Letters containing admissions by a husband as to the land designated by him as a homestead out of a larger tract were admissible in evidence in a suit to foreclose a deed of trust on other land in the same tract. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1003.

Where breach of warranty was pleaded, letters from purchaser to seller, asking him to hold up notes given for the price were admissible to contradict the purchaser's testimony that the machinery sold commenced giving trouble after running only a few days, and broke down almost every day thereafter. American Laundry Machinery Mfg. Co. v. Belcher (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 853.

26. — Valuation of property for taxation.—Original signed assessment lists are admissible against the makers. Jones v. Cummins, 17 C. A. 661, 43 S. W. 854.

Where plaintiff had testified that he had accumulated by his practice property worth $4,000 a year, defendant was not entitled to show that he had rendered his property for taxation at a much smaller sum. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Goswick (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 423.

In proceedings by a railroad to condemn defendant's lot, testimony as to the value at which the lot was rendered for taxes held admissible as an admission on defendant's part. Hengy v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 402.

Evidence of plaintiff's valuation of the property for taxation which was less than the value claimed in the action held admissible as an admission against interest. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Koch (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1035.

A rendition for taxes, wherein an animal killed by a railroad company was listed, held admissible as an admission against plaintiff. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Chisholm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 988.

27. Oral statements.—In an action on a lease alleged to have been made by an agent of the lessee, evidence held to show an agency in making the lease. Autrey v. Linn (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 197.

28. Acts or conduct.—Agency may be proved by the acts and declarations of the principal. Greneaux v. Wheeler, 6 T. 519; Latham v. Pledger, 11 T. 439; McAlpin v. Ziller, 17 T. 508; Chambers v. Hodges, 23 T. 104. By his subsequent ratification of the agent's acts. Kempner v. Rosenthal, 81 T. 12, 16 S. W. 639. See Meyer v. Smith, 21 S. W. 995, 3 C. A. 37; Railway Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 118; Henderson v. Railroad Co., 17 T. 560, 67 Am. Dec. 675; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson, 61 T. 491.

That a railway company has repaired its track at the place of an alleged injury, and subsequent thereto, is not admissible as evidence of negligence. Railway Co. v. Ayres, 83 T. 268, 18 S. W. 684.

Evidence of improved methods adopted by the company after the accident, and in consequence thereof, is not primarily admissible; but when admitted in rebuttal of the evidence of the opposite party, and the jury are specially instructed as to the purpose for which it has been admitted, such action is not ground for reversal. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 1 C. A. 221, 21 S. W. 1024.

The principle that subsequent repairs at the place of an accident are not evidence of negligence at the time thereof does not apply to the removal of a car after an accident alleged to be due to leaving it standing improperly. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. St. Clair, 21 C. A. 345, 51 S. W. 666.

In a suit for the overflow of land caused by the obstruction of a ditch, evidence that on the removal of the obstruction the water receded was not inadmissible as proof of prior negligence by subsequent repairs. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 424.

Where defendant railroad company introduced evidence to show that a track obstruction by which an employe was injured was a necessary structure, cross-examination was admissible as to whether the structure was altered after the accident. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 413, 67 S. W. 446.

In an action by a servant for injuries due to the defective rigging of a derrick, evidence that defendant, shortly after the accident, spoke of the improper rigging of the derrick and directed that it be changed, held admissible. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 203.

In an action for damages caused by the construction of a railroad, an offer by the railroad company to grade down the street in front of the property, made some time after the action was instituted, was not admissible. Pochila v. Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 398, 72 S. W. 255.

In an action against a railroad for the destruction of plaintiff's crop by waters flowing onto his lands through a ditch constructed by defendant along the line of its road, evidence of the erection of a dam by defendant after the destruction of the crop held admissible. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Longbottom (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 542.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman by derailment at a derailing switch, evidence that after the accident defendant cleared the ground of weeds and grass at that point held inadmissible. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Arnold, 39 C. A. 161, 87 S. W. 173.

In an action for injuries to a passenger in a collision between the car and a train at a crossing, proof that after the accident the street railway company adopted a certain rule held inadmissible. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Andrews, 44 C. A. 426, 99 S. W. 871.

In trespass to try title, certain evidence held admissible as an admission by a predecessor in title. Chew v. Jackson, 45 C. A. 656, 102 S. W. 427.

Where defendants inherited from their mother a tract which she received from plaintiff in consideration of the transfer of a land certificate, and sold it with knowledge of that fact, they cannot recover the land located thereunder by assailing her right to transfer it, without offering to return the land received by her therefor or its value. Vann v. Denson, 56 C. A. 220, 120 S. W. 1020.

An engineer, suing for injuries in a rear-end collision, held entitled to plead a habitual disregard of a rule regulating the operation of trains, with the knowledge of the railroad. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 613.

In an employe's action for personal injuries by falling into machinery, evidence held inadmissible that plaintiff's superintendent directed a platform to be built after plaintiff's injuries, in order to prevent others from falling where he fell. Dallas Oil & Refining Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 418.

Evidence that after the accident defect in an anvil was remedied was incompetent to show that it could have been remedied, especially where the evidence was indefinite as to what was done and its effect. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Meakin (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1057.

29. — Suppressing testimony.—In an action for personal injury to a servant, that defendant failed to have present at the trial witnesses who were present at the accident can be inquired into as a circumstance tending to show that defendant was negligent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 453.

30. — Compromise or settlement.—Proof of settlements with other persons injured in same collision is inadmissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 167.

Evidence of settlement by defendant with another for injury received at the same time plaintiff was injured held error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Keaveney (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 387.

In an action for injuries received through being thrown from defendant's automobile, certain evidence held inadmissible as a confession of negligence on defendant's part. Routledge v. Rambler Automobile Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 749.

In an action against a railroad company and a traction company for injuries to a passenger of the latter in a collision, evidence of settlements made with other passengers of the traction company held only admissible as affecting the credibility of its witnesses. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Knowles, 44 C. A. 172, 99 S. W. 867.

In an action for personal injury to a servant, it was admissible to show that a witness was injured at the same time plaintiff was, but not that defendant had settled for his injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 453.

Evidence, in an action by a railroad employe for injuries of the amount for which he had settled a similar claim against another railroad company, held inadmissible. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 1150.

Policy of railroad company of settling all fire claims held not to render inadmissible proof of such a settlement, in an action by an insurer for a fire loss paid. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. of London, Eng. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 401.

In an action for injuries to a servant, defendant may not show a settlement, the result of a compromise by plaintiff with an insurance company on an accident policy. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 175.

31. Acquiescence or silence.—In an action to recover land claimed by defendant under a parol partition, declarations of plaintiff, during a conversation at which all the parties were present, held admissible. Long v. Long, 30 C. A. 363, 70 S. W. 587.

In an action against the members of a banking firm as partners, certain evidence held admissible on the issue of partnership. Hoskins v. Velasco Nat. Bank, 48 C. A. 246, 107 S. W. 598.

Acquiescence, to have the effect of an admission, must exhibit some act of the mind, and amount to a voluntary demeanor or conduct of the party. Bass v. Tolbert, 51 C. A. 437, 112 S. W. 1077.

Where, in an action to recover land, defendant admitted the execution of a written statement reciting that plaintiff was entitled to an interest in the land, the fact that plaintiff, when employing an attorney to write a deed to the interest claimed, said nothing about his having such written statement was immaterial. Childress v. Tate (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 843.

32. — Failure to deny or object to oral statements in general.—In an action against a railroad for injuries to minor from being struck by railroad train, held proper to permit witness to testify as to what a boy had said to the minor as to how the accident occurred, to which the latter assented. Over v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 535.

In an action for breach of a contract to deliver cattle, certain admissions and declarations held admissible. McKay v. Elder (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 268.

Mere silence of a party, when facts are asserted in his presence, does not authorize a presumption of acquiescence, unless the conversation is addressed to him. Bass v. Tolbert, 51 C. A. 437, 112 S. W. 1077.

Statements made in the presence of a party, without contradiction by him, held not to be construed as an admission by him of a fact referred to. Hansen v. Williams (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 312.

33. — Necessity that oral statement be heard and understood.—The failure of a party to deny alleged statements is not competent, unless it appears that he heard the statements and understood their meaning. Cabiness v. Holland (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 63.

II. By Parties or Others Interested in Event

34. Parties of record.—The confessions of a party, when not sustained by other evidence, are not admissible. Sheffield v. Sheffield, 3 T. 79.

An admission of plaintiff tending to show payment is admissible. Wells v. Fairbank, 5 T. 582.

The admissions of a garnishee are admissible in evidence to contradict his answer. Watson v. Montgomery, 4 App. C. C. § 74, 16 S. W. 546.

Admissions of party are evidence against him. Rodriguez v. Espinosa (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 669; Keesey v. Old, 82 T. 22, 17 S. W. 928.

Statements of some of the heirs that a former partition embraced the land in suit held admissible against them. Shelburn v. McCrocklin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 329.

Certain evidence held admissible to show that defendant had made some admissions as to liability for commissions to plaintiff. Fant v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 909.

Action held on an open account, so that evidence of plaintiff's declaration that he did not expect anything was admissible. Schutze v. Von Boeckmann, 22 C. A. 112, 53 S. W. 836.

In an action on a life insurance policy, written declaration of insured that the policy had not been delivered and that he had not paid the premium, and desired it canceled, was admissible. Atkins v. New York Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 563.

On an issue as to the terms of a cropping contract, a statement by plaintiff to defendant after receiving a draft of the contract held admissible as an admission against interest. Morgan v. Tims, 44 C. A. 308, 97 S. W. 832.

Where plaintiff claimed the proceeds of a beneficiary certificate as insured's affianced wife, her declaration that the engagement had been broken was admissible against her. Grand Lodge Colored Knights of Pythias v. Mackey (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 907.

In an action to foreclose a lien given by a married woman on her homestead situated on her separate property, declarations of defendant tending to show abandonment by her husband held admissible on that issue. Mabry v. Citizens' Lumber Co., 47 C. A. 443, 105 S. W. 1156.

Where defendants claim title to land by adverse possession, evidence as to statements made by one of them after they had held possession for sufficient time to complete the bar of the statute was admissible, as tending to show the real nature of their possession. Whittaker v. Thayer (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1137.

Where a person was a party defendant and also a witness, any statements made previous to the trial which tended to show any of the material facts upon which the plaintiff relied for a recovery, were admissible against him as substantive evidence. Texarkana Gas & Electric Co. v. Lanier (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 67.

In trespass to try title evidence of declarations by plaintiff as to his lack of interest in the land held admissible. Bender v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 653.

The testimony of the attorney for plaintiff suing on an open account as to admissions by defendant of the indebtedness sued on is admissible. Graves v. Smith (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 489.

An admission by plaintiff that he had obtained other insurance contrary to a provision in the policy sued on was competent as original evidence. Philadelphia Underwriters Agency of Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Brown (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 899.

In an action against a partner for goods sold to the firm, evidence that defendant told plaintiff he was connected with the firm as a partner and obtained credit for the firm was admissible. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 551.

Declarations of defendant to a third person, that the debt would mature in four months after it was incurred, held admissible to support plaintiff's allegations as to the maturity of the debt. Whitten v. Whitten (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 277.

35. — Nominal and unnecessary parties.—A wife held not bound by declarations of husband, he being only nominal party to suit. Thompson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 591.

Where the sole controversy is between plaintiff, as assignee of a contract, and defendant, evidence of admissions made by the assignor should be excluded, though he is a mere formal party to the action. Hall v. Clountz, 26 C. A. 348, 63 S. W. 941.

36. Interest in suit of persons not parties.—On the question whether A. was the real purchaser of property, or whether B. was the purchaser, and it was taken in A.'s name to protect it from B.'s creditors, statements by B. concerning the purpose of an attempted purchase by him, though made when A. was not present, held admissible under instructions of court relating thereto. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 553.

37. Joint interest.—In an action to set aside a will for undue influence, evidence of declarations by one legatee, since deceased, is not admissible to affect the interest of the other legatees, where no collusion is shown to have existed. Helsley v. Moss, 52 C. A. 57, 113 S. W. 599.

III. By Grantors, Former Owners, or Privies.

38. Privies and former owners in general.—The rule against evidence of declarations of a vendor to defeat the vendee's title, applies to other transactions as well as sales, and the declarations of a lender, made after the loan and without the presence or knowledge of the borrower, cannot be introduced to prove that the loan was simulated. Hinson v. Walker, 65 T. 103.

Certain declarations of one under whom defendants claimed title by prescription held inadmissible. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. A. G. & J. C. Broom, 53 C. A. 78, 114 S. W. 655.

Declarations of one under whom defendants claimed by prescription as to the extent of his claim were admissible, though he was still living. Id.

39. Grantors, vendors or mortgagors of real property.—A grantor may testify, as against his grantee, that he had actual notice of an adverse title to part of the land at the time he purchased. Campbell v. Antis, 21 C. A. 161, 51 S. W. 343.

In an action to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of certain land by a husband to his wife, reports made by him to certain commercial agencies, of which the wife had no knowledge, were inadmissible against her. Maffi v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 158.

In trespass to try title, the exclusion of evidence that plaintiff's grantor attempted to get a third person to execute a deed of the land to him which she refused held not error. Robertson v. Hefley, 55 C. A. 368, 118 S. W. 1159.

Admissibility of declarations by a grantor stated. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

Where a husband conveyed land to his wife, proof that it was assessed in his name, and that he claimed it, was inadmissible after his death to affect the wife's title and establish a trust. Yndo v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 920.

Declarations by a grantor before or after the execution of a deed are not competent to prove fraud and undue influence. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 527.

In trespass to try title, testimony that a grantor of the land was directed by plaintiff's grantor, who paid the purchase price, to make another through whom defendant claimed, the grantee, and that such grantee would afterwards convey the land to the purchaser, held admissible, where it appeared that the grantee was present and agreed to the arrangement. Mortimer v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 341.

Testimony of statements by defendants' grantor that he had no title to the land in question and was going to quit and abandon his claim is admissible against defendants, being admissions against the grantor's interest. Rice v. Taliaferro (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 242.

40. — Before conveyance or transfer of possession.—In 1868 S., an administrator of an estate, sold a tract of land to R. The sale was approved and conveyance duly made. In 1869 S. purchased one-half of the land from R., and formed a partnership with him in farming. At the close of the year they disagreed, and S. conveyed to R. his interest in the land. In 1876 certain creditors of the estate, whose claim had been allowed, brought suit against R. to set aside the sale on various grounds, one of which was that there was collusion between R. and S., who was interested in the purchase, and in support of the last ground plaintiffs offered evidence of the statements of S. during 1869, and while in possession of the land, to the effect that he was equally interested with R. in the land, etc. These statements were not made in the presence of R., and were not admissible against him. Johnson v. Richardson, 52 T. 481.

The declarations of a person through whom parties claim title to land, if made while the title was in him, are admissible as evidence against such parties to show the extent of his title and the character of his holding. Hancock v. Tram Lumber Co., 65 T. 225.

In an action by a receiver of a bank to foreclose a mortgage to secure a debt to the bank, the declarations of the mortgagor, after the execution of the notes secured, in the presence of the agent of the receiver, held admissible. Watts v. Dubois (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

41. — After conveyance or transfer of title in general.—A declaration or admission of a vendor of land made after he has parted with his title and possession is hearsay, and is not admissible to disparage or impeach the title of his vendee. Thompson v. Her-ring, 27 T. 282.

Declarations of a vendor, made after his conveyance of title, are not admissible in disparagement of the title conveyed. Smith v. McElyea, 68 T. 70, 3 S. W. 258.

Declarations of a vendor, made after sale without the presence or knowledge of the purchaser, are not admissible to defeat the purchaser's title. Smith v. James (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 792.

Admissions by a grantor that he intended by his deed to convey certain lands to plaintiff, made after a later sale of all his lands to defendant, are insufficient to show mistake in deed. Hatcher v. Stipe (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 329.

Declarations of vendor as to title made after sale held inadmissible against vendee. Sanger v. Jesse French Plano & Organ Co., 21 C. A. 523, 52 S. W. 621.

In an action to recover a piano from a person purchasing from a conditional vendee, notes given plaintiff by such conditional vendee are inadmissible. Id.

In a suit to try title, where both parties claimed under a conveyance by an assignee in bankruptcy, held, that a report filed by the assignee was not admissible. Beall v. Chatham, 100 T. 371, 99 S. W. 1116.

The recital of a consideration in a subsequent deed by grantor held incompetent to prove the fact of consideration against prior grantee. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 505, 109 S. W. 909.

Evidence that defendant's grantor in possession after conveyance had surrendered possession to plaintiff held admissible in trespass to try title where defendants relied on limitations. Pardue v. Whitfield, 53 C. A. 63, 115 S. W. 306.

On the issue as to the execution of a lost deed, testimony of a witness as to statements made to him by the grantor in such deed is admissible. Freeman v. Wm. M. Rice Institute (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 629.

42. — Showing nature of conveyance.—A grantor in a deed cannot give character to his act by declarations made a long time thereafter. Wallace v. Berry, 83 T. 328, 18 S. W. 595.

The contemporaneous or subsequent declarations of a party tending to show his purpose in having a deed made to a particular person are admissible against him or any one claiming under him. Branch v. Makeig, 28 S. W. 1050, 9 C. A. 399; Hall v. Hall, 52 T. 294, 36 Am. Rep. 725; Haley v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 382; Railway Co. v. Duty (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 463.

Declarations of stockholder that conveyance to association was for particular purpose only is inadmissible after he has parted with interest in association. Long v. Moore, 19 C. A. 363, 48 S. W. 43.

Evidence of statements, made by a grantor after the execution of absolute deeds, as to the purpose of the deeds, held inadmissible to affect the interests of the grantees. McKnight v. Reed, 30 C. A. 204, 71 S. W. 318.

That a grantor subsequent to execution and delivery to a third person in escrow for delivery to the grantee after the grantor's death listed the property for sale could not be proved after the grantor's death as against grantee. Henry v. Phillips, 105 T. 459, 151 S. W. 533.

43. — Showing fraud.—The rendering for taxation by a husband in his own name of land which he had conveyed to his wife is not evidence against his wife that the conveyance was in trust for his benefit. O'Neal v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 545.

Declaration of grantor that conveyance was fraudulent held admissible, where it was part of a conversation drawn out by grantee claiming title. Moulton v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1114.

44. — After conveyance but before transfer of possession.—Declarations of judgment debtor as to ownership of land after conveyance held inadmissible in a contest between his grantee and judgment creditor for crops thereon. Stephens v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 328.

Declaration of grantor in possession of real estate that conveyance thereof was simulated is admissible against grantee. Cooper v. Friedman, 23 C. A. 585, 57 S. W. 581.

45. Sellers or mortgagors of chattels.—The declarations of the grantor of a trust deed in disparagement of the title, not made in the presence of the trustee, are inadmissible in an action against the trustee and the beneficiaries. Boltz v. Engelke (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 899.

A declaration made by a mortgagor of certain cattle to a witness, in the absence of assignees of a mortgage thereon, with reference to the cattle included therein, held inadmissible against such assignees. Scott v. Llano County Bank, 99 T. 221, 89 S. W. 749.

In an action against a surety on a debt secured by a mortgage on cattle, a statement made by the mortgagor to one of the assignees of the mortgage at time of a sale of the cattle held admissible. Id.

46. — Before transfer or delivery of possession.—The acts and declarations of an insolvent debtor, made before the transfer of his property to the parties claiming in an action for the trial of the right of property, though not in their presence, are admissible to show that the purpose of the sale was to defraud creditors. They would not of course affect the vendees unless they were chargeable with notice of the fraud, but it is not necessary that they should be present when the fraudulent design was formed or expressed by the vendor in order to bring such notice home to them. If brought to their knowledge, either actually or constructively, before their purchase, it is sufficient to vitiate the sale. McKinnon v. Reliance Lumber Co., 63 T. 30.

Where plaintiff had attached property sold by defendant, and in a third person's possession, statements made by defendant before the sale held admissible on the issue of fraudulent intent of defendant. D'Arrigo v. Texas Produce Co., 18 C. A. 41, 44 S. W. 531.

47. — After transfer or delivery of possession.—The declarations of the vendor made after the sale, and without the presence or knowledge of the vendee, cannot be introduced to defeat the vendee's title to the property conveyed. Grooms v. Rust, 27 T. 231; Carlton v. Baldwin, 27 T. 572; Thompson v. Herring, 27 T. 282; Hinson v. Walker, 65 T. 103; Garrahy v. Green, 32 T. 203; Walker v. Cole, 24 S. W. 76, 5 C. A. 179; Harrison v. Hawley, 26 S. W. 765, 7 C. A. 308; Smith v. Dunman, 29 S. W. 432, 9 C. A. 319; Hilburn v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 925.

In a suit involving the question of fraud in the sale of goods as between the vendee and third parties, the declarations of the vendor, made after their sale and delivery, and when the vendee was not present, are not admissible in evidence as to the question of fraud. Schmick v. Noel, 64 T. 406.

The declarations of the grantor after sale are not admissible to impeach the title of the grantee; but the exception to the rule is well established that such declarations are admissible when a prima facie case of combination or conspiracy has been made by the evidence. Hamburg v. Wood, 66 T. 168, 18 S. W. 623.

The main issue in the case being fraud vel non in the sale of goods from S. to his brother before the levy of a writ of attachment, held, that the court erred in refusing to permit appellants to prove on cross-examination certain declarations made by one of the parties to the sale, in relation to his brother's connection with the goods, tending to prove that the latter's claim to the goods was fraudulent, even though these declarations were made subsequent to the pretended sale. The burden of proving the fraud rested upon appellants, and they were relying upon circumstantial evidence to prove it. In such cases great latitude is allowed in the admission of evidence, and any fact which affords a fair presumption or inference as to the real object and intention of the parties may be submitted to the jury. Mayo v. Savoni, 1 App. C. C. § 217. Citing Wright v. Linn, 16 T. 34; Garahy v. Bayley, 25 T. Sup. 294.

In a suit involving the priority of liens claimed by the defendants, the admission of one as to a question of indebtedness between themselves was competent, but could not affect the claim of the plaintiff. Overstreet v. Manning, 67 T. 657, 4 S. W. 248.

The declarations of a vendor made after the sale by him are not admissible to affect the title to the property sold, in a controversy between third parties. Boaz v. Schneider, 69 T. 123, 6 S. W. 402; Copp v. Swift (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 438.

Testimony of a seller held admissible to show that the sale was fraudulent and the buyer's title bad. Schmitt v. Jacques, 26 C. A. 125, 62 S. W. 956.

Declarations of a seller, made after the sale, not in the presence of or known to the buyer, held inadmissible to defeat the buyer's title. Bruce v. Bruce (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 435.

The declarations of an assignor of property, subsequent to the assignment, that tend to defeat the assignment, are not admissible in evidence, though the assignor has since died. Crawford v. Hord, 40 C. A. 352, 89 S. W. 1097.

48. — After parting with title but before change of possession.—In an action to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance from a bankrupt to his wife, the bankruptcy schedules were inadmissible against the wife for any purpose. Maffi v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 158.

49. Assignors for benefit of creditors.—In May, 1854, S. made an assignment for the benefit of certain creditors. Afterwards an execution on a judgment against S. was levied on the property in possession of the assignee, who applied for an injunction to restrain sale. In support of an allegation by the creditor that the assignment was fraudulent, he offered in evidence a letter written by S. some time after the assignment, disclosing the fact that he had reserved a certain amount in money and notes from the assignment. Held, that the letter was inadmissible. Carlton v. Baldwin, 27 T. 572; Fox & Bro. v. Willis, 60 T. 373.

50. Donors.—In 1851 A. by deed of gift conveyed to B. certain personal property and delivered possession of the same. A declaration made by A. in 1855 was not admissible in evidence for the purpose of engrafting a trust on the deed. Grooms v. Rust, 27 T. 231.

On the 14th of July, 1868, R. conveyed to his wife certain property of which her ownership had ever since been recognized. On the 6th of July, 1874, a writ of attachment sued out against the husband on a debt created October 3, 1872, was levied on the property. The wife claimed the property, and on the trial of the right of property the sheriff testified that R. pointed out the property to him; that he declared the same to be his, but that he had put the property in his wife's name to avoid just such trouble and cases as this. Held, that the evidence, although admitted without objection, was incompetent to impeach the title of the wife to the property. De Garca v. Galvan, 55 T. 53.

A husband's declarations in derogation of his wife's title to land by parol gift are inadmissible when made after her rights had accrued. La Master v. Dickson, 17 C. A. 473, 43 S. W. 911.

51. Assignors of rights in action in general.—The declarations of an assignor of a claim, made after its transfer to another, cannot be used in evidence against the assignee to invalidate the contract out of which the claim originated. reed v. Herring, 37 T. 160.

52. Former holders of bills or notes.—As against a holder after maturity, the admissions of a payee before indorsement are competent evidence to establish defenses against the holder. Goodson v. Johnson, 35 T. 622.

The declarations of the payee of a note made after maturity, and while he owns and holds the same, when made against his interest, are admissible against a subsequent assignee. Wagoner v. Rupy, 69 T. 700, 7 S. W. 80.

Letter from payee to maker, written after indorsement of note to third person, held inadmissible against him. Ricker Nat. Bank v. Brown (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 909.

53. Testators and intestates.—The issue being whether a decedent had, in his lifetime, made a gift to the defendant of certain notes for which the suit was brought against him by the defendant's administrator, and the defendant having adduced on the trial evidence sufficient to establish the gift, held, that the declarations of the decedent made subsequently to the alleged gift, and tending to show that a gift was not in fact made, were not admissible in evidence. Griffin v. Stadler, 35 T. 695.

The declarations of a vendor, made at the time of sale, that a street abutted on one of the lines of the land sold, are admissible to show a dedication of the ground by the ancestor to public use. Burnett v. Harrington, 70 T. 213, 7 S. W. 812.

Declarations of a testator admissible against his legatee in a suit relating to the property devised by the will. Curtis v. Wilson, 2 C. A. 646, 21 S. W. 787.

Declarations and pleadings of the ancestor, containing admissions, held admissible against plaintiffs suing as heirs for land. Warner v. Sapp (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 125.

In trespass to try title, in which defendants claimed by adverse possession, testimony of a witness that he had a conversation many years before with defendants' predecessor, in which he made no claim to the land in question, may be rejected by the court, though uncontradicted; the predecessor being dead. Appel v. Childress, 53 C. A. 607, 116 S. W. 129.

A declaration by the ancestor against his interest, which would be admissible against him, if living, is admissible against his heirs. Ruedas v. O'Shea (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 891.

In trespass to try title, where plaintiffs claimed as heirs of D., contending that D. and Y., who acquired title to the land, were married, and that the land was community property, testimony of a witness that D., who died some years before the suit was brought, told him that he was not married to Y., but claimed the children, and had offered to marry Y., was admissible as a declaration against interest. Id.

IV. By Agents or Other Representatives

54. Authority in general.—Evidence of third person's actions and declarations, unconnected with party except by inference of authority from his relation to such person, is inadmissible. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wallace, 21 C. A. 394, 53 S. W. 77.

In an action for damages to personal property wrongfully removed from a leased building, the consent of a third person to the removal held immaterial on the issue of actual damages, in the absence of proof that the third person had authority to give such consent. Temple v. Duran (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 253.

In trespass to try title, evidence of statements by one in possession of the land as to plaintiff's title is inadmissible, where it did not appear that he was plaintiff's agent authorized to make such admissions. Rice v. Taliaferro (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 242.

55. Authority at time of admission.—In an action for breach of a contract of sale, held, that the promises of the agent who negotiated the sale are admissible against his principal. Gaines & Edmiston v. Perry Bros. & Rice (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 755.

56. Interest of party or representative.—In an action against a railroad for injuries to minor from his being struck by a railroad train, held error to admit testimony of a witness as to what the minor's parents had told him, when he told them they should keep the minor from jumping on trains. Over v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 535.

In an action by plaintiff to set aside a judgment, obtained against him during his minority, canceling a deed to him, held error to admit evidence as to certain statements made by the grantor's son. Johnson v. Johnson, 38 C. A. 385, 85 S. W. 1023.

57. Agents or employes in general.—The statements and admissions of an agent within the scope of his authority are binding on his principal. M. P. Ry. Co. v. Rountree, 2 App. C. C. § 389.

The admissions and declarations (Aultman v. York, 71 T. 261, 9 S. W. 127) of an agent within the line of his authority (Labbe v. Corbett, 69 T. 503, 6 S. W. 808), and as to current transactions, are competent evidence against his principal. Railway Co. v.

Gernan, 84 T. 141, 19 S. W. 461; Western Union Beef Co. v. Kirchevalle [Civ. App.] 26 S. W. 147; Railway Co. v. Ragsdale, 67 T. 24, 2 S. W. 515; Irvine v. Grady, 85 T. 120, 19 S. W. 1028).

An admission of an agent as to matters not within his line of duty not admissible in evidence. Telegraph Co. v. Bennett, 21 S. W. 699, 1 C. A. 558; Railway Co. v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 98; Land & Imp. Co. v. Caughlin, 9 C. A. 340, 29 S. W. 185.

Declarations of an agent in the discharge of his duties are admissible against the principal. W. U. Beef Co. v. Kirchevalle (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 147; Railway Co. v. Gernan, 84 T. 141, 19 S. W. 461.

Evidence that a certain person claimed to be defendant's agent, and acted as such, is admissible after the fact of agency has been shown by other evidence. Loeb v. Crow, 15 C. A. 537, 40 S. W. 506.

In an action for goods shipped to defendant to be used in constructing his house, evidence that the contractor took the goods from the depot is admissible. Watson v. Winston (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 852.

Testimony that broker told witness that defendant had left him to close contract held admissible after evidence of agency. Gilliland v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 168.

Where agency is established, evidence of the acts and declarations of the agent in connection with the subject-matter of the agency is admissible. Autrey v. Linn (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 197.

In an action on contract, evidence that defendant's agent said that he would advise defendant to settle was admissible to disprove an averment in the answer that plaintiff had abandoned his contract. S. W. Slayden & Co. v. Palmo (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 649.

58. — Statements by subagent or special agent.—The declarations of a sub-agent appointed by the agent without authority are not binding on the principal. Goldfrank v. Half (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 778.

In an action by a receiver of a bank to foreclose a mortgage to secure a debt to the bank, declarations of a third person, employed by the agent of the receiver to procure the mortgage, to one of the mortgagors, held admissible. Watts v. Dubois (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

A statement of a sub-insurance agent for plaintiff that he would correct the health record of defendant, who had been rejected, after which he should be at liberty to accept the policy, or not, held admissible against plaintiff in a suit on a note for premium on the original policy. Waggoner v. Burg (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 342.

59. — Scope and extent of agency or employment.—Where the acts of an agent may be shown to affect his principal, his declarations relating to the act, made while transacting the business, may ordinarily be shown. But the mere fact that an agent was authorized to buy goods for his principal would not authorize the introduction of declarations made by him, unknown to and unauthorized by his principal, to the effect that he, the agent, was the owner of goods then in the store or to be bought. Hinson v. Walker, 65 T. 104.

One holding out a person as his agent is bound by his acts within the scope of his apparent authority. Bank v. Martin, 70 T. 643, 8 S. W. 507, 8 Am. St. Rep. 632.

See facts showing the connection of an agent with the business of his principal, touching the stock of merchandise seized while in possession of such agent, such as to render the acts and declarations of the agent at and before the levy admissible against his principal in a trial of the right of property in the stock. Gilmour v. Heinze, 85 T. 76, 19 S. W. 1075.

In an action for death of plaintiff's wife at a railroad crossing, plaintiff's chauffeur, in giving his testimony at the inquest, was not the plaintiff's agent, and his statements could not be considered as admissions on the part of the plaintiff. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dumas (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 543.

Statement of defendant's agent subsequent to plaintiff's injury, and not while the transaction was pending, that plaintiff should not worry about his job, that it was not his fault, and defendant would take care of him was a mere opinion, not admissible against defendant in an action for the injury. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 327.

61. — Showing agency, authority or employment.—As a general rule, the declarations or admissions of one who assumes to be agent of another are not of themselves admissible to prove such agency; when his agency is proved, his representations in relation to acts within the scope of his authority, which are a part of the res gestæ, are admissible in evidence against the principal. Latham v. Pledger, 11 T. 439; Wright v. Doherty, 50 T. 34.

Declarations of agent are inadmissible to prove his agency. Brady v. Nagle (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 943; McGregor v. Hudson, 30 S. W. 489; Bartley v. Rhodes, 33 S. W. 604; Dyer v. Winston, 33 C. A. 412, 77 S. W. 227; Tabet v. Powell (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 997; Eastland v. Maney, 36 C. A. 147, 81 S. W. 574.

While as a general rule the declarations or admissions of one who assumes to be an agent for another are not of themselves admissible to prove such agency (Owen v. N. Y. & T. Land Co., 11 C. A. 284, 32 S. W. 189), they are admissible in connection with other facts tending to prove agency, though not of themselves sufficient to establish such agency (W. & W. Mfg. Co. v. Crossland, 2 App. C. C. § 80; F. W. & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Johnson, 2 App. C. C. § 232; M. P. Ry. Co. v. Rountree, 2 App. C. C. § 387).

Evidence that a certain person told plaintiff he was defendant's agent held inadmissible. Ft. Worth Live-Stock Commission Co. v. Hitson (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 915.

The mere statement of a party, placing mortgaged property in the hands of another to be sold, that he did so as an agent of the mortgagees, held insufficient to establish the fact of such agency. Solinsky v. O'Connor (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 935.

The fact of agency cannot be shown by proof of plaintiff's declarations to others in the course of his employment. Ehrenworth v. Putnam (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 190.

A person's direct testimony that he is the agent of another is not objectionable as proving the agency by the declaration of the agent. American Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Kersh, 27 C. A. 127, 66 S. W. 74.

Agency cannot be proved by the acts or declarations of the agent, which are not shown to have been known by the principal. M. A. Cooper & Co. v. Sawyer, 31 C. A. 620, 73 S. W. 992.

In an action for damages for breach of warranty in sale of a machine held error to admit declarations of the agent who sold the machine to the effect that he was the state agent for defendant. Aultman & Taylor Mach. Co. v. Cappleman, 36 C. A. 523, 81 S. W. 1243.

Agency may not be established by the declarations of an alleged agent. Higley v. Dennis, 40 C. A. 133, 88 S. W. 400.

While agency cannot be proved by the declaration of the agent, such declaration held a circumstance, in connection with other facts, to prove agency. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cunningham, 51 C. A. 368, 113 S. W. 767.

The acts or statements of an alleged agent are not admissible, in the absence of other evidence to prove the agency. Madeley v. Kellam (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 659.

The admissibility in evidence of statements of an employé depends on the powers delegated to him. Id.

Conversations between a carrier's conductor of a cattle train and a shipper at the time the conductor obtained a 36-hour permit held admissible. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Dinwiddle (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 280.

An agreement by telegraph company's agent, while in the performance of his duty, to notify the sender of a message whether it was delivered, and his subsequent statement to the sender that it was delivered, held admissible; the rule as to admissions by agents being inapplicable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 607.

In an action by a shipper, evidence of a telephone conversation between the shipper and a person in the carrier's office as to the care of the cattle, objected to on the ground that it did not appear he was the company's agent, held properly admitted, the shipper subsequently calling at the defendant's office, finding the person with whom he had talked, and then talking over the phone with an agent of the defendant. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 206.

Agreements or concessions by plaintiff's superintendents with reference to another part of its right of way than that in controversy, though a part of the same section, were not admissible in evidence, in trespass to try title between it and another railroad company. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 850.

Acts and declarations of a railroad station agent, authorized to contract that the railroad would furnish cars at a certain place and date, with reference to his agreement to do so, are admissible when a controversy arises as to what his agreement was. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 305.

In an action for damages to a shipment of cattle, testimony of a witness to a conversation between defendant's agent and plaintiff as to plaintiff's order for cars for a certain date and that the agent exhibited to witness the record showing that plaintiff had ordered the cars for that date, held not inadmissible as hearsay. Id.

A notation, by an employé of a carrier on the expense bill: "Eight cows more or less stove up. * * * Some few skinned, apparently by rough handling"—is admissible in an action for injury to the live stock shipment; a predicate being laid by a showing of authority in such employé to make the notation. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Galloway (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 653.

65. Public officers or agents.—In an action against a city and individual members of a water, light, and power commission for personal injuries to an employé, conversation between the chairman of the commission and his son, who was plaintiff's foreman, held admissible. City of Austin v. Forbis (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 29.

In an action for injuries to a servant, declarations made by the chairman of defendant water and light commission held inadmissible without proof that he was a general agent, authorized to adjust claims, etc. City of Austin v. Forbis, 99 T. 234, 89 S. W. 405.

In an action for personal injuries, certain statements of an agent made after the accident held admissible. City of Austin v. Nuchols, 42 C. A. 5, 94 S. W. 336.

In trespass to try title by a county to recover school lands, declarations of certain officials against the interest of the county held inadmissible. Lamar County v. Talley (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1069.

Evidence of the declarations of a county official held inadmissible as against the county. Lamar County v. Talley (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 272.

66. Attorneys.—In a suit to set aside a mortgage on land on the ground that it was obtained by duress, evidence as to a statement made by a relative of the mortgagor after a conversation with the mortgagee's attorney, tending to show a purpose on the part of defendant to exercise the duress claimed, held admissible. Gray v. Freeman, 37 C. A. 556, 84 S. W. 1105.

Admissions for purpose of the suit by the attorneys of record held conclusive. Frey v. Myers (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 592.

A letter of plaintiff's attorney held admissible to show that plaintiff was not the real owner of property injured by collision with a street car. Logre v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 303.

Where, at the time a letter written to defendant by plaintiff's attorneys stating that plaintiff's damages were $500, plaintiff had already suffered a considerable part of his injuries, and his attorneys must have known that he was entitled to compensation for future suffering, the letter was material in a subsequent action by plaintiff for $30,500 for such injuries. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 193.

67. Persons referred to for information.—Statements, made by one engaged in the discharge of the duties of a carrier, held admissible in an action against the carrier. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pettit, 54 C. A. 358, 117 S. W. 894.

68. Husband or wife.—Statements of the husband concerning the wife's separate property, made when she was not present, are not admissible in evidence against her. McKay v. Treadwell, 8 T. 176; Earle v. Thomas, 14 T. 533; Smith v. Redden, 1 U. C. 360.

When the husband in a suit by the wife is charged with having attempted, in fraud of her rights and without her consent, to dispose of her homestead, and of seeking by its abandonment to withdraw it from the pale of exemption, his declarations, made in the wife's absence, cannot be given in evidence in his behalf or in that of his vendee, who bought with notice of the wife's claim. Newman v. Farquhar, 60 T. 640.

The declarations of the husband not made in the presence of the wife cannot affect her separate interests. Reddin v. Smith, 65 T. 26.

A husband's declarations in derogation of his wife's title to land by parol gift are inadmissible when made after her rights accrued. La Master v. Dickson, 91 T. 593, 46 S. W. 1.

An attempt by defendant's husband to purchase land of plaintiff claimed by defendant by adverse possession held not to affect her claim, as his right to control her property did not give him power to bind her by any admission. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Speights (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 572.

Where a wife joined her husband in a sham deed of the homestead to enable him to borrow money on the notes received for the pretended purchase price, and an innocent purchaser of such notes sued to foreclose the vendor's lien securing them, an affidavit, executed by the husband and by the grantee, that the deed was made in good faith, and admissions to that effect by him, are admissible as against her. Cooper v. Ford, 29 C. A. 253, 69 S. W. 487.

Declarations of a husband as to the ownership of cattle, claimed by wife as her separate property, made in her absence, were not binding on her. Word v. Kennon (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 365.

A letter written by defendant's wife to plaintiff held admissible to show a ratification of defendant's previously unauthorized signature to a note executed by his son to plaintiff. Harmon v. Leberman, 39 C. A. 251, 87 S. W. 203.

Declarations of a husband in his wife's absence in derogation of her ownership of certain land held inadmissible as against her. Maffi v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 158.

69. Partners.—A. and B., partners, brought suit for the use of A. against G. on his promissory note. On the trial the defendant was properly permitted to read in evidence a statement made by B., after the commencement of the suit, to the effect that defendant was entitled to a credit for a certain amount on the note. This case was distinguished from those which hold that the declaration of the former holder of a chose in action shall not be received to impair or impeach the title or impair the interest of his innocent assignee in a suit by the latter. Nalle v. Gates, 20 T. 315. An acknowledgment by one partner, after the dissolution of the partnership, of an antecedent indebtedness, is no evidence against his copartners. Speake v. White, 14 T. 364; White v. Tudor, 24 T. 639, 76 Am. Dec. 126; Kendall v. Riley, 45 T. 20.

Evidence of party's admission of partnership held inadmissible in action on note signed by him in which others were sought to be charged as his partners. Moore v. Williams, 31 C. A. 287, 72 S. W. 222.

The act or declaration of an alleged partner, not brought home to the one sought to be charged, or ratified by him, held admissible, in connection with competent evidence of the partnership. Robinson v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 103.

Declarations of an alleged partnership, made in the absence of one sought to be charged as a partner, held inadmissible. Robinson v. First Nat. Bank, 98 T. 184, 82 S. W. 505.

Ex parte declarations of one of two persons sued as partners held admissible to show partnership. Morris v. Moon (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1063.

In an action on an alleged partnership note, where one defendant denied that he was a partner and alleged that the note was for a loan to his codefendant on his personal credit, evidence of a conversation with the codefendant held admissible on the issue whether the money borrowed by the codefendant was his individual transaction or the transaction of the firm. Miller v. Laughlin (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 711.

70. Principal or surety.—In a suit on an administrator's bond against himself and sureties, admissions by the administrator after the administration was closed, though evidence against him, are not evidence against the sureties. Lacoste v. Bexar County, 28 T. 420.

In a suit upon a written obligation against a principal and his sureties to recover money alleged to be due thereon, it was held that an admission of the amount due, signed by the principal, was competent evidence against the principal and sureties. Bates v. Evans, 2 App. C. C. § 212.

Ordinarily declarations of a principal in an official bond, when not made in the course of his official duty, are not admissible in evidence in a suit against the surety. Screwmen's Ben. Ass'n v. Smith, 70 T. 168, 7 S. W. 793.

A quarterly report of occupation taxes collected for the state and county, filed with the county clerk, whether signed or not by the collector, is admissible against him and his sureties as admissions made in course of official business. In absence of any statute requiring such reports, quarterly reports of other taxes collected, made by the collector, are evidence against him and his sureties, and, unrebutted, sufficient to establish their liability. Mast v. Nacogdoches County, 71 T. 380, 9 S. W. 267.

Declarations of a defendant, made a party only as surety upon the instrument declared on, are not competent against the other defendants, principals in such bond. Thurman v. Blankenship, 79 T. 171, 15 S. W. 387.

In a suit against the sureties of a defaulting officer, the reports of the officer are prima facie and not conclusive evidence against his sureties. Broad v. City of Paris, 66 T. 119, 18 S. W. 342.

Admissions of defalcation, made by a treasurer after the expiration of his term of office, are admissible against him, but not against the sureties on his bond. McFarlane v. Howell, 16 C. A. 246, 43 S. W. 315.

Certificate of comptroller, showing amount paid to treasurer, admissible in evidence in action on his official bond. Id.

In an action against the creditor and one of the principal debtors to recover for the collusive conversion of a surety's collaterals plaintiff should be permitted to testify that such debtor promised that such collaterals should not be appropriated. Bruce v. Laing (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1019.

Declarations of the principal that a debt he had incurred was secured by the guaranty held not admissible against the guarantor. Opet v. Denzer, Goodhart & Schener (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 527.

In an action on a liquor dealer's bond for damages through the sale of liquor to plaintiff's husband, a deposition of the principal on the bond, admitting sales to the husband, held not admissible as against the sureties. Birkman v. Fahrenthold, 52 C. A. 335, 114 S. W. 428.

Acts of the principal debtor committed after the making of the guaranty are not binding on the guarantor, where not ratified by him. Ball-Carden Co. v. Humphrey (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 595.

71. Trustee or beneficiary.—Statements made by testatrix's husband, before his decease, that testatrix was insane, held to have been properly excluded on a contested probate of the will, which named the husband as executor, where such statements were not made while he was actually clothed with his trust and acting within the scope of his duties. Lindsey v. White (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 438.

72. Insured or beneficiary.—Declarations of assured, in an action on a life insurance policy, to the effect that he had dropped it, offered with reference to its alleged invalidity on account of a failure to pay the first premium in full, held to have been properly excluded. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Bradley (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 367.

The act of the court in permitting a witness to explain his testimony by the use of a map received in evidence held not erroneous. Clevenger v. Blount (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 868.

73. Conspirators and persons acting together.—Suit was brought by attachment for the recovery of a debt and to set aside fraudulent conveyances of land made by the debtor. All persons participating in the fraud were made parties to the suit. An admission of one of the defendants was admissible in evidence against all, the proof showing that they had been acting in concert, moved by a common design and identified with each other in interest. Tuttle v. Turner, 28 T. 759.

Suit was brought by F. C., a married woman, and her husband, J. C., against A. and B., the makers of the note sued on, and D., the payee who had indorsed the note to plaintiff F. C. The defendants, among other defenses, pleaded that plaintiff had accepted a certain sum in full settlement of the matters in controversy. Plaintiff then filed a supplemental petition making her husband a defendant, and alleged that she was forced to sign the compromise by force, threats and fraud used by her husband and defendants, and traversed defendants' answer. On the trial there was evidence tending to prove a conspiracy between the defendants, A., B. and J. C., her husband, and one H., who was not a party to the suit. Plaintiff was then permitted to prove, over the objections of A. and B., that J. C., on several occasions when neither of the other parties were present, threatened to whip his wife unless she signed the compromise. Brown v. Chenoworth, 51 T. 469.

The declarations of the grantor after sale are not admissible to impeach the title of the grantee; but the exception to the rule is well established that such declarations are admissible when a prima facie case of combination or conspiracy has been made by the evidence. Hamburg v. Wood, 66 T. 168, 18 S. W. 623.

In an action by junior incumbrancers to set aside a sale made by a senior incumbrancer, on the ground that defendants conspired to procure a fraudulent sale, evidence held properly submitted on the issue of fraud, and to show a defendant's interest and motive. Hughes v. Waples-Platter Grocer Co., 25 C. A. 212, 60 S. W. 981.

The evidence sufficiently establishing an alleged fraudulent conspiracy, declarations made in pursuance thereof by one of the parties are not inadmissible as hearsay. Id.

In an action for wrongful attachment, the acts and statements of the vendor who sold the goods to defendant held admissible to prove a conspiracy between defendant and such vendor to defraud the vendor's creditors. Thompson v. Rosenstein (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 439.

In an action on a fire policy, defended on the ground that assured had procured the burning of the property, evidence of plaintiff's declarations, etc., corroborating testimony of co-conspirators, held admissible. Joy v. Liverpool, London & Globe Ins. Co., 32 C. A. 433, 74 S. W. 822.

Evidence of declarations of co-conspirator held inadmissible in plaintiff's favor in action of libel. Cranfill v. Hayden, 97 T. 544, 80 S. W. 609.

In a suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover property alleged to have been conveyed pursuant to a conspiracy to defraud creditors, testimony is admissible that the bankrupt stated to witness that the property was his, and that he placed it in his wife's name to prevent his creditors from subjecting it to the payment of debts. Shelley v. Nolen, 38 C. A. 343, 88 S. W. 524.

Evidence of acts or omissions of a co-conspirator held admissible in a proceeding to remove a county judge for official misconduct in conspiring to defeat school land taxes. Perry v. State, 44 C. A. 55, 98 S. W. 411.

Where the evidence prima facie established a conspiracy between certain persons, the acts and statements of any of such persons were admissible in evidence. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

In an action for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, a letter written by a third person inclosing a capias to the sheriff of another county, and asking for plaintiff's arrest, held inadmissible. Little v. Rich, 55 C. A. 326, 118 S. W. 1077.

An admission by a clerk of court that he antedated filing of a statement of facts actually filed out of time does not bind appellant nor an attorney charged to have induced such misconduct. Howard v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 707.

Evidence of statements of some of the persons assisting officers in taking away goods seized under a void warrant, made while so assisting, held admissible against others who were so assisting. Cartwright v. Canode (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 792.

Declarations of conspirators held admissible against all. Longworth v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 257.

V. Proof and Effect

74. Preliminary evidence.—Proof held insufficient to show that letters received by defendant were written him by plaintiff. Stevens v. Equitable Mfg. Co., 29 C. A. 168, 87 S. W. 1041.

An admission by a party against his interest in reference to any material matter may be proved, without first laying a predicate for its introduction. Contreras v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 870.

Statements of a witness in a suppressed deposition held not admissible without a certain predicate. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068, 96 S. W. 760.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant a finding that defendant S. heard the statement of B. to plaintiff, and understood and acquiesced therein. Bass v. Toibert, 51 C. A. 437, 112 S. W. 1077.

In an injury action, certain evidence held properly excluded as hearsay. Austin Electric Ry. Co. v. Faust (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 449.

75. — Existence and extent of agency or authority.—Evidence of acts and statements of agents and officers of a railroad in regard to the ownership, management, control or construction of the road, if such acts were performed or statements made while such officers or agents were engaged for the company, are admissible in evidence; but before they are admissible it must be proved by other evidence that they were such officers or agents. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Owens, 1 App. C. C. § 390.

The declarations of a cashier of a bank, as to the financial standing of a merchant, are not evidence against the bank, unless it is shown by virtue of his official position or otherwise it was his duty to make such statements. Goodbar v. Bank, 78 T. 461, 14 S. W. 851.

In an action against a telephone company for injuries alleged to have been sustained by a fall over a wire negligently left in a street, proof held sufficient to show that the local manager for the town where the accident occurred was clothed with such authority from defendant as rendered admissible a declaration by him acknowledging that it was defendant's wire. Texas & P. Telephone Co. v. Prince, 36 C. A. 462, 82 S. W. 327.

In an action against a carrier for loss of goods, admission of certain letters written by its claim agent to plaintiff held not cause for reversal. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas v. McIntyre, 36 C. A. 399, 82 S. W. 346.

Where there is prima facie evidence of agency, it is not error to admit the declarations and acts of the agent to prove what was done in the scope of the agency. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

Where there is evidence from which the jury may find agency, the declarations of the agent, made during the agency, in regard to the transaction connected therewith, are admissible. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cunningham, 51 C. A. 368, 113 S. W. 767.

In an action for breach of a contract to pay for an elevator building, tanks, etc., where a defense was that certain of the tanks did not hold 1,000 bushels of wheat, as contracted for, a letter entirely in typewriting, containing the initials of defendant's assistant bookkeeper, written on defendant's letterhead, received by plaintiff in due course of mail, which letter stated that defendant had put 1,000 bushels of wheat into one of the tanks, and that it had twisted out of shape, was admissible as an admission of defendant that the tanks held 1,000 bushels, as against an objection that authority to write the letter was not shown. J. T. Stark Grain Co. v. Harry Bros. Co., 57 C. A. 529, 122 S. W. 947.

Before a declaration of an agent is admitted in evidence, it must be shown that such a declaration was within the scope of the agent's authority. Booker-Jones Oil Co. v. National Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 815.

76. — Existence of conspiracy or common purpose.—Declarations of an alleged co-conspirator held inadmissible against a conspirator until the conspiracy is proven. Ft. Worth Live-Stock Commission Co. v. Hitson (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 915.

On issue whether conveyance was in fraud of creditors, certain testimony held improperly excluded. Moore v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 890.

On issue of fraudulent conveyance, certain conversation between creditor and grantor held admissible over objection that it was not binding on grantee. Id.

To warrant admissions of declarations of the grantor, made after the sale, tending to show it was in fraud of creditors, prima facie case to defraud must first be established. Id.

In action on fire policy, proof held to sufficiently establish a conspiracy to defraud the company to warrant the admission in evidence of the acts and declarations of the conspirators. McCarty v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 C. A. 122, 75 S. W. 934.

In the absence of proof of conspiracy, libelous statements made by the representative of a company other than the defendant held inadmissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Moses (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1037.

77. Explanation or limitation.—Where plaintiff's application for continuance to re-take certain depositions of unwilling witnesses is supported by letters of notary who took depositions, defendant cannot read the application without the exhibits. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Miller, 25 C. A. 190, 60 S. W. 881.

In a suit to recover damages to property occasioned by the construction of a railroad in front of it, plaintiff could show that valuations placed on the property in the tax lists in evidence were made by the assessor. Boyer & Lucas v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co., 97 T. 107, 76 S. W. 441.

A party, explaining the circumstances under which he made the statements proved by the adverse party, is not entitled to give the statements of his attorney in relation to his liability. Bartley v. Comer (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 82.

In condemnation proceedings, where an agreed statement as to what an absent witness would testify was admitted in the trial before the commissioners, on the trial before the county court, evidence by plaintiff's attorney that the agreed statement was only meant for use before the commissioners was properly excluded. Foley v. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co., 50 C. A. 218, 108 S. W. 169, 110 S. W. 96.

In trespass to try title, a lease to plaintiff held admissible to disprove her claim of adverse possession, subject to her right to explain why she signed it. Mitchell v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 735.

Plaintiff in trespass to try title was not bound to show fraud, accident, or mistake leading her to execute the lease introduced as an admission against her before being allowed to explain it. Id.

78. — Right to show entire statement or conversation.—The whole of an admission must be taken together. Thus, if one party is permitted to read in evidence the answer of the adverse party filed in another suit, the latter is entitled to read the remainder of the answer relating to the same subject-matter. Smith v. Chenault, 48 T. 455.

Permitting counsel for plaintiff in action on fire insurance policy to read from stenographer's report of former trials certain testimony of plaintiff, and ask plaintiff if it was correct, held not reversible error. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Eastman (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 255.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, plaintiff could testify in rebuttal to the details of a conversation between himself and the conductor about which the latter had testified. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 400.

79. Pleadings.—An abandoned answer held open to explanation and contradiction. Willey Lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., v. City of Paris (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 99.

Plaintiff has the right to testify that he did not make statements to his attorneys which justified an allegation in his pleading. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fitzpatrick (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 355.

Where defendant read in evidence a part of an abandoned pleading of plaintiff which unexplained would have been misleading, it was proper to permit plaintiff to introduce the whole of the paragraph. Id.

The party against whom a pleading is offered may show that a statement was inadvertently made, or was not authorized, or was made under a mistake of fact. Wilkins v. Clawson, 50 C. A. 82, 110 S. W. 103.

Explanation of a pleading by a party against whom offered may weaken the force of the statement therein, but that is a question for the jury. Id.

80. Construction.—An admission coupled with a denial of harsh treatment of plaintiff by defendants held not an admission of an allegation that they were responsible for the condition of the cell in which plaintiff was confined. Bishop v. Lucy (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 854.

81. Conclusiveness and effect.—The reports of a defaulting officer are prima facie but not conclusive evidence against his sureties. Broad v. City of Paris, 66 T. 119, 18 S. W. 342; Barry v. Screwman's Ass'n, 67 T. 250, 3 S. W. 261.

Admission by the president of a corporation, to whom its property had been conveyed to pay debts, held to warrant a finding that he had sufficient funds to pay plaintiff's claim. Carter v. Forbes Lithograph Mfg. Co., 22 C. A. 549, 56 S. W. 227.

In an action for medical services, a note executed by defendant to the physician for a part of the amount sued for, and letters and telegrams sent by him to the physician, held admissible in the nature of an admission at variance with a defense relied on. Swift v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 901.

82. — As to particular facts in general.—That manufacturers of a pear burner changed the kind of material and form of construction of their cylinders after one of them had exploded held insufficient to establish a want of ordinary care in the manufacture of the exploded cylinder. Talley v. Beever & Hinds, 33 C. A. 675, 78 S. W. 23.

Evidence of a son's statements held insufficient to establish his authority to act for his mother in employing plaintiff to make a sale or exchange of land. Stockton v. Crow (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 952.

The facts of the case, and not the dying declaration of one caught between cars when going to a depot, held determinative of the question of negligence and contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pingent (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 93.

A recital in a deed is not sufficient to establish the existence of a deed therein referred to as against those not in privity with the parties to the deed. Whitman v. Aldrich (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 464.

83. — As to indebtedness.—Evidence of a director of a college corporation held sufficient as admissions in an action against him for tuition to establish the indebtedness sued on. Roach v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 803.

Evidence of a director and member of the executive committee of a college held admissible, in an action against him by its receiver for tuition, to show the passage of a certain resolution as shown by a copy. Id.

84. — As to title or possession.—In trespass to try title, defendant's admission that plaintiff has such title as the patent on which he relies calls for held not to preclude the defense that no land passed by the patent. Hackbarth v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 591.

Where persons held adverse possession of land for sufficient time to complete the bar of the statute, statements thereafter made by one of them as to his claim to the land would not divest him of title. Whittaker v. Thayer (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1137.

Where adverse possession had ripened into title, no admission, made thereafter by the party having such title, as to the nature of her present possession, could affect her title. Cook's Hereford Cattle Co. v. Barnhart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 662.

85. — As to agency.—Declarations of agent of one carrier held not admissible against connecting carriers. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Carpenter, 52 C. A. 585, 114 S. W. 900.

Testimony of an agent not having general powers as to what rights he regarded a contract of his principal gave held not binding on the principal. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Wright Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 729.

In an action on a note alleged to have been signed by an agent, under authority from his principal, that the principal contradicted himself on cross-examination held not to amount to a conclusive admission that the agent was authorized to sign as principal in the note. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1092.

86. — Judicial admissions.—Where plaintiff introduces defendant's answer in evidence because of certain admissions contained therein, such fact does not entitle defendant to the damages claimed by him in his answer. Masterson v. F. W. Heitmann & Co., 38 C. A. 476, 87 S. W. 227.

Admission of defendant in an action on a contract for the sale of machinery held not to preclude a recovery for plaintiff's failure to ship the machinery within the time contracted for. Berry Bros. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 51 C. A. 558, 112 S. W. 427.

Admission in original answer referring to original petition held not to authorize judgment foreclosing vendor's lien, where original petition was not offered in evidence. Daniels v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 967.

In an action for assault and battery, an instruction on the admissibility and weight to be given to a judgment convicting defendant of the same assault on a plea of guilty before a justice held correct. Sumner v. Kinney (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1192.

I. Declarations in General

1. Nature and grounds for admission in general.—Evidence is inadmissible as to the declarations of another unless he is shown to be dead, and if the declarant be living he must be produced in court. Johns v. Northcutt, 49 T. 444; Schwarzhoff v. Necker, 1 U. C. 325; Downtain v. Connellee, 21 S. W. 56, 2 C. A. 95.

The declarations of an agent are inadmissible to establish an agency. Noel v. Denman, 76 T. 306, 13 S. W. 318.

Declarations of a husband pending negotiations for purchase of land are admissible against those claiming under him to prove his intentions in having the deed made to his wife and make the land her separate property. Branch v. Makeig, 28 S. W. 1050, 9 C. A. 399.

Where the issue is one of identity in a contest between parties claiming under different persons of the same name, it is admissible to show the extent to which each has claimed the subject of controversy. Nix v. Coie (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 561, citing Hickman v. Gillum, 66 T. 314, 1 S. W. 339; McCamant v. Roberts, 80 T. 325, 15 S. W.

580, 1054; Hill v. Smith, 6 C. A. 316, 25 S. W. 1079; Byers v. Wallace, 28 S. W. 1056, 87 T. 503. See Paschal v. Evans (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 923.

Evidence of declarations held erroneously excluded. Harvey v. Harvey (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 185.

Declarations made by a contractor's superintendent held admissible for the purpose of fixing the time when a delay in completing a building contract took place. Watson v. Dewitt County, 19 C. A. 150, 46 S. W. 1061.

In trespass to try title, declarations of a deceased disinterested party, made 59 years before the trial, held admissible. Lewis v. Bergess, 22 C. A. 252, 54 S. W. 609.

The declarations of one holding a vendor's lien on land of a decedent held not admissible in an action by another against decedent's executor to enforce a vendor's lien on other lands of the decedent. McLane v. Mackey (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 944.

Evidence of statements made by deceased that he had been told by a person not named that 87° gasoline was safe where it was stored held properly admitted, in an action against the seller to recover for his death from an explosion. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Davis, 24 C. A. 508, 60 S. W. 453.

In an action for breach of a contract authorizing plaintiffs to sell defendant's lands, testimony that another person had said to third parties that he was agent of defendant to sell such lands was incompetent. McLane v. Maurer, 28 C. A. 76, 66 S. W. 693, 1108.

Evidence of declarations of the husband of testatrix concerning her will is inadmissible on the question of revocation. McElroy v. Phink, 97 T. 147, 76 S. W. 753, 77 S. W. 1025.

Declarations and acts of D., Sr., at the time of the purchase of land deeded to D., held admissible on the question whether D., Sr., or D., Jr., was the real grantee. Matthews v. E. Eppstein & Co., 35 C. A. 515, 80 S. W. 882.

In an action on a check, alleged to have been given in part to secure the dismissal of a criminal prosecution, plaintiff held not entitled to testify that he had been advised by his attorney that he could not do anything about settling such prosecution. McNeese v. Carver, 40 C. A. 129, 89 S. W. 430.

Conversations between the agents of defendants held not admissible against plaintiff in an action for conversion. Trammell & Lane v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 455, 94 S. W. 104.

Where plaintiff and defendant claimed the proceeds of a beneficiary certificate adversely, declarations made by insured to defendant were inadmissible against plaintiff. Grand Lodge Colored Knights of Pythias v. Mackey (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 907.

In an action by heirs to restrain the sale of property of the estate under a trust deed by the executors, on the ground of want of authority, declarations as to what the executors intended to do with the borrowed money were immaterial, where they had authority to borrow it. Tomlinson v. H. P. Drought & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 262.

2. Making of statement fact in issue.—In an action by an engineer against a railroad company for injuries, evidence of the station agent as to his instructions from the train dispatcher, which instructions he transmitted to plaintiff, was not objectionable as hearsay. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fitzpatrick (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 355.

In proceedings to restrain defendant from re-engaging in the photograph business, evidence of plaintiff as to a statement made by defendant to plaintiff's partner held not mere hearsay, but admissible for the jury to determine whether the statement induced plaintiff to act. Parrish v. Adwell (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 441.

3. Statements showing physical or mental condition.—Mental capacity of a person to make a will being contested, acts done or declarations made by him before, at the time of or after the making of the will, tending to throw light upon the condition of his mind at that time, are admissible in evidence. Brown v. Mitchell, 26 S. W. 1059, 87 T. 140.

Statement by plaintiff to accident insurance company held inadmissible on question of extent of his injuries in action against city therefor. City of Willis Point v. Williams, 26 C. A. 194, 63 S. W. 1038.

In an action against a carrier for the death of plaintiff's wife, held that her declarations were admissible against plaintiff to show her physical condition. Hardin v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 440.

Declarations by a grantor after making a deed are not admissible to show the grantor's mental condition at the time of the execution of the deed, unless made so near to that time as to justify the inference that such mental condition existed at that time. Rankin v. Rankin, 105 T. 451, 151 S. W. 527.

4. Statements showing intent, motive or nature of act.—Where a tract of land was purchased with the separate property of the husband, and the conveyance was taken in the name of the wife, in a contest between the heirs of the deceased wife and the surviving husband the acts and declarations of the husband before the conveyance and having reference to it, and his subsequent acts corresponding thereto, evidencing his intention respecting it, and the subsequent statements of his wife in so far as they conduced to countervail the prima facie inference deducible from the fact of taking the deed in her name, are admissible to show that the purpose of taking the deed in the name of the wife was to make a gift of the property to her sole and separate use. Smith v. Strahan, 25 T. 103.

The issue being whether a party had abandoned his homestead, held, that the declarations of a party before, at the time of and after leaving his home may be given in evidence to establish the intent. But the sworn statements of a party himself, taken in a court of justice, if credible, must settle the question, for he alone has full knowledge of that intent, and his statements can be directly contradicted by no human testimony. McMillan v. Warner, 38 T. 410; Cline v. Upton, 59 T. 27.

The declarations of third parties made to the plaintiff, which from their nature would naturally have influenced his action in procuring an attachment, are sometimes admissible to show that the writ was not sought to oppress, but was applied for in good faith. O'Neil v. Willis Point Bank, 67 T. 36, 2 S. W. 754.

In a suit to rescind a contract of sale of goods alleged to have been purchased with fraudulent intent, brought against the purchaser and his vendee, the declarations of the purchaser made soon after the purchase, which tend to show his fraudulent design and misrepresentations in the purchase, are admissible in evidence. Rohrbough v. Leopold, 68 T. 254, 4 S. W. 460.

Declarations by owner of lot as to his intent to make it a homestead held admissible on the issue of the homestead character of the lot. Furtner v. Edgewood Distilling Co., 16 C. A. 359, 41 S. W. 184.

Where a written contract is on its face free from usury, testimony of a contemporaneous verbal agreement which renders the contract in fact usurious is admissible. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 805.

Certain conversations held admissible on the issue of fraud, in an action by a builder against a property owner for the rejection of certain material. Brin v. McGregor (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 78.

In an action by heirs of a deceased mother for partition of community property, certain declarations of plaintiffs' deceased father held inadmissible. Clements v. Maury, 60 C. A. 158, 110 S. W. 185.

5. — Statements by persons since deceased.—On an issue as to whether one's ancestor had dedicated land in controversy for a public square, the ancestor's declaration as to the purpose in laying out the square is admissible. Scott v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 932.

Statement made by deceased to his mother, showing his intention to support her, constitutes original testimony in an action by her to recover for his death, and is not hearsay. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 204.

A declaration of a claimant to a homestead as to his intention to return thereto may be proved after claimant's death on the issue of abandonment. Keller v. Lindow (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 304.

6. — Statements by persons transferring property.—A stock of goods was levied on as the property of S., and a claim bond was filed by H. Claimant alleged that the goods were his, but admitted that he had borrowed the money with which they were purchased from S. Held, that it was admissible to prove declarations of S., made prior to the time H. obtained the money from him, tending to show a fraudulent intention on the part of S. to place his means beyond the reach of his creditors. The jury could then determine from the other evidence whether H. had knowledge of such fraudulent purpose. Hinson v. Walker, 65 T. 103.

On an issue of fraud vel non, it is pertinent to show that one of the parties to a sale of goods, subsequent to the sale made declarations tending to show that the claim to the goods by another party was fraudulently made. Mayo v. Savoni, 1 App. C. C., § 218. Citing Wright v. Linn, 16 T. 34; Garahy v. Bayley, 25 T. Sup. 294.

The declarations of a deceased vendor, made at the time he parts with possession of a deed, are admissible in evidence, in a suit to which his executor is a party, on an issue as to whether there was then a purpose to deliver the deed in consummation of a sale. His subsequent declarations, made after the registration of the deed, are not admissible. Steffian v. Bank, 69 T. 513, 6 S. W. 823.

In trespass to try title, recitals in a deed that the land had been conveyed to the grantor at a former time by a certain person held evidence of the intention of the parties to convey that land by the former deed. Rankin v. Moore, 46 C. A. 44, 101 S. W. 1049.

Where land was not occupied as a homestead when a deed of trust was executed thereon, declarations of the husband concerning the homestead character of the land held admissible as bearing on the intent of the parties. Morris v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 800.

7. Difficulty of producing direct evidence.—Declarations of a person whose identity was in issue held admissible to prove his identity, where he was shown to be dead. Morgan v. Butler, 23 C. A. 470, 56 S. W. 689.

8. Self-serving declarations in general.—Self-serving declarations not admissible in evidence in favor of party making them. Solomon v. Huey, 1 U. C. 265; Gilbert v. Odum, 69 T. 670, 7 S. W. 510; Herndon v. Davenport, 75 T. 462, 12 S. W. 1111; Downey v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 541; City Nat. Bank of Quanah v. Martin-Brown Co., Id. 617; Kershner v. Latimer, 64 S. W. 237; Ætna Ins. Co. v. Eastman, 95 T. 34, 64 S. W. 863; Donaldson v. Dobbs, 35 C. A. 439, 80 S. W. 1084; Ross v. Moskowitz, 100 T. 434, 100 S. W. 768; Rabb v. E. H. Goodrich & Son, 46 C. A. 541, 102 S. W. 910; Horwitz v. La Roche (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1148; A. T. Baker & Co. v. De Vitt, 49 C. A. 607, 110 S. W. 528; Johnson & Moran v. Buchanan, 54 C. A. 328, 116 S. W. 875; Pierce v. Waller (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1077; Kidd v. McCracken, 134 S. W. 839.

In an action on a note, evidence held improperly received, as detailing conversations between witnesses and plaintiff in the absence of the defendant. Halsey v. Bell (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1088.

Statements of certain party held not to show that declarations of plaintiff in an action on an insurance policy were not self-serving. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Eastman, 95 T. 34, 64 S. W. 863.

In an action for injuries, owing to a minor having been struck by a railroad car while crossing a path over the tracks, it was not error to exclude the declarations of the minor that he did not know that it was dangerous to stop where he did on the track. Over v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 535.

Certain testimony held not inadmissible as hearsay. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Schilling, 32 C. A. 417, 75 S. W. 64.

Declaration by injured railroad switchman held not self-serving. Id.

In an action for injuries, evidence held not objectionable as a whole, as self-serving, hearsay, and a conclusion of the witness. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Williams, 37 C. A. 198, 83 S. W. 248.

Statements by a party to a litigation, showing knowledge of a deed under which she claimed title, held admissible on the issue of the delivery of the deed. Davis v. Davis, 44 C. A. 238, 98 S. W. 198.

In trespass to try title, certain testimony held admissible as against the objection that it was self-serving. Keck v. Woodward, 53 C. A. 267, 116 S. W. 75.

In an action against a carrier for loss of goods en route, testimony as to statements by the shipper to the drayman who delivered the goods to the carrier as to what the box contained should have been excluded as self-serving. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ray (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 281.

Defendant surety on a note having testified that he notified plaintiff to sue the principal, testimony of another that the surety told him he had given such notice was not admissible in the absence of impeachment. McMillion v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 300.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a shipment of horses, a witness cannot testify that one of the plaintiffs informed him that the horses were in bad shape. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Young & Webb (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1113.

Evidence that party, after discovering fraud in a contract for the exchange of land, notified the other party and demanded a rescission, held competent to disprove ratification and to show that his testimony was not an afterthought and untrue. Martin v. Ince (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1178.

While the cestui que trust could not give his declarations in evidence to establish a trust in the land in controversy in trespass to try title, he was properly permitted to testify to the facts, though such testimony was self-serving. Mortimer v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 341.

9. — Statements by partners, joint contractors or codefendants.—A., administrator of G., brought suit on a note secured by the vendor's lien on land, against M., the maker of the note, S., the surety who had assumed its payment, and W., the owner of the land, asking judgment for the debt and foreclosure of the lien. Pending suit S. died. For the purpose of showing the payment of the debt, W. proved by the administrator that he had agreed to accept claims against the estate as payment. W. then offered to prove by a witness that he had heard S. say that he had bought up claims against the estate of G. to put as a credit on the note sued on. Held, that the evidence was inadmissible. Willis v. Gay, 48 T. 463, 26 Am. Rep. 328.

Self-serving declarations of one defendant held not admissible to prejudice the other defendants. Jackson v. Poteet (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 980.

10. — Statement by debtor as to payment.—Evidence of declarations of the deceased owner of land that he had paid certain vendor's lien notes thereon is not admissible in a suit to foreclose such lien. Cole v. Horton (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 503.

11. — Statements as to intent, motive or nature of act.—In an action for damages for wrongful attachment, the payment of the debt was in issue. Plaintiff stated that he had drawn the money from a bank to make the payment, and had so stated his purpose. It was held that the testimony of the banker in corroboration of his statement was not admissible. Taliaferro v. Goudelock, 82 T. 521, 17 S. W. 792.

On an issue whether a business homestead has been abandoned, declarations of the owner held admissible to show his intention to resume business. Alexander v. Lovitt (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 927.

In an action for injuries, statements by injured party to her physician as to how she was injured were not admissible in favor of plaintiff. Hardin v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 440.

Declarations of claimants of homestead, as to their intention to return thereto, are admissible on the question of abandonment, though they may be self-serving. Thigpen v. Russell, 55 C. A. 211, 118 S. W. 1080.

Where plaintiff claimed that he had purchased an old building from defendant, C., who was to remove the same, which C. denied, evidence that plaintiff had told the witness prior to such removal that he had purchased the building and asked witness' opinion of its worth was inadmissible as a self-serving declaration. Ratliff v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 196.

In a consolidated action for the probate of a will and to set aside a deed by testatrix and her husband to the proponent, the testimony of proponent's husband as to what he told a third person, not in the presence of the grantor in the deed, as to what the latter meant by a statement held self-serving. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

12. — Statements as to terms or meaning of contract.—In an action for broker's commission, declarations and statements by plaintiff concerning the sale and what he would be entitled to held self-serving and inadmissible. Leuschner v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 664.

In an action between a purchaser and vendors involving the terms of a verbal contract, there was no error in excluding declarations of vendors, after the deed was prepared for delivery, that the purchaser was to assume and pay off a certain note. Hudson v. Slate, 53 C. A. 453, 117 S. W. 469.

In an action for breach of a contract of employment, evidence of self-serving declarations made by plaintiff in declining other employment held inadmissible. W. A. Arthur Cotton Co. v. Willis (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 584.

A self-serving declaration by one party in the absence of the other, as to what he had bought of him, held inadmissible. Syler v. Culp (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 175.

13. — Statements as to title.—Evidence of self-serving declarations as to defendant's title to land held not admissible, though plaintiff had given evidence of declarations of defendant contrary to his interest. Murphy v. Magee (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1002.

Generally self-serving declarations are not admissible in support of title in favor of declarant. Duren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 376.

14. — Time of making statement in general.—A declaration of an insured made long prior to the issuance of a policy was not inadmissible as self-serving in an action thereon. Home Benefit Ass'n No. 3 of Coleman County v. Wester (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1022.

15. — Statements by third persons in general.—In an action for personal injuries held proper to admit certain evidence as showing that the injuries claimed to have been caused by the accident did not exist prior thereto. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Parks (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 130.

16. — Statements by agents.—In an action on a note, evidence of declarations by plaintiff's vice president held inadmissible as self-serving. First Nat. Bank v. Pearce (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 285.

17. — Statements by husband or wife.—In a suit for injury to a wife, held error to permit a witness to testify to her subsequent declaration that she had suffered a miscarriage. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ritter, 16 C. A. 482, 41 S. W. 753.

In an action involving an issue of whether a homestead had been abandoned, it was proper to allow defendants to show that defendant's wife told another when they left the state that they intended to return. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Burge, 49 C. A. 599, 110 S. W. 181.

18. — Statements by grantors, assignors or former owners.—The declarations of the grantor in a deed conveying land are not admissible to show title. Masterton v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 549.

Heirship of grantors cannot be proved by deeds in which they allege their heirship. Watkins v. Smith, 91 T. 589, 45 S. W. 560.

19. — Statements by persons since deceased in general.—Declarations of a mother as to the decease of her son, she being his heir, held inadmissible to establish title to land under him. Lewis v. Bergess, 22 C. A. 252, 54 S. W. 609.

Declarations of a decedent as to his ancestor's service in the Texas army held admissible. Kirby v. Boaz (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 223.

Where, in an action on a note executed by a client to his attorney for services, the issue was whether the attorney had exercised undue influence in procuring the note, evidence that the client had stated that the attorney had told her that her brother had stolen some of her property, and that she did not see why the attorney should have made such statement unless it was true, and that she had been induced to believe that it was true, was admissible. Barnes v. McCarthy (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 85.

A declaration of a claimant to a homestead as to his intention to return thereto is admissible on the issue of abandonment, though self-serving. Keller v. Lindow (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 304.

Declarations by a deceased heir of relationship adverse to another heir are self-serving declarations. Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

20. — Statements by persons since deceased as to title or possession.—Declaration of a claimant to land by inheritance that the alleged ancestor had died held inadmissible, as self-serving. Turner v. Sealock, 21 C. A. 594, 54 S. W. 358.

In trespass to try title, certain declarations made by a landowner held inadmissible. Tenzler v. Tyrrell, 32 C. A. 443, 75 S. W. 57.

Evidence of declarations of a deceased person, under whom defendants claimed title to land in controversy, tending to establish her title, held inadmissible. Jamison v. Dooley, 98 T. 206, 82 S. W. 780.

On an issue as to which of two persons of the same name received the bounty warrant for the land in controversy, declarations of a decedent as to his ancestor's service in the Texas army were admissible, it appearing that there was no exciting cause in the way of self-interest; the declarant having no knowledge of his ancestor's death. Kirby v. Boaz (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 223.

Declarations of deceased grantor that he had conveyed certain property to his wife in trust for himself were self-serving and inadmissible alone to establish a trust. Yndo v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 920.

21. — Written statements in general.—In an action for a breach of warranty of title, a patent afterwards acquired by the vendee held not inadmissible as a self-serving declaration of the vendee. Chesnutt v. Chism, 20 C. A. 23, 48 S. W. 549.

The verified application of plaintiff to purchase school lands, reciting that he had purchased no other lands of the state, held not sufficient evidence to authorize the court to find such facts as a matter of law in trespass to try title. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 851.

A telegram sent by a party to a contract to the adverse party after the breach thereof by the latter held a self-serving declaration and inadmissible in an action by the party for breach of contract. Texas Brokerage Co. v. John Barkley & Co., 49 C. A. 632, 109 S. W. 1001.

A recital in a deed as part of the description held not ground for excluding the deed when offered in evidence. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 662.

Recitals in assignments of a land certificate in favor of heirs of a decedent and a recital in a contract and an averment in an affidavit held inadmissible because self-serving. Duren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 376.

Written statement prepared by plaintiff held inadmissible in an action for malicious prosecution. Speer v. Allen (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 231.

A written statement by a conductor as to his commission of an act of negligence charged held not admissible as self-serving in an action therefor, where his testimony was not sought to be impeached. Quigley v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 633.

22. — Letters.—Evidence of repudiation of a note the day after its execution is admissible, but not the contents of a letter repudiating it, when they consist of irrelevant and self-serving declarations. Largent v. Beard (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 90.

A letter by plaintiff, written just before trial, and which is self-serving, is inadmissible. Hockaday v. Wortham, 22 C. A. 419, 54 S. W. 1094.

Statement of insured's attorney in letter to defendant company held not objectionable, in action on policy, as self-serving declaration. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Fitze, 34 C. A. 214, 78 S. W. 370.

A letter from plaintiff to his agent of which defendant was not shown to have had any knowledge or to be connected with or to be in any wise bound by was not competent evidence. Blair v. Baird, 43 C. A. 134, 94 S. W. 116.

In an action against an express company to recover on money orders paid on the plaintiff's forged indorsement, plaintiff's letters with his signature written by the alleged forger held admissible over objection that they were self-serving. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Bilkiss (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 798.

Argumentative and self-serving declarations in a letter held properly excluded. Heard v. Clegg (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1145.

Letters written by an attorney to his client after the termination of his services, making a claim for services and disbursements, constitute self-serving declarations and inadmissible in his favor. Curtsinger v. McGown (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 303.

The fact that a letter was written by the purchaser after filing of the suit did not render it inadmissible as self-serving where, when the letter was written, defendant did not know that the suit had been filed. Texas Machinery & Supply Co. v. Ayers Ice Cream Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 750.

23. — Pleadings.—Abandoned pleadings drawn by one not a party, containing self-serving declarations, were properly excluded. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 327.

24. — Affidavits.—Ex parte occupation affidavit by a purchaser of state school lands, filed in the land office, is not admissible to show occupancy, as against a third party claiming title to the land. Thomson v. Hubbard, 22 C. A. 101, 53 S. W. 841.

An affidavit, filed to raise the issue of forgery of a deed, is not evidence thereof. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 662.

25. Declarations against interest in general.—A declaration of plaintiff that he had sold his interest in the land is not evidence of want of title. Rogers v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 246.

Evidence of declarations favorable to plaintiffs, made by a brother of one under whom they claimed as heirs, held inadmissible, as declaration against interest, where the declarant was also one of the heirs when the declaration was made. Morgan v. Butler, 23 C. A. 470, 56 S. W. 689.

Where assured stood in loco parentis to his sister, his declarations as to a gift to her of a policy payable to his estate held admissible as against interest. Lord v. New York Life Ins. Co., 27 C. A. 139, 65 S. W. 699.

A written statement held not admissible as a declaration against interest of the plaintiff, where not written, signed, or sworn to by him. Quigley v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 633.

26. Declarations of person in possession or control as to title or possession.—An execution against B. was levied on certain property in his possession; C. claimed the property, and on the trial of the right of property proved that he bought the property from D. and had made a conditional sale to B., by which the title was not to vest in him until the property was paid for. The plaintiff in execution offered to prove that D. delivered the property to B. and stated at the time that he sold the same to B., and that B. afterwards in the presence of D. stated that he had bought the property of D., the statement not being denied. Held, that the statement having been made by one in possession of the property while in the act of transferring such possession to another was admissible. Felman v. Smith, 20 T. 99.

The makers and payee of a note left it in the hands of a third party, to be kept by him until the happening of a certain event, and then to be delivered to the payee, or, on failure of such event, to be null and void. The event never happened, and the note remained in the depository's hands until his death. The makers being sued by an indorsee, they introduced proof that the indorsement was made after the day of payment specified in the note, and offered to prove declarations of the deceased depository respecting the terms and conditions on which the note was executed and left with him. Held, that the declarations were competent evidence. Goodson v. Johnson, 35 T. 622.

In an action of trespass to try title the defendant offered to prove by a number of witnesses who had been neighbors of G., under whom defendant claimed, and of R., under whom plaintiff claimed, repeated declarations of G., while using and cultivating the land, that he had bought it from R. G. and R. were dead at the time of the trial. Held, that the evidence was not admissible. McDow v. Rabb, 56 T. 154.

Suit was brought by a city to remove some obstructions from a street, and the issue was whether the defendant had held adverse possession for such a period as to give her title by limitation. The defendant testified that the possession she held was the possession received by her as survivor in estate of her husband, then deceased. A statement by her husband while in possession to the effect that he had fenced the street by permission of the city council, and that he had agreed to open it whenever required, was admitted in evidence to show that his possession was not adverse. Carter v. Town of La Grange, 60 T. 636.

In an action of trespass to try title it was admitted that A. was the common source of title; B. claimed title under a judgment and execution sale against A.; C. claimed that he bought the land under an execution against D., who was in possession under a bond for title from A., of a date anterior to the judgment against him; that D. had paid a part of the purchase-money, and C. was entitled to D.'s equities in the land. For the purpose of proving D.'s equities C. offered in evidence the declarations of D. while in possession of the land. Held, that while the declarations of a person in possession of land are admissible to show the character of his possession, they are not admissible for the purpose of showing title. Mooring v. McBride, 62 T. 309.

Acts and declarations made by claimants of land, after possession for a sufficient time to bar the owner, are admissible to show that such possession was not adverse. Bracken v. Jones, 63 T. 184. See Lochhausen v. Laughter, 23 S. W. 513, 4 C. A. 291.

Declarations of persons in possession of land, explanatory of the character of their possession, are admissible in evidence. Jackson v. Deslonde, 1 U. C. 674.

Plaintiff in proving title under the limitation of ten years proved the possession of one Nelson, under whose estate she claimed and took possession. The declarations of Nelson that he held under the defendant while in possession were competent. Hurley v. Lockett, 72 T. 262, 12 S. W. 212.

Declarations of ancestor admissible to show adverse claim in trespass to try title against legatees. Curtis v. Wilson, 21 S. W. 787, 2 C. A. 646.

The declarations of a party in possession of personal property in disparagement of his title are admissible in evidence against him. Slocum v. Putnam (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 52.

Declarations of a party in his own favor, after attachment of land, as to what he intended to be his homestead, held admissible, under the circumstances. Gunn v. Wynne (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 290.

Evidence that parties had declared that the property was not a part of their homestead and that it did not contribute to its use cannot be introduced to show abandonment, but such declarations might constitute an estoppel. Howe v. O'Brien (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 813.

Where defendants claimed under a lost deed, testimony of acts and declarations of the alleged grantee therein held properly admitted. Walker v. Pittman, 18 C. A. 519, 46 S. W. 117.

Declarations of stockholders of academy as to purpose for which land was deeded to academy held inadmissible as declarations of tenants in possession against interest. Long v. Moore, 19 C. A. 363, 48 S. W. 43.

That property was purchased with separate means of a husband cannot be proved by evidence of his declarations to that effect. Siebert v. Lott, 20 C. A. 191, 49 S. W. 783.

That plaintiffs in trespass to try title did not know of their ancestor's title does not preclude the giving of evidence of the conduct of their predecessors in interest in regard thereto. Texas Tram & Lumber Co. v. Gwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 110.

Where land was conveyed to trustees, to hold so long as used for school purposes, and was later abandoned, in action to recover it and enjoin removal of schoolhouse, declarations made to plaintiff's grantor that house would not revert are admissible, as being against interest. Green v. Gresham, 21 C. A. 601, 53 S. W. 382.

Declarations of a husband that land certificates and land located by virtue thereof belonged to his wife held admissible in trespass to try title, though his declarations in favor of his own title were inadmissible. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper, 39 C. A. 99, 87 S. W. 235.

In a case involving the question of fraudulent conveyance of land held that declarations of debtor and the grantee prior thereto as to the ownership of stock, for which the land had been conveyed to the debtor, were admissible to weaken or strengthen the force of the circumstances as to the treatment of the stock. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Magoffin (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 187.

Recital in a deed and an entry in the grantor's account book held admissible as circumstances bearing on the issue as to whether or not the plaintiffs' ancestors deeded the land to him. Brewer v. Cochran, 45 C. A. 179, 99 S. W. 1033.

A letter from a real estate agent to his principal, stating that he had about closed a trade with plaintiffs' ancestors for the purchase of land, held admissible as a circumstance bearing upon the issue as to whether or not the ancestors deeded the land to the principal. Id.

Declarations held admissible as evidence of adverse title. Whittaker v. Thayer, 48 C. A. 508, 110 S. W. 787.

The weight as evidence of a recital of a conveyance in a deed in plaintiff's chain of title stated. White v. McCullough, 56 C. A. 383, 120 S. W. 1093.

Declarations of one in possession of land that he is claiming it as his own are admissible as giving character to his possession, but the declarations are not competent when they do relate to a previous possession. Campbell v. San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 750.

Evidence as to the nature of the ownership of defendant's grantor in trespass to try title held not objectionable as hearsay; it being impossible to secure better evidence on the subject in view of the long lapse of time since the declarations were made. Conroy v. Sharman (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 244.

Where plaintiff's title depended on a conveyance of a headright certificate by the deceased original holder thereof, his declarations that he owned the land and had not sold the certificate were admissible. Baldwin v. McCullough (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 203.

27. Declaration in course of business or performance of duty.—Reports by officers of a fraternal insurance order held admissible to show decedent's standing in the order. Supreme Lodge, Knights of Honor v. Rampy (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 422.

In an action on a benefit certificate, an affidavit made by the financier of the lodge held admissible. United Moderns v. Pistole, 38 C. A. 422, 86 S. W. 377.

In an action on a health policy, preliminary reports furnished insurer by a physician are not admissible to show the nature of disease which confined insured. General Accident Ins. Co. v. Hayes, 52 C. A. 272, 113 S. W. 990.

28. Declarations of testator respecting will.—See notes under Arts. 3271, 3272.

29. Decedent against interest.—Statements made by testatrix's husband, before his decease, that testatrix was insane, held to have been properly excluded on a probate of the will, contested because of testatrix's mental incapacity, where the husband was not a beneficiary under the will. Lindsey v. White (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 438.

Declarations of a decedent as to being asleep when he was struck by a train held admissible as against interest. Smith v. International & G. N. R. Co., 34 C. A. 209, 78 S. W. 556.

Declarations of a testator held admissible as against interest. Chew v. Jackson, 45 C. A. 656, 102 S. W. 427.

A recital in a deed of receipt by grantor shown to be dead, of the purchase money held inadmissible, against those claiming under a prior deed, as a declaration against interest by grantor. Ryle v. Davidson, 102 T. 227, 115 S. W. 28.

30. — Disparagement of title.—Declarations held admissible to show, and with other facts did show, that a suit for land the parties to which were dead, and the records of which were destroyed was brought in the county where the land was situated, and the venue was regularly changed. Jones v. Robb, 35 C. A. 263, 80 S. W. 395.

31. — Statements as to fact or nature of transfer or gift.—The widow and heirs of A. brought suit against the widow and representatives of B. to recover a tract of land. Plaintiff as evidence of title offered a deed to A. for the land, reciting the payment of the purchase-money by him. The defendant was permitted to engraft a trust on the deed by a declaration by A. in his will that B., his father, had paid two-thirds of the purchase-money and was entitled to the land on payment to his representative of one-third of the purchase-money. Shepherd v. White, 10 T. 72; Id., 11 T. 346; White v. Shepperd, 16 T. 163.

Declarations of the survivor of the community that the land in suit was included in a parol partition, and had been allotted to claimant, held admissible as against decarant's interest. Shelburn v. McCrocklin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 329.

In an action on a life policy by one claiming it as a gift from the insured, the declarations of the insured were competent to prove both the gift and the delivery. Lord v. New York Life Ins. Co., 95 T. 216, 66 S. W. 290, 56 L. R. A. 596, 93 Am. St. Rep. 827.

Declaration of the owner of a note that he had given the note to plaintiff held admissible to prove both the gift and the delivery. Schauer v. Von Schauer (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 145.

32. — Knowledge as to subject-matter.—Declarations of deceased stockholders of academy as to purpose for which land was deeded to academy held inadmissible against third persons, as declarations of persons since deceased against interest. Long v. Moore, 19 C. A. 363, 48 S. W. 43.

33. — Probate or contest of wills.—See notes under Arts. 3271, 3272.

34. Preliminary evidence.—G. brought suit against B. to recover actual and exemplary damages for the wrongful issuance and levy of a writ of sequestration. Plaintiff, over the objections of defendant, was permitted to prove the declarations of the sheriff at the time he levied the writ of sequestration, that "he was instructed to throw plaintiff's property over the fence." There was no evidence tending to show that B. gave any such instruction, and in the absence of such proof it was error to admit the evidence. Blum v. Gaines, 57 T. 135.

35. Conclusiveness and effect.—In determining the question as to whose benefit a verbal trust arising on a deed absolute on its face should inure, all the declarations of the grantor, made before the deed was executed, and the acts of all the parties who participated in the transactions which led to the making of the deed, as also the subsequent acts and declarations of the trustee, may be considered. Smith v. McElyea, 68 T. 70, 3 S. W. 258.

Declarations of ownership, coupled with possession, are the strongest proof of adverse possession. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. A. G. & J. C. Broom, 53 C. A. 78, 114 S. W. 655.

II. Res Gestæ

36. Nature of doctrine in general.—To be part of the res gestæ, the declarations are not required to be precisely concurrent in point of time with the principal transaction, if they spring out of it, tend to explain it, are voluntary and spontaneous, and are made at a time so near as to preclude the idea of deliberate design. McGowen v. McGowen, 52 T. 657; Railway Co. v. Crowder, 70 T. 222, 7 S. W. 709.

Where the circumstances of the case render it probable that a statement offered as res gestæ is the result of premeditation or deliberate design to effect a certain purpose, it should not be received. Pilkinton v. Railway Co., 70 T. 226, 7 S. W. 805. See Railway Co. v. Crowder, 70 T. 222, 7 S. W. 709.

Evidence of res gestæ admissible. Railway Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 808; McGowen v. McGowen, 52 T. 657; Railway Co. v. Anderson, 82 T. 516, 17 S. W. 1039, 27 Am. St. Rep. 902; Railway Co. v. Robertson, 82 T. 657, 17 S. W. 1041, 27 Am. St. Rep. 929; Railway Co. v. Hall, 83 T. 675, 19 S. W. 121; Railway Co. v. Bond, 2 C. A. 104, 20 S. W. 930. Not admissible, when. Railway Co. v. Crowder, 70 T. 222, 7 S. W. 709; Pilkinton v. Railway Co., 70 T. 226, 7 S. W. 805.

Declarations so closely connected with the main transaction as to throw light upon its character are admissible in evidence. Railway Co. v. Pierce, 7 C. A. 597, 25 S. W. 1053; Railway Co. v. Anderson, 82 T. 516, 17 S. W. 1039, 27 Am. St. Rep. 902; Sargent v. Carnes, 84 T. 156, 19 S. W. 378.

The fact that statements might also have been admissible to impeach testimony in a deposition did not render them inadmissible as part of the res gestæ. Dewalt v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 403, 55 S. W. 534.

37. Facts forming part of same transaction.—Suit was brought by B., assignee of a negotiable instrument executed by B. to O., for the payment of a sum of money. The defense was that the note was given for the purpose of securing future advances to a mercantile firm of which B., O. and another were members, and that it was assigned to plaintiff under such circumstances as to destroy its negotiability, that he had a knowledge of all the facts, and received it in payment of an antecedent individual debt of O. to himself. In order to show the purpose for which the note had been executed, the defendant offered in evidence letters, memoranda and calculations bearing date about the time of the execution of the note. Held, that they were admissible as part of the res gestæ. Goldman v. Blum, 58 T. 630.

An unsigned order sheet containing a description of goods to be used in the construction of defendant's house, which was made out by plaintiff at the time of a verbal transaction regarding the delivery of the goods, held part of the res gestæ. Watson v. Winston (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 852.

Evidence as to the speed of a train is admissible as part of the res gestæ, on the question of negligence, where plaintiff was struck by the train at a crossing. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eaton (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 562.

On an issue whether a location inured to the benefit of the owner of an undivided half of the headright certificate, the locator's deed of the land held admissible, as showing the history of the certificate. Estell v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 2.

On proceedings to probate a lost will, held proper to admit testimony that the will was drawn because of the loss of a former one, and that testatrix had told witness, who drew the will, to make it like the former one. McElroy v. Phink (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 61.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's wife in collision with an automobile, evidence of injuries sustained, held admissible as part of the res gestæ, though such damages were not claimed in the petition. Posener v. Harvey (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 356.

A railway brakeman suing for injuries received in a collision, having claimed that he was thrown 25 feet, the company could show that no other persons on the train were injured, and what effect the collision had on them. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 831.

Certain evidence held admissible as part of the history of the transaction. Young v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 715.

Evidence in an action for injury to cattle in transit through rough treatment, that other cattle in the same shipment were killed held admissible as part of the res gestæ. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 813.

In an action to reform a deed as to the property conveyed, abstracts of title held to constitute such contemporaneous data as rendered them admissible on the question of what property the grantors intended to convey. Harry v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 637.

In an action for criminal conversation, where it was brought out on cross-examination that plaintiff signed a statement exonerating his wife and defendant for the purpose of stopping a criminal prosecution, evidence that he signed it at another's suggestion, who told him that it would be proper to swear to a lie to protect his family, is admissible as res gestæ. Swearingen v. Bray (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 953.

38. Acts and statements accompanying or connected with transaction or event.—Suit was brought by A. against the executrix of B. to recover the amount of a note placed by plaintiff in the hands of B., an attorney-at-law, for collection. The defense was that B. had sold the note by the consent of A. for less than its face, and had accounted for the amount due A. There was some evidence tending to show a knowledge and ratification of the sale by A. M., a witness for defendant, testified that he proposed to B. to buy the note; that B. stated that he had authority to dispose of the note, but as the offer was at a discount he preferred seeing A., and explaining the condition of the debt before he would make the trade. Afterwards B. informed the witness that he had seen A., who accepted his offer. Held, that the evidence of M. as to B.'s statement was properly admitted. Boone v. Thompson, 17 T. 605.

The declarations of the wife at or about the time of an apparent abandonment of her husband, and explanatory of her acts, are admissible in evidence in her behalf as part of the res gestæ. McGowen v. McGowen, 52 T. 657.

Suit was brought by the heirs of a decedent against a surviving administrator and two sets of sureties on the bond of the administrators, and there was a question as to which set of sureties was liable, and to what extent. A witness testified that on two or three trials between the heirs of the estate, with a view to partition, the deceased administrator was a party, and testified that he had in his possession money and notes amounting to a certain sum. Another witness testified that he had made out, under the direction of the deceased administrator, exhibits to be filed in the probate court, showing the condition of the estate. Held, that such declarations were admissible as part of the res gestæ. Keowne v. Love, 65 T. 152.

The declarations of a surveyor made when surveying a tract of land as to distances then measured by him from designated objects are admissible as part of the res gestæ. Russell v. Hunnicutt, 70 T. 657, 8 S. W. 500.

The opinions of physicians expressed at the time they were examining a patient, with reference to his condition in a case of poisoning by morphine, are in the nature of res gestæ and admissible on the issue whether it was a case of accident or intentional suicide. Insurance Co. v. Tillman, 84 T. 31, 19 S. W. 294.

Where proof shows the deposit of notes with an attorney, statements as to the purpose for which they were deposited, made at the time and by the person depositing them, are not hearsay, but are verbal acts. Smith v. Bank, 1 C. A. 115, 20 S. W. 1119.

Declarations admissible in evidence as distinguished from hearsay must be contemporaneous with the main fact and so connected with it as to illustrate its character. Declarations not part of the res gestæ are not admissible in this action. Huth v. Huth, 10 C. A. 184, 30 S. W. 240; Railway Co. v. Pierce, 7 C. A. 597, 25 S. W. 1052.

Declarations of a party to a suit for divorce in explanation of her abandonment by her husband are inadmissible as res gestæ in absence of proof of the existence of the main fact to which they relate. Huth v. Huth, 10 C. A. 184, 30 S. W. 240. Declarations of a party not part of the res gestæ are not admissible in evidence. Railway Co. v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 128; Railway Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 808; Railway Co. v. Bruce (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 927. See Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 21 S. W. 58, 2 C. A. 210; Railway Co. v. Ross, 11 C. A. 201, 32 S. W. 730.

The declarations of a by-stander, wholly disconnected with the transaction, are not admissible as part of the res gestæ. Wilkins v. Ferrill, 10 C. A. 231, 30 S. W. 450; Eddy v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1076.

Certain testimony held res gestæ. Gresham v. Harcourt, 33 C. A. 196, 75 S. W. 808. Statement of subscribing witness of will alleged to be a forgery, when delivering instrument to justice of the peace, held admissible in probate proceedings as part of res gestæ. Dolan v. Meehan (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 99.

A statement which constituted part of the res gestæ could be testified to by the person who made it. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 34 C. A. 535, 80 S. W. 133.

To be admissible as part of the res gestæ, declarations should be spontaneous, and made so soon after the principal transaction as to preclude the idea of deliberate design. Malone v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 49 C. A. 398, 109 S. W. 430.

A purchaser's declarations and instructions to his son as his agent, and his repudiation of the deed and directions for its return, held admissible as verbal acts, and not objectionable as hearsay. Hudson v. Slate, 53 C. A. 453, 117 S. W. 469.

A statement held a part of the res gestæ. Reid Auto Co. v. Gorsczya (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 688.

In an action against an express company for damages to fish shipped, evidence that, while witness and another were re-icing fish at a railroad station, such other removed the top from the fish barrels, and said, "The fish don't need any ice," was not admissible as res gestæ, being hearsay. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 363.

39. — By agents or employés.—Whenever the act of an agent is admissible in evidence, his statements relative to the act, and made while doing it, are also admissible as part of the res gestæ. Tuttle v. Turner, 28 T. 759.

Declaration of person in charge of certain property before seizure and execution, as to his employment, held admissible in favor of his employer. Jones v. Hess (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 46.

In an action against a carrier for unreasonable delay in the delivery of a shipment of cattle, the declaration of the conductor held a part of the res gestæ. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stanfield Bros., 40 C. A. 385, 90 S. W. 517.

In an action on building contract, evidence of statements by workmen as to interference by owner held admissible as part of res gestæ. Neblett v. McGraw & Brewer, 41 C. A. 239, 91 S. W. 309.

Statement by an insurance agent on delivering a policy that it was all right and would stand in any court held admissible on the issue of complainant's negligence in failing to read the policy when it was delivered. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Brannon (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 614.

Declarations of a cotenant signing a contract for the sale of the land, for himself and his co-owner, that he had authority to sign such co-owner's name, held admissible against the cotenant as res gestæ, and against his co-owner in the event the jury determined the issue of the tenant's agency in the vendee's favor. Naylor v. Parker (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 93.

40. — Writings.—Original entries in memorandum book by agent of payee of note, showing receipt of balance due, held admissible as res gestæ. Henry v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 120.

Letters written by the maker of a note, instructing his agent to make a tender of notes in payment thereof, held not admissible, in an action on the note, as a part of the res gestæ. Ellis v. Randle, 24 C. A. 475, 60 S. W. 462.

In an action against a carrier for injury to cattle in transit, certain telegram held admissible in evidence as res gestæ. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Scoggin & Brown, 40 C. A. 526, 90 S. W. 521.

In a suit by a shipper of cattle for damages, an objection to the account of sales of the cattle read in evidence that the evidence showed the same was made up from data furnished by salesmen and weighmasters, the correctness of which was not proven, was not tenable, where witnesses who actually weighed the cattle testified to their weights, and the reports of the weights and prices realized, made to the bookkeeper of the company selling the same, all appeared to have been contemporaneous with the transactions to which they related, and so were a part of the res gestæ. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383.

An entry of a memorandum in a book by an employé of a contract held not admissible as part of the res gestæ. Luttrell v. Parry (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 865.

41. — Motive and intent in general.—In an action against a telegraph company for the refusal to receive a message for transmission, the language of the agent at the time of refusing to receive the message was admissible on the issue of the motive. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 686.

42. — Ownership or possession of property.—In a suit for the partition of a league of land between the owners in common, the defendants alleged that the land was partitioned many years before by the owners, and that the partition line then established had ever since been acquiesced in by those interested. In support of the answer the defendants were permitted to prove the declarations of the surveyor when running the line, to the effect that he was making the survey to establish the dividing line between the upper and lower halves of the league, for the parties and by their request, as they were dissatisfied with a division line made three years before. George v. Thomas, 16 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 612.

Acts and declarations of person presenting note for collection as to ownership of the note are admissible as a part of the res gestæ. Bolt v. State Savings Bank of Manchester, Iowa (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 707.

Remark of mortgagor, made at the time of execution and delivery of chattel mortgage, that he had promised to give it as an inducement to the other party whose name was on the note to sign with him was admissible as res gestæ. Dunlap v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 578.

43. — Existence or nature of contract and relation of parties.—Where a release is sought to be avoided for mistake, acts and conversions of the parties during the negotiations for the release held admissible. McCarty v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 21 C. A. 568, 54 S. W. 421.

In an action for failure of an express company to promptly deliver a shipment, evidence as to conversations with the drivers who received the goods held admissible as res gestæ. Pacific Express Co. v. Needham (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1070.

In an action on notes due March 10, 1910, claimed to have been indorsed to plaintiff bank after maturity, a letter dated March 7, 1910, from it to another bank, stating that it purchased the note on such other bank's recommendation, dated April 9, 1909, was admissible. National State Bank of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 646.

44. — Sale or conveyance.—A creditor bought the stock of an insolvent debtor. The statements of the debtor at the time of the sale of the use to which he intended to apply the proceeds were held admissible in evidence as a part of the res gestæ. Sanger Bros. v. Colbert, 84 T. 668, 19 S. W. 863.

Witness' "opinion" of his former testimony held admissible as his best recollection. Wright v. Solomon (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 58.

Where it was attempted to establish an alleged lost deed, evidence that the scrivener, on delivering the paper to the grantor for execution, stated that it was a deed, held admissible to show that the paper was in fact a deed, if not as res gestæ. Simpson Bank v. Smith, 52 C. A. 349, 114 S. W. 445.

45. — Torts in general.—Words and acts of others, part of the res gestæ, admissible to disprove negligence. Railway Co. v. Duty (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 463.

A declaration held a part of the res gestæ. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Luther, 40 C. A. 517, 90 S. W. 44.

In trover for cattle, in which plaintiff claimed exemplary damages, testimony by plaintiff as to a difficulty which occurred at the time the cattle were taken was admissible as part of the res gestæ. Boardman v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 550.

46. — Personal injuries.—In an action against a railway company for damages resulting from a collision of cars, it was held competent to prove as a part of the res gestæ that another passenger was injured by the effect of the collision. Evidence of the acts and declarations of other persons in the same peril are competent as part of the res gestæ, and also as evidence of what was deemed prudent by those thus exposed. Mr. Wharton says: "What has been said as to the admissibility of independent acts as a basis from which good faith may be inferred applies with peculiar force to the admission of such facts when there is a contest whether prudence or diligence was exercised by a particular person at a particular time. For instance, on a question as to whether an engineer, in the management of a train at a collision, acted prudently, there is no doubt that it would be admissible to prove the cries of by-standers, without producing such by-standers." In his work on carriers of passengers, the rule is stated by Mr. Thompson thus: In an action for damages received in a railroad collision, where there is a question as to the negligence of the plaintiff, evidence may be given of the conduct and exclamations of other passengers, in order to show how the circumstances of danger impressed every one, and to vindicate the plaintiff from the charge of rash conduct and imprudence from undue alarm. Such general conduct, given with the exclamations involuntarily made by the passengers, in consequence of the appearance of imminent peril, may be regarded as a part of the res gestæ for this purpose. Fort Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Stingle, 2 App. C. C. § 704.

Circumstance attending the act charged as negligence held admissible to characterize such act. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Downing, 16 C. A. 643, 41 S. W. 190.

In an action for injuries received in a crossing accident, a remark of defendant's employé was held not a part of the res gestæ. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Belt (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 374.

A conversation held admissible because the evidence warranted the jury in finding, in spite of the passenger's denial, that it was in his presence. Ebert v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1105.

Declaration of engineer, on his attention being called to runaway horse, after he had blown whistle, held part of res gestæ. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Milner, 28 C. A. 86, 66 S. W. 574.

The real issue being whether a fire was built in a depot, testimony of a person that he heard the depot agent tell a boy to go to a car and get some coal, and saw him give the boy a key to unlock the car where the coal was, is admissible as part of the res gestæ. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 987.

In action against carrier, evidence that while carrier's servants were carrying plaintiff's daughter to baggage car a stranger told them not to put her in the baggage car held admissible as res gestæ. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Coopwood (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 102.

In an action for the death of an employé engaged in putting fuel oil in an engine tender, by slipping on a greasy fuel box lid in descending from the tender, testimony that decedent was slow and awkward in filling the tender, and the engineer told him to hurry, and that he was delaying the engine, was admissible as res gestæ. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 602.

47. — Injury to or loss of property.—Certain evidence as to the cause of a railroad's delay in transporting plaintiff's cattle held hearsay, and not part of the res gestæ. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Crump, 32 C. A. 223, 74 S. W. 335.

In an action for loss of plaintiff's horses, evidence of a statement of one of defendant's employés held admissible as res gestæ. Wagoner v. Snody, 36 C. A. 514, 82 S. W. 355.

Declarations of defendant's employés made just after the fire in question was started, and while it was still raging, held admissible as res gestæ. Paraffine Oil Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1089.

In an action against a railroad for negligently transporting plaintiff's cattle, oral evidence of a verbal contract of shipment held inadmissible under the pleadings. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Batte (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 345.

In an action against a railroad for negligently transporting plaintiff's cattle, a statement made by a brakeman as to the cause of the delay held admissible. Id.

A statement by a bystander made during the progress of a fire communicated to plaintiff's property by oil which escaped from defendant's oil tank as to the cause of the ignition of the oil was not admissible for defendant as a part of the res gestæ. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bellar, 51 C. A. 154, 112 S. W. 323.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to cattle by rough handling in transit, a conversation between plaintiff and the conductor during transit, in which plaintiff complained and told the conductor that the cattle were being handled roughly, was admissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Ross & Phelan (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 231.

In a suit by a shipper of cattle for damages, held, that an objection to an account of sales of the cattle, read in evidence, was untenable, where witnesses who actually weighed the cattle testified to their weights, and the reports to the bookkeeper of the weights and prices realized, all appeared contemporaneous with the transactions to which they related, and so were part of the res gestæ. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383.

48. — Fraud.—In an action assailing a mortgage for fraud, evidence held admissible to show mortgagor's motives, and as a part of the res gestæ. Wright v. Solomon (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 58.

Declarations by a grantor, made at the time of the execution of a deed, showing fraud and undue influence, are competent as a part of the res gestæ. Rankin v. Rankin, 105 T. 451, 151 S. W. 527.

49. Acts and statements before transaction or event.—In a suit for damages for the wrongful seizure of property under a writ of attachment, the issue was whether the sale of the property in question had been made to defraud creditors. A., who had made the sale, was asked by the party impeaching the sale on the ground of fraud the following question: For what purpose did you tell C., in a conversation with him some time before the sale was made, that you wanted to make said sale? Held, that the declarations of the vendor to a third party at a time considerably antedating the transaction, as to his motives, was not a part of the res gestæ, and were not admissible in evidence. Weaver v. Ashcroft, 50 T. 427.

In a suit for damages against a railroad company for false and fraudulent representations by the company's agents, inducing the plaintiff to convey to the company valuable property, the statements made by certain directors were held inadmissible in the absence of evidence that they were made by them when performing an act authorized by the company so as to make them a part of the res gestæ. East Line R. R. Co. v. Garrett, 52 T. 133.

In an action against a railway company for damages on account of personal injuries caused by the negligence of the defendant, it was alleged that the train was run at a very high rate of speed, that the road-bed and track were old and much worn, and that the wreck in consequence ensued. The plaintiff in testifying, while detailing the facts within his knowledge, repeated an exclamation made at the time, of a fellow traveler, as to the short period consumed in passing between certain points. Held, the statement was admissible in evidence. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Collier, 62 T. 318.

In an action on a policy of insurance against loss by fire, the defendant claimed that the building insured fell, not as the result of the fire, but from other causes, and that by the conditions of the policy the contract of insurance thereby determined. The plaintiff, in support of the theory that the fall of the building was caused by the fire, introduced a witness who testified that after the building had fallen, and before she and her family were extricated, she exclaimed that they would all be burned up. Held, that the witness was but stating her surroundings, what she saw, and the impressions thereby made upon her mind. The defendant, in order to prove the condition of the house before the fire, offered to prove by a witness that he had heard D., who lost her life in the disaster, speak of the cracks in the walls of the building and of the falling off of the plaster, so that she had to be continually sweeping, defendant having previously proven that D. was chambermaid at the time of the destruction of the building, and that it was a part of her business to sweep the hotel. Held, that the declarations of D., made at some time anterior to the burning of the house, had no such relation to the issue to be proved in this case by reason of there being declarations contemporaneous with the main fact to be proved, or for any other reason, as would make such declarations res gestæ. If the inquiry was why she did a certain act, or why she was at a given place at a certain time, then her declarations made at the time would have been illustrative of her act, and would have constituted res gestæ. Continental Ins. Co. v. Pruit, 65 T. 125.

Declaration of bystander as to train entering crossing without stopping held admissible as part of the res gestæ in action for injuries by collision at such crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 167.

Plaintiff's declaration, on examining a deed to him, to a third person with whom it had been left, held admissible as res gestæ. Smith v. T. M. Richardson Lumber Co., 92 T. 448, 49 S. W. 574.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages, owing to defendant's lines having been fraudulently tapped and a message sent to plaintiff authorizing the bank to cash a draft for a swindler, a conversation between the president of plaintiff and the swindler held properly admitted as part of the res gestæ. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 232.

In action for negligent failure to properly transmit telegram apprising plaintiff of the death of his father, certain statements of the father, shortly before his death, held inadmissible. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Jackson, 35 C. A. 419, 80 S. W. 649.

Remarks of a street car conductor held to be a part of the res gestæ, in an action for injuries received in a collision between a street car and a railway train. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Caldwell, 44 C. A. 374, 99 S. W. 869.

Declarations of a husband to his wife when he purchased, or when he was making, improvements on certain property claimed by her as a homestead, held admissible as res gestæ to show the husband's intention. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

In an action against a railway company for injury to a brakeman run over by cars while attempting to cross a track, all the circumstances relating to his acts and purpose at the time of the accident were proper for the jury to consider in determining whether another in the same circumstances would have acted as plaintiff did; the weight of such evidence being for the jury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cleland, 50 C. A. 499, 110 S. W. 122.

Certain evidence by a real estate broker held admissible as res gestæ. Mitchell v. Crossett (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 965.

50. Acts and statements after transaction or event.—The declarations of a third party relative to the facts connected with an accident resulting in damage to plaintiff, who sues to recover damages, when made ten minutes after the accident by the narrator, who was present with the plaintiff when the damage was inflicted, are not admissible as part of the res gestæ. Railway Co. v. Moore, 69 T. 157, 6 S. W. 631; Railway Co. v. Southwick (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 592.

The declarations of a deceased vendor, made at the time he parts with possession of a deed, are admissible in evidence, in a suit to which his executor is a party, on an issue as to whether there was then a purpose to deliver the deed in consummation of a sale. His subsequent declarations, made after the registration of the deed, are not admissible as part of the res gestæ. Steffian v. Bank, 69 T. 513, 6 S. W. 823.

After a railroad disaster, the conversations of by-standers and declarations by the servants of the railroad company, narrating the cause and circumstances of the disaster, and made within an hour or two after the wreck, are not res gestæ. Railway Co. v. Ivy, 71 T. 409, 9 S. W. 346, 1 L. R. A. 500, 10 Am. St. Rep. 758.

Hearsay evidence is admissible to prove pedigree, age and death. Evidence of time or place of residence, or death, is admissible for the purpose of identification. De Leon v. McMurray, 23 S. W. 1038, 5 C. A. 280; Brown v. Lazarus, 25 S. W. 71, 5 C. A. 81;

Insurance Co. v. Blodgett, 27 S. W. 286, 8 C. A. 45; Byers v. Wallace, 28 S. W. 1056, 87 T. 503; Wallace v. Howard (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 711; French v. McGinnis, 21 S. W. 941, 3 C. A. 86; Nixon v. Wichita L. & L. Co., 84 T. 408, 19 S. W. 560; Louder v. Schluter, 78 T. 103, 14 S. W. 205, 207; Paden v. Briscoe, 81 T. 563, 17 S. W. 42.

A statement of the time of the death of a person made within a few minutes thereafter is admissible as hearsay. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Neel (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 661. See Hanna v. Hanna, 21 S. W. 720, 3 C. A. 51; Railway Co. v. Robertson, 82 T. 657, 17 S. W. 1041, 27 Am. St. Rep. 929.

Descent and heirship may be shown by hearsay. Byers v. Wallace, 28 S. W. 1056, 87 T. 503.

Death may be proved by hearsay evidence. Turner v. Sealock, 21 C. A. 594, 54 S. W. 358.

Where, in a prosecution for rape, the prosecutrix states that she knows her age, it is competent for her to testify thereto. Lewis v. State (Cr. App.) 64 S. W. 240.

Proof of death may be made by hearsay, when emanating from one whose interest is not to be subserved by the declaration. York v. Hilger (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1117.

Matters of pedigree such as family history may be proved by hearsay testimony, and other facts, not entirely matters of pedigree, may be so intimately connected with pedigree as to permit their proof by the same character of testimony. Wall v. Lubbock, 52 C. A. 405, 118 S. W. 886.

After the lapse of a long period of time, death may be proven by hearsay. McDoel v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1178.

33. Family records.—Entries in the family Bible are admissible to show pedigree when there is no better evidence. Smith v. Greer, 10 C. A. 252, 30 S. W. 1108.

In trespass to try title, in which it was in issue whether plaintiff's remote grantor was the son of the original patentee of the land, the family Bible of plaintiff's remote grantor, identified by his son, was admissible to show that such remote grantor was the son of the original patentee. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 894.

In trespass to try title, where it was in issue whether plaintiff's remote grantor was the son of the original patentee of the land, a deed wherein such remote grantor stated that he was the son of the original patentee, and the only heir with the exception of his mother, was properly admitted. Id.

34. General and family reputation.—In an action of trespass to try title, P. claimed the land in controversy under a deed from B. to W., a power of attorney from W. to G., dated February 24, 1838, and a deed by G. under the power, dated May 17, 1849. The defense was that W. died before the execution of the deed, and to prove this issue witnesses testified that they knew a man by the name of W. in New Orleans and Texas in 1839; that in 1837 or 1838 B. conveyed to him a tract of land; that they had not seen or heard of him since 1839, except from general rumor and report that he had died seven or eight years before the execution of the deed by G. Held, that the evidence was competent. Primm v. Stewart, 7 T. 178.

Death may be proved by general reputation in the community. Railway Co. v. Richard (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 920.

Evidence of declarations of deceased, and of the general understanding in the community, held admissible on the questions of identity and heirship. Hintze v. Krabben-schmidt (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 38.

A witness, having testified that he was cousin to a certain party, was qualified to testify to matters of family repute, without his relationship being established by other testimony. Smith v. Kenney (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 801.

Evidence of general reputation held admissible to prove marriage. Cuneo v. De Cuneo, 24 C. A. 436, 59 S. W. 284.

Where, in seeking to establish a gift of a life insurance policy to a sister, it was shown that he stood in loco parentis to her, testimony of an aunt as to the death of their father was held admissible as a matter of family history. Lord v. New York Life Ins. Co., 27 C. A. 139, 65 S. W. 699.

The testimony of a witness that he supposed certain persons to be his nephews and nieces held incompetent. Keith v. Keith, 39 C. A. 363, 87 S. W. 384.

Testimony of a witness that according to the family history her deceased grandfather came to Texas at or about a particular time was competent to prove that fact. Keck v. Woodward, 53 C. A. 267, 116 S. W. 75.

Where a witness testified that he first became acquainted with the family of a person about sixty years ago, and that the family consisted of a woman, son, and daughter, he could testify that it was generally understood at the time in that community that the person was dead, and that the woman was recognized as a widow. Wall v. Lubbock, 52 C. A. 405, 118 S. W. 886.

Where a witness was the husband of the granddaughter of a person, he could testify as a member of the family to the family history, including the death and time of death of that person, though he did not state that he obtained his information from deceased members of the family. Id.

In cases of necessity, evidence of reputation may be given by persons not members of the family to establish a marriage. Schwingle v. Keifer (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 194.

Every person acquainted with the parties to an alleged marriage and the repute they have in the community may testify as to the reputation of marriage vel non. Id.

Where plaintiff, a Mexican, claimed to be the common-law wife of decedent, and sought to prove the same by evidence of reputation, the court did not err in refusing to confine such proof of evidence of reputation among Mexicans. Id.

On the issue of the paternity of witness' husband, certain evidence held admissible. Wless v. Hall (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 384.

On the issue whether a certain child was born alive, testimony of a neighbor that it was generally understood that the child was born dead held admissible. Id.

In an action to recover land which plaintiff claimed by devise, where there was testimony that the witness knew the testator in 1862 and understood that he died during the war, such being the report, the word "war" must be understood as the war between the states, and "report" as meaning common rumor. McDoel v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1178.

Proof of marriage may be made by evidence of common repute and public recognition by the parties thereto, including their declarations. Jordan v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1194.

35. Declarations by members of family.—When pedigree is shown prima facie, declarations of the claimant are admissible. Brown v. Lazarus, 25 S. W. 71, 5 C. A. 81.

Self-serving declarations as to pedigree inadmissible in evidence. Byers v. Wallace, 87 T. 503, 28 S. W. 1056; Id., 29 S. W. 760, 87 T. 503.

Hearsay evidence to prove pedigree must be based on information derived from deceased relatives or family history of the party. Nunn v. Mayne, 30 S. W. 479, 9 C. A. 366.

Hearsay evidence based on "talking with the family," and "reports of his relatives," not admitted in absence of other details. Wallace v. Howard (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 711.

Declarations of an alleged grantee in a patent that he had acquired property in Texas held admissible in an action by the heirs of the petitioner to prove his identity. Schott v. Pellerim (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 944.

Evidence of declarations of members of a family, who acquired a land grant as being the heirs of a certain soldier, that they were his heirs, held not inadmissible as hearsay. Sheppard v. Avery, 28 C. A. 479, 69 S. W. 82.

In trespass to try title, declarations made by the mother of the plaintiff's remote grantor as to his pedigree held admissible. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 894.

Statement by defendant to witness that she was not married held hearsay on the issue of defendant's coverture. Sweeney v. Taylor Bros., 41 C. A. 365, 92 S. W. 442.

Declarations of a deceased father as to when his son was born held evidence of the fact. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Jay (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 545.

Where a person's sister had no recollection of the time or place of her brother's birth, and testified only as to her recollection of what she had been told and from her memory of a record she had seen said to have been made by her mother, the truth or authenticity of which she knew nothing, her testimony did not render inadmissible evidence of the declarations of her father, since deceased, as to his son's age and place of birth, but could only affect its weight. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Jay, 50 C. A. 165, 109 S. W. 1116.

Declarations of the parties to an alleged marriage as to the existence thereof which are spontaneous and not self-serving held admissible. Schwingle v. Keifer (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 194.

Questions of pedigree, such as marriages, births, and deaths constituting family history, may be shown by declarations of members of the family. Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

Where plaintiff, claiming an interest in property of decedent, did not claim to have been married to him under a license, her statement that she had married decedent, if admissible, did not tend to prove a marriage by contract. Berger v. Kirby, 105 T. 611, 153 S. W. 1130.

36. — By deceased members.—Proof of declarations as to deaths, births, and marriages, before beginning of controversy, by person since deceased, held admissible. Gorham v. Settegast, 44 C. A. 254, 98 S. W. 665.

A witness having derived her information concerning G. from witness' mother, who was G.'s sister and was dead at the time witness testified, held entitled to state the date of G.'s death and the names of his full brothers and sisters. Kirby v. Hayden, 44 C. A. 207, 99 S. W. 746.

Declarations of deceased members of a family regarding its history are admissible in evidence. Flores v. Hovel (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 606.

Declarations by a decedent as to pedigree should not be admitted in evidence, when the same facts may be shown by the testimony of living witnesses. Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

37. — Necessity that decedent be dead.—Statements by a living third person concerning himself are hearsay, and not admissible on a question of identity. Nehring v. McMurrain (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 369.

Where a witness testified to matters of family repute, the rule that, before declarations are admissible, it must be shown that the decedent is dead, has no application. Smith v. Kenney (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 801.

On the trial of the issue whether a person not heard from for seven years is dead, evidence of declarations concerning place of birth and family connections held admissible, though the decedent is not dead. Nehring v. McMurrain, 94 T. 45, 57 S. W. 943.

In an action of trespass to try title, certain evidence, held admissible to show the death of plaintiff's remote grantor, as a predicate for the introduction of a deed containing a declaration by him as to his pedigree. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 894.

To make declarations of an heir admissible as to his pedigree, decedent must be dead at the time of the trial. Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

38. — Relationship to family.—Declarations of a deceased person are admissible to prove matters of family history, etc., on an issue as to the title to land, although it is not first shown that decedent was related either by blood or marriage to the person who died seised; it is sufficient if he be related to the alleged heir. Overby v. Johnston, 42 C. A. 348, 94 S. W. 131.

39. — Time of making declaration.—Declarations relating to identity, not made ante litem motam, are inadmissible. Schott v. Pellerim (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 944; Wolf v. Wilhelm, 146 S. W. 216.

In an action involving the issue whether a person not heard from for seven years is dead, evidence of declarations made after the action was brought held inadmissible. Nehring v. McMurrain, 94 T. 45, 57 S. W. 943.

In an action on a policy of life insurance, evidence of declarations of insured's father since deceased, as to the date and place of insured's birth, made at the time of application for the policy, held not inadmissible as made post litem motam. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Jay, 50 C. A. 165, 109 S. W. 1116.

40. — Relation of declaration to controversy.—Declarations of a witness in another suit with reference to pedigree held admissible. Kirby v. Boaz, 41 C. A. 282, 91 S. W. 642.

Declarations of a witness in another suit as to pedigree, based alone on the declarations of his father, since deceased, which were self-serving, held inadmissible. Id.

Declarations as to pedigree of a person since deceased, made after controversy arose, held inadmissible. Id.

Testimony as to pedigree was properly admitted, where it was based, not only on self-serving declarations of a decedent, but also on declarations of his wife, who had no interest, and on the family Bible and the family portrait. Kirby v. Boaz (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 223.

41. — Mode and form of declaration.—In trespass to try title, in which defendants denied that plaintiff's remote grantor was the son of the original patentee of the land, the pleadings in a suit for divorce by the wife of such original patentee, in which she prayed for the custody of a minor child, who was afterwards plaintiff's remote grantor, were admissible in evidence. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 894.

Written declarations of a decedent as to his pedigree are admissible to prove his identity and lineage. Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

An affidavit of a deceased heir as to his family history may be admitted in evidence as well as oral declarations as to pedigree. Id.

42. Declarations as to boundaries.—The field-notes of contemporaneous adjoining surveys are admissible as hearsay to locate a disputed boundary. Cottingham v. Seward (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 797.

The fact that surveys appearing on a map were made by H., and the map itself by a third person, does not render the map inadmissible, as hearsay or secondary evidence, in a suit to establish boundaries between the surveys. Fulcher v. White (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 628.

On issue as to true location of boundary line, certain testimony held admissible as showing how, when, and under what circumstances witness gained his knowledge of a certain alleged line that he had testified about. Hornberger v. Giddings, 31 C. A. 283, 71 S. W. 989.

In action to recover land, deeds executed by defendants held admissible as declarations against interest relating to boundaries. Davis v. Mills (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1064.

43. — Self-serving declarations.—In a suit to determine boundary, surveyors, in detailing the result of experimental surveys by way of introduction, may state that defendant pointed out the beginning corners, and identified them as corners claimed by him. Matthews v. Thatcher, 33 C. A. 133, 76 S. W. 61.

44. — Declarations by third persons in general.—The defendant claimed title to the land in controversy by limitation. It was proven that C. had been living on the land, and his declarations while in possession were admitted in evidence to show that he held under the defendant. Harnage v. Berry, 43 T. 567.

A witness testified that a surveyor had pointed out a corner in dispute, but it did not appear that he knew its locality. The declarations of the surveyor and opinion of the witness touching the identity of the corner were not admissible in evidence. Titterington v. Trees, 78 T. 567, 14 S. W. 692.

Declarations of a surveyor, not contemporaneous with the actual survey, are not admissible. Clay County L. & C. Co. v. Montague County, 28 S. W. 704, 8 C. A. 575.

Declarations respecting a disputed boundary line, made by a foreman of plaintiff's vendor, held admissible. Vogt v. Geyer (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1100.

The declaration of a person, who was not shown to be the owner of the land, or to be in a position to know the corner of a survey, that a certain tree was the river corner of the survey, is inadmissible in a suit to determine a boundary. Matthews v. Thatcher, 33 C. A. 133, 76 S. W. 61.

On an issue of boundary, certain testimony of surveyor as to line pointed out to him by another held admissible. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 898.

In trespass to try title to land claimed by defendant city under an alleged dedication of it as a street, evidence of a petition of citizens to the city council asking for the removal of a fence on the land was irrelevant and improperly admitted against defendant's objection. City of San Antonio v. Rowley, 48 C. A. 376, 106 S. W. 753.

In a suit to establish a boundary, it is error to permit a third person whose land is within the county survey to state that he only claims to a particular line. Runkle v. Smith, 52 C. A. 186, 114 S. W. 865.

A surveyor's testimony as to the location of a boundary line held not objectionable as hearsay. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Alexander Eccles & Co., 53 C. A. 125, 115 S. W. 648.

45. — Declarations by former owners.—The name of the grantee in a grant of land was borne by two persons, both long dead. Plaintiff claimed under one, and defendant under the other. Testimony was admissible to show that one of these persons claimed the land and exercised acts of ownership over it for a number of years. Hickman v. Gillum, 66 T. 314, 1 S. W. 339.

Declaration of past owner of land as to boundaries held admissible. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 898.

In a boundary suit, the declarations of a remote vendor of the property in question made at the time of the conveyance as to the boundary in dispute are admissible evidence. Bollinger v. McMinn, 47 C. A. 89, 104 S. W. 1079.

In trespass to try title evidence of a conversation between the prior owner of the lot in controversy and his wife regarding the boundary line of the lot is hearsay and inadmissible. McKeon v. Roan (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 404.

In trespass to try title involving the identification of a deed description, held, that plaintiff could show that the common grantor pointed out to his grantee the tract sued for. Raley v. Magendie (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 174.

On an issue as to the location of a boundary, evidence of declarations as to the removal of the line by the common source of title held admissible. Caruthers v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 757.

46. — Declarations by deceased persons in general.—On questions of boundaries the declarations of deceased persons who were in a situation to possess information on the subject and were not interested are admissible in evidence, even when the declarations were not part of the original res gestæ. Stroud v. Springfield, 28 T. 649; George v. Thomas, 16 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 612; Weider v. Carroll, 29 T. 317; Evans v. Hurt, 34 T. 111; Hurt v. Evans, 49 T. 311.

The declarations of a commissioner who acted as such in making a partition of land may, after his death, be given in evidence in regard to the location on the ground of a line established by him in making such partition. Coleman v. Smith, 55 T. 254.

The declarations of deceased parties who were disinterested, and in position to know the true location of the lines of a survey made upon the ground, and in view of the objects identified by them, are admissible to establish boundary. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 3 S. W. 671; Russell v. Hunnicutt, 70 T. 657, 8 S. W. 500.

Touching the locality of an ancient boundary line, the testimony of a deceased witness at a former trial may be proved, although such testimony gave the declarations of a party then dead, made many years before, when the line, then ancient, was pointed out to the witness. Medlin v. Wilkens, 1 C. A. 465, 20 S. W. 1026.

47. — Deceased surveyors.—The declarations of a surveyor who is dead, which were made at a time when he was attempting a survey of a tract of land not originally surveyed by him, of which he had no previous knowledge, and which relate to his opinion regarding the identification of corners and lines of the survey, are not admissible in evidence. His declarations as to distances then measured by him from designated objects are admissible. Russell v. Hunnicutt, 70 T. 657, 8 S. W. 500; Thacker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 938.

The declaration of a surveyor, since deceased, in a position to know the fact which the declaration concerns, is admissible. Beal v. Asberry (Sup.) 20 S. W. 115; Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64; Simpson v. De Ramirez, 50 C. A. 25, 110 S. W. 149.

Where a survey made by a deceased surveyor calls for the east line of another survey as one of the boundaries of the tract surveyed, other surveys made by the same surveyor at about the same time, and locating such east line, are admissible as declarations to show where such line is located, whether such other surveys are legal or not. Cottingham v. Seward (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 797.

Declarations of a deceased surveyor, made when he was making a survey different from the one in controversy, held not admissible to identify the corners and lines of the latter. Cable v. Jackson, 16 C. A. 579, 42 S. W. 136.

The declaration of a surveyor since deceased may be expressed in field notes of a junior survey. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

A declaration of a surveyor, since deceased, must, to have effect as evidence of a boundary, possess the elements of certainty. Id.

Evidence of declarations by a surveyor since deceased held inadmissible because hearsay. Thacker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 938.

48. — Deceased former owners.—Where an owner of land in a survey, the boundary of which is in dispute, is dead, a witness assisting in the survey may state that, in remarking his boundaries, such owner claimed a corner in dispute as one of his corners. Matthews v. Thatcher, 33 C. A. 133, 76 S. W. 61.

In an action involving the position of a survey, defendant held entitled to show a declaration by the deceased patentee of the survey as to the location of its corners. Simpson v. De Ramirez, 50 C. A. 25, 110 S. W. 149.

49. — General reputation.—General reputation in regard to the boundary of an ancient survey, which had been the subject of note and comment in the neighborhood, is admissible in evidence. Clark v. Hills, 67 T. 141, 2 S. W. 356.

It was competent for witnesses to testify to locality of boundary lines or corners from reputation, and from declarations by their ancestors, witnesses' knowledge extending over thirty years. So of occupation by tenants upon any part of the grant, holding under it. Von Rosenberg v. Haynes, 85 T. 357, 20 S. W. 143.

In a suit to determine a boundary, a witness may state that an old stake pointed out to him by defendant was generally reputed to be the corner of the survey in dispute. Matthews v. Thatcher, 33 C. A. 133, 76 S. W. 61.

Evidence of general repute and recognition of the location of a boundary line of a survey is admissible on the issue of such location. Goodson v. Pitzgerald, 40 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 898.

Evidence of reputation, so far as it definitely exists, is admissible to prove the location of private boundaries. Thacker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 938.

Facts held sufficient to qualify plaintiff as an expert to testify whether a defect in a brakestaff could have been discovered by proper inspection. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Collins, 33 C. A. 58, 75 S. W. 814.

The court did not err in refusing to permit an expert to testify that plaintiff reduced a hernia as one familiar with the operation. Houston Electric Co. v. Faroux (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 922.

83. Matters directly in issue.—Question to expert as to whether the furnishing of a ledger and a journal would be a substantial compliance with the contract requiring a set of books to be kept under insurance policy held properly excluded. German Ins. Co. v. Pearlstone, 18 C. A. 706, 45 S. W. 832.

Witness is competent to testify as to condition of footboard on switch engine when evidence shows that its condition was same when witness examined it as it was on day of accident. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1050.

Witness testifying as expert may give his opinion upon every issue on trial. Id.

Opinions of expert railroad men as to plaintiff's negligence in going between cars under the circumstances held inadmissible. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Nelson, 20 C. A. 536, 49 S. W. 710.

In an action by a switchman for injuries sustained by stumbling over a ground switch at night, held error to admit testimony of a witness as to whether switch would have been safer with a light thereon; such not being a proper subject for expert testimony. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 626.

On the probate of a will, contested because of the testatrix's mental incapacity, where testatrix's insane antipathy to her husband was proved, expert evidence as to her acting intelligently with reference to her husband held not to violate the rule that experts cannot testify as to the capacity of the deceased to do the very thing in issue. Lindsey v. White (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 438.

Expert evidence that defendant's employé was incompetent was admissible on an issue as to whether his incompetency was known to defendant, or could have been discovered with reasonable care. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jackson, 25 C. A. 619, 62 S. W. 91.

In an action for personal injuries, an opinion by an expert that the condition of plaintiff's lungs was due to some injury inflicted from the outside was admissible. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 808.

Deed considered, and held, that it was error, in a boundary dispute, to receive the opinion of certain surveyors that the boundary line should be run by course and distance, and should not follow the meander line of a certain stream. Griffin v. Barbee, 29 C. A. 325, 68 S. W. 698.

In an action for injuries, the admission of the testimony of a physician that the injury received by plaintiff would cause the condition he was in held not erroneous. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hawk, 30 C. A. 142, 69 S. W. 1037.

In an action against railroad for injury to engineer, admission of certain expert testimony held error. Quinn v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 395.

Where an expert bookkeeper, in a suit for the settlement of the accounts of a firm, testified to what the firm books showed, it was not error to prevent him from stating whether or not the partner or co-partner was debtor or creditor of the firm. Morgan v. Barber (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 730.

In an action for death of a servant of a railroad company, certain evidence held not proper subject for expert testimony. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. McHale, 105 S. W. 1149, 47 C. A. 360.

It was improper to allow an expert to testify as to whether decedent had mind enough to comprehend the legal effect of a deed. Williams v. Livingston, 113 S. W. 786, 52 C. A. 275.

Mental capacity to "transact business" is not a proper subject for expert testimony. Id.

Certain opinion evidence as to the location of a boundary line held inadmissible as invading the province of the jury. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 115 S. W. 50, 52 C. A. 329.

Questions to an expert witness held not to call for an opinion based on conflicting evidence, and hence not to invade the province of the jury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 714.

That the opinion of an expert witness embraced one of the issues did not make his testimony inadmissible. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

Testimony of witness qualified as expert as to condition of boiler which exploded, injuring plaintiff, held admissible as against objection made. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Haberlin, 133 S. W. 873, 104 T. 50.

In an action for breach of contract to hire a car load of mules, the capacity of the mules in question to do work of the kind for which they were hired was a proper matter for expert opinion. Big Valley Irr. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 715.

Testimony of a physician that a physical condition was produced by a foreign body working out through the muscle was not improper as an invasion of the province of the jury. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Abbott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1078.

In an action against a carrier for failure to furnish cars for the transportation of cattle and for injury to the cattle caused by delay and rough handling during transportation, the testimony of a competent witness as to the amount of the depreciation in the market value of the cattle caused thereby was admissible as against the objection that the testimony infringed on the right of the jury to determine the question. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Wood Bros. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 283.

84. Matters of common knowledge or observation.—The question of increased risk, in a suit on a policy of fire insurance, is one for the jury, and experts are not permitted to state their conclusions upon facts which involve no peculiar science or information, but are within the common knowledge of men. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

When an inquiry relates to a matter that may be understood as well by one rational mind as by another, and without special training or experience, the testimony of experts is not admissible. Shelley v. City of Austin, 74 T. 608, 12 S. W. 753; Railway Co. v. Scott, 1 C. A. 1, 20 S. W. 725.

The testimony of witnesses that grass destroyed by fire had a market value held competent. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Owen (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1139.

A nonexpert witness held not entitled to give an opinion concerning a building operation. Johnson v. Griffiths & Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 683.

A nonexpert witness may give his opinion upon facts stated by him, which show that he is possessed of sufficient information to form an intelligent opinion. American Const. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1013.

Witnesses could not testify as nonexperts where the facts upon which their testimony was based were not given. Tandy v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 481.

Nonexpert witnesses, other than the subscribing witnesses, who merely state that they had opportunity to know the facts on which they base an opinion, may testify that a testatrix was of sound mind, without stating the facts on which their opinion is based. Thornton v. McReynolds (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1144.

Subscribing witnesses to a will may testify that they are of the opinion that the testatrix was of sound mind, without giving the facts on which they base their opinion. Id.

116. — Cross-examination and re-examination.—To show that one's opinion that cattle were depreciated by sickness $10 per head was not correct, and thus to impeach the reliability of his judgment, he may be asked what price he sold them for 40 or 50 days later. Houston Cotton Oil Co. v. Trammell, 96 T. 598, 74 S. W. 899.

In condemnation proceedings by a railroad held proper on cross-examination to require witnesses to state the effect of the condemnation on the different parts into which the tract was segregated by certain railroads and highways. Panhandle & G. Ry. Co. v. Kirby, 42 C. A. 340, 94 S. W. 173.

In an action for a private nuisance, a witness giving his opinion on direct examination held properly asked on cross-examination for his opinion on the true facts. Sherman Gas & Electric Co. v. Belden (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 897.

Where a witness testified on direct examination as to the value of property converted, the sustaining of objections on cross-examination, asked to test his accuracy and truthfulness and to show his credibility, was reversible error. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

VI. Examination of Experts

117. Preliminary evidence as to competency.—A statement of an expert witness that he believes he is capable of expressing an opinion on the matter in issue is a sufficient expression of his opinion as to his own competency. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 50 C. A. 10, 108 S. W. 983.

In an action to recover for defendant's negligent delay in transporting cattle, witnesses held qualified to state the usual time of transportation between the point of shipment and the market. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Boshear (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1032.

It may be presumed that an employé of defendant irrigation company in charge of the distribution of water for irrigation had sufficient knowledge to know whether rice land was obtaining sufficient water, and defendant should not attack his competency to so testify. Kincheloe Irrigating Co. v. Hahn Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 78.

Evidence held admissible to qualify a witness to give his opinion as to what should have been the percentage of loss to a shipment of cattle if handled in the usual way. True Bros. v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 298.

In an action for death of an employé, refusal to permit a witness to give his opinion held proper, in the absence of a predicate. Guitar v. Randel (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 642.

118. Determination of question of competency.—Questions to one introduced as an expert propounded by the adversary, and which go to his credibility, are not proper on a cross-examination of the witness when being examined before the presiding judge as to his qualifications as an expert. Smith v. Caswell, 67 T. 567, 4 S. W. 848.

Whether a witness was qualified to testify as an expert is within the discretion of the trial court, which will not be disturbed unless a gross abuse appears. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Warner, 42 C. A. 280, 93 S. W. 489.

Whether a witness has qualified as an expert is for the determination of the trial court, and its action will not ordinarily be reviewed unless an abuse of its discretion is shown. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. English, 42 C. A. 393, 93 S. W. 1096.

The determination of the court as to qualification of experts held reviewable only on a showing of gross abuse of discretion. Meyer Bros. Drug Co. v. Madden, Graham & Co., 45 C. A. 74, 99 S. W. 723.

That the answer of an expert to a hypothetical question may decide the question at issue before the jury held no ground of objection to the question and answer. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Henefy (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 884.

The ruling of the court that a witness had qualified himself to give an opinion as an expert is within its discretion, and will not be disturbed unless abused. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

Question as to the qualification of an expert witness is primarily for the trial court. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 50 C. A. 10, 108 S. W. 988.

The discretion of the trial court in determining whether a witness offered as an expert possesses sufficient knowledge held reviewable only in a case of an abuse. Southern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Evans, 54 C. A. 63, 116 S. W. 418.

The competency of a witness to testify as an expert is not determined by the estimate which he places upon himself, but by that which his answers show should be placed on him. Id.

Exercise of the trial court's discretion in determining the competency of an expert will not be reviewed unless abused. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1020.

The discretion of the trial court in determining the competency of an expert witness will not be disturbed except in case of abuse. Cleburne Electric & Gas Co. v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 534.

The trial court's determination as to the competency of an expert witness will not be reviewed unless gross abuse of discretion appears. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hedric (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 633.

119. Mode of examination in general.—It is ordinarily permissible to ask an expert witness a leading question when his opinion is sought upon a matter about which by reason of his professional knowledge he has peculiar information. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Powers (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 250.

In a suit to enjoin the Railroad Commission from enforcing rates a question asked a member thereof as an expert held not objectionable. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

120. Questions and answers based on personal knowledge of expert.—The opinion of a witness as to the competency of an engineer, whom he had known only the day before his death, is inadmissible. Railway Co. v. Scott, 68 T. 694, 5 S. W. 501.

The opinion of an expert as to the sanity of the testator may be based upon a hypothetical case warranted by the testimony. Prather v. McClelland, 76 T. 574, 13 S. W. 543; Id. (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 657.

A physician called to testify to the state of health and physical condition of an injured party may relate, as the basis of his opinion, the patient's declarations as to her exposure and following illness and its symptoms. Pullman Co. v. Smith, 79 T. 463, 14 S. W. 993, 13 L. R. A. 215, 23 Am. St. Rep. 356; Railway Co. v. Ayres, 83 T. 268, 18 S. W. 684.

When a witness is to be examined as an expert, the facts shown by the evidence must be stated to him as the basis for a hypothetical question. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pitts (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 255.

A physician called to examine an injured person may state what was told him of the case on which he based his opinion. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Freedman, 18 C. A. 553, 46 S. W. 101.

Answer of a physician that he believed plaintiff's injuries to have been caused by violence held not objectionable as resting on hearsay. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baumgarten, 31 C. A. 253, 72 S. W. 78.

In an action for injuries, a hypothetical question asked of a physician held not objectionable, as not sufficiently specific and as assuming facts not sustained by the evidence. Id.

Where an expert is personally acquainted with the material facts in issue, questions relating thereto are not required to be based upon a hypothetical state of facts. A. Cohen & Co. v. Rittmann (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 59.

121. Questions and answers based on facts testified to by expert.—In an action against a railroad for personal injuries received by a passenger in alighting from a train, opinion of witness as to the cause of the injury held competent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Criswell, 34 C. A. 278, 78 S. W. 388.

A contention that an answer to a hypothetical question contained a hypothesis that did not exist held unavailing. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Kiser (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 852. Testimony of a physician based upon a personal examination of plaintiff is not hearsay. Id.

An opinion of a physician held admissible, though a conclusion of the witness. Id.

122. Questions and answers based on testimony of others.—In an action by a passenger for injuries, it was not error to refuse to allow a physician to review the testimony of plaintiff, and then give his opinion as to its reasonableness or correctness. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bell, 24 C. A. 579, 58 S. W. 614.

Where there was no conflict as to the facts, an expert witness was properly asked the question, "Assuming the testimony given to be true, to what would you attribute the injuries of E.?" Sherman, S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Eaves, 25 C. A. 409, 61 S. W. 550.

In an action for injuries, held proper to permit plaintiff's counsel to ask a physician to explain the cause of plaintiff's symptoms, basing his opinion on testimony heard on the trial. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 571.

In an action for injuries, held, that answer of medical expert to a certain question as to plaintiff's injuries was not objectionable. Id.

In an action for personal injuries held not error to exclude a question asked a doctor as to whether he concurred in a supposed opinion of another doctor as to the extent of the injury. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Alberti, 47 C. A. 32, 103 S. W. 699.

An expert held entitled to give his opinion as to the value of the material in a building based on a detailed statement of the dimensions of the building, and the character and kind of the lumber contained therein. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Arthur (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 213.

123. Hypothetical questions and answers.—An expert can give his opinion on a state of facts pertaining to his art or science which he might assume to be true, and the court and jury must then decide whether his assumption of facts was correct. But he cannot give his opinion as an expert as to his conclusion from facts testified about in conflicting testimony, the existence or nonexistence of which should be determined by the court or jury, and not by the expert. If his opinion was desired as an expert regarding the effect of given facts in producing results, it should be sought by stating a hypothetical case. Armendiaz v. Stillman, 67 T. 458, 3 S. W. 678.

Witness who had never seen a stock of goods held competent to testify as to its value. Reynolds v. Weinman (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 560.

Hypothetical questions are not necessary where the evidence shows but one state of facts, about which there is no conflict. Sherman, S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Eaves, 25 C. A. 409, 61 S. W. 550.

The allowance of a question hypothesized on facts slightly different from those subsequently shown as a foundation for the question held not error. Rice v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 715.

It is not necessary that the hypothetical facts on which an expert bases his opinion as to the existence of a fact sought to be established should be uncontroverted, but is sufficient if there is evidence from which the jury might find the supposed facts. Collins v. Chipman, 41 C. A. 563, 95 S. W. 666.

It is improper to permit a witness to be asked a hypothetical question not supported by evidence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Craft (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 170.

There must be evidence to support facts assumed in a hypothetical question. Texas Midland R. R. v. Ritchey, 108 S. W. 732, 49 C. A. 409.

124. — Form and sufficiency of questions.—Hypothetical question submitted to expert need not embrace all the testimony on the subject. Burt v. State, 38 Cr. R. 397, 43 S. W. 344, 39 L. R. A. 309, 330.

Questions asked an expert, which called for opinions based on facts too remote to make them material, were properly disallowed. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Mellott (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 887.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, a question asked a medical witness as to symptoms of a person injured in a manner like plaintiff held objectionable, as leading. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bibolet, 24 C. A. 4, 57 S. W. 974.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, a question asked a medical witness as to recovery of person injured held objectionable, as leading. Id.

A hypothetical question to an expert witness is not objectionable, because calling for an answer drawing deductions from the facts and bearing on a fact in issue for the injury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Mills, 34 C. A. 127, 78 S. W. 11.

Expert testimony as to the probable result of the failure to replace a womb after childbirth held unauthorized by the evidence, in an action for injuries to plaintiff's wife. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 558.

A hypothetical question in an action for injuries, containing as a part of the history the fact that plaintiff had a lawsuit pending, etc., held properly disallowed. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Goswick (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 423.

A hypothetical question asked of certain physicians, in an action for injuries, containing as an element that plaintiff had a case pending in court, etc., at the time of his examination, at which he made certain declarations, held properly disallowed. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Goswick, 98 T. 477, 85 S. W. 785.

A hypothetical question should not exclude facts necessary to render the answer of value to the jury. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Bolgiano (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 388.

A hypothetical question to an expert held properly refused because of the omission of a fact in evidence which might have affected his answer. De Hoyos v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 52 C. A. 543, 115 S. W. 75.

A hypothetical question not supported by the evidence is properly excluded. Missouri Valley Bridge & Iron Co. v. Ballard, 53 C. A. 110, 116 S. W. 93.

Rule governing assumption of facts as a basis for hypothetical questions, stated. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Powers, 54 C. A. 168, 117 S. W. 459.

A question to an expert witness held to be argumentative. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1150.

A hypothetical question assuming a fact not proved held improper. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Coffman, 56 C. A. 472, 121 S. W. 218.

In an action for death of a switchman, a hypothetical question held not objectionable as not based on the evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

A hypothetical question to a witness, which is based on facts not shown by the evidence, is erroneous. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Noelke (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 969.

A hypothetical question propounded to a witness should embrace sufficient facts to enable him to give an intelligent answer. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Golson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 456.

A hypothetical question held improper for assuming a fact not shown by the evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 499.

In a personal injury action, a hypothetical question to a physician as to the nature of the injury held based on matters legitimately drawn from plaintiff's testimony. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Abbott (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 1078.

All the facts assumed by a hypothetical question need not have been testified to; it being sufficient if the party expects to show them, or if it appears that afterwards proof in regard to such facts is made. Id.

A hypothetical question on a question of physical condition may be based upon conflicting testimony. Id.

It was error to permit witnesses to answer hypothetical questions, where the evidence failed to sustain the hypothesis. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dean (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 527.

A hypothetical question was not improper because it did not embrace precisely the language of the evidence, where it gave substantially what the evidence showed. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

In an action for the death of a brakeman, held, on the facts in evidence, that a hypothetical question assuming that deceased, while flagging trains, should notify the trainmen was proper. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Finklea (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 612.

125. — Scope and sufficiency of answers.—An answer to a hypothetical question is properly excluded where one of the facts on which the hypothesis is based is not shown to exist. Hicks v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 322.

An expert asked a hypothetical question may not give an answer based partly on his understanding of the evidence, and not solely on the facts supposed in the question. Hicks v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 96 T. 355, 72 S. W. 835.

In an action for injuries to a passenger by derailment of the train, evidence of defendant's roadmaster that passenger train can be safely run over a track submerged with water held properly excluded. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Cain, 37 C. A. 531, 84 S. W. 682.

A witness' opinion, in answer to a hypothetical question respecting a personal injury, held not objectionable as invading the jury's province. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Henefy (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 57.

A witness' answer to a hypothetical question that a particular blow would probably injure the sciatic nerve was not objectionable as being speculative, and cured a preceding answer objectionable on that ground. Id.

The evidence need not be precisely the same as the facts incorporated in a hypothetical question to an expert; it being sufficient if it is substantially the same. Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73.

It is not improper to allow an expert witness, in giving an opinion in answer to a hypothetical question, to make an explanation of the reasons on which he bases his conclusion, unless he introduces matters not within the purview of the question. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Abbott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1078.

126. Facts forming basis of opinion.—In an action for injuries to locomotive engineer, testimony of physician as to plaintiff's incapacity after the injury to perform duties of an engineer held properly admitted. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth, 53 C. A. 351, 116 S. W. 365.

Witnesses giving opinion as to probable loss in a shipment of cattle if handled in the usual way held entitled to testify to condition of cattle in later shipments. True Bros. v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 298.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to a race horse during transportation, a witness testifying to the value of the horse held properly permitted to base his estimate on the races the horse had won. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Crippen (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 361.

127. References to authorities on subject.—Physicians may testify as to matters the knowledge of which they have learned from the study of standard medical works. For-dyce v. Moore (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 235.

In a suit against a railroad for negligence in providing medical attention for an employé, injured in the knee, a physician testifying for plaintiff was permitted, after stating that a compound comminuted fracture not receiving proper attention for a period of 15 hours would be a great deal more likely, if not practically certain, to become infected, and by reason of the weakened condition of the patient render him more easily a prey to septic germs, and that these germs multiply rapidly in a proper soil like blood and serum, and to further state "so that from a single germ, according to Koch, in 24 hours more than 8,000,000 would develop. They divide themselves by fission once every hour." Held, that this testimony was hearsay; the witness' statement not purporting to be an expression of his own opinion or knowledge of the subject on which he was speaking, but that of the person Koch. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graves, 57 C. A. 395, 122 S. W. 458.

A witness may give his opinion on the market value of stock based on daily market reports. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Isenhower (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 297.

128. Experiments and results thereof.—Evidence of an expert, obtained from experiments made by others at his request, but not in his presence, held not admissible. Texas Brewing Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 548.

Where a plaintiff complains of anæsthetic spots on his body, a physician may testify that he stuck pins into such portions of his body and he did not flinch. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 769.

129. Cross-examination and re-examination.—It is not proper to ask a physician, on cross-examination, whether it is not a fact that all the authorities lay down a certain rule, where he has not referred to any book or authority in such a way as to make it admissible to contradict him. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hanway (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 695.

In an action by an employé for injuries through negligence, defendant held entitled to show by plaintiff's medical witness that his original diagnosis of the injuries was incompatible with subsequent developments. Chicago, R. I. & M. Ry. Co. v. Harton, 40 C. A. 235, 88 S. W. 857.

Evidence in an action for injuries to a passenger while boarding a train held admissible on cross-examination of a physician who had given an opinion as an expert witness on a hypothetical question. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fink, 44 C. A. 544, 99 S. W. 204.

In an action for death of a servant, a physician held entitled to testify that in his opinion intestate died from inhaling paint fumes. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Rutland, 45 C. A. 621, 101 S. W. 529.

In an action for alleged injuries resulting from the derailment of a car, where physicians had testified that they failed to find any injury to plaintiff as a result of the derailment, their testimony that if plaintiff's liver had been injured, they could not have discovered that fact from any external signs or from palpitation, held admissible in test of their ability to accurately determine from the examination they made whether she had been internally injured as claimed by her. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lindsey, 51 C. A. 67, 110 S. W. 995.

On cross-examination of expert held extracts from medical works may be incorporated in questions. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Farmer, 102 T. 235, 115 S. W. 260.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, held proper, on the cross-examination of an expert witness, to bring out the fact that neurasthenia could exist without any objective symptoms being present. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dalton, 56 C. A. 82, 120 S. W. 240.

In a personal injury action certain testimony of an expert medical witness held competent to test his skill and accuracy. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Farris (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1174.

In a personal injury action it was error to refuse to permit defendant to refer to and use books written by standard medicine authorities in cross-examining plaintiff's medical expert. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 831.

A street railway company, sued for personal injury, held entitled to make a stated showing to rebut any inference that a testifying medical expert favored it. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. v. Houghton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 422.

Where a witness for defendant, in an action against carriers for injuries to live stock during shipment, testified that the stock would be in better condition if delayed and fed and watered, a hypothetical question on cross-examination as to his preference between having animals shipped directly in a stated number of hours and having them delayed for food and water, and his answer that he would rather have a direct transportation, held not admissible to impeach his testimony. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Young & Webb (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1113.

In an action against a railroad company for damages for injuries to a female plaintiff, certain questions to an expert held proper to test his skill and knowledge. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 922.

130. Contradiction.—Where plaintiff, in action for personal injuries, exhibits his wounds to the court, and physicians testify that he could not wear artificial legs, defendant is entitled to examination by experts of its own selection. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Langston, 19 C. A. 568, 47 S. W. 1027.

In an action for personal injuries, where plaintiff exhibited her wounds to the jury, held, that defendant is entitled to examination by its own experts. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Langston, 19 C. A. 568, 48 S. W. 610.

Where plaintiff in an action for personal injuries has exhibited them to the jury, and physicians have testified in relation to them, defendant is entitled to have an examination by experts of its own selection. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Langston, 92 T. 709, 51 S. W. 331.

In an action for injuries by being struck by a train, a rule of the defendant held admissible to show the qualifications of an alleged expert witness, though it was not claimed that the train by which plaintiff was struck violated such rule. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Owens (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 579.

A medical expert, who testified that plaintiff was permanently paralyzed, could not be discredited by proving that he had given similar testimony as to the condition of the plaintiff in another case, and that that plaintiff did not prove to be permanently paralyzed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 295, 115 S. W. 601.

In an action on a benefit certificate, in which physicians testified for defendant that when they operated on insured they found some evidence of womb trouble, testimony of insured's husband that such physicians never advised him of such trouble held admissible as bearing on the weight to be given the testimony of the physicians. Modern Brotherhood of America v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 626.

VII. Comparison of Handwriting

131. Competency of expert.—Witness held to have such knowledge of handwriting as to be competent as expert. Bratt v. State, 38 Cr. R. 121, 41 S. W. 622.

A witness, by inspection and handling of papers, may become sufficiently acquainted with the handwriting of the persons writing them to testify in relation thereto, without ever having seen them write. Stone v. Moore (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1097.

A witness held competent to testify that transfer written on back of land certificate was in same handwriting as certain letters received at land office. Pope v. Anthony, 29 C. A. 298, 68 S. W. 521.

132, 133. Standard of comparison.—Rule as to proof of signature by comparison of handwriting. See Cook v. Bank (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 998.

An instrument which is irrelevant to the issues held inadmissible as a basis for comparison of handwriting. Sheppard v. Love (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 67.

134. Examination of expert.—On an issue as to which of two deeds was genuine, an expert can testify that they were not executed by the same person. Bell v. Hutchings (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 200.

Where a genuine signature in the handwriting of a grantor in a deed is established, an expert may testify as to whether or not the deed is in the same handwriting. Whitaker v. Thayer, 38 C. A. 537, 86 S. W. 364.

VIII. Effect of Opinion Evidence

135. Opinions of witnesses in general.—In a suit for damages the plaintiff stated in a general way that he was damaged $100. The evidence in detail failed to establish more than $40 damage, but the jury returned a verdict for $75. Held, that the verdict was not supported by the evidence. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Phillips, 63 T. 590.

In an action for damages the plaintiff stated that he had been damaged $50, but did not state the facts upon which this estimate was made. Held, that the evidence was too uncertain and unsatisfactory to warrant a verdict for damages. Hoskins v. Hulling, 2 App. C. C. § 162.

If the finding of a fact by the court trying a cause is predicated upon the mere opinion of a witness, and the party against whom the fact is found fails to cross-examine the witness to ascertain on what basis of facts the opinion is given, it will on appeal be deemed conclusive. Burrow v. Zapp, 69 T. 474, 6 S. W. 783.

Mere opinion of a witness that a delay urged as a counterclaim to a garnishee's liability was about six months held not sufficient to support a judgment for six months' delay. Scott v. Texas Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 37.

In an action against a carrier for negligence and delay in transporting a shipment of mules, the testimony of a witness that the reasonable market value of such mules at the point of destination in the condition they would have been in was from $50 to $60 was not sufficient proof of the value of the mules or the damages sustained. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crowder (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 281.

136. Testimony of experts.—Expert opinions as means of proof do not conclusively establish or disprove an alleged matter of fact submitted to investigation. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. West (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 1174.

Expert opinions as to the speed of a locomotive when derailed held not conclusive upon a jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gillespie, 48 C. A. 56, 106 S. W. 707.

Testimony of a secondhand dealer held not to prove the market value of secondhand goods. Souther v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 359.

That a physician who gave expert testimony was originally called to treat plaintiff in error for the purpose of testifying relates to his credibility only, and not to the probative force of his testimony. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Horne, 105 T. 135, 145 S. W. 1186.

A physician's testimony that a month after the accident he found a bruised place on plaintiff, and an internal ailment which would naturally have resulted from the bruise, was sufficient to sustain a finding that an internal ailment resulted from the accident. Id.

137. Conflict with other evidence.—In a suit on a promissory note, evidence of one expert as to genuineness of surety's signature was not sufficient to support finding for plaintiff, when another expert and the surety testified it was not genuine. Talbot v. Dillard, 22 C. A. 360, 54 S. W. 406.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that the transfer of a land certificate was not forged. Ward v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 240.

RULE 37. A PARTY IS ESTOPPED FROM DENYING A FACT WHICH HE HAS DIRECTLY AND WILLFULLY, BY HIS WORDS OR CONDUCT, INDUCED ANOTHER TO BELIEVE, AND TO ACT ON THE BELIEF SO AS TO ALTER HIS OWN PREVIOUS CONDITION, AND WHO WOULD BE PREJUDICED IF THE ADMISSION OF THE FACT WAS RETRACTED

I. Nature and Essentials of Equitable Estoppel in General

1. Nature and elements of estoppel in pais.—Equitable estoppel is the effect of the voluntary conduct of a party, whereby he is precluded both at law and in equity from asserting the right which might perhaps have otherwise existed, either of property, of contract or of remedy, as against another person who has in good faith relied upon such conduct, and has been led thereby to change his position for the worse, and who on his part acquires some corresponding right either of property, of contract or of remedy. It must have reference to a present or past state of things; if it refers to a future state of things, it is a mere expression of intention or opinion, or is to be governed by the laws of contract. Edwards v. Dickson, 66 T. 613, 2 S. W. 718.

Estoppel in pais defined. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Welkel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 922.

2. Intent.—That defendant, who conveyed property to another, who in turn conveyed to defendant's wife, intended the conveyance to his wife to state that it should be her separate property held not to estop him from claiming that he did not intend to give her the property, but conveyed it to her to avoid claims of creditors. Du Perier v. Du Perier (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 10.

In trespass to try title, a charge on estoppel, making intent to have defendant act on statements made a requisite, held improper. Bender v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 653.

3. Knowledge of facts.—A. sold an animal to B., and afterwards sold the same animal to C., B. being present and asserting no claim thereto. B. testified that at the time of the sale he did not know that the animal sold to C. was the same animal sold to himself, and it was held that he was not estopped from recovering the animal from C. Wright v. Bonta, 19 T. 385.

If a doubt exists between parties as to their rights, and both have the same knowledge or means of knowledge of facts involving such rights, and there is no fraud, misrepresentation or concealment, a compromise made between them will be enforced, although the final issue may be different from that anticipated and would not have been decreed by a court. Gilliam v. Alford, 69 T. 267, 6 S. W. 757.

Where defendant bank claimed that plaintiff was estopped from recovering money misapplied by his cashier, the failure of the court to condition such estoppel on defendant's ignorance of the cashier's authority held not error. Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank, 31 C. A. 308, 71 S. W. 612.

Defendant, having obtained an extension of a note to secure the price of certain hose with knowledge that a portion thereof failed to comply with a warranty, held estopped in an action on the note extended to plead a breach of warranty as a defense. Gutta Percha & Rubber Mfg. Co. v. City of Cleburne (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1131.

If a buyer accepts materials which are patently defective, it is estopped from denying that they are not of the character bargained for. Gorham v. Dallas, C. & S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 930.

One held not estopped from claiming damages for the timber cut on his land, because his agent had pointed out to defendant the lines within which the timber could be cut. Clevenger v. Blount, 103 T. 27, 122 S. W. 529.

In trespass to try title, a charge on estoppel, making actual knowledge of the truth of statements made a requisite, held improper. Bender v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 653.

In order for a person to ratify a land sale contract executed by his co-owner, it is essential that he agree to same with knowledge of its material terms. Parker v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1096.

4. Reliance on adverse party.—Conduct which does not mislead held not to work an estoppel. Roach v. Springer (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 933.

One who by his acts knowingly induces another to assume burdens he would not otherwise have undertaken is estopped from doing acts to the prejudice of the latter, and inconsistent with the acts relied on by him. Woods v. Lowrance, 49 C. A. 542, 109 S. W. 418.

To establish an equitable estoppel, it must appear that another relied in good faith on representations made, and was led to change his position for the worse. Kopperl v. Standard Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1159.

A lessee held not estopped to claim rent after the sublessee's removal. Goldman v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 233.

An adjoining owner held not estopped by an invalid parol agreement from claiming her title as against purchaser, who did not rely on the agreement. Cook's Hereford Cattle Co. v. Barnhart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 662.

5. Acts done or omitted, and change of position.—A., having a judgment against B., and an execution on land of B., employed C. to attend the sheriff's sale and buy the land in for A. C., having attended the sale and purchased the land, some time afterwards procured from the sheriff a deed to himself under which he claimed the land adversely to A. Afterwards A. procured a sale of the same land under an execution on his judgment, at which he became the purchaser. Held, that A. was not thereby estopped from claiming the benefit of the purchase made by C. at the first sale, although the fact might be used as evidence of A.'s abandonment of the contract made with C., subject to explanation by the evidence. Byrnes v. Morris, 53 T. 214.

An estoppel rests upon actual or constructive fraud. The action of a land-owner in fencing and claiming to a fixed point on the line of his survey will not estop him from claiming that the line be extended, when his action has not caused others to alter their position regarding the property; and the establishment of his claim in connection with acts done by him would not operate as a fraud on any one. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473; 3 S. W. 671.

A declaration, though untrue, cannot operate as an estoppel if the person to whom it is made is not induced by it to do something which he was not under legal obligation to do. Railway Co. v. Gordon, 70 T. 80, 7 S. W. 695.

One held not estopped by conduct, where another was not induced thereby to do the act complained of. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dennis (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 860.

It is the essence of an estoppel that the person claiming its benefit was induced thereby to do the things he did. Cowans v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 49 C. A. 463, 109 S. W. 403.

Estoppel cannot be invoked to protect a person from the legal consequences of his act or omission, where such act or omission was in no wise induced by the act or omission of the other party relied on as constituting the estoppel. Head v. Pacific Express Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 682.

To constitute an estoppel in pais, the matters claimed to constitute an estoppel must have in some material respect influenced the conduct of the other party. Gose v. Coryell (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 1164.

Plaintiff held not to have changed his position by reason of taking certain personal property, and was therefore not entitled to claim that defendant was estopped to deny that the firm, and not an individual partner, owned the property. Ricketson v. Best (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 353.

6. Benefit to person against whom estoppel is asserted.—A cotenant, not having received any benefit from a contract for the sale of the property, held not estopped to deny that his cotenant had authority to bind him by the contract. Naylor v. Parker (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 93.

7. Prejudice to person setting up estoppel.—To render available an estoppel, the one invoking it must establish that, unless the same is allowed, injustice will result. Blackburn v. Delta County, 48 C. A. 370, 107 S. W. 80.

A partner fraudulently induced to enter a partnership held not estopped to deny liability on a note given for indebtedness of the former firm by his partner without his consent, where the extension of time for payment allowed by the note was not shown to have caused the creditor injury. Beene & Trotter v. Rotan Grocery Co., 50 C. A. 448, 110 S. W. 162.

There can be no estoppel, unless some one has been caused to act to his injury or hurt by the party sought to be estopped. Franklin v. Texas Savings & Real Estate Inv. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1166.

Evidence held to show that the payee of notes to which the maker had forged the name of another as co-maker suffered no pecuniary loss from delay of the person whose name was forged in notifying the payee of the forgery. Stockyards Nat. Bank v. Smith (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 454.

Attorneys held not estopped by answer alleging that a conveyance was upon a contingency as against a subsequent purchaser who did not rely thereon and who paid nothing of value for his conveyance. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

If defendant railroad company was not misled or induced to prejudicially alter its position by an order purporting to remove a minor's disabilities, the minor would not be estopped from asserting its invalidity because he had, by his father's permission, appropriated the proceeds of his own labor for some time. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1189.

8. Default or wrongful act of person setting up estoppel.—A party to a collusive or fraudulent proceeding cannot be heard to complain of its fraudulent nature on his own failure to profit by the transaction. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 878.

A grantee who obtained his deed by fraud cannot rely on an estoppel against the grantor to deny his title, based on her silence while he was making improvements. Chambers v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 864.

9. Estoppel against estoppel.—A mortgagee having foreclosed, sequestered, and replevied the property, in an action on the replevy bond he cannot plead, by way of estoppel, the mortgagor's prior agreement to permit private sale of the goods. Cameron v. Hinton, 92 T. 492, 49 S. W. 1047.

10. Estoppel against public, government or public officers.—The doctrine of estoppel does not ordinarily apply to a state as it does to an individual. The only exception to the rule is in those cases in which the act sought to be made binding was done in her sovereign capacity by legislative action or resolution. Thus, University league No. 2 was located and surveyed in 1839, and the Tucker survey in 1841. The north line of University league and south line of Tucker league was a common boundary between the two. In 1854 N., the county surveyor, at the request of the owner of the Tucker league, ran off the same and established its south boundary line—not the true line, but within the University league and south of its north boundary line. In 1856 M., county surveyor, under the act of the legislature of August 30, 1856, subdivided University league into tracts of one hundred and sixty acres. He commenced on south side of league and worked north, and surveyed and recognized as its north line a line corresponding with the south line of the Tucker league as established by him in 1854; and this line was generally recognized in the neighborhood as the true division line between the University league and the Tucker survey. The state afterwards sold off the league in accordance with the subdivisions made by N. Subsequently it was ascertained that the north line of the Tucker survey as recognized by the surveyor was not the true line, and B., then county surveyor, was ordered by the proper state authority to subdivide that portion of the University league lying between the line originally recognized by N., and the true line in fact, which embraced the land in controversy, the same having been bought from the state by H. Before this mistake was ascertained S. had also bought the land in controversy as a part of the Tucker survey, having reference to the lines as they were then supposed to exist, and paid a valuable consideration therefor. In a contest between these two claims it was held that the purchaser from the state was not estopped by the action of the county surveyor. Saunders v. Hart, 57 T. 8.

The fact that the state accepted in payment of loans warrants issued by it in violation of the constitution held not to preclude it from denying the validity of the warrants. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 157.

A county held estopped from claiming part of lands conveyed with reference to a survey made by it, on the ground that said survey was erroneous. Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Tubbs (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 623.

When the commissioner of the land office has no authority to dispose of school lands, he could do no act which would estop the state and a person claiming thereunder from claiming title to such lands. Childress County Land & Cattle Co. v. Baker, 23 C. A. 451, 56 S. W. 756.

The state held not estopped by an act of an officer in the exercise of a power not delegated to him. Carothers v. Rogan, 96 T. 113, 70 S. W. 18.

A city having permitted a county to occupy and improve with costly buildings land dedicated as a municipal square held estopped to claim the property as against the county. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 368.

The fact that the commissioner of the general land office adopted a survey made by the owners of a grant under the confirmation act of 1852 to the extent of delineating the same on a map did not estop the state from thereafter claiming that the survey was incorrect. Sullivan v. State, 41 C. A. 89, 95 S. W. 645.

The fact that a party seeking to purchase certain school land was led by the act of the state land commissioner to make a mistake which caused him to lose the chance to purchase the land does not act as an estoppel against the state. Hamilton v. Gouddy, 46 C. A. 506, 103 S. W. 1117.

Where the commissioners' court without authority contracted with the county clerk to pay him a certain sum for work in indexing the records in his office and paid him therefor, the county is not estopped to deny the validity of the contract or recover the amount paid. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 592.

Right of city by virtue of estoppel to use of county building stated. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 477, 129 S. W. 593.

State and county officers held not estopped from proceeding against a liquor dealer criminally for doing business under a void license. Lane v. Schultz & Buss (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1009.

10½. Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827, § 107; Art. 1910, § 48.

II. Grounds of Estoppel

11. Inconsistency of conduct and claims in general.—The heirs at law are not estopped from averring the minority of the testator and consequent nullity of his will by having dealt with and treated him as of full age and capable of acting sui juris. Moore v. Moore, 23 T. 637.

In a suit instituted against a railroad to recover the penalty for an overcharge on freight from A. to M., it having been proven that defendant had at all times charged for seventy-one miles as the correct distance, held, that it was estopped from denying that as the true distance. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Pichard, 1 App. C. C. § 435.

When a railroad company receives articles for transportation as baggage, its agent knowing at the time that such articles are not properly baggage, the company is estopped from denying the fact to be as admitted. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Capps, 2 App. C. C. § 34.

The form upon which a telegram was written contained a condition that a claim for damages should be presented within thirty days after sending the message. Within thirty days after delivering the message, the sender by letter notified the superintendent of the company that the message had not been delivered, and claimed $200 damages. The receipt of the letter was acknowledged and the statement made that the claim was being investigated, and as soon as the investigation was completed the sender should be informed of the decision of the company. Held, that in a suit for damages afterwards brought the company was estopped from denying the sufficiency of the notice. W. U. T. Co. v. Pells, 2 App. C. C. § 44.

The declarations of a ward made to his guardian before attaining his majority that he would soon be twenty-one years old, and that he would, after attaining his majority, allow the guardian credit for goods purchased of him, is not binding on the ward after he attains his majority, either as a contract or by way of estoppel. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222.

Claimant in sequestration held estopped to assert that his title was not involved in the suit. Barton v. Stroud-Gibson Grocer Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1050.

One who sought to have a road opened held not estopped, after the proceedings had resulted unfavorably, to show that he had a private right of way at the same point. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baudat, 18 C. A. 595, 45 S. W. 939.

Where a bank to which cotton had been pledged for advances entered a credit to the buyer from the pledgor under a mistake as to the price, it was not estopped to deny the buyer's right to deduct a portion of the price in settlement of a previous debt of the pledgor. First Nat. Bank v. C. A. Andrews & Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 956.

That a buyer paid a part of the price, and sold the goods to another for an increased price, did not estop him to set up a breach of warranty, in an action by the seller for the price. C. H. Dean Co. v. Standifer, 37 C. A. 181, 83 S. W. 230.

In a suit by the buyer to rescind a contract of sale for fraud of the seller, the fact that plaintiff was himself guilty of fraud does not preclude relief. Blair v. Baird, 43 C. A. 134, 94 S. W. 116.

One held estopped by his course from denying title to land. Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 192.

A party is estopped from escaping liability where he causes another to lose some right or vantage ground by his acts, words, or conduct. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

An heir, who acted as joint administrator with another, held estopped from claiming any damages against the latter because of the inadequacy of the price received for property of the estate. Moore v. Woodson, 53 C. A. 588, 116 S. W. 608.

An owner is not estopped by conduct from denying liability for lumber bought by a contractor and used in rebuilding the owner's residence, merely because he and the contractor, without notifying the materialman, agree upon a plan of the house differing from the plan under which the materialman agreed with the contractor to furnish the lumber. Marks v. Jones (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 618.

12. Assumption of capacity or authority.—In a suit against the collector of taxes and his sureties for the recovery of money collected by him and not paid over, it was held that he and his sureties were estopped from denying his official character. Burnett v. Henderson, 21 T. 588.

The alteration of an official bond by the commissioners' court, by erasing therefrom the name of one of the sureties, without the consent of the remaining sureties, will discharge all of the sureties, but the principal who afterwards performed official duties is estopped from denying the validity of the bond. Wilbarger County v. Bean, 3 App. C. C. §§ 17, 18.

In a suit on the official bond of a tax collector, the signatures of the collector, and of the sureties to the bond, estop them from denying his official character. King v. Governor Ireland, 68 T. 682, 5 S. W. 499.

13. Assertion of title or right in general.—Persons claiming title to property under a petitioner for a road across the same will be bound by his acts regarding the same. Grace v. Walker, 95 T. 39, 64 S. W. 930.

14. Possession or acts of ownership under title or claim.—One who acquires possession of land from a tenant and holds only under him is estopped from denying the landlord's title. Swan v. Busby, 24 S. W. 303, 5 C. A. 63. See Welder v. McComb, 30 S. W. 822, 10 C. A. 85; Dodge v. Phelan, 21 S. W. 309, 2 C. A. 441.

15. Claim or position in judicial proceedings.—Parties actively urging the appointment of a commissioner and thereafter recognizing his authority are estopped by his acts. Grande v. Chaves, 15 T. 550; Ryan v. Maxey, 43 T. 192.

A party having sued for and recovered money as guardian of a minor is estopped from disclaiming the character in which he acted to avoid the payment to the party entitled to it. Portis v. Cummings, 21 T. 265.

In 1870 J., after the death of his wife, gave certain property to each of his children, and executed to his youngest daughter, M., a deed for forty acres of land. This deed was not placed on record, and shortly after its execution J. conveyed the land to others, who had notice of the conveyance, for $1,000, of which $600 was loaned in M.'s name. In 1871 M., still a minor, married, and she and her husband immediately instituted suit for the land. Two days after this suit M. and her husband brought suit for the money loaned, and declared their willingness, in case of recovery, to account therefor. Held, that they were not estopped from prosecuting their suit for the land and recovering the same. Thomas v. Groesbeck, 40 T. 530.

One of two minors died leaving a large estate incumbered by debts incurred by their guardian. The heirs of the deceased minor applied for partition, which was resisted by the guardian insisting that he should be kept harmless from debts he had incurred on account of the deceased. The heirs then united in an application to the probate court for sale of lands to pay the debts and for partition of the remainder, and the court so ordered. Held, that the married women participating in the proceedings were concluded by the sale under the order. Ryan v. Maxey, 43 T. 192.

A wife held estopped to deny validity of deed to her separate estate after suing to recover the price. Scales v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 828.

A principal held estopped to claim that his agent's cause of action had not accrued, where he offered to pay what was due and pleaded limitations. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 55.

Plaintiff, whose judgment for personal injuries was reversed because evidence was insufficient to show that a certain person was a vice principal of his employer, held not estopped from amending his petition so as to allege that his complaint was made to another, who was a vice principal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eckles, 25 C. A. 179, 60 S. W. 830.

A certain proceeding held not to estop the heirs of an owner of land from claiming the land as against a purchaser at an execution sale. Lutcher v. Allen, 43 C. A. 102, 95 S. W. 572.

In an action for a master's fraud in representing that he was carrying accident insurance for his employes, the servant could not recover both the deductions made from his wages to be used as premiums and the amount of insurance purchasable with such deductions. Williams v. Detroit Oil & Cotton Co., 52 C. A. 243, 114 S. W. 167.

16. — Claim inconsistent with previous claim or position in general.—A. sued B. to subject a tract of land, a part of a larger tract, to payment of a pro rata share of the purchase money for the entire tract. B. claimed that A. was estopped from recovering on the ground that suit had been previously brought to enforce the vendor's lien against the owner of the other part of the original tract, that the owner of this tract was not made a party thereto because the land had been sold by the original vendee, and A., the plaintiff in the suit, had stated that the balance of the land was sufficient to pay the entire debt, these facts having been communicated to B. before his purchase. Held, the evidence was insufficient to establish an estoppel. Peters v. Clements, 52 T. 140.

In a suit by children for damages to real estate, the separate property of their deceased mother, the father joined as next friend of one of the heirs. Held, that he would be estopped from thereafter asserting claim for damages for the same act to his life estate in one-third of the land. Lee v. Turner, 71 T. 264, 9 S. W. 149.

An administrator is estopped to deny that there was a sale, where he has procured a judgment for the purchase price, and foreclosure of vendor's lien. Miller v. Anders, 21 C. A. 72, 51 S. W. 897.

Filing and allowance of a claim against decedent's estate, on payment of which a mortgagee was to convey the mortgaged lands to the estate, did not estop him from asserting his lien on such lands where claim was not paid. Sutherland v. Elmendorf, 24 C. A. 137, 57 S. W. 890.

Consignor, electing to hold other parties liable for loss of shipment, held to have thereby released carrier. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. North Texas Grain Co., 32 C. A. 93, 74 S. W. 567.

That a widow, acting as independent executrix of her husband's estate, allowed a claim against it, held not to estop her from subsequently claiming priority of her widow's allowance, subsequently made, after the administration had been changed to an administration under the order of the court. Kling v. Battaglia, 38 C. A. 28, 84 S. W. 839.

An administratrix with the will annexed held not estopped to claim payment of her year's allowance from the proceeds of property covered by a deed of trust by joining with the creditor in a petition for the sale thereof. Id.

17. — Claim inconsistent with contract or title previously asserted.—Defendant held not estopped, under the evidence, from maintaining that $200 owing him from an insurance company was exempt. Fife v. Netherlands Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 160.

18. — Defense or objection inconsistent with previous claim or position in general.—Where the parties in trespass to try title, claim through a common source, the defendant is not thereby estopped from showing a superior outstanding title in a third party. Koenigheim v. Miles, 67 T. 113, 2 S. W. 81.

Plaintiffs in partition held not estopped to deny a person's title by reading his will in evidence to show that all parties claimed from a common source. Siebert v. Lott, 20 C. A. 191, 49 S. W. 783.

Defendants, who bring in a third person as a party, held not entitled to complain of the court's action in settling that person's rights. Ellis v. National Exch. Bank, 38 C. A. 619, 86 S. W. 776.

A defendant by pleading non est factum to a written contract sued on, and setting up a verbal contract antecedent thereto, is not estopped to abandon such pleas, and rely upon the written contract by a subsequent amended answer. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435.

One accused of fraudulently disposing of mortgaged property having admitted that he received possession of the property by agreeing to give a mortgage thereon, and that he did execute and deliver the mortgage, should not be permitted to show that, in fact, he did not do so. Loggins v. State (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 170.

19. — Position inconsistent with previous assertion of title in another in general.—The heirs of L. brought suit against three defendants to recover a league of land granted to their ancestor as a colonist in April, 1833. The defendants pleaded, among other matters, that plaintiffs' ancestor was an alien, that plaintiffs were alien enemies, that the land had been forfeited by an abandonment of the country, etc. The defendants also claimed the land by purchase at administration sale and under tax titles. The court say: The title of the plaintiff was sufficiently proved. The defendants had acknowledged it, and had asserted its existence and validity in various ways. The defendant H. had made it the subject of administration in the probate court; the defendant I. had purchased and claimed title under it. They had given in evidence, and claimed under their several tax titles and administrators' deeds, which were based upon and recited the plaintiff's title. Having thus acknowledged and asserted it in their pleadings and evidence, they could not be permitted afterwards to contest its validity. Hardy v. De Leon, 5 T. 211.

After the death of the husband certain property was inventoried as community property, but afterwards, on application of the widow, an order was made by the probate court correcting the inventory in this respect. On final settlement the property was partitioned as community property, and the widow inventoried the part decreed to her children as a part of their estate. Held, that she was not estopped from recovering the property so inventoried as her separate property, her conduct not having been fraudulent in its purpose or unjust in its results. Dunham v. Chatham, 21 T. 231, 73 Am. Dec. 228.

A widow, appointed administratrix of her husband's estate, inventoried certain property. Afterwards, she and her second husband were appointed administrators of the estate and returned another inventory, omitting the property first mentioned. In a suit by the children of the first marriage for the recovery of the property, it was held that she was not estopped from asserting her title to the property, and it was not necessary for her to allege that in returning the first inventory she acted in ignorance of her rights. Little v. Birdwell, 21 T. 597, 73 Am. Dec. 242.

The plaintiffs claimed a league of land by virtue of their sole heirship of Louisa, the only child and sole heir of Sideck, the grantee. The defendant was administratrix of Teal, who claimed one-half of the land by donation from Sideck, and the remainder as his heir by adoption. Teal had administered upon the estate of Sideck, and had inventoried the land in controversy as the property of the estate. Held, that Teal was not thereby estopped from claiming the land in his own right. Teal v. Sevier, 26 T. 516.

A., having bought certain land at sheriff's sale as the property of B., brought suit against him for the land and for partition. C., the son of B., intervened, claiming the land by purchase from the father. Plaintiff replied that the sale by B. to C. was in fraud of creditors and void as to plaintiff, whereupon C. amended his pleadings and claimed a part of the land by inheritance from his mother. Held, that he was not estopped from so claiming. Collins v. Box, 40 T. 191.

By treating an owner of lands as the sole owner thereof, in proceedings to open a road, a county was estopped to deny his title by claiming that the same land had been previously condemned and taken. Northington v. Taylor County (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 936.

20. — By levy of attachment or execution.—In a suit brought to set aside an execution sale of land, the defendant who acquired title and possession by such sale is estopped from denying the validity of the title down to the person under whom he claims. Pearson v. Flanagan, 52 T. 266.

Plaintiff attaching property held under trust deed estopped to complain that the trust deed was not enforced. Sanger v. Harris (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 645.

One who sold goods to one member of a firm, not knowing of the partnership, held not estopped, by suing such member alone, from asserting that no title passed by an assignment of the goods by such partner. Davis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 840.

A mortgagee's administrator, having procured a decree foreclosing a mortgage for purchase money against the mortgagor's estate, and obtained a sale of the property on execution, held estopped to thereafter assert that the proceedings were ineffectual to pass title to the purchaser. Flack v. Braman, 45 C. A. 473, 101 S. W. 537.

21. — Pleadings.—Plaintiff held not estopped by an allegation in his pleadings as to the time when a certain law took effect. Purcell v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 836.

Allegations in a petition to enforce an indorser's liability held not to estop plaintiff from insisting on validity of notes. Norton v. Wochler, 31 C. A. 522, 72 S. W. 1025.

Certain answer held not to estop the original owner or his heirs from claiming title. Carlisle v. Gibbs, 44 C. A. 189, 98 S. W. 192.

An inadvertent error in a pleader held not to work an estoppel against the pleader. Morse's Heirs v. Williams (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1186.

Allegations in a petition held to estop plaintiff when made by her attorney without her knowledge. Lovenberg v. Mellen (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 317.

22. — Stipulations.—A party who has signed and filed a stipulation in a cause that a judgment may be entered against him by a district court cannot question its jurisdiction. Phelps v. Norman (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 978.

Where it was stipulated that at the time of plaintiff's application to purchase land it was subject to sale, a contention that if defendant did not have title under his application he was entitled to possession under an unexpired lease will not be sustained. Dupree v. Duke, 30 C. A. 360, 70 S. W. 561.

23. Failure to assert title or right.—The lands purchased by a husband before marriage are set apart to his widow as a homestead, and that no claim is presented for her interest in the improvements placed thereon by community funds, does not estop her from asserting such claim. Hillen v. Williams, 25 C. A. 268, 60 S. W. 997.

Evidence held to show that a grantee of land was misled by acts and conduct of grantor's husband into believing that he had no interest in the land, and hence the husband was estopped from thereafter claiming such interest. Stewart v. Profit (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 563.

A party cannot have an injunction, where he has acquiesced in the act sought to be enjoined by recognizing it, with full knowledge, or means of knowledge, of his rights, or by acting in a manner inconsistent with its repudiation, or by permitting the other party to deal with the subject-matter under the belief that it has been recognized without objection. Reitzer v. Medina Valley Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 380.

24. Disclaimer.—When the defendant disclaims as to all the land sued for except a part which he designates by metes and bounds, as to which he pleads not guilty, and on the trial it is shown that the deed under which the plaintiff claims all the land is a forgery, the disclaimer constitutes an estoppel of record, and the plaintiff will be entitled as against such defendants to a judgment for the land to which the disclaimer applies, and the defendants to a judgment for the land claimed by them. Dodge v. Richardson, 70 T. 209, 8 S. W. 30.

A statement by plaintiff that he did not own land in controversy, made through a lapse of memory, which did not influence defendants in purchasing the land from another, held not to estop plaintiff from claiming the land. Waggoner v. Dodson, 96 T. 415, 73 S. W. 517.

A disclaimer by a defendant, in a suit for land, held not to estop him, in a subsequent suit by a third party, from asserting the defense of limitations. Webb v. Cole, 56 C. A. 185, 120 S. W. 945.

A person held estopped to assert an interest in land by statements disaffirming any interest therein. Bender v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 653.

A broker held not estopped from claiming commissions on a sale. Grogan v. Odell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 169.

25. Clothing another with apparent title or authority—Agency.—The recognition of a certain person as an agent held not to estop the principal from denying that such person was his agent on a subsequent occasion. Owens v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 783.

In an action on a contract made by an agent, against both the agent and his principal, the principal was not estopped to object that the agent exceeded his authority in making the contract, by his failure to object to the admission of the contract in evidence. Tabet v. Powell (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 997.

Having by the creation of an agency bestowed on the agent a certain character, the principal is estopped to assert as against third persons that he did not intend to give the agent so much authority. Birge-Forbes Co. v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 53 C. A. 55, 115 S. W. 333.

26. — Real property.—Defendant, who had acknowledged that another had title to land held estopped to deny it. Hitchler v. Boyles, 21 C. A. 230, 51 S. W. 648.

Where a grantee holding under an unrecorded deed consents that grantor mortgage property, he is estopped from denying validity of mortgage. Allen v. Exchange Nat. Bank, 21 C. A. 450, 52 S. W. 575.

Affidavit that one transferring a land certificate was the only heir of the patentee held to work an estoppel against affiant. Ward v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 240.

Where heirs procure sale of decedent's land, their title passes by estoppel. Whitaker v. Thayer, 38 C. A. 537, 86 S. W. 364.

Quitclaim deed by cestui que trust and her husband to the trustee held not to estop the cestui que trust from thereafter claiming an equitable interest in the property. Snouffer v. Heisig (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 912.

27. — Personal property.—A mortgagor held estopped to deny the mortgagee's power to sell the property to satisfy the debt, where he had asserted the existence of such power to one who purchased at the sale in reliance thereon. Clack v. Wood (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1132.

In conversion by a seller against a mortgagee of the buyer, the question of the intent of the seller in making a statement to the mortgagee that the mortgage was all right held immaterial. C. E. Slayton & Co. v. Horsey (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 799.

Where the owner of goods placed them in possession of another and allowed him to hold himself out as their owner, and a third person took a mortgage on the goods, the actual owner held estopped to dispute the possessor's apparent title. B. F. Avery & Sons v. Collins (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 426.

28. — Relying and acting on apparent title or authority.—Where a principal invests an agent with apparent authority, he is liable to one dealing with the agent in reliance thereon, who has no notice of private instructions limiting such apparent authority. Conn v. Hagan, 93 T. 334, 55 S. W. 323.

An owner of personal property investing another with the apparent ownership is estopped to claim title to the property after the party in possession has secured advances from a third person, who believes the title to be in the apparent owner. Kempner v. Thompson, 45 C. A. 267, 100 S. W. 351.

29. Dealing with person asserting title or exercising authority.—Acceptance by married woman of deed conveying her own property to her for life, remainder to her children, held not to divest her of her title to such property. White v. Simonton, 34 C. A. 464, 79 S. W. 621.

A person accepting an unauthorized contract from an agent held estopped to claim that the agent was authorized to make another contract and that he is only asserting the same rights as such other contract would have conferred, and hence no harm had been done. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1092.

30. Contracts.—A minor is not estopped by any agreement made by her guardian in relation to the partition of real estate which has not been sanctioned by a court of competent jurisdiction. Rainey v. Chambers, 56 T. 17.

When the purchaser of personal property, under an executory contract for its sale and delivery, inspected it before receiving, he is estopped, as to patent defects, from denying that it was of the character bargained for, and this though he may have received it under protest. Parks v. O'Connor, 70 T. 377, 8 S. W. 104.

A purchaser held estopped to plead failure of consideration in an action on notes given for price. Thomas Mfg. Co. v. Griffin, 16 C. A. 188, 40 S. W. 755.

Where plaintiff prosecuted defendants for unlawfully selling liquor to his minor son, and defendants pleaded guilty and paid their fine in reliance on plaintiff's promise that, if they would do so, he would not sue them civilly, plaintiff was not estopped from bringing a civil suit. Lucas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 823.

On an issue of damages for breach of a contract to deliver patented motors, defendant held not estopped to claim damages for failure to deliver the balance contracted for by having given notes for those delivered. Sun Mfg. Co. v. Egbert & Guthrie, 37 C. A. 512, 84 S. W. 667.

Sender of a telegraph message held not precluded from showing that the receiving company or its agent was the agent of another company. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Craven (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 633.

A grantee who had received a check as full payment for land conveyed to him by one whose title was defective by reason of a prior recorded but not properly acknowledged deed held not entitled to repudiate the payment, and to reassert his claim to the land. Abernathy v. Pickett, 57 C. A. 552, 122 S. W. 579.

A payee of a note held estopped from asserting that he did not know that the signers on the note were sureties only. Jackson v. Rollins (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 681.

31. — Recognition of rights.—Defendants, by recognizing plaintiff's right to an option on county land, when they entered into an agreement with plaintiff for its purchase from the county, held thereafter estopped from denying the validity of the option. Eliard v. Cox, 52 C. A. 60, 114 S. W. 410.

32. — Contracts relating to real estate.—Grantors of a homestead held estopped to assert that a note received from grantee, reserving a vendor's lien, did not create a lien. Breneman v. Mayer, 24 C. A. 164, 53 S. W. 725.

Vendee in a conveyance, having given a note reserving a vendor's lien, held estopped to assert invalidity of lien. Id.

Sale with warranty of street railroad property by stockholders held to estop them from afterwards setting up title secured by them through a prior lien. Parker v. Citizens' Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 168, 95 S. W. 38.

A lessee held not estopped from insisting that a barn was included in the property leased to him. Goodhue v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 288.

33. — Relying or acting on contract.—Grantors of a lien contract, defectively acknowledged, held not estopped to assert the invalidity as against a third person subrogated to the rights of the original lienor. Workman's Mut. Aid Ass'n v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 1029.

An agreement by the holder of a note to extend time of payment, though not based on any consideration, may estop him from exercising an option to declare the note due, where the maker was induced to relax his efforts to procure money which he could otherwise have procured. Corbett v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 858.

34. Official acts.—To establish a title in the heirs of an allottee of land by estoppel as against a commissioner in partition, held, that it must be shown that the commissioner held title to the land allotted, that the heirs were ignorant of the true status of the title, and were by this conduct induced to alter their position with reference to their property rights. Long v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 945.

35. Requests.—A. received patents in his own name for land in which B. had an equal interest. In 1852 A. and B. made a verbal partition of the lands described in the patents, by which the lands in controversy were set apart to B. Afterwards B. made a verbal partition of the lands among his children, giving the land in controversy to C. and D., and other lands to E. and F. At that time A. had become insane, and B. induced the children of A. to make quitclaim deeds to the several children of himself in accordance with his verbal gift. No consideration was paid for the conveyance. At the date of this deed F. was a minor, was not present and had no knowledge of the transaction. In 1870 C. married G., and in 1873 died without issue, having given his interest in the land in controversy to his wife. D. died intestate without issue. E. died leaving H., his widow, and a daughter, J. B. after the death of his three sons, C., D. and E., conveyed the land in controversy to F., with the avowed purpose to defeat the claim of G. Held, that B. was not estopped from asserting that the conveyance made at his request by the children of A. passed no title, nor was he estopped by his verbal gift and partition among his children from afterwards conveying the land, as they had not been put in possession, nor had they, relying on such title, expended money or otherwise changed their position. Perrin v. Perrin, 62 T. 477.

Where a person has acted or refrained from acting in a particular manner on the request of another, the latter is estopped to take any position inconsistent with his request to the other's prejudice. Sour Lake Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 662.

A grantee held estopped from claiming that there had been a breach of warranty. Id.

36. Representations.—Land pointed out by the grantor as a part of the tract conveyed will pass by estoppel. Meade v. Boone (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 483; Meade v. Warring (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 308; Meade v. Jones, 13 C. A. 320, 35 S. W. 310.

Declaration of attaching creditors' attorney, at dismissal of claimant's suit, that he intended to do nothing further held not to estop a suit on claimant's bond. Deware v. Wichita Val. Mill & Elevator Co., 17 C. A. 394, 43 S. W. 1047.

Declarations of parties that property was not a part of their homestead and that it did not contribute to its use might constitute an estoppel. Howe v. O'Brien (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 813.

Where a taxpayer renders several lots in bulk, he is thereafter estopped from claiming that an assessment against them in bulk was illegal. City of Houston v. Stewart, 40 C. A. 499, 90 S. W. 49.

In order to estop a married woman from asserting the insufficiency of the certificate of her acknowledgment to a deed, it is essential that she be guilty of some positive act of fraud or of concealment or suppression which will be equivalent thereto. Kopke v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 15.

Where a person with knowledge of the truth makes a false representation of a material fact to a person ignorant of the truth under circumstances reasonably calculated to induce the other person, acting in good faith, and exercising due care, to act thereon, and he acts upon it, the person making the representation is estopped from asserting the truth. Walker v. Erwin, 47 C. A. 637, 106 S. W. 164.

A false statement held not one on which an estoppel might be predicated. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. v. Hare (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 864.

37. — Ownership of property.—A married man, who induces a creditor to accept a conveyance of his homestead in payment of a debt by a statement that he had no wife, is estopped from setting up the invalidity of the conveyance on the ground that he was then a married man. Schwarz v. National Bank of Texas, 67 T. 217, 2 S. W. 865.

One held not estopped by statements from asserting title to land. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 145.

Declarations of the owners of a homestead held not to destroy its homestead character. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

38. — Existence and extent of liens and claims.—A firm held estopped as against a third person by representations of bookkeeper to claim lien against tenant for store account, but not estopped to claim lien for land. Cadenhead v. Rogers & Bro. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 952.

39. — As to financial standing.—A written certificate by a bank, stating that the county treasurer had a certain credit balance, held not conclusive of the bank's liability to the county. Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 937.

Where the county treasurer had defaulted, it was held insufficient to estop the bank to show that by its action the county was prevented from prosecuting the treasurer; no loss to the county resulting. Id.

It was insufficient to estop the bank to show that the treasurer was prevented from being removed or from qualifying as his own successor, no loss resulting. Id.

Nor would the bank be estopped where it was not shown that the treasurer and his sureties were insolvent. Id.

To entitle a county to interpose an estoppel against a bank to deny that the treasurer had a certain credit balance, the bank's representation must have been made to an officer having control of the county finances, and authorized to take action to protect them. Anderson v. Walker, 93 T. 119, 53 S. W. 821.

40. — Validity of bills or notes.—Maker of vendor's lien note, who requests another to take it up, and hold it, cannot object to his title, though the agent of the payee had no authority to indorse it. Henry v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 120.

41. — Relying and acting on representations.—In an action for the value of a car of corn shipped by defendant to a third person on plaintiff's order, but shipped so that the third person obtained it without first making payment, plaintiff held not entitled to recover on the theory of an estoppel. Smith v. Landa, 45 C. A. 446, 101 S. W. 470.

42. Admissions and receipts.—In a suit for the hire of personal property, the plaintiff sought to establish a life estate therein by the admissions of one of the defendants, a married woman, who held the same under a deed of gift in which there was no reservation of the life estate in favor of plaintiff. Held, that a married woman was not estopped by bare declarations or admissions, when no one had been in any manner injured thereby, or had acted upon them. Grooms v. Rust, 27 T. 231.

A., having received from an executor a certain sum of money due him as a legatee, gave a receipt therefor as being in full of his interest in the estate. Held, that he was not thereby estopped from claiming any additional sum to which he was entitled on final settlement. Clift v. Wade, 51 T. 14.

Executrix, returning property in inventory as belonging to estate, held not estopped from claiming title thereto under deed from testator. Huff v. Maroney, 23 C. A. 465, 56 S. W. 754.

43. Assent to or ratification of acts of others in general.—The owner of a league of land employed a surveyor to resurvey and mark the old lines on which the original marks had become obscure, but in doing the work the surveyor made a new line which conflicted with the original survey. Subsequently the owner had a new survey made in which the original line was followed. Afterwards the land between the two lines was located as vacant land, and a patent issued therefor. It was held that the owner of the league was not estopped from claiming the land lying between the old and new lines. Love v. Barber, 17 T. 312.

Two joint patentees executed and recorded a deed of partition between themselves; afterwards, some question arising as to the validity of their patent, a new patent was obtained. Thirty-six years after recording the deed of partition, and twenty-five years after the issuance of the second patent, the heirs of one of the patentees brought suit for partition. Held, that the issuance of the second patent did not work a revocation of the partition, and the fact of plaintiffs having sold to defendants a portion of the land claimed by plaintiffs under the deed of partition estopped them from asserting a right inconsistent with that deed. Brackenridge v. Howth, 64 T. 190.

When a railroad company had for several years recognized and maintained a road crossing over its line of railway as a crossing for the public, it was estopped from denying that it was a public road. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 2 App. C. C. § 204.

A. and B. were partners engaged in the purchase of cattle in Mississippi to be shipped to Texas and sold. A. made a purchase of cattle at a higher price than he was authorized to pay, shipped the same to B., who with full knowledge of the facts sold the cattle at a loss, which he claimed should be paid by A. Held, that B. was not estopped by the receipt and sale of the cattle, which was necessary to prevent a greater loss and to provide means for paying for them, from claiming that the loss should be borne by A. Gill v. Wilson, 2 App. C. C. §§ 380, 381.

Where owners of property subject to a lien sell it, and in the sale make provision for its settlement, the purchasers cannot dispute its validity. Michigan Savings & Loan Ass'n v. Attebery, 16 C. A. 222, 42 S. W. 569.

Failure to repudiate act of cashier held not to amount to estoppel. Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 533.

Principals held to have ratified a conveyance by their attorney in fact, by partitioning among themselves lands received in consideration therefor. Smith v. Cantrel (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1081.

One doing business under a transferred liquor license held estopped to deny the authority of the agent of the former owner to make the transfer. Faulkner v. Cassidy, 39 C. A. 415, 87 S. W. 904.

In an action for damages for an unlawful search, plaintiff held not precluded from recovering damages by having consented to be searched after he was illegally arrested. Regan v. Harkey, 40 C. A. 16, 87 S. W. 1164.

One cannot recover damages for an act in which he actively participated without fraud or misrepresentation. Moore v. Woodson, 53 C. A. 588, 116 S. W. 608.

The beneficiary in a testamentary trust held not estopped to complain of the management of the estate. Nagle v. Von Rosenberg, 55 C. A. 354, 119 S. W. 706.

To affect one by acquiescence in the language or conduct of another, the acquiescing party must fully know the conduct or understand the language, so that his acquiescence amounts to voluntary conduct. Harris Millinery Co. v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 999.

Where a cotenant, without authority, signed his cotenant's name to an option contract for the sale of the property, the latter, on being informed, was not bound to repudiate the sale or notify the purchaser of his cotenant's lack of authority on pain of being presumed to have ratified the contract. Naylor v. Parker (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 93.

A parol ratification of an agent's unauthorized sale of land must be sufficient to constitute an equitable estoppel. Clark & Boice Lumber Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 644.

44. — Contracts.—A. employed B. as a traveling salesman, it being stipulated that he should make regular written reports, and that a failure on his part operated as a forfeiture of his salary. B. failed to make reports, but was continued by A. in his employment, and after such failure to report was known A. received verbal report from him and sent him out again under the same contract. In an action by B. for his salary, held, that A. was estopped from setting up the breach of contract. Clegg v. Gee, 2 App. C. C. § 543.

Father, consenting to dangerous employment of minor son, can nevertheless recover for injuries resulting from employer's negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Putman (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 910.

Plaintiff, knowing of the employment of his minor son, held not entitled to recover for injuries from negligence of fellow servant. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hervey (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1095.

Plaintiff's consent to the employment of her minor son at work in which he was inexperienced, which proximately resulted in his injury, held a bar to plaintiff's recovery therefor. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Blasengame, 42 C. A. 66, 93 S. W. 187.

Buyer's ordering shipment of goods purchased after receipt of letter from sellers, held not acquiescence in new terms suggested by sellers. J. B. Brennan & Son v. Dansby & Dansby, 43 C. A. 7, 95 S. W. 700.

The owner of land held to have ratified his agent's act in employing a broker to sell it so as to make himself liable for commissions. Dockery v. Maple (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 631.

Delay of a person whose name was forged on a note in notifying the payee held not to estop him from asserting a forgery in an action against him on the note. Stockyards Nat. Bank v. Smith (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 454.

45. — Accounts or settlements.—If one accepts and records a deed, which was taken in settlement of accounts by one who assumed to act as his agent, after being notified of the same, he is bound by the terms of the settlement made. Prather v. Wilkins, 68 T. 187, 4 S. W. 252.

46. Assent to or participation in judicial proceedings.—Where a husband attempts to use the privilege of a decree of divorce to uphold a settlement made with the wife, he cannot thereafter complain of its invalidity. Moor v. Moor (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 347.

Where an administrator's sale of land belonging to the estate was invalid, that the heirs received and disposed of the remainder of the estate, without protest, did not estop them from afterward asserting the invalidity of the sale. Wilkin v. Geo. W. Owens & Bros., 102 T. 197, 114 S. W. 104, 115 S. W. 1174, 117 S. W. 425, 132 Am. St. Rep. 867.

47. — Partition proceedings.—Suit was brought by Scoby to set aside the will of his grandfather, for an account against the executors of the will, and a recovery of a portion of the estate which inured to him as forced heir. The defendants claimed that plaintiff was estopped from contesting the will by having accepted a legacy bequeathed him in the will, and by having acquiesced in the partition and distribution of the estate under its directions. It was proven that $1,200 given to plaintiff by the will was paid to him in Tennessee just after he reached majority. The bulk of the testator's property was in Texas, and plaintiff did not appear to have known its value or the laws of Texas by which its distribution was governed. Held, that he was not estopped by receiving the legacy or by the partition of the estate from contesting the will. Scoby v. Sweatt, 28 T. 713.

A., a widower with seven children, married B., removed to Texas in 1835 and acquired the property in controversy. A. died in 1841, leaving surviving his wife, B., two children by her, to wit, E., who afterwards died, and G., and also the children of his first marriage. B., after the death of A., married and died, leaving one child, L., by her second marriage. In 1841 administration was granted on the estate of A., which consisted wholly of community property of A. and B. There were no debts and no sale made of any property. In 1848, by order of the probate court, a partition was made of the estate of A., and the entire property inventoried was divided among the nine heirs of A., giving to each one-ninth of the same, and ignoring the rights of L., the child of B. by the second marriage, who as her heir was entitled to three-eighths of the entire estate. G. was entitled to three-eighths as heir of his mother, and one-eighteenth as heir of his father, instead of which he received two-eighths of the whole. L. was named in the petition for distribution filed by the administrator as entitled to a distributive share of the estate, but was not in any way made a party to the proceeding, and her rights as above stated were ignored. L. and G. were minors under fourteen years of age when the partition was made. G. accepted the land allotted to him and afterwards sold it, referring to the partition as his source of title. Afterwards G. and L. brought suit against the other distributees and purchasers from them for their distributive share of the land as heirs of their mother. Held, that plaintiffs were not estopped from recovering by the facts above stated. Caruth v. Grigsby, 57 T. 259; Grigsby v. May, 57 T. 255; Thompson v. Cragg, 24 T. 582.

Evidence held insufficient to estop an intestate's heirs, by their acquiescence, from claiming a part of their estate conveyed under a void decree of partition. McCarty v. Merry (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 304.

All of the heirs of land in controversy having joined in a partition, and accepted their allotments without objection, held that the grantees of one of them could not object thereto. Dutton & Rutherford v. Wright & Vaughn, 38 C. A. 372, 85 S. W. 1025.

The fact that heirs entitled to an interest in land as remaindermen accepted the proceeds of a partition of the estate held not to preclude them from claiming the remainder. Schnabel v. McNeill (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 558.

Plaintiffs having acquiesced in the parol partition, and having occupied the portion allotted them for over twenty years after discovering an error therein, held bound thereby, and estopped to claim a right to another distribution. Stephens v. Turley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 848.

Whether a partition of land by act of parties was binding on an heir whose portion was covered in whole or in part by an older survey dependent on whether at the time he knew the extent of the conflict between his ancestors' land certificate and the older survey. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 306.

48. Acceptance of benefits.—An administrator re-established by suit a land certificate which had been rejected by the traveling board of land commissioners, and which, but for his action, must have been lost to the estate, and afterwards he sold the certificate under order of the probate court for the payment of claims against the estate. The heir of the intestate instituted suit to recover from the purchaser the land acquired by him under the certificate, alleging that the probate court, by which the administrator was appointed, had not jurisdiction to grant administration on the estate; that the letters of administration were procured by a fraudulent combination between the administrator and the purchaser of the certificate; that there was fraud in the sale of the certificate, or in the procurement of the order of sale therefor, and in consequence that the sale of the certificate was void. Held, that the heir was estopped from denying the capacity of the administrator, but was not estopped from proving fraud in the sale. Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 734, 91 Am. Dec. 336.

Devisee accepting property under will held estopped to contest its provisions. Pryor v. Pendleton, 92 T. 384, 49 S. W. 212.

Acceptance of benefits of services of a person employed by an agent without authority held not a ratification. Swayne v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 518.

A principal retaining benefits of his agent's unauthorized transactions after discovery thereof is not liable, where he cannot reject them. Id.

Where a party has accepted and appropriated lands set apart to him by commissioners appointed to make partition, he is estopped from complaining of the partition. Robb v. Robb (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 125.

Retention and use of an article after discovery of the fraud by which the sale was induced do not prevent a recovery of the damages resulting therefrom. Hallwood Cash Register Co. v. Berry, 36 C. A. 554, 80 S. W. 857.

One who has been fraudulently induced to purchase a machine, but who retains and uses it after discovery of the fraud, waives his right to rescind. Id.

Minor heirs, having actively joined in procuring a partition sale of a homestead, held estopped while retaining the benefits to contest the purchaser's equitable title though the court was without jurisdiction to order the sale. Murphy v. Sisters of the Incarnate Word of San Antonio, 43 C. A. 638, 97 S. W. 135.

A principal by retaining and using a check sent in payment of a settlement made with his agent held to ratify the agent's act. Stetson-Preston Co. v. H. S. Dodson & Co. (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 685.

A purchaser of property held not estopped to recover possession of the property from tenants by having cashed a check for rent in advance. Thomason v. Oates, 46 C. A. 383, 103 S. W. 1114.

Acceptance by a principal of the proceeds of a settlement made by an agent with knowledge held a ratification of the agent's act. Mayfield Woolen Mills v. Long (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 908.

Where a landowner authorized an attorney in fact to sell the land for cash, and after a sale partly upon credit receives and retains the cash proceeds, that is all that is necessary to constitute a ratification of the sale by him. Horst v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 643, 132 S. W. 761.

A purchase of lumber by M. from plaintiff being on his own account, in fulfillment of his contract to furnish lumber to defendant, held, there was no acting by him as agent of defendant, of which her receiving and use of the lumber would be a ratification, so as to make her liable to plaintiff therefor. Lavernia Lumber Co. v. Pikos (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 607.

The fact that a principal accepted notes executed by its collector and indorsed by its debtor in satisfaction of the indebtedness held not to bind him by the collector's agreement to reconvey to the debtor within a certain time, unless he had notice of such agreement at the time he accepted the notes. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 687.

A principal cannot enjoy the benefits arising from a repudiated agency without also assuming the burdens imposed thereby. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

49. — Contracts.—A married woman conveyed a tract of land, her separate property, by a deed which was not properly acknowledged, and received the purchase money, which she expended in making improvements on her separate property. Held, that her heirs were not estopped from recovering the land, but the deed might serve as a basis for a claim for the value of improvements made in good faith. Johnson v. Bryan, 62 T. 623, citing Berry v. Donley, 26 T. 745.

A party defrauded cannot retain the benefits of the contract and escape its obligations. Caldwell v. Dutton, 20 C. A. 369, 49 S. W. 723.

A partner in an insolvent firm, whose property is conveyed to a trustee for creditors, is estopped to question the authority of the trustee to convey the property to satisfy the debts, after assenting by his acts to the conveyance. Williams v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 66.

Seller of an irrigation pump held precluded, in an action on the contract of sale, from denying the construction placed on the contract by the buyer and acquiesced in by him. Masterson v. Heitmann & Co., 33 C. A. 464, 77 S. W. 983.

Contract of agent on behalf of his principal, which accepted the benefit thereof, held ratified by the principal, so as to render it liable thereon. Evans-Snyder-Buel Co. v. Hilje (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 208.

Bona fide purchasers of land from agent acting under defective power of attorney held entitled, under doctrine of estoppel, to hold the land as against prior vendees of the equitable owner. Lewright v. Davis (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 599.

50. — Sale and conveyance or mortgage of property.—A sale of land was made by virtue of an order of the probate court that was void. It was shown in defense, in an action of trespass to try title brought by the heirs of the decedent, that the administrator by whom the sale was made held a power of attorney from the heirs to sell, and that they had received the proceeds of the sale. Held, that they were estopped from recovering the land. Grande v. Chaves, 15 T. 550.

F. sold certain land, the property of his wife, for a negro woman; the wife was willing to it, and desired it to be done for the specific object of getting the woman to wait on her, and she continued to be willing to it to the time of her death; she also had the service of the woman in the family from the time of the trade as long as she lived, and knew that those who held the land were living on, improving, and using it as their own, during all which time she was a married woman. Held, that such facts were not sufficient to pass the title to the land from her, or to estop her heirs from setting up claim to it. Fitzgerald v. Turner, 43 T. 79.

Plaintiffs brought suit to recover the community interest of their mother in land sold by their father after her death. The defendants with other defenses pleaded the following matters by way of estoppel: The defendant after the purchase of the land had at the request of his vendor paid accounts for clothing for plaintiffs amounting to $60 or $70; at the request of his vendor paid two installments of the premium upon a life policy taken out by him for the benefit of his children, and after the father's death his children had received $2,500 on the policy. The land sold was worth from $1,000 to $1,200. Held, there was no estoppel. Bell v. Schwartz, 56 T. 353.

A mutual mistake in the calls of the deed conveying land in excess of that bargained for cannot be corrected at the suit of the vendor, when, after the discovery of the mistake, he has received payment of the purchase-money for the land thus conveyed, and yielded possession thereof to the vendee. Wittbecker v. Walters, 69 T. 470, 6 S. W. 788.

One whose interest in land is conveyed by his parent during his minority, for which other property is received by the parent in exchange, and who, after reaching his majority, with a full knowledge of his rights, receives from his parent a part of such property, cannot recover the land so conveyed. Nanny v. Allen, 77 T. 240, 13 S. W. 989.

That a purchaser of cattle, after discovery of the seller's fraud, instructed his agent to sell the cattle, which, however, was not done, does not show a waiver of the fraud. Cabanness v. Holland, 19 C. A. 383, 47 S. W. 379.

Building and loan association cannot disclaim agency of one procuring execution of mortgage after accepting benefits. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Baumann (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 49.

A principal, whose agent, without authority, employs a broker to sell her lands, is not rendered liable for the compensation of the broker by selling the land to a purchaser found by him. Williams v. Moore, 24 C. A. 402, 58 S. W. 953.

If an article sold on a warranty of quality is wholly worthless, a retention of it does not preclude the purchaser from recovering for a breach of the warranty. Ash v. Beck (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 53.

Sale of land by deceased and receipt of the purchase money by his legal representatives held to give the purchaser a title superior to that of deceased's heir. Cope v. Blount, 38 C. A. 516, 91 S. W. 615.

Children of testatrix held not estopped to bring suit to set aside will by acceptance of deeds of property involved. Holland v. Coutts, 100 T. 232, 98 S. W. 236.

A person taking the benefit of a contract of sale made by another as agent held bound by the terms thereof. H. Goldschmidt & Co. v. Wagner (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 737.

A seller who retains the purchase price for goods sold by an agent confirms the sale and ratifies the terms thereof. Id.

In trespass to try title to land located under a land certificate which was traded to plaintiff for another tract by defendants' mother after her husband's death, evidence that defendants afterward joined in a conveyance of the tract received by their mother held admissible as tending to estop them from denying her right to transfer the certificate. Vann v. Denson, 56 C. A. 220, 120 S. W. 1020.

51. Permitting Improvements or expenditures—Erection of buildings.—Abutting owner held not estopped to sue to abate nuisance by erection of buildings in street, though he made no formal protest while they were being erected. Richardson v. Lone Star Salt Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 647.

City held estopped to recover possession of building erected by county on city's land or possession of the land, or to require removal of the building. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 447, 128 S. W. 109, 129 S. W. 593.

The fact that a person moves into proximity to a nuisance after it has been begun and its business carried on will not preclude him from a recovery of damages arising therefrom. A. Cohen & Co. v. Rittmann (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 59.

52. — Construction of railroad.—Where a railroad company established a yard after the building of plaintiff's house, the fact that the main track was there when plaintiff built does not estop him from claiming damages for subsequent injuries. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Passons (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 239.

53. — Improvements and expenditures by purchasers of land.—On the 7th of April, 1856, the wife of plaintiff wrote to defendant offering to sell him a part of their homestead on certain conditions. In June, 1858, defendant went into possession and made valuable improvements. In an action of trespass to try title plaintiff recovered judgment for the premises, and the defendant recovered the value of the improvements made by him, to be paid before a writ of possession should issue. Held, that plaintiff was not estopped from recovering immediate possession of the premises, leaving the defendant to pursue the proper remedy to recover the value of his improvements. Eckhardt v. Schlecht, 29 T. 129.

An express parol agreement by the owners of contiguous lands as to their boundary line will be recognized as binding between such persons. Houston v. Sneed, 15 T. 310; George v. Thomas, 16 T. 89, 67 Am. Dec. 612. Such an agreement may be implied from the acts and long acquiescence of parties, which should be enforced when a failure to enforce it would result in injuries to subsequent purchasers, who have bought relying upon acts open to their observation, and indicating the true boundary as recognized by those from whom they purchased and contiguous owners; and as between original owners who have acquiesced in a common boundary, whereby one of them has been induced to make permanent and valuable improvements which he would not otherwise have made on land afterwards in controversy, the same should be enforced. Hefner v. Downing, 57 T. 576.

A married woman properly executed a deed conveying land, her separate property. It recited a consideration of $1,500, and the name of the grantee was in blank. The deed was placed by her husband in the hands of an agent to effect a sale, and the land was sold by him for $1,000, and the money paid to the husband, the wife refusing to receive any part of it. Held, that she was not estopped by the deed from recovering the land from the purchaser; but having remained silent for seven years, while the purchaser was improving the property, she was estopped from recovering possession until she paid for the improvements. Cole v. Bammel, 62 T. 108.

A married woman conveyed a tract of land, her separate property, by a deed which was not properly acknowledged, and received the purchase money, which she expended in making improvements on her separate property. Held, that her heirs were not estopped from recovering the land, but the deed might serve as a basis for a claim for the value of improvements made in good faith. Johnson v. Bryan, 62 T. 623, citing Berry v. Donley, 26 T. 745.

54. — Knowledge of facts.—Where a city and county acted with equal knowledge of facts, city held not estopped to claim title to the land of which county took possession under an agreement. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 477, 128 S. W. 109, 129 S. W. 593.

That plaintiff railroad company did not object when defendant's track was laid across the land in controversy did not create an estoppel against plaintiff, if plaintiff's officials did not know at the time that it owned the land. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 850.

55. Permitting sale or mortgage of property.—A judgment creditor assented to a conveyance by the judgment debtor of certain land embraced in the lien of the judgment, to a trustee to pay certain debts, including his own, and attended the sale under the deed of trust, making no objection thereto, but favoring the sale. Held, that he was estopped from contesting the validity of the trust, or asserting the lien of his judgment against the purchaser at the trust sale; and such judgment creditor having afterwards purchased the same land under execution on his judgment and sold it to another who had notice of the previous sale, the last purchaser was in no better condition than his vendor. Luter v. Rose, 20 T. 639.

Plaintiffs brought suit to recover the community interest of their mother in land located by virtue of the headright certificate issued to their father during marriage and sold by him after the death of their mother. The defendants, among other matters, relied upon an estoppel by reason of plaintiffs having been present at the time of the sale and making no objections thereto. The defendant at the time of his purchase had full knowledge of the rights of plaintiffs. Held, that there was no estoppel. If the real owner permit a third person to purchase property without notice of his claim from the apparent owner, he will be estopped from asserting the title against such innocent and bona fide purchaser. Burleson v. Burleson, 28 T. 383.

In 1857 B. sold to S. a tract of land on deferred payments secured by the vendor's lien. In 1862, all the purchase money being due, B. demanded payment; S. told him that he had no money, but could sell the land for Confederate notes, which he would do if B. would receive that money in payment of the notes. To this B. answered that he would receive Confederate money, and desired S. to sell the land. About four weeks afterwards S. sold the land and tendered the money to B., who refused to receive it. In 1866 B. brought suit against S., recovered a judgment against him for the debt and foreclosure of his vendor's lien, and afterwards purchased the land under an order of sale issued on his judgment. The vendee of S. was not a party to the suit. In 1869 B. brought suit for the land against J., who purchased from S. Held, that B. was estopped from claiming the land. Johnson v. Byler, 38 T. 606.

An owner of property in his actual possession held not estopped by his silence from asserting title thereto as against a purchaser thereof. Stanger v. Dorsey, 22 C. A. 573, 55 S. W. 129.

One in possession, or claiming under a registered deed, is not estopped to claim title against one whom he did not notify of his title. Pierce v. Texas Rice Development Co., 52 C. A. 205, 114 S. W. 857.

Contract between law firm and person representing himself as agent of person having the legal title held inoperative as to the legal title, but as conveying an equitable interest by way of estoppel as against the equitable owner. Lewright v. Davis (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 599.

B.'s signing as witness a deed by G. to C. held not to estop B.'s heirs from claiming the land, unless C.'s vendees were influenced in their purchase by B. having witnessed G.'s deed. Roberts v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1120.

Creditor who had acquiesced in the debtor's sale of his entire stock held estopped to hold the buyer for conversion. First State Bank of Teague v. Walter & Hafner Jewelry Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 708.

56. — Public or judicial sale.—In 1853 R. and wife sold to L. a tract of land and executed a bond for title therefor. L. paid a portion of the purchase money and died in 1854. Administration was granted on L.'s estate, and in 1855 R. and wife filed their petition in the court alleging that L. was indebted to them for the balance of the purchase money, and procured an order of sale under which the land was sold and purchased by D. In 1857 D. brought suit for the land against R. and wife, who defended on the ground (among others) that the land was the separate property of the wife, who had never acknowledged the sale in the manner required by law. Held, that she was estopped from denying the validity of the administration sale. Dalton v. Rust, 22 T. 133.

On the 7th of August, 1831, a grant of land was made to Wm. Chase, as a colonist. At the time of the grant Chase was married to Eliza Page Chase, who died in 1833, leaving two children by a former marriage, to wit, J. W. Page and S. P. Page. J. W. Page died in 1854, leaving S. P. Page his only heir. William Chase, after the death of his wife Eliza, married a second wife, named Mary, and he died in Brazoria county in 1843. His widow, Mary, returned an inventory of his estate, on which was the league of land in controversy. One of the appraisers was J. W. Page. Afterwards Mary married Bayes, who joined her in the administration, and they afterwards returned an inventory including the land in controversy. In 1848 the land was sold by order of the probate court, S. P. Page being present at the sale. It also appeared that in 1833 J. W. Page was administrator of his mother's estate, and was also guardian of his brother. The land in controversy was not inventoried as a part of his mother's estate. In a suit by S. P. Page for his mother's interest in the land against the purchaser at the administrator's sale, it was held that plaintiff was not estopped from recovering the land by reason of the facts above stated, it not appearing that he knew of his rights in the premises, or that the purchaser at the sale was influenced by his action. Page v. Arnim, 29 T. 53.

A. owner of land, conveyed it to B. by deed August 3, 1862. A judgment had been rendered against A. in 1860, which was supposed by all the parties to be a lien on the land, but which in fact was not. A. died in 1869, and administration was duly granted on his estate. At the March term, 1870, of the county court, the plaintiff in the judgment filed his petition for the sale of the land, a sale was ordered and he became the purchaser. In 1869 D., who desired to purchase the land, went to see B. in reference thereto, and was told by B. that the land had been sold in satisfaction of the judgment against his vendor, and when told that such sale had not been made said he was satisfied that it would be made unless he paid off the judgment, and he preferred to keep his money and let the land go. Thereafter D. bought the land from the plaintiff in the judgment, taking a bond for title. Before D. made all of his payments B. tried to induce him to abandon his purchase on certain conditions, which D. refused to accept. In an action by B. to recover the land from D., it was held that he was estopped from claiming it. Mayer v. Ramsey, 46 T. 371.

A., the guardian of his minor son, used money belonging to him in the purchase of land, taking the title in his own name. Afterward B. was appointed guardian in place of A., who had died, and presented a money demand against A.'s estate for the money of the ward so used, and the land in question was sold under order of the court to pay this and other debts. Held, that the minor was estopped by the action of his guardian from recovering the land. Clayton v. McKinnon, 54 T. 206.

One whose land is sold at tax sale without serving the statutory notice held not estopped to ask that the sale be set aside. Bean v. City of Brownwood, 91 T. 684, 45 S. W. 897.

A person, not a party to the action, consenting to a decree conveying certain lands, held not estopped, on purchasing the lands at execution sale, from recovering them from parties claiming under the decree. Gulf City Trust Co. v. Hartley, 20 C. A. 180, 49 S. W. 902.

57. Silence.—A minor who executes a deed, remaining silent as to her age, is not estopped by a statement made by another party in her presence which she does not contradict. In a suit to recover property conveyed by such deed, she is not bound to restore the purchase money received by a third party and which never came into her possession. Vogelsang v. Null, 67 T. 465, 3 S. W. 451.

One held not estopped by failure to deny a certain statement. Powers v. McKnight (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 549.

Estoppel to claim title by silence supposes that the title is in the person estopped. Pierce v. Texas Rice Development Co., 52 C. A. 205, 114 S. W. 857.

If one remains silent when it is his duty to speak, he will not be heard to speak thereafter to the injury of one who was induced to act on the faith of his silence; but, if no duty to speak exists, no rights can be lost or acquired by silence. Id.

Mere silence held not to prove ratification of agent's unauthorized act. Lightfoot v. Horst (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 606.

An estoppel involves the idea that a person has failed to speak when it was his duty to speak, so that he will not be allowed to speak when he desires so to do. Dudley v. Strain (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 778.

58. Negligence.—It is the duty of a depositor in a bank to know whether his account is correct or not, and promptly to report a forgery when detected. Should he negligently fail to make the examination and consequent discovery (when he could have discovered it), he will not be permitted to deny the genuineness of the checks, provided the bank be prejudiced by his failure. Schwarz v. National Bank, 67 T. 217, 2 S. W. 865; Weinstein v. Bank, 69 T. 38, 6 S. W. 171, 5 Am. St. Rep. 23.

Where plaintiff bank neglected to examine defendant's monthly statement, which showed a defalcation of plaintiff's cashier, plaintiff was estopped from thereafter recovering the funds. Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank, 31 C. A. 308, 71 S. W. 612.

Failure of child to sue for partition of homestead while occupied by surviving wife held not to estop her from suing thereafter. McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670.

58½. Particular matters.—Questions for jury, Art. 1971, § 80; instructions, Art. 1971, § 289; to claim new trial, Art. 2019, § 42; to allege error, Art. 2078, § 40; foreign receivers, Art. 2133, § 7; to assert invalidity of execution sale, Art. 3784, § 9; to claim homestead, Art. 3786, § 36; to assert invalidity of conveyance of homestead, Art. 1115, and Art. 3786, § 47; to claim separate property, Art. 4621, § 26; to assert rights under insurance contracts, Art. 4972, §§ 20, 70-86, 98; to assert usury, Art. 4980, § 27; tenant to deny landlord's title, Art. 5491, § 9; to sue for rent, Art. 5491, § 39; to object to chattel mortgage, Art. 5662, § 12; to rely on limitations, Art. 5714, § 5; and other specific matters.

III. Persons Affected

59. Persons to whom estoppel is available.—The burden is on an appellant to show reversible error, and the appellee is not bound to contest the points raised on the appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blanchard (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 88.

If a grantee of land acquires title by estoppel, such title passes to his grantee on conveyance of the land. Pierce v. Texas Rice Development Co., 52 C. A. 205, 114 S. W. 857.

Any act by plaintiff, pursuant to an agreement between itself and another railroad company, could not be taken advantage of as an estoppel by defendant railroad company, which was not a party thereto. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 850.

60. Persons estopped.—In October, 1872, P. and wife moved away from their homestead in the country and occupied a place in a town rented by them. In December, 1872, P. conveyed their homestead by a deed of trust to secure the payment of a loan. After the maturity of the loan and before a sale under the trust deed letters from the creditor to the husband were answered by the wife, promising to pay the debt and fully recognizing the rights of the creditor under the trust deed. In November, 1873, P. and wife moved back on the mortgaged land, and signed an acknowledgment indorsed upon the trust deed, as follows: This is to certify that we this day move upon the place within described, by the permission of W. & B., and will hold possession only on their account. W. & B. were the creditors secured by the deed of trust, and at a sale under the trust deed in 1874 purchased the land. After the sale P. and wife acquired another homestead and sold their first homestead mentioned in the deed of trust to T. Held, that T. was not estopped from showing that the deed of trust was inoperative by reason of the property having been the homestead of P. and wife at the date of its execution. Thomas v. Williams, 50 T. 269.

Heirs of intestate held not estopped to claim lands conveyed by void deeds because administrators recovered judgments for the purchase money. McCown v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 54.

Heirs held estopped to deny title acquired under a contract between a third person and the administrator. Halbert v. De Bode, 15 C. A. 615, 40 S. W. 1011.

Strangers to a contract held not bound by recitals therein as to alleged acts of a third person under whom they claim. Id.

In trespass to try title a plaintiff, claiming under a subsequent deed of gift from defendant's grantor, held bound by representations which would estop the grantor. Mars v. Morris, 48 C. A. 216, 106 S. W. 430.

Where a tenant in common is estopped from doing a particular act on the premises as against the owner of adjacent premises, the tenant, neither alone nor in conjunction with the co-tenant, will be permitted to act contrary thereto. Woods v. Lowrance, 49 C. A. 542, 109 S. W. 418.

Allegations or recitals in pleadings in a suit to which parties in the case at bar were not parties cannot bind them. Schrivver v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 231.

61. — Purchasers from person creating estoppel.—A judgment creditor assented to a conveyance by the judgment debtor of certain land embraced in the lien of the judgment to a trustee to pay certain debts, including his own, and attended the sale under the deed of trust, making no objection thereto, but favoring the sale. Held, that he was estopped from contesting the validity of the trust, or asserting the lien of his judgment against the purchaser at the trust sale; and such judgment creditor having afterwards purchased the same land under execution on his judgment, and sold it to another who had notice of the previous sale, the last purchaser was in no better condition than his vendor. Luter v. Rose, 20 T. 639.

On the 23d of January, 1878, A. held a note of B., payable one day after date and secured by deed of trust duly recorded. In the fall of 1878 or 1879 C. and others were negotiating with B. for the purchase of the land, in which negotiations A. took an active part. In answer to a question whether there were any liens upon the property, A. answered that they had all been discharged, and that B. held the releases, which should be recorded, and the purchase was then made. On the 3d of June, 1881, the note was indorsed by A. to plaintiff. In a suit brought October 20, 1882, for the balance due on the note and for foreclosure of the lien, it was held that plaintiff was estopped from enforcement of the lien. Fielding v. Du Bose, 63 T. 631.

A purchaser of certain land subject to an easement created by a contract of record held not estopped by a statement made by his grantor to the owner of the dominant tenement. Metcalf v. Faucher (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1038.

62. — Heirs of person creating estoppel.—Where the holder of the legal title is estopped from denying a trust in land, the estoppel may on his death be invoked against his heirs. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

62½. Estoppel of wife to claim separate property.—See notes under Art. 4621.

IV. Matters Precluded

63. Title or claim to property.—An estoppel against certain heirs' right to object to the equitable title to certain land acquired by a purchaser in partition held to operate against the heirs' claim to their mother's interest in the property as well as to the interest of their father. Murphy v. Sisters of the Incarnate Word of San Antonio, 43 C. A. 638, 97 S. W. 135.

A defendant held entitled to no interest in certain land in view of an estoppel by a partition by act of certain parties through whom he claimed. Berryman v. Biddle, 48 C. A. 624, 107 S. W. 922.

64. Rights and liabilities under contracts.—On the 26th of May, 1881, A. executed to B. a note for $666.66 and two other notes, amounting in the aggregate to $2,000. The notes were given for timber growing on certain lands claimed by B. Immediately after the date of the note A. entered on the lands and cut timber thereon. The first note fell due in eight months from its date and was paid at its maturity; a payment was also made on another of the notes. In August, 1883, one of the notes having been lost, A. gave another note in its place. Shortly after, this suit was brought, and A. pleaded a want of consideration, that B. was not the owner of the land, that the contract was procured by fraudulent representation, etc. Held that A. was estopped from setting up this defense. Warner v. Munsheimer, 2 App. C. C. 395.

Extent of estoppel of a buyer, receiving part of cattle contracted for with knowledge of defects, to deny that the remaining portion was defective, stated. Wigglesworth v. Uvalde Live Stock Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1180.

Where a materialman agrees with a contractor to furnish lumber in accordance with certain plans, and the plans are changed, unknown to him, so as to require more lumber, the owner can be held liable because of estoppel by conduct only for the value of the additional lumber required. Marks v. Jones (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 618.

65. Remedies.—A quitclaim by the heir to community property sold by the surviving spouse held not to estop the heir to sue on the community bond for her share of the community estate. Graham v. Miller, 26 C. A. 5, 62 S. W. 113.

66. Availability at law.—An estoppel may be relied on in a court of law as well as in equity. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

Art. 3688. [2300] [2246] Color or interest does not disqualify.—No person shall be incompetent to testify on account of color, nor because he is a party to a suit or proceeding or interested in the issue tried. [Act May 19, 1871, p. 108. P. D. 6826.]

Competency of witnesses in general.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Parties of record.—Where persons having no interest in the suit were joined as defendants to incapacitate them as parties, their evidence in behalf of defendant was properly admitted. McRae v. Poor (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 47.

A plaintiff in a personal injury case is not disqualified by reason of interest from testifying in his own behalf, and the fact that his testimony is self-serving does not render it incompetent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hendricks, 49 C. A. 314, 108 S. W. 745.

Interest of party or other person.—A party to a negotiable instrument is a competent witness to show its invalidity. Parsons v. Phipps, 4 T. 341; Hillebrant v. Ashworth, 18 T. 307.

The grantee in a written instrument is a competent witness to prove its execution. Lang v. Dougherty, 74 T. 226, 12 S. W. 29.

The provisions of Arts. 3688-3690 apply to the probate of wills. Legatees who are not subscribing witnesses can testify to execution of will. Gamble v. Butchee, 30 S. W. 861, 87 T. 643.

In an action by a church corporation to recover certain land which defendant claimed by adverse possession through her testator, members of the church held not so interested as to disqualify them to testify to conversations had with testator in his lifetime. Crosby v. First Presbyterian Church of El Paso, 45 C. A. 111, 99 S. W. 584.

The testimony of an agent in an action by a third person against the principal as to the extent of his agency is admissible on such issue. Rainey v. Kemp, 54 C. A. 486, 118 S. W. 630.

An agent held properly allowed to testify as to the extent of his authority. Bybee v. Embree-McLean Carriage Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 203.

An agent is competent to testify to the agency and its extent. Autrey v. Linn (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 197.

An agent may testify as to the extent and nature of his authority. Cannel Coal Co. v. Luna (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 721.

Transfer, release or extinguishment of interest.—Evidence of plaintiffs, who conveyed and disclaimed, to evade the rule incapacitating parties as witnesses, held inadmissible in behalf of plaintiffs. McRae v. Poor (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 47.

Art. 3689. [2301] [2247] Husband or wife not disqualified, except, etc.—The husband or wife of a party to a suit or proceeding, or who is interested in the issue to be tried, shall not be incompetent to testify therein, except as to confidential communications between such husband and wife.

Marriage.—One claiming a part of a decedent's estate, on the ground that she was decedent's common-law wife, was incompetent to testify on the question. Schwingle v. Keifer, 105 T. 609, 153 S. W. 1132.

Fraudulent acts of husband.—In a suit by the wife, her husband having refused to join, she was permitted to testify as to the fraudulent acts of her husband. Edwards v. Dismukes, 53 T. 605.

Interest.—The husband, plaintiff in a suit to recover the separate property of the wife, is, under Art. 3688, a competent witness. Turnley v. Texas B. & I. Co., 54 T. 451. It was also held that the husband or wife was a competent witness in a suit in which they were joint parties, and in regard to a matter in which they had a joint interest. Cameron v. Fay, 55 T. 58; McKay v. Treadwell, 8 T. 176; Cairrell v. Higgs, 1 U. C. 56.

On the issue whether a deed absolute in form, executed by husband and wife, is subject to a parol trust, the wife, testifying in support of the trust, held an interested witness. Whitfield v. Duffie (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 324.

Confidential communications.—As to confidential communications, see Mitchell v. Mitchell, 80 T. 101, 15 S. W. 705.

In an action by a woman against her former husband, her testimony that she had contracted a venereal disease from him during the existence of the marital relation held admissible. King v. Sassaman (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 937.

A husband, who had married a second time and conveyed to his second wife community property of the first marriage, might testify that, prior to the conveyance, he told her about the existence and interest of the children of the first marriage. Eddy v. Bosley, 34 C. A. 116, 78 S. W. 565.

Statements made by the husband to the wife at the time he purchases, or when he is having improvements made upon property, declarative of his intention in making the purchase or improvements, are admissible as res gestæ for the purpose of showing his intention, in a case where his intention is a legitimate subject of inquiry, and the wife can testify in her own behalf as to such declarations. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 145.

Letters written by husband in his lifetime to his wife complaining of her lack of sincere affection for him, and of her conduct to his mother, held confidential communications, and inadmissible in aid of her contest of her husband's will. Lanham v. Lanham, 105 T. 91, 145 S. W. 336.

Confidential communications between husband and wife embrace all information coming to a husband or wife in consequence or by reason of the existence of the marriage relation. Id.

Confidential communications between husband and wife are excluded even after the relation has been dissolved by death or otherwise. Id.

On an issue as to an insane delusion on the part of testator toward his wife at the time of his mother's death, testimony that, while traveling to the funeral, he sat behind her and gazed at her held not to relate to a confidential communication between husband and wife. Lanham v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 635.

A conversation between husband and wife concerning her property rights and his admission to a wrongful transfer of her separate personalty are not privileged, within Art. 3689, making confidential communications between husband and wife privileged, and the wife suing for the property may testify to such conversations. First Bank of Springtown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 652.

Under Art. 3689, providing that the husband or wife of a party to a suit, or who is interested in the issue, shall not be competent to testify as to confidential communications, communications between husband and wife in the presence of third persons are not generally confidential. Id.

Waiver of objection.—Where defendant, a widow, testified first on cross-examination to a parol conveyance of certain land in controversy from her husband, it was competent for her, on redirect examination, to repeat, explain, or qualify her previous testimony as against an objection that she was incompetent to testify with reference to such matter, through the objection might have been good originally. Reyes v. Escalera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

Art. 3690. [2302] [2248] In actions by or against executors, etc., certain testimony not allowed.—In actions by or against executors, administrators or guardians, in which judgment may be rendered for or against them as such, neither party shall be allowed to testify against the others as to any transaction with, or statement by, the testator, intestate or ward, unless called to testify thereto by the opposite party; and the provisions of this article shall extend to and include all actions by or against the heirs or legal representatives of a decedent arising out of any transaction with such decedent. [Id. P. D. 6827.]

1. Construction of act.—The exception to the general rule that no person shall be incompetent to testify because he is a party to a suit or proceeding or interested in the issue tried, which denies the right of an heir or legal representative of a decedent to testify as to any transaction or statement by decedent in an action by or against the heirs or legal representatives arising out of any transaction with decedent, unless called by the opposite party, will not be extended by judicial construction. Simon v. Middleton, 51 C. A. 531, 112 S. W. 441.

2. Actions in which testimony is excluded.—In a bill of review brought by the ward to revise the account of a guardian, either party is a competent witness in regard to the transactions between each other. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222.

In a suit by the widow and children for damages against parties charged to have unlawfully taken the life of the deceased husband and father, the defendants are competent witnesses. Wallace v. Stevens, 74 T. 559, 12 S. W. 283.

3. — Representative capacity or title or interest of party.—Plaintiff in action held not to sue as heir, nor defendants to claim title of inheritance, so as to render them incompetent to testify as to transaction with a decedent. Crenshaw v. Harris, 16 C. A. 263, 41 S. W. 391.

The exceptions excluding certain parties from testifying on account of interest will not be extended by implication. A plaintiff may be admitted to testify to declarations of a deceased partner of the defendant where suit had been brought against the firm and one of the parties died pending the suit, and his representatives were not made parties. Roberts v. Yarboro, 41 T. 449.

In a suit against executors and another, to fix a liability against both, a defendant cannot be called by his codefendant, the executor, touching matters inhibited in the statute. Alexander v. Lewis, 47 T. 481.

After his father's death a son was sued for land given him by his father by parol contract, followed by possession and valuable improvements. The defendant was a competent witness to prove the transaction, he not claiming as heir or legal representative. Wooters v. Hale, 83 T. 563, 19 S. W. 134.

In an action by widow and minor children, where widow sues in her own right, defendant, as to her, can testify as to transactions with her deceased husband. Harris v. Warlick (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 356.

Evidence of personal transactions between the heir suing on a community bond and the deceased spouse held not within the statute as to transactions with deceased persons, the sureties not being sued as heirs or legal representatives. Graham v. Miller, 26 C. A. 5, 62 S. W. 113.

Where one sues in his individual right as well as in his representative capacity, a witness can testify under this article, but the court should instruct the jury not to consider the answer in so far as it affects the official capacity (that is the estate which he represents) of the party to the suit. Field v. Field, 39 C. A. 1, 87 S. W. 728.

Under this article a surviving partner, suing for the benefit of the firm, is not a "legal representative" of the deceased partner. Shivel & Stewart v. Greer Bros. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 207.

In partition wherein defendant claimed under a deed which plaintiffs alleged was executed only to enable defendant to qualify for office, defendant's offer to prove by himself and wife what was said and done by himself and his mother, the grantor, at the time of the deed, was excluded as a statement by and a transaction with his deceased ancestor affecting property involved in suit. Held error, as defendant was not claiming as heir, but under the deed the assault on which he could repel by his testimony the same as if he had been no kin to grantor. Ivy v. Ivy (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 682.

Where defendant and her husband executed a deed of community property to plaintiff, and the husband, dying, devised his half of the remaining community property to defendant, and plaintiff sued to reform the instrument, alleging that certain property was omitted by mutual mistake, the suit was not against defendant as heir or legal representative of the decedent. Harry v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 637.

4. — Possibility of judgment for or against party in particular capacity or right.—When a defendant is not sued in his capacity as executor, and where judgment cannot be rendered against him as such between the heirs of the deceased, but between the heirs of his devisee this article does not apply. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 55 S. W. 399.

Though defendant was executrix and heir of P. and sole beneficiary under his will, yet the action being against her personally, and it being alleged that, as trustee for plaintiffs, P. invested money belonging to them in property taking the title in his own name, and that he never repudiated the trust, and that defendant has taken possession of the property, and has refused to deliver it to them, and the will not having purported to dispose of the trust property, the provision of this article that in actions by or against executors, "in which judgment may be rendered for or against them as such," neither party may testify to a transaction with or statement by deceased, and that this shall apply to an action by or against heirs of a decedent, arising out of any transaction with him, does not apply, so as to render plaintiffs incompetent to testify to conversations and transactions with P. Tennison v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 948.

5. — Probate or contest of will.—Persons interested under a will are competent witnesses to prove its execution. Martin v. McAdams, 27 S. W. 255, 87 T. 225. See Lewis v. Aylett, 45 T. 190; Watts v. Holland, 56 T. 54; Shilling v. Shilling (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 420; Paddock v. Lewis, 35 S. W. 320, 13 C. A. 265. The terms of this article will not be extended so as to embrace devisees or legatees. Newton v. Newton, 77 T. 508, 14 S. W. 157; Ingersol v. McWillie, 30 S. W. 58, 9 C. A. 543; Caffey's Exrs v. Caffey, 35 S. W. 738, 12 C. A. 616.

In a suit to contest the probate of a will a daughter of the testator is not forbidden by this statute, to testify as to a conversation between her and her father whose will she is seeking to destroy. The suit is not one arising out of transaction of the deceased with the daughter. Simon v. Middleton, 51 C. A. 531, 112 S. W. 446.

6. — Determination of construction of grant.—This article applies only in suits in which the cause of action or defense asserted grows out of a transaction with the deceased and does not apply in suits involving the identity of the grantee of a land certificate. Keck v. Woodward, 53 C. A. 267, 116 S. W. 79.

7. Persons whose testimony is excluded in general.—In a purchaser's action against the executor of a deceased vendor for equitable relief from a sale induced by fraud, the testimony of a third person, not a party to the suit, and not claiming under the deceased, was not inadmissible under this article. Hagelstein v. Blaschke (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 718.

8. Parties whose testimony is excluded.—A party to a suit claiming under a parol gift from her deceased father is incompetent to prove the transaction through which she claims. She is also incompetent to testify to the same transaction in behalf of her co-claimants under the same alleged gift. James v. James, 81 T. 373, 16 S. W. 1087.

A party plaintiff as next friend of a minor is within this article. Ellis v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 585.

In a suit by an executor on a note given to testator, held, that a defendant could not testify as to a transaction with testator, though he admitted his indebtedness, and the only issues were with the other parties to the note. Coffin v. Loomis (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 511.

Where a trustee sues for conversion of the trust estate, and the beneficiaries are made parties by defendant, held, they could not be asked, as witnesses, to testify as to transactions with or statements by the deceased grantor of the trust. Herring v. Patten, 18 C. A. 147, 44 S. W. 50.

Defendant cannot testify as to a transaction between himself and plaintiff's intestate. Baugh v. Geiselman, 23 C. A. 143, 55 S. W. 615.

In a suit to break a will, persons who wish the will broken, but will not join the plaintiff in the suit, and are necessarily made parties defendant, are opposite parties within the meaning of this statute. Sanders v. Kirbie, 94 T. 564, 63 S. W. 626.

Principals on a bond who are properly made parties to the suit, will not be permitted to testify as to a transaction between their principal and deceased in a suit against the administrator and heirs of the deceased. Haberzettle v. Dearing (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 540.

In a trespass to try title suit brought by the administratrix and heirs of deceased, a defendant cannot testify as to transactions with the deceased unless called by the opposite party. Rogers v. Tompkins (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 382.

A party cannot testify as to acts of the deceased and himself, nor as to transactions between them. Edelstein v. Brown, 100 T. 403, 100 S. W. 129, 123 Am. St. Rep. 816.

This article does not prevent a surety on a claim bond given by decedent for the purpose of trying right of property from testifying in an action by decedent's administrator to set aside a default judgment on the bond that a short time before the property was levied on he heard decedent declare that the property belonged to him; the surety being a party to the judgment sought to be vacated, but not to the suit in which the testimony was given. Barker v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 609.

Under the express provisions of this article plaintiff, in an action against the executor and heirs of a decedent, could not testify in her own behalf relative to a verbal agreement with decedent. Boiders v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 614.

9. — Nominal or unnecessary parties.—One having no interest in common with parties calling him as a witness, and who though nominally a party to the suit has no interest in the result, is competent to testify as to statements and admissions against his interest at the time they were made by a deceased person in possession of property in litigation against those holding under him as heirs, legatees, etc. Oury v. Saunders, 77 T. 278, 13 S. W. 1030.

Where the wife of a deceased maker of a contract was a party, though not a proper or necessary party, to the action, held, that plaintiff was not precluded from testifying to statements of deceased in regard to the contract in controversy. Kahler v. Carruthers, 18 C. A. 216, 46 S. W. 160.

In an action in the husband's name against an executor to recover on behalf of the community estate for services rendered testator, the wife is a real party to the suit, and cannot testify to transactions by herself or her husband with decedent, unless called by the opposite party. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

Under this article a husband joining his wife in a suit to establish an express trust brought against the children of the deceased holder of the legal title is not competent to testify as to declarations made by the deceased holder as to his holding the land in trust. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

Where, pending a suit between G. and the heirs of a decedent, the heirs convey, without warranty, all their interest in the suit to L., and L. intervenes, the heirs being thus rendered merely nominal parties, the disqualification of G., under this article ceased, and may not be restored by withdrawal of L. Gurley v. Hanric's Heirs (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 721.

10. — Legatee, devisee, heir or distributee.—This article does not apply in an action against legatees (Curtis v. Wilson, 2 C. A. 646, 21 S. W. 787) or devisees or an heir who is a party, when called by the opposite party (Mitchell v. Mitchell, 80 T. 101, 15 S. W. 705).

A plaintiff suing an executor on an account against his testator held incompetent to testify in his own behalf to transactions with decedent. Garrett v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 76.

In trespass to try title by heirs of one who had given a title bond against those claiming under the bond declarations made by the obligor to one of the plaintiffs were properly excluded. Tenzler v. Tyrell, 32 C. A. 443, 75 S. W. 57.

In a suit by an administrator against heirs for money belonging to estate, a defendant cannot testify as to transactions with deceased. Manchester v. Bursey, 41 C. A. 271, 91 S. W. 817.

An heir claiming against a deed from decedent to his wife cannot be permitted to testify concerning a conversation in which decedent declared that when he died his property would go to his side. Davis v. Davis, 44 C. A. 238, 98 S. W. 199.

Plaintiff in a suit against an executor cannot testify as to statements or absence of statements made by one under whom he claims as heir in a conversation with the testator of defendant. Tison v. Gass, 46 C. A. 163, 102 S. W. 754.

Plaintiff, in foreclosure held not disqualified to testify by reason of being an heir and representative of the deceased mortgagee. Blair v. Breeding, 57 C. A. 147, 121 S. W. 869.

That plaintiffs are claiming as heirs of a decedent, other than the one whose statements they seek to prove, in no wise makes this article applicable, where otherwise inapplicable. Tennison v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 948.

In trespass to try title, by one not an administrator, to recover land originally patented by defendant's father, in which defendant claimed as heir and legatee of his father, evidence by defendant as to transactions and conversations with his father were not rendered inadmissible by this article. Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

Under this article one who was a party to probate proceedings only as devisee and not as heir or representative could testify to declarations by testator that he had cut out part of his will. Schnable v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 231.

11. — Surviving spouse.—In a suit by heirs against wife of deceased husband, she cannot testify as to what he told her after they were married, concerning his property. Gilroy v. Richards, 26 C. A. 355, 63 S. W. 665.

A wife, who has a community interest in the subject-matter of the suit, is debarred as a witness under this statute although she is not a party to the suit. Hedges v. Williams (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 77, 78.

When the wife is a party to a suit between the heirs of her deceased husband, she cannot testify as to statements made by him to her, if she would be affected by a judgment for costs. McKnight v. Reed, 30 C. A. 204, 71 S. W. 318.

A husband gave a mortgage on land which was foreclosed and land bought by his creditor. In suit by creditor in trespass to try title against the heirs of his deceased wife to which suit he is a party, he cannot testify as to transaction with his deceased wife, by which it is sought to be shown that the land was the separate property of said wife. Barrett v. Eastman Bros. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1058.

In a suit against a wife and children of a deceased person involving title to community property of the wife and the deceased husband, this statute does not apply to statements of deceased offered in behalf of the wife (because she owns absolutely in her own right one-half of the property), when she is not sued as executrix or administratrix, nor is asserting any right to the property as heir of her deceased husband, nor is administering the estate as surviving wife. Evans v. Scott (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 117.

Where a wife is party to suit together with children of deceased husband, and she claims half interest in the land involved in her own right, transactions with a deceased person may be proved as to her interest but not as to interest of the heirs of her husband, who are parties to the suit. Edwards v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 916.

In an action on a benefit certificate, in which it was claimed by the insurance company that a check of $5.20, which they had sent deceased in full of his claim for sickness, was never returned, the wife may not, under this article, testify as to statement by the husband on receiving the check. Royal Fraternal Union v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 920.

Under this article a wife seeking to recover on a mutual benefit certificate issued to her deceased husband, under an agreement that she should have the money on the certificate provided she paid the assessments, may testify as to the agreement as against the insurance order and a third person claiming as beneficiary. Eatman v. Eatman (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 165.

An action by one as surviving widow and sole heir of her deceased husband, though she be entitled to half the property sued for as survivor, is within this article, so that defendants may not testify to payments made to deceased. Spencer v. Schell (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 111.

12. — Partners.—The plaintiff alleges existence of partnership between White and Rascoe (during latter's lifetime). Defendant White admits partnership. Mrs. Rascoe, executrix, denies it. The plaintiff and defendant White are not opposite parties so as to allow latter to testify under this article concerning transactions with deceased. Rascoe v. Walker-Smith Co., 98 T. 565, 86 S. W. 729.

13. — Disclaimer or other discharge of interest.—A defendant who, in a suit for real estate brought by an administrator, disclaims all interest, is a competent witness to acts and conversations of the decedent affecting the title. Eastham v. Roundtree, 56 T. 110; Markham v. Carothers, 47 T. 21.

Plaintiffs sued for land in their right as heirs, making M. and other parties defendants. His codefendants also impleaded M. on his warranties to them. M. filed a disclaimer in the suit, but this did not render him competent to testify for the other defendants as to transactions by him with the deceased ancestors of plaintiffs, constituting a defense to the action. Bennett v. Land & Cattle Co., 1 C. A. 321, 21 S. W. 126.

A disclaiming defendant in trespass to try title is not a party, within this article. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 55 S. W. 399.

Where by an amended petition an original party plaintiff is omitted, and he files a disclaimer of any interest in the suit, he may testify as to conversations with the testator of defendant executors. Oaks v. West (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1033.

Where one files a disclaimer and is dismissed, it would seem that this article does not apply and he can be called as a witness. But conceding that the disclaimer does not remove one as a party, still the inhibition does not apply when the cause of action does not arise out of a transaction with a person since deceased. Barrett v. Eastman, 28 C. A. 189, 67 S. W. 200.

In an action to recover a lot and rents as damages, testimony of a defendant who had executed a replevin bond making himself liable for such rents, but who had filed a general denial and also a disclaimer of any interest in the property, was inadmissible as to any transaction between himself and decedent relative to the property. Williams v. Neill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 693.

14. Interest in subject-matter as disqualifying witness.—This article does not apply to an interested witness who is not a party. Gilder v. Brenham, 67 T. 345, 3 S. W. 309; Howard v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 689.

The fact that a person is a devisee or legatee does not of itself disqualify him as a witness. Bradshaw v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 574.

15. — Relationship of witness to party or person interested.—In an action by an executor to set aside a deed made by his deceased to defendant, the daughter of the defendant who is not a party to the action is not prohibited by this article from testifying in behalf of defendant as to statements made by the deceased. Armstrong v. Burt (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 172.

16. — Agent of party interested.—This article cannot be extended so as to include within its terms the agent of a party to a suit against executors, even though the transaction sought to be established was done entirely by the deceased and such agent. Saunders' Ex'rs v. Weeks (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 33.

Where a mother delivered notes to her husband as trustee to collect and pay the proceeds to certain of their children, he was competent to testify, after her death, as to her statements when creating the gifts and establishing the trust. Jarrell v. Crow, 30 C. A. 629, 71 S. W. 397.

17. — Manager of corporation.—The general manager of a corporation is not a party within the meaning of the above article and is not precluded from testifying, etc. Colonial & U. S. Mortgage Co. v. Thedford, 21 C. A. 254, 51 S. W. 263.

18. — Surviving party to contract or other transaction.—Testimony of a partner held admissible to support a claim of ownership. Lumpkin v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 661.

A decedent's partner can testify in a suit by the heir of the deceased against a person claiming land under a deed of trust sale of the partnership property. Barnett v. Houston, 18 C. A. 134, 44 S. W. 689.

In a suit by the widow for her community interest in property that belonged to a partnership of which her husband was a partner, the living partner, who is a party to the suit, is not precluded from testifying as to transactions with or statements by the decedent. Wilmurth v. Tompkins, 22 C. A. 87, 53 S. W. 833.

When the heirs sue on a contract made by the defendant with deceased, defendant cannot testify as to any transaction which he had with deceased. Pennybacker v. Hazlewood, 26 C. A. 183, 61 S. W. 154.

19. — Husband or wife of party or other person excluded from testifying.—The wife, although not a party to proceedings between her husband and the representatives of a deceased party, is not a competent witness to testify to transactions between her husband and the deceased concerning matters in which she has a community interest with her husband. Simpson v. Brotherton, 62 T. 170.

Suit was brought by S., a married woman, and her children by her first husband, against the widow and children of R., deceased. The husband of S., from whom she was separated but not divorced, testified as to certain conversations with R. Held, that the evidence was improperly admitted. Reddin v. Smith, 65 T. 26.

The husband of a party to a suit comes within the terms of the statute. Hicks v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 227.

Evidence of statements by deceased to his wife and plaintiff held incompetent, though the wife was not a party to the suit. Anglin v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 827.

In a contest between plaintiff (a wife) and an executor over money deposited in a bank in the joint names of plaintiff and testator, alleged by plaintiff to be her separate property, neither the plaintiff nor her husband can testify about a transaction had with deceased. Tompkins v. McGinn (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 453.

In an action in the husband's name against an executor to recover on behalf of the community estate for services rendered testator, the wife is a real party in interest, and cannot testify to transactions by herself or her husband with decedent, unless called by the opposite party. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

20. — Termination or extinguishment of interest.—An independent executor can voluntarily resign as affecting his qualification as a witness. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

One who parted with all his interest in certain lands before suit was filed is not incompetent, under this article. Buckley v. Runge (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 533.

21. Parties as against whom testimony is excluded.—In an action against heirs made parties and defending by special guardian, the testimony of plaintiff as to any transaction with or statement by the original defendant is inadmissible. McCampbell v. Henderson, 50 T. 601. A party to a suit against heirs claiming property through their deceased ancestor cannot testify as to statements made to him by the decedent, or to transactions between the decedent and himself, or to such statements to or transactions between deceased and third persons; and this although occurring at a time when the witness had no interest in such statements or transactions. Parks v. Caudle, 58 T. 216.

In a suit by an heir or devisee the parties may testify without restriction. Newton v. Newton, 77 T. 508, 14 S. W. 157.

Where land was conveyed to a son by his parents and he obtained divorce from his wife and died, in a suit by the wife against the parents for partition the testimony of the parents that the deed was without consideration and was never delivered was admissible. Crenshaw v. Harris, 16 C. A. 263, 41 S. W. 391.

Where a residuary legatee sues the widow of the testator to set aside as a fraud on him, a deed made by her conveying property in which it is claimed that she has only a life estate, she can testify in behalf of her grantee, that she paid for the property with her separate money. The provisions of this article do not apply in an action by a legatee. Gibony v. Hutcheson, 20 C. A. 581, 50 S. W. 648.

The above article does not apply to an action against executors who are trustees for legatees in the will of a decedent. Clark v. Clark, 21 C. A. 371, 51 S. W. 337.

In a suit against heirs of the deceased to set aside a deed executed by plaintiff to deceased, testimony as to statements made by deceased to plaintiff at the time the deed was executed is not admissible. Lewis v. Whitworth (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1077.

Defendant to suit by guardian of minor heir of decedent held not competent witness as to transactions with such decedent. Bridge v. Carter, 33 C. A. 591, 77 S. W. 245.

The statute against a party testifying to transactions with testator held to prohibit it only as against his heirs and legal representatives, and not as against his legatees and devisees. Emerson v. Scott, 39 C. A. 65, 87 S. W. 369.

Where husband sues as heir of deceased wife for partition of notes in which his wife was one of the principals, a defendant cannot testify in his own behalf as to an agreement of the deceased wife that principals of notes were to be paid to one of defendants. Jones v. Day (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 426.

The statute prohibiting a party from testifying to statements of a deceased person does not apply to actions by or against corporations. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 259, 101 S. W. 867.

Where plaintiff died between time of filing suit and the trial and his heirs were made parties plaintiff, evidence of conversations between the deceased and defendant are inadmissible. Duncan v. Jouett (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 981.

A surviving partner, suing for the benefit of the firm, is not a "legal representative" of the deceased partner. Shivel & Stewart v. Greer Bros. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 207.

In trespass to try title by heirs of the deceased ancestor under whom defendant claimed, the defendant is incompetent to testify to statements made to him by the deceased ancestor. Dickey v. Forrester (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1181.

22. — Survivor of joint parties to contract or other transaction.—The plaintiff was permitted to testify as to transactions between himself and the surviving partner, although the testimony might result in establishing a contract with a firm of which one partner was dead. Bennett v. Frary, 55 T. 145.

In an action by a surviving partner who is also executor of the decedent, the defendant cannot testify as to the statements of the decedent. Stuart v. Altman, 28 S. W. 461, 8 C. A. 657.

23. — Party as to whom person deceased acted in representative or fiduciary relation.—H., deceased, held the legal title to one-half of a tract of land in trust for S. In a suit by the heirs of H. against parties claiming under a deed from the widow and children of S., deceased, the widow of S. can testify respecting the ownership of her deceased husband. Lumkins v. Coates (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 580.

Under this article, testimony of plaintiff as to statements made by one acting as agent of defendant's intestate is not competent against the agent's heirs who are defendants. Mounger v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1070.

24. — Principal of agent deceased or incompetent.—Certain evidence by a widow in relation to transactions with her deceased husband held to be admissible. Davis v. Weathered (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 21.

25. Subject-matter of testimony—What constitutes transaction in general.—A party may testify to his want of knowledge of certain facts, it not appearing that such want of knowledge depended on any statement of the decedent. Mast v. Tibbles, 60 T. 301.

A party was not permitted to testify in reference to an alleged overcharge in an account against him that he had called the attention of a deceased person to it, the executor of such decedent being a party to the suit. Eastham v. Randolph, 3 App. C. C. § 118.

This article does not prohibit a witness from testifying to things which are independent of the act or transaction on the part of the deceased; in other words, if the witness could testify that he at one time had in his possession a note which purported to be signed by the deceased and which note had subsequently been lost by him, such fact was certainly a fact independent of any act on the part of or transaction with the defendant, but such statement cannot be used as evidence of the fact that the deceased had accepted such note, that being the issue in the case. Choate v. Huff, 4 App. C. C. § 281, 18 S. W. 87.

One who, being party to a suit, claims title to land by deed from a deceased mother, in a suit where the plaintiff's title is a sheriff's deed, under execution sale to satisfy a judgment against a deceased father, is competent to testify from his own knowledge that the title to the property conveyed to his father before judgment was in fact paid for with the separate means of his mother. Harris v. Seinsheimer, 67 T. 356, 3 S. W. 307.

Defendant was properly permitted to testify, over the objections of plaintiff, as to facts tending to show that the land in controversy was his homestead in April, 1880, which was the time of the execution of a mortgage from him to plaintiff's testator. Moores v. Wills, 69 T. 109, 5 S. W. 675.

The declarations of a deceased vendor, made at the time he parts with possession of a deed, are admissible in evidence, in a suit to which his executor is a party, on an issue as to whether there was then a purpose to deliver the deed in consummation of a sale. His subsequent declarations, made after the registration of the deed, are not admissible. This article, on which objection thereto was based, does not apply to such a case. Steffan v. Bank, 69 T. 513, 6 S. W. 823.

Where pending suit a party becomes insane, the adverse party cannot testify as to conversations or transactions with him, but may state what he did. Hamilton v. Starr (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 587.

A party may testify as to his own acts. Britton v. Tischmacher (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 241; Wagner v. Isensee, 11 C. A. 491, 33 S. W. 155.

In a suit by an executor, evidence of conversations between defendants, tending to prove a transaction with testator, held incompetent. Coffin v. Loomis (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 511.

A widow and executrix held competent to testify that she bought property claimed by a legatee of her husband in her own right. Gibony v. Hutcheson, 20 C. A. 581, 50 S. W. 648.

An heir, in an action against his father's executors to recover an interest in his mother's community estate, held precluded from testifying as to his intention in executing a release of such interest to his father, by this article. Williams v. Emberson, 22 C. A. 522, 55 S. W. 595.

A creditor, in an action to subject the property of his debtor conveyed to the debtor's wife, held competent to testify to the entire transaction, though both the debtor and his wife were deceased. Gonzales v. Adoue (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 543.

To permit a witness to state that the execution debtor owned the property in controversy at the time of the levy held error. Cullers v. Gray (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 305.

Evidence by a party to a suit relating to a transaction with a decedent held inadmissible, under this article. Gillaspie v. Murray, 27 C. A. 580, 66 S. W. 252.

In an action against administrator on note of his intestate, certain evidence held not incompetent as concerning a transaction with deceased. Adam v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 954.

Where the testimony is not a "statement by" the deceased, and does not show "any transaction" with the deceased, but refers to the conduct of the deceased and the party to the suit towards each other, and it does not show that the witnesses received their knowledge of the facts about which they testify from the deceased, it is not inadmissible under this article. Edelstein v. Brown (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1128.

Where it appeared that the wife after the death of the husband had executed a deed to part of the community land to her daughter, in a suit by other heirs for partition, the only issue being as to the right of the wife to convey more than her community share, there was no error in permitting the daughter to testify as to the delivery of the deed to her by her deceased mother. Jennings v. Borton, 44 C. A. 280, 98 S. W. 446.

Defendant was sued by executors of Mrs. Johnson, sister of defendant, on a note. It was permissible for him to prove that he and one of the makers of another note went to the deceased to induce her to accept the note as a credit on the note sued on, though he could not testify as to what she said. He could explain why he and the maker went to see his sister. This testimony did not contravene this article. Huff v. Powell, 48 C. A. 582, 107 S. W. 365, 366.

Under the statute, a person suing as the heir of a grantee to recover land cannot testify as to declarations of the grantee that the deed, though reciting a consideration of $2,000, was in fact a deed of gift to her. Wolf v. King, 49 C. A. 41, 107 S. W. 617.

In a suit by son of deceased and former wife against the surviving wife for partition of community property, it was not error to permit the wife to testify, without being called by the opposite party, that the money which other witnesses testified had been given her by her deceased husband was used in paying for their home place, and the balance was deposited in bank to her own credit; and that she had no means of obtaining money, other than the money her husband gave her. The case was tried without a jury and the court stated that he would confine the testimony to the money that other witnesses saw the deceased husband give the wife and would not consider it from any other standpoint. Wooden v. Wooden (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 629.

The exclusion of evidence in partition, as a statement by and a transaction with a deceased ancestor affecting property involved, held error. Ivy v. Ivy (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 682.

Certain testimony held objectionable as concerning a transaction with a decedent. Jordan v. Massey (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 804.

Under this article one cannot testify to a marriage with decedent, where that is an issue against an administrator. Berger v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1122.

On an issue whether a will was the result of an insane delusion, conceived by testator toward his wife at the time of his mother's death, evidence that, while traveling to the funeral, testator sat behind his wife and "gazed" at her held admissible. Lanham v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 635.

In an action by a broker for commissions for a sale of land, in which defendant's executrix was substituted upon his death, the issues being as to whether plaintiff was employed, or whether decedent rendered himself liable on an implied contract, testimony by plaintiff as to the details of a trip made by himself and the deceased, in which a strong box belonging to deceased was opened, and an abstract taken out and, after being taken to the courthouse, returned to the plaintiff, related to a transaction with decedent, and was inadmissible. Heath v. Moore (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 709.

A widow contesting the probate of a will of her deceased husband on the ground of fraud, undue influence, and testamentary incapacity may testify to the amount of property and money owned by her at her marriage, and that she had sold her property and loaned her husband money, as against the objection that such testimony was inadmissible as relating to transactions between herself and the deceased husband. McDonald's Estate v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 593.

In an action to recover a lot and the rents thereon, held, that testimony of one of the defendants relating solely to what decedent did with reference to a deed executed by defendant, and to a transaction between defendant and a third person, was not incompetent as a transaction with the decedent. Williams v. Neill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 693.

Under the provision of this article, disqualifying a party to testify against an administrator to transactions with a decedent, one cannot testify to a marriage with decedent, where that is an issue against the administrator. Berger v. Kirby, 106 T. 611, 153 S. W. 1130.

26. — Occupancy of land and delivery of property.—The plaintiff may testify in a suit against an administrator as to the value of the rents, the length of time deceased had possession and the means taken to oust her. Killfoil v. Moore (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1024.

In an action by an executor on a note made by defendants to decedent in payment of bar fixtures purchased by two of defendants, testimony by defendants that certain of the property purchased was never received, and that no credit was given defendants for the value thereof, and that the notes were given after part of the property was delivered, was incompetent under this article, because relating to a transaction with plaintiff's testator. Lengelet v. Piper (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 480.

27. — Contracts.—A party to the suit may testify as to what he himself has done under and by virtue of a contract with the intestate. Potter v. Wheat, 53 T. 401.

In action against administrator for intestate's board, plaintiff held incompetent to testify as to the agreement. Bartlingck v. Harriman, 16 C. A. 462, 41 S. W. 884.

Testimony was held not competent as evidence of a "transaction with, or a statement by," a decedent, prohibited by Art. 3690. Walker v. Pittman, 18 C. A. 519, 46 S. W. 117.

Defendant cannot testify that he did not sign a written instrument indorsed at the time stated therein, where the other party thereto is dead. Hazlewood v. Pennybacker (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 199.

The absence of any sworn pleading denying the execution of a written contract declared on will not entitle plaintiff, upon proof that the contract is lost, to testify as to its contents, in an action against the heirs of the other contracting party. Ehrenworth v. Putnam (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 190.

The grantee of a decedent can testify to the contents of a lost deed in a suit between the grantee and the heirs of a grantor. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 55 S. W. 401.

Evidence that two of the three makers of a note signed as sureties held improperly admitted in an action thereon by the guardian of heirs of the deceased payee. Neitch v. Hillmann, 29 C. A. 544, 69 S. W. 494.

In an action on a bond against the principal and the representatives of a deceased surety, the principal was a competent witness to testify that such deceased surety told him that he would remain on the bond. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Fos-sati (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1038.

28. — Services and value thereof.—The testimony of a physician in a suit against an administrator for pay for his services, as to treating and prescribing for deceased is inadmissible under this article. Garwood v. Schlichenmair, 25 C. A. 176, 60 S. W. 574.

In an action against an executrix, plaintiff's testimony to services rendered and the value thereof held not objectionable as involving transactions with decedent. Buckler v. Kneezell (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 367.

In an action in the husband's name against an executor to recover for services rendered testator, in which plaintiff's wife was in effect a party, the recovery being for the community estate, the wife testified that she rendered services for testator by milking, cooking, and performing other housework, and that her husband would take testator every place he wanted to go, and waited on him all over the place in tending to the stock, etc., and plaintiff testified that he cut wood, fed the cattle, put up the hay, etc., harnessed the buggy, and carried testator almost every place there was anything to see to, and that when he moved to testator's farm he took with him corn and pork and other provisions, and the corn was fed to his and testator's horses, and the other supplies, as well as groceries bought by plaintiff, were eaten by him and testator. Held, that the witness' testimony that her husband took testator every place he wanted to go, and waited on him all over the place in feeding, etc., and carried him almost every place there was anything to see to, as well as plaintiff's testimony that groceries purchased by him were used by testator, was as to "transactions" with testator, and not admissible, but the other testimony was admissible. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

29. — Partnership transactions.—A widow held competent to testify to affairs of a late firm composed of the deceased husband and others. Gordon v. McCall, 20 C. A. 283, 48 S. W. 1111.

30. — Payment or transmission of money.—In a suit by an administrator against the assignee of a note made by the intestate, to cancel the same on the ground of payment, the holder is not permitted to testify that the note has not been paid. Johnson v. Lockhart, 16 C. A. 32, 40 S. W. 640.

In an action on a note by administrator, evidence as to a payment held inadmissible, as relating to transactions with a deceased person. Neitch v. Hillmann, 29 C. A. 544, 69 S. W. 494.

Plaintiff sued administrator for land or in alternative to recover on notes given for purchase money of same, and to foreclose vendor's lien thereon. Defendant pleaded payment. There was evidence sufficient to show that notes had been paid. Plaintiff could not testify that he had never received from deceased money on the notes sued on. The evidence was intended doubtless, to show that the money was received from deceased on other debts due plaintiff by deceased, and that none was paid on the notes. This evidence is prohibited by this article. Abbott v. Stiff (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 563.

31. — Physical condition and mental capacity.—On the issue as to whether a will was the result of an insane delusion, conceived by testator towards his wife about the time of his mother's death, testimony of the wife that, while traveling to the mother's funeral on a train, the testator sat several seats behind his wife, and that every time she looked back at him he was "gazing" at her, was not inadmissible as being a "transaction" or "communication" with the testator. Lanham v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 635.

32. — Transactions between persons other than witnesses and persons subsequently deceased or incompetent.—A party to a suit against heirs claiming property through their deceased ancestor is precluded not only from testifying as to statements made to him by deceased, and to transactions between deceased and himself, but also as to any such statements or to transactions between the deceased and third persons; and this, although occurring at a time when the witness had no interest in such statements or transactions. Parks v. Caudle, 58 T. 216.

Wife held competent to testify that a deed to her deceased husband from his deceased mother was a gift. Mahon v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 24.

Proof of statements made by deceased to his wife and to plaintiff cannot be proven in a suit by the administrator. Anglin v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 827.

Where mortgage notes were given to plaintiff's husband, since deceased, in payment for a restaurant, sold while plaintiff and decedent were husband and wife, so that the notes and mortgage were presumably community property, and plaintiff sues, as owner of one-half of the community, to foreclose, proof by her of the execution of the mortgage was not subject to the objection that she was disqualified by reason of being an heir and representative of her deceased husband. Blair v. Breeding, 57 C. A. 147, 121 S. W. 869.

In an administrator's action to recover real property and rents thereon, testimony of one of the defendants showing that he had never delivered a deed to decedent, that a codefendant had paid the purchase money for the property, and that the deed to decedent was delivered to such third party did not relate to transactions by defendant with decedent, but solely to what decedent himself did as to the deed and to a transaction between defendant and his codefendant, and hence was competent. Williams v. Neill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 693.

33. — Transactions or communications between witness and agent competent to testify.—Testimony in regard to a conversation had with a guardian of a ward since deceased is not objectionable, when given by the party calling him, when it does not relate to any transaction with or statement by the ward. Davis v. Beall (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1086.

This article does not prevent a party suing on a contract made with an agent of a decedent from testifying to the transaction, where the agent is not incapacitated from testifying. Smith v. Olivarri (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 235.

This article cannot be extended so as to exclude testimony of plaintiff in a suit against an administrator as to statements made to him by the agent of the intestate relative to the sale shown by intestate's deed. Mounger v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1070.

34. — Admissions or other statements by person subsequently deceased.—Competency of witness as to transaction with decedent determined. Lumkins v. Coates (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 580.

On an issue of title, the warrantor of defendants is not incompetent to testify to declarations of plaintiff's ancestor, through whom they claim as heirs. Parker v. Nusbaumer, 21 C. A. 180, 50 S. W. 646.

Where one claims under sale of land by trustee, it is inadmissible for him to state that the beneficiary since deceased requested the trustee to sell the land to pay the debt. Gillaspie v. Murray, 27 C. A. 580, 66 S. W. 253.

The statute prohibits either party from testifying "as to any transaction with," as well as to any "statement" by, the testator or intestate. Sachse v. Loeb, 45 C. A. 536, 101 S. W. 451.

35. — Communications or Instruments in writing.—A defendant is not a competent witness to prove the loss and contents of a receipt alleged to have been given by the plaintiff's intestate (Garrison v. King's Administrator, 35 T. 183) or the loss of a deed (Howard v. Galbraith [Civ. App.] 30 S. W. 689).

A defendant in an action by an executor cannot prove the contents of a letter written by him to the deceased to show his acceptance of a deed made by the deceased. Blackman v. Shierman, 21 C. A. 517, 51 S. W. 886.

Where one sues the executors of his father's estate he cannot testify as to the purpose and intention of an instrument executed by him to his father during the latter's lifetime. Williams v. Emberson, 22 C. A. 522, 55 S. W. 601.

Letters written by a deceased person were not inadmissible in evidence under this article, it applying only to oral declarations. Hagelstein v. Blaschke (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 718.

36. — Books of account.—The statute cannot be avoided by reducing evidence to writing in the form of books. Hedges v. Williams, 26 C. A. 551, 64 S. W. 77.

In an action by an administrator of a cestui que trust for an accounting, the trustee's book of account was inadmissible, where he was required to prove its correctness by his own evidence. Watson v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 329.

37. Nature and effect of testimony.—The admission of the testimony of parties as to transactions with plaintiff's intestate is not reversible error, another witness whose competency is not questioned having testified to the same facts. Staley v. Hankla (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 20.

Where the defendant in a suit by an administrator against him is allowed to testify as to a transaction which he had with the deceased relative to the subject-matter of the suit, the case will be reversed, the claim that the judgment is supported by the uncontradicted and unimpeached evidence of other witnesses, not being so conclusively established as to render the ruling harmless, although the case was tried by the court without a jury. Baugh v. Geiselman, 23 C. A. 143, 55 S. W. 615.

The testimony of a witness as to the deceased signing a note as surety is prohibited by this article, but as there was no testimony to show that deceased signed the note other than as surety the testimony was harmless. Coutlett v. U. S. Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 819, 820.

In trespass to try title continued in the name of plaintiff's executor after her death against defendant's heirs and legal representatives, they were not prejudiced by the court permitting the executor to testify that in a casual conversation with his testatrix he heard her say something about the land in controversy, heard her talk about "her farm down there," and never heard her say anything about its belonging to her alleged cotenant, over an objection that it was a violation of this article. Yealock v. Yealock (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 842.

38. Effect of admission of evidence on behalf of adverse party.—When a plaintiff has died after his depositions have been taken, and the suit is prosecuted by his executor, the defendant may testify as to the acts and declarations of the testator about which plaintiff had testified by deposition read in evidence. Runnels v. Belden, 51 T. 48.

One against whom a judgment had been rendered on service of process by publication applied within proper time for a new trial, and obtained it, but after the former plaintiff's death, whose wife, as executrix, was made defendant. The deceased plaintiff had testified on the former trial, and his evidence was properly admitted on the second trial, although the defendant, who had been cited by publication, was not actually present in person or by counsel. Such evidence being admitted, the adverse party was also a competent witness. O'Neill v. Brown, 61 T. 34.

A defendant cannot introduce the depositions of the deceased plaintiff on file among the papers of the cause and then testify as to the transactions with the deceased mentioned in such depositions. Ivy v. Bondies (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 916.

The admission of plaintiff's testimony as to a transaction, objected to on the ground that it was a statement of a transaction with a deceased person, held not reversible error where the same facts were established by defendants. Clarke v. Adam, 30 C. A. 66, 69 S. W. 1016.

In an action against an executor for services rendered testator in which defendant's witness testified to a conversation with plaintiff, testimony by plaintiff which merely gave a different version of such conversation was admissible. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

39. Rebuttal of evidence on behalf of adverse party.—An administrator sued a distributee of an estate for money alleged to be assets, and in the defendant's possession. Another distributee testified, in behalf of the plaintiff, to admissions by the defendant of his possession of the money. Held, that defendant was a competent witness in his own behalf to deny having made such admissions. Garner v. Cleveland, 35 T. 74.

In an action against an executor for services to testator, in which defendant's witness testified to a conversation with plaintiff, in which plaintiff stated the terms of his contract with testator and the latter's compliance therewith, testimony by plaintiff which merely gave a different version of such conversation with the witness, but did not refer to a different conversation with him, was admissible. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

Evidence of a transaction with a decedent held inadmissible, notwithstanding evidence brought out by the adverse party. Austin v. Rupe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 547.

40. Effect of calling or examination as witness by adverse party.—In an action against legatees, held not erroneous to permit defendants to testify as to conversations with testator when they were called by plaintiff. Clark v. Clark, 21 C. A. 371, 51 S. W. 337.

Where plaintiff sues an executor on his testator's note, he is a competent witness when called by the defendant. Scott v. Menly (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 55; McKeon v. Roan (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 406.

Plaintiffs, as heirs of Louis Stahl, in a suit against Maria Stahl, surviving widow, took her ex parte deposition, which on their motion was quashed for misconduct in making her answers. Under the circumstances plaintiffs did not "call" Maria as a witness, so as to deprive them of the right to object to her testifying to statements of her deceased husband. Grieb v. Stahl, 101 T. 306, 107 S. W. 41.

Where plaintiff, on cross-examination, questioned defendant as to certain transactions by his deceased father, plaintiff cannot complain that defendant's testimony on direct examination relating to the same transactions was incompetent as being testimony by an heir relating to the transactions of a decedent. Edwards v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 914.

In an action on an instrument, certifying that defendant had received specified sums of money to loan for plaintiff's intestate, and that he had advanced to her specified sums, leaving a balance due her, the administrator asked defendant whether the instrument was in his handwriting, to which he answered it was. Thereupon defendant's counsel offered to prove that defendant had made a mistake in the instrument, and that he should have credited himself with a certain additional sum, which evidence was excluded as relating to a transaction between decedent and defendant. Held that, notwithstanding the instrument was a "transaction with decedent" within this article, yet defendant, having been called by the administrator to testify to a part of the transaction, should have been permitted to testify to the whole of it. Watson v. Dodson, 57 C. A. 32, 121 S. W. 209.

Where a widow was cross-examined as to a transaction with her husband, it was competent for her, on redirect examination, to repeat or explain or qualify her testimony as against an objection that she was incompetent so to testify. Reyes v. Escalera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

41. Objections to admissibility, and exclusion.—When evidence has been given under this article, and its inadmissibility appears on cross-examination, it should be excluded. Branch v. Makeig, 28 S. W. 1050, 9 C. A. 399.

An objection made in the assignment of error that certain testimony was a statement by a deceased person and prohibited by this article cannot be considered on appeal when the objection was not made in the trial court. Boston v. McMenemy, 29 C. A. 272, 68 S. W. 203.

An objection to all of the testimony of a witness will be disregarded where a part of it is admissible. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

42. Determination as to admissibility.—In an action against an executor for services rendered testator, in which defendant's witness testified to a conversation with plaintiff, whether plaintiff's testimony that he had no such conversation with the witness but made other and different statements to him referred to a different conversation than that testified to by the witness held for the trial court's determination under the circumstances. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

Art. 3691. [2303] [2249] Religious opinions, etc., do not disqualify.—No person shall be incompetent to testify on account of his religious opinions, or for want of any religious belief. [Const., art. 1, sec. 5.]

Form of oath.—See notes under Art. 9.

Art. 3692. [2304] [2250] Printed statutes evidence, when.—The printed statute books of this state, of the United States, of the District of Columbia, or of any state or territory of the United States, or of any foreign government purporting to have been printed under the authority thereof, shall be received as evidence of the acts and resolutions therein contained. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 3712.]

Application in general.—When a code or statutes of another state have been published by authority, and purport to have been so published, a reprint of such book is admissible in evidence, without other evidence of its sanction by the government of the state. Ellis v. Wiley, 17 T. 134.

The printed statute book of another state is admissible in evidence when properly authenticated. Texas Express Co. v. Beissner, 1 App. C. C. § 572; Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 280. This includes only books purporting to have been printed by state authority, and does not embrace private or unofficial publications. Martin v. Payne, 11 T. 292.

A publication, made by statute of a territory presumptive evidence of the laws of that territory, is admissible in evidence in this state to prove a statute of the territory. Beard v. State, 47 Cr. R. 183, 83 S. W. 824.

A pamphlet held not to purport to have been printed under authority of another state, so as to be admissible as evidence of its laws. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Blasingame, 38 C. A. 402, 85 S. W. 819.

The decisions of the supreme court of a state are not admissible to prove the laws of that state. Proof is to be made by the introduction of the statute books of the state. A., T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smythe, 55 C. A. 557, 119 S. W. 896.

Mode of authentication.—The acts of the legislature of any state or territory, or of any country subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, may be authenticated by having the seals of such state, territory or country affixed thereto. R. S. U. S. § 905; Moseby v. Burrow, 52 T. 396. This does not preclude the states from establishing other modes of authentication or proof. Martin v. Payne, 11 T. 292.

The certificate of the secretary of state of another state attached to what purports to be a copy of a legislative act of this state, and authenticated by the great seal of state, which declares that the copy is "an exact transcript of an act of the general assembly," etc., "as the same appears of record on page 180 of the official published acts of that year, now in my office," was properly admitted in evidence to prove the legislative act. Harvey v. Cummings, 68 T. 599, 5 S. W. 513.

To recognize printed "regulations of railroads in and for the republic of Mexico" as the laws of Mexico, they must purport to have been printed under the authority thereof. Mexico Nat. Ry. Co. v. Ware (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 344.

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12, §§ 27, 28, 73.

Where on appeal it appeared that the court admitted the statutes of another state in evidence, it will be presumed, where the bill of exceptions does not show the contrary, that the volume was published by authority of such other state, and was admissible under this article. Blethen v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 571.

Construction of laws.—See notes under Title 81, Chapter 3.

Opinion evidence as to foreign laws.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 36, § 93.

Art. 3693. [2305] [2251] Certified copies of acts, etc., evidence.
—A certified copy under the hand and seal of the secretary of state of this state, of any act or resolution contained in any of such printed statute books deposited in his office, or of any law or bill, public or private, deposited in his office in accordance with law, shall be received as evidence thereof. [Id.]

Charter of corporation.—In an action against a railroad company for breach of a construction contract, a copy of the company's charter certified to by the secretary of the territory which granted it was properly admitted in evidence. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Harris & Liebman (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 145.

Judicial notice.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 15.

Best and secondary evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rules 9–11.

Art. 3694. [2306] [2252] Copies of records of public officers and courts to be prima facie evidence.—Copies of the records of all public officers and courts of this state, certified to under the hand, and seal of there be one, of the lawful possessor of such records, shall be admitted as evidence in all cases where the records themselves would be admissible; translated copies of all records in the land office, certified to under the hand of the translator, and the commissioner of the general land office, attested with the seal of said office, shall be prima facie evidence in all cases where the original records would be evidence. [Id. P. D. 3715.]

See, also, notes under Arts. 82, 3696.

Documents of record in general.—Certified copies of the record of officers of district and county surveyors are admissible to show by what certificate a given survey was made. Stout v. Taul, 71 T. 438, 9 S. W. 329.

Only such documents as are required or permitted by law to be filed in a public office, so as to constitute them archives or records, can be proved by certified copy. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson, 155 S. W. 1176.

Legal proceedings in general.—The record of legal proceedings competent evidence. Morris v. Gaines, 82 T. 255, 17 S. W. 538.

Records of clerk of court.—Certificate of clerk of court held sufficient to make a transcript of proceedings in a certain estate admissible in evidence. O'Connor v. Vineyard (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 55.

The district clerk can give a certified copy of entry in notarial record deposited in his office, and such copy is admissible in evidence. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 55 S. W. 401.

A certificate of the clerk of a county court that at a certain time he had indexed a certain judgment record is not competent evidence of such indexing. Lindsey v. State, 27 C. A. 540, 66 S. W. 332.

A county clerk's certificate of the record of an abstract of a judgment was not inadmissible in evidence because the page of the record of the judgment was not given therein. Weinert v. Simmang, 29 C. A. 435, 68 S. W. 1011.

Article 1748, authorizes clerks of the county court to appoint deputies, and requires such deputation to be recorded in the office of the clerk and deposited with the clerk of the district court; while articles 3687–3713 authorize such record, and copies thereof, to be introduced in evidence. Article 2287 declares that each justice of the peace shall be ex officio notary public; articles 9–14 authorizing such officials to administer oaths and take affidavits. Held that, where a county clerk testified that he had appointed another as deputy, but that the deputation had been mislaid, a record of such deputation, which was acknowledged before a justice of the peace, is admissible in evidence. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 645.

Probate record.—The records of courts of probate come within the provisions of this statute. Houze v. Houze, 16 T. 600; Abercrombie v. Stillman, 77 T. 589, 14 S. W. 196.

Certified copies of probate records, including inventories, etc., are admissible in evidence. Collins v. Ball, 82 T. 259, 17 S. W. 614, 27 Am. St. Rep. 877.

Seal.—The clerk's certificate to copies of records of the district court must be authenticated by the seal of the district court. McCarty v. Burtis, 22 S. W. 422, 3 C. A. 439.

Order of commissioners' court.—In prosecutions under local option law it is proper to admit certified copies of the order of the commissioners' court. Johnson v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 968.

Pleadings.—Admissibility of pleadings in general, see notes under Art. 3687.

Certified copies of pleadings in the courts of Texas, under the hand and seal of the custodians of the records of the courts in which the pleadings were filed, are admissible in evidence under this statute. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 899.

Judgment.—It is not an objection to the copy of a judgment that the transcript does not show that the court by which the judgment was rendered convened, and that a judge presided, or that it did not have the signature of the presiding judge, or that it failed to show that the minutes of the court of the term at which the judgment was rendered had been signed by the judge. Mitchusson v. Wadsworth, 1 App. C. C. § 976.

A copy of a judgment which did not show on its face by what court it was rendered had attached to it a certificate of the clerk of a court that it was a copy of an order of court "as the same appears of record in my office in records of court minutes." Held sufficient. King v. Duke (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 335; Halbert v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1102; National Bank v. Bryan, 12 C. A. 673, 34 S. W. 451.

A judgment of a justice of the peace, certified to by the officers of the circuit court is not admissible. I. B. Rosenthal Millinery Co. v. Lennox (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 401.

Article 3700 applies exclusively to instruments between private parties, such as deeds, bills of sale, deeds of trust, etc., and a divorce decree contained in the minutes of the same court in which accused was being tried for murder was admissible under this article without the judgment or a copy having been filed with the record in such prosecution and notice given to accused. Clayton v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 119.

In an action to cancel a conveyance on the ground of the grantor's insanity, a document purporting to be a judgment of the county court duly certified by the clerk thereof as a correct copy of the order entered in the lunacy case held admissible. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 290.

Records of land office.—A translated copy of a Spanish title in the general land office, certified by the translator, is admissible upon the certificate of the commissioner that the person making the aforesaid certificate is a Spanish translator. Spillars v. Curry, 10 T. 143; Swift v. Herrera, 9 T. 263.

Certified copy from the general land office of a grant of land issued in 1835, admissible in evidence without accounting for the testimonio. Shepard v. Harrison, 54 T. 96; Van Sickle v. Catlett, 75 T. 404, 13 S. W. 31.

The translation of an archive in the general land office, made by the Spanish translator and attached to his deposition as an exhibit, with his certificate of its correctness, is admissible in evidence, in connection with his testimony, showing his ability to read and write the Spanish language, and that he attached the exhibit as a translation of the archive Spanish paper. Houston v. Blythe, 60 T. 506.

The archives in the general land office showing the proceedings of the board of land commissioners are competent to show to whom and upon what proof headright certificates were granted. McNeal v. O'Connor, 79 T. 227, 14 S. W. 1058.

An order from the grantee of a land certificate to the clerk of the county land board, dated February 25, 1838, directing the disposition to be made of the certificate, is not an archive of which a certified copy can be given. Lott v. King, 79 T. 292, 15 S. W. 231.

Documents evidencing acts of officers of the Spanish government in making grants of land, in the adjustment of boundaries of lands granted, ascertainment of unappropriated lands and like matters pertaining to the lands on the east side of the Rio Grande, and being archives at Gerrero, and properly reported and filed in the general land office, are archives therein. Downing v. Diaz, 80 T. 436, 16 S. W. 49.

The records of patents in the general land office stand in the same position and have equal dignity and the same effect as the original patent delivered to the grantees, and a certified copy of such a patent from those records is primary evidence of its issue. Ney v. Mumme, 66 T. 268, 17 S. W. 407. The certified copy of a will as evidence is of equal dignity with the original. Hickman v. Gillum, 66 T. 314, 1 S. W. 339.

An old map in the general land office designating lots at the seat of government is a record of that office. Travis County v. Christian (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 119.

Copies of transfers on land certificates filed in the general land office are admissible. Halbert v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1102.

The voluntary affidavit of a county surveyor, acting unofficially, as to the location of lines of old surveys, filed in the general land office, does not become an archive, so that it can be authenticated by the commissioner, and become thereby admissible as declarations of the affiant when dead. Daniels v. Fitzhugh, 13 C. A. 300, 35 S. W. 33.

Indorsements on a certified copy of a land certificate, being certified as correct copies of the indorsements on the original, are admissible. Pendleton v. Shaw, 18 C. A. 439, 44 S. W. 1002.

Certified copy from general land office of original grant, reciting that map of land is attached, but containing no map nor accounting for its absence, is sufficient, when surveyor's field notes referred to in grant as part of description fully identify land. Hooks v. Colley, 22 C. A. 1, 53 S. W. 56.

In an action concerning public school lands, the original list of classified and appraised lands in the county, sent to the county clerk by the commissioner of the general land office, held admissible. Thompson v. Autry (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 47.

In an action involving a conflict between surveys of state lands, a map compiled and published by the land office was admissible to identify the location of the surveys. Barrow v. Gridley, 25 C. A. 13, 59 S. W. 913.

In an action involving a conflict between state surveys, the affidavit of the surveyor, explanatory of his field notes and filed in the land office, was not admissible as a public record. Id.

In trespass to try title to school lands, certified copy of classification and appraisal held admissible. McBane v. Angle, 29 C. A. 594, 69 S. W. 433.

Where a power of attorney with reference to the sale of lands was recorded in a county in which none of the land was situated, a copy of the record filed in the land office did not become an archive of that office. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 894.

A certified copy of waiver of lease on file in the general land office which was neither acknowledged nor had been recorded was admissible in evidence, because it was a paper required or permitted to be filed in the general land office. Trevey v. Lowrie, 33 C. A. 606, 78 S. W. 19.

A copy of the records in the land office if proved by a competent witness, even though not connected with the land office, to be a true copy is admissible in evidence. It need not be a certified copy. Smithers v. Lowrance, 35 C. A. 25, 79 S. W. 1089.

The fact that transfers of school land had become archives of the general land office held sufficient to authorize the introduction of certified copies thereof in evidence. Tolleson v. Wagner, 35 C. A. 577, 80 S. W. 846.

Examined copies of appraisal and classification records in the general land office held admissible in evidence. Smithers v. Lowrance, 100 T. 77, 93 S. W. 1064.

In an action for the recovery of school land, lease thereof held admissible in evidence. Trimble v. Burroughs, 41 C. A. 554, 95 S. W. 614.

A notice card sent by the land commissioner to a purchaser of land that his application has been accepted is not a document or certificate certified and attested in the manner required by law and is not admissible in evidence. Slaughter v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 898.

Copies of documents which were archives of the general land office held properly admitted in evidence. Keith v. Guedry (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 392.

Copies of letters of the land commissioner, preserved in the ordinary way, are copies of records of the land office. McKee v. West, 55 C. A. 460, 118 S. W. 1135.

In an action by a vendee against his vendor to recover a payment made on land, the sale of which to defendant by the state was claimed to have been forfeited, a certified copy of an award by the commissioner of the land office to a third party made subsequent to the sale by defendant to plaintiff held admissible, and to raise the presumption that the first sale had been forfeited before the second was made. Slaughter v. Cooper, 56 C. A. 169, 121 S. W. 173.

In view of Arts. 82 and 3696, held, that sketches and plats made in the general land office from maps of H. county were admissible under this article in a boundary line dispute concerning land located therein, though the maps were not made contemporaneously with the date of location of the different surveys. Myers v. Moody (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 920.

An indorsement made on an original grant of land on file in the general land office held an archive of the office, rendering a certified copy of the indorsement admissible in evidence. Davidson v. Ryle, 103 T. 209, 124 S. W. 616, 125 S. W. 881.

In view of Arts. 3695 and 3696, held, that a certified copy from the general land office of memoranda made upon the file wrapper, covering the papers relating to a certain land certificate and survey, and showing the various steps taken by the land commissioner as to the issuance of the certificate, survey, and patent, was admissible in evidence in trespass to try title, so far as material and relevant; but a certified copy from the general land office of a letter from the transferee of a certificate to the land commissioner, inclosing surveys and the deed of transfer, and referring to the execution of a transfer by another, was not admissible under this article, not being an archive of the land office. Allen v. Clearman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1140.

Deed.—A certified copy of a deed, the authentication of which is insufficient to entitle it to registration, is inadmissible, because the thing copied is not a record of a public officer. Heintz v. Thayer, 92 T. 658, 50 S. W. 929.

A deed improperly acknowledged and transcribed on the records can be proven as at common law, but not by a certified copy. Heintz v. Thayer, 92 T. 658, 51 S. W. 640.

Notarial record.—The authority of district clerk to give certified copy of notarial record deposited in his office, and the admissibility in evidence of such copy is clear. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 55 S. W. 401.

Examined copy.—Every (public) document which a party has the right to inspect may be proved by a duly authenticated copy, and where proof is by a copy, an examined copy duly made and sworn to by any competent witness is always admissible. Smithers v. Lowrance, 35 C. A. 25, 79 S. W. 1088.

Statement of facts.—A statement of facts filed in the clerk's office is not a record of his office such as he can authenticate a copy of for use in an appellate court. The law provides that the original statement of facts and not a copy must be sent up with the transcript. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 126.

Filed papers.—Where transfers of leases are filed in the land office without being acknowledged or recorded in the county where the land lies, which the law authorizes to be done, they become records of the office and certified copies of them are admissible in evidence. McKee v. West, 55 C. A. 460, 118 S. W. 1136.

Admissibility in federal court.—The federal courts do not require the certificate of a judge of a state court that the attestation of the clerk thereof is in due form. Edwards v. Smith (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1161.

Charter of corporation.—Under this article and Art. 3696, a certified copy of a certificate of authority issued by the secretary of state to an amusement company is properly received in evidence, in all cases in which the original is admissible. Gould v. State, 61 Cr. R. 195, 134 S. W. 695.

In an action for the price of goods, where defendant claimed that he had agreed with the seller to transfer the goods to the C. Company, a copartnership, and offered testimony that it was still a copartnership, the certified copy of the charter of the company and the affidavits of its incorporators were admissible to show that it was not a partnership, but a corporation. Holt & Smith v. Texas Moline Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 215.

Bonds.—In view of Art. 3710, held that, in the absence of an affidavit denying the execution of a supersedeas bond filed in another county, in an action for breach thereof, the original bond was admissible in evidence, and plaintiff was not required to prove it by a certified copy under this article. Garrett v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 505.

Certified copy of chattel mortgage.—See notes under Art. 5657.

Art. 3695. [2307] [2252a] Record of surveys, evidence.—The county surveyor of the several counties of this state shall record in a well-bound book all the surveys in the county or district for which he was elected, with plats thereof that he may make, whether private or official; and certified copies of such record, under the official signature of the surveyor, may be used in evidence in any of the courts of this state. [Acts 1880, p. 70.]

Surveys.—Record of survey and field notes made under a headright held admissible, in trespass to try title, in aid of ancient instrument conveying headright. Yeary v. Crenshaw, 30 C. A. 399, 70 S. W. 579.

A certified copy of a resurvey made by the district surveyor of a county is admissible in evidence as a surveyor is required to keep copies of all surveys and plats in his office. Sullivan v. Soils, 52 C. A. 464, 114 S. W. 461.

In view of this article and Art. 3694, held, that a certified copy from the general land office of memoranda made upon the file wrapper, covering the papers relating to a certain land certificate and survey, and showing the various steps taken by the land commissioner as to the issuance of the certificate, survey, and patent, was admissible in evidence in trespass to try title, so far as material and relevant; but a certified copy from the general land office of a letter from the transferee of a certificate to the land commissioner, inclosing surveys and the deed of transfer, and referring to the execution of a transfer by another, was not admissible under Art. 3694, not being an archive of the land office. Allen v. Clearman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1140.

Art. 3696. [2308] [2253] Copies and certificates from certain officers are evidence.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state, attorney general, commissioner of the general land office, comptroller, treasurer, adjutant general, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of insurance and banking, and state librarian, to furnish any person who may apply for the same with a copy of any paper, document or record in their respective offices, and also to give certificates, attested by the seal of their respective offices, certifying to any fact or facts contained in the papers, documents or records of their offices, to any person applying for the same; and the same shall be received in evidence in all cases in which the originals would be evidence. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 3806.]

Application of article.—See, also, notes under Arts. 82, 3694.

This article applies only to such papers as are required or permitted by law to be filed in the several offices therein named. Rogers v. Pettus, 80 T. 425, 15 S. W. 1093.

Commissioner of land office.—A certificate of the commissioner of the general land office was offered in evidence stating that there was on file in his office a duly authenticated transfer of a bounty warrant, gave names, description of certificate, etc. Held, that the transfer of a land certificate could not be shown in this manner. Smithwick v. Andrews, 24 T. 488. See Howard v. McKenzie, 54 T. 170, 189.

A certified copy of the records of the general land office is higher evidence than the testimony of the commissioner as to their contents. Stafford v. King, 30 T. 257, 94 Am. Dec. 304; Meyer v. Hale (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 990.

The certificate must be confined to a statement of the facts contained in the records, and cannot state what has not been done in the general land office, or state a conclusion from certain assumed premises. Buford v. Bostick, 58 T. 63; West v. El Campo L. Co. (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 424.

A certified copy of a land certificate, made by the commissioner of the general land office, the originals being on file in his office, as a link in the chain of title to a survey of land which has been properly returned to that office is admissible in evidence. Holmes v. Anderson, 59 T. 481; Hanrick v. Cavanaugh, 60 T. 1; Eakin v. Shumaker, 12 T. 51.

Certificate of the land office commissioner, not a copy of any paper recorded in the office nor a statement of fact contained in any such paper, is not admissible. Fisher v. Ullmann, 22 S. W. 523, 3 C. A. 322.

A certificate of the land commissioner that the sections were classified as "dry grazing land and appraised at one dollar per acre under act of 1897 on March 23, 1899, and placed on the market the same day by Geo. W. Finger, commissioner of the general land office, state of Texas," is sufficient to prove prima facie that the commissioner of the general land office has had reclassified and reapproved the sections and had notified the county clerk of the proper county in writing, of such action, as the law required him to do. White v. Pyron (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 83.

Certificate of land commissioner as to condition of title to certain land held inadmissible in evidence in trespass to try title. Hamilton v. McAuley, 27 C. A. 256, 65 S. W. 205.

If a paper has become an archive of the land commissioner's office under Art. 5447, the commissioner is authorized to give copy thereof which is receivable with like effect as would have been the original. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68 S. W. 704, 705.

In trespass to try title to land patented by the state, a certified copy of the patentee's receipt for the payment held not objectionable as constituting no evidence of right to the land. Robles v. Cooksey (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 584.

A certified copy by the commissioner of the general land office of a certified copy of a judgment of the district court rendered in favor of one against others for title and possession of section of school land is admissible in evidence, as being a paper relating to sales of land records of the general land office. Trevey v. Lowrie, 33 C. A. 606, 78 S. W. 18.

One of the material issues on the trial was whether appellee was an actual settler on his home section at time of the award to him of the section in controversy. The certificate of the land commissioner to the effect that the required proof of three years' occupancy had been filed in the land office and that the same was deemed "sufficient" was inadmissible in evidence, because the appellant's application to purchase had been made prior to such proof and the issuance of the certificate, and he was not concluded by the certificate on the issue of appellee's actual settlement. White v. Watson, 34 C. A. 169, 78 S. W. 237.

In trespass to try title, in which plaintiff claimed under a transfer of a headright certificate, a certified copy of an affidavit by a stranger to the action that he was the owner of the certificate held inadmissible. Simmonds v. Simmonds, 35 C. A. 151, 79 S. W. 630.

A declaration canceling a lease under the hand and seal of the land commissioner and filed in his office is a "paper document or record" in the land office under this article. Bradford v. Brown, 37 C. A. 323, 84 S. W. 392.

In trespass to try title to certain land, held error to admit in evidence a part of a list of school lands certified by the commissioner of general land office, without admitting the whole list. Knapp v. Patterson, 99 T. 400, 90 S. W. 163.

This article never intended to make a copy of a letter finding its way into the land office evidence against the person whose name is signed to it, on the mere certificate of the commissioner that such letter is on file in his office, when the original itself, if offered, would not be admissible without proof that it had been written by the person whose name is signed to it. Flynt v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 865.

Certificate of the commissioner of general land office as to classification of section of school land as grazing land, held admissible in evidence. Smithers v. Lowrance, 100 T. 77, 93 S. W. 1064.

A certified copy of a letter relating to land matters, the original of which the commissioner is required to keep on file as a record or archive of the land office, is properly admissible in evidence. Trimble v. Burroughs, 41 C. A. 554, 95 S. W. 615.

A certificate of the commissioner of the general land office, from which it does not appear that the fact that a map was made from actual surveys is shown by any record in the land office, held not admissible as evidence of that fact. Wilkins v. Clawson, 50 C. A. 82, 110 S. W. 103.

Under this article and Arts. 82 and 3694, held, that sketches and plats made in the general land office from maps of H. county were admissible in a boundary line dispute concerning land located therein, though the maps were not made contemporaneously with the date of location of the different surveys. Myers v. Moody (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 920.

In trespass to try title, a certified copy of a letter held admissible as a circumstance tending to show the transfer of a certificate covering the land in controversy from the patentee to another, through whom defendants claimed. Id.

In view of this article and Arts. 3694 and 3695, held, that a certified copy from the general land office of memoranda made upon the file wrapper, covering the papers relating to a certain land certificate and survey, and showing the various steps taken by the land commissioner as to the issuance of the certificate, survey, and patent, was admissible in evidence in trespass to try title, so far as material and relevant; but a certified copy from the general land office of a letter from the transferee of a certificate to the land commissioner, inclosing surveys and the deed of transfer, and referring to the execution of a transfer by another, was not admissible under Art. 3694, not being an archive of the land office. Allen v. Clearman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1140.

A land office map, which appeared to be an archive of the land office and which was relevant, was not subject to the objections that it was res inter alios acta, not proven to be correct, nor how made, or from what data. Haile v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1088.

The purposes of this article are to require the commissioner of the general land office to certify to the correctness of records and to certify to facts contained in the records, and a certificate stating facts as within the knowledge of the commissioner gained from some other source than the records of his office and embracing his conclusions from an examination of the records is inadmissible, but a certificate disclosing facts contained in the records of his office is admissible. Talley v. Lamar County, 104 T. 295, 137 S. W. 1125.

In view of Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, art. 4124, held, that a letter of a claimant of land under a certificate, protesting against the floating of the certificate on other land so far as it affected the land located and awarded to him, but not objecting to the floating of the balance of the certificate, constituted an "archive" of the land commissioner's office so that a certified copy of the same was admissible as provided by this article. Robertson v. Brothers (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 657.

A certified copy of an affidavit and other instruments, on which a duplicate headright certificate was issued by the land department, held inadmissible to show the loss of the original and that the affiant was the owner thereof at the time the proceedings were taken. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

Copy from copy.—Under ordinary circumstances, and under former decisions, copies taken from copies are inadmissible. But in view of more than a century's possession and continuous assertion of title under claim of right, such as the originals of the copies would evidence, the admission of such remote copies cannot be regarded as error. Von Rosenberg v. Haynes, 85 T. 357, 20 S. W. 143.

Ex parte certificate.—An ex parte certificate as to facts not existing is not admissible in evidence. Myers v. Jones, 23 S. W. 562, 4 C. A. 330.

What constitutes fact.—An opinion of the commissioner of the general land office as to the validity of a grant on file in that office is not a fact which can be certified under this article. Gaither v. Hanrick, 69 T. 92, 6 S. W. 619.

Comptroller of state.—A certificate from the comptroller of the state showing what property of a citizen was rendered for taxes for specified years, "as shown by the records" of a county named in the certificate, is one which he is authorized to make, and is admissible in evidence to prove the facts so certified to. Holmes v. Coryell, 58 T. 680.

The comptroller's certificate of the value of the property in a county taken from the assessment rolls thereof which are required to be filed in his office is admissible to prove the assessed value of the different parts of the county in a suit by the parent county brought to fix the liability of a county which has been carved out of the parent county for certain outstanding bonded indebtedness of the parent county. Brewster County v. Presidio County, 19 C. A. 638, 48 S. W. 213.

In trespass to try title, the comptroller's certificate showing rendition of the land for taxes to defendants, and that it was not rendered by plaintiff or those under whom she claims, is admissible to prove ownership. Hirsch v. Patton, 49 C. A. 499, 108 S. W. 1015.

Redemption certificates from the office of the comptroller of the state, duly authenticated, purporting to show the amount of costs paid, were admissible in evidence under this article and Art. 3708. Tyner & Knudson v. Tom (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 850.

State treasurer.—A certificate of the state treasurer which in substance states that the records of his office show that the land commissioner had deposited in his office a certain draft as payment in full for certain public land in A. county for account of O. H. T. and showing application of money is admissible under this article. Robles v. Cooksey (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 586.

The statement of a county treasurer, kept in the office of the state treasurer, and certified by him to be correct, is admissible in evidence. Harper v. Marlon County, 33 C. A. 653, 77 S. W. 1044.

Certified copy from state treasurer's office of notice from general land commissioner to state treasurer of cancellation of lease of school land held inadmissible in evidence. Trimble v. Burroughs, 41 C. A. 554, 95 S. W. 614.

A certified copy of a record of the state treasurer's office is admissible in evidence as original, where the original instrument itself would be admissible. Zettlemeyer v. Shuler, 52 C. A. 648, 115 S. W. 79.

Adjutant general.—A certified copy by the adjutant general of an instrument on file in his office purporting to be the muster roll of Fannin's command is admissible under this article in connection with other evidence, as tending to show that one under whom title is claimed was the man whose name appears on said muster roll. Allen v. Halstead, 39 C. A. 324, 87 S. W. 756.

Secretary of state.—A sworn copy of the records in the office of the secretary of state, showing a forfeiture of the franchise of a corporation, is sufficient to prove the facts. Smith v. Briggs-Weaver Machinery Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 954.

Under this article and Art. 3694, a certified copy of a certificate of authority issued by the secretary of state to an amusement company is properly received in evidence, in all cases in which the original is admissible. Gould v. State, 61 Cr. R. 195, 134 S. W. 695.

Commissioner of insurance and banking.—A bond of defendant, insuring the risk of a surety on the bond of a foreign insurance company, filed in the insurance department to enable such insurance company to do business in Texas, held a mere common-law obligation not required by law to be filed in that department, and hence could not be proved by a certified copy thereof. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson, 155 S. W. 1176.

Art. 3697. [2309] [2254] Notarial acts and copies thereof are evidence.—All declarations and protests made, and acknowledgments taken, by notaries public, and certified copies of their records and official papers, shall be received as evidence of the facts therein stated in all the courts of this state. [Act June 24, 1876, p. 30, sec. 9. P. D. 4697.]

Certification by county clerk.—See Art. 6013.

Copies of records.—A notarial copy of a conveyance of land in Texas, and made before a notary public in Louisiana in accordance with the form and mode usual in that state, the original being entered in the notary's book and signed by the parties and the notary, although proved and recorded in the county where the land lies, is not admissible as a recorded instrument. Frost v. Wolf, 77 T. 455, 14 S. W. 440, 19 Am. St. Rep. 761.

An act of sale for land in Texas granted April 13, 1835, was made January 5, 1837, in Louisiana. The conveyance having been attacked for forgery, two copies of the instrument, made February 6, 1837, and June 14, 1886, were produced in evidence, the latter as an authenticated copy and as an examined copy of a record of a public officer of another state. It was shown that the notary before whom the act of sale was made and the witnesses were dead. The act of sale was found in a book of record kept according to the laws of that state. The copy made in 1837 corresponded with the original. This copy was recorded in Jefferson county September 10, 1851. The second copy was certified by the notary in charge of the original book, and it was compared with the original and proved to be correct by witnesses knowing all the signatures to the act except that of the grantor. It was held that both copies were competent evidence. Smith v. Gillum, 80 T. 120, 15 S. W. 794.

A notary's record is competent to show that a lost deed was signed and acknowledged. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 55 S. W. 399.

Certificate.—Notary public's certificate evidence sufficient to fix the liability of an indorser, etc. Munzeshelmer v. Allen, 3 App. C. C. § 55.

The caption of a notarial certificate recited that he was a notary of the county of R. The signature and seal showed that he was a notary of B. county. It was held that the latter controlled, and the registration in the proper county was valid. Alexander v. Houghton, 26 S. W. 937, 86 T. 702.

Art. 3698. [2310] [2255] In suits against delinquent officers, transcript from comptroller's office is evidence.—In suits by the state against any officer or agent thereof, on account of any delinquency or failure to pay to the state any money, a transcript from the papers, books, records and proceedings of the office of comptroller of public accounts, purporting to contain a true statement of accounts between the state and such party, authenticated under the seal of said office, shall be admitted as prima facie evidence; and the court trying the cause may thereupon render judgment accordingly; and all copies of bonds, contracts or other papers relating to, or connected with, any account between the state and an individual, sued as aforesaid, when certified by the comptroller of public accounts to be true copies of the originals on file in said office, and authenticated under the seal of said office, may be annexed to such transcript and shall be entitled to the same degree of credit that would be due to the original papers if produced and proved in court; but, when such suit is brought upon a bond or other written instrument, and the defendant shall by plea under oath deny the execution of such instrument, the court shall require the production and proof thereof. [Act Feb. 8, 1861, p. 14. P. D. 3704.]

Art. 3699. [2311] [2256] Copies of certain instruments prior to 1837 are evidence.—Copies of all conveyances and other instruments of writing between private individuals, which were filed in the office of any alcalde or judge in Texas previous to the first Monday in February, 1837, shall be admissible in evidence, and shall have the same force and effect as the originals thereof; provided, such copies are certified under the hand and official seal of the officer with whom the originals are now deposited. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 91. P. D. 3717.]

Time of recording.—An act of sale of one league of land was passed before the alcalde of the municipality of Austin in 1832, with three assisting witnesses. In August, 1837, the execution of the instrument was proven by one of the subscribing witnesses, and the signature of another of the subscribing witnesses was also proven. The county clerk of Austin county in 1851 certified to the correctness of copy of the foregoing deed on file in his office, and that he was the proper keeper of conveyances and other instruments of writing between private individuals which were filed in the office of the alcalde or judge of Austin's first colony. Held, that the copy was admissible in evidence. Hubert v. Bartlett, 9 T. 97.

A deed executed before a judge of the first instance on the 25th of October, 1834, was recorded on the 2d of June, 1841, without having been proven for record. Held, that a copy from the record was not admissible in evidence. Holliday v. Cromwell, 26 T. 188.

The signature of instrumental witnesses is not essential to the authenticity of an instrument conveying land, executed September 1, 1830. Martin v. Parker, 26 T. 253.

Power of attorney.—A power of attorney executed in Mexico in 1833 before a notary, held duly proven by the following testimony: 1. A certified copy of the act made by a notary, who certified that he was successor to the original notary before whom the act was made, and his records. 2. Certificate of three notaries to the genuineness of the signature and seal of the certifying notary. 3. The certificate and seal of the governor of the federal district of Mexico, which was verified by the certificate of the proper secretary of the department of foreign relations of the national government of Mexico, under the seal of that department. Williams v. Conger, 49 T. 582.

Necessity for accounting for copy of original.—The certified copy of an act of sale executed under the requirements of the civil law and deposited as an archive in the office of the county clerk of the county in which the land was situate, in 1835, is evidence, without accounting for the copy of the original usually given to the purchaser as evidence of title. Van Sickle v. Catlett, 75 T. 404, 13 S. W. 31.

Location of land.—The clerk of the county court can give a certified copy of an original act of sale executed November 23, 1836, which was in his possession. But a copy from the records of the original instrument recorded in a county in which the land is not located is not admissible in evidence. Broxson v. McDougal, 63 T. 193, citing Hutchings v. Bacon, 46 T. 415; State v. Cardinas, 47 T. 250.

Art. 3700. [2312] [2257] Recorded instruments admitted in evidence without proof, when.—Every instrument of writing which is permitted or required by law to be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court, and which has been, or hereafter may be, so recorded, after being proved or acknowledged in the manner provided by the laws of this state in force at the time of its registration, or at the time it was proved or acknowledged, or every instrument which has been, or hereafter may be, actually recorded for a period of ten years in the book used by said clerk for the recording of such instruments, whether proved or acknowledged in such manner or not, shall be admitted as evidence in any suit in this state without the necessity of proving its execution, provided, no claim adverse or inconsistent to the one evidenced by such instrument shall have been asserted during that ten years, provided, that the party to give such instrument in evidence shall file the same among the papers of the suit in which he proposes to use it at least three days before the commencement of the trial of such suit, and give notice of such filing to the opposite party or his attorney of record; and unless such opposite party, or some other person for him, shall, within three days before the trial of the cause, file an affidavit stating that he believes such instrument of writing to be forged. And, whenever any party to a suit shall file among the papers of the cause an affidavit stating that any instrument of writing, recorded as aforesaid, has been lost, or that he can not procure the original, a certified copy of the record of any such instrument shall be admitted in evidence in like manner as the original could be. And after such instrument shall have been actually recorded as herein provided for a period of ten years, it shall be no objection to the admission of same, or a certified copy thereof, as evidence, that the certificate of the officer, who took such proof or acknowledgment, is not in form or substance such as required by the laws of this state; and said instrument shall be given the same effect as if it were not so defective. [Acts 1846, p. 387. Acts 1907, p. 308. P. D. 3716.]

Cited, Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709 (dissenting opinion); Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

Historical.—By the act of January 19, 1839 (3d Cong. p. 47; 1 Early Laws, art. 593), copies of deeds, etc., when the originals remain in the public archives, and were executed in conformity with the laws existing at their dates, duly certified by the proper officers, were admitted to record in the county where the land lay.

Construction of "three days."—The words "within three days before the trial of the cause," used in the statute, mean "at least three days before the trial," and should be so read. Hammond v. Connolly, 63 T. 62.

Application of article in general.—This act was applicable only to copies of instruments which at the date of the act remained in the public archives, which upon authentication by the public officers in charge of them could be recorded, and this section did not permit instruments then in private hands to be recorded on the faith of certificates made by officers of the preceding government. Lambert v. Weir, 27 T. 359; Wood v. Welder, 42 T. 396.

Statutes in regard to admission of copies of records or written instruments held to apply only to those certified to by the clerks of the county courts of this state. Halliday v. Lambright, 29 C. A. 226, 68 S. W. 712.

This article applies in all cases where the certified copy of a recorded instrument is sought to be used in evidence, the original of which is permitted or required by law to be recorded in the office of the county clerk. Valentine v. Sweatt, 34 C. A. 135, 78 S. W. 386, 387.

This article includes conveyances of land and is broad enough to include a deed defectively acknowledged, is remedial in its nature and applies to suits pending at time it took effect as well as those thereafter executed. Haney v. Gartin, 51 C. A. 577, 113 S. W. 167.

This article applies only to deeds properly recorded in this state, and not to copies of deeds recorded in other states conveying land in this state. William M. Rice Institute v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 688.

In view of Art. 3694, held, that this article applies exclusively to instruments between private parties, such as deeds, bills of sale, deeds of trust, etc., and that a divorce decree contained in the minutes of the same court in which accused was being tried for murder was admissible without the judgment or a copy having been filed with the record in such prosecution and notice given to accused. Clayton v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 119.

Purpose of article.—The purpose of this article respecting registration is not to give notice, but to establish a rule of evidence, and under that statute if an instrument required or permitted by law to be recorded has been acknowledged or proved for record, and recorded as the law directs, the original, on compliance with the other provisions of the law, will stand as though its execution had been proved as at common law, unless an affidavit of forgery be filed; and so also will a certified copy thereof, if the inability of the party offering it, to produce the original, be shown. Hancock v. Tram Lumber Co., 65 T. 225; Holmes v. Coryell, 58 T. 685; Beaumont Pasture Co. v. Preston, 65 T. 448.

It is simply intended by this article to render in certain cases instruments and copies of them, which had been recorded a designated period of time, admissible in evidence, which were not admissible under this article before it was amended, but would otherwise have to be proved as at common law. If the instrument was invalid before, it remained invalid. Klumpp v. Stanley, 52 C. A. 239, 113 S. W. 603.

Acknowledgment in general.—Where an instrument is not proven in the mode required for its admission to record, it acquires no authenticity from having been in point of fact recorded. Craddock v. Merrill, 2 T. 494; Lambert v. Weir, 27 T. 359; Holliday v. Cromwell, 26 T. 188.

The registration in the proper county of a deed in 1851, the acknowledgment of which was defective, was validated by the act of February 9, 1860. McCelvey v. Cryer, 28 S. W. 691, 8 C. A. 437.

The act of February 5, 1841 (Sayles' Early Laws, art. 997, § 20), validated registrations prior to that date, but did not validate a previous defective acknowledgment. Id.

Record of a deed showing defective acknowledgment held inadmissible after evidence by the grantor that it was properly acknowledged. Scales v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 823.

The record of an assignment of a patent and a deed held admissible to show a conveyance of the land, with other evidence, though the assignment and the deed were not properly acknowledged, so as to be entitled to record. Schultz v. Tonty Lumber Co., 36 C. A. 448, 82 S. W. 353.

An instrument appearing in the deed records in the handwriting of a deputy clerk, who was the grantor therein, constitute circumstantial evidence of the making of such a deed by the grantor, although the deed is not properly acknowledged for record. Whitaker v. Thayer, 38 C. A. 537, 86 S. W. 364.

A record which is void because the deed was improperly acknowledged and not entitled to record is nevertheless admissible to establish the existence of the deed when lost. Simmons v. Hewitt (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 188.

The record of a deed where the certificate of acknowledgment is fatally defective, is a nullity, and a copy of the void record is not admissible for any purpose. The fact that such void record existed would be admissible in evidence to prove the execution of a lost deed. But the existence of such a record cannot be proved by a certified copy thereof. A certified copy of a recorded instrument is evidence of the existence of the record only when the recorded instrument so certified has been properly acknowledged. Wanza v. Trapp (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 878.

This article provides for the introduction of every instrument which is permitted or required to be recorded, and which has been recorded after being "acknowledged in the manner provided by the laws in force at the time of its registration." Held, that the quoted words mean not only that the certificate of acknowledgment itself must be formal, but also that the officer taking the same must have had authority to do so. Bledsoe v. Haney, 57 C. A. 285, 122 S. W. 455.

A tax deed, purporting to have been executed by the comptroller, but never acknowledged, was inadmissible. Wolffarth v. De Lay (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 617.

A document admitting that the title to the land in controversy was held in trust held admissible in evidence, though not acknowledged as required by law. Mortimer v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 341.

Location of land.—A deed for land in Wichita county was filed for record in Montague county, to which it was attached. The certificate of record upon the deed showed that it had been "recorded in Clay county records." The deed was offered in evidence as a recorded instrument under this article. Held: (1) Although the deed had been properly filed for record in Montague county, yet the certificate showing the record in Clay county records did not show the deed to have been properly recorded, and it was properly excluded. (2) As notice, the filing was proper and was effective. (3) In connection with the deed, and to show that it had been properly recorded, the original record book was competent evidence, and its exclusion was improper. (4) With the evidence in the record book that the deed had been properly recorded, the deed was admissible, there being no question as to the filing of the deed and notice under the statute. Land Co. v. Chisholm, 71 T. 523, 9 S. W. 479.

The registration of a deed in a county other than that in which the land is situated, unless attached to such county, is invalid. See League v. Thorp, 24 S. W. 685, 3 C. A. 573; Tomlinson v. League (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 313; French v. Groesbeck, 27 S. W. 43, 8 C. A. 19; McCelvey v. Cryer, 28 S. W. 691, 8 C. A. 437.

By Art. 1754 county clerks are recorders for their respective counties, and a certified copy of a deed not recorded in the county in which the land is situated is not admissible in evidence. French v. Groesbeck, 27 S. W. 43, 8 C. A. 19.

A deed is admissible in evidence, although not recorded in the proper county, where no question of notice is involved and the record is not relied on to prove its execution. Stooksberry v. Swann, 12 C. A. 66, 34 S. W. 369.

Certified copy of deed embracing land in separate counties, recorded in one only, held admissible, inability to produce the original being shown. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hearne (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 50.

A certified copy of power of attorney recorded in a county other than that in which the land is located is inadmissible to prove its execution. Villareal v. McLaughlin (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 99.

Where a deed could, under the statute, be recorded in either of two counties, a certified copy from either county is admissible. Turner v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 154.

The recording of the abstract of the lease in the county where the land lies is sufficient to authorize the admission of a copy in evidence. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68 S. W. 704.

Where copies of deeds are recorded in the county where the land is situated as authorized by Art. 6823, they are admissible under this article. Logan's Heirs v. Logan, 31 C. A. 295, 72 S. W. 417.

This statute applies only to deeds properly recorded in this state, and not to copies of deeds recorded in other states conveying land in this state. William M. Rice Institute v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 688.

What are recorded instruments.—On the 5th of October, 1835, a deed for land executed before a second judge of the first instance was signed by the vendor, by the judge, by two instrumental and two assisting witnesses. The protocol was given to the party as evidence of title. The instrument thus authenticated was a public instrument which required no proof of its execution when offered in evidence. By the act of December 20, 1836, deeds of land were required to be recorded. This instrument was admitted to record on the acknowledgment by the judge of his own signature and proof by him of the signature of the grantor. It was properly admitted in evidence as a recorded instrument. McKissick v. Colquhoun, 18 T. 148; Paschal v. Perez, 7 T. 348.

A transfer of a located land certificate, executed in 1840, was filed in the general land office in November, 1859. Patent for the land was issued May, 1873. On the 22d of October, 1883, a certified copy of the transfer from the land office was recorded in the county in which the land was situated. This instrument was admitted in evidence as a recorded instrument against one holding under a deed made in 1887 by the original grantee of the certificate. Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 T. 1, 13 S. W. 300.

Deed filed in office in Mexico held an archive, so as to render proof by examined copy proper. De la Garza v. Macmanus (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 704.

A certified copy of a judgment in a district court of another county is not a recorded instrument within the meaning of this article and is admissible without having been filed three days before commencement of trial. Kerr v. Oppenheimer, 20 C. A. 140, 49 S. W. 149.

This article does not apply to instruments like a writ of execution, and parties who wish to prove that an execution was issued within the twelve months from the date of the judgment, where the court's docket does not show that it was so issued, do not have to give notice that the execution was lost and that they intend to use a certified copy of the execution. Where search for the execution has been made among the papers in the case and in the sheriff's office without avail, evidence aliunde of the issuance of the execution can be introduced. Corder v. Steiner (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 277.

A certified copy of a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, which has been properly recorded in the county where the debtors or grantors did business is admissible in evidence under this article after laying the predicate, in a case of trespass to try title. Batts v. Moore (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1036.

An abstract of title made by a county clerk and certified by him to have been taken from the record of deeds in his office is admissible in evidence. Frugia v. Trueheart, 48 C. A. 513, 106 S. W. 736.

Record of a certain affidavit held not admissible in evidence. White v. McCullough, 56 C. A. 383, 120 S. W. 1093.

Filing before trial and notice.—The filing and notice simply relieves the party from proving the execution of the deed as at common law, unless impeached by affidavit; but does not preclude the opposing party from disproving the execution of the deed or from showing that it was a forgery. Jordan v. Robson, 27 T. 612.

The acknowledgment by a grantor of a deed for record does not render it admissible in evidence, except under the statute, after filing and three days' notice to opposite party. Wiggins v. Fleishell, 50 T. 57.

A certified copy of a judgment of the district court is admissible in evidence without being filed as required by Art. 3700. McDaniel v. Weiss, 53 T. 257.

When a party to an action of trespass to try title has not filed his deed as required by this article, the genuineness of an instrument offered in evidence may be attacked without filing an affidavit of forgery. Sartor v. Bollinger, 59 T. 411.

A decree of partition is admissible as a muniment of title, without serving the defendant with notice before trial of his intention to offer it in evidence. Harvey v. Edens, 69 T. 420, 6 S. W. 306; Stevens v. Gelsner, 71 T. 140, 8 S. W. 610.

An unrecorded instrument executed in 1841, and offered in evidence in 1887, is admissible without having been filed as required by this article. McCamant v. Roberts, 80 T. 316, 15 S. W. 580, 1054.

Notice is not necessary where the instrument is filed as a part of the petition more than three days before trial. Lignoski v. Crooker, 24 S. W. 788, 86 T. 324.

When the execution and delivery of a deed is proven by witness, it need not be filed before the trial. McGehee v. Minter (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 718.

Certified copy of deed held inadmissible without compliance with statute. Henry v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 120.

A certified copy of a deed, filed three days before trial, and notice thereof is given is admissible in evidence, the attorney of the party filing the copy having shown that he could not produce the original. Boyd v. Leish (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 618.

The rejection of a copy of a deed on the ground that a certified copy was not filed in court three days before trial, and for the failure to give the statutory notice of the filing, held erroneous. Latimer v. Kershner (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1016.

In trespass to try title, where a deed under which plaintiff claimed referred to another deed, held proper to permit the record to be read in evidence, without filing a certified copy of the deed referred to and giving the statutory notice. Bracken v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 326.

The record of the rendition of each tax payer is required to be kept in the county clerk's office. The custodian of the same can identify it, and it is admissible in evidence without the three days' statutory notice required in the admission of deeds. Frazier v. State (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 533.

Certified copies of papers relating to incorporation of towns, which are required to be recorded in the county clerk's office, must be filed in the case and three days' notice given, before they can be introduced in evidence. Lamar v. State, 49 Cr. R. 563, 95 S. W. 512.

A certified copy of a marriage certificate is inadmissible in a trial for bigamy unless it has been filed among the papers in the case three days before the trial. Burton v. State, 101 S. W. 226, 51 Cr. R. 196.

Statement as to proper filing of a registered instrument in papers of suit, so as to be admissible without proof of execution. Stark v. Harris (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 837.

This article applies only to such instruments as have been recorded previous to being filed among the papers in a suit. Id.

It is only when it is desired to have an instrument, permitted or required by law to be recorded used as evidence without proof of its execution, that it is necessary to file it three days before trial, and notice given of such filing to the opposite party. Clayton v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 881.

In a suit to partition lands in which plaintiffs claimed an undivided one-half interest, the fact that the suit was a partition suit did not authorize the admission of a deed under which plaintiffs claimed title, without proof of its execution and without the three days' filing and notice to defendants, required by statute. Merrill v. Bradley, 52 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 561.

Under this article, providing that, to render a deed admissible in evidence, it must be filed in the case before the trial, with notice to the adverse party, and Code Cr. Proc. art. 764, making the rules of evidence in civil suits applicable in criminal actions, the deed records of a county, showing a lease of a building to an amusement company whose employé is on trial for permitting a theatrical performance in the building to be given on Sunday, is inadmissible, where a copy was not filed before the trial and notice given. Gould v. State, 61 Cr. R. 195, 134 S. W. 695.

A deed which has been drawn up under the common-law rule, though not filed before the beginning of the trial as prescribed by statute in such cases, is properly received in evidence. First State Bank of Teague v. Harris (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1162.

In an action on a dramshop keeper's bond, the original bond and the judgment of the county court authorizing him to engage in the business of a retail liquor dealer are properly received in evidence, though they have not been on file among the papers of the case for three days, as provided by this article, relating to the introduction of certified copies of recorded conveyances. McElroy v. Sparkman (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 529.

Where defendant was notified to produce certain original deeds or that secondary evidence would be offered to prove their execution and contents, and the attorneys stipulated that to avoid the expense of certified copies the records of the deeds might be introduced, the receipt of such records in evidence, notwithstanding the technical failure to file certified copies and give three days' notice thereof, did not require a reversal, where it was not claimed that the deeds were forgeries. Hill v. Walker (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 687.

A certified copy of a judgment was admissible in evidence without having been filed with the papers in the case at least three days before the trial and notice thereof given to the opposite party or his attorney. James v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1073.

Sufficiency of record.—The proper recording of a deed before filing and notice is indispensable to its admissibility without proof of execution. Gaines v. Ann, 26 T. 340; Holliday v. Cromwell, 26 T. 188; Deen v. Wills, 21 T. 642; Cavit v. Archer, 52 T. 166; McFadden v. Preston, 54 T. 403; Wiggins v. Fleishel, 50 T. 62; Ross v. Kornrumpff, 64 T. 390; Cofey v. Hendricks, 66 T. 676, 2 S. W. 47; Land Co. v. Chisholm, 71 T. 523, 9 S. W. 479.

The fact that the record does not show a seal to the certificate of acknowledgment is immaterial. Alexander v. Houghton (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1102.

A deed not duly registered is inadmissible in evidence. Davidson v. Wallingford (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 286.

The rejection of a will as evidence because of a defect in the recording of it, which was afterwards corrected, held error, under the circumstances. Mattfeld v. Huntington, 17 C. A. 716, 43 S. W. 53.

Time of recording.—The mortgage under which defendants claim title, made by plaintiff's father, held admissible in replevin, though plaintiff did not know it was made, and it was not recorded until after suit was brought. Saenz v. O. F. Mumme & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 59.

The instrument must have been recorded at the date of filing. If not recorded until the day of trial, though properly acknowledged for record when filed three days previous, the instrument is not admissible under this article. Gaines v. Ann, 26 T. 340.

Certified copy.—When a certified copy is offered in evidence showing that the original was proved for record before a notary, who stated in his certificate that he thereto affixed his official seal, it will be presumed that the notary's seal was properly attached to the original certificate, although no evidence of that fact appear on the copy. Ballard v. Perry, 28 T. 347.

A second certified copy, issued and certified at a date later than that of the original, and delivered to the party as evidence of title, is not admissible in evidence without proof of its genuineness. State v. Cardinas, 47 T. 250.

See circumstances under which a certified copy of a recorded instrument, the genuineness of which was impeached, was admitted in evidence. Brown v. Simpson, 67 T. 225, 2 S. W. 644; Davis v. Pearson, 26 S. W. 241, 6 C. A. 593.

The admission of a copy of a recorded patent taken from the county land register to prove title in behalf of the party offering it is reversible error when objection is made to its introduction and the statute was not complied with. R. G. & E. P. R. R. Co. v. Milmo Nat. Bank, 72 T. 467, 10 S. W. 563.

An examined copy of a certified copy of a recorded instrument is not admissible in evidence. Lasater v. Van Hook, 77 T. 650, 14 S. W. 270.

A certified copy of a deed not properly recorded held admissible to show execution. Guinn v. Musick (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 723.

A certified copy of a deed examined, and held not to be a certified copy of a certified copy so as to be inadmissible under the statute as a recorded instrument. Williams v. Cessna, 43 C. A. 315, 95 S. W. 1106.

A copy of the record of a document not entitled to be recorded held inadmissible as a certified copy of a legal record. West v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas, 46 C. A. 102, 102 S. W. 927.

Under this article making a certified copy of any instrument affecting title to land admissible evidence when a proper predicate is laid, and Art. 5445, declaring that a certificate that a person named has filed proof of residence and occupancy of land for three years is a muniment of title and may be recorded, a certified copy of such a certificate is admissible in evidence on a proper predicate being laid. Whitaker v. Browning (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1197.

Affidavit of loss, mutilation or inability to procure.—If the affidavit is made by any person other than a party to the suit it should exclude the supposition that the party offering the evidence has it in his power to produce the original. Crayton v. Munger, 11 T. 234; Butler v. Dunagan, 19 T. 566; Hooper v. Hall, 30 T. 154; Foot v. Silliman, 77 T. 268, 13 S. W. 1032; Kauffman v. Shellworth, 64 T. 179.

An affidavit that the instrument is not and never was in possession of affiant, and that he does not know where the same can be found, is not in compliance with the statute. Crayton v. Munger, 11 T. 234; Hooper v. Hall, 30 T. 154.

The statute authorizing secondary evidence must be strictly complied with. Butler v. Dunagan, 19 T. 566.

A certified copy of a recorded instrument is admissible in evidence upon an affidavit that the original is lost and that it cannot be procured. Hurley v. Barnard, 48 T. 83; Evans v. Womack, 48 T. 234; Foot v. Silliman, 77 T. 268, 13 S. W. 1032.

The affidavit must show diligent search and inquiry of the proper person and in the proper place. The loss must be proved if possible by the person in whose custody it was at the time of the loss, if such person be living; and if dead, application should be made to his representatives and search made among the documents of the deceased. Vandergriff v. Piercy, 59 T. 371; Hill v. Taylor, 77 T. 295, 14 S. W. 366.

An affidavit by a party's attorney, stating "that he cannot procure the original, and that he has tried and done all he could to procure it," is insufficient. Kauffman v. Shellworth, 64 T. 179.

Though a certified copy of deed must be on file in the cause three days before the trial to authorize its introduction in evidence, the affidavit may be made at any time before the commencement of the trial. Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 390.

Where an instrument declared upon is mutilated, and such mutilation is averred and explained in the pleadings, there is no necessity for an affidavit in regard thereto to render it admissible in evidence, where proof other than that of the party himself is offered to explain the mutilation and establish the facts in regard to the execution and validity of such instrument. Dicks v. Austin College, 1 App. C. C. § 1069, citing Withee v. Fearing, 23 T. 506.

A certified copy of a deed is not admissible in evidence on mere proof that the party offering it caused the original deed to be attached to a commission to take testimony, and sent to the clerk of another county, who had not returned the same, although requested to do so. Such evidence does not establish the fact that the deed could not have been procured by the exercise of reasonable diligence. Crafts v. Daugherty, 69 T. 477, 6 S. W. 850.

Six months before a certified copy of a deed was offered in evidence it was filed with the petition, but was not referred to therein. The petition alleged that the original was in the custody of the defendant, and gave him notice to produce it, or secondary evidence of its contents would be offered on the trial. The defendant was its proper custodian. Held, that it was not necessary that the plaintiff should make affidavit that he could not procure the deed; the copy was admissible in evidence. Pennington v. Schwartz, 70 T. 211, 8 S. W. 32.

Certified copy of deed is admissible upon affidavit as required in this article; proof of search, etc., for original not needed. Nye v. Gribble, 70 T. 458, 8 S. W. 608.

In Veck v. Holt, 71 T. 715, 9 S. W. 743, it is said that where a defendant in whose hands a private paper is presumed to be is without the jurisdiction of the court, he cannot be compelled to produce it, and from this fact the affidavit of the plaintiff or his attorney is not necessary to lay a predicate for the introduction of the copy.

A specific statement of the acts of diligence in searching for the lost deed is only necessary when made with a view to the introduction of parol evidence of the contents of the lost deed. Foot v. Silliman, 77 T. 268, 13 S. W. 1032. See Waggoner v. Alford, 81 T. 365, 16 S. W. 1083, for requisites of affidavit.

When an instrument is proved as at common law, a preliminary affidavit of its loss is unnecessary. Blanton v. Ray, 66 T. 61, 71 S. W. 264. When the original ancient instrument is lost, a certified copy may be offered in evidence upon the same proof as would make the original admissible if it could be produced. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Stealey, 66 T. 468, 1 S. W. 186.

When the loss of an instrument and contents are shown, it is also necessary to prove its execution, and that it once existed as a valid instrument. Overand v. Menczer, 83 T. 122, 18 S. W. 301.

When secondary evidence of a deed that has been lost or destroyed is offered, it is not necessary to file a preliminary affidavit of the loss or destruction. Trimble v. Edwards, 84 T. 497, 19 S. W. 772. The evidence of a witness on the stand, instead of the affidavit, will be sufficient. Parks v. Caudle, 58 T. 220; Trimble v. Edwards, 84 T. 497, 19 S. W. 772. But it must be shown that there was diligent search and inquiry made of the proper person, and in the proper places, for the lost deed; the loss must be proved, if possible, by the person in whose custody it was at the time of the loss, if such person be living; and if dead, application should be made to his representatives, and search made among the documents of the deceased. Vandergriff v. Piercy, 39 T. 372; Hill v. Taylor, 77 T. 295, 14 S. W. 366; Trimble v. Edwards, 84 T. 497, 19 S. W. 772.

Prima facie evidence of the execution of the instrument is sufficient unless overcome by evidence to the contrary. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Pinckard, 23 S. W. 720, 1015, 4 C. A. 671; Steiner v. Jester (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 718. When the evidence of a defendant tends to show that plaintiff's grantor was not the person who had title, the burden of proof to show the identity is on plaintiff. Jester v. Steiner, 25 S. W. 411, 86 T. 415.

A certified copy of a deed is admissible on the affidavit of plaintiff's attorney that neither he nor the plaintiff could procure the same. Southall v. Southall, 6 C. A. 694, 26 S. W. 150.

An affidavit that states that a deed is lost and affiant does not know where it is and states where it is recorded and attaches a certified copy, is sufficient under the statute, to admit evidence that it is lost and cannot be procured. Thompson v. Johnson, 24 C. A. 246, 58 S. W. 1031.

A defendant cannot introduce a copy of a deed which has been filed by his codefendant together with an affidavit of the loss of the original, but which has not been introduced in evidence by the codefendant. Gann v. Roberts, 32 C. A. 561, 74 S. W. 950.

An affidavit by one of several defendants that "the defendants nor either of them are or is able to produce the following described deed," etc., is a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this article. Williamson v. Work, 33 C. A. 369, 77 S. W. 267.

Under the express terms of this article a certified copy of a deed is admissible on filing an affidavit that the original cannot be found or procured. Smith v. Burgher (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 75.

The latter part of this article, referring to the introduction of recorded instruments without proof of execution, applied only to the original instruments, and that copies of a record of deed of trust which had been duly acknowledged and recorded were inadmissible, in the absence of an affidavit of loss or inability to procure the original. Green v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 999.

In an action against an irrigation company for damages from failure to furnish water, it was error to admit a certified copy of its declaration of intention to appropriate the water, which instrument is one required by law to be acknowledged and recorded, where the same was not filed three days before the commencement of the trial and no affidavit was filed alleging the loss of the original instrument as required by this article. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

Affidavit of forgery.—The genuineness of a deed under which plaintiff claims may be attacked although it may have been admitted as a recorded instrument and no affidavit of forgery has been filed. McGee v. Berrien (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 462.

Where affidavit of forgery was filed as to deed relied on by defendants in suit for recovery of land, whether testimony offered to show execution of deed was sufficient to authorize its admission in evidence held for the court. Thompson v. Johnson, 24 C. A. 246, 58 S. W. 1030.

Where issue was whether deed under which defendants claimed was a forgery, after introduction of deed in evidence either party might introduce testimony as to the execution of the deed. Id.

When a certified copy of a deed was offered in evidence in trespass to try title, defendant objected to its admission on the ground that it did not sufficiently identify the land conveyed, and offered in evidence an original grant to another in the same colony in which the land conveyed was situated, and of the same date of the survey of the parties' remote grantor and issued by the same commissioner, but did not call the court's attention to an affidavit of forgery of the deed to plaintiff's grantor, or object to the admission of the copy for want of proof of execution, or of the loss of the original deed, or object that the copy had not been filed for three days before trial with notice to them. Held, that the certified copy was properly admitted, and was prima facie evidence of the execution of the deed by the grantor. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533.

Where an affidavit of forgery was filed against an ancient recorded assignment of a headright certificate, a certified copy thereof was admissible, the affidavit only imposing on defendants the duty to prove the instrument as at common law. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

Where defendants based their title on a lost deed, producing neither the original nor a certified copy, but undertaking to show its execution and contents as at common law, an affidavit by plaintiffs of the forgery of the deed is of no effect, and should not be called to the attention of the jury by the charge. Rice v. Tallafarro (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 242.

Ancient documents.—See, also, notes under Art. 3687, Rule 16.

A certified copy of deed which had been recorded 30 years, with strong corroborating circumstances of its authenticity, will be admitted in evidence as a copy of an ancient instrument, the genuineness of which has been impeached by affidavit; otherwise, if there is no evidence showing the date of registration. Brown v. Simpson, 67 T. 225, 2 S. W. 644.

A copy of a deed purporting on its face to be the act of the corporation, certified to by the county clerk, and which recites that it was executed by the officers of the company under its corporate seal, is admissible in evidence, though a scroll by way of seal is placed in the copy where the corporate seal should have been attached in the original. The presumption must obtain that it was thus sealed, after the lapse of 25 years from its registration. Catlett v. Starr, 70 T. 485, 7 S. W. 844.

A certified copy of a deed which has never been so acknowledged as to authorize its registration is not admissible in evidence on an affidavit of loss of the original. No length of time will render such copy admissible as an ancient instrument. Hill v. Taylor, 77 T. 295, 14 S. W. 366.

Where a deed not filed under this article is offered in evidence as an ancient instrument, an affidavit that it is forged is unnecessary, and if filed does not make additional proof necessary. Brown v. Perez (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 980.

A certified copy of an ancient instrument is admissible in evidence. Hill v. Templeton (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 535.

Defective acknowledgment of deed actually recorded for ten years prior to assertion of title, in so far as acknowledgment is required for purposes of conveyance and registration, is cured by this article. Ariola v. Newman, 51 C. A. 617, 113 S. W. 157, 158.

Where an instrument had been recorded for more than 30 years, even if it had not been so authenticated as to be entitled to record was admissible under this article, in addition to being admissible as an ancient document, it having come from the proper custody. Milwee v. Phelps, 53 C. A. 195, 115 S. W. 893.

If the original executed in 1838 was defectively acknowledged it was admissible as an ancient instrument, and if a copy was offered the defect was cured by this article. This statute relates to a rule of evidence in which no one has a vested right. Sims v. Sealy, 53 C. A. 518, 116 S. W. 632.

Where a deed has been recorded for more than ten years, and no adverse claim has been asserted during that time, the deed or a certified copy is admissible, whether or not the certificate of acknowledgment was in form or substance such as required by law at time of its record. Kin Kaid v. Lee (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 345.

Where a deed had been on record since 1853, and no hostile claim had been made against it, failure of one of the grantors to acknowledge it was cured by this article, providing that every instrument actually recorded for 10 years, whether proved or acknowledged as required, or not, should be admitted in evidence without proof of execution. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

Under this article providing that after an instrument has been recorded for 10 years it shall be no objection to its admission in evidence, or to that of a certified copy thereof, that the certificate of acknowledgment is not in form and substance such as required by law, a deed, or certified copy thereof, which has been recorded for 10 years, is admissible in evidence whether duly acknowledged or not. Bledsoe v. Haney, 57 C. A. 285, 122 S. W. 455.

This article did not authorize the admission of a will in evidence, in the absence of a judgment probating it. Dean v. Furrh (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 431.

This article relates only to the admissibility of deeds as evidence because of their having been recorded, without reference to their sufficiency as conveyances, and therefore was ineffective to give validity to a recorded deed by a married woman which was otherwise void for want of proper acknowledgment. Holland v. Votaw, 103 T. 534, 131 S. W. 406.

This article is ineffective to give validity to a deed by a married woman of her separate property, which was invalid for failure of the certificate of acknowledgment to recite that after executing the deed she declared she "did not wish to retract it." March v. Spivy (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 529.

After a prior deed, defectively acknowledged, had been of record for 10 years, it was good as against a subsequent purchaser, in the absence of proof that he was an innocent purchaser for a valuable consideration, without notice of such prior deed, even though notwithstanding the act were given no further effect than to make the certified copy admissible in evidence. Bledsoe v. Haney (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 612.

A certified copy of a duly recorded deed which had been recorded for more than 30 years held admissible in evidence. Rudolph v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 209.

See Arts. 7743-7746 and notes thereunder.

Art. 3701. Record books, certain declared valid records, etc.; certified copies, effect of.—All volumes constituting a portion of the records of any county organized prior to January 1, 1882, wherein are recorded deeds, mortgages or trust deeds, or other muniments of title to real estate situated in such county, which volumes and records are now and have been constantly among the archives of such county, as records thereof, shall be, and the same are hereby declared to be, in all respects lawful and valid records of such counties respectively, for all purposes whatsoever relating to titles to real estate, as effectively as if such books and records were originally records of such counties, respectively, and as fully and completely as if such counties had been duly organized at the dates of the filing for record of the instruments recorded therein, as shown therein. Certified copies of the instruments recorded in said volumes, made in accordance with law, shall have the force and effect that certified copies of original records have in organized counties; and same may be used for all purposes lawful for certified copies of original records in ordinary cases in organized counties. [Acts 1905, p. 36.]

Art. 3702. Certified copies of deeds, etc., to land in Archer county recorded in Jack county, when, etc.; evidence, when.—Certified copies of deeds, mortgages, trust deeds and all other instruments in any manner affecting titles to lands in Archer county, which were recorded in Jack county from the tenth day of August, 1866, to the tenth day of August, 1870, said certified copies being made under the hand and seal of the clerk of the county court of Shackelford county, shall be admitted in evidence in all suits where secondary evidence is admissible. [Acts 1897, p. 143.]

Art. 3703. [2319] [2263] Transcribed records, certified copies of, evidence, etc.—Where a county has been heretofore, or may hereafter be, created out of the territory of any organized county, and the records of deeds and other instruments required or permitted by law to be recorded, relating to lands or other property in such new county, have been transcribed and placed on record in such new county, in accordance with law, certified copies of such transcribed records in the new county may be admitted in evidence with like effect as certified copies of the original records. [Acts 1879, ch. 99, p. 106, sec. 3.]

Art. 3704. [2320] Transcribed records, effect of.—Transcribed records for new counties or for newly attached territory, as provided for by law, when properly verified and certified, shall have all the force and effect in judicial proceedings in courts of this state as the original records. [Acts 1879, p. 105.]

Art. 3705. [2313] [2257a] Certain abstracts of title evidence, when.—All abstracts of land titles, or land abstract books to lands in this state, compiled from the records of any county in this state, prior to the year 1890, which said records were partially or wholly destroyed or lost from any cause during the month of May, 1874, March, 1876, and January, 1889, shall hereafter be competent prima facie evidence of the truth of the data or memoranda therein contained and compiled prior to the year 1890, and shall be admissible in evidence in the courts of this state; provided, that the compiler or compilers of such abstracts of land titles or land title abstract books, shall have made heretofore, or before offered in evidence, affidavit before some officer authorized, at the time of making such affidavit, to take acknowledgments to deeds in this state, and to the effect that said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, were compiled by him from the records of the county prior to their destruction or loss, and that they contain a true and correct statement of the matters and things to which they relate; and provided, also, that it shall be admissible to offer in evidence any testimony tending to discredit or substantiate the reliability of such abstract of land titles or land title abstract books, or tending to show the compiler thereof to have been incompetent or unreliable, or competent and reliable; and provided, further, that a copy of such abstract shall be filed in the papers of the cause in which it is sought to be used, and notice given to the opposite party at least five days before the trial, and the same defense may be made as if copies of the original record had been filed; provided, further, that the party offering such abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, in evidence shall himself, or by his agent or attorney, have made affidavit that the original instrument to which the said data or memorandum relates is not then on record; and that he has made diligent search and inquiry for the same in places and from persons where and in whose possession it would most probably be found, and has been unable to find the same; that, to his best knowledge and belief, the same is lost or destroyed; and provided, further, that the owner of said abstracts of land titles, or of land title abstract books, shall have filed with the county commissioners' court his application in writing (which may be granted or refused, in the discretion of said court, and if refused, this article shall not become of force as to said application so refused) for an order of said court admitting to record in said court the contract of the said owner in writing, wherein the said owner shall bind himself, his heirs and assigns, as follows: That said owner, his heirs or assigns, will, whenever requested in writing, setting forth the data required by any party to any suit interested in introducing said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, produce the same without charge on the day demanded for introducing in evidence, and upon the trial of any cause in this state; provided, that if said owner, his heirs or assigns, are required to produce said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, in courts of any other county than that to the lands of which said abstract of land titles or land title abstract books pertain, they shall be, by the party at whose instance such production is required, reasonably compensated in advance for the time and expense of the said owner, his heirs or assigns. And the said owner in said contract shall bind himself, his heirs and assigns, to answer in full damages to any party damaged by the failure or default of the said owner, his heirs or assigns, without good cause, to produce said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, data or memoranda, when demanded, as herein provided. And said contract shall further stipulate that no charge shall ever be made by said owner, his heirs or assigns, in excess of one dollar for each instrument or remove in any title, in the compilation of a complete abstract or title to the lands in the county to which said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, pertain, and that said owner, his heirs and assigns, will, upon request and payment of the fees therefor by any person, either make, compile and certify, or cause to be made, compiled or certified, within a reasonable time, a complete abstract of title to any land to which said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, pertain; provided, that nothing herein contained shall ever be construed to in any way affect or apply to any suit or suits pending in any of the courts in this state on the twelfth day of July, 1891; provided, further, that the provisions of this article shall not apply if it can be shown by competent evidence that any such deeds were improperly recorded; provided, that, whenever any person, company or corporation has heretofore complied with the law which is amended hereby, in order to make an abstract evidence, the said person, company or corporation shall not be required to do anything more or further under this article in order to have the benefits thereof. [Acts 1897, p. 146. Acts 1891, p. 136. Acts 1901, p. 44.]

Art. 3706. [2314] [2258] Certified copy of instrument sued on is evidence, when.—If suit be brought on any instrument or note in writing filed in any suit brought thereupon in any other court of this state, a certified copy of such instrument or note in writing, under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court in which the original may be filed, shall be admitted as evidence in like manner as such original might be; but, if the defendant shall plead and file an affidavit under oath that such original instrument or note in writing has not been executed by him, or by his authority, the clerk of the court having the custody of such original shall, on being subpoenaed as a witness, attend with the same on trial of the cause. [Acts 1891, p. 136. P. D. 3718.]

In general.—A certified copy of a note or mortgage, the original of which is on file in one cause, cannot, if objected to, be read in evidence in another cause pending in the same court. Morrison v. Bean, 22 T. 554.

Withdrawal of instrument.—The court will permit the withdrawal of an instrument on file in one cause, for the purpose of using it as evidence in another cause; or the clerk of the court may be compelled to attend with the instrument. Morrison v. Bean, 22 T. 554. A certified copy of a lost will is good as original. Hickman v. Gillam, 66 T. 314, 1 S. W. 339.

Secondary evidence.—The filing of a list of writings under this article does not preclude a party from proving his title by other evidence. Hendricks v. Huffmeyer (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 777.

Secondary evidence of promissory notes upon which suit has been brought in another county is admissible. Osborne v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 73.

Place of other suit.—That a deed was filed in a suit in another county is not sufficient to authorize the admission of a copy in evidence. Bauman v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 917.

Art. 3707. [2315] [2259] Certified copies from heads of departments evidence.—Certified copies, under the hands and official seals of the heads of departments, of all notes, bonds, mortgages, bills, accounts, or other documents, properly on file in any of the departments of this state, shall be received in evidence on an equal footing with the originals, in all suits now pending, or which may be hereafter instituted, in this state, where the originals of such notes, bonds, mortgages, bills, accounts or other documents would be evidence. [Act Aug. 11, 1870, p. 62. P. D. 6825.]

Land office.—A transcript from the land office showing the action of the traveling board was competent to a certificate for one-third of a league of land, as taking the place of that for a league and labor having the same number and grantee. Ansaldua v. Schwing, 81 T. 198, 16 S. W. 989.

Art. 3708. [2316] [2260] Assessment or payment of taxes may be proven, how.—Whenever in any cause it may be material to prove the assessment of any property for taxes, or the payment of any taxes, the certificate of the comptroller of such assessment from the rolls deposited in his office, or that the payment of such taxes is shown by the records of his office, shall be admissible in evidence to prove the same. [Act Feb. 15, 1858. P. D. 3708.]

Admissibility in evidence of tax records and receipts, see notes under Art. 3687.

Payment of taxes.—The payment of taxes may be shown by direct or circumstantial evidence. Watson v. Hopkins, 27 T. 637; Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 460; Allen v. Woodson, 60 T. 651. The receipt of the tax collector is competent evidence. Deen v. Wills, 21 T. 642; Seemuller v. Thornton, 77 T. 156, 13 S. W. 846. In a suit for the recovery of taxes the amount due was shown by a consolidated statement for the year 1871, made up under the directions of the justices of the peace of Galveston county, and coming from the proper repository thereof, although the roll was not certified as required by the instructions of the comptroller. Clegg v. Galveston, 1 App. C. C. § 60.

Parol testimony to payment of taxes is competent. It is not necessary to produce the tax receipts. McDonough v. Jefferson County, 79 T. 535, 15 S. W. 490.

Redemption certificates from the office of the comptroller of the state, duly authenticated, purporting to show the amount of costs paid, were admissible in evidence under Art. 3696, making the certificate of such officer as to facts contained in papers on record in his office admissible in evidence in all cases in which the originals would be evidence, and this article providing that the certificate of the comptroller of the payment of taxes, as shown by the records of his office, shall be admissible in evidence to prove such fact. Tyler & Knudson v. Tom (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 850.

Art. 3709. [2317] [2261] Rate of interest in this state presumed, unless, etc.—The rate of interest in any other state, territory or country is presumed to be the same as that established by law in this state, and may be recovered accordingly without allegation or proof of the rate of interest in such other state, territory or country, unless the rate of interest in such other country be alleged and proved. [Id.]

Rate of interest.—It is presumed that the rate of interest in another state is the same as our own. Henry v. Roe, 83 T. 446, 18 S. W. 806; Harrison v. Ilgner, 74 T. 86, 11 S. W. 1054.

Art. 3710. [2318] [2262] Execution of notes and other instruments presumed, unless, etc.—When any petition, answer, or other pleading shall be founded, in whole or in part, on any instrument or note in writing, charged to have been executed by the other party or by his authority, and not alleged therein to be lost or destroyed, such instrument or note in writing shall be received as evidence without the necessity of proving its execution, unless the party by whom or by whose authority such instrument or note in writing is charged to have been executed, shall file his affidavit in writing denying the execution thereof; and the like rule shall prevail in all suits against indorsers and sureties upon any note or instrument in writing. When any such instrument or note in writing is charged to have been executed by any testator or intestate, it shall be received in evidence in like manner, unless some suspicion is cast upon it by the affidavit of the executor or administrator of such testator or intestate. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 1443.]

Foundation of suit.—Letters alleged to have been written by a defendant to the plaintiff and containing acknowledgments of indebtedness may be made the foundation of a petition so as to be admissible without proof. Close v. Judson, 34 T. 238.

Where an instrument purporting to have been signed by the defendant is not the basis of the suit, he does not have to plead non est factum in order to prove that he did not sign it. Bateman v. Ward (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 510.

Necessity of plea of non est factum and verification thereof.—See Tarpley v. Poage, 2 Tex. 139; Parr v. Johnston, 15 T. 294; Barnett v. Logue, 29 T. 282; Lee v. Crosby, 1 App. C. C. § 140; Blair v. Breeding, 57 C. A. 147, 121 S. W. 869.

When the instrument purports to have been executed by an attorney, his authority and execution are presumed unless put in issue. Austin v. Towns, 10 T. 24; Reid v. Reid, 11 T. 585; Herndon v. Ennis, 13 T. 410; Brashear v. Martin, 25 T. 202. And this although the name of the defendant does not appear on the instrument. Sessums v. Henry, 38 T. 37.

A general denial is sufficient to require a party who relies on a lost instrument of writing to prove its execution. Hampshire v. Floyd, 39 T. 103.

Where the administrator in a suit on a promissory note against his decedent's estate is unwilling to make the affidavit required by law to a plea of non est factum, it is proper to permit the widow to intervene in the suit and make the necessary affidavit to the plea, where the intervention occasions no delay. Eborn v. Zimpelman, 47 T. 503, 26 Am. Rep. 315; Eccles v. Hill, 13 T. 67; Solomon v. Huey, 1 U. C. 265.

In a suit against two, as partners, to recover an amount alleged to be due on account of checks on the plaintiff drawn by one of the firm after its dissolution, under authority from the late partner to settle the firm debts, which were paid by plaintiff, in the absence of a plea under oath denying the authority of the drawer of the checks to bind the firm, they are admissible in evidence against both defendants, and their admissibility is not affected by the fact that they were signed alone by the member who had authority to settle the debts. Bradford v. Taylor, 61 T. 508.

When the bill of lading is declared on, it is admissible evidence without proof, unless its execution is denied under oath. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Logan, 3 App. C. C. § 187.

A plea of non est factum, not sworn to, only requires, as a general denial, the production of the instrument declared on, but does not require proof of execution. In the absence of a plea of non est factum denying the execution of the instrument sued on, the burden of proving want of authority in the agent making it devolves upon the party denying it. Fisher v. Bowser, 1 U. C. 346.

In a suit to recover a reward offered by an express company it was alleged in the petition that the proclamation offering the reward for the arrest of certain persons was made by the Pacific Express Company acting through the persons who assumed to act as its officials, and it could not be heard to deny their authority thus to bind it, unless a plea of non est factum, as required by the statute, was filed. Blain v. Express Co., 69 T. 74, 6 S. W. 679.

In a suit upon promissory notes against maker and to foreclose a chattel mortgage made to secure the notes, the purchaser of the mortgaged article was made defendant. The mortgage was attested by one witness and not acknowledged for record. The original was deposited in the office of the county clerk of the county wherein, by its recitals, the maker resided. The defendants pleaded a general denial. Held, there being no plea of non est factum, the production of the mortgage in evidence was competent against the maker without further proof of its execution. Chator v. Brunswick Co., 71 T. 588, 10 S. W. 250.

When suit is founded on a written instrument charged to have been executed by the authority of the defendant, though it may be ambiguous in its terms, and may not on its face purport to be the act of the defendant, evidence showing that it was not executed by him is not admissible in absence of the plea of non est factum. Railway Co. v. Tisdale, 74 T. 8, 11 S. W. 900, 4 L. R. A. 545; City Water Works v. White, 61 T. 538; Bradford v. Taylor, 64 T. 169.

The allegation in a petition that the contract (for drover's return passage) declared on was executed by or on behalf of defendant, not having been denied by defendant under oath, such contract will be considered its own. Railway Co. v. Tisdale, 74 T. 8, 11 S. W. 900, 4 L. R. A. 545; Railway Co. v. Campbell, 1 C. A. 509, 20 S. W. 845; Int. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 21 S. W. 691, 3 C. A. 8.

In absence of a plea of non est factum, an indorsement upon a rejected claim signed by a name identical with that of the defendant sued as administrator is sufficient. Tolbert v. McBride, 75 T. 95, 12 S. W. 752.

The allegation in the petition that the contract (for drover's return passage) declared on was executed by or on behalf of defendant, not having been denied by the defendant under oath, such contract will be considered its own. In the contract discussed the defendant was not named, and it was made by an agent of another. Railway Co. v. Campbell, 1 C. A. 509, 20 S. W. 845.

An account showing a balance due to another, delivered to his creditor in a letter signed by the debtor, constitutes a due bill, conclusive in evidence if not denied under oath. Taylor Water Co. v. Kelley, 11 C. A. 339, 32 S. W. 436.

Evidence tending to impeach the execution of a note sued on is inadmissible where the answer denying the same is not verified. Lindley v. Nunn, 17 C. A. 70, 42 S. W. 310.

A defendant in a partition suit does not have to verify an answer in which he denies the execution of a deed under which plaintiff claims title, because the deed is not the foundation in whole or in part of any pleading on the part of the plaintiff. Laux v. Laux, 19 C. A. 693, 50 S. W. 213.

A contract referred to in another, the signature to which was not denied under oath, held proved by proof of the latter. Clark v. Turk (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1070.

Where vendor's lien note sued on is set out in pleading, and execution by opposite party averred, which is not denied under oath, it is not error to admit it without proof of execution. Bond v. National Exch. Bank (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 71.

Unless a party's authority to execute a written instrument upon which a pleading is founded is denied under oath, there is no necessity to prove the execution thereof. Hunt v. Siemers, 22 C. A. 94, 53 S. W. 387.

Evidence disproving execution or delivery of deed held competent, without first filing affidavit of forgery; execution being proven by prima facie evidence, either as at common law or under the statute. Salazar v. Ybarra (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 303.

Where a suit is brought on a written instrument before the recitals therein can be contradicted there must be a plea of non est factum. Culver v. State, 42 Cr. R. 645, 62 S. W. 923.

A petition not alleging the signing of a written contract by defendants, but merely an agency between them, held not to require a denial under oath. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Byers Bros. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 427.

Where, in trespass to try title, plaintiff files an affidavit that the deed under which defendant claims is a forgery, such deed cannot be received in evidence until its execution has been proved as at common law. Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563.

A contract, pleaded by one party, and its authenticity not denied by the adverse party, held admissible in evidence, though not signed by the parties at the end thereof. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 35 C. A. 189, 79 S. W. 827.

A pleading not purporting to be a plea of non est factum need not be verified. Home Circle Soc. No. 1 v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 84.

In an action on a benefit certificate, evidence that the beneficiary was unable to read, and that the agent failed to disclose certain statements in the application as to the applicant's health, held admissible under similar allegations, over objection that application spoke for itself and was not denied under oath in the pleading. Id.

Where the petition alleged that the contract sued on was made by defendant's agents, and defendant failed to deny it under oath, the agency must be deemed proved. J. B. Watkins Land Mortg. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 560.

Where a plea denying an agent's authority was unverified, it was proper for the court to refuse to permit defendant to assume the burden of showing want of authority. Hamilton v. Bell, 37 C. A. 456, 84 S. W. 239.

When a written receipt is pleaded in the answer, it must be read in evidence without proof of its execution, unless plaintiff denies it in writing under oath. State Nat. Bank v. Stewart & Co., 39 C. A. 620, 88 S. W. 296.

See note to Art. 3696.

Execution and acceptance of drafts by executrix in her representative capacity held established under the statute when they were offered and introduced in evidence in an action thereon against her. Ellis v. Marshall Car Wheel & Foundry Co., 41 C. A. 501, 96 S. W. 689.

In the absence of a plea of non est factum or a denial of an assignment of a claim on a judgment to claimant under oath, the court did not err in permitting the assignment to be introduced in evidence without proof of execution. McCormick v. National Bank of Commerce (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 747.

Where a note signed by one making his mark and witnessed, was in part the basis of the suit and there was no denial under oath of its execution, it was admissible in evidence without proof of its execution. Bolden v. Hughes, 48 C. A. 496, 107 S. W. 91.

In an action on a note given for the price of land and foreclosure of vendor's lien, held proper to admit in evidence a certified copy of the deed and the note. Id.

In an action against a principal on an alleged written contract executed by its agent, the failure of the principal to deny under oath the agent's authority held not to authorize proof of acts and conduct of the agent not covered by the written contract. Waco Mill & Elevator Co. v. Allis-Chalmers Co., 49 C. A. 426, 109 S. W. 224.

Where a defendant in an action on a written instrument does not deny by affidavit the execution of the instrument, he may not object to the introduction in evidence of the instrument on the ground that its execution has not been proved. Dalton v. Dalton (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 241.

In an action on a written contract, evidence that a portion of the contract had been inserted without the knowledge of the defendants held inadmissible, in the absence of a denial of the contract under oath. Fish Bros. Wagon Co. v. G. F. Adams & Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 704.

Where defendant did not deny execution of guaranty, under this article, telegraphic message claimed to constitute guaranty held provable by the typewritten copy received by the addressee. Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Where plaintiff's cause of action against defendant carrier was in part based on the bill of lading, want of authority of carrier's agent to issue the bill could only be pleaded under oath. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1032.

In the absence of an affidavit denying the execution of a supersedeas bond filed in another county, in an action for breach thereof, the original bond was admissible in evidence, and plaintiff was not required to prove it by a certified copy under Art. 3694. Garrett v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 505.

What constitutes a plea of non est factum.—In a suit against a partnership as the maker of a draft, a denial of partnership under oath is equivalent to a plea of non est factum. Alexander v. Lewis, 47 T. 481.

An answer in action to enforce contract to convey land, attacking the contract, need not be verified. Cook v. Roberson (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 866.

An answer alleging misapprehension on defendant's part in executing the note in suit, and deceit on plaintiff's part held equivalent to a plea of non est factum, which should be verified. Hurt v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 675.

A plea duly sworn to by defendant that he "did not execute nor deliver the note to the payee for any purpose or indebtedness, whatever," is not a plea of non est factum and does not put the execution of the note in issue. Davis v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 384.

A plea admitting the execution of a written instrument, but alleging alteration thereof, is not a plea of non est factum, and need not be verified. Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Coalson, 22 C. A. 64, 54 S. W. 388.

When a party has signed a written instrument reciting that on a particular day he received a stated sum of money from a certain person, his denial under oath of the fact that he received the money, or that he received it on the day stated, is not a plea of non est factum, and cannot affect the question of the admissibility of the receipt in evidence. United Moderns v. Pistole, 38 C. A. 422, 86 S. W. 377.

It is not necessary that the execution of a written contract be denied under oath, in order to avoid it for duress, fraud, or mistake. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 426.

In an action against individuals as trustees of a church on a note and lien executed by them, this article held inapplicable in view of the allegations of the petition. Owens v. Caraway (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 474.

An affidavit of the forgery of a deed is sufficient to raise such issue, though made by a person not shown by the record to have sustained any relation to the defendants. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 662.

Evidence tending to show that a broker signed a contract without authority may be introduced, though the execution of the contract is not denied under oath. Floresville Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Texas Refining Co., 55 C. A. 78, 118 S. W. 194.

Issues raised by plea.—A denial of the execution of a note does not put in issue the assignment or indorsement. Barnett v. Logue, 29 T. 282.

Under plea of non est factum, one may show that the note sued on was altered after delivery; but in such case the plea does not put in issue the signing. Davis v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 384.

A plea of non est factum in an action on a note held to require plaintiff to prove its execution. Memphis Coffin Co. v. Patton (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 697.

Effect of plea non est factum.—When a pleading of the defendant is founded on a written receipt, if it was obtained by fraud, accident or mistake, or was canceled, or for any other cause invalid, the fact by which it was proposed to avoid or invalidate it must be pleaded and proved. Kelly v. Kelly, 12 T. 452. Where the plea of non est factum alleges that the signature of defendant was obtained by fraud, the burden of proof is upon the defendant. Irvin v. Garner, 50 T. 52. The burden of proof rests upon the party pleading the alteration of an instrument in writing. Muckleroy v. Bethany, 27 T. 551.

When an affidavit that the deed is forged is filed, the deed is not admissible in evidence without proof of its execution. Powell v. Haley, 28 T. 52; Willis v. Lewis, 28 T. 185; Belcher v. Fox, 60 T. 527. When admitted in evidence, the impeaching party may introduce testimony in support of his plea of non est factum. Cox v. Cock, 59 T. 521.

The plea of non est factum imposes upon the plaintiff the burden of showing the genuineness of the signature and that an alteration apparent upon the face of the instrument was made under such circumstances as not to vitiate the instrument. Art. 2327; Bogarth v. Breedlove, 39 T. 561; Miller v. Alexander, 13 T. 497, 65 Am. Dec. 73; Park v. Glover, 23 T. 469; Harper v. Stroud, 41 T. 367.

When a testimonio of a grant, purporting to have been issued in 1835, was attacked as a forgery, its execution must be established by the assisting witnesses thereto, or their absence must be accounted for and their handwriting proved. Houston v. Blythe, 60 T. 506.

A party who has filed an affidavit impeaching a deed filed by his adversary as a forgery may, if satisfied of its genuineness afterwards, withdraw his affidavit; nor would he be thereby precluded from afterwards asserting any right he might have under such deed. Hammond v. Connolly, 63 T. 62.

Where non est factum is pleaded, proof of execution must be made by plaintiff. Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 T. 1, 13 S. W. 300.

Proof of deed for land executed in Louisiana in 1837 and attacked for forgery, how made. The plaintiffs having made a prima facie case of the genuineness of the instrument so attacked, the burden of proof is cast upon the party charging its forgery to rebut this. Smith v. Gillum, 80 T. 120, 15 S. W. 794.

In a trial by the court under the plea of non est factum, the judge may examine and compare papers in evidence, and from this and other evidence form his own conclusions. Millington v. Millington (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 320.

Where defendant, under oath, denies execution of the note sued on plaintiff has the burden of proof. Harvey v. Harvey (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 185.

Under an unverified plea of non est factum, a charge on forgery of a policy held properly refused. International Order of Twelve of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1108.

When suit is brought on notes alleged to have been executed by authority of defendants, a separate denial by one is not a denial of the authority so far as any of the others are concerned. Hoxie v. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth, 20 C. A. 462, 49 S. W. 637.

Defendant in action on note pleading only general denial and suretyship cannot show alteration of note after delivery. Connor v. Thornton (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 354.

Where complainants in suit for recovery of land filed affidavit to the effect that deed relied on by defendants was a forgery, burden was on defendants to show execution of deed. Thompson v. Johnson, 24 C. A. 246, 58 S. W. 1030.

Allegation by plaintiff that a power of attorney was forged, unaccompanied by an affidavit of forgery, held not to shift the burden of proof on defendant. Williams v. Sapieha (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 947.

Failure of defendant to produce the instrument sued on, the execution of which he denied by plea of non est factum, held not to shift the burden of proof, nor preclude defendant from introducing evidence to establish his plea. Laing v. Sherley (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 532.

Where the defendant city, in an action on a renewed note executed by its mayor, pleads non est factum, the burden of showing that the mayor was authorized to execute such note is on the plaintiff. City of Tyler v. Adams (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 119.

In an action on a mutual benefit certificate, where the execution of a receipt for dues pleaded by plaintiff was not denied by defendant's plea under oath, which denied the authority of its financier to execute the receipt, defendant's denial under oath of the date and contents thereof did not affect its admissibility as evidence. United Moderns v. Pistole, 38 C. A. 422, 86 S. W. 377.

In an action on a written contract of sale, the buyers' plea of non est factum cast the burden of proving the execution of the contract upon plaintiff. Feagan v. Barton-Parker Mfg. Co., 42 C. A. 373, 93 S. W. 1076.

In trespass to try title, an affidavit made under the statute for the purpose of requiring defendants to prove the execution of a certain deed is not admissible as an item of evidence. Sydnor v. Texas Savings & Real Estate Inv. Ass'n, 42 C. A. 138, 94 S. W. 451.

When a plea of non est factum is filed by defendant the burden is on plaintiff to prove execution of instrument. Clymer v. Terry, 50 C. A. 300, 109 S. W. 1130.

An instrument, execution of which is denied in defendant's pleadings under oath, held admissible with evidence sufficient to raise the issue of its execution. Henderson v. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 671.

Statement of extent of defendant's burden of proof, it having pleaded a release by one as plaintiffs' authorized agent, and there having been a plea of non est factum. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Blocker (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 156.

Where an affidavit of forgery is filed as against an instrument, the burden is on the party claiming thereunder to establish it prima facie, after which the attacking party must prove his plea of non est factum. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

Where, in an action on a draft, a plea non est factum was filed, the burden was on plaintiff to establish that a person executing it as agent of defendant had authority to do so. Simon v. Temple Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 592.

In an action on a note alleged to have been signed by one under authority from defendant, in which defendant pleads non est factum, the burden is on plaintiff to show the authority of the person to sign the particular note sued on, as well as the fact of signing. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1092.

Instruments the execution of which must be denied. The execution of a title bond must be put in issue by the plea of non est factum. Yeary v. Cummins, 28 T. 91; Robinson v. Martel, 11 T. 149.

The execution of a written receipt must be put in issue by the plea of non est factum. May v. Pollard, 28 T. 677.

A receipt for stage fare is an instrument in writing within the meaning of this article. Sawyer v. Dulaney, 30 T. 479. And so is a wagoner's receipt. Lewis v. Lowery, 31 T. 663. Or a letter written by defendant to plaintiff acknowledging an indebtedness. Close v. Judson, 34 T. 288.

When suit is brought on an instrument in writing charged to have been executed by the adverse party, its execution can be put in issue only by a plea of non est factum, although the instrument on its face does not purport to be the act of the defendant. City Waterworks v. White, 61 T. 536, citing Drew v. Harrison, 12 T. 280; Kelly v. Kelly, 12 T. 452; Reid v. Reid, 11 T. 591; Persons v. Frost & Co., 25 T. Sup. 130; Prince v. Thompson, 21 T. 480; Sessums v. Henry, 38 T. 41; Ferguson v. Wood, 23 T. 177; Lewis v. Lowery, 31 T. 663; May v. Pollard, 28 T. 678; and overruling Compton v. Stage Co., 25 T. Sup. 78; Bradford v. Taylor, 61 T. 508.

An ancient instrument may be contested by proper evidence without an affidavit of forgery. Parker v. Chancellor, 73 T. 475, 11 S. W. 503.

Where suit is brought on a building contract which gives a mechanic's lien, and on the note given for the price, neither proof of execution nor filing and notice are required. Bosley v. Pease (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 516.

This article does not apply to an instrument alleged to have been executed by the grantor of the other party. Lignoski v. Crooker, 24 S. W. 788, 86 T. 324. See Durham v. Atwill (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 316. Or when it is an original and its execution is proved. McGehee v. Minter (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 718.

An ancient document, not forming the foundation of a pleading, may be impeached without a prior affidavit of forgery or plea of non est factum. McDonnell v. De Los Fuentes, 26 S. W. 792, 7 C. A. 136.

On an issue as to the title to land in which plaintiff relies upon a conveyance of the property to him, which conveyance is attacked as a forgery, the plaintiff may not introduce a copy of the conveyance in evidence before proving the execution of the original. Robbins v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 773.

Where a deed, offered in evidence, is attacked as a forgery, its execution must be proved in a manner satisfactory to the court to render it admissible in evidence. Id.

An instrument executed by a carrier's agent, reciting the receipt of $10.25 for re-shipment of certain household goods, held a receipt, and not a contract, the execution of which the carrier was bound to deny under oath as a condition to denying its validity. Anderson v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 358.

Suit against executor.—In a suit against an executor or administrator, his affidavit to the best of his knowledge and belief is sufficient. Tarpley v. Poage, 2 T. 139.

In a suit against an executor on his testator's note, a sworn plea by the defendant that he has reason to believe and does believe that his testator did not execute the note, is a sufficient plea of non est factum. Scott v. Menly (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 55.

Art. 3711. [2321] [2264] Evidence of appointment and qualification of executor, etc.—Whenever it may be necessary to make proof of the appointment and qualification of an executor, administrator or guardian, the letters issued to them in the manner provided by law, or a certificate of the proper clerk under his official seal that such letters have been issued, shall be sufficient evidence of the appointment and qualification of such executor, administrator or guardian. [Act Feb. 25, 1863, p. 5. P. D. 1286.]

Outler v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 1003. As to mode of putting in issue the capacity of a party to sue, see ante, Art. 1906.

In federal courts.—Proceedings of courts of probate come within the provisions of the statutes of the United States. Ante, Art. 3694; House v. House, 16 T. 600; Abercrombie v. Stillman, 77 T. 589, 14 S. W. 196. In the absence of allegation and proof of laws of another state, they are presumed to be similar to the laws of our state. A certificate of the appointment and qualification of the administrator of an estate, sufficient under the statutes of this state, is presumed to be so under the laws of any other state, the official character and signature of the officer giving the certificate being proved in the manner prescribed by the act of congress. Abercrombie v. Stillman, 77 T. 589, 14 S. W. 196.

Collateral attack on appointment.—See notes under Art. 3295.

Art. 3712. [2323] [2266] Suit on sworn account.—When any action or defense is founded upon an open account, supported by the affidavit of the party, his agent or attorney, taken before some officer authorized to administer oaths, to the effect that such account is, within the knowledge of affiant, just and true, that it is due, and that all just and lawful offsets, payments and credits have been allowed, the same shall be taken as prima facie evidence thereof, unless the party resisting such claim shall, before an announcement of ready for trial in said cause, file a written denial, under oath, stating that such account is not just or true, in whole or in part, and if in part only, stating the items and particulars which are unjust; provided, that, when such counter affidavit shall be filed on the day of the trial, the party claiming under such verified account shall have the right to continue such cause until the next term of court; when he fails to file such affidavit, he shall not be permitted to deny the account, or any item therein as the case may be. [Acts 1883, p. 110.]

See, also, Art. 1906, subd. 11.

What constitutes open account.—The word "account" applies to transactions between persons in which, by sale upon the one side and purchase upon the other, the title to personal property is passed from one to the other, and the relation of debtor and creditor is thereby created by general course of dealing; and it does not mean one or more isolated transactions resting upon special contract. McCamant v. Batsell, 59 T. 363; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 1 App. C. C. § 759; T. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 2 App. C. C. § 51. See Mullaly v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 666.

An account of a laborer is not an open account within the meaning of Art. 3712. A. & N. W. R. Co. v. Daniels, 62 T. 70.

In a suit on a verified account for goods sold and delivered at the several dates mentioned, and at prices specified, in accordance with the terms of a special contract, and upon a letter of credit or guaranty executed by a third person, it was held that the account was an open account. Moore v. Powers, 16 C. A. 436, 41 S. W. 707.

An open account is one in respect to which nothing has occurred to bind either party by its statements; an account which is yet fully open to be disputed. A stated account is an account of many items, based upon agreements as to each item as to the prices and the time of payment. It is only an open account that is provable by an affidavit under this article. Written Grain & Lumber Co. v. Mineola Box Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 745.

An isolated transaction by which a single article is sold at an agreed price is not such an account between the seller and buyer as may be verified under the statute in such a way as to dispense with proof by the seller suing for the price. Jacksboro Stone Co. v. Fairbanks Co., 48 C. A. 639, 107 S. W. 567.

An account in part for items due for salary under a contract, and in part for board, involves isolated transactions resting on special contract, and is not an account whereby the relation of debtor and creditor is created by a general course of dealing, and though the account is sworn to, defendant need not deny the same under oath. Bishop v. Mount (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 442.

Accounts within article.—An account for merchandise sold and delivered and money advanced is within the statute. Cahn v. Salinas, 2 App. C. C. § 104.

Accounts not within article.—Entries of money loaned or advanced. Cole v. Dial, 8 T. 347. It seems that books are admissible to prove the payment of cash to order, goods delivered to order, goods delivered and cash paid to a third person on account of the person charged. *Ward v. An account by a physician for his services. Garwood v. Schlichenmaier, 25 C. A. 176, 60 S. W. 574.

An account that does not appear to be an account for personal property sold and delivered by plaintiff to defendant in a general course of dealing. Oden & Co. v. Vaughn Grocery Co., 34 C. A. 115, 77 S. W. 967.

Time of filing affidavit to account.—The fact that an affidavit to the correctness of an open account was made more than four months before suit was brought does not prevent it constituting prima facie evidence, payments subsequent to its date being matters of defense. Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Affidavit after assignment of account.—An affidavit to an account, made after its assignment, will not support an action by the assignee. Carpenter v. Historical Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 685.

Nature of debt.—To entitle plaintiff to the benefit of this article it must appear that the debt claimed exists by contract between the parties to the suit, either express or implied, in other words, the action must be founded upon a contract. Davidson v. McCall Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 33.

Sufficiency of affidavit.—An affidavit which fails to state that an account is, within the knowledge of affiant, just and true, etc., is not in compliance with the statute, and if objected to should be excluded as evidence. Shandy v. Conrales, 1 App. C. C. § 235. And so where it does not state that "all just and lawful offsets, credits and payments have been allowed," and that the account is due, it will not support a judgment by default. Duer v. Endres, 1 App. C. C. § 323.

An affidavit that stated "that the several items of said account respectively mature as there stated," and it appeared that one of the items had not matured at the date of the affidavit, was held not to be in compliance with the statute. Shaunnessey v. Le Gierse, 1 App. C. C. § 379.

It is not an objection to an affidavit to account that it is made by one who was not a member of the plaintiff firm when the goods were sold and delivered. Moore v. Powers, 16 C. A. 436, 41 S. W. 707.

Affidavit verifying an account sued on examined, and held not sufficient to warrant judgment by default. Brin v. Washusetts Shirt Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 295.

An affidavit to an account that fails to state that the facts are "within the knowledge of affiant," and that "all just and legal offsets, credits and payments have been allowed," is bad, and judgment by default will be set aside. Id.

A verified account, attached as an exhibit to the petition, is properly excluded from evidence where it does not indicate the items thereof nor their nature. Pittsburg Plate Glass Co. v. Roquemore (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 449.

In an action on account made out against a third person, the variance between the account and the affidavit, charging defendant with liability thereon, held immaterial. Pelican Lumber Co. v. Johnson Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 439.

In an action on an open account, an affidavit verifying the account held insufficient as not being on the affiant's personal knowledge. Baggett v. Sheppard (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 952.

In an action on an open account, where the affidavit, attached to the petition and received in evidence as prima facie proof of the correctness of the account, was dated July 29, 1910, the fact that the account was dated September 27, 1910, did not render it defective, where it was apparent from other parts of the account that "1910" was inserted in the account in place of "1909" by a mere clerical error. Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

The omission of ditto marks in sworn copy of account, attached to petition and received in evidence, held not to render the account insufficient. Id.

Effect of affidavit to account.—An account with an accompanying affidavit, as required by the statute, with a certificate of the proper officer that it was sworn to, and of its filing and registration, is admissible in evidence; the certificate of the officer being prima facie evidence of the facts it recites. Stuart v. Broome, 59 T. 466.

The affidavit to a sworn account against a partnership proves the partnership as well as all the other facts necessary to make out a prima facie case. Carder v. Wilder, 1 App. C. C. § 14, citing Persons v. Frost, 25 T. 129.

While the affidavit to an attorney's account for services did not authorize a judgment, yet the account and affidavit formed a pleading in the justice court, and it was error to sustain an exception thereto. Craig v. Pruitt (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 586.

Where an account stands on the books in the name of a party and the goods, money, etc., were received by him, the burden of proving that the goods were purchased on the original undertaking of a third party, and were purchased by party who received the goods as agent of the said third party, and charged to him for convenience of said third party, is on the seller of the goods and this cannot be done by the affidavit required under this statute. Evidence sufficient to establish an original purchase of the goods by the third party must be produced. Shaw v. Gilmer (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 679.

A verified account is admissible in evidence, even though it is not such an account, as, when verified, makes it prima facie evidence of its verity. Its verification does not render it inadmissible. Standifer v. Bond Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 145.

The fact that an open account sued on was verified did not affect defendant's right to plead a counterclaim. Hallinan v. Levytansky, 46 C. A. 228, 102 S. W. 463.

A sworn answer in an action on an account held merely a plea of payment, and not to require the plaintiff to make proof of the various items. Oliver v. Edward Weil Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1109.

In an action on an open verified account, where the evidence showed certain payments appropriated by defendant firm and plaintiff to the payment of the account due from the firm to plaintiff, an instruction imposing the burden of proof on defendant to show direction to so appropriate the payments held properly denied. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

Counter affidavit.—The counter affidavit may be filed in the court where the cause is pending on appeal. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Norton, 1 App. C. C. § 403.

The affidavit should be according to the fact. The words "in whole or in part" should not be incorporated in the affidavit. Hensley v. Degener (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1130.

When an account is unjust in part it should be so stated in the controverting affidavit. Id.

A sworn denial of the sworn account sued on held insufficient for failure to clearly specify the items claimed to be incorrect. Eberstadt v. Jones, 19 C. A. 480, 48 S. W. 558.

Where the answer states that the account sued on "is not just or true in whole, or in part," it embodies a denial of the account as a whole, and the addition of the words "or in part," emphasizes the expression of its unjustness as a whole instead of qualifying it. Milam v. Ed. H. Harrell Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 825.

When the justness of a verified account sued upon is in writing, denied under oath by defendant, it is incumbent on plaintiff to establish the debt he claims against defendant in the same way he would be required to establish it had his account not been sworn to as permitted by the statute. Rust v. Sanger Bros. (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 66.

Where suit is brought on a private account, and defendant by a sworn plea in writing denies that any part of the account is just, the verified account is inadmissible; no other evidence being offered to show the indebtedness. Id.

Where defendant denied under oath the correctness of plaintiff's sworn account, it was not evidence of any fact. Pitman v. Bloch Queensware Co., 48 C. A. 320, 106 S. W. 724.

In an action on a sworn account, defendant's sworn plea, by admitting the correctness of the items of the account, made a prima facie case for plaintiff, though the plea also alleged that defendant was entitled to certain credits from the amount claimed as due, and the burden was upon defendant to establish such credits by other proof. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co. v. Jacobs, 57 C. A. 295, 122 S. W. 66.

A verified account held not admissible in evidence, notwithstanding the statute, in the absence of other evidence showing its correctness, where the opposing party filed an affidavit denying its correctness. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Western Coal & Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 245.

Where a verified account is denied by defendant under oath, plaintiff must establish his cause of action as in ordinary cases. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 735.

Affidavit of defendants, in action on an open verified account, denying the truth of the account and their liability to plaintiff, held sufficient to authorize admission of evidence tending to show that they were not liable. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

A defendant sued on an itemized account due from a firm, in which he had been a partner, who files a sworn plea denying that he was a partner when the items specified in the account were sold, need not file a controverting affidavit of the verified account. Rodgers-Wade Furniture Co. v. Wynn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 340.

Failure to file counter affidavit and effect thereof.—A verified account is only prima facie evidence, and the defendant, without filing a controverting affidavit, may under proper pleadings show that the debt has been paid (G., H. & S. A. R. Co. v. McTigue, 1 App. C. C. § 461), or set up a counterclaim (Bach, Meirs & Co. v. Ginocchio, 1 App. C. C. § 1316). But he cannot show that any of the items are incorrectly stated. Robinson v. Bogardus, 2 App. C. C. § 828; Cahn v. Salinas, 2 App. C. C. § 104.

A defendant may plead a counterclaim without denying, under oath, the justice and correctness of the plaintiff's verified account. Bach v. Ginocchio, 1 App. C. C. § 1316; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schwartz, 2 App. C. C. 759.

In suit on verified account, defendant's failure to file counter affidavit does not preclude him from showing payment or from setting up counterclaim. Moore v. Powers, 16 C. A. 436, 41 S. W. 707.

A defendant may show, without filing a counter affidavit, that an account has been paid, in whole or in part. He may also, under a proper plea, prove a counterclaim. Id.

In action on an unsworn account the items need not be proved to satisfaction of jury. Smith v. Mather (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 257.

In an action against a county to recover expenses incurred in caring for persons while quarantined, defendant should be permitted to cross-examine as to the items, though no affidavit of denial was filed before the trial, as required in actions on account by Art. 3642. King County v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 610.

Where a person guaranteed the payment of an account in such manner as to become primarily liable, such affidavit was sufficient to establish the account as against him, whether or not the buyer was made a party to the suit. Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Right to continuance.—Plaintiff sued upon an itemized verified account for goods sold, and on the day of trial defendant filed a sworn answer alleging that he owed plaintiff nothing when the petition was filed except $15, which was not then due and which he tendered into court, and pleaded accord and satisfaction and claimed certain credits not allowed in plaintiff's account which, with the exception of $15, was alleged to be a full settlement of the account. Art. 3712 provides that, when an action is founded on a verified open account, it shall be taken as prima facie evidence of that fact, unless the other party files a written denial under oath, provided that, when the counter-affidavit shall be filed on the day of trial, plaintiff shall have the right to continue the cause until the next term. Held, that the answer raised the issue of the truth of the verified account so as to entitle plaintiff to a continuance as a matter of right. Bergman Produce Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 153.

Books of account as evidence in general.—See notes under Art. 3687, Introductory, §§ 87-95, 131, 143.

Art. 3713. [677] [601] Records of corporation are evidence.—The records of any company incorporated under the provisions of any statute of this state, or copies thereof duly authenticated by the signature of the president and secretary of such company, under the corporate seal thereof, shall be competent evidence in any action or proceeding to which such corporation may be a party. [P. D. 5967.]

Foreign corporations.—The statutory requirement that a corporation shall keep minutes of the acts of its directors, and that certified copies thereof shall be admissible as evidence, will be applied to a foreign corporation, in the absence of evidence as to the requirements of the statutes of the state of its domicile. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 247.

Article 3714. [2324] [2267] Execution on judgment of district and county court, issued when.—From and after the adjournment of every district or county court, it shall be the duty of the clerk thereof to tax the costs in every case in which a final judgment has been rendered against the party liable therefor under such judgment, and which have not been paid by him, and to issue execution for the enforcement of such judgment and the collection of such costs. [Act June 4, 1873, p. 209, sec. 1. P. D. 3772.]

Includes all final judgments.—The provision in this article requiring execution to be issued covers all final judgments, and includes judgment of foreclosure of liens. Ryan v. Raley, 48 C. A. 187, 106 S. W. 752.

Final judgment.—See also notes under Title 37, Chapter 15.

Where judgment is rendered on affirmation by the appellate court, the district court may issue execution thereon. Cope v. Lindsey, 17 C. A. 203, 43 S. W. 29.

A judgment which does not dispose of all the parties is not a final judgment and will not authorize an execution thereunder. Texas Co. v. Beddingfield, 53 C. A. 10, 114 S. W. 894.

Payment and satisfaction of judgment.—A judgment once satisfied in full will not support another execution. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Herman Mfg. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 741.

The payment of a judgment by a stranger to it will operate as an extinguishment of it, unless there is some understanding that it is to be continued in force for the benefit of the person making the payment. After such payment the judgment will not support an execution, and a purchaser at an execution sale under such satisfied judgment acquires no title to land so sold. Terry v. O'Neal, 71 T. 592, 9 S. W. 673. So an order of sale on a judgment foreclosing a vendor's lien which has been settled is a nullity. Hardin v. Clark, 21 S. W. 977, 1 C. A. 565.

A judgment which has been paid will not support an order of sale or execution, and a sale under it would be a nullity, and a purchaser thereunder would acquire no title to the land by virtue of such sale. Hardin v. Clark, 1 C. A. 565, 21 S. W. 977; Geers v. Scott (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 292.

Execution creditor purchasing at sale cannot claim that the judgment was not entitled to credit to the amount of his bid. Willis v. Sanger, 15 C. A. 655, 40 S. W. 229.

Execution creditor purchasing at his sale may have the satisfaction of his judgment set aside upon its appearing that he acquired no title to the property purchased, although he had notice of the facts at time of sale. Hollon v. Hale, 21 C. A. 194, 51 S. W. 900.

The return of a sheriff on an execution, and entry of satisfaction of a judgment, will be set aside when the levy is made on property which the judgment debtor does not own. Massie v. McKee (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 119.

Where one of three defendants, against whom a joint judgment had been rendered, paid the entire sum due and took an assignment from the judgment creditor, the judgment was thereby extinguished, and the purchaser was not entitled to enforce contribution by execution. Deleshaw v. Edelen, 31 C. A. 416, 72 S. W. 413.

Parties, who by their pleadings have asserted only a right to subject to their execution one's interest in land, held not in a position to invoke exercise by the court of any equitable power to subject to payment of their judgment any equitable interest of such person in the land. Todd & Hurley v. Garner (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 314.

Entry of judgment.—An execution cannot be issued upon a judgment rendered, but not entered upon the minutes. Hubbart v. Willis State Bank, 55 C. A. 504, 119 S. W. 711.

The issuance of an order of sale on execution prior to entry of judgment is unauthorized. Hubbart v. Willis State Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 453.

An entry nunc pro tunc of a judgment theretofore rendered related back to the original rendition, and cured the irregularity of issuing an order of sale after rendition, but before entry, of judgment. Id.

Void or voidable judgment.—Where land is sold on execution issued on an erroneous but not void judgment, the error cannot avail the purchaser of land from the debtor, as against purchaser under execution. Focke v. Sterling, 18 C. A. 8, 44 S. W. 611.

An execution held void because it showed upon its face that it was issued under a void judgment. Underwood v. Brown, 29 C. A. 163, 68 S. 206.

A judgment against a nonresident rendered on service by publication only being void for want of jurisdiction over the defendant, an execution sale thereunder passed no title. Horst v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 643, 132 S. W. 761.

— Validation by amendment.—An execution, void because the judgment under which it was issued was void, cannot be validated by an amendment to the judgment subsequent to the issuance of the execution. Underwood v. Brown, 29 C. A. 163, 68 S. W. 206.

Judgment not providing for execution.—Execution sale held valid although execution issued on judgment which did not order its issue. Bludworth v. Poole, 21 C. A. 551, 53 S. W. 717.

An execution may issue on a judgment without any award thereof. Hartz v. Hausser (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 63.

An alias execution held properly issued on a judgment, notwithstanding there had been no specific direction for its issuance. Weddington v. Carver, 45 C. A. 68, 100 S. W. 786.

An execution may issue on a judgment not in terms providing therefor. Ryan v. Raley, 48 C. A. 187, 106 S. W. 750.

Persons entitled to execution.—See notes under Art. 3729.

Loss or destruction of judgment.—When it appeared that the docket of the justice of the peace was lost or destroyed, and executions dependent upon the judgment rendered by such justice, and the sheriff's deed was produced, accompanied by proof of possession of the land by the purchaser and those claiming under him, it should have been left to the jury to find whether there was such a judgment as recited in the executions. Walker v. Emerson, 20 T. 706, 73 Am. Dec. 207.

An execution issued on a judgment destroyed by fire before it was renewed is an irregularity, and the sale of property thereunder for one-fifteenth of its value will be set aside. Beckham v. Medlock, 19 C. A. 61, 46 S. W. 402.

Judgments of county court transferred.—As to execution on judgments of county court where jurisdiction has been transferred to the district court, see ante, Art. 1711. Under the former law it was held that the judgment of the county court in such cases should be recorded in the minutes of the district court before an execution should be issued. Richard v. Belcher, 25 S. W. 740, 6 C. A. 284.

Judgment in attachment suit.—A judgment against a nonresident in a suit by attachment without personal service operates only upon the attached property, is enforced by an order of sale, and will not support an execution. Barelli v. Wagner, 5 C. A. 445, 27 S. W. 17.

Recital of judgment.—See notes under Art. 3729.

Description of and recitals as to parties.—See notes under Art. 3729.

Execution for costs.—See Art. 3922.

Taxation of costs.—The taxing of costs is not an adjudication by the clerk of the items specified nor of the amount, but is simply the performance of a ministerial duty, which if erroneous may be corrected by the court upon a motion made for that purpose. Patton v. Cox, 97 T. 253, 77 S. W. 1027.

Officers may demand payment of costs pending suit.—See Art. 2032.

Time for issuance.—A first execution issued more than nine years on a judgment rendered in 1874 was held voidable in a suit instituted in 1886 to set aside such execution and sale. Garvin v. Hall, 83 T. 295, 18 S. W. 731.

The duty to issue an execution imposed on the clerk by this article, does not arise until application is made for the writ by the owner of the judgment, and where a judgment has been transferred in writing and filed and entered on the margin of the minutes of the court where the judgment was recorded in accordance with Art. 6833, only the transferee may apply for the issuance of an execution, and Arts. 2032-2034, giving officers of court a remedy for collection of their costs by execution, do not give any officer of the court any interest in the judgment. Arthur v. Driver (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 891.

Issuance to another county.—See notes under Art. 3726.

Injunction against execution.—See notes under Art. 4643.

Art. 3715. [2325] [2268] Execution before adjournment, when.—After the expiration of twenty days from and after the rendition of a final judgment in the district or county court, and after the overruling of any motion therein for a new trial or in arrest of judgment, if no supersedeas bond on appeal or writ of error has been filed and approved, the clerk shall issue execution upon such judgment upon the application of the successful party. [Id.]

Execution before adjournment.—The fact that the court rendering a final judgment has not adjourned at the time of the issuance of execution on such judgment is immaterial if 20 days have elapsed between the date of judgment and the date of the issuance of the writ. Bumpass v. Morrison, 70 T. 757, 8 S. W. 596.

Effect of premature issuance.—The premature issuance of an execution is an irregularity, but the writ must be respected until it is vacated in a direct proceeding for that purpose. Sydnor v. Roberts, 13 T. 600, 65 Am. Dec. 84; Boguess v. Howard, 40 T. 158; Morris v. Hastings, 70 T. 26, 7 S. W. 649, 8 Am. St. Rep. 570; House v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 640.

Effect of destruction of record.—The destruction or mutilation of the record does not divest the court or its proper officer of power to issue execution. McCormick v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 526. See Art. 6778.

Art. 3716. [2326] [2269] Execution issued before adjournment, superseded, when.—When an execution has been issued under the preceding article, and a supersedeas bond is afterward filed and approved within the time prescribed by law, the clerk shall immediately issue a writ of supersedeas suspending all further proceedings under such execution.

Recovery of land—Ninety days' time.—The 90 days' time in which a party is allowed to pay money as a condition to the recovery of land does not begin to elapse until the supreme court has refused a writ of error to the court of civil appeals. Then the judgment of the district court begins to have effect. It was suspended until then by appeal upon supersedeas bond. Fenton v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 201.

Art. 3717. [2326a] When judgment shall become dormant.—If no execution is issued within twelve months after the rendition of a judgment in any court of record, the judgment shall become dormant and no execution shall issue thereon, unless such judgment be revived; but, where the first execution has issued within the twelve months, the judgment shall not become dormant, unless ten years shall have elapsed between the issuance of executions thereon, and execution may issue at any time within ten years after the issuance of the preceding execution. [Acts 1895, p. 2.]

When judgment shall become dormant.—A judgment upon which an execution has been issued within one year, continues in force for ten years, and at any time during that period another execution might be issued and the judgment enforced without being revived. Maddox v. Summerlin, 92 T. 483, 49 S. W. 1033.

A dormant judgment is one that has not been satisfied or barred by lapse of time, but is temporarily inoperative, so far as the right to issue execution is concerned. Gale Mfg. Co. v. Dupree (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1048 (citing 3 Words and Phrases, p. 2183).

Judgment a cause of action.—Where no execution has been issued on a judgment within 12 months from its rendition, and none can be issued because of the inhibition of this article, and the judgment can only be revived under scire facias provided by Art. 5696, the judgment is a cause of action within the purview of Art. 5702, stopping the running of limitations during the absence of the defendant from the jurisdiction. Spiller v. Hollinger (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 338.

Limitation—Accrual of action.—Issuance of writ of garnishment held not an execution, so as to prevent a judgment being barred by limitations. Shields v. Stark (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 540.

Under Art. 2387, and this article, the cause of action on a judgment on which execution had been issued within the 12 months would not accrue until 10 years after the issuance of the last valid execution, and the 4-year limitations will start to run at that time, under Art. 5690, rather than under Art. 5696, providing for revival of a judgment by scire facias or an action of debt within 10 years after its date and not thereafter. Gale Mfg. Co. v. Dupree (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1048.

Validity of execution on dormant judgment.—While an execution sale made under a dormant judgment may be avoided by the defendant in execution, a stranger cannot object to such execution, or to the title of the purchaser at such sale, in a collateral proceeding. Boggett v. Howard, 40 T. 153; Riddle v. Turner, 52 T. 145; Meadre Co. v. Aringdale, 58 T. 447; Laughter v. Seela, 59 T. 177.

A sheriff's sale made under execution issued on a dormant judgment is voidable, and as to the purchaser who is a stranger to the proceeding it cannot be collaterally attacked. Hill v. Newman, 67 T. 265, 3 S. W. 271.

A sale under a dormant judgment is only voidable, and can only be attacked in a direct proceeding instituted for that purpose. Taylor v. Doom, 43 C. A. 59, 95 S. W. 4.

Execution on a dormant judgment is improper. Spiller v. Hollinger (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 338.

Revival of judgment.—Sale under execution, issued in favor of assignee, who caused judgment to be revived in assignor's name, held valid. Bludworth v. Poole, 21 C. A. 551, 53 S. W. 717.

Where judgment is defective because revived in favor of assignee in assignor's name, objection therefor must be taken by appeal, and cannot be raised collaterally, by suing purchaser for the land sold under execution pursuant to said judgment. Id.

Where plaintiff's judgment cannot be collected because defendant has no property in the state, and it is barred by the statute of limitations in the state in which he has property, plaintiff may sue on such judgment and obtain a new one. Stevens v. Stone, 94 T. 415, 60 S. W. 959, 86 Am. St. Rep. 861.

The issuance of an execution on a judgment of revivor only held an irregularity not affecting the title of the purchaser thereunder. Taylor v. Doom, 43 C. A. 59, 95 S. W. 4.

An execution may be issued under a judgment reviving an original judgment rendered dormant by failure to issue execution thereon within a year, though the judgment of revivor did not provide for execution. Id.

Art. 3718. [2327] [2270] Execution from justice's court.—Executions from the justices' courts shall issue as provided in the title relating to said courts.

Art. 3719. [2328] [2271] Execution issued on removal of property, etc.—Upon the filing of an affidavit that the party against whom a judgment for money, other than a judgment for costs only, has been rendered, is about to remove his property out of the county, or is about to transfer or secrete his property for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, the clerk may issue execution immediately. [Act Jan. 27, 1842, p. 66, sec. 3. P. D. 3774.]

Art. 3720. [2329] [2272] On death of plaintiff, execution issued how.—Where a sole plaintiff, or one of the several plaintiffs, shall die after judgment, execution shall issue on such judgment in the name of the legal representative of such deceased sole plaintiff, or in the name of the surviving plaintiffs, and the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff, as the case may require, upon an affidavit of such death being filed with the clerk, together with a certificate of the appointment of such representative under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court wherein such appointment was made. [Act Feb. 5, 1853. P. D. 13.]

See Simmang v. Cheney (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1198.

Affidavit—Recitals.—It is not necessary that the execution should recite that the affidavit had been filed, etc. Scott v. Lyons, 59 T. 593.

Right of surviving partner to issue execution.—Surviving partner may issue execution on judgment in favor of the firm. Corder v. Steiner (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 277.

Grounds for Injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3721. [2330] [2273] On death of executor, etc.—When an executor, administrator, guardian or trustee of an express trust dies or ceases to be such executor, administrator, guardian or trustee after judgment, execution shall issue on such judgment in the name of his successor, upon an affidavit of such death being filed with the clerk, together with the certificate of the appointment of such successor, under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court wherein such appointment was made. [Id.]

Art. 3722. [2331] [2274] On death of nominal plaintiff.—When a person in whose favor a judgment is rendered for the use of another dies after judgment, execution shall issue in the name of the party for whose use the suit was brought, upon an affidavit of such death being filed with the clerk.

Art. 3723. [2332] [2275] On death of defendant, no execution for money.—Where a sole defendant dies after judgment for money against him, execution shall not issue thereon, but the judgment may be proved up and paid in due course of administration. [Act Feb. 5, 1853. P. D. 14.]

May issue against surviving defendants.—Where one of several defendants dies, execution may issue against the remaining defendants. Turner v. Smith, 9 T. 626; Kendrick v. Rice, 16 T. 254.

Against estate in hands of independent executor.—Execution may issue against the estate of the decedent in the hands of an independent executor under a will. Art. 3363; Lemmel v. Pauska, 54 T. 505.

Issuance after death—Effect.—An execution issued after the death of the defendant on a judgment rendered before such death is void; and under an execution issued in the lifetime of the defendant, proceedings subsequent to his death are void. So held in Conkrite v. Hart, 10 T. 140; Boguess v. Lilly, 18 T. 200; Chandler v. Burdett, 20 T. 42; McMiller v. Butler, 20 T. 402; Emmons v. Williams, 28 T. 776. This rule is questioned in Webb v. Mallard, 27 T. 80. In Cook v. Sparks, 47 T. 28, held, that a sale after the death of the defendant will be set aside on motion. In Taylor v. Snow, 47 T. 462, 26 Am. Rep. 311, held, that such sale may be avoided within the proper time and manner by any party having an interest in the property; and that it is void as against the administrator of the deceased defendant and parties acquiring title through administration. See Bynum v. Gowan, 9 C. A. 559, 29 S. W. 1119.

Death after issuance—Effect.—Where a judgment for taxes was rendered against a purchaser of land subject to a vendor's lien, and he died prior to a sale of the land on execution, the sale was void. Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1070.

Collateral attack.—The death of the defendant before judgment cannot be set up in a collateral proceeding to avoid a judgment rendered after his death or sale thereunder. Taylor v. Snow, 47 T. 462, 26 Am. Rep. 311; Grassmeyer v. Beeson, 18 T. 753, 70 Am. Dec. 309; Mills v. Alexander, 21 T. 154; Thouvenin v. Rodrigues, 24 T. 469; Rodrigues v. Lee, 26 T. 32; Bohanan v. Hans, 26 T. 445; Moke v. Brackett, 28 T. 443; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336; Fleming v. Seeligson, 57 T. 524; Ewing v. Wilson, 63 T. 88.

Foreclosure of vendor's lien must be presented to administrator.—A judgment foreclosing the vendor's lien in favor of the vendor after the death of the defendant is a claim for money against the estate of the decedent and must be presented to the administrator for action thereon. A suit to revive such judgment brought by an assignee without such presentation, and the rejection of it, in whole or in part, cannot be maintained against the heirs of the defendant pending an administration. Jenkins v. Cain, 72 T. 88, 10 S. W. 391; Cain v. Woodward, 74 T. 549, 12 S. W. 319.

Abatement on death—Revival.—Where the time has elapsed in which administration could be had in the estate, holders of judgment against deceased should sue the heirs for their debt, or to revive the judgment that had abated by the death of the defendant. Fleming v. Ball, 25 C. A. 209, 60 S. W. 986.

Art. 3724. [2333] [2276] On death of defendant, execution for property.—In all cases of judgments other than money judgments, where the sole defendant, or one or more of several joint defendants, shall die after judgment, upon an affidavit of such death being filed with the clerk, together with the certificate of the appointment of a representative of such decedent, under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court wherein such appointment was made, the proper process on such judgment shall issue against such representative. [Id.]

Art. 3725. [2334] [2277] Terms "plaintiff" and "defendant" defined.—By the term, "plaintiff," as used in this title, is meant the party in whose favor judgment is rendered, and by the term, "defendant," is meant the party against whom judgment was rendered.

Art. 3726. [2335] [2278] County to which execution for money shall issue.—Where the execution requires that the judgment shall be made out of the property of the debtor, it shall be issued in the first instance to the county in which the judgment is rendered, and upon the return thereof that no property can be found, or not sufficient to satisfy the same, execution may be issued to any other county in the state. [Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3784.]

Issuance to another county.—An execution issued in the first instance to a county other than that in which the judgment was rendered is irregular, but not void. Smith v. Perkins, 81 T. 152, 16 S. W. 805, 26 Am. St. Rep. 794.

A first execution, issued to a county in which an abstract of the judgment had been filed, instead of the county in which the judgment was rendered, was void. Schneider v. Dorsey, 96 T. 544, 74 S. W. 526.

Effect of issuance to wrong county.—An execution improperly issued to a county other than that in which the judgment was rendered is not void. Earle v. Thomas, 14 T. 583; Hancock v. Metz, 15 T. 205.

An execution, such as is required by this article, if issued in the first instance to a county other than the one in which the judgment was rendered, is not void, but is irregular. It may be avoided at the instance of the defendant in the judgment. An officer is bound to execute such an execution, and can justify under the same. If it is levied and the property sold by virtue thereof, an innocent purchaser will acquire a good title. It is such an execution as is within the provisions of Art. 3717, and if issued within twelve months from the date of the judgment will prevent it from becoming dormant. Cabell v. Orient Ins. Co., 22 C. A. 635, 55 S. W. 610.

Issuance to wrong county—Effect on purchaser.—When execution is issued to another county, the title of the purchaser thereunder is not affected by the fact that defendant had ample property to satisfy the judgment in the county where the judgment was rendered which he failed to point out when called upon. Sydnor v. Roberts, 13 T. 598, 65 Am. Dec. 84.

Restraining issuance to wrong county.—An execution must be issued first to the county where the judgment is rendered and an execution issued to another county first can be enjoined. Norwood v. Orient Insurance Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 188.

Injunctions against.—See notes under Title 69.

Presumption as to issuance.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Issuance to another county prevents judgment becoming dormant.—Under this article, Art. 3727, providing that, where the execution requires the sale or delivery of specific property, it may be issued to the county where the property or some part of it is situated, and Art. 5617, providing that duly recorded judgments shall be a lien unless plaintiff shall fail to have execution issued thereon within 12 months after the rendition thereof, an execution issued to a county other than the one where judgment was rendered for the sale of attached property in such other county prevented the judgment becoming dormant without the issuance of an execution to the county in which judgment was rendered within 12 months. Kingman Texas Implement Co. v. Borders (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 614.

Art. 3727. [2336] [2279] Execution for property shall issue.—Where the execution, or any writ in the nature thereof, requires the sale or delivery of specific real or personal property, it may be issued to the county where the property, or some part thereof, is situated.

Tract situated in two counties.—The sale of an entire tract situated in two counties may be made in either. Miller v. Edinburgh-American L. & M. Co. (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 184.

Grounds for Injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3728. [2337] [2280] To different counties.—Process in the nature of an execution which requires only the delivery of real or personal property may be issued at the same time to different counties.

Art. 3729. [2338] [2281] Requisites of an execution.—The style of the execution shall be, "The State of Texas." It shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county, and shall be signed by the clerk or justice officially, and sealed with the seal of the court, if issued out of the district or county court. It shall correctly describe the judgment, stating the court wherein and the time when rendered, the names of the parties, the amount, if it be for money, and the amount actually due thereon, if less than the original amount, the rate of interest, if other than six per cent, and shall have the following requisites:

1. The several items of the bill of costs to be collected under the execution shall be indorsed thereon in intelligible words and figures.

2. If the judgment be for money simply, it shall require the officer to satisfy the judgment out of the property of the debtor, subject to execution.

3. If the judgment commands the sale of particular property for the satisfaction thereof, the writ shall be framed accordingly.

4. If the judgment be for the delivery of the possession of real or personal property, the writ shall require the officer to deliver the possession of the same, particularly describing it, to the party entitled thereto, and may, at the same time, require the officer to satisfy any costs, damages or rents and profits recovered by the same judgment, out of any property subject to execution of the party against whom it is rendered.

5. If the judgment be for the recovery of personal property or its value, the writ shall command the officer, in case a delivery thereof can not be had, to levy and collect the value thereof for which the judgment was recovered, to be specified therein out of any property of the party against whom the judgment was rendered, liable to execution.

6. It shall require the officer to satisfy the costs adjudged against the party, and the further costs of executing the writ, out of any property liable to execution of the party against whom the judgment was rendered.

7. When an alias or pluries execution is issued, it shall show upon its face the number of previous executions which have been issued on the judgment. [Const., art. 5, sec. 12. Act June 4, 1873, p. 209, secs. 1, 2. P. D. 3772.]

See Bailey v. Block, 104 T. 101, 134 S. W. 323.

Officer to whom writ may be directed.—An order of sale addressed to the sheriff of A. county is void in the hands of the sheriff of B. county. Steel v. Metcalf, 23 S. W. 474, 4 C. A. 313.

Previous executions.—Execution is not void for failure to state the number of executions previously issued. Corder v. Steiner (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 277.

Names of parties.—A failure to name the plaintiffs in a judgment, or a slight discrepancy between the verdict and judgment rendered, cannot be taken advantage of when such judgment is offered as a muniment of title to support a sheriff's deed made under it. Wyche v. Clapp, 43 T. 543.

A judgment rendered without giving in the entry the names of the parties, but in the caption giving the firm name, and no names being given in the body of the judgment, will support a sale under execution, reciting the names of all the parties, when the deed under such sale is collaterally attacked. Smith v. Chenault, 48 T. 455.

An execution against P. B. Clements is not supported by a judgment against J. B. Clements. Battle v. Guedry, 58 T. 111.

In 1867 G. recovered judgment against J. H. and F. C., it not appearing that any execution ever issued thereon. In 1881 execution was issued against S. C. and B. M. H., executors of the will of J. H., and directing that the judgment be satisfied out of the property of S. C. and B. M. H., executors, etc. Held, that the judgment did not support the execution or sale thereunder. Hart v. McDade, 61 T. 208.

The fact that there is a variance between the parties to the cause as they were designated in the execution and the judgment on which it issued is not sufficient to exclude a deed based on a sale under execution, it appearing that the cause was, in its progress, sometimes docketed as it appeared in the judgment and sometimes as recited in the execution. Haskins v. Wallet, 63 T. 214.

A sale under an execution which does not correctly state the name of the defendant is void. A correction of the execution without notice is void, and if made after the sale, upon notice, would not validate the sale. Morris v. Balkham, 75 T. 111, 12 S. W. 970, 16 Am. St. Rep. 874; McKay v. Paris Bank, 75 T. 181, 12 S. W. 529, 16 Am. St. Rep. 884.

An execution in the name of C. alone on a judgment in favor of C. & L. as partners is not authorized, and the sale is invalid. Cleveland v. Simpson, 77 T. 96, 13 S. W. 851.

By the pleadings the action was shown to be against "Gilbert L. M." Judgment against "Gabriel L. M." Execution against property of "G. L. M." Sale of property of "Gilbert L. M.," not void. Halsell v. McMurphy (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 777.

An execution on a money judgment must name the person whose property is to be subjected to its satisfaction. Capps v. Leachman, 90 T. 499, 39 S. W. 917, 59 Am. St. Rep. 830.

Variance between execution and judgment held harmless, and the judgment sufficiently identified as the one on which execution was issued. Harris v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 731.

A judgment and order for sale thereunder held to sufficiently show the judgment debtors. Day v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 107, 72 S. W. 426.

An execution omitting the names of plaintiff held not void, under Art. 2388. Collins v. Hines (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 359.

The failure of the execution part of an order of sale to state the name of the party out of whose property the unpaid balance of the judgment was to be made if the property named in the order of sale did not bring a sufficient sum to pay the judgment held an irregularity only. White v. Taylor, 46 C. A. 471, 102 S. W. 747.

A writ of execution reciting judgment obtained against "John Dalziel," when it should have been "James Dalziel," is fatally defective under Art. 3729. Harkey v. Day (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1195.

Statement of amount.—An execution correctly described the judgment, stating the court before which it was rendered, the date of its rendition and the names of the parties to the suit, but misdescribed the amount of the judgment by reciting it as being for $13.37, debt due and interest, when the judgment was for $12.50 principal and 6 per cent. interest. The variance was held not material in a collateral proceeding. Williams v. Ball, 52 T. 603, 36 Am. Rep. 730; Waters v. Spofford, 58 T. 115.

An execution is not void because issued for too large an amount. Jackson v. Finlay (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 427.

Variance between an execution and a judgment held not shown by reason of the fact that the execution was issued for a larger amount than the original amount of the judgment. Taylor v. Doom, 43 C. A. 59, 95 S. W. 4.

Recital as to date of judgment.—Where the description of a judgment in an execution was erroneous as to the date, but was otherwise correct, it did not render execution or sale thereunder void. Barnes v. Nix (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 202.

Description of property.—Description of property levied on, by which the property might be located by reference to records, held sufficiently definite. Focke v. Garcla (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 187.

Several executions.—Where several executions are issued on the same day, effect of. See Brackenridge v. Cobb, 21 S. W. 1034, 85 T. 448; Driscoll v. Morris, 21 S. W. 629, 2 C. A. 603.

Affidavit.—It is not necessary that the fact that an affidavit had been filed to obtain an execution instanter should appear in or upon the execution. Lebreton v. Lamaire (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 31.

Cannot issue against independent executrix, when.—An execution cannot issue against an independent executrix on a judgment recovered against the decedent and to which she was never made a party. Govan v. Bynum, 17 C. A. 180, 43 S. W. 319.

Order of sale.—An order of sale is governed by the same rules as other executions. Pierson v. Hammond, 22 T. 585.

Directions as to property to be taken.—An execution on a judgment which directed that execution issue to be levied upon the effects of the estate of A. C. H., deceased, which commands the sheriff "that of the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of E. H., executrix, and I. N. D., executor of A. C. H., deceased," he make the moneys adjudged, did not authorize or empower the sheriff to levy upon the property of the estate. Ante, Art. 3723. The defendants named in the writ were H. and D., and the additional description of them as the executrix and executor did not supply the place of a direction in the writ to levy upon the property of the estate, and sale of property of the estate thereunder is invalid. Hart v. McDade, 61 T. 212.

It is not a valid objection to the admissibility of a judgment in evidence as a link in a chain of title to land that it directs the execution to be levied upon the "effects" of the defendant. Unaffected by the context, the word "effects" is generally held to include only personal property, but no distinction could properly have been made by the court rendering the judgment between real and personal property, as both were equally subject to the debt, and it was not necessary for the judgment to define what property was to be levied on further than to indicate that it was to be satisfied out of the property of the defendant. Horton v. Garrison, 1 C. A. 31, 20 S. W. 773.

Conformity to judgment.—An order of sale directing sale for gold and for ten per cent. interest on the judgment, when the decree required a collection of "dollars" and interest at eight per cent., the variances were but irregularities and did not affect a sale thereunder. Hughes v. Driver, 60 T. 175.

A judgment was rendered for a sum certain and bore no interest. The execution under the judgment recited that the judgment bore ten per cent. interest. The judgment appeared to be against Ann H., the execution recited the judgment against Anna H. Held, that the irregularity of the execution did not render it void in a collateral proceeding. Fitch v. Boyer, 61 T. 336.

Execution held not issued in accordance with the judgment in the case. Wear v. Gillon (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 817.

Evidence held to establish that an execution that was lost followed the judgment, and was correctly issued. Turner v. Crane, 19 C. A. 369, 47 S. W. 822.

Execution reciting judgment reviving former judgment, and reciting former judgment, sufficiently describes said judgments to render execution sale valid. Bludworth v. Poole, 21 C. A. 551, 53 S. W. 717.

An execution held not void. Collins v. Hines, 100 T. 304, 99 S. W. 400.

Collateral attack.—The contradictions in the recitals in an execution and an indorsement thereon held not to render the execution void and a sale under it could not be collaterally attacked. Ayres v. Patton, 51 C. A. 186, 111 S. W. 1079.

The failure of an execution to state correctly the amount of the judgment and the costs is an irregularity which may justify the setting aside of the sale when sought in a direct action for that purpose, but does not render the sale void, and it cannot be attacked collaterally. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

Persons entitled to execution.—A judgment of a court can be transferred by parol, but in such case it must be enforced by execution in the name of the original plaintiff. Garvin v. Hall, 83 T. 295, 18 S. W. 731.

Issuance of execution.—The term "issue," as applied to an execution, includes its delivery to an officer for enforcement. Bourn v. Robinson, 49 C. A. 157, 107 S. W. 873.

Art. 3730. [2339] [2282] Returnable, when.—The execution shall be returnable to the first day of the next term of the court, or in thirty, sixty or ninety days, if so directed by the plaintiff, his agent or attorney. [Act June 4, 1873. P. D. 3775.]

No return day specified.—If no return day is specified in the execution it is returnable on the first day of the next term of the court from whence it is issued. Tillman v. McDonough, 2 App. C. C. § 52.

Sale after return day.—A sale of real estate made under an execution after the return day on the writ is void, and the purchaser acquires no title thereby. Towns v. Harris, 13 T. 507; Young v. Smith, 23 T. 598, 76 Am. Dec. 81; Hester v. Duprey, 46 T. 625; Mitchell v. Ireland, 54 T. 301; Tillman v. McDonough, 2 App. C. C. § 53; Haney v. Millican, 2 App. C. C. § 221. See Holloway v. McIlhenny, 77 T. 657, 14 S. W. 240; Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. 334; McKay v. Bank, 75 T. 181, 12 S. W. 529, 16 Am. St. Rep. 884; Terry v. Cutler, 23 S. W. 539, 4 C. A. 570.

Art. 3731. [2340] [2283] Indorsements by officer.—The officer receiving an execution shall indorse thereon the exact hour and day when he received it, and, if he receives more than one on the same day against the same person, he shall number them as received; and, on failure to do, or in case of false indorsement, he and his sureties shall be liable, on motion in the court from whence the execution is issued, three days' notice being given, to a judgment in favor of the plaintiff in execution for twenty per cent on the amount of the execution, together with such damages as the plaintiff in execution may have sustained by such failure or such false indorsement. [Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3780.]

Effect of noncompliance.—An execution sale may be valid as against the judgment debtor, though the execution was not indorsed as required by this article. Wilson v. Swasey (Sup.) 20 S. W. 48.

Penalty recoverable, when.—The penalty for failure to date and number is not recoverable where it does not appear that more than one execution has been received. De Witt v. Dunn, 15 T. 106.

Art. 3732. [2341] [2284] Execution levied on property of surety, when.—If it appear upon the face of an execution, or by the indorsement of the clerk, that of those against whom it is issued any one is surety for another, the levy of the execution shall first be made upon the property of the principal subject to execution and situate in the county in which the judgment is rendered. But, if property of the principal can not be found which will, in the opinion of the officer, be sufficient to make the amount of the execution, the levy shall be made on so much property of the principal as may be found, if any, and upon so much of the property of the surety as may be necessary to make the amount of the execution. [Act Feb. 5, 1858. P. D. 4786.]

In general.—A surety, codefendant with his principal in the judgment, has a right to protect himself by causing property of his principal to be taken in satisfaction of the judgment; and where he was also vender to his principal by title bond for the property taken in execution, and after sale under the execution, pursuant to his bond, makes a deed to his principal with general warranty of title, he is not liable on his warranty by reason of the sale of the property so made under execution. Kelso v. Pratt, 26 T. 381.

A surety on a note is entitled to have execution issued first against the maker; and, if he pays off the judgment, he is entitled to an execution against the maker for the amount paid. Hollimon v. Karger, 30 C. A. 558, 71 S. W. 299.

Article 2000, requires the judgment foreclosing a lien to be that plaintiff recover his debt with foreclosure, and, except in judgments against executors, etc., that an order of sale issue, directing seizure and sale as under execution, and if the proceeds be insufficient to satisfy the judgment, that any balance unpaid be satisfied out of defendant's property. Art. 6331 permits a surety when sued with his principal to have the question of suretyship tried, and Art. 6332 provides, if the findings favor the surety, execution shall be directed to be first levied upon the principal's property, and then upon the property of the surety, necessary to make up any deficiency. Held, that an estate which was surety on notes secured by a vendor's lien should be made a party defendant in an action against the principal debtor on the notes and to foreclose the lien, in order to enable the executrix of the estate to protect the equitable rights of the estate; and hence the principal could not be proceeded against alone in the district court for a personal judgment, and the claim afterwards prosecuted against the estate in the probate court. Hume v. Perry (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 594.

Surety may restrain, when.—Under this article a surety may not obtain an injunction to restrain a sale of his property under an execution, unless he shows by the execution that he is a surety, and that the principal has property in the county in which the judgment was rendered sufficient to satisfy the judgment. Denson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 811.

Sale of property of surety.—If, under execution against principal and surety, the property of both be seized, the sale of that belonging to the surety, without the sale of that belonging to the principal, would not render the sale void. Brackenridge v. Cobb, 85 T. 448, 21 S. W. 1034.

Release of surety.—When the issuance of an execution creates no lien on the debtor's property, the mere fact that the execution is held up by the creditor, unless it be so done in pursuance of a valid and binding agreement with the principal debtor, will not release the surety. Brown v. Chambers, 63 T. 131, citing Hunter v. Clark, 28 T. 159. See Parker v. Nations, 33 T. 210; Jenkins v. McNeese, 34 T. 189. See Art. 6333.

Notice of sale.—That notices of sale on execution of a surety's property did not show that a levy was attempted on the principal's property as required by the judgment, held not to make the sale void. Hillsman v. Cline (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 726.

Manner of levy.—In an action on certain notes and to foreclose a mortgage, the manner in which the execution should be levied stated. Trotti v. Gaar, Scott & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 670.

Art. 3733. [2342] [2285] On death, etc., of officers, enforced by successor.—If the officer receiving an execution die or go out of office before the return of any execution, his successor or other officer authorized to discharge the duties of the office in such case shall proceed therein in the same manner that such officer should have done.

Erroneous recital of deed.—The fact that the execution was levied by one sheriff and the deed recited that it had been levied by the maker thereof, who succeeded him in office, offers no valid objection to the deed. Haskins v. Wallet, 63 T. 213.

Art. 3734. [2343] [2286] Enforced without delay.—When an execution against the property of any person is issued to an officer, he shall proceed without delay to levy the same upon the property of the defendant not exempt from execution, unless otherwise directed by the plaintiff, his agent or attorney. [R. S. 1879, 2286.]

Levy not made—Effect.—If the levy of an order of sale is not in fact made, it is only an irregularity and the sale is not void. Patton v. Collier, 13 C. A. 544, 38 S. W. 53.

Sheriff cannot estimate deficiency from foreclosure sale and levy on other property.—Under Art. 2000, requiring a mortgage foreclosure judgment to direct the sheriff to sell the property and to make any deficiency out of the mortgagor's property, as in ordinary executions, and this article, a sheriff holding an order of sale under mortgage foreclosure cannot estimate in advance the proceeds that will probably result from the sale, and levy execution for the probable balance on other property, the judgment provided for by Art. 2000 and the writ thereunder being contingent as to any deficiency until it is rendered certain by sale of the mortgaged property; and a sale of mortgagor's general property under a foreclosure judgment before exhausting the mortgaged property is void. Bailey v. Block, 104 T. 101, 134 S. W. 323.

Art. 3735. [2344] [2287] Levy of execution.—The officer shall first call upon the defendant, if he can be found, or, if absent, upon his agent within the county, if known, to point out property to be levied upon; and a levy shall first be made upon the property designated by the defendant or his agent; provided, that if it be personal property, the defendant or his agent deliver the same into the officer's possession; or, if it be real estate, that he deliver to the officer a description thereof by metes and bounds, and that it be situated in whole or in part within the county. If, in the opinion of the officer, the property so designated will not sell for enough to satisfy the execution and costs of sale, he shall notify the defendant or his agent thereof; whereupon the latter may make an additional designation. [Act June 4, 1873, p. 209, sec. 2. P. D. 3775.]

See Fatheree v. Williams, 13 C. A. 430, 35 S. W. 324; Howard v. McBee (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 450.

Statute directory.—The statute is directory, and while a levy not made as required might be set aside on a proper proceeding, or the officer making it might be liable for damages, a sale would not necessarily be void. Pearson v. Flanagan, 52 T. 266; Odle v. Frost, 59 T. 684.

Statute giving defendant privilege of pointing out property is directory. Beck v. Avondino, 82 T. 314, 18 S. W. 690.

In an action against a sheriff for conversion, irregularity in a levy of execution held immaterial. Cox v. Patten (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 64.

Selection of property.—A failure of an officer to call upon a party to point out property will not be a ground for setting aside a sale on account of inadequacy of price, unless it appears that such irregularity conduced to the inadequacy of the sum bid. Allen v. Pierson, 60 T. 604.

The validity of a sale is not affected by the fact that the return failed to show that the owner was called upon to point out the property, or who pointed it out, or that the notice of sale was posted. Crabtree v. Whiteselle, 65 T. 111; Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 S. W. 769; Sydnor v. Roberts, 13 T. 598, 65 Am. Dec. 84; Odle v. Frost, 59 T. 684; Donnebaum v. Tinsley, 54 T. 362.

Where the defendant seeks to enjoin the sale on the ground that the levy was made in violation of his right to point out property, he must show that he pointed out property liable to execution sufficient to satisfy the sum; or if such other property is insufficient, that he requested the sheriff to levy on it and sell it before the property he desired to reserve, and that the sheriff in either case refused. Kingsland v. Harrell, 1 App. C. C. § 739, citing Ross v. Lister, 14 T. 469; Smith v. Frederick, 32 T. 256; Cook v. De La Garza, 13 T. 436; Barbee v. Helfin, 1 App. C. C. § 744.

The statute giving the defendant the privilege of pointing out property is directory, and the courts have refused to disturb sales when the defendant, for want of opportunity, has been denied the right. But when he promptly avails himself of his privilege and actually points out property his right cannot be ignored. Beck v. Avondino, 82 T. 314, 18 S. W. 690.

See Oppenheimer v. Robinson, 87 T. 174, 27 S. W. 95. The defendant or his agent has a right to designate property upon which execution shall be levied. Jackson v. Browning, 1 App. C. C. § 606.

An objection to a levy, because no opportunity to point out other property subject to sale was given, cannot avail where it is not shown that defendant had such, and desired it to be sold. Yett v. Iron City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1033.

A written description of the lots is not directly required by this article. A verbal designation of the property giving the number of the lots and the block and giving the name of the addition in which they are situated sufficiently points out the property. Beck v. Avindino, 68 S. W. 829, 29 C. A. 500.

Under this article, where an instrument departed from the requirements of a writ of execution, in that it directed the officer to levy upon certain specified real estate, instead of running against the judgment debtor's property generally, thus peremptorily depriving him of his statutory right to point out his property, the writ was a void process upon its face. Midkiff v. Bedell (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 271.

Under this article and Art. 3736, the judgment creditor need not point out the property to be seized and sold, and by a sale on execution all that passes at the sale is the title of the judgment debtor at the date of the levy or acquired between that time and the sale, and the creditor, in the absence of special circumstances is not estopped from subsequently acquiring a title from the common source of title as against the purchaser at the execution sale. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

Effect of failure to levy on property in order named.—A failure to levy upon property in the order named is immaterial, when it appears that the defendant had an opportunity to point out property to the officer before the levy was made and did not exercise that right. Anderson v. Oldham, 82 T. 228, 18 S. W. 557.

Delivery of personal property.—A defendant who fails to deliver personal property to the officer or to furnish him with some identification of it cannot defeat a levy on land. Anderson v. Oldham, 82 T. 228, 18 S. W. 557.

Levy upon exempt property—Officer's liability.—See Art. 7130.

Principal and surety—levy.—The principal debtor cannot require that the levy be made on the personal property of his surety, or of the surety on appeal of his codefendant, rather than on his own improved real estate. Kendrick v. Rice, 16 T. 254.

Amount of levy.—The value of the property which should be levied on by an officer levying execution stated. Mara v. Branch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 661.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3736. [2345] [2288] Failure of defendant to designate property.—If no property be thus designated, or if an insufficient amount of property be designated, it shall be the duty of the officer to levy the execution upon the property of the debtor, subject to execution in the following order:

1. On personal or movable property.
2. On uncultivated lands; and,
3. Upon cultivated lands. [Id. sec. 3.]

Property subject to execution.—Railroad shares are personal property and subject to levy and sale under execution. Baker v. Wasson, 53 T. 150.

An undivided interest of an execution debtor in land may be sold. Braden v. Gose, 57 T. 37; Aycock v. Kimbrough, 61 T. 543.

Where the party has paid part of the purchase-money for land, he has an interest therein subject to execution. Mooring v. McBride, 62 T. 309.

Real estate conveyed in fraud of creditors is subject to execution against the purchaser. Hawkins v. Cramer, 63 T. 99.

An interest in land pending proceedings for partition is subject to execution, even when the levy and sale are made to satisfy costs in a pending suit. Brown v. Renfro, 63 T. 600.

A judgment against a mercantile firm and its members authorizes an execution against the firm assets as well as the individuals composing the firm. Sanger v. Overmier, 64 T. 57; Burnett v. Sullivan, 58 T. 535; Railroad Co. v. McGaughey, 62 T. 271; De Camp v. Bates (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 644.

Annual crops fit for harvest may be levied upon as personal chattels. Horne v. Gambrell, 1 App. C. C. § 997.

Levy and sale of debtor's interest in land held good levy on land used as homestead. Beall v. Hollingsworth (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 881.

The fact that a debt was incurred after a trust resulted to the debtor does not preclude the creditor from subjecting the trust estate to the debt. Goodrich v. Hicks, 19 C. A. 528, 48 S. W. 798.

Interest of purchasers, cultivating land and having paid a part of the price, under an agreement for a deed on full payment, held liable to execution. Matula v. Lane (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 112.

Interest of beneficiary under resulting trust held subject to execution sale. Hirshfeld v. Howard (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 806.

A levy on a tenant's interest in a crop not removed from the premises held valid. Groesbeck v. Evans, 40 C. A. 216, 88 S. W. 839.

An assignment of a debtor's property to a trustee for the benefit of creditors held not to divest the title of the property from the debtor, which was, therefore, subject to execution. Peeples v. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 61.

A headright certificate, issued by the authority of the state, until located, is subject to seizure and sale on execution. Tompkins v. Creighton-McShane Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 306.

A mature and ungathered crop is not exempt from execution by reason of the nature of the property. Ellis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 602.

An officer having a surplus in his hands after a sale of property under execution and satisfaction of the judgment may subject it to a second execution against the defendant. Turner v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 839.

The equity of redemption in property mortgaged to secure a note is subject to levy and sale at the suit of other creditors. Hudson v. Childree (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1154.

Property not subject to execution.—Land contracted to be conveyed by a bond for title, the land to be selected by the purchaser and the contract depending upon payment by the purchaser, cannot be sold under execution. Daugherty v. Cox, 13 T. 209. Adverse possession of land, notice of title of occupant. Markham v. Parker (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 82.

Property reserved by law for the family and exempt from execution is not subject to be levied on even with the consent of the head of the family. And where such property is pointed out by the defendant in execution, the sheriff cannot properly receive it. Ross v. Lister, 14 T. 469. See Art. 3737.

Notes and accounts cannot be levied on and sold. Taylor v. Gillean, 23 T. 508.

A levy made by the sheriff on lands lying without the limits of his county is void. Alred v. Montague, 26 T. 732, 84 Am. Dec. 603.

An interest in land conveyed by parol contract, the enforcement of which is dependent upon equitable circumstances, is not subject to sale under execution against the purchaser. Hendricks v. Snediker, 30 T. 296; Edwards v. Norton, 55 T. 405; Day v. Stone, 59 T. 612; Mooring v. McBride, 62 T. 309.

A mere claim for compensation for improvements made on land is not subject to sale under execution. Hendricks v. Snediker, 30 T. 308; Mooring v. McBride, 62 T. 309.

Property in the hands of a receiver pending litigation is not subject to levy and sale until after the final decree; and a purchaser at a sale under execution acquires no title. Edwards v. Norton, 55 T. 405.

An uncertain equitable interest in land is not subject to sale under execution. Id.

Property sold under an executory contract, by the terms of which the title remains with the seller until a deferred payment of purchase money is made, is not subject to sale under execution against the purchaser until the amount due is paid or tendered to the vendor. City National Bank v. Tufts, 63 T. 113.

An interest in land growing out of the vendor's lien is not subject to sale under execution. Willis v. Sommerville, 22 S. W. 781, 3 C. A. 509; Davis v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 435.

An interest in land acquired under a lease which does not permit a subletting is not subject to sale under execution. Moser v. Tucker, 26 S. W. 1044, 1105, 87 T. 94.

An execution against a husband and wife for a tort may be levied on the separate property of the wife, though it contains no specific directions for levy against such estate. Taylor v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1048.

A leasehold interest, in which lessee has no general power to sublet, held not subject to levy and sale. Boone v. First Nat. Bank, 17 C. A. 365, 43 S. W. 594.

Execution levied on property sold under a fraudulent attachment against the judgment debtor creates no lien. Murphy v. Nash (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 944; Same v. Harlock, Id.; Same v. Deaderick, Id.

Neither taxes and public revenue, nor property acquired in collecting same, can be seized under execution against city. Gordon v. Thorp (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 357.

A spendthrift trust cannot be subjected to the payment of beneficiary's debts. Wood v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 381.

If execution debtor does not tender the officer personal property sufficient to satisfy the judgment, he cannot complain of the levy upon his land. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 986.

Where, in an action by a divorced wife to collect alimony in the divorce decree for the support of a child, on the husband's death pending the action, the payment of the amount should not be enforced by execution, but certified to the county court. Schultze v. Schultze (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

A vendor of land who has transferred the lien notes held to have no interest in the land subject to sale under the execution. Brotherton v. Anderson, 27 C. A. 587, 66 S. W. 682.

Where, in divorce proceedings by the wife, a homestead which is community property is set apart for the use of the wife and minor children, it is not subject to sale on execution against the divorced husband. Holland v. Zilliox, 38 C. A. 416, 86 S. W. 36.

The interest of a vendor in land which has been sold on a credit and a lien retained to secure the payment of the purchase money held not subject to levy and sale under execution. Rutherford v. Mothershed, 42 C. A. 360, 92 S. W. 1021.

One's interest in land from ownership of notes secured by vendor's lien thereon held not subject to execution. Todd & Hurley v. Garner (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 314.

Where, pending a suit to subject a husband's alleged interest in land to plaintiff's judgment, plaintiff caused the husband's interests to be advertised for sale on execution, it was not error to refuse to dissolve the execution on motion. Skinner v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 426.

The law in force when property is acquired affecting its liability to be taken in execution does not become a part of the contract of purchase. Lyon & Matthews Co. v. Modern Order of Prætorians (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 29.

Selection of property.—See notes under Art. 3735.

Order of sale.—When execution defendant made no tender of personal property sufficient to satisfy the judgment, he cannot recover damages on the ground that execution was levied on his land without a levy first being made on his personal property. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 984.

Execution sale of land set aside, the debtor having sufficient personalty to satisfy the debt. Johnson v. Daniel, 25 C. A. 587, 63 S. W. 1032.

Power of courts of equity.—The power of courts of equity to aid the infirmity of the law and reach personal property is discussed in Price v. Brady, 21 T. 614; Taylor v. Gillean, 23 T. 508; Arthur v. Batte, 42 T. 159.

Priorities—Sales.—A sale of land under execution against a distributee of an estate is subject to a prior sale made under order of court, and enforcing a lien against the property of the estate. Query, as to the right of the purchaser at execution sale. Bradshaw v. House, 43 T. 143.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3737. [2346] [2289] Property not to be designated.—A defendant in execution can not point out property which he has sold, mortgaged or conveyed in trust, or property exempt from forced sale.

Art. 3738. [2347] [2290] Property sold, etc., can not be levied on, when.—Property which the judgment debtor has sold, mortgaged or conveyed in trust shall not be seized in execution, if the purchaser, mortgagee or trustee shall point out other property of the debtor in the county sufficient to satisfy the execution.

Art. 3739. [2348] [2291] Levy on real estate.—In order to make a levy on real estate, it shall not be necessary for the officer to go upon the ground, but it shall be sufficient for him to indorse such levy on the writ.

Sufficiency of levy.—A levy and sale are void for uncertainty where the undivided half interest of R. and O. is levied on and sold, and R. and O. each individually owned such undivided half interest. Rogers v. Bradford, 56 T. 630.

— Signature.—It is not necessary that the indorsement of levy be signed when it is made; it is sufficient if the return, of which the levy forms a part, is signed. Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 Am. Dec. 769; Miller v. Alexander, 13 T. 497, 65 Am. Dec. 73.

Indorsement on execution.—The failure of an officer to indorse a levy on execution cannot affect the rights of a purchaser on a collateral attack. Davis v. Hornbell (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 972.

— Description of land.—Land should be described in the levy with sufficient certainty to identify it. Coffee v. Silvan, 15 T. 354, 65 Am. Dec. 169; Alexander v. Miller, 18 T. 893, 70 Am. Dec. 314; Wilson v. Smith, 50 T. 365; Wooters v. Arledge, 54 T. 395; Mitchell v. Ireland, 54 T. 301; Donnebaum v. Tinsley, 54 T. 362.

A levy upon a tract of land subdivided into town lots is insufficient unless the separate lots levied upon are specified in the return upon the writ. Railway Co. v. Harrison, 72 T. 478, 10 S. W. 556.

The description of land upon which a levy is made is sufficient, when reference is made to the record of deeds in a named county by which it can be made certain. Brown v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 145.

A description of the lands in the levy held void for uncertainty. Hayes v. Gallaher, 21 C. A. 88, 51 S. W. 280.

Levy on land under execution, describing same as "the Tide Haven tract on Trespalacios, less 177 acres," held sufficient. Bludworth v. Poole, 21 C. A. 551, 53 S. W. 717.

Property not subject to execution.—See notes under Art. 3735.

Art. 3740. [2349] [2292] On personal property.—A levy upon personal property is made by taking possession thereof, when the defendant in execution is entitled to the possession; where the defendant in execution has an interest in personal property, but is not entitled to the possession thereof, a levy is made thereon by giving notice thereof to the person who is entitled to the possession, or one of them when there are several.

See Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 685.

Personal property.—Sufficiency of levy.—To constitute a levy upon personal property it is necessary for the officer to take actual possession thereof, or to so control it as that he would be guilty of trespass against the owner but for the writ under which he acts. Freiberg v. Johnson, 71 T. 558, 9 S. W. 455.

Where officer goes with an execution to defendant's store, which is locked, and without gaining entrance, nails strips across the door, and reads the writ, and notifies defendant, there is no levy. Lynch v. Payne (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 406.

Judgment creditor, levying on one part of property in possession of defendant, must do so by actual seizure. Hunstock v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 675.

Facts held not to show a completed levy of execution. Adoue v. Wettermark, 36 C. A. 585, 82 S. W. 797.

— Possession.—The act of possession must be according to the nature of the property; if it be goods, they should be within the officer's view and subject to his control. Or, he should perform some open act in pursuance of his title in relation thereto which would divest the possession of the defendant. Bryan v. Bridge, 6 T. 137; Portis v. Parker, 8 T. 23, 58 Am. Dec. 95; Converse v. McKee, 14 T. 20; Brown v. Lane, 19 T. 203; Grove v. Harris, 35 T. 320; Osborne v. Koenigheim, 57 T. 91.

A levy upon a "stock of goods, wares and merchandise," appraised at a designated sum, is insufficient. Messner v. Lewis, 20 T. 221. See Bourcier v. Edmondson, 58 T. 675.

When the officer goes to the defendant's locked store, and in the way of levy on goods within the store, nails strips across the door, and reads the execution in front of the house, and notifies the defendant, there is no levy. Lynch v. Payne (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 406.

In levying on the undivided interest of the debtor in personal property, in possession of one of the owners the officer has no authority to take possession of the property, and the levy would be properly made by giving notice to the one in possession. Hubert v. Hubert, 46 C. A. 503, 102 S. W. 950.

Under Art. 255, requiring an attachment to be levied as an execution on similar property is levied, and this article, an officer in attaching wood stacked on land must perform such possessory acts or take such undoubted control as to constitute a trespass; a "trespasser" being one who unlawfully enters on or intrudes on another's land, or who unlawfully and forcibly takes another's personalty. Jones & Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 116.

— Confusion of goods.—When the goods of the husband subject to a levy are commingled with other goods not subject to levy, and which are the separate property of the wife, the levy may be made on the interest of the husband, in analogy to the remedy given against partners for individual debt. Brown v. Bacon, 63 T. 595.

Levy, how made, where there is a confusion of goods, see Evans Co. v. Reeves, 26 S. W. 219, 6 C. A. 254.

— Third party entitled to possession.—If property is levied on by seizure and not by notice in the hands of a third party who is entitled to possession the creditor does not secure a lien. Sutton v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 932.

— Transferee in fraud of creditors.—A levy on property claimed by a transferee in fraud of creditors can only be made by taking possession thereof. Kessler v. Half, 21 C. A. 91, 51 S. W. 48.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3741. [2350] [2293] On stock running at large.—A levy upon horses, mules, jacks, jennets, horned cattle or hogs running at large in a range, and which can not be herded and penned without great inconvenience and expense, may be made by designating by reasonable estimate the number of animals and describing them by their marks and brands, or either; such levy shall be made in the presence of two or more credible persons, and notice thereof shall be given in writing to the owner or his herder or agent, if residing within the county and known to the officer.

Running at large in the range.—"Running at large in the range" will apply to cattle in a pasture of four hundred thousand acres, and including parts of three counties, intersected with roads, although the entrances may be guarded. Construing this article and Art. 3763, a levy and sale is not restricted to cattle within the county of the officer at the time of the levy and sale. The levy and sale confers upon the purchaser the right to gather, pen and select the stock wherever found. A sale not made in compliance with the provisions of the statute confers no title. Gunter v. Cobb, 82 T. 598, 17 S. W. 848.

A range levy made on cattle described as "running at large on the range in Motley county" is sufficient, in not appearing that the cattle ranged in adjoining counties. Sparks v. McHugh (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1045.

Stock in inclosure.—A range levy cannot be made upon stock in an inclosure containing 1280 acres of land. Cope v. Lindsey, 17 C. A. 203, 43 S. W. 29.

This article does not authorize a range levy upon stock in an inclosure containing 1280 acres of land. Lindsey v. Cope, 91 T. 463, 44 S. W. 276.

In custodia legis after levy.—Horses levied on as they run in the range are in custodia legis, and the sheriff on removal of the property from the county may pursue and recapture them. Rice v. Miller, 70 T. 613, 8 S. W. 317, 8 Am. St. Rep. 630.

Debtor retains control.—After a levy the owner remains in control for the purpose of caring for the stock. Id. See Gunter v. Cobb, 17 S. W. 848, 82 T. 598; Davis v. Dallas Nat. Bank, 26 S. W. 222, 7 C. A. 41.

Cattle owned by defendant and others.—Effect of levy on cattle the property of defendant and others. Donald v. Carpenter, 27 S. W. 1053, 8 C. A. 321.

Art. 3742. [2351] [2294] Levy on shares of stock, etc.—A levy on the stock of any corporation or joint stock company is made by leaving a notice thereof with any officer of such company. [Act March 13, 1875, p. 102.]

Levy in general.—A levy of the execution not in compliance with this article is void. Wagner v. Marple, 10 C. A. 505, 31 S. W. 691.

Requisites of a valid levy on personalty belonging to a partnership, to pay the debt of an individual partner, or on personalty in the hands of a trustee, stated. Sumner v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 825.

Amount of stock.—If by any proper means the officer holding an execution can ascertain the number of shares of stock owned by the debtor, he may levy the execution upon so many as may be proper to satisfy it in the manner directed by the statute. But if he neither possesses nor can acquire such knowledge, the creditor should resort to the process of garnishment, through which he may reach the shares of stock and get a sufficient description of them and then have them sold under execution. Keating v. Stone & Sons' Live-stock Co., 83 T. 467, 18 S. W. 797, 29 Am. St. Rep. 670. See Smith v. Traders' Nat. Bank, 74 T. 457, 12 S. W. 113.

Art. 3743. [2352] [2295] Interest of partner.—A levy upon the interest of a partner in partnership property is made by leaving a notice with one or more of the partners, or with a clerk of the partnership.

See Jones & Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 116; Jones v. Lawrence, 151 S. W. 584 (dissenting opinion); Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 294.

Article exclusive.—This article excludes any other mode of levying upon the interest of a partner in partnership property. At common law only the interest of the partner remaining after the debts were settled could be sold; this ordinarily could be ascertained only by an account through a bill in equity. St. Louis Foundry v. Publishing Co., 74 T. 651, 12 S. W. 842, 15 Am. St. Rep. 870; Middlebrook v. Zapp, 79 T. 321, 15 S. W. 258. See same case, 73 T. 29, 10 S. W. 732; Clafin v. Pfeiffer, 76 T. 469, 13 S. W. 483.

Sufficiency of levy.—When an execution against the individuals composing a mercantile firm is levied on certain lots as the property of the firm, and a sheriff's deed conveys to the purchaser the estate, etc., of the firm, the interest or estate of an individual member of the firm will not pass by the sale. Rogers v. Bradford, 56 T. 630.

Where goods are conveyed by a partnership, to be applied to the payment of debts, the interest of the firm is subject to legal process at the suit of other creditors, to be executed in the manner pointed out in this article. Jackson v. Harby, 65 T. 710; Garrity v. Thompson, 64 T. 697; Stiles v. Hill, 62 T. 429; Raysor v. Reed, 55 T. 266.

When the execution is levied upon partnership property the officer does not take possession of it. When the officer sells it under execution he does not deliver it to the purchaser, as in ordinary cases of the sale of personal property; but the purchaser becomes the legal owner of whatever interest the execution debtor may have in the same, and he is left to ascertain and adjust the interest with the other partners and with the creditors of the partnership. Howell v. Jones, 3 App. C. C. § 208.

Building material was delivered by a contractor, who received a part of the purchase-money. A levy of a writ of attachment against the contractor cannot be made by the seizure of the material, but should be made by notice to the purchaser. Ellis v. Bonner, 80 T. 198, 15 S. W. 1045, 26 Am. St. Rep. 731.

Omission of fixtures from the notice of levy on a partner's interest in a stock of firm merchandise held not to affect the validity of the levy as to the other property seized. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 553.

A levy made by seizing property instead of giving notice as required by this and Art. 3740, though one of the claimants was in possession as joint owner, was not void however irregularly made. Davis v. Jones, 32 C. A. 424, 75 S. W. 64.

A levy upon the interest of a defendant in a business partnership cannot be made under the statute by leaving a notice with the defendant in execution, but it is necessary for the execution creditor and the partner or partners whose interest is not levied upon that the statute be construed as requiring such notice to be left with one or more of the partners other than the defendant in execution or with a clerk of the partnership. Adoue v. Wettermark, 36 C. A. 585, 82 S. W. 799.

Under this article actual seizure of the attached property is not contemplated. If levy is made upon the interest of the partner and notice given as required by this article, it is sufficient. Seal v. Holcomb, 48 C. A. 330, 107 S. W. 917.

Partnership property subject to execution against partner.—A levy of an execution to satisfy the separate debt of one of a firm cannot be defeated by any subsequent agreement between the partners. Thompson v. Tinnin, 25 T. Sup. 56.

Partnership property may be sold under a judgment and execution against one of the partners. Halsell v. McMurphy, 23 S. W. 647, 86 T. 100.

A seizure and sale of partnership property under an execution against a member of the firm are wrongful acts for which the creditor is responsible in damages. Currie v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 147.

Levy of attachment.—Though an attachment for debt of one of the partners of a firm was voidable only and regular on its face, its levy on partnership property, in a manner other than that prescribed by this article, was wrongful. First State Bank of Hamlin v. Jones & Nixon (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 671.

The levy of an attachment upon the interest of a partner in partnership property must be made by leaving notice with one or more of the partners, or with the clerk of the partnership, or it is void. Id.

Partnership debts.—Partnership debts are entitled to priority of payment out of the partnership effects before the individual debts of one of the firm. Converse v. McKee, 14 T. 20; Rogers v. Nichols, 20 T. 719; De Forest v. Miller, 42 T. 34; Longcope v. Bruce, 44 T. 434; Bradford v. Johnson, 44 T. 381; Weaver v. Ashcroft, 50 T. 427; Thompson v. Tinnin, 25 T. Sup. 56. See, also, Grant v. Williams, 1 App. C. C. § 363; Schley v. Hale, 1 App. C. C. § 930.

Partnership property in hands of trustee.—A levy upon and seizure of partnership property in the hands of a trustee for the payment of debts, the execution being against one of the partners, is unlawful; and the trustee is entitled to an injunction to compel a restoration of the property, upon a showing that the remainder of the stock would be greatly depreciated in value by the seizure and the trust estate thereby greatly damaged. An action for a trial of the right of property, or against the officer for damages, is not an adequate remedy. Sumner v. Crawford, 91 T. 129, 41 S. W. 994.

— Confusion of goods.—See notes under Art. 3740.

Art. 3744. [2353] [2296] Goods pledged or mortgaged.—Goods and chattels pledged, assigned or mortgaged as security for any debt or contract, may be levied upon and sold on execution against the person making the pledge, assignment or mortgage subject thereto; and the purchaser shall be entitled to the possession when it is held by the pledgee, assignee or mortgagee, on complying with the conditions of the pledge, assignment or mortgage. [R. S. 1879, 2296.]

Rights of mortgagee out of possession.—A mortgagee out of possession has no right of action against a creditor who sells mortgaged property under execution. Wright v. Henderson, 12 T. 43; Gillian v. Henderson, 12 T. 47; Joost v. Scott, 19 T. 473; Belt v. Raguet, 27 T. 471; Parker v. Benner, 1 App. C. C. § 64; Robinson v. Veal, 1 App. C. C. § 311; Gammage v. Silliman, 2 App. C. C. § 14.

A purchaser at execution sale against the mortgagor in possession has a superior title and right of possession, but subject to the equitable rights of the mortgagee. Silliman v. Gammage, 55 T. 365.

Remedies of mortgagee or pledgee.—Where property in possession of a mortgagee or pledgee is seized by the sheriff, and the pledgee's possession is disturbed, he is entitled to the statutory remedy to try the right to the property. Osborne v. Koenigshelm, 57 T. 91; Erwin v. Blanks, 60 T. 583; Garrity v. Thompson, 64 T. 597.

Trial of the right of property.—See Art. 7791.

Sufficiency of levy.—See notes under Art. 3743.

Property subject to execution.—See notes under Art. 3746.

Art. 3745. [2354] [2297] Shares of stock may be sold.—Shares of stock in any joint stock or incorporated company may be sold on execution against the person owning such stock. [Act March 13, 1875, p. 102.]

Interest subject to garnishment.—See notes under Art. 3742.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3746. [2355] [2298] Duty of officer as to property in his hands.—The officer shall keep securely all personal property levied on by him for which no delivery bond has been given; and, if any injury or loss should result to any party interested by his negligence, he and his sureties shall be liable to pay the value of the property so lost or the amount of injury sustained, and ten per cent thereon, to be recovered by the party injured on motion, three days' notice being given in the court from which the execution issued. [Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3782.]

Satisfaction presumed from levy, when.—The levy of an execution on personal property is, as a general rule, prima facie evidence of the satisfaction of the execution; but this presumption does not arise when possession remains with the defendant in execution. Cravens v. Wilson, 48 T. 324; Garner v. Cuttler, 28 T. 175; Cornelius v. Burford, 28 T. 203, 91 Am. Dec. 309; Heilbronner v. Douglas, 45 T. 402.

Sale of personalty before possession.—A sale of personal property not present at the time of the levy and sale, or in some way under the control of the officer, is void, except in those cases where it is otherwise expressly provided by statute. Brown v. Lane, 19 T. 203. See Arts. 3741-3744.

Trial of right of property.—An officer who has surrendered personal property to a claimant cannot, before the trial, return the bond to the maker and receive the property. Durst v. Padgitt, 24 S. W. 666, 5 C. A. 304.

Art. 3747. [2356] [2299] Expenses for keeping property.—The officer shall be authorized to retain out of the proceeds of personal property sold upon execution all reasonable expenses incurred by him in making the levy and keeping the property. [Id.]

Compensation for caring for live stock.—In view of Arts. 2000 and 7101, held, a court might properly allow a sheriff compensation in a proceeding against him to recover money collected by him under an order of sale, in which the sheriff filed an answer, claiming compensation for taking care of live stock levied on, which was equivalent to a motion to retax costs. Coleman Nat. Bank v. Futch (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 957.

Art. 3748. [2357] [2300] Defendant may give delivery bond and keep property.—Any personal property taken in execution may be returned to the defendant by the officer upon the delivery by the defendant to him of a bond, payable to the plaintiff, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the officer, to the effect that the property shall be delivered to the officer at the time and place named in the bond, to be sold according to law, or for the payment to the officer of a fair value thereof, which shall be stated in the bond. [Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3778.]

Privilege to defendant only.—The privilege of retaining possession is given to the defendant only. Harris v. Shackelford, 6 T. 133.

Lien released by acceptance of bond.—Whatever lien was created by the levy, was released by the acceptance of the delivery bond, unless the property was afterwards voluntarily delivered to the officer to be sold under the original levy. Webb v. Caldwell (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 98.

Grounds for Injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3749. [2358] [2301] Property may be sold by defendant.—Where property has been replevied, as provided in the preceding article, the defendant may sell or dispose of the same, paying the officer the stipulated value thereof.

Art. 3750. [2359] [2302] Forfeited delivery bond.—In case of the non-delivery of the property according to the terms of the bond, and non-payment of the value thereof, the officer shall forthwith return the bond, indorsed, "forfeited," to the clerk of the court from which execution issued; whereupon, if the judgment remain unsatisfied in whole or in part, the clerk shall issue execution against the principal debtor and the sureties on the bond for the amount due, not exceeding the stipulated value of the property, upon which execution no delivery bond shall be taken, which fact shall be indorsed by the clerk on the execution. [Id. P. D. 3779.]

Original judgment.—The statutory judgment against the sureties on a forfeited bond does not discharge the original judgment. Cole v. Robertson, 6 T. 356, 55 Am. Dec. 784.

Presumption as to return.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Effect of forfeiture.—The forfeiture of a bond operates as a judgment (Smith v. Basinger, 12 T. 227; Burton v. Miller, 14 T. 299), which cannot be set aside except by direct proceedings for that purpose (Testard v. Neilson, 20 T. 139).

Art. 3751. [2360] [2303] Real property sold, how.—Real property taken by virtue of any execution shall be sold at public auction, at the court house door of the county, on the first Tuesday of the month, between the hours of ten o'clock, a. m. and four o'clock p. m. [Id. P. D. 3776.]

Marion county.—By the act of January 25, 1875, the sale of property under legal process and deeds of trust in Marion county is required to be made at the northeast corner of Austin and Walnut streets, in the city of Jefferson. Sp. Laws 14th Leg., S. S., p. 6. This act was repealed by the act of April 9, 1883 (18th Leg. p. 54).

Effect of noncompliance.—A sale at a time or place other than that prescribed by law is void. Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 Am. Dec. 769; Brown v. Christie, 27 T. 73; Grace v. Garnett, 38 T. 156; Sinclair v. Stanley, 64 T. 67. Parol evidence is admissible to prove irregularities in a sheriff's sale. Grace v. Garnett, 38 T. 156.

Sale after return day.—A sale of land after return day of execution is void. Hester v. Duprey, 46 T. 625; Mitchell v. Ireland, 54 T. 301; Cain v. Woodward, 74 T. 549, 12 S. W. 319; Terry v. Cutler, 23 S. W. 539, 4 C. A. 570.

Tuesday, a legal holiday.—Sales may be made on Tuesday, although it is a legal holiday. Crabtree v. Whiteselle, 65 T. 111.

Sheriff cannot sell land lying without county.—A sheriff has no power to sell lands lying without the limits of his own county. When the land lies partly in his own and partly in another county, his sale is valid as to so much of the land as is within his county, and void as to the remainder. Alred v. Montague, 26 T. 732, 84 Am. Dec. 603.

Judgment ordering land of one county sold in another.—Where a judgment in partition orders sale of two tracts of land situated in two counties to be made in one county and sale is made thereunder, neither the judgment nor sale can be collaterally attacked on this account, though the statutes require land to be sold under execution in the county wherein situated. It is the judgment which protects the sale from collateral attack. Menard v. MacDonald, 52 C. A. 627, 115 S. W. 64, 65.

Enjoining sale.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3752. [2361] [2304] Sale of lands, etc., elsewhere than at court house door.—Where by law the public sales of lands in any county are directed to be made at any other place than the court house door, the sales herein provided to be made at the court house door shall be made at the place designated by such law.

Art. 3753. [2362] [2305] Lots in a city or town, how sold.—If real property situated in any town or city, taken in execution, consist of several lots, tracts or parcels, each shall be offered separately, unless the same be not susceptible of a separate sale by reason of the character of the improvements thereon.

Application.—This article applies to an order of sale. Moore v. Perry, 13 C. A. 204, 36 S. W. 838.

The above statute relates to the manner of sale and not to the form of judgment. Glasscock v. Price (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 415.

Effect of noncompliance.—In the absence of any claim that property sold on execution was sacrificed, that the return on an execution fails to show that lots were sold separately is immaterial. Wilson v. Swasey (Sup.) 20 S. W. 48.

Sale of separate and detached parcels of land en masse held not to invalidate sale. New England Loan & Trust Co. v. Avery (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 673.

Four lots were sold in bulk worth $3,000 for only $375. The proof showed that the two unimproved lots were worth more than the judgment. The sale was properly set aside by the court. Moore v. Perry (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 878.

The fact that defendants were cited by publication and a number of lots were sold at an execution sale in bulk, as directly prohibited by this article, and no notice was given of the sale, as required by Art. 3757, taken in connection with gross inadequacy of price, are a sufficient basis for cancellation of the sale. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

Grounds for Injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3754. [2363] [2306] Lands not in a city, etc., sold in lots, when.—When lands not situated in any town or city are taken in execution, the defendant in such writ in whom the legal or equitable title to such land may be vested, shall have the right to present to the officer holding such execution, at any time before the sale so as not to delay the same being made as advertised, a plat of said land as actually surveyed, in lots of not less than fifty acres, by the county surveyor of the county wherein said premises are situated. The plat shall be accompanied by the field-notes of each lot as numbered, with the certificate of the county surveyor, that the same are correct, and the defendant shall have the right to designate the order in which the lots shall be sold. [Act Feb. 22, 1875, p. 50.]

Subdivision and sale in parcels.—A levy of execution on 200 acres off the south end of 800 acres held to be sufficient. Turner v. Crane, 19 C. A. 369, 47 S. W. 822.

The levy being upon land, a party can protect himself against an excessive levy by having the land subdivided and sold in small tracts. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 986.

An execution sale of tracts of land in bulk for an inadequate price held invalid. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

Property not subject to execution.—See Art. 3736.

Art. 3755. [2364] [2307] Sale of lots shall cease, when.—When a sufficient number of such lots are sold to satisfy the amount due on the execution, the sale shall cease at the request of the defendant. [Id.]

Art. 3756. [2365] [2308] Expenses of selling lots, how paid.—The expenses of the survey and all other expenses attending the sale of said land in lots, as hereinbefore provided, shall be paid by the defendant, and shall in no case constitute any additional cost in said case. [Id.]

Art. 3757. [2366] [2309] Notice of sale of real estate.—The time and place of making sale of real estate under execution, order of sale, or venditioni exponas, shall be advertised by the officer by having the notice thereof published in the English language once a week for three consecutive weeks preceding such sale, in some newspaper published in said county. The first of said publications shall appear not less than twenty days immediately preceding the day of sale. Said notice shall contain a statement of the authority by virtue of which the sale is to be made, the time of levy, and the time and place of sale; it shall also contain a brief description of the property to be sold, and shall give the number of acres, original survey, locality in the county, and the name by which the land is most generally known, but it shall not be necessary for it to contain field-notes. Publishers of newspapers shall receive for publishing said sales fifty cents per square for the first insertion and thirty cents per square for subsequent insertions, to be taxed and paid as other costs; for such publication, ten lines shall constitute a square, and the body of no such advertisements shall be printed in larger type than brier; provided, that no fee for advertising any property in a newspaper under the provisions of this article shall exceed the sum of five dollars. If there be no newspapers published in the county, or none the publisher of which will publish the notice of sale for the compensation herein fixed, the officer shall then post such notice in writing in three public places in the county, one of which shall be at the court house door of such county, for at least twenty days successively next before the day of sale. The officer making the levy shall give the defendant or his attorney written notice of such sale, either in person or by mail, which notice shall substantially conform to the foregoing requirements. But nothing herein shall affect the method of advertising land under the powers conferred by any deed of trust or other contract lien. [Acts 1895, p. 168. Acts 1842, p. 66. Acts 1903, p. 104.]

See Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227; Levy v. Persons, 145 S. W. 286.

In general.—When a notice of a judicial sale has not been properly given, if objection be made by defendant in execution without unnecessary delay, the sale may be set aside; if not made in reasonable time, it will be considered as waived. In a collateral proceeding it is not essential to the validity of an execution sale that there should have been an advertisement of the property; though if the irregularity is brought about by the fraudulent collusion of the purchaser, and the property sells for a grossly inadequate price, the sale may be avoided as to such vendee and those claiming under him with notice. Construing Art. 3769, held, that it was not the intention of the legislature that sales of property under execution should be void on account of mere irregularities in advertising or in failing to advertise such property, but it was intended that the injured party should seek redress from the officer, and this in consideration of the public policy that execution sales should be sustained. Morris v. Hastings, 70 T. 26, 7 S. W. 649, 8 Am. St. Rep. 570.

A notice of sale in conformity with this article is sufficient. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Interior Land & Immigration Co., 14 C. A. 301, 37 S. W. 447.

The statute of 1895 governing sales under execution is brought forward in the Revised Statutes as this article. Marston v. Yaites (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 868.

This article supersedes the law of judicial sales in force at the date of the passage of Art. 3759. Fischer v. Simon, 95 T. 234, 66 S. W. 884.

Notice to defendant—Necessity and sufficiency.—An execution sale will be set aside if the defendant is not served with notice as the statute requires, where the defendant gave notice at the sale of such irregularity and the property sold for only two-fifths of its value. Leeper v. O'Donohue, 18 C. A. 531, 45 S. W. 327.

The sale of a homestead under execution for taxes will be set aside upon the showing that the sheriff failed to serve notice on the owner and that the property was worth $2,500 and sold only for $151.00 and that there was a portion of the property on which no buildings were situated, which, if sold, would have satisfied the judgment. Bean v. City of Brownwood, 91 T. 684, 45 S. W. 897.

A statute requiring sales under deeds of trust to be made on a certain day of the month is unconstitutional, as applied to a deed executed before its passage and providing for sale "at any time" after default. Thompson v. Cobb, 95 T. 140, 65 S. W. 1090, 93 Am. St. Rep. 320.

Notice of the sale cannot be served upon an attorney appointed by the court to represent defendant cited by publication in a suit for taxes. Crosby v. Bannowsky, 95 T. 449, 63 S. W. 48.

The posting in the United States mail of a properly addressed and stamped notice is sufficient, whether the notice is received or not. Rogers v. Moore (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 113.

This article as amended by the twenty-eighth legislature requires the levying officer under execution or order of sale to give defendant or his attorney written notice of the sale, either in person or by mail, and the mailing of a notice of a sale under a tax lien is sufficient, although the party does not receive it. To require the officer to see that the mailed notice is received is the same as requiring personal notice which the law does not demand. Rogers v. Moore, 100 T. 220, 97 S. W. 685.

Notice that a judgment existed, and that the same would be enforced by a sale of real estate if not paid, was not equivalent to the statutory notice required to be given to the defendant in execution that land levied on had been actually advertised for sale. Snouffer v. Heisig (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 912.

That a sheriff conducting a sale of real estate on execution failed to send notice by mail to the judgment debtor though knowing her address did not raise a conclusive presumption that such omission was the cause of a sale for a grossly inadequate price; and hence an instruction assuming that the inadequacy was produced by the irregularity, unless rebutted by proof that it was not, throwing the burden of rebutting such prima facie presumption on the defendant, was correct. Id.

An execution sale for an inadequate price held invalid where the constable holding the sale informed the owners of the land that the advertisement would be withdrawn and the sale would not be held. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

The first publication of an execution sale of land should be full 20 days before the sale; the date of publication not being counted. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

Length of notice.—Where a deed of trust requires 10 days' notice of sale, a sale made on the 18th pursuant to a notice published on the 8th is void. Lerch v. Hill, 2 C. A. 421, 21 S. W. 183.

Setting aside sale—Defects in or want of notice.—In an action to set aside an execution sale on the ground, among others that the constable falsely represented that the sale would not take place, evidence that the defendant did not know of such statement held properly excluded. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

A sheriff's deed will not be set aside on collateral attack for want of notice of the sale, especially in the absence of a showing that the irregularity was caused by the fraud or collusion of the purchaser, or that the property sold for a grossly inadequate price. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1073.

Defects combined with inadequacy of price.—Real estate of the value of $1,200 was sold for the sum of $25 under an execution on a judgment for $666, with foreclosure of vendor's lien. Before the receipt of the amount of the bid by the sheriff and delivery of the deed, the plaintiff in the execution enjoined the sheriff from executing a deed on account of the gross inadequacy of price and that the execution had been issued by mistake and he was not present at the sale, the defendant in execution being insolvent. Hughes v. Duncan, 60 T. 72.

A sale for a grossly inadequate price, made without the knowledge of the defendant in execution, will be set aside. Schmidt v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 228; Martin v. Anderson, 23 S. W. 290, 4 C. A. 111. See Driscoll v. Morris, 21 S. W. 629, 2 C. A. 603.

Sale will be set aside where 20 days' notice was not given, and the property sold for two-fifths of its value. Leeper v. O'Donohue, 18 C. A. 531, 45 S. W. 327.

In a suit to set aside a sheriff's deed, pursuant to a sale of real estate on execution, evidence held not to justify submission to the jury of the question whether the sheriff's failure to send notice of the sale to the judgment debtor contributed to the inadequacy of the price for which the property was sold. Snouffer v. Heisig (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 912.

At the time an execution sale was advertised to be made, there were two newspapers published in the county, either of which would have published the notice for the statutory fee, but the only advertisement of the sale that was made was by posted notices. There were three tracts of land sold, but they were not offered nor sold separately. The interest of the judgment debtor in the land was worth $1,800. The judgment creditor bid in the land for $15, paying a part of that amount as the cost of executing the writ, and credited the balance on the judgment. After the sale had been advertised, the constable informed the agent of the owner of the land that the advertisement would be withdrawn and the property would not be sold, and this information was repeated to the owner on the day before the sale, and, relying thereon, no one interested in the land was represented at the sale. Held, that the jury in an action to set aside the execution sale and cancel the constable's deed were justified in finding that the sale should be set aside. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

The fact that defendants were cited by publication and a number of lots were sold at an execution sale in bulk, as directly prohibited by Art. 3753, and no notice was given of the sale, as required by this article, taken in connection with gross inadequacy of price, are a sufficient basis for cancellation of the sale. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

Excuse for failure to sue.—A party living out of the state and served by publication and having no legal notice of a sale under execution was excused from instituting a suit to have it set aside until several years later. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3758. [2368] [2310] "Court house door" defined.—By the "court house door" of a county is meant either of the principal entrances to the house provided by the proper authority for the holding of the district court; and where, from any cause, there is no such house, the door of the house where the district court was last held in that county shall be deemed to be the court house door. Where the court house, or house used by the court, has been destroyed by fire or other cause, and another has not been designated by the proper authority, the place where such house stood shall be deemed to be the court house door.

Notice posted near door sufficient.—It would seem that a notice posted near the door and in immediate view of it fully meets the purpose of the law. Howard v. Fulton, 79 T. 231, 14 S. W. 1061.

Sale not at court house door—Effect.—A sale under a deed of trust which required it to be made at the door of the court house of M. county, if made at any other place is void. Boone v. Miller, 86 T. 74, 23 S. W. 574.

Art. 3759. [2369] [2310a] Real estate sales under deeds of trust, how made.—All sales of real estate made in this state under powers conferred by any deed of trust or other contract lien shall be made in the county in which such real estate is situated. Notice shall be given as now required in judicial sales; and such sales shall be made at public vendue, between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and four o'clock p. m. of the first Tuesday in any month; provided, that, when such real estate is situated in an unorganized county, such sale shall be made in the county to which such unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes, and, where such real estate is situated in two or more counties, the sale may be made in any county where any part of the real estate is situated, after notice as required in judicial sales has been given in every county in which any part of such real estate is situated. 1. Historical.—The act of 1889 providing that real estate sales made under powers, conferred by deeds of trust should be in the county in which the lands are situated, has no application to a deed of trust executed before the act was passed. Chandler v. Peters (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 867.

The law in regard to giving notice of sales under trust deeds has not been changed or amended since it was passed in 1889, and it has been brought forward into the Revised Statutes as this article. Swain v. Mitchell, 27 C. A. 62, 66 S. W. 62.

The act of 1889 prescribing mode of making sales under trust deeds is construed as amended since it was passed in 1889, and it has been brought forward into the Revised Statutes as this article. Marston v. Yaites (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 868.

The language of this statute means that such notice shall be given as was required at the time the act of 1889 went into effect. Id.

The article applicable to judicial sales in force at the date of the passage of this article has been repealed, and is superseded by Art. 3757. Fischer v. Simon, 95 T. 234, 66 S. W. 884.

The act adopting the Revised Statutes in 1895 (Final Title, § 19), and also the act adopting the Revised Statutes in 1911 (Final Title, § 16), provided that the provisions of the Revised Statutes, so far as they are substantially the same as the statutes in force at the time when the Revised Statutes shall go into effect shall be construed as continuations thereof, and not as new enactments. The Revised Statutes of 1911 continued as Art. 3759 article 2369 of the Revised Statutes of 1895 in its exact language. Held, that a sale by a trustee in a deed of trust made in 1911 is to be governed by the act of 1889, rather than by a subsequent statute requiring service of notice on the defendant in execution, and hence no service on the mortgagor is necessary, especially in view of Art. 3757. Corbett v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 858.

2. Trust deeds which may be foreclosed.—If a deed describe the note secured so sufficiently that it may be identified by the rejection of erroneous recitals, the trustee may enforce the deed in the manner prescribed therein without first reforming the description in equity. Thompson v. Cobb, 95 T. 140, 65 S. W. 1090, 93 Am. St. Rep. 820.

3. Nature and form of remedy.—The fact that a trust deed did not authorize the trustee to sell the property until both principal and interest had matured held not to prevent the mortgagee from foreclosing by suit. Warren v. Harrold, 92 T. 417, 49 S. W. 364.

A party cannot foreclose a deed of trust and also have a sale made by the trustee. Openshaw v. Dean (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 989.

4. Power as authority for sale in general.—A trustee with power to sell can act thereunder so long as any part of the secured debt remains unpaid. Groesbeeck v. Crow, 85 T. 200, 20 S. W. 49.

Provisions in a trust deed held to make a sale and conveyance by the trustee proof of performance of all prerequisites to exercise of the power of sale. McCreary v. Reliance Lumber Co., 16 C. A. 45, 41 S. W. 485.

In the absence of statute, held, that the court had no power to change the terms of a mortgage relating to maturity and sale. Harrold v. Warren (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 657.

Deed of trust to secure debt having provided that recitations in any deed by trustee under power of will should be prima facie evidence of the truth thereof, recital of non-payment of debt is prima facie evidence. Allen v. Courtney, 24 C. A. 86, 58 S. W. 200.

Under the provisions of a deed of trust to secure a note, a recital in the deed executed thereunder by the trustee that the request to sell was made by the holder of the note held prima facie true. Swain v. Mitchell, 27 C. A. 62, 66 S. W. 61.

In selling under a trust deed, the trustee must strictly follow the terms of the deed, and the details prescribed as to the manner of the sale must be literally pursued. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227.

A provision in a deed of trust for foreclosure by the trustee held only to authorize a request for foreclosure by the holder of the notes secured. Irion v. Yell (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 69.

A trustee must strictly follow the provisions of the trust deed in making a sale thereunder. McCollum v. Jones (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1030.

A trustee in a deed of trust, with power to sell, held authorized to act under the power, so long as any sum is due on the debt secured thereby. Word v. Colley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 257.

The provisions of a trust deed authorizing a sale of the property of the grantor must be strictly complied with in all their details, though such details may seem unimportant and frivolous. Michael v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 465.

5. Revocation or suspension of power.—A partner's death does not defeat the power of sale in a trust deed to partnership land. Barnett v. Houston, 18 C. A. 134, 44 S. W. 689.

Power to sell under a trust deed held not affected by the death of the owner, where the time in which administration might have been taken out had not expired. Silverman v. Landrum, 19 C. A. 402, 47 S. W. 404.

Power to sell under a trust deed held not revoked by death of the grantor, but exercisable after the expiration of four years from his death. Gillaspie v. Murray, 27 C. A. 580, 66 S. W. 252.

A power to sell contained in a deed of trust to secure a debt is revoked by the death of the grantor, followed by administration of his estate. Markham v. Wortham (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 341.

Power of sale in deed of trust held revoked by death of one to whom was conveyed an interest in the land subject to payment of part of secured debt. Whitmire v. May, 29 C. A. 244, 69 S. W. 100.

Death of the owner of land subject to a deed of trust held to revoke the power of sale contained in the deed, so that the land could be applied to the debt only by proceedings in the administration of decedent's estate. Whitmire v. May, 96 T. 317, 72 S. W. 375.

Power of sale in trust deed held revoked by death of grantor, and sale thereunder void, though deed provided that death of grantor should not affect the same. Texas Loan Agency v. Dinger, 33 C. A. 118, 75 S. W. 866.

A power of sale in a trust deed is revoked by the death of the holder of the equity of redemption in the land subject thereto, pending administration of his estate by an independent executor. Williams v. Armistead, 41 C. A. 35, 90 S. W. 925.

A power of sale in a trust deed held revoked by the death of a purchaser of the premises. Taylor v. Williams (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 837.

A power of sale in a deed of trust is not revoked by the death of the mortgagor after conveyance to a third person. Taylor v. Williams, 101 T. 388, 108 S. W. 815; Openshaw v. Dean (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 989.

The death of the owners of land covered by a deed of trust suspended power of the trustee to sell. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 633.

A sale under a power in a deed of trust after the death of the grantor held voidable when made before administration is begun, and valid provided no administration is begun within the statutory time. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

The power of sale given in a mortgage or deed of trust is a power coupled with an interest, and continues in force and survives the death of the mortgagor. Wiener v. Zweib, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771.

The power of sale given in a mortgage is a valuable right acquired by contract, inuring to the mortgagee, and cannot be impaired by any subsequent act of the mortgagor with regard to the property. Hampshire v. Greeves, 104 T. 620, 143 S. W. 147.

6. Right to foreclose.—In a suit to enjoin the foreclosure of a trust deed, that the land was previously sold held not to bar the execution of the trust, it appearing that the sale was void. Williams v. Armistead, 41 C. A. 35, 90 S. W. 925.

Evidence held to show that the holder of one of two notes secured by a deed of trust had waived his right to enforce his lien so as to render sufficient a request to the trustee to sell made by the holder of the other note only. Hampshire v. Greeves (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 665.

It was no excuse for the failure of a trustee in a deed of trust to strictly observe conditions imposed by one of the subscribers, that compliance had become impossible by payment of the note secured by the deed. Irion v. Yell (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 69.

7. Rights of junior incumbrancers.—The right of a mortgagee to redeem from the holder of senior equities held not to arise until his purchase of the equity of redemption under a sale under his deed of trust. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 386.

Where property was sold under a prior deed of trust, a subsequent mortgagee could not redeem. Hampshire v. Greeves (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 665.

A junior incumbrancer is not entitled to notice of a foreclosure by a prior incumbrancer under a power of sale. Hampshire v. Greeves, 104 T. 620, 143 S. W. 147.

8. Authority to execute power and execution of power in general.—The trustee named in a trust deed held to have authority, even as against the beneficiary, to declare the money due, and sell the lands and make deeds to the purchaser. Edinburgh American Land Mortg. Co. v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 1036.

Where a trust deed to a guardian of certain minor heirs empowered him to sell, such power did not pass to his successor as guardian. Gillaspie v. Murray, 27 C. A. 580, 66 S. W. 252.

A deed by a substituted trustee under a deed of trust held improperly excluded because the sale was under an advertisement by the original trustee. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 386.

A substituted trustee under a deed of trust, having been appointed independent executor of the beneficiary, had no further authority to act as trustee in foreclosure proceedings. Irion v. Yell (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 69.

It is the duty of a trustee under a deed of trust to inform a beneficiary of an intended sale. Jones v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 395.

Evidence held to show a valid sale under a trust deed by a duly authorized substituted trustee. McCullum v. Jones (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1030.

The trustee named in a mortgage deed of trust becomes the special agent of both parties. Hampshire v. Greeves, 104 T. 620, 143 S. W. 147.

9. — Substitute trustee.—Where trustee in deed given to secure notes dies before sale thereunder, on default the district court can appoint substitute trustee. Davis v. Converse (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 910.

On death of payee of notes secured by trust deed, and on death of the trustee, executors of the payee may sue for appointment of another trustee. Id.

That a trustee in a deed of trust had never accepted the appointment did not authorize the appointment of a substitute trustee, in the absence of refusal or disqualification of original trustee to foreclose. Bracken v. Bounds, 96 T. 200, 71 S. W. 547.

Where one has given a trust deed, and then sold the property to another, after which there is a sale under the trust deed by a substitute trustee, his subsequent ratification of the appointment of the substitute trustee is ineffectual as against his vendee. Bemis v. Williams, 32 C. A. 393, 74 S. W. 332.

Under a trust deed, held, that a substitute trustee might not sell till the trustee had been requested and had failed to do so, or had become disqualified. Id.

Nonresident administratrix, as the legal holder of deed of trust on property of her intestate in the state, held to have the right to appoint a substitute trustee to sell the trust property, without having taken out letters of administration in the state. Peacock v. Cummings, 34 C. A. 431, 78 S. W. 1002.

Sale under deed of trust by substituted trustee held void. Davis v. Hughes, 38 C. A. 473, 85 S. W. 1161.

Sale by substitute trustee under deed of trust held valid, though no request was made on original trustee to make sale. Ward v. Forrester (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 751.

In a suit to cancel a sale under a deed of trust, the evidence held to warrant a finding that the appointment of a substituted trustee was made by one other than the holder of the note. Wilder v. Moren, 40 C. A. 393, 89 S. W. 1087.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, the declination of a trustee in a deed of trust to act held to carry with it the idea that he had been requested to act. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

Stipulations in a trust deed as to the substitution of a trustee held valid. McCullum v. Jones (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1030.

Appointment of a substituted trustee held in effect made by the holder of the deed, instead of by his attorney in fact. Michael v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 465.

The authority conferred in a deed of trust on the holder of a note to appoint a substituted trustee is not one of personal trust or confidence, so as to preclude a delegation thereof to the creditor's attorney in fact. Id.

Where the holder of a note secured by a deed of trust had in fact authorized an attorney to appoint a substituted trustee to sell property, though the power did not do so in terms, it was not essential that the authority be evidenced by a writing, and a subsequent written acknowledgment of authority and ratification of the exercise of the power was admissible as evidence of the fact. Id.

10. Time for exercise of power.—A sale by the trustee under power in a deed of trust pending administration of the estate of the deceased grantor is void. Harris v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 868.

A trust deed held not to authorize a sale until default both in principal and interest due at the maturity of the note is secured, and until a request to sell by its holder subsequent to maturity. Harrold v. Warren (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 657.

Act March 21, 1889, prescribing the time and place of sale of lands under trust deed, held not to apply to deeds executed before its enactment. Childs v. Hill, 20 C. A. 162, 49 S. W. 652.

A sale by the trustee at the request of the maker of a deed of trust after the debt secured by it had been paid held to pass the legal title. Montague County v. Meadows, 21 C. A. 256, 51 S. W. 556.

A power of sale in a mortgage cannot be exercised pending administration of maker's estate under an independent executor, even after the expiration of four years from his death. Swearingen v. Williams, 28 C. A. 559, 67 S. W. 1061.

The mortgagee having exercised his option to declare all the notes due for default, and commenced foreclosure, the mortgagor cannot have it stopped by payment of what otherwise would have been due and costs to date. Lincoln v. Corbett, 31 C. A. 352, 72 S. W. 224.

The fact that notes secured by a deed of trust were given for purchase money held not to justify a sale under the deed, after the death of the grantee of the land, who had assumed the debt. Whitmire v. May, 96 T. 317, 72 S. W. 375.

A mortgagee can sell under a deed of trust on maturity of the debt. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 386.

11. Preliminary proceedings in general.—Where a deed of trust securing two notes authorized the trustee to sell the property upon the request of the holder of the notes, this did not authorize a sale by request of the holder of one of them; the other being unpaid in whole or in part. Hampshire v. Greeves (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 665.

12. Place of sale.—Where a trust deed provides for sale at court house in a certain county, a sale at a court house in a different county is invalid. Beitel v. Dobbin (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 299.

A sale under a trust deed in a county other than that provided for in the deed held void. Chandler v. Peters (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 867.

Grantor in trust deed held estopped to claim that the sale was made in a wrong county, where he was present, and encouraged the sale. Id.

Where a trust deed only authorizes a sale of the property in a county other than that in which the land is situated, a sale thereunder in a county where it is situated is invalid. Galloway v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 180.

A deed of trust is not ineffectual because it provides for sale in county other than that in which the land lies. The statute should be read into the deed as a part thereof, and the power should be executed in the county which the statute designates. Kerr v. Galloway, 94 T. 641, 64 S. W. 859, 860.

13. Time of sale.—A sale of land under a deed of trust is void, if made on a date other than that stated in the deed. Galloway v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 184.

Words "within lawful hours," in a deed of trust, held not to require sale on a day prescribed in a statute specifying the hours on such day when sales should be made. Thompson v. Cobb, 95 T. 140, 65 S. W. 1090, 93 Am. St. Rep. 820.

14. Notice of sale.—That a deed of trust only required one notice of sale held not to affect its validity. Willis v. Sanger, 15 C. A. 655, 40 S. W. 229.

It is not necessary to give written notice to the debtor on a sale of real estate under a trust deed. Georgi v. Juergen (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 873.

Notice of sale under trust deed held not posted as required by statute. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Dorenblaser, 30 C. A. 148, 69 S. W. 1019.

This article does not prevent the parties to a trust deed from contracting for such additional notice as they think proper, as by requiring notice by advertising in a newspaper, though the act only required notice by posting in public places. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227.

Since this article provides that notice shall be given as required in judicial sales, held that, as no notice is required to be given to the defendant on a judicial sale of real estate, an instruction, in an action to set aside a conveyance pursuant to a foreclosure of the trust deed, directing a verdict for plaintiffs in case the jury found that the grantor in the deed was not notified of the sale, was properly refused. Morris v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 800.

15. — Publication or other constructive notice.—Where a trust deed provided that notice of sale should be published for 20 days, a notice published for 19 days was insufficient. Childs v. Hill, 20 C. A. 162, 49 S. W. 652.

Publication of advertisement of sale under trust deed held to sufficiently comply with terms of instrument. City of El Paso v. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 799.

Foreclosure sale under a trust deed held valid, although the notices thereof were not posted by the substitute trustee himself. Walker v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 31.

A trustee in a trust deed, authorized to give notices of sale, may delegate the posting of notices to a subagent. Id.

Maker of a trust deed held to have made a foreclosure sale his own act, and to have waived any defects as to notices. Id.

A provision of a trust deed requiring notice of sale to be posted did not contemplate that the trustee should in person do the posting. Roe v. Davis (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 950.

16. Sale in parcels.—Sale of lots as a whole under trust deed held no abuse of discretion, in the absence of evidence that a better price would have been obtained by a sale in parcels. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Dorenblaser, 30 C. A. 148, 69 S. W. 1019.

17. Order of offering for sale.—A trustee under a trust deed was not bound to first sell that part of the land covered by the deed in which a purchaser from the mortgagor before foreclosure owned no interest, at least in the absence of request from such purchaser. McCollum v. Jones (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1030.

18. Persons who may purchase.—Purchaser of property assuming payment of two mortgages cannot purchase at foreclosure under the prior one, and claim as against the second. Beitel v. Dobbin (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 299.

Evidence held not to show that a son of the mortgagor purchased at foreclosure sale in the interest of the mortgagor, so as to cancel the debt. Morris v. Housley (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 846.

19. Setting aside sale.—Sale under a trust deed held invalid. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Dorenblaser, 30 C. A. 148, 69 S. W. 1019.

A sale of land under a deed of trust given by plaintiff's grantor, without her knowledge, held not to preclude her recovery of the land. Parks v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 921.

Heirs of a grantor held to have no right to question the validity of a sale under a trust deed made after the death of the grantor before any administration, but within the time when administration might be begun. Wiener v. Zwieb, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771.

Second mortgagee held not entitled to attack the validity of the foreclosure sale under a prior mortgage, or deed of trust. Walker v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 31.

Inadequacy of price for which property covered by deed of trust was sold on foreclosure is insufficient in itself, without being supplemented by proof of bad faith, mistake, or undue advantage, to set aside the sale. Evants v. Erdman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 929.

While, ordinarily a mortgagor's insanity does not justify setting aside a sale made under foreclosure of a deed of trust, a sale was properly vacated where the land, which was worth from $2,500 to $3,000, was sold to the mortgagee for $101, subject to a $1,450 mortgage. James v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 679.

20. Waiver of sale.—Allowing grantor in trust deed to remain in possession does not affect the right to enforce a power of sale. Dimmit County v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1029.

21. Title and rights of purchaser.—Where a trust deed authorized sale by trustee on default in payment of interest, proof of default and of the sale held sufficient, with the deed, to show that the title passed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hearne (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 50.

Evidence held sufficient to establish that the trustee in a trust deed had performed all prerequisites to a valid sale. McCreary v. Reliance Lumber Co., 16 C. A. 45, 41 S. W. 485.

Rights of purchaser under a trustee's sale determined. Barnett v. Houston, 18 C. A. 134, 44 S. W. 689.

Deed of trust and sale thereunder held to confer apparent title on purchasers, so that the conveyance of the legal title to innocent purchaser was a good defense to an action for recovery of the land. Schneider v. Sellers, 98 T. 380, 84 S. W. 417.

Where defendant purchased certain property on foreclosure of a deed of trust, for himself and the other creditors secured by the deed, without paying any money, and thereafter repudiated the trust, it was not essential to plaintiffs' recovery that any tender should be made to defendant. Haywood v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 469.

A sale by a trustee under a trust deed made without the notice required by the deed is of no effect. Meisner v. Taylor, 56 C. A. 187, 120 S. W. 1014.

Where a building did not become bound by a mortgage on the realty, it being not a fixture, the purchaser at the trustee's sale, acquired only the rights which the mortgagors had. Shelton v. Piner (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 65.

A purchaser under a deed of trust on a homestead held charged with notice of the homestead character of the property. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 633.

A bank purchasing property and assuming a prior lien thereon held not to obtain any title as against a junior lien, by acquiring the debt secured by the prior lien and buying in at the trustee's sale on foreclosure. Hampshire v. Greeves (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 665.

A sale under a power in a deed of trust after the death of the grantor, made before an administration was begun, but before the expiration of the time within which an administration might be begun, held effective to pass title to the purchaser, subject to a subsequent administration. Wiener v. Zwieb, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771.

In a foreclosure action by a junior mortgagee in which a prior mortgagee was made a party defendant, held, that a purchaser of title to the land acquired by sale under the prior lien might plead his title in bar of the right of the junior lienholder to foreclose. Hampshire v. Greeves, 104 T. 620, 143 S. W. 147.

The purchaser under a foreclosure sale in the exercise of a power of sale given in a mortgage takes the mortgagor's title divested of all incumbrances made since the creation of the power of sale. Id.

By a regular sale under a mortgage power of sale, the mortgagor and all persons claiming in equity of redemption by a privity of estate with him are precluded as fully as if they had been made parties thereto. Id.

Trustee in a deed of trust to secure a debt who, after foreclosure, bought the property from the purchaser at the sale, who was the holder of the debt secured, held not chargeable with knowledge of an agreement of his vendor to discharge certain junior liens. Id.

22. Conveyance to purchaser.—A conveyance by a sheriff on foreclosure of a deed of trust held to pass all interest of the grantor in the tract described, notwithstanding the acreage was understated by mistake. Anderson v. Casey-Swasey Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 918.

A deed under a trust deed held not to convey title to the premises. Meisner v. Taylor, 56 C. A. 187, 120 S. W. 1014.

23. Proceeds.—Where a sale of land under the terms of a trust deed is regularly made by the trustee, the trustor is not entitled to the benefits of another foreclosure. Davidson v. Jefferson (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 765.

Unidentified proceeds of the sale of mortgaged property held not impressed with trust in favor of the mortgagees. Texas Moline Plow Co. v. Kingman Texas Implement Co., 32 C. A. 343, 80 S. W. 1042.

A payment of an indebtedness by the sale of mortgaged real property is an "involuntary payment," as to which the debtor has no right to make an application, under the rules governing voluntary payments. Blair v. Teel (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 878.

On sale under a married woman's deed of trust of her real property given for a loan, part of which was paid over to her husband, and part of which was used for the benefit of her estate, held, that neither party, without the other's consent, could apply the proceeds first to the payment of either portion of the indebtedness, but that it must be applied pro rata to the debt due from her and that due from her husband. Id.

Upon the sale of a tract upon which trust deeds were executed to secure notes held by a bank, held, that one who as to mortgagor was a surety on a note secured by a trust deed which was a second lien, but was a principal as to the bank, was entitled to have a part of the proceeds of the sale received by the bank credited to the payment of the note on which he was liable, after a note secured by a trust deed was paid, though he was not entitled to have two vendor's lien notes executed to the bank by the mortgagor as security for a judgment lien against the land credited upon his note. Abbott v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 321.

A provision in a trust deed executed on lots that it was security for future advances would not entitle the mortgagee to apply the proceeds of the sale of another survey upon which it also held a trust deed as a credit upon the note secured by the first-mentioned trust deed, as against a surety on a note secured by a trust deed on such survey. Id.

24. Fees and costs.—The sum of $80 is a reasonable compensation to a trustee for foreclosing a deed of trust given to secure a $4,000 note. Harris v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 311.

In the absence of a stipulation in a deed of trust as to expenses arising from its execution, the trustee is entitled to reasonable compensation. Id.

The right of a trustee to compensation and to an allowance of attorney's fees on the foreclosure of the deed of trust held to rest on contract. Orient Trust Co. v. St. Louis Union Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 310.

If the mortgagee and the owner of the equity of redemption agreed that no trustee's fees should be allowed for the foreclosure proceedings, such fees should not be assessed against the owner of the equity of redemption. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

25. Operation and effect.—A void sale by the trustee held not to satisfy the note and vendor's lien secured by the trust deed, and that plaintiffs claiming under the grantor could not recover without payment of such balance. McCreary v. Reliance Lumber Co., 16 C. A. 46, 41 S. W. 485.

Sale under deed of trust held not to preclude the mortgagee's right to specific performance of the mortgagor's contract to convey. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 386.

A sale under a trust deed will cut off the equity of redemption of a junior lienholder who, without timely tender of the amount of the senior claim, files suit for foreclosure and adjustment of equities before the actual sale, but after the senior lienor's election to proceed by trustee's sale and after advertisement made. Tolleson v. Nobles (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 850.

26. Wrongful foreclosure.—One selling without authority from the owner land held in trust to secure a debt, is liable for the value of the land at the date of sale less the amount of the indebtedness; but if authorized to sell, is liable only for the amount actually received less such indebtedness. Ullman v. Devereux (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 472.

Where one holding the title to land as security for a debt due from the owner makes an unauthorized sale of the land, he is liable in damages for the value of the land at the date of the sale, less the amount of the indebtedness. Ullman v. Devereux, 46 C. A. 459, 102 S. W. 1163.

27. Question for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Art. 3760. [2370] [2311] Sale of personal property.—Personal property taken in execution shall be sold on the premises where it is taken in execution, or at the court house door of the county, or at some other place if, owing to the nature of the property, it is more convenient to exhibit it to purchasers at such place. [Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3776.]

Art. 3761. [2371] [2312] Notice of sale of personal property.—Previous notice of the time and place of the sale of any personal property on execution shall be given for ten days successively, by posting up written or printed notices thereof in at least three public places in the county, one of which shall be at the court house door of the county and one at the place where the sale is to be made. [Id.]

In general.—If the judgment debtor has become the owner of property under Art. 3969, a valid levy of execution can only be made by seizure and not by merely giving notices. Hunstock v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 675, 677.

Selling at place different from one named.—Where an officer sells personal property at a place different from the one named in the notice of sale, he becomes liable as a trespasser ab initio, although he may have paid over the proceeds of the execution. Mollett v. Hodges, 1 App. C. C. § 399.

Art. 3762. [2372] [2313] Personal property present at sale, except.—Personal property shall not be sold, unless the same be present and subject to the view of those attending the sale, when it is susceptible of being thus exhibited, except shares of stock in joint stock or incorporated companies, and in cases where the defendant in execution has merely an interest without right to the exclusive possession, in which case the interest of the defendant may be sold and conveyed without the presence or delivery of the property.

Sale of personal property not exhibited—Effect.—A sale of personal property not exhibited as here required is a nullity. Geo. R. Dickinson Paper Co. v. Publishing Co. (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 1083.

Art. 3763. [2373] [2314] Sale of stock running in range.—When a levy is made upon horses, mules, jacks, jennets, horned cattle or hogs running at large in the range, under article 3741 of this title, it is not necessary that such stock, or any part thereof, should be present at the place of sale, and the purchaser at such sale is authorized to gather and pen such stock and select therefrom the number purchased by him.

Sale out of view.—The sale of an estray is illegal, when the estrayed animal sold is out of view of the bidders when sold. Floyd v. State (Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 691.

Art. 3764. [2374] [2315] When execution not satisfied.—When the property levied upon does not sell for enough to satisfy the execution, the officer shall proceed anew, as in the first instance, to make the residue.

Art. 3765. [2375] [2316] Conveyance to purchaser.—When a sale has been made and the terms thereof complied with, the officer shall execute and deliver to the purchaser a conveyance of all the right, title, interest and claim which the defendant in execution had in and to the property sold. [Id. P. D. 3795.]

Basset v. Sherrod, 13 Civ. App. 327, 35 S. W. 312; Wofford v. McKinna, 23 T. 37, 76 Am. Dec. 53; Wooters v. Arledge, 54 T. 397; Norris v. Hunt, 51 T. 612; Pfeiffer v. Lindsay, 66 T. 124, 1 S. W. 264.

Sheriff's deed.—The statute in regard to sheriff's deeds under execution provides that such deeds shall be for all the right, title, interest and claim which the defendant in execution had in and to the property sold. Ostrom v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 632.

Memorandum unnecessary.—No written memorandum is necessary to bind the sale. Lockridge v. Baldwin, 20 T. 303, 70 Am. Dec. 385.

Necessity.—A sheriff's deed is not necessary to pass title at a sheriff's sale of real estate. A valid judgment, execution and sale are sufficient for this purpose. But if a deed be made, and the recitals contained in it correspond with those in the return, they cannot be varied by parol evidence in a collateral proceeding after a great lapse of time. Purchasers at a sheriff's sale have a remedy to correct a mistake by a direct proceeding brought in the court from which the execution issued, for the purpose of correcting or amending the return and to reform the deed. Flaniken v. Neal, 67 T. 629, 4 S. W. 212.

The execution of a sheriff's deed is a ministerial act, and not essential to the validity of the sale made by him. Reeder v. Eidson (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 750.

A judgment creditor held under the evidence to acquire no right to the property levied on. Patterson v. Williams (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 601.

A judgment creditor held to acquire title at an execution sale though a deed from the sheriff was not executed. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

Right to conveyance.—It is the duty of the purchaser to comply with the terms of the sale before he can demand a deed. Lockridge v. Baldwin, 20 T. 303, 70 Am. Dec. 385.

Judgment creditor, having an order of sale against undivided half interest in land, is entitled to writ of possession. Modisette v. National Bank, 23 C. A. 589, 56 S. W. 1007.

Recitals.—The recitals in a sheriff's deed that a particular interest in land had been levied on and sold will not conclude the purchaser at the sheriff's sale from showing, by the process under which the sale was made and the decree of foreclosure, that an interest other than that recited in the deed was actually offered for sale and sold, and that the purchaser became entitled to what he actually bought, although additional to that described in the deed as having been levied on. The recitals in a sheriff's deed are evidence of what was sold, but they are not conclusive. The sheriff's sale conveys to the purchaser whatever of title was subject to the sale as indicated in the decree of foreclosure and in the order of sale. Briscoe v. Bronaugh, 1 T. 333, 46 Am. Dec. 108; Lee v. Salinas, 15 T. 497; Tuttle v. Turner, 28 T. 773; Baird v. Trice, 51 T. 555; Rippetoe v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 498.

It is not necessary that either the judgment or the execution should be recited in the sheriff's deed. And if there be an attempt to recite them, a mistake or misrecital will not impair the validity of the deed. Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 Am. Dec. 769.

The recitals in the sheriff's deed will aid the description of the property in the return. Whitney v. Krapf, 27 S. W. 843, 8 C. A. 304.

A sheriff's deed not reciting in what county the land levied on was situated held sufficient when it recited that the levy was made by the sheriff of a certain county, and the sale was made therein. Turner v. Crane, 19 C. A. 369, 47 S. W. 822.

That the date of a judicial sale as stated in the sheriff's deed varies from the date stated in the return upon the order of sale does not render the sale void. Temple v. Branch Saw Co., 39 C. A. 606, 88 S. W. 442.

Where it appeared that the books, papers, and records of the justice's court had been lost, the recitation in defendant's deed by virtue of an execution sale, as to the judgment and execution, was sufficient to show the authority to sell the property under the execution. Smitherman v. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 633.

Description of property.—A deed is void when the description of land is so indefinite that it cannot be identified. Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 Am. Dec. 769; Coffee v. Silvan, 15 T. 354, 65 Am. Dec. 169; Hurt v. Moore, 19 T. 269; Ballard v. Anderson, 18 T. 377; Wofford v. McKinna, 23 T. 36, 76 Am. Dec. 53; Kilpatrick v. Sisneros, 23 T. 113; Pressley v. Testard, 29 T. 199; Hearne v. Erhardt, 33 T. 60; Kingston v. Pickins, 46 T. 99; Flanagan v. Boggess, 46 T. 330; Ragsdale v. Robinson, 48 T. 380; Norris v. Hunt, 51 T. 609; Donnebaum v. Tinsley, 54 T. 362; Knowles v. Torbitt, 53 T. 557; Mitchell v. Ireland, 54 T. 301; Bowles v. Beal, 60 T. 322; Dwyre v. Speer, 27 S. W. 585, 8 C. A. 88.

The land sold must be reasonably designated in the conveyance. Extrinsic evidence is admissible to locate and identify the land. Wofford v. McKinna, 23 T. 36, 76 Am. Dec. 53; Norris v. Hunt, 51 T. 609; Wooters v. Arledge, 54 T. 395; Pfeiffer v. Lindsay, 66 T. 123, 1 S. W. 264; Wilson v. Smith, 50 T. 370; Giddings v. Day, 84 T. 608, 19 S. W. 682; Smith v. Crosby, 23 S. W. 10, 86 T. 15, 40 Am. St. Rep. 818.

A description of lands conveyed in a deed must be sufficiently certain to identify the land by the description given, or by deeds and instruments specifically referred to in the sheriff's deed. Brown v. Chambers, 63 T. 131. See Wilson v. Smith, 50 T. 365; Kingston v. Pickins, 46 T. 99.

In a sheriff's deed, otherwise valid, reference is made to other well-known deeds for description; the deeds so referred to are produced, and describe the land. Held, that such deed will convey title to the land so identified. Wright v. Lassiter, 71 T. 640, 10 S. W. 295.

The rule is well settled that less indulgence will be shown in favor of descriptions in deeds based on compulsory sales than applies to descriptions in deeds voluntarily executed by the owner. In compulsory sales under judicial process, if there is a patent ambiguity in the description of the land sold it cannot be aided by parol evidence, and the deed is void. Beze v. Calvert, 2 C. A. 202, 20 S. W. 1130.

A defective description of land in the levy and deed of the sheriff may be cured by a deed by the debtor to the purchaser as against subsequent creditors. Willis v. Nichols, 23 S. W. 1025, 5 C. A. 154.

A description in an execution and deed held sufficient. Watson v. McClane, 18 C. A. 212, 45 S. W. 176.

A sheriff's deed of a survey to different persons held not void because it described the several tracts only by the number of acres in each. Harris v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 731.

Description in a sheriff's deed held not to vitiate his levy. Turner v. Crane, 19 C. A. 369, 47 S. W. 322.

A sheriff's deed held to insufficiently describe the property. Edrington v. Hermann (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 936.

Description of land in sheriff's deed held insufficient. Edrington v. Hermann, 97 T. 193, 77 S. W. 408.

Where neither an execution levy nor the deed after sale particularly described the land, it was insufficient to convey title to the purchaser. Veatch v. Gray, 41 C. A. 145, 91 S. W. 324.

A deed executed by a sheriff, pursuant to a sale under an execution, is not void because of its failure to state that the land sold was located in the county. Reeder v. Eldson (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 750.

A sheriff's deed does not require a more definite description than is necessary to the efficiency of a voluntary deed. Gallup v. Flood, 46 C. A. 644, 103 S. W. 426.

The rule that a description is sufficient if the land can be identified with the aid of extrinsic evidence applies to sales under execution. Anderson v. Casey-Swasey Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 918.

In trespass to try title, constable's deed held not defective for want of a proper description of the property. Smitherman v. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 633.

A recital in a sheriff's deed, that the premises described therein, including 120 tracts, "were struck off to H. for the sum of $50, she being the highest bidder," etc., does not exclude the possibility that the tracts were sold separately. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1073.

Description of parties.—As to the description of the parties to the judgment and execution, see Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 Am. Dec. 769; Stephens v. Turner, 29 S. W. 937, 9 C. A. 623; Smith v. Chenault, 48 T. 455; Fitch v. Boyer, 51 T. 341; Cooke v. Avery, 147 U. S. 391, 13 Sup. Ct. 340, 37 L. Ed. 209.

Execution.—The deed can be executed by a deputy sheriff who makes the levy and sale. Davis v. Rankin, 50 T. 279; Burrow v. Brown, 59 T. 457.

Amendment.—A sheriff may amend his deed, even after he goes out of office. Flemming v. Powell, 2 T. 225. Title may be shown by valid judgment, execution and sale, payment of purchase-money, and facts necessary to entitle the purchaser to a deed. Flancken v. Neal, 67 T. 629, 4 S. W. 212; Higgins v. Bordages (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 350.

Title acquired by purchaser.—In deraigning title under a sheriff's deed, a valid judgment and execution must be proven to support the deed. Wright v. Doherty, 50 T. 34; Criswell v. Ragsdale, 18 T. 443; Walker v. Emerson, 20 T. 706, 73 Am. Dec. 207; Hart v. McDade, 61 T. 208.

A purchaser at an execution sale cannot acquire a better title than the judgment debtor has. Jones v. Powers, 65 T. 207.

The sheriff can convey by his deed only such property as was sold under execution, and he cannot cure defects in the description of the land by accurately describing it in his deed. Pfeiffer v. Lindsay, 66 T. 123, 1 S. W. 264.

The purchaser's title under a valid judgment, execution and sale becomes perfect upon the execution of the deed. If the return of the sheriff afterwards made is incorrect, and in contradiction of the deed, it cannot affect the purchaser's title already perfected. Holmes v. Buckner, 67 T. 107, 2 S. W. 452.

A sheriff's deed executed before the patent for the land sold was issued conveys no title in the absence of proof that at the time of the levy the land had been located. Watkins v. Hill, 2 C. A. 358, 21 S. W. 374.

A sheriff's deed to a headright certificate, which purported to convey all the rights and claim of the debtor therein, held not objectionable, as failing to convey anything. Harris v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 731.

A purchaser at execution sale, to sustain his title, must show that the judgment debtor had title at the time of the sale. Thomas v. Morrison, 92 T. 329, 48 S. W. 500.

Sale of realty under execution is good only against interest of judgment debtor; and, if he has none, no title passes thereby. Barnes v. Krause (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 92.

When a purchaser of land on an execution sale had taken coal therefrom, prior thereto, under a claim of title by another deed, the claim for damages therefor is merged in the sheriff's deed. Smith v. Olson (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 568.

Where defendant has title to real estate at the time of the sale thereof under an execution against him, he cannot set up a title afterwards acquired as a defense to an action of trespass to try title by the execution purchaser. Bonner v. Ogilvie, 24 C. A. 237, 58 S. W. 1027.

After partition of community property on decree in divorce, purchaser at execution sale against husband acquires title only to tracts partitioned to the husband. Ryan v. Engleson, 26 C. A. 192, 62 S. W. 1072.

Where a judgment debtor owned an undivided half of 3,000 acres, part of a certain survey, an execution sale and sheriff's deed of all his "right, title, and interest in and to 2,300 acres, part of" such survey, conveyed no title, though a few days after the sale the land was partitioned, and 2,235 acres allotted to him. Boyce v. Hornberger, 29 C. A. 337, 68 S. W. 701.

Where a deed by a purchaser at execution sale by its terms passes the legal title, and is recorded, the title given is, as against one claiming under a subsequent deed from the execution debtor, valid, though the grantee of the execution purchaser makes no claim to the land. Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563.

As a general rule, title to property sold at judicial sale passes upon confirmation thereof and payment of the purchase money. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 878.

A title acquired by an execution defendant subsequent to the sale under the execution does not inure to the benefit of the purchaser. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

Purchaser's equity of redemption held to pass on sale upon foreclosure of attachment by a creditor of the purchaser. Levy v. Pearsons (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 446.

Where a judgment for taxes was rendered against a purchaser of land subject to a vendor's lien, and the land was sold under such judgment, the purchaser acquired the vendee's interest only. Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1070.

Possession of purchaser.—A purchaser under execution against a mortgagor cannot recover the premises from the mortgagee rightfully in possession, until the mortgage debt is paid. Murrell v. Kelly-Goodfellow Shoe Co., 18 C. A. 114, 44 S. W. 27.

Void execution held to give the purchaser no right to possession. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Stratton, 40 C. A. 378, 89 S. W. 1111.

Where a party suing for land claimed under an execution sale does not prove his title, but the defendant on cross-action has the sale set aside, the mere fact that there were other parties claiming the property did not give plaintiff grounds for complaint. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

Rights of purchaser from purchaser.—Bona fide purchasers in general, see notes under Art. 6824.

A plaintiff seeking to recover under a title acquired at execution sale must show that the land at the time of levy and sale was owned by the execution debtor. Ferryman v. Rayburn (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 915.

Where a sale on execution has been canceled by a judgment of a court having jurisdiction, a subsequent deed by the execution vendee passes no title. Aldridge v. Pardee, 24 C. A. 254, 60 S. W. 789.

The grantee of one who purchased land at an execution sale acting for the judgment creditor acquires no interest as against the judgment creditor, where the execution purchaser had no authority to sell. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

Execution sale under dormant judgment.—See notes under Art. 3714.

Collateral attack.—If the recitals on the return of an execution correspond with those contained in the sheriff's deed as to the extent of the interest in land levied on and sold, parol evidence is not admissible in a collateral proceeding to correct or vary such recitals. Under such circumstances the party whose rights are prejudiced must seek relief in a direct proceeding brought to obtain it. (This case distinguished from Holmes v. Buckner, 67 T. 107, 2 S. W. 452.) Flaniken v. Neal, 67 T. 629, 4 S. W. 212.

Deed as evidence.—In an action of trespass to try title, the defendant only pleading not guilty, a sheriff's deed offered by defendant, without a judgment and execution to support it, was properly excluded. Tudor v. Hodges, 71 T. 392, 9 S. W. 443.

Art. 3766. [2376] [2316a] Deeds to the state in usual form.—In all cases where property is purchased by the state, under article 357, the officer selling the same shall execute and deliver to the state a deed of conveyance to the same, such as is prescribed for individuals in similar cases. [Acts 1879, p. 9.]

Art. 3767. [2377] [2317] Conveyance made after death of purchaser.—In case the purchaser, having complied with the terms of the sale, shall die before a conveyance shall have been executed to him, the officer shall convey the property sold to the purchaser, nevertheless, and the conveyance shall have the same effect as if it had been executed in the lifetime of the purchaser.

See Timmins v. Bonner, 58 T. 554; Richardson v. Knox, 14 C. A. 402, 37 S. W. 189.

Art. 3768. [2378] [2318] Purchaser deemed innocent.—A purchaser at sale under execution shall be deemed to be an innocent purchaser without notice in all cases where he would be deemed to be such had the sale been made voluntarily by the defendant in person.

Bona fide purchaser in general.—A sale under execution upon a judgment erroneous but not void will be sustained where a stranger to the judgment is a purchaser. This rule does not apply to purchases voluntarily made from a party to a suit. Harle v. Langdon, 60 T. 555; Treadway v. Eastburn, 57 T. 209; Mosley v. Gainer, 10 T. 393.

A purchaser may be a bona fide purchaser for valuable consideration where he has paid less than the real value of the property, but where the price is grossly inadequate he cannot be so considered. McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 652; Nichols-Stewart v. Crosby, 29 S. W. 380, 87 T. 443; State Nat. Bank v. Waxahachie Bank (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 366.

An attorney who purchases at execution sale on a judgment in favor of his client cannot be called a bona fide purchaser, and the sale will be set aside in a direct proceeding for that purpose upon slight additional grounds showing injustice or unfairness. Mc-Laury v. Miller, 64 T. 381.

A purchaser at execution sale is deemed an innocent bona fide purchaser in all cases where he would be deemed to be such had the sale been made voluntarily by the defendant in person. An innocent purchaser from one who purchases with notice is as fully protected as if he had bought without notice from the vendor of the party from whom he purchased. Holmes v. Buckner, 67 T. 107, 2 S. W. 452. The purchaser of property at an execution sale under a judgment which is void upon its face for want of service on the defendant acquires no title as against the original owner. Collins v. Miller, 64 T. 118.

A judgment creditor, who purchased the property of his debtor under execution and credited his bid on the debt, held not an innocent purchaser. Hirsch v. Howell (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 887.

The validity of a deed by a father to his children of property subject to a resulting trust in their favor held immaterial against a purchaser of such property on an execution against the father. Hicks v. Pogue, 33 C. A. 333, 76 S. W. 786.

A purchaser of land at an execution sale, subject to a resulting trust, held not entitled to the land as against beneficiaries of the trust, unless a consideration other than a credit on the judgment is paid. Id.

A purchaser at execution sale without notice of irregularities in the proceedings leading up to the sale is protected if the judgment is valid, and the execution and sheriff's deed are regular. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. South Beaumont Land & Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 436.

Where the purchaser of land at an execution sale is acting either for himself or for the person to whom he causes the sheriff's deed to be made, the grantee in the sheriff's deed occupies the position of an ordinary purchaser at an execution sale, and takes his chances of getting title. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

The rule that bona fide purchaser for valuable consideration, without notice of equity, acquires a title superior to that of the owner of the equity applies to a purchaser at execution sale. Aycock v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 641.

Attorney for plaintiff purchasing on execution sale, who, after paying the costs, credits the amount of the bid on the judgment, held not a bona fide purchaser for value. Id.

— Notice.—A purchaser at an execution sale, under a judgment against the husband, acquires title to the property purchased, if the same was acquired during coverture by deed, though executed to the wife, if the purchaser at such sale had no knowledge that the property was acquired by the separate means of the wife. Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 319. But if, at the time of the purchase, such purchaser had notice of the real interest of the wife in the property, and that it had been acquired by her separate means, he would acquire no title, and the fact that a lien on the land had previously been acquired by the record of the judgment would not affect the right of the wife to such land. Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 390.

A purchase of land under execution against the husband, the apparent title to which is in the community, but which was paid for with the wife's separate means, the knowledge of which fact was communicated to the purchaser after the levy but before the purchase at execution sale, cannot be an innocent purchaser. Bonner v. Stevens, 60 T. 616. And see Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 111; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 649; Stoker v. Bailey, 62 T. 299.

One who purchases under an execution on a judgment barred on its face, and who upon proper inquiry would have discovered that the judgment had been discharged in bankruptcy, acquires no title as against a former purchaser of whose interest he had no actual notice. Hart v. McDade, 61 T. 208.

Though land conveyed to the husband during coverture is presumed to be community property, and the purchaser at execution sale under a valid judgment against him takes title, it is otherwise if it was purchased with the wife's separate property. She then becomes the equitable owner, and notice of her rights given at such sale will defeat any right the purchaser would otherwise have acquired. Harris v. Seinsheimer, 67 T. 356, 3 S. W. 307.

That an execution did not describe the judgment as to names of parties, etc.; that it appeared to have been issued as a first execution over a year from its rendition, would charge purchasers with notice of whatever appeared upon the face of the execution and might be developed by an examination of the judgment. Irvin v. Ferguson, 83 T. 491, 18 S. W. 820.

Land was acquired during coverture; afterwards the parties were divorced, the wife died, and the husband incurred debts, which were satisfied by a sale of the land under execution. Other than the recitals in the deed there was no evidence that the purchaser at the execution sale or his vendee paid a valuable consideration or that they were ignorant of the condition of the title. Under these facts the heirs of the mother were entitled to recover her interest in the land. Henry v. Forshee, 84 T. 185, 19 S. W. 381.

Where at the time of a levy on land the creditor had no notice of a prior unrecorded deed of the land, a purchaser at the sale is not affected by the deed, though he had notice of it at the time of the sale. Blum v. Schwartz (Sup.) 20 S. W. 54.

The issuance of executions subsequent to the one under which the sale was made of the land in litigation, to other counties, although fraudulent in attempting to hinder and delay other creditors, would not affect the title of a purchaser under such second execution having no notice of the facts constituting the fraud. Brackenridge v. Cobb, 85 T. 448, 21 S. W. 1034.

Purchaser of land at execution sale with notice of equity in third person held to have bought subject thereto. Milby v. Regan, 16 C. A. 352, 41 S. W. 372.

Purchaser at execution sale held to acquire title as against one holding under unrecorded deed. West v. Loeb, 16 C. A. 399, 42 S. W. 612.

The sale of a wife's separate property on execution against the husband does not affect the wife's interest, though the title was in the husband, where the purchaser had notice. Raley v. Abright (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 538.

The grantee of an unrecorded deed has a better title than a purchaser under an execution having notice of the deed before the levy was made. Holt v. Hunt, 18 C. A. 363, 44 S. W. 889.

The rights of a cestui que trust held superior to those of an execution purchaser under a judgment against the trustee in whose name the property appeared as owner on the records. John B. Hood Camp Confederate Veterans v. De Cordova, 92 T. 202, 47 S. W. 522.

Title to land held not deraigned through an execution sale, but through a subsequent purchase by the execution purchaser of the judgment debtor. Campbell v. Antis, 21 C. A. 161, 51 S. W. 343.

Purchaser at execution sale knowing of unrecorded mortgage held entitled to avail himself of equities of judgment creditor not knowing thereof. Barnett v. Squires (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 612.

Where real estate which was the community property of the husband and wife was sold after the death of the wife, on an execution against the husband, and the purchaser for a valuable consideration had no notice of the claims of the heirs of the wife therein, he took a title superior to that of such heir. Smith v. Olson (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 568.

A judgment creditor, who purchased at an execution sale with notice that land was claimed by the debtor's wife as her separate property, held entitled to only such interest in the lot as constituted community property at the time of the sale. Hirsch v. Howell (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 887.

Purchasers at an execution sale against a husband, notified of a wife's title to the land sold, and referred to a deed, could not rely on mistake in deed and obtain a title superior to that of the wife. McCroary v. Lutz (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1094.

Where an answer alleged a wife's equitable title to land omitted by mistake from the husband's deed thereto, and that a subsequent deed of correction was made, the latter was admissible against purchasers with notice buying at an execution sale against the husband. Id.

An execution purchaser of land acquires title and right of possession as against the holder of a prior, but unrecorded, deed by the execution defendant. Central City Trust Co. v. Waco Bldg. Ass'n, 95 T. 48, 64 S. W. 998.

Evidence considered, and held sufficient to justify a finding that a purchaser of property on execution sale against a guardian had notice that the property was purchased with money belonging to the ward. Norton v. Keller (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 490.

Owner of vendor's lien notes held not estopped to set up his claim against an execution purchaser. Brotherton v. Anderson, 27 C. A. 587, 66 S. W. 682.

One purchasing land at an execution sale held to have had constructive notice of vendor's lien, though the lien notes were not recorded. Id.

Purchasers at execution sale get no title, as against holders of vendor's lien notes, having notice thereof before recording abstract of judgment. Puster v. Anderson, 27 C. A. 626, 66 S. W. 684.

That an abstract of judgment was not recorded until after the judgment debtor had transferred certain land was of no avail to the transferee, as against a purchaser at sale under the judgment, in the absence of any showing that the transfer was in good faith. Weinert v. Simmang, 29 C. A. 435, 68 S. W. 1011.

A failure to show good faith and absence of notice in a purchaser at execution sale subsequent to deed by the debtor to his wife relieves those claiming through the wife from showing more than a vesting of title in her by the deed. Watts v. Bruce, 31 C. A. 347, 72 S. W. 258.

Where defendant purchased land from the purchaser at an execution sale, knowing that such sale had been set aside by the court, he cannot claim the land as an innocent purchaser. Day v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 107, 72 S. W. 426.

Possession of heir held referable to record title as heir, and not to unrecorded title as purchaser of co-heir's interest, and hence such possession was not notice to execution purchaser of unrecorded title. Sanger Bros. v. Collum (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 401.

Execution creditor, who becomes purchaser of realty, held to stand on footing of bona fide purchaser as against debtor's prior unrecorded deed. Id.

The rule relating to when a purchaser at execution sale may not be a bona fide purchaser held applicable only to a case where the purchaser claims to be a bona fide purchaser without notice of a prior conveyance. Clark v. Bell, 40 C. A. 39, 89 S. W. 38.

A purchaser at execution sale without notice of irregularities in the proceedings leading up to the sale is protected in his title if the judgment under which the sale is made be valid, and the execution and sheriff's deed be regular; purchasers without actual notice being charged only with notice of defects in the execution which appear upon its face or are developed by an examination of the judgment on which it is based. First Nat. Bank v. South Beaumont Land & Imp. Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 436.

In a suit to set aside a sheriff's deed to certain real estate, evidence held to warrant a finding that the purchaser had notice that the judgment debtor held title as trustee only. Snouffer v. Helsing (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 912.

— Judgment creditor as purchaser.—Where a judgment creditor purchases, it is not necessary that the money be in fact paid to the sheriff. The credit upon the execution is evidence of payment. Blum v. Rogers, 71 T. 669, 9 S. W. 595.

A creditor purchasing property and crediting the amount of his bid on the execution is not an innocent bona fide purchaser. I. S. Brown Hardware Co. v. Marwitz, 10 C. A. 458, 32 S. W. 78; Nichols-Stewart v. Crosby, 29 S. W. 380, 87 T. 443; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 648; Overstreet v. Manning, 67 T. 661, 4 S. W. 248; Barnett v. Vincent, 69 T. 687, 7 S. W. 525, 5 Am. St. Rep. 98; Burnham v. McMichael, 6 C. A. 496, 26 S. W. 887; Cobb v. Trammell, 9 C. A. 527, 30 S. W. 482; State Bank of Waxahachie Bank (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 366.

A purchaser at execution sale crediting the amount of his bid on the judgment is not a bona fide purchaser. Aultman v. George, 12 C. A. 457, 34 S. W. 652; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 652; Cobb v. Trammell, 9 C. A. 527, 30 S. W. 482.

An execution creditor who bids in the property is not a purchaser for value, and takes subject to the rights of third persons. Focke v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 755.

The application of the bid of a judgment creditor for land sold under execution to costs of the sale and execution held insufficient to render such creditor a bona fide purchaser of the land. Hicks v. Pogue, 33 C. A. 333, 76 S. W. 786.

A creditor purchasing land at his own execution sale is not an innocent purchaser, where he merely credits the amount of his bid on the judgment. Henderson v. Rushing, 47 C. A. 485, 105 S. W. 840.

Where land is bought at execution sale by the judgment creditor, held, that he is presumed not to have paid cash, but to have credited his bid on the judgment. Lightfoot v. Horst (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 606.

The judgment creditor buying at execution sale and crediting his bid on the judgment held not a bona fide purchaser. Id.

— Evidence.—See notes under Art. 3637.

Liens and Incumbrances on property—In general.—A purchaser at a judicial sale subject to a lien held not to become personally liable for the amount secured by such lien. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 157.

Purchaser at foreclosure sale held to have taken the land free from other lien held by the judgment creditor, though purchaser paid less than the value and had notice of the other lien. Alston v. Piper, 34 C. A. 539, 79 S. W. 357.

Purchaser at foreclosure sale held to have taken the land free from another lien held by the judgment creditor, notwithstanding that the deed of trust foreclosed had purported to convey the entire interest, when as a matter of fact the grantor then had only a half interest. Id.

— Equitable liens in general.—An equitable lien for the purchase money of land is superior to the rights of a purchaser at execution sale with notice. Davis v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 435.

— Vendor's lien.—As against a purchaser with notice of a vendor's lien acquired before sale under a judgment with a legal lien on the land, the operation of the lien of the judgment will be confined to the actual interest of the judgment debtor in the estate at the time such lien was fixed, and that, although the purchaser had no actual notice when the lien attached. Senter v. Lambeth, 59 T. 260; Calvert v. Roche, 59 T. 463.

One who acquires a purchaser's equity of redemption by buying land at execution sale cannot recover it from the vendor without finishing payment. Levy v. Persons (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 446.

— Mortgage lien.—Execution sale of mortgaged lands passes title subject to the lien of the mortgage. Wilkins v. Bryarly (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 266.

— Attachment lien.—Title acquired under execution sale held superior to lien of attachment levied subsequent to judgment lien, notwithstanding unauthorized release of judgment. Corbett v. Provident Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 61.

Subsequent purchasers.—See notes under Art. 6824.

Art. 3769. [2379] [2319] Penalty for making sale otherwise than as authorized by law.—Any officer who shall sell any property without giving the previous notice herein directed, or who shall sell the same otherwise than in the manner herein prescribed, shall forfeit and pay to the party injured not less than ten nor more than two hundred dollars in addition to such other damages as the party may have sustained, to be recovered, on motion, five days' notice thereof being given, from such officer and his sureties.

Liability of officer.—The policy of our law seems to be that execution sales should be upheld, and that for his damages occasioned by failure to give proper notice of the sale the execution debtor should have his action against the officer guilty of the dereliction. Rogers v. Moore (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 113.

Where it appeared that plaintiff in execution and the officer who made a levy on exempt property were informed that the debtor was the head of a family, that he worked the horses levied on to make a living for himself and family, that he claimed the horses as exempt from execution, that he had no other team which he could use and was not financially able to buy another, the plaintiff in execution and the officer committed a tort, and the officer was liable to the debtor for the consequences resulting from the levy and sale of the property. Ralley v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 624.

Under this article an officer would be liable for damages resulting from his failure to advertise for sale goods levied upon. Mara v. Branch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 661.

Art. 3770. [2380] [2320] Officer or deputy shall not purchase.—If any officer making sale of property on execution, or his deputy, shall, directly or indirectly, purchase the same, the sale shall be void.

Art. 3771. [2381] [2321] Purchaser failing to comply.—If any person shall bid off property at any sale made by virtue of an execution, and shall fail to comply with the terms of the sale, he shall be liable to pay the plaintiff in execution twenty per cent on the value of the property thus bid off, besides costs, to be recovered on motion, five days' previous notice of such motion being given to the defendant; and, should the property on a second sale bring less than on the former, he shall be liable to pay to the defendant in execution all loss which he sustains thereby, to be recovered on motion as above provided. [Id. P. D. 3786.]

Construction of "twenty per cent."—The statute does not mean by the words "twenty per cent. on the value of the property thus bid off" the value of the property unincumbered, unless it be unincumbered. It relates to what is in reality actually sold. Towell v. Smith (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 186.

If the property be so incumbered that the sale passes a right of no value, no recovery of 20 per cent. on the value of the property bid off, can be had if the purchaser shall fail to comply with the terms of the sale. Towell v. Smith (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 186.

This article does not mean by the words "twenty per cent. of the value of the property thus bid off" the value of the property unincumbered, unless it is unincumbered; but it relates to what is really sold. If it is so incumbered that the sale passes a right of no value no recovery can be had under this article. Borden v. Fahey, 56 C. A. 218, 120 S. W. 564.

Liabilities of purchaser on failure to comply with bid.—Where a bidder at an execution sale fails to pay amount of his bid, the execution creditor is entitled to recover from the bidder 20 per cent. of the bid, but he is not entitled to recover from the bidder, the difference between the amounts for which the land was sold at first and second sales. The execution debtor is entitled to this difference. Shanley v. York, 54 C. A. 214, 118 S. W. 147.

Purchasing under mistake.—A creditor purchasing under the mistaken supposition that he can apply the amount of his debt to the payment of his bid may be relieved from his obligation to take the property and pay the money, unless his mistake was the consequence of his negligence. Interstate National Bank v. O'Dwyer (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 368.

A bidder at an execution sale whose bid is the result of a mistake held not to incur the penalty authorized by Art. 3771. Borden v. Fahey, 56 C. A. 218, 120 S. W. 564.

Bid cancelled.—A purchaser at an execution sale may have the credit of his bid cancelled by showing that the property bought belonged to a third party. Hollon v. Hale, 21 C. A. 194, 51 S. W. 900.

Right of defendant in execution to amount recovered.—Where plaintiff in execution recovered from a defaulting bidder the difference between his bid and the price obtained on resale, which, under the statute, belonged to defendant in execution, the execution defendant, not being a party to the action against the defaulting bidder, could recover from plaintiff in execution, in a proper proceeding, the amount wrongfully recovered by him. Shanley v. York, 54 C. A. 214, 118 S. W. 146.

Art. 3772. [2382] [2322] Re-sale of property.—When the terms of the sale shall not be complied with by the bidder, the sheriff shall proceed to sell the property again on the same day, if there be sufficient time; but, if not, he shall readvertise and sell the same as in the first instance. [Id. P. D. 3787.]

Art. 3773. [2383] [2323] Return of execution by mail.—When an execution is issued to any county other than the one in which the judgment is rendered, return may be made by mail; but money can not be thus sent except by direction of the party entitled to receive the same or his attorney of record.

Art. 3774. [2384] [2324] Money to be paid over.—When an officer has collected money on execution, he shall pay over the same to the party entitled thereto at the earliest opportunity.

Sheriff should pay to assignee.—Where notice is given to the sheriff, before collection, of a valid transfer of the judgment, the money, when collected, should be paid to the assignee. McClane v. Rogers, 42 T. 214; Hudson v. Morriss, 55 T. 595.

Money of debtor in hands of sheriff.—When an officer holds an execution in favor of and against the same person, he may apply the money collected on one to the satisfaction of the other. Hamilton v. Ward, 4 T. 356; Walton v. Compton, 28 T. 569; Cook v. Gatewood, 43 T. 185.

Money collected on execution in the hands of a sheriff, and belonging to a judgment debtor against whom the sheriff holds an execution, may be applied to the payment of such execution by the sheriff. Mann v. Kelsey, 71 T. 609, 12 S. W. 43, 10 Am. St. Rep. 800.

Liability of sureties on bond of justice of the peace.—See notes under Art. 2283.

Art. 3775. [2385] [2325] Failure to pay over money.—Should an officer fail or refuse to pay over money collected under an execution when demanded by the person entitled to receive the same, he shall be liable to pay to such person the amount so collected, with damages at the rate of five per cent per month thereon, besides interests and costs, which may be recovered of him and his sureties by the party entitled to receive the same on motion before the court from which said execution issued, five days' previous notice thereof being given to said officer and his sureties. [Id. P. D. 3781.]

Only on motion.—Damages are recoverable only on motion. Hamilton v. Ward, 4 T. 356; De La Garza v. Booth, 28 T. 478, 91 Am. Dec. 328; Scogins v. Perry, 46 T. 111; Murray v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 63 T. 407, 51 Am. Rep. 650.

Motion in what court.—Motion must be made in the court from which the execution issued (De Witt v. Dunn, 15 T. 106; Beaver v. Batte, 19 T. 111; De La Garza v. Booth, 28 T. 478, 91 Am. Dec. 328) by the party to the execution (Beaver v. Batte, 19 T. 111; Hicks v. Gray, 25 T. 82), and must be filed without unnecessary delay (Scogins v. Perry, 46 T. 111; Donley v. Wiggins, 52 T. 301).

Remedy cumulative.—The remedy by motion is cumulative. De La Garza v. Booth, 28 T. 478, 91 Am. Dec. 328; Hamilton v. Ward, 4 T. 356.

Demand unnecessary.—A previous demand is necessary before a motion. Beaver v. Batte, 19 T. 111; De La Garza v. Booth, 28 T. 478, 91 Am. Dec. 328; Poer v. Brown, 24 T. 34; Donley v. Wiggins, 52 T. 301.

Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Penalty will not be enforced, when.—Damages are not recoverable when payment is refused on the ground of reasonable doubt as to who is entitled to the money. McMahan v. Hall, 36 T. 59; Platt v. Phillips, 37 T. 9.

The penalty for failing to pay over money collected will not be enforced when there has been an unreasonable delay in instituting proceedings. Donley v. Wiggins, 52 T. 301.

Liabilities of sureties.—The sureties are not liable for money received after the return day of the execution, no previous levy having been made. Hamilton v. Ward, 4 T. 356; Haley v. Greenwood, 28 T. 680; Thomas v. Browder, 33 T. 783.

The statute which authorizes suit against a surety without suing the principal applies to this motion. Poer v. Brown, 24 T. 34.

Motion.—Where a sheriff collects money on execution under a judgment on a forfeited recognizance, and fails to account, the district attorney may file a motion in the name of the state (under Art. 3773) for the use of the county. Russell v. State (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 69.

Art. 3776. [2386] [2326] Failure to levy or sell, penalty for.—Should an officer fail or refuse to levy upon or sell any property justly liable to execution, when the same might have been done, he and his sureties shall be liable to the party entitled to receive the money collected on such execution for the full amount of the debt, interest and costs, to be recovered on motion before the court from which said execution issued, five days' previous notice thereof being given to said officer and his sureties. [Id. P. D. 3796.]

Necessary to show, what.—The ability of an officer to make a levy must be shown. Hamilton v. Ward, 4 T. 356; Underwood v. Russell, 4 T. 175; Smith v. Perry, 18 T. 510, 70 Am. Dec. 295; Batte v. Chandler, 53 T. 613.

It is necessary to show that the execution had been placed in the hands of the sheriff; and that while in his hands he had been required to make a levy when it was in his power to do so, and that he had failed. Lyendecker v. Martin, 38 T. 287.

Sureties not necessary parties.—In a motion against an officer for balance on judgment for not collecting the amount of the execution, his sureties need not be made parties. They can be included in the motion, but if the plaintiff does not see fit to include them, he need not. Murray v. Evans, 25 C. A. 335, 60 S. W. 788.

Motion in what court.—The motion may be made in the county court from which the execution was issued, although the amount of the judgment affirmed and damages exceeds $1,000. Banner v. Henry (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 1098.

Five days' notice.—In computing the five days' notice, the time should be reckoned from the date of the acceptance and not from the date of filing the acceptance of service. Murray v. Evans, 25 C. A. 331, 60 S. W. 787.

Acceptance of service.—The waiver and acceptance of service filed by defendant dispenses with the issuance and service of notice of the motion as required by this article. Murray v. Evans, 25 C. A. 331, 60 S. W. 787.

What will excuse officer.—The existence of prior liens does not excuse the failure to sell. Smothers v. Field, 65 T. 435.

The sheriff may rebut by disproving the facts or may show matter in avoidance. Smothers v. Field, 65 T. 435; Cobbs v. Coleman, 14 T. 594; Dearborn v. Phillips, 21 T. 449; Anderson v. McKay, 30 T. 186.

Malicious prosecution of motion.—The rule that applies to ordinary civil suits applies to the character of proceeding provided for by motion under this article. The merely bringing of an unjust or unfounded suit against one, is not actionable; nor is one liable for damages for malicious prosecution of a motion under this article. Nowotny v. Grona, 44 C. A. 325, 98 S. W. 416.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827.

Art. 3777. [2387] [2327] Failure to return execution.—Should an officer neglect or refuse to return any execution as required by law, or should he make a false return thereon, he and his sureties shall be liable to the party entitled to receive the money collected on such execution for the full amount of the debt, interests and costs, to be recovered as provided in the preceding article. [Id. P. D. 3796.]

See Waxahachie Nursery Co. v. Sansom (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 422.

Motion, by whom.—Motion must be made by the plaintiff in the execution. Hicks v. Gray, 25 T. 82.

An assignee of a judgment who is entitled to receive the money when collected on an execution or order of sale in the hands of an officer and which is not returned is the proper party to a motion made to recover the money on account of the failure of the officer to return. The assignor of such judgment is not a proper party. Ranken v. Jones (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 583.

What will excuse officer.—When a motion was filed after a debt had been satisfied, the sheriff is not liable for nominal damages. Hamilton v. Ward, 4 T. 356; Underwood v. Russell, 4 T. 175.

Where the debt has been paid or defendant has no property, the sheriff is liable for nominal damages only. Smith v. Perry, 18 T. 510, 70 Am. Dec. 295.

An officer may exonerate himself from liability by showing that the defendant is insolvent and the money could not have been collected by the use of proper diligence. Smith v. Perry, 18 T. 510, 70 Am. Dec. 295; Griswold v. Chandler, 22 T. 637; Vaughn v. Warnell, 28 T. 119; Ellis v. Blanks (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 309. Or that the judgment was void. Wilson v. Sparks, 9 T. 621. But that the service of process was insufficient is no answer to the motion. Griswold v. Chandler, 22 T. 637.

The sheriff having failed to return the execution he was liable for the full amount of the judgment unless it was made to appear that no injury resulted to plaintiff, and merely showing that defendant in judgment was insolvent was not sufficient to relieve sheriff from liability, especially as there was other testimony showing that the defendant owned property subject to execution within sheriff's jurisdiction. Hale v. Bickett, 34 C. A. 369, 78 S. W. 531.

Art. 3778. [2388] [2328] Surplus to be paid to defendant.—If, on the sale of property, more money is received than is sufficient to pay the amount of the execution or executions in the hands of the officer, the surplus shall be immediately paid over to the defendant, his agent or attorney. [Id. P. D. 3777.]

Authority of sheriff to receive money.—A sheriff has authority to receive money only on the execution in his hands. Harris v. Ellis, 30 T. 4, 94 Am. Dec. 296.

After the return of the execution, the sheriff has no authority to receive payment of the judgment. Id.

Surplus subject to garnishment.—The excess of the proceeds of a sale under execution, remaining in the sheriff's hands after satisfying the execution, is subject to garnishment by another creditor of the judgment debtor. Turner v. Gibson, 105 T. 488, 151 S. W. 793, 43 L. R. A. (N. S.) 571.

Under this article the officer ceases to hold the remainder of the proceeds in his official capacity, and becomes a debtor to the execution defendant as to the surplus, so that such surplus is subject to garnishment by a creditor of the execution defendant. Turner v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 839.

Officer may subject surplus to another execution.—An officer having a surplus in his hands after a sale of property under execution and satisfaction of the judgment may subject it to a second execution against defendant. Turner v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 839.

Money of debtor in hands of sheriff.—See notes under Art. 3774.

Art. 3779. [2389] [2329] Return of execution.—Every execution shall be returned forthwith, upon being satisfied by the collection of the money, or upon order of the plaintiff or his attorney indorsed thereon.

Sufficiency of return.—In trespass to try title, the return of the execution under which the sale was had held inadmissible for failure to sufficiently describe the property purported to be conveyed. Stipe v. Shirley, 27 C. A. 97, 64 S. W. 1012.

Sheriff's return to execution and his deed held not void for uncertainty of description when with extrinsic evidence they designate property intended to be conveyed. Buckner v. Vancleave, 34 C. A. 312, 78 S. W. 541.

Venditioni exponas necessary for sale.—A return of the execution exhibiting an interest levied on, and thereby showing property of the defendant in custodia legis for satisfaction of the judgment, requires the issuance of a writ of venditioni exponas in order to sell the property. Borden v. McRea, 46 T. 396. This writ confers upon the officer authority to sell pursuant to the levy advertised and commanded on the writ without re-advertising the property. Young v. Smith, 23 T. 598, 76 Am. Dec. 81.

Conflict in recitals.—Where there is a conflict between a sheriff's deed and his return, the recitals in the deed always control. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

Conclusiveness.—The return of the sheriff cannot be impeached in a collateral proceeding. Schneider v. Ferguson, 77 T. 573, 14 S. W. 154; Rutledge v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 910.

The return of the sheriff cannot be collaterally attacked so far as the defendant is concerned. Rutledge v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 910.

Strangers to a proceeding in which an execution is issued may collaterally assail a return thereon. Holt v. Hunt, 18 C. A. 363, 44 S. W. 889.

Plaintiff cannot defeat defendant's title to property acquired at execution sale in a prior suit by claiming that the levy was defective, since that would be a collateral attack on the officer's return. Sparks v. McHugh, 21 C. A. 265, 51 S. W. 873.

Constable's return held conclusive as against parties to suit on collateral attack. Houssels v. Pitts (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 588.

This statute must be followed in making the levy. The statute does not prescribe a form of the officers' return, nor does it provide that the return shall show the manner in which the levy was made. The return will be construed liberally and the presumption indulged that the levy was legally made. The return cannot be attacked collaterally. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 554.

A sheriff, sued for conversion by levy and sale under execution, held estopped from denying the legality of the levy by his return on the execution. Cox v. Patten (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 64.

In a suit between a judgment debtor and purchaser of the debtor's land at an execution sale, plaintiff held entitled to impeach the officer's return on the notice of sale, by showing that such notice was not in fact served as alleged. Moore v. Snowball, 36 C. A. 495, 82 S. W. 330.

Failure of the sheriff's return to show that written notice was given the defendants of execution sale held not conclusive that proper notice was not given. Paschall v. Brown (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 509.

Necessity of appraisal.—Sale of land under execution cannot be attacked, in action to try title, on ground of irregularity in sheriff's failure to append appraisalment to return of execution. Bludworth v. Poole, 21 C. A. 551, 53 S. W. 717.

Cure of defects.—A defective return of the levy on land may be corrected by the recitals in the sheriff's deed. Whitney v. Kropf, 8 C. A. 304, 27 S. W. 843.

Effect of defects.—The title of a purchaser of land at sheriff's sale rests upon a valid judgment, levy and execution sale. The levy must describe the land sufficiently to identify it. Donnebaum v. Tinsley, 54 T. 362. Mere want of certainty in the return will not invalidate the sale. Riddle v. Bush, 27 T. 675; Ayres v. Duprey, 27 T. 593, 86 Am. Dec. 657. See Art. 3766.

A clerical error in the return to an execution issued June 9th, reciting a levy on June 1st, did not vitiate sale thereunder; the levy having been made on July 1st. Davidson v. Chandler, 27 C. A. 418, 65 S. W. 1080.

Parol evidence to explain return.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Authority of sheriff to receive money.—See notes under Art. 3778.

Art. 3780. [2390] [2330] Death of defendant operates as supersedeas, when.—The death of the defendant after the execution is issued shall operate as a supersedeas thereof; but the lien of the execution, when one has been acquired by a levy, shall be recognized and enforced by the county court in the payment of the debts of the deceased.

Sale under execution issued after death.—A sale under execution issued after the death of a sole defendant, when the judgment is for money, is void. Conkrite v. Hart, 10 T. 140; McMiller v. Butler, 20 T. 402; Hooper v. Caruthers, 78 T. 432, 15 S. W. 98; Bynum v. Gowan, 29 S. W. 1119, 9 C. A. 559.

Death prior to sale.—In view of Art. 3723, where a judgment for taxes was rendered against a purchaser of land subject to a vendor's lien, and he died prior to a sale of the land on execution, the sale was void. Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1070.

Art. 3781. [2391] [2331] Death of plaintiff does not abate writ.—An execution shall not be abated by the death of the plaintiff therein after the execution has been issued, but the same shall be executed and returned in the same manner as if the plaintiff was still living.

Art. 3782. [2392] [2332] Execution docket.—The clerk of each of the several courts shall keep an execution docket in which he shall enter a statement of all executions as they are issued by him, specifying the names of the parties, the amount of the judgment, the amount due thereon, the rate of interest when it exceeds eight per cent, the costs, the date of issuing the execution, to whom delivered, and the return of the officer thereon, with the date of such return; and such docket entries shall be taken and deemed to be a record. [Id. P. D. 3773. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Entries in execution docket admissible.—Certified copies of entries in the execution docket are admissible in evidence. Schleicher v. Markward, 61 T. 99.

Art. 3783. [2393] [2333] Index to execution docket.—The clerk shall keep an index and cross-index to the execution docket; and, when execution is in favor of or against several persons, it shall be indexed in the name of each person.

Art. 3784. [2394] [2334] Penalty for failing to keep docket and index.—Any clerk who shall fail to keep an execution docket and index thereto, as hereinbefore directed, or shall neglect to make the entries therein, shall, besides being punished as provided in the penal law, be liable to any person injured for the amount of damages sustained by such neglect, to be recovered in a suit against him and his sureties on his official bond.

1. Indemnity to officer.—A sheriff has no right to demand an indemnity bond before levying upon real estate; and the refusal to give such a bond will not justify the sheriff in abandoning the levy and refusing to sell the property. Bryan v. Bridge, 6 T. 137.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that goods levied on equaled in value the indemnity bond so as to entitle sheriff to demand further indemnity before making new levy. Seasongood v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 407.

An officer holding an execution may require indemnity before levying on personal property. Id.

An indemnity bond, given a constable after the illegal levy of an execution to induce him not to return the property, is enforceable against the sureties. Hines v. Norris (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 791.

2. Withdrawal of execution.—An invalid execution may be withdrawn at any time before sale of property levied on or the intervention of the rights of third parties. Wingfield v. Hackney, 30 C. A. 39, 69 S. W. 446.

3. Suppression of competition at bidding.—An action by the owner of property sold for customs duties for a nominal consideration may be maintained by her for an alleged fraudulent stifling of competition at the sale. Ney v. Ladd (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1014.

An arrangement between bidders on property sold under an execution held not to constitute an agreement to suppress competition. Snouffer v. Heisig (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 912.

4. Rights of highest rejected bidder.—One whose bid, though the highest at execution sale was unaccepted, has a remedy by motion to vacate the sale to another. Rugely v. Moore, 23 C. A. 10, 54 S. W. 379.

5. Who may purchase at sale.—A county judge should not be permitted to purchase and hold land sold under an execution, which he controlled for the county. Bell County v. Felts (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1065; Felts v. Bell County, 103 T. 616, 132 S. W. 123.

6. Grounds for setting aside sale.—A sale under execution may be set aside on account of the irregularity in the proceedings anterior to the sale, by a proceeding instituted for that purpose. Ayres v. Duprey, 27 T. 593, 86 Am. Dec. 657; Owen v. City of Navasota, 44 T. 517; Cook v. Sparks, 47 T. 28; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 319; Elam v. Donald, 58 T. 816.

Mere irregularities in a judicial sale will not affect the title of a purchaser in good faith. Harle v. Langdon, 60 T. 555; Morris v. Hastings, 70 T. 26, 7 S. W. 649, 8 Am. St. Rep. 570; Huckins v. Leitner, 4 App. C. C. § 20, 14 S. W. 1016.

A sheriff's sale made in violation of an agreement between all the parties in interest that the sale should not take place unless all were present, and at which the land sold for an inadequate consideration, was set aside. Ward v. Duer, 70 T. 231, 11 S. W. 116.

One purchasing property for one-fifteenth of its value at execution sale not founded on a judgment of record is not an innocent purchaser. Beckham v. Medlock, 19 C. A. 61, 46 S. W. 402.

Irregularities in judgment and sale on execution do not affect title passing on sale under execution. Bludworth v. Poole, 21 C. A. 551, 53 S. W. 717.

An execution sale of lands held properly set aside. Day v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 107, 72 S. W. 426.

Rights acquired by innocent strangers for value under an execution on a judgment of a justice of the peace fair on its face will not be disturbed, though the judgment be invalid. Carpenter v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 491, 77 S. W. 291.

An execution sale of personalty held not subject to collateral attack. Hubert v. Hubert, 46 C. A. 503, 102 S. W. 948.

That a bid at execution sale was credited on the judgment and exceeded the judgment finally affirmed held not to sustain a collateral attack on the execution sale, even though the excess of the bid over the final judgment was not paid. Wade v. Flanary (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 506.

An execution sale held not open to collateral attack. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

A certain irregularity in proceedings leading up to a judicial sale held not such as to render the sale void, in the absence of a showing that persons intending to bid had notice of the defect, and because of it refrained from bidding. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. South Beaumont Land & Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 436.

A judgment creditor held not entitled to impeach the title of the purchaser at the execution sale on the ground of irregularities in the proceedings antedating and including the sale. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

An execution sale after compromise of the judgment and promise of the execution plaintiff to stop the sale was void in toto, though the compromise did not provide for payment of costs, and no notice thereof was given to the officer. Marshall v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 755.

7. Inadequacy of price.—Inadequacy of price without additional circumstances is not sufficient to invalidate a sale. Allen v. Stephanes, 18 T. 658; Baker v. Clepper, 26 T. 629, 84 Am. Dec. 591; Chamblee v. Tarbox, 27 T. 139, 84 Am. Dec. 614; Taul v. Wright, 45 T. 388; Cravens v. Wilson, 48 T. 324; Pearson v. Flanagan, 52 T. 266; Pearson v. Hudson, 52 T. 352; Johnson v. Crawl, 55 T. 571; Atchison v. Owen, 58 T. 610; Allen v. Pierson, 60 T. 604; Hughes v. Duncan, 60 T. 72; Haskins v. Waillett, 63 T. 213.

A sale of property in violation of law, made under the persuasion of one who became the purchaser, for a grossly inadequate price, may be avoided by the judgment debtor. Stone v. Day, 69 T. 13, 5 S. W. 642, 5 Am. St. Rep. 17.

A sale under execution of land at a grossly inadequate price will not be set aside for an irregularity which did not conduce to such result. Driscoll v. Morris, 21 S. W. 629, 2 C. A. 603. See Fuller v. L. & I. Co. (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 571; Davis v. Harnbell (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 972.

Where land was sold under execution, the owner cannot complain of inadequacy of price to which his conduct contributed. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1036.

The fact that the sum bid on execution sale of personal property was inadequate does not in itself invalidate the sale. Hunstock v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 514.

Circumstances held sufficient to entitle a judgment creditor to have a judicial sale set aside for inadequacy of price. Lee v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 501, 55 S. W. 976.

A sale of land under execution held not void for inadequacy of price. Valdez v. Cohen, 23 C. A. 475, 56 S. W. 375.

Inadequacy of price held not sufficient to justify setting aside a sale under execution. Martin v. Bryson, 31 C. A. 98, 71 S. W. 615.

A purchaser of land at execution sale, known to be worth $2,500, for $53, held not bona fide, so as to support the conveyance. Carpenter v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 484, 77 S. W. 291.

When an execution sale is attacked, it is not necessary to show affirmatively that the ground relied on to avoid it in connection with inadequacy of price occasioned the inadequacy. McLean v. Stith, 50 C. A. 323, 112 S. W. 355.

Inadequacy of price alone does not render a judicial sale, publicly made, void, and is not ground for setting it aside after confirmation and payment of the purchase money. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 878.

Effect of inadequacy of price at an execution sale as invalidating the sale stated. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

Where a constable sold a large number of lots at an execution sale, the fact that a party attempting to have the sale set aside only claimed a portion of them did not render it improper to include the value of all the lots to arrive at a proper conclusion as to inadequacy of price. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

Where property has been sold at execution sale at a very inadequate price, a court of equity will set the sale aside, where defendant makes a prompt offer to pay the indebtedness, costs, and interest. Id.

A sale under execution will be set aside for slight irregularities where gross inadequacy in price is shown. Peters v. Rice (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1181.

8. — Inadequacy of price combined with other objections.—As to effect of irregularities coupled with gross inadequacy of price, see Scott v. Allen, 1 T. 512; Bennett v. Gamble, 1 T. 132; Martin v. Rice, 16 T. 160; Criswell v. Ragsdale, 18 T. 443; Taul v. Wright, 45 T. 394; Cook v. Sparks, 47 T. 28; Weaver v. Nugent, 72 T. 280, 10 S. W. 458, 13 Am. St. Rep. 792; McKay v. Bank, 75 T. 184, 12 S. W. 529, 16 Am. St. Rep. 884; Cleveland v. Simpson, 77 T. 96, 13 S. W. 851; Irvin v. Ferguson, 83 T. 491, 18 S. W. 820; Jackson v. Steffins, 32 S. W. 862; Martin v. Anderson, 4 C. A. 111, 23 S. W. 290; City of Vernon v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 606.

An execution sale of property under a levy in violation of law, made under the persuasion of one who became the purchaser thereof at such sale for a grossly inadequate price, may as to such purchaser be avoided by the judgment debtor. Stone v. Day, 69 T. 13, 5 S. W. 642, 5 Am. St. Rep. 17.

Gross inadequacy of price alone is not ground to avoid a sale, but if accompanied with slight irregularities attending the sale will avoid a sheriff's sale. Jones v. Pratt, 77 T. 210, 13 S. W. 887; Smith v. Perkins, 81 T. 152, 16 S. W. 805, 26 Am. St. Rep. 794.

An execution sale, where the judgment creditor knows his debtor to be insane, for an inadequate consideration, held voidable. Houghton v. Rice, 15 C. A. 561, 40 S. W. 349.

Irregularities combined with inadequacy of price will not affect an execution sale, unless the irregularities contributed to the inadequacy. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1036.

An execution sale of property which had previously been conveyed by the debtor for the fraudulent purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors will not be set aside at the instance of the fraudulent grantee on the ground of inadequacy of price. Clark v. Bell, 40 C. A. 39, 89 S. W. 38.

Certain irregularities in an order of sale, coupled with inadequacy of price, held sufficient to set aside a judicial sale. White v. Taylor, 46 C. A. 471, 102 S. W. 747.

A purchaser's fraud in making the purchase with knowledge that the judgment had been satisfied, in connection with inadequacy of price, was sufficient to warrant setting aside an execution sale. Marshall v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 755.

9. Estoppel to set aside sale.—Plaintiff held not estopped from setting aside a sheriff's sale of certain lands. Kennedy v. Walker (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1115.

10. Actions to set aside sale—Defenses.—A judgment creditor's agent, who arrived at the place of holding a judicial sale in time to have bid if the sale had not been made half an hour earlier than usual, is not guilty of such negligence as will defeat such creditor's right to set it aside for inadequacy of price. Lee v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 501, 55 S. W. 976.

11. — Jurisdiction.—See notes under Title 35, Chapter 3.

12. — Limitations and laches.—See notes under Title 87, Chapter 2.

An execution debtor complaining of inadequacy in price at sale of his property should promptly act to avoid such sale against the necessary parties. Brackenridge v. Cobb, 85 T. 448, 21 S. W. 1034.

13. — Tender.—Execution sale set aside on tender by execution debtor of amount paid. Steffens v. Jackson, 16 C. A. 280, 41 S. W. 520.

Purchaser of land sold under execution held not required to accept a tender of the amount paid from the judgment debtor on demand for reconveyance. Valdez v. Cohen, 23 C. A. 475, 56 S. W. 375.

Judgment setting aside sale on execution at suit of plaintiff will not be disturbed, though amount of bid tendered by plaintiff was not deposited in court. Johnson v. Daniel, 25 C. A. 587, 63 S. W. 1032.

In an action to set aside an execution sale, a tender of the amount of money actually paid by the purchaser held sufficient. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

Where an execution debtor notified the execution purchaser, before the sale that the judgment had been settled, a case of fraud was shown, and the debtor was not required to tender to the purchaser the amount of his bid in an action to set aside the sale. Marshall v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 755.

14. — Parties.—See notes at end of Title 37, Chapter 5.

15. — Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held to justify setting aside a sale of a homestead under a judgment on a sewerage improvement certificate. Moore v. Perry (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 878.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that a purchaser at a judicial sale and the sheriff acted together for the purpose of securing a sale of the property for an inadequate price. Lee v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 501, 55 S. W. 976.

16. — Instructions and questions for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

17. — Effect of setting aside sale.—Where a party claiming a number of lots under an execution sale brought action against defendants for such lots, but the defendants claimed only a portion of them and prayed for cancellation of the constable's deed on the ground that the sale was fraudulent, and defendants prevailed, the plaintiff also lost all title to the lots not claimed by defendants. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 573.

18. Collateral attack on sale.—Plaintiffs in trespass to try title held land by deed from a purchaser of it at an execution sale. The defendants in possession in reconvention pleaded that they held by deed from the heirs of the defendant in the execution, and set up facts as avoiding the sale, tendering the purchase money and interest. The plea was filed more than ten years after the sale. No other parties were made or asked to be made. Held, that the plea in reconvention could not be considered as a direct attack, but only collateral, and that matters in avoidance of the sale would not avail as a defense, or as grounds for recovery by the defendants, the sale not being void. Smith v. Perkins, 81 T. 152, 16 S. W. 805, 26 Am. St. Rep. 794.

That the judgment under which corporate stock was sold under execution is valid does not preclude an attack on the sale for irregularities calculated to affect the price for which the stock was sold. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. South Beaumont Land & Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 436.

To make an execution sale immune from collateral attack, there must be a valid judgment and execution. Bailey v. Block, 104 T. 101, 134 S. W. 323.

Where plaintiff brings trespass to try title, claiming under an execution sale, and defendants tender the amount of the judgment, but attempt to set aside the sale for fraud, such attempt is a direct, and not a collateral, attack upon the sale. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

19. Purchase by agent.—Persons to whom property was struck off at judicial sale held not bound by the purchase unless the person assuming to bid in their behalf was authorized. Richards v. E. V. & J. F. O'Neal (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 302.

20. Title of purchaser in general.—Title acquired at a sheriff's sale may be shown by proof of the validity of the judgment, issuance of execution thereon, a sale thereunder, and payment of the purchase money. Reeder v. Eidson (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 750.

21. Equities against debtor.—Judgment debtor held not estopped to dispute the validity of an execution sale under a judgment by confession, where the judgment was confessed by her attorney for a larger amount than was authorized. Cordray v. Neuhaus, 25 C. A. 247, 61 S. W. 415.

Where a husband purchased a moiety of certain land partly with his wife's money, the wife was entitled as against the husband's creditors to an undivided interest in proportion to the amount of consideration she contributed. Skinner v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 426.

22. Effect of reversal of judgment.—See notes under Art. 2029.

23. Rights of purchaser on setting aside sale.—When a judgment debtor seeks to recover property irregularly sold under execution, the purchaser will not be compelled to restore the same without being reimbursed the amount paid and applied to the judgment. Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 Am. Dec. 769; Bailey v. White, 13 T. 114; Andrews v. Richardson, 21 T. 287; Morton v. Welborne, 21 T. 772; Stone v. Darnell, 25 T. Sup. 430, 78 Am. Dec. 582; Johnson v. Caldwell, 38 T. 217; Walker v. Lawler, 45 T. 532; Burns v. Ledbetter, 54 T. 374.

When a sale is made under a void judgment the owner of the property is not bound to refund the purchase money. Stegall v. Huff, 54 T. 193.

A purchaser at a sheriff's sale who, after paying money on his bid which discharges the judgment, received a defective sheriff's deed, may be subrogated to the lien of the original judgment. His right of action does not depend on his possession; if in possession he cannot be disturbed in it by the original judgment debtor until the money paid by him in discharging the judgment has been refunded. Jones v. Smith, 55 T. 383.

A purchaser at a sale made under a decree of court which had no jurisdiction may still under some circumstances be a purchaser in good faith, and as such entitled to compensation for improvements made on land purchased before eviction. French v. Grenet, 57 T. 273.

The claim of a defendant in possession under a void judicial sale for the value of necessary and beneficial repairs made by him on improved real estate, and which have enhanced the value of the property, is based upon a higher equity than if the improvements were merely ornamental or new. Id.

A purchaser who has made permanent and valuable improvements in good faith is also entitled to compensation for his improvements. Allen v. Pierson, 60 T. 604; Jones v. Smith, 55 T. 383.

A purchaser at sheriff's sale whose money, paid on the purchase, satisfied the judgment under which the sale was made, is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the plaintiff in execution, if the sale should be held void. Flaniken v. Neal, 67 T. 629, 4 S. W. 212.

Where defendants claim under an invalid execution sale against plaintiffs' ancestors, the latter will be required to pay the amount bid at the sale as a condition precedent to a recovery. Hayes v. Gallaher, 21 C. A. 88, 51 S. W. 280.

In an action by the purchaser at an execution sale against the interest of a partner, to recover such interest, recovery is not limited to the goods bought at the sale and actually in stock at the time of trial, but the plaintiff is entitled to compensation for the property disposed of intervening the sale and trial, as for a conversion. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 553.

A vendee at an execution sale, which is set aside for invalidity of the judgment, held entitled to be reimbursed by the judgment debtor to the extent of the sum paid. Carpenter v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 484, 77 S. W. 291.

Where plaintiffs, in a suit to set aside an execution sale of land, were not the sole owners at the time of the sale, on the sale being vacated they were only required to return such portion of the purchase price as corresponded to their proportionate interests in the land. Moore v. Snowball, 36 C. A. 495, 82 S. W. 330.

An execution purchaser, on the failure of title, cannot recover from the execution creditor the amount of his bid. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

Execution to enforce decree foreclosing vendor's lien held not susceptible of levy on naked legal title, reserved by grantee to secure purchase money on resale, after assignment of the vendor's lien notes taken for the price on such resale. Ross v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 961.

That the holders of vendor's lien notes accepted part payment on the notes from the debtor and his grantee after their maturity, as they had been extended, would not estop them from enforcing a judgment of foreclosure, since the debtor and his grantee, in making such payment, were merely doing what they were bound to do. Shannon v. Hay (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 360.

Where land was purchased subject to vendor's lien notes, which were afterwards foreclosed, but where action on the judgment was stayed on the execution of extended notes, which provided that the agreement was intended to stop further action on the judgment until maturity of such notes, the purchaser was not entitled to enjoin the execution of such judgment, so as to require the creditors to obtain a new judgment. Id.

24. Wrongful execution.—Ownership in common of personal property by the heirs of a decedent, accompanied by actual possession at the time the property was levied on, is sufficient as against a purchaser at an execution sale against the tenant in possession to entitle him to maintain a suit to recover the property on the theory that it was exempt. Rogers v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 68.

25. — Liability of plaintiff in execution.—Plaintiff in execution is liable for property of estate of decedent taken under judgment against administrator personally. Pinkard v. Willis, 24 C. A. 69, 57 S. W. 891.

26. — Liability of creditor in general.—An execution creditor who is not present at the time property is levied on, and does not authorize or sanction abuse of such property, is not liable for damages. Ainsa v. Moses (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 791.

27. — Selling property not levied on.—Where a judgment orders the sale of specific premises, the sheriff cannot thereunder sell other land to satisfy a balance due. Giesscke v. Hoffman (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1034.

Property not levied on should not be sold under execution. Mara v. Branch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 661.

28. — Separate causes of action.—See notes under Art. 1827.

29. — Conditions precedent.—A wife held entitled to sue for the conversion of corporate stock by a sale thereof, under execution against the husband, without paying a note held by the husband's judgment creditor and secured by stock pledged by the husband. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 221.

30. — Damages in general.—In estimating plaintiff's damages resulting from the sale of exempt property, the amount of his indebtedness which was satisfied by the sale of the property is to be taken into account and credited on such damages. McGaughey v. Meek, 1 App. C. C. § 1197. In rendering judgment against the defendant for the value of the exempt article wrongfully sold by him under execution, he is not entitled to deduction for the sum realized from its wrongful sale to apply to the payment of the debt for which the execution issued. Cone v. Lewis, 64 T. 331, 53 Am. Rep. 767.

In an action for damages for value of property illegally seized and sold, in computing damages the amount the goods sold for and a balance on the judgment should be allowed as credits, the goods seized being in excess of value over the judgment. Beck v. Avondino, 82 T. 314, 18 S. W. 690.

Measure of damages for wrongful seizure of personal property under judicial process is its value and interest. Gilmour v. Heinze, 85 T. 76, 19 S. W. 1075.

In an action for the seizure and sale of property under execution which belonged to a person not a party to the writ and was purchased by the owner, the measure of damages is the amount paid, with interest, and the depreciation in value. Field v. Munster, 11 C. A. 341, 32 S. W. 417.

The measure of damages for the wrongful seizure of mules levied on as the property of a third person is their value at the time of the seizure, with interest. Nelson v. Ashmore (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 938.

In an action for wrongful levy of execution, charge to allow damages in respect to plaintiff's crops, when the same had not in fact been levied on, required reversal. Baughn v. Allen (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 207.

The measure of damages for a levy on exempt crops is, so far as the mere conversion of the crops is concerned, the value thereof. Moore v. Graham, 29 C. A. 235, 69 S. W. 200.

In an action for an alleged wrongful levy, the measure of damages held the value of the goods seized, less the amount of the judgment. Avindino's Heirs v. Fr. Beck & Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 539.

In action for unlawful entry into plaintiff's dwelling, and seizure and sale of a piano therein under an order of sale, the measure of plaintiff's damages determined. Hillman v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 787.

A statutory levy on land held not to authorize a recovery, in the absence of specific damages. Adoue v. Wettermark, 36 C. A. 585, 82 S. W. 797.

Damages for suffering and sickness are not recoverable in an action for wrongful levy on property. Ainsa v. Moses (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 791.

Value of use and hire of animals wrongfully seized under execution and detained for over two years, held not to be estimated by value of use and hire by the day or by the month. Railey v. Hopkins, 50 C. A. 600, 110 S. W. 779.

In an action for wrongful levy of execution, the intentions of the officer making the levy held immaterial. Rainey v. Kemp, 54 C. A. 486, 118 S. W. 630.

The levy of an attachment on exempt property authorizes a recovery by the owner of the actual damages sustained, and where the writ was issued and levied maliciously and without probable cause, he may recover exemplary damages. Carroll v. First Nat. Bank of Denison (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 818.

The measure of damages for a wrongful levy and seizure of goods is the goods, or their value, with compensation for the detention. Slaughter v. American Baptist Publication Society (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 224.

Where an officer wrongfully levied on two horses of defendant, and for five or six days defendant was not permitted to use the horses, and the reasonable value of their use was about $3 per day apiece, a judgment for $8 damages was authorized. Parlin & Orendorff Implement Co. v. Clements (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 368.

An owner of property wrongfully levied on under execution, who refrains from using the property under the instructions of the officer making the levy, and who is thereby for a time deprived of its earning capacity, may recover the reasonable value of its use during and up to the time he was informed of the release of the levy. Id.

31. — Exemplary damages.—If an illegal levy and seizure of property is oppressive and the conduct of the officer malicious, exemplary damages may be recovered against not only the officer, but any other person who knowingly encouraged or directed the malicious act. He who accepts benefit under an illegal levy upon the property of another, after knowledge of the illegal act, will be responsible equally with the officer for such damage as is the natural and proximate result of the illegal act. Brown v. Bridges, 70 T. 661, 8 S. W. 502.

In the absence of bad faith, oppression, or wantonness, vindictive damages cannot be recovered for wrongful levy. Willis v. Chowning, 18 C. A. 625, 46 S. W. 45.

In an action for the wrongful levy of an execution, an allowance of $50 for attorney's fees as a part of vindictive damages allowed held not error. Deleshaw v. Edelen, 31 C. A. 416, 72 S. W. 413.

Exemplary damages held not recoverable for a levy on land, in the absence of actual damages. Adoue v. Wettermark, 36 C. A. 585, 82 S. W. 797.

In an action against a constable for levying on exempt property, and doing so in a malicious and oppressive manner, plaintiffs held entitled to recover exemplary damages. Farouf v. Cornwell, 40 C. A. 529, 90 S. W. 537.

In an action for unlawfully levying on plaintiff's property and selling the same, evidence held sufficient to warrant exemplary damages. Sparks v. Ponder, 42 C. A. 431, 94 S. W. 428.

In an action for damages for alleged wrongful levy of execution, instructions authorizing a recovery for exemplary damages held erroneous. First Bank of Mertens v. Stefens, 51 C. A. 211, 111 S. W. 782.

32. — Mitigation of damages.—In action for unlawful entry into plaintiff's dwelling, and seizure and sale of a piano therein, under an order of sale, held proper to show what amount of the proceeds of the sale of the piano had been credited on the judgment in mitigation of plaintiff's damages. Hillman v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 787.

33. — Remoteness of damages.—Certain damages resulting from a wrongful levy under an execution held not too remote. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 221.

34. — Attorney's fees.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 24.

35. — Mental anguish.—Mental anguish, or the effect on the standing as an individual, or as a minister of the gospel, of a member of an unincorporated missionary association from a wrongful levy on the property of the association, is too remote to form the basis for damages. Slaughter v. American Baptist Publication Society (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 224.

36. — Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827.

37. — Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 5.

38. — Sufficiency of evidence.—A finding of the value of goods illegally sold under execution held justified by the evidence. Avindino's Heirs v. Fr. Beck & Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 539.

Evidence in action for damages for loss of crop from wrongful levy examined, and held sufficient to sustain verdict for plaintiff. Parker v. Hale (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 555.

In an action for unlawfully levying upon and selling plaintiff's property, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding as to the market value of the property on the date of the levy. Sparks v. Ponder, 42 C. A. 431, 94 S. W. 428.

39. — Instructions.—See notes under Art. 1971.

EXEMPTIONS

Chap.	Chap.
1. Property Exempt from Forced Sale.	2. Excess Over Homestead, etc., How Set Apart and Subjected to Execution.

CHAPTER ONE

1. What law governs.—The right of exemption is governed by the law of the forum. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Swartz, 53 C. A. 389, 115 S. W. 275.
 2. Constitutional provisions.—It is the duty of the legislature to protect from forced sale a certain portion of personal property belonging to families. Const. art. 16, § 49.

3. Construction of statutes.—Exemption statutes are liberally construed. Cobbs v. Coleman, 14 T. 594; Rogers v. Ferguson, 32 T. 533; Helm v. Pridgen, 1 App. C. C. § 644; Betz v. Maier, 12 C. A. 219, 33 S. W. 710; Rock Island Plow Co. v. Alten (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 973; Parker v. Sweet, 127 S. W. 881; Patterson v. English, 142 S. W. 18.

4. Repeal of statute.—An exemption statute in force when a debt was contracted cannot be repealed if the repeal materially impairs the contractual obligation. Lyon & Matthews Co. v. Modern Order of Prætorians (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 29.

5. Family.—The term "family," used in its generic sense, embraces a household composed of parents and children and other relatives or domestics and servants; in short, every collective body of persons living together within the same curtilage, subsisting in common, directing their attention to a common object—the promotion of their mutual interest and happiness. Wilson v. Cochran, 31 T. 680, 98 Am. Dec. 553.

To constitute a family the relations between its members must arise from social status, and not from mere contract; there must be a legal obligation on the head of the family to support the other members, and a corresponding dependence on their part for support. Roco v. Green, 50 T. 486; Howard v. Marshall, 48 T. 471; Whitehead v. Nickelson, 48 T. 517; Wolfe v. Buckley, 52 T. 641.

When a homestead has been once acquired, the subsequent death, marriage or removal of all the individuals who composed the family, except the surviving husband or wife, does not subject the homestead to forced sale under a judgment. Blum v. Gaines, 57 T. 119; Schneider v. Bray, 59 T. 668.

Where no constituent of the family remains, a homestead may be sold after the death of the survivor of the marital union in discharge of his debts. Givens v. Hudson, 64 T. 471.

A family is not constituted by adult descendants other than unmarried daughters remaining with the family of the deceased. Givens v. Hudson, 64 T. 471. See Conner v. Hawkins, 66 T. 639, 2 S. W. 520.

An exemption of personal property from forced sale while the debtor has a family does not continue in his favor after the other members of the family are dead. Allen v. Ashburn, 27 C. A. 239, 65 S. W. 45.

One's status as head of a family held such as to entitle him to claim a homestead. Dinwiddie v. Tims, 52 C. A. 72, 114 S. W. 400.

6. — Grandparent and grandchild.—A granddaughter, with her parents' consent, living with her grandmother and maintained and supported by her, the arrangement being terminable at the will of either, was held not to have been a constituent of her family and entitled to the homestead freed from the claims of creditors. Phillips v. Price, 12 C. A. 408, 34 S. W. 784. See Clark v. Goins (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 703; Roco v. Green, 50 T. 483.

A grandmother and grandchild held to constitute a family under the meaning of the homestead exemption. First Nat. Bank v. Sokolski (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 818.

A debtor who was a widow, residing with and caring for her granddaughter, a child nearly 12 years of age, held the "head of a family," and entitled to hold the property on which they lived exempt as a residence homestead. First Nat. Bank v. Sokolski (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 312.

7. — Unmarried persons.—In the absence of a wife a family may be constituted by a single man and other persons whom he is under a legal or moral obligation to support. Howard v. Marshall, 48 T. 477; Whitehead v. Nickelson, 48 T. 517; Roco v. Green, 50 T. 489; Lane v. Phillips, 69 T. 240, 6 S. W. 610, 5 Am. St. Rep. 41; Barry v. Hale, 2 C. A. 668, 21 S. W. 783; Mullins v. Looke, 27 S. W. 926, 8 C. A. 138.

A single man, his widowed mother and a sister, living together, constitute a family. Barry v. Hale, 21 S. W. 783, 2 C. A. 668.

A family not constituted by a single man and a child to whom he is under no legal or moral obligation. Mullins v. Looke, 27 S. W. 926, 8 C. A. 138.

Property owned and occupied by a widower alone for 15 years is not a homestead, although he expected an unmarried daughter who lived abroad to make her home with him. Davis v. Cuthbertson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 426.

On death of married man leaving wife only, held, that she was entitled to exemption of a business homestead. Evans v. Pace, 21 C. A. 368, 51 S. W. 1094.

An unmarried woman, under a moral obligation to look after certain nephews and nieces living with her, held the head of a family, and as such entitled to a homestead exemption. American Nat. Bank v. Cruger, 31 C. A. 17, 71 S. W. 784.

A family composed of a man and his illegitimate daughter may assert homestead rights. Rutherford v. Mothershed, 42 C. A. 360, 92 S. W. 1021.

Where an obligation rests on a brother to support and take care of his sister, and there is a corresponding state of independence on her part for such support, a family relation exists within the statute exempting homesteads. H. P. Drought & Co. v. Stallworth, 45 C. A. 159, 100 S. W. 188.

Unless the marital relation exists, real estate owned by a man cannot be subject to the homestead laws. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

8. — Persons divorced or living apart.—A divorced wife cannot assert a claim for herself in the homestead of her former husband after his decease. The children of the husband, after his divorce from his wife, are constituents of his family, and entitled to the homestead exemption, although their custody had been awarded to the wife. Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 555, 17 S. W. 82; Bahn v. Stacke, 89 T. 203, 34 S. W. 103, 59 Am. St. Rep. 40; Id. (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 651. See Rogers v. Fox, 4 App. C. C. § 85, 16 S. W. 781.

A divorced wife is entitled to a homestead in her share of community land that had not been partitioned, if she lives on it and supports her children, but not so with the husband though he worked on the property a short time as an employé and contributed a small amount to the support of the minor children. S. W. Mfg. Co. v. Swan (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 813.

Divorce obtained by wife held not to affect her homestead rights in community property decreed to her and formerly occupied by her husband. Holland v. Zilliox, 38 C. A. 416, 86 S. W. 36.

Where plaintiff, though married, had no children, and was divorced from her husband, and thereafter her family consisted only of herself, she could not claim a homestead right in land thereafter owned by her. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 762.

Facts held not to show an abandonment of a homestead by a husband retaining the custody of his children, notwithstanding a divorce obtained by the wife. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

A judgment of divorce, awarding the wife costs of the suit, cannot be satisfied out of the homestead of the husband, while he retains custody of the children, though the judgment awarded such custody to the wife. Id.

Where a marriage is dissolved by divorce, the homestead rights of the parties depend on the presence of other constituents of the family and the subsequent relations of the parties to those constituents. Id.

The duty of a husband to support his children, notwithstanding a divorce awarding to the wife the custody of the children, held to constitute the husband and children, when living together, a family entitled to a homestead. Id.

The award of the custody of the children to the wife upon granting her a divorce held not to discharge the husband's obligation to support them, so as to divest him of his homestead right as head of a family; the children in fact living with him on the homestead, and would not do so even if the children had lived apart from him. Speer & Goodnight v. Sykes, 102 T. 451, 119 S. W. 86, 132 Am. St. Rep. 896.

A married man is the head of a family, though he is living apart from his wife, and has attempted to secure a divorce; none having been obtained. Ray v. Curry (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 26.

Property owned by one who has been divorced and has no children, so that the family consists of her alone, is not her homestead. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 185.

Where a divorced woman acquired hotel property by exchanging other land therefor, and lived in the hotel, which was rented to another person, but her children resided in another county, and, on borrowing money, gave a lien on the hotel property to secure the same, designating other property as her homestead, the hotel property could not be considered her homestead. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

The husband's status as head of the family is not destroyed by divorce, and hence he can claim a homestead exemption. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 682.

A district court, in a divorce action, cannot subject the husband's interest in the homestead to the payment of claims by the wife for counsel fees and reimbursement for community debts paid out of her separate property. Id.

9. — Adulterous relations.—The benefit of the homestead law cannot extend to a man and woman living together in adultery. But a natural obligation rests on the father of illegitimate children to support them, and they living with him may constitute such a family as may assert homestead rights. Lane v. Phillips, 69 T. 240, 6 S. W. 610, 5 Am. St. Rep. 41; Gay v. Halton, 75 T. 203, 12 S. W. 847.

To constitute a homestead within the statute, there must be a family, and the family must exist by authority of law, and not in violation thereof. Middleton v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 789.

Where a woman and her putative husband were living together illegally at the time he bought certain property, they did not constitute a family within the meaning of the homestead law, so as to permit such property being declared homestead property, and a conveyance of the land by him was not void because she did not join therein. Id.

10. Residence in state.—A nonresident who is the head of a family, and who owns exempt property which he brings into the state temporarily, is entitled to claim the property as exempt. Carroll v. First State Bank of Denison (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 818.

11. Household furniture.—The exemption of household and kitchen furniture includes only furniture for the family, and will not include beyond this furniture used in hotels and restaurants. Heidenheimer v. Blumenkron, 56 T. 308; Frank v. Bean, 3 App. C. C. § 211.

The statute embraces all necessary, convenient or ornamental articles with which a household is equipped, and may include a piano used for the instruction of children in music. Alsop v. Jordan, 69 T. 300, 6 S. W. 831, 5 Am. St. Rep. 53.

A piano is "household and kitchen furniture," when used as furniture in house-keeping. It is not exempt when placed in the salesroom of a music dealer for sale. McCoy v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1062.

12. Implements of husbandry.—What constitutes an implement of husbandry is a question of fact to be submitted to the jury. Henry v. McLean, 1 App. C. C. § 1079. As to the exemption of a mowing machine and threshing machine, see Tucker v. Napier, 1 App. C. C. § 670. A mill and gin with their machinery are not exempt, unless they are a part of exempt realty. Cullers v. James, 66 T. 494, 1 S. W. 314.

13. Tools and apparatus belonging to trade or profession.—The business of saddle, harness and collar making is a trade. Nichols v. Porter, 26 S. W. 859, 7 C. A. 302; Green v. Raymond, 58 T. 80, 44 Am. Rep. 601; Cone v. Lewis, 64 T. 331, 53 Am. Rep. 767, Alsop v. Jordan, 69 T. 300, 6 S. W. 831, 5 Am. St. Rep. 53.

The word "trade" includes commercial and mechanical pursuits and business occupations, with the possible exception of the learned professions, the liberal arts and agriculture. The word "profession" is defined to be the occupation, not mechanical, agricultural or the like, to which one devotes himself. Betz v. Maier, 12 C. A. 219, 33 S. W. 710. See cases cited.

14. — Printer and publisher.—The printing press, type and cases needed in a printing office and owned by an editor and publisher of a newspaper are exempt. Green v. Raymond, 58 T. 80, 44 Am. Rep. 601.

The tools and apparatus of a job printer exempt. St. Louis Type Foundry v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 691.

15. — Restaurant.—The furniture of a restaurant, such as lunch counter, shelving, stools, stove, cooking utensils, dishes, etc., is not exempt under this article, and therefore insurance money due for its loss is subject to garnishment. Simmang v. Penn. Fire Ins. Co., 102 T. 39, 112 S. W. 1045, 132 Am. St. Rep. 846, reversing Geise v. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 555.

16. — Soda fountain.—A soda fountain is not a tool or apparatus belonging to a trade or profession and is not exempt from execution under this article and Art. 3788. McCord-Collins Co. v. Lazarus (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1048.

17. — Vehicles.—Draymen and cartmen are protected in the possession of their vehicles. Cone v. Lewis, 64 T. 331, 53 Am. Rep. 767.

18. — Question for jury.—Whether property is exempt depends on the evidence and is a question of fact for the jury. Tucker v. Napier, 1 App. C. C. § 670. See, also, notes under Art. 1971, § 82.

19. Milch cows.—A heifer bought by a debtor with the bona fide intention that it should be raised and bred is exempt. Heifers which had never been milked, but which were with calf when the levy was made, and which the debtor, who was the head of the family, was keeping as his milch cows, are exempt. Patterson v. English (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 18.

20. Horses and wagon.—Under the ninth clause, geldings, mares or mules intended for family use are exempt. Allison v. Brookshire, 35 T. 199; Robinson v. Robertson, 2 App. C. C. § 254.

Two colts that have never been used for family purposes can be selected as the two horses exempted by the above article. Hall v. Miller, 21 C. A. 336, 51 S. W. 36.

If husband have in his possession four horses, two the separate property of his wife and two community, or his separate property, he can select for purpose of exemption the two not the separate property of his wife and his creditors could not complain. McClelland v. Barnard, 36 C. A. 118, 81 S. W. 592.

21. Carriage.—An automobile is a carriage. Parker v. Sweet (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 881; Peevehouse v. Smith, 152 S. W. 1196.

22. Provisions and forage.—Cotton on hand is not included in either the term "provision" or "forage," and is not exempt from forced sale. Seligson v. Staples, 1 App. C. C. § 1072.

Corn necessary for home consumption, and exempt, is not made subject to levy because the debtor owned 100 hogs, instead of 20, the number exempt from execution. Burris v. Booth (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 186.

On an issue of whether wheat attached was exempt, held, the court should have followed the language of the statute, exempting provisions and forage for home consumption. Bell v. Fox, 37 C. A. 522, 84 S. W. 384.

23. Wages.—See, also, Childress v. Franks (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 868.

Past-due wages left with employer because they cannot be collected held "current wages," and exempt. But past-due wages voluntarily left with employer held not "current wages," and not exempt. Davidson v. F. H. Logeman Chair Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 824.

24. Evidence.—Where the garnishee admitted the indebtedness to the debtor, the burden was upon the debtor to establish a plea that the fund in the garnishee's hands was exempt. Lyon & Matthews Co. v. Modern Order of Praetorians (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 29.

25. Waiver of exemptions of personal property.—Where a reservation of a lien on exempt personal property by partitioners was intended to indemnify them as garnishees only, such reservation did not affect plaintiff's right to an exemption against other creditors. Rogers v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 68.

Where partitioners of decedent's personal property delivered plaintiff's share to him conditionally on his agreement to return the same if necessary to satisfy a garnishment, the partitioners could assert their right to the property only on proof that they had discharged the liability, in which case they would be entitled only to foreclose their lien, and hence plaintiff's creditors could not acquire the rights of partitioners by a sale of the property under execution against plaintiff and against partitioners as garnishees. Id.

26. Wrongful levy on exempt property.—See, also, notes at end of Title 54.

The husband and wife may jointly sue for damages for the seizure of property under execution exempt from forced sale. Cunningham v. Coyle, 2 App. C. C. § 422, citing Cradock v. Goodwin, 54 T. 578; Neeper v. Irons, 3 App. C. C. § 185.

27. Cemetery lots exempt.—See Art. 767.

28. Exemption from turnpike tolls.—See Art. 1275.

29. Setting apart homestead and other exemptions of decedent.—See Title 52, Chapter 18.

30. Fraudulent conveyance of homestead.—See notes under Art. 3966.

Art. 3786. [2396] [2336] "Homestead" defined.—The homestead of a family, not in a town or city, shall consist of not more than two hundred acres of land, which may be in one or more parcels, with the improvements thereon; the homestead in a city, town or village, consisting of a lot or lots, not to exceed in value five thousand dollars at the time of their designation as a homestead, without reference to the value of any improvements thereon; provided, that the same shall be used for the purposes of a home, or as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of a family; provided, also, that any temporary renting of the homestead shall not change the character of the same when no other homestead has been acquired. [Acts 1897, p. 131.]

1. But one homestead allowed.
2. Effect of having other property.
3. Estate or interest sustaining homestead right.
4. — Building.
5. — Leasehold.
6. — Life estate.
7. — Mortgaged land.
8. — Tenants in common.
9. — Partnership property.
10. Intent to acquire homestead.
11. Use and occupation as homestead necessary.
12. — Character and mode of use or occupancy.
13. Purpose of occupancy and use.
14. — Illegitimate business.
15. — Business homestead.
16. Character of homestead as urban or rural.
17. — Extent and value of homestead.
18. — Homestead in town or village.
19. — Extension of corporate limits.
20. Separate tracts or lots.
21. Part of building.
22. Time of acquisition of homestead.
23. Change of homestead.
24. Evidence of homestead right.
25. Crops on homestead.
26. Rents and royalties.
27. Abandonment of homestead.
28. — Consent of wife.
29. — Absence from homestead and other acts.
30. — Intent to return to homestead.
31. — Acquiring other residence or homestead.
32. — Conveyance or sale.
33. — Renting or leasing.
34. — Waiver.
35. — Evidence.
36. Estoppel to claim homestead.
37. Conveyance or incumbrance of homestead.
38. — How made.
39. — Agreement as to boundaries.
40. — Sale.
41. — Conveyance between husband and wife.
42. — Mortgage.
43. — Mortgage by unmarried debtor.
44. — Effect of abandonment or termination of homestead right.
45. — Excess over homestead.
46. — Consent of wife.
47. — Estoppel to deny validity.
48. — Rights of purchasers or mortgagees.
49. — Rights of bona fide purchasers.
50. Testamentary disposition of exemption.
51. Effect of levy and forced sale of homestead.
52. Judgment as lien against homestead.
53. Rights of surviving husband, wife, children or heirs.

See Andrews v. Hagadon, 54 T. 571; Peregoy v. Kottwitz, 54 T. 497; Kaufman v. Fore, 73 T. 308, 11 S. W. 278; Harle v. Richards, 78 T. 80, 14 S. W. 257; Russell v. Nalle, 20 S. W. 1006, 23 S. W. 901, 2 C. A. 60.

1. But one homestead allowed.—Homestead rights cannot be so blended that exemptions can be partly in town and partly in the country. One occupying a rural homestead cannot claim his place of business in a town as exempt. Swearingen v. Bassett, 65 T. 267; Iken v. Olenick, 42 T. 195; Rogers v. Ragland, 42 T. 122; First National Bank v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1113.

One cannot at the same time have an urban and a rural homestead. Lauchelmer v. Saunders, 19 C. A. 392, 47 S. W. 543; Dillard v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 662.

Const. Art. 16, § 51, provides that a "homestead" in a city, town, or village shall consist of a lot or lots not to exceed in value $5,000 at the time of their designation as the homestead, without reference to the value of any improvements thereon; provided the same be used for the purposes of a home or as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of the family. Held, that such provision exempts to the head of a family but one homestead. Harrington v. Mayo (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 650.

2. Effect of having other property.—The fact that a person claiming a homestead had other property held not to conclude him from setting up such a claim. Furtner v. Edgewood Distilling Co., 16 C. A. 359, 41 S. W. 184.

3. Estate or interest sustaining homestead right.—A homestead may be established on property held by tenants in common, but not to prejudice the right of the co-tenant. Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 150; Swearingen v. Bassett, 65 T. 267; Luhn v. Stone, 65 T. 439.

A homestead right of the wife attaches to any interest in land owned by husband and wife in common or by either separately. Such a right will attach to an equitable estate, an estate for life, or to a leasehold interest. Baines v. Baker, 60 T. 139; Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019.

While the title of a vendee who has not paid for land occupied by him as homestead is not good as against his vendor, as against all others his title is good. Lee v. Welborne, 71 T. 500, 9 S. W. 471.

The homestead right will attach to an equitable estate, an estate for life, or a leasehold interest. Phillips v. Warner, 4 App. C. C. § 147, 16 S. W. 423.

The wife's homestead rights attach to separate property of the husband when occupied, equally as if it were community. Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019.

Possession of improvement and payment of price under parol sale of land give vendee a title to which a homestead may attach. Dotson v. Barnett, 18 C. A. 253, 41 S. W. 99.

Where vendor's lien notes on land which became a homestead after delivery of the notes are paid, the homestead rights of the maker's wife attach. James v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 26.

Where land had been occupied adversely by a husband and wife as a homestead for 10 years, it could not be disposed of by the husband without the consent of the wife. Hennessy v. Savings & Loan Co., 22 C. A. 591, 55 S. W. 124.

Where real estate is conveyed in trust for children, and a life estate retained by husband and wife, a sufficient interest therein was retained to enable them to establish a homestead on the land. Silverman v. Landrum (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 107.

Evidence considered, and held, that a homestead right could not attach to property deeded with a reservation of a life estate, during the life of the life tenant. Hampton v. Gilliland, 23 C. A. 87, 56 S. W. 572.

Intention of remainder-man to occupy land as homestead on expiration of life estate will not give homestead right. Loessin v. Washington, 23 C. A. 515, 57 S. W. 990.

Where a husband and wife have held peaceable adverse possession of realty for 10 years, cultivating and enjoying the same, the wife's title thereto cannot be impaired by the husband's executing a lease of it without the wife's knowledge. Williams v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 551.

A homestead right can be asserted, as against all but the state, by a purchaser of school lands, though part of the price is not paid. Gibbons v. Hall (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 814.

Homestead right held to have attached to premises, prior to an incumbrance by the husband, so that the wife's interest could not be divested without a conveyance in which she joined, or by abandonment. Texas Land & Mortg. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 173.

It is not necessary that a debtor should hold an assignable interest in land to claim an exemption thereof as his homestead. Birdwell v. Burleson, 31 C. A. 31, 72 S. W. 446.

That property to which defendants held title and occupied as their homestead was not paid for did not affect their homestead rights, except as against the vendor or the holder of a prior lien. Powars v. Palmer, 36 C. A. 212, 81 S. W. 817.

A conveyance to complainant in fee simple with a condition subsequent is sufficient to support his claim that the property is exempt as homestead. Tracy v. Harbin, 40 C. A. 395, 89 S. W. 999.

A wife is not entitled to homestead in land on which she resides, where her husband has never been the legal or equitable owner thereof. Elam v. Carter, 55 C. A. 649, 119 S. W. 914.

The adverse possession by husband and wife with a view of acquiring title to a homestead creates only an inchoate right to the land, and at any time before the title is perfected the possession may, regardless of the consent of the wife, be interrupted, and the rights thereunder surrendered by the husband alone. Coler v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 664.

Homestead rights cannot be created in real estate in favor of a trustee as against the cestui que trust. Keller v. Keller (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 581.

4. — Building.—A house, although the owner has no interest or estate in the land on which it stands, is exempt as the home of the family or a place of business. Cullers v. James, 66 T. 494, 1 S. W. 314.

5. — Leasehold.—The following charge defines a homestead in the leasehold interest in land: "If you believe from the evidence that plaintiff rented for the year 1887 the land on which the growing cotton which was sold under defendant's execution was raised, and was also a tenant on said land, and that said land was the homestead of himself and family for that year and occupied as such, though for only one year, then the said growing crop, under the law, would be exempt as a growing crop on his homestead, not subject to sale under defendant's execution." Phillips v. Warner, 4 App. C. C. § 147, 16 S. W. 423.

A house built on leased land and occupied by the family as a residence is an exempt homestead. Anheuser B. B. Ass'n v. Smith (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 94.

One may have a homestead in land, though he has only a leasehold interest therein. Allen v. Ashburn, 27 C. A. 239, 65 S. W. 45.

A tenant may claim a homestead in premises occupied under a lease, which gives him an "estate" in the premises. Ellis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 602.

6. — Life estate.—The fact that a debtor was insolvent when he purchased land, and had title to the same conveyed to his children, with a life estate only in himself, held not to affect his homestead exemption. Brown v. Rash, 40 C. A. 203, 89 S. W. 438.

The owner of a life estate in land may assert a homestead therein. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

7. — Mortgaged land.—A homestead may be designated upon mortgaged land. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1003.

8. — Tenants in common.—The head of a family, residing on a tract of 50 acres of land situated a mile distant from another tract of 246 acres, which also belongs to him, a part of which is in cultivation, may claim as homestead the land on which he resides, and as much of the other as will make up the 200 acres exempted by law. That the larger survey is held as tenant in common does not prevent the homestead from being established upon it, subject to the rights of the cotenant. Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 150; Morgan v. Estate of Morgan, 1 U. C. 400.

The exemption attaches to the homestead interest in an undivided tract of land. If the land is sold for partition, the exemption would attach to and protect the proceeds of sale made for partition to the extent of the homestead value. Jenkins v. Voltz, 54 T. 636.

A deed of trust was executed by two persons to secure a debt for which both were bound. The land conveyed was, at the time of the execution of the trust deed, owned jointly by the debtors. Afterwards one purchased the interest of the other and died, when his widow claimed homestead rights in the entire property. Held, that such rights attached only to the interest owned by her deceased husband at the time the trust deed was executed; second, improvements made by the decedent with the separate funds of his wife upon the property entitled her to protection pro tanto; third, all children of the deceased party were necessary parties to the action by the creditor seeking an enforcement of the trust on the property; fourth, partition should be made in such manner as to protect the interests of all the parties in the property. Griffie v. Maxey, 58 T. 210.

M. owned an undivided interest of one-third in a tract of land containing 300 acres, and claimed the same as his homestead. M.'s interest in the land having been sold under a judgment against him, the purchaser claimed that M.'s homestead interest was restricted to the 200 acres of land which included his improvements, and did not extend to his undivided interest in the remaining 100 acres. Held, that the homestead interest extended through the entire tract and was protected from forced sale. Brown v. McLennan, 60 T. 43, citing Jenkins v. Voltz, 54 T. 639; Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 161. See, also, Luhn v. Stone, 65 T. 439.

When on a rural homestead improvements are made at the joint expense of two tenants in common, the homestead being occupied as such by only one of them, the occupant is entitled to 200 acres, embracing the homestead improvements, and his cotenant would be entitled to an allowance for the amount expended by him in making such improvements. Lewis v. Sellick, 69 T. 379, 7 S. W. 673.

A tenant in common, who establishes and improves a homestead on the common property, is entitled in partition to have allotted to him the portion of the land so improved, or so much of it as may be equal in value to his share of the entire tract, independent of the improvements. Parr v. Newby, 73 T. 468, 11 S. W. 490; Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 156; Jenkins v. Volz, 54 T. 639.

The head of a family is entitled, as against creditors, to a full 200-acre homestead, with improvements, out of a 400-acre tract in which he has an undivided half interest. Carroll v. Jeffries, 39 C. A. 126, 87 S. W. 1050.

Owner of undivided half interest in 400 acres of land, whose homestead of 160 acres equals the other 240 acres in value, has no interest in 40 additional acres. Id.

Homestead rights of tenant in common stated. Griffin v. Harris, 39 C. A. 586, 88 S. W. 493.

A tenant in common may acquire a homestead in land owned in common with others. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

9. — Partnership property.—A partner in a solvent firm may designate his interest in partnership realty as a part of his homestead, either as a residence or place of business. Swearingen v. Bassett, 65 T. 267.

A partner held entitled to a homestead in firm lands, subject to rights of copartners. Gordon v. McCall, 20 C. A. 283, 48 S. W. 1111.

As against the creditors of a firm, a partner who has built a house and resides on firm lands may select a homestead, including his improvements. Williams v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 66.

One partner, without consent of the other, cannot select a homestead out of two tracts belonging to the firm in an irregular form, so as to include all the improvements on both tracts. Id.

One partner, residing on the firm property which is used for milling purposes, cannot, without his copartner's assent, select a homestead therein, so as to include the mill and its fixtures. Allen v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 645.

A person, residing on partnership lands with his copartner's consent, can claim a homestead in such land. Id.

10. Intent to acquire homestead.—A designation of premises, accompanied by acts of preparation and followed by residence, will protect the homestead; but until the homestead rights are vested the intention may be abandoned. Kempner v. Comer, 73 T. 196, 11 S. W. 194.

Homestead rights attach to a lot that is purchased with the intention of improving it as a home and fenced and shade trees planted and sidewalks built. Bell et al. v. Great-house, 20 C. A. 478, 49 S. W. 258.

Land held to be a widower's homestead, where he lived on it, while intending to make it a home for himself and a minor child when he got through school in another state. Crenshaw v. Bray (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 623.

The grantor of a deed of trust held not to have had homestead rights in property conveyed; and hence his subsequent conveyance thereof, after foreclosure of such trust deed, passed no title. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 781.

Answers of jury to special interrogatories in an action to recover realty, sold under execution and claimed by plaintiff as a homestead, held to sustain judgment for plaintiff. Foley v. Holtkamp, 28 C. A. 123, 66 S. W. 891.

House and lot purchased by a married man held to constitute his homestead. Hardin v. Neal, 32 C. A. 335, 74 S. W. 334.

Property of a husband during his lifetime can only be set apart as a homestead by acts of his indicating an intention to so designate the property. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

Statement of what must be shown to sustain right to homestead, where the property was not actually occupied when the claim arose. Dinwiddie v. Tims, 52 C. A. 72, 114 S. W. 400.

Elements of intention necessary to impress on unoccupied premises a homestead character under the Constitution, stated. Parker v. Cook, 57 C. A. 234, 122 S. W. 419.

The act of a husband residing in Oklahoma in secretly leaving his wife, and going with their children to Texas, where he purchased land and resided on it with the children for about 15 months, when he sold it to defendant, indicated an intent to impress the land with the character of a homestead, so that the wife was entitled to the benefit thereof on her discovery of the whereabouts of the husband and children after the husband has sold the land. Crutcher v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 658.

11. Use and occupation as homestead necessary.—The use of property as a home must co-exist with the intention that it shall be a home to invest it with the homestead character. Fort v. Powell, 59 T. 321; Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Felder (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 524.

Where a family occupy a homestead, the homestead right will not attach to another tract of land purchased and improved with the intention to occupy it as a residence at some future time. Bray v. Aikin, 60 T. 688.

Where there has been no previous occupation of land as a homestead, to invest it with that quality it is essential that there be an existing bona fide intention to dedicate the property as a homestead, accompanied with such acts of preparation and subsequent occupation as will amount to notice of a dedication. Gardner v. Douglas, 64 T. 76, citing Franklin v. Coffee, 18 T. 417, 70 Am. Dec. 292; Barnes v. White, 53 T. 628; Brooks v. Chatham, 57 T. 31; Swope v. Stantzenberger, 59 T. 390; Sowers v. Peterson, 59 T. 216; Burgher v. Henderson, 9 C. A. 521, 29 S. W. 522.

The occupation of real estate by husband and wife with an existing intention to make it their permanent residence constitutes it their homestead without regard to the duration of such occupancy. A subsequent removal with no intention of abandonment does not defeat the homestead rights, even when a purchaser had no notice of former occupancy. Parr v. Newby, 73 T. 468, 11 S. W. 490.

A head of a family occupying a house and lot in a town under a five years' lease cannot establish a homestead right in rural property never occupied by him by improvements made with reference to its future use as a residence, so as to defeat a mortgage thereon executed by him. Johnston v. Martin, 81 T. 18, 16 S. W. 550.

Dedication of unoccupied land as a homestead is not shown by the erection of a building thereon, the intention to so use and occupy it not being otherwise shown. Collier v. Betterton, 29 S. W. 490, 8 C. A. 479.

A homestead is not established by an intention to occupy land as such, accompanied by trifling acts of preparation. Bente v. Lange, 29 S. W. 813, 9 C. A. 328; Wolf v. Butler, 28 S. W. 51, 8 C. A. 468.

A homestead is not dedicated by a mere intention to occupy the land as such. Adams v. Kaufman, 11 C. A. 179, 32 S. W. 712.

To constitute a homestead, there must be actual occupancy as such or present intent to so occupy and acts indicating such intent. Wilkerson v. Jones (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1046.

A woman after her second marriage, moved off of some property inherited from her first husband, who never lived upon it, and her sons remained in possession. When she died she left the property to her sons, who claimed it as their mother's homestead. Held, such property is not exempt from the payment of decedent's debts, as it was not her homestead. Craddock v. Burlison, 21 C. A. 250, 52 S. W. 644.

That husband and wife intend to live on certain land as their homestead does not make it their homestead before they occupy or improve it. Muckelroy v. House, 21 C. A. 673, 52 S. W. 1038.

An intention to occupy property at a future time as a homestead held not to create a homestead right. O'Brien v. Woeltz, 94 T. 148, 53 S. W. 943, 86 Am. St. Rep. 829.

The intention of a householder and his wife to move onto a farm owned by them when they were able to build thereon was not sufficient to impress the farm with the character of a homestead. George v. Ryon (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 138.

Land not used and claimed as a homestead held not to be treated as such, to the exclusion of land so used, when the owner mortgaged the latter land, though he made oath it was not his homestead. Temple v. Watkins Land Co. (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1188.

Mere intent to make certain land a home in the future held insufficient to render it exempt as homestead property. Johnson v. Burton, 39 C. A. 249, 87 S. W. 181.

Certain property, never having been occupied by a husband and wife as a family residence, held not to have constituted a homestead as a matter of law. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

A party sold his saloon business for $1,800, part in cash and notes and $400 in a piece of land with house on it, in which he never lived but said he intended it for a homestead, but he did no act showing an intention to so use it. Under the circumstances the property was not exempt as a homestead from forced sale. McGovern v. Talaferro (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 815.

Lots intended for a homestead held not subject to a mortgage executed by the owner and his wife. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. J. M. Sharp & Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 180.

Under the constitutional provision relating to homesteads on premises not in a city, and providing that the homestead shall be used for the purpose of a home or a place to exercise the calling of the head of the family, a carpenter, who avows his intention of working at his trade, refusing to reside on the farm because he cannot make a living on it, and who does not intend to occupy it until he can pursue his calling in the vicinity of the homestead so as to enable him to support his family, and whose only excuse for not occupying the premises is its unfitness to make a living on, and who delays settling on the premises for almost a year before an action to enjoin the levy of an execution against the property to satisfy a judgment against him, cannot claim a homestead in such action. Parker v. Cook, 57 C. A. 234, 122 S. W. 419.

A lot of land purchased by a debtor's wife with an intent to erect a music room, to be used in connection with the debtor's teaching business and conveyed to him, held not to constitute a part of the debtor's business homestead. Harrington v. Mayo (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 650.

If one has never lived on property, a secret intent to occupy it as a home at some indefinite time in the future would not invest it with a homestead character; but, if he bought it to make a home thereon, he will be allowed a reasonable time to make necessary arrangements to occupy it as such; but his intent to so occupy it must be shown by acts of preparation begun with reasonable promptness, and its occupancy cannot be delayed beyond a reasonable time. Parsons v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1084.

Where the owners of land did not live upon it, and rented it out, and there was no house thereon, a mere vague intention to make it a homestead in the future cannot render it such. Wiseman v. Watters (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 134.

Though when one exchanged his house for wild, unimproved land he declared an intention to subsequently make it his home, and afterwards, while trying to sell it, stated that if he did not sell it he intended some time to live on it, yet, he having done nothing to improve it, and been prevented by various circumstances from moving on it, he could not claim it was a homestead. Black v. Hanz (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 309.

Plaintiffs in trespass to try title could not assert a homestead exemption in land which they had never used or occupied as a homestead. Cook v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 279.

12. — Character and mode of use or occupancy.—A lot adjoining a lot used for a homestead is not thereby exempt, unless it is also used as a part of the homestead. Andrews v. Hagadon, 54 T. 571; Peregoy v. Kottwitz, 54 T. 497.

An uninclosed lot in a city on which the owner occasionally stakes out his horse or calf, exercising no greater exclusive use than he could make of the uninclosed property of others, does not bring the lot within the homestead exemption. Effinger v. Cates, 61 T. 590.

Where a part of a lot is separated by a fence from that which is occupied as a homestead, and is rented out under circumstances showing that it was the intention of the owner to rent it permanently, accompanied by the execution of a deed of trust thereon, with a declaration of abandonment of the homestead right, it is not exempt. Stringer v. Swenson, 63 T. 7. See Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 32.

The former occupancy of other property as a home, which may be still owned by husband and wife, becomes immaterial, if at the time of the levy the property seized under execution was actually occupied and used as the home residence. Ingle v. Lee, 70 T. 609, 8 S. W. 325.

A married man with family owned two adjoining lots under one inclosure. He leased one of the lots, upon which was a house. Becoming involved, he obtained possession of the leased lot and appropriated it to home uses. He had the legal right to do so, for the purpose of withdrawing it from liability for his debts, if done before a lien upon it was fixed by his creditors. Milburn Wagon Co. v. Kennedy, 75 T. 212, 13 S. W. 28.

A lot selected for a home, upon which improvements are commenced, does not lose its exemption by reason of temporary absence. Dobkins v. Kuykendall, 81 T. 180, 16 S. W. 743.

K., having a wife and children, owning no land, bought an unimproved tract for a home. At once they selected the place thereon for the house, laid a stone foundation, and hauled logs for the dwelling. Being unable to complete it they rented land elsewhere; the husband and wife parted; the wife and children returned to the land. Held, the testimony showed facts sufficient to complete the homestead rights. Id.

Vacant lots are impressed with the homestead character by an intention and preparation to use them as a home. Cameron v. Gebhard, 85 T. 610, 22 S. W. 1033, 34 Am. St. Rep. 832; Gallagher v. Keller, 87 T. 472, 29 S. W. 647; Id., 4 C. A. 454, 23 S. W. 296; King v. Wright (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 530.

Improvements on a lot preparatory to its occupancy, with intention to occupy it, evidence of homestead rights. Gallagher v. Keller (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 248.

Homestead rights cannot attach to several separate and distinct houses, although each may at some time have been occupied by the owner as a residence. Hendrick v. Hendrick, 13 C. A. 49, 34 S. W. 804.

The mere depositing of dirt upon a lot to fill depressions is not such an act of preparation as will, in connection with intention, give it the homestead character. Churchwell v. Sweeney, 29 C. A. 166, 68 S. W. 185.

It is not essential to constitute a homestead that the parties asserting it shall have actually moved part of their belongings thereon. Davidson v. Jefferson (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 822.

Defendant's possession of land awarded to one of his minor children by a partition decree held to exempt that part of the tract inherited by him through the death of one child as his homestead. Birdwell v. Bursleson, 31 C. A. 31, 72 S. W. 446.

A tract of land held as a matter of law not to be the homestead of the owner. Ryon v. George, 32 C. A. 504, 75 S. W. 48.

Certain property held used "for purposes of the home" and a part of the homestead. Lacour v. L. W. Levy & Co., 49 C. A. 163, 108 S. W. 190.

Property upon which a materialman's lien was attempted to be fixed held the owner's homestead, so that the liens were void. Republic Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 317.

13. Purpose of occupancy and use.—Where a detached lot is continuously used in connection with the home residence so as to contribute to the comfort of the home place, as for a pasture or stable in which to keep the domestic animals of the family, it is invested with the homestead character. Axer v. Bassett, 63 T. 545; Blum v. Whitworth, 66 T. 350, 1 S. W. 108; Effinger v. Cates, 61 T. 590; Little v. Baker (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 305.

A person occupying land in which he has an inheritable interest, and continuing to occupy it after descent cast, with a manifest intention to appropriate it as a homestead, accompanied by acts illustrating his purpose, acquires a homestead interest therein, which will attach to such portion of the land as may be set apart to him, on partition, with the other heirs. Crabtree v. Whiteselle, 65 T. 111; Luhn v. Stone, 65 T. 439.

Lots in a block in a town or city not actually improved or used in connection with the homestead are not exempt. Wynne v. Hudson, 66 T. 1, 17 S. W. 110; Blum v. Rogers, 78 T. 531, 15 S. W. 115; Langston v. Maxey, 74 T. 155, 12 S. W. 27; Cullum v. Price (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 711.

The mill house of a miller with the land upon which it is situated, the mill yard and adjacent outhouses used in connection therewith are exempt. Maroney Hardware Co. v. Connellee (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 448.

A part of a house standing upon lots exempted as a homestead cannot be subjected to forced sale on the ground that such part is leased or rented for other purposes. Forsgard v. Ford, 87 T. 185, 27 S. W. 57, 25 L. R. A. 155.

The use of land in a city, detached from that on which the family resides, to raise products for home consumption, is a use of such property for the purposes of a home. Waggner v. Haskell, 13 C. A. 630, 35 S. W. 711; Steves v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 1026.

Evidence held to show that certain premises were a homestead, notwithstanding there were two tenements thereon, one of which was rented. Storrie v. Woessner (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 837.

A lot on which the owner built a residence, which she rented for 15 years, to obtain revenue to live elsewhere, is not a homestead. McDonald v. Ortiz (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 478.

The principal use to which land is applied determines its character. Where house is built for and let to tenants though a part of the lot on which it is built is used as a garden for ornamentation and for ingress and egress to the dwelling house, such user does not make it a homestead. Heatherly v. Little, 21 C. A. 664, 52 S. W. 980.

So much of a lot adjacent to the owner's residence as is occupied by his barn is a part of his homestead. Wurzbach v. Menger, 27 C. A. 290, 65 S. W. 679.

The use made of land may determine its character, as to whether it is a homestead or not. Harris v. Matthews, 36 C. A. 424, 81 S. W. 1198.

Where a person is possessed of several different parcels of land, aggregating over 200 acres, all of which are used for the purpose of a home, he has the right to designate any 200 acres thereof as his homestead, though the use may be a mere convenience and produce little or no revenue. Pickett v. Gleed, 39 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

Part of a lot adjoining a homestead was segregated from it and cannot be claimed as exempt, where that part had been improved and leased for business purposes, and the only use of it by the family was to occasionally store a few articles of household furniture, and brief use as a cigar factory. Blair v. Park Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 718.

The principal use of land must be considered in determining whether it is exempt as a homestead. Id.

14. — Illegitimate business.—A place where business prohibited by the penal laws, such as gaming, is conducted, is not protected; and, even if legitimate, was also conducted simply to conceal that which was illegal. Tillman v. Brown, 64 T. 181; Chase v. Swayne, 88 T. 218, 30 S. W. 1049, 53 Am. St. Rep. 742.

15. — Business homestead.—Where a lot in a town is occupied as a place of business, another lot used in a way incidentally useful or profitable in carrying on such business will not exempt it from forced sale. McDonald v. Campbell, 57 T. 614.

The constitution of 1876 extended the exemption to the place of business of the head of the family. Inge v. Cain, 65 T. 75; Miller v. Menke, 56 T. 539; Wright v. Straub, 64 T. 64; Wynne v. Hudson, 66 T. 1, 17 S. W. 110. The constitution of 1876 places only two limitations upon property exempt as a place of business. The lot shall not exceed $5,000 in value, and it shall be used as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of the family. It may be used as a residence and place of business. Tenny v. Wessell (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 436. Neither the value of the improvements placed upon it, nor the nature and extent of the operations carried on there, will subject it to forced sale, and all machinery annexed to the freehold, so as to become a part of the realty, becomes exempt as part of the homestead. Willis v. Morris, 66 T. 628, 1 S. W. 799, 59 Am. Rep. 634; Wynne v. Hudson, 66 T. 1, 17 S. W. 110; Shryock v. Latimer, 57 T. 677; Hargadene v. Whitfield, 71 T. 489, 9 S. W. 475; Pfeiffer v. McNatt, 74 T. 641, 12 S. W. 821; King v. Harter, 70 T. 579, 8 S. W. 308; Beard v. Blum, 64 T. 59; Duncan v. Alexander, 83 T. 441, 18 S. W. 817. This protection exists only as long as it is used. Shryock v. Latimer, 57 T. 674; Wright v. Straub, 64 T. 64; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 320; Griffie v. Maxey, 58 T. 214; Harle v. Richards, 78 T. 80, 14 S. W. 257; Hill v. Estate of R. B. Hill, 85 T. 103, 19 S. W. 1016; Hull v. Naumberg, 1 C. A. 132, 20 S. W. 1126. Where the owner of a business lot leases it during his temporary engagement in another business, the exemption is not necessarily lost thereby. Bowman v. Watson, 66 T. 295, 1 S. W. 273. But if the head of the family dies while using it as his place of business, the property passes to his widow and heirs as a part of the homestead. Clift v. Kaufman, 60 T. 64.

When it is shown that a part of a lot or lots is occupied by the business house of the head of a family, the remaining portions of the lots are exempt from forced sale, unless it is shown that such part is put to some use other than that connected with the business. Lavell v. Lapowski, 85 T. 168, 19 S. W. 1004.

The lots must be used as a place where the head of the family exercises his calling or business. It is his workshop, office or other place where he habitually is, in the following of his calling, and not any other lot or building which he may incidentally use in connection therewith. Hinzie v. Moody, 1 C. A. 26, 20 S. W. 769.

The constitution exempts not only a "lot" but "lots" as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of a family, and does not restrict this calling or business to any single branch or department. Schneider v. Campbell, 1 C. A. 314, 21 S. W. 55.

A business homestead can be established by the intention to appropriate the property as a place of business. Wolf v. Butler, 28 S. W. 51, 8 C. A. 468.

A business homestead defined. Hinzie v. Moody, 13 C. A. 193, 35 S. W. 832.

A building, a portion of which is occupied by the owner as his place of business, is exempt. Brennan v. Fuller, 14 C. A. 509, 37 S. W. 641, citing Shryock v. Latimer, 57 T. 677; Pfeiffer v. McNatt, 74 T. 640, 12 S. W. 821; Hinzie v. Moody, 13 C. A. 193, 35 S. W. 832; Forsgard v. Ford, 87 T. 185, 27 S. W. 57, 25 L. R. A. 155; Bailey v. Bauknight (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 56; Prufrock v. Joseph (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 264.

One having several places of business can only claim one as a business homestead. Parrish v. Frey, 18 C. A. 271, 44 S. W. 322.

The question of whether a building erected in place of one's business homestead, which had been burned, was a business homestead, held to depend on the owner's intention to so occupy it. Kahler v. Carruthers, 18 C. A. 216, 45 S. W. 160.

A business homestead upon the death of a husband remains as such to the wife where she continues to use it as a place of business. Evans v. Pace, 21 C. A. 368, 51 S. W. 1094.

An owner of a gin bought a lot and house adjoining, used it as a place for his hired man, who looked after the gin, to sleep. Held, such house and lot did not constitute a part of the business homestead. Id.

Property cannot be held as part of a business homestead unless situated in contiguity with it. Woeltz v. Woeltz (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 905.

Neither a husband conducting two businesses in different places, nor his wife on his death, can claim both properties as exempt business homesteads. Wingfield v. Hackney, 30 C. A. 39, 69 S. W. 446.

One carrying on business, at intervals when health permits, indiscriminately in two places, held not entitled to claim one of them as a business homestead, unless he was using it when it was levied on. Gibbs v. Hartenstein (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 59.

Where a building occupied by a debtor as a business homestead was an entirety, occupancy sufficient to exempt any part thereof was sufficient to exempt the whole. Billings v. Matlage, 36 C. A. 619, 82 S. W. 805.

Lots held not exempt as a part of the homestead within the rule preserving the place of business, as a part of the homestead under certain conditions. Schmick v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 568.

A tract held part of a business homestead making a mortgage thereon void. Dignowity v. Lindheim (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 966.

The renting of rooms held not the pursuit of a calling or business within the Constitution relating to homesteads. Lyon v. Files, 50 C. A. 630, 110 S. W. 999.

Certain facts held to show that parcels of land were a part of a business homestead. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Alten (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 973.

Where property was originally purchased by a debtor's wife for the erection of a building to be used as a music room in connection with the debtor's teaching business, but the debtor thereafter purchased the lot from his wife and persuaded her not to build the music room there, and, at the time the lot was levied on, such purpose was abandoned, it was not exempt as a part of the debtor's business homestead. Harrington v. Mayo (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 650.

Where a school teacher maintained a normal college where pupils were taught and boarded, land on which the college buildings were situated was exempt as his business homestead, but several other disconnected lots on which students were roomed and boarded were not so exempt. Id.

Where a school teacher maintained a normal college and boarded students taught there, parcels of land disconnected from that on which the college buildings were located, used as a baseball ground and to raise vegetables to supply the students' tables, were not exempt as his business homestead. Id.

16. Character of homestead as urban or rural.—There cannot be a blending of urban and rural homestead, so that part can be in town and part in country. Iken v. Olenick, 42 T. 195; Keith v. Hyndman, 57 T. 425; Swearingen v. Bassett, 65 T. 271; Williams v. Willis, 84 T. 398, 19 S. W. 683. See Foust v. Sanger, 13 C. A. 410, 35 S. W. 404.

To establish an exception to the rule that homestead rights cannot be blended so that an exemption can be partly in town and partly in the country, the burden of establishing facts making a case an exception to the rule devolved upon claimant. Keith v. Hyndman, 57 T. 425.

A homestead may be within the corporate limits of a city, and still be rural, within Const. art. 16, § 51. Wilder v. McConnell, 91 T. 600, 45 S. W. 145.

Land held not to lose its character of rural homestead by the fact that after it was included within city limits the owner platted part of it. Atkinson v. Phares, 20 C. A. 150, 49 S. W. 653.

Certain lots held to be urban property in a suit to enjoin the levy of execution thereon on the ground that they were part of plaintiff's rural homestead. Harris v. Matthews, 36 C. A. 424, 81 S. W. 1198.

A rural homestead may be changed into an urban homestead and, after such change, the portion of the rural homestead which is not within the town, or which is not actually used for homestead purposes, loses its homestead character. Ayres v. Patton, 51 C. A. 186, 111 S. W. 1079.

In determining whether a homestead is urban or rural, the corporate line does not control. First Nat. Bank v. Litchfield (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 350.

17. — Extent and value of homestead.—There is no limit as to the value of the improvements on a residence homestead in a city, town or village. Chase v. Swayne, 88 T. 218, 30 S. W. 1049, 53 Am. St. Rep. 742.

Tract of 40 acres may be a rural homestead, though 30 acres and the house are within the city limits. Paris Exchange Bank v. Hulen, 21 C. A. 285, 52 S. W. 278.

Where one resided on a 16-acre tract within a town, adjoining a larger tract used for pasturing, and there was a small farm about the middle of the tract, the homestead could not be extended to any of the tract which lay without the town limits. Batts v. Middlesex Banking Co., 26 C. A. 515, 63 S. W. 1046.

Where original homestead was not worth $5,000 when so designated by debtor, but was worth more when he acquired other property, creditor held not entitled to excess in original homestead, unless debtor insisted on holding after-acquired land as part of such homestead. Fitzhugh v. Connor, 32 C. A. 277, 74 S. W. 83.

Property occupied by a husband and wife held homestead, so that the husband could not convey a railroad right of way by a deed in which the wife did not join. Gulf, B. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 817.

18. — Homestead in town or village.—Evidence held to show that a mortgagor's homestead was in a village, within the meaning of the constitution, and that farm by him mortgaged was therefore no part of such homestead. Mikael v. Equitable Securities Co., 32 C. A. 182, 74 S. W. 67.

19. — Extension of corporate limits.—A country homestead is not affected by the mere laying out of contiguous lands into street, blocks and lots. Taylor v. Boulware, 17 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 642; Bassett v. Messner, 30 T. 604; Neeley v. Case (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 785.

The extension of the corporate limits of a city to include a rural homestead does not, of itself, affect the pre-existing homestead rights of the owner. Clark v. Nolan, 38 T. 421. But the rule does not apply when the owner acquiesces and dedicates streets, etc. Waggener v. Haskell (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 711.

The extension of the corporate limits of a town over a rural homestead, and the laying out of contiguous land into streets, etc., will not deprive the homestead of its rural character. I. B. Watkins Land Mortgage Co. v. Abbott, 14 C. A. 447, 37 S. W. 252.

Where land was included within the limits of a town, but not within the town plat, held, that it did not cease to be a rural homestead. Ayres v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1024.

A city extended so as to bring within its limits a rural homestead. Held, that the fact that the owners divided it into different lots and built houses on it, which they rented and used the proceeds for the support of the family, did not destroy its homestead character. Wilder v. McConnell (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 807.

A homestead may be within corporate limits and still rural as to the exemption. This in a case where rural homestead is included in city limits without consent of owner. Wilder v. McConnell, 91 T. 600, 45 S. W. 145.

Where a real estate owner acquires an adjacent tract, and the first tract is afterwards included in a village, the entire tract constitutes an urban homestead, and the latter tract cannot be sold under execution, even if it was issued after the first tract was included in the village. Saunders v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 70.

Where a city is authorized to extend its corporate limits so as to include agricultural lands, a homestead right in such lands must be determined by the conditions existing when such right is questioned, and not at the time when such property was acquired. Lauchheimer v. Saunders, 27 C. A. 484, 65 S. W. 500.

Constitutional guaranty of homestead does not prevent its character as urban or rural at the time of its acquisition from being changed by actual extension of a town around the same. L. H. Lauchheimer & Sons v. Saunders, 97 T. 137, 76 S. W. 750.

20. Separate tracts or lots.—When tracts of land claimed as a rural homestead are widely separate, they are within the homestead protection if used for homestead purposes; but when the rural homestead has been fixed on one of them, there must be such use of a subsequently acquired parcel to invest it with a homestead character as would be required to make an original designation of a homestead. Brooks v. Chatham, 57 T. 31. See Iken v. Olenick, 42 T. 195. As to renting a rural homestead, see Foreman v. Meroney, 62 T. 723.

Under the constitutions of 1845, 1866 and 1869, in order for several city lots to constitute one homestead they had to be used for homestead purposes, and not merely as a place of business for the head of the family. Inge v. Cain, 65 T. 75; Iken v. Olenick, 42 T. 195, overruling Hancock v. Morgan, 17 T. 582.

Homestead may be established on one or more lots in a town or city. Bailey v. Bauknight (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 56.

Contiguous lots purchased for enlarging homestead, exempt. Little v. Baker (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 305.

A tract distant four miles from that on which debtor resided, both being used for raising garden truck, and necessary for support of debtor's family, held part of homestead, though rented out on shares. Baldeschweiler v. Ship, 21 C. A. 80, 50 S. W. 644.

A party living on a lot, in a village containing a schoolhouse and a few residences, and cultivating a farm in the county, can claim both as a homestead. Crisp v. Thrash (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 92.

Two adjoining lots held to constitute a homestead, though they had separate houses on each. Weidemeyer v. Bryan, 21 C. A. 428, 53 S. W. 353.

Residence of claimants on separate tract held not inconsistent with their claim. Maupin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 623.

Land held not deprived of homestead character by mere fact of family's residence on lots forming part of addition to city. Jolly v. Diehl, 38 C. A. 549, 86 S. W. 965.

Forty-acre tract of land, contiguous to 160-acre tract, held part of owner's homestead. Carroll v. Jeffries, 39 C. A. 126, 87 S. W. 1050.

Twelve-acre lot in city detached from residence held not a homestead. L. W. Levy & Co. v. Lacour, 43 C. A. 191, 94 S. W. 380.

Land outside a town held not part of the homestead of one residing in the town. Parker v. W. L. Moody & Co., 43 C. A. 492, 96 S. W. 650.

A parcel of land, though detached from the homestead proper, held a part of the homestead within the constitution. Autry v. Reasor, 102 T. 123, 108 S. W. 1162.

A 57-acre tract in the country forms no part of a homestead consisting of a block in an unincorporated town. Dignowity v. Lindhelm (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 966.

Lots separated from other lots by an intervening lot held not a part of a business homestead. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Alten, 102 T. 366, 116 S. W. 1144.

Where one owning several tracts of land adjoining wishes to select his homestead, the tracts must be considered as one, and he may select any part thereof not embracing more than 200 acres. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple, 56 C. A. 65, 119 S. W. 728.

An urban homestead given by Const. art. 16, § 51, providing that such homestead shall consist of a lot or lots not exceeding $5,000 in value, may consist of a lot or lots, contiguous to or separated from each other, provided they are put to such uses as contribute to the enjoyment of the home. Harrington v. Mayo (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 650.

Land on which the college building of a school teacher was situated held exempt as his business homestead, but not so as to disconnected parcels of land on which students were boarded. Id.

Where a debtor maintained a college, disconnected tracts of land used as a baseball ground and as a vegetable garden held not exempt as the debtor's business homestead. Id.

Part of a lot adjoining a homestead held segregated from it and not subject to exemption. Blair v. Park Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 718.

A rural homestead may consist of separate and disconnected tracts of land, provided they do not exceed 200 acres. Dillard v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 662.

21. Part of building.—Homestead exemption held to extend to abandoned part of a building, where such part was not separated or partitioned from the main building. Bente v. Sullivan, 52 C. A. 454, 115 S. W. 350.

22. Time of acquisition of homestead.—Homestead exemption exists from the date of its designation. Cameron v. Gebhard, 85 T. 610, 22 S. W. 1033, 34 Am. St. Rep. 332; Heady v. Bexar Bldg. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 468.

Vacant lots conveyed to plaintiff, who agreed to furnish money with which to erect a house thereon, and reconvey to grantors, reserving a vendor's lien for money advanced, did not become grantor's homestead until reconveyance, and hence was not exempt from the lien. West End Town Co. v. Grigg, 93 T. 451, 56 S. W. 49.

23. Change of homestead.—Mere purchase of other property than that on which defendants resided as their homestead held insufficient to create a homestead right therein. Powers v. Palmer, 36 C. A. 212, 81 S. W. 817.

Where defendants' homestead rights in certain property were fully protected when a judgment became a lien on other property owned by them, they could not acquire homestead rights in the property subject to such lien. Id.

The fact that at the time of marriage a woman was occupying her separate property as the homestead of herself and minor children did not prevent the husband, while acting in good faith, from moving his family therefrom and acquiring some other homestead. Duncan v. Hand (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 233.

24. Evidence of homestead right.—The positive and formal declaration of the husband and wife will not divest of the homestead protection urban property actually used as such. Kauffman v. Ruhl, 65 T. 723; Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 32; Jacobs v. Hawkins, 63 T. 1.

Actual occupation of premises is better evidence of homestead rights than the declarations of husband and wife. Mortgage Co. v. Norton, 71 T. 683, 10 S. W. 301; Kempner v. Comer, 73 T. 203, 11 S. W. 194; Loan Co. v. Blalock, 76 T. 89, 13 S. W. 12; Moerlein v. S. M. & L. I. Co., 29 S. W. 162, 9 C. A. 415.

Evidence sufficient to show dedication of a homestead. See Gallagher v. Keller, 23 S. W. 296, 4 C. A. 454; Charles v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 169; Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 32.

Burden of proof rests upon one claiming an exempt homestead. Mullins v. Looke, 27 S. W. 926, 8 C. A. 138; Roe v. Davis (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 950.

The designation of a lot of land for homestead purposes may be shown by the acts of the owner before and after a levy and sale under execution. Gallagher v. Keller, 29 S. W. 647, 87 T. 472.

A finding that a lot adjoining plaintiff's residence lot was not a part of the homestead held justified by the evidence. Jones v. Lee (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 195.

Intent of wife in selecting homestead held admissible to show intent of husband, where husband and wife are in accord. Gunn v. Wynne (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 290.

Where it is in issue whether certain land is a homestead, and the use of the land shows a homestead, it will be held such, though the owner and his wife testify they had no homestead intent. Batts v. Middlesex Banking Co., 26 C. A. 515, 63 S. W. 1046.

Evidence held to justify a finding that plaintiff, in an action to recover realty sold under execution, had formed an intention to occupy the land as homestead prior to the execution. Foley v. Holtkamp, 28 C. A. 123, 66 S. W. 891.

In trespass to try title to land sold to defendant under execution, the burden was on plaintiffs to establish their claim that the land was their homestead when defendant's rights attached. Cobb v. Collins, 51 C. A. 63, 111 S. W. 760.

Defendant, who, after buying a lot and contracting for materials for a house thereon, left the county with his family because of indictments against him, has the burden of proving that the place was his homestead at the time plaintiff acquired a materialman's lien thereon. Rockwell Bros. Co. v. Hudgens, 57 C. A. 504, 123 S. W. 185.

Property occupied by a divorced woman held not a homestead. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

Evidence, in trespass to try title, in which plaintiff claimed under a purchase at a sale under a trust deed executed by defendant, held to sustain a finding that the land covered by the trust deed was not defendant's homestead. Roe v. Davis (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 950.

25. Crops on homestead.—Crops upon the rural homestead not gathered are exempt from forced sale. Alexander v. Holt, 59 T. 205; Anderson v. Lassemore, 1 App. C. C. § 951; Cunningham v. Coyle, 2 App. C. C. § 423; Eaves v. Williams (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 86; Coates v. Caldwell, 71 T. 19, 8 S. W. 922, 10 Am. St. Rep. 725.

Matured crops grown on, but not severed from, the homestead, are exempt from forced sale. Allen v. Ashburn, 27 C. A. 239, 65 S. W. 45.

Unsevered crops on a tract of leased land, separate from another leased tract, where the dwelling is situated, and leased from another landlord, but occupied in connection therewith as a homestead, are exempt from attachment. Moore v. Graham, 29 C. A. 235, 69 S. W. 200.

Growing crops on one's homestead held not to have lost their exempt character. Staggs' Heirs v. Piland, 31 C. A. 245, 71 S. W. 762.

An ungathered crop on the homestead of a debtor is exempt from forced sale. Paraker v. Hale (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 555.

Where land, though rented, was the homestead of the tenant, ungathered cotton was exempt from forced sale. Nunn-Weldon Dry Goods Co. v. Haden (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 73.

The seizure of cotton growing on the debtor's homestead, under writ of attachment, held wrongful, authorizing the debtor to recover damages for the wrongful attachment. Pate v. Vardeman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 317.

A mature and ungathered crop is not exempt from execution by reason of the nature of the property. Ellis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 602.

Where a contract created the relation of landlord and tenant, plaintiff was entitled to claim crops grown on the land as exempt on the theory that they were the proceeds of his homestead. McCullough Hardware Co. v. Call (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 718.

26. Rents and royalties.—Royalty upon coal taken from the homestead is not exempt. Collins Mfg. Co. v. Carr, 11 C. A. 364, 32 S. W. 366.

The rental value of a homestead that accrued during its wrongful seizure and detention is exempt. National Bank of Denison v. Killgore, 17 C. A. 462, 43 S. W. 565.

Rents due from one trespassing on a homestead are exempt to the owner thereof. La Master v. Dickson, 17 C. A. 473, 43 S. W. 911.

27. Abandonment of homestead.—The fact that a part of the ground claimed as an urban homestead is used for purposes of mere convenience and pleasure will not divest it of its homestead character. Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 32.

The whole or any part of an urban homestead may be lost by abandonment or by the erection thereon of buildings inconsistent with the homestead use. Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 32; Wynne v. Hudson, 66 T. 1, 17 S. W. 110. But if such abandonment is attempted by the husband in fraud of the rights of a wife, or with intent to evade the prohibition against giving liens thereon, the property, being really still a part of the homestead, would continue impressed with the homestead character. Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 32.

The lapse of eight days between the cessation of business and the sale of the premises on which business was conducted, there having been no abandonment of the premises, will not destroy their exemption as a homestead. Scheuber v. Ballow, 64 T. 166.

A husband and wife agreed to separate, divided their rural homestead, and conveyed one-half to K. to hold in trust for the husband. The husband lived apart from his wife, but acquired no other homestead. The homestead exemption in the tract conveyed to K. was not divested. Crockett v. Templeton, 65 T. 134.

Election of a shoemaker as a county treasurer held not to operate as an abandonment of his business homestead. Schoellkopf v. Cameron, 19 C. A. 593, 47 S. W. 548.

A lot bought by a party with the intention of building his residence on it, but afterwards used to grow vegetables for the use of the family, does not constitute an abandonment of it for a homestead. Anderson v. Sessions, 93 T. 279, 51 S. W. 874, 77 Am. St. Rep. 873.

Abandoned homestead become subject to execution, without regard to intent of owner to put the property to different uses. Freeman v. Cates, 22 C. A. 623, 55 S. W. 524.

Facts held not to constitute an abandonment of a business homestead. Id.

Where, when mortgage was executed on a residence homestead, a building had been started on a portion of the land, but it had not been put to any use inconsistent with that of a homestead, and, when completed, it was used as a business homestead, the property was not abandoned as a homestead, so as to make the mortgage valid. Woeltz v. Woeltz (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 905.

Occupancy of land as homestead by heir held not divested by temporary payment of rent in ignorance of rights. Loessin v. Washington, 23 C. A. 515, 57 S. W. 990.

A portion of the lot on which a saloon was located, and which the owner used for a passageway for cattle used in his business, held to be a part of a homestead, though there had been an abandonment as to the saloon. Warren v. Kohr, 26 C. A. 331, 64 S. W. 62.

The homestead intention may be abandoned at any time, and the exemption thereby ended; and a mortgage on the property induced by the disclaimer of such intention is valid. Davidson v. Jefferson (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 822.

The detention of a widow in a lunatic asylum is not a voluntary abandonment of her homestead, and does not affect her rights therein. Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 395, 80 S. W. 245.

One held not to lose his claim of business homestead because of enforced interruption of business on account of ill health. Gibbs v. Hartenstein (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 59.

A duly recorded judgment against the owner of a business homestead attaches when the property ceases to be a homestead if still the property of the judgment debtor. Bradley v. Janssen (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 506.

When a homestead character once attaches to property, it continues to be the homestead until the owner voluntarily changes its character by disposing of the property or by leaving with the intention of not returning and occupying it as a home. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

Where a husband and wife abandoned a homestead, a husband's conveyance held valid without wife joining therein. Robertson v. Hefley, 55 C. A. 368, 118 S. W. 1159.

"Abandonment of a homestead," defined. Wiener v. Zweb (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

Mere intention to sell a homestead and acquire another does not destroy the homestead character. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

After a homestead is abandoned, it is subject to levy as other property, though the owner has not acquired another homestead. Baker v. Magee (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1161.

28. — Consent of wife.—The abandonment by the husband alone defeats the homestead right of the children. Long-continued absence may be evidence of abandonment, but is not conclusive if there is an intention to return. Thorn v. Dill, 56 T. 145; Smith v. Uzzell, 56 T. 315; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 319.

The husband may in good faith abandon a part of the business homestead, and the abandoned portion would become subject to levy and sale. Shryock v. Latimer, 57 T. 674; Wynne v. Hudson, 66 T. 1, 17 S. W. 110; Bowman v. Watson, 66 T. 295, 1 S. W. 273; Malone v. Kornrumpf, 84 T. 454, 19 S. W. 607; Blackburn v. Knight, 81 T. 326, 16 S. W. 1075; Glasscock v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 677; Clift v. Kaufman, 60 T. 64; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 320; Kaufman v. Fore, 73 T. 308, 11 S. W. 278.

A husband, without the concurrence of his wife, may divest his place of business of the homestead protection by abandonment, and then himself convey it. Morris v. Geis-ecke, 60 T. 633; Inge v. Cain, 65 T. 75; Archibald v. Jacobs, 69 T. 248, 6 S. W. 177; Wynne v. Hudson, 66 T. 1, 17 S. W. 110; McCarty v. Brackenridge, 1 C. A. 170, 20 S. W. 997; Dickson v. Allen (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 661; Davis v. Taylor, 33 S. W. 543; Keller v. Beattie, 34 S. W. 667; White v. Cowles, 155 S. W. 982.

An instruction held erroneous, as requiring a wife to concur with the husband in his intent to abandon the homestead. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Guillemet, 15 C. A. 649, 40 S. W. 225.

Renunciation by husband without consent of wife held a fraud on homestead right. Arnold v. Macdonald, 22 C. A. 487, 55 S. W. 529.

In an action by a husband and wife to recover their homestead from an innocent third person purchasing from plaintiffs' mortgagee, held, that the acts of the husband cannot affect the wife's interest. Black v. Garner (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 918.

The determination of a husband to abandon his homestead is binding on his wife, who remained with him in his absence from the county. Rockwell Bros. & Co. v. Hudgens, 57 C. A. 504, 123 S. W. 185.

A wife cannot be deprived of her homestead by her husband, without her consent, accepting a lease of it from a person who has no title thereto. Lumpkin v. Woods (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1139.

Where a husband and wife live on a homestead, the separate property of the husband, and the wife is legally declared insane, so as to be incapacitated from consenting to a deed of the homestead by joinder, and privy acknowledgment, and the husband, with the children, removes from the homestead, his sale of the lot, more than a year after such removal, with no intent to defraud the wife, is valid, regardless of whether, at the time of the removal and abandonment, he intended to acquire another homestead, or whether another homestead had in fact been acquired. Gilley v. Troop (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 954.

A husband acting in good faith may abandon a homestead and acquire a new one, regardless of his wife's wishes. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

29. — Absence from homestead and other acts.—The words "to use and occupy," within the meaning of article 16, section 52, of the constitution, does not require a residence on the land. When left either from necessity or convenience by the family, no matter for how long a time, so long as it contributes to the support of the family it remains a homestead until title is acquired to another home, and which is used and occupied as such. Foreman v. Meroney, 62 T. 723; Aultman v. Allen, 12 C. A. 227, 33 S. W. 679.

Homestead abandoned if not occupied, when. Graves v. Campbell, 74 T. 579, 12 S. W. 239; Farmer v. Hale, 14 C. A. 73, 37 S. W. 164.

A business homestead is abandoned by the cessation of business therein. Willis v. Pounds, 25 S. W. 715, 6 C. A. 512; Tackaberry v. National Bank, 85 T. 488, 22 S. W. 151, 299.

Homestead abandoned for three years prior to conveyance held subject to lien of prior judgment. Kerr v. Oppenheimer, 20 C. A. 140, 49 S. W. 149.

Where a divorce decree gave the wife one half of the homestead absolutely, and the use of the other half during the children's minority for their support, the husband's ouster by judicial process, putting his wife in possession of the whole tract, held not to divest the husband's homestead right in the land, so that he could reoccupy it as a homestead after his wife sold her interest in the whole tract. Speer & Goodnight v. Sykes, 102 T. 451, 119 S. W. 86, 132 Am. St. Rep. 896.

The mere fact that a married man had some kind of business at a particular place and that he was living there with his family, attending to it at the time of his death, did not show as matter of law an abandonment of his homestead located elsewhere. McComas v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 594.

Removal from a homestead with a fixed intent not to return is an abandonment, though another homestead has not been acquired. Republic Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 317.

Where a widow occupying premises as a homestead married, and she and her husband voluntarily left the premises, with no intent on the part of the husband to again make the same a homestead of the family, the property became subject to execution sale. White v. Cowles (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 982.

That a husband intended to sell out a livery business belonging to his wife and move to another country, will not constitute abandonment of the business homestead so long as he was actually in possession thereof, using and occupying it as such. Farmers' State Bank of Quannah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

30. — Intent to return to homestead.—Abandonment of a homestead may be shown by long absence of the family and other circumstances tending to show an intention to abandon. Sanders v. Sheran, 66 T. 655, 2 S. W. 804.

A qualified intention of one leaving a homestead not to return to it, if he can sell it and invest the proceeds in a home that will suit him better, is not an intention which, connected with change of domicile, will operate an abandonment. Id.

A removal with no intention of abandonment does not defeat the homestead rights, even when a purchaser had no notice of former occupancy. Parr v. Newby, 73 T. 468, 11 S. W. 490.

A rural homestead is not lost by a temporary absence for the purpose of schooling the children of the family. Reinstein v. Daniels, 75 T. 640, 13 S. W. 21; Aultman v. Allen, 12 C. A. 227, 33 S. W. 679.

That the head of the family when he left the homestead intended to return and use and occupy it is evidence that it was not abandoned. Rollins v. O'Farrel, 77 T. 95, 13 S. W. 1021; Foreman v. Meroney, 62 T. 723; Graves v. Campbell, 74 T. 579, 12 S. W. 238; Locke v. Bonnell, 14 C. A. 354, 37 S. W. 250.

A homestead exemption is lost by voluntarily leaving the homestead with the intention not to return, the husband and wife concurring. Myers v. Evans, 81 T. 317, 16 S. W. 1060; Reece v. Renfro, 68 T. 192, 4 S. W. 545; Graves v. Campbell, 74 T. 576, 12 S. W. 238; Archibald v. Jacobs, 6 S. W. 178, 69 T. 248; Mortgage Co. v. Norton, 71 T. 683, 10 S. W. 301; Pellat v. Decker, 72 T. 581, 10 S. W. 696; Kempner v. Comer, 73 T. 203, 11 S. W. 194.

An offer to sell the homestead while temporarily absent is not evidence of abandonment. Aultman v. Allen, 12 C. A. 227, 33 S. W. 679.

An urban homestead is lost by abandonment with the intention not to return. Keller v. Beattie (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 667.

Temporary abandonment of homestead and living on rented premises held not to forfeit homestead right. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Guillemet, 15 C. A. 649, 40 S. W. 225.

Where a father is compelled from sickness to leave his homestead, and his children find shelter elsewhere, it is not such an abandonment as to deprive his children of rights therein. Mealy v. Lipp, 16 C. A. 163, 40 S. W. 824.

Family living off their homestead farm for eight years, for the purpose of educating their children in town, held not to be a conclusive abandonment of homestead. Gunn v. Wynne (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 290.

To prevent abandonment of a homestead, the intention to return and occupy and use it as a homestead must continue to exist in the mind of the owner, who has moved away. Schwartzman v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 113.

A levy on a homestead is good if made after the formation of the intent of the owner to permanently abandon the property as his homestead. Bell v. Greathouse, 20 C. A. 478, 49 S. W. 258.

Lease of business homestead, with intention of returning thereto on expiration of lease, held not to constitute an abandonment of homestead while intention to return continued. Alexander v. Lovitt (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 685.

A father's act in leaving his homestead and removing to a village to educate his children held not abandonment. Birdwell v. Burleson, 31 C. A. 31, 72 S. W. 446.

Instruction, not making homestead right depend on intention at time of execution sale, held erroneous. White v. Epperson, 32 C. A. 162, 73 S. W. 851.

A homestead held not to have lost its character as such by the owner's removal to the homestead of his wife and residing there with her. Canning v. Andrews, 38 C. A. 232, 85 S. W. 22.

A removal to another state intended as temporary only and accompanied at all times during the absence by an intention to return and reoccupy the homestead will not defeat a homestead right once enjoyed within the state. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Burge, 49 C. A. 599, 110 S. W. 181.

Abandonment of a homestead held accomplished by going away with the definite intention never to return. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

The intent to return, which will prevent a removal from a homestead from constituting an abandonment, must continue during the entire absence. Lynch v. McGown, 54 C. A. 390, 117 S. W. 884.

To constitute an abandonment of a homestead, it must appear that there was a removal with a fixed intention never to return. Armstrong v. Neville (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1010.

Conduct of a person held not to show a fixed intention never to return to his homestead. Id.

The abandonment of a homestead by removal therefrom depends on whether the removal was with the fixed intention of not returning to the place as a home. Thigpen v. Russell, 55 C. A. 211, 118 S. W. 1080.

That the claimants of homestead received a deed of other property held not to show abandonment, if they at all times intended to return to the homestead. Id.

An offer to sell a homestead was not necessarily inconsistent with the claimants' intention to return thereto and reoccupy it as a home, if they did not sell. Id.

For removal from the homestead to be an abandonment, there must be an intent not to return, and, where the intent not to return has not been formed, the homestead character is not destroyed, though another home has been acquired, for absence, however long, is merely a circumstance tending to show abandonment, and will not be conclusive where there are other circumstances showing an intent to return. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

An abandonment of a homestead is accomplished only by removal therefrom coupled with an intention never to return. Herman v. Smith (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1087.

A wife compelled in consequence of her husband's treatment to leave his home temporarily, either from necessity to make a living or other causes not of her own making, does not thereby lose her homestead rights. Id.

31. — Acquiring other residence or homestead.—The best evidence of abandonment of an old homestead is the acquisition and permanent use of another as such. Ogden v. Giddings, 15 T. 486; Shepherd v. Cassidy, 20 T. 29, 70 Am. Dec. 372; Woolfolk v. Ricketts, 41 T. 362. A homestead may be abandoned when no other has been acquired. Reece v. Renfro, 68 T. 194, 4 S. W. 545; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 322; Jordan v. Godman, 19 T. 273; Davis v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 543.

When a new homestead is not acquired, the total abandonment of the old home with the intention not to return must be clearly shown. Gouenant v. Cockrell, 20 T. 98; Cross v. Everts, 28 T. 534; Thomas v. Williams, 50 T. 274; Smith v. Uzzell, 56 T. 315; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 323; Reece v. Renfro, 68 T. 194, 4 S. W. 545; Cantine v. Dennis (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 184.

Where a part of a homestead is sold, including the residence, the homestead right in the remainder of the tract is not divested until a new home is acquired. Scott v. Dyer, 60 T. 135, citing Shepherd v. Cassidy, 20 T. 24, 70 Am. Dec. 372; Gouenant v. Cockrell, 20 T. 96. That the wife and family remained on the homestead until it could be sold for the purpose of defraying the expenses of joining her husband in another state is not fraudulent. McDannell v. Ragsdale, 71 T. 23, 8 S. W. 625, 10 Am. St. Rep. 729; Traders' Ins. Co. v. Chase, 11 C. A. 13, 31 S. W. 1103; Dobkins v. Kuykendall, 81 T. 180, 16 S. W. 743; Gallagher v. Keller (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 248.

When the husband in good faith removes from a former homestead and with his wife occupies a new homestead, it operates as an abandonment of the original homestead. Slavin v. Wheeler, 61 T. 654. See Welborne v. Downing, 73 T. 527, 11 S. W. 501. And so when they remove from the state. Perry v. Scott; 68 T. 208, 7 S. W. 384.

The acquisition of a new homestead is not absolutely essential to the abandonment of homestead rights. Reece v. Renfro, 68 T. 194, 4 S. W. 545; Moore v. Johnston, 12 C. A. 694, 34 S. W. 771.

The acquirement of another residence without intent to make it a homestead does not constitute a permanent abandonment of the original homestead. Baum v. Williams, 16 C. A. 407, 41 S. W. 840.

Where a woman who has a homestead marries and lives on the homestead of her husband, with no intent of repossessing herself of her former home, she cannot claim it as a homestead. Ghent v. Boyd, 18 C. A. 88, 43 S. W. 891.

Where plaintiff, after selling their original homestead, moved from it to the new homestead, made a partial payment thereon, and obligated himself to pay the balance, the original homestead was abandoned. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

32. — Conveyance or sale.—When husband and wife unite in a conveyance of the homestead in order to abandon it, the homestead is divested. Edmondson v. Blessing, 42 T. 596; Blessing v. Edmondson, 49 T. 333. See Marler v. Handy, 88 T. 421, 31 S. W. 636.

A. sold his homestead and acquired another. His vendee executed to his vendor of the first homestead notes in lieu of other notes given by A. to the original vendor, with the agreement that they should be secured by a lien on the land. The land afterwards passed into the possession of A. Held that, his vendee being insolvent, he was responsible to the original vendor on the substituted notes. Thorn v. Dill, 56 T. 145.

A. and wife conveyed to B. their homestead, receiving payment, a part in cash and a note unsecured by a vendor's lien for the balance. A. afterward transferred the note to C. Subsequently A. and B. canceled their trade, the former receiving from B. a conveyance of the land and executing to C. a note to be substituted in place of the note transferred by A. to C. Held, that the homestead right of A. and wife in the land was subject to the lien of the note so executed to C. Brooks v. Young, 60 T. 32.

A simulated conveyance of a homestead, in contemplation of abandonment, and to be held for the grantor, subjects it to sale under execution. Willis v. Pounds, 25 S. W. 715, 6 C. A. 512.

New homestead not acquired until after actual abandonment of old homestead. Allen v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 507.

A new homestead cannot be established before the actual abandonment of the old homestead. Id.

A deed by a wife after her husband's death held not an abandonment of her homestead where grantor, pursuant to the deed, continues to live on the property. Wilson v. Fields (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1024.

Plaintiffs, being owners of one-half interest in lands subject to the occupancy of their mother as a homestead, on her abandonment of homestead after sale of her interest, become entitled to possession of the entire tract. De Garcia v. Lozano (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 280.

A vendee of property under an absolute deed, alleged by creditors of the vendor to be a mortgage and to be paid in full, cannot set up as against the creditors that it is the vendor's homestead. Palm v. Chernowsky, 28 C. A. 405, 67 S. W. 165.

Where the holder of a homestead conveyed the same to one of the members of her family, but remained in possession, her possession as a tenant at sufferance was sufficient to sustain her right of homestead. American Nat. Bank v. Cruger, 31 C. A. 17, 71 S. W. 784.

The owner of a business homestead, by conveying to another, abandons his homestead exemption. R. E. Bell Hardware Co. v. Riddle, 31 C. A. 411, 72 S. W. 613.

That one intends to sell his homestead, and not to invest the proceeds in another home, does not show conclusively an absolute intent to abandon it. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Burge, 49 C. A. 599, 110 S. W. 181.

An intention and efforts to sell a homestead held not to constitute an abandonment thereof. Id.

33. — Renting or leasing.—Homestead rights not defeated by renting a part of the house or lots. Iken v. Olenick, 42 T. 195; Foreman v. Meroney, 62 T. 723; Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 558, 17 S. W. 82; Axer v. Bassett, 63 T. 545; Blum v. Whitworth, 66 T. 350, 1 S. W. 108; Medlinka v. Downing, 59 T. 32; Bowman v. Watson, 66 T. 295, 1 S. W. 273; Hensley v. Shields, 25 S. W. 37, 6 C. A. 136.

Homestead not abandoned by a temporary lease. Newton v. Calhoun, 68 T. 451, 4 S. W. 645; Blum v. Rogers, 78 T. 531, 15 S. W. 115; Hensley v. Shields, 25 S. W. 37, 6 C. A. 136; Bailey v. Bauknight (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 56; Hill v. Hill, 85 T. 103, 19 S. W. 1016.

Land adjoining the owner's residence, which had been improved and rented out, held subject to levy on execution. Williams v. Cleveland, 18 C. A. 133, 44 S. W. 689.

A homestead held not abandoned, where the owner divided the lot by a fence and rented a portion of it temporarily. Shook v. Shook, 21 C. A. 177, 50 S. W. 731.

Where a homesteader fits up a part of his residence homestead for a store and rents it, it loses its residence homestead character. King v. C. M. Hapgood Shoe Co., 21 C. A. 217, 51 S. W. 532.

When part of the homestead lot is detached and buildings erected thereon for the purpose of being permanently rented such detached property ceases to be a part of the homestead. Torres v. Cuneo (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 828.

A lease of a homestead held sufficient evidence to support a finding that there was such an abandonment as would render the property subject to execution. Warren v. Kohr, 26 C. A. 331, 64 S. W. 62.

The fact that houses on lots adjacent to the owner's residence have been rented for ten years or more, and that the rent money is necessary for the support of his family, is conclusive that the lots have been permanently set apart as tenant houses. Wurzbach v. Menger, 27 C. A. 290, 65 S. W. 679.

A leasing of a business homestead for three years, with an option of five, is a fixed intention to resume business on the property. Alexander v. Lovitt (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 927.

The owner of a business homestead held to have abandoned it by a sale of his business and a lease of the homestead. Alexander v. Lovitt, 95 T. 661, 69 S. W. 68.

The rental of a part of a debtor's business homestead held insufficient to establish an abandonment thereof. Billings v. Matlage, 36 C. A. 619, 82 S. W. 805.

This article does not expressly confer upon the owner the power to rent the homestead. The execution of a lease of the community homestead for a term of two years by the husband alone is void, because not signed and acknowledged by the wife, and the court is not authorized to construe such void lease as good for one year, and treat the holding of the lessee a renting for one year. Haile v. Haile (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 436.

Temporary renting of a part of the homestead does not constitute divestiture of the homestead character of the property. H. P. Drought & Co. v. Stallworth, 45 C. A. 159, 100 S. W. 188.

The renting of a portion of a rural homestead deprives the rented part of its homestead character. Autry v. Reazor, 102 T. 123, 113 S. W. 748.

34. — Waiver.—A maker of a note secured by a vendor's lien may in a suit to foreclose the lien waive his homestead rights. Zeno v. Adoue, 54 C. A. 36, 117 S. W. 1039.

35. — Evidence.—Admissibility of evidence, see notes under Art. 3687.
Abandonment of the homestead, how shown. Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 38; Newton v. Calhoun, 68 T. 451, 4 S. W. 645; Langston v. Maxey, 74 T. 159, 12 S. W. 27; Giersa v. Gray (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 231; Jamison v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 954.

Evidence as to abandonment of homestead. Harbison v. Tennison (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 232.

Evidence held to show segregation and abandonment of a business homestead, so as to render it liable to execution. Carothers v. Lange (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 580.

Evidence considered, and held to show that a husband had separated 1 lot out from the homestead block of 12 lots, and abandoned it as a homestead, before conveying it by his deed, in which his wife did not join, and that such deed conveyed a good title. Drew v. Wooten, 27 C. A. 456, 66 S. W. 331.

In determining whether property once a homestead has been permanently abandoned, all the circumstances and facts must be considered. H. P. Drought & Co. v. Stallworth, 45 C. A. 159, 100 S. W. 188.

The abandonment of a homestead should not be found to exist unless it is clearly shown beyond all reasonable ground of dispute. Armstrong v. Neville (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1010.

A fact held not to show an abandonment of a homestead. McComas v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 594.

Evidence held to support a finding of abandonment of part of a homestead. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 705.

36. Estoppel to claim homestead.—Representations as to homestead an estoppel, when. Haswell v. Forbes, 27 S. W. 566, 8 C. A. 82.

A recital in a mortgage signed by husband and wife that certain property not occupied by them was not their homestead operates as an estoppel. Moerlein v. Scottish M. & L. I. Co., 29 S. W. 162, 9 C. A. 415.

Parties may be estopped from claiming exemption of homestead by fraudulent representations and acts. Carden v. Short (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 246.

Declarations of intention not to occupy premises as a homestead not actually occupied as such will estop a claim thereto against one who, under a belief of such declarations, has loaned money on the security of such property. Harmson v. Wesche (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 192.

A husband cannot estop himself and wife from asserting right of homestead by taking a lease from a third person. Dotson v. Barnett, 16 C. A. 258, 41 S. W. 99.

Mere representations do not estop mortgagors to claim homestead in mortgaged premises. Hawes v. Parrish, 16 C. A. 497, 41 S. W. 132.

The wife is not estopped from setting up her claim to the homestead because she signed the deed, there being no privy acknowledgment, and because it was through her instrumentality that the sale was made and the money was counted into her lap. Huss v. Wells, 17 C. A. 195, 44 S. W. 33.

Representations by borrowers that a certain place was their homestead, which were relied on by the lender, held to estop borrowers from claiming other property as a homestead. White v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 653.

In action to set aside judgment foreclosing vendor's lien, owners of premises held estopped to set up homestead exemption in the premises. Butler v. Carter (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 632.

Where defendant in an application for a loan designated a part of his farm and a tract belonging to his wife as a homestead, and plaintiff accepted a mortgage on the balance, defendant held estopped from setting up a homestead in the mortgaged land. Hunter v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 890.

Children of mortgagor held estopped to claim homestead. Leslie v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 578, 64 S. W. 1037.

Where defendant and wife occupied two separate pieces of property in a manner calculated to convey the impression that each was a homestead, a deed of trust on one reciting that it was not a homestead, together with a written designation, executed at the same time, declaring that the other was a homestead, held to raise the question of estoppel. Parrish v. Hawes, 95 T. 185, 66 S. W. 209.

Failure to record deed to homestead held not to preclude wife from asserting homestead rights as against purchaser of fraudulent vendor lien notes, executed by husband in connection with subsequent recorded, but fictitious, deed. Texas Land & Mortg. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 173.

Plaintiffs held not estopped from claiming that their father's homestead had been abandoned. Beck v. Avindino, 29 C. A. 500, 63 S. W. 827.

Grantor in deed of trust of a homestead held not estopped to assert that the property was his homestead. Letzerich v. Lidiak, 31 C. A. 120, 70 S. W. 773.

The mere statement in a deed of trust that the land was not homestead would not estop the grantors from afterwards asserting it to be such. Crebbin v. Mosely (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 815.

Husband and wife, mortgaging homestead, held not estopped to assert that it was homestead. Sheckles v. Lewis, 33 C. A. 8, 75 S. W. 336.

An application for a loan on a mortgage held to estop the mortgagor from claiming any homestead right in his mortgaged premises. Thompson Sav. Bank v. Gregory, 36 C. A. 578, 82 S. W. 802.

Recital in deed of trust held not to estop grantor's wife from claiming land as a homestead. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1003.

Where claimants are not in actual possession, subjecting the property to homestead use, representations amounting to fraud will estop them from thereafter claiming the property as homestead as against persons acting on such representations. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

Effect of a disclaimer of homestead interest in mortgaged land stated. Dignowity v. Lindheim (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 966.

Where property has actually become a homestead, mere declarations of the owner and her husband negating the idea of homestead made while they were occupying the property as a homestead, does not change its homestead character, and no estoppel arises from such declarations. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

No representations in a deed by a man and his wife, in the actual possession of homestead property, will defeat the exemption, though, if claimants are not in actual possession, representations amounting to fraud will prevent them from setting up the homestead claim as against persons acting on such representation without knowledge of the exemption claim. Deaton v. Southern Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 294.

Where a married man is in actual possession of property, using the same as a business homestead, no representations made to a mortgagee, either by him or his wife, will defeat the constitutional exemption, for those dealing with them cannot ignore the notice conveyed by the actual use of the property. Farmers' State Bank of Quana v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

37. Conveyance or incumbrance of homestead.—A conveyance by husband and wife, absolute on its face, of a homestead, with a contemporaneous agreement with the vendee that it shall be reconveyed on repayment to him of the money constituting the consideration, is valid, if the relation of creditor and debtor between the parties was terminated by the deed; but if that relation continued it would be a pretended conveyance and void. Hurt v. Cooper, 63 T. 362; Astugueville v. Loustaunau, 61 T. 233; Loving v. Milliken, 59 T. 425; Hudson v. Wilkinson, 45 T. 445; Fowler v. Stoneum, 11 T. 478, 62 Am. Dec. 490; Carter v. Carter, 5 T. 93; Heidenheimer v. Stewart, 65 T. 321.

Where land has become a homestead prior to the owner executing a note which did not include any of the purchase price of the land, the payee could acquire no lien on the land as security for the note. Sweet v. Lyon, 39 C. A. 450, 88 S. W. 384.

Under Const. art. 16, § 51, and this article, the homestead right of a married woman rests upon the fact that she has the status of a wife, and that as such she actually used and occupied the 200-acre homestead for the purpose of a home, at the time of its attempted alienation, and did not join in the execution of the conveyance or in any way assent thereto. McCracken v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 693.

38. — How made.—See Title 24, Chapter 1, Art. 1115, and notes.

39. — Agreement as to boundaries.—The right of adjoining landowners to agree as to their common boundary is not affected by the fact that one of the lots is a homestead. McKeon v. Roan (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 404.

40. — Sale.—A conditional sale of a homestead is valid. Astugueville v. Loustaunau, 61 T. 233.

A homestead is subject to an actual bona fide sale. Johnston v. Fraser (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 49.

A deed by the grantee of a trust deed executed at the request of the owner held to convey title. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

41. — Conveyance between husband and wife.—The husband cannot execute to his wife a mortgage upon their homestead to secure a loan from her. Madden v. Madden, 79 T. 595, 15 S. W. 480.

A conveyance of exempt community property by an insolvent husband to his wife is valid against his subsequent creditors. Texarkana Bank v. Hall (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 73.

42. — Mortgage.—Parol evidence alone is not sufficient to establish that a conveyance of the homestead, absolute and duly acknowledged, was intended as a mortgage, unless the proof is clear, satisfactory and convincing. Brewster v. Davis, 59 T. 478.

The wife is a necessary party to suit foreclosing a lien upon the homestead. Thompson v. Jones, 60 T. 94.

An absolute deed conveying the homestead to secure a debt is a mortgage, and therefore void. Williams v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 270; Odum v. Menafee, 11 C. A. 119, 33 S. W. 129.

The conveyance of a homestead was made to evade the homestead law. Afterwards money was borrowed secured by a deed of trust on it from a party whose agent knew the character of the transaction. Deed of trust was held void and the holder of the lien debt in the absence of pleadings was not permitted to show that the agent took the deed of trust with the intent to defraud his principal. Stephenson v. Yeorgan, 17 C. A. 111, 42 S. W. 626.

The intention to abandon a homestead will not validate a mortgage given thereon. Caywood v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 927.

A charge on constructive notice of deceit in securing loan on homestead held uncalled for. Texas Loan & Savings Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 833.

Where grantors of a homestead took a note from the grantee, reserving a vendor's lien, and executed a written assignment of the note, acknowledging the validity of the lien and guaranteeing payment of the note, instrument held not invalid as a mortgage of homestead. Breneman v. Mayer, 24 C. A. 164, 58 S. W. 725.

A mortgage held not void because its execution constituted one of the acts by which the property therein described was segregated from the homestead. O'Brien v. Woelitz, 94 T. 148, 58 S. W. 943, 86 Am. St. Rep. 829.

A mortgage on land used for homestead purposes, but not included in a prior designation of the homestead, held valid. Brin v. Anderson, 25 C. A. 323, 60 S. W. 778.

A deed of trust by a husband and wife on their homestead for a sum in excess of the amount necessary to pay liens on the homestead is void as to such excess. Hillyer v. Westfall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1045.

Whether land is exempt as a homestead from operation of a trust deed is to be determined by the conditions existing at the time such deed is given. Crebbin v. Moseley (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 815.

A mortgage given on the homestead by the husband and wife is absolutely void, though at the time it was given the mortgagors had formed the intention of abandoning the homestead. Delaney v. Walker, 34 C. A. 358, 79 S. W. 601.

A deed of trust for security on a rural homestead and also on a town lot is void as to the homestead, but valid as to the town lot. Dignowity v. Baumblatt, 38 C. A. 363, 85 S. W. 834.

A deed of trust of an urban homestead is not given validity by a temporary abandonment of the premises. Id.

A deed of trust for security on an urban homestead is void, though the homestead consists of two tracts of land. Id.

That a deed of trust executed by a husband and wife on their homestead was ineffective to create a lien thereon did not avoid their personal obligation to pay the debt secured thereby. Fontaine v. Nuse, 38 C. A. 358, 85 S. W. 852.

Land embraced within a deed of trust, which was used as a homestead at the time of the execution of the deed, was not subject to the mortgage lien. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1003.

Agreement by debtor that creditor should take deed to land occupied as homestead and hold same as security for indebtedness other than purchase money held void. Blake v. Lowry, 43 C. A. 17, 93 S. W. 521.

A mortgage of a homestead held not to create a lien as against a married mortgagor living on the premises with his wife. Adams v. Bartell, 46 C. A. 349, 102 S. W. 779.

A mortgage or trust deed given on a homestead by the owner and his wife, is void, no matter what method was adopted to fix a lien thereby or how firm the belief that a lien could be created. Hall v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 489.

Conveyance of a homestead to a creditor of the husband and a reconveyance to him by the creditor reserving a vendor's lien as part of the same transaction held an invalid attempt to incumber the homestead. Sanger Bros. v. Brooks, 101 T. 115, 105 S. W. 37.

A mortgage of fixtures attached to a homestead, void under the constitution, prohibiting liens on homesteads, was not vitIALIZED by the subsequent cancellation of the title on which the homestead right was predicated. Doak v. Moore, 48 C. A. 594, 109 S. W. 405.

A mortgage of fixtures attached to the homestead cannot be rendered valid by agreement that the property shall be treated as chattels. Id.

Where one owning adjoining tracts embracing more than 200 acres has impressed the homestead character on parts of tracts, his dwelling, garden, etc., must be included in his homestead, and the excess of 200 acres may be mortgaged by him. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple, 66 C. A. 65, 119 S. W. 728.

Where a mortgage by means of a deed absolute on its face was placed on a homestead, it is void so far as the homestead is concerned. O'Neill v. O'Neill (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 729.

Statement of conditions on which the head of a family having more than 200 acres impressed with the homestead character may designate 200 acres as a homestead, and mortgage the balance. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1063.

Plaintiff, furnishing money to pay purchase money notes given for a homestead conveyed to her, held not prevented from enforcing a mortgage lien against the homestead. Parker v. Bushong (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 281.

Commissions paid to procure a loan for the purchase of a homestead, constituting no part of the original contract for the purchase, cannot be secured by a lien on the homestead. James v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 679.

43. — Mortgage by unmarried debtor.—An unmarried man having a family of relatives may mortgage his homestead. Smith v. Von Hutton, 75 T. 626, 13 S. W. 18.

An unmarried surviving spouse can mortgage the homestead. Hensel v. Building Co., 85 T. 215, 20 S. W. 116; Rice v. S. A. Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 75; Lacy v. Rollins, 74 T. 566, 12 S. W. 314; Watts v. Miller, 76 T. 13, 13 S. W. 16; Bateman v. Pool, 84 T. 405, 19 S. W. 552; Klobassa v. Raley, 23 S. W. 253, 1 C. A. 165; Harle v. Richards, 78 T. 80, 14 S. W. 257; Moore v. Poole (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 802; Astugueville v. Loutanau, 61 T. 233.

An unmarried man, though the head of a family, can create a valid lien on his homestead. Davis v. Converse (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 910.

An unmarried man may mortgage his homestead, though the same is exempt from execution. Melton v. Beasley, 56 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 574.

An unmarried woman may mortgage her homestead, though she is the head of a family of minor children. McGee v. Tinner (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 866.

44. — Effect of abandonment or termination of homestead right.—A recorded lien attaches to land as soon as it has lost its homestead character by abandonment. Marks v. Bell, 10 C. A. 587, 31 S. W. 699; Glasscock v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 677.

A mortgage made in violation of the constitutional inhibition cannot become valid by a subsequent abandonment of the homestead. Caywood v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 927.

The abandonment of a city homestead, and the designation of a country place as a homestead, permits the mortgaging of such city property. White v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 653.

A deed of trust of a business homestead held valid where, prior to its execution, the grantor formed an intention to abandon the premises, which he did after its execution. Sanger v. Hicks Co., 22 C. A. 473, 56 S. W. 775.

A mortgage, void because given on a business homestead, is not validated by a subsequent abandonment of the property as a homestead. O'Brien v. Woeltz, 94 T. 148, 53 S. W. 943, 86 Am. St. Rep. 829; Woeltz v. Same (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 905.

Where a husband and wife joined in the sale of their homestead, which was community property, the contract was enforceable as against the husband on the termination of the homestead either by abandonment or death of the wife. Ley v. Hahn, 36 C. A. 208, 81 S. W. 354.

Prior to the present constitution, a deed of trust of the homestead, executed by the husband alone to secure a community debt, held valid on the death of the wife. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

45. — Excess over homestead.—Where a mortgagee desires to subject to the payment of his debt the interest of a debtor in land in excess of the homestead right, and there are other joint owners of the land, the proper practice is to make such joint owners parties for partition before sale. Jenkins v. Veltz, 54 T. 636.

The owner of a 340-acre tract of land can sell 4 acres in one corner over which a road passes, as there is more than sufficient left to constitute the homestead. Neiman v. Schuster (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1075.

A trust deed on business homestead held valid to the extent that the combined value of the unimproved lots used for business and residence homestead purposes exceeded $5,000. St. Louis Brewing Ass'n v. Walker, 23 C. A. 6, 54 S. W. 360.

A mortgage executed after a declaration of a homestead on the land was void, except as to the amount in excess of the 200 acres allowed. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 619.

In determining whether there was an excess of over 200 acres allowed as a homestead in several tracts, in a proceeding to foreclose mortgage liens, the field notes showing an excess were prima facie proof of that fact. Id.

46. — Consent of wife.—See Art. 1115 and notes.

47. — Estoppel to deny validity.—Transfer of purchase-money notes received in simulated sale of homestead estops husband and wife from setting up simulated character of the transaction. Campbell v. Crowley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 373.

Husband and wife not estopped, by reconveyance of homestead to them from grantee under simulated sale, and assumption of notes given for purchase price, from setting up character of transaction against purchaser of notes with notice. Id.

Abandonment of homestead, and transfer of notes received in simulated sale of said property to purchaser with notice, will not estop husband and wife from setting up simulated character of transaction. Id.

Grantee of purchaser of homestead at trustee's sale, who took conveyance without notice of simulated character of trust deed, is entitled to protection in action by husband and wife to recover property. Id.

Mortgagors submitting to a judgment foreclosing the mortgage lien could not thereafter claim that the mortgage was void because of the homestead character of the property. Blair v. Guaranty Savings, Loan & Investment Co., 54 C. A. 443, 118 S. W. 608.

48. — Rights of purchasers or mortgagees.—A simulated sale was made of the homestead to enable the grantee to borrow money for the husband. A party who loaned money to the grantee is charged with notice of his agent of the character of the sale in the absence of evidence that the agent colluded with the other parties to defraud his principal. People's Building, Loan & Savings Association v. Dailey, 17 C. A. 38, 42 S. W. 364.

Improvements placed on land by a purchaser with the knowledge of a widow's homestead rights therein become part of the realty and inure to the benefit of the homestead estate. Hillen v. Williams, 25 C. A. 268, 60 S. W. 997.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage, one who had purchased part of the land from the mortgagor, subject to the mortgage, could not defend against the mortgage by setting up that the land was a homestead. Batts v. Middlesex Banking Co., 26 C. A. 515, 63 S. W. 1046.

When lands including a homestead are conveyed by deed of trust which is invalid as to the homestead, except as to an amount, less than the secured debt, which is sufficient to remove previously existing liens from the homestead, a sale of the entire tract by the trustee passes no title to the homestead. Hillyer v. Westfall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1045.

Where land of a lunatic on which he resided as head of a family was sold to pay debts, the question as to whether the purchaser acquired a good title held dependent on whether the property was the homestead of the lunatic when it was sold. Griffin v. Harris, 39 C. A. 586, 88 S. W. 493.

One mortgaging land not used openly in connection with his home held estopped from claiming it as a homestead. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple, 56 C. A. 65, 119 S. W. 728.

A lien held not fixed by the abstracting of a judgment as against premises occupied by the debtor and his wife as a homestead. Garth v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 611.

The sale of a homestead under a deed of trust for an indebtedness, part only of which is a valid lien, under the constitution is void. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 633.

Where the whole indebtedness, part of which was a valid lien on the homestead, was embraced in one note, payments made thereon should be applied to discharge that part of the indebtedness which was a valid lien on the homestead. Id.

Where all that part of a debt secured by a deed of trust on a homestead which was a valid lien on the homestead had been paid before the sale of the property under the deed of trust, the trustee had no power to sell, and the sale by him conveyed no title. Id.

Where a debt secured by a deed of trust constituted a valid lien on the homestead of T. and wife at the date of the execution of another deed of trust to B. and formed a part of the amount secured by the second deed of trust, to this extent the deed of trust was a lien on the homestead. Id.

B., holding a deed of trust on a homestead, held to have a valid lien on the homestead for taxes paid. Id.

In satisfying a mortgage lien out of land designated as a homestead, held, that any excess over the 200 acres allowed as a homestead should be located out of a tract sold by the homesteader. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 619.

49. — Rights of bona fide purchasers.—See notes under Art. 6824.

50. Testamentary disposition of exemption.—The exemption of homestead property from forced sale for the payment of debts cannot be transmitted by will. Roots v. Robertson, 93 T. 365, 55 S. W. 308.

51. Effect of levy and forced sale of homestead.—The levy of a writ of attachment and foreclosure of an attachment lien on property which constitutes a homestead gives no right therein. Holland v. Zilliox, 38 C. A. 416, 86 S. W. 36.

A forced sale of a homestead, except for that which the constitution makes it liable, is void, and a grantee of the purchaser at such sale acquires no better title than the purchaser did. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

An attempted sale of land under execution, while it was occupied as a homestead by the head of a family, was void, and conveyed no title to the purchaser. Speer & Goodnight v. Sykes, 102 T. 451, 119 S. W. 86, 132 Am. St. Rep. 896.

The levy of an attachment does not create a lien on a homestead. Strong v. H. T. Elder & Sons (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 374.

52. Judgment as lien against homestead.—A judgment lien does not attach to the homestead of a judgment debtor. Savage v. Cowan (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 319.

53. Rights of surviving husband, wife, children or heirs.—See Title 52, Chapter 18.

Art. 3787. Proceeds of sale of homestead exempt for six months.—The proceeds of the voluntary sale of the homestead shall not be subject to garnishment or forced sale within six months after such sale. [Id.]

See State Board of Medical Examiners v. Taylor, 103 T. 444, 129 S. W. 600.

Proceeds of exempt property.—When a homestead has been sold under legal process, a surplus remaining after satisfying the debt for which it was sold is not subject to seizure under legal process. Hunter v. Woodert, 55 T. 433.

And so when the old homestead is sold with the intention of reinvesting the money in another, the unpaid purchase money cannot be subjected to the payment of debts. Watkins v. Davis, 61 T. 414.

A husband has the right to control the proceeds of the homestead. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

This article does not require that a suit to enforce the right conferred by the statute shall be instituted within six months. Henry v. Boedker (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 811.

Under this article an attorney who has sold his client's homestead rights for a consideration partly in cash cannot, without his consent, subject the proceeds in his hands to an extinguishment of the client's notes held by himself. Id.

— Voluntary sale or exchange.—Property acquired by voluntary exchange of exempt property, if from its character and use it is also exempt, will receive the same protection from forced sale which shielded the property given in exchange for it. This rule applies to the acquisition by the widow, after the death of the husband, of a new homestead in exchange for the old one, even though there be no constituent of her own family, for whose support she is liable, residing with her. Schneider v. Bray, 59 T. 668, citing Whittenberg v. Lloyd, 49 T. 633; Wolfe v. Buckley, 52 T. 641.

When exempt property is sold and voluntarily converted into property not exempt, the latter is not exempt from forced sale. Kingsland v. McGowan, 3 App. C. C. § 32.

Notes given for the purchase money of a homestead are not exempt from garnishment. Mann v. Kelsey, 71 T. 609, 12 S. W. 43, 10 Am. St. Rep. 800; Kirby v. Giddings, 75 T. 679, 13 S. W. 27; Moursund v. Priess, 84 T. 554, 19 S. W. 775; Womack v. Stokes, 12 C. A. 648, 35 S. W. 82. See Art. 2396.

Where parties traded their home in town for a farm, intending to use it as a homestead, and never abandoned such intention, they may restrain a sale thereof under execution. Rutherford v. Cox, 25 C. A. 499, 61 S. W. 527.

A judgment creditor of husband held not entitled to subject to lien vendor's lien notes given the wife on sale of the homestead. Howard v. Mayher, 69 C. A. 529, 88 S. W. 409.

The proceeds of the sale of the homestead are exempt from the payment of the husband's debts, except purchase money of a homestead and taxes thereon. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

On the sale of a homestead, the proceeds remain exempt for six months if not sooner invested in a new homestead. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 682.

— Involuntary conversion.—When exempt property is taken from the owner against his will and its form changed by process of law, the proceeds are protected until there is a reasonable opportunity to reinvest in other exempt property. Kingsland v. McGowan, 3 App. C. C. § 32, citing Whittenberg v. Lloyd, 49 T. 633; North v. Shearn, 15 T. 175; Paschal v. Cushman, 26 T. 75.

The compensation received for homestead property condemned by a city while occupied by the widow could not be partitioned between the widow and decedent's heirs over her objection, but should be ordered by the court to be reinvested in another homestead. Lucas v. Lucas, 104 T. 636, 143 S. W. 1153.

— Proceeds of insurance.—Insurance money on a homestead is not subject to the payment of general debts. Cameron v. Fay, 55 T. 58; Queen Ins. Co. v. Jefferson Ice Co., 64 T. 582; Porter v. Porter, 2 App. C. C. § 434; Ward v. Goggan, 4 C. A. 274, 23 S. W. 479; Insurance Co. v. Jameson, 6 C. A. 282, 25 S. W. 307; Swayne v. Chase (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 418; Chase v. Swayne, 88 T. 218, 30 S. W. 1049, 53 Am. St. Rep. 742; Traders' Ins. Co. v. Chase, 11 C. A. 13, 31 S. W. 1103; Continental Ins. Co. v. Chase (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 602.

Proceeds of a fire insurance policy on a building which is a part of a homestead are exempt from the payment of the husband's debts, except purchase money of a homestead and taxes thereon. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

— Property purchased with proceeds.—Where the owner of a homestead sold the same and applied proceeds to payments of liens on other land, in improving it, he could claim part of it, which was of no greater value than that sold as a homestead. Leland v. Chamberlin (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 435.

Three parcels of land constituting one tract of less than 200 acres, on which a debtor moved, intending to make the same his homestead, held not subject to execution. Schneider v. Dorsey (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1029.

Judgment creditor held not to have acquired a lien on certain land purchased by judgment debtor with proceeds of a sale of his homestead. Ellis v. Light (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 551.

Where a judgment debtor sold his home before the filing by the judgment creditor of an abstract of a justice's judgment in the office of the county clerk, and bought 80 acres of land, which he intended to be his homestead, held, that the 80 acres was the debtor's homestead and the judgment was not a lien thereon. First State Bank of Emory v. Allen (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 747.

Art. 3788. [2397] [2337] Property exempt to others than families.—The following property shall be reserved to persons who are not constituents of a family, exempt from attachment, execution and every other species of forced sale:

1. A lot or lots in a cemetery, held for the purpose of sepulture.
2. All wearing apparel.
3. All tools, apparatus and books belonging to any trade or profession.
4. One horse, saddle and bridle.
5. Current wages for personal services. [Act Aug. 15, 1887, p. 127, sec. 2. P. D. 6834. Const., art. 16, sec. 28.]

See Const. art. 16, § 49.

Wearing apparel.—A diamond stud worn continuously and used for fastening a shirt front is "wearing apparel" and exempt. In re Smith (D. C.) 96 Fed. 832.

A diamond ring worn on the finger is exempt. First Nat. Bank v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 177.

Tools and apparatus belonging to trade or profession.—A bicycle used by an architect is not exempt from forced sale. Smith v. Horton, 19 C. A. 28, 46 S. W. 401.

A single man, who is a land, loan, and insurance agent, is not entitled to a buggy and harness as exempt from execution as tools and apparatus belonging to his trade and profession. Cates v. McClure, 27 C. A. 459, 66 S. W. 224.

A typewriter is not exempt, as a tool belonging to the profession of a physician, though he uses it in correspondence and advertising his business. Massie v. Atchley, 28 C. A. 114, 66 S. W. 582.

— Furniture in restaurant.—Furniture used in a restaurant business such as dishes, ranges, counters, stools and the like is not exempt from forced sale under this article. Stone v. Schneider-Davis Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 134.

Cemetery lots exempt from forced sale.—See Art. 767.

Art. 3789. [2398] [2338] Ferryboat, etc.—There shall be reserved to every ferryman exempt from attachment, execution and every other species of forced sale, except as hereinafter provided, one ferryboat, keel or flatboat; used as a ferryboat, with the necessary tackle for operating the same, not exceeding in value five hundred dollars; but such exemption shall not apply to any recovery for damages sustained by the negligence or other improper conduct on the part of such ferryman. [Act Feb. 13, 1858, p. 21, sec. 1. P. D. 3802.]

Art. 3790. [2399] [2339] Public property of counties, cities and towns exempt.—The property of counties, cities and towns, owned and held only for public purposes, such as public buildings and the sites therefor, fire engines and the furniture thereof, and all property used and intended for extinguishing fires, public grounds and other property devoted exclusively to the use and benefit of the public, shall also be exempt from forced sale; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent the enforcement of the vendor's lien, the mechanic's or builder's lien, or other liens existing on the eighteenth day of April, 1876, when the existing constitution went into effect. [Const., art. 9, sec. 9.]

See Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Property exempt.—Property of a city not held for public purposes is subject to sale under execution against a city. City of Laredo v. Nalle, 65 T. 362; City of Sherman v. Williams, 84 T. 422, 19 S. W. 606, 31 Am. St. Rep. 66; City of Laredo v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 482.

No equitable lien is created on fund due a contractor in hands of a county, by reason of actual notice of claim of materialman for material furnished the contractor for the construction of a county courthouse. Herring-Hall-Marvin Co. v. Kroeger, 23 C. A. 672, 57 S. W. 980.

The property of a religious and charitable hospital is not exempt from execution, though services are given free to those who cannot pay, and all sums received are expended in maintenance of the establishment. Armendarez v. Hotel Dieu (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1030.

Road work.—The construction of roads is a public work and laborers and materialmen have no lien. National Bank of Denison v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1123.

Art. 3791. [2400] [2340] Public libraries.—All public libraries shall be exempt from attachment, execution and every other species of forced sale. [Act Aug. 15, 1870, p. 127, sec. 2. P. D. 6834.]

Art. 3792. [2401] [2341] Homestead exemption does not apply, when.—The exemption of the homestead provided for in this chapter shall not apply where the debt is due:

1. For the purchase money of such homestead or a part of such purchase money.

2. For taxes due thereon.

3. For work and material used in constructing improvements thereon; but in this last case such work and material must have been contracted for in writing, and the consent of the wife, if there be one, must have been given in the same manner as is by law required in making a sale and conveyance of the homestead. [Const., art. 16, sec. 50.]

Purchase money.—The homestead exemption cannot prevail against the enforcement of the purchase-money therefor. The husband can settle and adjust the indebtedness for the purchase-money by a rescission of the contract, by reconveying the land to the vendor without being joined by his wife. De Bruhl v. Maas, 54 T. 474; Roy v. Clarke, 75 T. 29, 12 S. W. 845; Clitus v. Langford, 24 S. W. 325; McCarty v. Brackenridge, 1 C. A. 170, 20 S. W. 997. See Lippencott v. York, 24 S. W. 275, 86 T. 276.

Where a deed conveying land by its terms reserves a lien upon the property to secure the payment of a specific sum of money, a homestead right is not acquired by the purchaser as against the lien, though the sum named constitutes no part of the purchase money proper. Berry v. Boggess, 62 T. 239.

A vendor's lien on a homestead, acquired by virtue of a void transfer of title to one having valid title, cannot be foreclosed. Hayes v. Taylor, 17 C. A. 449, 43 S. W. 314.

A note which also reserves a vendor's lien given to cover accrued interest on a vendor's lien note on the homestead constitutes a valid lien. Green v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 6.

In action on vendor's lien note, held, that land was homestead was immaterial. Bond v. National Exch. Bank (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 71.

A vendor's purchase money lien on land is valid, though the land was purchased and used as a homestead. Lennox v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1076.

An instruction that a purchase-money lien reserved in notes was valid, notwithstanding the defense of homestead, held erroneous under the evidence. Evans v. Daniel, 25 C. A. 362, 60 S. W. 1012.

Where a lien appearing to be for the purchase is created on land of a homestead character, a good-faith purchaser of such lien may enforce it. Jones v. Male, 26 C. A. 181, 62 S. W. 827.

Evidence held to show that notes recited as consideration for deed were given in payment for the property, and therefore that vendor retained the legal title until their payment; a vendor's lien being reserved. Walsh v. Ford, 27 C. A. 573, 66 S. W. 854.

Action by a vendor held to be to enforce a debt for purchase money to which the homestead rights of defendants were subject, and not to enforce a lien on a homestead created without the wife's consent. Naquin v. Texas Savings & Real Estate Inv. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 908.

On release of lien on homestead during life of wife, the wife's rights held to vest in her free of lien, and on her death her heirs will take free of lien. Boles v. Walton, 32 C. A. 595, 74 S. W. 81.

A homestead right held not superior to a prior lien for purchase money. Smith v. Owen, 49 C. A. 51, 107 S. W. 929.

A homestead is subject to sale on foreclosure of purchase price notes at the suit of a bona fide assignee thereof. Hightower Bros. v. W. F. Taylor Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 621.

Defendant had a vendor's lien upon a number of lots, and a bank had a mortgage upon a part of them. Defendant released two lots not included in the bank's mortgage. Held, that the fact that the lots released were the homestead of the purchaser did not prevent the release from inuring to the benefit of the bank. First State Bank v. Cox (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1.

One who paid the notes representing the price of a homestead could enforce a mortgage given by the owners to secure the money advanced. Parker v. Bushong (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 281.

Where real property, subject to vendor's lien notes, becomes the homestead of the purchaser, the homestead is nevertheless subject to the lien notes. Quinn v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 993.

The homestead claim is inferior to a vendor's rights to the unpaid purchase money. Evans v. Marlow (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 347.

— Loans and advances for purchase money.—A note and mortgage executed by husband and wife for money borrowed to prevent the sale of the homestead for unpaid purchase money, and which on its face declares that it is executed for the purchase money of the homestead, subrogates the holder, when the money is applied in paying the lien, to the rights of the original vendors. Such a note afterwards renewed for a larger amount and including money not used to satisfy the vendor's lien is still entitled to a lien on the homestead for the amount used in discharging the original vendor's lien. Hicks v. Morris, 57 T. 658; Joiner v. Perkins, 59 T. 302; Warhund v. Merritt, 60 T. 27; Bowles v. Beal, 60 T. 322; Morris v. Geisecke, 60 T. 635.

The husband can incur the homestead lots for unpaid purchase money by mortgage with right of possession, the consent of the wife not being a prerequisite. Archhold v. B. C. Evans Co., 11 C. A. 138, 32 S. W. 795.

A mortgage on the homestead to secure a loan of money, a part of which was used to take up a vendor's lien note and in improving the property, is void. A homestead cannot be subject to a lien, except in the manner provided by the constitution. Building & Loan Ass'n v. Logan (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1088.

One seeking to avoid foreclosure of mortgage on homestead held required to tender payment of valid portion of debt represented by loan used in paying vendor's lien on the homestead. Dixon v. National Loan & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 541.

Where a purchaser of realty pays the price and then borrows from the vendor, the lien in the deed for such borrowed money is valid. Jones v. Male, 26 C. A. 181, 62 S. W. 827.

A mortgage executed to secure money to pay for the land mortgaged can be enforced against a claim of homestead. Crow v. Kellman (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 564.

Defense of homestead held not available against a note given by owner of homestead. Johnston v. Arrendale, 30 C. A. 504, 71 S. W. 45.

A trust deed on a homestead to secure money obtained to buy the lot and erect the building held a valid lien, under Const. art. 16, § 50. Bayless v. Standard Savings & Loan Ass'n, 39 C. A. 353, 87 S. W. 872.

Commissions paid to procure a loan for the purpose of a homestead, constituting no part of the original contract for the purchase, cannot be secured by a lien on the homestead. James v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 679.

Taxes.—A special assessment against a homestead for street paving is not a tax within the meaning of the constitution authorizing the homestead to be sold for taxes due thereon. Lovenberg v. Galveston, 17 C. A. 169, 42 S. W. 1024.

A sale of a homestead for a greater amount of taxes than could legally be assessed against it, is void. Hayes v. Taylor, 17 C. A. 449, 43 S. W. 314.

The wife is not a necessary party in a tax suit to foreclose a lien on the homestead. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1036.

A penalty cannot, under the constitution, be imposed on a homestead in addition to "taxes due thereon." Toepperwein v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 699.

Improvements.—No forced sale of a homestead, since the adoption of the constitution of 1876, can be made for work done and materials furnished in constructing improvements on it, unless the contract therefor is in writing, and the consent of the wife given thereto under the formalities required in making a conveyance. Barnes v. White, 53 T. 628.

The lien upon the homestead exists only when the material, etc., for which a note is given was furnished under a previous contract duly executed. A contract made and acknowledged afterwards does not give a lien on the homestead. Taylor v. Huck, 65 T. 238; Reese v. Corlew, 60 T. 70.

As to lien on homestead for improvements, see Lippencott v. York, 86 T. 283, 24 S. W. 275; Walters v. Association, 29 S. W. 51, 8 C. A. 500; Cameron v. Gebhard, 85 T. 610, 22 S. W. 1033, 34 Am. St. Rep. 832; Luzenburg v. Association, 29 S. W. 237, 9 C. A. 261; Heady v. Association (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 468; Walker v. House (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 82; Lignoski v. Crooker, 86 T. 324, 24 S. W. 278, 788; Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Paschall, 12 C. A. 613, 34 S. W. 1001.

The lien of a deed of trust, in which the wife did not join, to secure a debt for improvements on the property, held superior to a subsequent homestead claim in her favor. Heatherly v. Little (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 445.

A mere change of the plans in the construction of homestead improvements under a contract will not vitiate the contract. Banks v. House (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1022.

Under contract to improve lot intended by owner as a homestead, mechanic's lien limited by homestead rights of husband and wife. Sproule v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 693.

Materialmen who possessed knowledge sufficient to put men of ordinary prudence on inquiry as to the intention of the owner to occupy the building as a homestead, held not entitled to mechanics' liens on the property. Haldeman v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 1040.

Testimony in a suit to foreclose a deed of trust on a homestead held proper to establish the validity of a mechanic's lien, which was material and necessary to sustain the deed. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Goforth, 94 T. 259, 59 S. W. 871.

For a contract to give a mechanic's lien on a homestead, held, that it was enough that it was executed and acknowledged, without acknowledgment of the notes called for by it, or registration of it or the notes. Moreno v. R. B. Spencer & Bro., 37 C. A. 69, 82 S. W. 1054.

Where a husband and wife executed a note to secure a mechanic's lien on their homestead, the husband, without the consent of his wife, could not renew the note, which was about to be barred by limitations. Sudduth v. Du Bose, 42 C. A. 226, 93 S. W. 235.

A wife held estopped to deny the authority of her husband to declare the completion of a building contract on which declaration a trustee was authorized to deliver certain notes secured by a mechanic's lien on the homestead to the contractors. Roane v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 782.

Market value of lumber held immaterial issue. Mabry v. Citizens' Lumber Co., 47 C. A. 443, 105 S. W. 1156.

One held entitled to enforce a lien against a homestead for an improvement thereon. Hicks v. Texas Loan & Investment Co., 51 C. A. 298, 111 S. W. 784.

Under the statute giving a lien on a homestead for improvements, both the contract and the employment of the work and material on the homestead in compliance therewith are made essential to the lien. Murphy v. Williams, 103 T. 155, 124 S. W. 900.

— Loans and advances for improvements.—As to the mode of creating a lien upon the homestead, see Lippencott v. York, 24 S. W. 275, 86 T. 276.

Money advanced to pay for labor and material in the erection of a dwelling house as a homestead can be secured by a lien on such property. This comes within the exception to article 16, section 50, of the constitution. Pioneer Savings Loan Co. v. Everheart, 18 C. A. 192, 44 S. W. 885.

One who loaned money to pay contractors and materialmen for the erection of a building on defendant's homestead held not entitled to a mechanic's lien therefor. First Nat. Bank v. Campbell, 24 C. A. 160, 58 S. W. 628.

Where the purchaser of realty pays the price and then borrows from the vendor, who obtains a lien for the loan, the purchaser does not acquire title by such payment and by making slight improvements, so as to defeat such lien by a claim of homestead. Jones v. Male (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 827.

For a mere loan of money a lien cannot be created on a homestead. Murphy v. Williams (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 412.

One advancing to a contractor money on notes secured by a lien on a homestead to enable the owner to improve the sale held entitled to a lien thereon to the amount of the advances. Id.

Where a husband and wife gave notes secured by a lien on the homestead to obtain money to improve the homestead and the money was used for such improvements, the lender was entitled to the lien. Id.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, a deed of trust on a homestead, in so far as it concerns money lent the owner to improve the property, although it was afterward in fact used for that purpose, was void, since this was not a contract in writing for work and materials used in improvements on the property. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 633.

Attorney's fees.—Homestead held liable to claim for attorney fees, where creditor is obliged to litigate his right to a lien. Sproule v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 693.

A stipulation for attorney's fees in a mechanic's lien note held enforceable against the property. American Mut. Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Harn (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 74.

Attorney's fees provided for in a mortgage on the homestead to secure the costs of improvements thereon cannot be enforced against the homestead. Harn v. American Mut. Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n, 95 T. 79, 65 S. W. 176.

Attorney's fees provided for in a building contract executed by a husband and wife for the improvement of the homestead are not a lien on the homestead, though the contract gives a mechanic's and materialman's lien thereon for money due the contractor. American Mut. Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Daugherty, 27 C. A. 430, 66 S. W. 131.

A provision in a contract for the erection of a house on a homestead, giving an attorney's fee on foreclosure of a mechanic's lien, held invalid. Summerville v. King (Sup.) 84 S. W. 643.

Pre-existing liens.—The husband has the right in good faith to convey the community homestead in settlement of a valid lien thereon, or to adjust it as he sees proper, without being joined with his wife. White v. Sheppard, 16 T. 172; Clements v. Lacey, 51 T. 160; Hicks v. Morris, 57 T. 658; Wheatley v. Griffin, 60 T. 212; Investors' Mortg. Sec. Co. v. Loyd, 11 C. A. 449, 33 S. W. 750.

The husband may adjust liens on the homestead and substitute a new lien therefor. Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 151; Gillum v. Collier, 53 T. 592; De Bruhl v. Maas, 54 T. 487; Hicks v. Morris, 57 T. 662; Morris v. Geisecke, 60 T. 635; Baker v. Collins, 23 S. W. 493, 4 C. A. 520.

Where the land claimed as a homestead is charged with equities and incumbrances antedating the purchase, the husband, acting in good faith, has the right to adjust such equities and incumbrances by substituting for them a new lien on the land. Robinson v. Doss, 53 T. 502.

A homestead right is subordinated to a lien on the premises when dedicated as a homestead. Claybrooks v. Kelly, 61 T. 634; Gage v. Neblet, 57 T. 374; Wright v. Straub, 64 T. 64; Brooks v. Chatham, 57 T. 31; Warhund v. Merritt, 60 T. 24.

A person was living on rented premises, intended to purchase them for a homestead, and did so purchase, but prior thereto a judgment was rendered against him. Held, that his right of homestead was superior to the lien of the judgment. Freiberg v. Walzem, 85 T. 264, 21 S. W. 60, 34 Am. St. Rep. 808.

Occupation of land as a homestead will not defeat a prior lien. McCandless v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 1112.

A judgment lien cannot be extended to the homestead. But a judgment lien once fixed is superior to a subsequently acquired homestead right. Wallis v. Wendler, 27 C. A. 235, 65 S. W. 44.

A deed of trust to certain land held to relate back to the date of the agreement to give the same, and therefore prior to a homestead claim arising after the date of such agreement. Ferguson v. Walter Connally & Co., 33 C. A. 245, 76 S. W. 609.

Land conveyed by deed of trust to secure a debt held not relieved from the lien thereof by the fact that it subsequently became a part of the debtor's homestead. Id.

Plaintiffs held precluded from asserting a homestead claim to land as against one holding prior equities and incumbrances thereon. Cahill v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 281.

The purchaser of a homestead acquired it unaffected by the lien of a judgment against the grantor. Howard v. Mayher, 39 C. A. 529, 88 S. W. 409.

A trust deed held to create a lien superior to the homestead right, though the land was afterwards actually used as a homestead. Watson v. City Nat. Bank of Texarkana, 56 C. A. 138, 119 S. W. 915.

The lien of an execution is superior to homestead rights subsequently acquired by the debtor. Id.

Any homestead interest held subject to rights under a contract made prior to acquisition of such interest. Parriss v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 199, 122 S. W. 399.

Mechanics' liens on homesteads.—See Art. 5631.

Art. 3793. [2402] [2342] Exemptions not to override claims for rent, etc.—The exemption of personal property provided for in this chapter shall not apply when the debt is due for rents and advances made by a landlord to his tenant, under the provisions of title eighty, or to other debts which are secured by a lien on such property. [Act April 2, 1874, p. 56, sec. 1.]

Mortgage or lien.—A sale of exempt property under execution is not justified by the claim that it was subject to a lien for the debt on which execution was issued when such lien was not foreclosed by the judgment. McGaughy v. Meek, 1 App. C. C. § 1196.

Personal property exempt from forced sale is subject to a mortgage or lien given by the owner. Rose v. Martin (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 284.

Costs.—A municipal ordinance prohibiting stock from running at large held to empower the holding of animals, exempt from execution, found running at large, for the costs and compensation provided for in the ordinance. Thompson v. City of Brownwood, 44 C. A. 623, 98 S. W. 938.

	3818. Personal property may be designated.

Article 3794. [2403] [2343] Voluntary designation of, and who may set aside, homestead in the country.—When the homestead of a family, not being in a town or city; is a part of a larger tract or tracts of land than is exempt from forced sale as such homestead, it shall be lawful for the head of the family to designate and set apart the homestead, not exceeding two hundred acres, to which the family is entitled under the constitution and laws of this state. [Act May 7, 1873, p. 64, sec. 1, et seq. P. D. 6994a, et seq.]

Designation of rural homestead out of part of larger tract.—Where the homestead of 200 acres is a part of a larger tract, the husband, acting in good faith, can define the homestead and mortgage the excess. Mackey v. Wallace, 26 T. 526; Holleman v. Smith, 39 T. 357; Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 32; Slavin v. Wheeler, 61 T. 658; McDannell v. Ragsdale, 71 T. 26, 18 S. W. 625, 10 Am. St. Rep. 753; Freeman v. Hamlin, 1 C. A. 163, 21 S. W. 1019; Mitchell v. Nix, 1 U. C. 126; Cervenka v. Dyches (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 316.

Courts cannot control the designation of a rural homestead out of a large tract, so as to include land never used or claimed as homestead by the family. Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019.

As to designation as homestead of part of a large tract of land, see Cervenka v. Dyches (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 316.

When the homestead is on a tract of land exceeding 200 acres, and the owner thereof owns another tract of land not connected with the homestead tract and in no way used for the purposes of a home, the head of the family cannot designate a part of the homestead tract and the piece not contiguous—and not used for the purposes of the home—as his homestead, so as to entitle him to mortgage the part of the homestead tract left out of the designation. If, however, the detached had been used for the purposes of a home in connection with the homestead tract, then he could designate 200 acres out of the two tracts so as to include all the detached portion. Affleck v. Wangemann, 93 T. 351, 55 S. W. 312.

Where a party entitled to select a certain quantity of land as a homestead selected more than he was entitled to, commissioners appointed to make partition had power to reduce the homestead to the proper amount by cutting off such part of the land as they saw fit. Robb v. Robb (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 125.

Fact that designation of homestead was planned, prepared, and executed at instance of mortgagee held not to affect validity of mortgage. Pickett v. Gleed, 39 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

The head of a family, residing on a tract of more than 200 acres of rural land, may designate a 200-acre tract therefrom as a homestead. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1003.

The purpose of this and the succeeding article is to provide a means by which a homestead may be designated out of a larger tract, but the husband is not limited by these articles from otherwise making the designation, the only limitation being that he cannot exclude his residence. Morris v. Pratt, 53 C. A. 181, 116 S. W. 647.

The purpose of the statute in allowing a homesteader to designate in good faith, out of a larger tract, a particular tract actually used as a homestead is to locate the homestead within the boundaries of the land so designated, and to exclude other lands from the homestead claim, and a designation of a particular tract as a homestead is not invalid as to the claimant or creditors because the tracts designated contained in excess over the 200 acres allowed by statute, since the excess would not be exempted from execution sale, and could be set aside, as provided by law, in case of levy. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 619.

— Urban homesteads.—The provisions of this chapter have no application to homesteads in towns and cities. Pellat v. Decker, 72 T. 578, 10 S. W. 696; Mortgage Co. v. Norton, 71 T. 683, 10 S. W. 301.

Wife's consent to designation.—When there is an excess of land in a rural homestead, the homestead may be designated by the husband, but in such designation he cannot renounce the actual homestead,—that is, the place of residence. Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019.

Where the husband designates the land used for homestead purposes as a homestead, it is binding on him and his wife, though done without her knowledge and though the designation included his wife's separate land, and thereby excluded better lands of his own, more advantageously located. Brin v. Anderson, 25 C. A. 323, 60 S. W. 780.

On an issue as to whether property was the homestead of plaintiff and wife, it was proper to charge that the husband alone has the right to designate the homestead. Evens v. Daniel, 25 C. A. 362, 60 S. W. 1012.

Designation of certain lands as homestead by husband alone held binding. Anderson v. Brin (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 838.

When the husband, as the head of his family sets apart a homestead, it is not essential to the validity of the designation that it be signed by the wife, or, in the absence of fraud, that it be assented to or concurred in by her. Pickett v. Gleed, 39 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

A husband can designate mortgaged land as a homestead, and the wife need not sign the designation nor acknowledge the same, under this article and Arts. 3795 and 3796. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1009.

The husband may choose the homestead, regardless of the wishes of the wife. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

The husband has the right to choose the homestead for the family. White v. Cowles (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 982.

Effect of designation.—If a husband and wife make a formal declaration that their homestead consists of a less number of acres than are exempted from forced sale, such declaration will not operate to reduce their homestead, when a larger number of acres, not exceeding 200, are in fact occupied as a homestead. Radford v. Wood, 65 T. 471.

The designation of a particular place as a business homestead is binding on the wife, and prevents the assertion of another place as such homestead as against third parties who acted upon the former in good faith. Parrish v. Frey, 18 C. A. 271, 44 S. W. 322.

The homestead character of an orchard, intended for family use and located within a reasonable distance of the family residence, held not removed by a homestead designation in which it was not included. Brin v. Anderson, 25 C. A. 323, 60 S. W. 778.

Under the statute permitting the designation of a homestead out of a large tract, the fact that the designation included more than the 200 acres allowed by statute would not invalidate the homestead as to such 200 acres. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 619.

Setting apart homestead other exemptions of decedent.—See Title 52, Chapter 18.

Art. 3795. [2404] [2344] Mode of setting it apart.—The party desiring so to designate and set apart the homestead shall file for record with the clerk of the county court of the county in which the land, or a part thereof, may be, an instrument of writing containing a description by metes or bounds, or other sufficient description to identify it, of the homestead so claimed by him, stating the name of the original grantee and the number of acres, and, if more than one survey, the number of acres in each.

Necessity and sufficiency of designation.—A head of a family by living upon a tract of land of less than 200 acres thereby sufficiently designates such tract as a homestead, even if other lands are owned by the head of the family. Coates v. Caldwell, 71 T. 19, 8 S. W. 922, 10 Am. St. Rep. 725.

Written declaration in a mortgage that the homestead was not on the mortgaged tract, but was on another, held a sufficient designation of a homestead. American Freehold Land Mortg. Co. v. Dulock (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 172.

Declarations by a husband, on mortgaging one of two properties, indicating his intention to hold the other as his homestead, only bind the wife and render the mortgage valid in case the unmortgaged property is then used as a homestead. Parrish v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1044.

Evidence held to authorize a finding that certain land was impressed with a homestead character. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1003.

Designation of homestead held not affected by tax sale so as to require new designation after redemption. Bente v. Sullivan, 52 C. A. 454, 115 S. W. 350.

One can designate a homestead out of a larger tract by executing and acknowledging a deed of trust upon the excess in acreage of land owned by him over the 200 acres which he was entitled to hold as his homestead. Of course the 200 acres must include his residence. Morris v. Pratt, 53 C. A. 181, 116 S. W. 647.

Art. 3796. [2405] [2345] Instrument to be recorded, etc.—Such instrument shall be signed by the party and acknowledged or proved as other instruments for record, and shall state that the party has designated and set apart as his homestead the tract or tracts of land so claimed by him; and such instrument shall be recorded by the clerk in the record of deeds of said county.

Art. 3797. [2406] [2346] Excess over homestead subject to execution.—Where the owner of such a homestead, part of a larger tract, as is described in article 3794, has failed to designate and set apart his homestead as provided in the three preceding articles, the excess of such tract or tracts of land over and above the homestead exemption may be partitioned and separated from such homestead and subjected to levy and sale under execution, if otherwise subject, as hereinafter directed. [Id.]

Execution sale of excess.—The excess over 200 acres of a rural homestead may be sold under execution by a levy and sale of the debtor's interest in the whole. See following articles; also Art. 3817. Beall v. Hollingsworth (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 881.

Transfer of excess.—See notes under Art. 3786.

Art. 3798. [2407] [2347] Owner to be notified to set apart, etc.—The sheriff or constable holding an execution against the owner of such excess of land, over and above his exempted homestead, and not separated and partitioned therefrom, may, on his own motion, and shall, if required by the plaintiff in execution, his agent or attorney, notify the defendant in execution to designate and set apart his homestead from the remainder of the land so owned and occupied by him, and that on his failure to do so within ten days the sheriff or constable will proceed to have such partition made as provided by law. [Id.]

Art. 3799. [2408] [2348] Notice, what.—The notice mentioned in the preceding article shall be written or printed, and shall be signed by the sheriff or constable. [Id.]

Art. 3800. [2409] [2349] Service of notice.—Such notice may be served on the defendant by the sheriff or constable by reading the same to him, or by leaving a copy of the same at his place of residence, with some person over fourteen years of age. [Id.]

Art. 3801. [2410] [2350] Return of service.—The sheriff or constable shall return said notice to the court from which the execution issued, with his return indorsed thereon, showing how he executed the same. [Id.]

Art. 3802. [2411] [2351] Return prima facie evidence.—The notice and return indorsed thereon shall be filed by the proper officer of the court, and shall be prima facie evidence of the facts stated. [Id.]

Art. 3803. [2412] [2352] Defendant may designate his homestead.—On the service of such notice, the defendant in execution shall have the right, within ten days thereafter, to designate and set apart his homestead from any excess of land owned by him, and deliver the same to the sheriff or constable. [Id.]

Art. 3804. [2413] [2353] Mode of making designation by defendant.—The designation and setting apart so made by the defendant shall be such as is required by articles 3795 and 3796. [Id.]

Art. 3805. [2414] [2354] Designation to be recorded.—The sheriff or constable shall deliver the designation or setting apart of the homestead so made to the clerk of the county court of the county in which such homestead, or a part thereof, is, and such clerk shall forthwith record the same in the record of deeds of his said county. [Id.]

Art. 3806. [2415] [2355] Effect of, when made by defendant.—Such designation and setting apart of the homestead made by the defendant under any of the preceding articles shall operate as a relinquishment of all right of homestead in the excess of land so partitioned from the homestead, and shall be binding on the defendant, and all others in privity with him, and the same, or a certified copy of the record thereof, shall be admitted in evidence of the facts stated therein. [Id.]

Art. 3807. [2416] [2356] Defendant failing, officer to appoint commissioners.—If the defendant in execution shall fail or refuse, within ten days after such notice, to so designate and set apart his homestead, the sheriff or constable holding such execution shall, at the earliest practicable time, summon either verbally or in writing three disinterested freeholders of the county, neighbors of the defendant in execution, as commissioners to designate for the defendant his homestead. [Id.]

Art. 3808. [2417] [2357] Commissioners to designate homestead.—The commissioners shall, as soon as practicable, proceed to partition the homestead of the defendant from the remainder of the tract or tracts, and may, if they deem it necessary, call in a surveyor to assist them. The action of such commissioners shall be reduced to writing and signed by them, or a majority of them, and shall be sworn to before some officer authorized to administer oaths, which shall be sufficient to admit the same to record. [Id.]

Art. 3809. [2418] [2358] Requisites of designation by commissioners.—The designation of the homestead by such commissioners shall contain all the requisites prescribed for a designation and setting apart by the defendant, and, in addition thereto, shall state that the commissioners making the same were summoned by the sheriff or constable holding said execution to perform such duty and that the designation of the homestead made by them is fair and just to the best of their judgment and belief. [Id.]

Art. 3810. [2419] [2359] To be returned and recorded; effect of.—The commissioners shall return their said designation to the sheriff or constable, who shall deliver the same to the clerk of the county court to be recorded; and such designation, or a certified copy thereof, shall have the same effect as if the defendant had made the same under the provisions of this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 3811. [2420] [2360] Sheriff's return.—Whenever a homestead is designated under the provisions of this chapter, the sheriff or constable holding said execution shall make due return thereon, showing:

1. That notice to designate his homestead was given to the defendant in execution, referring to said notice and return thereon, which shall be returned with said execution.

2. That the designation of his homestead was delivered to him by the defendant, and has been filed by him with the county clerk, stating the dates of such delivery and filing.

3. If the defendant has failed or refused to deliver to him the designation of his homestead within the time prescribed by law, the return shall show that fact, and also that commissioners were duly appointed by him, and that the designation made by such commissioners was filed by him with the clerk of the county court, stating the times when said acts were done; and such return shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated. [Id.]

Art. 3812. [2421] [2361] Compensation of commissioners and surveyor.—The commissioners shall be entitled to receive for their services the sum of two dollars per day, and the surveyor the sum of five dollars per day, to include pay for chain carriers. [Id.]

Art. 3813. [2422] [2362] Fees of clerk, etc.—The sheriff or constable and clerk shall, for their services, be entitled to such fees as are, or may be, allowed by law. [Id.]

Art. 3814. [2423] [2363] Fees, etc., taxed as costs.—Such fees and expenses shall be taxed as part of the costs of the execution against the defendant and collected as other costs. [Id.]

Art. 3815. [2424] [2364] Excess to be sold.—Whenever the homestead of the defendant in execution has been designated in either of the modes prescribed in this chapter, the officer holding said execution may proceed to sell the excess over and above the homestead, in accordance with the law governing sales under execution. [Id.]

Art. 3816. [2425] [2365] Defendant may change, etc., but, etc.—The defendant may, at any time after his homestead has been designated and set apart in either of the modes pointed out in this chapter, change the boundaries of his said homestead by an instrument executed and recorded in the manner provided for in articles 3795 and 3796, but such change shall not impair the rights of parties acquired prior to such change.

Rights of mortgagee.—Under this article, a change of the boundaries of a homestead would not affect the rights of a mortgagee in land, included within the boundaries after the change, which had accrued theretofore, so that he could enforce his lien as to such land. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 619.

Art. 3817. [2426] [2366] Provisions of this chapter cumulative.—The provisions of this chapter in regard to the designation of the homestead are cumulative, and shall not be construed so as to interfere with, or abrogate, any other mode or remedy now known to the law for subjecting the excess of the homestead tract of land over and above the exemption to forced sale, or any mode known to the law for producing partition by the purchaser at such execution sale, between himself and the owner of the homestead. [Id.]

Designation after execution sale.—A debtor can designate by metes and bounds his 200-acre homestead out of a larger tract in which his interest has been sold under execution. Beall v. Hollingsworth (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 881.

Marshaling assets.—As to marshaling of assets where land is subject to homestead rights and a mortgage. Henkel v. Bohenke, 26 S. W. 645, 7 C. A. 16.

In order to protect a homestead, mortgagor held entitled to have land purchased at a foreclosure sale in bankruptcy proceedings first sold to satisfy a vendor's lien existing against all of the land. Deaton v. Southern Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 294.

Art. 3818. [2427] [2367] Personal property may be designated, etc.—Where there is more personal property of the same kind than is exempt from execution, the head of the family, or other person entitled to such exemption, may point out the portions to be levied on; but, if he fails to do so within a reasonable time after being requested by the officer holding the execution, such officer may make the selection for himself; but such notice shall only be necessary when the defendant is at the time to be found within the county, by leaving a copy of the same at his place of residence, with some person over fourteen years of age. [Id.]

Designation before levy.—The defendant in execution, in possession of a larger number of horses than exempt, has a right to designate those upon which the execution may be levied. Yancy v. Felker, 3 App. C. C. § 249.

Designation after levy.—Where officer levying attachment does not request defendant to select exemptions, the latter may do so at the trial. Hall v. Miller, 21 C. A. 336, 51 S. W. 36.

Marshaling assets.—Where a chattel mortgage covering exempt and nonexempt property has been recorded, the mortgagor can require the mortgagee, in foreclosing, to first exhaust the nonexempt property. Baughn v. Allen (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 207.

TITLE 56

EXPRESS COMPANIES

Art. 3819.	Express companies declared common carriers, and duties defined.	Art. 3823.	To keep general office in this state, etc.
3820.	Railroad commission to regulate rates, etc.	3824.	To furnish information to railroad commission.
3821.	Penalties against, and railroad commission to enforce.	3825.	To give notice of place of general office.
3822.	Powers of commission over, same as over railroads.

[See notes on the subject in general, at end of title.]

Article 3819. [2428] Express companies declared common carriers and duties defined.—Every person, firm or corporation which shall do the business of an express company, upon railroads or otherwise, in this state, by the carrying of any kind of property, money, papers, packages or other things, are hereby declared to be common carriers, and shall receive, safely carry and promptly deliver at the express office nearest destination every such article as may be tendered to them, and in the carriage of which they are engaged; provided, that no such company shall be compelled to carry any gunpowder, dynamite, kerosene, naphtha, gasoline, matches or other dangerous or inflammable oils, acids or materials, except under such regulations as may be prescribed by the railroad commission. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation so engaged to demand or receive for such services other than reasonable compensation. [Acts 1891, p. 48.]

Art. 3820. [2429] Railroad commission to regulate rates, etc.—The railroad commission of the state of Texas shall have power, and it shall be its duty, to fix and establish reasonable and just rates of charges for each class or kind of property, money, papers, packages and other things to be charged for and received by each express company on all such property, money, papers, packages and things which, by the contract of carriage, are to be transported by such express company between points wholly within this state, which rates or charges may be made to apply to all such companies, and may be changed or modified by said commission from time to time in such manner as may become necessary. Said commission shall have the same power to make and prescribe such rules and regulations for the government and control of such express companies as is, or may be, conferred upon said commission for the regulation of railroads.

Art. 3821. [2430] Penalties against, and railroad commission to enforce.—Every express company doing business in this state which shall demand or receive a greater compensation than that which may be prescribed and fixed by the said railroad commission for the transportation of any class or kind of property, money, papers, packages or things, shall be deemed guilty of extortion, and shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each offense; provided, that, if it shall appear that such violation was not wilful, said company shall have ten days to refund such overcharges or damages, in which case the penalty shall not be incurred. And the said commission shall have authority and it shall be its duty to sue for and recover the same in the same manner as may be prescribed by law for like suits against railroad companies.

Art. 3822. [2431] Powers of commission over, same as over railroads.—The said commission shall have authority, and it shall be its duty to call upon such express companies for reports, and investigate their books in the same manner as may be prescribed by law for the regulation of railroad companies, and the said commission shall have power and authority to institute suits, sue out such writs and process as may be applicable and authorized for the regulation of railroad companies. All laws, rules and regulations made and prescribed for the government and control of railroads, in so far as they are applicable, shall be of equal force and effect against all express companies.

Art. 3823. To keep general office in this state, etc.—Every incorporated express company shall keep a general office in this state, at some place on the line of its transportation, in which it shall keep its books, accounts and contracts, relating to express business, or copies thereof, embracing all books, papers and contracts, or copies thereof, showing the value of its property of all kinds, and the amount of all its receipts and disbursements on account of the express business done in this state. The books, papers and contracts required to be kept in said general office shall at all times be subject to inspection and examination by the officers of the state of Texas, and by any member or members of the railroad commission of Texas, or by its authorized agent, officer or employé. A failure to comply with any of the foregoing provisions of this article shall subject the offending company, and any officer, agent or employé of such company so offending, to a penalty of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars. And a failure to comply with the foregoing provision shall subject the company so offending to forfeit its charter and privileges of doing business as an express company in this state. The railroad commission of Texas shall report to the attorney general of the state the name of any company, and the officers, agents or employés thereof, violating any of the provisions of this and of articles 3824 and 3825, and any suits to recover the penalties herein prescribed, or to forfeit the charter of such express company doing business in this state, shall be instituted and prosecuted in a court having jurisdiction, in the county of Travis, in the state of Texas, by the attorney general of the state. [Acts 1897, p. 14, sec. 1.]

See Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Drew (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 810.

Art. 3824. To furnish information to railroad commission.—Any incorporated express company with its principal office in another state, and doing business as such express company in this state, is hereby required to provide and keep, in its general office in this state, a copy of its charter, and to make full annual statements of the value of all its property, including a like statement of all its indebtedness, and of all its annual receipts and expenditures as such express company, to the railroad commission of Texas, at such time or times as may be prescribed by it; which statement shall be certified to be correct, and shall be sworn to by the president and secretary, or general manager in Texas, of such company; and such company shall permit any member or members of the railroad commission of Texas, or its authorized agent, to freely examine any and all books, papers and contracts, in said office; and, should any such company, or any person in charge of said office, refuse to permit such examination, this shall be sufficient ground for the withdrawal, by this state, of its privilege of doing business as such express company in this state; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general of the state to institute and conduct suits for that purpose in a court having jurisdiction in Travis county, in the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 3825. To give notice of place of general office.—Every express company doing business as such in this state shall, within ninety days after the passage of this act, establish the general office provided for in this act, at some point on their line of transportation in this state, and shall immediately give notice in writing to the railroad commission of Texas of the place at which such general office is located, and shall, at the same time, give notice in writing to the said commission of the name and official designation of the person or persons, officer or officers, charged with the management of such general office, and shall, from time to time, give like notices in writing of any change of location of such general office, or of the person or persons, officer or officers, charged with the management. A failure to comply with any of the provisions of this article shall be sufficient cause for withdrawing from such express company the privilege of doing business as such in this state. [Id. sec. 3.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Negligence in general.—Where a person was killed by coming in contact with an express truck on a station platform and being dragged from a train and run over, the act of the servant of the express company in leaving the truck within 18 inches of the train held not the act of the express company. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wells, Fargo & Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 971.

An express company operating over a railroad owes the railway employes and all others rightfully on or near the track a duty to use ordinary care to not injure them. Wells Fargo & Co. v. McIntyre (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1196.

Express company as carrier.—Where two parties have made a contract, which is broken by one of them, the damage which the other party ought ordinarily to receive for such breach is such as arises in the usual course of things from the breach itself, or such as may be reasonably supposed to have been contemplated by both parties at the time of contracting as the probable result of its breach. Fac. Ex. Co. v. Darnell, 62 T. 639.

The consignor may maintain against the carrier an action for breach of its contract, without reference to his property in the goods shipped. Railway Co. v. Smith, 84 T. 348, 19 S. W. 509; Railway Co. v. Scott, 4 C. A. 76, 26 S. W. 239; Railway Co. v. Klepper (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 567.

An express company is responsible for damages resulting from delay in delivery of freight. Pacific Express Co. v. Black, 27 S. W. 830, 8 C. A. 363; Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Battle, 5 C. A. 532, 24 S. W. 353.

Consignee of express package held entitled to exemplary damages on malicious disregard of his rights by the express company. Gary v. Wells Fargo & Co.'s Express (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 845.

The fact that an express company had notice of plaintiff's connection with medicine shipped to her agent, subsequent to shipping, does not make it liable for special damages for failure to promptly deliver thereafter. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Redman (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 677.

In an action against an express company for failure to promptly deliver medicine shipped to plaintiff's agent, evidence held insufficient to show notice of plaintiff's connection with the shipment. Id.

Evidence examined and held insufficient to prove a contract with a carrier to carry goods at less than the tariff rates. Wells Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314.

In an action for the loss of goods shipped by express, evidence held sufficient to support a finding against the carrier on the issue of the shipper's fraud in attempting to get the goods carried for less than the established rate. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Neiman-Marcus Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 614.

Since a duty to disclose the contents of a package ordinarily does not rest on the shipper, in absence of a request by the carrier for such information, the mere failure of a shipper to state that the package contained a valuable ring did not absolve the carrier from liability for loss of the ring. Head v. Pacific Express Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 682.

Representations made by a shipper's agent to a carrier as to the nature of the goods bound the shipper to the same extent as made by himself. Id.

A reply by a shipper, in answer to an inquiry of the carrier's agent as to whether the package contained anything breakable or anything requiring it to be given special attention, that it did not, was not a false statement of the facts, though the package contained a valuable diamond ring. Id.

Though a carrier was absolved from liability as insurer because of misrepresentations by the shipper as to the nature of the goods shipped, whereby the carrier was induced to omit precautions which it would otherwise have employed, it was liable as bailee for failure to exercise ordinary care to safely deliver the property. Id.

Evidence in an action against an express company for damages for failure to promptly ship the corpse of plaintiff's husband held to sustain a finding that defendant's agent did not contract to pay the undertaker's bill. Gathright v. Pacific Express Co. (Sup.) 145 S. W. 1185, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Pacific Express Co. v. Gathright, 130 S. W. 1035.

— Authority of agent.—An express company held liable for refusal of driver to deliver express package where it ratified his conduct. Gary v. Wells Fargo & Co.'s Express (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 845.

An agent of an express company did not have authority to agree for the company to pay the undertaker's charges on a corpse and ship it. Gathright v. Pacific Express Co. (Sup.) 145 S. W. 1185, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Pacific Express Co. v. Gathright, 130 S. W. 1035.

The local agent of an express company had no authority to make a contract for a shipment from another city having an office to his own city. Id.

A station agent has authority to bind the carrier by a contract to furnish a particular kind of car for the transportation of fowls. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Hennessy (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1158.

One dealing with the agent of an express company is not bound by secret instructions given by the company to such agent. Id.

An instruction that a local express agent had no authority to bind the company by a contract to furnish a special car was properly refused; the agent having such apparent authority without reference to the carrier's usual course of business or private instructions to its employes. Id.

— Limitation of liability.—A contract with an express company for the transportation of goods, which is made in Illinois, which limits its liability, contrary to an Illinois statute, does not limit the company's liability for loss occurring outside the state. Pittman v. Pacific Exp. Co., 24 C. A. 595, 59 S. W. 949.

Where a carrier receiving a package for transportation, under a contract stipulating that in no event should it be liable beyond $50 at which sum the property was valued, failed to deliver the package, it breached its contract and became liable for the full value thereof as against the defense that payment of the full value which exceeded $50 would make it liable to prosecution for violation of the law requiring equal charges, because the charges were based on a $50 valuation. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Neiman-Marcus Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 614.

A special contract limiting a carrier's liability will not be presumed from inference, custom, or failure to object. Pacific Express Co. v. Rudman (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 268.

A provision in a bill of lading that the carrier should not be held liable beyond $50, "unless the true value is stated herein, and an extra charge paid, based upon such higher value," is not void as an attempt to arbitrarily limit liability for loss from negligence without regard to real value. Pacific Express Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 340.

Express company as employer.—Loading express matter in a car in a dangerous manner is not a breach of the duty to furnish a safe place to work, which an express company owes to a servant employed to ride in one of its cars. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Page, 29 C. A. 489, 68 S. W. 528.

Evidence held to justify a jury in finding that injuries to servant resulted from employer's negligence in failing to provide safe truck and platform, and that the injuries are permanent. Wells, Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 441.

In an action for injuries to a servant of an express company, caused by the falling of parcels from a truck, a finding that the defect in the truck was the proximate cause of the injury held unauthorized. Wells-Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle, 100 T. 577, 102 S. W. 107.

3830. Factor to render account of sales and give particulars under penalty.	3832d. Bond of.
3831. No charge allowed for mending, etc., unless the same has been actually done.	3832e. Suits on bond.
	3832f. New bond required, when.
	3832g. Bond filed, where; fees.
	3832h. Laws not repealed.
	3832i. Laws repealed.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of title.]

Article 3826. Commission merchant defined.—Any person, firm or corporation pursuing, or who shall pursue, the business of selling produce, or goods, wares or merchandise of any kind upon consignment for a commission, shall be deemed to be a commission merchant. [Acts 1907, p. 61, sec. 1.]

Factor.—A factor is one to whom goods are sent for sale on commission. The consignor is the principal holding the general property. Milburn Mfg. Co. v. Peak, 39 T. 209, 34 S. W. 102.

Where goods were shipped to be sold by the consignee, and the proceeds remitted to the consignor, there was no sale, the consignee being an agent merely. Barnes v. Darby, 18 C. A. 468, 44 S. W. 1029.

An agent employed by bankrupts to purchase cotton for them with his own funds on a salary, held a factor. Couturie v. Roensch (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 413.

Art. 3827. Bond of.—Every commission merchant is hereby required to make bond in the sum of three thousand dollars, entered into with two or more good and sufficient sureties, who are residents of this state, and who shall make affidavit before some officer authorized to administer oaths, that they in their own right, over and above all exemptions, are worth the full amount of the bond they sign as sureties, payable to the county judge of each county in which such commission merchant maintains an office, and to the successors in office of such county judge as trustees for all persons who may become entitled to the benefits of this Act; conditioned that such commission merchant will faithfully and truly perform all agreements and contracts entered into with consignors for said produce, goods, wares or merchandise, that said commission merchant will promptly receive and sell such produce, goods, wares or merchandise, and will on receipt of such produce, goods, wares or merchandise class the same, and if such class as made by such commission merchant is not as high as that made and sent to him by the consignor, he (the commission merchant), will immediately notify the consignor of such fact and of the class made by him; and, as soon as sold will send to the consignor a full and complete account of sales of same, giving an itemized account thereof, and the price received, the dates of sales, and shall, within five days after said produce, goods, wares or merchandise are sold, send to the consignor the full amount received for the same, less the commission due said commission merchant under the contract of consignment, which bond shall be approved by the county judge of the county in which said commission merchant maintains an office, and by said county judge filed for record in the county clerk's office as chattel mortgages are now authorized to be filed by law; provided, that any commission merchant may be bonded under the provisions of this Act by a solvent surety company, doing business in this state, to be approved by the county judge under the provisions of this

Art. 3828. Bond made where; suit in same county.—Such bond shall be made and filed for record in each county in which such commission merchant maintains an office, and in which county suits may be maintained upon such bond by any person claiming to have been damaged by a breach of its condition; provided, that said bond shall not become void upon the first recovery thereon, but may be sued upon until the amount thereof is exhausted; provided, however, that when said bond by suits of recovery has been reduced to the sum of fifteen hundred dollars, that said commission merchant shall be required to enter into a new bond in the sum of three thousand dollars as required in the first instance under the provisions of this chapter; which said new bond shall be liable for all future contracts, agreements or consignments thereafter entered into by said commission merchant and consignor of such produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise, and upon failure of said commission merchant to give said new bond, as above required, he shall cease doing business in this state; provided any commission merchant, as herein defined, who shall engage in business as such commission merchant, without first making and filing the bond provided for in articles 3827 and 3828, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars. [Id.]

Art. 3829. [2432] Factors, etc., prohibited from being interested in their own sales.—No factor or commission merchant, to whom any cotton, sugar, produce or merchandise of any kind is consigned, for sale on commission or otherwise, shall purchase the same or reserve any interest whatever therein upon the sale of the same, either directly or indirectly, in his own name or in the name or through the instrumentality of another, for his own benefit or for the benefit of another, or as factor or agent of any other person, without express license from the owner or consignor of such cotton, sugar, produce or other merchandise, or some person authorized by him, given in writing so to do, under a penalty of forfeiture of one-half the value of cotton, sugar, produce or other merchandise so purchased or sold, to be recovered by the owner of the same by suit before any court of competent jurisdiction in the county where the sale took place, or wherein the offending party resides. [Act Feb. 11, 1860. P. D. 3803.]

Right to represent both buyer and seller.—A person cannot act for both buyer and seller and receive commissions from both except by consent of both parties. Tinsley v. Penniman, 12 C. A. 591, 34 S. W. 365.

Art. 3830. Factor to render account of sales and give particulars under penalty.—Upon the shipment of any produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise, consigned for sale to any factor or commission merchant, it is hereby made his duty that such commission merchant will faithfully and truly perform all agreements and contracts entered into with consignors for said produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares and [and] merchandise; that said commission merchant will promptly receive and sell such produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise, in accord with the contract of consignment and will on receipt of such produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise class the same, and if such class as made by such commission merchant is not as high as that made and sent to him by the consignor, he, (the commission merchant), will immediately notify the consignor of such fact and of the class made by him and as soon as sold will send to the consignor a full and complete account of sales of same, giving an itemized account thereof, and the price received, the dates of sales, and shall, within five days after said produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise are sold, send to the consignor the full amount received for the same, less the commission due said commission merchant under the contract of consignment; and if cotton, sugar, or other produce sold by weight, the weight of the same in gross, and the tare allowed, and be accompanied by the certificate or memorandum, signed by the weigher who weighed the same, of the weight and condition as required by law, and upon failure of the said commission merchant to comply with any one of the provisions of this article, he and the bondsmen required by this chapter shall be liable for all actual damages incurred by the consignor by reason thereof, and in addition thereto a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered by the consignor in a suit filed for said actual damages and for said penalty. [Act Feb. 11, 1860. P. D. 3804. Acts 1913, p. 178, sec. 1, amending Art. 3830, Rev. St. 1911.]

Necessity for accounting.—A commission merchant must keep and render an account. Nugent v. Martin, 1 App. C. C. 1173.

Art. 3831. [2434] No charge allowed for mending, etc., unless same has been actually done.—No commission merchant or factor shall be permitted to make any charge for mending, or patching, or roping bales, or for cooperage or repairing bales, or for labor, or hauling, or cartage, or for storage, marking or weighing, unless the same has been actually done; and, in case of any such charge, a bill of particulars shall be rendered notwithstanding any usage or custom to the contrary to make such charge, by rate or average; and the person offending against the provisions of this chapter shall be liable to a penalty of not more than five hundred nor less than one hundred dollars, to be recovered by the owner or consignor, as in the two preceding articles. [Id. P. D. 3805.]

Art. 3832. [2435] Drawbacks, rebates, etc., prohibited.—All drawbacks and rebatement of insurance, freight, transportation, carriage, wharfage, storage, compressing, baling, repairing, or for any other kind of labor or service, of or to any cotton, grain or any other produce or article of commerce, paid or allowed, or contracted for, to any common carrier, shipper, merchant, commission merchant, factor, agent or middleman of any kind, not the true and absolute owner thereof, are forever prohibited. [Const., art. 16, sec. 25.]

Art. 3832a. Prescribing the duties of a shipper.—Every consignor of produce, goods, wares or merchandise in this state consigning produce, goods, wares, merchandise to commission merchants to be sold on commission shall, when he consigns such produce, goods, wares or merchandise, send to such commission merchant a written statement in which such consignor shall state the amount, the quality or class, the condition of such produce, goods, wares or merchandise so consigned, and if said commission merchant, on receipt of same, fails to promptly notify said consignor of any objection he may have to the class, quality or quantity so consigned, then such statement shall be prima facie evidence of the fact that said consignment of such produce, goods, wares or merchandise is truly stated in said statement by the consignor to said commission merchant, provided further, that when such produce, goods, wares or merchandise is received by said commission merchant, such commission merchant shall give to the agent of the railroad or other carrier so delivering such produce, goods, wares or merchandise, a receipt for same which receipt shall state the quality, quantity, grade and condition of such produce, goods, wares or merchandise, and said agent of the railroad or other carrier shall keep such receipt on file in his office subject to the inspection of any one interested in such shipment, for six months from the date of such receipt. [Acts 1913, p. 178, sec. 1, amending Title 57, Rev. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 178, sec. 1, amends Arts. 3827, 3828, and 3830, tit. 57, ch. 1, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, so as to read as set forth by said preceding articles, and by adding to said title and chapter article "3833," etc. This article is here designated as 3832a, to distinguish it from Art. 3833, post.

Art. 3832b. Not to apply to cotton, etc.—None of the provisions of this bill shall apply to cotton, and nothing herein shall be construed as repealing or affecting any existing laws touching the subject of commission merchants or brokers as the same relates to the handling of cotton. [Id. sec. 1a.]

Art. 3832c. Livestock commission merchants defined.—That any person, firm or corporation pursuing or who shall pursue the business of selling livestock, cattle, cows, calves, bulls, steers, hogs, sheep, mules, horses, jacks and jennets, or any of them upon consignment for a commission or other charges, or who shall solicit consignments of live stock as a commission merchant or who shall advertise or hold himself out to be such, shall be deemed and held to be a livestock commission merchant within the meaning of this Act. [Acts 1913, p. 93, sec. 1.]

Art. 3832d. Bond of.—That all livestock commission merchants be and they are hereby required to make bond each in the sum of $10,000.00 entered into with two or more good and sufficient sureties, who are residents of this state, or some surety company duly and legally authorized to do business in this state, payable to the county judge of the county in which such livestock commission merchant resides or has his principal office, and to his successors in office, as trustees for all persons who may become entitled to the benefits of this Act, such bond to be filed in the county where such commission merchant has his principal office or place of business, in which county suits may be maintained on such bond and such bond shall be conditioned that such livestock commission merchant will faithfully and truly perform all agreements entered into with consignors with respects to receiving, handling, selling and making remittances and payments made to him, which bond shall be approved by the county clerk of the county in which such livestock commission merchant resides, or has principal office and by him, be filed and recorded. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 3832e. Suits on bond.—That the bond provided for by the preceding section may be sued upon and recovery had thereon by any person claiming to have been damaged by a breach of its conditions; provided, that said bond shall not become void upon the first recovery thereon, but may be sued upon until the amount thereof is exhausted. That upon the exhaustion of said bond by recoveries thereon, said livestock commission merchant shall be required to make and file a new bond conditioned as provided in section 2 [Art. 3832d] hereof. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 3832f. New bond required, when.—That if it shall come to the knowledge of the said county judge or the county clerk that either or all of the sureties on said bond are, or may become insolvent, then it shall be the duty of said county judge or said county clerk to require said live stock commission merchant to enter into, execute and deliver a new bond, as herein provided for. [Id. sec. 3a.]

Explanatory.—Section 4 of this act is purely criminal in character, and is omitted.

Art. 3832g. Bond filed, where; fees.—The bond herein mentioned shall be filed and kept by the county clerk of the county where filed, who shall receive the sum of fifty cents for each such bond, same to be paid by such commission merchant. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 3832h. Laws not repealed.—It is expressly declared that none of the provisions of title 57 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 [Arts. 3826–3832], are affected or in anywise modified or repealed by the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 3832i. Laws repealed.—That all laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith be, and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 7.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Authority to sell.—The mere fact that the owner of lands gave a land agent a list of the lands, with the net price per acre of the same, does not constitute an agency with authority to sell. White v. Templeton, 79 T. 454, 15 S. W. 483. See Graves v. Bains, 78 T. 92, 14 S. W. 256.

Authority under two instruments.—An agent having authority under two instruments may act under either. Douglas v. Baker, 79 T. 499, 15 S. W. 801.

Sale without authority.—A commission merchant selling cotton without authority is liable for the highest price during the season and after the sale. Porter v. Heath, 2 App. C. C. § 125.

A cotton factor is liable to the owner of cotton shipped to him by a cotton dealer and sold as the property of the dealer, although the factor believes it to be the property of the dealer, who is indebted to the factor for advances, the money received being applied on such advances. Kempner v. Thompson, 45 C. A. 267, 100 S. W. 351.

Revocation of authority.—The authority of a real estate broker can be revoked at any time before a sale. Neal v. Lehman, 11 C. A. 461, 34 S. W. 153.

Effect of custom.—A usage and custom among people engaged in the business of land agents and their customers, known to persons placing land in their hands for sale, is binding on them. Harrell v. Zimpleman, 66 T. 292, 17 S. W. 478; Hoefling v. Hamilton, 84 T. 517, 19 S. W. 689; Armstrong v. O'Brien, 83 T. 635, 19 S. W. 268.

In action against commission merchant on a contract for outright purchase of cattle made with defendant's agent, issue as to custom of commission merchants with reference to advance on shipments is immaterial. Greer v. First Nat. Bank of Marble Falls (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1045.

Duty and liability in general.—Where defendant's agent exercised ordinary care to obtain the fair market value of plaintiff's cattle as a factor, defendant held not liable in damages to plaintiff, although the cattle were sold for less than their market value. Drumm-Flato Commission Co. v. Union Meat Co., 33 C. A. 587, 77 S. W. 634.

Rice milling company held to owe to shipper duty of exercising ordinary diligence to sell his shipment at the best price obtainable. Bouldin v. Atlantic Rice Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 795.

A broker marketing goods on commission was not responsible for a failure of the goods to realize a profit in the market where sold, where he did not ship them with foreknowledge of their realizing no profit. Webster v. Richardson, 55 C. A. 391, 119 S. W. 142.

Liability for goods destroyed.—Brokers through whom goods were sold held not liable on an agreement that the goods should be returned to them at a certain place where the goods were destroyed by fire before they were returned there. Plotner & Stoddard v. Markham Warehouse & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 443.

Liability as to proceeds.—Fund retained by factors as the proceeds of a sale made in the course of their business held to constitute a trust fund, the character of which is not changed by a deposit thereof to their individual credit. Interstate Nat. Bank v. Claxton (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 44.

An assignee of certain drafts on a commission merchant attached to bills of lading for corn shipped held liable to the consignee for the difference between the amount paid on such drafts and the value of the corn. F. Groos & Co. v. Brewster, 34 C. A. 140, 78 S. W. 359.

Assignees of drafts on a commission merchant which had been refused by the drawee, held not entitled to object to his failure to draw other drafts on the drawers of the original drafts under a subsequent arrangement, until after corn for which the original drafts were drawn had been sold, in the absence of proof of prejudice. Id.

Plaintiff held entitled to recover from defendant proceeds of the sale of rice belonging to plaintiff, which defendant paid over to third person, without authority from plaintiff and after being notified not to do so. Post v. Houston Rice Milling Co., 35 C. A. 642, 80 S. W. 1025.

Del credere agency.—A factor selling goods under a del credere commission, it seems, is liable for the debt. Milburn Mfg. Co. v. Peak, 89 T. 209, 34 S. W. 102.

A contract by a merchant to sell goods on commission at a price fixed by the manufacturer held a contract of sale, where the merchant guarantees payment. Williams v. Drummond Tobacco Co., 17 C. A. 635, 44 S. W. 185.

Advances.—Factors held not entitled to recover from principal for money advanced to purchase goods, more than average price paid for all goods so purchased. Beakley v. Rainier (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 702.

Under the terms of a contract between a cotton factor and shipper, the factor held to have had a right to deduct a certain sum from the proceeds of sales and apply it to an advancement made by him. Kempner v. Patrick, 43 C. A. 216, 95 S. W. 51.

Interest on advances.—See notes under Art. 72.

Compensation.—An agent employed to sell land for a specified sum is entitled to commissions if he finds a person ready and willing to purchase at the price named and on the terms specified. Kennedy v. Clark, 1 App. C. C. § 843. See Burns v. Hill, 2 App. C. C. § 523.

His right to a commission is forfeited by gross neglect or misconduct. Nugent v. Martin, 1 App. C. C. § 1173.

An authority to sell land at "$7,500, net," does not entitle the agent to the entire proceeds of the sale above that sum, but entitles him to reasonable compensation only. Turnley v. Michael, 4 App. C. C. § 223, 15 S. W. 912.

A broker is entitled to his commissions when the sale is contracted (Conkling v. Krauer, 70 T. 735, 11 S. W. 117; Sullivan v. Hampton [Civ. App.] 32 S. W. 235); and his right is not defeated by his wrongful discharge (Eidson v. Saxon [Civ. App.] 30 S. W. 957; Lyle v. University Land & Investment Co. [Civ. App.] 30 S. W. 723; Montgomery v. Biering [Civ. App.] 30 S. W. 508; Byrd v. Frost [Civ. App.] 29 S. W. 46; Dunn v. Price, 28 S. W. 681, 87 T. 318; Tinsley v. Dowell, 87 T. 23, 26 S. W. 946; Graves v. Bains, 78 T. 92, 14 S. W. 256; Stringfellow v. Powers, 4 C. A. 199, 23 S. W. 313).

Effect of custom as to compensation of a factor or broker. See Harrell v. Zimpleman, 66 T. 292, 17 S. W. 478; De Cordova v. Bahn, 74 T. 643, 12 S. W. 845.

In an action to recover a commission for selling land, held, that the agent was not entitled to recover, where he acted in bad faith and in hostility to the interests of his principal. Smith v. Tripis, 21 S. W. 722, 2 C. A. 267.

A broker is not entitled to commissions for a sale not consummated or not in conformity with his instruction. O'Brien v. Gilliland, 4 C. A. 40, 23 S. W. 244. See Taylor v. Cox (Sup.) 7 S. W. 69, 16 S. W. 1063.

Where a factor was employed to sell two train loads of cattle which were shipped in one, he was not entitled to recover commissions for sale of subsequent load of cattle, the sale of which indirectly grew out of the first sale. Taylor v. Johnston, 30 C. A. 471, 70 S. W. 1022.

In an action by a broker for commissions, evidence held to support a finding of plaintiff's negligence in marketing goods as to a part only of the shipments made by him. Webster v. Richardson, 55 C. A. 391, 119 S. W. 142.

1. GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 3833. [2436] [2372] Secretary of state, commissioner general land office, and other officers to furnish copies and certificates.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state, commissioner of the general land office, comptroller, treasurer, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of insurance and banking, state librarian, adjutant general, and attorney general, to furnish any person who may apply for the same with a copy of any paper, document or record in their respective offices, and also to give certificates, attested by the seals of their respective offices, certifying to any fact or facts contained in the papers, documents or records of their offices, to any person applying for the same. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 3806.]

See note under Art. 3832a.

Art. 3834. [2437] [2373] Fees of such officers for copies and certificates.—It shall be lawful for the officers named in the preceding article to demand and receive the following fees for the services mentioned therein, except as otherwise specially provided in this chapter: [Acts 1907, p. 283. P. D. 3807.]

- For copies of any paper, document, or record in their offices, in the English language, including certificate and seal, for each hundred words..... $.15
- For copies of any paper, document, or record in their offices, in any other language than the English, including certificate and seal, for each hundred words..... .25
- For each translated copy of any paper, document, or record in their offices, including certificate and seal, for each hundred words.. .30
- For the copy of any plat or map in their offices, such fee as may be established by the officer in whose office the same is made, to be determined with reference to the amount of labor required
- For each certificate not otherwise provided for..... .50

Art. 3835. [2438] [2374] Shall not charge officers of state for copies.—Nothing contained in the two preceding articles shall authorize either of the officers therein named to demand or receive fees from any officer of the state for copies of any papers, documents, or records in their offices, or for any certificate in relation to any matter in their offices when such copies or certificates are required in the performance of any of the official duties of such officer. [Id. P. D. 3810.]

Art. 3836. [2444] [2379] Shall keep fee book and render account of fees quarterly.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state, commissioner of the general land office, comptroller, treasurer, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of insurance and banking, state librarian, adjutant general and attorney general, respectively, to keep fee books in their several offices in which they shall enter all the fees received for any of the services named in this chapter; and they shall quarterly file with the comptroller an account of all fees so received by them respectively; which account shall be verified by the affidavit of the officer rendering the same; and such officers shall also, at the end of each quarter, pay over to the treasurer of the state all money received by them respectively under the provisions of this chapter. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 3808.]

2. SECRETARY OF STATE

Art. 3837. [2439] Fees of state department.—The secretary of state, besides other fees that may be prescribed by law, is authorized and required to charge for the use of the state the following fees:

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation created for the purpose of operating or constructing a railroad, magnetic telegraph line or street railway or express company, authorized or required by law to be recorded in said department, a fee of two hundred dollars to be paid when said charter is filed; provided, that if the authorized capital stock of said corporation shall exceed one hundred thousand dollars, it shall be required to pay an additional fee of fifty cents for each one thousand dollars authorized capital stock, or fractional part thereof, after the first.

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation intended for the support of public worship, any benevolent, charitable, educational, missionary, literary or scientific undertaking, the maintenance of a library, the promotion of painting, music or other fine arts, the encouragement of agriculture or horticulture, the maintenance of public parks, the maintenance of a public cemetery not for profit, a fee of ten dollars to be paid when the charter is filed.

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation created for any other purpose, intended for mutual profit or benefit, a fee of fifty dollars shall be paid when said charter is filed; provided, that, if the authorized capital stock of said corporation shall exceed ten thousand dollars, it shall be required to pay an additional fee of ten dollars for each additional ten thousand dollars of its authorized capital stock, or fractional part thereof, after the first.

For each commission to every officer elected or appointed in this state, a fee of one dollar; and each and every state, district, county and precinct officer elected or appointed in this state is required to apply for and receive his commission; provided, that the secretary of state shall not be required to forward copies of laws to nor attest the authority of any officer in this state who fails or refuses to take out his commission as required herein.

For each official certificate, a fee of one dollar.

For each warrant of requisition, a fee of two dollars.

For every remission of fine or forfeiture, one dollar.

For copies of any paper, document or record in his office, for each one hundred words, fifteen cents.

Art. 3837
Vernon-Say
1914
Amended
36 L. P. 16

Art. 3837
Vernon Sayles
1914

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, taken out under chapter 16, title 25, Revised Statutes, (channel and dock corporations), a fee of two hundred dollars shall be paid to the secretary of state for the use and benefit of the state, which shall be paid when the charter, amendment or supplement thereto is filed for record.

For each foreign corporation obtaining permit to do business in this state shall pay fees as follows: fifty dollars for the first ten thousand dollars of its authorized capital stock, and ten dollars for each additional ten thousand dollars, or fractional part thereof; provided, that the fee required to be paid by any foreign corporation for a permit to engage in the manufacture, sale, rental, lease or operation of all kinds of cars, or to engage in conducting, operating or managing any telegraph lines in this state, shall in no event exceed ten thousand dollars; provided, however, that mutual building and loan companies, so called, whose stock is not permanent, but withdrawable, shall pay a fee of fifty dollars for the first one hundred thousand dollars, or a fractional part thereof, of its authorized capital stock, and ten dollars for each additional one hundred thousand dollars, or a fractional part thereof; and where the company is a foreign one, then the fee shall be based upon the capital invested in the state of Texas. [Acts 1907, S. S., p. 500. Acts 1905, p. 135. Acts 1889, p. 93. Acts 1889, p. 87. Acts 1883, p. 72. Acts 1909, S. S., p. 267.]

Construction and operation in general.—Under the rule that if a statute is capable of two constructions, one of which will render it valid and the other invalid, the former construction will be adopted, this article though broad enough to embrace foreign or interstate business, should be construed to apply only to domestic or intrastate business, so as not to violate the commerce clause of the federal Constitution. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 194.

A foreign corporation, not empowered to do so by the federal government, has no authority to transact a local or domestic business in a state, unless authority be granted by the state, which can impose any conditions as a prerequisite to permission to do such business, and the corporation cannot question the reasonableness or validity of the law prescribing the conditions, and hence the state could exact a fee; the sum depending upon the amount of the corporation's entire capital stock, the major portion of which was outside of the state. Id.

Under Const. art. 4, § 22, and this article, where a foreign corporation doing a local nongovernmental business in the state had not paid the fee, it was exercising a corporate power not authorized by law, and the attorney general under the constitution could proceed to prevent it from further exercising such unlawful power, regardless of what other penalty the legislature had prescribed. Id.

Indorsement on railroad bonds.—Secretary of state cannot charge fee of $1.00 for making indorsement on railroad bonds required by R. S. 1895, art. 4581i. State ex rel. G., H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Hardy, 93 T. 340, 55 S. W. 322, 323.

Amendment to charter of corporation.—When a corporation files an amendment to its charter that does not increase its capital stock, it is only required to pay the fixed fee of $100, and nothing additional. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tod, 94 T. 632, 64 S. W. 778.

Art. 3838. Minimum fees in certain cases.—The minimum fee for any foreign building and loan company shall be two hundred and fifty dollars; provided, further, that the fee required to be paid by any foreign corporation for a permit to do the business of loaning money in this state shall in no event exceed one thousand dollars. [Id.]

Art. 3839. Pending suit not affected.—Nothing in this chapter, nor in articles 1315 and 1316, shall in anywise affect any suit now pending in the name, or in behalf of, the state of Texas, as against any foreign corporation. [Id.]

Art. 3840. Fees paid in advance to secretary and by him to treasury monthly.—All fees mentioned in articles 3837 and 3838 shall be paid in advance into the office of the secretary of state, and shall be by him paid into the state treasury monthly. [Id.]

3. ATTORNEY GENERAL

Art. 3841. [2440] [2375] Fees of attorney general.—The attorney general shall be entitled to the following fees:

For each affirmance of judgment in cases to which the state may be a party involving pecuniary liabilities to the state, ten per cent on the amount collected if under one thousand dollars, and five per cent for all above that sum, to be paid out of the money when collected.

For all cases involving the forfeiture of charters, heard on appeal before the supreme court or court of appeals, twenty-five dollars.

But the whole amount of fees allowed the attorney general shall not exceed the sum of two thousand dollars per annum, and the excess of such fees over two thousand dollars per annum shall be paid into the state treasury. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 284, sec. 2.]

4. COMMISSIONER OF GENERAL LAND OFFICE

Art. 3842. [2441] [2376] Fees of commissioner of general land office.—The commissioner of the general land office is authorized and required to charge for the use of the state the following fees for issuing certificates and patents for land, to-wit:

Art. 3850. [2448] [2384] Commission allowed county judge.—There shall also be allowed the county judge a commission of one-half of one per cent upon the actual cash receipts of each executor, administrator or guardian, upon the approval of the exhibits and the final settlement of the account of such executor, administrator or guardian, but no more than one such commission shall be charged on any amount received by any such executor, administrator or guardian. [Id.]

No commission on receipts of community survivor.—The judge is not entitled to commissions on the cash receipts of a survivor in community; as, the proceeds of sales made in the management of the estate outside of the court. Mann v. Earnest, 25 S. W. 1042, 6 C. A. 606.

As member of commissioners' court.—See note under Art. 3852.

Salary as county superintendent.—See Art. 3886.

Art. 3851. [2449] [2385] Fees in lunacy cases, etc.—For every case of lunacy disposed of by the county judge, he shall receive three dollars, to be paid out of the county treasury. For each civil cause finally disposed of by the county judge, by trial or otherwise, he shall receive a fee of three dollars, to be taxed against the party cast in the suit; provided, that if the party cast in the suit has filed his oath of inability to pay costs during the progress of the cause, or be unable to pay costs, then the county judge shall be allowed by the county commissioners' court such compensation as they may deem proper, not to exceed three dollars for each state case. [Id. Acts of 1879, ch. 81, p. 91.]

Art. 3852. [2450] [2386] Compensation for ex officio services.—For presiding over the commissioners' court, ordering elections and making returns thereof, hearing and determining civil causes, and transacting all other official business not otherwise provided for, the county judge shall receive such salary from the county treasury as may be allowed him by order of the commissioners' court. [Id.]

Modification or revocation of order.—The order under this article cannot be regarded as a contract, and can be changed, modified or revoked at any time. Collingsworth County v. Myers (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 414.

Compensation as member of commissioners' court.—Although a county judge receives a salary for ex officio services, he is nevertheless entitled to $3 per day for each day he acts as a member of the commissioners' court. Farmer v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 772.

The county judge is entitled to a salary in addition to his $3 per day as a member of commissioners' court. Farmer v. Shaw, 93 T. 438, 55 S. W. 1115.

Reimbursement of expenditures.—On a county receiving a decree for the recovery of certain land purchased by the county judge, the latter held not entitled to reimbursement for money expended in connection with the land. Bell County v. Felts (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1065.

Art. 3853. [2451] [2387] Fees for testing weights and measures, etc.—For testing any steelyard, balance or beam, the county judge shall receive from the applicant a fee of fifty cents, and, for every weight or measure, ten cents. [P. D. 5358.]

Art. 3854. [2452] [2388] Fees for hiring out county convicts.—The county judge shall receive the following fees for hiring out county convicts, in all cases to be paid in advance by the party hiring a convict, the same to be repaid to the contractor or employer when demanded, out of the wages of such convict, viz.:

For every bond required to be taken.....	$ 1 00
For the examination and approval of each bond.....	50

[Act Aug. 21, p. 230, sec. 14.]

2. CLERKS OF THE DISTRICT COURT

Art. 3855. [2453] [2389] Fees of clerks of the district courts.—The clerks of the district courts shall receive for the following services in civil cases the following fees, to-wit:

[Acts 1901, p. 24.]

Constitutionality.—The provisions in the law limiting the fees and compensation of officers in counties less than 30,000 in population is not a local or special law. A law which relates to persons or things as a class is a general law, while a law which relates to particular persons or things of a class is special and comes within the constitutional prohibition. Kabelmacher v. Kabelmacher, 21 C. A. 317, 51 S. W. 353.

The act of 1897, page 5, in so far as it regulates the compensation of officers and their fees is not unconstitutional. If a law contains more than one subject not expressed in the title the law is void only as to that subject not expressed. Id.

Fees for transcript.—District clerks are entitled to 10 cents per 100 words for making transcripts on appeal. Section 7 of the act of the called session of the 25th legislature, page 12, does not apply. Kabelmacher v. Kabelmacher, 21 C. A. 317, 51 S. W. 353.

District clerks cannot charge more than 10 cents per 100 words for making transcripts in civil cases on appeal. McLennan County v. Graves, 26 C. A. 49, 62 S. W. 122.

Fee for recording return of citation.—A clerk cannot charge a fee for recording return of citation, because there is no law requiring such return to be recorded. Texas, M. Ry. Co. v. Parker, 28 C. A. 116, 66 S. W. 583.

Fees in receivership proceedings.—In railroad receivership proceedings, an allowance to the clerk of court held an allowance for a special duty imposed by the court. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 296.

Commission on penalties collected.—This statute regulates the fees of the clerk in civil actions, and he is not entitled to 5 per cent. commission on moneys collected for the state as penalties for violating the anti-trust laws. Article 1193 (1143) of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not apply to civil actions in behalf of the state to recover penalties. State v. Hart, 96 T. 102, 70 S. W. 948, 949.

One order for several cases.—Where by agreement of parties one order is to apply to a number of cases, and but one order is entered upon the minutes of the court, the clerk is entitled to a fee but for one order. Hanrick v. Ake, 75 T. 142, 12 S. W. 818.

Subpoena.—The insertion of a name in a subpoena, within the statute fixing fees for the district court clerk, held only to be made by the clerk or his deputy. Aitgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Discrimination.—The clerk cannot discriminate between litigants and charge fees against one at a higher rate than he would be entitled to charge the other if the latter had been cast in the suit. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. v. State, 57 C. A. 165, 122 S. W. 427.

Clerk of criminal district court.—See Art. 2213.

Art. 3856. Clerk shall compare and certify copies, etc.; fees.—Whenever, in any suit, a certified copy of any petition or any other instrument is necessary in the district court, it shall be lawful for the plaintiff or defendant to prepare such true and correct copy thereof, and submit the same to the clerk of the district court, whose duty it shall be to compare the same with the original instrument, and, if found to be correct, he shall attach his certificate of true copy. For such services he shall receive fifty cents for each certificate and seal, and, in addition thereto, the sum of ten cents per page, three hundred words to the page, for each page of each copy. But nothing in this or the preceding article shall be construed as repealing the maximum fixed by existing law upon the total compensation allowed to district clerks. [Acts 1901, p. 24. Acts 1897, S. S. p. 44. Acts 1897, S. S. p. 12. Acts 1895, p. 170.]

Certified copies of petitions.—Under this and the preceding article, where a clerk received and used printed matter prepared by plaintiff to obtain the benefit of such section, from which, by pasting sheets together and filling blanks, he made copies of a petition, he is estopped to claim the larger fee, under section 1, for making copies of such petition. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. v. State, 57 C. A. 165, 122 S. W. 427.

Art. 3857. [2454] [2390] Fees in probate matters.—In matters relating to estates of deceased persons and minors, when the same are transacted in the district court, the clerk of such court shall receive the same fees that are allowed therefor to clerks of the county court.

Art. 3858. [2456] [2392] Compensation for ex officio services.—The clerk of the district court shall receive, in addition to the fees herein allowed, for the care and preservation of the records of his office, keeping the necessary indexes, and other labor of the like class, to be paid out of the county treasury on the order of the commissioners' court, such sum as said commissioners' court shall determine. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 287, sec. 8. Acts 1879, ch. 81, p. 92.]

Art. 3859. No compensation for assessing damages.—No district clerk shall receive any compensation for assessing damages in any case. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 13.]

3. CLERKS OF THE COUNTY COURT

Art. 3860. [2457] [2393] Fees of clerks of county court.—Clerks of the county court shall receive the following fees:

Not affected by fee bill.—Compensation for the work provided for in this article seems not to have been affected by the fee bill as will be evident from an inspection of the twenty-sixth section thereof providing that laws not in conflict with the act are not affected. Tarrant County v. Butler, 35 C. A. 421, 80 S. W. 660.

Payment of fees.—A clerk of the trial court was not entitled to refuse to prepare and deliver a transcript to an appellant because he had refused to comply with his agreement to pay for the transcript when delivered. Taylor v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 411.

A party who files a deed for record is not required to pay the recording fees before the record is made. William Carlisle & Co. v. King, 103 T. 620, 133 S. W. 241.

Recovery of fees paid county.—Where a county clerk by mistake collected fees in excess of those allowed by law, and paid them over to the county, he, being liable for their repayment to the parties paying them, may recover them from the county. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 592.

A county clerk held estopped from asserting that fees collected and paid over to the county were illegal. Tarrant County v. Rogers, 104 T. 224, 135 S. W. 110.

Art. 3861. [2458] [2394] Compensation for preserving the records, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county judge at each term of his court to inquire into and examine the amount of labor actually and necessarily performed by the clerk of his court, in the care and preservation of the records of his office, in the making and keeping of the necessary indexes thereto, and other labor of a like class, and to allow said clerk a reasonable compensation therefor, not to exceed the fees allowed him by law for like services, and not to exceed one hundred dollars annually, to be paid out of the county treasury upon the sworn account of such clerk, approved in writing thereon by the county judge. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 287, sec. 9.]

Compensation for new indexes.—As Art. 1753 makes it the duty of the county clerk to keep proper indexes of all records of his office, where the commissioners' court makes a contract with the county clerk to make new indexes of deeds and other public records of his office for $8,000, the clerk must account for this money in his settlement with the said court for fees of his office received during his term under the maximum fee bill law. Tarrant County v. Butler, 35 C. A. 421, 80 S. W. 659.

The commissioners' court had no authority to agree to pay the county clerk a certain sum for work in indexing the record, and hence the county was not bound by such an agreement and may recover from the clerk the amount paid him for doing the work in excess of what it actually cost. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 592.

Art. 3862. [2459] [2395] Compensation for ex officio services.—For all ex officio services in relation to roads, bridges and ferries, issuing jury scrip, county warrants, and taking receipts therefor, services in habeas corpus cases, making out bar dockets, keeping county convict book, keeping record of trust funds, filing and docketing all papers for commissioners' court, keeping road overseer's book and list of hands, recording all collection returns of delinquent insolvents, and list of lands sold to individuals for taxes, recording county treasurers' reports, recording reports of justices of the peace, recording reports of animals slaughtered, and services in connection with all elections, and all other public services not otherwise provided for, to be paid upon the order of the commissioners' court out of the treasury, the clerk shall receive the sum of not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars per annum for each one thousand inhabitants of his county; provided, that the total amount paid the clerk in any one year shall not be less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars, said amount to be paid quarterly. No county clerk shall be compelled to file or record any instrument of writing permitted or required by law to be recorded until after payment or tender of payment of all legal fees for such filing or recording has been made; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to include papers or instruments filed or recorded in suits pending in the county court. [Acts 1881, p. 99.]

Mandatory provision.—The provision that county clerks shall receive for all ex officio services not less than $10 nor more than $25 per annum for each 1,000 inhabitants in his county, the total in one year to be not less than $50 nor more than $500, was mandatory. Navarro County v. Howard (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 857.

Repeal.—Acts 17th Leg. c. 87, in so far as it was mandatory, is repealed by Acts 25th Leg. Ex. Sess. c. 5, entitled "An act to fix certain civil fees to be charged by certain county officers, * * * to limit and regulate the compensation of the * * * clerk of the county court * * * and to repeal all laws in conflict herewith," fixing, by section 10, the maximum fees that may be retained by the clerk of the county court at $2,500 per annum, and, in addition thereto, one-fourth of the excess fees collected by him, but providing in section 15 that the commissioners' court shall not be debarred from allowing compensation for ex officio services not to be included in estimating the maximum provided in the act, when, in their judgment, such compensation is necessary; such compensation not to exceed the amount now provided by law for such services. Navarro County v. Howard (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 857.

Notice of deed as affected by failure to pay filing fee.—See note under Art. 6824.

Registration of instruments.—See Title 118, Chapter 3.

Art. 3863. No compensation for assessing damages.—No county clerk shall receive any compensation for assessing damages in any case. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 13.]

For fees of county clerk in lunacy cases, see Art. 165.

Amended

For traveling in the service of any civil process, sheriffs and constables shall receive five cents for each mile going and coming; if two or more persons are mentioned in the writ, he shall charge for the distance actually and necessarily traveled in the service of the same.

Collecting money on an execution or an order of sale, when the same is made by a sale, for the first one hundred dollars or less, four per cent; for the second one hundred dollars, three per cent; for all sums over two hundred dollars, two per cent. When the money is collected by the sheriff without a sale, one-half of the above rates shall be allowed him.

For every day the sheriff or his deputy shall attend the district or county court, he shall receive two dollars a day, to be paid by the county, for each day that the sheriff by himself or a deputy shall attend said court. [Acts 1876, p. 289. Acts 1897, S. S. p. 13. Acts 1879, p. 92. Acts 1889, p. 80.]

Service on several defendants.—A sheriff is entitled to a fee for each copy of citation served where there are more defendants than one in a suit residing in same county. Moore et al. v. McClure et al., 26 C. A. 459, 64 S. W. 810.

Attending commissioners' court.—A sheriff is not entitled to $2 a day for attending on the commissioners' court, but his compensation was the ex officio allowance under Art. 3866. Robinson v. Smith County, 33 C. A. 251, 76 S. W. 584.

Attending criminal court.—A county is liable to the sheriff for only $2 a day for each day that he or his deputy may attend upon a criminal district court, even though the judge of the court may require the sheriff to have two deputies attend upon the court because necessary. Ledbetter v. Dallas County, 51 C. A. 140, 111 S. W. 194, 195.

Sale under one order to different purchasers.—Where a sheriff sells under one order of sale and at one place and time a number of pieces of land to different purchasers, it is only one sale, and he is entitled to commissions on the aggregate amount received and not commissions allowed by law on each separate piece. McLennan County v. Graves, 94 T. 635, 64 S. W. 861.

Collecting debt without sale.—Under Art. 3864 where a party holding a vendor's lien collected his money after foreclosure without a sale, the sheriff could not recover his commission. Lee v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1195.

Execution and deed.—Sheriff is allowed $1.50 for levying execution and $2 for a deed to each purchaser. Eustis v. Henrietta, 91 T. 325, 43 S. W. 259.

Where a sheriff sells lands at one sale to different parties, he is allowed $2 for each deed which he executes to purchasers. McLennan County v. Graves, 94 T. 635, 64 S. W. 861.

Delinquent tax proceedings.—A sheriff held entitled to commission for money collected on a sale of land for taxes, though he received money collected under the same order from other parcels without sale. City of San Antonio v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 130.

A sheriff is not entitled to compensation for service of notices of the sale for delinquent city taxes on parties and their attorneys. Id.

Foreclosing vendor's lien.—Where a county forecloses a vendor's lien on school lands under an order directing that the lands be sold in certain parcels held proper to allow the sheriff to tax the costs as for several sales, rather than as for one sale. McLennan County v. Graves, 26 C. A. 49, 62 S. W. 122.

Where a county forecloses a vendor's lien on school lands, the sheriff held entitled to retain from proceeds costs of the suit and sale. Id.

Caring for attached property.—The sheriff is entitled to charge his reasonable expenditures in taking care of attached property. Worley v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 794.

Sheriff's charge for taking care of attached property held unreasonable. Id.

Mileage.—A sheriff, charging for service of process, can only rightfully charge for the distance actually traveled in any case, but he is entitled to charge the amount specified in the statute for each writ, though he may serve a number in making one trip. When two or more persons are mentioned in the same writ, he can charge for but one mileage. Railway Co. v. Dawson, 69 T. 519, 7 S. W. 63.

Application of fees to indebtedness.—A commissioners' court, on allowing claims of a sheriff for fees of office, could not appropriate the amount so allowed to the payment of an indebtedness from the sheriff to the county. Denman v. Coffee, 42 C. A. 78, 91 S. W. 800.

Art. 3865. [2461] [2397] Sheriffs' fees for serving process from supreme court, etc.—Sheriffs shall be allowed for all process issued from the supreme court or courts of civil appeals, and served by them, the same fees as are allowed them for similar service upon process issued from the district court. [Act March 9, 1875, p. 70, sec. 3.]

Art. 3866. [2462] [2398] Compensation for ex officio services.—For summoning jurors in district and county courts, serving all election notices, notices to overseers of roads and doing all other public business not otherwise provided for, the sheriff may receive annually not exceeding five hundred dollars, to be fixed by the commissioners' court at the same time other ex officio salaries are fixed; provided, that, in counties exceeding twenty-five thousand population at last decennial census, sheriffs may receive an additional amount not exceeding fifty dollars for each five thousand population in excess of twenty-five thousand up to fifty thousand population, to be paid out of the general funds of the county on the order of the commissioners' court. Provided, that the total amount of compensation which may be paid annually under the provisions of this act shall not exceed the sum of eight hundred dollars. [Acts 1905, p. 91.]

For fees of sheriff in lunacy cases, see Art. 165.

5. JUSTICES OF THE PEACE

Art. 3867. [2463] [2399] Justices' fees.—Justices of the peace shall receive the following fees: [Acts 1875, p. 291, sec. 12. Acts 1897, S. S. p. 13.]

court to which such process is returnable. Collecting money under an execution or order of sale, when a sale is made, four per cent on the amount actually collected by him. When the money is collected by him without a sale, two per cent on the amount actually collected by him. [Id. p. 291, sec. 13. Acts 1889, p. 80.]

Art. 3869. [2465] [2401] Fees for services in district or county courts.—For all services performed by constables in business connected with the district and county courts, they shall receive the same fees allowed sheriffs for the same services. [Id.]

7. COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Art. 3870. [2466] [2402] Per diem pay of county commissioners.—Each county commissioner, and the county judge when acting as such, shall receive from the county treasury, to be paid on the order of the commissioners' court, the sum of three dollars for each day he is engaged in holding a term of the commissioners' court, but such commissioners shall receive no pay for holding more than one special term of their court per month. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 292, sec. 14.]

Compensation as member of commissioners' court.—See notes under Art. 3852.

8. ASSESSOR OF TAXES

Art. 3871. Assessors' compensation.—Each assessor of taxes shall receive the following compensation for his services, which shall be estimated upon the total values of the property assessed, as follows: For assessing the state and county tax, on all sums for the first two million dollars or less, five cents for each one hundred dollars of property assessed; and on all sums in excess of two million dollars and less than five million dollars, two and one-fourth cents on each one hundred dollars; and on all sums in excess of five million dollars, one and seven-tenths cents on each one hundred dollars; one-half of the above fees shall be paid by the state, and one-half by the county; and for assessing the poll tax five cents for each poll, which shall be paid by the state. The commissioners' court may allow to the assessor of taxes such sums of money, to be paid monthly from the county treasury, as may be necessary to pay for clerical work, taking assessments and making out the tax rolls of the county, such sums so allowed to be deducted from the amount allowed to the assessor as compensation upon the completion of said tax rolls; provided, the amount allowed the assessor by the commissioners' court shall not exceed the compensation that may be due by the county to him for assessing. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 8, sec. 8.]

9. COLLECTOR OF TAXES

Art. 3872. Collector's compensation.—There shall be paid for the collection of taxes, as compensation for the services of the collector, beginning with the first day of September of each year, five per cent on the first ten thousand dollars collected for the state, and four per cent on the next ten thousand dollars collected for the state, and one per cent on all collected over that sum; for collecting the county taxes, five per cent on the first five thousand dollars of such taxes collected, and four per cent on the next five thousand dollars collected, and one and one-fourth per cent on all such taxes collected over that sum; and, in counties owing subsidies to railroads, the collectors shall receive only one per cent for collecting such railroad tax; and, in cases where property is levied upon and sold for taxes, he shall receive the same compensation as allowed by law to sheriffs or constables upon making a levy and sale in similar cases, but in no case to include commissions on such sales; and, on all occupation and license taxes collected, five per cent. [Id. p. 8, sec. 9.]

Taxes paid by predecessor.—An incoming tax collector held entitled to recover commissions on taxes paid by the outgoing collector for the benefit of the taxpayers, in order to benefit himself to the extent of the commissions. Graves v. Bullen, 53 C. A. 261, 115 S. W. 1177.

10. COUNTY TREASURER

Art. 3873. [2467] [2403] County treasurers' commissions.—The county treasurer shall receive commissions on the moneys received and paid out by him, said commissions to be fixed by order of the commissioners' court as follows: For receiving all moneys, other than school funds, for the county, not exceeding two and one-half per cent, and not exceeding two and one-half per cent for paying out the same; provided, however, he shall receive no commissions for receiving money from his predecessor nor for paying over money to his successor in office. [Id. sec. 15.]

See Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Amount discretionary with commissioners' court.—Under Const. art. 16, § 44, giving county treasurers such compensation as may be provided by law, and under this article, the amount of commission is discretionary with that court; but it cannot validly provide that he shall receive no commission, and, on such order being made, the treasurer is entitled to the commission fixed by a previous order. Hill County v. Sauls (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 267.

When not fixed by court entitled to maximum.—When commissions are not fixed by order of the court, the treasurer is entitled to the maximum fees. Bastrop County v. Hearn, 70 T. 563, 8 S. W. 302.

Serving more than one year.—If the county treasurer holds more than a year before his successor qualifies, he is entitled to pay at the same ratio for the time he holds. Davenport v. Eastland, 94 T. 277, 60 S. W. 244.

Under this article, the treasurer who served more than one year was entitled to commissions as money was received and paid out, and not a proportionate amount of the commissions for the time he served. Hill County v. Sauls (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 267.

Maximum allowance.—The county treasurer is entitled to only $2,000 per annum to be paid out of the fees fixed by the commissioners' court, if such fees should amount to that much. Davenport v. Eastland, 94 T. 277, 60 S. W. 244.

Funds on which commission should be paid.—The county treasurer is entitled to the custody of all county funds and the commissions thereon. Wall v. McConnell, 65 T. 397; Trinity County v. Vickery, 65 T. 554. See post, Art. 2467.

No distinction can be made between general and special funds belonging to the county, and no authority exists in a commissioners' court to deprive the treasurer of the right to his commissions for receiving and paying out county funds by directing their receipt and disbursement by any other person. In such case a right of action in favor of the treasurer exists to recover the amount allowed by law for receiving and paying out the money. Bastrop County v. Hearn, 70 T. 563, 8 S. W. 302.

Making reports.—A county treasurer is not entitled to fees for making the reports required by Arts. 1437, 1446, of the Revised Statutes. Wharton County v. Ahldag, 84 T. 12, 19 S. W. 291.

Bonds and amounts received from sale thereof.—A county treasurer is not entitled to commissions on county bonds delivered to a contractor and which had never been sold. Baylor County v. Taylor, 3 C. A. 523, 22 S. W. 983.

A treasurer cannot be deprived of his statutory fees by the delivery of bonds to a contractor. Waller County v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 876.

A county treasurer is not entitled to commissions on bonds surrendered by the owner in lieu of new ones issued to him. Farmer v. Aransas County, 21 C. A. 549, 53 S. W. 607.

Money realized from sale of bonds held to belong to county, so as to entitle its treasurer to commissions thereon. Presidio County v. Walker, 29 C. A. 609, 69 S. W. 97.

County scrip.—The county treasurer is not entitled to commissions on county scrip delivered for cancellation (Wharton County v. Ahldag, 84 T. 12, 19 S. W. 291), or received in payment of ad valorem taxes (Id.), or received by him from the tax collector and reported for cancellation (McKinney v. Robinson, 84 T. 489, 19 S. W. 699; Baylor County v. Taylor, 3 C. A. 523, 22 S. W. 983).

Payment or purchase of judgment.—Evidence, in an action against a county by its ex-treasurer for commissions on the theory that the county borrowed money of a bank and therewith paid a judgment against the county, held sufficient to sustain a finding that the transaction was but a purchase by the bank of the judgment. Benefield v. Marion County, 43 C. A. 245, 95 S. W. 713.

Rate.—Under this article, courts cannot interfere with an order fixing the commission at 1½ mills on the dollar. Hill County v. Sauls (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 267.

Art. 3874. [2468] Commissions on school fund.—The treasurers of the several counties shall be treasurers of the available public free school fund and also of the permanent county school fund for their respective counties. The treasurers of the several counties shall be allowed for receiving and disbursing the school funds one-half of one per cent for receiving, and one-half of one per cent for disbursing, said commissions to be paid out of the available school fund of the county; provided, no commissions shall be paid for receiving the balance transmitted to him by his predecessor, or for turning over the balance in his hands to his successor; and provided, further, that he shall receive no commissions on money transferred. [Acts 1891, p. 147.]

See Hill County v. Sauls (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 267.

Transfer of funds to county depositaries.—Under Const. art. 16, § 44, providing that the legislature shall prescribe the duties of the county treasurer, who shall have such compensation as may be provided by law, the legislature, notwithstanding this article, had power to pass Acts 31st Leg. ch. 12, transferring the custody of such funds to the county depositaries, thus relieving the county treasurers of any liability for such funds so deposited, and providing that no commissions shall thereafter be paid for receiving or disbursing the same. Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Art. 3875. [2469] [2405] Commissions shall not exceed $2,000 annually.—The commissions allowed to any county treasurer shall not exceed two thousand dollars annually. [Id. Acts 1879, ch. 69, p. 79.]

Article 3880. Official failing to take out commission shall not receive fees or compensation, etc.—Any official who refuses or fails to take out a commission shall not be entitled to receive or collect, either from the state or from individuals, any fee or fees, or any sum or sums of money, as fees of office, or compensation for official services; and it shall be unlawful for the comptroller of public accounts, any county commissioners' court, any county auditor or any other person whose duty it is to approve claims or accounts of public officials, to approve or to pay any claim or account in favor of any and all such officers who have failed or refused to take out and pay for their commission as officials as required by this article; and the secretary of state shall, from time to time, as such commissions are issued by him, furnish a list thereof to the comptroller of public accounts and the county commissioners' court and the county auditor, with the name of the county in which such officers reside, and of the district judge. [Acts 1907, p. 501.]

Art. 3881. Maximum amount of fees allowed.—Hereafter the maximum amount of fees of all kinds that may be retained by any officer mentioned in this section (article) as compensation for services shall be as follows: County judge, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; sheriff, an amount not exceeding two thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; clerk of the county court, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; county attorney, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; clerk of the district court, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; collector of taxes, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; assessor of taxes, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; justices of the peace, an amount not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum; constables, an amount not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum; provided, that this Act shall not apply to justices of the peace or constables except those holding offices in cities of more than twenty thousand inhabitants, to be determined by the last United States census. [Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1, amends Rev. St. 1911, arts. 3381–3383, 3887, 3889, 3893, 3897, 3898, and 3903. Section 2 provides that this law shall take effect December 1, 1914.

Constitutionality.—This article is not repugnant to article 5, section 21, state constitution. Hare v. Grayson County (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 656.

Repeal of statute.—Acts 17th Leg. c. 87, providing that county clerks shall receive certain sums for ex officio services, in so far as it was mandatory, is repealed by Acts 25th Leg. Ex. Sess. c. 5, entitled "An act to fix certain civil fees to be charged by certain county officers, * * * to limit and regulate the compensation of the * * * clerk of the county court * * * and to repeal all laws in conflict herewith," fixing, by section 10, the maximum fees that may be retained by the clerk of the county court at $2,500 per annum, and, in addition thereto, one-fourth of the excess fees collected by him, but providing in section 15 that the commissioners' court shall not be debarred from allowing compensation for ex officio services not to be included in estimating the maximum provided in the act, when, in their judgment, such compensation is necessary; such compensation not to exceed the amount now provided by law for such services. Navarro County v. Howard (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 857.

"Fees of all kinds."—The phrase "fees of all kinds" embraces every kind of compensation allowed by law to a county clerk unless excepted by some provision of the statute. Ellis County v. Thompson, 95 T. 22, 66 S. W. 49.

In Acts 25th Leg. Ex. Sess. c. 5, § 10, fixing the maximum amount of fees of all kinds that may be retained by any officer as compensation for his services, the phrase "fees of all kinds," as applied to the clerk of the county court embraces every kind of compensation allowed by law to him, unless excepted by some provision of the act. Navarro County v. Howard (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 857.

Art. 3882. Maximum fees in certain counties.—In any county shown by the last United States census to contain as many as twenty-five thousand inhabitants the following amounts shall be allowed, viz: county judge, an amount not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars per annum; sheriff, an amount not exceeding three thousand dollars per annum; clerk of the county court, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; county attorney, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; district attorney, an amount not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, inclusive of the five hundred dollars allowed by the constitution and paid by the state; clerk of the district court, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; collector of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; assessor of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3881.

Art. 3883. Maximum fees in counties containing city of 25,000 inhabitants, etc.—In counties containing a city of over twenty-five thousand inhabitants, or, in such counties as shown by the last United States census, shall contain as many as thirty-eight thousand inhabitants, the following amount of fees shall be allowed, viz: county judge, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; sheriff, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; clerk of the county court, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; county attorney, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; district attorney, an amount not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars, inclusive of the five hundred dollars allowed by the constitution and paid by the state; clerk of the district court, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; collector of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; assessor of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; provided, the compensation fixed herein for sheriffs and their deputies shall be exclusive of any rewards received for the apprehension of criminals or fugitives from justice. [Id.]

District and county attorneys.—See Arts. 363, 365.

In counties that cast 7,500 votes or more in presidential elections, the county attorney is entitled to retain for his individual services fees to the extent of $2,500 and one-fourth of the excess. Hare v. Grayson County (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 656.

Art. 3884. County attorney, compensation in certain counties.—The county attorney in those counties having no district attorney, where he performs the duties of district attorney, may receive the same compensation as provided for the district attorney. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 43, sec. 10.]

For fees of county attorney in lunacy cases, see Art. 165.

Art. 3885. District attorney, compensation of.—The maximum fixed for the compensation of the district attorney shall be construed to be the amount which that officer is authorized to retain of fees allowed such officer in his district, whether composed of one or more counties. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 3886. County judge, compensation as superintendent of public instruction.—In counties where a county judge acts as superintendent of public instruction, he shall receive such other salary as may be provided by the commissioners' court, not to exceed the sum of six hundred dollars per annum. [Id. sec. 10.]

Salary or county judge as county superintendent.—This article empowers the commissioners' court to allow county judges for services as county superintendents of public instruction a salary not to exceed $600 per annum. This precludes the idea that they are any longer entitled to commissions as provided by the old law. Stevens v. Campbell, 26 C. A. 213, 63 S. W. 162.

Art. 3887. Last United States census to govern in all cases.—The last United States census shall govern as to population in all cases. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 43, sec. 10. Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1, amending Art. 3887, Rev. St. 1911.]

See note under Art. 3881.

Art. 3888. Amounts allowed to be retained out of fees collected; state not responsible.—The amounts allowed to each officer mentioned in articles 3881 to 3886, inclusive, may be retained out of the fees collected by him under existing laws; but in no case shall the state or the county be responsible for the payment of any sum when the fees collected by any officer are less than the maximum compensation allowed by this chapter, or be responsible for the pay of any deputy or assistant. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 9, sec. 11. Acts 1907, p. 50.]

Amount which might be retained.—The term "maximum" means the specified sum, $2,500 (in this case), and the phrase, "The excess of the fees collected by the said officers" signifies that sum which remains after taking from the whole the maximum and the amount paid to deputies. Hence the officer is entitled to retain one-fourth of the amount he receives above the maximum after he has paid his deputies. Ellis County v. Thompson, 95 T. 22, 64 S. W. 927.

Art. 3889. Fees, how disposed of; excess fees, etc.—Each officer named in this chapter shall first, out of the fees of his office, pay or be paid, the amount allowed him, under the provisions of this chapter, together with the salaries of his assistants or deputies. If the fees of such office collected in any year be more than the amount needed to pay the amount allowed such officer and his assistants and deputies, same shall be deemed excess fees, and of such excess fees such officer shall retain one-fourth; and in counties having between 25,000 and 38,000 inhabitants until such one-fourth amounts to the sum of twelve hundred and fifty dollars; and counties containing a city of more than 25,000 population, or in which county the population exceeds 38,000, until such one-fourth amounts to the sum of fifteen hundred dollars, such population to be based on the United States census last preceding any given year. All amounts received by such officer as fees of his office beside those which he is allowed to retain by the provisions of this chapter, shall be paid into the county treasury of such county. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 9, sec. 11. Acts 1907, p. 50. Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1, amending Art. 3889, Rev. St. 1911.]

See note under Art. 3881.

Art. 3890. Officer not collecting maximum fees, etc., may retain out of delinquent fees collected, remainder paid to treasurer.—Any officer mentioned in articles 3881 to 3886, who does not collect the maximum amount of his fees for any fiscal year and who reports delinquent fees for that year, shall be entitled to retain, when collected, such part of such delinquent fees as is sufficient to complete the maximum compensation for the year in which delinquent fees were charged, and also to retain the one-fourth of the excess belonging to him, and the remainder of the delinquent fees for that fiscal year shall be paid as here-in provided for when collected. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 9, sec. 11. Acts 1907, p. 50.]

Art. 3891. Fees of district clerks in counties having more than one district.—In all counties in this state having more than one judicial district, the district clerks thereof shall in no case be allowed fees in excess of the maximum fees allowed clerks in counties having only one district court. [Id.]

Art. 3892. Delinquent fees, collection of, commissions on, remainder paid to treasurer.—All fees due and not collected as shown in the report required by article 3895 shall be collected by the officer to whose office the fees accrued; and, out of such part of delinquent fees as may be due the county, the officer making such collection shall be entitled to ten per cent of the amount collected by him, and the remainder shall be paid into the county treasury, as provided in article 3889 of this act. It shall not be legal for any officer to remit any fee that may be due under the law fixing fees. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 10, sec. 13.]

Cannot remit fees.—Since the statute prescribes the county clerk's fees for transcribing the records and making new indexes, a contract between the county clerk and county commissioners fixing the clerk's compensation for such work even for less than the legal amount was invalid; the county clerk under Pen. Code 1911, art. 113, and this article, having no right to remit any part of his fees. Russel v. Cordwent (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 239.

Collection of fees after expiration of term.—After a county officer has gone out of office he has no right to collect the fees that accrued to his office while he was the incumbent. Ellis County v. Thompson, 95 T. 22, 66 S. W. 49.

Fees of clerk of district court.—See Art. 3855 et seq.

Art. 3893. Compensation for ex-officio services, when may be allowed by commissioners' court; proviso.—The commissioners' court is hereby debarred from allowing compensation for ex-officio services to county officials when the compensation and excess fees which they are allowed to retain shall reach the maximum provided for in this chapter. In cases where the compensation and excess fees which the officers are allowed to retain shall not reach the maximum provided for in this chapter, the commissioners' court shall allow compensation for ex-officio services when, in their judgment, such compensation is necessary; provided, such compensation for ex-officio services allowed shall not increase the compensation of the official beyond the maximum amount of compensation and excess fees allowed to be retained by him under this chapter. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 10, sec. 13. Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1, amending Art. 3893, Rev. St. 1911.]

See note under Art. 3881.

Acts 17th Leg. ch. 87, repealed.—See notes under Art. 3882.

Art. 3894. Officials named in articles 3881 to 3886 to keep accounts; duty of grand jury and district judge as to.—It shall be the duty of those officials named in articles 3881 to 3886, and also the sheriffs, to keep a correct statement of the sums coming into their hands as fees and commissions, in a book to be provided by them for that purpose, in which the officer at the time when any fees or moneys shall come into his hands shall enter the same; and it shall be the duty of the grand jury (and the district judge shall so charge the grand jury) to examine these accounts at the session of the district court next succeeding the first day of December of each year, and make a report on same to the district court at the conclusion of the session of the grand jury. [Acts 1897, S. S. sec. 16.]

Art. 3895. Officers to make sworn statement, etc., to show what.—Each officer mentioned in articles 3881 to 3886, and also the sheriff, shall, at the close of each fiscal year, make to the district court of the county in which he resides a sworn statement showing the amount of fees collected by him during the fiscal year, and the amount of fees charged and not collected, and by whom due, and the number of deputies and assistants employed by him during the year, and the amount paid, or to be paid each. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 11. Acts 1907, p. 50.]

Art. 3896. Fiscal year defined, and regulation of reports.—A fiscal year, within the meaning of this chapter, shall begin on December 1 of each year; and each officer named in articles 3881 to 3886, and also the sheriff, shall file the reports and make the settlement required in this chapter on December 1 of each year. Whenever such officer serves for a fractional part of a fiscal year, he shall nevertheless file his report and make a settlement for such part of a year as he serves, and shall be entitled to such proportional part of the maximum allowed as the time of his services bears to the entire year. However, an incoming officer elected at the general election, who qualifies prior to December 1 next following, shall not be required to file any report or make any settlement before December 1 of the following year; but his report and settlement shall embrace the entire period dated from his qualification. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 11, sec. 19.]

Art. 3897. Monthly report; statement of expenses; audit, etc.—At the close of each month of his tenure of such office each officer whose fees are affected by the provisions of this Act shall make as a part of the report now required by law, an itemized and sworn statement of all the actual and necessary expenses incurred by him in the conduct of his said office, such as stationery, stamps, telephone, traveling expenses and other necessary expense. If such expense be incurred in connection with any particular case, such statement shall name such case. Such expense account shall be subject to the audit of the county auditor, and if it appear that any item of such expense was not incurred by such officer, or that such item was not necessary thereto, such item may be by such auditor or court rejected. In which case the correctness of such item may be adjudicated in any court of competent jurisdiction. The amount of such expense, referred to in this paragraph, shall not be taken to include the salaries of assistants or deputies which are elsewhere herein provided for. The amount of such expense shall be deducted by the officer in making each such report, from the amount, if any, due by him to the county under the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 11, sec. 19. Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1, amending Art. 3897, Rev. St. 1911.]

See note under Art. 3881.

Art. 3898. Certain officers not required to report fees or keep statement; proviso as to district attorney.—The officers named in articles 3881 to 3886, in those counties having a population of twenty-five thousand inhabitants or less shall not be required to make a report of fees as provided in article 3895, or to keep the statement provided for in article 3894; the population of the county to be determined by the last United States census; provided, that all district attorneys shall be required to make the reports and keep the statements required in this chapter. Art. 3899. Collector and assessor to file with comptroller copies of sworn statements.—The tax collector and tax assessor, at the time of their settlement of accounts with the comptroller, shall file with him a copy of the sworn statement required under article 3895. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 11, sec. 18.]

Art. 3900. Officer recovering money or fees belonging to another shall inform him and pay over on demand, etc.—It shall be the duty of every county and precinct officer in the state of Texas who shall, in his official capacity, collect or receive any money or fees belonging to any witness, officer or other person, to inform such person of the collection of such money or fees, and to promptly pay the same over on demand to the person entitled thereto, taking receipt therefor, which shall be entered or noted in the fee book of such officer. [Acts 1907, p. 120.]

Art. 3901. Officers to report fees collected, etc., requisites of report.—On or before the second Mondays in February, May, August and November of each year, said officers shall make report in writing and under oath to the commissioners' court of their respective counties of all such moneys and fees so collected by them during the quarter last preceding, and remaining in their hands uncalled for, giving the number and the style of each cause in which said moneys or fees accrued, and the name of the person entitled thereto; which report shall be filed with the county clerk of said county, and the same shall be by him kept and preserved for future reference and examination. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 3902. Officers to pay over fees, etc., to treasurer after four years, etc.; statements; disposition.—Every officer collecting or having the custody of any money or fees embraced within the provisions of this and the two preceding articles, at the expiration of four years from the time of collecting or receiving such money or fees, in all cases where the same have not been paid over to the person or persons entitled thereto, shall pay the same to the county treasurer of his respective county, accompanying the same by an itemized statement, as provided in article 3901, which statement shall be filed and kept by said treasurer; and said money or fees shall be by him placed to the credit of the road and bridge fund of the county; and the treasurer shall issue to the said officer his receipt for said money or fees, itemizing the same as above provided, which receipt shall be filed by said officer with the county clerk of his respective county; provided, that any officer, upon retiring from office, having any money or fees in his hands embraced within the provisions of this and the two preceding articles, and which are not due to be turned over to the county treasurer as herein provided, shall turn the same over to his successor in office, together with an itemized list of the same as hereinbefore provided, taking proper receipt therefor; and his successor shall report and pay over the same to the county treasurer in accordance with the provisions of this article. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 3903. Officer may appoint deputies, how; county judge not to influence appointment, etc.; compensation, how paid.—Whenever any officer named in articles 3881 to 3886 shall require the service of deputies or assistants in the performance of his duties, he shall apply to the county judge of his county for authority to appoint same; and the county judge shall issue an order authorizing the appointment of such a number of deputies or assistants as in his opinion may be necessary for the efficient performance of the duties of said office. The officer applying for appointment of a deputy or assistant, or deputies or assistants, shall make affidavit that they are necessary for the efficiency of the public service, and the county judge may require, in addition, a statement showing the need of such deputies or assistants; and in no case shall the county judge attempt to influence the appointment of any person as deputy or assistant in any office. Provided, that in all counties having a population in excess of 100,000 inhabitants, the district attorney of any district, or the county attorney of any county where there is no district attorney, is authorized, with the consent of the county judge of the county for which such appointment is intended, to appoint not to exceed two (2) assistants in addition to his regular deputies or assistants, the number of said deputies not to exceed two for the entire district, regardless of the number of counties it may contain, which two assistants shall not be required to possess the qualifications prescribed by law for district or county attorneys, and who shall perform such duties as may be assigned to them by the county attorney of such county, or the district attorney of such district, and who shall receive as their compensation $100.00 per month, to be paid in monthly installments out of the county funds, of the county for which such appointment is made, by warrants drawn on such county funds; and provided, further, that in counties having a population in excess of one hundred thousand inhabitants, the district attorney in the county of his residence or the county attorney where there is not a district attorney, shall be allowed by order of the commissioners court of the county where such official resides, as in the judgment of the commissioners court may be necessary, to the proper administration of the duties of such office, not to exceed, however, the sum of $50.00 per month. Such amount as may be thus necessarily incurred shall be paid by the commissioners court upon affidavit made by the district attorney or the county attorney, showing the necessity of such expense and for what same was incurred. The commissioners court may also require any other evidence as in their opinion may be necessary to show the necessity of such expenditure but they shall be the sole judge as to the necessity for such expenditure and their judgment allowing same shall be final. The maximum amount allowed for deputies or assistants for their services shall be follows, towit:

First assistant or chief deputy, a sum not to exceed a rate of twelve hundred dollars per annum; others not to exceed a rate of nine hundred dollars per annum.

Provided, however, that in counties having a population of 37,500 or over, the maximum salaries allowed for deputies or assistants for their services shall be as follows:

First assistant or chief deputy, a sum not to exceed a rate of eighteen hundred dollars per annum; heads of each department not to exceed the sum of fifteen hundred dollars per annum; others, not to exceed a rate of twelve hundred dollars per annum.

The county judge in issuing his order granting authority to appoint deputies or assistants, shall state in such order the number of deputies or assistants authorized and the amount to be paid each; and the amount of compensation allowed shall be paid out of the fees of office to which said deputies or assistants may be appointed, and shall not be included in estimating the maximum salaries of officers named in articles 3881 to 3886. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 10, sec. 12. . Acts 1913, p. 286, sec. 1, amending Art. 3903, Rev. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—Art. 3903, Rev. St. 1911, was amended by Acts 1913, p. 246, approved April 3, 1913, the amendment to take effect December 1, 1914. Such article was again amended at the same session of the legislature (Acts 1913, p. 286) so as to read as above, but the act was made to take effect from and after its passage. The later amendment was approved April 7, 1913.

Art. 3904. [2474] [2410] Office rent, stationery, etc., to clerks of supreme court and courts of appeals.—There shall be allowed to the clerks of the supreme court and courts of civil and criminal appeals, reasonable office rent, stationery and furniture for their offices, to be paid on the order and approval of their respective courts out of the appropriation for the contingent expenses of said courts. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 285, sec. 4.]

Art. 3905. [2475] [2411] Stationery, etc., allowed certain county officers.—There shall be allowed to county judges, clerks of the district and county courts, sheriffs and county treasurers, such books, stationery, including blank bail bonds and blank complaints, and office furniture as may be necessary for their offices, to be paid for on the order of the commissioners' court out of the county treasury; and suitable offices shall also be provided by the commissioners' court for said officers at the expense of the county. And such books and stationery as are necessary in their performance of their duties shall also be furnished justices of the peace by said commissioners' court. [Acts 1885, p. 112.]

Art. 3906. [2476] [2412] No fees allowed on motions for security for costs, etc.—Clerks of the district and county courts and justices of the peace shall receive no fees for motions or judgments upon motions for security for costs, nor for taking and approving a bond for costs. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 3907. [2477] [2413] Judgment containing several orders, one fee only shall be charged.—A judgment containing several orders shall be considered as one judgment, and only one fee shall be charged by the court, clerk or justice of the peace for rendering or entering the same. [Id.]

Art. 3908. [2478] [2414] Fees of officers for taking acknowledgments, etc.—Clerks of the district and county courts and other officers authorized by law to take acknowledgment or proof of deeds or other instruments of writing shall receive the same fees for taking such acknowledgment or proof as are allowed notaries public for the same services.

Art. 3909. [2479] [2415] Clerks are prohibited from acting as conveyancers, etc.—All clerks and their deputies are prohibited from charging any fees or commissions for writing deeds, mortgages, bills of sale, or any other conveyance for any person, unless they pay the same tax, if any, which may be required by law to be paid by conveyancers or attorneys at law. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 3910. [2480] [2415] Fees in suits to be taxed against party cast, etc.—The fees allowed in this title pertaining to suits or actions in courts shall be allowed and taxed in the bill of costs against the party cast in the suit or action wherein any such service shall be rendered, except where it is otherwise provided by law or adjudged by the court. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 3911. [2481] [2417] No charge for copies of papers, when.—No copy of a paper not required by law to be copied shall be allowed and taxed in the bill of costs; and, if any party or attorney shall take out copies of his own pleadings, or of papers filed by him in any cause, it shall be at his own expense, and no charge for such copies shall be allowed in the bill of costs. [Id.]

Art. 3912. [2482] [2418] No fee for examinations.—No clerk of a court, justice of the peace or other officer shall be allowed to charge any fee for the examination of any paper or record in his office. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 3913. [2483] [2419] Officers shall keep fee books.—Every officer entitled by law to charge fees for services shall keep a fee book, and shall enter therein all fees charged for services rendered; which fee book shall, at all times, be subject to the inspection of any person wishing to see the amount of fees therein charged. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 3914. [2484] [2420] Fee bill shall be produced, etc., before fees are collectible.—None of the fees mentioned in this title shall be payable to any person whomsoever until there be produced, or ready to be produced, unto the person owing or chargeable with the same, a bill or account in writing containing the particulars of such fees, signed by the clerk or officer to whom such fees are due, or by whom the same are charged, or by the successor in office, or legal representative of such clerk or officer. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 3915. [2485] [2421] Penalty for demanding, etc., fees unlawfully.—If any of the officers named in this title shall demand and receive any higher fees than are prescribed to them in this title, or any fees that are not allowed by this title, such officer shall be liable to the party aggrieved for fourfold the fees so unlawfully demanded and received by him, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction, and may also be punished criminally for extortion, as prescribed in the Penal Code. [Id. sec. 24. See Acts 1879, ch. 108, sec. 9.]

Penalty applies only to fees named.—The penalty prescribed in this article applies only to fees named in this title. Wood County v. Cate, 75 T. 215, 12 S. W. 535.

Fee to notary making premature protest.—The payment of the regular fee to a notary making a premature protest in ignorance of the law is not extortion within the meaning of this act, and having been paid voluntarily cannot be recovered back. Hirshfield v. Bank, 83 T. 452, 18 S. W. 743, 15 L. R. A. 639, 29 Am. St. Rep. 660.

Liability for fees unlawfully received.—Even if a county clerk under the common law and in equity was not liable for the return of fees collected in excess of the amounts allowed by law, he is made liable by this article. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 592.

Art. 3916. [2486] [2422] Certain officers shall keep list of fees posted, etc.—It shall be the duty of county judges, clerks of the district and county courts, sheriffs, justices of the peace, constables and notaries public of the several counties, to keep posted up, at all times, in a conspicuous place in their respective offices a complete list of fees allowed by law to be charged by them respectively. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 3917. [2487] [2423] Fees shall not be demanded in advance, etc.—Officers receiving any process to be executed shall not be entitled in any case to demand their fees for executing the same in advance of such execution, but their fees shall be taxed and collected as other costs in the case.

Art. 3918. [2488] [2424] Execution for costs.—It shall be lawful for any clerk of a court or justice of the peace, when any suit is determined in their respective courts and the costs are not paid by the party against whom the same have been adjudged, to issue execution therefor against such party, under the same rules governing executions in other cases, to be levied and collected as in other cases. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 3919. [2489] [2425] Bill of costs shall accompany execution.—A bill of costs, showing each item thereof, for which the party against whom the execution issues is liable, shall accompany each execution or order of sale. [Id.]

Art. 3920. [2490] [2426] Execution shall issue on demand of person entitled to costs.—Any person to whom any costs are due in a suit or action, which has been determined, may demand that execution issue therefor; and, thereupon it shall be the duty of the clerk or justice of the peace to issue execution for all costs due by such party at once.

Art. 3921. [2492] [2428] Preceding articles, etc., do not apply to executors, etc.—The preceding articles in relation to executions and payment of costs do not apply to executors, administrators or guardians, but in cases where costs are adjudged against an estate of a deceased person, or of a ward, the same shall be collected as provided in the titles, "Estates of Decedents," and, "Guardian and Ward." [Id. sec. 26. Acts 1879, ch. 81, p. 93.]

Art. 3922. [2493] [2429] Execution for costs shall not issue, until, etc.—No execution for costs shall issue in any case until after judgment rendered therefor by the court.

See Art. 2030 et seq.

Execution for costs.—An execution must be authorized by, and conform to, the judgment; if there be no judgment for costs there can be no execution for them, unless it be founded on some positive provision of the statute superseding the general rule. Criswell v. Ragsdale, 18 T. 443; Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 Am. Dec. 769.

Art. 3923. [2494] [2430] No fee allowed for filing certain papers.—No clerk or justice of the peace shall be entitled to any fee for filing any process or paper issued by him and returned into his court.

Affidavit of witness as to attendance.—No clerk is entitled to fees for filing papers issued by him and returned into court. The affidavit of witnesses as to attendance cannot be considered as issued by him and he is entitled to fees for filing same. Texas, M. Ry. Co. v. Parker, 28 C. A. 116, 66 S. W. 583.

Art. 3924. [2495] Any other fees of office.—Any other fees of office not embraced within this title, but otherwise provided for, shall not be affected by the provisions hereof.

Application of statute to counties having a population not exceeding 15,000.—The officers of counties having a population not exceeding 15,000 do not have to report the amount of fees annually collected by them and they are generally exempted from the provisions of the act. Stephens v. Campbell, 26 C. A. 213, 63 S. W. 162.

Art. 3925. [2495a] State's attorney fees in school land litigation.—District and county attorneys who have represented, or may hereafter represent, the state in suits for the recovery of interest and purchase money due the state on account of sales of school lands, made under the laws of 1879 and 1881, or for the forfeiture of said lands on account of non-payment of said interest and purchase money, shall be allowed a fee of ten dollars for each of such cases in which the state recovers judgment; said fees to be approved by the judge who tried the case, or his successors in office, and certified by the clerk of the trial court, and when so approved and certified shall be paid out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; provided, that, in cases where suits are filed by one district or county attorney and judgment obtained by his successor in office, the fee shall be equally divided between them. [Acts 1893, p. 29.]

Art. 3926. [2495b] Defense attorney fees in such cases.—A fee of five dollars for every suit heretofore or hereafter brought [shall] be allowed attorneys appointed by the court to represent the defendant in all cases where the state recovered judgment and where the costs can not be made out of the defendant; said fee to be paid by the state upon the presentation of an account allowed by the district court trying said case, stating the number and style of the suit and that the state recovered therein, that the attorney was appointed and represented the defendant therein, and that the costs can not be recovered out of said defendant. [Id.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Authority of court to fix compensation.—Unless the statute expressly provide for fees for the particular service performed by an officer, the courts have no power to fix a compensation for the services rendered. Wharton County v. Ahldag, 84 T. 12, 19 S. W. 291. See James v. Wilson, 7 T. 230.

Assignment of compensation.—It is contrary to public policy for a public officer to assign or give a lien upon his unearned compensation, either salary or fees, and such assignment or lien is void. Bank v. Fink, 24 S. W. 256, 86 T. 303, 40 Am. St. Rep. 833; Williams v. Ford (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 723.

A contract with a candidate for public office to pay him certain sums for the privilege of selecting his deputies and receiving his fees held void. Willis v. Weatherford Compress Co. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 472.

Where the fees of a public officer are collected by another under a void assignment of such fees, such collection is ineffectual as to such officer, and they are still uncollected so far as he is concerned. Id.

Where, acting under a void assignment, an assignee has collected the fees of an officer, the moneys so collected cannot be recovered from such assignee by the officer, or reached by his creditors in garnishment proceedings. Id.

Contract for additional compensation.—Where the law fixes the compensation which an officer shall receive for given services, he cannot contract to receive from other sources any additional compensation for such services. Stringer v. Franklin County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1168.

Right of county attorney to retain fees.—Rev. St. 1895, art. 2495c, provides that the county attorney shall receive in addition to his stated salary one-fourth of the excess of the fees collected by him. Article 2495d requires a sworn statement showing the amount of fees collected and the amount of fees charged and not collected. Article 2495f declares that all fees due and not collected shall be collected by the officer to whose office the fees accrued, and out of such part of delinquent fees as may be due the county the officer making such collection shall be entitled to 10 per cent. and the remainder shall be paid into the county treasury. Held that, before the county is entitled to any fees collected by the county attorney, it must appear that when he received such fees, he had collected in fees the maximum compensation allowed him by law, for, until then, he is entitled to all fees collected, and the county has no interest therein. Lattimore v. Tarrant County, 57 C. A. 610, 124 S. W. 205.

Recovery of fees paid.—Under the common law and in equity, where a county clerk by mistake collected fees in excess of those allowed by law, he is liable for the repayment to the parties paying them of the excessive amounts collected and the county is not entitled to an accounting therefor; and if he has paid them over to the county, he may recover them from the county. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 592.

TITLE 59

FENCES

[See "Stock Laws" and Penal Code.]

Art.		Art.
3927.	"Sufficient fence" defined.	3932.	Unlawful removal of dividing fence.
3928.	Complaint and proceedings thereon.	3933.	Lawful removal of same.
3929.	Stock may be impounded, when.	3934.	Adjacent owners, required to remove fence, how.
3930.	Owner not liable, when.
3931.	Liability for injuring stock.

Article 3927. [2496] [2431] "Sufficient fence" defined.—Every gardener, farmer or planter shall make a sufficient fence about his cleared land in cultivation, at least five feet high, and make such fence sufficiently close to prevent hogs from passing through the same; but it shall be unlawful for any persons whomsoever, by joining fences or otherwise, to build or maintain more than three miles lineal measure of fence running in the same general direction without a gateway in the same, which gateway must be at least eight feet wide, and shall not be locked. [Act Feb. 5, 1840, p. 179. P. D. 3838. P. C. arts. 685, 686. Acts 1884, p. 37.]

Object of laws.—The statute requiring farmers and others to make a sufficient fence about cleared land in cultivation was designed for the protection of crops inside the inclosure against stock running at large. The failure to keep a fence around a growing crop, which in its nature could not be regarded as dangerous to stock, would not render the owner in possession liable for injury which might result to animals that had entered and been injured by eating of the crop. Fennell v. Railway Co., 70 T. 670, 8 S. W. 486.

The purpose of this act is to give landowners complying with its requirements as to fences a special remedy for damages by trespassing stock, irrespective of negligence. Posey v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 937.

Necessity for gateway.—It is unlawful to build or maintain, by joining or otherwise, more than three miles of fence running in the same direction without a gateway.

Negligence in construction of fences.—A landowner owes no duty to persons trespassing upon his lands in the construction of fencing not along public highways, and there can be no negligence in the construction of such fencing. Worthington v. Wade, 82 T. 26, 17 S. W. 520.

Negligence in construction of fence a question of fact. Hester v. Windham (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1078.

Barbed wire fence in town or city.—A barbed wire fence may be constructed within the limits of a town or city, if not prohibited by an ordinance, and in the absence of evidence showing it to be a nuisance the owner is not liable for injury to stock caused thereby. Robertson v. Wooley, 23 S. W. 828, 5 C. A. 237.

Duty to repair fences.—The lessee of rented premises must keep the fences in repair. Taul v. Shanklin, 1 App. C. C. § 1138.

The owner of land pasturing cattle for pay is bound to keep up the fences. He cannot recover pay for pasturage of cattle escaping by reason of defective fencing, and is responsible for damages resulting from their loss. McAuley v. Harris, 71 T. 631, 9 S. W. 679.

One tearing down another's fences is bound only to put the fence in as good a condition as it was before it was torn down. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McMurrrough, 41 C. A. 216, 91 S. W. 320.

Where defendant orally contracted to pasture certain cattle at a certain price per head, an agreement that he would not overstock the pasture nor permit the fences surrounding the same to become out of repair will be implied. J. B. Wallis & Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 43.

— Contributory negligence.—The failure of an owner to exercise ordinary care in repairing a fence torn down by another so as to keep stock from trespassing on his crops is contributory negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McMurrrough, 41 C. A. 216, 91 S. W. 320.

Lawful fence—Stock laws.—See Arts. 7227, 7254.

Fences around irrigation farms.—See Art. 4990.

Art. 3928. [2497] [2432] Complaint before justice of the peace, when made.—When any trespass shall have been done by any cattle, horses, hogs or other stock, on the cleared and cultivated ground of any person, it shall be lawful for such person to complain thereof to any justice of the peace for the county where such trespass shall have been done, and such justice is hereby authorized and required to cause two disinterested and impartial freeholders to be summoned, who, with such justice, shall view and examine on oath whether complainant's fence be sufficient or not, and what damages he has sustained by such trespass, and certify the same in writing; and, if it shall so appear that said fence be sufficient, then the owner of such cattle, horses, hogs or other stock, shall make full satisfaction for the trespass to the party injured, to be recovered before any tribunal having cognizance thereof.

Object of laws.—See notes under Art. 3927.

Necessity and sufficiency of inclosure.—Where the fence is sufficient, damages for injuries to crops by another's stock can be recovered; otherwise not. Hoskins v. Huling, 2 App. C. C. § 161.

At common law the right of pasturage on uninclosed land vested in the owner of the land, and the right of common, in the absence of his consent, did not exist. The owner of cattle grazing upon the lands of another was responsible for all damage done by them, whether the land was inclosed or not. In Texas, if the owner of land takes no steps to guard against intrusion by the cattle of another, he cannot complain if they graze upon it. If he incloses it, his inclosure must be respected, even though it is not inclosed with a statutory fence. Davis v. Davis, 70 T. 123, 7 S. W. 826; Abbey v. Shiner, 24 S. W. 91, 5 C. A. 287; Pace v. Potter, 85 T. 473, 22 S. W. 300.

Under this article and Art. 3927 it is essential to plaintiff's right to recover that he establish that his land was inclosed with a sufficient fence at least five feet high. Gest v. Dube (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 965.

Injuries by stock coming from land in common inclosure.—Plaintiff and defendant owned lands adjoining. By the fences of other land-owners the territory occupied by the plaintiff and defendant became surrounded by fences. The defendant put cattle upon his land. Held, that such act and conditions did not make him liable in damages from his cattle pasturing upon the lands of the plaintiff; otherwise if the defendant had taken and held exclusive possession of the lands of the plaintiff within such an inclosure. Pace v. Potter, 85 T. 473, 22 S. W. 300.

The rule that a party whose lands are in a common inclosure with the lands of another cannot complain of damages from stock wandering from the other party's lands to his own does not apply so as to prevent his recovery of damages from cattle which are pastured upon his lands under a claim of right. Tandy v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 481.

It is not material to a cattle owner's liability for trespass that the lands are not properly inclosed with a fence, where he committed the trespass by pasturing his cattle thereon under a claim of right. Id.

Liability for injuries by cattle breaking through fence.—Where plaintiff's cattle were injured by defendant's bulls breaking through a feeding pen, consisting of a fence sufficient to turn ordinary cattle, defendant was liable for the injuries. Trammell v. Turner (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 325.

In an action for damages from a trespass by defendant's cattle, an issue as to whether defendant "knew and intended" that the cattle herded by him outside of plaintiff's fence would break the fence was not erroneous. Moore v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1007.

The owner of cattle who herded them just outside another's pasture was not liable for their trespass after breaking through the fence, in the absence of anything tending to show that the cattle were breachy. Id.

In an action for damages caused by defendant having driven cattle upon a strip of land knowing and intending that they should break plaintiff's fence, a charge on the circumstances under which plaintiff would be entitled to recover held not erroneous. Moore v. Pierson, 100 T. 113, 94 S. W. 1132.

The duties and liabilities of the owner of stock and of landowners in case of damage from the breaking of fences by cattle permitted to roam at large stated. Posey v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 937.

— Communicating disease.—One held liable where his cattle broke through the fences of another and communicated a dangerous disease to his cattle, though defendant did not know that his cattle were infected with such disease. Clarendon Land, Investment & Agency Co., Limited, v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 170.

Inclosing land of another.—One who by mistake builds a fence on the adjoining land of another may remove it to his own land. Long v. Cude, 75 T. 225, 12 S. W. 827.

Where the owner of several tracts of land in inclosing them within one large inclosure necessarily incloses a tract belonging to another, this is an appropriation of such other person's land, and the pasture owner is liable in trespass to try title for rental value of the tract thus inclosed, although the pasture fence contains gates every three miles, and the pasture owner disclaims title and possession of such tract. St. Louis Cattle Co. v. Vaught, 1 C. A. 388, 20 S. W. 855.

Joining fences.—See notes under Art. 3932.

Sufficiency and conclusiveness of report.—In an action on a report of viewers for damage caused by stock under Arts. 3927-3930, the report held insufficient to sustain an action. Gest v. Dube (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 965.

Under this article and Art. 3928, providing that, in case of depredations by cattle on complaint to a justice, he and two freeholders may examine and report on oath the condition of the fence and the extent of the damage on which an action may be maintained, such report was not conclusive of the sufficiency of complainant's fence, but that defendant was entitled in an action on the report to show that the fence maintained was not in fact five feet high, and that it had a water gap through which stock entered at will. Id.

Nature of remedy.—This and following articles, providing for distraint of animals breaking through a close surrounded by a lawful fence and causing damage to crops, create a remedy by a summary proceeding; and hence the statute must be strictly followed before liability can attach. Gest v. Dube (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 965.

Issues and proof.—Under the allegations of the petition in an action for damage to crops from trespassing stock, plaintiff held not bound to prove that the fence around the premises was of any particular kind. Posey v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 937.

Plaintiff in an action for injuries to crops caused by trespassing stock held entitled to have the issue of whether his fence was sufficient to exclude cattle not of a fence-breaking nature submitted to the jury only in case the evidence warranted a finding that defendant was negligent in permitting his stock to run at large. Id.

Measure of damages.—The measure of damages for injuries to the crop is the actual loss sustained, which ordinarily is the value of the crops destroyed. Taul v. Shanklin, 1 App. C. C., § 1139.

Art. 3929. [2498] [2433] Stock may be impounded, when.—In case of a second trespass by the same cattle, horses, hogs or other stock, the owner, lessee or proprietor of the premises upon which the trespass is committed may, if he deem it necessary for the protection and preservation of his premises, or the crops growing thereon, cause such stock to be penned and turned over to the sheriff or constable and held responsible to the person damaged for all damages caused by said stock and all costs thereon. [P. D. 6845.]

Summary remedy.—See note under Art. 3928.

Sufficiency and conclusiveness of report.—See note under Art. 3928.

Art. 3930. [2499] [2434] Owner of cattle, etc., not liable, when.—If it shall appear that the said fence is insufficient, then the owner of such cattle, horses, hogs or other stock, shall not be liable to make satisfaction for such damages. [Id. P. D. 6845.]

Liability for damages.—One herding animals upon uninclosed pasturage belonging to another is liable for the damage done the land, the measure of which is the market value of the pasturage. Dignowitty v. Ballantyne, 3 App. C. C. § 195.

The owner of cattle has a right to permit them to run at large upon the open range, or upon his own inclosed lands, unless they are known to be breachy, or fence breaking, vicious or diseased. The liability upon the stock owner having notice is for such damages as that character of animals might be expected to commit. Clarendon L. I. & A. Co. v. McClelland, 89 T. 483, 35 S. W. 474, 31 L. R. A. 669, 59 Am. St. Rep. 70.

This article modifies the common law doctrine of absolute liability and limits the liability of the owner of stock to damages inflicted upon premises which are inclosed by a lawful fence. Frazer v. Bedford (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 573.

A landowner is not entitled to a remedy for trespass by stock, unless he fences with a sufficient fence. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Pruitt, 49 C. A. 370, 110 S. W. 966.

Art. 3931. [2500] [2435] Persons injuring stock, liable, when.—If any person whose fence shall be adjudged insufficient shall, with guns, dogs or otherwise maim, wound or kill any horses, cattle, hogs or other stock, or cause or procure the same to be done, such person so offending shall make full satisfaction to the person injured for all damages by such person sustained, to be recovered before any tribunal having cognizance thereof. [P. D. 3840.]

Right to shoot cattle breaking through a good fence.—Where a person has a good fence, and another's cattle break through it, he has a right to shoot them to protect his crop. Huffman v. State, 53 Cr. R. 489, 110 S. W. 749.

Art. 3932. [2501] Unlawful to remove adjoining fence except, when.—Hereafter, it shall be unlawful for any person who is a joint owner of any separating or dividing fence, or who is in any manner interested in any fence attached to, or connected with, any fence owned or controlled by any other person, to remove the same, except by mutual consent or as hereinafter provided. [Act March 17, 1887. Act April 6, 1889, p. 45.]

Joining fences.—If one proprietor incloses his land by a fence on the line, an adjoining proprietor may join fences. Nolan v. Mendere, 77 T. 565, 14 S. W. 167, 19 Am. St. Rep. 801.

Right to remove fence.—Where a landowner joins his fence to a right of way fence, and afterwards receives notice to disconnect it, which he disregards, held that he cannot recover damages occasioned by its removal by the company. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Wills (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 848.

If one has joined his fence to another's so as to utilize that other's in forming his own inclosure, that other does not have to notify him before he can move his own fence. McNeely v. State, 50 Cr. R. 279, 96 S. W. 1083.

It is not criminal for one in the actual peaceful and quiet possession of a fence to remove it. Fitzsimon v. State, 62 Cr. R. 440, 138 S. W. 110.

Damages for conversion of fence.—In an action for conversion of a certain fence, plaintiff's measure of damages held, not what he paid for the fence, but its market value, if it had a market value; otherwise its reasonable value at the time he was to have received it. Harrison v. McGehee (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 613.

Art. 3933. [2502] Can not separate fence, except, how.—Any person who is the owner or part owner of any fences connected with or adjoined to any fences owned in part or in whole by any other person shall have the right to withdraw or separate his fence or part of fence from the fence of any other person or persons in this state; but such person who desires to withdraw or separate such fence from the fence of any other person shall give notice in writing to such person, his agent, attorney, or lessee, of his intention to separate or withdraw his fence, or part thereof, for at least six months prior to the time of such intended withdrawal or separation. [Id.]

Court in which action must be brought.—A suit to restrain the removal of a division fence must be instituted in the district court. Scripture v. Kent, 1 App. C. C. § 1057; Dauenhauer v. Devine, 51 T. 480, 32 Am. Rep. 627. See Owens v. Prather, 1 App. C. C. § 1131, where it is held that a suit for damages for the removal of rails on a division fence may be brought in the county court.

Fence does not include hedge.—The word "fence" as used in this and preceding article has no reference to and does not include within its meaning a hedge. But where a hedge is the dividing line between two tracts of land it cannot be destroyed by either party without trespassing on the rights of the other. Brown v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 49.

Damages for removal.—The measure of damages for the removal of a fence without compliance with the requirements of the statute is the value of cattle scattered and lost thereby, reasonable diligence having been used to find them, and the reasonable expense, if any, of gathering them. St. Louis Cattle Co. v. Gholson (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 269.

Art. 3934. [2503] Adjacent owners required to remove fence, how.—Any person who is the owner of any fence wholly upon his own land to which the fence of another is adjoined or connected in any manner, may require the owner of any such fence to disconnect and withdraw the same back on his own land by first giving notice in writing, for at least six months, to such person, his agent, attorney, or lessee, to disconnect and withdraw his fence back on his own land. [Id.]

FISCAL YEAR

Art. 3935. Termination of fiscal year. 3936. Accounts to be closed and reports compiled. 3937. Secretary of state to have reports printed.	Art. 3938. Legislators to be furnished with copies of reports. 3939. Purpose of title.
--	---

Article 3935. [2504] [2436] Termination of fiscal year.—The fiscal year of the state shall terminate on the thirty-first day of August of each year, and appropriations made for the support of the state government shall conform thereto. [Acts 1901, p. 9. Acts 1857, p. 17.]

Art. 3936. [2505] [2437] Accounts to be closed and reports compiled.—All officers who are required by law to report annually or biennially to the legislature or governor shall close their accounts on said date, and as soon thereafter as practicable shall prepare and compile their respective reports. [Id. P. D. 3864.]

Art. 3937. [2506] [2438] Secretary of state to have reports printed.—All annual or biennial reports intended for the use of the legislature or governor shall be transmitted by the respective officers to the secretary of state on or before the first day of November; and the secretary of state shall cause the same to be printed in accordance with the laws regulating public printing, as soon as practicable; all biennial reports to be printed before the assembling of the legislature. [Id. P. D. 3865.]

Art. 3938. [2507] [2439] Legislators to be furnished with copies of reports.—Upon the organization of the legislature, the secretary of state shall transmit to the presiding officers of both houses ten copies of each printed report for the use of the members of the legislature. [Id. P. D. 3866.]

Art. 3939. Purpose of title.—The purpose of this chapter is to require all appropriations for the support of the state government to conform to the fiscal year as provided in article 3935; and all officers that are required by law to report annually or biennially to either the legislature or governor to close their accounts, transmit their reports at a uniform date; and all laws or parts of laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [Id.]

Article 3940. [2519] [2440] In what cases the action will lie.—If any person (1) shall make an entry into any lands, tenements or other real property, except in cases where entry is given by law, or (2) shall make any such entry by force, or (3) if any person shall wilfully and without force hold over any lands, tenements or other real property after the termination of the time for which such lands, tenements or other real property were let to him, or to the person under whom he claims, after demand made in writing for the possession thereof by the person or persons entitled to such possession, such person shall be adjudged guilty of forcible entry and detainer, or of forcible detainer, as the case may be. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 155, sec. 1.]

Persons entitled to sue.—The action must be brought by the tenant whose possession is disturbed, and not by his landlord. Hays v. Porter, 27 T. 92.

A claimant of land who has been turned out of possession by a writ issued in a suit to which he was not a party can maintain this action. Laird v. Winters, 27 T. 440, 86 Am. Dec. 620; Wyatt v. Munroe, 27 T. 268.

A third party claiming possession under a superior title cannot intervene. Texas Land Co. v. Turman, 53 T. 619.

One intending to purchase school land which he had caused to be surveyed, and who is not an actual settler thereon, cannot maintain an action of forcible entry and detainer. Richardson v. Westmoreland, 4 App. C. C. § 313, 19 S. W. 432.

An action can be maintained by one to whom the defendant in possession has attorned. Grabfelder v. Gazetti (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 436; Cadwallader v. Lovec, 10 C. A. 1, 29 S. W. 666.

Under this article and Art. 3941, one who was in the actual possession of premises and was forcibly ejected therefrom, under an execution which did not include the premises taken, by another who entered and held possession, was entitled to maintain forcible entry and detainer to recover possession. Granberry v. Storey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1122.

Persons against whom action may be brought.—This action cannot be maintained against one who entered upon land under a contract of purchase. Cunningham v. Ammerman, 3 App. C. C. § 352.

Existence of relation of landlord and tenant.—A lease by express contract by one tenant to his cotenant of his interest in the property creates the relation of landlord and tenant as between themselves. McKie v. Anderson, 78 T. 207, 14 S. W. 576; Grabfelder v. Gazetti (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 436.

In order to constitute a forcible detainer under this article, the relationship of landlord and tenant must exist. Francis v. Holmes, 54 C. A. 608, 118 S. W. 881.

Action against owner for destruction of improvements.—One who unlawfully enters upon and improves a portion of a tract of land when the other portion is in actual possession by the true owner of the entire tract may maintain an action for damages against the true owner of the land for a forcible destruction of his improvements, his forcible ejection from the premises, and the removal of his personal effects therefrom. Sinclair v. Stanley, 69 T. 718, 7 S. W. 511.

Premises leased for immoral purposes.—An action for forcible detainer can be maintained when the premises are leased for immoral purposes. Murat v. Micand (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 312.

Entry during absence of occupant.—An entry upon the premises during the casual absence of the occupant is within the statute. Holmes v. Holloway, 21 T. 658.

Prior possession of plaintiff.—One who has leased an inclosed pasture and has stock therein and is in control thereof, although he does not live on the premises, is in actual possession of same, and if another enters upon and takes possession, during the absence, and without consent of the lessee, he is guilty of forcible entry and detainer, within the meaning of the law. Zuercher v. Startz, 53 C. A. 442, 115 S. W. 1175.

Possession of defendant.—A tenant in possession may defend by showing that he purchased the landlord's title, or that he has attorned to another who has so purchased. Texas Land Co. v. Turman, 53 T. 619.

He cannot set up an adverse title acquired before his tenancy commenced. Hoskins v. Bigham, 1 App. C. C. § 1027.

Against a plaintiff suing for possession a purchaser under him on an executory contract for non-payment of purchase money (the purchaser being in possession when the contract was made), the fact that the purchase was induced by false and material representations of the plaintiff, presents a proper defense. In such a case the defendant may retain possession and defeat a recovery, except as to the interest of his vendor. Hammers v. Hanrick, 69 T. 412, 7 S. W. 345.

One cannot enter and forcibly take possession of land from another, even under a claim of title, without subjecting himself to an action for forcible entry and detainer. McRae v. White (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 793.

Where a lessee has accepted rent from one unlawfully in possession and has treated him as a subtenant, the lessor cannot maintain a possessory action. McSweeney v. Ellerman (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 270.

— Under defective writ.—A writ, under which land was taken, which did not include the land taken, was not color of authority so as to prevent the person ousted from recovering such land by forcible entry and detainer. Granberry v. Storey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1122.

Where the execution, under which land was taken and the possessor ousted, and the judgment upon which it was issued, did not include the land taken, it was immaterial, upon his right to maintain forcible entry and detainer therefor, that the judgment creditor was entitled to a judgment foreclosing a lien upon the land taken, and that it was not included in the judgment by mistake; the remedy of forcible entry and detainer being to protect the possession so as to prevent violent entries, irrespective of the ultimate right of ownership or superiority of title. Id.

Demand.—A demand for possession on the day before bringing forcible entry and detainer held sufficient. Beauchamp v. Runnels, 35 C. A. 212, 79 S. W. 1105.

Jurisdiction of justice of the peace.—In this class of cases the justice's court acts as a court of general jurisdiction, and its judgment in a case where it has jurisdiction over the parties is not void, however erroneous it may be. Clayton v. Hurt, 32 S. W. 876, 88 T. 595.

The tenant's right to possession ceases as well upon the happening of some contingency stated in the contract of lease, as upon the expiration of the term and the landlord's right to re-enter begins. Not in the one case more than in the other is it necessary to resort to the district court to have determined the landlord's right to possession. The right to the possession is properly determined in the justice court in a forcible entry and detainer suit. Walther v. Anderson, 52 C. A. 360, 114 S. W. 414, 417, 418.

Trespass to try title in lieu.—One in whose favor the action may lie may bring an action of trespass to try title in lieu of this proceeding. Thurber v. Conners, 57 T. 96; Andrews v. Parker, 48 T. 94; McDannell v. Cherry, 64 T. 177.

Art. 3941. [2520] [2441] "Forcible entry" defined.—A "forcible entry" or an entry where entry is not given by law within the meaning of this chapter is:

1. An entry without the consent of the person having the actual possession.

2. As to a landlord, an entry upon the possession of his tenant at will or by sufferance, whether with or without the tenant's consent.

Peaceable entry by one entitled to possession.—A forcible entry upon a peaceable possession is unlawful. But one lawfully entitled can make peaceable entry, even when another is in occupation, and such entry restores him to complete possession. Heironimus v. Duncan, 11 C. A. 610, 33 S. W. 287. See Baker v. Cornelius, 6 C. A. 27, 24 S. W. 949; Sinclair v. Stanley, 64 T. 67; Id., 69 T. 718, 7 S. W. 511.

Art. 3942. [2521] [2442] Other cases of forcible detainer.—A person shall be adjudged guilty of forcible detainer also in the following cases:

1. Where a tenant at will or by sufferance refuses, after demand made in writing as aforesaid, to give possession to the landlord after the determination of his will.

2. Where the tenant of a person who has made a forcible entry refuses to give possession, after demand as aforesaid, to the person upon whose possession the forcible entry was made.

3. Where a person who has made a forcible entry upon the possession of one who acquired it by forcible entry refuses to give possession on demand, as aforesaid, to him upon whose possession the first forcible entry was made.

4. Where a person who has made a forcible entry upon the possession of a tenant for a term refuses to deliver possession to the landlord, upon demand as aforesaid, after the term expires; and, if the term expire whilst a writ of forcible entry sued out by the tenant is pending, the landlord may, at his own cost and for his own benefit, prosecute it in the name of the tenant. It is not material whether the tenant shall have received possession from his landlord or have become his tenant after obtaining possession.

Parol evidence to show written demand.—That the demand was made in writing as required by statute can be shown by parol. Steele v. Steele, 2 App. C. C. § 347.

Estoppel to deny landlord's title.—See notes under Title 80.

Possession under contract of purchase.—Where possession is given under a contract of purchase, an action of forcible entry and detainer, or forcible detainer will not lie. Francis v. Holmes, 54 C. A. 608, 118 S. W. 881.

Art. 3943. [2522] [2443] Venue.—Any justice of the peace of the precinct where the property is situated shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine any case arising under this title. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 3944. [2523] [2444] Citation.—Whenever the party aggrieved, or his authorized agent, shall file his complaint in writing and under oath with such justice of the peace, it shall be his duty immediately to issue his citation to the sheriff or any constable of his county, commanding him to summon the person against whom complaint is made to appear before such justice, at a time and place named in such citation, such time being for not more than ten nor less than six days from the date of the citation. [Id. sec. 4.]

1914
Fourth C. S.
35 L. P. 176

Art. 3944a. Suit for rent may be joined; judgment, etc.—A suit for rent may be joined with an action of forcible entry and detainer, wherever the suit for rent is within the jurisdiction of the justice court. In such case the court, in rendering judgment in the action of forcible entry and detainer, may at the same time render judgment for any rent due the landlord by the renter; provided the amount thereof is within the jurisdiction of the justice court. [Acts 1911, p. 27, sec. 1.]

Acts 1911, p. 27, sec. 1, enacts that Title 49 of Rev. Civ. St. of 1895 be amended so as to add to Art. 2523 another article, to be known as Art. 2523a.

Suit for rent in connection with one for forcible entry and detainer.—The only exception permitting a suit for rent in connection with one for forcible entry and detainer is that in favor of landlords as against their tenants, where the rents claimed are in such amount as to give the justice's court jurisdiction. Hengy v. Hengy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1127.

Art. 3945. [2524] [2445] Requisites of the complaint.—The complaint named in the preceding article shall describe the lands, tenements or premises, the possession of which is claimed, with certainty sufficient to identify the same; and it shall also state the facts which entitle the complainant to the possession and authorize the action under the first three articles of this title. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 155.]

Requisites and sufficiency of complaint.—The complaint should allege that the premises or a part thereof are situated in the precinct in which suit is brought and that the relation of landlord and tenant exists between the parties. Yarborough v. Chamberlain, 1 App. C. C. § 1122. The facts must be clearly stated in the complaint. Cooper v. Marchbanks, 22 T. 1.

The land must be described (Ochoa v. Garza, 1 App. C. C. § 939; Steele v. Steele, 2 App. C. C. § 346) so as to identify it (Murat v. Micaud [Civ. App.] 25 S. W. 312).

For a complaint held sufficient, see Irvin v. Davenport, 84 T. 512, 19 S. W. 692; McHenry v. Curtis, 3 App. C. C. § 269.

Complaint in forcible entry and detainer held insufficient, because it does not locate the land in the precinct where action is brought, does not sufficiently describe the land, does not state statutory grounds for bringing the action, and shows no ouster. Lasater v. Fant (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 321.

A complaint in an action of forcible entry and detainer in justice court held not insufficient to give the court jurisdiction for failure of the jurat to show by whom it was verified. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 958.

Description of land in complaint for forcible entry and detainer held not incapable of supporting a judgment. Evetts v. Johns (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 778.

Amendment.—A complaint in forcible entry and detainer may, as far as the description of the property is concerned, be amended like any other pleading. Evetts v. Johns (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 778; Granberry v. Storey, 127 S. W. 1122.

Variance.—Where a complaint in a forcible detainer avers complainant's possession of the premises, and demise of them to defendant, and the evidence fails to show such possession and any demise for any term, complainant cannot recover. Willis v. Roan (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 966.

Art. 3946. [2525] [2446] Service and return of citation.—The sheriff or constable receiving such citation shall execute the same by reading it to the defendant, or by leaving a copy thereof with some person over the age of sixteen years, at his usual place of abode, at least five days before the return day thereof; and he shall return such citation, with his action written thereon, to the justice of the peace who issued the same, on the day assigned for trial. [Id.]

Art. 3947. [2526] [2447] Either party may demand a jury; precept for and service.—Either party to the suit shall have the right of trial by jury, by making demand for a jury to the justice of the peace on or before the day for which the case is set for trial, and paying the jury fee of three dollars; and, when a jury is demanded, the justice of the peace shall issue a precept to the sheriff or any constable of the county, commanding him to summon a jury of six men, qualified jurors of the county, to appear before him on the day set for trying the complaint, to serve as jurors, and shall be returned with the name of the jurors thereon to the said justice of the peace on the day assigned for trial. If no jury be demanded, the case shall be tried by the justice of the peace without a jury. [Acts 1876, p. 155. Acts 1897, p. 16.]

Art. 3948. [2527] [2448] Other jurors may be summoned, when.—If any of the jurors summoned as aforesaid shall fail or refuse to attend, or shall be excused after being challenged, a jury shall be completed by causing other qualified jurors to be summoned immediately. [Acts 1876, p. 155.]

Art. 3949. [2528] [2449] Shall be docketed and tried as other cases, etc.—The cause shall be docketed and tried as other cases; and the justice of the peace shall have authority to issue subpoenas for witnesses, to enforce their attendance, and to punish for contempts. [Id.]

Art. 3950. [2529] [2450] Right of possession the only issue.—On the trial of any case of forcible entry, or of forcible detainer, under the provisions of this title, the only issue shall be as to the right to actual possession; and the merits of the title shall not be inquired into.

See, also, note under Art. 3944a.

What issues may be determined.—The only question in issue is the right of possession without regard to the merits of the title. Comley v. Stanfield, 10 T. 546, 60 Am. Dec. 219; Warren v. Kelly, 17 T. 544; Smith v. Ryan, 20 T. 661; Clark v. Snow, 24 T. 242; Boaz v. Graham, 1 App. C. C. § 159; Wilson v. Beauchamp, 1 App. C. C. § 713; Steele v. Steele, 2 App. C. C. § 348.

This remedy is given when the premises are in the quiet occupancy of one, and are forcibly entered upon by another, or where a lessee, after the expiration of his lease, refuses to restore possession to his lessor. An inquiry as to the title is not permitted in such cases. Railway Co. v. Cahill (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 232.

In forcible entry and detainer, the title to improvements erected by the lease cannot be determined. Meyer v. O'Dell, 18 C. A. 210, 44 S. W. 545.

An action of forcible entry and detainer in justice's court involves only the issue of prior possession; and hence a plea to the jurisdiction on the assumption that the case involves the issue of title should be overruled. Renfro v. Harris, 28 C. A. 58, 66 S. W. 460.

Where an owner and a would-be purchaser make an agreement of sale on certain conditions and possession is given by the owner, and the conditions fail, the relation of landlord and tenant is not established, so as to authorize a suit for forcible entry and detainer or forcible detainer. The issue is one of title and not of possession. Francis v. Holmes, 54 C. A. 608, 118 S. W. 881.

On a partnership accounting, an instruction that no rents of lands claimed to be partnership property could be awarded because certain judgments in forcible entry and detainer cases had established defendant's right thereto was erroneous, since under this article and Art. 3964 a judgment in forcible entry and detainer merely disposes of the right of possession and determines nothing concerning the rents. Hengy v. Hengy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1127.

Art. 3951. [2530] [2451] Trial may be postponed for cause.—For good cause shown, supported by affidavit by either party, the trial may be postponed for a time not exceeding six days. [Id.]

Effect of improper postponement.—An improper postponement of a case of forcible detainer in justice's court for more than six days was a mere irregularity, which would not affect the justice's jurisdiction so as to make the judgment subject to collateral attack in an action between the parties for breach of a rent contract. Calhoun v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 686.

Art. 3952. [2531] [2452] Hearing and judgment without jury.—On the day named in the citation for trial, or on the day to which the case may be postponed according to the provisions of the preceding article, if no jury is demanded, the justice of the peace shall hear the evidence and render his judgment of guilty or not guilty of the charge as stated in the complaint. [Acts 1876, p. 155. Acts 1897, p. 16.]

Art. 3953. [2531] [2452] Jury case, impaneling; hearing; verdict.—If a jury is demanded by either party, the jury shall be impaneled and sworn as in other cases; and, after hearing the evidence, they shall return their verdict of guilty or not guilty of the charge as stated in the complaint. [Id.]

Evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Direction of verdict.—Where, in an action of forcible entry and detainer of school land, it clearly appeared that plaintiff was in possession, that his possession was recognized by the land office, and that defendant entered unlawfully, it was not error to direct a verdict for plaintiff. Renfro v. Harris, 28 C. A. 53, 66 S. W. 460.

Art. 3954. [2532] [2453] Judgment of the court, and writ, etc.—If the justice of the peace, if no jury is demanded, or the jury, in case one is demanded, find the defendant guilty, the said justice of the peace shall give judgment thereon for the plaintiff to have restitution of the premises and for costs; and he shall award his writ of restitution and may issue execution for the costs, but, should the defendant be found not guilty, judgment shall be given in favor of the defendant and against the plaintiff for all costs, and execution may issue therefor. [Acts 1876, p. 155. Acts 1897, p. 16.]

Judgment.—A judgment for rent is unauthorized. Wilson v. Beauchamp, 1 App. C. C. § 713; Clark v. Snow, 24 T. 242; Steele v. Steele, 2 App. C. C. § 348. See Boaz v. Graham, 1 App. C. C. § 159.

A judgment for possession at some future time is void. Maybin v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 611.

The entry in the docket of a justice in an action of forcible entry and detainer held not to show a valid judgment. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 958.

Art. 3955. [2533] [2454] Writ of restitution not to issue for two days.—No writ of restitution shall issue until the expiration of two days from the rendition of the judgment. [Acts 1876, p. 155.]

Fixture can be removed.—Property affixed to the land of another under a license from the owner is personal property which can be removed within a reasonable time after notice. Wright v. Macdonnell, 30 S. W. 907, 88 T. 140.

Issuance of writ pending motion for new trial.—A writ of restitution, issued while a motion for new trial in forcible entry and detainer was pending, is not void. Rosenfield v. Barnett, 26 C. A. 71, 64 S. W. 944.

Art. 3956. [2534] [2455] May appeal, when and how.—Either party, his agent or attorney, may appeal from any final judgment rendered by the justice of the peace in such case, to the county court of the county in which the judgment is rendered, by giving notice thereof in open court and by filing with such justice of the peace, within five days after the rendition of said judgment, a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by said justice of the peace, and payable to the adverse party, conditioned that he will prosecute his appeal with effect, or pay all costs and damages which may be adjudged against him; and no motion for a new trial shall be necessary to authorize such appeal. [Id. p. 163, sec. 21.]

Appeal.—Judgment of restitution in an action of forcible entry and detainer, in favor of a defendant in an action of trespass to try title, admissible, though the action be still pending in the court of appeals. Westmoreland v. Richardson, 21 S. W. 167, 2 C. A. 175.

As to the right of appeal, see Emerson v. Emerson (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 425.

Art. 3957. [2535] [2456] Form of appeal bond.—The appeal bond made in the preceding article may be substantially as follows:

“The State of Texas,

“County of _____.

“Whereas, Upon a writ of forcible entry (or forcible detainer) in favor of A B, and against C D, tried before _____, a justice of the peace of ——— county, a judgment was rendered in favor of the said A B on the ——— day of ———, A. D. ———, and against the said C D, from which the said C D has appealed to the county court; now, therefore, the said C D and ———, his sureties, covenant that he will prosecute his said appeal with effect and pay all costs and damages which may be adjudged against him.

“Given under our hands this ——— day of ———, A. D. ———.”

Art. 3958. [2536] [2457] Duty of justice in case of appeal.—Whenever such appeal bond shall be executed and filed, the justice of the peace shall stay all further proceedings on the judgment, and he shall immediately make out a transcript of all the entries made on his docket of the proceedings had in the case before him; and he shall file the same, together with all the original papers, with the clerk of the county court of the county in which the trial was had, on or before the first day of the first term of said court, or, if there be insufficient time, on or before the first day of the next succeeding term thereof.

Art. 3959. [2537] [2458] Trial de novo.—The clerk of the county court shall docket the cause, and the same shall be tried de novo, with or without a jury, as in other cases.

Necessity for making objections in court below.—Defendant in forcible entry and detainer, who had appeared and answered to an amended complaint, held not entitled on appeal to object to the allowance of the amendment. Evetts v. Johns (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 778.

An objection that the land sought to be recovered in forcible entry and detainer proceedings was insufficiently described in the complaint, cannot be first made on appeal. Granberry v. Storey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1122.

Art. 3960. [2538] [2459] Damages may be proved, when.—On the trial of said cause in the county court the appellee shall be permitted to prove the damages for withholding the possession of the premises from the appellee during the pendency of the appeal, and for the reasonable expenses of the appellee in prosecuting or defending the cause in the county court; and, if the possession of the premises be not adjudged to the appellant, the said court shall render judgment also in favor of the appellee and against said appellant and the sureties on his bond for the damages proven and all costs.

Damages recoverable.—The amount recoverable in the county court is limited to the damages accruing during the pendency of the appeal, and the reasonable expenses incurred in the county court. Steele v. Steele, 2 App. C. C. 348.

The rental value of the premises for the wrongful withholding of the possession in an action of forcible entry and detainer and the fee of the attorney can be recovered under the above article. McRae v. White (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 793.

Art. 3961. [2539] [2460] Judgment by default, when.—Should the defendant, by himself or his attorney, fail to enter an appearance upon the docket of the county court on appearance day, and before the case is called regularly for trial, the facts alleged in the complaint may be taken as admitted, and judgment by default may be entered accordingly. [Id.]

Default only in county court.—In forcible entry and detainer cases judgments by default are allowed only in the county court and they are tried at a regular term, and not summarily as in justice court. Stacks v. Simmons, 58 S. W. 960.

Art. 3962. [2540] [2461] Judgment of county court, final, etc., except, etc.—After a trial upon the merits, the proper judgment shall be rendered upon the law and the facts, or upon the verdict of the jury, as the case may be; and the judgment of the county court finally disposing of the cause shall be conclusive of the litigation, and no further appeal shall be allowed, except where the judgment shall be for damages in an amount exceeding one hundred dollars.

Constitutionality.—This law was declared to be unconstitutional in the case of Supreme Lodge United Benevolent Association v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 661. The court held that section 16 was the only part unconstitutional, but that it was so interwoven and connected with the other provisions of the law as to render them inoperative without it; therefore the whole law was held to be inoperative.

When appeal will lie.—An appeal cannot be taken from the judgment of the county court, except when there has been a judgment for a sum exceeding $100 on a trial upon the merits. Yarbrough v. Jenkins, 3 App. C. C. § 464. See Emerson v. Emerson (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 425.

Under this article an appeal will not lie from a county court judgment dismissing an appeal from a justice's judgment allowing no damages. Lane v. Jack, 25 C. A. 496, 61 S. W. 422; Kerlin v. Bassett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 526.

Assignment of error.—Where plaintiff was an actual settler on school land, an assignment of error that the court by overruling exceptions to defendant's plea to jurisdiction, decided "that a naked trespasser, who has fenced in free land, may invoke the remedy of forcible entry and detainer, and dispossess a bona fide settler," it without merit. Renfro v. Harris, 28 C. A. 58, 66 S. W. 460.

Conclusiveness of judgment.—In an action to recover realty claimed by adverse possession, a judgment in forcible detainer by a third party ejecting defendants from a part of the premises held admissible only to fix the time when the change in the location of the fence inclosing the premises was made. Williams v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 551.

Where a complaint for damages for an eviction under a writ of restitution issued on a void judgment in forcible entry and detainer states that the justice of the peace and plaintiff knew that the judgment was void, a demurrer will be sustained on the ground that the defendants were acting under color of law. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 958.

Judgment in forcible entry and detainer held res judicata in a subsequent suit for damages for eviction under the judgment. Rankin v. Hooks (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1005.

In an action for damages for ousting plaintiff from premises under a judgment in unlawful detainer, claimed to be void because defendant therein was of a different name from the plaintiff, evidence held to show that plaintiff was the defendant in the unlawful detainer suit, and the judgment therein. Anderson v. Zorn (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 835.

Art. 3963. [2541] [2462] Writ of restitution, etc., by whom issued and served.—The writ of restitution, or execution, or both, shall be issued by the clerk of the county court according to the judgment rendered, and the same shall be executed by the sheriff or constable, as in other cases; and such writ of restitution shall not be suspended or superseded in any case by any appeal taken from such final judgment in the county court.

Art. 3964. [2542] [2463] Shall not bar action for trespass, etc.—The proceedings under a forcible entry, or forcible detainer, shall not bar an action for trespass, damages, waste, rent or mesne profits.

Judgment as barring right to rent.—On a partnership accounting, an instruction that no rents of lands claimed to be partnership property could be awarded because certain judgments in forcible entry and detainer cases had established defendant's right thereto was erroneous, since under Art. 3950 and this article a judgment in forcible entry and detainer merely disposes of the right of possession and determines nothing concerning the rents. Hengy v. Hengy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1127.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Damages from judgment or writ of restitution.—It is no defense to an action for an eviction under process issued on a void judgment rendered in forcible entry and detainer proceedings that the plaintiff was in wrongful possession of the property. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 958.

— Liability of justice and plaintiff in general.—Where a judgment of forcible entry and detainer is void, defendant is not bound to move to set it aside or appeal, but may maintain an action for damages against the justice who rendered the judgment and the plaintiff in the action for injuries received in attempting to enforce such judgment. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 958.

— Liability for invalid writ or unauthorized service.—A voidable writ of restitution held to justify the plaintiff in the writ and the officer executing the same. Rosenfield v. Barnett, 26 C. A. 71, 64 S. W. 944.

The plaintiff in forcible entry and detainer held not liable for the premature issuance of the writ of restitution and its service in an unauthorized manner. Id.

— Crops.—One claiming possession of land as tenant cannot recover of the alleged landlord for conversion of a crop planted after judgment for the landlord in an action of forcible entry and detainer. Rankin v. Hooks (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1005.

A tenant ejected from irrigated garden land in forcible detainer by the landlord for failure to pay rent cannot recover for the crops planted on the land when he was evicted. Calhoun v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 686.

TITLE 62

FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

Art.	Art.
3965. Written memorandum required to maintain certain actions.	3970. Mortgage of chattels void, when.

Article 3965. [2543] [2464] Written memorandum required to maintain certain actions.—No action shall be brought in any of the courts in any of the following cases, unless the promise or agreement upon which such action shall be brought, or some memorandum thereof, shall be in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or by some person by him thereunto lawfully authorized:

1. To charge any executor or administrator upon any promise to answer any debt or damages due from his testator or intestate, out of his own estate; or,
2. To charge any person upon a promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another; or,
3. To charge any person upon any agreement made upon consideration of marriage; or
4. Upon any contract for the sale of real estate or the lease thereof for a longer term than one year; or,
5. Upon any agreement which is not to be performed within the space of one year from the making thereof. [Act Jan. 18, 1840. P. D. 3875.]

See Lancaster v. Richardson, 13 C. A. 682, 35 S. W. 749; Milan v. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 165.

1. Promises to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Loftus v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.

One verbally submitting another's debt to arbitration held not liable to pay the award not having promised to do so in writing. Bryant v. Ellis' Adm'r, 20 C. A. 298, 49 S. W. 234.

The verbal promise of the president of defendant railway company to pay a debt of a construction company held unenforceable under the statute of frauds. Texas Southern Ry. Co. v. Pyle (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 234.

An oral agreement by one to see that another is paid by a third person for services rendered to the third person is within this article. E. J. Chauvin & Co. v. McKnight (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 383.

An oral promise by defendant to pay a debt of his brother to plaintiff, upon purchasing the brother's business, was prima facie within the statute of frauds. Estes v. Bryant-Fort-Daniel Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1177.

The agreement of defendant bank to collect and pay over to plaintiffs what F. owed them, as evidenced by his written order, indorsed by them to it, is not an undertaking to answer for the debt or default of another, within the statute of frauds. American Nat. Bank v. Petry (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1040.

Where the owner of a building under construction procures his superintendent of construction to take out employer's liability insurance in his own name, but for the owner's account, his parol agreement to pay the premiums thereon is not within the statute of frauds as a promise to pay the debt of another. Ripley v. Ocean, etc., Corp. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 974.

Defendant, acting for himself and his partner, sold cattle to a third person, who delivered in partial payment a check for $650, which was not paid. The third person at the same time bought cattle from plaintiff's intestate for $7,200, and contracted to buy other cattle, and agreed to pay $1,000 as earnest money. The third person drew his check on a bank, payable to the intestate, for $8,850, which included the amount of the $650 unpaid check. The bank paid the check, but on discovering that $1,650 did not represent the price of cattle bought by the third person, as represented, it sued the intestate therefor. The third person failed to pay the price of the cattle, and defendant and his partner kept the cattle. Defendant had no interest in the dealings between the third person and the intestate, and had no knowledge for several years that the $650 check had not been paid. Held, that a parol promise by defendant to pay his pro rata of any recovery by the bank in its action against the intestate was not enforceable, within this article, as a promise to hold defendant on any part of the intestate's individual indebtedness. Penick v. Castles (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 297.

An owner's parol agreement to pay for lumber previously contracted for by a contractor, to be used in rebuilding the owner's house, was void under the statute of frauds. Marks v. Jones (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 618.

2. Nature of debt or default.—It must be the same debt for which the original debtor is liable, and not a different undertaking. The promise required to be in writing must be a collateral and not an original or independent one. Wattenbarger v. Hodges, 38 C. A. 329, 85 S. W. 1014.

An oral promise to pay a note held within the statute of frauds. Pye v. Commercial Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 127.

3. Promise to debtor to discharge debt.—An agreement between a debtor and a third person, upon a valuable consideration, that the latter will pay a debt, gives the creditor a cause of action on which he may sue. McCown v. Schrimpf, 21 T. 27, 73 Am. Dec. 221; Spann v. Cochran, 63 T. 242; Heath v. Coreth, 11 C. A. 91, 32 S. W. 56.

An assumption of a vendor's lien on purchase of land held not within the statute of frauds. Pickett v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 568.

A verbal promise of a vendor who assumed mortgage as part of purchase price held not within the statute. Beitel v. Dobbin (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 299.

The verbal promise to debtor to pay his debts in consideration of a bill of sale of property, which recites that the promisors will pay the promisee's debts, is binding as to a creditor not privy thereto. Gay v. Pemberton (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 400.

The promise of a purchaser of land to pay a debt of the vendor as part payment of the purchase price is not within the statute of frauds. Hill v. Hoeldtke, 104 T. 594, 142 S. W. 871, 40 L. R. A. (N. S.) 672.

4. Promise to indemnify.—A verbal promise to indemnify an officer for an act done at the request of the promisor is not within the statute. Heidenheimer v. Johnston, 1 App. C. C. § 646.

The verbal promise to hold one harmless if the promisee would become surety on the appeal bond of a third party is not within the statute of frauds, and may be enforced against the promisor when the surety is compelled to pay the bond. Campbell v. Pucket, 1 U. C. 465.

Contract of surety with co-sureties to assume debt in case of failure of the principal to pay it held not void under statute of frauds. Hall v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 755.

A principal's promise to reimburse his surety for paying the principal's debt is not within the statute. Yndo v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 920.

A parol promise of indemnity, supported by a sufficient consideration, is not within the statute of frauds. Ferrell v. Millican (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 230.

5. Original or collateral promise in general.—One whose signature to an obligation as surety has been obtained upon a condition not performed is not bound by a subsequent verbal promise to pay. Loving v. Dixon, 56 T. 75.

A contract made by one for the benefit of another is not, on that ground alone, within the statute. Price v. McCoy, 1 App. C. C. § 182.

If a promisor is the mere surety of another, a verbal promise to pay is within the statute. Clendenning v. Mathews, 1 App. C. C. § 908. Verbal extension of time for payment of a note. Austin R. E. & A. Co. v. Bohn (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1047.

In general, where the liability of a guarantor is collateral and not absolute, and is dependent upon the default of another, notice of such default must be given within reasonable time; but when the guaranty absolutely and unconditionally provides that the principal shall pay a given sum at a stated time, no notice of default is necessary before suing the guarantor. Johnson v. Nasworthy, 4 App. C. C. § 108, 16 S. W. 758.

A promise "to see paid" a claim for services rendered another ordinarily implies security. Rentfrow v. Lancaster, 10 C. A. 321, 31 S. W. 229.

A verbal contract by a carrier to answer for the default or miscarriage of others is not within the statute of frauds, connecting lines being deemed the agents of contracting lines. Thompson v. Railway Co., 11 C. A. 145, 32 S. W. 427.

When the undertaking is to pay another's debt, the burden is on the party who seeks to prove that the undertaking is an original and independent contract so as to escape the statute. Henry v. Kizer Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 278. The evidence to show an existing contract relation between the plaintiff and a third party, and to prove that a promise by the defendant to pay the debt of such party is a new and original undertaking, and not a contract of suretyship, must be clear and satisfactory. Ridgell v. Reeves, 2 App. C. C. § 436.

A creditor held not estopped, by an account showing one to be a surety, from showing that he agreed to become primarily liable. Nixon v. Jacobs, 22 C. A. 97, 53 S. W. 595.

A promise by a bank to pay for goods to be sold on its credit to a depositor is not within the statute of frauds, and hence need not be in writing. First Nat. Bank v. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co., 24 C. A. 645, 60 S. W. 828.

An owner's oral promise to see that a materialman was paid held within the statute of frauds. Nichols v. Dixon (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1051.

Under the provision of the statute of frauds that no one shall be held to pay the debt or perform the obligation of another, unless the undertaking so to do be in writing, where one purchases the subject of a written contract and undertakes its performance, the undertaking, though oral, is binding. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 238.

A contract by the operators of a sawmill for services of a physician to be rendered to its mill hands held an original obligation, and not a contract to answer for the debts of the mill hands, within the statute of frauds. Lennard v. Texarkana Lumber Co., 46 C. A. 402, 94 S. W. 383.

In an action to recover the price of lumber, evidence that a contract executed by another was the contract of defendant held not objectionable as obnoxious to the statute of frauds in relation to agreements to answer for the debt of another. Southern Pine & Cypress Co. v. Bruce Lumber Co., 43 C. A. 150, 95 S. W. 28.

A liability asserted against defendant held on an original promise, and not on a promise to pay another's debt, within the statute of frauds. American Brewing Ass'n v. Gossett (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 357.

To take an oral promise to pay another's debt out of the statute of frauds (Art. 3965), it must be original; a promise to "secure the payments" for merchandise sold another being insufficient. Porter v. Norman (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1173.

A principal's promise to reimburse his surety for paying the principal's debt is not within the statute of frauds. Yndo v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 920.

An agreement by defendant to pay the premiums on an insurance policy issued in the name of another held not within the statute of frauds, as a promise to pay another's debt, where the policy was taken out at defendant's request, and was in fact for his benefit. Ripley v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 974.

A partner's promise to pay a debt of the firm made in the course of a settlement was an original promise not within the statute of frauds. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 551.

6. Acceptance of bill of exchange.—A verbal acceptance of a bill of exchange is not within the statute. Lemmon v. Box, 20 T. 329; Walters v. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 753; Neuman v. Schroeder, 71 T. 81, 8 S. W. 632.

7. Guaranty.—A verbal guaranty made at the request of a firm to certain of its creditors to pay certain subsisting demands against the firm, followed by payment, made after and with notice of the dissolution of the partnership, constitutes a good cause of action against such firm. Lee v. Stowe, 57 T. 444.

Where, in pursuance of a verbal guaranty, the guarantor has discharged the debt of another, he can recover from the debtor the amount paid for his use. Id.

Where a contract of guaranty is delivered to the creditor's agent, notice of acceptance by the principal is not necessary. Lemp v. Armengol, 86 T. 690, 26 S. W. 941.

8. New consideration beneficial to promisor.—If the consideration of the promise is the discharge of an existing debt, and the debt is discharged in consequence of the promise, it is an original contract which need not be in writing. Bason v. Hughart, 2 T. 476; Smith v. Montgomery, 3 T. 204; Warren v. Smith, 24 T. 484, 76 Am. Dec. 115; Hill v. Frost, 59 T. 25.

A promise to pay the debt of another, based upon an original and independent consideration, creates a direct obligation from the promisor to the promisee, which the latter may enforce. Lemmon v. Box, 20 T. 329; Muller v. Riviere, 59 T. 642, 46 Am. Rep. 291; Spann v. Cochran, 63 T. 240; Morris v. Gaines, 82 T. 257, 17 S. W. 538; Cohen v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 59; Bartley v. Rhodes (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 604.

The terms of a contract by which one party agrees to pay over to another party a sum of money for a third party, the first party being indebted to the second and the second to the third, does not come within the statute of frauds. McCown v. Schrimpf, 21 T. 27, 73 Am. Dec. 221; Hill v. Frost, 59 T. 25; Spann v. Cochran, 63 T. 240; Blankenship v. Tillman, 4 App. C. C. § 296, 18 S. W. 646; Bartley v. Rhodes (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 604.

When one for a sufficient consideration undertakes to pay the debt due to another by a third party, the agreement is not within the statute of frauds. Thomas v. Hammond, 47 T. 42; Monroe v. Buchanan, 27 T. 241; Rollinson v. Hope, 18 T. 446; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Ehrenworth, 1 App. C. C. § 786; Spann v. Cochran, 63 T. 240; McCown v. Schrimpf, 21 T. 27, 73 Am. Dec. 221; Cannon v. McDaniel, 46 T. 303; Hicks v.

Morris, 57 T. 658; Wahrmund v. Merritt, 60 T. 24; Eyler v. Eyler, 60 T. 315; Ridgell v. Reeves, 2 App. C. C. § 436; Railway Co. v. Turner, 2 App. C. C. § 815.

A., in consideration of the promise of B. not to foreclose a deed of trust held upon a stock of goods executed by her deceased husband, and of his promise to continue to furnish her goods, to be covered, as in the case of her husband, by a deed of trust, promised verbally to pay B. for the amount due from her husband out of the proceeds of an insurance policy on his life. Held, that A.'s promise was not within the statute of frauds, as the consideration in part grew out of a new transaction and rested upon fresh and substantial personal benefit to herself. Muller v. Riviere, 59 T. 640, 46 Am. Rep. 291.

A promise to pay his own debt by the discharge of a debt of another is not within the statute. Spann v. Cochran, 63 T. 240.

Promise to answer for another's debt held to be for promisor's benefit, and not within statute. Lyon v. Lindsay (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 1101.

An action cannot be maintained on an oral promise to pay the debt of another, where the promise is collateral to the debt and does not discharge it. Starr v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 543.

In an action to enjoin the removal of defendant's railroad offices and shops from plaintiff city, defendant held bound by oral adoption of contract to perpetually maintain the same in the city. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 238.

A parol promise to pay the note of another resting upon a valuable consideration is not within the statute of frauds, where its main purpose was to subserve the interest of the promisor. Blakeney v. Nalle & Co., 45 C. A. 635, 101 S. W. 875.

Undertaking by banking firm to pay debts of a bank, based upon a sufficient consideration, held not within the statute of frauds. Hoskins v. Velasco Nat. Bank, 48 C. A. 246, 107 S. W. 598.

An obligation to pay for goods sold and delivered to another held enforceable, notwithstanding the statute of frauds. Old River Lumber Co. v. Skeeters (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 511.

An agreement to pay another's debt must be supported by a consideration moving to the promisor from the creditor. Estes v. Bryant-Fort-Daniel Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1177.

Plaintiff who had furnished materials for a building to the contractor, was given an order by the architect, approved by the contractor, on the owner, who refused to pay on the ground that defendant, another materialman, had notified him not to pay anything further to the contractor except for labor bills. Plaintiff's representative then called on defendant and told its managing member that unless plaintiff's claim was paid it would bring suit, but if defendant would see that the claim was paid it would do nothing. Defendant's managing member told him that it would see that plaintiff's claim was paid, and, relying on this promise, plaintiff did nothing further. Held, that the promise, although oral, was based on sufficient consideration, and hence not void under the statute of frauds. R. B. Spencer & Co. v. Nalle & Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 991.

The statute of frauds is no defense to an action on a note assumed as part of the purchase price of property. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 722.

9. Promise to pay from property of debtor.—Where one having the funds of another in his hands verbally promises to pay the debt of such person, he is bound thereby. Woods v. Davis, 1 App. C. C. § 952.

A landlord's assent to his tenant's agreement to ship plaintiff 400 sacks of rice, as part of an agreement by which plaintiff loaned $200 to the tenant, held not a contract to answer for the tenant's default, within the statute of frauds. Grosbeck v. T. H. Thompson Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 346.

An agreement to collect and pay over held not one to answer for the debt or default of another within the statute of frauds. American Nat. Bank v. Petry (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1040.

10. Discharge of original debtor.—The discharge of a debtor will support the promise of another to pay the debt. First Nat. Bank v. Border, 29 S. W. 659, 9 C. A. 670.

11. Agreements not to be performed within one year—in general.—It is only where the lease or contract alleged shows by its terms that it is for a longer term than one year, or that the performance thereof was not to be within a year, that the defect would exist which would bring the action within the statute of frauds. Robb v. Railway Co., 82 T. 392, 18 S. W. 707.

A verbal agreement by a railway company to issue a free pass to a creditor and stop trains at his house, in part satisfaction of a judgment, is not within the statute. Railway Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 411.

An agreement for the extension of the time for the payment of a note for a longer term than one year is within the statute of frauds. Kearby v. Hopkins, 14 C. A. 166, 36 S. W. 506.

A contract of employment to commence at a future date and run for twelve months is within the statute. Moody v. Jones (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 378.

An oral promise to extend a note for one year, and that thereafter the note shall not become due until a year after the payee has notified the maker to pay is void. Tunstall v. Clifton (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 244.

Where, in an action for breach of contract of marriage, there was no evidence that the time of performance was fixed at a period longer than a year, the statute of frauds is not applicable. Clark v. Reese, 26 C. A. 619, 64 S. W. 783.

An oral contract to lease premises for a term of five years is within the statute of frauds. Pinto v. Rintleman, 42 C. A. 344, 92 S. W. 1003.

A contract for physician's services held not within the statute of frauds as a contract not performable within a year. Lennard v. Texarkana Lumber Co., 46 C. A. 402, 94 S. W. 383.

Where an original contract of employment was void under the statute of frauds, a new contract subsequently executed, which obviated such defect, did not constitute a novation. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 259, 101 S. W. 867.

In an action for breach of a contract of employment, evidence held to exclude the operation of a custom of hiring employes, relied on to take the case out of the statute of frauds. Stovall v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 405.

A contract to bore a well held not within the statute of frauds. Hall v. Cook (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 449.

An oral lease of premises for less than one year is valid. Dickinson Creamery Co. v. Lyle (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 904.

A subsequent contract changing any of the terms of a written lease of realty for more than one year, required by the statute of frauds to be in writing, must also be in writing. Beard v. A. A. Gooch & Son (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1022.

Contracts for the extension of notes for one year are not within the statute of frauds because not in writing. Matthews v. Towell (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 169.

An agreement by a broker to join in a guaranty to a prospective purchaser held within the statute of frauds. Griffith v. Bradford (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1072.

Where a broker, to effect a sale, verbally agreed with the purchaser to join the vendor in a guaranty that the property would bring a certain rental for 15 months, such agreement would not bind the broker until reduced to writing and signed, under this article. Id.

An oral employment contract held invalid under the statute of frauds, so far as related to defendant's services for the months a cotton gin was not in operation during the season of 1908-09. Guitar v. McGee (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 622.

A parol contract binding one to care for and breed the stock of the owner for three years for a part of the increase is void within the statute of frauds, and, where the owner takes possession within a few months after the making of the contract, he cannot rely on the contract to prevent the other party from recovering the reasonable value of the pasturage furnished. Crenshaw v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 284.

Strictly speaking, a lease is a term for years; and if it exists for a longer period than one year it must, under the statute, be in writing. Ellis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 602.

12. — Possibility of performance.—An agreement that may or may not be performed within a year, as circumstances control, is not within the statute. Thouvenin v. Lea, 26 T. 612; Thomas v. Hammond, 47 T. 42; Jones v. Green (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 1087.

A parol contract was for a lease of land for one year, with the privilege reserved by the lessee of continuing the lease five years should he so desire. Held, that the contract was not within the statute of frauds, as it might or might not be performed within the year. Murphy v. Service, 2 App. C. C. § 747.

An agreement which may be terminated within the year by the death of a party thereto is not within the statute. Weatherford Ry. Co. v. Wood, 30 S. W. 859, 88 T. 191, 28 L. R. A. 526.

A verbal agreement not to engage in a particular business for two years may possibly be performed within one year, and hence is not within the statute. Erwin v. Hayden (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 610.

A contract held capable of performance within one year, and hence not within the statute. Hintze v. Krabbenschmidt (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 38.

An agreement to look after land and pay taxes on it for the use of it is not within the statute of frauds. New York & Texas Land Co. v. Dooley, 33 C. A. 636, 77 S. W. 1030.

Where a mortgagor of land died pending a suit to set aside the mortgage for duress, and his son, who had purchased the land, intervened, certain evidence as to agreement between the father and son held not objectionable, as showing a contract to be performed between them in the future. Gray v. Freeman, 37 C. A. 556, 84 S. W. 1105.

Oral agreement, modifying vendor's lien notes, so as to authorize payment "at any time," was not within the statute of frauds. Booher v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 956.

A contract to form a partnership within a year for the handling and sale of cattle within five years held not within the statute of frauds. Shropshire v. Adams, 40 C. A. 339, 89 S. W. 448.

Where a verbal contract is capable of being performed, and is performed by one of the parties thereto, within one year from the date of the making of the contract, it is not within the statute of frauds and the other party is bound by the contract. City of Tyler v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 99 T. 491, 91 S. W. 4.

A new arrangement for the employment of plaintiff for the remainder of a term specified in a contract which was within the statute of frauds held an original contract of employment not within the statute. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 259, 101 S. W. 867.

An oral contract of employment made November 20, 1905, covering a period from January 1, 1906, to December 31st of that year, was within the statute of frauds. Id.

An employment contract held not obnoxious to the statute of frauds requiring contracts not to be performed within a year to be in writing. Texarkana Lumber Co. v. Lennard (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 506.

An oral agreement for the payment of rents as a portion of the consideration for the conveyance of land held impossible of performance within a year, and hence not within the statute of frauds. Tipton v. Tipton, 55 C. A. 192, 118 S. W. 842.

A contract between a city and a railroad, whereby the railroad, in consideration of a right of way through streets, agrees to locate and keep its general offices and shops in the city capable of being executed and actually executed by one party within a year from its making, is not within the statute of frauds. Kansas City, M. & O. R. Co. v. City of Sweetwater (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 251.

A promise to marry plaintiff as soon as defendant could have a suitable home erected and wind up his business held not within the statute of frauds as one not to be performed within a year. Huggins v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 390.

In an action against a surety on a note, an allegation that plaintiff agreed for a consideration to extend the time of payment for one year, and that the principal debtor might pay the note by work for plaintiff, and that he had done work of greater value than the amount due on the note, was not objectionable on the ground that the oral contract that the note might be paid in work was within the statute of frauds as a contract for services not to be performed within a year; the services having been alleged to have been actually performed and it not appearing that they could not have been performed within a year. Lee v. Durham (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1135.

13. — Commencement of period.—The time between the making of a lease and the commencement of it in possession is no part of the term; and the parol lease for one year may be made to commence in futuro. Styles v. Rector, 1 App. C. C. § 957; Randall v. Thompson, 1 App. C. C. § 1100; Bateman v. Maddox, 36 T. 546, 26 S. W. 51. Tenant holding over: City of San Antonio v. French, 80 T. 575, 16 S. W. 440, 26 Am. St. Rep. 763.

14. — Sufficiency of performance possible within one year.—Where one side of a contract is to be performed within the year, and is so performed, the contract is not within the statute, although the other side may be in its nature incapable of performance within a year. Miller v. Roberts, 18 T. 16, 67 Am. Dec. 688.

15. Creation of estates or interests in general.—In our statute the words "or an interest in, or concerning real estate," which appear in the English statute, are omitted. As a consequence, many verbal agreements concerning real estate, or creating an interest or trust in real estate, can be here enforced which would come within the terms of the English statute. Anderson v. Powers, 59 T. 213, citing James v. Fulcrod, 5 T. 516, 55 Am. Dec. 743; Evans v. Hardeman, 15 T. 480; Stuart v. Baker, 17 T. 417; Miller v. Roberts, 18 T. 16, 67 Am. Dec. 688; Bullion v. Campbell, 27 T. 653; Smock v. Tandy, 28 T. 132; Gibbons v. Bell, 45 T. 418.

A contract that the expenses incurred by parties as coplaintiffs in a suit to recover certain lands were to be refunded when the suit was decreed, and the lands recovered in it partitioned among the plaintiffs, is not within the statute. Gonzales v. Chartier, 63 T. 36.

Parol agreement between an upper and lower dam owner, where latter was built first, that, if diversion of water by upper dam should injuriously affect lower dam, water should be restored, does not inure to benefit of one who purchased lower dam without notice thereof. Cape v. Thompson, 21 C. A. 681, 53 S. W. 368.

Parol evidence is admissible to show privity of possession between several parties for different periods, which, added together, complete the time necessary to establish title by adverse possession. Johnson v. Simpson, 22 C. A. 290, 54 S. W. 308.

The civil law in force in Texas prior to 1840 recognized the validity of verbal sales of land. Carlisle v. Gibbs, 44 C. A. 139, 98 S. W. 192.

A contract to deliver to one a certain amount of the proceeds of the sale of land is not one for sale of land within the statute of frauds. Parriss v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 199, 122 S. W. 399.

A verbal agreement between a vendor and persons signing a note as sureties for the purchaser on his receiving a loan to apply on the purchase price, that the sureties should have a vendor's lien on the premises, is void under the statute of frauds. Singleton v. Goeman (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 436.

An alleged contract held not to be in contravention of the statute. Hammons v. Clwer (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 889.

An agreement to acquire land for another is not within the statute. Low v. Gray (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 270.

16. Creation of leases.—A parol extension of a written lease is not within the statute of frauds. Dockery v. Thorne (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 593.

Under Statute of Frauds, subd. 4, a perpetual tenancy, whereby the lessee was to have possession of the land as long as he paid the yearly rental, is void unless created by an instrument in writing. Hill v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 247.

17. Assignment, grant or surrender of existing estates, interests or terms.—A verbal promise of a father to give his children certain land in lieu of land of theirs which he had sold held void under the statute. Arnold v. Ellis, 20 C. A. 262, 48 S. W. 883.

A transfer of title to land cannot be shown by parol. Thompson v. Dutton (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 641.

In an action on a note given for the conveyance of a leasehold estate, the fact that the conveyance was not evidenced by writing, and that no possession was taken, was no defense. Wilkinson v. Sweet (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 702.

The gift or relinquishment of a life estate is a gift of lands within the statute of frauds. The plea sufficiently set up the statute of frauds, though it characterized the estate of the life tenant as an estate which might be for more than a year. Wallis v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 62.

An agreement for the release of a vendor's lien held enforceable in equity even though it could be considered as within the statute of frauds. McKinley v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 112.

A certificate of land issued by the state may be transferred by parol at any time before the land is surveyed and located. Carlisle v. Gibbs, 44 C. A. 139, 98 S. W. 192.

Under statute of frauds, held decedent could not divest himself of title to land by a verbal agreement. Jante v. Culbreth (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 279.

A person claiming real estate under a parol sale or gift, can obtain no assistance from the law, because it declares such sale or gift invalid, and in order to enforce such parol agreement he must prove possession and the making of valuable improvements of a permanent character, or other facts showing that the transaction is a fraud upon the purchaser or donee if not enforced. Altgelt v. Escalera, 51 C. A. 103, 110 S. W. 990.

A verbal release of a vendor's lien retained in the deed is valid if supported by a sufficient consideration. Atteberry v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1028.

Where complainants alleged that they were induced to execute an absolute deed to certain property by defendant's promise to execute a contract to reconvey the land to them on the termination of defendant's use, which promise defendant had refused to perform and did not intend to perform, such fraud was not available to complainants as a means of procuring the legal title to the land after the contract had been fully executed and the relations of the parties had ceased, as distinguished from a rescission, since to grant such relief would be to enforce a parol contract for the conveyance of land, in violation of the statute of frauds. May v. Cearly (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 165.

A parol agreement to release claims in community property held not enforceable. Winfree v. Winfree (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 36.

18. — Exchange.—Where a daughter appropriated land owned jointly with her father, and acquiesced in his appropriation of a tract belonging to her separately, there was a void verbal exchange. Laufer v. Powell, 30 C. A. 604, 71 S. W. 549.

19. — Establishment of boundary.—A parol contract by adjoining proprietors of land as to the division line is not within the statute. Houston v. Sneed, 15 T. 307. Nor is a parol agreement for the partition of land. Stuart v. Baker, 17 T. 417; Smock v. Tandy, 28 T. 130; Glasscock v. Hughes, 55 T. 461; Gonzales v. Chartier, 63 T. 36. See Evans v. Martin, 25 S. W. 688, 6 C. A. 331; George v. Thomas, 16 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 612; Wardlow v. Miller, 69 T. 395, 6 S. W. 292; Aycock v. Kimbrough, 71 T. 333, 12 S. W. 71, 10 Am. St. Rep. 745. A contract by which parties agree to acquire land is not within the statute. Smock v. Tandy, 28 T. 132; Gibbons v. Bell, 45 T. 417. Owners of adjoining lands agreeing upon and fixing a common boundary line are bound thereby, although the agreement is not in writing. Edwards v. Smith, 71 T. 156, 9 S. W. 77.

The validity of an agreement for the settlement of a boundary does not depend on the accuracy with which the line is run. Time and long acquiescence are not necessary to the validity of a parol agreement fixing a compromise division line. Cooper v. Austin, 58 T. 494.

A parol agreement between adjoining owners that a survey of the boundary line shall be made, which is done, is not within the statute of frauds, and can be enforced. Masterson v. Bokel, 20 C. A. 416, 51 S. W. 39.

A parol agreement fixing the boundary line between two lots as the center of a party wall, acquiesced in for 16 years, held not within the statute of frauds. Roberts v. Fellman Dry Goods Co., 42 C. A. 590, 92 S. W. 1060.

Where a boundary line has been established by agreement, it may be afterwards changed without an agreement in writing. McDonald v. McCrabb, 47 C. A. 259, 105 S. W. 238.

An agreement between adjoining landowners as to their common boundary is not within the statute of frauds. McKeon v. Roan (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 404.

The removal of an established boundary line by landowners and subsequent recognition of the boundary line established is not obnoxious to the statute of frauds, though not in writing, or within the statutes regulating conveyances of real estate. Caruthers v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 757.

An oral agreement between adjoining landowners that surveyors ascertain the boundary line held not within the statute of frauds. Hill v. Walker (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1159.

While a verbal agreement for the settlement of an uncertain boundary line is binding between the parties, because no title is affected thereby, such an agreement was void, because it was a parol conveyance of land in violation of the statute of frauds, where the division line had been marked by a fence for more than 20 years and the fence, though not originally on the true boundary, had determined the legal boundary by limitations. Cook's Hereford Cattle Co. v. Barnhart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 662.

20. — Partition.—A parol partition of lands among joint tenants or tenants in common is not within the statute of frauds or the statute regulating the transfer of real estate by married women (Aycock v. Kimbrough, 71 T. 330, 12 S. W. 71, 10 Am. St. Rep. 745), and may be made by a married woman in parol (Martin v. Harris [Civ. App.] 26 S. W. 91).

Contract construed, and held to be one for the sale of land, and within the statute, unless in writing. Zanderson v. Sullivan, 91 T. 499, 44 S. W. 484.

A parol agreement by a husband, who has conveyed an undivided 110 acres of land out of a 310-acre homestead owned by him and his wife as community property, that the purchaser shall take his 110 acres out of a certain part of the property, where not made in fraud of the homestead rights of the wife, is valid. Mass v. Bromberg, 28 C. A. 145, 66 S. W. 468.

21. Contracts for sale of interests in land.—An agreement for the rescission of an executory contract for the sale of land is within the statute. Dial v. Crain, 10 T. 444.

As to the effect of a parol contract for the sale of land founded upon a good consideration, see Boze v. Davis, 14 T. 331; Hendricks v. Snediker, 30 T. 296; Curlin v. Hendricks, 35 T. 235; Murphy v. Stell, 43 T. 123.

A deed for land cannot be annulled by a parol agreement. Van Hook v. Simmons, 25 T. 323, 78 Am. Dec. 573; Thomas v. Groesbeck, 40 T. 530.

Land located, surveyed and ready for patent has, in contemplation of law, been acquired by the owner of the certificate, and a verbal agreement to convey an interest in it is within the statute of frauds, and specific performance cannot be enforced. Aiken v. Hale & McDonald, 1 U. C. 318.

The words "any contract for the sale of real estate" include every agreement by which one promises to alienate an existing interest in land upon consideration either good or valuable; hence a contract to convey land in consideration of labor or services to be rendered is within the statute. Sprague v. Haines, 68 T. 215, 4 S. W. 371.

An agreement between two or more persons for the joint acquisition of land is not, within the meaning of the statute of frauds, a contract for the sale of land which, to be valid, must be in writing. Gardner v. Randell, 70 T. 453, 7 S. W. 781; Reed v. Howard, 71 T. 204, 9 S. W. 109.

The time for the performance of a contract for the sale of land may be extended by a verbal agreement. Bullis v. Presidio Mining Co., 75 T. 540, 12 S. W. 397.

R., by parol, contracted with W. for land and entered into possession. R. was unable to pay, and C. made the payment of the greater part of the purchase-money to W., when W. deeded the land to R., who at the same time deeded the same to C. R. and wife refused to yield possession, and the wife claimed homestead rights in two hundred acres of the tract. It was held that, as against W., R. and his wife could not assert homestead rights. As C., by payment to W., was subrogated to his rights, he took the land by transfer free from any homestead rights, it appearing that the transactions between R. and C. were not in fraud of R.'s wife. Roy v. Clarke, 75 T. 28, 12 S. W. 845.

Acceptance of offer must be in writing. Offer to sell, and telegram from owner's agent referring to a letter by mail, to the effect that a certain party would take the land on the terms proposed, requiring a sketch of the land to be attached to the contract, first payment to be made after being satisfied as to title. Owner also proposed to have a survey made before closing contract. Held, no contract sufficient to bind owner. Foster v. New York & Texas Land Co., 22 S. W. 260, 2 C. A. 505.

An agent without written authority can bind his principal in an executory contract for sale of land. Huffman v. Cartwright, 44 T. 296; Marlin v. Kosmyroski (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1042.

A contract wherein an agent employed to sell lands is to receive his compensation from the proceeds of sales is not void, under the statute. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 55.

Oral agreement by husband to give his property to his wife, if she would allow proceeds of her separate property to be used for its improvement, held insufficient to transfer title under statute of frauds. Parrish v. Williams (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 79.

Purchaser by parol can enforce specific performance, when sued for land, only by showing equities, and tendering unpaid purchase money before judgment. Folk v. Kyser, 21 C. A. 676, 53 S. W. 87.

An alleged executed parol agreement for sale of land held not enforceable because within the statute of frauds. Newcomb v. Cox, 27 C. A. 583, 66 S. W. 338.

An agreement between a vendor and purchaser with reference to a reconveyance of land after the vendor's purchase thereof on foreclosure of his lien held to be an agreement to convey land within the statute of frauds. Foster v. Ross, 33 C. A. 615, 77 S. W. 990.

A parol contract to convey land is void, where the land is not surveyed, and is not specifically agreed upon and identified, and two years has elapsed before the vendee has taken any action under the purported contract, and five years has elapsed before vendor learns that vendee is insisting on enforcement of the contract. Wiley v. Whaley (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1166.

A verbal sale of land does not convey title, unless the vendee takes possession of the land and makes valuable and permanent improvements. Keith v. Keith, 39 C. A. 363, 87 S. W. 384.

In order to take a parol agreement to sell land out of the statute of frauds, there must have been an executed parol agreement to sell, and the vendee must have made improvements. Bringham v. Texas Co., 39 C. A. 500, 87 S. W. 893.

An oral promise to give an interest in real estate is void under the statute of frauds. Dietrich v. Heintz, 44 C. A. 602, 99 S. W. 417.

Defendants, having cut and appropriated timber from plaintiff's land under an oral contract, held not entitled to defend a suit for the value thereof on the ground that the contract was within the statute of frauds. Alford Bros. & Whiteside v. Williams, 41 C. A. 436, 91 S. W. 636.

In trespass to try title, where defendant claimed the premises under a verbal lease, certain facts considered and held inadequate to take such lease out of the operation of the statute of frauds. Lechenger v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 638.

Where an original contract of employment was within the statute of frauds as not performable within a year, part performance was ineffective to validate it. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 259, 101 S. W. 867.

The statute of frauds (Art. 3965) has no application to a contract to transfer a lease of land belonging to the public school fund and to assist the purchaser of the lease in purchasing the land from the state, where the plaintiff has performed the contract and the defendant has received the benefit of the performance. Belcher v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 833.

Part performance is available to remove a lease for more than a year from the operation of the statute of frauds. Dockery v. Thorne (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 593.

A tenant held bound by an extension of a lease, though he did not sign it. Id.

A parol agreement by a wife and children to release their claim in community estate in consideration of the husband and father conveying to them other land is not enforceable, though the conveyances were made. Winfree v. Winfree (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 36.

Title to one-third of an acre of land omitted from a deed by mistake held not sustainable on the theory of an oral sale. Gilmore v. O'Neil (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1162.

Notwithstanding the invalidity of a lease under the statute of frauds, the lessor is liable for such part performance thereof as he knowingly receives the benefits of. Garrett v. Danner (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 678.

While the statute of frauds prevents the creation by parol of an irrevocable license with respect to real property, yet where there has been a parol license under a definite contract, with performance on one side, such part performance takes the case out of the statute and equity will enforce the licensee's rights in case of attempted revocation. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 253.

Where a lessee, in reliance upon his lessor's statement that he could have the property as long as he paid the rent, borrowed money to discharge his obligations to the lessor, there is no such change of position as to take the agreement out of the statute of frauds. Hill v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 247.

28. — Possession.—In parol sale of land followed by possession, the vendee promising to pay a stipulated price, the vendor tendering a deed, the vendee cannot defeat recovery of the purchase-money under the statute of frauds. Watson v. Baker, 71 T. 739, 9 S. W. 867.

Mere possession, without the making of permanent improvements, held insufficient to entitle a donee of land to specific performance. West v. Webster, 39 C. A. 272, 87 S. W. 196.

Entry into possession of premises and performance of consideration held not such part performance as to take a parol contract for the conveyance of land out of the statute of frauds. Terry v. Craft (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 844.

The provision of the statute of frauds that no action shall be brought, etc., applying to those who interpose an oral contract respecting lands as an affirmative defense, a defendant in possession of premises cannot interpose a verbal lease of five years in defense of his possession. Lechenger v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 638.

Possession alone is not sufficient to entitle a plaintiff to specific performance of a parol contract to convey land. Cobb v. Johnson, 101 T. 440, 108 S. W. 811.

A purchaser of land held in such exclusive possession as to warrant specific performance of a parol contract of sale. Babcock v. Lewis, 52 C. A. 8, 113 S. W. 584.

An oral contract for sale of land cannot be enforced so as to constitute a defense for one in possession under it in trespass to try title; the consideration not having been performed. Emporia Lumber Co. v. Tucker, 103 T. 547, 131 S. W. 408.

29. — Payment.—The mere payment of the purchase money to the holder of the legal title to land, upon an agreement that the title is to be held for the payor, does not create an equitable title capable of enforcement. Wright v. Bearrow, 13 C. A. 146, 35 S. W. 190.

Specific performance of an oral contract to convey land will not be granted, in the absence of possession or permanent improvements made thereon, though the purchase price has been paid. McCarty v. May (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 804.

Defendant having sought a parol extension of a lease and paid the rent for part of the extended period, held not entitled to claim that it was unenforceable under the statute of frauds. Dockery v. Thorne (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 593.

Though a lease was insufficient under the statute of frauds, if the lessee with the lessor's knowledge and acquiescence, as part performance of the contract, furnished supplies and boarded the lessor and his hands when he had not agreed to do so, the lessor will be liable for the reasonable value of such part performance, of which he received the benefit. Garrett v. Danner (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 678.

Payment of the purchase price, unaccompanied by possession, will not support a parol sale of land. Dixon v. McNeese (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 675.

30. — Improvements.—Improvements of insignificant value, and paid for by the use and occupation of the land, will not take the contract out of the statute. Eason v. Eason, 61 T. 225.

Certain improvements, made after a parol gift of land, held permanent and valuable. La Master v. Dickson, 17 C. A. 473, 43 S. W. 911.

Improvements not exceeding the value of rents held sufficient to take a parol gift out of the statute of frauds. Id.

Certain facts held to constitute a parol sale, so that, improvements having been made, there was a right to specific performance. Kuteman v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 842.

In trespass to try title, certain improvements held not sufficiently substantial to warrant submitting to the jury the question of defendant's right to the land under a parol gift. Hutcheson v. Chandler, 47 C. A. 124, 104 S. W. 434.

In a suit for specific performance of an oral contract to convey land, certain improvements made on the property held insufficient to entitle defendant to a specific performance. Cobb v. Johnson, 101 T. 440, 108 S. W. 811.

A parol gift of land accompanied by improvements by the donee after the donor's death is invalid under the statute of frauds. Hammond v. Hammond, 49 C. A. 482, 108 S. W. 1024.

Certain improvements made by a donee under a parol gift of land during the donor's lifetime held insufficient to take the gift out of the statute of frauds. Baldwin v. Riley, 49 C. A. 557, 108 S. W. 1192.

Expenditures and improvements by a purchaser of land under a parol contract held not so insignificant as to warrant a refusal of specific performance, though they did not equal in value what the purchaser had gained by his occupancy of the land. Babcock v. Lewis, 52 C. A. 8, 113 S. W. 584.

Certain improvements held insufficient to take a parol gift of land out of the statute of frauds. Elam v. Carter, 55 C. A. 649, 119 S. W. 914.

A parol gift of land is invalid unless the donee has made sufficient improvements to take the case out of the statute of frauds. Id.

About $100 in improvements held too small an amount, in comparison with the value of a section of land, to furnish the basis for specific performance of an alleged parol gift thereof. Atchley v. Perry, 55 C. A. 538, 120 S. W. 1105.

An oral transfer of a homestead from husband to wife may be made without her obtaining exclusive possession, provided she makes improvements based thereon during his lifetime other than those naturally required to make the place habitable. Reyes v. Escalera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

When a parol purchaser has been fully compensated for his improvements or has gained more by his possession than he has expended in improvements, such improvements will not avail him as a ground for specific performance. Cook v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 897.

The owners of certain oil land executed a deed which, by mistake of the description, excluded one-third of an acre intended to be conveyed. After the death of one of them, the grantee sunk an oil well on the excluded land, which exhausted the oil. Held, that a transfer of the omitted land could not be established on the theory of an oral sale, since, after the death of one of the grantors, title by oral sale could not be perfected by erecting improvements, and, the well having exhausted, the oil was no longer an improvement. Gilmore v. O'Neil (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1162.

31. — Possession and payment.—When the lessee takes possession of the premises and pays a part of the rent, it will take the parol contract out of the operation of the statute. Randall v. Thompson, 1 App. C. C. § 1101.

Where by virtue of a parol lease for a period longer than one year the landlord places the tenant in possession of the premises, and receives from him one or more installments of rent in accordance with the terms of the lease, this constitutes such part performance as will take the contract out of the statute of frauds and the same may be enforced in accordance with its terms. Sorrells v. Goldberg, 34 C. A. 265, 73 S. W. 712.

Fact that vendee of land under parol contract remained in possession until her claim to recover for the consideration given by her was barred by limitations held not to entitle her to specific performance, or create an estoppel against the grantor's estate. Terry v. Craft (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 844.

One who purchases land under a verbal contract, paying the purchase price, entering possession and occupying the land, acquires title. Mitchell v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 735.

32. — Possession and Improvements.—When the purchase money for land has been paid, and the vendee has taken possession and made valuable improvements, with the knowledge of the vendor, a verbal contract for its sale will be enforced. Garner v. Stubblefield, 5 T. 552; Dugan v. Colville, 8 T. 126; Ottenhouse v. Burselson, 11 T. 87; Whitson v. Smith, 15 T. 36; Taylor v. Ashley, 15 T. 50; Neatherly v. Ripley, 21 T. 434; Hubbard v. Horn, 24 T. 270; Bracken v. Hambrick, 25 T. 408; Taylor v. Roland, 26 T. 293; Howes' Heirs v. Rogers, 32 T. 218; Johnson v. Bowden, 37 T. 621; Schrimpf v. Settegast, 38 T. 96; Robinson v. Davenport, 40 T. 333; Castleman v. Sherry, 42 T. 59; Moreland v.

Barnhart, 44 T. 275; Edwards v. Norton, 48 T. 291; Ponce v. McWhorter, 50 T. 562; Hibbert v. Aylott, 52 T. 530.

If the vendor under a parol contract puts the vendee in possession and afterwards refuses to complete his contract, he must pay for the improvements made by the occupant. Thouvenin v. Lea, 26 T. 612; Saunders v. Wilson, 19 T. 194.

To sustain a parol gift of lands followed by possession and large expenditure in improvements thereon by the grantee, it is necessary that the terms and conditions of such contract be clear and free from ambiguity, and that possession was taken and improvements made on the strength of it. Permissive occupation by the father and acceptance of the gift by the son will not be sufficient to bring the case within the rule. Murphy v. Stell, 43 T. 123.

Possession of land and improvements thereon made after the death of the vendor will not take a verbal contract out of the statute. Ryan v. Wilson, 56 T. 36; Whitsett v. Miller, 1 U. C. 203; Wooldridge v. Hancock, 70 T. 18, 6 S. W. 818.

Where a vendee or donee of land has been placed in possession and made improvements of value sufficient to entitle the party to a specific performance, the use of the premises will go with the equitable right to the property. Wells v. Davis, 77 T. 636, 14 S. W. 237.

Equities of a parol gift of land held to take it out of the statute. Davis v. Portwood, 20 C. A. 548, 50 S. W. 615.

An oral contract to clear land for the use thereof for three years held taken out of the statute of frauds by part performance. Wanhscaffe v. Pontoja (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 663.

In trespass to try title based on a parol gift together with possession and improvements thereunder, evidence held to show that the improvements were not of such a character as to take the gift out of the operation of the statute of frauds. Wallis v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 61.

The possession of land by one claiming it as a gift to her for life, with remainder to her children, and the making of permanent valuable improvements thereon, was sufficient to take both the life estate and the remainder out of the statute of frauds. Combest v. Wall (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 147.

In order that equity may sustain a parol gift of land, possession must have been taken and substantial improvements made by the donee upon the faith of the gift. Hutcherson v. Chandler, 47 C. A. 124, 104 S. W. 434.

A parol gift of land accompanied by possession and improvements held valid in equity, notwithstanding the statute of frauds. Hammond v. Hammond, 49 C. A. 482, 108 S. W. 1024.

To take a parol gift of land out of the statute of frauds, possession must be taken by the donee and substantial improvements made with the acquiescence and during the lifetime of the donor. Baldwin v. Riley, 49 C. A. 557, 108 S. W. 1192.

Where a party relies upon possession and improvements under a verbal sale of land to take this sale out of the operation of the statute of frauds, it must appear that the possession was taken and improvements made during the life of the vendor and under such circumstances as to afford a presumption that he knew of and acquiesced therein. Openshaw v. Dean (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 989.

The rights of a party claiming land through possession and improvements under a verbal sale are unaffected by his having a deed thereto from the same party who made the oral sale, but which was intended by the parties as a mortgage. Id.

The rule that a donee of land is entitled to specific performance if he takes possession of the land and makes improvements is based upon equitable principles of estoppel, and the relative values of the improvements and of the land must be considered. Cook v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 897.

A parol gift of land is unsustainable, unless it is shown that the donee had possession and made valuable improvements with the knowledge and consent of the donor. Yealock v. Yealock (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 842.

A parol sale of land will be upheld where the vendee is put in possession, and, relying on the sale, makes valuable improvements, such circumstances creating an equitable title which will be protected in equity. Dixon v. McNeese (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 675.

33. — Payment and Improvements.—An action brought by a party against another for specific performance of an unwritten agreement conveying lands in consideration of labor and improvements made on the land, cannot be maintained, even though the land has been thus paid for in full, unaccompanied by other facts, such as exclusive possession and the like. Ward v. Stuart, 62 T. 333; Ann Berta Lodge v. Leverton, 42 T. 18.

An executed parol sale of land, the purchase money being paid and possession taken, followed by improvements, constitutes a good title in the vendee. Harold v. Sumner, 78 T. 581, 14 S. W. 995.

In trespass to try title, a plea attempting to set up the statute of frauds in defense held insufficient. Wallis v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 61.

The statute of frauds held not to avail where land being sold by parol, and the vendor having failed to make title, the purchaser sues for money paid and improvements made. Burleson v. Tinnin (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 350.

Improvements made and part payment of the price of land held to entitle the purchaser to specific performance of an oral contract of sale. Babcock v. Lewis, 52 C. A. 8, 113 S. W. 584.

34. Contracts implied by law on part performance.—A widow's contract to convey land in fulfillment of her husband's oral agreement to convey the same, which he failed to perform, held sufficient to take the husband's oral agreement out of the statute of frauds, and entitle the purchaser to specific performance. McCarty v. May (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 804.

Where defendant's testator failed to comply with an oral agreement to convey land to plaintiffs, in consideration of their conveyance of land to another, plaintiffs were entitled to recover from his estate the value of the land conveyed by them. Id.

An oral contract for the caring of live stock for a term of years for a share of the increase, must be determined as if no contract had been made, and the one caring for the stock could recover the reasonable value of feed furnished. Crenshaw v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 284.

35. Contracts completely performed.—A surety's answer, in a suit on a note, that for a valuable consideration the time was extended for one year with the privilege to the principal debtor of paying the note in work, and that the value of such work performed was greater than the note, held not objectionable on the ground that the oral contract was a contract for services not to be performed within a year, and within the statute of frauds. Lee v. Durham (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1135.

36. Discharge of contracts without performance.—A parol contract for cancellation of an agreement for the purchase of land is without the statute of frauds. E. F. Rowson & Co. v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 271.

37. Modification of contract.—A subsequent contract changing any of the terms of a written lease of realty for more than one year required by the statute of frauds to be in writing must also be in writing. Beard v. A. A. Gooch & Son (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1022.

Nothing short of a subsequent contract in writing meeting the requirements of the statute of frauds can change a written agreement showing whose interest is to be charged with a conveyance of part of the land owned by tenants in common. Gurley v. Hanrick's Heirs (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 721.

A written contract of sale of timber held not subject to modification by parol agreement. Adams v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1163.

38. Equitable relief.—When one refuses to complete an agreement which is void by the statute of frauds, after receiving a benefit from part performance, he must pay for what he has received. Ray v. Young, 13 T. 550; Thouvenin v. Lea, 26 T. 612; Brewer v. Wall, 23 T. 585, 76 Am. Dec. 76; Allison v. Shilling, 27 T. 450, 86 Am. Dec. 622; Wright v. Hays, 34 T. 253; Bell v. Schwartz, 37 T. 572.

Equity will enforce a verbal gift of land from the father to his son when clearly established, if it be accompanied by possession followed by improvements made on the strength of the gift with the consent of the father. Willis v. Matthews, 46 T. 478.

An owner of land cannot urge the statute of frauds to invalidate a parol sale thereof between adverse claimants to which he was not a party. McManus v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 589.

Special answer in trespass to try title held not demurrable on the ground that the contract therein alleged was within the statute of frauds, and that the court had no jurisdiction to hear a claim for the recovery of money alleged to have been paid thereunder. Brown v. Randolph, 26 C. A. 66, 62 S. W. 981.

A parol sale or gift of real estate cannot be enforced at law, but equity will grant relief if possession and the making of permanent valuable improvements are shown or other facts showing that the transaction is a fraud upon the purchaser or donee if not enforced. Altgelt v. Escalera, 51 C. A. 108, 110 S. W. 990.

39. Persons to whom statute is available.—The invalidity of a parol contract within the statute cannot be set up by a stranger to it. The defense is personal to the one sought to be charged. Railway Co. v. Settegast, 79 T. 256, 15 S. W. 288; Robb v. Railway Co., 82 T. 392, 18 S. W. 707.

The maker of a note for land to which he has been admitted into possession and deed offered him cannot plead want of consideration of the note merely because the sale was by parol. Busby v. Bush, 79 T. 656, 15 S. W. 638.

The defense that a transfer of land is void under the statute cannot be raised by a third party. Bell v. Beazley, 18 C. A. 639, 45 S. W. 401.

Where defendant not only sought parol extension of the written lease, but paid rent for the part of the time for which extension was granted, he could not then assert that the extension was invalid under the statute. Dockery v. Thorn (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 593.

Owner employing a broker to procure a purchaser but reserving right to sell held entitled to show that he orally contracted to sell the land to a third person prior to a sale by the broker. Lewis v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1186.

Where, as a part of the consideration for the purchase of property, the purchaser assumed and agreed to pay certain notes, he cannot assert that his agreement was within the statute of frauds, as a parting with title to property, in reliance on the promise, rendered the debt the original obligation of the purchaser. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 722.

40. Writing subsequent to oral agreement.—Where a written escrow agreement provided for the delivery of the deed upon approval by an attorney of the deeds deposited with the escrow holder, a contemporaneous parol agreement by which the parties were to deliver other abstracts which were to be considered in connection with the deeds deposited in passing upon the title could not be ingrafted upon the written agreement and enforced without violating the statute of frauds (Art. 3965), unless the escrow agreement was first reformed, so as to embody the terms of the parol agreement. Cress v. Holloway (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 209.

G. being the owner of an undivided third of certain lands, and H. having an interest in the remaining two-thirds, and claiming to be the sole owner of such two-thirds, H. contracted in writing to convey to G. and C., in consideration of their defending against the claims of others to part of such two-thirds interest, an undivided one-sixth interest in his personal share of the lands, and in such contract G. agreed to relinquish to C. his interest in said one-sixth, the contract further providing the said one-sixth interest thus secured to C. to be taken out of H.'s interest in said lands, after deducting the one-third interest belonging to G. Held, that nothing short of a subsequent contract in writing meeting the requirements of the statute of frauds could change such agreement, so as to allow the land conveyed to C. by H. and G., in execution of such agreement, to be charged to the interest of G. in partition between him and H. Gurley v. Hanrick's Heirs (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 721.

41. Waiver of bar of statute.—A deed repudiated by the vendee, and destroyed with his consent, cannot afterwards be claimed by him as a compliance with the statute of frauds. Sullivan v. O'Neal, 66 T. 433, 1 S. W. 185.

One promising by parol to convey land in consideration of services to be performed held estopped from setting up the statute of frauds. Hand v. Nix, 39 C. A. 403, 87 S. W. 204.

Vendee in parol contract for the sale of land held to acquire title by estoppel as against the successors of his vendor, although he also placed reliance on other sources of title. Bringham v. Texas Co., 39 C. A. 500, 87 S. W. 893.

Where the lessor urged the statute of frauds as a bar to the enforcement of a lease as to only a part of the term covered, and sought to rely on an oral contract for the whole term, he waived his right to assert its invalidity. Garrett v. Danner (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 678.

42. Trusts.—An agreement by purchaser at execution sale to hold the land subject to reconveyance to the execution debtor held not void, because oral. Brown v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 162.

A grantor of an absolute conveyance may by parol create a trust in favor of a stranger to the deed. Barnet v. Houston, 18 C. A. 134, 44 S. W. 689.

Evidence held to warrant a finding of a parol trust in favor of the grantor. Stubblefield v. Stubblefield (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 965.

Verbal agreement creating a trust concerning lands held not within the statute of frauds. Branch v. De Blanc (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 134.

The statute of frauds does not require constructive trusts to be created in writing. Houser v. Jordan, 26 C. A. 398, 63 S. W. 1049.

Contract to furnish purchase money, and convey land to plaintiff on being repaid, held to raise an express trust, so as not to be within the statute of frauds. Lucia v. Adams, 36 C. A. 454, 82 S. W. 335.

In Texas an express trust may be created by parol. Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 53.

A grantor held entitled to show that the grantee held the premises under a parol trust. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

Express trusts in land are not within the statute of frauds, and may be proved by parol. Id.

A parol agreement creating a trust in land held valid notwithstanding the statute of frauds. Id.

A trust held not affected by the statute of frauds. Salter v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 627.

An express trust in land may be established by parol, notwithstanding the statute of frauds. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

A parol contract between parties, in pursuance of which one party purchased real estate for the joint benefit of all the parties, is not within the statute of frauds. Buckner v. Carter (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 442.

A parol agreement to acquire and hold lands in trust for another is not within the statute of frauds. Henyman v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

An agreement need not be in writing, in order to create an express trust in land. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1047.

43. Requisites and sufficiency of writing.—A void contract for the sale of land, not amounting to an unconditional promise to pay the balance of the price, held insufficient to take the parol contract for the sale out of the statute of frauds. Cammack v. Prather (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 354.

Writing held insufficient to take verbal contract for sale of real estate out of statute of frauds, so as to entitle party to specific performance. Penshorn v. Kunkel, 41 C. A. 97, 90 S. W. 719.

An instrument held sufficiently specific on which to base a decree of specific performance. McAllen v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 760.

In order to pass a permanent right to use another's lands for a particular purpose, the writing must show with reasonable certainty, either in itself or by reference to other writing, the parties, consideration, and subject-matter of the contract. Menczer v. Poage, 55 C. A. 415, 118 S. W. 863.

A contract for the conveyance of real estate held in form subject to specific performance. Redwine v. Hudman, 104 T. 21, 133 S. W. 426.

44. — Description of parties.—An instrument of writing purporting to be a contract to convey land that does not give the names of the sellers nor any description of them, nor refer to any paper where the names can be ascertained will not support an action for specific performance. Morrison v. Hazzard (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 387.

45. — Description of land.—A deed held not void under the statute, though the description of the land was defective. Regan v. Milby, 21 C. A. 21, 50 S. W. 587.

46. — Statement of price.—It is not necessary that the price stipulated to be paid should be expressed in writing. Adkins v. Watson, 12 T. 199; Thomas v. Hammond, 47 T. 42; Fulton v. Robinson, 55 T. 401.

Purchase price of land, not embraced in contract for sale thereof, held may be shown by parol. Dyer v. Winston, 33 C. A. 412, 77 S. W. 227.

Contract for sale of land, omitting to embrace the selling price, held not deficient in execution. Id.

47. — Signature.—Written authority is not necessary to enable an agent to bind his principal in an executory contract for the sale of land. Huffman v. Cartwright, 44 T. 296; Marlin v. Kosmyroski (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1042.

A contract for the sale of land, signed by a part owner, will not bind the other. Moore v. Powell, 25 S. W. 472, 6 C. A. 43.

Contract for sale of land, not signed by person agreeing to purchase, held not within the statute of frauds. Dyer v. Winston, 33 C. A. 412, 77 S. W. 227.

A conveyance by another than the owners, merely on their parol consent, held ineffectual; there being nothing to constitute an estoppel. Kuteman v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 842.

A written contract signed by one party alone held not affected by the statute of frauds. Cotulla v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 294.

Under this article a contract to convey land need only be signed by the party to be charged therewith, and need not be binding upon both parties. Hazzard v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 244.

A writing reciting that the person signing the same was a justice of the peace of the town of Socorro, and that in 1854, in the month of August, he had given possession to T., a resident of the town, of a piece of land in a place called the "acequia dura," consisting of the measurements shown by an annexed survey, to hold in the right of a neighbor, as T. has the rights of citizenship, having done all the ditch work necessary and that such land was given him with the consent and pleasure of the neighbors and citizens of the town in order that he may be warranted in the same, and there is no adverse claim, "as I have freely done this act," and that such resident shall be obligated to record this document in the office of the county that it may have greater force. The writing was signed, "L., Justice of the Peace." Held, that the writing was sufficient to take the transaction out of the statute. Skov v. Coffin (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 450.

Under this article specific performance being sought by the vendor, it is enough that the signing is by the vendee alone. Black v. Hanz (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 309.

48. Contents of memorandum in general.—The memorandum of the sale of land should be so reasonably definite and certain within itself, or by other writing referred to, that the contract can be made out as to parties, consideration and subject-matter, without resort to parol evidence. Johnson v. Granger, 51 T. 42; Dial v. Crain, 10 T. 444; Peters v. Phillips, 19 T. 74, 70 Am. Dec. 319; Patton v. Rucker 29 T. 402; Norris v. Hunt, 51 T. 609; Fulton v. Robinson, 55 T. 401; Watson v. Baker, 71 T. 739, 9 S. W. 867.

A memorandum must describe the land, the subject of the contract, with sufficient exactness to identify it. Parol evidence cannot add to an imperfect contract a material part in order to sustain it, but it can apply a description in it to the subject of the contract. Watson v. Baker, 71 T. 739, 9 S. W. 867.

A writing: "Proposition: All costs and lawyers' fees for litigation $150; also $1,000 for choice of corner." "I accept the above proposition. T. H. Zanderson"—held void as a land contract. Sullivan v. Zanderson (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1027.

A memorandum held too indefinite to constitute a contract for sale of land, within the statute. Zanderson v. Sullivan, 91 T. 499, 44 S. W. 484.

Memorandum for the sale of lands, held insufficient under the statute of frauds. Penn v. Texas Yellow Pine Lumber Co., 35 C. A. 181, 79 S. W. 842.

A memorandum executed by a justice of the peace of the town of Socorro relating to the conveyance of land to a resident of the town held sufficient to take the transaction out of the statute of frauds. Skov v. Coffin (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 450.

A letter written by defendant as to plaintiff's prospective employment held not a sufficient memorandum to bind defendants to pay plaintiff's claim for back wages against a former land company. Warner v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 809.

49. Time of making memorandum.—The memorandum in writing of a contract for the sale of land, required by the statute of frauds, may not only be shown by correspondence, but may be made subsequent to the agreement. Black v. Hanz (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 309.

50. Statement of consideration.—Where a county conveyed school lands to defendant, taking his obligation for the price, a subsequent written contract reducing such interest held not within the statute of frauds. Delta County v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 902.

51. Signature of memorandum.—A memorandum may be signed by an agent. Tynan v. Dullnig, 25 S. W. 465, 818; Heffron v. Pollard, 73 T. 96, 11 S. W. 165, 15 Am. St. Rep. 764.

A memorandum of receipt made by the agent of the owner of land held a sufficient contract of sale under the statute of frauds. Donnell v. Currie & Dohoney (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 88.

52. Separate writings.—In a suit to enforce a contract for the sale of land, certain correspondence between the parties held insufficient to take the contract out of the statute of frauds. Dillard v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 108.

A letter sent by H. to B., stating, "Inclosed find deed of the land I bought from you," and asking that it be signed by B. and wife, and returned, and the inclosed deed, reciting that B. and wife, in consideration of a stated amount, conveyed to H. the described land, are sufficient to take the oral contract out of the statute. Black v. Hanz (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 309.

53. Parol acceptance of written offer.—A verbal acceptance of an offer made in writing and signed by the party to be charged is sufficient. Anderson v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 121.

54. Promises by executors and administrators.—An administrator is not bound personally by an agreement to make good to a purchaser any loss he may sustain by reason of defect in title to land sold by him unless the agreement is in writing. Club Land & Cattle Co. v. Dallas County, 26 C. A. 449, 64 S. W. 875.

The parol promise of an executrix after the death of her husband to pay for services rendered him during his lifetime is void under this statute. Flannery v. Chidgey, 33 C. A. 638, 77 S. W. 1035.

55. Contracts as ground of defense.—Where an owner makes a parol contract for the care of his stock for three years for a part of the increase and within a few months thereafter takes possession of the stock he cannot rely on the contract to prevent the recovery of the reasonable value of the pasturage furnished. Crenshaw v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 284.

56. Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 3.

57. — As ground of defense.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 8.

58. Demurrer raising defense.—See notes at end of Title 37, chapter 2.

59. Objections to evidence of oral contract.—In trespass to try title, plaintiff held entitled to prove a parol gift, so that defendant could not raise the defense of the statute of frauds by objecting to such evidence. Wallis v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 61.

While a general denial is sufficient to let in the defense of the statute of frauds, defendant is obliged to make his defense good by objecting to parol evidence, sought to prove the contract sued on. International Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 43 C. A. 421, 96 S. W. 93.

In an action for breach of a contract of employment, the defense of the statute of frauds held not raised by a request for a peremptory instruction for defendant. Id.

A failure to object to parol evidence proving the contract relied on to constitute a cause of action operates as a waiver of the statute of frauds, not specially pleaded. Id.

60. Evidence.—Though a nuncupative will cannot pass title to land, yet it is admissible, when offered in connection with other evidence, to show that the deceased had previously made a parol sale or gift of the land to the devisee. Wooldridge v. Hancock, 70 T. 18, 6 S. W. 818.

A deed and writing held competent to show parol conveyance had been brought within the statute. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. O'Mahoney (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1049.

Evidence of a written agreement to sell land does not preclude the jury from basing their verdict on a parol agreement preceding the alleged written agreement. Bringham v. Texas Co., 39 C. A. 500, 87 S. W. 893.

An oral promise by defendant to pay a debt of his brother to plaintiff, upon purchasing the brother's business, was prima facie within the statute of frauds. Estes v. Bryant-Fort-Daniel Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1177.

61. Instructions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 13.

Art. 3966. [2544] [2465] Conveyance to defraud creditors, etc., void.—Every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer of, or charge upon, any estate, real or personal, every suit commenced, or decree, judgment or execution suffered or obtained, and every bond or other writing given with intent to delay, hinder or defraud creditors, purchasers, or other persons of or from what they are, or may be, lawfully entitled to, shall, as to such creditors, purchasers or other persons, their representatives or assigns, be void. This article shall not affect the title of a purchaser, for valuable consideration, unless it appear that he had notice of the fraudulent intent of his immediate grantor, or of the fraud rendering void the title of such grantor. [P. D. 3876.]

1. Validity of transfer in general.—D. conveyed to P. land and real estate of the estimated value of $5,000. At the same time P. executed to D. an instrument reciting the conveyance of the property, and agreed to sell the same on the best terms possible, and out of the proceeds was (1) to retain compensation to himself not exceeding ten per cent.; (2) to retain an amount sufficient to pay costs and attorney's fees to defend the interest of the persons named in the schedule; (3) to pay out the remainder pro rata to the persons named in the schedule; and if, after the claims of the persons named in the schedule had been paid, there was a remainder, to pay the same to any creditor of said D. which he (P.) might elect. Held, the reservation to the assignee to declare future preferences rendered the assignment fraudulent and void. Moody v. Paschal, 60 T. 483.

Transfer of part of a stock of merchandise to the creditor's agent held to constitute a valid sale, as against attaching creditors. Triplett v. Morris, 18 C. A. 50, 44 S. W. 684.

Validity of transfer of interest for creditors determined. Bell v. Beazley, 18 C. A. 639, 45 S. W. 401.

A deed conveying grantor's expectancy to real estate held not fraudulent as against subsequent creditors. Searcy v. Gwaltney Bros., 36 C. A. 158, 81 S. W. 576.

2. Badges of fraud.—Conveyance of a stock of goods, followed on the same day by a transfer of notes and accounts, held one transaction. Value of property exceeding debt secured held a badge of fraud. Baylor v. Brown, 21 S. W. 73, 3 C. A. 177.

The fact that one to whom an insolvent transferred his firm interest is insolvent, and cannot pay debts of old firm, held not to make transaction fraudulent. Bell v. Beazley, 18 C. A. 639, 45 S. W. 401.

The employment of the grantors of a stock of goods, after execution of a trust deed of the same, as clerks by the trustee, does not invalidate the deed for fraud. Boltz v. Engelke (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 899.

The retention of the possession of personalty by the seller creates a rebuttable presumption that the sale is fraudulent. Perry v. Patton (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1018.

Mere indefinite indulgence and delay in the collection of a dishonored note is not a badge of fraud. Eason v. Garrison & Kelly, 26 C. A. 574, 82 S. W. 800.

That the value of property transferred by an insolvent to a preferred creditor exceeds the amount of the debt does not invalidate the transfer, if the value is reasonably proportioned to the debt. Awalt v. Schooler (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 302.

3. Collusive suits.—A fraudulent diversion of a debtor's property is as frequently accomplished by a collusive suit as by a direct transfer, and both means are denounced by the statute in the same terms. Martin Clothing Co. v. Page, 1 C. A. 537, 21 S. W. 702.

4. Purchase of homestead.—Transfer by partner in failing circumstances of his interest in exchange for a homestead held not fraudulent. Bell v. Beazley, 18 C. A. 639, 45 S. W. 401.

The transfer of a judgment by an insolvent debtor is not fraudulent where he receives in part payment a house and lot which he claims as a homestead, although he made the transfer to prevent his creditors from reaching the judgment. Thompson v. International & G. N. R. Co., 45 C. A. 285, 100 S. W. 197.

5. Property subject to claims of creditors in general.—Party having no lien on fund due his debtor in hands of county cannot maintain action to set aside fraudulent transfer thereof. Herring-Hall-Marvin Co. v. Kroeger, 23 C. A. 672, 57 S. W. 980.

Where a husband has taken the title to land purchased with his wife's money, the fact that the husband and wife join in a conveyance of the property to a stranger to prevent its seizure for the husband's debts does not render the conveyance void as in fraud of his creditors. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper, 39 C. A. 99, 87 S. W. 235.

6. Exempt property in general.—The conveyance of property which is exempt by law from forced sale is not within the purview of the statute. Wood v. Chambers, 20 T. 247, 70 Am. Dec. 382; Cox v. Shropshire, 25 T. 113; Martel v. Somers, 26 T. 551; Beard v. Blum, 64 T. 59; Scheuber v. Ballow, 64 T. 166.

If the conveyance of exempt property is simulated and colorable, merely made upon a secret trust that the vendee should hold the property for the vendor after the latter had abandoned the use of it, by its subsequent abandonment it becomes liable to be taken in execution. Cox v. Shropshire, 25 T. 113.

7. Homestead.—Where a homestead is conveyed with intent to defraud creditors, but the grantor continues in occupation, the conveyance is not in law fraudulent as to such creditors. Brown v. Moore (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 781.

Creditors of the owner of a homestead cannot complain of a sale thereof as fraudulent. Heidelbach, Friedlander & Co. v. Carter, 34 C. A. 579, 79 S. W. 346.

The conveyance of a homestead, even for the purpose of avoiding the payment of the grantor's debts does not fall within this article. Jolly v. Diehl, 38 C. A. 549, 86 S. W. 966.

Sale by mortgagor to mortgagee of crop gathered and ungathered from his homestead and partly exempt and partly nonexempt held not fraudulent as to creditors. Nunn-Weldon Dry Goods Co. v. Haden (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 73.

On attachment of land claimed to have been fraudulently conveyed to defendant debtor's wife, the debtor and his wife claiming the land as a homestead, the case held determinable upon the status of the homestead claim at the time of the conveyance. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Burge, 49 C. A. 599, 110 S. W. 181.

If property had not been abandoned as a homestead when it was conveyed to the owner's wife, an intent to abandon in the future did not make the conveyance fraudulent as to his creditors. Id.

A conveyance of a homestead, whether with or without consideration, and though to defraud the owner's creditors, is valid, and will not be set aside as fraudulent. Holt v. Abby (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 173.

That a wife allowed her son to manage her separate property and conduct the business in his name will not deprive her of any right or equity which she might have, even though the arrangement was fraudulent. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

8. Insolvency element of fraud.—The sale of property by a debtor in failing circumstances, known to the purchaser, for a fair consideration paid in money or negotiable notes, may be fraudulent. Seligson v. Brown, 61 T. 180.

When property has been conveyed in good faith by a debtor to his creditor in payment of his debt, it is immaterial that the creditor knew that he owed other debts which would not be paid. Rider v. Hunt, 6 C. A. 238, 25 S. W. 314.

A conveyance by an insolvent debtor of all his property not exempt for cash to one knowing his indebtedness is fraudulent where the purchase money is not applied to his debts. Proetzel v. Buck Stove Co. (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1110.

A bona fide sale without fraudulent intent on part of vendor, for a fair and valuable consideration, is not void on account of the vendor's insolvency. Cox v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 85.

Grantee held chargeable with notice of grantor's insolvency, and deed void as against creditors, though grantee was innocent of any corrupt motive. Paddock v. Jackson, 16 C. A. 655, 41 S. W. 700.

Where a grantor known to grantee to be insolvent receives the purchase price of the property conveyed in money and notes, to be used in grantor's discretion, the conveyance held void as in fraud of creditors. Armstrong v. Elliott, 20 C. A. 41, 49 S. W. 635.

Mere fact that grantor is insolvent held not to make a transfer of his property to a creditor invalid as to other creditors. Moore v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 890.

A deed from an insolvent, with or without a consideration, executed under such cir-circumstances as to charge the vendee with notice, can be set aside by creditor. Davis v. Culp (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 554.

A transfer of property by an insolvent to one having knowledge of the insolvency held not presumptively fraudulent. Meyer Bros. Drug Co. v. Durham, 35 C. A. 71, 79 S. W. 860.

Mere insolvency of a buyer of goods and his concealment of such fact does not necessarily indicate an intention to defraud, justifying a rescission by the seller. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills v. Weber, 46 C. A. 433, 102 S. W. 471.

The insolvency of a vendor at the time of a sale will not defeat the title of vendee purchasing for a valuable consideration without notice of the vendor's insolvency. Folkes v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 958.

A purchaser of goods from an insolvent debtor though he pays full value, if chargeable with notice of the seller's fraudulent intent, acquires no title as against creditors, and such creditors may proceed by execution, attachment, or garnishment. McIntosh & Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

An insolvent debtor may transfer property in good faith to a creditor in payment of the debt provided the creditor also acts in good faith, though the effect is to prevent other creditors from collecting their debts. Whitesides v. Bacon (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 301.

9. Reservations and trusts.—A failing debtor may in good faith provide for the payment of designated debts by a mortgage of property with a power of sale, and such an instrument is not invalid because of the interest that might possibly remain to the mortgagor after the payment of the enumerated debts. Such an interest, if any, can be reached by unsecured creditors through proper process. Scott v. McDaniel, 67 T. 315, 3 S. W. 291. An insolvent debtor may prefer partnership debts. Chesser v. Clamp, 10 C. A. 350, 30 S. W. 466.

Where a preferred creditor pays money or executes a negotiable note to his insolvent debtor as part consideration for his purchase of the debtor's goods, the transaction will not be declared fraudulent in law where it is not shown that more goods have been knowingly received than are reasonably required to pay the debt. Oppenheimer v. Halff, 68 T. 409, 4 S. W. 562; Blankenship v. Willis, 1 C. A. 657, 20 S. W. 952.

Reserving trifling amounts by a debtor in making an assignment is no indication of fraud, and that most of the claims assigned are worthless is no objection to the assignment, when it appears they were all he had. Black v. Vaughn, 70 T. 47, 7 S. W. 604.

If a creditor purchase from his debtor goods exceeding in value the amount of his debt, and cancel the debt in part payment, and the sale is in all respects fair and honest, he will be protected like any other purchaser. The fact that the surplus in value was paid to the debtor is immaterial, unless the transaction was made for the purpose of giving the debtor the advantage of such surplus, and in order to defraud his other creditors. Allen v. Carpenter, 66 T. 138, 18 S. W. 347; Black v. Vaughn, 70 T. 47, 7 S. W. 604; Oppenheimer v. Halff, 68 T. 409; 4 S. W. 562; Harness Co. v. Schoellkopf, 71 T. 412, 9 S. W. 336.

A conveyance in trust of goods by an insolvent debtor, the proceeds of sale, after satisfying a particular debt, to be paid to the grantor, is not necessarily invalid. Otherwise where the value of the goods greatly exceeds the amount of the debt, and the trustee is allowed six months in making a sale. Greer v. Richardson Drug Co., 1 C. A. 634, 20 S. W. 1127.

A conveyance of property in trust for the payment of debts, empowering a sale at retail, is valid unless the property in value exceeded the valid debts intended to be secured. Rainwater-Boogher Hat Co. v. Weaver, 23 S. W. 914; 4 C. A. 594; Baldwin v. Peet, 22 T. 720, 75 Am. Dec. 806; Simon v. Ash, 1 C. A. 202, 20 S. W. 719. See Gregg v. Cleveland, 82 T. 187, 17 S. W. 777.

A creditor may lawfully pay his debtor a sum of money in consideration of a sale of goods not exceeding in value the amount of the debt. Phillips v. Schoellkopf (Sup.) 29 S. W. 645, citing Oppenheimer v. Halff, 68 T. 409, 4 S. W. 562.

Where the mortgagee is shown to be the trustee of the mortgagor for the residuary interest, a finding that the mortgage was void because of agreement to purchase at a reduced price held sustained by the evidence. Frost v. Mason, 17 C. A. 465, 44 S. W. 53.

One who conspires with a debtor to defraud his creditors, and purchases his property from a trustee for less than it is worth, is liable to the creditors for the difference between the value and the amount paid, though the trustee has applied the proceeds to the payment of bona fide claims. Kosminsky v. Hamburger, 21 C. A. 341, 51 S. W. 53.

Where a husband, fearing alimony would be decreed against him in a divorce suit, conveyed land to be held for him, a reconveyance would not be denied; it not appearing that alimony was ever decreed. Rivera v. White, 94 T. 538, 63 S. W. 125.

That a conveyance was in trust held not proven by grantor's admissions. Moulton v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1114.

A grantor executing a deed to defraud his creditors may not create a trust in favor of a third person. Roth v. Schroeter (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 203.

A conveyance by a trustee under a secret trust to the beneficiary held not fraudulent as against creditors of the trustee, unless the beneficiary knowingly permitted the trustee to represent that he was the owner of the property, inducing creditors to extend credit on the faith of it. Stone v. Stitt (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 862.

Where a person makes an absolute conveyance of land without consideration, in fraud of his creditors, though with an understanding that it is to be held only in trust, neither he nor his heirs can enforce the trust against the grantee nor a purchaser from the grantee. Scarborough v. Blount (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 312.

The rights of a purchaser of the equity of redemption for a valuable consideration from the mortgagor would not be affected by any illegality in an agreement theretofore made by the mortgagor with a creditor to convey his property to the creditor, who agreed to pay the surplus after paying the debts to mortgagor's wife. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

10. Right of debtor to prefer creditor.—A debtor, though in failing circumstances, has the right, in making an assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors, to prefer creditors, if done bona fide; and if the purpose is to pay honest debts, either by a general distribution or by expressing preference among his creditors, it will be valid. Baldwin v. Peet, 22 T. 717, 75 Am. Dec. 806; Blum v. Simpson, 71 T. 623, 9 S. W. 662.

An insolvent debtor has the right to pay one or more of his just debts with money or property, conveyed at a fair price, either to the debtor or to some other person who, by the terms of the sale, is bound to see, and does see, that the money or property is appropriated for that purpose. The fact that a preference is thus designedly given, and the effect of which is to delay, or even defeat, other creditors in the collection of their debts, does not render such payment or conveyance fraudulent and void. But if the purpose of the debtor, within the knowledge of such creditor, is to secure to himself an interest in the property so conveyed, or to place the same, or any part thereof, beyond the reach of his creditors, the payment or conveyance is absolutely void. Lewy v. Fischl, 65 T. 311; Schneider v. Sansom, 62 T. 201, 50 Am. Rep. 521; Hamilton v. East Texas Ins. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 448; Schneider v. Bullard, 1 App. C. C. § 1185; Gamble v. Talbot, 2 App. C. C. § 731; Pessels v. Schwab Clothing Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 814; Florsheim Bros. v. Watterman, 10 C. A. 102, 30 S. W. 505.

A debtor has the legal right to pay one or more of his just debts with money or property (Sweeney v. Conley, 71 T. 543, 9 S. W. 548; Willis v. Whitsitt, 67 T. 673, 4 S. W. 253), though he may thereby withdraw from the reach of other creditors property which they might subject to the payment of their debts equally just; and for this purpose the debtor may convey or sell the property at a fair price to some person who, by the terms of the sale, is bound to see, and does see, that the money is at once appropriated to that purpose. And so a bona fide creditor can, by agreement, acquire a valid lien upon property of an insolvent debtor. The intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors cannot exist where the purpose is to appropriate the property of the debtor or the proceeds of its fair value to the payment of one or more just debts, in a manner and at a time satisfactory to the creditor to be paid. Knowledge by the purchaser that the debtor intended, after paying certain debts, to apply the residue of the property to the payment of other just debts, even by way of preference, would not vitiate the sale. Ellis v. Valentine, 65 T. 532; Numsen v. Ellis, 3 App. C. C. § 135; Bailey v. Crittenden, 3 App. C. C. § 179; Williams v. Perry, 3 App. C. C. § 210.

A sale by a failing debtor for the purpose of applying the proceeds of sale to the payment of his debts is not fraudulent as to creditors not sharing in the proceeds of such sale. Sweeney v. Conley, 71 T. 543, 9 S. W. 548; Willis v. Whitsitt, 67 T. 673, 4 S. W. 253.

An insolvent debtor may pay certain of his creditors in full, and leave others unpaid, and may sell property for such purpose. Rogers v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 599.

11. — Individual debt of partner.—The preference of the individual debt of a partner by the conveyance of both partners of the firm assets, they being insufficient to satisfy all the firm creditors, is fraudulent as to the latter. Bloch v. Spruance, 12 C. A. 309, 33 S. W. 1002.

12. — Sureties.—Sureties may assume the debt of their principal and take property at a reasonable price whether principal be solvent or insolvent. Traders' Bank v. Clare, 76 T. 47, 13 S. W. 183.

A failing debtor may protect his surety by a transfer of goods reasonably proportioned to the amount of the debt. Frees v. Baker, 81 T. 216, 16 S. W. 900, 13 L. R. A. 340; Keating Imp. & Mach. Co. v. Terre Haute C. & B. Co., 11 C. A. 216, 32 S. W. 556. The natural and ordinary result of a conveyance of property by an insolvent debtor for negotiable promissory notes is to withdraw it from the reach of creditors—is to hinder and delay creditors. Blum v. McBride, 69 T. 60, 5 S. W. 641.

13. — Mortgages and other transfers as security.—A creditor may in good faith secure his debt from a failing or insolvent debtor, although his mortgage may delay and hinder other creditors in the collection of their debts. Ellis v. Valentine, 65 T. 547; Rider v. Hunt, 6 C. A. 243, 25 S. W. 314; Kraus v. Haas, 6 C. A. 665, 25 S. W. 1025; Haas v. Kraus, 27 S. W. 256, 86 T. 687; Refining Co. v. Harrison, 9 C. A. 141, 29 S. W. 500; Wood v. Castlebury (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 653.

An insolvent debtor has the right to transfer a debt due himself as a collateral to secure his debt to another, and a reservation to himself in the transfer of any balance that may remain after the satisfaction of his own debt does not render the transfer fraudulent. McClure v. Sheek's Heirs, 68 T. 426, 4 S. W. 552.

Mortgagees as well as purchasers are protected. Hardware Co. v. Kaufman, 77 T. 138, 8 S. W. 283. See Steffan v. Bank, 69 T. 517, 6 S. W. 823; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 648; Shoe Co. v. Mars, 82 T. 493, 17 S. W. 370; Rives v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 707.

A mortgage by an insolvent debtor to creditors to secure an actual indebtedness and an additional sum advanced is fraudulent as to other creditors. Wallis v. Adoue, 76 T. 118, 13 S. W. 63.

A mortgage with power to sell is not void as to a creditor by reason of a direction that the sales must be made in regular course of business. Simon v. McDonald, 85 T. 237, 20 S. W. 52.

A deed of trust for the benefit of creditors is not void as to bona fide creditors, though fraudulent as to others. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Lastinger (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 924.

A mortgage executed to secure the payment of a note in consideration of an extension of time is supported by a valuable consideration, and is superior to the equitable rights of another in the mortgaged property not known to the mortgagee. Halbert v. Paddleford (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 592.

Trust deed for creditors held not fraudulent on its face. Moore v. Blum (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 511.

Trust deed of firm property to secure debt of existing firm and of a prior firm held not void as in fraud of creditors. Bell v. Beazley, 13 C. A. 639, 45 S. W. 401.

A deed of trust for creditors not under general assignment law held fraudulent in requiring creditors in a certain class to release their claims in full. Temple Grocer Co. v. Clabaugh, 18 C. A. 655, 45 S. W. 482.

Acceptance of a deed of trust for certain creditors by one not participating in the fraudulent intent with which it was executed held to make it a lien to secure the debt of such creditor. Sutton v. Simon, 91 T. 638, 45 S. W. 559.

Terms of a mortgage to secure creditors considered, and held not fraudulent as to creditors whose claims were not secured thereby. Fry v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 621.

Where a mortgage given by husband and wife was valid, it was immaterial to the husband's creditors whether a deed under which the wife claimed to have derived sole title from the husband was fraudulent. Avery v. Popper (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 951.

A mortgage to secure a valid debt held not fraudulent, though the mortgagee knew that the debtor's motive was to secure him in preference to other creditors. Cameron v. Cates (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 398.

A conveyance by an insolvent debtor to secure creditors, where there is one preferred bona fide accepting creditor, is not illegal, though the other parties intended to defraud the nonpreferred creditors. Cleveland v. People's Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 523.

That insolvent tenant mortgaged his property to secure future rent and payment of debts held not to make landlord liable as garnishee to tenant's creditors. Mayer v. Templeton (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 68.

Deed of trust preferring certain creditors, made with intent to delay other creditors, will be enforced for benefit of creditors without knowledge of such intent. Wade v. Odle, 21 C. A. 656, 54 S. W. 786.

Property conveyed by deed preferring creditors being less than the amount of debts secured, an attaching creditor cannot complain of provision in deed tending to hinder unsecured creditors, the preferred creditors being innocent of fraud. Wade v. Odle, 21 C. A. 656, 54 S. W. 786.

A mortgage to secure a fictitious debt, executed by an insolvent mortgagor with the intent to hinder other creditors, with the mortgagee's knowledge, held void as against the mortgagor's creditors. Watts v. Dubois (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

A mortgage in good faith on firm property to secure a firm debt and an individual partner's debt held valid, though the firm was insolvent. Id.

Where a chattel mortgage was given to secure a present debt, a subsequent oral agreement that it should cover future advances held void as to creditors of the mortgagor. F. Groos & Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 402.

If the debt which is the subject of the security is a valid and subsisting debt and a bona fide transaction, evidenced by a note, then the fact of executing a mortgage intended by the parties as security is not sufficient to make the mortgage void as to creditors, especially where there had been an agreement in advance of the note for the security. Hudson v. Childree (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1154.

14. Preference of wife.—An insolvent debtor may prefer a creditor, and even though the creditor preferred be his wife the transaction is valid if open and made for the bona fide purpose of paying a debt. Cox v. Miller, 54 T. 16; Weir Plow Co. v. Carroll, 4 App. C. C. § 178, 15 S. W. 123; Bowie v. Hendrick (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 317; Jacobs v. Womack (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 436.

The rule that the debtor can prefer a creditor applies where the wife is the creditor of the husband. Thompson v. Hervey, 2 App. C. C. § 506.

An insolvent husband can prefer and pay the bona fide debt owing his wife over debts of other creditors. Massie v. McKee (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 119.

15. Consideration and payment of liabilities.—As to payments to creditors, see Smith v. Whitfield, 67 T. 124, 2 S. W. 822; Black v. Vaughn, 70 T. 47, 7 S. W. 604; Jackson v. Harby, 70 T. 410, 8 S. W. 71; Sweeney v. Conley, 71 T. 543, 9 S. W. 548; Ramsey v. Hurley, 72 T. 194, 12 S. W. 56; Davis v. Beason, 77 T. 604, 14 S. W. 198; Frees v. Baker, 81 T. 216, 16 S. W. 900, 13 L. R. A. 340; Ellis v. Valentine, 65 T. 532; La Belle Wagon Works v. Tidball, 59 T. 291; Schneider v. Sansom, 62 T. 201, 50 Am. Rep. 521; Moody v. Paschal, 60 T. 483.

The taking of goods in payment of a just debt, reasonably sufficient to satisfy the debt, is not fraudulent. Owens v. Clark, 78 T. 547, 550, 15 S. W. 101; Jacobs v. Totty, 76 T. 348, 13 S. W. 372; Lewy v. Fischl, 65 T. 320; Greenleve v. Blum, 59 T. 126; Ellis v. Valentine, 65 T. 543; Edwards v. Dickson, 66 T. 614, 2 S. W. 718; Harness Co. v. Schoelkopf, 71 T. 422, 9 S. W. 336; Allen v. Carpenter, 66 T. 140, 18 S. W. 347; Reynolds v. Weinman (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 33.

It is not improper for an insolvent merchant to either transfer his property itself in discharge of a debt or to sell it for money and pay the debt with the money, or to do both. It only prohibits him from disposing of it "with intent to delay," etc. Sanger v. Colbert, 84 T. 668, 19 S. W. 863.

A payment by a creditor to an insolvent debtor of a sum of money in consideration of personal property of value in excess of the debt renders the transaction fraudulent and void. See Williams v. Moore, 25 S. W. 1010, 6 C. A. 340, citing Oppenheimer v. Half, 68 T. 409, 4 S. W. 604; Wallis v. Adoue, 76 T. 118, 13 S. W. 63; Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 75 T. 563, 12 S. W. 964; Seligson v. Brown, 61 T. 180; Elsner v. Graber, 69 T. 222, 6 S. W. 560; Traders' Bank v. Day, 27 S. W. 265, 7 C. A. 569; Ewing v. Teague (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 401.

H., being indebted, executed a chattel mortgage with power of sale to P. as trustee, conveying all his stock of goods, worth $1,400, for the benefit of certain creditors, and preferring the bank of which P. was cashier. At the same time H. withdrew from the bank, with its consent, the balance of his deposit, $223. It was held that a creditor may lawfully pay his debtor a sum of money in consideration of a sale to him by the latter of a stock of goods in payment of his debts, provided the goods so sold do not exceed in value the amount of such debt. On the other hand it is well established that if in such a case the value of the goods is greater than the original indebtedness the transaction is fraudulent. Phillips v. Schoelkopf (Sup.) 29 S. W. 645; Id. (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 918.

Transfer by insolvent to one having knowledge thereof, in payment of an antecedent debt exceeding the value of the property transferred, is valid. Texas Drug Co. v. Shields, 20 C. A. 274, 48 S. W. 832.

Transfer by an insolvent of all his property in payment of a debt held fraudulent as to creditors. Half v. Goldfrank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1095.

The invalidity of an insolvent's transfer of his property to a creditor in payment of the debt, the property largely exceeding the debt, held not dependent on the creditor's knowledge. Id.

A transfer in payment of a pre-existing debt, though the intent be to delay and defraud creditors, is valid. Texas Drug Co. v. Baker, 20 C. A. 684, 50 S. W. 157.

Where one of several creditors, knowing that the debtor is insolvent, accepts a conveyance from him of only so much property as is reasonably sufficient to discharge the debt, the conveyance is valid. Broach v. Garth (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 594.

A party who took goods in satisfaction of a debt is not estopped, in a proceeding attacking the conveyance to him as fraudulent, from showing the real value of the goods. Belknap v. Groover (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 249.

Where a wife with her husband's consent purchases her debtor's property and assumes payments of debts due other creditors to procure satisfaction of a debt to her, the conveyance is not fraudulent. Hugo & Schmeltzer Co. v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 163.

Where a debtor conveys all his property in payment of a debt, and the value of the property greatly exceeds the amount of the debt, the conveyance is fraudulent as against the other creditors of the debtor. Clark v. Bell, 40 C. A. 39, 89 S. W. 38.

A conveyance by the maker of a note in payment thereof held not fraudulent as to the maker's creditors, though the person to whom the conveyance was made had acquired the note to protect the maker from suit on it. Riske v. Rotan Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 708.

Plaintiff, having been induced to sell goods by a false statement of his vendee as to his financial condition, a large indebtedness to defendants having been omitted therefrom with their connivance, may avoid the sale and recover the property from defendants, to whom the goods were transferred in payment of this pre-existing indebtedness. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Glover, 45 C. A. 93, 99 S. W. 592.

That the value of property transferred by an insolvent to a preferred creditor exceeds the amount of the debt does not invalidate the transfer, if the value is reasonably proportioned to the debt. Awalt v. Schooler (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 302.

Insolvent debtor held entitled to pay one creditor to the exclusion of others, provided the transaction be in good faith. Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 435.

Where, prior to the levy of a writ of attachment against an insolvent debtor, he transferred the property to another creditor in satisfaction of a debt, and it did not appear that the property was reasonably worth more than sufficient for its satisfaction, the transferee was entitled to hold the property as against the attachment creditor. Jackson v. Downs (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 286.

16. — Moral obligation.—Where defendant's mother conveyed land to him by gift in consideration that he should build thereon and live near her in her old age, and should reconvey if he did not do so, the moral obligation which defendant assumed was a sufficient consideration to protect a reconveyance, voluntarily made, from attack by his creditors as without consideration and fraudulent. Paris Grocer Co. v. Burns, 56 C. A. 223, 120 S. W. 552.

17. — Transactions between husband and wife.—Conveyance by partner on division of firm assets of his share to pay debt due his wife held not fraudulent as to creditors. Bonds v. Eagle & Phoenix Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 539.

A transfer of property by an insolvent husband to his wife, to whom he is indebted, which is of no greater value than reasonably sufficient to pay her debt, is valid as against his other creditors. Thompson v. Wilson, 24 C. A. 666, 60 S. W. 354.

Conveyance of land from husband to wife in satisfaction of a bona fide debt held not fraudulent as against creditors of the husband. McCrary v. Lutz, 94 T. 650, 64 S. W. 780.

Bank stock, transferred by a wife to her husband to qualify him as a director, on the understanding that on his election he should retransfer the same, held not subject, after the retransfer, to garnishment by a creditor of the husband. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 550.

Settlement between a husband and wife under certain conditions held valid as against creditors. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 505, 109 S. W. 909.

The transfer of property by a debtor to his wife to pay an indebtedness to her is not fraudulent if no more property is transferred than is reasonably sufficient to satisfy the debt, as a failing debtor has the right to prefer one or more of his creditors to the exclusion of others. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

18. — Partial invalidity or illegality.—Where the value of goods did not exceed the debt, exclusive of interest, in satisfaction of which they were transferred, it was immaterial, in attacking the transfer as fraudulent, what portion of the interest was usurious. Belknap v. Groover (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 249.

19. Fraudulent intent of debtor.—Trust deed in favor of creditors to hinder and delay other creditors held not void as to creditors secured thereby whose claims were not fraudulent. Galveston Dry-Goods Co. v. Blum, 23 C. A. 703, 57 S. W. 1121.

A transfer of property from debtor to creditor is not invalidated by the mere fact that it is made in order to defeat another creditor in the collection of his claim. Moore v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 890.

A conveyance of real estate, unless made with the intent of placing the same beyond the reach of the creditors of the grantor, is not fraudulent as to subsequent creditors. Searcy v. Gwaltney Bros., 36 C. A. 158, 81 S. W. 576.

20. — Knowledge or notice of intent and participation therein.—When property is purchased for a valuable consideration from an insolvent debtor, and the conveyance is attacked as fraudulent by a creditor, it devolves upon him to prove that the conveyance was made by the vendor with a fraudulent intent, and that this intent was known to the purchaser. But when the conveyance is made to a third party for the benefit of certain preferred creditors, it is then immaterial whether this intent was known to either the trustee or the beneficiaries, and if the deed was executed with the intent to delay, hinder or defraud creditors, it is void. Simon v. Ash, 1 C. A. 202, 20 S. W. 719, approving Baldwin v. Peet, 22 T. 710, 75 Am. Dec. 806.

If the sale be made with the intent on the part of the seller to hinder, delay or defraud creditors, and that intent was known to the purchaser, or could have been known by the use of diligence, the sale is void, though made for good and valuable consideration. The word "notice" includes every fact which the purchaser could have ascertained by a proper use of the knowledge he actually possessed. Traylor v. Townsend, 61 T. 144; Wright v. Lynn, 16 T. 34; Mills v. Howeth, 19 T. 259, 70 Am. Dec. 331; Humphries v. Freeman, 22 T. 45; Weisiger v. Chisholm, 28 T. 780; Blum v. Simpson, 66 T. 84, 17 S. W. 402; Allen v. Carpenter, 66 T. 138, 18 S. W. 347.

The creditor may receive payment of an honest debt in property of his debtor at a fair valuation, though he may know at the time that the debtor's intent in making the payment is, and the necessary effect of his act will be, to place the property beyond the reach of other creditors. Lewy v. Fischl, 65 T. 311; Greenleve, Block & Co. v. Blum, 59 T. 124; La Belle Wagon Works v. Tidball, 59 T. 291; Schneider v. Sansom, 62 T. 201, 50 Am. Rep. 521; Iglehart v. Willis, 58 T. 306; Blum v. Welborne, 58 T. 157; Keating v. Vaughn, 61 T. 518; Lambeth v. McClinton, 65 T. 108; Allen v. Carpenter, 66 T. 138, 18 S. W. 347; Smith v. Whitfield, 67 T. 124, 2 S. W. 822; Thompson v. Hervey, 2 App. C. C. § 506; La Belle v. Tidball, 69 T. 161, 6 S. W. 672; Elser v. Graber, 69 T. 222, 6 S. W. 560.

A sale by a debtor for the purpose of defrauding his creditors is void when his vendee had notice of facts sufficient to put a man with ordinary prudence upon notice of the purpose of the vendor. Blum v. Simpson, 71 T. 628, 9 S. W. 662.

A purchaser from a failing debtor who sold in fraud of his creditors, in order to hold the property must show that he, having no notice of the fraud, paid cash or had given his negotiable notes for the consideration. Tillman v. Heller, 78 T. 597, 14 S. W. 700, 11 L. R. A. 628, 22 Am. St. Rep. 77.

It being shown that a valuable consideration was paid, the creditor must show that the purchaser had actual or constructive knowledge of the fraudulent intent. Le Page v. Slade, 79 T. 473, 15 S. W. 496.

A conveyance to secure a bona fide debt is invalid if made with a fraudulent intent and the creditor participates in such intent. Mixon v. Symonds, 21 S. W. 772, 2 C. A. 629; Stuart v. Smith (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 1026.

Purchase of property of debtor by creditor to amount of debt held valid though purchaser may have had knowledge of intent of debtor to hinder other creditors. Head v. Bracht (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 630.

Purchaser from insolvent will be protected unless he knew of fraudulent intent. Wofford v. Farmer, 90 T. 651, 40 S. W. 788; Id. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 739; Hillboldt v. Waugh, 47 S. W. 829.

A purchase from an insolvent held not fraudulent though purchaser knew of insolvency, where he did not know of any intent to defraud creditors though the sale was on credit. Ligon v. Tilman (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1069.

It is not the duty of a buyer, who knows that the seller is indebted to a third person, to see that the proceeds of the sale are used in paying such third person. Ellis v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 550.

Evidence held to support a finding that a transfer by a merchant of his stock in trade to a corporation organized by him was fraudulent, and that the corporation was a party to the fraud. Holloway Seed Co. v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 77.

An instruction that if the purchaser's only purpose in taking the transfer was to collect his debt, it was valid though the debtor intended to defraud other creditors, was faulty as omitting to charge that the purchaser must have no notice of the debtor's intent. Koch v. Bruce, 20 C. A. 634, 49 S. W. 1101.

Intent to aid an insolvent debtor in hindering creditors will not invalidate a transfer of personalty in settlement of a bona fide debt, if no excess of property is received. Garrity v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 367.

A mortgage to secure a bona fide debt, executed by an insolvent mortgagor with intent to hinder his creditors, held valid, unless the mortgagee participated in the fraudulent intent. Watts v. Dubois (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

Wife held not charged with notice of fraudulent character of deed of trust executed by her son, by reason of knowledge in her husband. M. A. Cooper & Co. v. Sawyer, 31 C. A. 620, 73 S. W. 992.

The purchase by a creditor of property from an insolvent debtor with knowledge of the insolvency is not fraudulent as to other creditors by reason of the debtor's intent to defraud them, in the absence of participation by the purchasing creditor in such fraudulent intent. Sparks v. Ponder, 42 C. A. 431, 94 S. W. 428.

A sale made with the intention of defrauding creditors held invalid against them if the vendee knew of such intent, or had constructive notice thereof. Baze v. Island City Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 460.

An attachment against grantor held to afford no evidence against grantee of the indebtedness, and, without further proof, the party asserting it does not put himself in a position to attack the conveyance as fraudulent. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 505, 109 S. W. 909.

Rule as to validity of transfers by insolvents to preferred creditors where such creditor acts in good faith, stated. Awalt v. Schooler (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 302.

Where a mother furnished the money for the purchase of real estate, the legal title to which was taken in the name of her son, a conveyance by him to his mother before any creditor of the son had attached the property would not be set aside as against creditors, unless it appeared that the mother knowingly permitted the son to represent that he was the owner of the property, and thereby caused creditors to extend credit to him on the faith of his ownership. Stone v. Stitt (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 862.

Mere knowledge of indebtedness and even of insolvency will not render a sale void as to creditors, unless the purchaser had notice of a fraudulent intent on the part of the debtor to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, or knowledge of such facts as would put a reasonably prudent man upon inquiry, under this article. McIlroy v. Stone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 944.

A purchaser of goods from an insolvent debtor, though he pays full value, if chargeable with notice of the seller's fraudulent intent, acquires no title as against creditors, and such creditors may proceed by execution, attachment, or garnishment. McIntosh & Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

Sales by an insolvent debtor to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors, when the intent could be known by the purchaser by the exercise of ordinary diligence, even though he paid a consideration, are void as to creditors of the vendor. Whitesides v. Bacon (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 301.

An insolvent debtor may transfer property to a creditor in payment of the debt, provided the creditor receiving the property acts in good faith, and takes the same for the sole purpose of collecting a bona fide debt, though the effect of the transaction is to hinder and delay other creditors, or to prevent them from collecting their debts. Id.

21. Persons entitled to assert invalidity in general.—A person who is not a creditor or a subsequent purchaser without notice cannot question the validity of a conveyance made by one who afterwards becomes his debtor. De Garza v. Galvan, 55 T. 53.

A creditor holding a debt discharged in bankruptcy, upon which he afterwards recovered judgment, cannot attack for fraud a conveyance made prior to the judgment. Hodges v. Taylor, 57 T. 196; Riggs v. Hanrick, 59 T. 570; Cason v. Chambers, 62 T. 305.

Pending a suit for divorce, the wife, when asserting her claim for alimony, is, within the meaning of the statutes prohibiting fraudulent conveyances, to be deemed a creditor. Lott v. Kaiser, 61 T. 665. See Murray v. Murray, 66 T. 207, 18 S. W. 506.

L., for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, conveyed to B. certain property subject to execution, and which was afterwards sold under a judgment against L. In consideration of the sale B. executed to L. his note for the purchase money. Before its maturity, the note having been lost, L. transferred his interest to M., who was not shown to have paid value therefor, and he, after the maturity of the lost note, transferred it to S. Held, in an action by S. against B. on the note, the latter could set up the fraudulent character of the transaction in bar. Davis v. Sittig, 65 T. 497.

Legal proceedings properly instituted, but having the effect of hindering and delaying other creditors, are not voidable by them. Martin-Brown Co. v. Perrell, 77 T. 199, 13 S. W. 975.

Creditors held to be estopped from attacking a transfer of corporate property as fraudulent, where they have acquiesced in such transfer. Tenney v. Ballard, Webb & Burnette Hat Co., 17 C. A. 144, 43 S. W. 296.

A conveyance made with intent to defeat a certain creditor will be set aside in his favor, whether the claim existed at the time of the conveyance or was then merely in contemplation. Tucker v. Pennington (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 313.

Lands fraudulently conveyed can be subjected to such part of judgment against grantor as represents indebtedness prior to the lien. Heath v. First Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 63, 46 S. W. 123.

Where a defendant in a divorce suit voluntarily conveys his real estate, and one knowing all the facts takes it as security for debts owing by defendant, such conveyance held fraudulent as to the claim of the wife for alimony. Schultze v. Schultze (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

Whether the transaction between a debtor, who executed a deed for the benefit of creditors, and an alleged creditor, was fraudulent, held immaterial to one whose claim against the debtor was fraudulent. Baum v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, 32 C. A. 531, 75 S. W. 863.

One not a creditor at the time of a conveyance held not entitled to attack it as fraudulent. Riske v. Rotan Grocery Co., 37 C. A. 494, 84 S. W. 243.

The courts have construed the word "void" used in this article as meaning "voidable." A deed made to defraud creditors is valid between the parties to the deed, and can only be set aside by creditors or purchasers intended to be defrauded. The land conveyed by such deed cannot be recovered from the grantee, without first obtaining a decree annulling such deed in a suit brought for that purpose. Rutherford v. Carr (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 660.

Purchaser of land at execution sale, title to which had been conveyed by judgment debtor to a stranger prior to sale and was of record at the time, held not entitled to defeat record owner's title. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper, 39 C. A. 99, 87 S. W. 235.

Where a debtor transfers property with intent to shield it, future, as well as existing, creditors, may have the conveyance set aside as fraudulent. Maffi v. Stephens, 49 C. A. 354, 108 S. W. 1008.

One having a claim for unliquidated damages, as for slander, held entitled to protection against fraudulent conveyances. Robertson v. Hefley, 55 C. A. 368, 118 S. W. 1159.

22. Validity as between original parties or their representatives.—A conveyance void as to creditors is valid against the vendor, his heirs and representatives. Danzev v. Smith, 4 T. 411; Epperson v. Young, 8 T. 135; McClenny v. Floyd, 10 T. 159; Wilson v. Trawick, 10 T. 428; Hoeser v. Kraeka, 29 T. 450; Seligman v. Wilson, 1 App. C. C. § 896; Stephens v. Adair, 82 T. 214, 18 S. W. 102; Farrell v. Duffy, 5 C. A. 435, 27 S. W. 20; Phillips v. Henry (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 184; Emery v. Barfield, 156 S. W. 311.

Where a deed was made to hinder and delay the vendor's creditors, the title passed to the vendee to be divested only by the creditors of the vendor, or innocent purchasers from him. Robb v. Robb (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 92.

A conveyance sufficient to convey title cannot be attacked by the legal representatives of a grantor because it was made to defraud creditors. William J. Lemp Brewing Co. v. La Rose (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 460.

One who has conveyed his property to another to hinder and delay his creditors cannot afterwards set up the statute of frauds in avoidance of the conveyance, in a suit by his grantee. Shields v. Ord (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 298.

Nor can his wife, who has intervened in the action, making a claim of her separate property, set up the statute of frauds. Such claim can only be made by creditors of the grantor. Id.

Administrator cannot assail conveyance by intestate on ground that it was made when insolvent and in fraud of creditors. Burges v. New York Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 602.

Where a debtor conveyed land to defraud his creditors, his devisee cannot impeach such conveyance by proof of such fraud. Hunter v. Magee, 31 C. A. 304, 72 S. W. 230.

A deed fraudulent as to creditors held valid as against the grantor's heirs. Davis v. Davis, 44 C. A. 233, 98 S. W. 198.

An undisclosed intent of a grantor in a deed, fraudulent as against creditors, not to pass title thereby, held not to invalidate the deed as between the parties. Id.

An agreement whereby one party loans money, the lender intending to place such money beyond the reach of his creditors, and the borrower, with knowledge of such intent, agreeing to conceal the transaction, held illegal, and the notes invalid. Smith v. Carey, 50 C. A. 117, 110 S. W. 157.

Conveyance by debtor to defraud creditors held binding between the parties. Robertson v. Hefley, 55 C. A. 363, 118 S. W. 1159.

Neither one who executes a deed, nor his administrator, can question it on the ground that its purpose was to defraud creditors. Phillips v. Henry (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 184.

A sale by plaintiff to defendant, and his contract in consideration, held binding on defendant, though plaintiff had previously made a fraudulent conveyance of the property to defendant. Keith v. Aubrey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 278.

A conveyance made by the grantor to defraud his creditors cannot be set aside at the suit of his heirs. Roth v. Schroeter (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 203.

A husband could not impeach the validity of a deed by him to his wife by mere proof that he executed it to defraud creditors. Brantley v. Brantley (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1024.

Where a husband gives his wife certain horses and brands them with her recorded brand for the purpose of defrauding creditors, neither he nor his heirs can take advantage of his fraud and recover the title from her. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

Where a person conveys land by a deed absolute on its face and without consideration, in fraud of his creditors, although with an understanding that the land is only to be held in trust, neither he nor his heirs can enforce the trust against the grantee or a purchaser from the grantee with notice of the fraud; such conveyances being subject to impeachment only by subsequent creditors and purchasers without notice. Scarborough v. Blount (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 312.

23. Purchasers from grantee.—See notes under Art. 6324.

Neither a fraudulent grantor nor his heirs can enforce a trust in favor of the grantor against a purchaser from the grantee. Scarborough v. Blount (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 312.

24. Property purchased by debtor in the name of another.—A judgment creditor without lien can maintain suit to subject to his judgment land bought by the debtor, the deed for which was taken to another in fraud of creditors. Arbuckle v. Werner, 77 T. 43, 13 S. W. 963.

Where A. loans B. money to buy property, and the purchase is made for B., though title is taken in A.'s name for the purpose of protecting the property from B.'s creditors, the property belongs to B., and is subject to his debts. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 553.

25. Creditors.—Pending a suit for damages the defendant sold all of his property with the avowed purpose to avoid the payment of the judgment which might be rendered against him. Held, that the plaintiff in the suit was a creditor within the meaning of the statute; and the action can be maintained by such creditor purchasing at the sale under his judgment to cancel and declare void the conveyance made by the defendant in the suit to a third party with notice. Cox v. Shropshire, 25 T. 113; Holden v. Mc-Laury, 60 T. 228.

Pending a suit for divorce the wife, when asserting her claim for alimony is, within the meaning of the statute, to be deemed a creditor. Lott v. Kaiser, 61 T. 665.

The plaintiff in a judgment for damages for cutting and carrying away timber without the consent of the owner is a creditor within the meaning of the statute. Cole v. Terrell, 71 T. 549, 9 S. W. 668.

26. Subsequent creditors.—Right of creditor to attach goods fraudulently sold by debtor is limited to goods sold after the debt was contracted. Bergson v. Dunham (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 17.

27. Nullity of transfer.—Finding that a chattel mortgage was made for the purpose of defeating a judgment creditor, and that the mortgagee had notice of such design, held sufficient to sustain a judgment refusing foreclosure. Cates v. Riley (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 979.

As between the fraudulent vendee and the creditor the title remains with the debtor and the transaction is to be treated as if it had never been made and it is void as to creditors. Rutherford v. Carr, 99 T. 101, 87 S. W. 816.

28. Rights and liabilities of grantees.—In determining the liability of the purchasing creditor, in a suit by other creditors, if the purchase be deemed fraudulent, the value of the goods transferred in payment of the preferred claim at the time of their transfer and conversion is the measure of the preferred creditor's liability, and not the sum realized afterwards from their sale. Oppenheimer v. Halff & Bro., 68 T. 409, 4 S. W. 562.

If property conveyed to hinder and defraud creditors be seized under legal process to satisfy the debt of the grantor, and it is sold for a grossly inadequate price, under irregular proceedings, the grantee can, by proper proceedings, have the sale set aside. The right of such grantee is subordinate only to that of the creditors, and his participation in the fraud does not place him beyond the pale of protection in reference to their illegal acts. Miller v. Koertge, 70 T. 162, 7 S. W. 691, 8 Am. St. Rep. 587.

So far as proceeds of a fraudulent conveyance go to purchase of other lands by the grantee, such lands can be subjected to debts of grantor. Heath v. First Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 63, 46 S. W. 123.

A creditor held to have no cause of action against one who has converted property conveyed to him by the debtor in fraud of creditors. William J. Lemp Brewing Co. v. La Rose (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 460.

A deed executed by an insolvent, without intent to defraud, for a consideration less than the market value, should be treated as a mortgage for the actual sum paid. Schuster v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 23 C. A. 206, 54 S. W. 777.

Disbursements by fraudulent grantee cannot be recovered of creditor who procures conveyance to be set aside. Cooper v. Friedman, 23 C. A. 585, 57 S. W. 581.

A grantee of a bankrupt's land fraudulently conveyed held not entitled to an allowance for improvements thereon. McWilliams v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 596.

Fraudulent grantees of land subject to constructive trust in hands of grantor held to take the land subject to the trust, so that a conveyance to an innocent purchaser rendered the fraudulent grantees liable for the value of the land to the cestui que trust. Schneider v. Sellers, 98 T. 380, 84 S. W. 417.

A bona fide purchaser for value held not chargeable with fraud, though the vendor was insolvent. Kopperl v. Standard Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1169.

Garnishee held liable for value of piling received from third person to whom defendant had made a sham transfer. Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

In action for conversion of goods taken under attachment against third person, whether transfer of land in another state was fraudulent as to creditors held immaterial; the question being whether goods taken in exchange belonged to attachment debtor or plaintiff. Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 435.

In direct proceeding against purchaser of goods from an insolvent debtor with intent to defraud creditors, plaintiff cannot obtain a personal judgment unless he has obtained a lien upon such goods. McIntosh & Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

In direct proceeding against garnishee, held that judgment could not be rendered for the proceeds of goods sold by him as a trustee for the benefit of creditors where he purchased the goods from the debtor in good faith, and had none of the goods in his possession when the garnishment writ was served. Id.

Though defendant purchased the property of an insolvent with the intention of enabling him to defeat plaintiff's claim, yet where it has been resold and cannot be retaken by plaintiff, plaintiff cannot recover a personal judgment, under this article; the statute merely invalidating the sale and authorizing the creditor to seize the property. May v. Merchants' & Planters' Nat. Bank of Mt. Vernon (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1194.

29. Reconveyance of property.—The reconveyance of property held in trust is not fraudulent. Peck v. Jones, 10 C. A. 335, 30 S. W. 382. See Bettes v. Weir Plow Co., 84 T. 543, 19 S. W. 705.

The moral obligation under which a fraudulent grantee stood held sufficient consideration to support a deed of reconveyance as against creditors of the grantee, who had not acquired liens. Bicocchi v. Casey-Swasey Co., 91 T. 259, 42 S. W. 963, 66 Am. St. Rep. 875, reversing (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 209.

Where the fraudulent grantee reconveyed to the grantor, held, that the latter was not estopped to assert title as against creditors of the fraudulent grantee, who gave the credit on the faith of the fraudulent grantee's ownership of the property. Bicocchi v. Casey-Swasey Co., 91 T. 259, 42 S. W. 963, 66 Am. St. Rep. 875.

30. Assignments for creditors.—See Title 9.

31. Registration.—See Title 118, Chapter 3.

32. Redemption of incumbered property.—Debtor, seeking to enforce right to redeem incumbered property bid in by secured creditor, as arising from creditor's estoppel, held not guilty of fraud toward other creditors, precluding exercise of right. First Nat. Bank v. Moor, 34 C. A. 476, 79 S. W. 53.

Debtor's intent, in arranging with creditor, secured by trust deed, to bid in property and hold it subject to debtor's right of redemption, to defraud other creditors, held not to prevent his enforcement of the agreement. Id.

33. Rights of mortgagor's creditors.—A designation to the agent of a mortgagee, of property covered by the mortgage, which remained in the mortgagor's possession commingled with other property, held to sufficiently identify such property as against creditors. Avery v. Popper (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 951.

A creditor of a mortgagor of part of a herd of animals purchasing at his own execution sale is charged with notice of the mortgagee's right to designate which of the animals shall be subject to the lien. Id.

34. Cancellation of fraudulent conveyance.—A deed made to defraud creditors, which was never delivered, though recorded by one having no authority to do so, will be canceled at suit of administrator of the grantor dying in possession. Blackman v. Schierman, 21 C. A. 517, 51 S. W. 886.

35. Remedies of creditor.—A creditor may follow property conveyed in fraud of creditors rather than foreclose his lien on property taken in payment therefor. Holloway Seed Co. v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 77.

The judgment creditor of a fraudulent vendor may sue to set aside the conveyance, or he may levy on the land and sell it for the payment of his debt, and in the latter case the purchaser at execution sale takes the title. Rutherford v. Carr, 99 T. 101, 87 S. W. 815.

Under the facts, held, that goods purchased by the vendee and paid for out of the proceeds of sale of the original goods could not be taken by a levy and sale under execution issued on a judgment against the vendor and in favor of a defrauded creditor. Guyton v. Chasen, 45 C. A. 354, 101 S. W. 290.

36. Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

37. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held to show that certain deeds by debtors were not fraudulent as to creditor. Duveneck v. Kutzer, 17 C. A. 577, 43 S. W. 541.

Evidence held sufficient to show knowledge of the fraudulent intent of the mortgagor by the agent of mortgagees. Frost v. Mason, 17 C. A. 465, 44 S. W. 53.

Evidence concerning a sale from defendant considered, and sale held fraudulent, regardless of the value of the property. Hogwood v. Brown (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 862.

Evidence held sufficient to support verdict that defendant was not indebted to decedent in any amount. Matula v. Lane, 22 C. A. 391, 55 S. W. 504.

Evidence of good faith of conveyance held insufficient to warrant setting aside verdict of jury finding same fraudulent as to creditors. Bruce v. Koch (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 189.

Evidence held insufficient to show a conveyance fraudulent as in anticipation of future indebtedness. Moulton v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1114.

Evidence held to sustain finding that deed to son was made in fraud of creditors. Walters v. Cantrell (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 790.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to sustain a finding that a transfer of the land by a judgment debtor was fraudulent as against plaintiff. Tinsley v. Corbett, 27 C. A. 633, 66 S. W. 910.

In an action by a creditor to recover land claimed to have been fraudulently conveyed, facts held not to authorize an instruction that the sale was fraudulent as a matter of law. Edwards v. Anderson, 31 C. A. 131, 71 S. W. 555.

Evidence held to establish that an attempted sale of a merchant's stock of goods was fraudulent as against his creditors. R. G. Blossman & Co. v. Friske, 33 C. A. 191, 76 S. W. 73.

Evidence held sufficient to have sustained finding that agreement permitting debtor to redeem incumbered property was not in fraud of other creditors. First Nat. Bank v. Moor, 34 C. A. 476, 79 S. W. 53.

A sale of cotton held not fraudulent as to creditors of the vendor under the evidence. Sparks v. Ponder, 42 C. A. 431, 94 S. W. 428.

Under the facts held a conveyance was fraudulent. Stitt v. Stone, 47 C. A. 93, 103 S. W. 1192.

A recited consideration in comparison with value of land held so small as that it might well be held to furnish sufficient evidence of mala fides. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 505, 109 S. W. 909.

Where concert of action between an alleged creditor and the judgment defendant appears to defeat a prior deed by the judgment defendant as in fraud of creditors, there should be some further proof of the indebtedness than the judgment against defendant. Id.

Evidence in an action wherein plaintiffs attached land claimed to have been fraudulently conveyed to defendant debtor's wife and claimed by the debtor and his wife as a homestead held to sustain a verdict for defendants. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Burge, 49 C. A. 699, 110 S. W. 181.

Fraud as to creditors is always difficult of proof by direct testimony, and circumstantial evidence may be resorted to. Adams v. Hamilton, 53 C. A. 405, 116 S. W. 1169.

Certain testimony of grantor held insufficient to show that the transaction was simulated, or that vendee should hold legal title in trust. Robertson v. Hefley, 55 C. A. 368, 118 S. W. 1159.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that a grantee of a debtor's land had no knowledge of the debtor's intent to defraud his creditors. Rogers v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 599.

Evidence held insufficient to show that an alleged fraudulent conveyance was made by a debtor for the bona fide purpose of paying his creditors. Id.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to show that plaintiff's grantor did not convey property to plaintiff with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud defendant, who held the property as an attaching creditor, under this article, and that plaintiff had no notice of the fraudulent intent of his grantor, if there was any such intent. Folkes v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 958.

Evidence in garnishment held to justify a finding that a sale by defendant to a third person was without consideration, and that the facts were known to the agent of the garnishee. Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

Evidence in a suit involving right to sell land on execution held to sustain findings that there had not been a fraudulent conveyance. Todd & Hurley v. Garner (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 314.

In an action to cancel a deed as in fraud of creditors, evidence held insufficient to show notice of grantor's alleged fraudulent intent. Starkey v. H. O. Wooten Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 692.

In an action to cancel a deed as in fraud of creditors, evidence held insufficient to show lack of consideration. Id.

Evidence, in an action to set aside a conveyance as in fraud of creditors, held sufficient to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. McIlroy v. Stone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 944.

Art. 3967. [2545] [2466] Voluntary conveyances.—Every gift, conveyance, assignment, transfer or charge made by a debtor, which is not upon consideration deemed valuable in law, shall be void as to prior creditors, unless it appears that such debtor was then possessed of property within this state subject to execution sufficient to pay his existing debts; but such gift, conveyance, assignment, transfer or charge shall not on that account merely be void as to subsequent creditors, and though it be decreed to be void as to a prior creditor, because voluntary, it shall not for that cause be decreed to be void as to subsequent creditors or purchasers. [P. D. 3876, 3877.]

See Crosby v. Houston, 1 T. 203; Fowler v. Stoneum, 11 T. 478, 62 Am. Dec. 490; Grumbles v. Sneed, 22 T. 565; Lafferty v. Murray, 27 T. 372; Evans v. Murray, 27 T. 383; Van Bibber v. Mathis, 52 T. 406.

Transactions between husband and wife.—A deed from the husband conveyed property which the wife had attempted at a former time to convey without being joined by him. Her conveyance recited a consideration of $1,500 received by her, and this deed was referred to in a subsequent conveyance by the husband, although his deed recited only a nominal consideration. Held, in proceedings by a creditor attacking the deed from the husband, that prima facie it was based on a consideration deemed valuable in law. Deutsch v. Allen, 57 T. 89.

Where at the time of a gift by a husband to his wife the husband had lands subject to execution in excess of his indebtedness, such gift is valid. Nor can such gift be avoided by a subsequent creditor by merely showing that it was without consideration. Terry v. O'Neal, 71 T. 592, 9 S. W. 673.

Deed of gift from husband to wife held fraudulent as to community creditors. New England Loan & Trust Co. v. Avery (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 673.

For a gift to a wife by improvements on her separate property with community money to be reached on judgment against the husband and another, it must be shown that judgment creditor was his creditor at time of gift, that the debt exists, and that the gift was fraudulent, all the judgment debtors being insolvent, and remedies at law exhausted. Maddox v. Summerlin (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1020.

Evidence held to show that a husband was insolvent at the time of a conveyance to his wife, in an action to subject the property to his debts. Gonzales v. Adoue (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 543.

Facts held not to show that a creditor's indebtedness was a continuing debt, so as to entitle him to sue to set aside a voluntary conveyance by the debtor to his wife. Gonzales v. Adoue, 94 T. 120, 58 S. W. 951.

A warranty deed of land from a husband to his wife cannot be adjudged to be a conveyance in trust for his benefit, at the suit of a subsequent creditor, unless it is clearly shown that the terms of the deed do not express the real transaction and that the wife accepted the conveyance as in trust. O'Neal v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 545.

Conveyance by an insolvent held not fraudulent as to plaintiff as a gift of property subject to insolvent's debts. Moulton v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1114.

Husband held not to have been indebted to his wife, and assignment of rent executed by him in trust for her benefit held void as to creditors. Grevils v. Smith, 29 C. A. 150, 68 S. W. 291.

An instruction that a husband's gift of exempt property to his wife is good, unless made with intent to defraud his creditors, held error. McClelland v. Barnard, 36 C. A. 118, 81 S. W. 591.

A creditor of a husband whose debt had been discharged in bankruptcy held not entitled to object that a subsequent gift of money by the husband to his wife was invalid. Sparks v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 740.

A husband's conveyance to his wife, in consideration of love and affection, vested the legal title in her, subject to prior incumbrances and existing debts, if he was insolvent. Parks v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 921.

Money saved by a wife from money allowed her by her husband for household expenses amounted to a gift from the husband as against his creditors. Zuckerman v. Munz, 48 C. A. 337, 107 S. W. 78.

A direct gift by a husband to his wife held not absolutely void because existing creditors of the husband will be without means to satisfy their claims. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

On the issue whether a gift by a debtor to his wife was made with the intent to defraud his creditors, evidence held not to show that he did not have other property remaining sufficient to satisfy his creditors, rendering the gift valid. Id.

Whether a debtor making a gift to his wife intended thereby to defraud his creditors depends on whether or not he had sufficient property remaining to satisfy his creditors. Id.

A bill of sale of corporate stock by a husband to his wife, made to defraud his creditors, and not in satisfaction of a valid debt, does not pass the title to the wife if she knew of his fraudulent purpose. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 221.

Where a husband and wife lived together, the fact that he retained possession of land which he conveyed to her is of little force in determining whether the transaction was simulated. Robertson v. Hefley, 55 C. A. 368, 118 S. W. 1159.

An agreement between husband and wife, whereby the wife shall have as her separate property certain cattle and their increase, to be branded as hers, cannot control the statute defining community property, and the agreement can be given no greater effect than to vest in the wife a separate right to all the cattle branded prior to the husband's failure, if any, to be possessed of sufficient property to pay existing debts, and the branding of cattle thereafter is as against existing creditors a gift only. Cone v. Belcher, 57 C. A. 493, 124 S. W. 149.

Where defendant conveyed property to another, for the purpose of having it conveyed to his wife, in order to prevent it from being subjected for his debts, his wife would hold the property in trust for defendant, even if it was conveyed in terms to her separate use. Du Perier v. Du Perier (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 10.

Where a husband conveyed his homestead through another to his wife to prevent his creditors from attempting to subject it for debts, but did not intend to abandon his homestead, the husband's intention in conveying was not in fraud of creditors, and would not prevent him from recovering it from his wife as trust property. Id.

To enable third persons to attack a deed of gift from husband to wife on the ground that it was without consideration, they must have been creditors of the husband when the deed was executed. Lane v. Kuehn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 363.

Where a husband gave his wife title to personal property in fraud of his creditors, he could not recover title from her. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

Where an insolvent's wife had not conspired with her husband to conceal community funds invested in permanent improvements on her property, and had not contracted to pay for the improvements, she was not personally liable to his creditors to the amount of funds so invested. Kane v. Ammerman (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 815.

Effect of gift by insolvent debtor.—A gift by an insolvent debtor is void as to prior creditors, but not necessarily so as to subsequent creditors. Dosche v. Nette, 81 T. 265, 16 S. W. 1013.

As to pre-existing debts, the gift is by the statute prima facie void, and the property is subject to the payment of the debts of the donor unless the donee should make it appear that he was, at the time the gift was made, possessed of property within this state subject to execution sufficient to pay his existing debts. Maddox v. Summerlin, 92 T. 483, 49 S. W. 1033.

A voluntary deed, made in contemplation of insolvency, but not recorded or delivered for more than a year, is fraudulent as to a creditor the debt to whom was contracted in the meantime. Owen v. Foley, 30 C. A. 86, 69 S. W. 811.

A voluntary conveyance is invalid against the grantor's creditors without reference to knowledge or want of it on the part of the grantee of the grantor's indebtedness. Clark v. Bell, 40 C. A. 39, 89 S. W. 38.

Under this article, a gift of land subject to vendor's lien notes given by the vendee is void as to the holder of the notes, in the absence of a showing that the purchaser had property remaining after the conveyance, sufficient to pay his debts. Shannon v. Buttery (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 858.

Right of subsequent creditors to avoid gift.—One in possession of land under a parol gift, claiming it as his own, and who afterwards receives a deed for the same, cannot be affected by the claim of a creditor of the donor when the credit was extended after the date of the parol gift and after actual occupancy of the donee. Willis v. McIntyre, 70 T. 34, 7 S. W. 594, 8 Am. St. Rep. 574.

While a mere voluntary conveyance cannot be attacked by subsequent creditors, yet where such conveyance is shown to have been made with intent to defraud a creditor, such creditor can attack the conveyance, and on showing such fraud the conveyance will be set aside and the property subjected to the judgment. Cole v. Terrell, 71 T. 549, 9 S. W. 668.

Where a party, engaged in unlawfully cutting timber upon the lands of another, shows to have contemplated a continuance of such trespasses, makes a voluntary conveyance of all his property, such facts are sufficient to support a finding of the fraudulent intent, and to avoid the conveyance in favor of the owner of the land upon which such trespasses were committed. Id.

A trust conveyance by a husband and wife, though voluntary or made with intent to defraud the husband's existing creditors, cannot be impeached by subsequent creditors with record notice. Monday v. Vance (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 346.

A deed of gift by an insolvent to his wife, fraudulent as to his creditors, is not fraudulent as to a subsequent creditor, unless made with a view of contracting the subsequent debt and intent to defraud such creditor. O'Neal v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 545.

Where a husband purchased lots in the name of his wife, and for her benefit, and erected improvements thereon, his subsequent creditors could not sue to subject such property to the payment of the claims. Kane v. Ammerman (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 815.

Right of agent to avoid gift.—An agent through whom a gift is being effectuated cannot, after title has vested in him for that purpose, have the gift declared void, where the effect would be to enable him to keep the property for himself. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

Art. 3968. [2546] [2467] Gift of goods, etc.—No gift of any goods or chattels shall be valid unless by deed or will, duly acknowledged or proven up and recorded, or unless actual possession shall have come to, and remained with, the donee or some one claiming under him. [P. D. 3876.]

What are "goods and chattels."—This article does not apply to an interest in remainder, etc., created by will, or deeds duly proved and recorded in other states, where the property was situated and by the laws of which the title had vested. Lafferty v. Murray, 27 T. 372; Evans v. Murray, 27 T. 383. See Chevallier v. Wilson, 1 T. 161; Duffell v. Noble, 14 T. 640; Hilliard v. Frantz, 21 T. 192.

Certificates of deposit of money in a bank are not "goods or chattels." They are choses in action. They are an evidence of incorporeal rights, and not in such action corporeal property. A gift of them is not within the meaning of this article. Cowen v. First Nat. Bank, 94 T. 547, 63 S. W. 533.

A father holding three notes made by his son, dictated a letter to the son stating that he had given the first note to a daughter, the second to another son, and the third to the son addressed, but this writing was not acknowledged or proven up and recorded. Held, that the words "goods and chattels" did not include choses in action, and that the writing, though not acknowledged or proven, was sufficient to constitute a valid gift of the note. Schauer v. Von Schauer (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 145.

Requisites of gifts.—Where a letter from a son to his mother, referring to the collection of notes which he held against his sister, was so indefinite and unintelligible that it could not be determined from the instrument as it stood whether a gift was intended or whether the son merely gave directions concerning the collection, the instrument cannot be given a meaning by changing the words and punctuation marks. Merchants v. Rogan (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 956.

Delivery.—This article indicates the exclusion of a symbolical delivery or a constructive possession, and the mere act of placing a brand on a calf is not sufficient to constitute a valid gift to an infant. Love v. Hudson, 24 C. A. 377, 59 S. W. 1128.

In marking and branding by a father for his minor children cattle which were running on the range with a large herd belonging to himself and others, there was all the delivery the nature of the property under the circumstances was capable of, and it was equivalent to an actual delivery, and nothing more is required by this article to sustain a parol gift. Coke & Reardon v. Ikard, 39 C. A. 409, 87 S. W. 869.

Possession.—The provision of the Revised Statutes requiring possession to accompany a gift of goods or chattels does not apply to a gift of a chose in action. Lord v. New York Life Ins. Co., 27 C. A. 139, 65 S. W. 699.

A parol gift is void unless actual possession of the property comes to and remains with the donee. Eldridge v. McDow, 46 C. A. 270, 102 S. W. 435.

Under this article, and Art. 7160 providing that no cattle brands, except such as are recorded, shall be recognized as any evidence of ownership, no title passed to cattle which were branded with a peculiar brand by the owner pursuant to his express intention that they and their issue should belong to his niece where the latter never had actual possession of the cattle which continued to run on the donor's range and to be looked after by him, and the brand was not recorded. Eldridge v. McDow (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 516.

Art. 3969. [2547] [2468] Loan of chattels.—Where any loan of goods or chattels shall be pretended to have been made to any person with whom, or those claiming under him, possession shall have remained for the space of two years without demand made and pursued by due process of law on the part of the pretended lender; or when any reservation or limitation shall be pretended to have been made of a use of property, by way of condition, reversion, remainder or otherwise in goods and chattels, the possession whereof shall have remained in another as aforesaid, the same shall be taken as to the creditors and purchasers, of the persons aforesaid so remaining in possession, to be fraudulent within this chapter, and that the absolute property is with the possession, unless such loan, reservation or limitation of use of property were declared by will, or by deed or other instrument in writing, duly acknowledged or proved and recorded.

See Hastings v. Kellogg (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 821.

Loan defined.—The provisions of this statute apply to loans, etc., only. A transaction which does not contemplate the return of specific property and that its use should be gratuitous is not a loan. Templeman v. Gibbs, 24 S. W. 792, 86 T. 358.

The word "loan" means a gratuitous bailment, only such creditors can invoke the statute as have acquired a lien on the particular property. Hunstock v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 675.

The purpose of this article is to render chattels subject to it when possessed under the circumstances pointed out by it; and by "loan" is meant where the owner places some specific thing in the lands of a borrower to be used by him without compensation, but at some future time to be returned. Woodward v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 77, 78.

Law of limitation.—This article is a law of limitation as well as of registration, and the lender can recover the property by proceedings instituted within two years, as prescribed by the statute. City National Bank v. Tufts, 63 T. 113.

Application of article to liens reserved.—This article applies to loans of chattels exclusively and has no bearing upon liens reserved. Eason v. Garrison & Kelly, 36 C. A. 574, 82 S. W. 801.

Exception of property held under will.—This statute by its terms excepts property held under a will declaring the purpose of its use. Even if this were not true, it could not be given the effect to divest the principal of title to property held by an agent at the suit of the agent's creditors. The application of the statute is limited to the condition stated therein. Cox v. Patten (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 64.

Possession by husband of wife's separate property.—The possession of the wife's separate property by the husband does not raise the presumption of ownership by him. Gamble v. Dabney, 20 T. 69. And see Hendricks v. Snediker, 30 T. 296; Bradshaw v. House, 43 T. 143. See Grumbles v. Sneed, 22 T. 565; Arnold v. Beene, 30 T. 13.

Effect of delay in collection of note.—Mere indefinite indulgence and delay in the collection by suit of dishonored paper is not a badge of fraud. Banner v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 355; Eason v. Garrison & Kelly, 36 C. A. 574, 82 S. W. 800.

Allowing firm to deal with goods as its own.—The owner of a stock of goods intrusting it to a firm, and allowing it to deal with the goods as its own, held estopped as to creditors of the firm from claiming the goods. Holder v. Shelby (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 590.

Art. 3970. [2548] Chattel mortgage void, when.—Every mortgage, deed of trust or other form of lien attempted to be given by the owner of any stock of goods, wares or merchandise daily exposed to sale, in parcels, in the regular course of the business of such merchandise, and contemplating a continuance of the possession of said goods and control of said business, by sale of said goods by said owner, shall be deemed fraudulent and void. [Acts 1879, p. 60.]

Old Art. 2549 was same as old Art. 3327, and will be found as Art. 5654.

Mortgage distinguished from assignment.—Mortgage distinguished from an assignment. Taylor v. Mo. Glass Co., 25 S. W. 466, 6 C. A. 337. See National Bank v. Lovenberg, 63 T. 506; Duncan v. Taylor, 63 T. 645.

Validity of mortgage in general.—When a mortgage of goods is executed with a secret agreement that the grantor should remain in the possession of the goods and sell them, and he did so remain in possession with the consent of the grantee, and they were by him exposed for sale, the instrument is within the prohibition. National Bank of Texas v. Lovenberg, 63 T. 506; Duncan v. Taylor, 63 T. 645.

A chattel mortgage of a stock of goods which by its terms provides that the mortgagor shall retain possession of them and expose and sell them at retail, replenishing the stock by purchase on credit from time to time from the mortgagee, and accounting to him for their cost and a former indebtedness, is as to creditors void. Wilber v. Kray, 73 T. 533, 11 S. W. 540. But it is not void as between the parties. Brewing Ass'n v. Manufacturing Co., 81 T. 99, 16 S. W. 797.

This article does not apply to a contest between the parties to a mortgage in which other creditors have no interest. Parker v. Bank (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1071.

Purchase of entire stock.—This article is not applicable to a purchase of the dealer's whole stock in trade, such as lumber, where the purchaser assumes payment of a debt which is a charge on the dealer's property. Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 209.

Mortgage of part of goods.—Mortgage of a part only of a stock of goods is fraudulent and void. B. F. Avery & Sons v. Waples, 19 C. A. 672, 49 S. W. 151.

Security for purchase price.—In a sale of goods by a manufacturer to a retail merchant by a written contract wherein it is stipulated that the goods remained the property of the manufacturer until settled for in the manner provided in the contract: Held, that the provisions of the above article do not apply to such goods. Bowen v. Lansing Wagon Works, 91 T. 385, 43 S. W. 872.

This article does not apply in a case where the retailer and wholesaler, shipper and buyer, agreed that the property should remain subject to the wholesaler's orders and continue to be his property until the purchase price was paid. Mansur & Tebbetts Implement Co. v. Beer, 19 C. A. 311, 45 S. W. 972.

Liens secured by manufacturer by mortgage on merchandise sold to merchant held not within purview of statute invalidating mortgages on merchandise daily exposed for sale. Hall v. Keating Implement & Machine Co., 33 C. A. 526, 77 S. W. 1054.

When goods are sold, the reservation of title in the seller to secure purchase money constitutes a mortgage, but if sold with the understanding that the goods are to be exposed to sale in the regular course of business, and this is done, the mortgage is rendered void. Wright v. Moline Plow Co., 40 C. A. 434, 90 S. W. 907.

Art. 3971. Merchandise, sales in bulk, void when, etc., unless, etc.—Any sale or transfer of any portion of a stock of merchandise, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade in the usual and regular prosecution of the seller's or transferor's business, or a sale or transfer of an entire stock of merchandise in bulk, shall be void as against creditors of the seller or transferor, unless the purchaser or transferee shall, at least ten days before the sale or transfer, in good faith, make full and explicit inquiry of the seller or transferor as to the name and place of residence or place of business of each and all creditors of the seller or transferor, and the amount owing to each such creditor by the seller or transferor, and obtain from the seller or transferor a written answer to such inquiries, which answers shall be sworn to by the seller or transferor, and unless the purchaser or transferee, at least ten days before the sale or transfer, in good faith, notify or cause to be notified personally, or by registered mail, each of the seller's or transferor's creditors, of whom the purchaser or transferee has knowledge, of said proposed sale or transfer. [Acts 1909, p. 66.]

See Nash Hardware Co. v. Morris, 105 T. 217, 146 S. W. 874; St. Louis S. W. R. Co of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

Construction.—This article gives no preference to any class of creditors, and provides no special remedy for the collection of debts, but leaves each creditor to pursue such course as he may elect; nor does it prefer wholesale merchants as creditors. Nash Hardware Co. v. Morris, 105 T. 217, 146 S. W. 874.

Where a trustee of a stock of goods belonging to an insolvent, preferring certain creditors to the exclusion of others, sold the stock, the sale was void under this article. Terrell Grain & Mercantile Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 671.

Constitutionality.—Under Const. art. 1, § 19, providing that no citizen shall be deprived of life, property, liberty, privileges, or immunities, except by due course of law, this article is invalid, unless it is a reasonable regulation in the exercise of the police power. Nash Hardware Co. v. Morris, 105 T. 217, 146 S. W. 874.

This article does not place unreasonable limitations on the power and rights of sellers of merchandise; but it is a reasonable regulation governing selling debtors, and is valid. Id.

Title of purchaser.—Under this article, assuming its validity, the purchaser of a dealer's entire stock in trade, as against the creditors of the seller, acquired no title to the goods in excess of the debts owing on the goods and paid by him. McIntosh & Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

Purchaser not personally liable.—See notes under Art. 3972.

Art. 3972. Purchaser conforming to provisions, not accountable.—Any purchaser or transferee who shall conform to the provisions of article 3971 shall not in any way be held accountable to any creditor of the seller or transferor for any of the goods, wares or merchandise that have come into the possession of said purchaser or transferee by virtue of such sale or transfer. [Id. sec. 2.]

See Nash Hardware Co. v. Morris, 105 T. 217, 146 S. W. 874.

Purchaser not personally liable.—A purchaser of a stock in bulk, without complying with the Bulk Sales Law, is not liable to a creditor who has not acquired a lien; no personal liability being created by either section 1 or 2 of such law. Bewley v. Sims (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1076.

Art. 3973. Not applicable in what cases.—Nothing in articles 3971 and 3972 shall apply to sales by executors, administrators, receivers or any public officer conducting a sale in his official capacity, nor to a sale or transfer of stocks of merchandise for the payment of bona fide debts, where all creditors share equally and without preference in the sale or transfer or the proceeds thereof. [Id. sec. 3.]

Article 3980. Public rivers, etc., property of state, etc.; under jurisdiction of commissioner, etc.—All of the public rivers, bayous, lagoons, lakes, bays and inlets in this state and all that part of the gulf of Mexico within the jurisdiction of this state, together with their beds and bottoms, and all of the products thereof, shall be, continue and remain the property of the state of Texas, except so far as their use shall be permitted by the laws of this state. So far as this use shall relate to the fish and oyster industry, the state game, fish and oyster commissioner shall have jurisdiction and control thereof according to the authority vested in him by the fish and oyster laws of this state. [Acts 1905, p. 129.]

Right to take oysters in public waters.—The right to take oysters in public waters of the state is not a privilege subject to the bestowal by the state on whom it pleases, but a public right of all the citizens. Gustafson v. State, 40 Cr. R. 67, 48 S. W. 518, 43 L. R. A. 615.

Ownership of fish in artificial lake.—Fish confined in an artificial lake belong to the owner of the land covered by the water in which they are found. Fin & Feather Club v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 150.

Defendant held liable for the value of fish willfully brought through fish traps from a portion of an artificial lake belonging to plaintiff into the part belonging to defendant. Id.

Art. 3981. [2518/] Private and public oyster beds defined.—All oyster beds shall be public or private; all not designated private shall be public. All natural oyster beds and oyster reefs of this state shall be deemed public, and a natural oyster bed shall be declared to exist when as many as five barrels of oysters may be found therein within twenty-five hundred square feet of any position of said reef or bed; and any lands covered by water containing less oysters than the above amount shall be subject to location at the discretion of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, but this shall not apply to a reef or bed that has been exhausted within a period of eight years. [Acts 1907, p. 236. Acts 1899, p. 314. Acts 1895, p. 70.]

Art. 3982. [2518o] Riparian rights prescribed.—Whenever any creek, bayou, lake or cove shall be included within the metes and bounds of any original grant or location in this State, the lawful occupant of such grant or location shall have the exclusive right to use said creek, lake, bayou, or cove for gathering, planting or sewing oysters, within the metes and bounds of the official grant or patent of said land. Provided, that the fish and oyster commissioner may require the owner of oysters produced on such lands when offered for sale to make an affidavit that such oysters were produced on his land. No person shall locate water or ground covered with water for planting oysters along any bay shore in this state nearer than 100 yards from the shore. [Acts 1913, p. 297, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—The title, enacting clause, and section of Acts 1913, p. 297, read as follows:

“An Act to amend articles 3982, 3983, 3984, 3986, 3987, 3988, 3990, 3992, 3995, 3998, 3999, 4004, 4005, 4006, 4008, 4009, 4013, 4014, 4016, 4019, and to repeal articles 4020 and 4021, of chapter 2, title 63, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, so as to provide better protection of the fish and oyster industries of this state, prescribing riparian rights, the prerequisites to the issuance of license to catch fish, oysters, etc.; providing for examination of location, surveys, etc., permit to gather seed oysters and to whom and by whom granted, the distribution of fines collected and the disposition of funds, the size of the meshes of seines, nets, etc., and providing the prerequisites for permission to seine and conditions upon which permission may be granted to use dredges on reefs, providing for deputy fish and oyster commissioners and defining and describing certain duties of the game, fish and oyster commissioner and his deputies, and declaring an emergency.

“Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Texas:

“Section 1. That articles 3982, 3983, 3984, 3986, 3987, 3988, 3990, 3992, 3995, 3998, 3999, 4004, 4005, 4006, 4008, 4009, 4013, 4014, 4016, 4019, of chapter 2, title 63 of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, 1911, be and the same are hereby amended so as to hereafter read as follows:”

Following section 1 appear 38 articles, numbered consecutively 3982 to 4019, both inclusive. Of the articles of the new act 3982 to 4011 both inclusive, correspond in subject-matter to the corresponding articles of the Revised Statutes; 4012 embraces the subject-matter of Arts. 4012 and 4013 of the Revised Statutes; 4013 embraces the subject-matter of Art. 4014 of the Revised Statutes; 4014 embraces the subject-matter of Art. 4015 of the Revised Statutes; 4015 embraces the subject-matter of Art. 4016 of the Revised Statutes; 4016 embraces the subject-matter of Art. 4018 of the Revised Statutes; and 4017, 4018, and 4019 introduce new matters.

If the title and the enacting clause is sufficient to supersede those articles of the Revised Statutes not specifically enumerated, all those articles are dispensed with, except 4017 and 4019 as to which there is no corresponding subject-matter in the new act. The last-named articles have been retained in this compilation. As far as possible the articles of the new act have been given the numbers which they bore in the same or in a modified form in the Revised Statutes. All of the articles of the new act have been placed in this compilation.

Art. 3983. [2514] Special tax on fish, turtle, terrapin, oysters and shrimp taken from the public coast waters.—For the purpose of protecting the fish and improving the natural oyster reefs and protecting both the natural reefs and private oyster beds and to carry out the fish and oyster laws of the state of Texas and as one of the conditions upon which the state consents to the taking or removing of fish from her waters, or to the fishing or removal of oysters from her natural reefs, or the use and rental of her water bottoms for oyster propagating purposes there shall be and is hereby levied a special tax of one-fifth of one cent per pound on all fish, turtle, terrapin and shrimp taken for market from the public waters within the jurisdiction of this state and a tax of two cents per barrel on each and every barrel of oysters gathered from the said waters of this state, whether from the natural reefs or private oyster beds for sale or shipment, provided that oysters taken from any waters for bedding purposes shall not be subject to this Act until again taken up for sale or shipment. This special tax shall be paid to the fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, by the persons bringing said fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters to market, whether he be the person who fished said products or his agent, before he shall be allowed to sell same or to consign same to any other party for sale, shipment or storage, and the fish and oyster commissioner may fix times of the day at which inspection and permits shall be made and granted.

For all purposes mentioned in this title a barrel of oysters shall be deemed and taken to consist of three boxes of oysters of the following dimensions: ten inches wide by twenty inches long and thirteen and one-half inches deep inside measurement and rounded off to a height of two and one-half inches in center above the top of the box. [Id.]

Constitutionality of act.—This article, and Arts. 3985 and 3986, are not unconstitutional, though the title to the act amending them only refers to the sections amended and does not state the subject of the act. If the articles amended are sufficiently identified by reference in the title, and the articles amended themselves sufficiently indicate the purposes of the amendment, the title of the amendment is sufficient. It is not required that the title should serve as an index to the various provisions of the act. Raymond v. Kibbe, 43 C. A. 209, 95 S. W. 728.

Art. 3984. Registration of fish boats, etc., in public waters; application; certificate; fees; marking boats, and providing who shall fish.—Any person who is a citizen of the United States wishing to use a boat in catching or taking fish, green turtle, terrapin or shrimp or gathering oysters for market in the public waters of this state, in accordance with the provisions of the fish and oyster laws of this state, shall apply to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputies for permission to do so. Such applicant will furnish said officer under oath his name, place of residence, the name and kind of boat to be used by him, together with the number of men to be employed by him, thereupon the officer shall register such boat, which register number shall be distinctly painted on each side of the bow of such boat, for which registration he shall pay the said officer one dollar and fifty cents and the said officer shall furnish the applicant with a certificate of such registration. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3985. [2514] Permit to sell, with receipts of seizure and sale; proceeds, how disposed of.—When the special tax provided for in article 3983 of this chapter has been paid, it shall be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, receiving the tax, to give a receipt for same, together with a permit authorizing the holder thereof to dispose of the products on which the special tax has been paid. A duplicate of which receipt and permit shall be retained in the office of said commissioner issuing same. This permit shall be given by the person delivering said products to the person, firm or corporation to whom the products mentioned therein shall be sold or delivered for sale, shipment or storage. Any fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters found in the possession of any packer, buyer or commission man, for the disposition of which he can not show the state's permit, shall continue the property of the state, and may be seized by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or any of his deputies, and sold, the proceeds thereof to go to the fish and oyster fund of the state. [Id.]

Constitutionality of act.—See notes under Art. 3983.

Art. 3986. [2518k] License to catch or take fish, oysters, etc.; prerequisites to issue of.—Any captain or master of any boat wishing to engage in the business of catching or taking any fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters from the waters of the state for market shall, before engaging in such business, secure from the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, a license granting to him permission to take from the waters of the state, fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters; provided, that the licensee in exercising the privilege named in this license shall at all times be governed by the fish and oyster laws of this state, for the purpose of obtaining this license the person desiring same must make written application to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or one of his deputies in which he, the applicant, shall set forth under oath that he is a citizen of the United States, the name, class and register number of his boat. If the application be for a license to use seines and nets, the applicant shall state the number, class and length of the seines and nets to be used by him and if the application be for a license to gather oysters, he must state the number of tongs to be used by him and the applicant shall also agree that because of the privilege he shall receive from the state of Texas of taking fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters from her waters, all such products at all times shall be subject to inspection by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or any of his deputies, and that said application shall authorize said commissioner or any of his deputies to enter at any time the boat or any house where he, the applicant, may have such products stored and inspect same; and he, the applicant, shall further agree to pay to the state of Texas a special tax provided for in article 3983 of the fish and oyster laws. This application having been duly executed and handed to the game, fish and oyster commissioners, or any of his deputies accompanied by the applicant's registration certificate and the fee for the license applied for, it shall thereupon be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or the deputy receiving the same, to issue to the applicant a license to engage in the business set forth in his application and license shall be subject to such limitations and control as is herein prescribed and as is or may be prescribed by the criminal laws of this state. Said license must be signed by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, stamped with the seal of office and state the name of the licensee, name and class of his boat and the date of issuance. Such license shall be for twelve months if for fishing for fish, turtle or shrimp, and from September the 1st to April the 1st following the date of license if for gathering oysters; and from August the 1st to May the 1st if granted for the purpose of catching terrapins, and for said license the applicant shall pay the sum of one dollar, the license so issued shall be kept on the boat subject to the inspection of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or any of his deputies, and it shall not be good for any other person nor on any other boat than the original named therein without the consent of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, having first been had, which consent or assignment shall be written across the face of said license; provided, that if at any time such licensed captain or master of a boat shall violate any of the fish and oyster laws of this state, or shall at any time refuse to comply with any provisions made in his application for license, the game, fish and oyster commissioner is authorized to cancel said license and the boat registration certificate, notice of which shall be given by the fish and oyster commissioner in writing and delivered to the licensee. Any person wishing to engage in the taking or catching of any fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters for market as the employé of a crew of any registered boat, shall procure a license in the same manner and character as the captain or master of any registered boat engaged in taking or catching fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters for market, provided that one license so issued under this article shall authorize the licensee to engage in taking or catching of any of the products named herein. [Id.]

See notes under Art. 3982.

Art. 3987. Licenses to wholesale dealers in fish and oysters; wholesale dealer defined.—For the better protection of the fish and oyster industry, any person, firm, or corporation engaged in or who may engage in the business of wholesale dealer or dealers in fish or oysters shall on or before the first day of September of each year secure from the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, a license granting such person, firm or corporation permission to engage in said occupation. A wholesale dealer in the meaning of this Act is one who is engaged in the fish or oyster business as a dealer supplying the wholesale or retail [retail] trade by sales of quantities of fifty pounds or more of fish, or oysters in quantities or lots of five barrels or more, provided, one who has a license under article 3986 and pays the tax of one-fifth of one per cent per pound on fish caught and sold shall not be considered a wholesale dealer. Provided, that two gallons of shucked oysters shall be considered a barrel of oysters. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3988. Application for license; requisites; agreement for inspection, record, forfeiture, etc.—For the purpose of obtaining a wholesale dealer's license, the applicant desiring same, shall make written application to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or one of his deputies in which he, the applicant shall set forth under oath if so required that he is a citizen of the United States and that he does because of the privilege for which he applies for from the state of Texas, agree that all products bought or sold or had for sale by him shall at all times be subject to the inspection of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or any of his deputies, and in said application he shall authorize said commissioner or any of his deputies to enter his place of business or any place where he may have such products stored and inspect same. He shall also agree to keep a correct record of all purchases made by him under this chapter in a book to be furnished by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and he shall further agree that failure on his part to keep a correct record and comply with all provisions of his application shall be grounds for the forfeiture of his license granted him under the application there aforesaid; and provided, further, that the violation of any of the fish and oyster laws of this state or the violation of any of the rules and regulations of the fish and oyster commissioner of this state, shall be and constitute a forfeiture of said license. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3989. Issuance of license; requirements; tax; cancellation of license.—The application for a wholesale dealer's license having been duly executed and delivered to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or any of his deputies, together with the fee for same, it shall then be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputy to pass upon same, and if said application is found to comply with the law and the rules and regulations of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, a license shall be issued to said applicant permitting such applicant to engage in the business set forth in the application, said license to be signed by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, stamped with the seal of office and state the name of the licensee, place of business and the kind of license applied for and shall be good for twelve months following the date of issuance, and for such license the applicant shall pay a tax of one dollar for each one thousand pounds of fish handled by him and a tax of one cent per barrel of oysters handled by him, which tax shall be paid monthly; the tax to be paid on the first of each month which may be due upon the said products handled during the preceding month, as per the record book hereinbefore mentioned. For the failure or refusal of any licensee to pay said tax, the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, shall have authority and it shall be his duty to cancel such license. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3990. Deposit of estimated amount of tax, etc.—The applicant for any license under this Act based upon fish and oysters handled, shall upon the issuance of such license, deposit with the game, fish and oyster commissioner an amount of money, to be fixed by the said commissioner, sufficient to cover the estimated amount of tax that would be due by applicant upon the monthly business of applicant, and against which deposit the tax due may be charged by the commissioner, and said applicant shall make additional deposits in sufficient amounts to at all times maintain a deposit sufficient to cover the estimated tax that may be due by applicant, which additional deposit shall be made upon request of the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3991. [2518m] Location for planting oysters, who may obtain; application; fee.—Any person who is a citizen of the United States or any corporation having been chartered in this state, shall have the right of obtaining a location for planting oysters and making private oyster beds within the public waters of this state, by making written application to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputy, describing the location desired. A fee of ten dollars cash must accompany such application. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3992. [2518m] Examination of location; survey.—When the application and fee provided for in article 3991 has been placed in the hands of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, it shall then be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputy to examine thoroughly the location desired as soon as practicable, with tongs, dredge, or any other efficient manner; and if the same be not a natural oyster bed or reef and exempt from location by any section or article of this chapter, he shall have the location surveyed by a competent surveyor. In making said location said surveyor shall plant two iron stakes or pipes on the shore line nearest to the proposed location, one at each end of the proposed location, which said stakes or pipes shall be not less than two inches in diameter and be set at least three feet in the ground. Said stakes or pipes shall be placed with reference to bearings of not less than three natural or permanent objects or land marks. And the locator shall place and maintain under the direction of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, a buoy at each corner of his oyster claim farthest from land. All locations for private oyster beds shall be made outside of the riparian limits, as defined in the laws relating thereto. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3993. [2518m] A certificate; requisites; fee.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, shall give the locator a certificate signed by the game, fish and oyster commissioner and stamped with the seal of his office; such certificate shall show the date of application, date of survey, number, description of metes and bounds with reference to the points of the compass and natural and artificial objects by which the said location can be found and verified; and the locator shall pay to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputies, a fee of ten dollars for every fifty acres or fractional part thereof, for the examination of said location, including the certificate; provided, that the ten dollars theretofore paid by the locator with his application shall be deducted from this fee. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3994. [2518m] Certificate to be filed and recorded; fee; evidence.—At any time not exceeding sixty days after the date of such certificate of location, the locator must file the same with the county clerk of the county in which the location is situated, who shall record the same in a well-bound book kept for the purpose, and the original with a certificate of registration shall be returned to the owner or locator; the clerk shall receive for the recording of such certificate the same fee as for recording deeds; the original or certified copies of such certificates shall be admissible in evidence under the same rules governing the admission of deeds or certified copies thereof. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3995. [2518m] Locator protected in possession.—Any person so locating shall be protected in his possession thereof against trespass thereon in like manner as freeholders are protected in their possessions as long as he maintains all stakes and buoys in their original and correct position and comply with all laws, rules and regulations governing the fish and oyster industries. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3996. [2518p] Location limited; foreign corporations excluded.—No person, firm, or corporation shall ever own, lease or otherwise control more than six hundred and forty acres of land covered by water, the same being oyster locations under this chapter, and within the public waters of this state; and any person, firm or corporation that now holds six hundred and forty acres of oyster locations shall not be permitted hereafter to acquire, lease or otherwise control more; provided, that no corporation shall lease or control any such lands covered by water unless such corporation shall be duly incorporated under the laws of this state. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3997. [2518n] Owner of private location and assignee to keep stakes in place; may fence, provided.—Any person, firm or corporation who has secured, or may hereafter secure a location for a private oyster bed in this state, shall keep the two iron stakes or pipes and buoys as provided for in article 3992 in place, and shall preserve the marks so long as he is the lessee of said location, and this shall apply also to any person, firm or corporation, acquiring any location by purchase or transfer of any nature; and said locator or the assignee of any locator, shall have the right to fence said location, or any part thereof; provided, that said fence does not obstruct navigation through or into a regular channel or cut leading to other public waters. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3998. [2518n] Rents to be paid for locations; forfeitures, etc.—Every locator or assignee of any locator of a location for private oyster beds in this state shall pay the following amounts as rent for his location; in addition to the locating fee of ten dollars as prescribed in article 3993 of this chapter, he shall pay the sum of fifteen cents per acre to the first day of January following the date of application, to be paid to the game, fish any oyster commissioner on receipt of the certificate of location; the rent for next four years from the first day of January above named shall be twenty-five cents per acre per annum; and the rent thereafter shall be seventy-five cents per acre per annum; the rent shall be paid to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and shall be due on January 1st of each year; and, if not paid by March 1st of the same year, the locator or the assignee of any locator shall forfeit all right to the location, and the same shall revert to the state. Provided a locator shall not sell his oyster claim within a period of four years from date of location unless he has expended not less than five dollars per acre on such claim. Provided the lessee of any oyster location may forfeit or sell a part of his claim under rules of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and with his consent. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3999. Permit to gather seed oysters, to whom and by whom granted, etc.; on what beds, etc.; fees, etc.—Any person who is a citizen of the state of Texas, or any corporation having been chartered in the state of Texas, wishing to plant oysters on location obtained from the state, or on private property in the state, must make written application to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, for a permit or license, which shall entitle the holder to gather seed oysters from the date of permit to such time as may be designated by the game, fish and oyster commissioner thereafter, by dredge, tongs or hand, without culling, on such reefs or beds as may be designated by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, in said permit; provided, that in no instance can there be designated a bed or reef on which marketable oysters are being gathered in paying quantities or on which marketable oysters have been gathered within two years, but the bed or reef so designated shall be an old or abandoned bed or reef, or one on which oysters do not get in marketable condition during the oyster season or on such reefs where the oysters are so thickly set as to warrant the commissioner in granting a permit to have them thinned, and in taking oysters from such reef or bed, the work shall be done with a view to reclaiming and improving such reef or bed; for the permit above named, the applicant shall pay to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, the sum of five dollars, and shall pay all expenses for examining and locating such reef or beds designated. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4000. Duties of commissioner.—It shall be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, to collect the special tax imposed by this chapter, and enforce its payment, to inspect all products so taxed and verify the weights and measures thereof, to collect all license fees, to collect all rents on locations for planting oysters, to examine, or have examined, all streams, lakes, or ponds, when requested so to do, for the purpose of stocking such waters with fish, best suited to such location, and he shall procure and furnish such stock fish from the nearest fishery, and at the cheapest rate possible to parties applying for same. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4001. [2515] Commissioner to keep record, to show what.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall keep a record book, which shall be well bound, and in which shall be recorded all special taxes collected, all licenses issued and license fees collected, all certificates issued for locations of private oyster beds, showing the date of certificate and application, when and how the applications were executed and the manner in which the bottoms were examined and rents collected for such locations, showing also all stock fish furnished, to whom furnished, and the cost of same, the streams, lakes or ponds, stocked, number and kinds of fish used in each, and showing all collections and disbursements in and from his office. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4002. Commissioner to keep accounts with locators.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall keep an account with each and every person, firm or corporation, holding certificates for the location of private oyster beds in this state, showing the amounts received, as rents, etc. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4003. [2516] Commissioner to make annual report to governor, to be printed, etc.; requisites; penalty.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall make, on the thirty-first day of August of each year, or as soon thereafter as practicable, not later than October 1st of each year, a report to the governor, showing the condition of the fish and oyster industry. The report shall show special taxes collected, the number and class of all boats engaged in the fish and oyster trade, the number of licenses issued and license fees collected, the number, place and acreage of private oyster beds, and rents received therefor, and all other amounts collected from whatever source, and the disbursements thereof, as provided for in this chapter with such observations and remarks as pertain to the industry. The report shall also contain a statement of all stock fish furnished, to whom furnished, the cost of same, the streams, lakes, or ponds stocked, the number and kind of fish used in each, and the condition of such plants, with any other data he may obtain on the subject. The governor shall order a sufficient number of copies of such report to be printed and filed in the secretary of state's office, for the purpose of free distribution to parties interested therein. Failing to make such report within the time specified, the said commissioner may, in the discretion of the governor, be dismissed from his office. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4004. [2518d] Deputies in coast counties; special deputies over entire coast; appointment; powers.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner is authorized to appoint deputies for each of the vessels owned by the state and employed in the fish and oyster department. Such boat deputies shall have and exercise the same powers and duties as the game, fish and oyster commissioner in the enforcement of the fish and oyster laws; provided, that such deputies shall at all times be subject to the orders of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and any and all laws, or parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this article are hereby repealed. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4005. [2517] Shore and interior deputies; appointment; powers and duties.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner is authorized to appoint such other shore and interior deputies as he may deem necessary for the enforcement of the law. And such shore deputies and interior deputies shall have and exercise the same powers and duties as the game, fish and oyster commissioner in the enforcement of the law, and be at all times subject to his orders. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4006. [2518k] Qualifications of deputy fish commissioner, etc.—No person shall hold the office of deputy fish and oyster commissioner who is not a citizen of the United States and resident of the state of Texas. All deputies shall hold their office at the pleasure of the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4007. [2518g] Oath and bond of deputy commissioner.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, each deputy fish and oyster commissioner, shall file with the fish and oyster commissioner a good and sufficient bond, with two or more sureties, in the sum of one thousand dollars, and take the same oath of office as the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and said bond and oath shall be governed by the provisions of article 3977. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4008. [2518f] Duties of deputy fish commissioner, etc.—Each deputy fish and oyster commissioner shall be ex-officio game commissioner, and shall exercise the duties and powers of game commissioners under the direction of the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4009. [2518e] Weekly reports by deputies; with remittances; annual reports.—All deputy fish and oyster commissioners, shall make a weekly report to the game, fish and oyster commissioner of all funds collected by them, remitting along with said report all sums of money collected by them during the said week, and shall make an annual report to the game, fish and oyster commissioner not later than August first of each year, which report shall set forth in detail such acts as are provided for in article No. 4003, and article 4014. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4010. [2518j] Commissioner responsible for his deputies.—The commissioner shall be responsible, on his bond, for the official acts of his deputies. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4011. [2518] Fish and oyster fund.—All the money derived by the state from fines for infraction of the fish and oyster laws, fees for licenses, and taxes on private oyster beds, and taxes on fish and oysters, shall be kept by the comptroller separate under the head of, "Fish and Oyster Fund." [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4012.—Superseded. See Art. 4013.

Art. 4013. Fines distributed, how.—Of all fines collected for infraction of the fish and oyster laws, ten per cent. shall go to the prosecuting attorney and the residue shall go to the fish and oyster fund of the state. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4014. [2518c] Disposition of funds collected by deputies.—All funds collected by deputy fish and oyster commissioners along the coast for register certificates, licenses, fees and rents for locating private oyster beds and any other fees that may be prescribed, shall be, by said deputies and each of them, paid over weekly to the game, fish and oyster commissioner. Such funds so collected by the game, fish and oyster commissioner weekly from the deputy game, fish and oyster commissioners, shall be by the game, fish and oyster commissioner deposited monthly in the state treasury, to the credit of the fish and oyster fund. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4015. [2517] Compensation of commissioner.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall for his services in the fish and oyster department, be allowed the sum of eighteen hundred dollars per annum, to be paid out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be paid in the same manner as other officers of the state. He shall also be allowed a sum not to exceed six hundred dollars per annum for office rent, traveling and other expenses, to be paid on vouchers approved by the governor, showing that such amounts have actually been expended in the performance of his duties of said office and he shall be allowed all stationery, books, blanks, tags, state laws and charts necessary to the execution of the duties of his office. [Id. Acts 1895, p. 70. Acts 1899, p. 313.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4016. [2518c] Compensation of deputy commissioners.—Out of the special fish and oyster funds all deputy fish and oyster commissioners shall be paid their salaries and expenses monthly, on the approval of the game, fish and oyster commissioner; the comptroller drawing his warrant in favor of each of said persons on said special fish and oyster fund as follows:—Deputies on boats shall receive seventy-five dollars per month; deputies on shore and interior shall receive fifty dollars per month when permanently engaged, or two dollars per day for each day's service when specially employed. Provided, that the deputy fish and oyster commissioners in service at Caddo Lake shall receive monthly salaries of seventy-five dollars each. Provided, that the game, fish and oyster commissioner shall appoint when he deems it necessary, a mate for any of the boats in the service of the state, and such mates shall receive a salary of fifty dollars each per month. Provided, that the deputies shall not be allowed any expenses for provisions. [Id. Acts 1907, p. 234. Acts 1905, p. 130. Acts 1903, p. 190. Acts 1899, p. 313. Acts 1895, p. 70. Acts 1909, S. See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4017. [2518i] Fees for making arrests, etc.—In making arrests, summoning witnesses and serving processes, the commissioner, or his deputy, shall be allowed the same fees and mileage as sheriffs, the same being charged as costs and collected the same as are sheriff's costs and fees. [Acts 1895, p. 70.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4018. Commissioners' court may appropriate money for stocking waters with fish; deputy for, etc.—The commissioners' court of any county bordering on any stream or having within its borders any public stream, lake or pond, shall have the right to appropriate a sum not to exceed two hundred dollars per annum, out of the general fund of the county or so much thereof as said court may deem necessary for the purpose of stocking said waters with fish, and at the request and recommendation of said commissioners' court, the state game, fish and oyster commissioner shall appoint a deputy fish commissioner for said county, who shall have charge of all public waters in said county for the purpose of stocking and protecting same, and the commissioners' court shall pay the said deputy for his services such amount as may be agreed upon, not to exceed two dollars and fifty cents per day. [Acts 1913, p. 297, sec. 1.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4019. Improving, etc., the natural oyster beds of Matagorda Bay; expenditure authorized, provided, etc.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner is hereby authorized to use and expend the sum of three thousand dollars, or as much thereof as may be necessary, out of the fish and oyster fund, for the purpose of improving and reviving the natural oyster beds in Matagorda bay, in the state of Texas, by constructing a canal from the northeast end of said bay, connecting same with the lakes and bayous leading into the San Bernard river, for the purpose of conducting salt water into said bay; and said amount of three thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of said fish and oyster fund for such purpose, said money to be paid out upon the approval of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and by warrant drawn by the state comptroller on the state treasurer; provided, that in no event shall the state be liable for the payment of any indebtedness created by virtue of this article, and the said game, fish and oyster commissioner shall only create such indebtedness when there are sufficient funds in said fish and oyster fund, not otherwise appropriated, to meet such indebtedness. [Acts 1909, S. S., p. 328.]

Art. 4019a. Seines, nets, etc.; inspection; tags, etc.—The mesh of all seines and nets used for taking fish in salt waters, not including the bag, shall be not less than one and one-half inch square mesh. The mesh of bags and for fifteen feet on each side of the mouth of the bag shall be not less than one and one-fourth inch square mesh. No seine used for taking fish shall be over twelve hundred feet in length. All such seines shall be inspected by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, and shall be properly tagged with a metallic tag, which tag shall be provided at the cost of the owner of the same. The mesh of shrimp nets shall be not less than one-half inch square mesh and not more than fifty feet long and four feet deep. The mesh of the turtle nets shall be twelve inches square. [Acts 1913, p. 297, sec. 1.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4019b. Person leasing oyster claim, etc.; permission to seine for drum fish, etc.; duty of commissioner; payment to be made, etc.; penalty for violation.—Any person leasing an oyster claim or oyster reef in waters where seining is prohibited, may apply to the game, fish and oyster commissioner for permission to seine for drum fish in such waters. In his application he shall make oath that the drum fish are seriously damaging his oysters, and that if he is permitted to seine for such drum fish in such waters, he will not take or destroy any other food fish but will throw them back in the water. If the commissioner is satisfied that such damage is being done, he may grant such permission to the person applying for it, specifying in such permit the length and mesh of the seine to be used, the length of time in which it is to be used, and the claim or reef on which it is to be used. And such commissioner shall assign a deputy fish and oyster commissioner to superintend such seining and no seine shall be dragged except in his presence, and for which, a person obtaining the permission to seine, as set forth above, shall pay to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, $2.50 per day to be placed in the special fish and oyster fund, for such services. The person granted such permission shall board the deputy fish and oyster commissioner during his superintendence of such seining. If the person obtaining the permission shall violate any of the provisions of this Act, he shall be prosecuted and punished under the criminal laws of this state applicable in such cases. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4019c. Permission to dredge reef of oysters; duty of commissioner; payment to be made, etc.—Whenever a reef of oysters is over eight feet below the surface of the waters, the game, fish and oyster commissioner may grant permission, to any one applying for it, to dredge on such reef. And in doing this the commissioner shall state the character and number of dredges to be used and the length of time for which they shall be used. The person to whom such privilege shall be granted shall not dredge except in the presence of a deputy fish and oyster commissioner, assigned to such duty by the game, fish and oyster commissioner. And the person granted such permission shall furnish board to such commissioner on board of the dredge boat or other boat on the reef and shall pay to the game, fish and oyster commissioner $2.50 for all days or parts of days during such dredging, which money shall be placed in the special fish and oyster fund. [Id.]

Arts. 4020, 4021.—Repealed. See Art. 4021a.

Art. 4021a. Laws repealed.—That articles 4020 and 4021, said title, and all other laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4021b. What included within act, and under management, etc., of game, fish and oyster commission.—All of the islands, reefs, bars, lakes and bays within tidewater limits from the most interior point seaward coextensive with the jurisdiction of this state and such of the fresh water lakes within the interior of this state as may not be embraced in any survey of private land, together with all the marl and sand of commercial value, and all the shells or mudshell, of whatsoever kind that may be in or upon any island, reef or bar, and in or upon the bottoms of any lake, bay or shallow water, and also all fishing waters, fish hatcheries and oyster beds, within the jurisdiction and territory herein defined, are included within the provisions of this Act, and all such islands, reefs, bars, lakes, bays, shallow waters, and the marl, sand, shells, or mudshell and oyster beds and fishing waters and fish hatcheries, located as herein defined, are, for the purpose of this Act, hereby placed under the management, control and protection of the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Acts 1911, p. 118, sec. 1.]

Art. 4021c. Certain fresh water lakes shall not be sold; open to public; proviso, etc.—Such of the fresh water lakes within this state as may not be embraced in any survey of private land shall not be sold, but shall remain open to the public; provided, should the game, fish and oyster commissioner stock them with fish, he is authorized to protect same for such time and under such rules as he may prescribe. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4021d. Powers of commission; marl, sand, shells, mudshell, oyster beds and fishing waters.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner is hereby invested with all the power and authority necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this Act, and shall have full charge and discretion over all matters pertaining to the sale, the taking, carrying away or disturbing of all marl or sand of commercial value, and all shells or mudshell and oyster beds and fishing waters, and their protection from free use and unlawful disturbing or appropriation of same, with such exceptions and under such restrictions and limitations as may be provided herein. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4021e. Marl, etc., shall not be purchased, taken, carried away, or disturbed, except, etc.—None of the marl or sand or shells or mudshell included within the preceding sections of this Act shall be purchased, taken, carried away or disturbed except as provided in this Act, nor shall any oyster beds, fishing waters or fish hatcheries within the territory included in this Act be disturbed except as herein provided. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4021f. Application to purchase or operate; permit; revocation; no special privilege or exclusive right.—Any one desiring to purchase any of the marl and sand of commercial value and any of the shells or mudshell included within the provisions of this Act, or otherwise operate in any of the waters or upon any island, reef, bar, lake or bay included in this Act, shall first make written application therefor to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, designating the limits of the territory in which such person desires to operate. If the game, fish and oyster commissioner is satisfied the taking, carrying away or disturbing of the marl, sand or shells or mudshell in the designated territory would not damage or injuriously affect any oysters, oyster bed, fish inhabiting the waters thereof or adjacent thereto, and that such operation would not damage or injuriously affect any island, reef, bar, channel used for frequent or occasional navigation nor change or otherwise injuriously affect any current that would affect navigation, he may issue a permit to such person after such applicant shall have complied with all regulations and requirements prescribed by said commissioner. The permit shall authorize the applicant to take, carry away, or otherwise operate within the limits of such territory as may be designated therein, and for such substance or purposes only as may be named in the permit and upon the terms and conditions therein. No permit shall be assignable, and a failure or refusal of the holder to comply with the terms and conditions of the permit shall operate as an immediate termination and revocation of all rights conferred therein or claimed thereunder. No special privilege or exclusive right shall be granted to any person, association of persons, corporate or otherwise, to take or carry away any marl, sand or shell or mudshell from any territory nor to otherwise operate in or upon any island, reef, bar, lake, or bay included in this Act. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4021g. Sale of marl, sand, shells or mudshell, when authorized; proceeds, how disposed of, etc.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner, by and with the approval of the governor, may sell the marl, sand and shells or mudshell, included within this Act, upon such terms and conditions as he may deem proper, but for not less than four cents per ton, and payment therefor shall be made to said commissioner. The proceeds arising from such sale shall be transmitted to the state treasurer and be credited to the fish and oyster fund, and may be expended by the said commissioner upon itemized accounts sworn to by those performing the service of furnishing the material, and approved by said commissioner. The said accounts shall be filed with the comptroller of public accounts, and he shall draw a warrant therefor upon the state treasurer. [Acts 1911, p. 118, sec. 6. Amended, Acts 1911, S. S., p. 78, sec. 1.]

Art. 4021h. Commission may locate oyster beds and establish fish hatcheries.—So far as the proceeds arising under this Act may be sufficient, the said commissioner may locate suitable places for oyster beds and advise the public of such locations, and may establish fish hatcheries on the coast or elsewhere in the fresh water lakes and streams of the interior upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe. [Acts 1911, p. 118, sec. 7.]

Art. 4021i. Permits to counties, cities, towns, etc.—If any county, or any subdivision of a county, city or town should desire any marl, sand or shell or mudshell included in this Act for use in the building of any road or street, which work is done by such county, or any subdivision of a county, city or town, such county or any subdivision of a county, city or town may be granted a permit without charge and shall have the right to take, carry away or operate in any waters, or upon any islands, reefs, or bars included in this Act, and this whether such county, subdivision of a county, city or town does the work under its own supervision or by contract, but such county, or any subdivision of a county, city or town shall first obtain from the said commissioner a permit to do so, and the granting of same for the operation in the territory designated by such county, or any subdivision of a county, city or town, shall be subject to the same rules, regulations and limitations and discretion of the said commissioner as are other applicants and permits. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4021j. Taking away, disturbing, fishing or operating, etc., without permit misdemeanor.—If any person, association of persons, corporate or otherwise, shall, for himself or itself, or for or on behalf of or under the direction of another person, association of persons, corporate or otherwise, take or carry away any of the marl, sand or shells or mudshell included in this Act, or shall disturb any of said marl, sand shells or mudshell or oyster beds or fishing waters, or shall fish in any fresh water lake or shall operate in or upon any of said places for any purpose other than that necessary or incident to navigation or dredging under state or federal authority, without having first obtained a written permit from the game, fish and oyster commissioner for the territory in which such operation is carried on, such person, association of persons, corporate or otherwise, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in a sum of money not less than ten dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, and one-half of the proceeds arising from such fines shall be appropriated to the road and bridge fund of the county in which the conviction is had and one-half shall be appropriated to the fish and oyster fund. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4021k. Sand may be taken from Galveston bay without payment, etc.—Provided, however, that there may be taken and appropriated from beneath the waters of Galveston bay, sand for filling and raising the grade of Galveston island, without making payment therefor to the game, fish and oyster commission or to the state of Texas. [Acts 1911, p. 118. Amended, Acts 1913, p. 329, sec. 1.]

Article 4022. Wild animals, birds, etc., property of public.—All the wild deer, wild antelope, wild Rocky Mountain sheep, wild turkey, wild ducks, wild geese, wild grouse, wild prairie chickens (pinnated grouse), wild Mongolian or English pheasants, wild quail or partridges, wild doves, wild pigeons, wild plover, wild snipe, wild jacksnipe, wild curlews, wild robins, wild Mexican pheasants or chachalaca and all other wild animals, wild birds and wild fowls found within the borders of this state, shall be, and the same are hereby declared to be, the property of the public. [Acts 1907, p. 278.]

Art. 4023. Hunting licenses required of non-residents; requisites and duration; fee.—It shall hereafter be unlawful for any person who has not been a bona fide inhabitant of, and resident citizen of, this state for six months last past to hunt for or kill any game or birds protected by the laws of this state without first procuring a hunting license from the game, fish and oyster commissioner permitting him to do so, and paying to said commissioner the sum of fifteen dollars. Said license shall be dated when issued and shall remain in force until the first day of September following thereafter. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S. p. 456. Acts 1907, p. 256.]

Art. 4024. Non-resident licensee may take home game lawfully killed, provided, etc.—Any person to whom a non-resident license to hunt for game in this state has been issued may take to his home beyond the boundaries of this state such game as he has himself lawfully killed, not to exceed one day's bag limit, and under such restrictions and regulations as may be prescribed by the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Acts 1907, p. 256.]

Art. 4025. Hunting licenses required of residents, when; requisites; authority given, duration; fee.—It shall hereafter be unlawful for any person to hunt or kill any game quadrupeds or game birds or wild fowl protected by the game laws of this state, except in the county of his residence or in counties adjoining the county of his residence or on land owned or controlled by him, without first obtaining a state hunting license from the game, fish and oyster commissioner permitting him to do so. Any person who has been a bona fide resident of this state for six months last past may procure a hunting license to hunt outside the boundaries of the county in which he resides, by paying a license fee of one dollar and seventy-five cents to the county clerk of the county in which he resides, to be dated when issued. Such license shall expire the first day of September of each year following such date. Such license shall authorize the person named therein to use firearms in the hunting or killing of game or game birds during the hunting season of that year, but only in the manner and time prescribed by law. Such license shall limit the number and quantity of game which may be taken or killed, in accordance with the provisions of law governing the subject. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 456.]

Art. 4026. County clerk to issue local hunting licenses, etc., keep stubs of, etc.—The county clerk of each county in this state is hereby authorized to issue local hunting licenses, under his official seal, to all persons complying with the provisions of this chapter, and shall fill out correctly and preserve the stubs attached thereto. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Id.]

Art. 4027. County clerk to keep record.—The county clerk shall keep a complete and correct record of hunting licenses issued, showing the name and place of residence of each licensee, and the serial number and date of the license so issued, in a book to be furnished by the game, fish and oyster commissioner; which record shall be kept in his office and be open to the inspection of the public at all times during office hours. Said books and license stubs and unused licenses shall always be open to inspection of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputies. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Id.]

Art. 4028. Monthly report of licenses by county clerk, in duplicate, to commissioner and comptroller.—The county clerk shall, within ten days of the close of each calendar month, make out a detailed report in duplicate under the seal of his office, showing the serial number and date of each license issued, and the name and residence of the person to whom issued; he shall forward one copy to the game, fish and oyster commissioner at Austin, and one copy to the comptroller, who shall charge the game, fish and oyster commissioner with the amount so shown to be remitted. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Id. p. 457.]

Art. 4029. Commissioner to enforce laws for protection, etc., of wild game, etc., bring actions, etc., for fines, etc.; powers.—It is hereby made a special duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner to enforce the statutes of this state for the protection and preservation of wild game and wild birds, and to bring, or cause to be brought, actions and proceedings in the name of the state of Texas to recover any and all fines and penalties provided for in the laws now in force, or that may hereafter be enacted, relating to wild game and wild birds. Said game, fish and oyster commissioner may make complaint and cause proceedings to be commenced against any person for violation of any of the laws for the protection and propagation of game or birds, without the sanction of the county attorney of the county in which such proceedings are commenced; and in such case he shall not be required to furnish security for costs. [Acts 1907, p. 254.]

Art. 4030. Power to seize birds and animals, when; disposition of.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall, at any and all times, seize and take possession of all birds and animals that have been caught, taken or killed, or had in possession or under control, or have been shipped contrary to any of the laws of this state, and such seizure may be made without a warrant. All birds or animals seized by the commissioner shall be disposed of in such manner as may be directed by any court having competent jurisdiction to hear and determine cases for violation of the game and bird laws of this state. [Id.]

Art. 4031. Commissioner to keep record; to contain what.—It shall be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner to keep in his office, in the capitol of this state, a well bound book in which he shall keep a complete list of the licenses issued, fines collected and a statement of all prosecutions instituted for violation of the game, fish and oyster laws, and the result of same. Said records shall be kept open for the inspection of the comptroller and the public. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 457.]

Art. 4032. Monthly report by commissioner.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner, at the close of each calendar month, shall file with the comptroller a report in writing and detail, stating the service performed by him during the last preceding month, including a detailed statement of the suits commenced at his instance and the disposition made of same, all fines, licenses and other fees collected, their disposition, and any other particulars he may deem proper. [Acts 1907, p. 255. Id. p. 455.]

Art. 4033. Commissioner may appoint chief deputy; office in capitol; oath; duties.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall have power to appoint a chief deputy, who shall maintain an office in the capitol of the state; said chief deputy shall take the constitutional oath of office and shall act as general assistant to said game, fish and oyster commissioner, and, during the absence, sickness or disability of the commissioner, he shall exercise the duties of said commissioner. Said chief deputy shall devote his entire time to the work of his office. [Acts 1907, p. 255.]

Art. 4034. Bond of chief deputy.—The chief deputy game, fish and oyster commissioner shall, before assuming the duties of his office, file with the secretary of state a good and sufficient bond in the sum of five thousand dollars for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. [Id. p. 256.]

Art. 4035. The commissioner may appoint deputy game commissioners; powers.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall also have power to appoint deputy game commissioners, who shall have the same power and authority as herein provided for the game, fish and oyster commissioner himself, subject to the supervision and control of and removal by the said game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Id. p. 255.]

Art. 4036. Disposition of fees and fines received by commissioner.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall, at the time of each monthly report required of him by this chapter, pay over to the state treasurer all fines, license and other fees collected by him, which shall be credited to the special fund provided for in this chapter. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 455.]

Art. 4037. Disposition of fines by court or deputy commissioner.—All fines collected in the county or district courts of this state for violation of the game and bird laws of this state, shall, within thirty days from date of the collection, be forwarded by the court, or the deputy game commissioner, to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, who shall deposit same in the state treasury, and same shall be credited to the special fund provided for the payment of salaries and expenses of deputies appointed under the provisions of this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 4038. Disposition of license fees received by county clerk.—The county clerk shall, with each monthly report required of him by this chapter, remit to the game, fish and oyster commissioner at Austin, all license fees collected by him, less twenty-five cents for each license issued, which he may retain as his fee. Upon the receipt of such report and remittance, the game, fish and oyster commissioner shall deposit same in the state treasury to the credit of the special fund provided for in this chapter; and the comptroller shall credit said commissioner with the amount of the deposits so made. [Id. p. 457.]

Art. 4039. Hunting license fund; a separate salary, etc.; fund.—All funds paid into the state treasury from the sale of hunting licenses shall be set apart as a special fund for salaries and expenses of the game, fish and oyster commissioner and his various deputies, as provided in this chapter; provided, that the fund derived from the sale of hunting licenses contemplated by this chapter shall never be combined with the fish and oyster fund of the state; nor shall said fish and oyster fund ever be liable for the payment of any of the expenses contemplated by this chapter, but shall be kept intact and for the sole purpose of paying the expenses and maintaining the fish and oyster department of the state, as now provided by law; and the said commissioner and his deputies shall not be paid out of any other funds. [Acts 1907, p. 256.]

Art. 4040. Compensation of commissioner and deputies.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall receive, in addition to the salary now paid him for his services in the fish and oyster department, the sum of seven hundred dollars per annum, and his actual and necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of his said duties, to be paid monthly on the warrant of the comptroller, on the approval of his vouchers therefor. The chief deputy shall receive an annual salary of eighteen hundred dollars and his actual and necessary expenses incurred by him in the discharge of the duties of his office, to be paid monthly on the warrant of the comptroller, and on the approval of his accounts and vouchers therefor. Each deputy commissioner shall receive three dollars per day for each day actually spent in the discharge of his duties under the direction of the commissioner, and their actual expenses necessarily incurred when so employed, to be paid monthly on the warrant of the comptroller, on the approval of itemized vouchers verified under oath and certified and approved by the game, fish and oyster commissioner; provided, that the total amount paid out by the warrant of the comptroller for the salaries and expenses of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, his chief deputy and the other deputies provided for in this chapter, shall not exceed the amount received by the state treasurer from the sale of hunting licenses and the collection of fines and penalties in cases for the violation of the game and bird laws of this state. And in no event shall the state ever be liable for the pay of any of the deputy commissioners provided for in this chapter. [Id. pp. 255–256, secs. 5–6.]

Art. 4041. Chief deputy to furnish blank hunting licenses to county clerk; accounts.—It shall be the duty of the chief deputy game, fish and oyster commissioner to prepare and furnish to each county clerk blank hunting licenses with stubs attached, numbered serially. Said chief deputy shall open an account with each county clerk and charge him with the number of licenses furnished said clerk. Said account shall show the serial number of such licenses. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 456, sec. 10.]

Art. 4042. Commissioner and deputies made fire commissioners; deputies.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner and his deputies appointed under the provisions of this chapter are hereby made fire commissioners, and it shall be their duty, in addition to their duties provided for in this chapter, to caution sportsmen or other persons, while in the woods or marshes or prairies, of the danger from fire, and to extinguish all fires left burning by any one, to the extent of their power, and to give notice to any and all parties interested, when possible, of fires raging and beyond their control, to the end that same may be controlled and extinguished. [Acts 1907, p. 257, sec. 12.]

CHAPTER ONE

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art.	Art.
4043. Jurisdiction of county court over.	4051. Provisions governing estates of decedents govern guardianships.
4044. Jurisdiction of district court over.	4052. Contest of proceedings.
4045. Who are minors.	4053. Cases of guardianship shall be called at each term.
4046. Who are persons of unsound mind.	4054. Meaning of "term of court."
4047. Who is an habitual drunkard.	4055. Appeals, etc., may be taken under the rules, etc., provided by law.
4048. Record book of estates shall be used.
4049. What papers shall be recorded.
4050. Order, etc., of court shall be at a regular term, unless, etc.

Article 4043. [2550] [2469] Jurisdiction of county court over.—The county court shall appoint guardians of minors, persons of unsound mind and habitual drunkards, settle accounts of guardians, and transact all business appertaining to the estates of minors, persons of unsound mind and habitual drunkards. [Const., art. 5, sec. 16. Act June 16, 1876, p. 19, sec. 4.]

Guardianship of dependent and neglected children.—See Title 38, Chapter 1.

Guardian ad litem.—See Title 37, Chapter 12.

Suit by next friend.—See Title 37, Chapter 22.

Jurisdiction as affected by will.—Provision in will that courts shall have no further jurisdiction than to probate will as applied to guardian held to fail for want of power in testatrix. Buckley v. Herder (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 703.

Art. 4044. [2551] [2470] Jurisdiction of district court over.—The district court shall have appellate jurisdiction over the county court in all matters of guardianship, and original control and jurisdiction over guardians and wards, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. [Const., art. 5, sec. 8.]

See, also, notes under Art. 1706.

Jurisdiction to determine custody of minors.—Jurisdiction to determine the right to the custody of a minor is conferred by the constitution upon the district court, and can be invoked only by an original proceeding brought in that court, and cannot be exercised on an appeal in guardianship proceeding begun in a county court. Estes v. Presswood (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 145.

Art. 4045. [2552] [2471] Who are minors.—Male persons under twenty-one years of age, and females under twenty-one years of age who have never been married, are minors. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 175, sec. 2.]

Disabilities and privileges of infancy.—See notes at end of Title 94.

Marriage as terminating disability of infancy.—See notes under Art. 4623.

Art. 4046. [2553] [2472] Who are persons of unsound mind.—Persons of unsound mind are idiots, lunatics or insane persons. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4047. [2554] [2473] Who is an habitual drunkard.—An habitual drunkard is one whose mind has become so impaired by the use of intoxicating liquors or drugs that he is incapable of taking care of himself or property. [Id.]

Art. 4048. [2555] [2474] Record books of estates shall be used, etc.—The record books used for the business of estates of decedents shall also be used for the business of guardianships.

Art. 4049. [2556] [2475] What papers shall be recorded.—The following papers shall be copied at length into the minutes of the court:

1. All applications, citations and returns upon citations.
2. All notices, whether published or posted, with the returns thereon.
3. All bonds and official oaths.
4. All inventories, appraisements and lists of claims, after the same have been approved by the court.
5. All reports of sales, renting or leasing of property, and of loaning or investing money, after such reports have been approved by the court.
6. All accounts and exhibits of the guardian, after the same have been approved by the court. [Id. p. 191, sec. 186.]

Art. 4050. [2557] [2476] Orders, etc., of court shall be at regular terms, unless, etc.—All decisions, orders and judgments of the court in matters of guardianship shall be rendered and entered on the minutes of the court at a regular term thereof, and in open court, except in cases where it is otherwise specially provided.

Entry on records of orders and decrees in guardianship proceedings.—All orders and decrees in probate and guardianship proceedings must be entered upon the records at the term of court at which they are made, and unless so recorded they are nullities. Teague v. Swasey, 46 C. A. 151, 102 S. W. 460.

Under Arts. 4091-4096, the power to appoint a temporary guardian is conferred on the judge, while the power to pass on a contest and make a permanent appointment is vested in the court; and an order of the court appointing a permanent guardian must be made in term time and entered in the minutes, as required by Arts. 4050, 4083, and under Arts. 3219, 4050, the appointment is a nullity, unless so entered. Threatt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1137.

Art. 4051. [2558] [2477] Provisions, etc., governing estates of decedents govern guardianships, etc.—The provisions, rules and regulations which govern estates of decedents shall apply to and govern such guardianships, whenever the same are applicable and not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this title.

Entry on minutes of orders in guardianship proceedings.—This article in connection with Art. 3223 does not change the requirement of Art. 4050 that all orders in matters of guardianship shall be entered on the minutes of the court. Orders not so entered are void. Blackwood v. Blackwood's Estate (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 483.

Removal of money by guardian of nonresident minors.—Under this article and Arts. 3554, 4256-4260 a guardian could not remove money held by a clerk of the probate court paid him in a damage suit which belonged to nonresident minors, unless he complied with the conditions of title 64 by giving bond to secure debts. Hoffman v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 625.

Dismissal of appeal.—See notes under Art. 4055.

Art. 4052. [2559] [2478] Any person may contest proceedings.—Any person has the right to appear and contest the appointment of a particular person as guardian, or to contest any proceeding which he deems to be injurious to the ward, or to commence any proceeding which he considers beneficial to the ward, such person being liable for the costs occasioned by him in the case of his failure. [Id. p. 170, sec. 18.]

Contest of appointment.—Where one claiming to be the guardian appointed in another jurisdiction contests the appointment of a subsequent guardian in Texas, the material question is not the right of the contestant to maintain the suit (because under this article any one can do this), but conceding the right to commence the suit whether there is ground for relief. Hagan v. Snider, 44 C. A. 139, 98 S. W. 214.

Art. 4053. [2560] [2479] Case of guardianship shall be called at each term.—It shall be the duty of the county judge, at each regular term of his court, to call each case of guardianship upon his docket, and to make such orders therein as may be necessary, and to see that such orders, together with all papers required to be recorded, are entered upon the minutes, and to hold guardians and the officers of his court to a strict accountability for the performance of their duties with reference to guardianships.

Art. 4054. [2561] [2480] Meaning of "term of court."—Whenever a term of the county court is mentioned in this title, it is meant a term of such court held for the transaction of probate business.

Art. 4055. [2562] [2481] Appeals, etc., may be taken under the rules provided by law.—The judgments, orders, decrees and proceedings of the court in relation to guardianships may be appealed from to the district court by any person who may consider himself aggrieved thereby; or the same may be revised and corrected by certiorari, or bill of review, in the manner and under the rules and regulations provided by law.

Parties on appeal.—Where a guardian dies pending an appeal from the probate to the district court, and there being no administration on his estate nor necessity therefor, it is proper to make his heirs parties and prosecute the case in their name. Magness v. Berry, 29 C. A. 567, 69 S. W. 987.

Dismissal of appeal.—Under this article and Arts. 4051, 3631, 1889, held error to dismiss an appeal to the district court from a judgment of the probate court approving a guardian's account. Magness v. Berry, 29 C. A. 567, 69 S. W. 987.

CHAPTER TWO

IN WHAT COUNTY PROCEEDINGS SHALL BE COMMENCED

Art. 4056. Guardianship of estate of minor shall be commenced where parents reside. 4057. Where the parents reside in different counties.	Art. 4058. Proceedings for guardianship of orphan commenced, where. 4059. Persons of unsound mind, etc. 4060. Where a guardian has been appointed by will.
---	---

Article 4056. [2563] [2482] Guardianship of estate of minor shall be commenced where parents reside.—A proceeding for the appointment of a guardian for the estate of a minor shall be commenced in the county where the parents of such minor reside. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 176, sec. 19.]

Jurisdiction of courts.—Under this article and Arts. 4058, 4077, a proceeding to appoint a guardian of the estate of a minor who has a parent living should be brought in the county of the latter's residence. Estes v. Presswood (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 145.

Persons for whom guardians may be appointed.—Under the act of March 16, 1848 (Early Laws, art. 1853, § 2), it was held that the county court had authority to appoint a guardian for minors, nonresidents of this state, who had estates here, and to order the sale of property as in other cases. Neal v. Bartleson, 65 T. 478.

Art. 4057. [2564] [2483] Where parents reside in different counties.—If the parents of the minor do not reside in the same county, the proceedings for such guardianship shall be commenced in the county where the parent who has the custody of the minor resides. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4058. [2565] [2484] Proceedings for guardianship of an orphan shall be commenced, where.—A proceeding for the appointment of a guardian of the person and estate of an orphan, or of either, shall be commenced in the county where the last surviving parent of such orphan resided at the time of the death of such parent, or where such orphan is found, or where the principal estate of such orphan may be. [Id. sec. 21.]

Jurisdiction of courts—Residence of parents.—Under this article and Arts. 4056, 4070, a proceeding to appoint a guardian of the estate of a minor who has a parent living should be brought in the county of the latter's residence. Estes v. Presswood (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 145.

Residence of Infant.—"Residence," in its technical sense, of an orphan is not essential to the power of the probate court to appoint a guardian. The mere presence of an infant might confer jurisdiction. Hagan v. Snider, 44 C. A. 139, 98 S. W. 214.

Art. 4059. [2566] [2485] Persons of unsound mind and drunkards.—A proceeding for the appointment of a guardian of the person or estate, or of either, of a person of unsound mind, or an habitual drunkard, shall be commenced in the county where such person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard resides.

Jurisdiction of courts.—The fact that one is confined in an asylum in another county than his residence does not deprive the latter of jurisdiction in matters of guardianship of his estate. The residence is not thereby changed. Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 395, 80 S. W. 246.

Art. 4060. [2567] [2486] Where a guardian has been appointed by will.—Where a guardian has been appointed by will, proceedings for letters of guardianship shall be commenced in the county where the will has been admitted to probate.

Cited, Munson v. Newson, 9 T. 109.

CHAPTER THREE

COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS

Art. 4061. Commenced by written application. 4062. Who may make application, and what the same shall contain. 4063. Clerk shall issue citation, which shall state what. 4064. Citation shall be served, how.	Art. 4065. Return of citation. 4066. Minor fourteen years old, or over, shall be personally cited. 4067. County judge shall commence proceedings, when.
--	---

Article 4061. [2568] [2487] Commenced by written application.—A proceeding for the appointment of a guardian is commenced by written application, filed in the county court of the county having jurisdiction of the case. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 177, sec. 23.]

Art. 4062. [2569] [2488] Who may make application, and what the same shall contain.—The application may be made by any person, and it shall state:

1. The name, sex, age and residence of the minor.
2. The estate of such minor, if any, and the probable value thereof.
3. Such facts as show the jurisdiction of the court over the case.

[Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4063. [2570] [2489] Clerk shall issue citation, which shall state, what.—Upon the filing of such application, the clerk shall immediately issue citation, which shall state that an application has been filed, and by whom, for the guardianship of the person or estate, or both, as the case may be, of the minor, naming such minor, and shall cite all persons interested in the welfare of such minor to appear at a term of the court named in such citation, and contest such application if they see proper to do so.

Necessity of citation.—The power of the court to appoint a permanent guardian is statutory, and the citation prescribed by statute is jurisdictional, and an appearance in court does not dispense with the necessity of the citation. Threatt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1137.

Art. 4064. [2571] [2490] Citation shall be served, how.—Such citation shall be served by posting copies thereof for not less than ten days before the first day of the term of the court at which the application is to be acted upon, one of which copies shall be posted at the court house, and two other copies at two other public places in the county, not in the same city or town.

Art. 4065. [2572] [2491] Return of citation.—The sheriff or other officer serving such citation shall return the same, stating thereon, in writing, the time and places, when and where, he posted such copies, and shall sign such return officially.

Art. 4066. [2573] [2492] Minor fourteen years old or over shall be personally cited.—If the minor be fourteen years of age or over, such minor shall be personally served with citation to appear and answer such application; or such minor may, by writing filed with the clerk, waive the issuance of such citation, and make choice of a guardian. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4067. [2574] [2493] County judge shall commence proceedings, when.—Whenever it shall come to the knowledge of the county judge that there is within his county any minor without a guardian of his person or estate, he shall cause a citation to be posted to all persons interested in the welfare of such minor to show cause at a regular term of his court why a guardian of such minor should not be appointed; and, if such minor be fourteen years of age or over, he shall be personally cited. [Id. sec. 28.]

Jurisdiction of courts.—Under this article in a proper case the judge can appoint a guardian of a minor, and by virtue of Art. 4245 he has the same right to appoint a guardian of person of unsound mind. Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 395, 80 S. W. 246.

CHAPTER FOUR

PERSONS ENTITLED TO BE APPOINTED GUARDIANS, AND PERSONS WHO ARE DISQUALIFIED

Art.	Art.
4068. Father entitled, where parents live together.	4074. Collateral kin entitled, when.
4069. Parents equally entitled, when.	4075. Where no one who is entitled applies, court shall appoint, etc.
4070. Surviving parent entitled to.	4076. Who entitled in case of persons of unsound mind, etc.
4071. Surviving parent may appoint guardian by will, etc.	4077. Court shall appoint, when.
4072. Who entitled to guardianship of orphans.	4078. Who are not qualified.
4073. Where ascendants are equally entitled.	4079. Minor fourteen years of age may select his guardian.

Article 4068. [2575] [2494] Father entitled, where parents live together.—Where the parents of the minor live together, the father is the natural guardian of the person of the minor children by the marriage, and is entitled to be appointed guardian of their estates. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 175, sec. 8.]

Removal of guardian—Party entitled to ask for.—See notes under Art. 4200.

Art. 4069. [2576] [2495] Parents equally entitled, when.—Where the parents do not live together, their rights are equal; and the guardianship of their minor children shall be assigned to one or the other, according to the circumstances of each case, taking into consideration the interest of the child alone. [Id. sec. 9.]

Effect of award of custody in divorce suit.—When the custody of a child has been given to one of the parents in a suit for divorce under Art. 4641, the court has no authority to grant guardianship to another. Jordan v. Jordan, 23 S. W. 531, 4 C. A. 559.

Art. 4070. [2577] [2496] Surviving parent entitled.—Where one of the parents is dead, the survivor is the natural guardian of the persons of the minor children, and entitled to be appointed guardian of their estates. [Id. sec. 10.]

Jurisdiction of courts.—Under this article and Arts. 4056, 4058, a proceeding to appoint a guardian of the estate of a minor who has a parent living should be brought in the county of the latter's residence. Estes v. Presswood (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 145.

Surviving mother after remarriage.—A married woman is not incapacitated from acting as guardian of her infant children by a former marriage, but, on the contrary, is by statute given the preference as guardian of such children. Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

Stepmother as surviving parent.—The stepmother is not a parent within the meaning of this law, so as to give a preference right of appointment as guardian of minor children of her deceased husband over blood relatives of such children. Heinemier v. Arlitt, 29 C. A. 140, 67 S. W. 1039, 1040.

Waiver of right to guardianship by surviving parent.—The right of one to letters of guardianship under the statute is waived when at his request another received the appointment and qualified; and this rule is not affected by the fact that such person is the surviving parent. Kahn v. Israelson, 62 T. 221; Cole v. Dial, 12 T. 100; Cook v. Bybee, 24 T. 280; Mayes v. Houston, 61 T. 690.

Art. 4071. [2578] [2497] Surviving parent may appoint guardian by will, etc.—The surviving parent of a minor may, by will or written declaration, appoint any person not disqualified to be guardian of the persons of his or her children after the death of such parent; and such person shall be entitled to be appointed guardian of their estates also after the death of such parent. [Id. sec. 11.]

Appointment by will.—When a guardian of the estate of a minor child has been appointed at the request of the mother, she cannot appoint another by will. Potts v. Terry, 28 S. W. 122, 8 C. A. 394.

Art. 4072. [2579] [2498] Who entitled to guardianship of orphans.—Where the minor is an orphan, and no one has been appointed by the parent to be the guardian of such minor, as provided in the preceding article, the nearest ascendant in the direct line of such minor, if not disqualified, is entitled to the guardianship of both the person and the estate of such minor. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4073. [2580] [2499] Where ascendants are equally entitled.—If there be more than one ascendant in the same degree in the direct line, they are equally entitled; and the guardianship shall be given to one or the other, according to circumstances, taking into consideration the interest of the orphan alone. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4074. [2581] [2500] Collateral kin entitled, when.—In case the orphan has no ascendant in the direct line, the guardianship shall be given to the nearest of kin in the collateral line, who comes immediately after the presumptive heir or heirs of the orphan; and, if there be two or more in the same degree, the guardianship shall be given to the one or the other, according to circumstances, taking into consideration the interest of the orphan alone. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4075. [2582] [2501] Where no one who is entitled applies, court shall appoint, etc.—If there be no relative of the minor qualified to take the guardianship, or if no person entitled to such guardianship applies therefor, the court shall appoint some proper person to be such guardian.

Stepparent as relative.—The stepparent is not a relative within the meaning of this law, so as to give such parent right of appointment as guardian over blood relatives of the minors. Heinemier v. Arlitt, 29 C. A. 140, 67 S. W. 1039, 1040.

Art. 4076. [2583] [2502] Who entitled in case of person of unsound mind, etc.—In the case of a person of unsound mind, or an habitual drunkard, the nearest of kin to such person, who is not disqualified, shall be entitled to the guardianship; and, where two or more are equally entitled, the guardianship shall be given to one or the other, according to circumstances, taking into consideration the interest of the ward alone. If such ward have a husband or wife who is not disqualified, such husband or wife shall be entitled to the guardianship in preference to any other person.

Art. 4077. [2584] [2503] Court shall appoint proper person, when.—If no person who is entitled to such guardianship and who is qualified shall apply therefor, the court shall appoint some proper person to be such guardian.

Art. 4078. [2585] [2504] Who are not qualified to be guardians.—The following persons shall not be appointed guardians:

1. Minors, except the father or mother.
2. Persons whose conduct is notoriously bad.
3. Persons of unsound mind.
4. Habitual drunkards.
5. Those who are themselves or whose father or mother are parties to a lawsuit, on the result of which the condition of the minor or part of his fortune may depend.

6. Those who are debtors to the minor, unless they discharge the debt prior to such appointment; but this subdivision does not apply to the father or mother of such minor. [Id. sec. 16.]

Persons entitled to appointment.—When one designated by statute as having prior right of guardianship is not disqualified by reason of matters mentioned in this article then he is entitled to be appointed guardian, even though the court might believe that one not given preference by statute would fill the position better. The court has no discretion in the matter. Heinemier v. Arlitt, 29 C. A. 140, 67 S. W. 1039, 1040.

Disqualification by interest.—The result of the suit under this subdivision must affect the condition of the minor or part of his estate. A lawsuit against a party who is in no way liable to the minor will not disqualify him from being appointed guardian of the person or estate of the minor. Davis v. Hammack (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 114.

In a proceeding by the adopted mother of a minor ward to be appointed his guardian, judgment was entered removing his acting guardian and appointing her, and pending appeal to the district court the acting guardian suing for the benefit of the ward brought trespass to try title and for rents, the suit resulting in a judgment that buildings erected by her were intended as a gratuity to the ward, and that she was not indebted to him, and thereafter the order removing the acting guardian was affirmed and she was appointed guardian. Held, that under this article the issues in the suit to try title were not material to her competency, since the interests of the ward were fixed by law, and since any ground of objection to her had been removed before her appointment. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 673.

Character of mother.—In a contest between a paternal grandfather and a mother for the custody of an infant, it is error to exclude the issue as to the mother's reputation for chastity and veracity. Ward v. Ward, 34 C. A. 104, 77 S. W. 829.

Art. 4079. [2586] [2505] Minor fourteen years of age may select his own guardian.—A minor who is fourteen years of age or over has the right to select a guardian, either of his person or estate, or both; which selection may be made in open court, in person or by attorney; and the person selected, if qualified, shall be entitled to be appointed guardian, except in the case where the surviving parent of such minor has appointed a guardian by will or written declaration; in which case, the person so appointed shall be entitled to the guardianship.

In general.—As to the construction of the provisions of this chapter and this article and Art. 4084, see Jordan v. Jordan, 23 S. W. 531, 4 C. A. 559.

Under this article and Art. 4084, the right of a minor to select his own guardian is absolute, if he does not select any of that class of persons excluded by the statute, and the person so selected is suitable and competent. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 673.

CHAPTER FIVE

APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN

Art. 4080. Court may appoint, when. 4081. What facts must appear before appointment is made. 4082. Only one guardian of the person or estate shall be appointed, except. 4083. Order of appointment, requisites. 4084. Minor having guardian may select another, when. 4085. Another guardian shall be appointed, when.	Art. 4086. Guardian of minor continues in office, until, etc. 4087. Guardian of person of unsound mind, etc., continues in office, until, etc. 4088. Court may appoint receiver, when. 4089. Guardianship of estate of non-resident minor. 4090. Letters shall issue, when, and shall state, what.
---	--

Article 4080. [2587] [2506] Court may proceed to appoint, when.—At a regular term of the court, after notice shall have been given by citation duly served as required by law, the court may proceed to the appointment of a guardian.

Necessity of citation.—See notes under Art. 4063.

Art. 4081. [2588] [2507] What facts must appear before appointment is made.—Before appointing a guardian, the court must be satisfied:

1. That the person for whom a guardian is sought to be appointed is a minor, a person of unsound mind or an habitual drunkard.
2. That the court has jurisdiction of the case.
3. That the person to be appointed guardian is not disqualified to act as such and is entitled thereto; or, in case no person who is entitled thereto applies therefor, that the person appointed is a proper person to act as such guardian.

Art. 4082. [2589] [2508] Only one guardian of the person or estate shall be appointed, except, etc.—Only one guardian can be appointed of the person or estate; but one person may be appointed guardian of the person, and another of the estate, whenever the court shall be satisfied that it will be for the advantage of the ward to do so. Nothing in this article shall be held to prohibit the joint appointment of husband and wife. [Act Aug. 15, 1870. P. D. 6926.]

Number of guardians.—Only one guardian of the estate of a minor can be appointed, and a sale by one claiming to act as guardian while the minor has another lawful guardian is void. St. Paul Sanitarium v. Crim, 38 C. A. 1, 84 S. W. 1114.

Art. 4083. [2590] [2509] Order of appointment shall contain what.—The order of the court appointing a guardian shall be entered upon the minutes of the court, and shall specify:

1. The name of the person appointed.
2. The name of the ward.
3. Whether the guardian is of the person, of the estate, or of both the person and estate of such ward.
4. The amount of the bond required by such guardian.
5. If it be the guardianship of the estate, the order shall also appoint three or more discreet and disinterested persons to appraise such estate, and return such appraisal to the court.
6. It shall direct the clerk to issue letters of guardianship to the person appointed when such person has qualified according to law.

Requisites of order of appointment.—The order of the court appointing the guardian must show whether it is of the person or of the estate, or both. Gill v. Everman (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 914.

Time of making and entry.—Under this article and Arts. 3219, 4050, 4091-4096, the power to appoint a temporary guardian is conferred on the judge, while the power to pass on a contest and make a permanent appointment is vested in the court; and an order of the court appointing a permanent guardian must be made in term time and entered in the minutes, and under Arts. 3219, 4050, the appointment is a nullity, unless so entered. Threatt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1137.

Setting aside.—If an appointment of guardian is made by a court not having jurisdiction, the order may be set aside by such court on a proper proceeding instituted for that purpose. Munson v. Newson, 9 T. 109; Finch v. Edmonson, 9 T. 504.

County court, sitting in probate, held to have jurisdiction to entertain a petition to set aside an order appointing a guardian; the ground of objection being that no proper citation was served prior to such appointment. Arthur v. Reed, 26 C. A. 574, 64 S. W. 831.

Collateral attack.—A judgment of the county court appointing a guardian for a person of unsound mind cannot be collaterally attacked. Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 395, 80 S. W. 245.

Conclusiveness.—Order appointing third party guardian of certain children held conclusive as to fitness of the third party and unfitness of the mother. Beardsley v. Thomas, 31 C. A. 452, 72 S. W. 411.

Art. 4084. [2591] [2510] Minor having guardian may select another, when.—A minor having a guardian of his person or estate, appointed by the court, may, upon attaining the age of fourteen years, by application in writing filed in the court in which such guardianship is pending, select another guardian of his person or of his estate; and, if the court is satisfied that the person selected is suitable and competent, the appointment of such person as guardian shall be made, and the letters of guardianship to the former guardian shall be revoked; except, in the case where such former guardian has been appointed by the will or written declaration of the parent of such minor, in which case the minor shall not be permitted to select another guardian, unless such appointed guardian die, resign or is removed from such guardianship.

Right of infant to select another guardian.—A child 14 years of age cannot at will leave its father's home and choose another person as its guardian, in the absence of essential legal proceedings in the probate court. Grego v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 361.

Under this article and Art. 4084, the right of a minor to select his own guardian is absolute, if he does not select any of that class of persons excluded by the statute, and the person so selected is suitable and competent. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 673.

Under this article the question as between an acting guardian and the one selected by a minor ward is wholly a question of the competency of the guardian selected, and the fact that the acting guardian had acted at the oral request of the ward's father, that to appoint the guardian selected would place his funds under control of one not related to him, and that the acting guardian had competently and profitably managed his estate were not material to and did not put in issue the competency of the guardian selected. Id.

Art. 4085. [2592] [2511] Another guardian shall be appointed, when.—Whenever a person appointed guardian fails to qualify as such, according to law, or dies, resigns, or is removed, the court shall appoint another guardian in his stead.

Art. 4086. [2593] [2512] Guardian of minor continues in office, until, etc.—The guardian of a minor continues in office, unless sooner discharged according to law, until the minor arrives at the age of twenty-one years, or, being a female, marries, or until such minor shall die. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 178, sec. 38.]

Liability of guardian to minor attaining full age.—A guardian was required by order of court to give a new bond but failed to do so, whereupon another guardian was appointed, who qualified, when the minor arrived at full age he sued former guardian for waste committed by him. This he could do regardless of whether the former guardian was removed by order of court above referred to or not. It is not necessary to entitle the minor to sue after he becomes of age, that settlement should first be made and the discharge formally entered of record. Hix v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 422, 423.

Art. 4087. [2594] Guardian of person of unsound mind, etc., continues in office until, etc.—The guardian of a person of unsound mind or an habitual drunkard shall continue in office, unless sooner discharged according to law, until the ward shall be restored to sound mind or to correct, sober habits, as the case may be, or shall die. [Acts 1876, p. 175.]

Art. 4088. [2595] Court may appoint a receiver, when.—When, from any cause, the estate of a minor, person of unsound mind or of an habitual drunkard is without a guardian, and such estate is likely to injure or waste, the county judge shall, upon application or without application, either in term time or in vacation, appoint some suitable person to take charge of such estate, as receiver, until a guardian can be regularly appointed, and shall make such other orders as may be necessary for the preservation of such estate. Such appointment and orders shall be recorded in the minutes of the court, and shall specify the duties and powers of such receiver; and the provisions of the law governing in the case of a temporary administration upon the estate of a decedent shall govern in the case of a receiver appointed under this article, so far as the same are applicable. If, during the pendency of such receivership, the wants of such minor, person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard should require the use of the means of such estate for their subsistence, clothing or education, the county judge is hereby authorized, and it shall be his duty, upon application or without application, either in term time or in vacation, to appropriate by an order entered upon the minutes of his court, out of the effects of such estate, an amount sufficient for such purpose; said amount to be paid by such receiver upon such claims for the subsistence, clothing or education as may have been presented to such county judge and approved, and by him ordered to be paid. If, at any time, the receiver shall have on hand any money belonging to such estate beyond what may be necessary for the present necessities of the beneficiary of said estate and the current expenses thereof, he may, under the direction of the county judge, loan said money for such length of time as said county judge may direct, for the highest legal rate of interest that can be obtained therefor, in the manner and upon the security and terms provided in article 4141. [Acts 1885, p. 81.]

Liability of receiver.—A receiver of money of an infant held liable for interest having converted such funds to his own use. Brockschmidt v. Becker (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 111.

Art. 4089. [2596] [2515] Guardianship of estate of non-resident minor.—When a minor or person of unsound mind resides out of the state and owns property in this state, guardianship of the estate of such minor or person of unsound mind may be granted when it is made to appear that a necessity exists for such guardianship, in like manner as if such minor or person of unsound mind resided in this state; and the court making such grant of guardianship shall take all such action and make all such orders in reference to the estate of the ward, for the maintenance and support or education and care of such ward, out of the proceeds of such ward's estate, in like manner as if the ward had resided in this state and guardianship of the person of said ward had been granted by said court, and the ward had been sent abroad by the order of the court for education or treatment. [Id. p. 176, sec. 22.]

Art. 4090. [2597] [2516] Letters shall issue, when, and shall state, what.—When a person appointed guardian has qualified as such, by taking the oath and giving the bond required by law, the clerk shall issue to him a certificate, attested by the seal of the court, stating the fact of such appointment and qualification and date thereof; which certificate shall constitute letters of guardianship, and be evidence of the authority of the person to whom issued to act as guardian. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Setting aside order.—See notes under Art. 4083.

CHAPTER SIX

TEMPORARY GUARDIAN

Art. 4091. County judge may appoint temporary guardian of person and estate, etc., of minor, when, etc.
4092. Order shall state what.
4093. Court to determine contest; pending what, temporary guardian to act;

Art. exhibit where appointment set aside.
4094. Appointment not effective till oath and bond.
4095. Upon appointment citation to issue; requisites.
4096. Provision of title 51 apply.

Article 4091. County judge may appoint temporary guardian of person and estate of minor, when, etc.—Whenever it may appear to the county judge that the interests of any minor and his or her estate, or either, require immediate appointment of a guardian, he shall, either in open court or in vacation, without citation and with or without written application therefor, appoint some suitable person temporary guardian of the person of such minor and his or her estate, or either, as the case may be; and the appointment so made may be made permanent, as hereinafter provided for. [Acts 1905, p. 18, sec. 1.]

Jurisdiction of court to appoint temporary guardian.—Under this chapter the power to appoint a temporary guardian is conferred on the judge, while the power to pass on a contest and make a permanent appointment is vested in the court; and an order of the court appointing a permanent guardian must be made in term time and entered in the minutes, as required by Arts. 4050, 4083, and under Arts. 3219, 4050, the appointment is a nullity, unless so entered. Threatt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1137.

Guardian ad litem.—See Title 37, Chapter 12.

Art. 4092. Order shall state what.—The order of the court in making such appointment shall state that unless the same is contested at the next regular term of the court, after service of citation, the same shall be made permanent. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4093. Court to determine contest; pending what, temporary guardian to act; exhibit where appointment set aside.—In case such appointment is contested, the court shall hear and determine the same as the law and the facts require; and, during the pendency of such contest, the person so appointed as temporary guardian shall continue to act as such; and, in case such appointment is set aside, the court shall require the person so appointed to make out, and file in court, under oath, a complete exhibit of the condition of such minor's estate, and what disposition, if any, he has made of the same, or any portion thereof. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4094. Appointment not effective till oath and bond.—Such appointments shall not take effect, until the person so appointed has taken the oath and given bond as required by law. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4095. Upon appointment, citation to issue; requisites.—Immediately after such appointment so made, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court to issue citation; which shall state the name of the person appointed, and when so appointed, and the name of the minor, or minor's estate, or both, as the case may be, and shall cite all persons interested in the welfare of such minor to appear at the term of court named in such citation, and contest such appointment if they so desire; and, that, if such appointment is not contested at the term of court so named in the citation, then the same shall become permanent. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4096. Provisions of title 51 apply.—That all the provisions of this title, relating to the guardianship of the persons and estates of minors shall apply to temporary guardianship of the persons and estates of minors, in so far as the same are applicable and not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

OATH AND BOND OF GUARDIANS

Art.		Art.
4097.	Oath of guardian.	4106.	Bond of father or mother under twenty-one years of age valid.
4098.	Bond of guardian of the person.	4107.	New bond may be required, etc.
4099.	Bond of guardian of the estate.	4108.	Guardian shall cease to act as such, when.
4100.	What sureties required.	4109.	Surety may be relieved in same manner, etc.
4101.	Premium on surety company bond to be paid by guardian.	4110.	Oath and bond to be presented within twenty days.
4102.	Surety company bonds validated.	4111.	Oath and bond to be recorded, etc.
4103.	Bond where same person is guardian of both person and estate.	4112.	Sureties released, when, etc.
4104.	No bond required when will, etc., has dispensed with it.
4105.	Bond of married woman as guardian.

Article 4097. [2598] [2517] Oath of guardian.—The guardian shall take an oath faithfully to discharge the duties of guardian of the person (or of the estate, or of the person and estate, as the case may be) of the ward, according to law; which oath shall be indorsed on the bond of such guardian, and may be taken before any officer of the county in which the proceedings for such guardianship are pending, authorized to administer oaths generally. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 177, sec. 35.]

Art. 4098. [2599] [2518] Bond of guardian of the person.—The bond of a guardian of the person of a ward shall be in an amount to be fixed by the court granting such guardianship, not to exceed one thousand dollars, and shall be made payable to the county judge of the county where such guardianship is pending, and to be approved by such county judge, conditioned that such guardian will faithfully discharge the duties of guardian of the person of such ward. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 4099. [2600] [2519] Bond of guardian of the estate.—The bond of the guardian of the estate of a ward shall be in an amount equal to double the estimated value of the personal property belonging to such estate, plus a reasonable amount, to be fixed at the discretion of the county judge, to cover rents, revenues and income derived from the renting or use of real estate belonging to such estate, payable to the county judge of the county where such guardianship is pending and to be approved by such county judge, conditioned that such guardian will faithfully discharge the duties of guardian of the estate of such ward according to law; and it shall be the duty of such county judge to annually examine into the condition of the estate of the ward, and the solvency of such guardian's bond, and to require such guardian at any time it may appear that such bond is not ample security to protect such estate and the interest of his ward; to execute another bond in accordance with law. And, in such case, he shall notify the guardian as in other cases; and should damage or loss result to the estate of any ward through the negligence of such county judge, to perform the duties herein prescribed, such county judge shall be liable on his official bond, payable to such ward, in an amount equal to the loss due to such negligence. [Acts 1895, p. 231. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Rev. St. 1911, Art. 4099.]

Necessity of bond.—One appointed as guardian, but who does not take the oath, give the bond, or file any inventory, and whom the court does not recognize as such, is neither a guardian de jure nor de facto. Stephens v. Hewett, 22 C. A. 303, 54 S. W. 301.

Requisites and validity of bond.—Guardian's bond held not invalid, as being more onerous than the law requires. Frenkel v. Caddou (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 638.

A guardian's bond, payable to the county judge, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as guardian, and appearing to be the bond of the guardian of certain minors, held a sufficient bond. Fahey v. Boulmay, 24 C. A. 279, 59 S. W. 300.

Sureties on a guardian's bond unauthorized under the statute held liable thereon as on a common-law bond. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

— Bond of guardian of person and estate.—See notes under Art. 4103.

— Amount.—The estimated value of the minor's estate made in the application for letters is not binding on the court but the court can estimate the value, and where the bond is made in double the value of such estimate and the amount of the inventory it is sufficient. Greer v. Ford, 31 C. A. 339, 72 S. W. 74.

Under this article the bond must be double the value of all the property, both real and personal. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

An order reducing a bond to less than double the estimated value of the estate is null and void and can be attacked collaterally. Id.

Liabilities of sureties.—A guardian who before his appointment obtains illegal possession of the ward's property and disposes of it is required to account therefor after his appointment, and the sureties on his bond would be liable for his default in this respect. Sargent v. Wallis, 67 T. 483, 3 S. W. 721.

Where a guardian fails to pay money directed by the court to be paid to a certain person, such person has a right of action at once on his bond. Fahey v. Boulmay, 24 C. A. 279, 59 S. W. 300.

Where a father was appointed guardian of his children in 1879, from which time until 1890 their property brought no income, his sureties, in an action on a bond, cannot sue for charges for the support of the wards between these dates, in the absence of an order authorizing such charges by the guardian. Allen v. Stovall (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 87.

Where a guardian received money through the settlement of a legal controversy in which his wards were interested, it cannot be contended that a surety on the guardian's bond was not liable because the guardian had no authority to make the settlement. Allen v. Stovall, 94 T. 618, 63 S. W. 863; Stovall v. Allen, Id.

The fact that a guardian loaned the wards' money without leave of the court did not relieve the guardian or his surety from responsibility therefor. Freedman v. Vallie (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 322.

The fact that a guardian loaned to himself a part of the ward's estate did not pass the same out of his hands as guardian, nor affect the liability of the surety on his bond. Id.

A surety on a guardian's bond is not liable for interest, after the death of the guardian, until the ward demands a settlement from the surety. Id.

A surety on a guardian's bond is not liable for interest that the guardian could have realized by loaning money before the execution of the bond. Id.

A guardian of two wards equally interested in the estate cannot lawfully expend more than half of the estate for one of them, and this the surety is presumed to know. Id.

Liability of a surety on a bond of a guardian of two wards whose estates are jointly administered determined. Id.

A guardian and her surety held liable for funds of her ward used without order of court, though for the ward's support. Murph v. McCullough, 40 C. A. 403, 90 S. W. 69.

The indorsement of a certificate of a bank deposit payable at any time to sureties was equivalent to placing the banker's promissory note due on demand in their hands, and was practically placing that much money with them. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

Though when a guardian returned misappropriated money to the estate he intended to withdraw it again, his surety, having been discharged before it was again misappropriated, was not liable therefor. Id.

A guardian's successor having paid a judgment for which neither he nor the ward's estate was liable for the return of the purchase price of an unconfirmed sale of the ward's real estate, such succeeding guardian could not recover over against the original guardian's sureties either in his own behalf or by subrogation to the rights of the purchaser. McMinn v. Cope (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 809.

— Payment.—Where a guardian procured life insurance payable to his ward for the purpose of indemnifying his surety against liability, payment of such insurance to the ward is a satisfaction of the liability of the guardian's estate, or of his surety. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Schelper, 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 871.

Actions on bonds—Jurisdiction.—See notes under Art. 1706.

Articles 2777 and 2778 of the Revised Statutes of 1895 were held unconstitutional, and actions on guardians' bonds must be brought in the county or district court. Handy v. Woodhouse (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 40; Timmins v. Bonner, 58 T. 554.

— Limitations.—See notes under Title 87, Chapter 2.

— Equities and defenses.—Sureties on bond held estopped to assert that the money dealt with by the guardian and court, as property of the wards, belonged to guardian personally. Frenkel v. Caddou (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 638.

Sureties on a guardian's bond held estopped to claim that he held the ward's property, misappropriated by him, as executor. Gillespie v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 621.

Surety on bond held bound, though he stated to the judge that he would sign if other parties would sign, but is told by the judge to sign unconditionally or not at all. Bopp v. Hansford, 18 C. A. 340, 45 S. W. 744.

Where the law provided for a new bond by guardian, and it was executed and approved, the sureties cannot, in an action thereon, question its validity because ordered without citation to guardian. Id.

Sureties on a guardian's bond held not entitled under the evidence to offset charges for the guardian's maintenance of the wards against damages for a breach of the bond. Allen v. Stovall, 94 T. 618, 63 S. W. 863; Stovall v. Allen, Id.

A surety on a guardian's bond held not entitled to certain credits. Freedman v. Vallie (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 322.

Whatever credits a guardian is entitled to for disbursements may be shown as a defense to an action against the guardian's surety. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Schelper, 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 871.

Where a guardian has converted a portion of the ward's property, to the extent of such conversion the surety of the guardian is not entitled to credit for amounts paid out for the benefit of the ward. Id.

Where a guardian was primarily liable on his bond, and on the guardian's death a certain sum was distributed to the ward, the guardian's surety was entitled to set such amount off against its liability for a devastavit committed by the guardian. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 894.

In an action upon a judgment against a guardian and the sureties on his bond held that defendants were estopped from attacking the validity of orders approving the bond, the guardian's reports, etc. Minchew v. Case (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 366.

— Parties.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 5.

— Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—In an action on a guardian's second bond, it being shown that on removal he owed the estate a sum which he failed to pay on order and demand, there being no evidence that the defalcation occurred under the first bond, plaintiff need not show that default occurred on second bond. Hornung v. Schramm, 22 C. A. 327, 54 S. W. 615.

The failure of a guardian, or his representatives on his death, to make a proper settlement, is not enough to fix a liability either on the guardian or his surety. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Schelper, 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 871.

— Conclusiveness of decree against guardian.—A county court's decree against a guardian as to an amount due by him is binding on the sureties on his bond, though they were not cited in the proceeding. Fahey v. Boulmay, 24 C. A. 279, 59 S. W. 300.

Art. 4100. [2601] [2520] What sureties required.—Any bond required by the provisions of this chapter to be given by a guardian shall be subscribed by such guardian, and by at least two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the county judge of the county in which the guardianship is pending; or such bond shall be subscribed by such guardian and by one or more corporations authorized and empowered to issue and execute guaranty or indemnity bonds, guaranteeing the fidelity of executors, and administrators and guardians, and authorized to carry on such business in this state by the laws thereof; and where a guardian's bond is made with a corporation or corporations as surety or sureties thereon, the provisions requiring two sureties shall not apply, but the same may be made with one corporation as surety, if the judge of the court shall deem such surety sufficient. [Acts 1897, p. 52. Acts 1876, p. 177. Acts 1899, p. 229.]

Competency of sureties.—A foreign corporation, authorized to do business in this state, may become surety on a guardian's bond. Less v. Ghio, 92 T. 651, 51 S. W. 502, overruling Less v. Ghio (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 635.

Bond of guardian of person and estate.—See notes under Art. 4103.

Art. 4101. [2601] [2520] Premium on surety company bond to be paid by guardian.—In all cases where such bond is made by any corporation authorized to issue and execute guaranty or indemnity bonds, the premium on such bond shall be paid by the guardian, and shall not be paid out of the estate of his ward. [Acts 1897, p. 52. Acts 1876, p. 177. Id.]

Art. 4102. [2601] [2520] Surety company bond validated.—All bonds of guardians heretofore made in this state with a corporation or corporations as surety or sureties thereon are hereby validated and made effectual in like manner to the same extent as if made under the provisions of the two preceding articles. [Acts 1897, p. 52. Acts 1876, p. 177. Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4103. [2602] [2521] Bond where same person is guardian of both person and estate.—Where the same person is appointed guardian of both the person and estate of a ward, only one bond shall be given by such guardian, varying the form thereof to suit the case. [Acts 1876, p. 177, sec. 34.]

Bond of guardian of persons and estates.—Where one bond is given by a guardian of both the persons and estates of the minors, which is in substantial compliance with Arts. 4099, 4100, it is sufficient to support a judgment against the sureties of such bond. Hornung v. Schramm, 22 C. A. 327, 54 S. W. 615.

Art. 4104. [2603] [2522] No bond required when will, etc., has dispensed with it.—When the surviving parent of a minor has provided by will, regularly probated, that a guardian appointed by such will shall not be required to give bond for the management of the estate devised by such will, the direction shall be observed, unless it be made to appear at any time that such guardian is mismanaging the property, or is about to betray his trust; in which case, upon proper proceedings had for that purpose, such guardian may be required by the court to give bond as in other cases. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 4105. [2604] [2523] Bond of married woman as guardian.—Where a married woman may be appointed guardian, she may, jointly with her husband, or without her husband, if he be absent from the state or refuse to join in the bond with her, execute such bond as guardian as the law requires, and acknowledge the same before any officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments of married women to written instruments; and such bond shall bind her estate in the same manner as if she were unmarried, but shall not bind her husband as surety unless he sign and be approved as such. [Id. sec. 39.]

Art. 4106. [2605] [2524] Bond of father or mother under twenty-one years of age valid.—A bond executed by the father or mother of a minor, as guardian of such minor, when such father or mother is under twenty-one years of age, shall be as valid as if he or she were of full age. [Id. sec. 40.]

Art. 4107. [2606] [2525] New bond may be required, etc.—The county judge shall have power to require new bonds of guardians in all cases where he has power to require new bonds of executors or administrators, and under the same rules and regulations, and with like effect.

New bond.—As under this statute a new bond of the guardian may be required under the same rules and regulations and with like effect as may be required of executors and administrators, and as, under Art. 3319, sureties on an executor's or administrator's bond may require a new bond to be given, so a new bond may be required of the guardian by his sureties. Miller v. Miller, 21 C. A. 382, 53 S. W. 362.

The circumstances under which a new bond may be required of executors and administrators, under Art. 3316, are made to apply to guardians by this article. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

A county judge, under this article and Arts. 3316–3319, has no authority to decrease the amount of a guardian's bond. Id.

Art. 4108. [2607] [2526] Guardian shall cease to act as such, when.—When a guardian has been required to give a new bond, he shall thereafter refrain from acting as such guardian, except to preserve the property committed to his charge, until he has given such new bond and the same has been approved. [Id. sec. 43.]

Art. 4109. [2608] [2527] Surety may be relieved in same manner, etc.—A surety upon the bond of a guardian may be relieved from his bond, in the same manner and with like effect, as is provided in the case of a surety upon the bond of an executor or administrator. [Id.]

Art. 4110. [2609] [2528] Oath and bond to be presented within twenty days.—The oath and bond of a guardian shall be presented to the county judge within twenty days after the order appointing such guardian, either in term time or in vacation, for the action of such judge.

Art. 4111. [2610] [2529] Oaths and bonds shall be recorded.—The oaths of guardians and their bonds, when approved, shall be immediately filed with the clerk of the county court and recorded in the minutes of said court and safely preserved.

Art. 4112. [2611] [2530] Sureties released, when, etc.—When a new bond has been given and approved, the sureties upon the former bond of such guardian shall not be liable for any misconduct of such guardian occurring after the approval of such new bond, and shall be released from all liability for the acts of such guardian occurring after the approval of such new bond. [Id. sec. 44.]

Discharge of original sureties by approval of new bond.—The sureties on a guardian's bond are not discharged until the new bond is approved. Miller v. Miller, 21 C. A. 382, 53 S. W. 362; Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 669.

Liability of original sureties.—If a guardian returns misappropriated funds to the estate and thus accounts for the ward's property, and his surety is discharged, and another bond is given by the guardian, and he afterwards withdraws the funds from the estate, which he may have intended to do when he borrowed the funds and deposited them with the estate, the surety on the first bond, who had been discharged, is not liable. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 669.

As affecting a former surety's liability for a guardian's misappropriation of funds, the succeeding sureties' possession of estate property was the possession of the ward. Id.

Release of by ward.—Release by a ward of his deceased guardian's estate without consideration or knowledge of his rights immediately after he became of age held not conclusive against his right to recover on deceased guardian's bond. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 894.

Release or discharge by court.—Action in reducing a guardian's bond to a sum considerably less than the value of the ward's property being null and void, an order discharging the sureties on the old bond was invalid. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

The bond of a guardian held satisfied by acts of the guardian, so that an order of the court discharging the surety terminated its liability. Moore v. Hanscom, 101 T. 293, 106 S. W. 876.

After the death of a guardian, the probate court has no power to release the guardian's estate and his bondsmen from liability on the deceased guardian's bond. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 894.

CHAPTER EIGHT

INVENTORY, APPRAISEMENT AND LIST OF CLAIMS

Art. 4113. Inventory shall be returned, when.	Art. 4118. Appraisers to be appointed in such case, when.
4114. List of claims.	4119. Additional inventory to be required, when.
4115. Affidavit of guardian to inventory.	4120. Inventory may be corrected.
4116. Property held in common shall be specified.	4121. Inventories, etc., evidence.
4117. Additional inventory, when.

Article 4113. [2612] [2531] Inventory shall be returned in thirty days, etc.—It shall be the duty of every guardian of an estate, as soon as he shall have collected the estate, and within thirty days after he has taken the oath and given bond, with the assistance of any two of the appraisers appointed by the court, to make and return to the court a true and perfect inventory of all the property, real and personal, belonging to said estate, which has come to the knowledge of such guardian; and each article of such property shall be appraised by such appraisers, and the appraised value thereof stated opposite the same in the inventory; and the same shall be subscribed and sworn to by such appraisers before any officer of the county in which the inventory is made, authorized by law to administer oaths generally. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 179, sec. 50.]

Art. 4114. [2613] [2532] List of claims.—The guardian shall also make out and attach to such inventory and appraisement a list of all claims due or to become due belonging to the estate. Such list shall state:

1. The name of each person indebted to the estate.
2. The nature of such indebtedness, whether by note, bill, bond or other written obligation, or by account or verbal contract.
3. The date of such indebtedness, and the date when the same was due or will be due.
4. The amount of each claim and the rate of interest thereon, and the time for which the same bears interest. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 4115. [2614] [2533] Affidavit of guardian to inventory, etc.—The guardian shall annex to the inventory, appraisement, and list of claims, an affidavit in substance as follows: "I, A B, guardian of the estate of C D, do solemnly swear that the inventory and list of claims annexed hereto are a true and perfect inventory and list of all the property, real and personal, belonging to said estate that has come to my knowledge;" which affidavit shall be subscribed and sworn to by such guardian before some officer of the county in which the same is made who is authorized to administer oaths generally.

Art. 4116. [2615] [2534] Property held in common shall be specified.—If any property be held or owned by the ward in common with another or others, it shall be distinctly stated in the inventory or list of claims, as the case may be, the items thereof that are so held or owned, the names and the relationship, if any, of the other part owner or owners, and the interest or share of such ward in such property. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 4117. [2616] [2535] Additional inventory, when.—Whenever any guardian of an estate shall discover any property belonging to such estate which has not been inventoried and appraised, or any claim that has not been embraced in the list of claims, he shall forthwith make out and return to the court an additional inventory or list of claims, embracing such property or claims, as the case may be. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 3899.]

Additional Inventories.—Under this article and Arts. 4118, 4119, additional inventories are allowed, but in each instance the increase and not the decrease of the value of the estate is contemplated. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 671.

Art. 4118. [2617] [2536] Appraisers to be appointed in such case, when, etc.—Where an additional inventory of property has been returned by the guardian, the court shall appoint appraisers to appraise such property, as in the case of original inventories, or such appraisers may be appointed before the return of such additional inventory, either in term time or in vacation, by an order of the court entered upon the minutes.

See notes under Art. 4117.

Art. 4119. [2618] [2537] Additional inventory, etc., may be required, when.—Whenever it shall be shown to the county judge that any guardian has not returned to the court an inventory and appraisement and list of claims of all the property belonging to his ward, such judge shall cause such guardian to be cited, either in term time or in vacation, and require him to return to the court an additional inventory and appraisement, or an additional list of claims, as the case may be, in the same manner as in the case of original inventories and appraisements and lists of claims are required to be returned, and within the same time; but such inventory and appraisement and list of claims shall only embrace such property as has been omitted in previous inventories and appraisements and lists of claims. [Id.]

See notes under Art. 4117.

Art. 4120. [2619] [2538] Inventories, etc., may be corrected, etc.—Erroneous inventories, appraisements and lists of claims may be corrected, and new appraisements may be ordered, under the same rules and regulations as are provided in the case of estates of decedents.

Cited, Tompkins v. Creighton-McShane Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 306.

Effect of error in inventory.—Where a father, as guardian of his minor children, included in the inventory his own real estate, he was not thereby divested of title, or estopped to deny the correctness of the inventory. Koppelman v. Koppelman, 94 T. 40, 57 S. W. 570.

Art. 4121. [2620] [2539] Inventories, etc., evidence.—All inventories, appraisements or lists of claims, when approved by the court, or the record thereof, or copies of the same or of the record thereof, duly certified under the seal of the clerk of the county court having charge thereof, may be given in evidence in any suit by or against such guardian, but shall not be conclusive against the ward, if it be shown that there is other property or claims of such ward not included therein, or that the estate or claims were actually worth more than the value at which they are set down in such inventories, appraisements or lists. [Id. P. D. 3900.]

CHAPTER NINE

POWERS AND DUTIES OF GUARDIANS

Art.	Art.
4122. Of the person.	4129. May take property for debt due ward, when.
4123. Same subject.	4130. Guardian of estate shall pay to guardian of person, etc.
4124. Guardian of the estate.	4131. Ward's education and maintenance.
4125. Of both person and estate.	4132. Property in common with others.
4126. Guardian of the estate shall manage same prudently.	4133. Guardian shall not dispute ward's title, except, etc.
4127. Duty to collect estate.
4128. Shall use diligence to collect claims.

Article 4122. [2621] [2540] Of the person.—The guardian of the person is entitled to the charge and control of the person of the ward, and the care of his support and education, and his duties shall correspond with his rights. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 75.]

Rights of parents.—See notes under Title 94.

Art. 4123. [2622] [2541] Same subject.—It is the duty of the guardian of the person of a minor to take care of the person of such minor, to treat him humanely, and to see that he is educated in a manner suitable to his condition, and, if necessary for his support, that he learn a trade or adopt some useful profession. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4124. [2623] [2542] Guardian of the estate.—The guardian of the estate is entitled to the possession and management of all property belonging to the ward, to collect all debts, rents, or claims due such ward, to enforce all obligations in his favor, to bring and defend suits by or against him; but, in the management of the estate, the guardian shall be governed by the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 76.]

Possession and management of estate.—The guardian has no authority by special agreement to bind his ward in a partition of the estate in which he is interested, unless ordered or sanctioned by the court. Rainey v. Chambers, 56 T. 17.

A guardian cannot contract with an attorney for legal services in the recovery of land to share the recovery with such attorney. Glassgow v. McKinnon, 79 T. 116, 14 S. W. 1050.

A guardian cannot convey property to his ward in discharge of debt without his knowledge or assent so as to protect such property against other creditors. Cabell v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 81 T. 104, 16 S. W. 811.

A guardian has no authority to release a security for a debt due his ward and take other security instead. Freiberg v. De Lamar, 27 S. W. 151, 7 C. A. 263.

A contract by a widow as guardian of her children, for location of a headright certificate, held valid. Stone v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1077.

Contract by guardian for attorney's services, which could be performed by any person of business capacity, held binding only on guardian. Moore v. Bannerman (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 825.

Guardian cannot compromise a claim without authority from court. Davis v. Beall, 21 C. A. 183, 50 S. W. 1086.

Art. 4125. [2624] [2543] Of both person and estate.—The guardian of both person and estate has all the rights and powers, and shall perform all the duties of the guardian of the person, and of the guardian of the estate. [Id. sec. 79.]

Powers of guardian, in general.—Powers of guardian limited by the statute. Freiberg v. De Lamar, 27 S. W. 151, 7 C. A. 263.

Art. 4126. [2625] [2544] Guardian of the estate shall manage same prudently.—It is the duty of the guardian of the estate to take care of and manage such estate as a prudent man would manage his own property; and he shall account for all such rents, profits and revenues as the estate would have produced by such prudent management. [Id. sec. 77.]

Management of estate.—Under the act of May 18, 1848, containing a similar provision, it was held that a guardian was authorized to employ persons to find and locate a land certificate in consideration of an interest in the land. Ellis v. Stone, 23 S. W. 405, 4 C. A. 157; Wren v. Harris, 78 T. 349, 14 S. W. 696.

Art. 4127. [2626] [2545] Duty to collect estate.—It is the duty of the guardian of the estate, immediately after receiving letters, to collect, and take into possession, the personal property, books, title papers, and other papers belonging to the estate. [Id. sec. 48.]

Collection of assets.—Where the widow in her own behalf and that of her minor children had by contract which was filed in the case transferred to her attorneys one-half of claim for injuries which caused death of husband and father, the court could not in rendering judgment on verdict of jury giving damages award any part of the recovery in favor of the minors to the attorneys. No one had any right to receive or dispose of the money except a duly appointed guardian who would pay it out under the orders of the probate court. In case of such an erroneous judgment appellate court will set it aside and render proper judgment. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Davidson, 35 C. A. 558, 80 S. W. 1036.

Art. 4128. [2627] [2546] Shall use diligence to collect claims, etc.—The guardian of the estate shall use due diligence to collect all claims or debts owing to the ward, and to recover possession of all property to which the ward has a title or claim; provided, there is a reasonable prospect of collecting such claims or debts, or of recovering such property; and, if he neglects to use such diligence, he and his sureties shall be liable for all damages occasioned by such neglect. [Id. sec. 78.]

Collection of claims.—A guardian need not bring suit on his predecessor's bond for money properly expended, though the vouchers are not in proper shape.—Young v. Gray, 65 T. 99.

Guardians are not liable for failure to collect claims due the estate unless they neglect to use diligence. Read v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 79.

— Contracts for.—A guardian has no power to contract with an attorney to share land recovered in payment for legal services in suit therefor. Glassgow v. McKinnon, 79 T. 116, 14 S. W. 1050.

— Authority to compromise.—A guardian cannot compromise a claim of his ward without authority of the probate court. Davis v. Beall, 32 C. A. 406, 74 S. W. 325.

Property subject to accounting.—A guardian, who before his appointment obtains illegal possession of the ward's property and disposes of it, must account therefor after his appointment. Sargent v. Wallis, 67 T. 483, 3 S. W. 721.

— Authority to discount notes.—Where a guardian had no authority to discount vendor's lien notes to the maker, such discount did not relieve the latter from liability, nor the land from the lien. Brown v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 944.

The maker of vendor's lien notes belonging to a minor's estate, discounted by the guardian without authority, held not entitled to a credit for the amount paid the guardian as a payment on the notes. Id.

Individual interest in transaction.—A father's compromise of his own claim against a railroad company for injuries to his minor son for the sum of $2,500, under an agreement to settle both claims for $4,000, gave him such an adverse interest as guardian in the settlement of his son's claim as to make such settlement void, though he had received his own money before his appointment as guardian and the court's approval of the settlement of the son's claim. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1189.

Ratification of unauthorized act.—See notes under Title 94.

Art. 4129. [2628] [2547] May take property for debt due ward, when.—The guardian of the estate may receive property in payment of any debt due to the ward, in all cases where he shall be of the opinion that the interest of his ward will be advanced thereby, being responsible for a prudent exercise of the discretion hereby conferred. [Id. sec. 92.]

Art. 4130. [2629] [2548] Guardian of estate shall pay to guardian of person, etc.—When different persons have the guardianship of the person and estate of a ward, the guardian of the estate must pay over to the guardian of the person, semi-annually, a sufficient amount of money, to be fixed by the court, for the education and maintenance of the ward, and, on failure, shall be compelled to do so by order of the court, after being duly cited. [Id. sec. 93.]

Art. 4131. [2630] [2549] Education and maintenance of ward.—The court may direct the guardian of the person to expend, for the education and maintenance of his ward, a specific sum, although such sum may exceed the income of the ward's estate; but, without such direction of the court, the guardian shall not be allowed, in any case, for the education and maintenance of the ward, more than the clear income of the estate. [Id. sec. 94.]

In general.—The rule prescribed in this article is mandatory. Smythe v. Lumkin, 62 T. 242.

Expenses incurred by guardian for support of ward in excess of income cannot be allowed unless made under direct order of court. Eastland v. Williams' Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

This article is mandatory, and in the absence of previous direction by the court the guardian cannot be allowed to expend more for the education and maintenance of the ward than the clear income of the estate. Read v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 79.

An order authorizing a guardian to expend for the education and maintenance of his wards so much of the corpus of the estate "as may be necessary" for such purpose held void, under this article. Wheeler v. Duke, 29 C. A. 20, 67 S. W. 909.

Without an order of court entered upon the minutes the guardian cannot go beyond the clear income for the education and maintenance of the ward. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 75 S. W. 20.

A guardian may not, without leave of court, use the corpus of the ward's estate for his maintenance. Freedman v. Vallie (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 322.

No payments by the guardian for the support of the minor out of the corpus of the estate can be allowed unless an order directing the payment be first entered upon the minutes of the court. In this case the trouble consisted in the absence of the order from the minutes at or before the payment (by the guardian) of the claim, and the entry of the order nunc pro tunc will not affect the fact of payment at such time. Ordinarily a nunc pro tunc order has the effect of speaking from the time it was actually rendered and intended to be entered, but it has no effect upon a transaction which the law did not permit to be done until the order (omitted from the minutes) was entered. Logan v. Gay (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 852.

This article does not apply to claims that have accrued against the estate before the guardian is appointed and which are presented to him for allowance after his appointment. Logan v. Gay, 99 T. 603, 90 S. W. 862.

Obligation of parent.—A mother of limited means supporting her minor children can charge funds belonging to them coming into her hands with reimbursing her for such expenses without the orders of the probate court. Frybe v. Tiernan, 76 T. 286, 13 S. W. 370.

While it is the duty of the father to support his children out of his own means, still, where they have an estate and he is unable, the court will allow such support out of the estate of the children. Kendrick v. Wheeler, 85 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44.

It is the duty of the father to provide for the support and education of his child out of his own means, and he cannot use the income of the child for that purpose unless authorized by the court. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 532.

Amount of allowance.—Expenses in excess of the income of a ward's estate will not be allowed a guardian except upon previous orders directing such expenses. Eastland v. Williams' Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

The court cannot allow expenditures made by the guardian for the education and maintenance of the ward in excess of the income of the ward's estate except in cases where the court has directed the expenditure of a specific sum. Blackwood v. Blackwood's Estate, 92 T. 478, 49 S. W. 1045.

The guardian cannot be allowed for the education and maintenance of the ward, more than the clear income of the estate, without an order of the court. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 157.

Order for allowance—Necessity.—See notes under Art. 4050.

Under this article in connection with Art. 4050, the guardian is not entitled to an allowance for expenses paid out in excess of the income of the ward's estate unless an order authorizing such expenditure is entered upon the minutes of the court. Blackwood v. Blackwood's Estate (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 483.

— Sufficiency.—A mere verbal order from the county judge is insufficient. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222.

Art. 4132. [2631] [2550] Property held in common with others.—If the ward holds or owns any property in common, or as part owner with another person, the guardian shall be entitled to possession thereof in common with the other part owner or owners in the same manner as other owners in common, or joint owners, would be entitled. [Id. sec. 49.]

Art. 4133. [2632] [2551] Guardian shall not dispute ward's title, except, etc.—The guardian, or his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns shall not dispute the right of the ward to any property that shall have come into the possession of such guardian, as guardian, except such property as shall have been recovered from the guardian, or there be a personal action pending on account of it. [Id. sec. 69.]

CHAPTER TEN

RENTING AND LEASING PROPERTY, AND INVESTING AND LOANING MONEY, OF WARD

Art.	Art.
4134. Guardian may carry on or rent farm, etc., under order of court.	4144. Judge to investigate investment, etc.
4135. Duty of guardian to rent out property, when, etc.	4145. Order of court on such application.
4136. May rent improved property, other than, etc., without order.	4146. Contract of investment must be approved by the court.
4137. Court may order improved property rented.	4147. Title to be made to ward, and property to be inventoried, etc.
4138. Unimproved land may be leased.	4148. Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not invest funds.
4139. Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not rent land.	4149. County judge shall see that fund is invested, etc.
4140. Money shall be invested, how.	4150. Guardian's liability for interest.
4141. Security for money loaned; approval by county judge, order, etc.	4151. Shall not be personally responsible for money loaned, when.
4142. County judge not relieved from responsibility on bond.	4152. Shall report renting to court.
4143. Investing money in real estate.	4152a. Guardian may make mineral leases.
	4152b. Application to judge; notice; hearing, approval and order.

Article 4134. [2633] [2552] Guardian may carry on or rent farm, etc., under order of the court.—If there be a farm, plantation, manufactory or business belonging to the estate, and if the same be not required to be at once sold for the payment of debts, it shall be the duty of the guardian of such estate, upon an order of the court, to carry on such farm, plantation, manufactory or business or rent the same, as shall appear for the best interest of the estate. In coming to a determination, the court shall take into consideration the condition of the estate, and the necessity that may exist for the future sale of such property for the payment of debts or the education and maintenance of the ward, and shall not extend the time of renting any such property beyond what may consist with the interests of the estate and of the ward. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 182, sec. 86.]

Liability of guardian for rent.—Where a guardian, without order of court, cultivated a farm belonging to the ward, and appropriated the proceeds, he was liable to the estate for the reasonable rental value of the farm. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Webster, 17 C. A. 631, 43 S. W. 569.

Death of guardian as terminating lease.—A lease of an infant's lands by a guardian of the person, but not of the estate, expires with the death of the guardian. Maxwell v. Urban, 22 C. A. 565, 55 S. W. 1124.

Art. 4135. [2634] [2553] Duty of guardian to rent out property, when, etc.—When an order of the court is made directing property to be rented, it shall be the duty of the guardian to obey such order and rent the property for the best price that can be obtained therefor, taking good security for the payment of the rent, and that the tenant will not commit, nor permit any other person to commit, waste on the rented premises. [Id. sec. 87.]

Art. 4136. [2635] [2554] May rent improved property other than, etc., without order.—The guardian may rent the improved property of the ward, other than such property as is named in article 4134 without an order of the court authorizing him to do so, and either at public or private renting; but, when he rents without an order of court, he shall be required to account to the estate of the ward for the reasonable value of the rent of such property for the time the same was so rented.

Art. 4137. [2636] [2555] Court may order improved property rented, etc.—The court may order the farm, plantation, manufactory, business, or any improved property of the estate to be rented, either at public or private renting, for any length of time, not exceeding one year, and upon such terms and conditions as the court may deem for the best interests of the ward.

Art. 4138. [2637] [2556] Unimproved land may be leased.—If the ward own wild or unimproved real property, the guardian may let out the same on improvement leases, under order of the court, for such length of time, and upon such terms and conditions as the court may direct in its order. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 4139. [2638] [2557] Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not rent land out, etc.—Any person, upon complaint in writing filed with the clerk of the county court, may cause the guardian of the estate of a ward to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why he should not be required to rent out the farm, plantation or other improved property of the ward, or why he should not be required to lease for improvement the wild or unimproved lands of the ward; and, upon the hearing of such complaint, the court shall make such order as may, in his judgment, be for the best interest of the estate.

Art. 4140. [2639] [2558] Money may be invested, how.—If, at any time, the guardian of the estate shall have on hand any money belonging to the ward beyond what may be necessary for the education and maintenance of such ward, such guardian shall invest such money in bonds of the United States, of the State of Texas, of any county of the State of Texas, of any district or subdivision of any county of the State of Texas, of any incorporated city or town in the State of Texas or loan the same for the highest rate of interest that can be obtained therefor. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 182, sec. 89. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4140, Rev. St. 1911.]

Loans.—Where a guardian deposits money in bank and places the certificate in the hands of surety on his bond to hold while he is on the bond, the county court has the authority to direct the disposition by the guardian, but the guardian has no legal authority to loan or invest it except by direction of the county court. The money belongs to the estate. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 888.

That a loan by a guardian was not made and secured strictly according to statute could not prevent a recovery by the guardian on a note given for the loan. Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

Art. 4141. [2640] [2559] Security for money loaned; examination by attorney.—When the guardian loans the money he shall take the note of the borrower, the same to be secured by mortgage with power of sale on unincumbered real estate situated in this state, worth at least twice the amount of such note, or on collateral notes secured by vendor's lien notes, as collateral, or may purchase vendor's lien notes; provided, that at least one-half has been paid, in cash or its equivalent, on the land for which said notes were given.

When the guardian loans the money of the ward as provided in this article, or invests the money of the ward as provided in this article or invests the money of the ward as provided in article 4140 of this chapter, as amended, he shall not pay over or transfer any money in consummation of such investment, loan or purchase until he shall have submitted, or caused to have been submitted, all bonds, notes, mortgages, documents, abstracts and other papers pertaining to such investment, loan or purchase to some reputable attorney for examination, and shall have received an opinion in writing from such attorney to the effect that all papers pertaining to such investment, loan or purchase are regular and that the title to such bonds, notes or real estate is good. That the attorney making such examination shall be paid a reasonable fee, not to exceed one per cent of the amount so invested or loaned, which shall be paid by the guardian out of the funds of the ward. [Acts 1876, p. 182. Acts 1897, p. 196. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4141, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4142. County judge not relieved from responsibility on bond.—Nothing contained in the last preceding article shall relieve the county judge from responsibility on his bond as now provided by law. [Acts 1876, p. 182. Acts 1897, p. 196.]

Art. 4143. [2641] [2560] Investing money in real estate.—When the guardian may think it best for his ward to have any surplus money on hand invested in real estate, he shall file an application in writing in the court where the guardianship is pending, asking for an order of such court authorizing him to make such investment. Such application shall state the nature of the investment sought to be made, and the reasons why the guardian is of the opinion that it would be for the benefit of the ward to have the same made. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 182.]

Liability of vendors for unauthorized investment.—When an investment in land has been made without the order of court, the vendors are liable for the funds so received. Smoot v. Richards, 8 C. A. 146, 27 S. W. 967.

Art. 4144. [2642] [2561] Judge to investigate investment, etc.—When any such application is filed, the attention of the judge of the court shall be called thereto and he shall take the matter under consideration and proceed to make such investigation as may be necessary to obtain all the facts concerning the investment; but shall not render an opinion or make any order on the application until after the expiration of five days from date of filing. [Acts Aug. 18, 1876, p. 182. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4144, Rev. St. 1911.]

Investments—Notice of application for.—Notice of application must be given as required for sale of land. Hurst v. Marshall, 75 T. 452, 13 S. W. 33.

Art. 4145. [2643] [2562] Order of the court on such application.—Upon the hearing of any such application, either at a regular term of the court or in vacation, if the court be satisfied that such investment will be beneficial to the ward, an order authorizing the same to be made, shall be entered upon the minutes, which order shall specify the investment to be made, and shall contain such other directions as the court may think it advisable to make. [Id., amending Art. 4145, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4146. [2644] [2563] Contract of investment must be approved by the court.—When any contract has been made for the investment of money in real estate, under order of the court such contract shall be reported in writing to the court by the guardian, and it shall be the duty of the court to inquire fully into the same, and if satisfied that such investment will benefit the estate of the ward, and that the title to such real estate is valid and unincumbered, the court may approve the contract and authorize the guardian to pay over the money in performance of the same; but no money shall be paid out by the guardian on any such contract until such contract has been approved by the court by an order to that effect upon the minutes of the court; and this order may be made at a regular term or in vacation. [Id., amending Art. 4146, Rev. St. 1911.]

In general.—The contract must be approved by the court. Hurst v. Marshall, 75 T. 452, 13 S. W. 33.

As to investments of ward's money, see Smoot v. Richards, 8 C. A. 146, 27 S. W. 967.

Art. 4147. [2645] [2564] Title to be made to ward and property to be inventoried, etc.—When the money of the ward has been invested in real estate, the title to such real estate shall be made to such ward; and such real estate shall be inventoried, appraised, managed and accounted for by the guardian as other real estate of the ward.

Art. 4148. [2646] [2565] Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not invest or loan money.—When there is any surplus money of the estate in the hands of the guardian, any person may, by complaint in writing filed in the court in which such guardianship is pending, cause such guardian to be cited to appear at a regular term of such court, to show cause why such surplus money should not be invested or loaned at interest, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter; and, upon the hearing of such complaint, the court shall enter upon the minutes such order as the law and the facts may require.

Art. 4149. [2647] [2566] County judge shall see that money is invested, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county judge, whenever it is made known to him in any manner that there is surplus money belonging to the ward in the hands of the guardian, to cause such guardian to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why said money should not be invested, or why it should not be loaned at interest under the provisions of this chapter.

Art. 4150. [2648] [2567] When guardian is liable for interest.—If the surplus money in the hands of the guardian belonging to the ward can not be invested or loaned at interest as directed in this chapter, after due diligence to do so by the guardian, he shall be liable for the principal only of such money. But, if the guardian neglects to invest such money or loan the same at interest when he could do so by the use of reasonable diligence, he shall be liable for the principal and also for the highest legal rate of interest upon such principal for the time he so neglects to invest or loan the same. [Acts 1876, p. 182, sec. 90.]

Interest on funds of estate.—A guardian is chargeable with legal interest on money belonging to his ward which, by reasonable diligence, he could have invested or loaned. Smythe v. Lumpkin, 62 T. 242.

A guardian, failing to lend the ward's money, is liable for 10 per cent. interest, if by ordinary diligence he could have made the loan. Freedman v. Vallie (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 322.

Where a guardian has funds of the estate in his hands which he could have loaned, but did not, he is liable for the highest rate of legal interest (10 per cent.) for the time the money was not loaned. Logan v. Gay (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 853.

A guardian liable for funds of her ward expended without order of court held liable in addition for interest on the money at 10 per cent. from the time when she could have loaned the money, under order of court. Murph v. McCullough, 40 C. A. 403, 90 S. W. 69.

It is the guardian's duty to loan the ward's money as required by Art. 4140, and if he neglects to do so, he is liable for the highest rate of interest for the time he neglected to do so. This statute is imperative. Whitfield v. Burrell (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 157.

— Compound Interest.—Compound interest is allowed to reach profits. If the trust fund has been used in trade or speculation the guardian will be held to account for the profits or for interest, at the option of the cestui que trust. Reed v. Timmins, 52 T. 84.

Art. 4151. [2649] [2568] Shall not be personally responsible for money loaned, when.—The guardian shall not be personally responsible for money loaned under the direction of the court, on security approved by the court, in case of the inability of the borrower to pay the same, and the failure of the security, unless such guardian has been guilty of fraud or negligence in respect to such loan or the collection of the same; in which case, he and the sureties upon his bond shall be liable for whatever loss his ward may have sustained by reason of such fraud or negligence. [Id. sec. 91.]

Liability of guardian for bank deposit.—A guardian, depositing in a bank regarded solvent funds of the ward until invested under order of court, is not liable for a loss of the money through failure of the bank, but is liable for funds deposited in a bank for a fixed period, without an order of the probate court, in case of a loss of the money through a failure of the bank. Murph v. McCullough, 40 C. A. 403, 90 S. W. 69.

Art. 4152. [2650] [2569] Shall report renting, etc., to court.—The guardian shall report to the court in writing, and verified by his affidavit, the renting or leasing of property belonging to the estate, or the investment or loaning of money belonging to the estate, within thirty days after any such transaction, stating fully the facts of such transaction.

Art. 4152a. Guardian may make mineral leases.—That guardians of the estates of minors, or of any other persons, appointed under the laws of the state of Texas, which have heretofore been appointed or which may hereafter be appointed, shall have the authority to make mineral leases for the estates of their wards. [Acts 1913, p. 261, sec. 1.]

Art. 4152b. Application to judge; notice; hearing, approval and order.—That whenever a guardian of the estate of any person shall desire to make a mineral lease upon the real estate of his ward, he shall apply to the county judge of the county where such guardianship is pending for authority to make and execute such mineral lease, and such application shall be in writing and sworn to by such guardian, and the county judge shall either in term time or in vacation hear such application, and shall require proof as to the necessity and advisability for such mineral lease, and if he shall approve the same, he shall enter an order on the minutes of the probate court, either in term time or vacation, authorizing the guardian to make such mineral lease, and the terms upon which the same shall be made; provided, that no lease shall extend beyond the time that the ward shall come of age.

Before such application shall be heard by the county judge, notice of such application shall be given by the guardian for one week prior to the time such application shall be heard, by publishing same in some newspaper of the county where said guardianship is pending for one issue of said paper, and such notice shall state when and where such application shall be heard.

It is further provided that after notice and hearing of said application and the granting of the same by the probate court, that said guardian shall be fully authorized to make a mineral lease upon the real estate of his ward in accordance with the judgment of the county court acting upon the same. [Id. sec. 2.]

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 4153. [2651] [2570] Perishable property shall be sold.—The guardian of the estate, as soon as practicable after appraisalment, shall apply for an order of the court to sell at public or private sale, for cash or on credit not exceeding six months, all the personal property belonging to the ward that is liable to perish, waste or deteriorate in value, or that will be an expense or disadvantage to the estate to keep on hand. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 80.]

Art. 4154. [2652] [2571] Sales of wild stock.—If the guardian shall represent to the court on oath that there is stock belonging to the estate which he is unable to collect or command, the court may order that the same be sold at public auction, on such credit as the court may deem reasonable, not exceeding twelve months, taking notes bearing interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the day of sale, with good and sufficient security for the purchase money. Such sale shall be advertised, made, returned and acted upon by the court the same as sales of real estate. [Id. secs. 84, 85.]

Art. 4155. [2653] [2572] When real estate may be sold.—When the income of the ward's estate, and the personal property thereof, and the proceeds of previous sales, are insufficient for the education and maintenance of the ward or to pay the debts against the estate, the guardian of the person, or of the estate, or any person holding a valid claim against the estate, may, by application in writing to the court in which such guardianship is pending, ask for an order for a sufficient amount of real estate to be sold to make up the deficiency, or when the property of the ward consists in whole or in part of real estate that is non-revenue bearing property and is not calculated to have any reasonable increase in value or when property of the ward consists in whole or in part of an undivided interest in real estate and the guardian believes it to be to the best interest of the estate of the ward to sell such real estate he may, by application in writing to the court in which such guardianship is pending ask for an order for such real estate to be sold. [Acts Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, secs. 101, 102. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4155, Rev. St. 1911.]

Authority of foreign court.—A curatrix, acting under authority of a probate court of Louisiana, could not make a valid conveyance of land belonging to the ward and situated in Texas. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 894.

Grounds for sale.—Property belonging to minors may be sold for their education and support. Boulden v. Miller (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 133; Id., 28 S. W. 940, 87 T. 359; Kendrick v. Wheeler, 85 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44; Vogelsang v. Null, 67 T. 465, 3 S. W. 451.

Sale by person other than guardian.—Filing of transcript showing appointment of foreign guardian held not to authorize domestic tribunal to order sale of ward's realty by person not appointed guardian. Kelsey v. Trisler, 32 C. A. 177, 74 S. W. 64.

Property subject to.—Property in the state of minors domiciled in another state may be sold. Boulden v. Miller (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 133; Id., 28 S. W. 940, 87 T. 359; Kendrick v. Wheeler, 85 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44; Vogelsang v. Null, 67 T. 465, 3 S. W. 451.

Sale of part or whole of land.—In an action to set aside the sale of land by the guardian of an insane person, where the property sold was in one parcel, the propriety of selling part of it instead of the whole was a question for the county judge in ordering the sale. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 762.

Sale of interests of other tenants in common.—The guardian of a minor tenant in common cannot sell the interests of others in the land merely because all of the interests so held in common are chargeable with common debts. Broom v. Pearson, 98 T. 469, 85 S. W. 790.

Disposition of proceeds.—The proceeds of the sales are not to be paid to the wards, but should be paid out by the guardian or his successor under orders of the court for the purposes only which authorize the court to have the land sold. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelper, 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 872.

Art. 4156. [2654] [2573] Guardian shall apply for order to sell real estate, when.—It is the duty of the guardian to apply for such order whenever it appears that a necessity exists therefor, and to set forth fully in his application such necessity, and accompanying the application with an exhibit, under oath, showing fully the condition of the estate. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 105.]

Application in general.—A guardian's sale held not invalid because the application set forth an object not authorized by statute. Driggs v. Grantham (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 408.

Oath.—A sale of land made by a guardian under order of the court held not avoidable on the ground that the oath described him as "guardian," without also reciting "of the person and estate." Greer v. Ford, 31 C. A. 389, 72 S. W. 73; Same v. Morrison, Id.

Art. 4157. [2655] [2574] Guardian shall be cited, when.—When the application for the sale of real estate is made by any other person than the guardian of the estate, the guardian of the estate shall be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why the order should not be made, and also to present to the court an exhibit, under oath, showing fully the condition of the estate.

Art. 4158. [2656] [2575] Hearing on application for sale of real estate.—Whenever an application for the sale of real estate is filed, it shall be the duty of the clerk to immediately call the attention of the judge of the court in which such guardianship is pending to the filing of the application, and the judge shall designate a day to hear such application, which may be heard in term time or vacation, provided, such application shall remain on file at least five days before any orders are made and the judge may continue such hearing from time to time until he shall have been satisfied as to the facts concerning the application. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 104. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4158, Rev. St. 1911.]

Validity of notice of application.—In an action to set aside a sale of an insane person's land by her guardian, objections that only 15 days had elapsed between posting notice of application for sale and the return thereof, and that reference to the ward's name in the notice of application for sale was somewhat different from the designation of the estate over which the guardianship was exercised, held immaterial. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 762.

Art. 4159. Repealed. See Acts 1913, p. 321, repealing this article and amending articles 4099, 4140, 4141, 4144, 4145, 4146, 4155, 4158, 4161, 4162, 4163, 4164, 4173, 4177, 4181, 4187, 4188, and 4281.

Art. 4160. [2658] [2577] Advantage of estate to be considered in ordering sale.—When a sale of real estate is ordered, it shall be of the property which the court may deem most advantageous to the estate to be sold. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 103.]

Art. 4161. [2659] [2578] May be sold on what terms.—A sale of real estate may be ordered to be made for cash or for part cash and part credit, at public auction or private sale, as may appear to the court to be to the best interest of the estate. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 9. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4161, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4162. [2660] [2579] Order of sale shall state what.—An order for the sale of real estate shall state:

1st. The property to be sold, giving such description of it as will identify it.

2nd. Whether it is to be sold at public auction or at private sale, and, if at public auction, the time and place of such sale.

3rd. The necessity and purpose of such sale.

4th. It shall require the guardian to file a good and sufficient bond, subject to the approval of the court, in an amount equal to twice the amount for which such real estate is sold.

5th. It shall require the sale to be made and the report thereof returned to the court in accordance with law. [Acts 1876, p. 181, sec. 100. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4162, Rev. St. 1911.]

Necessity for order.—Where there was no order of the county court for nor confirmation of a sale of land by a guardian and the report of the sale was disaffirmed by the county court, the guardian had no authority to convey the interest of the wards. Rippy v. Harlow, 46 C. A. 52, 101 S. W. 851.

An order of sale is essential to the validity of a guardian's sale. Teague v. Swasey, 46 C. A. 151, 102 S. W. 458.

Validity in general.—The validity of an order is not affected by the fact that the application therefor cannot be shown. Robertson v. Johnson, 57 T. 62.

Order for guardian's sale held irregular, and not void. Greer v. Ford, 31 C. A. 389, 72 S. W. 73; Same v. Morrison, Id.

Description of property in order.—Under the statute in force in 1860 the validity of a sale of real estate made by the guardian under the order of the probate court was not affected by the failure to accurately describe the land in the order, the statute being merely directory. Robertson v. Johnson, 57 T. 62.

Indefiniteness of description of land belonging to a ward, ordered to be sold by his guardian, held not material where the land was ordered sold at private sale. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

Extending time of sale.—The court has power to extend the time of sale without a written application therefor. Butler v. Stephens, 77 T. 599, 14 S. W. 202.

Order of sale as conclusion of legal necessity therefor.—Construing an order of sale and sale made in 1859, it is held that an order of sale and confirmation of it are conclusive of its legal necessity, and that the sale passed the title. Weems v. Masterton, 80 T. 45, 15 S. W. 590; Butler v. Stephens, 77 T. 599, 14 S. W. 202.

Title of purchaser.—A purchaser under an order of court for sale of property of an estate need not look beyond such order and inquire as to its regularity, or whether facts exist supporting such order. Kendrick v. Wheeler, 85 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44.

Art. 4163. [2661] [2580] In what county real estate shall be sold.—All private sales of real estate shall be made in the county where the guardianship is pending; all public sales of real estate shall be made in the county where the real estate is situated and such public sales shall be advertised and the sale made as is provided in section 4168 of chapter 11, title 64, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, 1911. [Acts of 1876, p. 181, sec. 108. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4163, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4164. [2662] [2581] Terms of sale.—The terms of sale of real estate when made partly on credit shall be that the cash payment be not less than one-third of the purchase price, and that the purchaser give his note or notes for the deferred payments maturing in equal annual amounts, the last note to mature not later than five years from date of deed, said note to bear interest from date at a rate of interest not less than six per cent, payable annually, and in default of the payment of principal or interest or any part thereof when due shall mature the whole debt; all notes for the deferred payments to be secured by vendor's lien, retained in deed and notes upon the property sold and further secured by deed of trust, upon the property sold, with usual provisions for foreclosure and sale upon failure to make payments provided in deed and notes. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 9. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4164, Rev. St. 1911.]

Amount of cash payment.—In an action to set aside the sale by the guardian of an insane person's property, the fact that one-third of the value of the improved property was not received in cash as required by the statute held not to vitiate the sale where the deferred payments were amply secured. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 762.

A guardian's sale of an insane person's lands under order of court will not be set aside because made on a smaller cash payment than provided by statute, where the estate was not harmed. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 185.

Statement of inadequacy of price necessary for disturbance of a guardian's sale of an insane person's land under order of court. Id.

Sale for inadequate price.—A guardian of an insane person having right to set aside sale because of inadequacy of price can accept such a sum from the purchaser in addition as would make a fair price for the land. Fitzwilliams v. Davie, 18 C. A. 81, 43 S. W. 840.

Art. 4165. [2663] [2582] Guardian shall not purchase property belonging to ward.—It shall not be lawful for the guardian to take the estate of his ward or any part thereof, at its appraised value, or to become the purchaser, either directly or indirectly, of any property of the estate sold by him; and, if any guardian shall, either directly or indirectly, become the purchaser of any property of his ward, at a sale made by such guardian, upon the complaint in writing of any person, and, after service of citation upon such guardian, and upon proof of such complaint, such sale shall be declared void by the court, and shall be set aside, and an order to that effect entered upon the minutes; and the costs of such sale, and of the proceedings to set the same aside, shall be adjudged against such guardian individually.

Applicability of statute in general.—The provisions of this article apply where the property has been conveyed by the guardian to another. Hampton v. Hampton, 29 S. W. 423, 9 C. A. 497.

Prior agreement of guardian.—An agreement by a guardian of an insane person with the subsequent purchaser of land of his ward as to the price that he would pay for the property will only vitiate the sale thereof if it appears that such agreement had the effect of preventing the guardian from securing a better price at the sale. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 762.

The prior agreement of the guardian for sale of an insane person's land held not such as to require the sale under order of court to be set aside. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 185.

Purchase by judge.—A judge is incapable of purchasing at a guardian's sale, the validity of which must be passed on by him in his official capacity. Nona Mills Co. v. Wingate, 51 C. A. 609, 113 S. W. 182.

Sale to guardian's attorney.—A guardian's sale to the attorney of the guardian and minors held, on bill of review, to be set aside; the guardian and attorney having known that part of the proceeds were to be used and appropriated by the guardian. Parker v. Bowers, 37 C. A. 252, 84 S. W. 380.

Limitation of action by minor.—See notes under Art. 4178.

Art. 4166. [2664] [2583] Bidder failing to comply with bids shall be liable, etc.—When any person shall bid off property offered for sale by a guardian, and shall fail to comply with the terms of the sale, the facts shall be reported to the court by the guardian; and such person so failing to comply shall be liable to pay such guardian, for the use of the estate, ten per cent on the amount of his bid; and, also, the deficiency in price on the second sale of such property, if any such deficiency there be, to be recovered by suit in any court of the county where such sale was made having jurisdiction of the amount claimed.

Art. 4167. [2665] [2584] Sale may be continued from day to day.—Public sales may be continued from day to day in case the day set apart for any such sale shall be insufficient to complete the same, by giving public notice verbally of such continuance at the conclusion of the sale each day; and the continued sale shall commence and conclude within the hours prescribed for public sales under execution.

Art. 4168. [2666] [2585] Guardians' sales governed by same rules as execution sales.—The laws regulating sales under execution, so far as the same relate to the advertisement and sale of property and the proceedings incidental thereto, and are not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, shall apply to and govern public sales by a guardian of the property of the ward. [Acts 1876, p. 181, secs. 82–111.]

Notice of sale.—That a notice by a guardian for the sale of land was not published for the length of time prescribed by statute does not render a sale under an order of court made upon such defective citation void as against a purchaser under such order. Kendrick v. Wheeler, 85 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44; Lyle v. Horstman (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 802. See Fowler v. Simpson, 79 T. 64, 15 S. W. 687, 23 Am. St. Rep. 370.

Irregularity in notice of sale of land of insane person held not to deprive the court of jurisdiction to make the sale. Fitzwilliams v. Davie, 18 C. A. 81, 43 S. W. 840.

Notice of sale.—See notes under Art. 4168.

Art. 4169. [2667] [2586] Notice of private sale not required.—When a private sale of the property of the ward is made by a guardian, notice of such sale is not required to be given.

Art. 4170. [2668] [2587–2588] Sale of mortgaged property to be made on such terms as court may direct.—Any person holding a claim against the estate of a ward, secured by mortgage or other lien, may obtain an order for the sale of the property upon which he has such mortgage or other lien, or so much thereof as may be required to satisfy the claim, by causing citation to be posted and the guardian to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why such order should not be made; and such sale shall be made upon such terms as the court may direct; which terms shall be stated in the order of sale; and the notice and other proceedings shall be the same as in other sales by guardians. [Id. secs. 100, 107.]

Art. 4171. [2669] [2589] Mortgage or lien may be discharged without sale.—Should it appear to the court that the discharge of such mortgage or other lien, out of the general assets, would be beneficial to the estate, the payment may be ordered to be so made, instead of ordering a sale of the property. [Id. sec. 106.]

Art. 4172. [2670] Guardian may reduce rate of interest on ward's debts, how.—Should an estate in the hands of a guardian be involved in debt, and, upon proper showing made to the court, it shall appear that the guardian can pay off and discharge existing debts to the advantage of the estate by the hypothecation or mortgage of real estate at a lower rate of interest, or upon more advantageous terms than the old indebtedness, the court may, in its discretion, by order made for that purpose, allow the guardian to pay off and discharge existing debts by the execution of a good and sufficient mortgage or deed of trust upon real estate to secure the person furnishing the money with which to discharge said indebtedness; acts of guardians under this article to be reported to the court and approved as in case of sales; nor shall any guardian renew any indebtedness or evidence thereof except by order of the court, made upon application and notice as in case of sales of land. [Acts of 1892, S. S., p. 10.]

Art. 4173. [2671] May renew debt, when.—Should a guardian not have sufficient funds in hand belonging to the estate of his ward to pay and discharge any existing debt, he may renew the evidence of the same in like manner as his ward could, were he able to act; and such act of the guardian shall have the same force and effect with reference to such novated paper as if done by the ward; provided that no such guardian shall renew the evidences of any debt against the estate of his ward which shall have become barred by the statutes of limitations; nor shall such guardian renew the evidences of any debt that may have been made or contracted by his ward during his minority or other disabilities. [Acts of 1892, S. S., p. 10. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4173, Rev. St. 1911.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Liability of purchaser for misapplication of proceeds.—Where wards attack a sale made by their guardian, who made the sale and received the purchase money, they are bound by the act of the guardian in receiving the purchase money, whether it was ever received by them or not. Their relief for the money, if not received, is upon the guardian's bond. Kendrick v. Wheeler, 85 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44. See Ellis v. Stone, 23 S. W. 405, 4 C. A. 157.

One buying notes from guardian, which he knows belong to the estate, held liable to the ward if proceeds are misappropriated by the guardian. Gillespie v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 621.

CHAPTER TWELVE

REPORTS OF SALES AND ACTION OF THE COURT THEREON

Art.	Art.
4174. Sales shall be reported, when.	4181. No conveyance until, when.
4175. Report of sale, its requisites.	4182. Penalty for neglect to take note and mortgage.
4176. May be in term time or vacation.	4183. Vendor's lien to be retained.
4177. Action of court upon the report.	4184. When property is not sold at time ordered.
4178. Sale to be set aside, when.
4179. Conveyance of property sold.
4180. Conveyance of real estate, etc.

Article 4174. [2672] [2590] Sales shall be reported in thirty days.—All sales of the property of the ward shall be reported to the court in which the guardianship is pending, by the guardian, within thirty days after the sale is made.

Sale—Report and confirmation of as necessary to passing title.—See notes under Art. 4177.

Failure to report sale as ground for removal.—Where a grandfather, who was guardian of the estate of his minor grandson, failed to file a report of a sale of personal property within the time required by this article, and it was shown that he delayed the report because awaiting a final disposition of proceedings proper for inclusion therein, and that he had never misappropriated any of his ward's funds or been willfully neglectful of his interests, it was not an abuse of the trial court's discretion to refuse to remove him. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 23.

Art. 4175. [2673] [2591] Report of sale and its requisites.—The report of any sale shall be in writing, and shall be subscribed and sworn to by the guardian before some officer authorized to administer oaths. It shall show:

1. The time and place of the sale.
2. The property sold, giving a description of the same.
3. The name of the purchaser of the property.
4. The amount for which each article of property was sold.
5. The date of the order of sale.
6. Whether such sale was at public auction or was a private sale.
7. The terms of the sale.
8. Whether or not the purchaser has complied with the terms of the sale.

"Complied with" construed.—The words "complied with" as used in this article, defined (citing 2 Words and Phrases, p. 1370). McMinn v. Cope (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 809.

Effect of defects in reports.—The validity of a guardian's sale cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding because of his failure to state the price in his report of the sale. Taffinder v. Merrell, 95 T. 95, 65 S. W. 177, 93 Am. St. Rep. 814.

Where a guardian reported the sale of a lot to one person, when one-half had been sold to one and the other half to another, and the sale was confirmed as reported, the conveyance to the actual purchasers of their respective shares should be sustained. Id.

Where the purchaser at a guardian's sale paid the full value of the land with property, and the guardian reported the sale as for cash, and it was so confirmed, the title passed to and remained in the purchaser while such order stood unreversed. Stroud v. Hawkins, 28 C. A. 321, 67 S. W. 534.

Art. 4176. [2674] [2592] Report may be in term time or vacation.—A report of sale may be made in term time or in vacation, and, when returned, shall be filed by the clerk and the filing thereof noted in the case upon the judge's docket.

Art. 4177. [2675] [2593] Action of the court on the report; proviso.—At any time after the expiration of five days from the filing of a report of sale, it shall be the duty of the court in which the same has been filed to inquire into the manner in which such sale was made, and hear evidence in support of or against such report and, if satisfied that such sale was fairly made and in conformity with law, and that the guardian has filed his bond as required herein, which has been duly approved by the court; the court shall cause to be entered upon the minutes a decree confirming such sale, and order the report of sale to be recorded by the clerk, and the proper conveyance of the property sold be made by the guardian to the purchaser, upon compliance by such purchaser with the terms of sale; provided that in cases pending at the time this law becomes effective and in which the guardian has a satisfactory bond filed, equal to twice the amount of all personal property of the ward and twice the amount of the real estate sold, he shall not be required to file a new bond. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 185, sec. 113. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4177, Rev. St. 1911.]

Necessity of confirmation to pass title.—A sale of personal property is not completed unless confirmed. Harrison v. Ilgner, 74 T. 86, 11 S. W. 1054. See Butler v. Stephens, 77 T. 599, 14 S. W. 202.

A confirmation of the sale of real estate by the court is essential to the validity of the title. Swenson v. Seale (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 143; McMinn v. Cope, 112 S. W. 809; Gillean v. Witherspoon, 121 S. W. 909.

Where a sale of a ward's land by guardian under order of court was neither reported to, nor confirmed by, the court, and there was no evidence of any act on the court's part which would indicate that it had ever recognized or acquiesced in the sale as a completed act, the sale was invalid; confirmation being necessary to pass title. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

Necessity of confirmation to charge guardian with proceeds.—A guardian is not accountable to the ward's estate for the proceeds of the sale until the sale has been confirmed. McMinn v. Cope (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 811.

Proof of confirmation.—The want of a formal order confirming the sale may be supplied by evidence of such acts upon the part of the court as would satisfy the jury that the court recognized and acquiesced in the sale, and that the purchase money had been paid and deed executed. Robertson v. Johnson, 57 T. 62.

Conclusiveness of confirmation.—The confirmation of a sale is conclusive in a collateral proceeding where the record does not affirmatively show that jurisdiction did not attach. Edwards v. Halbert, 64 T. 667.

Where a guardian's sale is authorized and confirmed by the court, the decrees are conclusive in a collateral proceeding that the sale was for a lawful purpose, in the absence of evidence to the contrary. Taffinder v. Merrell, 95 T. 95, 65 S. W. 177, 93 Am. St. Rep. 814.

Confirmation of a guardian's sale cannot be questioned in trespass to try title to the property so sold. Stroud v. Hawkins, 28 C. A. 321, 67 S. W. 534.

Rights of purchaser before confirmation.—If before confirmation of sale of personal property, the property has been delivered and the purchase-money applied to payment of valid claims, in a suit for the property the purchaser may have his equities adjusted or may be subrogated to the rights of the creditors. Harrison v. Ilgner, 74 T. 86, 11 S. W. 1054. See Butler v. Stephens, 77 T. 599, 14 S. W. 202.

Validity of sales.—A guardian with the means of his ward purchased land and took a deed in his own name. A subsequent guardian obtained a judgment against him for the money invested in the land, to satisfy which the land was sold under an order of the court. In a suit by the ward for the land against a subsequent purchaser who had made improvements in good faith without notice, held, first, the ward was precluded from recovery by the action of the last guardian in obtaining a judgment upon a money demand; second, the ward had no such equity as would enable him to disturb a purchaser in possession. Clayton v. McKinnon, 54 T. 206.

In 1868 the wife, joined by her husband, conveyed a tract of land, part of her separate property, to a trustee, for the use and benefit of her minor children. The deed provided that the trustee should have the power to sell the property at the request of the minors, made through their legal and natural guardians. No guardian was appointed, and in 1871 the trustee, at the request of the parents, sold the land. Held, that under the act of March 14, 1848, the sale was legally made. Harris v. Petty, 66 T. 514, 1 S. W. 525.

Validity of decree of confirmation.—Decree of confirmation of sale of ward's property by guardian held void. O'Connor v. Vineyard (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 55.

Where the order confirming a guardian's sale is entered before the expiration of the time required by statute after filing the report, such action does not render the order void. Taffinder v. Merrell, 95 T. 95, 65 S. W. 177, 93 Am. St. Rep. 814.

An order confirming a guardian's sale held irregular, and not void. Greer v. Ford, 31 C. A. 389, 72 S. W. 73; Same v. Morrison, Id.

The confirmation of a guardian's sale of a certificate for land issued to minor heirs, by the judge, who purchased the certificate at the sale, is void, and the deed to him reciting the sale and confirmation is also void. Nona Mills Co. v. Wingate, 51 C. A. 609, 113 S. W. 182.

What constitutes confirmation.—An order approving the final report of a guardian held not a confirmation of a void sale by the guardian. Nona Mills Co. v. Wingate, 51 C. A. 609, 113 S. W. 182.

A guardian's application to make a specific private sale of his ward's land in accordance with specified terms and the court's order allowing the same held not a confirmation of the sale when completed. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

Art. 4178. [2676] [2594] Sale shall be set aside, when.—If the court is not satisfied that the sale was fairly made and in conformity with law, an order shall be entered upon the minutes setting the same aside, and ordering the property to be again sold, if necessary.

Necessity for returning purchase money.—When jurisdiction is invoked to set aside a sale made by a guardian, the court has the power to attach equitable conditions to such order; e. g., requiring return of purchase-money. Kendrick v. Wheeler, 85 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44.

Wards held entitled to recover lands sold by their parents without returning the money received, where it was not shown, that the money was expended for their benefit, or that their parents were unable to support them. O'Connor v. Vineyard (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 55.

Statement of rule for accounting, where a guardian's sale to the attorney of himself and the minors is set aside, because the guardian and attorney knew part of the proceeds were to be appropriated by the guardian. Parker v. Bowers, 37 C. A. 252, 84 S. W. 380.

In the absence of evidence that the minor received the benefit of the proceeds from the sale of his property by a guardian unlawfully appointed, he may recover the property, without tender of the price paid at such sale. St. Paul Sanitarium v. Crim, 38 C. A. 1, 84 S. W. 1114.

The estate of a ward and his succeeding guardian held liable for so much of the purchase price of an unconfirmed sale of the ward's real estate as was applied directly to the benefit of the ward or his estate. McMinn v. Cope (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 809.

In a suit by a ward after becoming of age to set aside a sale of her real estate by her guardian, she was not required to tender a return of the purchase money as a condition to her right to relief. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

— Allowance for improvements.—Where the sale of an insane person's land by her guardian was set aside on account of irregularities in the sale, the purchasers at the sale were properly allowed the value of their improvements. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 762.

Limitations.—See notes under Art. 5708.

Evidence.—In an action of trespass to try title, a guardian's deed offered by defendant held prima facie proof that the sale was regular, but not presumptive evidence of the existence of all the prerequisites to a valid sale. Teague v. Swasey, 46 C. A. 151, 102 S. W. 458.

Though Art. 4155 provides for application by the guardian to the county court for sale of "a sufficient amount of real estate" to pay the debts of the ward's estate, evidence that one acre would have sold for enough, is insufficient to negative the finding of such court of necessity for sale of the entire tract, so as to authorize setting aside of the sale; the tract being small and undivided, so that it might be more advantageous to the estate to dispose of it as a whole. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 185.

Evidence on certiorari to avoid a guardian's sale of land of an insane person under order of court held not sufficient to raise the issue of a sale at a grossly inadequate price. Id.

Election of remedies.—Pendency of suits to compel an accounting by a guardian and his bondsmen of the proceeds of a sale of real estate belonging to plaintiff held not an election of remedies precluding plaintiff from maintaining a proceeding to vacate the sale. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

Art. 4179. [2677] [2595] Conveyance of property sold.—After a sale has been confirmed by a decree of the court, and after the purchaser has complied with the terms of the sale, the guardian shall execute and deliver to the purchaser a proper conveyance of the property purchased by him. In the case of a sale of personal property, no conveyance shall be necessary; but the decree of the court confirming the sale shall vest the right and title of the ward to the property sold in the purchaser, and shall be prima facie evidence that all the requirements of the law have been complied with in making such sale.

Art. 4180. [2678] [2596] Conveyance of real estate.—If the property sold be real estate, the conveyance shall be by deed, and shall refer to the decree of the court confirming the sale and ordering the conveyance to be made, by giving the date and term of the court of such order; and such conveyance shall vest the right and title of the ward to such real estate in the purchaser, and shall be prima facie evidence that all the requirements of the law have been complied with in making such sale. [Id. sec. 115.]

Collateral attack of sale.—The sale of land under the order of court cannot be attacked collaterally for fraud. Weems v. Masterton, 80 T. 45, 15 S. W. 590; Bouldin v. Miller, 28 S. W. 940, 87 T. 359.

Refusal to procure valid deed.—Plaintiff, purchasing land of defendant guardian, held entitled to personal judgment against him for conversion, where he sent him a deed he knew to be void, and refused to return the money or procure a valid deed. Eversberg v. Miller (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 223.

Power of attorney.—A power of attorney signed for an infant by his guardian is not binding upon the infant where the guardian was not authorized to bind him thereby. Merrill v. Bradley, 52 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 561.

Property conveyed.—A guardian's deed made by order of court, setting off to a locator his locative interest, held to convey no interest except that of the ward. Rhine v. Joyce (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 425.

Necessity of proving authority of grantor.—A deed purporting to convey the interest of minors held inadmissible, in the absence of evidence that the grantor was their guardian or had authority to convey. Ellis v. Le Bow, 30 C. A. 449, 71 S. W. 576.

Confirmation of deed.—Where a guardian's deed was invalid, the ward, after becoming a married woman, could not ratify and confirm it by accepting a part of the purchase money with full knowledge of the facts. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

Art. 4181. [2679] [2597] No conveyance until terms of sale have been complied with.—No conveyance of real estate sold shall be executed and delivered by the guardian to the purchaser until the terms of sale have been complied with by such purchaser; and when such sale has been made for part cash and part credit, it shall be the duty of the guardian, before delivering a conveyance of the property sold to the purchaser, to take from such purchaser a note or notes for the deferred payment, bearing interest at a rate not less than six per cent per annum, payable annually, secured by the vendor's lien and a deed of trust, with usual provisions for foreclosure and sale, as additional security, and to file such deed of trust for record in the county where such real estate is situated. [Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4181, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4182. [2680] [2598] Penalty for neglect to take note and mortgage, etc.—Should the guardian neglect to take the note, security and mortgage, and file such mortgage for record in the proper county before delivering to the purchaser a deed, as required by the preceding article, such guardian and the sureties upon his bond shall be liable for whatever loss may accrue to the estate of the ward by reason of such neglect.

Art. 4183. [2681] [2599] Vendor's lien to be retained, when.—All notes executed for the purchase money of real estate, under the provisions of this chapter, shall hold the vendor's lien on the real estate for which such notes were given against all persons having notice, express or implied, in favor of the estate, whether the mortgage be recorded or not; and such lien shall, in no case, be waived.

Art. 4184. [2682] [2600] When property is not sold at the time ordered, etc.—If, from any cause, the guardian shall fail to sell any real estate ordered to be sold, at the time specified in the order, he shall report the facts to the court or judge, accompanied by his affidavit of the truth thereof, and the court or judge, either in term time or vacation, may, by an order entered upon the minutes, appoint another day for such sale, and so on, from time to time, until the sale is completed. [Id. sec. 116.]

Article 4185. [2683] [2601] Annual account of guardian of person.
—The guardian of the person, where there is a separate guardian of the estate, shall annually return to the court an account, supported by his affidavit, showing the items of expenditure since the last account for the education and maintenance of the ward. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 186, sec. 120.]

Right to credit for payment of ward's expenses.—In order to entitle a guardian to credit for paying on his own motion the expenses of maintaining his ward from the income of the estate, the income and expenditures must run concurrently. Logan v. Gay (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 852.

Interest charged guardian as income.—Interest charged against a guardian on money in his hands which he should have lent is to be added to the income of the estate. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 75 S. W. 16.

Art. 4186. [2684] [2602] Annual account of guardian of estate.—The guardian of an estate shall annually return to the court an account showing:

1. Any property that may have come to his knowledge belonging to his ward which has not been previously inventoried or listed.
2. Any changes in the property of the ward which have not been previously reported.
3. A complete account of receipts and disbursements since the last annual account.
4. All claims that have been allowed by him against the estate since the last annual account that are still unpaid.
5. All claims that have been rejected by him since the last annual account, and whether the same have been sued upon or not.
6. The money and property still on hand, and the condition of such property, and the use that is being made of the same.
7. Such other facts as may be necessary to show the true and exact condition of the estate.

Annexed to such account, shall be the affidavit of the guardian that it contains a correct and complete statement of the matters to which it relates. [Id. sec. 119.]

Right to charge for improvements.—A widow cannot charge her minor child with improvements made by her on their joint estate. Calhoun v. Stark, 13 C. A. 60, 35 S. W. 410.

Art. 4187. [2685] [2603] Annual account shall remain on file five days, etc.—When an annual account is presented, it shall be filed; and the filing thereof noted upon the judge's docket, and, without being acted on, shall remain on file five days. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 186, sec. 121. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4187, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4188. [2686] [2604] Hearing on annual account.—At any time after the expiration of five days from the date of the filing of an annual account, the judge may act on such account and may continue the hearing thereon from time to time until fully advised as to all items of such account. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 186, sec. 122. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4188, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4189. [2687] [2605] Accounts must be proved by vouchers or other evidence.—The guardian must produce and file proper vouchers for every item of credit claimed by him in his account, or support the same by other satisfactory evidence. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 186, sec. 124.]

Art. 4190. [2688] [2606] Action of the court on the account.—If the account be found incorrect, it shall be correctly stated; and, when so corrected, or if found correct, it shall be approved by an order of the court entered upon the minutes. [Id. sec. 125.]

Orders on accounting.—These orders are not final adjudications. The burden of proof rests upon the party who seeks to review or set aside an order. Young v. Gray, 65 T. 99; Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222; Oldham v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 648.

Art. 4191. [2689] [2607] Guardian shall be cited to return account, when.—If the guardian fail to return an annual account, as required by the provisions of this chapter, he shall be cited to return the same at the next term of the court, and show cause for failing to return such account at the proper time. [Id. sec. 128.]

Art. 4192. [2690] [2608] Penalty for failing to return account.—If the guardian fail to return such account, after being cited to do so, or fail to show good cause for failing to return such account at the proper time, he may be fined by the court not exceeding five hundred dollars, for the use of the county; and he and his sureties shall be liable for all fines imposed and damages sustained by reason of such failure. [Id. sec. 129.]

Art. 4193.—Repealed. See Acts 1913, p. 321, repealing this article and amending articles 4099, 4140, 4141, 4144–4146, 4155, 4158, 4161–4164, 4173, 4177, 4181, 4187, 4188, and 4281.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

DEATH, RESIGNATION AND REMOVAL OF GUARDIANS

Art. 4194. When guardian dies.	Art. 4201. Order removing guardian shall state, what.
4195. Resignation of guardian.	4202. Person removed shall not be re-appointed.
4196. Citation in such case.	4203. Procedure on death of guardian.
4197. Service of such citation.	4204. Subsequent guardian shall account for what.
4198. Action of the court upon application and account.	4205. Subsequent guardian.
4199. Removal of guardian without notice, when.
4200. Removal after citation.

Article 4194. [2691] [2609] When guardian dies.—When a guardian dies the court, on application, shall appoint another. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 179, sec. 54.]

Art. 4195. [2692] [2610] Resignation of guardian.—When a guardian wishes to resign, he shall present his application in writing to that effect to the court, and accompany such application with a full and complete account of the condition of the estate and of his guardianship verified by his affidavit. [Id. sec. 55.]

Cited, Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 965.

Art. 4196. [2693] [2611] Citation in such case.—Upon the filing of such application and account, the clerk shall issue a citation to all persons interested in such guardianship, which citation shall state:

1. That such guardian has filed his application for leave to resign the guardianship, and has accompanied the same by an account for final settlement thereof.

2. It shall notify all persons interested in the guardianship to appear at a certain term of the court, commencing on such a day and month, and contest the account of the guardian, if they see proper to do so. [Id. sec. 56.]

Art. 4197. [2694] [2612] Service of such citation.—Such citation shall be published once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper in the county, if there be one regularly printed therein; if not, then such citation shall be duly posted for at least twenty days before the return term thereof; and such citation shall be duly returned by the officer executing the same. [Id. sec. 57.]

Art. 4198. [2695] [2613] Action of court upon application and account.—Upon the hearing of such application and account, if it appear that such guardian has accounted for all the estate according to law, the court shall enter an order upon the minutes that he delivered the estate remaining in his possession, if any there be, or the person of his ward, or both, as the case may be, to some person who shall have been or may be appointed and qualified as guardian in his place; upon compliance with such order and surrender of his letters of guardianship, such guardian shall be permitted to resign his trust and be discharged; and an order to that effect shall be made by the court and entered upon the minutes of the court. [Id. sec. 58.]

Cited, Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 965.

Art. 4199. [2696] [2614] Removal of guardian without notice, when.—Guardians shall be removed in the following cases, without notice, at the regular term of the court:

1. When they neglect to return, within thirty days after qualification, an inventory and list of claims of the property of the estate, as far as such property has come to their knowledge.
2. When they have been required to give a new bond, and neglect to do so within the time prescribed.
3. When they have removed from the state. [Id. sec. 59.]

Removal—Grounds for in general.—The enumeration in Arts. 4199–4201 of grounds for removing guardians excludes the idea of removal on any ground not so named. Kahn v. Israelson, 62 T. 221.

A guardian, appointed on a mother's waiver of right to the guardianship of her daughter under 14 years of age, held not removable at the instance of one claiming through a grandmother's waiver of right, after the mother's death. Polasek v. Janecek, 22 C. A. 411, 55 S. W. 522.

Discretionary power of court.—In view of Arts. 4185, 4191, the failure of a guardian to file a report of a sale of personal property, as required by Arts. 4174, 4175, is not a mandatory ground for removal, under this article, but the court has discretionary power of removing such guardian. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 23.

Art. 4200. [2697] [2615] Removal after citation.—A guardian may be removed by the court of its own motion, or on the motion of any person interested in the ward, or his estate, after being cited to answer:

1. When he fails to return any account which he is required to return by any of the provisions of this title.
2. When he fails to obey any order of the court or judge, consistent with this title.
3. When there is good cause to believe that he has misapplied, embezzled or removed, or is about to misapply, embezzle or remove from the state, the property committed to his charge, or any part thereof.
4. When he is proved to have been guilty of gross neglect or mismanagement in the performance of any of his duties as guardian.
5. When he becomes of unsound mind, or becomes an habitual drunkard, or is sentenced to imprisonment for a term of years.
6. When, if he be the guardian of the person, he cruelly treats the ward, or neglects to educate and maintain the ward as liberally as the means of such ward and the circumstances of the case demand. [Id. sec. 60.]

Applicability of statute in general.—Subdivision 3 of this article applies as well to guardians of the person as to guardians of the estates of minors. Parish v. Alston, 65 T. 194.

Application for removal.—Where a guardian is removed under this article, upon an application which was defective, the error is immaterial. Cherry v. Wallis, 65 T. 442.

Estoppel to ask for removal.—Where one entitled to receive an appointment consents to the appointment of another, he cannot be heard to ask the removal of such guardian in order to be appointed in his stead. Kahn v. Israelson, 62 T. 221. Citing Mayer v. Houston, 61 T. 690; Cook v. Bybee, 24 T. 280; Cole v. Dial, 12 T. 100.

Art. 4201. [2698] [2616] Order removing guardian shall state what, etc.—The order of the court removing a guardian shall state the cause of such removal, and shall require such guardian to surrender his letters of guardianship, and shall also further require such guardian to deliver the person of the ward, or his estate, or both, as the case may be, to some person who has been appointed guardian and has qualified as such in his place. [Id. secs. 61–2.]

Notice of appointment of successor.—Where a guardian has been appointed on notice, no further application or notice is required for the appointment of his successor on his removal. Brown v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 944.

Modification of order.—Where, on removal of guardian, the court orders him to pay a certain sum, being the amount in his hands as set out in his report, such amount may subsequently be increased by the court. Bopp v. Hansford, 18 C. A. 340, 45 S. W. 744.

Effect of order.—Where, after conditional discharge of a guardian, the court directed him to sell certain of the ward's land, the order of discharge could not be invoked to annul the order of sale. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

An order discharging a guardian on payment of court costs held not an absolute or final discharge. Id.

Art. 4202. [2699] [2617] Person removed shall not be reappointed.—When any person shall have been removed from the guardianship of the person or estate of a ward, he shall not afterward be reappointed to such guardianship. [Id. sec. 63.]

Art. 4203. [2700] [2618] When guardian dies, etc., estate shall be accounted for and delivered, etc.—If a guardian die, resign, or be removed, he or his legal representatives shall account for, pay and deliver to the person legally entitled to receive the same, all the property of every kind belonging to the estate of the ward at such time and in such manner as the court shall order; and, in case of a refusal to comply with an order of the court to that effect, the same may be enforced by attachment and punishment as for contempt. [Id. sec. 64.]

Conclusiveness of judgment.—The judgment of the court determining what property the guardian had of the ward in his hands is conclusive both against the guardian and the sureties on his bond. Bopp v. Hansford, 18 C. A. 340, 45 S. W. 744.

Authority of probate court.—On the death of a guardian, and the appointment of a new guardian, the probate court is without authority to adjudicate matters between the ward and the estate of his former guardian. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 894.

Art. 4204. [2701] [2619] Subsequent guardian shall account for what.—When a guardian succeeds a former guardian, he shall be required to account for all the estate which came into the hands of his predecessor, and shall be entitled to any order or remedy which the court has power to give, in order to enforce the delivery of the estate, and the liability of the sureties of his predecessor for so much as is not delivered. But such subsequent guardian shall be excused from accounting for such of the estate as he has failed to recover after the use of due diligence. [Id. sec. 65.]

In general.—It has been intimated that this article might authorize a second guardian to go behind and revise the settlement of the first guardian. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222; Young v. Gray, 65 T. 99; Oldham v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 648.

Remedy of successor.—Such remedy as the county court had power to give should be sought, or it should be shown that it could give no adequate remedy, before the successor of the deceased guardian is authorized to bring an independent action in the district court against the surety on his bond. Yet if the point is not raised in the district court, and the latter's jurisdiction is acquiesced in, the case will be considered as one within the original jurisdiction of the district court. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelper, 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 872.

Art. 4205. [2702] [2620] Subsequent guardian succeeds to what.—A subsequent guardian shall succeed to all the rights, powers and duties of his predecessor, and shall proceed with the guardianship in all respects as if it were a continuation of the same by the same guardian.

Article 4206. [2703] [2621] Guardian may pay claim without authentication, when.—A guardian may pay any claim against the estate of his ward which he knows to be just, without the authentication thereof. [Id. sec. 95.]

Cited, Newton v. Easterwood (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 646.

Liability of minor.—A minor may be held to his contracts obtained by fraudulent representations which naturally and reasonably induce persons ignorant of his minority to believe he is of full age, and deal with him on that assumption. Harselm v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 977.

Presentation of claims.—As to the necessity of presenting claims before suit, see Low v. Felton, 84 T. 378, 19 S. W. 693.

Art. 4207. [2704] [2622] Claim shall not be allowed unless supported by affidavit, etc.—The guardian shall not allow, and the court shall not approve, any claim, except as provided for in the preceding article, unless it be accompanied by an affidavit of the claimant, that the claim is just, that nothing has been paid or delivered toward the satisfaction of such claim, except what is mentioned or credited (if any), that there are no counter claims known to the affiant which have not been allowed, and that the sum claimed is justly due. [Id. sec. 154.]

Pleadings to establish claims.—No formal pleadings to establish a claim in a guardianship matter are required either in the county court or on appeal. It is only necessary to file such papers as the statutes require. Bradshaw v. Lyles, 55 C. A. 384, 119 S. W. 918.

Art. 4208. [2705] [2623] Where claim is not founded on written instrument, affidavit shall state facts.—Where the claim is not founded on an instrument in writing or an account, in addition to the statement required by the preceding article, the affidavit must state the facts upon which the claim is founded. [Id. sec. 155.]

Art. 4209. [2706] [2624] When a claim belongs to a corporation, who shall make affidavit.—When a claim belongs to a corporation, the cashier, treasurer or managing agent of such corporation shall make the affidavit required to authenticate it. [Id. sec. 156.]

Art. 4210. [2707] [2625] Affidavit by officer of corporation, executor, etc., shall state what, etc.—When an affidavit authenticating a claim is made by an officer of a corporation, an executor, administrator, trustee, assignee, agent or attorney, it shall be sufficient to state in such affidavit that he has made diligent inquiry and examination and that he does verily believe that nothing has been paid and delivered toward the satisfaction of such claim, except the amount credited (if any), that there are no counter claims which have not been allowed, and that the sum claimed is justly due. [Id. sec. 157.]

Art. 4211. [2708] [2626] Affidavit may be made before what officers.—The affidavit authenticating a claim may be made before any officer authorized to administer oaths. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Art. 4212. [2709] [2627] Memorandum of allowance or rejection on claim.—When a claim is presented to the guardian, properly authenticated, he shall indorse thereon or annex thereto a memorandum in writing signed by him, stating the time of its presentment, and that he allows or rejects it, or what portion thereof he allows, if any. [Id. sec. 159.]

Art. 4213. [2710] [2628] Effect of failure to make memorandum.—The failure of a guardian to indorse on, or annex to, any claim presented to him, his allowance or rejection thereof, shall be deemed a rejection of such claim; and, in such case, the costs, if the claim be established, shall be adjudged against the guardian to be paid out of his own estate. [Id. sec. 160.]

Art. 4214. [2711] [2629] Rejected claim, if not sued on in ninety days, barred.—When a claim, or part thereof, has been rejected by the guardian, the claimant, if he does not submit thereto, shall institute suit thereon within ninety days after such rejection, or the same shall be barred. [Id. sec. 162.]

Art. 4215. [2712] [2630] Memorandum evidence.—When a rejected claim is sued upon, the indorsement thereon or annexed thereto of its rejection shall be taken to be true without proof, unless it be denied under oath. [Id. sec. 165.]

Art. 4216. [2713] [2631] When claim is allowed, shall be presented, etc.—After a claim has been presented to the guardian and allowed, the claimant shall present it to the clerk of the court in which the guardianship is pending, who shall enter it upon the claim docket. [Id. sec. 161.]

Art. 4217. [2714] [2632] Claims shall be examined, etc., by the court.—At each regular term of the court, all claims which have been allowed and entered on the claim docket shall be examined by the court and approved or disapproved, in the same manner as is provided for claims against the estates of decedents. [Id. sec. 164.]

See notes under Art. 4220.

Art. 4218. [2715] [2633] Any person may contest claim.—Any person may appear and contest the approval of any claim, or any part thereof, and shall be entitled to process to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of testimony as in ordinary suits. [Id. sec. 166.]

Art. 4219. [2716] [2634] Court shall hear evidence on claim.—Although a claim be properly authenticated and allowed, if the court be not well satisfied it is just, it shall send for persons and papers, and may examine the claimant and the guardian under oath and hear other evidence. If the court be not entirely convinced in such case by evidence other than the testimony of the claimant that the claim is just, it shall be disapproved. [Id. sec. 167.]

Art. 4220. [2717] [2635] Order of approval or disapproval is a judgment.—The order of approval or disapproval of a claim has the force and effect of a judgment. [Id. sec. 168.]

Effect of allowance of claim.—Where claims against the estate of a ward are allowed by the guardian and approved by the county judge, but no order to such effect is entered on the minutes, the allowance is a nullity, and not a judgment, and the claims may be struck out on a bill of review. De Cordova v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1042.

Under the statutes, an allowance of a claim against the estate of a ward in excess of the income of the ward at the time of its allowance is invalid, unless the claim was created under an order of court authorizing expenditure in excess of such income, even though it is subsequently approved by the court. Id.

Where a claim is presented to the guardian and allowed by him and approved by the court and entered on the claim docket and the approval indorsed on the claim, the claim is established as a judgment against the estate and makes it the duty of the guardian to pay, and no order on the minutes in addition to that on the claim docket is required. Logan v. Gay, 99 T. 603, 90 S. W. 862.

Art. 4221. [2718] [2636] Appeal may be taken from action of court on claim.—When a claimant or any person interested in a ward shall be dissatisfied with the action of the court in approving or disapproving a claim in whole or in part, he may appeal therefrom to the district court, as in the case of any other judgment rendered by said court.

See notes under Art. 4290.

Art. 4222. [2719] [2637] Action of court shall be indorsed on claim, etc.—When a claim is acted on by the court, the court shall indorse thereon, or annex thereto, a memorandum in writing, signed officially, stating the action of the court upon such claim, and shall also enter such action upon the claim docket.

See notes under Art. 4220.

Art. 4223. [2720] [2638] Lost claim may be proved, how.—When a claim has been lost and can not be produced, the claimant may make an affidavit of the facts and present it to the guardian, with the same effect as the claim itself; but, in such case, the claim must be proved by competent testimony, other than such claimant's affidavit or oath, produced in court or taken by deposition, before it shall be approved by the court. [Id. sec. 174.]

Art. 4224. [2721] [2639] Claim held by guardian, established, how.—A claim which the guardian held against the ward at the time of his appointment, or which has since accrued, is exhibited by being filed, verified by the affidavit of the guardian; after which it takes the same course as other claims. [Id. sec. 158.]

Cited, Newton v. Easterwood (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 646.

Guardian's claim for expenses.—When the income for the period covered by the guardian's claim for expenditure for education and support has been applied thereon, he may not be allowed the balance of the claim. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 75 S. W. 16.

Art. 4225. [2722] [2640] When claim is said to be exhibited.—A claim is said to be legally exhibited:

1. When it is properly presented to the guardian, and after being allowed by him is filed.
2. When, after being rejected, suit is commenced thereon. [Id. sec. 169.]

Art. 4226. [2723] [2641] When a claim is said to be established.—A claim is said to be established:

1. When it has been allowed by the guardian and approved by the court.
2. When, in a suit thereon, it has been sustained by the judgment of the proper court. [Id. sec. 170.]

See notes under Art. 4220.

Art. 4227. [2724] [2642] When a claim may be exhibited.—Claims which have not been legally exhibited within the year may be exhibited at any time afterward, before the estate is closed, or suit on such claims would be barred by the general law of limitation. [Id. sec. 172.]

Art. 4228. [2725] [2643] Limitation is interrupted, how.—The general law of limitations is interrupted:

1. By filing a claim which has been allowed.
2. By commencing a suit upon a rejected or disapproved claim within ninety days after such rejection or disapproval.

Art. 4229. [2726] [2644] Guardian shall not purchase claim.—It shall not be lawful for a guardian, either directly or indirectly, to purchase for his own use any claim against the estate of his ward; and, upon proof to the satisfaction of the court of the violation of this provision, the court shall disapprove the claim.

Bona fide purchaser of claim.—The doctrine of innocent purchaser does not apply to a purchase of a claim against the estate of a ward, which has been allowed by the guardian and approved by the county court; the court's action being invalid, and not constituting a judgment, because the appeal is not entered of record. De Cordova v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1042.

Art. 4230. [2727] [2645] Claim established by judgment shall be filed, etc.—When a claim has been established by judgment, a certified copy of such judgment shall be filed with the clerk of the court in which the guardianship is pending, and entered upon the claim docket as other claims are entered. [Id. sec. 164.]

In general.—This article applies only where a guardianship is actually pending; and hence, in an action against an insane person, it was error to direct payment of judgment in the due course of guardianship proceeding, where it appeared that no guardian had ever been appointed. James v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 679.

Art. 4231. [2728] [2646] Cost incurred in exhibiting, etc., a claim; taxed, how.—The costs incurred in the exhibition and establishment of claims shall be taxed as follows:

1. If a claim be allowed and approved, the estate shall pay the costs.
2. If a claim be allowed, but disapproved, the claimant shall pay the costs.
3. If a claim which has been rejected be established, the estate shall pay the costs. [Id. sec. 190.]

Art. 4232. [2729] [2647] Claim docket.—The claim docket required to be kept in estates of decedents shall be used also for the estates of wards, and under the same rules as far as applicable.

Art. 4233. [2730] [2648] Payment of claims.—It shall be the duty of the guardian to pay all claims against the estate of his ward that have been allowed and approved, or established by suit, as soon as practicable; and the court may, at any time, either in term time or in vacation, by an order entered upon the minutes, direct the order in which the claims against the estate shall be paid, and the amount to be paid on each claim, when the funds are not sufficient to pay them all in full.

Right of bank to apply money on deposit.—Money deposited in a bank by a guardian to his credit as guardian is the property of the ward, and the bank cannot apply it to the payment of any order made by the guardian in any other character than that of guardian. Moore v. Hanscom, 101 T. 293, 106 S. W. 876.

Art. 4234. [2731] [2649] Creditor may obtain order for payment of claim.—Any creditor of the estate of the ward whose claim has been approved by the court, or established by judgment, may, upon application in writing to the court in which such guardianship is pending, at a regular term thereof, obtain an order for the payment of such claim, upon proof being made that there are funds in the hands of the guardian subject thereto, or, if there be no funds, or not sufficient for the payment of such claim, and if to await the receipt of funds from other sources would involve an unreasonable delay, an order shall be made for the sale of property of the estate sufficient to pay the debt. [Id. sec. 96.]

Order of payment.—Where an order is secured as provided in this article, but the execution is against the minor's property, instead of against the property of the guardian, it is wholly void and is not a claim on the minor's property, and it is proper to dissolve an injunction to restrain levy of execution. Thompson v. Gooldsby, 48 C. A. 23, 106 S. W. 936.

Art. 4235. [2732] [2650] Execution shall issue against guardian, when.—If any guardian shall fail to pay any claim ordered by the court to be paid when demanded, upon affidavit of the demand and failure to pay being filed with the clerk of the court making such order, an execution shall be issued for the amount ordered to be paid such claimant, and for the costs of such proceeding against the property of such guardian. [Id. sec. 97.]

See notes under Art. 4234.

Art. 4236. [2733] [2651] Sureties on guardian's bond shall be cited, when, etc.—If the execution provided for in the preceding article be returned not satisfied, the sureties upon such guardian's bond may be cited to appear at a regular term of the court from which such execution issued, and show cause why judgment should not be rendered against them for such debt, interest and costs. [Id. sec. 98.]

Art. 4237. [2734] [2652] Citation and judgment in such case.—Citation in such case may be issued to any county in the state; and, upon the return thereof duly served, if good cause to the contrary be not shown, the court shall render judgment against the sureties so served in favor of the claimant for the amount of the claim ordered to be paid as aforesaid, and remaining unpaid, and ten per cent damages thereon, together with interest and costs; and execution may issue thereon accordingly. [Id. sec. 99.]

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

GUARDIANSHIP OF PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND AND HABITUAL DRUNKARDS

Art. 4238. County judge shall issue warrant on information.	Art. 4247. Priority in guardianship.
4239. Duty of county officer to file information, when.	4248. Restraint of enraged ward.
4240. Requisites of information.	4249. Insane person at large.
4241. Jury shall be impaneled.	4250. Who are liable to maintain persons of unsound mind.
4242. Proceedings and trial.	4251. Expenses of confinement.
4243. If verdict is against defendant, guardian shall be appointed.	4252. County may recover expenses.
4244. New trial may be granted, when.	4253. Proceedings to discharge ward from guardianship.
4245. Provisions as to minors apply to persons of unsound mind, etc.	4254. Same subject.
4246. Order for support of ward's family.	4255. Court may discharge from guardianship without jury, when.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 4238. [2735] [2653] County judge shall issue warrant on information.—If information be given to the judge of the county court that any person of the county is of unsound mind, or is an habitual drunkard, and is without a guardian, such judge, if satisfied that there is good cause for the exercise of his jurisdiction, shall, either in term time or in vacation, issue a warrant to the proper officer commanding that such person be brought before him at a time and place to be named in such warrant. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 187, sec. 141.]

In general.—A proceeding in the county court to have one adjudged a lunatic, cannot be treated as a probate proceeding under this article. Glenn v. State (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 622.

Jurisdiction.—The court of the county of the husband's residence has jurisdiction of proceedings for the appointment of a guardian for an insane wife on the decease of her husband. Schwartz v. West, 37 C. A. 136, 84 S. W. 282.

A wife having been regularly adjudged insane, the court of another county in which the husband acquired a residence may assume jurisdiction of her estate and appoint a guardian, without a sworn information showing her to be insane. Id.

Art. 4239. [2736] [2654] Duty of county officer to file information, when.—It shall be the duty of any county officer who may discover any person who resides in the county to be of unsound mind, and without a guardian, to file information thereof with the county judge of such county, who shall issue his warrant as provided in the preceding article.

Art. 4240. [2737] [2655] Requisites of information.—The information provided for in the two preceding articles shall be in writing, and shall state the name of the person charged with being of unsound mind or an habitual drunkard, if his name be known, and, if unknown, such person shall be described, and that such person is of unsound mind, or is an habitual drunkard, as the case may be, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the informant; and such information shall be subscribed and sworn to by the informant before some officer of the county authorized to administer oaths.

Art. 4241. [2738] [2656] Jury shall be impaneled.—When the person charged is brought before the judge he shall, either in term time or in vacation, cause to be impaneled a qualified jury to try the case and decide whether such person is of unsound mind, or is an habitual drunkard, as charged in the information.

Art. 4242. [2739] [2657] Proceedings and trial.—The case shall be docketed in the name of the county as plaintiff, and the person against whom the information is filed as defendant; and the proceedings and trial therein shall be governed by the same rules and regulations that govern in ordinary suits in the county court, unless otherwise provided.

Art. 4243. [2740] [2658] If verdict is against defendant, guardian shall be appointed.—If it be found by the jury that the defendant is of unsound mind, or is an habitual drunkard, as charged, the court shall proceed, immediately and without further notice, to appoint a guardian of the person and estate of such defendant in the same manner as in the case of a minor. [Id. sec. 143.]

Effect of adjudication in general.—At common law, a judgment declaring a person a lunatic is, as against strangers to the proceeding, prima facie evidence of such lunacy. Herndon v. Vick, 18 C. A. 583, 45 S. W. 852.

An adjudication of insanity held not admissible in a suit to set aside a prior deed of the insane person. Uecker v. Zuercher, 54 C. A. 289, 118 S. W. 149.

An adjudication by a court of competent jurisdiction that a person is a lunatic held to fix his status as a lunatic. Mitchell v. Stanton (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1033.

In a suit to try title by the guardian of a lunatic, proceedings in lunacy held admissible. Id.

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3637, Rule 12.

Effect of foreign judgment.—A Maine judgment, appointing a guardian for a person adjudged a lunatic, is evidence of lunacy in a suit in Texas involving the lunatic's title to land. Herndon v. Vick, 18 C. A. 583, 45 S. W. 852.

Art. 4244. [2741] [2659] New trial may be granted, when.—The court may, for good cause shown, at any time within ten days after the verdict has been returned, set aside such verdict and grant a new trial to either party; but, when two juries have concurred in a case, the second verdict shall not be set aside. [Id. sec. 144.]

Art. 4245. [2742] [2660] Provisions as to minors apply to persons of unsound mind, etc.—All the provisions of this title relating to the guardianship of the persons and estates of minors shall apply to the guardianship of the persons and estates of persons of unsound mind and habitual drunkards, in so far as the same are applicable and not inconsistent with any provision of this chapter.

Art. 4246. [2743] [2661] Order for support of ward's family.—The court by which any person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard is committed to guardianship may make orders for the support of his family and the education of his children when necessary. [Id. sec. 177.]

Art. 4247. [2744] [2662] Husband or wife first entitled to guardianship.—If the person committed to guardianship is married, the husband or the wife of such person, as the case may be, shall be entitled first in order to the guardianship.

Art. 4248. [2745] [2663] When ward is furiously mad.—If any person shall be furiously mad, or so far disordered in his mind as to endanger his own person or the person or property of others, it shall be the duty of the guardian or other person under whose care he may be, and who is bound to provide for his support, to confine him in some suitable place until the first regular term of the county court of his county, when the court shall make such order for the restraint, support and safe-keeping of such ward as the circumstances may require. [Id. sec. 178.]

Art. 4249. [2746] [2664] When insane person is not confined or in charge of any one.—If any such person of unsound mind as is specified in the preceding article shall not be confined by those having charge of him, or if there be no person having such charge, any magistrate may cause such insane person to be apprehended and may employ any person to confine him in some suitable place until the county court shall make further order thereon, as provided in the preceding article. [Id. sec. 179.]

Art. 4250. [2747] [2665] Who are liable to maintain persons of unsound mind, etc.—Where the person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard has no estate of his own, they shall be maintained:

1. By the husband or wife of such person, if any, if able to do so.
2. By the father or mother of such person, if able to do so.
3. By the children and grandchildren of such person, if able to do so.
4. By the county in which said person has his residence. [Id. sec. 180.]

Art. 4251. [2748] [2666] Expenses of confinement to be paid, how.—The expenses attending the confinement of an insane person shall be paid by the guardian out of the estate of the ward, if he has any estate; and, if he has no estate, such expense shall be paid by the person bound to provide for and support such insane person; and, if not so paid, the county shall pay the same. [Id. sec. 181.]

Art. 4252. [2749] [2667] County may recover back expenses paid.—In all cases of appropriations out of the county treasury for the support and confinement of any person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard, the amount thereof may be recovered by the county from the estate of such person, or from any person who, by law, is bound to provide for the support of such person, if there be any such person able to pay the same. [Id. sec. 182.]

Art. 4253. [2750] [2668] Proceedings to discharge ward from guardianship.—If any person shall allege in writing and under oath that a person who has been adjudged to be of unsound mind, or an habitual drunkard, has been restored to his right mind, or to correct, sober habits, as the case may be, the guardian of the person and of the estate of such ward shall be cited to appear before the county judge on a day and at a place named in such citation, either in term time or in vacation, and show cause why such ward should not be discharged from further guardianship, or the guardian may appear without such citation. [Id. sec. 183.]

Jurisdiction.—A court held to have jurisdiction of the property and person of an insane person with authority to determine whether his reason had been restored. Ferguson v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 632.

Art. 4254. [2751] [2669] Same subject.—If the fact of such alleged restoration be doubtful, the court shall, either in term time or in vacation, cause a qualified jury to be impaneled to try the issue as in the first instance, and if it be found by such jury that the ward has been restored to his right mind, or has reformed, he shall be discharged from guardianship by an order to that effect entered upon the minutes; and the guardian shall immediately settle his accounts and deliver up all the property remaining in his hands to such ward. [Id.]

Art. 4255. [2752] [2670] Court may discharge from guardianship without jury, when.—If the fact of such alleged restoration be not doubtful, the court may, without the intervention of a jury, make the order discharging the ward from guardianship, as provided in the preceding article. [Id.]

Conclusiveness of judgment reciting restoration to sanity.—A judgment reciting a person's restoration to sanity is conclusive only of his status at the time the judgment was rendered. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 290.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Guardian's release of ward's interest.—An insane person's guardian's release of the ward's interest as an heir in a note held void. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 638.

Recovery by guardian of interest surrendered by executors.—An insane person's guardian held entitled to recover the interest of his ward as an heir, in a note surrendered by the executors without authority. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 638.

Validity of contracts.—The contract of an insane person is voidable only. Newman v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 425; Lewis v. Blount, 139 S. W. 7.

In absence of an adjudication of habitual drunkenness, one cannot escape liability on a contract on the ground that he was intoxicated when he executed it. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bowles (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1176.

Statement of test of rights of one to avoid on the ground of insanity his contract made after he had been adjudged insane. Gee v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 625.

— Releases.—In an action against a railroad for the negligent killing of plaintiff's intestate at a highway crossing, an instrument releasing the railroad from liability held not binding because of the releasor's mental incapacity. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Brantley, 26 C. A. 11, 62 S. W. 94.

Where one is mentally incapacitated to transact business when executing a release for damages for personal injuries, the release held not binding on her. Johnson v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 36 C. A. 487, 81 S. W. 1197.

— Ratification.—A person purchasing machinery while insane held to have ratified the contract after regaining his reason. Newman v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 425.

Validity of conveyances.—A lessee may not avoid payment of rent to a grantee of the lessor, accruing subsequent to the conveyance, by showing that the lessor at the time of the conveyance was insane. Vogel v. Zuercher (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 737.

A deed of an insane person is voidable only. Id.

Strangers and persons who are merely privies in an estate of an insane grantor may not avoid the deed. Id.

A conveyance by an insane person is merely voidable, but the facts that the grantee did not know of the insanity and that the conveyance was obtained without fraud and for an adequate consideration does not prevent an avoidance thereof. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 290.

Validity of power of attorney.—A power of attorney executed by an imbecile is not void, but voidable. Williams v. Sapieha, 94 T. 430, 61 S. W. 115.

Liability for amount received under invalid contract.—Conveyance of an incompetent's lands will not be rescinded, in the absence of an offer to place the purchaser in statu quo. Williams v. Sapieha (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 947.

In the absence of proof that an imbecile has the money or property acquired with it, or that it has been expended for necessities, he is not required to return it before rescinding a power of attorney and a deed of land pursuant thereto. Williams v. Sapieha, 94 T. 430, 61 S. W. 115.

The contract of a lunatic being voidable only, one of whom he borrows money on his note may recover such portion thereof as he uses for necessities or for the protection and benefit of his estate. First Nat. Bank v. McGinty, 29 C. A. 539, 69 S. W. 495.

Actions in general.—Contention that action was brought by lunatic, and not by guardian, held without merit. Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 395, 80 S. W. 245.

Guardian as party to action begun before ward became insane.—When the husband became insane pending suit, it was held that his guardian should be made plaintiff, and the action could not be prosecuted by the wife. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 83 T. 19, 18 S. W. 481.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1910, § 48.

Evidence.—Where a guardian, suing to set aside his ward's deed, alleged that the ward has always been an incompetent, the defendant can show his treatment by his relatives, and the taking of a judgment against him by his mother. Williams v. Sapieha (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 72.

Evidence in an action for conversion of goods held to justify a finding that plaintiff's intestate was not of unsound mind when he ratified a sale of the goods to defendant. Denny v. Stokes, 31 C. A. 425, 72 S. W. 209.

— Knowledge of incompetency.—Evidence held to warrant a finding that a purchaser of incompetent's lands bought without knowledge of such incompetency. Williams v. Sapieha (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 947.

Judgment.—A judgment on a note foreclosing a vendor's lien held voidable for fraud at plaintiff's election on his being restored to sanity. McLean v. Stith, 50 C. A. 323, 112 S. W. 355.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

NON-RESIDENT GUARDIANS AND WARDS

Art. 4256. Non-resident guardian may obtain letters in this state, how. 4257. Such guardian may remove property out of state, etc. 4258. Resident executor, etc., may be ordered to deliver property.	Art. 4259. Property shall not be removed until debts are paid, etc. 4260. Benefits of this chapter shall not extend, etc.
--	---

Article 4256. [2753] [2671] Non-resident guardian may obtain letters in this state, how.—Where a guardian and his ward are non-residents, such guardian may file in the county court of any county a full and complete transcript from the records of a court of competent jurisdiction where he and his ward reside, showing that he has been appointed and has qualified as guardian of the estate of such ward; which said transcript shall be certified by the clerk of the court in which the proceedings were had, under the seal of such court, if there be one, together with a certificate from the judge, chief justice or presiding magistrate of such court, as the case may be, that the attestation to such transcript is in due form; and upon the filing of such transcript the same may be recorded, and the guardian shall be entitled to receive letters of guardianship of the estate of such minor situated in this state, upon filing a bond with sureties, as in other cases, in double the amount of the estimated value of such estate. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 180, sec. 70.]

Ancillary appointment.—On application of nonresident guardian to be appointed guardian of the estate of his ward, a finding that the ward and her father were domiciled in the state of her nonresident guardian held justified by the evidence. Orr v. Wright (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 629.

On application to appoint a nonresident guardian as guardian, evidence that ward's property could not be sold except at a sacrifice held inadmissible. Id.

The nonresident applicant for letters of guardianship of estate of minor must show that he has been duly appointed and has duly qualified as guardian of the estate in some other state or country to entitle him to letters in this state. Gill v. Everman, 94 T. 209, 59 S. W. 531.

Appointment of a nonresident guardian as guardian in the state, on defective showing as to qualifications, held void, in the absence of a showing that the laws of the foreign state were different from those of this state. Id.

— Statutory provisions.—Mississippi statutes providing for appointment of a nonresident guardian held similar to the Texas statutes on the same subject, so as to authorize appointment of nonresident guardian in Texas. Orr v. Wright (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 629.

— Proof of foreign appointment.—Transcript held insufficient to show that the appointment of a nonresident guardian was of the minor's estate, and not of his person. Gill v. Everman, 94 T. 209, 59 S. W. 531.

The transcript must show that the nonresident guardian was appointed and that he qualified before he can, in this state, obtain letters of guardianship of the estate of the minors for the purpose of removing the same out of the state. Gill v. Everman (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 914.

Disposition of property by foreign guardian.—In view of Arts. 3554, 4051, a foreign guardian may not under this chapter remove money of nonresident minor paid the clerk of the probate court in a damage suit, unless he complies with the conditions of this article by giving bond to secure debts. Hoffman v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 625.

Extraterritorial effect of letters.—Letters of guardianship held to have no legal force beyond the territorial limits of the state in which they are granted. Hoffman v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 625.

Art. 4257. [2754] [2672] Such guardian may remove property out of state, etc.—Upon the recovery of the property of the ward, if it be personal property, such guardian may remove the same out of the state, unless such removal would conflict with the tenure of such property, or the terms and limitations under which it is held; and, if it be real property, he may obtain an order for the sale of it and remove the proceeds; such sale shall be made, returned and acted upon by the court as other sales of real estate by a guardian. [Id. sec. 71.]

Art. 4258. [2755] [2673] Resident executor, etc., may be ordered to deliver property.—Any resident executor, administrator or guardian having any of the estate of such ward may be ordered by the court to deliver the same to such non-resident guardian. [Id. sec. 72.]

Art. 4259. [2756] [2674] Property shall not be removed until debts are paid, etc.—There shall be no removal from the state of any of such property, until all the debts known to exist against the estate have been paid, or the payment thereof secured by bond payable to the judge of the county court and approved by the clerk. [Id. sec. 73.]

Art. 4260. [2757] [2675] Benefits of this chapter shall not extend, etc.—The benefit of the provisions of this chapter shall not extend to the residents of any state, territory, district or country in which a similar law does not exist in favor of the residents of this state. [Id. sec. 74.]

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

REMOVAL OF GUARDIANSHIP

Art. 4261. Application to remove guardianship to another county. 4262. Citation to sureties in such case. 4263. Action of court on application.	Art. 4264. Transcript on removal. 4265. When order shall take effect. 4266. Guardianship when removed shall be proceeded with.
--	---

Article 4261. [2758] [2676] Application to remove guardianship to another county.—When a guardian desires to remove the transaction of the business of the guardianship from one county to another, he shall file in the court where such guardianship is pending a written application asking for authority to do so, and state in such application his reasons for desiring such removal. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 185, sec§. 117–18.]

Art. 4262. [2759] [2677] Citation to sureties in such case.—Upon the filing of such application, the clerk shall issue citation to the sureties upon the bond of such guardian, citing them to appear at a regular term of the court, to be named in such citation, and show cause why such application should not be granted. [Id. sec. 118.]

Art. 4263. [2760] [2678] Action of the court on application.—Upon the hearing of the application, if no good cause be shown to the contrary, and if it appear that the removal of the guardianship would be to the interest of the ward, the court shall enter an order upon the minutes authorizing such removal upon the payment of all costs that have accrued.

Art. 4264. [2761] [2679] Transcript to be made and transmitted by clerk, etc.—When such order of removal has been made the clerk shall record all papers of the guardianship required to be recorded, and that have not already been recorded, and shall make out a full and complete certified transcript of all the orders, decrees, judgments and proceedings in such guardianship, and, upon the payment of his fees therefor, shall transmit such transcript, together with all the original papers in the case, to the clerk of the county court of the county to which such guardianship has been removed.

Art. 4265. [2762] [2680] When order of removal shall take effect.—The order removing a guardianship shall not take effect until the transcript provided for in the preceding article has been filed in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county to which such guardianship has been ordered removed, and until a certificate of that fact from the clerk filing the same, under his official seal, has been filed in the court making such order of removal.

Art. 4266. [2763] [2681] Guardianship when removed shall be proceeded with, how, etc.—When a guardianship has been removed from one county to another, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, it shall be proceeded with in the court to which it has been removed as if it had been originally commenced in said court; but it shall not be necessary to record any of the papers in the case that have already been recorded in the court from which the same has been removed.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

FINAL SETTLEMENT

Art.		Art.
4267.	Guardianship, when settled.	4274.	Account shall be re-stated, when.
4268.	Guardian shall file account for final settlement; requisites of.	4275.	Must produce vouchers, etc.
4269.	Guardian may be cited to make final settlement, etc.	4276.	Court shall appoint attorney to represent ward, when.
4270.	Citation, when account is filed.	4277.	Debts that could not be collected to be excluded.
4271.	Same subject.	4278.	Labor or service of ward to be accounted for, etc.
4272.	Same subject.	4279.	Guardian may be attached, etc.
4273.	Action of court upon account.

Article 4267. [2764] [2682] When guardianship shall be settled.—When the ward dies, or, if a minor, arrives at the age of twenty-one years, or, if a female, marries, or, if a person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard, is restored and discharged from guardianship, the guardianship shall be immediately settled and closed and the guardian discharged, as provided in the following articles of this chapter.

In general.—Direction in a will for payment of share of minor devisee upon her marriage, or of what may then be in guardian's possession, or proceeds thereof, held to require guardian to account for proceeds of real estate and moneys collected, if not expended in support and maintenance of ward. Sutton v. Harvey, 24 C. A. 26, 57 S. W. 879.

The statute applies to money which the guardian is entitled to hold and does hold during his administration of the estate, and not to that which it is his duty to deliver to his ward immediately upon settlement. When the time comes for delivery, the ward is entitled to demand and receive the money. Logan v. Gay, 99 T. 603, 90 S. W. 861.

Under the statute, a guardian must render final settlement when the ward becomes 21 years old, and until he submits the same, is not entitled to an absolute discharge. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

Grounds for rendering final account and discharge of guardian.—Upon the death of a ward the county court has jurisdiction to settle the guardian's account. Veal v. Fortson, 57 T. 482.

The guardianship of a female is terminated by her marriage. Carpenter v. Soloman, 4 App. C. C. § 34, 14 S. W. 1074.

It would seem that action by the probate court upon the final account and the discharge of the guardian specified in this article was not contemplated until the ward dies, arrives at the age of 21 years or, in the case of a female, marries. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 65 S. W. 902.

Who must render account.—Person named executrix and guardian of children of testatrix held to have acted as guardian, so as to be liable to account to executor of one of the children. Buckley v. Herder (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 703.

Jurisdiction of courts.—The probate court has no jurisdiction to partition the land of minors in a proceeding under this title. League v. Henecke (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 729.

The probate court retains jurisdiction to require final settlement though the ward has become of age. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

An action against a guardian and his sureties for $950 for the guardian's conversion of the ward's property, brought by the ward after termination of the guardianship, under this article, by the ward attaining full age and by her marriage, is within the jurisdiction of the district court; and an order of the probate court, requiring the guardian to report, does not prevent the maintenance of the action. Kretzschmar v. Peschel (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1021.

Limitations.—The statute does not begin to run until the guardian's discharge. Allen v. Stovall, 94 T. 618, 63 S. W. 866.

Art. 4268. [2765] [2683] Guardian shall file account for final settlement, which shall show, what.—The guardian shall file with the clerk of the court in which the guardianship is pending his account for final settlement of such guardianship; which account shall show fully and completely:

1. The property, rents, revenues and profits received by the guardian and belonging to his ward during his guardianship.
2. The disposition made of such property, rents, revenues and profits.
3. The expenses and debts, if any, against the estate remaining unpaid.
4. The property of the estate remaining in the hands of such guardian, if any.
5. Such other facts as may be necessary to a full and definite understanding of the exact condition of the guardianship.

6. Such account shall be subscribed and sworn to by the guardian before some officer authorized to administer oaths.

Art. 4269. [2766] [2684] Guardian may be cited to make final settlement, etc.—Should the guardian fail to file his account for final settlement at the proper time, the court shall, upon its own motion, or upon the complaint in writing of any one interested in the estate, cause such guardian to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and file such account.

In general.—The proceeding mentioned in this article is not an "action" within Art. 5690, and the four years' statute does not apply. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 155, 156.

Art. 4270. [2767] [2685] Citation when account is filed.—Upon the filing of an account for final settlement, the clerk shall, if the ward be living and resident in the state, and his residence be known, issue a citation notifying such ward of the filing of such account, and of the term of court at which the same will be acted upon, and that he may appear and contest such account, if he see proper to do so.

Art. 4271. [2768] [2686] Same subject.—If the ward be not living but there is an executor or administrator of his estate legally qualified, such executor or administrator shall be cited, as provided in the preceding article.

Art. 4272. [2769] [2687] Same subject.—If the ward be not living, and there be no executor or administrator of his estate, or if the ward be a non-resident of the state, or if his residence be unknown, citation shall be published once a week for three successive weeks, in some newspaper published in the county, if there be one regularly published therein; if not, then such citation shall be duly posted for at least twenty days before the return term thereof.

Art. 4273. [2770] [2688] Action of the court upon account.—After citation has been duly served, the court shall proceed to examine the account for final settlement, and to hear all exceptions and objections thereto (if any), and the evidence in support of or against such account, and if the same is found to be fair, just and correct, an order shall be entered upon the minutes approving it, and directing the guardian to deliver the estate remaining in his hands to the ward or other person legally authorized to receive the same; and, upon compliance with such order, the guardian shall be discharged, and such guardianship closed by an order to that effect entered upon the minutes.

Right to inquire into account.—When a guardian renders his final account, the probate court can inquire into it to determine whether it is fair and correct. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

Under this article the court has power to revise the final settlement of a guardian after his discharge at any time after the entry of the order of approval and discharge and before the bar of limitation is complete. Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 905.

Objections to final report.—Allowance of guardian's account before final settlement having been made held not conclusive, on objections to final report. Eastland v. Williams' Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

Conclusiveness of finding.—The recital in a judgment approving the accounts of a guardian and discharging him from the guardianship that the ward had arrived at full age will not, in a suit brought against the guardian by the ward to revise the final settlement, conclude him from showing that he was still a minor when the final settlement was made and the judgment rendered. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222.

A recital in a judgment discharging a guardian that the person under guardianship was of age is conclusive until set aside, though the petition contain recitals indicating that she was not. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 65 S. W. 899.

Validity of judgment.—A judgment discharging a guardian is not a nullity merely because the petition was wanting in some of the formalities prescribed by the statute. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 65 S. W. 899.

A judgment of probate court approving final account of guardian and discharging him while his ward is still a minor is not absolutely void. Id.

Judgment for ward's next friend.—Where on accounting an amount is found due from guardian, judgment should be rendered in favor of the minor's next friend, directing payment to county court, to be held until ward arrives at majority, or some legally authorized person shall apply therefor. Eastland v. Williams' Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

Effect of judgment.—An order approving an account of guardians, including items of their account as administrator, held a final adjudication of the account as guardians. De Berry v. Wootters (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 335.

The decree of the probate court upon final accounting of a guardian, operates as an account stated between the guardian and ward, as well as the formal discharge of the trust relationship. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

Collateral attack on judgment.—The county court in matters of probate being one of general jurisdiction, held, its orders and judgment in settlement of a guardianship and of a decedent's estate cannot be collaterally attacked. Hassell v. Steinmann (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 948.

Presumption from lapse of time as to close of guardianship.—See note under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Authority to set aside order of discharge.—The order of discharge may be set aside during the term it was made, and no appeal lies therefrom. Lehman v. Gajasky, 75 T. 566, 12 S. W. 1122.

Action to set aside order of discharge.—In an action to set aside a judgment discharging a guardian, barred by limitations, evidence held insufficient to warrant setting it aside. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 65 S. W. 899.

Art. 4274. [2771] [2689] Account shall be re-stated, when.—Should the account be found to be incorrect in any particular, the court shall cause the same to be corrected and re-stated, and make such order in relation thereto as may be necessary to a full and fair settlement of the guardianship.

Art. 4275. [2772] [2690] Guardian must produce vouchers, etc.—The guardian must produce and file proper vouchers for every item of credit claimed by him in his account, or support the same by other satisfactory evidence.

Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Art. 4276. [2773] [2691] Court shall appoint attorney to represent ward, when.—When the ward is dead and there is no executor or administrator of his estate, or when the ward is a non-resident, or his residence is unknown, the court shall appoint an attorney to represent the interest of such ward in the final settlement with the guardian, and shall allow such attorney reasonable compensation for his services out of the ward's estate.

Appearance of minor by next friend.—On citation of guardian to make final report, the minor may appear by her mother, as next friend. Eastland v. Williams' Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

Art. 4277. [2774] [2692] Debts that could not be collected to be excluded.—In the settlement of the account of the guardian, all debts due the estate which the court is satisfied could not have been collected by due diligence, and which have not been collected, shall be excluded from the computation. [Id. sec. 130.]

Art. 4278. [2775] [2693] Labor or services of ward to be accounted for, etc.—In the settlement of any of the accounts of the guardian, he shall account for the reasonable value of the labor or services of his ward, or the proceeds thereof, if any such labor or services have been rendered by such ward; and the guardian shall be entitled to reasonable credits for the board, clothing and maintenance of his ward.

Art. 4279. [2776] [2694] Guardian may be attached, etc., when.—When a guardian who has been ordered by the court, upon final settlement, to deliver the estate to the ward, or other person legally authorized to receive the same, fails to obey such order, he may be attached and punished as for a contempt of court.

Limitations.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 2.

Judgments against guardians.—See Title 37, Chapter 15.

CHAPTER TWENTY

COMPENSATION OF GUARDIANS, EXPENSES AND COSTS OF GUARDIANSHIP

Art. 4280. Guardian of person serves gratis. 4281. Commissions of guardian. 4282. Extra compensation, when allowed. 4283. Expenses incurred to be allowed. 4284. Pay of appraisers. 4285. Costs shall be adjudged against guardian, when.	Art. 4286. Costs shall be adjudged against applicant, when. 4287. In proceedings against persons of unsound mind, etc. 4288. Same subject. 4289. Cost laws apply to guardianships.
--	---

Article 4280. [2779] [2697] Guardian of person receives no pay.—The guardian of the person alone is entitled to no compensation. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 187, sec. 189.]

Art. 4281. [2780] [2698] Commissions of guardians.—The guardian of the estate shall not be entitled to or receive any fee or commission on the estate of the ward when first delivered to him; but shall be entitled to a fee of five per cent on the gross income of the ward's estate and five per cent on all money paid out; provided, the term "money paid out" shall not be construed to include money loaned or invested or paid over on the settlement of the guardianship. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 187, sec. 40. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4281, Rev. St. 1911.]

Commissions.—The guardian should be allowed commissions only on sums actually paid out. Reed v. Timmins, 52 T. 84.

A judgment allowing a guardian commissions held not void for uncertainty, where the account as approved shows the exact amount of receipts and disbursements, and the statute fixes the commission. Petty v. Petty (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 923.

That a judgment allowing a guardian commissions irregularly taxed the commissions as costs of the guardianship held not fatal. Id.

The share of the estate of one ward cannot be diminished by guardian's commissions and disbursements made on account of the other ward. Freedman v. Vallie (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 322.

This article determines the amount to be paid executors in a case where the testator provided that the executors should be paid for their services as guardians one-half the fees allowed by law in such cases. Thomas v. Matthews, 51 C. A. 304, 112 S. W. 122.

Art. 4282. [2781] [2699] Extra compensation, when allowed.—If the guardian manages a farm, plantation, manufactory or other business of his ward, the court may allow him a reasonable compensation for such services. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 187, sec. 40.]

Art. 4283. [2782] [2700] Expenses incurred to be allowed.—All necessary and reasonable expenses incurred by the guardian in the preservation and management of the ward's estate, and in the collecting or attempting to collect claims or debts due the ward, and in recovering, or attempting to recover, property to which the ward has a title or claim, and all reasonable attorneys' fees necessarily incurred in the management of such guardianship, shall be allowed the guardian, to be paid out of the estate on satisfactory proof thereof being made to the court. [Id. sec. 131.]

Art. 4284. [2783] [2701] Pay of appraisers.—Appraisers appointed by the court to appraise the property of the ward shall be allowed two dollars each for every day that they are necessarily engaged in the performance of such duty, to be paid out of the estate.

Art. 4285. [2784] [2702] Costs shall be adjudged against the guardian, when.—In all cases where the guardian shall neglect the performance of any duty required of him, and shall be cited to appear before the court on account thereof, he shall pay all costs of such proceeding out of his own estate; and the court shall adjudge the same against him. [Id. sec. 191.]

Art. 4286. [2785] [2703] Costs shall be adjudged against applicant, when.—In all cases where a party shall make any application or opposition, and on the trial thereof he shall be defeated, all costs occasioned by such application or opposition shall be adjudged against such party by the court. [Id. sec. 192.]

Costs.—Where a non-resident guardian sues in Texas for guardianship of the estate situated in Texas, and to remove the same (being personal property) out of the State, and the resident guardian opposes the application and is cast in the suit, the costs must be adjudged against him personally. Lanius v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 170.

Where sureties on guardian's bond voluntarily make themselves parties to suit on the bond and lose in the county and district court, it is proper in the latter court to adjudge costs of both courts against the guardian and themselves. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 157.

Where a stranger volunteers to prevent the father of a non compos mentis from being appointed guardian and seeks the appointment himself and is defeated it is proper to adjudge the costs against him. Hefley v. Hugen, 56 C. A. 273, 120 S. W. 957.

Art. 4287. [2786] [2704] In proceedings against persons of unsound mind, etc.—When any person is found to be of unsound mind or to be an habitual drunkard, the cost of the proceeding shall be paid out of his estate; or, if his estate be insufficient to pay the same, such costs shall be paid out of the county treasury, and the judgment of the court shall be accordingly. [Id. sec. 195.]

Art. 4288. [2787] [2705] Same subject.—If the defendant, in the case mentioned in the preceding article, be discharged, the person at whose instance the proceeding was had shall pay the costs of such proceeding; unless the informant be an officer acting in his official capacity in filing the information, in which case the costs shall be paid out of the county treasury. [Id.]

Art. 4289. [2788] [2706] Cost laws apply to guardianships.—The provisions of law regulating costs and security therefor shall apply to matters of guardianship, where the same are not expressly provided for in this title. [Id. sec. 189.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

APPEAL, BILL OF REVIEW AND CERTIORARI

Art.	Art.
4290. Right of appeal.	4296. Appeal suspends decisions, etc., without bond, when.
4291. Notice of appeal.	4297. Judgment of district court shall be entered of record, etc.
4292. Transcript on appeal.	4298. Judgment dismissing appeal.
4293. Several appeals may be embraced in same transcript, when.	4299. Appeal shall be tried de novo.
4294. Transcript shall be made out, etc., within what time.	4300. Bill of review may be brought.
4295. Appeal shall not suspend decision, etc., unless, etc.	4301. Certiorari.

Article 4290. [2789] [2707] Right of appeal.—Any person who may consider himself aggrieved by any decision, order or judgment of the court, or by any order of the judge thereof, may appeal to the district court as a matter of right, without bond. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 192, sec. 197.]

Cited, United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Buhner (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 505.

Nature of remedy.—The action of the county court in establishing a claim as a judgment against the estate of a ward can be questioned only by the direct revisory proceeding provided by statute. Logan v. Gay, 99 T. 603, 90 S. W. 861.

Jurisdiction.—On appeal in the district court from a judgment of the probate court approving a guardian's account, the jurisdiction of the district court is appellate only. Magness v. Berry, 29 C. A. 567, 69 S. W. 987.

Where, in a contest over the appointment of a guardian for an incompetent, the court passed on the father's right to act as guardian, it gave jurisdiction to the district court to revise the proceedings. Hefley v. Hugen, 56 C. A. 273, 120 S. W. 956.

Orders appealable.—The appointment of a guardian by a court not having jurisdiction will be revoked on appeal. Wall v. Clark, 19 T. 321.

An order discharging a guardian may be set aside at any time during the term, and from such action of the court there is no appeal. Lehman v. Gajusky, 75 T. 566, 12 S. W. 1122.

A guardian can appeal from an interlocutory order of the court requiring him to report as to the disposition of property not subject to the jurisdiction of the court. Halbert v. Alford, 82 T. 297, 17 S. W. 595.

A nonresident guardian may appeal from an order refusing to appoint him guardian of the estate in Texas without giving bond. Orr v. Wright, 45 S. W. 629.

Order of probate court denying application of one to be appointed guardian of the person of an infant, and rescinding a previous order vacating the appointment of another as such guardian, held final order, from which an appeal lies. Arthur v. Reed, 26 C. A. 574, 64 S. W. 831.

The legislature, we think, considered that neither this article nor Art. 4300 or 4301 authorized the revision of the order of approval or disapproval of a claim by the several procedures therein mentioned, but their intention manifested by Art. 4221 was to give the right of appeal only. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 75 S. W. 19.

Waiver of right to appeal.—A party held to have waived his right to appeal from a judgment appointing a guardian for an incompetent. Hefley v. Hugen, 56 C. A. 273, 120 S. W. 956.

Parties on appeal.—See notes under Art. 4055.

Sufficiency of evidence to support findings.—A finding in proceedings to compel a guardianship accounting, which was supported by the evidence, will not be disturbed on appeal. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

Art. 4291. [2790] [2708] Notice of appeal.—An appeal is taken by causing an entry of notice thereof to be made on the record during the term at which such decision, order or judgment is entered; or, if such decision, order or judgment be made in vacation, by causing the entry of such notice to be made before the close of the next regular term of the court thereafter. [Id. sec. 198.]

Art. 4292. [2791] [2709] Transcript on appeal.—When notice of appeal has been given, a certified transcript of the proceedings shall be made out by the clerk and transmitted to the district court of the county; such transcript shall not contain anything that does not relate to the decision, order or judgment appealed from. [Id. sec. 199.]

Art. 4293. [2792] [2710] Several appeals may be embraced in same transcript, when.—When notice of appeal has been given by the same person from more than one decision, order or judgment of the court in the same guardianship, at the same term, all of the appeals may be embraced in the same transcript. [Id.]

Art. 4294. [2793] [2711] Transcript shall be made out, etc., within what time.—If there be not time to make out such transcript before the first day of the next term of the district court after such appeal is taken, it shall be transmitted to such court within sixty days after such appeal is taken. [Id. sec. 200.]

Art. 4295. [2794] [2712] Appeal shall not suspend decisions, etc., unless, etc.—The appeal shall not suspend the decision, order or judgment, except in the cases mentioned in the succeeding article, unless the appellant, within twenty days after the entry of notice of appeal, shall file a bond in an amount fixed by the court at the time of entry of appeal, signed by two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to, and approved by, the clerk, conditioned that the appellant shall perform the orders and judgment which the district court may make therein, in case the decision be against him. [Id. sec. 201.]

Art. 4296. [2795] [2713] Appeal suspends decision, etc., without bond, when.—An appeal suspends the decision, order or judgment, without bond:

1. When taken by a claimant from the disapproval of his claim.
2. When taken by the guardian or trustee, except where the controversy is respecting the rights of guardianship or the settlement of an account. [Id. sec. 202.]

Art. 4297. [2796] [2714] Judgment of district court shall be entered of record, etc.—When a certified copy of the judgment of the district court in the case is received, it shall be entered of record upon the minutes of the county court as the judgment of such county court. [Id. sec. 203.]

Art. 4298. [2797] [2715] Judgment dismissing appeal, etc.—Where a certified copy of the judgment of the district court dismissing an appeal or quashing a supersedeas is received, it shall be entered of record on the minutes of the county court, and the decision, order or judgment of the county court which was appealed from shall stand as if no appeal or supersedeas had been taken or obtained. [Id. sec. 204.]

Art. 4299. [2798] [2716] Appeal shall be tried de novo.—Appeals from the decision, order or judgment of the county court or county judge to the district court in cases of guardianship shall be tried in the district court de novo; and the judgment of the district court therein shall be certified to the county court to be carried into effect. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 1460.]

Cited, United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Buhner (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 505.

Evidence.—On appeal from an order allowing in part a claim against an estate in the hands of a guardian, it was not error to permit claimant to read in evidence the account sued on, and the statement filed in the county court, stating in detail the services for which claim was made. Bradshaw v. Lyles, 55 C. A. 384, 119 S. W. 918.

Art. 4300. [2799] [2717] Bill of review may be brought.—Any person interested may, by a bill of review, filed in the court in which the proceedings were had, have any decision, order or judgment rendered by such court, or by the judge thereof, revised and corrected on showing error therein. But no process or action under such decision, order or judgment shall be stayed except by writ of injunction. [Id. sec. 205.]

See Best v. Nix, 25 S. W. 130, 6 C. A. 349; Oldham v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 648.

In general.—In an action to review the final settlement of a guardian, the latter held required to justify an expenditure out of the corpus of the estate by proof of an order of court permitting such use. Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 965.

In an action to review the final settlement of a guardian, the court could not charge the guardian with the difference between the appraised value as shown by the inventory and the value of the property as accounted for in his accounts. Id.

In an action to review the final settlement of a guardian, the restatement by the court of the account as to all of the wards held not error, though one of them was not a party to the suit. Id.

The statutes do not provide for a bill of review except in guardianship matters, where any person interested may, by such bill filed in the court in which the proceedings were had, have the same revised and corrected, as authorized by this article, and in certain other specified cases. Robbie v. Upson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 406.

Necessity for first proceeding by bill of review.—See notes under Art. 4301.

Orders or judgments reviewable.—A person may attack orders of probate court directing the sale of his realty while he was under guardianship though such orders are utterly void. Kelsey v. Trisler, 32 C. A. 177, 74 S. W. 67.

Under this article an order of approval of an account and discharge of a guardian is an order or judgment within the statute. Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 965.

Grounds for bill of review.—Error in discharging sureties on a guardian's bond before the filing of a new bond may be corrected by bill of review under this article, and a bill of review filed by any person interested in a guardianship will lie for errors of law apparent on the face of the decree. Miller v. Miller, 21 C. A. 382, 53 S. W. 362.

Nature of remedy.—When suit is brought under this statute, it is not a collateral, but a direct, attack upon the decision, order or judgment sought to be corrected. De Cordova v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1043.

Limitations.—See notes under Title 87, Chapter 2.

Requisites of bill of review.—A bill of review need not conform to the rules, and is not limited by the restrictions of the equity practice as applicable to that remedy. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222, citing Janson v. Jacobs, 44 T. 573; Seguin v. Maverick, 24 T. 526, 76 Am. Dec. 117. And see Young v. Gray, 60 T. 541.

Under this article a bill attacking the guardian's accounts both for errors of law apparent on the accounts and on a state of facts, the effect of which was to charge fraudulent conduct, was sufficient. Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 965.

Findings.—The findings of the court on a bill of review to vacate a guardianship settlement should designate the particular items found incorrect and which correct, and should specify the corrections and revisions of accounts made by the court. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222.

Jurisdiction of appellate courts.—Under Const. art. 5, § 16, and this article, where a county court rendered judgment against a guardian and the surety on his bond for a devilsavit on a bill in the nature of a bill of review, and defendant surety pleaded a prior proceeding approving the guardian's final account and discharging the surety, an appeal from such judgment should be made to the district court only, and not to the court of civil appeals in the first instance. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Buhner (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 808, affirming 132 S. W. 505.

Art. 4301. [2800] [2718] Certiorari.—Any person interested may also have any decision, order or judgment of the county court or county judge revised and corrected by writ of certiorari from the district court under the same rules and regulations as are provided in estates of decedents.

Cited, Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1189.

In general.—A decree confirming a sale of ward's land will not be reviewed on certiorari on the ground of inadequacy of price. Clopper v. Hutcheson, 16 C. A. 157, 40 S. W. 604.

Necessity for first proceeding by bill of review.—Though Art. 4300 provides for a bill of review to correct orders and judgments of the probate court, it does not follow that such means of correcting improper judgments should be resorted to before seeking to accomplish the same result by certiorari. Linch v. Broad, 70 T. 92, 6 S. W. 751.

Under this and the preceding articles a party interested in a guardianship proceeding in the county court, may, without first proceeding by bill of review in that court, petition the district court for a writ of certiorari. Jirou v. Jirou, 104 T. 136, 135 S. W. 114.

4318. May appoint clerks.
4319. Chief clerk may act in lieu of, when.

Article 4302. [2801] His appointment and term.—A secretary of state shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and shall be continued in office during the term of service of the governor by whom he was appointed, and until his successor is appointed and qualified. [Const., art. 4, sec. 21. Act May 9, 1846. Amended Acts 1899, p. 3. O. & W. 1818.]

Art. 4303. Oath and bond.—He shall, within twenty days after he has received notice of his appointment, and before he enters upon the duties of his office, give a bond, payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, with not less than six good sureties, to be approved by the governor, conditioned that he will faithfully execute the duties of his office; and shall take and subscribe to the oath prescribed by the constitution, which, together with the bond, shall be deposited in the office of the comptroller of public accounts. [Acts 1899, p. 3.]

Art. 4304. [2802] Shall register governor's acts.—He shall keep a fair register of all the official acts of the governor, and, when required, shall lay the same, and all minutes and other papers in relation thereto, before the legislature, or either branch thereof. [Id. sec. 2. O. & W. 1819.]

Art. 4305. [2803] His general duties.—He shall keep his office at the seat of government or other place where the sessions of the legislature may be held; he shall, in a separate book suitable for the purpose, keep a complete register of all the officers appointed and elected in the state, and commission the same when not otherwise provided for by law; he shall arrange and preserve all the books, maps, parchments, records, documents, deeds, conveyances and other papers belonging to the state that have been, or may be properly deposited there, and sealed with the seal of the state, and also similar copies of any act, law or resolution of the United States, or either of them, from the originals in his office; which copies shall be as legal and conclusive in evidence and to all intents and purposes in the courts of this state as the originals would have been; and he shall, when required, furnish the governor, the legislature or either branch thereof, with such copies, and shall affix the seal of the state to all certificates of official character that may emanate from his office. [Id. sec. 13. O. & W. 1820.]

Duty to make report.—Secretary of state held required to make report of receipts and expenditures. Madden v. Hardy, 92 T. 613, 50 S. W. 926.

Art. 4306. [2804] Shall receive and bind enrolled bills, etc.—He shall attend at every session of the legislature for the purpose of receiving bills which have become laws, and immediately after the close thereof shall cause all such bills and all the enrolled joint resolutions of the legislature to be bound together in a volume to be kept in his office, and the date of the session to be written or stamped thereon, a certified copy of which he shall deliver to the public printer, together with an index of the same, and he shall carefully examine and compare the printed copy with the certified copy and correct all the errors contained in the former. [Id. sec. 4. O. & W. 1821.]

Art. 4307. [2805] Shall forward laws, etc., to certain foreign officials.—The secretary of state shall forward to the librarian of congress and the secretary of state of the United States, the secretary of the treasury of the United States, and the executive departments of all of the states of the union, to each foreign librarian or government with whom a system of library exchange may be established, as he may deem advisable, copies of all laws and judicial reports printed and published by order of the legislature, and at the expense of the state. [Act March 20, 1848. Amended Acts 1909, p. 124. O. & W. 1825.]

Art. 4308. [2806] Disposition of books received.—The secretary of state shall turn over to the person in charge of the state library, immediately upon their receipt, all books, maps, charts or other publications of a political or miscellaneous character received at his office; and he shall, in like manner, turn over to the librarian of the supreme court at the capitol all volumes of reports of the courts of any other state or territory received by him; and he shall, in like manner, turn over to the state library, all printed volumes of the statutes or laws of any nation, state or territory, to be deposited in said state library for the same use and purpose as the other books kept there. [Amended Acts 1909, p. 124, sec. 8.]

Art. 4309. [2807] Copies of reports to be sent to whom.—The secretary of state shall deliver, by mail or otherwise, to each justice of the supreme court, each judge of the courts of appeals, the attorney general, the assistant attorney general, the governor, each district judge of the state, each professor of law of the university of Texas, the librarian of said university, and to the county judge of each county for the use of the counties, one copy of the reports of the supreme court and court of appeals, hereafter issued; also shall furnish to each district judge of the United States for Texas one copy of each of said reports for each branch of his courts; and, when it appears that any of the reports of either of said courts have been heretofore furnished and not returned to the department of state, or when they are hereafter delivered by the state to either of the said officers or authorities, the secretary shall have no authority to send another copy, except on proof that the same have been destroyed by fire, or have been rendered valueless by long use, to be evidenced by the certificate of the officer demanding to be resupplied with such report. [Acts 1887, p. 114.]

Art. 4310. [2808] What officers entitled to receive copies of laws.—The following officers shall be entitled to receive one copy of each of all general and special laws hereafter passed by the legislature, to-wit: The governor and heads of departments, each member of the legislature, the judges of the several courts throughout the state, and the clerks of said courts, and each county attorney. The following officers shall be entitled to receive one copy each of all general laws hereafter passed by the legislature, to-wit: County treasurer, county surveyor, sheriff, assessor of taxes, collector of taxes, inspector of hides and animals, justice of the peace, constable and county commissioner. [Acts 1885, p. 68.]

Art. 4311. [2809] How distributed.—The secretary of state shall distribute the printed laws of each session of the legislature to the officers named in the preceding article, as follows: He shall mail or deliver in person to the governor and heads of departments, and to all state or district officers, a copy each, as therein provided; and he shall forward to the county judge of each county a sufficient number of said laws to supply each county officer named in the preceding article with a copy. [Act Feb. 2, 1850, p. 99, sec. 3. P. D. 4585.]

Art. 4312. [2810] May sell copies of laws.—The secretary of state is authorized to sell copies of the general and special laws of the state of Texas that have been or may hereafter be published, at a price not to exceed twenty-five per cent above cost of publishing; provided, that a sufficient number of all laws published be reserved from sale for the use of the state; and provided, further, that any money realized in excess of the costs attending such sale shall be placed to the account of the general revenue in the state treasury. [Acts 1883, p. 33.]

Art. 4313. [2811] Legislative journals, how distributed.—He shall distribute to the governor and heads of departments, and to each member of the legislature, a copy of the printed journals of both houses; and he shall also forward to the county judge of each county two copies of said journals, one to be deposited in the office of the clerk of the district court and the other in the office of the clerk of the county court, for the use of said courts respectively. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 4586.]

Art. 4314. [2812] Digest of laws, how distributed.—Whenever a digest or revision of the laws of the state has been or shall be subscribed for, or published by the state, a sufficient number of copies of each volume thereof shall be forwarded to the county judge of each county to furnish one of said copies to each judge of the supreme and district courts and courts of appeals, to each clerk of the supreme, district and county courts, and courts of appeals, and to each justice of the peace that may be a resident in said county; and it shall be the duty of said county judge to deliver one copy of each of said volumes to each of said officers that may reside in said county. [Id. sec. 5. P. D. 4587.]

Art. 4315. [2813] Executive officers entitled to copies.—The secretary of state shall also deliver to each of the executive officers at the seat of government one copy of each volume of any edition of a digest or revision of the laws of the state, whether such books shall be subscribed for or published by the state, which shall belong to said office; and the officer receiving any such volume shall be bound to deliver it to his successor, and shall be liable to pay his successor the costs and charges that may be necessary to supply the office with any book he may neglect so to deliver. [Id. sec. 7. P. D. 4589.]

Art. 4316. [2814] Officers shall receipt for books.—Whenever any officer shall receive a copy of any report, statute, digest or journal, he shall receipt for the same to the officer distributing it, who shall file such receipt in his office; and said books shall be deemed to belong to the office of said officer to whom they are delivered, and shall, at all reasonable hours, be subject to the inspection and examination of any citizen of this state; and, should any of said officers fail or refuse to deliver any of said books to his successor in office when demanded by him, the officer so failing or refusing shall be liable to pay such successor the costs and charges that may be necessary to supply the office of such successor with any of said books that he shall so fail or refuse to deliver. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 4588.]

Art. 4317. [2815] Shall distribute United States laws.—The secretary of state shall forward to the clerk of the county court of each county, for the use of the county, one copy of all the acts of the congress of the United States which may be received in his office. [Act May 9, 1846, p. 189, sec. 6. P. D. 4582.]

Art. 4318. [2816] May appoint chief and other clerks.—The secretary of state shall appoint a chief clerk and such number of assistant clerks as may be authorized by law, each of whom shall receive such compensation as may from time to time be fixed by appropriation.

Art. 4319. [2817] Chief clerk may act, when.—In the absence of the secretary of state, or his inability to act from any cause, the chief clerk may perform all the duties required by law of that officer. [Id. sec. 7. P. D. 5094.]

Article 4320. Election and term of office.—That there shall be elected by the qualified voters of this state, at the time and places of election for members of the legislature, a comptroller of public accounts, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the election and qualification of his successor. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S., p. 37, sec. 1.]

Art. 4321. Vacancy, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of comptroller of public accounts, the governor shall fill the same by appointment for the unexpired term; which appointment shall be submitted to the senate for confirmation in accordance with law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4322. Bond.—The comptroller shall, within twenty days after he shall have received notice of his election or appointment and before he enters upon the duties of his office, give a bond, payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, in the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars, with not less than six good sureties, to be approved by the governor, conditioned that he will faithfully execute the duties of his office, and shall take and subscribe to the oath prescribed by the constitution, which, together with the bond, shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state; which said bond shall not be void on the first recovery of part or of the whole of the penalty, and shall thereafter continue in force for the whole amount of the penalty thereof, and may be sued on from time to time, and shall be deemed to extend to the faithful performance of the duties of his trust until his successor shall be duly qualified, and shall have entered upon the duties of his office. [Id. sec. 3.]

Liability on bond.—The comptroller and his chief clerk are responsible to the state where a deficit of state funds occurs in their department. Brown v. Sneed, 77 T. 471, 14 S. W. 248.

Art. 4323. Seal.—He shall procure, at the expense of the state, a seal with the words, "Comptroller's Office, State of Texas," engraved around the margin, and a star with five points in the center thereof, which shall be used as the seal of the comptroller's office in the authentication of all his official acts, except warrants drawn on the treasury of the state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4324. Accounting officer.—It shall be the duty of the comptroller of public accounts to superintend the fiscal concerns of the state, as the sole accounting officer thereof, and manage the same in the manner required by law; he shall also perform such official acts as were required of the secretary of the treasury of the republic of Texas, when not otherwise provided by law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4325. Shall keep accounts between state and United States.—He shall keep and state all accounts between this state and the United States, and all other accounts in which the state is interested, including all moneys received by the state as interest and other payments on land and office fees of his and other departments of the state government, and all other moneys received by the state from whatever source and for whatever purpose, and suggest plans for the improvement and management of the public revenue. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4326. Examine accounts of persons indebted to state.—He shall examine and settle the accounts of all persons indebted to the state, and certify the amount or balance to the treasurer, and direct and superintend the collection of all moneys due the state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4327. Accounts to be verified by affidavit.—He shall require all accounts presented to him for settlement, not otherwise provided for by law, to be made on forms prescribed by him, and all such accounts shall be verified by affidavit taken before some officer authorized to administer oaths, touching the correctness of the same, or by oath or affirmation, which may be administered by himself in any case in which he may deem it necessary; and all such accounts of the same class and kind shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4328. Shall require statements.—He shall require all persons who shall have received any moneys belonging to the state, and shall not have accounted therefor, to settle their accounts; and shall, from time to time, require all persons receiving moneys or having the disposition or management of any property of the state, of which an account is kept in his office, to render statements thereof to him. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4329. Audit claims against state.—He shall audit the claims of all persons against the state in cases where provisions for the payment thereof have been made by law, unless the auditing of any such claim shall be otherwise specially provided for. [Id. sec. 10.]

Usurpation of power.—Usurpation by the state comptroller of powers given another department to review certain accounts, though long continued, cannot give him the right to exercise that power. Rochelle v. Lane, 105 T. 350, 148 S. W. 558.

Art. 4330. Certain claims to be presented before legislature convenes.—All sheriffs, attorneys and all other parties holding claims against the state of Texas, for which no warrants have been issued, and the appropriation for which has been exhausted, shall present the same to the comptroller of the state for his consideration at least thirty days before the meeting of each regular session of the legislature of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4331. Claims to have priority.—The comptroller of the state of Texas is authorized and directed to audit no claims against the state not presented within the time prescribed in the preceding article of this chapter, until all claims presented prior to that time have been considered and passed upon by him. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4332. Warrants on treasurer.—He shall draw warrants on the treasurer for the payment of all moneys directed by law to be paid out of the treasury; and no warrant shall be drawn unless authorized by law; and every warrant shall refer to the law under which it is drawn; and no warrant shall be issued in favor of any person, or the agent or assignee of any person indebted to the state, until such debt be paid. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4333. No warrants to be drawn, unless.—No warrant shall be drawn on the treasury of this state by the comptroller based alone on the requisition of any individual or board, except as otherwise provided by law; but, in all cases, an account must first be made in pursuance of some specific appropriation, and filed with the comptroller by some one duly authorized and verified by affidavit. [Id. sec. 14.]

Requisition by individuals.—Where claims against the state are based alone on the requisition of an individual—i. e., any person or board authorized by law to make the same—the comptroller is not authorized to draw his warrant on the treasury, unless the claim is made pursuant to some specific appropriation; the comptroller not being clothed, however, with absolute or arbitrary power to withhold his warrant, his duty to issue it being mandatory, if an appropriation for the purpose in question has been made and the requisition follows the appropriation. Fulmore v. Lane, 104 T. 499, 140 S. W. 405, 1082.

Art. 4334. Shall prescribe forms.—He shall prescribe and furnish the forms to be used by all persons in the collection of the public revenue and the mode and manner of keeping and stating their accounts, and shall adopt such regulations, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws, as he may deem essential to the speedy and proper assessment and collection of the revenues of the state; and all such forms of the same class, kind and purpose shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4335. Allowance to tax collector.—He shall remit, or make an allowance, to every tax collector in the auditing of his accounts, for all sums of money which, in his judgment, have been illegally assessed. [Id. sec. 15a.]

Art. 4336. Comptroller's account to be approved by secretary of state.—The account of the comptroller against the state shall not be passed to the treasurer until approved by the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4337. Bonds to be deposited in office.—All liens, mortgages, bonds and other securities for money given to this state or any officer, and being for the use of the state, unless otherwise specially directed, shall be deposited in the office of the comptroller. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4338. [2830] Audited claims to be reported to legislature.—The comptroller of the state of Texas shall keep a book for the purpose of registering and indexing all audited claims against the state, and, on the meeting of the regular session of the legislature, shall make a minute report of the same to the two houses thereof, giving the names and amounts of all audited claims. [Acts 1876, p. 281.]

Art. 4339. Accounts to be closed, when.—The accounts of the comptroller shall be annually closed on the last day of August; and he shall exhibit all books, papers, vouchers and all other matters pertaining to his office, for the examination of either branch of the legislature, or any committee which may be by them appointed, whenever required by them to do so. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S., sec. 18.]

Art. 4340. Shall render account to governor, when.—In addition to the reports required by the constitution, the comptroller shall exhibit to the governor, on the first Monday of November of each year, and at such other times as he shall require, an exact and complete statement of the funds of the state, of its revenues, and of the public expenditures during the preceding year (or for such other times as may be required), with a detailed estimate of the expenditures to be defrayed from the treasury for the ensuing year, specifying therein each object of expenditures and distinguishing between such as are provided for by general or special appropriation, and such as are required to be provided for by law, and showing the means from which such expenditures are to be defrayed. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4341. Shall preserve books, records, etc.—The comptroller of public accounts shall preserve the books, records, papers and other things belonging to his office, and deliver the same, without injury or damage, to his successor. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4342. To be notified of deficiencies, when.—All heads of departments, managers of state institutions or other persons entrusted with the power or duty of contracting for supplies, or in any manner pledging the credit of the state for any deficiency that may arise under their management or control, shall, at least thirty days before such deficiency shall occur, make out a sworn estimate of the amount necessary to cover such deficiency until the meeting of the next legislature; and such estimate shall be immediately filed with the governor of the state, who shall thereupon carefully examine the same and approve or disapprove the same in whole or in part. When such deficiency claim, or any part thereof, has been so approved by the governor he shall indorse his approval thereon, designating the amount and items thereof approved and the items disapproved, and file the same with the comptroller; and the same shall be authority for the comptroller to draw his deficiency warrant for so much thereof as may be approved; but no claim, or any part thereof, shall be allowed or warrants drawn therefor by the comptroller, or paid by the treasurer, unless such estimate has been so approved and filed. If there is a deficiency appropriation sufficient to meet such claim, then a warrant shall be drawn therefor and the same shall be paid; but, if there is no such appropriation, or if such appropriation be so exhausted that it is not sufficient to pay such deficiency claim, then a deficiency warrant shall issue therefor; and such claim shall remain unpaid until provision be made therefor at some session of the legislature thereafter; provided, that the provisions of this section [article] shall not apply to fees and dues for which the state may be liable under the general laws; provided, further, when any injury or damage shall occur to any public property from flood, storm or any unavoidable cause, the estimate may be filed at once, but must be approved by the governor as provided in this section [article].

Art. 4343. Chief clerk.—The comptroller shall appoint a chief clerk, who, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall be required to take the oath prescribed by the constitution, and give bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, payable in like manner as the bond of the comptroller, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties, whose duty it shall be to discharge the duties of the comptroller when the comptroller may be unavoidably absent or incapable, from sickness or other cause, to discharge said duties, and, under the direction of the comptroller, to supervise the keeping of the books, records and accounts of the department, and to perform such other duties as may be required of him by law and by the comptroller; and, in the event the office of the comptroller should become vacant by death, resignation or otherwise, said chief clerk shall act as comptroller until a comptroller is appointed and qualified.

Art. 4344. Deposit warrants.—The comptroller shall have printed uniform deposit warrants, which shall be of four classes: “State revenue,” “available school,” “permanent school,” and “miscellaneous;” and which shall be prepared in triplicate and marked “original,” “duplicate,” and “triplicate,” respectively. Each class shall be separately serially numbered, and shall be on paper of a different color from the other classes. He shall provide for the use of his department a warrant register for each class of deposit warrants, each volume of which shall be appropriately designated by number or otherwise, and the pages of which shall be ruled and the lines numbered consecutively. When a deposit warrant is prepared, it shall be registered in the deposit warrant register for the class to which it belongs and on the line in such register corresponding in number with the number of the deposit warrant registered. A distribution of the amount stated in each deposit warrant shall be posted in detail to the ledger containing accounts for each source of revenue. The triplicate deposit warrant shall be, on receipt by the treasurer of the amount stated therein, receipted by the treasurer and delivered to the person making the deposit, the original to the state treasurer, who shall file the same numerically; and the duplicate shall be, on receipt of the amount stated therein, receipted by the treasurer, and by him returned to the comptroller, who shall file same numerically. The printed forms for these warrants shall be so prepared and arranged that the original, duplicate and triplicate may, by use of carbon sheets, all be prepared at one and the same writing; and no deposit shall be received into the state treasury on any account, except upon a deposit warrant issued as herein provided.

Art. 4345. Deposit receipts.—The comptroller shall have printed uniform deposit receipts, to be issued by the comptroller to cover moneys and other securities received and held by the state treasurer for which no deposit warrant is issued, or the issuance of a deposit warrant for which, if deferred, except office fees of the state treasurer. Such receipts shall be prepared in duplicate and marked “original” and “duplicate,” respectively, and shall be serially numbered; and the printed form for these receipts shall be so prepared and arranged that the original and the duplicate may, by the use of carbon sheets, both be prepared at one and the same writing. The duplicate shall be receipted by the treasurer, and by him returned to the comptroller, and the original delivered to, and retained by, the state treasurer. He shall provide his office with separate registers, prepared in like manner and form, as the register provided for in article 4344 of this chapter, in which he shall register the deposit receipts, issued in like manner as is provided for the registration of deposit warrants, and shall provide a separate ledger in which shall be kept appropriate accounts for all matters for which such deposit receipts are issued.

Art. 4346. Claims and accounts.—All claims and accounts against the state shall be submitted on forms prescribed by the comptroller, and in duplicate, when required by him, and, except claims for pensions, shall be so prepared as to provide for the entering thereon, for the use of the comptroller’s department, as well as other appropriate matters, the following:

- (a) Signature of the head of the department or other person responsible for incurring the expenditure, or of the person on whose account the expenditure was incurred.
- (b) Appropriation number.
- (c) Initials of the person ascertaining if there are funds available.

- (d) Initials of the person auditing the claim.
- (e) Number and date of warrant issued with the initials of the person preparing the warrant.
- (f) Initials of the person posting to ledger.
- (g) Initials of the person comparing the claim and warrant.

Art. 4347. Claims to be classified.—There shall be three classes of claim forms, as follows:

1. "General," which shall consist of: (a) payrolls, covering departmental and institutional services; (b) traveling expense vouchers; (c) purchases and services other than personal; and (d) sheriff and court claims; and under the head of sheriff and court claims the comptroller may provide for different forms, such as those for sheriffs, county attorneys, district attorneys, district clerks, district judges, witnesses and all other like claims relating to the judiciary; but those of the same kind, use and purpose shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form.

2. "Special," covering all claims for which special warrants are issued and all claims and accounts under this head of the same kind, use and purpose shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form.

3. "Pensions." The forms for pensions shall be prescribed by the comptroller, and shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form.

Art. 4348. List of claims to be kept.—When claims and accounts are received, it shall be ascertained if there are funds available therefor; and the persons making the examination shall indicate such fact by marking his initials upon such claim; and, if there are no funds available, that fact shall be written or stamped upon such claim; and the same shall be held to await the authority to issue a proper warrant therefor. When a claim has been audited and warrant drawn therefor, the claim shall be numbered with the same number as the warrant; and such claim shall be filed numerically according to class, "general," "special," and "pension," respectively. There shall be kept, either in book form or in the form of a card index, an alphabetical index of claimants; but, as to pay rolls, the department or institution shall be the claimant. The index shall show only the name of the claimant and the number of the claim. After the expiration of two years, such claims shall be removed from the files and otherwise securely stored and preserved as records.

Art. 4349. Pay warrants.—The comptroller shall have printed uniform pay warrants, which shall be of three classes, "general," "special," and "pension." Such warrants shall be prepared in duplicate, and shall be marked "original," and "duplicate," respectively; and each class shall be serially numbered and shall be of a color of paper different from the other class. Such warrants shall be prepared so as to provide for entering thereon, in addition to other appropriate matter, the following:

- (a) Initials of the person in the comptroller's department comparing the warrant with the claim.
- (b) Initials of the person in the comptroller's department registering the warrant.
- (c) Designation of the fund against which the warrant is drawn.

Art. 4350. Pay warrants registered.—The comptroller shall provide a pay warrant register for each class of pay warrants, each volume of which shall be appropriately designated by number or otherwise, and the pages of which shall be ruled, and the lines numbered consecutively. When a pay warrant is prepared, it shall be registered in the pay warrant register for the class to which it belongs; and such entries in those registers shall be on the line corresponding in number with the number on the pay warrant register; and such registry shall consist only of an entry of the amount and name of the payee of such warrant; and, if a warrant is erroneously prepared and not issued, or is canceled, or is properly shown to be lost or destroyed, such fact shall be noted in the register opposite the number of such warrant in the register. One person shall be designated by the comptroller as warrant clerk and such person shall prepare or be responsible for the preparation of all pay warrants, and shall be accountable to the comptroller for warrants coming into his possession. No warrant shall be prepared except on presentation to the warrant clerk of a properly verified and audited claim, the proper auditing of which claim shall be evidenced by the initials written thereon by the person auditing the same; and such claim so verified and audited shall be sufficient and the only authority for the preparation of a warrant or warrants. When a warrant has been properly prepared, the claim upon which it was prepared shall be initialed with the initials of the warrant clerk, and such warrant shall be registered as herein provided; and the fact of the registration thereof shall be shown by writing thereon the initials of the person registering the same. When a warrant is properly prepared, it shall be, with the claim upon which it is based, passed to the comptroller for his signature or the signature of such person as may be authorized by law to sign the same in his stead. Such warrant shall then be passed to, and registered in, the treasurer's department and signed by the state treasurer, or some person authorized by law to sign for him, and returned to the comptroller's department. Such warrant shall then be delivered by the comptroller to the person entitled to receive it; and he shall, at his option, take a receipt from such person therefor; which receipt shall be filed in his office. The printed forms for these warrants shall be so prepared and arranged that the original and duplicate may, and the same shall, by the use of carbon sheets, be prepared at one and the same writing.

Art. 4351. Law not to apply to pension warrants.—Applications for pensions and the issuance of pension warrants shall not be subject to the provisions of this chapter. Such warrants shall be separately serially numbered.

Art. 4352. Registration of bonds.—The comptroller shall procure for the use of his department suitable books appropriately ruled and printed, to be known as "bond registers," the volumes of which shall be separately designated by number or otherwise, in which he shall register alphabetically all state, county, school, municipal, and drainage or other such bonds required by law to be registered by him. Neither the bonds nor opinion of the attorney general, nor the record or other papers or documents relative thereto, shall be recorded in full; but only the name of the authority issuing and the names and official capacities of the officers signing such bonds, the date of issue, date of registration, amount of principal, date of maturity, number, time of option of redemption, rate of interest and day of the month of each year when the interest shall fall due, of each bond so registered, shall be entered upon such register; and, on the same line where such entry is made, shall be provided blank spaces in which shall be entered the date of payment or redemption of each bond when the same is paid or redeemed; and, when any bond is paid or redeemed, it shall be the duty of the proper officer of the authority paying such bond to notify the comptroller of the fact and date of such payment or redemption, and for entering the file number of all documents and other papers filed in connection with such bond; and all papers and documents pertaining to such bonds shall be filed and appropriately numbered.

Art. 4353. Account of bonds belonging to each fund to be kept separate.—The comptroller shall keep appropriate accounts by funds, showing a short description of the essential features of each, of each bond or of each purchase of similar or like bonds, or other securities purchased by and belonging to the permanent school and other funds of the state; each of which accounts shall be charged with the principal of such bond or purchase; and, with each separate item of interest payments to accrue thereon, and shall be credited with payments as made. He shall also keep controlling or total accounts of such bonds or other securities; which accounts shall be kept with respect to the total amount of bonds or other securities belonging to each separate fund; each of which controlling accounts shall be balanced quarterly at the same time as and the balance of which shall correspond with like accounts kept by the state treasurer.

Art. 4354. State general ledger.—The comptroller shall establish and maintain a double entry system of bookkeeping to be in charge of the chief bookkeeper. The accounts of each of the funds shall be opened in a "state general ledger;" and, at the start, credited with a balance of the funds on hand. An account shall also be opened with the state treasurer and charged with the cash on hand and the balance in depositories. Each charge shall represent the aggregate amount of cash held by him for the various funds. Thereafter, no entry shall be made in the ledger except by means of the double entry system. Warrants issued shall be charged in monthly totals to the fund accounts. Accounts shall be opened for the purpose of showing the amount of outstanding pay warrants from time to time; which accounts shall be credited with the warrants issued and charged with the warrants paid. All outstanding pay warrants, at the time this act shall go into effect, shall be definitely ascertained, and the account started with a credit for the aggregate amount, and the several fund accounts charged with the outstanding pay warrants against said accounts respectively. The comptroller shall charge the state treasurer in totals with all deposit warrants as issued and credit him with warrants paid so that the balance in the treasurer's hands, together with the balance in the state depositories, shall agree with the balance shown by this account.

Art. 4355. Revenue ledger.—The comptroller shall keep a ledger, to be known as "revenue ledger," in which a distribution shall be made of the revenues derived by the state from all sources, and the amount derived from each source, as stated. The sources of revenue printed on the back of the duplicate in each deposit warrant issued therefor by the comptroller shall be posted to the revenue ledger, and its balances periodically agreed with the deposit warrants issued.

Art. 4356. Ledger for accounting of tax collectors.—The comptroller shall keep the accounts of tax collectors in a separate ledger, one for current taxes and the other for delinquent and insolvent taxes, and these ledgers shall be made self-balancing by means of controlling accounts.

Art. 4357. Ledger for account of state treasurer.—The comptroller shall keep a suspense ledger in which the accounts of the state treasurer shall be stated in respect to moneys held by him, pending the issuance of deposit warrants and moneys and securities held, other than those for state purposes, for all of which the comptroller shall issue deposit receipts, posting the same in total to this ledger. It shall also include the accounts of heads of departments for all moneys received by them, and not deposited with the state treasurer; which accounts shall be kept in monthly totals based upon monthly reports furnished to the comptroller by each of the heads of departments.

Art. 4358. Shall keep journals.—The comptroller shall keep journals through which all entries are made in the ledgers.

Art. 4359. Issue duplicate warrants, when.—The comptroller of public accounts, when satisfied that any original warrant drawn upon the state treasurer has been lost, or destroyed, or when any certificate or other evidence of indebtedness approved by the auditing board of the state has been lost, is authorized to issue a duplicate warrant in lieu of the original warrant or a duplicate or a copy of such certificate, or other evidence of indebtedness in lieu of such original; but no such duplicate warrant, or other evidence of indebtedness, shall issue until the applicant has filed with the comptroller his affidavit, stating that he is the true owner of such instrument, and that the same is in fact lost or destroyed, and shall also file with the comptroller his bond in double the amount of the claim, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the governor, to be approved by the comptroller, and conditioned that the applicant will hold the state harmless and return to the comptroller, upon demand being made therefor, such duplicates or copies, or the amount of money named therein, together with all costs that may accrue against the state on collecting the same.

Art. 4360. Duty when duplicates are improperly issued.—If, after the issuance of said duplicate or copy, the comptroller should ascertain that the same was improperly issued, or that the applicant or party to whom the same was issued was not the owner thereof, he shall at once demand the return of said duplicate or copy if unpaid, or the amount paid out by the state, if so paid; and, upon failure of the party to return same or the amount of money called for, suit shall be instituted upon said bond in the court having jurisdiction of the amount in controversy, in the city of Austin, Travis county, Texas.

Art. 4361. Comptroller and treasurer to examine and cancel warrants.—The comptroller shall examine the disbursements of the treasurer at the end of each quarter, and shall, together with the treasurer, cancel the warrants which have been paid in such manner as to prevent their future circulation, and shall examine if the receipts acknowledged by the treasurer during the quarter correspond with the deposits, and if the balance of money reported to be in his possession is actually in his hands.

Article 4362. [2849] His election and term of office.—There shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state, at the time and places of election for members of the legislature, a state treasurer, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the election and qualification of his successor. [Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 1. Const., art. 4, sec. 2.]

Art. 4363. [2850] Vacancies, how filled.—Should a vacancy occur in the office of the state treasurer, the governor shall fill the same by appointment for the unexpired term; which appointment shall be submitted to the senate, if in session, for confirmation. [Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 2.]

Art. 4364. [2851] His oath and bond.—The state treasurer shall, within twenty days after he shall have received notice of his election, and before he enters upon the duties of his office, give a bond payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, in the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars, with no less than six good sureties, to be approved by the governor, conditioned that he will faithfully execute the duties of his office, and shall take and subscribe the oath prescribed by the constitution, which, together with the bond, shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state; which said bond shall not be void on the first recovery of part, or of the whole of the penalty, but shall thereafter continue in force for the whole amount of the penalty thereof, and may be sued on from time to time, and shall be deemed to extend to the faithful performance of the duties of his trust, and until his successor shall be duly qualified and shall have entered upon the duties of his office. [Act March 19, 1846, p. 10, sec. 1. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 3. P. D. 5282.]

Art. 4365. [2852] New bond may be required.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general, with the comptroller, on the first days of June and December of every year, to examine the bond of the treasurer and make diligent inquiry into the condition of the sureties on said bond; and, if, in the opinion of the attorney general, said bond is not sufficient, from death, removal, insolvency of said sureties, or from any cause, to secure the state in her rights, then, it shall be the duty of the attorney general to notify said treasurer in writing of the insufficiency of said bond; and, should said treasurer fail, for the space of twenty days from the date of such notice, to furnish a sufficient new bond, it shall be the duty of the governor forthwith to suspend said treasurer from office. [Act May 3, 1873, p. 62, sec. 3. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 4.]

Art. 4366. [2853] Failing to give new bond.—Should the treasurer be suspended from office under the provisions of the preceding article, it shall be the duty of the governor to appoint some suitable person as treasurer, who shall give bond as in other cases, said bond to be approved by the governor; and the appointee shall perform the duties of treasurer until the suspended officer shall give a new bond to be approved by the governor, as in other cases. [Id. sec. 4. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 5.]

Art. 4367. [2854] Shall receive moneys on warrant of comptroller.—The treasurer shall receive, on the warrants of the comptroller of public accounts, all moneys which shall, from time to time, be paid into the treasury of the state, receipting for the same upon duplicate and triplicate warrants; which duplicate shall be deposited with the comptroller, and the triplicate given to the person depositing such moneys. [Act March 19, 1846, sec. 2. P. D. 5283. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 6.]

Art. 4368. [2855] How money to be paid out.—The treasurer shall countersign and pay all warrants drawn by the comptroller of public accounts on the treasury, which are authorized by law; and no money shall be paid out of the treasury except on the warrants of the comptroller. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 5284. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 7.]

Selling at discount.—Neither the comptroller nor any other state officer is responsible for the deficit when a warrant is sold at a discount for want of funds in the treasury. State v. Wilson, 71 T. 291, 9 S. W. 155.

Art. 4364
Vernon Sayre
1914
Amended
38-L.P. 310

Art. 4369. [2856] Shall keep strict accounts.—He shall keep true, regular and methodical accounts of the receipts and expenditures of the public moneys of the treasury, and close his accounts annually on the thirty-first day of August, with the proper and legal vouchers for the same, distinguishing between the receipts and disbursements of each fiscal year. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 5285. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 8.]

Art. 4370. [2858] An account for each appropriation.—He shall also open an account in the treasury for all appropriations of money made by law, so that the appropriations and the application in pursuance thereof may clearly and distinctly appear. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 5287. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 9.]

Art. 4371. [2859] Shall make an annual exhibit to the governor.—In addition to the reports required by the constitution, the treasurer shall submit to the governor on the first Monday of November of each year, and at such other times as he shall require, an exact statement of the condition and situation of the treasury, and of the balance of money remaining therein to the credit of the state, with a summary of the receipts and payments of the treasury during the preceding year, or for such other period of time as may be specially required, and shall exhibit all books, papers, vouchers and other matters pertaining to his office, for the examination of the legislature, or either branch thereof, or any committee which may be by them appointed, whenever required by them to do so. [Id. sec. 7. P. D. 5288. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 10.]

✓ Art. 4372. [2860] Public moneys and that only to be kept in the treasury.—All moneys received by the treasurer shall be kept in the safes and vaults of the treasury; and it shall not be lawful for the treasurer to keep or receive into the building, safes or vaults of the treasury any money, or the representative of money, belonging to any individual, except in cases expressly provided for by law; nor shall it be lawful for said treasurer to appropriate to his own use, or loan, sell or exchange any money, or the representative of money, in his custody or control as such treasurer. [Act May 3, 1873, p. 62, sec. 1. P. D. 5290. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., sec. 11.]

Art. 4373. [2861] May appoint chief clerk, etc.—The treasurer shall appoint a chief clerk, who shall be required to give bond in the sum of twenty thousand dollars, payable to the governor of the state, and conditioned as is the bond of the state treasurer, and shall appoint such other employes as may be authorized by law; each and all of whom shall receive such compensation as may from time to time be appropriated by law for that purpose. [Amended Acts 1909, 2 S. S., sec. 12.]

Art. 4374. [2862] Chief clerk may act, when and how.—The chief clerk of the treasurer's office shall, whenever by reason of sickness, unavoidable absence or other cause, the treasurer is not able to act, sign his own name as acting treasurer, and do such other acts and things as the treasurer himself might legally do; and the legal acts and signatures of such chief clerk as acting treasurer shall be as valid as the acts and signatures of the state treasurer himself. [Amended Acts 1909, 2 S. S., sec. 13.]

Art. 4375. [2863] Shall turn over to his successor.—The treasurer shall, at the close of his term of office, deliver into the possession of his successor the moneys, securities and all other property of the state, together with books, vouchers, papers and evidences of property in his possession, and all other matters and things which pertain to the office of state treasurer. [Act March 19, 1846, p. 10, sec. 8. P. D. 5289. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 14.]

Vernon Sayles,
1914
Amended
38-L.P. 310

Art. 4376. [2863a] Custodian of school fund bonds.—The treasurer of the state of Texas is hereby made the custodian of all bonds in which the school funds of the state of Texas have been, or may hereafter be, invested; and it is hereby made his duty to keep said bonds in his custody until the same shall be paid off, discharged, or otherwise disposed of by the proper authorities of said state. [Acts 1895, p. 9. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 15.]

Art. 4377. [2863b] Duty with respect thereto.—Said treasurer shall, upon the payment of any installment of interest, see that the proper credit is given, and that the coupons on said bonds, when paid, shall be properly separated therefrom and canceled by said treasurer. [Id. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 16.]

Art. 4378. Certain money returned to counties.—Whenever there is money in the state treasury placed there to pay off any of the obligations due by any county, city or town, and it is made to appear to the comptroller, by certified copy of the records of county commissioners' court, or by other satisfactory evidence, that said obligations are no longer outstanding against such county, city or town, then it shall be the duty of the comptroller to draw a warrant on the state treasury in favor of such county, city or town for the amount of money so remaining in the treasury; and the state treasurer shall pay such money on said warrant of the comptroller to the treasurer of such county, city or town, for the benefit of the general fund of such county, city or town. [Acts 1901, p. 19.]

Art. 4379. Deposit warrant register.—The state treasurer shall cause to be prepared a deposit warrant register designed with columns for state revenue, available school fund, and miscellaneous; all warrants to be entered consecutively and distributed to the proper columns. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 17.]

Art. 4380. Shall post daily totals.—The state treasurer shall cause the daily totals of state revenue and all available school deposit warrants to be posted to the fund accounts in the ledger, and the items in the miscellaneous column to be posted in detail, except that deposit warrants for bonds sold or redeemed shall be posted in a bond book. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 4381. Register of warrants issued.—The state treasurer shall keep registers of warrants issued, one for general warrants, and one for special warrants. In the case of pensions, the comptroller shall furnish a list of those issued; which list shall be compared with the warrants and shall constitute the treasurer's register of pension warrants issued. The date of payment of all warrants shall be stamped on the above registers. The state treasurer shall keep a "warrants paid register" with columns headed "general," "special," and "pensions." In this register, the general and special warrants shall be entered when paid in detail and the pension warrants in one daily total. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4382. Certain other accounts.—The state treasurer shall keep accounts called "warrants payable, general," "warrants payable, special," and "warrants payable, pensions," to which, when opened, shall be credited the daily totals of the several registers of warrants issued and charged with the daily total of warrants paid of each class, so that the balance of these accounts shall represent the aggregate amount of outstanding warrants. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4383. Outstanding warrants.—Outstanding warrants shall be listed each month from the registers of warrants issued, and a list thereof sent to the comptroller for his record. With this list, the state treasurer shall furnish a statement showing the aggregate amount of general, special and pension warrants paid during the month. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4384. General revenue account.—The state treasurer shall charge the daily totals of the general warrants issued from the register to “general revenue” account in the ledger. The daily total of pension warrants issued shall be similarly treated; while the special warrants issued shall be charged to the fund account to which they apply, except that those issued for bonds purchased shall be posted to the bond book. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4385. Appropriation ledger.—The state treasurer shall charge all pay warrants issued under the authority of appropriations in detail to the “appropriation ledger,” an account being kept for each appropriation, which shall be credited with the amount of the appropriation. The total of the appropriation so credited shall be charged to an account called “appropriation voted.” The daily totals of the general warrants issued shall be credited to this account, so that the balance shall represent the aggregate amount of unused appropriation. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4386. Daily statement from land office.—The state treasurer shall receive daily from the general land office a detailed list of remitters of money for interest, principal and leases of school, university and asylum lands, together with the actual remittances, which he shall cash and deposit in his vault, if the necessity arises. A deposit receipt shall be issued by the comptroller for the daily total of such remittances; and the cashier of the treasurer’s department shall keep a cash book, to be called “suspense cash book,” in which to enter these deposit receipts, and any others issued for cash received for which no deposit warrants can be issued, or when their issuance is delayed. When deposit warrants are issued, they shall be credited in this cash book, as well as any refunds; and the balance shall represent the aggregate of items still in suspense. Refunds shall be made in a manner similar to that in present use, except that they shall all be made on the comptroller’s authority. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4387. Office fee book.—The state treasurer shall keep an office fee book in which shall be entered in detail all fees earned by the treasury department; which fees shall be deposited into the treasury to the credit of the general revenue at the end of each month on a deposit warrant issued by the comptroller. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4388. Cash balancing book.—The treasurer shall keep a book, to be called “cash balancing book,” for the purpose of arriving at the daily cash balance, in which shall be entered the daily totals of all receipts and disbursements. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4389. Ledger to contain what.—The ledger kept by the state treasurer shall contain accounts for each fund, which shall be credited with the existing balances and with the daily totals of deposit warrants except those issued for bonds. The pay warrants issued, except those for bonds, shall be charged to the several fund accounts from the warrant register in daily totals. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4390. Bond book.—The state treasurer shall keep a bond book, with columns for each fund, which shall start with the aggregate amount of bonds now held and be charged with all subsequent additions and credited with all bonds sold or redeemed. The entries in the bond book shall be posted from the deposit warrant and special warrant registers, being the deposit warrants issued for bonds sold or redeemed and special warrants for bonds purchased. The treasurer shall also keep a bond register, in which shall be entered the essential details of all bonds held by him and belonging to any state fund. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4391. Bond, etc., register.—The state treasurer shall keep a suitable register in which to enter all bonds, cash and other securities lodged with him by bond investment, surety and insurance companies, and state depository banks, and all other bonds lodged with him under the provisions of the statutes, the registration of which is not otherwise provided for by law. The relinquishment of these securities shall be on the authority of the comptroller. The state treasurer shall keep a separate bond book in which to enter all these transactions consecutively, posting each item to the register; which book shall be opened with the aggregate of securities now held. [Id. sec. 29.]

Article 4392. [2864] His election and term.—There shall be elected by the qualified voters at the time and places of election for members of the legislature, a commissioner of the general land office, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the election and qualification of his successor in office, and shall reside at the capital during his continuance in office. [Const., art. 4, secs. 2, 23.]

Art. 4393. [2865] Vacancies, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of commissioner of the general land office, the governor shall fill the same by appointment, which shall be submitted to the senate, if in session, for confirmation; and the person so appointed shall hold said office for the unexpired term.

Art. 4394. [2866] His bond and oath.—The commissioner of the general land office shall, before he enters upon the discharge of the duties of his office, enter into a bond with three or more sureties, in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his official duties, and take and subscribe the oath prescribed by the constitution; which bond, after being approved by the governor, shall, together with the oath, be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Act May 12, 1846, p. 232, sec. 5. P. D. 4096.]

Art. 4395. [2867] Seal of office.—The commissioner of the general land office shall procure a seal of office with the words, "General Land Office, the State of Texas," engraved around the margin, and such other device as the governor shall approve; which approval shall be certified and recorded in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 4089.]

Art. 4396. [2868] His general duties.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner to superintend, control and direct the official conduct of all subordinate officers of the general land office, and to execute and perform all acts and things touching or respecting the public land of the state of Texas, or rights of individuals in relation thereto, as may be required of him by law. [Id. sec. 1. P. D. 4091.]

Art. 4397. [2869] Give information to the governor, etc.—The commissioner of the general land office shall give information to the governor, or either branch of the legislature, concerning the public lands, or the general land office, from time to time, as may be required. [Id. sec. 12. O. & W. 1155.]

Art. 4398. [2871] Chief clerk.—The commissioner of the general land office shall appoint a chief clerk, who shall hold his office at the pleasure of the commissioner, and shall enter into bond, with three or more sureties, in the penal sum of twenty thousand dollars, payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office; which bond shall be approved by the governor and filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Acts 1846, p. 232, sec. 4. P. D. 4094.]

Art. 4399. [2872] May act as commissioner, when.—In case of sickness, absence, death or resignation of the commissioner of the general land office, it shall be lawful for the chief clerk to perform all the duties required of the commissioner. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 4095.]

Art. 4400. [2873] Spanish translator.—The commissioner of the general land office shall appoint a translator who shall thoroughly understand the Spanish and English languages, and who shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and give bond, with three or more good sureties, in the penal sum of twenty thousand dollars, payable to, and to be approved by, the governor, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office. [Id. sec. 3. Act Dec. 14, 1837, p. 62, sec. 33. P. D. 4094, 4097.]

Art. 4401. [2874] His duties.—It shall be the duty of said translator to translate into the English language, and record in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, all the laws and public contracts relating to titles of lands which are written in the Spanish or Castilian language, and also to translate and record in like manner all original titles or papers relating thereto which are written in said language, and which may be on file in the general land office. [Id. sec. 34. P. D. 4098.]

Art. 4402. [2875] Receiving clerk.—The commissioner of the general land office shall, with the consent and approval of the governor, appoint a suitable person to act as receiving clerk for the land office; and the person thus appointed shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, qualify and execute a bond in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, payable to the governor and approved by him, conditioned as other official bonds for a faithful discharge of the duties of his office; which bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Act Nov. 10, 1866, p. 161, sec. 1.]

Art. 4403. [2876] Shall receive and receipt for money.—It shall be the duty of the receiving clerk to receive all funds that are required to be paid to the commissioner by existing laws, and to give to the person depositing money a certificate of deposit stating the amount, name of party, and character of claim upon which deposited; and, if any funds are received of a general character in advance of fees and dues, it shall be so stated; and the receiving clerk shall be responsible therefor to the state or individual. [Id. p. 162, sec. 2.]

Art. 4404. [2877] Shall register receipts and payments.—The receiving clerk shall keep a book or books, in which he shall enter each deposit separately, giving name of party, number of claim and situation of land sought to be perfected, and shall keep all letters and other vouchers filed in neat and regular order and number corresponding with his books, and shall make a report to the treasurer on the last day of each month of all funds in his hands due the state, paying the same in and taking the receipt in his own name in the same manner as heretofore required by law of the commissioner. [Id.]

Art. 4405. [2878] Shall report to the governor, etc.—It shall be the duty of the receiving clerk to furnish the governor, through the commissioner of the general land office, on or before the meeting of the legislature, a correct report of the condition of his office, the money received, giving character of claim, the money paid out and character of payment; and it shall be his duty to keep separate columns in his books, showing the amount of specie or the amount of currency or other funds paid in; and, in his reports to the treasury he shall pay in kind all funds in his hands that belong to the state of Texas, and, upon his removal or resignation, shall turn over his books, accounts and money in hand to his successor, when properly qualified, or to the commissioner, taking a receipt for the same. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4406. [2879] If defaulter, to be removed.—The commissioner shall from time to time examine the books and accounts of the receiving clerk and note that they are properly kept, and, if any defalcation is found, shall report the same to the governor at once, who shall suspend him from office until an examination is made, and, if found guilty, he shall be removed and proceedings instituted upon his bond to recover whatever deficit may occur. [Id.]

Art. 4407. [2880] Chief and other draftsmen.—The commissioner of the general land office shall appoint one chief draftsman, and such number of compiling or assistant draftsmen as may from time to time be authorized by law, whose duty it shall be to make out and complete maps of all surveys made in the several counties and districts from the maps furnished by county and district surveyors; and they shall from time to time, as surveys are made in the several counties and land districts and forwarded to the general land office, as required by law, plat such surveys upon the proper county or district maps. Such chief draftsman and other draftsmen shall also perform all drafting and other duties as may be required of them by the commissioner of the general land office, for the benefit of the state or individuals. [Act Feb. 5, 1841, p. 150. P. D. 4100.]

Art. 4408. [2881] Appointment of clerks.—The commissioner of the general land office shall appoint such number of clerks as may from time to time be authorized by legislative appropriation or other law of the state; and such clerks and the compiling and assistant draftsmen provided for in the preceding article, shall receive such compensation for their services as may be appropriated for that purpose.

Art. 4409. [2882] Salary of chief clerk, etc.—The chief clerk, translator, receiving clerk and chief draftsman shall receive such compensation for their services as may from time to time be appropriated by law for that purpose.

Art. 4410. [2883] All employés may be removed by the commissioner.—All clerks, draftsmen or other employés of the general land office, including the chief clerk, translator, receiving clerk and chief draftsman, shall hold their offices and positions, at the pleasure of the commissioner, and may be removed by him at any time for satisfactory cause.

Article 4411. [2884] His election, term.—There shall be elected by the qualified voters, at the time and places of election for members of the legislature, an attorney general, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the election and qualification of his successor in office. [Const., art. 4, secs. 1, 2, 22.]

Art. 4412. [2885] Vacancies, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of attorney general, the governor shall fill such vacancy by appointment, which shall be submitted to the senate, if in session, and the person so appointed shall hold his office until the next succeeding general election for members of the legislature and the qualification of his successor.

Art. 4413. [2886] Shall represent state in higher courts.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general to prosecute and defend all actions in the supreme court or courts of appeals in which the state may be interested, and also to perform such other duties as may be prescribed by the constitution and laws. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 206, sec. 1. P. D. 198.]

History of act.—This article has not been amended since the reorganization of the courts, except by the substitution of "courts of appeals" for "court of appeals." See Const., art. 4, § 22.

Official duties.—The official duties of the attorney-general are defined by the constitution, Art. 4, § 22. He cannot institute suits when private rights alone are involved. State v. Loan & Trust Co., 81 T. 530, 17 S. W. 60. See Kempner v. Comer, 73 T. 196, 11 S. W. 194; State v. Thompson, 64 T. 691; State v. Moore, 57 T. 307.

Art. 4414. Superseded. See Art. 4418a.

Art. 4415. [2888] Shall transmit state demands for suit.—He shall transmit to the proper district or county attorneys, with such instructions as he may deem necessary, all certified accounts, bonds or other demands which may have been delivered to him by the comptroller of public accounts for prosecution and suit. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 203.]

Art. 4416. [2889] Shall require and make reports of suits.—He shall require the several district and county attorneys to report to him semi-annually, at the close of the courts of their respective districts or counties, in such form as he may prescribe, precise information of the situation of all suits instituted by them for the collection of public money; and he shall report to the comptroller of public accounts annually, on the last day of October and at such other times as the comptroller may request, a full and correct statement of the situation of all suits instituted for the collection of public money. [Id. secs. 7, 8. P. D. 204, 205.]

Art. 4417. [2890] Prepare forms for contracts, etc.—He shall, whenever requested by the comptroller of public accounts, prepare proper forms for contracts, obligations and other instruments which may be wanted for the use of the state. [Id. sec. 10. P. D. 207.]

Art. 4418. [2891] Shall advise the governor, etc.—At the request of the governor or the heads of departments at the capitol, he shall give them legal advice in writing upon any question touching the public interest or concerning their official duties. [Id. sec. 9. P. D. 206. Acts 1879, ch. 117, p. 127.]

Art. 4418a. Shall advise heads of departments, district and county attorneys, legal authorities, with respect to issuance of bonds, etc.; shall prosecute suits to recover properties escheated; shall not advise other officials.—That in addition to the duties now or that may hereafter, be imposed upon the attorney general by law, he shall, at the request of the governor or the heads of the departments of the state government, including the heads and boards of penal and eleemosynary institution, and all other state boards, regents, trustees of the state educational institutions, and committees of either branch of the legislature, give them advice in writing upon any question touching the public interest, or concerning their official duties. He shall counsel and advise the several district and county attorneys of the state, in the prosecution and defense of all actions in the district or inferior courts, wherein the state is interested whenever requested by them, after said attorney shall have investigated the question, and shall with the question presented to the attorney general submit his brief also. He shall counsel and advise the proper legal authorities in regard to the issuance of all bonds that the law requires shall be approved by him, and it shall also be his duty to institute and prosecute, or cause to be instituted and prosecuted, all suits and proceedings necessary to recover for and on behalf of the State all properties, real, personal or mixed, that have heretofore escheated or that may escheat to this state under the provisions of title 51 of the Acts of 1911, or under any other law now in existence, or that may hereafter be enacted, and the attorney general is hereby prohibited from giving legal advice or written opinions to any other than the public officials named above. [Acts 1913, p. 48, sec. 1.]

Art. 4419. [2892] Shall inspect accounts in offices of treasurer and comptroller.—He shall at least once a month inspect the accounts in the offices of the state treasurer and the comptroller of public accounts, of all officers, and of individuals charged with the collection or custody of funds belonging to the state, and shall proceed immediately to institute, or cause to be instituted, against any such officer or individual, who is in default or arrears, suit for the recovery of funds in his hands; and he shall also institute immediately criminal proceedings against all officers or persons who have violated the laws by misapplying, or retaining in their hands, funds belonging to the state.

Art. 4420. [2893] Required to attend sales and bid in land.—In any case wherein any property shall be sold by virtue of any execution or order of sale issued upon any judgment in favor of the state, except executions issued upon judgments in cases of scire facias, the agent or attorney representing the state, by and with the advice and consent of the attorney general of the state, is hereby authorized and required to attend such sales, and bid on, and buy in, for the state said property, when it shall be deemed proper to protect the interest of the state in the collection of such judgment; provided, that in no case shall the amount bid by him exceed the amount necessary to satisfy said judgment and all costs due thereon. [Acts 1879, S. S. pp. 9–10.]

Art. 4421. [2894] To execute deeds.—In all cases where property is so purchased by the state, the officer selling the same shall execute and deliver to the state a deed of conveyance to the same, such as is prescribed for individuals in similar cases. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4422. [2895] May sell such property, how.—The agent or attorney of the state buying for the state any such property at such sale shall be authorized, by and with the advice and consent of the attorney general, at any time to sell or otherwise dispose of said property so purchased in the manner and upon such terms and conditions as he may deem most advantageous to the state; and, if sold or disposed of for a greater amount than is necessary to pay off the amount due upon the judgment and all costs, the remainder shall be paid into the state treasury and placed to the credit of the general revenue; and when such sale is made the attorney general shall, in the name of the state, execute and deliver to the purchaser a deed of conveyance to said property, which deed, when so signed by him, shall vest all the right and title to the same in the purchaser thereof. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4423. [2896] Agent of county authorized to bid in for county and to sell same.—When any such property is sold under execution or order of sale issued upon any judgment in favor of the county, including executions issued upon judgments in cases of scire facias in the name of the state, the attorney or agent so representing the county, by and with the advice and consent of the commissioners' court, shall have the same authority to buy and dispose of such property for the county as the agent or attorney for the state is given in this chapter in similar cases; and, when any property is so purchased by the agent or attorney of the county, the officer so selling the same shall execute and deliver to the county a deed of conveyance to the same; and, whenever the property so bought in for the county is sold, the county commissioners' court shall execute and deliver to the purchaser thereof a deed of conveyance in the name of the county to such property. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4424. [2897] Sale of judgments against insolvents.—Whenever the principal and sureties upon any judgment held by the state are insolvent, so that under any existing process of law said judgment or any part thereof can not be collected, there shall be, and is hereby constituted, a board consisting of the attorney general, comptroller and treasurer of the state, who are hereby empowered and authorized by such advertising as they may deem necessary to offer for sale at public outcry, or by private sale, as they may deem to the best interest of the state, all the right of the state to such judgment; and, if by public sale, if the amount bid on the same should not be deemed sufficient, they shall refuse to accept the same, and dispose of the same in any manner deemed by them most advantageous to the interest of the state, and upon sale shall make a proper assignment of said judgment to the purchaser. [Id. sec. 5.]

Cited, Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Mapes (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 528.

Art. 4425. [2898] Register of official acts.—The attorney general shall keep in proper books, to be provided for that purpose at the expense of the state, a register of all his official acts and opinions, of all actions and demands prosecuted or defended by him or any district or county attorney, in which any portion of the revenue of the state is involved, and of all proceedings had in relation thereto, and shall deliver the same to his successor in office. [Acts 1846, p. 204. Id. sec. 12. P. D. 209.]

Art. 4426. [2899] Shall pay over collections immediately.—All money received by the attorney general for debts due or penalties forfeited to the state, shall be paid by him into the treasury immediately after the receipt thereof. [Id. sec. 11. P. D. 208.]

Art. 4427. [2900] Enforce forfeiture of charters, etc.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general, unless otherwise expressly directed by law, whenever sufficient cause exists therefor, to seek a judicial forfeiture of the charters of private corporations; and he shall at once take steps to seek such forfeiture in all cases where satisfactory evidence is laid before him that any corporation receiving state aid has, by the non-performance of its charter conditions or the violations of its charter, or by any act or omission, misuser or non-user, forfeited its charter or any rights thereunder. [Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 312, sec. 1.]

Art. 4428. [2901] And inquire into all charter rights.—He shall also especially inquire into the charter rights of all private corporations and, from time to time, in the name of the state, take such legal action as may be proper and necessary to prevent any private corporation from exercising any power or demanding or collecting any species of taxes, tolls, freight or wharfage not authorized by law. [Const., art. 4, sec. 22.]

Art. 4429. [2902] No admission to prejudice.—No admission, agreement or waiver, made by the attorney general, in any action or suit in which the state is a party, shall prejudice the rights of the state. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 206, sec. 14. P. D. 211.]

Art. 4430. [2903] Office, where kept.—The attorney general shall reside and keep his office at the seat of government. [Id. sec. 15. P. D. 212.]

Art. 4431. First office assistant to act, when.—In case of the absence or inability to act of the attorney general, the first office assistant of the attorney general shall discharge the duties which devolve by law upon the attorney general. [Act 1903, p. 117, sec. 1.]

Art. 4432. [2904] Assistant attorney general.—The governor shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, if in session, an officer to be styled the assistant attorney general, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the election and qualification of his successor. The assistant attorney general shall assist the attorney general in representing the interests of the state in all suits, pleas and prosecutions in the supreme court and courts of appeal. [Acts March 15, 1875, p. 179. Acts 1903, p. 117.]

Special attorney—When state officer.—In order to constitute an attorney employed by the attorney general an officer of the state, his appointment and continuance in office must be coterminous with the term of office of the attorney general. Terrell v. Sparks, 104 T. 191, 135 S. W. 519.

Where an attorney appointed by the attorney general to represent the state in litigation did not take an oath of office or qualify, held, that he was not an officer of the state. Id.

— Employment contract.—A contract of employment by an attorney general held a contract of the state. Terrell v. Sparks, 104 T. 191, 135 S. W. 519.

Art. 4433. [2906] Further duties.—The assistant attorney general shall represent the state in all cases in the district or inferior courts of any county when required so to do by the governor or attorney general; and he shall, in addition thereto, perform such other duties as may be required of him by law or by the governor or attorney general. [Id.]

Art. 4434. [2907] Governor authorized to order civil suits, when.—The governor is authorized to order through the proper officials the institution, prosecution or defense of any civil action or suit whenever he deems such course proper for the assertion or defense of any right of the state, and to render to said officials such assistance as to him may seem necessary or expedient. [Acts 1887, p. 138.]
