citizen of this state who may sue in his own name, and such citizen shall not be required to show that he is personally injured by the acts complained of. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4688. Procedure in other injunction cases.—The procedure in all cases brought hereunder shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, as near as may be; provided, that when the suit is brought in the name of the state by any of the officers aforesaid, the petition for injunction need not be verified. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4689. Use of premises for bawdy houses enjoined.—The habitual, actual, threatened or contemplated use of any premises, place, building or part thereof, for the purpose of keeping, being interested in, aiding or abetting the keeping of a bawdy or disorderly house, shall be enjoined at the suit of either the state or any citizen thereof. Any person who may use, or who may be about to use, or who may aid or abet any other person in the use of any premises, place or building or part thereof, may be made a party defendant in such suit; provided, that the provisions of this and the succeeding article shall not apply to nor be so construed as to interfere with the control and regulation of bawds and bawdy houses by ordinances of incorporated towns and cities acting under special charters and where the same are actually confined by ordinance of such city within a designated district of such city. [Acts 1907, p. 246.]

Bawdy houses.—This article makes bawdyhouses, except those regulated by ordinances of incorporated towns and cities acting under special charters, nuisances, subject to be abated by injunction at the suit of the state or any citizen; and such right may be limited as is done in the proviso. Spence v. Fenchler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094.

Adequacy of legal remedy.—The fact that the remedy by criminal prosecution for keeping a bawdy or disorderly house is adequate held not ground for refusing an injunction as provided for by Acts 30th Leg. p. 246, c. 132. Clopton v. State (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 994.

Art. 4690. By whom brought; proceedings as in other injunction cases.—The attorney general and the several district and county attorneys shall institute and prosecute all suits that said attorney general or such district or county attorney may deem necessary to enjoin such use; provided, that such suit may be brought and prosecuted by any one of such officers; and provided, further, that nothing in the above proviso contained shall prevent such injunction from issuing at the suit of any citizen of this state who may sue in his own name; and such citizen shall not be required to show that he is personally injured by the acts complained of; and the procedure in all cases brought hereunder shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, as near as may be; provided, that, when the suit is brought in the name of the state by any of the officers aforesaid, the petition for injunction need not be verified. [Id.]

See Spence v. Fenchler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094; and see notes under Art. 4643.

Petition.—A petition to restrain the use of a disorderly house sufficiently describes the premises by stating that the house is situated on the north side of a designated street in the town, and giving the name by which the locality is generally known. Lane v. Bell, 53 C. A. 213, 115 S. W. 918.

Appeal.—In case of an appeal from an order granting an injunction to restrain one from keeping a disorderly house, the court of appeals will not consider an answer filed to the merits after issuance of the writ, since it was not before the trial judge. Jelinc v. State, 52 C. A. 402, 115 S. W. 909.

Art. 4691. Bucket shops may be enjoined.—The habitual use, actual, threatened or contemplated, of any premises, place or building, for carrying on bucket shops, as defined in the penal laws of this state, or the habitual use by or permitting to remain in any bucket shop as defined, any telegraph or telephone wires or instruments, actual or threatened, under circumstances prohibited by the penal laws of this state, shall be enjoined at the suit of either the state or any citizen thereof. [Acts 1907, p. 172, sec. 11.]

Art. 4692. Who may enjoin.—The attorney general or the several district and county attorneys shall prosecute all suits deemed by them necessary to enjoin such use; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent such injunction from issuing at the suit of any citizen of this state who may sue in his own name, and such citizen shall not be required to show that he is personally injured by the acts complained of. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4693. Procedure as in other cases.—The procedure in all cases brought under the two preceding articles of this chapter shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, as near as may be; provided, that when such suit is brought by any district or county attorney or by the attorney general, the petition for injunction need not be verified. [Id. sec. 13.]

TITLE 70

INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—ACTIONS FOR

[See Limitations. See Arts. 1838, 1895, 5686-6648.]

Art. 4694. Action for injuries resulting in death, brought when.	Art. 4700. Executor, etc., may bring the action, when.
4695. Character of wrongful act.	4701. Suit does not abate by death of either party.
4696. Exemplary damages.	4702. Abates, when.
4697. Action commenced without regard to criminal proceedings.	4703. Executor, etc., of defendant made party, when.
4698. For whose benefit action to be brought.	4704. Damages to be apportioned by jury.
4699. Who may bring the action.	4704a. Actions for death caused in foreign state or country.

Article 4694. [3017] Actions for injuries resulting in death, brought when.—An action for actual damages on account of injuries, causing the death of any person may be brought in the following cases:

1st. When the death of any person is caused by the neglect or carelessness of the proprietor, owner, charterer or hirer of any railroad, steamboat, stage coach or other vehicle for the conveyance of goods, passengers, or by the unfitness, neglect or carelessness of their servants or agents; when the death of any person is caused by the neglect or carelessness of the receiver or receivers, or other person or persons in charge or control of any railroad, or their servants or agents; the liability of receivers shall extend to cases in which the death may be caused by reason of the bad or unsafe condition of the railroad or machinery or other reason or cause by which an action may be brought for damages on account of injuries, the same as if said railroad was being operated by the railroad company.

2nd. When the death of any person is caused by the wrongful act, neglect, unskillfulness or default of another person or corporation, their agents or servants. [Acts 1860, p. 32. Acts 1887, p. 44. Acts 1892, S. S., p. 5. Acts 1913, p. 288, sec. 1, amending Art. 4694, Rev. St. 1911.]

1914
Amended

1. Right of action in general.—The action accrues when the death is instantaneous. I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Kindred, 57 T. 491.

If one whose mental faculties are suspended by intoxicating drink is induced by another, by wager or otherwise, to continue to swallow spirituous liquor to such excess as manifestly to endanger his life, and he dies therefrom, he who thus takes advantage of his helpless and drunken condition is liable in damages to the surviving husband, wife, children and parents of the deceased. McCue v. Klein, 60 T. 168, 48 Am. Rep. 260.

At common law a parent cannot recover for loss of services of a minor child instantly killed. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Beall, 91 T. 310, 42 S. W. 1054, 41 L. R. A. 807, 66 Am. St. Rep. 992

Where a brakeman on defendant's train killed plaintiff's son, a trespasser on the train, and threw his body under the wheels, the mutilation of the body did not constitute a cause of action apart from the killing. Houston & T. Cent. R. Co. v. Bowen, 36 C. A. 165, 81 S. W. 80.

Where death is the result of two concurrent causes, it is not essential that both should be negligence in him, who put them in operation, and his negligence in either is sufficient to render him liable. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Higgins, 44 C. A. 523, 99 S. W. 200.

At common law there is no right of action for negligent death. Gutierrez v. El Paso & N. E. R. Co., 102 T. 373, 117 S. W. 426.

To sustain an action by a widow for herself and as next friend for her minor children for the unlawful killing of her husband, held only necessary to show an unlawful killing of decedent by defendant. Gray v. Phillips, 54 C. A. 148, 117 S. W. 870.

Since no action lay at common law for wrongful death, the statute creating the liability is the only warrant therefor. Kirby Lumber Co.'s Receivers v. Owens, 56 C. A. 370, 120 S. W. 936.

An action for the negligent death of a servant does not lie at common law, but the right to recover is wholly statutory. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Hanks, 104 T. 320, 137 S. W. 1120.

Though General Provisions, § 3, provides that the rule that statutes in derogation of the common law shall be construed strictly shall not apply, but the statutes shall be liberally construed to effect their objects, a right of action for negligent death of a servant must be founded on a statute fairly construed. Id.

Under this article an action against a telephone company for the death of the wife of a subscriber does not lie where the death was the result of natural causes, but the company failed to provide a communication between the subscriber and a physician, which indirectly prevented the wife from receiving medical attention which might have saved her life, since the contingency is too remote on which to base an action based on breach of contract. Deweese v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 732.

Right of action against a private corporation for wrongful death exists only under this article. Williams v. Coca-Cola Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 759.

Under this article and Art. 4695, an action cannot be maintained, unless decedent could have maintained an action for damages for his injury, had he not died therefrom, so that a guardian of infants could not maintain an action for damages to the infants for the wrongful murder of their mother by her husband, since the mother could not have maintained an action against defendant, her husband, had she survived. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 322.

At common law one cannot maintain an action for damages for wrongfully causing the death of a third person, though murder was committed in causing the death so as to subject defendant to a prosecution. Id.

2. Conflict of laws.—The rule that the right to recover damages resulting from personal injuries is governed by the law of the place where the injury was received held to apply to actions to recover for injuries causing death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1165.

3. Jurisdiction—Actions under laws of other state or foreign country.—See notes under Art. 1712.

4. Construction of statute as to carriers and railroads included.—This article includes street railroads. Bammell v. Kirby, 19 C. A. 198, 47 S. W. 392.

This article is intended to apply to common carriers, and does not apply to tram railroads owned and operated by private individuals on their own premises for private purposes. Ott v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 534.

Denial by the supreme court of a writ of error to review a decision of the court of civil appeals, adjudging that a logging road of a lumber company is a "railroad" within this article, is a decision of the supreme court that such road is a railroad, and the decision is conclusive on the court of civil appeals on a subsequent appeal, and the court will not certify the question to the supreme court. Rice & Lyon v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 961.

Subdivision 1 of this article applies to carriers transporting persons or freight from some point of origin to some more or less distant point of destination, and does not apply to an elevator in an office building used to transport persons visiting the building; the words "other vehicle" meaning a vehicle performing, substantially at least, the same office and serving the same necessities as a railroad, steamboat, or stagecoach. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Hanks, 104 T. 320, 137 S. W. 1120, reversing (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 147.

A logging railroad, owned and operated by a lumber company solely in its own business, is a railroad within this article. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Sup.) 155 S. W. 179.

5. "Another" defined.—The word "another," used in the second clause, refers to another person as a class of persons similar to that whose death is occasioned. Ritz v. City of Austin, 1 C. A. 455, 20 S. W. 1029.

The word "another," as used in this article means another person, and includes private corporations. Williams v. Coca-Cola Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 759.

6. "Any railroad" defined.—The words "a railroad" in Art. 6640 are used in the same sense as the words "any railroad" in this article, and the latter repel the idea that a par-particular class of railroads was not intended to be included, and persons not common carriers are liable for damages caused by operating railroads. Lodwick Timber Co. v. Taylor, 39 C. A. 302, 87 S. W. 359.

7. "Passenger" defined.—The shipper of cattle in charge of the same, riding on the freight train without charge, is a passenger. Railway Co. v. Aiken, 71 T. 373, 9 S. W. 437.

8. "Person" defined. The word "person" means a natural person, and not an artificial person, such as a corporation. Ritz v. City of Austin, 1 C. A. 455, 20 S. W. 1029.

A private corporation is a "person," within this article. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

9. Negligence of municipal corporation.—An action for damages does not lie in favor of a parent the death of whose child was caused by the negligence or wrongful act of a municipal corporation. Searight v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 857.

10. — Officers.—If city authorities cause the removal of a person afflicted with a contagious disease, and in doing so fail to exercise the care and precaution the circumstances demand, and death results, they are responsible, though acting under a city ordinance. Aaron v. Broiles, 64 T. 316, 53 Am. Rep. 764.

11. Negligence of railroad company.—As to due care, see Railway Co. v. Crosnoe, 73 T. 79, 10 S. W. 342; Railway Co. v. Higby (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 737; Railway Co. v. Smith, 87 T. 357, 28 S. W. 524; Same v. Watkins, 88 T. 20, 29 S. W. 232; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Roberts, 14 C. A. 532, 37 S. W. 870.

Gross negligence is that entire want of care which would raise a presumption of a conscious indifference to consequences. Railway Co. v. Beeman, 74 T. 291, 11 S. W. 1102.

It is gross negligence to run an engine across a public street at a speed of fifteen miles an hour, contrary to ordinance, and without giving signals. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 21 S. W. 424, 2 C. A. 281.

Where deceased was killed in a collision, and the defense was that the air brakes on defendant's train failed to work, held not error to charge that if, by reasonable care, defendant could have stopped the train by other means, failure to do so was negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ransom, 15 C. A. 689, 41 S. W. 826.

The fact that the hospital department is operated in connection with the claim and legal department for the benefit and profit of the railway company, and as an essential department of its service as a common carrier, brings a case where a patient in the hospital contracts the smallpox and dies within the terms of this statute. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 543.

A railroad company established a hospital and contracted with its employes, in consideration of a monthly sum contributed out of their wages, to furnish them when sick or injured surgical and medical attention. One of its servants was injured and went to this hospital for treatment. There he was brought in contact with persons having smallpox, but left before the disease was developed on him, and returned to his work for the railroad company. The smallpox soon developed upon him, and he was placed in a pesthouse under the control of a local surgeon in the employment of the company. The surgeon employed an incompetent and irresponsible person and put him in charge of the smallpox patient. This person left the camp without having changed or disinfected his clothing, went upon the streets of a town, and met and communicated the disease to another person, who died. The railroad company was not liable for the death thus caused, as the negligence of the surgeon could not be regarded as the negligence of the road itself under subdivision 2 of this article, and the first subdivision does not apply because the maintenance of the hospital where the disease was contracted is not peculiar to the carrier's business, but merely collateral thereto. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Freeman, 97 T. 394, 79 S. W. 9, 1 Ann. Cas. 481.

Failure of a railroad company to exercise ordinary care in moving its train into a depot, by reason of which deceased was struck and killed, held actionable negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jackson, 41 C. A. 51, 90 S. W. 918.

Railroad company held not liable for death of person sitting on railroad track where, when the trainmen discovered the object on the track, they did not recognize it as a human being. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McMillan, 100 T. 562, 102 S. W. 103.

Railroad company held not liable for causing death of person seen standing on the track, in the absence of something indicating to the trainmen that he was unable to leave or that he would not do so. Id.

In an action for the death of a person killed by a locomotive, duty of the engineer upon discovering the person's peril held to be to use every means at hand consistent with the safety of the train to avoid the injury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Munn, 46 C. A. 276, 102 S. W. 442.

In an action against a railroad for the death of an employe of another railroad in a collision at a crossing, defendant's employes held guilty of negligence. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Murtle, 49 C. A. 273, 108 S. W. 998.

The maintenance of a cut and dump by a railroad 600 feet from a crossing was not negligence rendering it liable for death at the crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bratcher, 54 C. A. 10, 118 S. W. 1091.

Maintenance by railroad company of tower house of interlocking plant held not negligence constituting independent ground of recovery for death at crossing. Id.

Under this article the owner of a railroad is not liable unless the negligence occurred in or was directly connected with operating the road. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. McSween (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 139.

12. Negligence of electric and telephone companies.—Persons dealing with electricity, and failing to exercise proper care to see that their plant is properly constructed, are liable for death resulting therefrom, though the plant itself is operated by their employes. Cole v. Parker, 27 C. A. 563, 66 S. W. 135.

An electric company and a telephone company held jointly liable for a death occasioned by a charged guy wire attached to the electric company's pole by the telephone company, and allowed to remain in a dangerous position by both companies. San Marcos Electric Light & Power Co. v. Compton, 48 C. A. 586, 107 S. W. 1151.

An electric light company held not liable for the death of a trespasser through coming in contact with a live wire, charged through the failure of the company to comply with city ordinances. Burnett v. Ft. Worth Light & Power Co., 102 T. 31, 112 S. W. 1040, 19 L. R. A. (N. S.) 504.

Under this article an electric company furnishing light to an employer is liable for the death of an employé of such employer occasioned by the electric company's negligence in permitting its light wires to become heavily charged with electricity and thereby causing a metallic tank in the employer's plant to be charged with electricity, by coming in contact with which the employé is killed. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Figott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 842.

An electric company permitting an uncovered guy wire stretched over the roof of a building to become charged with electricity, in violation of ordinance, held liable for death of a person resulting therefrom. Burnett v. Ft. Worth Light & Power Co. (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 175.

Decedent's husband and children held not entitled to recover from a telephone company for her death, through the company breaking a general contract for telephone service, resulting in a delay in procuring a physician. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Solomon, 54 C. A. 306, 117 S. W. 214.

This article does not authorize an action for death caused by the failure of a telephone company to provide a way of communication between a subscriber and a physician to attend the wife of the subscriber suffering from a disease resulting in her death for want of medical attention. Deweese v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 732.

13. Negligence of owner or landlord of building.—The owner of a defective hotel building held liable for the death of one killed, where he was lawfully on such premises. Texas Loan Agency v. Fleming, 18 C. A. 668, 46 S. W. 63.

A landlord held not liable for the death of a third person by falling through an unguarded door on an upper story of the premises. Texas Loan Agency v. Fleming, 92 T. 458, 49 S. W. 1039, 44 L. R. A. 279.

14. Negligence of master.—Employer held not to have furnished deceased employé with safe place to work. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626.

A master held not liable for the death of his servant by reason of his failure to provide a watchman to look out for engines entering the factory yard. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns, 96 T. 573, 74 S. W. 758.

A master held not liable for the death of his servant by his failure to enact rules for the safety of his employés. Id.

Under this article a right of action exists in favor of a wife and children against a lumber company for the death of the husband and father, alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the defendant, if the negligence upon which the suit is predicated is the personal negligence of defendant. The basis of the action in this case is the negligence of the company, the employer of the deceased, in failing to keep a railroad track in its yards and the engine in repair, both being appliances of which the deceased was required to make use in the performance of his duties. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 612.

Where defendant required deceased to go on top of certain tanks belonging to another, it was defendant's duty either to see that the tanks were properly constructed, or to warn deceased of their improper construction. Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 332.

Death of employé struck by hoisting bucket held caused by the negligence of a vice principal who directed another employé to signal the engineer to permit the bucket to drop without warning the employé or ascertaining whether he was in a position of danger. William Miller & Sons Co. v. Wayman (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 197.

15. Liability for act of agent or employé.—Where the agent of an express company and also of the railroad company places men in the depot building for the purpose, and they kill a person under the impression that he is attempting to commit a burglary, the company is not liable for damages for the death, since it is not alleged that the company is the proprietor, etc., of a railroad, and the death was not the result of its own wrongful acts or omission. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lipscomb (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 954.

A party is not liable for the act or omission of his agents, causing death, but death must result from his own immediate act or omission, etc. If one is negligent in seeing that an electric plant is properly constructed before it is operated, then if an injury occurs, it is his immediate act, or rather his omission, though the plant was operated by his employés. Cole v. Parker, 27 C. A. 563, 66 S. W. 136.

The proprietor of an eating house is not responsible for the shooting by its agent of a patron, where the agent was not acting in any matter relating to his duties. Lytle v. Crescent News & Hotel Co., 27 C. A. 530, 66 S. W. 240.

Under this article one's liability for damages arises from his own wrongful act, negligence, unskillfulness or default, and not from any negligence on the part of an employé. Where the negligence of an employé concurs in causing the injury, but it could not have occurred without the negligence of the employer, then the latter is just as liable as if there had been no concurrence. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Davidson, 35 C. A. 558, 80 S. W. 1034.

Where a railway brakeman, after having killed a trespasser on the train, threw the body on the track to conceal the crime, the railway company was not liable for the mutilation of the body. Houston & T. Cent. R. Co. v. Bowen, 36 C. A. 165, 81 S. W. 80.

Where a brakeman on a freight train had authority to eject a trespasser, and in so doing shot and killed him, the railroad company was liable therefor. Id.

Act of servant in turning current of compressed air on a bystander, causing his death, held within scope of servant's employment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Currie (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1100.

That a killing by a servant may be intentional and yet the result of his negligence, is within the statute. When the death is produced through the negligence in any recognized form, as a proximate cause, the statute applies. Any act which is merely rash, reckless, or wanton, as distinguished from intentional, or made without regard to consequences, is negligent. Id.

A railroad held liable under the statute for death caused by the negligence of its servants, though the servant intentionally does the act which is the proximate cause of death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Currie, 100 T. 136, 96 S. W. 1073, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 367.

Under this article an electric company is responsible for the negligence of its employes in leaving high voltage wires uninsulated, which results in the death of an employe. San Antonio Gas & Electric Co. v. Bidders, 46 C. A. 559, 103 S. W. 230, 231.

Under this article a party is not liable for the act or omission of his agents causing death, but death must result from his own immediate act or omission. Williams v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 125.

The proprietor, owner, charterer or hirer of any railroad, or the receiver or other person in charge of any railroad, is liable for the death of person caused by the negligence of a servant or agent when such railroad is not used as a common carrier, but merely as an incident to the principal business. Kirby Lumber Co.'s Receivers v. Owens, 56 C. A. 370, 120 S. W. 936.

A railroad company held not liable for the act of a servant in killing a person done outside the scope of his employment. Hidalgo v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 683.

If a servant's death resulted from the negligence of the employer's agent placed in charge of its plant to control and direct the employes, the act of such servant would be the employer's act so as to make it liable. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 852.

The negligent failure of an employe of a corporation operating an electric light plant and using wires for the distribution of dangerous currents of electricity to inspect the appliances, resulting in the death of a person by electric shock received from a broken wire, is the negligence of the corporation, and it is liable within subdivision 2 of this article. Jacksonville Ice & Electric Co. v. Moses (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 379.

Any negligence of a physician employed to treat a lumber company's employes' families held not within this article. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. McSween (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 139.

Under this article one maintaining a swimming pool for the use of the public, in which plaintiff's minor son was drowned, was only liable for his own negligence in failing to provide sufficient competent attendants to guard against such occurrences, but was not liable for any negligence on the part of the attendants provided in failing to promptly rescue decedent on his falling into danger. Levinski v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 959.

Under this article plaintiff cannot recover in the absence of proof that decedent was employed by the general manager, the only person for whose negligence the corporation would be liable, and in the absence of proof that the general manager negligently set decedent at work without warning. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Camp, 105 T. 130, 145 S. W. 902.

16. Contributory negligence.—Intoxication, when contributing to personal injury, is chargeable as negligence. Railway Co. v. Evans, 71 T. 361, 9 S. W. 325, 1 L. R. A. 476.

Where the injury does not result from a wrongful act, but from an intervening cause, such as the negligence of the party injured, a railway company is not liable therefor. Railway Co. v. Chambers, 73 T. 296, 11 S. W. 279.

Where there are concurrent causes of an injury, each of which contributed thereto, the fact that one of the causes might have been avoided by the plaintiff, or that with reference to it he might have been guilty of contributory negligence, will not exempt the company as to the other cause. Railway Co. v. Shearer, 1 C. A. 343, 21 S. W. 133.

A person is guilty of contributory negligence who attempts to cross a railroad at a street crossing without looking for trains, and is killed by a train that he might have seen if he had looked. Railway Co. v. Brown, 21 S. W. 424, 2 C. A. 281.

The fact that the engine was running at a rapid rate would not excuse want of care on the part of deceased. Id.

Contributory negligence defined. Railway Co. v. Fuller, 24 S. W. 1090, 5 C. A. 660; Railway Co. v. Giddings (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1125; Railway Co. v. Herrin, 26 S. W. 425, 6 C. A. 718; Railway Co. v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 760; Fordyce v. Allen (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 437; Wilson v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 753.

Carrier not liable for the death of one riding on its train in violation of a regulation of which reasonable publicity has been given, although the rule has at various times been violated. Railway Co. v. Lynch, 28 S. W. 252, 8 C. A. 513.

As to contributory negligence, see Railway Co. v. Lively, 14 C. A. 554, 38 S. W. 370; Railway Co. v. Curlin, 13 C. A. 505, 36 S. W. 1003.

Woman driving gentle horse over crossing obstructed by defendant, and killed by being thrown from the wagon after her horse had become frightened at the obstruction, held not guilty of contributory negligence. Sherman, S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Bridges, 16 C. A. 64, 40 S. W. 536.

In an action for the death of a traveler at a highway crossing, held, that the deceased was guilty of contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Polk (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 343.

The contributory negligence of a person killed on railroad track held to preclude a recovery therefor from the company. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cowles, 29 C. A. 156, 67 S. W. 1078.

Where deceased was run over by a train in a place used by the public as a street, he was not a trespasser or guilty of contributory negligence by reason of being there. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Matthews, 34 C. A. 302, 79 S. W. 71.

In an action against a railroad for the death of an employe of another railroad in a collision at a crossing, decedent held not guilty of contributory negligence. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Murtie, 49 C. A. 273, 108 S. W. 998.

That a pedestrian was guilty of contributory negligence on a railway track held not to preclude recovery for his death. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gullett (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 262.

17. — Children.—A child 17 months old cannot be guilty of contributory negligence. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 21 C. A. 167, 51 S. W. 276.

A boy 10 years old, killed by a railroad train, held not chargeable with contributory negligence. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Abernathy, 28 C. A. 613, 68 S. W. 539.

A boy, 16 years of age and familiar with railroading, killed while riding on one of defendant's freight trains in violation of a rule of the company, held guilty of contributory negligence. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 35 C. A. 186, 79 S. W. 1101.

18. — Imputed negligence.—The contributory negligence of the husband cannot be imputed to the wife, who was injured by a collision of the train with the wagon driven by him. Railway Co. v. Kutac, 76 T. 473, 13 S. W. 327.

The negligence of the parent cannot be imputed to his child. Allen v. T. & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 943. Citing Railway Co. v. Moore, 59 T. 64, 46 Am. Rep. 265; Williams v. Railway Co., 60 T. 205; Telegraph Co. v. Hoffman, 80 T. 422, 15 S. W. 1048, 26 Am. St. Rep. 759; Railway Co. v. Fletcher, 26 S. W. 446, 6 C. A. 736.

In a mother's action for death of a son at a railroad crossing, she is not bound by the negligence of one to whom she did not intrust the child. Taylor, B. & H. R. Co. v. Warner (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 442.

19. — Necessity of pleading.—See notes at end of Chapter 8, Title 37.

20. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—Negligence of the injured party does not prevent recovery if the accident could have been avoided by use of reasonable care by the defendant. Railway Co. v. Farrell (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 942.

A railroad company held liable for the death of a trespasser on its train where it could have prevented or lessened the accident. De Palacios v. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 612.

Where a boy killed by defendant's train was discovered in his perilous position by defendant's servants in time to have possibly prevented his death, a judgment for negligently causing his death should be sustained, though he was also negligent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Haltom (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 800.

Where a person killed while walking on a railroad track was guilty of contributory negligence it was necessary in order to recover for the death to prove that after the operatives of the train discovered that deceased was in danger they failed to use all the means at hand to stop the train. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ploeger (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 56.

A railway company is liable for the death of a pedestrian at a street crossing, though he be negligent in exposing himself to injury, if the employés in charge of the train know of his peril in time to avoid his injury by the use of means and agencies at hand. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 144.

21. Fellow servants—Negligence of.—An action against an employer, for the death of an employé, caused by the negligence of a fellow employé, not occupying the position of vice principal, is not maintainable under subdivision 2 of this article. Bledsoe v. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 910.

22. — Who are.—See notes under Art. 6642.

23. Assumption of risk.—An employé assumes capacity to perform labor where the danger is patent. Eddy v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 295, citing Railway Co. v. French, 23 S. W. 644, 86 T. 96; Railway Co. v. Lemp, 59 T. 22; Railway Co. v. Tarver, 72 T. 308, 11 S. W. 1043; Railway Co. v. Hester, 64 T. 403.

One voluntarily exposing himself to an apparent danger of injury assumes the risk. Bonnet v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 525.

One, having the time and opportunity to learn of the condition of a lodging house as to fire escapes, by voluntarily remaining in the building assumed the danger of any failure to provide adequate escapes. Radley v. Knepfly (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 447.

In an action for death from electric shock, held that the doctrine of assumed risk was not presented. Temple Electric Light Co. v. Halliburton (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 584.

24. Proximate cause of injury.—The presence of a mudhole in a street caused by a railroad's negligence held not the proximate cause of the death of plaintiff's decedent by being thrown from his buggy when his horse, frightened by defendant's train, ran away. Neely v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 96 T. 274, 72 S. W. 159.

To attribute death to two or more concurrent causes, each must be a prominent efficient cause; for, if one of the alleged causes operates slightly with another, which is the prominent efficient cause, then proximate cause of death should be traced to the latter. Ellyson v. International & G. N. R. Co., 33 C. A. 1, 75 S. W. 868.

Where intestate's horse was frightened by the blowing off of steam from defendant's engine after deceased had gotten control of him, deceased's previous negligence in getting into the buggy held not the proximate cause of his death. Hord v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 33 C. A. 163, 76 S. W. 227.

Negligence of defendant in obstructing a street by a gangway held proximate cause of death of plaintiff's husband, notwithstanding intervening act of defendant's servant in running a truck down the gangway. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Davidson, 35 C. A. 558, 80 S. W. 1032.

In an action against a railroad company for the death of one struck by a train, the negligence of an employé held the proximate cause of decedent's death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 408.

If injuries received by decedent, through defendant's negligence, developed tuberculosis in decedent, her husband and minor children could recover, although she was predisposed to tuberculosis and died therefrom. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Groner, 51 C. A. 65, 111 S. W. 667.

The death of a servant, caused by the falling of a pile of cotton seed, held not the result alone of the action of gravity on the pile, but of the nonperformance of the duty of the master to protect him. Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Curvier (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1132.

In an action for death of a pedestrian, defendant's negligence in failing to discover and guard against decedent's peril and not his contributory negligence in walking on the track held the proximate cause of his death. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Broomhead (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 820.

25. Nominal damages.—The right of action for death being of purely statutory origin, the doctrine of nominal damages has no applicability. McGown v. I. & G. N. Ry. Co., 85 T. 289, 20 S. W. 80; Rader v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 718.

26. Exemplary damages.—See notes under Art. 4696.

27. Measure and amount of damages.—Measure of damages resulting to the husband or child from death of his wife. Railway Co. v. Southwick (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 592.

Measure of damages for personal injuries not resulting in death, see Railway Co. v. Bowlin (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 918; Farrar v. Beeman, 63 T. 180; Railway Co. v. Curry, 64 T. 86; Railway Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 257; Railway Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 111; Railway Co. v. Muth, 7 C. A. 443, 27 S. W. 752; Mo., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 771.

In an action by the widow and children of the deceased for his death, the measure of damages was defined. Louisiana Western Extension Ry. Co. v. Carstens, 19 C. A. 190, 47 S. W. 36.

In action for death, the measure of damages is the value of decedent's life "to the plaintiffs." Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Johnson, 27 C. A. 420, 66 S. W. 72.

The measure of damages, in an action by parents for the wrongful death of their son, defined. Cole v. Parker, 27 C. A. 563, 66 S. W. 135.

The statute relating to wrongful death does not limit the damages which may be awarded to children of the deceased to such as accrue during their minority. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Puente, 30 C. A. 246, 70 S. W. 362.

Measure of damages for the death of a child determined. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Olds (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 787.

The measure of recovery by a widow and minor children for the unlawful killing of decedent stated. Gray v. Phillips, 54 C. A. 148, 117 S. W. 870.

The measure of damages to adult children in an action for the death of their mother, defined. Rader v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 718.

Damages for a wife and mother's wrongful death cannot be estimated with exactness, so that the amount is largely for the jury's discretion. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 690.

28. — Inadequate damages.—A verdict of $500 for negligently killing plaintiff's husband, who was 28 years old, in perfect health, constantly employed, and contributed $300 per year for her support, held inadequate. Burns v. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co., 26 C. A. 223, 63 S. W. 1061.

29. — Excessive damages.—Verdicts for the following amounts have been sustained: $2,000 awarded a mother for the death of her son. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Royall, 18 C. A. 86, 43 S. W. 815. $2,000 for the death of a son 7 years of age. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 61. $2,250 for the death of an adult son. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Huey (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1017. $2,572 in favor of a mother for the death of her two sons, 18 and 19 years old, respectively. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shoemaker (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1019. $3,500 by parents for the death of their infant son. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bolen (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 860. $3,750 for death of child of 7. *Taylor, B. H. R. Co. v. Verdicts were held not to be excessive in actions by a widowed mother for the death of her married son. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 408. By decedent's wife and children. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 144. By a wife. Freeman v. Griewe (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 730. By a son for death of his father. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Delaney, 22 C. A. 427, 55 S. W. 538. For causing the death of plaintiff's minor son. Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Washington, 24 C. A. 422, 58 S. W. 1042. By parents for the death of a child. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Olds (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 787.

Verdicts in the following actions for death were held not to be excessive: Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 48 C. A. 135, 106 S. W. 773; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Boyce, 39 C. A. 195, 87 S. W. 395; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hays, 44 C. A. 462, 98 S. W. 911; El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Murtle, 49 C. A. 273, 108 S. W. 998; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 150; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trippett, 50 C. A. 279, 111 S. W. 761.

Verdicts were held to be excessive: In an action by parents for the negligent death of their son. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841. And in an action by a child for the death of his father. Freeman v. Griewe (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 730.

30. Mitigation or reduction of damages.—Insurance money payable on an accident policy will not be set off against the damage caused by the negligent act of another, resulting in death. Tyler & S. E. Ry. Co. v. Raspberry, 13 C. A. 185, 34 S. W. 794.

Where the wife is killed through the negligence of the defendant, the subsequent marriage of the husband does not in any manner operate to mitigate the damages for which the wrongdoer was responsible. Railway Co. v. Younger, 90 T. 387, 38 S. W. 1121.

Insurance on life of deceased is not to be considered in estimating the damages. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 846.

In an action by the wife for damages for the death of her husband, evidence that she obtained insurance money after his death is inadmissible in mitigation of damages. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cody, 20 C. A. 520, 50 S. W. 135.

That decedent's life was insured, and that plaintiffs would be entitled to collect the policy was no ground or reducing the damages allowable on account of his death. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lemair, 55 C. A. 237, 119 S. W. 1162.

In an action by a wife for damages for the unlawful shooting and killing of her husband, evidence of the husband's abandonment of the wife is admissible on the issue of plaintiff's pecuniary damages. Holland v. Closs, 146 S. W. 671.

In the action by a wife for damages for the unlawful shooting and killing of her husband, the circumstances of the improper relations of deceased with the daughter of defendant were admissible in mitigation of exemplary damages only. Id.

31. Elements of compensation—In general.—In an action by a wife for the wrongful death of her husband, the jury may give such damages as they think proportioned to the injury resulting from his death. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Loeffler (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 536.

In an action for the negligent killing of plaintiffs' husband and father, plaintiffs are not entitled to recover a sum equal to all the benefits that would have been received from the decedent in the future, had he not been killed. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Sivells, 28 C. A. 497, 67 S. W. 517.

The persons given a right of action for wrongful death by the statute held only entitled to recover damages upon showing actual damage sustained. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 690.

32. — Loss of pecuniary benefits.—In an action for death of plaintiff's husband, she could recover the pecuniary damages sustained, and the measure was the probable amount that he would have contributed to her support. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hines (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 152.

Adult children held not restricted to a recovery only for the loss of such pecuniary benefits from the death of their mother as would have resulted from her mental and bodily labor. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Long, 19 C. A. 649, 48 S. W. 599.

Measure of damages is a sum equal to the pecuniary benefit plaintiffs would have had a reasonable expectation of receiving from deceased. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hughes, 22 C. A. 134, 54 S. W. 264.

In action for death of son, the parents are entitled to recover only the "present value" of the pecuniary aid they might have received from their son, and not the sum total thereof. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 931.

In an action for wrongful death, the measure of damages is such a sum of money as, if paid now, would fairly compensate plaintiffs for the pecuniary loss sustained. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Waller, 27 C. A. 44, 65 S. W. 210.

Parents, suing for death of infant son, held entitled to recover pecuniary value of his services to them after majority. Freeman v. Carter, 28 C. A. 571, 67 S. W. 527.

Where, in an action for death, there was no evidence of pecuniary loss to decedent's father, a finding in his favor was erroneous. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 542.

The measure of damages for death by wrongful act is the pecuniary loss sustained by plaintiffs. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Brock, 35 C. A. 155, 80 S. W. 422.

In an action for death of plaintiff's 13-year old son, plaintiffs held entitled to allege and prove that they had a reasonable expectation of receiving pecuniary aid from decedent after he arrived at majority, which was of the value of $5,000. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Snowden, 44 C. A. 509, 99 S. W. 865.

In an action for death, an instruction confining plaintiff's recovery to loss of pecuniary benefits and defining such term held proper. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Rutland, 45 C. A. 621, 101 S. W. 529.

Parents suing for the negligent death of their minor son can only recover the pecuniary benefits they would have received from the son had he lived. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

In an action for wrongful death, recovery is limited to the present value of the pecuniary aid plaintiffs have a reasonable expectation that decedent would have contributed to them had he lived, and excluding any allowance for grief and loss of society and affection. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1043.

Damages for the death of plaintiff's mother are to be measured by the children's pecuniary loss, and they are not entitled to damages for defendant's negligence independent of financial injury. Rader v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 719.

Widow and minor children held entitled to recover an amount which would compensate them for the pecuniary loss resulting from the death of the husband and father. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Salisbury (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 252.

33. — Suffering of deceased.—Mental or physical pain suffered by decedent is not an element of damage in an action for wrongful death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

34. — Grief and loss of society, care, counsel and training.—Loss of decedent's society or grief on account of his death is not an element of damage in an action for wrongful death. McGown v. I. & G. N. Ry. Co., 85 T. 289, 20 S. W. 80; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

In an action for wrongful death of plaintiff's son, plaintiff is not entitled to recover for mental anguish. Houston & T. Cent. R. Co. v. Bowen, 36 C. A. 165, 81 S. W. 80.

In an action for death by wrongful act, the earning capacity of deceased is not the only matter to be considered, but his services in working about his home and premises and the caring for and counsel to his children were proper matters for consideration. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 991.

By pecuniary benefits is meant not only money, but everything that can be valued in money and includes in case of a minor child who is suing for death of parent, the reasonable value of such nurture, care and education as the child would have received from the deceased parent had he lived. But neither sorrow for the loss of a deceased relative, nor the loss of his or her society is the subject of recovery. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. McVey, 99 T. 28, 87 S. W. 329.

In an action by children for negligence causing the death of their father, the recovery is not limited to such sum as the father would probably have contributed to the support of plaintiffs, but the loss of care and moral and mental training which might have been given by the father may be considered in estimating damages. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dilworth (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 352.

Neither sorrow nor loss of society held an element of damages for death of a parent. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Green, 42 C. A. 216, 95 S. W. 694.

In an action for death brought by decedent's widow and minor children, plaintiffs held entitled, under proper allegations and proof, to recover for the loss of advice and counsel of decedent, though the same is not a pecuniary loss within the statute. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 150.

Compensation should be allowed only for such pecuniary loss as may have resulted to the plaintiff by the death of deceased and excludes all recovery for loss of society, or companionship of deceased or mental distress on account of such death. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Farmer, 102 T. 235, 115 S. W. 261.

A wife, suing for the negligent death of her husband, may recover for the loss of care and counsel of the husband. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 294.

The damages recoverable by minor children for the death of their father is not limited to the sum which he would probably have contributed to them, but may include damages for loss of his care and moral and mental training. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Sultor (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 185.

35. — Medical expenses.—A husband held entitled to recover for medical expenses necessarily incurred, in an action for the death of his wife resulting from a carrier's negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Boykin, 32 C. A. 72, 74 S. W. 93.

36. Conditions precedent to action.—A widow instituting a suit for the negligent death of her husband must show a compliance with the statutory conditions. Gutierrez v. El Paso & N. E. R. Co., 102 T. 378, 117 S. W. 426.

37. Persons liable.—This statute confers a right of action against a private corporation other than a common carrier. Fleming v. Loan Agency, 87 T. 238, 27 S. W. 126, 26 L. R. A. 250; Lynch v. S. W. T. & T. Co. (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 776; Burns v. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co., 26 C. A. 223, 63 S. W. 1063.

A private corporation is liable for injuries resulting in death from its own wrongful acts or omissions as distinguished from the acts or omissions of its agents. Fleming v. Texas Loan Agency (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 338; Id., 87 T. 238, 27 S. W. 126, 26 L. R. A. 250. See Ritz v. City of Austin, 1 C. A. 455, 20 S. W. 1029.

A telephone corporation is liable in damages for injuries resulting in death, when the negligence causing the injuries is the negligence of the corporation itself, as distinguished from that of its agents or servants. Citizens' Telephone Co. v. Thomas, 45 C. A. 20, 99 S. W. 880.

An action can be properly brought against an engineer of a train that runs over and kills a person, if he negligently causes the death. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Tucker, 48 C. A. 115, 106 S. W. 766.

Under this article only persons and corporations engaged in the business of a common carrier and the receiver of such corporations are liable for injuries resulting in death which are caused by the negligence of servants or agents. Other character of corporations are only liable for such injuries when they are the result of the negligent act or omission of the corporation, as distinguished from the act or omission of a servant or agent of such corporation. Halbert v. Tex. Tie & Lumber P. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 594.

Under a contract between a railroad company and an express company, the express company held not liable over to the railroad company for the death of a person killed by striking an express truck on a station platform and being dragged from a train and run over. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wells, Fargo & Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 971.

A private corporation including one engaged in supplying electricity is within subdivision 2 of this article, and it is liable for injuries resulting in death. Jacksonville Ice & Electric Co. v. Moses (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 379.

This article makes a private corporation liable to the same extent as a natural person would be under the same facts; and whatever acts of its general manager, done for the corporation, would render him liable, if done for himself, will bind the corporation as it would bind him, but no further. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Camp, 105 T. 130, 145 S. W. 902.

Where a lighting company was directing plumbing being done by an employé of a hardware company, it could not absolve itself from liability for death of the employé from coming in contact with an electric wire upon the ground that the hardware company was an independent contractor for injury to whose employés it was not liable. Texas Traction Co. v. George (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 438.

38. — Receiver.—A receiver of a railroad operating it under a United States circuit court is not within the statute. Turner v. Cross, 83 T. 218, 18 S. W. 578, 15 L. R. A. 262; Dillingham v. Blake (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 77.

An action for damages cannot be maintained against a receiver after his discharge. Railway Co. v. Wylie (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 771.

An action cannot be maintained against a receiver of a private corporation for death caused by his negligence. Parker v. Dupree, 28 C. A. 341, 67 S. W. 186.

39. Defenses.—The apprehension which moved defendant to shoot deceased in self-defense must be judged from the standpoint in which defendant was at the time. Croft v. Smith (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1089.

Where the evidence shows that the killing was intentional, to escape liability the defendant must show that it was done under a reasonable apprehension of fear of death or serious bodily harm. Id.

That a railroad bridge is not a public bridge does not relieve the company from liability for the killing of a child thereon, resulting from an engineer's negligence in failing to see the child. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Harby, 28 C. A. 24, 67 S. W. 541.

That employés operating a work train had no knowledge of the dangerous position of a child on the train held not to relieve the company from liability for his death. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Abernathy, 28 C. A. 613, 68 S. W. 539.

In an action by a posthumous child for the recovery of damages sustained by reason of his father's death caused by defendant's negligence, the fact that the mother and other children have recovered damages for such death is immaterial. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Contreras, 31 C. A. 489, 72 S. W. 1051.

That death caused by turning a current of compressed air on a person could not be foreseen held not to affect liability therefor. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Currie (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1100.

A defendant held not entitled to the perfect right of self-defense, and was liable to the widow and children of decedent for killing him. Gray v. Phillips, 54 C. A. 148, 117 S. W. 870.

40. — Release.—In a suit brought under this article, if the injured party make a settlement with the wrongdoer, and for a valuable consideration releases the latter from liability for all injuries received through his negligence, and subsequently dies from the effects of such injury, an action by the wife and children of the deceased for damages on account of the death is barred by the release. Thompson v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 97 T. 590, 80 S. W. 991, 1 Ann. Cas. 231; Blount v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 305.

A release held not a bar to an action by a widow for the negligent death of her husband. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 607.

A release of all claim for damages which the releasor shall or may have sustained by reason of personal injuries on a certain date while in defendant's employment, executed voluntarily and with the same knowledge and means of knowledge of the extent of his injuries which defendant had, cannot be avoided because the parties were mistaken as to the extent of the injuries, which were graver than believed. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Polka, 57 C. A. 626, 124 S. W. 226.

41., Limitations.—See Title 87, Chapter 3.

42. Pleadings of plaintiff.—See notes under Art. 1827.

43. Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

44. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—The jury can estimate the damages to the parent from the negligent killing of a child upon evidence of his health, strength, aptitude or willingness to perform service, the reasonable benefit resulting therefrom, etc., without a statement of a definite sum by a witness. Railway Co. v. Nixon, 52 T. 24; Railway Co. v. Cowser, 57 T. 304; Railway Co. v. Kindred, 57 T. 508; Winnt v. Railway Co., 74 T. 32, 11 S. W. 907; March v. Walker, 48 T. 375; Brunswick v. White, 70 T. 504, 8 S. W. 85; Railway Co. v. Measles, 81 T. 474, 17 S. W. 124.

In an action by adult children against a railroad company for the death of their mother, held, that the evidence showed a loss of service of pecuniary value. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Long, 19 C. A. 649, 48 S. W. 599.

Evidence considered, and held sufficient to justify the damages awarded by verdict. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Spence (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 562.

Evidence considered, and held sufficient to support a verdict for $1,500 damages for death of plaintiff's son. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Knight (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 640.

A jury may assess the amount a parent may reasonably expect from a son, negligently killed, after his majority, on evidence of good health, etc., without proof of any definite sum. San Antonio Traction Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 323.

That a father contributed different sums at irregular intervals to the support of his married daughter held to support a finding that she was damaged by his wrongful death. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 25 C. A. 204, 60 S. W. 803.

The subsequent use by plaintiff of money paid decedent as a consideration for a release from liability for an accident which caused decedent's death held not conclusive evidence of a ratification of the release. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brantley, 26 C. A. 11, 62 S. W. 94.

Evidence held to show that plaintiffs as subcontractors, and not defendants as owners, of dangerous premises where decedent was killed, were under obligation to have warned decedent of the danger. Proctor v. San Antonio St. Ry. Co., 26 C. A. 148, 62 S. W. 939.

Facts held to show want of pecuniary interest in decedent's life, so as to preclude plaintiffs' recovery for his negligent death. Id.

In an action for death of plaintiff's mother, evidence held insufficient to show damage. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Polk (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 343.

In an action for killing plaintiffs' decedent by a train while a trespasser on the roadbed, a verdict for plaintiffs held not sustained by the evidence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 227.

Mere relationship of decedent's parents to him, in the absence of proof of any pecuniary benefit to be derived from his continued existence, held insufficient to justify a recovery in their favor for his death. Standard Light & Power Co. v. Munsey, 33 C. A. 416, 76 S. W. 931.

In an action against a railroad company for negligence, causing death of a child attempting to cross the track, evidence held insufficient to support verdict for plaintiff. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Wear, 33 C. A. 492, 77 S. W. 272.

Evidence held not to show that person killed by current of compressed air had participated in an improper use of the air. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Currie (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1100.

In an action for the death of a night watchman run over by a train in a railroad cut, evidence held to justify directing verdict for defendant. Hancock v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 99 T. 613, 92 S. W. 456.

A railway company held not liable, under the facts, for the death of a pedestrian on its track. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Huber (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 568.

In an action against a railroad company for decedent's death by being struck by a train while lying on the track either asleep or drunk, evidence held to present the issue of discovered peril, and to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Brannon, 43 C. A. 531, 96 S. W. 1095.

In an action for negligent death, the proof held sufficient to authorize plaintiffs to maintain the suit and to authorize the jury to fix the damages. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 48 C. A. 135, 106 S. W. 773.

Evidence, in an action for death, held insufficient to show that one of the plaintiffs was interested as a minor child of deceased, so as to authorize a recovery in his favor. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Sizemore, 53 C. A. 491, 116 S. W. 403.

In an action by parents for the negligent death of a minor son, evidence held to justify a finding that they suffered damages by reason of his death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

In an action against a lodging house keeper for death alleged to have been caused by defendant's failure to provide adequate fire escapes, evidence held to show that decedent was familiar with the condition of the building as to fire escapes when he was injured. Radley v. Knepfly (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 447.

In an action for death, facts held to justify the jury in considering the pecuniary benefits which, in reasonable probability, the wife and children would have derived from deceased, had he lived, in considering the amount of their damages, caused by his death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

Evidence in an action for death of a workman killed while repairing the plastering in an elevator shaft in an office building, held to show that an employé running the elevator was guilty of alleged negligence, proximately causing the death of deceased, and that the latter did not assume the risk. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Hanks (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 147.

In an action by parents for the death of their son, the evidence held to warrant a finding with approximately reasonable certainty that deceased would have furnished plaintiffs financial aid, and that they were therefore damaged by his death. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Huey (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1017.

Evidence, in an action by a father and married minor children to recover for the wrongful death of their wife and mother, held to show that the married children had no reasonable expectation of financial assistance from their mother. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 690.

45. — Proximate cause.—In an action against a railroad for the deaths of persons killed by a train, evidence held insufficient to show that the railroad's negligence was the proximate cause of the deaths. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shoemaker, 98 T. 451, 84 S. W. 1049.

Where the evidence in an action for negligent death did not show the proximate cause of the accident, but left the same open to conjecture, there could be no recovery. Mt. Marion Coal Mining Co. v. Holt, 54 C. A. 411, 118 S. W. 825.

In an action against a lodging house keeper for death claimed to have been caused by failure to provide adequate fire escapes, evidence held to show such failure was not the proximate cause of decedent's injuries. Radley v. Knepfly (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 447.

In an action for death by fire in a building, evidence considered and held that the violation of an ordinance requiring fire escapes was not the proximate cause of the injury. Radley v. Knepfly, 104 T. 130, 135 S. W. 111.

46. — Negligence.—Evidence in the following cases held insufficient to show that defendant negligently caused the death of decedent: Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Haas, 19 C. A. 645, 48 S. W. 540; Fleming v. Texas Loan Agency, 24 C. A. 203, 58 S. W. 971; Forge v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 41 C. A. 81, 90 S. W. 1118; Jones v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 47 C. A. 596, 105 S. W. 1007; A. Cohen & Co. v. Rittmann (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 59.

Evidence in the following cases held to show defendant's negligence: Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brantley, 26 C. A. 11, 62 S. W. 94; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 33 C. A. 269, 76 S. W. 794; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Allen, 35 C. A. 355, 80 S. W. 240; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ramsey, 43 C. A. 603, 97 S. W. 1067; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Kauffmann, 46 C. A. 72, 101 S. W. 817; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Tison (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 936.

Railroad held, on the facts, not liable for death of one killed at crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Eyer, 96 T. 72, 70 S. W. 529.

Evidence held to authorize a finding of no negligence in the killing of a person on a railroad by a train. Gonzales v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 896.

Evidence held to sustain a verdict that defendant railroad company was not negligent, proximately resulting in the death of plaintiff's decedents, who were trespassing on the track when killed. Parham v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 51 C. A. 511, 113 S. W. 154.

47. — Contributory negligence.—Evidence in the following cases held not to show contributory negligence: International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Knight (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 167; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Clay, 55 C. A. 526, 119 S. W. 730; Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Hanks (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 147; Jacksonville Ice & Electric Co. v. Moses (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 379; Temple Electric Light Co. v. Halliburton (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 584.

Evidence in the following cases held sufficient to show contributory negligence: Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Haas, 19 C. A. 645, 48 S. W. 540; Proctor v. San Antonio St. Ry. Co., 26 C. A. 148, 62 S. W. 939; Tucker v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 914; International & G. N. R. Co. v. De Ollos (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 222; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hunt, 45 C. A. 401, 100 S. W. 968; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Kauffmann, 46 C. A. 72, 101 S. W. 817; Caldwell v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 54 C. A. 399, 117 S. W. 488.

Evidence in the following cases held sufficient to sustain a finding of no contributory negligence: International & G. N. R. Co. v. Knight (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 640; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 25 C. A. 204, 60 S. W. 803; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brantley, 26 C. A. 11, 62 S. W. 94; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Matthews, 34 C. A. 302, 79 S. W. 71; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Allen, 35 C. A. 355, 80 S. W. 240; Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Curvier (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1132.

48. Instructions.—For instructions in general, see notes under Arts. 1970-1973.

A charge that is practically in the language of this article and Art. 4704, when no request is made for an additional charge on the subject of the measure of damages, is sufficient and is no ground for reversal. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 34.

49. Questions for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

50. Harmless error.—See notes under Arts. 1553, 1623.

Art. 4695. [3018] Character of wrongful act.—The wrongful act, negligence, carelessness, unskillfulness, or default, mentioned in the preceding article, must be of such a character as would, if death had not ensued, have entitled the party injured to maintain an action for such injury. [Acts 1860, p. 32. Acts 1887, p. 44. Acts 1892, S. S., p. 5.]

See Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Michalke, 14 C. A. 495, 37 S. W. 480; St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 992.

Assumption of risk.—See notes under Art. 4694 and Title 115, Chapter 14.

Contributory negligence.—See notes under Art. 4694 and Title 115, Chapter 14.

Damages—Measure of.—See notes under Art. 4694.

Right of action of person injured.—Under this article and Art. 4694, an action cannot be maintained, unless decedent could have maintained an action for damages for his injury, had he not died therefrom, so that a guardian of infants could not maintain an action for damages to the infants for the wrongful murder of their mother by her husband, since the mother could not have maintained an action against defendant, her husband, had she survived. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 322.

Under this article no action for the wrongful killing of one who lost his life on a railroad can be maintained if the deceased would not have been entitled to maintain an action himself. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Sup.) 155 S. W. 179.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827 and at end of Chapter 8, Title 37.

Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Questions for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Art. 4696. [3019] Exemplary damages.—When the death is caused by the wilful act or omission, or gross negligence of the defendant, exemplary as well as actual damages may be recovered. [Const., art. 16, sec. 26.]

Cited, Gray v. State, 61 Cr. R. 454, 135 S. W. 1179 (dissenting opinion of Davidson, P. J.).

In general.—This statute does not in any respect change the well-recognized rules for the determination of the liability of a railway company either to a passenger or an employé. Railway Co. v. Carlton, 60 T. 397.

The right to recover exemplary damages is limited to the surviving husband, widow, children or parents. Winnt v. Railway Co., 74 T. 32, 11 S. W. 907, 5 L. R. A. 172.

Construction of prior act.—The retaining of a servant in its service by the corporation after it has been cited to answer a petition, the allegations of which, charging gross negligence, are denied by the servant, will not of itself constitute ratification sufficient to authorize recovery of exemplary damages under this article. McGown v. International & G. N. R. Co., 85 T. 289, 20 S. W. 80.

Right to recover exemplary damages without actual damages.—Under article 16, § 26, of the constitution, exemplary damages for the wilful or negligent commission of a homicide cannot be recovered in cases in which no recovery can be had for actual damages. Ritz v. City of Austin, 1 C. A. 455, 20 S. W. 1029.

The doctrine that there can be no exemplary damages without actual damages has not been overthrown, notwithstanding article 16, § 26, of the constitution and this article and Art. 4698 of the statutes. Not even in a case of gross negligence, if the jury find no actual damages, can a finding of exemplary damages be sustained. Adams v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 413, 79 S. W. 80.

This article did not change the common-law rule that exemplary damages cannot be recovered if actual damages were not recovered. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 322.

Negligence.—See notes under Art. 4694.

Art. 4697. [3020] Action commenced without regard to criminal proceedings.—The action may be commenced and prosecuted, although the death shall have been caused under such circumstances as amounts in law to a felony, and without regard to any criminal proceedings that may, or may not, be had in relation to the homicide. [Id.]

Evidence—Admissibility of.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rules 5 and 6.

Persons entitled to sue.—See notes under Art. 4694.

Art. 4698. [3021] For whose benefit action to be brought.—The action shall be for the sole and exclusive benefit of the surviving husband, wife, children and parents of the person whose death shall have been caused, and the amount recovered therein shall not be liable for the debts of the deceased. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 16.]

In general.—As to the construction of this article, see Johnson v. Farmer, 35 S. W. 1062.

Persons entitled to sue.—See Art. 1838.

It is not required that the deceased should have been under any legal obligation to contribute anything of pecuniary value to those to whom the right of action is given, to entitle them to recover. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Van Belle et ux., 26 C. A. 511, 64 S. W. 397.

Any one having right of action may sue for negligent death; but it must appear that the action is brought for the benefit of all. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. of Texas v. Whatley (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 589.

While the statute gives a right of action for death by wrongful act to the persons bearing to decedent the relationships named therein, such persons may only recover upon showing actual injury by reason of the death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 690.

— Parents.—Evidence held to show that deceased contributed to the support of his father, so as to authorize recovery by the father for his death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Ford, 22 C. A. 131, 54 S. W. 37.

The fact that parents applied to the support of an unmarried daughter, who lived with them, a part of the sums received from their son, held not to deprive them of the right to recover to the full extent of contributions expected from him. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. O'Connor (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 374.

Parents held not entitled to recover for the wrongful death of their son after his marriage. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Lee, 36 C. A. 482, 82 S. W. 306.

— Wife and children in general.—The subsequent marriage of the surviving wife does not affect her right of action. Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 70 T. 582, 8 S. W. 484.

A wife living apart from her husband, in a house of prostitution, cannot recover for his death. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Floyd (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 544.

Where a divorced wife assumes custody of a daughter, and the father is killed after remarriage, the daughter is entitled to recover, since she had a legal right to support from her father. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Culpepper, 19 C. A. 182, 46 S. W. 922.

A wife by common-law marriage and the issue of such marriage may recover damages for the death of the husband and father. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cody, 20 C. A. 520, 50 S. W. 135.

A wife held entitled to recover damages for her husband's death, notwithstanding his failure to support her for a long time prior to his death. De Garcia v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 275.

That a father had been divorced from the mother of the children, who were placed in the mother's custody by the court, and that the father from that time had not contributed to the support of the children, did not deprive them of the right to damages for his death. Taylor v. San Antonio Gas & Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 674.

The fact that several months before the death of decedent he and his wife had separated did not preclude her from recovering for his negligent death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 144.

A wife held entitled to recover damages accruing to her child through the death of the father, though the father did not support the child. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 928.

Where plaintiff's father rendered pecuniary assistance to plaintiff's family, and it is reasonably probable that he would have continued to do so, plaintiff may recover for his father's wrongful death. Freeman v. Morales (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 644.

— Adult children.—Adult children are not entitled to damages resulting from the death of their father, in the absence of proof of actual damage. Railway Co. v. De Baglithy, 28 S. W. 829, 9 C. A. 108.

Adult children not dependent on the father for support cannot recover for his death through the negligence of another. Railway Co. v. Bishop, 14 C. A. 504, 37 S. W. 764.

Under the statute giving children a right of action for negligence causing the death of their father, the right of action is not limited to minors or to such children as cannot support themselves, nor is it necessary to prove that the father actually contributed anything to the support of his children. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dilworth (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 352.

Adult children not dependent on their father for support, and not receiving anything from him for their support, cannot recover for his negligent death. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James, 55 C. A. 588, 120 S. W. 269.

This article does not limit damages recoverable by children for the negligent death of their father to the period of minority. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 294.

An adult married son has a pecuniary interest in the life of his mother, where she has since his marriage resided with him and has continuously performed the household duties so as to enable his wife to devote her attention to her millinery business, and he may sue for her negligent death. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Butts (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 88.

— Married minor children.—A married daughter can recover damages for death of her father, though he was not bound to contribute to her support. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 25 C. A. 204, 60 S. W. 804.

Married minor daughter held not prevented from recovering damages for the death of her mother, because of her marriage. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Boykin (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1163.

That a minor daughter married after the death of her mother, resulting from wrongful act, would not prevent the daughter from recovering such damages as she sustained before her marriage, but minor children married at the time of her death are not entitled to recover. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 690.

— Posthumous child.—The word "children" includes a posthumous child. Nelson v. Railway Co., 73 T. 621, 14 S. W. 1021, 11 L. R. A. 391, 22 Am. St. Rep. 81.

— Illegitimate children.—The statute giving a right of action for the death of a mother to her children embraces her illegitimate children. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Walker, 48 C. A. 52, 106 S. W. 705.

— Grandchildren.—A judgment awarding recovery to the grandchildren of the person killed is erroneous. Houston & Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Harris et al. (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 229.

The word "children" does not include grandchildren. Railway Co. v. Elliott, 26 S. W. 455, 7 C. A. 216.

Necessity for valid marriage.—In a suit by a wife, a valid marriage must be shown. Railway Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 455.

Exemplary damages.—See notes under Art. 4696.

Parties.—See notes under Art. 4699.

Pleading—Allegation in petition of existence of beneficiary.—See notes under Art. 1827.

Art. 4699. [3022] Who may bring the action.—The action may be brought by all of the parties entitled thereto, or by any one or more of them for the benefit of all. [Id.]

Damages—Apportionment of.—See notes under Art. 4704.

Persons entitled to sue.—See notes under Art. 4698.

Plaintiffs.—See March v. Walker, 48 T. 372; Railway Co. v. Le Gierse, 51 T. 189; Cotton Press Co. v. Bradley, 52 T. 587; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Cowser, 57 T. 293; I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Kindred, 57 T. 491; D. & W. R. R. Co. v. Spiker, 59 T. 435.

The father and mother may join in an action for the death of a child. Railway Co. v. Hall, 83 T. 675, 19 S. W. 121.

In an action for wrongful death, it is no answer to an objection made for want of proper parties plaintiff to reply that the claim of the unjoined beneficiaries is barred by the statute of limitations. Ft. W. & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 85 T. 516, 22 S. W. 578.

Recovery by husband and wife jointly for burial expenses of their minor son held not prejudicial to defendant, though such expenses were due to the husband alone. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Evans, 16 C. A. 63, 41 S. W. 80.

In an action to recover for wrongful death, the mother of deceased held properly joined with his wife and children in the action. Gulf, B. & K. C. Ry. Co. v. Hernandez (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 197.

Where the widow of the deceased sues for damages on account of death of her husband and the mother of deceased is the only other person who can also claim, and she is made defendant, and the jury give damages to the widow and none to the mother, the judgment is not erroneous because the mother was not made party plaintiff. She was before the court as defendant and the petition alleged that she was deceased's mother and asked that damages be apportioned to those entitled thereto. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 628.

Minor heirs of the deceased may join the widow as plaintiff in suits provided for by this statute, but if this is not done in good faith, but in collusion with defendant to cut off her rights, the plea of res adjudicata will not avail in a subsequent action to set aside a judgment so obtained. De Garcia v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 277.

In an action to recover damages for injuries resulting in death, all or any of the parties to whom the right of action belongs may bring suit. De Garcia v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 670.

In an action for death, persons who had no pecuniary interest in decedent's life were not proper parties plaintiff. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Mertink (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 153.

Under the statute giving a right of action to the relatives of a person wrongfully killed, an action for the death of a mother, leaving surviving her a husband and four daughters, cannot be maintained by the husband and one daughter alone. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Mertink, 101 T. 165, 105 S. W. 485.

In an action for negligent death, defendant held entitled to have all parties interested included as parties plaintiff. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 560.

An action for negligent death must be prosecuted in the name of all the beneficiaries or in the name of one or more for the benefit of all. Vernon Cotton Oil Co. v. Catron (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 404.

An adult married daughter, abandoned by her husband and living, with her young children, with her father, must be made a party plaintiff in an action for the negligent death of the father, and a decision adjudging that she has no pecuniary benefit, rendered in an action in which she is not a party, is not binding on her. Id.

Necessary parties.—All the surviving kindred related in the degrees designated in the statute are necessary parties. If one thus related is not made a party, and the existence of such necessary party is made known to the court during the trial, it would seem to be the duty of the court to suspend the trial and require such relative to be made a party. Railway Co. v. Culberson, 68 T. 664, 5 S. W. 820; Ft. W. & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 85 T. 516, 22 S. W. 578.

One suit should be brought for the benefit of all parties. Should the defendant fail to require proper parties to be made, the objection is waived. Railway Co. v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 686, 3 C. A. 583; Nelson v. Railway Co., 78 T. 621, 14 S. W. 1021, 11 L. R. A. 391, 22 Am. St. Rep. 81; Railway Co. v. Kutac, 72 T. 643, 11 S. W. 127.

Parents who have released their claim for damages are not necessary parties to the suit. Id.

The father of the decedent, living in another state and not dependent upon the decedent, is not a necessary party to the suit. Railway Co. v. Taylor, 24 S. W. 975, 5 C. A. 668; Railway Co. v. Henry, 75 T. 220, 12 S. W. 828; Railway Co. v. Younger, 10 C. A. 141, 29 S. W. 948; Railway Co. v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 664.

In a death action by decedent's widow and son for the use of decedent's mother, where the mother claimed no damages and testified that decedent was not contributing to her support at the time of his death, her then husband was not a necessary party to the action. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lemair, 55 C. A. 237, 119 S. W. 1162.

An adult married daughter living with her father held required to be made a party in an action for his negligent death. Vernon Cotton Oil Co. v. Catron (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 404.

Who may intervene.—Where an attorney performs services for a widow in the prosecution of an action against a railroad company for negligence resulting in the killing of her husband, the claim of such attorney for compensation is not an interest in the cause of action which entitles him to intervene in such suit. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 503, 66 S. W. 477.

Action in name of beneficiaries.—The fact that an action under the state statute for the death of a railroad employé was brought in the name of the real beneficiaries, and not in the name of some administrator or executor of the decedent's estate, did not prevent a recovery. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Seale (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1099.

Authority to sue for others.—A stepfather may represent his wife's minor children as next friend in a suit for damages for causing the death of their father. Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 70 T. 582, 8 S. W. 484.

A widow may bring suit for herself and for the benefit of all parties entitled to recover. Railway Co. v. Renkin, 15 C. A. 229, 38 S. W. 329.

Where a wife sues for damages accruing from the death of her husband, she has the authority to sue for herself and for the benefit of the minor children without notice to them, and the failure to appoint a guardian ad litem does not render the judgment open to attack. Taylor v. San Antonio Gas & E. Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 674, 675.

Waiver of right of recovery by one plaintiff.—One of several plaintiffs may waive the right of recovery. Railway Co. v. Elliott, 26 S. W. 455, 7 C. A. 216.

Pendency of other action.—In a suit by the widow and children of one alleged to have been killed by the negligence of a railway company, the fact that the deceased had instituted suit for damages resulting from the negligence before his death is no bar to the action. Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 70 T. 582, 8 S. W. 484.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827.

Admissibility of evidence, presumptions and burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 8687.

Art. 4700. [3023] Executors, etc., may bring the action, when.—If the parties entitled to the benefit of the action shall fail to commence the same within three calendar months after the death of the deceased, it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator of the deceased to commence and prosecute the action, unless requested by all of the parties entitled thereto not to prosecute the same. [Id.]

Attacking authority to sue.—Where the authority of plaintiff to sue as administratrix was not attacked in the trial court, it cannot be attacked in the appellate court. El Paso & N. E. Ry. Co. v. Gutierrez (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 160.

Art. 4701. [3024] Suit does not abate by death of either party.—The action shall not abate by the death of either party to the record if any person entitled to the benefit of the action survives. If the plaintiff die pending the suit, when there is only one plaintiff, some one or more of the parties entitled to the money recovered may, by order of the court, be made plaintiff, and the suit be prosecuted to judgment in the name of such plaintiff for the benefit of the persons entitled. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 18.]

Death of party to suit.—Under this article and Arts. 4698, 4702, the right of action for death by wrongful act is restricted to the surviving husband, wife, children, and parents of decedent, and does not survive them. Texas Loan Agency v. Fleming, 18 C. A. 668, 46 S. W. 63.

A cause of action growing out of an injury resulting in death is for the sole benefit of those to whom the right to sue is given, and the suit abates upon the death of those entitled to sue. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 503, 66 S. W. 480.

Art. 4702. [3025] Abates, when.—If the sole plaintiff die pending the suit, and he is the only party entitled to the money recovered, the suit shall abate.

Art. 4703. [3026] Executor, etc., of defendant made party, when.—If the defendant die pending the suit, his executor or administrator may be made a party, and the suit be prosecuted to judgment as though such defendant had continued alive. The judgment in such case, if rendered in favor of the plaintiff, shall be, to be paid in due course of administration. [Id.]

Art. 4704. [3027] Damages to be apportioned by the jury.—The jury may give such damages as they may think proportioned to the injury resulting from such death; and the amount so recovered shall be divided among the persons entitled to the benefit of the action, or such of them as shall then be alive, in such shares as the jury shall find by their verdict. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 16.]

Apportionment of damages.—Each of the parties plaintiff can recover only the damage he has sustained individually by reason of the death. Railway Co. v. Henry, 75 T. 220, 12 S. W. 828; Railway Co. v. Johnston, 78 T. 536, 15 S. W. 104; Nelson v. Railway Co., 78 T. 621, 14 S. W. 1021, 11 L. R. A. 391, 22 Am. St. Rep. 81; Railway Co. v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 686, 3 C. A. 533.

The damages for the death of an infant child should be apportioned by the jury, whether the parents sue jointly or the husband sues alone. Railway Co. v. Sciacca, 80 T. 350, 16 S. W. 31.

Damages are given both to the father and mother for their son's death. Railway Co. v. Hall, 83 T. 675, 19 S. W. 121.

The failure of the jury to apportion the damages is not reversible error. Railway Co. v. Burselson (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1107; March v. Walker, 48 T. 372; Railway Co. v. Hudman, 8 C. A. 309, 28 S. W. 388.

Apportionment of damages, how made. Railway Co. v. Hudman, 28 S. W. 388, 8 C. A. 309.

Failure of the jury to apportion damages in action by parents for death of son held not prejudicial to defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Evans, 16 C. A. 68, 41 S. W. 80.

Recovery by parents for death of child, there being no other interested parties, being community property, finding of separate amount held unnecessary. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hughes, 22 C. A. 134, 54 S. W. 264.

Under the statute providing that in actions by two or more plaintiffs, the jury shall apportion a verdict among the plaintiffs, failure to do so is not error, where plaintiffs do not object. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lehman (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 619.

Where a verdict in favor of decedent's parents was erroneous, but was sustainable in favor of his wife, a judgment based thereon and apportioning the damages would be reversed as to the parents and affirmed as to the wife. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Lee, 36 C. A. 482, 82 S. W. 306.

In an action for negligent death, verdict held not excessive in apportionment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Boyce, 39 C. A. 195, 87 S. W. 395.

A defendant cannot complain of the manner in which a verdict was apportioned among the plaintiffs where the facts justified the submission of the issue as to whether each of the plaintiffs had suffered a loss. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Munn, 46 C. A. 276, 102 S. W. 442.

In an action for negligent death, by the mother, wife, and child of decedent, the jury must apportion the damages, and defendant cannot complain thereof. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 408.

Part of a verdict apportioning damages between two defendants in a death action held to be treated as surplusage, and judgment rendered against both defendants for the full amount. San Marcos Electric Light & Power Co. v. Compton, 48 C. A. 586, 107 S. W. 1151.

In an action for death, evidence held to sustain a verdict giving the entire damages to the wife and child of decedent, to the exclusion of the parents. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wall (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 453.

A verdict and judgment in a death action held sufficiently to dispose of a party's action. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lemair, 55 C. A. 237, 119 S. W. 1162.

Where the evidence made it an issue in a death action whether each plaintiff had suffered loss from decedent's death, and the verdict for plaintiffs as a whole was not complained of as excessive, defendant cannot complain that the amount apportioned to one of plaintiffs was excessive. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 602.

Under this article a verdict in an action for death by the widow, minor children, and mother of decedent that the jury "find for the plaintiffs and fix the damages as follows," giving the names of and the amounts awarded to the respective plaintiffs, was proper, and not reversible error. International & G. N. R. Co. v. White, 103 T. 567, 131 S. W. 811.

The damages which the widow and minor children are entitled to recover for the wrongful death of their husband and father should be apportioned by the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Salisbury (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 252.

Art. 4704a. Actions for death caused in foreign state or country.—That whenever the death or personal injury of a citizen of this state or of a country having equal treaty rights with the United States on behalf of its citizens, has been or may be caused by a wrongful act, neglect or default in any state, for which a right to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof is given by a statute or by law of such state, territory or foreign country, such right of action may be enforced in the courts of the United States, or in the courts of this state, within the time prescribed for the commencement of such action by the statute of this state, and the law of the former shall control in the maintenance of such action in all matters pertaing [pertaining] to procedure. [Acts 1913, p. 338, sec. 1.]

See annotations under Art. 1712.

CHAPTER ONE

INCORPORATION OF INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art.	Art.
4705. Formation of company.	4714. Number and qualification of directors.
4706. What the articles of incorporation shall contain.	4715. Election of directors.
4707. Duty of commissioner of insurance on deposit of articles with him.	4716. Annual meeting for election.
4708. Company shall certify, under oath, that the capital is bona fide its property.	4717. Special meetings for election.
4709. Where examination is made by other than commissioner, etc.	4718. Quorum of stockholders.
4710. Stock shall be divided into shares.	4719. Directors shall choose president and other officers.
4711. Capital stock shall consist of what.	4720. Directors may ordain by-laws, etc.
4712. Surplus money may be invested, how.	4721. Shall keep a record of transactions.
4713. May be changed and re-invested.	4722. Shall fill vacancies, and what shall constitute quorum of the board.
	4723. General incorporation law shall apply to insurance companies, unless, etc.

Article 4705. [3028] Formation of company.—Any number of persons desiring to form a company for the purpose of transacting insurance business shall adopt and sign articles of incorporation, and submit the same to the attorney general; and, if said articles shall be found by him to be in accordance with the law of this state, and of the United States, he shall attach thereto his certificate to that effect, whereupon such articles shall be deposited with the commissioner of insurance and banking.

Commissioner of insurance.—See Title 65, Chapter 7.

Application.—This article in its origin was, as in its language it is, a general provision applicable to all insurance corporations, except such as may be excluded by Arts. 4793, 4830, 4855 and 4860. State v. Burgess, 101 T. 524, 109 S. W. 923.

A foreign assessment company writing insurance in Texas is subject to all the provisions of these articles, which contain most of the provisions of Acts 28th Leg. c. 69, relating to such subject. National Life Ass'n v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Limitation by following article.—See notes under Art. 4706.

Art. 4706. [3029] What the articles of incorporation shall contain.—Such articles shall contain:

1. The name of the company; and the name selected shall not be so similar to that of any other insurance company as to be likely to mislead the public.
2. The locality of the principal business office of such company.
3. The kind of insurance business which the company proposes to engage in.

4. The amount of its capital stock, which shall in no case be less than one hundred thousand dollars.

No limitation on preceding article.—This article specifies the information the articles of incorporation shall contain among others the amount of capital stock, but does not limit the general provisions of Art. 4706, providing for the incorporation of companies for the transaction of insurance business to stock companies or to any other class of companies. State v. Burgess, 101 T. 524, 109 S. W. 923.

Art. 4707. [3030] Duty of commissioner of insurance when articles are deposited with him.—When the said articles of incorporation have been deposited with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and the law in all other respects has been complied with by the company, the commissioner shall make an examination, or cause one to be made by some competent and disinterested person appointed by him for that purpose; and if it shall be found that the capital stock of the company, to the amount required by law, has been paid in, and is possessed by it, in money, or in such stocks, notes, bonds or mortgages, as are required by law, and that the same is the bona fide property of such company, and that such company has in all respects complied with the law relating to insurance, then the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue to such company a certificate of authority to commence business as proposed in their articles of incorporation. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 33, sec. 7.]

Art. 4708. [3031] Company shall certify, under oath, that the capital is bona fide its property.—The corporators or officers of any such company shall be required to certify under oath to the commissioner of insurance and banking that the capital exhibited to the person making the examination is the bona fide property of the company so examined, which certificate shall be filed and recorded in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, sec. 7.]

Art. 4709. [3032] Where examination is made by other than commissioner.—If the examination be made by any other person than the commissioner of insurance and banking, the finding shall be certified under the oath of the person making such examination, and such finding and certificate shall be filed and recorded in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id.]

Art. 4710. [3033] Stock shall be divided into shares.—The stock of any company organized under the laws of this state shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4711. [3034] Capital stock shall consist of what.—The capital stock of a company shall consist—

1. In lawful money of the United States; or
2. In the bonds of this state or any county or incorporated town or city thereof, or the stock of any national bank; or
3. In first mortgages upon unincumbered real estate in this state, the title to which is valid, and the market value of which is double the amount loaned thereon, exclusive of buildings, unless such buildings are insured in some responsible company and the policy or policies transferred to the company taking such mortgage. [Acts 1889, p. 11.]

Art. 4712. [3035] Surplus money may be invested, how.—The surplus money of a company over and above its paid up capital stock may be invested in, or loaned upon the pledge of, public stocks or bonds of the United States, or any of the states, or stocks, bonds, or other evidence of indebtedness of any solvent dividend paying corporations, or in bills of exchange or other commercial notes or bills, except its own stock; provided, always, that the current market value of such stocks, bonds, notes, bills, or other evidences of indebtedness, shall be at all times during the continuance of such loans at least twenty per cent more than the sum loaned thereon. [Acts 1875, p. 33.]

Art. 4713. [3036] Company may change and re-invest its stock.—A company may change and re-invest its capital stock in like securities, as occasion may, from time to time, require. [Id.]

Art. 4714. [3037] Number and qualification of directors.—The affairs of any company organized under the laws of this state shall be managed by not more than thirteen nor fewer than seven directors, all of whom shall be stockholders in the company. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4715. [3038] Election of directors.—Within thirty days after the subscription books of the company have been filed, a majority of the stockholders shall hold a meeting for the election of directors, each share entitling the holder thereof to one vote; and the directors then in office shall continue in office until their successors have been duly chosen and have accepted the trust. [Id.]

Art. 4716. [3039] Annual meetings for election of directors.—The annual meeting for the election of directors of a company shall be held during the month of January, as the by-laws of the company may direct. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4717. [3040] Special meetings for election of directors.—If from any cause the stockholders should fail to elect directors at an annual meeting, they may hold a special meeting for that purpose, by giving thirty days' notice thereof in some newspaper in general circulation in the county in which the principal office of the company is located, and the directors chosen at such special meeting shall continue in office until their successors are duly elected and have accepted. [Id.]

Art. 4718. [3041] Quorum of stockholders.—No meeting of stockholders shall elect directors or transact such other business of the company, unless there shall be present at such meeting, in person or by proxy, a majority in value of the stockholders equal to two-thirds of the stock of such company.

Art. 4719. [3042] Directors shall choose president and other officers.—The directors shall choose by ballot from their own number a president and such other officers as the by-laws of the company may designate, who shall perform such duties, receive such compensation and give such security as the by-laws of such company may require. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4720. [3043] Directors may ordain by-laws, etc.—The directors may ordain and establish such by-laws and regulations, not inconsistent with law, as shall appear to them necessary for regulating and conducting the business of the company. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4721. [3044] Shall keep a record of their transactions.—It shall be the duty of the directors to keep a full and correct record of their transactions, which shall, at all times during business hours, be open to the inspection of the stockholders and other persons interested therein. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4722. [3045] Shall fill vacancies, and what shall constitute a quorum.—The directors shall fill all vacancies which shall occur in the board or in any of the offices of the company, and a majority of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

Art. 4723. [3046] General incorporation law shall apply to insurance companies.—The laws relating to and governing corporations in general shall apply to and govern insurance companies incorporated in this state in so far as the same may not be inconsistent with the provisions of this title.

Article 4724. Terms defined.—A life insurance company shall be deemed to be a corporation doing business under any charter involving the payment of money or other thing of value, conditioned on the continuance or cessation of human life, or involving an insurance, guaranty, contract or pledge for the payment of endowments or annuities. An accident insurance company shall be deemed to be a corporation doing business under any charter involving the payment of money or other thing of value, conditioned upon the injury, disablement or death of persons resulting from traveling or general accidents by land or water. A health insurance company shall be deemed to be a corporation doing business under any charter involving the payment of any amount of money, or other thing of value, conditioned upon loss by reason of disability due to sickness or ill health. When consistent with the context and not obviously used in a different sense, the term, "company," or, "insurance company," as used herein, includes all corporations engaged as principals in the business of life, accident or health insurance. The term, "home," or domestic company, as used herein, designates those life, accident, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance companies incorporated and formed in this state. The term, "foreign company," means any life, accident or health insurance company organized under the laws of any other state or territory of the United States or foreign country. The term, "home office," of a company means its principal office within the state or country in which it is incorporated and formed. The "insured" or "policy-holder" is the person on whose life a policy of insurance is effected. The "beneficiary" is the person to whom a policy of insurance effected is payable. By the term, "net assets," is meant the funds of the company available for the payment of its obligations in this state, including uncollected premiums not more than three months past due and deferred premiums on policies actually in force, after deducting from such funds all unpaid losses and claims, and claims for losses, and all other debts, exclusive of capital stock. The "profits" of a company are that portion of its funds not required for the payment of losses and expenses, nor set apart for any other purpose required by law. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 1.]

Venue of suit against foreign live stock insurance company.—See note under Art. 4744.

Art. 4725. Who may incorporate.—Any three or more citizens of this state, who shall be known as incorporators, may associate themselves for the purpose of forming a life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company; provided, that no such company shall transact more than one of the foregoing classes of business, except in separate and distinct departments. In order to form such a company, the incorporators shall sign and acknowledge its articles of incorporation before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments to deeds and file the same in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking. Such articles of incorporation shall specify:

- (a) The name and place of residence of each of the incorporators.
- (b) The name of the proposed company, which shall contain the words, "Insurance Company," as a part thereof, and which must not so closely resemble the name of any existing company transacting insurance business in this state as to mislead the public.
- (c) The location of its home office.
- (d) The kind or kinds of insurance business it purposes to transact.
- (e) The amount of its capital stock, not less than $100,000, all of which capital stock must be subscribed and fully paid up and in the hands of the corporators before said articles of incorporation are filed, such capital stock to be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each.
- (f) The period of time it is to exist, which shall not exceed five hundred years.
- (g) The number of shares of such capital stock.
- (h) Such other provisions not inconsistent with the law as the corporators may deem proper to insert therein. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4726. Charter to be approved by attorney general, etc.—When such articles of incorporation are filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, together with an affidavit made by two or more of its incorporators that all the stock has been subscribed in good faith and fully paid for, together with a charter fee of twenty dollars, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to submit such articles of incorporation to the attorney general for examination; and, if he approves the same as conforming with the law, he shall so certify and deliver such articles of incorporation, together with his certificate of approval attached thereto, to the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall, upon receipt thereof, record the same in a book kept for that purpose; and upon receipt of a fee of one dollar, he shall furnish a certified copy of the same to the corporators, upon which, they shall be a body politic and corporate, and may proceed to complete the organization of the company, for which purpose they shall forthwith call a meeting of the stockholders, who shall adopt by-laws for the government of the company, and elect a board of directors not less than five, composed of stockholders; which board shall have full control and management of the affairs of the corporation, subject to the by-laws thereof as adopted or amended from time to time by the stockholders or directors, and to the laws of this state. The board of directors so elected shall serve until the second Tuesday in March thereafter, on which date annually thereafter there shall be held an annual meeting of the stockholders at the home office, and a board of directors elected for the ensuing year. At all meetings of the stockholders, each stockholder shall be entitled to one vote for each share of stock fully paid up appearing in his name on the books of the company, which vote may be given in person or by written proxy. The majority of the paid up capital stock at any meeting of the stockholders shall constitute a quorum. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4727. Amendment of charter.—At any regular meeting or called meeting of the stockholders, they may, by resolution, provide for any lawful amendment to the charter or articles of incorporation; and such amendment, accompanied by a copy of such resolution duly certified by the president and secretary of the company, shall be filed and recorded in the same manner as the original charter, and shall thereupon become effective. Stockholders representing a majority of the capital stock of any such company may in such manner also increase or reduce the amount of its capital stock; provided, that the capital stock shall in no case be reduced to less than one hundred thousand dollars fully paid up. A statement of any such increase or reduction shall be signed and acknowledged by two officers of the company and filed and recorded along with the certified copy of the resolution of the stockholders provided therefor in the same manner as the charter or amendment thereto. For any such increase or reduction, the company may require the return of the original certificates as other evidences of stock in exchange for new certificates issued in lieu thereof. The shares of stock of such company shall be transferable on its books, in accordance with law and the by-laws of the company, by the owner in person or his authorized agent; and every person becoming a stockholder by such transfer shall succeed to all rights of the former holder of the stock transferred, by reason of such ownership. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4728. Examination by commissioner before commencing business.—When the first meeting of the stockholders shall be held and the officers of the company elected, it shall be the duty of the president or secretary to notify the commissioner of insurance and banking; and he shall thereupon immediately make, or cause to be made, at the expense of the company, a full and thorough examination thereof; and, if he shall find that all of the capital stock of the company, amounting to not less than one hundred thousand dollars, has been fully paid up and is in the custody of the officers, either in cash or securities of the class in which such companies are authorized by this chapter to invest or loan their funds, he shall issue to such company a certificate of authority to transact such kind or kinds of insurance business within this state as such officers may apply for and as may be authorized by its charter; which certificate shall expire on the last day of February next after the date of its issuance. Before such certificate is issued, not less than two officers of such company shall execute and file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a sworn schedule of all the assets of the company exhibited to him upon such examination, showing the value thereof, together with a sworn statement that the same are bona fide, the unconditional and unencumbered property of the company and are worth the amounts stated in such schedule. No original or first certificate of authority shall be granted, except in conformity herewith, regardless of the date of filing of the articles of incorporation with the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4729. Shall file annual statement.—Each life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, shall, after the first day of January of each year and before the first day of March following, and before the renewal of its certificate of authority to transact business, prepare, under oath of two of its officers, and deposit in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking, a statement, accompanied with the fee for filing annual statements of ten dollars, showing the condition of the company on the thirty-first day of December the next preceding, which shall include a statement in detail showing the character of its assets and liabilities on that date, the amount and character of business transacted, moneys received and how expended during the year, and the number and amount of its policies in force on that date in Texas, and the total amount of all policies in force; and the commissioner of insurance and banking may, from time to time, make such changes in the forms and requirements of the annual statements of companies as shall seem to him best adapted to elicit from the companies a true exhibit of their condition and method of conducting business; and such statement shall also contain and set forth an exhibit of the investments of such company; provided, that such terms and requirements shall elicit only such information as shall pertain to the business of the company. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4730. Renewal certificates.—Whenever any life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, or health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, transacting insurance business in this state, shall have filed its annual statement in accordance with the preceding article, showing a condition which entitles it to transact business in this state in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall, upon receipt of a fee of one dollar, issue a renewal certificate of authority to such company, which shall expire on the last day of February of the subsequent year. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4731. Copy of certificate for agents.—Any such company organized under the laws of this state, having received authority from the commissioner of insurance and banking to transact business in this state, shall receive from such commissioner, upon written request therefor, a certified copy of its certificate of authority for each of its agents in this state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4732. To sue and be sued; commissioner only can enjoin.—Actions may be maintained by a company organized under the laws of this state against any of its policy holders, stock holders, or other person, for any cause relating to the business of such company; and actions may also be prosecuted and maintained by any policy holder, or the heirs or legal representatives of any such policy holder, against the company for losses which accrue on any policy; but no action shall be brought or maintained by any person other than the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state for the enjoining, restraining or interfering with the prosecution of the business of the company. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4733. Laws relating to corporations shall govern.—The laws relating to and governing corporations in general shall apply to and govern companies organized under this chapter, in so far as the same are pertinent and not in conflict with the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 9.]

Requirement as to notice.—Under Art. 5714, providing that a stipulation in a contract requiring notice to be given of any claim of damages which fixes the time within which it shall be given at less than 90 days shall be void, a provision of a casualty policy requiring notice of the injury to be given within 10 days would be void; this article not conflicting with that act. Royal Casualty Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 674.

Art. 4734. May invest in what securities.—A life insurance company organized under the laws of this state may invest in or loan upon the following securities, viz.:

(a) It may invest any of its funds or accumulations in the bonds of the United States or of any state, county, or city of the United States, or the bonds of any independent or common school district, or first mortgage bonds of any dividend paying railroad or electric railway company duly incorporated under the laws of the United States, or any state thereof.

(b) It may loan any of its funds and accumulations, taking as security therefor such collateral as under the previous subdivision it may invest in, and upon first liens upon real estate, the title to which is valid, and the value of which is double the amount loaned thereon; provided, that, if any part of such value is in buildings, such buildings shall be insured against loss by fire for at least fifty per cent of the value thereof, with loss clause payable to such company. It may also make loans upon the security of or purchase its own policies, but no loan on any policy shall exceed the reserve value thereof. No investment or loan, except policy loans, shall be made by any such insurance company, unless the same shall first have been authorized by the board of directors, or by a committee charged with the duty of supervising such investments or loans. No such company shall subscribe to, or participate in, any underwriting of the purchase or sale of securities or property, or enter into any such transaction for such purpose, or sell on account of such company jointly with any other person, firm or corporation; nor shall any such company enter into any agreement to withhold from sale any of its property; but the disposition of its property shall be at all times within the control of its board of directors. Every such company possessed of assets not authorized by this chapter shall dispose of the same within five years after July 10, 1909, unless such time is extended for good cause by the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4735. May hold real estate for what purposes and for how long.—Every such insurance company may secure, hold and convey real property only for the following purposes and in the following manner:

1. One building site and office building for its accommodation in the transaction of its business and for lease and rental.
2. Such as shall have been acquired in good faith by way of security for loans previously contracted or for moneys due.
3. Such as shall have been conveyed to it in the satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of its dealings.
4. Such as shall have been purchased at sales under judgment or decrees of court, or mortgage or other liens held by such companies.

All such real property specified in subdivisions 2, 3 and 4 of this article, which shall not be necessary for its accommodation in the convenient transaction of its business, shall be sold and disposed of within five years after the company shall have acquired title to the same, or within five years after the same shall have ceased to be necessary for the accommodation of its business; and it shall not hold such property for a longer period, unless it shall procure a certificate from the commissioner of insurance that its interests will suffer materially by the forced sale thereof; in which event, the time for the sale may be extended to such time as the commissioner shall direct in such certificate. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4736. Director not to do certain things.—No director or officer of any insurance company transacting business in this state, or organized under the laws of this state, shall receive any money or valuable thing for negotiating, procuring, recommending or aiding in any purchase or sale by such company of any property, or any loan from such company, nor be pecuniarily interested, either as principal, co-principal, agent or beneficiary, in any such purchase, sale or loan; provided, that nothing contained in this article shall prevent a life insurance corporation from making a loan upon a policy held therein, by the borrower, not in excess of the reserve value thereof. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4737. May reinsure.—Any life insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, may reinsure in any insurance company authorized to transact business in this state, any risk or part of a risk which it may assume; provided, that no such company shall have the power to so reinsure its entire outstanding business until the contract therefor shall be submitted to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and be by him approved, as protecting fully the interests of all the policy holders. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4738. Dividends to be paid only from profits.—No life insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, shall declare or pay any dividends to its policy holders, except from the profits made by such company; provided, that this shall not prohibit the issuance of policies guaranteeing a definite payment or reduction in premiums, not exceeding the expense loading on said premiums; but, where said reduction exceeds said expense loading, the proper reserve therefor must be held by the company to provide for the deficiency so arising in the net premium; and provided, further, that this shall not apply to payments to holders of special or board contracts heretofore issued. No such life insurance company shall declare or pay any dividends to its stockholders, except from the profits made by said company, not including surplus arising from the sale of stock. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4739. Salaries.—No domestic life insurance company shall pay any salary, compensation or emolument to any officer, trustee or director thereof, nor any salary, compensation or emolument amounting in any year to more than five thousand dollars to any person, firm or corporation, unless such payment be first authorized by a vote of the board of directors of such life insurance company; provided, that the limitation as to time contained herein shall not be construed as preventing a life insurance company from entering into contracts with its agents for the payment of renewal commissions. No such company shall grant any pension to any officer, director or trustee thereof, or to any member of his family after his death. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4740. Disbursements to be made by vouchers only.—No domestic life insurance company shall make any disbursement of one hundred dollars or more, unless the same be evidenced by a voucher signed by, or on behalf of, the person, firm or corporation receiving the money and correctly describing the consideration for the payment. If the expenditure be for both services and disbursements, the voucher shall set forth the service rendered and statement of the disbursement made. If the expenditure be in connection with any matter pending before any legislature or public body, or before any department or officer of any state or government, the voucher shall correctly describe, in addition, the nature of the matter and of the interest of such company therein. When such voucher can not be obtained, the expenditure shall be evidenced by a paid check or an affidavit describing the character and object of the expenditure and stating the reason for not obtaining such voucher. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4741. Policies shall contain what.—No policy of life insurance shall be issued or delivered in this state, or be issued by a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state, unless the same shall contain provisions substantially as follows:

1. A provision that all premiums shall be payable in advance either at the home office of the company or to an agent of the company upon delivery of a receipt signed by one or more of the officers who are designated in the policy.

2. A provision for a grace of at least one month for the payment of every premium after the first, which may be subject to an interest charge, during which month the insurance shall continue in force, which provision may contain a stipulation that, if the insured shall die during the period of grace, the overdue premium will be deducted in any settlement under the policy.

3. A provision that the policy, or policy and application, shall constitute the entire contract between the parties and shall be incontestable not later than two years from its date, except for non-payment of premiums; and which provision may or may not, at the option of the company, contain an exception for violations of the conditions of the policy relating to naval and military services in time of war.

4. A provision that all statements made by the insured shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties.

5. A provision that, if the age of the insured has been understated, the amount payable under the policy shall be such as the premium paid would have purchased at the correct age.

6. A provision that, after three full years premiums have been paid, the company, at any time while the policy is in force, will advance upon proper assignment of the policy and upon the sole security thereof at a specified rate of interest a sum equal to, or at the option of the owner of the policy less than, the legal reserve at the end of the current policy year on the policy and on any dividend addition thereto, less than a sum not more than two and one-half per centum of the amount insured by the policy, and of any dividend additions thereto; and that the company may deduct from such loan value any existing indebtedness on the policy and any unpaid balance of the premium for the current policy year, and may collect interest in advance on the loan to the end of the current policy year, which provision may further provide that such loans may be deferred for not exceeding six months after application therefor is made. It shall further be stipulated in the policy that failure to repay any such advance, or to pay interest, shall not void the policy until the total indebtedness thereon to the company shall equal or exceed the loan value. No condition other than as herein provided shall be exacted as a prerequisite to any such advance. This provision shall not be required in term insurances, nor in pure endowments issued or granted as original policies, or in exchange for lapsed or surrendered policies; and no provision herein required shall compel any company to loan on any policy an amount greater than ninety-seven and one-half per centum of the face value thereof, including net dividend additions thereto.

7. A provision which, in event of default in premium payments, after premiums shall have been paid for three full years, shall secure to the owner of the policy a stipulated form of insurance, the net value of which shall be at least equal to the reserve at the date of default on the policy, and on any dividend additions thereto, specifying the mortality table and rate of interest adopted for computing such reserves, less a sum not more than two and one-half per cent of the amount insured by the policy and of any existing dividend additions thereto, and less any existing indebtedness to the company on the policy. Such provision shall stipulate that the policy may be surrendered to the company at its home office within one month from date of default for a specified cash value at least equal to the sum which would otherwise be available for the purchase of insurance, as aforesaid, and may stipulate that the company may defer payment for not more than six months after the application therefor is made. This provision shall not be required in term insurances.

8. A table showing in figures the loan values, and the options available under the policies each year, upon default in premium payments during the first twenty years of the policy or the period during which premiums are payable, beginning with the year in which such values and options become available.

9. A provision that if, in event of default in premium payments, the value of the policy shall be applied to the purchase of other insurances; and if such insurance shall be in force and the original policy shall not have been surrendered to the company and canceled, the policy may be reinstated within three years from such default, upon evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company and payments of arrears of premiums with interest.

10. A provision that, when a policy shall become a claim by the death of the insured, settlement shall be made upon receipt of due proof of death and the right of the claimant to the proceeds, or not later than two months after the receipt of such proof.

11. A table showing the amounts of installments in which the policy may provide its proceeds may be payable.

Any of the foregoing provisions, or portions thereof, not applicable to single premium policies shall, to that extent, not be incorporated therein. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4742. Policies shall not contain what.—No policy of life insurance shall be issued or delivered in this state, or be issued by a life insurance company incorporated under the laws of this state, if it contains any of the following provisions:

1. A provision limiting the time within which any action at law or in equity may be commenced to less than two years after the cause of action shall accrue.

2. A provision by which the policy shall purport to be issued or to take effect more than six months before the original application for the insurance was made, if thereby the insured would rate at any age younger than his age at date when the application was made, according to his age at nearest birthday.

3. A provision for any mode of settlement at maturity of less value than the amounts insured on the face of the policy, plus dividend additions, if any, less any indebtedness to the company on the policy, and less any premium that may, by the terms of the policy, be deducted; provided, that any company may issue a policy promising a benefit less than the full benefit in case of the death of the insured by his own hand while sane or insane, or by following stated hazardous occupations. This provision shall not apply to purely accident and health policies. None of the foregoing provisions relating to policy forms shall apply to policies issued in lieu of, or in exchange for, any other policy issued before July 10, 1909. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4743. Policies of foreign companies may contain.—The policies of a life insurance company not organized under the laws of this state may contain any provision which the law of the state, territory, district or country, under which the company is organized, prescribes shall be in such policies when issued in this state; and the policies of a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state may, when issued or delivered in any other state, territory, district or country, contain any provision required by the laws of the state, territory, district or country in which the same are issued, anything in this chapter to the contrary notwithstanding. [Id. sec. 24.]

Venue of suit against foreign live stock insurance company.—Under this article, Art. 1830, subd. 28, Art. 4724, and Art. 1121, subd. 46, which latter article originally provided for the organization of fire and live stock, etc., insurance companies, but was amended in 1907 (Acts 30th Leg. c. 150) so as to provide that all insurance companies under such subdivision shall be in all respects subject to the provisions of Title 58, held, that a foreign live stock insurance company could not be sued on a policy in the county of plaintiff's residence, where the company did not have a representative or office therein, and the insured animal did not die there. Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Krenek (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1181.

Art. 4744. Venue of suits on policies.—Suits on policies may be instituted and prosecuted against any life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, or health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, in the county where the home office of such company is located, or in the county where loss has occurred or where the policy holder or beneficiary instituting such suit resides. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 4745. Service of process.—Process in any civil suit against any domestic life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, may be served only on the president, or any active vice president, or secretary, or general counsel residing at the city of the home office of the company, or by leaving a copy of same at the home office of such company during business hours. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 4746. Losses shall be paid promptly.—In all cases where a loss occurs and the life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company liable therefor shall fail to pay the same within thirty days after demand therefor, such company shall be liable to pay the holder of such policy, in addition to the amount of the loss, twelve per cent damages on the amount of such loss together with reasonable attorney fees for the prosecution and collection of such loss. [Id. sec. 35.]

See Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Lennox, 103 T. 133, 124 S. W. 623; American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 909.

Constitutionality.—This article does not violate the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Merchants' Life Ass'n of United States v. Yoakum, 98 Fed. 251, 39 C. C. A. 56; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Orlopp, 25 C. A. 284, 61 S. W. 339, 340; Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 51. Contra, see New York Life Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 680, overruling Insurance Co. v. Chowning, 86 T. 654, 26 S. W. 982, 24 L. R. A. 504; Insurance Co. v. Walden (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1012; Casualty Co. v. Allibone, 15 C. A. 178, 39 S. W. 632; Id., 90 T. 660, 40 S. W. 399.

This statute is not unconstitutional. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 280; Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Chowning, 26 S. W. 982, 86 T. 654, 24 L. R. A. 504; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Blodgett, 27 S. W. 286, 8 C. A. 45; Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Gooding, 19 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 123; Sun Life Ins. Co. of America v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 605, 606.

Const. 1876, art. 3, § 43, which provided for a revision of the statutes at the first session of the legislature under the constitution, did not prevent the legislature in revising the statutes in 1879 and inserting in the revision Act May 2, 1874 (Acts 14th Leg. c. 145) § 9, which made foreign life insurance companies liable to a penalty and an attorney's fee on refusal to pay over proceeds within the time provided by the policy from making the provision applicable to all life insurance companies as is done in this article. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 554.

What law governs.—The laws of the state in which an insurance company is incorporated apply to contracts made in that state or in any other state. Rue v. Railway Co., 74 T. 475, 8 S. W. 533, 15 Am. St. Rep. 852; Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 280; Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Chowning, 86 T. 654, 26 S. W. 982, 24 L. R. A. 504.

A foreign life insurance company doing business in Texas cannot avoid the 12 per cent. statutory penalty for a failure to pay a policy by a stipulation in it that it shall be payable in the state of the incorporation, in which no such penalty is provided for. Franklin Ins. Co. v. Villeneuve, 25 C. A. 356, 60 S. W. 1014.

Application to accident insurance company.—This article does not apply to accident insurance. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. J. B. Parker & Co., 96 T. 287, 72 S. W. 168; Id., 30 C. A. 521, 72 S. W. 621; Lane v. General Accident Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 324.

Application to assessment and fraternal associations.—The American Legion of Honor is a mutual benefit association and is not subject to the penalties imposed by this article. Legion of Honor v. Larmour, 81 T. 71, 16 S. W. 633.

It not being shown that defendant is a fraternal beneficiary association as defined by this act, it is, like an insurance company, liable for 12 per cent. damages and attorney's fees, having failed to pay in full its certificate at maturity, and after demand, according to its liability. Sup. Council Am. Legion of Honor v. Storey, 97 T. 264, 78 S. W. 1.

This article having been repealed by Acts 31st Leg. c. 108, § 69, and the penalty clause of the latter act not being applicable to assessment companies, plaintiff in an action on an assessment policy in which the cause of the action did not accrue until after such repeal could not recover a penalty and attorney's fees. National Life Ass'n v. Hagestein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Demand.—It is necessary to make demand after the policy becomes due, before the penalties provided for in the statute can be recovered. The demand can be made after suit is filed and cause of action therefor set up by amended petition. N. W. Life Assurance Co. v. Sturdevant, 24 C. A. 331, 59 S. W. 61.

A polite letter by attorneys requesting payment of amount due on policies is such a demand as will authorize recovery of 12 per cent. damages and attorney's fees if request is not complied with. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Mauer, 101 T. 553, 109 S. W. 1088.

This article does not authorize the court to impose the penalty unless there is proof of a specific demand, and evidence of the furnishing of proofs of death, and of a statement by insured to the policy holder that it would not pay, and the bringing of suit on the policy, is insufficient; the word "demand" meaning a request made on another to do a particular act under a claim of right. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769.

Where an insurance company refuses to pay a loss after proofs have been furnished, and thereupon plaintiff at once began suit, such suit did not constitute a statutory "demand," and she was therefore not entitled to recover statutory damages and attorney's fees on recovering the amount of the policy. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford, 103 T. 522, 131 S. W. 406.

In the absence of proof of demand of payment of a life policy prior to bringing suit thereon, plaintiff was not entitled to recover any penalty or attorney's fees. Bankers' Reserve Life Co. v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 226.

The penalty prescribed by this article is not recoverable in the absence of demand before suit, though it appears that demand would be ineffectual. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 554.

Allegation of demand and refusal.—See notes under Art. 1827.

Amount on which penalty may be charged.—The 12 per cent. penalty provided by statute for the failure of an insurance company to pay a life policy will only be charged on the portion of the amount due thereon which the company withholds. Franklin Ins. Co. v. Villeneuve, 25 C. A. 356, 60 S. W. 1014.

Where a policy is payable in installments, the penalty and attorney's fees are payable only on the amount due when suit is brought. New York Life Ins. Co. v. English, 95 T. 391, 67 S. W. 884.

Effect of filing interpleader.—Where an insurance company promptly filed its bill of interpleader to determine conflicting claims as to a policy, it was not liable for the statutory penalties. Stevens v. Germania Life Ins. Co., 26 C. A. 156, 62 S. W. 824.

Proofs of loss.—Proofs of loss, by whom made. Warren v. Insurance Co., 13 C. A. 466, 35 S. W. 810.

Burden of proof.—See, also, notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Under this article and Sayles Ann. Civ. St. 1895, Art. 3096, providing that that title shall not apply to mutual relief associations, if the principal officer thereof makes an annual statement as therein required, but that, if it refuses or neglects to make the annual report, it shall be deemed an insurance company conducted for profit and amenable to the laws governing such companies, the burden was on the party suing on a benefit certificate, and claiming to be entitled to the penalty and attorney's fees, provided by this article, to show failure to make the annual report required by article 3096. Grand Lodge F. & A. Masons of Texas v. Moore (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 362.

Interest on judgment.—See notes under Art. 4981.

Art. 4747. Certificate null and void, when.—Should any life insurance company, accident insurance company, life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company fail to pay off and satisfy any execution that may lawfully issue on any final judgment against said company within thirty days after the officer holding such execution has demanded payment thereof from any officer or attorney of record of such company, in this state, or out of it, such officer shall immediately certify such demand and failure to the commissioner of insurance and banking; and thereupon the commissioner shall forthwith declare null and void the certificate of authority of such company; and such company shall be prohibited from transacting any business in this state until such execution shall be fully satisfied and discharged, and until such commissioner shall renew his certificate of authority to such company. [Id. sec. 36.]

Art. 4748. Business of life insurance companies limited to certain kinds of business.—It shall be unlawful for any life insurance company, accident insurance company, life and accident, health and accident, and life, health and accident insurance company to take any kind of risks or issue any policies of insurance, except those of life, accident or health; nor shall the business of life, accident or health insurance in this state be in any wise conducted or transacted by any company which, in this or any other state or country, is engaged or concerned in the business of marine, fire or inland insurance. [Id. sec. 37.]

Art. 4749. Deposit of securities.—Any life insurance company, accident insurance company, life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, may, at its option, deposit with the treasurer of this state securities equal to amount of its capital stock, and may, at its option, withdraw the same, or any part thereof, first having deposited in the treasury in lieu thereof other securities equal in value to those withdrawn. Any such securities, before being so originally deposited or substituted, shall be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking; and, when any such deposit is made, the treasurer shall execute to the company making the deposit a receipt therefor, giving such description to such securities as will identify the same; and such company shall have the right to advertise such fact, or print a copy of the treasurer's receipt on the policies it may issue; and the proper officers or agents of each insurance company making such deposit shall be permitted, at all reasonable times, to examine such securities and to detach coupons therefrom and to collect interest thereon, under such reasonable rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the treasurer, and the commissioner of insurance and banking, of this state. The deposit herein provided for, when made by any company, shall thereafter be maintained as long as said company shall have outstanding any liability to its policy holders. For the purpose of state, county and municipal taxation, the situs of all personal property belonging to such companies shall be at the home office of such company. [Id. sec. 38.]

Art. 4750. Same.—Any life insurance company now incorporated, or which may hereafter be incorporated, under the laws of this state, may deposit with the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, for the common benefit of all the holders of its policies and annuity bonds, securities of the kinds in which, by the laws of this state, it is permitted to invest or loan its funds, equal to the legal reserve on all its outstanding policies in force, which securities shall be held by said commissioner in trust for the purpose and objects herein specified. Any such company may deposit lawful money of the United States in lieu of the securities above referred to, or any portion thereof, and may also, for the purposes of such deposit, convey to said commissioner in trust the real estate in which any portion of its said reserve may be lawfully invested; and, in such case, said commissioner shall hold the title thereto in trust until other securities in lieu thereof shall be deposited with him, whereupon he shall reconvey the same to such company. Said commissioner may cause any such securities or real estate to be appraised and valued prior to their being deposited with, or conveyed to, him in trust as aforesaid, the reasonable expense of such appraisal or valuation to be paid by the company. [Acts 1909, p. 448, 2 S. S. sec. 1.]

Art. 4751. Policies shall have indorsed on face, etc.—After making the deposit mentioned above, no company shall thereafter issue a policy of insurance or endowment or annuity bond, except policies of industrial insurance, unless it shall have upon its face a certificate substantially in the following words: "This policy is registered, and approved securities equal in value to the legal reserve hereon are held in trust by the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas," which certificate shall be signed by such commissioner and sealed with the seal of his office. All policies and bonds of each kind and class issued and the forms thereof filed in the office of said commissioner shall have printed thereon some appropriate designating letter or figure, combination of letters or figures or terms identifying the particular form of contract, together with the year of adoption of such form; and, whenever any change or modification is made in the form of contracts, policy or bond, the designating letters, figures or terms and year of adoption thereon shall be correspondingly changed. The commissioner of insurance and banking shall prepare and keep such registers thereof as will enable him to compute their value at any time. Upon written proof attested by the president or vice president and secretary of the company which shall have issued such policies or annuity bonds that any of them have been commuted or terminated, the commissioner shall commute or cancel them upon his register; and, until such proof is furnished all registered, contracts shall be considered in force for the purposes of this chapter. The net value of every policy or annuity bond, according to the standard prescribed by the laws of this state for the valuation of policies of life insurance companies, when the first premium shall have been paid thereon, less the amount of such liens as the company may have against it (not exceeding such value), shall be entered opposite the record of said policy or annuity bond in the register aforesaid at the time such record is made. On the first day of January of each year, or within sixty days thereafter, the commission shall cause the policies and annuity bonds of each company accepting the terms of this chapter to be carefully valued; and the actual value thereof at the time fixed for such valuation, less such liens as the company may have against it, not exceeding such value, shall be entered upon the register opposite the record of such policy or bond, and the commissioner shall furnish a certificate of the aggregate of such value to the company. It shall be the duty of the commissioner to cancel mutilated or surrendered policies and annuity bonds issued by any such company, and register other like policies or bonds issued in lieu thereof. Each company, which shall have made the deposit herein provided for, shall make additional deposits from time to time, in amounts not less than five thousand dollars, and of such securities as are permitted by this chapter to be deposited, so that the market value of the securities deposited shall always be equal to the net value of the policies and annuity bonds issued by said company, less such liens as the company may have against them, not exceeding such net value. So long as any company shall maintain its deposits as herein prescribed at an amount equal to, or in excess of, the net value of its policies and annuity bonds as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of said commissioner to sign and affix his seal to the certificates before mentioned on every policy and annuity bond presented to him for that purpose by any company so depositing. The commissioner shall keep a careful record of the securities deposited by each company, showing by item the amount and market value thereof. If at any time it shall appear therefrom that the value of the securities held on deposit is less than the actual value of the policies and annuity bonds issued by such company and then in force, it shall be unlawful for the commissioner to execute the certificate on any additional policies or annuity bonds of such company until it shall have made good the deficit. Any company depositing under the provisions of this chapter may increase its deposits at any time by making additional deposits of not less than five thousand dollars of such securities as are authorized by this chapter. Any such company whose deposits exceed the net value of all policies and annuity bonds it has in force, less such liens (not exceeding such net value) as the company may hold against them, may withdraw such excess; and it may withdraw any of such securities at any time by depositing others of equal value and of the character authorized by this chapter in their stead; and it may collect the interest coupons, rents and other income on the securities deposited as the same accrue.

The securities deposited under this chapter by each company shall be placed and kept by the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state in some secure safe-deposit, fire-proof box or vault in the city or town in or near which the home office of the company is located; and the officers of the company shall have access to such securities for the purpose of detaching interest coupons and crediting payment and exchanging securities as above provided, under such reasonable rules and regulations as the commissioner may establish. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4752. Fees for making deposits.—Every company making deposit under the provisions of this chapter shall pay to the commissioner of insurance and banking for each certificate placed on registered policies or annuity bonds issued by the company, after the original or first deposit is made hereunder, a fee of twenty-five cents; and the fee so received shall be disposed of by said commissioner as follows:

1. The payment of the annual rent or hire of the safety deposit fire-proof box above provided.
2. Payment for the services of a competent and reliable representative of said commissioner, to be appointed by him, who shall have direct charge of the securities and safety box containing the same, and through whom, and under whose supervision, the insurance company may have access to its securities for the purposes above provided. The sum paid such representative shall not exceed sixty dollars per annum for each company.
3. The balance of such fees shall be paid to, or deposited with, the state treasurer to the credit of the general fund. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4753. Securities may include capital stock; securities to be increased.—Any life insurance company organized under the laws of this state and making the deposit provided for by this chapter, may include, as a part thereof, securities representing its capital stock, and any deposits of its securities heretofore or hereafter made in compliance with the laws of this state representing its capital stock, and shall only be required to deposit in addition thereto the remainder of its total reserve on outstanding policies and annuity bonds after deducting therefrom the amount of its capital stock securities so deposited. Deposits of securities made hereunder to the value of the reserve on all outstanding policies and annuity bonds shall be added to, and maintained from time to time as the reserve values increase, by the company issuing such contracts, or by any company which may reinsure or assume them; and such securities shall be held by the commissioner of insurance and banking and his successors in office in trust for the benefit of such policies and annuity bonds so long as the same shall remain in force. No company, making the deposit provided for herein, shall reinsure its outstanding business, or the whole of any one or more of its risks, except in or with a company or companies incorporated and organized under the laws of this state, or a company having permission to do business in this state. [Id. secs. 4, 5.]

Art. 4754. Sub-standard or extra hazardous policies.—If any life insurance company doing business under the laws of this state has written or assumed risks that are sub-standard or extra hazardous and has charged therefor more than its published rates of premium, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall in valuing such policies compute and charge such extra reserves thereon as is warranted by reason of the extra hazard assumed and the extra premium charged. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4755. No commissions to be paid officers.—No life insurance company transacting business in this state shall pay, or contract to pay, directly or indirectly, to its president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, actuary, medical director or other physician charged with the duty of examining risks or applications for insurance or to any officer of the company other than an agent or solicitor, any commission or other compensation contingent upon the writing or procuring of any policy of insurance in such company, or procuring an application therefor by any person whomsoever, or contingent upon the payment of any renewal premium, or upon the assumption of any life insurance risk by such company; and, should any company violate the provisions of this article, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to revoke its certificate of authority to transact business in this state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4756. Co-operative companies.—The provisions of articles 4750 to article 4755, inclusive, shall likewise apply to and govern co-operative life insurance companies organized under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4757. Funds to be deposited in name of company.—Any director, member of a committee, or officer, or any clerk of a home company, who is charged with the duty of handling or investing its funds, shall not deposit or invest such funds, except in the corporate name of such company; shall not borrow the funds of such company; shall not be interested in any way in any loan, pledge, security, or property of such company, except as stockholder; shall not take or receive to his own use any fee, brokerage, commission, gift or other consideration for, or on account of, a loan made by or on behalf of such company. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 39.]

Art. 4758. Impairment of capital stock.—Any such insurance company transacting business within this state, whose capital stock shall become impaired to the extent of thirty-three and one-third per cent thereof, computing its liabilities according to the terms of this chapter, shall make good such impairment within sixty days, by reduction of its capital stock (provided such capital stock shall in no case be less than one hundred thousand dollars), or otherwise; and failure to make good such impairment within said time shall forfeit its right to write new business in this state until said impairment shall have been made good. And provided, that the commissioner of insurance and banking may apply to any court of competent jurisdiction for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of such company when its capital stock shall become impaired to the extent of fifty per cent thereof, computing its policy liabilities according to the American experience table of mortality and four and one-half per cent interest. And provided, further, that no company shall write new business in Texas when its net surplus to policy holders is less than one hundred thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 43.]

Art. 4759. Form of policies to be filed.—Life insurance companies shall, within five days after the issuance of, and the placing upon the market, any form of policies of life insurance, file a copy of such form of policy with the department of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 44.]

Art. 4760. Policy to be approved by commissioner.—No insurance company transacting business in this state shall hereafter be permitted to issue or sell any policy of industrial life insurance, or any policy of accident or health insurance, until the form thereof has been submitted to the commissioner of insurance and banking. If the commissioner of insurance and banking shall approve the form of such policy as complying with the requirements of the laws of this state, the same may thereafter be issued and sold. If he shall disapprove the same, any such company may institute a proceeding in any court of competent jurisdiction to review his action thereon. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 4761. Must have certificate of authority.—No foreign or domestic insurance company shall transact any insurance business in this state, other than the lending of money, unless it shall first procure from the commissioner of insurance and banking a certificate of authority, stating that the requirements of the laws of this state have been fully complied with by it, and authorizing it to do business in this state. Such certificate of authority shall expire on the last day of February in each year, and shall be renewed annually so long as the company shall continue to comply with the laws of the state, such renewals to be granted upon the same terms and considerations as the original certificate. [Id. sec. 46.]

Art. 4762. Companies with $25,000 capital stock.—Companies may be incorporated in the manner prescribed by this chapter for the incorporation of life, accident and health insurance companies generally, which shall have power only to transact business within the state of Texas, and to write insurance only on the weekly or monthly premiums plan, and to issue no policy promising to pay more than one thousand dollars in the event of the death of the insured from natural causes, nor more than two thousand dollars in the event of death of any person from accidental causes, which may issue, combined or separately, life, accident or health insurance policies with not less than an actual paid up capital of twenty-five thousand dollars; provided, that all such companies shall be subject to all the laws regulating life insurance companies in this state not inconsistent with the provisions of this article; and provided, further, that such companies shall not be permitted to invest their assets in other than Texas securities as defined by the laws of this state regulating the investments of life insurance companies. [Id. sec. 56.]

Art. 4763. Unlawful dividends.—It shall not be lawful for any insurance company organized under the laws of this state to make any dividend, except from surplus profits arising from its business; and, in estimating such profits, there shall be reserved therefrom the lawful reserve on all unexpired risks and also the amount of all unpaid losses, whether adjusted or unadjusted, and all other debts due and payable, or to become due and payable, by the company. Any dividends made contrary to the provisions of this article shall subject the company making them to a forfeiture of its charter; and the commissioner of insurance shall forthwith revoke its certificate of authority; provided, that he shall give such company at least ten days notice in writing of his intention to revoke such certificate, stating specifically the reasons why he intends to revoke same. [Id. sec. 61.]

Art. 4764. Taxation of domestic insurance companies.—Insurance companies incorporated under the laws of this state shall hereafter be required to render for state, county and municipal taxation all of their real estate as other real estate is rendered; and all of the personal property of such insurance companies shall be valued as other property is valued for assessment in this state in the following manner: From the total valuation of its assets shall be deducted the reserve, being the amount of the debts of insurance companies by reason of their outstanding policies in gross, and from the remainder shall be deducted the assessed value of all real estate owned by the company and the remainder shall be the assessed taxable value of its personal property. Home insurance companies shall not be required to pay any occupation or gross receipt tax. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4765. Foreign companies, statement.—Any life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, incorporated under the laws of any other state, territory or country, desiring to transact the business of such insurance in this state, shall furnish said commissioner of insurance and banking with a written or printed statement under oath of the president or vice president, or treasurer and secretary of such company, which statement shall show:

- (a) The name and locality of the company.
- (b) The amount of its capital stock.
- (c) The amount of its capital stock paid up.
- (d) The assets of the company, including: first, the amount of cash on hand and in the hands of other persons, naming such persons and their residence; second, real estate unincumbered, where situated and its value; third, the bonds owned by the company and how they are secured, with the rate of interest thereon; fourth, debts due the company secured by mortgage, describing the property mortgaged and its market value; fifth, debts otherwise secured, stating how secured; sixth, debts for premiums; seventh, all other moneys and securities.
- (e) Amount of liabilities to the company, stating the name of the person or corporation to whom liable.
- (f) Losses adjusted and due.
- (g) Losses adjusted and not due.
- (h) Losses adjusted.
- (i) Losses in suspense and for what cause.
- (j) All other claims against the company, describing the same.

Provided that the commissioner of insurance and banking may require any additional fact to be shown by such annual statement. Each such company shall be required to file a similar statement not later than March 1 of each year. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 26.]

Art. 4766. To file articles of incorporation.—Such foreign life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company shall accompany such statement with a certified copy of its acts or articles of incorporation, and all amendments thereto, and a copy of its

by-laws, together with the name and residence of each of its officers and directors, and all of which shall be certified under the hand of the president or secretary of such company. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4767. Paid up capital stock.—No such foreign life insurance company, accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, shall transact any business of insurance in this state, unless such company is possessed of at least one hundred thousand dollars of actual paid up in cash money capital invested in such securities as provided under the laws of the state, territory or country of its creation; and no mutual life insurance company or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company operating on the old line or legal reserve basis, shall transact any business of insurance in this state, unless such company is possessed of at least one hundred thousand dollars of net surplus assets invested in securities provided for under the law of the state, territory or country of its creation. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4768. Deposits required.—Whenever the existing or future laws of any other state or territory of the United States, or of any other country, shall require of life insurance companies, accident insurance companies, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance companies, incorporated by this state, any deposit of securities in such other state, territory or country before transacting insurance business therein, then, and in every such case, all insurance companies of such state shall, before doing any insurance business in this state, be required to make the same deposit of securities with the treasurer of this state. [Id. sec. 29.]

Application.—This article does not apply to any other state of the United States, unless the laws of that state require such a deposit from companies incorporated in this state. Foreign companies must, however, deposit bonds or securities for the benefit of policy holders before doing business in this state, as provided for in Art. 4769. Selders v. Merchants' Life Ass'n of America, 93 T. 194, 54 S. W. 753.

Art. 4769. Alien companies to deposit.—No foreign life insurance company or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, incorporated by or organized under the laws of any foreign government, shall transact business in this state, unless it shall first deposit and keep deposited with the treasurer of this state, for the benefit of the policy holders of such company, citizens or residents of the United States, bonds or securities of the United States or the state of Texas to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 4770. Deposit liable for judgment.—The deposit required by the preceding article shall be held liable to pay the judgments of policy holders in such company, and may be so decreed by the court adjudicating the same. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 4771. When alien companies need not deposit.—If the deposit required by article 4769 has been made in any state of the United States, under the laws of such state, in such manner as to secure equally all the policy holders of such company who are citizens and residents of the United States, then no deposits shall be required in this state; but a certificate of such deposit under the hand and seal of the officer of such other state with whom the same has been made shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 4772. Assets, how invested.—The assets of any company not organized under the laws of this state shall be invested in securities or property of the same classes permitted by the laws of this state as to home companies or by other laws of this state in other securities approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking as being of substantially the same grade. [Id. sec. 57.]

Art. 4773. Shall file power of attorney.—Each life insurance company engaged in doing or desiring to do business in this state shall file with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state an irrevocable power of attorney, duly executed, constituting and appointing the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state and his successors in office, or any officer or board which may hereafter be clothed with the powers and duties now devolving upon said commissioner, its duly authorized agent and attorney in fact for the purpose of accepting service for it or being served with citation in any suit brought against it in any court of this state, by any person, or by or to or for the use of the state of Texas, and consenting that the service of any civil process upon him as its attorney for such purpose in any such suit or proceeding shall be taken and held to be valid, waiving all claim and right to object to such service or to any error by reason of such service; and such appointment, agency and power of attorney shall, by its terms and recitals, provide that it shall continue and remain in force and effect so long as such company continues to do business in this state or to collect premiums of insurance from citizens of this state, and so long as it shall have outstanding policies in this state, and until all claims of every character held by the citizens of this state, or by the state of Texas, against such company, shall have been settled. And said power of attorney shall be signed by the president or a vice president and the secretary of such company, whose signature shall be attested by the seal of the company; and said officer signing the same shall acknowledge its execution before an officer authorized by the laws of this state to take acknowledgments; and the said power of attorney shall be embodied in, and approved by, a resolution of the board of directors of such company; and a copy of such resolution, duly certified to by the proper officers of said company, shall be filed with the said power of attorney in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, and shall be recorded by him in a book kept for that purpose, there to remain a permanent record of said department. [Acts 1909, p. 240, sec. 12.]

Art. 4774. Duty of commissioner in accepting service.—Whenever the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state shall accept service or be served with citation in any suit pending against any life insurance company in this state, as provided by the preceding article, he shall immediately enclose the copy of the citation served upon him, or a substantial copy thereof, in a letter properly addressed to the general manager or general agent of the company against whom such service is had, if it shall have a general manager or general agent within this state, and if not, then to the home office of the company, and shall forward the same by registered mail, postage prepaid; and no judgment by default shall be taken in any such cause until after the expiration of at least ten days after the general agent or general manager of such company, or the company at its home office, as the case may be, shall have received such copy of such citation; and the presumption shall obtain, until rebutted, that such notice was received by such agent or company in due course of mail after being deposited in the mail at Austin. [Id. sec. 13.]

Article 4775. Investment in Texas securities.—Each and every life insurance company now engaged, or that may hereafter engage, in transacting the business of life insurance in this state, shall, as a condition of its right to transact such business in this state, invest and keep invested in Texas securities, as hereinafter defined, and in Texas real estate as hereinafter provided, a sum of money equal to at least seventy-five per cent of the aggregate amount of the legal reserve required by the laws of the state of its domicile, to be maintained on account of its policies of insurance in force written upon the lives of citizens of this state, which reserve is hereinafter denominated as its "Texas Reserves." And each such company, securing a certificate of authority to do business in this state, shall be deemed to have accepted such certificate subject to all of the conditions and requirements of this chapter. [Acts 1909, p. 240, sec. 1.]

Art. 4776. Definition of "Texas securities."—The phrase, "Texas Securities," as used in this chapter, shall be held to include bonds of the state of Texas, or of any county, city, town, school district or other municipality or subdivision, which is now or may hereafter be constituted or organized and authorized to issue bonds under the constitution and laws of this state, promissory notes and other obligations, the payment of which is secured by a mortgage, deed of trust or other valid lien upon unincumbered real estate situated in this state, the title to which real estate is valid and the market value of which is double the amount loaned thereon, exclusive of buildings, unless such buildings are insured and kept insured in some company authorized to transact business in this state, and the policy or policies transferred to the company taking such mortgage or lien; the first mortgage bonds of any solvent corporation, incorporated under the laws of this state and doing business in this state, which has not in five years next preceding the date of the investment by such company in such mortgage bonds, defaulted for more than three months in the payment of interest upon its bonds or indebtedness, the market value of which bonds is equal to the amount invested therein; and loans made to policy holders on the sole security of the reserve values of their policies. And the investments required by this chapter, or any part thereof, may be made by the purchase of not more than one building site, and in the erection thereon of not more than one office building, or in the purchase at its reasonable market value of such office building already constructed and the ground upon which the same is located, in any city of the state having a population of more than four thousand inhabitants. And all real estate owned by life insurance companies in this state, on December 31, 1909, and all thereafter acquired under the provisions of this chapter, or by foreclosure of a lien thereon, shall be treated, to the extent of its reasonable market value, as a part of the investments required by this chapter. And "Texas Securities," as used in the following articles of this chapter shall be held to include every character of investment authorized by the terms of this article [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4777. Investments, how made.—The investments required by this chapter shall be made as follows:

(a) Each life insurance company which had a certificate of authority to transact business in this state April 2, 1909, the total amount of whose investments in Texas securities as of December 31, 1908, was equal to or exceeded seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves as of that date, shall have so invested not later than January 31, in each year, a sum of money equal to seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves as of the preceding December 31.

(b) Each life insurance company which had a certificate of authority to transact business in this state on April 2, 1909, the amount of whose investments in Texas securities as of December 31, 1908, was less than seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves as of said date shall have so invested, not later than January 31 in each year, a sum at least equal to seventy-five per cent of the amount by which its Texas reserves as of December 31 preceding exceeded the amount of its Texas reserves as of December 31, 1908, added to the amount of its total investments in Texas securities as of said date; and each such company shall, in addition, have so invested not later than January 31, 1910, a sum at least equal to ten per cent of the amount by which seventy-five per cent of its Texas reserves as of December 31, 1908, exceeded the amount of its investments in Texas securities as of said date, and annually thereafter it shall have invested, not later than January 31, an additional ten per cent of the amount of such excess, until the total amount of its investments in Texas securities shall at least equal seventy-five per cent of its Texas reserves.

(c) Each life insurance company not having a certificate of authority to transact business in this state on April 2, 1909, or that may thereafter discontinue writing new business under such certificate, shall, if it again obtain a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, be required to have invested in Texas securities annually as above provided, a sum equal to seventy-five per cent of its Texas reserves; provided, that if on December 31 preceding the issuance of such certificate of authority, the amount of its investments in Texas securities was less than seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves it shall be required to have so invested annually as above provided, a sum equal to seventy-five per cent of the increase in its Texas reserves since December 31 last preceding the issuance of its certificate of authority, added to the amount of its total investment in Texas securities as of said date; and, in addition, it shall, not later than January 31 in each year after the issuance of its certificate of authority, have so invested ten per cent of the amount by which seventy-five per cent of its Texas reserves as of December 31 preceding the date of said certificate exceeded the amount of its total investments in Texas securities as of that date, and shall have invested annually thereafter, not later than January 31, an additional ten per cent of such excess, until the total amount of its investments in Texas securities shall at least equal seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves. The proportionate amount of the Texas reserves required by this section to be invested in Texas securities as of any date shall thereafter be maintained; provided, that such investment shall not be required to be made by any life insurance company after it has ceased to do the business of life insurance or to write policies of life insurance in this state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4778. Report showing amount of reserve.—That each life insurance company doing business in this state shall, not later than ten days after January 31 of each year, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, on a blank prepared and furnished by him for that purpose, a report showing the entire amount of the reserve on its entire business in force in this state on December 31, preceding, and an itemized schedule of its investments in Texas securities, which report shall be sworn to by either the president or a vice president and the secretary of such company. Such report shall contain such other information as may be required by the commissioner to determine whether or not such company has continuously and in good faith complied with this law; and for that purpose the commissioner may, whenever he shall deem it proper, require such special or supplemental reports as he may deem necessary. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4779. Report showing gross amount of receipts.—Each life insurance company not organized under the laws of this state, transacting business in this state, shall annually, on or before the first day of March, make a report to the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, which report shall be sworn to by either the president or vice president and secretary or treasurer of such company, and which shall show the gross amount of premiums collected during the year ending on December 31, preceding, from citizens of this state, upon policies of insurance; and each such company shall pay annually an occupation tax equal to three per cent of such gross premium receipts; provided, that when the report of the investment in Texas securities, as defined by law, of any such companies as of December 31, of any year, shall show that it has invested on said date as much as thirty per cent of its total Texas reserves, as defined by law, in promissory notes or other obligations secured by mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien on Texas real estate, the rate of occupation tax shall be reduced to two and six-tenths per cent; and, when such report shall show that such company has so invested on said date as much as sixty per cent of its total Texas reserve, the rate of such occupation tax shall be reduced to two and three-tenths per cent; and when such a report shall show that such company has so invested, on said date, as much as seventy-five per cent of its total Texas reserve, the rate of such occupation tax shall be reduced to two per cent; provided, that all such companies shall in any event make the investments in Texas securities in proportion to the amount of Texas reserves as required by law. Such occupation taxes shall be for and on account of the business transacted within this state during the calendar year in which such premiums were collected, or for that portion thereof during which the company shall have transacted business in this state. [Acts 1909, 1 S. S., p. 264, sec. 1.]

Art. 4780. Taxes to be paid before certificate is issued.—Upon the receipt of sworn statements showing the gross premium receipts of such company, the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state shall certify to the treasurer of this state the amount of taxes due by such company for the preceding year; which taxes shall be paid to the state treasurer for the use of the state, by such company. Upon his receipt of such certificate, and the payment of such tax, the treasurer shall execute a receipt therefor, which receipt shall be evidence of the payment of such taxes; and no such life insurance company shall receive a certificate of authority to do business in this state until such taxes are paid. If, upon the examination of any company, or in any other manner, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall be informed that the gross premium receipts of any year exceed in amount those shown by the report thereof, theretofore made as above provided, it shall be the duty of such commissioner to file with the state treasurer a supplemental certificate showing the additional amount of taxes due by such company, which shall be paid by such company upon notice thereof. It shall be the duty of the state treasurer of this state if, within fifteen days after the receipt by him of any certificate or supplemental certificate provided for by this article, the taxes due as shown thereby have not been paid, to report the facts to the attorney general, who shall immediately institute suit in the proper court in Travis county to recover such taxes. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4781. Taxes imposed in this chapter to be sole taxes imposed.—No occupation tax other than herein imposed shall be levied by the state or any county, city or town, upon any life insurance company herein subject to the occupation tax in proportion to its gross premium receipts, or its agents. The occupation tax imposed by this act upon life insurance companies shall be the sole occupation tax which any company doing business in this state under the provisions of this chapter shall be required to pay. [Acts 1909, p. 240, sec. 6.]

Art. 4782. Companies deemed to have accepted provisions of this chapter, when.—Each life insurance company not organized under the laws of this state, hereafter granted a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, shall be deemed to have accepted such certificate and to transact such business hereunder subject to the conditions and requirements that, after it shall cease to transact new business in this state under a certificate of authority, and so long as it shall continue to collect renewal premiums from citizens of this state, it shall be subject to the payment of the same occupation tax in proportion to its gross premiums during any year, from citizens of this state, as is or may be imposed by law on such companies transacting new business within this state, under certificates of authority during such year; provided, that the rate of such tax to be so paid by any such company shall never exceed the rate imposed by this chapter upon insurance companies transacting business in this state; and each such company shall make the same reports of its gross premium receipts for each such year and within the same period as is or may be required of such companies holding certificates of authority; and shall at all times be subject to examination by the commissioner of insurance and banking, or some one selected by him for that purpose, in the same way and to the same extent as is or may be required of companies transacting new business under certificates of authority in this state, the expenses of such examination to be paid by the company examined; and the respective duties of the commissioner of insurance and banking in certifying the amount of such taxes, and of the state treasurer and attorney general in their collection, shall be the same as are or may be prescribed respecting taxes due from companies authorized to transact new business within this state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4783. Companies desiring to do business after having ceased to do so.—Any life insurance company which has heretofore been, may now be, or may hereafter be, engaged in writing policies of insurance upon the lives of citizens of this state, which has heretofore ceased, or may hereafter cease, writing such policies, and which does not now or may not hereafter have a certificate of authority to transact the business of life insurance in this state, but which has continued or may continue to collect renewal or other premiums upon such policies, shall, before it may again obtain a certificate of authority to transact the business of life insurance in this state, report under oath to the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state the gross amount of premiums so collected from citizens of this state upon policies of insurance during each calendar year since the end of the period covered by the last preceding report by such company of gross premium receipts upon which it paid an occupation tax, and shall pay to the state a sum equal to the percentage of its gross premium receipts for each such year that was required by law to be paid as occupation taxes by companies doing business in this state, during such year or years; and, upon the payment of such sum and securing a certificate of authority to do business in this state, the penalties provided for the failure to pay such taxes and make such reports in the past shall be remitted. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4784. Failure to renew certificate, may do what.—Any company which shall fail to renew its certificate of authority or continue to write new business in this state shall, nevertheless, have the right to maintain an agent or agents in Texas for the purpose of collecting renewal premiums on outstanding business written by it under certificate of authority, and also for the purpose of making investments as provided by this chapter. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4785. Commissioner may revoke certificate, when and how.—If any life insurance company, while holding a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, shall fail or refuse to comply with any of the provisions or requirements of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking, upon ascertaining such fact, to notify such company by registered letter, properly addressed and mailed, or by any other form of actual notice in writing delivered to an executive officer of such company, of his intention to revoke its certificate of authority to transact business in this state at the expiration of thirty days after the mailing of such registered letter, or the date upon which such actual notice is served; and, if such provisions or requirements are not fully complied with upon the expiration of said thirty days, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to revoke the certificate of authority of such company; and, in case of such revocation, such company shall not be entitled to receive another certificate of authority for a period of one year, and until it shall have fully and in good faith complied with all such provisions and requirements of this chapter. Any company feeling itself aggrieved by the action of the commissioner in revoking its certificate of authority to do business in this state may bring suit against him in the court of Travis county having jurisdiction thereof, to annul and vacate the order revoking such certificate. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4786. Penalty for failure to report or investment.—If any company shall intentionally fail or refuse to make the investments required by this chapter, or make any report required by this chapter, or to make any special report requested by the commissioner of insurance and banking under the authority of this chapter, or generally to comply with any provision or requirements of this chapter, while holding a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, or after it shall cease to write new business or cease to hold such certificate, such failure or refusal shall subject such company, in addition to the penalty provided in the preceding article, in cases to which said article may be applicable, to the payment of a penalty of twenty-five dollars per day for each day that such company shall remain in default after the commissioner of insurance and banking shall notify such company of such default, in the manner provided in the preceding article, to be recovered in a suit to be brought by the attorney general in behalf of the state in the district court of Travis county. And in any suit that may be brought to recover such penalty or penalties, there shall be a prima facie presumption, subject to rebuttal, that any default that may have occurred was intentional, and that the notice required by this chapter was given, and the burden of proof shall be on the defendant company to prove that the investments required by this chapter were made as herein required whenever the question of whether or not such investments were thus made is in issue. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4787. Deposit by domestic company.—Any life insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, may, at its option, deposit with the treasurer of this state, securities in which its capital stock is invested, or securities equal in amount to its capital stock, of the class in which the law of this state permits insurance companies to invest their capital stock, and may, at its option, withdraw the same or any part thereof, first having deposited with the treasurer, in lieu thereof, other securities of like class and equal amount and value to those withdrawn. Any such securities, before being so originally deposited or substituted, shall be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking; and, when any such deposit is made, the treasurer shall execute to the company making such deposit a receipt therefor, giving such description of said stock or securities as will identify the same, and stating that the same are held on deposit as the capital stock investments of such company; and such company shall have the right to advertise such fact or print a copy of the treasurer's receipt on the policies it may issue; and the proper officers or agent of each insurance company making such deposit shall be permitted at all reasonable times to examine such securities and to detach coupons therefrom and to collect interest thereon, under such reasonable rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the treasurer and the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state. The deposit herein provided for, when made by any company, shall thereafter be maintained so long as said company shall have outstanding any liability to its policy holders in this state. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4788. Not to apply to certain companies.—The provisions of this chapter requiring investments in Texas securities shall not apply to any life insurance company, the total amount of whose Texas reserves does not exceed five thousand dollars, or to any such company doing only a reinsurance business in this state, but all of the other provisions of this chapter shall apply to such companies. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4789. Not to apply to fraternal beneficiary associations.—The provisions of this chapter shall not be held to apply to fraternal beneficiary associations as defined by the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4790. Companies desiring to loan money only.—Any life insurance company not desiring to engage in the business of writing life insurance in this state, but desiring to loan its funds in this state, may obtain a permit to do so by complying with the laws of this state relating to foreign corporations engaged in loaning money in this state, without being required to secure a certificate of authority to write life insurance in this state. [Id. sec. 18.]

CHAPTER FOUR

ASSESSMENT OR NATURAL PREMIUM COMPANIES

Art.
4791. Foreign assessment companies.
4792. Fees.

Art.
4793. Shall not apply to mutual benefit associations.

Article 4791. Foreign assessment companies.—Companies or associations organized under the laws of any other state of the United States, carrying on the business of life or casualty insurance on the assessment or natural premium plan, having cash assets of a sum not less than one hundred thousand dollars, invested as required by the laws of this state regulating other insurance companies, shall be licensed by the commissioner of insurance and banking to do business in this state, and be subject only to the provisions of this chapter; provided, however, that such company or association shall first file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a certified copy of its charter, a written agreement, appointing the commissioner of insurance and banking, and his successor in office, to be its true and lawful attorney, upon whom all lawful process in any action or proceeding against it may be served; a certificate under oath of its president and secretary that it is paying, and for the twelve months next preceding has paid, the maximum amount named in its policies or certificates in full; a statement under oath of its president and secretary of its business for the year ending on the thirty-first day of December preceding; a certified copy of its constitution and by-laws, and a copy of its policy and application; a certificate from the proper authority in its home state that said company or association is legally entitled to do business in such home state, and has at least one hundred thousand dollars surplus assets subject to its indebtedness. It shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to issue a license to any company or association complying with the provisions of this chapter; and every such company or association shall annually thereafter, before such license is renewed, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking on or before the first day of March, a statement under oath of its president and secretary, or like officers, of its business for the year ending December 31 preceding. [Acts 1889, p. 98, sec. 1.]

Application.—This article applies only to proceedings required to obtain a license to do business in Texas, and does not prevent any regulation of such companies which would result from applying other regulatory statutory provisions to them. National Life Ass'n v. Hagestein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Art. 4792. Fees.—Every such company or association shall pay to the commissioner of insurance and banking, for the use of the state, the following fees: For filing copy of its charter, twenty-five dollars; for filing statement preliminary to admission, twenty dollars; for filing each annual statement after admission, twenty dollars; for license to company or association, one dollar. [Id. sec. 2.]

See National Life Ass'n v. Hagestein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Art. 4793. Shall not apply to mutual benefit associations.—The provisions of this chapter shall in no wise apply to mutual benefit organizations doing business in this state through lodges or councils, such as the Order of Chosen Friends, Knights of Honor, or kindred organizations. [Id. sec. 3.]

See National Life Ass'n v. Hagestein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

4801. Books and papers subject to inspection of members.

Article 4794. Incorporation of.—Any number of persons, not less than five, may organize a corporation for the purpose of transacting the business of accident insurance, upon the co-operate or mutual assessment plan, without capital stock, by complying with the provisions of this chapter; provided, that all such persons shall be bona fide citizens and residents of the state of Texas. [Acts 1903, p. 174, sec. 1.]

Art. 4795. Charter, requirements of.—Such persons must sign and acknowledge, before an officer duly authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds, a written charter setting forth:

First. The name of such corporation, which name must not so resemble the name of any other company engaged in the insurance business in this state as to cause a probability of confusion.

Second. The number of its directors, and the names and residences of those who are to act as such for the first year.

Third. The location of its principal office, which must be within the state of Texas.

Fourth. It shall state that said corporation shall have no capital stock, and shall give the purpose for which same is organized, and the plan upon which it proposes to do business, by stating that its said business shall be conducted upon the assessment plan, without lodges.

Fifth. The term for which it is to exist, which shall not be for more than fifty years. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4796. Application to accompany charter, what it shall show.—Said charter shall be presented to the attorney general of this state, accompanied by affidavits of all said incorporators, showing that they are bona fide citizens of this state, by bona fide applications for insurance in said company, from not less than two hundred applicants, for not less than one hundred thousand dollars insurance, by an affidavit by one of its incorporators, showing that each of said applicants has deposited with applicant at least eighty cents on each one thousand dollars insurance so applied for by him, and by a certificate of some solvent bank, showing that all such advance funds are deposited therein to be turned over to the treasurer of such corporation when organized. Said attorney general shall carefully examine all said instruments; and, if he finds the same are in conformity with the requirements of this chapter, he shall give his approval, and file the same with the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4797. Complete and ready for business, when.—When said charter has been filed with the commissioner, with the approval of the attorney general, accompanied by a filing fee of twenty dollars, the commissioner shall record the said charter and certificate of the attorney general in a book kept for that purpose, and shall, upon the receipt of fee for certified copy of charter of one dollar, furnish a certified copy of such charter and certificate of the attorney general to the corporators, and shall return to said corporators all such applications for membership, also a certificate that such charter has been filed and recorded in his office, and that said company is duly incorporated under the laws of the state of Texas, and authorized to transact the business set forth in its charter, stating same; upon the filing and recording of which charter, said association shall become a body politic and corporate, with the right to transact its said business in this state and elsewhere, according to the provisions of this chapter, to hold property and to alienate same, to contract, sue and be sued under its corporate name, and by that name shall have succession, and may by its board of directors make by-laws not inconsistent with law, and shall carry on its business subject to the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 3a.]

Art. 4798. What constitutes business of mutual assessment companies.—Any corporation which issues any certificate, policy or other evidence of interest to its members, whereby, upon his death or total disability, any money is to be paid by such corporation to such member, or beneficiary designated by him, which money is derived from voluntary contributions or from admission fees, dues and assessments, or any of them, collected, or to be collected, from the members thereof, and interest and accretions upon, and wherein the paying of such money is conditioned upon the same being realized in the manner aforesaid, and wherein the money so realized is applied to the uses and purposes of said corporation and the expense of the management and prosecution of its business, and which has no subordinate lodges or similar bodies, shall be deemed to be engaged in the business of mutual assessment accident insurance as contemplated by this chapter, and shall be subject only to the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4799. What such companies may or may not do.—Such corporations shall issue no certificate of stock, shall declare no dividends, shall pay no profits; and the salaries of all officers shall be designated in its

by-laws, and such by-laws shall provide for annual members' meetings, in which each member shall be entitled to vote, only in person, to the amount of insurance held. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4800. Notice of by-laws, how given.—Every such corporation must, before the adoption of any by-laws or amendments thereto, cause the same to be mailed to all the members and directors of such association, together with the notice of the time and place when the same will be considered, and same shall be so mailed at least ten days before the time for such meeting; provided, that the provisions of this article shall not apply to by-laws adopted within sixty days after the incorporation of such company. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4801. Books and papers subject to inspection of members.—All books and papers of such corporation shall, at all reasonable times, be open for examination by members and their representatives. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4802. Commissioner to examine financial condition annually.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall annually or as often as he deems it necessary, in person or by one or more examiners, commissioned in writing, visit each and every such corporation and examine its financial condition and its ability to meet its liabilities. He shall have free access to all books and papers of the corporation, or agents thereof, and shall have power to examine under oath the officers, agents and employés of such corporation. He may revoke or modify any certificate of authority issued by him, when any conditions prescribed by law for granting it no longer exist. The expense of every such examination shall be paid by the corporation so examined. [Id. sec. 7a.]

Art. 4803. Statement to be filed; filing fees, etc.—Every such corporation shall, on the first day of January of each year, or within sixty days thereafter, make and file with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state a report of its affairs and operations during the year ending on the thirty-first day of December immediately preceding. Such report shall be upon blank forms to be provided by such commissioner, and shall be verified by the oath of the secretary of such corporation, and shall contain answers to the following questions:

1. Number of certificates or policies issued or members admitted during the year.
2. Amount of indemnity affected thereby.
3. Number of death losses.
4. Number of death losses paid.
5. Number of other losses.
6. Number of other losses paid.
7. The amount received from each assessment in each class.
8. Total amount paid for losses.
9. Number of death claims for which assessments have been made.
10. Number of death claims compromised or resisted, and brief statement of reasons.
11. Number of other claims for which assessment has been made.
12. Number of other claims compromised or resisted, and brief statement of the reasons.
13. Does company charge annual dues, and, if so, how much?
14. Total amount received and the disposition thereof.
15. Does the company use moneys received for payment of claims to pay expense of the company in whole or in part, and, if so, state the amount so used.
16. Give total amount of salaries paid officers, and name of each salaried officer and the amount paid him.
17. Does the company guarantee fixed amount to be paid, regardless of amounts realized from assessments, dues, admissions, fees, etc.
18. If so, state the amount guaranteed and the security therefor.

19. Has the company a reserve fund?
20. If so, how is it created and for what purpose, the amount thereof and in what form and how invested?
21. Has the company more than one class of members?
22. If so, how many and what, and give amount of indemnity in each.
23. Give number of members in each class.
24. State when the company was organized.
25. Number of policies or memberships lapsed during the year.
26. Number of policies of each class at beginning and at the end of the year.
27. All assets applicable to payment of insurance, other than reserve fund, and how invested.
28. Amount received from all sources for payment of losses, and the disposition thereof; and, in case such corporation fails or refuses to make such report in full within said time, its charter and franchise shall be forfeited, as provided in article 4808. The following fees shall be paid annually: Filing annual statement, ten dollars; certificate of authority to corporation, one dollar; each certified copy thereof, one dollar. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4804. Certificate of membership; reserve funds.—Each certificate of membership, policy or other contract of insurance issued by such company shall bear on its face in red letters the following words: "The payment of the benefit herein provided for is conditioned upon its being collected by this company from assessments and other sources, as provided in its by-laws;" provided, that nothing in this chapter shall be construed to prevent the creation of a reserve fund by any such organization, which fund, or its accretions, or both, are to be used only for the payment of assessments or death losses, or benefits in case of physical disability, as provided in the by-laws of such corporation; provided, further, that at least sixty per cent of all amounts realized from assessments shall be used only for the payment of losses as they occur, or the balance thereof remaining after paying such losses transferred to such reserve fund; provided, further, that no part of such reserve fund shall be invested, except by order of the board of directors, in property or securities approved by such board. [Acts 1905, p. 311, sec. 9.]

Art. 4805. Notices of assessment must show what.—Each notice of assessments made by such corporation upon its members, or any of them, shall truly state the cause and purpose of such assessment, amount paid on the last claim paid, the cause of disability or death, the name of the member for whose death or disability such payment was made, the maximum face value of the certificate or policy, and, in case of disability, the maximum amount provided for in such policy or certificate for such disability, and, if not paid in full, the reason therefor. [Acts 1903, p. 174, sec. 10.]

Art. 4806. May change name of beneficiary.—Any member of such corporation shall have the right at any time, with the consent of such corporation, to change the beneficiary in his policy or certificate, without requiring the consent of such beneficiary; and such corporation shall give consent under such regulations as may be prescribed in its by-laws. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4807. Policy shall specify what; liability on.—Every policy or certificate issued by any such corporation shall specify the sum of money which it promises to pay upon the contingency insured against, and the number of days after the receipt of satisfactory proof of the happening of such contingency at which such payment shall be made; and, upon the happening of such contingency, such corporation shall be liable for the payment of such amount in full at the time so specified, subject to such legal defenses as it may have against same; provided, that, if the sum realized by it from assessments made in accordance with its by-laws to meet such payment, together with such other sums as its by-laws may provide shall be used for that purpose, shall be insufficient to pay such sum in full, for which it is so liable, then the payment of the full amount so realized shall discharge such corporation from all liability, by the reason of the happening of such contingency, and in that event such corporation shall be liable only for the amount so actually realized. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4808. Charter forfeited for not complying with provisions of this chapter.—If any corporation not incorporated under this chapter shall engage in any branch of mutual assessment accident insurance, as herein defined, or if any corporation organized under the provisions of this chapter shall transact business in any manner except as herein authorized, such corporation shall, in either event, be subject to the forfeiture of its charter and franchises; and the attorney general of this state shall immediately institute suit to forfeit its charter and dissolve it. [Id. sec. 13.]

CHAPTER SIX

CO-OPERATIVE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art.	Art.
4809. Articles of incorporation, commissioner shall examine.	4818. Medical examination.
4810. Officers, directors and policy holders; their powers and duties.	4819. Premiums, where to be paid and notice of.
4811. Investment and disposition of funds; not to hold real estate, except.	4820. Loan value; non-forfeitable after three years.
4812. Shall not borrow money or create debts, except.	4821. Annual certificates and statements.
4813. Policies to be valued by commissioner.	4822. Agents shall have certificates.
4814. Net premium to be computed.	4823. Annual examination and statement.
4815. May set aside reserve.	4824. Additional examination; may suspend certificates, receiver.
4816. Shall make apportionment of surplus.	4825. Taxes, how calculated; authorized to deposit securities.
4817. Transact business only in Texas and form of policy.	4826. General laws regulating deposits applicable to.

Article 4809. Articles of incorporation; commissioner shall examine.—Nine or more persons, residents of the state of Texas, may form a co-operative life insurance company for the purpose of insuring the lives of individuals on the mutual, level premium, legal reserve plan, subject to the conditions and limitations prescribed in this chapter, by executing and acknowledging before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments to conveyances of real estate, articles of incorporation for that purpose. Such articles shall set forth:

1. The name and residence of each of the incorporators.
2. The name of the proposed company, which shall contain the words, "Co-operative Life Insurance Company," as a part thereof, and which shall not be so similar to that of any other life insurance company or association transacting business in this state as to mislead the public.
3. The location of the principal office from which the business of the company is to be transacted.
4. The number of directors and the name and place of residence of each of those who are to serve until the first regular election of directors, as provided by this chapter.

Such articles of incorporation shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall immediately submit them to the attorney general for his examination and approval as complying in all respects with the law. If the attorney general approve them, he shall so certify thereon in writing, and return them to the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall file the same in his office and issue to the company a certificate of authority, to which shall be attached a certified copy of the articles of incorporation, authorizing it to receive applications for insurance as provided in this chapter, and to collect premiums thereon, and to issue receipts therefor; which certificate shall expressly state that such company is not authorized to issue policies of insurance or transact any business other than that specifically authorized therein until it has received bona fide applications for insurance on the lives of at least two hundred individuals for not less than one thousand dollars each, which applications have been approved by a competent physician and on which the first annual premiums at adequate rates have been paid to the company, nor until these facts shall have been fully shown to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and he shall have issued to the company a certificate of authority to transact business as a co-operative life insurance company. If this showing is not made within six months after the date upon which such articles of incorporation are filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, it shall be his duty to cancel the certificate of authority of such company to receive applications for insurance, and to notify each incorporator of such action. When the commissioner of insurance and banking shall be notified that any such company has complied with all the foregoing provisions of this article, he shall make, or cause to be made, at the expense of such company, an examination thereof; and, if he shall find that the law has been in all respects fully complied with, it shall be his duty to issue to it a certificate of authority to transact the business of a co-operative life insurance company, in accordance with the terms of this chapter. [Acts 1909, p. 285, sec. 1.]

Art. 4810. Officers, directors and policy holders, their powers and duties.—The business of a co-operative life insurance company shall be controlled and directed by a board of directors consisting of not less than five nor more than nine members, who shall be elected annually as provided in this chapter, those to serve until the first annual election to be named in the charter, and who shall hold office until their successors shall be elected and qualified, or until they shall be removed for improper practices. Such board of directors shall elect the officers of the company, which shall be a president, and such number of vice presidents as the by-laws may provide, a secretary, a treasurer, a medical director, and such other officers as the by-laws of the company may provide for, and shall fix the compensation of all such officers. The duties of all officers shall be prescribed by the by-laws. The by-laws governing the society until the date of its first annual meeting, as provided by this chapter, shall be adopted by the board of directors at their first meeting after the certificate of authority shall be issued authorizing the company to transact the business of a co-operative life insurance company. There shall be an annual meeting of all the policy holders of each co-operative life insurance company at the home office of such company on the second Tuesday in January after it shall have received a certificate of authority to transact the business of life insurance, and annually thereafter, at which the directors shall be elected for the succeeding year, and at which by-laws for the government of the company not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter or with the laws of this state may be adopted, and at which the existing by-laws may be repealed or amended. At such annual meeting, every policy holder shall be entitled to one vote for each five hundred dollars of insurance held by him; and any policy holder may execute his proxy authorizing and entitling the holder to exercise his voting powers, unless such proxy shall be revoked previous to such annual meeting. The president, secretary and treasurer shall each give a bond for the protection of the company and its policy holders in amount and with securities to be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, conditioned for the faithful performance of their respective duties. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4811. Investment and disposition of funds; not to hold real estate, except.—Co-operative life insurance companies shall invest their funds only in bonds of the state of Texas, or of some county, city, town, school district, or other subdivision, organized, or which may hereafter be organized, and authorized, or which may hereafter be authorized, to issue bonds under the constitution and laws of this state, or in mortgages upon improved, unincumbered real estate, the title to which is valid, situate within the state of Texas, worth double the amount of the loan thereon exclusive of buildings, unless such buildings are insured in some fire insurance company authorized to transact business under the laws of this state, and the policy or policies transferred to the company, or in not more than one office building located in some city or town of this state in which the home office of such company is located, the actual value of which is not less than the amount invested therein. All moneys of any such company coming into the hands of any officer thereof or subject to his control, when not invested as prescribed in this article, shall be deposited in the name of such company in some bank or banks in this state which are subject to either state or national regulation and supervision, and which have been approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking as depositories therefor. No co-operative life insurance company shall purchase or hold real estate except the building in which it has its home office and the land upon which it stands, or such as it shall acquire in good faith through foreclosure sale or otherwise in satisfaction of debts contracted or loans made in the course of its dealings. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4812. Shall not borrow money or create debts, except.—No co-operative life insurance company shall have the power to borrow money for any purpose other than the payment of death losses. No such company shall have the power to incur any debt on any account, except under policies issued by it or for money borrowed to pay death losses, for which any portion of its assets over and above that which may represent or be derived from the expense loading of the premiums collected by it, shall in any event be subject to execution upon a judgment therefor. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4813. Policies to be valued by commissioner.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall annually make valuations of all outstanding policies of co-operative life insurance companies as of December 31 of each year, in accordance with the one year preliminary term method based upon the American Experience Table of Mortality, and three and one-half per cent interest per annum. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4814. Net premiums to be computed.—The net premiums upon all policies issued by any such company shall be computed in accordance with the provisions of this article, and no portion of such net premium collected upon any policy, and no portion of the gross premium collected upon any policy, except the expense loading, shall ever be used or applied for the payment of any expenses of the company of any kind or character, or for any other purpose than the payment of death losses, surrender values, or lawful dividends to policy holders, loans to policy holders, or for the purposes of such investments of the company as are prescribed in this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 4815. May set aside reserve.—Every co-operative life insurance company may maintain and set aside, before declaring any dividends to policy holders, in addition to an amount equal to the net value of its policies, computed as required by this chapter, a contingency reserve not exceeding the following respective percentage of said net values, to-wit: When said net values are less than one hundred thousand dollars, twenty per centum thereof, or the sum of ten thousand dollars, whichever is the greater; when said net values are greater than one hundred thousand dollars, the percentage thereof measuring the contingency reserve shall decrease one-half of one per cent for each one hundred thousand dollars of said net values up to one million dollars; and, thereafter, one-half of one per centum for each additional one million dollars; provided, that as the net values of said policies increase and the maximum percentage measuring the contingency reserve decreases, such company may maintain the contingency reserve already accumulated hereunder, although for the time being it may exceed the maximum percentage herein prescribed, but may not add to the contingency reserve when the addition will bring it beyond the maximum percentage. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4816. Shall make apportionment of surplus.—Every co-operative life insurance company organized under this chapter shall make an annual apportionment and accounting of divisible surplus to each policy holder after the end of the second policy year on all policies issued; and each such policy holder shall be entitled to and credited with or paid, in a manner hereafter provided, such a portion of the entire divisible surplus as has been contributed thereto by his policy. Upon the thirty-first day of December of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, every such company shall well and truly ascertain the surplus earned by it during such year; and, after setting aside from such surplus the contingency reserve provided in this chapter, it shall apportion to its policies upon which all premiums due and payable for the first two years thereof have been paid, the proportion of the remainder of such surplus which has been contributed by each such policy, and shall immediately submit a detailed report of such apportionment under the oath of its president or secretary to the commissioner of insurance and banking. If such commissioner shall find such apportionment to be equitable and just to the policy holders and to be in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, he shall approve the same, and it shall become effective; and, if he shall not approve such apportionment, he shall make such changes therein as he shall deem equitable and just and necessary to make the same comply with the provisions of this chapter, and shall certify such changes to such company, whereupon such apportionment as changed by the commissioner shall become effective. The dividends declared as aforesaid shall be applied toward the payment of any premium or premiums upon such policy which shall come due more than thirty days after such apportionment shall become effective. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4817. Transact business only in Texas; form of policy.—Co-operative life insurance companies are authorized to transact business only within the state of Texas, and shall issue no policies other than whole life or twenty-payment life policies on the annual dividend plan; and the forms of all policies issued by any such company shall be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance and banking; and all such policies shall have plainly printed both on the face and the reverse side thereof the words, "The form of this policy is prescribed by the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas;" and it shall be the duty of the commissioner to revoke the certificate of authority of any company which shall issue any policy except upon such form so prescribed. All such policies may provide for not more than one year preliminary term insurance. No such company shall issue any policy or policies by which it shall be bound for more than five thousand dollars upon any one life at any time when the amount of its total insurance in force is less than ten million dollars. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4818. Medical examination.—No co-operative life insurance company shall enter into any contract of insurance upon the life of any person without having previously made, or caused to be made, a detailed medical examination, prescribed by its medical director and approved by its board of directors, of the insured by a duly qualified and licensed medical practitioner, and without his certificate that the insured was in sound health at the date of examination. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4819. Premiums, when to be paid, and notice of.—The policies issued by a co-operative life insurance company may provide that the premiums thereon may be paid annually, semi-annually, quarterly or monthly; and, in the event that such premiums are payable other than annually, no deduction shall be made from the amounts due on any policy in the event that the death of the policy holder shall occur prior to the completion of a full policy year. It shall be the duty of the company to mail from its home office to each policy holder a notice of the date upon which each premium is to become due at least thirty days prior to such date if the premium is payable annually, semi-annually, or quarterly, and at least ten days prior to such date if the same is payable monthly; provided, that local agents may be authorized and empowered by the board of directors to collect premiums and to give the notice required by this article. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4820. Loan value; non-forfeitable after three years.—After three full years premiums have been paid upon any policy in a co-operative life insurance company, the owner thereof shall be entitled, on proper assignment of such policy and on the sole security thereof, to borrow from the company a sum not greater than the reserve value thereof, and apply the same in payment of any premiums due or to become due upon such policy. In the event of default in the payment of any premium after three full years premiums have been paid upon any policy, the owner, within one month after any default, may elect to accept the value of such policy in cash, or to have the insurance continued in force from the date of default, without future participation and without the right to loans, for its face amount less any indebtedness to the company thereon, or to purchase non-participating paid-up insurance, payable at the same time and on the same conditions as such policy. The cash value will be the reserve at the date of default computed in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, less such surrender charge as may be provided in the policy, not exceeding two and one-half per centum of the amount insured thereby and less any existing indebtedness to the company on such policy. Payment of such cash value may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. The terms for which the insurance will be continued, or the amount of the paid-up policy, will be such as the cash value will purchase as a net single premium at the attained age of the insured according to the American Experience Mortality Table and interest at the rate of three and one-half per cent per annum. If the owner shall not, within one month from such default, surrender the policy to the company at its home office for a cash surrender value or paid-up insurance, the company shall continue the insurance as above provided. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4821. Annual certificates and statements.—The original certificate of authority to transact the business of a co-operative life insurance company, issued to any such company by the commissioner of insurance and banking, shall expire on March 1 next succeeding the date of its issuance. Each such company is required to render annually, under oath by its president or a vice-president and its secretary or treasurer, and file not later than February 15 of each year, in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking, a statement, in such form and upon such blanks as may be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance and banking, accompanied by a filing fee of ten dollars, showing the condition of the company on the thirty-first day of December next preceding, which shall include a statement in detail showing the class and character of its assets and liabilities on said date, the amount and character of business transacted, moneys received and disbursed during the preceding calendar year and the number and amount of its policies in force on said date, and such other facts as may be required by the commissioner of insurance and banking. When such annual statement is filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, upon receipt of a fee of one dollar, if he is satisfied that the company has in all respects complied with the laws of the state, he shall issue a certificate of authority to such company for the year beginning March 1 after the filing of such statement. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4822. Agents shall have certificates.—No agent or other person shall solicit or receive applications for insurance in a co-operative life insurance company without a certificate of authority from the commissioner of insurance and banking, which shall expire on March 1 next after the date of its issuance. Such certificates of authority shall not be issued by such commissioner, except upon application therefor, signed by the president or secretary of the company, which application shall state that the contract between the company and such agent has been made in writing, and that a true copy of such contract is attached to and made a part of such application, and that such contract fully shows the entire compensation that such agent is to receive, directly or indirectly, on account of any services to be rendered by him for such company; and no such certificate of authority shall be issued by such commissioner, unless it shall be shown that the compensation to be paid such agent, together with all other expenses of any sort likely to be incurred in connection with or attributable to the obtaining of new insurance through such agent, shall not exceed eighty per centum of the expense loading in the premiums to be collected therefor. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4823. Annual examination and statement.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to have made, at least once in each calendar year, a thorough and full examination of the affairs of each co-operative life insurance company, the report of which examination shall be made to such commissioner under oath, which shall be accompanied by a list of all policy holders as shown by the books of the company, together with the postoffice address of each; and it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking, if he shall approve the report of such examination, after having given the officers of the company an opportunity to be heard, to mail a printed copy of such report to each such policy holder. The expense of each such examination and of mailing the copies of such reports to the policy holders shall be borne by the company examined. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4824. Additional examination; may suspend certificates; receiver.—If at any time the commissioner of insurance and banking deems it necessary to make an additional examination of any such company, he may do so; and, if as a result of any such examination or from other information, he shall have the opinion that the operations of the company are unsafe or hazardous to the policy holders' interests, or in violation of any law of this state, he shall suspend its certificate of authority, and direct its officers to call a special meeting of its policy holders and direct them to cease the further issuance of policies until such meeting is held. At such meeting of the policy holders, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall present the facts for such action as the policy holders may deem advisable. If, in the opinion of the commissioner of insurance and banking, such action of the policy holders when taken will not fully protect the interests of all policy holders, he shall apply to the district court of the county in which the home office of the company is situated, or to the judge thereof, in vacation, for the appointment of a receiver to take temporary charge of the business and affairs of such company, who shall receive the compensation allowed by law to state bank examiners, and who shall have all power and authority of the board of directors to manage and control the business and affairs of such company, subject to the orders of the district court or judge in vacation, until the reasons for his appointment shall, in the opinion of the judge appointing him, have been removed. At any time when the liabilities of any such company, computing its reserve liability upon the American Experience Table of Mortality and three and one-half per cent interest per annum, shall be in excess of its assets, the company shall cease the issuance of new policies until the impairment in its reserves shall be made good. Whenever the liabilities of any such company, computing its reserve liability upon the American Experience Table of Mortality and four and one-half per cent per annum, exceed its assets, the commissioner of insurance and banking may request the attorney general to file suit in the name of the state in the district court of the county in which such company is located for the appointment of a receiver to wind up its affairs, and such action may be maintained. In any such action, such district court, or judge thereof, in vacation, shall have the power, if in his opinion the interests of the policy holders of such company require it, to enter an order providing for the re-insurance of all outstanding risks of such company in some other life insurance company authorized to do business in this state upon such terms and conditions as may be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, and by such court, or the judge thereof, in vacation; and such court or judge may for that purpose direct the conveyance of the entire assets of any such company, or of any portion thereof, to such re-insuring company in consideration of such re-insurance. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4825. Taxes, how calculated; authorized to deposit securities.—For the purposes of state, county and city taxation, the amount of the reserve and contingency reserve of all co-operative life insurance companies shall be treated as debts due by them to their policy holders; and the total value of their property for such purposes shall be ascertained by deducting from the total amount of their gross assets the amount of such reserves and contingency reserves. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4826. General law as to deposits applicable to.—The provisions of article 4749 to article 4750, inclusive, in chapter 2 of this title, relating to the deposit of securities by insurance companies, shall likewise apply to and govern co-operative life insurance companies organized under the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S. p. 448, sec. 8.]

Article 4827. Fraternal benefit societies defined.—Any corporation, society, order or voluntary association, without capital stock, organized and carried on solely for the mutual benefit of its members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit, and having a lodge system with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government, and which shall make provision for the payment of benefits in accordance with section 5 [Art. 4832] hereof, is hereby declared to be a fraternal benefit society. [Acts 1913, p. 220, sec. 1.]

Note.—Acts 1913, p. 220, sec. 33, repeals chapter 36 of the Acts of the First Called Session and chapter 22, Acts of Second Called Session, of the 31st Legislature, and chapter 92, Acts of the Regular Session of the 32d Legislature, and all other laws in conflict; and thus supersedes Arts. 4827-4861, Rev. St. 1911.

Art. 4828. Lodge system defined.—Any society having a supreme governing or legislative body and subordinate lodges or branches by whatever name known, into which members shall be elected, initiated and admitted in accordance with its constitution, laws, rules, regulations and prescribed ritualistic ceremonies, which subordinate lodges or branches shall be required by the laws of such society to hold regular or stated meetings at least once in each month, shall be deemed to be operating on the lodge system. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4829. Representative form of government defined.—Any such society shall be deemed to have a representative form of government when it shall provide in its constitution and laws for a supreme legislative or governing body, composed of representatives, elected either by the members or by delegates elected, directly or indirectly by the members, together with such other members as may be prescribed by its constitution and laws; provided, that the elective members shall constitute a majority in number and have not less than two-thirds of the votes, nor less than the votes required to amend its constitution and laws; provided, further, that the meetings of the supreme or governing body, and the election of officers, representatives or delegates, shall be held as often as once in four years. The members, officers, representatives or delegates of a fraternal benefit society shall not vote by proxy. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4830. Exemptions.—Except as herein provided, such societies shall be governed by this Act, and shall be exempt from all provisions of the insurance laws of this state, not only in governmental relations with the state, but for every other purpose, and no law hereafter enacted shall apply to them, unless they be expressly designated therein. [Id. sec. 4.]

Time for bringing action.—Agreement shortening time for bringing suit, see notes under Art. 5713.

Effect of incorporation under this chapter.—A corporation created as provided for in this article is expressly relieved from the provisions of Title 71 regulating other insurance companies. State v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 367.

Art. 4831. Benefits.—Every society transacting business under this Act shall provide for the payment of death benefits and may provide for the payment of benefits in case of temporary or permanent physical disability, either as the result of disease, accident or old age; provided the period of life at which the payment of benefits for disability on account of old age shall commence shall not be under seventy years and may provide for monuments or tombstones to the memory of its deceased members, and for the payment of funeral benefits. Such society shall have the power to give a member, when permanently disabled or on attaining the age of seventy, all or such portion of the face value of his certificate as the laws of the society may provide; provided, that nothing in this Act contained shall be so construed as to prevent the issuing of benefit certificates for a term of years less than the whole of life which are payable upon the death or disability of the member occurring within the term for which the benefit certificates may be issued. Such society shall, upon written application of the member, have the power to accept a part of the periodical contributions in cash, and charge the remainder, not exceeding one-half of the periodical contribution, against the certificate, with interest payable or compounded annually at a rate not lower than four per cent per annum; provided, that this privilege shall not be granted except to societies which have readjusted or may hereafter readjust their rates of contribution, and to contracts affected by such readjustment.

Any society which shall show by the annual valuation hereinafter provided for that it is accumulating and maintaining the reserve not lower than the usual reserve computed by the American Experience Table and five per cent. interest may grant to its members extended and paid-up protection, or such withdrawal equities as its Constitution and laws may provide; provided, that such grants shall in no case exceed in value the portion of the reserve to the credit of such members to whom they are made. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4832. Beneficiaries.—The payment of death benefits shall be confined to wife, husband, relative by blood to the fourth degree, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepchildren, children by legal adoption, or to a person or persons dependent upon the member; provided, that if after the issuance of the original certificate the member shall become dependent upon an incorporated charitable institution, he shall have the privilege, with the consent of the society, to make such institution his beneficiary. Within the above restrictions each member shall have the right to designate his beneficiary, and from time to time have the same changed in accordance with the laws, rules or regulations of the society, and no beneficiary shall have or obtain any vested interest in the said benefit until the same has become due and payable upon the death of the said member; provided, that any society may, by its laws, limit the scope of beneficiaries within the above classes. [Id. sec. 6.]

Beneficiaries in general.—A person having no insurable interest in the life of one insured cannot have a beneficiary interest in a policy of insurance on such life. Price v. Lodge K. of H., 68 T. 361, 4 S. W. 633; K. & L. of Honor v. Burke, 4 App. C. C. § 165, 15 S. W. 45.

A beneficiary of applicant for life insurance held entitled to recover after his death. Pledger v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World, 17 C. A. 13, 42 S. W. 653.

Laws of a society construed, and held that, where a member never designated a beneficiary, his mortuary fund reverted to the society, though he left a widow. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Cleghorn (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1043.

One voluntarily paying dues of a member of a mutual benefit society held to have no claim on the mortuary fund. Id.

Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that beneficiaries named in a benefit certificate were dependent on deceased. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Bollman, 22 C. A. 106, 53 S. W. 829.

Where the constitution of a mutual benefit insurance society provided that, on death of beneficiary, the sum specified should go to the next living relative in the order of wife, children, parents and brothers, the wife of a deceased member held entitled to the sum specified in the policy in preference to his brothers. Mattison v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, 25 C. A. 214, 60 S. W. 897.

A child of insured held not entitled to recover on a life certificate payable to the wife of insured, without showing that the insured died before the wife. Screwmen's Benev. Ass'n v. Whitridge, 95 T. 539, 68 S. W. 501.

Under the provisions of a benefit certificate, held, that the relatives of the insured were entitled to the benefit, in the absence of proof that the named beneficiary survived the insured. Males v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World, 30 C. A. 184, 70 S. W. 108.

Benefit fund payable to a beneficiary who died before the member held to lapse to the society, and not recoverable by the member's administrator. Home Circle Soc. of Gollad and Refugio Counties v. Hanley, 33 C. A. 547, 86 S. W. 641.

Under the laws of a mutual benefit insurance society, member held only entitled to appoint a beneficiary among his family and dependents. Coleman v. Anderson, 98 T. 570, 86 S. W. 730.

Second wife of insured held entitled to proceeds of certificate in mutual benefit association on death of first wife and failure of insured to designate new beneficiary. Harris v. Harris, 44 C. A. 152, 97 S. W. 504.

Under the constitution of a mutual benefit society a member held entitled to designate an illegitimate daughter as his beneficiary. Stahl v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 44 C. A. 203, 98 S. W. 643.

Where a benefit certificate provided for the payment of a sum for a monument at insured's grave, but there was no express recital as to whom it should be paid, held, that it should be paid to insured's wife. Woodmen of the World v. Torrence (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 652.

The classes named in this law, in the order named are entitled to the benefits of the certificate, when there is no designation of a beneficiary by the insured. If there is no one of the classes named capable of taking the benefits, the same shall pass as provided by the laws and regulations of the association. But one who has no insurable interest cannot take the benefits of the certificate. Grand Lodge, Colored K. of P. v. Mackey (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 907.

By the terms of this law blood relatives can become lawful beneficiaries in certificates issued by the W. O. W., but where the applicant stated in the application that the beneficiary was his cousin, when in fact she was not, the certificate was void, by reason of fraud in procuring same. Gray v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 47 C. A. 609, 106 S. W. 177.

Where an insurance certificate was payable to insured in case of total disability or to plaintiff in case of death, if it matured in insured's lifetime, plaintiff could not recover thereon after insured's death. Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen v. Dee, 101 T. 597, 111 S. W. 396.

Vested right of beneficiary.—The beneficiary named in the certificate of a member of a mutual benefit insurance society held to have no vested property interest in the benefit during the life of the member. Coleman v. Anderson, 98 T. 570, 86 S. W. 730.

Change of beneficiary.—Provisions as to change of beneficiaries and prohibiting change by will held reasonable. Bollman v. Supreme Lodge Knights of Honor (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 722.

Change of beneficiary by insured in benefit certificate held binding. Schmitt v. New Braunfelser Unterstuetzungs Verein, 32 C. A. 11, 73 S. W. 568.

Under the constitution of a mutual benefit society a member desiring to change the beneficiary held required to actually furnish the sovereign clerk with the request therefor and certain proof. Flowers v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, 40 C. A. 593, 90 S. W. 526.

The method provided in the constitution of a mutual benefit society for a change of beneficiary held exclusive. Id.

A holder of certificate in a mutual benefit society held to fail to comply with the constitution relating to change of beneficiary. Id.

A defective application for a change of beneficiary in a benefit certificate could not be regarded as an assignment of the certificate to the proposed beneficiary. Id.

Attempted change of beneficiary of benefit certificate, not made in compliance with the constitution and by-laws of the association, held ineffectual. Gray v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World, 47 C. A. 609, 106 S. W. 176.

A holder of a mutual benefit certificate held entitled to change the beneficiary, notwithstanding his agreement with his wife and payments of assessments by her and by the lodge. Eatman v. Eatman (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 165.

Art. 4833. Qualifications for membership.—Any society may admit to beneficial membership any person not less than sixteen and not more than sixty years of age, who has been examined by a legally qualified physician, and whose examination has been supervised and approved in accordance with the laws of the society; provided, that any beneficiary member of such society who shall apply for a certificate providing for disability benefits need not be required to pass an additional medical examination therefore. Nothing herein contained shall prevent such society from accepting general or social members. [Id. sec. 7.]

Estoppel to deny membership.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Sufficiency of medical examination.—Medical examination of an applicant for membership in a fraternal order held sufficient, though not by the official examiner. Supreme Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Crawford, 32 C. A. 603, 75 S. W. 844.

Reinstatement of suspended member.—Suspended member held not entitled to reinstatement on paying one assessment, where another remained unpaid, though he had no notice of the latter. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Rothschild, 15 C. A. 463, 40 S. W. 553.

Expulsion of insane member.—Where a member of a fraternal insurance company was expelled because of excessive drinking, in accordance with the policy, it is immaterial that he was insane at the time of his expulsion. Kempe v. Woodmen of the World (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 688.

Art. 4834. Certificate.—Every certificate issued by any such society shall specify the amount of benefit provided thereby, and shall provide that the certificate, the charter or articles of incorporation (or, if a voluntary association, the articles of association), the Constitution and laws of the society, and the application for membership and medical examination, signed by the applicant, and all amendments to each thereof, shall constitute the agreement between the society and the member, and copies of the same, certified by the secretary of the society, or corresponding officer, shall be received in evidence of the terms and conditions thereof, and any changes, additions or amendments to said charter or articles of incorporation, or articles of association, if a voluntary association, a constitution or laws duly made or enacted subsequent to the issuance of the benefit certificates shall bind the member and his beneficiaries, and shall govern and control the agreement in all respects the same as though such changes, additions or amendments had been made prior to and were in force at the time of the application for membership. [Id. sec. 8.]

See note under Art. 4827.

Adoption of Art. 4947.—Rev. St. 1895, art. 3096aa, as amended by Acts 1903, p. 94, c. 69, declaring that any provision in an insurance policy contracted for in Texas that the answers or statements in the application, if false, shall render the policy void or voidable, shall not constitute a defense unless shown to have been material to the risk and that whether it was material should be a question of fact to be determined by the court or jury trying the case, was not adopted by this article, and so left the question of materiality one of law for the court upon the jury's findings or upon the uncontroverted facts. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 351.

Construction in general.—A clause in a certificate issued by a benefit association held to apply to a case of disability only. Roth v. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America, 102 T. 241, 115 S. W. 31, 132 Am. St. Rep. 871, 20 Ann. Cas. 97.

A clause in the constitution of a benefit association which is susceptible of two constructions must be interpreted in favor of the beneficiary. Id.

The language of an insurance policy must be construed according to the intent of the parties, derived from the words used, the subject-matter to which they relate, and the matters naturally incident thereto. Daniel v. Modern Woodmen of America, 53 C. A. 570, 118 S. W. 211.

An insurance policy will be strictly construed against insurer and liberally in favor of insured, and, where the words thereof admit of two constructions, the one most favorable to insured will be adopted. Id.

Nature of certificate.—Benefit certificates are insurance contracts. Am. Leg. of Honor v. Larmour, 81 T. 71, 16 S. W. 633; Insurance Co. v. Hanna, 81 T. 487, 17 S. W. 35.

A benefit certificate issued by a fraternal benefit order, which is in effect a policy of life insurance, is, even before the death of the insured, a chose in action. Coleman v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1057.

To whom payable.—An endowment certificate payable to the assured during his lifetime, and also payable upon his death, being subject to assignment and disposition by will, is payable to his administrator and becomes assets in his hands. White v. Smith, 2 App. C. C. §§ 399, 401. An application to a benevolent association directed that the policy should be payable to the four children of the applicant. The certificate recited that the sum due at his death should be paid to his children. Held, that the right to the benefit must be determined by the language of the certificate, and that an after-born child was entitled to share in the benefit equally with the four children named in the application. Thomas v. Leake, 67 T. 469, 3 S. W. 703.

A benefit certificate payable to the wife of the assured was renewed in the name of L., "creditor," who paid the past and future assessments and charged them to the assured. Held, that on the death of the assured L. was entitled to the proceeds to the extent of such payments by him, and that the surplus belonged to the widow of the assured, although he was indebted to L. on account of other claims, acquired after the renewal. Levy v. Taylor, 66 T. 652, 1 S. W. 900.

A beneficiary certificate to one who has no insurable interest in the life of the insured is not void except as to the beneficiary and is payable to the heirs of the assured. Schonfield v. Turner, 75 T. 324, 12 S. W. 626, 7 L. R. A. 189; K. & L. of Honor v. Burke, 4 App. C. C. § 165, 15 S. W. 45.

If a member of a mutual benefit insurance society does not designate a beneficiary his mortuary fund reverts to the society, even though he left a widow. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Cleghorn, 20 C. A. 134, 48 S. W. 750.

Omission of beneficiaries' names.—That beneficiaries' names were not inserted in a policy until after the death of assured, held no defense to the policy, they having been omitted by the insurer's fault. International Order of Twelve of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1108.

Delivery and acceptance of certificate.—Evidence held sufficient to establish the liability of a benefit association on a certificate issued, but not delivered, before insured's death. Home Forum Ben. Order v. Jones, 20 C. A. 68, 48 S. W. 219.

Facts held sufficient to establish the liability of a benefit association on a certificate delivered while the insured was very ill of a disease of which she died the next day. Home Forum Ben. Order v. Varnado (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 364.

Where an applicant is accepted by a mutual benefit society, but his certificate, through the mistake of the society, is not delivered, and the applicant has complied with all the requirements of the society, the society is liable, although the applicant dies before delivery of the certificate. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Dees, 45 C. A. 318, 100 S. W. 366.

Receipt of benefit certificate by clerk of local camp of beneficiary association held not a delivery to the insured. Modern Woodmen of America v. Owens (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 858.

Clerk of local camp of benefit association held not only justified in not delivering certificate, but to have no authority to deliver it when applicant was sick. Id.

Where delivery of a mutual benefit certificate is essential to completion of the contract, no delay caused by acts of the insurer can take the place of delivery. Id.

The delivery of a benefit certificate to the beneficiary after the death of the applicant did not amount to a delivery to him so as to bind the association. Id.

A provision of the by-laws of a fraternal insurance order as to the delivery of the certificate to the member while in good health held to refer only to the original certificate. Eatman v. Eatman (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 165.

Acceptance by a member of an insurance order of a new certificate changing the beneficiary held not necessary to the taking effect of the new certificate. Id.

Delivery of a benefit certificate by the head officers of the order to the clerk of the local camp held not a delivery to the member. McWilliams v. Modern Woodmen of America (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 641.

Where a certificate of membership in a mutual benefit society was never delivered to decedent, and he was never adopted as a member in accordance with the by-laws, he was not a member, and there could be no recovery of benefits in case of his death. Id.

Assignment of certificate.—An endowment certificate payable to the assured during his lifetime, and also payable upon his death, is assignable and becomes assets in the hands of the administrator. White v. Smith, 2 App. C. C. §§ 399, 401.

A party having no insurable interest in the life of another cannot receive an assignment of a policy of insurance issued upon the life of the latter upon an agreement merely to pay the premiums or assessments necessary to keep the policy in force. Such an assignment is in contravention of public policy, and the fact that the rules of the company may permit the transfer cannot validate it. Price v. Knights of Honor, 68 T. 361, 4 S. W. 633.

Where the constitution of an insurance association provided that the benefit should be paid to members of the insured's family, his heirs, or those dependent on him for support, an assignment of a certificate to one who was not related to the insured by blood or otherwise held void. Williams v. Fletcher, 26 C. A. 85, 62 S. W. 1082.

Transaction between beneficiary in life policy and other persons held to have amounted to a binding contract, whereby the others were entitled to the proceeds of the policy, irrespective of whether the assignment had complied with the laws of the insurer. Kendall v. Morrison, 33 C. A. 345, 77 S. W. 31.

Rules of a mutual benefit society, prohibiting assignment of members' certificates, held unavailable as between a beneficiary and a third person paying assessments under an agreement for reimbursement. Coleman v. Anderson, 98 T. 570, 86 S. W. 730.

In an action for conversion of a portion of the proceeds of a benefit certificate, a judgment setting aside an assignment thereof by insured's widow on the theory that she had been overreached in the transaction as a matter of law held error. Roberts v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 886.

Pledge of certificate.—See, also, notes under Art. 583.

Mere contingent interest of beneficiary of fraternal benefit certificate held sufficient to support a pledge thereof as collateral security for sums advanced by third persons, so that possession of the certificate could not be recovered without a repayment of the amount advanced. Coleman v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1057.

Forfeiture of certificate or membership.—Policy providing for forfeiture on breach of any of the conditions construed. Smith v. Covenant Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 16 C. A. 593, 43 S. W. 819.

Provision of constitution of association of locomotive engineers held not to authorize expulsion of member for going on the witness stand and testifying against a railroad. Thompson v. Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, 41 C. A. 176, 91 S. W. 834.

Publication by fraternal association of notice of expulsion of member held legal or illegal in accordance with the legality or illegality of the expulsion. Id.

The association in expelling member must act in good faith and in pursuance of by-laws not violative of the laws of the land. Id.

Held, that a beneficial association had no right to expel a member for testifying in a cause. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 453.

That a member of a railroad brotherhood testified against a railroad company and his brother members held not ground for his expulsion. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson, 102 T. 89, 113 S. W. 144, 19' Ann. Cas. 1250.

Language of an insurance policy fairly susceptible of an interpretation which will prevent a forfeiture will be so construed. Daniel v. Modern Woodmen of America, 53 C. A. 570, 118 S. W. 211.

Where a member of a benefit association died pending rehearing on appeal after the affirmance of a conviction for manslaughter, his certificate was not forfeited under a provision forfeiture if the member should be convicted of a felony. Woodmen of the World v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 254.

A member in a fraternal beneficiary association held not to have forfeited his rights against the insurer until notice of his delinquency had been given in the manner provided by the constitution of the insurer; and no other will suffice, in the absence of a custom or contract binding upon the member to receive notice in a different manner. Haywood v. Grand Lodge of Texas, K. P. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1194.

A mutual benefit certificate held rendered void by insured engaging in the sale of malt liquors. Modern Woodmen of America v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1055.

Where a member of a fraternal organization was not in good standing at the time of his death in the only subordinate temple to which he belonged, or could belong, there could be no recovery on the certificate. International Order of Twelve Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 320.

False representations, in a petition for reinstatement in a mutual benefit association, will avoid the insurance when material to the risk, though ignorantly made, especially where their truth is expressly warranted. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 351.

— Nonpayment of dues or assessments.—Payment of dues or assessments in general, see Art. 4835.

A member of a mutual benefit society not having complied with its constitution and by-laws on the suspension of his local camp, and being in arrears for assessments at the time of his death, no recovery could be had on his certificate. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Hicks, 37 C. A. 424, 84 S. W. 425.

A member of a mutual benefit society held not subject to forfeiture of his certificate by a failure to pay an assessment levied for a particular month, which he was unable to pay by reason of the absence of the clerk of his local camp, to whom the assessment was payable. Id.

By-laws of a mutual benefit insurance society, made a part of a benefit certificate, held to authorize forfeiture, without further act on the part of the society, on the member's failure to pay dues as required by the society's constitution and by-laws. Id.

Nonpayment of monthly dues held not to operate as a forfeiture of a certificate issued by a fraternal benefit society. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen v. Dee (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 492.

Provision of an accident insurance association held to deny recovery by a beneficiary of a member who was in default when he sustained the injury resulting in his death, though at his death he had been reinstated. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Roth (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1039.

Under a rule of a mutual benefit association, failure of a local lodge to pay insured's dues while ill, in the absence of notice of such illness required by the lodge's rule, held not to relieve insured from a forfeiture for nonpayment of dues. Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen v. Dee, 101 T. 597, 111 S. W. 396.

A mutual benefit certificate held forfeited for failure to pay assessments. United Benev. Ass'n v. Cass, 54 C. A. 628, 119 S. W. 123.

A mutual benefit certificate held forfeited for nonpayment of an assessment. Fletcher v. Supreme Lodge Knights and Ladies of Honor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 201.

A provision in a policy for forfeiture for nonpayment of assessments, being for the benefit of the insurer, is to be strictly construed. Haywood v. Grand Lodge of Texas, K. P. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1194.

Holder of policy in a mutual benefit association, by failure to pay assessments within 15 days after notice, as required by by-laws on face of policy, declaring forfeit for non-compliance, forfeited his rights. Hawkins v. Lone Star Ins. Union (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1041.

Policy in mutual benefit association, held notice to the insured of conditions as to payment necessary to keep the policy in force. Id.

A member of a fraternal beneficiary association who paid benefits in advance to his local camp, and the camp was suspended, was entitled to receive benefits on account of disability, and, where they more than equaled assessments levied, his certificate could not be forfeited for nonpayment of assessments. Knights of the Modern Maccabees v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 675.

The constitution and by-laws of an association providing that a member cannot be suspended for nonpayment of dues while sick, it is immaterial that during her sickness she had stated that she knew she was in arrears, that she did not intend to pay any dues, and did not wish to keep up the insurance. Grand Temple and Tabernacle in the State of Texas of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor of the International Order of Twelve v. Counts (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1180.

— False statements in application or examination.—Where an applicant for a life certificate states that he has never used narcotics, the association cannot defeat liability thereon by showing a use of narcotics which did not amount to a custom or habit. National Fraternity v. Karnes, 24 C. A. 607, 60 S. W. 576.

Statements by insured in his application for a life certificate held to be warranties which, if false, would avoid the policy, though they were made through mistake and in good faith. Id.

Assured's false statement that he had not been successfully vaccinated held not to be a representation on the faith of which the policy was issued, so as to render the same void. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Gray, 26 C. A. 457, 64 S. W. 801.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that deceased's answers in his application for insurance as to the state of his health were true. Supreme Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Crawford, 32 C. A. 603, 75 S. W. 844.

The applicant's answer, that he had never had any serious illness held a mere expression of opinion, which will not avoid the policy. Id.

Answers of insured to questions in a medical examination, accompanying his application for a policy, held warranties. Brock v. United Moderns, 36 C. A. 12, 81 S. W. 340.

Where insured warranted that he had not been under the care of a physician within five years prior to applying for a policy, which statement was untrue, the policy was void. Id.

Questions asked of insured in the application for a benefit certificate held to call for the extent of his use of intoxicants. Endowment Rank Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Townsend, 36 C. A. 651, 83 S. W. 220.

In an action on a certificate issued on the life of a daughter, by application of the father, held, that his false statement that she was in good health would not necessarily defeat recovery on the certificate. Home Circle Soc. No. 2 v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 320.

A misstatement concerning medical attendance in an application for life insurance held not material to the risk as a matter of law; its materiality depending on the surrounding circumstances. Modern Order of Pratorians v. Hollmig (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 474.

Breach of warranty consisting of a misstatement that insured was not pregnant in an application for insurance held fatal to a recovery, though unintentional, and though she died from other causes. Supreme Lodge Knights & Ladies of Honor v. Payne, 101 T. 449, 108 S. W. 1160, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1277.

Statements of the applicant in an application for insurance held statements of opinion merely, and, where the applicant in good faith believed them to be true, their falsity did not vitiate the policy notwithstanding its stipulations. Daniel v. Modern Woodmen of America, 53 C. A. 570, 118 S. W. 211.

Statements of applicant for benefit certificate as to his health held true in the sense intended by the parties. Modern Woodmen of America v. Owens (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 858.

Statement of applicant for benefit certificate that applicant did not have typhoid fever is a continuing warranty up to the consummation of the contract; and where within time in which contract could have been consummated the applicant became sick with typhoid fever, contract held never to have taken effect. Id.

Regarding date at which corrections were made in application for benefit certificate, when the applicant was sick, as the date of the certificate, statement in application that applicant was not sick and approval of examining physician, held a fraud on the association not within the actual or apparent authority of the physician. Id.

Question of good faith in making answers in application for benefit certificate which were made warranties held immaterial. Id.

Under this article the term "risk assumed" must be taken to mean the hazard of the contract determined by the perils menacing the life of the insured, and hence a false representation that defendant had never had a certain practicably incurable disease was material to the risk and would avoid the policy which provided that a false answer to such question avoided the policy, even though the applicant died of a wholly different disease. United Benev. Ass'n v. Baker (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 541.

An answer made to a question in an application for life insurance held not to avoid the policy. Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 247.

An applicant's failure to disclose facts tending to show a rejection by another order held not to invalidate his benefit certificate. Id.

A finding that insured had an ulcer of the rectum held not necessarily inconsistent with his representations in his application as to having had the piles. Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Hunter, 57 C. A. 115, 143 S. W. 359.

Where insured in her medical examination stated that she had had two miscarriages, proof that she had had two abortions did not show a breach of warranty. Royal Neighbors of America v. Bratcher (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 885.

Where insured denied that she had had any illness within seven years prior to her application, proof that her physicians treated her for headache three years prior to the date of the policy did not necessarily defeat plaintiff's right to recover, the jury being authorized to find that such illness, if any, was not material to the risk assumed within this article. Id.

Statements, in an application for reinstatement in a mutual benefit association, that the applicant was of sound constitution, in good health, and that he had had no severe illness, local disease, or injury since his original petition, when in fact he had had malarial fever, had two operations for hydrocele, had suffered from dysentery and diarrhea or inflammation of the bowels, caused by catarrh of the stomach, and had disease of the genital organs, were misrepresentations "material to the risk" within this article; any fact concerning the health, condition, or physical history of the applicant, which would naturally influence the association in determining whether it would grant the reinstatement, being material to the risk (citing 5 Words and Phrases, p. 4406). Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 351.

— Materiality question of law on jury's findings.—See notes under Art. 1971.

— Waiver.—Forfeiture of a life insurance policy held not waived by ignorance of the insured of the facts of the payment made for him by his mother, under which the forfeiture is claimed. United Moderns v. Pike (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 774.

— Evidence.—Evidence, in an action on a life policy containing a provision that the insurer shall not be liable if insured was not in good health when he received the policy, considered, and held sufficient to show that insured was in good health when he received the policy, so as to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Woodmen of the World v. Locklin, 28 C. A. 486, 67 S. W. 331.

Waiver of the defense to an action on a benefit certificate that insured made false statements in his application must be based on actual and not constructive knowledge of the falsity held erroneous. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Roberts, 48 C. A. 325, 107 S. W. 626.

Evidence in an action on an insurance policy held to show that the insured acted in good faith in answering a question. Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 247.

Evidence, in an action on a mutual benefit certificate, held to sustain a finding that insured was not affected with lung disease or tuberculosis, and had not changed his residence for his health. Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Hunter, 57 C. A. 115, 143 S. W. 359.

Evidence held insufficient to show that member of benefit insurance society was not suspended for nonpayment of assessments at the time of his death. Knights of the Modern Maccabees v. Gillis (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 713.

Revocation or cancellation.—A mutual benefit association cannot revoke a binding contract of insurance, after death of the insured, by tendering to the beneficiary the amounts paid therefor. Home Forum Ben. Order v. Varnado (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 364.

Board of directors of beneficial association held to have had authority to cancel a contract of membership. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Dewey, 34 C. A. 419, 78 S. W. 1087.

Reduction of assessments required to be paid by the holder of a benefit certificate and reduction of the liability of the association held a sufficient consideration for an agreement canceling the member's original certificate and issuing another for a less amount. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 27.

An original beneficiary certificate held revoked, though the designation of beneficiary in the second certificate was illegal. Grand Lodge Colored Knights of Pythias v. Mackey (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 907.

No act of insurer, without insured's consent, will terminate a contract of life insurance, or relieve the insurer from liability thereon. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy, 51 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.

Insured, on the alleged wrongful termination of his policy, may tender premiums, and on maturity sue for benefits. He may sue for damages for the wrongful cancellation of the policy, or sue in equity to determine whether the policy is still in force. Id.

Reinstatement.—Where an application for reinstatement by a member of a benevolent association, as required by the association, was without authority, statements in such application are nudum pactum. Supreme Lodge Nat. Reserve Ass'n v. Turner, 19 C. A. 346, 47 S. W. 44.

A provision of the constitution of a beneficial association held not to entitle a member whose certificate had been forfeited for nonpayment of dues to reinstatement as a matter of right on payment of all arrearages within 60 days. Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen v. Dee, 101 T. 597, 111 S. W. 396.

A policy in a mutual benefit association, forfeited by a failure of the insured to pay assessments, was not revived by an unaccepted tender of the arrearages, made in behalf of insured at a time when it was known that he could not live. Hawkins v. Lone Star Ins. Union (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1041.

Art. 4835. Funds.—Any society may create, maintain, invest, disburse and apply an emergency surplus or other similar fund in accordance with its laws. Unless otherwise provided in the contract, such funds shall be held, invested and disbursed for the use and benefit of the society, and no member or beneficiary shall have or acquire individual rights therein or become entitled to any apportionment or the surrender of any part thereof, except as provided in section 5 of this Act [Art. 4831]. The funds from which benefits shall be paid and the funds from which the expenses of the society shall be defrayed shall be derived from periodical or other payments by the members of the society and accretions of said funds; provided, that no society, domestic or foreign, shall hereafter be incorporated or admitted to transact business in this state which does not provide for stated periodical contributions sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligations contracted, when valued upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress, August 23, 1899, or any higher standard, with interest assumption not more than four per cent. per annum, nor write or accept members for temporary or permanent disability benefits except upon tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent. per annum.

Deferred payments or installments of claims shall be considered as fixed liabilities on the happenings of the contingency upon which such payments or installments are thereafter to be paid. Such liability shall be the present value of such future payments or installments upon the rate of interest and mortality assumed by the society for valuation, and every society shall maintain a fund sufficient to meet such liability regardless of proposed future collections to meet any such liabilities. [Id. sec. 9.]

Validity of mortuary call.—Validity of mortuary call of mutual insurance company determined. Smith v. Covenant Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 16 C. A. 593, 43 S. W. 819.

Advance premiums.—Contract for mutual benefit insurance construed, and held, that advance premiums were in the nature of a membership fee, and not to meet bimonthly calls. Smith v. Covenant Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 16 C. A. 593, 43 S. W. 819.

Payment of assessments, premiums, and dues.—Forfeiture of certificate or membership for nonpayment, see notes under Art. 4834.

Right of one giving order on a mutual benefit insurance company for payment of advance premium of soliciting agent to withdraw the same without canceling the application determined. Smith v. Covenant Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 16 C. A. 593, 43 S. W. 819.

The holder of a life benefit certificate who had paid benefit assessments held not released from duty to pay other assessments. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor v. Landers, 31 C. A. 338, 72 S. W. 880.

The mere fact that a member of a fraternal insurance order had been permitted to pay two delinquent assessments held not to create a binding custom to receive delinquent assessments. Fraternal Union of America v. Hurlock, 33 C. A. 78, 75 S. W. 539.

Finding that subsequent payments by member after notice of virtual reduction of value of certificate by beneficial association were not an election to treat the contract as still in force held justified. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Batte, 34 C. A. 456, 79 S. W. 629.

An officer of a subordinate lodge of a mutual benefit association, who is authorized to receive and receipt for payments of monthly dues, may receipt therefor at the time of payment or at any time thereafter. United Moderns v. Pistole, 38 C. A. 422, 86 S. W. 377.

Mailing a draft to a former collector for a fraternal order held not payment to the order, and hence the member was properly suspended. Supreme Lodge of Pathfinder v. Johnson, 47 C. A. 109, 104 S. W. 508.

Where it does not appear that an accident insurance association had authorized remittances of dues by mail, payment is not made when the letter containing the remittance is deposited in the post office. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Roth (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1039.

It was no excuse for insured's failure to pay assessments on his certificate that he was unconscious and unable to attend to business when the assessment became due. Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen v. Dee, 101 T. 597, 111 S. W. 396.

Mailing of a check for dues to a benefit association is not payment until it is received. Roth v. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America, 102 T. 241, 115 S. W. 31, 132 Am. St. Rep. 871, 20 Ann. Cas. 97.

An insurance company held bound to take from benefits due the amount of dues unpaid. Royal Fraternal Union v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 920.

Act of the secretary of a local lodge of a mutual benefit society in going to delinquent members to collect assessments held a mere courtesy, on which no rights could be based. Fletcher v. Supreme Lodge Knights & Ladies of Honor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 201.

— Evidence of payment.—An entry made on the receipt book of a subordinate lodge of a mutual benefit association by the proper officer of such lodge, who was authorized to receive payment of dues, showing payment to him of monthly dues on a certain date, may be taken as true by the jury, although such officer testifies that the entry was false. United Moderns v. Pistole, 38 C. A. 422, 86 S. W. 377.

Evidence held to justify a finding that a member of a fraternal insurance order had not defaulted in the payment of dues for specified months. Grand Fraternity v. Mulkey (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 242.

Application of payment.—Where member of mutual company, with knowledge that his first payment was applied on membership fee, retains a certificate until forfeiture for nonpayment of bimonthly call, he cannot complain that such application was wrongful. Smith v. Covenant Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 16 C. A. 593, 43 S. W. 819.

Recovery of premiums paid.—Member of beneficial association held not entitled to recover premiums on ground of wrongful expulsion, he not having pursued his remedies within the order. Supreme Council Catholic Knights of America v. Gambati, 29 C. A. 80, 69 S. W. 114.

• Member of beneficial association held not to have been expelled, and hence not entitled to sue for premiums paid. Id.

The mere fact that the expulsion of a member of a beneficial association was void for want of notice and trial as provided by the association's laws held no defense to an action by him to recover premiums paid. Id.

When a beneficial association wrongfully expels a member, and is sued by him for the recovery of premiums paid, the association is not entitled to a credit for the value of the insurance during the time it was in force. Id.

That defendant's assignor failed to make further payments on certain benefit certificates under a contract, after objection by the beneficiary, held no defense to his right to reimbursement for the amounts previously paid. Coleman v. Anderson, 98 T. 570, 86 S. W. 730.

The holder of a mutual benefit certificate who exchanged it for a new certificate held not entitled to recover the premiums paid on the first certificate. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Lyon (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 435.

Person paying dues and assessments of member of fraternal society pursuant to contract with such member and beneficiaries held entitled to reimbursement for money so expended, though beneficiaries died before the decease of member. Kelly v. Searcy, 100 T. 566, 102 S. W. 100, reversing (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 1080.

Where a life policy was void ab initio, the premiums paid, with interest thereon, were the measure of damages for a cancellation. Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias v. Neeley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1046.

Rescinding, without authority, by a fraternal benefit society of a member held a repudiation of the contract, so as to give the member a right to recover assessments paid. Ericson v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle, 105 T. 170, 146 S. W. 160.

Art. 4836. Investments.—Every society shall invest its funds only in securities permitted by the laws of this state for the investment of the assets of life insurance companies; provided, that any foreign society permitted or seeking to do business in this state which invests funds in accordance with the laws of the state in which it is incorporated shall be held to meet the requirements of this Act for the investment of funds; provided, that in case the constitution and by-laws of the grand lodge or governing body of any such association provides that all or any part of the beneficiary or mortuary or insurance fund of such association that is paid in by or collected from the members of such subordinate or local lodge may be retained in the custody of and controlled and managed by such subordinate or local lodge, and designate what officers of such subordinate or local lodge shall have the custody and control of such fund and authorize such local officers to loan or invest the same, and such local officer shall have executed and filed, and shall from time to time when required by the commissioner of insurance and banking, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking such bond or other written instrument to be prescribed and approved in terms and amount by the commissioner of insurance and banking as will indemnify such fund against waste, depletion or loss through loans, investment or otherwise, then such fund so secured shall be exempt from the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4837. Repealed. See Note under Art. 4827.

Art. 4838. Distribution of funds.—Every provision of the laws of the society for payment by members of such society, in whatever form made, shall distinctly state the purpose of the same and the proportion thereof which may be used for expenses, and no part of the money collected for mortuary or disability purposes or the net accretions of either or any of said funds shall be used for expenses. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4839. Organization.—Seven or more persons, citizens of the United States, and a majority of whom are citizens of this state, who desire to form a fraternal benefit society, as defined by this Act, may make and sign (giving their addresses) and acknowledge before some officer competent to take acknowledgment of deeds, articles of incorporation, in which shall be stated:

First. The proposed corporate name of the society, which shall so closely resemble the name of any society or insurance company already transacting business in this state as to mislead the public or to lead to confusion.

Second. The purpose for which it is formed, which shall not include more liberal powers than are granted by this Act; provided, that any lawful, social, intellectual, educational, charitable, benevolent, moral or religious advantages may be set forth among the purposes of the society, and the mode in which its corporate powers are to be exercised.

Third. The names, residences and official titles of all the officers, trustees, directors or other persons who are to have and exercise the general control and management of the affairs and funds of the Society for the first year or until the ensuing election at which all such officers shall be elected by the supreme legislative or governing body, which election shall be held not later than one year from the date of the issuance of the permanent certificate.

Fourth. Such articles of incorporation and duly certified copies of the constitution and laws, rules and regulations, and copies of all proposed forms of benefit certificates, applications therefor and circulars to be issued by such society, and a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, with sureties approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, conditioned upon the return of the advance payments, as provided in this section, to applicants, if the organization is not completed within one year, shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, who may require such further information as he deems necessary, and if the purposes of the society conform to the requirements of this Act, and all provisions of law have been complied with, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall so certify and retain and record (or file) the articles of incorporation, and furnish the incorporators a preliminary certificate authorizing said society to solicit members as hereinafter provided.

Upon receipt of said certificate from the commissioner of insurance and banking, said society may solicit members for the purpose of completing its organization and shall collect from each applicant the amount of not less than one regular monthly payment, in accordance with its table of rates as provided by its constitution and laws, and shall issue to each such applicant a receipt for the amount so collected. But no such society shall incur any liability other than for such advanced payments, nor issue any benefit certificate nor pay or allow, or offer or promise to pay or allow, to any person any death or disability benefit until actual bona fide applications for death benefit certificates have been secured upon at least five hundred lives for at least one thousand dollars each, and all such applications for death benefits shall have been regularly examined by legally qualified practicing physicians, and certificates of such examination have been duly filed and approved by the chief medical examiner of such society; nor until there shall be established ten subordinate lodges or branches into which said five hundred applicants have been initiated; nor until there has been submitted to the commissioner of insurance and banking, under oath of the president and secretary or corresponding officers of such society, a list of such applicants, giving their names, addresses, date examined, date, approved, date initiated, name and number of the subordinate branch of which each applicant is a member, amount of benefits to be granted, rate of stated periodical contributions, which shall be sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligation, contracted, when valued for death benefits upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality, as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress, August 23, 1899, or any higher standard, at the option of the society, and for disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience and for combined death and permanent total disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent. per annum; nor until it shall be shown to the commissioner of insurance and banking by the sworn statement of the treasurer or corresponding officer of such society, that at least five hundred applicants have each paid in cash at least one regular monthly payment as herein provided per one thousand dollars of indemnity to be effected, which payments in the aggregate shall amount to at least twenty-five hundred dollars; all of which shall be credited to the mortuary or disability fund on account of such applicants and no part of which may be used for expenses.

Said advanced payments shall, during the period of organization, be held in trust, and if the organization is not completed within one year as hereinafter provided, returned to said applicants.

The commissioner of insurance and banking may make such examination and require such further information as he deems advisable; and upon presentation of satisfactory evidence that the society has compiled [complied] with all the provisions of law, he shall issue to such society a certificate to that effect. Such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such society at the date of such certificate. The commissioner of insurance and banking shall cause a record of such certificate to be made and a certified copy of such record may be given in evidence with like effect as the original certificate.

No preliminary certificate granted under the provisions of this section shall be valid after one year from its date, or after such further period, not exceeding one year, as may be authorized by the commissioner of banking and insurance upon cause shown; unless the five hundred applicants herein required have been secured and the organization has been completed as herein provided; and the articles of incorporation and all proceedings thereunder shall become null and void in one year from the date of said preliminary certificate, or at the expiration of said extended period, unless such society shall have completed its organization and commenced business as herein provided. When any domestic society shall have discontinued business for the period of one year, or has less than four hundred members, its charter shall become null and void. Every such society shall have the power to make a constitution and by-laws for the government of the society, the admission of its members, the management of its affairs and the fixing and readjusting of the rates of contribution of its members from time to time; and it shall have the power to change, alter, add to, or amend such constitution and by-laws and shall have such other powers as are necessary and incidental to carrying into effect the object and purposes of the society. [Id. sec. 12.]

Right to do business.—When a fraternal beneficiary association has filed with the secretary of state its charter, as required by this section, it has the right to begin business and to continue until enjoined by the suit of the attorney general. Trinity Life & Annuity Society v. Love, 102 T. 277, 116 S. W. 1139.

Second charter as amendment of first.—A second charter of benefit insurance company held to operate as an amendment to a former one, and that deceased, agreeing to comply with future regulations, was bound by it. Bollman v. Supreme Lodge Knights of Honor (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 722.

Constitution, by-laws and rules.—It will be supposed that the rules and regulations of mutual insurance companies are known to the members, and there must be substantial compliance therewith. Supreme Lodge of Protection, Knights & Ladies of Honor, v. Grace, 60 T. 569.

Where by-laws of a mutual benefit insurance company are inconsistent, the one most favorable to the member controls. Supreme Lodge, National Reserve Ass'n v. Mondrowski, 20 C. A. 322, 49 S. W. 919.

A member in a mutual benefit association, as well as his beneficiary, held bound by changes in the by-laws, where the insured agreed in his application to abide by the by-laws which might be passed. Duer v. Supreme Council, Order of Chosen Friends, 21 C. A. 493, 52 S. W. 109.

Where charter of benefit insurance company was abandoned, and one obtained in another state was recognized, by deceased, held, the rules enacted under the new charter determined his rights. Bollman v. Supreme Lodge Knights of Honor (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 722.

Where notice of a condition of a benefit certificate, which was part of the constitution, was intended to be given by inserting it in the certificate, but was not, the insured is not chargeable with knowledge on the ground that it was enacted as a by-law. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, No. 955, v. Fraley, 94 T. 200, 59 S. W. 879, 51 L. R. A. 898.

Where the insured committed suicide while insane, his certificate was not void for that reason, though the constitution of the insurer provides that it shall be. Id.

The minor son and heir of a member of a fraternal insurance association, who failed to name a new beneficiary after the death of his wife, held entitled under its by-laws to recover on a certificate without joining the administrator of the insured as a party. Order of Columbus of Baltimore City, Md., v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1020.

Holder of mutual benefit insurance certificate held bound by subsequent amendment of by-laws amplifying defense of suicide. Eversberg v. Supreme Tent Knights of Macca-bees of the World, 33 C. A. 549, 77 S. W. 246.

By-laws of mutual benefit insurance association held not to require publication in official organ of adopted amendment to by-laws. Id.

A member of a mutual benefit association held bound by a provision of its by-laws rendering his certificate void in case of self-destruction. Id.

By-laws of beneficial association, limiting amount which would be paid on death claims to a sum less than face of member's certificate, could be treated as void, and full amount recovered by beneficiary, or member could regard it as repudiation of contract, and recover premiums paid. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Batte, 34 C. A. 456, 79 S. W. 629.

Provisions in the by-laws of a fraternal benefit society, inhibiting a member from assigning the certificate to secure a debt, or as collateral security, can only be taken advantage of by the society. Coleman v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1057.

Under the by-laws of a mutual benefit society, written acceptance of a benefit certificate held not necessary to its validity. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Brown (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 372.

In a suit involving the right of the original beneficiary in a mutual benefit certificate or the new one to recover the fund due thereon, the original beneficiary held not entitled to raise the question of noncompliance with the by-laws of the society governing the change of beneficiaries. Coleman v. Grand Lodge Colored Knights of Pythias (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 909.

The word "killed" as used in the constitution of a benefit association, held to refer to death of a member, and not to the accident or cause of death. Roth v. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America, 102 T. 241, 115 S. W. 31, 132 Am. St. Rep. 871, 20 Ann. Cas. 97.

Policy holders in an insurance association, agreeing to be bound by future by-laws passed, held to intend only such by-laws as the association has power to pass. Eaton v. International Travelers' Ass'n (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 817.

— Change of rates.—Authority to rerate members received from another organization, see notes under Art. 4841.

A by-law raising the assessment rates payable by an existing member of a mutual benefit society held not an impairment of a vested right. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Ericson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 92.

Evidence held insufficient to show that an increase in the rates of a mutual benefit society was unreasonable. Id.

A mutual benefit society, both under its certificates and independent thereof, held entitled to pass new laws providing for rerating of members and increasing the amount of monthly premiums. Id.

Affairs of a mutual benefit society held not such as to render a further increase in rates unnecessary and unreasonable. Id.

A constitutional provision of a mutual benefit society, authorizing the rerating of members held applicable to existing members. Id.

A change of assessment rates of a mutual benefit society was not arbitrary where it fell equally on all of plaintiff's class. Id.

A by-law providing for the rerating of the members of a mutual benefit society passed by the executive committee held not objectionable because not passed by the supreme legislative body. Id.

Under constitution of a subordinate lodge held that an unrecorded proceeding fixing the monthly dues could not be regarded as a by-law. Haywood v. Grand Lodge of Texas, K. P. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1194.

The constitution of a fraternal insurance corporation, providing that members taken over from other associations may be rerated, held prospective. Ericson v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle, 105 T. 170, 146 S. W. 160.

A provision in a fraternal benefit certificate that the member will comply with the orders and by-laws adopted in the future held to refer only to such regulations as have reference to the duties and conduct of the members, as such, and not to a radical charge greatly increasing the assessments. Id.

Art. 4840. Powers retained—Reincorporation—Amendments.—Any society now engaged in transacting business in this state may exercise, after the passage of this Act, all of the rights conferred thereby, and all of the rights, powers and privileges now exercised or possessed by it under its charter or articles of incorporation not inconsistent with this Act, if incorporated; or if it be a voluntary association, it may incorporate hereunder. But no society already organized shall be required to reincorporate hereunder, and any such society may amend its articles of incorporation from time to time in the manner provided therein or in its constitution and laws, and all such amendments shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking and shall become operative upon such filing, unless a later time be provided in such amendments or in its articles of incorporation, constitution or laws. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4841. Mergers and transfers.—No domestic society shall merge with or accept the transfer of the membership or funds of any other society unless such merger or transfer is evidenced by a contract in writing, setting out in full the terms and conditions of such merger or transfer, and filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, together with a sworn statement of the financial condition of each of said societies by its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, and a certificate of such officers, duly verified under oath of said officers of each of the contracting societies, that such merger or transfer has been approved by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the supreme legislative or governing body of each of said societies.

Upon the submission of said contract financial statements and certificates, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall examine the same, and if he shall find such financial statements to be correct and the said contract to be in conformity with the provisions of this section, and that such merger or transfer is just and equitable to the members of each of said societies, he shall approve said merger or transfer, issue his certificate to that effect, and thereupon the said contract or merger or transfer shall be of full force and effect. In case such contract is not approved, the fact of its submission and its contents shall not be disclosed by the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 14.]

Authority to re-rate.—A fraternal insurance corporation organized to receive the membership and assets of another fraternal insurance corporation and to assume its liabilities held not authorized to re-rate a member of the latter organization, pursuant to a constitution adopted by the former. Ericson v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle, 105 T. 170, 146 S. W. 160.

Art. 4842. Annual license.—Societies which are now authorized to transact business in this state may continue such business until the first day of April next succeeding the passage of this Act, and the authority of such societies may thereafter be renewed annually, but in all cases to terminate on the first day of the succeeding April; provided, however, the license shall continue in full force and effect until the new license be issued or specifically refused. For each such license or renewal the society shall pay the commissioner of insurance and banking ten dollars. A duly certified copy or duplicate of such license shall be prima facie evidence that the licensee is a fraternal benefit society within the meaning of this Act. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4843. Admission of foreign society.—No foreign society now transacting business, organized prior to the passage of this Act, which is not now authorized to transact business in this state, shall transact any business herein without a license from the commissioner of insurance and banking. Any such society shall be entitled to a license to transact business within this state upon filing with the commissioner of insurance and banking a duly certified copy of its charter or articles of association; a copy of its constitution and laws, certified by its secretary or corresponding officer; a power of attorney to the commissioner of insurance and banking as hereinafter provided; a statement of its business under oath of its president and secretary or corresponding officers in the form required by the commissioner of insurance and banking, duly verified by an examination made by the supervising insurance official of its home state or other state satisfactory to the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state; a certificate from the proper official in its home state, province or country that the society is legally organized; a copy of its contract, which must show that benefits are provided for by periodical or other payments by persons holding similar contracts; and upon furnishing the commissioner of insurance and banking such other information as he may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working, and upon showing that its assets are invested in accordance with the laws of the state, territory, district, province or country where it is organized, he shall issue a license to such society to do business in this state until the first day of the succeeding April, and such license shall, upon compliance with the provisions of this Act, be renewed annually, but in all cases to terminate on the first day of the succeeding April; provided, however, that license shall continue in full force and effect until the new license be issued or specifically refused. Any foreign society desiring admission to this state shall have the qualifications required of domestic societies organized under this Act and have its assets invested as required by the laws of the state, territory, district, country or province where it is organized. For each such license or renewal the society shall pay the commissioner of insurance and banking ten dollars. When the commissioner of insurance and banking refuses to license any society or revokes its authority to do business in this state, he shall reduce his ruling, order or decision to writing and file the same in his office, and shall furnish a copy thereof, together with a statement of his reasons, to the officers of the society, upon request, and the action of the commissioner of insurance and banking shall be reviewable by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction within the state; provided, however, that nothing contained in this or the preceding section shall be taken or construed as preventing any such society from continuing in good faith all contracts made in this State during the time such society was legally authorized to transact business herein. [Id. sec. 16.]

Diversion of benefits.—In the absence of proof of the law under which a fraternal beneficiary association is organized, it must be presumed that it comes within this article, admitting associations of another state to do business in this state when they have complied with certain requirements, and that there are the same limitations upon its corporate powers that are imposed upon corporations organized in this state. Any attempt to divert the benefit fund derived from the members from the purpose for which it was provided, and to appropriate it to payment of benefit certificate or policy issued by another corporation with which it had no power to consolidate is ultra vires and void. Whaley v. Bank's Union of the World, 39 C. A. 385, 88 S. W. 262.

Art. 4844. Power of attorney and service of process.—Every society, whether domestic or foreign, now transacting business in this state shall, within thirty days after the passage of this Act, any [and] every such society hereafter applying for admission, shall before being licensed, appoint in writing the commissioner of insurance and banking, and his successors in office to be its true and lawful attorney upon whom all legal process in any action or proceeding against it shall be served, and in such writing shall agree that any lawful process against it which is served upon such attorney shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon the society and that the authority shall continue in force so long as any liability remains outstanding in this state.

Copies of such appointment certified by said commissioner of insurance and banking shall be deemed sufficient evidence thereof and shall be admitted in evidence with the same force and effect as the original thereof might be admitted. Service shall only be made upon such attorney, must be made in duplicate upon the commissioner of insurance and banking, or, in his absence, upon the person in charge of his office, and shall be deemed sufficient service upon such society; provided, however, that no such service shall be valid or binding against any such society when it is required thereunder to file its answer, pleading [pleading] or defense in less than thirty days from the date of mailing the copy of such service to such society. When legal process against any such society is served upon said commissioner of insurance and banking he shall forthwith forward by registered mail, one of the duplicate copies prepaid and directed to its secretary or corresponding officer. Legal process shall not be served upon any such society except in the manner provided herein. [Id. sec. 17.]

Service under general law.—The act prescribes that citation may be served on the insurance commissioner. It does not repeal the general law authorizing service of citation on "local agents" of foreign corporations. This statute (of 1899) is merely cumulative of the general law on the subject, and therefore service in accordance with either statute is legal and sufficient. Bankers' Union of the World v. Nabors, 36 C. A. 88, 81 S. W. 93.

This article does not take away the right to serve them in the usual mode prescribed by general law, which mode must be adopted where the association has not complied with the act. Modern Woodmen of America v. Metcalfe (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 662.

Art. 4845. Place of meeting—Location of office.—Any domestic society may provide that the meetings of its legislative or governing body may be held in any state, district, province or territory wherein such society has subordinate branches, and all business transacted at such meetings shall be as valid in all respects as if such meetings were held in this state; but its principal office shall be located in this state. [Id. sec. 18.]

Meetings outside of state.—A mutual benefit society may hold meetings of its supreme legislative department, which has authority to make its laws, outside of the state of its incorporation. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, No. 955, v. Fraley, 94 T. 200, 59 S. W. 879, 51 L. R. A. 898.

A beneficial society cannot legally hold a meeting outside the state in which it was incorporated for the exercise of a corporate act. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Fraley (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 905.

Art. 4846. No personal liability.—Officers and members of the supreme, grand or any subordinate body of any such incorporated society shall not be individually liable for the payment of any disability or death benefit provided for in the laws and agreements of such society; but the same shall be payable only out of the funds of such society and in the manner provided by its laws. [Id. sec. 19.]

Liability of directors.—Directors in a voluntary insurance association held personally liable for the amount which a beneficiary should have received, where they wrongfully withheld payment on the member's death and paid it on account of a member subsequently deceased. Home Benefit Ass'n No. 3 of Coleman County v. Wester (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1022.

Art. 4847. Waiver of the provisions of the laws—Separate jurisdiction.—The constitution and laws of the society may provide that no subordinate body nor any of its subordinate officers or members shall have the power or authority to waive any of the provisions of the laws and constitution of the society, and the same shall be binding on the society and each and every member thereof and on all beneficiaries of members.

All grand lodges, by whatever name known, whether incorporated or not, holding charters from any supreme governing body, which were conducting business in this state upon the passage of this Act as a fraternal beneficiary association, upon what is known as the separate jurisdiction plan, shall be treated as single state organizations, and all reports required by the provisions of this Act shall be made and furnished by the officers of such supreme state governing body and shall embrace and contain the transactions, liabilities and assets of such state organization. [Id. sec. 20.]

Estoppel or waiver affecting right of forfeiture.—An act or promise of an officer superintending the business of a mutual benefit association, although beyond his power as defined in the by-laws of the association, if acted upon by a member, will bind the company. See facts held to estop the T. B. A. from denying the privileges of membership to one who was claimed to have forfeited his membership. McCorkle v. Insurance Ass'n, 71 T. 149, 8 S. W. 516.

Sovereign camp of benefit order held not estopped to deny reinstatement of suspended member by unauthorized act of subordinate agent. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Rothschild, 15 C. A. 463, 40 S. W. 553.

The knowledge by a benefit company of a member's excessive drinking, long prior to the time he was expelled therefor, does not estop the company to set up the fact of expulsion, where the certificate provided that it should become void if the holder drank to excess. Kempe v. Woodmen of the World (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 688.

The acceptance of subsequent assessments by the supreme lodge of a benevolent association from a subordinate lodge held to estop the supreme lodge from setting up suspension to defeat a recovery by a member of said lodge. Supreme Lodge Nat. Reserve Ass'n v. Turner, 19 C. A. 346, 47 S. W. 44.

Finding that there was no evidence that a benefit order knew that a statement in a member's application was false held supported by the evidence. Brown v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, 20 C. A. 373, 49 S. W. 393.

Where a beneficial society's charter provides that no agent shall waive any law of the order, an agent's issuance of a certificate containing conditions different from those prescribed by amended certificates, which amendment was void, does not violate his official duty. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Fraley (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 905.

A life association which sends an organizer properly equipped with literature and blanks to organize a local lodge is estopped from resisting liability on the certificate by his accepting an application for insurance with a knowledge of false warranties contained therein. National Fraternity v. Karnes, 24 C. A. 607, 60 S. W. 576.

Facts known by a physician who signs a medical examination certificate to enable another physician to get insurance held not to estop the association from relying on a breach of warranty. Id.

A local council of a fraternal insurance association held to have borne the relation of agent to the supreme council, and to have waived in its behalf a breach of warranty by an assured and his subsequent failure to abide by the rules of the order. Order of Columbus of Baltimore City, Md., v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1020.

A fraternal order, after receipt of assessments from a person and delivery to him of a benefit certificate, cannot question his membership, though he were not initiated. Supreme Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Crawford, 32 C. A. 603, 75 S. W. 844.

Forfeitures of policies in a benevolent insurance association held not waived by the acceptance by the supreme lodge, without protest, of reports of the local financier later than the by-laws directed. United Moderns v. Pike (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 774.

A waiver by a beneficiary society of the requirement that the applicant must be in good health may be established by showing that it had customarily and knowingly accepted persons not in good health. Home Circle Soc. No. 1 v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 84.

A letter inclosing a blank application for reinstatement, sent to a member of a mutual benefit society not then in good standing, held not to constitute a waiver of his previous lapses. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Hicks, 37 C. A. 424, 84 S. W. 425.

In an action on a fraternal life insurance certificate, plaintiff held entitled to show that the application was prepared by defendant's agent, and that defendant did not know it contained the statement of good health, or that condition of health was material. Home Circle Soc. No. 2 v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 320.

A mutual benefit society, alleged to have absorbed another society by which plaintiff's wife was insured for plaintiff's benefit, held not liable on such certificate on the ground of equitable estoppel. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World, 39 C. A. 385, 88 S. W. 259.

Clerk of local camp of mutual benefit association held to have authority to waive provision in benefit certificate that no liability should begin thereon until delivered to insured in person, while in good health. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Carrington, 41 C. A. 29, 90 S. W. 921.

Certain fact held not to operate in favor of a claim by a beneficiary of a member of an accident insurance association for his death as a waiver of such member's failure to pay dues. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Roth (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1039.

Insurer held not estopped to enforce a forfeiture of a benefit certificate by the fact that its local officer by mistake informed insured that a medical certificate was required in order to secure reinstatement. Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen v. Dee, 101 T. 597, 111 S. W. 396.

Custom of local lodges of a mutual benefit society to pay dues of sick members held not to create an estoppel against the association's right to enforce a forfeiture for non-payment of dues. Id.

A member of a mutual benefit society held to have consented to its change from the assessment to the monthly payment plan. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Ericson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 92.

The failure of a fraternal insurance order to surrender a certificate to the beneficiary therein on the death of the member held not a waiver of objections to liability, under the certificate. Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Hunter, 103 T. 612, 132 S. W. 116.

Acts constituting a waiver of a condition in a life policy requiring payment of the first premium before the policy takes effect stated. Supreme Lodge United Benevolent Ass'n v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 907.

Prepayment of the first premium on a life insurance policy as a condition precedent to its taking effect may be waived by parol by the insurer or its agent. Id.

A mutual benefit society formed by the consolidation of two societies created by laws of different states held not estopped from denying the legality of the consolidation and denying a liability to a member of one of the societies. Gordon v. American Patriots of Springfield, Ill. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 331.

A deputy head consul of a mutual benefit society held without power to waive a by-law requiring adoption as a condition to membership. McWilliams v. Modern Woodmen of America (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 641.

Collection of certain fees and dues by an organizer of a mutual benefit society held not to estop the society to deny that decedent was a member. Id.

A fraternal insurance company held estopped to assert that an answer of an applicant incorrectly transcribed by its medical examiner was false. Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 247.

Forfeiture of policy for nonpayment of assessments held not waived by subsequent notices, nor by invitation to pay arrearages and be reinstated, if in good health, where insured took no steps towards reinstatement. Hawkins v. Lone Star Ins. Union (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1041.

A fraternal beneficiary association which denied liability on a certificate of membership on account of nonmembership of decedent at the time of his death waived any further proceedings by the beneficiary under its by-laws providing for an appeal from the executive committee. Knights of the Modern Maccabees v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 675.

Art. 4848. Repealed. See note under Art. 4827. The provisions of this article are included in section 20 of the new act (Art. 4847).

Art. 4848a. Benefit not attachable.—No money or other benefit, charity or relief or aid to be paid, provided or rendered by any such society shall be liable to attachment, garnishment, or other process, or be seized, taken or appropriated or applied by any legal or equitable process or operation of law to pay any debt or liability of a member or beneficiary or any other person who may have a right thereunder, either before or after payment. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4849. Constitution and laws—Amendments.—Every society transacting business under this Act shall file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a duly certified copy of all amendments of, or additions to its constitution and laws within ninety days after the enactment of the same. Printed copies of the constitution and laws, as amended, changed, or added to, certified by the secretary or corresponding officer of the society, shall be prima facie evidence of the legal adoption thereof. [Id. sec. 22.]

Amendments.—Amendment to defendant's constitution held not to affect benefit certificates previously issued. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W. v. Stumpf, 24 C. A. 309, 58 S. W. 840.

Under the articles of incorporation of a mutual benefit society, delegates, when assembled as the "Sovereign Camp," had power to adopt an amendment to the constitution changing the conditions of the benefit certificate. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, No. 955, v. Fraley, 94 T. 200, 59 S. W. 879, 51 L. R. A. 898.

A member of a beneficial association, accepting a certificate subject to laws that might be adopted before an amendment changing the conditions of certificates, which was void, held not precluded from questioning its validity. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Fraley (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 905.

Art. 4850. Annual reports.—Every society transacting business in this state shall annually, on or before the day of March, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking in such form as he may require, a statement under oath of its president and secretary or corresponding officers, of its condition and standing on the thirty-first day of December next preceding, and of its transactions for the year ending on that date, and also shall furnish such other information as the commissioner of insurance and banking may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working. The commissioner of insurance and banking may at other times require any further statement he may deem necessary to be made relating to such society.

In addition to the annual report herein required, each society shall annually report to the commissioner of insurance and banking a valuation of its certificates in force on December 31st last preceding, excluding those issued within the year for which the report is filed, in cases where the contribution for the first year in whole or in part are used for current mortality and expenses; provided, the first report of valuation shall be made as of December 31st, 1913, such report of valuation shall show, as contingent, liabilities the present mid-year value of the promised benefits provided in the constitution and laws of such society, under certificates the subject to valuation; and, as contingent assets, the present mid-year value of the future net contributions provided in the constitution and laws as the same are in practice actually collected. At the option of any society, in lieu of the above, the valuation may show the net value of the certificates subject to valuation hereinbefore provided, and said net value, when computed in case of monthly contributions, may be the mean of the terminal values for the end of the preceding and of the current insurance years.

Such valuation shall be certified by a competent accountant or actuary, or, at the request and expense of the society, verified by the actuary of the department of insurance of the home state of the society, and shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking within ninety days after the submission of the last preceding annual [annual] report. The legal minimum standard of valuation for all certificates, except for disability benefits, shall be the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality as adopted by the National Congress, August 23rd, 1899; or, at the option of the society, any higher table; or, at its option, it may use a table based upon the society's own experience of at least twenty years, and covering not less than one hundred thousand lives with interest assumption not more than four per centum per annum. Each such valuation report shall set forth clearly and fully the mortality and interest basis and the method of valuation. Any society providing for disability benefits shall keep the net contributions for such benefits in a fund separate and apart from all other benefit and expense funds and the valuation of all other business of the society; provided, that where a combined contribution table is used by a society for both death and permanent total disability benefits, the valuation shall be according to tables of reliable experiences, and in such cases a separation of the funds shall not be required.

The valuation herein provided for shall not be considered or regarded as a test of the financial solvency of the society, but each society shall be held to be legally solvent [solvent] so long as the funds [funds] in its possession are equal to or in excess of its matured liabilities.

Beginning with the year, 1914, a report of such valuation and an explanation of the facts concerning the condition of the society thereby disclosed, shall be printed and mailed to each beneficiary member of the society not later than June 1st, of each year; or, in lieu thereof, such report of valuation and showing of the society's condition as thereby disclosed may be published in the society's official paper and the issue containing the same mailed to each beneficiary member of the society. The laws of such society shall provide that if the stated periodical contributions of the members are insufficient to pay all matured death and disability claims in full, and to provide for the creation and maintenance of the funds required by its laws additional, increased or extra rates of contribution shall be collected from the members to meet such deficiency; and such laws may provide that, upon the written application or consent of the member, his certificate may be charged with its proportion of any deficiency disclosed by valuation, with interest not exceeding five per centum per annum. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4850a. Provisions to insure future security.—If the valuation of the certificates, as hereinbefore provided, on December 31st, 1917, shall show that the present value of future net contributions, together with the admitted assets, is less than the present value of the promised benefits and accrued liabilities, such society shall thereafter maintain said financial condition at each succeeding triennial valuation in respect of the degree of deficiency as shown in the valuation as of December 31, 1917. If at any succeeding triennial valuation such society does not show at least the same condition, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall direct that it thereafter comply with the requirements herein specified. If the next succeeding triennial valuation after the receipt of such notice shall show that the society has failed to maintain the condition required herein, the commissioner of insurance and banking may, in the absence of good cause shown for such failure, institute proceedings for the dissolution of such society, in accordance with the provisions of section 24 [Art. 4851] of this Act, or in the case of a foreign society, its license may be cancelled in the manner provided in this Act.

Any such society, shown by any triennial valuation, subsequent to December 31, 1917, not to have maintained the condition herein required, shall, within two years thereafter, make such improvement as to show a percentage of deficiency not greater than as of December 31, 1917, or thereafter, as to all new members admitted, be subject, so far as stated rates of contributions are concerned, to the provisions of section 12 [Art. 4839] of this Act, applicable in the organization of new societies; provided, that the net mortuary or beneficiary contributions and funds of such new members shall be kept separate and apart from the other funds of the society. If such required improvement is not shown by the succeeding triennial valuation, then the said new members may be placed in a separate class and their certificates valued as an independent society in respect of contributions and funds. [Id. sec. 23a.]

Art. 4850b. Valuation of certificates on accumulation basis; member may transfer to any plan; valuation on tabular basis; deficiency.— In lieu of the requirements of section 23 [Art. 4850] and 23a [Art. 4850a], any society accepting in its laws the provisions of this section, may value its certificates on a basis herein designated, "accumulation basis," by crediting each member with the net amount contributed for each year and with interest at approximately the next rate earned and by charging him with his share of the losses for each year, herein designated "cost of insurance," and carrying the balance, if any, to his credit. The charge for the cost of insurance may be according to the actual experience of the society applied to a table of mortality recognized by the law of this state, and shall take into consideration the amount at risk during each year, which shall be the amount payable at death less the credit to the member, except as specifically provided in its articles of laws or contracts no charge shall be carried forward from the first valuation hereunder against any member for any past share of losses exceeding the contributions and credit. If, after the first valuation, any member's share of losses for any year exceeds his credit, including the contribution for the year, the contribution shall be increased to cover his share of the losses. Any such excess share of losses chargeable to any member may be paid out of a fund or contribution especially created or required for such purpose.

Any member may transfer to any plan adopted by the society with net rates on which tabular reserves are maintained and on such transfer shall be entitled to make such application of his credit as provided in the laws of the society.

Certificates issued, rerated or readjusted on a basis provided for adequate rates with adequate reserves to mature such certificates upon assumption for mortality and interest recognized by the law of this state shall be valued on such basis, herein designated the "tabular basis"; provided, that if on the first valuation under this section a deficiency in reserve shall be shown for any such certificate, the same shall be valued on the accumulation basis.

Whenever in any society having members upon the tabular basis and upon the accumulation basis, the total of all costs of insurance provided for any year shall be insufficient to meet the actual death and disability losses for the year, the deficiency shall be met for the year from the available funds after setting aside all credits in the reserve or from increased contributions or by an increase in the number of assessments applied to the society, as a whole or to classes of members as may be specified in its laws, savings from a lower amount of death losses may be returned in like manner as may be specified in its laws. If the laws of the society so provide, the assets representing the reserves of any separate class of members may be carried separately for such class as if in an independent society, and the required reserve accumulation of such class, so set apart shall not thereafter be mingled with the assets of other classes of the society.

A table showing the credits to individual members for each age and year of entry and showing opposite each credit the tabular reserve required on the whole life or other plan of insurance specified in the contract, according to assumptions for mortality and interest recognized by the law of this state and adopted by the society, shall be filed by the society with each annual report and also be furnished to each member before July 1st of each year.

In lieu of the aforesaid statement there may be furnished to each member within the same time a statement giving the credit for such member and giving the tabular reserve and level rate required for a transfer carrying out the plan of insurance specified in the contract. No table or statement need be made or furnished where the reserves are maintained on the tabular basis. For this purpose individual bookkeeping accounts for each member shall not be required and all calculations may be made by actuarial methods.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the maintenance of such surplus over and above the credits on the accumulation basis, and the reserves on the tabular basis pursuant to its laws; nor be construed as giving to the individual member any right or claim to any such reserve or credit other than in manner as expressed in the contract and its laws; nor as making any such reserve or credits a liability in determining the legal solvency of the society. [Id. sec. 23b.]

Art. 4851. Examination of domestic societies.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, or any person he may appoint, shall have the power of visitation and examination into the affairs of any domestic society. He may employ assistants for the purpose of such examination, and he, or any person he may appoint, shall have, free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the society, and may summon and qualify as witnesses under oath and examine its officers, agents and employes or other person in relation to the affairs, transactions and conditions of the society.

The expense of such examination shall be paid by the society examined, upon statement furnished by the commissioner of insurance and banking and the examination shall be made at least once in three years.

Whenever after examination the commissioner of insurance and banking is satisfied that any domestic society has failed to comply with any provisions of this Act, or is exceeding its powers, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, or is transacting business fraudulently; or whenever any domestic society, after the existence of one year or more, shall have a membership of less than four hundred, (or shall determine to discontinue business) the commissioner of insurance and banking may present the facts relating thereto to the attorney general, who shall, if he deem the circumstance warrant, commence an action in quo warranto in a court of competent jurisdiction, and such court shall thereupon notify the officers of such society of a hearing, and if it shall then appear that such society should be closed, said society shall be enjoined from carrying [carrying] on any further business and some person shall be appointed receiver of such society and shall proceed at once to take possession of the books, papers, moneys and other assets of the society, and shall forthwith, under the direction of the court, proceed to close the affairs of the society, and to distribute its funds to those entitled thereto.

No such proceedings shall be commenced by the attorney general against any such society until after notice has been duly served on the chief executive officers of the society and a reasonable opportunity given to it, on a date to be named in said notice, to show cause why such proceeding should not be commenced. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4852. Application for receiver, etc.—No application for injunction against or proceedings for the dissolution of or the appointment of a receiver for any such domestic society or branch thereof shall be entertained by any court in the state unless the same is made by the attorney general. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4853. Examination of foreign societies.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, or any person whom he may appoint, may examine any foreign society transacting or applying for admission to transact business in this state. The said commissioner of insurance and banking may employ assistants, and he, or any person he may appoint, shall have free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the society, and may summon and qualify as witnesses under oath and examine its officers, agents and employes and other persons in relation to the affairs, transactions and conditions of the society. He may, in his discretion, accept in lieu of such examination of the insurance department of the state, territory, district, province or country where such society is organized. The actual expense of examiners making any such examination shall be paid by the society, upon statements furnished by the commissioner of insurance and banking. If any such society or its officers refuse to submit such examination or to comply with the provisions of the section relative thereto, the authority of such society to write new business in this state shall be suspended, or license refused until satisfactory evidence is furnished the commissioner of insurance and banking relating to the condition and affairs of the society, and during such suspension the society shall not write any new business in this state. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4853a. No adverse publications.—Pending during or after an examination or investigation of any such society either domestic or foreign, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall make public no financial statement, report or finding, nor shall he permit to become public any financial statement, report or finding affecting the status, standing or rights of any such society, until a copy thereof shall have been served upon such society, at its home office, nor until such society shall have been afforded a reasonable opportunity to answer any such financial statement, report of finding, and to make such showing in connection therewith as it may desire. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4854. Revocation of license.—When the commissioner of insurance and banking on investigation is satisfied that any foreign society transacting business under this Act has exceeded its powers, or has failed to comply with any provisions of this Act, or is conducting business fraudulently, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, he shall notify the society of his findings, and state in writing the grounds of his dissatisfaction, and after reasonable notice require said society, on a date named, to show cause why its license should not be revoked. If, on the date named in said notice, such objections have not been removed to the satisfaction of said commissioner of insurance and banking, or the society does not present good and sufficient reasons why its authority to transact business in this state should not at that time be revoked, he may revoke the authority of the society to continue business in this state. All decisions and findings of the commissioner of insurance and banking made under the provisions of this section may be reviewed by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction, as provided in section 16 [Art. 4843] of this Act. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4855. Examination of certain societies.—Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to affect or apply to grand or subordinate lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows or Knights of Pythias (exclusive of the insurance department of the supreme lodge Knights of Pythias) and the Junior Order of the United American Mechanics (exclusive of the beneficiary degree or insurance branch of the National Council Junior Order United States American Mechanics) or societies which limit their membership to any one hazardous occupation nor to similar societies which do not issue insurance certificates nor to an association of local lodges of a society now doing business in this state which provides death benefits not exceeding five hundred dollars to any one person or disability benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year to pay one person or both, nor to any contracts of reinsurance business on such plan in this state nor to domestic societies which limit their membership to the employés of a particular city or town, designated firm, business house or corporation, nor to domestic lodges, orders or associations of a purely religious, charitable and benevolent description which do not provide for a death benefit of more than one hundred dollars or for disability benefits of more than one hundred and fifty dollars to any person in one year.

The commissioner of insurance and banking may require from any society such information as will enable him to determine whether such society is exempt from the provisions of this Act.

Any fraternal benefit society heretofore organized and incorporated and operating within the definition set forth in sections 1, 2 and 3 [Arts. 4827–4829] of this Act, providing for the benefits in case of death or disability resulting solely from accidents, but which does not obligate itself to pay death or sick benefits, may be licensed under the provisions of this Act and shall have all the privileges and shall be subject to all the provisions and regulations of this Act, except that the provisions of this Act requiring medical examinations, valuations of benefit certificates and that the certificates shall specify the amount of benefits, shall not apply to such society. [Id. sec. 29.]

Legislative power.—The legislature had the power to divide the different associations and orders into classes and to exempt those orders named in this section (16) from the general operation of the law. Supreme Lodge United Benev. Ass'n v. Johnson, 98 T. 1, 81 S. W. 19.

Art. 4856. Taxation.—Every fraternal benefit society organized or licensed under this Act is hereby declared to be a charitable and benevolent institution, and all of its funds and property shall be exempt from all and every state, county, district, municipal and school tax, other than taxes on real estate and office equipment, when same is used for other than lodge purposes. [Id. sec. 30.]

Arts. 4857, 4858.—Repealed. See note under Art. 4827.

Art. 4859. Provisions not to apply to local mutual aid associations; annual statement by such associations, etc.—The provisions of this Act shall not apply to incorporated or unincorporated mutual relief or benefit or burial associations operating upon the assessment plan, whose business is confined to not more than one county in the state, or to a territory in two or more adjacent counties included within a radius of not more than twenty-five miles surrounding the city or town in which its principal office is to be located, which is designated in its charter, which are hereby denominated local mutual aid associations; providing that such associations are in no manner directly or indirectly connected, federated or associated with any such association, and do not directly or indirectly contribute to the expense or support of any other such association or to the officers, promoters or managers thereof. And, provided, that no person or officer shall receive from said association any payment on account of organization or other expenses or salaries not a bona fide resident of such county, in which such association is domiciled. The association above mentioned shall annually on or before March 1st, file a statement with the commissioner of insurance and banking, which shall be signed and sworn to by the president, secretary and treasurer or the officers holding positions corresponding thereto. Such statement shall show whether the association has during the preceding year done any business outside of the county in which it is domiciled, and shall state whether or not said association is associated, federated or directly or indirectly connected with any other, and shall show what, if anything, has been contributed during the preceding year by said association, or the members to any person or officer or director thereof for salaries, commissions or promotion expenses and the name and residence of the party or parties receiving the same. Should any person in such affidavit herein provided for make any false statement he shall be deemed guilty of false swearing, and punished as provided by law. The commissioner of insurance and banking may, at his option, and it shall be his duty, if not satisfied with said statement, to demand other and additional statements, and examine the books, papers and records of said association, either himself or by some other suitable person, authorized by him. Should it appear to the commissioner of insurance and banking that any such local mutual aid association is not carrying on business as set forth in this section, and is not entitled to the exemption therein set forth, such association shall be subject to and comply with all provisions of this Act as a fraternal beneficiary association. Every such local association claiming to be entitled to the benefit of the exemption created by this section shall plainly state upon its certificates, applications and all advertising matter, in a conspicuous manner, that said association is a local mutual aid association, or same shall be deemed subject to all provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 4859a. Penalties.—Any person, officer, member or examining physician of any society authorized to do business under this Act who shall knowingly or willfully make any false or fraudulent statement or representation in or with reference to any application for membership, or for the purpose of obtaining money from or benefit in any society transacting business under this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty days, nor more than one year, or both in the discretion of the court; any person who shall wilfully make a false statement of any material fact or thing in a sworn statement as to the death or disability of a certificate holder in any such society for the purpose of procuring payment of a benefit named in the certificate of such holder, and any person who shall wilfully make any false statement in any verified report or delaration [declaration] under oath required or authorized by this Act, shall be guilty of perjury, and shall be proceeded against and punished as provided by the statutes of this state in relation to the crime of perjury.

Any person who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in any fraternal benefit society not licensed to do business in this state, or who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in such society not authorized as herein provided to do business as herein defined in this state, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars.

Any person who solicits for or organizes lodges of such association as are described in the first section of this Act without first obtaining from the commissioner of insurance and banking a certificate of authority showing that the association has complied with the provisions of this Act, and is entitled to do business in this state, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than three nor more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment; provided, the provisions of this section shall not be so construed as to prohibit any member or members of a local or subordinate lodge from soliciting any person or persons to become a member of any local or subordinate lodge already in existence; and providing, further, the provisions of this section shall not apply to any member or members of any local or subordinate lodge who participate in, supervise or directs or conducts the organization or establishment of any local or subordinate lodge within the limits of the county of his or their residence or lodge district. All certificates of authority for agents or solicitors shall be issued by the commissioner upon application made therefor by any of the general officers of the association, or by any agent whom the properly authorized governing body of the association has, by resolution, filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, duly empowered to make such application, and all such certificates shall be revoked by the commissioner upon the request of the association and may be revoked for cause upon like ground and in like manner as the certificates of authority of agents for life insurance companies under the laws of this state. All such certificates shall be renewed annually and shall expire on the first day of April of each year, and a fee of $1.00 shall be paid for the use of the state for the issuance of said such certificate.

Any society or any officer, agent or employé thereof neglecting or refusing to comply with or violating any of the provisions of this Act, the penalty for which neglect, refusal or violation is not specified in this section, shall be fined not exceeding two hundred dollars upon conviction thereof. [Id. sec. 32.]

Arts. 4860, 4861.—Repealed. See note under Art. 4827.

Determination of insolvency.—Under Art. 4861 the power to levy additional assessments is an important factor in determining the corporation's insolvency. State v. Trinity Life & Annuity Society (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1174.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT

What constitutes the contract.—The constitution and by-laws and the policy of a fraternal benefit association constitute the contract between a member and the association, so far as the insurance is concerned. Haywood v. Grand Lodge of Texas, K. P. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1194.

Insured's application to a fraternal benefit insurance company, the certificate, and the by-laws, with amendments, held to constitute the contract of insurance. Modern Woodmen of America v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1055.

Agents of association.—The medical examiner and worthy recorder of an insurance society held agents of the society while performing the duties of his office in the absence of a restriction on such authority contained in the contract of insurance. Modern Order of Prætorians v. Hollmig (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 474.

A secretary of a subordinate lodge of a mutual benefit society acts as the agent of the subordinate lodge and its members, and not of the grand lodge, in sending up assessments. Grand Lodge United Brothers of Friendship of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 195.

Under the by-laws of an insurance society, the local secretary in collecting dues and assessments represents the society, and not the member. Supreme Lodge United Benevolent Ass'n v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 907.

Contingency upon which benefits become payable.—The constitution and by-laws of a beneficial association held not to authorize the recovery of a sick benefit by one who had been a member of the association less than six months when the illness commenced, though it lasted more than that time. Dabura v. Sociedad de la Union (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 835.

In an action to recover on a certificate from a fraternal benefit society on the ground of insanity held, that under the terms of the certificate it must be insanity such as would authorize an adjudication of insured's mental status by the courts. Knipp v. United Benev. Ass'n, 45 C. A. 357, 101 S. W. 273.

A member in a mutual benefit society held permanently and totally disabled within the meaning of the certificate. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen v. Dee (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 492.

That the evidence that a member of an accident insurance association died because of a certain injury is circumstantial held not to require that it be of such nature as not to reasonably permit any other conclusion than that his death was so caused. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Roth (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1039.

A beneficial certificate entitling the member to one-fourth of his benefit if he should "lose a foot" held not to mean that there must be a severance of the foot from the body, but to mean a permanent loss of use of the foot. Modern Order of Pretorians v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 260.

Where insured while insane and resisting arrest was killed by a sheriff, his policy was not forfeited because of death while violating the criminal laws of the state. Woodmen of the World v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 254.

Where the evidence, in an action on a benefit certificate, shows that the insured was shot and killed in consequence of his violation of law, it is immaterial whether the person shooting him committed an offense. Woodmen of the World v. Hipp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 316.

Where the by-laws of an accident insurance association provided for payment only where an insured should receive accidental injury immediately and wholly disabling him from transacting any kind of business, the fact that the insured, a traveling salesman, continued a journey after his accident will not bar recovery. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Bosworth (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 346.

— Evidence.—In an action on a mutual benefit certificate, evidence held to sustain a finding that insured's death was not suicidal. Grand Fraternity v. Melton (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 967; Same v. Green, 131 S. W. 442.

Evidence held not only to raise an issue for the jury as to the intention of insured in shooting himself, but to establish to a moral certainty that he shot himself with intent to commit suicide. Grand Fraternity v. Melton, 102 T. 399, 117 S. W. 788.

Evidence in an action on a fraternal benefit certificate held: To show that insured was engaged in performing duties incident to the sale of intoxicating liquors when he died. Modern Woodmen of America v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1055. To authorize a finding that K. was the aggressor in the fight in which insured was killed. Woodmen of the World v. McCoslin (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 894. To sustain a finding that the insured did not die of a concealed disease. Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 247. To sustain a finding that insured did not commit suicide. Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 718.

Where the defense was that insured died by reason of a violation of law, and there was evidence that he went to another's house, and that the other was angered by language of insured, and approached him without any weapon, and that insured then struck him a violent blow, following which insured was shot, held not to show self-defense, so as to exempt him from a breach of the certificate. Woodmen of the World v. Hipp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 316.

Proof of death.—Where the by-laws of a beneficial association require a report of the cause of death by the subordinate council to the supreme secretary, the beneficiary need not make proof of death. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor v. Landers, 23 C. A. 625, 57 S. W. 307.

A fraternal insurance order held to deny liability, so that proof of death of member was unnecessary. Grand Fraternity v. Mulkey (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 242.

Release on part payment.—A receipt or release in whole, given on payment by a beneficial association of part of a certificate, held to be without consideration. Supreme Council, American Legion of Honor, v. Storey (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 901.

Insolvency of association.—The holder of a certificate against a mutual benefit association held entitled to enforce his rights against its assets which had been turned over to another association under an invalid consolidation agreement only through a receiver. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World, 39 C. A. 385, 88 S. W. 259.

A fraternal beneficiary association held not insolvent so as to authorize a termination of its business, though its unmaturing obligations greatly exceeded its assets. State v. Trinity Life & Annuity Society (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1174.

Defenses in action on certificate.—A fine entered against a member of a beneficial association by the secretary held no defense to an action on the certificate. Screwmen's Benev. Ass'n v. O'Donohoe, 25 C. A. 254, 60 S. W. 683.

Amount recoverable.—Where insurer agreed to pay so much for each member in the order, not exceeding a specified sum, the fact that the members were not sufficient to pay the sum, and that the fund was not sufficient therefor, are matters of defense. International Order of Twelve of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1108.

A beneficiary of a $3,000 certificate, disabled to perform any or all kinds of labor, could recover only the sum of the annual installments due at the time of the trial, and not the entire amount of the certificate. Supreme Tent of Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Cox, 25 C. A. 366, 60 S. W. 971.

Where deceased surrendered a benefit certificate and accepted one for a lesser amount under a mistake of law, his beneficiary was not entitled to recover on the surrendered certificate, in the absence of evidence of misrepresentations. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 27.

Actions for breach of contract.—Improper motives of officers of fraternal benefit order in disorganizing and reorganizing local lodge held insufficient to constitute a cause of action against the order for conspiracy to deprive plaintiff of membership. Grand Lodge Order of Hermann's Sons of Texas v. Schuetze, 36 C. A. 539, 83 S. W. 241.

To make conduct of a fraternal association in maliciously expelling a member actionable, it is not necessary that hatred or ill will by the association toward the member be shown. Thompson v. Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, 41 C. A. 176, 91 S. W. 834.

Member of fraternal association who is wrongfully expelled held entitled to sue for damages. Id.

A member of a fraternal association wrongfully expelled therefrom need not exhaust his remedies within the order to correct its wrongful action before suing for damages. Thompson v. Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, 41 C. A. 176, 91 S. W. 834; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 453.

Held, further, that plaintiff was not limited to recovery of nominal damages. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 453.

In an action for the publication of an order of expulsion of plaintiff from an association in the association's journal, defendant cannot claim protection on the ground that the publication was privileged. Id.

A member of a beneficial association, having been wrongfully expelled, is not required to prosecute all his remedies by appeal within the association before instituting a suit for damages against those responsible for his expulsion. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson, 102 T. 89, 113 S. W. 144, 19 Ann. Cas. 1250.

If a member of a beneficial association was entitled to recover damages for his wrongful expulsion, he was entitled to recover as actual damages, his pecuniary loss, also for mental suffering and humiliation, and the value of his insurance and traveling card forfeited. Id.

An expelled member of a beneficial association held entitled to recover for such expulsion if the members did not exercise an honest judgment in finding that a certain act constituted a violation of the member's obligation to the society, and used it as a pretext to expel him on another unwarranted charge, but not otherwise. Id.

A finding of the members of a beneficial association acting fairly and in good faith that a letter written by a member was a violation of the constitution and laws of the order is conclusive on the court on the question. Id.

The measure of damages for the wrongful cancellation of a life policy is the value of the policy at the time of its cancellation. Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias v. Neeley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1046.

Where a life policy was canceled by agreement between the parties and insured obtained a new certificate, which insurer wrongfully canceled, the measure of damages did not include the premiums paid on the first policy. Id.

Remedies of insured for wrongful cancellation of a policy on his life stated. Id.
The act of a fraternal insurance order held to give a member thereof a right of action against it. Id.

Rights as to lodge property.—Under the constitution of a fraternal insurance order, the right of members of a subordinate order to property thereof held merely the right to use it during the meetings of the lodge. Lone Star Lodge No. 1935, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1180.

Suspension of lodge.—Officers of supreme lodge of benevolent association held to have right to waive by-laws suspending a subordinate lodge for failure to promptly remit assessments. Supreme Lodge Nat. Reserve Ass'n v. Turner, 19 C. A. 346, 47 S. W. 44.

The suspension of a subordinate lodge of a benevolent association held not to suspend its members. Id.

A forfeiture of the rights of a subordinate lodge of a mutual benefit society held unauthorized because not in accordance with the laws of the order. Grand Lodge United Brothers of Friendship of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 195.

The suspension of a subordinate lodge of a fraternal insurance order, composed of a supreme lodge and subordinate lodges, held justified. Lone Star Lodge No. 1935, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1180.

The suspension of a subordinate lodge of a fraternal insurance order held not to affect property rights of members within bill of rights, so that the suspension was not invalid because made without notice. Id.

The moral and social privileges of which members of a subordinate lodge have been deprived by reason of a suspension thereof held not properly within a bill of rights, so that the courts will not interfere therewith. Id.

Authority of court in lodge matters.—The court, at the suit of the members of a subordinate lodge of a fraternal insurance order, held not authorized to interfere with the action of the supreme lodge suspending the subordinate lodge. Lone Star Lodge No. 1935, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1180.

The courts will not interfere with the internal policy of a fraternal benefit association, whether incorporated or not, unless some valuable or property right is involved. Id.

Members of a fraternal insurance order held required to comply with the constitution relating to appeals from actions of officers, and they cannot first resort to the courts. Id.

4873. What the annual statement shall exhibit.
4874. Policy shall be considered a liquidated demand.

Art.
4874a. Breach or violation by insured of policy, etc., on personal property, not a defense, when.
4874b. Provisions not affected.
4875. Reinsurance.

Article 4862. [3074] Marine, fire and all other than life or health insurance companies, may do what.—It shall be lawful for any insurance company doing business in this state under the proper certificate of authority, except a life or health insurance company to insure houses, buildings and all other kinds of property against loss or damage by fire, and to take all kinds of insurance on goods, merchandise, or other property in the course of transportation, whether on land or water, or any vessel afloat, wherever the same may be; to lend money on bottomry or respondentia; and to cause itself to be insured against any loss or risk it may have incurred in the course of its business and upon the interest which it may have in any property by means of any loan or loans which it may have made on bottomry or respondentia; and generally to do and perform all other matters and things proper to promote these objects; to insure automobiles or other motor vehicles, whether stationary or being operated under their own power, against all or any of the risks of fire, lightning, wind storms, hail storms, tornadoes, cyclones, explosions, transportation by land or water, theft and collisions upon filing with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, notification of their purpose to do so. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 34, sec. 8. Acts 1913, p. 209, sec. 1, amending Art. 4862, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4863. [3077] Commissioner may permit capital stock of company to be reduced, when.—Whenever the joint stock of any fire, fire and marine, or marine insurance company of this state becomes impaired, the commissioner of insurance and banking may, in his discretion, permit the said company to reduce its capital stock and par value of its shares in proportion to the extent of impairment; but in fixing such reduced capital no sum exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars shall be deducted from the assets and property on hand, which shall be retained as surplus assets; and no part of such assets and property shall be distributed to the stockholders, nor shall the capital stock of a company in any case be reduced to an amount less than one hundred thousand dollars. [Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 222, sec. 8, subd. 11.]

Art. 4864. [3078] When company is called upon to make good its capital stock, shall do what.—Any fire, marine, or inland, insurance company having received notice from the commissioner of insurance and banking to make good its whole capital stock within sixty days, shall forthwith call upon its stockholders for such amounts as shall make its capital equal to the amount fixed by the charter of such company. [Id. sec. 221.]

Art. 4865. [3079] Stockholder failing to pay when called upon, what course shall be taken.—In case any stockholder of such fire, marine, or inland insurance company shall neglect or refuse to pay the amount so called for, after notice personally given, or by advertisement for such time and in such manner as said commissioner shall approve, it shall be lawful for said company to require the return of the original certificate of stock held by such stockholder, and in lieu thereof to issue new certificate for such number of shares as such defaulting stockholders may be entitled to, in the proportion that the ascertained value of the funds of said company may be found to bear to the original capital of said company; the value of such shares, for which new certificates are issued, to be ascertained under the direction of said commissioner, and the company shall pay for the fractional parts of shares. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4866. [3080] Company may create and dispose of new stock, when.—It shall be lawful for such fire, marine, or inland insurance company to create new stock and dispose of the same, and to issue new certificates therefor, to any amount sufficient to make up the original capital of the company. [Id.]

Art. 4867. [3087] Unlawful dividends.—It shall not be lawful for any life, health, fire, marine, or inland insurance company organized under the laws of this state to make any dividend, except from the surplus profits arising from its business; and in estimating such profits there shall be reserved therefrom a sum equal to forty per cent of the amount received as premiums on unexpired fire risks and policies, and one hundred per cent of the premiums received on unexpired life, health, marine, or inland transportation risks and policies, which amount so reserved is hereby declared to be unearned premiums; and there shall also be reserved the amount of all unpaid losses, whether adjusted or unadjusted; all sums due the company on bonds, mortgages, stocks and book accounts, of which no part of the principal or the interest thereon has been paid during the year preceding such estimate of profits, and upon which suit for foreclosure or collection has not been commenced, or which, after judgment has been obtained thereon, shall have remained more than two years unsatisfied, and upon which interest shall not have been paid; and, in case of any such judgment, the interest due or accrued thereon and remaining unpaid shall also be reserved. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4868. [3088] Penalty for making unlawful dividends.—Any dividends made contrary to the provisions of the preceding article shall subject the company making it to a forfeiture of its charter, and the commissioner of insurance and banking shall forthwith revoke its certificate of authority. [Id.]

Art. 4869. [3076] Insurance companies shall not purchase or hold real estate, except, etc.—No fire, marine, or inland insurance company organized under the laws of this state shall purchase or hold any real estate, except—

1. Such as shall be requisite for its convenient accommodation in the transaction of its business.

2. Such as shall have been mortgaged to it in good faith by way of security for loans previously contracted or for money due.

3. Such as shall have been conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the legitimate business of the company or for money due.

4. Such as shall have been purchased at sales under judgments, decrees or mortgages obtained or made for such debts.

All lands purchased or held in violation of this article shall be forfeited to the state. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4870. Shall file bond.—Every fire insurance company, not organized under the laws of this state, applying for a certificate of authority to transact any kind of insurance in this state, shall, before obtaining such certificate, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a bond, with good and sufficient surety or sureties, to be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, payable to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and his successors in office, in a sum equal to twenty-five per cent of its premiums collected from citizens or upon property in this state during the preceding calendar year, as shown by its annual report for such year; provided, however, the bond in no case shall exceed fifty thousand dollars, nor be less than ten thousand dollars, conditioned that said company will pay all its lawful obligations to citizens of this state. Such bonds shall be subject to successive suits by citizens of this state so long as any part of the same shall not be exhausted, and the same shall be kept in force unimpaired until all claims of citizens of this state arising out of obligations of said company have been fully satisfied. Such bonds shall provide that, in the event the company shall become insolvent or cease to transact business in this state, at any time when it has outstanding policies of insurance in favor of citizens of this state, or upon property in this state, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall have the power, after having given ten days notice to the officers of such company, or any receiver in charge of its property and affairs, to contract with any other insurance company transacting business in this state for the assumption and reinsurance by it of all the insurance risks outstanding in this state of such company which is insolvent, or which has ceased to transact business in this state, which contract shall also provide for the assumption by such reinsuring company of all outstanding and unsatisfied lawful claims then outstanding against such company which has become insolvent, or ceased to transact business in this state; and in the event of the commissioner making any such contract, and if the same shall be approved as reasonable by the attorney general and the governor of this state, the reinsuring company shall be entitled to recover from the makers of such bond the amount of the premium or compensation so agreed upon for such reinsurance. Any company desiring to do so may, at its option, in lieu of giving the bond required by this article, deposit securities of any kind, in which it may lawfully invest its funds with the state treasurer of this state upon such terms and conditions as will in all respects afford the same protection and indemnity as is herein provided for to be afforded by said bond. [Acts 1909, p. 182, sec. 1.]

See Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 816; Id., 155 S. W. 1176.

When bond required.—Under this article and Art. 4871, requiring that before any company shall issue any policy it shall first have filed during the calendar year in which such policy may issue a bond in a sum not less than $10,000, conditioned for the payment of all lawful obligations to citizens of this state arising out of any policies or contracts issued by such company, and makes it a penal offense for any company to issue policies without having given bond, held that, when construed with the senate journal, which showed that this article as it originally stood made no provision for a minimum or maximum penalty, which provision was entered by amendment without any other change in the bill, the two articles were but complements of each other, and hence required the giving of only one bond. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Hawkins, 103 T. 195, 125 S. W. 313.

Under this article and Art. 4871, which requires that before any company shall issue any policy it shall first have filed, "during the calendar year in which such policy may issue, a bond," etc., and the practice and statutory provision, under which the state department did not issue the certificates to insurance companies until March, the words "calendar year," as used in Art. 4871, would be read in connection with this article, and construed to mean the year in which the certificate is to run, since it was obvious that the legislature considered that the certificate was to run a calendar year, and since any other construction would leave an interval between January and March, during which time a policy issued by the company would not be preceded by a bond "filed during the calendar year." Id.

Under the statutory provision that certificate of authority for an insurance company to do business in the state must be obtained annually, and this article, the filing of a bond is required whenever a certificate to do business was applied for. Id.

Obligation of bond.—Under this article and Art. 4871, which requires that, before any company shall issue any policy, it shall first have filed a bond conditioned for the payment of all lawful obligations to citizens of the state arising out of any policies or contracts issued by such company, a bond filed must contain all the conditions imposed by either section, except that the bond mentioned in this article would be limited by the language of Art. 4871 to include only lawful obligations arising out of insurance policies or contracts. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Hawkins, 103 T. 195, 125 S. W. 313.

Bond for benefit of policy holders.—A bond executed by defendant to indemnify a surety on the bond of a foreign insurance company to enable it to obtain a license to do business in Texas held to inure to the benefit of policy holders of the insurance company. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1176.

Art. 4871. May deposit securities in lieu of bond.—Every fire insurance company, not organized under the laws of this state, hereafter issuing, or causing or authorizing to be issued, any policy of insurance other than life insurance, shall first have filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking during the calendar year in which such policy may issue, or authorize or cause to be issued, a bond of good and sufficient sureties to be approved by such commissioner in a sum of not less than ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the payment of all lawful obligations to citizens of this state arising out of any policies or contracts issued by such fire insurance company; which such bond shall be subject to successive suits by citizens of this state so long as any part of the same shall not be adjusted, and so long as there remains outstanding any such obligations or contracts of such fire insurance company. This article shall not apply to any person, firm or corporation, or association, doing an inter-insurance, co-operative or reciprocal business. [Id. sec. 3.]

When bond required.—See notes under Art. 4870.

Obligation of bond.—See notes under Art. 4870.

Art. 4872. [3083] Annual statement of company.—It shall be the duty of the president or of the vice-president and secretary of each fire, marine or inland insurance company doing business in this state, annually, on the first day of January of each year, or within sixty days thereafter, to prepare under oath and deposit with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state a full, true and complete statement of the condition of such company on the last day of the month of December preceding. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 37, sec. 17.]

Art. 4873. [3084] What the annual statement shall exhibit.—The annual statement required by the preceding article shall exhibit the following items and facts:

1. The name of the company and where located.
2. The names and residences of the officers.
3. The amount of capital stock of the company.
4. The amount of capital stock paid up.
5. The property or assets held by the company, viz.: The real estate owned by such company, its location, description and value as near as may be, and if said company be one organized under the laws of this state, shall accompany such statement with an abstract of the title to the same; the amount of cash on hand and deposited in banks to the credit of the company, and in what bank or banks the same is deposited; the amount of cash in the hands of agents, naming such agents; the amount of cash in course of transmission; the amount of loans secured by first mortgages on real estate, with the rate of interest thereon, specifying the location of such real estate, its value and the name of the mortgagor; the amount of all bonds and other loans, with the rate of interest thereon and how secured; the amount due the company in which judgments have been obtained, describing such judgments; the amount of stock of this state, of the United States, of any incorporated city of this state, and of any other stock owned by the company, describing the same and specifying the amount and number of shares, and the par and market value of each kind of stock; the amount of stock held by such company as collateral security for loans, with amount loaned on each kind of stock, its par and market value; the amount of interest actually due to the company and unpaid; all other securities, their description and value.

6. The liabilities of such company, specifying the losses adjusted and due; losses adjusted and not due; losses unadjusted; losses in suspense and the causes thereof; losses resisted and in litigation; dividends, either in scrip or cash, specifying the amount of each declared but not due; dividends declared and due; the amount required to reinsure all outstanding risks on the basis of forty per cent of the premium on all unexpired fire risks and one hundred per cent of the premium on all unexpired marine and inland transportation risks; the amount due banks or other creditors, naming such banks or other creditors and the amount due to each; the amount of money borrowed by the company, of whom borrowed, the rate of interest thereon and how secured; all other claims against the company, describing the same.

7. The income of the company during the preceding year, stating the amount received for premiums, specifying separately fire, marine and inland transportation premiums, deducting reinsurance; the amount received for interest, and from all other sources.

8. The expenditures during the preceding year, specifying the amount of losses paid during said term, stating how much of the same accrued prior, and how much subsequent, to the date of the preceding statement, and the amount at which losses were estimated in such preceding statement; the amount paid for dividends; the amount paid for return premiums, commissions, salaries, expenses and other charges of officers, agents, clerks and other employés; the amount paid for local, state, national, internal revenue and other taxes and duties; the amount paid for all other expenses such as fees, printing, stationery, rents, furniture, etc.

9. The largest amount insured in any one risk, naming the risk.

10. The amount of risks written during the year then ending.

11. The amount of risks in force having less than one year to run.

12. The amount of risks in force having more than one and not over three years to run.

13. The amount of risks having more than three years to run.

14. It shall be stated whether or not dividends are declared on premiums received for risks not terminated. [Id.]

Change of law.—So far as subdivision 7 is in conflict with section 8 of the act of 1907 (Supp. to Sayles' Ann. Stat. 1908 [Acts 1907, p. 482, ch. 180]), the latter must prevail. The act of 1907 prescribes with certainty what the report of the fire insurance company shall be upon the subject of the gross receipts, and its terms are not modified by the former laws. Fire Association v. Love, 101 T. 376, 108 S. W. 810.

Art. 4874. [3089] Policy shall be considered a liquidated demand.—A fire insurance policy, in case of a total loss by fire of property insured, shall be held and considered to be a liquidated demand against the company for the full amount of such policy; provided, that the provisions of this article shall not apply to personal property. [Acts 1879, ch. 73, p. 83.]

See Arts. 4874a, 4874b.

See, also, Merchants' Ins. Co. of New York v. Story et al., 13 C. A. 124, 35 S. W. 68.

Real or personal property.—When the petition describes and the evidence shows the fact that a dwelling house, which was attached to the soil and so described in the policy, was totally destroyed, at least a prima facie case is made justifying the court to treat the property as not personal and bringing the case within the terms of this article. Co-operative Ins. Ass'n v. Hubbs, 53 C. A. 68, 115 S. W. 671.

Where property covered by a fire policy is clearly real estate, a provision in the policy that the property shall be considered personalty for the purposes of the contract is void, because in contravention of this article, though, where the true status of the property is doubtful, it may be permissible for the parties by agreement to impress it with the character of personalty, provided the agreement is made in good faith, and not to contravene the statute. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

Validity of stipulation.—In case of loss of a house the policy, issued under this article, is a liquidated demand, and the insurer is liable for the full amount expressed in the policy, the total insurance not exceeding the value of the property, notwithstanding there was subsequent insurance with the consent of the insurer, upon a stipulation that in the event of a loss it should only be liable for its proportion of three-fourths of the cash market value of the property at the time of the fire. So far as the policy covered personal property, its provisions as to the share of loss to be suffered by the insured should be allowed full force and effect. Queen Ins. Co. v. Jefferson Ice Co., 64 T. 578; East Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Coffee, 61 T. 287.

Any stipulation in contravention of this article is void. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Levy (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 992; Western Assurance Co. of Toronto, Canada, v. Brown (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 994; Royal Ins. Co. of Liverpool v. Levy (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 994; Royal Ins. Co. of Liverpool v. Levy (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 995; Phoenix Ins. Co. of Brooklyn v. Levy (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 995; Orient Ins. Co. v. Levy, 33 S. W. 995; Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Levy (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 996; Fire Association of Philadelphia v. Brown, 12 C. A. 64, 33 S. W. 997; Sun Mutual Ins. Co. v. Holland, 2 App. C. C. § 448.

Total loss.—When the loss is total it is a liquidated demand, and notice or proof of loss is not necessary. Suit can be maintained on the policy as on any other liquidated demand, with the single addition that the property on which it was issued was real property and that it had been totally destroyed. Queen Ins. Co. v. Jefferson Ice Co., 64 T. 582; Continental Ins. Co. v. Chase (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 602.

When a city ordinance prohibited the repair of a wooden building within its limits, when injured by fire to the extent of one-third its value, and an application to repair such a building is refused, the loss is total. H. & B. Ins. Co. v. Garlington, 66 T. 103, 18 S. W. 337, 59 Am. Rep. 613.

If an insured building is injured by fire so as to have lost its identity and specific character as a building, the loss is total. Id.

A total loss exists when the specific character and identity as a house is lost; it does not mean the entire destruction of its material. Royal Ins. Co. v. McIntyre (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 669.

There is no total loss of a building so long as the remnant of the structure standing is reasonably adapted to use as a basis upon which to restore the building to the condition in which it was before the injury. Royal Ins. Co. v. McIntyre, 90 T. 170, 37 S. W. 1068, 35 L. R. A. 672, 59 Am. St. Rep. 747.

The statute embraces a house without reference to the question of the fee-simple title to the land. Orient Ins. Co. v. Parlin, 14 C. A. 512, 38 S. W. 60.

An insurance company cannot avoid its liability for total loss of a house on the ground that an excessive value was stated by the owner. German Ins. Company v. Jansen, 18 C. A. 190, 45 S. W. 220.

A building is a total loss, within this article, where the remnant is inconsiderable compared with the part entirely destroyed, and does not constitute a sufficient basis to restore the burnt building. Murphy v. American Cent. Ins. Co., 25 C. A. 241, 54 S. W. 407.

The question of injury to the foundation should not be considered by the jury in reaching a conclusion as to total loss. Id.

The loss is total where only part of one wall was left standing so as to be used in another building and this even was condemned by the architect as unfit for use. Am. Cent. Ins. Co. v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 956.

Liquidated demand.—Though by express provision of this article a demand on a fire policy, in case of total loss of the property insured, is a liquidated demand, a claim for breach of a contract to renew or procure insurance is an unliquidated demand within Art. 1329, providing that unliquidated damages cannot be set off in an action on a certain demand. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

Where a policy insured a building for a certain amount, and the furniture for another amount, the amount upon the building became a liquidated demand upon the total destruction of that structure, regardless of its value, under this article. Co-operative Ins. Ass'n of San Angelo v. Ray (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1122.

Measure of recovery.—Neither the jobbing, nor the ordinary price of the goods destroyed, nor the cost of manufacturing them, was held to furnish the measure of damages. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 18 C. A. 588, 45 S. W. 945.

The measure of damages under an insurance contract where loss is not total is the difference between the value of the property whole and damaged within the amount of the policy. German Ins. Co. v. Everett, 18 C. A. 514, 46 S. W. 95.

Where goods insured are held by manufacturer thereof, their market price at time and place of destruction is the basis for determining loss. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 19 C. A. 305, 46 S. W. 851.

Where goods destroyed by fire were replaced by assured within 30 days, such was a reasonable time, and the cost of the goods fixed the measure of his recovery under the policy. Texas Moline Plow Co. v. Niagara Fire Ins. Co., 39 C. A. 168, 87 S. W. 192.

"Actual value" defined. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Frosch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 600.

Insured held entitled to recover, not merely what secondhand goods would sell for, but what it would cost her to replace them. Southern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 286.

A fire policy issued to a lessee construed, and held not to give to the lessee a right to recover the rental value of the property covered by the policy. Williamsburgh City Fire Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1097.

Liability of co-insurers.—An insurer held liable, under a three-fourths clause of a divisible policy, only for three-fourths of the value of each item covered, taken separately. Sun Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tufts, 20 C. A. 147, 50 S. W. 180.

The "co-insurance clause," limiting the risk to such proportion of the loss as the sum insured bears to the value of the whole property covered, is valid. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Moore, 21 C. A. 523, 51 S. W. 878.

Where a loss so far exceeds the whole insurance that each insurer will be liable to its full amount, an insurer cannot complain of the method of computation adopted. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 445, 69 S. W. 235.

Where a fire policy permits concurrent insurance, additional insurance on a part only is within the provision, and in prorating such concurrent insurance should not be treated as on the whole property. Id.

An insurer sued on its fire policy, held under its answer and the evidence liable for only a part of the loss, according to the policy, without making another insurer a party. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Delta County Farmers' Ass'n, 56 C. A. 588, 121 S. W. 599.

Fire policies held to constitute double insurance, limiting the liability of one insurer according to the terms of its policy. Id.

A stipulation in a fire policy held not to nullify a provision therein limiting insurer's liability to no greater proportion of the loss sustained than the amount insured by it bore to the whole insurance. Id.

Whether void or voidable by the issuance of a second policy, held that a prior policy should be considered as insurance in determining the second insurance company's liability under a clause providing that it was liable for no greater amount than its policy bore to the whole amount of the insurance. Southern Nat. Ins. Co. of Austin v. Barr (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 845.

Effect of foreclosure of mortgage.—Foreclosure of a mortgage on property insured by mortgagee held not to prevent her from recovering for loss under the policy. Sun Ins. Office v. Beneke (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 98.

Notice or proof of loss.—Proof of loss, when stipulated for in the policy, is a condition precedent to a suit. Fire Ins. Co. v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 334; Insurance Co. v. Clancy, 83 T. 113, 18 S. W. 439.

A notice of loss given on the day succeeding is a compliance with a condition requiring immediate notice, the plaintiff being absent at the time of the fire. Oakland Home Ins. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 587.

A failure to furnish proof of total loss does not defeat an action on the policy. Continental Ins. Co. v. Chase (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 602.

Under this article proof of loss may be made at any time before suit is brought. Id. The property insured being realty and the amount of policy being liquidated demand the clause relating to magistrate's certificate does not apply; even if it could be held to apply, the certificate is not provided for, unless it be required by the insurance company, and there must be proof that it was required. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Shacklett (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 583.

— Waiver.—Proofs of loss are waived by an absolute refusal by the insurer to pay. E. T. F. Ins. Co. v. Coffee, 61 T. 287; G. H. Ins. Co. v. Jacobs, 56 T. 366; Insurance Co. v. Josey, 25 S. W. 685, 6 C. A. 290; Insurance Co. v. Tobey, 10 C. A. 425, 30 S. W. 1111. The failure to furnish proofs of loss is waived, when it was caused by the promise of the insurer to adjust and pay without further delay. E. T. Fire Ins. Co. v. Dyches, 56 T. 565.

Art. 4874a. Breach or violation by insured of policy, etc., on personal property, not a defense, when.—That no breach or violation by the insured of any of the warranties, conditions or provisions of any fire insurance policy, contract of insurance, or application therefor, upon personal property, shall render void the policy or contract, or constitute a defense to a suit for loss thereon, unless such breach or violation contributed to bring about the destruction of the property. [Acts 1913, p. 194, sec. 1.]

Art. 4874b. Provisions not affected.—That the provisions hereof shall in no way affect or repeal the provisions of article 4874 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 in so far as the same relates to fire insurance policies upon real or mixed property. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4875. [3075] Reinsurance.—No fire, fire and marine, marine or inland insurance company doing business in this state shall expose itself to any one risk, except when insuring cotton in bales and grain, to an amount exceeding ten per cent of its paid up capital stock, unless the excess shall be insured by such company in some other solvent insurance company legally authorized to do business in this state.

2. Every fire, fire and marine, marine or inland insurance company doing business in this state may reinsure the whole or any part of any policy obligation in any other insurance company legally authorized to do business in this state. The commissioner of insurance and banking shall require every year from every insurance company doing business in this state a certificate sworn to before an officer legally qualified to administer oaths in the state of Texas, to the effect that no part of the business written by such company in this state has been reinsured in whole or in part by any company, corporation, association or society not authorized to do business in this state. Every insurance company doing business shall also furnish the commissioner of insurance and banking with a list of all reinsurances during the year in authorized companies, showing the name, amount and premium effected in each company.

3. Any insurance company authorized to transact the business of fire, fire and marine, marine and inland insurance in this state, failing to comply with the provisions of this article, shall forfeit its authority to do such business for a period of one year; and it is hereby made the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to investigate any complaint as to violation of said article; and, upon satisfactory proof that any company authorized to transact the business of fire, fire and marine, marine or inland insurance in this state has violated the provisions of this article, the said commissioner shall revoke the certificate of authority of the offending company.

4. The commissioner of insurance and banking, upon the payment of license fee of twenty-five dollars, issue to an agent who is regularly commissioned to represent one or more fire, fire and marine insurance companies authorized to do business in this state, a certificate of authority to place excess lines of insurance in companies not authorized to do business in this state; provided, that the party desiring such excess insurance shall first file with the commissioner of insurance and banking an affidavit that he has exhausted all the insurance obtainable from companies duly authorized to do business in the state.

5. Before receiving license provided for in section 4 of this article, party applying for same shall file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, payable to the governor of the state, for the faithful observance of the provisions of this article. Said bond to be approved by the commissioner, and to be for the benefit of the state of Texas.

6. Every agent so licensed shall report, under oath, to the commissioner of insurance and banking, within thirty days from the first day of January and July of each year, the amount of gross premiums received by him for such excess insurance, and shall pay the said commissioner a tax of five per cent thereon. The agent procuring a license as provided in this article shall keep a separate record of all transactions herein provided open at all times to the inspection of the commissioner, or his legally appointed representative. In default of the payment of any sums which may be due the state under this article, the said commissioner may sue for the same in any court of record in this state. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 34, sec. 8. Amended Acts 1905, p. 112.]

Application.—This article does not forbid the taking of risks in excess of 10 per cent. of the capital stock, but requires that the excess shall be reinsured; and an insurance company, issuing a policy in a sister state on a building in excess of 10 per cent. of its capital stock without reinsuring the excess, violates the statute, though it is authorized under the laws of the sister state to take the risk. Glen Falls Ins. Co. v. Hawkins, 103 T. 327, 126 S. W. 1114.

Article 4876. Companies deemed to have accepted provisions of law.—Every fire insurance company, every marine insurance company, every fire and marine insurance company, every fire and tornado insurance company, and each and every insurance company of every kind and name issuing a contract or policy of insurance, or contracts or policies of insurance against loss by fire on property within this state, whether such property be fixed or movable, stationary or in transit, or whether such property is consigned or billed for shipment within or beyond the boundary of this state or to some foreign country, whether such company is organized under the laws of this state or under the laws of any other state, territory or possession of the United States, or foreign country, or by authority of the federal government, now holding a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, shall be deemed to have accepted such certificate and to transact business thereunder, upon condition that it consents to the terms and provisions of this Act and that it agrees to transact business in this state, subject thereto; it being intended that every contract or policy of insurance against the hazard of fire shall be issued in accordance with the terms and provisions of this Act, and the company issuing the same governed thereby, regardless of the kind and character of such property and whether the same is fixed or movable, stationary or in transit, including the shore end of all marine risks insured against loss by fire. [Acts 1913, p. 195, sec. 3.]

Note.—Acts 1913, p. 195, sec. 1, repeals chapter 8 of Acts Fourth Called Session of the 31st Legislature, and thus supersedes Arts. 4876-4904, Rev. St. 1911.

Art. 4876a. Maximum rate of premiums for fire insurance.—After this Act shall take effect, a maximum rate of premiums to be charged or collected by all companies transacting in this state the business of fire insurance, as herein defined, shall be exclusively fixed and determined and promulgated by the state fire insurance commission created by this Act, and no such fire insurance company shall, after this Act takes effect, charge or collect any premium or other compensation for or on account of any policy or contract of fire insurance as herein defined in excess of the maximum rate as herein provided for, but may write insurance at a less rate than the maximum rate as herein provided for; provided, that when insurance is written for less than the maximum rate, such lesser rate shall be applicable to all risks of the same character situated in the same community. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4877. State insurance commission; appointment, etc.—That there may be reasonable and just insurance rates in Texas, there is hereby created a commission to be known as the "State Insurance Commission," which shall be composed of the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall be chairman thereof, and two commissioners who shall be appointed by the governor by and with the consent of the senate, subject to removal as provided for removal of state officers by article 3528 of the Revised Statutes of Texas [Art. 6027, Rev. St. 1911, and this compilation]; the members of said commission other than the commissioner of insurance and banking shall be appointed as herein provided within ten days after this Act takes effect; one of said members to be so appointed shall be appointed for a term ending February 1, 1914, and biennially thereafter; the other of said members of said commission shall be appointed for a term ending February 1st, 1915, and biennially thereafter, and the governor in making his first appointments to fill these respective offices shall designate which of said officers shall fill the term expiring February 1st, 1914, and which of said officers shall fill the term expiring February 1st, 1915. The commissioner of insurance and banking, for the purpose of this Act, may be referred to as the commissioner of insurance. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4878. Compensation, etc.; appropriation.—The members of said commission other than the commissioner of insurance and banking shall each receive as compensation for their services the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2500.00) per annum; and the commissioner of insurance and banking shall receive as compensation or salary for his services under this Act, the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) per annum in addition to his compensation as now fixed by law. Such salaries of the said two appointed members of said commission, and the said five hundred dollars ($500.00) salary of the commissioner of insurance and banking, together with the necessary compensation of experts, the clerical force, and other persons employed by said commission, and all necessary traveling expenses, and such other expenses as may be necessary, incurred in carrying out the provisions of this Act, shall be paid by warrants drawn by the comptroller upon the state treasurer upon the order of said commission; provided, that the total amount of all salaries and said other expenses shall not exceed the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) annually, and for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act, there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars ($125,000.00), or so much thereof as may be necessary for the period beginning April 1st, 1913, and ending August 31st, 1914. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4879. Insurance commission to fix rates, etc.—The state fire insurance commission shall have the sole and exclusive power and authority, and it shall be its duty to prescribe, fix, determine and promulgate the rates of premiums to be charged and collected by fire insurance companies transacting business in this state. As soon as practicable after this Act shall take effect, the state fire insurance commission shall begin the work of fixing and determining and promulgating the rates of premiums to be charged and collected by fire insurance companies throughout the state, and the making and adoption of its schedules of such rates, and then until such time as this work shall have been completed, said commission shall have full power and authority to adopt and continue in force the rates of premiums which may be lawfully charged and collected when this Act shall take effect, or any portion thereof, for such time as it may prescribe or until the work of making such schedules for the entire state shall be completed. Said commission shall also have authority to alter and amend any and all such rates of premiums so fixed and determined and adopted by it, and to raise or lower the same, or any part thereof, as herein provided. Said commission shall also have authority to employ clerical help, inspectors, expert and other assistants, and to incur such other expenses as may be necessary in carrying out the provisions of this Act; provided that such expenses, including the salaries of the members of the commission shall not exceed in the aggregate the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) per annum.

It shall be the duty of said commission to ascertain as soon as practicable, the annual fire loss in this state; to obtain, to make and maintain a record thereof and collect such data and information with respect thereto as will enable said commission to classify the fire losses of this state, the causes thereof, and the amount of premiums collected therefor for each class of risks and the amount paid thereon, in such manner as will be of assistance in determining equitable insurance rates, methods of reducing such fire losses, and reducing the insurance rates of the state, or subdivisions of the state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4880. Secretary and fire marshal.—For the purpose of facilitating the work of said commission, one of the appointed members thereof shall be selected by the commission as its secretary, who shall perform the duties which shall appertain to that position, and whose official title shall be "Secretary of the State Insurance Commission"; the other of said appointed members thereof shall be selected by said commission as fire marshal of the state insurance commission, and his official title shall be "Fire Marshal of the State Insurance Commission;" but the said members so selected as secretary and fire marshal as aforesaid, shall receive no compensation for filling their respective positions, other than their salaries as members of the state insurance commission, and shall perform the duties of those respective positions at the will of the commission, but their expenses incurred in performing the duties of these positions shall be paid as provided in this Act. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4881. Duties of fire marshal.—It shall be the duty of the fire marshal of the state insurance commission, who, for the purpose of this Act, may be referred to as the state fire marshal, at the discretion of the board, and upon the request of the mayor of any city or village, or the chief of a fire department of any city or village or any fire marshal where a fire occurs within such city or village, or of a county or district judge, or of the sheriff or county attorney of any county, where a fire occurs within the district or county of the officer making such request, or of any fire insurance company, or its general, state or special agent, interested in a loss, or of a policyholder sustaining a loss, or upon the direction of the state insurance commission to forthwith investigate at the place of such fire before loss can be paid, the origin, cause and circumstances of any fire occurring within this state, whereby property has been destroyed or damaged, and shall ascertain if possible whether the same was the result of any accident, carelessness or design, and shall make a written report thereof to the state insurance commission, and shall also furnish in writing, to the county or district attorney of the county in which such fire occurred, all the information and evidence obtained by him including a copy of all the pertinent testimony taken in the case. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4882. Powers of fire marshal.—The state fire marshal shall have the power to administer oaths, take testimony, compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents and to enter at any reasonable time, any buildings or premises where a fire has occurred or is in progress, or any place contiguous thereto for the purpose of investigating the cause, origin and circumstances of such fire. And he may enter and examine at any reasonable time any building, structure or place for the purpose of ascertaining the fire hazard and may remove or require the owner or occupant to remove or safely store combustible material, dangerously exposed or improperly placed therein, and to remove any unnecessary exposure to fire hazard found therein; the said state fire marshal is hereby authorized when necessary to apply to a court of competent jurisdiction for the necessary writs or orders to enforce the provisions of this section, and in such case he shall not be required to give bond. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4883. When state fire marshal is unable to act.—If for any reason the state fire marshal is unable to make any required investigation in person, he may designate the fire marshal of such city or town or some other suitable person to act for him; and such person so designated shall have the same authority as is herein given the state fire marshal with reference to the particular matter to be investigated by him, and shall receive such compensation for his services as may be allowed by the state insurance commission. If the investigation of a fire is made at the request of an insurance company, or at the request of a policyholder sustaining loss, or at the request of the mayor, town clerk or chief of the fire department of any city, village or town in which the fire occurred, then the expenses of the fire marshal, clerical expenses, witnesses and officers fees incident and necessary to such investigation shall be paid by such insurance company, or such policyholder of such city or town as the case may be, otherwise the expenses of such investigation are to be paid as part of the expenses of the state insurance commission. Provided, the party or parties, company or companies, requesting such investigation, shall before such investigation is commenced deposit with the state insurance commission, an amount of money in the judgment of said commission sufficient to defray the expenses of said fire marshal in conducting such investigation. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4884. Action of fire marshal not to affect policies, etc.—No action taken by the state fire marshal shall effect the rights of any policyholder or any company in respect to a loss by reason of any fire so investigated; nor shall the result of any such investigation be given in evidence upon the trial of any civil action upon such policy, nor shall any statement made by any insurance company, its officers, agents or adjusters, nor by any policyholder, or any one representing him, made with reference to the origin, cause or supposed origin or cause of a fire to the fire marshal or to any one acting for him, or under his direction, be admitted in evidence or made the basis for any civil action for damages. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4885. Statements to be made to insurance commission; powers of commission.—That said commission is authorized and empowered to require sworn statements from any insurance company affected by this Act, and from any of its directors, officers, representatives, general agents, state agents, special agents and local agents of the rates and premiums collected for fire insurance on each class of risks, on all property in this state during any or all years for the five years next preceding the first day of January, 1913, and of the causes of fire, if such be known, if they are in possession of such data, and information, or can obtain it at a reasonable expense; and said commission is empowered to require such statements for any period of time after the first day of January, 1913, and said commission is empowered to require such statements showing all necessary facts and information to enable said commission to make, amend and maintain the general basis schedules provided for in this Act, and the rules and regulations for applying same and to determine reasonable and proper maximum specific rates and to determine and assist in the enforcement of the provisions of this Act. The said commission shall also have the right, at its discretion, either personally, or by some one duly authorized by it to visit the office whether general, local or otherwise, of any insurance company doing business in this state, and the home office of said company outside of this state, if there be such, and the office of any officers, directors, general agents, state agents, local agents or representatives of such company, and there require such company, its officers, agents or representatives to produce for inspection by said commission or any of its duly authorized representatives all books, records and papers of such company or such agents and representatives; and the said commission or its duly authorized agents or representatives shall have the right to examine such books and papers and make or cause to be made copies thereof; and shall have the right to take testimony under oath with reference thereto, and to compel the attendance of witnesses for such purpose; and any company, its officers, agents or representatives failing to make such statements and reports herein referred to and failing or refusing to permit the examination of books, papers and records as herein required, when so called upon or declining or failing to comply with any provisions of this section shall be subject to the penalties provided for in section 26 [Art. 4900] of this Act. Said commission shall be further authorized and empowered to require the fire insurance companies transacting business in this state or any of them, to furnish said commission with any and all data which may be in their possession, either jointly or severally, including maps, tariffs, inspection reports and any and all data affecting fire insurance risks in this state, or in any portion thereof and said commission shall be authorized and empowered to require any two or more of said companies, or any joint agent or representative of them, to turn over any and all such data in their possession, or any part thereof, to said commission for its use in carrying out the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4886. Rates to be reasonable; schedules of rates; powers and duties of commission; when rates take effect, etc.—The rates of premium fixed by said commission under and in pursuance of the provision of this Act shall be at all times reasonable and the schedules thereof made and promulgated by said commission as herein provided, shall be in such form as will in the judgment of the commission, most clearly and definitely and in detail disclose the rate so fixed and determined by said commission to be charged and collected for policies of fire insurance. Said commission may employ and use any facts and information now in the possession of the present state insurance board, as well as all facts obtainable from and concerning fire insurance companies transacting business in this state, showing their expense and charges for fire insurance premiums, for any period or periods, said commission may deem advisable, which in their opinion will enable them to devise and fix and determine reasonable rates of premium for fire insurance. The said commission in making and publishing schedules of the rates fixed and determined by it shall show all charges, credits, terms privileges and conditions which in any wise affect such rates, and copies of all such schedules shall be furnished by said commission to any and all companies affected by this Act applying therefor, and the same shall be furnished to any citizens of this state applying therefor, upon the payment of the actual cost thereof. No rate or rates fixed or determined by the commission shall take effect until it shall have entered an order or orders fixing and determining same, and shall give notice thereof to all fire insurance companies affected by this Act, authorized to transact business in the state. It shall be the duty of the state fire insurance commission, and of any inspector or other agent or employé thereof, who shall inspect any risk for the purpose of enabling the commission to fix and determine the reasonable rate to be charged thereon, to furnish to the owner of such risk at the date of such inspection, a copy of the inspection report, showing all defects that may operate as charges to increase the insurance rate.

Said commission shall have full power and authority to alter, amend, modify or change any rate fixed and determined by it on thirty days' notice, or to prescribe that any such rate or rates shall be in effect for a limited time, and said commission shall also have full power and authority to prescribe reasonable rules whereby in cases where no rate of premium shall have been fixed and determined by the commission, for certain risks or classes of risks, policies may be written thereon at rates to be determined by the company, provided, however, that such company or companies shall immediately report to said commission such risk so written, and the rates collected therefor, and such rates shall always be subject to review by the commission. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4887. Companies may petition for change of rates, etc.; credits for reduced hazards, etc.—Any fire insurance company or companies affected by this Act shall have the right at any time to petition the commission for an order changing or modifying any rate or rates fixed and determined by the commission, and the commission shall consider such petition in the manner provided in this Act and enter such order thereon as it may deem just and equitable. The commission shall have full authority and power to give each city, town, village or locality credit for each and every hazard they may reduce or entirely remove, and also for all added fire fighting equipment, increased police protection, or any other equipment or improvement that has a tendency to reduce the fire hazard of any such city, town, village or locality, and also to give credit for a good fire record made by any city, town, village or locality. Said commission shall also have the power and authority to compel any company to give any or all policyholders credit for any and all hazards that said policyholder or holders may reduce or remove. Said credit shall be in proportion to such reduction or removal of such hazard and said company or companies shall return to such policy holder or holders such proportional part of the unearned premium charged for such hazard that may be reduced or removed. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4888. Company to furnish policy holder with analysis of rate; schedules open to public.—When a policy of fire insurance shall be issued by any company transacting the business of fire insurance in this state, such company shall furnish the policyholder with a written or printed analysis of the rate or premium charged for such policy, showing the items of charge and credit which determine the rate, unless such policyholder has theretofore been furnished with such analysis of such rate. All schedules of rates promulgated by said commission shall be open to the public at all times, and every local agent of a fire insurance company transacting business in this state shall have and exhibit to the public copies of such schedules covering all risks upon which he is authorized to write insurance. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4889. Repealed. See note under Art. 4876.

Art. 4890. Authority to revise schedules of rates.—The commission shall have full power and authority after having given reasonable notice, not exceeding thirty days, of its intention to do so, to alter, amend or revise any rates of premium fixed and determined by it in any schedules of such rates promulgated by it as herein provided, and to give reasonable notice of such alteration, amendment or revision to the public, or to any company or companies affected thereby. Such altered, amended or revised rates shall be the rates thereafter to be charged and collected by all fire insurance companies affected by this Act; provided, that no policy in force prior to the taking effect of such changes or amendments shall be affected thereby, unless there shall be a change in the hazard of the risk, necessitating a change in the rate applicable to such risk, in which event such policy shall be subject to the new rates. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4891. Commission to establish uniform policies, etc.—It shall be the duty of the state insurance commission to make, promulgate and establish uniform policies of insurance applicable to the various risks of this state, copies of which uniform policies shall be furnished each company doing business in this state, or which may hereafter do business in this state. That after such uniform policies shall have been established and promulgated and furnished the respective compies [companies] doing business in this state, such companies shall, within sixty days after the receipt of such forms of policies, adopt and use said form or forms and no other; also all companies which may commence business in this state after the adoption and promulgation of such forms of policies, shall adopt and use the same and no other forms of policies.

The said state fire insurance commission shall also prescribe all standard forms, clauses and endorsements used on or in connection with insurance policies. All other forms, clauses and endorsements placed upon insurance policies shall be placed thereon subject to the approval of the commission. The commission shall also have authority in its discretion to change, alter or amend such form or forms of policy or policies, and such clauses and endorsements used in connection therewith, upon giving notice and proceedings in accordance with section 21 [Art. 4895] of this Act. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4892. Certain provisions in policies void.—Any provision in any policy of insurance issued by any company subject to the provisions of this Act to the effect that if said property is encumbered by a lien of any character or shall after the issuance of such policy become encumbered by a lien of any character, that such encumbrance shall render such policy void, shall be of no force and effect, and any such provision within or placed upon any such policy shall be absolutely null and void. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 4893. Co-insurance clauses.—No company subject to the provisions of this Act may issue any policy or contract of insurance covering property in this state, which shall contain any clause or provision requiring the assured to take out or maintain a larger amount of insurance than that expressed in such policy, nor in any way providing that the assured shall be liable as co-insurer with the company issuing the policy for any part of the loss or damage which may be caused by fire to the property described in such policy, and any such clause or provision shall be null and void, and of no effect; provided that the co-insurance clauses and provisions may be inserted in policies written upon cotton, grain or other products in process of marketing, shipping, storing or manufacture. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4894. Right of persons to petition insurance commission.—Any citizen or number of citizens of this state or any policyholder or policyholders, or any insurance company affected by this Act, or any board of trade, chamber of commerce, or other civic organization, or the civil authorities of any town, city, or village, shall have the right to file a petition with the state fire insurance commission, setting forth any cause of complaint that they may have as to any order made by this commission, or any rate fixed and determined by the commission, and they shall have the right to offer evidence in support of the allegations of such petition by witnesses, or by depositions, or by affidavits; upon the filing of such petition, the party complained of, if other than the commission shall be notified by the commission of the filing of such petition and a copy thereof furnished the party or parties, company or companies, of whom complaint is made, and the said petition shall be set down for a hearing at a time not exceeding thirty days after the filing of such petition and the commission shall hear and determine said petition; but it shall not be necessary for the petitioners or any one of them to be present to present the cause to the commission, but they shall consider the testimony of all witnesses, whether such witnesses testify in person or by depositions, or by affidavits, and if it be found that the complaint made in such petition is a just one, then the matter complained of shall be corrected or required to be corrected by said commission. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4895. Regulations for hearings by insurance commission; actions to vacate or modify; injunctions or restraining orders; appeals, etc.—The state fire insurance commission shall give the public and all insurance companies to be affected by its orders or decisions, reasonable notice thereof, not exceeding thirty days, and an opportunity to appear and be heard with respect to the same; which notice to the public shall be published in one or more daily papers of the state, and such notice to the insurance company or companies to be affected thereby shall be by letter deposited in the postoffice, addressed to the state or general agent of such company or companies if the address of such state or general agent be known to the commission, or if not known, then such letter shall be addressed to some local agent of such company or companies, or if the address of a local agent be unknown to the commission, then by publication in one or more of the daily papers of the state, and the commission shall hear all protests or complaints from any insurance company or any citizen or any city, or town, or village or any commercial or civic organization as to the inadequacy or unreasonableness of any rates fixed by it or approved by it, or as to the inadequacy or unreasonableness of any general basis schedules promulgated by it or the injustice of any order or decision by it, and if any insurance company, or other person, or commercial or civic organization, or any city, town or village, which shall be interested in any such order or decision, shall be dissatisfied with any regulation, schedule or rate adopted by such commission, such company or person, commercial or civic organization, city, town or village shall have the right, within thirty days after the making of such regulation or order, or rate, or schedule or within thirty days after the hearing above provided for, to bring an action against said commission in the district court of Travis county to have such regulation or order or schedule or rate vacated or modified; and shall set forth in a petition therefor the principal ground or grounds of objection to any or all of such regulations, schedules, rates or orders; in any such suit, the issue shall be formed and the controversy tried and determined as in other civil cases, and the court may set aside and vacate or annul any one or more or any part of any of the regulations, schedules, orders or rates promulgated or adopted by said commission, which shall be found by the court to be unreasonable, unjust, excessive or inadequate, without disturbing others. No injunction, interlocutory order or decree suspending or restraining [restraining] directly or indirectly the enforcement of any schedule, rate, order or regulation of said commission shall be granted; provided, that in such suit, the court, by interlocutory order, may authorize the writing and acceptance of fire insurance policies at any rate which in the judgment of the court is fair and reasonable, during the pending of such suit, upon condition that the party to such suit in whose favor the said interlocutory order of said court may be, shall execute and file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a good and sufficient bond to be first approved by said court, conditioned that the party giving said bond will abide the final judgment of said court and will pay to the commissioner of insurance and banking whatever difference in the rate of insurance, it may be finally determined to exist between the rates as fixed by said state fire insurance commission complained of in such suit, and the rate finally determined to be fair and reasonable by the court in said suit, and the said commissioner of insurance and banking, when he receives such difference in money, shall transmit the same to the parties entitled thereto.

Whenever any action shall be brought by any company under the provisions of this section within said period of thirty days, no penalties nor forfeitures shall attach or accrue on account of the failure of the plaintiff to comply with the orders, schedules, rates or regulations sought to be vacated in such action until the final determination of the same.

Either party to any such action, if dissatisfied with the judgment or decree of said court, may appeal therefrom as in other civil cases. No action shall be brought in any court of the United States to set aside any orders, rates, schedules or regulations made by said commission under the provisions of this Act until all of the remedies provided herein, shall have been exhausted by the party complaining.

If any insurance company affected by the provisions of this Act shall violate any of the provisions of this Act, the commissioner of insurance shall, by and with the consent of the attorney general, cancel its certificate of authority to transact business in this state. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4896. Insurance companies not to do certain things.—No company shall engage or participate in the insuring or re-insuring of any property in this state against loss or damage by fire except in compliance with the terms and provisions of this Act; nor shall any such company knowingly write insurance at any lesser rate than the rates herein provided for, and it shall be unlawful for any company so to do, unless it shall thereafter file an analysis of same with the commission, and it shall be unlawful for any company, or its officers, directors, general agents, state agents, special agents, local agents, or its representatives, to grant or contract for any special favor or advantages in the dividends or other profits to come thereon, or in commissions in the dividends or other profits to accrue thereon, or in commissions or division of commission, or any position or any valuable consideration or any inducement not specified in the policy contract of insurance; nor shall such company give, sell or purchase, offer to give, sell or purchase, directly or indirectly as an inducement to insure or in connection therewith, any stocks, bonds or other securities of any insurance company or other corporation, partnership or individual, or any dividends or profits accrued or to accrue thereon, or anything of value whatsoever, not specified in the policy; but nothing in this section or in this Act shall be construed to prohibit a company from sharing its profits with its policyholders, provided that such agreement as to profit-sharing shall be placed on or in the face of the policy, and such profit-sharing shall be uniform and shall not discriminate between individuals or between classes; provided, however, that no part of the profit shall be paid until the expiration of the policy. Any company, or any of its officers, directors, general agents, state agents, special agents, local agents or its representatives, doing any of the acts in this section prohibited, shall be deemed guilty of unjust discrimination; provided, however, that if any agent of [or] company shall issue a policy without authority, and any policyholder holding such policy shall sustain a loss or damage thereunder, said company or companies shall be liable to the policyholder thereunder, in the same manner and to the same extent as if said company had been authorized to issue said policies, although the company issued said policy in violation of the provisions of this Act. But this shall not be construed to give any company the right to issue any contract or policy of insurance other than as provided in this Act. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4897. Unlawful to accept rebate.—No person shall knowingly receive or accept from any insurance company or from any of its agents, sub-agents, brokers, solicitors, employés, intermediaries or representatives, or any other person, any rebate of premium payable on the policy, or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other financial profits accrued or to accrue thereon, or any valuable consideration, position or inducement not specified in the policy of insurance, and any person so doing shall be guilty of a violation of the provisions of this section, and shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100.00) or by imprisonment in the county jail for not exceeding ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4898. Law not applicable to collection of premiums; certain policies to be in force.—The provisions of this law shall not deal with the collection of premiums, but each company shall be permitted to make such rules and regulations as it may deem just between the company, its agents, and its policyholders; and no bona fide extension of credit shall be construed as a discrimination, or in violation of the provisions of this Act.

All policies heretofore issued or which shall hereafter be issued by any insurance company prior to the taking effect of this Act which provide that said policies shall be void for non-payment of premiums at a certain specified time, shall be and the same are in full force and effect, provided, that the company or any of its agents have accepted the premium on said policies after the expiration of the dates named in said provisions fixing the date of payment. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4899. Commissioner of insurance may revoke authority of company, when.—The commissioner of insurance, upon ascertaining that any insurance company or officer, agent or representative thereof, has violated any of the provisions of this Act, may, at his discretion, and with the consent and approval of the attorney general, revoke the certificate of authority of such company, officer, agent or representative; but such revocation of any certificate shall in no manner affect the liability of such company, officer, agent or representative to the infliction of any other penalty provided by this Act, and provided, that any action, decision or determination of the commissioner of insurance and banking and the attorney general in such cases shall be subject to the review of the courts of this state as herein provided. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4900. Unlawful for company or agents to evade law.—Any insurance company affected by this Act, or any officer or director thereof, or any agent or person acting for or employed by any insurance company, who, alone, or in conjunction with any corporation, company or person, who shall wilfully do or cause to be done, or shall wilfully suffer or permit to be done any act, matter or thing prohibited or declared to be unlawful by this Act, or who shall wilfully omit or fail to do any act, matter or thing required to be done by this Act or shall cause or wilfully suffer or permit any act, matter or thing directed not to be done, or who shall be guilty of any wilful infraction of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than three hundred dollars ($300.00), nor more than one thousand dollars ($1000) for each offense. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4901. Persons testifying in trials for violation of law not to be prosecuted.—No person shall be excused from giving testimony or producing evidence when legally called upon to do so at the trial of any other person or company charged with violating any of the provisions of this Act on the ground that it may incriminate him under the laws of this state; but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he may testify or produce evidence under this Act, except for perjury in so testifying. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4902. Law not to apply to certain companies.—This Act shall not apply to purely mutual or to purely profit-sharing fire insurance companies incorporated or unincorporated under the laws of this state, and carried on by the members thereof solely for the protection of their property and not for profit; nor to purely co-operative inter-insurance and reciprocal exchange carried on by the members thereof solely for the protection of their property and not for profit. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4903. Gross premiums tax.—There shall be assessed and collected by the state of Texas, an additional one and one-quarter (1¼) per cent. of the gross premiums on all fire insurance companies doing business in this state, according to the reports made to the commissioner of insurance and banking as required by law; and said taxes when collected shall be placed in a separate fund with the state treasurer to be expended during the current year, in carrying out the provisions of this Act; and should said amount collected be more than necessary to pay all expenses, the state fire insurance commission may reduce the rate for the next succeeding year, so that no more money will be collected than is necessary to pay all necessary expenses of maintaining the commission, which funds shall be paid out on requisitions made out and filed by the commissioner when the comptroller shall issue warrants therefor. [Id. sec. 29.]

See Art. 7376 for provision as to gross premium taxes.

Exemption.—Under this article, an insurance company which had paid such an occupation tax in 1909 at the rate of 2 per cent. under an existing law is not exempted; the provisions for such exemption referring to future legislation, and not to existing statutes. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Von Rosenberg, 103 T. 571, 132 S. W. 467.

Mandamus.—Mandamus to require commissioner to impose tax assessments, see notes under Title 89.

Art. 4904. Unconstitutionality of part not to affect whole law.—If any part of this Act be for any reason held unconstitutional, it shall not affect any other portion or part of this Act. [Id. sec. 30.]

Article 4905. Incorporation; for what purposes.—Any number of persons, not less than seven, who shall be resident citizens of the state of Texas, may form and incorporate a company for the purpose of mutual insurance against loss or damage by fire, lightning, hail and storms, and for all or either of such purposes; provided, that every company incorporated, under the provisions of this Act shall embody the word “mutual” in its title, which shall appear upon the first page of every policy, and renewal receipt. [Acts 1913, p. 54, sec. 1.]

See Art. 4907p.

Art. 4906. Application for permit; contents of application; fee; duty of commissioner of insurance and banking.—When any number of persons, not less than seven, desire to organize a mutual insurance company, as herein provided, they shall make application to the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas for permission to solicit insurance on the mutual plan.

Such application shall contain:

- (1) The name of the company, and the name selected shall not be so similar to that of any other insurance company as to be likely to mislead the public.
- (2) The locality of the principal business office of such company.
- (3) The kind of insurance business the company proposes to engage in.
- (4) The names and places of residence of not less than seven persons making such application for such permit.
- (5) An affidavit of at least one of said applicants, stating the places of residence and names of such applicants correctly.

Upon receipt of such application, together with a fee of one dollar, in payment for filing such application, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall at once file said application, and issue to said applicant a permit authorizing said applicant to solicit insurance on the mutual plan, in accordance with the terms of the application, but not to issue policies of insurance. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4907. Conditions, etc., for obtaining charter; charter or articles of association, how executed; shall contain what; duty of commissioner.—No such company shall be granted a charter, or be authorized to issue policies of insurance, until insurance, upon not less than one hundred separate risks, the total amount of which insurance shall not be less than one hundred thousand dollars has been applied for and entered on the books of said company, and until an amount equal to not less than fifty per cent of the first premiums for such insurance has been paid in cash to such company, a premium note being taken for the balance, if any, and such mutual [annual] premiums must aggregate not less than twice the maximum liability to be incurred on any one risk, and no policy of insurance shall be written, or liability, as an insurer, be incurred by said company, until a statement subscribed and sworn to by the president and secretary of said company, stating that the above provisions have been complied with, has been filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, together with certified copies of the company's proposed charter, and by-laws.

The charter or articles of association of said company shall be signed and acknowledged by at least four of the original applicants for said permit, and shall contain:

- (1) The name of the company.
- (2) The purpose for which it is formed.
- (3) The place or places where its business is to be transacted, and the location of its principal business office.
- (4) The term for which it is to exist.
- (5) The number of its directors, or trustees, and the names and residences of those who are elected for the first year.

When said applicants have complied with all of the above requirements, and have filed the necessary copies of their charter and by-laws with the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, and have paid the fees and taxes required by the laws of the state of Texas to be paid, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall record said charter, and furnish said company with a certified copy thereof, and shall issue to said company a certificate of authority showing it has complied with the laws of the state of Texas, and authorizing it to do business until the last day of the following February. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4907a. Supervision of commissioner of insurance and banking; duties of commissioner, examination and certificate; suspension of permit; forfeiture.—Every mutual fire, lightning, and storm insurance company incorporated in this state shall be under the supervision of the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall make or cause to be made, an examination of the affairs of each mutual insurance company, at the company's expense, at least once in every two years and at such other times as he deems proper, and he shall thoroughly and carefully inspect books, accounts and records of the company, and if upon such inspection the affairs of such company are found to be in a sound condition and the company thus solvent and able to fulfill its obligations, he shall issue to the company a certificate showing the result of such examination. If upon examination he is of opinion that the mutual insurance company is insolvent or has exceeded its powers, or has failed to comply with any provisions of law governing it, he may suspend the company's permit and shall give such company written notice of that objected to, and failing such being remedied [remedied] within thirty days, he shall report the same to the attorney general, who shall at once bring suit to forfeit the charter of such company. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4907b. Annual statement of company.—Every mutual insurance company transacting business in the state shall, before the month of March in each year, file in the office of the commissioner of insurance a statement showing the exact condition of affairs of the company upon the 31st day of December preceding, such statement being in conformity with such forms as the insurance commissioner may furnish. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4907c. Who are members; right to vote and share in benefits.—Every person to whom a policy of insurance has been issued by a mutual company incorporated in this state shall be a member of such company so long as his policy remains in force and shall be entitled to one vote at the meetings of the members of such companies, and shall further be entitled to his equitable share of all benefits derived from being a member of such company. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4907d. Liability of members.—The by-laws of every company organized under this Act shall provide that every member, in addition to his annual premium paid in cash, or in cash and premium notes, shall be liable for a sum equal to another annual premium, or it may provide, a sum equal to three or five annual premiums, such additional liability being assessable at the discretion of the insurance commissioner or the company's board of directors, for the members proportionate share of losses and expenses should the company's funds become impaired. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4907e. By-laws; premiums or assessments; surplus fund, etc.—The by-laws of such companies shall specifically provide for the rules and regulations of the government, providing for the collection of adequate premiums or assessments, either all in cash or part cash and part by note, such premiums being based upon the greater or less risk attached to the property insured, and they shall state clearly and plainly the extent of each member's liability to other members, shall provide for the accumulation of a surplus fund to which shall be added not less than 10 per cent of the annual saving, being made by the company, shall require [provide] for the bonding of the company's officers and shall name such other provisions and safeguards as may be deemed proper and not contrary to the laws of the state, and a notice in heavy type shall be printed on all policies calling to the attention of the insured that the by-laws are a part of his contract with the company. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4907f. Funds, how invested.—Funds of mutual companies may be invested in United States bonds, Texas state bonds, county or city bonds of the state of Texas, provided that such bonds are issued by authority of law and that interest upon them has never been defaulted, or in first mortgages on improved real estate within the state where the first mortgage does not exceed 50 per cent of the value of the land and improvements thereon. [Id. sec. 9.]

Garnishment of funds.—See notes under Art. 271.

Art. 4907g. Limitation of expenses.—The expenses of all companies incorporated under this Act must not exceed an amount equal to 35 per cent of the annual premiums, and a statement must be made annually to the commissioner of insurance and banking by the president or secretary of the company that they are being so limited. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4907h. Solvency and profit, how determined; reserve.—In determining the solvency of any mutual company organized for any purpose mentioned in this Act, and in determining the profit or saving to be distributed among members, 40 per cent of the actual cash premiums paid on policies in force for one year and a pro rata of all premiums received on risks that have more than one year to run shall be deemed to be a sufficient reserve under the said policies and no dividends to members shall be paid out of this reserve. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4907i. When assets insufficient; notice to commissioner and examination.—If any time the admitted assets of any mutual company, operating under this Act shall come to be less than the largest single risk for which the company is liable, then the president and the secretary of the company shall at once notify the commissioner of insurance and banking, and he may make an examination into the company's affairs if he deems it best. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4907j. Suspension or revocation of license for insufficient assets; forfeiture.—If, upon the examination of the company's affairs, as required in section 12 [Art. 4907i], it appear that the largest single risk for which the company is liable exceeds the admitted assets of the company, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall immediately suspend or revoke the license of the company until the assets of the company are increased by assessment or otherwise, sufficiently to meet the requirement.

The company shall have thirty days within which to meet this requirement, and if within that time it fails to do so the commissioner of insurance and banking shall refer the matter to the attorney general of the state of Texas, with instructions to institute proper legal proceeding to forfeit the charter of said company. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4907k. Laws applicable.—Every mutual company organized for any purpose mentioned in this Act, shall be amenable to, and subject to, the provisions of all laws of this state governing stock fire insurance companies, in so far as they are applicable to mutual companies, and not in conflict with the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4907l. Penalties, etc.—Any mutual company that shall wilfully violate, or fail to comply with the provisions of this Act shall be subject to, and liable to pay, a penalty of not less than five dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars for each violation thereof, and such penalty may be collected and recovered in an action brought in the name of the state of Texas, in any court having jurisdiction thereof; and for any violation or failure to comply with any of the provisions of this Act, the commissioner of insurance and banking may suspend a company's permit, or license, and while suspended, such company shall be prohibited from writing or renewing any insurance policies. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4907m. Foreign companies may be admitted, when.—Mutual companies incorporated under the laws of any other state, or foreign government, for any, or all of the purposes, specified in the first section [Art. 4905] of this Act, and duly licensed to transact business in such other states or government, and that have not less than one hundred thousand dollars assets in excess of liabilities, shall, when they have complied with the requirements and restrictions of this Act, as far as applicable to them, be admitted to do business in this state, and the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue to any such company, so complying, a permit authorizing such company to do business in this state until the last day of the following February. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4907n. Fees; taxes.—Every mutual company operating under this Act shall pay to the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, for obtaining a charter, a fee of twenty dollars, and for each license granted, or renewal thereof, a fee of one dollar, and for filing each annual statement a fee of ten dollars annually on the 31st day of each December, and when the insurance commissioner has certified to the treasurer of the state of Texas, the correct amount to be paid, every mutual company operating under this Act shall pay to the treasurer of the state of Texas one-half of one per cent of all of the net premiums, or assessments, received by it during the year, and no other tax shall be required of such mutual company, or companies, their officers and agents, except such fees as shall be paid to the commissioner of insurance as required by law. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 4907o. Withdrawal of securities deposited under former law.—Any mutual fire, lightning and storm insurance company which has deposited securities with the state treasurer of the state of Texas, in accordance with chapter 10, title 71, of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, repealed in section 20 [Art. 4907p] of this Act, may withdraw from such depository any securities so deposited, upon filing with the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, a declaration of its intentions to comply with the provisions of this Act, and upon the execution and delivery to the state treasurer of the state of Texas of a proper receipt for such securities, which receipt shall release the state treasurer from all further liabilities on account of such deposit, or the withdrawal thereof. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4907p. Laws repealed.—Chapter 10, title 71, of the Revised Statutes of the state of Texas of 1911, and all other Acts, or laws, or parts of laws, in conflict with this Act, or in conflict with any portion of this Act are hereby repealed, but nothing in this Act shall be deemed to apply in any way to the present law governing county mutual insurance, or farmer's mutuals, now operating under lodge systems, or printers' mutuals and such companies and associations shall not be subject to the provisions of this Act, except that they will make annual reports to the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 20.]

Arts. 4908–4918.—Repealed. See Art. 4907p.

CONSTRUCTION OF PRIOR ACT

Application of old Art. 4910.—This act authorizes the garnishment of securities held in trust by the state treasurer, belonging not only to companies incorporated under the act, but those belonging to all other companies acting thereunder. Robbins v. Midkiff, 46 C. A. 272, 102 S. W. 431, 432.

Jurisdiction to forfeit charter.—The district court of Travis county had jurisdiction to forfeit for cause the charter of a mutual fire insurance company whose domicile was at Houston and appoint a receiver for the company. Graham v. Sparks, 56 C. A. 483, 121 S. W. 597.

Garnishment.—See notes under Art. 271.

CHAPTER TEN A

FARMERS' MUTUAL HAIL INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art.	Art.
4918a. Who may incorporate.	4918d. Application shall state what.
4918b. Application for permit; contents; duty of commissioner of insurance and banking; applicants to execute promissory notes, etc.	4918e. Board of directors; officers; bond of treasurer.
4918c. Commissioner of insurance and banking, on approval of applications and notes, etc., to certify to secretary of state; permit; charter; license and fees; notes of applicants.	4918f. Policies on growing crops; applications and contracts; insufficient premiums, etc.
	4918g. Premiums, how used; funds, how invested; reserve fund.
	4918h. Rates, how fixed.
	4918i. Annual report of corporation.
	4918j. Fees.

Article 4918a. Who may incorporate.—Private corporations may be created without a capital stock within this state by the voluntary association of seven or more persons, resident citizens of this state who collectively own not less than 1,000 acres of growing crops of all kinds for the purpose of mutual insurance against loss or damage by hail; provided, that every company incorporated under the provisions of this Act shall embody the word "mutual" in its title. [Acts 1913, p. 40, sec. 1.]

See Art. 4907p.

Art. 4918b. Application for permit; contents; duty of commissioner of insurance and banking; applicants to execute promissory notes, etc.—When any number of persons not less than seven desire to organize a mutual hail insurance company as herein provided, they shall make application to the commissioner of insurance and banking for permission to solicit business under the mutual plan, stating the principal place of business and name of the company; that said company is to be organized for the insurance of growing crops against loss or damage by hail. Upon receipt of said application the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue said applicants a permit to solicit insurance against loss or damage by hail on the mutual plan in accordance with the terms of the application, but not to issue policies of insurance. Said mutual company shall take from each applicant an obligation specifying the property to be insured and the amount to be paid as the first assessment evidenced by a promissory note for such sum and payable on or before the 31st day of the succeeding December, and upon the state of Texas granting to said mutual insurance company a charter authorizing it to do business in this state. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4918c. Commissioner of insurance and banking, on approval of applications and notes, etc., to certify to secretary of state; permit; charter; license and fees; notes of applicants.—When applications have been secured for insurance with such company from at least two hundred applicants residing in not less than twenty-five different counties of this state, the first assessment or premium on which applications shall amount to at least ten thousand dollars, for which notes of solvent parties founded on actual bona fide applications for insurance payable upon the granting the charter by the state to said mutual hail insurance company, which premium notes shall be a lien on the crop insured, or otherwise secured, and which notes and applications shall be submitted to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and when he finds the applications and notes to be genuine and secured by liens on growing crops or otherwise secured, he shall upon the payment of a fee of twenty-five dollars, certify the fact that he has examined and approved said applications and notes to the secretary of state, who shall upon an application of said persons to which application shall be attached the said certificate of the commissioner of insurance and banking, permit said company to incorporate and issue to it a charter. A certified copy of the charter shall thereupon be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, who, upon the payment of the fees required by law, shall issue to said mutual hail insurance company a license to solicit and transact business and issue policies against loss or damage by hail. Every person making application for insurance in such company prior to the granting of a charter to such company and signing a non-negotiable promissory note shall be liable upon the note upon the granting of a charter by the state, and if payment is refused, suit may be brought on same in any court in this state having jurisdiction of the amount at the principal office of said insurance company. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4918d. Application shall state what.—The application for charter shall state the name of the corporation, the purpose for which it is formed, the place of its principal office, the term for which it is to exist, the number, name, and residence of its directors for the first year and shall be subscribed and acknowledged by seven or more of the applicants. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4918e. Board of directors; officers; bond of treasurer.—Upon the issuance of a charter by the secretary of state to such mutual hail insurance company the persons making application for such charter shall constitute a board of directors for the first year, which board of directors shall, consist of not less than seven persons all of whom shall be residents of this state.

The officers of such company shall be such as may be provided by the by-laws, and the treasurer or the secretary and treasurer, if such offices should be combined in one, shall execute a bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars payable to the commissioner of insurance and banking and his successors in office conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties and that he will account for all moneys, notes or other assets that may come into his hands said bond shall be signed by two or more good and solvent sureties, or be executed by a guaranty company authorized to do business in this state, and shall be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4918f. Policies on growing crops; applications and contracts; insufficient premiums, etc.—Mutual hail insurance companies organized under the provisions of this Act may issue policies on growing crops of all kinds against loss or damage by hail only. Any person desiring insurance in such company shall make application on blanks furnished by the company and shall pay the full amount of the premium in cash or secured notes. Provided, that no contract shall be made providing for payment of any obligation by the insured or for suit on any such obligation of the insured, except those given by the charter members referred to in section 3 [Art. 4918c] of this Act, in any county other than the county in which the insured has his domicile. In case the whole amount of the premium collected by such company for any one year shall be insufficient to pay all losses occurring during said year, after paying the necessary expenses for said year, the persons insured by such company shall receive their proportionate share of the sums realized from said premiums after deducting the expenses therefrom in full satisfaction of their losses, and no member shall be liable to the company or to any other person for more than the premium, which shall be paid by him or secured to be paid by him in making his application for insurance. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4918g. Premiums, how used; funds, how invested; reserve fund.—All companies incorporated under this Act shall set aside 60 per cent of all premiums collected as a policy holder's fund for the payment of losses which fund shall be used for no other purpose, and the remainder of the gross premiums collected shall be used, if needed, for paying the expenses of said company, and if not needed for such purpose such remainder not so used shall be added to the policy holders' fund at the end of the current year, and if, at the end of such current year the total of said policy holders' fund has not been appropriated or necessary in the payment of losses to policy holders, then such amount of said fund so remaining may be invested in first mortgage notes on lands in this state, said investment not exceeding 50 per cent of the value of said lands, or in bonds of this state, or in county, city, town or school district bonds of this state, provided said bonds have been approved by the attorney general, which funds or securities shall be deposited in trust for said policy holders with any bank approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking as a reserve fund, which fund may be used for the payment of policy holders, if necessary, in case of excessive and unprecedented losses, and such company may collect and receive the interest and dividends thereon to be used in defraying the expenses and paying the losses of said company. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4918h. Rates, how fixed.—The board of directors of such company shall have the authority to fix the rates to be charged for such insurance, and may fix at their discretion different rates for different sections of the states based upon the frequency of hail storms in such sections. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4918i. Annual report of corporation.—Every such corporation shall on or before January 1st, or within thirty days thereafter, each year make and file with the commissioner of insurance and banking, a report upon blank forms to be furnished by such commissioner which report shall be verified by the oath of the secretary of such corporation and shall show the number of policies issued for the preceding year, the number and amount of losses paid, the gross amount received from premiums, the amount of expenses paid, and the amount set aside or invested during the year as a reserve fund, if any, and the books, records, and documents of such corporation shall be subject to the inspection and examination of the attorney general or the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4918j. Fees.—The following fees shall be paid by companies organized under this law:

In addition to the application fee, charter fee, to the secretary of state when charter is issued, $25.00 annual franchise tax of $50.00; and to the commissioner of insurance and banking for filing annual statement, $5.00, certificate of authority to corporation $1.00 and no other fees shall be paid by said companies. [Id. sec. 10.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

PRINTERS' MUTUAL FIRE AND STORM INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art.
4919. How incorporated.

4920. Certificate to do business, how obtained.

Art.

4921. Shall report annually and pay fee.

Article 4919. How incorporated.—Private corporations may be created within this state by the voluntary association of three or more persons for the organization of printers' mutual fire and storm insurance associations without an authorized or subscribed capital stock, and for the purpose of insuring against loss by fire or storm only such property as may be owned and operated for the purpose of publishing daily, weekly or other periodical newspapers, or such as may be incident thereto or conducting job printing offices. [Acts 1905, p. 225.]

Art. 4920. Certificate to do business, how obtained.—Before beginning operations, the company provided for in this chapter must obtain from the commissioner of insurance and banking a certificate of authority such as is issued to mutual fire and tornado insurance companies doing business in this state, first making a showing to said commissioner that the company has fully complied with all the requirements of law applicable to such mutual fire and tornado insurance companies; provided, that no officers of printers' mutual fire and storm insurance associations shall be required to give a bond, except the treasurers thereof, who shall annually file a bond with good securities and in amount to be approved by said commissioner. [Id. Amended Acts 1909, p. 219, sec. 2.]

Art. 4921. Shall report annually and pay fee.—All printers' mutual fire and storm insurance associations, which transact business in only one county, shall report annually, on or before the last day of February, to said commissioner on blanks prepared by him, and pay to said commissioner as a fee for filing the same the sum of five dollars; and such associations shall not be required to pay the annual franchise tax collected of other corporations under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 1a.]

CHAPTER TWELVE

MUTUAL COMPANIES INSURING AGAINST LOSS BY BURGLARY, ETC.

Art.

4922. What companies entitled to license.

4923. Certain conditions; premium contracts to constitute part of assets.

4924. Must file copy of charter and statement; impaired reserve, etc.; line of business; must set aside reserve.

Art.

4925. Policy holders.

4926. Commissioner agent for service of process.

4927. Statement submitted and license issued annually.

Article 4922. What companies entitled to license.—Any insurance company organized and incorporated on the mutual plan, under the laws of this state or any other state, for the purpose of insuring against loss or damage resulting from burglary and robbery, or any attempt thereat, and securing against the loss of money and securities in course of transportation, when shipped by registered mail, shall be authorized, admitted and licensed to do business in this state, as provided in this chapter. [Acts 1899, p. 107, sec. 1.]

Art. 4923. Certain conditions; premium contracts to constitute part of assets.—Before any such company shall be authorized to transact business in this state, except to solicit and receive applications for insurance and portions of premiums thereon, as provided in this chapter, it shall have in force five hundred or more policies on which the premiums shall have been paid in cash, or shall be evidenced by the written contracts of the policy holders, on which not less than one-fifth of the amount shall have been paid in cash, and the cash and contracts for premiums shall amount in the aggregate to a sum of not less than one hundred thousand dollars. The premium contracts so held shall constitute a part of the assets of the company. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4924. Must file copy of charter and statement; impaired reserve, etc.; line of business; must set aside reserve.—And every such company, association or partnership shall also file a certified copy of its charter, articles of incorporation or deed of settlement, together with a statement under the oath of the president or vice-president and secretary of the company, for which he or they may act, stating the name of the company and place where located, a detailed statement of its assets, showing the number of policy holders, aggregate amount of premium contracts, the amount of cash on hand, in bank or in the hands of agents, the amount of real estate and how the same is encumbered by mortgage, the number of shares of stock of every kind owned by the company, the par and market value of the same, amount loaned on bond and mortgage, the amount loaned on other securities, stating the kind and amount loaned on each, and the estimated value of the whole amount of such securities, and other assets or property of the company, also stating the indebtedness of the company, the amount of losses adjusted and unpaid, the amount incurred and in process of adjustment, the amount resisted by the company as illegal and fraudulent, and all other claims existing against the company; and for a company organized under the laws of any other state, a copy of the last annual report, if any, made under any law of the state by which such company was incorporated; and no agent shall be allowed to transact business for any such company whose reinsurance reserve, as required in this chapter is impaired to the extent of twenty per cent thereof, while such deficiency shall continue. Nor shall it be lawful for any agent or agents to act for any company or companies referred to in this chapter directly or indirectly, in taking risks or transacting the business of burglary and robbery insurance, or the insuring of the safe shipping of money and securities by registered mail in this state, without procuring from the insurance commissioner a certificate of authority stating that such company has complied with all the requirements of this chapter which apply to such companies, and as to companies organized under the laws of any other state, there shall be added the name of the attorney appointed to act for the company.

Any company organized, admitted and licensed to transact business in this state under this chapter shall confine its line of business to that stated in the first article of this chapter, and shall confine its business in this state to banks, bankers, loan companies and county treasurers, and shall not issue any policy or policies to any person, firm or corporation in this state other than banks, bankers, loan companies and county treasurers. Every such company shall set aside a reinsurance reserve of fifty per cent of its premiums, whether collected in cash or represented by the obligations of the policy holders, as written in its policies. [Id. secs. 3 and 4.]

Art. 4925. Policy holders.—Policy holders of any company organized and admitted to transact business in this state under this chapter shall be held liable to pay the membership fee and premium on their insurance as paid, or contracted to be paid, at the time the policy is taken out, and shall not be held liable for any further or other assessments or claims on the part of the company or its policy holders. The membership fees and premiums agreed upon may be collected in cash at the time the policy is issued or evidenced by a written obligation of the policy holder as may be agreed upon by the company and the policy holder. Such payment or obligation shall be the limit of the liability of the policy holder to the company for premium on their insurance. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4926. Commissioner agent for service of process.—It shall not be lawful for any insurance company, association or partnership incorporated by, or organized under, the laws of any other state of the United States for any of the purposes specified in this chapter, directly or indirectly, to take risks or transact any business of insurance in this state by any agent or agents in this state until it shall first appoint an attorney in this state, who shall be the commissioner of insurance and banking, on whom process of law can be served, and file in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking a written instrument duly signed and sealed, certifying such appointment; and any process issued by any court of record in this state, and served upon such attorney by the proper officer of the county in which such attorney may reside or be found, shall be deemed a sufficient service of the process upon said company; but service of process upon such company may also be made in any other manner provided by law. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4927. Statement submitted and license issued, annually.—The statement and evidences of new membership, assets, and investments required by article 4924 of this chapter shall be renewed from year to year in such manner and form as may be required by said insurance commissioner, with an additional statement of the amount of premiums received in this state during the preceding year, so long as such agency continues; and the said insurance commissioner, on being satisfied that the membership, assets, securities and investments remain secure, as hereinbefore mentioned, shall furnish a renewal of the certificate as aforesaid. [Id. sec. 7.]

Article 4928. To act as trustee, etc., and do general fiduciary and depository business; to act as surety, etc.—Private corporations may be created to act as trustee, assignee, executor, administrator, guardian, and receiver, when designated by any person, corporation or court to do so, and to do a general fiduciary and depository business; to act as surety and grantor of the fidelity of employees, trustees, executors, administrators, guardians or others appointed to, or assuming the performance of any trust, public or private, under appointment of any court or tribunal, or under contract between private individuals or corporations; also upon any bond or bonds that may be required to be filed in any judiciary proceedings; also to guarantee any contract or undertaking between individuals, or between private corporations, or between individuals or private corporations and the state and municipal corporations or counties, or between corporations and individuals; to act as executor and testamentary guardian when designated by such decedents; or to act as administrator or guardian when appointed by any court having jurisdiction; also, on any bond or bonds that may be required of any state official, district official, county official or official of any school district or of any municipality; provided that the commissioners courts of each county shall have the right to reject any or all official bonds made by surety companies and in their discretion may require any or all officials to make their official bonds by personal sureties; provided, also, that any such bond may be accepted and approved by the officer charged by law with the duty of accepting and approving the same without being signed by other securities than such corporation, and provided further, that when any such bond shall exceed fifty thousand dollars in penal sum, the officer or officers charged by law with the duty of approving and accepting such bond, may require that such bond be signed by two or more surety companies, or by one surety company and two or more good and sufficient personal sureties, in the discretion of the principal or official of whom the bond is required, and any statute or law to the contrary, or requiring any such bond to be signed by two or more good and sufficient sureties, shall be governed and controlled by the provisions of this article; provided also that each corporation, making or offering to make any bond under this article, shall publish in some newspaper of general circulation in the county where such company is organized or has its principal office on the first day of February of each year, a statement of its condition on the previous thirty-first day of December, showing under oath its assets and liabilities that a copy of said statement be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking before the 1st of March, of the year following, and a fee of $25.00 be paid to that officer for filing the same, and that an examination of its affairs may be made at any time by the commissioner of insurance and banking; such examination to be at the expense of the company; provided that said corporation organized under the provisions of this article shall have a paid up capital stock of not less than $100,000.00, and shall keep on deposit with the state treasurer money, bonds or other securities in an amount not less than $50,000.00; and said securities be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, and that this amount be kept intact at all times. And further providing that all foreign corporations transacting the business of a guaranty and fidelity company in this state file with the commissioner of insurance and banking an affidavit showing that such foreign company has on deposit with the state treasurer of its home state $100,000.00 or more, in money, bonds or other securities for the protection of its policyholders. [Acts 1897, p. 128, sec. 37. Amended Acts 1903, p. 197, sec. 1. Acts 1913, p. 123, sec. 1, amending Art. 4928, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4929. Surety company's bond is a legal bond, when.—Whenever any bond, undertaking, recognizance or other obligation, is by law or the charter, ordinances, rules and regulations of a municipality, board, body, organization, court, judge or public officer, required or permitted to be made, given, tendered or filed, and whenever the performance of any act, duty or obligation, or the refraining from any act, is required or permitted to be guaranteed, such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty may be executed by a surety company, qualified as hereinbefore provided; and such execution by such company of such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty shall be in all respects a full and complete compliance with every law, charter, rule or regulation that such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty shall be executed by one surety or by one or more sureties, or that such sureties shall be residents, or householders, or freeholders, or either, or both, or possess any other qualification and all courts, judges, heads of departments, boards, bodies, municipalities, and public officers or every character shall accept and treat such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty, when so executed by such company, as conforming to, and fully and completely complying with, every requirement of every such law, charter, ordinance, rule or regulation; and provided any suit on any bond issued under articles 4928 and 4929, shall be brought at the place provided by article 4934, Revised Statutes, 1911, and if the corporation issuing the bond sued on has no agent in the county where said bond was issued then the commissioner of banking and insurance of this state is made, by consent of the said company, its agent on whom service of process may be held. [Acts 1897, p. 244, sec. 1. Acts 1913, p. 123, sec. 1, amending Art. 4929, Rev. St. 1911.]

Requisites of bond.—It is not necessary to state in the bond that the company is authorized to do business in Texas. Such lack of authority may be proved. Clopton v. Goodbar (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 972.

Sequestration bond signed by a surety company as one surety is sufficient. Id.
Under this article a bail bond executed by a solvent bonding company should be accepted, either in the form of a bond approved by the sheriff, or in open court as a recognizance. Ex parte Cook, 61 Cr. R. 449, 136 S. W. 67.

Art. 4930. Requirements to be complied with.—Such company, to be so qualified to so act as surety or guarantor, must comply with the requirements of every law of this state applicable to such company doing business therein; must be authorized under the laws of the state where incorporated, and under its charter, to become surety upon such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty; must have a fully paid up and safely invested and unimpaired capital of at least one hundred thousand dollars; must have good available assets exceeding its liabilities, which liabilities for the purpose of this chapter shall be taken to be its capital stock, its outstanding debts and a premium reserve at the rate of fifty per centum of the current annual premiums on each outstanding bond, undertaking, recognizance and obligation of like character in force; must file with the commissioner of insurance, statistics, history and agriculture [commissioner of insurance and banking] a certified copy of its certificate of incorporation, a written application to be authorized to do business under this chapter, and also, with such application, and in each year thereafter, a statement verified under oath made up to December 31, preceding, stating the amount of its paid up cash capital, particularizing each item of investment, the amount of premiums upon existing bonds, undertakings, [recognizances and obligations of like character in force upon which it is surety; the amount of liability for unearned portion thereof estimated at the rate of fifty per centum of the current annual premiums on each such bond, undertaking, recognizance and obligation in force, stating also the amount of its outstanding debts of all kinds, and such further facts as may be by the laws of this state required of such company in transacting business therein; and, if such company be organized under the laws of any other state than this state, it must also have on deposit with a state officer of one of the states of the United States, not less than one hundred thousand dollars in good securities, deposited with,

and held by, such officer for the benefit of the holders of its obligations; must also appoint an attorney in this state upon whom process of law can be served, which appointment shall continue until revoked or another attorney substituted, and must file with the commissioner of insurance, statistics and history and agriculture [commissioner of insurance and banking] written evidence of such appointment, which shall state the residence and office of such attorney; and such service of process may also be made upon the commissioner of insurance of this state, by virtue of his office, and shall be as effective as if made upon said attorney; and must also have on deposit with the treasurer of this state at least fifty thousand dollars in good securities, worth at par and market value at least that sum, of the value of which securities the commissioner of insurance shall judge, held for the benefit of the holders of the obligations of such company, ~~and~~ said securities so deposited with said treasurer to remain with him in trust to answer any default of said company as surety upon any such bond, undertaking, recognizance or other obligation, established by final judgment upon which execution may lawfully be issued against said company; said treasurer and his successors in office being hereby directed to so receive and hereafter retain such deposit under this act, in trust, for the purposes hereof; such company, however, at all times to have the right to collect the interest, dividends and profits upon such securities, and, from time to time, to withdraw such securities, or portions thereof, substituting therefor others of equally good character and value, to the satisfaction of said treasurer; and such securities and substitutes therefor shall be at all times exempt from, and not subject to, levy under writ or process of attachment; and, further, shall not be sold under any process against such company until after thirty days notice to said company, specifying the time, place and manner of such sale, and the process under which, and purposes for which, it is to be made, accompanied by a copy of such process; provided, however, that whenever any such company, domestic or foreign, has been engaged in this state in the business contemplated by this act, has made deposit in this state, in trust or otherwise, of securities, to answer any default of such company upon any such bond, undertaking, recognizance, guaranty or stipulation, such securities so deposited shall be by the trustee or custodian thereof transferred and delivered to said treasurer of this state in trust for the same purposes under and subject to all the rights and equities of all parties interested, and to the terms and provisions of this act; and thereupon such deposit shall remain in trust under and subject to the terms and provisions of this act; and, whenever such deposit has been made with a trustee by order of any court or other authority, it shall be the duty of the court or other authority, by order or otherwise, to direct such transfer to said treasurer; and, in case such deposit is less than the sum of fifty thousand dollars, then] said company must deposit with said treasurer securities sufficient to increase said deposit to said sum of fifty thousand dollars, as required by this chapter; provided, domestic corporations chartered for the purpose of doing business under this chapter within this state alone shall be required to deposit securities as hereinbefore provided for to the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars. [Acts 1897, p. 244, sec. 2.] X

Art. 4931. Certificate to issue, when.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, upon due proof by any such company of its possessing the qualifications in this chapter specified, shall issue to such company a certificate setting forth that such company has qualified, and is authorized for the ensuing year to do business under this chapter, which said certificate shall be evidence of such qualification of such company, and of its authorization to become and to be accepted as sole surety on all bonds, undertakings, recognizances and obligations required or permitted by law or the charter, ordinances, rules or regulations of any municipality, board, body, organization or public officer, and the solvency or credit of such company for all purposes, and its sufficiency as such surety. [Id. sec. 3.]

Proof of solvency.—Where objection is raised to the solvency of a bonding company that has signed an indemnifying bond as surety, the appellate court cannot know without a statement of facts that the trial court did not have before it enough to satisfy itself that the surety company had been duly authorized to do business in this state, in which event proof of its solvency was unnecessary. Romine v. Howard (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 692.

Art. 4932. Certificate to be surrendered, how.—Any such company, domestic or foreign, may at any time surrender to the commissioner of insurance and banking its said certificate of qualification, and shall thereupon cease to engage in said business of suretyship; and such company shall thereupon be entitled to the release and return of its said deposit as aforesaid, in manner following: Said company shall file with said commissioner of insurance and banking a statement in writing, under oath, giving the date, name, and amount of all its then existing obligations of suretyship in this state, briefly stating the facts of each case to said commissioner, who, after examination of the facts, shall require said company to file with the treasurer of this state a bond, payable to the state, in a sum equal to the whole amount of its liability in this state, under its contracts, conditioned for the faithful performance and fulfillment of all its outstanding obligations, or it may, at its option, reinsure its risks in some surety company authorized to do business in this state, or cancel all bonds on which it is liable, and return a pro rata of the premium received thereon, whenever such cancellation and return can be done without impairing its obligation to third parties. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4933. May withdraw from bond.—Any surety company may withdraw from the bond of any trustee, guardian, assignee, receiver, executor, administrator or other fiduciary, in like manner and by like proceeding as is now provided by law in the case of individual sureties. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4934. May be sued on bond, where.—If any suit shall be instituted upon any bond or obligation of any surety company, the proper court of the county wherein said bond is filed shall have jurisdiction of said cause; and service therein shall be made, either upon the attorney for said company, by this chapter required to be appointed, or upon the commissioner of insurance and banking; and such service shall be to all intents valid and effectual as service upon said company. And such guaranty, fidelity and surety companies shall be deemed resident of the counties wherever they may do business, and the doing or performing any business in any county shall be deemed an acceptance of the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4935. Defaulting company; claims paid, how.—Should any company of the character named or enumerated in this chapter fail or refuse to pay any loss by it incurred in this state within sixty days after its liability thereupon shall have been by suit finally determined, upon satisfactory proof, to the treasurer of this state, of such liability and of its non-payment, said treasurer shall, out of the deposits so made with him, as by this chapter provided, pay said loss, and, when he shall have done so, he shall, at once, certify to the commissioner of insurance and banking the fact of such default on the part of said company; whereupon said commissioner shall forthwith cancel and annul the certificate of authority of such company to do business in this state; provided, that such payment shall not operate to release the company from payment of any balance which it still may owe after such payment by the treasurer of this state has been made. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4936. Who are agents.—Any person who solicits business for or on behalf of such corporation, or makes or transmits for any person other than himself, any application for guaranty or security, or who advertises or otherwise gives notice that he will receive or transmit same, or who shall receive or transmit same, or who shall receive or deliver a contract of guaranty or security, or who shall examine or investigate the character of any applicant for guaranty or security than himself, or who shall refer any applicant for guaranty or security to such corporation, whether any of said acts shall be done at the instance and request, or by the employment of such corporation, or other corporation or person, or any person who shall issue indemnifying bonds or contracts, whose solvency and compliance with his said bonds or obligations is guaranteed, directly or indirectly, by any corporation, shall be held to be the agent of such corporation so far as relates to all the liabilities and penalties prescribed by this chapter. [Id. sec. 8.]

Powers of agent.—Under this article, where a guaranty company intrusted a bond to the seller of oil to deliver it to the buyer, it not only made the seller its agent for the delivery of the bond, but the seller became the agent under the statute, where it was not only empowered to deliver the bond, but to attach to it the contract referred to in it; provision being made for its attachment, and the contract being made a part "as fully as if recited in detail herein." San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. J. M. Abbott Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 373.

Art. 4937. Penalty for accepting corporation which has not complied with law.—Any person, association of persons, or corporations, who shall accept any corporation created for the purposes, or either of them, mentioned in article 4928, without such corporation having previously complied with the provisions and requirements of this chapter and having received from the commissioner of insurance and banking the certificate of authority provided for in this chapter shall forfeit as a penalty the sum of five hundred dollars, to be recovered by suit in the name of the state in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4938. Cancellation of bond; statement of cause.—When any corporation shall cancel a bond of guaranty or indemnity, or shall notify the employer of the person whose fidelity is guaranteed that said corporation will no longer guarantee or be security for the fidelity of said person, or when said corporation has once guaranteed the fidelity of any person, or acted as security therefor, and on application refuses to do so again, it shall furnish to such person a full statement in writing of the facts on which the action of the corporation is based, and, if such action be based in whole or in part on information, all such information; and any such corporation failing or refusing to furnish any such written statement within thirty days after a request therefor, shall be liable to such person injured in the sum of five hundred dollars, in addition to all other damages caused thereby, which may be sued for and recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4939. Authority revoked, when.—If any such corporation shall fail or refuse to comply with the provisions of this chapter, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall revoke the certificate of authority issued said corporation. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4940. Charged with public use.—Corporations created for the purposes mentioned in article 4928 are hereby declared to be charged with a public use. [Id. sec. 12.]

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art. 4941.	Reserve, how reported and calculated.	Art. 4942.	Commissioner may accept certificate when.
---------------	---------------------------------------	---------------	---

Article 4941. Reserve, how reported and calculated.—Every insurance company which has for ten years or more undertaken to insure persons, firms or corporations against loss or damage on account of the bodily injury or death by accident of any person, for which loss or damage said persons, firms or corporations are respectively responsible, shall, on or before the first day of October in each year, render to the insurance commissioner a statement in writing of its business transacted in the United States, which shall show separately for each of the five calendar years constituting the first half of the period of ten years next preceding the thirty-first day of December of the year in which the statement is made:

1. The number of persons reported injured under all its forms of liability policies, whether such injuries were reported to the home office of the company or to any of its representatives, and whether such injury resulted in loss to the company or not.

2. The amount that, on or before the thirty-first day of August of the year in which the statement is made, had been paid on account or in consequence of all injuries so reported, including therein all payments on suits arising from such injuries.

3. The number of suits or actions under such policies on account of injuries reported which have been settled, either by payments or compromise.

4. The amount paid in settlement of such suits or actions on or before the thirty-first day of August of the year when the statement is made, including therein all payments made on account or in consequence of injuries from which the suits arose, whether prior to or later than the date when the suits were brought. Every such company shall, in its financial statements hereafter made in this state, use the experience so ascertained for computing its outstanding losses under all its forms of liability policies, irrespective of the date when the policies were issued. The average cost per suit of settling such cases, as computed by the data required in this article, shall be multiplied by the number of suits or actions pending on account of injuries reported prior to eighteen months previous to the date on which the condition of the company is to be ascertained and shown, which suits or actions are being defended for or on account of a holder of any such policy, also the average cost on account of each injured person, determined as aforesaid from the company's experience, shall be multiplied by the number [of injuries reported within the eighteen months prior to] making the statement of the company's condition, whether such injuries were reported to the home office of the company or to any of its representatives. From the sum of these two products so ascertained there shall be deducted the amount of all payments made on account or in consequence of said injuries reported within eighteen months, this amount so deducted to be taken as of the date at which the said statement is made. The sum remaining after making this deduction shall be charged as the liability of the company on account of outstanding losses. Any admitted company issuing liability contracts, which, by reason of its limited experience in liability underwriting, cannot furnish the information required by this article shall, nevertheless, until it is able to comply with said requirements, be charged with a liability for outstanding losses upon all kinds of its liability policies an amount not less than the amount resulting from the following process:

The number of suits or actions pending on account of injuries reported prior to eighteen months previous to the date of making up the statement, whether such injuries were reported to the home office of the company or to any of its representatives, which are being defended on account of the holder of any policy, shall be multiplied by the average cost per suit as shown by the average experience of all other admitted liability companies ascertained from the data required by this article, also the number of injuries reported under said policies at any time within eighteen months of making up the statement, whether reported to the home office of the company or to any of its representatives, and whether such injuries resulted in loss to the company or not, shall be multiplied by the average cost for each injured person as shown by the average of said experience of all other admitted liability companies, ascertained from the data required by this article. From the sum of these two products there shall be deducted the amount of all payments made on account or in consequence of said injuries reported within eighteen months, this amount to be taken as of the date at which the statement is made. A sum not less than the amount remaining after this deduction shall be charged as a liability for outstanding losses to liability companies covered by the provisions of this paragraph. The average cost for suits and for injured persons required by this paragraph shall, on or before the first day of December of each year, be furnished by the insurance commissioner to every such company which has not had an experience of ten years in liability underwriting. Besides the reserve provided for in this article, each such company shall be charged as a liability with all unpaid losses of which the company received notice on or before December 31, and all other debts and liabilities. If the capital stock of any such company, computing its liabilities in accordance with the provisions of this article, shall be at any time impaired to the extent of twenty per cent thereof, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to give notice to the company to make good its whole capital stock within sixty days; and, if this is not done, he shall require the company to cease to do business within this state, and shall thereupon, in case the company is organized under the authority of the state, immediately institute legal proceedings to wind up the affairs of such company. [Acts 1909, p. 193, sec. 54.]

Note.—Employers' insurance association, see Title 77, Chapter 5.

Art. 4942. Commissioner may accept certificate, when.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, in calculating the reserve liability of any such company, may accept the certificate of the officer of any other state charged with the duty of supervising such company as to any such company organized under the laws of such state; provided, such certificate shows that such liability has been computed in accordance with the provisions of the preceding article.

(k) To insure against any other casualty or insurance risk specified in the articles of incorporation which may be lawfully made the subject of insurance, and the formation of a corporation for issuing against which is not otherwise provided for by this Act, excepting fire, marine and life insurance. [Acts 1911, p. 237, sec. 1.]

Art. 4942b. Articles of incorporation to specify what.—Such persons shall associate themselves together by articles of incorporation in writing for the purpose of forming an accident or casualty insurance company, which articles shall specify the name by which the company shall be known, the place in which its principal office will be established or located, the amount of its capital stock, the general object of the company, and the proposed duration of the same. Any name not previously in use by any existing company may be adopted. The commissioner of insurance and banking shall reject any name or title, when in his judgement [judgment] it too closely resembles that of any existing company or is likely to mislead the public. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4942c. Commissioner of insurance and banking to submit articles to attorney general, when; certificate of attorney general; record and fees; meeting of stockholders; by-laws; directors.—When such articles of incorporation are filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, together with an affidavit [affidavit] made by two or more of its incorporators that all the stock has been subscribed in good faith and fully paid for, together with a charter fee for $20.00, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to submit such articles of incorporation to the attorney general for examination, and if he approves the same as conforming with the law, he shall certify and deliver such articles of incorporation, together with his certificate of approval attached thereto, to the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall, upon receipt thereof, record the same in a book kept for that purpose, and upon receipt of a fee of $1.00 he shall furnish a certified copy of the same to the incorporators, upon which they shall be a body politic and corporate, and may proceed to complete the organization of the company, for which purpose they shall forthwith call a meeting of the stockholders, who shall adopt by-laws for the government of the company and elect a board of directors not less than three, composed of stockholders, which board shall have full control and management of the affairs of the corporation, subject to the by-laws thereof as adopted or amended from time to time by the stockholders or directors and to the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4942d. Officers; subscription books.—The subscribers to said articles of incorporation shall choose from their number a president, a secretary, a treasurer and such number of directors not less than three (3), who shall continue in office for the period of one year from the date of filing articles of incorporation, and until their successors shall be duly chosen and qualified, as hereinafter provided. They shall open books for the subscription of stock in the company at such times and places as they shall deem convenient and proper, and shall keep them open until the full amount specified in the certificate is subscribed. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4942e. Capital stock, amount of; how paid or invested; deposit of securities; certificate authorizing to do business; etc.—Any company organized under the provisions of this Act shall have not less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) of capital stock subscribed, paid in, in cash, with an additional fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) of capital stock subscribed and fully paid in, in cash, for every kind of insurance, more than one of which it is authorized to transact as specified in any of the subdivision; provided, that such companies with two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) of capital stock subscribed and fully paid in, in cash shall be authorized to transact all and every kind of insurance specified in any and all of the subdivisions of section 1 [Art. 4942a] of this Act; all of which said capital stock shall be paid up or invested in bonds of the United States or of this state or of any county or of any municipality of this state or in bonds or first liens upon unencumbered real estate in this state or in any other state in which such company may previously have been duly licensed to conduct an insurance business; and provided in either instance such real estate shall be worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon. The value of such real estate shall be determined by a valuation made under oath by two freeholders of the county where the real estate is located, and if buildings are considered as part of the value of such real estate they must be insured for the benefit of the mortgage, upon such company furnishing evidence satisfactory to the commissioner of insurance and banking that the capital stock as herein prescribed has been all subscribed and paid up in cash in good faith, and that such capital stock has been invested as herein prescribed, and upon the deposit of the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) of such securities or in cash with the state treasurer, then the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue to said company a certificate authorizing it to do business. No part of the capital paid in shall be loaned to any officer of said company. In the event any such company shall be required by the law of any other state, county or province as a requirement prior to doing an insurance business therein, to deposit with the duly appointed officer of such other state, county or province, or with the state treasurer of this state, any securities or cash in excess of the said deposit of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) hereinbefore mentioned, such company, at its discretion, may deposit with the state treasurer securities of the character authorized by this Act, or cash, sufficient to enable it to meet such requirements. The state treasurer is hereby authorized and directed [directed] to receive such deposit and to hold it exclusively for the protection of all policy holders of the company. Any deposits so made to meet the requirements of any such other state, county or province shall not be withdrawn by the company except upon filing with the commissioner of insurance and banking evidence satisfactory to him that the company has withdrawn from business, and has no unsecured liabilities outstanding in any such other state, county or province by which such additional deposit was required, and upon the filing of such evidence the company may withdraw such additional deposit at any time. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4942f. Corporate powers.—A corporation organized or doing business under the provisions of this Act, shall, by the name adopted by such corporation, in law, be capable of suing or being sued, and may have the power to make or enforce contracts in relation to the business of such corporation; may have and use a common seal, and may change and alter the same at pleasure, and in the name of the corporation or by a trustee chosen by the board of directors, shall in law, be capable of taking, purchasing, holding and disposing of real and personal property for carrying into effect the purposes of their organization; and may by their board of directors, trustees, or managers, make by-laws and amendments thereto, not inconsistent with the laws or the constitution of the state, or of the United States, which by-laws shall define the manner of electing directors, trustees or managers and officers of such corporations, together with the qualifications and duties of the same, and fixing the term of office. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4942g. Annual statement of company to commissioner.—The president, vice president and secretary, or a majority of directors or trustees of such company organized under the provisions of this Act shall annually, on the first day of January or within sixty days thereafter, prepare and deposit in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking a verified statement of the condition of such company on the 31st day of December of the preceding year, showing:

First. Name and where located, (a) names of officers, (b) the amount of capital stock, (c) the amount of capital stock paid in.

Second. Assets, (a) the value of real estate owned by said company, (b) the amount of cash on hand, (c) the amount of cash deposited in bank or trust company, (d) the amount of bonds of the United States, and all other bonds, giving names and amounts with par and market values of each kind, (e) the amount of loans secured by first mortgage on real estate, (f) the amount of all other bonds, loans and how secured, with rate of interest, (g) the amount notes given for unpaid stock and how secured, (h) the amount of interest due and unpaid, (i) all other credits or assets.

Third. Liabilities, (a) the amount of losses due and unpaid, (b) the amount of claims for losses unadjusted, (c) the amount of claims for losses resisted.

Fourth. Income during the year, (a) the amount of fees received during the year, (b) the amount of interest received from all sources, (c) the amount of receipts from all other sources.

Fifth. Expenditures during the year, (a) the amount paid for losses, (b) the amount of dividends paid to stockholders, (c) the amount of commissions and salaries paid to agents, (d) the amount paid to officers for salaries, (e) the amount paid for taxes, (f) the amount of all other payments or expenditures.

Sixth. Miscellaneous, (a) the amount paid in fees during the year, (b) the amount paid for losses during the year, (c) the whole amount of insurance issued and in force on the 31st day of December of the previous year. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4942h. Commissioner may amend statement, etc.—The commissioner of insurance and banking is authorized to amend the form of statement and to exact such additional information as he may think necessary in order that a full exhibit of the standing of companies organized and doing business under this Act may be shown. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4942i. Failure to file statement; duty of commissioner, etc.—Upon the failure of any company organized or doing business under this Act to make the deposit or to file the statement in time as stated in the preceding section, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall notify such company to issue no new insurance until there should have been a compliance with said requirements, and it shall be unlawful for any such company to thereafter issue any policy of insurance until such requirements shall be complied with. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4942j. Commissioner may examine books, etc.—The commissioner of insurance and banking may at any time make personal examination of the books, papers and securities of any company organized and doing business under the provisions of this Act, or may authorize or empower any other suitable person to make such examinations, and for the purpose of securing a full and true exhibit of its affairs, he or the person selected by him shall have power to examine under oath any officer of said company relative to its business management. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4942k. Commissioner may revoke authority to do business, when; receiver, etc.—If the commissioner of insurance and banking shall at any time from the report of examination that the company has not complied with the provisions of this Act, he shall revoke its certificate of authority to do business in this state, and shall refer the facts to the attorney general, who shall proceed to ask the proper court to appoint a receiver for said company, who shall, under the direction of the court, wind up the affairs of said company. But in no other way can the commissioner of insurance and banking or any other person restrain or interfere with the prosecution of business of any company doing business under provisions of this Act, except in actions by judgment creditor or in proceedings supplementary to execution. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4942l. Company may change securities on deposit.—Companies organized under the provisions of this Act shall have the right at any time to change their securities on deposit with the state treasurer by substituting for those withdrawn, a like amount in other securities of the character provided for in this Act. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4942m. May increase capital stock, how.—Any company organized under the provisions of this Act may increase the capital stock of the same at any time after the intention to so increase the capital stock shall have been ratified by a two-thirds vote of the stockholders, and after notice of the purpose to so increase the capital stock has been given by publication in some newspaper of general circulation for the period of four consecutive weeks; but no increase if capital stock in less amount than fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) is hereby authorized. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4942n. Dividends.—The directors of any company organized under this Act shall not make any dividends except from the surplus profit arising from their business, no dividends shall be declared except at the close of the year and at the time when, by law, the company is required to file its annual statement with the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4942o. Collection of interest on securities on deposit.—The state treasurer shall permit companies having securities on deposit with him under the provisions of this Act, to collect the interest as the same may become due, and shall deliver to such companies respectively the coupons or other evidences of interest pertaining to such deposits; provided, however, that upon failure of any company to deposit additional security as called for by the commissioner of insurance and banking, or pending any proceedings to close up or enjoin it, the state treasurer shall collect the interest as it becomes due and hold the same as additional security in his hands belonging to such company. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4942p. Penalty for doing business without certificate.—Any company organized or doing business under this Act without a certificate as provided for in this Act shall forfeit one hundred dollars ($100.00) for every day it continues to write new business in this state without such certificate. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4942q. Suits for penalties.—Suits brought to recover any of the penalties provided for in this Act shall be instituted in the name of the state of Texas, by the attorney general or by a district or county attorney under his direction, either in the county where the principal office is situated or in the county of Travis. Such penalties, when recovered, shall be paid into the state treasury for the use of the school fund. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4942r. Funds, how invested.—No company organized under the provisions of this Act shall invest its funds over and above its paid up capital stock in any other manner than as follows:

(a) In bonds of the United States or of any of the states of the United States which are at or above par. (b) In bonds or first liens on unencumbered real estate in this state or in any other state, county or province in which such company may be duly licensed to conduct an insurance business, and provided in each instance such real estate shall be worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon. The value of such real estate shall be determined by a valuation made under oath by two freeholders of the county where real estate is located, and if buildings are considered as a part of the value of such real estate they must be insured for the benefit of the mortgages. (c) In bonds or other interest-bearing evidence of indebtedness [ness] of any county, incorporated city, town or school or sanitary district within this state, or in any other state, county or province in which said company may be duly licensed to conduct an insurance business, and provided that such bonds or other evidences of indebtedness are issued by authority of law, and that interest upon them has never been defaulted. (d) In the stocks or bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any solvent dividend-paying corporation incorporated under the laws of this state, or of the United States or of any state, county or province in which such company may be duly licensed to conduct an insurance business. (e) In loans upon the pledge of any mortgage, stock or bonds, or other evidence of indebtedness, acceptable as investments under the terms of this Act if the current value of such mortgage stock, bond or other evidence of indebtedness is at least twenty-five (25) per cent more than the amount loaned thereon. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 4942s. Real estate may be held for what purposes.—No company organized under this Act shall be permitted to purchase, hold or convey real estate, except for the purpose and in the manner herein set forth:

First. For the erection and maintenance of buildings at least ample and adequate for the transaction of its own business.

Second. Such as shall have been mortgaged to it in good faith for money due.

Third. Such as shall have been conveyed to it in the satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of its dealings and which must be taken in by the company on account of the debt secured by such mortgage.

Fourth. Such as shall have been purchased at sales upon judgments, decrees or mortgages obtained or made for such debts, and no company incorporated as aforesaid shall purchase, hold or convey real estate in any other cases or for any other purpose. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4942t. Real estate, when disposed of, etc.—All real estate acquired as aforesaid, except such as is occupied by buildings used in whole or in part for the accommodation of such companies in the transaction of its business, shall, except as hereinafter provided, be sold and disposed of within ten years after such company shall have acquired title to the same. No such company shall have such real estate for a longer period than that above mentioned, unless the said company shall procure a certificate from the commissioner of insurance and banking that the interests of the company will suffer materially by a forced sale of such real estate, in which event the time for the sale may be extended to such time as the commissioner of insurance and banking shall direct in said certificate. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4942u. Commissioner to issue certificate of authority to transact business, when.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, upon due proof by a company organized under the provisions of this Act, of its possessing the qualifications required, shall issue a certificate setting forth that it has qualified and is authorized for the ensuing year to do business under these statutes, which certificate or a copy thereof shall be evidence of such qualifications and of the company's authority to transact business authorized by this Act, mentioned in the preceding sections [Arts. 4942a–4942t], and of its solvency and credits. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4942v. What companies subject to provisions.—Only companies organized and doing business under the provisions of this Act shall be subject to its provisions. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4942w. Fees.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall charge for filing the preliminary statement or for filing the annual statement required by the provisions of this Act, a fee of ten dollars; and for each certificate and seal he shall charge a fee of one dollar. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4942x. Process against company, how served.—Proceed [process] in any civil suit against any casualty company organized under the laws of this state may be served only on the president, or any active vice president or secretary, or general council residing at the city of the home office of the company, or by leaving a copy of same at the home office of such company during business hours. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4942y. May decrease capital stock, how.—Any company organized under the provisions of this Act may decrease the capital stock of same at any time after the intention to so decrease the capital stock shall have been ratified by a majority vote of the stockholders, and after notice of the purpose to so decrease the capital stock has been given by publication in some newspaper of general circulation for a period of four consecutive weeks. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4942z. Provisions cumulative.—This Act is cumulative as to insurance legislation in this state, and as to the mode and manner of organizing and doing insurance business in this state, and shall not be construed to repeal any law now in force in this state. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4947. Misrepresentation must be material to avoid contract.—Any provision in any contract or policy of insurance issued or contracted for in this state, which provides that the answers or statements made in the application for such contract, or in the contract of insurance, if untrue or false, shall render the contract or policy void or voidable, shall be of no effect, and shall not constitute any defense to any suit brought upon such contract, unless it be shown upon the trial thereof that the matter or thing misrepresented was material to the risk or actually contributed to the contingency or event on which said policy became due and payable, and whether it was material and so contributed in any case shall be a question of fact to be determined by the court or jury trying such case. [Acts 1903, p. 94, art. 3096aa.]

See Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 363; Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Wade (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1186.

Former law.—This article was not adopted by Art. 4834, providing that benefit certificates should be noncontestable for misrepresentations unless material to the risk, and so left the question of materiality one of law for the court upon the jury's findings or upon the uncontroverted facts. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 351.

Constitutionality of prior act.—Rev. St. 1895, tit. 58, as amended by Gen. Laws 1903, c. 69, providing that any provision in an insurance contract that any answers or statements made therein, or in the application, if untrue or false, shall render the policy void, shall be of no effect, unless the matter misrepresented is material to the risk, and that the provisions of the act shall not apply to policies of life insurance containing a clause making the policy indisputable after two years or less, provided premiums are duly paid, and that no defense based upon misrepresentation made in the application for life insurance shall be valid in any suit upon the contract two years or more after its issuance, where the premiums are paid and received without notice to the assured of the intention to rescind the contract because of misrepresentation, unless it is shown at the trial to have been material to the risk and intentionally made, is not unconstitutional as taking insurance companies' property without due process of law under Const. U. S. Amend. 14, § 1. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Wade (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1186.

Nor is the act unconstitutional, as denying insurance companies the equal protection of the law, guaranteed by Const. U. S. Amend. 14, § 1, since the statute does not classify the companies, but classifies the contracts, and furnishes on its face sound reason for such classification. Id.

Construction in general.—The language of this article indicates that it was the intent of the legislature that it should cover every kind and class of insurance, and was not limited to life insurance. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Wade (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1186.

This article does not apply to fraternal beneficiary societies. Modern Woodmen of America v. Owens (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 858.

The statute is remedial within the rule that in construing remedial statutes the courts will look to the evil to be remedied and construe it liberally to accomplish the legislative purpose. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Strickler (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 599.

This article, relating to insurance, did not except assessment companies, and made a foreign assessment company writing insurance in Texas subject to all the provisions of Arts. 4947-4950, inclusive, which contained most of the provisions of Acts 28th Leg. c. 69, relating to such subject. National Life Ass'n v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Repeal of article.—Acts 31st Leg. c. 108, regulating insurance, did not repeal any of the provisions of Acts 28th Leg. c. 69, containing this article, so as to render such provision inapplicable to a foreign assessment company doing business in Texas. National Life Ass'n v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Warranties.—A stipulation in a policy as to the occupancy of the building insured is a warranty. Sun Ins. Co. v. Texas Foundry & Machine Co., 4 App. C. C. § 31, 15 S. W. 34.

In order to constitute a statement or promise of the insured a warranty, it must be made a part of the policy, either by appearing in the body of the instrument, or by a proper reference in the policy to some other paper in which it is found. When a doubt as to whether such other paper was regarded by the insurer and insured as a part of the policy, the doubt will be resolved by the courts in favor of the insured. When a policy of insurance is in its terms inconsistent, or ambiguous in its provisions, it must be construed most favorably for the assured. Goddard v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 69, 1 S. W. 906, 60 Am. Rep. 1.

An express stipulation in a policy is a warranty. Insurance Co. v. Brown, 82 T. 631, 18 S. W. 713. See Insurance Co. v. Mattingly, 77 T. 162, 13 S. W. 1016.

A false statement as to a disease is a warranty, unless the same was temporary and due to exceptional causes. Life Ins. Co. v. Simpson, 88 T. 333, 31 S. W. 501, 28 L. R. A. 765, 53 Am. St. Rep. 757.

Answer in application as to the character of a building held not a warranty where a special agent, after examination, canceled the policy, and issued a new one for an additional premium. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Padgett (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 800.

Answers in an application and certain requirements of the policy held not warranties, though stated to be such. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Munger Improved Cotton-Mach. Mfg. Co., 92 T. 297, 49 S. W. 222.

Statement in application for life insurance held not a warranty. Provident Savings Life Assur. Soc. of New York v. Oliver, 22 C. A. 8, 53 S. W. 594.

A clause in a fire policy held to cause other statements in the application to operate as representations only, though they were sufficient in themselves to constitute warranties. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 867.

In an action on a life insurance policy, which provided that the representations and answers in the application were warranties, and provided that the contract was completely set forth in the policy and application, alleged answers to questions not copied in the policy held immaterial. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 34 C. A. 131, 78 S. W. 398.

A stipulation in an application for a life policy held not to modify the warranty and make the answers of the insured mere representations. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 778.

The use of the word "warranty" in an application for life insurance held not necessarily to create a warranty in law, whether one was intended being a question to be determined from a construction of the policy, the application, and the medical examiner's report. Reppond v. National Life Ins. Co., 100 T. 519, 101 S. W. 786, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 981, 15 Ann. Cas. 618.

A representation or statement in an application for insurance held not to constitute a promissory warranty. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Wade (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1186.

Avoidance of policy for misrepresentation or breach of warranty or condition.—Forfeiture of policy for breach of promissory warranty or condition subsequent, see notes at the end of this title.

As to the effect of material misrepresentations by the insured at the time policy is obtained, see Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. National Exchange Bank (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 333; Sullivan v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 999.

The fact that insured made a false statement unintentionally, which he could have avoided by due diligence, held not to avoid the policy. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Swann (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 519.

The contract is complete when the policy is issued, and an application signed thereafter does not relate back and become a part of the original contract, so as to render insured bound by representations therein, unless there is a consideration for such subsequent act. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Bynum (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 579.

When the machinery in a mill has been in use much longer than represented in an application for insurance thereon, but has been rebuilt, and is practically new and of the represented value, the representation is substantially correct. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 867.

Insured in fire policy held not guilty of making fraudulent statement to insurer. Underwriters' Fire Ass'n v. Palmer & Co., 32 C. A. 447, 74 S. W. 603.

Failure of insured in a life policy to give certain information held a material misstatement, avoiding the policy. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1012.

A breach of warranty defeats a life policy without reference to its materiality. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Terry, 37 C. A. 486, 84 S. W. 656.

Where the statements in an application for a life policy are made warranties, it is essential to the validity of the policy that the statements are true. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 778.

An insurer making every statement of the application a warranty held to a strict rule when endeavoring to avoid payment of a policy because of answers to inquiries which it has framed. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769.

Answers in an application for life insurance when operating as affirmative warranties need only be substantially true; but, where they are not substantially true, the insurer may treat the policy as forfeited without reference to the materiality of the answers. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 702.

— Covenant to keep books or inventory.—Breach of covenant as to keeping books or inventory in general, see notes at end of title.

This article does not apply to a provision in a policy as to keeping books. Home Ins. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 625.

This article has no application to a covenant in a policy to keep an inventory in an iron safe and produce it after fire. National Fire Ins. Co. v. J. W. Caraway & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 458.

— Title or interest.—It seems that a warranty that the insured building stands on land owned in fee simple is not broken when the equitable title only is in the vendee, and he is in a condition to enforce specific performance of the contract to convey. E. T. Fire Ins. Co. v. Dyches, 56 T. 565.

A surviving partner of a mercantile firm has not the "entire, unconditional and sole ownership of the property" so as to insure the stock of goods in his own name, without disclosing the interest of the estate of the deceased partner, when such disclosure is required by the terms of the policy. Crescent Ins. Co. v. Camp, 64 T. 521.

A stipulation that a policy should be void if the insured buildings are not on ground owned by the insured is valid. Home Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 264.

A material misrepresentation as to the state of the insured's title to the property will avoid the policy. Queen Ins. Co. of America v. May (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 829.

Evidence held to show that plaintiff was the sole, absolute, and unconditional owner of the property insured, within the requirements of the policy. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Deavenport, 16 C. A. 283, 41 S. W. 399.

The fact that part of furniture insured was owned by the wife of the insured before their marriage held not a breach of warranty of sole and unconditional ownership. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Brady (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 513.

Where a person doing business under a firm name insures his goods in such name, representing that they belonged to such firm, held not a violation of a provision that the policy should be void for misrepresentation. Bonnet v. Merchants' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 316.

A person who succeeded a firm, and took out insurance in its name, under which he traded, did not thereby violate a provision avoiding the policy if his interest was not fully stated. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Bonnet (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1104; Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Bonnet (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1110.

A married woman held absolute owner of property within a policy requiring sole interest, though her husband was entitled to homestead therein. Sun Ins. Office v. Beneke (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 98.

Policy of insurance on property, warranted to be the insured's, described as household and kitchen furniture contained in a certain building, held not rendered void by the fact that furniture of another was contained in the same building. Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co. v. Nations, 24 C. A. 562, 59 S. W. 817.

Condition in fire policy as to sole ownership of property held breached. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Calhoun, 28 C. A. 409, 67 S. W. 153.

That goods owned by a single individual are insured in a firm name does not avoid the policy. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 445, 69 S. W. 235.

In an action on a fire policy, evidence held to show that the property covered belonged, not to plaintiff, but to the woman with whom he was living in adultery. McCarty v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 C. A. 122, 75 S. W. 934.

In an action on a fire policy by a mortgagee, an instruction that under the circumstances stated assured was the sole and unconditional owner of the property, as required by the policy, held proper. Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co. v. Ruddell, 37 C. A. 30, 82 S. W. 826.

— Incumbrances.—A condition in a policy on a building that it should be void if the building was on ground not owned by the insured in fee simple is not broken by a lien on the land. Alamo Fire Ins. Co. v. Lancaster, 28 S. W. 126, 7 C. A. 677.

The insurer is charged with notice of recorded liens on insurance property in the absence of any statement relating thereto. Insurance Co. v. Holcomb (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 1086.

A policy of insurance covering many articles of furniture is not avoided as to unincumbered property by a stipulation that a policy should be avoided by a mortgage of the insured property. German Ins. Co. v. Lockett, 12 C. A. 139, 34 S. W. 173.

Incumbrances do not avoid a policy where the insured represented himself as the sole, absolute and unconditional owner. Burlington Ins. Co. v. Coffman, 13 C. A. 439, 35 S. W. 406.

A note secured by a mortgage on property insured, which was never delivered, held not a breach of a mortgage condition in the policy. Insurance Co. of North America v. Wicker, 93 T. 390, 55 S. W. 740.

A mortgage existing against property insured held a breach of a mortgage condition in the policy, though the mortgage was discharged the day after the execution of the policy. Id.

Under a stipulation that the policy should become void if the subject of the insurance be personal and be incumbered, forfeiture cannot be claimed for false statement as to incumbrances; the subject of insurance being partly real and partly personal. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 820.

Insurance on certain specified articles held not rendered void as to all, because one article was incumbered by a chattel mortgage. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 867.

Condition in fire policy held to have been breached by insured. Curlee v. Texas Home Fire Ins. Co., 31 C. A. 471, 73 S. W. 831.

Facts held insufficient to show that property insured was not subject to a lien for a part of the price, as represented, within a provision of the policy that it should be void if insured's interest was not truly stated. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. American Cement Plaster Co., 37 C. A. 629, 84 S. W. 1115.

A purchaser of real estate receiving a deed retaining a vendor's lien for the unpaid part of the price held to acquire the entire, unconditional, and sole ownership within a fire policy. Wright v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 54 C. A. 6, 118 S. W. 191.

A fire policy stipulating that it shall be void on the interest of insured becoming other than unincumbered held void because of a vendor's lien on the property. Id.

While this article relates to fire as well as life policies, it applies only where there are misrepresentations by insured, either in the application or in the policy itself, and does not apply to a provision in the policy making it void if the property be or become incumbered by a chattel mortgage; there being no representation made by insured. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 363.

A warranty in a fire policy against incumbrances existing at the time on the property insured is valid, and its violation renders the policy void. Id.

This article applies to covenants of warranty as well as to statements in the application not made warranties by the contract, and a stipulation in the policy relating to liens on the property which was equivalent to a representation that no liens existed, as well as a stipulation guaranteeing that the building had brick chimneys and flues throughout, were representations in the contract of insurance within the statute, so that a misrepresentation with reference thereto could not be set up as a defense without showing that it was material. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco v. Stricker (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 599.

— Value of property.—Overvaluation of property insured will avoid the policy when it is so gross and clear that it is obvious at a glance, although it may not have been intentional or fraudulent. It is immaterial that it was the result of mistake. Overvaluation by an agent is imputable to his principal. Home Ins. Co. v. Eakin, 2 App. C. C. §§ 665, 666. But see Eakin v. Home Ins. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 368.

Overvaluation by insured held not material to the risk under a nonvalued policy and material only to the question of fraud and false swearing. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 283.

To establish fraudulent overvaluation of property insured by a valued policy, it must be shown that insured knew that the property was worth less, or the actual value must be so much less than that stated as to warrant a presumption of fraud. Id.

A misrepresentation of the value of property insured by a valued policy, not a mere error in judgment, is material, and, if intentional, avoids the policy. Id.

Under this article misrepresentation by an insured as to the value of a building and personal property therein will not avoid the policy. Co-Operative Ins. Ass'n of San Angelo v. Ray (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1122.

— Concealment.—Mere failure of insured to mention that a gambling concern was connected with his insured saloon held not such a concealment of a material fact as to avoid the policy. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nunn (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 88.

✓ Health and physical condition.—The trivial illness of insured on the day on which he received his life policy, though he never recovered therefrom, held not a defense to an action on the policy, which required him to be in good health on such day. Woodmen of the World v. Locklin, 28 C. A. 486, 67 S. W. 331.

The words "injuries or wounds," and the words, "otherwise injured," in an application for accident insurance, held only to refer to such serious wounds or injuries not specified as might affect the risk taken by insurer in insuring against accidents. Trenton v. North American Acc. Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 276.

✓ Under the terms of a life policy, insurer held to have incurred no liability where insured was at the time of delivery affected with a mortal disease. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Betz, 44 C. A. 557, 99 S. W. 1140.

A declaration in a life policy held not to qualify another provision, so as to require only good faith on insured's part in answering the medical examiner's questions. Supreme Lodge Knights and Ladies of Honor v. Payne (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 523.

The answer "No" to the question to an applicant for life insurance whether she had suffered "abortions" held not false, where she had suffered only one. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Crenshaw (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 375.

✓ Medical attendance.—Untrue statements as to medical attendance, in an application for life insurance warranting their truth, held material, and to preclude recovery on the policy. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Harris, 94 T. 25, 57 S. W. 635, 86 Am. St. Rep. 813.

✓ False statements of insured that she had not been treated by a physician, except in childbirth, for 10 years, and had no disease of the liver, held warranties, and to void the policy, whether material or not. Flippen v. State Life Ins. Co., 30 C. A. 362, 70 S. W. 787.

Where a physician testified that he had treated insured, and she permitted him to prescribe for her, it was immaterial that she did not summon him, as regards the falsity of her statement that she had not been treated by a physician. Id.

✓ The answer of an applicant for life insurance to questions in an application held not to give notice to the insurer that any other physician than those mentioned in the application had treated the applicant, and the policy was nonenforceable in view of the application making the applicant's statements warranties. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 778.

Where a life policy made the statements in the application warranties, and insured did not give the name of the physician who had treated him within five years when answering the question calling on him to give the name and address of each physician consulted during the past five years, there was a misstatement avoiding the policy. Id.

✓ The failure of an applicant for life insurance to state the name of one of the physicians who attended him within five years preceding the application held not a breach of warranty defeating the policy. Reppond v. National Life Ins. Co., 100 T. 519, 101 S. W. 786, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 981, 15 Ann. Cas. 618.

— Occupation and family history.—Provision of a policy of life insurance held to constitute a warranty of the truth of the statements made in the application, so that a discrepancy between the ages of the sisters of the insured as stated and their actual ages caused the forfeiture of the contract. Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Pinson, 94 T. 553, 63 S. W. 531.

Insurance held unenforceable by reason of breach of warranty as to the ages of the applicant's sisters. Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Pinson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 818.

A statement by an applicant for life insurance as to his place of birth and residence, held substantially false so as to justify forfeiting the policy. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 702.

— Habits and age.—Proof that insured occasionally drank to excess held not a breach of a warranty that he took a drink once a month. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Liddell, 32 C. A. 252, 74 S. W. 87.

The word "use," in a question put to an applicant for life insurance in relation to intoxicating liquors, held to mean habit or custom, and a negative answer was not false because the applicant had drunk liquor. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Terry, 37 C. A. 486, 84 S. W. 666.

Insured held bound by statements in his application, as to his age, made by his father, to whom he referred the company's agents. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Jay (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 545.

In an action to recover the balance due on a life insurance policy, evidence held not to conclusively show that the insured in his application misstated his age. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Lennox, 103 T. 133, 124 S. W. 623.

A statement by an applicant for life insurance as to occupation held substantially false so as to justify forfeiting the policy. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 702.

— Other insurance.—A warranty that an applicant for life insurance had a policy in another company called the "Mutual Reserve" was not proven to be broken by evidence showing that he had another policy, which was void, in the "Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association." Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Coalson, 22 C. A. 64, 54 S. W. 388.

A warranty that an applicant for insurance had never made application for insurance under which no policy was issued is not broken by the fact that a company wrote out, signed, and sent to its agent a policy for applicant which was never delivered. Id.

A fire insurance policy provided that it should be void if assured then had, or thereafter procured other insurance. Held, construing this article under the assumption that it was enacted with knowledge of the judicial doctrine of promissory warranties and representations, and requiring strict compliance with the former, that it did not abolish such doctrine, and the policy was avoided by carrying policies in other companies, $750 in excess of the $37,000 concurrent insurance permitted, and the small amount of the excess, compared with the total insurance permitted, did not excuse the violation of the provision. Gross v. Colonial Assur. Co., 56 C. A. 627, 121 S. W. 517.

The liability of an insurance company under a provision as to the effect of other insurance held fixed at the time that a loss occurs. Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Fordtran (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 692.

Insured in a life policy held authorized to conclude that a question as to other insurance related only to policies in regular insurance companies, and not insurance in fraternal orders and accident policies. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769.

An application for insurance in an old life insurance company calling for other insurance held not to require disclosure of accident policies and certificates in fraternal assessment orders and local societies. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford, 103 T. 522, 131 S. W. 406.

Art. 4948. No defense based upon misrepresentation valid, unless, etc.—In all suits brought upon insurance contracts or policies hereafter issued or contracted for in this state, no defense based upon misrepresentations made in the applications for, or in obtaining or securing the said contract, shall be valid, unless the defendant shall show on the trial that, within a reasonable time after discovering the falsity of the misrepresentations so made, it gave notice to the assured, if living, or, if dead, to the owners or beneficiaries of said contract, that it refused to be bound by the contract or policy; provided, that ninety days shall be a reasonable time; provided, also, that this article shall not be construed as to render available as a defense any immaterial misrepresentation, nor to in any wise modify or affect article 3096aa [4947].

See Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 363.

Constitutionality of prior act.—See notes under Art. 4947.

Application.—See notes under Art. 4947.

This article applies to mutual relief associations as well as to other insurance companies and the defendant must show that the alleged false statements contained in the application were material, if it would avoid the risk on this account. Modern Order of Pretorians v. Hollmig (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 475.

The provisions of this article do not apply to fraternal and beneficiary associations. Modern Order of Pretorians v. Hollmig (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 846.

The peculiar wording of this statute makes it apply only to the truth or falsity of answers or statements in the application or contract and not what was agreed in the contract to be performed. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co., 55 C. A. 263, 118 S. W. 1087.

This article applies to covenants of warranty as well as to statements in the application not made warranties by the contract, and a stipulation in the policy relating to liens on the property which was equivalent to a representation that no liens existed, as well as a stipulation guaranteeing that the building had brick chimneys and flues throughout, were representations in the contract of insurance within the statute, so that a misrepresentation with reference thereto could not be set up as a defense without showing that it was material. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco v. Stricker (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 599.

Notice.—Under this article a company not having given the prescribed notice was absolutely barred from defending an action on the policy because of alleged misrepresentations in the application. National Life Ass'n v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Art. 4949. Shall not constitute defense, unless shown, etc.—Any provision in any contract or policy of insurance issued or contracted for in this state, which provides that the same shall be void or voidable, if any misrepresentations or false statements be made in proofs of loss or of death, as the case may be, shall be of no effect, and shall not constitute any defense to any suit brought upon such contract or policy, unless it be shown upon the trial of such suit that the false statement made in such proofs of loss or death was fraudulently made, and misrepresented a fact material to the question of the liability of the insurance company upon the contract of insurance sued on, and that the insurance company was thereby misled, and caused to waive or lose some valid defense to the policy. [Id. art. 3096cc.]

Constitutionality of prior act.—See notes under Art. 4947.

Construction in general.—See notes under Art. 4947.

Art. 4950. Policies governed by laws of Texas, notwithstanding stipulation to the contrary.—Any contract of insurance payable to any citizen or inhabitant of this state by any insurance company or corporation doing business within this state shall be held to be a contract made and entered into under and by virtue of the laws of this state relating to insurance, and governed thereby, notwithstanding such policy or contract of insurance may provide that the contract was executed, and the premiums and policy (in case it becomes a demand) should be payable without this state, or at the home office of the company or corporation issuing the same. [Id. art. 3096dd.]

Construction in general.—See notes under Art. 4947.

Art. 4951. Policies of insurance to be accompanied by copy of questions, etc.—Every contract or policy of insurance issued or contracted for in this state shall be accompanied by a written, photographic or printed copy of the application for such insurance policy or contract, as well as a copy of all questions asked and answers given thereto. The provisions of the foregoing articles shall not apply to policies of life insurance in which there is a clause making such policy indisputable after two years or less, provided premiums are duly paid; provided, further, that no defense based upon misrepresentation made in the application for, or in obtaining or securing, any contract of insurance upon the life of any person being or residing in this state shall be valid or enforceable in any suit brought upon such contract two years or more after the date of its issuance, when premiums due on such contract for the said term of two years have been paid to, and received by, the company issuing such contract, without notice to the assured by the company so issuing such contract of its intention to rescind the same on account of misrepresentation so made, unless it shall be shown on the trial that such misrepresentation was material to the risk and intentionally made. Art. 4952. No level premium policies shall be issued.—No level premium policy of life insurance shall be issued or sold by any company in this state after December 31, 1909, which provides for more than one year preliminary term insurance. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 16.]

Art. 4953. Policies shall contain entire contract.—Every policy of insurance issued or delivered within this state on or after the first day of January, 1910, by any life insurance company doing business within this state, shall contain the entire contract between the parties, and the application therefor may be made a part thereof. [Id. sec. 17.]

Parts of policy.—The written portions of the policy will control the printed when they conflict. G. H. Ins. Co. v. Jacobs, 56 T. 366.

Where there are no words of reference to the application in the policy, it forms no part thereof. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

Where a paper attached to the policy, and describing the goods insured, makes the policy subject to a clause attached thereto, such clause is a part of the contract, and constitutes a warranty. City Drug Store v. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 21.

Application for life policy held to constitute a part of the contract. Parish v. Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co., 19 C. A. 457, 49 S. W. 153.

A slip of paper containing a stipulation is not a part of an insurance policy merely because pinned thereon. Co-Operative Ins. Ass'n of San Angelo v. Ray (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1122.

An application for life insurance is made part of the policy by a clause therein that it is issued in consideration of the application. Grell v. Sam Houston Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 757.

Art. 4954. Companies shall not discriminate.—No insurance company doing business in this state shall make or permit any distinction or discrimination in favor of individuals between insureds (the insured) of the same class and of equal expectation of life in the amount of, or payment of, premiums or rates charged for policies of life or endowment insurance, or in the dividends or other benefits payable thereon; nor shall any such company or agent thereof make any contract of insurance or agreement as to such contract other than as expressed in the policy issued thereon; nor shall any such company, or any officer, agent, solicitor or representative thereof, pay, allow or give, or offer to pay, allow or give, directly or indirectly, as an inducement to insurance, any rebate of premiums payable on the policy, or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefits to accrue thereon, or any paid employment or contract for service of any kind, or any valuable consideration or inducement whatever not specified in the policy contract of insurance; or give, sell or purchase, or offer to give, sell or purchase, as an inducement to insurance, or in connection therewith, any stocks, bonds or other securities of any insurance company or other corporation, association or partnership, or any dividends or profits to accrue thereon, or anything of value whatsoever not specified in the policy, or issue any policy containing any special or board contract or similar provision, by the terms of which said policy will share or participate in any special fund derived from a tax or a charge against any portion of the premium on any other policy. Any company or agent violating the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code; and the said company shall, as an additional penalty, forfeit its certificate of authority to do business in this state, and the said agent shall, as an additional penalty, forfeit his license to do business in this state for one year; provided, the company shall not be held liable under this article for any act of its agent, unless such act was authorized by its president, one of its vice presidents, its secretary or an assistant secretary, or by its board of directors. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4955. Shall apply to all companies.—All the provisions of the laws of this state applicable to the life, fire, marine, inland, lightning, or tornado insurance companies, shall, so far as the same are applicable, govern and apply to all companies transacting any other kind of insurance business in this state, so far as they are not in conflict with provisions of law made specially applicable thereto. [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 4956. Corporations may be incorporated to transact one or more kinds of insurance business.—Corporations may be incorporated, under the laws of this state, to transact any one or more kinds of insurance business other than life, fire, marine, inland, lightning or tornado insurance business in the same manner, and by complying with the same requirements, as prescribed by law for the incorporation of life insurance companies; provided, that no such company shall be incorporated having the power to do a fidelity and surety business or a liability insurance business with a paid up capital stock of less than two hundred thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 62.]

Art. 4957. Chapter does not apply to fraternal beneficiary companies.—None of the terms or provisions of this chapter shall apply to, nor in any wise affect, fraternal beneficiary associations as defined by the laws of this state, nor apply to companies carrying on the business of life or casualty insurance on the assessment or annual premium plan, under the provision of this title. [Id. sec. 65.]

Application.—A fraternal beneficiary association of another state, the relief funds of which are created by assessments on its members, which has subordinate lodges to which application is made for membership and which issues benefit certificates, the amount payable on which is under a by-law dependent on the sum collected by assessments, comes within the provisions of this article and is not liable under Art. 4746, except in case of failure of its principal officer to make the required statement. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Story, 97 T. 264, 78 S. W. 3.

A live stock insurance company, organized under Art. 1121, subd. 46, to "conduct a live stock insurance company or business upon a mutual or co-operative plan without authorized capital stock and to issue policies of indemnity," to its members, is not such a mutual relief association as is mentioned in this article. State v. Burgess, 101 T. 524, 109 S. W. 923.

Art. 4958. Shall not misrepresent terms of policies, etc.—No life insurance company doing business in this state, and no officer, director or agent thereof, shall issue or circulate, or cause or permit to be issued or circulated, any estimate, illustration, circular or statement of any sort misrepresenting the terms of any policy issued by it, or benefits or advantages to be promised thereby, or the dividends or share of surplus to be received thereon. [Id. sec. 67.]

Art. 4959. Policy shall not be defeated.—No recovery upon any life, accident or health insurance policy shall ever be defeated because of any misrepresentation in the application which is of an immaterial fact and which does not affect the risks assumed. [Id. sec. 68.]

In general.—See notes under Art. 4947.

Art. 4960. [3061] [2943] Insurance unlawful unless authorized by commissioner of insurance.—It shall not be lawful for any person to act within this state, as agent or otherwise, in soliciting or receiving applications for insurance of any kind whatever, or in any manner to aid in the transaction of the business of any insurance company incorporated in this state or out of it, without first procuring a certificate of authority from the commissioner of agriculture, insurance, statistics and history [commissioner of insurance and banking].

Art. 4961. [3093] Who are agents.—Any person who solicits insurance on behalf of any insurance company, whether incorporated under the laws of this or any other state or foreign government, or who takes or transmits other than for himself any application for insurance or any policy of insurance to or from such company, or who advertises or otherwise gives notice that he will receive or transmit the same, or who shall receive or deliver a policy of insurance of any such company, or who shall examine or inspect any risk, or receive, or collect, or transmit any premium of insurance, or make or forward any diagram of any building or buildings, or do or perform any other act or thing in the making or consummating of any contract of insurance for or with any such insurance company other than for himself, or who shall examine into, or adjust or aid in adjusting any loss for or on behalf of any such insurance company, whether any of such acts shall be done at the instance or request, or by the employment of such insurance company, or of or by any broker or other person, shall be held to be the agent of the company for which the act is done, or the risk is taken, as far as relates to all the liabilities, duties, requirements and penalties set forth in this chapter; provided, that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply to citizens of this state who arbitrate in the adjustment of losses between the insurers and insured, nor to the adjustment of particular or general average losses of vessels or cargoes by marine adjusters who have paid an occupation tax of two hundred dollars for the year in which the adjustment is made; provided, further, that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply to practicing attorneys at law in the state of Texas, acting in the regular transaction of their business as such attorneys at law, and who are not local agents, nor acting as adjusters for any insurance company. [Acts 1879, S. S., p. 32.]

"Insurance broker" defined.—"Insurance agent," "insurance broker," defined. The broker is the agent of the insurer as to the premium, but for nothing else. In all other respects he is the agent of the insured. Insurance Co. v. Brown, 82 T. 631, 18 S. W. 713.

Bond of agent.—Under the terms of a bond, an insurance agent held bound to turn over all property received by virtue of the agency to the receiver of the company. Urquhart v. Saner (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 902.

A bond of an insurance agent held treated as a satisfactory bond and enforceable. Haupt v. James Cravens & Co., 56 C. A. 253, 120 S. W. 541.

Authority of agent.—Authority of agent as to premiums, see notes at the end of this title.

When the policy clearly defines the authority of an agent, his act not within his authority does not bind the principal. First Nat. Bank v. L. Ins. Co., 62 T. 461; S. F. & M. Ins. Co. v. McKinnon, 59 T. 507.

An agent's representation as to the amount of surplus which would accrue on a tontine policy held a mere statement of opinion; and hence assured was not entitled, as a matter of law, to recover the difference between the amount paid and the amount stated. Donoho v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 22 C. A. 192, 54 S. W. 645.

Acts of insurance agent held to be binding on the company, as within the apparent scope of his authority. Insurance Co. of North America v. Bell, 25 C. A. 129, 60 S. W. 262.

The law declares the person performing the acts specified to be the agent of the company for which he acted, so as to render it liable for taxes for doing business within the limits of the state, but does not confer any power or authority upon him, with reference to making contracts, or to make the insurance company liable for any act that he did, except as specified in that law. Insurance Co. v. Walker, 94 T. 473, 61 S. W. 711.

The answers inserted by an agent in an application for a fire policy held binding on the insured. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 867.

Instructions from an insurance company to its agent not to write policies on property of insolvent or financially crippled debtors does not avoid a policy written on such a risk, unless it appear that insured had knowledge of such inhibition. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

In an action on a fire insurance policy, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that the insurer was bound by an agreement its agent made with an insurance broker acting for plaintiff. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 625.

Restriction.—Where one solicits insurance, writes out, takes and forwards the application to a company, collects the premium and delivers the policy, he is the agent of the company, with all the usual powers, rights, duties and obligations the relation confers or demands, and no restriction of his power or authority contained in the application or contract of insurance is valid. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 824.

This article, being originally a part of the revenue act of 1879 does not prevent an insurance company from limiting the power of soliciting agents to bind it by information received in procuring the contract of insurance. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 871.

Tender of premium to agent.—A bank in this state having acted as an agent of an insurance company in another state, a tender of premiums could be made to it until the agency is revoked and notice given to the insured. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 280.

Agent for insured or insurer.—A local insurance agent in issuing a fire policy held to have acted not as agent of insured or of the payee, but for the insurer. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

Where an insurance broker agreed with the owner to keep the property insured for a certain time, the broker's act in securing a policy to replace a worthless one insured to the owner, though he did not know of the act. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 625.

Liability of agent.—Where an insurance company is authorized to do business in this state, it, and not its agents, is bound upon the contract. Hudson v. Compere, 94 T. 449, 61 S. W. 390.

Where agents of a foreign insolvent fire insurance company unauthorized to do business in Texas, and known by the agents to be so unauthorized, entered into a conspiracy with such company to defraud one, and procured for him a fire insurance policy on property that was destroyed during the life of the policy, they come within the two preceding articles and are personally liable. Price v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 986.

Acts of agent held not to render him liable for the amount of loss under the policy. Scottish-Union & National Ins. Co. v. Andrews & Matthews, 40 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 419.

Certain facts held not to show that a soliciting agent of an insurance company had collected money for the company and had failed to remit it. Armstrong v. National Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 327.

In a suit to recover on a policy of fire insurance, where the insurer impleaded its agent and asked judgment over against him in the event of a recovery by the insured, evidence held to warrant a verdict in favor of the agent. Shawnee Fire Ins. Co. v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 354.

An insurance broker held liable to his principal, with whom he had agreed to procure reinsurance, for failure to notify the principal that the present insurance on the property was worthless; the insurer having become insolvent. Diamond v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 429.

Liability of insurer.—A company held to have waived a provision in its contract that its agent should forward premium notes at the end of a month by accepting them sooner without objection. Lea v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 17 C. A. 451, 43 S. W. 927.

An agent held entitled to commissions on a policy withdrawn by the company before delivery. Id.

Where an insurance company claims exemption from liability to its agent by reason of the terms of its contract, it must allege and prove that such terms were complied with. Id.

The fact that an insurance agent gave private information sent to him by his principal to the public is not binding on the principal, so as to make him responsible as for libel. Schulze v. Jalonick, 18 C. A. 296, 44 S. W. 580.

A contract of employment as soliciting agent for an insurance company construed, and held that the agent, on the cancellation of the contract by the company, was deprived of his commissions on renewal premiums. Armstrong v. National Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 327.

Where a promise by an agent of a life insurance company to return a premium note to an applicant in case the applicant should not accept the policy was unauthorized, the applicant was entitled to recover the amount of the note where he declined the policy and the agent fraudulently negotiated the note to an innocent purchaser. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Seidel, 52 C. A. 278, 113 S. W. 945.

Where an agent may exercise discretion as to the issuance of policies, and the risk is a legal one, insurer is bound by the agent's acts within his real or apparent authority. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 383.

Where an insurance agent obtained negotiable notes of applicants for policies, knowing that one of the policies would not be issued, and transferred the notes to an innocent holder, he perpetrated a fraud for which the insurance company was responsible. Security Life Ins. Co. of America v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1137.

A provision in contracts of general agency for a life insurance company, as to deductions from the agent's commissions on renewal premiums, where the agent did not collect the premiums, held to apply to commissions on all policies written by the agent, and not merely those policy holders who removed from the state. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Reinhardt (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 596.

Provision in a contract of general agency for a life insurance company as to commissions on renewal premiums after discontinuance of agreement held not to entitle the agent to commissions free of the provision for deduction where the premiums were not collected by him. Id.

If a contract of general agency for a life insurance company is doubtful as to whether a provision as to deduction from commissions on renewal premiums when not collected by the agent applies to policies written under prior contracts, held the practical construction put on it by the parties on termination of the agency should control. Id.

Where the general office of insurer sent a policy to a local office, where, according to rule, it was held pending an investigation of the applicant, and not being satisfied with the risk, it was declined, and the policy recalled, and no premium was ever paid, the agent was not entitled to commissions. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Hodnette (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 615.

In an action by a life insurance broker for commissions for securing liability business for defendant, evidence held insufficient to establish any agreement for the payment of commissions. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Farrell (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1164.

Liability of insured.—Insured, procuring broker to obtain policy, held liable to the broker for the premium paid by him. Holmes v. Thomason, 25 C. A. 389, 61 S. W. 504.

Where a broker, without being applied to, procured a policy on property of insured and paid premiums thereon, he cannot recover the same of the insured. Id.

Estoppel of agent.—A soliciting agent of an insurance company held estopped from asserting as against the company that he was not responsible for applications sent by an associate to the company. Armstrong v. National Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 327.

Forfeiture of agent's rights.—A contract of employment as soliciting agent for an insurance company construed, and held that the agent did not in consequence of a certain fact forfeit his rights under the contract. Armstrong v. National Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 327.

The failure of a soliciting agent of an insurance company to make reports called for by his contract of employment held to forfeit his rights under the contract. Id.

Discharge of agent.—A contract of employment as soliciting agent for an insurance company construed, and held to authorize the company to discharge the agent for specified grounds. Armstrong v. National Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 327.

Art. 4962. [3094] Taxes to be assessed against, when.—Whenever any person shall do or perform within this state any of the acts mentioned in article 4961 for or on behalf of any insurance company therein referred to such company shall be held to be doing business in this state, and shall be subject to the same taxes, state, county and municipal, as insurance companies that have been legally qualified and admitted to do business in this state by agents or otherwise are subject, the same to be assessed and collected as taxes are assessed and collected against such companies; and such persons so doing or performing any of such acts or things shall be personally liable for such taxes. [Id. sec. 3.]

Penalty, etc.—Any person who shall do any of the acts mentioned in article 4961 for or on behalf of any insurance company without such company has first complied with the requirements of the laws of this state, shall be personally liable to the holder of any policy of insurance in respect of which such act was done for any loss covered by the same. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4963. Policies to be issued only through resident agents, except.—Any fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety, or fidelity insurance company, legally authorized to do business in this state, is hereby prohibited from authorizing or allowing any person, agent, firm or corporation that is a non-resident of the state of Texas to issue, or cause to be issued, to sign or countersign, or to deliver, or cause to be delivered, any policy or policies of insurance on property, person or persons located in the state of Texas, except through regularly commissioned and licensed agents of such companies in Texas; provided, however, that this law shall not apply to property owned by the railroad companies or other common carriers, and provided, further, that upon oath made in writing by any person that he can not procure insurance on property through such agents in Texas it shall be lawful for any insurance company not having an agent in Texas to insure property of any person upon application of said person, upon his filing said oath with the county clerk of the county in which such person resides. [Acts 1903, p. 232, sec. 1.]

Art. 4964. Affidavit to be filed before certificate will issue.—Before a certificate or license to any fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance companies is issued authorizing it to transact business in this state, the insurance commissioner shall require in every case, in addition to the other requirements already made and provided by the law, that each and all such insurance companies herein mentioned shall file with him an affidavit that it has not violated any provision of this law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4965. Agents, etc., prohibited from paying commissions to non-residents.—Any person, agent, firm or corporation licensed by the commissioner of insurance to act as a fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance agent in the state of Texas, is hereby prohibited from paying, directly or indirectly, any commission, brokerage or other valuable consideration on account of any policy or policies covering property, person or persons, in the state of Texas, to any person, persons, agent, firm or corporation that is a non-resident of the state of Texas, or to any person or persons, agent, firm or corporation not duly licensed by the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas as a fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance agent. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4966. Penalty for violation.—Whenever the commissioner of insurance and banking shall have or receive notice or information of any violation of any of the provisions of this law, he shall immediately investigate, or cause to be investigated, such violation, and if a fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance company has violated any of such provisions aforesaid, he shall immediately revoke its license for not less than three months, nor more than six months for the first offense, and, for each offense thereafter, for not less than one year; and, if any person, agent, firm or corporation licensed by the commissioner of insurance and banking as a fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance agent shall violate or cause to be violated any of the provisions of this law, he shall, for the first offense, have his license revoked for all companies for which he has been licensed, for not less than three months, and for the second offense he shall have his license revoked for all companies for which he is licensed and shall not thereafter be licensed for any company for one year from date of such revocation. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4967. Commissioner authorized to examine books, witnesses, to discover violations.—For the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this law, the commissioner of insurance and banking is hereby authorized and it is made his duty, at the expense of the company investigated, to examine at the head office, located within the United States of America, all books, records and papers of such company and also any officers or employes thereof under oath, as to violations of this law, and he is further hereby empowered to examine person or persons, administer oaths, and send for papers and records, and failure or refusal upon the part of any life [fire], fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance company, person or persons, agent, firm or corporation, licensed to do business in the state of Texas, to appear before the commissioner of insurance and banking when requested to do so, or to produce records and papers, or answer under oath, shall subject such fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance company, person, persons, agent, firm or corporation to the penalties of this law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Books, etc., transferred from department of insurance and banking.—See notes under Title 85.

Art. 4968. Solicitor deemed agent of company.—Any person who shall solicit an application for insurance upon the life of another shall in any controversy between the assured and his beneficiary and the company issuing any policy upon such application be regarded as the agent of the company, and not the agent of the insured, but such agent shall not have the power to waive, change or alter any of the terms or conditions of the application or policy. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 18.]

✓ Art. 4969. What persons debarred from acting as agent.—No corporation or stock company shall be licensed or granted a certificate of authority as the agent or representative of any life insurance company in soliciting, selling or in any manner placing life insurance policies or contracts in this state. No life insurance company shall, after June 30, 1903, be granted a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, which has or is bound by any valid subsisting contract with any other corporation, by virtue of which such other corporation is entitled to receive, directly or indirectly, in [any] percentage or portion of the premium or other income of such life insurance company for any period. No person shall hereafter be granted a certificate of authority as the agent of any life insurance company, who, after June 30, 1903, enters into any contract with any corporation other than such life insurance company, by virtue of which such other corporation is entitled to receive, directly or indirectly, any compensation earned by him as agent for such life insurance company, or any percentage or portion thereof for any period. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 4970. Company to notify commissioner of appointment of general agent.—Every such foreign company shall, by resolution of its board of directors, designate some officer or agent who is empowered to appoint or employ its agents or solicitors in this state, and such officer or agent shall promptly notify the commissioner in writing of the name, title and address of each person so appointed or employed. Upon receipt of this notice, if such person is of good reputation and character, the commissioner shall issue to him a certificate which shall include a copy of the certificate of authority authorizing the company requesting it to do business in this state, and the name and title of the person to whom the certificate is issued. Such certificate, unless sooner revoked by the commissioner for cause or canceled at the request of the company employing the holder thereof, shall continue in force until the first day of March next after its issuance, and must be renewed annually. [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 4971. Revocation of agent's authority, grounds for.—Cause for the revocation of the certificate of authority of an agent or solicitor for an insurance company may exist for violation of any of the insurance laws, or if it shall appear to the commissioner upon due proof, after notice that such agent or solicitor has knowingly deceived or defrauded a policy holder or a person having been solicited for insurance, or that such agent or solicitor has unreasonably failed and neglected to pay over to the company, or its agent entitled thereto, any premium or part thereof, collected by him on any policy of insurance or application therefor. The commissioner shall publish such revocation in such manner as he deems proper for the protection of the public; and no person whose certificate of authority as agent or solicitor has been revoked shall be entitled to again receive a certificate of authority as such agent or solicitor for any insurance company in this state for a period of one year. [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 4972. [3096ee] Foreign corporations held to accept provisions of this title.—The provisions of this title are conditions upon which foreign insurance corporations shall be permitted to do business within this state, and any such foreign corporations engaged in issuing insurance contracts or policies within this state shall be held to have assented thereto as a condition precedent to its right to engage in such business within this state. [Acts 1903, p. 94.]

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

INDEMNITY CONTRACTS

Art.

4972a. Certain indemnity contracts not subject to insurance laws.

4972b. Representative to file declaration with commissioner of insurance and banking, etc.; citations served on commissioner.

4972c. Annual report to commissioner.

Art.

4972d. Commissioner to issue certificate of authority, when; fee.

4972e. Corporations may exchange indemnity contracts.

4972f. Representative violating act, when guilty of misdemeanor; commissioner may reject application, or revoke certificate.

Article 4972a. Certain indemnity contracts not subject to insurance laws.—The making of contracts between individuals, firms or corporations, providing indemnity among each other, from casualty or other contingency or from fire loss or other damage to their own property, shall not be subject to the laws of this state, relating to insurance. [Acts 1913, p. 210, sec. 1.]

Art. 4972b. Representative to file declaration with commissioner of insurance and banking, etc.; citations served on commissioner.—The attorney, agent or other representative, acting for such individuals, firms or corporations, shall file with the commissioner of insurance and banking, of this state, a declaration in writing, verified by the oath of such attorney, agent or other representative, setting forth: (a) The name or title of the office through which such individuals, firms or corporations exchange such contracts. (b) A copy of the form of contract under or by which such indemnity is to be effected. (c) The location of the office or offices through which such contracts are to be issued. (d) That service of process may be had upon the commissioner of insurance and banking in this state, in all suits arising out of such contracts. Citation served upon the commissioner shall be accompanied by a certified copy of the petition, which shall be immediately sent by registered mail to the attorney of the concern, who shall have at least ten days thereafter within which to answer. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4972c. Annual report to commissioner.—Such attorney shall make a sworn report to the commissioner of insurance and banking, on or before the first day of March every year, showing the financial condition of the association at the office where such contracts are issued, on December 31st, immediately preceding. Such report shall show the income and disbursements of the association for the calendar year; the assets and liabilities on the 31st day of December; a statement of the total number and amount of indemnity contracts issued during the year, and the total number (but not the names) and amount outstanding on said date; together with such other information as the commissioner may require in order for him to ascertain and know that the requirements of this Act have been complied with. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4972d. Commissioner to issue certificate of authority, when; fee.—Every attorney, agent or other representative through whom are issued or negotiated any contracts, for indemnity of the character referred to in this Act, shall procure from the commissioner of insurance and banking annually a certificate of authority, stating that all the requirements of this Act which are applicable, have been complied with; and upon such compliance and the payment of the fee of $20.00 the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue such certificate. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4972e. Corporations may exchange indemnity contracts.—Any corporation now or hereafter organized under the laws of this state shall, in addition to the rights, powers and franchises specified in its articles of incorporation, have full power and authority to exchange indemnity contracts of the kind and character herein mentioned. The right to exchange such contracts is hereby declared to be incidental to the purposes for which such corporation is organized, and as such granted as the rights and powers expressly conferred. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4972f. Representative violating act, when guilty of misdemeanor; commissioner may reject application, or revoke certificate.—Any attorney, agent or other representative who shall take any application for or execute any of the contracts provided for herein, without complying with the provisions of this Act entitling him to a certificate of authority hereunder, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. The commissioner, for reasonable cause, shall have authority to reject any application made under this Act, or to revoke any certificate of authority granted hereunder. [Id. sec. 6.]

1. Duty to insure.—A builder is not required to protect himself against loss by fire by insuring the property of another which he is constructing or repairing; and if a fire occurs and destroys the structure during the progress of the work, his failure to do so will not be regarded as negligence. Weis v. Devlin, 67 T. 507, 3 S. W. 726, 60 Am. Rep. 38.

2. Notice to mortgagor of provisions of policy.—Where a mortgagee agreed to attend to the insurance on the mortgaged premises and procured policies of insurance thereon and retained them in its possession, the mortgagor was chargeable with notice of their provisions. Commonwealth Fire Ins. Co. v. Obenchain (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 611.

3. Insurable interest in property.—The surviving husband having possession of the community property of himself and deceased wife, with the right of disposition of it in the settlement of his business, has an insurable interest therein. Jones v. Jones, 15 T. 148; Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

One to whom a policy is payable as his interest may appear, and having a lien on the property, held to have an insurable interest entitling him to sue for a loss. Sun Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tufts, 20 C. A. 147, 50 S. W. 180.

A bailee having possession of property under an agreement to keep it insured may take out a policy in his own name for the benefit of the owner. Wagner v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co., 92 T. 549, 50 S. W. 569.

Grantor, who has deposited deed in escrow, has insurable interest, and may recover upon policy, if title remains in him at time of loss. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 193.

A husband has an insurable interest in property owned by his wife and minor children by a former husband, and occupied as the homestead of husband and wife. Continental Fire Ass'n v. Wingfield, 32 C. A. 194, 73 S. W. 847.

Evidence held to show that alleged mistake of insurance company in supposing that property insured belonged to person other than plaintiff was not due to negligence on its part. McCarty v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 C. A. 122, 75 S. W. 934.

4. Insurable interest in human life.—A creditor purchasing a policy of insurance upon the life of the debtor, upon the death of the debtor takes only his debt and the aggregate of premiums he has paid, with interest upon his debt and outlay. Cawthon v. Perry, 76 T. 383, 3 S. W. 268; Goldbaum v. Blum, 79 T. 638, 15 S. W. 564.

The insured can make any person a beneficiary in a life policy. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Blodgett, 27 S. W. 286, 8 C. A. 45.

It is against the public policy of this state to allow any one who has no insurable interest to be the owner of a policy of insurance upon the life of a human being. Cheeves v. Anders, 87 T. 287, 28 S. W. 274, 47 Am. St. Rep. 107.

A community creditor has no insurable interest in the life of the wife. Cameron v. Barcus, 31 C. A. 46, 71 S. W. 423.

Assignee of life policy, having no insurable interest in life insured, held not entitled to recover on the policy. Wilton v. New York Life Ins. Co., 34 C. A. 156, 78 S. W. 403.

Niece, having no expectation of pecuniary benefit from uncle, except occasional gift, held to have no insurable interest in his life. Id.

The rule that a wife's interest as assignee of a policy on her husband's life ceases on the divorce of the parties is applicable to an endowment policy issued to the husband. Hatch v. Hatch, 35 C. A. 373, 80 S. W. 411.

A wife's interest as assignee of a policy on her husband's life ceases on the divorce of the parties, except so far as she has paid premiums. Id.

One to whom insured assigns his life policy, not being a relative of his and not alleging any insurable interest in his life or in the policy, held not entitled to recover on it. Dugger v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 335.

An assignment of a life policy to one without insurable interest is valid in Texas only to the extent of reimbursing the assignee for the amount paid out by him. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 51.

5. Existence of contract.—Evidence held to show that no binding contract of insurance was created between the parties. Atkins v. New York Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 563.

6. Executory agreement to insure.—In the absence of any requirement in the by-laws or charter of a mutual insurance company, or of any statutory provision, its executory agreement to insure which leaves nothing to be done but to deliver the policy is valid. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 950.

7. Oral contracts.—A contract for life insurance may be effected by parol. Pacific Mut. Ins. Co. v. Shaffer, 30 C. A. 313, 70 S. W. 566.

A verbal contract of insurance held not consummated during the lifetime of the insured. Dickey v. Continental Casualty Co., 40 C. A. 199, 89 S. W. 436.

A contract of insurance can be effected by parol, and in the absence of any requirement in the by-laws or charter of a mutual insurance company, or of any statutory provision its oral contract of insurance which leaves nothing to be done but to issue and deliver the policy, is valid. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 950.

8. Ratification of contract.—A contract of insurance by an agent who acts for both parties is voidable, and if the insurer fails to refund the premium within a reasonable time after he is apprised of the fact he ratifies the contract. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. City of Smithville (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 412.

Where an insurance contract is voidable, the insured, by bringing suit on the contract before his premiums are returned, ratifies it, and may enforce it. Id.

Repudiation by an insurer on the ground that its agent had acted for insured held under the facts not sufficiently prompt. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

9. Acceptance of application.—A contract of life insurance is not completed until acceptance of the application. As to effect of retaining the premium, quære. Life Ins. Co. v. Rudolph, 45 T. 454.

10. Effect of altering application.—An insurance company, by altering an application for insurance, may be concluded from defenses reserved therein, without affecting the beneficiary's right to recover on the policy. Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Coalson, 22 C. A. 64, 54 S. W. 388.

11. Policy.—A policy of insurance is a mere chose in action, and is not subject to attachment or garnishment. Grace v. Koch, 1 App. C. C. § 1065; Hamilton v. E. T. Fire Ins. Co., 1 App. C. C. §§ 448, 449.

In the absence of any provision in an insurance company's charter, or in the statute under which it was organized, an absolute unconditional policy, issued thereby, will not be abrogated by the court as ultra vires. Continental Fire Ass'n v. Masonic Temple Co., 26 C. A. 139, 62 S. W. 930.

Evidence in an action on a fire insurance policy on lumber held insufficient to show fraud or mistake on the part of the insurance agent, in inserting in the policy a clause requiring a certain clear space surrounding the lumber. Keller v. Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co., 27 C. A. 102, 65 S. W. 695.

A policy of accident insurance issued to a man over 65 years of age held void under a condition therein. Perry v. Standard Life & Accident Ins. Co. of Detroit, Mich. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 374.

12. — Execution.—A life policy held not binding on the insured because not countersigned by the policy writer in the lifetime of the insured. Dickey v. Continental Casualty Co., 40 C. A. 199, 89 S. W. 436.

13. — What law governs.—Contracts made in another state by an insurance company, chartered by the laws of and doing business in such state, are governed by its laws. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 280.

Contract of insurance intended to be performed in the state held governed by the laws of the state. Sleders v. Merchants' Life Ass'n of United States (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 547.

The legal effect of an insurance contract, making the principal and premiums payable in a state other than that of the insured's residence, is to be determined by the laws of that state. Seiders v. Merchants' Life Ass'n of the United States, 93 T. 194, 54 S. W. 753.

The fact that the law requires foreign insurance companies, as a condition precedent to their doing business in Texas, to establish an office and appoint an agent upon whom service of process can be made, does not, where the principal and premiums are made payable in another state, operate to make the contract performable in, and its legal effect to be determined by the laws of, Texas. Id.

A contract of insurance held subject to the laws of the place of its issue, notwithstanding a limitation of liability until its delivery. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Harris, 94 T. 25, 57 S. W. 635, 86 Am. St. Rep. 813.

Where a life policy issued in Texas provides that it shall be governed by the laws of another state, the statutes applicable are considered as part of the written contract. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Orlopp, 25 C. A. 254, 61 S. W. 336.

Where a life policy provides that it shall be governed by the laws of a foreign state, the provisions of a statute applying thereto cannot be waived by the parties. Id.

Where a policy is to be construed by the laws of another state, in the absence of evidence as to such laws, it is not error to charge that it should be construed as under the law of the state where the court is sitting. Ash v. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n, 26 C. A. 501, 63 S. W. 944.

Provision of New York law regulating forfeitures of life policies held not to govern a policy application for which was made in Texas and which was delivered in Texas. Cowen v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 37 C. A. 430, 84 S. W. 404.

Provision of an insurance contract relating to the law governing its construction held to have no application whatever to an action brought in this state predicated upon a breach of the contract by insured. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 398.

14. — Construction in general.—An ordinary life insurance policy, payable to the heirs of the assured, vests title to the amount of the insurance in the heirs of the assured. Splawn v. Chew, 60 T. 532; Mullins v. Thompson, 51 T. 7; White v. Smith, 2 App. C. C. § 400.

The same rules of law apply in the construction of insurance contracts as in contracts in general. City Drug Store v. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 21.

An ambiguity in a policy of insurance must be construed in favor of indemnity and against a forfeiture. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tomkies, 30 C. A. 404, 71 S. W. 812.

Plain language of insurance policy cannot be disregarded, so as to make a new contract for parties. Maryland Casualty Co. v. Hudgins, 97 T. 124, 76 S. W. 745, 64 L. R. A. 249, 104 Am. St. Rep. 857, 1 Ann. Cas. 252.

The language of an insurance policy should be construed most favorably to the insured. London & L. Fire Ins. Co. v. Davis, 37 C. A. 348, 84 S. W. 260.

An application for insurance, the policy issued thereon and the notes given for the premiums held part of one transaction, and must be considered together in ascertaining the terms of the policy. North American Acc. Ins. Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 163.

The rule that a policy must be construed most liberally in favor of the beneficiary has no application where there is no ambiguity nor uncertainty in the language sought to be construed. Continental Casualty Co. v. Wade, 101 T. 102, 105 S. W. 35.

Where the language of an indemnity contract is susceptible of more than one construction, that construction most favorable to the party indemnified should be adopted; the company having prepared the obligation and chosen the language used. Griffin v. Zuber, 52 C. A. 288, 113 S. W. 961.

Where the language of a fire policy is susceptible of another than the literal construction, that construction will be adopted which is most favorable to insured. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 117.

Where the language of a contract of insurance is plain and unambiguous, the contract must be enforced as written, but such construction as will preserve the intention of the parties must be adopted. Id.

The court, in construing a fire policy, held required to adopt the construction giving to insured the protection under the general terms thereof, and relieving insurer from any increased hazard against which it undertook to provide. Id.

Where a policy is capable of two interpretations equally reasonable, that construction most favorable to insured must be adopted. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 465.

Where a contract was prepared by an insurance company, it must be construed most favorably to the assured. Dorroh-Kelly Mercantile Co. v. Orient Ins. Co., 104 T. 199, 135 S. W. 1165.

An insurance policy must be liberally construed in favor of the insured and against a forfeiture. Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of the Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Neurenberg (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 357.

A condition of forfeiture must be construed against the insurer, and so as to prevent a forfeiture if the language used will admit of such a construction. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 398.

15. — Consideration.—Though an application for a fire policy did not promise to pay the premium on the delivery of the policy, the obligation to pay the premium held a consideration for the policy on which insurer could sue. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

16. — Delivery and acceptance.—A contract may be consummated by letter deposited in the postoffice; and when an offer is made contemplating an acceptance in this manner, and a letter accepting is properly mailed, the agreement is complete; but to be properly mailed, the letter should be duly posted, and the date of the posting must determine the date of the contract. Blake v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 160, 2 S. W. 368, 60 Am. Rep. 15.

The holder of a policy of insurance, who has an opportunity to inspect it before he accepts it, is chargeable with knowledge of its contents, in the absence of fraud, misrepresentation or concealment. Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63.

A delivery of a policy to the broker or agent appointed by the insured to procure it is a delivery to the latter. Holmes v. Thomason, 25 C. A. 389, 61 S. W. 504.

The delivery of a policy by an insurance company in accordance with a written application constitutes a contract between the parties. Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Jones, 32 C. A. 146, 73 S. W. 978.

Facts held insufficient to show an acceptance of a policy intended for conditional delivery only. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Hocker, 39 C. A. 330, 89 S. W. 26.

Actual or constructive delivery of an insurance policy is essential to its validity. American Home Life Ins. Co. v. Melton (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 362.

A mere intention by the officer executing a life policy that it should become effective as soon as executed held not to make it effective. Id.

17. — Validity of policy issued while another was in force.—Where insured erroneously believing that a prior fire policy had terminated, procured a new policy, the new policy held effective. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 475.

18. — Property covered.—A marine policy on property in general terms, "laden or to be laden on board," will not cover property laden upon deck; but if the property is named, and is such as is usually carried on deck in the particular trade, the policy will cover property so carried. If a general usage to carry goods on deck exists, contracts of underwriters in the particular trade will be construed with reference to such usage. O. M. Ins. Co. v. Reymershoffer, 56 T. 234; Meaheer v. Lufkin, 21 T. 391.

An open policy covered property belonging to the insured, or held by it in trust, or on commission, or sold and not delivered. The insured advanced money to a third party to purchase cotton under an agreement to return the money when the cotton was sold, and if it was shipped that the bill should be taken in the name of the insured. Held, that the cotton was not covered by the policy. First Nat. Bank v. Lancashire Ins. Co., 62 T. 461.

Policy construed, and held to cover cotton for which a railroad company issued bills of lading while in compress yard. Germania Ins. Co. v. Anderson, 15 C. A. 551, 40 S. W. 200.

A policy on furniture whose value exceeded the amount of the policy held not to attach to furniture subsequently purchased. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 109.

Insurance policy construed, and held not to cover personal property in a building other than that described in the policy. British America Assur. Co. v. Miller, 91 T. 414, 44 S. W. 60, 39 L. R. A. 545, 66 Am. St. Rep. 901.

Policy construed, and held to cover the entire house, together with a specified personal property therein. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1131.

When policy covers specified contents of saloon, and afterwards a safe is placed in the saloon upon which a mortgage is given, the safe is not covered by the policy, and therefore the mortgage does not avoid it. Moriarty v. U. S. Fire Ins. Co., 19 C. A. 669, 49 S. W. 132.

A policy of insurance construed and held to cover cars which were out of repair and standing on storage tracks. Philadelphia Underwriters v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 104, 71 S. W. 419.

Goods stored with one are within the insurance policy taken out by him on goods "held in trust." Southern Cold Storage & Produce Co. v. A. F. Dechman & Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 545.

A fire policy held not to cover dental books. American Fire Ins. Co. v. Bell, 33 C. A. 11, 75 S. W. 319.

A fire policy held to cover cotton on open cars placed on a spur track adjacent to a depot preparatory to the transportation thereof on such cars. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 117.

Fire insurance covers gifts. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Frosch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 600.

A bank safe held furniture within a policy insuring the bank's furniture and fixtures. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. (Mut.) of Waco v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1083.

A fire policy on stock of "grain" in a warehouse covers "bran." German Fire Ins. Co. v. Peoria v. Walker (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 606.

A policy "on merchandise consisting of clothing made and in process of making, and materials for same," embraces all goods, wares, and merchandise on hand and the tools and implements of the business as conducted by insured. Oklahoma Fire Ins. Co. v. McKey (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 440.

19. — Valued policy.—A policy which does not indicate an intention of the insurer to value the risk and loss held not a valued policy. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 283.

20. — Estoppel of insured as to objections.—Insured was not estopped from asserting that a life policy was procured by misrepresentations, where he declined to accept the policy written so as to mature differently from the time represented, and received possession of it solely to deliver it to the company's adjuster. Stengel v. Colorado Nat. Life Assur. Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1193.

21. — Modification.—It is not within the power of an insurer against the consent of the insured to substitute another insurer in the carrying out of its undertakings. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 398.

In action by insured for recovery of premiums and damages for the insurer's breach of its contract, held that a company which had taken over the contracts and assets of the original company and had assumed its obligations was liable. Id.

22. — Reformation.—Policy will not be reformed on a ground of mistake in inserting name of owner eight months after delivery and after property has been burned. Wagner v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 49.

Fact that insurance agent negligently omitted to follow directions of insured in writing application held no ground for reformation of the application. Cowen v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 37 C. A. 430, 84 S. W. 404.

One suing on a fire policy which misdescribes the building in which the property insured was located need not, in order to recover, first secure a reformation of the policy. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Brannon, 99 T. 391, 89 S. W. 1057, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 548, 13 Ann. Cas. 1020.

An insured held not precluded from having a mistake in the policy corrected. Id.

A policy, which by mutual mistake does not embody the intent of the parties, may be reformed. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 283.

An insurance policy may be reformed after, as well as before, loss, if assured has not been guilty of laches. Id.

A fire policy, not accepted by insured, but returned to insurer and canceled by insurer, held not the subject of reformation. Jefferson Fire Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Greenwood (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 319.

23. — Renewal.—The fact that a contract to renew a fire policy was entered into in August while the policy did not expire until the following March held not to affect the validity of the contract. Orient Ins. Co. v. Wingfield, 49 C. A. 202, 108 S. W. 788.

The jury held authorized to find the existence of a contract to renew an insurance policy. Id.

Payment of premium is not essential to the validity of a contract to renew a fire policy, and in ascertaining whether payment of the premium has waived the course of dealing between the parties may be looked to. Id.

An action held maintainable on a contract to renew a fire policy where no renewal policy was issued. Id.

A contract to renew a fire policy held presumptively to call for a policy exactly similar to the old one. Id.

24. — Loans on policies.—An insurance company held not compelled to make a loan to plaintiff according to the terms of a policy issued to him, unless he satisfies his divorced wife's lien on the policy to the amount of premiums paid by her. Hatch v. Hatch, 35 C. A. 373, 80 S. W. 411.

25. Premiums.—A policy is valid, though the premium be never paid, if a credit was intentionally given, unless it has actually been canceled before loss. E. T. Fire Ins. Co. v. Mims, 1 App. C. C. § 1323.

An insurance premium held payable at any time within the days of grace allowed, not being due at 5 o'clock p. m. of the last day of grace. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 778.

Where the last day for the payment of a premium on an insurance policy falls on Sunday, the party has until the succeeding Monday to pay the premium. Id.

Where the cash part of a quarterly premium due in June and payable in advance was unpaid, the insured had no right to require the company to apply thereon a distribution of less than the full cash part of the premium, paid some time in August under an independent "board contract," since he had no right to require the acceptance of less than the full cash part of the premium. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 293.

While the rate is an element of the contract which must be agreed upon, yet where the policy is for one year and the proximate amount of the premium is known, and the exact amount is a mere matter of calculation, and the applicant agreed to pay whatever amount the premium should be, the contract can be enforced. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 950.

26. — Authority of agent.—Authority in an agent to collect premiums does not authorize him to accept property. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Cole, 13 C. A. 486, 35 S. W. 720.

Under certain circumstances, agent of insurance company held empowered to extend payment of premiums. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Berwald (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 436.

In action on insurance policy, evidence held not to tend to show that an extension of time of payment of premiums was applied for, or given, or that the insurer's collecting agents had power to grant such extension. Cowen v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 37 C. A. 430, 84 S. W. 404.

An agent of a life insurance company held to have authority to make a verbal agreement with an applicant for a policy that a premium note signed by the applicant shall be surrendered in case he declines to receive the policy. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Seidel, 52 C. A. 278, 113 S. W. 945.

A cashier of an insurance company held authorized to extend the time for the payment of an annual premium on a policy. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 184.

Provision in a contract of general agency for a life insurance company as to collecting renewal premiums on policies written by others held not to require the company to allow such agent to collect them. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Reinhardt (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 596.

A general agent of an insurance company, even though in violation of the rules and regulations of his principal, may give credit for premiums. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 950.

27. — Notice of maturity.—Life policy issued by a New York company held governed by the statutes of New York as to notice, though policy provides for a waiver thereof. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 680.

Under a New York statute and a policy of insurance, the insurance company held required to give notice of maturity of premiums to nonresidents of that state. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Berwald (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 436.

28. — Payment by check or note.—A negotiable note received by the agent of the insurance company is a sufficient payment of the premiums. E. T. Fire Ins. Co. v. Mims,

1 App. C. C. § 1324. Payment of the premium to an agent in a draft is a valid payment, although prohibited, if the draft was collected. Life Ins. Co. v. Ray, 50 T. 511.

A company held to have either accepted a check as payment of the premium of a life policy, or to have waived strict compliance with its terms in regard thereto. Northwestern Life Assur. Co. v. Sturdevant, 24 C. A. 331, 59 S. W. 61.

An insurance company held justified in returning a check to an agent of the insured without notifying the insured of its nonacceptance. Mullins v. Hartford Life Ins. Co., 26 C. A. 383, 63 S. W. 909.

Notes accepted by life insurance agent held not subject to the provision in the policy for a forfeiture for the nonpayment of premium notes. Reppond v. National Life Ins. Co., 100 T. 519, 101 S. W. 786, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 981, 15 Ann. Cas. 618.

A life insurance agent held to have apparent authority to accept notes for less than the full amount of the first annual premiums on taking applications for insurance. Security Life Ins. Co. of America v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1137.

29. — Liability for premiums paid by creditor or insurance agent.—Where an insurance agent paid the premium on a policy, and took the note of the insured for the amount so paid, there was full consideration for the note, though the company was insolvent, and soon thereafter failed. Hudson v. Compere, 94 T. 449, 61 S. W. 389.

A debtor held not liable for premiums paid by a creditor on insurance taken out by the creditor for his own benefit on the debtor's life, in the absence of an agreement imposing such liability. Stacy v. Parker (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 532.

30. — Grounds for nonpayment in general.—Refusal of the company to change the beneficiary in a life insurance policy held no defense to an action on note for the premium. Harris v. Scrivener (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 705.

Failure of insurer to notify plaintiff of the amount of a premium due on a specified date held not to relieve him of the duty of paying an amount on that date equal to the last preceding premium. Kray v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 50 C. A. 555, 111 S. W. 421.

31. — Failure of consideration.—Where defendant discovered that certain policies had been issued to him through plaintiff's fraud before any part of the insurance contract had been performed by the insurance company, there was an entire failure of consideration for notes given for the premium thereon. Curry v. Stone (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 263.

In an action on a note given for a first premium of a life insurance policy, evidence held to establish a total failure of consideration. Struve v. Moore (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1175.

32. — Evidence as to payment.—Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the premium of a fire insurance policy had been paid. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Cameron, 18 C. A. 237, 45 S. W. 153.

In an action where the wife of insured contested the right of a beneficiary to the proceeds of a policy, the premium of which had been paid out of the community estate of the husband and wife, evidence held insufficient to show that such payments were a fraud on the wife. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

33. — Refunding or recovery of premiums paid.—A policy holder who had paid the premium by giving notes to the agent held entitled to the return of the entire unearned premium on the cancellation of the policy. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Munger Improved Cotton-Mach. Mfg. Co., 92 T. 297, 49 S. W. 222.

Under provision of policy providing for cancellation at request of either party on return of premium, where company's agent takes note for portion of premium and reports the premium as paid before cancellation the company must return so much of the unearned premium as exceeds the amount of the note. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Munger Improved Cotton-Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

Miscarriage of mail held insufficient to excuse failure to give required notice of action on application for insurance and repayment of premium. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Elliott, 93 T. 144, 53 S. W. 1014.

An insurance company, having sold a note given by the insurer for the first premium, is liable to the insured for the amount thereof on its breach of the insurance contract. American Union Life Ins. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 685.

Insured in a fire policy canceled at his solicitation held to have waived the repayment of the unearned premium as a prerequisite to the cancellation. Ragley Lumber Co. v. Insurance Co. of North America, 42 C. A. 511, 94 S. W. 185.

The fact that an insurance agent who had received a premium note from an applicant for insurance which he promised to return in case the policy was not accepted negotiated the note and at once disappeared supported a finding that the promise to return the note was made with intent to defraud. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Seidel, 52 C. A. 278, 113 S. W. 945.

An action against a life insurance company to recover the amount of a premium note delivered to defendant's agent by plaintiff on his applying for a policy held to be an action for rescission, and not one for damages for deceit so as to permit plaintiff to relief on the ground of fraud of the agent. Id.

Where a contract for life insurance was not fully consummated, the applicant for a policy was entitled to recover from the insurance company the amount of a note delivered to the agent of the company which note the agent agreed to return to the applicant in case he did not accept the policy. Id.

Defendant S., having applied for a $50,000 policy and executed a negotiable note for a part of the premium which the agent transferred, held entitled to reject a policy for $20,000, and to protection by the insurance company against liability on the note. Security Life Ins. Co. of America v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1137.

34. Right to assign policy.—The right of the insured to transfer policy cannot be affected by acts of the insurer subsequent to the issuance of the policy. Scottish-Union & National Ins. Co. v. Andrews & Matthews, 40 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 419.

A life insurance policy held assignable by assured to his creditor as security for the debt as against the rights of the beneficiary. McNeill v. Chinn, 45 C. A. 551, 101 S. W. 465.

The beneficiary in an ordinary life insurance policy takes a vested interest which cannot be affected by the acts of the insured, unless the policy contains a reservation that the insured may change the beneficiary or assign the policy, etc. Id.

35. — What law governs.—Assignment of certain policies in Texas to an assignee residing in Georgia held governed by the laws of Texas. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 51.

36. Form of transfer of policy.—A parol transfer or gift of a life insurance policy, accompanied by a delivery thereof, is effective to transfer the proceeds of the policy. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

Provisions of a policy with reference to the forms by which the policy might be assigned or the beneficiary changed held for the benefit of insurer, which it was entitled to waive. McNeill v. Chinn, 45 C. A. 551, 101 S. W. 465.

37. Consideration for transfer of policy.—Policies payable to insured, his executors or assigns, held assets which he could transfer with or without consideration, in the absence of a fraudulent intent to hinder or delay creditors. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

38. Consent of insurer to assignment.—The consent of the insurer to the transfer of a fire policy to a purchaser of the property inures to the benefit of the co-owner, though his name be not expressly mentioned. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 643.

Certain insurance agents held to have apparent authority to consent to a transfer of insurance on transfer of the property. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 283.

39. Consent of beneficiary to assignment.—Under a life policy held, that a new beneficiary might be substituted without the consent of the old. Fuos v. Dietrich (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 291.

40. Delivery of assignment.—Mailing assignment in duplicate of policy to insurer, in compliance with policy, is sufficient delivery to assignee. Burges v. New York Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 602.

Actual delivery of assignment of policy to assignee, who was assignor's adopted child, was unnecessary to validate assignment. Id.

Delivery of an assignment of certain policies to assignee's agent held sufficient to pass title without payment of the consideration or delivery of the policies. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 51.

41. Rights of assignee.—Where insurance policies were indorsed payable to a mortgagee, such mortgagee had an interest in the policies of which it could not be deprived by the acts of the owner and insurers in canceling such indorsement and making new ones to the owner without its consent. Security Co. v. Panhandle Nat. Bank, 93 T. 575, 57 S. W. 22.

The assignee of an insurance policy held entitled to recover premiums paid on the strength of the assignment. Stevens v. Germania Life Ins. Co., 26 C. A. 156, 62 S. W. 824.

Assignee of policy of fire insurance, knowing that the delivery of the policy was unauthorized, that it had never been accepted by the insured, and that on failure to pay premiums it was automatically canceled, held not entitled to recover. Polk v. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1126.

42. Rights of beneficiary after transfer.—Where policy on life of husband payable to wife is transferred to secure husband's debt, when the debt is barred it may be sued on by wife. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Gooding, 19 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 123.

43. Validity of assignment in general.—An instrument held, as against the old beneficiary in a life policy, to be a substitution of a new beneficiary; the provision in the policy for a particular manner of evidencing any change in beneficiary being for the benefit of the company, which alone could claim it. Fuos v. Dietrich (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 291.

44. Effect of transfer.—The transfer of a life insurance policy held to operate as an assignment of the proceeds of the policy to plaintiff as security for a debt and as a change of beneficiary from insured's daughter to his wife. McNeill v. Chinn, 45 C. A. 551, 101 S. W. 465.

45. Cancellation of policy.—A policy which provides that the insurance may be terminated at any time at the option of the company is avoided from the time when the insured has notice that the proper local agent is instructed that the risk is terminated, the premium not having been paid. S. F. & M. Ins. Co. v. McKinnon, 59 T. 507.

A fire policy may be canceled when the right to do so is reserved, by notice to the insured that the policy is terminated and return of the unearned premium. Continental Ins. Co. v. Busby, 3 App. C. C. § 101; Planters' Ins. Co. v. Walker Lodge, 1 App. C. C. § 758.

Facts held sufficient to constitute a cancellation of a policy of insurance. Lampasas Hotel & Park Co. v. Home Ins. Co., 17 C. A. 615, 43 S. W. 1081.

Notice of cancellation of a fire insurance policy, unaccompanied by a payment or tender of unearned premium, held insufficient to cancel the policy. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Cameron, 18 C. A. 237, 45 S. W. 158.

46. Abandonment of policy by insured.—Evidence held not to show an abandonment of a life policy by the insured. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Berwald (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 436.

The act of insured in taking out a life policy in another company held not an abandonment of his first policy, in the absence of consent by the beneficiary. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Berwald, 97 T. 111, 76 S. W. 442, 1 Ann. Cas. 682.

47. Rescission of policy by insured.—The unauthorized and unratified appointment of insured to a committee of reference for the insurance company held a breach of the policy and contract between insured and the insurance agent, entitling insured to rescind. American Union Life Ins. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 685.

Applicant held not estopped to deny knowledge of falsity of representations of insurance agent, though he could have informed himself from means at hand. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 560.

Where policies were issued on an application containing false statements written therein by insurer's agent, it was insured's duty, on discovering the fraud, to disclose the same to the insurance company, and tender the policy for cancellation. Curry v. Stone (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 263.

One applying for a life policy held not estopped from complaining of the falsity of the representations made by the agent soliciting the insurance. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hargus (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 580.

In an action by an insured for the cancellation of a life policy based on the fraudulent representations of the soliciting agent, the action of the court in informing the jury that the insured was not estopped from showing the kind of policy agreed on held proper. Id.

48. Rescission of policy by agreement.—Action of insurance company in demanding payment of premium held a rejection of insured's offer of rescission of policy. Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Jones, 32 C. A. 146, 73 S. W. 978.

Death of insured revokes all offers of cancellation made by him prior to his death, and not accepted by insurer prior thereto. Id.

Rights of parties to contract of insurance having become fixed by death of insured, insurance company could not then accept insured's offer of cancellation by withdrawal of its order for payment of premium. Id.

Plaintiff held not estopped by her conduct from collecting amount of insurance policy by suit. Id.

49. Condition precedent to action to rescind policy.—In suit to avoid insurance contract, held not necessary for plaintiff to offer payment of premiums; nor could defendant be prejudiced by plaintiff's retention of binding receipt or policy. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 560.

50. Remedies for wrongful cancellation of policy.—Present value of a life policy, not paid up, stated. Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias v. Neeley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1046.

Evidence in an action to recover premiums and for damages for breach of its contract held sufficient to support a finding that the original insurer had transferred all of its assets to another company, and that the two companies had been consolidated; that the correspondence between plaintiff and the original insurer showed that plaintiff must look to a substituted company for all information touching his rights; that the insurer's president admitted to plaintiff that the insurer had gone out of business; and that the insurer had abandoned the performance of its contracts. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 398.

Where insurer assigned its policies, transferred its assets, shifted to another company its obligation to an insured, and placed it beyond its own power to perform such obligation, except so far as it could compel performance by such other company, there was a breach of its contract entitling the insured to a recovery, and that the assignee was solvent and able and willing to carry out the original contract did not prevent a breach. Id.

51. Damages recoverable from insurer on cancellation or breach of contract.—In an action by an insured for the cancellation of a life policy, based on the fraudulent representations of the soliciting agent of the insurer, the insurer held not liable for exemplary damages. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hargus (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 580.

On breach or repudiation of its contract by the insurer, the insured, during his lifetime, has a present right of action for the recovery of damages. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 398.

The measure of damages in an action by an insured to recover premiums and damages for the insurer's breach of contract stated. Id.

52. Forfeiture of policy for breach of promissory warranty, covenant or condition subsequent.—An open policy covered property of the insured situated in certain storehouses, to be specified in the book attached to the policy. The property having been removed from the place named was not thereafter covered by the policy. First Nat. Bank v. Lancashire Ins. Co., 62 T. 46L.

Wearing apparel, jewelry, etc., described in an insurance policy as being insured "while located and contained as described herein and not elsewhere," and "all while contained in the above-described building," are not covered by the policy if the loss occurs in another house. British-America Assurance Co. v. Miller, 91 T. 414, 44 S. W. 60, 39 L. R. A. 545, 66 Am. St. Rep. 901.

Temporary breach of policy, where there is no specific forfeiture attached, and which breach does not exist when loss occurs, and which does not contribute to loss, does not defeat recovery on the policy. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Munger Imp. Cotton Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

Forfeiture clauses will be construed most strongly against the insurer. Scottish-Union & National Ins. Co. v. Andrews & Matthews, 40 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 419.

If the language in an insurance policy is fairly susceptible of a construction preventing a forfeiture, such construction will be adopted. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 778.

Forfeitures will not be given effect unless the facts on which they depend bring the case clearly within the provisions of the policy. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Society v. Cheaney Bros. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1163.

Approval by an insurance company of an assignment of a policy held to constitute a new contract, whereby the assignee could not be charged with prior breaches of the policy. National Fire Ins. Co. v. J. W. Caraway & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 458.

Where on the sale of insured property the insurance was assigned to the grantees, they were the "assured" within the terms of a rider protecting the grantor's reserved interest, and hence the latter could only recover in case of loss such an amount as was recoverable by the grantees. Dumphy v. Commercial Union Assur. Co., Limited, of London (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 116.

53. — Statutory provisions.—Statutes cannot change rights of parties to policy executed under previous statutes. Germania Life Ins. Co. v. Peetz (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 687.

Statute as to forfeiture of policy is part of policy. Id.

54. — What law governs.—A contract of insurance made in Texas held governed by the laws of New York, where the home office of the company was located. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Bradley (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 367.

Life insurance policy taken out in Texas held, under term of policy, not governed by statute of New York relative to notice to pay premiums as condition of forfeiture. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Bradley, 98 T. 230, 82 S. W. 1031, 68 L. R. A. 509.

55. — Proceedings to give effect to forfeiture.—When an insurance policy provides that it shall be forfeited for nonpayment of premiums before a stipulated date, time is of the essence of the contract and the failure to so pay terminates it ipso facto. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 147 S. W. 1152.

A provision avoiding a fire policy held not to make it ipso facto void by the issuance of a second policy on the property by another company. Southern Nat. Ins. Co. of Austin v. Barr (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 845.

Under the provisions of insurer's receipt and of a note given to extend a policy until default in payment of the note when all rights thereunder should cease and the policy be ipso facto null and void, failure to pay the note at maturity forfeited the policy, and no action on the part of the insurer was required to declare such forfeiture. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 293.

56. — Change in occupancy of building.—A recital in a policy that the house insured is occupied for a particular purpose is a warranty that it shall be occupied for no other purpose. Banking Co. v. Stone, 49 T. 4.

Where the insured agreed to obtain the insurer's consent to vacancy or change of occupancy, held not error to define "occupancy" as such occupancy as the parties might be presumed to have intended. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Brady (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 513.

57. — Building becoming vacant.—Where there was a stipulation in a policy that it was to become void, "if the premises become vacant and so remain for thirty days," etc., it was immaterial whether or not the risk is increased thereby. Insurance Co. v. Long, 51 T. 89.

Where, for extra compensation paid, there was a stipulation that the building might remain vacant for sixty days, "all openings to be kept securely closed," the insurer cannot defeat a recovery in case of loss unless he shows that the insured negligently permitted the openings to remain unclosed, that the risk was thereby increased, and the property was probably destroyed by reason of such negligence. Eakin v. Home Ins. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 370.

A temporary vacancy, for the time reasonably necessary for the outgoing tenant to remove his goods and the incoming tenant to place his in the building, is not within a clause in a policy avoiding it if the building became vacant. East Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 999; Id., 12 C. A. 533, 34 S. W. 393.

A vacancy of three days avoids a policy containing such a stipulation. Fire Ins. Co. v. Kempner, 87 T. 229, 27 S. W. 122, 47 Am. St. Rep. 99.

Where defendant left a large part of his furniture in the house, and placed a room in possession of a servant, who slept there, the house did not become vacant within the meaning of a contract of insurance. German-American Ins. Co. v. Evans, 94 T. 490, 62 S. W. 417.

An insured house held to have been occupied when destroyed by fire, within a provision of the policy. Agricultural Ins. Co. of Watertown, N. Y., v. Owens (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 828.

A policy upon several buildings which provided for lapse if any one of them remained vacant for more than 10 days is avoided where only one is vacant. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 266.

58. — Falling of building.—Cupola of building, blown off in a storm, held to be a material part of the building, within provision of fire policy by which it was avoided if a material part of the building fell. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tomkies, 96 T. 187, 71 S. W. 814; Id., 30 C. A. 404, 71 S. W. 812.

59. — Special causes increasing risk.—"Increased hazard," referred to in a fire policy, did not include dangerous conditions on adjacent premises. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 465.

Increased hazard for which a fire policy can be forfeited held limited to hazards resulting from physical changes in the property. Id.

Insurer held not entitled to claim that an anonymous letter received by insured increased the risk, in the absence of proof by insurer that the conditions referred to in the letter actually existed to insured's knowledge. Id.

A fire policy providing for forfeiture for an increase of hazard by any means within the control or knowledge of insured held not to require insured to communicate an increase of hazard arising from knowledge of an attempt by others to burn adjoining property. Id.

The hazard insured against under a fire policy defined, and held to include losses from incendiary fires communicated from other premises. Id.

An increase in hazard within a fire policy must be determined by a comparison with the conditions existing when the policy was written. Id.

In an action on a fire insurance policy, evidence held to show that plaintiff increased the risk. Simpson v. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 491.

A single effort by an unknown person to set fire to property covered by a fire policy held not within a stipulation of the policy. Williamsburgh City Fire Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1097.

60. — Precautions against loss.—A provision of a policy, making it void if the hazard be increased by any means within the control or knowledge of the insured, held not to avoid the policy because, on attempt of a third person to burn the property, insured did not notify the insurer, or do anything to prevent its repetition. Williamsburgh City Fire Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co., 103 T. 608, 132 S. W. 121, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 603.

A warranty in a policy of marine insurance that a competent watchman should always be on board was sufficiently complied with where a competent member of the crew was always detailed as a watchman; the fact that different members of the crew were required to stand different watches, and that they also performed other duties, not being in violation of the warranty. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.

Such warranty is complied with by the providing of a competent watchman, and the fact that he was asleep at the time of the accident will not avoid the policy. Id.

61. — Additional insurance.—A provision that no additional insurance upon the same property shall be obtained without the consent of the company, expressed in writing on the policy, is reasonable and valid. N. O. Ins. Ass'n v. Griffin, 66 T. 232, 18 S. W. 505. See Hartford Ins. Co. v. McLemore, 7 C. A. 317, 26 S. W. 928.

Additional insurance defined. Guinn v. Insurance Co. (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 566.

A condition in a policy not to take additional insurance without notice to the insurer held not a warranty imposing forfeiture for breach. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Carter, 23 C. A. 359, 57 S. W. 315.

A stipulation in a policy avoiding it if other insurance is taken out without insurer's consent is reasonable and proper. Orient Ins. Co. v. Prather, 25 C. A. 446, 62 S. W. 89.

In an action on a fire policy, defended on the ground that plaintiff violated the provision against additional insurance, evidence that plaintiff notified defendant's agent that he had procured additional insurance held insufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Eastman (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 431.

The rights of an insurer, under accident policies limiting the issuance of one policy to a person for a single period, held not affected by its failure to return to the insured before the injury to him the premium paid under one of the two policies issued to one person for a single period. Wilkinson v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1016.

Stipulations in accident policies issued to the same person at the same time for a single period held to render one of the policies void. Id.

A verdict for defendant held properly directed in an action on a fire policy; additional insurance having been taken out without a permit. Works, Pritchett & May v. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 42.

Under the provisions of a policy, held that an overvaluation in obtaining concurrent insurance did not avoid the policy. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Waggener, 44 C. A. 144, 97 S. W. 541.

Strict compliance with a clause in a fire insurance policy, forbidding other concurrent insurance unless permitted, is essential to a recovery. Gross v. Colonial Assur. Co., 56 C. A. 627, 121 S. W. 517.

In an action on an insurance policy, evidence held to show that plaintiff had no insurance except that represented by the policy of defendant. Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Fordtran (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 692.

Evidence held insufficient to show that insured goods from one stable were so intermingled with insured goods in another stable, so as to avoid a policy providing for its avoidance in case insured obtained other insurance. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Society v. Cheaney Bros. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1163.

That other insurance shall constitute additional insurance within a policy, the property covered by both policies must be the same. Id.

That insured after ascertaining a contemplated arson on adjoining premises took out additional insurance held not to constitute such fraud as would void the policy sued on if the new policy did not exceed the amount of the current insurance authorized by the contract in question. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 465.

A fire policy held invalidated by the procurement by insured of additional insurance. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 475.

A stipulation in a fire policy as to additional insurance held to include an invalid additional policy. Id.

The cancellation of a new fire policy after a fire held not to prevent a forfeiture of the original policy stipulating against additional insurance. Id.

Violation by insured of a provision in a fire policy prohibiting other insurance forfeits the policy. Dumphy v. Commercial Union Assur. Co., Limited, of London (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 116.

A conveyance of property insured, reserving to the vendor a lien for the unpaid portion of the price and assignment of a fire policy thereon, held to create a new contract of insurance in which the vendees were the "insured." Id.

Where a lienholder procured additional insurance without authority of the owner, who had procured a policy stipulating that it should be void if insured procured other insurance, the owner's policy was not void. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

62. — Taking inventory and keeping books and safe.—Failure to keep books or inventory as violation of Art. 4947, see notes under that article.

The "iron safe" clause is a stipulation that the books of account, with the last inventory, shall be kept in a fireproof safe at night, etc., and constitutes a warranty on the part of the insured, and compliance with it is necessary to a recovery. Banking Co. v. Stone, 49 T. 11; Goddard v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 69, 1 S. W. 906, 60 Am. Rep. 1; Kelly-Goodfellow Shoe Co. v. Liberty Ins. Co., 28 S. W. 1027, 8 C. A. 227; American Fire Ins. Co. v. Center (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 554; Palatine Ins. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 462; N. W. Ins. Co. v. Mize (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 670; Brown v. Insurance Co., 89 T. 590, 35 S. W. 1060; Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 590.

A refusal to produce books, etc., when required, does not avoid the policy, but is a subject of comment before the jury. Insurance Co. v. Starr, 71 T. 733, 12 S. W. 45.

Iron safe clause. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. O'Neal, 14 C. A. 516, 38 S. W. 62; Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. McKinley, 14 C. A. 7, 37 S. W. 606; Allred v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 95; Roberts, Willis & Taylor Co. v. Sun Mut. Ins. Co., 13 C. A. 64, 35 S. W. 955; Brown v. Palatine Ins. Co., 89 T. 590, 35 S. W. 1060.

Evidence held to establish a violation of a clause requiring the keeping of a set of books showing sales by insured. Beville v. Merchants' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 914.

An "inventory" held to mean an itemized enumeration of articles of merchandise, with prices. Roberts, Willis & Taylor Co. v. Sun Mut. Ins. Co., 19 C. A. 338, 48 S. W. 559.

An "iron safe" clause held to be a promissory warranty. Id.

A policy held divisible, and hence breach of iron safe clause did not preclude recovery for fixtures. Sun Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tufts, 20 C. A. 147, 50 S. W. 180.

Failure to comply with a condition requiring an inventory to be kept in a fireproof safe held not ground for avoiding policy. Kemendo v. Western Assur. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 293.

A substantial compliance with an iron-safe clause held necessary to entitle the assured to the benefits of his policy. Western Assur. Co. v. Kemendo, 94 T. 367, 60 S. W. 661.

The insured is responsible for the negligence of his employes in the performance of a condition in the policy requiring the preservation of an inventory of the insured property. Id.

The furnishing by insured of invoices of goods placed in the insured's store held not a substantial compliance with condition of policy requiring an inventory. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Masterson, 25 C. A. 518, 61 S. W. 962.

The fact that it was not customary nor practicable for manager of insured grocery store to receive invoices of farm produce generally held no excuse for failure of insured to comply with condition of policy requiring an inventory. Id.

Iron safe clause in fire policy, as to keeping complete record of purchases, sales, etc., of stock covered, held breached where the cash book was negligently left out and destroyed in the fire. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Calhoun, 23 C. A. 409, 67 S. W. 153.

An iron-safe clause, attached to an insurance policy, held to be a part thereof, and to constitute a warranty. Couch & Gilliland v. Home Protection Fire Ins. Co., 32 C. A. 44, 73 S. W. 1077.

Where insured, in policy containing "iron safe clause," keeps the books, etc., in an iron safe believed to be fireproof, the policy is complied with, though the books, etc., while in the safe, are destroyed by fire. Underwriters' Fire Ass'n v. Palmer & Co., 32 C. A. 447, 74 S. W. 603.

The character of an inventory of goods insured, required by the stipulation of a fire policy, determined. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Monger & Henry (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 792.

A person held guilty of negligence who, by his failure to store them in a safe, permitted a set of books required by his fire insurance policy to be burned. Rives v. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 424.

A provision requiring assured to keep a set of books held not complied with by books of others showing the same facts. Id.

Failure to keep account of goods taken from stock for domestic consumption held not violation of clause in policy requiring books of account to be kept. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Fitz, 34 C. A. 214, 78 S. W. 370.

While the iron safe clause in an insurance policy is a warranty, the breach of which will avoid the policy, yet, where it is open to two constructions, that one will be given it which favors the insured. Id.

Insured held to have substantially complied with iron safe clause. Continental Fire Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 378.

An iron safe clause in a policy held substantially complied with, where books and papers preserved disclose a correct record of the business, etc., though one of the inventories and some of the invoices were left out of the safe, and were destroyed. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 716.

The requirement of a fire policy that insured keep a set of books held not complied with. Monger & Henry v. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia, 97 T. 362, 79 S. W. 7.

A requirement in a fire insurance policy that the insured should "preserve and produce the last preceding inventory, if such has been taken," held to be construed most strongly against the company, as meaning the last inventory taken before the issuance of the policy. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Stenson, 34 C. A. 471, 79 S. W. 866.

In an action on a fire policy, held, that there had been a substantial compliance with the "iron safe" clause. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Moore, 36 C. A. 312, 81 S. W. 573.

Iron-safe clause construed, and held to require the keeping and production of the inventory of stock taken prior to the date of the policy. Continental Ins. Co. v. Cummings, 98 T. 115, 81 S. W. 705.

Where insured, after loss, produced records showing a complete history of his business, there was no breach of an iron-safe clause contained in the policy. First Nat. Bank v. Cleland, 36 C. A. 478, 82 S. W. 337.

In an action on a fire policy, books of account introduced by insured held to show a substantial compliance with the policy. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 49.

Facts reviewed, and held that insured complied with the condition in his policy to keep a set of books clearly presenting a complete record of business transacted. Scottish-Union & National Ins. Co. v. Andrews & Matthews, 40 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 419.

A requirement of a fire policy that insured keep a set of books clearly presenting a record of all sales and purchases is not complied with by the preservation of slips from a cash register. Henry v. Green Ins. Co. of America (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 836.

The inventory of goods on hand taken two or three days before the fire cannot take the place of the accounts of cash sales kept by insured, as required by the policy. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co., 55 C. A. 263, 118 S. W. 1086.

The failure of insured to keep an account of his cash sales of goods, as required by his policy, is a forfeiture of the insurance as a matter of law. Id.

In an action on a fire policy, plaintiff held not entitled to recover because of breach of warranties requiring the taking of an inventory and the keeping of books showing a complete list of purchases and sales. German Ins. Co. v. Beville (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 31.

Under a provision requiring an inventory of a stock of goods insured within three months after the policy was issued, held, that an intentional failure to inventory from one-tenth to one-fifth of the value of the stock breached the provision so as to prevent recovery on the policy. Orient Ins. Co. v. Dorroh-Kelly Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 616.

Failure to keep inventory of insured property in a safe, as required by policy, whereby it was lost, held to prevent recovery on policy. National Fire Ins. Co. v. J. W. Caraway & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 458.

The court cannot vary the terms of a contract providing for a complete inventory of the stock. Dorroh-Kelly Mercantile Co. v. Orient Ins. Co., 104 T. 199, 135 S. W. 1165.

Where there was no inventory as required by a policy taken within a year prior to its issuance, and no inventory taken within 30 days thereafter, the policy was forfeited. Id.

Where there was omitted purposely from an invoice articles of the value of $3,000 or $4,000, held, a claim of a substantial compliance with a provision for a complete itemized statement could not be maintained. Id.

An invoice must contain a complete itemized statement of the stock on hand in order to meet the requirements of the covenant, in a policy or the assured can have no right of action thereon. Id.

Facts held insufficient to show a sufficient classification of cotton in storage covered by certain policies, precluding plaintiff's recovery thereon. Royal Exchange Assur. of London, Eng., v. Rosborough (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 70.

Where insured was in the produce business handling large quantities of eggs, which in part were kept in cold storage, he must keep his books so as to show what eggs were removed from his store and placed in cold storage. Teutonia Ins. Co. v. Tobias (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 251.

There could be no breach of a clause of an insurance policy requiring that the inventory be made within 30 days, until the expiration of such 30 days. Royal Ins. Co. v. W. P. Wright & Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 824.

Where the keeping of invoices and books of entry by insured was in substantial compliance with the iron-safe clause, he was entitled to recover. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1152.

Provision of policy requiring insured to take a "complete, itemized inventory of stock on hand," held not to require that the cost or value of the articles listed both in detail and in total be shown. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 398.

Insured's failure to take inventory as required held to bar recovery, though he kept a set of books from which might be ascertained the stock on hand at any time. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1095.

63. — Change of title, interest or possession.—The sale by one partner to his copartners of his interest in the partnership property is not within a proviso in the policy that it should be avoided by a transfer of the property, by sale or otherwise, without the consent of the insurer. T. B. & I. Co. v. Cohen, 47 T. 406, 26 Am. Rep. 298.

The sale of property insured will not invalidate the policy thereon, if the insured at the time of the loss still had an insurable interest therein as a lien for unpaid purchase money, or otherwise holds such relation to the property that its destruction by the peril insured against involves pecuniary loss to him. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Scott, 1 U. C. 534.

A policy of insurance which, by its terms, is to become void if the property insured shall be sold, etc., is not avoided by a deed made for the sole purpose of enabling the owner to negotiate a loan which was never effected, and which was not intended by either party to convey title. Insurance Co. v. Gordon, 68 T. 144, 3 S. W. 718.

Where the policies were made payable to a mortgagee as his interest might appear, held, that a sale of the property by the owner without the mortgagee's consent did not forfeit the mortgagee's right to enforce the policy. Pan Handle Nat. Bank v. Security Co., 18 C. A. 96, 44 S. W. 15.

Evidence held to show such change of possession or ownership as to forfeit the policy within the terms. Northern Assur. Co. v. City Sav. Bank, 18 C. A. 721, 45 S. W. 737.

Foreclosure of judgment lien by third party held not to affect mortgagee's interest in a policy providing against foreclosure, such mortgagee's interest being excepted therefrom. Sun Ins. Office v. Beneke (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 98.

Legal transfers of insured property held to be a complete defense to an action on a policy which provided that it should be void on any change in the title to the property insured. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Ransom (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 144.

Change in title in insured property held not to have taken place, so as to avoid the policy. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tomkies, 30 C. A. 404, 71 S. W. 812.

Disposal of undamaged property by insured within three days after loss by fire held not a breach of contract, requiring separation and appraisal of undamaged property. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Stenson, 34 C. A. 471, 79 S. W. 866.

Facts considered, and held that there was no change in the status of the title to insured property in violation of a clause in the policy. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Waggener, 44 C. A. 144, 97 S. W. 541.

A mortgage taken by a retiring partner, who sells the property to the remaining copartner as security, is not within a policy condition rendering it void in case of a change of interest. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 233.

In an action to recover insurance, evidence as to the defense of fraud on the part of insured in shipping away part of the insured goods before the fire held sufficient to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. Home Ins. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 625.

64. — Incumbrances.—The clause, "This entire policy shall be void if, with the knowledge of the insured, foreclosure proceedings are commenced by virtue of any mortgage," is valid and binding. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Clayton, 17 C. A. 644, 43 S. W. 910.

Provisions in a policy of fire insurance requiring notice of any mortgage on the property insured are obligatory, and failure to comply therewith renders the policy void. Insurance Co. of North America v. Wicker (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 300.

A policy of insurance, which is to be void if the "subject of insurance" be mortgaged, held not rendered void by a mortgage on a part of the property. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco v. Wilderspin (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1131.

A fire policy on merchandise and fixtures held not invalidated as to the furniture and fixtures by the execution of a chattel mortgage on the merchandise. Spring Garden Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Brown (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 292.

Insurance company liable although no policy was issued, because it had agreed to attend to the matter, held not relieved of liability by a conveyance as security two years before the loss because the policy, if issued, would have been subsequent to such conveyance. Commonwealth Fire Ins. Co. v. Obenchain (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 611.

65. — Assignment of policy.—A life policy payable to the heirs or assigns of the assured is assignable. Mullins v. Thompson, 51 T. 7.

A clause prohibiting the assignment of a policy does not prohibit its transfer as collateral security. Scottish-Union & National Ins. Co. v. Andrews & Matthews, 40 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 419.

An assignment of a policy by mistake, there having been no delivery and no consideration therefor, besides being made subject to the consent of the insurer, did not avoid the policy under a clause prohibiting an assignment. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Waggener, 44 C. A. 144, 97 S. W. 541.

Insurer having waived the requirements of a life policy as to the form of an assignment of the policy by insured to secure a debt, no one else could attack the form. Clark v. Southwestern Life Ins. Co., 52 C. A. 38, 113 S. W. 335.

66. — Keeping or use of prohibited articles.—Custom of insurer not to permit use of gasoline held subordinate to implied permission to insured to use the same. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Green, 16 C. A. 531, 41 S. W. 74.

Insurance of household furniture and supplies, shown to ordinarily include gasoline and gasoline stoves, is repugnant to prohibition of the use of gasoline, and such prohibition accordingly fails. Id.

Where "French electric fluid," made from gasoline, was used on insured premises, and there was no evidence that it was the same as gasoline, held, that a finding that no illuminating gas was generated on the premises, and no gasoline was used on the premises, was warranted. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Shearman, 17 C. A. 456, 43 S. W. 930.

A policy of fire insurance, prohibiting the keeping of explosives on the insured premises, held not avoided by a temporary use as an experiment. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Shearman, 20 C. A. 343, 50 S. W. 598.

A prohibitory clause in a fire insurance policy against keeping gasoline on the insured premises held not to prevent insured from keeping it in a shed on his lot, outside the insured building. Id.

Operating a laundry held not a trade or manufacture, within a clause of a fire policy prohibiting the use of gasoline, so as to preclude proof of a custom of using gasoline, to explain or avoid the prohibition. Northern Assur. Co. of London, England, v. Crawford, 24 C. A. 574, 59 S. W. 916.

Warranty in a fire insurance policy that no gasoline should be "kept, allowed, or used" on the premises, held not to include the temporary use of a small quantity. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Wade, 95 T. 598, 68 S. W. 977, 58 L. R. A. 714, 93 Am. St. Rep. 870.

Gasoline used on other premises held not kept, used, or allowed on the premises insured within the meaning of a fire policy. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Chancey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 577.

67. — Nonpayment of premiums or assessments.—To prevent a forfeiture of a policy by nonpayment of premiums by a tender, such a tender should be repeated as often as under the terms of the policy the premium was due. Life Ins. Co. v. Le Pert, 52 T. 504.

A policy is terminated by failure to pay premiums when due. A tender of payment, to operate as a payment, must be made on the very day when due, and must be unconditional. When due on demand, tender need not be made before demand. When due on or before a stated day, tender may be made at any time on or before the day fixed. Continental Ins. Co. v. Busby, 3 App. C. C. § 103.

A tender of a premium to an agent one day before it falls due will prevent a forfeiture. Manhattan L. Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 280.

A policy which was to become a paid-up term policy on nonpayment of a premium held not to become such if, at the time of the default, a past-due premium note was unpaid. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Wilkes, 92 T. 468, 49 S. W. 1038.

A condition in a life policy held not to prevent forfeiture for failure to pay an assessment within 30 days, as required by the policy, where the insured does not die within 6 months thereafter. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Lovenberg, 24 C. A. 355, 59 S. W. 314.

The failure of insured to surrender his policy within six months after default in a premium, as provided by the policy, held to defeat his right to paid-up insurance. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Evans, 25 C. A. 563, 64 S. W. 74.

The nonpayment of a premium note held, under the terms of a life insurance policy, to defeat recovery thereon. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1010.

Under a statute requiring notice that, unless a premium on a policy is paid at maturity, the policy will be forfeited, except the insured's right to the surrender value or paid-up policy, a mere notice that, if the premium is not paid, the policy lapses, held insufficient. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Hallum, 32 C. A. 134, 73 S. W. 554.

An insurance company's failure to have a premium note at the place where it was payable at maturity held not to prevent a forfeiture of the policy for nonpayment of the note. Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Knights of Tabor Lodge of Camp County, 32 C. A. 328, 74 S. W. 809.

Under a fire policy, providing that failure to pay a premium note shall render the policy void, failure to pay a premium note, the receipt for which contained a similar provision, avoided the policy. National Life Ins. Co. v. Repond (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1012.

Under New York law, prohibiting forfeitures of life policies for nonpayment of premiums unless notice is mailed to insured, notice giving only initial of insured's middle name, instead of full name, held sufficient. Cowen v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 37 C. A. 430, 84 S. W. 404.

Provision of life insurance policy, contemplating the sending of notice of accruing premiums to insured, held not to continue the policy in force indefinitely in case of failure to give such notice. Id.

Failure of insured to pay a premium note at maturity held to terminate the insurance, in the absence of waiver. National Life Ins. Co. v. Manning, 38 C. A. 498, 86 S. W. 618.

Where insured elected to pay an insurance premium annually by giving a note therefor, but made default in payment thereof, payments made could not be applied as quarterly payments to keep the policy in force for part of the year. Id.

A payment of interest on a premium in default after insured's death held insufficient to restore the policy. Id.

Insured, after default in payment of a premium note, held only entitled to a restoration of the insurance by payment of the amount due and furnishing evidence of good health, as required by the note. Id.

A life policy held void for the failure of the insured to pay certain notes given to the agent in settlement of the premium. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 778.

The failure to pay a premium note held to avoid a life policy. Id.

Where, in an action on a life insurance policy, the company claimed it had been forfeited for nonpayment of premium notes, evidence held to sustain a finding that the notes were taken by the agent individually for his part of the first premium. Reppond v. National Life Ins. Co., 100 T. 519, 101 S. W. 786, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 981, 15 Ann. Cas. 618.

An accident policy, premium notes, and application therefor construed, and held that a failure to pay any one of the premium notes at maturity operated to put an end to the policy without notice to the insured. North American Acc. Ins. Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 163.

An insurer in an accident policy held required to apply so much of the sum due the insured on account of an accident to the satisfaction of unpaid premium notes as was necessary for that purpose to prevent a forfeiture of the policy for nonpayment of the premium. Id.

Allowing the 30 days of grace, an insured held to have died within the protection of his policy. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 778.

In an action on an insurance policy, a holding in favor of the beneficiary extending the term of the policy and declaring unnecessary the payment by the beneficiary of an unpaid premium held justified. Id.

Failure of plaintiff to pay an extra assessment without complaint or demand for explanation from insurer held not to justify his failure to pay a subsequent, regular, ~~regularly~~ assessment for which the policy was forfeited. Kray v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 50 C. A. 555, 111 S. W. 421.

Plaintiff's failure to complain of irregularity of special assessments on a policy on B.'s life held a waiver of the irregularity, and to preclude a claim that the amounts paid thereon should be applied to the discharge of certain regular assessments. Id.

Where an insurance policy required the payment of premiums on October 1st, but allowed an extension of 30 days, that day falling on Sunday, the 30-day extension held to begin to run at midnight on October 1st, and the policy was forfeited before insured's death on November 1st. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly, 102 T. 46, 112 S. W. 1038, 23 L. R. A. (N. S.) 759, 132 Am. St. Rep. 852.

A failure to pay a premium when due held to forfeit a policy. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 184.

In an action on a life policy, evidence held not to show that insured obtaining an extension of the time of the payment of an annual premium, and dying before payment, would not have paid the premium had he lived. Id.

Where the insurer agreed to look solely to the broker procuring the insurance for the premiums, the nonpayment of a premium did not affect the right of the insured to recover on a fire policy; the insurer's remedy being an action against the broker. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 625.

Under provisions of a policy and of an extension note, held, that policy was avoided by a default in the payment of an extension note. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 293.

A provision in an extension note, given for a premium due, and in the insurer's receipt, for forfeiture on account of a default in payment, is valid, especially in view of express provisions of the policy that the amount was payable, "all premiums and indebtedness hereon having been fully paid." Id.

Failure of insured to pay insurance premium when notified by local agent that it was due held not to relieve the company, the mortgagee, from liability where it had agreed to attend to the insurance, had done so for a time, and had not notified the insured that it would not continue to do so. Commonwealth Fire Ins. Co. v. Obenchain (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 611.

Where the assignee of an insurance policy did not pay the last premium due because of the insurer's failure to present the receipt for payment in accordance with its custom, the assignee's failure to discover the nonpayment for some years, it appearing that the insured was still alive, and the policy had been merely filed away, does not bar him on the ground of laches. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1184.

Owing to the custom of the insurer to make demand for premiums, an insurance policy, which was assigned to the insured's creditor, cannot be forfeited for nonpayment of the tenth and last premium, where a demand was not made by the insurer. Id.

68. — Effect of breach of condition subsequent.—Temporary breach of condition in policy not existing at time of fire, and not contributing thereto, held not to prevent recovery. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Munger Improved Cotton-Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

There being no cotton insured by a policy on a cotton gin, a warranty relating to keeping a "correct account of the cotton put into and taken out of the gin house" becomes immaterial. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 820.

The policy providing that "the entire policy shall be void," a forfeiture cannot be claimed for a part of the policy. Id.

The breach of a condition in an application for a fire policy requiring insured to keep barrels of water in the insured mill will not prevent a recovery for a loss occurring at a time when no one was at or near the mill. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 867.

69. — Reinstatement of lapsed policy.—A life policy, incontestable after five years except for nonpayment of premiums, when forfeited on that ground, is again contestable on reinstatement, and may be forfeited for fraud in securing its revival. Ash v. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n, 26 C. A. 501, 63 S. W. 944.

Declarations made in an application for reinstatement of a lapsed life policy "as a basis for the reinstatement" are warranties, and, if false, the contract is invalid. Id.

Where the option of an insurance company to reinstate a lapsed life policy is induced by fraud of the insured, the reinstatement may be avoided. Id.

70. Estoppel or waiver of conditions or right of forfeiture.—Where there is a proviso that, if the risk is increased, the policy is void, mere silence on the part of the company, failure to give notice, make objection or return any part of the premium will not constitute a waiver of the forfeiture occasioned by the increased risk. Texas Banking & Ins. Co. v. Hutchins, 53 T. 61, 37 Am. Rep. 750; Banking Co. v. Stone, 49 T. 13; Insurance Co. v. Lacroix, 45 T. 170; Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

A policy of insurance contained the following clause: "If the assured shall have or shall hereafter have any other insurance on the property hereby insured, or any part thereof, without the consent of the company written hereon, * * * then and in every such case this policy shall be void." Another insurance was obtained on the same property without procuring the indorsement of consent on the first policy, but notice was given thereof to the agent of the company, who had full discretion in the premises, and made no objection to the additional insurance, said nothing about canceling the first policy, and did nothing to indicate a wish to do so. On the contrary, after knowing of the second insurance, the agent of the company in which the first insurance was effected took two risks on the same property in other companies represented by him. Held, that it was the duty of the first insurers to elect, within a reasonable time, whether they would enforce the policy or abandon it; and having by their silence induced the assured to believe the policy still in force, they were estopped from alleging the contrary when the attempt was made to enforce it. Crescent Ins. Co. v. Griffin, 59 T. 609.

Waiver of default in payment of premium note, how shown. Insurance Co. v. Perky, 5 C. A. 698, 24 S. W. 1080.

Where insurers refuse to pay on special grounds, it is a waiver of their right to object on the ground of the insufficiency of the preliminary proof. Standard L. & A. Ins. Co. v. Koen, 11 C. A. 273, 33 S. W. 133.

An insurance company held to waive forfeiture for misrepresentations as to incumbrances. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Munger Improved Cotton-Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

A condition that the policy should be void if the interest of insured was other than sole and absolute ownership held waived. Wagner v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co., 92 T. 549, 50 S. W. 569.

Stipulation in policy that misrepresentation as to title would avoid it held waived. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 24 C. A. 140, 57 S. W. 876.

Course of dealings between an insurance company and the insured, under an open policy held to be a waiver of a stipulation requiring the insured to advise the company of risks as soon as known. Insurance Co. of North America v. Bell, 25 C. A. 129, 80 S. W. 262.

A company held not to have waived the breach of a provision in a policy that it should be void on any transfer of the title to the property insured. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Ransom (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 144.

Forfeiture of fire policy by reason of breach of condition held to have been waived. German-American Ins. Co. v. Evants, 25 C. A. 300, 61 S. W. 536.

Evidence in an action on a fire insurance policy on lumber held insufficient to show waiver of a clause requiring 200 feet of clear space surrounding the lumber. Keller v. Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co., 27 C. A. 102, 65 S. W. 695.

Where insurer consented to a transfer of the property and an assignment of the policy, a breach of condition by the original holder held no defense to an action for a subsequent loss. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 440.

Breach of condition in fire policy held not to have been waived by company. Curlee v. Texas Home Fire Ins. Co., 31 C. A. 471, 73 S. W. 831.

Fire insurance company held estopped to assert forfeiture of policy for want of indorsement of consent to other insurance. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Eastman (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 255.

A stipulation in a policy, insuring an employer against damage for injuries to its employes held not waived by the act of the insurer. Texas Short Line Ry. Co. v. Waymire (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 452.

An insurer held not estopped from proving that the policy correctly stated the contract. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Brannon, 99 T. 391, 89 S. W. 1057, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 548, 13 Ann. Cas. 1020.

Accident insurance company held not in a position to claim a forfeiture for nonpayment of premiums induced by the negligence of its own agent. Johnson v. Standard Life & Accident Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 831.

A finding that an insurer in an accident policy elected to waive a forfeiture of a policy by reason of the nonpayment of the premium notes held authorized. North American Acc. Ins. Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 163.

An estoppel against an insurance company from the acts of its local agent to assert forfeiture held the same as in case of an individual insurer present and acting. Continental Casualty Co. v. Bridges (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 170.

Facts held to establish a waiver of payment of premium on an accident policy on a specified date. Id.

Evidence held to show a waiver by insurer's agent of a clause in a fire policy forbidding transfer of the property without insurer's consent. British America Assur. Co. v. Francisco (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1144.

Though insurer's agent knew that insured occupied leased premises, and that his property was subject to the statutory lien, there was no waiver of a clause rendering the policy void if the property "be or become incumbered by a chattel mortgage," where the lease contained a clause of which the agent was ignorant, giving the landlord a lien for the full term, expressly waiving all exemption laws, and providing that the lien should be cumulative of all statutory liens and remedies. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 363.

Insurer in a fire policy held not entitled to insist that an increased hazard had not been waived by it. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Chancey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 577.

A waiver of the forfeiture of a life policy held not to result from silence of insurer. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 184.

A waiver of the forfeiture of a life policy held to result from acts of insurer. Id. An insurer held authorized to elect not to forfeit a policy for nonpayment of a premium when due. Id.

A stipulation in an insurance policy for forfeiture on nonpayment of premiums before a stipulated date is for the benefit of the insurer and may be waived by him. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 147 S. W. 1152.

The forfeiture of an insurance policy for nonpayment of a premium is waived without any agreement to that effect by negotiations or transactions with the insured after knowledge of the forfeiture. Id.

Whether an insurance company waives forfeiture for nonpayment of a premium does not depend on anything the insured does or on whether he was misled; a waiver not being necessarily based on a new agreement or estoppel. Id.

On facts stated, held, that letters of an insurer amounted to a waiver of forfeiture of a policy for nonpayment of premiums, but that its letter written after a premium was due, but before the right to forfeiture accrued thereon, was not a waiver of a forfeiture of nonpayment of such premium. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 293.

An insurer, who denies liability under a fire policy, thereby waives the stipulation therein that any loss shall not be payable until 60 days after receipt of proofs of loss, and cannot claim that a suit brought on the policy within such time is premature. Oklahoma Fire Ins. Co. v. McKey (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 440.

Waiver of a forfeiture of a life policy for nonpayment of premiums may result from any unequivocal acts by the insurer, after knowledge of the forfeiture, without action by insured. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 152 S. W. 625.

71. — What conditions may be waived.—An insurance company may waive any condition of a policy inserted therein for its benefit, and such waiver is provable as any other fact. P. & A. Life Ins. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 1 App. C. C. § 1347; Ins. Co. v. Waters, 10 C. A. 363, 30 S. W. 576; Sun Ins. Co. v. Tex. Foundry & Machine Co., 4 App. C. C. § 33, 15 S. W. 34; Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Witt (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 796. An insurance company may, through its authorized agent, contract by parol for the renewal of a policy of insurance, although it may be stipulated on the face of the policy itself that this shall not be done. Cohen v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 325, 3 S. W. 296, 60 Am. Rep. 24. A condition in the policy that there should be no transfer or assignment of the same, except by writing on the policy, is waived by a verbal consent to a transfer or assignment by an agent of the insurer. Fire Ins. Co. v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 333.

A policy of insurance stipulated that "agents of this company have no authority to bind the company in violation of any of the printed terms or conditions of insurance as herein expressed; and no printed or written restriction hereof, which by its terms may be subject to waiver, shall be deemed to have been waived, except by distinct, specific agreement, clearly expressed in the body of the policy." Held, that any condition in the policy which under its terms might have been waived in the body thereof, and not otherwise, must be deemed, within the meaning of the stipulation, a condition or restriction "subject to waiver," and to such only does the stipulation apply. Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63.

A requirement in a policy that premiums should be paid at a designated place may be waived. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 280.

A clause in a policy of life insurance, exempting the insurers from liability until actual payment of premium, may be waived. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 34 C. A. 131, 78 S. W. 398.

A forfeiture of a policy for nonpayment of premium or of a premium note may be waived by the insurer. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 293.

72. — Authority of agent in general.—A policy contained a stipulation that it should be void in case of other insurance thereon without the consent of the company written thereon. The agent of the company was notified by the assured that additional insurance had been obtained. The company having failed to indorse the same upon the policy, or to notify the insured of the risk, was estopped from setting up the additional insurance as a defense. Insurance Co. v. Lyons, 38 T. 253; Crescent Ins. Co. v. Griffin, 59 T. 509. See, also, N. O. Ins. Ass'n v. Griffin, 66 T. 232, 18 S. W. 505.

One of the conditions of the policy was that there should be no transfer unless the consent of the insurance company was indorsed in writing on the policy. There was no such indorsement, but it was shown that the agent of the company knew of the transfer and had consented thereto. Held, that the company was estopped by the act of its agent. Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 333.

Though a policy of insurance upon its face may provide that it shall not be valid unless countersigned by the company's general agent, yet if other insurance was obtained with the verbal consent of such agent, who promised to indorse his consent on the policy, and afterwards made written memoranda of a renewal, but not on the policy, and no objection was made by the company, the company would be bound, and the consent of the company to the subsequent insurance can be shown otherwise than by indorsement on the policy. Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63. See Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Witt (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 796.

A provision that no additional insurance shall be obtained without the consent of the insurer expressed in writing on the policy may be waived by verbal consent of the agent under such circumstances as would result in injustice to the insured if the act of the agent were repudiated. N. O. Ins. Ass'n v. Griffin, 66 T. 232, 18 S. W. 505.

A waiver of conditions in a policy by an agent without authority, within the knowledge of the insured, is void. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 10 C. A. 398, 30 S. W. 959; Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63; Insurance Co. v. Lee, 73 T. 641, 11 S. W. 1024; Insurance Co. v. Josey, 25 S. W. 685, 6 C. A. 290.

In an action on life policy, held, local agent was authorized to waive provision in policy that premium should be paid in cash before policy should go into effect. Provident Savings Life Assur. Soc. of New York v. Oliver, 22 C. A. 8, 53 S. W. 594.

Life insurance company held to have ratified act of agent in delivering policy during insured's ill health. Northwestern Life Ass'n v. Findley, 29 C. A. 494, 68 S. W. 695.

Where a local agent by direction wrote out, issued, and delivered a fire insurance policy, the company, after loss, held estopped from asserting that none but its general agent could issue or indorse such policy. Continental Fire Ass'n v. Norris, 30 C. A. 299, 70 S. W. 769.

Waiver of a requirement of a fire policy by an agent held binding on insurer. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 49.

Where by mutual agreement between an insurance agent and insured the agent intended to insure property in a negro cabin, but described it as located elsewhere, the insurer was bound. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Brannon (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 614.

The fraud of an insurance agent authorized to issue and deliver policies held chargeable to the insurer. Id.

An insurance company would not be bound by the fraud of its agent in inducing the execution of certain policies after such fraud had been discovered by insured, in case the latter concealed the same. Curry v. Stone (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 263.

Where the insurer in a fire policy ascertained that its agent at the time of writing the policy was also the agent of the insured, if it desired to avoid the policy, it was its duty to manifest such intention promptly. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

Where an insurance agent either fraudulently or negligently inserts in an application false answers to questions correctly answered by the applicant, the insurer will be estopped to defend on the ground of the falsity of the answers. North American Accident Ins. Co. v. Trenton (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 740.

An agent of an insurer held to possess authority to extend the time of the payment of premium notes and prevent a forfeiture of the policy for nonpayment at maturity. North American Acc. Ins. Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 163.

* The insurer's agent may waive a stipulation as to the indorsement of transfer on the policy. British America Assur. Co. v. Francisco (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1144.

Insurer is bound by the statement of its agent, having authority to issue policies, that a sale and mortgage of the insured property would be agreed to. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 283.

Insurer's agent's waiver of an "iron-safe" clause in a fire policy held to bind insurer. Old Colony Ins. Co. v. Starr-Mayfield Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 252.

The right of an insurer to rely on certain warranties, held waived by his agent. Co-operative Ins. Ass'n of San Angelo v. Ray (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1122.

A soliciting agent held without authority to waive any of the conditions of an insurance policy. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 702.

A health policy having excepted liability for an illness contracted before the policy had been in force 30 days, and insured having contracted an illness within such time, that the agent authorized to issue receipts, but not to issue policies, continued the policy, and issued receipts for premiums, and assured insured that he would get his money, held not a waiver of the exception. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 326.

An agent of an insurance company in charge of its loan and extension department at its headquarters in New York held to have general authority to waive a forfeiture for nonpayment of premiums. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 152 S. W. 625.

73. — Effect of provisions in application or policy.—An insurance company that stipulates in a policy that it will only be bound by writing to any future contract in regard thereto does not preclude itself from making a parol contract to change that stipulation; and if through its general agent the stipulation is disregarded, and the company fails to repudiate his act, when good conscience requires that if it be disaffirmed it should be done promptly, the company will be bound. Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63; Niagara Ins. Co. v. Lee, 73 T. 641, 11 S. W. 1024; Insurance Co. v. Ende, 65 T. 118; Insurance Co. v. Camp, 71 T. 503, 9 S. W. 473.

An agent can verbally waive a condition in a policy, although the policy prescribes that it must be waived by writing in the body of the policy. Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63; Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Faires, 13 C. A. 111, 35 S. W. 55.

The limitation in the policy of the agent's authority to waive conditions does not apply to waivers arising by operation of law from acts of the agent amounting to a repudiation of the policy. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Jones (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 44.

Where the policy, and a separate agreement under which the appraisal was made, provided that the appraisal should not be a waiver of any forfeiture, the insurer by entering into such appraisal did not waive a forfeiture. City Drug Store v. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 21.

Provision in application for life policy that no statements made shall be binding unless reduced to writing, and approved by the company's officers, held not to affect waiver.

er of forfeiture by receipt of premiums with knowledge of facts authorizing forfeiture. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1025.

A general agent, having authority to make contracts of insurance and to issue policies, may make a valid parol contract waiving conditions, though the policy declare such a waiver unauthorized unless in writing. Wagner v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co., 92 T. 549, 50 S. W. 569.

Validity of life insurance based on an application providing that no verbal statements should modify the contract held not affected by oral communications of the insured to the soliciting agent. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Harris, 94 T. 25, 57 S. W. 635, 86 Am. St. Rep. 813.

A clause in a life policy held to render the policy incontestable for false warranties after the expiration of one year from its execution. Franklin Ins. Co. v. Villeneuve, 25 C. A. 356, 60 S. W. 1014.

Certain provisions of a policy relating to waiver of forfeiture held binding on insured. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nunn, 98 T. 191, 82 S. W. 497, 68 L. R. A. 83.

Clause of a life policy providing for incontestability after one year, though including fraud, held not contrary to public policy. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 909.

A clause making a policy incontestable after one year held to include a prior clause that it should not take effect until the first premium was paid during insurability, and so where premiums were properly paid and insured did not die during the year, and no steps were taken to avoid it, it was no defense that insured had never been insurable. Id.

74. — Knowledge or notice of facts.—Casual information communicated to an agent of the assured in a conversation occurring on the street does not constitute notice. Texas Banking Co. v. Hutchins, 53 T. 61, 37 Am. Rep. 750.

Where an insurance agent receives premiums with notice of concurrent insurance, payment of loss cannot be refused. Insurance Co. v. Malevinsky, 24 S. W. 804, 6 C. A. 81; Insurance Co. v. Ende, 65 T. 123; Cohen v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 328, 3 S. W. 296, 60 Am. Rep. 24; Insurance Co. v. Lee, 73 T. 646, 11 S. W. 1024; Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63; Insurance Co. v. Blum, 76 T. 653, 13 S. W. 572.

Knowledge on the part of an agent of a life insurance company that an answer is false is notice to the company. Insurance Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 998.

A policy issued in the name of a partnership after its dissolution by the death of a member is valid, the agent who procured the policy and countersigned it knowing the circumstance. Fire Ass'n v. Laning (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 681.

Mere notice to agent of existence of mortgage on the property insured, or parol waiver by the agent, held not to estop the company from asserting condition broken. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 109.

A written application for insurance, not made a part of the policy, will not avoid the verbal notice of the true condition of the title given by the insured to the insurer's agent, while soliciting the insurance. Queen Ins. Co. of America v. May (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 73.

Knowledge by an insurance company that a mortgage on property will mature during the life of the policy thereon is not a waiver of a clause providing that the policy shall be void if foreclosure proceedings are begun by virtue of any mortgage. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Clayton, 17 C. A. 644, 43 S. W. 910.

A misrepresentation of a fact existing at the date of a policy is waived by the company, if its agent, not being in collusion with the insured, knows the real fact. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Bynum (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 579.

Notice to the agent who has authority to solicit insurance, report applications, deliver policies, etc., of incumbrances on the property insured is notice to the company. German Ins. Co. v. Everett, 18 C. A. 514, 46 S. W. 95.

Insured's failure to give notice of a mortgage held not waived by the insurer's knowledge of a mortgage subsequently given to secure money with which to pay the mortgage existing when the policy was issued. Insurance Co. of North America v. Wicker (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 300.

An agent held to waive warranty against incumbrances; the applicant proposing to go to the creditor and get the exact amount of the incumbrance, which the agent waived. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 820.

Issuance of policy with knowledge of intent of insured to take out other insurance held not a waiver of condition against it. Orient Ins. Co. v. Prather, 25 C. A. 446, 62 S. W. 89.

Knowledge of the insurer's agent that, before the issuance of the policy, the insured property was not located as required by a provision of the policy, held not to waive such provision. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Post, 25 C. A. 428, 62 S. W. 140.

Where insured property is easily movable, the issuance of a policy with knowledge that the property is not located as required by a clause of the policy is a waiver of such clause only to the extent of allowing insured a reasonable time in which to move the property. Id.

Knowledge acquired by a banker to whom claims for premiums on a life policy are sent for collection and a renewal contract to obtain the signature of the insured, as to the falsity of statements in the contract, held not imputable to the company. Ash v. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n, 26 C. A. 501, 63 S. W. 944.

False statements, willfully made for the purpose of deceiving a life insurance company and obtaining insurance, did not vitiate the policy, where the agent knew the facts. Sun Life Ins. Co. v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 603.

Proof of a certain custom held not alone sufficient to show that an insurer had knowledge of the issuance of two accident policies to one person for a single period. Wilkinson v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1016.

Insurance agent, applying to other agents for a policy which he could not issue, held the agent of the company subsequently issuing the same in the issuance of the policy, so that his knowledge of facts relating to the risk was the knowledge of the insurer. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 716.

Knowledge of an insurance agent issuing policies as to ownership held a waiver of a clause of warranty of sole ownership in the policy. Continental Ins. Co. v. Cummings, 98 T. 115, 81 S. W. 705.

Information obtained by an insurance broker from the officers of insured held not imputable to insurers. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. American Cement Plaster Co., 37 C. A. 629, 84 S. W. 1115.

Knowledge of an insurance agent as to the ownership of property not shown to have been obtained in the course of the agency held not imputable to defendant. Continental Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 48.

Knowledge of incumbrances by a member of a firm of insurance agents held knowledge of the insurer. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Stogner, 44 C. A. 60, 98 S. W. 218.

Knowledge of an agent of a life insurance company that at the time of the delivery by him of the policy insured was not in good health held knowledge of the company. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1033.

An insurance company is chargeable with notice of the acts of its agents within the apparent scope of the agents' authority. Id.

Insurer in a fire policy issued by an agent held bound by the facts known by the agent at the time of the issuance of the policy. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. La Grange & Lockhart Compress Co., 50 C. A. 172, 109 S. W. 1134.

An insurer held bound by the knowledge of its agent acquired while acting without the scope of his agency. Id.

Proof of actual knowledge on the part of defendant insurance company's agent of the existence when the policy was issued of mortgage liens on plaintiff's property was essential to show a waiver of a stipulation against incumbrances. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 363.

Proof that a mortgage permit was once issued to insured by the wife of the predecessor of defendant insurance company's agent in behalf of another company held insufficient to establish knowledge on the part of the agent of the issuance of such permit. Id.

The agent of a fire insurance company issuing a policy with a stipulation against incumbrances held not required to exercise diligence in examining the registers of insurance in other companies kept by his predecessor in order to ascertain whether mortgage permits had been granted by any of the 12 companies represented by such agents. Id.

A fire policy held not void because insured kept, used, or allowed on the premises gasoline in violation of the stipulations of the policy, the agent securing the insurance having knowledge of the violation. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Chancey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 577.

Provisions of a fire insurance policy as to sole and unconditional ownership held waived, where the insurer's agent knew that the policy was issued to an executor in that capacity, and not as sole owner. Shawnee Fire Ins. Co. v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 854.

A fire policy held not invalidated by insured procuring other insurance in excess of the amount of concurrent insurance allowed, where the agent of original insurer consented thereto. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 475.

An insurer, issuing a fire policy on property incumbered by a vendor's lien to the knowledge of the insurance agent, held estopped from setting up the incumbrance to defeat the policy. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 688.

Where insurer, when issuing a fire policy stipulating that it should be void if insured should keep gasoline on the premises, knew that gasoline was kept on the premises and used in insured's business, the keeping of the gasoline did not invalidate the policy. Oklahoma Fire Ins. Co. v. McKey (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 440.

75. — Delivering policy with knowledge of facts.—Where the state of ownership of insured property is made known to the agent of the insurance company at the time the policy was issued, the insurance company cannot set up the want of complete ownership to bar an action upon the policy. Insurance Co. v. Ende, 65 T. 118; Insurance Co. v. Camp, 71 T. 503, 9 S. W. 473; Crescent Ins. Co. v. Camp, 64 T. 521.

An untrue or fraudulent statement on the part of the assured, in his application, of a fact material to the risk, does not avoid the policy when the company or its agent knew the real facts at the time when the contract was made and the premium paid. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

An insurance company is estopped from setting up a breach of the condition of a policy in regard to representations, when the policy was delivered with full knowledge of the facts. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Ward, 26 S. W. 763, 7 C. A. 13.

Receiving the premium and issuing a policy with knowledge of other insurance estops insurer from relying on a misrepresentation by insured as to such additional insurance. Standard Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 826.

A condition against incumbrances is waived by the company's delivering the policy with knowledge of the incumbrance. German Ins. Co. v. Everett, 18 C. A. 514, 46 S. W. 95.

Issuance of policy on application containing questions as to incumbrances held waiver of omission of specific answer as to the amount of incumbrances. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Munger Improved Cotton-Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

Life policy, delivered by agent during the ill health of the insured, held binding on company, if agent was vested with discretion in making the delivery. Northwestern Life Ass'n v. Findley, 29 C. A. 494, 68 S. W. 695.

An insurer held estopped from asserting the invalidity of a policy, delivered with full knowledge of the facts on which its validity may be disputed. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 688.

76. — Acceptance of premiums.—The company, by receiving the premium for fire insurance, with knowledge of the true state of title of the property insured, is estopped from denying the right of the insured to recover on the ground that his interest in the property was other than the entire unconditional and sole ownership for his own use. L. & L. & G. Ins. Co. v. Ende, 65 T. 118.

An insurance company, by accepting part cash and assured note for premium after maturity, held to waive forfeiture of the policy for nonpayment thereof. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 680.

Act of agent in accepting payment of premium after due held ratified by the company. Id.

A forfeiture is waived by acceptance of a premium with knowledge of the facts. Morris v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 898.

Acceptance after maturity of payment of premium notes, which provided that, if not paid at maturity, the policy was forfeited, is a waiver of the right to a forfeiture. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 546.

Recovery on life policy can be had though insured engaged in occupation rendering it void under its terms, where the general agents of the company received premiums with knowledge of change of occupation. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1025.

Although an insurance company can avoid a policy where the agent acts for both parties, yet it must return the premium within a reasonable time after knowledge of the fact has come to it, else it will be held to have ratified the contract; and where the contract of insurance is voidable the insurer can, by bringing suit before the premium is returned, ratify it, and may enforce it. Insurance Co. v. City of Smithville (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 412.

Acceptance, after maturity, of payment of a premium note, nonpayment of which was to avoid the policy, is not a waiver of the right to assert a forfeiture. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Wilkes, 92 T. 468, 49 S. W. 1038.

Acceptance of a payment on conditions which were complied with held a waiver of a requirement of "satisfactory evidence of good health," etc. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Bozeman, 21 C. A. 490, 52 S. W. 94.

Circumstances of receipt of overdue premiums on a life policy held not a waiver of forfeiture for nonpayment thereof. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Scott, 23 C. A. 541, 57 S. W. 677.

Payment of assessments on a life policy after it has been forfeited for failure to make such payments, and the taking of a receipt which states that the payment was received on the condition that the insured was in good health, does not reinstate such policy, where the insured was not in good health when the payment was made. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Lovenberg, 24 C. A. 355, 59 S. W. 314.

Where an insurer issues a policy, and accepts premiums thereon, with knowledge of facts that constitute a violation of a provision in the policy, and would make the same void when issued, such insurer has waived the provision violated. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Post, 25 C. A. 428, 62 S. W. 140.

Receipt of premium held to estop insurance company from relying on misrepresentation as to title to property. Continental Fire Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 378.

Acceptance by insured of an installment on a premium note after default held not a waiver of a forfeiture of the policy by failure to pay the note at maturity. National Life Ins. Co. v. Manning, 38 C. A. 498, 86 S. W. 618.

The fact that insured did not promptly return or retain a premium held not to reinstate a forfeited contract. Moore v. Supreme Assembly of Royal Soc. of Good Fellows, 42 C. A. 366, 93 S. W. 1077.

Forfeiture of an accident policy for nonpayment of premiums when due held waived, the company having afterwards received them. Continental Casualty Co. v. Jennings, 45 C. A. 14, 99 S. W. 423.

77. — Demand for payment of premium.—When a policy of insurance provides for a forfeiture upon failure to pay the premiums which are to fall due, but does not stipulate that upon such failure the overdue premiums shall be considered as earned, a demand for a payment of such premium constitutes a waiver of the forfeiture. It is otherwise when the policy stipulates that upon default in any installments the insurance shall cease and the installments shall be considered as earned. Cohen v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 325, 3 S. W. 296, 60 Am. Rep. 24.

78. — Extension of time for payment of premium.—Extension of time for the payment of a premium note, after it had matured and the policy had been forfeited for failure to pay the note at maturity, and payment of the note after loss, held not to estop insurer from insisting on a forfeiture. Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Knights of Tabor Lodge of Camp County, 32 C. A. 328, 74 S. W. 809.

Act of insurance company's collector in stating that he would call again for premium held not to show an extension, or waiver of forfeiture, where the premium was never collected. Cowen v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 37 C. A. 430, 84 S. W. 404.

79. — Suing to recover premium.—A provision that a life policy shall be void on failure to pay a premium note is waived by suing on such a note. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1012.

80. — Offer of loan on policy.—Offer of loan on policy after lapse, by the superintendent of the department of the company at its home office, held to be the act of the company and to constitute a waiver notwithstanding provision that policy could be varied only by specified officers. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 147 S. W. 1152.

Offer of loan on policy for purpose of paying premium, made after policy had lapsed, held not conditional on insured furnishing certificate of good health so as to negative recognition of the continued validity of the policy. Id.

In determining whether company waived forfeiture, offer of loan with which to pay premiums after a lapse, made by a superintendent of a department of the company and transmitted to the insured by the cashier of a local agency, held to be considered as if made direct to insured by the superintendent. Id.

A waiver by an insurance company of a forfeiture for nonpayment of premiums by an offer of a loan is operative for a reasonable time thereafter during which insured may adjust the premium. Id.

Where, after the expiration of the days of grace within which a premium on a life policy could be paid, the insurer offered to make a loan with which to pay premiums without reinstatement, the forfeiture was waived. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 152 S. W. 625.

81. — Examination by adjuster.—An adjuster held not to have waived a breach of "an iron safe clause" by examining and estimating loss at insured's request, and by requiring duplicate invoices at his expense. Roberts, Willis & Taylor Co. v. Sun Mut. Ins. Co., 19 C. A. 338, 48 S. W. 559.

The right to claim a forfeiture of a fire policy for noncompliance with the iron safe clause held waived by insured being subjected to an examination under oath by the adjuster, with knowledge of the facts. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nunn (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 88.

Waiver of production of inventories by an insurance adjuster, without knowledge of the loss of one of them, held not a waiver of a condition of the iron safe clause, requiring the keeping and production of such lost inventory. Continental Ins. Co. v. Cummings, 98 T. 115, 81 S. W. 705.

The forfeiture of a policy for nonproduction of books held not waived by requiring insured to submit to a sworn examination. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nunn, 98 T. 191, 82 S. W. 497, 68 L. R. A. 83.

A forfeiture of the policy by failure of insured to keep an account of cash sales held not waived by requiring insured to submit to several examinations. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co., 55 C. A. 263, 118 S. W. 1086.

Employers' indemnity company held not estopped from denying liability under the policy, where its adjuster's act did not injure or mislead the injured employer. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Tyler Box & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 283.

82. — Denial of liability as waiver of right to demand of payment.—Where an insurance company, upon an offer to furnish proofs of death of the insured, denied liability on the policy, it thereby waived its right to demand of payment, and could not contend that because of failure to demand payment as required a judgment against it was erroneous in including the statutory penalty and attorney's fees. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 778.

83. — Accepting proofs of loss.—Where defective proofs have been made, a refusal to pay on special grounds, or a denial of liability, unless predicated upon the defects in the preliminary proofs, is a waiver of all the defects therein, and estops the insurer from insisting upon them to defeat his liability. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

A requirement by the company of proofs of loss after full information as to breaches of policy is a waiver of its right of forfeiture. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Moriarty (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 628.

84. — Form and requisites of express waiver.—A waiver of the conditions of a policy must be supported by a consideration, or must be such as to estop a party from insisting on a performance of the contract. Sun Ins. Co. v. Tex. Foundry & Machine Co., 4 App. C. C. § 32, 15 S. W. 34.

Where an insurance agent, having authority to consent to a transfer of the property, orally consented thereto, the insurer was bound thereby. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 440.

Parol waiver as to forfeiture clauses in insurance contracts may be shown notwithstanding an express provision of the policy forbidding it. British America Assur. Co. v. Francisco (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1144.

An insurer whose agent consented in advance to additional insurance, and issued a slip showing such agreement, was estopped from asserting a forfeiture, though such slip was not attached to the policy until after the loss. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1152.

85. — Effect of waiver.—A waiver by an insurance company of a ground of forfeiture is not a waiver of another ground of which it has no knowledge. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 702.

Where a forfeiture of an insurance policy is once waived because of the course of dealings between the parties, it cannot later be interposed to defeat recovery. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1184.

86. — Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence in action on policy held to support finding of waiver of production of books of account, Continental Fire Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 378; insufficient to charge an insurance agent with knowledge that plaintiff's interest in the property was other than sole and unconditional ownership, Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 716; sufficient to sustain a plea that defendant waived its right to insist on a forfeiture of the policy, Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1033; to sustain a finding that the insurer was advised by its agent of the full amount of concurrent insurance carried, which exceeded that permitted by the policy, St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cronin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 649; to justify a finding that the insurer in a life policy waived forfeiture for nonpayment of premiums at maturity, Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 184; sufficient to support a finding that the forfeiture of a policy for nonpayment of the premium had been waived, Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 147 S. W. 1152; insufficient to warrant a finding that the insurer issued the policy without notice that an insurance broker was acting as agent of the insured, Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 625.

87. Curing forfeiture.—Payment of a mortgage on insured property before loss does not cure a forfeiture for failure to give the insurer notice of the existence of the mortgage. Insurance Co. of North America v. Wicker (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 300.

88. Risks and causes of loss—Marine insurance.—A policy of marine insurance upon a vessel while in the waters of the Mexican gulf held in force, where the vessel was in a river where the gulf tide ebbed and flowed. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.

There can be no recovery, under a policy insuring a vessel against the adventures and perils of the sea, for the sinking of the vessel caused by the negligence of the watchman in failing to close the sea valve, which caused it to tip over, or to tip so far that water ran in from the top and foundered it. Id.

89. — Insurance of property.—Evidence in an action on a fire policy examined and held sufficient to justify the finding that the fire was negligently set by a third party, which had been impleaded by the insurance company as a defendant. Philadelphia Underwriters v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 104, 71 S. W. 419.

Evidence held insufficient to show that insured fraudulently caused a fire. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Frosch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 600.

A live stock insurance policy held to prohibit recovery, where the animal died without the county named in the policy. Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Krenke (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1181.

90. — Indemnity insurance.—There can be no recovery on a policy insuring assured against his liability on cotton consigned to him as warehouseman, the loss occurring without his negligence. Allen v. Royal Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 931.

Employé of insured under employer's liability insurance policy held to be engaged in occupation covered by policy at the time of his death. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York v. Lone Oak Cotton Oil & Gin Co., 35 C. A. 260, 80 S. W. 541.

An insurance contract to indemnify the sureties of a postmaster for loss caused by his embezzlement of money order funds, etc., should be construed with reference to the federal laws in determining what constitutes an embezzlement within the contract, and not under the state statutes defining the offense. Griffin v. Zuber, 52 C. A. 288, 113 S. W. 961.

91. — Life insurance.—When the policy provides that if within two years from date of policy the insured shall commit suicide, and the evidence shows that within that time the insured did commit suicide, it is not error to instruct the jury to find for the company. Parish et al. v. Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co., 19 C. A. 457, 49 S. W. 153.

In an action on a policy, evidence held insufficient to show that deceased's death was caused by poison administered by his wife, who was the beneficiary. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Mellott (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 887.

In action on life policy, evidence held sufficient to show that deceased came to his death from natural causes, and not from suicide. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Liddell, 32 C. A. 252, 74 S. W. 87.

Evidence in an action for damages for refusal to pay a death benefit certificate held to show that insured committed suicide. Loyal Americans of the Republic v. McClanahan, 50 C. A. 256, 109 S. W. 973.

Evidence held to show that an insured committed suicide. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 50 C. A. 233, 109 S. W. 1120.

The fact that a pistol could only be fired by pulling the trigger does not show beyond a reasonable doubt that the person killed by a shot from the pistol intentionally fired it. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769.

A finding that insured in a life policy, void if he committed suicide within a specified period, did not commit suicide must stand, unless the evidence establishes that the shooting causing his death was intentional to that degree of conclusiveness which precludes a reasonable doubt to the contrary. Id.

In an action upon a life policy void on the suicide of insured, evidence held to justify a finding that insured's death was accidental, and not suicidal. Id.

Evidence, in an action on a benefit certificate, defended on the ground that insured died in consequence of his violation of law, held sufficient to show that insured was killed because of an assault made by him in violation of a penal statute. Woodmen of the World v. Hipp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 316.

92. — Accident and health insurance.—An accident policy which provides against death or injury resulting from fighting, intentional injury, or violation of law is forfeited by engaging in a fight voluntarily, and being shot while so engaged. Morris v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 398.

Accident insurance policy construed, and held, that where insured died from effect of an overdose of morphine, given to cure delirium tremens, the insurer was not liable. Flint v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1079.

In an action on an accident policy, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that death occurred through external and violent means, and not because of insured's diseased condition. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Hicks, 23 C. A. 74, 56 S. W. 87.

Evidence in an action on an accident policy held to show that the death of insured did not result from an anæsthetic alone. Maryland Casualty Co. v. Glass, 29 C. A. 159, 67 S. W. 1062.

An injury inflicted by one protecting himself from an unprovoked assault is intentionally inflicted within the meaning of an accident policy. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York v. Smith, 31 C. A. 111, 71 S. W. 391.

An accident policy exempting insurer from liability for death by voluntarily or involuntarily taking poison held to include death resulting from an accidental taking of a poisonous medicine. Kennedy v. Ætna Life Ins. Co., 31 C. A. 509, 72 S. W. 602.

A stipulation in an accident policy held not to relieve the insurer from liability for injuries sustained by the insured while on a hunting expedition. Wilkinson v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1016.

Accident insurance policy held not to insure against death caused by spoiled oysters. Maryland Casualty Co. v. Hudgins, 97 T. 124, 76 S. W. 745, 64 L. R. A. 349, 104 Am. St. Rep. 857, 1 Ann. Cas. 252, reversing (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1047.

An injury held an intentional one within the clause of an accident policy exempting insurer from liability. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Weil, 40 C. A. 629, 91 S. W. 886.

Facts held not to show, as matter of law, that death of insured resulted from exposure to unnecessary and obvious danger, so as to limit the company's liability. Continental Casualty Co. v. Jennings, 45 C. A. 14, 99 S. W. 423.

The word "injury" in a certain policy of accidental insurance held to include fatal injury. Continental Casualty Co. v. Morris, 46 C. A. 394, 102 S. W. 773.

Clauses of a health policy relating to the payment of benefits held not repugnant. General Accident Ins. Co. v. Hayes, 52 C. A. 272, 113 S. W. 990.

Evidence, in an action on an accident insurance policy, held sufficient to support a finding that plaintiff lost the sight of both his eyes as the result alone of the injury to his right eye, and not as the result of any kind of disease. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 432.

"Voluntary exposure" to unnecessary danger or obvious risks, within the meaning of an accident policy, is a conscious or intentional exposure to a known risk, and not a mere inadvertent or accidental one. Continental Casualty Co. v. Deeg (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 353.

The death of a collector by sunstroke while pursuing his work on a hot day was not within an accident policy insuring against death by sunstroke due to external, violent, and accidental means. Bryant v. Continental Casualty Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 636.

A health policy, dated September 19th, having excepted illness contracted before the policy should have been in force thirty days, held there could be no recovery for an illness contracted October 1st. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 326.

Evidence in an action on a casualty insurance policy held to sustain a finding that decedent died solely as a result of injury received and not from other causes. Royal Casualty Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 674.

The "visible mark upon the body" required by a casualty insurance company need not be a bruise, contusion, laceration, or broken limb, but may be any visible evidence of internal injury or any physical effect observable from an outward indication which reveals an injured condition of the internal organs. Id.

93. Extent of loss and liability of insurer—Fire Insurance.—Insured gifts held properly valued as of the time of their destruction. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Frosch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 600.

In an action on a fire policy, evidence held insufficient to show that the loss was only partial. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 465.

94. — Accident Insurance.—On an accident policy against injuries which wholly disable assured from pursuing every duty pertaining to his occupation, he cannot recover for injuries which prevent him from performing his duties "as effectively" as he could otherwise have done. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York v. Getzendanner, 22 C. A. 76, 53 S. W. 838.

A condition in an accident policy preventing recovery for death from disease or voluntary overexertion held not to prevent recovery for death occurring while insured was in a diseased condition, but wholly from independent and accidental causes. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Hicks, 23 C. A. 74, 56 S. W. 87.

Recovery can be had on an accident policy for death, where the accidental injury causes rheumatism, and this produces death. Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Hunter, 30 C. A. 489, 70 S. W. 798.

In the absence of fraud, an insurance company held entitled to enforce a clause in an accident policy on the life of a policeman, for which an extra-risk premium had been paid, providing for a liability only for premiums in case injuries were intentionally inflicted by another. Grimes v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 33 C. A. 275, 76 S. W. 811.

Provisions of an accident policy considered and held, that the provision that the accident must at once render the insured unable to engage in any work does not relate to injuries resulting in death. Continental Casualty Co. v. Wade (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 877.

Insured held not to have sustained an injury which continuously incapacitated him from labor from the time of the injury until he died so as to authorize a recovery on an accident policy. Continental Casualty Co. v. Wade, 101 T. 102, 105 S. W. 35.

Insurer in an accident policy held liable only to the indemnity provided for the occupation of a hunter, where insured was killed while hunting for recreation. Lane v. General Accident Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 324.

Evidence, in an action on an accident insurance policy, held sufficient to support a finding that plaintiff was irrevocably blind. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 432.

Accident insurance policy for $400 providing that for injury intentionally inflicted by any person other than insured the liability was limited to one-fifth the amount otherwise payable construed, and held that, upon the assassination of assured, the beneficiary was entitled to recover only $80. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corporation v. Stegman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 692.

95. — Life Insurance.—Under a life policy, notes given for a premium, with interest, held a proper charge against the amount of the policy. Southwestern Ins. Co. v. Woods Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 114.

Because of a provision for deducting the amount of the premium from the face of the policy, a beneficiary of a life insurance policy held to have the right to recover thereon, though the premium was not paid within the time required. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 778.

Present value of a paid-up life policy stated. Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias v. Neeley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1046.

96. Notice and proof of loss.—Validity of provision in policy requiring immediate notice, see notes under Art. 5714.

97. — Necessity of proof.—Where a life insurance policy makes it a condition precedent to recovery thereon that proofs of death be furnished in accordance with the provisions of the policy, and there is a failure to furnish such proof and no waiver of the provision is claimed nor excuse shown, there can be no recovery. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 50 C. A. 233, 109 S. W. 1120.

98. — Estoppel or waiver as to proofs.—Where proofs are prepared under directions of the agent and with his approval imperfections therein are waived. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Reichman (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 831.

Insurance company's denial of liability on policy, though made to a third party, will operate as waiver of proofs of loss. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 198.

Failure to furnish a magistrate's certificate of loss will not prevent recovery, where the same was not requested till suit was brought, 60 days after loss. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Shacklett (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 583.

An insurer's denial of liability held a waiver of proofs of loss and of the insurer's right to 60 days within which to pay the same. Connecticut Fire Ins. Co. v. Hilbrant (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 558.

Insurance company held to have waived proofs of loss. Continental Fire Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 378.

That plaintiff, at the time he demanded blanks for proofs of death from insurer, was not authorized to receive payment, did not prevent insurer's refusal of blanks from operating as a waiver of proofs of death. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 34 C. A. 131, 78 S. W. 398.

It is unnecessary for insured to prove furnishing of proofs of loss, where insurer refuses them, or would have ignored them. Woodall v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1090.

Proofs of loss under a fire policy are waived, where the insurer denies its liability. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Moore, 36 C. A. 312, 81 S. W. 573.

A nonwaiver clause in a fire policy held not to apply after an adjustment of the loss has been made. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

Ignorance of insurer at the time of an adjustment under a fire policy of facts which might have defeated the claim of the policy held of no avail if the insurer might have known them and was not fraudulently prevented from learning them. Id.

An insurance company, on receipt of proof of death, held charged with notice of any discrepancies between the statements therein and those contained in the application. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1033.

Where insurer expressly denied liability, proof of loss was dispensed with. Orient Ins. Co. v. Wingfield, 49 C. A. 202, 108 S. W. 788.

Effect of insurer's refusal to pay certain sick benefits because the final proof indicated that insured had not been confined for the required period stated. General Accident Ins. Co. v. Hayes, 52 C. A. 272, 113 S. W. 990.

99. — Fraud, false swearing or misstatement.—False swearing to avoid a policy after loss must be willful. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Swann (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 519.

In order to make out a case of false swearing in making the proof of loss by fire, so as to affect the policy, the facts alleged to be false must have been known to have been such by the party swearing to them. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Shearman, 17 C. A. 456, 43 S. W. 930.

Where the amount of fire policy is by statute made a liquidated demand in case of total loss, the liability of the insurer cannot be avoided by showing an excessive valuation in the proof of loss. German Ins. Co. v. Jansen, 18 C. A. 190, 45 S. W. 220.

Misstatement as to ownership of property in proof of loss held not fraudulent, so as to avoid policy. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 24 C. A. 140, 57 S. W. 876.

Misstatement in notice of accident and proof of death as to cause thereof held not to relieve the company from liability on an accident policy. Continental Casualty Co. v. Jennings, 45 C. A. 14, 99 S. W. 423.

100. — Proofs of injury or loss.—Where proofs of accident furnished showed injury and disability, it was only necessary for insured, in furnishing further proofs, to show continuance of disability. Woodall v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1090.

Where a building insured was totally destroyed, it was immaterial that the proofs of loss were furnished by the mortgagee, to whom the policy was payable. Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co. v. Ruddell, 37 C. A. 30, 82 S. W. 826.

101. — Notice of insufficiency.—After proofs made under directions of insurer's agent, notice of insufficiency, without stating in what particular, is unavailing. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Reichman (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 831.

102. Adjustment of loss.—Neither party to a policy is concluded by an adjustment as to rights arising from facts not considered when an adjustment was made. The assignee of a policy is not bound by an adjustment of the loss with the assignor, the insurer having previous notice of the assignment. Fire Ass'n of London v. Blum, 63 T. 282.

An open policy is one in which the sum to be paid in case of loss is not fixed in the contract, but if left open to be proved by the claimant, or to be determined by the parties, and this determination is called an adjustment of the loss. Fire Insurance Ass'n v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 332.

A stipulation in a policy by which it is agreed that the amount of loss shall be determined by an appraisal, is valid, and if such appraisal be made a condition precedent to the bringing of a suit upon the policy it will be enforced. Insurance Co. v. Clancy, 83 T. 113, 18 S. W. 439; Id., 71 T. 5, 8 S. W. 630; American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Bass, 90 T. 380, 38 S. W. 1119.

A disagreement merely as to the basis of determining the loss does not call an arbitration provision into force. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 18 C. A. 588, 45 S. W. 945.

The loss being total the question of appraisal cannot arise. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Shacklett (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 583.

103. — Demand of appraisal.—A fire insurance policy construed, and held that, where the company did not demand an appraisal until more than 60 days after the loss and 3 weeks after receipt of proofs of loss, the demand was too late. Lion Fire Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 203, 68 S. W. 305.

Demand for appraisal of loss held too late, under terms of policy. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 445, 69 S. W. 235.

104. — Waiver as to adjustment.—Where the company accepts proofs of loss made by insurer, it waives the right to have the question of loss determined by arbitrators. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 18 C. A. 588, 45 S. W. 945.

Provision in policy requiring submission of amount of loss to appraisers held waived. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cannon (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 375.

Where there is a tacit agreement between insurer and insured on all points except amount of loss, and proofs of loss are retained, it is a waiver of all points except manner of determining loss. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 19 C. A. 305, 46 S. W. 851.

Where an insurer fails to demand an appraisal within the time prescribed by the policy, it waives its right thereto. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 445, 69 S. W. 235.

Insurance company held to have waived its right to reappraisal of property injured in fire. American Fire Ins. Co. v. Bell, 33 C. A. 11, 75 S. W. 319.

105. — Validity and effect of appraisal or award.—Where policy provided for arbitration and award, and the award was invalid through no fault of the insured, an action on the policy could be maintained. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1131.

Where arbitrators gave no notice of the time and place of their meeting, and refused to permit a party to appear before them, the award was void. Id.

Appraisers held to have no authority to refuse to appraise property claimed by insured to have been destroyed. American Fire Ins. Co. v. Bell, 33 C. A. 11, 75 S. W. 319.

An arbitration award under fire policies held not inadmissible as not complying with the provisions under which arbitration was had. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Froesch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 600.

Under an agreement to arbitrate a fire loss, the award binds insurer; especially where the policy provides for arbitration on disagreement. Id.

106. — Settlement between parties.—A settlement of claim for insurance held without consideration; insurer's contention that the policy was void not being in good faith. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Blasingame, 38 C. A. 402, 85 S. W. 819.

A settlement of a claim under a fire policy held not established, but insured could sue for the balance due. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Blohopolo (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 358.

107. — Setting aside adjustment.—An adjustment of a loss under a fire policy may be set aside on a showing that it was fraudulent or made through a mistake of fact. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1063.

108. Right to proceeds.—One having a beneficial interest in a policy may maintain an action on loss of property. Allison v. Phoenix Assur. Co., 87 T. 593, 30 S. W. 547.

The fact that the custody of stepchildren has been taken from their stepmother after their father's death cannot defeat the recovery from her of their share in a life insurance policy. Clausen v. Jones, 18 C. A. 376, 45 S. W. 183.

The holder of a life insurance policy has the power to direct that his children shall share the proceeds thereof. Id.

In an action by the beneficiary of an insurance policy, the proceeds of which were claimed by the wife of the insured, under an agreement whereby the wife agreed to convey the homestead to enable the husband to purchase other incumbered property, the husband agreeing to take out sufficient insurance to pay the incumbrances, the carrying of insurance in favor of his estate and an only child, coher with the wife, constitutes a partial performance of the agreement, and where all of the husband's insurance amounts to more than the incumbrances, the wife cannot claim the proceeds of a policy of which another is a beneficiary. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

109. — Policy payable to creditor.—Where a policy was payable to a creditor of insured as his interest might appear, otherwise to the executor, held that the company must show that insured was indebted to the creditor, if it justified on the ground of payment to him. Andrews v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 92 T. 584, 50 S. W. 572.

A creditor holding a policy payable to him as collateral, and who has paid the premiums thereon, in order to recover, need not show any assignment of it to him, as he is the absolute owner. Andrews v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 24 C. A. 425, 58 S. W. 1039.

Where a creditor insures his debtor's life as security, on the debtor's death the creditor can only recover the debt with interest at 6 per cent. and the premiums paid by him. Stacy v. Parker (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 532.

110. — Policy payable to mortgagee.—Where policies are made payable to a mortgagee, the owner and the insurer cannot, without the mortgagee's consent, make any change in the policies that will affect its rights. Pan Handle Nat. Bank v. Security Co., 18 C. A. 96, 44 S. W. 15.

A mortgagee held to have such an interest in the property as would entitle him to collect insurance money. Id.

Mortgagees of an intestate's property were not entitled to insurance money payable to them under the mortgage, where the intestate's administrator had restored the property to the condition it was in before the fire. Huey v. Ewell, 22 C. A. 638, 55 S. W. 606.

111. — Trustee.—A stepmother's conduct towards her stepchildren does not disqualify her to act as their trustee in the collection of their insurance money, as authorized by her deceased husband. Clausen v. Jones, 18 C. A. 376, 45 S. W. 183.

112. — Remaindermen.—Where a fire policy is payable to one having a life estate, in case of a loss the remaindermen are entitled to the excess over the value of the life estate. Grant v. Buchanan, 36 C. A. 334, 81 S. W. 820.

113. — Assignment of claim.—An assignment of a fire insurance policy after a loss has occurred will not vitiate the policy. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Scott, 1 U. C. 534.

Where a fire policy by its terms was payable to a third person, insured could not, after the loss, assign his claim, so as to defeat the rights of the payees under the terms of the policy. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

A fire policy may be assigned orally after the loss. Id.

An assignment of a life policy held to give to the assignee an interest in the policy to the amount insured owed the assignee. Smith v. Hesse (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 256.

An assignment of the proceeds of a fire insurance policy need not be accepted by the company's agent in order to become effective, if the company had notice of the assignment. Prentice v. Security Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 925.

An order by an insured requesting the local agents of a fire company to pay to defendant out of insured's policy the amount of a specified note for the sum named therein was drawn upon a specific fund so as to operate as an assignment thereof within the rule that an interest in a chose in action can only be assigned by an order drawn upon a specific fund. Id.

Since a fire policy, the proceeds of which were assigned by a written order, was nonnegotiable, no question of bona fide purchaser without notice could arise with respect to conflicting claimants; the rule that the first in time is the first in right obtaining. Id.

Where it was agreed when plaintiff sold land in consideration of an assignment of an interest in a fire policy that the deed should not be delivered to insured until plaintiff received the proceeds of the policy, no question of innocent purchaser could arise as between plaintiff and another assignee of such proceeds. Id.

If the assignee of the proceeds of a fire policy had no knowledge of fraud by the insurance company in adjusting the loss with insured, another claimant to the proceeds could not rely upon fraud as against such assignee. Id.

An instruction which required a finding that all parties to a contract assigning an interest in an insurance policy must have agreed to its terms at the same time to make it effective was properly refused. Id.

114. Time for payment.—A stipulation that the insurer may have 60 days after proofs are made to pay the loss, etc., is waived by its unconditional refusal to pay. E. T. Fire Ins. Co. v. Dyches, 56 T. 565.

115. Election to repair or rebuild.—A stipulation in a policy for the right to rebuild in case of total loss is void. Fire Association v. Brown (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 997; Insurance Co. v. Levy, 12 C. A. 45, 33 S. W. 992, 996.

An offer to repair a building incapable of being put in the same condition it was before the loss will not relieve the insurer from liability. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Woodward, 18 C. A. 496, 45 S. W. 185.

Where the insurer was offered an opportunity to rebuild the house destroyed, and failed to do so, a plea that it offered to rebuild, and was refused permission to do so will not avail it. Id.

116. Release.—A release procured by an insurance adjuster of a claim on a life policy, by fraudulently representing that the policy was void because not having been delivered in the good health of the insured, would not be binding. Northwestern Life Ass'n v. Findley, 29 C. A. 494, 68 S. W. 695.

That insured, injured through the negligence of his employer, settled with the latter and released it from liability, held not a defense to an action for accident insurance. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. J. B. Parker & Co., 30 C. A. 521, 72 S. W. 621.

In an action to recover the balance due on a life insurance policy, evidence held not to conclusively show a valuable consideration for a release of her claim executed by plaintiff. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Lennox, 103 T. 133, 124 S. W. 623.

117. Subrogation of insurer.—After the delivery of the bill of lading by a carrier, the shipper insured the cotton covered by it. The bill of lading stipulated that in case of loss the carrier should have the benefit of any insurance. The cotton was destroyed in transitu, and the policy was paid to the shipper, who transferred to the insurance company his claim against the carrier. Held, that the insurance company acquired thereby no rights against the carrier. B. & F. M. Ins. Co. v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 63 T. 475, 51 Am. Rep. 661.

A clause in a bill of lading that the carrier shall have the full benefit of insurance is not void. An open policy which stipulates that "this insurance shall not inure to benefit of carrier" is not void as in restraint of trade. Insurance Co. v. Easton, 73 T. 167, 11 S. W. 180, 3 L. R. A. 424.

An action cannot be maintained by the insured against an insurance company when by inconsistent stipulations with the carrier he has defeated the insurer's right of subrogation. In case of such inconsistent stipulations a payment by the insurance company is voluntary, and no subrogation would follow from such payment against the carrier. Railway Co. v. Insurance Co., 84 T. 149, 19 S. W. 459.

Where an insurance policy stipulated that the company, on paying any loss to the mortgagee on which it denied liability to the owner, should be subrogated to the mortgagee's right, held a judgment in a mortgagee's favor should decree subrogation. Alamo Fire Ins. Co. v. Davis, 25 C. A. 342, 60 S. W. 802.

An insurer against accidental injury held not subrogated to the rights of assured, injured through the negligence of a third party to recover damages for such negligence. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. J. B. Parker & Co., 96 T. 237, 72 S. W. 168.

The right of subrogation given to an insurer issuing a fire policy held a valuable right and material to the risk. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. La Grange & Lockhart Compress Co., 50 C. A. 172, 109 S. W. 1134.

An insurer of property destroyed by fire set by a railroad company held not entitled to recover from the company therefor. Spring Garden Ins. Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1147.

118. Interest.—A stipulation that no claim shall bear interest until judicial demand is valid. Insurance Co. v. Lacroix, 45 T. 153; Id., 35 T. 249, 14 Am. Rep. 370.

When the policy provides that it shall be paid within 60 days after proof of loss, interest does not run until the expiration of that time. Queen Ins. Co. v. Jefferson Ice Co., 64 T. 578.

119. Conditions precedent to action on policy.—A provision in a policy of insurance on the homestead that in case of garnishment payment shall not be required until garnishment is disposed of is void. Insurance Co. v. Chase, 11 C. A. 13, 31 S. W. 1103.

An insurance company, in a suit on a policy, could not complain that plaintiffs had failed to return money paid to them in pursuance of an invalid agreement of release, where the money so paid was credited on the amount recovered. Northwestern Life Ass'n v. Findley, 29 C. A. 494, 68 S. W. 695.

120. Limitations by provisions of policy.—See notes under Art. 5714.

121. Defenses in general.—In an action on a fire policy payable to plaintiff, the fact that insured, plaintiff's debtor, obtained from the clerk of the court the premium which had been paid for the policy, held not to affect plaintiff's right to prosecute the action. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

In an action by insured's executor on certain life policies, it was no defense that the insurer had paid the proceeds to an assignee under an assignment for moneys advanced, to be used by insured in gambling transactions in cotton futures. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 51.

Insurer having paid the proceeds of policies to an assignee having no insurable interest, with notice of his adverse claim against the insured's estate, held not entitled to justify the payment on the theory that the assignee received the money in trust for those equitably entitled thereto. Id.

122. Defense available against mortgagee.—Where a fire policy was issued, payable to a mortgagee as his interest might appear, any defense available against the insured was available against the mortgagee. Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co. v. Ruddell, 37 C. A. 36, 82 S. W. 826.

123. Judgment on policy payable in installments.—Where a policy was payable in 10 annual installments unless insured should file a written consent to have the same paid at his death, a judgment on the policy in the absence of such consent, requiring payment of the face value of the policy, was error. New York Life Ins. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 440.

A refusal of a life insurance company to pay the first installment of policy payable in annual installments held not to authorize judgment against it for the whole amount. New York Life Ins. Co. v. English, 96 T. 268, 72 S. W. 58.

124. Reinsurance.—Where an insurance company which contracted to reinsure the risks of another company expressly restricted its liability to claims arising by reason of death, held, it was not liable upon a cash surrender value provision of a policy. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Green (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 1131.

125. Recovery of payment.—An insurance company that has paid a policy obtained by fraud in ignorance of that fact is entitled to recover the sum paid. Life Ass'n v. Parham, 80 T. 518, 16 S. W. 316.

An insurance company held not entitled to recover back money paid because of a mistake due to its ignorance of facts. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 702.

A marine insurer, which expended money in salvaging a sunken vessel, held entitled to recover back such expenditures, it appearing that it was not liable under the policy. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.

Interest on county warrants.—County warrants, which are silent as to interest and specify no time of payment, do not bear interest. Ashe v. Harris County, 55 T. 49.

Interest on claim for paving.—A street railroad company, contracting to pay for paving between the rails, must pay only the legal rate of interest on balance due. Houston City St. Ry. Co. v. Storrle (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 693.

Interest on note.—Where wrongful garnishment merely delayed collection of a note, interest is recoverable at the legal rate for the time during which collection is prevented. Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 233.

Effect of change of legal rate.—How interest, as compensation for detention of money recoverable, is computed, when there has been a change in the legal rate. Watkins v. Junker, 90 T. 584, 40 S. W. 11.

Art. 4975. [3099] "Conventional interest."—"Conventional interest" is that interest which is agreed upon and fixed by the parties to a written contract, not to exceed ten per cent per annum.

Rate of interest on city's indebtedness.—See Art. 876.

Municipal bonds.—See Art. 612.

Road bonds.—See Art. 632.

Interest on sum lost through wrongful garnishment.—Where wrongful garnishment results in entire loss of a note, interest is recoverable at the contract rate. Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 233.

Consideration for interest agreement.—Where plaintiff was liable under an original building and loan contract only for the principal, less payments made, because of usury, a second contract purging the original of usury held not void as to the interest for want of consideration. Cotton State Bldg. Co. v. Jones, 94 T 497, 62 S. W. 741.

Increase or reduction of rate.—Surrender of a debtor's right to extinguish the debt at once, and his agreement to pay interest thereafter, held a sufficient consideration for the creditor's agreement to reduce the rate of interest. Delta County v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 902.

In an action involving the extension of a note secured by a deed of trust at a greater rate of interest, evidence held to sustain a finding that the loan was extended upon an increased rate of interest. Boyles v. Byers (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1112.

One who purchased lumber and assumed certain purchase-money notes of the seller, secured by lien was only liable on the notes for the amount thereof, together with the 10 per cent. interest stipulated therein which had accrued to the date of the judgment in favor of the seller, and 6 per cent. interest on such aggregate amount, instead of 10 per cent., the interest stipulated in the notes. Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 209.

Art. 4976. [3100] Distinction between legal and conventional recognized by law.—The distinction between legal and conventional interest shall be known and recognized by the laws of this state. [Act Jan. 18, 1840. P. D. 3939.]

Art. 4977. [3101] Six per cent the legal rate.—On all written contracts ascertaining the sum payable, when no specified rate of interest is agreed upon by the parties to the contract, interest shall be allowed at the rate of six per cent per annum from and after the time when the sum is due and payable. [Acts 1892, S. S., pp. 4, 5.]

"Ascertaining the sum payable."—Under this article and Const. art. 5, § 16, which declares that county courts shall have concurrent jurisdiction with district courts when a matter in controversy does not exceed $1,000, exclusive of interest, held, that where a petition in an action in a county court alleged that plaintiff purchased land of defendant and paid $1,000 as earnest money, and that under the contract, if the trade fell through on account of defendants' default, such amount was to be refunded; that defendant had defaulted, but had refused to refund the sum in question, and recovery thereof was sought, with interest, the county court had no jurisdiction, as the amount payable was not ascertainable from the terms of the contract, and the interest sued for could be recovered only as damages. McNeill v. Casey (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1130.

A contract of employment which specified a definite salary ascertained the amount payable, within this article, providing that interest shall be allowed at 6 per cent. per annum on written contracts "ascertaining the sum payable," when no rate is specified, and the interest due under the employment contract does not enter into the "amount in controversy," as constituting damages, as affecting the jurisdiction of the county court of a suit on the contract. Carter Grocer Co. v. Day (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 365.

Computation.—When money is payable at date, or generally, interest runs from date, and the date, when omitted in the written contract, may be proven. Richardson v. Ellett, 10 T. 190; Van Norman v. Wheeler, 13 T. 316. And see Cook v. Cook, 19 T. 434.

A grantee recovering money paid for land which he did not get is entitled to interest from the time it was paid. Bennett v. Latham, 18 C. A. 403, 45 S. W. 934.

Where, on appeal, it appeared that the computation of interest in the judgment was on an incorrect basis, held, that the judgment would be reformed in that respect on appeal. Masterson v. F. W. Heitmann & Co., 38 C. A. 476, 87 S. W. 227.

Where one agreed to pay another a specified sum when able, interest did not run until he became able. Ruzeoski v. Wilrodt (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 142.

The holders of certain notes held entitled to interest from maturity, notwithstanding an extension agreement. Dashiell v. W. L. Moody & Co., 44 C. A. 87, 97 S. W. 843.

An order for the payment of money drawn for immediate payment out of funds due the drawer is payable on demand, and interest is rightfully allowed from the date of demand. Foley v. Houston Co-op. & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 160.

A mortgage creditor, who collected on insurance on the improvements more than enough to extinguish the principal of the debt, held not entitled to collect more interest than that which had accrued at the collection of the policy. Dallas Trust & Savings Bank v. Story, 55 C. A. 84, 113 S. W. 781.

It being the duty of a broker through whom goods are bought to notify the buyer of the arrival of goods at place of delivery, the broker, upon recovering the price therefor, would be entitled to interest only from the time of such notification. Plotner & Stoddard v. Markham Warehouse & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 443.

Change of time from which interest runs, either accelerating or delaying it, held a material alteration of an instrument. Baldwin v. Haskell Nat. Bank, 104 T. 122, 133 S. W. 864.

In an action on a bond given to a city by the grantee of a municipal franchise to secure operation of its plant within one year, interest was allowable from expiration of that time, the obligation maturing then. Grayson v. City of Marshall (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1034.

Compound interest.—A contract may stipulate for interest anterior to its date, if actually due, and for interest upon interest already accrued. Andrews v. Hoxie, 5 T. 171.

When payments are by agreement applied to the principal, which is thereby extinguished, the accrued interest which remains unpaid does not bear interest, unless otherwise expressly stipulated. Tooke v. Bonds, 29 T. 419.

A stipulation that interest past due shall bear interest is valid. Lewis v. Paschal, 37 T. 315; Roane v. Ross, 84 T. 46, 19 S. W. 339; Miner v. Bank, 53 T. 559; Crider v. San Antonio Real Estate, Building & Loan Ass'n, 89 T. 597, 35 S. W. 1047.

When partial payments are made, interest is to be computed to the time when a payment alone, or in conjunction with preceding payments, shall equal or exceed the interest due. Deduct the payment and calculate interest on the balance until the next payment or payments as before, and so on. Odle v. Frost, 59 T. 684; Hampton v. Dean, 4 T. 455; Hearn v. Cutberth, 10 T. 216; Clark v. Brown, 43 T. 212.

When interest is payable annually, unpaid interest bears legal interest. Roane v. Ross, 84 T. 46, 19 S. W. 339.

The payee of a note is entitled to interest at 6 per cent. on all unpaid annual installments of interest from the date they became due until paid. Stone v. Pettus, 47 C. A. 14, 103 S. W. 413.

A deed of trust executed to secure certain vendor's lien notes, bearing simple interest only, held to obligate one of the signers of the deed to pay the notes with compound interest, and to bind the land of the other signer for the payment of the notes and compound interest as surety. Irion v. Yell (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 69.

A written acknowledgment indorsed on a deed of trust held to nullify a provision of the deed for the payment of compound interest. Id.

The court in partition of real estate which has been in possession by one of the parties by tenants paying rent to him may not compound the interest on the rents in adjusting the equities of the parties. Miller v. Odom (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1185.

Guaranty.—A., on the 28th of January, guaranteed the payment for a wagon to be sold by B. to C., payable November 1st following. C. gave his note for the price of the wagon, with interest at 12 per cent. from date. Held, that A. was not liable for interest. Vogelsang v. Mensing, 1 App. C. C. § 1165. L. executed to G. his note for the price of goods sold on credit, with interest at 10 per cent. At the same time E. gave to G. his obligation, reciting that he was responsible for the amount bought by L. Held, that E. was liable for interest. Looney v. Le Geirse, 2 App. C. C. § 531.

Art. 4978. [3102] Six per cent on open accounts, when.—On all open accounts, when no specified rate of interest is agreed upon by the parties, interest shall be allowed at the rate of six per cent per annum from the first day of January, after the same are made. [Id. sec. 2.]

"Open account."—Parties may agree as to the rate of interest on an open account and as to the time when the account shall become due. Whittaker v. Wallace, 2 App. C. C. § 560.

The printed heading to an account of goods sold contained the following words and figures:

Terms } 30 days discount 5 per cent.
Cash } 10 " " 6 " "

Held, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the price for the goods sold was due on delivery; yet, if the money was paid in 30 days, a discount of 5 per cent., and if paid in 10 days a discount of 6 per cent., would be allowed to the debtor. Moss v. Katz, 69 T. 411, 6 S. W. 764.

Money advanced under a contract or at the instance and request of another is not an open account within this article. Courturie v. Roensch (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 413.

Computation.—In the absence of a contract, interest on an open account is computed from the January following the date of the account. Railway Co. v. Greathouse, 82 T. 104, 17 S. W. 834; Railway Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 324; Mills v. Haas, 27 S. W. 263, 674; Frick Co. v. Wright, 23 C. A. 340, 55 S. W. 608; Erb-Springall Co. v. Pittsburg Glass Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1165; Browning v. El Paso Lumber Co., 140 S. W. 386.

Interest cannot be allowed on an open account for 1897, where it is alleged that the services were performed the latter part of 1896 and the fore part of 1897, where it is not stated when the account became due, nor that there was any agreement as to interest. Frick Co. v. Wright, 23 C. A. 340, 55 S. W. 610.

Interest is not recoverable from the date an open account is due as damages for nonpayment. Erb-Springall Co. v. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1165.

Money had and received.—Interest is recoverable on money had and received and on money lent and advanced. Close v. Fields, 13 T. 623; Hicks v. Bailey, 16 T. 229; Grimes v. Hagood, 19 T. 246; Burnett v. Henderson, 21 T. 588; Pauska v. Daus, 31 T. 67.

Payment when work satisfactorily completed.—This article does not apply to a contract for boring wells to be paid for when work is completed to the satisfaction of the field superintendent. Interest is payable on the claim from the time the work is accepted. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Hamill (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 460.

Art. 4979. [3103] Ten per cent the conventional rate.—The parties to any written contract may agree to and stipulate for any rate of interest not exceeding ten per cent per annum on the amount of the contract. [Id.]

Stipulation as to rate.—Conventional interest runs until payment. Hopkins v. Crittenden, 10 T. 189; Coles v. Kelsey, 13 T. 75; Hagood v. Alkin, 57 T. 511; Washington v. First Nat. Bank, 64 T. 4.

On breach of a written contract by the obligee, which by its terms stipulates for ten per cent. interest on deferred payments for specific articles contracted for and to be delivered to such obligee under it, when there is a partial delivery only, and the obligor recovers judgment, he is entitled to the contract price of the articles delivered and the conventional interest specified in the contract. The breach does not entitle the defendant to claim a reduction of the interest to the amount allowed by the statute when no interest is specified by the contracting parties. Parks v. O'Connor, 70 T. 377, 8 S. W. 104.

A contract partly in writing and partly oral which stipulates for a prohibited rate of interest is in violation of the statute. Dunman v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 499.

Where a note containing a clause "to bear interest at the rate of _____ per cent. per annum from _____" was filled by drawing a line through the blank after the words "rate of" with a pen, if the note be regarded by reason thereof as containing a patent ambiguity, it should be construed as indicating an essential erasure of the entire interest clause and to show that no interest was to be paid. Couturie v. Roensch (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 413.

Art. 4980. [3104] Contracts for greater per cent void.—All written contracts whatsoever, which may in any way, directly or indirectly, violate the preceding article by stipulating for a greater rate of interest than ten per cent per annum shall be void and of no effect for the amount or value of the interest only; but the principal sum of money or value of the contract may be received and recovered. 1. In general.—The restriction in this statute to written contracts is held a violation of section 11 of article 16 of the constitution. The constitution reads "all contracts," etc. Dunman v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 499.

This is the only statute which declares a contract for a greater rate of interest than 10 per cent. void and it has no reference to any other than to written contracts. Quinlan's Estate v. Smye, 21 C. A. 156, 50 S. W. 1068.

2. What law governs.—A foreign loan company engaging in business without a permit held bound by usury laws of state, though the contract provided for performance in another state, where it would be valid. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67.

A foreign loan association, doing business in Texas under a permit from the state, by making a loan contract showing that both parties intended it should be performed in Texas, subjects the contract to the usury laws of Texas. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 19 C. A. 52, 47 S. W. 71.

A usurious building and loan note negotiated in Texas is governed by the laws of that state, though executed and performable in another state, by the laws of which it is not usurious. People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n v. Bessonette (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 52.

3. Intent.—The intent to take usury constitutes the offense. Henry v. Sansom, 21 S. W. 70, 2 C. A. 150.

Intention of parties that agreement should not be usurious does not authorize reformation, where the mistake was not as to the terms of the agreement, but as to its legal effect. Bexar Building & Loan Ass'n v. Seebe (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 875.

A refusal to submit to the jury whether the parties to a contract intended to violate the statute as to usury held not erroneous. Galveston & H. Inv. Co. v. Grymes (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 467.

The fact that a sum taken as interest by a building association exceeds the legal rate does not show usury, when the amount of the excess is insignificant. Peightal v. Cotton States Bldg. Co., 25 C. A. 390, 61 S. W. 428.

Where, in accumulating interest, the amount charged is to a small extent greater than allowed by law and is so made by mistake, it is not usurious. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 465, 93 S. W. 1102.

4. Loans in general.—Interest cannot be charged upon a premium on a loan made by a building and loan association to a member thereof. Such a contract is usurious, and the vice is not cured by an entry made by the association, after foreclosure sale, of a credit to the borrower of a sufficient sum to reduce the interest to the legal rate. Jackson v. Cassidy, 68 T. 283, 4 S. W. 541; Hensel v. International B. & L. Ass'n, 85 T. 215, 20 S. W. 116; International B. & L. Ass'n v. Abbott, 85 T. 220, 20 S. W. 118.

The fact that the agent of a money lender received from the borrower, for his own benefit, a sum of money when a loan was negotiated, which loan was to be repaid with the highest rate of interest allowed by law, will not render the contract usurious if the sum was exacted without the knowledge of the lender. Williams v. Bryan, 68 T. 593, 5 S. W. 401.

Contract for the payment of premiums and interest on a loan held usurious, where the premiums and interest together exceed the statutory rate of interest allowed. Nat. Loan & Inv. Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67; Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Goforth, 57 S. W. 700.

Contract of loan construed, and held usurious. Southern Building & Loan Ass'n v. Atkinson, 20 C. A. 516, 50 S. W. 170; American Mut. Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Cornibe, 35 C. A. 385, 80 S. W. 1026.

A deduction by a loan association of a "bonus" of $120 from a loan of $1,200, and a charge of $10 a month interest, held to render the loan usurious. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Keller, 20 C. A. 616, 50 S. W. 183.

Where the evidence of a borrower as to facts surrounding a loan claimed to be usurious were not contradicted, it will be assumed that the association knew and agreed to the transactions as testified to by him. Id.

Where a pretended subscription to stock was a scheme to avoid the usury laws, and such contract and the contract for the loan were one transaction, the contract is usurious. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Reily (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 961.

Upon the withdrawal of a borrower before the maturity of his stock, and payment of a loan admitted to be usurious, the association is entitled to only the original sum loaned, less the interest paid and the value of the stock at the date of withdrawal. Rogers v. People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 383.

A contract for a loan from a building and loan association held not usurious on its face. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Goforth, 94 T. 259, 59 S. W. 871.

A loan is not usurious because it draws the highest legal rate of interest from a time previous to the delivery of the money to the borrower, where it was set aside for his use at such time. Geisberg v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 478.

Facts held to show that certain stock issued was fictitious, and the whole transaction a cover for usury, and to warrant a judgment cancelling a mechanic's lien securing the loan, and awarding the plaintiff the amount paid the lender in excess of the principal. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 587.

A contract to pay 10 per cent. interest per annum on principal, interest, and cost of taking up a judgment on a debtor's land, including a note for $300 as further security, held usurious. Nesbit v. Goodrich, 25 C. A. 28, 60 S. W. 1017.

Where a building and loan association, in defense of an action to cancel a loan as usurious, set up a second contract as purging the original of usury, it was error to charge that the jury should find for plaintiff, if they found the original contract was usurious. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Jones, 94 T. 497, 62 S. W. 741.

Where the by-laws of a building and loan association provided that borrowers should pay a certain interest, together with the premium on the loan, held, that the premium should be considered in arriving at a conclusion as to whether such loan was usurious. State Nat. Loan & Trust Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 318, 63 S. W. 552.

By-laws of a building and loan association, and the contract for a loan thereunder, construed to call for more than 12 per cent. per annum interest, and hence to be usurious. Id.

To hold stock subscription to building association on making a loan usurious, it must appear that the association intended that the borrower should not in reality become a stockholder. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1071.

Evidence examined, and held, that a subscription for stock in a building association, an application for a loan, etc., were but one transaction, and a mere scheme to cover usurious interest. American Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Daugherty, 27 C. A. 430, 66 S. W. 131.

That a borrower, in order to secure a loan, agrees to pay, not only legal interest, but also a judgment on which he and the lender are liable, does not render the loan usurious. Southern Trading Co. v. State Nat. Bank, 35 C. A. 5, 79 S. W. 644.

5. Bills, notes and other instruments for the payment of money.—If a note is offered for discount by the maker, it is usurious between him and the party to whom it is delivered if the discount from the face value is greater than the highest legal per cent. Otherwise, if the transaction was a sale of the note. Crozier v. Stephens, 2 App. C. § 802.

K. loaned H. money on notes bearing 10 per cent. interest to maturity and 12 per cent. thereafter, with contract for 10 per cent. attorney fees in the event that the note was placed with an attorney for collection; and as the same time and as a part of the same transaction H. contracted to ship to K. during the cotton season, for sale on a commission of 2½ per cent. to K., one bale of cotton for every $10 loaned, or in default thereof to pay K. at the end of the season $1.25 for each bale he failed to ship, as liquidated damages. The claim made being only for the amount of the note, and the loan being made for the purpose of promoting consignments of cotton, held not usurious. Huddleston v. Kempner, 1 C. A. 211, 21 S. W. 946.

Usury as to part of a note taints the whole transaction. Ledbetter v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 840.

Note given to building and loan association for balance due, with maximum legal interest, is usurious, when stock taken by the association was credited at less than withdrawal value in making up the balance. Bexar Building & Loan Ass'n v. Seebe (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 375.

Under the evidence, held, that a note was usurious. First Nat. Bank v. Ledbetter, 17 C. A. 613, 42 S. W. 1018.

A stipulation in a note held to impose a penalty to enforce prompt payment only, and not to be usurious. Parks v. Lubbock (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 466.

A note providing for highest legal rate of interest and for exchange is not usurious, where it appears the provision for exchange was not made to cover a usurious contract. Stuart v. Tenison Bros. Saddlery Co., 21 C. A. 530, 53 S. W. 83.

A note which provides for the highest legal rate of interest, and also that, on default, the principal, together with delinquent taxes on property conveyed to secure the note, shall become due, is not usurious. Id.

Where a deed of trust securing a note recited that they were in extension of a prior note to which the holder was subrogated, in an action thereon it was error to hold that the holder of the deed was not entitled to interest on account of usury therein; the prior note not being usurious. American Mut. Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Harn (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 74.

A note binding the maker to pay $235 for a loan of $200 held to be a contract stipulating for usurious interest, within this article. Rosetti v. Lozano, 96 T. 57, 70 S. W. 204.

Payment of usurious interest by one other than maker of note, calling for such interest, held a payment by maker. Lasater v. First Nat. Bank, 96 T. 345, 72 S. W. 1057.

An agreement for the purchase of land held vitiated by usurious notes given for the purchase price of other land taken in exchange therefor. Webb v. Galveston & H. Inv. Co., 32 C. A. 515, 75 S. W. 355.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage, a finding that it provided for the payment of usurious interest, and that coupons and notes were given for interest, held justified. Norris v. W. C. Belcher Land Mortg. Co., 98 T. 176, 82 S. W. 500.

In an action by a national bank to collect a note, evidence held sufficient to authorize the presumption of payment of usurious interest. Trabue v. Cook (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 455.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a verdict for the cancellation of the note and the deed of trust on the ground of usury. Interstate Savings & Trust Co. v. Hornsby (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 960.

6. — Renewal note.—When usurious interest is included in a note given in renewal of a note, the vice of usury will inhere in it and in all subsequent renewals of the note. National Bank v. Wayburn, 81 T. 57, 16 S. W. 554.

A recovery of the original indebtedness held warranted in a suit on renewal notes calling for usurious interest. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

Lawful interest on an indebtedness held not recoverable in a suit on usurious renewal notes. Id.

A renewal contract to pay money carrying into it an usurious agreement of the former contract held usurious and illegal. Id.

7. Contracts.—Every contract, without regard to its form, which stipulates for a higher rate of interest than allowed by law is usurious. International B. & L. Ass'n v. Biering, 86 T. 476, 25 S. W. 622, 26 S. W. 39; Duncan v. Hough (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 945.

When by the terms of the contract payment by a time certain may avoid usury, the contract is not usurious, the interest in such case being regarded as a penalty for the default. Crider v. San Antonio Real Estate, Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 13 C. A. 399, 37 S. W. 237; Id., 89 T. 597, 35 S. W. 1047.

An agreement in renewal of a usurious contract, and bearing maximum legal interest, is usurious, where the interest paid under the first contract is not deducted from the principal. Bexar Building & Loan Ass'n v. Seebe (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 875.

A contract with a building and loan association held not usurious. Mathews v. Texas Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 744; Guarantee Savings Loan & Investment Co. v. Mitchell, 39 C. A. 205, 87 S. W. 184; Rabb v. Texas Loan & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 77.

A contract for the usurious interest due on another contract is also usurious. State Nat. Loan & Trust Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 318, 63 S. W. 552.

To determine the question of usury in a contract, it must be tried by the statutory limitation of 10 per cent. per annum, for the use, forbearance or detention of the money for one year. G. & H. Inv. Co. v. Grymes, 94 T. 609, 63 S. W. 861.

A contract for the repayment of the purchase money of certain land, bought by defendant with money furnished by plaintiff, held usurious. Burkitt v. McDonald, 26 C. A. 426, 64 S. W. 694.

A building and loan contract held usurious. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Marston, 30 C. A. 100, 69 S. W. 1034; Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Rawlins, 30 C. A. 428, 70 S. W. 786.

In an action to recover usury, evidence held to sustain a finding that cotton contracts, accompanying notes given to secure the loan, were a mere cover for usury. Waxahachie Loan & Trust Co. v. Turner, 32 C. A. 281, 74 S. W. 792.

Where a wife, subsequent to 1892, promised in writing to pay her husband's note, which was barred by limitations, and which contained a promise to pay interest at 12 per cent. until paid, her undertaking, being a new and distinct liability, was subject to the usury law in force at that time, and no interest subsequent to her promise could be allowed; but, the plea of usury being personal to the one asserting it she could not claim any benefit of that which was done by others, and hence interest to the date of such new promise was properly allowed. Vinson v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1095.

Where a lease of personalty was uncertain as to whether it provided for usury, plaintiff could not recover a penalty, nor could defendant, in a cross-action, recover an alleged balance due. Stewart v. Lattner (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 631.

If a contract is usurious on its face, any amount of interest collected thereon constitutes usury. Id.

8. Attorney's fees, taxes and assessments.—Stipulation for attorney's fees not within the statute. Sturgis Nat. Bank v. Smith, 30 S. W. 678, 9 C. A. 540.

Where a note bearing the highest legal rate of interest provides for an additional percentage for fees in case it is collected by attorneys, such percentage cannot be recovered, as usurious, where it has actually been paid for such collection. Stuart v. Tenson Bros. Saddlery Co., 21 C. A. 530, 53 S. W. 83.

An agreement between the parties to a mortgage for the mortgagor's payment of a certain tax, under threatened legislation which was not adopted, held not to render the mortgage usurious. Norris v. W. C. Belcher Land Mortg. Co., 98 T. 176, 82 S. W. 500.

A mortgage providing for interest at less than the maximum legal rate held not usurious on its face by reason of a provision requiring the borrower to repay money paid by the lender for taxes and assessments. Id.

The laws relating to usury held not to apply to obligations for the payment of taxes. Nalle v. City of Austin, 41 C. A. 423, 93 S. W. 141.

9. Extension of time on contract.—A debtor desiring an extension of time gave a note for the principal and interest then due, adding thereto legal conventional interest on the entire amount up to the time to which the extension was given. After maturity the note was to bear interest at 1 per cent. per month, and 10 per cent. attorney's fees added in case of suit. Held not to be usurious. Miner v. Paris Exchange Bank, 53 T. 559.

Where, as a consideration for giving time on a contract, a sum in excess of the legal interest on the agreed price is added to the principal, the contract is usurious. Fisher v. Hoover, 21 S. W. 930, 3 C. A. 81.

Where a renewal or extension contract to pay money carried into it an agreement of the first contract for the payment of usurious interest, the renewal was also rendered illegal, and payments of interest received thereunder were properly applied in the reduction of the principal. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

10. Compound interest.—Compound interest is not of itself usurious. Mills v. Johnston, 23 T. 329; Lewis v. Paschal, 37 T. 318; Miner v. Paris Exchange Bank, 53 T. 559; Roane v. Ross, 84 T. 46, 19 S. W. 339; Martin v. Land Mortgage Bank, 5 C. A. 167, 23 S. W. 1032; Hillsboro Oil Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 32 C. A. 610, 75 S. W. 336.

11. Contract or debt originally valid.—An original valid contract is not affected by a subsequent usurious contract. Cousins v. Grey, 60 T. 349; Payne v. Powell, 14 T. 601; Tucker v. Coffin, 26 S. W. 323, 7 C. A. 415.

An original promise to pay interest at a legal rate is not impaired by a subsequent promise to pay usurious interest. Krause v. Pope, 78 T. 478, 14 S. W. 616.

If a contract for the loan of money, as made, is not usurious, the fact that the settlement before maturity, by applying to the extinguishment of the debt the value of certain stock which it was necessary to subscribe for in order to obtain the loan, may show that more has been paid than the loan would amount to, with lawful interest, would not render it so. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Bryan, 21 C. A. 563, 54 S. W. 377.

A subsequent usurious agreement held not to invalidate a loan in the hands of one who took under a contract subrogating him to the rights of the original creditor. State Nat. Loan & Trust Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 318, 63 S. W. 552.

Where the original contract of indebtedness was not usurious, but the contract of renewal was, no interest may be recovered upon such indebtedness, as usury is not the excess above what might lawfully be collected, but is the entire amount of the interest. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

A contract valid in its inception is not rendered invalid by a subsequent usurious transaction in connection therewith, so that the amount of an original indebtedness may be recovered, though suit is on notes given in renewal, the consideration for which in addition to the renewal was the giving of usurious interest. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

12. Judgment paid with usurious loan.—The mortgage sought to be foreclosed being usurious, held, that the judgment which was paid from the proceeds of the loan secured by the mortgage could be enforced where the pleadings showed plaintiff entitled to recover thereon. Hennessy v. Clough (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 157.

Where a debtor made a usurious contract with one who took up a judgment against his land, he would still be liable for the amount of the judgment, with interest and costs, though the contract was avoided as usurious. Nesbit v. Goodrich, 25 C. A. 28, 60 S. W. 1017.

13. Payment of installments of principal.—Where monthly payments of interest and premium on a loan and shares of its stock held as collateral exceed 10 per cent. a year on amount loaned, the contract is usurious. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67; People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Keller, 20 C. A. 616, 50 S. W. 183.

A contract whereby the principal of a loan, and 10 per cent. interest for 10 years, are added, and the amount divided into equal monthly installments, held usurious. Galveston & H. Inv. Co. v. Grymes (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 467.

A contract to erect a house for a price to be paid in installments held not a contract to loan money, subject to the usury laws. Cain v. Texas Building & Loan Ass'n, 21 C. A. 61, 51 S. W. 879.

Charge of interest for full amount of loan during term, notwithstanding payments on principal, held usurious. Sproule v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 693.

Contract held not usurious in providing that payments on stock should apply as of the date they were made, thus reducing the principal. Geisberg v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 478.

Where money is borrowed from a building company at the full legal rate of interest, and the borrower is required to subscribe for stock to be paid in monthly installments, an agreement that payments on the stock shall be payments on the loan, when the loan is finally paid, does not make the contract usurious. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 805.

Where an agreement of debtors was to pay an existing indebtedness in monthly installments, half of each installment to be applied on the principal and the other half on the interest for two years, at which time the sum on interest was to be reduced, and the reduction added to the payment of the principal, and the installment payment of interest in the second year at the stipulated amount would have the effect of exacting more than 10 per cent. on the principal owing at that time, the contract was usurious and illegal. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

14. Commissions.—A commission on a loan on which is paid the highest legal rate of interest does not make the transaction usurious, when the person to whom the commission is paid is the agent of the borrower. Stuart v. Tenison Bros. Saddlery Co., 21 C. A. 530, 53 S. W. 83.

A contract, collateral to a note bearing interest, providing for commissions for sale of cotton, held not usurious unless made for the purpose of concealing a design to charge usurious interest on the loan. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 465, 93 S. W. 1102.

15. Compensation for detention of property.—Where the price of property is fixed by agreement, compensation charged for its detention is interest, and, if in excess of the lawful rate, usurious. Galveston & H. Inv. Co. v. Grymes (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 467.

16. Payment of interest in advance.—Deducting interest on a note in advance held not usurious, where the note bore interest only from maturity. Webb v. Pahde (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 19.

A contract is not usurious simply because the highest rate of interest is charged, which is payable monthly in advance, and the over-due interest bears interest. Geisberg v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 478.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that a loan of money stipulated for 18 per cent. interest payable in advance, and was therefore usurious. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 754.

17. Computation.—Rule for computing interest to determine usury, where the right to declare the debt due in case of default is contained in the contract, defined. Seymour Opera House Co. v. Thurston, 18 C. A. 417, 45 S. W. 815.

18. Rights and remedies of parties.—The penalty for stipulating in the contract for usurious interest is the loss of the interest only. The principal sum or value of the contract may be received and recovered. Clayton v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 881.

An accommodation maker of a note given to a national bank can set up the defense of usury to defeat the recovery of interest. Trabue v. Cook (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 455.

Remedy available on payment of usury to national bank stated. Id.

19. — Application of payments.—Payments, in the absence of a contrary intent, will be applied to extinguishment of interest. Hampton v. Dean, 4 T. 455; Hearn v. Cutberth, 10 T. 216; Watson v. Mims, 56 T. 451. But if usurious interest is stipulated, payments will be applied to the principal. Stanley v. Westrop, 16 T. 200.

When money is paid with instructions as to appropriation, it cannot be otherwise applied by the creditor without the debtor's assent. Eylar v. Read, 60 T. 387; Proctor v. Marshall, 18 T. 66; Taylor v. Coleman, 20 T. 776.

When partial payment is made to a national bank under a contract to pay usurious interest, in the absence of a stipulation as to how the payment shall be appropriated, the law will apply it in liquidation of that portion of the contract which is legal, and the bank may afterwards avoid the penalty fixed by act of congress for collecting usurious interest by relinquishing claim for it. If a partial payment on the debt is, by agreement, appropriated to the payment of usurious interest, the locus penitentiae cannot exist. Stout v. Bank, 69 T. 384, 8 S. W. 808.

It has been held by the supreme court that payment on a contract affected with usury is a payment upon the principal, applied by the law, notwithstanding it was paid and received as a payment of interest. Int. Nat. Bldg. Ass'n v. Blering, 86 T. 476, 25 S. W. 622, 26 S. W. 39.

Payments on usurious mortgage amounting to face of loan, however applied by the loan company, held payment in full. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67.

A borrowing member held entitled to have usurious interest paid and stock payments credited on his loan, thus entitling him to a cancellation of the debt and the security on payment of the balance, within a withdrawal clause in the by-laws. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 19 C. A. 52, 47 S. W. 71.

Since the part of a note providing for usurious interest is void, the maker is not confined to his statutory right to recover double interest paid, but may apply such payments on the principal debt. People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n v. Bessonette (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 52.

A special finding that plaintiff purchased stock merely to obtain a loan held not to require application of amount paid thereon on the principal's debt as illegal interest. Leary v. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n, 93 T. 1, 49 S. W. 632.

Articles and by-laws of an association held to entitle a borrowing stockholder to have payments on stock applied in payment of a usurious loan. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Keller, 20 C. A. 616, 50 S. W. 183.

In an action on a note, sureties may plead usury, and have the usurious interest paid credited as a payment on the principal of the debt. Roberts v. Coffin, 22 C. A. 127, 53 S. W. 597.

Renewal purchase-money notes, with renunciation of title to vendor and assumption of relation of tenant, being void for usury, payments of rental should be applied to reduce original debt. Arnold v. Macdonald, 22 C. A. 487, 55 S. W. 529.

Where a loan of money is made at a usurious interest, all payments of interest will be credited on the principal of the debt. American Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Daugherty, 27 C. A. 430, 66 S. W. 131.

Where a building and loan contract was usurious, the court properly charged plaintiff with the amount of the loan and credited him the value of the stock and the sums paid on interest and premium. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Marston, 30 C. A. 100, 69 S. W. 1034.

Sureties on a note held entitled to a reduction of principal to a certain amount because of usury. Titterington v. Murrell (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 510.

Where a contract stipulates for usurious interest, all interest payments in excess of 10 per cent. on final settlement will be applied to the principal. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 754.

Where usury is set up as a defense, the court, if asked, may apply the sums paid as a credit on the principal, but is not warranted in so doing, where only an abatement of further interest is sought. Taylor v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 302.

20. — Set-off or counterclaim.—In Huggins v. National Bank, 6 C. A. 33, 24 S. W. 926, it was held by a court of civil appeals that the payment of usurious interest to a national bank cannot be pleaded as a set-off or counterclaim against the principal of a note on which suit is brought, following Barnet v. Bank, 98 U. S. 555, 25 L. Ed. 212; Bank v. Dearing, 91 U. S. 29, 23 L. Ed. 196; Driesback v. Bank, 104 U. S. 52, 26 L. Ed. 658; Stephens v. Bank, 111 U. S. 197, 4 Sup. Ct. 336, 28 L. Ed. 399; Bank v. Morgan, 132 U. S. 141, 10 Sup. Ct. 37, 33 L. Ed. 282.

The right to set up usury in notes secured by prior liens is not defeated by taking a mortgage subject to such prior liens. Johnson v. Lasker Real Estate Ass'n, 21 S. W. 961, 2 C. A. 494.

Usurious interest paid on a note to a national bank cannot be pleaded as a set-off or counterclaim against the principal of the note. Commanche National Bank v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 413.

21. Rights and remedies of third persons—Assignees.—A note is subject to the defense of usury in the hands of a purchaser without notice. Gilder v. Hearne, 79 T. 120, 14 S. W. 1031; Maloney v. Eaheart, 81 T. 281, 16 S. W. 1030; First Nat. Bank of Mason v. Ledbetter (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 1042.

Where a note for the purchase price of land was transferred to a building and loan association, which made a usurious contract with the purchasers relative to the loan, and subsequently the association transferred the loan to a third party, held, that the purchasers should be credited with the amount paid to the association on premium, interest, and sinking fund under such usurious agreement. State Nat. Loan & Trust Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 318, 63 S. W. 552.

Where a building contract bearing legal interest is shown to be but part of a transaction for procuring a usurious loan from a building association, the association, as assignee of such contract, cannot enforce it without respect to the usury in the loan. American Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Daugherty, 27 C. A. 430, 66 S. W. 131.

Where a purchaser for value of an indebtedness and a mechanic's lien contract securing it had no knowledge or notice of any facts or agreements that would render the original agreement for the loan usurious, and was induced to make the purchase by representations of the debtor that the debt was valid, his rights as a purchaser would not be affected by any illegality or usury existing. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

22. — Party assuming to pay note or loan.—One assuming to pay a loan is not relieved from any part of the contract by reason of its being tainted with usury. Johnson v. Association, 2 C. A. 499, 21 S. W. 961; Maloney v. Eaheart, 81 T. 284, 16 S. W. 1030; Vaughn v. Mutual Bldg. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 1013.

A party assuming a note as a part of the consideration of his purchase cannot plead usury against it. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Price, 18 C. A. 370, 46 S. W. 92.

A party who assumes as a part of the purchase money an existing debt cannot plead usury against it. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Sellars, 19 C. A. 201, 46 S. W. 370.

Vendee purchasing land subject to usurious mortgage, agreeing to pay all legal amounts due, may avail himself of defense of usury. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67.

One who, as part consideration of purchase, agrees to pay a certain obligation held estopped to plead usury. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Price, 18 C. A. 370, 46 S. W. 92.

A purchaser from mortgagor, assuming payment of mortgage, cannot set up usury as a defense. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Sellars, 19 C. A. 201, 46 S. W. 370.

Usury cannot be pleaded by a purchaser who assumes a usurious debt as a part of the purchase price. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 23 C. A. 98, 56 S. W. 580.

A subsequent purchaser of mortgaged property, who assumed payment of a mortgage debt, cannot raise the question of usury in the original contract. Southern Home Building & Loan Ass'n v. Winans, 24 C. A. 544, 60 S. W. 825.

23. — Junior Mortgagee.—A mortgage to secure a debt of which a large part was usury was settled by a conveyance of land. A junior mortgagee by suit set up the usury in the first mortgage and was allowed to redeem for the debt without interest. Maloney v. Eaheart, 81 T. 281, 16 S. W. 1030.

One who takes second mortgage from one estopped to pay usury to the first is also estopped. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Price, 18 C. A. 370, 46 S. W. 92.

24. — Recovery.—Money voluntarily paid in excess of lawful stipulated interest may be recovered. Bexar B. & L. Ass'n v. Robinson, 78 T. 163, 14 S. W. 227, 9 L. R. A. 292, 22 Am. St. Rep. 36; Mann v. Brown, 71 T. 241, 9 S. W. 111. See Smith v. Stevings, 81 T. 461, 16 S. W. 986.

A surety who pays a note tainted with usury, having knowledge of the usury when he does so, cannot recover the amount of the usurious interest from his principal. Boren v. Boren, 29 C. A. 221, 68 S. W. 184.

Persons entitled to recover penalty for usury paid national bank limited to those who pay or their representatives. Trabue v. Cook (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 455.

25. Penalties and forfeitures.—The entire amount of the interest is forfeited and uncollectible. Ramsey v. Thomas, 14 C. A. 431, 38 S. W. 259.

In an action to have a debt declared paid by the application of payments of usurious interest, it is error to charge that a contract for interest over 10 per cent. will cause a forfeiture of all interest. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 805.

Under the statute, the taint of usury forfeits any further interest, and thereafter leaves only the principal as what is actually owing to the creditor. Taylor v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 302.

26. Who may plead.—A bona fide creditor of an insolvent debtor may urge the defense of usury against the claim of another creditor. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Mayo, 27 S. W. 781, 8 C. A. 164.

27. Waiver and estoppel.—The defense of usury cannot be waived by contract. Miles v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 724; Sturgess Nat. Bank v. Smyth, 30 S. W. 678, 9 C. A. 540.

The maker of a usurious note, renewing the same to one who had purchased it at solicitation and in ignorance of the taint of usury, is estopped from asserting that defense in an action against him on the note. Smith v. White (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 809.

Art. 4981. [3105] Judgments, rate of interest on.—All judgments of the several courts of this state shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from and after the date of the judgment, except where the contract upon which the judgment is founded bears a specified interest greater than six per cent per annum and not exceeding ten per cent per annum, in which case the judgment shall bear the same rate of interest specified in such contract and after the date of such judgment. [Id.]

Former law.—The act of April, 1891 (Acts 1891, p. 87), did not affect the law theretofore in force as to conventional interest. Williams v. National Bank (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 171.

The rate of interest on a judgment is not affected by a subsequent statute reducing the rate. Railway Co. v. Patton (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 477.

Judgment on liquor dealer's bond.—This article, when construed with Art. 4973 and the case of Johnson v. Rolls, 97 T. 453, 79 S. W. 513, does not apply to judgments recovered for breaches of conditions of liquor dealer's bond. Hawthorne v. State, 39 C. A. 122, 87 S. W. 840.

A judgment in a suit on a retail liquor dealer's bond should not bear interest, as it is in effect a judgment for penalties. White v. Manning, 46 C. A. 298, 102 S. W. 1163.

Judgment on contract.—A judgment not expressing the rate of interest will bear interest at the legal rate. Townsend v. Smith, 20 T. 465, 70 Am. Dec. 400.

When the rate of interest is not specified in the contract, the judgment will carry with it only the legal rate then existing. Bush v. Wilson, 23 T. 148; Alliance Milling Co. v. Eaton (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 588.

The interest due on the principal sum at the date of the judgment, when included in it, also bears interest. Whittaker v. Wallace, 2 App. C. C. § 561.

Judgment upon city warrants.—Judgment in an action against a city for an amount due on warrants held, under this article, properly made to bear interest. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank, 52 C. A. 561, 114 S. W. 909.

Under this article a judgment against a city for a sum due on city warrants for current expenses of a fiscal year bears interest when payment may only be exacted out of funds then applicable, or which may thereafter become applicable, to the payment of the warrants in numerical order, though the charter of the city specifically provides that warrants shall not bear interest. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 620.

Judgment on note.—Under this article judgment in an action on a note should bear interest at the rate of 10 per cent. stipulated for in the note. Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 209.

One who purchased lumber and assumed certain purchase-money notes of the seller was only liable on the notes for the amount thereof, together with the 10 per cent. interest stipulated therein which had accrued to the date of the judgment in favor of the seller, and 6 per cent. interest on such aggregate amount, instead of 10 per cent., the interest stipulated in the note; the liability being based on the agreement to assume payment of the notes, and not on the notes themselves. Id.

Judgment for conversion of note.—An action for conversion of notes is not an action based on them, so that judgment for plaintiff would bear the same rate as the notes, pursuant to this article, and a judgment providing for interest in excess of 6 per cent., the rate provided thereby for judgments in general, violates such section. Wilkinson v. Bradford (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 691.

Attorney's fee.—Attorney's fees included in a judgment bear interest at the same rate as the principal sum. Chowning v. Chowning, 3 App. C. C. § 151; Carver v. J. S. Mayfield Lumber Co., 29 C. A. 434, 68 S. W. 711.

Interest on allowance to receiver.—An order making a receiver a partial allowance for compensation is not a final judgment upon which interest is allowed by this article. Jones v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 47 C. A. 430, 105 S. W. 328.

Where the court made an order fixing the allowance of a receiver to be paid out of the earnings of the property, and there were earnings sufficient to pay the allowance, but instead of taking the amount, the receiver used it for the improvement of the property, he is not entitled to interest on the amount allowed him and used as above stated. Id.

Judgment for recovery of usury.—A judgment in an action to recover double usurious interest bears interest as any other judgment. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 765.

Judgment held by trustee in bankruptcy.—Husband's trustee in bankruptcy held not entitled to interest on a judgment for the amount of community property of bankrupt invested in improvements erected on separate property of bankrupt's wife. Collins v. Bryan, 40 C. A. 88, 88 S. W. 432.

Art. 4982. May recover double usurious interest paid.—If usurious interest, as defined by the preceding articles, shall hereafter be received or collected upon any contract, either written or verbal, the person or persons paying same, or their legal representatives, may, by action of debt, instituted in any court of this state having jurisdiction thereof, in the county of the defendant's residence, or in the county where such usurious interest shall have been received or collected, or where said contract has been entered into, or where parties paying same reside when such contract was made, within two years after such payment, recover from the person, firm or corporation receiving the same double the amount of such usurious interest so received and collected. [Acts 1907, p. 277.]

Change in law.—Prior to the act of 1892, only the excess of interest agreed upon above the highest rate allowed by law could be recovered back. Garza v. Sullivan, 10 C. A.

189, 30 S. W. 241; Association v. Robinson, 78 T. 163, 14 S. W. 227, 9 L. R. A. 292, 22 Am. St. Rep. 36; Smith v. Stevens, 81 T. 461, 16 S. W. 986.

The rule was different when suit was instituted by the payee of the note to recover interest. In that case no interest could be recovered. Ledbetter v. Ft. Worth Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 840.

Where a usurious contract was unlawful under the constitution, plaintiff was entitled to recover a penalty imposed by statute on persons receiving usury, though the statute was passed after the contract was made. Southern Home Building & Loan Ass'n v. Thomson, 24 C. A. 76, 58 S. W. 202.

This article has not been repealed by the amendatory act of 1907 as to offenses committed prior to the time when the act of 1907 took effect. Stewart v. Lattner, 53 C. A. 330, 116 S. W. 861.

Nature and ground of remedy.—A person suing to recover a penalty under this statute must bring himself strictly within its terms. Whitlow v. Culwell, 16 C. A. 266, 40 S. W. 642.

If the building and loan association had avoided receiving, in the interest payments, any interest in excess of 10 per cent. on the principal actually existing at the time, the penalty would not have attached. In other words a party, after making a usurious contract, may refrain from taking more interest than is allowed, and avoid the penalty. This has no reference to the other rule which entitles a party to have usurious interest paid credited as principal. The effect of this rule is to allow a recovery for double a limited number of payments of interest. Mathews v. Interstate B. & L. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 604.

A written contract is not affected by an oral agreement for usurious interest, so as to entitle the party paying the usurious interest to recover double the amount paid as usurious interest, but the amount of usurious interest paid on the written instrument under the oral agreement should be credited on the principal of the written instrument. Quinlan's Estate v. Smye, 21 C. A. 156, 50 S. W. 1063.

If the contract was unlawful when made, under the constitution the legislature could affix the penalty after the contract was made. Southern Home B. & L. Ass'n v. Thomson, 24 C. A. 76, 58 S. W. 203.

Although the first payments are not themselves usurious, yet if the contract as an entirety is usurious the taint of usury will run to all the interest and a double recovery had for all interest paid. American B. & S. Ass'n v. Daugherty, 27 C. A. 430, 66 S. W. 135.

The right of action given by this article to one who has paid usurious interest, accrues where such interest is paid in property. Taylor v. Sturgis, 29 C. A. 270, 68 S. W. 538.

In an action to recover the penalty for collecting usurious interest on notes, the good faith of a purchaser of the note held not to arise. Webb v. Galveston & H. Inv. Co., 32 C. A. 515, 75 S. W. 355.

The penalty imposed by this article for collecting usurious interest, is not incurred by merely contracting for such interest. Clayton v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 880.

One who pays usury, in the absence of statutory provision, may recover the excess over the legal rate and interest from the date of the payments. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 764.

An action to recover usurious interest payments under this article held a civil action, and the judgment rendered a civil recovery. Id.

Where one sues to recover usurious interest paid by him, he is not entitled to sue for interest on the amount due at time of filing suit; because the suit is for a penalty. Id.

The remedies of one paying usurious interest against the payee, to recover the statutory penalty, stated. Long v. Moore (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 345.

A contract provided that defendant had leased from plaintiff certain goods valued at $2,651.95, for which defendant agreed to pay as rental $250, with 10 per cent. interest per month in advance, with the understanding that when he had fully paid rent amounting to the value of the goods they should become his property. Plaintiff having paid the entire amount, together with $225.23 interest, sought to recover double that amount as a penalty for usury, and defendant filed a general denial and a cross-action, seeking to recover an alleged balance of $19.21. Held, that the contract was uncertain as to whether plaintiff was bound to pay 10 per cent. per annum on the whole amount, or whether he was only required to pay interest on the monthly installments of $250; and hence plaintiff could not recover a penalty for alleged usury, nor could defendant recover the alleged balance under his cross-action. Stewart v. Lattner (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 631.

A contract under which a money lender received 10 per cent. interest and also a cash payment of $20 on a loan of $257 held usurious, entitled the borrower to recover double the amount of any interest he had paid. Holcomb v. Ely (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 695.

Amount and extent of penalties.—A person suing under this article is entitled to recover double the whole amount of interest paid, and not double the excess over what might lawfully have been contracted for and received. Smith v. Chilton, 90 T. 447, 39 S. W. 287.

In an action by the administratrix to recover double the amount of usurious interest paid on a contract, and to cancel a note, held, that an exception to a claim by the holder of the note for taxes paid on decedent's property securing the same was properly overruled. Cassidy v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 27 C. A. 211, 64 S. W. 1023.

Where usurious interest is paid, but the principal debt is unpaid, penalty for usury can be recovered only on what remains after extinguishment of the debt by application of such paid interest. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Peightal, 28 C. A. 575, 67 S. W. 524.

For receiving or collecting usurious interest the penalty is double the amount of the interest received or collected. Clayton v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 881.

If a contract is usurious on its face, then any amount of interest collected constitutes usury, and the defendant is entitled to recover double the amount so collected as interest. Stewart v. Lattner (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 631.

This article does not limit the amount recoverable to double the amount of interest paid in excess of the lawful contractual rate. Nocona Nat. Bank v. Bolton (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 242.

—“Usurious Interest.”—The phrase “usurious interest” in this article means that double the amount of all the interest paid (if usurious) may be recovered, and not double the excess of the interest over the lawful rate. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 755; Taylor v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 302.

Persons entitled to enforce penalties.—The recovery of the penalty is confined to the person paying it, or his legal representative. Therefore the sureties are not entitled to demand it. They can plead usury and have the principal of the debt credited with the usurious interest paid. Roberts v. Coffin, 22 C. A. 127, 53 S. W. 597.

The right of action for double the amount of the usurious interest paid is assignable so as to authorize the assignee to maintain suit therefor. It is immaterial whether the usurious interest was paid in property or money. Taylor v. Sturgis, 29 C. A. 270, 68 S. W. 538.

Continuing partner held entitled to recover penalty provided by statute for payment of usurious interest on firm note. Lasater v. First Nat. Bank, 96 T. 345, 72 S. W. 1057.

Payment of certain notes by surety held not to give the principal a cause of action to recover a penalty under the federal statutes relative to exaction of usury by national bank. Lasater v. First Nat. Bank, 40 C. A. 237, 88 S. W. 429.

Persons liable.—A corporation to whom usurious notes were indorsed, and who received the usurious interest, was alone liable for the penalty. Webb v. Galveston & H. Inv. Co., 32 C. A. 515, 75 S. W. 357.

Recovery is only allowed against the party “receiving or collecting” the interest. Where plaintiff borrowed from defendant $225, and gave his note for $274, and cotton contracts to secure same and at different times paid defendant $203.50, which was endorsed on the note, and defendant assigned the note and contracts to a third party, inasmuch as the payments did not amount to the principal sum borrowed, the defendant had received no interest and plaintiff could not recover from him the statutory penalty. Western Bank & T. Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 465, 93 S. W. 1104.

Defendant made a loan of $5,500 to the plaintiffs taking their note secured by deed of trust of lands, and for one year and eight months collected interest at 12 per cent. per annum, amounting to $1,100, and at maturity the land covered by the deed of trust was sold, and a credit of $3,300 applied on the note which was then assigned without recourse. In a suit on the note by the assignee, the plaintiffs pleaded specially that the assignee ought not to recover interest, and did not ask a credit of usurious interest on the principal, but the assignee offered a credit on the principal debt of the amount of usurious interest and judgment was so entered. At about the same time the plaintiffs sued under this article to recover from the defendant double the usurious interest received by him. Held, that, notwithstanding the judgment, the assignee’s act in allowing the credit on the principal was a voluntary credit, of which the defendant who had no title to the note and who was not a party to the assignee’s action thereon, could take no benefit, so that he was liable for the statutory penalty. Taylor v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 302.

Actions for penalties.—In an action for the penalty for usury, where the transaction is usurious on its face, it is error to direct a verdict for defendant. Mathews v. Interstate Building & Loan Ass’n (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 604.

The recovery provided for in this article can only be had in “an action” therefor and not merely by a purely defensive pleading setting up usury and payment. This right of recovery is a cause of action and not a mere defense and the statute which gives it prescribes that it is to be recovered “in an action of debt.” The defendant in such a case cannot recover the penalty claimed by him in any way without a basis in the pleading and that basis must be a plea sufficiently setting up a cross action against the plaintiff for the penalty. Rosetti v. Lozano, 96 T. 57, 70 S. W. 205.

An action under this article to recover penalty for receiving usurious interest is not an action for a tort required by Art. 2308, subd. 6, to be brought in county where injury is inflicted, but is an action for debt and must be brought in county of defendant’s residence. Wartman v. Empire Loan Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 501.

All the makers of a note upon which usurious interest has been paid must join in a suit to recover double the amount of interest paid, even if some have paid different amounts and some have paid none. Alston v. Orr (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 236.

The right of recovery under this article is a distinct cause of action, and not a mere defense, and a right of action thereunder did not exist in an action on a usurious note or until the debtor paid the judgment obtained therein, so that the failure to set up the usury in that action would not bar a subsequent action under the statute for the penalty. Long v. Moore (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 345.

Where usurious interest is charged and actually paid and received, and the payment is intentionally appropriated by the parties to the discharge of the usurious interest, the right to the penalty of twice the amount of interest paid, given by this article, attaches at once, though the principal has not been paid. Taylor v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 302.

Limitations.—Even if the right to recover double usurious interest paid were available to a surety, he cannot set it up after the lapse of two years from the payment. Roberts v. Coffin, 22 C. A. 127, 53 S. W. 597.

Cross-action.—One who has paid usurious interest may, when he is sued on the debt, recover the statutory penalty for collecting such interest in a cross-action in such suit, or may, at his election, subsequently bring an independent suit for the penalty under this article. Long v. Moore (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 345.

Compromise.—A right to sue for usurious interest paid may be the subject of compromise. Whitlow v. Culwell, 16 C. A. 266, 40 S. W. 642.

A compromise agreement in settlement of a usurious claim held not to purge the transaction of usury. Dunman v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 499.

Presumption as to rate of interest.—See notes under Art. 3709.

Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Parol evidence to establish usury.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 25.

Interest on amount recovered.—In an action for double usurious interest payments under Arts. 4981, 4982, plaintiff held not entitled to recover interest until after judgment. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 754.

Art. 4983. [3107] Usury, how pleaded.—No evidence of usurious interest shall be received on the trial of any case, unless the same shall be specially pleaded and verified by the affidavit of the party wishing to avail himself of such defense.

Necessity of pleading usury.—Usury must be specially pleaded. Art. 1906, subd. 12; Moseley v. Smith, 21 T. 441; Harrison v. S. C. Bank, 1 App. C. C. § 375; W. E. M. Co. v. Curtis, 1 App. C. C. § 740; Martin v. Perrill, 77 T. 199, 13 S. W. 975; Rogers v. O'Barr & Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 750.

Where the maker of two notes permits judgment to be entered on one without pleading usury, he cannot have the amount of usurious interest in such judgment deducted from the second note. Henry v. Sansom, 21 S. W. 70, 2 C. A. 150.

Sufficiency of pleading.—Plaintiff's petition held not to show usury in the contract set out, or a scheme to evade the law against usury. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Bryan, 21 C. A. 563, 54 S. W. 377.

A petition that does not distinctly aver that plaintiff's decedent did in fact pay usurious interest or that the person alleged to have paid the interest was plaintiff's agent is defective. Cassiday v. Scottish Am. Mort. Co., 27 C. A. 211, 64 S. W. 1030.

Where defense of usury is set up as originating in one of two contracts sought to be enforced, it is error to treat both contracts as usurious. Harn v. American Mut. Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n, 95 T. 79, 65 S. W. 176.

The answer of the maker of a note, when sued thereon, held, when not excepted to, sufficient to support a judgment for double the amount of usurious interest paid. Rosetti v. Lozano, 96 T. 57, 70 S. W. 204.

A petition to recover double the amount of usurious interest paid held required to allege when and to whom the interest was paid. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 465, 93 S. W. 1102.

Verification.—Where usury appears from the plaintiff's pleadings, it may be raised by exception not verified. Krause v. Pope, 78 T. 478, 14 S. W. 616.

Defense of usury held not available, unless specially pleaded and verified. First Nat. Bank v. Penman (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 68.

A plea setting up payment of usurious interest must be sworn to before the question of usury can be inquired into on the facts. Cassidy v. Scottish-Am. Mort. Co., 27 C. A. 211, 64 S. W. 1030.

Under Art. 4982, which authorizes recovery of double the amount of usurious interest charged and received, and this article, held, that where a petition alleged that plaintiff executed his note, and that plaintiff does not remember the exact consideration received, "but believes and here alleges that the same was given in renewal of former loans," that on each of such former loans plaintiff was charged usurious interest, the exact amount of which he is unable to state, but that it was greatly in excess of 10 per cent. per annum, and that "if at such time plaintiff received any money, the advance interest * * * as also the interest for such sums as was renewed in said note, was counted in the face of said note at a rate greatly in excess of" 10 per cent. per annum, as this article applies to actions to recover the statutory penalty, the word "defense" meaning "cause of action," and the petition merely alleging plaintiff's belief as to the usurious interest, it was insufficient as a verified petition. Nocona Nat. Bank v. Bolton (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 242.

Notice.—Before commissioners' court can assume jurisdiction, where irrigating ditches and farms are owned jointly by two or more persons, such persons should be notified by some means beforehand. Cordero v. State (Cr. App.) 58 S. W. 102.

Art. 4991. [3115] Certain waters declared state property.—The unappropriated waters of the ordinary flow and underflow and tides of every flowing river or natural stream, of all lakes, bays or arms of the gulf of Mexico, collections of still water, and of the storm, flood or rain waters of every river or natural stream, canyon, ravine, depression or watershed, within the state of Texas, the title to which has not already passed from the state, are hereby declared to be the property of the state, and the right to the use thereof may be acquired by appropriation in the manner and for the uses and purposes hereinafter provided. [Acts 1913, p. 358, sec. 1.]

Note.—Acts 1913, p. 358, sec. 101, repeals chapters 1 and 2 of Title 73, Revised Statutes 1911, and all other laws in conflict.

DECISIONS RELATING TO PRIOR ACT

Cited, Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1002; Orange County v. Cow Bayou Canal Co., 143 S. W. 963; Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co., 154 S. W. 1176; American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co., 155 S. W. 286.

Constitutionality.—Neither these articles nor Arts. 5003, 5008, authorizing canal corporations, for the purpose of irrigation to condemn lands necessary for their uses and purposes, violates Const. art. 1, § 17, providing that no person's property shall be taken, damaged, or destroyed for public use without adequate compensation being made, unless by his consent. Cotulla v. La Salle Water Storage Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 711.

These articles are not invalid because of the failure to provide a method for determining what portions of the state are arid, and what amount of land is necessary, since these questions are determinable by the courts, especially in view of the provision that the property should be condemned as is prescribed in the case of railroads, and the requirement of Art. 6506, applicable to railroads, that if the company and owner cannot agree upon the damages, the company shall state, in writing, the property sought to be condemned, the object for which it is sought to be condemned, the name of the owner and residence, and file such statement with the county judge, to enable the court to determine if the property is necessary for the purposes of the corporation. Id.

Construction.—All the provisions of Act of 1895 (of which these articles are a part) apply to canal corporations whether formed under said act or under the general incorporation statute, if formed for the purpose of supplying water to any of the industries named in said act. The rights conferred and duties imposed by said act upon canal corporations formed for the purposes of irrigation apply as well to a canal corporation formed under the general incorporation law "for the purpose of irrigation and milling, navigation and stock raising" as to one formed under the provision of said act for "irrigation, mining, milling, the construction of water works for cities and towns and for stock raising." Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 464.

These articles make a public grant for the purpose of reclaiming public school lands in the arid and semiarid regions by irrigation, and must be liberally construed to carry out the legislative purpose. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

These articles assume that the legislature was familiar with the condition of the arid and semi-arid portions of Texas where a major part of the public school lands are located; and, in view of such assumption, the act discloses a legislative intent to provide for the acquisition of dam and reservoir sites on the public school lands as well as on all other lands when necessary for the creation of irrigation projects, and hence the act must be construed to give to irrigation corporations the right by implication to acquire easements for such sites on public school lands. Id.

What waters are public property.—Waters of the Pecos river are public property, subject to the easement of public owners, and a statutory appropriation of the excess is effective. Biggs v. Lee (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 709.

Arid portion of the state.—The "arid portion of the state," to which the act applied, was defined to be "lands in that part of the state where rainfall was insufficient for agricultural purposes, and irrigation therefore necessary." This as to any given tract of land is a question of fact, to be determined as any other fact; nor have courts judicial knowledge as to such facts. McGhee Irrigation Co. v. Hudson, 85 T. 587, 22 S. W. 398.

The act was not inoperative because it does not declare what part of the territory of the state should be subject to its operation. Id.

Instruction held to properly define arid portion of state. Hall v. Carter, 33 C. A. 230, 77 S. W. 19.

Art. 4992. [3116] Purposes for which storm, flood or rain waters may be diverted.—The storm, flood or rain waters described in the preceding section may be held or stored by dams, in lakes or reservoirs, or diverted by means of canals, ditches, intakes, pumping plants, or other works, constructed by any person, corporation, association of persons, or irrigation district created under the statutes, for the purpose of irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power, the construction and operation of waterworks for cities and towns, or for stock raising. [Id. sec. 2.]

See Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Former law.—Section 2 of the act of 1889 did not operate and probably was not intended to operate, on the rights of riparian owners existing when the law was passed, but was intended to operate only on such interests as were in the state by reason of its ownership of lands bordering on rivers or natural streams. McGhee Irrigation Co. v. Hudson, 85 T. 587, 22 S. W. 398.

Art. 4993. [3117] The ordinary flow and underflow of flowing streams may be diverted, etc.—The ordinary flow and underflow of the flowing water and tides of every natural river, or stream, within the state of Texas, may be taken or diverted from its natural channel by any of the persons named in the preceding section [Art. 4992] for any of the purposes stated therein; provided, that such ordinary flow and underflow shall not be diverted to the prejudice of the rights of any riparian owner without his consent, except after condemnation thereof in the manner hereinafter provided. The waters of any arm or inlet of the gulf of Mexico, or of any salt water bay, may be changed from salt to sweet or fresh water, and held or stored by dams, dikes or other structures, and taken or diverted by any of the persons named in this section for any of the purposes stated herein. [Id. sec. 3.]

See Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Change in law.—The common-law rule that the ownership of riparian rights is inseparable from the ownership of the land was abrogated by this article; the statute recognizing the right of sale or condemnation of riparian rights. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

Priorities.—Riparian rights are superior to any right of appropriation under this article and Art. 4995 providing that as between appropriators the first time is the first in right. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

Art. 4994. [3118] Purposes of appropriation.—The appropriation of water must be for irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power, the construction and operation of waterworks for cities and towns, or for stock raising. Provided that so far as practicable and within the limits of the public welfare the water engineering board hereinafter created shall subordinate the appropriation of water for power to the appropriation of water for irrigation. [Id. sec. 4.]

See Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1002.

Art. 4995. [3119] Priority of appropriation.—As between appropriators, the first in time is the first in right. [Id. sec. 5.]

Prescriptive right.—Where dam is built above another and water of stream diverted and emptied into stream below lower dam for over 20 years, owner of upper dam thereby acquired prescriptive right to maintain his dam and race. Cape v. Thompson, 21 C. A. 681, 53 S. W. 368.

Point to which water would flow held proper measure of extent of prescriptive right acquired to the same. Hall v. Carter, 33 C. A. 230, 77 S. W. 19.

Prescriptive right to use water for irrigation only embraces extent of use actually made of water while acquiring right. Id.

Facts held to authorize a finding that defendant's prescriptive right to use water did not go to extent of use exercised by him in certain years. Id.

In an action to establish riparian rights, evidence held insufficient to show that defendants had acquired the right to appropriate one-half of the flow of a spring by prescription. Watkins Land Co. v. Clements, 98 T. 578, 86 S. W. 733, 70 L. R. A. 964, 107 Am. St. Rep. 653.

Prescriptive right to waters of a stream held not acquired as against certain lands by its use through a canal. Santa Rosa Irr. Co. v. Pecos River Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1014.

Where the holder of a contract easement for the taking of water from a stream for irrigation purposes always claimed under the contract, he could not acquire a right by prescription. Metcalfe v. Faucher (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1038.

Occupation of a mill site and water power privilege held not adverse. Briggs v. Avary, 47 C. A. 488, 106 S. W. 904.

Priorities.—Nonriparian lands acquire rights to water by statutory appropriation alone, and the first appropriator in time is first in right. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

Art. 4995a. State divided into water divisions.—The state shall be and is hereby divided into three water divisions, as follows:

All that portion of the state of Texas lying north of the twenty-ninth parallel, north latitude, and west of the one hundredth meridian west longitude, shall constitute water division No. 1.

All that portion of the state of Texas lying east of the ninety-seventh meridian west longitude, and south of the thirtieth parallel north latitude, together with all that portion lying north of the thirtieth parallel north latitude and east of the one hundredth meridian west longitude, shall constitute water division No. 2.

All that portion of the state of Texas not embraced in water division No. 1 or water division No. 2, as hereinbefore defined, shall constitute water division No. 3. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4995b. Board of water engineers created.—There shall be and is hereby constituted a board of water engineers, to be composed of three members, one of whom shall be appointed from each of the respective water divisions described in the preceding section [Art. 4995a]. The members of such board shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and shall each hold office for a term of six years, and until his successor is appointed and qualified; provided, that at the first appointment made under this Act, one member shall be appointed to serve for two years, one member shall be appointed to serve for four years, and one member shall be appointed to serve for six years, to the end that one member may be appointed every two years after the passage of this Act. No person shall be appointed a member of the board who has not such technical knowledge and such practical experience and skill as shall fit him for the duties of the office. Each member of such board shall enter into bond to be approved by the governor, made payable to the governor and his successors in office, in the penal sum of ten thousand dollars, with not less than two personal sureties, or with one surety or guaranty company authorized to do business in this state, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and for the delivery to his successor or other officer appointed by the governor to receive same, of all moneys, books and other property belonging to the state then in his hands or under his control or with which he may be legally chargeable as a member of such board. The governor shall have power to remove at any time, for cause, any member of the state board of engineers, after said member shall have been given a full, free and public hearing by the governor, in his own behalf, before final action is taken, and shall appoint a successor. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4995c. Salary.—Each member of such board shall receive a salary of thirty-six hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4995d. Sessions, clerks, etc.—The members appointed shall meet at Austin and organize and elect one of their number chairman of said board. A majority of said board shall constitute a quorum to transact business. Said board shall appoint a secretary at a salary of not more than two thousand dollars per annum, and may appoint such experts and employés as may be necessary to perform any duty that may be required of them by this Act, and fix their compensation. The secretary shall keep full and accurate minutes of all transactions and proceedings of said board and perform such duties as may be required by the board. The board shall have power to make all needful rules for its government and proceedings; and shall have a seal, the form of which it shall prescribe. The board shall be furnished with an office at Austin with necessary furniture, stationery, supplies, etc., at the expense of the state, to be paid for on the order of the governor. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4995e. Expenses.—The members, secretary, experts, and employes of the board shall be entitled to receive from the state their necessary traveling expenses while traveling on the business of the board, to be paid out on the order of the governor, upon an itemized statement sworn to by the party who incurred the expense and approved by the board. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4995f. May hold sessions at any place, etc.—The board may hold sessions at any place in this state when deemed necessary to facilitate the discharge of its duties. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4996. [3120] Record of appropriations to be filed, etc.—Every person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district who shall have heretofore constructed or partially constructed any dam, reservoir, lake, canal, ditch or other work for any of the purposes named in this Act, who have not heretofore done so, shall, within one year after this Act goes into effect, and not thereafter, file for record in the office of the county clerk of the county where the dam, lake, reservoir, pumping plant, intake, or headgate, ditch or canal may be situated, or to which said county may be attached for judicial purposes, and which shall be recorded by said clerk as hereinafter provided, a sworn statement in writing showing approximately the number of acres of land that will be irrigated, the name of such ditch or canal, the point at which the headgate thereof is situated, the size of the ditch or canal and width and depth, and the carrying capacity thereof in cubic feet per second of time, the name of said stream from which said water is taken, the time when the work was commenced, the name of the owner or owners thereof, together with a map showing the route of such ditch or canal; and when the water is to be taken from a reservoir, dam or lake, the statement above provided for shall show in addition to the ditch and other things provided for, the locality of the proposed dam, reservoir or lake, giving the names or numbers of the surveys upon which it is to be located, its holding capacity in cubic feet of water, the acreage and surface feet of land that will be covered, and the limits of such lake, reservoir or dam, and the area of the watershed from which the storm or rain water will be collected. [Id. sec. 12.]

See Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575; Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1002.

Affidavit of president of corporation.—The affidavit of the president of the irrigation company, although it purports to have been made by him as an individual and not by the corporation through him, yet as it was made in pursuance of a duty enjoined on the corporation, which had to be performed before it could use the water under its charter, it will be presumed that it was done by the authority and at the instance of the corporation. Bay City Irr. Co. v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 548.

Art. 4996a. County clerk shall record, etc.—The clerk of the county court shall promptly record the statements and maps, the filing and record whereof is provided for in section twelve [Art. 4996] hereof; and shall index the same as is provided for the indexing of deeds of conveyance to real estate; and shall receive for such filing and recording the same fees provided by law for the recording of deeds; and shall make and furnish certified copies of such instruments upon demand, in the same manner, and receive the same fees therefor, as is now provided for the making and supplying of certified copies of the records in his office. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4996b. Statement to be filed with board, etc.—Every person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, who shall have heretofore filed for record, or shall hereafter, in compliance with the provisions of section twelve [Art. 4996], file for record the sworn statement in writing as set out therein, shall, within one year after this Act shall take effect, file in the office of the board a certified copy of such sworn statement and a true copy of the map as described in section twelve [Art. 4996], and in addition thereto, a sworn statement showing what has been done under or in pursuance of such filing or statement; what work or construction has been completed or partially completed; what portion of said work is in use and what portion is in possession and not in actual use; what amount or volume of water is being actually taken, diverted or used and for what purpose; and the amount or volume of water, as near as may be, that has been diverted, taken or used, and for what purpose, in each and every year since such original filing was made; and if such water was diverted, taken or used for irrigation, the statement shall show, as near as may be, a description and the area of lands being irrigated at said time, and the number and names of the users and consumers of water at said time. Every such statement shall be accompanied by a designation of the name and postoffice address to which any notice authorized or required under this Act shall be directed, and such address shall continue in force until written notice of a change in such address is filed with the board.

Every person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, who has, prior to the first day of January, 1913, actually taken or diverted any water and applied same to any of the uses and purposes named in this Act, and is at the date of the filing of the statement herein provided to be filed, continuing to use and apply such water, who shall, within one year after this Act shall go into effect, file with the board the sworn statement last described in this section, shall, as against the state, have the right to take and divert such water to the amount or volume thus being actually used and applied; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to affect or relate to any priority or right as between any claimants, appropriators, or users from any source of water supply. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4996c. Application to appropriate water.—Every person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, who shall, after this Act shall take effect, desire to acquire the right to appropriate for the purposes stated in this Act, unappropriated water of the state, shall, before commencing the construction, enlargement, or extension of any dam, lake, reservoir, or other storage work, or of any ditch, canal, headgate, intake, pumping plant, or other distributing work, or performing any work in connection with the storage, taking, or diversion of water, make an application in writing to the board for a permit to make such appropriation, storage, or diversion.

Such application shall be in writing, and sworn to; shall be in duplicate, and shall set forth the name and postoffice address of the applicant; the source of water supply; the nature and purposes of the proposed use; the location and description of the proposed dam, lake, reservoir, headgate, intake, pumping plant, ditch, canal or other work; the time within which it is proposed to begin construction; and the time required for the application of the water to the proposed use; and if such proposed use is for irrigation, a description of the lands proposed to be irrigated and, as near as may be, the total acreage thereof.

Such application shall be accompanied by a map or plat drawn on tracing linen on a scale not less than two inches to the mile, showing substantially the location and extent of the proposed works; the location of the headgate, intake, pumping plant or point of diversion by course and distance from permanent natural objects or land marks; the location of the main ditch or canal and of the laterals or branches thereof; the course of the river, stream or other source of water supply; the position and area of all lakes, reservoirs, or basins intended to be used or created, and the water line thereof; the intersection with all other ditches, canals, laterals, lakes or reservoirs, the proposed work will touch or intersect, or with which connections will be made; and shall represent in ink of different color from that used to represent the proposed works, the location of all ditches, canals, laterals, reservoirs, lakes, dams, or other work of like character then existing on the ground, with a designation of the name of the owner thereof. Such map or plat shall contain the name of the proposed work or enterprise; the name or names of the applicant or applicants, and a certificate of the surveyor, giving the date of his survey, his name and postoffice address, and also the date of the application which it accompanies.

Provided, however, that nothing in this Act shall be held or construed to require the filing of an application or procuring of any permit for the alteration, enlargement, extension, or addition to any canal, ditch, or other work that does not contemplate or will not result in an increased appropriation or the use of a larger volume of water. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4996d. Additional data may be required.—If the proposed taking or diversion of water for irrigation is of greater volume than thirty cubic feet of water per second of time, the board may require the following in addition: A continuous longitudinal profile of the main ditch or canal, showing the grade or level of the bottom thereof, and of the top of the levies, and of the maximum discharge line, the horizontal scale of which profile shall be not less than one inch to one thousand feet and the vertical scale not less than one inch to twenty feet; a plat showing cross sections of such main ditch or canal at a sufficient number of points to show the different forms, whether in excavation, in fill, in siphons or flumes, and which plat shall be drawn on a horizontal and vertical scale of one inch to twenty feet; plats of any dams, cribs, embankments or other proposed construction to obstruct any river, stream, lake, pond or other source of water supply, which shall be on a longitudinal scale of not less than one inch to two hundred feet, and cross sections thereof on a scale of not less than one inch to twenty feet; the nature of the material to be used and the method of proposed construction; and a plat on a scale of not less than one inch to four feet, showing in detail the timber, brush, stone or other construction except earth.

The maps or plats of all proposed lakes or reservoirs shall show the maximum area to be submerged, with a description thereof, and with sufficient topographical details to enable the contents thereof to be approximately determined, and the contours of such lake or reservoir shall be on a scale of not less than five-foot vertical intervals.

The board may also require the filing of a copy of the engineer's field notes of any survey of such lake or reservoir, and may require plans and specifications, showing in detail all headworks, wasteways, wastegates and of construction for the control or drawing off of all flood or impounded waters.

The board may, in case the applicant is an incorporated company, require the filing of certified copies of the applicant's articles of incorporation, together with a statement of the names and addresses of its directors and officers; and of the amount of its authorized and of its paid-up capital stock.

If the applicant be other than an incorporated company, the board may require the filing of a sworn statement, showing the names and addresses of the person or persons interested in same and the extent of such interest and of the financial condition of each such person.

Every such application shall be accompanied by the fees hereinafter provided, and shall not be filed or considered until such fees are paid. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4996e. Preliminary examination.—Upon the filing of such application, accompanied by the data and fees hereinbefore provided, it shall be the duty of the board to make a preliminary examination thereof; and if it appear that there is no unappropriated water in the source of supply, or that for other reasons the proposed appropriation should not be allowed, the board may thereupon reject such application; in which case, if the applicant shall elect not to proceed further, the board may return to such applicant any part of the fees accompanying such application.

The board shall determine whether the application, maps, plats, contours, plans, profiles and statements accompanying same, are in compliance with the provisions of this Act and with the regulations of the board and may require the amendment thereof. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4996f. Applications to be recorded.—All applications filed with the board shall be recorded in a well bound book kept for that purpose in the office of said board, and shall be indexed alphabetically in the name of the applicant, of the stream or source from which such appropriation is sought to be made, and the county in which appropriation is sought to be made. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 4996g. Action upon application.—It shall be the duty of the board to reject all applications and refuse to issue the permit asked for, if there is no unappropriated water in the proposed source of supply; or if the proposed use conflicts with existing water rights, or riparian rights, or is detrimental to the public welfare. It shall be the duty of the board to approve all applications and issue the permit asked for, if such application is made in proper form in compliance with the provisions of this Act and the regulations of said board; and is accompanied by the fees required in this Act; and if the proposed appropriation contemplates the application of water to any of the uses and purposes provided for in this Act; and does not impair existing water rights or riparian rights, and is not detrimental to the public welfare. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4996h. Notice of hearing of application, etc.—Before the board shall approve any such application and issue any such permit, notice of such application shall be given substantially in the following manner:

Such notice shall be in writing; shall state the name of the applicant and his residence; the date of the filing of the application in the office of the board; the purpose and extent of the proposed appropriation of water; the source of supply; the place at which the water is to be stored; or to be taken or diverted from the source of supply; together with such additional information as the board may deem necessary. If the proposed use is for irrigation, such notice shall contain a general description of the location and area of the land to be irrigated. Such notice shall also state the time and place when and where such application will be heard by the board. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4996i. Publication of notices, etc.—Such notice shall be published once in each week for four consecutive weeks prior to the date stated in such notice for the hearing of such application in some newspaper having a general circulation in that section of the state in which the source of water supply is located. In addition to such publication, a copy of such notice shall be transmitted by the secretary of the board, by registered mail, addressed to each claimant or appropriator of water from such source of water supply, the record of whose claim or appropriation has been filed in the office of the board. Such notices shall be mailed not less than twenty days before the date set for the hearing. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4996j. Hearing upon application.—At the time and place stated in the notice, the board shall sit to hear such application. Any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, may appear, in person or by attorney, and enter appearance in writing in said matter, and present objection to the issuance of permit. The board may receive evidence, orally or by affidavit, in support of and in opposition to the issuance of such permit; and may also hear arguments. It shall have power to adjourn such hearing from time to time and from place to place, and after full hearing to render decision in writing approving or rejecting such application. Such application may be approved or rejected in whole or in part. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the board from rejecting any application in whole without the issuance of the notice herein required. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4996k. Cost of publication.—The cost of publication of the notice herein required and the postage for mailing thereof shall in each case be paid by the applicant. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4996l. Suit upon rejected application.—If the board shall reject any application in whole, the applicant or applicants may, within sixty days after the entry of such order, institute a suit in the district court of the county in which such appropriation is sought to be made, in which such applicant or applicants shall be plaintiff, and all claimants or appropriators of water from the same source of water supply who have filed in the office of the board a record of their claims or appropriations as hereinbefore provided, shall be made defendants. In any such case, the process, pleading, and practice shall be in accordance with the practice of the district court as provided in other civil cases. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4996m. Appeals.—If any application be granted in whole or in part, any party, or number of parties acting jointly who may feel aggrieved by any such decision of the board may appeal from its action to the district court of the county in which the appropriation of water is sought to be made. All persons appealing shall be joined as plaintiffs in the district court, and all other parties who have entered their appearance in writing before said board in said matter shall be joined as defendants. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4996n. Petition and bond.—The party or parties appealing shall, within sixty days next after the date of the decision of the board appealed from, file in the district court to which the appeal is taken a petition in writing, setting forth the order of the board appealed from and their objections thereto, together with a prayer for the relief sought; and shall also, within such time, enter into a bond, to be approved by the district clerk, in such amount as the district clerk shall fix, payable to all defendants in said suit, conditioned that he, they, or it shall prosecute such appeal to effect and pay all costs and damages which may be adjudged against them, or either or any of them. Upon the filing of such petition and bond, and the approval of the bond by the district clerk, the appeal shall be deemed perfected. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4996o. Proceedings stayed.—The clerk of the district court shall immediately upon the perfecting of the appeal in his court, transmit to the office of the board a certificate, under the seal of the court, to the effect that said appeal has been perfected. Such certificate shall be entered of record in the office of the board; and thereupon further proceedings by said board in said matter shall be suspended until the determination of such appeal. Process shall issue out of said district court to all parties defendant in said proceeding in the same manner as provided by law in other civil cases originally instituted in such court. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4996p. Transcript.—The party or parties appealing shall, within ninety days after the appeal is perfected, file in the office of the clerk of such district court a certified copy or transcript of all records in the office of the board relating to such application and the action of the board thereon. By agreement of all parties filed with the secretary, any part of such records may be omitted from such transcript. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4996q. Trial de novo.—When appeal to the district court is perfected, a trial de novo shall be had. The process, pleadings and practice shall follow, as near as may be, the procedure provided in other civil cases originally instituted in said court. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 4996r. New parties may be made.—Any claimant or appropriator of water from the same source of supply, and any party having or claiming an interest in the rights involved in any such suit, shall have the right to intervene therein in the district court, new or additional parties may be made to such suit; and any party shall have the right to interplead any other person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 4996s. Board may intervene.—The board, in behalf of the state, may intervene in any suit or proceeding authorized by this Act. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 4996t. Attorney general to represent board.—In all litigation to which the board may be a party the attorney general shall represent the board. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 4996u. Precedence on appeal.—When an appeal is taken as provided in this Act from any decision of the board, such cause shall have precedence in the district court over other civil causes not entitled to a like precedence; and if an appeal be taken from the district court to the court of civil appeals, or from the court of civil appeals to the supreme court, such cause shall have like precedence; provided, that all appeals or writs of error from any judgment rendered in any of such courts shall be perfected or sued out within ninety days from the date of such judgment, and not thereafter. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 4996v. Decree of court filed with board.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the district court, immediately upon the entering of any final judgment, order or decree in any suit or proceeding in which an appeal is taken to the district court as provided in this Act to transmit a certified copy of such judgment, order or decree to the board. If such judgment, order or decree of the district court be appealed from, then upon final determination thereof in the appellate court, it shall be the duty of the clerk of such court to transmit a certified copy of said judgment, order or decree to the board. Same shall be forthwith entered upon the records of the board. Upon the termination of such litigation the board shall comply with the final order or decree therein. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 4996w. Transmission of certified copy of judgment to board of water engineers.—When any court of record in this state shall render any judgment, order or decree affecting in any manner the title to any water right, claim, appropriation or irrigation works, or any matter over which the board of water engineers is given supervision under the provisions of this Act, it shall be the duty of the clerk of such court to forthwith transmit to the office of the board a certified copy of such judgment, order or decree. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 4996x. Permit stayed pending appeal.—No permit shall be issued by the board until the expiration of sixty days after the date of the decision of the board granting the application, in whole or in part; or if an appeal be taken as provided in this Act, no such permit shall be issued until the final termination of such appeal. [Id. sec. 36.]

Art. 4996y. Form of permit, etc.—Every permit issued by the board under the provisions of this Act shall be in writing, attested by the seal of said board, and shall contain substantially the following: The name of the applicant to whom issued; the date of the issuance thereof; the date of the filing of the original application therefor in the office of the board; the use or purpose for which the appropriation of water is proposed to be made; the amount or volume of water authorized to be appropriated; a general description of the source of supply from which the appropriation is proposed to be made; and if such appropriation is for irrigation, a description and statement of the approximate area of the lands to be irrigated; together with such other data and information as the board may prescribe. If such permit is issued in pursuance of the judgment or decree of any court as provided in this Act, same shall in all respects conform to the requirements of such judgment or decree. Upon the issuance of such permit, same shall be transmitted by the secretary of the board by registered mail to the county clerk of the county in which the appropriation is to be made; and upon receipt of a recording fee of one dollar to be paid by the applicant, such clerk shall file and record the same in a well-bound book provided and kept for that purpose only, and to index the same alphabetically under the name of the applicant and of the stream or source of water supply, and thereupon to deliver such permit upon demand to the applicant. Such permit, when thus filed in the office of the county clerk, shall be constructive notice of the filing of the application with the board; of the issuance of the permit; and of all the rights arising thereunder. [Id. sec. 37.]

Art. 4999. Work to begin in ninety days, etc.—Within ninety days after the date of issuance of the permit provided for in this Act, the applicant seeking to appropriate water thereunder shall begin actual construction of the proposed ditch, canal, dam, lake, reservoir or other work, and shall prosecute the work thereon diligently and continuously to completion; provided, that the board may by an order entered of record, extend the time for beginning the actual construction of such work for a period not to exceed twelve months from the date of issuance of such permit; and further provided, that if any applicant shall fail to comply with the requirements of this section, he, they, or it shall thereby forfeit all rights under such permit. If any applicant to whom a permit is issued shall, after beginning the actual construction of work as provided in this section, fail to thereafter prosecute the same diligently and continuously to completion, the board may, after notice to the applicant, and giving him an opportunity to be heard, by an order entered of record, revoke and cancel such permit, in whole or in part. A certified copy of such order shall be forthwith transmitted by the secretary of the board, by registered mail, to the clerk of the county in which such permit is recorded, and which order shall be recorded by said county clerk; provided, that any applicant whose permit is thus canceled or revoked or sought to be canceled by the board shall have the right to contest same in the district court in the same manner as provided in this Act for the rejection of an application. [Id. sec. 38.]

Arts. 5000, 5001.—Repealed. See note under Art. 4991.

See Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1002; Cotulla v. La Salle Water Storage Co., 153 S. W. 711.

Art. 5001a. Use of water permit forbidden.—Any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, or any agent, officer, employé or representative of any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, who shall wilfully take, divert or appropriate any of the water of this state, or the use of such water, for any purpose, without first complying with all the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and on conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and each day that such taking, diversion or appropriation of water shall continue shall constitute a separate offense; and the possession of such water, except when the right to its use is acquired in accordance with the provisions of law, shall be prima facie proof of the guilt of the person, association of persons, corporation, irrigation district, or the agent, officer, employé or representative of any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district. [Id. sec. 39.]

Art. 5001b. State may recover penalty.—In addition to the punishment prescribed in the last preceding section [Art. 5001a], any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, or any agent, officer, employé or representative of any such person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, who shall wilfully take, divert, or appropriate water of the state, or the use of such water, without first complying with the provisions of this Act, shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars per day for each and every day that such taking, diversion, appropriation, or use may be made, and the state may recover such penalties by suit brought for that purpose in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 40.]

Art. 5001c. Date of priority.—When any permit is issued under the provisions of this Act, the priority of the appropriation of water or the claimant's right to the use of such water shall date from the date of the filing of the original application in the office of the board. [Id. sec. 41.]

Art. 5001d. Board to measure streams, make reports, etc.—It shall be the duty of the board to make or cause to be made measurements and calculations of the flow of streams from which water may be appropriated as provided in this Act, commencing such work in those streams most used for irrigation or other beneficial uses; to collect data and make surveys; to determine the most suitable location for constructing works to utilize the waters of the state; to ascertain the location and area of the lands best suited for irrigation; to examine and survey reservoir sites; and wherever practicable, to make estimates of the cost of proposed irrigation works, and of the improvements of reservoir sites. It shall be the duty of the board to make itself conversant with the water courses of the state and of the needs of the state concerning irrigation matters and the storage and conservation of the waters of the state for other purposes. The board shall make biennial reports in writing to the Governor, in which shall be included the data and information collected by said board, and in which shall be included such suggestions as to the amendment of existing laws and the enactment of new laws as the information and experience of the board may suggest. The board shall keep in its office full and proper records of its work, observations and calculations, all of which shall be the property of the state. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 5001e. Board to make rules, etc.—The board may adopt and enforce such rules, regulations and modes of procedure as it may deem proper for the discharge of the duties incumbent upon it under the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 43.]

Art. 5001f. Fees.—The board shall charge and collect for the benefit of the state the following fees:

For filing each and every application for the storage of water, a fee of twenty-five dollars; provided, that if the application shall contemplate and propose the storage of water in excess of five thousand acre feet, an additional fee of one dollar shall be charged for each additional one thousand acre feet or fractional part thereof.

For filing each and every application which contemplates and proposes the taking or diversion of water for irrigation purposes, one cent per acre for each and every acre proposed to be irrigated.

For filing each application contemplating and proposing the taking, diversion or use of flowing water for any other purpose than storage or the irrigation of land as hereinbefore provided, seventy-five cents for each cubic foot of water per second of time sought to be appropriated; provided, that if the appropriation shall contemplate the storage and diversion and use of water, for any two of such purposes, the fee charged and collected shall be based upon only one of such purposes, and that shall be the one for which the highest fee is provided herein.

For the filing of each and every exhibit, map, affidavit or other paper authorized to be filed in the office of the board of water engineers, a filing fee of ten cents.

For the recording of each and every paper authorized or required to be recorded in the records of the office of the board, a fee of fifteen cents per folio of one hundred words.

For making and certifying each and every copy of any instrument or paper authorized to be certified under the seal [seal] of such board, a fee of fifteen cents per folio, including the certificate.

For making and certifying copies of any map or blue print thereof authorized to be filed in the office of the board, the same fees as are now or may be prescribed by law for the making and certifying of such copies by the commissioner of the general land office.

For filing each application for extension of time within which to complete work a fee of twenty-five dollars. [Id. sec. 44.]

Art. 5001g. Extension of time.—When the holder of any permit issued under the provisions of this Act has actually commenced construction of work thereunder, and has prosecuted and is prosecuting same with diligence as provided in this Act, the board may, upon an application in writing, presented to the board, for good cause shown, by an order entered of record, extend the time within which construction is required to be completed; provided, the board shall not consider or grant any application for such extension until the applicant has first paid the fees provided therefor. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 5001h. Standard of measure.—A cubic foot of water per second of time shall be the standard unit for the measurement of flowing water, both for the purpose of determining the flow of water in streams and for the purpose of distributing water for beneficial uses. The standard unit of volume of static water shall be the acre foot.

Units Defined.—A cubic foot per second of time is the quantity of water that will pass through a square foot opening in one second when flowing at an average velocity of one foot per second. An acre foot is the quantity of water required to cover one acre one foot deep. [Id. sec. 46.]

Art. 5001i. Water right.—A water right is the right to use the water of the state when such use has been acquired by the application of water under the statutes of this state and for the purposes stated in this Act. Such use shall be the basis, the measure and the limit to the right to use water of the state at all times, not exceeding in any case the limit of volume to which the user is entitled and the volume which is necessarily required and can be beneficially used for irrigation or other authorized uses. [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 5001j. Right limited to beneficial use.—Rights to the use of water acquired under the provisions of this Act shall be limited and restricted to so much thereof as may be necessarily required for the purposes stated in this Act irrespective of the carrying capacity of the ditch, and all the water not so applied shall not be considered as appropriated. [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 5001k. Right forfeited by abandonment.—Any appropriation or use of water heretofore made under any statute of this state or hereafter made under the provisions of this Act which shall be wilfully abandoned during any three successive years, shall be forfeited and the water formerly so used or appropriated shall be again subject to appropriation for the purposes stated in this act. [Id. sec. 49.]

Art. 5001l. Dams constructed prior to March 28, 1913; right to appropriate waters, etc.—Any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, having prior to March 28th, 1913, constructed any dam or dams across any river, or other stream, for the purpose of storing water for any of the purposes set forth in section 2 [Art. 4992] of this Act shall have the right to appropriate the ordinary flow or underflow, or the storm, flood or rain waters of such stream, in amounts and quantities equal to the holding capacity of such dam or dams, by making application as provided for in section 14 [Art. 4996b] of this Act, and such application shall have priority over all other applications; and, provided, that any such person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district thus impounding water in any river channel, lake or reservoir and appropriating the same shall have the right to collect from any riparian owner who shall divert such impounded water from said reservoir by pumping or otherwise a reasonable sum for the water so diverted, such sum to be determined by the board of water engineers, based upon the benefits accruing to such riparian owner by reason of the construction of such dam, lake or reservoir and the impounding of such waters therein, provided, the owner of such dams, lake or reservoir, and the owner of riparian rights using such water cannot agree upon the price to be paid therefor. [Id. sec. 49a.]

Art. 5001m. Conservation of storm water authorized.—Any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district having in possession and control storm, flood, or rain waters conserved or stored under the provisions of this Act may enter into contract to supply same to any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district having the right to acquire such use; provided, that the price and terms of such contract shall be just and reasonable and without discrimination and subject to the same revision and control as hereinafter provided for other water rates and charges; provided, that if any person shall use such stored or conserved water without first entering into contract with the party having stored or conserved the same, such user shall pay for the use thereof such charge or rental as the board shall find to be just and reasonable, and subject to revision by the court as herein provided for other water rates and charges. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 5001n. Use of streams for conveying stored water.—For the purpose of conveying and delivering storm, flood or rain water from the place of storage to the place of use as provided in the preceding section [Art. 5001m], it shall be lawful for any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district to use the banks and bed of any flowing natural stream within this State; under and in accordance with such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the board of water engineers; and such board shall prescribe rules and regulations for such purpose. No person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district who has not acquired the right to the use of such conserved or stored waters as provided in the last preceding section shall take, use, or divert same. [Id. sec. 51.]

Art. 5001o. Penalty for unlawful interference.—Any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, of [or] the agent, officer, employee, or representative of any such person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district who shall wilfully interfere with the passage of or take, divert, or appropriate such conserved or stored water during the passage and delivery thereof as provided in the last two preceding sections [Arts. 5001m, 5001n], shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 5001p. Injunction authorized.—It shall be the duty of the district court, or the judge thereof, of any judicial district in or through which the conserved or stored waters described in the last three preceding sections [Arts. 5001m—5001o] may pass, at the suit of any party having an interest therein, upon it being made to appear that any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district or any agent, officer, employee, or representative thereof is interfering with or threatening or about to interfere with, the passage, or is taking, diverting, appropriating, or threatening, or about to take, divert, or appropriate, any conserved or stored waters, in violation of the provisions of the last three preceding sections; to issue such writ or writs of injunction, mandamus, or other process as may be proper or necessary to prevent such wrongful acts. [Id. sec. 53.]

Art. 5002. [3125] Formation of corporations authorized.—Corporations may be formed and chartered under the provisions of this Act and of the general corporation laws of the state of Texas, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating canals, ditches, flumes, feeders, laterals, dams, reservoirs, lakes and wells, and of conserving, storing, conducting and transferring water to all persons entitled to the use of the same for irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power, to cities and towns for waterworks, and for stock-raising. [Id. sec. 54.]

See Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575; Biggs v. Maulding (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 681.

Construction of prior act—Eminent domain.—See, also, notes under Art. 5004a.

This article conferred the right of eminent domain only upon corporations and associations formed for the purpose of supplying water to the various industries named in the act of which it formed a part, and to cities and towns to enable them to furnish water to the public and did not confer that right upon corporations formed for the purpose of conducting the various industries named in the act. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 466.

A corporation formed for irrigation purposes under this article may exercise the power of eminent domain subject to legislative regulations. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Under this article and Art. 5004, providing that all corporations and associations formed for the purpose of irrigation, etc., as provided in that chapter, may obtain the right of way over private lands, and also land for dams and reservoirs, by condemnation, a corporation formed under Art. 1121, subd. 23, providing that corporations may be formed for the construction, maintenance, and operation of dams, reservoirs, etc., and other necessary appurtenances, for the purposes of irrigation, navigation, etc., is entitled to acquire land by eminent domain proceedings. Cotulla v. La Salle Water Storage Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 711.

Nature of irrigation company.—A corporation formed for irrigation purposes under this article is a quasi public corporation. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 400; Id., 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435; Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Where an irrigation company acquired under the irrigation statutes superior rights to use the waters of a river, it became a quasi public corporation chargeable with duties as such, though an ancient grant to its vendors vested in them the riparian rights to the waters of such river. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

Acceptance of right of way.—Acts of individual member of irrigation company held not an acceptance by company of right of way. Toyaho Creek Irr. Co. v. Hutchins, 21 C. A. 274, 52 S. W. 101.

Gift of right of way.—Gift of right of way to irrigation company held revocable, there being no estoppel. Toyaho Creek Irr. Co. v. Hutchins, 21 C. A. 274, 52 S. W. 101.

Art. 5002a. [3125] Sale of water rights authorized.—All such corporations shall have full power and authority to make contracts for the sale of permanent water rights, and to have the same secured by liens on the land or otherwise, and to lease, rent, or otherwise dispose of the water, controlled by such corporation for such time as may be agreed upon, and in addition to the lien on the crops hereinafter provided for, the lease or rental contract may be secured by a lien on the land or otherwise. [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 5002b. [3125] Persons entitled to use water.—All persons who own or hold a possessory right or title to land adjoining or contiguous to any dam, reservoir, canal, ditch, flume or lateral constructed and maintained under the provisions of this Act, and who shall have secured a right to the use of water in said canal, ditch, flume, lateral, reservoir, dam or lake, shall be entitled to be supplied from such canal, ditch, flume, lateral, dam, reservoir or lake with water for irrigation of such land, and for mining, milling, manufacturing, development of power, and stock-raising, in accordance with the terms of his or their contract. [Id. sec. 56.]

Duty to supply water.—An irrigation company, being a quasi public corporation, owed the owner of land contiguous to its canals the duty to provide water for irrigating such land upon reasonable notice from the landowner, and upon reasonable terms and within its ability to supply same by the exercise of reasonable diligence. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

Contracts to supply water.—Limitation of the liability of an irrigation canal company for damages for failure to furnish water to its lessee held not prevented by the fact that the company is a common carrier. Moore-Cortes Canal Co. v. Gyle, 36 C. A. 442, 82 S. W. 350.

An irrigation company under its contract to furnish water held required to furnish facilities for delivering the water on the land. Sisk v. Gravity Canal Co., 52 C. A. 12, 113 S. W. 195.

A corporation organized under this article, which contracts with a person entitled to water for irrigation to furnish him with a full supply of water to make a crop, cannot excuse nonperformance by proving shortage in the supply from drought, accident, or other cause, so that it cannot comply with the contract without discriminating against other consumers of water. Erp v. Raywood Canal & Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 897.

A stipulation in a contract by a corporation to furnish water for irrigation for a crop held not unreasonable. Id.

In an action to recover against an irrigation company for failure to furnish water resulting in damage to plaintiff's crop of rice, evidence held to show that the crop for the year was short one-third of a sack per acre. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 545.

A contract for the furnishing of water for irrigation construed. Id.

One who merely owned an irrigation canal not shown to have been constructed under this article, with a lateral running through plaintiff's land with his consent, and who agreed to furnish plaintiff water to irrigate his rice crop, could make a valid contract limiting damages from his failure to do so to a certain sum per acre; the irrigation plant owner not undertaking the discharge of a public duty, so that the reasonableness of the provision of the contract is for the parties to decide. Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1002.

Under this article one maintaining an irrigation canal could not impose unjust or unreasonable terms by contract upon water users; any such terms being void. Id.

In an action against an irrigation company for damages for failure to furnish sufficient water to raise a full crop on a stipulated number of acres, whether a later contract, by which the company agreed to furnish a limited amount of water, was executed by plaintiff under duress, was immaterial, where the failure to furnish the water was occasioned by drought or accident, both contracts being subject to the provisions of this article. Raymond Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Erp, 105 T. 161, 146 S. W. 155.

A contract by an irrigation company to supply only sufficient water to produce an average crop of a certain amount per acre is not manifestly illegal, but might be valid under certain circumstances; but a provision limiting the amount of damages per acre is invalid. Id.

In an action against an irrigation company on an oral contract, whether a later contract was executed under duress held immaterial, where the failure to furnish the water was occasioned by accident or drought. Id.

A contract by an irrigation company to supply only sufficient water to produce an average crop of a certain amount per acre is not manifestly illegal, but might be valid under certain circumstances, but a provision limiting the amount of damages per acre is invalid. Id.

An irrigation company chartered under this article, being a quasi public corporation, owed a duty to supply water to land contiguous to its canals without a contract therefor, and the only matters open to verbal contract with reference to the water were the price and terms upon which, and the time at which, it would be delivered. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

Where a plantation company entitled to be supplied with water by an irrigation company makes a demand therefor, it is bound by the language of such demand, though the demand be unnecessary. Id.

Notice to an irrigation company that a plantation company had about "20,000 cabbage plants pulled" which would be a total loss unless water was obtained at once held sufficient to notify it of all special damages growing out of the loss of the cabbage plants. Id.

A provision in a contract by an irrigation company limiting its liability to $10 per acre for negligent failure to supply water was void. Id.

— Liability for breach.—Measure of damages, in action for breach of contract to furnish water for irrigating purposes, stated. Raywood Rice, Canal & Milling Co. v. Wells, 33 C. A. 545, 77 S. W. 253.

Where defendant contracted to furnish water for irrigation, but plaintiff refused to execute a proper contract tendered him, he could not recover for failure to furnish sufficient water to save his crop. Colorado Canal Co. v. Mayes, 38 C. A. 271, 85 S. W. 448.

In action by owner of land for breach of contract to furnish water for irrigation, expense held to be deducted from owner's share of crop in estimating damages. Barstow Irr. Co. v. Cleghon (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1023.

In action for breach of contract to furnish water for irrigation, plaintiff held entitled to recover for crops lost by his inability to plant. Id.

An irrigation company can only excuse its failure to furnish water according to contract by proof that its failure resulted from inevitable accident, or a cause that could not be obviated by ordinary care and foresight. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 400.

An irrigation company, having negligently or willfully failed to furnish water to a consumer according to contract, held liable for any damages suffered in loss of or injury to the consumer's crops by reason of the breach of contract. Id.

In an action by a lessee for damages for failure of the lessor to furnish water to irrigate the land for a crop, evidence held insufficient to sustain the judgment for the amount of damages awarded. Dunlap v. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co., 43 C. A. 269, 95 S. W. 43.

Plaintiff irrigation company held not liable for breach of a contract to furnish water, for any damage that accrued prior to five days after written demand made by defendants for water, as provided by the contract. Gravity Canal Co. v. Sisk, 43 C. A. 194, 95 S. W. 724.

That plaintiff's 1903 crop was destroyed by a natural overflow of waters did not relieve an irrigation company from liability for destroying his 1904 crop by overflowing his land. McLellan v. Brownsville Land & Irrigation Co., 46 C. A. 249, 103 S. W. 206.

Plaintiff held not barred from recovering for the overflow of his crops by an irrigation company for failing to build levees or embankments to avoid such overflow. Id.

In an action against an irrigation company for overflowing crops, it was no defense that it did not turn the water directly on plaintiff's land, but caused it to flow first over others' lands. Id.

An irrigation company, having contracted to furnish water to irrigate defendant's land, held not a necessary or proper party to a suit by defendants' tenants for breach of defendants' agreement to furnish water to irrigate the leased land. Stockton v. Brown (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 423.

Statement of damages for breach by an irrigation company of its contract to supply water for cultivation of a crop. Sisk v. Gravity Canal Co., 52 C. A. 12, 113 S. W. 195.

Division of a crop between the lessee and lessor held not to estop the lessee from claiming damages for breach of the lessor's contract to furnish water for irrigation. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 545.

On suit for breach of defendant's contract to supply plaintiff, a tenant, with water for a rice crop, held error to authorize recovery of a share of the additional rice which would have been raised if the land had been properly irrigated, which would have gone to the landlord. Lone Star Canal Co. v. Cannon (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 799.

In an action against an irrigation company for failure to supply water, instruction that the measure of damages was the difference in the market value of the crop as raised and what it would have been if sufficient water had been supplied, less the cost of harvesting the additional crop, and that if failure to supply sufficient water was caused by accident or drought plaintiff could not recover, held proper. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Erp, 105 T. 161, 146 S. W. 155.

The cost of marketing crops held a proper feature of damages in an action for a failure to supply water for irrigation purposes under a contract. Biggs v. Maulding (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 681.

A water company contracted to give an owner a permanent right to water, on payment of a certain sum, and provided that the "vendee" should receive water during the life of the agreement. Held, that a lessee of premises before payment of the amount provided was not entitled to maintain an action for a failure to supply water. Id.

The rule requiring a person whose cabbage plants were destroyed through the failure of an irrigation company to furnish water to mitigate his damages merely required that he make a reasonably diligent inquiry for other plants in the vicinity and did not require that he seek plants elsewhere. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 236.

The damages for the destruction of the crop of cabbage should have been measured by the average price from the date of the destruction to the date when it would have been harvested. Id.

The measure of damages for the destruction of cabbage plants to be transplanted, through failure to furnish water to irrigate the land, was the value of the probable yield under proper cultivation when mature and ready for sale, less the expense of such cultivation and the cost of marketing. Id.

Where an irrigation company's failure to furnish water was primarily due to its own neglect, it did not relieve it from liability for damages that the low water in the river contributed to the result. Id.

In order to entitle a plantation company to recover damages from an irrigation company for failure to furnish water as it had contracted to do, it was not essential that the plantation company continually repeat a request for water which it knew could not be supplied. Id.

Limitation of liability.—Irrigation companies authorized to exercise the power of eminent domain are quasi public corporations, and cannot limit their liability to the public by contract. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 400; Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435.

An irrigation canal company sued for failure to furnish sufficient water held not entitled to rely upon a release of liability contained in a contract for service for the succeeding season. Lone Star Canal Co. v. Cannon (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 799.

Art. 5002c. [3125] No discrimination against users.—If the person, association of persons or corporation owning or controlling such water, and the person who owns or holds a possessory right or title to land adjoining or contiguous to any canal, ditch, flume or lateral, lake or reservoir, constructed or maintained under the provisions of this Act, fail to agree upon a price for a permanent water right, or for the use or rental of the necessary water to irrigate the land of such person, or for mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power, or stockraising; such person, association of persons or corporation shall, nevertheless, less, if he, they or it, have or control any water not contracted to others, furnish the necessary water to such person to irrigate his lands or for farming, milling, manufacturing, the development of power or stockraising, at such prices as shall be reasonable and just, and without discrimination. [Id. sec. 57.]

Prior act.—Art. 5002 reserved to those owning land adjoining or contiguous to the canal a definite right to the use of the water in the canal, and imposed upon the canal company such reciprocal duties to the public as to make the corporation quasi public in character and charged it with public trust. It could not sell to any one person more than his proportionate share of the water in the canal. It could establish reasonable rules as to when application for use of water shall be made, and if one having right to use of the water failed to make demand at proper time, and when he did make demand, if all the water that the canal could furnish was contracted for, he could not enforce his demand. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 466, 468.

Art. 5002d. [3125] Water to be prorated.—In case of shortage of water from drouth, accident or other cause, all water to be distributed shall be divided among all consumers pro rata, according to the amount he or they may be entitled to, to the end that all shall suffer alike, and preference be given to none; provided, that nothing in this section contained shall be held to preclude any such person, association of persons or corporation owning or controlling such water from supplying the same to any person having a prior vested right thereto under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 58.]

Prior act.—Under Art. 5002, a failure by an irrigation company to furnish a customer sufficient water to raise a full crop on a stipulated number of acres according to contract will not subject the company to damages if compliance therewith would, on account of shortage of water from such causes, deprive other customers of the right to pro rata distribution. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Erp, 105 T. 161, 146 S. W. 155.

While the statute contemplates that an irrigation company may be unable to supply all consumers with an adequate amount of water, this could not defeat recovery for failure to supply water, where the failure did not arise from the fact that other consumers used the whole supply. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

Art. 5002e. [3125] Permanent water right and easement.—The permanent water right shall be an easement to the land and pass with the title thereto; and the owner thereof shall be entitled to the use of the water upon the terms provided in his or their contract with such person, association of persons or corporation, or, in case no contract is entered into, then at just and reasonable prices, and without discrimination. Any instrument of writing conveying a permanent water right shall be admitted to record in the same manner as other instruments relating to the conveyance of land. [Id. sec. 59.]

Art. 5002f. Regulation of rates; discrimination; complaint; deposit.—If any person entitled to receive or use water from any canal, ditch, flume, lateral, dam, reservoir or lake, or from any conserved or stored supply, shall present to the board his petition in writing, showing that the person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, owning or controlling such water has a supply of water not contracted to others and available for his use, and fail or refuse to supply such water to him, or that the price or rental demanded therefor is not reasonable and just or is discriminatory; and that the complainant is entitled to receive or use such water and is willing and able to pay a just and reasonable price therefor; and shall accompany such petition with a deposit of twenty-five dollars; it shall be the duty of the board to make a preliminary investigation of such complaint and determine whether there is probable ground therefor. If said board shall determine that no probable ground exists for such complaint, same shall be dismissed, and the deposit may, at the discretion of the board, be returned to the complainant or paid into the state treasury. [Id. sec. 60.]

Art. 5002g. Order on complaint; deposit and bond for costs; certified copy of complaint to be sent to defendants.—If the board shall determine that probable ground exists for such complaint, it shall enter an order setting said matter for hearing at a time and place to be named therein. The board may, in its discretion, require the complainant to make an additional deposit, or to enter into bond in an amount fixed by the board, conditioned for the payment of all costs of such proceeding, and which bond shall be approved by the board. Thereupon it shall be the duty of the secretary of the board to transmit a certified copy of the petition of complainant and of the order setting same for hearing, by registered mail, addressed to the party or parties against whom such complaint is made, and which notice shall be deposited in the mails at least twenty days before the date set for such hearing. [Id. sec. 61.]

Art. 5002h. Hearing; evidence; adjournments; decision.—At the time and place stated in such order, the board shall sit to hear such complaint. It may hear evidence orally or by affidavit in support of or against such complaint, and may hear arguments, and shall have power to adjourn such hearing from time to time and from place to place, and upon completion thereof shall render decision in writing. [Id. sec. 62.]

Art. 5002i. Appeal; supersedeas.—Appeal from such decision of the board may be taken within the time and in the manner as hereinbefore provided for other appeals from the decision of such board. The decision may be suspended by the filing of a supersedeas bond in the same manner as now provided in other civil cases; provided, that the board shall fix the amount of the bond necessary to stay the execution of any such order. [Id. sec. 63.]

Art. 5002j. Issuance of subpoenas authorized, etc.—In any examination, investigation or proceeding authorized before the board of water engineers, such board shall have power to issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses under such rules as the board may prescribe. Each witness who shall appear before the board by order of the board, at a place outside of the county of his residence shall receive for his attendance, one dollar per day and three cents per mile travelled by the nearest practicable route in going to and returning from the place of meeting of said board, which shall be ordered paid by the comptroller of public accounts upon the presentation of proper vouchers sworn to by such witness and approved by the chairman of the board; provided, that no witness shall be entitled to any witness fees or mileage who is directly interested in such proceeding. [Id. sec. 64.]

Art. 5002k. Who may administer oaths, etc.—In any examination or hearing held before the board of water engineers, the board shall have authority to adjourn such hearing from time to time and from place to place. Each member of such board and the secretary thereof shall be authorized to administer oaths. [Id. sec. 65.]

Art. 5002l. Certified copies.—Upon application of any person, the board shall furnish certified copies of any order or decision of record of such board, or of any paper, map or other document filed in the office of such board, and such certified copies under the hand of the secretary and the seal of the board shall be admissible in evidence in any court in the same manner and with like effect that the original would be entitled to. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 5002m. Rules may be prescribed, etc.—Every person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, conserving or supplying water for any of the purposes authorized by this Act shall have the right to make and publish all reasonable rules and regulations relating to the method and manner of supply, use and distribution of water, and prescribing the time and manner of making application for the use of water and of payment therefor. [Id. sec. 67.]

Art. 5002n. Conveyances, how made.—Every conveyance of a ditch, canal or reservoir, or other irrigation work, or any interest therein, shall hereafter be executed and acknowledged in the same manner as the conveyance of real estate, and recorded in the deed records of the county or counties in which such ditch, canal or reservoir is situated, and any such conveyance which shall not be made in conformity with the provisions of this Act shall be null and void as against subsequent purchasers thereof in good faith and for valuable consideration. [Id. sec. 68.]

Note.—Sections 69–71 are purely criminal in their nature, and are here omitted.

Art. 5002o. Partnership ditches.—In all cases where irrigation ditches are owned by two or more persons, or by mutual or co-operative companies or corporations, and one or more of such persons, or shareholders shall fail or neglect to do or to pay for his proportionate share of the work necessary for the proper maintenance and operation of such ditch, the owners or shareholders, desiring the performance of such work as is reasonably necessary to maintain and operate the ditch may, after having given ten days' written notice to such joint owner, or owners, or shareholders who have failed to pay for or perform their proportionate share of work necessary for the operation and maintenance of said ditch, proceed themselves to do such work or cause the same to be done, and may recover therefor from such person so failing to perform or pay for his share of such work, in any court having jurisdiction over the amount, the reasonable expense or value of such work or labor so performed. [Id. sec. 72.]

Art. 5002p. Surplus water to be returned.—All surplus water taken or diverted from any running stream not used by the appropriator or disposed of to consumers for the purposes stated in this Act, shall, wherever reasonably practicable, be conducted back to the stream from which taken or diverted. [Id. sec. 73.]

Art. 5003. [704] Preliminary surveys.—Every person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district shall have power to cause an examination and survey for its proposed work to be made as may be necessary to the selection of the most advantageous reservoir sites and rights of way for any of the purposes authorized by this Act and for such purposes shall have the right to enter upon the lands or waters of any person. [Id. sec. 74.]

Constitutionality.—See notes under Art. 4991 et seq.

Not a grant of right of way.—Rights of way over private lands for irrigation canal held not granted by statute itself, company being obliged to obtain a grant or condemnation. Toyaho Creek Irr. Co. v. Hutchins, 21 C. A. 274, 52 S. W. 101.

Art. 5004. [3126] Right of way over public lands.—Every person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district formed for any of the purposes authorized by this Act, are hereby granted the right of way not to exceed one hundred feet in width and the necessary area for any dam and reservoir site over all public, public free school, university and asylum lands of this state, with the use of the rock, gravel and timber on such reservoir site and right of way for construction purposes, after paying such compensation as the board of engineers may determine, and may acquire such reservoir site and rights of way over private lands by contract. [Id. sec. 75.]

See Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Nature and extent of right.—Filing of map of proposed irrigation canal held not an acceptance of statutory grant of right of way over public lands. Toyaho Creek Irr. Co. v. Hutchins, 21 C. A. 274, 52 S. W. 101.

This article grants over public lands only the right of way with the use of materials therein for construction purposes, and does not grant the right to appropriate such lands for dam sites and reservoirs, and the fact that the use of public lands for a reservoir may be indispensable to the project as designed by a corporation does not justify it in taking public lands for such a purpose. Jayne v. Imperial Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1137.

This article does not prevent condemnation of a way 200 feet wide over private land. Rabb v. La Feria Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

An irrigation corporation held possessed of right by implication to use a part of the public school lands for a dam and reservoir site. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Grants of the power of eminent domain are strictly construed, and the methods set forth in the statute granting the power must be strictly followed. Reitzer v. Medina Valley Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 380.

Proceedings.—Under this article and Art. 6483, which provides that no railroad shall enter upon private property except for a lineal survey, until it shall agree with and pay the owner all damages, the court, in condemnation proceedings by an irrigation company, has no right to permit an inspection of the land sought to be condemned for the purpose of qualifying its own witnesses as to the value of the property, or for any purpose. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1064.

Art. 5004a. Eminent domain.—Any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district or any city or town may also obtain the right of way over private lands and also the land for pumping plants, intakes, headgates and storage reservoirs, by condemnation by causing the damages for any private property appropriated by any such person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, or city or town to be assessed and paid for as provided in cases of railroads, provided that in exercising the right of eminent domain, as authorized in this section, there shall be no condemnation of the water rights of riparian owners or appropriators now using or appropriating said water, or who may use or appropriate same, in any stream or lake, or water impounded by them in the channel of such stream or lake by damming same. This provision shall not affect the common law right of condemnation for municipal use by cities and towns. [Id. sec. 76.]

In general.—The act (Gen. Laws 1889, p. 100) gave to corporations formed for irrigating purposes the right to condemn any property necessary for the uses and purposes of the enterprise in the business for which the corporation was created, if such property will pass or may be included under the term "lands." McGhee Irrigation Co. v. Hudson, 85 T. 587, 22 S. W. 398.

Under the power to condemn lands would be included the right to take water, but the water should be paid for, regardless of whether taken above or upon the land of a riparian owner whose right to have the water flow in its accustomed course and quantity is invaded. Id.

The fact that a corporation is authorized by its charter to construct, maintain and operate a canal for other purposes as well as that of irrigation does not change its character as a canal corporation for the purpose of irrigation, or disqualify it as a donee of the power of eminent domain conferred by these articles. It is not intended to restrict the right of eminent domain conferred in these articles to corporations formed exclusively for purposes of irrigation. The purpose of these articles is to confer additional powers upon corporations formed for irrigation purposes. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 464.

When a corporation has been formed, and its charter is valid and permits it to engage in the business of irrigation alone, this article grants it the power of condemnation. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co., 98 T. 494, 86 S. W. 11, 107 Am. St. Rep. 640.

State held entitled to improve navigable streams without compensation for injuries to right to use the water for irrigation. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 848.

Where the petition alleges that plaintiff has under Art. 5009 a statutory lien on all the rice raised on the lands described in the contract, and the contract is attached to petition as an exhibit, and is such a contract as is appropriate to be made only by a corporation created for purposes of irrigation under Arts. 4991 to 5010, it is sufficient to show the character of the corporation. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 438.

Generally each of several owners of land sought to be condemned is entitled to have the damages due him separately awarded, but where ownership of land is in dispute a single award is proper; the fund being held for apportionment on settlement of the dispute. Rabb v. La Feria Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

A deposit by condemnor of land held to have sufficiently conformed to the award. Id.

In a condemnation proceeding, held, that the commissioners, on the hearing as to damages, cannot inquire into the truth of the facts on which the jurisdiction is invoked. Id.

That plaintiff and another claimed the same land shows prima facie that there could be no such agreement as to damages between plaintiff and a company seeking to acquire a right of way as would defeat the company's right to institute condemnation proceedings. Id.

In a proceeding to condemn land for an irrigation project, a document filed by petitioner, tendering defendant the use of water from the proposed reservoir on stated conditions, in mitigation of damages was not a pleading and was properly stricken. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 260.

In a proceeding to condemn land, an instruction authorizing the jury to consider special damages, if any, to land not taken, and allow defendant the difference in the market value of the land, if any, before and after the taking, which damage, if any, the jury will find in addition to the value of the land taken for the reservoir, held erroneous as authorizing a double recovery for the land not taken. Id.

Art. 5005. Repealed. See note under Art. 4991.

Art. 5006. [3128] Public roads and bridges.—All such persons, association of persons, corporations, and irrigation districts shall have the right to run along or across all roads and highways necessary in the construction of their work and shall at all such crossings construct and maintain necessary bridges, culverts, or siphons and shall not impair the uses of such road or highway; provided, that if any public road or highway or public bridge shall be upon the ground necessary for the dam site, reservoir, or lake, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court to change said road and to remove such bridge that the same may not interfere with the construction of the proposed dam, reservoir, or lake; provided further, that the expense of making such change shall be paid by the person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district desiring to construct such dam site, lake or reservoir. [Id. sec. 77.]

Liability for repairs.—Under this article and Art. 7014, which empowers county commissioners to cause all necessary bridges to be kept in repair, on a company's refusal to comply with its duty, the county can make the repairs and enforce reimbursement from the company therefor without first applying for mandamus to compel the company to make them. Orange County v. Cow Bayou Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 963.

Art. 5007. Repealed. See note under Art. 4991.

Art. 5008. [704] May cross streams, etc.—Such person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district shall have power to construct its ditch or canal across, along or upon any stream of water. [Id. sec. 78.]

Art. 5009. [3130] Liens, etc.—Every person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, who has heretofore constructed or may hereafter construct any ditch, canal, dam, lake or reservoir for the purposes of irrigation, and who shall lease, rent, furnish, or supply water to any person, association of persons, or corporation for the purpose of irrigation, shall, irrespective of contract, have a preference lien superior to every other lien upon the crop or crops raised upon the land thus irrigated. [Id. sec. 87.]

Art. 5009a. Enforcement of liens.—For the enforcement of the lien provided for in the preceding section [Art. 5009], every such person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district shall be entitled to all the rights and remedies prescribed by chapter 1, title 80, of the Revised Civil Statutes of this state for the enforcement of the lien as between landlord and tenant. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 5010. Repealed. See note under Art. 4991.

Art. 5011. Surveys under reclamation act.—When in the examination of any irrigation or reclamation project under the provisions of the act of congress, known as the reclamation act, approved June 17, 1902, it shall be found advisable or necessary to irrigate or reclaim lands within the limits of this state, the secretary of the department of the interior is authorized to make all necessary examinations and surveys for and to locate and construct irrigation or reclamation works within this state and to perform any and all acts necessary to carry into effect the provisions, limitations, charges, terms and conditions of said reclamation act. [Id. sec. 79.]

Art. 5011a. Reclamation projects.—The provisions of this Act shall in all things apply to the construction, maintenance and operation of any irrigation works in this state, constructed under what is known as the federal reclamation act, approved June 17, 1902, and the amendments thereto in so far as the provisions of this Act are not inconsistent with said act of congress or the amendments thereto or the regulations prescribed by the secretary of the department of the interior in conformity to such reclamation act and the amendments thereto. [Id. sec. 80.]

Art. 5011b. Diversion of water from watershed prohibited when.—It shall be unlawful for any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district to take or divert any of the water of the ordinary flow, underflow, or storm flow of any stream, water course, or watershed in this state into any other natural stream, water course, or watershed to the prejudice of any person or property situated within the watershed from which such water is proposed to be taken or diverted. [Id. sec. 81.]

Art. 5011c. Application to board of water engineers; hearing; appeals.—Before any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district shall take any water from any natural stream, water course, or watershed in this state into any other watershed, such person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district shall make application to the board of water engineers for a permit so to take or divert such waters, and no such permit shall be issued by the board until after full hearing before said board as to the rights to be affected thereby, and such hearing shall be held and notice thereof given at such time and such place in such mode and manner as the board may prescribe; and from any decision of the board an appeal may be taken to the district court of the county in which such diversion is proposed to be made in the mode and manner prescribed in this Act for other appeals from the decision of the board. [Id. sec. 82.]

Note.—Section 83 is purely criminal, and is here omitted.

Art. 5011d. Reservoirs and canals, etc., to be fenced.—Unless the person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district owning or controlling any ditch, canal, reservoir, dam, or lake shall keep the same securely fenced, no cause of action shall accrue in their favor against owners of livestock for any trespass thereon. [Id. sec. 84.]

Art. 5011e. Alienation of land required, etc.—Any corporation organized under the provisions of the general laws of this state, or the provisions of this Act for any of the purposes stated in this Act, shall have the power to acquire lands by voluntary donation or purchase in payment of stock or bonds or water rights; and to hold, improve, subdivide, and dispose of all such land and other property; and to borrow money for the construction, maintenance and operation of its canals, ditches, flumes, feeders, reservoirs, dams, lakes, wells and other property and franchises to the extent of the value thereof to secure the payment of any debts contracted for same; provided, no corporation shall issue stock or bonds except for money paid, labor done, or property actually received, and all fictitious increases of stock or indebtedness shall be void: and provided further, all lands acquired by such corporation except such as are used for the construction, maintenance, or operation of such canals, ditches, laterals, feeders, reservoirs, dams, lakes, wells and other necessary works, shall be alienated within fifteen years from the date of acquiring said lands or be subject to judicial forfeiture. [Id. sec. 85.]

Art. 5011f. Directors may be elected.—Any corporation organized under the provisions of the general laws of this state or the provisions of this Act, for any of the purposes stated in this Act, may elect directors or trustees to hold office for a period of three years and may provide for the election of one-third in number thereof each year. [Id. sec. 86.]

Note.—Section 90 makes it a misdemeanor to permit Johnson grass and Russian thistle to go to seed near a reservoir or water course, and is omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

Art. 5011g. Artesian wells.—An artesian well is defined for the purposes of this Act to be any artificial well in which, if properly cased, the waters will rise by natural pressure above the strata in which they are found. [Id. sec. 91.]

Art. 5011h. Certain artesian wells declared nuisances.—Any artesian well which is not tightly cased, capped and furnished with such mechanical appliances as will readily and effectively arrest and prevent the flow from such well, either over the surface of the ground about the well or wasting from the well through the strata through which it passes is hereby declared a public nuisance and subject to be abated as such. [Id. sec. 92.]

Art. 5011i. Waste defined.—Waste is defined for the purposes of this Act in relation to artesian wells to be the causing, suffering or permitting the waters of an artesian well to run into any river, creek or other natural water course or drain, superficial or underground channel, bayou, or into any sewer, street, road, highway, or upon the land or any other person than that of the owner of such well, or upon the public lands, or to run or percolate through the strata above that in which such water is found: unless it be used for the purposes and in the manner in which it may be lawfully used on the premises of the owner of such well; provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the use of such water, if suitable, for the proper irrigation of trees standing along or upon any street, road or highway, or for ornamental ponds or fountains, or the propagation of fish or for the purposes authorized by this Act. [Id. sec. 93.]

Note.—Section 94 makes the wasting of water a misdemeanor, and is omitted.

Art. 5011j. Record of boring, etc.—Any person boring or causing to be bored any artesian well shall keep a complete and accurate record of the depth and thickness and character of the different strata penetrated, and when such well is completed, shall transmit by registered mail to the board of water engineers a copy of such record. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction therefor shall be fined in any sum not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 95.]

Art. 5011k. Oil wells.—Nothing in the preceding sections numbered ninety-one to ninety-five [Arts. 5011g–5011j], inclusive, shall be construed to apply to any oil well, and the status of such oil wells shall be unaffected by this Act. [Id. sec. 96.]

Art. 5011l. Certain riparian rights.—Nothing in this Act contained shall be construed as a recognition of any riparian right in the owner of any lands the title to which shall have passed out of the state of Texas subsequent to the first day of July, A. D. 1895. [Id. sec. 97.]

Art. 5011m. Vested rights not affected.—Nothing in this Act contained shall be held or construed to alter, affect, impair, increase, destroy, validate or invalidate any existing or vested right, existing at the date when this Act shall go into effect. [Id. sec. 98.]

Art. 5011n. Certain rights not impaired.—Nothing in this Act shall be held or construed to in any manner impair any right of any riparian land owner as same has been heretofore and is now recognized under the laws of this state as construed by the decisions of our supreme court. [Id. sec. 98a.]

Art. 5011o. Partial unconstitutionality not to invalidate, etc.—If any provision of this Act shall be held unconstitutional, it shall not be held to invalidate any other provision of this Act. [Id. sec. 99.]

Art. 5011p. Water-users' associations incorporated under United States reclamation act; no charter fees or franchise taxes.—Whereas, The congress of the United States has set apart certain funds arising from the sale of public lands of the United States, for the reclamation of arid land in certain states of the Union, by the construction of reservoirs and irrigation works therein; and,

Whereas, By special act of the congress of the United States, the benefits of such reclamation act have been extended to the state of Texas; and,

Whereas, By the terms of such Act the beneficiaries thereunder are required to refund to the government the cost of such works, and under the regulations of the department of the interior the farmers applying for water from such irrigation works are required to incorporate themselves into water-users associations, having an authorized capital equivalent to their debt to the United States government, such capital stock being appurtenant to the land and representing the mortgage placed upon the land to reimburse the government the cost of the irrigation works;

Now, therefore, be it enacted: That water-users associations, incorporated under the terms of the United States reclamation act, approved June 17, 1902, and the regulations of the United States department of the interior, made in pursuance of such Act, organized and carried on for the purpose of enabling citizens and residents of this state to avail themselves of the benefits of said reclamation act, shall not be subject to the laws of this state relating to charter fees and franchise taxes. [Acts 1911, p. 42, sec. 1.]

Art. 5011q. Lease of water rights in Guadalupe river; purposes of lease; supply to consumers; monopoly prohibited; rights of lienholders or purchasers.—The governor, the attorney general and the commissioner of the general land office of the state of Texas, or any two of them, be and are hereby authorized to lease to Cuero Light and Power Company or any other person, firm or corporation upon such terms and for such consideration as they may prescribe for a period not to exceed fifty years, any or all the water rights belonging to the state of Texas in and to the Guadalupe river in DeWitt county; Provided, also that the governor, the attorney general and the commissioner of the general land office, shall lease said water rights to said Cuero Light & Power Company, or to any other parties, at a rate of not less than one-tenth of one per cent annually, upon the gross earnings of said lessees.

Provided, however, that the water rights granted shall be for hydro-electric and power purposes only, and no one person, firm or corporation shall be granted the right to construct a greater number of dams in said river than is sufficient to generate with machinery ordinarily used for such purposes, not exceeding 1800 h.p. measured when the river is at its minimum flow, calculated by the standard method of hydraulic measurement.

Provided, further, that any firm, corporation or person to whom such lease is made shall distribute the power when sold to the public without discrimination, and shall sell the same to consumers in the same class and under like conditions at the same price and upon the same terms.

Provided, however, said leasehold may be sold, but no encumbrance or sale of leasehold which creates a trust or monopoly shall ever be made, nor shall any sale or leasehold ever be made to any trust or monopoly.

Provided, also, that any lien-holder, bond-holder or purchaser shall have no greater rights than the lessee hereunder, and shall be subject to the same liabilities and duties to the State. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 29, sec. 1.]

Art. 5011r. Mode of use; priority of right; compensation to third persons; duties of governor, attorney general and commissioner of the general land office; arbitration.—Said lessee or lessees shall have the right, power, privilege and authority to maintain any dam already in existence and to erect, build, construct, maintain and operate additional dams across the Guadalupe river in DeWitt county, Texas, and to build reservoirs, lakes, locks, abutments and buildings across the Guadalupe river in said county, necessary for the use of the privileges and rights hereby granted them, and any person firm or corporation now owning dams or having acquired property for the purpose of building a dam or dams under this Act, shall have priority over others in making such lease or leases and in the event a lease or leases shall be made to some person, firm or corporation other than one having a dam or dams or having acquired property for the purpose of constructing a dam or dams across said river in said county, then the person, firm or corporation so leasing said water rights and bed of said stream shall under the condition of such lease or leases be required by the governor, attorney general and commissioner of the general land office, or any two of them, to compensate the owner of said dam or dams now constructed, or property now acquired in such amount, and upon such terms as may be fixed by the governor, attorney general and commissioner of the general land office, and if lease or leases are made to others than the owners of the property above described, then the fact of leasing will require party leasing to submit to the arbitration herein provided. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5011s. Right to dam river.—Said lessee shall have the right, power, privilege and authority, in any manner to dam and overflow the Guadalupe river and its tributaries in said county, and in any manner to deepen, lower, drain and excavate said channel to said river, its bed and banks and up said stream as far as the water from said dams may be backed or impounded and to include said Guadalupe river and its tributaries from said point up said stream as far as the water being backed or impounded from said dam shall extend. [Id. sec. 3.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Rights of riparian owners.—The appropriation of water for natural uses, such as for the use of people and cattle, and for household purposes, which must be absolutely supplied, can afford no ground of complaint by the lower proprietors, even if it were entirely consumed. Rhodes v. Whitehead, 27 T. 304, 84 Am. Dec. 631; Baker v. Brown, 55 T. 377.

The owner of a head spring cannot exhaust the water flowing from it for the purpose of irrigation, to the injury of proprietors lower down on the natural channel of the stream. Fleming v. Davis, 37 T. 173. See Tolle v. Correth, 31 T. 362, 98 Am. Dec. 540.

The rights of a riparian proprietor to the use of the water may be restricted or lost by grant or by prescription. Baker v. Brown, 55 T. 377.

Waters of natural streams in the arid districts may be appropriated for irrigation, subject to the right of the lower proprietor to water for drinking, washing, cooking purposes and for his stock. Barrett v. Metcalfe, 12 C. A. 247, 33 S. W. 758; Rhodes v. Whitehead, 27 T. 309, 84 Am. Dec. 631; Tolle v. Correth, 31 T. 363, 98 Am. Dec. 540; Fleming v. Davis, 37 T. 173; Baker v. Brown, 55 T. 377; Ditch Co. v. Hudson, 85 T. 587, 22 S. W. 398.

The rights of an upper riparian proprietor to use the stream for irrigation purposes are superior to those of a lower proprietor. Cornick v. Arthur, 31 C. A. 579, 73 S. W. 410.

An upper owner has no right to convey waters of a stream to nonriparian lands as against a lower riparian owner. Clements v. Watkins Land Co., 36 C. A. 339, 82 S. W. 665.

The doctrine of "reasonable use" of water for irrigation purposes obtains in Texas. Id.

Riparian lands must be both within the limits of the original survey or grant by the government of a stream, and within the watershed of such stream, and actually touch its waters. Id.

A riparian proprietor held not ordinarily entitled to divert water to land lying beyond the watershed of the stream, unless the supply is so abundant that other riparian proprietors will not be deprived of water. Watkins Land Co. v. Clements, 98 T. 578, 86 S. W. 733, 70 L. R. A. 964, 107 Am. St. Rep. 653.

Subject to the right of natural use, each riparian proprietor is entitled to the reasonable use of the waters of a stream for irrigation. Id.

A riparian proprietor cannot sell water to others to irrigate nonriparian lands. Id.

Riparian rights cannot extend beyond the original survey as granted by the government. Id.

A canal forming a deep water connection between a navigable stream and the sea was a practical improvement of the navigation of the stream, to which a riparian owner's right to use the water for irrigation was subservient. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 848, judgment reversed 100 T. 192, 97 S. W. 686, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 656.

Taking of water from stream for irrigation held not within rule giving riparian owners right to use water for ordinary or natural uses. Id.

A riparian owner injured by a pollution of a stream held entitled to maintain an action therefor. Teel v. Rio Bravo Oil Co., 47 C. A. 153, 104 S. W. 420.

In an action by a riparian owner for damages to his cattle by the pollution of a stream, the measure of his damages was the difference in the market value of the cattle and their market value had they not been so damaged. Benjamin v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 49 C. A. 473, 108 S. W. 408.

Where a riparian owner used the water of a stream for his cattle, and had no other water for them to drink, he was not obliged to remove the cattle from the premises to prevent their injury from drinking oil emptied into the stream by another riparian proprietor, unless he could do so at moderate expense, nor was he bound to sell his cattle as soon as he could find a market or at all if he did not wish to. Id.

In an action by a riparian proprietor for damages to his cattle caused by drinking oil emptied into the stream by another proprietor, plaintiff need not show, in order to recover, that the cattle were in a healthy condition prior to the time they drank the oil. Id.

A railroad riparian owner which pollutes the water of a stream and materially injures another riparian proprietor is liable for any injury resulting from its acts. Id.

One may lawfully remove gravel accumulated in the bed of a river, so long as he does not interfere with the rights of other citizens in the gravel. Goar v. City of Rosenberg, 53 C. A. 218, 115 S. W. 653.

Whether a legal right of a riparian owner or one living near a stream has been invaded by the use of another riparian owner is a question of fact depending upon whether such use is reasonable. Boyd v. Schreiner (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 100.

One may leave his hogs on his premises, and recover for the killing thereof, where another negligently allows oil to escape into a stream thereon, by drinking which they are killed. Mexia Light & Power Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 534.

One, negligently allowing oil to escape onto the premises of another, and into a stream thereon, by drinking which hogs kept there are killed, held liable. Id.

The right of a riparian owner to the water of a stream for irrigation purposes held not confined to a use of the water as it flows by, but he may store it in reservoirs for future use, provided this can be done consistently with the rights of the lower owners. Stacy v. Delery, 57 C. A. 242, 122 S. W. 300.

Each riparian owner has for irrigation purposes equal rights in the stream, and the use of each must be reasonable as to the rights of the others. Id.

A purchaser of land bounded on a stream held not required to submit to injurious effects on his land resulting from an obstruction existing at the time of the purchase. Knight v. Durham (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 591.

The canal of an irrigation company which has condemned all the waters of a stream should be treated the same as the stream as affecting the question whether land of a purchaser from the company on the line of the canal is riparian land. McKenzie v. Beason (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 246.

Riparian lands, without reference to location on the stream or to any statutory appropriation, have equal rights to a reasonable use of the water. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

A riparian owner has no right to have any certain amount of water flow on past his land even as against one irrigating nonriparian lands; his right being limited to that needed to irrigate. Biggs v. Lee (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 709.

If the water of a river is sufficient only for the riparian owners, it must be equally divided between them. Id.

The waters of the Pecos river are public property, subject to the easement right of riparian owners to use such water as is reasonably sufficient for domestic and stock raising purposes and for irrigating the riparian lands, and a statutory appropriation of the water in excess of the riparian owners' needs is effective. Id.

A riparian owner was entitled to the amount of water reasonably necessary to irrigate his land after making due allowance for that water which at times, by reason of the small flow, was so charged with mineral substance as to be useless for irrigation. Id.

All land abutting upon a running stream is "riparian" as to that part of the survey which lies within the watershed of the stream. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

The rights of riparian owners to use water of a stream for irrigation are equal as between upper and lower owners; the water being proportioned in accordance with the number of acres of riparian land owned by each. Id.

Rights under grants or conveyances.—Ditches and waters necessary for beneficial use of land conveyed held to pass by the deed as appurtenances. Toyaho Creek Irr. Co. v. Hutchins, 21 C. A. 274, 52 S. W. 101.

A partition deed construed, and held to reserve to the owners of the respective tracts the right to maintain the irrigating ditches and tanks for watering stock, and use the water, as was done before the partition. Stratton v. West, 27 C. A. 525, 66 S. W. 244.

A contract for the construction of a dam and the taking of water from the stream for irrigation purposes held not to create in the grantee an exclusive right to the water impounded by the dam. Metcalf v. Faucher (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1038.

The grantor of an easement for the maintenance of a dam and the taking of water from the stream for irrigation purposes held entitled, also, to similarly use the waters of the stream under an equitable apportionment. Id.

"Appurtenance" defined, and held that grantee of lot with all rights and appurtenances thereto acquired right to use of water main constructed by former owner, but no rights to the main itself. Hunstock v. Limburger (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 327.

Grantee of lot and appurtenances, including right to adequate water supply, held not entitled to moneys received by vendee of former owner from sales of rights to connect with the main where the sale of such rights did not interfere with his adequate water supply. Id.

An instrument whereby one landowner granted another the right to erect a dam and carry water across the first landowner's land held to give the second landowner exclusive right to the water impounded by the dam. Metcalf v. Faucher (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1114.

Ancient Mexican grants of water rights held to grant to each grantee water rights in common. San Juan Ditch Co. v. Cassin (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 815.

Where grantees of water rights have only equal rights in the waters of a stream, each must use the water with a due regard to the rights of the other grantees. Id.

Actions to establish or protect rights.—Consumers of water taken by statutory appropriation from a public stream, who obtained their rights by contract from the appropriating company, have no direct right in the water which makes them necessary parties to an action against the company for an infringement of the right of appropriation of another appropriator, and a right to have them made parties was waived by a failure to object. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

Consumers of a company having a right to appropriate water which has been infringed may be properly made parties to an action against the infringer by allegation and proof that the appropriator had refused to protect its appropriation to their injury. Id.

Contracts to supply water.—By irrigation companies, see notes under Art. 5002b.

The measure of damages in an action by a lessee for failure of the lessor to furnish water to irrigate the land to raise a crop determined. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Langford Bros., 32 C. A. 401, 74 S. W. 926; Dunlap v. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co., 43 C. A. 269, 95 S. W. 43; McFaddin v. Sims, 43 C. A. 598, 97 S. W. 335.

Under a lease requiring the lessor to furnish water for irrigation, and limiting its liability for damages resulting from failure to furnish sufficient water, the limitation of liability held to apply, not only to a failure to furnish sufficient water, but to a failure to furnish any. Moore-Cortes Canal Co. v. Gyle, 36 C. A. 442, 82 S. W. 350.

Provision of a contract of renting of land construed as to duty of landlord to furnish water for irrigation. Duson v. Dodd, 46 C. A. 140, 101 S. W. 1040.

In an action by tenants against their landlords on a contract to furnish water for irrigation, plaintiffs could not recover by proving a contract by which the landlords warranted that an irrigation company would perform its contract with the landlords to furnish such water. Stockton v. Brown (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 423.

In an action for breach of a landlord's agreement to furnish water to irrigate the tenant's crop, evidence that the landlord had no water for that purpose held immaterial. Id.

Damages to a tenant, through injuries to his crop by the landlord's failure to furnish water as agreed, are not objectionable as speculative. Dunbar v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 907.

Where a lease required the landlord to furnish water at prices to be thereafter agreed on, and the price was agreed on for the years 1904 and 1905, the contract for those years was complete. Id.

A landlord held not liable for injuries to a tenant's crop for failure to furnish water, in the absence of an agreement therefor. Id.

A landlord entitled by contract to receive from an irrigation company water for his land may recover the damages incurred by the company's failure to furnish the requisite amount of water, though he received one-half of the crop raised on the land by a tenant. Texas Irr. Co. v. Moore, Bryan & Perry (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 166.

Right to repel surface water.—A landowner who so uses his land as to repel surface water is not liable therefor to an adjoining owner. Barnett v. Matagorda Rice & Irrigation Co., 98 T. 355, 83 S. W. 801, 107 Am. St. Rep. 636.

Damages for rendering water unfit for irrigation.—A canal and dock company, authorized to connect a navigable stream by canal with the gulf, will not be required to construct locks therein at an expense of from $6,000 to $12,000, to prevent the water of the stream from becoming salty by the action of the tides through the canal, and thus destroying the value for irrigation. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 848, judgment reversed, 100 T. 192, 97 S. W. 686, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 656.

In an action for constructing a canal from salt water, thereby rendering the waters of a bayou salty and unfit for irrigation, a charge on proximate cause held proper under the evidence. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 324.

Liability for injury to property.—Construction of railroads, see notes under Art. 6495.

While for tort in so placing irrigation ditches as to injure adjacent land the officer superintending the work would be personally liable, yet in a suit to abate the ditch the irrigating company would be a necessary party. In such action, joined with one for damages against the president alone, it was error to order the removal of the ditch. A chartered company is liable for its torts, and has no more right to commit them than a natural person. An irrigation company is bound to construct its works so as not to trespass upon the rights of adjacent land-owners. Its officers and servants committing such wrong would also be liable for a trespass. Bates v. Van Pelt, 1 C. A. 185, 20 S. W. 949.

An irrigation company, working on the lands of a patron, held not liable to an adjoining landowner for obstructing flow of surface water. Barnett v. Matagorda Rice & Irrigation Co., 98 T. 355, 83 S. W. 801, 107 Am. St. Rep. 636.

A corporation constructing an irrigation canal embankment so as to obstruct natural drainage, and providing an insufficient substitute therefor, held liable for resulting damage from flood. Barstow Irr. Co. v. Black, 39 C. A. 80, 86 S. W. 1036.

Persons whose land was flooded by the obstruction of a natural drain by an irrigation canal embankment held not prevented from recovering damage by their failure sooner to cut the embankment, so as to drain the land. Id.

A corporation which constructed an irrigation canal embankment so as to obstruct the natural drainage from plaintiff's land was not relieved from liability for a resulting flood by the fact that it had employed a competent engineer to superintend the construction of its plant. Id.

In an action for damages by flooding plaintiff's land held that his action was not barred on the theory that he could have prevented the damage by closing the opening in an irrigation ditch on defendant's land. Cody v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1109.

In an action for damages to plaintiff's rice crop owing to an overflow of water from defendant's canal, the measure of damages as to the rice destroyed determined. Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims, 42 C. A. 442, 94 S. W. 365.

In an action against an irrigation company for overflowing crops, held error to exclude evidence as to the heavy expense plaintiff would have incurred in protecting the crops. McLellan v. Brownsville Land & Irrigation Co., 46 C. A. 249, 103 S. W. 206.

Where land is permanently injured by the withdrawal of waters of an artificial lake, the measure of the owner's damages is the difference in value of the land before and after such withdrawal. Fin & Feather Club v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 150.

Where a landowner acquires the right to flood adjoining land, the owner acquires a reciprocal right to have the ordinary height of water maintained. Id.

Pollution of wells.—In a suit to enjoin defendants from locating a cemetery in a certain place, evidence examined, and held to sustain the finding that the establishment and use of the cemetery as proposed would pollute the water used by plaintiffs. Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 453.

The measure of damages for temporary injury to a well on a farm making it unfit for use is the actual damages up to the time of trial by being deprived of its use for domestic or farm purposes. Texas Co. v. Giddings (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1142.

— By oil or gas.—See notes at end of Title 134.

Use of well as affecting rights of adjoining owners.—Railroad's use of a well, constructed on its land and fed by percolating waters, held limited to a reasonable use, in connection with its land as land, as against an adjoining well owner. East v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 646.

Digging and unreasonable use of a well by owner of land thereon and thereby depriving owner of adjacent land of use of a well on his land held not an actionable wrong. Houston & T. Cent. Ry. Co. v. East, 98 T. 146, 81 S. W. 279, 66 L. R. A. 738, 107 Am. St. Rep. 620, 4 Ann. Cas. 827.

Actions for conversion of water—Evidence.—In an action for the alleged conversion of water from a well, evidence examined, and held to show that the well was not on plaintiff's land and that he could not recover. Couch v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 847.

Articles 5012—5107.—Repealed. See Art. 5107—105.

Art. 5107—1. Commissioners' courts authorized to establish irrigation districts; boundaries; petition; notice of hearing, etc.—The county commissioners' court of any county in this state, at any regular or called session thereof, may hereafter establish one or more irrigation districts in their respective counties in the manner hereinafter provided. Said districts may or may not include within their boundaries, villages, towns, and municipal corporations, or any part thereof, but no land shall at the same time be included within the boundaries of more than one irrigation district created under this Act. Such irrigation district, when so established, may make irrigation improvements therein, or may purchase improvements already existing or may purchase improvements and make additional improvements and issue bonds in payment therefor, as hereinafter provided.

Upon the presentation to the county commissioners' court of any county in this state, either at a regular or any called session of said court, of a petition signed by a majority in number of the holders of title or evidence of title to lands situated within the proposed districts and representing a majority in value as indicated by the state and county assessment rolls of all of said lands praying for the establishment of an irrigation district and setting forth the necessity, public utility and feasibility, and setting forth the proposed boundaries thereof and designating a name for such irrigation district, which name shall include the name of the county. The said commissioners' court shall, at the session when said petition is presented, set the same down for hearing at some regular or special session of said court called for the purpose not less than thirty nor more than ninety days from the presentation of said petition, and shall order the clerk of said court to give notice of the date and place of said hearing by posting a copy of said petition and the order of the court thereon in five public places within said proposed district, and one at the county court house door of said county. Said clerk shall receive as compensation for such service one dollar for each notice so posted and five cents per mile for each mile necessarily traveled in posting such notices. Such notices shall be posted for at least twenty days prior to the date of such public hearing. The clerk shall make due return of a true copy of such notice, showing the time when and the places where such notices were posted, and shall file the same in his office and among the papers affecting such district. [Acts 1913, p. 380, sec. 1.]

Art. 5107—2. Who may contest, etc.; jurisdiction, etc.—Upon the day set by said county commissioners' court for the hearing of said petition, any person whose lands would be affected by the creation of said district may appear before said court and contest the creation of such district or contend for the creation thereof, and may offer testimony to show that such district is or is not necessary, and would or would not be of any public utility, and that the creation of such district would or would not be feasible or practicable. Said county commissioners shall have exclusive jurisdiction to hear and determine all contests and objections to the creation of such district and all matters pertaining to the same, except as is hereinafter provided, and may adjourn the hearing of any matter connected herewith from day to day, and all judgments rendered by said court in relation thereto shall be final, except as herein otherwise provided. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5107—3. Court to make findings, etc.—If, at the hearing of such petition, it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court that the organization of such district and the construction or purchase or the construction and purchase of the proposed irrigation plant is feasible and practicable, and that it is needed and would be a public benefit and a benefit to the lands included in the district, then the court shall so find, and cause its findings to be entered of record. But if the court should find that the irrigation of such district is not feasible and practicable and that it would not be a public benefit or is not needed or would not be a public utility, then the court may enter such findings of record and dismiss the petition at the cost of the petitioners. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5107—4. Appeals from order granting or dismissing petition.—If at the hearing provided for in section 3 [Art. 5107—3] of this Act the court shall enter an order granting or dismissing the petition for the organization of said district at the cost of petitioners, then and in that event the petitioners, or any one or more of them, or any one owning lands situated in such proposed district, may appeal from said order to the district court, and in the event of such appeal, said cause shall be tried under the rules prescribed for practice in the district court, and shall be tried de novo and the clerk of the commissioners' court shall transfer to the clerk of the district court within thirty days from the date of notice of appeal, all records filed with the county commissioners' court, and it shall be unnecessary to file any other or additional pleadings in said court. The final judgment on appeal shall be certified to the commissioners' court for their further action. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5107—5. Election to be held, when, etc.—After the hearing of the petition as provided for in section 2 and 3 [Arts. 5107—2, 5107—3] of this Act, if the commissioners' court shall find in favor of the petitioners for the establishment of a district according to the boundaries as set forth in said petition, the county commissioners' court shall order an election to be held within said proposed irrigation district at the earliest possible legal time, at which election there shall be submitted the following propositions: "For the Irrigation District," "Against the Irrigation

District," and the election of five directors and an assessor and collector as is hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5107—6. Notice of election.—After the ordering of the election as provided in the preceding section [Art. 5107—5], notices of such election shall be given stating the time and place or places of holding the election and showing the boundaries of said proposed district, and such notices shall also show the presiding officer or officers appointed for the holding of said election. Such notices shall be posted in four public places in such proposed district, and one shall be posted at the court house door of the county in which such proposed district is situated, shall be posted for twenty days previous to the date of the election, and shall contain the proposition to be voted upon and names of offices to be filled at such election. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5107—7. Election, how conducted; ballots.—The manner of conducting such election shall be governed by the election laws of the state of Texas, except as herein otherwise provided, and at such election none but resident property tax payers, who are qualified voters of said proposed district shall be entitled to vote on any question submitted to the voters thereof at such election. The county commissioners' court shall name a polling place for such election in each voting precinct or part of a voting precinct embraced in said district, and shall also select and appoint two judges, one of whom shall be the presiding judge, and two clerks at each polling place named, and shall provide one and a half times as many ballots for said election as there are qualified resident tax-payer voters within such district, as shown by the tax rolls of said county. Said ballots shall have printed thereon the following: "For the Irrigation District," "Against the Irrigation District," and said ballot shall also contain a space in which to write the name or names of the officer or officers to be selected at such election, and each voter at such election may write or have printed upon said ballot the name of the parties voted for as directors and as assessor and collector, and there shall be no other matter placed upon said ballot. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5107—8. Oath of voter.—Every person who offers to vote in any election held under the provisions of this Act, shall first take the following oath before the presiding judge of the polling place where he offers to vote, and for such purpose the presiding judge is hereby authorized to administer same: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a qualified voter of _____ county, and that I am a resident property tax payer of the proposed irrigation district voted on at this election, and have not voted before in this election." [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5107—9. Return and canvass of votes; directors.—Immediately after the election, the presiding judge at each polling place shall make returns of the result in the same manner as provided for in general elections for the state and county officers and the commissioners' court shall, at a regular session or a special session called for that purpose, canvass such vote, and if it be found that the votes of two-thirds of the resident property taxpayers voting thereon shall have been cast in favor of the irrigation district, then the court shall declare the result of said election in favor of the establishment of said district, and shall enter the same in the minutes of said court, and shall also canvass the vote for directors and assessor and collector, and issue or cause to be issued to the five directors receiving the highest number of votes certificates of their election and to the person receiving the highest number of votes for assessor and collector, a certificate of his election as provided under the general election law. Provided, however that should it be found that two or more persons had received the same number of votes for the fifth position or the position of the fifth director, then the said commissioners' court shall select one of said persons to fill said position. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 5107—10. Orders establishing district; name and number.—If the commissioners' court shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of the establishment of the irrigation district, then said court shall cause to be made and entered in the minutes of said court an order setting forth facts substantially as follows: "In the matter of the petition of _____ and _____ others, praying for the establishment of an irrigation district as in said petition described and designated as _____ County Irrigation District No. ____; Be it known that an election was called for that purpose in said district and held on the _____ day of _____, A. D. 19____, and two-thirds majority of the resident property tax-payers voting thereat voted in favor of the creation of said irrigation district. Now, therefore, it is ordered by the court that said irrigation district be and the same is hereby established under the name of _____ County Irrigation District No. ____, with the following metes and bounds (which field notes shall be copied in the record)."

All irrigation districts hereafter created shall bear the name of the county in which it may be located as a part of its name, and shall be numbered consecutively as created and established under the order of the commissioners' court. Provided, however, that all districts heretofore established and otherwise named shall not be required to change its name, but may do so by filing with the commissioners' court a declaration in writing declaring such intentions, such declaration to be recorded as is hereinafter provided for the record of the order of the commissioners' court establishing irrigation districts, but the numbers assumed thereby shall not conflict with the numbers of irrigation districts hereafter created. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 5107—11. Copy of order to be filed and recorded.—After the making and entering by the commissioners' court of the order establishing irrigation districts as herein provided, the said court shall cause to be made a certified copy of such order, which shall be filed with the county clerk of the county in which such district is situated and shall cause same to be duly recorded in the deed records of said county and properly indexed in the same manner providing for the recording and indexing of deeds, and such recordation shall have the same effect, in so far as notice is concerned, as is provided for the record of deeds and all costs in connection with the making and recording of such copies shall be paid by the district. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 5107—12. Bonds and oaths of directors.—Within ten days after the making and entry of the order of the commissioners' court declaring the result of the election and the establishment of the irrigation district as hereinbefore provided, or as soon thereafter as is practicable, the directors elected at such election shall each make and enter into a good and sufficient bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, each, payable to the irrigation district, conditioned upon the faithful performance of their duties to be approved by the commissioners' court; provided, however, that after the organization of such district, all bonds required to be given by any director, officer or employee of such irrigation district shall be approved by the directors of such districts, and said directors shall take the oath of office prescribed by statute for the commissioners' court, except that the name of the irrigation district shall be substituted for the name of the county in said oath of office; and the bond and oath herein provided for shall be filed with the county clerk of the county within which said district is situated and be by him recorded in the official bond records for said county, and after its record, said bond shall be delivered by the county clerk to the depository selected by such district under the provisions of this Act, and shall be by it safely kept and preserved as part of the records of said district. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 5107—13. President and secretary; quorum.—The directors for such irrigation district shall organize by electing one of their number as president and one as secretary; and any three of whom shall constitute a quorum; and a concurrence of three shall be sufficient in all matters pertaining to the business of their district except the letting of contracts and the drawing of warrants on the depository, which shall require the concurrence of at least four of said directors. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 5107—14. Qualifications of directors.—No person shall be elected a director for any irrigation district created under this Act unless he is a resident of the state of Texas and owns land subject to taxation within said irrigation district, and who, at the time of such election, shall be more than twenty-one years of age. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 5107—15. Assessor and collector; bond, etc.; qualifications; compensation.—The office of assessor and collector herein provided for shall be filled by the same person, and before entering upon his duties as such assessor and collector, he shall qualify by making and entering into a good and sufficient bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as assessor and collector, and for the paying over to the district depository of all sums of money coming into his hands as such collector; provided, however, that the directors shall require additional security in the event in their judgment the same may become necessary; and such assessor and collector shall be a resident of the district, or any town within the general boundaries of the district, and a qualified voter in the county, and shall receive such compensation for his services as may be provided by the board of directors, not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars per annum. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 5107—16. Survey of boundaries, etc.—It shall be the duty of the directors, immediately after they qualify as such, to cause an actual survey of the boundaries of such district to be made according to the boundaries designated in the petition for the establishment of such district, or to adopt in whole or in part such boundaries where already established, and to have said boundary marked by suitable monuments. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 5107—17. Petition for exclusion of lands.—The owner or owners of the fee of any land constituting a portion of any irrigation district may, within thirty days after the election, qualification and organization of the first board of directors for such irrigation district, file with said board a petition praying that such lands may be excluded from and taken out of said district. The petition shall describe the lands which the petitioners desire to have excluded by metes and bounds, and such petition must be acknowledged in the same manner and form as is required in cases of conveyance of real estate. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 5107—18. Notice of hearing, etc.—Upon the filing of a petition for the exclusion of any lands from said district with the board of directors, they shall immediately set said petition down for hearing for a day certain, not to exceed ten days, however, from the date of the filing thereof, and shall cause notice of such hearing to be given by the posting of written or printed notices of the time and place of such hearing at three public places within said district. Such notice shall contain a copy of the petition for exclusion. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 5107—19. Hearing; board of directors to determine whether lands shall be excluded, etc.—The board of directors, at the time and place mentioned in such notice, shall proceed to hear the petition and all objections thereto, and shall determine whether or not said lands, or any portion thereof, shall remain as a portion of such district; and if upon such hearing said directors shall determine that the land desired to be withdrawn from said district or any portion thereof is not susceptible to irrigation from the system proposed to be provided, then such non-irrigable lands shall be excluded therefrom; provided, however, that in the event such petition is not filed within thirty days from the date of the qualification of the first board of directors, then no such petition shall thereafter be filed or considered by such board, and such excluded lands and the owners thereof thereby waive all rights to be served with water from such irrigation system. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 5107—20. Petition for inclusion of lands; survey; lands, when admitted, etc.; application, how executed and recorded.—The owner or owners of the fee to lands contiguous to any irrigation district created under this Act may file with the board of directors of said district a petition in writing, praying that such land be included in such district. The petition shall describe the tract or body of land owned by the petitioners by metes and bounds, and upon the filing of such petition with the board of directors, said board of directors shall cause an accurate survey of the said tract of land to be made and the boundaries thereof marked upon the ground, and said tract of land may be admitted as a part of the irrigation district provided it can be irrigated without prejudice to the rights of any of the lands originally contained therein to be first furnished with an adequate supply of water, and when said lands are so admitted, they shall immediately become subject to their proportionate share of any taxation or bonded indebtedness that may have been created against said district and subject to such reasonable charge against such lands for the purpose of defraying its part of the expense of maintenance, operation or other necessary expenditures previously made as may be determined by the board of directors. If the lands described in said petition are admitted as a part of the district, the application for such admission shall be signed and acknowledged as provided for deeds, and shall be recorded in the deed records of the county in which such district is situated, together with the order of the directors endorsed thereon. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 5107—21. Powers and duties of directors.—The board of directors herein provided for shall have control over and management of all the affairs of such irrigation district, shall make all contracts pertaining thereto, and shall employ all necessary employés for the proper handling and operation of such district, and especially may employ a general manager, attorneys, a bookkeeper, an engineer, water master and such assistants and laborers as may be required, and they may also buy all necessary work animals, motors, pumps, engines, boilers, machinery and supplies as may be required in the erection, operation and repair of the improvements of the district. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 5107—22. Director not to be interested in contract; penalty.—No director of any irrigation district, irrigation engineer or employé thereof shall be directly or indirectly interested either for themselves or as agents for any one else in any contract for the purchase or construction of any work by said irrigation district, and if any such person shall directly or indirectly become interested in any such contract, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine in any sum not to exceed one thousand dollars, or by confinement in the county jail for not less than six months nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 5107—23. Defined districts; powers; judicial notice.—All irrigation districts established under the provisions of this Act are hereby declared to be defined districts within the meaning of section 52, article 3, of the constitution and may, by and through its directors, sue and be sued in any and all courts of this state in the name of such irrigation district, and all courts of this state shall take judicial notice of the establishment of such districts and said districts shall contract and be contracted with in the name of such districts. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 5107—24. Districts may acquire lands, how.—Irrigation districts created under the provisions of this Act are hereby empowered to acquire the necessary right of way for all reservoirs, dams, wells, canals, laterals, sites for pumping plants and all other improvements contemplated by this Act by gift, grant, purchase or condemnation, and it may acquire the title to any and all lands necessary or incident to the successful operation thereof in addition to any of the above in the manner herein provided, except that in no event shall such irrigation district have the right to acquire by condemnation any irrigation system that may be now or may hereafter be built by any individual or corporation authorized to appropriate water and construct irrigation plants under the irrigation laws of this state or any of the rights of such person or corporation appertaining to such system, but any and all such plants and rights may be acquired by contract from the owners thereof in the same manner that any other property may be acquired, and all such irrigation districts shall have full authority and right to acquire water rights and privileges in any way that any individual or corporation may acquire same and to hold the same either by gift, purchase, devise, appropriation or otherwise. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 5107—25. Assessments; duties and powers of assessor and collector; statements and lists; penalties, etc.—Immediately upon the qualification of the assessor and collector, as hereinbefore provided, he shall enter upon the discharge of his duties, and shall at once proceed to make an assessment of all of the taxable property, both real, personal and mixed, in his said district; and such assessment shall be made annually thereafter. Said assessment shall be made upon blanks to be provided by the directors for such district. Said assessment shall consist of a full statement of all property owned by the party rendering same in said district and subject to taxation therein, and shall state the full value thereof. There shall be attached to each such assessment an affidavit made by the owner or his agent rendering said property for taxation to the effect that said assessment or rendition contains a true and complete statement of all property owned by the party for whom said rendition is made in said district and subject to state and county taxation therein; and in addition to all such assessment or renditions made by the owner or agents of such property, the tax assessor shall make out similar lists of all property not rendered for taxation in such districts that is subject to state and county taxation therein. Each and every person, partnership or corporation owning taxable property in such district shall render same for taxation to the assessor when called upon so to do, and if not called upon by the assessor, the owner shall, on or before June first of each year, nevertheless, tender for taxation all property owned by him in the district subject to taxation. And all laws and penal statutes of this state providing for securing the rendition of property for state and county taxes, and providing penalties for the failure to render such properties shall apply to all persons, partnerships or corporations owning or holding property in any irrigation districts. The tax assessor shall have authority to administer oaths to fully carry out the provisions of this section. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 5107—26. Board of equalization; appointment; duties; secretary, etc.—The directors for each irrigation district created under the provisions of this Act shall, at their first meeting, or as soon thereafter as practicable, and annually thereafter, appoint three commissioners, each being a qualified voter and resident property owner of said district, who shall be styled the "Board of Equalization," and at the same meeting the said board of directors shall fix the time for the meeting of such board of equalization for the first year; and said board of equalization shall convene at the time fixed by the directors to receive all assessment lists or books of the assessor for said district for examination, correction, equalization, appraisalment and approval, and at all meetings of said board, the secretary of the board of directors shall act as secretary thereof, and keep a permanent record of all the proceedings of said board of equalization. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 5107—27. Oaths of members.—Before entering upon the duties as such board of equalization, each of the members thereof shall take and prescribe the following oath: “I, _____, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will, to the best of my ability, make a full and complete examination, correction, equalization and appraisal of all property contained within said district, as shown by the assessment lists or books of the assessor for said district,” and said oath shall be spread upon the minutes to be kept by the secretary of said board. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 5107—28. Duties and powers of board of equalization.—The board of equalization herein provided for shall cause the assessor to bring before them, at the time fixed for the convening of said board, all the assessment lists or books of the assessor of said district for their examination, that they may see that each and every person has rendered his property at its full value; and said board shall have power to send for persons and papers, to swear and qualify persons who testify, to ascertain the value of such property, and if they are satisfied it is too high, they shall lower it to its proper value; and if too low, they shall raise the value of such property to a proper figure. Said board shall have power to correct any and all errors that may appear on the assessor's lists or books, and shall have further authority to add any and all property to said lists or inventories that may have been omitted therefrom. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 5107—29. Value, how equalized; complaints.—The board of equalization shall equalize, as near as possible, the value of all of the property situated within said district, having reference to the location of said property and the improvements thereon situated. And any person may file with said board at any time before the final action of said board, a complaint as to the assessment of his or any other person's property, and said board shall hear said complaint, and said complainant shall have the right to have witnesses examined to sustain said complaint as to the assessment of said property, or as to a failure to render any property owned by any person, partnership or corporation situated within said district subject to taxation which has not been properly assessed. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 5107—30. Assessor to furnish lists; board to appraise.—The assessor for such district, at the same time that he delivers to said board his lists and books, shall also furnish to said board a certified list of the names of all persons who either refuse to swear to, or to sign, the oath or affirmation as required by this law, together with the list of the property of such persons situated within said district, as made by him through other information, and said board shall examine the list and appraise the property so listed by the assessor. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 5107—31. Value, when raised; notice to owner.—In all cases where the board of equalization shall find it their duty to raise the value of any property appearing on the lists or books of the assessor, they shall, after having fully examined such lists or books, and corrected all errors appearing therein, adjourn to a day not less than ten nor more than fifteen days from the date of adjournment, such day to be fixed in the order of adjournment, and shall cause the secretary of said board to give written notice to the owner of such property, or to the person rendering same, of the time to which said board may have adjourned, and that such owner or person may at that time appear and show cause why the value of such property should not be raised, which notice may be served by depositing the same, properly addressed and postage paid, in any postoffice within the county. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 5107—32. Hearing; may lower value; approval and return of lists; general rolls and approval of same.—The board of equalization shall meet at the time specified in said order of adjournment and shall hear all persons the value of whose property has been raised; and if said board is satisfied they have raised the value of such property too high, they shall lower the same to its property value; and said board of equalization, after they have finally examined and equalized the value of all the property on the assessor's lists or books, or that may have been placed thereon by said board of equalization, shall approve said lists or books and return them, together with the lists of unrendered property to the assessor that he may make up therefrom his general rolls as required by this Act; and when said general rolls are so made up the board shall immediately reconvene to examine said rolls, and approve the same if found correct, and the action of the board at the meeting last provided for in this article shall be final and shall not be subject to revision by said board or by any other tribunal thereafter. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 5107—33. Compensation of members and secretary.—The members of the board of equalization and the secretary, while acting as secretary of said board, shall each receive such compensation for their services to be allowed by the directors for said district as they may deem just and reasonable, not to exceed, however, the sum of three dollars per day for the time actually engaged in the discharge of such duties. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 5107—34. Assessor and collector to make up assessment; duplicate rolls; records.—After the return to the assessor and collector of the assessment lists and books duly approved by the board of equalization, as hereinbefore provided for, the said assessor and collector shall make up the assessment of all taxable property situated in said district upon duplicate rolls, and after the approval of said rolls by the board of equalization, one of same shall deliver the same to the directors of said irrigation district, to be by them kept as a permanent record in their office, and all lists and books of said assessor shall be caused to be substantially bound and by him kept as a permanent record of his office, and be delivered, together with all other records of his office to his successor, upon his election and qualification, or, in case of a vacancy in such office to the directors for said irrigation district. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 5107—35. Collection of taxes; duties of assessor and collector, etc.—The assessor and collector shall collect all taxes due to said irrigation district, and shall, at the expiration of each week, pay over to the depository selected by said district all moneys by him collected, and shall report to the directors for such irrigation district on the fourth Saturday in every month all moneys so collected by him and paid over to the depository as hereinbefore provided, and shall perform all such other duties, and in such manner and according to such rules and regulations as the board of directors may prescribe, and for the convenience of the persons, firms or corporations owing such tax, shall keep and maintain an office with the board of directors for such irrigation district, where all such taxes may be paid. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 5107—36. Assessor and collector to be charged and credited, etc.; settlement and report.—The assessor and collector shall be charged by the directors for such irrigation district, upon a permanent finance ledger to be kept for said purpose by said district, with the total assessment as shown by the assessment rolls; and proper credit shall be given to the assessor and collector for all sums of money paid over to the depository as shown by his monthly reports as hereinbefore provided for, and upon the final annual settlement, the said assessor and collector shall make up a full, complete report of all taxes that have not been collected, which said report shall be audited by said board of directors, and proper credits given therefor, and such annual settlements shall be made on the first Monday in May of each year. [Id. sec. 36.]

Art. 5107—37. Term of assessor and collector.—The assessor and collector for said district shall hold office for the term of two years, and until his successor has been elected and qualified; provided, that the assessor and collector first elected to said office shall hold office only until the next general election to be held in said district for the election of officers, as provided by this Act. [Id. sec. 37.]

Art. 5107—38. Assessment, when made.—The assessment provided for in this Act shall be made upon all property subject to taxation in said district on the first day of January of each year, and such assessment shall be completed and the lists and books ready to deliver on or before the first day of June of each year. [Id. sec. 38.]

Art. 5107—39. Board of equalization shall convene, when; shall complete, when.—The board of equalization, after the first year, shall convene annually on the first Monday in June of each year to receive all of the assessment lists or books of the assessor of said district for examination, correction, equalization, appraisal and approval, and for the addition thereto of any property found to be unrendered in said district, and shall complete the examination and equalization of said lists and rolls by the second Monday of said year, and shall complete and deliver said rolls to the assessor and collector by the second Monday in July of said year, and the said assessment rolls shall be completed by the assessor and approved by the board of equalization, and returned to said assessor and collector by the first Monday in September of each year after the first assessment as hereinbefore provided. [Id. sec. 39.]

Art. 5107—40. Taxes, when due and payable.—All taxes provided for by this Act shall become due and payable on the first day of October of each year, and shall be paid on or before the 31st day of January thereafter. [Id. sec. 40.]

Art. 5107—41. Property returned delinquent; taxes, when lien, etc.—All lands or other property which have been returned delinquent or which may hereafter be returned delinquent shall be subject to the provisions of this Act, and said taxes shall remain a lien upon said land, although the owner be unknown, or though it be listed in the name of a person not the actual owner, and though the ownership be changed, the land may be sold under the judgment of the court for all taxes, interest, penalty and cost shown to be due by such assessment for any preceding year. [Id. sec. 41.]

Art. 5107—42. Delinquent tax roll.—It shall be the duty of the directors for such irrigation district to cause to be prepared by the tax collector, at the expense of such district, a list of all lands upon which the taxes remain unpaid on the 31st day of January of each year and such list of lands shall be known as a delinquent tax roll, and such delinquent tax roll shall be delivered to the secretary of such district, to be by him safely kept as a part of the record of his office. Such delinquent record shall carry a sufficient description to properly identify the land shown to be delinquent therein. Such description may be made by reference to lot or block number. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 5107—43. Delinquent tax record.—Upon receipt of such delinquent tax roll by the directors of said irrigation district, the said directors shall cause said record to be recorded in a book which shall be labeled "The Delinquent Tax Record of County, Irrigation District No. . ." and shall be accompanied by an index showing the name of delinquents in alphabetical order. [Id. sec. 43.]

Art. 5107—44. Delinquent tax record to be published.—Upon the completion of said delinquent tax record by any irrigation district, it shall be the duties of the directors thereof to cause the same to be published in some newspaper published in the county in which said district is situated for three consecutive weeks, but if no newspaper is published in the county, such list may be published in a newspaper outside of the county to be designated by such directors by a contract duly entered into, and a publisher's fee of not to exceed twenty-five cents for each tract of land so advertised; and said publication and any other publication in a newspaper provided for in this Act may be proven by the affidavit of the proprietor of the newspaper in which the publication was made, his foreman or principal clerk, annexed to a copy of the publication, specifying the time when and the paper in which the publication was made. [Id. sec. 44.]

Art. 5107—45. Suit to collect; petition, etc.—Twenty days after the publication of such notice, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the directors for such irrigation district shall employ an attorney to bring suit in the name of the irrigation district in the district court of said county for the purpose of collecting all taxes, interest, penalty and costs due upon said land. Said petition shall describe all lands upon which taxes and penalties shall remain unpaid and the total amount of taxes and penalties due thereon with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for the sale of said land at the rate of six per cent per annum, and shall pray for a judgment for said amount, and for the fixing, establishing and foreclosing of the lien existing against said land; that said lands be sold to satisfy said judgment for all taxes, interest, penalty and costs, and for such other relief to which such district may be entitled under the law and facts. All suits to enforce the collection of taxes as provided in this Act shall take precedence and have priority over all other suits pending in the district court. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 5107—46. Suit, how conducted; foreclosure; land, when may be sold in subdivisions; disposition of surplus.—The proper persons shall be made parties defendants in all such suits, and shall be served with process and other proceedings due therein as provided by law for suits of like character in the district court of this state, and in case of foreclosure, order of sale shall issue to the lands sold thereunder as in other cases of foreclosure; but if the defendant or his attorney shall, at any time before the sale, file with the sheriff or other officer in whose hands any such order of sale shall be placed a written request that the property described therein shall be divided and sold in less tracts than the whole, together with a description of such subdivision, then such officer shall sell the lands in said subdivision as the defendant may request, provided same are reasonable, and in such case, shall sell only as many subdivisions as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment, interest, penalties and cost, and after the payment of the taxes, interest, penalties and costs adjudged against it, the remainder of the purchase price, if any, shall be paid by the sheriff or other officer executing said order of sale to the defendant or his attorney of record. [Id. sec. 46.]

Art. 5107—47. Tax deeds; effect.—In all cases in which lands may be sold for default in the payment of taxes under the preceding section, it shall be lawful for the sheriff or other officer selling the same, or any of his successors in office, to make a deed or deeds to the purchaser, or to any other person to whom the purchaser may direct the deed to be made, and any such deed shall be held in any court of law or equity in this state to vest a good and perfect title in the purchaser thereof, subject to be impeached only for actual fraud. [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 5107—48. Compensation of attorney; fees of officers.—The attorney representing such district in all suits against delinquent taxpayers that are provided for in this Act shall receive for such services such compensation as may be allowed by the directors for such irrigation district; provided, however, that in no event shall said fees exceed fifteen per cent of the amount of taxes so collected. The sheriffs, district clerks and other officers, executing any writ or performing any service in the foreclosure of delinquent taxes on any lands situated in such irrigated district shall receive the same fees for such services as is provided by statute as fees for like services performed in connection with the discharge of the duty of their respective offices. [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 5107—49. Penalty for failure to pay tax; how enforced, etc.— If any person shall fail or refuse to pay the taxes imposed upon him or his property by this Act, until after the 31st day of January next succeeding the return of the assessment roll for said irrigation district, a penalty of ten per cent on the entire amount of such tax shall accrue, which penalty, when collected, shall be paid over to such district. And the collector of taxes shall by virtue of his tax roll seize and levy upon and sell so much personal property as shall be sufficient to make the amount of such taxes, together with the penalty above provided, interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum and all costs accruing thereon. If no personal property be found for seizure and sale as above provided, the collector shall make up and file with the secretary of the district the delinquent tax list hereinbefore provided for, charging against same all taxes, penalties and interest assessed against the owner thereof. [Id. sec. 49.]

Art. 5107—50. Redemption before sale.—Any delinquent taxpayer whose lands have been returned delinquent, or any one having an interest therein, may redeem the same at any time before his lands are sold under the provisions of this Act, by paying to the collector the taxes due thereon with interest at the rate of six per cent and all costs and the penalty of ten per cent as provided for in this Act. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 5107—51. Engineer; appointment and duties; maps and surveys.—After the establishment of any such irrigation district, and after the qualification of the board of directors, and after the return of the list of assessments of the taxable property situated in such district the board of directors for such district may appoint an engineer, whose duty it shall be to make a complete survey of the lands contained in said district, and to make a map and profile of the several canals, laterals, reservoirs, dams and pumping sites in such district and connected therewith, which shall also show any part of said canals, laterals, reservoirs and dams or pumping sites extending beyond the limits of such district, which said map shall show the name and number of each survey and shall also show the area in number of acres contained in such district. Provided, however, that such engineer may adopt any and all surveys heretofore made by any person, firm or corporation who have applied for or appropriated any water for irrigation under the general laws of this state; and provided, further, that said engineer may adopt all surveys for canals, laterals, reservoirs, dams or pumping sites shown on said maps or plats, or may adopt other maps, plats and surveys of the correctness of which he may be satisfied. [Id. sec. 51.]

Art. 5107—52. Maps and profiles shall show what, etc.—The maps hereinbefore provided for shall show the relation that each canal and lateral bears to each tract of land through which it passes and the shape into which it divides each tract, and how much and what part of each tract can be irrigated therefrom, and where the canal or lateral cuts off any less than twenty acres of land from any tract, the map shall show the number of acres so divided therefrom and the number of acres in the whole tract, showing the shape of such small tract and its relation to the canal or lateral. And such profile map shall also show in detail the number of cubic yards necessary to be moved or excavated in order to make such reservoir, canal or lateral, and shall show in detail the specification for all other works necessary to the construction of all improvements proposed to be made in such district, and give the estimated cost of each, and when said map, profile specifications and estimates shall have been completed by the engineer as herein provided, he shall sign the same in his official capacity and file them with the secretary of said board. Provided, however, that where said district contains any pumping plants, canals, dams, ditches or reservoirs, heretofore created and which is contemplated to be purchased or acquired by said irrigation district, then such map or plat and estimates as hereinbefore provided for shall show such improvements and the price or probable price at which the same may be acquired, and where additional improvements of canals, ditches, laterals, reservoirs or pumping plants are to be constructed, such report shall contain the detailed information with reference to such additional improvements as is provided for in this section. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 5107—53. Election for issuance of bonds, etc.—After the establishment of any such irrigation district and the qualification of the directors thereof, and after the making and filing of such maps, profiles, specifications and estimates as provided for in the preceding section of this Act [Art. 5107—52], and after the making and return of the assessment roll by the assessor and collector for said district as provided for in this Act, the board of directors may order an election to be held within such irrigation district at the earliest possible legal time, at which election there shall be submitted the proposition and none other “For the Issuance of Bonds and Levy of Tax and Payment Therefor,” “Against the Issuance of Bonds and Levy of Tax and Payment Therefor.” [Id. sec. 53.]

Art. 5107—54. Notice of election.—Notice of such election, stating the amount of bonds, which shall not exceed the engineer’s estimate and all necessary incidental expenses and the cost of additional work which may become necessary by any change or modification made by the directors for such irrigation district, stating the time and places of holding the election, shall be given by the secretary of the board of irrigation directors by posting notices thereof in four public places in such irrigation district, and one at the court house door of the county in which such proposed irrigation district is situated. Such notice shall be posted for twenty days previous to the date of the election, and shall contain the proposition to be voted upon as set forth in the preceding section of this Act [Art. 5107—53], together with the engineer’s estimate of the probable cost of construction of the proposed improvement, and estimate of incidental expenses or of the purchase of improvements already existing, or of the purchase of such existing improvements and construction of additions thereto, as the case may be. [Id. sec. 54.]

Art. 5107—55. Election, how conducted, etc.—The manner of conducting such election shall be governed by the election laws of the state of Texas, except as herein otherwise provided. None but resident property taxpayers who are qualified voters of said proposed district shall be entitled to vote at any election on any question submitted to the voters thereof by the directors for such irrigation district at such election. The directors for such irrigation district shall name a polling place for such election in each voting precinct or part of the voting precinct embraced in said irrigation district, and shall also select and appoint two judges, one of whom shall be the presiding judge, and two clerks, for each voting place designated in said order; and shall provide one and one-half times as many ballots for said election as there are qualified resident taxpaying voters within such irrigation district, as shown by the tax rolls of said county. Said ballot shall have written or printed thereon these words and no others: "For the Issuance of Bonds and Levy of Tax in Payment Thereof," and "Against the Issuance of Bonds and Levy of Tax in payment therefor." [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 5107—56. Oath of voter.—Every person who offers to vote in any election held under the provisions of this Act shall first take the following oath before the presiding judge of the polling place where he offers to vote, and the presiding judge is hereby authorized to administer same: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a qualified voter of _____ County Irrigation District No. _____, and that I am a resident property tax-payer of said district, and that I have not voted before at this election." [Id. sec. 56.]

Art. 5107—57. Return and canvass of votes.—Immediately after the election, the presiding judge at each polling place shall make return of the result in the same manner as provided for in general elections for state and county officers, such return to be made to the secretary of such district, who shall keep same in a safe place, and deliver them, together with the returns from the several polling places, to the directors of such irrigation district, who shall, at a regular session, or a special session, called for the purpose of canvassing said vote, at such session canvass the vote, and if it be found that the votes of two-thirds majority of the resident taxpaying voters voting therein shall have been cast in favor of the issuance of the bonds, and levy of tax, then said directors shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of the issuance of the bonds and levy of tax and payment therefor, and shall cause the same to be entered in their minutes. [Id. sec. 57.]

Art. 5107—58. Order for issuance of bonds; limit of amount; additional bonds may be issued, when.—After the canvass of the vote and declaring the result as provided for in the preceding section [Art. 5107—57] the directors for said irrigation district shall make and enter an order directing the issuance of bonds for such district sufficient in amount to pay for such proposed improvements together with all necessary, actual and incidental expense connected therewith; provided, however, that said bonds shall not exceed in amount one-fourth of the actual assessed value of the real property in such district, as shown by the assessment thereof made for the purpose of determining the value thereof, or at the last annual assessment, as provided for in this Act, and not to exceed the amount specified in said order and notice of election. Provided, however, that if, after an election has been held for the issuance of bonds and the tax authorized and levied, and bonds have been authorized to be issued, or have been issued as provided for in this Act, the directors for said irrigation district shall consider it necessary to make any modifications in said irrigation district, or in any of the improvements thereof, or shall determine to purchase or construct any further or additional improvements therein and issue additional bonds upon the report of the engineer made as hereinbefore provided and authorized by this Act, or upon its own motion shall have the right to order a hearing for said purpose, or either or any of them, a notice thereof shall be given as for the original hearing, and if upon such hearing the directors for said irrigation district shall find it necessary to make said additional improvements, or purchase such additional property in order to carry out the purposes for which said district was organized, or to best serve the interest of such district, said finding shall be entered on record, and notice of an election for the issuance of said bonds shall be given, and such election held within such times and the returns of such election made as hereinbefore provided for in cases of original election, and if two-thirds majority of the property taxpaying voters of the district voting thereon vote in favor of additional bond issue and levy of tax and payment therefor, said directors shall declare such result, and enter the same in the minutes of said directors, and order such bonds to be issued as in the manner otherwise provided in this Act. [Id. sec. 58.]

Art. 5107—59. Execution and terms of bonds.—The bonds issued under the provisions of this Act shall be issued in the name of the irrigation district, signed by the president and attested by the secretary, with the seal of said district affixed thereto, and such bonds shall be issued in denominations of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars each, and such bonds shall bear interest at the rate of not to exceed six per cent per annum, payable annually or semi-annually. Such bonds shall by their terms provide the time, place or places, manner and conditions of their payment, and the interest thereon as may be determined and ordered by the directors for such irrigation district, and none of such bonds shall be made payable more than forty years after the date thereof. [Id. sec. 59.]

Art. 5107—60. Suit to contest validity, etc.—No suit shall be permitted to be brought in any court of this state contesting or enjoining the validity of the formation of any irrigation district created under the provisions of this Act, on any bonds issued hereunder, except in the name of the state of Texas by the attorney general, upon his own motion, or upon the motion of any party affected thereby upon good cause shown, except as herein provided. [Id. sec. 60.]

Art. 5107—61. Action to determine validity of bonds before sale; summons; notice to attorney general.—Any irrigation district in this state desiring to issue bonds in accordance with this Act shall, before such bonds are offered for sale, bring an action in the district court in any county of the judicial district in which said irrigation district may be situated, or in the district court of Travis county, to determine the validity of any such bonds. Such action shall be in the nature of a proceeding in rem, and jurisdiction of all parties interested may be had by publication of summons for at least three weeks in some paper of general circulation published in the county where the action is pending, and in the county in which said district is situated. Notice shall also be served upon the attorney general of the state of Texas of the term of court to which said suit is made returnable. Such notice to the attorney general shall contain a copy of all of the proceedings had in the formation of such district, and in connection with the issuance of said bonds. [Id. sec. 61.]

Art. 5107—62. Duty of attorney general; issue, how determined, etc.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general to make a careful examination of all such proceedings and require such further evidence and make such further investigation as may seem to him advisable. He shall then file an answer tendering the issue as to whether or not such district has been legally established and as to whether such bonds are legal and binding obligations upon such district. The issue thus made shall be tried and determined by the court and judgment entered upon such finding. Upon the trial of such cause the court may permit any person having an interest in the issue to be determined, to intervene and participate in the trial of the issues made. All suits brought under the provisions of this Act shall have preference over all other actions in order that a speedy determination as to the matters involved may be reached. [Id. sec. 62.]

Art. 5107—63. Errors in proceedings may be pointed out by court and corrected; judgment after correction.—Upon the trial of the issues made under the preceding section of this Act [Art. 5107—62], if the judgment of the court shall be adverse to the district, then such judgment may be by said district accepted, and the errors pointed out in such proceedings may be corrected, in the manner designated or directed by said court, and when so corrected, the judgment of the dis-strict court shall be rendered showing that said corrections had been made, and that the bonds issued thereunder are binding obligations upon said district. And thereafter the judgment, when so finally made and entered, shall be received as res adjudicata in all cases arising in connection with the collection of said bonds or any interest due thereon, and as to all matters pertaining to the organization and validity of said district. [Id. sec. 63.]

Art. 5107—64. Copy of decree to be filed with comptroller of public accounts; record; evidence.—After the making and entry of the judgment of the district court, as hereinbefore provided, the clerk of said court shall make a certified copy of such decree, which shall be a part of the orders and decrees connected with such election, and said court decree shall be filed with the comptroller of public accounts, and to be by him recorded in a book kept for that purpose, and said certified copy, or a duly certified copy of said record made by the comptroller shall be received in evidence in all litigation thereafter arising which may affect the validity of such bonds, and shall be absolute evidence of such validity. [Id. sec. 64.]

Art. 5107—65. Comptroller to register bonds; certificate.—Upon the presentation of said bonds, together with a certified copy of the decree of the district court, as provided for in the preceding article, the comptroller shall register said bonds, together with a certified copy of the judgment, as herein provided for, in a book to be provided for that purpose, and shall attach to each of said bonds a certificate of the fact that the decree of the district court as required by this Act has been filed with him in his office; such certificate to be signed by him officially, and the seal of his office attached thereto. [Id. sec. 65.]

Art. 5107—66. County clerk to keep record of bonds, etc.; duty of secretary of district; fees.—Before the issuance of any bonds under the provisions of this Act, the county commissioners court in which said district is situated, in whole or in part, shall provide a well bound book in which a record shall be kept by the county clerk of all bonds issued, with their numbers, amount, rate of interest, date of issue, when due, where payable, and the annual rate per cent of tax levy made each year to pay the interest on said bonds, and to provide a sinking fund for their payment, and said book shall at all times be open to the inspection of all parties interested in said district, either as taxpayers or bond holders, and upon the payment of any bond an entry shall be made in said book, showing such payment, and the secretary of such irrigation district shall furnish to the county clerk certified copies of all orders made in connection with the issuance and levy and assessment of taxes for the payment of interest and creating a sinking fund for the final payment of such bonds. The county clerk shall receive for his service in recording all instruments of the irrigation district required to be recorded the same fees as are provided by law for other like service. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 5107—67. Bonds, how sold or disposed of.—After the issuance of said bonds, and after the registration by the comptroller of public accounts for the state of Texas, as provided by this Act, the board of directors for such district shall offer for sale and sell said bonds on the best terms and for the best possible price, but none of said bonds shall be sold for less than the face value thereof and the accrued interest thereon, and as fast as said bonds are sold, all moneys received therefrom shall be immediately paid over by the board of directors to the depository for said district. Provided, however, that the board of directors may exchange bonds for property to be acquired by purchase under contract, or in payment of the contract price for work to be done for the use and benefit of said irrigation district. [Id. sec. 67.]

Art. 5107—68. Construction and maintenance fund; expenses.—All expenses, debts and obligations necessarily incurred in the creation, establishment and maintenance of any irrigation district organized under the provisions of this Act shall be paid out of the construction and maintenance fund of such irrigation district, which fund shall consist of all moneys received by said district from the sale of the bonds of such district, or as hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 68.]

Art. 5107—69. Taxes for interest, sinking fund and expenses.—Whenever any such irrigation district bonds shall have been voted, and before the issuance thereof the directors for such irrigation district shall levy taxes upon all property within said irrigation district, whether real, personal or mixed, and sufficient in amount annually to pay the interest on such bonds, as it shall fall due, together with an additional amount to be annually placed in a sinking fund sufficient to discharge and redeem said bonds at their maturity, and the said directors for such irrigation district may annually levy and cause to be assessed and collected taxes upon all property within said district, whether real, personal or mixed, sufficient in amount to pay for the expenses of assessing and collecting such taxes from year to year until said bonds, together with all interest thereon, are fully paid and discharged. [Id. sec. 69.]

Art. 5107—70. Interest and sinking fund.—There is hereby created what shall be termed the "Interest and Sinking Fund" for such district, and all taxes collected under the provisions of this Act shall be credited to such fund, and shall never be paid out, except for the purpose of satisfying and discharging the interest on said bonds, or for the cancellation and surrender of such bonds and to defray the expense of assessing and collecting such tax, and such fund shall be paid out upon order of the directors for such irrigation district upon warrants drawn therefor, as hereinbefore provided, and at the time of such payment the depository for said district shall receive and cancel any interest coupon so paid or any bond so satisfied or discharged, and when such interest coupon or bond shall be turned over to the directors, the account of such depository shall be credited with the amount thereof, and such bond or interest coupon shall be cancelled and destroyed. [Id. sec. 70.]

Art. 5107—71. Maintenance and operating fund.—There shall also be created a fund to be known as "Maintenance and Operating Fund," and such fund shall consist of all moneys collected by assessment or otherwise for the maintenance and operation of the properties purchased or constructed or otherwise acquired by such district, and out of this fund shall be paid the salaries of all officers other than the assessor and collector, and of all employes of every kind whatsoever, all expenses of operation of every kind, whether the same be for water distribution or for operation of machinery, canals, ditches, laterals or otherwise, such debts to be paid upon a warrant executed as otherwise provided herein. [Id. sec. 71.]

Art. 5107—72. Terms of officers elected.—The term of office of all officers elected for such district shall be for two years, and until their successors are elected and qualified; provided, however, that all officers elected at the first election held under the provisions of this Act shall hold office only until the next regular election to be held in said district for the election of such officer. [Id. sec. 72.]

Art. 5107—73. Annual election for district officers.—There shall be held on the first Thursday in January, 1914, and every two years thereafter, a general election, at which time there shall be elected five directors for such district, and one assessor and collector, who shall be the elective officers for such district. [Id. sec. 73.]

Art. 5107—74. Other employees.—All other persons employed or representing said district shall be employed by the board of directors for such time and under such terms and conditions as said board of directors shall deem best for the interest of said district; provided, however, that no contract shall ever be made with any person or employee for a longer period of time, at any one time, than one year, and the salaries of all such employes, or the compensation to be received by them, shall be fixed by the Board of Directors at the time of the employment. [Id. sec. 74.]

Art. 5107—75. Vacancies in office of assessor and collector.—The directors for any irrigation district created under this Act shall have authority to fill all vacancies in the office of assessor and collector by appointment, and the party so appointed shall hold his office until the next regular election and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 75.]

Art. 5107—76. Vacancies in office of director, etc.—All vacancies in the office of director for such irrigation districts shall be filled by the board of directors by appointment, and the director so appointed shall hold office until the next regular election, and until his successor has been elected and qualified. Provided, however, that where the number of directors shall have been reduced by the death or resignation or from other cause to less than three, then such vacancies shall be filled by a special election to be ordered by the president of said board of directors, or by any two members of said board, said election to be ordered and held after the giving of notice for the election of said officers as provided for the holding of general elections; and further provided, that if said president or two of the directors shall fail or refuse to order such election, then said election may be ordered by the district judge of any judicial district in which said irrigation district may be situated upon a petition signed by any five parties interested in the election of said directors, whether said interested parties be taxpayers or bondholders; and when so ordered, notices shall be given of said election, and such election held in the manner provided for the holding of general elections, and the directors elected at such election shall hold their office until the next general election, and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified. In the event that less than a quorum exists to approve the bonds of such elected directors, then such bonds shall be approved by the county commissioners' court in which such directors reside. [Id. sec. 76.]

Art. 5107—77. Compensation of directors.—The directors provided for by this Act shall receive as compensation for their services the sum of five dollars per day for each and every day necessarily taken in the discharge of their duties as such directors, and said directors shall file with the secretary for such district a statement verified by their affidavit of the number of days actually taken by them in the service of said district, said statement to be filed on the last Saturday in each month, or as nearly thereafter as practicable, and before a warrant shall issue for the payment of such services. [Id. sec. 77.]

Art. 5107—78. Eminent domain.—The right of eminent domain is hereby conferred upon all irrigation districts established under the provisions of this Act for the purpose of condemning and acquiring the right-of-way over and through all lands, private and public, except as hereinafter indicated, necessary for making reservoirs, canals, laterals and for pumping sites, drainage ditches, levees and all other improvements necessary and proper for such districts, and the authority hereby conferred shall authorize and empower such irrigation districts to condemn all lands, private and public, for the purpose herein indicated beyond the boundary of such irrigation districts and in any county within the state of Texas; the right of eminent domain shall not extend to land used for cemetery purposes, nor to property owned by any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, and used for the purpose of supplying water under the laws of this state and necessary for the making of reservoirs, canals, laterals, pumping sites, levee and drainage ditches, or other appurtenant works by such owner. All such condemnation proceedings shall be under the direction of the directors and in the name of the irrigation district, and the assessing of damages and all procedure with reference to condemnation, appeal and payment, shall be in conformity with the statutes of the state for condemning and acquiring right-of-way by railroad companies, and all such compensation and damages adjudicated in such condemnation proceedings shall be paid out of the construction and maintenance fund of said district. [Id. sec. 78.]

Art. 5107—79. District, when and how dissolved; debts, how collected, etc.—In the event that any irrigation district heretofore established shall not within two years after the taking effect of this Act, or any irrigation district which may hereafter be established, shall not within two years after the conclusion of the organization of such district, begin to acquire the necessary canals, ditches, flumes, laterals, reservoirs, sites, dam-sites, pump plants, and all other things necessary to the successful operation of an irrigation district, by lease, purchase or construction, and diligently pursue the purposes for which said district was created, then and in that event said district shall be dissolved without the necessity of taking any action in connection therewith, and any party having interest therein, or to whom any debt may be due and owing by said district, may collect such debt in the manner provided by law for the collection of any debt due by any person, association of persons, or corporations, and such debt shall be a lien upon the property of such district when established by any court of competent jurisdiction, and the judgment of said court shall provide for the enforcement and payment of such debt and judgment, in the same manner as judgments for a debt against cities or towns that have been dissolved, may be enforced; and provided further that any district heretofore organized, or hereafter organized under the provisions of this Act, may voluntarily dissolve by the same vote and in the same manner provided herein for the organization of districts; but provided further that no dissolution shall be had until all debts and obligations have been fully paid and discharged. [Id. sec. 79.]

Art. 5107—80. Districts in two or more counties; how established, etc.—Where any irrigation district proposed to be established lies partly within two or more counties, the petition provided for in this Act shall be presented to the county commissioners' court of each county in which a portion of said district shall lie, and all notices provided for in this Act to be given in the formation of an irrigation district shall be given in each and every county in which any portion of said territory proposed to be included in such district shall lie. The elections herein provided for, for the establishment of an irrigation district, shall be ordered as herein provided by the county commissioners' court of each county in which any portion of said district may lie, for the portion of said district lying in said county. The election returns in such county shall be made to the commissioners' court, and the said commissioners' court shall appoint all necessary officers, furnish all necessary supplies and give all necessary notices as herein provided in the same manner as if the territory lying in said county was in itself to be incorporated in an irrigation district. The said election shall be held in each county in the portion of the district therein situated and the return of such election shall be made to the county commissioners' court or any other officer authorized to receive same, and shall be by them duly canvassed and the result duly declared.

After canvassing, determining and declaring the result of said election, the county judge or presiding officer of the commissioners' court shall certify and report the result of said election to the county judge of the county in which the largest portion of any such district is situated and said county judge shall canvass said vote and declare the result thereof, and if it be determined that at least two-thirds of the property tax-payers voting thereon in said entire district have voted in favor of the creation of said irrigation district, the said county judge shall declare the result thereof in the manner herein provided. Said county judge shall make and publish the order provided for in this Act, relating to districts wholly within one county and shall cause copies of such order to be filed with the county clerk of each county in which any portion of said district may lie which shall be held to be a proclamation of the result of said election. The board of directors elected for such district shall meet and qualify and shall have charge of the affairs of the district in the same manner as herein above provided for districts lying wholly within one county. The bonds of such directors shall be approved by the commissioners' court of the county in which they reside, a copy of the order approving the bond or bonds shall be filed with the county clerk of the county in which such district is situated, who shall cause same to be duly recorded in the deed records of said county and properly indexed in the same manner provided for the recording and indexing of deeds. [Id. sec. 80.]

Art. 5107—81. Official bonds and oaths.—Where a district lies in two or more counties, the officers of such district shall furnish bonds and take the oath of office and qualify before the commissioners' court of the county in which the portion of the district lies in which they reside or in which their property is situated. [Id. sec. 81.]

Art. 5107—82. Petition for district in two or more counties, how heard; appeal from dismissal, etc.—When a petition asking for the establishment of an irrigation district is filed in two or more counties, the commissioners' court of each county shall proceed to hear and determine the matters therein set forth with reference to the territory within their said county in the same manner as provided herein for territory wholly within one county, and in the event any one or more commissioners' courts in which any part of said district is situated shall dismiss the petition and find against the petitioners, then the said petitioners or any part of them may appeal from the decision of such court to the district court, in which event they shall file notices of appeal with the commissioners' court of each county in which said petition has been acted upon and the clerk of each said court shall transmit all original papers and a true copy of all orders made by each said courts to the court to which said appeal is taken and the said court shall hear and determine said matter by consolidating said causes. The appeal herein provided for shall be taken in the same manner as provided in section 4 [Art. 5107—4] of this Act, and the district court of any county in which any portion of said irrigation district is situated shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine said appeal and said cause shall be tried in said court as provided for the trial and appeal of any civil action, except that no formal pleadings shall be required other than the notices of appeal herein provided for. [Id. sec. 82.]

Art. 5107—83. Lands in adjoining county may be included, how, etc.—Wherever an irrigation district has been formed under this Act lying wholly within one county, and it is to the advantage of such district and of land owners lying in the adjoining county or counties to have such adjoining lands added to or included in such established irrigation district, then same may be so included in or added to the territory already included in such established irrigation district in the following manner: The owners of the fee shall make application to the directors of the established district to which they desire to be annexed, which application shall be in writing, and shall describe the lands covered by the application by metes and bounds and same shall be acknowledged in the same manner and form as now required for the acknowledgment of deeds, and if said land is a homestead or the separate property of a married woman, it shall be acknowledged by both husband and wife. The directors of the irrigation district shall set said petition or application down for hearing on some certain date and shall give notice of such hearing in the same manner as provided in section 1 [Art. 5107—1] of this Act and shall consider same in the same manner as provided for the consideration of petitions by the county commissioners' court as set out and provided in sections 2 and 3 [Arts 5107—2, 5107—3] of this Act, and in the event that they shall find and determine that it is for the advantage of such established district and for the advantage of the lands sought to be added thereto, to so include said lands in said district, then they shall so find and enter said finding of record in the minutes of said directors, and they shall thereupon order an election to be held in said established district to determine whether or not said additional territory shall be permitted to be added thereto, which election shall be held after thirty days' notice, which notice shall be given by posting copies of such notice in five public places in said district for at least twenty days next preceding the day of election, and if there be a newspaper published in said district, by publishing such notice for at least once a week for three weeks next preceding the day of said election. The said notice shall be given by the irrigation directors, which said directors shall furnish all necessary supplies for said election and shall appoint two judges and two clerks for all polling places in said district to conduct said election and make return thereof, when officers shall take the oath of office prescribed by the general election laws of the state, and they shall make returns of said election to the irrigation directors of the district, but in all other things said election shall be held in conformity with the general election laws of the state. At such election there shall be submitted the question, and none other, "Shall the proposed territory be added to the district?" and there shall follow said sentence the word "yes" and just below the word "no."

If two-third majority of the resident property tax payers of said district vote yes, then the said territory may be added and become a part of said district in the same manner as if originally incorporated therein and subject to all laws governing said district; provided that the directors of said district may require the owners of said lands to pay into the interest and sinking fund of said district their proper pro rata part of charges theretofore made against the lands in said district to pay interest and sinking fund upon bonds of said district. If the application or petition for the addition of lands to the district as herein provided for shall cover a number of different tracts of land, or if there be included in the territory so described in said application or petition property tax payers other than those signing and acknowledging such application, or if there be included in such territory as many as ten property tax paying voters, then, at the same time the election above provided for is held in said established district, there shall also be held and conducted under the same rules and regulations as above provided for elections within such established territory, an election in such territory that is proposed to be added except that the notice of election shall include a full description by metes and bounds of the territory included within such proposed addition. The ballot for such election shall have printed thereon "for addition to irrigation district" and "against addition to irrigation district," but shall not contain any other matter whatever. In the event that two-thirds majority of the resident property tax paying voters voting thereon at said election vote in favor of the addition of such territory, then same may be added to such irrigation district by a proper order of the irrigation commissioners entered upon the minutes of such irrigation district, said order to be made within twenty days after the holding of such election, and said territory so added shall thereafter be and become an integral part of said district subject to all laws governing said district as completely and as fully as if same had been included in the district in its original formation; provided, however, that no water shall be furnished for irrigation of land included within said district until the owners and holders thereof shall have fully paid the charges fixed against such land by the directors as a condition to their admission into the district as provided for in this Act. Such additions to such irrigation district shall not in any manner affect the officers, employes and affairs of such district, but the voters of such added territory shall have a right to participate in all matters of the district considered or voted upon thereafter. [Id. sec. 83.]

Art. 5107—84. Directors and officers may enter lands, etc.; preventing entry misdemeanor.—The irrigation directors of any district and the engineer and employes thereof are hereby authorized to go upon any lands lying within said district, for the purpose of examining same, locating reservoirs, canals, dams, pumping plants and all other improvements, to make maps and profiles thereof; and are hereby authorized to go upon the lands beyond the boundaries of such districts in any county for the purposes stated, and for any other purposes necessarily connected therewith, whether herein enumerated or not. And any person who shall wilfully prevent or prohibit any such officers or employes from entering any lands for such purposes shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars for each day he shall so prevent or hinder such officer or employe from entering upon any lands. [Id. sec. 84.]

Art. 5107—85. Contracts, how let; notice.—Contracts for making and constructing reservoirs, dams, canals, laterals, pumping plants, check gates, sluice gates, and all improvements whatsoever of said irrigation district shall be made by the irrigation directors, to the lowest responsible bidder, after giving notice by advertising same in one or more newspaper of general circulation in the state of Texas, and in one newspaper published in the county, if there be one in the county, and one newspaper in such irrigation district if there be one in the irrigation district, which notice shall be published once a week for four consecutive weeks; and also by posting notices for at least twenty days in five public places in the irrigation district, and one at the court house door of the county or counties in which such district is situated. [Id. sec. 85.]

Art. 5107—86. Bidders to receive copies of reports and profiles; bids, how made, etc.—Any person, corporation or firm, desiring to bid on the construction of any work advertised as provided for herein, shall upon application to the irrigation directors be furnished with a copy of the engineer's report, and profile, showing the work to be done, provided the irrigation directors may charge therefor the actual cost of having such report and profiles made and furnished. All bids or offers to do any such work shall be in writing, and sealed and delivered to the president or secretary of the irrigation directors, together with a certified check for at least five per cent of the total amount bid, which said amount shall be forfeited to the district in the event the bidder refused to enter into a proper contract for his bid as accepted. Any or all bids may be rejected in the judgment of the directors. All bids shall be opened at the same time. [Id. sec. 86.]

Art. 5107—87. Contracts to conform to act, etc.; how executed, filed and recorded.—All contracts made by the irrigation district shall be in conformity with and subject to the provisions of this Act, and the provisions of this Act shall be a part of all contracts in so far as applicable to either the contractor or the district, and the provisions of this Act shall govern whenever the contract is in conflict herewith. The contracts shall be reduced to writing and signed by the contractors and irrigation directors, and a copy of same so executed shall be filed with the county clerk of the county or counties in which said district is situated, which said copy so filed with said county clerk shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose, and be subject to public inspection. [Id. sec. 87.]

Art. 5107—88. Contractors' bonds.—The person, firm or corporation to whom such contract is let shall give bond payable to the irrigation district in such amount as the directors may determine not to exceed the contract price, conditioned that he, they or it, will faithfully perform the obligations, agreements and covenants of such contract, and that in default thereof they will pay to said district all damage sustained by reason thereof. Such bond shall be approved by the irrigation directors, and shall be deposited with the depository of the district, a true copy thereof being retained in the office of such directors. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 5107—89. Contracts to contain specifications; supervision; reports of engineer; bridges and culverts across railroads.—All such contracts shall contain a full statement of the specifications for all the work included in the contract, and all such work shall be done in accordance with the specifications under the supervision of the irrigation directors and the irrigation district engineer. As the work progresses the engineer of such district will make full reports to the irrigation directors, showing in detail whether the contract is being complied with or not in the construction and when the work is completed the engineer shall make a detailed report of same to the irrigation directors, showing whether or not the contract has been fully complied with according to its terms, and if not in what particular it has not been so complied with. The irrigation directors, however, will not be bound by such report, but may in addition thereto fully investigate such work and determine whether or not such contract has been complied with. The irrigation district is hereby authorized and empowered to make all necessary bridges and culverts across or under any railroad track and roadway of such railway to enable them to construct and maintain any canal, lateral or ditch necessary to be constructed as a part of the improvements of such district. Such bridges or culverts shall be paid for by the irrigation district; provided, however, that notice shall first be given by such irrigation district directors by delivering a written notice to any local agent, division superintendent, or roadmaster of such railway, and the railway company shall be allowed thirty days to build such bridges or culverts at their own expense, if they should desire to do so, and according to their own plans; provided, such canal, culvert or ditch shall be constructed of sufficient size not to interfere with the free and unobstructed flow of water passing through the canal or ditch, and shall be placed at such points as are designated by the irrigation district engineer, or directors. [Id. sec. 89.]

Art. 5107—90. Bridges and culverts across canals, etc.—Irrigation districts are hereby authorized and required to build all necessary bridges and culverts across and over all canals, laterals and ditches made and constructed by such district, whenever the same crosses a county or public road, and shall pay for the same out of the funds of such district. [Id. sec. 90.]

Art. 5107—91. Surplus moneys, how used.—After the full and final completion of all the improvements of such district as herein provided for, and after the payment of all the expenses incurred under the provisions of this Act, the irrigation directors are authorized to use the re-maintaining funds of the irrigation district for the best interests of such district in preservation, up-keep and repair of the works of such district; provided, however, such additional expenditures shall in no event exceed the amount of surplus money, or bonds to the credit of such district, except as herein otherwise provided. [Id. sec. 91.]

Art. 5107—92. Duties of directors; inspection; payment of contract price; contracts with partial payments.—The irrigation directors shall have the right, and it is hereby made their duty, at all times during the progress of the work being done under any contract, to inspect the same; and upon the completion of any contract in accordance with its terms, they shall draw a warrant on the depository of the district for the amount of the contract price in favor of the contractor, or his assignee; and if the irrigation directors shall deem it advisable in order to obtain more favorable contracts, they may advertise a contract to be paid for in partial payments as the work progresses, and such partial payments shall not exceed in the aggregate seventy-five per cent of the amount of work done, the said amount of work completed to be shown by certified report of the engineer of the district. [Id. sec. 92.]

Art. 5107—93. Directors to make semi-annual reports.—The irrigation directors shall make a semi-annual report on the first days of July and December of each year, showing in detail, the kind, character and amount of work done in the district, the cost of same, the amount of each warrant drawn, and to whom paid, and for what purpose paid, and other data necessary to show the condition of improvements made under the provisions of this Act, and each report shall be verified by them, a copy of which shall be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county or counties in which such district is situated, and shall be open to public inspection. [Id. sec. 93.]

Art. 5107—94. District acquiring established system to continue to supply water, etc.—When an irrigation district acquires an established irrigation system which has supplied water to lot owners in a city, town or village and such city, town or village is not included in such district, such district shall continue to supply water to such lot owners for a reasonable annual rental. [Id. sec. 94.]

Art. 5107—95. Persons desiring to receive water to furnish statements; directors to estimate expense; expense, how paid; assessments; contracts with users; directors may borrow money; liens; interest; list of delinquents; sale or lease of water right by directors.—Between the first day of January and the first day of March of each year, every person desiring to receive water during the course of the year, or at any time during the year from the irrigation district, shall furnish to the secretary of the board of directors a specific statement of the acreage intended by him to be put under irrigation and for which water is to be used, and as near as may be a statement of the different crops to be planted by him, and the acreage of each. If such statements should not be furnished within this time, there shall be no obligation on the part of the irrigation district to furnish such water to such person for that year. On the first day of March of each year, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the board of directors shall carefully estimate the expense to be incurred during the course of the next succeeding twelve months for the maintenance of the irrigation system and its operation. One third of the amount so estimated shall be paid by the assessments against all irrigable lands within the district, pro rata per acre, that is to say, against all lands to which the district is in condition to furnish water, but without reference as to whether such land is to be actually irrigated or not; the other two-thirds of the expense of maintaining and operating the plant shall be paid by the persons taking water under the system. This amount shall, as nearly as may be, equitably pro rated among the water takers, and in making such assessments the board of directors may take into consideration the acreage to be planted by each water taker, and the crop to be grown by him; provided, however, that each water user shall be charged the same price per acre for use of water upon the same class or character of crops. All assessments shall be paid in three installments, the first of which shall be for one-fourth of the total assessment, and shall be payable on April first of each year; the second installment shall be for one-fourth of such assessment and shall be payable on the first day of July of each year; the balance of the assessment shall be payable on or before December first of each year. And if the crop for which such water was furnished shall be harvested prior to the time of the payment of any installment the entire assessment shall become due and shall be paid within ten days after the harvesting of such crop, and before the removal of such crop from the county or counties in which the district is situated. The board of directors may, at their discretion, require every person desiring water during the course of the year to enter into a contract with the irrigation district, which contract shall indicate the acreage to be watered, the crops to be planted, and the amount to become due, and the terms of payment; and it may be further required that the water taker shall execute a negotiable note or notes for such amounts, or for parts thereof. The making of such contracts shall not constitute a waiver of the lien given by this Act upon the crops of the water taker for the service furnished to him. If the water taker shall water more land than is called for in his contract, he shall pay for the additional service rendered as and at the times hereinbefore indicated. To secure money for the operating and maintenance expense of the district, the board of directors shall have authority to borrow money with interest not exceeding ten per cent per annum, and may hypothecate any of its notes or contracts with water takers or accounts against them. The irrigation district shall have a first lien superior to all other liens upon all crops of whatsoever kind grown upon each tract of land in the district to secure the payment of the assessment herein provided for, and all such assessments shall bear interest from the time due and payable at the rate of ten per cent per annum. All land owners shall be personally liable for all assessments herein provided for, and if they shall fail or refuse to pay same when due, the water supply shall be cut off and no water shall be furnished to the land until all back dues are fully paid. This provision shall bind all parties persons and corporations owning or thereafter acquiring any interest in said lands. The directors of all irrigation districts shall, within ten days after any assessment is due, post at a public place in said district a list of all delinquents and shall thereafter keep posted a correct list of all such delinquents; provided, however, that if the parties owning such assessments shall have executed notes and contracts as hereinbefore provided, they shall not be placed upon such delinquent list until after the maturity of such notes and contracts. In the event said board of directors in the utilization of the water shall sell or lease any water right for any other purpose than irrigation, said contract shall be so conditioned and restricted as to be subservient to the use of the water for irrigation. [Id. sec. 95.]

Art. 5107—96. When assessments are more than sufficient, or are insufficient; notice of additional assessments.—In the event the assessments made as provided for in the preceding section [Art. 5107—95] should be more than sufficient to meet the necessary obligations of the district, the balance shall be carried over to the next season; and in the event the assessments made are not sufficient to meet the necessary expenses of such district, the balance unpaid shall be assessed, pro rata, in accordance with the assessments previously made for the then current year, and shall be paid under the same conditions and penalties within ninety days from the time such assessment is made. Public notice of all such assessments shall be given by posting printed notices thereof in at least three public places in the irrigation district, and printed notices shall be mailed to each land owner; provided, however, each land owner shall furnish to the board of directors his correct post office address. Such notice shall be given by posting and mailing such notice five days before the assessment is due, and in the event of special assessments such notice shall be given within five days after such assessments are levied. [Id. sec. 96.]

Art. 5107—97. Irrigation district may purchase system of drainage district.—Included in the plans of any irrigation district may be the necessary drainage ditches, or other facilities for drainage, and necessary levees for the protection of land under the system; and every irrigation district may purchase the system or any part of any system belonging to a drainage district. The purchase, however, shall provide for the payment of the debts of the drainage district or the assumption of such debts, and the amount of such debts paid or assumed is to be considered in determining the bond issuing capacity of the irrigation district. [Id. sec. 97.]

Art. 5107—98. Assessments for operation and maintenance, how collected; bond and duties of collector.—All assessments for operation and maintenance expenses made under the provisions of this Act shall be collected under the direction of the irrigation directors, by an officer designated by them, which said officer shall give bond in such sum as they may direct conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties and accounting for all moneys collected. He shall keep a true account of all money collected, and deposit the same as collected in the district depository, and shall file with the secretary of the directors a true statement of all money collected once each week. The collector shall use a duplicate receipt book, and shall give a true receipt for each collection made, retaining in such book a true copy thereof, which shall be preserved as a record of the district. [Id. sec. 98.]

Art. 5107—99. Accounts and records of district.—The directors of an irrigation district shall keep a true account of all their meetings and proceedings, and shall preserve all contracts, records of notices, duplicate vouchers, duplicate receipts, and all accounts and records of whatsoever kind, in a fire-proof vault or safe, and the same shall be the property of the district and shall be delivered to their successors in office. [Id. sec. 99.]

Art. 5107—100. District depositories.—The directors of such irrigation district shall select a depository for such district under the same provisions as are now provided for the selection of depositories for the counties in this state; and the duties of such depositories shall be the same as now prescribed by law for county depositories. However, in the selection of depositories, the directors of such irrigation districts shall act in the same capacity and perform the same duties as is incumbent upon the county judge and members of the commissioners' court in the selection of county depositories; and all laws now in force or hereafter to be enacted for the government of county depositories shall apply to and become a part of this Act. [Id. sec. 100.]

Art. 5107—101. Monthly reports of depositories, etc.—The irrigation district depository shall make a report of all moneys received, and of all moneys paid out, at the end of each month, and file such reports with such vouchers among the records of said district in its own vault, and shall furnish a true copy thereof to the irrigation directors, and shall when called upon allow same to be inspected by any taxpayer or resident of such irrigation district. Such records shall be preserved as the property of such district, and shall be delivered to the successor of such depository. [Id. sec. 101.]

Art. 5107—102. Directors to maintain office; meetings.—The directors of each irrigation district shall have and maintain a regular office suitable for conducting the affairs of such district, within such irrigation district, or within a town situated within the general boundary lines of such irrigation district, and not removed therefrom. And such directors shall hold regular meetings at said office on the first Monday in February, May, August and November of each year, at ten o'clock a. m., and shall hold such other regular and special meetings as they may see fit. And any resident tax payer or interested party may attend any such meeting of such directors, but shall not participate in any such meetings without the consent of the directors, and shall have no authority to vote upon any matter considered by such directors, but may present such matters as they desire to such directors in an orderly manner. [Id. sec. 102.]

Art. 5107—103. Surety company bonds.—All officers and employes of an irrigation district, who may be required to give bond or security may furnish bonds of surety companies to the approval of the directors; provided, however, whenever such a surety company bond is furnished by any such officer or employe, the surety company furnishing same shall file for record in the office of the county clerk where such irrigation district is situated a duly executed power of attorney, showing the authority of the person signing such bond for said company, to so sign same, and said power of attorney shall be duly executed by the officers of said company, and have attached the company seal; and such power of attorney shall remain on file in said office. All such official bonds shall be deposited with the district depository and be preserved by it as the property of said district. [Id. sec. 103.]

Art. 5107—104. Meetings, where held; vouchers; accounts, etc.—All meetings of the irrigation directors shall be held at the regular office of the district. All vouchers issued for the payment of any funds of the district shall be signed by at least four directors and shall refer to the book and page of the minutes allowing such account. All vouchers shall be issued from a regular duplicate book retaining a duplicate which shall be preserved. The directors shall have kept a complete book of accounts for such district, and shall, on June first of each year select a competent auditor who shall examine the accounts, books and reports of the depository, the assessor and collector and the directors, and make a full report thereon a copy of which shall be filed with the depository and a copy with the directors and one with the county clerk of the county or counties in which such district is situated. Such report shall be filed by September 1st of each year. [Id. sec. 104.]

Art. 5107—105. Laws repealed; districts organized under prior law.—The act of the twenty-ninth legislature, being chapter 50 of the Acts of 1905, and being articles 5012 to 5107 inclusive of chapter 3, title 73 of the Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas is hereby repealed. All irrigation districts heretofore organized under the terms and in accordance with the provisions of the said Act, are hereby expressly declared to be validly created, organized, described and defined, with boundaries as prescribed by the order of the commissioners' court organizing the same, or as the same have since been changed by the board of directors thereof, in the manner provided in the said Act. Such districts, however, shall hereafter be governed by the provisions of this Act; provided, however, that the duly constituted and qualified officers of such district shall continue to perform the duties of such officers until the next general election held under the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 105.]

JAILS

Art. 5108. Commissioners' court to provide. 5109. Sheriff keeper, etc. 5110. Shall be constructed to enable executions to be had in death penalty.	Art. 5111. Commissioners to see that jails are properly kept. 5112. United States marshal may use jails. 5113. Marshal liable for fees.
---	--

Article 5108. [3132] Commissioners' court shall provide jails, etc.—The commissioners' courts of the several counties shall provide safe and suitable jails for their respective counties, and shall cause the same to be kept in good repair. [Act July 22, 1876, p. 57, sec. 4.]

Art. 5109. [3133] Sheriffs the keepers of jails, etc.—Each sheriff is the keeper of the jail of his county; and he shall safely keep therein all prisoners committed thereto by lawful authority, subject to the order of the proper court, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such prisoners. [Act Aug. 26, 1856; May 12, 1846. P. D. 2504, 5718. C. C. P. 49.]

Art. 5110. [3134] Jails shall be so constructed that the penalty of death may be executed within the walls thereof.—All jails hereafter erected shall be so constructed that the penalty of death may be conveniently executed within the walls thereof; and it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of any county having a jail already erected, if the same is not so constructed as that the penalty of death can be conveniently executed therein, to have the construction of the same so altered as that the penalty of death may be conveniently executed within its walls, if practicable to do so without too great an expense to the county.

Art. 5111. [3135] Duty of commissioners' courts to see that jails are properly kept.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' courts of the counties to see that the jails of their respective counties are kept in a clean and healthy condition, properly ventilated, and not over-crowded with prisoners, and that they are furnished with clean and comfortable mattresses and blankets sufficient for the comfort of the prisoners therein confined.

Appointment of physician.—Commissioners' court held authorized to appoint county physician at stated salary to attend prisoners at county jail and paupers at poorhouse. Galveston County v. Ducie, 91 T. 665, 45 S. W. 798.

Responsibility of marshal for condition of jail.—A city marshal delivering a prisoner to the jail janitor is not responsible for the unhealthy condition of the cells, in the absence of evidence that he had control thereof. Bishop v. Lucy, 21 C. A. 326, 50 S. W. 1029.

Art. 5112. [3136] United States marshal may use jail.—Sheriffs and jailers shall receive into the jails of their respective counties such prisoners as may be delivered or tendered to them by any United States marshal or his deputy for any district of Texas, and shall safely keep such prisoners until they are demanded by such marshal or his deputy, or are discharged by due course of law. [Act Aug. 30, 1856, p. 88, sec. 1. P. D. 4796.]

Art. 5113. [3137] Marshal liable for jail fees.—In the cases provided for in the preceding article the marshal, by whose authority such prisoners are received and kept, shall be directly and personally liable to the sheriff or jailer for the jail fees and all other expenses of the keeping of such prisoners, such fees and expenses to be estimated according to the laws regulating the same in other cases. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 4797.]

CHAPTER ONE

JURORS—THEIR QUALIFICATIONS AND EXEMPTIONS

Art.		Art.
5114.	Who are competent jurors.	5119.	Where several fire companies in one town.
5115.	Who are disqualified in general.	5120.	List of members selected to be delivered to the clerk.
5116.	Exceptions to certain cases.	5121.	Filing of legal exemptions.
5117.	Jurors disqualified in certain cases.
5118.	Who are liable to jury service.

Article 5114. [3138] Who are competent jurors.—All male persons over twenty-one years of age are competent jurors, unless disqualified under some provision of this chapter.

Art. 5115. [3139] Who are disqualified, in general.—No person shall be qualified to serve as a juror who does not possess the following qualifications:

1. He must be a citizen of the state and of the county in which he is to serve, and qualified under the constitution and laws to vote in said county; provided, that his failure to pay poll tax as required by law shall not be held to disqualify him for jury service in any instance.
2. He must be a freeholder within the state, or a householder within the county.
3. He must be of sound mind and good moral character.
4. He must be able to read and write, except in cases provided for in the succeeding article.
5. He must not have served as a juror for six days during the preceding six months in the district court, or during the preceding three months in the county court.
6. He must not have been convicted of felony.
7. He must not be under indictment or other legal accusation of theft or of any felony. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 78. Const., art. 16, p. 19. Amended Acts 1903, 1 S. S., p. 15, sec. 1. Amended Acts 1905, p. 207.]

Payment of poll tax.—The court can dispense with the payment of poll tax as a qualification of jurors whenever such prerequisite would encumber or hinder the district and other inferior courts of the county in the administration of justice and a proper and expeditious trial of cases. But the qualification cannot be dispensed with where there are at least 3,000 qualified poll tax paying jurors in the county, and who are not disqualified to sit as jurors. Taylor v. State, 47 Cr. R. 101, 81 S. W. 934.

Jurors are not disqualified for not having paid poll tax if the requisite number of jurors could not be found in the county who had paid their poll taxes. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lester (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 403.

It must be made to appear to the judge, that is, shown by evidence furnished by either party, that the requisite number of qualified jurors cannot be had in a county to try a case before a party can be forced to take a juror who has not paid his poll tax. The fact that the judge is satisfied in his own mind that such is the case, is not sufficient. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lester, 99 T. 214, 89 S. W. 754.

It is neither a disqualification nor cause of challenge that a juror has not paid his poll tax. King v. State (Cr. App.) 100 S. W. 333.

Householder.—Discharge of juror on the ground that he was not a householder held proper. McArthur v. State, 41 Cr. R. 635, 57 S. W. 847.

Where a juror owned and controlled a room, he was qualified as a householder. Mays v. State, 50 Cr. R. 165, 96 S. W. 329.

Education.—Facts held to show a Mexican juror was not disqualified for insufficiently understanding the English language. Essary v. State, 53 Cr. R. 596, 111 S. W. 927.

Discretion of court.—When objection to juror is on ground other than those contained in the statute the discretion of the trial judge in passing upon the objection will not be revised unless it appears that the ruling results in preventing a fair and impartial trial. Because a juror is unable to calculate interest on notes, it cannot be held that the trial was not fair and impartial. Stone v. Pettus, 47 C. A. 14, 103 S. W. 415.

Art. 5116. [3140] Exception in certain cases.—Whenever it shall be made to appear to the court that the requisite number of jurors able to read and write can not be found within the county, the court may dispense with the exception provided for in the fourth subdivision of the preceding article; and the court may in like manner dispense with the exception provided for in the fifth subdivision, when the county is so sparsely populated as to make its enforcement seriously inconvenient. [Id. secs. 16, 26.]

Art. 5117. [3141] Jurors disqualified to try a particular case.—The following persons shall be disqualified to serve as jurors in any particular case:

1. Any witness in the case.
2. Any person interested, directly or indirectly, in the subject matter of the suit.
3. Any person related by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree to either of the parties to the suit.
4. Any person who has a bias or prejudice in favor of or against either of the parties.
5. Any person who has sat as a petit juror in a former trial of the same case, or of another case involving the same questions of fact. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 83, sec. 26.]

Competency in general.—Competency of jurors determined. Arnold v. State, 38 Cr. R. 1, 40 S. W. 734; Id., 38 Cr. R. 5, 40 S. W. 735.

That jurors belong to an opposite political party is no ground for challenge in an election contest. Gray v. State, 19 C. A. 521, 49 S. W. 699.

Jurors held competent. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 186; Hubbard v. Same, 43 Cr. R. 564, 67 S. W. 413; Tardy v. Same, 46 Cr. R. 214, 78 S. W. 1076; Kegans v. Same (Cr. App.) 95 S. W. 122; Green v. Same, 49 Cr. R. 645, 98 S. W. 1059; Gregg v. Same (Cr. App.) 100 S. W. 1161; San Antonio Traction Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 554; Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94; Early v. State, 51 Cr. R. 382, 103 S. W. 868, 123 Am. St. Rep. 889; Hubbard v. Same, 52 Cr. R. 399, 107 S. W. 351; Russell v. Same, 53 Cr. R. 500, 111 S. W. 658; Rice v. Same, 54 Cr. R. 149, 112 S. W. 299.

That jurors selected to try defendant for a violation of a local option law were Prohibitionists held no ground for reversal of a conviction. Lively v. State (Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1048.

Jurors held not competent. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Hooser, 44 C. A. 229, 97 S. W. 708; Gregg v. State (Cr. App.) 100 S. W. 1161; Quinn v. Same, 51 Cr. R. 155, 101 S. W. 248; Hanes v. Same (Cr. App.) 107 S. W. 818; Kenecht v. Same, 53 Cr. R. 55, 108 S. W. 1183.

Member of organization.—Parties may ask jurors on their voir dire if they belong to a secret order. Burgess v. Singer Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1110.

Interrogatories asked of jurors as to whether they did not belong to a law and order society, etc., held properly excluded. Dodd v. State (Cr. App.) 82 S. W. 510.

In trespass to try title, jurors otherwise qualified held not disqualified because members of an organization known "as actual settlers." Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1010.

In a prosecution for violating the local option law, held not error to refuse to set aside the jury because many of the jurors were members of a local option league, and some had voted for local option. Deadweyler v. State, 57 Cr. R. 63, 121 S. W. 863.

Witnesses.—The fact that a person subpoenaed as a witness was received as a juror is not error when he did not testify on the trial. Railway Co. v. Brinker, 68 T. 500, 3 S. W. 99.

Witnesses on application for change of venue in criminal cases held not incompetent jurors. Hardin v. State, 40 Cr. R. 208, 49 S. W. 607.

It is not error to exclude a witness in the case from the jury before the jury is sworn, even though the party objecting to such exclusion has exhausted all his challenges and has to take another juror from the talesman. Mundine v. Pauls, 28 C. A. 46, 66 S. W. 255.

Where a juror during the progress of the trial is called as a witness and testifies, and is then excused by both sides as a juror and the case is finished with only eleven jurors, this of itself does not constitute reversible error. Walker v. Dickey, 44 C. A. 110, 98 S. W. 660, 661.

That jurors were subpoenaed as witnesses held not to disqualify them under the circumstances. Edgar v. State, 59 Cr. R. 491, 129 S. W. 141.

A constable, who had been deputy sheriff and had acted as bailiff during the term at which accused was tried, and had waited on the court and had charge of the jury in a felony case at the same term, was not competent as a juror in accused's case. Chapman v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 580.

Pecuniary Interest.—That a juror lives upon the land involved, so as to be interested in the particular suit, or is related within the third degree to any of the parties, is ground for challenge. Veramendi v. Hutchins, 56 T. 414.

Taxpayers of a city are not, for that reason, disqualified to sit as jurors in a suit against the city for damages. City of Marshall v. McAllister, 18 C. A. 159, 43 S. W. 1043.

Residents and taxpayers are not disqualified by Art. 5117 as jurors in a case in which the county is an interested party. Watson v. Dewitt County, 19 C. A. 150, 46 S. W. 1061.

The husband of the niece of the plaintiff's wife is incompetent as a juror in a suit for damages for personal injuries. If the plaintiff should recover, the recovery will be community property. If he should fail, the community property of himself and wife will be liable for costs, and therefore his wife has an interest in the suit. Railroad Co. v. Elliott, 22 C. A. 31, 54 S. W. 410.

That a juror in an action against a city has a damage suit pending against the city growing out of a totally different subject-matter is no disqualification. City of San Antonio v. Diaz (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 549.

Relationship to party or person interested.—That the wife of a brother of a party is a sister or niece of a juror does not disqualify. Johnson v. Richardson, 52 T. 481.

That a juror is related within the third degree to any of the parties is ground for challenge. Veramendi v. Hutchins, 56 T. 414.

A juror whose wife's sister is the wife of the plaintiff, in a suit for damages, is incompetent. Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 650, 7 S. W. 670.

A juror whose wife's sister is the wife of a plaintiff to a suit at the time of trial may, in an action by such plaintiff for the recovery of damages for personal injuries, be challenged for cause. The damages, when recovered, would be community property of the plaintiff and his wife, and she, though not a nominal party, would be substantially a party to the suit. Railway Co. v. Horne, 69 T. 643, 9 S. W. 440.

A brother of a tenant who disclaims, but has a claim for improvement on land which both parties agree to pay, is incompetent as a juror. Davidson v. Wallingford (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 286.

The trial court did not abuse its discretion by sustaining a challenge for cause to jurors related within the third degree of consanguinity to stockholders of a bank which is sued to recover usurious interest. National Bank of Dangerfield v. Ragland (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 661.

A juror, in a prosecution for murder, whose wife was the first cousin of decedent's wife, who had died leaving sons who were private prosecutors in the case, was disqualified, and a new trial should have been granted for such reason. Stringfellow v. State, 42 Cr. R. 588, 61 S. W. 719.

A juror, who states that he is a warm personal friend of one of the state's principal witnesses, and who states that he does not know accused or his principal witnesses, and who declares that he can give accused a fair and impartial trial, is not disqualified. Giles v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 317.

Where a juror is related in the third degree to a person who owns a house, built on the land in controversy by permission of defendant, the juror is disqualified. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 328.

The sustaining of the state's challenge to a juror because his sister had married accused's brother was not erroneous. Holmes v. State (Cr. App.) 157 S. W. 487.

Business connection or transaction with attorney.—It is no ground for challenge that defendant's counsel had been involved in litigation against a juror. Goodall v. State (Cr. App.) 47 S. W. 359.

Age of juror.—That a juror was over 60 years of age was not, under the former law, a cause for challenge. Breeding v. State, 11 T. 257.

Prior service as juror.—The fact that a juror had tried defendant for a similar offense held no ground for challenge. Arnold v. State, 38 Cr. R. 1, 40 S. W. 734.

A juror who heard the testimony of the same prosecuting witness in a similar prosecution against another person, and who has formed an opinion as to defendant's guilt, is disqualified. Drye v. State, 40 Cr. R. 125, 49 S. W. 83.

Fact that jury has just tried a charge against prosecutor for abusive language against a third party immediately following defendant's assault on such witness held not ground of challenge. Gruesendorf v. State (Cr. App.) 56 S. W. 624.

Jurors having fixed opinions as to guilt, formed from having heard a companion case against accused, are incompetent. Goble v. State, 42 Cr. R. 501, 60 S. W. 968.

Service of party as juror in a murder prosecution, such party having served in a prior suit involving many of the same facts, held not ground for a new trial; defendant's attorney having also been counsel in such former prosecution. Garcia v. State (Cr. App.) 63 S. W. 309.

On a prosecution for receiving stolen property, held error to allow on the jury those who had served on the jury on the trial of the thief. Clark v. State, 44 Cr. R. 536, 72 S. W. 591.

In a criminal prosecution, jurors who had sat on the jury in a similar prosecution of the same defendant held properly excluded for cause. Holmes v. State, 52 Cr. R. 352, 106 S. W. 1160.

That part of a panel had just convicted accused on a trial involving the same issues and the rest of the panel had heard the testimony in that case and had formed a fixed opinion on its merits held sufficient ground for quashing the panel. Ross v. State, 53 Cr. R. 162, 109 S. W. 153.

Overruling a challenge for cause to jurors who had convicted in other cases of the same character on the testimony of the same prosecuting witness held error. Green v. State, 54 Cr. R. 3, 111 S. W. 933.

The relation of prosecuting witness to another prosecution held not to disqualify jurors. Irvine v. State, 55 Cr. R. 347, 116 S. W. 591.

That jurors in a prosecution for violation of the local option law had sat on a former prosecution of accused for an illegal sale of liquor and had convicted him would not disqualify them as having formed an opinion, where the alleged sales in the two cases were made to different persons and the state relied on different witnesses. Ross v. State, 56 Cr. R. 275, 113 S. W. 1034.

That a part of the panel had sat in another local option case, in which the verdict of guilty was founded upon the testimony of one who was also a witness in the present case, held not to render the jury incompetent. Bailey v. State, 56 Cr. R. 226, 120 S. W. 419.

That one was a member of a grand jury which indicted a party for swindling did not of itself disqualify him as a juror in a civil action against such party for fraud and deceit based on the same charge, there being no attempt to show injury resulting from the juror's past service on the grand jury. Mounce v. Crowson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 915.

In a prosecution for violating the local option law, certain jurors held not disqualified for bias because of having previously convicted accused of another similar offense. Edgar v. State, 59 Cr. R. 252, 127 S. W. 1053.

Compelling defendant to select a jury from a panel including jurors who had sat in a case in which the principal defensive matter was the same as in the present case held error. Edgar v. State, 59 Cr. R. 488, 129 S. W. 140.

It was error to compel accused to accept jurors who had served in previous trials of others for the same offense, where the only witnesses against accused had testified for the state. Hardgraves v. State, 61 Cr. R. 422, 135 S. W. 144.

Where a prosecution rested upon the testimony of the same witness as in other similar prosecutions in which defendants had been convicted, held, that defendant was entitled to another jury. Smith v. State, 61 Cr. R. 328, 135 S. W. 154.

That a juror was also a member of the grand jury which returned the indictment held not to disqualify him as a juror, but to be only ground for challenge. Bryan v. State, 63 Cr. R. 200, 139 S. W. 981.

In a prosecution for illegally selling liquor, accused's motion to discharge the regular jury on the ground that it had already tried and convicted two other defendants in cases of the same character on the testimony of the same witnesses who would appear against accused held properly refused. Ausbrook v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 1177.

Bias and prejudice.—The examination of a juror may extend to the bias or prejudice relating to the subject-matter of the litigation as well as to the parties personally. Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 650, 7 S. W. 670.

A party should use reasonable diligence to ascertain whether jurors are impartial. Blanton v. Mayes, 72 T. 417, 10 S. W. 452.

Under the statute disqualifying a juror who has a bias or prejudice a railroad employé is disqualified from being a juror in an action against the railroad company. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 506.

Defendant cannot complain of prejudice of a juror formed from trying the case in which he was convicted. Griffin v. State (Cr. App.) 53 S. W. 848.

Statements by a juror prior to trial held to show him disqualified on the ground of prejudice and partiality. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 60 S. W. 562.

Jurors who state on their voir dire that they have no prejudice against one indicted for violating the local option law held not disqualified by reason of having contributed for the employment of counsel in a local option election contest. Taul v. State (Cr. App.) 61 S. W. 394.

In a prosecution for violating a local option law, defendant held entitled to ask the jury whether they were prejudiced against a person who was in a position at the time to violate the law in question. Patrick v. State, 45 Cr. R. 587, 78 S. W. 947.

A challenge for cause on the ground of bias of a juror because of expressed friendly relations to plaintiff held improperly overruled. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Blanton, 36 C. A. 307, 81 S. W. 537.

A challenge of a juror may be properly sustained under this article where he is prejudiced against an important witness of one of the parties, if in the opinion of the court this prejudice renders him an unfit person to sit on the jury. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Sage, 43 C. A. 38, 94 S. W. 1074.

It is not an objection to a juror that he is prejudiced against an important witness of one of the parties. Id.

In a prosecution for homicide, facts held insufficient to show prejudice on the part of a juror. Wallace v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 1050.

Jurors in a murder trial held not disqualified for prejudice. Cason v. State, 52 Cr. R. 220, 106 S. W. 337.

In a trial of one negro for murdering another, jurors held not objectionable because they would give more weight to a white person's testimony than to a negro's. Moore v. State, 52 Cr. R. 336, 107 S. W. 540.

Bias or prejudice by a juror in favor of or preconceived ideas of the rights of one of the parties, are incompatible with a fair trial by an impartial jury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dickens, 54 C. A. 637, 118 S. W. 612, 618.

A juror held not incompetent to sit on the trial of a negro. Bass v. State, 59 Cr. R. 186, 127 S. W. 1020.

Where a juror in an action in which a negro was a party stated on his voir dire that he had no prejudice against the negro race, while he was so prejudiced against the race that he would not believe what a negro said when opposed to the statement of any white person, the court on the application of the negro who was defeated must grant a new trial on the ground of the prejudice of the juror. Makey v. Dryden (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 633.

It was proper to refuse a question asked of a juror on his voir dire as to whether he would give a witness the same credit in case he was employed by the sheriff's department that he would otherwise give him, as tending to commit the juror on the question of the credibility of a witness before he had testified. Ellis v. State (Cr. App.) 154 S. W. 1010.

— Influence on verdict.—Jurors stating that they could try defendant impartially held competent. Deon v. State, 37 Cr. R. 506, 40 S. W. 266.

Acceptance of a juror who had formed an impression not sufficient to influence his verdict held no error, where he did not serve, and defendant's peremptory challenges were not exhausted. Dancy v. State (Cr. App.) 46 S. W. 247.

Where a juror who had formed an opinion stated that he could give defendant a fair trial, held not error for the court to overrule a challenge for cause. Parker v. State, 45 Cr. R. 334, 77 S. W. 783.

Formation and expression of opinion as to cause.—The fact that the juror had an opinion held not to render him incompetent. Bratt v. State (Cr. App.) 41 S. W. 624.

Opinions as to guilt, expressed on the voir dire, held not to disqualify jurors. Sawyer v. State, 39 Cr. R. 557, 47 S. W. 650.

Jurors who heard arguments of former prosecution of defendant held competent. Armstrong v. State (Cr. App.) 47 S. W. 1006.

One who has formed an opinion as to accused's guilt, derived from statements of witnesses before the trial, is disqualified to sit as a juror. Keaton v. State, 40 Cr. R. 139, 49 S. W. 90.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a juror had expressed an opinion as to defendant's guilt before he was selected. McGrew v. State (Cr. App.) 49 S. W. 226.

A juror who had a fixed opinion of defendant's guilt held disqualified. Gallaher v. State, 40 Cr. R. 296, 50 S. W. 388.

One who was on the ground immediately after a homicide, if not actually present at the killing, and is familiar with all the main points of the case, is not a proper juror at the trial. Nelson v. State (Cr. App.) 58 S. W. 107.

Veniremen held not disqualified by reason of having formed an opinion. Tellis v. State, 42 Cr. R. 574, 61 S. W. 717.

An examination of a juror held not to show he had such an opinion as to disqualify him. Taylor v. State, 44 Cr. R. 547, 72 S. W. 396.

Where several prosecutions were pending against defendant, he was entitled to inquire of jurors who had heard the evidence in a case previously tried if they would have a fixed opinion as to the guilt of accused, if it should transpire that the evidence in the two cases was similar. Barnes v. State (Cr. App.) 88 S. W. 805.

A juror in a criminal case held qualified, though he had formed a prior opinion. Bice v. State, 55 Cr. R. 529, 117 S. W. 163.

A juror held not disqualified by reason of the fact that he had formed an opinion of the guilt or innocence of accused relying on insanity. Tubb v. State, 55 Cr. R. 606, 117 S. W. 858.

While the statute does not in express terms allow a juror to be challenged on the ground that he has expressed an opinion about the merits of the case still under this article and Art. 5196 the court is given general power to entertain a challenge on any ground that unfits a person to sit on a jury. The law exacts a fair and impartial trial, and this requirement becomes a delusion if men with bias or prejudice are permitted to sit in judgment on a case. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dickens, 54 C. A. 637, 118 S. W. 615.

Jurors who have formed and expressed an opinion prior to the time of their acceptance on the jury to the effect that accused is guilty are disqualified jurors. Slack v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 107.

— From rumor and newspaper report.—In a prosecution for murder, a juror testified on his voir dire that he had talked of the case with one who had been a juror on a former trial, and who had assessed the death penalty; that he had an opinion not based on talking with a witness, or on knowledge, and not fixed, but an impression of defendant's guilt from newspapers, hearsay, and general talk; and that he could render a fair verdict. The juror on the former trial was not introduced as a witness, and what was ascertained from him was not disclosed. Held not sufficient to require a dismissal for cause. Johnson v. State, 49 Cr. R. 314, 94 S. W. 224.

Juror in a criminal case held not disqualified by an opinion, based on a newspaper account. Campos v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 100.

A juror held qualified, notwithstanding an opinion formed from reading the newspapers. Groszohmigen v. State, 57 Cr. R. 241, 121 S. W. 1113.

— From evidence at former trial.—Where an action had been twice tried, the jury disagreeing each time, the fact that a juror had heard of such trials and the result, but not how the juries stood, is not ground for excluding him. Texas M. R. Co. v. Crowder, 25 C. A. 536, 64 S. W. 90.

In a murder trial, retention of a juror who knew that accused had been convicted on a former trial held not prejudicial error. Moore v. State, 52 Cr. R. 336, 107 S. W. 540.

That jurors stated on their voir dire that they knew of the verdict on defendant's former trial would not disqualify them. Arnwine v. State, 54 Cr. R. 213, 114 S. W. 796, 802.

— From evidence at trial of other cause.—A juror who states that he believes, from what he had heard other jurors say, that the testimony of the prosecuting witness in another case, that defendant sold him liquor, is true, is disqualified. Drye v. State, 40 Cr. R. 125, 49 S. W. 83.

In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol, held, that there was no error in refusing to allow the jurors to be examined as to whether they knew anything about the facts of a former case. Woodroe v. State, 50 Cr. R. 212, 96 S. W. 30.

— Influence of opinion on verdict.—A juror who had an opinion as to defendant's guilt, but stated he could give defendant an impartial trial, held competent. Hamlin v. State, 39 Cr. R. 579, 47 S. W. 656.

If a juror's opinion is based on the truth of rumors and newspaper articles, and he states that, if the evidence presents a different state of facts, he will disregard his opinion, the juror is competent. Morrison v. State, 40 Cr. R. 473, 51 S. W. 358.

A challenge to jurors expressing a "fixed opinion" that appellees "ought to recover" should doubtless have been sustained by the court, although they said that their judgment would not be influenced thereby. But as no injury is shown to have resulted to appellant the assignment raising the question will be overruled. Choctaw, O. & T. Ry. Co. v. True, 35 C. A. 309, 80 S. W. 121.

Personal opinions and scruples.—In the trial of a suit on a liquor dealer's bond, it is not a cause of challenge to a juror that he has a bias in favor of, or a prejudice against, the business of selling liquors by retail. Grady v. Rogan, 2 App. C. C. § 263. See Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 650, 7 S. W. 670; Houston Waterworks Co. v. Harris, 3 C. A. 475, 23 S. W. 46.

A juror, because of his statement as to conscientious scruples against inflicting the death penalty, held disqualified to sit in a prosecution for rape. Sawyer v. State, 39 Cr. R. 557, 47 S. W. 650.

It was held proper to refuse to let defendant ask the jury whether they were prejudiced against the offense, as distinguished from other offenses. Leach v. State (Cr. App.) 49 S. W. 581.

Where a juror has scruples against the infliction of the death penalty on circumstantial evidence, it is not error for the court to explain circumstantial evidence by means of an illustration, though the illustration states an extreme case. Morrison v. State, 40 Cr. R. 473, 51 S. W. 358.

A juror who was prejudiced against the defense of insanity in general because often unfounded, but had no opinion on defendant's plea of insanity, was not disqualified. Cannon v. State, 41 Cr. R. 467, 56 S. W. 351.

On prosecution for homicide, it was not error for the state, in examining jurors on their voir dire, to ask whether they had scruples against inflicting the death penalty on circumstantial evidence. Johnson v. State, 44 Cr. R. 332, 71 S. W. 25.

In homicide, a challenge to jurors who had conscientious scruples against inflicting the death penalty in case of circumstantial evidence held well taken. Martin v. State, 47 Cr. R. 29, 83 S. W. 390.

Prejudice against the crime of murder does not disqualify a juror. Franks v. State, 47 Cr. R. 633, 88 S. W. 923.

Prejudice against the plea of insanity held not to disqualify a juror on a prosecution for murder. Id.

The testimony of a juror as to his competency on a trial for rape held not to show his incompetency. Dies v. State, 56 Cr. R. 32, 117 S. W. 979.

A juror was disqualified to sit in a murder case in which the sole defense was insanity, who stated on his voir dire that he would require overwhelming proof of insanity before acquitting on that ground. Jones v. State, 60 Cr. R. 139, 131 S. W. 572.

The testimony of jurors on their voir dire examination held not to show bias. Williams v. State, 60 Cr. R. 453, 132 S. W. 345.

A juror who testified on his voir dire that he would require accused to prove the defense of insanity beyond a reasonable doubt was properly received as a juror, where he further stated that he would be governed by the charge of the court. Maxey v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 952.

Jurors were subject to challenge for cause in a murder case, where they stated that they had conscientious scruples against, and would not impose, the death penalty on circumstantial evidence. Grant v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 760, 42 L. R. A. (N. S.) 428.

Examination of juror on voir dire in general.—See notes under Art. 5195.

Time for making objection.—See notes under Art. 5206.

Inhabitants of county eligible as jurors in suits against county.—See note under Art. 1367.

Art. 5118. [3142] Who are liable to jury service; who are exempt from jury service.—All competent jurors are liable to jury service, except the following persons:

1. All persons over sixty years of age.
2. All civil officers of this state and of the United States.
3. All overseers of roads.
4. All ministers of the gospel engaged in the active discharge of their ministerial duties.
5. All physicians and attorneys engaged in actual practice.
6. All publishers of newspapers, school masters, druggists, undertakers, telegraph operators, railroad station agents, ferrymen, and all millers engaged in grist, flouring and saw mills.
7. All presidents, vice-presidents, conductors and engineers of railroad companies when engaged in the regular and actual discharge of the duties of their respective positions.
8. Any person who has acted as jury commissioner within the preceding twelve months.
9. All members of the national guard of this state under the provisions of the title, "Militia."
10. In cities and towns having a population of fifteen hundred or more inhabitants, according to the last preceding United States census, the active members of organized fire companies, not to exceed twenty to each one thousand of such inhabitants. [Id. p. 78, sec. 25.]

Notaries public.—A notary public is not exempt by reason of his appointment. See Art. 6002.

Fireman.—An active member of a voluntary fire company held exempt from jury service, under Art. 5118 et seq. Ex parte Krupp, 41 Cr. R. 355, 54 S. W. 590.

Art. 5119. [3143] Where several fire companies in one town, etc.—If there be more than one organized fire company in such town or city, the whole number of exemptions provided for under subdivision 10 of the preceding article shall be equally divided between such companies. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5120. [3144] List of members selected to be delivered to the clerk.—Before such exemption of any member of such fire company shall be made available, the members so to be exempted shall be selected by their respective companies; and their names shall be handed in to the clerks of the district and county courts, respectively, by the chief of the fire department of such city or town, or in case there be no such officer, then by the foreman of the company. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5121. Filing of exemptions.—All persons summoned as jurors in any court of this state, who are exempt by statutory law from jury service, may, if they so desire to claim their exemptions, make oath before any officer authorized by law to administer oaths, or before the officers summoning such persons, stating their exemptions, and file said affidavit at any time before the convening of said court with the clerk of said court, which shall constitute sufficient excuse without appearing in person. [Acts 1907, p. 216.]

CHAPTER TWO

JURY COMMISSIONERS FOR THE DISTRICT COURT, APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATION, ETC.

[Repealed by Acts 1907, p. 272, sec. 13, as to counties designated in Chapter 5.]

Art.	Art.
5122. Jury commissioners.	5127. Failure of commissioners, etc.
5123. Shall serve but once in each year.	5128. To be instructed in their duties.
5124. Commissioners to be notified.	5129. How they shall be kept.
5125. Failing to attend shall be fined.	5130. Clerk to furnish stationery, etc.
5126. Oath of jury commissioners.	5131. To have use of assessment rolls.

Article 5122. [3145] Jury commissioners, appointment and qualifications.—The district court of each county shall, at each term thereof, appoint three persons to perform the duties of jury commissioners for said court, who shall possess the following qualifications:

1. They shall be intelligent citizens of the county and able to read and write.
2. They shall be qualified jurors and freeholders of the county.
3. They shall be residents of different portions of the county.
4. They shall have no suit in such court which requires the intervention of a jury. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 79, sec. 4.]

Commissioners from different parts of county.—There was no error in overruling a motion to quash a venire, because selected by jury commissioners taken from different parts of the county, where there was no proof that the commissioners were not from different portions of the county. Dailey v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 321.

Interest in suits pending.—A person is not disqualified to serve as a commissioner on the ground that his father is a party to a suit, or that he is transacting business as a merchant with persons parties to pending suits. Veramendi v. Hutchins, 56 T. 414.

A motion to quash a venire in a criminal case will not be sustained because one of the jury commissioners was interested as a party in several suits on the jury docket of that term. Whittle v. State, 43 Cr. R. 468, 66 S. W. 771.

Prejudice as disqualifying.—That jury commissioners selected to try defendant for a violation of a local option law were Prohibitionists held no ground for reversal of a conviction. Lively v. State (Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1048.

Review of discretion of court.—The discretion of a trial judge in selecting jury commissioners is not subject to review by an appellate court. Columbo v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 910.

Same commission summoning jurors for three terms.—See note under Art. 5123.

Appointing new commission to summon additional jurors.—See note under Art. 5127.

Art. 5123. [3146] Shall serve but once in a year.—The same person shall not act as a jury commissioner more than once in the same year. [Id. sec. 5.]

Same commission summoning jurors for three terms.—Const. art. 16, § 19, declares that the Legislature shall prescribe by law the qualifications of grand and petit jurors. Art. 5122 provides that the district court of each county, at each term, shall appoint jury commissioners. Code Crim. Proc. art. 384, also declares that the district judge, at each term of the district court, shall appoint three persons to act as jury commissioners, and article 389 provides that the commissioners shall select from the citizens of the different portions of the county 16 persons to be summoned as grand jurors for the next term of court. Held that, where there were six terms of court a year in a judicial district, the judge at the November, 1911, term had no jurisdiction to direct jury commissioners for that term to draw three grand juries for the succeeding January, March, and May, 1912, terms, and an indictment found by a grand jury so drawn was invalid. Woolen v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 1165.

Art. 5124. [3147] Commissioners to be notified of their appointment, etc.—The court shall cause the persons appointed as jury commissioners to be notified by the sheriff or any constable of such appointment, and of the time and place when and where they are to appear before the court. [Id. sec. 4.]

Waiver of citation.—The issuance of a citation to jury commissioners held waived by their appearance in response to a notice. Williams v. State, 45 Cr. R. 218, 75 S. W. 859.

Art. 5125. [3148] Failing to attend, shall be fined.—If any person appointed a jury commissioner shall fail or refuse to attend and perform the duties required without a reasonable excuse, he shall be fined by the court in any sum not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5126. [3149] Oath of jury commissioners.—When the persons appointed appear before the court, the judge shall administer to them the following oath: "You do swear faithfully to discharge the duties required of you as jury commissioners; that you will not knowingly elect any man as a jurymen whom you believe to be unfit and not qualified; that you will not make known to any one the name of any jurymen selected by you and reported to the court; that you will not, directly or indirectly, converse with any one selected by you as a jurymen concerning the merits of any case to be tried at the next term of this court until after said cause may be tried or continued, or the jury discharged." [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5127. [3150] Failure of commissioners, etc.—If from any cause the jury commissioners should not be appointed at the time prescribed, or should fail to select jurors as required, or should the panels selected be set aside, or the jury lists returned into court be lost or destroyed, the court shall forthwith proceed to supply a sufficient number of jurors for the term under the provisions of this title, and may, when it may be deemed necessary, appoint commissioners for that purpose. [Id. sec. 13.]

Appointing new commission to summon additional jurors.—Juries were selected for the second and third weeks of a term then in session. The term having continued longer than anticipated, the judge appointed other commissioners, who selected other jurors for the residue of the term. On a challenge to the array it was held that the first commissioners should have been reconvened to have selected additional jurors, but the course pursued was a mere irregularity, from which no injury appeared to have resulted. Rountree v. Gilroy, 57 T. 176.

When regular jury has been discharged for the term, court can appoint three jury commissioners and have them select jurors for trial of causes still pending in the court. Lang v. Henke, 22 C. A. 490, 55 S. W. 375.

Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 715, providing that, when there are no regular jurors for the week from whom to select a jury, the court shall order the sheriff to summon forthwith such number of qualified persons as it may deem sufficient, and from those summoned a jury shall be formed to try the case, and this article, the action of the court in appointing jury commissioners to draw the jury for the trial of a criminal prosecution at the term of court then in session was not error. Schuh v. State, 58 Cr. R. 165, 124 S. W. 908.

The jury commission appointed at one term of court selected jurors for six weeks of the following term. At the expiration of that time, there still being a number of cases on the docket, the trial judge appointed a new commission to draw jurors for four weeks longer. Held that, although he might have reassembled the old commission, if that were possible, or have directed the sheriff to summon jurors as provided by Code Cr. Proc. art. 715, the action taken by him was proper under this article. Columbo v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 910.

Ordering sheriff to summon jurors.—The court has power to have venire summoned through the sheriff, when jury commissioners have not been appointed. Smith v. Bates (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 64; H., E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Vinson (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 540.

When the jury commissioners fail to elect jurors, the statute clearly authorizes the court to order the sheriff to summon a jury. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Hatchell, 22 C. A. 498, 55 S. W. 187.

Authority is given the court in clear and unmistakable terms to order the sheriff to summon the jury, if the jury commissioners have failed to select jurors. Railroad Co. v. Fambrough (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 188; Lang v. Henke, 22 C. A. 490, 55 S. W. 375.

Where the jury commissioners have failed to select a jury for a certain week of a term, the sheriff, in summoning a venire for such week, is not confined to jurors selected by the jury commissioners for other weeks of the term. Lucas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 823.

When from any cause jury commissioners have failed to provide a jury for the term or part of a term the court can order the sheriff to summon a jury. Green v. State, 53 Cr. R. 490, 110 S. W. 924, 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 706.

This article and Art. 5170 give the court authority to order the sheriff to select jurors to try a case when the jury commissioners have not made selections. Gray v. Phillips, 54 C. A. 148, 117 S. W. 877.

Necessity of happening of contingency.—When none of the contingencies mentioned in this article have occurred the court has no power to force a party to try his case before a jury not selected in the manner prescribed by the statute. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Pullen, 33 C. A. 143, 75 S. W. 1085.

Review of court's discretion.—The right and discretion to select jury commissioners is confided in the judge and not subject to review. Columbo v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 910.

Art. 5128. [3151] To be instructed as to their duties.—When the jury commissioners have been sworn and organized, the judge shall proceed to instruct them as to their duties, and shall designate to them for what weeks they shall select petit jurors, and the number of jurors selected for each week. Each person serving as jury commissioner shall receive as compensation therefor the same amount as now provided by law for the services of petit and grand jurors; provided, that no such commissioner shall receive any pay as such for any day for which he has received, or is entitled to receive, compensation as petit or grand juror. [Id. sec. 6. Amended Acts 1909, p. 178.]

Art. 5129. [3152] To be kept free from intrusion and not to separate.—The jury commissioners shall retire in charge of the sheriff or constable to some suitable apartment, and shall be kept free from the intrusion of any person during their session, and shall not separate, without leave of the court, until they have completed the duties required of them. [Id.]

Art. 5130. [3153] Clerk to furnish stationery and list of exempt persons, etc.—It shall be the duty of the clerk to furnish the jury commissioners with all necessary stationery, and also with a list of the names of all persons appearing, from the records of the court, to be exempt or disqualified from serving on the petit jury at each term. He shall also deliver to them the envelope mentioned in article 5148, and shall take their receipt therefor, showing whether or not such seal remained unbroken. [Id. secs. 4, 6. Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 170, sec. 6. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Art. 5131. [3154] To have use of assessment roll.—It shall be the duty of the county clerk, or other legal custodian of the same, to furnish the jury commissioners with the last assessment roll of the county. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 79, sec. 6.]

CHAPTER THREE

JURY COMMISSIONERS FOR THE COUNTY COURT, APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATIONS, ETC.

[Repealed by Acts 1907, p. 272, sec. 13, as to counties designated in Chapter 5.]

Art.	Art.
5132. Jury commissioners, appointment and qualification, powers and duties.	5133. Oath. 5134. To select jurors for six months.

Article 5132. [3155] Jury commissioners for the county court, appointment and qualification, powers and duties.—The county court shall, at its first term after the thirty-first day of December and the thirtieth day of June of each year, appoint three persons to perform the duties of jury commissioners for said court, who shall possess the same qualifications as jury commissioners for the district court, and the same proceedings shall be had in the county court by the officers thereof and by the commissioners for procuring jurors as are required by this title for similar proceedings in the district court, except as modified by the provisions of this chapter. [Id. p. 81, sec. 15. Acts 1884, p. 27.]

Effect of disregarding statute.—The intentional disregard by a county judge of the statute requiring him to appoint jury commissioners to select jurors for the term of the county court is a violation of the right of trial by jury guaranteed by the bill of rights. White v. State, 45 Cr. R. 597, 78 S. W. 1067.

Art. 5133. [3156] Oath.—The oath to be administered to the jury commissioners for the county courts shall be as follows: "You do solemnly swear faithfully to discharge the duties required of you as jury commissioners; that you will not knowingly elect any man as a jurymen whom you believe to be unfit and not qualified; that you will not make known to any one the name of any jurymen selected by you and reported to the court; that you will not, directly or indirectly, communicate with any one selected by you as a jurymen concerning the merits of any case to be tried by this court within the next six months, until said case shall have been tried or otherwise disposed of." [Acts 1876, p. 79, sec. 4.]

Art. 5134. [3157] To select jurors for six months.—Such commissioners shall select jurors for all the terms of the county court to be holden within six months next after the adjournment of the first term of said court after the said thirty-first day of December and the thirtieth day of June of each year, and the county judge shall designate the number of jurors to be so selected for each term and week. [Acts 1884, p. 28.]

Sheriff's summoning jurors instead of commission.—A motion to quash the array of jurors should be sustained, where they were not chosen by commissioners as the law directs, but selected and summoned by the sheriff. Irwin v. State, 57 Cr. R. 331, 123 S. W. 127.

CHAPTER FOUR

PROCEEDINGS OF THE JURY COMMISSIONERS IN THE SELECTION OF JURORS

[Repealed by Acts 1907, p. 272, sec. 13, as to counties designated in Chapter 5.]

Art.	Art.
5135. Selection of jurors, how made.	5144. And by him to the commissioners for his court.
5136. Drawing of jurors, how conducted.	5145. Persons included in such lists not to be selected as jurors in county court.
5137. Venire facias, special, how drawn.	5146. County court commissioners to make out lists for district court.
5138. List to be certified, sealed, etc.	5147. To be delivered to district clerk.
5139. To be delivered to the judge.	5148. And by him to commissioners for his court.
5139a. And by him to the clerk.	5149. Persons included in such lists exempt.
5140. Clerk and deputies to be sworn.	5150. Lists of jurors to be destroyed.
5141. Same.
5142. District court commissioners to make out jury list for county court.
5143. Which shall be delivered to the county clerk.

Article 5135. [3158] Selection of jurors, how made.—The jury commissioners shall select from the citizens of the different portions of the county, liable to serve as jurors, one hundred persons, or a greater or less number if so directed by the court, free from all legal exceptions, of good moral character, of sound judgment, well-informed, and, so far as practicable, able to read and write, to serve as petit jurors at the next term, if in the district court, and for the next six months, if in the county court, and shall write the names of such persons on separate pieces of paper, as near the same size and appearance as may be, and fold the same so that the names can not be seen. [Acts 1876, p. 79, sec. 7.]

In general.—It is the policy of the law that jurors be drawn by commissioners and not selected by the sheriff or any officer. Knight v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 268.

Negroes.—That the three negroes on a trial jury panel summoned to try a negro were peremptorily challenged by the state held not a denial of equal protection of laws to defendant. Whitney v. State, 43 Cr. R. 197, 63 S. W. 879.

Facts held not to show discrimination against negroes in drawing jurors. Hubbard v. State, 43 Cr. R. 564, 67 S. W. 413.

Evidence examined, and held to show that there was discrimination against the colored race in the formation of the jury which tried defendant. Smith v. State, 44 Cr. R. 90, 69 S. W. 151.

A motion to quash a special venire on the trial of a negro charged with crime, because the negro race was discriminated against in the selection of the jury, held properly denied. Thompson v. State, 45 Cr. R. 397, 77 S. W. 449.

Impanelment of a jury composed entirely of white men for the trial of a negro held in violation of Const. Amend. 14, guarantying equal protection of the law. Smith v. State, 45 Cr. R. 405, 77 S. W. 453.

Misconduct of a juror held waived by defendant's consent to an order excusing him, and to proceed with 11 jurors. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Toliver, 37 C. A. 437, 84 S. W. 375.

Error in overruling defendant's challenges to certain jurors held ground for reversal. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lester, 99 T. 214, 89 S. W. 752.

Considering the testimony as to negroes qualified and the evidence regarding exemptions, the court is not prepared to say that the jury commissioners did not, in the selection of both the grand and petit jurors, allow the negro race their pro rata of qualified jurors. Thomas v. State, 49 Cr. R. 633, 95 S. W. 1072, 1073.

On motion to quash an indictment and a petit jury panel on the ground of race discrimination, certain testimony held irrelevant. Washington v. State, 51 Cr. R. 542, 103 S. W. 879.

Under the facts, a motion to quash a venire in the trial of a negro for murder on the ground of racial discrimination held properly denied. Macklin v. State, 53 Cr. R. 197, 109 S. W. 145.

The objection that talesmen were drawn by the sheriff before exhausting the regular panel of jurors cannot be raised first on review. Houston Electric Co. v. Seegar, 54 C. A. 255, 117 S. W. 900.

Evidence, on a motion to quash the special venire, held not to sustain the ground of discrimination as to race in the composition of the jury. Pollard v. State, 58 Cr. R. 299, 125 S. W. 390.

That for many years no negro had been selected or impaneled as a grand or petit juror cannot be considered, on a motion to quash a special venire, where the law has been in every respect complied with. Id.

The asking of a question of the jurors on their voir dire examination held not ground for reversal. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Shaklee (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 188.

Change in term of court.—That the jury was drawn by jury commissioners for another term of court, the term of court having been changed by the legislature after the commissioners were appointed, was not error. Carter v. State, 45 Cr. R. 430, 76 S. W. 437.

Art. 5136. [3159] Drawing of jurors, how conducted.—The names of the persons so written and folded shall be deposited in a box, and, after being well shaken and mixed, the commissioners shall draw therefrom the names, one by one, of thirty-six persons, or a greater or less number where the judge has so directed, for each week of the term of the district court or terms of the county court for which a jury may be required, and shall record such names as they are drawn upon as many separate sheets of paper as there are weeks of such term or terms for which juries will be required. [Id.]

Cited, Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

Drawing jurors for more than week.—An objection that the jury panel was not drawn for each week of the term, but was drawn for the whole term (of three weeks) cannot be sustained because the statute does not make this a ground of challenge. The only ground being that the officer has acted corruptly in summoning the jury. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth, 53 C. A. 351, 116 S. W. 368.

Art. 5137. [3159a] Special venire list.—The jury commissioners shall furthermore select one man for every one hundred of population in any county, or a greater or less number if so directed by the court, and these shall constitute a special venire list, from which shall be drawn the names of those who shall answer summons to the special venire facias, after the petit jurors for the term have been drawn on any venire one time during such term, and the drawing of the veniremen from the special venire list shall be done in the same manner as prescribed for other jurors, and no citizen who has served as a petit juror for one week during any term of court shall, during said term, be compelled to answer summons to more than one special venire facias; nor shall any citizen be compelled to answer summons to a special venire facias more than twice during any one term of court; provided, that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply in counties having a population of less than two thousand inhabitants. [Acts 1905, p. 17.]

Repeal.—Acts 1907, p. 272, § 13, repeals this article as to counties designated in Chapter 5.

How long jurors may be required to serve.—This article provides that after the petit jurors for the term have served one week they can be drawn on a venire one time during said term, and that no citizen who has served as a petit juror for one week during any term of court, shall, during said term, be compelled to answer summons to more than one special venire facias. Nor can he be compelled to answer summons to a special venire more than twice during one term. Moore v. State, 49 Cr. R. 629, 95 S. W. 515.

When recourse may be had to special venire.—This article and Art. 5161 provide for the special venire list to be drawn by the jury commissioners appointed by the court out of which talesmen are to be drawn or selected when the special venire authorized by the old law has been exhausted. No recourse is to be had to this special venire list until the original special venire drawn in the case from the jury for the term has been exhausted, unless the contingency arises as provided in amended Art. 661. Code Cr. Proc. 1911; Gabler v. State, 49 Cr. R. 623, 95 S. W. 523.

Manner of drawing from special venire.—This article does not change the venire law, which requires the names of all the veniremen to be placed in the box prior to the drawing of the venire. Wallace v. State, 50 Cr. R. 374, 97 S. W. 471.

Art. 5138. [3160] Lists to be certified, sealed up and indorsed.—The several lists of names drawn, as provided in the preceding article [5136], shall be certified under the hands of the commissioners to be the lists drawn by them for the said several weeks, and shall be sealed up in separate envelopes, indorsed, “List of petit jurors for the _____ week of the _____ term of the _____ court of _____ county,” [filling the blanks]. [Acts 1876, p. 79, sec. 7.]

Art. 5139. [3161] To be delivered to the judge.—The commissioners shall write their names across the seals of the envelopes and deliver them to the judge. [Id.]

Art. 5139a. [3162] And by him to the clerk.—The judge shall deliver such envelopes to the clerk, or to one of his deputies in open court, and the court may instruct the clerk to indorse on any of such envelopes that the jury for that week shall be summoned for some other day than Monday of said week. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5140. [3163] Clerk and deputies to be sworn.—The judge shall at the same time administer to the clerk and each of his deputies an oath, in substance as follows: “You do solemnly swear that you will not open the jury lists now delivered to you, nor permit them to be opened until the time prescribed by law; that you will not, directly nor indirectly, converse or communicate with any one selected as a juror concerning any case pending for trial in this court at its next term,” if in the district court; or if in the county court, “within the next six months.” [Id. secs. 8, 28.]

Art. 5141. [3164] Same.—If for any reason such oath should not be administered to any of the deputies, or should the clerk subsequently appoint a deputy, the clerk shall administer to such deputy a like oath. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5142. [3165] District court commissioners to make out jury lists for county court.—The jury commissioners for the district court shall, in addition to the other duties required of them, make out for the use of the jury commissioners of the county court a complete list of the names of all the persons selected by them as grand and petit jurors, and shall place said list in an envelope and seal the same and write their names across the seal; and shall address said envelope to the jury commissioners of the county court of the proper county, and shall deliver the same to the district judge in open court. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 170, sec. 1.]

Art. 5143. [3166] Which shall be delivered to the county clerk.—The district judge shall, without delay, deliver said envelope to the county clerk or one of his deputies, and, at the time of delivery, administer to said clerk or deputy, as the case may be, the following oath: "You do solemnly swear that you will, to the best of your ability, safely keep this envelope, and that you will neither open the same nor allow it to be opened, except as provided by law; and that you will cause it to be delivered to the jury commissioners of the county court next hereafter appointed in and for this county." [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5144. [3167] And by him to the commissioners for his court.—At the first term of the county court thereafter held, at which jury commissioners are appointed, it shall be the duty of the county clerk to deliver said envelope to the jury commissioners or one of them appointed at said term, and take a receipt therefor; and said receipt shall state whether the seal of said envelope be broken or not. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5145. [3168] Persons included in such lists not to be selected as jurors in county court.—After the jury commissioners, appointed by said county court, shall have assembled for business, they shall open said envelope and read said list of names, and no person named on said list shall be selected as a juror by said commissioners. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5146. [3169] County court commissioners to make out lists for district court.—The jury commissioners of the county court shall, in addition to the other duties required of them, make out for the use of the jury commissioners of the district court a complete list of the names of all persons selected by them as jurors, and shall place said list in an envelope and seal the same, and write their names across the seal and address said envelope to the jury commissioners of the district court of the proper county, and shall deliver the same to the county judge in open court. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 170, sec. 5.]

Art. 5147. [3170] To be delivered to the district clerk.—The county judge shall, without delay, deliver said envelope to the district clerk, or one of his deputies, and, at the time of delivery, administer to said clerk, or his deputy, as the case may be, the following oath: "You do solemnly swear that you will, to the best of your ability, safely keep this envelope, and that you will neither open the same nor allow it to be opened, except as provided by law, and that you will cause it to be delivered to the jury commissioners of the district court next hereafter appointed in and for this county." [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5148. [3171] And by him to the commissioners for his court.—At the first term of the district court thereafter held, it shall be the duty of the clerk to deliver said envelope to the jury commissioners or one of them appointed at said term, and to take a receipt therefor, and said receipt shall state whether the seal of said envelope be broken or not. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5149. [3172] Persons included in such lists not to be selected as jurors in district court.—After the jury commissioners appointed at said term of the district court shall have assembled for business, they shall open said envelope and read said list of names, and no person named on said list shall be selected as juror by said commissioners. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5150. [3173] Lists of jurors to be destroyed.—It shall be the duty of the jury commissioners, in both the district and county courts, before leaving the apartment in which they shall have selected jurors, to destroy said list of names; and it shall be unlawful for them, or any of them, to make known to any person the name of any juror on said lists. [Id. sec. 9.]

CHAPTER FIVE

SELECTION OF JURORS IN COUNTIES WITH CITIES OF CERTAIN POPULATION

Art.	Art.
5151. Selection of jurors in certain counties.	5155. List delivered to judge, etc.
5152. Names to be written on cards.	5156. Judge shall deliver to clerk.
5153. Cards placed in wheel; description of wheel.	5157. Disposition of cards containing names of jurors drawn.
5154. Jurors drawn by whom, when, how, etc.	5158. Proceedings in case of loss of wheel, etc.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 5151. Selection of jurors in certain counties.—That between the 1st and 15th days of August of each year, in all counties in this state having therein a city or cities containing a population aggregating twenty thousand (20,000) or more people, as shown by the United States census of date next preceding such action, the tax collector of such county or one of his deputies, together with the tax assessor of such county or one of his deputies, together with the sheriff of such county or one of his deputies, together with the county clerk of such county or one of his deputies, together with the district clerk of such county or one of his deputies, shall meet at the court house of such county and shall select from the list of qualified jurors of such county as shown by the tax lists in the tax assessor's office for the current year, the jurors for service in the district and county courts of such county for the ensuing year in the manner hereinafter provided. [Acts 1907, p. 269, sec. 1. Amended Acts 1911, p. 150, sec. 1.]

Cited, Todd v. State, 60 Cr. R. 199, 131 S. W. 606.

Constitutionality.—This law is constitutional in the opinion of the majority of the court, but Judge Davidson dissents, and is of the opinion that the law is unconstitutional and void. Logan v. State, 54 Cr. R. 74, 111 S. W. 1028; Huddleston v. State, 54 Cr. R. 93, 112 S. W. 64, 130 Am. St. Rep. 875; Brown v. State, 54 C. A. 121, 112 S. W. 80; Smith v. State, 54 Cr. R. 298, 113 S. This law has been held to be constitutional by the court of criminal appeals in Smith v. State, 54 Cr. R. 298, 113 S. W. 289, and this court in deference to that court holds the act to be constitutional. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Danforth, 53 C. A. 419, 116 S. W. 148.

This article held constitutional. Razor v. State, 57 Cr. R. 10, 121 S. W. 512.

This article is a "general" and not a special law, within Const. art. 3, § 56, prohibiting the passage of any local or special law regulating the summoning or impaneling of juries. Houston Electric Co. v. Faroux (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 922.

Denial by the supreme court of a writ of error to review a decision of the court of civil appeals adjudging the validity of this article amounts to a decision that the law is valid and is conclusive on the court of civil appeals in a subsequent case. Rice & Lyon v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 961.

Does not repeal provisions relative to summoning talesmen.—This act does not repeal the statutory provision relating to the summoning of talesmen, and where less than 24 names are drawn from the wheel the judge can order the sheriff to summon talesmen to fill up the panel. Houston Electric Co. v. Seegar, 54 C. A. 255, 117 S. W. 902, 903.

Art. 5152. Names written on cards.—The aforesaid officers shall write the names of all men who are known to be qualified jurors under the law, residing in their respective counties, on separate cards of uniform size and color, writing also on said cards, whenever possible, the post-office address of the jurors so selected. [Acts 1907, p. 269, sec. 2.]

Art. 5153. Cards placed in wheel, etc.—The cards containing the aforesaid names shall be deposited in a circular, hollow wheel, to be provided for such purpose by the commissioners' court of the county; and said wheel shall be made of iron or steel and shall be so constructed as to freely revolve on its axle; and said wheel shall be kept locked at all times, except when in use as hereinafter provided, by the use of two separate locks, so arranged that the key to one will not open the other lock; and said wheel, and the clasps thereto attached into which the locks shall be fitted, shall be so arranged that said wheel can not be opened unless both of said locks are unlocked at the time the wheel is opened; and the keys to such locks shall be kept, one by the sheriff and the other by the district clerk; and the sheriff and the clerk shall not open such wheel, nor permit the same to be opened by any person, except at the time specified in this chapter, and in the manner and by the persons herein specified; but said sheriff and clerk shall keep such wheel, when not in use, in a safe and secure place, where the same can not be tampered with. [Id. sec. 3.]

Constitutionality.—See notes under Art. 5151.

This article held constitutional. Lee v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 706.

Art. 5154. Jurors drawn by whom, when and how.—Not less than ten days prior to the first day of a term of court, the clerk of the district court, or one of his deputies, and the sheriff, or one of his deputies, in the presence and under the direction of the district judge, if jurors are to be drawn for the district court, or the clerk of the county court, or one of his deputies, and the sheriff, or one of his deputies, in the presence and under the direction of the county judge, if jurors are to be drawn for the county court, shall draw from the wheel containing the names of jurors, after the same has been well turned so that the cards therein are thoroughly mixed, one by one the names of thirty-six jurors, or a greater or less number where such judge has so directed, for each week of the term of the district or county courts for which a jury may be required, and shall record such names as they are drawn upon as many separate sheets of paper as there are weeks for such term or terms, for which jurors will be required; and, at such drawing, no person other than those above named shall be permitted to be present; and the officers attending such drawing shall not divulge the name of any person that may be drawn as a juror to any person. [Id. sec. 4.]

District clerk to draw jury.—The district clerk and not the clerk of the criminal court is the proper person to draw the jury. Jones v. State, 55 Cr. R. 535, 117 S. W. 128.

Art. 5155. List to be certified, etc.—The several lists of names drawn, as provided in the preceding article, shall be certified under the hand of the clerk or the deputy doing the drawing, and the district or county judge in whose presence said names of jurors were drawn from the wheel, to be the list drawn by said clerk for the said several weeks, and shall be sealed up in separate envelopes indorsed, "List of petit jurors for the week of the term of the court of county," (filling in the blanks properly) and the clerk, or his deputy doing the drawing, shall write his name across the seals of the envelopes and shall then immediately deliver the same to the judge in whose presence such names were drawn, or to his successor in office, in case of the death of such judge before such delivery can be made to him. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5156. Judges to deliver list to clerk.—The judge shall deliver such envelopes to the clerk, or to one of his deputies, and shall in his discretion instruct the clerk to indorse on any of such envelopes that the jury for that week shall be summoned for some other day than Monday of said week, and the judge shall, at the same time, administer to the clerk and to each of his deputies an oath in substance as follows: "You and each of you do solemnly swear that you will not open the jury lists now delivered to you, nor permit them to be opened, until the time prescribed by law, nor communicate to anyone the name or names of the men appearing on any of the jury lists, that you will not, directly or indirectly, converse or communicate with any one selected as juror concerning any case pending for trial in this court at its next term. So help you God." [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5157. Jurors drawn; disposition of cards.—When the names are drawn, as provided in article [5154], the cards containing such names shall be sealed in separate envelopes, indorsed, "Cards containing the names of jurors for the week of the term of the court of county," (filling in the blanks properly); and said envelopes shall be retained securely by the clerk, unopened, until after the jury has been impanelled for such week; and, after such jurors so impanelled have served four or more days, the envelopes containing the cards bearing the names of the jurors for that week shall then be opened by the clerk, or his deputy, and those cards bearing the names of men who have not been impanelled and who have not served as many as four days, shall be immediately returned to the wheel by the clerk, or his deputy; and the cards bearing the names of the men serving as many as four days shall be put in a box provided for that purpose for the use of the officers mentioned in article 5151, who shall next select the jurors for the wheel. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5158. Loss of wheel, etc.—If, for any reason, the wheel containing the names of jurors be lost or destroyed, with the contents thereof, or if all the cards in said wheel be drawn out, such wheel shall immediately be refurnished, and cards bearing the names of jurors shall be placed therein immediately, in accordance with articles 5151, 5152 and 5153; and the judge of the court desiring jurors for a regular or special term of his court may have the same selected in accordance with chapters 2, 3 and 4 of this title, in the event that such new wheel can not be furnished in time to comply with the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 8.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Applicability of wheel law to certain cities only.—The provision of the Code requiring that a venire should be drawn from a wheel applies only to counties containing a city of more than 20,000 population. Asbeck v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 925.

CHAPTER SIX

SELECTED JURORS—HOW SUMMONED, ETC.

Art.	Art.
5159. Clerk to make out jury lists and deliver to sheriff.	5162. Notice to jurors, how served.
5160. Sheriff to notify jurors.	5163. Time of service.
5161. Special venire, how summoned.	5164. Sheriff's return.

Article 5159. [3174] Clerk to make out jury lists and deliver to sheriff.—Within not more than thirty days and not less than ten days prior to each term of the court, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the district and county courts, respectively, to open the list of jurors selected for such term, and to make out a copy of the same, duly certified under his hand and the seal of his office, and deliver the same to the sheriff. Where the judge has directed that the jurors for any week shall be summoned for some other day than Monday, the clerk shall note such order for the information of the sheriff. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171, sec. 10.]

Art. 5160. [3175] Sheriff to notify jurors.—On the receipt of such lists it shall be the duty of the sheriff immediately to notify the several persons named in such lists to be in attendance on the court on the day and week for which they were respectively drawn to serve as jurors for said week. [Id.]

Disqualification of sheriff.—In suit on liquor dealer's bond to recover damages for unlawful sale of liquor to plaintiff's son, a motion to quash a venire, summoned by the sheriff because of his having made affidavits charging the alleged illegal sales held properly denied. Lucas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 823.

Duty in general.—A sheriff must summon a juror though he be sick. Gay v. State, 40 Cr. R. 242, 49 S. W. 612.

A sheriff must summon a juror though he claim to be exempt as being over age. Id.

Art. 5161. Special venire, how summoned.—Whenever district court shall have convened, and a day shall have been set for the trial of the different capital cases which call for a special venire, the men whose names may have been drawn to answer summons to the venire facias in the different capital cases shall be immediately notified by the sheriff to be in attendance on the court on the day and week for which they were respectively drawn to serve as veniremen for said day and week; and such notice shall be given at least one day prior to the time when such duty is to be performed, exclusive of the day of service. [Acts 1905, p. 17.]

Art. 5162. [3176] Notice to jurors, how served.—Such notice may be orally delivered by the sheriff to the juror in person, or in case such juror can not be found, then a written memorandum thereof, signed by the sheriff officially, may be left at the juror's place of residence, with some member of his family over sixteen years of age. [Acts Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171.]

Notice by mail.—The method of summoning jurors prescribed by this article should be obeyed, and the sheriff who attempts to summon jurors personally should not merely give them notice by mail. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

Jurors attending because of notice given in another manner than as provided in this article are not subject to challenge, the statute not being mandatory but merely directory, and so where talesmen were given notice by mail, challenges to their competency were properly overruled where it did not appear that the challenging party was in any way prejudiced. Id.

It was not ground for a challenge to array that the jury had been summoned by postal card, instead of orally, where the actual attendance of the jurors was thereby secured; the statute being merely directory, and no such grounds of challenge to array being specified by Arts. 5188-5201, relating thereto. Miller v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 591.

Art. 5163. [3177] Time of service.—Such notice shall be served at least three days prior to the first day of the term of court, exclusive of the day of service.
